Two Davie Residents Enlist in Air Force

Two Davie residents recently enlisted into the U.S. Air Force.

Sarah E. Poindexter of Advance and Michael Y. Allen of Mocksville made that commitment, according to Technical Sgt. Linda Thompson, local Air Force recruiter.

Upon successfully completing the Air Force's six week basic training course at Lackland Air Force Base near San Antonio, Texas, they will receive training in a designated career area.

They will receive credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force while attending basic and technical training schools.

Allen is a graduate of Davie High School. Poindexter is a graduate of Davie High and Forsyth Technical Community College.

Academy Presents Tolbert Community Teaching Award

HILLSDALE - Dr. Frank Tolbert has received a community teaching award from the N.C. Academy of Family Physicians.

Tolbert teaches from one to three medical students and nurses at a time in his office here.

"We try to have medical students to come through areas of primary care so we can turn out more family doctors than specialists," Tolbert said.

The program seems to be working, because the number of doctors going into family medicine seems to be increasing.

"They learn what primary care is like ... the concept of family care and health maintenance."

Tolbert said the program benefits the students, his staff and the patients.

"It keeps you on your toes," he said. "These guys are coming right out of medical school, so they're kind of on the cutting edge. They bring the academics in, and I try to give them real experiences in techniques and how to diagnose and deal with people."

Tolbert is on the clinical staff at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem. He has practiced medicine for 12 years in Davie County, the last seven at Hillsdale Family Practice.

Character and dependability. The words describe Ann Sain Frye, who worked as one of Davie County's magistrates from June 1, 1979 until her death last week at the age of 58.

Davie Clerk of Court Ken Boger said the words character and dependability came to mind when thinking of Frye. "You could always depend on Ann," he said.

She was on the job in tremendous pain two weeks before she died, Boger said. "I begged her to let me get someone to work for her. She said, 'No, I'm going to make it.' Not many folks would have been on the job in the pain she was in."

Boger never worried about the cases Frye worked as a magistrate. Always a lady, she made sure everyone was treated fairly.

"I was at the hospital visiting Ann and a couple of guys came by she had put in jail. If that doesn't speak of her character, I don't know what does," Boger said. "The family has suffered a loss, but the county system has suffered one, too."

The flag in front of the courthouse flew at half mast until after her funeral service Saturday. More than 400 attended a memorial service at the Brock Performing Arts Center. Please See Magistrate - Page 4

Aug. 5 Start Of School Debated; Decision Delayed

A decision on a school calendar that would have teachers starting on July 29 and students on Aug. 5 was delayed Monday night by the Davie County Board of Education.

Board members Luther Potts was the only one to vote to adopt the calendar recommended by a committee of which he was a member.

"Where do you stop and where do you begin? We start out thinking what's going to be best for the students," Potts said. "Then we say the parents aren't going to like this. Then we say teachers aren't going to like this. It's not a win situation."

Board Chair Mark Jones said he had heard some complaints of the proposed schedule, and asked if it had anything to do with the block classes at Davie High School.

Dr. Bill Steed, superintendent, said it would allow a "collegiate schedule" and exams to be given before the Christmas break, rather than return to school for a week or two and then have exams.

Dr. Vance Johnson, personnel director, also said the rationale behind the earlier-than-usual beginning was to finish the first semester earlier.

Ferguson's photo page was of a local man who raises deer, and was judged second from 16 entries. The judge wrote: "Strong photos earned the second place award, but layout and design kept from being first."

Grant Work Hits Snag; Money Goes From Housing To Sewer

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - Town board members came just short of saying "I told you so" to administrators of a Community Development Block Grant.

After a public hearing on changing the grant because of higher-than-projected sewer system costs, and hearing charges ranging from criminal wrongdoing to lies, the board approved the changes.

The change takes $85,510 from housing rehabilitation to the sewer project, meaning that the number of houses to be renovated goes from 20 to around 14.

The project called for paving of Clark Road, and installing a sewer system, to be owned by Davie County, on Clark Road and Hickory Street. Houses in those areas also were eligible for renovations. Those that were in such bad shape that a relocation was necessary will be completed, Isenhour said.

The public hearing was heated, with one resident receiving a police escort from the meeting, followed by about a dozen other people.

Keith Hodgson of the Rocky Knoll area of N.C. 801 said he wasn't opposed to the housing portion of the grant, but questioned the motives behind building a sewer line from Clark Road to Hickory Street. That would most benefit a developer who wants to build a trailer park behind Ruffin Street, he said, inferring that the deal was worked out with county officials. He called for a federal investigation.

Nancy Campbell said the stories on the road and sewer improvements changed often. The end of Clark Road is muddy and in bad shape, she said.

Isenhour said the state would pave the road after the sewer line is installed. He estimated it would be mid-to-late-summer before paving work began.

Education board member Jerry Swicegood did not seek re-election.

Want homework? First grade teachers don't miss a day

One of the nice things about elections is the new ideas and new perspectives the candidates often bring with them. The newspaper has been getting comments from the candidates as they have filed for office in recent weeks.

Some of the comments have been noteworthy.

Dr. Peter J. Mooney is one of the candidates for the board of education. He has discovered something strange about schools. "I'm not a radical, and I'm not a one issue person, but there's so much free time," he said. "They can do their homework at school, which I think is scandalous."

He is right about that, especially in the upper grades. But some first grade teachers I know have learned to dish out the homework to their students. It's quite a contrast. The first graders — still eager to learn — love it. They come home excited about homework.

Parents must enjoy it, too. I can correctly answer just about all of my first grader's homework. It has been several years since my older son last asked me to help him with his math.

My older son has repeatedly cautioned me about ever writing or talking about homework again. He has suffered several times after I have talked with his teachers. One time a teacher assigned him — and only him — to do a paper after I complained about the lack of homework. Last semester, written assignments suddenly began after I talked to one of his teachers. Teachers will give homework, especially if you ask them.

The surprise for me this year is just how much homework some students do. Our first grader has homework every night, except weekends. Sometimes it seems like he has as much as our 11th grader.

I also thought the schools didn't teach spelling. Remember the letters we have received over the years about the lack of spelling instruction? The teachers must have been listening. My first grader has a big spelling book, and he brings it home every night. He has spelling tests every week, and the words aren't just three and four letters.

The teachers are throwing all kinds of challenges at the youngsters, trying to get as much information in their skulls before someone convinces them that learning isn't fun.

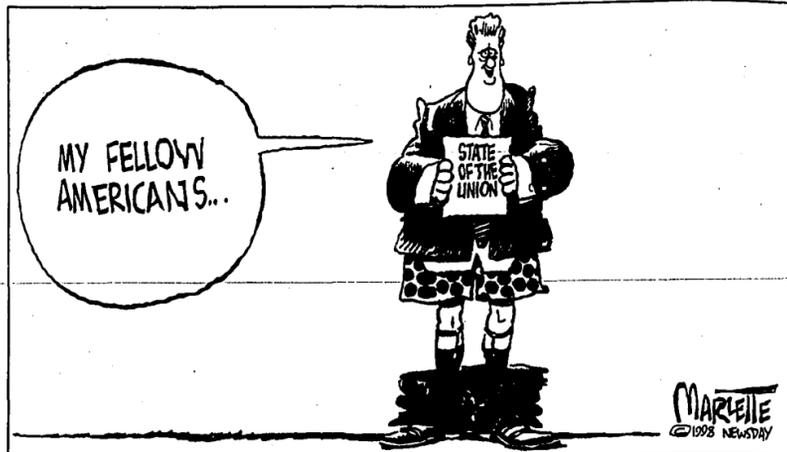

Maybe the high school and middle schools need to take a look at what the first grade is doing about homework.

Expert Groundhog Sees His Shadow

Just six more weeks of winter? That's the forecast if Punxsutawney Phil can be believed. The famous groundhog saw his shadow Monday in the annual observance of one of mankind's silliest rituals.

The Punxsutawney observance has been going for 112 years, becoming the setting of one movie. It's not exactly scientific. Nobody puts much weight on the groundhog's ability to predict the weather. But it is comforting to know the end of winter is in sight.

District Attorney Deserves To Be Re-Elected

To the editor:

On May 2, 1996 our lives were changed forever. As parents we received that dreaded phone call informing us that our oldest son Bobby had been shot in Lexington, N.C. and was not expected to live. In fact, early the next morning he was pronounced dead and thus began a year long saga that found our family pulled into the judicial system in North Carolina. A place as foreign to us as a trip to China. We had no choice. Our son had been murdered in a distant city. The man who was later convicted of our son's murder was from a well known family in Lexington with more than adequate resources to defend himself. We were also concerned that local political influence would impact the outcome of any trial proceedings.

That was before we met Gene Morris, the current District Attorney for the 22nd Prosecutorial

District which includes your community. Mr. Morris met with our family on many occasions in the months leading up to the trial. He wanted to get to know us and learn more about our son. He also wanted to prepare us for what was to come. It became very obvious to us Mr. Morris was where he wanted to be serving as District Attorney. We were not only impressed with this display of conviction; but also, with the diligence he and his staff displayed both in and outside the courtroom.

Mr. Morris and his office could not have been more compassionate with our family. We had lost a son and he knew that this should never have happened. Even under what we perceived to be local pressure, Mr. Morris prepared and presented a case that fairly represented the facts leading up to the night of May 2. The system worked for our family. We had a judge, jury but more importantly a District Attorney who understands the responsibilities of his office. The man accused of Bobby's murder was convicted to live in prison.

Although we cannot cast our own vote for Mr. Morris in the upcoming election for District Attorney, we encourage each of you to exercise your vote and do so for Mr. Eugene T. Morris Jr. It is our hope none of you ever have to be represented as a victim by his office, but if that occurs you will very glad that you supported him for the office of District Attorney 22nd Prosecutorial District.

Blessed By Message

To the editor:

I was blessed by Rev. Seller's message "Abortion is Wrong" in Spiritual Resources. America has so much blood on her hands, and we will answer for it. I have seen a video of an ultrasound of a mother's womb while an abortion was being performed. You can see the baby struggling to get out of the way.

The sad part is, Christians know this is wrong, yet we continue to let this horror go on. We do nothing. People say they believe what the Bible says yet they disregard what they don't want to hear.

Christians, please stand up for what is right. By not voicing our opinions and writing our government, we are guilty, too.

Please pray for America to change its ways.

Fix, Don't Fleece Schools

To the editor:

Legislation currently pending in Congress would take public money from public schools in the form of vouchers and give it to parents of private-school children. We all acknowledge that public schools could stand some improvement. We need to do what it takes to make our public schools stronger, safer, more challenging and accountable. But most of us do not want our tax dollars diverted from this daunting task and used to pay tuition for private and religious school students.

Who is backing vouchers? Religious Right public groups who wrongly portray private-school giveaways as the answer to the public schools' ills. They don't tell you that only carefully chosen children are admitted to private schools—chosen because they have the right religion or background or academic record, or because their parents can afford the tuition that vouchers can't cover. They don't tell you that vouchers will drain dollars that public schools need for books, teachers, lab equipment, athletic programs and roof repairs.

The truth of the matter is this: Public schools need fixing—not fleecing.

People who move into the area after the project had begun are not eligible for grant money to pay for tapping into the sewer system, he said. The current county fee is $800.

Sylvia White said that Isenhour refuses to talk to her, hides and won't return telephone calls. Isenhour said that someone else handles relocations for Benchmark and should be working on White's problem. He promised to check on the matter.

Since the public hearing was scheduled to talk about moving the monies from housing to sewer, Mayor Grady Spry asked people to keep comments to that subject only.

Linda James of Clark Road said work on her trailer was started and never finished. "I've been told so many lies I don't know what's what," she said.

Geneva Watkins of Jerusalem Avenue said the people have not been treated fairly, especially if money is transferred that could lessen the number of house rehabilitations.

"The intent of the grant has not been met," Watkins said. "The costs were under-estimated. The grant was not properly administered."

It appears that administrative fees and sewer is all that will remain, Watkins said.

Board member Bill Gibson asked what would happen if the board didn't approve the changes.

Isenhour said the sewer project would have to be bid again, adding that the grant was for concentrated needs for public facilities and housing. The work on housing should "speed up" when the sewer construction begins.

He thinks the numbers of houses that aren't renovated will be small, because a few don't want to participate in the program and others don't fall within income guidelines.

"I think we have been up front," Isenhour said. "All the people who are above income may not be served."

Board members also said Isenhour had been fair, going so far as coming to Coolmeemee on a Saturday to personally fix a plumbing problem because he knew it would be difficult to be fixed before the following week.

By this time, the public hearing had been closed and the matter was being discussed by the town board.

When Ron McDaniel attempted to ask a question, Mayor Spry asked him to be quiet, that the matter was before the board. When McDaniel persisted, Police Chief Tim Wooten asked him to be quiet or leave.

McDaniel said he didn't mind leaving, and as he was leaving the building with Wooten, had one parting shot: "I don't see that things have changed for the better with this board." He was followed by about a dozen other people.

Little Sam Frye was proud of the license plate on "Me-Me's" van.

Sewer Bid Awarded; Omissions Called 'Immaterial'

COOLEEMEE-Concord Builders was awarded the bid to install sewer lines for the Community Development Block Grant for $451,045.16.

The bid was contested, however, by one of the other contractors who pointed out that Concord hadn't filled out all the necessary paper work.

Town Attorney Mac Blankenship told town board members before their vote of approval that not filling out those papers was "immaterial."

The documents have since been properly recorded.

Even the objecting contractor hadn't filled out the necessary paper work, he said, adding that it didn't affect the scope of the project.

"I don't view that as giving the bidder a fair, or unfair advantage," Blankenship said.

The documents had to do with labor and equal opportunity laws when dealing with federal monies. The second, third and sixth bidders also didn't properly fill out all of the papers.

F.E. Isenhour, administrator for Benchmark of the plan to install sewer lines on Clark Road and Hickory Street, as well as for paving of Clark Road and housing rehabilitation in the areas, said there was five percent added for cost overruns in the project, and if not used, that money would go back to housing.

That happened in the last two projects he worked with, Isenhour said.

The town board also approved and Equal Employment Opportunity Plan for the grant project, and authorized Mayor Grady Spry, Commissioners Jim Wishon and Lynn Runley, and Town Clerk and finance officer Dolly Campbell to sign checks. Two of the signatures are required for all checks.

Her communication call number, ID-90A, will be retired, never to be used by another magistrate.

"She set a good example of what a good person was," said Robert Cook, who began as a magistrate about the same time as Frye.

"I could call on Ann any time over the years. We never owed each other, we just helped each other," Cook said.

Sanford Frye, her husband, told of a story of how a lot of the officers came to call Ann "mom."

Randy Boger, now a N.C. Highway Patrolman but then a Davie sheriff's deputy, brought a prisoner into Frye as a magistrate. He warned the suspect to be nice to his "mom."

From then on, many of officers affectionately referred to Frye as "mom."

Her son, Sandy Frye, spoke up. "She was my mom all my life," he said.

Photographs of family and friends filled the walls of Sanford and Ann Frye's home on Milling Road in Mocksville. Pictures included their son Sandy and wife Debbie, granddaughter Michelle and grandson Sam, godchildren Haley, Kaitie and Elizabeth Boger, children of Randy and Jayne Boger.

Sam Frye, 6, was the joy of his grandmother's life. Sanford said he traveled with the couple, and Ann used hundreds of rolls of film taking pictures.

Sam attended the memorial service at the Brock center with other family members.

Six Seek County Board Seat; Five For Education Board

incumbent Larry C. Hayes, Bobby Knight, Johnnie L. Hellard and Michael D. Allen also seeking one of the two seats up for election. Diane Foster did not seek re-election.

No Democrat filed for any local office.

The Republican primary for sheriff will pit incumbent Allen Whitaker against challenger A.C. "Andy" Stokes.

Ken Boger is running opposed for re-election as Davie's Clerk of Superior Court.

Betsy Cochran is un-opposed in her re-election bid to the N.C. Senate, and Julia Howard of Mocksville is being challenged for the seat on the 74th District of the N.C. House of Representatives by Charles William McIntyre of Davidson County.

Candidates for District Court Judge in the 22nd District, which includes Davie, Davidson, Iredell and Alexander, also filed.

Howell, 36, wants to see more individual attention given to students in Davie schools.

"I feel the schools need more tutoring, more personal attention to each student," she said. "The children need the attention. They don't need to be shuffled through the system."

She thinks teachers should be required to stay after classes on a rotating schedule to provide individual help to students.

A Davie High School graduate, Howell studied accounting and business administration at Forsyth Technical Community College. She lives in the Hickory Tree development with husband, Mark, and daughter Stephanie.

Howell also said the schools, especially Davie High, need to be more receptive to parents. "The parents come in there, it's like going through a security system just to try to talk to someone."

Livingood, 51, is retired from the N.C. Department of Transportation and says he has the time to work for the school system.

"The student population is growing and I would like to see us put a 20-year plan into effect as far as construction goes," he said.

Livingood said the county should work harder to hire more qualified teachers, rather than just hire who applies.

A Davie High School graduate, Livingood is chairman of the Davie Planning Board and has spent many years as a volunteer in the schools, mostly with booster clubs. He has also helped cook meals for several functions.

He and wife Yvonne live on River-view Road in the Fork community. They have three children, Amber Hanes, Jamie and Allen, and two grandsons.

Williams, 49, of McAllister Road, is making his second try at a county commissioner's seat.

"I want to try to help improve the county and make the county a better place to live in," Williams said. "I want to improve the school system, the road system, the libraries and the law enforcement."

A Vietnam War veteran, Williams works at Skyline in Mocksville, is a graduate of Davie High School and attended college. He is a member of Center United Methodist Church and has volunteered in the Davie County Public Library's History Room, helping people trace their ancestry.

Fox, 65, is a retired corporate executive who has lived on Ivy Circle since 1978.

He wants to improve Davie's "out-standing" school system, support public safety and law enforcement agencies. He has a "no compromise" stance on air and water quality and would work to protect the watershed land.

Fox also favors responsible zoning. "Protect individual homeowner's rights while working with the planning board and commissioners to establish a fair and responsible approach to zoning," he said.

Fox believes in an open, honest government geared toward the will of the people, with fiscal responsibility and a focus on better job opportunities - not just more jobs.

A native of Morganton, he and wife Dean have two daughters. He earned a bachelor's degree in textiles from N.C. State University, and a master's of business administration degree and executive development certificate from the University of South Carolina.

McIntyre is a retired school administrator who hopes to raise North Carolina's teacher salaries to the national average. Smart Start and charter schools should be studied, and if not effective, those monies should be used for teacher salaries, he said.

He thinks the State Superintendent of Public Education should be appointed, not elected, and state legislators should not be allowed to serve for longer than eight years.

Raised in the Methodist Orphanage, he attended N.C. State University, earned a bachelor's degree from Appalachian State University and a master's degree in administration from Radford College, Va.

Judge Kimberly Taylor filed for a fourth term as District Court Judge.

"I have come to realize that to really make a difference, a judge should be as active outside the courtroom as in the court itself. It can be difficult to have a thorough understanding of the problems if you only contact with the committee is during court sessions," she said.

Taylor graduated from the University of North Carolina School of Law with honors. She was on the editorial staff of the Law Review and published two articles. She graduated with high honors in history and classical studies from Duke University.

She practiced law in Taylorsville for five years before being elected judge.

Man Convicted With LSD Has To Forfeit Car

A Davie County man was forced to forfeit the car he was driving when arrested for selling LSD, and another received a suspended sentence recently in Superior Court.

Judge L. Todd Burke ordered Bradley Thomas Torpy, who was convicted to possession of a schedule II controlled substance, possession with intent to sell or deliver LSD, conspiring to sell LSD, maintaining a place for a controlled substance, possession of drug paraphernalia, resisting a public officer and assault on a government official in October, to forfeit his car which was used in the drug cases for which he was convicted.

Torpy's co-defendant in the case Wesley Allen Couch pled guilty during the January session of Davie County Superior Court to possession of drug paraphernalia, sale or delivery of LSD and conspiracy to sell or deliver LSD.

Burke sentenced him to six to eight months in prison but suspended that sentence two years and placed him on intensive supervised probation to include compliance with a substance abuse assessment, no use or possession of a controlled substance, submission to searches by probation officer and no contact with co-defendant.

A charge of possession with intent to manufacture, sell or deliver LSD was dismissed by the district attorney.

The judge ordered that the evidence in the case be destroyed.

Steed said that plans were to gradually shift the start of school earlier, but that wasn't done last year so construction projects could be completed.

Jones asked if the calendar committee looked at alternatives, such as putting the high school on a different schedule from middle and elementary schools.

Johnson said that committee members thought the optional days were better, so that older students could look after younger students at home on teacher work days.

Board member David Owens said the summer break would be shortest this year, but would get back to normal next year.

The 1998-99 calendar proposal would have July 21 as the last day of summer.

"The issue has gotten out a bit, and I have gotten some calls," Jones said. "I'm not sure parents are necessarily aware of this."

Steed said that parents, as well as principals, teachers, board members and central office staff were on the committee.

That committee will meet this week, and bring another recommendation to the board at a special meeting at 7 p.m. Monday at Mocksville Middle School.

Man Convicted With LSD Has To Forfeit Car

A Davie County man was forced to forfeit the car he was driving when arrested for selling LSD, and another received a suspended sentence recently in Superior Court.

Judge L. Todd Burke ordered Bradley Thomas Torpy, who was convicted to possession of a schedule II controlled substance, possession with intent to sell or deliver LSD, conspiring to sell LSD, maintaining a place for a controlled substance, possession of drug paraphernalia, resisting a public officer and assault on a government official in October, to forfeit his car which was used in the drug cases for which he was convicted.

Torpy's co-defendant in the case Wesley Allen Couch pled guilty during the January session of Davie County Superior Court to possession of drug paraphernalia, sale or delivery of LSD and conspiracy to sell or deliver LSD.

Burke sentenced him to six to eight months in prison but suspended that sentence two years and placed him on intensive supervised probation to include compliance with a substance abuse assessment, no use or possession of a controlled substance, submission to searches by probation officer and no contact with co-defendant.

A charge of possession with intent to manufacture, sell or deliver LSD was dismissed by the district attorney.

The judge ordered that the evidence in the case be destroyed.

What's Best For The Child: Guardian Ad Litem Program Has Simple Goal

By Mike Barnhardt

Davie County Enterprise Record

"They're the voice of children, little children who may have been abused, who may live with alcoholic parents, little children who have trouble telling their troubles to strange people.

The futures of these children often end up in court, here strange lawyers and judges make decisions that will affect them the rest of their lives.

"Who speaks for these children?"

Susan B. Scott and volunteers with the guardian ad litem program, a division of the N.C. Administrative Office of the Courts.

The program, however, is separate of the court system. The only goal is to speak for the child's best interests.

Peggy Wallace and Wanda James recently completed the 30-40 hours of training to become volunteers in Davie County.

Wallace learned about the need for volunteers in a job bulletin.

"I thought it was something I would like to do," she said. "Parenting is the most important thing we do, yet we have the least education on how to do a good job. I hope I can use my experience as a parent and apparent to help these people," she said.

The volunteers and Scott conduct an investigation of a case, looking for what would be best for the child. James has seen good things that can happen when the children's best interests are kept, and the bad things that can happen when they are not.

"I want to be a part of seeing good things happen," she said. "You have to put yourself down to the child's level."

Scott is excited about their addition to the program, and is looking for more good volunteers.

"Wanda and Peggy will be an asset to the guardian ad litem program, but more importantly, they will be strong advocates for the children. Our children need these volunteers."

An information program on becoming a guardian ad litem volunteer will be held at 6 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 12, in the Davie County Public Library, North Main Street, Mocksville.

The theme is "Each One, Bring One." Scott is asking everyone who plans to attend the meeting to bring a friend.

Training sessions will be held at the library March 7, 9, 16 and 28. Call Scott at 634-0177 or 878-4208 for more information.

The program is open to any mature and responsible adult who has the time and commitment to represent the best interests of an abused or neglected child and who meets the criteria. The trained volunteers interview people involved with the child - neighbors, teachers, parents - investigate all aspects of the case, and recommend to the judge the resolution that will be best for the child.

The job is not that of a social worker, who works toward reuniting the family, when appropriate, and requires considering the interests of all family members. Parents of children in court often are represented by their own attorneys. While the child also has an attorney advocate, the guardian ad litem volunteer is the only person who sole task is to focus on protecting that best interest of the child.

Cooleemee Historian Writing History For Town's Centennial Celebration

COOLEEMEE - This southern mill isn't very different from hundreds of others - except that it is working, and working hard - to remember from where it came.

As the town celebrates its centennial this year, Jim Rumley is working on a book that traces the roots of the proud people who have made Cooleemee home.

He spoke to the town board last month, going over some of that history.

Following are excerpts from Rumley's speech.

"One hundred years ago, a person standing at the old dam would have heard the sound of axe blows and falling trees as the work of transforming, what William Erwin called a "wilderness," into one of the largest mill villages in the state, began.

"If you were listening a few weeks ago on New Year's Eve, you would have heard the ringing of Cooleemee's church bells at midnight in memory of our humble beginnings.

"History has not been kind to Cooleemee. Over the past 100 years, most of Cooleemee's documents have been either misplaced, lost or destroyed.

"Erwin Mills, Cooleemee's parent company, was better than most in preserving records. In 1963 many of these records passed into the hands of Burlington Industries, which bought the cotton mill in 1962. After closing in 1969, Cooleemee's records were abandoned at the old mill's personnel office. They were rediscovered in 1996 by the new mill owner and the Cooleemee Historical Association. Upon learning of this, Burlington moved quickly to retake possession of them. I suspect they have now been burned or shredded.

"The village of Cooleemee was built on some 532 acres bought from Mrs. Fanny Hairston, widow of Peter Hairston who had died in 1886. In the aftermath of war, she was left thousands of dollars in debt - but also was left with lots of land.

"The Shoals of the South Yadkin, or "Cooleemee Falls" as it was briefly known as - is an ancient place used by humans for thousands of years. We know this because pottery shards, dating back 1,000-2,000 years have been found and collected from the grist mill island by Jimmy DeCass, a local flint hunter.

"The Shoal's great potential, as a source for water power, was recognized early. The movers and shakers of colonial society, such as the Frohocks and Pearsons, would be first to take advantage of this potential.

"Following the American Revolution, Backcountry leaders began dreaming of tying the rich economy of western North Carolina with the state's ports in the east. Richmond Pearson, Charles Fisher and Peter Hairston would all come to own the Shoals between 1791 and 1847. All would invest money and time in hope of fulfilling the dream.

This photograph, believed to have been made of Cooleemee mill workers in 1911 or even earlier, can tell a lot about the proud people who started the town.

"The primary dream, of harnessing the river's significant water power, would take over 100 years to be realized... brought about by Benjamin N. Duke, William Erwin, and Frank Mebane. Each of these men brought a key ingredient to the mix. A new fund of Southern capital had been put together by Northern credit, and to this was added Southern labor.

"B.N. Duke and Associates brought the necessary financing for this undertaking; William Erwin brought strong leadership and a determination to succeed; and Frank Mebane and Frank Hairston got the project under way.

"1898 was a time of great economic revival. The Southern economy, held back by its loss of capital after its defeat in the war, was beginning to stand again on its own hind legs.

"The transformation of the Shoals began with only a handful of men cutting trees and clearing land, some as early as 1897. The real work got under way with the move to the Shoals of Samuel Jesse Tatum in 1898. Tatum was a Jerusalem sawmill operator and surveyor. Preparation for the hundreds of construction workers that would travel here in the spring of 1899 for the construction of the mill, took better than a year. Cooleemee's population grew from about 200 people in some 50 to 60 houses in 1899 to over 300 houses in 1920, holding over 1,800.

"In 1898, local men such as William Click and "Uncle" Jim Fowler, took jobs clearing the land and building the first houses.

Mayor And Board Members Responsibilities Are Listed

COOLEEMEE - John Chandler was elected mayor pro tem and commissioners were appointed duties as the town board met in January.

Board member Lynn Rumley nominated Chandler to serve as mayor in the absence of Grady Spry, saying it was a tradition to make the member who received the most votes in the prior election the mayor pro tem.

She also suggested, and board members approved, that the mayor "take back" being in charge of the town hall and administration.

Responsibilities of board members include:

- Rumley, commissioner of community affairs - parks and recreation, human services, housing, community events, public health, ordinances and code enforcement;

- Chandler, commissioner of planning - long-range planning, zoning and land use, revenue development, grant seeking, lead budget process, town property;

- Jim Wilson, commissioner of public works - streets, street lights, sanitation, waterbed issues, beautification and physical environment, town property; and

- Bill Gibson, commissioner of public safety - police department, fire safety, community crime prevention, emergency planning, ordinances and code enforcement.

The following statement was included with a list of the duties of commissioners.

"The town board encourages the widest possible citizens participation in town affairs. If you have suggestions or complaints, please call one of the commissioners, the town clerk or the mayor. Mayor Grady Spry is available to meet with citizens every Monday at town hall.

"Citizens may ask commissioners to add items to its monthly meeting agenda or may themselves speak during "public comment" by signing up with the town clerk five working days before meetings.

"We urge you to get involved in volunteer activities. A volunteers recognition program is held each spring. The town's emergency plan was also printed. A community shelter will be provided when necessary, and residents will be notified by telephone.

"The Click family roots trace back locally to the 1760s with the old Heidelberg settlement in southeastern Davis. When William Click moved to the Shoals, three houses were standing.

"Uncle Jim Fowler's roots date back to the antebellum era... as slaves, then as farm laborers, they lived on the Fowler/Morris plantation... later become the Company Farm property.

"Ossie Howard, an orphan child in 1898, travelled to the Shoals as part of the household of John Fritz, a carpenter from the Advance area. These local people were joined by James Whitfield, an Englishman; Thomas J. Byrnes from Ireland; and John Tobick from Oklahoma, to name only a few who played a part in Cooleemee's birth.

"Conditions here were harsh and no one expected anything but hard work;

43 of the 410 deaths between 1913 and 1927, were infants. There was crowded housing, bad water, and hard labor. Overcoming this just created a greater pride in the undertaking.

"Cooleemee's Centennial celebrations give us an opportunity to pass these proud traditions on to our children. It also gives us a chance to shine a light on this unique culture which was a special mix of country-neighborhood and modern industrialism.

"Everyone in the village - and all those raised here should be proud to participate in these events. There is something each family can do to be a part."

Rumley, a self-proclaimed "redneck with a library card" and self-taught historian, will publish a book on Cooleemee's history this year.

North Davie Beats South 40-34 In Wrestling Tug Of War

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

In a North Davie-South Davie wrestling tug of war, the Wildcats made the right moves in the end and survived a pulsating 40-34 decision in front of a raucous crowd at South on Jan. 27.

South coach Matt Wilson, whose Tigers closed with an impressive 9-4 record in what was supposed to be a rebuilding year, confirmed that this intense duel will go down as one of the greats.

"We've had a lot of competitive matches, but that was the closest one I've ever had with (North coach Ron Kirk)," he said. "I think we were both sweating at the end of this one."

In a fight that featured six lead changes, nothing was settled until the second-to-last match, at 191 between South's A.J. Scales and North's Danny Miller.

With North holding a 37-28 edge, the Wildcats needed a win to cement victory while South needed to run the final two tables.

The match appeared headed for a heavyweight winner-takes-all showdown when Scales forged a 6-5 lead with under 20 seconds left in the final period. But Scales was called for his second stalling violation, tying the score, and Miller got a match-clinching takedown with four seconds left to seal an 8-6 win.

"We could have won it anywhere, but the one that's the most obvious is Scales' match," Wilson said.

Kirk said, "Danny did good. I felt confident if it would have went down to the heavyweight that we were still in good shape. Chris Nichols had already beaten (South's Adam Barber) one time, but I knew that would be close."

As it turned out, it wasn't close. Barber pinned Nichols with 57 seconds left in the second, magnifying Scales' heartbreaking loss even more.

North (14-0, 11-0 PMS) delivered Kirk his eighth undefeated season in 18 years, but just barely. The Wildcats fell flat in several matches that Kirk mentally regarded as wins, turning a presumed Wildcat romp into a heart-throbbing thriller.

"It was a good one," Kirk said. "They wrestled well, we wrestled good in spots, but we lost several weight classes that I thought we'd win. And they could have gone either way."

"We lost at 103 by a point. We lost at 154 and we had the guy on his back and could have pinned him just as easy as he pinned us. I thought we'd win at heavyweight.... If we would have won those, that's a 30-point swing right there."

South Davie Shooters Spur Upset Over West

Mooreville, one day later, ousted South 47-37 in the semifinals.

Bruiser Rice, giving up almost a foot in height, bowled 6-footer Donte Minter and Brooks (14 points) and Hogue (12) polished them off on the other end, helping South stage an improbable upset against the tournament's third-seeded team.

Davie Stuns Northwest's No. 1 Basketball Team

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Jim Young promotes himself as a basketball architect who can transform low-lying programs into high-profile programs in due time, and he's starting to prove it.

After two months of talking about reviving a Davie program that has experienced just one winning season in nine years, the War Eagles seemed to be swirling down the drain once more. Until last week.

In one of the biggest upsets in school history, Davie stunned the Northwest Coaches Poll's top-ranked team, Mt. Tabor, 69-66 to snap a four-game losing streak, then embarrassed South Rowan 70-38 here Friday night.

In two breakthrough wins that restored Davie's Central Piedmont Conference playoff hopes, the War Eagles (7-9, 2-3 CPC) finally glued together four efficient quarters, and Young wore a told-you-so smile in the spirited aftermath.

"The Tabor game helped turn that corner," he said. "You don't win these games without playing four quarters because Nos. 1-6 are capable of winning every night. It's a great conference and you've got to play four quarters every night or you're going to get beat."

Mike Whelan, the team's leading scorer at 14 points a game, announced that no one can look past the War Eagles no more.

"We knew what we could do, and finally at Tabor we brought it together," he said after hitting three 3-pointers for 10 points and chipping in six rebounds, five steals and four assists against South. "I think teams should really watch out now because we're not the bottom of the hill anymore."

Derek Faulkner got Davie off and running by slashing for nine of his 17 game-high points in the opening seven minutes, pushing Davie to a 22-14 lead. He did most of his damage over taller inside defenders, playing much taller than 6-2.

"When I get the ball on the post, I can make things happen," said Faulkner, who also fought for seven rebounds. "I can open up the shooters because if they don't come down and help on me, there's not a guard strong enough to stop me down there. So that just opens up our shooters."

Davie's foremost shooter was sophomore Duane Phillips. Blistering the net, he made six of seven shots for 16 season-high points. He also had six assists. "He's just getting better and better and getting more confident and more confident," Young said.

The Raiders took their first and only lead at 14-13 on Richard Dixon's two-handed dunk, but they shot like a bad Y-ball team the rest of the night and Davie proceeded to make a season's worth of highlight-reel material over the final 27 minutes.

After Dixon's slam, the War Eagles scored the next 11 points and eventually built the lead to 32-19 before South's worst nightmare came true.

Playing with conviction of a true contender, Davie started marching toward the 32-point blowout with two minutes left in the second, outscoring South 28-6 and forging a mind-boggling 60-25 lead with 7:19 left in the game.

Phillips got most of the cheers during the run, scoring 10 of his points in a four-minute span. He nailed two 3-pointers and glided in for two uncontested layups.

South's dazed coach, Bob Parker, didn't bother to interrupt Davie's layup drill with timeouts, mainly because the Raiders (10-8, 0-3 CPC) couldn't hit the broad side of their bus on this night. "There's no need to call timeout and say 'Hit a shot,'" he said.

"Davie played well. I congratulate them for that, but our confidence was Please See War Eagles - Page B7

The Beasts After Sluggish Start, War Eagles Aiming For State Championship

Other beastly wrestling teams from Davie County ran away with state titles, but they never ran this far.

After Davie squeezed South Rowan into submission last Wednesday, Coach Buddy Lowery declared that his 22nd year has covered more ground than 21 others, an assessment that covers considerable ground.

Davie's head-shaven fruit in the second period and nailed him to the mat, clinching the crown at 171 and triggering a visceral roar from the home crowd.

The War Eagles brought home more gold the next year, the individual state title. This week, they're seeking their third key to the state's vault. If the War Eagles (17-3) leap four West Regional hurdles by Thursday, they'll host the finals Saturday at 7 p.m.

These War Eagles lack a classic superstar - like a Jon Ward, Scotty Spry or Comater - but they compensate by working harder. "We've improved from day one to now as much as any group I've ever had," Lowery said.

"No. 1, we've wrestled good people and been here, there and everywhere, and every Saturday we've practiced. We've taken the philosophy that everyday we went to practice, we were going to get a little bit better on something."

Exhibit No. 1: Junior Nick Summers, who has grown immensely since November and improved to 14-8.

"(Scott) Young and (assistant Jeff) Barneycastle have worked with him, and he's wrestled well," Lowery said. "He's improved a lot from day one."

Wrestlers Romp Davie High Keeps Firm Grip On Conference Title

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Davie's wrestling team amplified its firm grip on the Central Piedmont Conference with an eye-catching 54-9 romp over previously-unbeaten South Rowan here Wednesday.

Both teams entered the final regular-season match with 4-0 CPC records, but the Raiders (11-1) crumpled like cheap aluminum wrap after the first two matches and thus the War Eagles expanded their dynasty by solidifying their 11th CPC title in 13 years. Coach Buddy Lowery has lost two league matches over that span.

Davie's Jon Mauney saw the wipout coming.

"Most of us figured we would," he said. "We're just the same as we are every year. We know if we all wrestled as hard as we could that it would go our way."

Lowery shrugged off the showdown hype, and he was right.

"They thought they were going to win. I thought all along (we'd win)," he said. "We wrestled like we were supposed to."

Two undefeated wrestlers, South's Keith Garret and Kevin Gullede, lifted the Raiders to a 9-0 lead. Garret pinned Chris Barrette and Gullede prevailed 8-5 over Brad Pack.

That's when South dropped dead.

Davie rallied with small steps, getting a four-point major decision from Adam Bailey and two three-pointers from Jamey Holt and Nick Summers, who pushed Davie ahead (10-9) for good with nine matches to go.

The reversal, especially Holt's 8-4 win, stung South's confidence.

"I think (our 125-pounder) could have battled better," Coach Wayne Freeman of South said. "I really thought that could have been a better match than what it ended up being."

"I started seeing a little bit of change in the kids."

Then, at 135, Davie's Jeremy Slink recovered from a terrible start to hammer his man with three seconds left in the first period, a pin that accelerated the rout.

"I messed up (early)," said Slink, who rallied from 4-0. "He was good, I Please See DHS - Page B6

If All Goes Well ... Davie Could Host Wrestling Finals Saturday

If Davie's wrestling team advanced in Tuesday's first round of the Dual Team Championships, it's likely the War Eagles will host the next round on Thursday at 7 p.m.

If they move on from there, they'll host the state final Saturday at 7 p.m. in the War Eagle Gymnasium.

Big Home Crowds Could Help Wrestlers Get Title

"Like Pack's match with (South Rowan's unbeaten) Kevin Gullledge," Lowery said. "He went into overtime 5-5, and almost had a takedown in the second period."

Davie sped to a 7-0 record, pounding nonconference teams by an average score of 56-18, then hit the wall against high-powered Alleghany, which derailed Davie 38-29.

That humbling loss showered doubt on senior Will Lowdermilk. "I didn't think we really had a chance to go to the state finals," he said. "But now, I look at it like we can win it if we wrestle as hard as we can."

After the Alleghany stumble, the War Eagles began to flourish. They beat North Davidson and hung four East Gaston Tournament teams out to dry. Then Davie drove five league teams into the ground by an average of 47 points.

Those demolitions, coupled with solid showings against No. 3 Riverside and No. 5 New Bern, drove the War Eagles to an elite poll position, No. 4. They've grown immensely since Thanksgiving, everyday sweat that has Davie dripping in confidence as it aims toward a glorious ending.

"Since my ninth-grade year, this team has improved the most out of anybody," senior Jamey Holt said. "Everybody realized we weren't as talented as we have been, everybody decided they needed to step it up, and we worked real hard in practice. I feel it's paid off."

Senior Zeb Carter surmised that the War Eagles' recent production matches their swagger.

"The way we wrestled Wednesday, we've improved a lot since before Christmas," he said. "Ever since Alleghany, we've been getting better and better, and we wrestled Riverside and got a lot of confidence that we've got a real shot at winning the state."

Senior Brian Murphy reported that last week was vintage Davie. "We stepped it up real good against South Rowan because it was for the conference championship, and we're not going to let everybody down because Davie County is supposed to win that every year."

What's unfolding this week is a greater issue. No one could fathom the War Eagles tripping in last Tuesday's opening rounds at home. They should have dispatched North Forsyth and the Person-East Burke winner, steps that lead to Thursday's semifinals probably with Northwest Guilford, East Gaston and Independence.

Davie, the likely host with a victorious Tuesday, is favored to bury those obstacles, possibly tempting some heads to prematurely turn toward Saturday. But Lowery is certain that his men will keep the heat on.

"We're going to be all right," he said. "We're going to take our time. If somebody beats us, it's going to have to be somebody better than us."

"We're going to step it up a little bit."

The East Region, where No. 2 Cary, Riverside and New Bern reside, is a tighter story. Whoever survives that battle royal will probably wobble to the trainer's office and gasp for oxygen, giving the West winner a better shot on Saturday.

"They might hobble in," Lowery said. "That's a toss-up, really, because a lot of teams down there could upset you. Riverside stayed with Cary. You don't never know what's going to happen."

Davie has to get there before anything can happen. If it happens, the campus pulse will quicken and Davie will spin the wheel of a hostile home crowd.

Murphy recalled the 1994 triumph.

"It was very exciting, the most intense moment in the history of the county," he said. "That's the most packed I've ever seen the gym. That's what I've been working for the last four years. I want my picture on the gym like all the other ones."

Carter also wants to strike a pose.

"It would be awesome," he said. "All I want is to get my picture on that wall. That's all I want."

Holt, with ideas churning inside, grinned.

"That would be chilling, probably the greatest sports moment I would ever have," he said. "I would probably have the most butterflies I've ever had."

The rush is almost too much for Lowdermilk, who remembers the 1994 scene like it was last night.

"I'll never forget it," he said. "There were so many people, and it looked like there was so much pressure on the wrestlers. But I think it would be fun. It would mean everything."

Lowery emphasized the possibilities, telling his team that this is their chance to shine.

"You can wrestle with somebody hard for one match, that's the philosophy you have to take. How good you match up with them and how good they match up with you. Can you stay off your back and can you put them on their back?"

Some amateur analysts will advise the West winner as an underdog against the East's traditional brutes, a proposition that Lowery dismisses. He confessed that Davie thrives under those lights, especially with smug fans cheering madly.

"I'm not saying we'd be an underdog," said Lowery, who needs three more rings to complete a full set. "We're going to wrestle hard. I'm sure that (a home crowd) would help us. Just like when we wrestled South Rowan. We step it up when it's for the big ones - home scales, knowing what's going on and being in a friendly atmosphere."

Home scales? What does that mean? In another sense, it means the inching possibilities could mean another ring, excitement that scales can't measure.

Andrea Gentry Leads Pfeiffer To Win

Andrea Gentry, a former basketball star from Davie High, had an outstanding shooting performance Thursday night against St. Andrews College, leading the Pfeiffer Falcons to a 76-65 Carolinas-Virginia Athletic Conference win.

Gentry hit five of six from 3-point land to lead the team with 15 points. She also had four rebounds, four assists, one steal and no turnovers in 32 minutes of action.

A four-year starter, Gentry is the second-leading rebounder on the team and second in assists. She has been steady all year despite the fact that Gentry usually draws the toughest defensive assignment.

She has helped lead Pfeiffer to a 6-11 overall mark and 3-7 in the league. Gentry is averaging 5-8 points, five rebounds, and has 44 assists and 18 steals.

'Rocket And One' Leads To South Davie Win

Coach Tim Kenney explained how it happened. "We went to a rocket-and-one, which is a special defense," he said. "It's a 1-1-2 zone and Neil guarded (Minter) man-to-man. Neil played most of the game on him, and then Andrew Daywalt spelled him a couple of times." Minter escaped Rice's irritating physical presence enough to get his points, but he faintly resembled his December shadow, when he led West to a 41-29 win in the season opener. "He couldn't push Neil around and he was getting frustrated," Kenney said.

"He still played a good game, but he didn't dominate and take over. Neil did a great job defensively." Brooks' accurate 3-point game boosted the Tigers to a commanding 21-10 halftime lead. "He came through again," Kenney said. "He gets the attention of the opposing coaches when he hangs a couple of 3s, and that's exactly what he did off our fast break and Indiana offense." But the Tigers became ragged and lost their edge, then barely survived when West's potential game-tying 3-pointer rattled out at the buzzer. Kenney could have done without the heart-thumping drama. "It was the same old story," he said. "We did our best in the second half to (lose the lead), and we got lucky. But we made some big free throws in the fourth, and luckily their 3-point attempt at the end went in and out." The coach pointed to Brooks as the main reason South was able to salvage a .500 season (6-6). After a sluggish start, Brooks averaged 10.6 points over the final nine games. "Greg's shooting, in the second half of the season, has really taken off," Kenney said. "He's really done a good job stepping up, and he's done an awfully good job on the inside on the glass." South never seriously threatened Mooresville, which built a six-point halftime lead and coasted home. But the semifinal finish raised Kenney's spirits considerably, especially since the Tigers staggered home with four losses in the regular-season's final five games. "With the ups and downs that we've had this year, we came out of that tournament tied for third and that is pretty gratifying, considering the level of competition that we faced all year," he said.

Another Lookabill ... But This Time Jennifer Takes Home The Money

Jennifer Lookabill of Woodleaf stole one in the end. She called the L.A. Lakers' win over Chicago, tied Lillian Sidden with 10 misses and pulled out the basketball contest in the tie-breaker. Sidden picked the Bulls. Lookabill's 147 tie-breaker points for the UNC-Wake Forest game was just five off, enough to surpass Sidden, who predicted 165 and winced when Wake's offense froze in the second half of a 79-73 Carolina comeback win. Lookabill takes the big check, $25, while Sidden settles for $5. Dillard Moody, who also picked the Lakers, tied Becky Hendrix for third with 11 misses.

Shelby Michael Scores 33 While Holding JV Team Together In Loss

It was a game Shelby Michael will remember for a long time. The freshman guard scored a career-high 33 points, including nine of 12 free throws, and more than held Davie's JV girls together as they tumbled to their third straight loss, 58-50, Friday at South Rowan. She ran the plays, teammates found her and she scorched the first time and again, scoring 16 in the first half and 17 more in the second. "She is one of our cutters, and she would drive and make it," Coach Mark Sinopoli said. "It was her best game." Michael's greatest move: She moved without the ball.

"They played man-to-man and she kept going backdoor," Sinopoli said. "She would get a layup or stop and make a jumper if they defended the goal against her." But Michael's outburst wasn't enough. The War Eagles were whistled for 33 fouls, compared to 19 for South, and Davie lost starters Heather Schlepner, Elise Whitaker and Amber Hamm because of it. Sinopoli, disturbed by the whistles directed toward star Schlepner, shook his head. "She had 10 points but she was kind of neutralized because they kept calling fouls on her," he said. "We played good ball, the fouls just got us out of rhythm. We played well, it's just a tough place to play." Whitaker added four points, Jerri Ann Angell had two and Hamm one. Earlier in the week at Mt. Tabor, Davie, leading 33-27 with five minutes left, lost its composure during crunch time and watched the Spartans storm back to steal a 35-33 win. "Those last five minutes, our passing game turned into an interception game because they took away all our passes," Sinopoli said. But Davie still had a chance. The War Eagles went into a four-corners offense with one minute left in a 33-33 game, milked the clock to 20 seconds and set up a Mary Beth Dinkins open 3-pointer. But the potential winner missed. Tabur rebounded, rushed to the other end and hit a short bank to nail down the verdict. "That was tough," Sinopoli said, "because we led most of the game." Davie (11-4, 2-3 CPC), in the midst of a five-game road swing, is reeling and the coach desperately wants to come home. "The conference games are closer, but the toughest thing is we can't bounce back from a road loss with a home win because there are no home games (until Feb. 10)," he said. "We can't get any rhythm." He would also like a break or two. "Against South, we were getting called for fouls and the girls were laughing because they couldn't believe it," he said. "Then they weren't laughing. They became frustrated." Davie's third-leading scorer, forward Emily Morton (4.8 PPG), who has missed about three weeks with an injured back, is set to return this week. "Hopefully, we'll see her impact," Sinopoli said.

