Yadkin Floods From Heavy Rains—

Barge On Yadkin Cuts Phone Cable

Excessive heavy rains Sunday and early Monday caused the Yadkin River to flood over its banks in many low areas.

Monday, a sand barge owned by the Piedmont Construction Company rode the rushing waters downstream. The barge was moored in the Yadkin River north of Interstate 40 before it broke loose early Monday. It moved downstream under the I-40 bridge crossing the river, then slid under the bridge at U. S. 158.

The main damage done by the barge came when it snapped a telephone cable across the Yadkin River just below U. S. 158 causing approximately 1,000 subscribers in the eastern part of Davie County to lose telephone service from early morning

Hanes Knitting Co. Increases Wages

The P. H. Hanes Knitting Company announced today a wage increase for production employees at all plants, effective September 28, 1964. The Company employs more than 4,000 persons and operates spinning, knitting and garment manufacturing plants in Winston-Salem, and garment manufacturing plants in Sparta and Jefferson, and Galax, Va. The increase, together with fringe benefit increases this year, will amount to approximately $500,000 per year.

"Lower cotton costs and increased business make this wage increase possible at this time," said P. Huber Hanes, Jr., president of the firm which is completing a new narrow fabrics plant in Davie County and recently announced expansion plans for manufacturing facilities in New Mexico and Texas. "We were among the first in our industry to provide four weeks' paid vacation to employees with 25 years' service, which was put into effect this summer. Earlier this year one group insurance program was liberalized.

"We are projecting record sales and production for this year, and I am happy to be able to announce this wage increase," Mr. Hanes stated.

Hanes' last general wage increase was placed in effect in February, 1963.

P. H. Hanes Knitting Company is the first major cotton knitwear producer to announce a wage increase since the enactment of "one-price" cotton legislation this year.

Hospital Memorial Plaques

Actual construction on the new addition to the Davie County Hospital will get underway this week, weather permitting. The new addition is expected to be completed and in use by this time next year.

The people of Davie County are most fortunate that the hospital is being doubled in size and service to the community without the burden of a bond issue. However, a need for some more funds still exists.

Federal and State funds (under the Hill-Burton Act) help to provide a minimum of equipment. However, in order to furnish the patient rooms with the modern equipment that present medical standards demand, additional funds will be needed. The building committee of the hospital believes that a number of individuals will want to share this project and at the same time provide a lasting memorial to parents or another loved one.

It is planned that a dignified bronze plaque be permanently affixed to each patient room door, bearing whatever appropriate inscription the donor wishes.

It is thought that perhaps several members of a family might want to join together to provide a joint memorial to their parents. This would also be a most fitting way for a company to honor its founder or a church or Sunday School class to remember a beloved pastor or teacher.

The cost of these memorials has been set at $750.00. Only a limited number can be sold. Persons desiring to reserve one of these plaques should contact the building committee of the hospital.

Architectural Plans Are Presented—

Downtown Redevelopment Studied

Plans for the redevelopment of the business area of Mocksville were unveiled Monday night at a meeting of interested citizens at the Mocksville school auditorium.

The meeting, sponsored by the Mocksville Development Association, was attended by 52 persons who saw proposed improvements depicted in architect sketches and heard the report of a study of the area given.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Tennant, architects of Salisbury who are associated with Ramsey and Associates, presented the result of their study of the business area of Mocksville. They were employed to do this study by the Mocksville Junior Chamber of Commerce assisted by contributions and interest of local merchants and property owners. Mr. and Mrs. Tennant are specialists in community planning and have worked in this capacity in the redevelopment of Main Street in Salisbury.

In discussing the town, Mr. Tennant observed that at this stage Mocksville has few of the problems of other big cities. Using his sketches to illustrate, Mr. Tennant discussed the overall problems of improving the downtown area.

"The square is perhaps your greatest asset and should be played up," said Mr. Tennant. To do this he suggested an avenue of trees leading into the square; off-street parking with walkways leading into the shopping area. As an alternate plan to this he suggested the building of a plot in the center of Main Street . . . the planting of trees in this plot . . . parking in the center around this plot . . . leaving the building line free of trees.

Mr. Tennant cited another problem as being that of the level between the sidewalk and street. He suggested the building of a retaining wall which would drop in a series of flat steps to the street.

Mr. and Mrs. Tennant also presented various suggestions for improving the looks of the buildings. These they pointed out at this stage only involved the overall look and did not take into consideration the problems that might be involved with the individual buildings. Many questions were asked by property owners concerning ways of improving their individual buildings.

Bill Daniel, chairman of the Mocksville Development Association, presided and introduced Dr. Vic Andrews who was chairman of the Jaycee committee conducting the study of downtown redevelopment. Dr. Andrews presented Mr. and Mrs. Tennant.

Dr. Andrews agreed to continue to head the local committee for further study and planning on this redevelopment program. Another meeting has been scheduled for Friday night at the Davie County Office Building at which time further plans will be discussed.

Family Is Aided

Monday evening tragedy struck an Arkansas family as they were traveling through Davie County.

The father was killed when the truck, carrying all their belongings, overturned on Hunting Creek Hill. This father, his wife, a five-year-old son had left Roger, Arkansas, in search for another job. The wreck that killed the father also proved fatal to the little pet dog. The mother and son were not seriously injured.

Following the wreck that claimed the life of her husband, damaged the truck and household belongings, the mother had only $3 to face the bleak future.

However, Deputy Sheriff Ralph Padgett assumed the role of the "Good Samaritan" and began Tuesday to contact people for donations on their behalf. By Tuesday afternoon it was reported that the citizens had contributed around $300 to this fund . . . to help a mother and little son return their dead father to Arkansas for burial.

BEAUCHAMP REUNION

A Beauchamp family reunion will be held Sunday, Sept. 6, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Major Beauchamp. Lunch will be served at 1 p.m. Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Davie Highway Fatalities Reach 17—

Hunting Creek Hill Claims Another Victim

A man from Arkansas in search of a job met death Monday night around 3:20 p.m. when his truck overturned on Hunting Creek Hill, eight miles west of Mocksville, on U. S. 64.

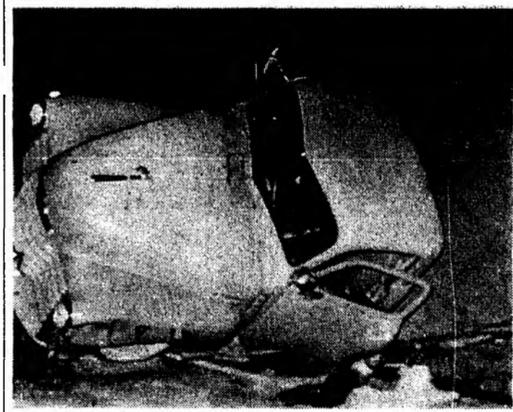

Jackie Lee Leach, 29, of 1223 S. 3rd St., Rogers, Arkansas, was killed instantly. His wife, Mary Jane Leach, and five-year-old son, Roger Earl Leach, were checked at the Davie County Hospital and were released. A little dog was also killed as the result of the wreck.

This was the 17th highway fatality this year for Davie County and the 14th on the "Death Valley" stretch of road (U. S. 64 West and U. S. 159 East) that is scheduled to carry the 1-40 traffic. This wreck occurred within a few yards of the fatal accident on Aug. 8.

State Highway Patrolman K. N. Bolick said that Leach was driving a 1949 Chevrolet 3/4-ton truck loaded with household goods. He and his family had left Rogers, Arkansas, looking for a job.

Heading east of U. S. 64, he rounded the curve on Hunting Creek Hill, ran off on right shoulder, whipped his truck back across the highway, lost control and turned over on the left side across the east bound lane of the highway. As the truck turned over the door on the driver's side apparently came open and Leach was thrown partially out and was pinned beneath the truck on the driver's side. He was killed instantly.

FATALITY NUMBER 17 FOR DAVIE . . . resulted Monday night on Hunting Creek Hill when the truck pictured above overturned planning the driver . . . Jackie Lee Leach, 29, underneath the right side of the car. Leach was killed instantly and his wife and child were treated at the Davie County Hospital and released. A little pet dog also died as the result of the accident.

Three-Car Wreck

While State Highway Patrolman K. N. Bolick was investigating the above wreck, another happened literally at his feet . . . 100 feet west of the other accident.

Patrolman Bolick was standing on the east shoulder in the curve gathering evidence when two cars traveling east, one towing another, collided almost in front of him.

This wreck involved a 1959 Edsel being operated by Elvid Hampton Perrell, 42, of Bear Creek, Rt. 2, and towing a 1955 Pontiac; and a 1963 Chrysler operated by Gladys Queen Mashburn, 49.

Patrolman Bolick said that this accident occurred when the Chrysler slowed in curve upon sighting the accident scene and the Edsel skidded to avoid colliding with the Chrysler. As the Edsel skidded in the left lane, the right rear of the Edsel struck the left rear of the Chrysler. The Chrysler then continued on some 200 feet and pulled off on the right shoulder while the Edsel continued jack-knifing and skidding over to the westbound shoulder and the rear of the Edsel was resting on the hood of the towed 1955 Pontiac heading in the opposite direction from which it was traveling.

Damage to the Chrysler was estimated at $100; to the Edsel, $250; and to the Pontiac, $300. There were no injuries.

Miss Karen Smith Is Winner Of Scholarship

Miss Karen Smith of Mocksville, Rt. 1, entering N. C. State this fall, has been named winner of the 1964 Harvey L. Barnes Memorial Scholarship.

The Speaker

Mr. Crisp was raised at Candler, about eight miles west of Asheville.

At Candler High School he won several oratorical and debating medals; represented Buncombe County at the International Red Cross Convention in Washington in 1959 and edited the school paper.

In his freshman year at Oglethorpe University, Atlanta, Georgia he helped organize the Georgia Student Political League.

To get money to further his education, he worked in a Newport News shipbuilding company from June 1942 through June of 1943.

In September of 1943 he transferred to the University of North Carolina. At Chapel Hill he was president of the Debate Council, Dialectic Society, vice president of the student body, chairman of the Men's Honor Council, a columnist for the Daily Tar Heel and a member of the Golden Fleece (highest honorary order at Chapel Hill).

He won the John J. Parker Jr. Gold Medal for student leadership (highest extra-curricular honor at Chapel Hill), and he was chairman of the Carolina Political Union (an organization with a restricted membership of 25 members).

For four years he was in "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges". Although he never joined a social fraternity, he was president for three years of Tau Kappa Alpha, national forensic fraternity.

In 1946 he received his bachelor of arts degree and two years later his law degree.

While Bill Crisp was still in the fifth grade of school, Candler Grammar School, near Asheville, he decided that he wanted to be a lawyer. He became a lawyer, and before he was 30 years of age found himself engaged in a legal battle with some of the best lawyers in Carolina Power and Light could muster.

From 1952 through 1959 he served as executive manager and counsel of Tarheel Electric Membership Association; he has continued to serve as counsel of Tarheel and of North Carolina Electric Membership Corporation (G & T); he is general attorney and special counsel to a number of North Carolina cooperatives; general attorney for Rural Electric Consumer Publications of Washington, D. C.; and attorney for Tri-State Power Committee. He helped conduct the NRECA Legal Seminars in 1961-64.

He is a member of the Pullen Memorial Baptist Church of Raleigh. He is married to the former Helen Eyster of Lewisburg, Pa., and they have three teen-age daughters, Donald, Cynthia and Shelby. They live at 2700 Rosedale Avenue in Raleigh.

Correction

In listing the teachers in Davie County schools this year two names were inadvertently left off the list in the Mocksville Elementary school. Mrs. Cole Tomlinson is one of the second grade teachers. She has taught for a number of years in the Primary Building. Mrs. Lester P. Martin, Jr. is teaching one of the fourth grades this year for the first time. Mrs. Martin has done some substitute teaching in the past. She attended summer school this year to renew her certificate.

Cited For 28 Years Of Postal Service—

John LeGrand Retires as Rural Carrier

John P. LeGrand has retired after 28 years of postal service. A certificate of retirement expressing appreciation for loyal service to the post-office department was presented to Mr. LeGrand last week by Roy Carter, local postmaster. This certificate was signed by John A. Bronowski, Postmaster General and C. B. Gladden of Atlanta, Georgia, regional Postmaster.

Mr. LeGrand's postal career began in February of 1936 when he was appointed postmaster by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. He served in his position until 1947 when he transferred to rural carrier.

Luring his 17 years as carrier for route 2, Mr. LeGrand recalls many changes and improvements.

"At the time I retired I was handling more mail in a day than I used to in a week when I first began carrying the mail," said Mr. LeGrand. "There has also been great improvement in the roads over which I ran. In my early days as a carrier, I would have to drive my car in low gear for four or five miles at the time to get over some of the area. Today most of the roads on the route are paved," he said.

During these years Mr. LeGrand saw many changes and adjustments made to his rural route. This included area covered, number of families served, and miles traveled. At the time of his retirement, Mr. LeGrand was traveling 80 miles each day, serving between 450 and 500 families.

John P. LeGrand was born in Davie County on Nov. 7, 1895. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Wade Hampton LeGrand. He attended the Mocksville High School.

He was a veteran of World War I, serving with the 81st Division in France. Following the war he operated a drug store for a number of years in Mocksville.

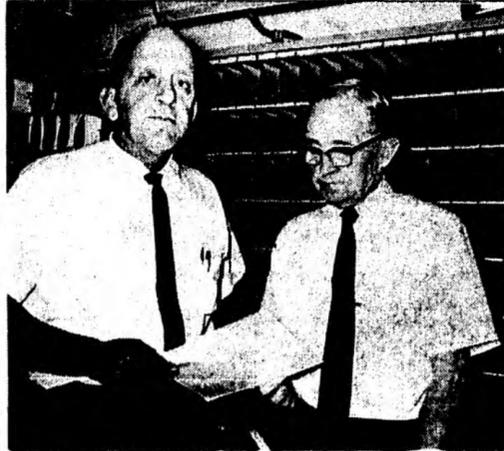

In 1931 Mr. LeGrand was elected as Davie County's Representative to the North Carolina General Assembly and became the first Democratic Representative to serve this country in 50-odd years.

After being appointed postmaster in 1933, Mr. LeGrand was elected as vice-president of the North Carolina Association of Postmasters which was organized at a meeting in Fayetteville in 1936.

Mr. LeGrand is a member of the Mocksville Methodist Church; the Mocksville Masonic Lodge; the Scottish Rite of Charlotte; and the Mocksville Moose Lodge. He was a charter member of the Davie County Rotary Club and of the Davie County American Legion Post.

In 1925 he was married to the former Elizabeth Johnson of Alendale, S. C. Mr. and Mrs. LeGrand have two children: Jack LeGrand of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Rom Weatherman of Winston-Salem.

BROCK REUNION

On Sunday, Aug. 30, 1964, the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Brock, Sr., was opened wide with gracious southern hospitality for the reunion of the Brock Clan, descendants of the Revolutionary soldier, Nathaniel Brock.

Nathaniel Brock with other pioneers journeyed from Princess Anne County, Va., via Currituck County in North Carolina on to Rowan County, where land grants were granted them by the Earl of Granville in England. Some of these grants lay along and about Duteman's Creek in which is now Davie but then Rowan. They found the land well watered with fertile soil and plenty of standing timber. There was an abundance of wild game such as deer, turkey, quail, and others.

The families settled here and began the development of the new land. Six generations later many descendants live in the same neighborhood with their families. Three generations were represented at the Reunion. The youngest being nine months old Gela Brock, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Brock. Around noon the Brock Clan began to gather on the spacious lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Brock where wide spreading elm trees, that had known Confederate soldiers, were casting deep shadows inviting those who were gathering to come and spread their picnic food. But floating clouds burdened by the push of hurricane Cleo, sent showers of wet pelting rain drops and caused all to go scurrying into the house.

Soon Mrs. Brock arranged tables that accommodated the bountiful supply of home cooked food brought by the home folks.

The afternoon was used for fun and fellowship and the learning of ancestors, the men and women of previous years who were pioneers in this part of North Carolina.

Officers for the year were elected as follows: President, Richard Brock; vice president, John C. Hartman; secretary, Charles W. Lashley. There were 45 there to enjoy the occasion.

Truck Damaged As Misses Tractor

Essie McKinley Kimber, 25, of Rt. 1, East Bend, driving a 1963 Mack truck owned by Charlie F. Hutchens of Booneville, avoided a collision with a farm tractor on Friday, August 28, around 4:30 p. m. but did $3000 damage to the truck he was driving.

Kimber, traveling south on N. C. 201, driving a truck loaded with fertilizer, pulled into the left lane to overtake a farm tractor pulling a trailer loaded with corn. Seeing a left turn, Kimber then veered to the left; shoulder and traveled down a ditch about 300 feet running over about 50 feet of pasture fence, knocking out two cement posts and running over a fence gate.

The tractor, driven by Odell Bailey of Rt. 1, Pfafftown, was not hit. Patrolman Ken Bolick investigated the accident.

There were no charges.

Annual Johnson Clan Gathers At Tanglewood

The 11th annual gathering of the Johnson Clan was held Sunday at the Tanglewood Park with many of those attending wearing apparel of the 1757 motif. These were the descendants of William Johnson who settled in 1757 on the Yadkin River in the area that is now Tanglewood Park.

The morning program got underway at 11:30 a. m. and was held in the church. Miss Vada Johnson of Farmington, presided. Mrs. Jack Stryon was at the organ. The invocation was given by the Rev. Carl McMurray and special music was provided by The Shaws. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Sinclair Tebo.

At 12:30 picnic lunch was enjoyed at Shelter No. 3 and this was followed by a business meeting at 1:30 p. m.

Another phase of the afternoon program was held in the Mount Pleasant Methodist Church with the rededication service of 1809 being enacted by assumption.

The Rev. Gray Williams, pastor of that day, was portrayed by the Rev. Jack Yarbrough. Mrs. Helen Johnson McMurray presented a Lydia Elrod solo. The Rev. Clair Haire portrayed Bishop Asbury and delivered the sermon. The act of dedication was by Bishop McKendree, portrayed by the Rev. Bennie Bearden.

The trustees of that day were portrayed as follows: James Johnson by Gene Johnson; Thomas Cooper by Billy Johnson; Roger McKnight by Charles Smith; Adam Star by Ronnie Smith; Elias Delashmut by

Pvt. John W. Gillaspie, whose wife, Frances, lives at 715 Lake st., Thomasville, N. C., completed training at the U. S. Army Training Center, Fort Gordon, Ga., Aug. 29. WHAT ABOUT WHEAT IN A DAIRY RATION

By GUY S. PARSONS Extension Dairy Husbandry Specialist

It looks as if the wheat market will be around $1.30 or less per bushel this year. At this price wheat is a better buy than corn. Consequently, many dairymen in North Carolina may want to consider substituting some wheat in place of corn in their dairy ration. The dairyman's aim should be to furnish the needed nutrients to his cows in the easiest, cheapest way possible.

Ground wheat is about equal to ground corn for dairy cattle and is an entirely satisfactory feed, even for long periods, if fed in a suitable concentrate mixture and in a properly balanced ration. For dairy cows wheat should be ground, not finely, or crushed, and it is best to mix it with some other concentrate, as it is a very heavy feed. Because of its rather pasty nature, the best results are probably secured when wheat does not form more than one-third to one-half of the concentrate mixture.

Wheat is higher in protein but contains less starch than corn. It is low in calcium, but higher in phosphorus than corn. Wheat is fully as digestible as corn, and supplies about as much total digestible nutrients as dent corn of No. 2 grade. In using wheat as a feed, the fact that it is higher than corn in protein should be kept in mind. Less protein supplement is needed to balance a ration than wheat makes up part of the grain mixture. We would definitely recommend that dairymen consider purchasing wheat and adding it to their mixture, and, of course, anytime a dairyman changes his grain mixture, it should be done gradually over a period of two or three weeks.

Letter From The Thomsons

The following is a letter received from the Ren Thomsons, Apartado 1052, Ensenada, Baja, Cta., Mexico. Mrs. Thomson will be remembered here as Evona York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James York on Rt. 2.

