

Ford Scores in NLRB Skirmish

Philip H. Phillips

Frederick H. Wood

Ford Motor company counsel scored a victory in preliminary skirmishes at the hearing before the federal circuit court of appeals at Covington, Ky., into an NLRB ruling when it blocked the NLRB from withdrawing the record of its case against the firm. This permission was sought by the labor board as a step toward vacating its ruling last December finding Ford guilty of violating the Wagner labor act. The apparent retraction by the NLRB is due to a recent supreme court ruling requiring the defendant as well as the plaintiff to be examined before the NLRB returns a decision. Since this procedure was not followed on the December ruling, the case must be reopened but to the disadvantage of the labor board since their case is a matter of record. Opposing each other at Covington are Philip H. Phillips, left, NLRB regional director, and Frederick Wood of New York, right, chief counsel for Ford.

The Corner Cupboard Column

Edited by M. J. H.

"Beneath those rugged elms, that yew-tree's shade, Where heaves the turf in many a mould'ring heap, Each in his narrow cell forever laid, The forefathers of the hamlet sleep.

Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife, Their sober wishes never learned to stray; Along the cool sequestered vale of life They kept the noiseless tenor of their way."

—Thomas Gray.

One of the oldest churches in this section of North Carolina is Eaton's Baptist church, at Cana, the congregation being organized on October 5, 1772. For many years it was known as Dutchman's Creek Baptist church, but in 1790 the church was re-organized, and the name was changed to Eaton's Baptist church. The first pastor was William Cook, and when the church was re-organized the pastor was Rev. Lazarus Whitehead, who later moved to Indiana. Several members of the Boone family were listed as members of this early church. The present handsome brick church was built in 1925, and is situated on a hill overlooking the surrounding country. The nearby graveyard is one of the most interesting in this vicinity, and contains many quaint inscriptions, many of the dates on the stones going far back into the past.

Quoting from notes taken in Eaton's cemetery, we will give names, and dates on some of the oldest tombstones, as they may be of interest to our readers. While a number of the inscriptions have been defaced by the marks of time, and other stones have only initials and dates, yet there are old soapstone markers whose lettering is very legible. Among the inscriptions are the following:

Jonathan Hunt, d. Sept. 5, 1780, in the 67th yr. of his age; Elizabeth Wilcoxson, dec. Dec. 15, 1782, aged 43 yrs.; Mary Jones, dec. Aug. 17, 1784, in the 16th yr. of her age; G. E. Wilcoxson, dec. Sep. 1784, aged 55 yrs.; Rebecca Smith, d. Aug. 12, 1785, aged 86 yrs.; Remains of A. C. Rich, 1787; John Eaton, dec. Sept. 1789, aged 73 yrs.; Agnes Hunt, dec. Oct. 29, 1792, in the 25th year of her age; James Andrews, d. Aug. 19, 1793, in the 63rd yr.; Jud. Hunt, d. July 29, 1798, in the 23rd yr. of her age; James Andrews, d. Sept. 23, 1799, in her 63rd yr.; Ebenezer Eaton, dec. Oct. 10, 1800; Priscilla Bayliff, d. March 30, 1801, in the 26th yr. of age; David Johnson, dec. Nov. 15, 1802; George Eaton, d. Jan. 2, 1803, in the 63rd yr. of his age; Andrew Hunt, d. Feb. 1803, in the 62nd yr. of his age; John Fletcher, d. July, 1802, in the 26th yr. of his age; Elizabeth Hunt, April 25, 1807, aged 41 yrs.; Hannah Wilson, d. Dec. 2, 1808, aged 42 yrs. It is our intention to continue these extracts from tombstones in Eaton's cemetery, though we do not have a complete list in our note-book.

SLANG COMMENDED BY N. CAROLINA PROFESSOR

Chapel Hill, N. C.—Dr. E. B. Erickson, of the University of North Carolina English department, commends use of "slang" as a revitalizer of the language.

"There must be constant ferment in language, much coining and recoinage, to keep it alive," the professor said in an address before the Faculty Philosophy of 1931.

Greenwich, Mass.—Searching Quabbin reservoir area for material to build a fireplace, Charles S. Knight found a 187-year-old handmade brick. Slightly smaller in length and width but a bit thicker than today's variety, the brick is clearly marked with the date 1651.

Science club, "and the scholar must not be too derivative of words like 'cow-catcher,' 'pusyfoot,' 'tame duck,' 'shoo-in,' and many thousands of their kind now current."

Dr. Erickson asserted that English abounds in striking values and rich metaphors because "from the beginning its supporters have recognized that language serves men, and not men language."

The English scholar deplored the various Greek and Latin "impacts" upon English as having destroyed the "self-interpreting quality" of English diction. The average man, he explained, would have no difficulty interpreting the word "fishlore," but he is completely stumped by the similar "ichthyology."

He commended German and Icelandic for having resisted this Latin and Greek enslavement.

YOUR OLD-AGE INSURANCE

CERTAIN TO BE PAID

Old-age insurance benefits will be paid to workers who are entitled to payment, regardless of property or other income. The amount of earnings (up to $3,000 in a single year from a single employer) which may be placed to a worker's credit on his recently tendered resignation Social Security account, will entitle him to a corresponding credit toward his old-age insurance benefits.

Whether he owns a great deal of property or none at all, makes no difference, whatever, in the matter of old-age insurance. For example, a labor foreman, has invested his savings in a farm. He continues to work as an employee of a construction company for sixteen years after 1936, earns wages amounting to several thousand dollars, reaches the age of 65 and retires to live on his farm. No matter what his farm is worth, he will be entitled to old-age insurance under the Social Security Act, he will get the monthly check, just the same.

The beneficiary of an insurance policy may receive old-age insurance. A worker who collects rent from houses, that he owns Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily, thou shalt be fed."—Psalms 37:3.

IT CAN'T BE FIGURED OUT

Speaking of the wage-hour bill the other day a well known garage man made this statement: "If some one up at Washington will figure out how I can pay a man 40 cents an hour for car washing and charge the owner for the work only 75 cents, I should be very glad." But it can't be done, unless the average worker works faster while washing a car than he does now. And if it can't be done that way, then there is only one thing to do and that is for the man who employs the 40 cents an hour worker to charge more for the wash. All of which goes to show again that Mr. Average Man always has the bills to pay.

FAMILY BUDGETS, OUCH!

Speaking of family budgets, some one handed Carl Goerch this one which was printed in his last week issue of The State, and is so human, and so like many men view it, that this publication feels it is doing a genuine public service to reproduce it. If you are receiving $15.00 a week you will be interested in this budget which tells you how to live on that amount:

Whiskey and beer	$8.80
Wife's beer	1.65
Meat, fish, groceries	On credit
Rent	Pay next week
Mid-week whiskey	1.50
Coal	Borrow from friends
Life insurance (wife's)	50
Cigars and cigarettes	60
Movies	60
Pinch club	60
Hot tips on horses	60
Laundry	60
Poker game	1.40

Total

(This means going in debt—so cut out the wife's beer.)

Wives who have husbands who figure out family budgets on this wise should be sure to see that they read this.

IS THAT SO?

"Wives Will Speak." Headline in the Monroe Journal. But that is not news. As a famous editor once said, if a dog bites a man, that's not news. But if a man bites a dog, or words to that effect, that's news. Of course, wives will speak. Every married man knows that. Had the Journal's headline been "Wives Will Not Speak," that is would have been the caption to a real news article.

