County Starts Process For School Bond Vote

Second High School Not A Consideration

By Kathy Chaffin
Davie County Enterprise Record

It looks like Davie residents will again have the opportunity to vote on improvements to the schools.

The Davie County Board of Commissioners unanimously passed a resolution Monday giving notice of intent to hold an $8.825 million bond referendum to pay for additions and renovations to four elementary schools and the high school. A public hearing on the matter will be held in July, after which the board will vote on whether to proceed with the referendum.

Though the resolution approved by commissioners did not specify a date, County Manager Terry Bralley said the intent is to schedule it in conjunction with the Mocksville, Cooleemee and Bermuda Run municipal elections on Nov. 4.

The proposed bond issue is a scaled-down version of the $29 million package defeated by Davie County voters by a 70 percent margin on March 25.

The proposed bond issue includes $2.58 million for renovations and the addition of classroom and support space at Cooleemee Elementary School; $2.66 million for a new gymnasium, cafeteria renovation and new classrooms at Mocksville

Elementary; $1.02 million for additional classroom and support space at Pinebrook Elementary; $1.6 million for additional classroom and support space at Shady Grove Elementary; and $714,000 for renovations at Davie High.

Also part of the package is $233,700 in technology upgrades to North and South Davie middle schools.

Davie County Schools Superintendent W.G. "Dub" Potts and school board member Debbie Bingham Pullen presented the resolution to commissioners.

The planned $3 million improvements at William R. Davie Elementary, which have been identified as the most pressing need in the school system, are not included in the bond issue because they are scheduled to be completed during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Cooleemee Swimming Pool OK'd To Open

By Kim Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - The town swimming pool should open this week, after a meeting Monday night with members of the Save the Pool committee and the town board.

There had been concern whether the committee would give the town the money it had raised to open the pool this summer. The board has $11,269 budgeted for the pool this year, and the Save the Pool committee has $15,500, with some additional checks still to be deposited. But, because of issues donators had raised, the committee was concerned about handing the money over to the town.

"Dolly (Urdinak, town clerk) advised me when I set up the bank account to make it so two people would have to sign the checks to avoid misappropriation of funds," said Jan Ledford, who has led the fight to save the pool. "In the beginning, my thought was whoever was running the pool could come up and say, 'okay, we need another month of chemicals,' or whatever, they would come to the town and get approval, then the town would go to the committee with a receipt and the committee would write a check and send it."

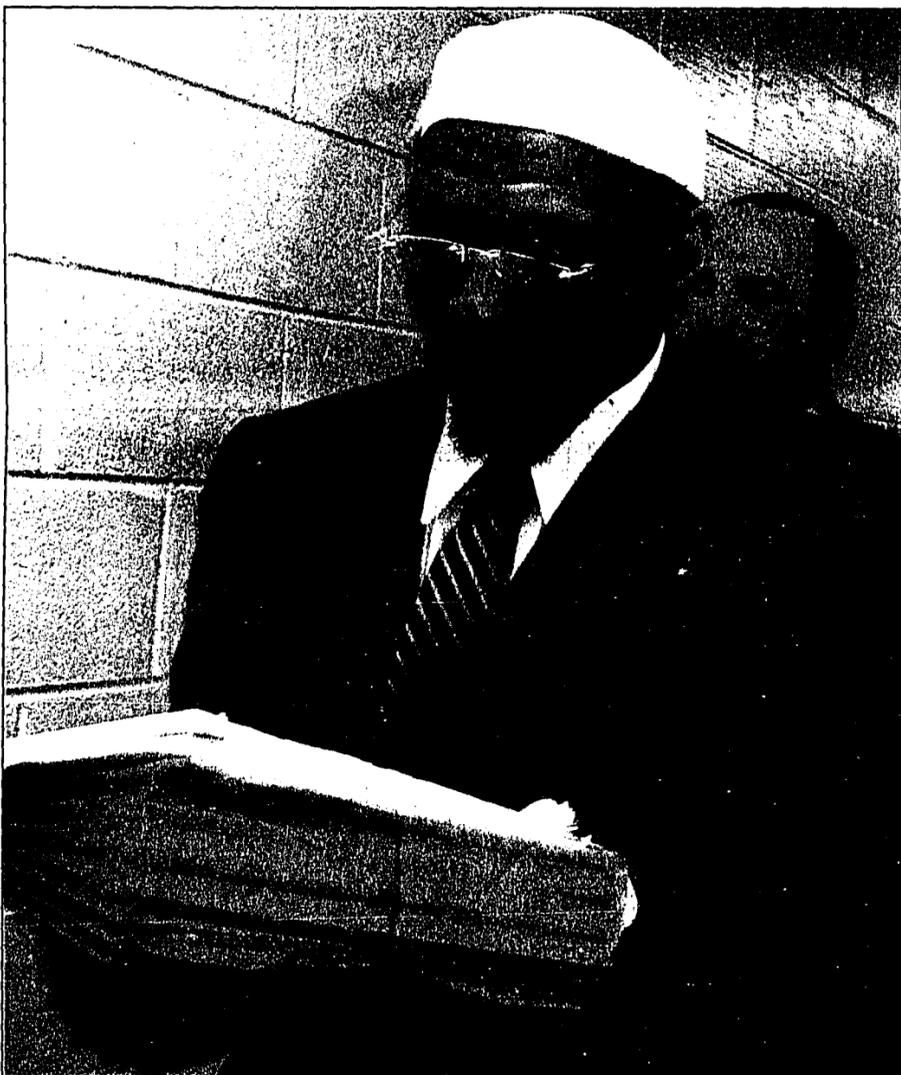

"That sends up a red flag because being a town, a government entity, we can't do that," said Mayor John Chandler. "I don't think we will be allowed to operate that way where we have another group paying the bills."

Ledford said a lot of people who gave money said they wouldn't want the town to handle it.

"Then they shouldn't have given you money because the pool is owned by the town," commissioner Fran Parker said. "Under the rules of the local government council, we cannot have another group paying the bills for town property."

According to Ledford, people believe that once the town has the money, it will be put in the general fund and will be spent on everything except the pool.

Second Trial Begins For Man Accused Of Mocksville Murder

By Jackie Seabolt
Davie County Enterprise Record

A jury from Iredell County heard opening statements in the second trial of Jathiyah A. Al-Bayyinah on murder charges on Wednesday, May 28.

Al-Bayyinah, formerly known as Terry Dennis Moore, is charged in the 1998 stabbing death of 71-year-old S.W. Brown Jr., owner of S.W. Brown and Sons, a family based wholesale grocery established more than 60 years ago on Depot Street in Mocksville.

Brown was robbed and stabbed at his store on March 6, 1998 in the early morning hours. He died from those stab wounds nine days later at N.C. Baptist Hospital.

A jury found Al-Bayyinah guilty of Brown's murder in December 1999 and sentenced him to death. But because evidence linking Al-Bayyinah to other crimes not associated with the S.W. Brown incident were introduced during that trial, it was later determined Al-Bayyinah's right to a fair trial was violated and he was granted a retrial last August.

The retrial jury, consisting of six white women, five white men, one black man, and four alternates, was selected from Iredell County because of local publicity surrounding the case. Jurors are being transported daily to and from the courthouse.

Al-Bayyinah, 39, has appeared daily, ankles shackled, seated between his lawyers, Lori Hamilton-Dewitt and Richard Ramsey.

Prosecutor Patricia Bruce said in her opening statement that evidence

Taking Control

North Cooleemee Residents Join To Help Neighborhood

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

It's not your old North Cooleemee.

Residents in this neighborhood just off N.C. 801 outside Cooleemee are working to change their reputation as a rough, drug-infested neighborhood.

Already, they've exceeded in getting drug dealers out of the area, said Barry Melton president of the newly-formed Concerned Citizens of North Carolina.

The group has held a clean-up day and a picnic to help neighbors get to know one another a little better. They held a rainy Easter Egg hunt.

"A group of local citizens has decided to take on the challenge of updating North Cooleemee into a fun, family place," Melton said.

The group meets monthly in a deserted building. "Even though the meeting spot may be run down, their ideas are not," Melton said.

They are working on a set of goals. Among the first things to do was to let everyone know the group exists. This was done by going door to door and handing out written material.

Time To Build 'Coalition Of The Willing' For New Referendum

Finally, something we can chew on. A new proposal. Something on the table to bring to a close this school debate. Something we can agree on?

Too early to tell. The Davie County Board of Commissioners on Monday approved sending another bond referendum for school construction to the voters — this time for $8.8 million. It is a much smaller version of the $29 million that voters so soundly rejected earlier this year.

The second high school has been jettisoned. Debate about building a third middle school has been postponed. This referendum will expand and improve the elementary schools and fix some problems at Davie High.

Now to get the thing approved. Most of the opponents of the first referendum vowed to support a smaller referendum — without the second high school. They promised to work as hard to get this one approved as they worked to defeat the first one.

The school board should take them up on that offer. The board should enlist, again, the parent organizations and the civic clubs to carry the banner for school construction.

It would say something wonderful about this county to approve this referendum 70 percent to 30 percent — the opposite of the count against the first vote.

But the school board and those of us who believe in public education cannot take the vote for granted. Voting for more taxes has never been popular — even for laudable projects such as this.

One day the days when voters approved bonds just because school leaders said they were needed.

That's why the commissioners and school board toyed with the idea of merely borrowing the money without a referendum. They have worried that voters would reject even the smaller referendum.

That's a risk the county must take. Borrowing the money — circumventing the referendum process — cuts the voters out.

The voters need to sign on for this project. Our schools are worthy of their active, willing financial support.

We would like to see all the county commissioners join the team this time. Not as token supporters, but as real advocates. The sheriff. The mayors. The judges. The town board members of Bermuda Run, Cooleenace and Mocksville. The soil and water conservation board ... all of them should be vocal in their support of this referendum. It is their obligation as leaders of the county.

Excellent school facilities are important to our future.

They attract industry. They keep this a desirable place to live. They help provide our children with the tools they need for a better education.

One room schoolhouses were good for their time. But we need to provide our children with modern, adequate and attractive classrooms.

That's why the school board must again lead a "coalition of the willing" into battle for this bond when it goes before the voters this fall.

That coalition needs to be huge.

A second failure would be embarrassing to this county's reputation. This is a package we can agree is necessary. It's not everything we need or want, but it will finally address a festering problem in the elementary schools.

It cries out for approval.

What A Wonderful Community We Live In

To the editor:

What a wonderful community we live in. We would like to say how thankful we are to everyone who came to our daughter's aid on Tuesday evening, May 27. Katie was rendered unconscious and unresponsive after being hit in the head while playing in a softball game. We are so very grateful to the two nurses who were at Katie's side; we don't know your names, but "thank you" for being there. "Thank you" to the Farmington First responders who arrived so quickly and were so efficient. "Thank you" to the Davie County EMS who treated Katie so well; we really appreciate all you did. Katie was alert by the time she arrived at NC Baptist ED, as she pleaded with the nurses not to cut her softball jersey, because she had a game on Saturday. Katie sustained a concussion, but was able to return home later that night. Words cannot express the gratitude we feel for everyone who helped us in our time of need. We appreciate all the calls, love and concern shown for Katie.

Katie played in the last game of the season on Saturday; wearing her uncut jersey. Thank you to everyone for making a difference. Keith, Terrie and Katie Walker Mocksville

Study On Budwig Diet On The Way

To the editor:

Here is an update on getting the government to look into the cancer treatment the Budwig Diet. Rep. Julia Howard said that she would send my previous letter to Senator Dole. I have also provided information to Rep. Howard on another cancer treatment and a contact number for it. And one for skin cancer, censema black. In a future letter I'm going to give a summary on a breakthrough for cystic fibrosis that I read in a March 3 issue of Woman's Day magazine. The Budwig Diet, cancell and censema black are used by hundreds if not thousands every year but the information on them is not getting out to most people so that's why we are asking the government for a detailed review. Work or not work it is beneficial to have this information. We should anticipate that these things are going to be looked at soon.

Student Thankful For SHADES Car

To the editor:

I would like to thank the Davie High PTSA and its president, Christy Shafer, the Davie High Auto Tech class, and Dr. Bost and the assistant principals of Davie High for all they did to provide a 1995 Honda Civic to the student body of Davie High as an incentive for entering the SHADES contest throughout the year. After modifications to the car by the auto tech class, the car was given away to a lucky student on May 9, myself. The car is a blessing, it will provide me safe and economical travel to and from college over the next four years. Thanks, again.

Pray For Doctors To Help Keep Davie Hospital Open

To the editor:

Recently, my sister, Lucile Howard, 86, was admitted to the Davie County Hospital by Dr. Seagle. I am almost 91 years old, and what a blessing it is that our local hospital is now open so that I did not have to be transported out of town to be with her.

I cannot say enough wonderful things about our hospital. The staff is so efficient and helpful. The kitchen staff was caring and willing to provide necessary food, and Dr. Seagle is certainly a concerned physician. Our days at Davie County Hospital proved to us that we all should be proud that is is now open, and please pray that our local doctors will support this hospital in order to keep it open, giving us all the secure feeling we need knowing that it is available.

Don't Throw It Out ... It May Come Back In Style

When I was very young, I remember that pillowcases were sometimes called "pillowslips." However, I had not heard that term in a long time. Recently, I saw an advertisement for "pillowslips." This brings me to the conclusion that if you wait long enough, "what goes around comes around."

Years ago, bed jackets were common. Then they seemed to disappear for a long time. Suddenly, they have begun to appear again in all the catalogs.

I've always liked sweater guards so that I could put my sweater around my shoulders and fasten it with the chain without actually having to put the sweater on. Anyway, they, too, went out of style. This past year, I saw sweater guards advertised in one catalog and I thought I'd order one. I should have ordered it right away, but I think it upset me that the postage was almost as much as the article. Anyway, in the meantime, the catalog got lost and I've never seen one advertised since, so I still don't have my sweater guard. It really wouldn't bother me if it wasn't stylish, since it serves a purpose.

You've probably noticed by now that I know what's in most of the catalogs. The reason for this is that when you get my age, you can't fight the malls any more. If you have a garment that you've worn awhile, but it's not worn out, don't dispose of it. Just put it in the closet and 10 years from now, it may be right in style. I know someone who had that experience. I'm not sure this would work in my case. I might not be around to wear it, but I'm thinking of younger people. Have you noticed that if you find a particular type of shoe you like or a particular kind of undergarment that is right for you, the manufacturers can't seem to wait to change the style? I'm sure the dress designers must laugh when they come out with very short dresses or skirts and people buy them and then suddenly the dress length drops to the ankles. Some of us "old fogeys" fool them and just wear our dresses the same length all the time, rather than following the latest style.

Nothing seems to stay with same. Sometimes it's mind boggling to remember when you paid 25 cents for a box of cereal, for which you now pay about $3.19 or more. I thought of a remark a friend made recently. He's in his 70s now, but he says he's much stronger than he used to be. He says that years ago, when he bought $20 worth of groceries, he could hardly carry them in the house. Now, he says he can carry them in with one hand.

Do you remember curb service in bygone days? You could drive up to the drug store and a young person (usually a teenager) would come out and bring it back to you. Then you sat in the car and enjoyed refreshments while watching the passersby. Of course, this wouldn't work now because most drug stores do not have fountain drinks. In fact, I'm not sure any of them do.

Every once in awhile something special would come along to our little town. I remember the day Robert Wadlow, the world's tallest man, came to our town. He stood up on the back of a truck on the square and the man with him invited the people who had gathered around, to ask questions. I do not remember how tall he actually was, but he was a huge man. The man traveling with him answered the questions. I don't remember Mr. Wadlow saying much. He is listed in the Guinness Book of World Records.

I'm sure many of you remember when the manufacturers of Burma Shave advertised their products by putting up signs along the nation's highways. Each sign had a line and the second line would follow just down the road. A few samples of the lines were: "When you're frisky from whiskey Don't drive, 'cause it's risky"; "Don't stick your elbow out too far, it might go home in another car"; "Her chariot raced at 80 per - They hauled away what had Ben Hur"; and "Said Juliet to Romeo, If you don't shave, go homeo."

Nowadays we still have signs, but it's been a long time since I've seen a Burma Shave rhyme. Just before an election, you really see the signs. Maybe the candidate should put a catchy little rhyme beneath his or her picture and the voter would remember that candidate on election day. It might be interesting to try it. Just to see what would happen. I remember being asked one time to write a song for a candidate running for a political office. His daughter sang this song at several gatherings during the campaign. I really don't think this had anything to do with it, but he won in the election.

North Cooleemee Residents Improving Neighborhood

"The clean up and picnic was better than anyone could have expected," Melton said. "The Concerned Citizens of North Cooleemee have gotten great responses from many people in the small neighborhood, and intend to continue building a great place to live. Even though all the cost of events are coming from members of the small group, more plans for more events are in the works."

The group started a couple of months ago, an offshoot of a sewer project advisory committee. Melton said that the flow of information to those committee members wasn't handled properly, so they decided to form their own committee. "We found out that there were problems that could have been avoided," he said.

The group hopes to get a historical marker for the site of an old school started by the mill for black children. That predates the North Cooleemee School.

Warren Fleming, a former resident gave permission to use his land for the picnic. Richard Reeves and family donated land on Jerusalem Avenue for the Easter Egg hunt.

Those who donated food and cooked for the picnic were Ansto Fowler, Jim Hogue, Perry James and others.

Jim Montez, Oscar Young and Leo Pruitt man the cookers.

"That's not true," Parker said. "We received $750 for repair of the vacuum and it was used. But it was earmarked for the swimming pool so it couldn't go elsewhere."

"If they have a mistrust," said Russ Spry, "however misguided, there has to be stipulations. The only stipulation is they want to funnel it in as you need it. There should be a way to work it out, without causing a big uproar."

"The only way to this without a big uproar is turning the money over to the town," said Chandler. "Our records are public records, available for the public. That's the easiest way to handle it. I don't see going through a lot of rigamarole over the mistrust of a few. My suggestion is the money is turned over to the town to the fund and if they want to see how it's spent can come in and look at books."

According to several of those present, people had come and asked to see the books, only to be sent away by the town clerk.

"How about telling your clerk that these are public records, not her personal records," one person asked.

The board said they would look into the matter.

"I never, never was under the assumption that the money would be kept separate from the town funds," Parker said.

"I didn't think so either until so many people came to me with the mistrust," Ledford said.

Murder Trial Under Way

would show a knife was found near Al-Bayyinah at the time of his capture and a medical examiner would testify that knife was consistent with the stab wounds that killed Brown.

Ramsey told jury members the knife was found on the only blood found on it belonged to Al-Bayyinah.

Several law enforcement officers involved in the case five years ago testified.

A motion by the defense to suppress a statement Al-Bayyinah made to lead detective, Ken Hunter, was denied by Judge Jerry Cash Martin.

Hunter testified that after Al-Bayyinah had been arrested, read his rights, and asked to have a lawyer, he made the statement, "I didn't stab that old man. Just arrest me so I can get some sleep."

Hunter said he never gave Al-Bayyinah any information about the nature of the crime.

"We are aware that several officers will testify that my client made certain incriminating statements," said Ramsey. But he said they would challenge those statements and they were not an admission by Al-Bayyinah.

Bruce said that while Al-Bayyinah was being transported into custody March 6, 1998 he told the transporting officer the robbery was done by an acquaintance he had just met and that he wanted to go back to the Department of Corrections because he didn't belong (in society).

In a tape recording of the emergency call Brown made to 911 after the stabbing, his voice can be heard saying the man who robbed him was in his store the day before and he thought he had cashed his paycheck, but wasn't sure.

Two of Brown's family members in the courtroom cried as the tape was played.

When Al-Bayyinah was apprehended a few blocks from S.W. Brown and Sons, on what is now Ken Dwiggins Drive, a paycheck stub was found in his possession.

Ramsey pointed out that other black males had been at the store. One had cashed a roll of coins the day before the stabbing and another black male that had been in the store the day before left the state the next day.

Ramsey focused on the lack of an investigation, failure to follow up on leads, and the fact that reports from some of the officers involved were never filed.

A property sheet that listed Al-Bayyinah's possessions at the time of his arrest was submitted as evidence. Ramsey pointed out the sheet was dated March 6, 1998 at 2:25 p.m. It showed the case being closed.

"The evidence will show that investigation to solve this case took two minutes and two seconds," said Ramsey. The amount of time between the 911 call being received and Al-Bayyinah's pursuit by authorities.

The newest piece of evidence in the trial is a syringe found in the pocket of the black jacket Al-Bayyinah was wearing the day of the crime. It was sent to the SBI for analysis in March 1998 and now, five years later, the syringe has just been discovered.

Man Found Guilty Of DWI After Leaving Local Bank

By Jackie Seabolt
Davie County Enterprise Record

A Davie man accused of driving drunk after a visit to McDonald's pled not guilty in Davie District Court last Thursday.

Mocksville police officer Derrick Cline was dispatched to the BB&T Bank at Willow Oak Shopping Center, Mocksville on Feb. 3. Bank employees wanted Danny Ray Frank removed from the bank's premises and reported he appeared drunk, Cline testified.

Cline also testified Frank was told to leave the bank but was told not to drive. Frank walked next door to McDonald's, came back and got in his car, and drove away, said Cline.

Police followed Frank to the Wal-Mart parking lot where he was stopped.

Defense attorney Ed Vogler called Mary Smith Frank, wife of the accused, to the stand. She testified she was with her husband the day he was stopped.

She said Frank and she started walking towards McDonald's and saw Cline and another officer looking inside the couple's car. She testified Cline asked if there was anything they (the officers) should be looking for. Cline then told them to get into the car and get it off BB&T's property now, she said.

During questioning from Prosecutor Wendy Terry, Mary testified she had one drink four hours earlier during a steak dinner but did not drive the car from the bank parking lot because it was a manual drive.

Frank, who is disabled and lists Mary as his legal guardian, refused an intoxilizer test.

Judge Samuel Cathey sentenced Frank to 60 days in jail, suspended three years. Frank was put on unsupervised probation, ordered not to operate a vehicle until licensed by the Department of Motor Vehicles, and pay $100 along with court costs.

East Spencer Mayor Irma Smith Jefferies will speak at the Masonic and DEU Picnic Saturday.

Masonic, DEU Picnic Saturday Evening At Clement Grove

Stephanie Dulin will perform. At 6 p.m., a local talent show will begin. Carnival rides will be open Saturday night.

Jefferies earned an associate degree in science from Rowan-Cabarrus Community College, a bachelor's degree in nursing from Winston-Salem State University, and is working toward a master's of theology degree from Hood Theological Seminary in Salisbury. She has been nurse manager at Rowan Regional Medical Center for 19 years.

After retiring from Rowan Regional, she became mayor of East Spencer in 2001.

The picnic raises money for the central children's home in Oxford, and to pay scholarships for Davie students to further their education.

County Starts Process For New School Bond

Money from the fund balance and other resources available to the school board will be used to do the work, which includes adding more classroom and support space and renovations.

About $314,000 in capital improvement funds will also be used to upgrade the science labs and build new bathrooms at Davie High.

Potts, in presenting the resolution to commissioners, said the general sentiment of the people after the defeat of the March 25 bond issue was that they would have supported it had the package addressed the original recommendations of the task force set up to look at the needs of the school system.

In coming up with the new proposal, he said school officials looked at the capital improvement needs identified by the Davie County Task Force for School Facilities.

Pullen thanked the commissioners — who were voted the 2001 Commissioners of the Year by the N.C. School Boards Association — for their commitment to the Davie County Schools and the 6,000 students that attend them. "I just want to say publicly I really appreciate that," she said.

The needs of the schools are still critical, according to Pullen.

"Because the first bond did not pass, we know that we can't just sit down," she said.

Commission Chair Ken White, who was back on the job after recent surgery, said he wanted to acknowledge again the work of the task force members.

"I think government works best when our people are involved," he said, "and they labored long and hard to come up with as I recall four basic recommendations. At this point, we are addressing the elementary schools and the renovation at Davie High, and they had some recommendations about middle school needs and high school needs."

White also commended school officials for proceeding with the much-needed improvements at William R. Davie. "I think you're doing the right thing there," he said.

Though commissioners voted unanimously on the last bond referendum based on the unanimous recommendations of the school board, White said "the ultimate barometer of success in our business" is the support of the people. "And they spoke."

What has become clear, though, White pointed out, is that most of the people who voted against the referendum were not against improving the schools, but rather the specific recommendations for doing so.

Opponents of the referendum, which launched a strong grassroots campaign against it, contended that the vote for a second high school should have been in a separate issue from the other needed improvements.

With Davie recently being recognized again as the fastest growing county in the Northwest Piedmont, White said planning for that growth is an ongoing challenge for school officials.

County Manager Terry Bralley, when contacted after the meeting, said the results of the 2000 census showed that Davie County's population had increased by 25 percent over the previous 10 years.

Bralley attributed that growth to several factors, including the high quality of the school system.

Potts, in a telephone interview after the meeting, said a second high school is still something the county will need to look at in the future.

Looking back at the failure of the last bond issue, he said school officials

County Starts Process For New School Bond

Money from the fund balance and other resources available to the school board will be used to do the work, which includes adding more classroom and support space and renovations.

About $314,000 in capital improvement funds will also be used to upgrade the science labs and build new bathrooms at Davie High.

Potts, in presenting the resolution to commissioners, said the general sentiment of the people after the defeat of the March 25 bond issue was that they would have supported it had the package addressed the original recommendations of the task force set up to look at the needs of the school system.

In coming up with the new proposal, he said school officials looked at the capital improvement needs identified by the Davie County Task Force for School Facilities.

Pullen thanked the commissioners — who voted the 2001 Commissioners of the Year by the N.C. School Boards Association — for their commitment to the Davie County Schools and the 6,000 students that attend them. "I just want to say publicly I really appreciate that," she said.

The needs of the schools are still critical, according to Pullen.

"Because the first bond did not pass, we know that we can't just sit down," she said.

Commission Chair Ken White, who was back on the job after recent surgery, said he wanted to acknowledge again the work of the task force members.

"I think government works best when our people are involved," he said, "and they labored long and hard to come up with as I recall four basic recommendations. At this point, we are addressing the elementary schools and the renovation at Davie High, and they had some recommendations about middle school needs and high school needs."

White also commended school officials for proceeding with the much-needed improvements at William R. Davie. "I think you're doing the right thing there," he said.

Though commissioners voted unanimously on the last bond referendum based on the unanimous recommendations of the school board, White said "the ultimate barometer of success in our business" is the support of the people. "And they spoke."

What has become clear, though, White pointed out, is that most of the people who voted against the referendum were not against improving the schools, but rather the specific recommendations for doing so.

Opponents of the referendum, which launched a strong grassroots campaign against it, contended that the vote for a second high school should have been in a separate issue from the other needed improvements.

With Davie recently being recognized again as the fastest growing county in the Northwest Piedmont, White said planning for that growth is an ongoing challenge for school officials.

County Manager Terry Bralley, when contacted after the meeting, said the results of the 2000 census showed that Davie County's population had increased by 25 percent over the previous 10 years.

Bralley attributed that growth to several factors, including the high quality of the school system.

Potts, in a telephone interview after the meeting, said a second high school is still something the county will need to look at in the future.

Looking back at the failure of the last bond issue, he said school officials didn't do a good enough job of informing the public of the educational needs "and the fact that we can reach more kids in a smaller setting."

Increasing enrollment at the high school and the two middle schools is an ongoing concern, according to Potts. North and South Davie middle schools are each projected to open the coming school year with an enrollment of 750, while enrollment at the high school is projected to be 1,600 when school starts in August.

In the meantime, Potts said school officials are responding to the public's concern that the needs of the elementary schools be addressed first. "I think that message was heard loud and clear," he said.

Jones, Cleary Roads Set For Paving

Jones and Cleary roads are scheduled for paving under the N.C. Department of Transportation's Davie County Secondary Roads Improvement Program for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

After hearing no concerns from county residents at a public hearing on the proposed improvements, the Davie County Board of Commissioners voted unanimously Monday to adopt a resolution endorsing the program.

The paving of Jones Road, which is 3 mile in length, is projected to cost $50,000, while the projected cost of paving the 4-mile-long Cleary Road is $75,000.

- Blakely Road, .4 mile, $80,000;
- Buckingham Road, .2 mile, $28,000;
- Irvin Angel Road, .6 mile, $120,000; and
- Woodvale Road, .22 mile, $25,000.

Other improvements called for in the program include $45,000 for right-of-way engineering; $105,000 for stabilizing existing roads; and $80,000 for road additions and widenings.

Bear Creek Plans Vacation Bible School

When young people attend Vacation Bible School at Bear Creek Baptist Church June 8-13, they will be carrying on a tradition that has been going on for generations.

Bear Creek's theme this year is "The Great Kingdom Capers - Cracking the Character Code. Events will be held nightly from 6:30-9 for everyone from young children to adults.

For more information, call pastor, Lee Cook, at 492-7456. Cindy Hendrix is the Bible School director.

Vacation Bible School got its origin in Southern Baptist Churches in 1916. By 1923, publishers were creating Bible School programs.

Young children get a lot of attention at Bear Creek.

Silver Eagles Tour Winery

The Silver Eagles Club went to Yadkin County in May.

After lunch at Papa's Pizzeria, the group went for a tour of Rag Apple Lassic Winery in Bountville. A mural covered one wall.

From there, they traveled to Rockford, where the low bridge had been replaced. The new bridge may be safer, but it isn't unique.

The club visited Rockford Methodist Church, where there is a fresco painting behind the pulpit by John Griffin. He is a brother-in-law of Ben Long, the painter of the frescoes in the North Carolina mountains. The church is on the registry of the National Historical Society. Hannah Hollifield of the society met the group at the church and gave the history. While in the church, Marilyn Potts gave a reading, "A Smile, a gift you give that you get back." She then gave everyone a smiley sticker. A visit to Rockford would not be complete without stopping at Annie Barnett's Rockford Country Store. Everyone enjoyed sitting in the rocking chairs and chatting with Annie.

As the group traveled back toward Mocksville, they stopped at 601 Country Store and browsed.

To put a finishing touch to the day, they stopped for ice cream.

Phenomenal Pitching: Crofts Handcuffs Mooresville

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Even a 6-0 Mooresville team couldn't slow down Cody Crofts, who pitched Mocksville to a 5-0 Southern Division victory Saturday at Mooresville.

With Mocksville coming off a disappointing 10-5 home loss to Wilkes County, the right-hander from West Forsyth High extended his amazing start to the American Legion baseball season with another efficient performance, a complete-game three-hitter. That's three appearances and three wins for Crofts, and Mocksville (3-1, 2-1 SD) is only four games into the schedule.

"That's kind of hard to believe," Crofts said of his 3-0 record. "I haven't pitched like that in a while. It was about the first game I've started in a month, and I wasn't expecting to go nine. I hadn't had my (best) curveball in a while, and I got it back."

Crofts, who has a ton of relatives in Davie County, made a major surge as a West sophomore and teamed with Erik Walker to help the Titans reach the 2002 state 4-A championship series.

But his pitching was a little less predictable this spring as West stumbled to third in the Central Piedmont Conference and missed the playoffs.

Then came Legion, which reenergized Crofts overnight. He picked up wins in relief against Asheboro and Stanly County (as if that wasn't enough, he also provided the clinching hit against Stanly) before making a solid Mooresville team look like ducks out of water.

"That's the best I've seen him throw all year," said Mocksville assistant Kevin McIntosh, who also assists West Forsyth's Randy Pope. "His slider's back to where it was last year when he pitched so well for us in the playoffs."

"They were 6-0 and beat Rowan County. You don't see a complete game very often, much less a complete-game shutout."

Michael Wernsing deserves to be mentioned, too. He capped a two-run second inning with an RBI double, made it 3-0 in the fourth with a two-out single and walked in his third trip to the plate. The No. 9 batter came in 1-for-8. "People didn't know a lot about him coming in, but he played every inning in center field for West Forsyth," Coach Mike Lovelace said. "He was given an opportunity to do something, and it's kind of like the (Evan) Bean situation we had last year. He's taking his game up to the next level. I've played him in center field, at second base and tonight (June 2 at Kannapolis) I'm going to play him in left field."

Jess Maloney (2-for-4) and David Perkins (2-for-4) also batted Crofts. In the second, Perkins' single led to a bases-loaded walk by Bean, and the highest average among players with double-figure at-bats. Although Bean (.222) and Willie Infante (0-for-9) are struggling, they're 1-2 in walks at five and four.

Crofts needed by the second. He averaged 11.6 pitches an inning and allowed just four runners past first base. Crofts' signature sequence was three straight strikeouts in the seventh. To top it off, he whiffed the final two batters of the game.

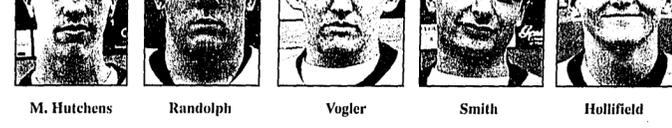

Jack Kimel (1987) holds the single-season record for wins at 12.

"Every pitch was doing what he wanted it to do," said catcher Burgess. "He was smart with his pitches and he really rared back and threw the ball."

Notes: The shutout was in jeopardy when Mooresville's first two batters in the eighth walked. Crofts calmly retired the next three. ... Crofts hasn't allowed a run in 12 2/3 innings. He's given up four hits. ... McKenzie Willoughby is hitting .352 during a four-game hitting streak, and Maloney stands at .384, the highest average among players with double-figure at-bats. ... Although Bean (.222) and Willie Infante (0-for-9) are struggling, they're 1-2 in walks at five and four.

Rusty Mocksville Tastes First Loss

M. Hutchens Randolph Vogler Smith Hollifield

9-1 Record Jr. Legion Suffers First Loss, But Wins 5 Of 6

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

After building waves of confidence and fashioning an eye-popping 8-0 record, the Mocksville Junior Legion baseball team made critical defensive mistakes in the first game of a double-header with Mt. Airy on Sunday at Rich Park.

Mocksville made five errors and Mt. Airy took full advantage to grab a 6-5 Southern Division decision. It began to unravel in the top of the fifth inning, when Mt. Airy pushed across four runs for a 4-3 lead, and the collapse sabotaged the complete-game pitching of Timmy Erb.

"Erb pitched a good game, but the story of the game was we made five errors," Coach Charles Kurfees said. "Erb pitches his heart out and we can't field it behind him. That seems to be his story on pitching. He's a great pitcher but we've got to make the plays behind him."

Mocksville broke a scoreless battle with three runs in the bottom of the fourth. Ted Randolph (2-for-4) doubled and Corey Martin, Matt Hutchens (3-for-3) and Zach Vogler (3-for-3) followed with singles.

But decisive errors in the next inning overshadowed Erb and hitters Vogler and Hutchens as Mocksville slipped to 4-1 in the Southern Division.

"And we've been winning games by playing good defense," Kurfees said. "We just fell apart late in the game. The competition is going to get tougher, and they found that out. Like the Troy game (earlier in the weekend), we throw them out (19-1) and the next thing you know we're in a dogfight, down 2-1 in the sixth inning (before winning 8-4)."

Mocksville didn't let Mt. Airy relish the stunning comeback for long, embarrassing Mt. Airy 2-1 in the exhibition second game.

Once Mocksville's offense got started, nobody wanted to stop. Vogler, Matt Smith and Martin highlighted the outburst with four doubles as Mocksville closed the week at 9-1.

"I believe the guys were a little ticked off about losing," Kurfees said. "Their guys couldn't throw strikes and we took advantage of it. They made a lot of errors and we hit the ball. We got about everybody (20 players) in the game."

Kurfees gave two pitchers their first shot on the hill. Brad Corriher pitched three innings for the winner, and Johnathan Hutchens finished up with two hitless innings.

"Hutchens did a heckuva job," Kurfees said.

The three-doubles-in-three-days stretch started with sweeps of Rowan County and Troy. The sweep at Rowan (7-5 and 9-7) on May 30 was the most satisfying moment of the year.

"Everybody knows we're big rivals with them," Kurfees said. "Just to beat Rowan County means a lot. That says something for our program because we know they're good and they're going to be there when the playoffs start. They're going to be one of the better teams."

In game one, which counted in the SD standings, Mocksville produced four second-inning runs for a 5-2 lead. No one had more than one hit, but "we had clutch hits in situations that we needed," assistant coach Andrew Jones said. "And David Weakley had a sac fly. Everybody chipped in."

Mocksville played flawless defense behind starter Ryan Altred, who left with a 6-5 lead in the fifth. Erb came in to get the save, pitching two scoreless innings.

Aaron Hollifield had the biggest hit, a two-run single that capped the four-run second.

Vogler and Smith fueled the game-two win, with Vogler tripling and singling and Smith rapping two run-scoring hits. John McDaniel did the job on the mound, taking a 9-4 lead into the fifth and final inning.

"McDaniel pitched a heckuva game again," Kurfees said.

Mocksville couldn't be stopped in the exhibition first game against visiting Troy on Saturday, scoring eight runs in the first on the way to a 19-1 blood-letting. Most of the carnage came Smith (3-for-3), Matt Hutchens (2-for-2), Jacob Swain (2-for-3) and Hollifield (2-for-3).

"Everybody was talking about running the score up and all that stuff," Kurfees said. "But when you put these other guys in, they want to play and they want to show us they can play. So they go up there hacking."

Rusty Mocksville Tastes First Loss

Mocksville's early-season momentum hit a wall Friday night. Wilkes County reclaimed a lead in the fourth inning and cruised 10-5 in a Southern Division contest at Rich Park.

Mocksville opened with two wins but was rusty after being idle for three days. The layoff led to a two-thumbs-down performance.

"We hadn't played since (May 26's 3-1 win over Stanly County) and hadn't been able to practice much," Coach Mike Lovelace said after Mocksville slipped to 2-1 and 1-1 in the SD.

Wilkes came in with a 1-3 record, but it's just now rounding into form. Coach Rip Rollins spent the first four games evaluating young players and trying different combinations.

"I've got 20 kids and the first four games we played 20 kids," Rollins said. "I only have three seniors, everybody else are juniors and sophomores. So in order to get the kids a little taste of it, you've got to put them in the game because somewhere down the road you're going to need them."

"But tonight I played the kids that are probably going to play."

Wilkes' true lineup had no trouble taking down Mocksville. It mixed nine hits with 11 walks. It also benefited from four errors, including two in a three-run first. By contrast, Wilkes made one error and never trailed after taking a 7-4 lead in the fourth.

Mocksville starter McKenzie Willoughby, and the first of three relievers, Lonnie Barnes, were tagged for nine runs (six earned) on seven hits (including three doubles) in 6 1/3 innings.

"We're a good-hitting team. There's no doubt about that," Rollins said. "My pitching's decent and my defense is awesome. Outfield, infield - I'll put my defense up against anybody in the league."

Mocksville became a believer in Wilkes' defense. Shortstop Jackson Rollins, the coach's son, "made five or six plays that a lot of shortstops don't make," Lovelace said. "But are they going to have enough pitching? They

Davie High boys basketball coach Mike Absher has two more summer camps - the parent/child camp and the shooting and player development camp.

The parent/child camp is June 13-14 from 6-9 p.m. on June 13 and 9 a.m.-12 p.m. on June 14. The cost is $40 for both father and son and $15 for each additional child. This is open to rising first graders through rising seniors.