Dear Friend:
 This morning four new children began their physical examinations as a preliminary to entrance of Centro de Amparo. Their father deserted them over a year ago, and their mother works from early morning until far into the night trying to get enough pesos together to buy their food. Since she has no one to help with the children, she has been leaving them locked in their borrowed shack while she goes out working to support them.

We went to the home - a two-room adobe affair. The kitchen stove was a sort of brick oven with a grate built up from the dirt floor. On the floor sat a three-year-old girl, her legs small and mishapen, and on the one bed lay a two-year-old, his arms the size of broomhandles. He was peacefully asleep with an almost-empty methiolate bottle near his cheek. We asked the oldest, aged eight, who cared for the little ones. He said, matter-of-factly, "I do." Thank God, we do have the means to help these little ones. The child with the twisted legs is going to Mexico City under the auspices of the Mexican Government. There, we hope, something can be done to help her. Four others are entering Centro de Amparo, which being interpreted, means "Center of Refuge." Certainly these children need a refuge; pray with us that here at Centro de Amparo their needs can be met.

In His Name,
 The Thomsons
 (Ron, Evona, and James)

At this meeting, plans for the Fair's showing October 6-10 will be discussed by committee members, chairmen, and superintendents. In addition, newspaper, radio, television, and outdoor advertising representatives from the area — plus other special guests — will attend.

In announcing this year's rally, Neil Bolton, fair manager, stressed the importance of this planning session: "The Fair is the result of the work of many, many people. I urge all committee members especially to come and go over the plans for what is going to be the finest and biggest exhibition of progress in Northwest North Carolina."

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

A 14-year-old boy was talking about his future and I asked him what he wanted to be when he became a man. "President of the United States!" he replied. Thinking perhaps that he was joking, I looked at him closely and saw that he was dead serious. Then with a slight double take, I mumbled that this was a fine ambition and that despite the current heat wave possibly aided by the air from the political conventions, that every American boy had a right to aspire to our highest office. He replied that he was already making plans for this. The hope was then expressed that just in case the great ambition was thwarted, he would not be

The pre-fair rally will be patterned after a good old-fashioned barn raising this year. "We're calling it the 'Dixie Classic Fair Raising,'" Bolton said, "and as in the early days of our country when people got together to help a neighbor build a home or barn, our fair accomplishment as well as a social occasion." Bolton added, "We're going to 'build' the Dixie Classic Fair for 1964, and we're going to 'raise the roof'. It should be fun for everybody."

From 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. all committee members and booth applicants will meet for full committee meetings at various locations throughout the fairgrounds. For the benefit of "Fair Raisers" who don't know where to go, a Fair official will be stationed at the rear of the Coliseum's lower lobby. From 5:30 to 6, the entire group will assemble to hear short reports from the chairmen, to be followed by an old-fashioned supper. Several contests are planned as part of the after-dinner entertainment.

as president as Harold Stassen. But nothing I could say seemed to damp the young hopeful in the least. So let him have his ambition. He might even realize it.

Twilight tours to accommodate the cut of town visitors to the World's Fair have been started at the United Nations headquarters. Now except for earlier closings on week ends, the UN will be open until 10 p. m. until fall, with its chic guides conducting the tours in 37 languages. Incidentally, the UN health commission has figured out that long life can come from proper exercise by aging persons to offset reduced physical activity: a balanced diet with inclusion of iron, vitamins and calcium helps considerably; and no retirement plan should involve complete work stoppage, because occupation keeps a body toned up and affords necessary stimulation.

Two reckless drivers were up before a magistrate for having been involved in an accident. "I wish to commend you two careless fellows," said the magistrate, "for having run into each other instead of some innocent person. If this sort of thing can be encouraged, we may have hit upon the solution to a serious problem."

Glenn Tucker is a young man who graduated from Columbia University in 1913. At least he is young in hand and heart, for he keeps writing books and good ones too. Currently in the shadow of his Flat Rock, North Carolina apple trees, Glenn is writing a biography of the Civil War governor of that state, Zebulon Vance, who helped greatly to preserve individual freedom in that state, although its men were as active as any in the war. Recently Glenn was presented with Columbia University's Distinguished Alumni Award, and as a native of Indiana, was honored for writing the outstanding non-fiction book of 1963 among Hoosier writers.

Here and There: it seems that much of the difficulty with young people today is due to the fact that many parents attempt to shield their children from the challenges of life, rather than teach them how to meet and cope with their daily experiences . . . three outstanding shows at the World's Fair are the Pepsi Cola show, the Hawaiian show and the Puppet Show "from Paris" . . . a here is one who talks about himself when you want to talk about yourself.

Gene Smith Graduate From Selling Course

Fredrick E. Smith of Reavis Auto, Inc., Mocksville, has been certified as a graduate of the retail selling course conducted in Winston-Salem recently by a staff instructor of Ford Motor Company's Atlanta Marketing Institute.

Certification of course completion was announced by L. C. Brock, director of the Ford Institute.

The six day course was taught by J. A. Griggs, Institute instructor. Subjects range from management and merchandising courses for dealers and their department managers to salesmanship and specialized workshops for staff members.

The Atlanta Marketing Institute enrolls more than 2,500 sales specialists of Ford Motor Company products from a ten-state area.

FUNERALS

JAMES W. BEAN, Jr., 47
Funeral services for James W. Bean, 47, of Beckley, West Virginia, were conducted at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 30, at Advance Methodist Church. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Bean died in a Beckley Hospital after an illness of three days.

He was born in Spencer to James W. and Annie Jane Stutts Bean and had lived in High Point for seven years.

He moved to Beckley six months ago, where he was manager of Greenbrier Dairy.

He was a member of Shady Grove Methodist Church at Advance.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Jennie Lowe Peoples Bean; two sons, Bill and Clifton Bean, both of the home; his parents of Raleigh; a brother, C. T. Bean of Greensboro; and a sister, Mrs. Frances Grubbs of Greensboro.

MILES P. BRITTON

Funeral services for Miles P. Britton were held Monday, Aug. 31, at 2:30 p.m. at Shiloh Baptist Church by the Rev. G. W. Chambers. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Britton died Saturday at his home.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Alice Britton; two daughters, Mrs. Ethel Wilson and Mrs. Christine Johnson, both of Mocksville; seven grandchildren; two stepsons, John and Charles Anderson, both of Mocksville; and four sisters, Miss Lilly Britton, Mrs. Dusher Hairston, Mrs. Linda Allnor and Mrs. Seresa Mason, all of Mocksville.

Church Activities

FIRST BAPTIST

"Visitation Day" will be at Mills Home in Thomasville on Thursday, Sept. 3. There will be a tour of the campus, an out-door picnic supper at 6 p.m. and a program in Mills Home Church at 7 p.m. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

The G. A.'s met at the church on Tuesday night, Aug. 25, with representatives from Turrentine, Blaise, Fork, Farmington, and Mocksville at the meeting. There were 45 present. Miss Dare Teague, Association G. A. Director, taught the study "Star Ideals." Important ideals discussed included: Prayer, Bible Study, Stewardship, Service, and the Great Commission To Go and Preach.

Deacons will be nominated on Sunday, September 6.

FIRST METHODIST

Members of the choir entertained for four members who will leave soon to attend college immediately following choir rehearsal on Wednesday night, Aug. 26. The group adjourned to the Fellowship Building at the church where punch, cake squares and nuts were served. A "guessing contest" was held. A remembrance gift, a sterling silver engraved charm, was presented to Miss Dianne Hendricks, Miss Karleen Sell, Miss Patsy Deadmon and Miss Celia McClesky by Doug Fink, president of the choir group.

PRESBYTERIAN CIRCLES

Circle No. 1, of the Women of the First Presbyterian Church, Mrs. S. S. Short chairman, will meet Monday, Sept. 7, at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. E. C. Morris on North Main Street.

Circle No. 2, Mrs. Frank Brown, chairman, and Circle No. 4, Miss Nell Holthouser chairman, will have a joint meeting on Monday, Sept. 7, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Paul Grubbs and Mrs. Sam Waters on Salisbury Street.

Circle No. 3, Mrs. Knox Johnstone chairman, Tuesday, Sept. 8, at 10 a.m. with Mrs. Joe Jones on Church Street.

Circle No. 5, Miss Daisy Holthouser, chairman, Tuesday, Sept. 8, at 7:30 p.m. with Miss Holthouser on Pine Street.

Circle No. 6, Mrs. William J. Clark, chairman, Monday, Sept. 7, at 8 p.m. with Mrs. Claude Horn, Jr., on Wandering Lane.

FINISHES BASIC . . . Bill Day, son of Mrs. Nell R. Day of North Main Street, Mocksville, has completed his basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. He spent a 15 day leave at home and is now stationed at Charleston Air Force Terminal in South Carolina. He is doing on-job training in mechanical field work. During his basic training, Day played the baritone bugle in the Drum and Bugle Corps at Lackland.

4-H Club News

CLARKSVILLE

The Clarksville 4-H Club met Tuesday, August 25 at the Community Building. A family picnic supper was enjoyed by the members and their parents, before the meeting.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Kenny Eaton. The pledges were given by the club. Linda Reavis, our secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and called the roll. A very interesting devotional was given by Rev. Glenn Reavis.

There was no old business. Our new business consists of a correction of the Horse Show, encouraging members to attend council meeting to have work books in on time, and an announcement that Mrs. Stacy Beck and Mrs. Bruce Beck would be new leaders for next year.

Our program was given by all members who brought something that they had made or grown to put on display for the parents to see. Patty Beck was in charge of Recreation for the evening, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Secretary, Linda Reavis

DAVIE ACADEMY

Our monthly 4-H club meeting was held Aug. 31. Our president led the Pledge of Allegiance and the 4-H Pledge. Lib Turner called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. Bob Koontz had the scripture and prayer.

Record books were taken up. Project talks were given by Mickey Cartner and Bobby Koontz. Carl Dwiggin, Grand Champion winner, and Mike Gaitther gave a talk about the Calf Show. Six leaders and nine members were present. Lib Turner was in charge of recreation.

Mrs. Bruce Turner served refreshments of cookies and Coca-Colas.

Find the strength for your life...

Does it seem to you sometimes that the world has gotten so crowded and complex that you just don't count at all in the grand scheme of things? It's not uncommon, that feeling. We feel helpless . . . unable to alter or even really to understand ourselves and the world we live in.

Faith is missing—and because of that, spiritual strength is.

But faith and spiritual strength can be found, nourished. Then they grow within you through regular worship. This week go to your church or synagogue. Start to build a fuller, more meaningful life. Cherish your faith and keep it strong so that it may strengthen you.

What Causes The Most Trouble In The World?

Not Hate, But the Wrong Kind of Love

A faded clipping ... indicating that it was printed sometime ago ... carries a message that is very pertinent today ... concerning hate and love. It was written by Sydney J. Harris, and reads as follows:

"The whole trouble", said my friend who is fond of generalizations that not only weep by also soar, "is that there's too much hate in the world".

"That's not my view at all, "I demurred. "It seems to me that there is very little hate in the world — what causes most of the trouble is the wrong kind of love."

To start at the simplest level, what is ruinous for a child? It is not hate (which he rarely gets from his parents, and could learn to withstand), but a love that is either too possessive, too stupid to comprehend the child's needs or too full of vanity, fear and unconscious resentment at having to make sacrifices for the child.

What is wrong with so much "religious feeling" is not hate against other sects, but a perverted love that shuts out the non-believers and disbelievers and worships a tribal god rather than the God of all mankind. This is why religious wars have been the most bitter and prolonged in history. If we love our Deity in the wrong way, as an exclusive property, we soon begin to hate those who do not share these devotions.

The same is true of patriotism, which has become the modern religion. True patriotism loves its country and wishes the best for it; but for every one person who has the right sort of love or his country, there are a hundred who love it as the bad parent loves the child ... for vanity, for greed, for display and for the material rewards it may offer.

All these corrupted forms of love ... filial, religious, patriotic ... tend to separate man from man rather than to unite man to man, which the ultimate purpose of all love. There is a profound difference between the ardent patriot who is willing to die for his country and the bitter nationalist who wants to kill others for his country.

Hate is always a by-product of the wrong kind of love. It is generated by people who cannot truly give themselves to the object, who can find unity only by opposition — by the Germans, for instance, who could love Germany only by hating France; by the Crusaders who could love Christendom only by hating the Saracens; or by the Communists who could love the proletariat only by hating the bourgeoisie.

Calls for the abolition of hate are futile, for hate is not a positive thing, but a negative — an absence of the ability to love creatively, productively, maturely and acceptably. The human race will never rid itself of fratricidal hate until it learns that much of what passes for "love" is its deadly counterpart.

Beware of Traffic Hazards—

Long Labor Day Weekend

Extra traffic hazards created by the long Labor Day weekend call for extra alertness and extra patience to avoid becoming one of the 22 victims which accidents on North Carolina's streets and highways during the 78-hour period.

The state will count its highway fatalities from 6 p. m. Friday, Sept. 4, through midnight Monday, Sept. 7, for the holiday that brings the summer vacation season to a close.

The motor club's estimate is based on past experience of motorists for similar holiday periods coupled with current driving patterns, but President Thomas B. Watkins pointed out that "the number of fatalities will be reduced to the extent that motorists observe the basic safe driving rules. Unsafe driving practices could cause fatalities to approach a higher figure."

North Carolina's Labor Day traffic toll for the same period last year soared to 26 deaths, with 11 of them recorded on Saturday and eight on Sunday. There were also 504 injured in a total of 774 accidents.

Leading driver violations reported were: speeding, 186; driving left of center, 163; failure to yield right of way, 92; following too closely, 84; and reckless driving, 76.

Watkins cautioned that, on Labor Day weekend, "your chances of having a serious accident are three times as great as on any other weekend except July Fourth. To even up the odds, please drive three times as carefully."

Concocted At St. Louis World's Fair—

The Origin of the Hamburger

An enterprising chef at the St. Louis World's Fair of 1904 introduced a new delicacy: beef chopped, broiled, and served on a bun.

The cook's name is lost to history but not his invention: the hamburger. A national institution along with baseball and bubble gum, the hamburger is enjoyed at the rate of some 21 billion a year or an average of 110 for every man, woman, and child.

Chopped beef, on or off its bun, is a versatile, year-round favorite, the National Geographic Society says. It is slapped into patties, rolled in balls, molded into loaves, stuffed in leaves, floated in soup, fried, broiled, barbecued, braised, and served en brochette.

In addition to the familiar hamburger and cheeseburger, there are such exotic derivatives as pizzaburgers, pickleburgers, beselburgers, bananaburgers, Wineburgers, nutburgers, onionburgers, soybeanburgers, lobsterburgers, Texas-, California-, and Danishburgers. In fact, almost any food that can be chopped and cooked will sooner or later turn up on a menu as a 'burger.

In Washington, D. C., to publicize a theatrical production, a bakery and meat company realized a hungry boy's dream recently when they combined talents to produce the world's largest hamburger: 20 pounds of beef, 5 pounds of tomatoes, 10 heads of lettuce, a gallon of mustard, and 5 pounds of onions. The roll was 12 feet around.

The genuine American hamburger has invaded foreign soil, but not without opposition.

Despite predictions of financial suicide, a courageous American company recently opened a chain hamburger stands in, of all places, Paris. Gourmets in the mecca of gastronomy claimed that ground meat should only be bought for pets. A virologist at the Pasteur Institute called "Om-Bour zhays" sheer poison. He said millions of germs were ground into the meat by the chopping machines and left to multiply even under heat. Sales plummeted until one hamburger devotee pointed out: "Americans eat millions of hamburgers a month, and they seem to be doing fine."

Hamburger eateries in Paris now do a booming business, and most of the customers are French.

Though appreciation of the hamburger came late to France, regions of Europe savored chopped beef centuries ago.

According to gastronomes, the first version of the hamburger turned up on medieval menus in Baltic states. People often ate raw beef shredded with a dull knife.

Merchants from Hamburg, the German port and the leading member of the Hanseatic League, brought it home as Steak Tartar. German emigrants to the United States brought this raw speciality, soon nicknamed hamburger though it had yet to be broiled.

In World War I, when anti-Gemany feeling ran high, hamburger was sometimes called "Salisbury Steak." The name honored Dr. James H. Salisbury, a 19th-century British nutritionist who went patent medicines one better.

MOCKSVILLE EASTERN STAR OFFICIALS OF 1941

The Eastern Star Officials pictured above were installed in what was described as an "impressive ceremony in a beautifully decorated hall and attended by about 100 members and visitors" on Thursday evening, March 27, 1941. They are, front row, left to right: Mrs. Ella Holthouser, secretary; W. J. Hunt, associate patron and installing officer; Mrs. Kate Cook, worthy matron; J. G. Crawford, worthy patron; Mrs. Frances Pennington, associate conductress; Mrs. Ida Christian, treasurer. Back row, left to right: Miss Julia Foster, Ruth; Mrs. Bailey Brown, Martha; Mrs. Mary Graves, Chaplain; Mrs. Creola Wilson, Electa; Mrs. Elizabeth Shepherd, marshal; Mrs. Elizabeth Nesbit, Esther; Mrs. Geneva Waters, warder. H. C. Meroney, sentinel, is seen in the rear of the photo.

FROM ON HIGH ... Close to LBJ himself is U. S. Sen. Everett Jordan—and this was a channel of blessing last week as North Carolinians quarrelled bitterly over whether William E. Webb of Statesville should be the new national committeeman.

The story which came to Raleigh directly from the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City was that Sanford-Bennett had the horses to kick out Webb and were ready to do it. At this point, however, it was shown by Sen. Sam Ervin that, like it or not, there were upwards of 250,000 Democrats in North Carolina in the Spring of 1964 who preferred a more conservative approach than that offered by either Terry Sanford, Bert Bennett, Richardson Preyer, or Dan K. Moore.

This was an allusion to the Lake and Wallace votes.

That there was petulance aplenty and a failure to reckon with reality was shown on the part of some Sanford stalwarts. They were uncompromising in their attitude toward Webb. Consensus in Raleigh what that this only helped Moore.

The fight raged on, with the big Convention only something to be glanced at over the shoulder. Finally, as we hear it, word reached the White House that there would be—or could be—real trouble for Johnson in North Carolina if Governor Sanford went on with his idea to be the national committeeman. This seemed to be the only solution if Webb was ditched. Webb would not resign. Moore stood solidly with him.

The question is, did the Sanfords give up as peacemakers or were they prodded into it by the White House fear of losing North Carolina to Goldwater?

Whatever it was, Dan Moore and L. B. Johnson are in better shape now than they were before the Convention ... thanks to Billy Webb, Gov. Sanford, or President Johnson. Perhaps we have learned once again—that there are ALL KINDS of Democrats. Good and bad.

THE WEBB ... It is interesting to note that both Terry Sanford and Dan K. Moore have been caught in a web this year. With the Governor, it was Elsie and the highways. With Moore, it was Billy and the Wallace petition. Despite all protests last winter, Elsie stayed on the State Highway Commission. Since Sanford kept his'n, it does seem only right and proper and fair play for Moore to do the same. These Webb's are not related ... until now.

SMART ... When Robert Scott, Democratic nominee for Lt. Governor, let it be known several weeks ago that as presiding officer over the State Senate he would stack his utilities committee to favor REA over privately interested electrical companies, were we amazed at his candor. So, it seemed, was everybody else. It got big headlines all over.

For, while committees were sometimes "balanced" to favor this or that project or group, nobody we could remember had flatly stated their plans to do so. This type of thing gives the executive branch of the government an edge over the Legislature.

So, knowing how the big newspapers have to do some powerful digging to find interesting editorial miter, we figured the Scott thing would come in for a lot of sage, over the glasses comment. But up to this good hour—and every newspaper in the State moves over our readers' desks—we have not seen one editorial word about the Scott statement

Young Bob has given assurances that he is going to let the press back on the floor of the Senate—they were balkanized by Clarence Stone—and maybe the newspapers just want to stay on the good side of Scott. Or, it may just be that committee-packing is old hat—and admitting it, in advance albeit, is refreshing.

But in the Webb matter in Atlantic City, Bob busily looked out to sea. It seemed to us he played it smart—but his dad never looked seaward in his life.

THE LITTLE THINGS ... On a visit to the old State Capitol the other day, we saw at the visitors registration desk these two little booklets—one about the capitol and the other about the mansion. These little publications are given out by the thousands of school children and others.