But the Journal was telling how the wives of political candidates start stamping for votes for their husbands. Anyhow we hope they will not. Possibly we were born thirty years too soon, is why we say this.

"IT WILL NOT STAND"

The above was the caption over a recent editorial in the Shelby Star, a publication which has been known since the present Governor was its editor up to the present time, for its consistency in support of the Democratic party, State and National. The editor of the Star does not believe that the wage-hour bill will stand the test of application upon the industries of the United States, particularly the South. The Shelby publication goes on:

"Imposition of such a law as this upon the small business of the south will be nothing short of industrial murder upon many of them. Struggling as they are today they cannot stand a further burden in the form of standardized wages and hours exactly the same as those applied to the larger industries of the north and east."

In all fairness it must be said that the administration itself has indicated the need of a fixable scale of wages to apply to the various sections of the country dependent upon living costs standards and climate. However, administration supporters from the north have seized upon this bill as a vehicle to further

IN WASHINGTON

WHAT IS TAKING PLACE BY ROBT. R. REYNOLDS, UNITED STATES SENATOR

PRESS COMMENT

COMPARING AMERICAN DEPRESSIONS WITH THOSE OF WORLD AT LARGE

(The Charlotte Observer)

Other countries of the world seem to be getting along measurably well in leaping up out of the depression which set in during 1929 and continued, roughly, for four years, far better, in fact, than the United States.

Since consumers in the United States account for nearly 40 per cent of the world's consumption of primary goods, normally, economic conditions in the United States should exercise a major influence on the relative prosperity of the world as a whole.

The depression of 1929-32 was world-wide, and the curve showing decline of industrial production in the United States, as well as the upswing in 1933, was roughly paralleled in each of nine leading foreign countries, although the depression was distinctly less severe in the United Kingdom and Japan.

No such parallel exists in the current situation. The drop in the index of industrial production in this country from a peak of 118 last summer to a current level below 80 is unmatched in severity anywhere else in the world.

There have been slight recessions in all of the other leading countries except Poland, but many of these countries have already experienced a pronounced recovery.

The weighted index number for nine foreign countries in February, 1938, was 141, as compared with 79 in the United States.

In most countries, and in the world as a whole, the peak of industrial production was reached in the summer of 1937. World production for the whole of 1937 and 1938, 101.9 per cent of the volume in 1929, and world employment for 1937 was also slightly above 1929.

The contrast between economic changes in the United States and Great Britain during the last year is especially striking.

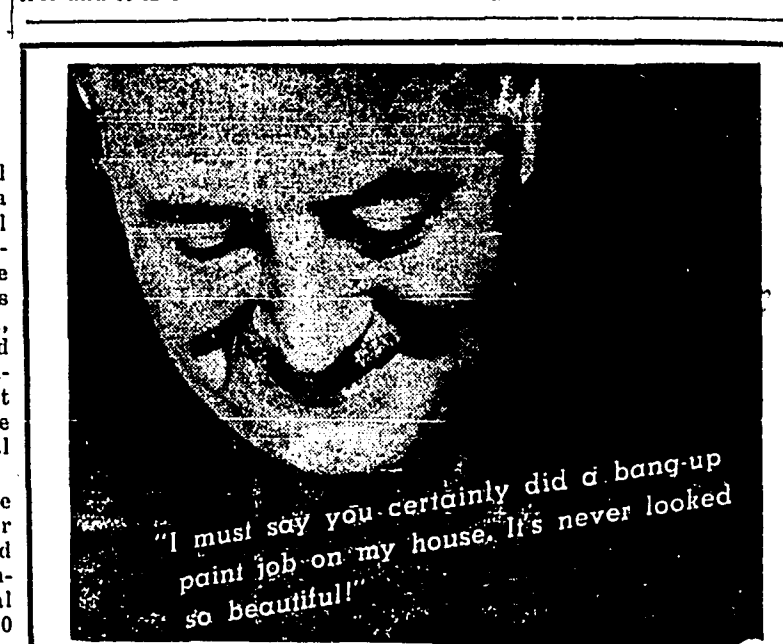

While the index figure for industrial production in this country was dropping from 117 in August, 1937, to 84 in December, the adjusted index for Great Britain compiled by the London Economist declined only from 113.5 to 111.

Armaments production undoubtedly has much to do with keeping up the average of industrial production in foreign countries, including England. The rate of steel consumption in England at the end of last year was 75 per cent above the 1929 level. In the United States in December, 1937, steel production was 50 per cent above the 1929-35 average. The adjusted figure was still 50 in April, 1938, as compared with 130 in April, 1937.

Buenos Aires, Argentina.—In an apparent effort to strengthen the power of the conservative land-owning native-born class in Congress, a bill has been presented in the Chamber of Deputies to amend the Argentinean constitution to permit only native-born Argentines to vote for Congressmen. If adopted, the restriction would greatly weaken the Socialist and other leftist parties, which are composed of many thousands of naturalized Europeans of the work-items in state budgets, Federal-aid road costs and efficiency in administration. Continuation of Federal-aid will, of course, be helpful in furthering road progress.

Daily Proof. Statisticians have just figured out that the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads and North Carolina has always cooperated in this program. The state has set a precedent for centralized road control and it is certain to mean low-

Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 5th, from Mark 14.

By A. C. HUNEYCUTT

The scene is a large room furnished with oriental furniture. In the center of the room is a table. This table was built somewhat in the form of three tables, one a short one with two longer ones arranged with the short one to be the head and the other two to fill up to it, forming a figure of the letter U. This was necessary since it was a dining table and the custom was to recline at the dining table on lounges, with the head toward the table and the feet from it. Such a table was, therefore, necessary in order to give the guests the opportunity of reclining on the two longer tables, and serve each guest.

Fifteen or more men reclined on couches around this table. Three of them are reclining at the head of the table. The man in the center is Simon, the leper. That is how he is designated, although he is now cured and in gratitude is serving a dinner to his physician and his followers, and Lazarus whom the same physician had raised from the dead. Reclining on the right, the place of honor, is Jesus of Nazareth. On his left is Lazarus. To the right and left down the two longer tables are Jesus' twelve disciples. The tables are being served by members of Simon's only family, assisted by two young women, Mary and Martha. The guests have all been served and each one is partaking of Simon's hospitality. We do not know what the conversation was about, but they are all possibly listening to the words of truth and wisdom falling from the faultless lips of the honor guest.

A Great Heart Empties Itself. From the same door whence these serving have brought the food into the room, enters a beautiful young woman. She is of the Mediterranean type, tall and slender, with large dark eyes and long glossy, jet black hair, hanging over her shoulders. Just inside the room she hesitates. She holds in her hands a marble jar filled with the most expensive ointment then known. She breaks the seal, opens the jar and the odor fills the room. Then she walks slowly and gracefully up the aisle between the two side tables. The eyes of the dinner party are all on her. They wonder. Nothing is said. When she gets to the head of the table, immediately in front of Jesus, she reverently kneels and pours a portion of the ointment on His head. Then she again walks down

Is Our Devotion to Christ Our Most Important Service?

I sometimes wonder whether or not God is more pleased with our personal devotion to Him than anything else we can do to serve Him. Is not devotion from the words of Jesus on this occasion that such might be the case.