Schlepner (12.5) and Michael (10.9) continue to lead the way in scoring. South Davie 7th Grade Basketball Schedule

DHS War Eagle Wrestlers Win

Just wasn't thinking when I went out there.

"I knew we could beat them, it just depended on how well we wrestled. We just got the momentum rolling and kept on going."

Drew Beck (decision) and David Nail (pin) extended the margin to 25-9 before Mauney won an entertaining 12-11 decision over South's other main gun, Jamie Cunningham (18-3).

"I'm glad I finally won one of those tough ones," he said. "I finally got one I wanted."

After jumping out to a 12-6 final-period lead, Mauney got all he wanted from Cunningham, who scrambled back within a point as time elapsed. Mauney finished on his back.

"I got enough (ahead) to ride it on out," said Mauney, who avenged an early-season loss to Cunningham. "I was just smart from there. I knew I had to keep that one shoulder up, sit there and let the time go because all he could get was three points."

After Wil Lowdermilk's 8-6 win, Zeb Carter assured victory with a five-point injury default at 171. Then Scott Comarizer, Brian Murphy and J.J. Rice kept the Raiders out of their misery with supportive pins.

Instead of forfeiting those three meaningless matches, Lowery kept the volume turned up. "Everybody wanted to see it. You've got to work," he said. Freeman looked shellshocked.

"I thought it would be a lot closer than this," he said. "They wrestled more aggressive than we did. ... We could have wrestled better."

Lowery congratulated Pack for hanging with Gullidge. "Truth be told, we probably got a moral victory when Pack wrestled Gullidge as close as he did," he said. "Pack isn't bad for a sophomore. He wrestled well."

Lowery's reaction to Sink's sudden comeback: "Sometimes I'd rather be lucky than good," he said. ... Coming off the win over Cunningham, Lowery captured an energetic Mauney the next day. "Anytime he can get a little bit more confidence, it will make it easier for him to come to practice tomorrow. ... This might be more final up."

Davie's Adam Bailey recovered to win match against South Rowan opponent.

The fans were into the match, as Davie High easily won over second place team.

Davie Flexes Muscles En Route To CPC Title

For good measure, Davie's wrestlers flexed their muscles one more time in Saturday's Central Piedmont Conference Tournament at Davie, reinforcing their lock on the league with 195 points to runner-up South Stokes' 161.

Oddly enough, the War Eagles completed their mission without their usual game faces.

"There are a lot of people who would have liked to have wrestled like we did, but that isn't the way we do it here," said Coach Buddy Lowery, somewhat discouraged by a few outcomes.

"We wrestled with no intensity and kind of lackadaisical in a couple of weight classes, like 'we've already beaten these people.' They didn't take that philosophy that on a given day anybody can beat us."

Five Davie wrestlers took first place: Adam Bailey, Jamey Holt, Nick Summers, Scott Comarizer and Brian Murphy. Five others - Brad Pack, Drew Beck, Jon Mauney, Zeb Carter and J.J. Rice - claimed second and Wil Lowdermilk finished third.

South Rowan (145) took third, followed by Mt. Tabor with 98, Reynolds, with 97.5 and West Forsyth with 54.

S. Rowan Races To Win Over Davie

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

South Rowan and Davie's varsity girls played a 32-minute game, but the game lasted eight.

The War Eagles were spinning out of control from the opening tap, cooked before breaking a serious sweat in Friday's 67-43 home loss.

The Raiders raced to a 20-2 lead, led by 20 at the half and withstood a third-quarter charge to take their 14th win in 18 games. They improved to 3-2 in the Central Piedmont Conference.

The War Eagles, who were pounded 30-0 by Mt. Tabor earlier in the week, dropped to 4-12 and 1-4.

Davie coach Carol Cozart knew the early score.

"It was a bunch-to-two," she said. "It seemed like it was one basket right after another. We weren't protecting the ball."

Protecting the ball was almost impossible against South's sticky man-to-man defense, which routinely intercepted Davie passes and raced to the other end for fast-break layups.

Coach James Greene of South ignores the performance of his offense, because his defense is his offense.

"My thing is defense, it's always defense," he said. "I don't worry how we shoot the ball. Our defense did so well that it took over the ball game, and it wouldn't let them set their offense."

"We kept them off balanced the whole night. We came out and played effective defense, swarmed the court and put some pressure on them."

During South's lightning-quick start, Davie couldn't find shooter Abby Cress, who spotted up, launched four jumpers and scored eight of her 12 points during a six-minute stretch.

"We didn't respond to her," Cozart said. "Maybe I should have made a defensive change a little earlier, because it helped us when we changed our defense."

Davie didn't have a defense that could contain powerful Janetta Heggins (18 game-high points) and guard Keshya Ramsey (16), a duo that exploded for nearly as many points as Davie's entire team.

But the War Eagles rescued themselves from total disaster by storming back within striking distance by the start of the fourth quarter.

Heggins' driving basket provided South its largest lead at 46-22 with 5:29 left in the third, when Davie's rally originated.

Top scorer Tiffany Peoples drilled a 19-footer from the corner, igniting an impressive 17-4 run that included six straight points from center Erin Umberger, perhaps her hottest stretch of the season.

She hit a short turnaround, penetrated for a left-handed kiss off the glass and recovered a loose ball for two more. Davie then rattled off six unanswered. Melinda Richie put in an incredible off-balanced layup, Jodie Stone took a steal all the way and Kathryn Jackson hit a short baseline jumper to start the fourth.

The lead was down to 50-39. "We were trying to come back there for a while," Cozart said.

The three officials noticed more than fouls, they noticed Davie's will to move forward under any circumstance.

"The refs came up to me and said: 'You don't see many times girls get 20 points behind and still keep scrapping for every ball and working as hard as they did,'" Cozart said. "They said that's an excellent team and they showed it tonight, and that's exactly how I feel."

But the sudden excitement was more than Davie's players could handle, because South calmly matched Davie's spurt, running off 17 of the game's final 21 points.

"We had our chances," Cozart said. "Typically, this is one thing we have to address: When we start coming back, we get so excited that sometimes we force passes that we shouldn't, and that's what happened (in the final seven minutes)."

Countering Davie's big run, Greene simply switched defenses. And back came South.

"I think we relaxed some," he said. "Then we changed up and they weren't ready for that. ... What won this game is defense. Everybody played well."

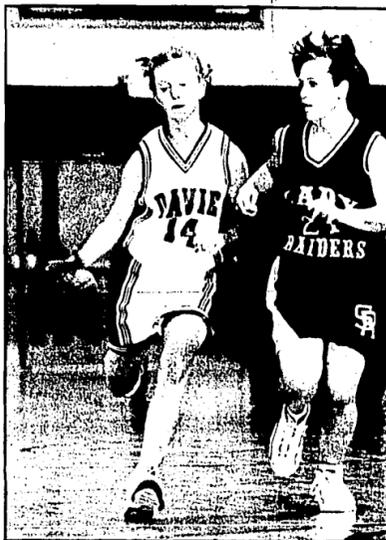

Several Davie players had their moment. Richie led with 10 points, hitting double figures for the second time, and Umberger and Jackson added eight each.

Erin had a stretch, Melinda threw up some contorted shots in some cases, and we seemed to get little stretches from different people," Cozart said.

Jackson, recovering from four scoreless outings in six games, showed a different offensive game. She didn't hesitate to put the ball up.

"She has really picked up her ball handling and shooting, and has worked hard," Cozart said. "And you could tell it. I thought she did an excellent job."

Other scorers for Davie were Jodie Stone with seven, Peoples with four and Leslie Holcomb, Katherine Phillips and Ashley Andrade with two each. ... Davie is home this week, taking on Reynolds on Feb. 4 and South Stokes on Feb. 6.

No. 1 Kannapolis took about all it could handle from eighth-seeded South Davie before settling for a 51-36 victory in the opening round of last week's Piedmont Middle School Conference Tournament at host J.N. Fries.

The Blue Devils' coach didn't want the any part of Coach Melanie Linville's gritty girls, and now we know why. The Tigers clawed their way from nine points down to the Kannapolis at 30-30 with six minutes left.

"When the game was over, the Kannapolis coach said, 'I told my girls the one team you don't want to play is South Davie, because that's the only team in this league who never has anything left when they walk in that locker room,'" said South assistant Sheila Tribble.

The Tigers (4-7) expended every drop of sweat until the final horn, winning over their coaches' hearts in the process.

"Melanie didn't ask them to win, she asked them to give it every single thing they had. And that's what they did," Tribble said. "They played as good as they could the whole time."

"They did not accept the loss until there were six seconds on the clock. That's the kind of guts they played with the whole game."

Behind Samantha Cartner and Jessica Grant, a major upset was in the works. But in the final quarter, the Blue Devils seized control early, then stalled and forced South to foul.

And like true champs, Kannapolis made enough free throws down the stretch to disarm resilient South.

"We had to foul so that's why the score went up," Tribble said. "Of course, the person we fouled didn't know how to miss."

Cartner and Grant orchestrated the near-miracle, performing admirably against the toughest customers the PMSC has to offer.

"Samantha had the most outstanding game, her first double-double (12 points, 11 rebounds)," Tribble said of Cartner, who blossomed tremendously during the season's latter stages. "What a game? She really came on. The last two games were absolutely phenomenal. And Grant (11 points, eight boards) had a super game."

Guards Kristen Raynor, Rafti Moore and Christen McClamrock, who supported South's big guns by combining for nine points, played ball-hawking defense.

"Our guards were just the peskiest little things who ever lived," Tribble said.

Sara Erb added four points.

"Kannapolis' reserves huddled for a quick prayer after the Tigers roared back to tie the game, and it was answered. 'We looked over there and three of their girls had their hands down on their knees and had a prayer sign. And Melanie and I absolutely lost it,'" Tribble said.

Wildcats Win Over S. Davie

North took an early 9-0 lead on Tyler Black's pin and Josh Stanley's 8-2 win, but the Tigers roared back by taking the next four matches.

In the most exciting match of the day, South's Jacob Garner rallied to knock off Adam Sain 3-2, putting South on the board. Then Sammy McEwin shocked everyone with a 17-second pin against Clint Stanley. Nick Naylor steamrolled 17-6 and Michael Clement prevailed 9-5 against feisty Andrew Ellis, putting South ahead 16-9.

Then from 132-154 (five matches), the teams jacked up the match, continuously trading punches and swapping the lead five times. Seven Stanley (pin), Chris Hauser (14-5) and Jon Goode (pin) won for North and Joey Davis and Richard Blackman rallied with pins for South, which led 28-25 when the dust cleared.

North grabbed the lead for good when South forfeited to Cassidy McMahan, and Nick Raby's second-period pin provided 37-28 breathing room.

Wilson, losing for just the 10th time in his 69-match coaching career at South, takes every loss hard.

"If we could have won this match, it would have pretty much redeemed the season, at least in my mind," he said. "But the showing that we had gave us a good feeling."

A major rebuilding job turned out to be a fun ride.

"We were in the hunt for all of them," he said of the Tigers' four losses by a combined 32 points. "It started out as a rebuilding year anyway. Right now, we're working for next year. We have been since our second loss."

While another North team joins Kirk's growing list of unbeaten, one lingering fact continues to clog his head. The Wildcats failed to run the tables, slipping to runner-up behind Kannapolis in the conference tournament.

"They're ranked up there with some of the others, but I can't say it's the best one," Kirk said. "I've got one in my mind that will always be the best one."

Cassidy McMahan, Kevin Mick, Brian Fissel, Jordan Kahrs, Colt Stanley and Coach Ron Kirk encourage teammate.

South Davie teammates congratulate Sammy McEwin after upset win.

JV Team Folds Down The Stretch

Davie JV basketball coach Leo Brunelli has been down this road before. Once again, the War Eagles played well for three quarters before folding down the stretch, losing 65-62 to Mt. Tabor and 59-57 to South Rowan in two road games last week.

"For two losses, we played real well," Brunelli said. "I'm tired of saying this, but these were moral wins."

Moral wins are becoming old. Davie (8-7, 0-5 CPC) needs real wins soon.

"We need a win real bad," he said. "We're playing really good. All in all, in the last two minutes, the opportunities were there if we could have executed a little better."

Davie, which rallied from a 22-7 first-half hole with a 13-0 run to end the half, got a huge boost in the fourth quarter from Andy Helling, who fired in all of his 13 points during money time, including four 3-pointers in five tries and one unbelievable four-point play.

Brunelli couldn't believe what he was witnessing.

"Andy was incredible," he said. "He came off the bench and gave us the spark we needed. It was unreal. He was in a zone. I don't care where he caught the ball, it was going in."

Helling, feeling unstoppable, played Michael Jordan for a short stretch.

"In a three-minute span, I bet he had a 13-0 run by himself," Brunelli said.

"He was incredible," Brunelli said. "We were in a box-in-one defense with Peacock face guarding the guy. The kid didn't score but four points, and he got them from the line in the final 30 seconds. Travis did the job there."

Davie didn't do the job, however.

"It was a winnable game," Brunelli said. "The only problem was we only got two points from the bench, and we definitely need more from the bench."

And some clutch free throws wouldn't hurt.

"If we had to go to one area, the free-throw line hurt us," Brunelli said. "In two- and three-point games, that's the difference."

Davie had a long list of outstanding performances. John Orsillo led with 17 points and nine rebounds and Collins had 13 points and nine assists. Graham added 12 points and Rod Tenor had eight points and six boards.

Fouls, Foul Shot Woes Fatal To North Davie Girls

Foul problems and free-throw woes were the fatal blows to North Davie's eighth-grade girls basketball team as the J.N. Fries Knights bounced the Wildcats 41-26 in the Piedmont Middle School Conference Tournament's opening playoff round last week at host Fries.

Trailing 27-20, the seventh-seeded Wildcats remained in the hunt through three quarters - despite playing much of the way without center Ashley Williams, who was saddled with early foul trouble - but North's offense bogged down and the Knights took advantage by taking the game away at the line.

They made 15 of 24 foul shots for the game, a sharp contrast to North, which missed 15 of 23 tries.

"That pretty much killed us," Coach Trish King said. "I think the free-throw line was the key to the game. We gave them a lot of points at the line."

"We were rushing shots (in the fourth quarter) because we were behind, and they weren't falling for us."

King, though, urged her girls to hold their heads high as a 6-8 season came to an end, because she measured them on a different scale. They didn't duplicate their seventh-grade championship run, but they recovered from a miserable start and won six of their final nine games.

"I thought we had a good season," King said. "I told them not to feel like they had let everybody down because they didn't repeat. You know, every year is different. Because you win the year before doesn't mean it's meant to be for the next year, so I was real proud of their effort."

North probably would have pushed Fries to the end had fouls not hampered Williams in the early going. It led 7-4 after six minutes before Williams sat down.

"We actually went out and did exactly what we wanted to do in the first quarter," King said.

"Ashley was another key factor. We were doing real well when she was on the floor, and she got into foul trouble and didn't play most of the second and third quarters. So that kind of hurt us a little bit."

No one hurt Fries more than forward Lauren Comstae, who led the

Physician On Call

The "Chicken" Flu

Q: What is the "chicken" or avian (bird) flu that I've been hearing about in the news?
A: The flu virus outbreak that began in China last year is a strain of influenza named A(H5N1) that was first isolated in birds in 1961, but had not appeared in humans until 1997. This virus has been connected with the deaths of five people and in the infection of between 15 and 20 others. At this time, health investigators report that the virus is transmitted from birds to humans rather than from humans to humans.

Q: Could this flu spread to the United States?
A: Currently no cases of the A(H5N1) flu have been reported outside Hong Kong. However, because there is not yet a vaccine for this strain of the flu and influenza strains can mutate, the long-term predictions for this disease are uncertain.

Q: How is this avian or "chicken" flu different than other flu strains?
A: Influenza viruses are divided into three categories: A, B and C. This particular strain is a Type A strain. Type A strains mutate constantly and therefore are responsible for major epidemics every several years. Types B and C are less common and result in local outbreaks and milder cases.

Q: Are the symptoms from the "chicken" or avian flu different than other types of flu strains?
A: The initial symptoms of this flu are similar to Type A strains of influenza—sudden onset of sore throat, cough, headache, aching muscles and high fever. However, symptoms can quickly become more serious, especially in Type A influenza which can be fatal. Whenever you get flu symptoms, watch closely for any change in your condition. For a generally healthy person, symptoms will improve in a week or so. As always, if your symptoms get worse, call your doctor.

Father Gets Wish; Delivers Baby

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - There was an article on the wall in the doctor's office that caught Ken Head's attention. A man had delivered his own baby.

Head suggested to Dr. Edwin Fulgum at Statesville Medical that he be allowed to do the same, but the doctor just shrugged.

When the time for the baby to arrive on Tuesday, Jan. 6, in Davis Hospital, Head thought he would give it one more try.

"Doc, you going to let me deliver this baby?" he asked.

"He said, 'I thought your were kidding ... Go put the scrubs on,'" Head said. While Barbara Perkins was getting ready to birth the baby, the father was getting ready to take part in a way that few fathers ever get the chance.

"The baby was turned sideways. 'He (doctor) asked me can you tell what you're feeling. You've got to turn him and face him down.'"

"That done, it was time for Shaun Lee Head to enter this world.

"I just pulled him on out and laid him on my lap," Head said. "When they first come out, boy, they will scare you. He had these big, deep wrinkles on his head and he was purple. The wrinkles straightened out right in front of me."

"It's a thrill Head will cherish forever."

"I thought it was a rush to kill a deer, but that ain't nothing like this," he said.

Head was the talk of the hospital. Other fathers couldn't believe it, but Head would recommend it to anyone.

"You might as well sit on down there and do it. There ain't nothing to it," he said.

The baby was born at 7:34 p.m. Jan. 6, and weighed 7 lbs. 14 oz. He's doing fine at home on Midway Street.

Shaun has a special place in his father's heart. He's his first child, and he brought him into this world.

"That could pose a problem, however. 'You always hear daddies when their kids act wrong. 'I brought you into this world and I can take you out.' 'I really can say that,'" he said.

Head "puts on the scrubs" to deliver his baby.

Davie Youth Behavior Survey Results Are Released

On Friday, Nov. 22, the Davie County Schools and the Davie County Health Department conducted the third Davie County Youth Behavior Survey.

Since 1991, the Davie County Community Action Now To Support Teen Outreach Programs (CAN-STOP) Project has supported this survey as a part of a longitudinal study. In 1991 and 1993, students in grades 7-12 could participate in this study. For the first time in 1996, sixth grade students were also asked to voluntarily participate due to the reorganization of the Davie County School system to the middle school concept in the 1994-95 school year.

Funding for the administration of the survey and the evaluation component is supported by grant funds from the N.C. Department of Health and Human Services, said Dennis E. Harrington, Davie health director. The study is being evaluated by the Philliber Research Associates in Accord, N.Y.

Once all survey data is collected, it is sealed and mailed to the Philliber Research Office, and the research team compiles the data and provides Davie County with a summarized report.

Dr. Bill Steed, superintendent of schools said the report provides the school system and the health department with some guidance in identifying risky adolescent health behaviors and information that can be utilized to plan appropriate health programs.

In 1996, a total of 1,933 students in grades 6-12 voluntarily participated in the survey. Questions were asked in the following categories: Pursuit of Further Education; Homework Activity; Self-Image/Self-Concept; Teen Suicide; Parental Involvement; Sexual Activity (Questions asked only to students in grades 7-12); Injury Prevention; Substance Use/Abuse: Alcohol, Tobacco, and Other Drugs; Physical/Sexual Abuse; and Medical Attention.

First in the 1996 survey, a higher percentage of students in grades 7-12 (86%) reported the desire to pursue further education (trade/vocational school, some college, graduate from college, and graduate/professional school after college) after completing high school than in the 1991 and 1993 survey results; 83% of sixth grade students reported a desire to pursue further education.

More students in grades 7-12 reported doing 1-11 plus hours of homework per week (92%) as compared to 1991 and 1993 data; 97% of sixth graders reported doing 1-11 plus hours of homework per week.

Third, as self-image/self-concept issues, 82% of students in grades 7-12 reported liking themselves and this percentage was consistent with 1991 and 1993 data. However, 80% of sixth graders reported liking themselves. Also, in this section of questions, students in grades 7-12 were asked the question, "Is it against your values to have sex as a teenager?"

A much higher percentage of students in 1996 compared to 1991 and 1993, reported that "it was against their values to have sex as a teenager."

In 1996, students in grades 6-8 and 9-12 were asked the following new self-concept question, "Do you agree with the statement, a person should not have sex until he or she is married." 74% of students in grades 6-8 agreed with this statement and 44% of students in grades 9-12.

In the area of teen suicide, less students in grades 7-12 reported making a specific plan to attempt suicide in the past year and an actual suicide attempt than in 1991 and 1993.

More students in grades 7-12 reported discussing problems and school-related problems with their parents, but less students reported discussing sexuality issues with their parents.

Also, in the section on parental involvement, more students in grades 7-12 are reporting more adult supervision at home before and after school.

In the section on sexual activity, students in grades 7-12 were asked these questions. Results of this data, has shown that more students are abstaining from sexual activity than what was reported in the 1991 and 1993 surveys. More female and male 7-12 grade students are reporting that "they have never had sex."

The injury prevention data was also positive, because more students reported using seat belts always or most of the time, and that they had not carried a weapon during the past seven days for protection, Harrington said.

In the section on substance use/abuse, less students in grades 7-12 reported drinking alcohol in 1996 as compared to 1993 data. 12% of 6th graders reported drinking alcohol. In grades 7-12, less students reported smoking a cigarette in 1996 compared to 1993 data, but more 11th and 12th graders reported smoking a cigarette in 1996 compared to 1993. 13% of 6th graders reported smoking a cigarette.

Also, less students in grades 7-12 reported chewing tobacco or snuff in 1996 compared to 1993 and 1991. 6% of sixth graders reported chewing tobacco or snuff. In the section on other drug use, more 7-12 grade students reported ever experiencing physical or sexual abuse. As in the previous surveys of 1993 and 1991, females reported more physical or sexual abuse than males.

Workshop Set For Parents Of Teen-Agers

Fostering love and self-esteem, communicating, setting appropriate limits.

These are all issues that parents must deal with at some time. And now help is available for parents who are interested in learning about these issues or seek support from other parents.

A special workshop for parents of teenagers will be held on Mondays 6-7 p.m. at Family Services Feb. 23-March 30. Registration for the class is under way and will continue through Feb. 16, by calling 634-4510 Monday, Wednesday or Thursday, 9 a.m.-7:30 p.m. The cost is $10 for single parents and $15 per couple.

This is not a therapy group, according to licensed professional counselor Tripp Ake, who will coordinate the meetings. It is a group formed for education and support.

The workshop is designed for parents to have a place to get ideas about how to handle difficult situations and find out what other parents are experiencing. Ake became interested in conducting the workshop after hearing from several sources that the community has a need for a program like this.

With prior experience as teacher of a parenting class at Charter Hospital in Greensboro, Ake will give participants a variety of topics from which to choose.

Among those are single parenting, sibling rivalry, guilt and stress of working parents and substance abuse prevention.

Since the class only last six weeks, it will focus on the issues in which participating parents are most interested, Ake said.

Plans are in the works to offer a similar program for parents of elementary and middle school children to be held at Mocksville Elementary School.

At Family Services, Ake works primarily with children and adolescents. He also counsels couples and adult individuals and works with a lot of domestic violence and abuse cases.

We are planning to have another ham and sausage breakfast at Wesley Chapel on Feb. 21.

The Pino-Farmington Homemakers Club met at the home of Marie Miller for their January meeting, with 3 members and 2 guests, Toby Hawkins and Betty Petticoat, present.

The meeting was called to order by president Jean Smith. Marie Miller gave the devotions. The secretary read the minutes from the last meeting. She also gave the treasurer's report. Issues coordinators were chosen for the coming year. Also hostesses were chosen, and trips were decided on. Jean gave upcoming dates for program training and other events. The meeting was closed after repeating the club collect.

Dale and Martha Latham and Mackie McDaniel flew to Wichita Falls, Texas last week and spent a few days with Willie and Nova Fleming.

Dale and Mackie spent a lot of time quail hunting and had real good luck. They really enjoy hunting out there in the wide open spaces.

On Sunday, Dale, Martha and Harmon and I took a short trip up to Hillsville, Va. It was very beautiful there, the ground was covered with 6-8 inches of snow. Fortunately, the roads were clear.

Bob and Louise Dill celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary on Sunday. Their children came over and grilled steaks, and brought an anniversary cake. Louise had been under the weather with a badly sprained ankle. We're wishing her a speedy recovery.

James and Lelia Essic had as their week-end guest her brother David Neal and wife Barbara, along with her sister Elizabeth Johnson of Caswell County. On Saturday, they all went to Spindale to attend the funeral of Margaret Jane Mitchell, wife of their cousin Dr. Landis Mitchell.

In 1996, less students in grades 7-12 reported needing medical care and not getting the care they needed as compared to the 1991 and 1993 data.

7% of 6th graders reported needing medical care and not getting the care they needed. Also, the top reason given by 7-12 graders for not obtaining needed medical care was the following, "I just didn't get around to it." 6th graders reported the following as their top reason for not obtaining needed medical care. "It cost too much."

The Philibert Research Associates have summarized the following major findings:

• Fewer students are reporting to cheat on tests.

• Fewer students are reporting to have had sex. Among students in grades 7-9, the percentage is down a third.

• More students are reporting that they have tried marijuana.

• The CAN-STOP Project is very proud of these positive results, but there are still some problem areas that the school system and the health department with community support must investigate and work towards making improvements," Steed said.

For more information about the study sponsored by the CAN-STOP Project, contact Steed at 634-5921 or Harrington at 634-8700.

• Fewer students report drinking alcohol.

• The percentage of self-reported sexually active teens in grades 10-12 that report the use of contraception to prevent pregnancy has increased.

• The percentage of students indicating a pregnancy remained low for 7th-9th graders, and decreased by 4% in the 10th-12th grades.

If You Don't Name CCB As Executor Of Your Estate You Could Be Leaving Your Heirs A Lot More Than Just Money.

Your family's future could be affected by how well your executor does his or her job. And unless professional executors run in your family, there's a good chance whoever you name won't have the time, qualifications, or experience that estate settlement responsibilities inevitably demand.

Don't panic. With over 50 years of estate settlement experience, CCB's Trust and Investment Management group can help. Our knowledge and experience in estate, inheritance and income taxes can help you make decisions that may result in considerable tax savings. And while an individual executor could die, become ill or distracted from his responsibilities, you can count on CCB to always be right here when you need us.

By naming CCB as your executor, you guarantee your estate will be settled in a professional manner. And while family situations and relationships can sometimes prevent individual executors from being impartial, CCB can guarantee impartiality. All of which means your plans will be carried out and your estate distributed exactly the way you intended; painlessly. For more information, please call us at 1-800-775-4500.

Water Works Solves Your Water Problems

Certified Water Specialists • Softeners & Filters • Drinking Water Systems • Durasstill Distillers • Iron & Acid Filters • Chlorine Injection Systems Salt • Natural Soaps

Water! We all need pure clean water for healthy living. And the best place to get the facts about quality water is Water Works, a locally owned and operated company.

Water Works has a full line of water treatment products and a professional team dedicated to providing their customers with pure water at a reasonable cost. They will be glad to show you their list of satisfied customers because they know that their work is the best recommendation.

"Synthetic chemicals and toxic wastes are greatly affecting our water," notes Dan Lewis. "Tanks that were placed underground many years ago are now leaking contaminants into our water supply. Studies have shown you get more toxic exposure from taking a shower than from drinking the same water. We have designed a whole house water system to produce chemical free, great tasting water."

"Our water systems are industrial quality and low maintenance and come with a lifetime warranty," states Jay Kooztz. "Simply put, our high-quality products and great service make our customers extremely happy."

Many other products are available including: PurTest Bacteria test kits, Bentonite Minerals, Newways Health & Nutrition Products, Purebrush toothbrush sterilizing system, shower filters, natural soaps, and bottled water coolers.

Water Works, a member of the National Water Quality Association, is proud to make a significant contribution to the health of our community. Visit their showroom at 2513 Neudorf Road in Clemmons or call 766-3349 for more information on how you can improve the quality of your water. You can take a water sample by their office for a FREE water test or have an analyst test your water in the comfort of your home. Also available is a FREE skin absorption test kit.

This Tax Year: 'Family Friendly'

This year for taxpayers brings with it many changes. The good news is that most of the changes are good ones.

"There are a lot of tax changes — capital gains have been reduced. This is a family-friendly tax year because the changes are helpful to the family. That's going to help a lot of families," said Dorothy Leamon, owners of Dorothy's Tax Service of Clemmons.

She has been in business since 1985, starting after a career with the federal government. She is a Forsyth County native, attending Reynolds High and Salem College.

She serves as president of N.C. Society of Tax Professionals, president-elect of the Clemmons Kiwanis Club, a member of the Clemmons zoning board, and state coordinator of the AARP volunteer tax assistants, a group of 1,500 volunteers in North Carolina and South Carolina that help seniors complete their tax forms. She teaches the volunteers.

She also boasts of 13 grandchildren.

"I should have been doing taxes all my working life because I love doing them," she said.

She recommends that taxpayers consider the changes in the tax laws and how they can benefit. Some of the changes include the new Roth IRA, the new medical savings account, a $400 per child tax credit for 1998 and the new Hope Scholarship Fund.

"This is a transitional year," she said, because the changes are being implemented.

"There are also a lot of advantages for business tax credits. Business can take up to $18,500 off this year for any retrofitting of their machinery."

Chocolate Central Ready To Make Valentine's Day Special For You

Valentine's Day is just around the corner and that means it's time to think about CHOCOLATE.

Actually, any occasion is a good time to think about chocolate, and in Clemmons that means a trip to Chocolate Central. You name it, and Margarita Medina, the owner, can produce it in chocolate — everything from a dozen chocolate roses (on stems) to Valentine's Day boxes made out of chocolate and filled with chocolate. "It's all edible, except for the papers the pieces of chocolate are wrapped in," Medina said.

Making chocolate and candy is a family tradition for the former paralegal. "I've been doing this for 11 years now, and I have a cousin in Brooklyn who used to own a chocolate shop. When I was pregnant, my aunt brought chocolate baby bottles and rattles to my shower."

When she started her own business, it was out of her home. Then two-and-a-half years ago she moved to North Carolina, and with the growth in western Forsyth County, this past fall seemed the perfect time to open her own place of business.

Medina's shop, which is located at 2505 Neudorf Road, diagonally across from the skating rink, opened in November and since then the word has spread about her large selection of candies, baked goods, coffees, Jelly Belly Jelly Beans, a large selection of decorative candies and other gift items. She also carries an assortment of sugar-free chocolate and candies.

"One of the things we do is chocolate covered fresh fruit. We'll do bananas, cherries and strawberries." In fact, her shop is the only place outside of Knoxville, Tenn., where one can purchase chocolate covered strawberries.

"Because this is an especially juicy fruit, you want those to be very fresh. We'll have them, but if someone wanted to make sure they're available on a particular day, they can call ahead and place an order."

Medina said the business consists of ready-made items and well as the specialty items customers request. "We carry a large supply of chocolates by category, sports, occupational and miscellaneous that make perfect gifts."

For the Valentine's Day shopper, Chocolate Central will have all sorts of baskets and boxes perfect for that someone special, and even balloon bouquets.

"For Easter we're going to make a three-foot Easter bunny and raffie it off. The proceeds will be donated to Brenner's Children's Hospital."

So whether it's something special for your sweetheart this Valentine's Day, a birthday gift, or a special treat, Chocolate Central has just what the chocolate-lover wants.

The shop is closed on Mondays, but open Tuesdays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Saturdays from 10 to 4.

Miller Building: Experts at home remodeling

Improvements and major renovations always require a lot of changes at home. Many homeowners are reluctant to venture into those projects. That's the comfort that comes from dealing with the professionals at Miller Building & Remodeling of Advance. Their customers over the years are their best sales agents.

"I would recommend Miller Building to anyone. They are the BEST," said one Advance customer.

"Your crews became almost family... appreciate their excellent work," said a Clemmons customer.

There have been many testimonials for the experienced craftsmen at Miller Building, one of the area's top remodeling companies since 1980. Many homeowners are now asking about replacement windows and vinyl siding for their homes.

Miller Building installs high-quality Great Lakes/Pygam replacement windows and BIRD vinyl siding, with a lifetime guarantee. The replacement windows are made of the highest efficiency glass and the frames resist rust, corrosion, blistering, flaking and peeling. The windows can make your home quieter, more comfortable and energy-efficient.

"The old windows can be drafty and leak a lot of air. Wind blows around them. Replacement windows can be much more efficient. They look better, increase the value of your home, and they also block out ultra-violet light and filter noise. People find them easier to clean."

We at Hillsdale Baptist extend our deepest sympathies to the family of Ann Frye. The citizens of Davie County will surely miss this wonderful lady who touched the lives of so many people.

Beginning yesterday we at Hillsdale have begun a nine month commitment building fund campaign. Our building plans are very near to completion and our church members have filled our commitment cards as to how much we will contribute by Nov. 1. We have all put a lot of prayer into our decisions and appreciate all of the support we have received from our community. Happy Birthday to Sherry Steele.

Spiritual Resources: Living Instructions

By Louise Strout

If I were to put a title on the thoughts I would like to share with you today, it would be "Instructions for Living."

In our everyday lives we encounter many things that we don't know how to handle, but many things come with instructions. Maybe we buy a piece of furniture or a piece of machinery that has to be assembled and with it comes instructions. If we follow these carefully, things usually turn out all right. We all know people, though, who figure they don't need the instructions and they start to work but somehow they keep having pieces left over or the thing just won't work, so when all else fails, as a last resort they go back and read the directions that came with it. Perhaps in this day and age you could just call in your child or grandchild to take care of it. No problem, if you wouldn't mind being embarrassed.

If a person is just learning to cook, he or she will find a cookbook very useful. The toys for children come with instructions-not that the children would need them, but the parents probably would. Most of the things we tackle come with instructions. Where do we get our instructions for living? Your first thought probably is from your parents-when you are small. But where do they get their knowledge? It goes back to our real source-which is the Bible. We all know unfortunate people whose lives are shattered and who would like to put the broken pieces back together. The directions are to be found in the Bible.

I have chosen some of my favorite passages which tell us how God would have us live and I would like to share them with you.

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment, and the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbors as thyself." Matt. 22:37-39.

"Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." Prov. 22:6

"Study, to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." 2 Tim. 2:15

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths." Prov. 3:5-6

"Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you." Eph. 4:32

"Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged." Matt 7:12

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Matt 5:16

"Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. Prove all things; hold fast that which is good. Abstain from all appearance of evil." Thess. 5:16-18 (21-22)

"Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the earth." The Fifth Commandment.

"Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with Thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God." Col. 4:6

And last, a verse that my father printed at the top of one of the columns in his newspaper for years.

"If my people, which are called by my name, will humble themselves and pray and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and will heal their land." 2 Chron. 7:14.

Spreading The Faith

Couple Visits Ukraine With Supplies, Words

For the last two years, Jerry and Linda Harmon of Junction Road, Mocksville, have spent two weeks in the Ukraine along with some members of their church, Faith Baptist in Statesville.

The first year, they traveled down the Dniro River from Kiev down to Odessa at the Black Sea. Twelve members of their church, along with 98 others made the trip, including doctors, dentists, nurses, medical assistants and layworkers. 70,000 Bibles in their language and other supplies were given out. Hospitals, prisons, schools and churches were visited.

The scenes in the hospitals broke their hearts. Lack of medicine and other supplies were greatly needed, Mrs. Harmon said.

Many were treated for dental problems. The houses were lacking in modern conveniences such as running water, bathrooms, refrigerators, clothes, had to be washed by hand.

In the rural areas, if you did not grow your food, you did without. The survival rate is for every two males, one dies before 58 years old.

A pregnant woman has a difficult time, many children are born handicapped because of improper food for the pregnant mother.

For ten days, the Harmons traveled a round trip of 1,600 miles.

On the first trip, they met Nikola Zdreako, a young pastor in Kiev, in the capital city. He had a burden on his heart for a farming community about 50 miles from his home. He had been working their helping the believers have a mission in homes.

Coming home that first year, the 12 that went shared with Faith Baptist this man's need. They began to send $100 per month to help him in his work. The average home in the Ukraine receives a sum of $20 per month to live on, as most of the folk work one way or the other for the government.

In January of 1997, a building became available in the village. Faith Baptist was able to purchase it for a church home for the villagers. Over 1,500 homes are in this community in the Bastiv. They farm vast fields of potatoes, onions, tomatoes, popcorn and grains. The government receives most of these crops.

Around their homes instead of yards are personal gardens for their own needs.

The second year in June of 1997, the Harmons returned to live in this village. Five, along with the Rev. Dwight Dowell, are in the minister from the Union Grove area, went to live for 10 days in homes in this village. The guys worked on the church and did mission work among the people. Mrs. Harmon worked with children.

"Each morning we walked 1 1/4 miles each way to the mission building, children were out of school, their parents worked from sun up to sun down in the fields," Mrs. Harmon said. "They would meet me and stay all day with us. We played games, listened to stories that our interpreter helps us to teach, did crafts and just learned to love each other."

"We saw much hardship and poverty in this village amidst all of this they showed a great love for us. What ever they had, they wanted to share with us. They were amazed that a church in America would come to help them."

The people of the Ukraine are receptive to the Harmons and other Christian groups.

Mrs. Harmon plans to make several more visits to offer help and mission to the people.

"The first day we arrived, they met us at the mission building with huge armfuls of pink and red peonies, large 'cake of bread' with a beautiful pattern of wheat stalks on the top. This is a traditional greeting to believers from another country. Our church has preserved it, it is on display as a sweet memory of these loving folks," she said.

June 16 of this year, nine from the church plan to go. Five have never been and are excited about going. "It has taken us two trips to learn their needs."

This year, a church from Orlando, Fla. has provided a 40-ft. container to be shipped prior to the return, to fill with medicine, and things for the village.

In May, a return riverboat trip is planned by the Missionary Encouragers to travel back down the river, stopping in different areas with medical supplies. The same doctors, nurses and others that went in 1996 will be on this trip. Each of them are committed to this work, Mrs. Harmon said.

In June, a church from Tennessee will operate a children's camp located near the village for 10 days. Later, that group will do this also.

In August another church from Orlando, Fla. will work in this camp. This camp was built by Americans and is almost like a rural church camp you would find in our mountains, has running water, indoor bathrooms, decent food and many rooms with bunk beds to house 60 children at one time. The children will come from many areas. Most are orphans living in large orphanages.

"The 60 children that we will work with will come from the village, we are eager to see them as we learned to love them so much last year," she said.

"Our hearts have ached this year as the weather has been 33 below many times. We have thought of them many times. We can understand why Bob Pierce, as he served during the Korean war, wrote this in his Bible, 'let my heart be broken with the things that break the heart of God.'"

He later started "the Samaritan's Purse" and after his death, Franklin Graham is in charge of this group.

They do much work in the needs all over the world and here.

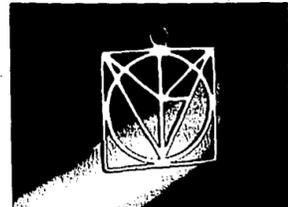

"We need to fill this 40-ft. container with medicine. Wal-Mart in Mocksville donated some. We are looking for others that will help these folks far away that do not even have aspirin to take. A nurse in our village and a doctor in the next try to treat the sick as best as they can."

Call 704-872-3311 Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. to help.

A poor man's supper is planned Feb. 27 to help raise money. Orders of five will be delivered, pick ups are available or dining in beginning at 4 p.m. that Friday. Call 872-3311 several days before to order your deliveries. Pintos, cornbread, slaw, onions, drinks and dessert will be served. Deliveries will be made to factories, businesses or homes.

Students in Steve Hamlin's science class, by way of journal writing, have integrated their study of medieval times by pretending to live in a castle and develop a plan to heat their castle for the winter. They are continuing to study heat energy. They held the great ice-cube contest and completed a lab experiment that demonstrated convection by transferring heat from hot liquids to cold liquids. In math, students are continuing to reinforce their math skills through daily lessons in the Saxon program.

John Daye is hoping to raise enough money to be a Student Ambassador to New Zealand and Australia this summer. - Photos by Robin Fergusson

Davie High Junior Working To Earn Trip Down Under

John Daye is an average student. He's not a straight "A" student, and he's nowhere near the verge of flunking.

He enjoys football and wrestling, and works part-time to get some spending money.

Yet John Daye sees himself as an ambassador. An ambassador for Davie County. An ambassador for young people. An ambassador for his country.

If he can raise enough money, Daye will be able to fulfill a dream this summer on a month-long trip to New Zealand and Australia through Student Ambassadors People to People program.

Daye doesn't know how the group got his name, but he was immediately interested when he received the written invitation by mail.

"I will be able to meet other people outside the United States and see how other cultures live, and see how other people like the United States," he said. "If they don't like us, I can be nice and try to make them like us better."

It will be winter in New Zealand, and Daye will stay with families there, attending school if they have children near his age. From there, he would travel to Australia.

There are trips to the Whakarewarewa Thermal Forest, the Great Barrier Reef, Sydney Opera House among the scheduled activities. "I want to go snorkeling under water and see what it's like, see the marine biology," Daye said.

The program also offers scholarship incentives. The students must keep a written daily journal and take photographs, and college scholarships will be awarded based on those journals and photographs.

Daye, a 16-year-old 11th grader at Davie High School, wants to become a physical education teacher.

It would be quite a trip for Daye, who farthest travels from home have taken him to Michigan and Florida. He's never been on an airplane. This trip would fly him to Los Angeles, then to New Zealand, then to Australia.

A football player and former wrestler at Davie High School, Daye is also a member of Fellowship of Christian Athletes and was in the leadership class the first semester.

He works at McDonald's in Clemmons five or six days a week, and plans to have car washes and other fund-raisers to try to raise the needed $4,300 before the April 29 deadline. A fund under his name has been set up at BB&T in Mocksville, and the family has sent information to about 50 area businesses.

"We're trying," said his mother, Susan. "If we don't make it, at least we tried."

His father, David, is disabled, and he has an older brother and a younger sister. They live on Daye Lane off of Redland Road.

John Daye: "I can try to make them like us better."

Tracy Rae Young of Riverview Townhouses, Advance, earned a bachelor's degree in English.

Chadwick Jackson Trivette of Speer Road, Mocksville, earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice.

Each county in North Carolina has a Special Populations Coordinator.

Dreama Landacre is the coordinator for Davie County along with her assistant, Wanda Bailey. Bailey administers the SAM (Skills Assessment Module) assessment to special populations students at North and South Davie middle schools.

Each semester Landacre and Bailey identify the special populations stu-

Landacre and Bailey tutor the students on an individual basis and offer to read interim tests or exams to the vocational students. With large classes, students who need extra help can get individualized tutoring.

Many students who have learning disabilities have taken advantage of this service. There are approximately 1,000 students taking vocational classes per semester. Students can be tutored in the following vocational classes: Keyboarding, Computer Applications I and II, Allied Health Sciences I and II, Graphic Communications I and II, Business Law, Foods and Nutrition, business administration degree in industrial and operations management. Kathryn V. Cozart of Cedar Ridge Road, Mocksville, earned a bachelor's degree in psychology. Jon Brewer of Kanan Krest, Mocksville, earned a bachelor's of business administration degree in management/information systems.

Davie Dentists Participating In Sealant Program For Children

Seal the State in '98, a statewide collaboration of public and private dentists, will place 98,000 dental sealants free-of-charge on the surfaces of children's teeth in North Carolina, including 125 in Davie County.

The purpose of the event, is to help prevent tooth decay through increasing the use of dental sealants and to raise awareness of the value of sealants.

Seal the State in '98 is the largest ever-united sealant promotion conducted statewide. It is an integral part of the 80th anniversary of the N.C. Department of Health and Human Services' Dental Health Section, the first denial public health program established in the United States.

"Dental sealants are an important preventive measure, but are significantly underutilized in North Carolina," said Dr. Steven Cline, chief of the Dental Health Section. "This collaborative project enables us to recognize our anniversary with a significant gift to the children of North Carolina."

Only 26 percent of children in North Carolina have sealants on permanent teeth. The chewing surfaces of teeth are most susceptible to decay and placing sealants on teeth can produce 80 percent reduction in tooth decay. Tooth decay is one of the most common diseases among school-age children in the state.

Volunteer dental professionals are working with civic leaders, business professionals, dental public health staff and educational professionals in each N.C. county to ensure that Seal the State in '98 reaches as many children as possible. Members of the N.C. Dental Society are playing a key role in each community project, which are coordinated by the local denial public health staff.

The North Carolina Dental Society has been a proud partner of the denial public health services since it was established," said Dr. Cate Mason, president of the dental society.

"Our members are pleased to support the Seal the State in '98 project, which provides an excellent opportunity to give back to the community and raise the public's awareness about the importance of good dental health."

"Children are our greatest treasure on earth. They are our future. There are very few things that we as parents and as a society can give our children that are more important than ensuring their health and well-being. That is my family's belief and the foundation of the Ruth and Billy Graham's Children's Health Center in Asheville. That is why I am asking your support for this important statewide health promotion, Seal the State in '98," said the Rev.

Franklin Graham, Honorary Chairman, Seal the State in '98.

Davie County plans to participate with eight dentists in seven offices who have agreed to place sealants on about 125 children on Feb. 5 and 6. The dentists met and decided second graders are top priority.

Children will be selected to participate using the dental screening done at school and information provided by the parental permission form. Children will be taken to the dental office from school. Permission forms and transportation is being coordinated through the School Health Office.

The following schedule is planned:

- Dr. Kevin Ambrecht, Thursday, Feb. 5, 9 a.m.-1 p.m.;
- Dr. Jeff Billings, Friday, Feb. 6, 8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.;

A Lexington teen attempting to elude Davidson County Sheriff's deputies wrecked on U.S. 64 East in the Park community of Davie County on Saturday night.

Douglas Scott Kirk, 18, of 1744 Weaver Road, was driving a 1989 Ford attempted to elude the two deputies, who were driving marked sheriff's cars with blue lights and sirens activated, reported N.C. Highway Patrol Trooper T.S. Kennedy. Speeds reached 80 mph. The chase ended when deputies Robert Lee Aaron Qualkenbush and Casey Matthew Tarleton attempted to stop Kirk's car, forcing it off the road to the left.

Damage was estimated at $3,500 to one of the sheriff's cars, $1,000 to the other, and at $3,000 to Kirk's car.

Florida Company Has High Bid For Musgrave Building

The Musgrave Machine & Tool building has been sold to a Florida-based company.

Kaydon Corp. bid at just over $3.8 million for the facility last Friday. They will own the building if the bid is not topped by a certain percentage within 10 days. The building and land was appraised at $4.1 million.

Terry Bralley, chairman of the Davie

County Economic Development Council, said the company would be a good corporate citizen. Company officials couldn't be reached for comment Tuesday afternoon.

The building is being sold as part of bankruptcy proceedings by the company and owner, Roger E. Musgrave. Musgrave defaulted on a loan from BB&T, which will get proceeds from the sale.

Bralley said for weeks that the building, which became vacant when the company suddenly closed just before Thanksgiving, that interest was high for what was traditionally a slow time of year for economic development.

"It's beyond my belief," he said. "It's almost been non-stop on a daily basis." The popularity of available buildings proves that the Hollingsworth project, under construction on U.S. 601 North, was a good decision. That company has hired its own recruiter to find businesses to locate in the industrial park.

Bralley said that some companies express a concern about finding enough workers, since Davie's unemployment rates generally are among the lowest in the state.

"Labor continues to be an issue, but labor is not an issue of your wages are high enough," he said. "If you're willing to pay wages that are at and above the norm, there are workers out there. But with the higher wages, there have to be skills ... and that's where our community college plays a big part."

Bralley tells potential industries if they're willing to pay $12-$14 an hour, there will be plenty of available workers.

School Calendar Approved

A calendar for the 1998-99 school year was approved on a split vote by the Davie County Board of Education Monday night.

Students will still begin class on Aug. 5, teachers in late July.

The calendar committee discussed the issue for a second time after the board sent the original calendar back for review. Only a few minor changes were made.

Luther Potts said he had received several comments on the proposal - some for the change, some against it. One of the main reasons for the revised schedule is to get the first semester over before the Christmas break.

Board member Janie Garnett, who voted against the change along with Chairman Mark Jones, said that while the new schedule benefits high school students, the old schedule best benefits elementary students. "How do you weigh that out? Whichever way you go, you make it not as desirable, not as good for the other group," she said.

Town To Consider Two More Apartment Requests

Apartments. Developers say that Davie County needs them, and they're lining up with the town of Mocksville to provide proper zoning.