Glancing through the one, entitled "The Governor's Mansion," while awaiting an appointment, we noted the photo of Tyrone Palace on Page 1. There were 14 pictures, nine of buildings, halls, etc., and five of individuals. One of these shows Gov. and Mrs. Sanford, another of Mrs. Sanford and Betsy. Then there is one of the Governor and Terry, Jr.

But the one that interested us most—and was most intriguing and altogether entertaining was on page 7. It presented Gov. and Mrs. Sanford in evening dress greeting friends. There are two others shown in this four-person receiving line. We look again—a little startled. No there they are, big as life, as they say, are—Mr. and Mrs. Richardson Preyer. The only people identifiable in the entire booklet besides the First Family, are Mr. and Mrs. Preyer.

A co-incidence? Your guess is as good as ours.

NO BAPTIST HE ... Not knowing for sure that J. M. Broughton was still in the Baptist Church, we said in writing about him the other day that the Baptists would be happy about his being made chairman of the State Democratic Committee, etc. We intimated they might go along with him should he try for Governor—as we think he might—in 1968.

We never stated flatly he was—or is—a Baptist. But the inference was there. Well, he isn't—as several good readers informed us. He is an Episcopalian—like FDR and some of the rest of us. Sorry he isn't a Baptist—and it may be he is, or will be, too.

In any event he is a good Episcopalian, a leader in his church, an officer in that house—and "every bit in grain" as good in his church as his daddy was in the Baptist faith. With which we should all join in a General Thanksgiving.

FOR MUNICIPALITIES ... While we are setting the record straight, dispelling the fog as Mr. Charles Michelson used to say in those New Dealing columns, let's talk about Dan Moore and taxes for a moment.

We had heard he might try to help the cities, counties, and towns with a divvy up of the sales tax. Could be—but it seems that certain city councils, mayhaps yours, want to get through the next Legislature an upping of the gasoline tax.

WASHINGTON — The long time Senate controversy over "medical care for the aged", which advocates seek to finance through social security payments, has been reopened. Two weeks ago, in a series of Senate Finance Committee votes, the committee refused to add the so-called King-Anderson health plan to other House-passed social security amendments. As in previous sessions this plan has not won endorsement by the influential House Ways and Means Committee. It thus did not become a part of the House approved bill to increase cash benefits by 5% and extend coverage to certain full-time students and elderly persons.

The House action and the subsequent Senate Finance Committee report ordinarily would end the matter this late in the session, but medicare has become a political and emotional issue. Whatever political mileage there is in the issue, until now there has been no broad consensus that the Federal government should not take this step.

Federal and state and local governments have an obligation to share the costs of medical treatment for needy elderly citizens. On the other hand, a multitude of problems are involved in changing the concept of the social security program to finance medical care. The social security insurance program has functioned since its inception as a "cash benefit program" whereby the recipient receives a monthly check to spend as he sees fit. The medical care proposal would inaugurate a program whereby the government would determine how a beneficiary's insurance contributions should be spent. The principle once established would very likely be greatly expanded.

Any study of the King-Anderson medicare plan discloses that it is inadequate to provide comprehensive medical attention to the elderly. Its most favorable coverage would provide very limited hospital benefits and would not provide anything for doctor and surgical benefits. This approach creates more expectations than benefits. In a short time, Congress would be confronted with a costly inadequate program which it would be called upon to implement at an even greater cost.

The cost factor has been downplayed. Even a very limited medical care plan for all persons aged 65 years or over, irrespective of financial need, would cost several billions of dollars a year. The truth is that the social security tax system is bumping against a practical limitation. Many believe that it is unwise to tax payrolls more than 10% for this purpose. The Administration's medicare proposal would raise payroll rates to 10.4% by 1971.

Most important is the policy question of "how far do the American people want to push medical care into the realm of a government operated service?" This could determine much of the fate of our free enterprise system.

The immediate danger of any prolonged medicare fight is that it could defeat some salutary social security amendments, for the House is unlikely to agree to any medicare proposal this session.

SIMPLICITY
Simplicity was the keynote in accommodations in the less expensive sleeping rooms of Salem Tavern, in contrast with a few more elaborate bedrooms for gentlemen and their parties. The tavern, built in 1784, is an Old Salem exhibit building at Winston-Salem.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: The fellers at the country store Saturdays night was discussing things pro and con. According to Ed Doolittle, them words stands fer Progress and Congress.

They wasn't much time spent on the Progress item on account of we ain't had too much of it lately. But Clem Webster reported we was making a little headway here and there. He said he had saw in the papers where 50 college students had got in one bed and 36 had got in one telephone booth. Clem allowed as how this was up about 10 per cent over figgers put out when all them college boys and girls got together last Spring in Florida. Ed allowed as how this was a very fine improvement and it was voted by the fellers to put this item over on the Progress side of the ledger.

And Clem also announced he was reading in the papers where a doctor in Atlanta give his patient a perscription and wrote at the bottom: "If this works, let me know. I'm having the same trouble myself." It was agreed if doctors would consult with their patients more and with each other less they wouldn't be so many tombstones in the graveyard. This was put over on the Progress side.

Zeke Grubb reported the U. S. Department of Agriculture has decided to add white and pink dogwood trees to the White House improvement over golf balls and sand traps and the fellers run this in on the Progress side.

The discussion on the Congress lasted till the feller that runs the store had to close up and chase us off. Ed announced he had wrote to his Congressman and advised that the folks back home was hoping the next time the Congress cut taxes and raised their wages, they would just keep the tax cut fer themselves and give the hike in pay to the taxpayers.

Bug Hookum reported he had saw in the papers where Senator Nelson of Wisconsin had found where one company doing business with them Space folks had made $955,000 on a $14,293 investment. According to Senator Nelson, this was a 6,000 per cent profit. Bug said he didn't know the difference between a stock certificate and a warrant for grand larceny. In this case, claimed Bug, they probable looked about alike. Anyhow, he announced, he had wrote this company to see if he could buy a share of stock.

Josh Clodhopper give out the most important news of the session. Josh reported the Department has announced the Government printing office had a new 154-page book listing the 216 give-away programs being run by the Congress fer $10 billion a year. The piece said to send 40 cent to Superintendent of Documents. If you're interested, Mister Editor, the Zip is 20402.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

TEXT: "No public man can be a little crooked" - Herbert Hoover.

A scheming salesman attempted to bribe a small town buyer by offering him a box of cigars.

"No, indeed," said the buyer. "I cannot take them. I don't do business that way."

"Well, persisted the salesman, "if you have scruples against a gift, you may pay me 25c for the box."

"In that case," replied the buyer, "I'll take two boxes."

Unfortunately, many people are dishonest without realizing it. They do not know the meaning of integrity. While the dictionary defines integrity as "uprightness, soundness of character, moral wholeness," a more clear definition is "reflecting what you believe to be right."

If, in everything we do, we reflect what we believe to be right, we need never be ashamed. As we grow and learn we probably will find what we once believed to be right, was wrong. Honestly demands that we reflect our new knowledge.

Burton Hillis has written, "You can be quite brave or quite reverent, but you cannot be quite honest or even very honest." Either you are honest or you are not. It is important to you and the world you live in that you reflect accurately what you believe to be right. Do you?

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Congressman James T. Brody

SURPLUS FARM PRODUCTS OVERSEAS

In the closing days of any Congress, legislation piles up and efforts are made to short-cut regular procedures. One of these methods is the suspension of the regular rules of debate. More and more as the Session's days grow shorter, this procedure is being used in the House of Representatives. It is reserved, however, for non-controversial proposals since it requires two-thirds agreement to suspend the rules and consider a bill under this procedure. Efforts to obtain the two-thirds often fail when, in the view of a considerable number of members, full debate is necessary. This happened recently on the bill to extend "Public Law 480," the program whereby we dispose of surplus farm products overseas.

There is little argument of the merits of this program, but there is growing concern over the way it has been operated. The question of adequate Congressional control over the funds involved in it is also an issue that must be resolved carefully.

As in so many aspects of programs to help foreign nations, we find ourselves following conflicting policies and operating at cross-purposes. All too often we know that so-called "solutions" create a whole new set of problems. For instance, the foreign currencies paid for American surplus agricultural commodities can be used within the particular country for assistance of various kinds. Grants of $24 million of such currency have been made by the United States to Argentina for grain storage facilities. Now we see imported beef and veal sales are 12 per cent greater than in 1960. More than $34 million of these currencies have been made available in Brazil, while Brazilian exports of beef to the United States have reportedly increased 470 per cent.

The positive advantages of the program will not be helped if we fail to recognize that short-sighted administration of it could harm the same American farmer the program is intended to help. Last year, over $4 billion worth of agricultural commodities were imported from foreign countries. The competition of imported farm products in the domestic market place has already reached serious proportions as illustrated by Congressional action to stem beef and meat imports a short time ago. We need to make more certain than we are now that the surpluses of the American farmer are not being used to encourage new problems for our agriculture economy. The debate of this bill will be more careful and analytical because of these questions and, to assure a more complete study, the attempt to streamline the debate was rejected.

HIGHWAYS

It is the arguments in Washington which create news and get attention. Unless sparks are flying, interest is often lacking. For some years, the Federal highway program that is transforming the face of the nation has given off few "sparks." An occasional scandal about the misuse of funds by some states or contract improprieties have arisen. But, from all accounts, this vast effort has been carried out quietly and effectively. The American motorist pays a tax on every gallon of gasoline he buys, huge sums are brought into the Highway Trust Fund, the States continue their role of raising additional money and planning and building roads to make our highways safer and better.

Only recently, the President signed into law a bill Congress had passed with little fanfare, making necessary provisions to keep the highway program on schedule.

In 1956, this country undertook one of its most ambitious and necessary programs - a major effort to modernize its highway system which had become dangerous and obsolete. By 1972, it hoped to complete thousands of miles of roads large and small. The tens of billions of dollars they would cost would be financed on a "pay as you build" basis. These billions of Federal cents have not come from general revenues, but directly from the Highway Trust Fund created by those who use the roads.

Much deserved attention has been given to the spectacular Interstate Highway system that is criss-crossing the nation. This program is on schedule and will be completed by 1972. Congress has already provided the necessary authorization for $5.7 billion to be used from the Trust Fund in 1966 and 1967.

In the new law, Congress authorized $2 billion in 1966 and 1967 from the Fund as the Federal share of primary, secondary, and urban roads that serve virtually every county in the country. This legislation assures that the States can continue their planning and the raising of their 50 per cent share of the cost of these smaller highways so that the needs of the people can be better met.

'The Little Hut'—Naughty Comedy

'The Little Hut' has been banned and blasted in almost every country with an active theatre. It is also the recipient of exuberant praise and unreserved tribute.

The situation can't miss. Take an island in the middle of the ocean, add one shipwrecked husband, one lover, one wife and one fire-eating, tree-swinging native type, slip in the inevitable drop of sex - and what do you get? Laughs and laughs and laughs.

Written by Andre Roussin and adapted by Nancy Milford, 'The Little Hut' delighted Broadway audiences in 1953 at the Coronet Theatre.

Library News

By MRS. I. H. HUSKE

We have noticed an interesting new use for the special shelf in the Davie County Public Library which is devoted to Fiction and Biography recommended for college-bound students.

Of course it has been used regularly by the young people preparing for college, but it has also aroused a new interest in 'the books I never got around to reading' among adults.

Now we all know that some of the best stories are not necessarily new stories. There are some very good stories on these shelves.

For instance, have you read these? 'My Antonia' by Willa Carter. The hardships of a Bohemian immigrant girl in pioneer Nebraska.

'Lord Jim' by Joseph Conrad. A man's attempt to live with himself after an act of cowardice.

'Kim' by Rudyard Kipling. The adventures of an orphan son of an Irish soldier during days of British rule in India.

'Love Is Eternal' by Irving Stone. The misunderstandings, sorrows, and devotion of Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd.

'They Called Him Stonewall' by Burke Davis. The life of the Confederate Army's most colorful general.

'Windows for the Crown Prince' by Elizabeth Gray Vining. The warm personal account of her four years as the first American tutor for the Crown Prince of Japan.

TOWN OF MOCKSVILLE NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Pursuant to the authority vested in the Town Commission by the Zoning Ordinance of the Town of Mocksville adopted July 11, 1961, and North Carolina General Statutes, Chapter 160, Article 14, the said Town Commission will sit concurrently with the Planning Board at a public hearing at the Town Hall on September 15, 1964, at 7:30 P.M. to consider the following zoning and amendments to the zoning ordinance:

1. To rezone from R-15 to R-6 the following described property: Beginning at a point in Hospital Street the S.W. Corner of the Davie County Memorial Hospital Lot and being the S.E. corner of the Eastern District of the North Carolina Wesleyan Methodist Conference Lot, runs thence Northwardly with the western edge of said Hospital Lot to a point, a common corner for the said Methodist Church Lot and the said Hospital Lot in the H. C. Meroney line; thence Westwardly to the Meroney line to a branch; thence Southwardly with the branch to Hospital Street; thence Eastwardly with Hospital Street to the place of Beginning.

Before taking such lawful action as it may deem advisable, the Town Commission shall consider all recommendations from any citizen present on the above proposed Zoning Amendment.

In case, however, of a protest against such changes signed by owners of twenty (20%) per cent or more other of the area of the lot included in such proposed change or of those immediately adjacent to or near thereof extending one hundred (100) feet from the street frontage of such opposite lots, such amendments shall not become effective except by favorable vote of three-fourths (3/4) of all members of the legislative body of such municipality. 9 3 21n

FAT OVERWEIGHT

Available to you without a doctor's prescription, our drug called ODRINEX. You must lose ugly fat or your money back. No strenuous exercise, laxatives, massage or taking of so-called reducing candies, crackers or cookies, or chewing gum. ODRINEX is a tiny tablet and easily swallowed. When you take ODRINEX, you still enjoy your meals, still eat the foods you like, but you simply don't have the urge for extra portions because ODRINEX depresses your appetite and decreases your desire for food. Your weight must come down, because as your own doctor will tell you, when you eat less, you weigh less. Get rid of excess fat and live longer. ODRINEX costs $3.00 and is sold on this GUARANTEE; if not satisfied for any reason just return the package to your druggist and get your full money back. No questions asked. ODRINEX is sold with this guarantee by: WILKINS DRUG STORE, Mocksville. Mail orders filled.

CEDAR CREEK

August brought the sheaves of corn, then the harvest home was born. Warm September brings the pheasants. Then to gather nuts is pleasant.

There was a good attendance in Sunday School the past Sunday. Guest in Sunday School was the Rev. Marvin Williams.

Callers at the home of E. J. and Alta Eaton last week were Mrs. Joxie Nelson and Miss Rosie Blackwell of Clemmons. Also, Mrs. Cora Lee Bailey of Winston-Salem.

Those visiting Miss Lou Frances Eaton, who underwent surgery at Davie County Hospital last week, were Mrs. Little Scott, Mrs. Kay West and Mrs. Nora Eaton. Friends of Lou Frances will be glad to know that she is showing improvement.

Mr. and Mrs. Odell Eaton and children, Daryal and Kenneth, of Redland, Mrs. William Eaton and children, Jean and Donnie, attended a birthday party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Eaton in Cherry Hill, Winston-Salem, given in honor of their niece, Denice Eaton, on her 9th birthday anniversary. Chicken salad, iced tea, peanuts, mints, cake and ice cream was served to a large group of children and was enjoyed by all present.

Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howell, Mr. and Mrs. William Eaton and Everette Eaton attended the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Hauser of Yadkinville last Sunday evening. Rev. Hauser is a former pastor of the Cedar Creek Baptist Church.

Mrs. Jennette Parks returned recently from Camp Gordon, Ga., where she spent a few days visiting her husband, Pfc. Melvin Parks.

William Eaton and Stephen Cain visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Steele in Harmony one day last week. Mr. Steele, who has been hospitalized, is able to be at home. The people of this community and all of his friends are praying for his early recovery.

May the road of life lead us to higher heights and deeper depths of wisdom and understanding.

Former Teacher At Farmington Takes Life

A former teacher at the Farmington High School was found dead of a gunshot wound shortly after midnight Thursday in an office behind his home at Walnut Cove.

Charles Thomas Barbour, Jr., 43, principal of the new South Stokes High School, died of a bullet wound in his chest and a 9 m m Luger pistol was found near his body.

Though he had needed crutches to move about ever since he was stricken with polio at the age of 5, he had been active in basketball coaching and teaching.

He served for several years as principal of Nancy Reynolds High School and had been appointed principal of the new consolidated South Stokes High School at Walnut Cove, opening for the first time this fall.

He had moved to Walnut Cove two weeks ago.

He had served in Stokes County for the past 17 years. Before becoming Nancy Reynolds principal he had taught and been basketball coach at Germantown and then Pinnacle.

He came to Stokes County from Davie County where he had taught at Farmington High School.

Two years ago Barbour was honored by the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel for his contributions to basketball in Northwest North Carolina. On this occasion he was a special guest at the annual Journal and Sentinel banquet in Winston-Salem.

He received the honor for his services as a coach and for directing the annual Stokes County basketball tournament for more than 10 years. Associates and close friends described him as a dedicated school man and a sincere and earnest man of "no foolishness."

Barbour was born in Greensboro to Charles T. and Vila Smith Barbour. He was a graduate of Wake Forest High School and Wake Forest College and received a master's degree from the University of North Carolina.

He was a member of Brown Mountain Baptist Church, a Mason and a member of the Alpha Kappa Phi fraternity.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Hazel Sharpe; a brother, Waverly Barbour of Miami, Fla.; and two sisters, Mrs. Emanuel McMillan of 2203 Kerry Drive, Greensboro, and Mrs. Inez McCoy of 700 Westover Terrace, Greensboro.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at Winthrop Friends Meeting House near Union

Cadette Brenda Day Completes CAP Course

BRENDA K. DAY

Civil Air Patrol (CAP) Cadette Brenda K. Day, daughter of Mrs. Neil R. Day of Mocksville, N. C., has completed a five-day Aerospace Age Orientation Course at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

Cadette Day, a member of the North Carolina CAP wing, received training to better acquaint her with the Women in the Air Force WAF role in today's modern Air Force.

As a climax to the course she was given an orientation flight in a T-33 "T-Bird" jet trainer.

The cadette is a graduate of Davie County High School.

The Alice Bell Charm School will be presented in the Davie County Office Building on Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 5 and 6. Classes will be held at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on these dates.

The school is being sponsored by the Young Adult Class of the Wesley Chapel Church. Tickets are now on sale by members of this class.

Alice Bell is recognized as the South's foremost authority on beauty, charm and fashion, and among the top in the country in her field. This recognition has not been easily acquired. It took many years of study, endeavor and application.

Miss Bell has received many awards for her outstanding accomplishments, including special recognition from the American Business Womens International, the Toastmistress International, the Epsilon Sigma Alpha International, and Beta Sigma Phi International. Her work embraces public relations and personal grooming lectures to business executives that employ male and female executives.

Miss Bell has also served as consultant in leading department stores throughout the country, and in training personnel for the United States Government. Her travels have taken her to Europe to cover the Italian and Parisian Fashion Openings, and all through the United States with the "Alice Bell Beauty and Fashion School," sponsored by various outstanding women's organizations. Her talent as a prolific speaker keeps her in constant demand as guest speaker at conventions, business organizations and civic clubs. She has been the star of her own radio show for more than seven years, interviewing authorities in every field of beauty, fashion and charm. Miss Bell has interviewed countless Hollywood stars, world outstanding designers in clothing, hairstyle and make-up. She has starred in her own CBS television show for three and one-half years. Miss Bell has taught fashion designing at one of the leading universities for over a year.

As if this were not enough, Miss Bell has written countless beauty columns for magazines and newspapers, written two books that are completely sold out, and has released a new book "The Alice Bell Charm."

To cap off this busy career, Miss Bell has trained and influenced thousands of women in every walk of life, including home-makers, airline hostesses, professional models, fashion coordinators, bridal consultants, executive women, and women in the business world.

Miss Bell has taught charm to approximately one million women.

Church Of Christ Gets New Minister

LEWIS SAVAGE

Lewis Savage and his family have arrived here from Elizabethton, Tennessee to make their home, and he is now serving as minister of the North Main Street Church of Christ. He succeeds J. B. Whitaker who recently moved to Huntsville, Alabama.