Gratitude and devotion are the finest attributes of the soul. The beautiful young woman loved Jesus with all her heart. She was contented just to sit at His feet and listen to His matchless words. You will recall how once her sister Martha complained because she forgot to assist in serving, so she took the opportunity to pour out the ointment on His feet. Then she takes her long black hair and wipes His feet with it. Still silence for a moment. The disciples are aghast. The idea of deliberately pouring out $50.00 worth of ointment like that. But they did not know that she had poured out something vastly more precious than that. Was it not King David's devotion in gratitude to God most, and caused him to be designated as a "man after God's own heart?" One day he was thinking over the many blessings which God had bestowed upon him. How God had brought him up from the humble occupation of tending sheep and made him king of Israel, and how God had protected him and preserved him from all his enemies and had caused his kingdom to spread from Dan to Beersheba, and felt that he wanted to do something to show his gratitude. He desired to do the thing which would please God most. "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me?" he writes. Mocksville, is getting along nicely. And then he answers, after due reflection: "I will take the cup of cov-" salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord." He manifested that same devotion which Mary did at the home of Simon the leper. On another occasion, feeling a deep gratitude to God for His blessings, the impulse welled up in David's heart that he wanted to do something to express his devotion. "See now," he said to Nathan, "I dwell in a house of cedar, but the ark of God dwelleth within curtains." And he expressed a desire to build a house for God to dwell in. This fine impulse resulted in the glorious temple of Solomon.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

DR. SOPHIA BRUNSON
Learning To Appreciate Some of Our Blessings.
Some of the things out of which we get our blessings seem very queer to us from a human standpoint. For example, how can we derive any benefit from an illness? We experienced days of pain and discouragement. It seemed that life was so hard to live, that it would be much easier to die and yet the thread by which we held on, was somehow too tough to snap.
By the by living wasn't so hard any more, and we managed to get out of doors for the first time in perhaps many weeks. A panorama of loveliness overcame us. We did not know that the world was so beautiful before.
Somehow we had half forgotten how gorgeous was the sunlight, the green of the trees, the exquisite music of the birds, the flash of the fountains. The breeze felt so good upon our cheeks; how fresh everything looked. The sheer beauty overwhelmed us. We did not realize before that things could be so enchanting.
As we go about again the faces of friends light up as they tell us how glad they are that we are getting well again. We remember with gratitude their many kindnesses, how they brightened the dull days by an occasional visit or gifts of fruit, flowers and delicacies.
We did not realize before how wonderful friends are. Somehow when we are well and busy they don't come so close to us, and show their real love for us as they do when we are shut in by illness. Why there are some folks that we did not know ever gave us a thought, until we were down and out. Then they come to comfort and cheer us with the rest, and just warmed our hearts to realize that there was so much goodness and sympathy in the world. Out of sickness and pain came an appreciation of the marvels of nature; things had changed somehow so much since we had been sick that our eyes were opened to see beauty where we had formerly thought that the world was commonplace.

God had always been so good to us that we just got into the habit of taking that for granted too. But He was so gracious when He kept that tiny spark of life glimmering, and did not permit the slender thread to break. Then too, He seemed to come nearer to us and we realize as never before that we have strength only as the good God gives it to us.
While thinking about the many blessings that come to us from pain and suffering, we realize that the Almighty works through His servants, the earthly physicians. How patient and kind our doctors are; how they cheer us every time they come to minister to us, and to relieve our sufferings. Truly an illness may be an evil thing, but it teaches us to appreciate many of life's most valuable blessings.
WELL PREPARED HAY IS HIGHER IN FEED VALUE
Thick-stemmed hay cut at the wrong time, improperly cured, and filled with weeds has comparative little feed value.
A good hay should be leafy, small-stemmed, free from weeds, and have a good green color, said John A. Arey, extension dairy specialist at State college.
Many farmers make the mistake of waiting too late to cut their hay. The result is that the plants have thick stems with much crude fiber and a smaller proportion of leaves.
Rapid curing is desirable. Cut only in dry weather, rake the hay into windrows and let it cure before placing it in the barn. If the windrows are turned over about three hours before the hay is to be hauled to the barn, the curing process will be speeded up.
Over-curing damages the hay. And if under-cured hay is stored in the barn, it will generate

Black-Booking
The Senate recently adopted a bill to abolish "black-booking" of motion pictures and to require film directors to furnish exhibitors with a "true synopsis" of each picture offered them. The measure was passed without a record vote although two years have elapsed between its introduction and action upon the bill by the Senate. The chances of the bill becoming a law are extremely slim because a similar measure is pending in the House. Consequently, the measure would have to climb through various committee stages before coming to a vote in the House. This is not likely in view of the expected early adjournment of Congress.

BONDS AND NOTES
Under a law passed some twenty years ago, the securities of the Federal Government were limited to twenty-five billions of dollars in long-term bonds and twenty millions of short-term issues. Recently the House passed a bill permitting the indebtedness to be shifted in any manner desired within the limitation of the former bill. In the Senate, however, the measure was altered to provide limits of $30,000,000 and $15,000,000 for long and short-term securities, respectively. The purpose of the legislation is to permit the Treasury to have some leeway in handling the public debt and to allow it to convert some of the short-term issues into long-term bonds in order to eliminate constant re-financing.

RELIEF
Discussing the relief situation in the nation recently, Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, said about 2,600,000 persons were on relief in the middle of May and the number might be increased to an even 3,000,000. He predicts that many, if not all of the 800,000,000 now receiving unemployment insurance payments, would be added to the relief rolls when their benefits expired. The present relief situation, in his opinion, is serious and likely to become "more so."

Science Helping Conquer Major Industrial Menace

Humidity "Curtain" Minimizes Dangers From Static Electricity

Artificial lightning experiment

Spinning wheels generate current

Paper mills have same problem

By FRANK ASWELL
International Illustrated News Writer
NEW YORK—Science is winning a whip hand over static electricity, the "bad boy" of industry that causes property damage estimated at millions of dollars annually.

Scientists are harnessing, with ingenious methods, the hazards of the miniature strokes of lightning which are like the tiny bolts that shock the nervous system into dancing a jig when the hand contacts a metal door knob.

The U. S. bureau of mines reported, after a lengthy survey, that more than 25,000 manufacturing plants in the nation, employing over 1,250,000 workers and making products valued annually in excess of $10,000,000,000, were menaced by dust explosions caused by static electricity.

Atmospheric Curtain Created
Static sparks, created by moving machinery and other materials in motion, have been the cause of numerous plant disasters, according to the bureau of mines, with a huge toll of lives and property damage. The sparks, passing through the dust-laden atmosphere, ignite the tiny dust particles which burn almost instantly with the explosive violence of dynamite.

By creating a "curtain" of humid atmosphere, the wizards of science have curbed the cause of many dust explosions in major branches of industry, including silk mills, paper and rubber manufacturing, and wood turning.

Dr. Harold Torgerson, professor of electrical engineering at New York university, said after extensive experiments designed to reduce the danger of static that humidified air "tends to equalize the static charge and to lessen the danger of shock from charged particles and causes property damage estimated at millions of dollars annually."