And the shooting and player development camp is June 16-18 from 6-8 p.m. with a cost of $40. This is open to rising sixth graders through rising seniors.

Absher will take walk-ups, who need to show up at least 30 minutes prior to the start of camp. For questions, contact Absher at 751-5905.

Girls Basketball Camp June 16-20

Coach Karen Stephens will have the Davie girls basketball camp on June 16-20 and the Davie volleyball camp on July 21-25 at the high school. The cost is $50 for each camp.

At the basketball camp, grades 8-11 will be 8:30 a.m.-noon and grades 9-12 from 1-5 p.m. All grades, K-12, will be 8 a.m.-noon on Friday, June 20.

The volleyball camp times will be 8:30-noon for grades 5-8 and 1-5 p.m. for grades 9-12. All grades, 5-12, will be 8 a.m.-noon on Friday, July 25.

Stephens will take walk-ups, who need to show up at least 30 minutes prior to the start of camp.

Baseball Player Moving To Pennsylvania

Davie County is losing a promising young baseball player in rising junior Dustin Harrison, who is moving back to Pennsylvania next week, according to Mocksville Junior Legion coach Charles Kurfees.

"That's a big loss," Kurfees said of the pitcher-third baseman.

Harrison was one of the main cogs on Davie High's JV team this year, dominating on the mound and hitting better than .300. He performed well enough to earn a handful of varsity starts down the stretch.

"He did a lot of things well and had a good season," Davie varsity coach Mike Herndon said. "I hate losing him, but you go on. You worry about the ones you have, not the ones you don't."

Matt Hutchens Emerges As Jr. Legion Surges

Making matters worse for the losers, Troy did nothing on offense against Hutchens, who set down the first nine he faced and fired a five-inning one-hitter.

"Hutchens has been swinging the bat real well and he's really coming along," Kurfees said. "He's going to be a key when we get on down in the season. We're going to expect a lot from him because he can hit."

Troy looked like a different team in the game that mattered, taking a 2-1 lead into the sixth and forcing Mocksville to roll up its sleeves for an 8-4 win.

"The guys thought we were on cruise control, and we didn't take them seriously," Kurfees said.

Mocksville finally cranked up in the last of the sixth, routing Troy up with seven hits and seven two-out runs. Smith led off with a single and scored on a

Davie Schools

Cowles Elementary
Kindergarten students enjoyed their first field day at Cowles elementary. Thank you to Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Miller as well as the 4th and 5th grade students who helped.

Miss Boddy's class has been reading some favorite authors for the past few weeks. Students voted Eric Carle their favorite and made a small mural with some of the more memorable characters. Miss Boddy and Mrs. Stokes had parents in for an end of the year reception. Students sang some of their favorite Dr. Jean songs and recited some poems.

The first grade had a great time at field day. Students were lucky to have fourth grade to come and be buddies. They helped the younger students around the events. Students were rewarded with blue ribbons after they turned in tickets with 20 or more checks. They earned checks by participating in each event. Most everyone thought the Chilly Willies and the water balloon toss was a great station. Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Miller did a great job making the day a huge success.

Mrs. Cornatzer's class had some news to share and write about in journals. Mrs. Cornatzer announced the arrival of her first child, James Noah Cornatzer on May 14, 2003. The children in her class made her cards.

Mrs. Stein's and Mrs. Cornatzer's class celebrated with a pizza party for students who showed great progress on their sight words. Pizza was delivered by Mrs. Stein's son, Christopher, and her daughter, Sarah. They celebrated with the students. They had ice cream for dessert.

Congratulations to the following students: Tre Redmond, Savannah Burton, Dylan Hutchinson, Katie Harris, Megan Szaboosam, Zack Osborne, Amanda Allison, Wesley Bowles, Pake Millaps, Dimetri Strother, and Alicia Moore from Mrs. Cornatzer's class and Corbin West, David Taylor, Chelsea Hernandez, Katlin Matlock, Hannah Allen, Caleb Martin, Michele Diehl, Emma West, Kristen Neely, Cody Ehrig, and Sam Lively. They went to Cowles Park for the end of year party for hiddys, chips, and cookies, and time to play.

Mrs. Kistner's fourth graders completed a unit on simple machines and are doing several experiments in class to see how simple machines work in everyday life. In social studies, they are completing a book about North Carolina. This is a book students will keep and will be filled with facts about our state.

Students in Mrs. Wilcox and Mrs. Essie/Suphina's fifth grade classes have continued learning about the interaction of plants and animals. The students observed the reaction of earthworms to touch and light and dark environments. An activity to investigate the effects of a variety of pollutants on the habitat of a fish led to a cartoon story about "The Fish".

After Miss Brown's and Mrs. Levens' students read about Curious George making pancakes, Mrs. Levens cooked pancakes. Students had choices of blueberry, chocolate chips, or "plum" and strawberry and whipped cream toppings. In science, the class studied plants as well as insects that help in gardens. They planted marigold seeds, watched them grow, and took them home as Mother's Day gifts. The first graders learned place value and subtraction facts in math. The second graders learned areas of shapes and multiplication facts. As they approached the end of the year, students covered summer safety tips.

Shady Grove Elementary
Students have finished a great year with a talent show, Fun Day, and the Awards Day program. Many students received awards for a variety of accomplishments.

Pino News

By Nora Latham
 Pino Correspondent

Homecoming at Wesley Chapel was last Sunday. Approximately 100 members and guests enjoyed the worship service, the delicious meal and fellowship. Former pastor Diane Marsden was the guest speaker.

Her daughter, Gretchen, also attended. It was an especially joyous day because the new fellowship hall was dedicated and the burned papers were ceremoniously burned. "Thanks to everyone's support the building is debt free. Saturday, June 14, there will be a fun day at Wesley Chapel to benefit the Relay For Life. There will be singing, Bingo, grilled hamburgers and hot dogs and lots of desserts. A TV/VCR is being raffled off. Everyone is invited to attend.

The annual United Methodist Women's Retreat for Davie County was held Monday night at First Methodist Church in Mocksville. Those attending from Wesley Chapel were Dewilla Smith, Kathy Ellis, Nora Latham, Sara Eure and Betty West. Gwen Jones from the Davie Pregnancy Center was the speaker.

Your for Davie County. James and Lelia Essic had as luncheon guests on Friday, their grandson, Joe Candillo, and wife, Katie, from Tucson, Ariz. Also visiting their during the weekend were their grandson, Jeff Essic, and wife, Karen, and granddaughter, Rebecca Essic, all of Raleigh.

County Budget Hearing Monday

The tax rate wouldn't increase, neither would water and sewer rates. Davie County commissioners will consider a "bare bones" $50 million budget Monday night. A public hearing will be held during their 7 p.m. meeting.

The proposed budget keeps all county departments - including schools - at or below the same monies they received last year.

Mocksville Budget Would Keep 32-Cent Tax Rate

Mocksville's proposed budget maintains the 32-cent tax rate.

Town Manager Christine Sanders presented the 2003-2004 budget to town commissioners at their June 3 meeting. A public hearing to discuss the budget has been scheduled for June 16, at 6 p.m. at town hall.

The budget includes a two percent wage increase for all town employees, bringing the total budget to $4,434,500. No increases in water, sewer or utility construction fees were included. In addition, no new positions were created. The town will continue work on the elevated water tank and booster pumping station and make improvements to the sewer system with the use of one million dollars worth of grant funds, Sanders said.

"With the state's finances in dire shape, the town departments were asked not to exceed last year's budget amounts, and they complied."

This year's budget is $50,000 greater than last year's, but Sanders says the costs are justified. Those that had to exceed last year's total had capital-costs and justification for it. She also points to increased power costs. There are no major capital purchases, such as vehicles, in the budget.

The town has completed its financial pledge to YMCA and has one payment left to complete the pledge to the Gant center. County fees were increased, but Sanders says they were minimal.

"In difficult economic times due to state budget cuts, this town budget reflects dedication to providing the best service possible to the citizens of Mocksville," Sanders said.

County Budget Hearing Monday

The tax rate wouldn't increase, neither would water and sewer rates. Davie County commissioners will consider a "bare bones" $50 million budget Monday night. A public hearing will be held during their 7 p.m. meeting.

The proposed budget keeps all county departments - including schools - at or below the same monies they received last year.

There are $1.5 million in non-recurring cuts, much of that related to personnel at the solid waste center.

Among the main cuts is the privatization of the solid waste center. That service, including the county's innovative recycling program, would be handled by GDS under a five year contract.

Recyclables would still be picked up for free, now once a week. Davie will pay GDS for that service. Cardboard, however, will not be picked up for free with recyclables.

It will also contract to a private company for EMS billing and collecting.

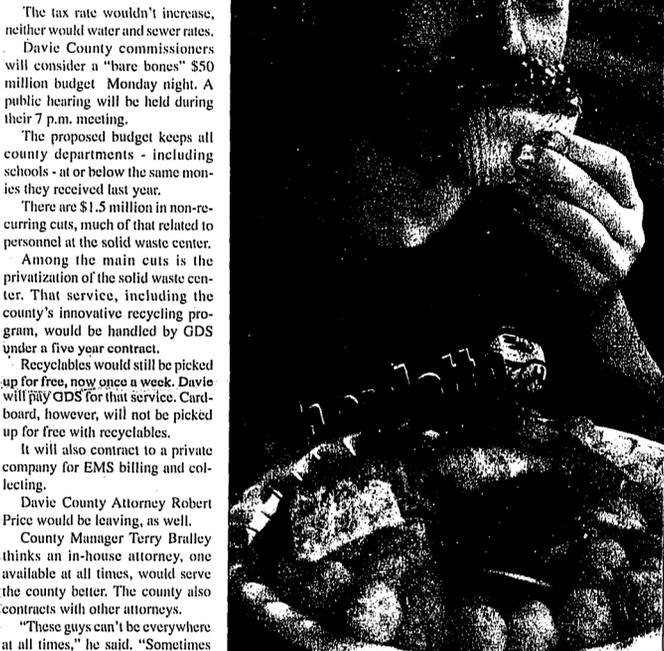

Davie County Attorney Robert Price would be leaving, as well.

County Manager Terry Bralley thinks an in-house attorney, one available at all times, would serve the county better. The county also contracts with other attorneys.

"These guys can't be everywhere at all times," he said. "Sometimes they're in court and we're here."

The decision had nothing to do with Price's performance. Price chose not to apply for the full-time position.

Locks Of Love

Sisters Donate Hair In Memory Of Grandfather

By Mike Barnhardt
 Davie County Enterprise Record

A desk full of hair greets customers going into Dianna Cline's shop at Bodyworks Salon on Yaddinville Road in Mocksville.

Tied at one end, there are locks of blonde, black, brunette and red hair.

And there's plenty of love behind every bunch.

Cline is the only hairdresser within miles registered with the Locks of Love program, one in which people donate long lengths of hair to be made into wigs for children who for whatever reason, don't have hair.

Recently, sisters Claire Ann and Dixie Ann Smith of Salisbury were waiting their turns for the chair. They were donating their hair in memory of their grandfather, Richard Fronczak, who died of lung cancer in 1998.

"They are the daughters of David and Barbara Smith of Salisbury. Dixie, 4, was going for the Velma look from Scooby Doo, Claire for the Catherine Zeta Jones look from Chicago.

Dixie had never really had a hair cut, other than split ends removed. She handled the situation well.

"It's harder for dad, you'll probably see me crying here in a minute," her father said in between taking photographs of the big cut.

Just before making the cut, Cline measured and announced that Dixie had 14 inches of hair to donate, plenty to make a wig. Smaller locks of hair are sold to offset costs of the program.

Claire was a bit more nervous, but was proud to talk about her grandfather.

"He meant a lot to me," she said. "My mother got divorced and he was the only male figure in my life. He lived next door."

Her grandfather was a Buffalo, N.Y. native who was a U.S. Army veteran having served in Okinawa.

"He was very funny," Claire said, "one of those people who was very strict ... but with me and my older sister, he was softer with us."

Cline said she has had people drive from hundreds of miles away to participate in the Locks of Love program. She sends packages of hair about every three months.

"I worked in Winston-Salem for years and I saw a need, and when I came back to Mocksville, my

Spotlight on Business

Ugly Roof Stains?

American Roof-Brite can remove them

American Roof-Brite has the answer for those unsightly, if not damaging stains that appear on single roofs. Professional roof cleaner and American Roof-Brite owner Don Sunday is the expert behind the business. With over 30 years of roof-cleaning experience, American Roof-Brite has the knowledge and technical skill to kill roof fungus spores, the usual cause of the black or discoloring stains on asphalt and fiberglass shingles.

Don bought his American Roof-Brite dealership over four years ago, after researching the company and its product. What he likes to impress upon his customers is the method he uses to clean roofs.

The first step is to apply an environmentally safe, biodegradable cleaning compound to the roof area. This application sits on the roof for several minutes. The formula eats away at the cause of the roof stains, fungus. This is one of the steps that separates American Roof-Brite from other roof cleaners, who just spray the roof with a high-pressure wash.

The next step for Don is a low-pressure/high volume wash. Don is passionate to let his clients know that this low-pressure wash is an important difference in roof cleaning technique. Most people assume that what a roof needs is a high-pressure wash. This, Don says, could not be farther from the truth. In fact, a high-pressure wash usually causes damage to a roof, leading up shingles from the roof, which can result in interior water damage. Not good. The low-pressure/high volume method used by American Roof-Brite has been trusted by homeowners for over 30 years.

The third, and final step that Don incorporates, is the application of a stainblocker, or sealer. This layer of protection is guaranteed to prevent fungus growth for three years.

Roof stains are not just ugly, but the fungus that causes them can damage your home. Merely washing your roof is not enough. The three-step process used by Don Sunday and American Roof-Brite is an environmentally safe, professionally proven method for killing roof fungus, and preventing it.

American Roof-Brite is owned by Don Sunday. You can reach Don at (336)-785-2030.

Lost Penmanship: Kids Are Turning To Computers

The news story this week rang true: Kids are abandoning handwriting for typing. Handwriting is a dying art. My 12-year-old's handwriting is absolutely awful. But he types amazingly well.

Instant messaging on computers is training children to type with speeds that would dazzle typing teachers from my generation.

But this generation's illegible scribbles may be the real reason so many teachers are getting out early.

Have mercy on your teacher, I have moaned, looking at my son's homework papers. The entire sixth grade class of North Davie Middle School wrote me letters this spring. The grammar and spelling were generally good. Some added well-drawn illustrations. But the handwriting ... made me realize my son's cursive wasn't as bad as I thought. Only a few letters from more than a hundred would rate as good penmanship.

Confession: My son's handwriting is only slightly worse than mine. My penmanship grade of "C" in elementary school was automatic. Despite some real effort, my flourishes didn't flourish. I couldn't master the cursive X or Q. Or even the A.

I write now with a curious mix of cursive and print. I hesitate to write letters out of embarrassment over my wiggly script. Sometimes it leans to the right. Sometimes to the left. My loops don't loop. I type many of my letters, even though typing is considered impersonal.

At least they can read my typing, I reason. This week I addressed some envelopes and wondered how mailmen ever manage to deliver letters to the right addresses.

I occasionally receive letters with fine penmanship and marvel at them. Some people can write with beautiful script. They are mostly older.

When I was in school, all the girls could write with excellent flourishes. All their descendants descended. Their ascenders ascended. The base of all their letters touched the line.

Penmanship was a measure of character. The girls in Farmington Elementary had good handwriting, making them wonderful. We boys, with indecipherable lettering, were dirt clods.

Slugs and snails and puppy dog tails ... Now, teachers are practically giving up on the boys and the girls. They barely attempt to teach penmanship any more. Keyboarding is offered in elementary school. Students are encouraged to type their homework assignments.

Who can blame the teachers? Computers have spell checkers. The print can be read easily. The teachers don't have to decipher scores of different bad handwriting styles.

I once thought my oldest son was writing in a secret code. I couldn't read any of it. Turns out, that was his regular microscopic script. We hired a handwriting tutor for him in elementary school, to no avail.

If penmanship is in danger, it can never be fully replaced. Soldiers don't have computers in the foxhole. Lovers still must express themselves with pen and ink. Email and typed letters are faster and cheaper, but they will always be ... less than the real thing.

Love will preserve penmanship, even if it is in a poor state.

Of course, our grandchildren will one day look back at those preserved letters and wonder what grandpa actually wrote to grandma that convinced her to marry him.

In The Mail ...

Concerned With Davie Baseball Politics

The editor: Davie High baseball has some serious concerns. The high school coaches said all year that they had the talent to win baseball games, but they finished with a record of just 4-15. The coaching staff often consulted with the people who slipped in through the left field gate. I guess you can see by their record that they are as busy as far as I'm concerned.

The coaches speak with forked tongues, telling the players one thing and then doing another. There is no respect for coaches who do that to young ball players. If you attended any of the baseball games, you could plainly see how the coaching staff interacted with the players, and it showed in the box scores. Everyone was thankful that the year mercifully ended, only hoping they would be some changes made to the good ole boy buddy system that is in place.

Finally, there is the Legion program. Coaches who apparently took lessons from the high school program also speak with forked tongues, telling the players one thing and then doing another. Oh, by the way, the same people who would slip into the high school games also use the same gate to get into the legion games and to consult with the legion coaching staff, as well, telling the legion coaches to punish players for playing senior league baseball as well as legion ball. After one coach told me that there was no problem with playing in both leagues, all of a sudden the kids who participated in both leagues had to run 30 laps as punishment. Can you believe that, punishing kids for trying to become better ball players by playing more baseball?

That was the final straw for my son, who stood up for himself and his beliefs that he shouldn't be punished for playing too much baseball. The coaches told him to gather his belongings and leave. As for myself, I'm glad to be away from the politics of Davie County baseball, although I will miss the other parents who have become good friends. I can only hope that they have a safe and successful year and that someone takes a closer look at the Davie County baseball program.

Water System Irresponsible

The editor: As a resident of this county and a customer of the Davie County Water System monopoly, I implore the Davie County commissioners to enact strict guidelines requiring Mr. Bruce Pratt, director of the Davie County Water System, to communicate to his customers (the public) any violations of federal and state drinking water standards immediately upon discovering them.

It's obvious that the Davie County Water system is not operating under an ethical and morally responsible set of guidelines with the latest indication in our water bill that we've been drinking water that does not meet the standards for Total Trihalomethanes and Total Haloacetic Acids for the last year, unbeknownst to the general public. The public should be warned as early as possible about violations and potential health risks (i.e., as soon as they are detected). This will allow the public to choose the risks they are willing to take with their health and the health of their loved ones.

Upon reading this notice, I was truly amazed that our government bodies allow actions so disrespectful to the rights of their constituents. Before moving to Davie County last August, we lived in a water district in Illinois where the radium level in the water exceeded the federal limits set, and each billing period we were alerted to this and any nonconformances. Thus, we were allowed the choice of drinking the water or purchasing bottled water, which many folks chose to do. The risk to our health was not kept a secret from the public for more than a year with no opportunity to choose an alternative drinking supply.

I implore that you enact guidelines for the Davie County Water System to operate under concerning the welfare of the citizens you represent, and monitor operations to ensure that they are strictly enforced. It's sad that the water system and its director cannot be relied upon to do the morally and ethically responsible thing to allow their customers the opportunity to make informed choices regarding their health and well being. Their past irresponsible inactions only prove that the guidelines and strict monitoring is necessary.

Mother Still Seeking Justice

To the editor: I'm asking for justice in Davie County. About five or six months ago, I put an article in the paper asking for justice, where my son was convicted of a crime and has been doing his time since September. But the reason I need justice is that there are still other boys the detective claims he can't find, and he is right in Salisbury, and the other one won't go and take the lie detector test because he knows he is guilty, yet they let him go free. These boys are going free to do the crime again. What do we have to do to get these two boys behind bars. They are no better than my son.

All I ask for is justice.

It's Time To Gain Control Of Graduation

To the editor: It is past time that Dr. Bost and the administration at Davie High get graduation ceremonies in hand. On Saturday, May 24, I got up early and was at Davie High at 8:30 to see my daughter graduate; what I got to see, however, were the backs of the heads of a bunch of inconsiderate and disrespectful people who were standing on the track. The administration doesn't let people roam the track during a football game, so why would they do it for something I feel is a lot more important?

After several people asked the policemen just to make the people sit down on the track, the policemen told them they were there just to make sure there was no disturbance. Well, to me, that was a disturbance because people couldn't see their children and loved ones on this special occasion. The administration could have saved the school's money on hiring policemen because all they did was walk around holding their hands.

I realize there are a lot more people attending graduation than when I graduated many years ago, but at least the administration showed the parents and students respect by making sure it was an orderly occasion. And saying it can't be done today is an excuse because, like I said previously, it's not done during football games, so where is the problem?

It's too late for my husband and me to appreciate our daughter's graduation, but if more people would protest, maybe future graduations would improve.

Civitan Project A Success

To the editor: The Mocksville Civitan Club would like to thank all of those who bought raffle tickets in our recent fund raising drive to aid our scholarship fund for deserving students.

The $100 gift card was won by Alice Riley; the $40 gift basket was won by Marjann Blackburn; Mike Hendrix was winner of the $25 gift certificate and Shanda Smith was the winner of two tickets to performances at the Davie Performing Arts Center, given by the arts council.

We appreciate the support of our local people in the projects we sponsor for worthy causes in our community.

Didn't Get To See Graduation

To the editor: I would like to congratulate the Class of 2003, but I did not get to see your graduation due to some disrespectful and unruly people who attended. I arrived early to get a good seat in order to see my niece graduate and sat in the rain just to have some people arrive late and stand on the track, blocking everyone's view.

One lady went nicely to a policeman who was on duty and asked him to please ask them to move or at least stoop down and she was told she could get up and stand also if she wanted to see. I feel that Dr. Bost should have had someone announce for them to at least stoop down so others could see. Maybe next year the parents, friends and loved ones of the Class of 2004 will be more fortunate.

Thanks To Picnic Contributors

To the editor: I would like to thank everyone for their effort and participation in the Masonic Picnic held this past Thursday afternoon. A special thanks goes to all the basket contributors who provided so many mouth-watering dishes, Tyson Foods for its generous contribution of chicken, the women in the deli at Food Lion across from Lee who worked so hard in its preparation, Donna's Barbecue, LeBlou, Davie and Eaton's funeral services for their tents, and to everyone else who worked so diligently in this noble endeavor. It is wonderful to live in a community where everyone can come together and support a 123-year-old tradition of fellowship and charity.

Please make plans to join us next year and keep Mocksville's oldest tradition alive.

Our Country Needs More Prayer

To the editor: We people, here in the dear old USA, have been blessed far beyond measure by God's amazing grace. At this time in our lives, it's time we take a serious look, counting our blessings and pray that we might be spared the suffering so many others have gone through, as well as the millions of new sufferers added today.

Dear friends, whoever you are, where ever you may be today, let us pray that God will hear our heartfelt prayers, that the number will get no larger, and the agony and suffering will cease. Give the leaders and rulers of all countries respect and compassion for whom they govern. Those who are less blessed need and deserve a better life, for which we, I'm sorry to say, take for granted.

The Bible tells us it's our duty, when we do it for others, we do it for Him. We weep for you in your sorrow, grieve for you in your pain. Even though it's hard to realize it now, in His love, wisdom and mercy, he suffers with his own. Some day it will all be over and we will live with Him in that beautiful place we call heaven, where trouble, heartache and death never come. No tears, no pain.

Till then dear God, watch over and keep us in your care. Protect us from the evil that is so great on this beautiful land you gave us. We are sorry for what has happened to our land. The greatest weapon we have is prayer and love for our fellow man. Help us use it wisely.

Driving Habits Becoming Rude

To the editor: There is a terrible thing happening to the folks in Mocksville and I don't think they are even aware of it. We are becoming rude. At least, our driving manners are lacking. It once was, when you pulled up to a corner to turn, that the person behind you waited for you to make that turn, whether you were turning right or left.

However, now people can no longer wait for anyone to make that turn and will pull up next to the car already there so they can make their turn at the same time or faster. Ordinarily, that would not be a problem, but with the proliferation of SUVs, or as I commonly refer to them - Urban Assault Vehicles - those who drive cars cannot safely see over or around them to attempt their turns. Even those with large cars can completely block the view for a smaller, compact car. People are forced to wait until these line breakers complete their turn before they can attempt their own turn safely.

This is just plain rude. When did we get in such a hurry that we no longer let the first to the intersection go first? When did we decide that our business is so much more important than anyone else's? When did we decide to terrorize the little old lady or gentleman taking 20 extra seconds to make a turn by zooming around them, sometimes making them either make an unwise move or no move at all?

Shame on us. We live here because it's quiet, beautiful and safe. Then why are we the ones making it unsafe?
Beth Brown

Tradition Worth Continuing

123rd Annual Masonic Picnic Held Thursday

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

There's a lot of history involved in a 123-year-old tradition.

At the latest version of the annual Masonic Picnic in Mocksville last week, history lessons were plentiful.

Ken Brotherton of Statesville gave a history of the Masons, including their role in forming the United States.

Judge Jimmy Myers gave some history involving Davie County's namesake, William Richardson Davie.

"To be able to give this address is a dream come true for me," Myers said, talking about his efforts to help get the picnic into the Library of Congress. He joins a group of distinguished governors, Congressmen, military leaders and ministers to deliver the picnic address.

Myers is serving active duty in the U.S. Navy Reserves as a Marine Chaplain at Camp Lejeune. It made him think of other Masons who served in war.

"The Mason that I thought about was Davie County's namesake, William Richardson Davie."

Davie prepared for the ministry, but studied law in Salisbury. He became an officer when the British Army began marching South.

"Andrew Jackson always considered William Richardson Davie as a gentleman ... the model soldier," Myers said.

Davie served as Grand Master of the North Carolina Masons seven terms, more than anyone else.

"Davie championed public education and worked tirelessly to establish the first public university." He was the first person to receive a doctor of laws degree from the university he founded, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"William Richardson Davie was a great Mason, and a great American," Myers said. "I'm proud to follow in his footsteps."

Myers told of some of his work at Camp Lejeune, from marrying a couple the day the man was reporting to go to Iraq, to spending time with a family whose loved one was killed in Iraq.

There was a police officer from New York, a reservist who had been called for active duty. He witnessed the second airplane crash into the World Trade Center, and survived the collapse of the building. He had lung damage and suffered from a post trauma stress disorder.

"I got him relieved from active duty because I thought he had served enough in a time of hell," Myers said.

He asked all veterans in the audience to stand. "I will always love veterans because they have sacrificed for their country," Myers said. "War takes the lives of outstanding young people. We should never forget ... that the freedoms we enjoy come at the expense of young people."

"Pray for our country, and in the spirit of William Richardson Davie ... pray for the people of Iraq that they will come to enjoy the freedoms that we now enjoy."

The picnic is held annually to raise money for the Masonic Home for Children in Oxford, a home where children whose parents are not able to care for them, live in a Christian, caring environment.

A handful of those children were at the picnic, and among the first to dive into the tables laden with fried chicken and ham biscuits, banana pudding and pecan pie and everything in between.

reached in less than three and a half hours.

Prosecutor Greg Brown charged that Terry Dennis Moore changed his name to Jathiyah A. Al-Bayyinah after someone who does good deeds. "This is not a man who did a good deed," said Brown as he looked at Al-Bayyinah.

There's no issue the cause of death for Simon Wilford Brown was from stab wounds Al-Bayyinah caused, charged Brown.

S.W. Brown died nine days after the March 6, 1998 robbery as a result of a stab wound to the right side of his chest.

A knife found near Al-Bayyinah at the time of his capture was consistent with the Brown's stab wounds.

He said the state had met all requirements to prove Al-Bayyinah was guilty of Brown's murder, and that it was premeditated and deliberate.

Brown said Al-Bayyinah's motive was no job, no money, and an easy target. "A 71 year old businessman he thought was alone," Brown stated.

Brown said a small smoking device, a metal pipe, and a recently discovered hypodermic needle found in Al-Bayyinah's belongings may have explained need for money.

A witness, S.W. Brown's daughter-in-law, identified Al-Bayyinah as one of two men who were in S.W.'s store the day before the stabbing to get their paycheck cashed.

In the 911 tape Brown's voice is heard saying the man who stabbed him was in his store the day before and he thought he had cashed his check.

The other man besides Al-Bayyinah was cleared and is not considered a suspect.

"The dead cannot cry out for justice, it is the duty of the living to do so for them," Brown concluded his closing argument.

Al-Bayyinah's attorneys both spoke during closing arguments.

Lori Hamilton-Dewitt addressed the jury first.

She urged jurors to consider the knife found near her client at the time of his arrest. The only blood found on it belonged to S.W. Brown on the knife, she said.

The jacket Al-Bayyinah was wearing the day of the stabbing was recently retrieved from the SBI lab in Raleigh to submit as evidence in this new trial. A hypodermic needle was discovered in the jacket's pocket.

Dewitt presented one of two theories for the needle's discovery. Was it missed five years ago, or was it recently put there? Either way, "what you have is an investigation that missed a lot of evidence," said Dewitt.

Dewitt then turned the jury's attention to former Mocksville police officer Greg Bagshaw. Bagshaw and his connection with certain flaws of the investigation have been the focus of defense.

Dewitt told jurors Bagshaw was one of the police officers that collected evidence at the crime scene and a missing computer disk containing his original case report is suspicious. Bagshaw later submitted a second report and the original, along with any computer backup copies, is missing.

Dewitt told jurors the state hadn't informed them Bagshaw might have been a bad apple. "I think Chief Sink knew that," Dewitt said. Then Chief of Police Richard Sink, who is now deceased, had written memos requesting Bagshaw be removed from the department in an effort to preserve its reputation, according to evidence submitted.

"The state has told a story, and kept facts from you that you didn't want you to see," Dewitt concluded.

Attorney Ramsey began his argument by pointing out the two minutes and 13 seconds that elapsed between the 911 call S.W. Brown made and authorities pursuit of Al-Bayyinah. Could Al-Bayyinah have covered the distance from the store to the location on Ken Dwiggin Drive where he was first seen by a Mocksville Police officer in that amount of time? The officer reported Al-Bayyinah was walking casually up the street, Ramsey pointed out. The officer also testified Al-Bayyinah ran into the woods when saw him. "Is it so unusual that a black man is going to run from the cops," Ramsey said.

Ramsey told jurors when authorities found the kitchen knife near Al-Bayyinah they thought they had their man, but then the knife came back with none of S.W. Brown's DNA. There was never any evidence his client had anything to do with the crime, only supposition, Ramsey said.

Ramsey stated the tragedy of the case and the sympathy felt for the Brown family, but he urged jurors, "Don't make two tragedies out of this."

Before the jury re-entered Prosecutor Brown consoled the Brown family members in the courtroom.

After the verdict was read S.W. Brown's widow, Becky, covered her face and wept. When asked she felt about the verdict she replied, "It's wonderful. I hope we don't have to go through this again."

Sentence proceedings began Wednesday.

Budget Public Hearing Monday

Other proposed budget highlights:

- 2 percent cost-of-living pay increase for all full-time employees;
- funding for additional water capacity;
- funding from grants to upgrade the Cooleemee Sewer Plant;
- increase inspection fees by three percent;
- increase environmental inspection fees;
- one new position in the sheriff's department, cutting courthouse security positions with that being done internally.

Bralley, in his budget message, praised the volunteer spirit in Davie County that helps keep government in check. The firefighters, rescue workers, civic clubs and many others make the quality of life here better than other places, he said.

"To me, rural America is still blessed to have the spirit of volunteerism alive," Bralley said. "I think Davie County is blessed to have it utilized so very much and I wanted to find a special place in this message to say that."

The message wasn't all "feel good."

The budget does not include any state monies Bralley thinks are at risk, monies included in past budgets that weren't received.

"We must never again allow ourselves to become so dependent on an unpredictable source," he said.

"I found it necessary to look for new and better ways to deliver services to our citizens; this must always be our goal. Just like the private sector looks for right sizing, so must the government."

United Way Celebration June 25

The Davie County United Way will have its annual celebration of service from 7:30-8:30 a.m. Wednesday, June 25, at the Davie County Public Library, North Main Street, Mocksville.

All members of the community who contribute to the United Way are invited.

This is the United Way's report back to the community it serves, said Dave Sutter, a member of the board of directors. The results of the 2002 campaign will be reviewed. How the money was allocated to agencies in March will be announced.

There will be a short discussion of the new initiatives and directions that the United Way will be taking in 2003, one of which is partnership grants to community groups.

A continental breakfast will be provided.

If you plan to attend, call the United Way office at 751-0313 by June 12, so the proper amount of food can be ordered.

"We look forward to seeing you there," Sutter said. "Come join with the United Way to make a difference in your community."

New United Way Program Designed To Make Positive Community Impact

The Davie County United Way has a new program designed to help make a positive impact.

During the recent allocation process, funds were set aside to work with any 501c3 in Davie County that is making a positive impact in the community, said Anna S. Eichhorn, executive director. "This means existing or startup non-profits that have a specific program that by its nature will enhance and improve the lives of county residents," she said.

Limited funds are available in the first year of the program. Grant requests should be for no more than $3,000 and should be for a specific purpose.

Funds come from the Fall 2002 campaign.

"Our special thanks goes out to All Davie County residents who participated in that campaign and made this program possible," Eichhorn said. "Without the support of our committed supporters, this program, as well as our continued commitment to our partner agencies would not be possible."

"We believe that this program

reached more extensively into the community is just the first step in our plan to positively impact Davie County," she said.

Other initiatives include to identify needs and make sure vital services are being met. Contact the United Way office if you want to help.

The Partnership Grant application can be obtained by contacting Eichhorn at the Davie County United Way in the Brook Building, North Main Street, Mocksville, or by email to: davieunitway@mocksville.com family called the American Cancer Society which contacted Locks of Love headquarters in Florida, and they put them in touch with Cline, the nearest participant. She offers a free haircut to those who have enough hair to donate to the program.

"It's such a good thing to do," she said. "I've had people come from the beach, from the other side of Raleigh."

It costs $3,500 to have a wig fitted for a child, Cline said. The custom fitting allows the child to carry on normal activities such as taking a shower and swimming. Some of the children may have cancer, others a disease which causes baldness.

Lovelace Leaves For Mt. Tabor

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

In a development that surprised nobody, Mike Lovelace accepted Mount Tabor's offer to become its varsity baseball coach on May 30.

Lovelace, a Davie High assistant in football and baseball for seven years, didn't think twice about taking the Tabor position. He's been thirsty for a chance to run his own high-school show for several years, and on top of that, Tabor has solid baseball tradition.

"It's a great opportunity and a great time for something like this to happen," said the 30-year-old Lovelace, who won't coach football at Tabor.

Lovelace was an enormously gifted pitcher, starring at West Forsyth and helping the Mocksville Legion enjoy its finest years (90 wins, 38 losses) from 1989-91. After setting the Mocksville career record for wins at 23, Lovelace pitched for UNC-Charlotte.

For Davie baseball, Lovelace worked under Jerry Walser for two years and Mike Herndon for five. What likely made him more appealing to Tabor was his head-coaching experience in Legion. Going into June 2, he was 68-63 in his fifth year at the Mocksville helm.

"The Davie administration and all the coaches I've worked with and been around have been first class," he said. "I worked with Benjie Brown and Doug Iling in football and Walser and Herndon in baseball. All those guys have shown great leadership and shown me a lot of things that hopefully will help me be successful."

Tabor is an attractive job. The Spartans were the Central Piedmont Conference's dominant team for most of the 1990s, they won back-to-back titles as recently as 2001-02 and advanced to the third round of the state playoffs in 2002.

But they're coming off an 8-14 season.

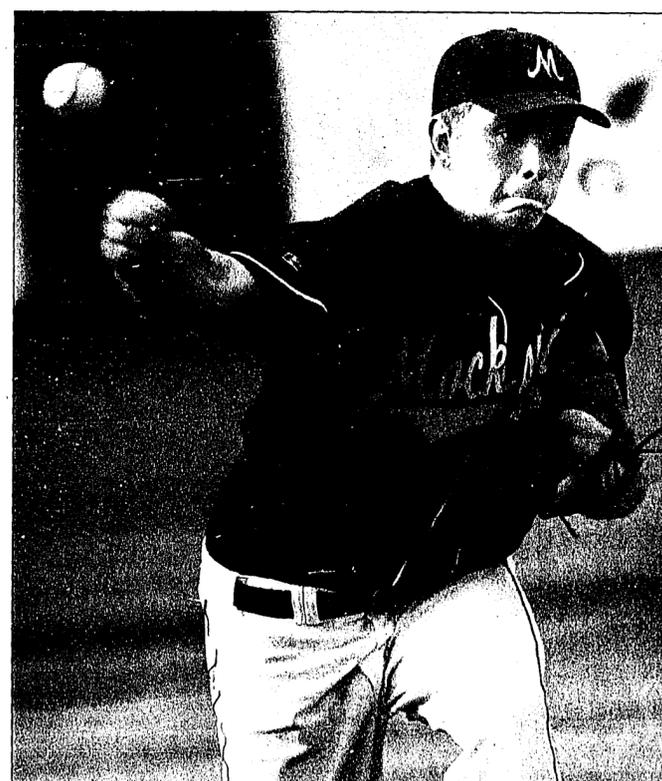

"I think they're looking for somebody to be there and be stable," Lovelace said. "I think they've had four coaches in the past six years, and with me being head coach of the Legion team and being an assistant at Davie for seven years, they thought there could be stability."

"There's a lot of potential there, and there's some good players that come out of feeder programs that will be able to help us and get this thing rolling."

The Lovelace move marks the third coaching loss (including Bill Oakley and Lee Linville) in three months for Davie, and all three affected the football and baseball staffs. Herndon has just one assistant on faculty, Matt Sain.

"You ever seen such a hit in coaching in one year?" Herndon said. "There's

Disappointing Mocksville Legion Falls To Rival Rowan

By Mike London
Special to the Enterprise

SALISBURY— Sometimes, devastating losses carry over and that may have had a lot to do with Mocksville's 12-2, seven-inning loss at Rowan County on Wednesday night at Newman Park.

Still smarting from kicking away a 4-3 decision at first-place Kannapolis on Monday, Mocksville (3-3, 2-3 Area III Southern Division) did little right against a rebuilding Rowan team that came to the park batting below .200. "Sometimes when you deal with young kids like this, it's tough to bounce back," said Mocksville coach Mike Lovelace.

Mocksville poked out four hits against Rowan ace Patrick Adams (1-1) and managed one hit over the final five innings.

Meanwhile, five Mocksville hurlers were roughed up for 15 hits. Rowan (3-3, 2-2) had not produced more than 10 hits in any of its first five games.

Rowan never worried after cleanup man Seth Waller creamed a three-run, first-inning homer off Mocksville starter and loser Lonnie Barnes. West Rowan jayvee player Brett Hatley added insult to injury with a homer in the seventh. Hatley connected in his first Legion at-bat.

Mocksville made its only noise in the second inning when Cody Cross cracked a two-run double to plate Jess Maloney and Chad Boone. Maloney, who pounded the ball in the Kannapolis Mocksville's home game on Friday with Troy was suspended with Troy leading 10-9 in the ninth.