"After turning down two requests for apartments - one on Country Lane and the other at Valley Road and Hospital Street - these developers are back; one with a different proposal for the same location and another for a different location.

And a third developer has plans to build more on the only land in town zoned for apartments, off Milling Road near Northwood.

In the meantime, Mocksville Planning Board members are studying maps, trying to figure new locations to create zones for apartments.

Grant, Inc., which had proposed an apartment complex at Valley Road and Hospital Street, withdrew their request for a general rezoning and have submitted for a special use permit for elderly housing.

"I think the community would prefer elderly over multi-family," said Frankie Pendergraph, vice president of JAG Management, which would manage the complex. "That gives you some comfort level that you get what you think you're getting."

If a special use permit is granted, the developers will be required to build according to approved plans.

There would be tax credits for the investors through the Housing Finance Agency, but the rents would not be subsidized; proposed for $295 for one bedroom units and $355 for two bedrooms. There would be 36 units in a secure, two story building.

Residents would have to be 55 or older, with up to 20 percent who could be younger provided they meet disabled or handicapped guidelines, Pendergraph said.

Evergreen Construction, which was turned down for a rezoning request for apartments on Country Lane, has a new request to rezone from residential (R-20) to residential multi-family overlay 5.7 acres on Milling Road three quarters of a mile from Main Street.

The planning board will study the requests at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 12, and make a recommendation to the town board.

The group will take care of the funding and the work, and provide the park at no cost to the town, Spry said.

The new mayor says efforts like this is what will keep Cooleemee a vital, caring community. Other volunteers are already working for a community-oriented celebration for the Fourth of July.

"The more volunteers we get, the better," he said. "We want to let people know what's going on, so we can get their ideas, give them an opportunity to help."

Cooleemee Calls It's Native Sons Home For 100th

Cooleemee is preparing for a big party — perhaps the biggest the town has ever seen. This year, Cooleemee turns 100. The bulletin board outside the U.S. Post Office in Cooleemee has been turned into a tiny museum in the past year. Historians have displayed dozens of fascinating pictures they have gleaned from the town's past. Judging from those pictures and the people who crowd around the bulletin board, the centennial celebration could be something wonderful. Cooleemee has quite a story to tell. It was a thriving mill town, one of the many traditional mill towns that sprang up across the South. Builders harnessed the river and used the energy to run the textile mill. Cooleemee at one time was much bigger than Mocksville, and the rivalry between the high school teams was intense. The consolidation of all the county's high schools into one large school meant that all those rivals had to sit down together in the same classroom. They suddenly found themselves on the same team. The town's future was jeopardized the day Burlington Industries closed the cotton mill in 1969. If it had happened decades earlier, the mill closing might have meant the death of the town. But Cooleemee residents were able to find work elsewhere and still live in the town they loved. Cooleemee survived that dark, difficult time. It not only survived, but it faced the loss of that corporate giant and moved on. With incorporation, the town seized control of its destiny and resolved to take its future squarely in its own hands.

To fill its own potholes.
To police its own streets.
To decide its own leadership.
The town's history, led by Jim Rumley, have been busy stockpiling all the historical information they can find. It's now or never. Memories of the way-it-was have started to fade. Old pictures must be restored and copied. Rumley is assembling the information into a book for the centennial year. It's an observance well worth celebrating. It's a time to reflect on the changes, the progress, the blessings and the disappointments. Native sons and daughters will use it as a time to come home. To show their children where they lived and played. To dip their feet in the river again and ... remember. Ken Sales remembers his years growing up in Cooleemee with great fondness. "Today, we hear so much about family values and the effect it has on our everyday life," he said. "If you had the opportunity of growing up in Cooleemee, this was magnified numerous times because Cooleemee was like one big, happy family ... There are many places today where people don't even know their next door neighbor ..." Tony Daniels said it a different way: "The one common theme that remains when talking to people from earlier generations up through my own is the sense and feeling of family that was the heart and soul of our small town." Cooleemee people knew their neighbors. They worked with them, played with them, worshipped with them. It promises to be a wonderful celebration.

Media, Public Opinion Convict Kennel Owners

To the editor:
It is sad that in our country, people can be tried and convicted, not based on crimes they have committed, but rather by public opinion, public opinion which is often swayed by incomplete and biased information presented by the media—all the way from Washington, D.C. to our own state and county. I feel that it is important that the people of Davie County have complete facts regarding the Allen's animal abuse case. As the veterinarian who examined most of their animals prior to this case, I was quite surprised by the judge's verdict. After nearly 11 years of clinical practice, I have seen many cases of animals which have been starved and/or physically abused, but I saw no such animals when I visited the Allen's premises. Was the Allen's kennel up to top notch standards? No, it was not. But it was headed in the right direction. Lynn Allen had a dream of an ideal kennel she hoped to have one day. In the meanwhile she was doing the best she could with what she had. No one that ever saw her with her dogs could say that she didn't care for these animals. Even both witnesses for the prosecution in this case got on the stand and admitted that they didn't feel she did anything intentional to harm any of her animals. Yet she was convicted. I have visited many kennels, farms and homes in Davie County, and the Allen's facilities were not so different from others I've seen. Lynn got a little too big too fast, but her animals did not appear to be suffering from their less than perfect kennel situation. I would urge everyone to exercise a little healthy skepticism when watching the news reports or reading the paper. If we let the media sway us one way or the other without making sure we are getting all the facts, we set ourselves up to believe whatever the most popular news channel wants us to believe. Robin N. Mocksville Blessed With Angel: 'Miss Ann'

To the editor:
You know they say there are angels among us; but I never thought as much until I thought of a true angel I was blessed to know—Mrs. Ann Frye. I first came to know Miss Ann, as I called her, when she took the longest ride of my life with me in 1989. I was on opposite sides with her, but never once did she scorn me and just as she was to leave me, she took my hand and told me "Don't worry, everything will be all right."
Down the road, a year or so later, I ran into her on the street and she remembered me. She gave me the biggest smile and chatted for a while. Over the years, there was not a time that we didn't pass each other in a store, or in the courthouse, or any where that this beautiful lady didn't stop me and talk to me like I was a real friend.
Just by the will of God I was graced by this lady's comforting words again in March of 1992 when I lost control of my vehicle in a sharp curve in front of her house late at night. My truck spun around in the road and went down an embankment into a fence in front of her house. I remember through convulsive tears and the confused condition my head was in due to the big (hen eggs) knots on my head where I was thrown against the side of the truck, I was scared and each time I came to my senses, there was Miss Ann, holding my hand and brushing away my tears, trying to calm me so as not to do any more injury to myself, I remember her saying, "Don't worry everything will be all right." I just wanted to know how bad I had damaged my truck and Miss Ann said "Listen here young lady, this truck can't get 10 times over down the road, but you can't, you're the only you, worry about yourself." She held my hand and comforted me until the EMS arrived.

Over the years, she would see me and give me a bright smile and ask about how I was doing the last time I ran into Miss Ann was around the end of November, 1997 and with that same smile as always, we stood and chatted and just before she walked away, just before she walked away, she said, "Don't worry, everything will be all right" and squeezed my hand. Today, as I read of her passing away, I remember her smile and if a person's good deeds and if a person's good deeds here on earth can earn them a brighter halo and bigger, more beautiful wings in heaven, I know Miss Ann's wings will be the most precious gold and pearl wings of all.
In closing, I want to thank God for loaning Mocksville the most honored angel for 58 years. Miss Ann, go rest high on that mountain, your work here on earth is done. Thank you and I love you. Remember, "Don't worry no more, everything is going to be all right." God bless and may you forever more rest in peace.

There's No Ice To Break

To the editor:
I find it laughable that Robert Cook broke ice, waded in water and saved a dog. What ice? There hasn't been any ice this winter. Sounds like politics to me. Maybe he was saving himself.

It Wasn't Perfect ... But Friends Help Make Wedding Day Close

It was the moment I had been dreaming of since first playing dress up with my grandmother's clothes, and all I could do was pray that I wouldn't faint.
Leaving the hairdresser looking more than a little like Shirley Temple, I rushed to pick up the corsages from the florist before making a dash into the grocery store for snacks since there would be no time for lunch. From there I headed home to feed the dogs, put on some makeup and load the car. By then, the bridesmaid who was staying with me had returned from having her hair done just in time for us to arrive at the church with 15 minutes left to get dressed. Crinoline, dress, veil, pearls, earrings, garter, gloves and a penny to go in those uncomfortable, little shoes. Needless to say, I and most of my bridesmaids did not meet the photographer's deadline.
But, as fast as we could, we rushed upstairs for a series of preliminary photos after which one of the bridesmaids touched up my makeup while I wolfed down a turkey sandwich and a Coke, which inevitably led to a trip to the restroom where it took two kind friends to help me with my dress.
As people rushed in and out of the room where I waited, it seemed like the wedding should be still hours away when I was whisked around the church where a few late arrivals caught an early glimpse of me, as I watched the wedding party march into the church. And now the whirlwind had stopped just long enough to land me at the altar.

This was the most important moment of my life, and, recognizing that, I tried to concentrate on what the preacher was saying while praying I would make it through the ceremony on two feet, as a wave of heat came over me — omitting my hands and feet which remained numb.
It was amazing. Always the first to cry at a sad movie or song, there I stood on this monumental occasion — never shedding a tear. I had cried while posing for pictures before the wedding, but I had wasted my time worrying about streaks of mascara and vows choked out through tears.
Concentrate on what the preacher is saying, I continued to tell myself. The vows are what matter most about this day. I struggled to absorb the awesome meaning of his words in between trying to feel my feet beneath me, remember when to pass my bouquet to the matron of honor and praying I wouldn't drop the ring as I slipped it on his finger.
Before I knew what had happened, I was married. Then came more pictures, cake to cut, a bouquet and garter to throw, food we didn't have time to eat or even look at, friends we weren't able to talk to and the faint sound of music for the dances we weren't able to have. All in all it was probably just like any other wedding on a modest budget.

By the time reality sank in the next day, there was no getting around it. I was disappointed.
On the day I had dreamed of my whole life and worked for months to make perfect, and I was barely able to speak to any of the friends and relatives who were there to help make it special. We didn't get to dance at the reception, and so many people were leaving by the time we arrived that I was certain we would have enough wedding cake left to feed an army.
Had I not quickly come to my senses, I would be ashamed to admit having such thoughts. Weddings are a celebration of love — not only between the couple getting married but all those who want to be there to share in that special day.
I am thankful for the friends who spent hours to make the decorations and the food and the invitations and everything about my wedding day just right.
Nothing is ever perfect, but we are blessed to have loved ones who would go to such effort to make our day so close.

Traveling By Train Is OK This Time ... On The Flexliner

The balloon-bending man said it best.
"These people are standing in line for over an hour to take a ride to get exactly where they already are."
Actually, it seemed like much more than an hour.
Being a reporter takes me to some pretty interesting places. I've been in ankle-deep mud, in the rain, standing at the stump of what had been the largest tree in Davie County, until lightning struck it.
I've been beside a swimming pool-sized cesspool at a waste treatment plant, when the wind was definitely blowing the wrong way.
I've been in people's homes that looked like something out of a magazine, and in others that weren't fit for animals to live in.
I've been to some really spirited discussions on watersheds, zoning ordinances, and police chiefs whose personal lives were, well, not so personal and definitely not G-rated.
So when the news editor suggested I might enjoy taking the children to ride the state-of-the-art Flexliner train this past Saturday, I thought, "Why not? Can't be any worse than a cesspool."
I was a little bit right.
Okay, to be fair, the train is fabulous. It evokes thoughts of what train travel used to be, just as air travel was 20 years ago. People traveling on trains, so my dad has told me, dressed in their finest and expected first class service and a five-star meal. When I was young and my dad went on trips by air, he dressed well, as did everyone traveling then.
But things have changed. Soon, I expect, the major airlines will have to put some of those "No shirt, no shoes, no service" signs in the planes, and the aura of train travel is about as romantic as a Saturday night with Edith and Archie Bunker.
I should know, because I've been on that other train, the one that doubles as a Greyhound on tracks.
When Todd and I were planning our honeymoon, I let him know that I was terrified to fly, and that if we were to go anywhere, it would have to be by train. That pretty much cancelled out Hawaii and Bermuda, so we ended up on the Amtrak, headed for Florida.
Thirteen hours, no sleep, and a carton of sour milk and stale Danish later, we were there.
On the return trip, we forked out $300 more to get a sleeping compartment. It was worth every penny. The conductor turned down our bed, left us a basket with crackers, cheese, fruit and cider, and we had our own bathroom, complete with one of those paper things across the toilet to let us know that our behinds were the first to grace the seat since a thorough scrubbing.
Coach class was another story.
You'd think I had learned my lesson, but just five years later, I planned a family reunion in Pennsylvania, and thought it would be fun to take Sam, then 18 months old, on his first train trip.
What was I thinking?
We left Salisbury around 8 a.m., screamed our way along rusty tracks and on the outskirts of towns, peering through our panoramic windows into the windows of the worst slums I have ever seen. The faces of the people hanging out of their torn screen doors said it all.
The bathrooms, shared by goodness knows how many people, were absolutely filthy, the worst I've ever seen, and trying to occupy a rambunctious child for 12 hours proved to be a true test of one's real worth.
I probably failed.
So, I consider myself somewhat of a train expert, and I can say with all certainty that this Flexliner is a really nice train. I didn't get to inspect the bathroom, but I suspect that it was as clean as the windows and seat arms.
But if you ask me if it was worth it to stand in line, in the cold, with two impatient children and a trying-to-be-patient husband, on Saturday morning, when I could have been doing laundry or mopping the kitchen, for over an hour in order to ride for five minutes to get back to the exact place where I had been five minutes before...well, I think you already know the answer.
Try the Flexliner for yourself. But don't wait over 10 minutes.

Tony Daniels: "Cooleemee is experiencing a rebirth with a redefined role." Group Working To Make Cooleemee Centennial One To Remember

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - Some 100 years ago, work began at the shoals of the South Yadkin River - work that led to the beginning of this mill village. Now, as then, Cooleemee remains a community - with neighbor helping neighbor - people helping people.

As the town celebrates its centennial this year, members of the ways and means committee said that the community feeling you get in Cooleemee is not only worth preserving - it's worth celebrating.

"Being a unique village and the closeness of a neighborhood, all of that needs to be passed down," said Shelby Nichols.

Tony Daniels called Cooleemee's first 100 years "amazing," from its birth to a thriving textile community. When the mill closed, many thought it was the beginning of the end.

"Now, thanks to the love and hard work of many people, Cooleemee is experiencing a rebirth with a redefined role," Daniels said. He remembers growing up in the 50s.

"The one common theme that remains when talking to people from earlier generations up through my own is the sense and feeling of family that was the heart and soul of our small town," Daniels said. "Everyone has their stories and memories of what Cooleemee was to them and what it was like being a part of such a large, extended family."

Daniels said that celebrations such as the Heritage Day, and the centennial effort, are excellent ways to pass on that heritage to a new generation.

"I feel that we have an important obligation to future generations, to become caretakers of these memories and history, and reconfirm within ourselves as well as instill in our children a sense of pride in our shared Cooleemee heritage," he said.

Patty Lookabill said she is proud to tell people she grew up in Cooleemee. "I still have family there which keeps me close to my hometown," she said. "I want to do my part to help Cooleemee residents and Davie County residents enjoy a big centennial celebration so we can keep the 'Mill Village' atmosphere alive for now and future generations," she said.

Wayne Eaton said that Cooleemee is representative of what happened across the South as the textile industry grew. Eaton never worked in the mill ("I told Mr. Pegram I didn't want to work anywhere with a fence around it and it locked"), but his father did. He remembers the mill renting everyone their homes, hiring painters to go through town applying new coats to each house.

And he remembers the family attitude among everyone. "Cooleemee was a good place," Eaton said. "There was a flu epidemic, and the ones who weren't sick took care of the ones who were."

These people grew up in Cooleemee, and now live in Mocksville or Advance or other places. But their hearts remain in their hometown.

The chair of the centennial celebration steering committee - Bonnie Byerly - didn't grow up in Cooleemee. She has never lived there... though she hopes to someday.

Her husband is the grandson of Doc Byerly, who delivered thousands of babies and provided medical care to the folks of Cooleemee and surrounding areas for years in the early part of this century.

"We came to town first festival... a week early... and got hooked. Don's dad used to talk about growing up in Cooleemee."

She loves the town, the people, and the effort to preserve the past for future generations.

The Centennial Celebration ways and means committee members discuss plans. They are, from left, Bonnie Byerly, Lynn Rumley, Ken Sales, Shelby Nichols, Tony Daniels, Patty Lookabill and Wayne Eaton.

generations. "Our children in school have no concept of what the textile industry was economically. It rebuilt the South," Byerly said. "If we don't keep a record of it, not only as a business, but as a way of life, it will be gone. I think it's every bit as important as Old Salem."

Ken Sales agrees. He lived in Cooleemee from 1934 to 1964 and is working on the committee to make the centennial celebration one to remember.

"Today, we hear so much about family values and the effect it has on our everyday life," Sales said. "If you had the opportunity of growing up in Cooleemee, this was magnified numerous times; because Cooleemee was like one big happy family."

"It's difficult to imagine one growing up and not having this kind of privilege. There are many places today where people don't even know their next door neighbor and certainly do not have a family type relationship."

"This is why we must strive to preserve this rich and valuable heritage," he said.

The committee has sent letters seeking donations to make the celebration a success. Already planned are a fireworks display, costumed re-enactors of people of Cooleemee's early years, carnival rides, a community quilt, a history book, a mural to be painted onto the side of the mill, beautification projects across town, and many more.

The magnitude of the celebration will depend partly on the donations. Anyone wishing to help can contact the centennial celebration committee at 284-6040, or write to General Delivery, Old 14 Church St., Cooleemee, NC 27014.

Davie Chosen As First County To Participate In Food Stamp Program

Davie County has been chosen as the first county in the state to participate in the Food Stamp Electronic Benefits Transfer (EBT) program. This program is part of the Welfare Reform package that was ratified by the 1997 General Assembly.

With Electronics Benefits Transfer, the old way of disbursing food stamps will end. Paperwork and food stamps will give way to debit cards. Instead of the government printing and mailing paper food stamps to recipients each month, each recipient receives a special electronic debit card. Every time the food stamp recipient makes a purchase, an electronic entry is made into that person's monthly account.

"Not only is this program more efficient than the old way, it will give dignity to welfare recipients by eliminating food stamps," said Rep. Julia Howard (R-Davie), co-author of this Welfare Reform legislation. "We hope the stigma attached with food stamps will be eliminated along with the actual paper."

EBT will go on line in Mocksville on March 3, and statewide rollout will begin in September. The entire state will be converted from paper coupons to EBT by June 1999. Details are forthcoming.

"This is indeed a historic day, not only for Davie County, but for the entire state. We have taken another step in our efforts to eliminate the welfare system as we know it," said House Speaker Harold J. Brubaker.

"Rep. Howard is to be commended for her relentless efforts to modernize and reform North Carolina's welfare system. EBT will improve efficiency and will help identify fraud and abuse," added Brubaker. The cost of administering North Carolina's food stamp program will be reduced by about one million dollars per month.

"I am pleased this program has finally reached the implementation stage, and I am even more pleased that Davie County will lead the way," Howard said.

"EBT is the technological structure that changes the delivery system for food stamp benefits from a paper-based system to an electronic system.

"Each qualified food stamp household will receive a plastic magnetic stripe card, much like a bank debit card, to use to make food purchases at U.S. Department of Agriculture, Food and Nutrition Services (FNS) authorized food stores. If the food stamp household has an authorized representative, the representative will get a separate card to buy food on behalf of the household.

"Like bank debit card users, food stamp recipients will have a private identification number, called a Personal Identification Number (PIN), which they will use when swiping the card in a Point-of-Sale (POS) device at food stores to pay for food. This personal identification number assures the recipient's personal security for accessing their benefits.

"EBT does not change: eligibility determinations, benefit levels or, application processing standards. It is merely a different method for receiving access to food stamp benefits."

"Recipients will not get food stamps in their mail boxes any longer. Therefore, no one can steal them. Since recipients won't have paper coupons in hand, they can't sell them.

"The food stamp benefits are always in an account that is owned by the state and maintained at Citibank, the EBT contractor, on behalf of recipients.

"EBT will eliminate trafficking of food stamps, and improve methods of identifying fraud and abuse and provide electronic data for use to prosecute abusers, both recipients and retailers.

"All food stamp recipients will receive face-to-face training, given either under the direction of the County Department of Social Services or directly by the members of the Citibank EBT Team. All the recipients will be allowed to select their own PIN at local county offices.

"All qualified food stamp households can call a 1-888-toll free number 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, to check their balance or to report a lost or stolen card.

Firefighters from three departments helped battle the blaze at house on Village Road Monday morning. Wade Wilson, far right, woke up relatives sleeping in the house before the flames and smoke spread. - Photos by Robin Fergusson

Neighbor Alerts Residents To Fire

Wade Wilson was up early Monday morning, and went from his mobile home to help a relative that lived across Village Road.

On his way back home, he spotted a fire in the corner of a house where his grandson lives.

He went to the back door. It was locked. He went to the front door. It was locked.

Wilson banged on the doors until the residents inside woke up, and told them to get out because the house was on fire. By this time, it was starting to spread.

The fire destroyed one end of the house. Wilson said it appears to have started near a wood stove.

Firefighters Jerry Webb, Suzanne Miller and Jimmy Smoot check for flames at corner of house.

Rural Housing Loans Available In Davie County

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Rural Development provides loan guarantees to commercial lenders to enable eligible applicants to purchase homes costing less than $98,800 in Davie County.

The Guaranteed Rural Housing loan is made available to help moderate income families and individuals obtain home mortgages.

USDA loan guarantees also provide benefits to other participants in the home mortgage arena—lenders, realtors, and home builders.

Loans may be made up to 100 percent of the market value of the dwelling and may be made to purchase new and existing homes. In many cases, certain loan closing costs may be included in the loan amount.

USDA housing guarantees are made on 30 year fixed rate mortgages only.

Guaranteed rural housing loans may be made available to applicants with moderate incomes that do not exceed 100 percent of the Davie County HUD median income. For a family of four the income would have to be less than $30,050.

In addition to the income criteria, an applicant must meet the following:

- Be unable to obtain the loan without the USDA guarantee on terms and conditions that can reasonably be met.
- Have sufficient income to meet all obligations. PITI (principal, interest, taxes and insurance) must not exceed 29% of income.

- Have acceptable credit history.
- Be a U.S. Citizen or be legally admitted to the United States for permanent residency.
- Become the owner and occupant of the dwelling.

Under an effort called Operation Assist, the local USDA, Rural Development staff will not only refer prospective applicants but also will assist in the application process with lenders. Interested persons may call the local staff at 910-767-8160. Interviews or other assistance will be provided based on each individual need.

Residents Asked To Help With Scrapbook

COOLEEMEE-A photo documentary scrapbook for Cooleemee is being prepared as part of Cooleemee's centennial celebrations. All current Cooleemee families are being asked to participate.

"We are asking that every Cooleemee household submit a snapshot of themselves and also take a picture of the front of their home," says Bonnie Byerly, chair of the Centennial Celebrations Steering Committee. Each home will have its own page.

"We want people a hundred years from now to see our faces, see what our houses looked like and know a little something about who we are today." Once compiled and displayed at September's Centennial festivities, the book will be given a permanent home at Town Hall or the Zachary House.

Byerly hopes to get 100 percent participation from town residents. A form is being sent out in the Coolemee Times, the town newsletter. Photos and the form should be returned to either Town Hall or the Zachary House during working hours. She asks that families only turn in only those photos they are willing to part-they will not be returned. The deadline for submitting is April 1.

"This is one way that each local family can participate in Cooleemee's 100th birthday and leaving our mark for the future."

Conley Seeks Seat As District Court Judge

Former District Court Judge Jessie Conley has filed with the State Board of Elections for election as a District Court Judge for the 22nd Judicial District, which includes Davie, Davidson, Irredell, and Alexander counties.

Conley filed for the same seat she was first elected to in 1990.

Conley is a 1981 graduate with honors from Duke University, obtaining a degree in public policy and English. She earned her law degree from Wake Forest University School of Law in 1984. After graduation from law school, she practiced law in Mooresville with the Neel and Randall law firm for two years before joining the District Attorney's Office in 1986.

Conley served from 1990 to 1994 as a District Court Judge for the 22nd Judicial District. She was certified as a juvenile court judge after completing a special course of training. She was a member of the North Carolina District Court Judges Association. She has worked from 1994 as a partner in the law firm of Pressly, Thomas and Conley.

"I am seeking election because I have both Republican and Democratic support in our district. I have been honored and privileged to be able to serve the people in our district as an assistant district attorney, judge and family law practitioner. I believe my experience in these areas and the work I do statewide will allow me the opportunity to continue to serve the citizens of this district," she said.

AIDS Memorial Quilt To Be Displayed At Davie High

Healthy Carolinians of Davie County will be sponsoring the NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt at Davie High School.

Davie High School will display sections of the AIDS Quilt to promote AIDS Awareness. The display will include 16 panels made in memory of people who have died of AIDS. Davie High's display, which is being coordinated by a team of students, teachers, media center staff, and Healthy Carolinians' staff, is part of The National High School Quilt Program, sponsored by The NAMES Project Foundation. Davie High is one of almost 200 schools in the nation selected for hosting a display.

The AIDS Memorial quilt contains over 40,000 panels handmade by family and friends in remembrance of someone who has died of AIDS. Each panel is three feet by six feet. The entire quilt is now the size of 15 football fields. The Quilt is displayed throughout the United States and other countries in over 1,500 displays each year.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt display will be open to students, staff, parents and the public from Feb. 17-20. The quilt will be displayed at the Davie High School Media Center, 1200 Salisbury Road, Mocksville, NC 27028. The hours for viewing the quilt will be Tuesday and Wednesday (Feb. 17-18) 8 a.m.-7 p.m. and Thursday & Friday (Feb. 19-20) 8 a.m.-3 p.m.

"Education is the key to prevent further spreading of the HIV virus, the virus that causes AIDS," said Wendi Selbe, Healthy Carolinians of Davie County project coordinator. Statistics show that one out of four people becoming infected with HIV in the United States is under age 20. This quilt is designed for young adults and teens, so that they get the message that they need to avoid getting infected, Selbe said. For more information, contact Selbe at (336) 634-8700.

Loans Available To Farmers

Loans are available at the Davidson-Davie County Farm Service Agency on 1997 crop wheat, barley and oats through March 31, and for 1997 crop corn, sorghum, cotton and soybeans through May 31.

A marketing assistance loan provides immediate cash for farmers and allows them sufficient time to make important decisions, or to hold the grain for feeding later. Although the program does not guarantee participating farmers a profit, it does guarantee a minimum price. Call (800-524-3389) or come by the FSA Office at 301 E. Center St., Lexington, for more information.

Farmers who have suitable storage on their farms or the use of an approved warehouse may be eligible to obtain marketing loans on their 1997 crops.

War Eagles Keep Playoff Hopes Alive

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Davie's varsity boys wanted this game more than most, and it showed. Playing inspired basketball with pent-up emotions, the War Eagles made Senior Night memorable in a 90-74 win over South Stokes.

The War Eagles (8-10 overall) improved to 3-4 in the Central Piedmont Conference, and forced a three-way tie with South Stokes and Mt. Tabor for third place and kept alive their hopes for a playoff berth.

"It's nice to win when you have to win," Coach Jim Young said. "This was a must for us to stay in playoff contention, and our guys handled that pressure really well."

Davie drew closer to third-place Mt. Tabor and drew ongoing cheers from the home crowd, which has reluctantly waited three years for most of seven seniors to respond under the gun. Davie made a smooth recovery from Wednesday's 79-49 shellacking from frontrunner Reynolds.

"It was our last home game and we were pretty pumped for it," said senior center Jason Neese. "We went out with more intensity because it was our last home game. We wanted South Stokes more than anybody because this was our chance to get into the playoff (race). We really needed this one to get our intensity back up. The whole team played good, but the seniors really stepped up. I was proud to be out there."

Twin brother Jamie echoed those sentiments.

"That is the first time in a long time that our whole team played good," he said. "One through 11 played awesome. Every one contributed."

No one contributed more than senior de-luxe Derek Faulkner, who whipped through and around South's step-late defense for 35 career-high points. The 6-2 leaper converted 11 of 20 shots, including five 3-pointers, nailed nine of 11 free throws, dished three assists and controlled six rebounds.

The South defense that Faulkner didn't dissect was sliced up by shooter Mike Whelan and big man Jason Neese, scoring 14 each.

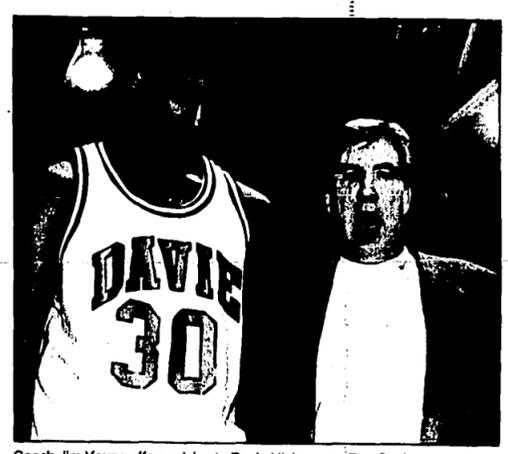

Whelan worked the perimeter for three 3-pointers and Neese patrolled the lane, using 10 rebounds to fuel his production.

South's 10-7 first-quarter lead evaporated when the Big Three (Faulkner, Whelan and Jason Neese) shared the meat in a game-winning 16-4 run that built a 23-14 advantage with 1:20 remaining in the opening quarter.

After the Sauras cut the deficit to 29-26 with 3:14 left in the half, they suffered a fatal blow to the head. Whelan, fighting for an unclaimed ball near Davie's end line, ran over Eddie Pinson. Falling out of bounds, Whelan fired the ball off Pinson's head. Jason Neese held back a raging Pinson, who promptly turned around and clobbered Whelan on a 3-point attempt.

Whelan made the resulting three free throws, Faulkner bombed a 3 from the corner and Jason Neese hit a 12-foot turnaround, an 8-0 outburst that woozy South never recovered from. Trailing 37-26, Coach Kent Mendenhall called time.

Seniors Go Out In Style

The Derek Faulkner-Ray Spain basketball story sometimes bordered a Stephen King story.

The final chapter was a different story.

The seniors created a passionate last dance and celebrated their final home game in proper fashion Friday, sparking the War Eagles to a 90-74 victory over South Stokes.

Faulkner, a 6-2 helicopter with high-wattage skills, concocted a performance for the ages: 35 crushing points.

Spain, a 6-7 tower, emerged as a useful reserve: six points, nine rebounds, four blocks and 40 or more cheers.

Both players approached Senior Night with visions of grandeur dancing in their heads, and they fulfilled their promises.

"Derek told me he was ready to ball, and he didn't let anybody stop him," senior Jason Neese said.

Spain grabbed Faulkner an hour before tip-off and told him it was his lucky day. It was, and more.

"He told me: 'This is my last time and I've got to show the fans something,'" Faulkner said.

The realization surpassed Spain's fantasies, at least in Faulkner's eyes.

"Man, that's unbelievable," Faulkner said. "Ray came in there and gave us everything that we needed. He blocked shots without getting fouls, he rebounded and he scored. Ray just played a tremendous game and that's what we needed. We don't beat them without Ray playing that game."

Davie could have beaten most teams on this night. Versatile Faulkner (five 3-pointers) burned the Sauras inside and outside. He scored from the low post 30 seconds into the game, then sandwiched two 3s around a baseline drive that turned into a three-point play, giving the War Eagles a lead (13-10) they would never relinquish. He scored 13 in the opening eight minutes, a powerful spurt that foreshadowed his ensuing spurts.

"When Derek comes to play, he's as good as anybody in the conference," Coach Jim Young said.

"Derek picked it up tonight."

Davie Wrestlers Upset By Northwest Guilford

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Coach Buddy Lowery was supposed to spend Thursday night leading his Davie wrestlers through the quarterfinals and semis and onto the state's brightest stage, the finals.

Instead, he spent the better part of two hours spinning in disgust or grabbing his head or leaning back on the bench, his eyes rolling toward the ceiling.

No. 7 Northwest Guilford (16-3) ruined the script, upsetting the fourth-ranked War Eagles 28-27 in the quarterfinals and silencing a large home audience.

From the War Eagles' perspective, some unforeseen twists turned the much-awaited event upside down. Davie wrestled slugishly and the Vikings, after seizing command in the opening acts, promptly rested on their stomach, eating precious time and taking advantage of one glaring no-call by the referee: stalling.

The ref saw the match differently. He saw nothing worth blowing the whistle over, irritating Lowery, who was in the ref's face regularly pleading for stalling points.

"Northwest wrestled like they had to be the way the referee was calling it," he said. "If he wasn't going to call stalling, then I'd do it, too. He wouldn't call stalling, didn't call it the whole night. There isn't much I can really say. Everybody sees it different."

"I guess (the booking agent for officials) thought that referee was the best guy, and our people probably thought he had something to be desired."

Coach Ran Bare of Northwest had a different interpretation.

"Staying off our back and not getting pinned was the key," he said. "I'm real proud of our kids. They should get all the credit. They fought pretty hard."

The shocking outcome stung the War Eagles severely, especially since they fantasized all season about a glorious journey to the finals in front of their wrestling fanatics.

"They took it bad," Lowery said. "They thought that they should have been in the finals. I preached it all year that that's where we were going to be, and if you don't think you're going to be there, I don't think you're going to be there. We stayed healthy, we're pretty good, but we just weren't lucky."

- Buddy Lowery

With the exception of Jamey Holt's 4-1 win at 127, the War Eagles were nowhere to be found in the first eight matches. Northwest, prevailing without the use of a six-point pin, poked Davie to death and carved a commanding 25-3 lead with six matches left.

The real burners were losses by Brad Pack (114) and Adam Bailey (121), a powerful duo that had won 51 of 58 previous matches.

"We usually get something from Pack and Bailey," Lowery said. "We had two close matches there and just couldn't get into it."

Davie's problems complicated drastically when Nick Summers suffered a 6-4 loss at 132. Chris Soother survived with a two-point reversal just before the final horn.

Down 25-3, no one rearranged their Saturday night plans because Davie's main guys were loosening up.

Jon Mauney got the wheels rolling with a five-point technical fall, and Wil Lowdermilk's decision closed the gap to 25-11 with four to go.

But bully Ben Anas of Northwest stopped Zeb Carter 9-3, extending the lead to 28-11 and forcing do-or-die pins from Scott Comarizer, Brian Murphy and J.J. Rice.

It never got that far. Comarizer threw his 191-pound man around like a football but failed twice to coax him into a potential pinning position, resulting in a 15-6 major decision that wasn't enough. With an insurmountable lead, Northwest forfeited the final two matches.

The pain worsened because, had Comarizer pulled off a pin, Davie would have gotten an automatic six from Northwest's empty 215 slot and Rice was heavily favored at heavyweight.

South's points in the wins.

"We have incredibly quick guards," Tribble said. "They know each other and feed off each other."

"All of them played their positions and they have studied their positions. They've done what we've asked them to do in practice, learned their positions and made wonderful adjustments to whatever we've asked them to do. And they love to run and gun."

Tribble's gunnagers - particularly Walker and Williams, who led with 14 and nine points, respectively - shot down West in the first quarter of the first game with a blazing 12-0 burst. Center Rynne McDaniel complemented the hot guards with six points.

A smoking first half also cooked China Grove, which found itself dazed from South's 31-7 first-half blitz. Williams' 11 points and Walker's 10 led the way and Jennifer Barney and Candace Ferrell added five each.

Tribble, downplaying the stirring start, is wearing a poker face, largely because new hands are dealt every week.

"I have no idea what the other teams have in the league because you don't know what to expect in the seventh grade," she said. "We hope to do well. The girls know they make mistakes every time they're out on the court, and they work hard in practice to correct those mistakes."

Tribble is dead serious that there are loose ends to tie as the schedule stiffens.

"I'm pleased with our start, but we haven't gotten to the toughest teams in the league yet," she said. "We have a lot"

Who's Hot

Coach Ran Bare of Northwest had a different interpretation.

"Staying off our back and not getting pinned was the key," he said. "I'm real proud of our kids. They should get all the credit. They fought pretty hard."

The shocking outcome stung the War Eagles severely, especially since they fantasized all season about a glorious journey to the finals in front of their wrestling fanatics.

"They took it bad," Lowery said. "They thought that they should have been in the finals. I preached it all year that that's where we were going to be, and if you don't think you're going to be there, I don't think you're going to be there. We stayed healthy, we're pretty good, but we just weren't lucky."

Davie Cheerleaders Win Second Straight State Title

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Davie's competition cheerleading squad picked the perfect time to perform the perfect routine, thus becoming state champions for the second straight year.

In the 16th and final routine of the competition, Davie executed an overwhelming four-minute stunt that easily persuaded the voters.

"I think hands down, once they got off the floor, there was no question who won because they were the best I have ever seen them," said Coach Tania Bowles, who led Davie to its third state title in eight years.

The lights-out performance upstaged Raleigh's Broughton and Sanderson. Mt. Tabor claimed fourth and West Forsyth took fifth.

Broughton, 20 points back, was blown off the floor. "That's a lot," Bowles said of the spread. "So we were basically way, way, way ahead of everybody else."

Davie, surpassing the performance level from last year's fifth-place National finish, was flawless under extreme pressure.

"It was great," Bowles said. "There was not a wobble, bobble, and there wasn't even a doubt that they were going to hit everything in their routine. It was perfect."

Davie began its march to glory four months ago, practicing intensely for three or four days a week, including Saturday morning workouts at 7 a.m.

All those cold mornings made for warm satisfaction in the end.

"It feels like all the work paid off," said Bowles, whose chin dropped as she watched. "Just watching them on stage and then afterward, knowing that it was the best job I had ever seen them do, was worth it. So it wasn't that they won. It was that they did everything right."

"Davie, after waiting several hours in a hallway as the first 15 teams showed their stuff, took the stage blind. "We didn't know what score we were trying to beat," Bowles said. "The girls didn't see anybody. If we were anywhere but last, they could have watched all day long. But being last, they watched their turn."

"... Davis came in unblemished with triumphs in the UCA Regional in November and the Holiday Cheer in December. ... The next step is Nationals in late March in Orlando, Fla. ... Bowles expressed her appreciation for Shannon Allred, the school's cheerleading coach. "She is the backbone of our cheerleading program," Bowles said.

Spain, Faulkner Soar In Last Home Game

The spark came from unlikely source: Spain. He blocked a shot that triggered a Faulkner fast-break layup for a 23-14 lead. That first block meant everything.

"The first block, because I was so hyped, just set the tone for me the rest of the game," Spain said. "I was just like: 'I have got to keep playing and keep the intensity. I can't let go now.'"

An hour before the game, Young wondered if Spain was going to be around to block shots. He mysteriously arrived at 6:40 p.m., 10 minutes late. Spain hurriedly reached for his lonely uniform and Young reached for an explanation.

"I said: 'Ray, why are you late?' Young said. "He said: 'Coach, I was getting ready for the game. I'm sorry.' I asked no questions. He was ready."

Spain provided more assertive bulk in the second quarter, bouncing shorter Sauras around like a pinball and intimidating other harried shooters. He also played with finesse, scoring off a low-post move. Immediately at the other end, he prevented two South shots from taking flight. With 10 seconds left in the first half, he powered over two defenders and pushed Davie's lead to 42-30.

At the outset of the fourth, Spain ventured out to the key to reject a shot. He snatched the ball, led a fast break and finished the flurry with a strong turnaround, winning the fans' roars and extending the lead to 64-49.

Spain overwhelmed South and astonished his teammates, especially Jason Neese, who remembers Spain when he was a lanky kid in the Smith Grove league.

"I've played with Ray since I was probably in the fifth grade," Jason Neese said. "My dad used to coach us and he's improved by leaps and bounds."

Where does this performance rank? "Except for out at Rich Park, that's the best I've ever seen him play for Davie," Jason Neese said. "He did an excellent job. I think he's just playing with confidence because Coach Young will give you some confidence."

Spain momentarily swiped the spotlight on a breakthrough night.

"He's been on the edge all year, doing a good job for us off the bench," Young said. "But he hasn't dominated. Tonight, he dominated. He got some big rebounds."

Spain came to know disappointment. He was banished from his freshman and junior teams because of failing grades. When he was around, though, he might have played eight minutes. He barely broke a sweat in his darkest days, but he absorbed the lesson, mainly because he came to fully appreciate the last stretch run on the basketball trail.

"I kept my head strong and I'm finally putting it together," he said. "I knew it was my senior year, I had messed up in the past, and I had to get my head straight and stop being cocky. I know how good I am. That sounds cocky, but I just know how good I am. I knew I had the potential to play."

Spain was the side dish. Faulkner was the main course. In the second quarter, he made a masterful move through heavy traffic. He caught the ball on the right block, spun under the goal and threw up an over-the-head bank, left-handed.

"I work on that one in practice all the time," he said. "I'm a small person so I've got to figure out some way to get my ball to the rim."

Four backbreaking 3-pointers later and midway through the fourth, Faulkner converted an incredible three-point play. He drove into the guts of South's defense, leaned against two roadblock defenders and somehow scored.

Jason Neese saw it all. "He just went off," he said. "He was out there playing like Jordan. I'm glad he's on my team and not the other."

Faulkner didn't see it all, discovering that the ball plopped into the net when Young leaped off the bench. Young didn't quite resemble Vince Carter in full flight, but he came close.

"I didn't even know that one went in to tell you the truth," Faulkner said. "The only way I knew it went in was because I saw the bench get up."

Faulkner's flashy game didn't get up until Young sat him down early in the year and engaged a this-is-my-way discussion. The air is cleared now.

"Once we got the discipline down, he's been doing a great job," Young said. "He still has a temper every now and then, but he's getting it well under control. He's done everything I've asked him to do. With his ability, when you ask him to do some stuff and he does it, it really shows up."

In the closing minutes, Faulkner punctuated his magnificent showing with a two-handed dunk that invigorated the jam-crazed fans.

He expressed his primal joy outside an animated locker room. "This is the greatest game I have ever been involved in," he said. "I saw that this was going to be our last time playing in this gym so we had to put on a show. I feel like this is the best group to come through here in a long time, so I felt like I had to put on a show for them. Everything was working. Don't ask me why, but it was all working."

Faulkner heard the crowd on the dunk. "That's just the topping on my day," he said. "I have never heard the crowd so loud."

His smile said that he will hear forever.

Wrestlers Crumble In 28-27 Loss To Vikings

"One match from anybody on the whole team would have decided it," Lowery said. "We just couldn't get it."

"They were good and experienced. We wrestled hard. I'm extremely proud on how we did wrestle. I mean, they had one pin (105) the whole night."

Davie covered two of the three necessities that usually carry great teams to the top.

"I've always said you've got to be good, lucky and healthy," said Lowery, whose team lost for just the fourth time in 23 matches. "We stayed healthy, we're pretty good, but we just weren't lucky."

"We've been there year in and year out for a long time, that's a sign of a good program, and we're going to (continue) to be successful."

In Bare's wildest dreams, he never pictured a midway cushion of 25-3. "Oh, I didn't expect that," he said. "I didn't expect to get that big a lead. No way, not against a team as good as Davie. They do an excellent job."

The War Eagles will try to move on. They travel to Mt. Tabor Friday and Saturday for the Midwest Regionals. Friday's first round is scheduled for 5 p.m.

Lowery hasn't eliminated an individual state crown from Davie's mission.

"If we wrestle like we can, we're going to have enough people (advance) to the states on Feb. 20-21 in Charlotte) that we could win the regionals," he said. "They realize that. Hey, we didn't win the dual team but we can come back, win the regionals, send a bunch to the states and have our chances there."

Tough Loss: North Falls 44-43 In Opening Game

Coaches take all their losses hard. But North Davie's 44-43 loss to Northwest Cabarrus in last week's season opener was particularly painful. It was Jimmy Brunelli's debut as the Wildcats' seventh-grade boys coach, and his team led comfortably most of the way.

"The kid hit a big-time shot," Brunelli said. "He threw up a fade away, and as it left his hands the buzzer went off. It was a tough way to lose."

The Wildcats didn't look like they were going to lose much of the way, maintaining a lead between five and 10 points until the fourth.

Raby and North's other big man, Goode, attacked missed shots vigorously, getting 16 and nine rebounds and combining for 19 of North's points. Goode led with 13 points and Raby added six. North also got solid contributions from Matt Moser (seven points), Brent Simpson (five), Nick Luffman (five) and MacBryde (five). Patrick Law had two.

Later in the week, North played competitively with North Rowan until the fourth quarter, when the Mavericks revved their jets with a crushing 18-2 run.

When the Wildcats did manage to penetrate North's full-court pressure, they couldn't buy a basket.

"They pressed us and we threw the ball away," Brunelli said. "We had our shots. The offense was ran great, it was just one of those nights when the shots didn't fall. All of them had wide open shots, 3-pointers here and there, but unfortunately this was one of the nights we didn't make them."

Raby played forcefully in the middle, grabbing 18 rebounds to go with 12 team-high points. MacBryde added seven, Goode six and D.J. Sales five. Goode also had 10 boards.

The reserves, particularly Nick Luffman, made a favorable impression on Brunelli.

"Our backups came in and played really well," he said. "Matt James gave us good, quality minutes and Josh Wallace helped us out at (power forward)."

Luffman came in against Northwest Cabarrus and knocked down two 3-pointers. Against North Rowan, he knocked down a 3-pointer and knocked down a couple more shots here and there. He has played really well. He is the sixth man."

Sports Fanatic Hits Pay Dirt; Billy Hendrix Jr. Contest Winner

One sports fanatic stands out above most everyone, Billy Hendrix Jr.

He stood above everyone in last week's basketball contest as well, surviving a six-entry melee in the State-Duke tie-breaker.

Hendrix, Jimmy Lookabill, Vernon Thompson and wife Mozelle, Brad Corriher and Rodgers Peoples all missed nine games, but Hendrix's 135 total points was easily the winner. The magic number was 114.

Hendrix, a sports addict, adds $25 to his name. Lookabill, the third Lookabill to claim cash in the past three weeks, nipped Thompson 143-149 and takes second, worth $5.

Corriher, Peoples and Mozelle also joined the tough-luck list. Lookabill, although he missed the big bucks, was the only frontrunner to predict Tennessee's upset over South Carolina. He also called Seton Hall's win over Syracuse, along with Peoples.

Davie Boys Upset Mt. Tabor Swimmers To Capture Third; Girls Take Fourth

Brad Clark and Mike Heiny won two events each as Davie's boys swim team huddled Mt. Tabor and ended third in the Central Piedmont Conference meet at Winston-Salem State on Jan. 30.

The War Eagle girls finished fourth. "The guys did real good," said Coach Ben Allred, who found satisfaction because Davie averaged a regular-season loss to Tabor. "I was real proud. We lost to Tabor by seven, then beat them by nine. That's really good considering the number of guys. We have seven and only four of them are accomplished swimmers."

Clark dominated the 200 individual medley in 2:10.19, a good 10 seconds ahead of the runner-up, and edged West's Tim Boyer in the 100 butterfly, 58.66 to 59.17.

Heiny had reached for a towel by the time everyone else completed the 100 back and 500 free. His 56.46 time in the 100 back was 46 seconds ahead of runner-up Christian Cooper of Reynolds, and he was 19 seconds faster (4:50.60 to 5:09.94) than Reynolds' Ryan Cooper in the 500 free.

With those giants returning next year, Allred will search for more help. "I hope we get our numbers up and start competing (seriously)," he said. "If we get our numbers up, we can give improving Bridgewater. "I think Brad and Mike will definitely go to the states," he said. "They are competing on a national level anyway, and I think Adriene will surprise some people. She has been working real hard to make that step."

Allred, a first-year coach, is looking to take Davie to the next level next year.

"It was a rebuilding year because I was new and we didn't have some resources that we need," he said. "I'm asking the school for extra stuff next year that I think we need, and hopefully we can start building some consistency."

The girls: Reynolds 101, Tabor 73, West 71, Davie 23, South Rowan 16 and South Stokes 8.

The final scores for the boys: West Forsyth 96, Reynolds 85, Davie 55, Tabor 46, South Rowan 20 and South Stokes 4.

Boys and girls ages 7-15 will sign up for baseball and softball, and ages 5-6 will play T-ball.