Workmen were seriously menaced by static charges from the sandblast, an implement which expels sand or cut steel in a stream attaining 50 miles an hour or more to polish the roughness from metal castings and other materials, until engineers in the laboratories of Goodrich company eliminated the danger by perfecting a spiral ground wire running through the rubber hose. The wire acts as a "lightning rod."

Dr. W. F. Bussie, head of the research laboratory, said tests showed the static electricity generated by the rushing stream of sand or steel attained intensity ranging up to 50,000 volts, enough to knock a workman flat on his back. Sandblast reported sparks as long as 17 inches which tore through the wall of the hose and were of sufficient intensity to cause explosions.

Long "webs" of paper and sheets of silk, processed under high speed, have caused untold damage in mills in the past by creating high charge of static electricity, but science is curtailing the menace to property and lives by introducing higher humidity.

Dr. Harold Torgerson, professor of electrical engineering at New York university, said after ex-

WITH GEORGE

In the term of the Supreme Court which ended last week Justice MacReynolds was the leading dissenter, being on the objecting end twenty-eight times. Next came Justice Butler, with twenty-one dissents, and then Justice Black, with sixteen dissents. Chief Justice Hughes had no dissents during the session.

The shelving of Reorganization legislation eased the load on Congress and cleared the way for a conference with the President. Congressmen announced the postponement of any effort to reorganize the governmental machinery at this session but with a came a statement that reorganization would be taken up immediately upon the opening of the next Congress.

The highly advertised efforts to bring the Administration and business leaders into something like harmony is not making much progress. The President is reported to think that the price of business cooperation is too high. Observers say that businessmen insist on amending the Wagner act creating the National Labor Relations Board, acceptance of Tax Law Revisions voted by Congress and opposed by the President, peace with the utilities and a promise not to continue new projects. In brief, business is ready to cooperate if the President will agree to terms.

With unemployment increasing in the land and few, if any, indications that private enterprise is ready or willing to promote improvement through spending for expansion or investment, the economic picture is not reassuring.

Even if the industrial situation improves, the nation would still face the problem of agriculture. With prices of farm products considerably below those of a year ago, and with present prospects of crop yields that will accentuate accumulated surpluses, the chances of farm prosperity are not bright. In fact, unless government action in the form of benefit payments and crop control maintains farm buying power, the farmers of the country will face difficult times.

Readers are familiar with the constant cry of business leaders for governmental cooperation. The air is filled with cries of industrialists who assert that every-thing will be all right if the government will stop "persecuting" business. The chief objectives of the spokesmen for industry have been the repeal of the undistributed profits tax and the capital gains tax. Both of these taxes have been modified by the recent tax measure which the President allowed to become law without his signature. At the same time, Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that he did not consider the discussion closed and that, in the future, he would press vigorously for the retention of both taxes.

Senators who have listened to the suggestions of business leaders, reflect that lower taxes have been the rallying cry of the industrialists. The boom that was promised, upon their repeal, has not yet developed. In fact, it will take much more than tax reform to bring about real recovery in this country. Everyone knows that we had depressions in this country before either of these taxes existed in such drastic forms and consequently, the idea that their modification alone will produce a golden era is almost absurd.

For demonstration purposes, the agriculture department is considering placing high density compressing machines at ten or 12 ginning establishments in various sections of the cotton belt.

The sample would eliminate, officials said, the common practice of cutting a bale every time a sample is drawn—a practice which has contributed to the ragged appearance of American cotton.

Norris cited letters from foreign spinners saying they were turning more and more to Brazilian,

United States Will Promote Sale Cotton

Washington, June 13.—Uncle Egyptian, Indian and other foreign cotton largely because of a neater and more uniform bale. The Egyptian bale is considered the nation's leading agricultural export product.

The money would be used to "dress up" the American bale of cotton so that it might stand on a par in appearance with cotton of competing countries in the world market.

Plans for the dressing up program are being prepared by the agriculture department largely as a result of a report of its foreign cotton market specialists, P. K. Norris, that the American bale is a "disgrace" in appearance.

the present depression business condition.

In 1937, economists of the Department of Agriculture estimated that the United States had a farm plant of about 350,000,000 acres. This was about sixty million acres more than necessary to produce food, feed and fiber for domestic consumption. The products of the sixty million excess acres, available for export, was about one-fourth more than was necessary to serve foreign demands.

With fifteen to twenty million acres of farm land under plow in excess of current demand conditions, the problem of agriculture was to discover methods that would take this land out of cultivation. This was necessary in order to prevent the surplus production from driving prices down on the entire crop.

It is now apparent that by the end of this year, there will be large surpluses of wheat, corn and cotton. Already prices of these farm products reflect the possibility that the world will have crops far in excess of prospective needs. Consequently, it is certain that the farmers of the United States will face the necessity of controlling their production or of accepting ruinously low prices. Governmental bounties and payments can hardly be high enough to give growers the income that they would receive if the production is kept within reasonable bounds.

Nearly two hundred youngsters will attend the twelfth consecutive National 4-H club encampment, to be held in West Potomac Park in Washington, June 16-22. Two boys and two girls from each state, members of 4-H clubs, will represent approximately 1,192,000 rural boys and girls now engaged in club work.

While in Washington, the representatives of the various states will have outstanding speakers in the field of agriculture and home-making, including the Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace. They will have the opportunity to visit governmental and historic shrines.

Readers of this column should not overlook the fine work being done by the 4-H club organizations throughout the United States. Boys and girls in agricultural sections are developing in farming, home-making and leadership. They will undoubtedly become better citizens because of the club work that they do.

The only criticism that the writer can think of in connection with the encampment in Washington, is the limited number of such boys and girls who attend. It seems that plans could easily be made to take care of the attendance of many more than the limited number included in the encampment. In fact the government would probably be doing a good work if it would provide a permanent camp in or near the Capitol City to take care of boys and girls, either in clubs or schools who desire to visit the nation's Capital.

DOUGHTON BASK AFTER ILLNESS

Washington, June 8.—Representative Robert L. Doughton has returned to his office at the Capitol after an extended absence because of illness.

The Ninth district congressman underwent an operation here May 14. He has recuperated, physicians say, with amazing rapidity.

Although he has been advised to rest, the congressman is expected today to look over his mail and to dictate a number of letters. He received few visitors, but did spend some time on the floor of the House checking up on the prospects of a bill sponsored by the agriculture committee, of which he is chairman.

Fair visitor—Oh, don't trouble to see me to the door.

Hostess—No trouble at all, my dear. It's a pleasure.

In fact, farmers may as well understand that unless the nation succeeds in its attempt to prevent huge surpluses of farm products, there is extreme danger of a repetition of a deflation in agricultural values that had much to do with the economic collapse of the United States in 1932. There are experts who now believe that the fast decline in the price levels in basic farm commodities in 1937 was the major factor in producing

Off The Square

By L. L. CRANFORD

Just saw Rev. W. C. Cooper, the Presbyterian minister, hot-footing it around town early this morning checking up on his members, probably wanting to know why some of them failed to attend church and Sunday school. From outside sources we learn that he has done a splendid work with his church since coming here from Stanley county. He doesn't confine his ministry to Sunday, but is in the city every day. And the same is true of every other minister we've seen locally.

E. R. Barneycastle, of route 1, was a visitor at the office Saturday to renew his subscription. Incidentally, it developed during the course of a conversation that Mr. Barneycastle is probably the record-holder for length of subscription to The Enterprise. He said that he had taken the paper regularly for approximately 50 years. Thanks a lot for your kind words, Mr. Barneycastle, and we hope you'll be taking it for many more years to come.

