

Local Jaycees Are Seeking Outstanding Young Farmer

The Mocksville Junior Chamber of Commerce is asking for nominations for the award of "Outstanding Young Farmer" of Davie County for 1960.

Bill Westbrook, Project Chairman for the local Jaycees, said that nominations may be made by telephoning ME 4-2561.

Mr. Westbrook said the "farmer" search is aimed at honoring the community's agriculturists who have made exceptional career progress without neglecting good conservation practices or responsible roles in community life.

The Jaycees also hope that a better understanding of the farmer and his problems will result in more young people becoming interested in farming as a lifetime career.

All farmers between the ages of 21 and 35, not becoming age 36 this year, are eligible for nomination. Nominees may be either landowners or renters.

The deadline for the local nomination is Feb. 9.

New Heart Council Formed: Mrs. Jack Sanford, Chairman

Completion of a Heart Council for Davie County was announced today by Mrs. Jack Sanford, chairman of the new group. It is part of the North Carolina Heart Association, which is affiliated to the American Heart Association, according to Mrs. Sanford.

Members of the Council are: Attorney William E. Hall, County Fund Raising chairman, Dr. Lester P. Martin, who will serve as medical representative, Mrs. W. O. Roberts, educational representative, who will see that the public news media receive information on heart disease and the activities of the Council; and Mrs. Bryan Sell, treasurer, who will bank and account for all funds raised for Heart in the area.

"Our hope is to bring a year 'round Heart program to Davie County," said Mrs. Sanford. "We have a real need for such a program, for according to the latest vital statistics, we had 60 deaths in this county due to diseases of the heart and blood vessels — which amounted to 47.3% of our total deaths."

"By working with the North Carolina and American Heart Associations, we will be contributing to the research programs of both organizations. Research holds the best hope for solving problems such as why some children are born with heart defects and why the middle-aged businessman seems to be the chief target of fatal heart attacks," she added.

"Our Council will also be the channel for getting the latest research information to our physicians, nurses, and other professional workers so the new drugs and aids can be used to help heart patients. And we will be able to pass along to the public facts about diet, exercises, and other information which will enable people to protect their own hearts and the hearts of their families," Mrs. Sanford said.

The Council's plans for community service activities include setting up an information and referral service, which involves working with other community agencies, she pointed out. "We will undertake to determine the heart disease problems in the area and," she added, "then it will be up to us to find ways to solve them."

To help finance local activities and share in the state and national Heart programs, the Council will join in the nation-wide Heart Fund Drive next February by conducting a campaign throughout Davie County, Mrs. Sanford reported. "Campaign plans and appointments will be announced later," she concluded.

For The People

By BERNADETTE W. HOYLE

Public Information Officer N.C. State Board of Public Welfare (This is the eighth of a series explaining public welfare in North Carolina.)

How can I adopt a baby? Visit your county department of public welfare and the complete procedure will be explained to you.

I know a mother who wants someone to adopt her baby; can't I get the baby from her?

This is the most dangerous method of adopting a baby. You know the mother; she knows you. The mother may not remain out of the picture after the baby is adopted. You may not know about the child's background and whether it is legally free or available for adoption. Perhaps the legal father has not given his consent. Many hazards are involved in this type of adoption which is called "direct placement."

What is the most desirable way to adopt a baby? Make an application through your county department of public welfare or private licensed child-placing agency. There are four of this latter type of agency in North Carolina: the Children's Home Society in Greensboro, the Bureau of Catholic Charities in Charlotte, the Family and Child Services Agencies in Charlotte and Winston-Salem.

What are the next steps? The agency gathers background information on any child being released for adoption. It also studies the adoptive applicant's home. The data are gathered by caseworkers in the county department of public welfare and private licensed child-placing agencies. These data determine the needs of the child and the adoptive parents in relation to each other and are the basis for the report to the court of adoption when the legal proceeding is processed. They include family backgrounds, histories of the individual natural and adoptive parents, health, school and employment records, the adoptive applicant's reason for wanting to adopt a child, the physical setup of the adoptive home, and the development of the child before placement. References are contacted to learn more of the adoptive applicant's ability to meet the needs of the child.

How long will I have to wait to adopt a baby after I apply? The length of the waiting period varies, for the agency strives to find a suitable baby or older child for each couple who wants one. Sometimes this may be done within a short period of time; sometimes it may take a year or more.

ASC News

President John F. Kennedy Saturday announced the appointment of Horace D. Godfrey as Administrator of the Commodity Service.

Mr. Godfrey has been employed by the North Carolina Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation for 26 years and has been the State Administrative Officer since 1953.

In the position of Administrator for CSS Mr. Godfrey is responsible for formulating policies, procedures, and regulations for administering Acreage Allotment and Marketing Quota Programs and Price Support activities for all commodities. He also serves as executive vice-president for Commodity Credit Corporation, the multi-million dollar agency which finances price support operations.

Mr. Godfrey will have complete charge and supervision of State and County ASC Committees and operations. To assist him will have an associate administrator, three deputies, twenty-one division directors, and six area directors.

There are approximately 7,500 employees in Commodity Stabilization Service. Also there are some 80,000 farmer-elected county and community committee-men and 12,000 full-time ASC county office employees. Four other men from North Carolina are currently holding responsible positions under Godfrey. Joe R. Williams, Director, Tobacco Division; James Thigpen, Director, Oils and Peanut Division; Zeno Ratcliff, Jr., Assistant to the Deputy Administrator for Price Support; and Clyde R. Greene, Southeast Area Director.

Mr. Godfrey said he was highly honored to be asked to serve in the Department of Agriculture as Administrator of Commodity Stabilization Service.

"I also appreciate very much the support and confidence expressed by my friends in my ability to fill such a high post in our Government. I am keenly aware of the problems facing this administration in their efforts to establish a healthy and prosperous agriculture. Agriculture is the foundation on which all national progress or fall. The Kennedy administration is committed to develop programs which will establish a prosperous agriculture and at the same time continue to provide an abundant supply of food and fiber for all our people. Our abundance of food and fiber produced by the American farmer should be used as an instrument of peace in feeding the hungry peoples of the world. Secretary Freeman has already stated very clearly one of the greatest problems facing American farmers. He said "We as a nation eat better for less than any other people in the world, while the overwhelming number of farmers who make it possible barely make ends meet."

All of our American people must be made to realize that they are indebted to our farmers for an abundance of good cheap food—the basic necessity for life itself. Also, that a continuing supply of good food depends to a great extent upon our ability as a nation to keep our farm economy in a healthy condition. Our non farm people must reach a better understanding of farm conditions and their complete dependence upon farmers for food. I am proud to be a part of this administration and have an opportunity to work with people that are dedicated to develop programs, not for groups or individuals, but for all American and our Allies."

We in the local County ASC Office hate to see Mr. Godfrey leave the State Office but we join with a host of other friends in wishing him the very best in his new work.

Premeasurement of Cotton and Tobacco Cotton and tobacco farmers who wish to get their allotments premeasured have until Feb. 15 to get in their request. By getting the land measured prior to planting a farmer can be assured of getting his full allotment. The cost for getting land premeasured is $3 per farm plus $1 per acre with a minimum of $8 per farm.

Closing Date For New Grower Applications Feb. 15 is the closing date for filling an application for new-grower cotton and tobacco allotments. A farmer must meet all requirements in order to be eligible for a new-grower allotment.

ACP Sign-up The initial sign-up period for requesting Spring ACP practices will end on Jan. 31. Farmers who plan on carrying out a practice this spring should get in a request. Requests will be taken and approvals given on a day to day basis following the sign-up. Approvals for requests taken during the sign-up will be mailed immediately after the sign-up.

if you haven't tried CHIROPRACTIC ... for RHEUMATISM

you're missing something - IMPORTANT TO YOUR HEALTH

There are at least 7,000,000 people in the United States suffering with rheumatism. This disease is responsible for more days lost from work than any other chronic disability except nervous and mental disorders. Rheumatism includes such conditions as lumbago, or stiff neck, shoulder pain, bursitis and many others.

Rheumatism results from misaligned vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on the delicate nerve fibers of the spinal cord and interfering with the vital nerve energy from the brain which powers every organ and cell in the entire body. Without this life-force brain power, the purification system of the body ceases to function properly. The kidneys, liver and skin cannot dispose of waste products. This waste collects in the muscles and joints of the body causing a toxic condition and great pain.

Correcting misaligned vertebrae will relieve the pain of rheumatism, and complete restoration of other bodily functions is the natural result.

Our Red Cross Chapter

The efforts being made towards the reactivation of the Davie County Chapter of the American Red Cross should receive the cooperation of everyone in the county.

The local Red Cross chapter has not been active since 1958 and no fund raising drive has been held in the county. The only phase of the program that has been in continuous operation since that date has been that of home service.

The old saying that "The time to make friends is before you need them," could apply to this situation. The Red Cross has many facets of services that become of the utmost importance to an area during critical times. There is the disaster program which provides so much when a disaster hits a community through fire, storm or the like. The Red Cross cooperates by providing first-aid classes that train citizens how to render first-aid and take care of their own. There is the home service program that provides liaison between a member of the armed forces and his loved ones at home. And there are many other programs.

In order to have the services that the Red Cross can provide, a county and its people must assume some obligation. The obligation in this case is maintaining and operating an active chapter of the organization. To operate an active chapter of course the people must be willing to give of time and effort to the cause . . . and to conduct the annual fund raising campaign.

Probably by the time this is published the local chapter of the Red Cross will be well underway. We believe that we have many in the county that are willing to do what they can to see Davie County have an active Red Cross Chapter. Certainly we, of Davie County, do not want to lose this connection.

It's About Time!

Science is starting to tell time with clocks so accurate they may lose only one second in millions of years.

The fantastic precision is made possible by the absolutely steady vibration of atoms, acting as pendulums in timepieces as revolutionary as the sundial of 1400 B.C., the National Geographic Society says.

A clock tells time by recording the regular recurrence of an event such as the swing of a pendulum or a cycle of alternating electric current. A clock counts the recurrences and translates the information in terms of hours and minutes.

But neither the swing of a pendulum nor the current cycle in an electric clock is regular enough for present-day scientific work. Even the great "pendulum" of nature — the earth itself — does not always take the same time to rotate around its axis. The globe, now slowing down, takes about one-thousandth of a second longer to turn than it did three years ago. The rotation is uneven due to a slight wobble.

To make a really accurate clock, scientists needed a phenomenon that occurs with extreme regularity. They found it in the minute vibrations of the atom. Each type of atom has its own particular frequency of incredibly constant vibration.

In 1948 the National Bureau of Standards built a clock using as its pendulum the nitrogen atom in ammonia. The nitrogen atom swings back and forth at the rate of 24,000,000 times a second.

Three years later Charles H. Townes, of Columbia University, was sitting in a Washington park with "time on my hands" when he suddenly conceived an even more accurate ammonia clock. With his colleagues, he devised a new timekeeper called a "maser," an abbreviation for "microwave amplification by stimulated emission of radiation."

The first maser worked by picking up the radio wave which an ammonia molecule emits each time its nitrogen atom vibrates. The wave receiver is adjusted to vibrate at precisely the same frequency as the nitrogen atom. This very, very steady movement controls the motor of an electric clock.

In 1960 Harvard University scientists announced the development of a still more accurate maser, using high-energy hydrogen atoms trapped in a quartz bulb. The oscillating atoms give off a 21-centimeter radiation chorus which is so steady that the clock is reported to have an accuracy of one part in a quadrillion. This means, theoretically, that it could measure time with an error of only one second in 33,000,000 years.

Such superaccuracy will enable scientists to study the minute rotations of atoms and molecules. It also may help determine whether Albert Einstein's theories of relativity are correct.

Dr. Einstein's special theory of relativity holds that the hands of a clock turn more slowly if it is moving. Thus a clock placed in a vehicle traveling at the speed of light would come to a stop. According to the general theory, the rate at which a clock runs also depends on the strength of the gravitational field it is in. A clock ticks more slowly as it is moved closer to a large body.

These theories may be tested eventually by placing an atomic clock in a satellite and comparing its record of time with that of identical atomic clocks on the ground. Satellites not only travel at 18,000 miles an hour; they are far less affected by gravity than objects on the earth's surface.

Good Year Predicted For Tobacco

A tobacco marketing specialist has declared that "price-wise the flue-cured tobacco picture for North Carolina this year looks good."

The specialist with the State Department of Agriculture said there is nothing in the picture that would indicate any reduction in price in comparison with 1960. Exports are holding up and domestic consumption is on the increase.

However, it was noted that it would be a little optimistic to expect the 1961 crop to be as good as in 1960. Last year there was a record high yield. Past records show that there is seldom two good growing seasons in a row. It is reasonable to expect that we will have a slightly lower yield per acre in 1961.

During 1960 North Carolina flue-cured tobacco growers produced 834 million pounds which brought an average of $61.20 per hundred pounds. The yield was 1,820 pounds per acre.

The flue-cured acreage this year will be about the same as the 458,000 acres last year, with possibly a slight increase in the 9,600 acres of burley. Representatives from the burley growing states have recommended that the burley acreage be increased not more than 10 per cent. The general feeling is that the increase will be about eight per cent.

Since most of North Carolina's allotments are below the half-acre minimum, increases or decreases will not affect the state very much.

The long, sharp claws on a grizzly bear's forepaw can slash an enemy mortally, but the animal uses them more often for digging out ground squirrels and mice, the National Geographic Magazine says. In quest of such prey, bears can give a meadow the appearance of a plowed field.

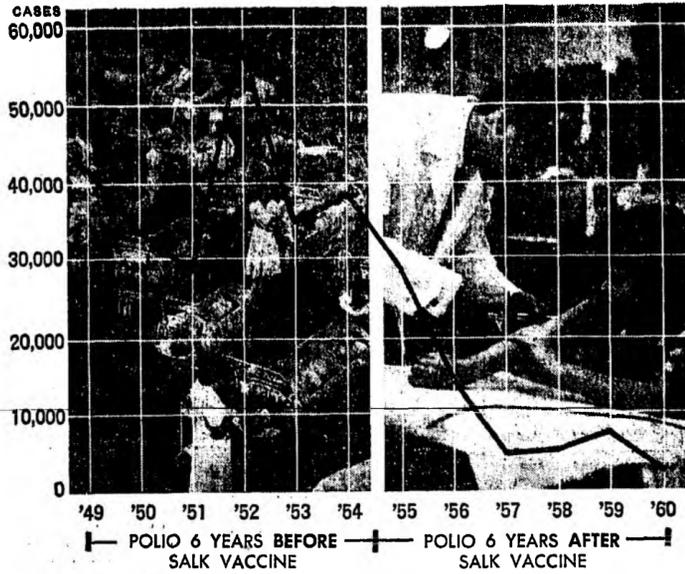

Female lions usually serve as the family breadwinners, the National Geographic Magazine says. Toward sundown, ladies of the pride emerge from cover and stalk prey grazing on the plains. Shunning work, the maned males remain on the sidelines — until it is time to appropriate the choicest portion. Lionesses eat next; cubs get the scraps.

Russians cherish colorful potted plants, perhaps as a comfort during long, dark winters. Vendors selling bouquets dot Russian streets in the summer; paper flowers find a ready market in winter, the National Geographic Magazine says.

MARCH OF DIMES RESEARCH DID THIS; NEXT — OTHER CRIPPLING DISEASES

AMERICA'S INVESTMENT in medical scientific research through contributions to the March of Dimes paid a huge dividend—the polio vaccine. Now the March of Dimes is working to prevent other crippling diseases—birth defects and arthritis. A further investment in medical research through the March of Dimes may pay even greater dividends. Campaign continues through January.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

With the Kennedy inauguration and the tugboat strike, the Civil War celebration got crowded off the front pages hereabouts, but not for long. That sanguine conflict soon raised its blue and gray head and the numerous buffs and their commercial counterparts were at it again. Of the 15,000 books published in the United States in 1960, 100 were on the subject of the Civil War. This revelation was a sort of surprise, too, for it seems that nearer a hundred thousand such volumes were published rather than a hundred. I guess that's appropriate though — a hundred books on the hundredth anniversary of the start of the war. The volumes ranged from biographies of the heroes to a cook book entitled "Recipe Book of the Confederacy" (University of Georgia Press).

It is said that the partisan social fighting now going on in Washington is even more ruthless than the contest staged at the political level. For example, at a recent diplomatic function, a Democratic lady reportedly appeared, who had been out of the capital since the Truman days. Seeing a Republican lady, she murmured something to the effect that it was nice to see her after eight years. "Oh yes," the latter replied, "I don't remember your face, but I do recall the dress."

This column does not pretend to judge the capabilities of the new national cabinet members, but there are two with which I have some familiarity. One is John J. McCloy who has for the last several years headed the local bank with which I do business, and who prior to that was Assistant Secretary of War. He is known as a keen-minded, hard-hitting executive who should be right at home back in government. Ironically, McCloy had planned to retire along about now. The other member is Luther Hodges, a fellow Rotarian, a former resident of the suburb in which I now reside, until he up and went to Leaksville, Spry, North Carolina, where I understand he is held in the same high personal esteem as he was around here.

Into a local newspaper rushed a politician demanding to see the editor and threatening dire consequences for a story that the paper had run about him. He wanted an immediate verbal apology, then one in print. But, the editor finally got a chance to ask, didn't the newspaper print the story exactly as it was given to it, namely, that the politician had resigned as city treasurer. "Yes," roared the accuser, "but where did you put it—in the column under the heading, 'Public Improvements!'"

Never do I pass the magnificent public library at 42nd Street and 5th Avenue that I am not impressed with not only its grandeur but its usefulness. Last year, about 3,000,000 people — including this writer — entered the main building in search of facts. The library has 80 miles of book shelves and about 4,000,000 books, the greatest treasure in this town, not excepting the other forms of wealth. The library is open every day in the year, usually from 9 in the morning until 10 at night. Called a public library, it is the result of a farsighted policy of some beneficent men of the past century, and is supported almost entirely by income from private funds. The charter of the library directs its management to provide a free public service, even to the no-tipping facilities for checking coats, umbrellas, etc., which the patrons may have with them.