Mr. Savage is a native of McMinnville, Tennessee and is an alumnus of Freed-Hardeman College of Henderson, Tennessee. Mrs. Savage is the former Dora Lee Hale of Spencer, Tennessee. The Savages have three children, LaVergne, who is 23; Eva Abigail, 19, and Dale, 12 years old. LaVergne is married and lives in Knoxville, Tenn. Eva will be a Sophomore at the University of Tennessee, and Dale is a seventh grade student at Mocksville Elementary.

Mr. Savage has served as minister of the gospel with churches of Christ in South Pittsburg, Jamestown, McMinnville, Morristown and Elizabethton, Tenn. He served three years with the East Cullman church in Cullman, Alabama. He has conducted numerous gospel revivals, vacation Bible schools, personal work and sight singing classes. He has served as a minister of the gospel since 1944, two weeks after becoming a Christian. His personal hobby is a study of Horology, the science of measuring time, or the principles and art of constructing instruments for measuring and indicating portions of time, as clocks and watches. He is especially interested in antique clocks and has more than forty in his collection. He invites others who are interested in clocks to see his collection. Mrs. Savage's personal hobby is the collecting of antiques, especially glass and china. You are invited to see her collection of over two hundred pieces.

The North Main Street church invites the public to its services and to get acquainted with the Savage family, residing at 700 Stewart Street, just back of the church building.

Mr. Savage expresses a personal desire to assist the people of Mocksville and Davie County in any possible way. Since his name is not listed in the Directory, you may reach him by calling 634-2866.

Three Cars Involved In Wreck On US 64

Three cars were involved in rear bump-ups Sunday around 3:40 p. m. on US 64, 10-miles west of Mocksville.

Involved were the following: A 1963 Volkswagen operated by Hilda Spillman Couch, 22, of Elkin; a 1959 Ford operated by Robert Curtis Toney of Miami, Florida; and a 1961 Ford operated by Garland Francis Hudgens of Harrisburg, N. C.

State Highway Patrolman Randall Beane said that his investigation disclosed that the Volks, operated by Mrs. Couch had stopped to make a left turn. A vehicle in front of this car made left turn into NC 901. Mrs. Couch said she pulled up, waiting for the traffic to clear. The Ford, operated by Mr. Toney, also pulled up and almost stopped when the car was struck in the rear by the 1961 Ford operated by Mr. Hudgens, knocking the '59 Ford into the Volks. Mr. Hudgens told Patrolman Beane that just as he started off behind the 1959 Ford he looked down at the Dashboard and when he looked back up he was too close to get stopped.

Hudgens was charged with failure to see movement made in safety. Damage to the Volks was estimated at $75; to the 1959 Ford, $200; and to the 1961 Ford $300.

Copperhead Bites Children

Two young children of the Rev. and Mrs. Jack Rhyne of Mocksville, Route 4, were bitten by a copperhead snake Sunday afternoon while playing in the backyard of their home.

Lisa, age 18 months, screamed when the large copperhead snake bit her on the side of her ankle. Her sister, Cheryl, age 7, ran to her side to see what was the matter and was bitten on the left foot.

Both children were rushed to the Davie County Hospital where they were administered the anti-venom serum. More of such serum was rushed to the local hospital from Winston-Salem.

Cheryl returned home Tuesday. It was expected that Lisa, barring complications, would return home the latter part of this week.

The children were bitten around 3:30 p.m. Sunday in the backyard of the Lutheran Manse. The snake was killed and was taken to the hospital for positive identification as to the type of anti-venom serum needed.

Mr. Rhyne is the pastor of the Holy Cross Lutheran Church on Rt. 1, Mocksville.

Speeding Car Wrecks At 'Suicide Crossing'

A teenage driver trying to flee from the State Highway Patrol crashed his car into the embankment at "Suicide Crossing" around 1 a.m. Sunday morning.

William Street Britton, 17, of 1007 Clement Street, Mocksville, was charged with reckless driving and speeding. Britton and a companion were treated at the Davie Hospital and released.

State Highway Patrolman Randall Beane said that Britton, operating a 1955 Chevrolet was going west on the Lexington Road at a high rate of speed. Britton failed to get slowed at the intersection of Salisbury St. and went across the intersection into the embankment.

Woman's Club Has Program On Scouts

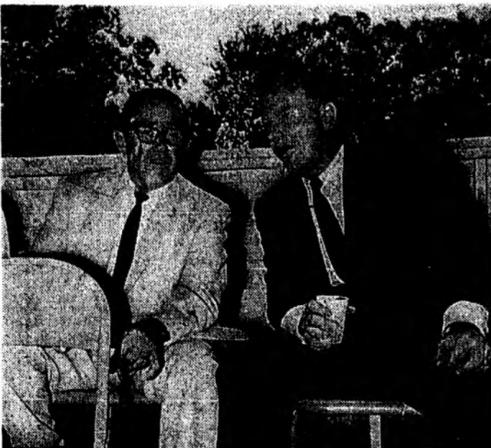

Meeting at the Manor House at Tanglewood Park for the first time since May, the Mocksville Women's Club gathered on Tuesday of this week and saw a film on Girl Scouting for their program.

Mrs. W. M. Long, president, presided at the meeting. Mrs. Fred Barnes, chairman of the Ways and Means committee, announced that there would not be a Tour of Homes sponsored by the club this year.

Mrs. L. Gaither Sanford had charge of the program. She introduced Miss Dorothy Galford of the Pilot Area Girl Scout Council in Winston-Salem who showed a color film entitled "This Is Girl Scouting in the USA." Mrs. Sanford introduced two members of her Cadette Scout troop, Marty Mason and Joan Gintner, who told of their experiences at Camp Shirley, Rogers this past summer.

Hostesses for this meeting were Mrs. Eugene Bowman, Mrs. E. P. Evans, Mrs. J. F. Hawkins and Mrs. L. G. Sanford. There were 31 members present and two guests, Mrs. Paul Neal and Mrs. James Bowman.

Tarheel General Counsel Bill Crisp, Is the Speaker

Between 5,000 and 6,000 attending the 26th annual meeting of the Davie Electric Membership Corporation last Saturday heard the warning that "the survival of the electric cooperatives" is in the hands of those elected to the respective offices of government.

William T. Crisp, General Counsel of the Tarheel Electric Membership Association, emphasized to the Co-op members the importance of "getting to know the person who will fill these offices and know where they stand on issues vital to the rural electric cooperatives."

"Vote for the man who commits himself to support your program regardless of whether he is Democrat or Republican," said Mr. Crisp. Various aspirants for public office were recognized and made brief statements at the meeting.

Gwyn Price, Chairman of the Rural Electrification Authority of North Carolina, also spoke briefly at the gathering.

The main order of business of the day saw the election of the following directors:

C. C. Smoot (Davie); E. R. Crater (Yadkin); J. S. Dobson (Iredell); R. L. Senford (Davie); T. N. Crawford (Iredell); T. B. Woodruff (Davie); W. B. Renegar (Iredell); G. L. Chatham (Alexander); Conrad Eller (Wilkes); W. J. Myers (Rowan); and Russell Oxford (Alexander).

Manager's Report

The manager of the Davie Electric Membership Corporation, J. C. Jones, in his annual report pointed out that the total members of the Co-op as of Aug. 31, 1964, were 9262, an increase of 369 over last year. This was broken down into a county by county membership as follows: Alexander 1350; Davie 2285; Iredell 3100; Rowan 820; Wilkes 837; and Yadkin 870.

The co-op has 1881 miles of lines and the average monthly power consumption per member as of Aug. 31, 1964, was 500 kwh. The average cost per kwh for members was 2c. The Davie Electric Membership Corporation served 35 rural industries which employ 700 persons.

"In October of 1962, Capital Credits in the amount of $225,000.00 was paid to the membership at large. This retirement was for the capital members furnished for the years 1950-54. In August, 1964, the second general retirement of capital credits was made. The amount of this refund was almost $250,000.00 and was for the year 1955-56. Over $100,000 has been refunded to the estates of deceased members and the total amount of patrons capital returned to Davie EMC members is $600,000.00," said Mr. Jones.

Throughout the afternoon meeting more than $4,402.00 in valuable prizes was awarded to members attending. Joe J. Patner, assistant manager, presided over this portion of the program.

The program got underway at 12:30 p.m. with gospel singing by "The Sons of Faith."

C. C. Smoot, President of the Board of Directors, called the meeting to order at 1:30 p.m. The invocation was given by Archie V. Jones, Southern Baptist Missionary, Guayaquil, Ecuador, now home on furlough. Greetings to the members were brought by Harold Odum, Director of Public Relations. The reading of the notice of the meeting and proof of mailing was presented by R. L. Senford, secretary to the board of directors. The treasurer's report was given by J. S. Dobson.

Davie Opens Grid Season Away

Rebels At West Forsyth Friday

The Davie High School football team will open its 1964 season Friday night against the strong West Forsyth Titans. Kickoff will be at 8 p.m. in the new West Forsyth stadium located on the Lewisville-Clemmons Road.

Coach Jack Ward said that the Rebels had worked hard and shown a lot of enthusiasm and "I believe we are ready to play a lot of good football this year," he said.

Coach Ward pointed out that Davie was opening against one of the stronger teams in Forsyth County. Although this is the first season for West as a newly formed senior high school, the nucleus of their team is that of Southwest Forsyth which handed Davie a defeat last season. Last week West Forsyth defeated North Davidson 6 to 0 in their opening game.

"West will be a strong team and will be much bigger than we are, but if our boys come through as I believe they will, we'll do all right," said Coach Ward. "The Rebels this year are being led by Coach Ward, Mike Keller, Clay

Eaton, and John Parker.

Coach Ward said that the starting lineup for Friday night would probably include:

Ends: Clay Eaton and Ken Boger
Tackles: Charles Eaton and Carlton Burton

Guards: Mike Keller and Ronnie Spry

Center: Don Jones

Halfbacks: Bill Nesbitt and Randall Ward

Fullback: Nayrex Barnhardt

Quarterback: John Parker

Certain changes may be made on defense with Larry Bailey playing at the left halfback slot and Earl Shoat at the right defensive linebacking position. There will also be considerable changes in the kickoff, punting and receiving teams.

"In the first two games we plan to use many boys in our effort to get the best working combination," said Coach Ward.

Assisting Coach Ward are Bill Peeler, line coach; Roger Snow and Leroy Hill.

Last year the Rebels won four and lost six.

Central Area of Mocksville Studied—

Redevelopment Plans Are Outlined

A summary on the report of the recent preliminary study for revitalizing the central area of the Town of Mocksville was released this week by Dr. Victor L. Andrews, chairman of the Jaycee committee in charge of this project.

The study was made by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Tennant, architects and town planning specialists of Salisbury. A summary of their report is as follows:

The square is not completely unattractive in itself, but the drop in height and scale in that corner detracts from the square as an entity. (At this stage these particular comments are only for the record, of course, but they might be borne in mind when expansion or rebuilding opportunities present themselves in the future).

A more immediate improvement can be started by (1) reducing and removing untidy street elements, and (2) creating or adding to attractive street amenities. The former includes the design, upkeep and positioning of street names, signs, lighting poles and litter containers which can be controlled by the city. It also involves the necessary measures with regard to billboard and wall-painted advertising, overhanging signs with store and/or trade names, unnecessarily untidy power lines and stays, etc., which require the cooperation of merchants and companies.

All this should be accompanied by a second step which is positive in its approach. The solution to sidewalk levels might become an interesting feature for an instance and detailed suggestions for the central area street-scaping are submitted below and in the plan layout.

Streetscaping There are two treatments of Main Street that could be considered. One is the L'Avenue treatment with tree planting on each side of the road and parking along the sidewalks. This layout exists in part already and requires only some additional trees and sidewalk modifications as shown on the accompanying plan. The arrangement, however, has drawbacks from a street view in that it still leaves an arid expanse of concrete down the middle and the parked cars obstruct store fronts visually, in addition to the problem of placing the trees so that they do not interfere with the sidewalk or store canopies.

In the case of North Main some parking places would have to be given up for tree planting purposes. The alternative scheme mentioned requires more radical changes. However, the two blocks being considered are short and wide and suitable for the layout shown on the adjacent sketch. In this case an island strip is placed down the center of the road and planted with good-sized trees together with a paved walkway. Cars park only against this island and passengers alight on it and walk the short distance to either end to the pedestrian crossing to get to their destination. In this way the sidewalks and store fronts are uncluttered and shaded as required by awnings, and the center of the street is made interesting and shaded by trees which can be seen to their best advantage. This treatment is less frequently observed but is therefore more distinctive and can be attractive and appropriate in rural towns.

Central Square The square is one of Mocksville's finest assets. Unless there are structural dangers or other pertinent reasons it is recommended that the four large oak trees be retained. In spite of the fact that they are leafless in winter, they do give variety to the square throughout the year by reflecting the change of seasons. The layout of the business blocks around the square suggests a semi-formal arrangement for the four islands. The NW and SE corners have the busiest flow of pedestrian traffic since they contain retail stores and the latter has side access to the courthouse. In the islands on both these areas could be paved with interesting pattern of brick or concrete around each tree, and together with some bench seating and planting tubs they could become functional and attractive. In summer they would provide a shady little rest and waiting place for parked passengers, shoppers and so on and would require very little upkeep.

The NE and SW islands would vary this arrangement by reversing the planting to paving proportions. Paving stones would be placed only around the inner curves as required for people alighting from the parking places there. The rest of the area would have massed evergreen planting and shrubs together with some flower beds. In this way the overall scheme would have a logical and balanced layout without being formally symmetrical on either street axis, and seems to meet the general aims for the appearance and atmosphere of the square area.

Sidewalks The main idea for the sidewalks is to treat changes of level and use in a bold, functional and interesting way. The sections for the Duke Power office side of South Main, if parking is retained against the sidewalk, show a clean-cut break between the higher walking level and the stepping out area for cars; the broad coping to the retaining wall could contain planting and places for street signs, and the few steps required could conveniently flank the trees. Grass verges can rarely be effectively maintained adjacent to parking. A more appealing alternate to asphalt strips would be textured or pebble concrete and the ideal would be brick pavers.

Verges make a fine transition physically and aesthetically between the sidewalk and road; by defining the main walkway from the area required for car bumpers, hydrants, signs and plantings, a tidy and pleasing civic street can result. Opposite the courthouse is an unsightly gap with a view through to a rear parking and a large billboard intruding itself on the street scene. An example of how this type of problem can be turned to good effect is shown on the plan with screening and planting set back 15-feet or so, leaving side passages to and from the rear lot, and with the addition of some paving, benches and plant tubs, a useful and pleasant little amenity is gained for the street.

The plans for facade treatment in the central area is designed to obtain the maximum overall effect within a reasonable budget and period of time and no major constructional changes were recommended at this stage. The general recommendations provide, wherever applicable, to clean and or repaint masonry work and copings; remove overhanging signs and advertising; tidy areas between building by removing litter, weeds, etc. and get the tree planting system underway.

The report also has general suggestions and recommendations for the various buildings in the square area. Dr. Andrews said further meetings would be held concerning this study and recommendations and that the plans would be displayed later at the Bank of Drive.

General Character Mocksville is fortunate that it has mostly retained a proper atmosphere of a country town. It has basic assets of a generously laid out central square and main street, some fine trees and some unpretentious but pleasant architecture. Parking facilities appear adequate at present and there are possible areas for additional off-street parking lots if required. There is good grouping of the courthouse, bank and offices which draw a steady flow of traffic to the heart of town. Adjacent stores are of average standard generally and have good potential for additional improvement and development. There is a considerable amount of light industry already in and around the town which is healthy for its economy and future prospects. Visually the town has a percent of the problem prevailing in most cities with regard to overhead power line networks, unsightly advertising, redundant signs and so on. The general building material is brick, with stone or concrete copings and trim. Sidewalks are of concrete with asphalt or grass verges, and have occasional problems with changes of level.

General Aims It would seem desirable for all improvements and development to aim at retaining and enhancing a thriving country town atmosphere. Excessive formality as well as suburban slickness must then be avoided in paving and planting layouts, the treatment of facades and fascias and the design of awnings, canopies, etc. Also, in theory, single story development should not be encouraged in the central business area of a town where something more than a domestic or shopping centre scale of building is called for. Jagged skylines or a gap-toothed effect can destroy the overall effectiveness and dignity of a town block or street. It also happens that, on North Main Street, opposite buildings balance each other at least fairly symmetrically but the exposed upper side elevations are a problem. The southeast one storey block of

September 18 Is Deadline For Dixie Classic Deadline Near For Fair Entries

"September 18 will be here before you know it," reminds Neil Bolton, manager of the Dixie Classic Fair in Winston-Salem October 6-10. "That's the deadline for submitting official entry forms for exhibits."

All Home Demonstration booths have been spoken for, Bolton says. Space is allotted on a first-come, first served basis. Promiums total $740 in this department. The spaces for Community Development Booths have also been spoken for. Because of space limitations, only 14 applications could be accepted. Awards of $1,200 are offered in this division.

Although pens and stalls are still available for sheep and beef and dairy cattle, many spaces for swine have been taken. "We always have lots of fine porkers," he said in reporting on this department, "and we'll again have a top notch display of the finest swine in this section." He added that he expects a last-minute rush of livestock entries. "If you have some championship caliber animals to show, you'd better enter them soon. Last year we had to turn down some entries at the last minute." Premium awards in the Livestock Exposition total $20,400.

Bolton reports a nice flurry of interest in the general Youth Activities including the Market Lamb and Hog shows. "There's still plenty of room for applicants for FFA, FHA, Tobacco Booths and Youth Organization booths. Remember," he added, "in this last category Boy and Girl Scout troops, church classes, schools, etc., are welcome. This is a fine way for youth organizations to get some money for their treasures!"

The Second Annual Horseshoe Pitching Contest is also causing a great deal of comment and receiving a number of entries from all over the area. This category also closes for entries on September 18.

For complete information, rules, premium lists, and the official fair entry forms, write or call Neil Bolton, manager, Dixie Classic Fair, P. O. Box 7515, Reynolda Station, Winston-Salem — phone 723-7361.

BIG GAMUT

Western softwoods range from the rugged Douglas fir, the nation's prime structural lumber, to the dainty, delicately grained Ponderosa and sugar pines which have innumerable uses in construction finishing.

District WSCS To Be Held In Thomasville

The Workshop on Purpose and Program for Thomasville District Woman's Society of Christian Service will be held at First Church, Lexington, on next Sunday afternoon, Sept. 13, from 2:30 until 5 o'clock.

Registration begins at 2 o'clock and the program will begin promptly at 2:30.

This is the meeting formerly known as the Seminar and Officers' Training Day, but it is being conducted differently this year in line with the changes now in effect in the new quadrennial pattern of Woman's Society work.

It is most important that the officers and all local societies attend, and particularly those who serve on the program committee. Structural changes in the total program of our work, new by-laws, new duties of officers, etc., will be discussed, as well as the presentation of mission study courses for the year.

This will be a great opportunity for learning, and for the strengthening of our work in the local churches. Ministers and their wives are invited to attend, and it is earnestly hoped that each society in the county will be represented.

Church Activities

Bear Creek
The regular meeting of the Bear Creek Baptist Church Woman's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Tobithia York, Tuesday night.

New officers were elected as follows: Mrs. D. S. Ratledge, president; Mrs. Cedric Smoot, vice president; Mrs. Stacy Beck, secretary; Mrs. L. G. Wallace, treasurer; Mrs. Tobithia York, assistant treasurer;

Mrs. Glenn Reavis, program chairman; Mrs. Bruce Beck, assistant program chairman; Mrs. L. G. Wallace, Mrs. Grover Elmore, and Mrs. Tobithia York, Community Missions; Mrs. Harold Rollins, Mission Study chairman; Mrs. Edward Beck, assistant; Mrs. Dallas Hutchins, Prayer chairman; Mrs. Joe Harpe, assistant.

After other business, Mrs. Ratledge conducted the program; Mrs. York served refreshments to the members present.