Another Saturday visitor was Thomas W. Rich, who might aptly be called Mocksville's No. 1 citizen. It was he who donated to the town one of the most beautiful small parks to be found in this or any other state. Fifty acres of land, admirably suited for park use, located less than a mile from the heart of town. Bubbling springs of pure, cool water. Shady nooks where the weary traveler may pause for rest and relaxation. And almost any kind of tree that grows in this territory may be found within the park's bounds. As the years pass on his gift will be more appreciated.

Dennis' garden, which we mentioned last week, is blossoming like the proverbial rose. He showed a squash last week that was almost as large as a watermelon. Everything growing nicely, he says. Just imagine what that fellow would do on a hundred-acre farm. It would bankrupt the government to keep him from raising so much stuff.

If you haven't seen the picture of the week, which happened near town last week, turn to it now. Study it carefully. Then you'll be forced to agree that nothing short of a miracle saved some of the machine's occupants from a horrible death when it crashed into that tree.

Wonder if it was an error on the part of the designer, or just intended that the word "soldier" on the Boone Trail Marker at the courthouse should be misspelled. Anyway, there it is, just as plain as day, "soldier." But it's a nice marker, and the spelling isn't so important. We even make errors on The Enterprise occasionally. Had you noticed it?

New markings for the parking spaces. And the law says to use them properly. In other words, hunt a parking space and park between the lines rather than the other way around. Just any old place that is convenient.

For a smooth salesman, well, nominate Mr. Winecoff, down at the Plymouth place. Saw him handling a prospect the other day, and it was a pleasure to watch. No high-pressure, no urging to buy. Reminded us of a patient, wise angler, who never jerks the pole until the fish has been securely hooked.

More and more farmers over the county taking up the practice of planting trees along the boundaries of their fields, and planting shrubbery around their homes. It's a practice that will pay big dividends in beauty and increase property valuation in years that are to come.

Sixty-one pupils took advantage of the facilities for Bible study offered during the school, under the supervision of Miss Ruth Booe, general chairman. Assisting Miss Booe during the two weeks term were Misses Helen Avett, Gertrude Moore, Helen Daniels, Helen Craven, Dorothy Craven, Messrs. W. H. Long and W. H. Kimrey. Following the close of the session Friday a social hour was enjoyed, during which refreshments were served to teachers and pupils.

A Correction

In the Enterprise of Thursday, June 16, a regrettable error occurred when the name of Lee Bowles, who lives three miles west of Mocksville, was included in a story regarding the theft of tools from Rich Park recently.

The Enterprise regarded the source of its information as accurate, but has since found that Mr. Bowles was not implicated in any way in the theft, possession or receiving of the tools from the park. It was simply a case of receiving misleading information.

We deeply regret the error and equally appreciate the fine message in which Mr. Bowles took the incident. Those who know him and his excellent family would never for a moment have believed him guilty of the things mentioned in the story.

CANADA DEMONSTRATION CLUB MEETS

The Cana Hone Demonstration club met Wednesday afternoon, June 15, with Mrs. J. C. Collette. The president, Mrs. M. D. Pope, presided over the meeting.

The club sang for its opening song, "The Old North State" and repeated the club collect. The local program consisted of poems and a bird guessing contest.

Miss Mackie was not present to give the program, but instead some of the members told about their trip to the Federation meeting at Dobson. Mrs. J. H. Ferebee also told of her recent trip to the capitol, Washington, D. C.

FINE HEALTH PROGRAM ANTICIPATED IN COUNTY

Persons in this county who have been interested in efforts to have a health officer by the state board of health. This officer, Dr. Forth-Stokes-Yadkin health district, read with pleasure the following dispatch carried in last Thursday's issue of The Winston-Salem Journal:

The Forsyth county board of health Wednesday approved the addition of Davis county to the Forsyth-Stokes-Yadkin health district. This action consummated a movement begun three months ago in Davis county. It becomes effective July 1. It also sent well above 100,000 the rural population the district health department will serve. With about 15,000 people, Davis has the smallest population per square mile of any county in the state. "For this reason," said Dr. J. R. Hoge, district health officer, "we anticipate an unusually effective health program."

Two health nurses will work portion of the district health program.

Kills Wife and Man Manager Expresses Thanks To Public

John Lewis Confronting his wife and her sweetheart in an automobile on a busy Chicago street, Patrolman John Lewis shot and killed the other man, Harry Johnson, 40, and then turned the gun on his wife when she allegedly said, "John, you might as well kill me, too!" The wife, Phyllis, 40, was fatally wounded. Patrolman Lewis said he was trying to persuade the two to part and not see each other again, when his wife giggled, causing him to lose control of himself.

PETERS SHOES AGENCY SECURED BY JOHNSON

W. J. Johnson Department store of Mocksville, has been named as dealers for the famous Peters Diamond Shoes, known nationally for their excellent quality and reasonable price.

Five hundred pairs of these shoes were received last week, and Mr. Johnson reports that sales have been very satisfactory. In order to make room for future shipments, Mr. Johnson is offering rare bargains in other shoes for the remainder of this month.

Many Attending Vacation School

An average daily attendance of 65 is being registered at the Vacation Bible school at the Baptist church, according to reports from those in charge, and much interest is being shown. The school started several days ago, and the enrollment has been good from the start.

Commencement exercises for the school will be held Friday night, and those in charge of the work extend a cordial invitation to the public to attend.

TRUCK TO COLLECT TRASH ON SATURDAY

In order to clear up some confusion which has arisen as to the proper time to prepare trash and garbage for carting away this week, Mayor T. I. Caudell said yesterday that citizens are requested to prepare trash and have it ready Friday afternoon, so that the town truck may collect it early Saturday morning of this week. After this week, according to Mr. Caudell, the truck will make its rounds the last Saturday in each month.

Manager Expresses Thanks To Public

After several weeks of work, those in charge of the installation of the new telephone system for Mocksville announced yesterday that the end of operations was in sight, and that by the end of the present week patrons of the system would be enjoying the advantages of a greatly improved service.

Cutting-in of all phones is expected to be completed by the end of this week, and all the old equipment will have been taken out by the end of next week according to present plans.

Mrs. Helen Davis, chief operator at Elkin, has been in the city for the past several days, instructing local operators in the use of the new switchboard, which is radically different from the one formerly used. She is being assisted in this work by Miss Daisy Hughton, of Mt. Airy.

O. D. Danmore, district manager of the Central Electric and Telephone company of Charlottesville, Va., together with W. S. Bradford, sectional superintendent of the company, have spent the major portion of this week in the city, and have expressed satisfaction with the progress of installing the new system. They stressed the fact that they wished to express, on behalf of the company, their appreciation for the spirit of co-operation shown by property owners and local citizens as a whole. There has been no vestige of a hitch, according to these officials, as they went about their work, pruning trees and shrubbery and otherwise trespassing upon property rights of citizens.

Construction work has been under the supervision of W. D. Ellledge and A. K. Garber, division switchboard installer. It might be interesting to note that during the course of local operations 14,000 feet of new cable has been laid, entailing much time and labor on the part of the highly trained crew that has been stationed here.