My hat is off to your public library, too!

Here and There: Karl Betts says "The South may have lost the Civil War but it's certainly going to win the centennial celebration" . . . interested neighbors gave little Johnny a knife and asked him if he knew what was inside the drum he got for Christmas . . . Sherman Billingsley of the Stork Club sent out a clever holiday greeting — a facsimile of the police identification card, complete with his fingerprints, that he had to obtain.

Senator SAM ERVIN Says:

WASHINGTON — The guidelines of America's foreign policy are beginning to form under the direction of the Kennedy Administration. I thought the President's Inaugural Address contained much wisdom and was an exceedingly forthright statement of American aims and objectives in the cold war. The President in effect told the Soviet leaders that the United States will not tolerate any interference in the affairs of the Western Hemisphere. The implementation of this policy in the days ahead poses serious problems which I shall not now discuss. I will say that I am reminded of what Rudyard Kipling, the great English poet, once said. He said that the road to security and survival requires that a nation keep its strength and be prepared for whatever comes to pass.

TEXT: "Uncovering other's faults doesn't cover your own." — Eph. Thomas.

Two women were discussing the bad luck of a friend's husband. "Did he take his misfortune like a man?" asked one.

"Yes," replied the other. "He laid the blame on his wife."

When misfortune draws its gloomy curtain around us, most of us groan or growl and look for someone to blame. We do a poor job of being a Job. Of course misfortune is difficult to bear. The weight of it has crushed better people than we are. However, placing the blame for our disaster on some one, even though they deserve it, will not correct our situation. It could make it worse. Our chief concern should be to lift misfortune's oppressing weight.

There is a way you can do this. Side-step. Instead of looking for people or things to blame, move over. Let your misfortune collapse where you were standing. Don't bring it with you. Go in another direction for another purpose. Enlist yourself in another cause. Later, if you wish, return and look at your calamity. You may find that it has disappeared entirely. Certainly it won't be as terribly formidable as it appears now. Try it. It will work.

A THIRD TERM . . . A tip to Bert Bennett, Cloyd Philpot and all other aspirants to the Governorship in 1960 — Don't rule out Luther Hodges as a candidate for a "third term." He may be ready to leave Washington by then — and he will be eligible to run. It would make him another "first" — and there are other reasons which we will dwell on later.

END MAN . . . The death last week of William D. "Billy" Carmichael, Comptroller of the Greater University of North Carolina is a tremendous loss not only to the University, but to the entire state. Billy gave up a seat on the New York Stock Exchange, at a great financial sacrifice to return home and devote his life to the University. Kay Kayser, once said of his friend: "Billy is the only person I know who could hold the job of end man in a minstrel, or as President of the University — and do either better than anyone else!" That about sizes up Billy Carmichael in our book!

POU . . . The Carolinas' Asphalt Association, whose purpose as we understand it, is to promote the interest of the Contractors who specialize in asphalt paving, as opposed to the concrete contractors, are moving in mysterious ways, their purpose to perform.

At a time when their able Director, Eddie Cochran is slated for retirement, as soon as a replacement can be found, they have voted to continue and expand the employment of Edwin Pou as their fixer. Edwin, who according to the political gossip, lined up with Malcolm Seawell and then Dr. Lake against Terry Sanford for Governor, and ran against Terry's close friend John Jordan for the Wake County Seat, does not appear to be in much position to help any one with the Legislature or Administration. It just goes to show the strange workings of politics.

BAKER . . . We have known Bobby Baker, the young man (he's only 30), who is secretary to the U. S. Senate Majority ever since he came to Washington as a Senate Page from Pickens, S. C. He has agreed to stay on with Mike Mansfield, the new Senate Majority Leader, and will render Mansfield the same valuable service he did Lyndon Johnson before Johnson became Vice President.

Bobby is a substantial stockholder in the Howard Johnson Restaurant and Motor Lodge, which is scheduled to open next week on the new Charlotte Bypass. Since the Democratic victory, every office in Washington has been flooded with folks seeking jobs or favors.

With this thought in mind, Bobby jokingly, remarked during the recent Inaugural Ceremonies "Gee, if all of my friends from South Carolina who come to Washington, seeking favor, will just stop and patronize my place on the way, that would be enough business to insure a profit."

HEAD STANDING . . . Last year we ran an item about a well known dignified state official who makes a practice of standing on his head each morning. We received a lot of guesses as to his identity including Luther Hodges, Stag Ballentine and many others. Those who guessed Adjutant General Capus Waynick were correct on this one.

ANOTHER ONE . . . Who is the well known bank president from the Piedmont area who recently received a severe and painful injury from a fall encountered while practicing "Yogi?" Speaking of bank presidents, there are at least two state employees who are presidents of banks. Frank Turner, the State Property Control Officer is president of the Bank of Manteo, and Dr. O. K. Cornwell, Director of Health and Physical Education at the University of North Carolina, is president of a Chapel Hill bank. The late Dr. B. B. Dougherty was president of the Northwestern chain of banks, when he was president of Appalachian State College.

KEEPING FIT . . . We exercise daily, and have developed various contraptions around the house to use in connection therewith. One of the best and most strenuous exercises is to sit on the piano bench, place our toes under the piano and lean back and try to touch the floor with the back of our head and then return to an upright position. We have never been able to go all the way back to the floor.

Mrs. Lelia Coltrane, wife of Dave Coltrane, the State Director of Administration came visiting recently and caught us going through this routine.
Imagine our surprise when Lelia seated herself on the piano bench put her toes under the piano and proceeded to lean back—and rest her head on the floor! She did this a dozen or so times—and I understand she was able to get out of bed the next morning.

All we can say is that we all laughed when Lelia sat down at the piano—but our ego has been squashed ever since. If Dave is in anything like as good condition as Lelia, then they might as well quit talking about him retiring.

BETS . . . The bet around Raleigh is that there will be a sizeable Primary Road Bond issue launched by the Sanford Administration — in addition to one for "Capital Improvements." The highway contractors are pushing strong for the roads program—and they are potent!

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

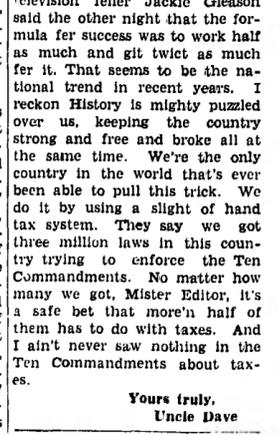

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:
My old lady told me at breakfast this morning I was barking up the wrong tree by always hollering about politicians. She allowed as how there ain't nothing wrong with the politicians, claimed what this country needed was a new set of people.

I couldn't figger out if she was serious or gitting sarcastic, so I just said pass the butter please and it looks like we might git a nice shower today. Me and my old lady git along fine, despite the fact we've been hitched now fer about 40 year. And one of the reasons there ain't been no talk about divorce in our family is on account of when things git edgy around the place, I just set me a chair out in the front yard and start counting the shingles on the roof till the storm blows over.

Gitting along in married life is like handling a pair of mules, you got to work as a team, keep the single-trees even to git a good, steady pull. But it's a sight in this world the married couples this day and time that can't keep the single-trees even. I was just reading yesterday where a woman in New York told the Judge she killed her husband to keep him from running around. Well, that'll stop it ever time. And I see where another one of them Hollywood movie stars is gitting a divorce in Reno. That must be a mighty busy highway from Hollywood to Reno. I don't see why some big promoter ain't thought of moving Niagara Falls about half-way between the two places. That would make it nice fer all concerned, git married in Hollywood, stop over at Niagara Falls fer the honeymoon, then on to Reno for the divorce. They could set up a dual highway, newly-weds traveling east on one of them, the newly-divorced going back west on the other.

Gitting away from the domestic situation fer a moment, this television feller Jackie Gleason said the other night that the formula fer success was to work half as much and git twice as much fer it. That seems to be the national trend in recent years. I reckon History is mighty puzzled over us, keeping the country strong and free and broke all at the same time. We're the only country in the world that's ever been able to pull this trick. We do it by using a slight of hand tax system. They say we got three million laws in this country trying to enforce the Ten Commandments. No matter how many we got, Mister Editor, it's a safe bet that more'n half of them has to do with taxes. And I ain't never saw nothing in the Ten Commandments about taxes.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

Well, it reads here the first step toward redemption is to get rid of — get shed of, may be a better term — the old weather-worn thing that used to be a sticker on the car bumper.
Antidote in medicine, etc., for counteracting — getting shed of — poison, disease, etc.: a generous dose of gasoline.
Hint: Don't take it. Rub it on — not on yourself, on the bumper.

Addendum: It works equally as well on Kennedy-Sanford stickers and crases as well those: "Democrats are for YOU" signs.
Everybody who's going to be is now safely ensconced in office, all good men have long since gone to the aid of their party — and it's time to get back to work.

IT IS NOT HARMFUL TO TEETH FOR ICE TO COME IN CONTACT WITH THEM

It has long been believed that eating ice and other frozen foods would cause the teeth to degenerate. It was considered especially harmful for one to drink a hot beverage along with ice cream, because it was thought that the extremes in temperatures would cause the teeth to crack. Medical investigation has failed to find evidence for these beliefs, and leading authorities have discarded them as relics of the past. The teeth are well protected by hard enamel, and cold substances appear to have no effect whatever on them.

MINORITY VIEWPOINT
The Republican viewpoint in the forthcoming Legislature will be presented in weekly letters to begin next week. It is announced by the G.O.P.

A similar report was written at one time by W. E. Cobb, now Republican chairman, when he was in the State Senate. They say that some of the newspapers in Republican counties are planning to carry the "G. O. P. Viewpoint" reporting on doings of the minority.

Have you seen one of those hand-made State Seal ties? At the Governor's inauguration and since we have observed a lot of well dressed men wearing the black ties with size-of-a-quarter State Seals in gold all over them. Very attractive . . . and most unusual.

Those ties were designed by the No. 1 merchant in the Legislature, Ike Belk of Charlotte, president of Belk Enterprises and a dozen other companies who two terms in a row now has led the Democratic ticket in Mecklenburg County.

The Belk tie was blue for Christmas of 1959. The black ones were Christmas presents this time again from Mr. Belk to members of the Legislature, newspapermen, and sundry and divers other State officials and private individuals.

Now it is not uncommon—and indeed appropriate — to see a half-dozen men here solemnly discussing State affairs as the State Seals in gold move in gentle rhythm over bobbing Adam's apples.

They are not talking for publication, but the word is that many a chamber of commerce manager is breathing a little easier because of recent statements made by the Governor as regards industry.

He infers rather strongly that the N. C. Dept. of Conservation and Development has been devoting possibly too much time of late to new industry — and not enough to conserving, and developing.

Gov. Sanford, as in his campaign for election, seems definitely to feel that the industrial tail should be chopped off the dog it has been wagging.

Our current craze for more and more payroll is reminiscent of the early 50's when each town turned handsprings to get a city manager. Many a chamber manager is on the spot — for they have a feeling it's get it or get out.

The turnover in efficient chamber managers in North Carolina is alarming. The pressure is fierce. Kinston lost their manager last fall. Durham is

It may be that more cities — a few counties like Granville, Robeson, Union, and Bladen have done it — should consider setting up special industrial departments (as the State obviously plans to do) so that other or-

Elderly William Henry Harrison delivered the longest inaugural in history, the National Geographic Society says. Consisting of nearly 3,500 words, it required one and three-quarters of an hour to orate. At the other extreme was George Washington's second inaugural — only 135 words.

What Feeds Are Good Buys In Feeding Lactating Cows

By Dr. W. E. Thomas, Head, Dairy Husbandry Section, N. C. State College

To feed a 1,200 pound cow milking 50 pounds of 4 per cent milk currently costs about 85c per day if feeds are purchased. Of this 85 cents about 68 cents is represented in energy cost, 13 cents for mineral and vitamins. These figures are arrived at by taking the current market price of corn and oil meals and relating them to the nutrients they contribute. A value of 2.91 cents per pound for total digestible nutrients (TDN) plus an additional value of 2.65 cents a pound for digestible protein estimates the worth of the feed. The following feeding values can then be assigned:

Feed value per ton

Shelled Yellow Corn (No. 2) 50.00
Corn and Cob Meal (N. C. Samples) 43.80
Corn Cob & Shuck Meal 41.53
Oats (N. C. Samples) 43.07
11.3 per cent protein) 43.07
Milo (Avg. Value) 48.16
Citrus Pulp 45.68
Cane Molasses (Black Strap) 31.25
Soybean Meal (44% protein) 65.00
Cotton Seed Meal (41 per cent protein) 57.29
Alfalfa Hay (16% protein) 36.00
Alfalfa Hay (N. C. Samples) 32.54
13 per cent protein) 32.54
Lespedeza Hay (13% protein) 29.22
Peanut Hay (10% protein) 30.29
Grass Hay Mixture (7 per cent protein) 28.05
Corn Silage (Avg. N. C. Samples) 10.36
Glass Silage (Extremely variable) 9.53

Alcohol No Protection Against Heart Disease

Remember the popular complaint: "Everything I like to do is either immoral, illegal, or fattening?" A team of heart researchers has extended the scope of this observation in a study which shows that heavy drinking is no protection against hardening of the arteries.

Dr. L. P. Martin, Medical Representative of the Davie Heart Council calls attention to the report of Doctors Francisco Grandje, Lyle Hay, William Heupel, and Donald Amatusio of the University of Minnesota, published in a recent issue of Circulation.

Research, scientific journal of American Heart Association.

It was once thought, these doctors report, that chronic alcoholics had a lower incidence of hardening of the arteries than non-alcoholic individuals. The conclusion had been that alcohol furnished some sort of protection against this widespread disease of the arteries. Since many physicians believe deposits of a fatty substance called cholesterol influence artery disease and consequent heart attacks or strokes, the Minnesota physicians wondered whether alcohol reduced the amount of cholesterol in the blood.

To test this thesis, the researchers obtained the help of 60 volunteers in Minnesota State Prison, who were willing to imitate various amounts of alcohol and have their blood examined for serum cholesterol level. Half of the prisoners were given three ounces of 100-proof whiskey a day while the other half were given a syrup with the same calorie value as the alcohol. In another experiment, some of the men received nine ounces of whiskey a day for three weeks. The amount of cholesterol in the blood was measured from blood samples.

Results indicated that large daily amounts of alcohol produced a small but significant increase of serum cholesterol in man, the group reported. "It is clear," they write, "that alcohol cannot be considered as a cholesterol decreasing agent."

To the patient whose physician has ordered a diet aimed at decreasing the amount of those fatty cholesterol deposits in the arteries, this may be bad news. He might not consider drinking alcoholic beverages immoral or illegal — but now he's got to admit they are fattening.

RICHARD C. HOTTELET, top news correspondent and political observer with CBS-TV, will discuss "Top Priority Issues for a New Administration," when he appears on the Davidson College Artist Series at 8:15 p.m., Monday, February 6, in Chambers Auditorium.

A Juftak!! We Know Now!

A recent Sunday School lesson in the Baptist Adult Union Quarterly brought about considerable searching and detective work on the part of Mrs. Paul Blackwelder, Davie County Librarian.

S. Lester (Buster) Cranfill of Mocksville, Rt. 3, is Superintendent of Sunday School at the Turrentine Baptist Church. Recently the lesson in this quarterly had the following opening paragraph:

"In ancient Persia there was a bird called juftak. This bird was unusual because each male juftak had only one wing and a hook, while the female had one wing and a ring. Neither bird could fly alone, but fastened together they were able to soar into the clouds."

Mr. Cranfill was curious to know more about this bird so he came to Mrs. Blackwelder at the county library. Mrs. Blackwelder searched the local library, but found no mention of such a bird. The Winston-Salem Library was contacted, also found no reference of such a bird. The same negative answer came when the North Carolina State Library in Raleigh was contacted.

Miss Flossie Martin, former science teacher, became interested and contacted the editor of the Baptist Union Quarterly and found that his information concerning the juftak came from Holderoff's Cyclopaedia of Bible Illustrations. This book was then borrowed by the Davie County Library on an interlibrary loan from the Charlotte Public Library.

However, this book gave no source for the story and Mrs. Blackwelder wrote to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C. and received the following reply:

"Dear Mrs. Blackwelder:

"In connection with your letter of 16 January 1961, I have consulted with Dr. Richard Ettinghausen, of the Freer Gallery of Art, an expert in Persian culture, who informs me that the juftak, described in old Persian literature quite as it is described in Holderoff's Cyclopaedia, is a mythical bird of allegory. The bird, which becomes complete only when its male and female parts are united, was used as a symbol of wedlock, completeness, perfection etc.

"Strangely enough, yours was the second letter in a month asking about the juftak. Since the first writer gave no information as to where he had heard of it, I was quite unable to run the bird down for him."

The letter was signed by Herbert G. DeGman, Curator of the Division of Bird, Smithsonian Institution.

As Rutherford B. Hayes, inaugural president, broke precedent by taking his oath privately at the White House.

How It Is Made . . . MASLAND DURAN

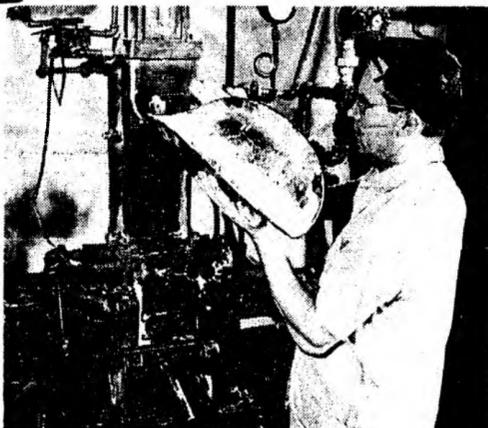

In a short time the Masland Duraleather Company of Mocksville will go into operation and begin producing Masland Duran. We believe that the people of Davie County will be interested in this product and how it is made.