ADVANCE BAPTIST
Homecoming will be held at Advance Baptist Church Sunday, Sept. 13. Local people are asked to contribute the picnic dinner to be served at noon. Dr. W. R. Wagoner, superintendent of the Baptist Children's Homes in North Carolina, will be the featured speaker at the 11 a.m. service. The customary afternoon song service will be omitted unless sufficient interest is shown at the noon hour to justify having it. The public is invited to attend.

M.D.I. Is Expanding

Merchants Distributors, Inc., of Hickory, will celebrate its 33rd anniversary and the opening of a 50,000-square-foot addition to its warehouse with a Giant Food and Specialty Show, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 12 and 13. Heffner's Land of Food is a member of this organization.

Projected volume for 1964 is $40,000,000. This should result in retail sales of about $50,000,000.

MDI specializes in serving the independent food market and is equipped to supply every need of the modern super market. An inventory of over 11,000 items is carried by MDI.

All well-known national brands are stocked by MDI, and it also features several company brands, including MDI milk, mayonnaise, coffee, dog food liquid detergent and powder detergent. A company spokesman said the demand for MDI milk and detergents is especially great in the Carolinas.

Miss Josephine George, sister of Lee and Alex George, serves as secretary-treasurer of MDI, and the aggressive sales force is headed by Guy Stevenson, sales and promotion manager.

EVERYBODY
One thing which makes western softwoods so popular with every weekend carpenter is the ease with which they can be sawed, planed, chiseled, sanded and finished into beautiful objects.

BETTER LIVING
Lowest cost living area on a side-hill lot is a deck extended out from the downhill side of the home at living room level. Sturdy deck timbers of Douglas fir create inexpensive living area for the outdoor time of the year.

GOOD GRAIN
The beauty of a beautiful piece of lumber comes from its incomparable grain which develops from the annual rings. When the log is sawn, the annual rings create a pattern of lovely beauty.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE
There are 500 MDI member stores in the two Carolinas in an area extending from Raleigh East to Murphy and from the Virginia line South into upper South Carolina.

The corporation operates a fleet of 50 tractors and trailers, has 30 company-owned cars in operation, and employs 280 persons.

When Alex George, now MDI president, joined their father, the late Moses George, in a small wholesale produce business, known as Merchants Produce Company in 1931, the embryonic business had only 5,000 square feet of warehouse space, three trucks, and twelve employees. The company did a business of about $250,000 a year.

All Through the Night and all through the day you can forget home heating worries when you heat with fuel oil. For you know that oil heat is the safest possible system to heat your house. Fuel oil is a stable fuel . . . non-explosive . . . has no hazardous fumes or odors. You can even put out a match in it. With oil heat you're secure in the knowledge that there are no explosive fumes or imbedded hot wiring to threaten your family's safety.

When it comes to home heating safety—

Oil Heat has the answers— other systems have a lot to learn

Fair Sets Teen Cook Contest

The Dixie Classic Fair has announced plans for a special recognition ceremony and contest for the Winston-Salem Journal's Teen Cook of the week from May 16 through September 12 of this year.

The contestants, selected weekly by Beth Tartan, the Journal's Home Economist, have been invited by Neil Bolton, fair manager, to participate in its Teen Cook Contest in the Coliseum on Friday, October 9, beginning at 4 p. m. All contestants will be introduced by the master of ceremonies, Jack White, assistant to the president of Salem College and Academy. White is chairman of the fair's Youth Activities Division.

All contestants will receive gifts, including special pot holders. Girls will be given charms; boys, cuff links. Winner will be designated "Champion Teen Cook of Northwest North Carolina" and will be awarded an electric party grill and chef's crown. First runner-up will receive an electric portable mixer; second runner-up, an electric potato server; third runner-up, an electric corn popper.

Contestants are being asked to submit a 100-word essay entitled "Why I Enjoy Cooking". They will also be asked to submit the recipe for their cooking entry and to bring their entry to the fair for part of the judging. In addition, they will be asked several questions during the contest. Judging will be by a team of qualified judges on a point system, covering the essay, the cooked or baked product, and their answers to the questions.

Bolton explained that all Teen Cooks selected by Beth Tartan through September 12 will be invited to participate in the fair's contest. When announcing the contest, Bolton added that cooks for September 5 and 12, yet to be selected, would also be asked. The list up to August 29 includes from Winston-Salem: Elizabeth Gregg, Mae Jordan, Donna Mayberry, Dane Shipley, Betty Jean Farley, Allison and Paul Williams, Ginnie Barber, Brent Russell, and Valerie Denise Matty. Others include Alex Sink, M. L. Airy; Larry Sale, Ronny White, and Lorene Parsons, North Wilkesboro; Susan Carter, Harmony; Anna Berrie, Lexington; and Danny Whitman, Pfafftown.

Social Security In Davie County

Benefits based on work for the railroad are ordinarily paid by the Railroad Retirement Board instead of the Social Security Administration. However, if you have less than 120 months of railroad service when you retire or become disabled, your earnings for railroad work after 1936 are considered in figuring your disability or old-age payments under the Social Security law.

Earnings for railroad work are reported to the Railroad Retirement Board and not to the Social Security Administration. Your Social Security record will not include earnings for any work you may have done for a railroad.

A retired worker who has at least 120 months of railroad service and who has also done enough work under Social Security to qualify for Social Security payments may receive retirement benefits under both the railroad retirement and old-age, survivors, and disability insurance systems.

Survivors of a worker can be entitled under one system only, even though the worker may have been entitled during his lifetime under both. Regardless of which program will pay the benefits, records of the deceased worker's railroad earnings after 1936 and his earnings under social security will be combined to determine whether he is insured and the amount of any payments to survivors.

Railroad workers or their survivors may get further information from the nearest Social Security or Railroad Retirement Office, or they may write to the local Social Security Office, 105 Corriher Avenue, Salisbury, N. C., or the railroad Retirement Board, 844 Rush St., Chicago, Illinois.

One of the most important things man works for is security, both now and in the future. The Social Security Administration would like to remind you that your social security benefits are one important aspect of your future security. Social Security benefits are payable at age 62, at death, or upon disability, if you qualify. The social security tax you pay now is a firm basis for building a way of life in the future for you or your family when income is stopped or reduced due to old-age, death, or disability.

To be sure you will get everything you are entitled to under social security, visit or telephone your local social security office and ask for Form OAR-7004, "Request for Statement of Earnings." Send in the form, and you will receive a record of the earnings credited to your social security account. Then check your own records to see that they agree. If not, get in touch with your social security office to see about having the corrections made.

Remember it is important that you start to plan now for that time when every day becomes a Labor Day Holiday.

Needed For the Downtown Area—

The Redevelopment Proposal

There is much merit and potentialities in the study now being conducted on the downtown redevelopment of Mocksville.

Certainly no one denies that some redevelopment is urgently needed in our downtown area . . . but also just as certain is the existence of divergence of opinions on what is needed and how to go about it.

The Mocksville Junior Chamber of Commerce pointed the way with the initiation of a study. Added by interested businesses of the area the Jaycees employed Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Tennant, architects of Salisbury to make a study and submit recommendations. Mr. and Mrs. Tennant are specialists in community planning and have worked in this capacity in the redevelopment of Main Street in Salisbury and other cities.

The first phase of this study of redevelopment has been completed and the overall general reported compiled. This was presented at a special meeting last week and a followup meeting was held Friday night.

The redevelopment being proposed involves renovation of existing buildings . . . certain changes and improvements in the square, streets, sidewalks . . . signs . . . plots, etc. All such changes would be carried out along a central theme or motif.

In order to accomplish such a program several things are mandatory: (1) There must be the mutual desire on the part of all concerned for carving out such a program; (2) There must be to some extent . . . general mutual agreement on what is planned to be accomplished; (3) There must be the willingness to provide the financial backing necessary to carry out the proposals.

The promotion of any redevelopment program is a challenge. It is a challenge to foresight . . . the desire to go forward . . . and the desire to want the best. All this is indicative of community interest and pride . . . and if carried out will certainly shoot the Town of Mocksville many strides ahead of many contemporaries.

Survey Of County Budgets Are Made—

Demands for County Services Increase

The North Carolina Association of County Commissioners in its annual survey of county budgets for the fiscal year 1964-65 has found that 1964 tax rate changes reflect the continually increasing demands for more county services. In the new 64-65 budgets, 26 counties have increased their property tax rates, 12 have had a revaluation leading to a higher levy, 51 have held their rate stationary but received more revenue from a large tax base, and 11 counties have decreased their rate, usually due to an increase in valuations or an increase in other revenue.

Final budget figures for all 100 North Carolina counties indicate that increased appropriations for public education are the primary cause of increased county expenditures. As has been the rule in the last several years more than 80% of all property tax increases can be attributed in large measure to greater school needs. This year with the rapidly growing community college system beginning to become a part of county budgets, the emphasis on education has been even more pronounced. 90% of the counties with a rate increase attributed it in whole or in part to greater local support of public education.

With the continued implementation of the 1959 property revaluation act, the property tax base is rapidly being made more equitable. All counties scheduled to revalue under the periodic schedule enacted by the General Assembly have done so, and several counties have finished revaluation prior to the scheduled time. Since the enactment of the revaluation measure, 52 counties have undergone revaluation in accordance with its provisions.

As the revaluation process continues the tax range among the counties is slowly narrowing. For the 64-65 fiscal year, five counties have a rate of more than $2, three less than last year; and eight have rates under $1, four less than last year. 48 counties have a total rate between $1 and $1.49, eight more than last year; and 30 report rates of between $1.50 and $1.99, one less than last year.

For those counties with rate changes, the highest rate increase this year was 45 cents. Three counties had an increase between 25 and 30 cents, and two counties had an increase between 20 and 24 cents. Seven counties had an increase between 10 and 15 cents; eight counties had an increase between 5 and 9 cents; and five counties had an increase of less than a nickel.

Rate reductions were experienced in 23 counties. As previously indicated, revaluation was the cause of the reduction in 12 counties, with the larger tax base allowing a rate reduction. Reductions ranged from 7 cents to 95 cents, with a 35-cent average reduction. Eleven counties experienced a rate reduction for other reasons, including five counties which had a sharp increase in assessed valuations, four which had surplus funds available allowing a rate increase, two which opened ABC stores, and two which had minor reductions for miscellaneous reasons.

STATEMENT OF WEEK

Statement of the week by Bradbury K. Thurlow, vice-president and treasurer of the New York Stock Exchange firm of Winslow, Cohn and Stetson:

"Senator Goldwater leans far more strongly toward laissez faire economic views than any major presidential candidate in a generation . . . the stock market has gradually acclimatized itself to full acceptance of a strong centralized government with liberal political views and freespending tendencies. The present price-level of leading, high-grade common stocks is based on the assumption that the federal government can and will prevent even a mild recession from occurring and that it will not stop at inflationary measures to further these aims."

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: Me and my old lady, as they say in the papers, "observed" our 45th wedding anniversary last week. We "observed" it just like the other 44, by getting up and starting the morning chores.

We've got along pritty good all through the years, comparative speaking. Fer instance, I was reading where a feller in Denver didn't like the way his wife cooked his eggs fer breakfast, so he throwed 'em in her face. Whereupon she whammed him over the head with the frying pan. That's a mighty pore way fer a married couple to start off the day. I learned 45 year ago that if I didn't like my old lady's cooking, to eat it with gusto, as they say on the society pages.

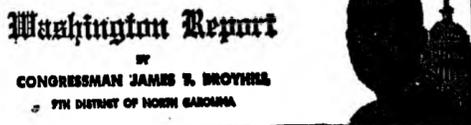

I also learned along about 45 year ago they ain't no percentage in a feller arguing with his wife. As the old saying goes, you can come up with a ton of logic and she'll beat you ever time with a ounce of tears. And I ain't never been a feller, Mister Editor, to challenge the impossible. My old lady does the talking at my house and I do the listening and I've found this to be a mighty peaceful arrangement. I recommend this system high fer married couples that ain't gitting along too good.

Incidental, family life has changed a heap since I was a boy. I'm always reading in the papers where some baby-setter has kidnapped a young'un or has got murdered or somepun. I was 50 year old afore I ever heard tell of a baby-setter. When I was a young'un the baby-setter was the next oldest child. We had a step ladder system in the family, and they was always a baby-setter from about the 6th year of marriage up till the 26th. And when I was a boy the father used his belt to hold his pants up and his kids down. Time has changed. So has the kids.

Moving on to bigger things, I see by the papers where the Democrats and the Republicans was to the point in the campaign where they was accusing each other of stealing sheep. Both sides is peracting a depression if the other side wins. If a depression comes, I hope the Lord will take care of the rich. The pore knows how to take care of their selves.

They was two things you can perdict fer shore in politics. When candidates on both sides git in the farm country they always blame the farm program on the other party, and when they git in the cities both takes credit for the big prosperity in the nation. And second, if you see some feller walking down the highway with a bundle on his back, the "outs" has won the election and the "ins" was coming home from the public trough. In November I aim to watch the highways. It's faster than gitting the returns on T. V.

Yours truly, Uncle Dave

Washington Report

CONGRESSMAN JAMES F. BROTHIEK 7TH DISTRICT OF NORTH CAROLINA

RUSH BOGS DOWN
The rush toward adjournment that was so feverish several weeks ago has bogged down and Congress remains in Washington. Last week, the legislative picture in the House became increasingly hard to predict. For instance, the Appalachia program which has been ready for debate for some time was nowhere to be seen when last week's schedule was announced. It was suddenly pushed into the schedule on Monday, only to be withdrawn just as suddenly a day or so later. It was the consensus that opposition to the regional plan is mounting as other parts of the country such as the Ozark Mountain areas and the Upper Lakes Region believe their economic problems require special attention, too.

In the Senate, the medical care amendments to the Social Security bill have flashed major debate that will continue hotly for several weeks. The House Post Office and the Western Union office on Capitol Hill are bulging with messages for and against this plan already and the debate has just begun in the House.

Some Chairmen had already announced that their Committees would hold no more meetings this year. However, as the session lengthens out, there are second thoughts about this. One example is the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee which is holding legislation including one bill to grant a 5% increase to retired Federal employees. These bills may now be considered.

DEBTS OF THE U. N.
In recent days, this Congress has gone on record with what most Americans feel is an essential factor for the future functioning of the United Nations. Despite the obligations that every country assumed when it joined the world organization, there are some countries which refuse to pay their share of the U. N. cost. The financial crisis has deepened and it is time that the provisions of the U. N. Charter be vigorously enforced.

The principal offenders are the Soviet Union and her European communist satellites who refuse to pay their obligations for the U. N. peace-keeping operations in the Middle East and the Congo. Apparently, it is not in the interest of the communists to keep the peace in those areas since their own complicated designs for aggression are not served by these operations.

Article 19 of the United Nations Charter provides that member countries are required to pay their just obligations and goes farther to give authority to deny voting rights in the General Assembly to those who will not comply. Fifteen countries, including the Soviet Union, face that possibility next November. Two years ago, this country bailed out the U. N. Since then, the problem has grown worse. It is certainly high time that we, as the largest contributor to the organization, make it plain that obligations are to be met or those refusing to pay can take the consequences.

TAXI REPORT . . . A friend of ours maintains that he can talk with a few taxi-drivers in any given city a few weeks prior to an election and come closer than most of the formal pollsters to predicting who the winners will be.

Cables, he says, talk to a lot of people in a day's time, have time to do a whole lot of reading, know the tenor of the times. They don't miss it often.

As of this past week, the taxi boys in New York City were saying Robert F. Kennedy will defeat Senator Keating, Republican, without much trouble. And, the fact that Kennedy is a resident of Massachusetts will not make much difference. Age seems to be hurting Keating. The Gov. Rockefeller situation is also pointed to as a damaging factor.

Well, four years ago the cabbies in that Gotham-on-the-Hudson put John F. Kennedy over Richard Nixon. That's how it turned out. However, the Kennedy-Keating contest seems to us even more difficult to forecast.

ATTENTION . . . The work of Gov. Terry Sanford's Good Neighbor Council is apparently attracting broad attention throughout the nation.

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "All but God is changing day by day" - Charles Kingsley.

A young atheist passed a Christian-church—following—a special Christmas service. Stepping up to the minister who stood at the door, he said, "Say, preacher, what kind of a show are you putting on?" The minister was silent a moment, and then replied, "It's not a bad one. It has been running for 2,000 years."

Are there free people anywhere without a basic belief in God? Freedom, the rights to life and liberty, are endowed by the Creator, not by the State. That spiritual fact is so often overlooked in our consideration of government that we put dependence where it does not belong. Government did not make us free.

It was the spiritual that stimulated man to seek freedom. It was the spiritual that enabled them to endure to win freedom. It was the spiritual that inspired men to develop a code under which men could live in freedom.

When all that man has crumbles, it is spiritual that will provide the only refuge from which new life can emerge. Man's experiences for at least 2,000 years have proved that. Do you know a more satisfying and sure foundation for your life?

WASHINGTON — When Congress reconvened on August 31, the legislative calendar found action complete on most Presidential requests. Of those remaining, however, three presented highly controversial issues, each a bar to adjournment. These were: the perennial controversy over the foreign aid program, a rider to this bill which is known as the Mansfield-Dirksen proposal to grant "stays of Federal court orders" at the request of State legislative bodies facing reapportionment problems, and a medical care plan that has since been attached to the Senate version of the House-passed social security amendment bill.

Legislative battles have arisen over each of these questions. But if these issues have formed a hurdle for adjournment, appropriation bills have moved along much more rapidly than last year. Only one regular and one supplemental appropriation bill require further action. These are the foreign aid appropriation and the catchall supplemental appropriation for agencies showing emergency needs not provided in the regular appropriation measures. The eleven regular and four supplemental and disaster appropriation bills which have cleared both houses provide funds totaling $9.7 billion for the fiscal year 1965. Foreign aid, when acted upon, will complete the regular appropriations calendar. The Senate has been de-

D. S. Coltrane, who has guided its destiny since the beginning, is getting requests to talk to this or that group in various parts of the country.

His most recent invitation—as yet unaccepted by him—is to speak to a group of business men from the Southeast meeting in Charleston, S. C., the middle of November.

While it is true that ultra-rich Capus Waynick of High Point manages to get most of the headlines, the basic work of the Good Neighbor Council is apparently being done by David S. Coltrane.

A widely read magazine had a reporter interviewing Coltrane on Sept. 8 preparing an article for publication early this fall.

OLD ONES GOING . . . Despite all the efforts of science and tree-lovers, the fine old giants around the Legislative Building are one-by-one taking their departure. The young, tender saplings now reign supreme. They gave the new structure a lot of majesty, their old gray limbs contrasting with the gleaming white slabs of marble. What is killing them, we wouldn't know. Perhaps the strange surroundings. Their old friends — buildings born about the same time they were—have long since gone.

It isn't as if we have not given these fine trees our best attention. They were virtually manicured months ago, tooth and toenail, but the deep soil about them has been pushed, pulled, shaken, taken out and put back again. Those roots suffered. You can do a lot with a plant above the ground, even as with people, but disturb too much the deep, inner being and death follows.

A SECOND HOUSE? . . . How would it be if North Carolina provided its 11. Governor with an official residence as it does its chief executive?

Don't laugh, we may come to it. Robert Scott, Democratic nominee for the No. 2 spot, has already said that the Lieutenant Governor should be given new stature. That is, he made clear, should be of more assistance to the Governor. Then, a few days ago, President L. B. Johnson said he wanted the Vice President in his administration to have more power and influence, with a special office in the White House.

In Washington this summer there is new talk of Uncle Sam's providing for its Vice President an official residence. This is a far cry from the five-cent cigar idea we have so long attached to the Vice Presidency.

In an editorial last week entitled "Little White House," the Washington Post said: ". . . Any number of Presidents have urged the establishment of an official vice presidential mansion, befitting the obligations and stature of the Nation's No. 2, executive. President Eisenhower was the last to do so, although rather weakly, in 1957. Now President Johnson reportedly has developed a somewhat keener interest—extending, in fact, to the point of actually having checked on a number of possible locations. "We trust—if he should be re-elected in November—that Mr. Johnson will not let the subject drop. The proposal, in our opinion, always has had merit. But the arguments in favor of it have been strengthened over the years by the steadily increasing responsibilities assumed by the Vice President . . ."

NOTES . . . There are two "unity" groups going in North Carolina now. One is walking under the banner of Dr. I. B. Lake. The other has Richardson Preyer as its guiding personality. The sad fact is that these unity things only emphasize the dis-unity in the Democratic Party.