Davie's Strength From Foul Line Holds Off South Stokes

 "Josh Inman's four quick points with half-time nearing brought the Sauras within 39-30, where Davie put up a stiff arm. Over the final 18 minutes, they never got closer than nine."
 South remained in contention throughout the first half mainly because Inman fired in 15 points. He closed the game with 13 more, but eight came in the final two meaningless minutes. Young made adjustments that squeezed South's gunner.
 "He can shoot very well from the outside, they were setting some screens for him and we were a step behind," he said. "In the second half, when we switched, we stepped out and kept him from getting the ball."

 Davie shot a modest 41 percent (27-66) for the game, but kept the heat on with deadly accuracy from the foul line, hitting 28 of 36 (78 percent).
 "They came out more aggressive and shot the ball real well," said Mendenhall, whose club beat Davie 84-79 in the first meeting on Jan. 21. "We played better defense than we did at our place, but they shot the ball real well. We changed defenses in hopes of correcting some things, but they just shot awesome."
 Faulkner, who accelerated the rout with eight points in the first four minutes of the third, was nothing short of awesome.

"He seemed to come to play tonight," Mendenhall said. "(Senior Night) might have been the key. It wound him up and he played his tail off... Probably some of that (senior spirit) attributed to the outcome. Those kids were pumped up."
 • Sophomore point guard Duane Phillips was the chief distributor with 10 assists to accompany seven points. Jamie Neese added nine points and 6-7 senior Ray Spain was huge off the bench, getting six points, nine rebounds and four blocks. Senior Matt James hit five of six free throws for five points. Charles Miller (two assists, two rebounds) also played his final home game.

Davie senior Derek Faulkner fires away at the basket.

West Forsyth, Leading CPC In Wachovia Trophy Race

West Forsyth leads the way in the Central Piedmont Conference with 54 points in the Wachovia Trophy competition following the fall sports season.
 Runner-up Reynolds is right off West's heels with 53 points, followed by Mt. Tabor with 48, Davie County with 46, South Rowan with 36 and South Stokes with 33.
 The Wachovia Trophy program, sponsored annually by Wachovia Bank and sanctioned by the North Carolina High School Athletic Association, recognizes high school sports programs that achieve the best overall performance within their respective athletic conferences.

JV Girls Triumph Over Reynolds, South Stokes

Davie's JV girls basketball team has adopted Princeton's precise and deliberate playing style, leading to Princeton-type results last week: two wins.
 The War Eagles rode the consistent scoring of Heather Schlepner and Shelby Michael and tenacious perimeter defense to a 49-39 win over Reynolds and a 46-38 triumph over South Stokes.
 "I feel that we are getting more of a Princeton flavor to our team," Coach Mark Sinopoli said. "We've got really smart girls with good defense, and our new-look offense involves pick-and-roll as well as some backdoor cut. Also, everyone knows what the others are going to do. Our offense was very under control, resetting if we didn't get a good look."

 The results had a contrasting look to the recent past, as Davie snapped out of a three-game losing streak and improved to 13-4 overall and 4-3 in the Central Piedmont Conference.
 Schlepner did the bulk of the damage with 16 points and Michael, fresh from 33- and 24-point performances in the previous two games, added 11.
 But Sinopoli found more pleasure in watching his sticky defenders and aggressive rebounders.
 "Amber Hamm, Shelby, Elise Whitaker, Sarah Jackson, Stacy Queen, Mary Beth Dinkins and Heather Lanning are doing real well with perimeter defense," he said. "Heather Schlepner, Katie Bernhardt, Stephanie Hepler, Jerri Ann Angell and Emily Morton did a great job and rebounded much better."

 The War Eagles broke South's back with a 14-3 third-quarter run, extending their lead to 36-23.
 "We played really well," Sinopoli said. "The team is gelling together."
 Nursing a precarious 22-20 lead, Sinopoli challenged his troops at half-time, forcefully asking who wanted to stop South's foremost scorer.
 Seven hands went up. The coach chose Whitaker, Queen and Lanning over the others, and they applied the needed pressure.

Hamm broke loose and matched her season high with nine points. Whitaker and Bernhardt added four each and Lanning had two.
 In the win over Reynolds, Michael pierced the Demons with 24 points and Schlepner added 17. Davie got four from Hepler and two each from Queen and Whitaker.
 • David Gilbreath, sitting in for Sinopoli, who was sitting in for varsity coach Carol Cozart, assumed the coaching duties against Reynolds. Schlepner and Michael are scoring 12.9 and 11.6 points a game. The JV boys lost both games last week, falling to 8-9 and 0-7.

Varsity Girls' Fourth Quarter Dry Spell Helps South Stokes Rally For Win

By Brian Pitts
 Davie County Enterprise Record
 The South Stokes varsity girls basketball team turned to a magic act once again against Davie to escape from near-certain defeat and shock the War Eagles 38-34 Friday, spoiling Senior Night for eight Davie seniors.
 Davie, which blew a late six-point lead and lost 37-35 to South on Jan. 21, took a eerily similar nose dive in the final six minutes of this game, as the Sauras came from nowhere to score the game's final 10 points and hand the War Eagles (4-14 overall) their sixth Central Piedmont Conference loss in seven games.
 "South coach Bob Sullivan likes the matchup, and obviously so.

"It was the same kind of game," he said after South (8-11, 3-4) revived its floundering playoff hopes. "It just seems like our teams match up well speed-wise, player-wise and personal-wise. I made it a real, real good game. I'm real proud of my kids."
 Leslie Holcomb's 3-pointer, which pushed Davie's lead to 34-28, with 5:56 remaining in the final quarter turned out to be Davie's last sign of life.
 The lead dwindled to two with 2:38 left, prompting David Gilbreath - a volunteer assistant who sat in for Coach Carol Cozart, who was away because of a death in the family - to insert five seniors and put the outcome on their shoulders.
 But this night belonged to the Sauras, who kept coming. Sheretta

Mitchell's 15-foot jumper put South ahead for good at 35-34 with a minute to go.
 The War Eagles' troubles mounted when senior Jodie Stone missed a potential go-ahead 3-pointer with 41 seconds left, and they were pretty well done when senior Tiffany Peoples missed everything on a 3-pointer with 24 seconds left. Then South sealed the game with two free throws, making it a two-possession game with 14 seconds left.
 The War Eagles' downfall was simple: they shot horribly in the fourth, fueling South's decisive 12-3 run.
 "We just went cold and had a lot of problems," Gilbreath said. "We had a couple open shots and normally those go down. They just weren't going down.

They were going down earlier.
 "I thought the effort was good. They played hard. I mean, all I could ask from them was to play hard."
 Sullivan felt the tide turn when Davie's offense applied the breaks with the 34-28 lead. The War Eagles played 25-feet from the basket, forcing South to come out of a zone and match up man-to-man.

 "We had to go man because they pulled the ball out," Sullivan said. "We did a good job in man, something that we haven't done real well with in the past. We stopped them. A lot of times when we go man, we give people layups."
 South's sudden charge overwhelmed the War Eagles, who played increasingly tentatively in the final six minutes.
 "It took the spirit out of them when they started coming back," Gilbreath said. "You could see the color leave their faces when it happened."
 Sullivan, tight from the tip-off, expected nothing less than a down-to-the-wire clash.
 "Davie is a good team," he said. "They beat West Forsyth and we were really worried about this game, even though we beat them at our place. We knew it was going to be a war down here, and it was."
 A win by Davie would have intensified a three-team fight with South and West Forsyth for the fourth and final playoff berth. No more. Davie, baring a miracle finish in three final regular-season games, must now win the CPC Tournament to advance to the postseason.

 "Anything's possible," said Gilbreath, a minister at Eaton's Baptist Church. "We have enough talent to win and sneak up on some people."
 • Davie's scoring: Peoples eight, Kathryn Jackson six, Holcomb five, Melinda Richie four, Stone three, Tina Harkness two, Julie McDaniel two, Ashley Andrade two and Kim Anderson two. ... Davie rallied with a 10-4 run that provided a 23-18 lead with 6:59 left in the third. After South fought back to take a 24-23 lead, Davie countered with an 8-2 spurt that included two Jackson 3-pointers that helped Davie to a 31-26 lead with a minute left in the third. ... Earlier in the week, Reynolds downed Davie 46-34.

War Eagle Cheerleaders Cheered ... By Mount Tabor

Recently, cheerleaders cheer for everybody, including opponents. When the announcement came that Davie's competition cheerleaders won the state championship, Mt. Tabor's legion of followers roared. "When they called the awards out, you couldn't tell who won the A division because Mt. Tabor was jumping up and down," Coach Tom Boyer said. "They cheered us on the whole day. That was really nice."
 The Ray Spain of Davie played bigger than ever in Friday's win over South Stokes. He applied inside power that resulted in six points, nine rebounds and four blocks. "It feels good," he said. "The coach is happy. I'm happy and my dad is happy."
 So was the crowd, especially when Spain blocked a shot and led a 6-7 giant run. "That's what I want," he said. "As long as the crowd's behind me, it's going to keep building."
 Spain said his game started building in Pennsylvania, when Coach Jim Young noticed him. "He told me to keep my head in there and I'll come out," he said. "My head's in there now and I feel like I'm coming out. I feel like it's my time. As long as I keep that in my head, I feel I can go to the next level."
 Young feels it, too. "Ray is a sleeper," he said. "If he decides to go to school for basketball, in a year or two with a little more strength and a few more fundamentals, he'll come out smoking. He has some talent. He just needs to work on a few fundamentals."
 Sophomore point guard Duane Phillips, who had 10 assists Friday, became Davie's flamboyant leader. During a stoppage of play while Young and a referee expressed their differences over a technical Phillips danced at half-court. His game's also in a groove.

 "He is just getting better and better and getting more confidence and more confidence," Young said. "There's been a lot of pressure on him as a sophomore, but he is stepping up."
 Young figures that when the War Eagles put four effective quarters together, they're a contender. The flip side is ugly.
 "If we play four quarters every night for the rest of the season, we'll have a shot at winning every game," he said. "When we don't, we'll get buried. That's how good these teams are."
 And he welcomes the challenge.
 "Every team has great coaches, run good stuff and have their kids playing hard." It's exciting to play in a conference like this.
 Down the road, Davie's recent stunner over then-No. 1 Mt. Tabor could become the straw that stirred the program's revival.
 "I'll tell you what, that one really turned the corner for our program," Young said. "You hate to say one win does it, but it was like a championship game to us."
 And Young acted like it, running around the gym like Jimmy Valvano after N.C. State's improbable upset over Houston 15 years ago.
 "They went crazy, they didn't come down for two days, and I was so pleased for those seniors to experience that," Young said. "I was probably more excited than them. Somebody mentioned that I hugged every woman, man and child and I think I hugged a couple of Tabor people. And they didn't appreciate that."

Coach Tim Kenney: "It was absolute bedlam on the court."

South's 7th Grade Basketball Team Intimidated By West

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Tim Kenney, South Davie's seventh-grade boys basketball coach, left little to the imagination describing the Tigers' season-opening debacle against towering West Rowan.

"Get in a theater of about 500 people watching a movie and yell 'fire,'" he said after South's 59-41 loss. "That's what you had. It was absolute bedlam on the court. The kids were intimidated by West's size, and their heads just went out of the game."

"It turned into a free-for-all. It was just one-on-up and down. It was inexperience, panic, fear."

It was a tight game for a half. But the Tigers' fight was sapped by a buzzer-beating 3-pointer by West at the end of the first half, turning a two-possession game into a seven-point game.

"Everybody went in with their heads down after the 3 at the buzzer," Kenney said. "That was the beginning of the end for us."

West padded its lead to 12 by the start of the fourth.

Brian Hunter led a slew of scorers with eight points. South got seven from Micah Garner, six from Zach Miller and Michael Clement, four from Kurt McNabb, two from Zach Hanrahan, Ben Allred, Luke Phelps and Wesley Thompson and one from Randy Walker.

The Tigers were a different team in Thursday's 53-46 loss to China Grove, an aboul-face that raised Kenney's spirits considerably.

"It was right and day," he said. "We almost looked like a basketball team out there. The guys executed our break and our offense."

Behind Garner (14 points) and Hunter (12), the Tigers pulled within two with two minutes to go, but disastrous free-throw shooting (13 of 37) halted them time and again. With a chance to go ahead, one player missed three straight after being fouled on a 3-point attempt at the two-minute mark. That was the game.

"That kills you every time," Kenney said. "We lost it at the line. Then we had to foul and they built their lead up a little bit."

With South's upbeat attitudes, Kenney promises success before anything's settled. "We have some good players, some good athletes, and above all else we have some fantastic attitudes," he said. "This group of kids, with their attitudes, is probably the best I've ever coached. They work hard and I'll tell you something. As they get confidence in the offense and defense, and get familiar with what's going on out there, we're going to be tough. We are going to cause people problems along the way."

McKenzie Willoughby added six points, Phelps and Clement had four each and Miller had three. Hanrahan scored two and Allred one.

"The day after the sloppy opener, Kenney left the basketballs in the closet. I told them they had a ball in their hands yesterday and didn't do what they were supposed to do, so we practiced without a ball," he said. Assistant Steve Hamlin is Kenney's right-hand man. "Steve has been invaluable to me," he said. "He's really been a big help."

North Davie Seventh Grade Girls Squeeze Past Northwest Cabarrus

Coach Jamie Lyerly of North Davie's seventh-grade girls basketball team found out the hard way that seemingly safe leads sometimes aren't safe.

She could, however, breathe easier after North's 19-16 season-opening win over Northwest Cabarrus. North lost to North Rowan 22-17 later in the week. Leading by 12 after three quarters, the coach summoned her bench to the floor.

Consequently, the Warriors arose from the dead and nearly stole the game, outscoring North 9-0 in the fourth.

Andrea Whitley and Sheena Smith scored two each.

The win-loss start wasn't fulfilling to Lyerly.

Softball Registration Under Way

The Mocksville-Davie Parks and Recreation Department is accepting registration forms for girls' slow-pitch softball.

The age groups: peewee (7-9), midget (cannot be 13 before Aug. 1, 1998) and Junior (cannot be 16 before Aug. 1, 1998).

Registration fee is $25. There's a $5 discount for each additional player in the same family. Registration deadline is Feb. 21. A $10 late fee will be applied after Feb. 21. Any registrations received after Feb. 28 will be put on a waiting list.

The Rec. Dept. is combining with the Davie American Little League to make a county-wide program in hopes of making an overall better program. Fast pitch will be registered through the Davie American Little League while slow pitch will register through the Rec. Dept. Also, the peewee-minor divisions (ages 7-9) will not be combining.

Spring Soccer Signups Starting

The Mocksville-Davie Parks and Recreation Department is accepting registration for U10, U12 and U14 co-ed traveling soccer teams.

Birthdates must fall between these dates: U10 - 8-1-87 through 7-31-89; U12 - 8-1-85 through 7-31-87; and U14 - 8-1-83 through 7-31-85.

This soccer program is through the Iredell County Recreation Department. Half the games will be played in various locations in Iredell Co. and half will be played at Pinebrook Elementary.

"Sign-ups are based on a first-come, first-serve basis, with a maximum of 18 players per team," said Joe Boyette, athletics director. "If there's enough players to have two teams per age group, we will divide the teams equal."

Davie People

From Trash To Treasure Local Artist Turns 'Trash' Into Works Of Art

By Mike Barnhardt
 Davie County Enterprise Record

CANA - One person's trash is another's treasure. Everyone has heard that saying. One person's trash is another person's art medium.

Christine Latham takes that twist on the old saying to heart. Using grass clippings, soybeans, discarded furniture, decaying tree stumps, old tin roofs and other items most people would overlook, she transforms the ordinary into something extraordinary.

Latham's art isn't the normal. No paintings of a snow scene at a country church. No quilts hanging across a porch.

A self-portrait includes a doll, wrapped with bailing twine and encircled with barbed wire. It spins. Another barbed wire piece, still unfinished, includes a woman's formal shoe with a rose in it, sitting on a broken mirror, also encircled with barbed wire.

There's a wooden box she found. She put it in the ground and set it on fire, creating a charred look. Bones and vines are in the box, which sits atop an old, sinewy stump she found in the woods behind her house on Angell Road. The idea came when a friend was contemplating suicide.

Some people see that piece as an altar of sorts. Latham isn't sure. Art is in the eyes of the beholder, and it's ever changing.

"Some pieces, you really don't think about what it's going to be," she said.

Latham has a number of drawings of animals. They take on a character of their own, as if they were alive, she said. "They ask for nothing but to be admired from a distance, gazing at their beauty and freedom."

Latham has made sculptures and old barns re-constructed in miniature.

She has an ostrich egg sitting inside an old plow blade, waiting for the inspiration that will transform it from the ordinary to the extraordinary.

And there are the windows. While many of her drawings and paintings have the effect of a window, Latham stays busy making what her own creations.

Tiny pieces of paper are fixed to the glass to create the design. It's placed in a box with a light, with a handmade (from discarded or items found in nature, of course) frame.

Most of her art reflects a natural theme, maybe from her days growing up in Farmington.

Latham said she became artistically inclined "in the womb," and remembers drawing as long ago as she can remember. She is the daughter of Joe Ed and Carolyn Johnson of Farmington.

"If the sun was out, I was out playing somewhere," in the woods with brother Joe and learning about nature with grandfather, Thomas Frank, she said.

"I would get clay out of the creek bank and make ash trays and little animals. I just figured it out." She would mold the sculptures and place them in the sun. "The next day they would be like cement."

Like most girls in the area, she did crafts in Girl Scouts and 4-H. When she took an art class in the seventh grade at North Davie Junior High, teacher Janie Sell noticed.

"She would write notes on my work to my parents saying I had talent. She was my first mentor," Latham said.

She went on to obtain a degree in studio art and graphic design from Salem College, where Jeffrey Bates, a professor, talked her into the major. Marvin Coates, another professor, encouraged the sculpture aspects of her art.

"He said I wasn't a graphic artist. I was a sculptor and just didn't know it," she said.

Latham started with illustrations, and her first painting had that window theme. "Out Of A Barn Window."

"I take trash pile stuff and use it, like old wood, old window frames," she said.

Latham makes her own paper for notebook covers and other pieces, using moss, soybeans, grass clippings, potato peelings, newsprint,

Please See Natural - Page C8 Using a doll, bailing twine and a barbed wire, Latham created "If Only My Wings Could Set Me Free".

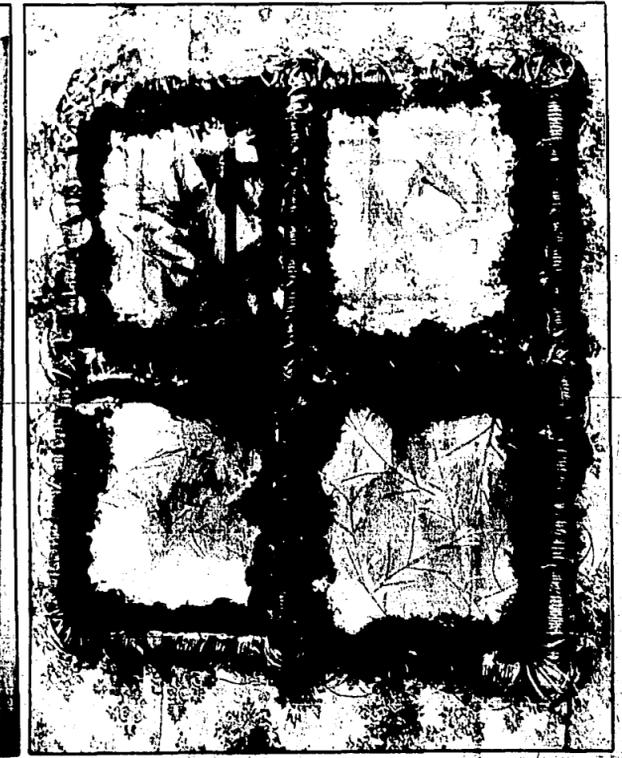

This painting on a window is called "The Garden Window".

Christine Latham sits in her office surrounded by plants and books, some of which she made by hand.

One of Latham's most recent pieces is called simply "Raccoons".

From an old plant stand, some twine, fence wire, moss and tissue, Latham made this piece, which she calls "The Leaf Window".

The Language of the Heart

African-Americans Blaze Paths

By Alice Gaither
Black History Awareness Month is February.

Many African-Americans helped blaze the paths and broke down barriers to achieve success to become an integral part of the history of America. Martin R. Delaney-1812-1885

Delaney was born in Charlestown, W.Va., a son of a slave and a free black woman. He and his sisters and brothers learned to read from a Yankee peddler. This caused concern among white neighbors, and the family moved to Pennsylvania.

At age 19, Delaney studied medicine in 1850, he was accepted to Harvard School of Medicine. Because of a protest by white students, he left after one term and returned to Pittsburgh. As a practicing physician, he helped the city through a deadly cholera epidemic in 1854. Delaney was an editor tracing black history from Biblical times.

Delaney was the first African American field major in the U.S. Army and was promoted on the battlefield for bravery. Despite all of his accomplishments, he felt that blacks should return to Africa and create their own state and avoid racism.

Dorie Miller saved the life of his ship's captain and shot down four enemy planes at Pearl Harbor. He received the Navy cross for heroism from Admiral Chester Nimitz on May 27, 1942. He was later killed in combat.

Benjamin Oliver Davis Jr. was a U.S. Air Force officer. He became the highest ranking African-American officer when he was made a major general in 1959. He became a lieutenant general in 1965. His father, Benjamin O. Davis, rose from private to brigadier general in the U.S. Army.

Unlike many poorer quality polypropylene or olefin fiber berber carpets, the Casual Comfort Collection boasts superior durability and cleanability promised by Stainmaster fiber technology. Available in 10 different styles and all the most popular colors, these carpets offer the finest in construction and value found in the market today.

Whitney Flooring offers full service installation and valuable sales advice on these durable new carpets. To celebrate the arrival of these exciting new products, Whitney's is offering an incredible 25% off on all sales of Casual Comfort Carpets through the month of November.

Owner Jeff Whitney comments, "Our customers are excited over berber styling in carpets, but our feedback on the soil resistance from customers is negative toward polypropylene berbers with regard to soiling. That's why we recommend wool-blends or nylon fiber berbers to our customers."

Jeff continues, "The Casual Comfort Collection represents the nicest berber carpet introductions I've seen in the last 20 years. Attention to styling and construction are apparent immediately when viewing the carpets. They are installer friendly and should make for some very satisfying installations for our customers. We invite all our friends and former customers to drop by and see this unique product offering."

Bette's Specialty Gifts — Ready for Valentine's

Bette's Specialty Gifts at 5919-B James Street, Clemmons, is ready for Valentine's Day lovers.

Betty Cusson has a wealth of gift ideas in the store that bears her name behind the Clemmons Cligo off U.S. 158.

Valentine's Day is one of those special occasions when husbands and wives, lovers and friends demonstrate their feelings for each other. Bette's Specialty Gifts can fill that desire to buy something different, something special, something ... delightful. At Bette's Specialty Gifts, you will find a spun glass, porcelain, wire baskets, greeting cards, windmills, carousels, bird houses and brass musical sculptures.

"A little bit of everything," is how Bette's husband, Rick, describes the store.

The couple lives on Peace Haven Road.

"She has always wanted to own her own business," he said. "When she first got into it, she was doing home sales and catalog sales. Instead of doing that, she opened her own business so people can come in."

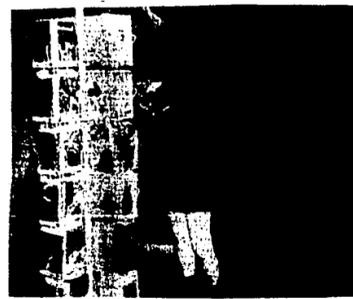

Bette has been a nurse for 15 years. She and Rick have been married for four years. He operates a mowing business.

His wife is the former Bette Vogler and the daughter of Wade and Doris Vogler, who live on McGregor Road.

"We've got a lot of Valentine items, figurines, ornaments and more items coming in," she said. Rick and her daughter, Misty, help out at the store.

Bette has greeting cards, wind chimes, crystal bells, bookends and other gifts.

She offers a wonderful bonus for some of us shoppers who have trouble wrapping presents. Shoppers can stop in for a quick selection of gift ideas and have them wrapped while they wait.

Don't forget to check out her spun glass ornaments.

Cloudy Windows? Precision Glass To The Rescue

Do you have a window at your home that has moisture ... on the inside? Do you have a window that looks dirty ... no matter how much you clean it? What's going on?

Welcome to the land of window seal failures, and there's only one thing that will fix it. Replace it.

Precision Glass Works of Clemmons specializes in all types of glass work, including insulated glass replacement.

As houses in Clemmons have aged, replacing insulated glass has grown into Precision Glass's biggest job.

"In time, the insulated glass loses its seal, and you can't see out of them," said Jay Harvel, president of Precision Glass. "The only thing you can do is replace them. We do an awful lot of that."

"The windows' life expectancy should be 15 years. They may last 20 years. Many of the ones we're replacing now are dated in the mid-70s."

Replacing the windows is an unexpected expense no homeowner enjoys. It's a time when many wish they had started with higher quality windows. That's why Precision Glass insists on quality replacements.

"We go with suppliers that have the best glass," Harvel said. "The glass industry is going through changes right now simply because there are so many cheap products out there."

Insulated glass windows have a hermetic seal that protects a dead air space between the panes. When the seal fails, moisture rushes in.

Precision Glass, located in the Craver Building on U.S. 158, opened in Clemmons 12 years ago. Jerry Grady is the company's vice president.

Precision Glass handles all types of residential and commercial glass work. "We are basically a residential and small commercial glazing company," Harvel said. "On the commercial end, we do store fronts, mirrors, store front repairs and things of that nature. On the residential end, we do mirrors and shower doors, storm windows and storm doors. We do glass replacements and a lot of insulated glass replacements and table tops."

Walk-in customers bring Precision Glass all kinds of needs. "We cut picture frame glass. We repair and replace storm window glass. The in-customer have all kinds of requests, and we try to fulfil their needs."

Harvel said he started Precision Glass after realizing the need for good glass workmanship at a reasonable price. "We want to give the general public what they want, how they want it, and to be honest with them," he said.

"We try our best to stay competitive. We are going to do it right to the best of our knowledge and ability."

Precision Glass Works is at 3610 Hwy. 156 West, Clemmons; The telephone number is 766-6433.

paper towels and old paper bags, anything that's available. It's boiled for days and bleach is sometimes added to take out the ink. It's blended and strained until it can be "pulled" into paper.

She keeps a diary of each concoction so she can go back to get the desired effect.

Art, for Latham, isn't a chosen profession. It's something she has to do.

"I would like for people to see it, of course, but it's not something I have a choice about. I have to do it, and if I don't do it, I get crazy."

"The windows, that's where I would like to go. I would like to have a body of those to put in a show."

How do you let go of a piece? How do you decide it's finished?

"Is it ever finished? I look at these windows and see things I would change, but you have to come to a point where you let it go and go on to something else," she said.

To start one of her windows, Latham first has to come up with an idea for a scene. She breaks that down into colors. Then comes the process of tearing tiny pieces of tissue paper and putting them into place on the glass. When it's sealed and mounted, that tissue paper ends up with sort of a water color effect.

"When I get started, I have trouble putting one down," she said. "I work until my fingers are numb." Latham has illustrated a children's book, and makes drawings baked onto Plexi-Glass and notebooks with home-made paper covers.

Her husband, Tracy, is supportive and patiently walks around the "mess" scattered through the home, sometimes helping with ideas and an extra hand.

Neighbors see her working in the back yard, wondering what she's doing, and rush over to marvel at their friends' newest creation.

Latham enjoys the rural life, often taking walks through the woods, sitting on rocks at a creek, listening to the water, watching the animals, looking at the trees.

"I've always been really close to nature and all that she has to offer. My hope is that through my art work, I can help the viewer realize nature's gentle ways and how delicate she can be."

Arts Council Gets $5,000 Crosby Grant

The Davie County Arts Council is the recipient of a $5,000 grant from The Crosby National Celebrity Golf Tournament, thanks to Bill Caldwell. Caldwell played on a team sponsored by Rose Harper-Elder and Bill Caldwell and won the right to designate a portion of the purse as a winner in the million dollar tournament held last June.

The Davie County Arts Council has designated a portion of these funds to be used for the gala opening of the Brock Performing Arts Center.

"The Crosby Tournament has been a generous supporter of the Brock Performing Arts Center renovation," said Nancy Norton, director of the Arts Council. "We want to keep their contribution tied to the future events in the center."

The gala opening will be on Saturday, Jan. 24, with the public invited for entertainment and recognition awards.

A second portion of the funds will be used to sponsor a promotional video surrounding the Arts Council and the Brock Performing Arts Center. This nine-minute video will be used to en-corporate and foundation support for future events in the Brock Performing Arts Center. A third portion of the Crosby gift is designated for an event in the Brock Performing Arts Center to take place late April or early May.

The Crosby, the premier charitable celebrity golfing event in the country, will hold its 56th tournament in 1998. The first tournament was held in Rancho Santa Fe, California, as a friendly gesture by Bing Crosby to aid financially beleaguered touring pros and its began the concept of Pro-Am golfing events.

The Crosby attracts international celebrities from the entertainment and sports arenas who team with amateur golfers in well-known charitable tournament. Winners designate their share of the purse to non-profit organizations of their choice. The tournament focuses its charitable efforts on substance abuse prevention and education. Since 1986, The Crosby has raised over $13 million, with nearly $5 million going to organizations involved in the fight against drug abuse.

FVPS Receives 'Approved' Status

By David Mauldin

Several weeks ago, Family Violence Prevention Services (FVPS) received an "Approved Status" from the N.C. Council for Women for the abuser treatment component of its program. This approval caused me to reflect on just how far our program has come since 1983 when we first began.

In 1983, domestic violence was a family secret that most hid from public view. FVPS was an abuser treatment program back then. It counseled only men, and received most of its referrals from the Courts.

Over the years the scope and focus of this program have evolved and broadened to include services for women and children. It was almost immediately apparent that the majority of women in violent relationships with men wanted to end the violence in their lives, but they wanted their families to remain intact.

To meet those needs, Family Violence Prevention Services became a program which offered professional counseling, not just to men, but to women and children as well. Since convenience and affordability were also important considerations, FVPS began offering separate group counseling for men, women, and children at the same location and at the same time. Counseling was free for women and children.

Now that violence in the family is recognized as a serious social problem and is receiving attention at the local, state, and national levels, FVPS plans to once again broaden its scope and focus. One goal for FVPS in 1998 will be to provide early violence prevention interventions in the schools in an effort to reach children and their parents who may not have sought help elsewhere. Services will be available at both elementary and secondary levels.

Violent behavior is learned, and such early interventions will help students develop the social skills necessary to solve problems in their relationships with others without using violence. Students will also learn that violence is not an acceptable choice.

Another goal for 1998 will be to offer affordable marriage and family counseling which will increase the likelihood that families will remain intact and non-violent. Many families have expressed a desire for this additional counseling which will strengthen and solidify individual successes achieved during the earlier part of the program and will teach valuable relationship skills.

Over the years, FVPS has changed with the times and in response to the needs of the community: from a counseling program just for men, to a counseling program for the entire family, and now to a program that includes additional family counseling and violence prevention in the schools. The overall goal of violence prevention, however, has remained the same. In 1998, we will work even harder to achieve that goal.

Pet Therapy

Students, Pets Visit Rest Home

Once a month, Beta Club students from South Davie Middle School take their pets to visit residents at Davie Village, a rest home in Mocksville.

It's good therapy for the residents, and a good experience for the students, said counselor Karen Wenker.

The students have been making the trips for the past three years, one of the choices they have for participating in a community service project.

Burlie May, who has been living at Davie Village for six months, said she enjoys the visits - from the children and their pets. "I like anybody to come see me," she said. Edna Eaton, 92, kept the children interested with her stories of her own pets and of growing up years ago.

"I had a little feist. She was the sweetest little thing," Eaton said. "She would come in and get in the window, and when she got ready, she would get into bed with me."

A lot of people don't like dogs, but I do," she said. "We had a dog when I was a little girl and she would catch rabbits for us."

Twelve students currently participate in the project, and do other things for the residents, Wenker said. In February, they brought hand-made Valentine greetings.

Spiritual Resources: Be Prepared

By Hazel Smoot
Haggai 1:7 "Give careful thought to your ways."

Life seems to be a daily ritual of surprises. Our plans can change in less time than it takes to make them. It wasn't prepared for the unexpected, we get lost in a shuffle of confusion and sometimes discouragement. Daily preparation pays dividends which more than rewards us for the extra effort of keeping our lives and resources up to date. With this practice, our approach to problems can be transformed.

I am often good-naturedly teased because I wash my shoes and put them in labeled boxes after doing laundry. I match my clothes at the end of each week after doing laundry. We learn from experience. There have been times when some member of my family could not find a shoe or an item of clothing they needed to wear. This caused much frustration and grief. Therefore, I like my clothing in order where I can locate them easily when I need to get dressed. It's worth a little extra time to be able to find what I need easily.

We don't like to be reminded that tax season will soon be our next priority. This seasonal headache can be much relieved by keeping accurate records in an orderly manner. If we have filed our recipients, kept good financial records, and recorded our expenditures and income weekly, preparing our tax information is only a matter of adding columns of figures, recording our assets, and providing proof of our expenses.

In each of our lives we will have frustrations and upsetting events. There is no way to avoid these. These times can be made easier with forethought and planning. We would not dream of going on vacation without making some preparation, yet we drift along from day to day without using the most valuable asset available to us...prayer and devotions. Though these will not prevent us from having problems, they can surely be the best source of insulation and peace. If we have kept these resources in constant use and have thanked our creator daily for His guidance, we don't have to hunt for him or introduce ourselves to Him when we need help and assurance.

To be prepared for emergencies, we must daily provide ourselves with resources for the journey. Just as we put gas and oil in our cars to keep them running, we must fill our minds with inspiration to keep our mental and spiritual motors from trying to run on empty. If we apply these principles we will be ready for every day and prepared for the unexpected. Habits are actions that are repeated until they become second nature to us. Our goal should be to have habits of prayer and devotion that keeps us ready at all times.

Second Steps Students Learn To Read With Help From Tutors

They're reading - better and better each day.

"It's beautiful," said Dr. Darrell Morris of Appalachian State University who started the First Steps reading program, as he witnessed 12 William R. Davie second graders reading.

Participating in the Second Steps program, these students, who were not reading at grade level, have been paired with volunteer tutors for two 45 minute lessons each week.

Recently Carol Rasco of America Reads in Washington, D.C. visited William R. Davie during her travels around the country in search of good volunteer programs that are helping students improve reading skills.

What she found was a room full of children and adults reading - and enjoying it.

At William R. Davie, each tutor follows a lesson plan by reading specialist Luwonna Ellis to meet the individual needs of students.

Lessons include instructional level reading, word study, spell checks, partner reading and ends with a read-to-by the tutor, which provides strong modeling for the struggling reader, according to Ellis, who developed Second Steps with Judy Henderson of the Wilkes County Schools in collaboration with Morris.

Coming out of Morris' First Steps program in first grade, Ellis said she saw that some students still needed additional support.

One of the biggest strengths of the program is the personal relationship that develops between the child and his or her tutor.

Volunteers love the program, Morris said. "They realize these children are learning to read. They get a lot out of it, too."

Second Steps is now in place at all of Davie County's elementary schools. A reading teacher from each school oversees the individual lesson plans for each child, Ellis explained.

Participating students are assessed three times a year with a reading inventory and so far have been showing big gains in their skills levels, she said.

First Steps was developed from the Howard Street Tutorial Model, which Morris helped develop in Chicago about 20 years ago for inner city schools. In that program, tutors assisted students after school. After coming to North Carolina, he thought a similar program could be put into rural schools. The difference here is that tutors help students during the school day, Morris said.

What makes the program work, Morris said, is that there are well-meaning volunteers in every county.

Tutor Ed Johnson, Principal Mary Sine, Luwonna Ellis and Carol Rasco gather around to hear Joel Metz read to them.

Ellis and Rasco stop to listen to the progress of Shane Freeman, who is reading to tutor Donna Lanning.

Patsy Crenshaw talks to Judy Henderson of Wilkes County.

Davie Schools Superintendent Dr. Bill Steed, testing and publicity coordinator Mike Hendrix and Dr. Darrell Morris of Appalachian State University discuss the reading program.

Sealed With A Smile

Davie Dentists Volunteer To Help Prevent Tooth Decay Among Second Graders

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

Aaron Rickman was proud of the sealants placed on his teeth at the office of Dr. Kevin Armbricht in Mocksville last week.

Those sealants - received by 125 second graders from across Davie County thanks to the generosity of eight dentists from across the county - will help the children keep healthy smiles.

"They won't let the cavities get the holes in," Aaron said. "When it dries, it's hard as a rock."

Public Health Dental Health Hygienist Sharon Boger said the statewide "Seal the State in '98" campaign, would likely become a model for other states.

"We're the first state to do something of this magnitude," she said.

In Davie County, 125 second graders made a trip to the dentist to have sealants placed on their teeth. In the past, only a handful of students were treated by state dentists and hygienists, but the cooperation of dentists made the program much more successful, she said.

The students did more than visit the dentist. Other activities stressed the importance of good dental health.

"We watched a movie about it yesterday," said Scotty West. "There was this green cavity... that tried to get in the teeth. He couldn't so he got a tractor and went pow, pow, pow until the tractor broke; and then he cried because he couldn't get in."

"If a sealant is that strong, it must be good, Scotty said.

The "Seal the State" campaign is part of the 80th anniversary of public dental health in North Carolina.

A video-conference was held in September to provide state-of-the-art information to participants about dental sealants. The goal is simple: to increase the use of sealants statewide.

"One long-term clinical study found that children who had a single application of sealant on their back teeth had 50 percent less tooth decay and tooth restorations after 15 years than children without sealants," said Dr. William F. Vann Jr., a professor with the UNC School of Dentistry.

"We know that dental sealants work. We know that they are underutilized. With the prudent use of sealants, we can make a dramatic impact on the oral health of our next generation of children," Vann said.

That's Christopher Hiatt in the chair, with Dr. Kevin Armbricht and Debbie Davis putting the sealants on his teeth.

Ohio Company Has Newest High Bid For Musgrave Plant

An Ohio company has put out another company's bid to buy the Musgrave building in Mocksville. Vickers Inc. of Maumee, Ohio, bid $3.8 million last Friday, upsetting the $3.6 million bid by a Florida company. The bid will stand if not upset within 10 days. BB&T, which holds a lien against the bankrupt Musgrave Machine & Tool, started the bidding at $3.5 million.

Davie Economic Development Director Terry Bralley said that both companies would likely hire local, skilled employees, and both are in a type of metal fabrication business such as Musgrave.

Musgrave closed suddenly just before Thanksgiving, leaving nearly 150 Davie residents without a job. It is being investigated by the N.C. Department of Labor for not paying employees for hours worked, and by the N.C. Department of Insurance for accusations that insurance premiums were taken from worker's paychecks, but weren't paid to the companies, leaving employees without insurance coverage for which they had paid.

The building was dedicated last spring, and has attracted interest from several companies, Bralley said. Those companies aren't only looking at the new building ready for occupation, but at a trained workforce. The potential for more training at the nearby Davie Campus community college is also attractive to these industries.

Two Iredell Men Die In Wreck On Sheffield Road

Center firefighters help load car onto wrecker early Sunday morning. Two young Iredell men died in the wreck.

Speed, Alcohol Use Cited As Causes

Two Iredell County men died and another was hurt when the car they were traveling in at an estimated 100 mph crashed into trees off Sheffield Road Saturday night.

Michael Scott Stroud, 20, of 2773 Old Mocksville Road, and Jason Michael Ervin, 20, of 326 Prospect Church Road, Statesville, died.

Bryan James Ervin, 20, of 326 Prospect Church Road, was taken to N.C. Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem, where he was listed in satisfactory condition Monday with a broken wrist and cuts to the scalp.

Stroud was driving the 1995 Pontiac Firebird at an estimated 100 mph when it went left of center in a left curve, reported N.C. Highway Patrol Trooper T.S. Kennedy.

The car skidded back into the right lane, went left of center again and went off the road to the left in a broadside, going through a yard, Kennedy reported. The car hit a tree, skidded some more and struck a second tree.

The car then hit a ditch, throwing all passengers into a wooded area. The car stopped with the rear wedged up in a tree, in an airborne position, Kennedy said.

The trooper listed speed and alcohol use as causes contributing to the wreck. None of the victims were wearing a seat belt.

The car was suspended from trees off Sheffield Road.

Two Arrested As Result Of Undercover Drug Operation

Two Mocksville men were arrested last week as the result of an ongoing undercover drug investigation by the Davie and Iredell County sheriff's departments with the SBI.

Travis Jamal Johnson, 23, of 1000 Hardison St., Mocksville, was arrested Feb. 10, at Fast Track on U.S. 601. Officers had been attempting to locate him to serve warrants, according to Davie Sheriff's Detective Chris Shuskey.

Johnson was hiding 22 grams of crack cocaine in his underwear for which he was charged with possession with intent to sell or deliver cocaine, Shuskey said.

He was placed in the Davie County Jail under a $50,000 bond.

The following day he was charged with two counts of sale and delivery of cocaine, two counts of possession with intent to sell or deliver cocaine and maintaining a place to keep a controlled substance. These warrants were originally drawn July 16, 1997.

That place, according to Shuskey, was the game room at U.S. 601 and Cana Road.

He will face these charges in Davie County District Court Feb. 26.

Also arrested was Yusef Amliel "Yo-Yo" Handy, 21, of 356 Pineville Road, Mocksville, who was charged with possession with intent to sell or deliver a controlled substance and sale and delivery of a controlled substance.

Handy is also set to make his first appearance in Davie County District Court Feb. 26.

Teacher Shortage: More Students, Higher Turnover Rate Creating Problem

By Mike Barnhardt
 Davie County Enterprise Record

Davie County Schools have a good reputation. The system is recognized as one of the best in the state, maybe even the nation.

"Part of that success is due to quality teachers, but the ability to recruit and retain teachers is getting harder and harder every year.

Dr. Vance Johnson, schools personnel director, presented some suggestions for teacher recruitment to the board of education earlier this month.

"What we may have to do in the future is spend more money trying to find teachers," he said.

Davie County continues to hire more first-year teachers every year, and the turnover rate among teachers has gone from nine percent in 1990-91 to 17 percent last year. And more of those first-year teachers are coming from other states. Because of the growth of the system, Davie has added 30 new teachers since 1990.

The schools traditionally recruit teachers at college job fairs, mostly in North Carolina. At a recent job fair at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro-122 school systems were recruiting for less than 200 would-be teachers, Johnson said. Some systems go to these job fairs with contracts ready to sign. Davie does not.

He suggested going further from North Carolina to recruit, to go to states with declining student enrollments. Most of those are in the North. "We're going to have to get more out-of-state people."

He also suggested setting up a web page to advertise Davie schools and job openings, to use more services that provide teachers, as well as continuing with current efforts.

The schools emphasize to prospective teachers the good system, rural atmosphere close to more urban amenities, supportive board of education and community, and the location in the Piedmont.

"All those things look good to a prospective employee, but we're not the only ones with those strengths."

Although many teachers don't leave because of money, more benefits and supplements would help to retain them, Johnson said.

He suggested the following incentives: signing bonuses, interview expense reimbursement, travel expenses, tuition for professional licenses and higher degrees, YMCA memberships, newspaper subscriptions.

And salary supplements. Davie currently pays two and a half percent salary supplement. Raising that to five percent.

Will Blackburn Fixed Many Hearts In His Short Life

He was 6 months old when he died, but little Will Blackburn managed to touch thousands of people in that short time.

From the beginning, nothing went according to plan. He was born in the car on the way to the hospital. He was in a hurry to get here. But doctors at the hospital found severe complications. He had a hole in his heart. They performed surgery and a number of other procedures to rescue the little boy who had arrived with such promise.

His parents are among the nicest people in the world. His mom is one of God's angels. They are loving and kind and gracious people. Little Will Blackburn was fortunate to be born into such a family, and he must have inherited some of those qualities.

He stirred the hopes and prayers of countless people who learned of his struggle for life. In their bedside prayers, little boys and girls asked God to fix Will. He turned people to heaven as they emotionally and spiritually joined his battle. Most of them never saw Will.

He was born July 25, 1997. He didn't make it home from the hospital until just before Christmas. Even then, he had to return for more surgery, more attempts to repair his heart.

We prayed for a miracle. We received many in return.

It was a miracle that Will lived at all.

It was a miracle that he survived the first surgery, the second surgery, the third...

It was an answer to prayer that he came home for Christmas. That he met his brother and sisters. That they got to hold him in their arms and meet, at last, this noble little boy.

Life is so precious. Good health is a gift. Yet it's only at times like this that we are shaken enough to realize how delicate, how tenuous this thread is wakes us every morning and sees us through the day. Many times, we treat life as if it is guaranteed. "People drive at break-neck speeds and expect to survive a crash. We abuse our bodies. We step in front of trains — figuratively — every day.

William Bingham Blackburn made the most of his few days.

I watched the devotion of his parents, Doug and Betsy Blackburn of Lewisville, as they struggled with him, as they fought the odds, as they scrambled to nurse the life flowing through their precious son.

His mom, the former Betsy Bingham of Advance, managed the task of caring for her young children at home and mothering the little boy whose life was in jeopardy at the hospital. To his dad, Doug, fell the responsibilities of providing for the family through his work, even as he was torn with the emotional struggle at home.

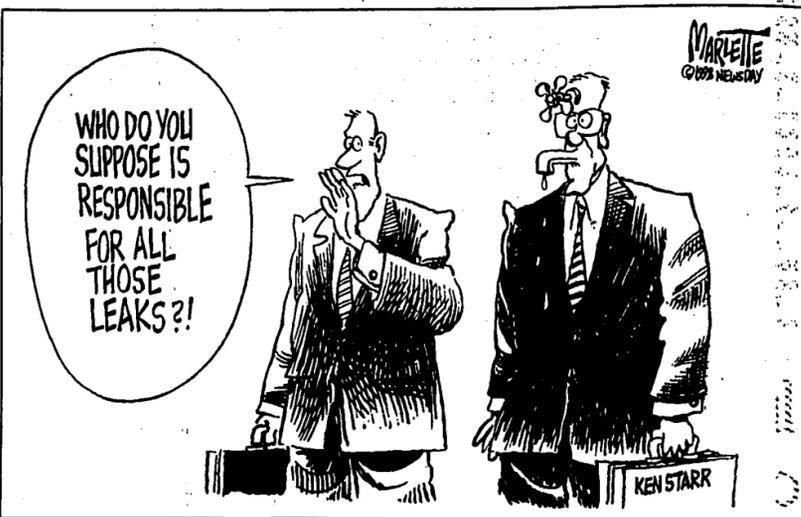

Who says there are no more heroes?

I never heard them complain. I did hear their praise God. I did hear them express the hope of Will's recovery and promise of his life.

Fittingly, Will was buried on Valentine's Day.

He was born with a hole in his heart. He repaired many of ours.

Robert Cook's Deed Nothing Short Of Heroic

To the editor:

After reading the editorial page of Feb. 12, I felt not only the desire, but also an obligation to set the record straight in reference to the letter, "There's No Ice To Break."

On the morning in question, at approximately 10:30 a.m., I heard a loud knocking on my front door. I opened the door to find a young boy approximately 10 years old, crying with panic. After calming him down, he told me his dog had fallen through the ice that had developed on the lake at the 9th hole of Hickory Hill Country Club and could not get out. I put on my boots since there was about two inches of snow left from the previous week's snow-storm, grabbed my son and went outside.

I ran across the street towards the lake, not knowing what I would do when I got there. When I topped the hill and looked down to the lake, I saw a man whom I did not know wading in chest deep water out into the lake with a wooden broom handle trying to break open a path to the dog which was swimming frantically in about an eight-foot circle of water. This man was Robert Cook. After several minutes, he reached the dog and guided him back to the safety of the bank where the dog ran into the arms of two very happy young boys. Mr. Cook not only risked getting hypothermia or pneumonia, but also drowning in his effort, and then seemed embarrassed that the group of people who had gathered during the rescue were offering dry blankets and warm homes for him to use.

As I took my son back home, I realized what he had just seen was nothing short of heroic and the memory of those two boys towel-drying their dog will remain with me for a long time.

I cannot speak for all the lakes in Davie County that day, but as for the one in question, I can assure you it was frozen, and no one thought it laughable while Mr. Cook was "Breaking The Ice."

Cook Is Good Man; Media Fair To Allens

To the editor:

I am writing in response to two letters printed in last week's Enterprise.

In reference to the letter concerning Robert Cook, Mr. Cook is a great person who would do anything possible to help anyone.