Masland Duran is a plastic sheeting made from selected vinyl resins. Plain and embossed patterns come in two thicknesses for use on light-weight furniture constructions and for use on heavy furniture construction such as deep spring lounge chairs, divans, etc.

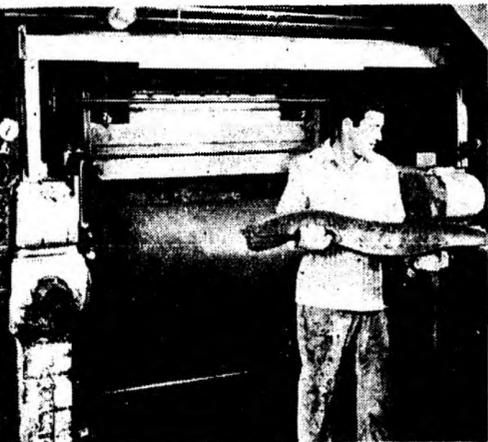

How is Masland Duran made? Following below is a pictorial account of how Masland Duran will be made at the Mocksville plant:

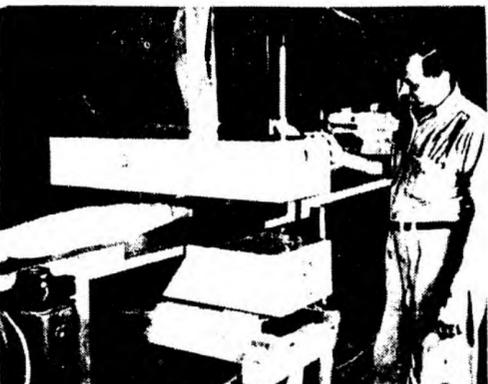

The raw materials consist of selected resins, plasticizers, stabilizers and color pigments.

These ingredients, in carefully measured proportions, are put into a large mixer. After mixing, the batch is milled and kneaded to further refine and blend the ingredients.

The dough-like pieces now go through a series of cylinders that reduce them to pieces resembling large pancakes.

A belt conveyor carries the flat pieces under an instrument which detects metal particles which might mar the calendar rolls and insures against pinhole breaks in the finished product.

'Proud Of My Town'

The following article won an award recently for Miss Jo Cooley and appeared in the February 5th issue of "Grit" newspaper. It was written by Miss Jo Cooley of Mocksville:

"Nineteen years ago, I was injured in an automobile accident. My spine was severed, and since then I have been paralyzed from the waist down and confined to a wheel chair. But I run my own business, a beauty parlor in the business section of my home town.

"The town gave me a parking space in front of my shop and built a ramp over the curb so that I can come and go without help. Across the street the town built another curb ramp, so that I can go shopping. The owner of the movie theater removed a seat from the aisle so that I can roll my chair in and enjoy a picture.

"The Methodist Church also gave me a special parking space and built a walk so that I can ride into church.

"I'm one of the luckiest people alive in Mocksville."

Local Boy Scouts Are Observing 51st Anniversary Of Founding

Local Boy Scouts are participating this week in the observance of National Boy Scout Week. This represents the 51st anniversary of the Boy Scout movement.

Sunday, Feb. 12, members of the local Boy Scout Troop, Explorers, and Cub Scouts will attend services at the Presbyterian Church in a body.

On Saturday, Feb. 11, Troop 575, Charles Schram, leader, will meet at Rich Park for a cook-out and to pass off some of their badges.

The Cub Scouts will have their annual Blue and Gold Banquet in observance of the Founding of the Scout movement at a date to be announced later.

The Scouting movement began in South Africa in the early 1800's. A young British army officer, Robert Baden-Powell, was stationed in the wild South African country to train new soldiers from England in the skills of tracking, trailing, and wilderness living.

He found that his men were so used to city living that they could not stand the vigorous life of the outdoors. He recalled his own early days, his love of nature and outdoor living, and he worked out a series of games and activities to make his men physically strong, self-reliant, and able to live comfortably in the wilderness.

When General Baden - Powell returned home to England he was persuaded to develop his idea into a great game for boys. On Feb. 8, 1910, William D. Boyce, an American publisher, and others interested in the idea, formally incorporated the Boy Scouts of America. This day, Feb. 8, is celebrated today as the birthday of Scouting in the United States.

L. H. Pitton, secretary of the Religious Liberty Association, Charlotte Division, traced the origin of the "Blue Laws" and described how they were causing injustices even in the present day.

Mr. Pitton told the Rotarians the laws regulating the observance of Sunday were first published in colonial and were called "Blue Laws" because they were bound in a blue-covered book.

"You can't legislate religion", said Mr. Pitton. "Any attempt at such legislation always works and injustice and abridges the right of freedom of worship for others."

Mr. Pitton pointed out that there was nothing any worse than religious bigotry.

"The only trouble with Christianity is that it is made of human beings, many of whom possess to a greater or lesser degree religious bigotry and the desire to conform the world into their belief", said Mr. Pitton.

He quoted an old saying which goes:

"Everybody is wrong except me and thee, and sometimes I think thee a little queer."

Mr. Pitton told the group how the Religious Liberty Association worked to protect the freedom and rights of the individual in religious matters, regardless of church affiliation.

Dr. Ben Richards had charge of the program.

Gordon Tomlinson presided in the absence of President George Rowland. Special guests included Dewey Crawford of High Point; and Barry Miller, student guest.

Here a series of rollers, steam-heated to a precise temperature, electronically controlled, bring the plastic down to its final gauge and width dimensions.

As the sheet comes from the calendars it winds onto jumbo rolls, each of which contain bulk yardage of a specified weight and color.

The finished product is then inspected — carefully scrutinized for any imperfection in printing, embossing, and the body of the sheet itself.

Credit Card Bill To Be Introduced

RALEIGH — This young swain for a time last summer lived like a millionaire — on stolen credit cards — and this escapade, and others similar to it, will result in legislation being introduced in the 1961 Legislature to curtail such activities in the future in North Carolina.

The bill, already drawn up, will have the support of service stations, telephone companies, retailers, and other firms frequently

Medical doctors say that iced drinks in hot weather are not as effective as hot drinks for cooling us off, and that the best of all are the drinks that are just cool. Iced drinks cause a congestion of the stomach linings. This increases oxidation and produces more heat in the body. Cool drinks do not affect us that way, and hot drinks may make us perspire more freely, but perspiration is nature's way of cooling us off. If iced drinks are taken, they should be sipped, doctors say.

hijacked these days by a unique type of modern thievery. The measure, expected to be introduced early in the session, is tentatively headed as follows:

"A bill to be entitled an act to prohibit a person from obtaining or attempting to obtain goods, property or services by false or fraudulent use of credit cards or other false and fraudulent means and to prescribe penalties therefor."

Similar legislation was enacted in South Carolina and other states in 1960, say backers of the bill, and has proved to be a beneficial law to credit grantors, and to customers who lose by theft or carelessness their credit cards.

It is expected that one of the Judiciary committee of the House or Senate will hear first discussions on the proposal.

Conservation Activities

R. G. Everhart, Rt. 3, Mocksville and R. R. Sidden, Rt. 2, Advance, worked together in construction of 170 feet of open ditch drainage in bottomland on No Creek. Mr. Everhart said that he couldn't drain his land without Mr. Sidden because of outlet needed for drain. Minimum depth of drainage ditch was 3.5 feet and side slopes were 1:1. Approximately 13 acres were drained.

Zeno Hoots of Winston-Salem completed construction of 2350 ft. of open ditch drainage in bottomland on the Yadkin River near

Elementary Basketball

Mocksville School Elementary basketball team won two games last Thursday night from Cooleemee.

The Mocksville girls defeated Cooleemee girls 22 to 19, with the Mocksville boys coming off on top, 32 to 30.

Farmington school teams defeated Smith Grove, with the girls winning 28 to 25, and the boys, 30 to 19.

Thursday night's schedule is as follows:

Mocksville at Smith Grove. Advance at Farmington. Cooleemee has a bye.

Advance. Mr. Hoots said that the land was not able to produce because of poor drainage. Depth of drainage ditch at outlet was 22 feet.

So 11 Conservation planned drainage systems during January for E. C. Swicegood, Rt. 4, and Wade Beck, Rt. 4. Land capability maps are used to determine whether land can produce enough to make it worth the cost to install a drainage system. On many farms the bottom land is the most fertile soil, but because they are wet part of the year they produce only part of the yield they could produce. Both modern machinery and technical guidance are available more today for drainage problems than they have been in the past.

Now is the time to start thinking about those irrigation ponds. "Irrigation pays on tobacco," says Marvin Bracken, operator of N. C. Foster's farm. Mr. Bracken irrigated his tobacco three times during the past 1960 tobacco season. Irrigation pond was designed by ECS and constructed during the spring of 1960 and used for irrigation during summer of 1960 on six acres of tobacco. Mr. Bracken said his tobacco yield was up with the use of irrigation.

Governor Sanford Favors Heart Fund

Governor Terry Sanford has designated February "Heart Fund Month in North Carolina," according to William E. Hall, Fund Raising Representative of the Davie County Heart Council. In a statement issued today, the Governor referred to the fact that heart disease annually causes more than half of all deaths in the state and that "the cost in suffering to families and economic loss to the state is incalculable."

Because the American and North Carolina Heart Associations support heart research, including projects at North Carolina medical institutions; professional and public education; and community service programs "which have contributed significantly to the accelerated progress of the fight against heart disease," the Governor urged that "all our citizens give this campaign their enthusiastic support and cooperation."

The Heart Fund Drive takes place throughout February. Mr. Hall pointed out, and culminates in a door-to-door solicitation on Heart Sunday, February 26th. Wake Forest Basketball Coach Bones McKinney is state chairman.

GOVERNOR Terry Sanford is not telling Bones McKinney how to run basketball games, nor is McKinney telling the Governor how to run State affairs. The Governor is wishing the Wake Forest Basketball Coach well in his second term as State Heart Fund chairman. Bones will call the campaign plays during February, which Governor Sanford has proclaimed Heart Month in North Carolina.

The full text of the Governor's statement follows:

STATEMENT BY GOVERNOR TERRY SANFORD

Heart disease is the modern American epidemic, afflicting more than 10 million people, including half a million children. It is responsible for more than half of all deaths annually in this country. In North Carolina, over fifty people die every day of heart disease — more than from all other causes of death combined.

The cost in suffering to families and economic loss to the state is incalculable.

The picture would be much darker if these facts were not counter-balanced by the progress that is being made in the fight against heart disease — more, medical authorities say, in the past twenty centuries. Twenty years ago, victims of heart attack and stroke were resigned to a remaining few years of invalidism. Today, three out of four who have a heart attack go back to work, and many stroke patients can be helped to return to near-normal lives.

Today, new drugs and surgery are being used to control high blood pressure, inborn heart defects can be corrected, and diseased arteries replaced. Rheumatic fever, forerunner of rheumatic heart disease which was a serious threat to children can be prevented.

Heart research, to which scientists in North Carolina's medical institutions are contributing, is continuing the conquest of this Number One Killer. Physicians are being trained in our medical schools to use the new techniques coming out of the research laboratories. The public is being informed that help is available and that the sooner it is sought, the better the chance of warding off serious trouble.

The North Carolina Heart Association, with its parent body, the American Heart Association, supports research, education, and community programs, which have contributed significantly to the accelerated progress of the fight against heart disease. The annual Heart Fund drive in support of these programs will take place in February. In recognition of the importance of this work, I am glad to designate February, 1961 as Heart Fund Month in North Carolina, and urge that all our citizens give this campaign their enthusiastic support and cooperation.

The Debunker

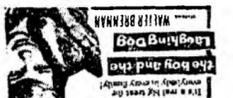

BY JOHN HARVEY FURBY PH.D. THE PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT DON'T HAVE TO COME FROM DIFFERENT STATES

Many people believe that the Constitution of the United States forbids the electing of a Vice President from the same State as the President. This is not true. There is nothing to prevent the election of both from the same State. The practice has been, however, to select candidates from different States, and different parts of the country, in order to gain more votes from the people living in these different sections of the country. It is good politics, but is not required by the Constitution.

HELP YOUR HEART

The greatest threat to life in Davie County today is heart disease. According to the latest annual report of the U. S. Health Service, heart disease is found to be the cause of 58.3 per cent of all deaths among residents of this county.

The month of February has been designated as "Heart Month". During this month the Davie County Chapter of the American Heart Association joins with the other chapters throughout the nation in fund raising campaign. The money raised in this drive is used to fight heart disease as follows:

Research: Heart Fund dollars are channeled into research to find the answer to the heart disease problem.

Education: The Heart Association brings the latest research information to your doctor. You get the information you need to protect your heart.

Community Programs: Your heart Association sponsors programs to rehabilitate cardiacs, prevent rheumatic fever, and bring the benefits of research to everyone.

As a direct result of the activities of the Heart Association, a person's chances of surviving a heart attack or a stroke and then going on to lead a normal life are getting better every day. This is attributed to the major advances achieved in heart research since the first Heart Fund campaigning in 1949. Some of these are as follows:

New and improved methods of diagnosis.

Prevention of rheumatic fever and bacterial infections of the heart.

Better ways of treating heart attack and heart failure.

Drugs which retard blood clotting and so help prevent repeated heart attacks.

New drugs which control high blood pressure.

Heart-lung machines to take over the heart's work during surgery.

Operations inside the heart to repair damaged valves and correct congenital defects.

Surgery to remove clots and to replace damaged arteries.

Solving the heart problem is everybody's business because it is today the nation's number one health challenge. Heart trouble can strike anywhere, anytime. No child, no adult, family is immune.

Remember, this month when you support the Heart Fund, you join medical science in the fight to win the most important victories in the history of mankind. Helping your heart fund . . . helps your heart!

Small Farms Getting Smaller

North Carolina's small farms are getting smaller, while the big ones are getting bigger.

Take Wayne County. The latest Agricultural Census shows that the number of farms with less than 20 acres of cropland dropped from 872 in 1954 to 512 in 1959. Farms with more than 20 and less than 30 acres declined in number from 1,201 in 1954 to 723 in 1959.

In the same time, the number of farms with 50 to 99 acres of cropland rose from 495 to 611; with 100 to 149 acres, from 67 to 121; with 200 to 499 acres, from five to

"It's easy to understand why the large farms are getting larger," says Wayne County Agent Mark Goforth. "Most farmers have an active desire to own more land. If they're making a good profit, they'll always be in the market for additional land."

But why are the smaller farms getting smaller? Wonders Goforth.

"It may be that the small farmers are selling all or part of their land to catch up debts," he suggests. "And they may be selling their land and working off the farm."

Goforth hopes that the farmers are combining their land with that of neighbors, for an operation of more economical size.

"One farmer can add 20 per cent more land without increasing his cost 20 per cent," he says.

In 1949, Wayne County had 4,915 farm units. There were 4,588 in 1954. And in 1959, there were only 3,518.

"In general, the more aggressive farmers continued to farm," says Goforth. "They're working harder and better to improve yields per acre and profit per acre."

Goforth says more and more farmers are telling agricultural workers: "Someone else has been tending this land and not making very good crops. How can I increase the yields? I cannot work unless I make a profit."

We Need To Be Reminded

Every American, whether he realizes it or not, is endowed with the power to stimulate historical reflection and patriotic thinking and endeavor for the good of mankind.

It doesn't take a college degree to establish in one's mind the knowledge of the basic principles upon which this great nation of ours was founded. Dictators can out themselves hoarse trying to convince the rest of the world that Americans are not really free. We inherently know this is not true. Yet too many of us sit back, smugly satisfied that our elected officials will "do the job" in preserving the American way of life. And if they don't — by golly, we'll vote for another guy next time! It is not that simple.

We need to be reminded — more than ever before — of the sacrifices and struggles of our forefathers in carving a governmental framework that brought us to world leadership; of those hardy pioneers who cut a route through mud, rock, timber and over mountains and rivers from the East to the West. We must be moved to action; to help our country in times such as these, when world peace is threatened!

Fortunately there are those who do exercise their "power to stimulate". An outstanding example is the America Fore Loyalty Insurance Group which, with considerable dignity and conviction, is currently helping remind millions of Americans what has been done — and what must be done by individuals — to preserve our freedom. America Fore Loyalty is doing this through an inspirational series of nine national magazine advertisements, which carry the theme, "Our Destiny Is In Our Own Hands." There is no sales message here, as far as insurance is concerned.

The "product" they are selling is the individual's role in shaping America's future.

Each advertisement carries, in full-color reproduction, historic paintings of distinguished artists from the private collection of America Fore Loyalty. Highly significant quotations of great men are used to tie in with an interpretation of the paintings and the message in the national interest.

Full-color reproductions of these presentations are being sent to government officials and educational, civic and fraternal organizations throughout the country.

The unusual variety of soil, climatic, and water conditions makes it impossible to raise 269 different crops in California — everything from almonds to zucchini. The State produces an eighth of the Nation's groceries, the National Geographic Magazine says.

News and Comment from our Raleigh Bureau - 2615 Oberlin Rd.

Will it be Bob Gavin or Charlie Jonas as the GOP candidate for Governor of North Carolina in 1964? Believe it or not, the vote on the Rules Committee change a few days ago could have much bearing on whether the Tenth District Congressman declines to try for higher office.

First indication that Jonas may be interested in running for Governor comes via grapevine from deep in the heart of the House Office Building in Washington, D. C. They say his calendar is "loaded" with speaking engagements for Eastern North Carolina during the next seven months.

If that be so — then Charles Jonas is running for something besides his old seat in the House.