Mocksville's home game with Lexington Saturday was postponed due to rain. Probable makeup date is June 22.

Mocksville's home game with Kannapolis on Sunday was rained out and will be made up in its entirety.

Oak Valley Opens Swim Season With Win Over Forsyth

Oak Valley thumped Forsyth Country Club to open its summer swim league last week and then fell to perennial power Sherwood 400-521.

Opening its fourth season with a 3-3-45 win over Forsyth, Oak Valley proved notice that it can no longer be taken for granted in the Greater Winston-Salem league.

Oak Valley won two meets last year, and coach Larry Umberger said his swimmers have come into their own.

"They swam great," he said. "Last year was close (against Forsyth Country Club.) To beat them by a good margin time shows our improvement."

Sherwood will probably win the league. To only lose to them by 121 is good. There's only one or two other teams who will swim better than

Oak Valley beefed up its coaching staff this year to handle the whopping 130-plus swimmers on the team.

Oak Valley raided cross-county rival Hickory Hill to claim Emma Jakob for one of its coaches. Also, Umberger's mother, Karen, long-time physical education teacher at Shady Grove Elementary, joined the staff.

"I'm happy to have them," Umberger said. "Emma's awesome. She's going to help us."

She helped immediately, bringing her younger sister, Hannah, with her and David Stein, who adds muscle to the boys 15-18 age group, which surprised Sherwood's swimmers.

The Orca's date with Forsyth was postponed a day due to rain, and was shortened for lightning. The first place Orca finishers included:

• 7-8 year old Medley Relay — Gabby Macaione, Kristina Parrish, Claire Whitaker, and Kelsey Orr.

Iling Loses Four Coaches

Last year Davie High football coach Doug Iling had 13 assistants. Now he's down to nine.

Offensive coordinator Bill Oakley won the head job at North Forsyth, and head JV coach Lee Linville left with him to serve as Oakley's assistant head coach. Last week receivers coach Mike Lovelace was named the varsity baseball coach at Mount Tabor on June 3. The fourth loss is Jeff Ward, a veteran volunteer on defense who decided to get out of coaching.

Those losses left immense holes in Iling's staff, but he hopes to fill the voids with Chris Callison, the varsity assistant in softball, and Mike Herndon, the varsity baseball coach. Callison and Herndon, who handled linebackers under Iling from 1998-2001, are well known and would be terrific additions. But even if they can't make the commitment to football, Iling said his staff would remain strong.

"Right now we're not going to hire anybody (outside)," Iling said. "We're hoping to hire Callison to replace Lovelace, and we're still trying to get Herndon back. Ron Bivins is still going to help us as a volunteer and we've still got 10 coaches. So we're still in good shape. We just had a luxury the last couple of years to have 13 or 14 coaches."

Holman is the defensive coordinator. Whitlock and Carter have taken over new roles, with Whitlock at offensive coordinator and Carter at JV head coach.

"If Callison comes, he'll do receivers," Iling said. "And if Herndon comes, we'll put him back with linebackers and put Holman back at defensive line."

THE DAVIE FOOTBALL FAMILY was sad to see Ward go. Although he sat out the 1998 season and returned, all indications are this time he's hung it up for good.

The former star athlete and 1974 Davie graduate volunteered for 11 years (1991-97, 1999-02). While his behind-the-scenes contributions might have gone unnoticed to casual fans, they left a pronounced mark on coaches and players.

Jasmin Gunning, pictured with her brother Jesse and father Mike, will be going to Florida to play for a national championship in basketball.

Jasmin Gunning On Championship AAU Basketball Team

Jasmin Gunning, a rising fifth grader at Pinebrook Elementary School, is in for a busy summer.
 The 5-4 tall 10 year old plays center for the Davidson County Vipers, an AAU basketball team that plays out of Lexington.
 After a four-month season of tournament play, the Vipers (17-8) won the conference championship and placed third in the NC state championships recently in High Point.
 "The strong finish earned them an at-large bid to the National Tournament in Orlando, Fla. July 5-12."
 "She's come a long way in a short amount of time," said her coach John Wilson, a social service counselor in Thomasville. "She's really learned to dominate the paint, and really toughens up her defense against more experienced players."
 After her return from Florida, Gunning will compete with the Davie Dragons, a tournament softball team that plays in the Pony League.
 Gunning has been selected as a state finalist in the Miss Preteen Scholarship and Recognition Program. The program, an invitation only event that focuses on academic records, awards, honors, and participation in community service recognizes young ladies ages 7-12 for their personal achievements. The program will be held in Raleigh the week of July 27.
 The winner of the Raleigh competition will receive a $5,000 scholarship and an invitation to the national competition in Baton Rouge, La. in September.

Old School Davie Sports From June, 1978

In the Junior Olympics Track and Field Meet at North Rowan, Davie County athletes set 10 records and captured 17 first places. Joseph Arnold set the high-jump record in the 12-13 age group. First-place winners from Patsy Crenshaw's Coolee team were Harriet White, who set records in the broad jump and shot put in the 10-11 division; Frances White, who set the shot-put record in the 10-13 division; Scott Shaver, who set the broad-jump record in the 12-13 division; and Timmy Steele, who set the discus record in the 12-13 division.
 The football winners at the Davie High athletic banquet were Daniel Brown (most valuable defensive back), Terry Creason (most valuable defensive lineman), James Fowler (most improved), Rex Allen (most valuable offensive lineman) and Randy Barker (most valuable offensive back).
 The other award winners were Dennis Presnell (MVP cross country), Joey Everidge (MVP boys tennis), Lana Hanes (MVP girls tennis), Johnny Miller (MVP boys basketball).

loss, continued to swing a hot bat. He doubled and singled in three trips.

Rowan led 8-2 after three innings. Waller, who didn't make the final cut on last season's 43-2 state championship team, had four hits and five RBIs to lead the onslaught. Veterans Bryan Graham and Michael Gogonek chipped in with three hits each.

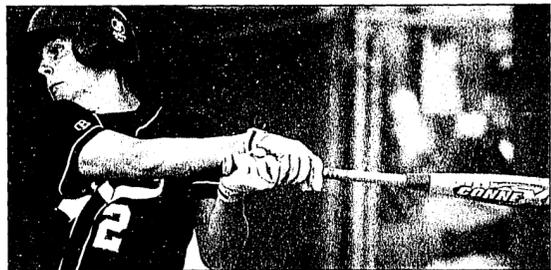

Rowan ended the game early via the 10-run mercy rule with a four-run seventh. A bases-loaded walk scored the clincher. Now Mocksville has to pick up the pieces in a hurry.

"We're going to find out starting Friday when we have six in a row what kind of team we really have," Lovelace said.

Costly Mistakes Errors Hand Game To First Place Kannapolis

By Mike London
Special to the Enterprise

KANNAPOLIS - Kannapolis American Legion veteran Jonathan Goodman still had Coppertone on his back and sand in his shoes, but he managed to kick the door shut when he had to.

Goodman and starting pitcher Lucas Dalton returned to Kannapolis from a senior beach blast at 4 p.m. on Monday, three hours before game-time.

Goodman started at second base, then took the mound and racked up the last eight outs of a tense 4-3 win over Mocksville that kept Kannapolis (5-1, 4-0) on top in the Southern Division of Area III.

Mocksville right-hander Dan Poindexter threw a complete game and fanned eight, but absorbed a loss he didn't deserve. His teammates committed five errors.

"Kannapolis is supposed to be one of the better teams, and we were right there," said Mocksville coach Mike Lovelace. "We were probably the better team tonight."

Goodman doubled in the first inning and scored on Matt Sherrill with the tying run. "If we'd had our pick of anybody, we would have wanted Matt up there in that situation," said Osborne.

"He'd jammed me all night with his fastball," Harris said. "But he gave me one outside and I just went with it."

The ever-present Goodman singled Harris to third and Harris scored what proved to be the decisive run when David Perkins, who had a tough night at third, couldn't handle Dalton's bounce.

There were anxious moments in the Mocksville ninth after Brad Bullard walked to lead off the inning and stole second. Goodman fanned Josh Burgess and got a weak popout from Perkins, but that brought up Maloney, who had almost knocked down the fences with consecutive ringing doubles.

It's unusual to intentionally walk the potential go-ahead run, but that's the strategy Osborne ordered after a lengthy team meeting on the mound.

Davie Boys Basketball Camps Upcoming

Davie High boys basketball coach Mike Absher has two more summer camps - the parent/child camp and the shooting and player development camp.

The parent/child camp is June 13-14 from 6-9 p.m. on June 13 and 9 a.m.-12 p.m. on June 14. The cost is $40 for both father and son and $15 for each additional child. This is open to rising first graders through rising seniors.

And the shooting and player development camp is June 16-18 from 6-8 p.m. with a cost of $40. This is open to rising sixth graders through rising seniors. Absher will do this camp in conjunction with John Lentz, head men's basketball coach at Lenior-Rhyme College.

Absher will take walk-ups, who need to show up at least 30 minutes prior to the start of camp. For questions, contact Absher at 751-5905.

Girls Camps Planned

Coach Karen Stephens will have the Davie girls basketball camp on June 16-20 and the Davie volleyball camp on July 21-25 at the high school. The cost is $50 for each camp.

At the basketball camp, grades k-8 will be 8:30 a.m.-noon and grades 9-12 from 1-5 p.m. All grades, k-12, will be 8 a.m.-noon on Friday, June 20.

The volleyball camp times will be 8:30-noon for grades 5-8 and 1-5 p.m. for grades 9-12. All grades, 5-12, will be 8 a.m.-noon on Friday, July 25.

Stephens will take walk-ups, who need to show up at least 30 minutes prior to the start of camp.

Forms are available at each middle school and the high school. These need to be returned to Stephens at Davie High. The address is 1200 Salisbury Road, Mocksville, N.C., 27028. If you do not preregister, it will be necessary to do so on Monday of each camp from 8-8:30 a.m. Checks should be written to Davie High Basketball Camp or Davie High Volleyball Camp.

LeAnn Godbey In Honor Society

LeAnn Godbey, a 2003 graduate of Maryville (Tenn.) College was recently inducted into the Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Scholarship Society during a May 17 ceremony on campus.

In 1934, faculty established an honor society to recognize superior scholarship at Maryville. Designated Alpha Gamma Sigma, its provisions and requirements were, and still are, identical to the national honor society, Phi Beta Kappa.

"The purpose of Alpha Gamma Sigma is to stimulate interest in intellectual and cultural pursuits among all who study at Maryville College and to encourage and recognize sustained academic achievements in the liberal arts," said Dr. Jerilyn Swann, assistant professor of biology, at the ceremony.

Inductees must be seniors, or in exceptional cases, juniors, who meet standards of scholarly achievement and good moral character. No more than 10 percent of the graduating class may be inducted. Godbey is the daughter of Edward and Malissa Godbey of Mocksville. She is a 1999 graduate of North Stafford High School, Stafford, Va.

Cooleemee High School Class of 1945 class members and spouses met in the fellowship hall of Cooleemee First Baptist Church on May 17 to enjoy and reminisce at their 58th year class reunion.

There were 19 people present, with 13 class members. The class graduated 39 members and of that, 16 are deceased. It was the last class to graduate with 11 years at Cooleemee.

A candle lighting was held for the deceased members with a moment of silent prayer. Class members attending were Frank Tatum, Hayden "Kid" Myers, Gray Everhart, Wayne Eaton, Mildred Chappell Turner, Ethel Spry Brooks, Mildred Nail Seamon, Reba Saunders Holt, Mary Tom Spry Carter, Pauline Carter Deal, Jean Heillard Poplin, Margie Camp Payne and Nell Check Anderson.

Bryson Finklea In Summer Mathematics Program

Mocksville native Bryson Finklea is one of 12 students from across the nation participating in the Summer Research Experiences for Undergraduates conducted by the mathematics department at Trinity University, San Antonio, Texas.

Finklea is a junior at St. John's College in Maryland. He attended the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics. Finklea earned a perfect 800 on the mathematics section of the SAT college entrance test and has participated in a novel mathematics curriculum at St. John's in which faculty do not lecture, and instead, students read great novels with mathematics story lines.

The program, funded by the university and the National Science Foundation, is in its sixth year. In addition to spending seven weeks at Trinity, seven of the 12 students will study for 10 days in June at Karl-Franzen-Universität in Graz, Austria.

Nothing like hardwood flooring from Whitney's Flooring of Clemmons

Nothing lasts like a hardwood floor. Wood floors transcend time and introduce a definite stature and undeniable charm to any room. Today's prefinished hardwood flooring, protected by tough urethane enhanced with alumide, comes in a variety of colors and species in many different formats.

To find out which floor is most suitable to your needs, stop by and let the friendly folks at Whitney Flooring in Clemmons show you all the newest patterns and designs. Be sure to check out the new wide width planks and antique looking hardwood floors which reflect the eloquent imperfection of hand craftsmanship.

Whitney Flooring offers one of the area's most extensive collections of prefinished hardwood and laminate flooring at prices you'll have to see to appreciate. Whether your preference is for solid plank wood flooring, engineered hardwood or floating strip wood flooring, Whitney's has the floor you're looking for. Expert installation is available and all work is fully guaranteed.

Make your choice from a wide array of wood species, including oak, ash, maple, hickory, cherry, pecan, birch, beech, as well as more exotic hardwoods like walnut and mahogany. These beautiful floors are designed to stay that way and feature enhanced abrasion resistance and 25 year warranty protection.

Perhaps you want the look of wood but prefer a floor that you can damp mop and the lowest maintenance possible. Look no farther than the newly expanded laminate flooring department at Whitney Flooring. Choose from such well respected manufacturers as Wilsonart, Wilox, Mannington, Pargo, Armstrong, and Uniclic. Be sure to check out the new glueless snap-and-fit laminate floors which make installation easier on the do-it-yourselfer. New designs in wood grains and tile designs have just arrived in time for summer remodeling. Whitney's is also proud to announce storade savings on their full line of luxury vinyl tiles with 20 year warranty coverage. You'll do a double take when you see the new introductions with real life ceramic visuals and presently on sale at Whitney's. Look for specials throughout the store including carpet, area rugs and ceramic tile. Don't forget, the folks at Whitney Flooring do countertops and tile back splashes.

South Teachers Learn To Integrate Science Technology

Temperature probes, motion sensors, hand-held PCs. These are just some of the new technology presented to the math and science teachers at South Davie on Tuesday, June 2. Craig Ecclestone, an international program presenter from Data Harvest, and Reta Kohari from Hewlett Packard conducted a workshop on how to integrate scientific probes and sensors into the science classrooms. By using small handheld computers, called IPAQs, South Davie teachers will be able to deliver an investigative science program with students actively engaged in collecting real life data with quantifying results. Science inquiry is difficult to achieve in a traditional classroom setting with just textbooks, paper, webquests or the internet. Understanding this, teachers at South Davie wrote an Eisenhower Grant for technology-engaged, multi-task, graphic representation of the N.C. Standard Science Competencies. This new technology will enable them to implement scientific inquiry at its finest level of deployment. Handhelds are becoming a widely used technology in the real world and are found to have a positive impact on student learning, making it an efficient educational tool. Students will be able to collect a variety of data, such as temperature, humidity, motion, pH, sound, etc., by using probes and sensors attached to the handheld IPAQs. Using their handhelds, they can then graph and analyze results to complete their investigations. Students will also be able to transmit their data to other students or download their information to their computers. The connectivity possibilities of the IPAQs facilitate sharing and collaboration, thus providing the creative teacher with options that are important for a student-centered, active learning classroom. Teachers at the workshop were involved in learning how to use the handhelds, sensors and probes and in discussing how to best implement the use of the IPAQs in the regular classroom. Participants included Kathy Crews, Jill Gaither, Dennis Cook, Alan Hyland, Amanda Shelton, Loretta Tucker, Jackie White, Mona Podunovac, Brent Wall, Belinda Garner, Tim Devericks, Sheila Tribble, Marilyn McClamrock, and Jeannie Galluzzo. Jo Tinsley, technology facilitator of South Davie Middle School, Butch Rooney, director of technology of Davie county Schools, Patsy Crenshaw, executive director of instruction of Davie County Schools, and Davie Schools Superintendent Dub Potts were also in attendance.

South Davie principal Robert Landry talks to teachers Tim Devericks and Belinda Garner about the new science technology.

The White House Responds Gift From Davie High Exceptional Children Gets A Warm Reception

The White House receives approximately 20,000 pieces of mail a day. But Deborah Hirst, an exceptional children's teacher at Davie High School, had faith. She knew the package her students sent would make it. When it became apparent that the United States was going to war with Iraq, her students started discussing ways they could show their support for the president. What they came up with was a care package for the president, preparing him for the work ahead. They filled the care package with aspirin to cure the headaches that lay ahead, Cheerwine and other gifts, along with a 12-stanza poem explaining it all, and sending support from the War Eagles. In addition to the supplies, they also included a video with the students reading the poem and showing their support for the president's decision. The students did it right the first time through, Hirst told the board of education. Then the video went to the production students for editing. The Saturday before Easter, Hirst took the package to the post office. "The girl at the post office said, 'you know he will never see it.'" Hirst kept her faith that the package would make it into the right hands. In May, Hirst received a phone call in her classroom. "I didn't even get her last name. It was Tracy somebody calling on behalf of the White House." Hirst was sure it was a joke, but eventually she came around. Tracy was calling to tell Hirst two things: first, the video had been received. The package traveled through three buildings, making its way up the ladder before it landed on Tracy's desk and she decided it was worthy of the president's attention. The day she called Hirst, the video was shown to everyone in the White House on a widescreen television. But that wasn't all. The video, created by 18 students at Davie High School had been hand-selected to be included in museum pieces for the White House, and would be included in the National Archives. Hirst came before the school board meeting to show the board the tape. "We're supposed to be getting a letter from the president and gifts for the kids," she said. "The gifts were supposed to arrive before the end of school, but didn't make it. But I know it was real." Then it was time for Hirst to be surprised. "Yes, Ms. Hirst," Superintendent W.G. Dub Potts told her, "it was real. With that he presented her with a framed copy of a letter from the president and first lady, as well as a photo. The letter will be placed prominently in Davie High School, a reminder of what can be done if you don't give up hope."

Fun In The Summer Library Reading Program Goes Beyond Books

The summer reading program for young people roars into full swing on June 16 with a 7 p.m. performance by Mark Daniel. His magical storytelling will inspire all to read and laugh. On Monday, June 23, the musical talents and stories of Wicker & Jones will be at the library. More Mondays mean more fun, with storytellers, musicians, a puppet show and an ice cream party. Wednesday will be craft day. Stretch your creativity to make a family of cornhusk dolls, or dabble in stained glass art. Make beaded jewelry or a fancy paper bonnet. Participants will also make Australian didgeridoos. What is that? Come find out. Like to solve mysteries? The weekly trivia contest has begun. Test your wits and fact-finding skills in this weekly question and answer game. Summer is a great time for star gazing. The Catawba Science Center is sending the traveling planetarium for a visit on Thursday, June 26 at 1 p.m. Space is limited. Children age 6 and up can register at the library. Storytimes are held every Tuesday and Friday at 11 a.m. Kids of all ages are welcome. A calendar of the summer youth activities is available at the library's youth services desk.

12 Middle School Students In Talent Search

Twelve students in the seventh grade at North Davie and South Davie middle schools have been included in the Duke University Talent Search program. Duke University selects the students from those earning at least 95 percent on sixth grade tests of achievement and aptitude. The students are offered the chance to take the SAT or ACT exams with other college-bound juniors and seniors. Students scoring at or above a 510 on the SAT math or SAT verbal or above a 21 on the ACT math, ACT English, ACT Reading, or ACT Scientific Reasoning earned state recognition. These students will be attending a recognition ceremony on June 6 at Wake Forest University. The honorees from Davie County include: Rebecca Church, daughter of Jennifer and David Church; Jonathan Creekmur, son of Kelly Creekmur and the late Linda Creekmur; Ian Dowdy, son of Traci Dowdy and David Dowdy; Ryan Hamilton, son of Gina and Russ Brannock; Chase Macaione, son of Bobbie and David Macaione; Peyton Murray, daughter of Scarlet and Dean Murray; Zach Potter, son of Mary Jo and James Potter; Taylor Randal, daughter of Pamela and Stanley Randal; Amanda Reavis, daughter of John and James Reavis; Jonathan Roesch, son of Mary Jane and Robert Roesch and Kim Conley, Rachel Simpson, daughter of Tracy Sents and Marshall Simpson; and Cayla Sims, daughter of Donna and Charles Sims.

Two Win In WordMasters Challenge

Two students representing William R. Davie Elementary School recently won highest honors in this year's WordMasters Challenge - a national language arts competition entered by more than 250,000 students annually, which consists of three meets at intervals during the school year. Competing in the Blue Division, fourth grader Taylor Anderson placed among the 18 highest-ranking fourth graders in the country in the year-end cumulative standings. She was also a national winner for the year in the Continental Math League, a series of six meets which require students to solve mathematical problems. Fifth graders Krystal Beam and Brittanee Ball, also competing in the Blue Division, earned perfect scores along with 124 other fifth graders nationwide. Also achieving outstanding results was fifth grader Spencer Lanning. The students were coached by Linda Barnett.

Two Graduate From Science, Math School

The North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics A total of 257 high school seniors from across North Carolina graduated from The North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics in Durham on Saturday, May 31. Two Davie County students were among the 2003 NCSM graduates: Jared Dane Hill, son of Dr. Mrs. Ivor D. Hill of Advance; and Jason Karl Yellick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas K. Yellick of Mocksville.

Sejal Patel In Meredith Research Programs

Approximately 78 Meredith College students who have participated in undergraduate research recently had the opportunity to present their findings at the Third Annual Meredith College Undergraduate Research Conference that was part of Meredith's Celebrating Student Achievement Day held on April 24. Students either prepared a formal presentation or a poster detailing their findings. Sejal Patel of Mocksville made a presentation on "The Relationship Between Political Stability and Economic Growth and its Link to Political Institutions in the Asian Region." This study attempts to demonstrate that there is a connection between the economic growth of a country, its political stability, and the type of regime adopted by the country. The study showed that fewer free countries tended to have faster economic growth and that underdeveloped countries may be economically better starting out as dictatorships. Patel also made a presentation on "Czech Republic's Response to the Challenge of Verification and the Impact of Science and Technology on Security." As a part of preparing to represent the Czech Republic at a Model United Nations conference this semester, the club researched the challenge of verification and the impact of science and technology on security using UN documents and other Web resources.

Blair Halver Earns Bachelor's

Blair Halver of Advance graduated from Belmont University with a bachelor's degree in business administration (music business emphasis, Spanish minor) on May 10 during the Nashville school's spring commencement ceremonies. Halver, the son of Todd and Cheryl Halver of Advance, graduated with honors for maintaining a grade point average of 3.5 to 3.479. After a three-week mission trip to Temuco, Chile, he will live in Los Angeles, Calif, where he hopes to continue his work at Paramount Television Studios as a production assistant on The Dr. Phil Show.

Day Program For Students With Mental Health Needs Considered

A group was recently formed to discuss the growing need for a day treatment program for students in need of intensive mental health services. With state required changes to the mental health system, it has become increasingly difficult to find open programs for these students. The group discussed the needs of the program, but stopped when they reached the issue of finding space. Because of the mental illness needs, they agreed that the program should not be housed at a school. If they can find a location to house it, they will come back to the board of education for help developing a model. In theory, the school system would provide the educational piece of the program, while CenterPoint would manage the health portion. If the program had been in place this year, it would have served 22 children ages 10-17. "We hope you find the space," said Marlene Shamel, "because we know the need is there. These young people need as much support as our AG (academically gifted) kids."

Bond Ladder Can Lift You Above Interest-Rate "Fog"

If you're a fixed-income investor, you may have a big question: What should you do with bonds that mature when interest rates are low? You could reinvest in bonds that pay a lower rate and just accept the smaller income stream. Or you could make the cash into a money market account until rates eventually rise. But instead of worrying about interest rate movements, consider an "all-weather" strategy, such as building a "bond ladder" by investing in an array of short-, intermediate-, and long-term high-quality bonds. When rates are rising, you use the proceeds from your maturing bonds to buy new bonds at the higher levels, thereby increasing your portfolio's return. When market rates are falling, you'll continue to benefit from higher rates offered by your longer-term bonds. Consider building a bond ladder — and climb above the fog of interest-rate confusion.

Shirey Hauser: "It was kind of like someone was saying, 'Why are you lying there? Get up and walk!'" - Photos by Robln Fergusson

Miracle Story

Shirey Hauser Takes First Steps In Almost Three Years After Dreaming She Was Walking

And Peter answered him and said, Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water. And he said, Come. And when Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus. — Matthew 14:28-29 (KJV)

In the dream, Shirey Hauser was walking.

She had been with her husband, Bud, to see a doctor, and they were on their way out to the car before she even realized it.

"Honey, I'm walking," she remembers saying in amazement. Then she started looking around for the walker that she had relied on since an August 2000 surgery left her unable to use her right leg.

"Where did you leave it?" she says Bud asked in the dream.

"I can't even remember when I last used it," Shirey says she responded, "I wouldn't get in the car. I said, 'I've got to walk. I'm walking.'"

When she awakened, Shirey felt out of breath, almost as if she really had been walking.

"It was like, 'What a letdown,'" she says. "I thought I was walking, and I was dreaming."

That's when 57-year-old Shirey felt what she describes as a strong sensation deep in her soul. "It was kind of like someone was saying, 'Why are you lying there? Get up and walk,'" she says. "I thought, 'I can't walk. What's wrong with me?'"

She felt it again, this time even stronger.

"It was just like something saying, 'Get up and walk,'" she says.

Shirey sat up on the side of the bed. "I thought, 'Am I supposed to walk?'" she recalls. "I was frustrated, and I stood up and took three steps."

She glanced at the clock so she would remember the time — 4 a.m. on March 7, 2003 — as the significance of what had just happened struck her.

"It was something that came to my mind," she says. "When Jesus told Peter to walk on the water, he didn't turn around and say, 'Well, are you going to hold my hand? Or 'Am I going to drown?'"

"He had faith, and he walked. I said, 'I'm supposed to be walking.'"

So she did.

Shirey walked from her bedroom at one end of their house on Highway 64 East to the utility room on the other end, and back again.

"I kept thinking, 'It's dark,'" she says. "I don't even know where I am, but I'm walking, and I can't stop."

She was back in her bedroom when Shirey says it dawned on her that something miraculous had happened. She fell across her bed and cried for joy.

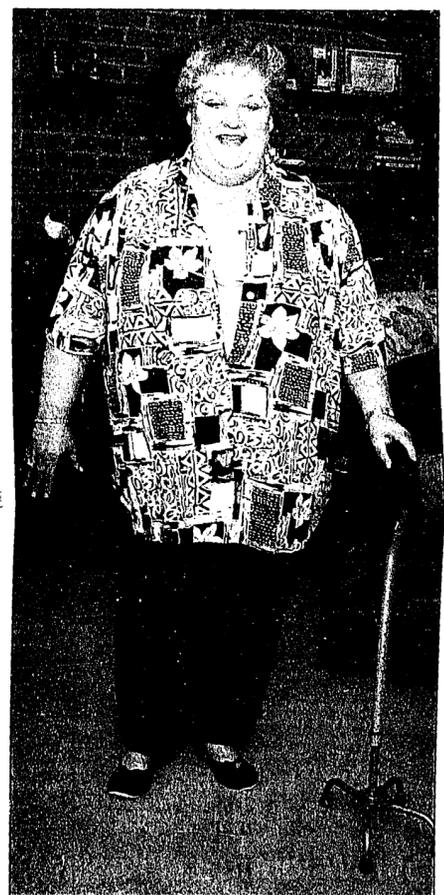

"I just started praising the Lord and praying," she says, "because I realized then that even though Jesus had not been standing in front of me, He had been telling me what to do."

Shirey got up and started walking back and forth across the house.

"I don't know why Bud didn't wake up because I was hollering, 'Praise the Lord, I'm walking,'" she says. "That's all I could say."

After a while, Shirey says she couldn't contain herself anymore. She had to share the good news with Bud, who had started sleeping in a separate bedroom ever since the surgery to fuse her vertebrae had left her in excruciating pain.

"I went in his bedroom," she says,

Shirey Hauser had faith that she would walk again, despite permanent damage from an apparent surgery gone wrong.

Shirey Hauser talks about her ordeal. Her husband Bud was a constant source of support for Shirey during her months of excruciating pain.

Keller-Phillips Couple Married

Angela Renee Keller and Jason Michael Phillips of Mount Holly were united in marriage at 3 p.m. May 31 at Concord United Methodist Church, Mocksville. The Rev. Phillip Cole officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Michael and Linda Keller of Mocksville. She is a graduate of Davie High School and earned a bachelor's degree in nursing from Western Carolina University. She is employed by Birthplace at Gaston Memorial Hospital.

The groom is the son of Annie and Bobby Phillips of Gastonia. He is a graduate of Tabernacle Christian School and attended Gaston College for a Microsoft engineering certification. He is employed as a technical contractor at Belmont Abbey College.

Escorted by her father, the bride chose Heidi Hare, a friend of Charlotte, as maid of honor, and Jane Steed, aunt of the bride of Durham, as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were friends of the bride, Diane Wilson of Salisbury, Toni Lindley of Graham and Sherry England of Statesville.

The groom's father was best man. Ushers were: Tony Phillips of Kings Mountain and Scott Phillips of Gastonia, the groom's brothers; Scott Keller, the bride's brother of Mocksville; and Mike Robinson of Gastonia, brother-in-law of the groom.

Flower girl was Taylor Wilson of Salisbury, a friend's daughter. Ring bearer was Calan Phillips, nephew of the groom of Kings Mountain.

After a reception at Jerusalem Baptist Church, the couple went on a wedding trip to Charleston, S.C. They are at home in Mount Holly.

Mrs. Jason Michael Phillips

Storehouse Medical Clinic Open Another Day; Walking Event At Y Track Open To All June 28

A Storehouse for Jesus has added another day to its free medical clinic at its headquarters at 464 Depot St. in Mocksville, now providing care for qualified chronically ill patients from 10 a.m.-noon on Tuesdays.

Follow-up patients who have already been seen by a Storehouse physician will be seen then by Dr. George Kimberly, medical director of the Storehouse clinic.

Qualifications for free treatment at the Storehouse include the following: at least 21 years old; Davie resident without benefit of health insurance, Medicare, Medicaid or Supplemental Security Income and proof that total family household income during the last four-week period is no more than 200 percent of the federal poverty level. For example, a family of four will not qualify for free clinic treatment at the Storehouse if its total household income exceeded $3,016 during the latest four-week period.

"We are pleased to be able to offer this new Tuesday morning service during which we plan to concentrate upon hypertension which many refer to more simply as high blood pressure," Kimberly said.

He is joined in serving clients by Drs. Melissa Seagle, Elizabeth Gamble, Joel Edwards, Frank Tolbert, and physician's assistant, John Levis. Dr. Francis Slate, former clinic medical director, will remain active as a backup physician.

"There are many ways in which patients may work to help overcome their hypertension," Kimberly said. "Among them are medications and changes in lifestyle which one may adopt with good and positive results."

Kimberly is encouraging participation in the Senior Games walking event to be held Saturday, June 28 on the YMCA track in Mocksville. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. with events starting at 9.

The competition is open to all walkers, including those who use walkers, those in wheelchairs (self-propelled or pushed by others), and those using crutches, canes or walking sticks.

"We hope for a good turnout for our Senior event, to which the juniors among us are cordially invited - either as spectators who have age on their side - or who wish to enter any one of the 10 events which will include events for toddlers, children in strollers, adults in wheelchairs, and those using walk-assisted devices."

There will also be a one-mile walk for individuals, and a one-mile walk for families with a prize going to the largest family which participates.

There will be a bring-your-own picnic lunch in Rich Park at 12:45 p.m.

Jesus, helping to raise money for a new distribution center on U.S. 64 east of Depot Street.

"The important thing to remember is that walking is one of our best exercises, for it tones the muscles, reduces weight, and keeps walkers fit and trim and makes one feel better," he said.

Extension, Community Club Members Attend State Meeting

Frances Beck, Jo Cheek, Latia Dunn, Ruth Foster, Marie Miller, Mary Lou Rose, Gail Smith, Ostine West, Doris Williams, Phyllis Williams and Peggy Winfrey represented Davie County at the 83rd annual North Carolina Extension & Community Association State Council Meeting in Greensboro May 6-8.

The Northwestern District, which includes Davie County, hosted the meeting at the Greensboro-High Point Marriott. Beck, county council president, was voting delegate.

The theme was "United We Stand." The mission of NCECA is to strengthen families through education, leadership development and community outreach. In addition to conducting the business of the association, State Council celebrated achievement of the members. Awards were presented for Volunteer Extension Education Program (VEEP), Leadership and Certified Volunteer Units (CVU).

Harold Brubaker, N.C. House of Representatives, extended greetings at the opening luncheon and the presentation of flags was by the Air Force JROTC Color Guard from Asheboro High School.

Dr. Philip Rosoff, Duke Medical Center, spoke on young cancer survivors.

Deirdre Martin, representative for Samaritans Purse, was presented with 900 shoeboxes filled with gifts for children in 35 countries. The Harmonettes from Mt. Herman Methodist Church, Graham, entertained with a medley of patriotic music.

The evening banquet opened with "God Bless the USA" by Angie Davis. The speaker was William Nutt, memory and motivational expert.

The closing brunch opened with a welcome and patriotic song by Randolph County commissioner, Harold Holmes, Lynn Hinton, author and minister, was speaker.

She weighed 6 lbs. 10 oz. and was 20 inches long. Our mommy's name is Robin Thomas James. Our dad's name is Sam James. Our maternal grandparents are Butch and Linda Thomas. Our paternal grandparents are Wayne and Jean James. Our great-grandmother is Sarah James.

Klint & Sheree Ford and Big Sister, Maddie of Mooresville, NC are proud to announce the birth of a son and brother, Jesse Wayne was born on Thursday, May 29, 2003 at 11:33 a.m. He weighed 7.8 lbs. and was 20 and 1/4 inches long. Jesse was born at Lake Norman Regional Hospital. His maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Woodie Bates of Advance. His paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ford of Matthews, NC. His great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charlie McChamrock of Mocksville.

Methodist church June 15-19 from 6-8 p.m. Everyone is invited.

David Owens, a member of the Gideons, spoke at church Sunday in the absence of our pastor, the Rev. Harry Sammons, who was away for annual conference at Lake Junaluska.

Flowers on the church altar Sunday were in honor of Julia Patton's birthday on June 10. Congratulations to Hank and Guye Wade who celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary Sunday, June 8.

Dick and Reta Vogler took their 4 grandchildren to the beach over the weekend. They were Samuel and Rachel Hamerick and Dalton and Allie Vogler.

The "Over the Hill Gang" enjoyed a trip Saturday evening June 7 to Liberty to see the Liberty Jamboree. Leaving Cornatzer Baptist church at 4 p.m., they drove to Asheboro K&W for supper, arriving later in Liberty for the night show. Afterwards they stopped at Burger King for a late night snack before getting back home around midnight.

Gene Livengood was the bus driver. Thirty-five people enjoyed the trip which was under the direction of Sam and Janie Chaplin. Ruby Murkland was hospitalized at Forsyth Medical Center last week for observation and treatment for an apparent light stroke. After 2 days she was released.

Mabel Howard has been admitted to Davie County Hospital and is in serious condition from a stroke. She has been a resident at Autumn Care Nursing Home for the past few months.

Edith Zimmerman visited Julia Patton Sunday afternoon in celebration of her birthday. Edith also visited Lillie "Bark" Vogler during the afternoon.

Get well wishes go out to Virgil Potts who is confined to home with various ailments.

Get Connected

Work Sought For Summer Highlights Art Show

Get connected to local artists. Twice a year, the Davie County Arts Council (DCAC) holds an art show and sale. Work is submitted by local artists, judged by a juror, and then offered to the public for sale.

This summer, the DCAC will hold Summer Highlights, an art show to be on display from July 10-Aug. 22 in the lobby of the Brock Performing Arts Center 622 N. Main St., Mocksville.

The juror for Summer Highlights is Nancy Bruce, a freelance artist. She has experience in textile design, and has worked with many corporations in the textile industry. She has also taught at several arts organizations, including the South Carolina Arts Commission and the Sawtooth Center for Visual Art in Winston-Salem. Now she works with oils, acrylics, colored pencils, and all kinds of fabrics. She will be present at the reception, July 10, 6:30-7:30 p.m., for a short presentation.

The exhibition is for both two and three-dimensional works of art. Artists may enter up to three works completed less than five years ago. Any work that has been displayed at the BPAC before will not be accepted. All work must be original in idea. A juror will choose which works are exhibited from those pieces entered.

Rumpelstiltskin

Area Children To Take Part In Workshop; Two Performances Of The Classic Tale

Missoula Children's Theatre and Davie County Arts Council present a musical version of Rumpelstiltskin Saturday, June 21 at 3 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. in the Brock Performing Arts Center, 622 N. Main St., Mocksville.

Audiences are invited to join in the fun of Festival Time and help Clara guess a mischievous little gnome's name during Rumpelstiltskin, an original, musical adaptation of this classic tale.

The show will feature more than 50 local students appearing as characters such as Rumpelstiltskin, Clara, King Whatsat, the Jester, Wizards, Gnomes, Knights, Villagers and the busy Bees. "We are confident that you will be amazed by what the cast will have accomplished in one week," said Shanda Smith, program director.

Seating will be general and tickets are $5. For more information, contact the Davie Arts Council box office at 751-3000 or info@daviearts.org.

Shirey Hauser ...

The day before, she had even told physical therapist Kevin Cleary at Brandon Rehabilitation in Advance that she wouldn't need him much longer. "He said, 'Oh, you won't. Why not?'" she recalls. "I said, 'Because the Lord and I had a long talk, and he's going to let me walk.'"

That night, when Shirey and Bud went out to eat with Connie and Dallas, Shirey told her sister she wouldn't have to open the door for her many more times. "She said, 'Why?' I Shirey recalls. "I said, 'Connie, I just have faith. I think one of these days soon, I'm going to walk, and I'm going to open the door for you.'"

This is the story of Shirey Hauser's faith. It is the story of a surgery that apparently went wrong, a tragic situation made even worse by what seemed to be a failure of a doctor and hospital to be honest about what had happened or to even attempt to correct it.

It is a story that kept me awake at night as I recalled the horrible pain Shirey described in the three-hour interview for this story and thought about the agony her family must have gone through as they watched helplessly while she suffered.

But in the end, as I lay this story to rest, it is one I am truly privileged to tell. For ultimately, it is the story of a woman who believes with all her heart that God sometimes intervenes to right a terrible wrong and that even more than 2000 years after His crucifixion, Jesus can still bid someone to stand up and walk.

Shirey Hauser believed, and she walked. Her nightmare began in late 1998, when she started having shooting pain and severe cramping in her buttocks and right leg. Shirey went to her primary care physician, Dr. Jesus Gonzales of Mocksville, on March 29, 1999, seeking treatment, and he referred her to the Neurology Outpatient Clinic at a nearby hospital.

There, she underwent tests which were evaluated by a neurosurgeon, who eventually recommended surgery to relieve pressure on three spinal nerve roots. The surgery on May 17, 1999, eased the pain temporarily, but within a few months, it was as bad as ever.