Ms. Brown, it does not take an ice storm for a lake or pond to freeze over. Where were you when we had the snow and temperature's in the teens that week. Put a cup of water in your freezer, maybe then you'll understand how and why ice forms.

Now, in reference to the Allen case. First, I do not feel the media swayed anyone. In my opinion, at times it seemed they leaned toward the Allens.

I also feel that it is important for the people to know the complete story.

First, their vet was called in after the fact that person saw only four of the 15 taken.

Second, from the testimony in court, each of the animals were not physically examined. Some were just looked at through the cages.

Maybe that would explain why no one knew of the massive growth or skin infections on one, skin infections and severely infected feet on another or the eye infections on the third. Or that these dogs were infested with internal and external parasites.

Maybe that would explain why two of these animals may need to be euthanized because of their less than perfect kennel conditions and care. One of these happens to be from the last group that was taken.

It makes one wonder if people care more for the money than the well being of animals who depend on their owners and veterinarians to properly care for them.

To the editor:

Does anyone else in Davie County have to turn left from 801 S. onto 158 E. each morning? I can't help but wonder why the NCDOT has not installed a protected left turn signal at this intersection. With the addition of Oak Valley traffic and more traffic to come with the expansion of Bermuda Run, it will soon take 15 minutes to turn there.

Friday morning, Feb. 6, I was the sixth car in line at this light. I sat through the light six times, each time it cycled to green one car would get to turn, but only after the light had cycled back to red. This is dangerous.

Does there have to be a certain number of accidents or fatalities before a protected left turn signal is ever considered? Does anyone else see this signal is even considered? Does anyone else see this as something that is needed?

Cigarette Butts And Beer Cans: It's Time For Another Tax

Strolling along the Davie County countryside early on a Sunday morning is a beautiful sight. There are towering pine trees, hardwoods reaching out in every direction, softly rolling hills and streams.

Cattle graze as the sun peeks over the horizon.

The frost on the ground adds a cool, peaceful feeling, coating the grass with a glaze of white ... the trees, the fences ... and the trash.

Yes, there is something wrong with this picture.

The trash. As beautiful as it may be, Davie County is not clean, especially not the roadsides.

Why do motorists consider the side of the road as one big trash can? Do they like to look at trash in front of their home, in their own neighborhood? Would they throw out a hamburger bag in front of a neighbor's house?

It's downright embarrassing to jog along U.S. 158 into Mocksville with a relative from Rowan County. Surely there's not much difference, but when we run there, the roads, although still littered, aren't nearly as bad as U.S. 158.

The number of beer and drink cans and bottles - glass and plastic - is astounding. There's newspapers, shoes, clothes, fast food papers, pieces of cars, hose, gloves, diapers (fully loaded, of course), tires, debris from traffic accidents - and some unidentifiable items that have gray and green mold growing on them.

And there are the butts. Hundreds, maybe thousands of stinking cigarette butts. One thing smokers could do to better their reputation is to keep their butts to themselves. A cigarette butt may not seem like litter, but add a few thousand, in concentrated areas, and it makes for a literal carpet of cigarette butts. Comforting for the feet, but ugly - and smelly - to the senses.

There's even whole garbage bags of what appears to be household trash. I usually peek through those to report whose trash it is to police. A better idea would be to look for some mail in the trash, box it up and send it back to that person. No, don't bother the mail deliverer, just return it to the sender. Take it to their house and throw it in their yard.

Is there a solution? Some seem too simple. Maybe that's why the government is lagging its feet. Put prisoners to work on the sides of the road picking up the stuff. We're already teaching children the importance of keeping the environment clean and the need to recycle, and they're helping to teach us adults. But a better way would be to hit us where it hurts - the pocketbook.

There's no reason North Carolina shouldn't impose a deposit on every can, bottle (glass or plastic) that is sold in this state. Distributors and manufacturers of these products disagree, and they apparently have a lot of money, because nothing has been done. If we had to pay an extra 10 cents for every soft drink or beer, only to get credit back when we bought more, there wouldn't be nearly as much litter. What was thrown out would be picked up by an entrepreneurial soul. And rarely would such items enter our already overflowing landfills.

Nobody likes taxes. Nobody likes the government telling us what we have to do. But admit it folks, we're doing a pretty poor job of handling this one on our own. We need some help.

Tax us. And let's arrest a few more of these litterers. If someone got a $100 fine for tossing a cigarette butt out the window, they would keep it in the car the next time.

Council For Women Recognizes FVPS

To the editor:

Several weeks ago, Family Violence Prevention Services (FVPS) received an "Approved Status" from the N.C. Council for Women for the abuser treatment component of its counseling program. This letter of approval caused me to reflect on just how far our program has come since 1983 when the program started. Back then, domestic violence was a family secret that was pretty much hidden from public view. FVPS was just an abuser treatment program then. We counseled men only, and received most of our referrals from the courts.

Over the years our program has evolved to include services for women and children. It soon became apparent that the majority of women in violent relationships with men wanted to end the violence in their lives, but they wanted to keep their families together. To meet that need, FVPS broadened its base and became a program which offered professional counseling, not just to men, but to women and children as well. And since convenience and affordability were also important considerations, FVPS provided separate group counseling for men, women, and children-at the same location and at the same time. Counseling was free for women and children and it still is.

Now that violence in the family is recognized as a serious social problem and is receiving more attention at the local, state and national levels, FVPS plans to broaden its base once again. One goal for 1998 is to provide early violence prevention interventions in the schools to reach children and their parents who may not have been able to receive help elsewhere. Services will be available at both elementary and secondary levels. Violent behavior is learned, and such early interventions will help students develop the social skills necessary to solve problems in their relationships with others without using violence. Students will also learn that violence is not an acceptable choice.

Another goal for 1998 is to offer affordable marriage and family counseling which will increase the likelihood that families will remain intact and non-violent. Many families have expressed a desire for this additional counseling which will strengthen and solidify individual successes achieved during the earlier part of the program. It will also reinforce valuable relationship skills already learned.

Over the years, Family Violence Prevention Services has changed with the times and in response to the needs of the community: from a counseling program just for men, to a counseling program for the entire family, and now to a program that will include additional family counseling and violence prevention in the schools. The overall goal of violence prevention, however, remains the same. In 1998, we will work even harder to achieve that goal.

Son Says Dad Will Make Good U.S. Senator

To the editor:

I am a fifth grader at Pinebrook Elementary School. We live in Hillsdale. My dad is Mike Robinson and he is a Democrat running for the U.S. Senate. I would like for you to tell people about my Dad.

My dad would be a good senator for North Carolina because he is honest and he will not raise our taxes. He does not owe any special groups that he would have to pay back after he is elected. My dad is a big believer in education for everyone, and he cares for the environment. He is serious, but also likes to have fun with his family.

He will represent us well because he is a regular guy. Look up his web page at www.voteforme.nc and see for yourself. My picture is on there, too.

Planners Recommend Denial Of Apartment Rezoning Requests

There are already enough apartments and land zoned for apartments on Milling Road, and there isn't much land left zoned for hospital and medical uses.

Those are some of the reasons the Mocksville Planning Board gave for denying two rezoning requests for apartment complexes last week. The planners' recommendations will be decided by the town board on March 3.

Evergreen Construction of Raleigh, turned down earlier this year in an attempt to build apartments on Country Lane, came back last week with a request to rezone 5.7 acres next to the Seventh Day Adventist Church on Milling Road. The complex would include 40 apartments, one- and two-bedroom units, in eight buildings.

Eugene Adams, who owns adjacent property, urged the planners not to grant the request. "There's enough traffic on that highway now," he said.

Planner Steve Dulin said the apartments would be close to the church, which is built at the property line. Town ordinances require 20-foot side yards from the apartments. "This church appears to be close to the property line ... almost like they would be on top of each other," Dulin said.

John Goolbsy, planning board member, said there is already foot traffic on Milling Road and sidewalks are needed before more is added. Planners Bob Hall and Lois Shore said there only objections were with traffic.

The board estimated 120-130 apartments are already in the area, with more land zoned for apartments between Northwood and Sunset Terrace, which is accessed off U.S. 158.

Lawrence Roy Carter made the motion to recommend denial of the request because of all reasons mentioned above. "It would be a safety hazard," he said. "It's a problem now."

Planners also recommended denial of a special use rezoning for a 36-unit elderly apartment complex on hospital/medical zoned land at Valley Road and Hospital Street.

She said the company went for the special use zoning because it gave the neighborhood an assurance of what would be built, rather than with a general rezoning. In special uses, developers have to stick to approved plans.

The planning board members said they liked the project, but didn't want to lose the small amount of land the town has zoned for hospital and medical uses.

Hall, who made the recommendation for denial, said he like the project and location, but made his decision "with reservations."

Board Chair Vena Harris agreed. "We have no objections to this type of facility ... but we may need that medical zoning at some time in the future."

More than 40 volunteers attended the Guardian Ad Litem volunteer meeting at Davie Public Library.

Guardian Ad Litem Program Seeks Volunteers

Judges and Guardian Ad Litem program officials met with volunteers last week in Mocksville, at a meeting that could add up to 25 more volunteers to the program.

The volunteers are essential, said local coordinator Susan Scott. They interview children, family members, teachers, neighbors and others to find out what's best for the child - and to report their findings to the court.

"The affect we can have in the life of a child is much more important than some of the criminal things," said Kimberly Taylor, a district court judge in the 22nd District, which includes Davie, Davidson, Iredell and Alexander County.

Guardian ad litem volunteers are what makes this program strong, Taylor said, adding that those volunteers can give judges a full and complete understanding of what they need to know - what's best for the child. "It's horrifying what happens to children sometimes in our system."

Training For New DDVS Volunteers Starting March 3

For those suffering the effects of domestic violence or sexual assault, life can be frightening.

It would seem that leaving such a life style would be easy. Just walk out anything would be better.

Easier said than done. The only decision more frightening than staying in an abusive relationship is change. Making a big change in lifestyles is the most frightening decision because we cannot predict the outcome. "With your help, Davie Domestic Violence Services can make a difference," said Lynette Jones, volunteer coordinator. "We are here to support changes in their lives."

"We do not attempt to tell victims how to live their lives or what decisions they need to make. We are here to support victims as they seek to make their own decisions. These decisions may be the most important of their lives," she said. "We have very dedicated volunteers to whom we are forever grateful for their wonderful work with victims," she said.

Additional volunteers are needed. If you are interested in the work of DDVS, if you want to make a difference in the lives of women, men, and children caught in domestic violence and sexual assault situations, call 634-3450.

Training for new volunteers will begin on March 3 at 6 p.m. in the Administrative Building. If you are interested in attending the 20-hour training workshop, let DDVS know. If the time does not suit you, Jones will work with you.

"We here at Davie Domestic Violence Services, look forward to hearing from you," she said. "Anyone 18 years of age or older is eligible to work our crisis line."

LeBleu Donates Water To Pender County Residents

Water is everywhere in Pender County, but much of it isn't safe to drink.

The rains that drenched the area throughout January and into this month caused many residential wells to overflow and become contaminated, leaving residents without an alternate source of drinking water.

A North Carolina company stepped forward to assist, along with the help of the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

Le Bleu Corporation, a bottled water company in Advance, donated 354 cases of pure bottled water to the Emergency Operations Center in Pender County for distribution to residents in need of clean drinking water.

The Food Distribution Division of the NCDARCS transported the water from Advance to the EOC.

"We are happy to assist Le Bleu in transporting the bottled water to those that need it," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said. "Food Distribution is a fine division whose main purpose is to distribute food and other food items to organizations in need, either on a regular basis, or during emergencies such as this one."

Like many rural communities, Pender lacks a sufficient water purification system to handle crises such as this one. "I think this is out of the ordinary," said Conrad McLean, assistant director of the Food Distribution Division. "Bottled water was donated during Fran, but no company stepped forward the way Le Bleu has. It is a great example of business in North Carolina coming to the aid of citizens in other parts of the state."

Those individuals who are due a refund should mail their returns to N.C. Department of Revenue, P.O. Box R, Raleigh, N.C. 27634.

Those individuals whose return indicates tax due should mail their returns, along with their check or money order for the amount due to N.C. Department of Revenue, P.O. Box 25000, Raleigh, N.C. 27640.

Taxpayers are reminded that they must have their federal income tax return prepared first and that they must bring a copy of the completed federal return with them since the federal tax return is the starting point for the state return.

Taxpayers are also requested to bring the preprinted state forms that were mailed to them.

Davie Woman Arrested For Harboring Fugitives

By Jeanne Galther
Davie County Enterprise Record

A Mocksville woman was arrested last week for harboring fugitives in her home in April.

Portia Jolete Wilson, 43, of 393 Village Road, apparently allowed two suspects from an armed robbery to hide in her house while law enforcement officer searched for them.

Shante Frazier, Andre Howell and Cory Mayfield were arrested April 20, 1997 for robbing County Line Grocery in Iredell County just outside Davie.

They took $181 and two 12-packs of beer. Frazier had fired one shot at the clerk, according to Davie County Sheriff's Detective Chris Shuskey.

Viewing a security camera film, Shuskey was able to identify the three suspects.

Soon after the incident, Iredell County Sheriff's deputies spotted a suspicious vehicle on Cool Springs Road where they had stopped to divide the money. The driver, Howell, was apprehended, but the other two suspects ran from the scene, Shuskey said.

Officers from Iredell and Davie counties and the N.C. Highway Patrol combed the area for the suspects. Notified Trooper T.S. Kennedy had picked up a man fitting the description of one of the suspects on Village Road, Shuskey responded to the scene where he found Kennedy with Wilson's son.

Shuskey said he explained to Wilson that they were looking for suspects who had just been involved in an armed robbery and told her who they were.

Wilson told him she knew them but hadn't seen them. She told the officers to leave her property, Shuskey said.

About two hours later Frazier was arrested at his residence in Coolemeze, "He said he had been watching the from (Wilson's) house," he said.

Frazier told Shuskey that he and Mayfield had paid Wilson $20 from the money they had stolen to let them hide in her house, Shuskey reported.

Mayfield was arrested at his residence shortly after Frazier's arrest.

It has taken officers some time to locate Wilson, who is often transient, Shuskey said.

She was arrested at her residence Feb. 11, charged with two counts of harboring a fugitive and one count of obstructing and delaying an officer.

She was placed in the Davie County Jail under a $10,000 secured bond and is scheduled to face these charges in Davie County District Court Feb. 26.

TAX LIENS To Be Published

1997 Tax Liens on real estate will be published in the Davie County Enterprise Record on March 12, 1998. Tax bills must be paid by March 5, 1998 to avoid advertisement. State law requires counties to advertise the names of people whose taxes are not paid. That advertisement is to be done in newspapers according to the North Carolina Institute of Government. The January 1 is responsible for the property taxes, even if the property is sold during the year.

Time For Dinner with Chef Thomas Pirro

Chef Thomas Pirro has the answer for busy people who long for good home cooking... and don't have time to do it. He will do it for you.

Imagine, your own personal chef, cooking in your home. That's the service he provides in his new business, Time For Dinner.

After years of cooking for some of the finest restaurants in the Southeast, Chef Thomas said his family life was too important for him. He wanted to use his cooking skills and have time for his family, too.

The response has been amazing. Customers have been surprised at the chance to have someone prepare their healthy, fresh and excellent foods... in the comfort of their own homes.

"I do their menu planning, their shopping, and then come to their home with my equipment. I come into their kitchen, set up shop, and over the course of about six hours, I'm going to create about five dinner portions," he said.

Most customers find they have enough food for nine to 12 days of meals, some frozen and some refrigerated.

"All you have to do is set the table, and you get a great meal. You have very little clean up," he said. "My personal chef service provides 'stress-free' dinners. I use the freshest ingredients including all fresh fish, meat produce, etc."

Chef Thomas Pirro surrounded by some of his creations — blueberry calzone, grilled chicken breast with pineapple salsa, tofu manicotti, steamed medley of vegetables and twice-stuffed potatoes.

With 20 years of culinary experience, Chef Thomas has worked in the Maison Blanche in the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C., with clients that included the late Jackie Onassis. He was the former chef of the Red Fox Tavern, featured in Southern Living. He has cooked for Chi Chi Rodriguez.

What does he cook? The list is long, long, long. Try baked salmon, seafood paella, broiled snapper Veracruz, baked halibut, tofu manicotti, twice-stuffed potatoes... His menu list goes on for four pages. Their are vegetarian and non-dairy menus. His selection is larger than any restaurant in the area. But a restaurant is no longer where he wants to be.

"I didn't want to be at a restaurant all night, every night. I'd rather have quality family time. And with my service, clients can have that too, because they're not using that time to shop, cook or clean," he said.

Most of his clients are career people with busy families who don't have time to cook and want to eat good food at home. "People want healthy, well-balanced meals and to know what they're eating, he said. "Eating out you don't always get that."

The fee is normally $260, but first time customers are charged $160. Call Chef Thomas Pirro of "Time For Dinner" to get this special service for your family. His number is 778-2985.

Soap Du Jour: Make The Most Of Bathtime

In this rush, rush age, people have found they still need time to stop and smell the roses. After a busy day at work... After a hectic time with the family... They take a bath.

Turn off the rest of the world. Forget about the pressures of the day. Relax and enjoy the comforts of a long soak.

That's the advice Soap Du Jour gives its customers. Soap Du Jour, owned by Cathy Baskin and Patsy Mowery of Clemmons, has developed its own line of soaps designed to make bath time and showers more enjoyable. And better for you.

Their soaps are made with the company's own special formula. All the Soap Du Jour products are made with olive oil, creating a rich, luxurious soaps.

Most store soaps are made with a petroleum base. Not so the soaps by Soap Du Jour. Some of their soaps are 100 percent olive oil, and all of them have at least 50 percent olive oil. One soap is 50 percent olive oil, 25 percent tallow and 25 percent coconut oil.

Soap Du Jour also uses 100 percent natural essential oils.

Cathy Baskin and Patsy Mowery have found an amazing demand for their soaps.

"We make milk baths, lotion bars, bath salts, lip balms, and we're starting to make massage oils and lotions and cream aroma therapeutic blends of synergy. The list just keeps growing," said Cathy Baskin.

They have a soap specially designed for morning — their best seller, "Good Morning" soap. It has peppermint, rosemary, lavender and eucalyptus. It gets the body and mind moving in the morning. They have a soap called "Good Sleep" that promotes rest and relaxation.

Soap Du Jour owes part of its foundation to e-mail. Cathy Baskin turned to the internet for advice in perfecting her soap-making process. The company even takes orders by e-mail. Their soaps are also available at the Global Gallery at the Old Clemmons School.

Soap Du Jour partners Cathy Baskin and Patsy Mowery are sometimes called "The Soap Ladies."

She and Patsy Mowery are childhood friends who always talked about going into business together. Now that they have, they have seen the demand take off. They have 10 stores distributing their products. Their are eight soaps: Good Morning, Good Sleep, Lemon Drop, Lime Breeze, Rose Geranium, Lavender, Fisherman's Soap and an unscented soap, Plain Jane. A new Lavender & Oatmeal soap is proving very popular.

You can order by calling 766-7058 or 768-9024. Or order by e-mail at cbaskin@rbdc.rbdc.com.

Sulier Heating — Put Experience On Your Side

Jim Sulier has seen just about everything in his 40 years experience in heating and air conditioning. He's the owner of Sulier Heating & Air Conditioning of Clemmons.

One time he was called to a house with a problem with a smelly furnace. He found the problem. A skunk in the duct work.

"That's a problem — a big problem," he said.

Another time he made a routine check on an oil furnace. He turned on the flame and lifted the access plate. He looked inside and saw... a squirrel. He shut off the flame immediately and rescued a very hot squirrel. He saw it up a tree later — missing part of its tail.

The wealth of his experience and dependability is what has made Sulier Heating & Air Conditioning a household word for Forsyth and Davie county residents. He worked for Logan Heating for 14 years before going into business for himself in 1980. He and his son, Mike, with 20 years experience, are partners in the firm located in the old Craver Store building on U.S. 158.

Sulier specializes in heating and air conditioning and commercial refrigeration. He maintains walk-in coolers and smaller coolers for restaurants in the area. Sulier is a dealer for Bryant and GMC heating and air conditioning units.

Sulier is a native of Toledo, Ohio, who came to North Carolina during his days in the Navy in the 1950s. "I fell in love with this state and married a beautiful girl from here. I didn't have any need to go back home. And his wife, Kay, has three grown children, Mike, Patsy S. Swain and Jim Jr.

What is his advice to homeowners about their heating and air conditioning units?

"The main thing the public neglects is the filters. They should also have the units checked regularly. But the main thing the homeowner should do is keep the filters clean. It varies depending on the activity in the house, but changing the filters every 60 to 90 days is the rule of thumb."

"It's like the radiator of a car. If it gets stopped up, it's going to overheat. If you don't have the air coming in, you're going to damage and shorten the life of your furnace and increase your power bills — all because of a one dollar filter. It's surprising how that is neglected."

Some older furnaces should be replaced, he said, even if they are working. "The new ones are much more efficient than the ones made 15 years ago. They can truthfully save by switching out to a more efficient furnace," Sulier recently replaced an oil furnace, and the owners saw their oil use cut in half.

Sulier installs oil and gas furnaces and heat pumps. He said his GMC units carry the best warranty in the business.

For years, Clemmons seemed like a natural place for car dealers. But there weren't any. That's no longer the case, and Clemmons Auto Sales Inc. is now leading the way. Opening in August 1998, Clemmons Auto Sales sold 167 cars in its first year, and the company has plans to expand in the new year.

Soon, Clemmons Auto Sales will build a new lot behind A Cleaner World, right across from its lot that now faces Lewisville-Clemmons Road.

Owned by Rick Hester, Jerry Hester and John Lowder, the company packs a lot of experience in the car sales business.

"I've been selling cars about 15 years," Rick Hester said. "I've grown up with cars and messed with them all my life — buying and selling and giving people a good deal."

Clemmons Auto Sales stocks about 40 to 45 cars on the lot, and most of them have been locally owned.

"They are either trade-ins from Parkway Ford or Flow Motors. We don't like to buy from auctions. We carry cars ranging in price from a thousand dollars to $20 thousand — depending on what you are looking for."

Hester has seen a lot of changes in the car business in recent years. "When parents are buying for their kids now, they are buying a cheaper car instead of putting them in a $12,000 or $15,000 new car. It's just not good sense to put a 16 year old in a new car. He's going to bump it up or scratch it."

While Clemmons residents have known the Hester family for generations, car buyers from across the region and even out of state have found Clemmons Auto Sales.

"We've got people who have come from Virginia, South Carolina and Georgia," he said. "If it's a good deal, people will come and look, and buy."

The company has also found an excellent salesman in Sabrina Haneline. "She has been with me since I opened, and she can run the show," Hester said. A lot of women like to buy a car from a woman. They don't like to buy from a guy."

Go by and see Clemmons Auto Sales for an excellent choice in quality used cars. The hours are Monday-Friday 12-8; Saturday, 9-5. The telephone number is 768-3025.

Fast-growing Clemmons Auto Sales will build a new lot.

Local Seniors Gearing Up For Senior Games, Silver Arts Competition

By Mike Harshbarger
Davie County Enterprise Record

Hollis Smith spent most of her adult life working and raising children. Now she spends it shooting basketball and pitching horseshoes.

And as ambassador for the Davie Senior Games, she's urging other senior citizens to be active, to take part in the games.

In addition to the many sporting events, there are Silver Arts competitions, including writing stories and poems, photography, painting, crocheting and other crafts.

"It's a good way to keep busy and meet new people."

"It's really, really fun," Smith said. "Ask people, when you went to school, what was the favorite thing. It was recess. This is senior citizens recess."

"When you're older, you're not as inhibited. Nancy (Tutterow) said it doesn't matter if you make a fool of yourself."

The participants in the Senior Games are no fools. They compete for health and for fun, but they try to win, as well.

"It's not matter if you know the people or not, when you're competing against them, you're laughing and talking and making friends," Smith said. "We really have a good time."

In its sixth year in Davie County, the Senior Games stresses the three F's - fitness, fun and fellowship.

"We want to get people more interested," she said. Smith is available for presentations to clubs and other groups.

And she's been quite successful in the Senior Games, bringing home from the state games gold, silver and bronze medals in basketball shooting and a silver in horseshoe pitching. She also competes in softball and football throws and shuffleboard.

Last week, Smith and Tutterow were at the Brock Gym in Mocksville practicing basketball, the "granny" shots.

"You ought to see us do a three pointer," Smith said. "We have to go far down, you can't even see the goal. You just have to get it going and guess where it's at."

The Davie County games will be held April 20-25, the state games in the fall.

Among the sports activities: archery, badminton, basketball shooting, basketball 3-on-3, billiards, bowling, croquet, cycling, field events, football throw, golf, horseshoes, race walking, racquetball, shuffleboard, softball throw, spin casting, swimming, table tennis, tennis and track events.

Among the Silver Arts activities: acrylics, drawing, mixed media, oil, pastels, photography, sculpture, watercolor, essays, short stories, written life experiences, poems, comedy and drama, dance, instruments, singing, basket weaving, china painting, crocheting, hooked rugs, jewelry, knitting, needlework, quilting, stained glass, tole painting, tating and needlelace, thrown and hand built pottery, weaving, woodworking and wood carving.

The only requirement is that you be age 55 or older.

For more information, call Smith at 998-4150; or contact Kathy Streit, local coordinator, at the Mocksville Davie Parks and Recreation Department, 634-2325.

Original Negro History Week Created By Carter Woodson

By Alice C. Galster
When Carter G. Woodson created Negro History Week, he selected it to begin in February in the week containing the birthdays of Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass.

Both men were most instrumental in bringing about a vast change in the life and history of African-Americans.

The signing of the Emancipation: this great concept of release freedom or emancipation has been appreciated by blacks since the historical signing of the Emancipation Proclamation by Abraham Lincoln, Jan. 1, 1863.

The first crucial victory for the North in the battle against the South was the Battle of Antietam. On Sept. 14, 1862 General G.B. McClellan of the North stopped General R.E. Lee at Antietam. This was the victory the North had needed before Lincoln would announce on Sept. 22, 1862 that if the states in rebellion did not return to the union by Jan. 1, 1863, he would declare their slaves to be "forever free." The South rejected the idea. So on New Year's Day, 1863, Lincoln issued the Emancipation Proclamation.

"Frederick Douglass (1817-1895) was the leading spokesman of African-Americans in the 1800s. Born a slave, he was taught to read and write by one of his master's wives, after which, he was self-taught. He became one of the greatest orators of all time. Douglass escaped to England, and after one of his famous speeches he was asked to address Parliament.

Friends of Frederick Douglass in England gave him money to buy his freedom. After returning to America he continued to speak to anti-slavery groups, and in 1847 he started his anti-slavery newspaper the North Star, in Rochester, N.Y.

After many visits to President Lincoln, he influenced getting the president to abolish slavery.

"Carter G. Woodson (1875-1950) was born in New-Castle, Va., the oldest of nine children of former slaves, he was unable to attend school because his parents needed money he earned in the coal mine. He was unable to attend school full-time, he was self-taught and graduated from high school at age 20, and earned a degree from Berea College in Kentucky in 1903, and completed his graduate work at Harvard University.

He had an intense interest in the field of black history and explored vast information in the field. Thus he founded black history week in 1926, to call attention to contributions to civilization made by blacks.

"George Arthur Buttrick edited the Interpreters Dictionary of the Bible. This week was observed nationally and expanded into Black History Month in 1976 by proclamation as part of the National Bicentennial.

DHS Wrestlers Avenge Loss; Flying High Into State Championships

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

WINSTON-SALEM — First, Davie High's wrestlers got mad. And then they got even.

At least that's how senior Zeb Carter explained the turnaround in the Midwest Regionals Saturday at Mt. Tabor, where the War Eagles avenged a 28-27 loss to Northwest Guilford in the Dual Team Championships.

They took care of business over the weekend, rolling Northwest and the rest around like dice in a convincing victory. Davie drove home its message with 187.5 points to the Vikings' 129. Scotland County finished third with 121.

"We just decided that wasn't who we were last week," said Carter, referring to the loss on Feb. 5 that blocked Davie from a possible dual state championship. "We just let everybody down. Everybody came to practice and worked really hard to show everybody what Davie County is about."

The War Eagles will fly high into this weekend's Individual State Championships at Charlotte's Independence Arena on the wings of nine qualifiers. The matches begin Friday, with the finals on Saturday evening.

Janey Holt (125) and Brian Murphy (215) bombed their weight classes with first-place performances. Adam Bailey (119), Will Lowdermilk (160), Carter (171) and J.J. Rice (275) took runner-up and Brad Pack (112), Jeremy Sink (135) and Scott Cornatzer (189) won consolation matches for third. The top four from each class advanced.

Couch Buddy Lowery knows the value of a deep talent pool.

"I think we just won it on depth," he said. "Out of 26 matches in the semifinals, we wrestled 11 of them. There isn't many people that do that. That's where you get your points."

No one passed the Holt-Murphy test. Holt (26-7 record) took the long road, winning four decisions, and Murphy (28-2) was done before dark, beating two opponents and then accepting an injury default in the final.

"Murphy just kind of walked through it, really," Lowery said of his foremost wrestler. "He's pretty good, better than most people give him credit for. He gets it in gear and goes. He has gotten real good on his feet, and that's helped him."

The field took a jolt from Holt. "He had a real good tournament," Lowery said. "He wrestled real good."

Lowery congratulated several wrestlers, including some who failed to advance. "Bailey wrestled well," he said. "He got the monkey off his back."

War Eagle wrestlers celebrate their regional championship in individual competition.

"Lowdermilk wrestled as well as anybody I've got."

"(Freshman) Drew Beck was 20-11 and I think he's had a heck of a year. He wrestled hard. From day one, he's gotten better."

*Chris Barnett wrestled well the first round. He improved tremendously from day one.

Try Again War Eagles Back; Looking To Finish Strong

The Davie wrestling team's fiasco against Northwest Guilford two weeks ago in the Dual Team Championships felt like a Rio Flair figure-four leg lock.

The War Eagles got all tangled up. They put on one black sock and one blue sock.

They had a bad hair day, a bad rhythm day, and a bad odor day.

When you combine all those elements against the state's seventh-ranked team, you go home without your dream. Davie went home 28-27.

Northwest dazed the War Eagles in the 112 and 119 matches, tormented them through the middle rounds and built a commanding 25-3 lead.

Davie became unraveled and screamed for stalling calls that never came. Northwest went into wrestling's version of Four Corners and prevailed. Davie's den resembled a funeral. In the dead aftermath, the War Eagles were quieter than their performance.

"I don't know what happened in the dual team," Scott Cornatzer said. "We just didn't come out. It wasn't our night and the calls didn't go our way."

Brian Murphy struck harsher tone. "We know that we sort of got cheated out," he said.

The War Eagles changed a lot in a week. They devastated 19 teams in Saturday's Midwest Regionals, winning that title for the first time since 1995 and for the eighth time in 12 years. Runner-up Northwest Guilford finished 58.5 points behind. Coach Buddy Lowery will take nine qualifiers to this weekend's Individual State Championships at Independence Arena in Charlotte.

Anyone who doubts fourth-ranked Davie's resilience or resolve remains an unranked student of history.

In the 1995 Dual Team State Finals at Davie, Riverside rallied from a seven-point deficit in the final two matches to steal a 33-31 win, ending Davie's 49-match winning streak. The next week, in the Individual State Championships, 10 Davie wrestlers registered 121 points, beating Orange by 33.5 and capturing its second state title in two years.

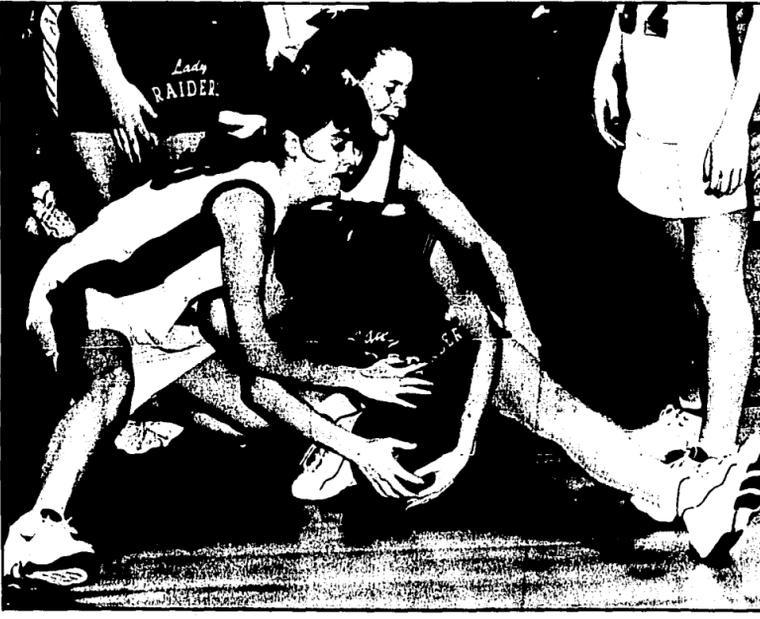

With that kind of see-saw history, the smart money says hold your horses.

The disappointment from the premature loss to Northwest lingered for awhile, then Lowery changed the team's mood.

"I guess they got over feeling sorry

Boys Come Out Cold; Hold On For Win

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

CHINA GROVE — Davie's varsity boys basketball team had to blast its way out of the Central Piedmont Conference's petting zoo Friday night, but survived with a 70-54 victory over last-place South Rowan.

With Davie missing 21 of its first 30 shots, the Raiders led throughout the first half and took a 28-25 lead into the locker room. Dangerously close to watching their playoff dreams swirl down the drain, Coach Jim Young stoked his players' ashes during the break and ignited a raging second-half fire. From there, the War Eagles hit 14 of 28 field goals, made 16 of 20 free throws and rode the Derek Faulkner-Duane Phillips train to victory lane.

Faulkner, who is averaging a torrid 20.3 points over the last eight games, saved 16 of his game-high 25 points for the second half. He dominated almost every phase of the game, leading his team with five assists, nine rebounds and four steals. He also converted all seven of his free throws.

Matching his season high, Phillips scored 11 of his 16 points during crunch time.

Davie, recovering from the ragged first half, became a well-oiled offensive machine when it mattered most, improving to 4-5 in the league and letting their playoff hopes ride on last Tuesday's game at Mt. Tabor. A win would secure the third seed in a four-birth race. A loss would likely mean a fourth-place tie with South Stokes, which holds the tie-breaker edge.

"We just came out focused at what

South Davie Girls Remain Undefeated

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Coach Sheila Tribble of South Davie's seventh-grade girls basketball team has created a predator with an appetite not easily quenched.

The unbeaten Tigers (6-0) guarded their Corner-Lipe Yellow Jackets and the Knox Trojans with the same ferocity late in the second half of their 46-15 and 55-16 blowouts as they did at the start.

No wonder. Tribble has two dynamic teams rolled up into one, prompting her to label them orange and black. The orange squad starts most games and has buried everyone in its path. Then the black team steps on the neck. With 11 players, Tribble rotates center Emily Clodfelter with each group.

"Every team has goals," said Tribble, who usually switches the units every three minutes. "The orange team's goal is to jump out, get a strong lead and never let the other team outscore them in a quarter. Then the black team holds and increases the lead."

They seldom bother to check the score. "Everybody has goals, and if they don't reach their goals they have to pay the price at practice no matter what the score was," Tribble said.

There's been a constant pattern no matter which team's on the floor. The coach started black against Knox, and moments later Knox was knocked out.

"They did exactly what the orange team does every game: fast break, press, steal, fast break, press, steal," Tribble said. "That's a coach's dream when your two teams are that balanced."

Point guard Heather McDaniel, who scored six points in the first three games, erupted for 13 team-high points against Knox. As efficient as McDaniel was, Tribble refused to forget Megan Spay, one of South's many unselfish players who fed McDaniel continuously. "Megan did an awesome job at the outlet passer, hitting Heather for layups."

They started pressing and we did a good job of

Sara Miller, Dawn Singleton Lead North To Win

When Sara Miller and Dawn Singleton go to work on the same day, it pays off for North Davie's seventh-grade basketball team.

The 5-7 frontline girls scored 21 combined, paving the road for last week's 29-20 victory over Erwin. Miller carried the biggest load, piling up 12 points, 15 rebounds and three steals, on her way to reaching double figures in points for the third consecutive game.

"Every time that we get an offensive rebound, she is right there," Coach Jamie Lyerly said. "She gets the ball right in position to put it back up."

Singleton, who delivered a season-high nine points, made significant improvement from the opening week.

"(In the past) she would go to the side, fade away and miss," Lyerly said. "She really went to the basket in this game."

North broke open a 7-7 game by outscoring the Eagles 8-2 in the second, a surge fueled by guards Andrea Whitley and Allison Howell.

"They started pressing and we did a good job of for themselves," he said. "Nothing has been said about what could have been done or should have been done or how it was called. It was just: 'Hey, let's go, let's get it in gear and wrestle like we can.'"

Jamey Holt called the practices brutal. "We closed the door and turned up the heat," he said. "He just told us that he wanted everybody to wrestle hard. Everybody did and it showed."

Holt detected internal fire from Lowery, who urged his troops to work harder. "He is kind of that quiet motivator and just asked a little bit more out of us," he said. "In practice, he made us work a little bit harder. But you don't really notice it until the finished product, like right now."

Lowery emphasized a mad-dog tenacity.

"The last week of practice has been intense, very intense," Murphy said. "We've been going hard, real long and hard. He said it was time to quit being nice, and people stepped it up real well."

Davie changed patterns, going into last weekend without fear of failure. "We just said back with the pressure and everything, and said let's wrestle and have fun. That's kind of the attitude we had," Lowery said. "I didn't get a fever blister and didn't get any uptight."

The War Eagles answered their coach's call for relaxed confidence, bombing the 19-team regional final.

Coach Ron Bare of Northwest knew his team walked into the teeth of a lion. "I think it probably helped them more last week, getting beat and having something to prove, than it did us," he said. "Davie did a great job."

Bare acknowledged that his team has little staying power, unlike Lowery's perennial powerhouse.

"In the dual team, we got the momentum on them," he said. "We won a lot of matches in a row, and they couldn't get anything going. It's hard to get them back up because we won such a big match."

Will Lowdermilk concluded that Davie turned down the Northwest noise meter.

Tournament play will start Thursday 8 p.m.

"We were after them," he said. "I think we surprised them. Our wrestlers beat out three or four of them and that really got to them. We wrestled a whole lot better than them. I think we impressed a lot of people, especially Northwest. They didn't know what to say. They were speechless."

Holt knows that Davie sent a message, performing with unmatched vigor.

"We showed these teams that just because we didn't get to the dual team championships we're still the Davie team it's been known for," he said. "It feels a whole lot better knowing that we kicked the team's butt that beat us last week. We wanted it more than everybody else."

Comarizer proclaimed that Davie rebuilt its aura.

"We're beyond those other teams," he said of the regional competition. "We're a far better team than what we showed that one night at our place, and you can tell right now. We needed to show everybody because we didn't show up that one night, so we had to set Northwest and all them back."

As usual, Murphy threw the hardest verbal punches. "We wanted some payback," he said. "We don't like Northwest, and I think we know now who's really the best."

With a certain spring in their step, Lowery and sidkick Jeff Barney came will transport nine ringleaders to Charlotte Thursday night. Can they pull it off?

"Nine can make some noise," he said. "It's just according on how you get backed. We do have some pretty good wrestlers. I don't know if we've got anybody that can win a state championship, but we've won a lot of things on depth, maybe not having the best but having a whole bunch of them that are good."

Winning it all could be a stretch, but Murphy can smell it.

"This year was supposed to be our year, and it isn't over yet," he said. "We've still got another week, and I think we've got a good shot."

As Davie will attest, two weeks ago was two weeks ago. This week is something else.

Hill Finishes Third At State Meet

Garick Hill proved again why he's one of the premier runners in the state, finishing third in the 3200 in the state indoor track meet in Greensboro recently.

The senior from Davie High ran in 9:58, just one second out of second place and 10 seconds out of first.

Golf Classic To Be Held May 1

The 1967 class of Central Davie High School announced the kickoff for the Second Julius E. Sauter Scholarship Golf Classic, which will be held at Hickory Hill Country Club on May 1, 1998.

Officials are trying to enhance the tournament by adding celebrity players, more teams, more trophies and more prizes.

Tigers Attack Competition, Remain Unbeaten

Brittany Walker backed McDaniel with 12 and six others contributed: Sara Williams (eight), Jenny Broadway (six), Jennifer Barney (six), Ryanne McDaniel (four), Candace Ferrell (four) and Deanna Shamel (two).

South, uncharacteristically, sputtered early against Corrier-Lipe. But Walker solved that quickly, nailing a 3-pointer that triggered a spectacular 18-point first half. That's all the Tigers needed. "All of a sudden, it was like a spark," Tribble said.

Walker abused the Yellow Jackets throughout the first half, tacked on three more points for 21 in the opening minute of the third quarter, then took the rest of the day off. Like the Spy-to-Heather McDaniel show, Williams kept finding Walker.

"Sara fed her like you wouldn't believe," Tribble said. "Brittany would steal it and go or Sara would get an outlet and pass it right straight to Brittany. They did a wonderful 1-2 combination."

Wonderful is the perfect description of South's season so far.

"They are all just thrilled because they're all playing the same amount of time just about," said Tribble, who loves coming to practice everyday with assistants Melanie Linville and Jennifer Custer. "The cool part about coaching this bunch of girls is that there's no jealousy on this team what so ever. From my standpoint, it's been incredible."

Ryanne McDaniel added eight against Corrier-Lipe. South also got five from Heather McDaniel, four from Kirsin Durham and two each from Williams, Broadway, Spry and Barney.

Unbeaten Collide
The Piedmont Middle School Conference championship will probably be decided Thursday when unbeaten J.N. Fries visits South. Tribble is braced for basketball's version of a hurricane.

"We know they do their typical press," she said. "They're tough, they're always tough, and we feel like that will be the true test of whether or not we're a good team."

Defense Key In Seventh Grade Team's Wins

South Davie seventh-grade boys coach Tim Kenney had a simple solution when his Tigers, who crushed Corriher-Lipe and Knox last week by scores of 54-31 and 51-21, opened with two losses.

"We came back and practiced without a ball," said Kenney, whose team responded beautifully and evened its record to 2-2. "It got their attention and it also got them concentrating on what they're supposed to be doing out there."

The Tigers are mainly concentrating on defense. Their pressure stifled Corriher-Lipe and Knox, especially in the third quarter. In both third periods combined, South generated a raised-eyebrows 31-3 run.

"One of the biggest reasons why we're improving so much is our defense," Kenney said. "They are playing the way we asked them to play, pressing and forcing them to the weak side, and the kids are becoming better at help-side defense."

They definitely help each other on the other end. In an amazingly balanced offensive attack, 12 players scored against Corriher-Lipe and 10 against Knox. Micah Garner, who scored 12 against Knox, was the only player to reach double figures in either game.

Besides Garner's 12 against the Trojans, South got nine from Zach Miller, eight from Zach Hanrahan, six from Michael Clement and four from Brian Hunter and Luke Phelps. Ben Allred, Wesley Thompson, Clay Naylor and Kurt McNabb had two apiece.

Hunter, Garner, McKenzie Wiloughby, Phelps and Randy Waller all had six against Corriher-Lipe. Also scoring were Hannhan (five), Miller (five), Patrick Little (four), Clement (four), Allred (two), Larry Hudson (two) and McNabb (two).

Garner, leading the way with nearly 10 points a game, has become South's most reliable offensive weapon.

"Garner is a very heady ball player, a very intelligent player who knows basketball and has a lot of basketball sense," Kenney said.

Hunter has adopted the leadership role at point guard.

"Hunter is really coming on at the point," Kenney said. "He is starting to see the floor and understand that he doesn't have to (force anything)."

There's almost always a sleeper, and that man is Phelps, who uses his height (6-1) and fight to claim missed shots.

"One of the biggest surprises that I've had, and the most pleasant surprise, has been the play of Phelps," Kenney said. "I'm not sure how much organized ball Luke has played, but he is absolutely a terror on the boards. He's relentless, just has that natural aggression that you can't coach."

Rodgers Peoples 'Squeaks' Past Lillian Sidden For Contest Win

In last week's basketball contest, Rodgers Peoples overcame a mental lapse, squeaked past Lillian Sidden in the tie-breaker and claimed the first-place $25.

He left game 32, Sacramento vs. Washington, blank. He flat out forgot to pick a winner, resulting in his ninth miss and tying him with Sidden.

But Peoples' 120 total points turned back Sidden's 138. The Wake Forest-Duke tie-breaker totaled 125 points.

In one of this year's closest races, six participants missed, 10 barely falling out of the money race. They were Jimmy Lookabill, Lethia Johnson, Kevin Mullis, Bryan Eagle, Steve Frye and Gil Mullis.

Sidden's second-place finish means $5.

17-3 Run Late In Game Seals Win For S. Rowan Over Davie Girls

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

CHINA GROVE - After watching Davie's varsity girls basketball team hang around for a half Friday night, South Rowan's Janetta Higgins and Latoya Ramsey decided it was time to take over.

After five minutes of trading baskets, Ramsey's fast-break layup with 42 seconds left in the first half started a decisive 17-3 run that provided a comfortable 40-18 lead, a hill that was too steep to climb as the War Eagles fell for the sixth straight time, 55-46.

Ramsey and Higgins shared the third-quarter stage, scoring 15 of South's 17 points during the five-minute clinic and helping the Raiders win for the 16th time in 22 games. They improved to 5-4 in the Central Piedmont Conference.

Davie dropped to 4-16 and 1-8.

Higgins, who scored 14 to complement Abby Cress' game-high 16, demonstrated why she's arguably the league's most talented player.

"She's a factor, there's no doubt about that," Coach Carol Cozart of Davie said. "She is a good player, probably the (CPC's) best. She is very agile and handles the ball well."

"We let go in the third quarter, and that got us."

But the War Eagles won praise from their coach by refusing to pack up early with the game out of reach. From 40-18, they outscored South 28-15 to end the game, a gutsy showing under otherwise messy conditions. Cozart is probably the proudest last-place coach around.

"I felt like we played well and showed a lot of grit tonight," she said. "I'm just so proud of the kids because they work, and everyone of them continue to work."

Davie cut into the deficit methodically, closing within nine at 53-44 when Melinda Richie and Tiffany Peoples combined for eight straight points. But South, with only 45 seconds left, had the clock on its side.

"That's a lot of character in kids," Cozart said. "There are two many kids that just say: 'Oh, we don't have a chance.' These kids keep going. This is a great bunch of kids, a great bunch to work with. They work hard."

No one worked harder than reserve forward Ashley Andrade, who swarmed the boards and fought for six points.

"Somebody who came off the bench and did an excellent job was Ashley Andrade," Cozart said. "She hustled. She was so heady, so smart. She was running to the open spot and they were looking to her. She is a hustler."

Forward Jodie Stone is a warrior. She only scored five, but Cozart looks farther than that, especially since Stone competed furiously on one good foot.

"Jodie was jumping on those boards tonight," Cozart said. "A thing that people are not seeing is what she is doing under the basket. She was jumping so high and her foot is hurt. The inside of her foot has been hurt the last two games, and she wouldn't even tell me about it."

Richie was impressive, reaching double figures for the fourth time with 11. "She had an awesome game," Cozart said.

After Davie jumped out to a 3-0 lead a minute into the game, shooter Cress burned Davie's upset plans by scoring eight points in a 16-2 burst that lifted the Raiders to a 16-3 lead with 6:20 left in the second period. Davie's defense attacked Higgins, leaving the door open for Cress' spot-up jumpers.

"No, 13 hitting those shots didn't help life any," Cozart said. "Letting her get loose was something we were trying to prevent, but she is a good player."

Davie missed 11 of 21 free throws, and at least as many point-blank shots. "Look at the foul shots that we missed, look at the layups that we missed, so we had our chances," Cozart said. "We had a lot of shots within the four-foot range that we could have had." Peoples scored seven; Kathryn Jackson, Katherine Phillips and Kim Anderson added four each; Tina Harkness had three; and Leslie Holcomb had two. Davie ended the regular season Tuesday at Mt. Tabor, which drilled Davie by 22 in the first meeting.

JV Girls Take Hard Losses In CPC

Davie's JV girls basketball team took one on the chin Friday against the South Rowan Raiders, who slugged their way to a 61-54 victory.

"It was very physical," said Coach Mark Sinopoli, whose team lost 39-34 earlier in the week to West Forsyth and dropped to 13-6 overall and 4-5 in the Central Piedmont Conference.