39 Out of 100

As you probably know by now, 39 of our 100 counties in this State actually lost population in those Fabulous Fifties.

We evidently got plants and lost people. Figure that one.

As that as it may, we are losing one Congressional District — for the first time in this century. The Legislature is supposed to have the final say-so as to the one to be destroyed.

Jonas the Nod?

It may be that Lone Republican Charles Jonas figures he will get the nod from the heavily Democratic General Assembly — and is setting his stakos accordingly.

He will find Republican strength down cast a mere shadow of what he has grown used to in Charlotte environs. Used to be that — outside Sampson County — you could ride horseback 50 miles in any given direction without seeing one. They have improved — numerically — but then so have the Democrats.

Counties That Lost

These are the counties that lost population in the Fabulous Fifties: Alleghany, Anson, Ashe, Avery, Beaufort, Bertie, Bladen, Caswell, Cherokee, Chowan, Clay, Columbus, Duplin, Franklin, Gates, Graham, Greene, Hyde, Jackson, Johnston, Macon, Madison, Martin, Mitchell, Northampton, Pamlico, Perquimans, Polk, Richmond, Rutherford, Sampson, Scotland, Swain, Tyrrell, Vance, Warren, Watauga, Wilkes, and Zancy.

The others gained

The First Is Last

In connection, it is very interesting at this particular time to note that Congressman Herbert Bonner's 14-county First District — with a population of only 247,894 in 1950 census — was at the bottom of the heap in population.

The next lowest was the mountainous Twelfth with 284,691 — or 36,797 higher than the First.

Most of the other districts outnumber the First District by 100,000 people and better. Rep. Jonas' district, for example, had a population of 380,318 eleven years ago.

Now Get the Picture!

Of the 39 counties losing population in the Fabulous Fifties, seven — Beaufort, Chowan, Gates, Hyde, Martin, Perquimans, and Tyrrell — are in Herbert Bonner's First District. This tied to the fact that Rep. Bonner is, by about 10 years, older than any of our other Congressmen led to the thought that Bonner might be the man to go in the Congressional reduction. But that was — before last week!

When the chips were down in one of the biggest fights since the effort to enlarge the U. S. Supreme Court in 1936-37, Herbert Bonner was the only N. C. Congressman going along with House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Gov. Terry Sanford, and President John F. Kennedy to enlarge the Rules Committee and thus ease the way for New Frontier legislation — now upcoming!

The administration squeaked through to victory with Bonner's vote — and four others. At this time God Democrat Bonner's seat seems solid as concrete. Get the picture?

Twists of Fate

The recent deaths of Mrs. Isabel Hoey Paul and W. D. Carmichael remind one again of the peculiar twists of fate.

Mrs. Paul, 52, left Raleigh last Saturday a week ago to attend in Shelby the funeral of her brother, Charles, who had died suddenly at the age of 58 a few hours earlier. She was stricken while at the funeral, and never returned home.

Fourteen years ago this month Mrs. Paul's uncle, O. Max Gardner, apparently strong and healthy, died suddenly early on the morning he was to sail from New York as ambassador to England.

State Auditor George Ross Poup went to the funeral of his old friend in Shelby and died en route to Raleigh.

In the late summer of 1959, W. D. Carmichael's first cousin, UNC Coach Jim Tatum died after a brief illness. Mr. Carmichael's father, living at Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill, died after a few hours illness the day his nephew was buried.

The elder Carmichael was not far from 90; and Clyde R. Hoey was 77 when he died quietly and suddenly in his big chair while at work in Washington, D. C., in June of 1954.

Notes

There are now 913,176 Baptists in N. C. . . a huge gain over last year, according to L. L. Morgan, State Baptist Convention statistical secretary. . . The number of farms in Tarheelia has been dwindling at the rate of 15,000 per year since 1954. . . The very brightest hope of improving tremendously the operation of the N. C. General Assembly is the idea of moving Finance and Appropriations Committee meetings from afternoon to morning.

Banker L. R. Martin is in his 7th week at death's door from brain surgery at Duke Hospital. . . Two of Gov. Sanford's best appointments came last week when he named Merrill Evans of Ahsokie and Ben Roney of Rocky Mount to run the State Highway Commission.

There Are Heroes Everywhere.
TEXT: "Everywhere life is full of heroism." — Max Ehrman.

The story is told of the starry-eyed matron who gushed over the returned soldier.

"How perfectly splendid that you were one of the heroes who went overseas to die for your country!"

"Well, not exactly. Ma'am" replied the war hero. "I went over to make some other guy die for his."

People go along being people, doing what has to be done. To them there is nothing heroic about anything they do. Everyone may put forth extraordinary effort at times simply because that effort is called for, not to be heroic. Occasionally someone notices that extra effort. Then it is named "heroism" and the world applauds.

The simple truth is that there is heroism in everyone's striving. Life is full of it. Some happens to be publicized, some is not. We must not forget that great deeds are being performed, without mention, all around us.

There is extraordinary courage in ordinary men. Do not let surface cynicism blind you to the unsung heroism that makes our fellowman a joy to live with. You, too, are one of them. All have a streak of heroism. Look for it. Appreciate it. It will make life more rich and worth living.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

We got a new feller in our neighborhood and I think he's going to fit right good. Me and Ed Doclittle went over to see him the other night and he was telling us he's got a sure fire trick to fetch rain. All he had to do to get rain, he said, was to fetch and leave some sacks of cement outdoors. Claimed he got about a half inch to the sack. We're mighty glad to git this feller out here. Now if we can git somebody to furnish the cement, we got the crops practically laid by.

A whole bunch of wimmen folks was calling on this feller's wife when we was out there. Coming home, Ed allowed as how he was the only dirt farmer to ever break the sound barrier, claims he got two words in edge-wise while talking to the wimmen.

Me and Ed could've give this feller a heap of good advice on how to git along out here, but he talked like he'd been around some hesself. As in most communities, the people out here with the narrowest minds has got the widest mouths. I try to keep away from neighborhood fusses. I've found out that it's a heap easier to stay out than git in. Of course, secretly they've got a few scattered around out here that, if they'd break a leg, I'd rather it was their neck. But I just keep these tender sentiments to myself.

I was noting in the papers this week a couple of important scientific items. A history professor from the University of North Carolina named Dr. Crittenden says the typical mountaineer has disappeared from the mountains in this country. I ain't surprised none to hear this scientific fact. Them mountaineers has been migrating for years to radio stations to sing hillbilly songs. I reckon radio finally got 'em all. If perferer Crittenden will start a movement to git 'em back to the hills, I'll do all I can to help.

This second item come from a feller named Dr. Gans of London who claims the 2,400 year old habit of doctors examining the patient's tongue is a complete waste of time. Fer most of my life the standard examination for all doctors was to take your temperature, count your pulse, thump your stomach, and look at your tongue. When he got through he could tell whether you was well, bilious, or dead. At I ain't surprised none at this new discovery by Dr. Gans.

As a matter of fact, Mister Editor, I ain't surprised at nothing no more. As far as I'm concerned, they can take the exclamation point out of the English language.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Grand Central Station is no longer a ghost depot, now that the trains are running again, but nevertheless it has some spooky aspects. Down underneath it, men are at work undermining the structure, or so it seems, and laying the foundations for a much higher building to rise on this spot in the near future. Just to be sure these human moles are not unnoticed, a television camera has been trained on them and one can watch their activities on a small screen in the main concourse. Crane operators, blower men and common laborers have become TV actors overnight it seems. The new building will be 830 feet high with 59 stories of business offices. There will be almost 2 1/2 million square feet of floor space, more than any other office building in the world. Some 25,000 people will spend their working hours in Grand Central City, as this place will be called, and it is expected to attract 250,000 visitors daily. The fastest elevators in the world will speed passengers to their offices, officials say, and commuters can go to work from their trains without having to face the weather outside. Altogether, quite a hunk of structure.

Joe Smith says that this argument between conductors and the railroads about how many conductors should be on each sleeping car is academic to say the least. Joe is not taking sides between unions and management, but he allows that from his recent experience in riding Pullman cars, that the porters themselves are pining away from loneliness, so few are the passengers. In the first place, the sleeping space is priced out of the average person's reach, and often there are more trainmen on the cars than passengers. So Joe suggests that the trainmen work on a commission basis instead of salary wor awhile, and that they will soon cease their cry for more supervision of nothing.

A professor who has a Ph. D. degree recently wanted to make an airline trip but found that the reservations were all sold out for the usual passengers. Picking up the phone, he called the airline office and said he was Dr. So-and-So and had to make an emergency trip to Boston. After some hesitation on the other end of the line, the passenger clerk asked, "Are you a medical doctor?" The Ph. D. answered that he was "an obese schizophrenic." The clerk thought for a moment, turned to an associate and said that he had an important doctor on the line who had to get to Boston immediately. They placed him on the next flight. When his wife told him he might get himself in trouble, the professor replied, "I doubt it. At least not for calling myself a fat madmen."

Some of the new churches that have been built are either out of this world above or below. I grew up with the idea that a church was plain and oblong, made of wood or brick with a steeple and stained glass windows which fit modestly into the religious picture. Nowadays, some of these modernistic churches look like something out of the ghost of Frank Lloyd Wright. They appear to be a cross between a drive-in ice cream stand and a Cape Canaveral pad for a heaven-bound space ship. Maybe I'm still old-fashioned, but I'd rather take my chances for salvation in a conventional house of the Lord than a real-cool roundhouse.

Do you want to become a super-salesman? Want to learn a language or lose weight? Like to learn to relax, improve your memory or gain self-confidence, correct a bad habit or strengthen your will-power? Well, according to some stuff I have just received in the mail, the answer is simple. All you do is purchase some phonograph records, play them while you sleep and all the desired qualifications will sink in — all the while you are in the arms of Morpheus. In the morning you will discover you are a new man or woman — or your money is refunded. I To say nothing of the companion you may have driven to insomnia or insanity in the process. I No thanks, I'll take a no-admission ticket to the lovely land of Nod.

USDA predicts that broiler marketings for February and March from recent chick placements will be about nine and one-quarter per cent higher than a year earlier.

Senator SAM ERVIN Says:

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy's State of the Union Message was well phrased, well delivered, and by all standards an excellent address. I have noted a remarkable improvement in his speaking ability during the last four years. His almost Churchillian language which he used both in the Inaugural Address and his first State of the Union Message was classic: "Only when our arms are sufficient beyond doubt can we be certain beyond doubt that they will never be employed." It was impressive to me, as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, that the President also stated that he has taken prompt action in three areas which are clearly needed: First, to increase our airlift capacity; Second, to step up our Polaris submarine program; and Third, to accelerate our entire missile program. I favor these steps which are in the best interests of national defense.

Service Families Overseas
President Kennedy's order permitting service men's families to remain overseas with the servicemen, I am sure, will bring glad tidings to our armed forces and their families. I feel that the order of President Eisenhower should not have been entered. There are many other ways to stop the flow of gold from this country without placing the burden on service personnel.

Government Service Dedication
I was pleased to hear the President call upon "every man and woman who works in any area of our National Government, in any branch, at any level, (to) be able to say with pride and honor in the future years: 'I served the U. S. Government in that hour of our Nation's need.'" These are more than idle words when you observe how well the President has been able to attract by and large men and women of unusual ability into the government service of the new administration. His challenge should greatly benefit the country by inspiring initiative, responsibility, and energy in the service of the public interest. In a larger sense this challenge calls upon all Americans to rededicate our lives to the tasks ahead. To quote from this splendid message, the President concluded, "Life in 1961 will not be easy . . . We pray that we may be worthy of the unlimited opportunities that God has given us."

Social Security In Davie County

If you had gross income from your farm of $600 or more, you can get social security credits even if you had a loss in 1960. J. G. Liebensberger, district manager of the Salisbury social security office, said today. This means farmers can build up social security protection for themselves and their families.

Farm self-employed tax returns are due by Feb. 15th for those farmers whose tax year starts on Jan. 1. However, farm operators who file an estimate of their tax and pay that amount by January 15th have until April 15th to file their returns and pay any balance due.

Keeping accurate and complete records of all income and expenses is just good business all the time, but it is particularly important when it is time to file income tax returns. Maintaining good records now and filing tax returns on time means quicker processing of your claim when you become eligible for benefits or, in the event of your death, when your survivors apply for benefits. The amount of your benefit depends on the earnings you report. The tax on 1960 earnings is 4 1/2% of your net earnings up to $4800.

If you are going to apply for social security benefits this year, Mr. Liebensberger suggests you have an extra copy of your 1960 Federal Income Tax Return and Schedule F made up for social security and bring it with you so you can get credit for all your earnings under social security.

All tax returns are filed with Internal Revenue Service. More detailed information may be obtained from the Internal Revenue Office or the Social Security Office at 105 Corlier Avenue, Salisbury, N. C.

Brenda Renegar Is Contest Winner At Davie High

Brenda Renegar has been named the 1961 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow at Davie County Consolidated high school.

Having received the highest score in a written examination on homemaking knowledge and attitudes taken by graduating seniors in her school, she becomes a candidate for the state Homemaker of Tomorrow award which will be announced in March.

Each school Homemaker of Tomorrow will receive an award pin, manufactured by Jostens and representing the slogan, "Home is Where the Heart Is." The examination papers of school Homemakers of Tomorrow will be entered in competition to name the state's Homemaker of Tomorrow.

The $10,000 homemaking education program sponsored by General Mills offers a $1,500 scholarship to the first ranking girl in each state and $500 scholarship to the state's second ranking participant.

State Homemakers of Tomorrow and their faculty advisors receive an expense paid educational tour to New York City, Colonial Williamsburg, Va., and Washington, D. C., April 8-13, the trip culminating in the announcement of the All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow whose scholarship is increased to $5,000. Second, third and fourth ranking Homemakers of Tomorrow in the nation will have their scholarships raised to $4,000 $3,000 and $2,000, respectively.

The testing and judging is conducted by Science Research Associates of Chicago. With a record 42,788 girls in 12,633 of the nation's schools participating this year, the Betty Crocker Search has enrolled more than 2 million girls in its seven year history.

Play It Safe With Medicine

Jim was awakened one night by an annoying cough. Sleepily he stumbled into the bathroom, and reached in the medicine cabinet for the brown drug-store bottle of cough medicine. He'd swallowed a good ounce of the contents before his sleepy brain registered the fact that what he'd drunk wasn't cough medicine. For the first time he took a look at the label. Boric acid solution!

Jim was lucky. All that happened to him was a bad fright and a king-size stomach ache. In small babies, boric acid solution is almost always fatal.

More than 2,500 adults and children die every year from swallowing or inhaling poisonous products. Protect yourself and your family from accidental poisoning—

—Keep household products out of the medicine cabinet and drugs out of the kitchen.

—Keep all household products in their original containers, complete with label.

—Never take anything without first looking at the label. Look at the label again when you pour the medicine or take out the pills and again before you take it or give it to someone to take.

—Never leave anything poisonous in a cup, glass, soda-pop bottle or a pitcher.

—Don't let children see you taking medicine. They're likely to imitate you—with something that isn't medicine.

—Be especially careful with home dry cleaning products containing carbon tetrachloride. Even with good ventilation, you can still inhale a fatal amount.

you're missing something—

IMPORTANT TO YOUR HEALTH

There are at least 7,000,000 people in the United States suffering with rheumatism. This disease is responsible for more days lost from work than any other chronic disability except nervous and mental disorders. Rheumatism includes such conditions as lumbago, or stiff neck, shoulder pain, bursitis and many others.

Rheumatism results from misaligned vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on the delicate nerve fibers of the spinal cord and interfering with the vital nerve energy from the brain which powers every organ and cell in the entire body. Without this life-force brain power, the purification system of the body ceases to function properly. The kidneys, liver and skin cannot dispose of waste products. This waste collects in the muscles and joints of the body causing a toxic condition and great pain.

Correcting misaligned vertebrae will relieve the pain of rheumatism, and complete restoration of other bodily functions is the natural result.

Kitchin Introduces Bill To Repeal Tax On Communication

Congressman A. Paul Kitchin of North Carolina's Eighth Congressional District recently introduced a bill before the U. S. House of Representatives to repeal the federal excise tax on communications services and facilities.

In commenting on the bill, HR 2769, which he introduced on Jan. 16, 1961, Congressman Kitchin said, "The excise tax of communications services is one of the few 'luxury' taxes, imposed as a wartime measure, that has not yet been repealed. Originally, the tax was placed on telephone service and other communications services to discourage overloading these vital wartime facilities with non-essential use."

Congressman Kitchin said that telephone service is the only household utility that carries this discriminatory tax today. "It places telephone service, which is a necessity to most North Carolina families, in the same tax cate-

Channel 2 Reports On 'The Big Beat'

A locally-produced program on medicine for the CHANNEL 2 REPORTS series, entitled "The Big Beat," will be televised Thursday, February 9 at 10:00 p.m. on WFMY-TV.

"The Big Beat," a study of the human heart, will be written, produced and narrated by John McMullen of WFMY-TV in cooperation with the Heart Association of Greensboro.

Outstanding heart specialists from the Piedmont area will participate in the program — each dealing with a different phase of the heart. Dr. Ernest Craige from N. C. Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill will describe the progress which has been made in the past; members of the cardiology team of North Carolina Baptist Hospital, Winston-Salem, will illustrate what is currently being done in heart care; and Dr. Eugene Cream of Duke Hospital in Durham, N. C., will demonstrate what the medical profession hopes will be accomplished in the future care of the heart. Dr. Arthur Friedman, Dr. Marshall G. Morris, Dr. Ed Benbow, and Mrs. Lauta Lowe of the local Heart Association, will discuss causes of heart ailments and the rate of increase or decrease in various heart diseases.