Shirey was working for Dr. Paul Mighion at the time, and the pain would be so bad by lunchtime that she would have to lie down in one of the dental chairs. By the time she got home in the evenings, the pain kept her confined to the couch.

"I couldn't do anything," she says. This was very difficult for Shirey, who was used to doing and going all the time. She and Bud co-owned the miniature golf course open on Yadinville Road with Larry Staley, who has been Bud's partner at Mocksville Furniture & Appliance for 29 years.

Every other weekend, Shirey and Bud worked at the golf course. They were also active members of Fork Baptist Church and enjoyed getting together with family and friends. In recent years, they enjoyed traveling and had been on trips to Hawaii, London, the Bahamas and Mexico.

Shirey was looking forward to being able to resume her busy life and went back to the neurosurgeon who had done the first procedure. "She started coming up with things that I had never had done," she says. "Like X-rays from years ago." Shirey had only become a patient at the hospital right before her first surgery the previous year, so she knew those weren't hers.

"She started pulling stuff out and throwing it in the trashcan," she says. "She said, 'These aren't yours. I'll just get rid of them.'"

Hours later, when Shirey woke up in the recovery room unable to lift her right leg, she says the first thought that came to her was that they had used the wrong chart to do the surgery. "I said, 'Oh, my Lord, you've taken my leg off,'" she says.

The nurse tried to reassure her, explaining that the neurosurgeon had operated on her back. "Don't worry," she says the doctor assured her. She would only be there for a couple of weeks. While she was waiting to be discharged to go to the rest home, Shirey says a student nurse asked her which Oak Summit she would be going to, the

Monday. And though she was in considerable pain, Shirey says she had no problems walking into the hospital on her own.

She had already been prepped for surgery and was in the holding area waiting when Shirey was told her surgery had been delayed due to an emergency. While there, she told a nurse a disturbing story about how her chart kept getting mixed up with another patient, a Shirley Hauser.

Shirey (pronounced Shy-ree) does not have an I in her name. But on at least three or four occasions, she says she told the nurse, a hospital staff member had the wrong chart when she went in for an examination or test.

Most recently, Shirey says she was having a diagnostic procedure done in which dye was injected into her spine when she noticed the X-rays hanging on the wall beside her. "Whose X-rays are those?" she says she asked.

The technician said they were hers. "I said, 'No, that spine is straight,'" she says. "My spine, I've seen pictures too many times, and it looks like an S. Those are not my X-rays."

When Shirey asked about the black spots on the X-rays, she says the technician told her those were the screws and rods that the neurosurgeon had put in during a previous surgery.

"I said, 'No,'" she says. "I said, 'That's why I'm fixing to go into the hospital. I don't have any screws and rods in my back.'" "He got really, really irritated with me, and he said, 'These are your X-rays. You are here for a myelogram. Do you want it today or not?'"

"I said, 'No, I don't want a myelogram today if those are the X-rays you're going to use because that's not my back.'" "At that point, Shirey says the technician became extremely agitated and jerked the X-rays off of the wall.

"Is your name Shirley Hauser?" she says he asked, reading the name off one of the X-rays. "I first said, 'Yes,' and then it dawned on me, and I said, 'No.'" He said, "Do you know your name?"

"She told him her name was Shirley Hauser. "That's what I've got right here," she says the technician responded. When he asked for her birthday, Shirey told him it was July 13, 1945.

The technician's facial expression changed drastically, she says, and he said what she already knew: "These aren't your records."

He then called the medical records department and ordered the correct chart to be delivered immediately. When Shirey told the nurse in the surgical holding area what had happened, she offered to go through her chart while they waited.

"She started coming up with things that I had never had done," she says. "Like X-rays from years ago." Shirey had only become a patient at the hospital right before her first surgery the previous year, so she knew those weren't hers.

"She started pulling stuff out and throwing it in the trashcan," she says. "She said, 'These aren't yours. I'll just get rid of them.'"

Hours later, when Shirey woke up in the recovery room unable to lift her right leg, she says the first thought that came to her was that they had used the wrong chart to do the surgery. "I said, 'Oh, my Lord, you've taken my leg off,'" she says.

The nurse tried to reassure her, explaining that the neurosurgeon had operated on her back. "Don't worry," she says the doctor assured her. She would only be there for a couple of weeks. While she was waiting to be discharged to go to the rest home, Shirey says a student nurse asked her which Oak Summit she would be going to, the

it," she recalls. "I couldn't even feel her touching it."

That was the first sign Shirey had that something was terribly wrong.

Another was the pain. It's normal to be in pain after surgery, Shirey says, but the pain she was experiencing was unlike anything she had ever known. It was worse than her worst nightmare.

"I don't know if I was screaming, but I was crying in pain," she says. "And I can control pain pretty good."

When the pain persisted, Shirey says the nurse called her doctor, who told her to increase the dosages of pain medication. After several dosage increases failed to ease her suffering, he instructed the nurse to send Shirey to X-ray.

Bud and other family members were waiting in the room when Shirey was finally brought in. "She was moaning and groaning and hollering," he says. "She was just in severe pain."

At first, Bud says he thought the pain was coming from the surgery. It wasn't until the next day, when the neurosurgeon came in, that Bud, too, realized something had gone wrong.

When Shirey asked him why her head was hurting so badly, Bud says the doctor said they had inadvertently snipped her spine during the surgery and had glued, sutured and repaired it. It would only be a problem if the spinal fluid continued to leak, he told them.

In the days and nights following the surgery, Shirey says the pain was unbearable. "I cried the whole time I was there," she says. "I begged them not to let anybody come in to see me. I hurt so bad, I just wanted to put the sheet over my head and cry."

When the nurses and physical therapists tried to set Shirey on the side of the bed, one person had to get on each side of her to keep her from falling over. She had lost all sense of balance. Sometimes, her right leg would kick to the side, an involuntary nerve reaction. And when the physical therapists tried to help her stand, Shirey says her right leg would buckle under.

"It was like I didn't have a leg," she says. "I kept saying, 'What have you done to me?'" "The doctor would say, 'Your prognosis is excellent,'" she says. "You're just fine. I'd say, 'Well, if I'm fine, why am I hurting worse now than when I came in here?'"

It wasn't just her right leg that was giving her problems. Shirey's right arm was limp, and the three middle fingers of her right hand and the bottoms of her feet were numb. "I could raise my arm, but it wasn't a lot of help to me," she says. "As for my leg, I couldn't even move it."

Shirey was told before the surgery that she would be in the hospital five days, but she was in there for 10. That's as long as Shirey's insurance provider would pay for her to stay.

When the neurosurgeon told Shirey he would have to discharge her, he told her he knew she wasn't physically able to go home. And she didn't qualify for the rehabilitation center at the hospital, she says he said, because she wasn't able to do anything for herself.

The doctor recommended the Oak Summit Rest Home in Germanton. "I said, 'No, I can't go to a rest home,'" Shirey recalls. But as she thought about it, she says she didn't know what else to do. "I knew I was in bad shape," she says. "I knew I couldn't come home unless somebody was with me 24 hours, seven days a week, so I agreed."

"Don't worry," she says the doctor assured her. She would only be there for a couple of weeks. While she was waiting to be discharged to go to the rest home, Shirey says a student nurse asked her which Oak Summit she would be going to, the one in Winston-Salem or Germanton. She had Shirey's medical records, she told her, and needed to know where to send them.

it," she recalls. "I couldn't even feel her touching it."

That was the first sign Shirey had that something was terribly wrong.

"I said, 'Would you like for me to take them because we're going there?'" Shirey says she asked. "She said, 'Oh, that would be great.'"

Concerned that something had gone wrong in the surgery, Bud took the medical records and copied them before turning them over to the rest home.

For Shirey, her stay at Oak Summit was just another chapter in the nightmare that had cast a dark shadow on her life. Patients with Alzheimer's disease would wander into her room and rifle through her belongings.

"I cried a lot because I didn't feel like I belonged there," she says. "And I cried from pain. I couldn't tolerate it."

Even powerful painkillers such as Oxycotin couldn't stop the pain that wracked Shirey's body.

The physical therapists at the rest home worked tirelessly with her, gradually helping her to transition from the bed to a wheelchair and then a walker. "I walked very poorly," Shirey says, "but at least I could stand on my feet."

Bud never missed a day visiting his wife. On weekdays, he would leave the furniture store in time to pick up dinner for Shirey, her roommate and himself.

"Bless his heart," Shirey says. "He has stuck by my side. Without him, I would never have pulled through this."

It takes a while to drive from Davie County to Germanton, but Shirey says her family, friends and fellow members at Fork Baptist visited often. "There were people at my bedside most of the time," she says.

After four weeks, Bud drove Shirey to her follow-up appointment with the neurosurgeon. "Bud pushed me in in a wheelchair," she says, "and the doctor said, 'What in the world are you doing in a wheelchair?'" I said, "You put me here."

Shirey told the neurosurgeon she still had no feeling in her right leg. "I couldn't even tell that I had a foot," she says. "Anyway, he said, 'Your prognosis is excellent.'"

"I heard that so many times, you wouldn't believe it. 'Your prognosis is excellent.' I'd say, 'If my prognosis is so excellent, what's wrong with me now?'" "He'd always say, 'It just takes time.'" rosurgeon said she was the one in a thousand patients who required more time for the nerves to regenerate and reach."

"On the drive back to the rest home that day, Shirey says she was surprised Bud didn't get stopped for reckless driving the way he was weaving in miss any rough spots in the highway.

"Every bump in the road, I would scream," she says. "I would just grab hold of the door handle and scream. I couldn't take it."

The week before Thanksgiving, after almost three months in Oak Summit, a rest home administrator informed Shirey that her insurance wouldn't pay for her to stay past November.

By that time, Shirey could walk short distances on a walker with Bud's assistance. She packed her belongings and got ready to leave.

At home, the pain continued. Bud says he could hear Shirey screaming way into at night. "I'd wake up in my sleep crying," she says.

"The pain got so bad that Shirey says she even considered suicide. "I really wanted to end my life," she says, breaking down in tears. "I remember telling Barry and Karen both, 'If your Mama dies, don't grieve because I really want to go home and be with Jesus.'"

"I had just gotten to the end of my rope, and I couldn't take it anymore."

Bud says he was so worried about Shirey during this time that he made sure somebody stayed with her day and night. He even hid all his guns.

As part of her discharge instructions, the doctor at the rest home had referred Shirey to Brandon Rehabilitation, and though she has only positive things to say about the agency, they really weren't able to help her.

Every time Kevin Cleary tried to move part of her body, she says she would cry out in pain. When she went for her next appointment with the neurosurgeon, Shirey says Bud helped her to walk in on her walker. She saw the doctor's physician's assistant (PA) first.

"I said, 'I'm hurting so badly, I literally can't stand it,'" she says. "Did you assist in this surgery?"

At that point, Shirey says the PA rolled back in his chair, threw up his hands and said, "I want to tell you something right now. I had nothing to do with this surgery."

Then he got up and walked out. Shirey and Bud say they never saw him again.

When the neurosurgeon came in, Shirey told him she was in worse shape "many, many times over" than when she had the surgery. "What are we going to do?" she says she asked him. "And he said, 'Your prognosis is excellent.'"

Shirey asked about going to another doctor for a second opinion or to a pain clinic. "He said, 'Shirey, there's no point,'" she recalls. "It's just wasting your money to send you to somebody else because your prognosis is excellent."

As for the pain clinic, the neurosurgeon said he wasn't going to send her there because they would put her on highly addictive pain medication. Besides, he told her, it would be at least four months before she could get an appointment.

When Shirey asked him again why she was in so much pain and what he could do about it, she says the doctor said, "Shirey, if you want any answers, you ask the Man upstairs. He's the only One at this point who can give you any answers."

As he was getting ready to leave, the neurosurgeon told Shirey and Bud that he knew how difficult it was for her to get around and suggested that they go out the back door. "He didn't want me to see anybody else in that office," she says.

They left through the back door that day, and they never went back. "Well, what did I do?" she says. "I started crying again because I said, 'I'm not having surgery.'"

When Shirey agreed to think about it, Dr. Baker told her she would need to be tested to see if her heart could withstand another surgery so soon after the last one. She would also have to undergo bone density and nerve studies before he could operate.

After a week or two, Shirey had decided to go ahead with the surgery, but it would be another month before she would finish with the supplemental testing.

The day before the April 25, 2001 surgery, Dr. Baker told Shirey he might have to do the 15-hour corrective procedure in two parts.

he was going to give her injections all the way across her back. If it was going to help, he told her, she would know immediately. If it did, he said they would give her more injections. If not, he told her they would have to take a different approach.

When the doctor saw all the medications Shirey was on, she says he said she was taking about all she could handle. He would increase the dosages a little, he told her, but only because he would be monitoring her every few days.

The doctor saw Shirey again two days later. "But it was the same old story," she says. "It didn't help."

Shirey's pain was as bad as ever. "And going down there, at Catawba College, there's nothing but 'bumpy, bumpy, bump,'" she says. "Bud wouldn't go the back roads. He stayed on the main roads because they were better."

After about the third visit, Shirey says the doctor told her he didn't think there was anything else he could do.

Even though she had already said she didn't want to have more surgery, he said he had a friend, Dr. Jeff Baker, a spinal specialist who trained at Duke University Medical School, that he thought could help her.

If she'd be willing to see him, she says the doctor told her he could probably get her an appointment at Salisbury Orthopaedic Associates fairly quickly. She agreed to see Dr. Baker.

On the first visit, Shirey and Bud met with his PA, Mark Sizemore. When he saw the X-rays that were taken that Dr. Baker would be amazed at what they showed.

"He said, 'No wonder you're in pain,'" he says. "He said, 'Your rods aren't even straight. He said, 'Your rods are off by a 33-degree angle.'"

Finally, Shirey says she thought she had found somebody who could help her. "Thank you, Lord," she remembers saying.

After seeing Dr. Baker, though, she says he told her he didn't know how else to help her but to operate and straighten the rods in her back.

"Well, what did I do?" she says. "I started crying again because I said, 'I'm not having surgery.'"

When Shirey agreed to think about it, Dr. Baker told her she would need to be tested to see if her heart could withstand another surgery so soon after the last one. She would also have to undergo bone density and nerve studies before he could operate.

After a week or two, Shirey had decided to go ahead with the surgery, but it would be another month before she would finish with the supplemental testing.

The day before the April 25, 2001 surgery, Dr. Baker told Shirey he might have to do the 15-hour corrective procedure in two parts.

The X-rays indicated serious problems, she says he told her, but he wouldn't know exactly how serious they were until he got inside.

one would be praying for Shirey every hour that she was in surgery. Her name had also been on the prayer lists of other churches across Davie and surrounding counties since after the second surgery.

"You know when those prayers are being lifted," she says. "You just do. I had never done for people like they were doing for me."

"That was my goal, 'Let me feel better, dear Lord. Let me get out of there and do for others the way they were doing for me.'"

The surgery lasted 15 long hours. Bud says the doctor came out midway through it and said the operating room was so bloody that they had to shut it down and do a major cleanup. "After that, they just rescrubbed and sterilized everything and started again," Shirey says.

When Dr. Baker met with Shirey and her family later, he showed them the hardware that they had removed from her back. Bud says most of the screws were bent.

In preparing for the second surgery at the other hospital, Shirey says Dr. Baker said some of them had apparently drilled 12 millimeter holes for 6.5 millimeter screws, then tried to compensate by taking bone shavings and filling in around them.

During the corrective surgery, Dr. Baker also told them, he had hooked Shirey's nerves up to a machine so he could see how well they were functioning. The L5 nerve, which he told them had to be unwrapped from around a screw, showed permanent damage.

Several of the screws had come loose and were just lying around in her body, Shirey says they were told.

Dr. Baker also found that the neurosurgeon had apparently never attempted to complete the second surgery and had left the first and fifth vertebrae untouched. There was no scar tissue in these areas.

Shirey and Bud both say they believe the neurosurgeon, once the holes had been drilled almost twice the size of the screws, gave up on finishing the surgery and had sent her to the rest home to die.

"And nobody would have ever known it," Bud says. "They bury their mistakes."

"But the Lord didn't see fit for me to die," Shirey says. "Once the corrective surgery was complete, Shirey was placed inside a hard-shell body brace and spent the first three days of her recovery in the intensive-care unit of the Rowan hospital."

"I remember a little bit about the last day I was in there," she says. "The thing I remember the most is that I didn't have any pain."

Of course, Shirey says she had the normal post-operative pain, but not the harrowing pain she had endured since the last surgery. "All of I could think of was that my prayers were answered," she says.

Shirey says she thanked Dr. Baker every chance she got for what he had done for her. The first time she remembers seeing him after the surgery, she says she told him; "I don't have any pain, Dr. Baker. I just love you to death. If I could, I'd grab hold of you and just hug your neck and kiss you."

She and Bud and Dr. Baker had bonded the first time they met. "He was just like an old friend that we'd known all our lives," she says.

she says he said she wasn't well enough to go.

But Shirey was stubborn. When Bud arrived for a visit, she says she told him she was going home.

"Did Dr. Baker tell you you could go home?" she says he wanted to know. "I didn't lie. I said, 'Isn't it good I'm going home?'"

When Bud found out Dr. Baker hadn't released her to go, Shirey says she started crying and threatened to call a cab to take her home if he wouldn't.

Finally, when Dr. Baker realized he couldn't persuade Shirey to remain in the hospital, he said she could go after they had contacted the Davie County Home Health Agency about providing services in the home.

She would have to be given antibiotics through an IV, he told her, due to infection that may have stemmed from the previous surgery.

Shirey would also have to continue to wear the body brace for six months. She was also instructed to wear a nerve stimulator on top of it for four hours a day.

On the way home, Shirey says Bud didn't even try to miss the rough spots in the roads. "I could tell he was peeved," she says, "and he hadn't gotten mad at me throughout this whole ordeal."

"You weren't ready to come home then," Bud says. The amazing thing, Shirey says, looking back, was that she didn't have any pain. "It didn't hurt," she says. "Even though there was soreness from the surgery, I had no pain."

"I kept saying, 'Honey, isn't this wonderful? I'm going home, and I haven't got any pain.'"

The body brace began at Shirey's neck and went down to the bottom of her hips. "I couldn't do anything for myself," she says, "and of course, I couldn't walk either. Even on a walker, it was slow going."

Finding a chair she could sit in became a challenge. "I couldn't get out of a chair," she says, "and if I got too low, it was harder. I needed something I could just back up to and sit down."

Time after time, Bud brought home different chairs from the furniture store for Shirey to try out, including an old one that customers had used to try on shoes when he ran a shoe store years ago. "That was the best sitting chair," she says.

Family and friends also helped equip the house with accessories for the handicapped so it would be easier for her to get around.

Her brother-in-law, Dallas Jones, added a rail and ramp to the side door to help Shirey get in and out, and two men from the church, Gray Carter and Reginald Seaford, who is now deceased, put up railing along the bathroom walls.

After Bud had a recliner with automatic controls on it delivered to the house, he built a platform to place it on so Shirey could back into it and sit down.

Though the body brace was awkward and hot, Shirey says she wasn't in any pain. "From the day I came home from the hospital to this day," she says, "I've not had a pain pill."

back and change the T-shirt she wore under it to keep it from rubbing sores on her. "It was like tending to a baby," she says.

When she started on the IV antibiotic, Shirey says she was told she would need to take it for three or four weeks, but it took 10 weeks of medication for the infection to clear up.

Because the insurance company would only pay for someone from Home Health to come out twice a week, Shirey was told she would have to find a friend or family member who could administer the antibiotic IV every morning.

Shirey's mother, who was at the house every day helping to clean and cook and take care of her daughter, said her husband could do it.

"I said, 'Mama, Daddy's not going to do this,'" she says. "But when her mother called him to come in from tilling his garden and told him the situation, Shirey says he said, 'I haven't done anything like that, but I bet you I could learn.'"

After the Home Health nurse showed him what to do, Shirey says her father came over every morning for the two and a half hours it took to run the antibiotic through the IV.

Bud says a representative from the insurance company called during this time to ask how Shirey was doing. He says he told the man she was doing as well as could be expected considering what the neurosurgeon and hospital had put her through.

"Is there anything that she needs?" Bud says the man asked him. "I said, 'Can you tell me how much money you paid the hospital?'" I said, "We'll recover you some money when we sue them," and the man hung the phone up."

From the day she got home from the hospital, Shirey says there were very few days that went by without someone bringing food by the house.

"It got to the point where we didn't have room in the refrigerator," she says. "We were freezing cakes. We were freezing everything. Bud would say, 'We appreciate this, but we really don't need it,' but it didn't matter."

"It came anyway." All this time, Shirey says she lived for the day when she could cook for others. "I'm going to start carrying food to people," she says she vowed, "and I'm going to sit with them. If they want to cry, I'll cry with them, and if they want to laugh, I'll laugh with them."

Shirey was still wearing the body brace when she started cooking, pausing often to rest on a stool. "You can see the prints of the stool all over the kitchen floor," she says. "I moved it wherever I went because I couldn't stand."

The church is located approximately a mile and a half from Cornatzer Elementary School at 1244 Cornatzer Road, Mocksville. Hours will be from 2:45-5:45 p.m. Monday-Friday.

For more information, call the church office at 998-0687 and leave a message.

Macedonia Moravian Plans SonHarvest Fair June 22-26

Macedonia Moravian Church invites all the children in the community to the SonHarvest County Fair.

"We're ready for a Vacation Bible School children will never forget," said Pastor Greg Little. "SonHarvest County Fair is a fun and exciting place where children learn to apply Biblical teaching to their lives. Children will have a great time singing, watching skits, creating crafts, learning about missions and playing games. Most important, they'll discover Bible truths about growing the fruit of God's Spirit."

"We want to share this exciting event with children and parents in our neighborhood," Little said. "

Wife Phyllis is proof, people smile when they ride in Norman Stocks' Train of Glory. - Photos by Robin Fergusson

All Aboard: Train, Workshops Offer Fun For All Ages

By Mike Barnhardt
 Davie County Enterprise Record

If you're walking down the street sometime: And spot some hollow, ancient eyes. Please don't just pass them by and stare. As if you didn't care. Say hello in there. Hello.

John Prine

Norman Stocks says hello a lot. He says hello and let's do something. Let's ride the Train of Glory. Let's make a wooden toy. Let's sing. Let's dance. Let's celebrate life.

As part of His & My Workshop he operates from his home on Edison Street in Mocksville. Stocks does all of the above with people of all ages. "I've always got something going on," Stocks said.

He moved to Mocksville after doing a show at Autumn Care, where he met Phyllis, whom he married on Feb. 8.

Shows at nursing homes and senior centers are still a big part of his business - a part he really enjoys. He's had a woman 106 years old doing the Electric Slide dance. He's hosted senior proms and dances.

And he listens. "It's neat to hear their stories. It's our history. These old people, they know our history."

From a trailer he pulls with his pickup truck, Stocks has a miniature train he calls the Train of Glory. It has Bible quotes on the back of each car, and a conductor with an appropriate hat and a big smile.

"I get all sorts of people to ride it," he said. "It's not about the money, it's the rewards involved, that's the pleasure I get out of it. I love to see people laugh and smile."

Many of the old people remember train rides from years past, and relate those stories.

His & My Workshop goes to corporate events, fund raisers, day care centers and other places, as well.

A toymaker who has carved since he was a child, Stocks started his newest adventure in 1995 while working as a nursing assistant.

"It started by doing crafts in nursing homes and it just grew. The Lord got involved and you can see what happened," he said.

The programs can include craft kits, in which participants take part in two-hour classes to make their own crafts. There's a karaoke machine. They may play games such as the hokey pokey and limbo. They may learn to use marionettes.

All, including the train, are transported in a trailer behind Stocks' pickup truck.

Stocks started with a pony and carriage, but ended up with the train. He wasn't sure how to use it at first, but since he doesn't want to preach, thought the Train of Glory idea would work.

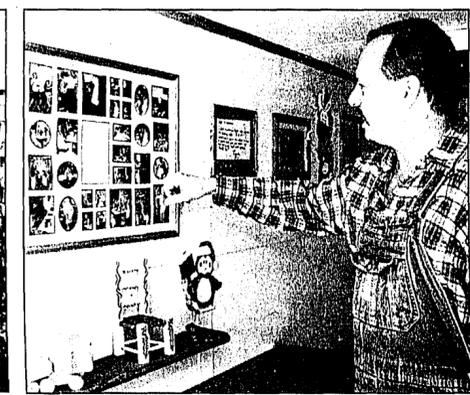

"We're getting the message out and having a good time at the same time," he said.

"I don't know one day from the next what will fall. I love it dearly, and get to touch a lot of people."

For more information, contact Stocks at 751-2110.

Phyllis and Norman Stocks talk about the traveling ministry.

Stocks points to some photographs from past shows and events.

Nursing Assistant Graduates

Armed with stethoscopes, blood pressure cuffs and white uniforms, these 15 women fought a battle and won. Despite snow make-up days, quizzes and challenging practical experience, each now stands prepared to combat the current nursing shortage after successfully completing the Nursing Assistant I class this spring on the Davie Campus of Davidson County Community College. Ages range from teenagers to a great-grandmother. Several students have begun taking classes in nursing programs to become Registered Nurses, others plan to work as nursing assistants, and a few graduates possess greater knowledge to care for sick relatives and friends. Completing the Nursing Assistant I course of study are, from left: front - Tracy Allen, Gini Stone, Marjorie Archambo and Jordan Lowe; second row - Elaine Carter, Sherry Gray, Bonnie Allen, Kimberly Ellis and Michelle Dunn; third row - Crystal Phifer, Elaine Spry and Julie Smith; and fourth row - Nancy Harris, Kimberly West and Nikki Blake. Not present: Christy Boughman.

DCCC's First Office Specialist Class Is Held

The Davie Campus of Davidson County Community College completed its first Office Specialist Certificate (OSC) program during the spring semester.

Students completing the program are qualified to perform entry-level office skills.

DCCC is offering programs such as OSC to assist unemployed workers interested in learning new skills to re-enter the workforce. The college is targeting individuals looking for a new career opportunity and workers affected by recent area plant layoffs who need to find new employment as soon as possible.

"This is just one of the programs we offer to retrain individuals for new jobs," said Teresa Kines, program coordinator, continuing education, on the Davie Campus. "Most of the people enrolled in this course thought there were no jobs available to them."

In the 182-hour Office Specialist Certificate course, students learn computer skills such as keyboarding and Microsoft Windows, Word, Excel, and PowerPoint. Additional skills include customer service, 10-key, records management, telephone etiquette, and other skills necessary to secure an entry-level position in a business office setting.

The course also included field trips which allow students to observe business offices in operation, according to instructor Peggy Grotberg. The spring class visited the VA Hospital in Salisbury where they toured eight offices and were able to see the various types of equipment and machinery used in these offices.

"The class also attended a job fair in Winston-Salem where they talked with prospective employers and distributed the resumes they had built in class," Grotberg said. "Several of the class members received job interviews as a result of their resumes or have responded to new position-vacancy ads in the newspaper."

Grotberg and co-instructor Harry Hinson invited experts in the business field to address students about work-related issues, writing resumes and cover letters, preparing for job interviews, and how to follow-up on interviews. They included Scott Gant of Gant Personnel, Barron Dulin, Personnel/Human Resources Director for PGT Industries, Kay Wagner of the Catawba College Career Services Center, and Gerry Grotberg, a member of the Business Division faculty at DCCC.

The Office Specialist Certificate program will be offered again on the Davie Campus during the fall semester. For additional information, call 751-2885.

Town Awards Dr. Bayne Miller A Key To City

In honor of Dr. Bayne Miller's 43 years as a veterinarian in Mocksville, the town presented him a key to the town on June 2.

"We want you to know that your services have been appreciated," said Mayor Francis Slate. "We give this to you with a great deal of gratitude and respect."

Miller has been a veterinarian in Davie County for 43 of his 45 years in practice. Over the years he has treated large animals on farms to small dogs in his office.

"There are not words enough to express my gratitude for you honoring me tonight," he told the board, while his wife, children and grandchildren looked on.

"I have enjoyed my years of practice, and love my profession. To enjoy your work, and then be honored for it, the feeling is unbelievable," Miller is the fourth recipient of a town key.

Mr. Septic It's Important To Maintain Systems For Health, Safety

There's a monster in your yard. He's buried out back. His name is Mr. Septic System and you don't want to wake him.

However, you shouldn't forget that he's there, either.

Many Davie residents have met Mr. Septic System for the first time over the last few months. Heavy amounts of rainfall have seen to that.

First, he starts backing sewage up into your house or spewing it onto your manicured lawn.

And then there's the odor—not exactly what you hoped for at the cookout.

So how do you keep Septic System happy?

His diet consists of ... well let's just say it does not include trash, cigarette butts, diapers, cat litter, oil, grease, chemicals and so on. These can upset him or affect his performance.

Regular maintenance is fairly simple. It consists of maintaining some form of vegetative cover (grass is best) and pumping solids from the septic tank about every five years. If you use a garbage disposal, pumping frequency should be increased (try a compost pile instead).

Conservation measures required during last year's drought should be continued inside the house during times of extremely wet weather. Repair leaky faucets and toilets. Running toilets are the most common cause of premature failure of septic systems.

Washing machines are the largest single user of water in the home, consuming 50 gallons or

A Vital Role

Nursing Assistants Critical To Well-Being Of Many

Nursing Assistants Week 2003 focuses on the ways that nursing assistants are making a difference in healthcare today - on regional, state and national levels.

"The well-being and happiness of our citizens receiving this type care largely depends on the nursing assistants, home care aides, and others who provide the daily, conscientious, hands-on care in these settings," said Janet Blair, Davie Health Department Home Health supervisor.

Department & Home Health Agency is very proud of its Home Health Aides," said Health Director Barry Bass. "Our aides are trained professionals who collaborate closely with other health care providers to provide quality care in a manner that is honorable to their chosen vocation."

people. Our aides serve their clients with compassion and quality care. Their clients may be injured or sick - requiring assistance with personal hygiene. Clients may be elderly and frail, in need of a good hot meal. Some clients may not be physically able to do their own housekeeping - requiring assistance with the daily chores and shopping.

A Summer For Baptizing In The Rain

It is a peculiar summer — completely opposite of what we had last year. Record drought has been replaced by a baptizing summer. We're always getting wet. I counted three thunderstorms in one day. It doesn't rain every day. But it seems like it. Just ask the farmers, sitting on their tractors waiting to make fescue hay. They have a tremendous hay crop in the field. But it's too muddy to cut. Or too dangerous to risk losing it to rain. So they wait. It will take several days of hot, dry weather for the grass to dry before they cut it. And then several more days for the hay to dry before they bale it. We haven't had a week without rain, it seems, since last year. Then, we had nearly a month between substantial rain. Our Yadkin River — last year so low the riverbed was visible in places — has repeatedly swollen out of the riverbanks this year. All of last year's prayers have been answered. In full measure.

Something always seems imperfect about the weather. It's too dry or too wet. Too hot or too cold. Too cloudy or too sunny. Farmers aren't the only ones suffering with too much rain. Some homeowners with basements are finding water where they've never seen it before. I'm not in the hay business, but I am getting tired of mowing my lawn. It's still growing strong. In recent years, my lawnmower retired in June. It's raining today. It rained yesterday. Might rain tomorrow. That's the thing about the weather. You never know what you're going to get. And there's nothing to do about it but ... complain.

No Ordinary Judge

He's a long-time Superior Court judge, but when he takes off the robes, Jerry Cash Martin doesn't lead a sedentary life. He has biked across America in 30 days, repeatedly defying the traditional image of a judge. He has penned a novel. He does things other men dream about. He presided over the murder trial that just ended for the man who killed S.W. Brown Jr. A resident of Mt. Airy, Martin is assigned to trials across North Carolina. Many of them are murder trials. The state has learned to assign those cases carefully, rather than risk having a conviction overturned for a judge's error. Jathiyah A. Al-Bayyinah had to be tried twice, forcing the Brown family to endure the agony a second time. Martin was a prosecutor and a district court judge before moving to Superior Court. Long ago in Madison District Court, I watched one of his first days on the bench. All the lawyers with cases scheduled for that day nervously watched the first case. Would the new judge be lenient? That first defendant got jail time. Many of the lawyers scrambled to ask for their cases to be delayed. He was a tough, no-nonsense judge 20 years ago. He was still that way last week. One of the state's best.

Coolleemee Needs More Police Protection

To the editor: What in the world is going on in Coolleemee? I just learned this week that the Coolleemee Town Board cut back the police force, again. That puts them down to only two full-time cops in the little town. Have they lost their minds? To be such a small town, Coolleemee rocks. And I don't mean musically. The other night they had a brawl in the street on Watts Street. The only on-duty town cop arrived and tried to take control of the situation. Unfortunately, the fighting participants then jumped on the lone ranger and deputies from Davie County had to be called to assist. I understand this all took place right in front of the mayor's sister's house. Bet she feels really safe when there ain't no cops on duty. Looks to me that the town folks need to take notice of what the board is doing for them. Their town board has let the police department slide back to what it used to be. Let's see what all has the

EMS Did Job Quickly, Professionally

To the editor: On behalf of the extended and loving family of Charlie Franklin Cozart, I wanted to express our sincere thanks for the outstanding and professional actions of Davie Emergency Medical Service. My father was tragically burned the night of April 30 when he accidentally spilled lighter fluid on his hand, arm, chest and abdomen as he tried to fill an old Zippo lighter. The soaked area ignited when he attempted to light his pipe. My mother awakened hearing his cry for help and was able to extinguish the fire, but my father was seriously burned. My mother called for help and my brother and sister-in-law were there in less than five minutes. My sister-in-law called 911 and provided the details of the accident. EMS personnel Terry Willard, Chad Lipscomb, Andy Lipscomb and Brandon Price were on duty that night. Once on the scene, they responded with precision and care. My 80-year-old father was stabilized and loaded aboard the EMS vehicle and prepared for transport in a scant few minutes. The team's decision to go directly to the Baptist Hospital burn unit in Winston-Salem was an excellent call. I'm told my father was sedated, given an IV and treated for pain enroute to the hospital. My sister-in-law, a registered nurse, said these were critical and correct measures that could have been omitted by lesser trained and qualified personnel, but thankfully were not. My father lived for two weeks and endured two lengthy skin graft surgeries. Unfortunately, he passed away on the 13th of May, never able to fully recover from the second surgery. My family wants to express once again our appreciation for the team of experts that responded that night. Their actions were professional and caring in every manner. It's our belief that because of their swift response we were able to spend nearly two additional weeks with our father before he died. It gave us the opportunity to say those things we'd forgotten to say recently and to express our love for him. It made a world of difference to us dealing with the tragedy.

Thanks for all you do for the residents of Davie County and my hometown of Mocksville. They're lucky to have such an outstanding emergency medical service.

Dale F. Cozart (Santee, S.C.) and the Cozart family

Center Fire Dept. Has Auxiliary

To the editor: On behalf of the Center Volunteer Fire Department Ladies Auxiliary, I would like to take this opportunity to familiarize you with our organization. The auxiliary was established this year and is devoted to promoting the interest of the Center Fire Department and Center community whenever necessary. As the auxiliary, we shall assist in emergency situations, problems, whenever needed. We shall be available to assist any branch of the fire service and their auxiliary whenever the needs arise. The auxiliary is planning several fundraisers throughout the year and this money is used in a variety of ways throughout our organization and the community. The CVFD Ladies Auxiliary has recently donated items to help with the Annual N.C. Jaycees Burn Camp, and plan to help with this organization in the future. Part of all proceeds collected with fundraisers will go toward the fire department's new building fund. We are planning our first golf tournament for September. We would appreciate any contribution that you can make to our organization. Thank you for your interest in the CVFD Ladies Auxiliary and for your support.

There Are Some Good Things In Mocksville

To the editor: We are all the time hearing about the bad stuff that goes on in Mocksville. Well, I'm here to tell you about something good going on in Mocksville. One year ago this past February my husband fell off a fire truck. A head injury causes him to have seizures. He was in and out of the hospital. He lost his job in November, and I'm on disability. We were having a hard time because our medicine costs three times more than I draw. We were told to go to the Storehouse for Jesus. This was the biggest blessing. We had been going without a lot of our medications. Now, we have them all. I want to thank all the people who donate food so we can eat. The volunteers need to be thanked for coming in and making sure our needs are met. Thank you to the pharmacists, interviewer and all others - you are a gift from God. Marie, thank you for being there. You all are in my prayers. I don't want to leave anyone out, even the people we never see. You fix up the groceries for us. So, God does some good work in Mocksville.

Court Officials 'First Class'

To the editor: Recently I tried the case of State of North Carolina versus Jathiyah A. Al-Bayyinah in Davie County. It was a hotly contested, capital case that lasted for five weeks. It was a difficult case for everyone involved, but it was conducted in the most professional manner by your local government officials. Sheriff Allen Whitaker and his officers, particularly Chief Deputy Mark Howell, Officer J.T. Thompson, Officer Larry Campbell, Officer Stuart Parker and Officer Clay Dyson were very professional and competent in carrying forth their many duties. They provided security, attended the jury (which had to be transported from Iredell County) and accommodated court personnel and spectators. They were not only skilled, but considerate and helpful to everyone. Clerk of Superior Court Ken Boger and his staff were outstanding in every respect. I worked with Cindi Michael and Sonya Spry in the courtroom. I was very pleased with their level of competence and their pleasant manner and demeanor. They do excellent work for the citizens of Davie County. Court reporter Pam Ackerly as always performed in topnotch form.

Your prosecuting attorneys (DA Gary Frank, ADA Patsy Bruce and ADA Greg Brown) worked long and hard to bring the case to a just result. You are very fortunate to have people of that caliber fighting for justice for you. The defense attorneys Dick Ramsey of Winston-Salem and Lori Hamilton-Dewitt of Mocksville battled ceaselessly for the accused. I appreciate the zeal and vigor they brought to the defense. Finally, I say to you Davie County should be proud of its court. Your court personnel are first class.

Cable TV Service Not Up To Par

To the editor: I am writing to vent my extreme frustration with the Adelphia Cable TV operation in this county. It is absurd to pay $54 per month for service as miserable as this company offers. Lose power to your house for an instant then cable is gone. Call Adelphia, get put on hold forever and when you finally do talk to someone, you're told to take your box to the cable office and get a new converter to replace the existing one. Even better is being told to give them a four hour spread on a date (several days off). Most working folks that I know don't have four hours to sit at home and wait for someone to show up "sometime" during that period.

I work in a service industry myself and I can assure you if we provided service like Adelphia we'd be out of business in short order. Of course, Adelphia has no competition so they can treat their customers with sorry service. I've read in the Davie County paper more than once how others are "serviced" through Adelphia, and requested this county look diligently into some alternatives to this service. I can't believe there is not a better choice of cable providers to service this county. I think Davie County residents deserve better. Listening to the radio until Monday (maybe).