New telephones, all of the convenient French type, are now being cut-in hourly. Perhaps by the time you read this article you may be able to pick up your telephone and, instead of twisting the old-fashioned "ringer," all you have to do will be to tap the polite answer of the switchboard operator. And when your call shall have been completed, there will be no need for "ringing off." The automatic switchboard will take care of that detail for you. And you'll find many other improvements in the service as you get more familiar with the advantages and facilities it offers.

It was said yesterday that the work of installing would be completed this week, but that a crew would be retained here for several days clearing up odds and ends and attending to minor troubles which may crop up following the installation and use of the new system.

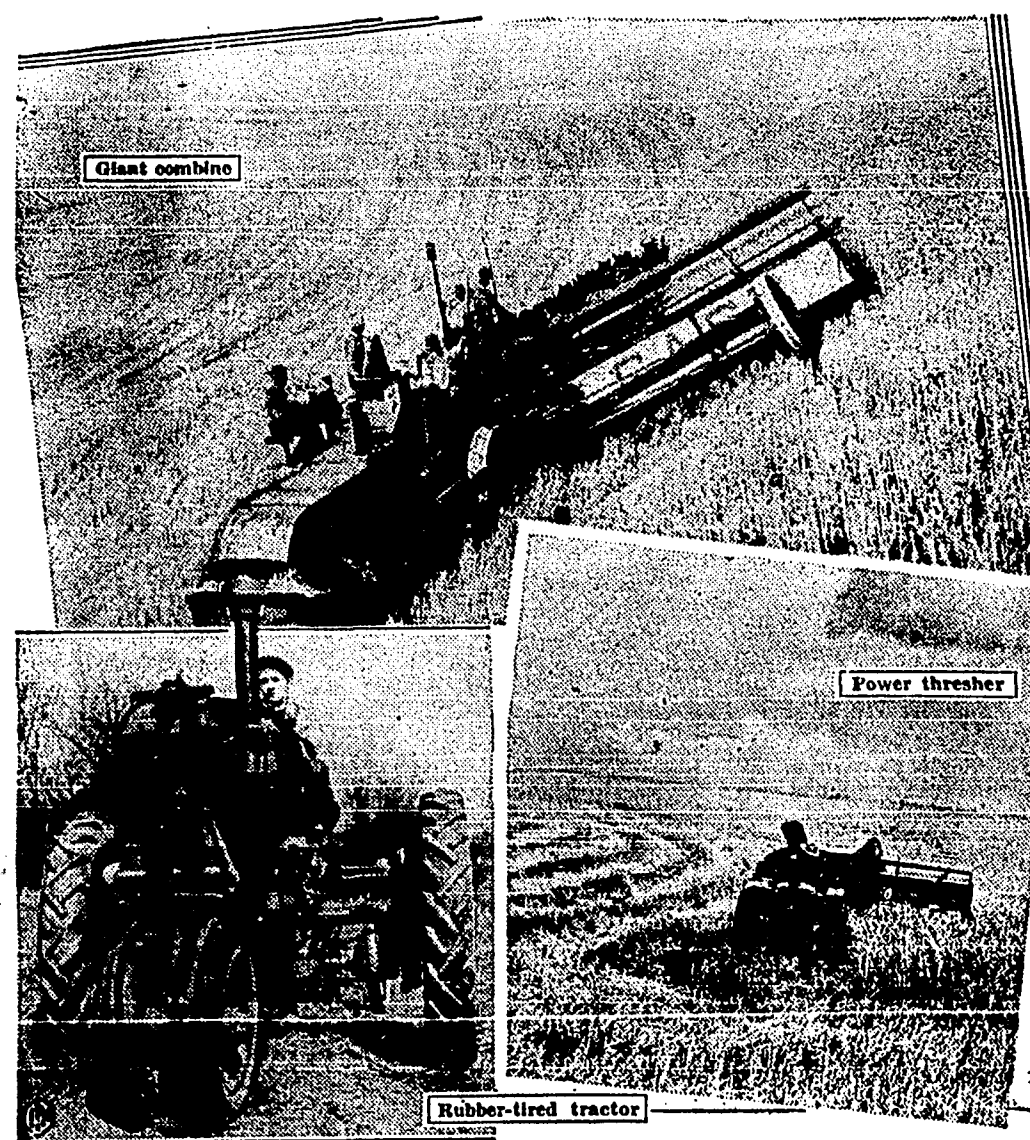

Metodist Young People To Meet

There will be two assemblies, one on July 1-2, for ages 15, 16 and 17. The other is to be held July 11-16, for ages 18-23.

Six delegates from each pastoral charge of Methodist churches in Davis county, according to Mr. Clayton, should be sent for each of the assemblies.

Sale of Farm Machinery Increases After Jump in Revenue From Crops

Total Purchases of New Agricultural Equipment in 1938
Expected to Exceed $600,000,000

By WILLIAM CHALKER
International Harvester Company
NEW YORK—America's 6,500,000 farmers, from "dust bowl" to the "golden west", will spend an estimated $600,000,000 this year on modern farm equipment—an average of $92.30 apiece—according to reports of industrial leaders.

In the wake of earnings totaling $8,499,941,000 in 1937, it was estimated that the nation's farmers plan to "plow back" between five and six per cent of their crop revenue in a modernizing movement.

The Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company listed 1938 first quarter sales about $5,000,000 over those of the same period of 1937, and reported that shipments from its LaCrosse plant were running 400 carloads behind orders. To this was added reports from J. I. Case, manufacturing company, that sales had been "holding up well" since last October, giving evidence of bright prospects for 1938 despite the international harvester company's report that its domestic sales declined through March.

The mechanical revolution of the farm, which has been going forward steadily for the past several years, has added an encouraging note to heavy industry, especially metals and rubber, which has met the increased demand for modern equipment with a number of developments designed to aid the farmer.

Last year, industrial reports showed, farmers purchased over $320,533,222 of mechanical implements, and $19,000,000 of rubber tires. The tire purchases according to S. B. Robertson, president of the B. F. Goodrich company, were $18,000,000 more than those of 1937.

Horse Fast Disappearing
Since 1930, mechanized equipment has replaced 15 per cent of the horses and mules on the farm. The farm census disclosed that there are slightly more than 2,000,000 horses and mules tilling the soil in comparison with 17,200,000 a year ago, representing a decrease in the Italian army, from disease in Africa during the conduct of war was less than it was during the same period of time among the troops in Italy.

Sir Aldo asserts that according to all past experience of previous wars where white troops were employed in Africa the deaths from disease should have been more than 20,000. Malaria gave no serious concern in spite of the fact that large parts of Ethiopia were terribly malarial. Out of half a million men 1241 cases of malaria were admitted to hospitals with 23 deaths from pernicious forms. Such a record is unprecedented in the history of the world and it proves to us that quinine is the prophylactic par excellence in the prevention of malaria.

If you live in a climate where you are exposed to malaria, remember the experiences of the Italian army in Ethiopia. If quinine protected them from the disease under such adverse conditions, it will do the same for you if you follow their example. Remember that in a malaria ridden land they took three grains of quinine three times a day as a prophylactic against the scourge, and in a few months conquered a country in which it has been freely predicted they would nearly all die of disease as other white troops had done before them.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

DR. SOPHIA BRUNSON

The Prophylactic Value of Quinine.