A comparison between the heart and a power generator will be demonstrated by William Burton, manager of the Greensboro office of Duke Power Company. "The Big Beat" will attempt to tell the dramatic story of the power of a heart, the different types of diseases and what can be done to prolong the life of this most vital of organs. "The Carolinians," a Jazz combo, will provide unusual and descriptive background music for portions of the program.

For the People

By Bernadette W. Hoyle Public Information Officer N. C. S. Board of Public Welfare

[This is the fourth of a series explaining public welfare in North Carolina]

Why is public welfare necessary in such times of prosperity?

There are many reasons. One is the "population explosion" — the increase in births since World War II.

There are increasingly more homes broken by divorce, desertion and other absences from the home of the father.

Most of the mothers of these children are not able to leave the home and work, and are financially unable to support their children.

We have an increasing number of old people. There are in North Carolina over 300,000 people over 65 years of age.

People are living longer, due to advances in medical science, yet many of these old people are not able to work to support themselves.

Many of them were not able, because lack of training and education, to hold jobs during their working years which paid enough for them to save for their old age.

Another reason many people help is that it is increasingly difficult for the untrained, unskilled person to get gainful employment that pays sufficient wages to take care of his needs and those of his family.

Also, the cost of living continues to rise. Any increase hurts the very poor more than those in comfortable circumstances.

Aren't most of the illegitimate children in N. C. getting help from public welfare?

No. Only 9 per cent of the illegitimate children receive any financial assistance from public welfare in North Carolina.

Over 90 per cent, therefore, are being cared for by relatives or other persons responsible for them.

But aren't more and more illegitimate children getting public welfare payments?

No. The proportion of families with illegitimate children in the case of county departments of public welfare has declined considerably.

The percentage dropped from about one-fifth of the families in 1956 to about 16 per cent in 1958.

While the national average stands at 20 per cent of the families.

Aren't many women having illegitimate children so they can collect in a public welfare money?

No. An additional child would mean, on the average, an increase of less than $10 per month in the payment. It would be ridiculous to assume that this would be an incentive to a woman to continue to have illegitimate children.

Why aren't all illegitimate children cut off public welfare rolls?

The citizens of North Carolina would not permit the neglect and hunger of so many children. Ours is a society which does not believe a child should be penalized because of the condition of its birth.

If such action were taken there might be a sharp reduction in immediate expenditures, but there would be an unthinkable cost in terms of expenditure.

for crime, juvenile delinquency, and medical costs if these children were allowed to grow up in poverty, neglect and squalor.

Why can't mothers of illegitimate children be sterilized so they cannot have more children?

They can only be sterilized, under North Carolina law, if mentally ill, mentally retarded, or epileptic. Otherwise, sterilization would be unconstitutional.

Gov. Sanford Vs Old Number One

It wasn't Gov. Terry Sanford's fault that he and the first lady were an hour late for the Press Institute's five o'clock reception at Carolina Inn, Chapel Hill, a recent Thursday afternoon.

His Excellency was all set to be on time — but Old Number One wasn't budging from the Mansion. The chauffeur and a number of other amateur mechanics like Gov. Sanford and Graham Jones, his assistant, pulled this and pushed that.

Nothing doing. Just the water pump, said the mechanic who was called in to get the black job caddlacking. Work began on it — while the clock ticked merrily away.

Meantime, back at the ranch, the receiving line began forming as furtive eyes frowned toward the door. The crowds started winding through the grinding, all smiles now, for some was had started the ridiculous joke that "Old Number One won't start — that's the reason Gov. Terry is late."

Fact of the matter was it wouldn't and didn't. The Governor, known as a man who likes to get moving, told his assistants to get a car — any car. They got a Ford — young and supple and little — and under leaden skies and through the woods to Chapel Hill they went.

And somebody who saw the party disembark at Carolina Inn from the chauffeur-driven flivver said Gov. Terry Sanford and Mrs. Sanford looked no less fine and regal alighting from the Ford than they would have climbing from the big black depths of Old Number One.

New-Grower Cotton and Tobacco Allotments

The closing date for filing an application for a new-grower cotton or tobacco allotment for 1961 is Feb. 15. Any person who plans on filing an application must get it in by this date in order to be eligible. Certain requirements must be met in order for a farmer to be eligible. Interested persons should contact the ASC office for more information and for filing an application.

Premeasurement Of Cotton and Tobacco

Feb. 15 is also the closing date for requesting premeasurement of cotton and tobacco. By having the land officially premeasured a farmer can be assured of getting the correct acreage planted. The land will not be remeasured so long as the farmer plants within the designated area. The cost for premeasurement will be $3 per farm plus $1 per acre with a minimum of $8 per farm.

ACP Program

Farmers that requested cost-sharing during the initial sign-up period will receive their approvals within a few days. They may come by and pick up purchase orders at any time. Approvals are now being given on a day to day basis. Any farmer who has not put in a request should come by and sign up. A wide variety of practices are available.

Cotton Deadline Near

Cotton farmers don't have much longer to decide whether they will plant their cotton acreage or release it. A. P. Hassell, Jr., Administrative Officer for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee, expressed the hope that all cotton farmers will get a clear picture of the choice they have to make before the deadline for releasing cotton acreage. The deadline varies by counties but farmers who do not plan to plant their cotton should release it to the ASC County Committee during highlight week, Feb. 20-24, or before that time if the farmer has already decided what he intends to do.

Complete release of cotton acreage which will not be planted this year could go a long way toward solving the problems of cotton farmers, ginners, and processors. If Tar Heel cotton farmers do not plant their full acreage or take advantage of the acreage released provision they will bring about a considerable cut in this state's cotton acreage. With cotton bringing nearly forty million dollars annually to farmers in this state we just can't afford to reduce our state's farm income in this manner.

According to Hassell, though, all the advantage from releasing and reappportioning cotton acreage does not go only to the farmer who will be able to plant the released acreage this year. The farmer who released the acreage benefits just as much as the farmer who received the released acreage. Releasing acreage he can't plant is the only way a farmer can retain planting history and keep from cutting his own future allotments.

Farmers who cannot plant their full cotton acreage this year should by all means come by the ASC County Office and release the acreage they will not use.

Farmers who cannot plant their full cotton acreage this year should by all means come by the ASC County Office and release the acreage they will not use.

Feeder Pig Production Program Looks Promising for Davie Farmers

A meeting on Feeder Pig Production for Davie County farmers was held in the Davie County Office Building at 2:00 p. m. Thursday, February 9th. The proposal to the local farmers looks good in that an eastern Carolina packing company will place units of sows and boars with the farmers to produce the pigs from. The county also will be provided a good market for all pigs produced from the sows and will have a field representative to work the area assisting with the production program.

The pigs will be purchased when they reach the weights of 40-60 pounds and will be paid for on a scale according to the market price for No. 1 hogs on the day the pigs are sold. An example being that the quotation for market hogs on today's market is $18 per hundred then a 50 lb. pig would sell for $12.16. On a $12.00 market the 50 lb. pig would bring $9.78. On a $22.00 market $14.02. The gilts placed with the local producers will be of breeding age and size. One boar will be placed with each 25 gilts, and the gilts will be bred in two separate groups.

If a producer agrees to take 25 sows he will receive 12 sows and the boar on a given date. These gilts will then be bred in a group. He will then receive the balance of his gilts 90 days later. This will provide a multiple farrowing system by which farrowing facilities will be fully utilized and 25 sows can be farrowed in a 12 pen farrowing house. The farrowing house will need to be adequate, but not necessarily an elaborate or fancy house. The pigs are to be maintained and raised in the farrowing house, being weaned at 6 weeks of age, and they should be ready for selling from 10-12 weeks, depending upon the management the producer provides for his animals. The sows should be provided good leuca pasture during the dry or gestation period. A sound feeding program is required for all animals, but no specific brand of feed is required. This will allow the producer to use his home grown grains, plus commercial supplements, vitamins and minerals. For further information or details on this program contact the Davie County Agricultural Agent.

More About Ministerial Assoc.

A letter to the principals of the county schools and the presidents of the PTA's of the schools was also approved, and it was ordered that a copy of the resolution and the letter be delivered to them. The letter is as follows: To the Principals of the Davie County Schools and The Presidents of the Parent-Teacher Associations of Davie County Gentlemen:

After having prayerfully considered the matter of gambling and games of chance in some of the schools of our community, the Ministerial Association of Davie County at its December meeting unanimously adopted a resolution, a copy of which is enclosed in this letter. It is hoped that this letter will make our position quite clear.

First of all, we took this action because we feel that the problem is a community problem and therefore should be of vital concern to all of us as citizens of the county. In no sense do we mean to dictate policy to those who are primarily responsible for activities in the schools.

Secondly, we are not proposing that Harvest Festivals or Halloween Carnivals, etc., be abolished. We do, however, feel that gambling and games of chance are not in the best interest of our community and should be replaced with more wholesome activities.

Thirdly, the Ministerial Association stands ready and willing to help bring about these suggested changes. We trust that you will feel free to call on us at any time. Sincerely yours, THE DAVIE COUNTY MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION A. M. KISER, Secretary

Davie Mohawks Go After State Crown

The Davie County Training School Mohawks last week finished their final home basketball games with a smashing victory over Wilkesboro and Statesville. The Mohawks ended the season with a 12-2 record and are considered one of the top teams in the State. Coach Clyde Studevant said: "This is the strongest team in the state and I'm hoping that we can win the state championship. The coach and his boys will travel to Bonoessville this Thursday and defend their last year's title in the N.D.A.C. Tournament. College coaches have been hounding Coach Studevant all season to give scholarship grants to three members of the Mohawks. However, only one of the three is a senior. The three boys who were offered basketball scholarships were Nath Dulin, Robert Hairston and James Clement.

"I hope the boys will take advantage of their scholarship offers and I feel that they are great prospects for college basketball," said Coach Studevant.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I think the various states is going to have to revise their standards for getting a driver's license. In most states they make a feller take a eye test, and in some states they even make him take a medical test.

It ain't worked out so good, as you can see by counting the dead and wounded on our highways. Everybody laughed here a few years ago when the Traffic Institute of some University come out with an announcement that a two-year study showed the best automobile drivers was morons with a mental age of 15 and who couldn't see none too good. They said their study showed that this type driver, not having much mind to start with, had to keep what little he had concentrated on what he was doing.

A smart feller would give a certain amount of thought to his driving, a certain amount to the gal on the corner with the wind blowing her skirts, and certain amount to the conversation going on in the back seat. But the moron puts his whole soul into his driving. And having pore eyesight, he can't see all the billboards, so he just don't bother to look no place except where he's driving.

I saw a monkey riding a motorcycle on television the other night. Some how or other, the more I looked at it the less I was impressed. The highways is full of monkeys driving automobiles. You'll often see some eagle-eyed feller, maybe a college graduate, driving his car down the road about 70 miles a hour, dodging in and out of traffic, with his left hand and arm swung up on the roof of the car, just like a monkey swinging from a limb.

No, I wouldn't be surprised, Mister Editor, if we don't need to take a new look at our requirements for getting a driver's license.

And I see by the papers where a tax expert says 75 per cent of the money spent on tobacco and liquor goes to the Government in direct and indirect taxes. I reckon a feller that just has to smoke and drink can git some satisfaction out of that fact.

Uncle Sam distributes our tax money all over the world. Cigarette and liquor money sends wheat to India, clothes to boys in Africa who up to now has been happy without any, and butter to countries that never seen it before. Yeh, I reckon if a feller wanted to, he could almost make a marter of hisself fer smoking and drinking.

And a column writer says farmers and ranchers do 87 per cent of all the complaining in this country. I figger there ain't nothing wrong with that. Farmers and ranchers is the most overworked and underjoyed folks in the nation.

Yours truly, Uncle Dan

Average Session Has 2,000 Bills

Although the 1961 session of the General Assembly got off to a fast clip during the first week of work, the pace will have to be faster if it gives reality to its quiet hope of winding up business by June 15.

The old adage that "a job begun is half done" seems true of almost everything except law-making.

Experienced legislators point out that "introducing the bills is the least of our troubles." It is the long committee hearings, arguments, and introduction of weakening and strengthening amendments that are time-consuming.

The average session of the N. C. Legislature sees the introduction of approximately 2,000 bills. When one considers that during the first week of business, fewer than 40 had been introduced, it is easy to visualize the vast amount of work which lies ahead.

For The People

By BERNADETTE W. HOYLE Public Information Officer N.C. State Board of Public Welfare

This is the ninth of a series explaining public welfare in North Carolina.

Can I adopt a child from an orphanage or child caring institution in North Carolina?

Only with the signed consent of the parent, or parents. Suppose the parent of this child has shown no interest in him?

Under present laws, signed consent for adoption is required. In some child caring institutions and foster homes there are children whose parents have disappeared, or who never visit them, never write to them, never send gifts to them and yet will not sign the consent. To all intent and purposes, these children are literally abandoned.

County departments of public welfare can sometimes get in touch with these parents and point out the importance of contact with the children. Staffs in institutions also seek to maintain these contacts between parents and children.

If the parents continue to refuse to sign consent or to contact the children, then could I adopt a child?

Not under the present laws. Today's best social thinking is that if, after diligent effort, parents still pay no attention to their children, these children should be available for adoption by parents who would love them and provide a good home for them. It is hoped that North Carolina will correct the present situation by passage of appropriate legislation that will make these children available for adoption.

I seldom hear the word "orphanage" any more, why is this? Because actually most of the children in child caring institutions today have one or both parents living and are not, therefore, really "orphans." About 43 1/2% have both parents living, 45 1/2% have one parent living, and only six per cent are children with both parents deceased.

What per cent of children in these institutions are available for adoption?

Surprisingly, very few. Over 90 per cent have one or both parents living. They may not be able to support the child entirely, or, for various reasons, the children cannot live with the parents. However, most of the children are not available for adoption.

The same road...but what a difference! This is the lane that leads home—and he has driven it more times than he can remember. But there's something different about it today—for this is the first time it has rolled beneath the wheels of his new Cadillac car. And here, as he is now discovering, is motordom's truest miracle in motion. First of all, there's the way a 1961 Cadillac smooths out that familiar surface. By the time those bumps and irregularities have been absorbed in that marvelous new suspension system . . . and cushioned in those deep Cadillac seats . . . they are almost impossible to detect. Then there is the car's extraordinary quiet. Cadillac's careful craftsmanship and precision engineering provide such silence of operation that you can speak in a whisper. And what poise and balance the car has! It is wonderfully steady and sure-footed through every mile . . . and it has a feeling of solidity and substance that comes from no other motor car. Of course, these are but a few of the myriad pleasures of driving the new "car of cars"—in addition to its great handling ease and its magnificent interior comfort and luxury. May we suggest that you take a 1961 Cadillac out soon on some challenging stretch of highway—and see for yourself? Spell It Out . . . WHAT IS GAMBLING . . .

The Davie County Ministerial Association has adopted a resolution opposing what they term as the presence of gambling or games of chance in connection with Halloween Carnivals or Harvest Festivals. Such a resolution, however, appears to be superfluous as no one would ever imagine that a ministerial association would condone the presence of gambling. The question is what gambling?

No where in their resolution do they specify or enumerate the instances of gambling to which they refer. By not doing so it leaves as a matter of conjecture what they interpret as gambling or games of chance. Certainly such a resolution that does not specify and enumerate the objectionable practices, serves as an unfair indictment against those for whom it is intended. We feel sure that no school official or president of any Parent-Teacher Association is knowingly permitting illegal or immoral gambling . . . and there is a difference between legal gambling and illegal gambling.

The Halloween Carnivals with which we are familiar permit bingo, throwing at the milk bottles, cake walks, dart throwing, and the like . . . of course all games of chance . . . but would not necessarily be classified as gambling except in the narrowest of opinions. We have attended Halloween Carnivals and other such events all over North Carolina (which the resolution says are prohibited by the laws of N. C.) and observed that the same takes place.

We note that almost every volunteer fire department in the county have sold tickets which give chances on various items to raise money for equipment needed to provide fire protection. We also note that a large number of other organizations sell chances on cakes for their building funds . . . or other projects.

And of course there is the annual Masonic Picnic which, if the Ministerial Association is going to be consistent, must be condemned because certainly there are games of chances existing there. But are these illegal or immoral? What is a game of chance? We do not believe that it is possible to have a game . . . unless there is an element of chance involved. Certainly no sure thing is a game . . . and by the same token if it is not a sure thing . . . there is some element or risk involved and it becomes a gamble.

Like most everything else, as far as gambling is concerned there is not just a black and a white . . . but all degrees of gray in between. We do not believe it fair or morally right . . . be it a ministerial association or any other such organization . . . to utilize general terms in presenting what might be termed as an indictment against a person or an organization. Certainly our courts prohibit such a practice.

We certainly believe that any group, such as the ministerial association, has a right to make known its beliefs and to work to put them across. However, we believe they should spell out the practices to which they are opposed and not use such broad and indicting terms as gambling.

Friday is World Day of Prayer

Friday, February 17, 1961, is the seventy-fifth anniversary of the World Day of Prayer.

The act of prayer is as old as man himself and man's belief in its power as enduring as the chain of life upon this planet. The power of prayer is known to millions and the eagerness of people today to band together and act collectively for multiplying their strength is reflected in their effort to pray together across the vast geographical distances between them.

World Day of Prayer, sponsored in the United States by United Church Women of the National Council of Churches, carries with it a potential force worthy of the nuclear age in which we live. From a day set aside back in 1887 at the suggestion of one woman of one denomination to pray for the success of its home missions and to bring gifts for their support, World Day tional prayer cycle.

Now the people of 145 countries take part and their gifts help provide schools, colleges, hospitals, doctors, nurses, teachers, vacation church schools, day-care centers, mobile clinics, scholarships and spiritual nurture in America and in many lands overseas.

In our community, services will be held in the Ladies' Parlor of the First Methodist Church on Friday between 8 a.m. and 6 p. m. Mrs. J. Frank Clemment is serving as local chairman.