Many Helped To Make Cub Day Camp A Success

To the editor: As volunteers for the Uwharrie Cub Day Camp, we would like to thank Thousand Trails for use of their quiet, safe and resourceful facilities. It was a perfect setting for round-robin adventures in nature, crafts, aquatics, rain gutter regatta boat racing, exploring sea creatures, and a visit by the North Carolina Fish and Wildlife Resource commission Mobile Aquarium which enhanced the theme "Treasures of the Sea". The cubs and staff enjoyed lunched prepared by a local restaurant. A special thanks to Bert Wagner, district executive, Rusty Strickland, camp director, and Cliff Edwards, program director.

Al-Bayyinah Sentenced To Death For Brown Murder

which was held in Statesville due to pre-trial publicity and the popularity of the victim, the trial lasted a total of five weeks.

"We could not have had better jurors," Martin said. "It was an honor, a privilege and a pleasure to serve with each of you."

Al-Bayyinah, who had his name legally changed from Terry Dennis Moore after becoming a Muslim, showed little emotion as the verdict was read. Though he took his glasses off as the judge polled the jurors, all 12 of them Caucasians, he made no eye contact with any of them.

Before being handcuffed and escorted from the courtroom, the defendant shook hands with Richard Ramsey of Winston-Salem, one of two attorneys appointed by the courts to defend him. He then turned and hugged Lori Hamilton DeWitt of Mocksville, the other defense attorney in the case, and told her he loved her.

"Take care, Mr. Bob," Al-Bayyinah said to DeWitt's husband, who was sitting behind her during the sentencing.

Ramsey, who was not involved in Al-Bayyinah's first trial, had no comment on the sentencing. Neither did DeWitt, who was defending him for the second time, though she did say she was pleased to have had the opportunity to work with Ramsey because of his experience and expertise.

"I just think he's a fine trial lawyer," she said.

Assistant district attorney Gregory Brown, who prosecuted the case with Patricia Bruce, said in a written statement: "No good man can properly shirk death, and no criminal who has earned death should be allowed to shirk it."

Al-Bayyinah's criminal life led him to the first-degree murder conviction and recommendation of the death penalty, according to Brown.

"The defendant is a cold-blooded and heartless killer," he said. "The jury's verdict is just and appropriate. The evidence collected and developed by the Mocksville Police Department and Davie County Sheriff's Department was overwhelming and true."

"Justice was absolute in this case. The defendant earned the death penalty."

Bruce, also an assistant district attorney, said she believes justice was served and that a dangerous man had been removed from the streets. "Jurors had what they needed to work with," she said, "and I believe they did the right thing."

Al-Bayyinah was earlier convicted of first-degree murder and given the death penalty in December 1999, but a new trial was ordered after the N.C. Supreme Court overturned the verdict and sentence.

After reviewing transcripts of the first trial, the court ruled that one of the detectives in the case had led the victim to the defendant and that the judge's decision to allow testimony to that effect was improper.

Testimony on Wednesday, the first day of the sentencing phase of the trial, was delayed after Al-Bayyinah objected to his attorneys offering mitigating evidence to argue for a sentence of life in prison without the possibility of parole and said he didn't even want to go through the process.

"This is your day in court," the judge told the defendant while considering the defense attorneys' motion to continue the sentencing. This was done out of the presence of the jurors.

In making the motion, Ramsey compared not fighting for the defendant's life to an "assisted suicide."

"I can't care what you do," Al-Bayyinah said when the judge questioned him on the matter. "No matter what you do, I am not going to give my attorneys consent to put on mitigating evidence."

In deciding whether to impose the death penalty or life in prison without parole in a first-degree murder case, jurors weigh aggravating factors, circumstances which tend to make the crime worse, against mitigating factors, evidence in the client's favor.

Upon further questioning by the judge, the defendant said he didn't see any point in presenting mitigating evidence because "everybody knows that the jury is going to give me a death sentence."

"My family won't even come down here because they know what's put down,"

And as a Muslim, Al-Bayyinah said he does not fear death. "I embrace death," he said. "My case is this. I'm not begging these disbelievers for my life. They're the ones wanting to beg for my life, not me."

Though he told Martin he was one of the fairest judges he had stood in front of in a long time, the defendant said he would not say that about others involved in the trial.

When the judge asked him questions to determine his competency, Al-Bayyinah responded, "I am an imam, a leader of Muslims," he said. "There is no way that I can get into that position without being competent."

Al-Bayyinah finally gave his consent for the introduction of mitigating evidence, saying it was only out of respect for his attorneys.

"They're acting on their own," he said, adding that his only concern from that point on would be what God thought of him. "What these people think means nothing," he said of the prosecutors, "and what these 12 over there think means nothing."

For the rest of the sentencing portion of the trial, Al-Bayyinah told Martin he planned to be executed, study his Koran (the holy book of the Muslims containing the message of Allah as revealed to Muhammad) and do his paperwork. "I don't care what's going on in this courtroom."

Martin, after the defendant gave his consent to the presentation of mitigating evidence, ruled against the motion for a continuance and asked the bailiff to bring the jurors back in the courtroom for opening arguments.

Prosecutors waived their right to an opening argument, while Ramsey made a brief argument for the defense.

The prosecutors plan to present four aggravating factors in the case, he told the jurors. "Quite frankly, three of those are what we call prior convictions that my client did have," he said.

Bruce objected, at which point Martin asked the bailiff to take the jurors into the jury room so he could hear her concern.

She may have heard it wrong, Bruce told him, but it sounded like Ramsey was making an admission regarding the state's evidence.

Ramsey said they were convictions taken from court records. "We have no defense to them," he added.

When Martin asked Al-Bayyinah about the matter, the defendant responded, "Nothing I can do about those charges, even though they're not true."

Al-Bayyinah said he wasn't paying attention to what was going on in the courtroom.

After Martin called the jurors back in, Ramsey continued with his opening argument, outlining the defense's plan to present mitigating factors to show that the defendant's life does, indeed, have value.

When Ramsey finished, the prosecutors began introducing evidence for four aggravating factors they contended jurors should consider and vote to give Al-Bayyinah the death penalty. The defendant chewed gum and noisily turned the pages of his Koran and another book while the prosecutors put on their evidence.

The first witness called by the state was Josie Matthews Keaton, with whom the defendant, when he was known as Terry Dennis Moore, had two daughters. According to her testimony, the defendant stopped by the Iredell County mobile home she shared with her mother on Nov. 26, 1984 and began putting his hands on her ankles and legs.

Keaton said she asked Al-Bayyinah, who was accompanied by a friend of her mother's, repeatedly to stop touching her, eventually going and getting a butcher knife and threatening to cut his fingers off if he didn't.

When she pointed the knife at the defendant, Keaton said he grabbed it by the blade, and her mother took it away. When the defendant continued to touch her, the witness testified that she hit him in the face, drawing blood. They continued to scuffle, she said, until she walked out of the mobile home.

When she was outside, Keaton said she heard gunshots and could see flashes where the bullets passed by her. "I'm assuming they were coming toward me," she said, "because I was the only person out there."

Even after the defendant got in the car with her mother's friend, Keaton said he continued to stalk at her. It wasn't until she walked back home, she said, that she realized her mother had been shot. "She was bleeding," the witness recalled.

Under cross-examination, Keaton said she continued to have contact with Al-Bayyinah after that and at one point, they had discussed getting married. He visited their two daughters, she said, and had sent her $500 or $600 he earned in a work-release program in prison to help support them.

Bruce introduced a copy of Al-Bayyinah's conviction of assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury stemming from the shooting.

The next witness called by the state was Keaton's mother, Georgia Matthews Turner, who testified that the defendant came into their home with a large can of beer and appeared to have been drinking. Turner said she observed Al-Bayyinah sliding his hand over her daughter's dress despite Keaton's objections.

After Keaton struck him in the face, Turner said the defendant straddled her on the couch and spit on her face before letting her up. Turner said she saw that he had a pistol when he took it out of his clothes and laid it on the floor.

She testified that she had called the Iredell County Sheriff's Department when Al-Bayyinah began shooting. Turner said a bullet struck her in the left breast, piercing her lungs and ricocheting, coming to rest in her back, where it still remains.

She was in the hospital for a week, she said, after which she had to go back and forth to have fluid drawn off her lungs.

Upon cross-examination by Ramsey, Keaton acknowledged that the defendant had come to see her and apologized for what had happened. "He said the bullet wasn't meant for me," she said. "It was meant for my daughter."

The third witness for the state was James McCorkle of Statesville, a 58-year-old victim of the criminal convictions outlined in the second aggravating factor, assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill inflicting serious injury and armed robbery.

According to McCorkle's testimony, Al-Bayyinah had ridden with him to take a neighbor shopping on Sept. 17, 1989. The defendant got out when the neighbor did, McCorkle said, but showed up at his house at about 11:30 or 12 that night asking him to drive him somewhere else.

The witness said he refused, saying he had been drinking and didn't want to drive, and had turned to walk away when Al-Bayyinah struck him with a hard object on the back of his head. McCorkle said he turned and saw a metal baseball bat in the defendant's hands.

Al-Bayyinah continued to beat him with the bat, McCorkle testified, all over, from his waist up. "I was bloody and bleeding from the wounds that I had," he said. When he was examined in the hospital, the witness said his skull had been cracked in four places, his left lung had collapsed and he had numerous other wounds.

McCorkle testified that he spent two to three weeks in the hospital and still can't taste or smell unless it's an extremely loud odor due to wounds received at the hands of the defendant.

His wallet, which had in excess of $500 in cash inside at the time, was stolen.

Douglas Pass of Statesville testified that Al-Bayyinah had come to his house early on the morning of Dec. 29, 1993.

When he left to take his brother to the airport, Pass said he told his uncle, Talmadge "Sunny" Pass, who had also come over that morning, to watch out for his house while he was gone because it had been broken into the night before. The witness said he told his uncle that he suspected Al-Bayyinah of being behind the break-in.

When he returned home that evening, Pass testified that he noticed his brother's 1986 Toyota Corolla was missing from the driveway. When he went inside, the witness said he saw his 52-year-old uncle slumped over on the couch.

Pass said he called out to him, at which point his uncle lifted his head, and blood began gushing out onto the ceiling and floor. That's when the witness said he spotted a bloody hammer on the floor in front of his uncle, who nodded when he asked if it was the defendant who had beaten him.

Talmadge Pass was taken to the hospital by ambulance, where he died during the early morning hours of New Year's Day, 1994. Though a vehicle, television and Pass' home were taken from Douglas Pass' home, the defendant was only convicted of voluntary manslaughter and sentenced to 10 years in prison.

Tickie Fields, a deputy for the Davie County Sheriff's Department, was the last witness to testify for the state. She was working for the Mocksville Police Department, she said, when the stolen Toyota was found abandoned a block south of S.W. Brown & Son Wholesale Grocery.

The last aggravating factor presented by the defense was that the murder of S.W. Brown Jr. occurred while Al-Bayyinah was attempting to commit robbery with a dangerous weapon.

The defense began presenting its mitigating factors at 4:20 Wednesday afternoon, calling as its first witness, prison consultant James Evans Aiken, who studies inmates' prison records and determines their future dangerousness.

While incarcerated in a minimum-security prison, Aiken testified that Al-Bayyinah did not do well.

"In his situation, he was put in community programs, and he flunked out," Aiken said. "He escaped twice."

The prison consultant continued to testify on the second day of the sentencing phase of the trial. Having read Al-Bayyinah's records, he indicated that while the defendant was in a maximum-security setting, he worked, obeyed the rules and was not disruptive.

Aiken said the violence happened when Al-Bayyinah was released in the community. According to his testimony, the defendant's records show no signs of him causing any problem with other inmates and indicate that he is an "exceptional prisoner." He had become a prayer leader for the Muslim faith, and had "fully embraced his religion."

Several items were introduced into evidence by Lori Hamilton DeWitt, including certificates of educational programs completed by Al-Bayyinah while in prison. "So many inmates never accomplish anything," Aiken pointed out during questioning about the defense.

His conclusion, based on the prison records, the witness testified, is that life in prison without parole was a better choice for Al-Bayyinah than the death penalty.

Problems with the air conditioning became apparent early Thursday, causing the attorneys and even the defendant to shed their jackets due to the heat. The air conditioning was back on by late morning when a thunderstorm began brewing outside.

Soon after the defendant's 44-year-old brother, Tony Moore, took the stand, the sound of thunder resonated through the courtroom, and he was asked to speak louder several times to offset the noise.

Moore became emotional as he spoke about his relationship with his brother and how his incarceration had affected other family members. He described the defendant as intelligent and said he was affectionate toward their mother and father.

Also testifying on Al-Bayyinah's behalf was his sister, 46-year-old Kay Alexander. She described their family as close-knit, and said the defendant liked to cook and often helped her in the kitchen during family gatherings.

He writes to everyone, she said, and can always be depended upon to send a card to anyone in the family having a birthday.

"I love him," she said. "I can't say anything bad about him."

Al-Bayyinah's 20-year-old daughter, Tenara Matthews, testified that her father always encouraged her to do positive things and set goals in life.

"I'm going to school to be a nurse," she said, "and he says that's the right thing to do. My father's life means a lot to me. We are closer than me and my mother. I don't want my father put to death. I don't like the idea of my father dying."

When asked about her father's relationship with her 5-year-old son, Jarvis, Matthews said that he knows Al-Bayyinah as his grandfather. In her father's letters, she testified, he always tells her to "give him a hug and kiss for me."

As Matthews was excused from the stand and walked by the defense table where Al-Bayyinah had been sitting quietly all morning, he turned and said something to her. She responded, "I love you, too."

Janis Matthews entered the courtroom with the defendant's 69-year-old mother, Lucy Brown Moore. The boy spoke loudly as he waved and said hello to his grandfather.

Al-Bayyinah testified and waved back.

Lucy Moore smiled that she felt responsible for what had happened to her son. "He came up in an abusive home," she said, explaining that she and her husband had fought in front of the children.

It was around the age of 16 that Moore said she noticed a change in the defendant. "When he got high on drugs was the turning point in his life," she said.

Finishing her testimony, she turned to the jurors and pleaded, "I pray that you will spare his life so that he can help somebody else. I love him more than life itself."

Beginning to cry, she added, "If I could take the blame myself, I would."

At the completion of their testimony, the family members were all preparing to leave the courtroom when Al-Bayyinah's grandson said loudly, "Hey Grandpa." The defendant smiled.

After the family had left and the jurors were out of the courtroom, Brown asked the judge for some control if the grandson was allowed back into the courtroom, calling the boy's appearance and comments "prejudicial" and "a stage prop."

On Thursday afternoon, as the judge reviewed his instructions for jurors with the prosecutors and defense attorneys, Al-Bayyinah objected to Bruce's statement, in response to one of the proposed mitigating factors, that no evidence had been presented to show that he was a "good employee" while participating in prison work programs.

"Nobody said I was bad either," he said out of the presence of the jurors.

When the judge admonished him for disrupting proceedings, the defendant responded that he didn't have to be quiet. "The worst you can do is kill me," he said.

Martin told Al-Bayyinah he had almost made it through the trial and encouraged him to follow the rules.

"There are rules of conduct, too," the defendant responded, "respectable conduct."

Closing arguments were heard Friday morning. Bruce closed for the state, describing Al-Bayyinah as a "proven violent, habitual offender who does not value human life."

This is a case where Bruce said the death penalty is appropriate. "He must believe in the defendant," because he has endeavored it with his own hand.

Bruce reviewed the testimony provided by earlier victims of Al-Bayyinah's violence. As for his family members, she asked jurors to consider if they weren't also his victims.

In this case, Bruce said the aggravating factors fit the scales of justice like a cement block, while the mitigating evidence is as light as a feather. "Consider the carnage he has left in his wake," she said of Al-Bayyinah, and the ripping effect that his violence has had on others.

The defendant, Bruce contended, is as dangerous as an 18-wheeler barreling down Interstate 40 at a high rate of speed with no one behind the wheel. "The lights are on," she said, "but nobody is home."

In closing, the assistant district attorney asked jurors if they had ever read about criminal acts and wondered, "Why don't they do something?"

"You have become 'they,'" Bruce said. "You let your joined voices ring from the rafters of this courtroom and say, 'No more. No more. The reign of terror stops here.'"

In her closing argument, DeWitt contended that life in prison without parole was an appropriate punishment for Al-Bayyinah. "He will leave Central Prison dead on a stretcher," she said. "The only question is when."

DeWitt encouraged the jurors not to waste a lot of time considering the aggravating factors in the case. "They were terrible, terrible acts that he committed," she said.

It is important, however, she told jurors that they keep an open mind in weighing the aggravating factors presented by the defense. "I hope you understand our law is not 'an eye for an eye,'" she said.

Ramsey, in presenting the final closing argument for the defense, said the S.W. Brown Jr. murder was a horrible tragedy. "But the reality is we can't ever go back," he said.

Identifying himself as "the last voice to try to save my client's life," Ramsey pleaded for the jurors to show the kind of compassion and mercy for Al-Bayyinah and the family members who love him that the defendant failed to show for Brown and his family.

"He is a human being," he said. "His family will be better off with him. Society will not be harmed because he will be in prison for the rest of his days ... I beg each of you, I beg you," Ramsey pleaded, "please don't put my client to death."

"I've got nothing to say," he Elizabeth said she and her older sister, Debbie Brown, and her younger brother, Charlie Brown, had relived the death of their beloved father throughout the two trials.

"It's like Daddy has died again and again in this courtroom," she said.

It was a nightmare that began more than five years ago when Al-Bayyinah, who had his name legally changed from Terry Dennis Moore after becoming a Muslim, entered S.W. Brown & Son Wholesale Grocery on Depot Street and stabbed 71-year-old S.W. Jr. during an attempted robbery.

The popular grocer lost consciousness shortly afterward and died nine days later at N.C. Baptist Hospitals in Winston-Salem.

"He stabbed our father in the lung," Elizabeth said, "but he stabbed my family in the heart. We're hoping that this will bring some healing to us."

Though she didn't get to talk with her father before he died, Elizabeth said it comforted her to know that Charlie had held him during his last moments of consciousness.

Al-Bayyinah killed more than S.W. Brown Jr. on that fateful day in March 1998, according to his daughters. His 97-year-old mother, Roxie Brown, died less than two months later of a broken heart, Elizabeth said.

Before her son's murder, Mrs. Brown's health was such that she was able to live alone at her home on Yadinville Road. S.W. Jr., Charlie and Elizabeth took her breakfast and lunch almost every day.

On the evening before he was stabbed, S.W. Jr. went to work on his mother's television set so she could watch her favorite team — the Atlanta Braves — in a preseason game.

Telling their grandmother what had happened was the hardest thing Debbie said she has ever had to do. As for Elizabeth, she said she will never be able to erase the memory of her grandmother's reaction to what had happened.

"Daddy was her only child," she said. "It killed her. She died of a broken heart."

On May 13, 1998, exactly five years before the day Al-Bayyinah would be sentenced to death for the second time, Roxie Brown died. She was buried beside her husband, S.W. Brown Sr., the original S.W. Brown in S.W. Brown and Son, and their son in a cemetery in rural Yadkin County.

The Browns moved to Davie County after S.W. Jr. returned from serving in the Army during the last 18 months of World War II.

It was after he came back that the father and son started the family wholesale business and adopted Mocksville as their new home.

Here, S.W. Brown Jr. and his first wife raised three children, later divorcing. S.W. Jr. remarried several years later, and as two of his children married and began to have children of their own, embraced his role as grandfather to Elizabeth's daughter, Dana, and son, Andy, and Charlie's two sons, Craig and Austin.

"Daddy was like a father to them," Elizabeth said, even making sure that he attended all of their ballgames.

"He loved them dearly," said Debbie, who remained close to her father even after moving to Atlanta 26 years ago. He wrote all about the activities of her niece and nephews in his regular letters to her.

Through the years, S.W. Jr. became a fixture around town. He was well-liked in the community and was such a regular customer at Miller's Diner that a framed tribute to him still hangs in the dining room.

Debbie said her father never met a stranger. The family was in Montreal for the World Expo in 1967, she said, when S.W. Jr. started talking to some people while waiting in line for one of the exhibits.

"It turned out that they were from Communist China," she said. "That was my Dad. He could talk to anybody, and did."

S.W. Jr., though a lifelong Republican, met and talked with Bill Clinton, the then-governor of Arkansas, at a convention in Little Rock.

"And when Wal-Mart opened up here," Debbie said, "he got himself up there when Sam Walton was visiting and talked to him. That was what Daddy did."

S.W. Jr. attended college for only one year, Debbie said, he turned down a partial football scholarship to Wake Forest University and a full football scholarship to Catawba College to go into business with his father.

For S.W. Jr.'s family members, the jury recommendation of the death penalty for the man who killed him gives them the assurance that Al-Bayyinah won't be able to do to another family what he did to them.

Debbie said she feels no joy in a man being sentenced to death, "but I don't want the guy out on the street."

"He should never have a sliver of opportunity to repeat this heinous act," she said. "As long as I draw breath, I will do anything in my power to rob him of any chance to repeat what he did to my family."

"He picked the wrong person in the wrong town. Everything about it was wrong."

Elizabeth said the same community that loved her father has embraced his family and supported them through the tragedy and both trials.

"They've been so kind," she said. "You cannot imagine all the love that we have had in this town."

Though Debbie said losing her father was the closest thing to hell that she will ever know, the love and support from the community has given her strength and confidence.

Becky Brown, who was S.W. Jr.'s wife for 23 years, said she was pleased with the sentence.

"We're just glad it's over with," she said. "We hope nobody else has to go through something like this. Once was bad enough, but twice was tough."

The second trial was difficult for Becky not only emotionally, but physically as well. She is undergoing chemotherapy for breast cancer and had to miss a couple of days of testimony to go for doctors' appointments and treatment.

Becky's 80-year-old mother, Reba Shauf, drove over from Spencer every day of the first trial and for every day of the second trial except for the times when she went with her daughter to doctors' appointments.

"People don't realize that your family and your friends mean a lot to you in times like these," she said.

Other friends attended the trial as a show of support for the family.

Though Charlie was keeping the family business going and did not attend the trial on a daily basis, he was in the courtroom to hear the jury recommendation on sentencing.

He expressed his appreciation to the assistant district attorneys who prosecuted the case, law enforcement officers who investigated it, the jurors, Judge Jerry Cash Martin and everyone else who worked on the case.

Elizabeth said the family is also grateful to the law enforcement officers who recovered Al-Bayyinah in the woods after the stabbing and kept him from causing harm to anyone else. They're also appreciative of the role Roscoe, Dean Myers' tracking dog, played in apprehending the suspect.

"We all have shirts with Roscoe on them," she said. Debbie said the whole family has a tremendous amount of respect for assistant district attorneys Patricia Bruce and Gregory Brown. "I couldn't have imagined better prosecutors for us," Debbie said.

Once Al-Bayyinah was sentenced, the defendant was removed from the courtroom while the judge talked privately with the jury. After they were released to take their last bus trip back to Statesville, jurors spent an emotional half hour hugging and talking with the Brown family.

"It was cathartic," Debbie said. "The foreman of the sentencing portion told me that we gave them strength by being there. That meant the whole world to me."

Becky said the jurors' comments were very comforting to her.

"They gave up five weeks of their lives," she said. "They had to be a very dedicated group."

After talking with the jurors, Debbie and Elizabeth hugged and thanked defense attorneys Lori Hamilton DeWitt of Mocksville and Richard Ramsey of Winston-Salem, both appointed by the courts, for a job well done.

"That's their role," Debbie said, "to do the absolute best that they can. There was such overwhelming evidence, and I know it probably wasn't easy for them."

"I admired the way they really tried to hammer the points that they could. That's a necessary part of our system."

DeWitt, who was defending Al-Bayyinah for the second time, said Debbie Brown also thanked her when the first trial was over.

"I will never forget that," she said. "She was so very kind and said that she was very happy that

I represented him well because she could feel confident that

Man Faces Assault Charge After Punishing Daughter

By Jackie Seabolt
Davie County Enterprise Record

leges Grubb held his daughter while he sent her brother to retrieve a belt. Grubb is accused of hitting his daughter on the legs with the belt.

The report stated the girl received minor injuries.

She alleges the beatings have been going on since she was 12, according to the report.

In the report she said her father had her arrested in 2001 for running away from home.

The incident was originally investigated as child abuse, but because of the victim's age it is considered assault on a female according to the law.

Grubb has never been investigated on charges of abuse before and turned himself in after learning about the warrant.

He was released on a written promise to appear in Davie District Court on his trial date, July 17.

County Approves Mocksville Naming Resident To Board

County commissioners voted unanimously to authorize the Mocksville Town Board to appoint ETJ members to its Planning Board and Board of Adjustment. ETJ members live in the extraterritorial zoning jurisdiction area of the town.

At present, Brulley said the members have to be recommended by the town board and appointed by the commissioners. Eliminating the last step would expedite the appointment process.

- Commissioners also voted unanimously to reappoint Jim Wilson to another two-year term on the Jury Commission. Larry Groce and Larry Stanley are the other two members of the commission, which oversees the selection of the jury pool from which jurors are selected for Davie County court cases.

New Medical Policies OK

County commissioners voted unanimously June 2 to adopt privacy policies for residents who receive medical treatment or services from Davie County agencies.

Barry Bass, director of the Davie County Health Department, and County Attorney Bob Price worked with other county officials on developing the policies to comply with a federal mandate protecting patients' medical records.

Bass said the mandate, which applies to all health care providers in the country, states that medical information on patients can only be shared with written authorization from the patients.

Exceptions include infectious diseases which come under the jurisdiction of the Center for Disease Control; cases of abuse, neglect or domestic violence, which are required by law to be reported to the Department of Social Services; and threats to the public health such as would be the case with chemical or biological terrorism.

Bass said after the meeting that the new policies have not affected the health department's services.

"It's business as usual," he said. "We always have required releases... We've been protecting patients' confidentiality all the way along."

RiverPark Funding Hot Topic In Cooleemee

By Kim Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - The town board worked for four hours on Thursday night in a budget workshop, trying to meet the needs of the town without raising the 38-cent tax rate.

Total anticipated revenues for the upcoming fiscal year are $450,783.

"Basically, we were conservative last year and I think we're being conservative this year," said board member Fran Parker.

"I think we have to be. Given the state budget concerns, the board agreed not to budget for the utility franchise tax. They excluded the tax from the budget last year as well. I'm scared to [include it] because you just don't know."

If the budget is approved, the town clerk will see a 6.15 percent salary increase.

Last year, the police department, which makes up the town's other full-time employees, received salary adjustments. In addition, retirement funding was increased. There is a possibility the police officers could receive a bonus at the end of the calendar year, depending on where the town stands financially, Parker said.

Although not a full-time employee, the budget was increased for the work John Ganus does for the town in ordinance enforcement, up to $5,000.

The hot topic of the evening was whether or not the town board had ever voted to give $25,000 over several years to RiverPark.

After reviewing the minutes from June 20, 2000, when Jane Simpson made a presentation to the board, it was decided that while a request for the funding was made, the board did not discuss it following the presentation, which makes up the town's other full-time employees, received salary adjustments. In addition, retirement funding was increased. There is a possibility the police officers could receive a bonus at the end of the calendar year, depending on where the town stands financially, Parker said.

"We've not given a dime to it," said commissioner Michael Barron. "This is the first money the town has given RiverPark." He referred to $5,000 the board has in the proposed budget.

Last year, with the state cuts, the board was not in a position to make a donation.

Jean Cornatzer was concerned about giving funding in the future. "I'm not against this $5,000," she said. She agreed that if a previous board had voted to give $25,000 over several years, then she would support the decision.

"But if there's $25,000, then we could use it for the town. If there was a vote on it, then I have no choice. If there wasn't a vote, then I do [have a choice]."

The total law enforcement budget is $155,858, roughly 35 percent of the total projected revenues for the year. Included in level will take place in the near future, Potts said.

Carol Cozart, assistant principal at William R. Davie Elementary, has moved to Cooleemee Elementary. The school system hopes to fill her part-time vacancy with an intern from UNC-Greensboro, Potts said.

With the high school principal position open, it is possible that a reshuffle at the principal level will take place in the near future, Potts said.

Davie's Economic Strategy To Be Unveiled On Monday

AngelouEconomics, the Texas economic consulting firm hired to conduct a comprehensive economic development strategy (CEDS) for eight local counties and the region, will return to Davie County Monday, June 23 to present a report highlighting the county's strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats (SWOT).

The meeting will be held at the Davie County Commission Chambers and is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. The public is encouraged to attend, offer input and find out the one issue that will influence Davie County's future economic development activities.

"We're reaching an exciting point in the CEDS project," said Amy Holloway, vice president, AngelouEconomics. "The SWOT reports will describe the strengths and weaknesses of Davie County as a business location."

"The reports reflect all of the great feedback we have received from the surveys, focus groups, and our own economic analyses completed last month. Final recommendations are already starting to emerge."

AngelouEconomics is in the process of completing a strategy for Ashe, Alleghany, Davie, Forsyth, Rockingham, Stokes, Surry and Yadkin counties.

"Some really good opportunities are uncovered in this report, opportunities that will be the basis of our recommendations for the final strategy," said Holloway. "We need participation from Davie County more than ever."

The study is being funded by the Economic Development Administration (EDA) office of the U.S. Department of Commerce. The CEDS planning process is a required step for any community seeking federal dollars for infrastructure or other activities that spark job creation.

When complete, the strategy will not only identify those big needs in the counties that will require federal funding, but also provide recommendations for how the counties can improve overall business conditions, regain lost jobs and better market themselves.

For more information about the project you can log onto www.NorthwestNC.com.

AngelouEconomics' next trip to northwest North Carolina will be in August to present each county a list of target industries for future economic development efforts, as well as information showing how well each county competes against other regions. The final recommendations will be scheduled for early November.

Holy Mackerel! Reserve Infante Seals 14-13 Win In 11th

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Not many people Sunday night at Rich Park remembered that Willie Infante still wore a Mocksville Legion baseball uniform, but no one will forget his theatrical 11th-inning hit that gave Mocksville a memorable 14-13 South-Central Division win over Mooresville.

In a wild slugfest that included 34 hits, seven home runs, 18 walks and nine errors, Infante came off the bench in the ninth and provided some of the most remarkable moments of a remarkable five-game winning streak. After sitting out four games, he made two stellar plays at third base and hammered a single to knock in the game-winning run at 11:51 p.m.

"We found a way and tonight it was another player that had sat over there for the past week and a half," Coach Mike Lovelace said. "We used 14 of 16 guys and they all contributed in some way."

Fans on both sides kept saying they'd never seen anything like it, and that was before it got really crazy in the ninth. With questionable calls popping up every other pitch in a four-and-a-half-hour marathon that forced the home-plate ump to strain for deaf ears, it had more dramatic twists than a bag of pretzels.

There were six homers in the first six innings. Mocksville starter Cody Crofts, who had allowed 12 hits in 20 2/3 innings, surrendered four long balls and

Jingles The Giant Ijames' Breathtaking Talents Transformed Athletic Teams

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Second in a five-part series on Davie High Hall of Famers.

James "Jingles" Ijames was like nothing fans had seen in Davie High's 11 years of existence in 1967. He transferred from Central Davie during integration days when racist taunts were routinely hurled at blacks and when the basketball team was largely populated by whites.

Although the big fella from Cooleemee constituted a ripped T-shirt in a suit-and-tie world, he waltzed through the Davie door wearing a 150-watt smile and rolled with the social changes. He elevated the track and basketball teams to unseen levels, but most importantly, he lit the torch and passed it on to the next generation of black athletes. While Ijames hardly made the county color blind, he at least made it more color friendly, accomplishing that feat by going against a black kid's natural instincts.

"He was the exception," said Larry Bell of Roanoke, Va., who became the late Ijames' best friend in second grade, graduated with him in 1970 and roomed with him at Winston-Salem State University. "He was the first black person really truly accepted in every arena in the area. He was the exception. Everybody would take him in. His parents were very poor, but he did well because he lit the torch and passed it on to the next generation of black athletes. ## Long Time Coming Perkins Powers Mocksville To Rare Win Over Rowan

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

After looking up at Southern Division rivals for years and years, Mocksville's Legion baseball team is finally enjoying a different view.

When Mocksville beat Rowan County, 9-4, for the first time in seven games Friday at Rich Park, Coach Mike Lovelace and his troops moved a half-game out of first place and wore smiles that lighted their faces. For when it comes to reputation and tradition over the last decade, there is defending state champion Rowan (7-6, 5-5 SD) and then there is everyone else. The moment was extra special because streaking Mocksville (7-4, 6-3) had lost 31 of the previous 34 in the series, including a 12-2 debacle on June 4, and has been ousted from the playoffs by Rowan six of the past 12 years.

"After the game they said, 'Coach, it's been a long time since we beat them,'" Lovelace said after celebrating a fourth straight win. "Rowan has great tradition and it says a lot for us to knock them off. And we're starting to have a lot of fun together."

Lexington held first in the 10-team league at 6-2, with Mocksville at 6-3 and South Rowan at 5-3. Mocksville hasn't won the SD title since 1993.

Mocksville's hopes looked bleak when Rowan bolted to a 4-0 lead in the third, but Lovelace watched in disbelief as Mocksville scored nine unanswered runs and shut Rowan down the rest of the way. Davie High boys basketball coach Mike Absher has two more summer camps - the parent/child camp and the shooting and player development camp.

The parent/child camp is June 13-14 from 6-9 p.m. on June 13 and 9 a.m.-12 p.m. on June 14. The cost is $40 for both father and son and $15 for each additional child. This is open to rising first graders through rising seniors.

And the shooting and player development camp is June 16-18 from 6-8 p.m. with a cost of $40. This is open to rising sixth graders through rising seniors. Absher will do this camp in conjunction with John Lentz, head men's basketball coach at Lenior-Rhyne College.

Absher will take walk-ups, who need to show up at least 30 minutes prior to the start of camp. For questions, contact Absher at 751-5905.

Rec Plans Summer Sports Camps

The Mocksville-Davie Recreation Department has three more camps scheduled for this summer, including soccer, basketball and wrestling.

Soccer: Boys and girls, rising kindergarten through sixth graders. June 23-26. Register by June 17. Time 5:30-6:30 p.m. at Pinebrook Elementary. Cost $35 includes a T-shirt. Instructor: Randy McDaniel.

Basketball: Boys and girls, rising third through sixth graders. June 23-26. Register by June 16. Boys 10 a.m.-12 p.m.; girls 12:30-2:30 p.m. Cost $35 includes a T-shirt. Instructors: South Davie coach Brent Wall and Davie High coach Mike Absher.

Wrestling: Ages rising second through eighth graders. July 7-10. Register by June 30. Time 3-5 p.m. Location: TBA. Cost $35 includes a T-shirt. Instructors: Adam Barber and South Davie coach Howard Radtke.

Summer Slam June 23-26

The Summer Slam Basketball Camp, given by Eric Alspaugh, will be June 23-26 from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. and June 27 from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. at the Greater Cleveland Avenue Christian Church (call for directions).

The cost is $125 per child, and the ages are rising third graders through rising eighth graders. Children can be dropped off at 8 a.m. and must be picked up by 5:30 p.m. On June 27, children must be picked up by 2 p.m.

The camp will concentrate on teaching fundamentals of team basketball and sportsmanship. A coaching staff includes: Alspaugh, the fifth- and sixth-grade Panthers AAU coach; Mike Absher, the head boys coach at Davie High; Jim Young, the head girls coach at East Rowan High; Derek Kurmisky, the head boys coach at East Rowan; John Allen, coach of the 15-under Kappa Magic AAU; Xavia McCarter, director of athletics at Greater Cleveland Church; as well as others.

Contact Alspaugh at 828-773-5087.

Girls Basketball Coach To Hold Two Summer Camps

Coach Karen Stephens will have the Davie girls basketball camp on June 16-20 and the Davie volleyball camp on July 21-25 at the high school. The cost is $50 for each camp.

At the basketball camp, grades 8-8 will be 8:30 a.m.-noon and grades 9-12 from 1-5 p.m. All grades, k-12, will be 8 a.m.-noon on Friday, June 20.

The volleyball camp times will be 8:30-noon for grades 5-8 and 1-5 p.m. for grades 9-12. All grades, 5-12, will be 8 a.m.-noon on Friday, July 25.

Stephens will take walk-ups, who need to show up at least 30 minutes prior to the start of camp.

Forms are available at each middle school and the high school. These need to be returned to Stephens at Davie High. The address is 1200 Salisbury Road, Mocksville, N.C., 27028. If you do not preregister, it will be necessary to do so on Monday of each camp from 8:30 a.m. Checks should be written to Davie High Basketball Camp or Davie High Volleyball Camp.

Perkins, Mocksville End Frustrations Vs. Rowan

"He's changed his mechanics and he's our No. 1 guy in the bullpen," Lovelace said. "Perkins is not only doing it on the mound, he's also doing it on the plate."

While Mocksville was pounding away with one run in the fifth, one in the sixth and three backbreakers in the eighth, Perkins retired seven in a row and gave up his only hit on a routine ninth-inning grounder to second. It went down as a hit because the first baseman broke for the ball and Perkins couldn't get to first in time to make up for his teammate's mental mistake.

"This year at (Charleston Southern University) my coach saw (the new delivery) and really liked it and wanted a side-arm pitcher," Perkins said. "It gets movement and I use the top to throw it by people because they're sitting on the slower fast-ball."

Mocksville jumped on Rowan starter Bobby Parnell in the third for four game-tying runs. It started with a Josh Burgess infield single and a bloop single by Atwood.

Then came the beginning of the end for Rowan. Brad Bullard laid down a bunt, the pitcher fielded and threw wide of third, scoring a run and setting up a two-run Perkins single and doubles by Dan Poindexter and Cody Crotts.

Poindexter had two doubles, two RBIs and reached four times. Atwood, Evan Beam and Burgess also had two hits.

"I understand we haven't done this in a long time, beat Rowan like this," said Poindexter, who leads the way with 13 runs. "I thought for a second it might turn out similar to that (12-2 loss on June 4). But we really

Notes & Quotes

Mocksville Overcomes Loss Of Hot-Hitting Maloney

Mocksville's five-game winning streak, after a shaky 3-4 start, has vaulted the local Legion baseball team into a three-way tie for first place in the amazingly entertaining Southern Division and in position for its first regular-season title since 1993.

It's even more surprising considering the run picked up steam when behemoth Jess Maloney left for Spain on a mission trip with Calvary. He's scheduled to miss nine games, returning June 21. The 6-5 first baseman and Pfeiffer signed was hitting .370 in 27 at-bats in the No. 3 spot.

"He was in a rhythm and he's one of the best first basemen I've seen," Coach Mike Lovelace said. "But it's something he planned a long time ago and it cost a lot of money. It's something that comes around once."

"Evan Beam has been awfully productive for a .184 hitter. He hit a three-run, go-ahead homer in an eventual 14-13, 11-inning win over Mooreville on Sunday. Earlier in the week in an 8-6 win over then-first place Kannapolis, he made two huge catches.

5th Straight Win Features 34 Hits, 7 Homers

"If it hasn't been him on the mound, it's been him with the bat," Lovelace said of the .414 hitter.

Ryan Atwood is 7-for-14 over three games after getting three hits. Dan Poindexter, Lonnie Barnes, Chad Boone and Josh Burgess all had two hits. And Brad Bullard singled, laid down two sacrifice bunts, walked and was hit by a pitch.