He counted the blows. "Shelby Michael was hit in the nose and didn't play in the second quarter. Heather Schlepner was kicked in the jaw and sat out a little bit; and Stacy Queen sprained her wrist.... The game took its toll on us."

Remarkably, Schlepner never found her groove and still managed 26 points. "Her performance was off and she still had that many," Sinopoli said.

Michael added 12. Amber Hamm (five), Jerri Ann Angell (four), Katie

"...everybody got to play, and we still played with a high level of intensity."

— Mark Sinopoli

Bernhardt (three), Mary Beth Dinkins and Sarah Jackson (two) also scored.

The coach applauded the efforts of Angell and Hamm. "In the last two games, Angell has really stepped up," he said. "She had a total of four points (in the first seven CPC games), and then she had four in each of the games last week.... Hamm had two really good games, too."

Sinopoli used his bench frequently, without skipping a beat. "That's a real credit to the girls because everybody got to play and we still played with a high level of intensity," he said.

Davie frittered away a four-point lead against the Titans, who stole the game with a 12-3 game-ending run. "We had a very weak fourth quarter," Sinopoli said. "We had it mostly finishing. They got ahead, we started fouling and they made their free throws. We just couldn't put the ball in the basket."

Schlepner (12 points) and Michael (nine) led the way in the swarming for the ninth consecutive time in league play. Davie got four each from Angell and Hamm, two apiece from Bernhardt and Dinkins and one from Heather Lanning.

Slow-pitch Softball Signups Till Feb. 21

The Mocksville-Davie Parks and Recreation Department is accepting registration forms for girl's slow-pitch softball.

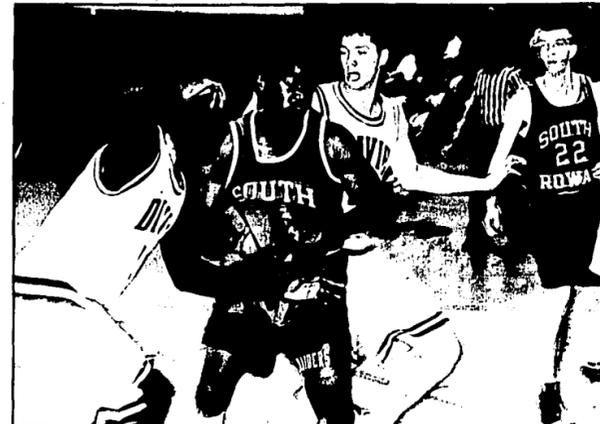

The age groups: pee-wee (7-9), midget (cannot be 13 before Aug. 1, 1998) and junior (cannot be 16 before Aug. 1, 1998).

Registration fee is $25. There's a $5 discount for each additional player in the same family. Registration deadline is Feb. 21. A $10 late fee will be applied after Feb. 21. Any registrations received after Feb. 28 will be put on a waiting list.

The Rec. Dept. is combining with the Davie American Little League to make a county-wide program in hopes of making an overall better program. Fast pitch will be registered through the Davie American Little League while slow pitch will register through the Rec. Dept. Also, the pee-wee-minor divisions (ages 7-9) will not be combining.

Spirit Alive For Davie's JV Boys Despite Nine Game Losing Streak

One frenzied sequence adequately described the Davie JV boys basketball season.

Down a point with six seconds to go against West Forsyth last week, Davie's Ivan Lynch drove into the lane and put up a potential game-winning shot. It was swatted out of bounds but the War Eagles, with a couple of seconds left, had one last chance. Lynch worked free for an open 3-pointer.

Davie, which has lost four CPC games by three points or less, just needs one of those crucial shots to fall. "If we would have won one of these close games in the past, Ivan would have hit that shot," Coach Leo Brunelli said. "They outbounced us by one last time, and this time we outbounced them 29-18 and we lost our leading rebounder (Orsillo)," Brunelli said. "I'm not disappointed in the kids. They want to pick it up. These are teams that we can beat. (Collins and Orsillo) were our two main players, but we've been putting up the same numbers. I'm not taking anything away from them, but the shots are still there."

Against West, Shawn Brooks backed Graham with 15, and Andy Helling (nine) and Peacock (eight) were productive.

Other than Helling, who canned five 3-pointers, no one could find their touch against South, which capitalized on two disastrous quarters by the War Eagles. They scored a total of 13 points in the first and fourth quarters.

"We just couldn't make a shot," Brunelli said. "It was there, we just couldn't put it in. You're not going to win with two bad quarters. We went through a bunch of people, but no one could score."

Healing has flourished coming off the bench. "He got in a zone," Brunelli said. "He plays a backup role and does a great job. He comes through as you can see."

Through all the excruciating losses, Brunelli has somehow remained upbeat. "I wish we had another 20 games because we are so close," he said.

Graham and Peacock had six points each. Tenor and Crump combined for 14 rebounds and Lynch handed out five assists.

Cold-Shooting Wildcats Lose Third Straight Game

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Until North Davie's seventh-grade boys learn to score, they're not going to want to look at the score.

The cold-shooting Wildcats lost their third consecutive game last week, 50-25 to Erwin.

Coach Jimmy Brunelli complained that all the breaks went the other way.

"The shots are there in the offense, they're just not falling, and it's discouraging because they're bouncing around and everything Erwin threw up just seemed to go in," he said.

And he's not about to rip his players for shot selection, which is farthest from the problem.

"We had a lot of wide-open shots," Brunelli said. "The kids are shooting them. I mean, I'm not going to yell at them for taking a shot. They're just not falling."

Now the first-year coach senses uncertainty creeping into his players' head.

"Now it's tough because after a couple of shots don't fall, they think: 'Well, the offense isn't working.' But they have to understand that they wouldn't be getting all those shots if it wasn't working," he said.

"They'll start hitting them.... I'm hoping that they will."

Matt Moser hit more than anyone, scoring eight. "Moser had a good game," Brunelli said.

Nick Raby added six. Also scratching were Jon Goode (four), Nick Luffman (two), D.J. Sales (two), Dustin Carter (two) and Matt James (one). North hosts China Grove Thursday and travel to Corrier-Lipe Monday.

Notes & Quotes

Senior Wrestler Comes Back 'Pumped'

Davie senior wrestler Wil Lownders, who decided to end his career in wrestling, has decided to come back.

"I got pumped," he said. "I was really nervous in my first match because I knew it was single elimination. I came in with the sixth seed and I beat Nos. 3 and 2. It kind of hit me that this is my last chance to wrestle. After (this weekend), I'll never wrestle again."

First-year Davie varsity girls basketball coach Carol Conner argues that the War Eagles have surpassed last year's performance level despite their 4-16 record. They were 4-19 a year ago.

"Their win-loss record has not changed, but I don't believe there's anybody that can look at this team and feel like they haven't made improvement," she said. "So you've got to look deeper than where the little top end is."

Somehow her players' heads haven't drifted with losses occurring every week. "They are great kids," Conner said. "They don't give up, and they know I'm not going to give up. We've lost our games by 14, 20, 25, and 20 and one by 24, and that's it. Hell, our record last year was 10-10."

Tom Kenney, South Davie's seventh-grade boys basketball coach, is a living joke.

"When you win, you're never as good as you think you are," he said. "When you lose, you're never as bad as you think you are." After the first loss against West Rowan, I thought we were pretty bad."

Davie wrestling coach Buddy Lowry's varied career when Scott Conner lost 2-3 to Lumberton's Ernest Campbell.

"When you grab a hold of something and it falls, but you get out of it, you're not just not getting anything," he said.

Defensively, Collins, who had three steals in limited action in Friday's 70-54 win at South Rowan, is better than most. He sticks to ball handlers like a glove.

"Defensively is where he really shines," Coach Jim Young said. "He really took (Carlos Dizon) out of the game."

"With the ball, Collins, who had seven points and two assists, has a good-by gear. "He penetrates very well and finishes pretty well," said Young, who also promoted center John Orsillo. "He has worked his way into the rotation. He did a great job on the JVs, as did Orsillo, and it was time for them to move up."

Davie top scorer Derek Faulkner's skills have moved up considerably, perhaps as high as the college level. The slasher has scored 22 or more in four of the last eight games.

"He comes focused," Young said. "He has accepted playing disciplined ball, and knows that under that he can raise his game up a level."

Faulkner averaged a modest 10.2 last year.

"If college coaches saw him last year and saw him this year, it's a different Derek," Young said. "He is ready now to go to the next level, and I hope some people get a look at him because he can definitely play. We've got him playing out of position (small forward). He can play at two in college, and take them guards in and post them up. He can outjump them, and he's now getting his outside shot down."

Young is looking to employ a back-seat driver for remaining road games. Every time the War Eagles have been cornered and seemingly knocked off the playoff road, they've somehow managed to swing back.

"Every time we've had to win, they have done what they've had to do," he said. "Every time we've had our backs to the wall or a little adversity has come up, they have stepped up. (Friday) was one of those situations."

So again, our backs are to the wall. In fact, we're thinking about backing into the gym from now on. When we come in, we're just going to back in so we can get that mind-set to start the game.

Boys Get Fired Up For Big Comeback

we were supposed to do," Coach Jim Young said of the second half. "We were focused on running our offense all the way through, and not taking the quick shot but the best shot. We talked about that at halftime, that look, 'This is a must-win for us.'"

Young's halftime theme: Good teams overcome stressful times and make the big plays at big moments.

"Coach said you're not a good team until you come back and face a little adversity, so that's what we did tonight," Faulkner said. "We're gunning to play in March, and that's what he told us in the locker room."

Phillips figured that eventually things would come around.
"We came out, played like a team, stuck together, didn't get mad and frustrated and just ran our offense," he said. "We were a little intimidated (early). We had to get used to things, but we weren't worried. We knew we would come back."

Davie came back to tie the five times in the first five minutes of the third, then took the lead for good with 1:49 left in the third when Phillips hit a baseline jumper, triggering a 14-2 run. Larry Umberger culminated the spirited rally, powering in from the block for a 53-42 lead. "Once we got the lead and settled down, we knew we could run our stuff and score," Young said.

South closed the gap to five three times, the final time at 55-50, but two free throws by Faulkner with 4:31 left started a game-ending 15-4 burst.

Davie's second-half precision was poetry in motion to Faulkner, who took matters into his own hands every time South made a move.
"I don't think we can play any better than we did in the second half," he said. "I feel like I'm the leader of this team. So when things get tough, I have to take over. So that's nothing new to me."

The first half was different game. South bolted to a 9-3 lead, twice led by as many as eight and held all the momentum when Faulkner blew an uncontested dunk as the first half ended. Young attributed the flawed early going to South's bullish mentality and loose referees.

"The officials were letting us play, which is fine, and I think they intimidated us physically," he said. "They took us out of our offense a little bit."

Faulkner conceded that the War

Eagles were leaning on late January, when Davie spanked South by 32 points.

"I guess we were betting on that again," he said. "They came out and played us tough. Then we just realized that we had to come alive and play some ball to beat these guys."

South has lost eight of nine CPC games.

Faulkner - who is averaging 4.9 rebounds, 3.9 assists and 2.2 steals - has increased his scoring average to 15.2 tops on the team. Mike Whelan, who was held to seven, is scoring 13.3.

Davie got seven points from Kenny Collins, four each from Jason Nese and Larry Umberger, three from Ray Spain and two apiece from Jesse Marion and John Ortillo. Phillips' average has risen to 9.5. . . . Davie (9-11) suffered a flameout earlier in the week at West Forsyth, squandering a 47-32 lead in a 75-68 loss. Nese had perhaps his finest game, leading the way with 18 points and 13 rebounds.

South closed the gap to five three times, the final time at 55-50, but two free throws by Faulkner with 4:31 left started a game-ending 15-4 burst.

Filling A Need County Line Fire Chief Steps Down After 25 Years

By Mike Barahard
Davie County Enterprise Record

COUNTY LINE - Some 25 years ago, Jack Koontz and Ray Godbey were talking about their community.

The subject of fire protection came up. There were other departments ... Center, Cool Springs, Harmony ... but their community wasn't being served.

They decided a new one was needed. They traveled all the roads, measured from each of the departments already operating, and chose the U.S. 64 West/Ridge Road area as the best location.

"We could serve more people from here the way the roads were set up," said Koontz, who just retired from the department, having served as chief since 1975.

The first organizational meeting was held at the Davie Academy Community Building, and area residents filled the room, overwhelming supporting the idea.

In May of 1973, County Line Fire Department was chartered, with Godbey as chief, Koontz as assistant. A half acre of land was donated, and work began on a building, as did the search for fire trucks.

They started holding suppers to raise money (Departments weren't eligible for county funds until they were certified). And the donations rolled in. Within five years, there was no debt.

Koontz is proud of County Line's successes over the years. A Ladies auxiliary, that is still an integral part of the department, was formed the same year he was elected chief. Those fund-raising suppers have raised more than $250,000 over 25 years.

The barbecue recipe came from "Dwig" Dwiggin, who refused to cook the meat for that first supper, but offered to teach the firefighters. "We still use the same recipe that he gave us," Koontz said. "We have the original recipe written on a vinegar label."

The department has operated on $250,000 in 25 years, including all utilities, electricity, gasoline, maintenance and insurance. Another $550,000 went to the purchase of trucks.

It may seem like a lot, but trucks nowadays sell for in excess of $200,000 each, and there are plans to add a new one to the fleet in a month or two.

"We've borrowed some money, but we've tried to be close with that. When you borrow a lot of money, you're paying interest instead of paying for fire protection."

"It's been our policy that we make sure every truck in this department is a self-contained unit," he said, meaning that one truck can be used to fight a fire.

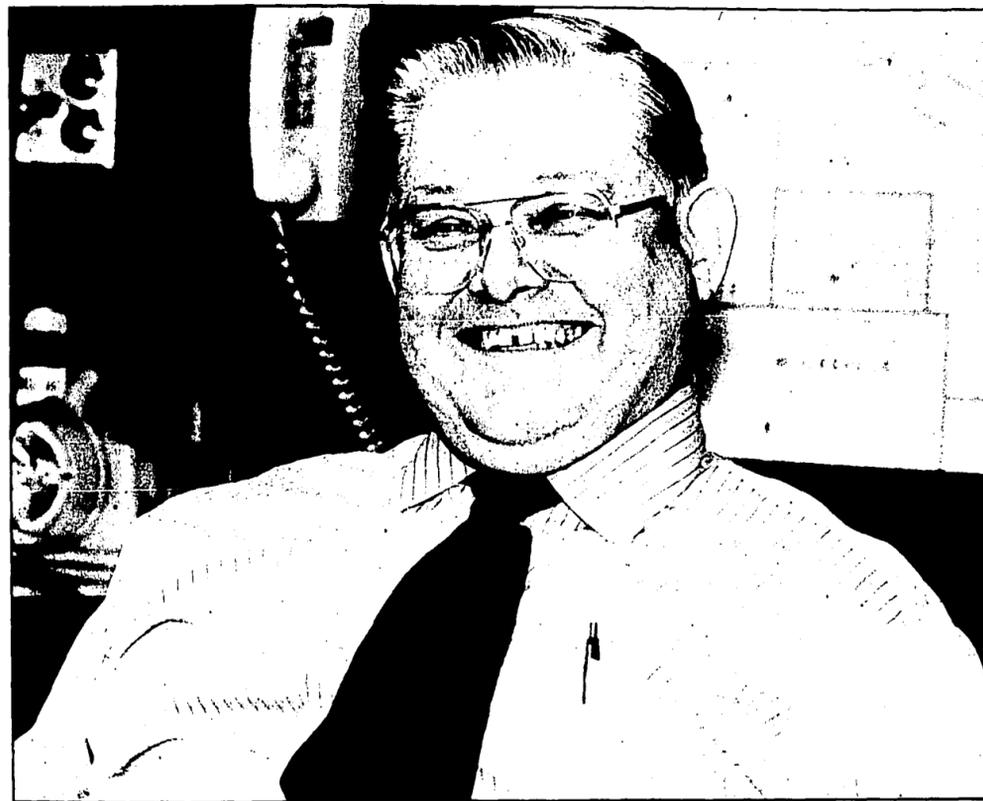

"The department has expanded in size and number of trucks over the years, and has become an important part of the community."

"We've had some very good people in this fire department," Koontz said. "I'm real proud of them."

"We realized there was several old people who didn't have smoke detectors." The department bought boxes of the detectors to sell, but it didn't work. Firefighters came up with an idea of how to use those detectors.

"We decided to go around and put these in people's homes. We put one in every home in this fire district. I still think that's a good idea. It's good PR and the people really talk up the fire department," he said.

"Those smoke detectors is only

Jack Koontz: "I'm proud that we've been able to accomplish what we have. It's an asset to the community."

The kitchen area was designed for several workers preparing a large meal.

Koontz points to a photo of original members of the fire department, several who remain active.

The map shows the County Line Fire District, and was used to determine the best location for the department building.

Koontz turned over chief's duties to Wendell Sain. He's now chairman of the board of directors.

Woman's Club Honors Arts Festival Winners

GFWC Mocksville Women's Club met at Bermuda Run Country Club on Wednesday, Feb. 11, to honor their Arts Festival winners.

President Stella Fisher welcomed faculty members Linda Bost and Rex Allen, Davie High School; Lynn Moore, South Davie Middle School; Lee Bailey, Renee Ridenhour and Janie Sell, North Davie Middle School, and parent Sonya Overby.

Jean Saunders gave the devotions. Two scheduled performances at the Brock Performing Arts Center were announced: "Perfect Love" on Feb. 24, and Appalachian Folk tales on Feb. 24. The Ways and Means committee announced plans for the club's annual Yard Sale, March 13 and 14 at the National Guard Armory.

Arts Festival co-chairman Sue Peeler, Marlene Shamel and Peggy Page reported 226 student entries in the festival. The local judging was held in January at the Davie County Public Library. Students entered literature, visual arts, crafts, sewing, drama, public speaking, dance and vocal music divisions.

Thirteen students from Davie High, North and South Davie middle schools attended, with each student receiving a $25 check and a certificate for first place awards. The crafts and visual arts entries were displayed during the meeting, and short story, poetry, essay and drama students shared their entries with the group.

Brian Bost won three first place awards, for metal crafts, ceramics and weaving. Other student winners include John Ashley and Valerie Nichols, visual arts; Erica Choix, decorative painting; Derek Edwards, papercraft; Kimberly Bolton and Sarah Stuts, poetry; Ronnie Overby, short story; Brandi Taylor, essay; Sophia Martinez, clothing design; Erin Coburn, vocal; Raya Anderson, dance; Anya Potts, drama.

Clubwomen winners include Eike Albrecht, small crochet, plastic canvas and Christmas ornament; Belle Bojor, jewelry and crewel embroidery; Doris Carman, plastic canvas, photography and news article; Betty Fellows, pencil sketch; Stella Fisher, photography; Sue Peeler, acrylic painting; Jean Scholler, counted cross stitch; Peggy Tuttor, counted cross stitch; Elizabeth Woodward, porcelain doll.

Hostesses were Helen Eaton, Mildred Modlin, Sara Lou Owings, and Annette Ratledge. Fifty-two members and guests attended the luncheon.

Senior Trotters Plan Tour Of Teen Challenge

The Senior Trotters met Thursday, Feb. 12 at the Center Community Building with 16 members and two visitors present.

Elizabeth Massey, president, presided and Bill Scaford had devotions. Bill read scripture from the 10th chapter of Luke. Since Valentine's Day was approaching he stressed the importance of loving friends and neighbors and said the club members were following this example with the care and concern shown to one another and the community.

Minutes of the January meeting were read and approved and the treasury report given. Happy Birthday was sung to members having a birthday in February.

The president announced the group would be traveling to the Teen Challenge Home for Girls in Irrell City on March 19. There will be a tour of the facilities and lunch will be served.

Each member brought a handmade Valentine to exchange and first and second prizes were given to the best. Nannie Wilson and Nancy Tuttor were prize winners.

Vernon Dull, the Davie County representative to the Sr. Tar Heel Legislature, talked to the club about the group and how they work with the representatives and senators in the State House and Senate to introduce legislation that will benefit the elderly.

Following the business and program, the group had a covered dish meal.

The next meeting will be March 12. At this time the King and Queen will be chosen to represent the club at the Mayfest in May. Lunch will be at K&W in Statesville.

Mac Parker is seriously ill and on our prayer list.

In memory of Wayne Reavis: For many years I've known this guy, and we can't help but wonder why? I've seen him happy and I've seen him cry as I retract some of the years gone by. He has endured deaths and sicknesses day after day. It seems troubles and struggles kept coming his way. I believe he felt his heartaches were more than he could stand. But we know God has a plan. To the family we extend our sympathy and love. We'll meet again in heaven above.

Betty E. West and her sister and brother-in-law, Marty and Bill Babcock, visited Retired Major Mildred Bachman at her home in Melbourne, Fla., during the weekend.

Jack Koontz Retires As County Line Fire Chief

one way County Line helps people in their district.

Through improving equipment and training and record-keeping, they now have a lower fire rating, which means a lower insurance premium for those living within 1,000 feet of a fire hydrant.

"I convinced Davie County to put one fire hydrant in every fire district once a year, at a location of our choosing," Koontz said. "It has made a tremendous difference. For every one of those fire hydrants, it's saving some homeowner or business more money on insurance than they're paying for fire tax."

"That's what we're all about, is helping people," he said.

Koontz has been active county-wide, supporting the hiring of a fire marshal, organizing "fire colleges" at the Davie Campus of Davidson County Community College, working for the E911 system to help all emergency services, and starting the county firefighter of the year program.

Koontz pushed for the fire tax, where every property owner pays a share, now at 4-cents per $100 property valuation.

"This is the most fair way to fund the fire departments," he said. "There's no way to raise all that. It takes a long time to raise $200,000 cooking barbecue."

That tax is less than the savings most homeowners realize on insurance. "It's one of the biggest bargains the people of Davie County have," he said.

Koontz said he thought the time was right to step down as fire chief. Wendell Sain was elected the new chief by fellow firefighters, and Brian Koontz, Jack's son, is assistant.

Jack will remain as chairman of the board of directors.

Responding to stressful fire situations requires a lot of energy, and Koontz says it is time to spend his elsewhere... with family, with church building teams to underprivileged countries, to the church community.

"It's getting harder and harder for me. It's a very demanding job," he said. "I'm not stepping out. I went from chief to chairman of the board. I want to spend more time with my family, do things I want to do," he said.

"I tried to operate this department as 'I here to help you'. That's all the satisfaction I get, helping other people."

Koontz is postmaster at Hamptonville, and is active with Salem United Methodist Church and Woodmen of the World. He and wife, Kay, have two children, Brian and Tammy, three grandsons and a granddaughter.

"I'm proud of this department, that we've been able to accomplish what we have. It's an asset to the community, and the community has been real supportive."

An impressive service of Baptism was held at the Methodist Church Sunday during the worship hour. Corey Jackson Tilley, infant son of Steve and Mollie Jackson Tilley, was baptized. Among those standing at the altar with the young couple during the service were both sets of grandparents, aunts, uncles and other relatives. Flowers were on the altar in honor of Corey, a white rose in bud vase and an arrangement of flowers.

Following the worship service the congregation and visitors gathered at the fellowship hall for soup, sandwiches and dessert, using a Valentine motif. Many thanks to the Methodist women for a delicious meal and an hour of fellowship.

Saturday, Feb. 21 we will have a church wide work day. Everyone is urged to come out and get the tasks done that have been put on the "back burner."

Sunday, Feb. 22 at 6:00 p.m. family night will be observed with a covered dish supper, plus Teacher's Appreciation.

Jane Crofts of the Concord community was a Tuesday afternoon visitor of her cousin Edith Zimmerman.

Joe Greco and his sister Patricia Greco Gulick of Bellingham, Washington spent three days last week visiting their aunt Mrs. Betty Santoli. This was the first time Betty had met her nephew and niece, however they had been keeping in touch through correspondence over the years. The Washington guests fell in love with North Carolina and plan a return visit. While here they visited many relatives including Betty's daughter and son-in-law Carol and Joe Franck at Hickory Hill one night for dinner. Also visited Betty's granddaughter Sharon Vogler and had tours of the new homes in the area that Sharon has been instrumental in building.

Sympathy is expressed to Mary Myers, Doris Mock and families in the death of their brother Harrison "Shorty" Hilton who died at his home Friday.

Also sympathy to the family of Verona Moser. She died Saturday at Forsyth Hospital. Plus sympathy to the Cliff Hoffman family. He died Saturday in Davidson County. Cliff and his late wife Lillian Sidden Hoffman were very active, dedicated and faithful members of Advance Methodist Church.

Sarah Reece of Mocksville was a Wednesday afternoon visitor of Edith Zimmerman.

The little children of Lori Jones S.S. class made Valentines and gave to the adults of the church Sunday morning. They were also excited during their presentation. We appreciate their thoughtfulness and their work of art. Cricket Faircloth assisted Lori.

Brenda Zimmerman of Glen Cove, L.I. New York arrived Monday morning Feb. 16 to spend the week, her spring break, with her mother Edith Zimmerman.

Several of the adults from Hillsdale had a Valentine Banquet at the church on Saturday night. I understand that everyone had a wonderful time playing games and having fellowship with each other.

Happy belated birthday to Sherry Stule and Darryl Bandy. Happy Birthday to Jamie Cook, Betty Cornatzer, and Nikki Steele.

The Women of Hillsdale will meet on Thursday night at the home of Charlet Mayhall.

Plans are already in motion for Belarus Missions. Those interested in going to the Wilderness Camp have already attended their first meeting and the families who are planning to host children this summer are awaiting the news of the actual date that the children will arrive.

Please continue to remember S.T. Dunn and Willa Brandon who are both in Forsyth Hospital.

Heaven's Child: Will Blackburn
'The Greatest Of These Is Love'

By Deborah B. Pullen
We dream about it. Sing songs about it. Join the gym, cut our hair, go on diets and move across the country in search of it. It's a fair question this Valentine's Day to ask: what is love? In our culture of broken promises, we don't often trust the words. But even the most frightened heart recognizes love when we see it in action.
This Valentine's Day, love feels painful, bittersweet. Today my family will bury our six-month old nephew, Will Bingham Blackburn.
Will came into the world on July 25, 1997 with the whole deck of cards stacked against him. A host of congenital problems was topped off by a deformed heart that just wasn't pumping enough oxygen. Dedicated specialists at Baptist Hospital went to work.
I watched my sister and my brother-in-law as we spent our hour after hour in Brenner's Intensive Care Nursery. Patiently learning from the nurses how to monitor feeding tubes and respirators and a bank of sophisticated machinery that made a 737 cockpit look like a toy airplane. Sitting by his bedside, softly singing to him as he lay unconscious. Missing sleep and meals and friends as they maintained the daily vigil by his crib.
The cost of love further demanded expensive sacrifices at home, too. Their teenager and two pre-schoolers needed attention, baths, rides to ballgames and trips to the barber. Diaper changes and stories to read and trips to the mall were sandwiched between the constant tension of lungs that struggled to breathe and a tiny heart fighting for life.
Our church prayed. Friends brought lasagna casseroles and chicken pies and carrot cakes and homemade biscuits. Compassionate mothers baby-sat the younger children, over and over lifting up my sister's exhausted faith and giving her strength to go one more day.
Five months and three operations later, Will came home. Some would even say miraculously. Christmas 1997 was especially exuberant. Will was home. We could hold him all we wanted. No respirator. No drugs. Even the silvery packages and satin bows paled in comparison.

My sister, who is notorious in doctor's offices for fainting at the sight of blood, learned to change Will's ilostomy bag. The first time she did it, I stared in amazement as she carefully dotted an alcohol swab around Will's swollen intestine poking through his abdomen. I felt a little faint myself, but she never wavered. When I asked her how she could possibly do it, she replied: "Because, I have to."
The last week of Will's life was agony. Unable to drink even an ounce of my sister's breast milk from a miniature bottle, he cried through the night, for six straight nights. On Wednesday, while sitting in the doctor's office, my sister looked down at him, and saw: he was no longer breathing. It seems fitting that we will bury Will on Valentine's Day. As we huddled together in the doctor's office, holding Will for the last time, I held his delicate fingers and looked into my sister and brother-in-law's eyes. "He had it all," I said. "He was loved."

When I think of love, I remember my sister spending three hours a day to pump her milk, so Will might have that extra edge against sickness. I recall my brother-in-law coming home from his high-stress management job and telling her to go to the movies, while he gave the children baths and put them to bed. I see their enormous medical bills, and see my brother-in-law's eyes when I asked if it was worth it. "He's my son," he said.
Here is a Valentine to every person who has given sacrificially, who has poured out unconditionally his or her life, for the needs of another.
And now abides faith, hope, and love. But the greatest of these is love.
(Editor's Note: Will Blackburn, 6 months old, died last week. His parents, Doug and Betsy Blackburn, live in Lewisville. Deborah Pullen, his aunt, lives in Advance.)

Spiritual Resources: Fasting

By Tom Torpy
Food is important. We eat to live. Food gives us the chemicals needed to build bone, muscle, and other necessary tissue. Food makes us "big and strong". Food provides the energy to sustain life processes. But sometimes disdaining food is more important than consuming it.
Ironically, fasting has physiological benefits. Fasting can help purge the body of toxins, give energy to the person who fasts, can stimulate clear thinking, and can sensitize the senses. Fasting is a discipline that helps us gain strength by exercising control over our appetites. It's spirit over flesh. Fasting can make us strong.
As a prelude to his three year ministry, Jesus was about to have an encounter with the Tempter, face to face. Jesus had to be at his strongest. So he fasted forty days and was hungry. Strength? Absolutely. The first temptation the Tempter set before Jesus was the prospect of food. "Tell these stones to become bread." (Perhaps in the wilderness, Satan was pointing back in history reminding Jesus of how God had taken care of the Israelites with manna in the wilderness for forty years. "If you're who you say you are, you are greater than Moses and surely you can do this," many have been Satan's thought.) As hungry as Jesus was he responded that God, not manna sustained the Israelites. God would sustain him. God, not food is the Source of life. What comes out of God's mouth is more important than what we put in our mouths. If Jesus were to trust in God, then God would make him strong.
Ever feel powerless in the face of temptation? Ever give in to a passion? Ever feel like your flesh was stronger than your spirit? Adding fasting to your diet may provide just the nutritional benefits you need to grow "big and strong."

Portraits Of Carolina 'Notables' On Display At History Museum

You probably have seen paintings of famous early Americans, such as George Washington or Andrew Jackson. But have you ever seen paintings of some of North Carolina's famous citizens of the 1800s? The N.C. Museum of History is opening a portrait exhibit featuring a legislator who fought in a duel, a leading lady of Raleigh society, the governor who established the state supreme court, and a governor's wife who died tragically. These and nine other paintings will be on view in "Face to Face: Portraits of North Carolina Notables," Feb. 24-28. This exhibit allows you to place a name with a face on some of North Carolina's prominent citizens from the Southern Appalachian Storyteller To Be Here

Experiencing the Southern Appalachian oral tradition of storytelling, Professor Lowman, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and a native of western North Carolina, shares folktales from his childhood at the Brock Performing Arts Center, 622 N. Main St., Mocksville on Tuesday, Feb. 24 at 7 p.m.

This event is sponsored by the Davie County Arts Council and is free and open to the public. "We want to incorporate all art forms in the yearly usage of the Brock Performing Arts Center," reports Nancy Norton, Director of the Davie County Arts Council. "Utilizing the Carolina Speakers from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is a great partnership for our Performing Arts Center."

A native of western North Carolina (primarily Boone and Charlotte), Joe Lowman is a graduate of Greensboro College and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he received his doctoral training in clinical psychology. Since completing graduate school, Lowman has been a member of the psychology faculty at UNC-CH where he is professor and assistant dean of arts and sciences. Throughout his 26-year academic career he has regularly taught undergraduates as well as graduate students and his inspirational teaching has been recognized several times (e.g. a Tranner Award in 1989, Senior Favorite Faculty Awards in 1994 and 1997, a Bowman Gray Professorship in 1995, and Phi Chi Annual Teaching Award in 1995).

Since publishing his award-winning book, "Mastering the Techniques of Teaching" in 1984, Lowman's research has focused on the qualities of exemplary college instructors and he has published numerous chapters and journal articles on this topic. The second edition of his book was published by Jossey-Bass in the fall of 1995. He has also published "SuperShrink," (two interactive computer case studies for use with undergraduate psychology students. Lowman has made over 150 presentations around the country at conferences, colleges and universities about various aspects of college teaching and he serves on the editorial boards of several leading journals dealing with research on college teaching. In his spare time, Lowman plays tuba with Chapel Hill's Village Band and sings bass in his church choir and has appeared in local musical comedy and operatic productions. During the 1995-96 year he fulfilled a life-time dream by playing sousaphone with the UNC Marching Band. Lowman's presentation is sponsored by "Carolina Speakers," a group of 70 UNC faculty who travel across the state sharing a bit of themselves and their subjects with interested groups. As a boy growing in Boone, Lowman learned to tell southern mountain stories at the foot of Richard Chase, a collector of folk tales from the region's native storytellers. Although he shares his research on exemplary college teaching and ways to balance intrinsic and extrinsic motivation with Carolina Speakers' audiences, he delights in opportunities to offer a glimpse of traditional southern Appalachian highlands folktales as seen through the eyes of a twentieth-century psychologist. 'Perfect Love' Feb. 21 At The Brock

The theatrical performance of Perfect Love is coming to the Brock Performing Arts Center, 622 N. Main St., Mocksville on Saturday, Feb. 21, at 7 p.m.

"This is in celebration of Valentine's Day and Black History Month," said Nancy Norton, executive director of the Arts Council. "Andre Minkin from Greensboro is bringing in this performance."

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways. It is a classic question with inadequate answers...unless you have an angel watching over you. Perfect Love is the comedy/drama that deals with what true love really is about.

In this fast-paced world of FAX machines, beepers and answering machines, sometimes love can get rushed, put on hold, or completely pushed aside.

Francine, Philip, and Barbara are old college friends whose views on love have formed an interesting triangle of confusion. Francine, a woman whose idea of love is marriage, has pushed her mind into a state of compromising limbo while waiting on her fiancé, Philip, to pop the question. In her haste, she has rushed past how good or bad a love relationship can be. Meanwhile, Philip has placed love on hold until he makes enough money to take care of a family. He is hoping Barbara will wait on the back burner just a little longer.

Then there is Barbara, a friend to both Francine and Philip, who has pushed love aside so far and so long that as an evangelist her sense of duty has ironically made her love for God an excuse for being exempt from feeling love for herself. It all comes together for a moving, often hilarious, journey on the search for...Perfect Love.

Perfect Love is written by Susan Hairston and Andre Minkin. It is performed by 7 AM Productions and sponsored in part by the Davie County Arts Council. Tickets are $5 in advance from local churches and $7 at the door. For more information, you may contact 7 AM Productions in Greensboro at 910-547-0871.

Centennial Quilt

Coolleemee Residents Invited To Take Part In Project

COOLEEMEE-If you grew up in Coolleemee or if you live there today, you might want to have your family represented in the town's Centennial Quilt.

Everyone is invited to submit a square.

Edith Chappell, Margaret Royster and Linda Willard made plans last week to carry the tradition of quilting into the next century. They are hoping to have enough squares to make a king-size quilt or larger to display at September's Centennial Festival as well as in years to come at special community events.

"Be creative," says Margaret Royster. "You may piece a square together, you may choose to embroider a design or family member names, or you might wish to design an applique for your square."

Beginning on Saturday, Feb. 14, blank white squares will be available at no cost at the Zachary House on Church Street. You may also use your own material and colors, so long as the fabric is thick enough not to be seen through.

"All squares must measure 12-by-12 inches, and please leave at least 1/2" blank on all four sides so we can sew them together," says Edith Chappell. "We plan to use a common color and fabric to bring all the squares together." Deadline for submitting squares is April 30. Quilt committee members will add squares representing many old Coolleemee landmarks, such as the old wood school, the Zachary House and the Riverside Hotel.

The Centennial Quilt Committee will be setting up a large, old-time quilting frame at the Zachary House this summer. If you are a veteran quilter willing to lend some time of a new-comer who would like to learn, please call 284-6040.

Save The Rain Forests

South Davie Club Wants To Make Difference In World

Save the rain forests.

Students at South Davie Middle School know the slogan is more than a catchy phrase, that it's more than the "newest cause."

The burning of rain forests each year is the major cause of global warming - the buildup of carbon dioxide and other gases that prevent the release of heat from the Earth; and rain forests hold most of the fresh water on Earth and release it back into the atmosphere.

Ask a member of the Endangered Species Club at South Davie, and they can spout off these facts one after another. Yes, there are many endangered species of plants and animals in the rain forests, and in our own back yards, they can tell you.

"A rain forest is any forest that gets over 80 inches of rain a year," said club member, Jody Dillard. "We get lots of good medicines from there. We're getting less because they're chopping down the trees."

The club is raising funds to help the Nature Conservancy protect rain forests around the world.

Throughout the year, the club has adopted manatees, a large mammal that lives in streams and rivers in Florida. It's an endangered species, and it's main enemy is boat propellers. "There's a foundation which takes care of manatees," said Jessie Tuttorow. She enjoys the meetings of the Endangered Species Club, and its activities.

"I like the activities you do," Jessie said. "We made crafts and adopted manatees and had fund raisers."

money to help rain forests and manatees, they're working to educate fellow students and staff members about the importance of the environment. They promote recycling and litter collection, and made Christmas ornaments out of discarded aluminum cans.

"I'm trying to show the kids that even though they're a small group, they can have a very real impact on the world around them," Harden said.

The club gets names of the manatees they adopt, and learn of their lives, their injuries and the hope for their future.

There are 32 students in the club. "I want to get these young kids involved in community service," he said.

"We, as club leaders, want to learn as much as we can about the plight of endangered plants and animals and how it directly or indirectly affects our daily lives," Harden said. "We share that information with our club members, and then encourage them to share what they have learned with those with whom they come in contact."

"We believe until more people have this knowledge, the destruction is going to continue. I am amazed at what I have learned in the last four months," he said.

Volunteering at South Davie has been an educational experience for Harden, as well. He wasn't aware of

Poster Perfect
Advance Girl Selected To Promote Shriner's Hospitals
By Jeanne Galtier
Davie County Enterprise Record
Allowed to hold her for a few seconds after she was born, her father, Gene, said she fit in the palm of his hand. Ten years later Megan is a straight A student at Pinebrook Elementary School where she's in fifth grade, plays the piano, runs a concession stand at her father's auction on weekends and can be seen on billboards and posters throughout the world. Megan Kropfelder has been a miracle child from the start. Her mother, Rosemary, who had a tubal ligation 13 years earlier, was just six and a half months pregnant when she gave birth to a daughter, weighing only one pound and 12 ounces. Megan was recently selected as the poster child for the Shriners of North America and Shriners Hospitals for Children 1998 public service campaign. Suffering from sacrylagensis, a form of spina bifida which means she is missing a bone at the base of her spine and a lot of nerves from the waist down, she has been named poster child for Shriners Hospitals of America. - Photo by Robin Fergusson

Bidding War Brings Price For Musgrave Building Even Higher
There's a war going on in Davie County. And it's a good thing. Two companies continue to bid for the Musgrave Machine & Tool building on U.S. 601 South in Mocksville, and the higher price is helping BB&T, which holds the lien on the building, and Roger Musgrave and his company, who is fighting to get out of debt. The bankruptcy sale of the building started at $3.5 million. The way it works, the current bid stands for 10 days unless an upset bid is filed. If no upset bid is filed, the building is sold to the highest bidder. The two companies are Vickers, an Ohio based company, and Kaydon, a Florida based company. Both plan to move into the building immediately, and would hire skilled workers doing similar work to what was done at Musgrave, said Terry Bralley, chairman of the Davie Council of Economic Development and a key figure in getting a quick sale of the building. Vickers had the high bid of $3.8 million last Thursday, and that was upset by Kaydon at $4.2 million. Vickers came back the next day with a $4.1 million bid, to be upset Monday by Kaydon with a $4.63 million bid.

Schools Getting Seized Vehicles From DWIs ... And A Headache
A plan by the state legislature to put money into local schools has turned out to be a headache. The DWI law that went into effect gave law enforcement officers the authority to confiscate vehicles of repeat DWI offenders, with the cars and trucks going to the local school system. As of Jan. 15, there had been nine vehicles confiscated in Davie. Please See Law - Page 7

Man Caught With Crack
A Mocksville man faces felony drug charges after Mocksville police caught him with 22 rocks of crack cocaine on Feb. 20. Marcus Jerome Fortune, 23, of 108 Hollow Hill Court, was charged by Mocksville police with possession of a controlled substance with intent to sell or deliver, possession of a controlled substance, misdemeanor possession of marijuana and resisting, obstructing and delaying an officer. He was placed in the Davie County Jail in lieu of a $20,000 bond, pending a March 19 appearance in Davie District Court. Officer J.D. Hartman stopped Fortune while he was walking on Montview Drive. When he told the suspect there was a warrant for his arrest and reached for his arm, Fortune began to run. Hartman chased the suspect through a yard, and watched as he ran towards his house on Hollow Hill Court. Officer Keith Gunter apprehended the suspect there. The packages of crack cocaine were found under leaves. The bags were clean and dry, the leaves above them wet and dirty. Fortune's footprints were the only ones in the area, Hartman reported. Another package was found, as well as a rock of crack cocaine on top of a barrel. One plastic bag held six rocks of cocaine, the other 16. Officers also seized $474.

Mocksville Approves Annexation Study For Three Areas
By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record
Annexation isn't something the Town of Mocksville tries to do very often. But town board members have taken the first step that could lead to the eventual annexation of three areas - Campbell Road, the East Lake subdivision and areas on U.S. 601 North. The board agreed to contract with the Northwest Piedmont Council of Governments to conduct an annexation study. The $6,000 fee will come out of the town's contingency fund. The study will include detailed information on every piece of property in the proposed areas. According to state law, an area has to have so much development per acre before it can be considered for annexation. "This doesn't mean you have to annex anything," Town Manager Terry Bralley told the board. "Is it feasible? This is how much you get, this is how much it will cost you." The Campbell Road area southeast of the creek would be a natural addition to the town, especially with town water and sewer services being added there, Bralley said. The town just received a $553,291 Community Development Block Grant to provide those services, with the town adding a $100,000 match. There are 52 houses in the area that will be hooked onto the town's water and sewer system. Town board member Buster Cleary said he was glad to see the grant awarded since the town began seeking help for the area two years ago. "That was a very active committee that included tremendous participation from the community," said Mayor F.W. Slate. Please See Town - Page 7.

Future Basketball Stars Shine Bright In 7-Year-Old Game

He grabbed the ball. Hesitated. And then shot. The ball ... went in! He scored! He scored! The crowd went wild. Or so it seemed. His father resisted the temptation to dance on the sidelines. Instead, he hoisted and screamed and clapped. That's my boy!

No, this isn't about N.C. State's victory over top-ranked Carolina. This is a much more important contest — the game for 7-year-olds last week at Brock gym.

My young superstar, not yet recruited by any colleges, scored.

Nothing but net. From six feet out. He demonstrated excellent skills, court savvy, a real presence on the court ...

Sure, there were those times when he grabbed the ball, hugged it, and started running.

A little confusion with football?

After four weeks of learning to dribble and pass, learning to run up and down the court, learning to shoot, learning to put their hands on a pile in the huddle, the pint-sized kids were turned loose to play the game last week.

The Mocksville recreation department has a wonderful program for basketball beginners. It lasts five weeks. The kids practice four times and then play the final week.

It was a coaching challenge. Forty kids had to be shuffled on and off the court. An old Dean Smith trick was used — sending in five fresh players every 15 minutes.

Coaches sometimes helped an errant rebound arrive in the hands of a youngster who hadn't yet touched the ball. Almost everybody got at least one chance to shoot. Everybody got a chance to dribble the ball down court.

Some precocious ball players launched three-pointers. Some grabbed the ball and took off on a fast break. Those players, of course, are already being recruited by college scouts.

It was high drama. All the parents brought cameras.

There were no fouls. Walking with the ball was the most over-looked offense.

The coaches stayed on the court with the children, reminding them when to play offense. When to play defense. When to tie their shoes.

Sometimes, the coaches tied their shoes for them.

The scorekeeper rewarded one point if the ball touched the rim. Two if it actually went in. And extra points flashed up mysteriously here and there to make sure the score was even at the end of the game.

The final score was about 62-62, but maybe 10 goals were actually scored.

"Were we 'home' or 'visitors'?" my son asked after the game.

I didn't know. Never thought to look.

"Did you hear us cheering for you?" I asked.

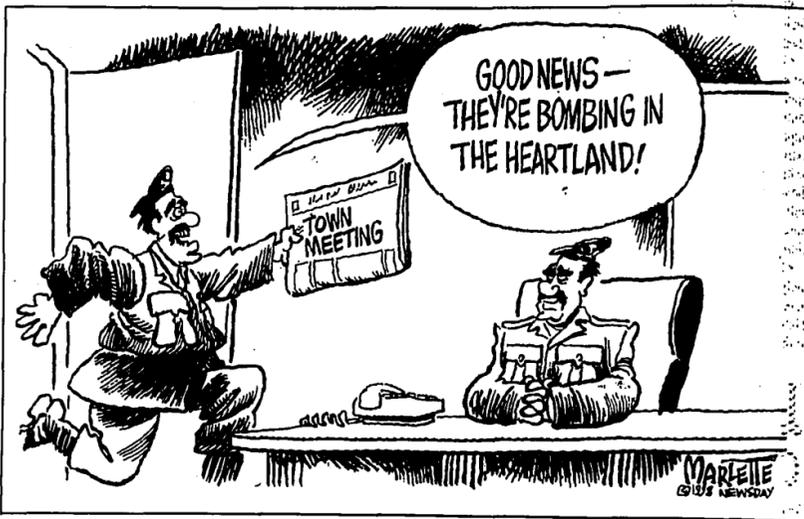

"Nope."

But then he had the biggest question.

"Did we win?"

It was a tie. A glorious tie. And we all went home with more joy than even the N.C. State fans could muster.

Animal Control Laws Needed For Protection

To the editor:

Last week I was the proud and responsible owner of two dogs, two adopted cats and two lovable dwarf bunnies. On Wednesday, I came home and found one of our cats dead in our yard. Sunday night I awoke to an ungodly noise and discovered two strange dogs mauling the other cat on our porch. Monday morning I was disturbed again by these dogs lunging at my dogs in their lot.

Because I have 8 year old twins and I was concerned about an attack on us, I called Animal Control. My 911 call was never returned.

Wednesday my husband came home from work and went to feed our dogs and rabbits. He saw two dogs gnawing at our hutch, when he yelled at them, they turned on him with a rabbit in their mouth. He tried to get Animal Control again and was told if we could catch the dogs they would come get them. We called a neighbor and found out he had been threatened by the same dogs and he knew who owned them. We tried to contact the owners but they were told nothing more could be done until the next day.

The next day I called Animal Control and the county manager's office. Since Davie does not have a leash law, all he could do was tell the owner to keep the dogs off our property and give them 72 hours to provide proof of rabies vaccination. These dogs were allowed to roam free without any shots.

Money can not replace our pets and I will never have peace of mind again about my girls getting off the bus. We need laws to protect ourselves and our pets. With rabies on the rise in all of our states, how long before another child is attacked and killed. Give our Animal Control officers the right to protect us.

Community Thanked For Supporting Brock

To the editor:

On behalf of the Fund-raising Committee for the Brock Performing Arts Center, we would like to take this opportunity to thank the entire community for their support in making the Brock Auditorium Renovation Project a total success. We can never thank the community enough for their kind generosity and hard work.

As a community, we should be very proud of being a part of establishing the center—a center that will serve virtually every segment of our citizenry. The establishing of the Brock Performing Arts Center demonstrates just how committed we were as individuals to collectively enhance the culture and lifestyle of our county.

The center is an example of what can be accomplished when our local and state governments, industry, business, civic clubs, churches and the community at large, put their biases aside, and work for the good of all.

The success of this project reflected a true cross-section of contributors and fund-raising efforts, grassroots involvement, if you will. Such efforts included our school children collecting pennies, raffle tickets being sold, fashion shows being held, people opening their homes to the public, concerts being performed, and so many individuals giving their time, their talent, and their money.

What seems as only yesterday, that pretty summer evening when Judge and Lester Martin hosted a reception at their home for volunteers and early contributors — an evening we will all remember. There was also that special Saturday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. Jay Mintz opened their house and grounds in order that we could conduct an auction. We will never forget the array of food donated by caterers and bakeries in the area.