In America more than 22,000 communities hold special services. Millions join in the same prayer of thanksgiving, repentance, and appeal for a peaceful world that is being voiced simultaneously in Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Each year United Church Women seeks out Christian leaders in different lands to prepare the service. This anniversary service based on the theme, "Forward Through the Ages", was prepared in the United States by the former associate general secretary, Division of Foreign Missions, National Council of Churches.

As prayers rise around the world in sixty languages and more than one-thousand dialects, there will be a complete band of prayer encircling the earth. Some who pray cannot read; some will be hungry and cold; others will have all the material comforts that wealth provides.

The World Day of Prayer draws in its wake gifts that are material as well as a dedication of the spirit. The offerings are equally divided between projects of the Divisions of Home and Foreign Missions, National Council of Churches. Were it not for these World Day of Prayer offerings, the inter denominational ministries in the United States, Alaska, and Puerto Rico would be curtailed, as would the extensive educational, medical and religious work around the world.

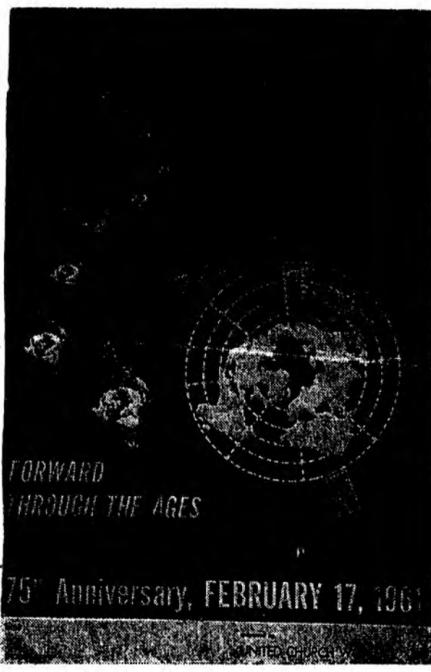

One of the goals this year is an offering of $750,000 for the regular on-going projects and for two anniversary specials. The one is a massive literature program for the new Africa, with a Christian training center for African writers, the production of half-a-million books written by Africans for Africans, and the first stage of a coordinated program of training African writers in the special techniques of radio script writing. The other special is a creative mission in Alaska, our newest state. Here specialists in church planning and social welfare will assist Alaska's growing churches to develop a sense of community and a basic correlated strategy of Christian ministry and witness.

From the silent prayer of each individual, to that of communities gathering in a place of worship on Friday, to the Prayer Fellowships meeting on behalf of huge geographical areas, the united efforts of Christians to find God's purpose for this world will come a full circle. Everyone can be a part of this fellowship, wherever he is, this Friday.

Weekly Report from the General Assembly

By Lester P. Martin, Jr., Representative

Week Ending Feb. 10, 1961
The 1961-63 North Carolina General Assembly convened at noon on Wednesday, Feb. 8, 1961, with a short but impressive ceremony as members of the General Assembly took the oath of office upon individual Bibles presented by the State of North Carolina for the occasion. Secretary of State Thad Eure presided and Supreme Court Justice Hunt Parker administered the oath to the 120 members of the House of Representatives. The oath-taking ceremony called to our attention that, although we are each elected to represent our respective counties, our obligation also extends to the State of North Carolina.

Immediately after the "swearing-in," Joe Hunt of Guilford was named speaker and the House got down to business. The first bill, a resolution calling for immediate consideration of the problem of re-dividing the congressional districts, gave rise to a short but violent controversy between Ed Kemp (Dr. Ramey Kemp's brother) of Guilford and John Kerr of Warren. Further argument was avoided when a messenger from the Senate brought word that a similar resolution had already been introduced in that chamber. This news brought a temporary truce, but the impression remains that lively times are ahead.

The Thursday session for the most part was concerned with the Governor's budget message which was delivered before a joint session of the House and Senate. The Governor called for no new taxes at this time but promised to be back with further proposals, particularly in the field of education. The majority of the House appears to be in favor of the budget and generally seem to favor more aid for education, even if it means higher taxes, but there is a growing hope that drastic new taxes will not be necessary.

At the Friday session Speaker Hunt announced committee appointments for two of the larger committees — Finance and Appropriations. The finance committee is composed of half of the membership of the House and is charged with the duty of raising revenue. The Appropriations Committee, of which I am a member, is composed of the other half of the membership and is charged with the duty of spending the money raised by the Finance Committee.

SO THIS IS
NEW YORK
By NORTH CALLAHAN

Much has been written about the weather, little done about it and this is no suggestion that anything more can be done. But when anything strikes a community like the recent series of local snow-storms, some relevant statement is irrefragable. We have had it. We have been deluded, embedded and overcome with the white stuff. Those who grew up as I did under the influence of Whittier's poignant poem, "Snowbound", may take a romantic view and think of the snug household and the farm family before a cozy fireplace, with little concern about the frozen world outside. But the current truth is — most New Yorkers think that snow is for the birds — and they would just as soon view it on television and miss the privilege of having to shovel the substance from their driveways and streets. They are slaves of the machine age, must depend on trains operated by strike-minded people, subways manned by grim-faced rebels and automobiles dependent on storage batteries and chains or snow tires which may be effective or not. All in all, it makes one wonder if our millennium will be in the form of ice or fire. Which ever it is, one sure thing is that the average New Yorker has had a big sample of both lately, and is more immune to the outcome than he ever was before.

Next door to our suburban home is a tall, white rambling house in which Paul Andrews, general head of the textbook division of Prentice-Hall publishing company and his family now live. It was once the home of a couple known to millions of Americans and others — Sinclair Lewis and Dorothy Thompson. She died the other day, he had passed away ten years before. The couple made literary history in a way. He ripped open the small town in America, she had brought brusquely to public attention, the state of the world as related to our nation for more than two decades. Neither, it seems to me, was happy. I once asked the old mail man who delivered their mail if he knew any interesting stories about them. He could only recall a snowy day when "Red" Lewis, as he was called, was sitting writing at a table with a big tumbled of bourbon at his elbow and offering the mail man a tiny jugger of same. Recently, the movie, "Elmer Gantry" was reminiscent of the great talents of Sinclair Lewis who was the first American to win the Nobel Prize for literature, after losing the Pulitzer prize when Hamlin Garland engineered the giving of it to Willia Cather in 1920. Downgraded by some modern critics, Lewis nevertheless gave the American people a vividly caricatured picture of themselves that those of us who lived in his memorable days will never forget.

Thomas F. Patton, president of the Republic Steel Corporation, told a large and interested audience at New York University last week, that business prospects in the 1960's look good, but with some qualifications. Speaking as a Moskwitz lecturer, the distinguished executive pointed out many factors which will govern our prosperity for the next decade, including public relations, labor and management relations and the general attitude of the public toward private enterprise. He revealed that many people do not understand our democratic system. For example, a poll of his company showed that 37 per cent of the employees thought that the electoral college of the United States was a special school for the children of Congressmen. As a result, Republic Steel is conducting a series of classes to instruct their personnel in the workings of our great democracy.

News and Comment from our Raleigh Bureau - 265 Charles Fed.

Within the next 30 days—and probably before the end of February — two pieces of legislation relating to North Carolina's Minimum Wage Law will be introduced in the 1961 edition of the Legislation. These bills will try to:

1. Increase minimum pay from its present 75 cents to $1.00 per hour.
2. Broaden very, very much the present law — but keep it at 75 cents per hour.

DIVISION OF THOUGHT
Now among the leaders in the 1959 scufflings to get a minimum wage established in this State, there is not the unity of thinking that was so evident about this time two years ago.

In the first place, Sam J. Burrow, Jr. of Randolph County, chief fighter in the House for the law in 1959 is now a dignified—though still a crew-cut liberal—State Senator.

It is understood that Senator Burrows, who introduced the $1 measure in 1959, might prefer to broaden the present law then to begin playing with the $1 item and run a chance of the whole kit-and-keoboodle being defeated. Some others feel likewise — good liberals, too.

Then two of the 1959 fighters for the law — Joe Kincaid Byrd of Burke County and Frank N. Patterson, Jr. of Stanly County — have, also, been replaced by Republicans Dan R. Simpson and Clyde H. Whitley, respectively. In fact, Senator Burrow's Randolph County place in the House has been taken over by Republican Roby Garner. Big changes.

DOLLEY FOR DOLLAR
But Stephen Bland Dolley, Jr., 31-year-old Gastonia lawyer, was a hot minimum-wager in 1959—and he is back. He wants a $1.00. Banker Danny M. Courtney of Caldwell, also a front-line fighter in '59, is with us — but hasn't yet tipped his hand. They will be courting Courtney.

OUT WITH EXEMPTIONS
This may be denied in official quarters, but the word we get is that the N. C. Dept. of Labor would prefer to see the law stay at 75 cents, with most of the exemptions out, than to see it go to $1.00 with the exemptions.

We doubt that Labor Commissioner Frank Crane would shout it from the rooftops — but will wager you this is his opinion. He is a good man, solid for labor, but is a realist — not an idealist in this respect.

The first exemption to go will be the one eliminating from the law firms having fewer than six employees. Several employers having more than five are already upset with that one.

As you know, objectors to the law, any law, in 1959 shot it through with exemptions — a long list of them. Most, but not all, of these will be knocked out, pulling thousands more under the 75 cents law.

That is the way it looks from here—at this time.
EASY AS PIE
The story has it that these two men, old friends, were back in Raleigh for the Legislature. They sat in the lobby of the Sir Walter here talking over old times. After a while, Jim noticed that his old buddy, John, was smoking one cigarette after another, lighting each new one with the old one.

"John, old boy, you really go after the old weed, don't you? I just been sitting here noticing. You oughta quit those things. . . get you down."
John didn't miss a puff, said he had tried it a thousand times, but just could not quit.

"John", said Old Friend Jim, "it's no trouble. Just set your mind to it and you can quit. I stopped 'em three years ago . . . three years, five months, one week, and two days ago — will be at eight o'clock tonight. No trouble a tall to quit cigarettes."
MOTORCYCLE AND DOG

After a month as Secretary of Commerce in Pres. John F. Kennedy's cabinet, former N. C. Gov. Luther Hodges is still not out of the woods as far as his far-flung department is concerned.
He confided to friends in Washington, D. C., last week that the building is so big that he still can't locate some of the divisions, offices, etc.

"I'm going to get me a motorcycle and a bird dog one of these first days and really get acquainted with the place", he was quoted as saying last week.
MAKE A CLOCK
Heard on Capitol Square just before the convening of the Legislature last Friday: "No, I do not understand the bill — and I've read it over three times. I would ask — about it, but I just don't have the time to spare. He's the type of fellow — if you ask him what time it is, he'll tell you how to make a clock."

FREQUENTLY
One of the most widely known after-dinner speakers in America is Edmond Harding of Washington, North Carolina. This will give you some idea of just how well known he has become.

A friend in Raleigh called him in Washington, N. C., last week. The number is WH 6-23-25. By mistake, the long distance operator got WH 6-23-25 in Washington, D. C., and asked if Edmond Harding was in.

The lady in Washington, D. C., said that Edmond Harding was not in, had not been in, and was not expected. When the operator apologized, she said: "Oh, don't mind. It happens all the time."

Long distance had the right number, but the wrong city, and the exchange letters were the same — except WH in Washington, N. C. stands for Whitney while WH in Washington, D. C. is for White House.

P. S. Harding was not in. He was in Steubenville, Ohio, making a speech.

Senator SAM ERVIN Says:

WASHINGTON — The legislative pace of the Congress is beginning to move at a faster rate. However, Senatorial hearings under the power of confirmation are proceeding on the Presidential appointments of top administrators. Any change in the government requires a period of transition. That fact is apparent here as new names and faces are ushered into positions of responsibility daily. Soon the Senate will have completed action on the nominees and will direct its whole-hearted attention to proposed legislation.

COMMITTEES — The major working tool of the Senate is the committee. All during the session hearings are held in the committees on proposed and pending legislation. The usefulness of the committee is that it enables one hundred Senators to divide up the work of the Senate into major fields. Senators can specialize in a particular field of legislation through their work on their committees. In this Congress I will again be a member of three major committees which are the Armed Services Committee, the Government Operations Committee, and the Judiciary Committee. I am Chairman of the Subcommittee on the Revision and Codification of the Laws and Constitutional Rights.

JOBS AND DOLLARS — Business and labor should welcome the views expressed by the President recently that a vigorous effort will be made to stimulate our exports and bolster the world market for American goods. Expanding our exports will require the cooperation of both industry and labor. It will benefit both. Profits and jobs are dependent on a market for our goods and services. The approach can strengthen jobs and dollars. A major cause for the American gold crisis is that our exports have slackened in the face of foreign competition. Jobs and the employment can be done by new effort in this direction.

SUGAR MARKET RESTUDY — Stop gap legislation will probably be necessary when the present Sugar Act expires March 31, 1961. The Congress and the new Administration need time to restudy the quota policy and the entire Sugar Act. The interests of consumers, domestic beet and cane growers, and world producers of sugar have all been balanced on a tight rope during recent years. The Sugar Act has become a major instrument of our foreign policy. The ban on our purchases of sugar from Cuba, which I advocated, brings the whole problem into sharp focus. A restudy should give an insight on how to proceed.

Hog slaughter is expected to continue below 1960 until about the middle of the year, says USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service. At mid-year, slaughter should exceed year-earlier rates, with supplies first coming from the 1960 fall crop and later from early spring pigs.

FARM STORAGE
Farmers are urged to consider their problem of storage and protection of small grain now while there is time to provide additional bins that might be needed.

The first thing a farmer should do is estimate the grain to be harvested and determine if present storage facilities are adequate. If he determines that he will not be able to store a good portion of his grain he should take whatever steps are necessary to bring his storage capacity up to the desired level.

If he needs assistance in obtaining storage facilities he should visit the ASC Office. Farmers may obtain loans which will assist them in purchasing and erecting needed facilities. Under this program a farmer may obtain a loan of up to 80% of the cost of the structure exclusive of erection costs. These loans are repayable in four annual installments and interest accrues on the loan at the rate of 4%.

Farmers should do any repair or clean-up work needed on existing storage structures. Structures should be thoroughly cleaned and all trash removed. The bins should be sprayed with insecticides to kill weevils and other insects which may remain from the old grain.

ACP PROGRAM

Although the initial sign up period for Spring ACP practices is past farmers can still get approvals on a day to day basis. Approvals are being given for permanent pasture and hay seeding, applying limestone to farmland, construction of ponds, terraces, open ditch drainage, pasture and hay improvement, forestry practices, and others. Any farmer who has not signed up should do so as soon as possible. The funds are available for all farms. These conservation practices will pay big dividends both now and in the future.

WOOL PAYMENT PROGRAM
The incentive level for shorn wool marketed from April 1, 1961, through March 31, 1962, will be 82 cents per pound. The National Wool Act of 1954 which is the law making the wool payments program possible, was enacted to encourage production to reach 300 million pounds of shorn wool per year.

Applications for payment are taken after all sales for the year are completed. Farmers who have sold wool or unshorn lambs during the marketing year should bring their memorandum of sales to the ASC office and file an application for payment as soon as possible.

PLANT OR RELEASE COTTON
All cotton farmers are reminded that they must plant or release at least 75% of their allotment each year to avoid a cut in allotment. This means that farmers who released all of their cotton in 1959 and 1960 must plant some cotton this year. If they do not plant some cotton they will lose all of their allotment. Any farmer which a question about his allotment should come by the ASC office. We will be glad to give any farmer the cotton history for his farm and tell him what must be done to keep the allotment. The highlight week for releasing cotton is Feb. 20 through Feb. 24th; however, farmers who know now that they will not plant the cotton may release it prior to this date. Farmers are also reminded that the 24th is not the final date for releasing cotton. This date will be announced later.

Beautifully built to set trends in styling and savings beautifully built to take care of itself

This is probably the most imitated Look in automobiles today. Take the routine, for instance. (Most other cars have!) Yet it looks best on its original setting, the Ford Galaxie. The roof and all the rest of the car were designed to go together. This is what makes the Classic Ford Look.

Moreover, this car is as beautifully built as it is beautifully shaped. As Ford takes care of itself, it takes care of your budget.

See the roster at right, and you'll conclude: This is the Ford in your future. May we open its door to you... soon?

HERE'S HOW THE '61 FORD TAKES CARE OF ITSELF

Lubricates itself—You go 30,000 miles between chassis lubrications which cost only about $4.00 and take about 20 minutes.

Cleans its own oil—You go 4,000 miles between oil changes with Ford's Full-Flow oil filter, which sifts out dirt through specially placed fibers.

Adjusts its own brakes—Flow Truck Size brakes adjust themselves—automatically.

Guards its own muffler—Ford mufflers are double-wrapped and slanted to last three times as long as ordinary mufflers.

Protects its own body—All vital underbody parts are specially processed to resist rust and corrosion, even to galvanizing the body panels beneath the doors.

Takes care of its own finish—Just wash and clean Ford's new Diamond Lustre Finish and it will continue to gleam like new. It never needs waxing.

Extended Warranty—Each part of '61 Fords, except tires as dealer warranted against defects in materials or workmanship for 12 months or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first. Owners remain responsible for normal maintenance service and routine replacement of maintenance items such as filters and ignition parts.

Every '61 Ford, like the Galaxie Club Victoria above, shares an honor to be proud of. It is the medal presented by the international fashion authority, Centre for l'Alta Moda Italiana, to the 1961 Ford for functional expression of classic beauty.

NORTH CAROLINA MEANS BETTER LIVING

While tobacco and cotton continue to head the list of our principal crops, few North Carolinians are aware that we are leading producers of a greater variety of commercial crops than is grown in perhaps any other state. For example, we are second only to Georgia in production of peanuts, and raise more sweet potatoes than all other states except Louisiana. We are the leading corn producing state outside of the Midwestern Corn Belt, and only nine states produce more soybeans than North Carolina!