—Both Bob Gavin and Barry Goldwater got their campaigns off to a flying start last week. Goldwater opened up by lambasting the draft . . . while Gavin took a jaundiced eye at the food tax.

—Although there is real, deep down worry in official circles here about our record breaking traffic deaths, there is nothing in the works to indicate any changes whatever in the age limits . . . However, keep an eye on auto inspection . . . as the idea seems to be gaining new strength.

—Reports coming out of Washington are that President Johnson will keep with him—present plans, anyway—Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges and White House Aide Henry Hall Wilson. —The big Consumer Conference—hot Democratic election stuff—coming to Atlanta in October—is being planned by Mrs. May Thompson Evans. Democratic career woman and N. C. native.

Now Playing At Tanglewood Theatre—

'Night Must Fall'... A Chiller!

Tension and suspense are the exciting keynotes in Emlyn Williams classic thriller, "Night Must Fall".

"Night Must Fall", the greatest chiller of the stage, plays through September 9th at the Tanglewood Barn Theatre.

There are many things which can be said about a play such as "Night Must Fall", for it is really like no other play.

And there is humor in "Night Must Fall" - quite a change from the solemn procession of ghastly events which are found in most melodramas.

"Night Must Fall", aside from its incidental superiorities as a play, is considered the foremost drama of its own special genre.

One critic said of "Night Must Fall": "It is a new exciting, sometimes terrifying, jaunt through the thickets of murder and mystery."

The human heartbeat, or "cardiac cycle," takes about 0.85 second, says the North Carolina Heart Association.

flinching murder-escapade of the modern stage.

Robert Kalfin will direct this production which will play nightly through Sunday, September 13.

"Night Must Fall" is the twelfth production of the Tanglewood Barn Theatre's seventh season.

Coffee is served in the Green Room immediately after each show, and the audience is sincerely invited to visit backstage.

Capt. Alton Sheek Visits Indian Pueblo

Captain Alton J. Sheek of Route 3, Mocksville, visited Santo Domingo, the world's largest Indian pueblo, located north of Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Inside the pueblo he saw where 1,800 Indians practice the beliefs and rituals observed by their forefathers long before Columbus discovered America.

Captain Sheek spent last weekend with Brack Bailey of Advance who is playing professional baseball with the Albuquerque Dukes.

The human heartbeat, or "cardiac cycle," takes about 0.85 second, says the North Carolina Heart Association.

FUNERALS

JAMES DAVID BARNES, 74. Funeral services for James David Barnes, 74, of Advance, Rt. 2, were held Friday afternoon at Bailey's Chapel Methodist Church.

Mr. Barnes died Sept. 2 at the home of a son, Coy Barnes of Advance Rt. 2, where he made his home.

Surviving in addition to Coy Barnes are six other sons, Homer Barnes of Advance, Rt. 1, Howard, Green, James and Thomas Barnes, all of Advance, Rt. 2; three daughters, Mrs. J. H. Platt of Advance, Rt. 1, Mrs. Algie McCarter of Trinity, Rt. 1, and Mrs. Elbert Hardman of Winston-Salem; 25 grandchildren, 15 great grandchildren and his step-mother, Mrs. Nettie Barnes of Thomasville.

D. K. McCLAMROCK, 69. Funeral services for Duke Kimbrough McClamrock, 69, of 183 23rd Street NW, Hickory, were held Friday afternoon at the Hickory Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. J. B. Golden officiating.

Mr. McClamrock, a native of Davie County and former operator of the McClamrock Seed Company in Mocksville, died Sept. 2 at his home in Hickory after an illness of a month.

He was born in Davie County to David DeWitt McClamrock and Louise Etchison McClamrock. He was a member of Farmington Masonic Lodge 285.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Darnell McClamrock; a son, Bill McClamrock of Hickory; a brother, Edward McClamrock of Mocksville; and four sisters, Mrs. R. W. Lakey of Farmington, Mrs. Velma Woodward of Cana and Mrs. Joe Foster and Mrs. Auburn Gentry, both of Mocksville.

William B. Foster, 74. Funeral services for William Booe Foster, 74, of 2221 Westfield Avenue, Winston-Salem were held Tuesday afternoon at Voglers Chapel, Dr. J. C. Hughes officiated.

Mr. Foster died Sunday afternoon at the Veterans Hospital at Oteen. He had been seriously ill for four days.

He was born Dec. 8, 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Foster in Davie County and spent his early life there.

He served in World War I and moved to Winston-Salem 45 years ago. He was employed by Frank Blum Construction Co. as superintendent. He was a member of the VFW and Home Moravian Church.

Surviving are his wife; three brothers, Edgar Foster of Winston-Salem, Sam Foster and Craig Foster both of Mocksville; two sisters, Mrs. Grady Sain of Mocksville and Mrs. Ola Poole of Lexington.

William B. Barbee Enlists In U.S. Navy

William Brady Barbee, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Barbee of Route 1, Mocksville, has enlisted in the United States Navy and was transferred to the U. S. Naval Training Center at Great Lakes, Ill., for recruit training.

Prior to his enlistment in the Navy, Barbee attended Davie High School. Chief Petty Officer Barnette invites anyone interested in the Navy to contact him at the local Navy Recruiting Office located in the Post Office Building.

County Farm Agent LEO F. WILLIAMS

A state-wide program to encourage tobacco farmers to cut tobacco stalks and plow out and destroy the old root system is under way in North Carolina.

This is a good year for tobacco farmers to continue, or to start this practice of destroying tobacco stubbles, and plowing out stubbles to reduce the incidence of several disease and insect pests, including mosaic, nematodes, brown spot, hornworms, budworms, and fleabeetles.

The full effectiveness of such a program in terms of reducing losses to both disease and certain insect pests is realized only when the job is complete—100 per cent participation of all farmers growing tobacco.

ON PREPLANTING NITROGEN FOR SMALL GRAINS ON HEAVY TEXTURED SOILS. Whether or not to apply all of the nitrogen needs of small grain when it is seeded is a question that concerns many farmers at this time of year.

According to him experiment station research has shown this to be a good practice on "heavy" type soils but not sands or sandy loams. For example, on three heavy textured soils in the Piedmont region of North Carolina, the oat yield was 71 bushels per acre for fall applied nitrogen and 69 bushels for spring applied nitrogen.

Williams states that Dr. Howard Small, Soybean and Small Grain Extension Specialist, and Dr. Jack Baird, Soil Fertility Extension Specialist, as well as Soil Testing Agronomist, Dr. G. D. McCart, strongly endorse applying all of the nitrogen in the fall for small grain grown on heavy textured soils.

Convenience of applying all of the nitrogen in the fall is that frequently all of the fertilizer can be applied with one application. For example, 50 lbs. of nitrogen, 50 lbs. of phosphorus and 50 lbs. of potash per acre can be applied with a broadcast or drill application of 500 lbs. of 10-10-10 per acre.

Williams strongly recommends that you have your soils tested to determine the lime, phosphorus and potash needs of your small grain soils.

Your county agricultural agent can be contacted by calling 634-5124 or writing Box 526, Mocksville, N. C.

TOWN OF MOCKSVILLE NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Pursuant to the authority vested in the Town Commission by the Zoning Ordinance of the Town of Mocksville adopted July 11, 1961, and North Carolina General Statutes, Chapter 160, Article 14, the said Town Commission will sit concurrently with the Planning Board at a public hearing at the Town Hall on September 15, 1964, at 7:30 P.M. to consider the following changes and amendments to the zoning ordinance:

1. To rezone from R-15 to R-6 the following described property:

Beginning at a point in Hospital Street the S.W. Corner of the Davie County Memorial Hospital Lot and being the S.E. corner of the Eastern District of the North Carolina Wesleyan Methodist Conference Lot, runs thence Northwardly with the western edge of said Hospital Lot to a point, a common corner for the said Methodist Church Lot and the said Hospital Lot in the H. C. Meroney line; thence Westwardly to the Meroney line to a branch; thence Southwardly with the branch to Hospital Street; thence Eastwardly with Hospital Street to the place of Beginning.

Before taking such lawful action as it may deem advisable, the Town Commission shall consider all recommendations from any citizen presented on the above proposed Zoning Amendment.

In case, however, of a protest against such changes signed by owners of twenty (20%) per cent or more either of the area of the lot included in such proposed change or of those immediately adjacent to the rear thereof extending one hundred (100) feet from the street frontage of such opposite lots, such amendments shall not become effective except by favorable vote of three-fourths (¾) of all members of the legislative body of such municipality. 9 3 2tn

The Senior High Sunday School will sponsor a lawn party on Saturday, Sept. 19 from 4:30-7:30 p.m. in the pavillion. Hot dogs, hamburgers, homemade ice cream and iced drinks will be served. No charge will be made but donations will be accepted. The public is invited to attend.

Saturday, Sept. 12, at 8 o'clock will be a work day at Macedonia on the pavillion in preparation for the annual chicken stew to be held in October. Any man that desires to help is invited to come.

Macedonia community would like to express sympathy to the J. H. Platt family in the passing of their loved one.

Ronnie Hendrix will resume his junior studies at Wake Forest College in a few weeks.

Lee Sapp was a dinner guest of Ricky Fry Sunday.

Twelve people were received into the communicant membership of Macedonia Moravian Church by adult baptism Sunday morning. One was received by transfer of letter and two babies received infant baptism.

Butch Sheek left Tuesday for Bob Jones University, Greenville, S. C., where he will enroll as a freshman. Mondell Ellis left Tuesday for ASTC, Boone, to resume his sophomore studies.

Visitors at Macedonia parsonage Sunday were: Mrs. Nancy Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Brown and Mrs. Milzi Sapp and son, Lane.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cope and family visited Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Tuttle Sunday on Route 2, Clemmons. Mr. Tuttle is sick at his home.

Mary Howard, daughter of Tom Howard, entered Lynn Haven Nursing Home last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cope celebrated their 21st wedding anniversary Wednesday.

Mrs. Thurmond Hockaday returned to her home Sunday from Forsyth Memorial Hospital where she has been a patient.

The Rev. George Bruner and Ray Flaneline visited Paul Foster Saturday. They were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Sparks Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Todd and family and Mr. and Mrs. John Sparks enjoyed a cook-out Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Sparks and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lee observed their 18th wedding anniversary on September 7.

Pfc. John Carpenter Serving In Marines

Marine Private First Class John E. Carpenter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Collie C. Carpenter of Route 1, Advance, is a member of Marine Battalion Landing Team 2/2 conducting training operations in the Caribbean. The team is participating in various sea assault landing operations designed to increase its combat readiness.

He recently visited Kingston, Jamaica, during a break in the training.

Operation R6P (Reduce 6 Tobacco Pests)

Tobacco growers have an immediate opportunity to cut disease and insect losses for next year. B. G. Westbrook, Associate Agricultural Extension Agent, says growers can reduce at least three different diseases and three different insects in 1965 by cutting their old tobacco stalks and plowing out the stubbles immediately after harvest.

The diseases are mosaic, brown spot and nematodes; and the insects are hornworms, budworms and flea beetles.

Westbrook said he was particularly anxious for growers to do everything possible to combat mosaic losses.

"Statewide, mosaic losses doubled from 1963 to 1964," Westbrook said. "They climbed from $1 million to $2 million. Locally, the losses have increased in the last few years."

Westbrook explained that mosaic is caused by a highly contagious virus which spreads by mere contact. It is believed that this virus overwinters in the soil on undecayed tobacco roots, stalks and stems.

Therefore, farmers can reduce the virus by making sure that all of their old tobacco stalks rot as quickly as possible. To make sure the stalks will rot, they need to be destroyed as soon after harvest as possible.

Once cold weather sets in, the decaying process slows down or stops. Stalks which have not fully decayed will help the mosaic virus survive the winter. The pest will then be ready to hit the new crop early in the spring.

Westbrook said it was this early virus infestation that causes so much damage. Research has shown that about one-fourth of a tobacco crop can be destroyed by mosaic which strikes just after transplanting. Only about 3 per cent is destroyed if the tobacco becomes infected at topping time.

Westbrook stressed that the old stalks should be cut as finely as possible — a rotary cutter does a good job — so they will decay rapidly.

YADKIN VALLEY

By MRS. JOE LANGSTON

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller of Maryland spent Labor Day holiday with Mr. and Mrs. M. F. James and other relatives in the area.

Mrs. Albert Foster of the Bethlehem Community has been a patient at the Davie County Hospital for about a month. She underwent surgery last week and was in serious condition, but seemed a little improved on Sunday.

Prayer meetings are being resumed at Yadkin Valley Church. The meetings will be held on Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Preparations are underway for the homecoming on the third Sunday of October. Rev. J. G. Bruner will be the guest speaker on Sunday morning. The following week revival services will be held with Rev. Claxton Hall of Clemmons, as guest speaker.

Mrs. Albert Howard expects to return home this week from Davie County Hospital where she has been a patient for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred White attended the White Family reunion on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse King visited Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Smith on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cope are moving into their new home on Spillman Road. She's thinking of keeping the old home as a refuge for wives when they get mad with their husbands at least that's what she said. Better see her to make reservations.

The Young People of Yadkin Valley Church conducted Sunday School opening services on Sunday morning. The devotional was in charge of Janice Douthit and several others taking part. The music by Nancy Langston and Mitchell Matthews at the piano and organ. A solo by Linda Marshall. It was very inspiring to see this large group of young people taking part in something so worthwhile. In them lies the hope of the future.

Town of Mocksville Awarded $13,185 In Powell Bill Funds

The allocation of $13,185.87 in Powell Bill Funds to the Town of Mocksville was announced this week by the State Highway Commission. The Town of Mocksville is one of 420 participating municipalities to share in the total allocation of $8,324,555.39 in Powell Bill Funds.

The Powell Bill Funds are distributed annually to qualified cities and towns for use in non-highway system street work within their corporate limits. Checks to the individual municipalities will be mailed from Raleigh the latter part of this month in order that they will reach municipalities by October 1st.

Powell Bill allocations are based on a formula using the population and street mileage in the municipalities and the total allocation this year represents an increase over 1963 of $246,323.39. For Mocksville, this is an increase of $145.84 over last year when it received $13,040.

The $13,185.87 being sent to Mocksville is based on a population increment of $5,177.50, based on the 1960 census of 2,378, and a mileage increment of $8,008.17, based on 16.79 certified non-system miles.

The six largest allocations this year are: Charlotte, $751,360.92; Greensboro, $500,644.80; Winston-Salem, $447,937.58; Raleigh, $353,184.35; Asheville, $294,378.81; and Durham, $278,719.41.

The six smaller allocations this year are: Falkland in Pitt County, $328.54; Bear Creek in Martin County, $486.49; LaSalle in Northampton, $573.77; McDonalds in Robeson County, $610.73; Harrelsville in Hertford County, $694.43; and Brunswick in Brunswick County, $725.52.

In the 14 years of Powell Bill allocations, a total of $90,200,561.36 has been distributed, and the group of participating municipalities has grown from 396 to 420.

Buses Will Go To Goldwater Rally

Senator Barry M. Goldwater, Republican presidential candidate, will hold a major rally of this campaign in the Charlotte Coliseum next Monday evening, Sept. 21. H. R. Hendrix, Jr., chairman of the Davie County Republican Executive Committee, has announced that arrangements have been made to have buses available to carry anyone interested in attending this rally.

Buses will be leaving the Davie County Courthouse at 5:15 P.M. and 5:45 P.M. Anyone wishing to go to this important rally by bus should make reservations with either Mr. Hendrix, Kermit Smith, Glenn L. Hammer, John Brock or Bill Hall. Mr. Hendrix says that he hopes that many members of both parties will attend this rally.

Rebels Lose To West Forsyth

Davie Vs. Chase Here Friday

The Davie County Rebels will seek to bounce back on the winning trail Friday night when they play the Chase High Trojans at the local stadium. Kickoff time is 8 p. m. Chase is a consolidated High School located at Forest City, N. C.

Last Friday night the Rebels bowed to West Forsyth 26 to 19 in a close and hard fought game. West rallied from behind in the fourth quarter for two touchdowns to gain the victory.

The Rebels gained a 19-13 lead in a wild first half that was marked by long runs, blocked punt and a stout defense.

West trailing in the final quarter, got a break when Donnie Stewart recovered a fumbled punt on the Davie County 17. Steve Etchison smashed across from the one to tie the score and then kicked the extra point that put his team in front.

They iced the game a few minutes later, intercepting a pass and a few plays later Steve Harper broke through for 47 yards to score.

West Forsyth scored first on a 55-yard punt return by Jerry Smith. Their try for extra point failed.

Ronnie Spry broke through and blocked a West Forsyth punt, which was picked up and advanced by back. A few plays later Nayrex Barnhardt plunged over for the touchdown. Ken Boger's try for the extra point failed and the score was

Car Hits Embankment And Flips On It's Top

A 1959 Ford hit a dirt embankment and flipped over on it's top in a wreck on a rural road 4-miles north of Sheffield Sunday afternoon around 2:50 p. m.

State Highway Patrolman K. N. Bolick said that his investigation disclosed that Roger Wayne Danner, 23, of Mocksville Rt. 5 was operating the car and was heading northwest on the rural road ... he came into a curve to his left and ran off on the right shoulder, veered across the roadway to the left side, striking a dirt bank almost head on and flipping over on it's top on the left side of the road. Danner lived about a block from the scene of the accident.

Damage to the car was estimated at $100. Danner was charged with failure to reduce speed when hazard exists.

Car Flips On Top In Wreck On Rural Road

A 1952 Chevrolet traveling east on Rural Road 1150 slid into an embankment and flipped over around 4 p. m. about 4 miles west of Center.

State Highway Patrolman K. N. Bolick said that his investigation disclosed that Calvin William Fisher, 16, was operating the car and was traveling east. As he was topping the crest of a grade he met another vehicle traveling west. Fisher applied brakes and slid some 75-feet and the right front struck a dirt embankment and the car flipped on it's top.

Damage to the car was estimated at $100.

George W. Martin of Mocksville has been asked by Governor Terry Sanford to serve on the Executive Committee of the Piedmont Crescent 2000 Commission. This group will initiate a program to guide the development of the Piedmont Crescent which is that group of cities and related rural areas from the vicinity of Raleigh to the vicinity of Charlotte.

The objective of the program is to stimulate the growth of jobs, income and capital investment in the Crescent and to help guide the growth of this area so that it is economically efficient, culturally rich and aesthetically attractive; and, to educate the people of the Crescent in its problems, potentials and programs.

Governor Sanford announced that a special tour of the Piedmont Crescent on October 20 and 21. The trip will be by special train and passengers will include Governor Sanford, civic leaders from Crescent cities and members of the Crescent 2000 Commission.

Governor Sanford explained that this commission will be working towards the year 2000 and the action taken will determine what the area will be 35 years from now ... "just as the action or lack of it in Jersey City and Detroit in 1910 has determined the blighted shape of those cities today", the Governor said.

"The Piedmont Crescent is growing more rapidly than almost any other section of the country and we cannot afford to let it grow wild. It

White Cane Drive Begins

The Mocksville Lions Club joined members of more than 375 Lions Clubs in North Carolina this week in launching their annual White Cane drive to raise funds for the North Carolina Association for the Blind.

Gilmer Brewer is chairman of the local drive and he announced that the drive will last through September.

Most of the more than 14,000 members of the clubs are expected to join in the effort to raise $100,000 this year for activities in connection with aid to the blind and prevention of blindness.

Included in the drive is the North Carolina Eye Bank of Winston-Salem, which gets its financial support from the Association for the Blind through the annual White Cane sale.

Darrell W. Morse of Havelock is director of this year's campaign and has named associate directors in the nine Lions districts of the state. They are F. Jack Cole of Asheville, William E. Styers of Statesville, James P. Spears of Shelby, D. Edgar Stevens of Asheville, Harvey Black Jr. of Thomasville, Vardry Turner of Fayetteville, Wallace W. Mullens of Oxford, James McDonald of Goldsboro and N. W. Worsley of Washington.

John Ed Davis of Shelby, president of the state association, reported that in 1964, "through the tremendous efforts of Lions and Lionesses and the generous response of citizens of North Carolina Association was able to greatly expand its prevention of blindness program."