Who can forget that nasty and rainy evening before Christmas, when drenched luminaries lead the way to the beautifully decorated home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Quinn — to the Deutz German Choral group for their beautiful and inspiring concert — to the various civic clubs throughout the county that made donations — to the churches in our community for their support — to individuals and groups that chaired functions to raise monies — to Mike Hendrix, Christy Schaffer, Lillie Mabe and on and on — to the Brock family for their total support and preserving a piece of their family heritage and Davie County history by perpetuating the deeds and the vision of B.C. Brock for his civic minded interests, his strong support of education, his concern for his fellow man and as a state senator representing the citizens of our county.

Finally, we would like to express a special thanks to Jane Simpson for her untiring assistance, enthusiasm and inspiration in not allowing us to think for one minute that the Brock Performing Arts Center would not be completed.

We now have a beautiful state of the art facility — just as we collectively took on that responsibility and made it happen — we must now collectively breathe life into this facility and transform it into the Brock Performing Arts Center by actively supporting the various arts programs and festivities that are offered thus leaving a legacy for future generations to enjoy.

Please use and enjoy your new facility — you have earned it. We look forward to seeing you there.

Dreaming: Causes Wouldn't Be So Lost With A Little Effort

If you could make the world the way you think it should be, what would you change?

Starting with a few of my own dreams, I decided to put the question to some of my more idealistic friends.

Family would be a priority for everyone everywhere. Spending time with their families would be more important to them than making extra money to buy a new car or bigger house. Setting aside the teenage years, children will appreciate time together much more than designer clothes and new cars.

People would care genuinely about other people and make the time to show it. They would have a strong desire to give back to their communities and their world the whole year through — not just at Christmas.

Every one of us would respect and appreciate our elders. There would be no senior citizens in rest homes, nursing homes or at home alone, who ever went more than a day or two without a visitor. And those visits would last long enough for them to share some of the wisdom and insight they have gained through a lifetime of experiences.

People would care a little more about green grass and trees and a little less about the green in their pockets. Environmentally conscious citizens would seek seats at all levels of government — and get elected. People who view a golf course as a way to preserve nature don't count.

Children would be taught to accept responsibility for their actions. People who set bad examples by suing the mall because they tripped over their own feet getting off the escalator and fell or a restaurant because its coffee was too hot would be forced to publicly apologize for being idiots, pay back all the money that was wasted on the entire litigation (except for their own attorneys) and perform 100 hours of community service. Their attorneys would have to sit in the corner of the courtroom wearing a dunce cap until they have written 5,000 times, "I will never waste tax payers' money on frivolous lawsuits."

The standard of beauty, as depicted on television and in magazines, would not be so unattainable as to require a cosmetic surgeon to lift, firm, tuck, tighten and blow up the natural features of 99.99 percent of the female population and have teenage girls starving themselves and developing addictions to diet pills. By today's standards, the legendary Marilyn Monroe would be considered a fat woman.

Now for a few from my friends:

- We would find a cure for cancer that works every time.

- Good paying jobs would be available for everyone who is willing to work, despite their sex, the color of their skin or their status in the community, so that no one is ever again forced to go without life's basic necessities.
- Everyone would have the same opportunities in life. It would truly be up to each of us what we make of ourselves.
- There would be no social stereotypes.
- Everyone would be at their ideal weight and remain there without a struggle.
- We'd all be able to sing.

With all the problems in the world, our list could go on and on. There's no harm in dreaming. That's what gives us hope. And, as long as we hold onto that, anything is possible, especially if we combine it with faith.

If a few more of us would turn our efforts toward the world's so-called lost causes, we might find they're not lost after all.

Coolemees Animal Cruelty Case Produced Some Unsung Heroes

The Coolemees animal cruelty case which recently concluded produced some unsung heroes; and dogs and their owners are lucky to have had these people on their case. The persistence and professionalism with which the Humane Society pursued the case, and produced knowledgeable witnesses, and the thoroughness of the District Attorney's presentation of the Society's careful documentation of the facts in the case should serve as a guidepost to those interested in reforming animal breeding and associated buyer protection laws.

The judge in the case was also a hero. He chose to do the right thing in spite of the legal loopholes presented by the defense. And finally, there are the dogs themselves. Apparently some of them will face euthanasia due to their conditions, but out of their suffering some good has emerged. The attention their plight has generated may result in some genuine reforms, within the county and also at the state level. They led short lives, but they will leave longer legacies.

The law is a "thorny thicket" and despite what appeared to be fairly damning evidence against the sellers of the dogs, the case might have gone either way. The lawyer defending the breeders based much of his argument on a technical distinction between active and passive abuse. That is, the dogs were neither starved nor beaten. Unclean conditions and unhealthy animals by this line of reasoning apparently fall into the realm of "passive" abuse, a distinction without a difference to any compassionate person. A second legal distinction derived from the fact that the Allens were not registered breeders selling to pet shops but were individuals selling to other individuals, and were therefore protected from penalties they would otherwise have suffered. (Who protects the unsuspecting public under these laws is anyone's guess.)

Until better, stricter laws are enacted, the watchword is still buyer beware, and people would do well to check out puppy sellers with the same care and research that go into selecting a reputable child care facility or nursing home. Both the Humane Society and a veterinarian from Winston-Salem gave lengthy and valuable testimony regarding what constitutes acceptable kennel practice and what conditions are considered substandard. It would be a great service to a prospective puppy buyers if this information could be made available to the public by way of an article or flyer.

Linda Tripp A Turncoat; All He Had To Do Was Ask

For me, one of the most disturbing aspects to come out of the brouhaha in Washington is the obvious betrayal on the part of Linda Tripp.

Apparently, Monica Lewinsky thought she and Tripp were friends and believed that she could trust Tripp and say anything in her presence that would never, later, be used against her. Sadly, for Lewinsky, Tripp turned against her, using her as a weapon in her long-fought war against a liberal president.

As if it's not bad enough that Tripp is mentally unstable, but now she's a turncoat.

A psychiatrist on NPR last week said that women, as a rule, seem to be prone to false friendships. I suppose women, then, are seen as drowning victims, who will latch, desperately, onto whoever is near.

I've been a little more savvy in my relationships.

I find it hard to create friendships with women, and have only two close female friends. My husband thinks that almost every move humans make is related, in some way, to the animal kingdom, and believes that in some circles, there are few males for many females, and the females fight for the attention of prospective mates. Perhaps lioness A seemed to be friendly with lioness B, inviting her to a baby zebra brunch or to go along on a hunting trip, but the minute the male enters the picture, the fur begins to fly.

There are also those females who will step on anyone on their way up the career ladder, and I suspect Tripp is included in this group.

I have known women of both types throughout my life, and in college, some friends and I devised a way to deal with them.

We named these women "dots on the wall."

Whenever they were cruel, caty, or betrayed us, we took a black marker, made a dot on the door facing, and wrote their name beside it. (I wouldn't advise doing this on painted surfaces at home, however.) They became non-existent to us, and by reducing them to a name beside a dot, we had overcome the pain and anger they might have caused. By the end of the school year, there were probably no less than 30 dots with the names of those unfortunate few who had become invisible in our lives written beside them.

I still use this practice, 17 years after I perfected it.

And I'm mailing a black pen to Monica Lewinsky.

Beth Cassidy

On another subject, the community I live in suffered a shocking and unfortunate loss recently.

A man who was well known to many people took his own life. There have been several speculative stories regarding the weeks leading up to this, rumors about financial matters, and about the gun and about the location.

It isn't the how and where that concerns me.

It's the why.

I can't say this man and I were friends, but we knew him, my husband knew him, and my son seemed to revel in making this man laugh. He had had a long and difficult life, riddled with family health problems and financial woes. But I don't think anyone knew how bad things had gotten, because he never said a word.

We live in a farming community, where if a person is sick, a neighbor will usually help out.

This man was sick.

His mental faculty had apparently deteriorated to such a state that he felt that his problems had overcome him, and there was no way out.

In a way, I'm angry.

All he had to do was ask, just phone up and ask, put the word out, and there isn't one soul on our road who wouldn't have helped. Maybe his pride kept him from it, maybe that's just the way he was raised, maybe his mind wouldn't pave the way for help.

So, in the end, it wasn't really a gun that ended his life. It was his silence.

Pause And Admire The Pansies

To the editor:

I believe we owe special thanks to those persons responsible for the lovely pansy beds that beautify our town square. Flowers don't just happen. They require a lot of care. We've often heard the expression "Stop and smell the roses." I think we should literally "Pause and admire the pansies."

Megan Kropfelder Chosen As Shriners' Poster Child

undergone numerous surgeries and needs crutches to walk.

In a wheelchair for the past six weeks since her most recent surgery at the Shriners Hospital in Greenville, S.C., she expects to be back on her feet soon.

With doctors who take time to talk to families and explain what's happening, Gene said the Shriners Hospital is one of the best they have been to.

That makes the Kropfelder family especially proud Megan was selected by the Shriners.

"It makes me feel good," Megan said. "I never thought I'd be picked."

First introduced to the Shriners by a friend of her mother, whose husband is a Shriner, Megan went to a two-week camp at the Shriners Hospital in Greenville last summer.

While at the camp for children with urological problems requiring them to use catheters, Megan posed for some photographs with Greenville Shriner Steve Childress for an article in the Shriners hospitals' magazine "Between Us".

Several months later, Megan and her family were notified that she had been selected from those pictures for this year's Shriners campaign "The Tradition Continues... Shriners Helping Kids".

Out of all the pictures taken everywhere, hers was chosen, Gene said. That came as a real surprise.

Some of the posters with her picture are already up in Florida. Megan's brother, who lives in Georgia, looks for her picture on billboards every day, he said.

Her father said he is looking forward to seeing her on a sign locally so he can say, "That's my kid."

Looking back at pictures of her in an incubator, he said, "It's amazing. There were a lot of prayers."

And she doesn't let the sacrylgenisis bother her. When she's out of the wheelchair, she will be back to riding the bus to and from school, he said.

At camp, Megan said she helped the other kids learn to catheterize themselves because she already knew how. She also helped plan a surprise party for the camp counselors and was voted most talented.

She used to collect rocks but has recently become more interested in Beanie Babies and has been searching everywhere for the kangaroo.

Megan has two brothers and a sister, Gene, 24, Brad, 23, and Beth, 24, and is the proud aunt of niece, Haley, and two nephews, Joey and Justin.

She also loves animals. Since she was five, she has been planning to be a veterinarian when she grows up.

This photograph of Megan with Shriner Steve Childress of Greenville, S.C. taken for a magazine article was selected for the 1998 publicity campaign.

Town Considers Annexations

Some residents of the East Lake subdivision tried to get a voluntary annexation a few years ago, but the plans were thwarted because all landowners wouldn't sign the petition as required. Of the 16 homeowners, 13 signed the petition seeking annexation, Bralley said.

The board didn't specify exactly what areas were to be considered on U.S. 601 North, but Bralley said it would be to fill in gaps where the town limits started and stopped from Willow Oaks Shopping Center to I-40.

After the study is completed, town board members will go over the report and decide whether to annex any of the areas. If they go forward with the plan, there would be several public hearings and notices before the annexation actually came into effect. The process would probably take at least a year, Bralley said.

Law Brings Headaches For Schools

County. None of the cases had gone to trial, as a conviction must be obtained before the schools can use or sell the vehicles.
In the meantime, the schools are responsible for towing and storing the vehicles. Towing fees are $450. The schools had to increase insurance to cover the stored vehicles. School workers are spending more and more time, and the space for storage is limited. The suspects must be allowed to get personal items out of the cars.

Some of the vehicles have liens against them, which brings on other problems.
One of the main drawbacks, according to W.G. "Dub" Potts, director of school auxiliary services, is that many of the vehicles aren't worth much to start with. He thinks the problems can be worked out if school personnel and law enforcement officers follow procedures that are in place.

Luther Potts, board of education member, isn't so sure. The intent of the law was good, "... but it was obviously not thought through very well."

Surplus Budget Plan Announced

Rep. Julia C. Howard (R-Davie) announced the House Republican plan for dealing with the anticipated budget surplus.
Revenue projections are ahead of $800 million and a budget surplus of up to $200 million is expected. The Short Session of the General Assembly begins on May 11.

• Eliminate the Inheritance and Gift Taxes;
• Raise the Homestead Exemption;
• Increase Personal Income Tax Exemptions;
• Increase the State's Rainy Day Fund.
"The huge budget surplus proves that we can afford these tax cuts," said Rep. Howard.
House Republicans also plan to increase pay for performing North Carolina teachers as called for in the Excellent Schools Act.
"Increasing teacher pay is a top priority," she said.

"North Carolina has been blessed with a robust economy. Instead of spending surplus dollars simply because the money is there, we should provide tax relief for working North Carolina families and put money in the bank to deal with future downturns in the economy," she said.
"The House Republican plan shows our dedication to helping North Carolina families. We hope to address these issues in an efficient manner and complete our legislative business in a reasonable amount of time," Howard added.

Woman Attacked By Masked Man

An Advance woman was attacked when a masked man forced his way into her home Saturday night.
- Faye Vickers Potts, 45, of Hillcrest Drive, had opened the door to let her dogs inside about 8 p.m. when she was surprised by a masked attacker, who pushed her into the residence, threw her over a small coffee table, couch and curio cabinet where she sustained her injuries. The attacker then walked out of her residence, according to Davie County Sheriff's Deputy Harry Rawlings.

The victim suffered bruises and scrapes to her left knee, right shoulder and left eye. A gash on her forehead required 53 stitches. She was treated and released at Davie County Hospital, Rawlings said.
She identified her attacker as her ex-husband, Kenneth Ray Potts of Winston-Salem. He was arrested Feb. 22, for first degree burglary, first degree trespassing and assault inflicting serious injury. He was released on a $20,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in Davie District Court March 26.

There was no sign of burglary or sexual assault, he added. The investigation is continuing.

Proposed 1998 Pool Budget Adopted

The board voted to approve a proposed budget for operation of Cooleemee Pool in 1998. Proposed expense is $22,600 and income is $19,300 plus $1,500 from concessions. Some large scale improvements are planned, raising expenses, and there were barely any chemicals left from last year. Income has been under-represented, according to Commissioner Lynn Rumley.

Tree Expense Ratified

Commissioners voted to ratify an expense of $390 for trimming of a pecan tree and removal of two old telephone poles that were not in use on Church Street in January.

Volunteer Nominations Due March 31

Mayor Grady Spry announced that letters have gone out to churches and civic organizations seeking nominations for recognition of Cooleemee's outstanding volunteers April 27. All nominations should be turned in no later than March 31.

Housing Consortium Membership OK'd

The board unanimously adopted a resolution granting Cooleemee's membership in the Surry County Housing Consortium, which helps with administration of housing rehabilitation programs. Member counties are Surry, Yadkin, Stokes, Davie and Forsyth, according to Rumley.

Money Allotted For Centennial Mural

Commissioners voted to direct $1,000 of the $5,000 budgeted for Cooleemee's centennial project be spent on a mural, which will be painted on a wall in the old mill.

An artist has been contracted to do the work, and the total cost of the mural will be $7,000 of which the centennial committee hopes $3,500 will be paid for by the N.C. Arts Council. Commissioner John Chandler said.

COG Delegate Chosen

The mayor was chosen by the board as Cooleemee's new delegate to the Northwest Piedmont Council of Governments. Since COG usually meets on the same day as the town board, Jim Rumley was designated as an alternate who may attend in Spry's place.

Town To Connect With County Offices

With plans for Davie County, the Davie schools and Mocksville to set up a telecommunication network that will allow them to communicate and exchange information through computers, the Cooleemee Town Hall could be connected to the network as early as July 1, according to Commissioner Bill Gibson.

The town is not participating in the initial phase of the project but should easily be able to connect to the system by tying in at Cooleemee Elementary School, he explained.

More Water Valves Opened In Town

The town has been pushing to have the county increase water flow for some time, according to Gibson. Recently, the county has begun opening more valves in the town — one about every two weeks.

Number Of Calls Decreases For Police

Police Chief Tim Wooten reported that the police department responded to 83 calls in January and made six arrests. The number of calls has dropped in part because the ABC Store no longer requests escort service.

Town Financial Report Shared

The town has $187,966.15 in savings, $2,608.66 in checking and $80,485.11 in Powell Bill savings, according to Town Clerk and Finance Director Dolly Campbell.

Yadkin Man Charged With Drug Trafficking

The Davie County Sheriff's Department was involved in an undercover drug arrest last week in Yadkinville, resulting in the seizure of more than a pound of cocaine.

Julio Cesar Garcia-Fuentes, 24, of Yadkinville, was arrested Feb. 17, for trafficking in cocaine by possessing more than 400 grams and conspiring to traffic in cocaine. He was placed in the Yadkin County Jail under a $500,000 bond.

He had delivered one pound and two ounces of cocaine to an undercover officer at Hardies in Yadkinville, according to Davie County Sheriff's Detective Chris Shuskey.

Garcia-Fuentes is believed to be part of an organization that has been bringing large quantities of cocaine and marijuana into Davie and surrounding counties, Shuskey said.

The arrest is part of a three month investigation by the Davie and Rowan County Sheriff's Departments and the N.C. State Bureau of Investigation with assistance from the Yadkinville Police Department.

An investigation into the organization is continuing, according to Shuskey.

Cooleemee Speed Limit Resolution Rescinded

COOLEEMEE — A resolution passed here in January to reduce the speed limit to 25 mph in the city limits has been rescinded.

The town board voted Feb. 17, to rescind the resolution until an agreement could be reached with the N.C. Department of Transportation.

Reading the statutes, Commissioner Bill Gibson said it is his understanding that DOT would only have input on what the speed limit is on N.C. Highway 801. But a DOT representative has asked that the speed limit not be lowered on Junction and Gladstone Roads.

As a compromise they have discussed lowering the speed limit on N.C. 801 to 35 mph through the city limits.

Gibson asked the board to rescind the resolution until the matter could be cleared up with DOT.

In anticipation of the coming change, Commissioner Lynn Rumley suggested that new speed limit signs be ordered.

When those are ordered, new city limit signs should also be ordered — noting the speed limit is 25 unless otherwise posted, Commissioners Jim Wishon and Gibson said.

The board voted unanimously to order new city limit and speed limit signs.

Duke Energy Makes Donation

Customers and shareholders of Duke Energy have successfully joined forces again this winter to help less fortunate Carolina families stay warm.

On Thursday, The Duke Energy Foundation presented a check totaling $1,892 to Davie County Department of Social Services. A total of $6,284 has been provided to Davie County Department of Social Services during this winter season through the Foundation's "Share the Warmth" program.

"With support of our customers and shareholders, this year's program has been a tremendous success," said Randy Britton, Duke Energy district manager. "Although the maximum matching funds limit has been met, The Duke Energy Foundation will continue to collect contributions and distribute them to its local member agencies."

Through the Share the Warmth program, The Duke Energy Foundation has matched individual donations dollar for dollar up to $50 each with a maximum overall match of $500,000. Money raised through this program is distributed to local communities through Share the Warmth member agencies, such as Davie County Department of Social Services. The funds are used toward payment of heating bills for families in crisis during the winter months.

Duke Energy Foundation also offers the Community Challenge Heating Fund program. For every $3 donated directly to the heating assistance fund of the local member agency, the Foundation will provide a $1 matching gift, up to a predetermined overall limit. The Duke Power Energy Foundation is an independent non-profit organization through which Duke Energy makes charitable contributions to the community.

Jump Ball CPC Toumey Could Go To Any Team

Amid the euphoria of a regular-season championship, Reynolds rarely boys basketball coach Howard West urged calm.

He has walked down these roads before. He knows that everything can change, and often does.

The regular-season storm has passed, but West is braced for a hurricane in this week's conference tournament, a six-team collision that will probably echo in the ears long past Friday's final at host West Forsyth. A four-team logjam (Mt. Tabor, West Forsyth, Davie and South Stokes) behind leader Reynolds has shattered any sense of security, because no sober person considers Reynolds a flat-out lock to gallop away with the trophy.

Brian Pitts

"But everything starts over," said West, who directed his 24th team to records of 19-2 and 9-1 in the Central Piedmont Conference. "A lot of people have a lot of things to fight for. If you take somebody for granted, they'll jump up. Every team has some good players on it."

Reynolds remains the favorite to repeat, but the distance between predictions and results covers more ground than an activity bus, especially in this curious year.

"This year is one of the years where anybody could win the championship," said Mt. Tabor coach Andy Muse, whose team tied West for second at 6-4 and won the No. 2 seed in a tie-breaker. "Davie, South Stokes or South Rowan could beat any team any given night."

The possibilities seem limitless to first-year West coach David Latin.

"Any time there's a tournament, it's a new season and anybody can win it," he said. "Everyone told me it was a very good league. I think it's a great league. Our league has helped us get ready for the state tournament."

West blended a multitude of elements into a coherent stew, produced an extremely tough team and tore through the CPC schedule.

"I've got two players that have had tremendous years, Travis Holcomb-Faye and Rod Dunlap, but we're getting a lot of contributions," he said. "All 12 of our kids play."

But West doesn't consider his team invincible.

"We could stand to pick it up a little bit defensively," he said. "We've kind of lulled into a false sense of security for a while. We gave up 43 points in the first half of West Forsyth the other night, and when you score 48 you're supposed to be up more than five."

Tabor stood on the precipice of the top after knocking the Demons off their feet in the second CPC game. Then the wave crashed. Hard. The Spartans lost four.

While achieving season-high point totals, 13 for Raby and 10 for Moser, the big men helped deliver rookie coach Jimmy Brunelli his first win, a 37-31 decision over China Grove here Thursday.

And Brunelli, who absorbed four consecutive losses to open his career, couldn't hide his joy.

"It felt good to get a win," he said. "This is huge for the kids. They needed this because after the first game when we lost by one, it was really tough. The kids were just ecstatic. I mean, they went nuts and it's good."

Jon Goode complemented the top scorers with seven and Ian MacBryde, D.J. Sales and Matt James had two each for the Wildcats, who withstood a late China Grove charge.

"Everyone played, everyone contributed, and that's the way it has to be," Brunelli said. "If everyone contributes, we are going to do well and we're going to win."

The Wildcats lost for two weeks, largely because they couldn't convert open jumpers, leading to losses by an average of 18 points. This time, though, they pushed the action.

"We got a lot of good looks at the basket, and we made a lot of guys," Brunelli said. "We had them, we stepped up, were a little bit more aggressive and played with a lot of confidence."

"I'm hoping this will turn it around. Now they know what they have to do to win, saw what they did and now they just have to go out every game and try to mirror that and do the same thing they did in this game."

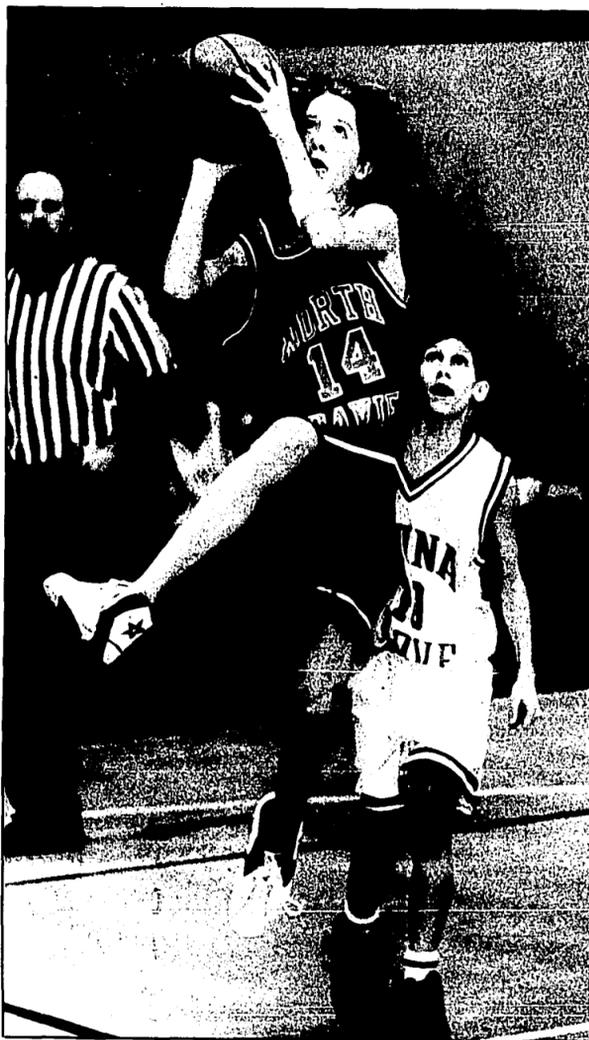

Brunelli, for one, means it. For instance, he's thinking about wearing the same outfit.

"I'm going to do the same thing," he said. "I'm superstitious. I don't know about wearing the same clothes. ... Well, I have a week, so I might throw on the same shirt and pants."

North bolted to an early 12-point lead, then watched the Red Devils trim the margin to four in the fourth quarter. But the Wildcats, behind Raby's clutch play, made the right plays at the end.

"Our big guys (Raby, Moser and Goode) were the difference," Brunelli said. "Raby just crashed the boards and had a lot of buckets right underneath."

Nick Luffman, held scoreless, helped in other ways. "He didn't score but he did a lot of other things," Brunelli said. "He came up with some steals and made some great passes. ... Earl in the week, North played West to win."

A Lot Of Heart 3 DHS Wrestlers Overcome Losses For Consolation Titles

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Buddy Lowery loves competitive wrestling with an unwillingness to fold in the face of defeat.

Davie's wrestling coach almost loved Scott Cornater, Brian Murphy and Adam Bailey to death in last weekend's State Championships in Charlotte.

They got up from early losses and hurt opponents in their consolation path. Riding five wins in six matches, Cornater (189-pound class) and Murphy (215) won their consolation classes for third place, and Bailey (119) won four of six matches to take fourth.

They produced most of the 54 points that led Davie to a sixth-place finish, just one-half point behind Northwest Guilford. Fayetteville 71st won it all with 144 points, followed by Cary's 130, Riverside's 101 and Watuga's 59.5.

"When everybody else got their bubble busted and knew they weren't going to be a state champion, it takes special people to come back and say 'I'm going to get third,'" Lowery said.

— Buddy Lowery
DHS Wrestling Coach

"A lot of times, you see a lot of good wrestling for that third place because they show a lot of heart."

Cornater took care of some unfinished business, beating two wrestlers that owned him earlier in the year, including a granite wall named Ernest Campbell of Lumberton.

"It was like, 'Which stone did you some special people to come back and

Mt. Tabor Dodges Bullet In Double OT Win Over War Eagles

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

WINSTON-SALEM — In a blockbuster basketball game that featured a hundred comebacks and a thousand rous, Mt. Tabor's lifeline was the free-throw line as the Spartans dodged a bullet and survived a 97-87 double-overtime win over Davie's feisty varsity boys basketball team on Feb. 17 in the final regular-season game.

The Spartans (19-6, 6-4 CPC), who used the foul line as a pillar while attempting 56, made 14 of 16 free throws in the final 2:44 of the second overtime, breaking free from a 79-79 game and clinching the Central Piedmont Conference's second seed.

Davie (9-12, 4-6), which could have jumped to third with a victory, fell into a fourth-place tie with South Stokes, which visited Mocksville Tuesday for a first-round CPC tournament game that settled the fourth and final state playoff berth.

Tabor had the War Eagles presumably buried, leading 57-45 with 5:45 remaining in regulation, but they rose from the grave and mounted a hair-raising rally that shells shocked the Spartans, who found themselves down 65-64 when Jesse Marion stole an inbound pass and flipped to Duane Phillips for an eight-footer with 2:29 left.

Jason Neese, Derek Faulkner and Phillips — with huge help from catkicker Kenny Collins — orchestrated the improbable comeback. Faulkner, who topped 20 points for the fifth time in nine games, hit a 3-pointer and two free throws. Phillips scored nine of his season-high 17 and Neese devalued the baseline repeatedly for six of his career-high 28, supplying the juice in a 207-go-ahead run that evolved in a span of three and a half minutes.

Who's Hot ...

North Davie's Dawn Singleton emerged as a force in a 26-16 win over China Grove, coming up with 10 points, 14 rebounds and five blocks.

Crashing the boards has become Luke Phelps' calling card. He hauled in an estimated 20 rebounds to go with 12 points in South Davie's 47-27 drubbing of J.N. Fries.

Davie's Jason Neese had the game of a lifetime in a double-overtime loss to Mt. Tabor. The 6-6 center amassed 28 points and 12 rebounds.

Davie swimmer Jeff Frisby, Ben Stilling, Mike Heiny and Brad Clark excelled in the Western Regional, thus advancing to this week's state meet.

Mike Heiny Close To Records In Regional Swimming Meet

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Davie swimmers Mike Heiny, Brad Clark, Jeff Frisby and Ben Stilling will dive into the state's premier waters this weekend because of their strong strokes in Saturday's Western Regional at Hillsborough High.

Heiny rocked the competition in the 500 free and 100 back, winning both and approaching regional and state records in each event. The junior superstar was seven-tenths of a second off the regional record in the 500 free, 11 seconds off the state mark, and one second off the regional record in the 100 back.

Clark was a double placer as well, finishing sixth in the 200 individual medley and 12th in the 50 free.

"He did really well," Coach Ben Allred said. "I think he was disappointed with some of the things that happened during the meet, but he had a really good swim."

Heiny and Clark joined Frisby and Stilling in the 200 freestyle relay, qualifying with an eighth-place finish.

They'll compete for higher goals in the state meet this Friday and Saturday at either Chapel Hill High or the University of North Carolina.

As usual, the boys surpassed Allred's expectations and claimed ninth place, ahead of rivals

Mt. Tabor and West Forsyth. "For us, it was a great showing."

"We struggle with numbers, but when you go to a meet like this it doesn't matter what your numbers are. It matters how your swimmers are."

Davie's girls failed to score and finished 14th.

They avoided total disappointment when Jill Prillaman, Tracy Boggs, Dana Call and Sarah Stein placed 12th in the 200 freestyle relay, four places out of state-qualifying contention.

"Considering that was the only team that made it anywhere, it's obviously disappointing to me," Allred said. "Times came down but we didn't (advance anyone)."

Call shined in the 100 free, cutting nearly two seconds off her previous personal-best time. "She did an incredible swim," Allred said.

Five Teams Have Shot At Conference Tournament Championship straight and tumbled from the top of the Northwest Coaches Poll.

"It was a combination of things, our shooting and our defense just wasn't there," Muse said. "We were seeing everybody's best game, and we had never been in that situation. So we need to learn how to deal with success."

Tabor rescued itself from the course of unfulfilled expectations, clicking off five consecutive wins.
"I feel like we're playing a whole lot better now than we were in that two-week period," Muse said.
"We're getting more leadership," Latin, a former Navy assistant who recruited perennial NBA all-star David Robinson, knows all about toss-up tournaments.

"I coached in the Gulf South Conference (Division II) years ago, so I was used to being in tough leagues," he said. "It didn't surprise me."
The third-seeded Titans topped out six CPC wins in their first eight games, hit the wall against Reynolds and Tabor and finished 6-4. The Spartans displaced West as the second seed because of their win over Reynolds.

"The first swing through, we were playing pretty well," Latin said. "For whatever reason, the way the schedule was set up, we had to play Reynolds and Tabor back to back."

Davie's surge into the football playoffs and injuries led to a ragged start (0-3). The War Eagles broke the pattern with wins over Tabor and South Rowan. Four seniors retired early, disrupting the team's rhythm, but the newest mix has adopted Coach Jim Young's philosophy. Davie checked out at 4-6, tying South Stokes for fourth.
"They are really coming," Young said. "I've got to give them credit because they've responded greatly. These guys have done everything I've asked them to do and they are doing it pretty darn well, because this is a great conference."
"We're very competitive in our first year, and I'm real excited about it. I'm just proud as heck that we have a good chance (for the state playoffs). These guys have done a leading contenders.

"We were up 33-27 against Reynolds, then let it get away," Coach Kent Mendenhall said. "We beat West at home and had a good shot at beating Tabor."
No. 6 South Rowan headed south from the start. The Raiders' offense hasn't worked and they've lost nine of 10, driving Coach Bob Parker bonkers.
Reynolds is the tournament's leading candidate, but hold your donkeys. Muse held the winning number twice before, in the Frank Spencer Holiday Tournament and in the CPC.
"I think you've got to zone Reynolds," Muse said. "Don't make turnovers, make them shoot from the outside without letting them penetrate and get back on defense and stop their break."
Certainties of early December became the uncertainties of late February.
"Before the season, I scouted South Rowan, felt like they could be in the top three and they ended up winning one game," Muse said. "So that shows you how evenly matched the teams are."
Muse was way off, but he wasn't off alone.

The War Eagles are far superior to their January shadows, prompting Young to ignore the brackets. The South Stokes-Davie winner faced Reynolds on Wednesday. Tabor will take on the South Rowan-West winner on Thursday. The final is Friday at 7:30 at West.
"I don't worry about that," said Young, whose club jumped to No. 4 by beating Tabor. "I feel when we come to play - I don't care if we're playing No. 1 or 6 - we'll play with them. We know what we have to do. We really feel we can match up and play."
In the front stretch of the CPC race, No. 5 South Stokes hid from the bottom, winning two of its first three. The Sauras then swirled into a tailspin that brought them five losses in seven games. But they're quite capable of unhinging the cut him out of?" Lowery said. "He was built like a house and Comatzner beat him 7-3."

In the consolation final, Comatzner held tight for a 3-2 win over Olympic's Jarrod Williams.
"He hit acralle with 1:15 to go, and it was like 'Don't let go or you're going to get beat,'" Lowery said.
In a captivating sideshow, senior Comatzner returned to the mat after a three-year layoff and won 32 of 37 matches. "He wrestled well considering he only wrestled one year in high school," Lowery said. "You can't ask for any more."
Murphy closed a marvelous senior-year chapter by leading the team with 33 wins in 36 matches, including a Charlotte victory over a Freedom man who handed him two losses.
"He wrestled hard and wrestled well," Lowery said of Murphy, who beat Cary's Chris Tobin 5-4 in the consolation final. "He got real good on his feet. He lost three matches all year, so there's nothing to complain about."
Bailey, a junior who lost to eventual state champ Donald Cates of Riverside in the quarterfinals, peaked at money time and finished with a sparkling 31-7 record.
"He stepped it up," Lowery said of Bailey, who lost 6-3 to Fayetteville's Steve Wiggins in the consolation final. "Cates is good on his feet, that's where Bailey needs to get, but he showed a lot of heart and guts."
Lowery confirmed that the War Eagles fulfilled expectations.
"We wrestled about as hard as we could," he said. "The scoring came out pretty true. Fayetteville is probably the best in the state. They've got some excellent job. Our expectations were high, they wanted to get better, and that's six good ones that you lose. You always hate to see them go."

Not only does Lowery lose a senior class that won 80 percent of those workaholic parents.
"We've got some great parents," he said. "They're here when the doors open. All of them do things behind the scenes that you don't even realize."
Lowery realizes what middle-school coaches Matt Wilson of South Davie and Ron Kirk of North Davie have continued to do: stock the stables with razor-sharp wrestlers.
"As long as they're there and doing a good job, we're going to be real successful here," he said. "When you look at what's coming and what's still here, we can put a pretty good team together (next year)."
Putting themselves together for yet another championship run means finding the weight room and competing as often as possible in the off-season.
"They've got to start believing in themselves and doing the little things right," he said. "They've got to get out where the weight room is, and it wouldn't hurt some of them to do some freestyle."
"The ones that do the little things are the ones that will be that package of champions. You can do all that after track practice and after baseball, because there wasn't any little people out there in those state finals."

North Hosts Wrestling Tourney

Junior varsity wrestling teams from North Davie and South Davie competed in the North Davie Invitational Tournament on Jan. 31.
North finished in third place with 216 points and placed 11 wrestlers in the top three of their weight classes. South finished fifth with 189 points and placed nine wrestlers in the top three.
Trinity (230) and Lexington (227) led the six-team pack. Granite Falls took fourth with 196 points and Southeast Randolph was last with 96.
"Remember, these guys were competing against starting lineups," said North coach Ron Kirk, praising the impressive showings from North and South. "Both teams had very successful days, team-wise and individually."
"(My) guys wrestled super and had a great time. Most of the guys only get between two and six matches all year as compared to 10 to 14 by starters."
The final results of North and South in each class:
85 - South's Larry Hudson, second place; North's Andrew Scott, third.
85 - North's Josh Damell, first; South's Carson Glass, third.
95 - North's Matt Wilson, first;

In A Slump

Girls End Season With Loss To Mt. Tabor

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record
WINSTON-SALEM - In the sea of choppy water known as the Davie varsity girls basketball team's season, Coach Carol Cozart has tried everything to get her team to break out of its slump.
She tried to eat the clock Feb. 17 at Mt. Tabor, a slow-down tactic designed to keep the War Eagles within striking distance of the Central Piedmont Conference's second-place team.
It worked for 12 minutes as Davie stayed within 19-15 with 4:33 left in the second quarter. But the War Eagles' offense soon disintegrated, the Spartans sprouted the other way with ill-advised passes and coasted to a 57-33 victory in the final regular-season game.
"We could not seem to get it down the court and get through without losing a pass or whatever, and they really capitalized on that," Cozart said.
Tiffany Peoples, Davie's leading scorer at 8.0 a game, couldn't shake Saunders, who held her without a field goal until midway through the third. Peoples, who has reached double figures six times, finished with four.
"They were smart," Cozart said. "They put her on Peoples, one of our smarter people, and they knew we were trying to feed her. We tried to make an adjustment at halftime, but they were too strong."
Ashley Andrade, who went seven games without a point midway through the year, continued her strong play off the bench, scoring six points and contributing for the seventh straight game.
"Again, she came in and did an excellent job," Cozart said. "She has really made a difference coming down at the end."
Holcomb nailed three 3-pointers for nine points, her biggest total since Jan. 16 when she scored 11 at Reynolds.
"She hit some outside," Cozart said. "We were glad to see her shooting them just a little bit better."
Melinda Ritchie scored four and Kim Anderson had two.

JV Girls Fall 46-39 In Final Game Of Season

Davie's JV girls basketball team started brilliantly before falling out confident, not being aggressive and things like that," Coach Mark Sinopoli said.

The coach ordered a 3-point offense in the fourth, fueling a run that cut Taber's lead to 38-34. Shelby Michael hit two 3-pointers, Sarah Jackson and Mary Beth Dinkins nailed one each and the War Eagles' defense created easy opportunities.

"We started playing smarter, playing a lot better defense, and I asked the girls to shoot some 3-pointers," Sinopoli said. "We really played good defensively in the fourth and first quarters, but in between we just didn't have any drive or aggressiveness for the basket."

But time grew short, forcing Davie to foul, and the Spartans put the game away at the line. They made 11 of 19 fourth-quarter free throws.

Heather Schaeffer, the team's leading scorer at 13.6 a game, led with 14 and Michael, who averaged over 11, added 12. Davie got five from Jerri Ann Angell, three each from Jackson and Dinkins and two from Elise Whitaker.

Davie dropped its final three games, a slide that brought regret to Sinopoli, who was thrust into the head-coaching position when Tammy Reavis resigned just before the season. Sinopoli planned on assisting varsity coach Carol Covart.

"It was a successful season, but I wish that I could have done a better job," he said. "I think that with it being my first year, there were some things I didn't expect out of conference play because we did great outside the conference. But in the conference, it's a lot tougher and there are things that next year I will be looking to improve on in the conference."

With eight varsity seniors, the door's wide open for sophomores Angel, Amber Hammond and Whitaker and nine freshmen.

"We're looking potentially at eight people moving up," Sinopoli said. "Certainly I feel that our sophomores will have a good shot with the team next year since they know the system."

Mullis Family Takes Home The Dough

The Mullis pulled the rug out from under the competition in last week's basketball contest, and now they're going to buy some rig.

"As a matter of fact, we're going shopping Friday," said Kevin Mullis, whose parents Anita and Gil wiped first and second place (with nine missed each). "We're going to spend that ($30) looking for carpet."

The $25 for first belongs to Anita, whose 144 total points in the NCSU-UNC tie-breaker (158) came closer than her husband's 136. But son Kevin adds differently.

"We're going to divide it up," he said. "We've done talked about it. Kevin took all the first-place credit, leaving everyone know that he controls his mother's entry."

"Well, I do my mom's for the most part," he said. "I let my dad do his. When the news started, Kevin couldn't control himself."

"That's what I'm talking about, man, bringing home all the bucks," he said, screaming. "You can't beat that."

"You couldn't beat Travis Peacock's bookness. He was the only participant to pick State's stunning upset over UNC in Chapel Hill. At tip-off, one had to wonder what was going through this kid's head? But he got the last laugh."

Tiger Boys Overcome Loss; Beat Leaders From J.N. Fries

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Coming off a bitter 35-33 loss at Concord, South Davie's seventh-grade boys basketball team found the perfect therapy, a 47-27 rout over J.N. Fries here Thursday.

"It's certainly something you dream about," said Coach Tim Kenney, whose team has won three of four and evened its record at 3-3. "You are always looking to knock off the top dog. They were the top dog in the eighth grade, so this is a very gratifying win."

The Tigers trailed at the half, 20-17. But came out smoking in the third, erupting for 19 points and racing to a 36-27 lead, and then cut Fries' faucet off in the fourth. The dazed Knights didn't score in the final six minutes.

"The story of the game was defense, forcing them to the weak side and playing good help-side defense," Kenney said. "We just completely shut them down in the second half. The kids really stepped up."

The Tigers won by blowout for the third time in two weeks. They trashed Corriher-Lipe and Knox by 23 and 30 points, and now this.

"We came out with a big third quarter and the rest was history," Kenney said. "Sometimes when everything starts to come together, you get these kind of games."

Especially against Fries' press. The Knights were their usual trapping selves, but the Tigers sliced them up with precise execution, something beyond their years. The pressure didn't bother us," Kenney said. "We worked on breaking the press (in practice), set up a 1-2-2, and a couple of occasions there were three passes without a dribble and we were shooting layups. It was very pretty."

If you're from Fries, there was nothing pretty about Luke Phelps, who led with 12 points and countless rebounds. He brings a mad-dog mentality to the game, which excites his coach.

"He just ripped people apart on the boards," Kenney said. "I bet you he had 20 rebounds. He's really coming on offensively, and he's learning now to play good defense."

No one has blossomed more than shooter McKenzie Willoughby, who found the range and produced 10 season-high points.

"He started squaring up and doing things that he's been asked to do. What impressed me more about McKenzie was his defense."

Brian Hunter and Zach Hanrahan supplied requisite balance with eight points apiece. "Hunter and Zach did a real good job," Kenney said.

South got two from Micah Garner, Larry Hudson, Michael Clement and Wesley Thompson and one from Ben Allred and Zach Miller.

Concord Holds On
Concord left the door open, but South failed repeatedly in the final pressure-packed seconds of the two-point loss earlier in the week.

"We had our chances at the end," Kenney said. "We had five or six good shots that just wouldn't fall."

A 3-pointer from the corner by Hanrahan, who scored a season-high 11, cut the deficit to one with 28 seconds left. South got the ball back, one player drove the lane and fired away with eight seconds left. In heavy traffic, the shot was swatted. Kenney saw contact. The referees saw nothing worth blowing a whistle over.

"The ref said they blocked the shot," he said. "I saw it another way, but we had our chances to win it."

Miller and Willoughby had six each and Garner and Phelps had five apiece.

• Five players are averaging at least five points a game, led by Garner's 7.7, Hunter (6.3), Hanrahan (6.0), Phelps (5.5) and Miller (5.0) are close behind. Kenney doesn't care to visit Concord's expanded floor again. "We played in their rec gym, which is a college-sized court, and the girls shot terribly and we shot terribly," he said. "I think we hit one outside shot and that wasn't until the fourth quarter."

North Davie Girls Overcome China Grove

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

The China Grove Red Devils stopped Sara Miller. They couldn't stop her teammates, though.

Miller, the North Davie girls basketball team's leading scorer at nine points a game, missed all her field-goal attempts and finished with a season-low four points, but the Wildcats never flinched, riding Dawn Singleton's career-best game to a 26-16 victory here Thursday.

Singleton, who came in averaging 5.5 points, stole the show with 10 points, 14 rebounds and five blocked shots.

"Dawn really did good," said Coach Jamie Lyerly, whose club improved to 3-2. "She kept getting the rebounds right in front of the basket and putting it back up, and that's where she scored most of her points."

North got a boost from two unlikely sources: Candice James and Sara Stutts. James, who struggled through the first four games without a point, had six points and six steals and scrappy Stutts scored three. Those unexpected contributions pleased Lyerly more than anything.

"We hadn't been hitting any of our layups and James hit a layup and got fouled, and then scored four in the third quarter," Lyerly said. "Another one is Stutts. She hadn't gotten to play much at all, but I put her in and she hustled and got rebounds. She only ended up scoring three, but she had a lot of good shots that just rolled off the rim."

The coach couldn't have scripted the outcome any better.

"Everybody got to play about the same amount of time," Lyerly said. "This was a good team effort for everybody. Some of the girls that don't play a lot got to play and score points, and that was good."

Miller didn't let her subpar scoring prevent her from providing assertive bulk. She had six rebounds and four blocks.

Elizabeth Isley and Andrea Whitely had two and one point, respectively.

Earlier in the week, the Wildcats let a win slip through their fingers, frittering away a 22-18 lead and falling 23-22 to West Rowan.

The Bulldogs' center hit the game-winning basket with 1.5 seconds left. Lyerly shuffled her inside defenders throughout the game, but she never found a solution, a downfall that ultimately caught up with North.

"Their No. 52 outrebounded us the whole game," she said. "I put three different people in, and she just kept getting position on all three of them."

The Bulldogs had so much problem with Miller, who had nine hard-earned points along with six rebounds and four blocks while trying to shake a game-long double team.

"Every time Miller got the ball, they double teamed her and she couldn't get to the basket," Lyerly said. "They were all over her."

Making the loss almost unbearable, North led 23-59 of the 24-minute game. And the coach could have used a whistle when West mounted its last-gasp rally.

"We had the ball before she scored (the game winner) and they kept fouling and fouling and fouling, and you had to almost pin somebody before you could get a foul," Lyerly said. Allison Howell added six points and North got four from Singleton, two from Meredith Bridgewater and one from Andrea Whitely.

Sara Stutts goes up for the shot, as Briana Foster prepares to battle for the rebound.

Notes & Quotes

Now That's Close: Six Within 6/10ths Of A Second

Last weekend's Western Regional swim meet at Hillsborough High was fiercely competitive. The swimmers were literally nose and nose.

"This competition was tough," Davie coach Ben Alfred said. "In the 50-yard free, the top six were all within six-tenths of a second. If you were with the top 12, you had 12 swimmers within one second of each other." Alfred didn't have a swimmer who won most events. The swimmers showed a mechanical timing pad when they finish, and every head turns toward the scoreboard. "Whoever his first automatically registers on the board," Alfred said. "If you were watching, there's no way. You would have thought they tied. It was that close."

Davie varsity girls basketball coach Carol Cozart needed a boost in last week's 57-33 loss at Mt. Tabor.

"I got to a point that whenever they were throwing up, they were fouling," she said. "That barn started burning and it just kept right on."

"Few times has a basketball game created an uproar like Thursday's game," Davie J.N. Fries first-place collision.

During tip-off of Fries' thrilling 29-27 win, South coach Sheila Tribble started the crowd into a frenzy by waving both arms in the air.

"It was phenomenal," she said. "It was like the wrestling matches between North and South, that's what it looked like. The crowd was unbelievable. I was as wild as I could be. It was really, really fun."

"You can't help but get into the type of game that this group plays, because they play so exciting," she said. "It's a run-and-gun offense, a wide open style of basketball, and they're not afraid of anything." Since Fries spoiled South's quest for an unbeaten season, Tribble is looking for a rematch in the tournament final. "We can't wait and hope and pray we meet them in the final game," she said. "That's our goal now, to go 9-1 and meet Fries for the championship."

Senior wrestler Jamey Holt was sluggish in December, then sanded some jagged edges and won over his coach's heart with a 27-9 record.

"He lost a bunch at the first of the season," Coach Buddy Lowery said. "Then he probably realized: 'Hey, I need to get better on my feet.' He had a real good year, and probably improved on his feet as much as anybody."

Now that wrestler Brad Pack, who lost to eventual state champ J.C. Hawks of Fayetteville in last weekend's state championships, knows the road, the future is limitless. As a sophomore, Pack was among Davie's four 30-win wrestlers. "He was excited to get (to the states) and that's a part of it, getting there and seeing some of those people that he's going to have to beat," Lowery said.

Lowery feels the same about junior Jeremy Sink, who fell hard in the states but absorbed valuable lessons.