The crazy circus kept building. Mooreville's fourth homer cut Mocksville's lead to 12-11, but Poindexter's towering stomp to left made it 13-11 in the eighth. Andrew McClannan did a fine job in relief of Crotts, striking out two with two on to preserve Mocksville's lead in the eighth.

With one out and the bases loaded in the ninth, Mooreville hit a home-hopper to third that appeared to be a potential game-ending double play. The ball went through the fielder to the game. Mooreville nearly added insult to injury, but Atwood made a diving catch -- an instant before he suffered a cramp -- in the hole at short and end the ninth.

"Two runs were going to score, and somehow he had the ball in his glove," Lovelace said. It looked like Bullard would be the star in the bottom of the would have gone up 4-3." A minor injury prevented Boone, a natural righty who began switch-hitting several years ago, from batting left for several games. He went on a tear. Before Sunday's game, he asked Lovelace if he could swing from the left side against Mooreville's right-hander. The result was a triple and single in his first two at-bats.

"At first I was kind of hesitant because he's been hit right-handed," Lovelace said. "Then he hits one in the gap for a triple. You don't see (switch-hitters) much."

Boone is hitting .354 and he's been money at second base, triggering a crucial double play when it was tied in a 9-4 win over Rowan County. He's obviously glad he decided to play Legion for the first time.

"If I want to try to go to (Guilford) and play, I knew I needed to play," he said.

While Infante's performance off the bench in Sunday's 14-13 thriller over Mooreville won't soon be forgotten. He entered third base in the top of the ninth, made two huge plays and then came up with the winning hit.

Not bad for a guy who was 1-for-12 and had rode the bench for four games. That's a never-give-up lesson for players who might be frustrated with their role.

"He hadn't, even seen the field," Lovelace said. "But he comes out early and says, 'Coach, can I take extra groundballs or take extra swings?' You haven't heard anything negative out of him."

The umpire saw that. THE INVISIBLE INFANTE had not made an appearance since a 17-3 non-league loss to Kernersville, sitting out four games and most of a fifth. He was hungry as a shark, nipping a runner at home in the ninth and recording the final out in the top of the 11th when Barnes scooped it off the grass.

In the climatic bottom of the 11th, Atwood singled and moved up on a Bullard bunt. Four pitches later, Infante smashed one up the middle - just like in the movies. The crazy circus was over. Infante was the man of the hour. "I sat in the dugout for nine innings or so, and I told Lovelace, 'I'm there if you need me.'"

Infante, a Mocksville member since 2000, said, "That's always been my job. I was in a slump and I'm glad I put me in there. I felt it as soon as I stepped to the plate. I was like: 'This is it, I need to break out.'"

"I've faced that guy before. I know what he's got. I've been here for what, seven or eight years? When I was in the field, I was wanting the ball every time." Nates Poindexter flourished again on the hill, getting the win with 2 2/3 of scoreless pitching.

Legion Roundup

June 9-Kern'ville 17, Mock 3
Mike Lovelace emptied the bench and tried five pitchers in the non-league game. Eleven of Kernersville's runs were unearned. Jess Maloney extending his hitting streak to six games was Mocksville's lone bright spot.

June 10 - Mock 3, Stanly Co. 2
Cody Crotts pitches eight innings for a 4-0 record, and Dan Poindexter gets the save. The duo's ERAs are 0.87 and 0.54, respectively, McKenzie Willoughby lasted 6 1/3 in win over K-Town.

Brad Bullard scrambles to the bag in 8-6 win over then-first place Kannapolis.

Mocksville Knocks Off First-Place Kannapolis

Mocksville Legion baseball coach Mike Lovelace knows winning on nights rosters Cody Crofts and Dan Poindexter start on the mound doesn't mean much unless the rest of the rotation holds up its end of the bargain.

Andrew McClannan gave Mocksville five effective innings in a 14-9 win over Wilkes County on June 11, and McKenzie Willoughby added more fire to the rotation on the next night at Rich Park, helping Mocksville (6-1, 5-3 SD) upend Kannapolis 8-6, knock the visitors (9-3, 6-3) out of first place in the Southern Division and avenge a 4-3 loss on June 2.

Willoughby failed to produce in his first start, a three-inning disappointment in a 10-5 loss to Wilkes. He carried a 6.75 ERA in 5 1/3 innings into his next start, but what he did to Kannapolis bodes well for Mocksville's hopes. He worked into the seventh and left with a 3-2 lead.

"He was back to where we thought he would be coming into the season, as far as being one of our starters," Lovelace said. "He was very impressive."

Although he wound up with a no-decision when Kannapolis tied it on a dying quail, it was clearly a triumphant moment for Willoughby, who held Kannapolis to five hits in 6 1/3. He went two balls on 14 of 29 batters, and three balls on six batters, but Willoughby showed some grit and didn't make many mistakes against the same team that led Mocksville 9-5 before a top-of-the-fifth downpour forced the teams to start from scratch a week later.

"It was time for somebody else to step up because we've been (riding) Cody and Dan the whole time," Lovelace said. "Everybody has picked Kannapolis to be the favorite of this division. They rattled the ace for Rowan County, they rattled the star for Mooresville and they rattled us last time (before the game was wiped out). But when he had to have a pitch, he put the ball where he needed to put it. Yeah, he got behind a lot of hits. But he had great command at key times and found a way to battle back."

Mother Nature handed Mocksville a mulligan, and it was happy to reap the benefits. After going seven games without a double-figure hit and sinking to .248, it exploded for 17 hits against Wilkes and broke the game open with five eighth-inning runs.

The offensive star? Take your pick. Lendoff Ryan, Atwood came alive with two hits. Smoking David Perkins had two hits and lifted his average to .375. Willoughby had two hits, two RBIs and pushed his mark to .406. Poindexter knocked in two, and Chad Boone had two hits, three RBIs and reached .400 for the season as Mocksville won its third in a row.

"The guys are really gaining confidence," Lovelace said. "We didn't get to play together last year," Willoughby said. "We've been playing together all year and I think we're finally starting to get close. And I finally felt like myself again."

Mocksville immediately seized a 2-0 lead when Brad Bullard bunted over Atwood and Perkins and Willoughby responded with RBI hits. Boone's two-out single broke a 2-2 tie in the fourth, and singles by Atwood and Perkins triggered the five-run eighth for an 8-3 lead.

The big blow came from Willoughby, who smashed a single off the left-field wall with bases loaded; Poindexter, who sliced a two-run single in the right-field corner; and Boone, who drove a two-run single between short and third.

"If those two don't come in (on Boone's hit), it's a 6-6 game after what happened in the ninth," Lovelace said.

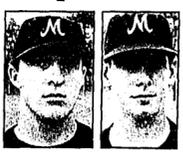

Mocksville would rather forget that ninth. Two ugly errors with two outs allowed Kannapolis to pull within two with the tying run at first.

Kannapolis needed all the help it could get to frustrate Poindexter, who was barely challenged in four previous appearances but survived the stumbling finish for the win.

In 19 1/3 innings, he has 16 strikeouts on three walks and a 0.93 ERA. "We gave it to a guy that can slam the door," Lovelace said. "He sucked it up and was just Dan again."

"Dan is a great closer," Willoughby said. "I love seeing him come in."

Trio Teams For 10 Hits As Mocksville Outslugs Wilkes

Mocksville's Legion baseball team was due for an offensive outburst. Even Coach Mike Lovelace couldn't have thought it would be this big.

After averaging 3.4 runs over seven games and failing to put up more than five during that dreadful stretch, Mocksville broke loose with 17 hits, including five doubles and two home runs, to beat host Wilkes County 14-9 on June 11 and avenge a 10-5 loss on May 30.

Mocksville (5-4, 4-3 Southern Division) was coming off a 3-2 win over Stanly County, but Lovelace knew to contend for the division title it had to find a way to score runs. David Perkins, McKenzie Willoughby, Dan Poindexter, Lonnie Barnes and Chad Boone craved Lovelace's worries by helping Mocksville make noise in six of nine innings.

"We got 17 hits and our best hitter (Jess Maloney, who left that day on a trip to Spain) wasn't here," Lovelace said. "But other guys stepped up."

Perkins went 4-for-5 with a double and homer. Willoughby went 3-for-4 with two doubles and three RBIs. Poindexter went 2-for-3 with a homer, three RBIs and three walks. Barnes went 3-for-6 and Boone went 2-for-6 with three RBIs.

While Mocksville got strong performances all around, Perkins overshadowed everyone. He boosted his average from .260 to .357, as well as relieving in the sixth and pitching three scoreless innings to earn a save for winner Andrew McClannan.

"It was the David Perkins show," Lovelace said. "He was that good. He did it at the plate, accounting for five runs, and he struck out the one and two hitters in the seventh."

Mocksville seemed to be in complete control with a 10-3 lead through five and a half innings. But Wilkes wouldn't let go easily, countering with six runs of its own in the last of the sixth.

Lovelace pulled Dusty Snow and summoned a kid who had pitched two innings. After quickly yielding a run-scoring

Crofts Does It Again In 3-2 Win

Cody Crofts is getting the hang of being a hero. For the fourth time in eight games (two starts, two reliefs), Crofts took the mound for the Mocksville Legion baseball team. For the fourth time, he walked off with a win.

Crofts, who pitched 5-0 in his previous outing on May 31, pitched spectacularly for eight innings, and Dan Poindexter worked a perfect ninth as Mocksville halted a three-game losing streak with a 3-2 Southern Division victory at Stanly County on June 10.

"This one stopped the bleeding," Coach Mike Lovelace said after Mocksville outslugged 4-4 and 3-3 in the 10-team SD. "(The 17-3 non-league loss to Kernersville the night before) wasn't a big deal, but this gets us back to 3-3 in the league and puts us in fourth or fifth place."

"We played error-free ball again. All three games that we've played error-free we've won."

Crofts accumulated a dazzling 18-4 record in his sophomore and junior years at West Forsyth High, but he did a 3-4 nosedive as a senior. As if he flipped a switch, Crofts has been nothing short of masterful for Mocksville, which lost the previous two games by a combined 29-5. He scattered eight hits and walked one. Overall, he has an 0.87 ERA in 20 2/3 innings.

While Crofts regrouped in time for Legion, fellow West Forsyth product Poindexter has dominated all spring. He picked up the save to lower his ERA to 0.54 in 16 2/3.

"The ERA for the rest of the staff is 10.16."

"Crofts and Poindexter have been our steady guys," Lovelace said. "We're 4-4 and Crofts is 4-0. He's become a different pitcher than what he was in high school, but we're going to have to have more than two arms to get where we need to be."

Mocksville, which got out of 8-6, was held between four and nine hits for the seventh straight game. But it didn't need a lot of hits with Crofts limiting Stanly to eight baserunners. He benefited from a Ryan Atwood

Nothing Goes Right In Non-League Game

The Mocksville Legion baseball team got off on the wrong foot, learning that its June 9 game was changed from home to Kernersville four hours before the first pitch, and nothing changed as Kernersville scored 16 runs in a span of four innings on the way to a 17-3 beating.

A bizarre start to Mocksville's pregame preparation threw it out of sync. "We were supposed to have a game at home and we drove our own cars to the game," Coach Mike Lovelace said. "The guys didn't find out until 3 o'clock we were going, we met in Clemmons, and they knew it was an exhibition."

It was actually 3-3 going into the bottom of the third, but Mocksville never had a chance from there, allowing between two and eight runs in the next four innings.

Fortunately for Mocksville, the outcome meant nothing in the big picture. It was the second of three exhibition games for Post 174 (3-4 overall, 2-3 Southern Division).

"It was just one of those nights, and I tried to play everybody," he said.

Kernersville, which doubled Mocksville in hits (12-6), got to start Dusty Snow immediately before roughing up four relievers. Lonnie Barnes was tagged for seven runs in 2/3, but all seven were unearned.

All told, 11 of Kernersville's runs were unearned, and Mocksville couldn't clear out of the dugout and look toward the next night fast enough.

"Kernersville got us down and pretty much laid it on us," he said. "I took Snow out because I wanted to look at some other arms. I brought Timmy Erb up from the Junior Legion team, and we threw everybody but the kitchen sink at them. The next guy in line was Jess Maloney, and he's never pitched (in Legion)."

The lone positives were Maloney, who extended his hitting streak to seven games with a double, and Wesley Douglas, who came off the bench to start at catcher. Douglas went 1-for-1 with a walk in a mercy-rule game that ended after six and a half innings.

"Douglas was impressive again," Lovelace said. "He hasn't gotten many opportuni-

Ijames' Booming Smile Defied Racial Barriers

Ijames' magnetic personality created incredible chemistry with white teammates and fellow black star Hubert West, who could dunk at 5-foot-8. If you didn't like Jingles, you didn't like ice cream.

"Every Friday night we'd get together and eat dinner at the nickname 'Jingles'?" Bell said. "He was always jingling his money in his pocket. He shined shoes forever. I picked cotton and cut grass and he shined shoes. What little money he had, he jingled it. That meant something to him."

"He's got two sisters and a brother, and they're all in a house with one bedroom. He came from a house that wasn't even 300 square feet and he becomes a track and basketball player at Winston-Salem State University, a university that had just won a national championship in 1967 with Earl Monroe. He was able to pull himself out of that and go to a very prestigious basketball school on the East Coast (because) his pride was so strong. Highhouse Gaines was like a Dean Smith kind of coach and could get any player in the world, and by Ijames' junior year he would get eight to 10 minutes a game. Charlie Davis and Gil McGregor were coming through Wake Forest at the same time, and all these guys came from New York, New Jersey and (Washington), D.C., and they were the best of the best at that time. Black kids didn't go to Duke, North Carolina, N.C. State or Maryland. They went to Winston-Salem State. They went to black schools. They were better players, but they chose these smaller schools because they wanted playing time and you could get in with a 650 SAT enormous odds. Bell marveled at how Ijames went from an economically-deprived Cooleemee childhood to a track-and-basketball scholarship at Winston-Salem State, how he parlayed nothing into a dance on the big stage, how he turned Bighouse Gaines' head.

score. "Everybody has crutches, but look what he accomplished with where he came from. He came from a shack. But he had that smile that you wouldn't have cared. His athletic ability meant a lot. But at the same time, with his smile and the way he carried himself, it wouldn't have mattered. You wouldn't have cared what color he was."

Ijames grew up on Junction Road, but he found his home on the basketball playground behind the Cooleemee school. One day, when Ijames was a seventh grader, Shoaf did not believe his eyes.

"We would play basketball behind the school, and he would come down there after he got off at the barber shop on Saturday afternoon," Shoaf said. "I never didn't forget it: He had on leather, pointed-toe street shoes and in the seventh grade he could jump up flatfooted and dunk a basketball, which was kind of neat back in those days. I can see him now coming down behind the school in pointed street shoes, a mouth full of hard candy and taking that basketball straight up and dunking it. You didn't see people who could jump like that back in those days. He was something else."

Ijames' emergence at Davie transformed the Rebels' basketball and track programs overnight. In basketball, he made the Journal & Sentinel All-Northwest team twice. In track, he was named to the East-West All-Star Game after his senior season and is one of only five males to surpass 1,000 career points.

While he led the basketball team to back-to-back North Piedmont Conference titles, his abilities in track were breathtaking. What he could do in the high and low hurdles and the 100- and 220-yard dashes had to be seen to be believed. His times were 15.0 seconds in the 120 high hurdles, 19.45 in the 180 high hurdles, 22.4 in the 220 and 9.85 in the 100.

"He was a beauty to watch run, I'll tell you," said Jim Everidge, the superintendent from 1965-72. "Watching him run the high hurdles was something you wouldn't believe unless you saw it. And that's not an easy event."

"He was something to watch," West said. "Here you've got a guy 6-6 getting down in the blocks and coming down the track and moving at the rate of speed that he could move. And that was before a lot of rubberized surfaces brought about faster times."

"He'd win the hurdles and didn't really have the technique," Shoaf said. "He just ran and jumped 'em."

"The first time I saw him I was at North Rowan at a track meet," said Allan Berger of Clifton Park, N.Y., whose father Burt Berger coached Davie track from 1968-82. "He won the low hurdles the first year he ran track, and he had no technique at all. It was just blinding speed that enabled him to win. He just really jumped 'em. He was just that kind of guy. By the time he was a senior, he had the form, too."

Ijames, West, Doug Chuppell, Allan Berger and Bobby Hill laid the foundation for Burt Berger's track juggernaut by carrying Davie to a clean sweep in 1969. The Rebels won the 10-team

NPC, the 16-team BI-Conference and the 28-team Western North Carolina High School Activities Association. That year, Ijames set new NPC records in both hurdles and shattered the BI-Conference record in the low hurdles.

In 1970, Ijames eclipsed four NPC records and was the BI-Conference meet's top scorer before a back injury stopped him in the WNCCHSAA.

"At Kannapolis Jingles ran a 13.9 in the high hurdles and the Kannapolis coach didn't believe it," Burt Berger said. "I said: 'Here's the watch, look at it.' And ol' Jingles was standing there laughing. Around here that was unheard of. Then we went to Shelby when we had five and won the whole thing. Somebody knocked Jingles down around the curve in the 220, and he got up and won the race. So he was some kind of athlete."

"Another race down at North Rowan in the conference or bi-conference, Jingles was hurting so bad when it came time to run the 220 and I said: 'Jingles, you want to scratch in this?' He said: 'Oh no, I don't want to scratch.' I said: 'Well, I'm going to leave it up to you.' He couldn't hardly walk, but he ran and he smoked 'em all. I never heard Jingles complain. You know a lot of athletes these days, they've got a hangnail and they can't play. But not Jingles. Never heard Jingles groan about nothing. He was just one of a kind. He was 6-6 and

Please See Ijames - Page B7

He makes our team, and he hasn't come close to his full potential yet," Henry, who died a few years ago, said then.

"I never saw him lose a race, and he was always behind half-way through every race," said track teammate Russ Spry of Cooleemee. "He was so tall and lanky, it took him half the race to get going. But when he got going, it was over. There wasn't anybody who was going to catch him. He was going to be in four events and he was going to win four events. He was an incredible athlete."

Ijames continued his track exploits at WSSU. Information is hard to come by, but in a four-team meet in April 1972, the sophomore broke the school's 100-yard record with a 9.6, won the 220 in 22.3, ran the anchor leg on the first-place 440 relay and the third leg on the first-place mile relay. At Duke's Wallace-Wade Stadium later that season, Ijames was the outstanding performer in the WTVJ Relays, tying the meet record in the 100. In two days, he competed in six individual races and won all six.

"I haven't run into anyone as tall as I am in the sprint," Ijames said then. "Most of them are average-size guys, like 6-2."

"He was a world-class hurdler if he'd pursued it. He was that good," Berger said. "It's too bad Winston-Salem State didn't push track. I remember Alias Gilbert from Winston when the Olympics in Italy in the 1940s or early 1950s, and Alias said Jingles is a world-class prospect. But he didn't pursue that. When he went to Winston-Salem State, he (concentrated more on) basketball."

Basketball, too, always came so simple for Ijames, who drew every eye in a delirious Davie gym. Each home game in the 1968-69 and 1969-70 seasons became an event. Davie went 37-10, a two-year record that still stands, and it hasn't won a conference title since.

"You can't imagine what it was like to walk in that gym," Spry said. "If you wanted to see the boys play, if they started at 8 you better be there at 6:30. I mean the place was full."

"It was full like that all three years that I played," Zimmerman said. "You couldn't get in the lobby. Thank God I was on the team. Every Tuesday and Friday night, every home game was packed. It was really special."

"Back then you could dunk in warmups, but you could not dunk during the game," West said. "And when we got good and loose, we would sky a little bit. And there were a couple of schools that complained and tried to stop us from doing that. When Jingles reached his arms up, it was like he was 10- or 11-foot tall. That intimidated quite a few people."

With a 1968-69 starting lineup of Shoaf and Ward at guards, West and Zimmerman at forwards and the 6-5, 155-pound Ijames at center, Coach Bob Henry's Rebels won the NPC regular season at 17-1 and finished 20-3, a victory total that stood for 31 years. After averaging 10.8 points as a sophomore, Ijames put up 15.2 as a junior and made All-NPC.

Ijames played one year of football, as a senior, and won most-improved award.

He set NPC records in the high and low hurdles.

Jingles always had that smile.

He scored 1,058 points in three years.

At 6-6, he also had range.

In fall 2002 ceremony, Jingles' widow Odessa and their children - Stephanie Ijames, Cassandra Ijames, Paul Ijames, Jonathan Ijames - accept his hall-of-fame plaque.

Ijames, center, shattered NPC records in the 100 and 220.

Ijames soared to averages of 19.5 points and 16 rebounds as a senior.

In one game, Ijames had 36 points and 18 rebounds.

Bob Henry's 1969-70 co-captains were Steve Zimmerman and Ijames.

Davie's back-to-back NPC champions attracted standing-room-only crowds every home game.

Civilian Classic and the East-West All-Star Game, the first player ever selected from Davie.

His vertical leap was 34 inches.

"When you went inside to him, it was an automatic two," Ward said. "Not many people had a 6-6 guy, and the good thing about it was he could go outside and shoot it. He had a nice outside shot."

"He had a God-given talent for athleticism and he's probably the greatest basketball player that ever lived in Davie County," said Everett Ecker, a retired dentist who was instrumental in Ijames signing a grant-in-aid with WSSU. "He would have to be classified as the best. I don't know anybody else I would put in a class with him."

Gaines, who retired in the early 1990s with 700-plus wins, said then: "He has more promise than anyone we have picked up from this area in a long time. He is outstanding in two sports. He is an exceptional leaper and as soon as he picks up some weight, he will be a good rebounder. He is an excellent shooter and handles the ball well for a big man."

In the fall of his senior year, Ijames stepped on a football helmet for the first time, giving quarterback Ward a deep threat at receiver. They hooked on completions of 40, 53, 60 and 70 yards. Ijames won the team's most-improved award.

"Jingles was an average football player - except nobody could catch him," Spry said.

"We talked him into going out," Ward said. "If you got in trouble, all you had to do was throw it 20 yards high and 20 yards down the field, and he'd go up and get it."

"I remember when we went to East Rowan and they had (wide receiver Johnny) Yarbrough, who went to Tennessee," Burt Berger said. "We put Jingles on Yarbrough and he stopped him pretty good."

Another electrifying memory is Ijames' rivalry with N.C. Central University's Larry Black, who owned the 220 in the whole NATA.

"For four years, everybody came from everywhere to see this," Bell said. "I mean it was unbelievable. Black schools didn't have the fancy tracks. You had tracks where you could actually hear them running. When they came around, you could see the dust flying. James may have beat him once, and no one came close to Larry. He came consistently second to Larry Black."

"James was so talented players couldn't even compete with the things he could do. His talent was so raw it was unbelievable. You just couldn't even believe the things he could do. He could dunk it righthanded, lefthanded, backhanded. And he was always so happy."

Fifteen years after graduating from WSSU, and four days before his 15th wedding anniversary, came a mysterious and tragic death. Ijames, who couldn't swim, drowned at the Cooleemee Ball Hole on July 15, 1989. Witnesses said they tried to save him but he panicked. The Rowan County Sheriff's Department surmised that he stepped in a hole. His body was found in seven-foot water.

"We did everything together," Bell said. "I was so devastated. I began to investigate his death. Now, how the hell did that happen? After a while, I got frustrated and just stopped. I was devastated by the whole thing because we spent every bit of our life together from second grade until we were both 24 years of age. That was real tough. He could leap over three cars but he couldn't swim."

"I've never met anybody before in my life with his athletic ability, and he meant everything to me."

Oak Valley Swamps OT For 2nd Win

Just like that, they have a winning record. Oak Valley logged its most impressive win ever last week over Old Town, 527-366, to go up 2-1 for the young season.

The two wins equals last year's total. Oak Valley had only won three meets before this season.

Thursday they face one of the league's top teams, Clemmons West, in a measure of Oak Valley's progress.

"We're very excited because we're 2-1," said coach Emma Jakob.

Oak Valley turned out a hundred swimmers for the Old Town meet and dominated every phase of the match.

Oak Valley has never beaten Clemmons West.

"It will be a tough meet," Jakob predicted. "If we have a good turnout and keep our strokes legal, we should have a chance."

Jakob, 19, a UNC-Chapel Hill student majoring in political science, joined the three-coach Oak Valley staff this year, solidifying the club's commitment to building its swim team into a power.

Here are Oak Valley's first place swimmers against Old Town:

7-8 girls medley relay - Gabby Macaione, Kristina Parrish, Grace Bartlett, and Kelsey Orr

9-10 girls medley relay - Hannah Keeney, Alex Smithdean, Laura Shelton and Katie Davis

Madison Junker, Summer Holland and Erika Coffey take a rest during the swim meet against Willow Run.

6 and under, Nick Sinopoli, gets ready to start his race.

Call, Gaither Coaching The Hurricanes

The Hickory Hill Hurricanes started their 2003 season under the strong leadership of Coach Becky Call and assistant coach Brent Gaither. Call is back for her second season, while Gaither is a first-year coach. Gaither volunteered with the team last year and both worked as swim instructors with the Davie YMCA.

Although the team is slightly smaller than last year, numbering 75, new members have been added as well as a great deal of enthusiasm. With three meets under their belt, the Hurricanes have yet to see a win, but this has not dampened their spirits.

"Being the smallest team in the Greater Forsyth Swim League, we notice when members are on vacation," Call said. "The Hurricanes are also the team located the farthest from Winston-Salem. Members of the team find it difficult to participate in WSY, a year-round program offered by the Winston YMCA."

Rachel Mackintosh is proud of first place ribbons.

"Other teams have several swimmers participating in this program and we have none, so they have a definite edge," Call said.

However, improvement has already been seen in the Hurricanes, and they have never been known to give up. Many swimmers have seen their times drop during the first three meets. They have four meets left, two of which will be hosted at Hickory Hill, including cross-county rival Oak Valley on July 8.

Hickory Hill swimmers age 11 and up show off their ribbons.

Hickory Hill swimmers age 10 and under are proud owners of ribbons.

Swimmers of the week for June 14 are Corey Randall, Collin Eichhorn (Can-Do Swimmer), Rebbecca Hendrix, Summer Holland and Ryan Davis.

Davie People

Yes, that's an octopus that Stuart Leonard, Clifton Bodenhamer and Dillon Keener are holding at the Cub Scout Day Camp held last week at Thousand Trails.

A Treasure Full Of Fun Annual Cub Scout Day Camp Held

They handled an octopus. They swam and fished. They looked at fish in an aquarium and played ball. They shot BB guns and bows and arrows. They built handmade sailboats down a gutter filled with water. But mostly, the 135 boys from Davie and Davidson counties who attended the annual Cub Scout Day Camp last week at Thousand Trails had fun.

And lots of it. "I'd have to say that swimming is the most fun," said Will Whitehurst, 9, of Lexington. "We've swam for three days in a row."

When leaders asked for volunteers to handle a smelly, slimy octopus, just about every boy's hand went into the air.

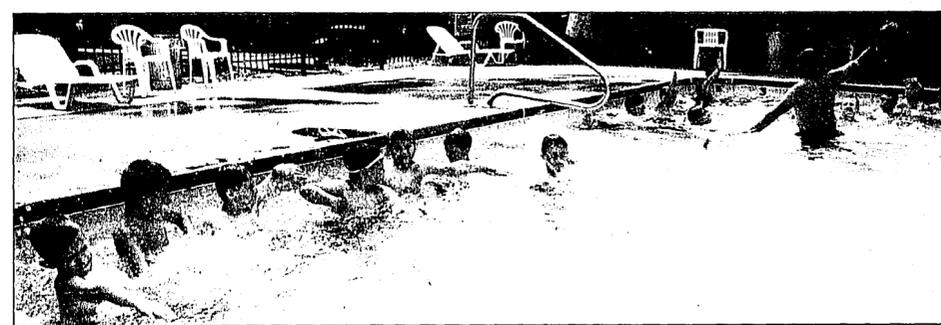

With the theme "Treasures of the Sea," the Cubs rotated each day through stations offering things such as archery, BB guns, field sports, miniature golf, nature (with the octopus), a mobile aquarium, crafts and fishing.

It took a lot of work from a lot of people to make the camp a success, said Camp Director Rusty Strickland, who was serving his last year at the helm. "I've taken my vacation from work every year for 11 years for this," Strickland said. "It's time for some new people to take over."

Cliff Edwards, activity director, will be camp director next year.

Donnie Wilson and Nathan Owens prepare to start a sailboat race while other Scouts wait their turn.

These boys are all smiles as they get ready to make a seashell "creature."

Field sports is one of the many activities. Here, the Cubs practice soccer skills.

Harris-Garwood Couple Married

Stephanie Leah Harris of Pfafftown and Kenneth "Clipper" Garwood of Advance were married Saturday, June 14 at Victory Baptist Church in Cooleemee. The Rev. Shelby Harbour officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Shirley Harris of Pfafftown and Mr. and Mrs. Grayson Harris of Lewisville. She graduated from Forsyth Country Day School and earned her bachelor's degree in business management and fashion merchandising from Meredith College in Raleigh. She is employed by Hitech Technology and Toys in Winston-Salem.

The groom is the son of Rene Garwood of Mocksville and Mr. and Mrs. Frankie Garwood of Yadkinville. He graduated from Davie High School and is employed by Deere-Hitachi Construction Machinery in Kernersville.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Melissa and Amanda Harris, the bride's sisters, were the maids of honor. Bridesmaids were Bahnie DesNoyers and Laura Strand of Advance. Heather Moser of New York, N.Y., Kelly Penn of Charlotte, Kristi Hunsinger and Meredith Swindell of Raleigh, Laura Harbin of Atlanta, Ga. and Stephanie Bancroft of Orlando, Fla.

Boyer Hartsell of Cooleemee and Josh Nail of Naples, Fla., served as best men. Groomsmen were Jason Garwood of Advance and Timmy Garwood of Mocksville, the groom's brothers; David Nail of Mooresville, Jason Harbour of Cullowhee, Jason Winters and Ryan DesNoyers of Advance, John Godbey of Cool Springs and Mike Ferree of Raleigh.

Abby Garwood, the groom's niece, and Kaitlyn and Meredith Walk, the bride's cousins, were the flower girls.

Amalie Harris, the bride's cousin, was the program attendant.

The wedding was directed by Peggy Foster.

A reception at the church followed the ceremony. After a wedding trip to the Mayan Riviera in Mexico, the couple will live in Advance.

Lyerly-Earnhardt Couple United In Marriage

Summer Lynn Lyerly of Cleveland, N.C. and James Paul Earnhardt of Beaufort, S.C. were united in marriage at noon May 31 at the Salisbury Bell Tower, Salisbury. Pastor Tom Thomas officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Roger M. and Myra S. Ireland of Cleveland. She is a graduate of West Rowan High School and earned a North Carolina Certified Professional Florists degree. She is a North Carolina medical responder.

The groom is the son of Bill and Jill Earnhardt of Rockwell and Patricia Julian of Salisbury. He is a graduate of West Rowan High School and earned a degree in science and EMT degree from Goodfellow Air Force Base Fire Academy in San Angelo, Texas. He is a firefighter for the Parris Island Fire Department and the 14th Air National Guard in Charlotte.

Given in marriage by her father and her grandfather, Gaylord Lee Swazy, the bride chose her best friend, Regina D. Hodges as maid of honor, and her sister, Bracken L. Steele as her matron of honor. Bridesmaid was Brooke Rainey of Salisbury, friend of the bride and groom.

The groom's father was best man. Ushers were Matthew R. Earnhardt, brother of the groom, and Jason M. Ireland of Charlotte, step-brother of the bride.

Flower girl was Lily White of Cooleemee.

After a reception at First Baptist Church of Salisbury, the couple went on a wedding cruise to the Bahamas. They are at home in Beaufort.

The Fun Day at Wesley Chapel on Saturday to benefit the Relay For Life was a success and a lot of fun. Around $500 was raised for the Relay. Thanks to everyone who came to enjoy the fun and who helped make it fun.

Last Sunday the whole Miller family celebrated together by going out to dinner. They were celebrating Father's Day with Gene Miller and Marie Miller's birthday.

The family of Roland West honored him on Father's Day with a get-together at Frostlands in Cana.

Harmon Latham was honored on Father's Day with a dinner at his home. Those attending were Jim and Chimeria Latham, Dale Latham and Nora Latham.

Neil and Brenda Essie entertained the family fathers at their home on Rock House Road Sunday evening. Fathers present were Paul Forrest, Norman Forrest, James Essie, Chip Essie, Neil Essie and David Essie, who became a father for the first time this year at the birth of his daughter, Sadie Anne, on April 18. Also present were Ruth Essie, Carol Forrest, Lelia Essie, Tammy Essie, Brenda Essie, Sadie Anne Essie, Forrest Essie and wife, Heather.

Bob and Kathy Ellis spent Father's Day in Jacksonville, Fla. with his daughter, Amy, and her family, husband, Danny, and sons, Daniel and Dalton.

Oak Grove Patriotism

There's a new American flag flying in Mocksville. Several members of Oak Grove United Methodist Church were on hand June 10 when the Disabled American Veterans and Auxiliary 75 of Davie County presented the flag - to be flown atop a newly erected pole beside the church's fellowship hall. It was donated in memory of William F. and Laura Kay Nail, members of the church and charter members of the local DAV chapter.

Crop Disaster Program Approved

The Crop Disaster Program, as provided for by the Agricultural Assistance Act of 2003, reimburses producers for qualifying losses to agricultural commodities due to damaging weather related conditions in 2001 or 2002.

The damages must be in excess of 35 percent of the farm's expected production and covers all crops (except tobacco) that were insured through federal crop insurance, all non-insurable crops for which crop insurance was not available and all uninsured crops for which crop insurance was available but was not purchased.

Producers must choose either 2001 or 2002 as the crop year that all losses will be filed in. As a condition of receiving disaster benefits on an insurable crop that was not insured, federal crop insurance providing a level of coverage greater than the level available under catastrophic coverage is required for the next two crop years. For non-insurable crops, producers must purchase coverage under the non-insured crop disaster assistance program for the next two crop years.

Producers must provide acceptable production evidence to substantiate losses on uninsured, non-insurable, and insured crops not meeting the RMA loss threshold. A final sign-up date will be announced.

Livestock owners who did not apply for benefits under the Livestock Compensation Program last fall have until July 3 to apply for benefits under the Livestock Compensation Program II, which pays a direct payment to livestock owners based on the number of animals they owned on June 1, 2002.

Interested crop producers or livestock owners should contact the Davidson-Davie FSA office at 301 E. Center St. in Lexington, or call 1-800-524-3389, extension 2.

Advance News

By Edith Zimmerman

Jack and Dorothy Carter, Gray and Ruby Nell Carter, Peggy Carter Rummage and husband Felix Rummage spent last weekend in the NC mountains at Linville.

Congratulations to Janie Z. Hendrix on the birth of a granddaughter, Isabel Julia Barnum, on Saturday, June 14 at Concord Hospital. She weighed 7 lbs., 3 ozs. and was 21 inches long. Isabel's parents are Melissa Hendrix Barnum and Phillip Barnum.

Adrian Farley and friend Kristen Wehoff of Arlington, Va. arrived Friday to spend the weekend with Adrian's mother, Edith Zimmerman. Saturday they visited the Lucky Four Ranch on Burton Road. Saturday night they visited Bess Bennett, Cynthia Summers and Ashley Tritt in the Comatzer community.

Janie Hendrix and daughter Amanda Hendrix and friend Richard Dunn joined Adrian and Kristen for worship service at church Sunday morning and were present for the award given their mother, Edith Zimmerman, for her service in the church.

Sunday afternoon everyone went to Mocksville to attend the retirement reception for Patsy Davis Crenshaw, formerly of this community. Several from our community attended the reception in the Mocksville First Methodist Church Family Life Center from 2-5 p.m. with many well wishers attending. Leaving the party they drove to Concord to see the new baby, Isabel Barnum, Edith's first grandchild and Janie Hendrix's first grandchild.

Many from our community are making preparations to attend, and participate in The Relay For Life festivities next Saturday at Davie High.

We extend sympathy to Elsie Vogler in the death of her sister Carolyn Hartman.

Being Kind To Animals

On May 23 the student council at North Davie Middle School presented this check for $5555.10 to the Humane Society of Davie County. The council collected the money in a two week fundraiser and it will go towards helping build a new adoption center for the county's homeless animals. The staff of Snyder's Cleaning Service L-R: Debbie Snyder, Julia Miller, and Mandie Player

Snyder & Co. Cleaning Service: Dependable, Experienced

Thinking about how dirty your house is and how you would love for someone else to clean it?

Well think no more... Snyder and Co. Cleaning Service is as close as a phone call away.

"We love to clean houses from top to bottom and will always go the extra mile to make our customers as happy as possible," beams Debbie Snyder, owner and operator of Snyder & Co. Cleaning Service.

"I have been very blessed with a wonderful staff of people who I couldn't be without."

The staff at Snyder and Co. Cleaning Service is made up of full-timers Julia Miller and Mandie Player. Gail Moore is part-time and Randall Mayfield is on hand to take care of any odd jobs that need done around the house.

Snyder and Co. Cleaning Service started almost seven years ago with one house and has grown into a very nice business.

"I had been a waitress for 9 1/2 years but wanted to do something I would enjoy. My goal was to have my own business and be able to work flexible hours," noted Debbie.

"It takes a while to build a clientele. Davie County has been so good to me. I have received a lot of business and also clean for the county," she adds.

Snyder and Co. Cleaning Service also works with local contractors and realtors on cleaning commercial, residential and new construction homes.

"Richie Hendrix and Gene Shuler are two wonderful contractors that we work with on newly-constructed homes. We perform such duties as scraping paint, wiping down baseboards, sweeping and mopping before the carpet is laid," notes Debbie.

Debbie and her staff have received many nice compliments on their work and their customers feel so comfortable having them in their homes.

"Someone recently told me that I had the attitude and personality to go a long way. That just meant so much to me," says Debbie.

Snyder & Co. Cleaning Service does good quality cleaning and will travel as far as Salisbury to Winston-Salem.

There is always a 10% discount for Senior Citizens. And if you say you saw this ad when you call, you can have four rooms cleaned for $40.00 through the end of July.

Debbie and her staff can be reached anytime at 998-1610 or 577-5343.

Sr. Legislature Convenes

A hundred delegates and alternates from across the state met June 10-11 to convene the North Carolina Senior Tax Relief Legislature.

Created by the General Assembly in 1993, the purpose is to: provide information to senior citizens on the legislative process and matters being considered by the General Assembly; promote citizen involvement and advocacy concerning aging issues before the General Assembly; and assess the legislative needs of older citizens by convening a forum modeled after the N.C. General Assembly.

Yarmon Dull is the delegate, and Marie Miller the alternate for Davie County.

Senior legislators continued to advocate for support of the five priorities established by the group during the full session:

- maintain home and community care block grant services for impaired older adults at the current level;
- strengthen dental care services for residents in long term care facilities;
- take steps to ensure that the Medicaid Community Alternatives Program for Disabled Adults (CAP/DA) remains a viable service for older and disabled adults;
- support the development and operation of senior centers; and
- take steps to ensure that national criminal background checks for employees of long-term care facilities are completed

"Both the state Senate and House have completed their budgets, careful attention must be given to budget items that affect programs and services for seniors," said Dull, speaker pro tem of the Senior Legislature. Both budgets call for a $1 million reduction in the home and community block grant program.