The people of the United States can learn a very valuable lesson in the prevention of malaria from experience of the Italian army in Ethiopia.

It is an axiom of history that white troops sent into tropical countries become so disabled and demoralized by sickness, especially malaria, that it is more difficult to conduct a successful campaign against disease than it is against man made implements of war.

In an article published in the Military Surgeon, July 1937, Sir Aldo Castellani, supreme head of all departments of medical service in the Italy-Ethiopian war, said, "In the Great War of 1914-18 the real cause that paralyzed the advance of the Allied Armies for so long in Macedonia was malaria. Who does not remember the Struma Valley? I have seen battalions with 95 per cent of the soldiers and officers stricken with malaria a month after arrival." In the East African Expeditionary Force in 1917 the average ratio strength was 50,702 men and officers; there were 72,141 admissions to hospitals for malaria with 498 deaths over a period of a few months.

When it became known that Mussolini intended to invade Ethiopia, dire prophecies of failure poured from the press of the world. It was predicted that if any of the men escaped the bullets of the Abyssinians they would die of disease. But Italy profited from the lessons of the past. Under Sir Aldo Castellani and his brilliant staff of physicians, many of whom had seen service in hostile climates, the most effective medical service in the history of the world was organized.

Malaria had proved such a scourge in previous wars that extraordinary consideration was given to its prophylaxis, especially as it prevailed to an alarming extent in East Africa. Long before hostilities began, every branch of the medical service had been thoroughly organized and coordinated. All were especially trained to fight malaria and other tropical diseases. In sending supplies to Africa, medical materials actually took precedence over munitions. "Months before hostilities began," reports Sir Aldo, "enormous quantities of quinine together with necessary drugs and hospital equipment had been shipped into Africa." The war started October 3, 1935 and ended May 9, 1936. During that period 500,000 white men had been sent into Africa, the largest number of troops ever transported to fight in a tropical territory. It had previously been believed that on account of disease only native soldiers should be employed to carry on a war in a tropical climate. Sir Aldo Castellani states, "According to the experiences of German East Africa during the Great War, we should have expected an enormous number of admissions to hospitals for malaria well over 400,000 and over 2,500 deaths from it."

"What were the prophylactic measures taken? With the troops continuously on the move and the enormous extension of ground, mechanical prophylaxis, such as mosquito nets and other measures, were impossible to carry out. From the beginning we insisted on quinine prophylaxis. Each soldier took three tablets of quinine sulphate of biphosphoric acid of quinine, three grains each, three times a day. Badoglio himself the commanders-in-chief of the various territories and officers, all set the example by taking the quinine three times a day at meal times."

The men did not dare to evade taking the quinine, for their urine was tested with a reagent which showed whether they had taken it or not. Now what were the results? While the poor Ethiopians died by the thousands of malaria and other diseases, the Italians maintained a high degree of health. It is an actual fact that the mortality

Tough Denver Course Boosts Scores at Open

Gallery watches tourney stars putt. Baffled by fast greens and tricky fairways, the cream of the nation's golfers saw their scores soaring in the national open tourney over Cherry Hills course at Denver, Colo., above. Henry Fildes of Hershey, Pa., Jimmy Hines of Great Neck, N. Y., and Ralph Guldahl, defending champion, were among the leaders in the early rounds. Guldahl is shown putting on the 16th green.

Death and Destruction Left by Japanese Bombs

Desolated street in Hanchow after air raids. Taking a terrific toll of property damage and thousands of lives, Japanese planes left such cities as Hanchow, above, and Canton in shambles after repeated air raids. More than half of Canton's 1,000,000 population has been evacuated and Hanchow is almost a deserted city with whole sections such as that above, left, without a house standing or a street left unscarred.

Off The Square

By L. L. CRANFORD

Don't know who the men were talking about, but just in passing the other day I heard an excellent story about some man who was running for the office of sheriff. So sure was he of being elected, according to the story, that even before election day he bought himself a pair of handcuffs and a large, shiny revolver. Now that's what we'd call an optimist.

That big apricot tree across the street is loaded to the top with ripe fruit. It's getting plenty of attention, too. Wonder if there'd be any chance of knocking off a few when they get ripe?

Thanks to the Mayor for his kind words. We're trying to make this as good a weekly newspaper as possible and it certainly doesn't hurt our feelings when somebody lets us know that they appreciate our efforts.

Plenty of interest getting stirred up in this county baseball league, according to reports. Haven't been able to see any of the games, as they are played at the wrong time for us. But, remembering personal experience years ago, we venture the suggestion that these boys that play for the fun of it every Saturday afternoon are getting more out of baseball than the professionals.

A good Republican told us the other day that it might be a good idea for Dave county to go Republican this fall. The speaker wasn't intimating that he had forsaken the principles of his party, either. He took the position that should the county go Democratic it might be able to get a lot more Federal money and other attention than it is now getting.

Some player on the Coolee or Coolee club owes me an advance on the Coolee club. He owes me for damage to an automobile top. The other night a foul ball went over the fence and landed squarely on top of the aforesaid car tearing a large hole. And to make bad matters worse, the ball bounced off of the hole, thereby depriving my three boys of the use of a good baseball.

Pap Leach, the new father at the Enterprise office, is getting some valuable experience these days. Knows how to heat milk and do lots of other things which are familiar to the old-timers.

Telephone crew rapidly completing a first-class job. If you didn't see those cable-splitters doing their work, you missed something. Sitting astride a swinging board, with an umbrella shielding them from the sun, they can manipulate wires like nobody's business.

Mr. Stroud, over at the tax office, says that taxes for 1937 are paid up better than the average at this time, and that many people are already paying their taxes for 1938. This shows that the farmers and other residents of the county are in pretty fair condition financially. It takes a mighty-well fixed man to pay his taxes before they are due.

These Democrats around town, and over the county, so far as that goes, are really getting into the swing of the season. Undaunted by former reverses at the polls, they profess a belief that they have an excellent chance to win in the November election. They are at least going to put out their best efforts to this end.

W. J. Johnson, merchant, is about the hardest fellow in Mocksville to pin down long enough to talk advertising. He's always busy with the affairs of his Kerner's store and Mocksville stores. Even at that, he uses a considerable amount of ad space every year.

We still contend that there's a great opportunity here for some hardy-souled contractor who will build about 10 or 15 good houses for rent. Labor is plentiful, materials are fairly priced, and the man who builds now will reap a nice reward.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau calls the foreign trade of the United States "the only bright spot in the business picture." He says that he does not know what would have happened if it had not been for the stabilization fund, the tri-partite agreement, and Mr. Hull's reciprocal trade agreement policies.

As a result of the Supreme Court's recent decision in the New York City Authority case, some 780,000 State employees throughout the country have feared that an effort might be made to collect retroactive Federal income taxes on their salaries. For this reason, a bill has been prepared by experts of the Treasury, assisted by representatives of the Attorney-General, twenty-six states, to suspend the operation of all revenue acts and regulations in respect to such retroactive taxes.

Harry L. Hopkins, WPA Administrator, whose comment on the present Iowa primary election resulted in something of a political uproar throughout the country recently took occasion to deny that he had never been registered as a member of the Socialist Party in New York or elsewhere. His statement had intimidated a mass.