In rural as in urban areas, North Carolinians are equally progressive in their attitudes toward the system of "legal control" of the sale of beer and ale, as being in the best interests of temperance and moderation.

"But what has cold weather got to do with my Electric service bill?"

Winter weather in December was about 28% colder than last year, and January was about 20% colder than last January. When whirling sleet and snow send thermometers zooming down, ELECTRIC LIVING increases because folks really appreciate comfort and convenience.

Your electric water heater has colder water to heat. Furnace and blower motors run almost constantly. Lights are turned on earlier. Bad weather usually increases laundry, requiring greater use of your washer, clothes dryer, and iron. Cold weather keeps the family indoors; TV sets, radios and over 50 other electric appliances are in constant or frequent use.

Of course, these changes in your family's living habits show up in your electric service bill. Remember that the cost of almost every other product has steadily gone up, but the cost per kilowatt hour of residential electric service has gone down a full one third, even though you use more. So, ELECTRICITY is still the biggest bargain in your family budget.

if you haven't tried CHIROPRACTIC ... for RHEUMATISM

you're missing something - IMPORTANT TO YOUR HEALTH

There are at least 7,000,000 people in the United States suffering with rheumatism. This disease is responsible for more days lost from work than any other chronic disability except nervous and mental disorders. Rheumatism includes such conditions as lumbago, or stiff neck, shoulder pain, bursitis and many others.

Rheumatism results from misaligned vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on the delicate nerve fibers of the spinal cord and interfering with the vital nerve energy from the brain which powers every organ and cell in the entire body. Without this life-force brain power, the purification system of the body ceases to function properly. The kidneys, liver and skin cannot dispose of waste products. This waste collects in the muscles and joints of the body causing a toxic condition and great pain.

Correcting misaligned vertebrae will relieve the pain of rheumatism, and complete restoration of other bodily functions is the natural result.

Phil Johnson Drove Electric Car To Top Of Blowing Rock

Event In 1921 Believed to Have Been A Record

By GORDON TOMLINSON

Blowing Rock is one of the oldest resorts in the southern Appalachians. Having an altitude of 3,586 feet, it was developed in the late 1870's when stages over rough mountain roads were the only means of access. Since the altitude made a railway impractical.

An attraction for tourists has always been the "rock," an immense rocky cliff. It is called "Blowing Rock" because the rocky walls of the gorge form a flume through which the north-west wind at times sweeps with such force that it returns to the sender light objects cast over the void. This current of air blowing upward prompted the Ripley "Believe It Or Not" cartoon about "the only place in the world where snow falls upside down."

The legend of Blowing Rock is as follows:

It is told that two Indian braves, fighting for the chieftan's daughter, struggled all day up and down the narrow ridge. When the stronger warrior cast his opponent over the cliff the maiden realized the defeated brave was the one she loved and she implored the God of the Winds to save him. The wind caught up the warrior and lifted him through the air to safety. Since that day the Wind has returned any object tossed over the gorge.

On October 20, 1921, Phil J. Johnson of Mocksville set a record in connection with Blowing Rock that still stands today. Mr. Johnson drove an electric car up the rugged sand-clay road, climbing the almost 3,600 feet to the "Rock." As far as can be determined, this feat with an electric car has never been duplicated.

As a matter of explanation for the younger generation, an electric car was one that operated on storage batteries. A set of these batteries would weigh approximately 900 pounds and one charging would carry an automobile only approximately 50 miles on level ground. Under good conditions, speeds up to 25 miles per hour could be reached.

Mr. Johnson, 31 years of age in October of 1921, was employed by Garrett's Automotive Service Station in Charlotte which specialized in electric automobiles. Having gone into the electric automobile business in 1911, Mr. Johnson had more than 10 years of experience with this type of automobile.

On the day in question, Mr. Johnson had gone to Hickory to visit his sister, Mrs. B. F. Seagle, whom he had sold a Victoria type, electric automobile. Mr. Johnson explained that only a few of the Victoria type (which is the open type) of electric automobiles were used. The most popular type of that day was the Broughams type, or the closed type. This was because most of the gasoline cars in existence during that time were the open type.

Natives of nearby Lenoir, Mr. Johnson and his sister set out on that Sunday for a ride in her new car. They drove to Lenoir and there decided to tackle Blowing Rock which was 20 miles away and "up the mountains all the way."

Telling of the eventful trip Mr. Johnson said:

"Seven miles out of Lenoir we stopped at Patterson, which was a small village, at a cotton mill that had DC (direct current) for lights and which was necessary to charge the battery for the car. This left us only 13 miles of mountain to climb on the last charge," said Mr. Johnson.

According to Mr. Johnson, he and his sister climbed the mountain in the car at a speed of about 10 miles per hour, taking about an hour and a half to go the 13 miles. However, they made it and drove right up to the "Rock" where Mr. Johnson made a picture of the car and his sister.

Heart Month

"It is a pleasure for me to extend my greetings to the scientists, physicians, and dedicated volunteers of the American Heart Association on the occasion of American Heart Month, 1961. Brilliant progress, much of it directly related to your efforts, has already been made in controlling heart disease. Yet it remains our principal cause of death, and in this sense our greatest health challenge.

The Heart Fund opens to every citizen an opportunity to share in new and even more important medical victories. Please accept my very best wishes for continued success in your efforts on behalf of health.

—JOHN F. KENNEDY.

Wednesday afternoon February 15th from 2 till 5 was a happy occasion for friends, neighbors and relatives, who attended a "Drop-in" tea at the Brown Home to join in the celebration of the ninety-ninth-birthday anniversary of our oldest citizen, Mrs. Emma Brock Brown. She is affectionately known by her neighbors as "Miss Emma", and by her relatives as "Aunt Emma".

After short reminiscing, Miss Margaret Brown led the guests to the dining room where dainty sandwiches, nuts, mints, candied grapefruit peel and hot punch were served. A hand crocheted lace table cloth, crocheted by Mrs. Brown during her late eighties and early nineties covered the table. A pot of white hyacinths was used as a centerpiece. The big old mantle clock sat imposingly on the side board and musically ticked away the time as it did on the mantle of the home of Mrs. Brown's parents over a hundred years ago. Those parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Nathaniel Brock were some of the very first settlers in this section, they and Mrs. Brock's parents lived here much before the little village was ever called Farmington.

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

Dutchman Creek watershed committee met Friday, Feb. 17, at George Martin's office to discuss organization of a Watershed Improvement District.

Bryce Younts, member of the N. C. State Soil Conservation Committee, met with the group to outline major steps in organization of a District. Mr. Younts explained that it would be necessary to have a legal organization in order to maintain the project after it is completed.

Before Dutchman Creek application is assigned a priority or funds approved a legal district is necessary. Bryce said the Dutchman Creek application was one of the best from the piedmont section.

The following steps were outlined for the group in organization of watershed district:

1. Petition to be signed by 100 landowners in watershed. 2. Soil Conservation District Supervisors review petition. (3) Hearing to be conducted. (4) Registration and voting places set for referendum. (5) SCD Supervisors consider results of referendum and take final action on petition. (6) SCD Supervisors appoint temporary board of trustees until general election.

if you haven't tried CHIROPRACTIC ... for RHEUMATISM

you're missing something... IMPORTANT TO YOUR HEALTH

There are at least 7,000,000 people in the United States suffering with rheumatism. This disease is responsible for more days lost from work than any other chronic disability except nervous and mental disorders. Rheumatism includes such conditions as lumbago, or stiff neck, shoulder pain, bursitis and many others.

Rheumatism results from misaligned vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on the delicate nerve fibers of the spinal cord and interfering with the vital nerve energy from the brain which powers every organ and cell in the entire body. Without this life-force brain power, the purification system of the body ceases to function properly. The kidneys, liver and skin cannot dispose of waste products. This waste collects in the muscles and joints of the body causing a toxic condition and great pain. Correcting misaligned vertebrae will relieve the pain of rheumatism, and complete restoration of other bodily functions is the natural result.

Right or Wrong May Be Determined By

MOTIVES?

The scene is a back room. Around a table sit five or six men. In front of them are stacks of money. In their hands they hold cards. The game is poker. It is gambling.

At another place there are other men. In their hands they hold wads of money . . . each betting on the turn of a pair of dice someone is throwing. The game is called "shooting craps". It is gambling.

Both of the above are classified as games . . . games of chance. They offer the participants . . . if fairly played . . . equal opportunity to win, based to some degree on skill and some degree on chance.

The scene is a Halloween Carnival, or for that matter the Masonic Picnic . . . A County Fair . . . or perhaps some other event. A number of people are seated around tables. Before these people are cards bearing letters and numbers. Someone draws out a tab . . . from which is read a letter and a number such as "under B 3". Those that have such a combination place a piece of corn or a bean on that number. The game is Bingo. It, too, is a game of chance.

Again at the same Halloween Carnival. There is a booth. There are fishing poles with lines. You pay your money . . . drop your line over a curtain . . . or perhaps choose a number . . . and you get a prize. The game is fishing. It's a game of chance.

You and your friend want a Coca-Cola. Neither of you mind paying the nickel it costs. However, as a friendly gesture you match and the loser pays. This too was a game of chance and by the strictest and the narrowest sense of the term, is gambling.

We believe that in most cases the final determination in right or wrong is the motive for doing something. Your motive . . . or your reason for doing something . . . either makes it a good deed or a bad one.

We do not believe that it is morally wrong or that any harm whatsoever results from playing bingo at the Halloween

Carnival, the Masonic Picnic or anywhere else. We do not believe that it is morally wrong or that any harm is done through buying a chance on a cake to help the fund raising project of some organization. We do not believe that it is morally wrong or that any harm is done when a child is given a prize as the winner of some game or contest either at school or the summer Vacation Bible School.

But the final determination as to whether any act is right or wrong must rest with the individual. No minister or newspaper editor, for that matter, can serve as the conscience of the individual. The decision must be a personal one . . . made by the individual.

It seems to us that the resolution by the ministerial association was not in the best interests of our schools or our community. We must point out that an organization purporting to represent all the ministers of the county . . . must in the same manner represent all the churches of the county. And who makes up the churches of the county and the congregations of these ministers? . . . The same people that belong to the Parent-Teachers Associations . . . the teachers . . . and the school officials.

It seems to us that the first move on any moral issue should be between a minister and members of his congregation. For it is members of his congregation that are participating in what by resolution is being condemned. Certainly it would appear that ministerial counsel among church members would better serve the interests of the community than the adoption of a resolution publicly condemning an activity of our schools and PTA organizations.

After all . . . and to go back to what we said earlier in this editorial . . . the motive for an act goes a long way in determining right or wrong . . . and this even applies to the adoption and making public a resolution.

The National Guard

This month as the National Guard observes its annual "Muster Day" throughout the nation, it also marks the 15th anniversary of the reorganization of its units following World War II. Aside from the obvious significance of the occasion, it serves to remind us — much to our discomfort — that the Cold War has been with us for a long time.

And as a reminder that the Cold War goes on we note that the National Guard in some States has started to wage war on Communism by conducting its own National Defense Strategy Seminars. Patterned on similar "orientation" courses conducted by the National War College in Washington, these Seminars are designed to educate citizens on the specific nature and menace of Communism in a straightforward, unemotional manner.

It is not at all surprising that the Guard should be taking Communism as a part of its special province. Since early Colonial Days, Guardsmen — or Minutemen as they were once called — have been motivated by a conviction that citizenship demands more than the payment of taxes and obedience to the law. In short, they have believed that a good citizen must put into his country at least as much as he has taken out of it.

Reviewing the 15 years of the Cold War, we can see that the National Defense Strategy concept is but one example of this philosophy. In the whole area of military and economic Cold War deterrence the National Guard stands at the forefront.

Take, for example, its role in National Defense. On its reorganization early in 1946, the Guard was little more than a paper organization. It not only had to recruit most of its members, but also had to rebuild most of the battle-worn equipment the Army turned over to it. Adding to this uphill effort was the fact that modern warfare requires the Guard to be closer to battlefield readiness than ever before — more ready even than the active services of the 1930s. Today these challenges have been met and the Army and Air National Guard have become so integrated with the active establishment that they not only have been assigned specific missions in our nation's war plans but are performing essential defense roles in peacetime.

A less glamorous — but no less important — aspect of national defense is our ability to recover quickly and effectively from a nuclear attack. In recognition of this, National Guard leaders have been advocating a recovery mission for their units, pointing out that the Guard's geographic dispersion, its 472,000-man strength, its modern equipment, and its variety of units, ranging from air transport to medical — make it ideally suited for such purposes.

Lastly, the National Guard's contribution to our economic strength cannot be overlooked. While its combat versatility makes it an important part of our defense structure, its annual appropriation of only 1.5 per cent of our total military budget makes it dollar for dollar, one of the wisest investments in the nation today.

In recognition of its invaluable service to State and Nation, we salute the National Guard on the occasion of its annual Muster Day.

Editorial Briefs

Washington — When the President of the United States entertains foreign guests at the White House, the State Department facilitates protocol arrangements by sending a list of the visitors in accordance with their rank, says the National Geographic Magazine. The Department also provides helpful hints on food preferences and religious taboos to avoid embarrassing incidents.

Iceboats skim over lakes at speeds up to 150 miles an hour, the National Geographic Society says. After taking his first sail, one novice wrote: "Riding an iceboat in a stiff breeze is no more dangerous or uncomfortable than driving a truck 90 miles an hour down a steep wet hill, with the wheels loose, no brakes, and pieces of the windshield flying back into one's face."

The roar of Victoria Falls on Africa's Zambezi River can be heard 20 miles, the National Geographic Society says. The great plume of water vapor is visible for seven miles. Like Niagara Falls, Victoria is a favorite of honeymooners. Higher and wider than its American counterpart, Victoria Falls stretches 1,900 yards across and has a maximum drop of 355 feet.

As the 1961 N. C. Legislature moved into its second full week of business, the question that seemed uppermost in the minds of most of its members was: "Is the Governor going to tell us where to go to get the money with which to carry out his program?"

Luther Hodges did. He came out for a tobacco tax. He lost it. Hodges recommended a multi-million-dollar tax decrease for corporations. He won it. He suggested a gross receipts tax at one time. He lost it. Hodges went to bat for a withholding tax on incomes. He won it.

CAN SHORTEN SESSION
You can hear in Raleigh that Gov. Terry Sanford has told friends he is not going to insist on specific tax sources "like Gov. Hodges did". On the other hand there is still the feeling—though it is not as strong as two or three weeks ago — that the Governor will point definitely in two or three directions for new revenue.

Old-line members say he can prevent a lot of turning and twisting and indecision — and thus shorten the session — by spelling out letter-by-letter the taxes he prefers to pick up the extra 70 million dollars that will be needed in the next two years to carry out his program.

NO BETTER OFF
The word here last week was that the Governor himself as of February 18 had not made up his mind about new tax sources. If so, he had something in common with at least two-thirds of the Legislature.

If he should list several paths up which the scions might travel to find the extra dollars needed, the average legislator will not be helped much. Will be no better off than now. They want Gov. Sanford to help them make up their minds as to whether it will be a broadened sales tax, including food, a soft drink tax, a tobacco tax, or a combination.

DON'T BET ON BOTTLE TAX
As of last week, the legislators were talking loudest about a one-cent tax on soft drinks. They were saying that bottlers in 1959 had pleaded with them through their crack lobbyist, Fred Bowman of Chapel Hill, not to break the five-cent ceiling on soft drinks.

They said, further, that they went along with this argument—but that "by the time we got home drinks had gone up to six cents — and now they range in price from six cents to a dime."

Members of the Legislature we heard from or talked with last week were also saying that "a cigarette tax would be a fair tax, would not hurt anybody, but THEY won't let us do it. . . ." It was presumed that THEY mean farmers.

Unless the mind of the Legislature changes considerably, the exemption list to the sales tax (Bibles, music, prescription medicines, etc.) will be shortened to practically nothing — except food.

As this paper's Raleigh reporter saw it during the second week of the General Assembly — and tel Sir Walter . . . and we get it straight that the Republican Party is taking over the complete floors of the Andrew Johnson Hotel at the corner of Salisbury and Martin Streets. . .

INFLATION . . . And repeat that name again please . . . the lobbyist who reportedly asked for $12,000 to protect a segment of the farm retail group from taxes; Wow, talk about inflation!

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:
I see where the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that farm income is now down 10 per cent from the 1949 level. The farmers ain't plowing enough in the right place.

When I was a boy I recollect my Grandpa telling how he got rid of a feller that come to his house selling books on how to farm. Grandpa said he told the feller, "I ain't farming now half as good as I know how." It's been 40 year since my Grandpa told that story and I can't see much improvement. The farmers is farming easier and faster, but when they get 10 cent a pound for somepun that's selling at the store for 60 cent, they ain't learned how to plow the middle man under.

They was a piece in the papers the other day about some town in Utah that has cut city taxes and don't owe a dime and has got money in the bank. I'm disappointed in learning that we got such old fashioned towns left in this country. I knowed a feller from Utah once and I always thought they had real live-wire modern, up and coming, bustling towns that was floating bonds, borrowing money, and raising taxes and going in debt for all sorts of things like all other good towns. I think they need to have a election in that town and get some fellers running the place that knows about these new methods of progress.

I wonder where the folks in that town think we'd be in this country today if our Federal Government hadn't gone in debt for 285 billion dollars. Where would we be today if we wasn't borrowing money by the billions and raising taxes and getting someplace? Come to think about it, Mister Editor, where are we today?

Well, now that we're getting a new President in office, I hope the political scars is all healed from the November election. Incidental, political scars ain't as hard to heal as they was in the old days. In these times the candidates discuss what they call the "issues," but when I was a boy the issues wasn't never mentioned. The candidate always started out accusing his opponent of looking like Judas Iscariot, acting like Benedict Arnold, and milking his neighbor's cow through a crack in the fence. He took it from there and worked down.