He said the association is the only state organization so constituted as to enable it to sponsor an extensive statewide program.

"The association, a nonprofit organization with no paid employees, renders services to any blind or visually impaired person. If there is a need and there are no other resources available.

Among the services on which White Cane drive funds are expended are: eye treatment or surgery, glasses and artificial eyes; sponsoring of visual aid clinics at Memorial Hospital, Chapel Hill; co-sponsorship of medical eye clinics in local areas when these are essential for adequate eye care; support of the research project, Laboratory

Hydroelectric Dam On Yadkin Being Considered—

Dutchman Creek Watershed Sidetracked

Special Meeting Set For Group On Sept. 23

A meeting of the Dutchman's Creek Watershed group has been scheduled for 8 p. m., September 23rd, in the Davie County Office Building. Elmer Graham, assistant state conservationist in charge of watershed developments, will report on his conference with Army engineers in Charleston, S. C.

An article by Roy Parker, Jr. appearing in Tuesday's Winston-Salem Journal reported that the Dutchman's Creek Watershed Project in Davie County had been sidetracked in favor of another project ... one study of possible construction of a hydroelectric dam on the Yadkin River at the confluence of the South Yadkin known as the "Junction Reservoir."

See editorial on status of Dutchman Creek Watershed Project in this week's issue.

The article by Mr. Parker said that Harry McPherson, assistant to the secretary of the Army for civil functions advised the Soil Conservation Service that in view of the Yadkin-Pee Dee Study—due for completion in 1967—the Corps of Engineers advised against immediate approval of the Dutchman's Creek Watershed ... and his article goes on as follows:

The Dutchman Creek-Junction Reservoir impasse is a classic example of the growing struggle between two influential government agencies.

Both agencies are favorites on Capitol Hill. The Soil Conservation Service in the Department of Agriculture and the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers are well-liked by members of Congress because both agencies delight in spending money for projects that usually add luster to the image lawmakers like to present to their constituents—that of a fellow who can get things done for his folks back home.

Dutchman's Creek watershed project was a favorite of the Soil Conservation Service. The service had received "splendid cooperation" from Davie County folks interested in the project.

Several North Carolina members of Congress—notably Rep. James Broyhill of the 8th District and Sen. Everett Jordan—had kept up with the project as the Soil Conservation Service worked toward final approval of the plan.

Both Broyhill and Jordan had also been interested in the activities of the Corps of Engineers as that agency began—in 1963—a study of the flood control and hydroelectric development potential of the Yadkin-Pee Dee River below the giant Kerr Scott Dam in Wilkes County.

After government routine, the Soil Conservation Service asked other government agencies for their views on the Dutchman's Creek Watershed plan.

Under the old plans, a reservoir would back up the river along the area under consideration for the Dutchman's Creek Watershed Project. The Corps has made no final determination about the junction reservoir proposal, McPherson wrote.

Walter Fuller, head of the North Carolina Department of Water Resources, while making no recommendation, wrote to the Soil Service that the Junction Reservoir proposal would mean the flooding of at least three, possibly five, of the nine proposed watershed dam sites.

Faced with these reports, the Soil Conservation Service advised Broyhill and Jordan—in a letter from Director D. A. Williams—that it could not recommend further action on the Dutchman's Creek project.

Protests started coming from Davie County proponents of the watershed project. Rep. Broyhill was pictured as "greatly disturbed" by the development.

"It is a shame they are to be denied the benefits of this project ... It is a poor situation. The Davie people have done their part and have worked with great enthusiasm," said Vincent Monzel, Broyhill's administrative assistant.

However, Monzel admitted, "the

Load Of Lumber Strewn On U.S. 158

A load of lumber jack-knifed around 6:15 p.m. last Thursday on U.S. 158, three-quarters of a mile southwest of Hillsdale.

State Highway Patrolman K. N. Bolick said that the truck, loaded with lumber, was traveling northeast on U.S. 158 and came into a down-grade right-hand curve, lost control and jack-knifed when the lumber shifted and tilted to the right side of the truck, causing the truck to turn over, coming to rest on its top on the shoulder of the southwest bound lane, with the lumber strewn along the roadside and partially on top of the truck.

The driver was William Edison Bell, Jr., 27, of Roper, N. C.

Shotgun Blasts Sleeping Tots

A 60-year-old Negro went berserk around 12:15 a. m. last Thursday and fired a shotgun blast into a sofa on which two small children were sleeping.

Marcus, age 7, and Lisa, age 4, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Dulin, were wounded about the legs and feet. Marcus suffered five broken bones and Lisa suffered one in their feet. Both children were admitted to the Davie County Hospital and underwent surgery.

The shooting took place at the Ada Hairston home on Pine Street. The boy and girl were her grandchildren.

Willie Campbell, age 60, was arrested by Policeman Leroy Tutterow assisted by Policeman Avery Foster. He was found to be mentally deranged and was transferred to the mental hospital in Goldsboro.

Mocksville Chief of Police Joe Foster said that investigation showed that Campbell, a sister of Ada Hairston, entered through the backdoor of the home on Pine Street. Everyone was asleep at the time including William Smoot, a boarder, who was asleep in a rear room. Campbell reportedly went into the front room and fired into a couch on which two children were asleep. The blast struck the children's feet.

Chief Foster said Campbell told a wild story of being attacked at his home and that he killed one of the attackers with a machine gun before fleeing to his sister's home. He said that they were coming into the Hairston home after him and he fired at them ... with the pellets striking the sleeping children.

Prevalent In West Forsyth and Davie—

Pine Beetle Infestation Tallied

District Forester Joe Hinshaw has announced that there are 53 known spots of Southern pine beetle infestation in Forsyth County and 130 in the Yadkin River area of Davie County. A number of infested areas are known to be in East Yadkin County also, but the full tally there has not been completed. Mr. Hinshaw urged all landowners with stands of pines to make prompt inspections of their own. He pointed out that some woodland owners live elsewhere... some outside the state... and it will take time to make contacts with all. "Meanwhile the beetle keeps busy and the infestations spread", he said. Flights have been made in low-flying planes over the area in the effort to detect dead pinetops. When spotted, such locations were marked on Soil Conservation Service aerial maps. It is from these maps that the foresters identify individual farms or woodlands. Mr. Hinshaw said that any action on a statewide basis was awaiting completion of aerial spot-checks and control flights in several sections. Two years ago, 15 counties were known to be infested. The area of West Forsyth, North Davie and East Yadkin appear to be the hardest hit. Cutting infested trees for pulpwood or saw-lumber is the only practical method of control and salvage at the present time, Mr. Hinshaw said. Dead Needles He explained again yesterday that the signs of beetle infestation are dead or dying needles, completely dead pine trees, and lumps of rosin (called pitch-tubes) plainly visible on the pine trunk, from eye-level upward. These will often be found on pines with needles still green. "But the pitch-tubes, as well as dying tops, are dead giveaways," said Hinshaw. "They mark the spots where the beetle entered the bark and has channeled on between bark and the inner face of the tree." He advised woodland owners who find definite infestation to make prompt arrangements with pulpwood dealers or saw-lumber buyers, all of whom are giving priority to such trees. Foresters, if notified of the date cutting is to begin will visit the farm ahead of time and help mark the trees which need cutting. Foresters can be notified through the county agricultural agent's office. But Hinshaw had different advice for homeowners with one or two dying pines in their yards: "We can't help them," he said. "If their trees are dying, the only thing to do is cut them down."

Davie Hospital Is Donated Encyclopedia

The Davie County Hospital has received a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia as a gift from the publisher, F. E. Compton Co., Chicago. The gift also includes a specially-designed, lightweight rolling booktable to facilitate usage of the reference books throughout the hospital. According to James A. Bunn, the gift is intended "to make patients' stay in a hospital a little more pleasant through providing interesting reading material." He pointed out that since Compton's is designed as a family reference work and is profusely illustrated, it will have appeal to children. At the same time he added, "There has been an increasing interest in encyclopedias on the part of all members of the family including adults who wish to keep abreast of the knowledge explosion, and it is our hope that these volumes will provide many pleasurable hours of reading for patients of all ages."

Cartner's Sinclair Loses In Statesville Tournament

Cartner's Sinclair of County Line bowed to Western Avenue Baptist in the finals of the Statesville Softball Tournament last Thursday night. Western Avenue was undefeated in the tourney going into last night's game. Cartner's won the opener 7-1 to force a second game which Western Avenue captured 5 by 10-5 margin. In the opener, Cartner's tallied two runs in the bottom of the first and never trailed. They put the game on ice with a five-run outbreak in the fourth. Robert Rogers, Charlie Crenshaw, George Daywalt, Donald Edwards and Jim Ricket, collected two hits each for the winners who had 14 safeties. Ronald Weatherman was the only man to pair hits for the losers. In the nightcap, Western Avenue reversed the opening decision, as they broke loose for six big runs in the first inning and never trailed. Richard Rowland had three hits for the winners including a double and Ronald Weatherman had a three-base hit. Gus Davidson had a double also for the winners.

Four Corners

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Shelton, Sr. were honored Sunday by their children and grandchildren at a dinner at their home on their birthday anniversary. All seven children and eight grandchildren were present to enjoy the occasion. Other guests were Rev. Wilford Manly and Mrs. Manly of Courtney Baptist Church, Patricia Harpe and Linda McClamrock of Mocksville. Mr. and Mrs. John Harding McClamrock of Pine visited in the home Sunday night.

Cindy Shelton spent all last week with her grandmother Mrs. Evelyn Seeger, in Mocksville.

Mr. and Mrs. James Nance and Mr. and Mrs. George Laymon visited Dr. L. R. Shelton Sunday at Baptist Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Walls and Mrs. Evelyn Boger spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Von Shelton.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Shelton, Jr., of Statesville, and Mrs. Joe White visited Dr. L. R. Shelton Sunday evening. Dr. Shelton was injured a few weeks while riding a horse.

Mr. and Mrs. George Laymon and Mr. and Mrs. James also visited Mrs. J. W. Athan Sunday. She has been very ill for some time.

Dr. Powell Leads Revival

The annual Fall Revival will be held at Oak Grove Methodist Church Sunday morning, September 20, through Thursday night, September 25. These services will be for the entire community.

Dr. Howard P. Powell, retired minister of the North Carolina Conference of The Methodist Church, will be the minister for this week of special services. At the 1963 session of the North Carolina Annual Conference he was retired at his request for the privilege of giving the rest of his active ministry to the area of Spiritual Life and Evangelism. He preaches in approximately 40 churches each year for revival services and teaches in Christian Worker's Schools—being accredited to teach the course on PRAYER by the General Board of The Methodist Church. Twice he has edited the MANUAL OF PRAYER of the United Prayer Tower. He has given leadership in Spiritual Life Conferences and Retreats and is among the contributors to THE UPPER ROOM.

Born and reared in Sampson County, North Carolina, Dr. Powell dedicated his life to the Church very early in life. He was educated in the schools of Sampson County, Clinton, North Carolina, Trinity Park Preparatory School, Duke University and Ashbury College. He traveled with the Travel Institute in Bible Research in Palestine, Syria, and Egypt in 1930. In 1938 High Point College conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

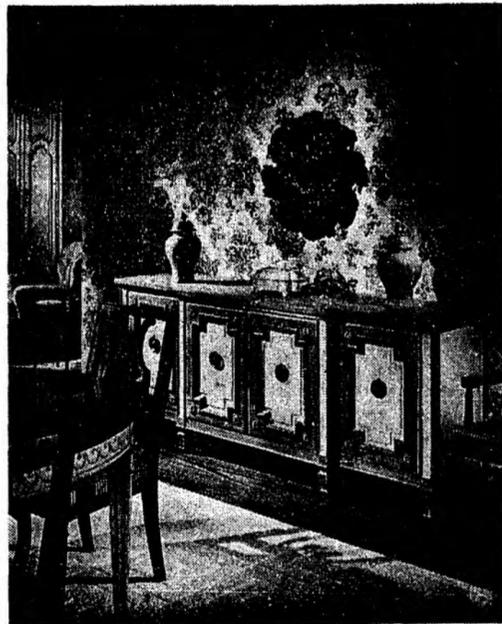

Dr. Powell is one of the outstanding evangelists of the South and is one of the best known and most beloved ministers of our day. The public is cordially invited to hear this outstanding preacher and evangelist.

Boris Pasternak has written: "In this era of world wars, in this atomic age, values have changed. We must discover security within ourselves." Dr. Powell can help each of us in achieving this security. He is just that persuasive in his preaching.

To Be Manufactured Near Mocksville

Milling Road Furniture

The Milling Road Furniture Company of North Carolina, located on Milling Road just outside of the Town of Mocksville, is expected to go into production sometime in October. The local plant of Baker Furniture Industries will manufacture all traditional furniture. The local plant will manufacture the hardwood line of traditional furniture with the upholstered line being made in Grand Rapids, Michigan. The general price range of the Milling Road line of furniture is similar to that of Heritage and upward. It is distributed widely all over the United States. Some of the items that will be made at the local plant are pictured below:

Milling Road Furniture specializes in the French Provincial Designs such as the one pictured above. In this selection an effort is made to preserve the character of the originals in all meaningful details of woods, designs and finish. The above has the special antique painted effect. The side board is painted blue, dirty-white and gold (heavily antiqued).

Another of Milling Road specializations centers around bedroom stacking units. The above wardrobe unit has one tray for shirts . . . another has pull-out slides for clothes. There are many variations to this unit, making possible many various combinations.

Another feature of the Milling Road line of furniture is a series of custom wall shelving units . . . such as shown above . . . of counter design and heavily antiqued.

MORE ABOUT George Martin
needs to be cultivated for proper growth", said the Governor. Such problems of transportation, water supply, regional recreation, preservation of open space, cultural and commercial growth which cut across city and county lines will be studied and acted on together.

"The rapid growth of North Carolina cities started some 50 years after the growth of the cities in the North. Therefore, we have an opportunity to observe the mistakes made there and to avoid them ourselves. These cities are in the corner heartland of the State and their health to a large degree will govern the prosperity of North Carolina in the future", said Governor Sanford.

Church Activities

ADVANCE METHODIST
Advance Methodist Church will hold its annual homecoming Sunday, September 20 at the church. This will be the 152nd birthday anniversary of the church. The guest speaker will be the Rev. Hubert Clunard, a past minister, who will speak at the 11 a. m. service. Dinner will be served on the grounds at 12:30 p. m. Special singing will follow in the afternoon. The public is cordially invited to attend. SOCIETY BAPTIST Homecoming services will be held Sunday, September 20, at the Society Baptist Church. The Rev. Sidney Grimes, pastor, will bring the 11 o'clock message. Dinner will be on the grounds at noon followed by an afternoon of singing.

Revival service will begin Sunday night at 7:30 and continue through Saturday night, September 26. The Rev. Duncan Futnell, pastor of English Street Baptist Church, High Point, will bring the message each evening. Rev. Futnell attended Mars Hill College, Wake Forest and Southeastern Seminary.

FIRST BAPTIST
Mrs. M. D. Brown will celebrate her 99th birthday anniversary on Saturday, September 19. She was born 1 year after the First Baptist Church here was organized. She joined the local church in October of 1887.

The Adult Department of the BTU and their families enjoyed a "cook-out" at Rich Park on Saturday night. Approximately 40 attended. Hamburgers, baked beans, etc. was the menu.

The Circle of the church will meet on Monday night and Tuesday morning of next week, September 21 and 22. The Leonora Dodd circle met this past Wednesday.

FIRST METHODIST
The Woman's society of Christian service met on Tuesday night, September 8, in the Ladies' Parlor of the church with Mrs. Doug Fink, president in charge of the meeting.

The program "A New Purpose For A New Age" was given by Mrs. Otis Hendrix and Mrs. W. A. Allison.

Mrs. Henry Blair announced that the UNICEF drive would be held in October. Mrs. George Shutt announced that the "Week of Prayer" Service would be held on Sunday night, October 25.

A letter from Mrs. Arnold Kirk, district president, was read and she urged that the membership be increased and that a District Workshop would be held on September 13.

CHURCH OF CHRIST
The Redland Church of Christ will hold a gospel meeting beginning Sunday, September 20 and will continue through the 25. Services will be held each evening at 8 o'clock. Camden, S. C. will preach. The public Evangelist Chester C. Vaughn of

NORTH DAVIE
The North Davie 4-H Club held its regular monthly meeting on Friday, September 4 at William R. Davie School. The meeting was called to order by President, Linda Blackwelder. Minutes were read and approved. In the business session, the election of officers for the following year was held. They are:

President—Linda Bracken
Vice-President—Danny Ruple
Secretary-Treasurer—Linda Blackwelder
Reporter—Jane Ruple

We also discussed ways of building up our 4-H Club attendance and the locating of a building where we could meet. The meeting was then adjourned and refreshments were served by Mrs. H. F. Blackwelder, Jr.

Reporter, Jane Ruple
4-H Horse Show

The annual Davie County 4-H Horse Show will be held Saturday, September 19 at the Mocksville Saddle Club Arena. Events begin at 7:00 p. m.

Twenty classes are open for 4-H club members to enter. Refreshments will be sold throughout the evening program. Admission at the gate is $1.00 for adults and $0.50 for children.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

4-H PULLET SALE
The annual 4-H club pullets will be sold Wednesday, September 23 at 3:00 p. m. at the Mocksville Square. If anyone would like to have any of these champion pullets for their own use, they will be sold to the highest bidder. The proceeds from this sale will go back in to the fund to buy baby chicks for the boys and girls to take Poultry as a 4-H Project in 1965.

Remember, if you are planning to buy pullets, the 4-H Pullet Sale will be on Wednesday, September 23.

DAVIE vs. CHASE
Davie offered two other scoring threats... once early in the first quarter, being stopped on the one-inch line and then was in scoring position in the second quarter when time ran out.

Coach Jack Ward said that the Rebels came through the game Friday night in fine physical shape. "We hope to use more boys for longer periods of time Friday night in getting ready for our first conference game against Mooresville on September 25th," said Coach Ward.

Statistics
Davie had nine first downs to 8 for West Forsyth and 135 yards rushing to 129 for West Forsyth. Davie completed 3 for 7 passes for 22 yards; West Forsyth completed one for two for 68 yards. Each team intercepted one pass.

Davie punted twice for an average of 40 yards per kick; West Forsyth punted 3 times for an average of 37 yards. Each team lost the ball once via a fumble. Davie was penalized 15 yards and West Forsyth 20 yards in a cleanly played game.

He is invited to attend.

Circles will meet next week as follows:

The Afternoon Circle, Mrs. J. H. Thompson, chairman, will meet on Tuesday at 3:00 p. m. at the home of Mrs. D. R. Stroud, Salisbury Street. (Members are asked to note change from Monday)

The Morning Circle will meet on Tuesday at 10 a. m. in the Educational Building at the Church. Mrs. Henry Blair is chairman of the circle. Hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. Don Wood and Mrs. Bill Price.

Circle No. 1, Mrs. W. A. Allison, chairman, will meet Monday night at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Ed Short, North Main Street, with Miss Cornelia Hendricks co-hostess.

Circle No. 2, Mrs. C. C. Chapman, chairman, will meet at the Fellowship Building at 6:30 p. m. for a covered dish supper.

Circle No. 3, Mrs. Arthur Upshaw, Jr., chairman, will meet Monday night at 7:30 at the home of the chairman on Park Avenue.

Circle No. 4, Mrs. Margaret A. LeGrand, chairman, will meet Monday night at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Robert Hendricks, Salisbury Street.

Five From Davie Are Enrolled At ASTC

Of the 3,030 students expected to enroll at Appalachian State Teachers College this fall, five are freshmen from Davie County, according to an announcement by Registrar Dr. Ben Strickland.

The Davie County students are as follows: Shirley Ann Boles, Linda Ann Essex, Chris Hinkle, Judy Ann Koontz, and John Franklin Paige.

The college has as its purpose to develop in the student those qualities of mind and character that make for excellence in all phases of human endeavor and specifically to prepare teachers, principals, supervisors, superintendents, and other school personnel.

MORE ABOUT Dutchman Creek

Corps of Engineers has been pretty adamant. Jordan's aides said that his office has done no more than forward the letters of Williams and the Corps of Engineers to interested Davie County folks.