Neither budget provided for the expansion of mobile dental units, which would provide dental services to senior citizens living in long-term care facilities.

"As our state continues to struggle with budget issues, senior citizens, all citizens must continue to advocate that the vital programs and services that help senior adults in our communities are not lost because of more budget cuts."

A Smooth Transition

Kinder Camp Helps Young Students Get Ready For School

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - The first day of school can be a frightening experience. It's especially frightening for children who have never been in a day care, those who have spent their first four years of life mostly at home.

Enter Kinder Camp, Davie County's answer to those first day jitters.

This year, approximately 144 children are attending Kinder Camp, which is being held at each of Davie's elementary schools. They not only learn some of the things they'll need to know when they start school in August, they get comfortable with the school which they will attend.

"We try to transition them into the school setting," said Amy Stokes, who is in her third year teaching Kinder Camp. More can be accomplished with each child, she said, because the classes are smaller, with a teacher and an assistant for every 12 children.

"That smaller class size really helps," she said. "The kids are a lot more confident when they begin the school year."

Children attend the class from 8-11:30 a.m. every weekday for four weeks. They work on alphabet recognition, letter sounds. They practice writing their name, counting and learn calendar skills.

"I've taught kindergarten after Kinder Camp and you can tell it's really helped them," Stokes said.

Kinder Camp is the brainchild of Lynn Marrs with Davie County Schools, with funding from the Partnership for Children.

Marrs is pleased with the growth, and the success of the program. "The biggest change is that now, I have parents calling and asking for their children to come. Kinder Camp is designed to give children a sneak preview of what to expect when they enter kindergarten."

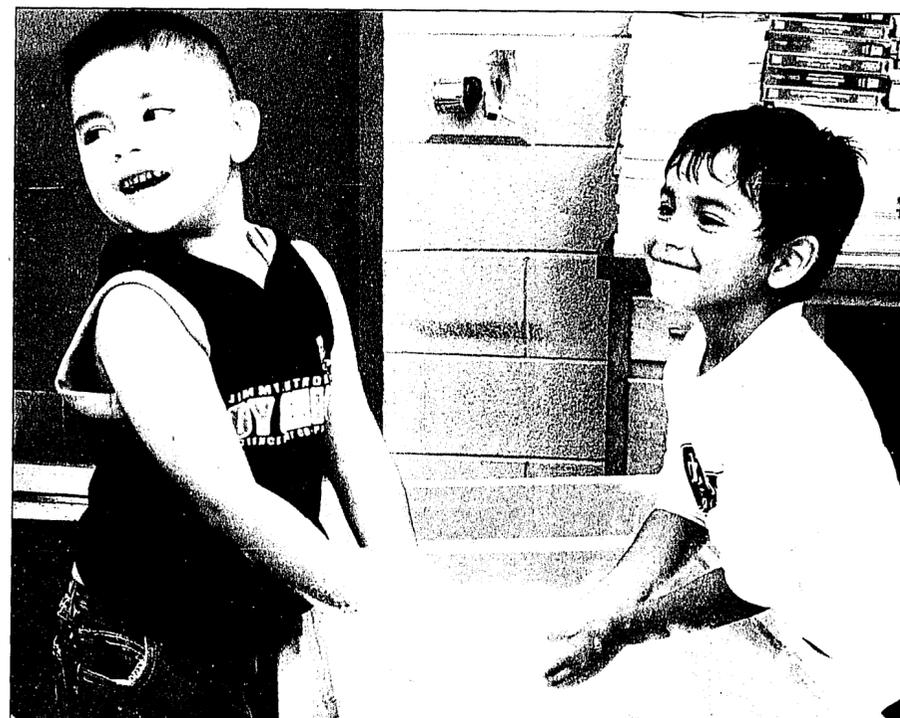

It is designed for children who have never been in a structured day care setting, or ones with special needs, who have a separation anxiety or English is their second language.

"One of the main reasons we started this is 64 percent of children in Davie County aren't in day care," said Peggy Nuckols, Partnership executive director.

More programs help to get children ready for school, as well.

Throughout the school year, a school staff member visits all participating day care centers and works with the 4-year-old classes, with the day care teachers. Materials are sent home to help parents at these meetings.

In every elementary school, there is a preschool story hour in which parents bring, and stay with their 4 year olds in the school. "It's also a time for the parents," Nuckols said.

Eat Your Vegetables

The cool, wet spring has been good to certain area vegetable growers. At left, Eunice Stroud shows a head of lettuce that measured 28 inches in circumference. It was her first try at growing lettuce for the Fred Lanier Road gardener. "I had no idea it would grow that big," she said. "I give the credit to the Lord." At right is William Broadway of Mocksville, who has been growing cauliflower for more than 10 years. Broadway planted around 50 cauliflower plants in March. The one pictured above is the biggest one so far. "You can't get that in a grocery store," said Broadway.

April Ervin Awarded Retired School Personnel Scholarship

April Ervin, a 2003 graduate of Davie High School, is the recipient of the annual scholarship awarded by the Davie County Retired School Personnel. She will attend Appalachian State University where she plans to major in elementary education. Ervin was a guest at the June 5 meeting of the Retired School Personnel at Bermuda Run Country Club. She displayed a scrapbook she had created which highlighted her work with children and spoke about her long-time desire to become a kindergarten teacher. The meeting featured a program of violin music by Frederick McIntyre, the grandson of member Ellene McIntyre and her husband, George. He is a junior at the N.C. School of the Arts and hopes to become a concert violinist. Mike Hendrix accompanied on the piano. President Lorene Markland gave a report on the highlights of the year, which included a health fair for members, the school dictionary project, and several initiatives which have provided better communication with members and potential members, the school system, and legislators in Raleigh. The group will meet again on the first Thursday of September at noon at Bermuda Run Country Club. All retired school personnel are welcome. Call Lorene Markland or Sadye Berger for information.

Davie Place Caring Assisted Living Community

Davie Place salutes David Powell, one of our newer residents.

David Powell

Born in North Carolina, David spent a number of years working as a retail store manager in New York. He finds traveling around Mocksville a breeze as his average commute to work in New York was 1-2 hours by train in the morning and 1-2 hours each evening!

David has two sons, one living in California and the other in Cooleemee. He enjoys the outdoors and can often be seen sitting on our porch, smoking his pipe. David is our only pipe smoker.

We recently celebrated several birthdays at Davie Place and served David's favorite, pineapple upside-down cake.

Apprentice Receives Award

By Jackie Staubolt
Davie County Enterprise Record

Many high school seniors leave the comforts of their home town walls and head off to college or join the working world. Few ever have the chance to know their likes or dislikes in certain careers.

Wouldn't it be nice to spend time in a hospital or doctor's office before heading into a nursing program, or experience time in a real office before declaring business as a major?

An apprentice program at Davie High School can offer high schoolers that opportunity. The N.C. Department of Labor Apprenticeship and Training Bureau program at Davie High School began 10 years ago.

They recently held their award program Celebrating Excellence in Apprenticeship on the State Fairgrounds in Raleigh. Brianna Foster of Davie High was selected as one of three outstanding high school apprentices in North Carolina.

Foster served as an office manager at Farm Bureau Insurance in Mocksville.

She says the experience of being an apprentice has really shown her what the real world is about. "I found I didn't want to do certain things," she said.

Would she recommend it to others? "Definitely. It's the best learning experience ever. It's so much better than sitting in a classroom," she said.

Joey Kennedy, who has been a high school apprentice coordinator for more than 25 years, says Brianna has been one of the best school to work students we've had, she's kind of like a teenager that behaves and works like a 35 year old adult. "She'll really go places," he said.

Research has shown in the business corporate world that it's almost becoming a necessity to have the experience of an inter-ship. "With an internship there's nothing like getting a free look at a potential employee you'd like to hire," Kennedy said. "It's just good to get a look. We have people going through school, taking classes, going to college, and getting jobs they've never tried out. As important and expensive as it is to prepare for careers it's something that should really be looked at."

Along with Brianna's award, Davie High was one of five high schools in the state to be nominated as Outstanding High School System Apprenticeship. Davie won the award in 1995 and 1999.

Nathan Reavis, a high schooler apprenticing in auto technology at All American Ford, was nominated for Outstanding High School Apprenticeship. Kennedy won the award in 1999.

And Kennedy was one of three high school Apprenticeship Coordinators in the state to be nominated for Outstanding Individual Contributing to Apprenticeship. Kennedy won the award in 1999.

Brianna Foster, Alyssa Favre (seated) and Joey Kennedy talk about Foster's award. "Davie County Farm Bureau has been very fortunate to have Brianna with us," said Favre. - Photos by Robin Fergusson

Are You Fat?

TAMPA, FL. -- According to the World Health Organization, there are 300 million people worldwide considered to be overweight. Many are also faced with health issues such as high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes and certain types of cancer.

"There are so many fad diets today that the consumer is not only risking their health but also putting a dent in their pocketbook," says Dr. Stan Headley MD, "I have found that a sensible approach to changing our eating habits is the safest and most effective way to lose weight," says Headley.

Distributors of a product called Bio-Rex 3000, also agree. This product contains the extract of a small Asian fruit that has shown promise to help cause significant weight loss along with proper dietary habits.

As reported in an American Medical Journal this formula, now called Bio-Rex 3000, caused patients to lose more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet.

Bio-Rex 3000 is an all natural dietary supplement that contains no stimulants such as ephedra or caffeine. The plan is simple and the results are remarkable.

Waiting For Harry: Book Still Hasn't Been Delivered To My House

Despite good intentions, I let him down. He had only been waiting two years for the next Harry Potter book.

Counting the days. Searching newspaper articles for the date of the book's release. Wondering about J.K. Rowling's writer's block.

Six months ago, I ordered the book on-line to make sure we would get one. That had seemed like a good idea at the time.

But come time for the book to be released and ... we were out of town.

My 12-year-old had wanted to go to the midnight Harry Potter parties at some of the bookstores.

Dad said no.

Early Saturday morning, we headed north to his brother's college graduation, thwarting any chance of getting the book when it was delivered to our door.

"Dad," he whined in at least five syllables.

I drove him and three grandparents to New York, straight into one of the world's biggest masses of humanity, steel, concrete and stone. Armed with my scribbled navigational notes, we followed the signs — crawling along like ants with the thousands of other cars at 3 mph.

It wasn't so bad. I'm a veteran of the Hillsdale early morning traffic jams at N.C. 801 and U.S. 158. New York City drivers actually seemed more relaxed than my fellow Advance motorists.

George Washington Bridge. Throgsneck Bridge. And finally, Long Island. Further and further we drove from our Harry Potter delivery.

Robert searched for bookstores along the highways — hoping to stop.

In New York, the city never stops. But the flames change with little notice. Great Neck. Middle Neck. Little Neck. We stayed somewhere around there. The traffic was a Pain in the Neck.

Robert sighed repeatedly. His behavior was excellent, hoping to receive a book by meritorious service.

On Sunday, I got directions to the nearest Barnes & Noble — planning to venture uncharted streets with the same courage as Columbus and Magellan.

"If you never see me again, ship all my belongings home," I told the hotel attendant.

Robert and I were off — wandering past bagel shops, pawn shops, flower shops, piano shops, restaurants of every nationality, everything ... until we found the book store.

We resisted the urge to race to the door.

"There it is," I gushed.

We walked in and were met by a clerk.

"You here for Harry Potter? Did you pre-order? We're out."

He chanted that to everyone who entered. Almost all of us had come for the same book only to be turned away.

The store had already sold a thousand copies. We could only glimpse at the dwindling stack of pre-ordered copies behind the register.

Imagine if Columbus had landed in America and been greeted in the surf by Marco Polo. That's how I felt. We discovered the books, but they belonged to others.

So we had to wait.

Your book will be waiting when we get home. I promised my disappointed son.

Monday night when we pulled in the driveway, all that greeted us was a monster raccoon.

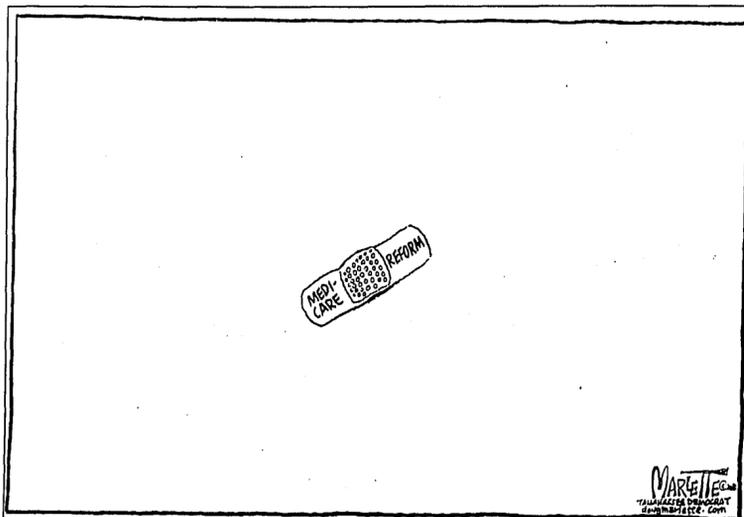

Had he taken the book?

We searched the mailbox. The front door. The back door. The garage door. The lawn.

It hadn't been delivered yet. It was still in the bowels of UPS — sitting on the dock in Winston-Salem that night.

I hope it's there when I go home this evening. I can't put him off much longer.

Pseudo-Republicans In N.C. House

To the editor:

Early in the current legislative session, Democrats in the N.C. House of Representatives, with the help of 18 Pseudo-Republicans, passed a budget that increased spending by more than twice the rate of inflation. They extended the one-half percent sales tax for two years and increased the top income tax rate to 8.25 percent on higher income people.

With their vote on the current budget, the 18 Pseudo-Republicans including Rep. Julia Howard, placed themselves in a favorable position to be compared with the Iraqi Republican Guard. The comparison is "when pressure is applied, each group of Republicans cut and run."

Save The Pool Committee Thankful

To the editor:

In mid-September, 2002, I sat forth with an idea. An idea of faith, hope, and trust, in the ability to open the Cooleemee Pool in the summer of 2003. Hope in the people I chose to help me. Trust in all the people of Cooleemee and surrounding communities to give from their hearts. And the never-ending faith most of all, that the money needed would be raised.

With all the money we raised the opening of the pool (hopefully this week) would not have been possible without the continuous hard, back breaking work of the Cooleemee Civitans. These men for the past two years have been planning to paint the pool. The weather this summer put that job and the opening of the pool on hold many times. But the Civitans held out and beat the weather. Their labors can be seen in the bright new coat of paint at the pool. Thank you so much for your hard work. I know you too want to see the pool full of happy children. I also would like to thank you for the free hot dogs you are having on opening day.

I would also like to thank the YMCA for planning to run the pool this year, and the town board for challenging us to prove there are still many generous people in our community.

We have raised just under $27,000. We still have pledges out there not yet turned in. When those pledges come in our total will be $1,200 off our original goal.

A special thank you to the anonymous donors and to everyone who helped in any way at all. We, the Committee to Save the Pool, would like to thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

Betty & Howard Edwards

Edwards Siding & Windows

Johnny Walker could not believe it. After eight years of staining, sealing, sanding and painting, his home looked new with almost no maintenance at all.

That's because he called Betty and Harold Edwards, of Edwards Siding and Windows.

"The heat, the sun, the weather continually wore down my deck and front porch," said Walker of Winston-Salem. "You could wash; you could paint; but you couldn't keep it white," he said. Walker estimated that he was staining and painting at least twice a year, until he finally contacted Edwards Siding and Windows.

The experienced professionals at Edwards Siding covered Walker's rear deck with white vinyl, and replaced all of the wooden railing with durable vinyl railings. The anti-slip vinyl flooring which covered the wooden deck floor is also treated to prevent chipping; and can be hosed off for simple cleaning.

"They are very good to work with," said Johnny Walker of Betty and Harold Edwards' company. The Edwards worked with the Walkers to design a customized fit for their existing home, with just the right style and appearance that they desired. Walker and his wife were so elated with the clean, virtually maintenance-free decking that they decided to do their front porch and walkway as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Tran of Winston-Salem also called Edwards Siding and Windows, to replace the railing around their home, and the trim for their windows.

"I was very pleased," said Tom Tran of the work which Edwards Siding did for his home. So pleased that he called his father, in order to get the same work done on his father's home.

"They are good at what they do," he said.

Betty and Harold Edwards have owned and operated Edwards Siding and Windows since 1978. They are licensed and insured, beginning their business when aluminum siding was in vogue. With the advent of vinyl siding and windows, the Edwards have seen their volume of business explode.

"We stay kind of busy," said Betty Edwards of the sunrooms, screened in porches, vinyl decking and vinyl replacement windows which their company installs. Edwards Siding does both residential and commercial work. They have done jobs for a number of construction companies, including John S. Clark and McNair Construction.

Edwards Siding has installed vinyl siding and windows for churches, restaurants, motels, apartment buildings; and has been contracted with the United States Housing and Urban Development. With both residential and commercial customers, Edwards Siding uses high grade materials, such as Norandex Reynolds, to give their customers the longest life and best look of their products. They also offer a labor warranty. Call (336) 764-0885 for more information.

Edwards Siding gives FREE ESTIMATES on customized decking, railings, sunroom or screened-in porch additions, vinyl siding, and all work to be performed. They will sit down with each client to create that beautiful new sunroom or renovate an existing deck. In all that they do, Edwards Siding strives to please their customers with personal service and the most professional job possible.

"Most of our work is done through referrals," said Betty Edwards. "We have built our reputation through others' recommendations."

Why wait to ease the burden of daily living? Call (336) 764-0885 or the Edwards' mobile number: 978-2299, for a no-obligation, free estimate on how to transform your home or business today.

Farmington Man Charged With Murdering Ex-Roommate

There were no signs of a burial in the well kept yard, Whitaker said. Officers used probes in areas throughout the yard on Wednesday evening, and a cadaver dog from Stokes County was brought to help locate the site.

"During a probe, we came across an area that was not consistent," Whitaker said. "It was obvious the ground had been disturbed."

The cadaver dog confirmed that a body was underneath the area, which was next to an outbuilding, and had been landscaped with timbers, shrubs and pine needle mulch, he said. The area was within sight of Pineville Road and neighboring residences.

"It was a well kept yard, so that was not out of place," Whitaker said.

The body was found two and a half feet deep, covered with a bedspread and bound with tape.

The inside of the house was also neat, Whitaker said. Investigators took samples of paint, carpet, a computer and other documents from the home.

Whitaker said investigators aren't sure where the murder took place, or how or when the two got together. No weapon has been recovered.

The murder came approximately a month after Hendrix had been in Davie District Court, convicted of simple assault. He had been charged with assault with a deadly weapon, accused of hitting Hawkins in the head with a cast iron frying pan in late September.

During that incident, Hawkins was attempting to leave the residence and Hendrix didn't want him to leave, Whitaker said. After a shouting match, Hendrix hit Hawkins in the head with the frying pan, causing minor injuries.

Judge Jimmy Myers subsequently issued a domestic violence protection (50B) order, banning Hendrix from having any contact whatsoever with Hawkins. That was on Oct. 7.

Civil court documents reveal that Hawkins described the attack with a frying pan and said that Hendrix had a shotgun in the house and carried a handgun in his car. In Hawkins' own words, "hit on head with frying pan, shoved and punched in head. Kept me in the house and would not let me leave. Threatened to kill me. Stalking."

Whitaker wasn't sure how long the two had been living together prior to the Sept. 27 incident.

Richard Brown, owner of Parkview Video in Winston-Salem where Hendrix once worked, was familiar with both men. He said that although they had problems, they were "kosher."

"This has just floored me," he said. "I can't believe it." He saw Hendrix about a month ago and said everything seemed fine, although he appeared to have lost some weight.

Brown saw Hawkins soon after the frying pan incident at Food Lion in Clemmons, where Hawkins worked. There were no physical signs of problems, he said.

Hendrix worked at the video store for less than a month. Brown wouldn't elaborate on his termination of employment.

A check of Hendrix' criminal record shows several traffic citations, as well as past charges of communicating threats and simple assault.

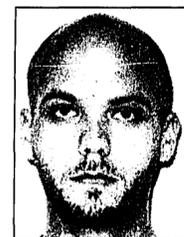

Hendrix is being held in the Davie County Detention Center without privilege of bond. At a video hearing on Monday before Judge Wayne Michaels, Hendrix was appointed Mocksville attorney Lori Hamilton-Dewitt. He is being held in isolation for his own protection, said Wendell Sain, Davie detention supervisor.

Staff writer Jackie Seabolt contributed to this story.

County Commissioners Approve Budget

By Klm Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

Bob Rose questioned county commissioners about the 2003-2004 budget at a public hearing June 16.

"This [budget] represents a one percent decrease," Rose said. "On the surface, this would appear to be good news. However, the devil is always in the details. There are 21 departments in the budget with increases exceeding four percent with a total increase of $1.1 million."

Rose was quoting figures from last year's proposed budget, not actual spending figures. The board does review the initial budget figures when they review the next year's proposed budget" they also look closely at what was actually spent.

Meeting with Finance Director Jim Stockert following the meeting, Rose received information on each item he listed in the meeting and found most of the answers acceptable, although he took issue with how the hospital maintenance issues are listed in the budget.

One of the areas Rose questioned was under the heading of commissioner/public relations, where there was a $55,000 increase over last year. The cost was the EMS settlement with Bert Bahnsen, $10,000 of which Bahnsen returned to the county for the library. Most of the settlement costs were reimbursed through insurance.

Rose pointed to the county attorney fees, which he said increased 155 percent. In previous years, attorneys fees were split between three departments, Stockert said, and with a full-time attorney on staff, those fees were all incorporated into one line item.

"It is time for the commissioners to become realistic in the budget process and management of the county ... or [there will be] a significant tax burden placed on the citizens of the county."

The budget, which was adopted, keeps the tax, sewer and water rates the same as last year. If the county receives more money from the state, Stockert and County Manager Terry Bralley agree that the money will not go into the general fund for spending on day-to-day expenses.

Mocksville OKs Budget

Mocksville adopted a budget last week with little fanfare and interest.

No one came to Monday's public hearing. Nor did any residents come by and review it.

"We've just had a few businesses call who were working on their own budgets and wanted to see about the water and sewer rates," Town Manager Christine Sanders said.

"I feel good about what the departments have tried to do to hold the line within our anticipated revenue," said Lash Sanford. "I think they deserve a lot of credit."

The board unanimously approved the budget; Buster Cleary

Don't Get Burned!
You can be fined up to $10,000 for illegal open burning in N.C.

Smokes from open burning can cause serious health problems and pollute the air. That's why the state regulates open burning. Only leaves, branches or other plant growth can be burned.

IT'S ILLEGAL TO BURN:

- Garbage, paper and cardboard
- Tires and other rubber products
- Building materials, including lumber
- Wire, plastics and synthetic materials
- Asphalt shingles and heavy oils
- Paints, household chemicals and agricultural products

Homeowners can burn yard trimmings - excluding logs and stumps - if it's allowed under local ordinances, no public pickup is available and it doesn't cause a public nuisance. Other allowable burning includes campfires, outdoor barbecues and bonfires for festive occasions. Landowners also can burn vegetation to clear land or right-of-way, provided that:

- Prevailing winds are away from built up areas and roads
- Fires are at least 1,000 feet away from occupied buildings
- Burning is done between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Remember, burn permits issued by the N.C. Division of Forest Resources, its agents or any local government do not excuse a person from following these state fire quality rules. For more information, contact:

Managers Corner

New Corner, New Manager

The Town of Mocksville will begin a new budget year on July 1, 2003. This new budget reflects no increase in taxes and no increase in water and sewer rates.

The Town of Mocksville has been most fortunate to experience the leadership of the previous manager, Terry Bralley, who is now the Davie County Manager. Although the manager may have changed, the goal continues to be providing the most cost effective and efficient services for the citizens of Mocksville. Responsible government is tradition here.

I appreciate the support, which has been expressed, and look forward to continuing working with dedicated employees, elected officials, volunteer groups and citizens.

Christine W. Sanders • Town Manager

Cody Crotts revved up his fastball and his hitting-rich teammates slammed four home runs as the Mocksville Legion baseball team routed host Troy 11-0 in seven innings Saturday after losing a suspended game 10-9 earlier in the evening.

Mocksville has become accustomed to seeing dominant pitching from 1-2 punch Crotts and Dan Poindexter, and Crotts was nearly perfect while hurling a three-hitter.

"I told him I needed a complete game out of him, and he probably got ahead of 90 percent of the hitters with any pitch he wanted to throw," Coach Mike Lovelace said after Mocksville (11-6, 10-5 Southern Division) maintained first place by a half-game over Kannapolis and South Rowan in the fiercely-competitive SD. "And he did it against a team that just beat Lexington 11-9 the night before."

Crotts got plenty of run support. No surprise there. David Perkins, Jess Maloney, Dan Poindexter and Chad Boone socked homers as Mocksville produced runs in every frame but the third.

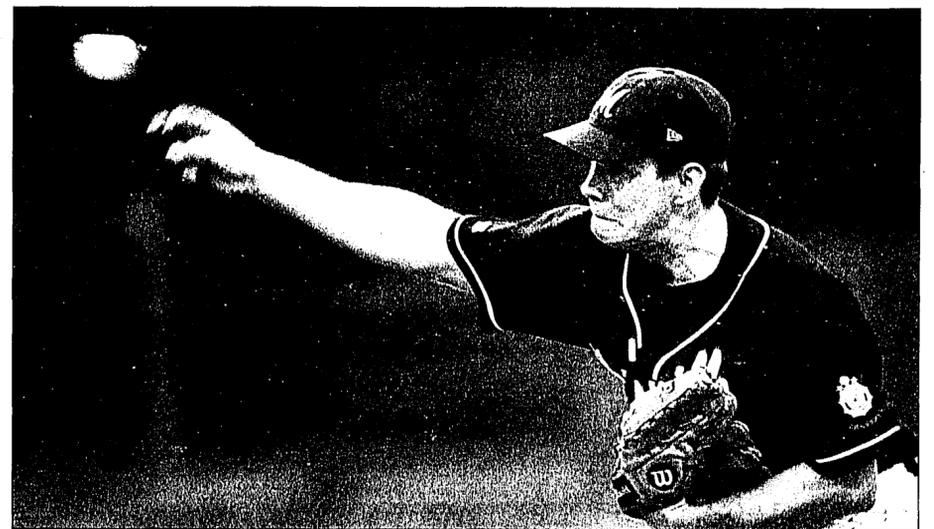

Brad Bullard had a single and double. Perkins had two hits, three RBIs and lifted his average to .393. Maloney had two hits and two RBIs. And Boone had three hits, two RBIs and boosted his average to .375.

The bottom three batters - Beam, Boone and Josh Burgess - went 5-for-11.

"One of the parents said: 'They need to call a fire engine to put Perkins' hit out,'" Lovelace said. "Boone hit right handed his first two at-bats and had a single and home run. Then he turned around lefthanded and singled. I call (the bottom three) the Killer Bs."

Mocksville extend its homer tear to 15 in five games, and all four were mammoth shots. In a rousing return to the cleanup spot, Maloney blasted one over the center-field flagpole that's still going. The big first baseman had missed seven games while in Spain.

"Maloney jumped off the plane and hit a hard single in his second at-bat," Lovelace said. "It was a great welcome back. The first BP pinch I threw him he missed by about five feet. We took a Plense See Mocksville - Page B3

Mocksville Cruises Behind Pitcher Crotts, 4 Homers

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Another late comeback. Another heart-pounding victory. Another breathless moment in an amazing surge by the Mocksville Legion baseball team.

The drama fire got higher Sunday at Rich Park with first place in the Area III Southern Division on the line. Mocksville (12-6, 11-5 SD), which seems to do something incredible in every close game, rallied in the seventh and held on by a thread to beat Lexington 8-7 and retain a slim lead on first place with two regular-season games left.

"We're giving (Coach Mike) Lovelace gray hairs," McKenzie Willoughby said.

"They may make me 40 before I'm 31, but they find a way," Lovelace said. "We've never been in this position, and the guys came up to me and said: 'Coach, can we practice (June 23)?' That tells you a little something about this group, especially with as many games as we've played in a row.

"They want to do something that hasn't been done here in a long time." One day it's Ryan Atwood, Brad Bullard, Dan Poindexter, Chad Boone or David Perkins. Another day it's McKenzie Willoughby, Evan Beam, Josh Burgess or fan-favorite Willie Infante. This time it was Cody Crotts who became the most prominent name.

Crotts was on the bench until Willoughby, who was hit by a pitch on the left elbow, exited with an injury. In his first at-bat in the bottom of the seventh, he slapped one just inside the right-field chalk for a triple that turned a one-run deficit into a 7-6 lead.

Crotts, a pitching star, has made the most of his batter's-box opportunities, owning two of the team's three triples, knocking in 13 runs on nine hits and hitting .333.

"We're getting it done every way possible," said Perkins, Mocksville's most feared hitter. "I mean Cody comes up with a pinch-hit triple. He's just been clutch all year, so you almost expect it from him."

Silver Spirits Win National Gold

The Silver Spirits 60-over basketball team won the gold medal at National Senior Games in the Senior Olympics on June 7 in Hampton Roads, Va.

Team members are Sue Allen, Rachel Howard, Elizabeth Williard, Nancy Haynes, Charlotte Miller, Wanda Seiders and Alice Barnette.

The other Davie County senior women's team, the Silver Spirits II (55-over), lost in the playoffs. Their members are Lois Green, Aileen Steelman, Vickie Frye, Dolly Urdanick, Lucy Swain, Pat Kames and Joyce Smith.

C.W. Allen competed in golf in the 65-over bracket.

In addition to basketball, Green, Allen and Miller competed in horseshoes and shuffleboard. Miller placed sixth in horseshoes.

The Silver Spirits finished first in their pool, beating a team from Virginia 28-18, one from Tennessee 12-10 and won a forfeit over a New York team that did not show up.

After receiving a bye in the first round of the playoffs, they faced a team from San Diego that was favored to win. The Spirits won 27-16. Scoring in that game were Miller with 13 points, Allen and Howard with six each and Williard with two.

This put the Spirits in the top four out of 21 teams from across the United States. The next game was against a Chicago team, and the Spirits won 23-12. Scoring were Miller (11), Allen (8) and Barnette (4).

The tension was heavy but the team knew it was going to get a medal with only one more game to go. The final game for the gold or silver medal was against a Connecticut team, the High Fives. The defense on both teams was so good that the halftime score was Spirits 6, High Fives 4. Coach Vanessa Carter got the team together and encouraged it to stretch the extra inch, get on the floor, block a little harder and then score.

Soon after the second half started, Miller hit a 3-point shot that gave the Spirits a cushion and sparked a 21-17 win. Miller led with 11 points, followed by Allen with nine and Howard with one.

It was six years in coming. Winning the gold medal has been a goal and is now a highlight.

Spirits Background
In 1994, Allen and Howard attended the N.C. Senior Games in Raleigh to participate in individual events. While there they learned that Senior Games had basketball as a team sport and was played on halfcourt.

That winter the 1952-56 girls basketball team from Farmington High held a reunion. Allen and Howard played on the Farmington team. The coach from that team was at the reunion and agreed to help get the senior women's team started.

Barely Challenged: Jr. Legion Wins 9 Straight

After roaring to eight straight league wins, and nine overall, in the last week and a half, the Mocksville Junior Legion baseball team thinks it can beat anyone.

The streak included wins of 4-2 over Thomasville, 14-7 over Mt. Airy, 12-1 over Lexington, 2-0 over Lexington, 9-1 over West Wilkes, 7-3 over West Wilkes and 14-8 over Troy. Mocksville lost Sunday's second game with Troy 9-4, but that one didn't count in the Southern Division standings.

Mocksville entered the week 19-4 overall and 12-2 in the SD, good for first place.

"I feel strongly that we can put anybody in at any position and we'll do a heckuva job," infielder Lance Emert said after losing 4-for-7 against Troy. "I'm really proud I made the cut to be on this team."

"We've got strengths everywhere on defense," pitcher Timmy Erb said. "We can make the state (tournament)," added Emert. "I know we will."

Mocksville is a step ahead of opponents, particularly with Erb on the hill. He moved through Thomasville and West Wilkes, and Corey Martin and Aaron Hollifield were the offensive keys as Mocksville survived tight battles with Lexington (2-0) and West Wilkes (7-3 in eight innings).

"I'm loving every minute of it," assistant Andrew Jones said. "I'm having the best time I've had in a long time, playing and coaching."

Mocksville 4, Thomasville 2
Erb struck out eight in a two-hitter, and third baseman Daniel Davis accounted for two of Mocksville's four hits.

Zach Vogler and Emert supplied hits as Mocksville took control with two fifth-inning runs.

Mocksville 14, Mt. Airy 7
Rain interrupted play with Mocksville down 4-2 in the second, giving Coach Charles Kurfees the opportunity to launch a tirade. Mocksville responded with seven third-inning runs for a commanding lead.

"I got on them pretty hard and told them if we're not going to play and take this game seriously, just pack it in and let's go to the house," Kurfees said. "They stepped it up."

Martin piled up seven Ks in three innings of relief. Brad Corrier went 3-for-4 with two crucial run-scoring hits. Hollifield went 2-for-2 and Matt Hutchens 2-for-4.

Mocksville 12, Lexington 1
Lexington had all kinds of trouble with pitcher John McDaniel, who gave up two hits and retired the last nine in a stellar complete game. The offensive leaders were Martin (2 hits, 4 RBIs), Matt Smith (2 hits) and Hutchens (2 hits, 3 RBIs).

Mocksville 2, Lexington 0
In a non-league contest, Ryan "Moose" Allred held Lexington to three hits in five innings. Martin delivered what turned out to be the decisive hit in the first, and was responsible for two of Mocksville's four hits.

Allred set down the final seven batters, and struck out the side in the final inning.

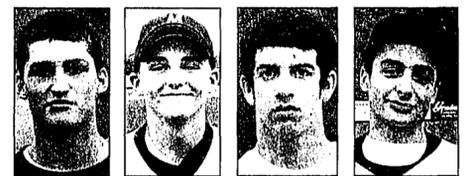

"I talked to some Forbush guys, and they said Allred looked as good as he's been all year," Jones said.

Mocksville 9, West Wilkes 1
Erb pitched six shutout innings to finish with a four-hitter. Hutchens, Vogler and Martin provided two hits each as Mocksville broke on top 4-0 in the first and crushed.

Mocksville 7, West Wilkes 3 (8)
In the most dramatic win of the season, Mocksville found itself down 3-0 in the fifth. Smith's RBI hit put Mocksville on the board in the sixth, and Mocksville tied it in the top of the seventh on a two-run double by Hollifield.

Wilkes nearly won it in the last of the seventh, but a beautiful relay from the outfield nailed a tagging runner at the plate and forced extra innings. Right fielder McDaniel hit first baseman Corrier, who fired home.

Tired of the drama, Mocksville erupted for four runs in the eighth. Smith started it with a single. After a sac bunt, two hit by pitches and a walk, Hollifield polished off West with a two-run single.

Smith went 3-for-4. Other than Wilkes' three-hit, three-run fifth, pitcher Spencer Hodges was sharp.

Mocksville 14, Troy 8
Mocksville squandered an 8-0 lead as Troy charged within 8-7. But it put Troy away with three fifth-inning runs.

Vogler was 3-for-5, Smith 2-for-3 and Emert, Martin and Corrier went 2-for-4. In that crushing fifth, Davis doubled and Ted Randolph, just back from a trip to Ohio State's football camp, blasted a home run.

Troy 9, Mocksville 4
In a non-league loss, Matt Rich went 3-for-3 and Emert doubled off the wall twice.

Notes:
• Travis Allen, a 2001 Davie graduate who pitches for Catawba, has been instrumental in Mocksville's success. "I think a lot of it has to do with Travis helping out basically all the pitchers," Jones said. "They're learning how to pitch."

"First is far from locked up. Mocksville has tough tests coming against Rowan County, Statesville and Burlington, "three of the best teams," Kurfees said. "So this is where the rubber meets the road. We're going to see what we're made of."

• Cutting the roster to 18 by last week's deadline was gut-wrenching for Kurfees. "We were carrying 26 and it was not an easy thing because they're all good enough to play," he said. "They could start on a lot of teams. Some were upset. I was upset. We hope they'll be back with us next year."

Volunteers Making Improvements To Youth Complex

By Nathan Crowe
Special to the Enterprise

A lot of improvements are being made in an effort to improve the Davie County Youth Complex, where Davie County Little League baseball and softball is played.

Pat O'Connor, president of Davie County Little League, said a group of proactive volunteers are doing all they can financially.

They are trying to make the park better and more enjoyable for parents by putting concrete in the dugouts, re-decking the bleachers and laying concrete pads for the bleachers.

"It's a work in progress," he said.

A lot is being done with free labor.

Future changes will include new scoreboards at the Youth Complex and at Collette Field at Rich Park. O'Connor said he wants more people to enjoy this great resource that Davie County is lucky to have.

"The leagues are beneficial for children and their parents. They are trying to develop the programs to benefit the children that play in the league, to make them better players and, hopefully, better people in the end, he said. There are more than 600 children in the program this year, ages 5-17, and the coaches are volunteers.

The contractors that are paid to keep the field in good playing condition are doing a good job, O'Connor said. The budget includes paying for uniforms and the preparation of the field. O'Connor expressed thanks to all volunteers, especially Gray Logan, Billy Hicks and Chris Carter.

These changes came about based on what the Little League Association thought was necessary. All of these changes have had a great impact on the community, bringing everyone together and having fun, he said.

Davie County Little League has grown. Interleague play with Clemmons and Southwest Winston gives people a better image of Davie County.

"This has been an enjoyable process," O'Connor said. "And like I said before, it is a work in progress. I'm having fun doing it and learning more and more

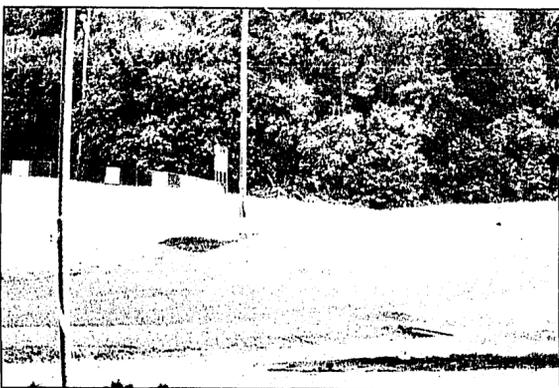

New cement is added to this area between the fields at the Davie County Youth Complex.

Volunteer labor is being used for most of the improvements being made.

Trucks, equipment and plenty of strong backs have been a familiar sight.

Improvements should make the complex more player and fan friendly.

Junior Tennis League To Start Week Of July 7

To register for the Mocksville-Davie Recreation junior tennis league, call Sandra Boyette at 751-2325. The league will begin the week of July 7.

Mark Jordan Aces No. 12

Mark Jordan hit a hole-in-one at Pudding Ridge recently. Jordan, who was playing with relatives David Jordan, Carl Jordan and Ronnie Jordan, holed the par-3 No. 12 (146 yards) with a 7-iron.