As I was setting here writing this piece I heard a news feller on the radio announce that the Government is reducing the number of weather bureaus around the country. I hope they'll keep enough for us farmers and ranchers to get our usual "widely scattered thunder showers" from some place else.

SEAFOOD . . . Favorite late-hour food of the legislators: steamed oysters. . .

Weekly Report

from the General Assembly

By Lester P. Martin, Jr., Representative

For week ending Feb. 18, 1961
Although the legislative week got underway on Monday night with a short session, the real work commenced on Tuesday morning as the Joint Senate-House Committee on Appropriations met in the Revenue Building. Senator Brock and I serve on this joint committee which, during the week, met routinely at 9:00 A.M. and adjourned in time for the daily session of the General Assembly at noon. The several meetings of this committee helped to familiarize the members with the new budget and the general financial condition of the State.

The State's budget making process is democratic in that every State agency is given two opportunities to be heard—once before the Budget Commission and again before the Joint Appropriations Committee. Several months have already been spent by the Budget Commission and several more months will be spent by the Joint Appropriations Committee in evaluating the budget and determining needs.

Presently the State is in a good, sound fiscal condition and it is the responsibility of this General Assembly to keep it that way. The General Fund credit balance on July 1, 1961 (beginning of the new biennium) is estimated to be $53,000,000, whereas the 1959 General Assembly estimated the credit balance at the end of the 1959-61 biennium to be approximately $2,800,000. The three sources of the 63 million surplus are as follows: 3 million from additional revenue during 1957-59; 10 million saved during 1959-61; and 40 million collected by the Department of Revenue from new tax sources. These figures do not reflect any so-called "windfall taxes" from the new withholding tax law. Instead, they reflect additional revenue that has not been collected before, plus normal increases from a growing economy.

This week the Speaker announced appointments to several committees and I drew assignments on the House committees on Education, Conservation and Development, Journal, and Judiciary I in addition to the Joint Committee on Appropriations previously assigned.

Since the opening of the General Assembly the Governor has entertained the General Assembly at a series of early morning breakfasts. On Wednesday morning 29 other legislators and I attended one of these functions. The Governor is a gracious host but his little daughter stole the show when she slipped quietly into the dining room, made a bee-line to the head of the table, and then and there gave his Excellency a good morning hug.

Theme: Only Strength Of Spirit Lasts

TEXT: "The spiritual always determines the material."—Carlyle.

On a crowded elevator in Washington, a friend asked a Congressman how the previous year had been for him.

"The best year I have ever had," replied the Congressman. Then spotting a commissioner of Internal Revenue in the elevator, he added, "I mean spiritually, of course, not materially."

Man's greatest poverty is spiritual. The weakness of religion or liberty or any basic belief is followers who believe in name only. They call themselves "Christians" or "freedom lovers," but they drift through life responding to any vagrant breeze, wave or current that happens near. They are not evil. They are only inert. No deep spiritual rudder guides them. Consequently they never reach a harbor and they confuse everyone who depends upon them.

One quality gives world communism an advantage over the free world. It is their deep spiritual belief in communism. Most of us think liberty and freedom are nice-sounding words, but that they do not apply to every act in our business, social, and religious lives.

Unless deep spiritual conviction

Senator SAM ERVIN Says:

WASHINGTON — Crisis has followed crisis in the growing storm over the Congo. The situation which caused the hasty withdrawal of the Belgium Government from this strife-torn country left it ill prepared to govern itself. New acts of violence and the death of Lumumba demonstrate this anew. Mass starvation has compelled the United States to ship food to the country in response to international morals. In the background the battle between East and West to win the minds of men plays a major role in this crisis. Our commitments to the United Nations show the complexity of the age. Change is constant. Seventy-five years ago a younger America emerging from the uncivil war could watch England struggle with the problems of empires and the peoples in Africa and Asia. Today we no longer occupy a box seat on the sidelines, but we have become the chief gladiator in the arena coping with more complete battles there.

Freedom's Price

U. S. foreign policy is deeply woven into the life of the smallest nation thousands of miles away. What happens in the Congo concerns us. Vast appropriations are made each year by the Congress for military and other aid to other nations in the hope that we shall survive in our struggle with Russia. Sometimes we have wondered where our friends in the United Nations were. The struggle in often easier to home than Asia or Africa. In Latin America those nations now question our "Good Neighbor Policy." Even the Panama Canal has become a matter of concern to us. The decisions of the new Administration on foreign policy are momentous. They are the "last best hope" of the free world. Washington's observation that "eternal vigilance is the price of freedom" has become a tenet of foreign relations.

Missiles

The debate about a missile gap between the United States and Russia can be boiled down to this: We want to be sure that this country possesses sufficient missile power to destroy any nation that attacks us. This calls for a constant appraisal of our military position. Under present conditions we cannot afford to be second best. I shall never forget the face of the Frenchman in tears portrayed in Life Magazine as he watched the Nazi soldiers march through the Arch of Triumph. The lesson is plain for us.

Columnist for Enterprise Writes Historical Novel

North Callahan, who writes the New York column for this newspaper, is the author of a new book, DANIEL MORGAN: Ranger of the Revolution, published today by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc.

The book is a rousing story of the head of the riflemen under General George Washington during the American Revolution, and tells for the first time the full story of this great frontier fighter who, in Indian fashion and using methods that puzzled and foiled the British, helped slightly to win independence for the new nation.

This is the fifth book in American history written by North Callahan, his last one being HENRY KNOX: General Washington's General, which received high critical acclaim across the nation and was selected by the New York Times as one of the best biographies published in 1958. Daniel Morgan, though not as widely known as Knox, was an even more colorful figure whose life reads like that of a Robin Hood fighting in a greater cause.

Daniel Morgan was born in New Jersey and went to Virginia to live while still a young man.

There he developed into a husky, two-fisted fighter among the hardy frontier members in the 1770's, and later became a warrior with the famous Braddock expedition against the French and Indians. Learning the methods of fighting which defeated Braddock, Morgan, as young officer, effectively led forces against the Indians in later phases of the French and Indian War, being wounded and almost killed in one encounter.

But it was a brave leader in our War for Independence that he really distinguished himself. Heading a band of intrepid riflemen in fringed buckskin, Colonel Morgan, who was over six feet tall and built like a Hercules, led the Benedict Arnold expedition to Quebec, and after five hardships en route, flung valiantly in the attack upon that citadel. Later, he led a rifle corps which turned the tide in the vital battle of Saratoga. At the Cowpens in South Carolina, General Daniel Morgan directed the most classical victory of the Revolution against the dreaded British cavalry leader, Banastre Tarleton. After retirement, Morgan made his home in Winchester, Virginia, served in Congress, and headed the American troops in the Whiskey Rebellion.

These are only highlights of this timely and exciting book which is based on wide research.

Is Your Storage Adequate?
In the case of every one of the grain crops on which ASC operates a price support program, the support program does not provide a loan to farmers who cannot avail themselves to adequate storage for their grain. According to A. P. Hassell, Jr., State Administrative officer for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee, this can either be commercial storage or farm storage and he says that he expects both types of storage to be inadequate to meet the needs in this state during this year's harvest.

In this connection, Hassell specified the assistance which will be available through ASC county offices in helping farmers to meet these storage needs. Financial, "loan" help is available to farmers which will provide up to 80 per cent of the unrecouped cost of the new bins. ASC county offices are also authorized to make loans to assist farmers in the purchase of drying equipment necessary to get their grain in condition for storage.

Under ASC's price support program for 1961, loans will be available on corn, oats, barley, rye, grain sorghums, soybeans, and wheat. Loan rates on these grains for 1961, will be announced early this year.

Hassell urged farmers who feel that they might need additional grain storage this year to visit their local ASC office and obtain full details on assistance which can be made available for the purchase of storage facilities.

Farmers Urged To Protect Their Cotton Allotment
In order to keep the maximum cotton allotment a farmer must take the following action:

1. Plant or release 75 per cent of his allotment each year.
 2. Plant some cotton (at least one-tenth) every third year.
- Feb. 20 through Feb. 24 has been designated "Cotton Highlight" week in North Carolina. During this period all cotton farmers are urged to take the necessary action to preserve their cotton allotments for 1962. Farmers who would like to get additional cotton acreage for 1961 may do so by signing a request for re-apportioned acreage.

Any farmer with a question as to the situation on his individual farm should contact the ASC office. We can look up his records and tell him what must be done in order to keep his full allotment.

Social Security In Davie County

Your social security account number is not just a number; it identifies an account, a record of your earnings which will determine your right to social security benefits.

When you were born, you were given a name to identify you throughout your life. Many people may have the same name, but your social security account number is exclusively yours — a personal record of increasing value, insurance for the future.

Therefore, it is more than just a number — it is a symbol of a right that protects against the loss of earnings caused by retirement, death, or disability.

If, for any reason you take a new name, get a new social security card with the same number.

If you lose your card, ask for a duplicate card with the same number.

The account number not only identifies you with the wages you receive during your working years, it insures you of the fruits of your life's labor.

You should guard your social security number well since it is rooted in your origins, reflects your labors, and guarantees your future income.

More About Phil Johnson

Mr. Johnson recalls that at that time Blowing Rock was not thickly populated nor as commercialized as it is today. After staying there for perhaps two hours, Mr. Johnson and his sister climbed back into the electric automobile and with little effort or energy coasted back down the mountain.

Within a few years after this trip, the electric automobile became extinct as improvements continued to be made in the gasoline buggy that evolved into today's cars.

So as it stands today, Mr. Johnson is the only one to have ever driven the electric automobile to the top of Blowing Rock . . . or perhaps for that matter to the top of the Blue Ridge range of mountains.

George Washington's first inauguration in New York was delayed from March 4 to April 30, 1789, because of travel difficulties. Thus his first term was cut short by almost two months.

4-H Poultry Chain

Each year the Sears-Roebuck Foundation sponsors a 4-H Poultry Chain. This year 1100 chickens were placed with 4-H Club members in Davie County. The following boys received chickens:

Harry F. Andrews, Roger Cope, Richard Green, Frank Short, Jr., Hoyt Snow, John Wayne Adams, Tom Wagner, Henry Walker, Robert Allen Walker.

Each of these club members received 100 chicks, and will grow out these chicks until fall, at which time each member brings in 12 pullets to a show and sale in Mocksville. At the show cash prizes are awarded by Sears-Roebuck to members doing outstanding jobs raising their pullets. After the show these pullets are auctioned off and the money from the sale will be used to buy the next year's chickens.

For the People

By Bernadette W. Hoyle
Public Information Officer
N. C. S. Board of Public Welfare

What is a foster home?

It is a substitute family home for children who cannot be with their own parents, but who need a family setting rather than that of an institution.

Are these children adopted by the foster parents?

No. Adoption is not the function of a foster home. The foster parents perform the duties of parents to the child of others.

Are there many foster homes in North Carolina?

Currently there are over 1,300 licensed foster homes in the State.

Why do we need these foster homes?

The county departments of public welfare place children in foster homes for varied reasons. Some of their parents are physically ill, some are mentally ill.

Some parents who are unable to face the problems of their lives abandon their children. Some parents die. Some children come from homes where they were not wanted and are not loved. Sometimes they have parents who have been cruel to them. There are certain things to which every child has a birthright. He has a right to be loved and to learn to love others. He has a right to be respected as a human individual in a free society. He has a right to be taught what is right and what is wrong and what society will expect of him. Foster homes seek to provide this birthright for one child in the State.

Do the real parents visit their children in foster homes?

Yes, the majority of these children have parents who visit them, and foster parents must be willing to welcome the children's parents when they come.

What kinds of children are placed in foster homes?

Foster children are like all children. Some are tiny babies. Some are big boys and girls. Sometimes they're good, sometimes they're mischievous. Some of them are white, some are Negro. Some are very bright, some not so bright. Some have physical handicaps. They are only like in that they cannot live with their own parents.

What are the qualifications of foster parents?

They must be able to give children good physical care, good food, cleanliness, quiet sleep, fresh air, safety from fire and health hazards. They must know how children should be cared for and be willing to learn from the social worker from the county Department of public welfare. They must be able to do the physical work that all children make, and they must also cherish children.

John Cain Attends World Affairs Briefing

John B. Cain of 2204 Brookdale Lane, Birmingham, Ala., attended a background briefing on the United Nations and world affairs, Wednesday, Feb. 15, presented by the Foreign Policy Association - World Affairs Center in New York City.

By officials of the United Nations and the Foreign Policy Association - World Affairs Center, the program included discussions of the role of the United States in the United Nations, the economic aspects of the United States foreign policy, and the role of the United Nations in this field.

In attendance with Mr. Cain were approximately 50 other General Electric executives from all over the United States. The time spent at the Foreign Policy Association - World Affairs Center and the United Nations was designed to give the executives a broader understanding of international problems which form the backdrop against which their business operates.

The Foreign Policy Association-World Affairs Center is a non-profit, nonpartisan, educational organization, with headquarters in New York City. As a national service agency in the field of world affairs education, the Foreign Policy Association - World Affairs Center works with community groups and with national and regional organizations to assist them in the development of their world affairs programs.

Health For All

(This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by Davie-Yadkin Health Dept.)

STILL A DANGER Since the widespread use of antibiotics, some people tend to regard pneumonia as in the same class with a hangnail - uncomfortable but hardly dangerous. The fact is, however, that pneumonia is still a serious illness which cannot always be cured.

You can get pneumonia from a chest injury or from breathing in some harmful substance, like gas or smog. But the most common kind of pneumonia is caused by a germ, the pneumococcus. Pneumonia can strike at any time, but it is most prevalent in late February and early March. It frequently follows a bad attack of the flu or a heavy cold, when the victim's resistance is low.

The symptoms of pneumonia are fever, shortness of breath, pain in the chest and a nagging, persistent cough. Modern antibiotics can cure many cases of pneumonia in about a week. But despite antibiotics, pneumonia often kills the very young, the elderly, people suffering from some other weakening disease, and anyone who lets the disease get far advanced before seeking medical help.

Anyone who has a bad cold or an attack of flu which is still accompanied by fever after three days, or where there is shortness of breath and constant coughing, may have pneumonia and should go to a doctor without further delay.

Duke Power Gives Progress Report

Duke Power Company, which serves a 20,000 square mile area in the central Carolinas, expects to spend about $70 million in 1961 for additional facilities.

Duke is a major company in an industry which last year bucked the national business trend and had a record year with the outlook for still another peak this year. In doing this kind of job, the electric utilities industry not only kept well ahead of national needs but also increased its lead in electric generating capability over that of the Soviet Union.

Additional generating, transmission, and distribution facilities needed to keep pace with the rapid residential and industrial growth of the Piedmont Carolinas will total $1 billion more than the $68 million Duke invested in 1960.

Duke Power's planning engineers predict that industry in its service area will continue to grow at a rate substantially ahead of most of the country.

Industrial Growth In addition to 124 new plants in the Duke Power service area with payrolls in excess of $20,000,000 providing 8,500 new jobs, 362 existing plants invested over $93,500,000 in additions, providing a $29,000,000 for 9,000 additional employees.

Duke, whose rates are among the lowest in the nation, has a total system capacity of 3,327,163 kilowatts. This capacity will increase in 1961 by 275,000 kilowatts when a first generating unit is added to the company's Allen Plant near Belmont, N. C.

Other projects Duke has underway include the $60 million Cowans Ford, a huge (350,000 kilowatts) hydroelectric plant near Charlotte.

Duke Power in association with the three other major electric companies serving the Carolinas and Virginia has under construction at Parr, S. C., a prototype nuclear reactor which is to be completed in 1962.

The traveler throughout the Piedmont in both urban and rural areas will see new Duke Power lines being run and equipment installed. The company points out that its continuing program provides work not only for Duke Power employees but also for such local groups as electricians, transportation workers, suppliers and others.

Soviet Rivalry This country increased its lead over the Soviet Union by 6,300,000 kilowatts in 1960, increasing the spread between the two nations to 127,300,000 kilowatts from 121 million a year ago.

A more valid comparison of the difference in the two nations' electrification is the amount of electricity used by each person in a country. This is said to give a good indication of the total productive capacity and well-being of the people.

In 1960, the Edison Electric Institute estimated, the usage factor for every man, woman and child in this country was 4,716 kilowatt hours. By contrast, estimated use in the Soviet Union was 1,322 kilowatt hours per capita.

Hodges Rank In Cabinet Given With a native son in the President's cabinet again, North Carolina is about as close in rank to the top position as she has been since Andrew Johnson was elected Vice President nearly 100 years ago.

But even with Luther Hodges as Secretary of Commerce, most of the cabinet would have to fall away by death or resignation before he could succeed to the Presidency.

The rank of cabinet position in Presidential succession is based entirely upon the date that position was created. Thus it is that Commerce, which was not established until Feb. 14, 1903, ranks below those of State, Treasury, Defense (originally War and Navy), Attorney General, Postmaster General, Interior, and Agriculture.

If the President, the Vice President, the Speaker of the House and the cabinet members in higher, or earlier, rank were killed in a plane crash, by bomb or other catastrophe, then Luther

Donna Reed Chairman Of Heart Sunday Army

ACTRESS DONNA REED, the national 1961 Heart Sunday Chairman, heads an army of nearly 2,000,000 volunteers who will ring doorbells for the Heart Fund, Heart Sunday, February 26, is the climax of the month-long Heart Fund Campaign. The army's mission is that of spearheading an all-out attack on the No. 1 health enemy.

Hodges would become President. Americana Encyclopedia places him 11th in line; the second being the Vice President; the third, the Speaker of the House; the fourth, Secretary of State, etc.

He ranks above the Departments of Labor, which at one time was a part of Commerce, and Welfare, established only a few years ago.