George H. Payne, a member of the Federal Communications Commission, recently charged that lobbyists had attempted to influence the decision of one of his fellow commissioners. He charged that free competition is disappearing in the broadcasting field and that the broadcasters seek the "spoils" rather than the production of beneficial programs.

Torpedo explosions heard all over the southern part of Philadelphia were explained by experiments made at the Navy Yard to test a new "shell-proof" hull which may revolutionize battleship construction. The new design, said to be an outgrowth of the so-called blaster developed by the British Navy in the World War. Experiments in this country have been suspended since the Naval Treaty of 1922, but the new billion-dollar building program of engineers to work to perfect new defenses against torpedoes.

William O. Douglas, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, charged that the utility industry, for the most part, is bogged down in a morass of accumulated unpaid dividends amounting to more than $400,000,000.

He contends that the industry is tremendously over-capitalized and that its present plight is a result of being blamed on this condition. Mr. Douglas asserts that forty-six per cent of the $3,800,000,000 of preferred stock on registered holding companies and their subsidiaries in the hands of the public are in arrears.

He says the financial problems of the industry had their origin in the "fair weather policies of the '20s" which for many companies resulted in an all-time peak of irresponsibility in the late twenties. He insists that the public utilities holding company act did not create the situation, which is a result and not a cause of the financial headache.

Wholesale power rates proposed by Administrator J. D. Ross for the Bonneville Dam project have been approved in substance by the Federal Power Commission. Grant of the license to the project, which is the lowest ever proposed in the United States for wholesale power and are based on the kilowatt year, an innovation in American rate computation. For power purchased at the dam for industrial use, the charge will be $14.50 a kilowatt year.

Declaring that many of the nation's economic ills are attributed to the blighting hand of monopoly, Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator of the WPA, says today that more than 25 per cent by value of the products were higher in price last April than they were a year before, despite the devastating drop in business. Back of most of these controlled prices, he asserted, is a case of profiteering. Mr. Williams pointed out that the steel industry has maintained its prices while production has fallen off per cent since last year.

Washington, July 5.—The national resources committee reported today the proportion of negroes in the population of most southern states has been decreasing. The committee's section on population problems found: "The northward migration of negroes has been almost entirely to large urban centers. In 1930, 88 per cent of the negro population of the north lived in cities. The situation in the south presents a striking contrast to this only 32 per cent of all southern negroes live in cities. The percentage of southern negroes who are found in cities has been rising, but the proportion of the southern white population living in cities has been increasing more rapidly, so that the proportion of negroes in the southern population is decreasing."

Burgin Apparent Winner In Run-Off Last Saturday

In one of the closest Congressional races on record in this district William O. Burgin of Lexington received a majority of 39 votes over C. B. Deane, Rockingham man, in Saturday's primary. Mr. Deane, however, is of the opinion that the balloting was entirely too close for him to concede victory, and has filed protests with election boards in Davidson, Montgomery and Union counties.

Burgin, apparently feeling a bit uncomfortable over the result, has filed a demand for a recount in Deane's home county of Richmond. Action on all these protests is expected to follow this week prior to the meeting of the State election board.

RetURNS from all counties of the eighth district, some of them unofficial, Wednesday morning gave Burgin a total of 19,324 as against 19,285 for Deane.

The eleven precincts in Davie county gave Burgin 889 and Deane 886, thus living up to the expectations of those who upheld all the other candidates combined.

The primary passed off very quietly in the county, with no untoward incidents to mar the day. Very little active campaigning had been carried on by either of the candidates, and very few persons were interested enough to drum up support for their favorites.

The 14 drivers that did qualify in the time trials put on spectacular performances but the promoter, Bruce Thompson, of the Motor Speedways association, felt that the fall programs should be run next Sunday so that the fans might receive their full mete of entertainment, and so that the drivers might have an opportunity to show their real skill on the recently improved Salisbury course.

STATE RANKS HIGH IN UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS

Raleigh, July 5.—North Carolina is revealed as among the first of the 25 states now paying unemployment benefits, in a statement issued recently by Governor Clyde R. Hoey, based on a comparative study by the Research and Statistical Division of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission from data furnished by the Social Security Board in Washington.

Governor Hoey's statement shows that North Carolina ranks fifth among the 25 states in total number of claims received, third in the preparation of initial determinations, which are the sheets showing the wage credits of the claimants, and fourth in the number of weeks for which payments have been made. Of the states which allow benefits for partial unemployment, North Carolina ranks second in the number of weeks for which payments have been made.

North Carolina ranks tenth in the number of workers covered by the Unemployment Compensation Law, yet it ranks fourth in the number of claims for benefits.

More than a third of the North Carolina claims are for partial unemployment, which is the reason for the proportionately greater number of claims in the State.

Processing claims for partial unemployment involves more work than does processing claims for total unemployment. It is noteworthy that, of the four states which have received more claims than North Carolina, three do not compensate for partial unemployment.

Tax Collections Very Satisfactory

Z. N. Anderson, city tax collector, reported Wednesday that payments on the 1938 tax levy were coming in nicely, a total of $2,500 having been paid in. This represents a saving of $75 to those who have paid. So far collections have been on a par with those of 1937, and large numbers are coming in each day to take advantage of the discount offered for early payment.

While no official statement has been made, it is understood that the city officials are not at all concerned over the fact that the city is not receiving as much as expected in the way of tax payments.

Tattooing Of Chickens Helps To Curb Stealing

Gone are the days when tattooing was the exclusive right of the sailor, soldier or marino. For even the chickens hereabouts are going in for their own private, individual, registered tattooed symbols. For this reason, if you have a penchant for taking poultry that does not belong to you, if the lure of a tasty fried chicken is enough to cause you to enter somebody else's henhouse and take therefrom the material to satisfy your appetite, you'd better examine the fowl closely. For it may have a tattoo mark that won't come out, won't cook up, and one which may land you under the jail on a charge of chicken-stealing.

The American Poultry and Livestock Marketing association of Minneapolis has started a campaign of tattooing poultry in Davie county, the purpose of which is to cause you to enter somebody else's henhouse and take therefrom the material to satisfy your appetite, you'd better examine the fowl closely. For it may have a tattoo mark that won't come out, won't cook up, and one which may land you under the jail on a charge of chicken-stealing.

Mr. Hepler was the son of the late Sam and Fannie Allen Hepler. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Phisie Sanders Hepler, and four sons, Charlie, of Tennessee; Sam, of Mocksville, route 3; and Thomas, of the home; and a daughter, Mrs. Lillie Mares, of Advance, route 1.

Also surviving are a sister, Mrs. Rena Gober, of Mocksville, route 2, and a brother, John, of Harmony, route 1.

According to a representative of the association now in the county, each subscribing farmer or poultry owner is given an individual symbol to use in marking his fowls. The operation is easy and painless, and leaves an indelible stamp. This symbol is then registered as the owner's individual brand, and an identification card is filed with the sheriff of the county, and with officers over the state, including the highway patrol. Consequently, unless the fowls are unmarked, there is no possibility of them being sold by anyone except the proper owners.

Fourth Of July Observed In Quiet Fashion In City

With no formal celebration of any nature occurring over the day scheduled in the county, the day was observed in a quiet fashion. Many Mocksville residents took the day off for fishing or visits to the beach, while others remained at home at their usual avocations. A large delegation attended the ball game at Coolee, although the highways were filled with cars from morning until the afternoon, and others went to