"He wrestled hard in a good weight class (135)," he said. "He's a lot like Pack. He got his nose wet and knows where he wants to be. Hopefully he learned what he's got to do to get there, how good he's got to be to get through there and get it done."

Mooney Key On UNC-A Team

Keelin Mooney, the daughter of Burton Road in Advance, is a key member of the University of North Carolina Asheville women's track and field team.

A sophomore, she took first place in the 3K event in a dual meet against Radford and Furman. She then traveled to Lexington, Ky., to compete in the Kentucky Invitational, where she placed ninth out of 25 runners in the 3,000 meters (two miles) with a time of 10:57. Then Keelin and her UNC-A teammates competed against 50 schools at the Ikon Invitational at East Tennessee State, and she broke the UNCA sophomore school record with a time of 10:31 in the 3,000 meters.

In addition to her track accomplishments, Keelin's grades have placed her on the dean's list each semester over her first year and a half at UNCA.

Posey Aces Twin Cedars Hole

This is called measuring a hole. Don Posey drained hole-in-one on the par-3 No. 18 at Twin Cedars last Friday. Posey, using a 5-iron, covered 155 yards from the white tees. Gary Livengood and Tony Smith witnessed the feat.

Benefit Golf Tournament Planned

A benefit golf tournament is scheduled for March 28 at Twin Cedars. It's a four-person captain's choice tournament with an 11:30 a.m. tee time.

The cost is $160 per team and proceeds will go to the Cooleman Parks and Recreation to build a new park. Prizes will be given to first-, second- and third-place teams, longest drive on Nos. 7 and 15 for men and women and closest to the pin on all four par 3s.

Chicken stew and beverages will be provided. In case of a tie, a card playoff will determine the winner. The Davie Street Volunteers are sponsoring the event. For information or donations, contact Rick Glass at 284-6167.

Sports Card Show To Be Held March 14

The Pinebrook Elementary PTA is sponsoring a sports card show in the school's cafeteria on March 14 from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

There is no admission to attend the show, which will feature baseball, football, NASCAR and basketball cards. There is a $5 charge to reserve a table. "This is not designed to be a fund-raiser," Greg Williams said. "The $5 per table allows us to know how many exhibitors are coming so we can set up the cafeteria."

For more information, call Williams (998-7489) or Greg Marshall (998-8300).

Walker—who is averaging just over 13 points a game—led with 14, Jenny Broadway and Durham added four each and Heather McDaniel had two.

McDaniel is a load that's quite a task for opposing interior players. "If she stands there, you better run her over because she's not going to move unless you knock her over," Tribble said.

Seventh Grade Tigers' Winning Streak Halted By J.N. Fries

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

After shooting down five opponents by an average of 24 points, South Davie's seventh-grade girls basketball team turned the gun on itself in Thursday's nailbiting 29-27 loss to unbeaten J.N. Fries.

In a game that was won with one second on the clock—on two Fries free throws—Coach Sheila Tribble of South insisted that the game was won long before then. The Tigers, who led 9-8 after one quarter in front of an energized home crowd, suffered a second-quarter meltdown that basically cost them the game.

Fries took advantage of South's 0-for-quarter field-goal shooting by outscoring the Tigers 10-3 and taking an 18-12 lead into halftime.

"We didn't lose the game with one second on the clock," Tribble said. "We lost it in the second quarter. Of-tenatively, we just weren't there. It's not so much that I thought they outplayed us, we beat ourselves. We made bad passes, bad decisions and didn't shoot the ball enough in the first half.

"Fries didn't beat us. We beat us. We literally beat us."

Much of South's self-inflicted problems came from the foul line, where the Tigers mistimed on 17 of 26 attempts. Before Thursday, teams have paid a stiff price for putting South on the line.

"That's been our bread and butter," Tribble said. "We've been shooting well over 50 percent from the line, and we came up on a big game and missed the important ones that really hurt."

Tribble addressed the pressing issues at the half, and the Tigers responded, using a 12-4 third-quarter surge to take a 24-22 lead into the fourth. "We just talked about it. This is what you want?" Tribble said. "Is this where you want to be?"

The Knights clawed back to tie the game at 27-27 with three seconds left. South rebounded with a chance to launch a desperation game winner, but Fries swiped the ball away from guard Britany Walker, who inadvertently tripped the Knight who stole the pass, resulting in a controversial foul with just one second remaining. She calmly sank both foul shots to seal the game.

"That was a very questionable call," Tribble said.

Leaders Walker (eight points) and Sara Williams (seven) had their usual productive days, but Tribble was extremely impressed with Kirsten Durham, whose seven points and gritty defense kept South's hopes alive.

Durham had an outstanding performance defensively," Tribble said. "She played a really outstanding game. She just played the best all-around game of anybody."

Center Emily Clodfelter has progressed rapidly in the last month, and one of the league's biggest players played bigger than ever. "She played the whole second half and made a difference with rebounding," said Tribble, who has been grooming Clodfelter into a useful reserve.

"She is really coming along and we're going to be tickled to death by the end of the season. She's going to make people take a look. She is brand new to basketball. We are bringing her on and that confidence is coming. She did an outstanding job, stepping in there in the biggest game of the season."

Ryanne McDaniel contributed five points.

Had Tribble not been coaching, she would have definitely been cheering madly from the other side of the gym.

"It was great for the spectators," she said. "The ending wasn't great, but it was a fun game to watch because it was two very evenly-matched teams. It was the kind of game you'd expect two undefeated teams to have."

South overcame a lackadaisical effort to beat Concord 35-24 earlier in the week.

"We were flat as we could be," Tribble said.

Everyone but McDaniel, who dominated the boards, fought for 11 season-high points and announced her arrival as a forceful low-post player.

"Ryanne stepped up like a real basketball center, and she totally took control over people who were actually bigger and taller than her," Tribble said. "She had her best game."

Walker—who is averaging just over 13 points a game—led with 14, Jenny Broadway and Durham added four each and Heather McDaniel had two.

Consumer Alert From Quality Air Duct Cleaning

When choosing a Duct Cleaning Company, there are several things a consumer should consider. First, is the company certified by, and a member of the National Air Duct Cleaners Association. This association regulates, provides training and certifies Duct Cleaners. Their number is (202) 737-2926. Call and inquire about the company you are considering.

Second, find out if the company is a member of the Better Business Bureau, with a good reputation.

Next, find out the companies procedure for duct cleaning. There are several ways companies try to clean air ducts, that are not very thorough. Beware of companies that want to "glue" the dust and debris in your duct system. That method will break loose and blow out into your home.

Another way duct cleaning is attempted is by using a 2-1/2 inch hose, that is attached to a vacuum, with a brush attached to the end. They then proceed to shove it down your duct from the vent inside your home. This would not be satisfactory, because most duct work at the vent has at least one 90 degree bend and in some cases has several. For that reason they would only be able to clean a few inches at best. Any large pieces of construction debris or other large objects are not going to be vacuumed through this small hose.

The only acceptable method is "source removal." This is the procedure that Quality Air Duct Cleaning uses. We attach a 10 or 12 inch hose to your duct system, and turn your entire duct system into a vacuum. We then use flexible brushes and air tools to scrub the inside of your ducts. This is done twice, once on your supply side (hot air) and once on the return side (cold air). With your whole system being a vacuum no dust or debris can escape into your home, and no dust will remain in your ducts. We are a local, full time certified Duct Cleaning Company, that stays up to date on all of the new acceptable techniques. We are also a member of the National Air Duct Cleaners Association and the Better Business Bureau.

If you are not sure if your ducts need cleaning, call and I will tell you where to look. If you are still not sure, call me and book an appointment. When I come to your home I will show you the inside of your ducts. At that point, if you think your ducts do not need cleaning, I'll shake your hand being glad to have met you and go to my next job. No high pressure sales pitch, just "have a nice day." Please call if you have any questions. I will try to answer them to the best of my ability, and hopefully get you headed in the right direction when choosing a Duct Cleaning Company.

Quality Air Duct Cleaning is located in Mocksville, North Carolina. Our phone number is (704) 492-5756 or (800) 414-7032.

Gene's Auto Parts, Rominger Family: Clemmons Traditions In Auto Care

In any name association game in Clemmons, when you mention the name "Rominger" you immediately think of ... Cars.

The Rominger family has been the automobile experts of the village for generations. Gene Rominger continues that tradition at Gene's Auto Parts, supplying the car and truck parts to mechanics and the public for more than 20 years.

Gene and his brothers were raised on the knee of their dad, the late William Gray "Slim" Rominger, a life-time mechanic and race car driver. Grease runs in the family.

"We grew up working on cars," Gene now laughs. "I was rebuilding a carburetor when I was 7 years old. My first car was a 1956 Ford. I got it before I got my license."

Gene's Auto Parts at 3612 Clemmons Road has observed its 20th anniversary, and Gene Rominger recalls that he sampled the life of a race car driver and didn't find it all fun and games.

"I messed with it three or four years up at 311 Speedway. I got out when it got too expensive. You spend a thousand dollars to make 50. There was no future in it. There's a lot of money and not much return."

His brother, Michael, still races. His other brother, "Bub", is a truck driver — all of them still involved in some version of the car business.

Gene Rominger operated his mechanic shop out of the basement of Gene's Auto Parts for many years. He built the building in 1960. Gene Rominger converted the upstairs to an auto parts store in 1977. How do you characterize Gene Rominger?

Easy going and knowledgeable. You can bank on his advice.

He and his wife, Pat, have affiliated the store with Big A Auto Parts — "The First Letter in Auto Parts." And Gene Rominger carries that same title for Clemmons.

"We carry auto parts, and we've gotten into a lot of heavy duty and off-road equipment for trucks," he said. "We sell filters and welding supplies. We make hydraulic hoses, and we mix automotive paints — Sherwin-Williams and Western Brand paints."

Gene's Auto Parts stocks heavy truck and machinery parts such as filters and brake shoes. From bulldozers and graders to tractor trailers and farm machinery, customers will find exactly what they need.

Gene's also has everything all terrain vehicle operators need. Gene's Auto Parts is at 3612 Clemmons Road (U.S. 158) in Clemmons. Hours are Mon.-Fri. 8-6. The phone is 766-9148.

Beverly Hills: Counselors Lead Weight Loss

Let's not fool ourselves. If losing weight were so easy, weight loss clinics wouldn't exist. They do exist. And to be successful, they must work.

Beverly Hills Weight Loss & Wellness Clinics have done just that. "Losing weight is a hard thing to do. We don't pretend it's easy," said Sandy Williams, regional director for Beverly Hills Weight Loss. This is why we help our clients not only lose weight, but work with them a full year on a maintenance program to insure they keep it off.

What makes Beverly Hills different?

"Our main focus is one-on-one counseling, support and customer service," she said. "Because we never sacrifice nutrition for weight loss, our clients eat a well-balanced diet with grocery store and restaurant foods. This is one reason we are highly recommended by the medical community. Beverly Hills does have a doctor and dietician on staff."

The Winston-Salem clinic at 349 Jonestown Road, has won awards as Beverly Hills' top clinic in North Carolina and the Number 3 clinic in the United States. It is led by Sandy Williams, director; Suzy Atkins, a registered nurse and counselor, and Connie Benic, counselor. The Mocksville clinic is led by Holly Packwood, director.

During the Christmas holidays, national statistics indicate adults gain an average of seven pounds. "I'm happy to say our clients didn't do that," she said. "A lot of them continued to lose over the holidays. Most importantly, they didn't gain. Our clients can lose an average of 2 to 3 pounds a week so the body is consistently burning fat as their source of energy. We address behavior modification during the entire program. It's a continuous process that will enable them to keep the fat off."

Lanier's Auto & Towing To The Rescue For Your Mechanical, Wrecker Service

It's a terrible, lonely feeling — your car stalled on the interstate in rush hour. Your car failing to crank in the morning when you're late for work. Your car banged up in an accident on Lewisville-Clemmons Road.

Who do you call? Smart motorists have those questions answered in advance. Smart motorists turn to Wilbert Lanier of Lanier's Towing Service.

A professional mechanic with 25 years experience, Lanier has been a Clemmons mainstay since 1977. He operated the old Texaco station at the corner of Lewisville-Clemmons and U.S. 158 when he started. And he was at the Citgo station for five years.

Lanier has now operated a large shop at 345 Centenary Church Road where he has focused on mechanic work. He can do just about everything from tune-ups to brake and motor work.

He likes the tranquility of working on Centenary Church Road. "It's peaceful out in the country," he laughs, remembering the hectic traffic on Lewisville-Clemmons.

He offers pick-up and delivery service for customers. He has two mechanics, Kevin Odom and William Proveaux, and the large shop can handle up to six cars.

Wilbert Lanier of Lanier's Auto & Towing: Call 778-0610

Lanier offers 24-hour wrecker service. The mechanic shop's hours are Monday-Friday 8 am-6 p.m. The telephone number is 778-0610. His beeper number is 1-888-358-7912.

Good-bye Rat Race: Smiths Open True-Value Hdw.

Lyn and Jim Smith left Corporate America in search for some peace of mind and an escape from the rat race. They packed up and left Mesa, Arizona, and have resettled in Clemmons. The decision wasn't made lightly. "We looked at several states and several different locations. We just like Clemmons, the people and the store. We thought it was a good place to settle down and raise a family," Mrs. Smith said.

They are the owners of True-Value Hardware in Clemmons, the former Coast-to-Coast Hardware store. They have three kids: Mandy, 14, Mindy, 13, and Josh, 12, students at North Davie Middle School. This is their first venture into retail life. Lyn worked for years as a registered nurse. Jim was the chief financial officer for a health care company. They have made many changes at the store — first, changing the affiliation to True-Value. "It's a much larger co-op," Mrs. Smith said, meaning lower prices for customers and larger selection. "We love it. It's going great," she said. One of the big adjustments was working together. "We work well together. We're a good team," she said. "We both do it all," she laughed. "There really isn't any division of responsibilities."

She mostly handles lawn and garden, painting and decorating. Jim handles tools and power equipment. Both share plumbing and other departments.

She has like the changes found in Clemmons. "The people here are wonderful. They're much warmer than other parts of the country. The weather is just wonderful. We like the seasons."

The Smiths have made sure shoppers at True-Value will notice lots of changes. "We have expanded every department. We no longer carry guns in sporting goods, but we have expanded every department except for that one. Plumbing, electrical. We have a full service paint department now, she said.

Lyn and Jim Smith of True-Value Hardware.

The store has been fully remodeled. Echo power equipment has been added.

Their decision to buy a hardware store wasn't a casual one. "We had been looking for years," Mrs. Smith recalled. "We had worked in corporate America and wanted out. We didn't like the city life. We wanted to settle down and have a better quality of life. My parents had owned a True-Value and a Western Auto, so I had known about that. We looked at restaurants, but didn't like the hours. This just came sort of natural to go into this."

Clemmons has welcomed them, and they are returning the favor with a complete hardware store, fully stocked, fully staffed, complete with smiles and handshakes.

Varsity War Eagles Force Mt. Tabor Team Into Double Overtime

Davie coach Jim Young rolled the dice with pressure defense, which flamed the offensive flames.

"We had to pick up our defense, pressure them and take whatever happens," he said. "I think it knocked them out of rhythm a little bit and gave us a chance to get back in it."

Neese converted a bullet pass from Collins for a 75-73 lead with 1:14 left, before Tabor's Brian Galtier sent the game into another four-minute period with two free throws with 55 seconds left.

Down four yet again, Phillips' 17-footer and two Neese free throws knotted things at 79-79, when Tabor decided Davie's fate with deadly foul shooting. In a sharp contrast, Davie attempted just 24, making 13.

An immensely talented Tabor team had four players with 19 or more points, led by Galtier's 25. Neese was a terror, hitting 12 of 23 shots and ripping down 12 rebounds. Faulkner sliced his way to 21 and added six rebounds. Phillips had four assists to go with his 17 and Collins ran the show down the stretch, hitting out 10 assists and scoring eight.

Davie simply ran out of juice in the second overtime, finishing with four starters fouled out and putting extreme pressure on the bench, which responded beautifully in a critical contest. Young turned to sources such as Collins, Charles Miller, Marion, Larry Umberger and John Orsillo when starters Mike Whelan, Faulkner, Ray Spain and Neese departed.

"We were deep into the bench but I thought our bench did a great job," Young said. "I mean 1-10, they did their job. It seemed like the average height out there was 5-10 to 6-10, but our kids did a heck of a job making up that difference with their full-court pressure."

After Tabor moved ahead 57-45 three minutes into the fourth, Davie tormented Tabor's matador defense with penetrating drives that led to high-percentage shots. Guards Collins, Phillips and Faulkner whipped around Tabor's perimeter defenders like they had wooden legs.

"Their kids that brought the ball up the court were quick as a cat," Tabor coach Andy Muse said. "We just didn't stop penetration. I don't think it was the big guys' fault as much as our perimeter guys letting them go around us. We put our foul shooters on the court, and they might not be our best defenders."

Rebounding and severe foul trouble essentially decided the game. Davie was pounded 40-26 on the backboards.

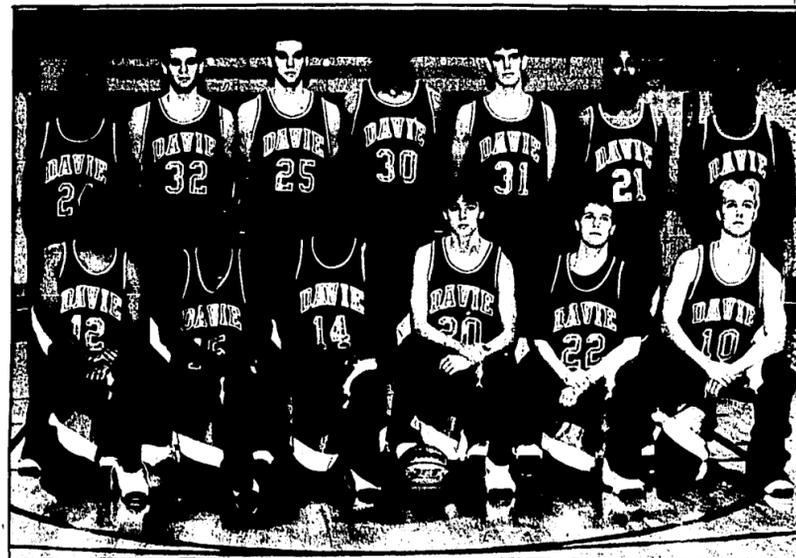

"We did rebound the ball well and them getting in foul trouble helped us as well," Muse said. "We finally hit our free throws in that last overtime, and if we do that in regulation we win by 10 in regulation."

Thanks in part to Tabor's Brad Brown, the teams played longer. Brown fueled Davie rallies in regulation and the first OT by missing six of eight free throws.

"He was having trouble, we wanted to put him on the line and that made him think," Young said. "But the rest of them were unconscious."

Davie, behind the Faulkner-Neese lightning bolt, struck the Spartans with a 10-0 game-opening spurt that infuriated Muse. They eventually recovered to take their first lead at 17-16 forty seconds into the second quarter.

"One thing I wasn't pleased with was the effort out of the gate," Muse said. "It was Senior Night and our mind wasn't on the game. You've got to be ready to play because this is a

Davie Boys In CPC Tourney

All kinds of scenarios rode on Tuesday's Davie-South Stokes first round CPC Tournament basketball game.

The winner clinched the fourth state playoff seed and moved on to play top-seeded Reynolds in Wednesday's second round at host West Forsyth at 7 p.m. The Davie-South survivor also plays at East Forsyth, the Metro's No. 2 seed, in Tuesday's sectional 4-state playoffs.

If Davie or South wins the conference tournament - which concludes Friday at West Forsyth at 7 p.m. - they will take the No. 2 seed and host a first-round sectional game on Tuesday at 7 p.m. against the Southwestern Conference's fifth seed.

JV Boys Fall In Tenth Straight

Mt. Tabor saddled Davie's JV boys basketball team with its 10th straight league loss on Feb. 17, beating the War Eagles 64-55 in the season finale.

Davie, standing tall at 8-2 before Central Piedmont Conference play, finished 8-12 overall.

Coach Leo Brunelli detected inner strength from his boys despite all the rough times.

"It's hard to say this, especially losing all the conference games, but they never quit," he said. "I hope that reflects me because I don't give up until the horn blows."

The War Eagles blew most of their open shots, hitting just 17 of 57 for 29 percent, and found themselves trailing 46-30 heading into the final quarter.

Brunelli dismissed shot selection as the issue.

"We just didn't hit. We had open shots," he said. "We weren't forcing things. When we ran our press breaker, we had no problems."

Davie warmed up and scored more points in the fourth (25) than the second and third quarters combined (23).

"It goes to show you when we're running things, it's there," Brunelli said.

Andy Heling hit five 3-pointers for all of his 15 team-high points. Dominic Graham had 11 points and five assists, Rod Tenor piled up seven points, 13 rebounds and four assists, and Scott Crump had five points and eight rebounds. Travis Peacock scored five.

Davie launched 36 shots from 3-point land, hitting 10.

Paulina Barney, 99
Former School Teacher

Living History 99-Year-Old Former Teacher Visits School

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

ADVANCE - The students wore $100 sneakers and each one had on different brand name clothes.

Their classroom was filled with colorful posters and bulletin boards, with plastic and metal desks ... and electricity.

In the center of the room was Paulina Barney - teacher.

It was a bit different from when she first taught school, a one-room grade school at Baltimore, in the Comatzer community.

Barney went on to teach for 45 years, at Baltimore, Fork Church and Advance.

Last week, she was back at Shady Grove Elementary School, sharing with fourth graders her experiences, and giving them a glimpse of what life was like before they were born - before their parents and grandparents were born.

"At age 99 (She'll be 100 this summer), Mrs. Barney fielded every question these modern-day fourth graders could muster - from "did" students wear shoes back then to did she give spankings to her students.

Mrs. Barney recited original poetry and sang songs from memory. One particularly caught students' attention. It was about the Titanic.

"I was about 12 years old (when the Titanic sank), I guess," she said. "I heard people talking about this big ship and it had a lot of passengers ... going across the ocean. After that, they made a song.

"It was bad when that big ship went down. There were husbands and wives and kids that had drowned. Wasn't it bad when that big ship went down."

Mrs. Barney saw the first car in Advance, and to this day has no intention of getting on an airplane.

"Honey, would you believe I saw the first car that came through Advance. The word got out there was something coming through Advance ... called it an automobile. I thought, what in the world was that, a cart going without a horse.

"Now, you couldn't go anywhere without a car," she said.

She wondered how the airplane stayed in the air without falling - and she wondered if it was safe to be standing on the ground when one was overhead.

One student asked Mrs. Barney if she had ever flown on an airplane.

"No," she replied matter of factly. "And I never expect to."

She walked to school (There were no school buses), but it wasn't so bad because there were little schools scattered throughout the countryside.

She remembers well how she was recruited to become a teacher. She was in the 11th grade.

"They needed a teacher for one of these little schools, Baltimore. They came to our school to see if we had a student who could come and teach in that little school. It was seven grades.

"I hadn't thought about it, but I said if they think I can do it, I ought to have confidence."

She went to summer school in Greensboro and Hickory to learn more about teaching.

The subjects were reading, writing and arithmetic.

"The stove kept the little boys busy chopping wood. And we had to carry water from a well in a bucket," she said.

And if nature called, the toilets were outdoor models.

Classes held six or seven students.

Mrs. Barney saw many changes during her tenure as a student and teacher. In school, she mostly wrote on slates. She had a blackboard to use when teaching, and there was more paper available.

"We had recess, but we didn't have a gym. We went outside and played ball. Sometimes we played down the duck. I can't explain it, but that was the name of the game. When you get to 99 years old you forget sometimes."

Center Homemakers Learn To Avoid Ripoffs

Center Homemakers met on Tuesday evening, Feb. 17 at Center Community Building. President Pat Reilly called the meeting to order and led the group in the Pledge to the Flag. She then wished Brenda Rutherford a "Happy Birthday" and recognized Ella Phillips and Brenda Rutherford as hostesses. Ruth O'Neal had devotional remarks with a reading from Don't Sweat the Small Stuff titled "Fill Your Life With Love." We should each look into our hearts to see if we can show greater love to others realizing the more love we give the more we will receive, she said. She concluded her remarks with ten gifts to give in 1998 to listen, show signs of affection, write a note, share laughter, give compliments, do favors, leave others alone when necessary, have a cheerful disposition, play a game and pray. Gail Smith closed with a prayer. Gail Smith called the roll with 14 members and three guests present. She then read the minutes of the last meeting followed by a treasurer's report by Louise Tutterow. A thank you note was received from baby Courtney Prevette thanking for the book presented to her. Frances O'Neal shared a "Don't Worry Be Happy" article giving 20 ways to make lives happier and more productive. Pat Reilly introduced assistant Extension agent Peggy Nuckolls, who gave a program on "Ripoffs and Frauds." Telemarketing mail solicitations and surveys are ways of getting information needed to rip you off. She advised everyone to be aware of the many ways we can be "taken." Be smart consumers so that it does not happen. Never give identifying numbers over the telephone. Nuckolls also gave addresses to request that names be removed from telemarketing solicitation and computer mailing lists. After the completion of her program, Ruby O'Neal introduced Matthew Rich, a 5th grader at William R. Davie and Matthew's mother, Nola. Ruby shared with us many of the projects and activities at William R. Davie during February which included the celebration of Black History Month, Ground Hog Day, Valentine's Day, Abe Lincoln and George Washington's birthdays and President's Day. Matthew was the county winner in an essay contest on honor Martin Luther King upon the celebration of his birthday. Matthew read his essay titled "Greatness Achieved Through Service". There were 20 young people competing in the essay contest. Matthew also read another essay he had written about Harriet Tubman and Sojourner Truth, women who also achieved greatness through service to others. Matthew concluded with a piano solo, "Jesus Joy of Mans Desiring." President Reilly thanked Peggy and Matthew for their informative and entertaining programs. Ruby O'Neal and Wylene Keller will host the meeting on March 17 at the Center Community Building. The meeting was adjourned with the recitation of the club collect by the members. Using a Valentine theme, the hostesses, Brenda and Ella, served refreshments. Wylene Keller won the door prize and Martha Smith got the Friendship Basket.

This is war. Those stunks have gone too far. Or maybe I should say too near. The stunks are living under grandmom's house. That is right, under the house. I am going to fight dirty like Saddam Hussein and use chemical warfare. We are using mothballs and other type items. I hope this will scare the vermin off. Well if Bermuda Run Country Club can have a garden club, then Cana can too. So far I am the only one in the Cana garden club. I am in charge of cranking the tiller. I am actively looking for members who have had good experiences with watermelons. Bring your own seeds, mine never work. Not sure if you heard about the Farm Safety Day Camp to be held at the Eatons family farm here in Cana. Children throughout the county will be able to learn about things such as fire safety, first aid, lawn mower safety, ATV safety, animal safety, bicycle safety, electrical safety and large machinery safety. There will also be a CPR class for adults. Something for everyone. I will let you know more when we get closer to this event. Happy Belated Birthday to Donna Fissel. Happy Birthday to Roger Richie, David Gilbreath and Daniel Latham.

Cornatzer Baptist Seniors Club Holds First Meeting

The senior citizens club organized from Cornatzer Baptist Church held its first meeting on Thursday, Feb. 12 at the activity building of the church. They chose a name for the club, "Joyful Seniors". Everyone took part in a covered dish lunch and the group sang to Homer and Dottie Potts, who were celebrating their 49th wedding anniversary on that date. Other songs were sung and Pastor David Hudson brought a message on love. The meetings will be held the second Thursday in each month and any senior citizen is welcome to attend.

East Davie Homemakers Prepare For Year

East Davie Extension Homemakers met Feb. 10 with Minnie Cornatzer. President Jo Cheek presided, welcoming members and a visitor, Louise Wadley. Lois Stephens had devotions, "The Sacred Path of Contentment," and led in prayer. Stephens presented the program "Rip Off and Fraud." Several members shared rip-off experiences. Jo Cheek passed out book worm forms and a list of county homemaker activities for the year. She also asked members to bring ideas, recipes, hints or anything that will create more interest in the club. Ostone West, Eva Eaton and Minnie Cornatzer agreed to serve on the nominating committee. Domestic Violence Services will be having a training class soon and asked for new volunteers. Clynes Smith reported that all quilt supplies have been bought so the club will soon be busy quilting. Josephine Ellis made and delivered tray favors to Davie County Hospital for Valentine's Day. Ostone West suggested adding more fertilizer to your lawn as having so much rain may have leached out most of what you had already put out. Secret Pal gifts were given out and revealed from the past year. There was much fun as everyone tried to guess who had their name before opening their gift. The visitor decided to join the club. The "collect" was repeated. Minnie Cornatzer prepared a meal.

Women's Enrichment Conference March 14 At Jerusalem Baptist

A Women's Enrichment Conference featuring Joyce Landorf Heatherley will be held Saturday, March 14 at Jerusalem Baptist Church.

An author, public speaker and recording artist, Heatherley brings the message of God's love to thousands of women through her books, videos, Heatherley music and inspired presentations, said the Rev. Jimmy Lancaster, Jerusalem pastor.

The day begins with registration and fellowship at 8:30 a.m., with the first session, "The Inheritance," from 9-10:15. After a break, the second session, "Special Words," will be from 10:45-11:45, with the closing session, "My Blue Blanket," from 1-2:30 p.m. after lunch.

Conference fee, which includes lunch, is $10. Contact Lancaster at 284-6363 or Carolyn Beaver, conference coordinator, at 998-4470. Child care will be provided for children up to age 4. Deadline to register is March 9.

A graduate of Pasadena City College with a degree in music, Heatherley received an honorary doctorate in humanities from Azusa Pacific University. She is the author of 24 books.

"A uniquely gifted Christian communicator, Joyce conveys Biblical principles with relevance, humor and gentle conviction," Lancaster said. "Her honesty and compassion for others shines in her work."

Some of her latest books are Special Words (For When You Don't Know What to Say), My Blue Blanket, The Inheritance and Unworld People. Some of her bestsellers include Balcony People, Irregular People, He Began With Eve, Fragrance of Beauty, Mourning Song, Changepoints, Joseph and Richest Lady in Town.

"Joyce has the unique ability to touch the hearts of people needing assurance, hope and support in the trials of everyday life," Lancaster said. "She has recently undergone treatments for cancer... and has continued to keep that 'hopeful' spirit."

Hurseys Honored On 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lincol Hursey were honored on Saturday evening, Feb. 7, for their 40th wedding anniversary with a dinner at the Cooleemee VFW Hall given by their children: Cassie Kanzig of Troutman, Kristy Hallam of Kannapolis, and Jeff Hursey of Cooleemee.

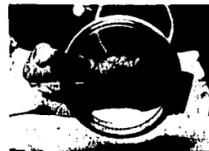

The Hurseys make their home on Gladstone Road in Cooleemee. They have five grandchildren and one great-grandchild. They were married Feb. 10, 1958.

Our experienced nurses average 8 years on our staff, and all are certified in neonatal resuscitation.

"You know, they really have a good thing going here."

We have a special Level II nursery capable of caring for sick or premature babies.

Our birthing suites even include a bed for a family guest or the dad. Because having a baby can be really tiring.

If you want, you can choose to have your baby in your room with you all the time.

The Women's Health Educator at the Resource Center provides valuable information for new mothers.

If babies could talk, they'd tell you: This is a great place to come into the world.

All of our birthing rooms are actually suites that allow you to go through labor, delivery, recovery and postpartum in one location.

So instead of being shuffled from room to room, you can relax in a home-like setting that even features a private shower with a shower massager.

Plus, you'll have everything else you see here. You can choose the type of delivery you want. And you'll have input into medical decisions.

At Rowan Regional Medical Center, you'll have a lot of good things going for you. But best of all is the kind of birth experience you deserve.

They also played jump rope, with vines they cut from nearby woods.

She had one boy who had a habit of saying "I have went," she said, asking the students last week if that's "proper English."

She made the boy write on a piece of paper 100 times "I have gone." She was out of the room when he finished, so she left her a note that said: "I have finished and I have went home."

Mrs. Barney said her students were good children. In 45 years, she only used the switch once.

Looking at old photographs of her students, she can still recall their names.

Last week, she showed students bonnets, which women commonly wore when they worked outside. One she had belonged to her grandmother. Another she had made in 1976 for a centennial celebration at church.

"I used to make my own clothes. My two girls wore dresses then. Now, I notice the girls wear pants just like the boys do," she said.

"We didn't have electricity. To do your laundry, you had to use a washboard and scrub, scrub, scrub. You would take a big wash pot and put water in it and heat it up."

People raised most of their food, and cotton for money, she said.

Mrs. Barney showed the students a watch on her arm. It didn't work, but it has more value than time and money. It was a gift from her husband, and one year working in a cotton field, she lost it.

"Six years after that, he plowed, and when the dirt came over, he saw something shiny. It was my watch. It had lay in that field for six years."

Mrs. Barney lives at home with her daughter, and loves to watch "Wheel of Fortune" and "Jeopardy" on television. "That's when I find out how dumb I am," she said.

She also likes to do word scramble puzzles. "That's my past-time. I have a niece that gave me one with large print. I can see it real well. I can go to town doing that."

She still cooks and does other household chores from time to time. She was much more independent until three years ago, when she fell from a stool and broke a hip and shoulder.

"Now, I have to carry a cane when I walk; but I'm thankful I can walk."

Tears came to her eyes when she was asked how she has lived for so many years.

"I don't know," she said. "I have tried to live a good life. The Good Lord saw fit to leave me here."

Spiritual Resources: Anxiety

By Billy Jarrett

Do you find yourself worrying? All of us struggle with worry or anxiety at some time or another. We like to be in control of our lives, ready and able to confront any situation that arises. Yet, we cannot always be in control, we cannot always handle every situation we face. During these times, we are prone to worry because we do not know what will happen.

How many of us can say that we are never anxious about anything? How many of us can say that we are never anxious, that we never worry? Very few, if any can say that they are unaffected by anxiety and worry.

Human beings want to be in control of their own lives. We want to control this behavior or that situation. When we can't, our natural response is to worry or to be anxious.

I was amazed to find out how much anxiety and worry is mentioned in the Bible in both the Old and New Testaments. Why is this? Because worry and anxiety point to an even deeper and more serious problem: the lack of faith and trust in God. Worry and anxiety are definitely sins because they reflect a lack of trust and faith in God. These sins are very prevalent and everyone has probably been guilty of them at one time or another. The more we do things by ourselves, the more we accomplish by our own strengths and abilities, the less we need God—we think. Then we are finally confronted with a situation in which we are not in control, for which we have no easy answer and the prospect of being unable to do anything for ourselves, brings us to the point of anxiety or worry.

In his letter to the Philippians, Paul declares "Be anxious for nothing, but in everything, by prayer and supplication, with Thanksgiving, let your requests be made known to God; and the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus" (Phil. 4:6-7)

The opposite of worry is trust and we find in the Bible that we are called to place our trust in God through Jesus Christ. We can go to Him, through prayer with our requests, and gain a peace, which surpasses all understanding." This peace assures us that God is in control and that we needn't fear, worry or be anxious.

The next time you are prone to worry about something that you are facing—ask God to help you place your trust in Him.

Through faith, we learn to give control of our lives over to Him. In doing so, we learn that we can trust Him. Then, worry and anxiety become less and less of a problem in our lives.

Quilt Teaches Davie Students About AIDS

By Jeanne Gaither
Davie County Enterprise Record

It weighs more than 15 tons and is large enough to cover 18 acres. Yet the AIDS Memorial Quilt only represents 22 percent of the people who have died of AIDS in the United States, Davie High teacher Cary Powers told students as they prepared to enter the school library to view two sections of the quilt, which were on display there last week.

Each section is made up of eight panels, each three feet by six feet—the approximate size of a grave. Among the panels on display at Davie High was that of Elizabeth Glaser, wife of actor Paul Glaser, and daughter Ariel. Elizabeth got the HIV virus through a blood transfusion just before Ariel was born. Paul Glaser lost his wife and daughter in 1994 and has a son, who is also HIV positive, born before Elizabeth knew she had AIDS, Powers said.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt began in 1987, when Cleve Jones of San Francisco, Calif., painted the name of his friend, Marvin Feldman, on a three by six foot piece of cloth. Jones and a group of volunteers formed the NAMES Project, which displays the quilt about 2,000 times each year in schools, businesses, museums, hospitals, shopping malls, etc. throughout the nation.

Today there are approximately 45,000 panels, representing almost 80,000 people who have died of AIDS, Powers told students.

It has been exciting to see the impact, said Wendi Selbe of the Davie County Healthy Carolinians, who applied to have the quilt here.

Davie High students gather around to sign a section of quilt after learning about the AIDS quilt.

Bomb Threat, Crisis Intervention Policy To Be Considered

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

The caller was young. The voice familiar. They said there was a bomb at North Davie Middle School.

What should school officials have done? It's not an easy question to answer, and one that school officials have been studying even before the recent incident at North Davie. That time, as the policy states, the gym was searched first, and students moved there in a "fire drill" while teachers and others searched individual classrooms. The decision to use the gym, or to call 911 rests on the school office staff. And training and procedures for these people is being made more clear, said Dr. Bill Steed, superintendent.

At least one parent wasn't happy with the way the North Davie threat was handled. "Any threat should be taken seriously," Sherry Dyson told board of education members at their February meeting. "We've got to move kids out of the buildings, as well as notify authorities." Neither was done at North Davie.

Steed thinks the policy is good, but said there may be to be a clause that requires schools to contact proper law enforcement agencies. He doesn't want ambulance and police vehicles screaming into the school parking lots at every call, but thinks they should contact police or sheriff's investigators.

"We want to prosecute them, and we will. We want to protect children."

— Dr. Bill Steed
Davie Schools Superintendent

"We want to prosecute them, and we will," Steed said, adding that each school is equipped with call tracing, meaning the location of the caller can be traced.

"When is the point that you call them (police)? We're all after the same thing. We want to protect children."

Protecting children - and those who work with them at schools - is the goal of a crisis intervention policy the board is expected to consider on March 8.

That policy establishes a crisis intervention team for every school, and one for the entire system. They could handle things such as a death of a fellow student, a tornado, or disease outbreak. Every nurse, EMT, counselor, and person with CPR training has been identified - to be called into action when needed, Steed said.

"We have seen an increase in the number of cases in which students have had to deal with the deaths of their classmates, siblings, family members, or members of the school staff," he wrote. "In addition, children have increasingly been exposed to various forms of violence, abuse and other traumatic events."

"The objective of this plan is to respond in a prompt and caring manner to those in crisis and to enhance the school's return to a normal academic environment as quickly as possible. Through this plan, we hope to provide a vitally needed service to the schools with professionally trained staff."

The plan includes forms for each school to fill out, citing what action was taken to help students cope with the particular crisis.

Quilt Honors AIDS Victims, Warns Of Danger

Approximately 150 people visited the quilt from inside and outside the school, Powers said.
A couple from Salisbury left a rose in memory of their son. A woman visited in memory of her 25-year-old son and eight-year-old grandson. "HIV is in this county. People from all over have come in to remember their loved ones who've died of AIDS," he said.

The disease is growing fastest in the 15-24 age group. Powers said, he encouraged students to practice abstinence, as sex is the way most young people get AIDS.

"Elizabeth Glaser and her daughter didn't have a choice, but you do," Selbe told the audience.

Students look at the quilt in the Davie High Library.

Cooperative Ed Programs Still Strong At DHS

Cooperative education is thousands of years old.

It goes back to a time when individuals were in school part of a day and worked with their fathers the remainder of the day learning their trade. The Hebrews used this form of education to pass along skills and values to their children.

Today, it is more popular than ever among many high schools, community colleges and four year colleges.

At Davie High School, cooperative education allows one to receive daily classroom instruction along with on-the-job training. It has been available at Davie for many years through a course called Industrial Cooperative Training (ICT).

ICT recently had a name change. It is now called Trade and Industrial Work Development. The course is a cooperative effort of the school, the workplace, the parents and the student. These individuals work together for the benefit of the student.

Trade and Industrial Work Development (TIWD) allows students to earn high school credit while working a job. A student may earn three or four credits depending on the number of hours worked. Students must work an average of 15 hours per week. TIWD is available to juniors and seniors. Students who are interested should see Mr. Taylor in room D-2 at the high school.

Some of the jobs included in the TIWD curriculum include computer jobs, service jobs including all construction oriented jobs, health field related jobs, machining jobs, building maintenance, industrial maintenance and some plant/farm production jobs.

The benefits of TIWD are many and varied. It allows students to work at an occupation to help determine if it is the correct one for them. The jobs provide an income for the student which can help supplement money for a parent. Students learn the responsibilities that come with a job at an early age. The school monitors student progress on the job as well as in class.

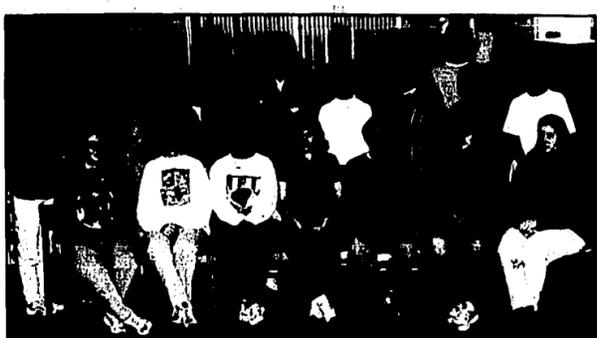

"Davie High School has been very fortunate over the years to have wonderful support from businesses in Davie County and surrounding counties," said Instructor Monte Taylor. "The TIWD program has worked with literally hundreds of individual business owners as well as larger companies to give Davie students job experiences."

Many of these TIWD students still work for the same companies that they worked for while in high school.

Parents are also an integral part of the TIWD program. Parents must support and give help to students when needed. That includes monitoring student progress at school and on the job.

"The most important part of any cooperative education program is the student," Taylor said. "Students in the TIWD program are expected to be respectful, responsible, honest and reliable in all aspects of dealing with employees and the school."

If anyone has a question concerning the TIWD program at Davie High School, call Taylor at 634-5905.

Guidance Information Hotline Is Established At Davie High

What are SAT deadlines? What scholarships should your child be applying for? How can your child learn more about a career that interests him or her?

To help parents who may not be able to call a guidance counselor during school hours get the answers to important questions like these, a new guidance information line has been established at Davie High School.

Information on such things as college and scholarships and important deadlines will be updated on the new line each week.

To call the new line, parents should dial 634-0390, extension 1400.

"Everything that the guidance office does we want to communicate to parents," said vocational guidance counselor Rex Hobson.

Albert Moore looks over the sidewalk in the spot he says requires the most cleaning in downtown Mocksville.

Moving Downtown

Retired Man Enjoys New Job In Downtown Mocksville

By Jeannette Galther
Davie County Enterprise Record

The dirtiest spot in town, he said, is on the square near Sweet Lover's Haven where people have thrown trash from the restaurant and advertisements from newspapers bought from a row of racks there.

The sidewalks in downtown Mocksville have been a lot cleaner lately, and everyone who has seen Albert Moore and his giant vacuum cleaner know why.

Whatever the need, Moore is there to do it—smiling while he works.

In the fall, he hauled away truckload after truckload of leaves. In the summer, he expects to help with the mowing. And in these winter months and a half years, Moore, who lives in the Sheffield community, retired last year when the Rubbermaid plant in Statesville closed.

It wasn't long after that before Mocksville Town Commissioner J.C. "Buster" Cleary asked Moore if he would be interested in cleaning up around the square—a job Cleary had thought someone needed to do for quite a while.

The day after Moore spoke to Town Manager Terry Bralley, he went to work and has been enjoying his part-time job ever since.

"I enjoy working outside, especially when it's pretty," he said.

Being able to see what he's accomplishing is another nice part of the job. Moore said he saw a 90-year-old man mowing his lawn one day, and he appeared to be enjoying it. The old man told him that he enjoys doing anything if he can see that he's doing a good job.

That's just how Moore feels about his job, he explained.

It's a good way to get exercise, too, Moore said. It's hard to tell how many miles he walks when he's working as he walks back and forth along Mocksville's streets with his vacuum cleaner.

— Photos by Robin Fergusson

Moore said he enjoys being able to work outside.

The town bought a new Billy Goat vacuum cleaner for Moore to use on the sidewalks.

Moore also uses a leaf blower to help keep the streets of Mocksville clean.

DAVIE COUNTY ENTERPRISE RECORD

THURSDAY, MARCH 5, 1998

March 22 The Day: 704 Goes To 336; And 634 Goes To 751

Customers here will receive new telephone numbers and a new area code next month.

The changes will associate the town service areas in the same area code.

Mocksville will change from the 704 area code to the 336 area code on March 22. Customers will also be assigned a new three-digit prefix for their seven-digit local telephone numbers. The town's current prefix - 634 - will be replaced by 751. The last four digits for local telephone numbers will remain the same.

The changes will not affect calling rates. Calls to 911 emergency services and 411 information services will not change.

Mocksville customers will be able to call Winston-Salem using seven digits instead of the 10 digits required now. Calls to Advance, Coolee, James and Hillsdale customers will remain seven digits.

Customers from Mocksville to some areas now made with seven digits will require dialing the area code in addition to the seven digit telephone number because the calls will cross area code boundaries. Those areas are: Catawba, China Grove-Landis, Claremont, Cleveland, Concord, Davidson, Denver, Granite Quarry-Rockwell, Harmony, Huntersville, Kannapolis, Mooresville, Mount Pleasant, New Hope, New London, Salisbury, Sherrills Ford.

S.T. Dunn Remembered For Heart, Determination

By Jeanne Gaither
Davie County Enterprise Record

"What he couldn't do with his legs, he did with his mind and his heart."

S.T. Dunn Jr. spent 50 years of his life in a wheelchair, crippled by polio at age 16, but he never complained, according to the Rev. Norman Frye, pastor of Davie Baptist Church.

Friday afternoon he left that wheelchair behind forever and with it, hundreds to mourn the loss of a friend like no other.

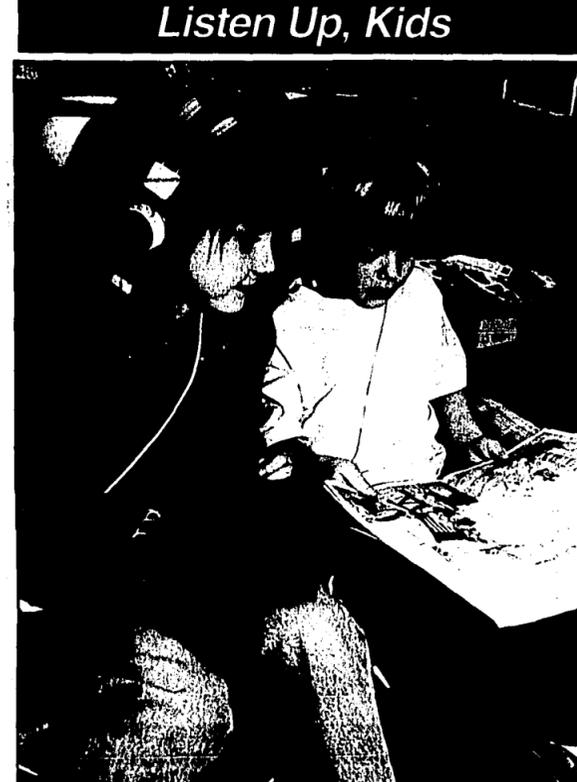

"S.T. was a great friend. He would do anything he could for you. Physically he couldn't do some things, but, if you needed something, he would make it happen," said County Finance Director Jim Stocker.

He was as sincere and dedicated as a friend and family man as he was to his job as Davie County Director of Communication.

He first went to work for the county in 1976 when the communication department separated from the sheriff's department and was soon made the department's first director.

"I don't believe you could have a better boss. He always looked at the people here as more than just

County Denies Request For Manufactured Housing Park

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

Davie commissioners denied a request for a mobile home park on Daniel Road.

Jim Michael, speaking for his father, Bob Michael, said the family wanted to put 10 mobile homes on 6.3 acres. They asked the property be rezoned from residential-agricultural to manufactured home.

"We would like to see good from changing the zoning changed at the discretion of the owner.

Nayrex Barnhardt questioned the need for another manufactured housing park in that part of the county. Others nearby have vacancies, he said.

Barnhardt said that new trailer parks look nice, but 15 years later, many become run-down. "It's going to de-value our property greatly," he said.

He called the Michael's restrictions "meaningless" because of a clause that said they could be

Wayne Webb, speaking for Johnnie Davis, called the neighborhood a "little hometown" where "everyone looks after one another."

"The only benefit would be one individual's income," he said, "and we don't feel like that would offset the concerns and safety of the people who have lived there for 50 years."

changed at the discretion of the owner.