Davie High's athletic hall of fame continues to grow.

Deanna Thomas Randolph To Be Featured Next Week

In the series reliving the careers of Davie High Hall of Famers Class of 2002, the Hurt Berger and Jingles James stories were told in the May 29 and June 19 editions.

Next from the five-member class is Deanna Thomas Randolph, who starred in track, basketball and softball and graduated in 1979. Her feature will appear in the July 3 paper, followed by Sarah Gardner Shanks (1982) and Scotty Spry (1995).

Also, the Davie High Athletic Hall of Fame committee has named two to the Class of 2003 - Grimes Parker, a star athlete in the early 1960s, and Aileen Steelman, who coached at Davie for 20 years until 1988. They will be honored at halftime of a 2003 football game.

In the spring of 2002, eight were inducted into the first class: Jill Amos Lindblade, Janice Markland Jackson, Dewayne Grant, John Parker, Randall Ward, Angie Slabach, Jeff Lankford and Bill Peeler.

Reserve A Seat For War Eagle Football

Reserve seats are available for all six of Davie High's regular-season home football games. The cost to reserve a seat is $40, $10 more than you would pay to attend six home games.

Call Davie athletic director Keith Whitaker at 751-0768.

Wrestling Camp July 7-10

The Mocksville-Davie Recreation Department will hold a wrestling camp for rising second through eighth graders on July 7-10 from 3-5 p.m. Register by June 30. Cost is $35. Instructors will be Adam Barber and Howard Riddle.

Register Sunday For Rams Football

All parents of interested third through sixth graders must attend a preregistration for the Mocksville Rams football team at 2 p.m. June 29 at South Davie Middle School cafeteria.

If unable to attend, call Kerwyn Wilson at 284-4827 (fifth and sixth graders) or Vincent Cockerham at 751-4729 (third and fourth).

chance and started him, and it looked like he didn't miss a beat.

The homers by Perkins and Poindexter gave them four each, tying McKenzie Willoughby. Six players have multiple homers, including Maloney, Boone and Evan Beam. Adding insult to injury, Maloney and Poindexter went deep on back-to-back pitches in the sixth.

"That's three homers a game (in the last five games), and we were without one of our big sticks again tonight," Lovelace said of Willoughby, who was at Eastern Kentucky for orientation.

Troy's bats were no match for Crotts (5-1, 2.65), who has both of Mocksville's shutouts. He retired the first eight he faced, allowed one runner to third (with two outs) and gave up four baserunners in a seven-strikeout, no-walk gem.

Legion Roundup ...

June 17 - S.Rowan 31, Mock 23

In an unforgettable game that includes three grand slams and 14 pitchers, Mocksville overcomes a 16-8 deficit with 14 eighth-inning runs to lead 22-16 - and still loses. Chad Boone's grand slam made it 22-16.

June 19 - Mock 12, Concord 2

Dan Poindexter pitches a shutout into the sixth to move to 3-1. McKenzie Willoughby slugs two of Mocksville's five home runs, and barely misses a third.

June 20 - Mock 7, Concord 4

Reliever Lonnie Barnes gives up one hit and fans eight in 4 1/3, and Josh Burgess caps a five-run ninth with a grand slam.

June 21 - Troy 10, Mock 9

The game was suspended in the bottom of the ninth on June 6 and completed 15 days later. Troy led 10-9 when play resumed and held on.

June 21 - Mock 11, Troy 0

Cody Crotts fires a 3-hitter for his fifth win, and David Perkins, Jess Maloney, Poindexter and Boone all homer. Maloney and Poindexter homer on back-to-back pitches.

June 22 - Mock 8, Lexington 7

Crotts' two-run triple provides a 7-6 lead. With two on and one out in the ninth, Poindexter strikes out the Nos. 2-3 batters.

Notes & Quotes

Mocksville Controls Own Destiny In Quest To End Title Drought

• Is this it? Can Mocksville end a frustrating nine-year chapter and wrap up its first Area III Southern Division title since 1993? Coach Mike Lovelace can see magic in his players' eyes.

Not counting the suspended-game loss to Troy that was resumed with Mocksville (11-5 SD) down 10-9 in the ninth, it has ripped off nine wins in 10 games. Controlling its own destiny, it entered the final week of the regular season a half-game up on Kannapolis (10-5) and South Rowan. In a classic race, six teams have between five and seven losses.

"It may not be the most talented group, but they love to play together," Lovelace said. "This is by far the best chemistry we've had in my five years."

Six players with 20 or more at-bats are hitting .300-plus - led by David Perkins at .424, Jess Maloney at .358, Chad Boone at .346 and McKenzie Willoughby at .339 - and that doesn't include two sticks (leadoff Ryan Atwood and No. 2 Brad Bullard) who are getting hotter and hotter. Three have four home runs apiece (Perkins, Willoughby and Dan Poindexter). And Poindexter (3-1, 1.20, 2 SV) and Cody Crotts (5-1, 2.65) have been dynamic on the mound.

"One through nine, we're capable of mashing the ball," pitcher Lonnie Barnes said. "This is unreal. It's fun to pitch when we score like this."

Mocksville racked up five SD titles in seven years from 1987-93. But eight of the next nine teams were maddeningly inconsistent and combined to finish only five games over .500. Even the exception, the 24-10 bunch in 2000, finished on a disappointing note.

This crew is determined to change that trend. If it keeps playing the way it has the past two weeks, it can certainly do it.

"This team may understand the game a little bit better than what that 2000 group did," Lovelace said. "I know it's a long ways off, but we have a legitimate shot to be (in the state tournament)."

"The question mark is how far can our pitching take us? We can hit with anybody. We've seen everybody's No. 1 pitcher except for Kannapolis."

• During the championship years, Mocksville fed off full-house crowds that packed the hill three, four and even five rows high. The place was a frenzy. The crowd for Sunday's clutch 8-7 win over Lexington was one of the largest since those days.

"There were two decks and people down the left-field line."

Lovelace said. "I talked to a few people and they didn't even know we were in first place. I think now people may pick up the paper, see that this team can go a long way and start coming again."

• The Area III playoffs start June 28 with two play-in series pitting seeds 7-10 and 8-9. The best-of-5 second round is July 2-7. The third round is July 9-14. The final four will be best-of-7. The top two teams from the Southern and Northern Division will meet in the fifth round, and both will advance to the state tournament July 31.

• Lovelace's heart stopped Sunday when center fielder Bullard crashed into the wall on a bomb that was just beyond his reach. Bullard grabbed his left shoulder and writhed in pain.

He eventually got up and later singled to key Mocksville's rally. Lovelace breathed a sigh of relief because Bullard is an indispensable cog. Last year he went 10-for-18 in a playoff outburst of Wilkes, then was sidelined with mono as Burlington eliminated Mocksville three games to one. He hit .431 for the season.

Although he stands at .283, he's hitting .370 in the last eight games and is tied with Poindexter with 17 walks. He flags down everything in center, he's the team's best bunter and he has considerable speed.

"I thought of last year when he went out at the end of the year," Lovelace said. "He'd already hurt his right shoulder and that's why I was on a full sprint. He'd be real hard to replace. He's a leader not only on the field, but in the dugout. He's another coach on the field and has all the intangibles. He said: 'Coach, I'm not coming out of this game.'"

• Barnes revived his right arm in a 7-4 comeback over Concord, striking out eight in 4 1/3 scoreless innings. Lovelace said assistant Keith Walker deserves some credit for Barnes' turnaround.

"Keith has worked with him in the bullpen and he's been a tremendous help with Lonnie on mechanical things," he said. "I think he's starting to peak at the right time."

• Perkins would have five homers, but one was washed out against Kannapolis, which led 9-5 before the rain came. Mocksville benefited from the nulligan, winning the makeup 8-6.

• In the first week of the season, Lovelace moved to No. 2 in wins among five coaches. The fifth-year coach entered the week 78-68. The all-time leader is Dale James, who went 175-88 from 1989-95.

Mocksville Pulls Out 8-7 Win Over Lexington

"If McKenzie doesn't get hurt, Crotts isn't in that spot," Lovelace said. "He's done it two or three times. If it's not on the mound, he gets the big hit."

In the first, Mocksville got RBI hits from Jess Maloney and Poindexter to jump out to a 2-0 lead on Lexington ace Russ Story. But the lefty Story dodged bullets and frustrated Mocksville over the next five innings. Although he sweated out 10 three-ball counts, including five in a row, he struck out nine in six innings.

Despite Story's overpowering stuff, Mocksville found a way to reverse the momentum. Leadoff Ryan Atwood, who barely missed a first-inning homer when the left fielder robbed him at the fence, faced a two-run, game-tying double in the fourth.

Lexington regained a 6-4 lead, but once Story departed, Mocksville had just the opening it needed.

In the seventh, Bullard and Perkins singled. After an error made it 6-5, Crotts restored Mocksville's edge with the triple. Mocksville manufactured insurance in the eighth, with Atwood singling, Bullard bunting him over and Perkins jerking his fourth hit down the third-base line.

Perkins is pacing Mocksville with a .424 average and seven doubles. Atwood had two hits, Maloney two RBIs and Beam reached twice on his 17th walk/HBP.

"When we get down, they really start to play and get focused even more," Lovelace said. "Story was all they really had. (Lexington coach Matt Griffin) kicked his No. 2 pitcher off the team last night, and their pitching's thin. Story has signed with Charlotte, and we knew when we got to their bullpen we had a great chance to win."

Perkins, the second of three relievers, got out of a two-on, one-out jam in the eighth to preserve the 7-6 lead. Then Lovelace pointed to Poindexter, a righthander who has about five arm angles and relies on movement and location.

With Mocksville nursing an 8-6 lead, Poindexter promptly plunked a batter on his first delivery, putting two on with no outs. After a sac bunt, a soft liner between shortstop Atwood and second baseman Boone cut it to 8-7 and put runners at the corners with one out.

"Everybody was thinking: 'Oh no, here we go again,'" Lovelace said.

With fans of both teams on the edge of their seats and roaring, Poindexter foiled the threat. He painted the outer edge and caught the Nos. 2-3 hitters looking at strike three.

No Misprint South Rowan 31, Mocksville 23

Yogi Berra was right. It's not over until it's over. Just ask the South Rowan and Mocksville Legion baseball teams, who played a game so improbable that Hollywood screenwriters would never have imagined what happened on June 17 at Rich Park.

In the most thrilling scene since overcoming Lexington's 13-0 seventh-inning lead to win 14-13 in a 1987 playoff game, Mocksville scored 14 runs in the eighth to wipe out a 16-4 deficit and take a six-run cushion into the ninth - only to wind up losing 31-23 in 10 innings.

This was one game after Mocksville pulled out a 14-13, 11-inning win over Mooresville. "You don't see that many runs in slow-pitch softball," Mocksville coach Mike Lovelace said. "That's a football score. It was a crazy night."

Mocksville (8-5, 7-4 Southern Division) and South (8-3, 8-3) came in tied with Lexington for first place in the SD, and the four-hour, 55-minute circuit under a steady mist had a little bit of everything, including two pinch-hit grand slams by South and one grand slam by Mocksville. 12 relief pitchers, 34 walks, 35 hits, the 13th home run at Rich Park in two games and Daniel Hollifield playing four positions in one inning.

"It was amazing," South coach Allen Wilson said. "That's baseball. That's why it's the greatest game on earth."

Gabe Beaver hit a grand slam in the fifth for a 12-4 South lead, and it looked like it was over as South carried a yawning 16-8 lead into the bottom of the eighth.

With many Mocksville fans having already headed for the exits, the home team engineered a remarkable comeback, scoring 14 runs on seven hits and six walks and sending up 17 batters.

"We should have ended it in seven (via the 10-run rule), and they just kept coming back," Wilson said. "It was two first-place teams playing, and it's a tribute to the guys on both teams."

Brad Bullard started the magic with a single. After Evan Beam and Chad Boone knocked in runs, Wesley Douglas walked with the bases full to set up the biggest hit of the inning, a two-run single from Daniel Hollifield, who cut it to 16-14 in his first appearance in seven games.

Bullard singled again to make it 16-15, and four consecutive two-out walks followed, including three bases-loaded passes to give Mocksville an 18-16 lead. Then you should have seen the look on South's face when Boone drilled a mammoth grand slam to left for a 22-16 lead.

"We started making a lot of substitutes to save our legs for (the next night), and doggone if our guys we put in don't battle all the way back," Lovelace said.

Mocksville was supremely confident of a victory with David Perkins, who had given up one unearned run in 10 2/3 coming into the game, on the mound in the top of the ninth. But in an incredible shift in momentum, South regrouped to score seven runs, tying it on Ryan Wilson's pinch-hit grand slam to deep center and moving ahead 23-22 on a throwing error.

"I've played and coached in thousands of games, and never have I had emotions go up and down so much in a game," Wilson said. "You're so high, you're so low and you're high again. You don't see three grand slams in a year, and we saw three in one game. It was an incredible game."

But what really made the game special was Mocksville's half of the ninth. Not to be outdone in drama, it tied things at 23 after there were two outs and nobody on against Andrew Morgan, who was virtually unhittable while striking out 101 and walking 19 in 72 innings as an all-state performer at South Rowan High.

After overwhelming the first two batters, Andrew McClannan fought off three full-count pitches before drawing a walk. Morgan proceeded to walk McKenzie Willoughby, Willie Infante and Michael Wernsing, tying the game.

"That's unheard-of with him," Wilson said. "Morgan doesn't walk four in a game usually. But hey, the (wet) conditions were tough."

After the four straight walks, Beam nearly won it. He hit a bullet up the middle, but the second baseman was shading the middle and forced extra innings.

South roughed up Mocksville's relievers relentlessly in the 10th, smacking its fourth homer and scoring eight runs on six hits. Hollifield took the mound for the first time in two years. Lovelace went to the mound, scratched his head and motioned for Beam, who declined the pitching offer. Wernsing got the call instead and became the sixth Mocksville pitcher to work fewer than two innings.

"I had used up everybody on my bench, and I started throwing people that hadn't seen the mound since Little League or never," Lovelace said. "We kept digging and plugging away. We made them go to their No. 1 and we scored one off Morgan. So we've got some confidence for down the road."

The loss ended Mocksville's five-game winning streak, while South won for the eighth time in nine games.

Boone had a monster game, going 4-for-5 with five RBIs and bumping his average to a team-best .416. Bullard went 3-for-6. Perkins (.413) stayed hot at 2-for-5. Infante came off the bench to draw four walks. Wernsing had two bases-loaded walks. Beam climbed over .200 and took over the RBI lead (14) with two hits, including his second homer in two games.

Together there were 15 pitchers, and all 15 were ineffective. Mocksville allowed 23 baserunners on walks and hit by pitches, and South walked or hit 15.

What a roller coaster - 15 runs apiece in the last two and a half innings.

"I'm so proud of our guys, and I know Coach Lovelace is also for not giving up," Wilson said. "We'd both like to kill our pitching staffs, but fans from both sides will talk about this game for years to come. When you look back at everything and figure out how everything went, I've never been in one like this."

Burgess Grand Slam Seals Scintillating Comeback

The improbable has become almost the inevitable for Mocksville's Legion baseball team. Mocksville has rallied for some thrilling wins lately, and it put together another big inning June 20 at Concord to steal a 7-4 win.

Burgess Killian

During a stretch in which Mocksville has won seven of eight, it squeezed past Stanly County 3-2, Kannapolis 8-6, Mooresville 14-13 in 11 innings and overcame an eight-run deficit with a 14-run eighth before losing 31-23 in 10 innings to South Rowan. This time, after Concord roared to a 4-0 lead, Lonnie "Hammer" Barnes pitched magnificently in relief and Josh Burgess blasted a ninth-inning, go-ahead grand slam to keep Mocksville (10-5, 9-4 Southern Division) in a first-place tie with South Rowan in the Area III SD.

"This is an explosive bunch," Barnes said after picking up his first win. "I've never been on a hitting team that scores a lot of runs, and I knew if I went out there and held them, my boys were going to hit it sooner or later."

With Concord lefty John Killian on the mound, Mocksville's offense looked lost for seven innings. Killian overcame eight walks and three hit batters before striking out 13 in 7 2/3. He gave up two hits, and one of them was a McKenzie Willoughby popout in the lights.

"Killian was not overpowering," Coach Mike Lovelace said. "His velocity wasn't that good, but man he had us baffled for eight innings."

With only three hits through eight innings, Mocksville, which pounded Concord 12-2 the night before, was down 4-2 and appeared on the way to an ugly defeat that would put its championship hopes in jeopardy.

"I told them Concord wasn't going to lay down, but we were absolutely flat," Lovelace said. "I mean there wasn't a word said the whole night. The kids in the dugout weren't even talking about what they were going to do after the game - that's how quiet it was. And those guys did it again. In the ninth inning, we didn't have a guy sitting down."

After scoring two runs in the fifth on three walks, a hit batter and a single, Mocksville waited, waited and walked its way to a run with one out in the ninth. After Dan Poindexter received a walk, pinch-hitter Willie Infante, Evan Beam and Chad Boone worked the count full before taking walks.

Boone's bases-loaded walk made it 4-3 and brought up Burgess, who was an unlikely candidate to save the day. He stepped into the box with a .195 average (9-for-46) with no homers and four RBIs.

"I was thinking about pinch-hitting for him," Lovelace said. "But I thought: 'He hit in the five hole and hit .300-something for West Forsyth, and he's got to break out sometime.'"

"I was ready to pitch," he said. "The umpire (Howard Riddle) has a pretty big strike zone - it's kind of wide on the outside corner - and I kept telling myself that."

As if Poindexter needed it, Mocksville's unconscious attack produced runs in five innings. Willoughby hit a frozen-rope, three-run homer to left in the first, and he was just getting started.

He left the yard again with one aboard in the third, and he barely missed a third homer in the fifth, smacking a double off the left-center wall.

Willoughby, who homered twice in the May 24 opener at Asheboro, had gone homerless in 12 games.

"To be honest, I should have been standing on three (on the double)," he said. "I got caught looking at it."

It's absolutely admirable what Mocksville did to a Concord pitcher who has signed a full scholarship to Wingate. It rapped out 13 hits and extended the homer surge to 10 in three games, including three off Josh Benton in 4 2/3 innings.

"Benton's one of the top five pitchers in the league," Lovelace said. "You don't see many full scholarships in baseball. We've hit all the hard throwers."

Evan Beam homered for the third time in three games (his personal history book showed no long balls before that) with two on in the fifth for a 10-0 onslaught. David Perkins hit a solo shot - his third of the season - on a 3-0 pitch in the sixth. And Poindexter hit his third when he led off the seventh with a walk-off homer.

"I told Beam: 'I'm going to try to end this one right here. The first good pitch I see, I'm swinging for the fences,'" Poindexter said.

Mocksville got big numbers from five guys: Atwood (3-for-4), Willoughby (3-for-3, six RBIs), Cody Crofts (2-for-4), Poindexter (2-for-3) and Beams (2-for-3, three RBIs). Mocksville is hitting .359 (83-for-231) in the last six games.

"When McKenzie gets on a roll, he's as good a hitter as you'd want," Lovelace said. "When he gets in a slump, he gets down on himself and starts pressing. But if he will be patient, look for his pitch and wait for the guy to make a mistake, he can flat-out hit the ball."

"Before the Legion season, I worked with (former Mocksville coach and hitting guru) George Daywalt and worked on getting my head straight up instead of having it back here," Beam said. "It was just that one thing. He said everything else was good. And it's helped my swing a lot."

Poindexter held Concord to seven hits, and only three of them were clean. The game's first batter fouled a single, one guy reached on a dribbler to third, a routine ball to center was lost in the lights, and a popout between home and third was lost in the lights.

"That's about the best I've seen him do," assistant Kevin McIntosh said of Poindexter (3-1 record, 1.24 ERA in 29 IP). "He struggled some, especially in school ball, with his slider, and tonight that was his best pitch. One thing he does that I don't think anybody else does is he pitches the inner half well. He's not afraid to bust you in. He works inside and out."

Notes: Chad Boone's six-game hitting streak came to an end. ... Perkins has hit safely in eight straight and Beam has a four-game streak. Atwood has hit in six of seven and Poindexter in five of six. ... Willoughby leads in RBIs (19) and homers (four) and is tied for first in doubles (five). ... Perkins has a team-high 20 hits. ... Mocksville (9-5, 8-4 Southern Division) and South Rowan are tied for second, a half-game behind Lexington. ... For those wondering, the single-season record for homers is well out of reach. Mocksville slugged 80 in a 25-13 season in 1990.

Troy Holds On In Suspended Game

Mocksville's Legion baseball team suffered a tough loss in the completion of a suspended game against Troy.

On June 6 at Rich Park, Mocksville trailed 10-9 when the bottom fell out. Rain suspended play in the bottom of the ninth with nobody on, nobody out and a 3-2 count.

The game was resumed on June 21 at Troy. Willie Infante took the first pitch for a walk. But Troy got the next guy on a fielder's choice, then turned a game-ending double play.

The loss went to Cody Crofts, who was 4-0. His unbent run ended despite seven strikeouts and two hits in four innings. He also had two hits and three RBIs.

Jess Maloney had a home run in a game that Mocksville led 7-4. Troy 10, Mocksville 9

Hurricanes Loses To Powerful Brookwood

The Hickory Hill Hurricanes had an expected loss June 19 to the Brookwood Barracudas.

Brookwood, just across the Davie County line, has been the Greater Forsyth Swim League champions for the past several years. Some of Brookwood's swimmers actually reside in Davie County, which makes the meet more fun for both teams because they get to swim against friends.

The Hurricanes entered events they have never swum in a meet before, and new swimmers competed in their first meet.

"This was a great chance for swimmers to get times in events they don't usually swim," Coach Brent Gaither said.

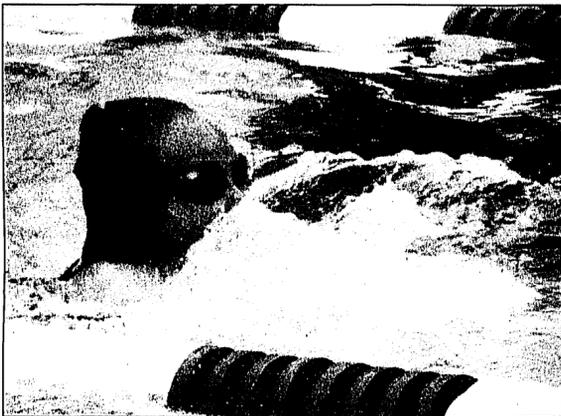

Despite the loss, Hickory Hill swam its heart out. During daily practice, team members push themselves to improve strokes and increase speed while having fun. Coach Call and Gaither use different techniques to motivate, such as playing games. Both coaches also compete in each meet. Team members really love to watch their coaches and cheer loudly for them.

Michael Brewer and Payne Miller receive ribbons from Coach Brent Gaither.

Quin Holland, Zachary Coffey, Lauren Tayler and Tanner Junker wait for their ribbons.

They remembered playing basketball during the '50s, and in late 1995 practice began.

From Farmington High, in addition to Allen and Howard, is Haynes. Williard, Barnette and Green are from Davie High. They soon called on some from the Courtney High (Yadkin County) area in Miller and Seiders. Steelman, from Footville in Yadkin County, had coached and taught PE at Davie High for 20-plus years and then taught PE at Courtney Elementary. They asked Steelman to join them when she reached age 55.

Over the years the Spirits have been privileged to have some dedicated coaches. The first coach was Gene Dull, then Ernest Seamon and currently Carter. Interestingly, Carter was a student of Steelman at Davie High and Steelman was her coach.

The Spirits range in age from 57-67 and now have split into two teams, one in the 60-64 age bracket and the other at 55-59. These ladies get together every Monday year-round for two hours to practice, usually followed by fellowship at a local restaurant.

William Mills First In State Bicycle Race

William Mills, 11, won the N.C. State Games Bicycle Time Trials in the Junior 10-12 age group.

The races were sponsored by the N.C. State Games and the United States Cycling Federation. The races were held to determine the state champion in all age groups from 10 to 45-plus.

Mills, who rides for the Hearts Cycling team, rode the 6.4-mile course through Siloam in a winning time of 19 minutes, 11 seconds. He said afterward he was pedaling so hard that with every stroke the bike would weave back and forth - but he thought he could go a little faster next time. Clocked at speeds over 35 mph, he was fast enough to win his age group and post the second-fastest time for all the Junior or under-16 riders.

Mills, a rising sixth grader, is a boy scout in Troop 732 and attends Green Meadows Baptist Church.

Destry Swaim of Mocksville's Legion team pitched eight innings and improved to 3-0 in a 7-3 win over Stanly County. Joey Cutts went 3-for-4 and Charlie Wands and Carlton Hire added two hits each.

David Whitaker ran his record to 3-0 by pitching into the eighth in a 9-5 win over Mooresville. Stephen Ashworth went 5-for-6 in a doubleheader split with Mooresville. After finishing fourth in the Southern Division regular season, Mocksville's leading hitters were Ashworth at .393, Wands at .371, Hire at .365 and Andy Ward at .354.

Under Aileen Steelman, who coached at Davie High from 1967-88, Courtney's 7th- and 8th-grade volleyball, basketball and softball teams went a combined 34-0 for the year.

Oak Valley Falls To Clemmons West

Not enough - not yet. Oak Valley's bid for prominence fell short last week against Clemmons West, one of the premier teams in the Greater Winston-Salem swim league. Oak Valley fell 493-434. "Fifty-nine points. Not bad," said Coach Larry Umberger. "If we had won a few more of the close races, it could have swung the other way. We're proud of them."

The team faces Willow Run this week, with another chance to add a third win of the season. There are many new swimmers this year in the 6 and under age group.

The six and under swimmers for Oak Valley: Blakely Gantt, Caitlyn Radatovich, Teddi Utt, Yunessa Schoning, Alexis Waller, Victoria Long, Mason Orr, Drew Carbone, Jonathan Davis, Foss Smithdean, Harrison Weaver, and Nolan Day. Some of the six and under swimmers have even been able to help the team by swimming in upper age groups.

Many of the swimmers finished first or second in their events. Many of the races were close finishes.

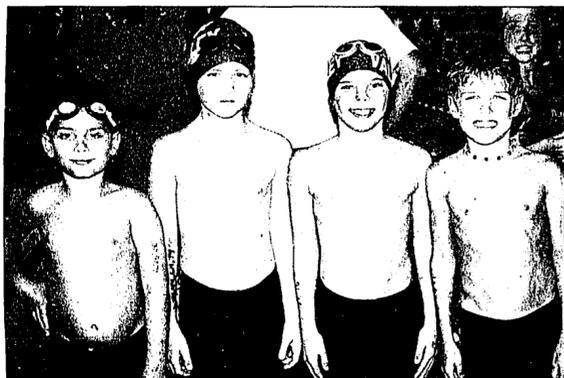

The following swimmers completed with strong finishes:

Get Finances Straight Before Saying "I Do" for Second Time

June is the most popular month for weddings. And many newlyweds aren't making their first trip down the aisle. If you're remarriage, you'll need to make the right financial moves to protect everyone involved.

Here are a few suggestions:
First, exchange all financial information with your new spouse. List your respective debts and assets. And if either of you is divorced, be clear about obligations under a divorce decree, along with any required child support or alimony payments.

Also, you may want to set up a prenuptial agreement, especially if you want to eventually leave assets to children from a previous marriage.

Finally, update your will and change the beneficiary designations on your insurance policies, retirement plans, annuities and any other financial documents.

Take care of these issues right away — and help get your new marriage off to a good start.

In Love With Life

Davie Woman Prescribed Viagra For Pulmonary Disease

Tomi Taylor suffers from Primary Pulmonary Hypertension.

When Mattie Doby was dying of cancer at Forsyth Medical Center some 11 years ago, Thomasene "Tomi" Taylor was more than her nurse. She was her friend.

Mattie had throat cancer and found it difficult to communicate with the hospital staff, according to her daughter, Frances Legg. But from the moment Tomi walked into her room and told the 87-year-old patient that she also lived in Davie County, Frances says her mother seemed to feel more at ease.

"Tomi would have little conversations with her," she says. "Mama had to have a feeding tube at that time, and Tomi got her through that where she wasn't scared."

"I was just real impressed with her as a nurse."

From the time Mattie was admitted to the hospital on Dec. 19, 1991, until her death on Jan. 14, 1992, Tomi helped take care of her.

"It was a real friendship that they had," Frances says. "That was the last time she had seen Tomi until after she heard some neighbors talking earlier this year about a nurse by the same name being sick. Frances says she wondered if it could be the same person."

When Frances found out it was, she took a gift basket to Tomi's house on Baitly Road. As it turned out, Tomi not only remembered her, but recalled that she was working on a quilt while her mother was in the hospital.

"We just took off from there," Frances says.

For Tomi, a surprise visit from the daughter of a former patient has been just one of many kindnesses shown her since being recently diagnosed with primary pulmonary hypertension (PPH), a rare blood vessel disorder for which there is no known cure.

Members of the nearby Bread of Life Baptist Church have also visited, sent cards and brought her gifts.

"I've lived a very isolated life," she says. "It's been such a revelation being sick. I told my husband that this may be what it takes for me to realize that people really do care."

"I see people in a way that I never saw them before."

This is the story of Tomi Taylor, a 50-year-old nurse who became a patient and in the process, learned to open her heart and receive the same kind of care and compassion that she has given to others for years.

It is a story of a woman whose undaunted will to live gives her the strength and determination to take on a health insurance company which won't pay for a drug that could keep her alive because the widely prescribed Viagra is only approved for males suffering from erectile dysfunction.

Most of all, this is a story of a woman who finds humor where others see only fear and laughs, defiantly and loudly, as she fights to stay alive.

All her life, Tomi Taylor has been a fighter. As an Air Force brat, she and her siblings moved around so much, they were always the new kids on the block and quickly learned that they had to sometimes push and shove to gain acceptance.

Tomi was the oldest of four children born to Richard and Irene Yates. Her father was stationed in Macon, Ga., when she was born on Oct. 6, 1952.

The Yates family moved often when she and her two sisters, Micki and Kim, and their brother, Ricky, were growing up. They lived in Germany, Turkey and even spent four years in Athens, Greece.

Tomi makes scented sachets to give away.

"That was the longest we were in any place," she says.

In addition to being fighters, the Yates children were rambunctious, and their antics sometimes landed them in trouble.

They got whippings, Tomi says, when they rearranged the flowers in a cemetery so there would be one in front of every tombstone for Mother's Day, and neighbors in Athens still remember them as the girls who accidentally burned a pistachio orchard when they built a fire to heat some milk for their kitten.

The family was back in the States and living in Colorado when Tomi met her future husband, David "Dave" Eugene Taylor of North Carolina. "He was stationed there, and my dad was his first sergeant," she says.

They married when Tomi was 17 and moved to Dave's home state when he was transferred shortly afterward to a base in Goldsboro. "From the minute I set foot in North Carolina," Tomi says, "I didn't ever want to go anywhere else, ever."

As a nurse, Tomi says she knew something bad was wrong.

"I had gotten shorter and shorter and shorter of breath," she says. "I just got to where I could hardly go. I couldn't do anything. I was feeling bad all the time."

Her sister, Micki Walker, who moved a half mile through the woods from Tomi last year, says they all tried to get her to go to the doctor, but she refused. "She knew they were going to keep her," she says. "She'd been in denial for so long."

When someone mentioned going to the doctor, Tomi says she told them if she went, she'd end up in the hospital and never come home.

"I'd always worked in critical care," she says. "I never saw the millions of people who got well and went home."

"All I ever saw were the ones who had complications and who didn't do well."

By Jan. 5 of this year, Tomi's condition had next 15 years, leaving Baptist for Forsyth Medical Center nine months into her career.

After looking at thousands of houses, she and Dave found their dream home on Baitly Road in Davie County, less than a mile off Highway 601 North.

"This is what we always wanted," she says. "We bought this place with three acres. I had always wanted a horse, and the stable was what caught my eye."

They bought two horses and hired someone to dig a pond, stocking it with fish. Tomi and Dave later bought 24 more acres adjoining their land.

"Everything we've ever wanted is here," she says. "All my life, all I ever wanted was to live in one place."

When her mother died of cancer in 1996, Tomi took a leave of absence from her job to help her father and physically handicapped brother move to a house on Hardison Street in Mocksville. "He moved out here so I could help with my brother," she says.

When it was time for her to return to work, Tomi says they were at the point financially where she didn't absolutely have to work and Dave suggested that she take a few months off and work in the woodworking shop he had helped her to set up in the back yard.

He and the boys had bought her the prefabricated building for Christmas, a drill press for her birthday, a table saw for Mother's Day and a scroll saw for their anniversary.

Tomi had started painting a few years before when extensive reconstructive facial surgery following the removal of skin cancers left her withdrawn and not wanting to go out in public. It was her desire to frame her own artwork that led her to pursue woodworking.

She was doing what she loved, but Tomi says she didn't feel good. In fact, Tomi said she didn't feel good physically since coming down with a bad flu bug the year before.

"I went to the doctor and he put me on antibiotics," she says, "and they didn't work, and he put me on more, and they didn't work, and it drug out a long time. I just got sicker and sicker."

When she didn't get better, Tomi says she learned to compensate, slowing down and taking longer to do things. She kept going back and forth to various doctors, who put her on inhalers for her breathing and Lasix for the swelling that was becoming more and more of a problem.

For a while, she was treated for bronchitis. "One doctor even offered me Prozac for my nerves," she says.

As her husband's insurance carrier changed, so did Tomi's primary care providers. "I was kind of shuffled around back and forth, here and there," she says. "Nobody ever really found out what was wrong."

As a nurse, Tomi says she knew something bad was wrong.

"I had gotten shorter and shorter and shorter of breath," she says. "I just got to where I could hardly go. I couldn't do anything. I was feeling bad all the time."

Her sister, Micki Walker, who moved a half mile through the woods from Tomi last year, says they all tried to get her to go to the doctor, but she refused. "She knew they were going to keep her," she says. "She'd been in denial for so long."

When someone mentioned going to the doctor, Tomi says she told them if she went, she'd end up in the hospital and never come home.

"I'd always worked in critical care," she says. "I never saw the millions of people who got well and went home."

By Jan. 5 of this year, Tomi's condition had

Some walked, some were pushed and some rode in carts ... but Davie County cancer survivors came out in force for the Relay for Life last weekend at the Davie High School football stadium.

Beth Humphrey talks about life after cancer.

Relay Raises More Than $135,000

Davie County did it again. For the sixth year, residents came out by the hundreds for the American Cancer Society Relay for Life held last weekend at the high school track.

Teams raising the most money were VF Jeanswear at $21,070; Walking for Miracles at $11,619; and James Baptist at $8,038.

The most raised per capita: James Baptist, $447; VF Jeanswear, $405; and CCB, $318.

The most team members belonged to Jericho Church of Christ at 58, VF Jeanswear at 52 and Walking For Miracles at 51.

So far, $134,997 has been raised.

Tractors and engines will be set up to display throughout the day on Thursday.

Starting at 5 p.m. and lasting throughout the evening will be bluegrass music.

Art Show Entries Are Due This Week

Get connected to local artists. Twice a year, the Davie County Arts Council holds an art show and sale.

Work is submitted by local artists, judged by a juror, and then offered to the public for sale.

This summer, the DCAC will hold Summer Highlights, an art show to be on display from July 10th until August 22nd in the lobby of the Brock Performing Arts Center, 622 N. Main Street, Mocksville.

The exhibition is for both two and three-dimensional works of art.

Artists may enter up to three works completed less than five years ago. Any work that has been displayed before will not be accepted. A juror will choose which works are exhibited from those pieces entered.

Art will be accepted from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, June 23rd -Friday, June 27th.

An entry fee of $5 per artist will be accepted at time of receiving.

The juror for Summer Highlights is Nancy Bruce, a freelance artist. She has experience in Textile Design, and has worked with many corporations in the textile industry. She has also taught at several arts organizations, including the South Carolina Arts Commission and the Sawtooth Center for Visual Art in Winston-Salem. Now she works with oils, acrylics, colored pencils, and all kinds of fabrics. She will be present at the reception, July 10th, 6:30-7:30 p.m., for a short presentation.

Please contact the Davie County Arts Council at (336) 751-3112 or info@daviearts.org

The exhibition is for both two and three-dimensional works of art.

Artists may enter up to three works completed less than five years ago. Any work that has been displayed before will not be accepted. A juror will choose which works are exhibited from those pieces entered.

Art will be accepted from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, June 23rd -Friday, June 27th.

An entry fee of $5 per artist will be accepted at time of receiving.

The juror for Summer Highlights is Nancy Bruce, a freelance artist. She has experience in Textile Design, and has worked with many corporations in the textile industry. She has also taught at several arts organizations, including the South Carolina Arts Commission and the Sawtooth Center for Visual Art in Winston-Salem. Now she works with oils, acrylics, colored pencils, and all kinds of fabrics. She will be present at the reception, July 10th, 6:30-7:30 p.m., for a short presentation.

Ryan Kildoo Earns Degree

Ryan Heath Kildoo of Advance has received a bachelor's degree in accounting from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

He was also named to the dean's list with a grade point ratio of 4.0.

Parents are his mother, Katherine Slater and stepfather, Dan Slater, all of Advance. His grandparents are the late Gabriel and Mildred Bales, and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Kildoo of Grove City, Pa.

He is the son of James and Julia Linville of Yadkinville and Cynthia Loggins of Cleveland, N.C. He is the grandson of Pauline and Frank Linville of Yadkinville and Peggy Swisher Summit of Thomasville.

Big Fish

George Johnson Haire of Mocksville caught this 3 lb. bass at a pond in Davie County. It was his first time with a hook on his line. George loves to go fishing with his daddy, Ed, and his Papa, George. On that day, they didn't catch a thing, but George sure did. George is the son of Ed and Joanna Haire.

Four Earn GWU Honors

Four Davie residents have earned academic honors at Gardner-Webb University for the spring semester.

Named to the dean's list with a 3.7 or higher grade point average was Denise Porter of Mocksville.

Named to the honor roll with minimum 3.2 grade point averages were Janet R. Dyson of Mocksville, and Laura Leah Pruitt and Joy Charlyne Lynch, both of Advance.

Linville Earns HS Diploma

James Matthew Linville of Wyo Road, Yadkinville, earned his high school diploma on Wednesday, May 14 at Davidson Community College.

He is the son of James and Julia Linville of Yadkinville and Cynthia Loggins of Cleveland, N.C. He is the grandson of Pauline and Frank Linville of Yadkinville and Peggy Swisher Summit of Thomasville.

He is the son of James and Julia Linville of Yadkinville and Cynthia Loggins of Cleveland, N.C. He is the grandson of Pauline and Frank Linville of Yadkinville and Peggy Swisher Summit of Thomasville.

Cornatzer Gets Degree

Adam James Cornatzer of Wyo Road, Yadkinville, formerly of Advance, graduated from Furubush High School on Friday, May 30.

He is the son of Julia and James Linville of Yadkinville and Rickey Cornatzer of High Point. He is the grandson of Tom and Shirley Cornatzer of Advance and Bill Pilcher of Asheville.

He plans to pursue a career in graphic design in the fall at Forsyth Technical Community College.