If the fight bogs down in an inter-agency tug of war, it would be the second time the Soil Conservation Service and the Corps of Engineers have fussed over who should do what to a North Carolina river.

Development of the Cape Fear River was held up for several years during a struggle to see which agency would handle the job.

The impasse was broken last winter, when Rep. Harold Cooley of Nashville backed away and allowed the corps to begin work on the big New Hope Dam in Chatham County.

For several years before that, Cooley supported a Soil Conservation Service plan that would have involved construction of more than 300 small dams.

In recent years, liberalized legislation had given the Soil Conservation Service a chance to challenge the longtime ascendancy of the Corps of Engineers in building the dams and reservoirs on rivers in the Eastern United States.

But the Dutchman's Creek-Junction Reservoir fight shows that the corps still swings strong weight in the struggle.

In the background, and often denied by private power company officials, is the fact that private power firms have quietly sided with the conservation service in such fights.

In recent years, the power firms have feared that any dams built with hydroelectric possibilities might become the sites of Electric-Generating facilities owned by electric membership co-operatives.

This struggle lurked in the background of the long battle over the New Hope Dam.

1965 Voluntary Wheat Program
The 1965 voluntary wheat program sign-up is now underway, and will continue through October 2, 1964.

Through September 14, 165 wheat farms has been enrolled in the program.

Benefits available under the 1965 wheat program include price-support loans, marketing certificates and diversion payments.

Wheat farmers who have not already filed an application to participate in the program are urged to do so right away. There is no reason to delay since the following provisions gives the farmer several advantages, such as:

- 1. A producer can withdraw from the program at any time through the feed grain sign-up next spring.
2. A producer can change his intentions at any time through the feed grain sign-up next spring.
3. There would be no interest to pay if the producer withdraws since there are no advance payments.

Participating farmers can get about the same returns from the 1965 program as they received from the 1964 program.

Producers are asked to bring any questions to the county ASCS office and let us help you in understanding the program benefits offered. In order to get any benefits at all, producers must sign an application by October 2.

Tobacco Cards Mailed
Since the tobacco markets in this section will open on September 22, tobacco marketing cards were mailed to farmers in the county this week.

Farmers should watch the mail and exercise care in seeing that the cards are not lost or destroyed. Also as soon as all sales are made, the cards should be returned to this office as soon as all memorandums of sale have been used in each book or all tobacco from the farm has been sold.

TV Performer To Star At Dixie Classic Fair

Cal Claude, well-known TV, night club and circus performer, will star in a one-man show of amazing acrobatic feats in the Chevy Aerosphere at the Dixie Classic Fair, October 6 - 10.

Claude, a polio victim at the age of one, spent his childhood undergoing a series of treatments and operations. This was followed by a vigorous program of exercise. To gain strength and confidence, he developed a balancing act, and at the age of 18 he was able to take his act on the show circuit.

Girl Scout Fund Campaign To Be Held October 12-17

S. W. Brown, Jr. has announced a Girl Scout Fund drive for the period from October 12 through October 17. He will serve as chairman of the finance committee for the Davie County Area.

Under Mr. Brown's leadership volunteer workers will seek to raise the council budget for Davie County of the Pilot Area Girl Scout Council. Dewey Bowman, of Winston-Salem, finance chairman of the council, announced that approximately $60,000 is needed to maintain the council for a year. Davie County has been a part of the council since 1950, but this is only the third fund raising campaign. By being affiliated with the council, Davie receives these services among others: Day Camp, free training for volunteer leaders, free equipment at anytime, and the Claude worked it into his balancing act and juggling feats. During his performances at the Dixie Classic Fair, he will end his versatile exhibition with a sensational balancing feat in which he plays the trumpet while perched on one hand on a one-wheel vehicle high above the Chevy Aerosphere floor.

Claude, who has shared bookings with such greats as Nat "King" Cole, the McGuire Sisters and Dick Haymes, has made appearances on many national TV programs including the Ed Sullivan Show, Captain Kangaroo, the Paul Winchell Show and You Asked For It.

Girl Scouts have local, state, national and international opportunities. Three local girls have been chosen delegates to Roundup and 1 girl chosen alternate for next summer.

Bob Hall has been chosen as Davie County's representative on the Finance committee.

"I have accepted the chairmanship of this campaign," said Mr. Brown, "because Girl Scouting is for all girls from 7 to 17 who want it. The program benefits both girls and community.

"Through Girl Scouting, girls enjoy wholesome recreation and make

Oil Heat has the answers
other systems have a lot to learn
It isn't unusual for our temperature here in North Carolina to fall below 20 degrees. And when it does you want to be ready for it. That's when oil heat really does the job. So often, those other systems simply can't put out enough additional heat to keep you comfortable during severe cold snaps. But no matter how far the temperature drops, oil heat is ready for the increased demands made on it... ready to keep your family cozy warm. And at far less cost, too.

Current Status and Conflicts Outlined—

The Dutchman Creek Watershed Project

For the past two years considerable planning, interest and effort has gone into a Davie County project known as the Dutchman Creek Watershed. This project requested the United States Department of Agriculture to design and construct a system of nine floodwater retarding structures, and improve 73 miles of stream channel in the area of Davie County that drained into the Dutchman Creek Channel area.

The estimated first cost of this system is $1,691,067. Under the plan the Federal Government would bear $1,429,843, or about 85% of the total first cost. Davie County, and right-of-ways which they place a value of $245,224. And the administering of contacts is estimated at $6,000.

The object of this project was to reduce the flood hazard on 4,280 acres of agricultural land within the watershed and 605 acres of land downstream on the Yadkin River. The total benefits of $157,572 are made up of $58,631 in the form of reduction in flood damages, $74,832 expected to result from more profitable use of land; $20,507 in secondary benefits and $3,600 in incidental recreation benefits.

This is the Dutchman Creek Watershed project, but there is more:

In 1944 the United States Army Corps of Engineers reported to Congress on the results of a study of the Yadkin-Pee Dee River Basin. This report, which was printed in House Document No. 652, 78th Congress, proposed progressive development of the basin and recommended authorization of the Wilkesboro Reservoir. This project is now completed and has been designated as the W. Kerr Scott Dam and Reservoir.

The plan set out under this proposal encompassed another reservoir, referred to as the Junction Reservoir, as a component of a long-range program for the basin, but did not recommend immediate authorization thereof. However, a further study of the Yadkin-Pee Dee Basin was recently initiated and consideration will be given to a number of potential major reservoirs, including the previously contemplated Junction Reservoir. If this reservoir is found to be needed and economically justified, the U. S. Corps of Army Engineers will probably recommend it for authorization.

The Junction Project reservoir at elevation of 720 feet will extend up Dutchman Creek to a point approximately three-fourths mile west of U. S. Highway 601. Most of the area reported to benefit from the Dutchman Creek Watershed Project plan ... including three of the proposed dam structures ... would be partially inundated. In addition, three others would be partially inundated.

When the work plan for the Dutchman Creek Watershed was transmitted to Federal Agencies and the State of North Carolina for review on June 4, 1964 the proposed conflict set forth above was pointed out. The Department of Army, the Department of Interior, and the Department of Water Resources of the State of North Carolina suggested that the authorization of the Dutchman Creek plan be delayed until it can be determined whether or not the Corps of Engineers intend to proceed with firm plans for the Junction project. All agree that if the Junction Project is to take place, the watershed project presently proposed for Dutchman Creek would not be feasible.

A top official with the Army Corps of Engineers said that of course it would be impossible at this time to predict when, or precisely where, the next major reservoir would be built in the Yadkin Pee-Dee Basin.

"However, the probability of a reservoir being constructed at, or near, the Junction site in the future is, in our opinion, sufficient to make it desirable to consider what effect such construction might have on the justification for providing federal assistance in the amount requested", wrote Harry C. McPherson, Special Assistant to the Secretary of the Army for Civil Functions to John A. Baker, the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

This is the current status of the Dutchman Creek Watershed project. If a large dam and reservoir is to be constructed on the Yadkin there will be no Dutchman Creek Watershed project. If not, then the work plan now in the hands of the federal agencies will be reconsidered and perhaps become a reality.

You Can't Coddle Cussedness!

Our Rights and Feelings!

How can you defend your own rights without hurting anyone's feelings?

This is perhaps one of the oldest questions on earth ... one that has been asked over and over again a thousand times.

Here we are trying to get along together in a busy, crowded world ... all of us bound together ... depending on each other ... yet each one with a different personal program, different needs, different notions of right or wrong ... and each one faced with the necessity of maintaining his own rights, fighting for his own plan and place.

How can we do it without stepping on the other fellow's toes?

The answer is very simple. We can't. We shouldn't expect to and the other fellow shouldn't be peeved because we can't.

However, we don't like to accept that answer. It seems too harsh. It demands a lot of spunk to put it across and results in some highly unpleasant scenes. We are sentimental ... lazy and cowardly ... we don't like tears or fuss ... it's pleasanter to give up and take the easy way.

Mature life is a serious job. A youngster can honorably avoid unpleasantness and get along nicely with other people by letting them have their own way. But no decent adult can ooze through existence in this manner. Adults have responsibilities to meet ... rights to be defended ... opportunities to be sought. These aren't merely desires ... they are fundamental.

This does not mean that we should serve our own interests ruthlessly, riding rough shod over anyone that gets in our way. It means that our life is our most precious gift and sacred obligation and it is up to us to make the most of it ... not only for ourselves, but for those we love. And, if the other fellow hinders us, we've no more right to coddle his cussedness than we'd have to coddle our own.

Washington Report

BY CONGRESSMAN JAMES T. BROTHILL 5TH DISTRICT OF NORTH CAROLINA

The long session has now reached the point where the House of Representatives is primarily marking time waiting for the Senate to catch up on a number of items that prevent congress from campaign is directing attention away from Washington. There are, however, some far-reaching decisions for this Congress to make before it packs up and goes home.

Three bills involving Social Security are still to be given final consideration. The House-passed veterans pension bill is awaiting action by the Senate. Debate of proposed Appalachia program is now beginning in the Senate although it has not appeared on the schedule for debate in the House.

Railroad Retirement Changes One of the Social Security bills that has not received widespread attention is of particular importance to present and retired railroad employees and their families.

It has been conceded that when an employee pays into two separate retirement systems he should be entitled to benefits from both. That was spelled out more than 10 years ago by Congress in an amendment to the Railroad-Retirement Act. However, the provisions did not extend to the wives of railroad employees.

Husbands who paid into the Railroad Retirement Fund for themselves and their wives find that any Social Security payments their wives have earned in their own right are deducted from the benefits they would receive from the Railroad Retirement system. This has been a gross inequity and I am pleased that the Committee on which I serve developed legislation to correct this situation. The bill received the overwhelming support of the House which I believe good conscience and fair play demanded.

This bill is now pending in the Senate where we hope the same favorable view prevails.

Fish And Wildlife

This Congress has been dubbed the "Conservation Congress" because of the number of measures, large and small, which it has enacted to enhance and protect the nation's natural resources. Recently, two more measures intended to meet problems with the nation's fish and wildlife have added to the total legislation in this field.

One of these bills increased the Department of Interior's research activities into the affect of chemical pesticides on fish and wildlife.

The claim has been made that poisons used to protect crops against insect infestation also destroys valuable fish and wildlife. It is serious evidence to support the charge and it needs serious attention. Nevertheless, 22 government agencies are already conducting research into the problem and lines of authority among three cabinet departments (Agriculture, Health, Education, and Welfare, and now Interior) threaten to tangle the administration of this work. The knowledge being sought and the ends to be obtained are urgently needed, but we hope findings will not be impeded by waste, duplication, and administrative confusion.

The second bill is intended to find ways to increase the nation's stock of anadromous fish—those fish which are born and spawn in fresh water streams and lakes but which spend the greater part of their lives in the sea. Salmon, steelhead, shad, striped bass, and sturgeon are among the varieties included in this group.

Anyone who has bought a can of salmon lately knows that the price is considerably higher than it used to be. The price is a symptom of supply and demand and one indication of the national problem. Fish such as these were once abundantly available on both coasts. They were a staple item in the American diet. Today, they are less abundant and less common on the dinner table. Civilization's encroachments have erected flood control dams and other barriers for fish of this kind seeking to return to spawning grounds and stream pollution has thwarted their return. The new legislation will provide a concrete attempt to work with the States in hatchery programs and practiced efforts to see that fish runs are maintained and the reversal of present trends before it is too late.

Social Security In Davie County

Are you dependent upon your social security check for your necessities? Would you miss it if it were late this month or did not come at all? Would you be able to take care of your bills?

Taft McCoy, Field Representative for social security in Davie County, says this can happen to you if you fail to notify the Social Security Administration when your address changes. Each person applying for social security benefits is asked to report any change in address. If you have forgotten or neglected to do this, your check may be sent to the wrong address, lost, or returned to the Treasury Department. When any of these things happens, you definitely will not receive your check on time.

Be sure you are not disappointed next month. If you have moved, expect to move in the near future, or have had any change in address, report your new address now to the local social security office, located at 105 Corriher Avenue, Salisbury, N. C.

TEXT: "Why, then, can one desire too much of a good thing?" — Shakespeare.

The minister was giving final dinner instructions to his housekeeper. "Norah," he said, "we have asked Mr. and Mrs. James to dinner at 6:30, but I think I'll give them a quarter hour's grace".

"Well, sir," replied the housekeeper, "I'm religious myself, but I think you're over-doin' it".

Of course, the minister didn't mean he would give a quarter hour of prayer. That, most assuredly, would have over-done it on that occasion.

Excess are difficult to avoid. We enjoy something; see merit in it and overdo it. We think others should enjoy it, too. Too often, when they do not, we try to force them to embrace our interests by passing law or limiting the things they desire to do.

Some may think that the harm in excesses falls only on the one who over-does things. That is not true. A greater harm befalls those enslaved by some zealot who thinks everyone should enjoy and appreciate what he is enthusiastic about. Yes, one can desire too much of a good thing. When that desire limits the rights and liberties of others, even a good thing is being over-done.

SMART DECK

If you want to give a distinctive character to your wood deck you might consider having the banister posts set on an angle away from the deck floor. You can use ordinary dimension lumber such as Douglas fir for both deck framing, floor and railing.

WASHINGTON — One of the growing concerns that stalk the nation is a fear of criminal attack. Public opinion polls conducted in recent days have verified this. Only a few years ago, crime was thought of in less personal terms.

The latest edition of the uniform Crime Reports for the U. S. compiled by F. B. I. Director, J. Edgar Hoover, substantiates with data that there is reason for national concern over the problem. He reports: "More than two and one-quarter million serious crimes were reported during 1963. A 10 per cent rise over 1962 ... Street robbery which constituted 63 per cent of all robbery offenses has increased 22 per cent since 1958 ... Eighty-eight police were killed in line of duty, 55 were murdered as a result of criminal action in 1963. Evelyn police officers per 100 were assaulted during course of duty."

The reasons for this national crime wave are said to be many. People are living closer together than in other generations. Often they do not know their closest neighbors. Thousands of families each year move far away from their home communities to become strangers in a new land. These movements begat attitudes. It has become a common thing in the largest metropolitan areas to ignore pleas of "help" brought on by criminal attacks. The old attitude of helping one's fellow man in distress is more and more being replaced by a new one of getting mixed up in another's problem. Some equate this change to rural attitudes being replaced by less personal urban thinking.

F. B. I. Director Hoover in the report calls attention to another facet of the menacing problem. He maintains that "disrespect for authority and specifically for the law enforcement officer who is performing his official function." This, he points out, "can be measured to a great extent by the number of assaults on police acting in the line of duty." All of this points a breakdown in respect for law and order.

MOVED? ... A fog of deep mystery still hangs over the sudden resignation of Dr. Glenn Blackburn as pastor of the Wake Forest College Baptist Church.

One morning last spring he announced to the congregation he was quitting. And, this he did. Noted for his quick mind and quicker temper, the 51-year-old minister had devoted most of his years as a pastor to the big First Baptist Church in Lumberton and to Wake Forest students.

Last week the Rev. Mr. Blackburn — lean, studious, and red-headed — was seen in a Washington, D. C., office and we are wondering if he has joined the millions now working for Uncle Sam. If so, the Baptists have lost another good preacher. OFF THE ROAD! ... For some time we had wondered just how much good the burning of lights in the day-time on Labor Day weekends accomplished in the reduction of traffic accidents.

Well, this past Labor Day we found out! Saturday and Sunday and Monday we brightly burned our lights. Monday afternoon late— Labor Day—we jumped into our flivver for a trip to the post office. We touched the starter, but no answer. The horn wouldn't even blow. The battery was dead—as dead as a door nail.

Our service station man told us when he came with the cables, charger, etc.—that he had been busy all weekend jehing cars and charging batteries. So, the secret of Labor Day safety—as far as burning your car lights is concerned—it takes one more vehicle off the road.

GOODBYE, OPENER ... They are not ready to announce it yet, but a big soft drink firm with many outlets in North Carolina is said to be ready with a self-opening bottle cap.

The opener is in the cap. Apply the thumb, push a little, and you've got it. The secret? A pulling together of the vacuum principle and a magnetized top.

This is a step forward; and will no-doubt make drinking mud-casier.

We used to know giants in the good old days who never succumbed to the prissiness of a bottle-opener. Of course, they broke a tooth now and then, but it was most interesting to watch them.

NOHOW! ... In a service station in Fayetteville the other day we saw on the wall this hand-wrought, scrawled-out sign: "No loitering. No loafing. No hanging around. No cussing. No vulgarity. In here. No time."

IN THE MIDDLE ... Somebody, somewhere, wrote the other day that there are now four political parties in this State: the Preyer Party, the Lake Party, the Moore Party, and the Republican Party.

In the middle of three of them is Democratic Nominee for Governor Dan Moore of Canton. The colored people tell off the record they have been unable to "arrive at any understanding" with Mr. Moore ... and this goes, also, for the People for Preyer.

What they forget is this: even if Moore looked on them with favor, he dare not let it get out too much—for fear of losing huge blocks of the very cohesive Lake vote in November.

At this stage, Dan K. Moore, nominee of the Democrats, must love all kinds of Democrats, liberal, conservative, and Republican. Then, after the Election, we can ask as they do on that television show: "Now will the REAL Dan Moore please stand."

And, when he stands, you will find him to be the real middle-of-the-roader (according to where YOU stand) he was when running for the nomination last spring.

P. S. Some of the Negro leaders will be staying home on Tuesday, November 3. They say they will not vote for the Republicans—but just can't go with Mr. Moore.

15 AND 25 ... In the big changes announced for the good, gray, New York Times, two gentlemen with goodly amounts of tar on their heels were involved. Tom Wicker was named to succeed the famous Scotty Reston (he calls Presidents by their first names and vice versa) as head of the Washington Bureau. E. Clifton Daniel was made managing editor.

Fifteen years ago Wicker was manager of the Southern Pines Chamber of Commerce and 25 years ago Daniel (now the father of Harry Truman's only grandchildren) was a reporter on the Raleigh News and Observer.

Incidentally, the last published financial statement we recall seeing on the New York Times, showed its big monkey-maker to be its good, gray Canadian forests (pulpwood) rather than its famous publication.

CHANGE-OVER ... Until a day or two ago when you called 833-5503 here in Raleigh, you got Moore Headquarters. But last week we dialed this number—and back came the answer: "Democratic Headquarters".

IS HE WRITING? ... There was a whisper in Raleigh last week that "Gov. Sanford is writing a book". About what, we wouldn't know — even if it should be that he is actually coming up, or out, with one.

They say that his predecessor, now Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges, literally talked his way into authorship. That is, he didn't actually write it, but dictated it into a tape recorder for the University of North Carolina Press.

FOLK-SINGER ... Libby Holman, whose first husband, Smith Reynolds of Winston-Salem, died under mysterious circumstances, was back in the news again last week.

She, alas, has become a singer of folk tunes. Her first performance, held at the John Drew Theatre in East Hampton, N. Y., attracted wide attention. The long-haired reviewers wrote up Miss Holman, who doesn't have to sing for a living, as a hit. Asked how she managed to come up with an expressive little grunt in some of her folk songs, she replied: "I call it my vomit." How sophisticated!

WHEN? ... Whatever happened to Russell Brantley's (Wake Forest publicist) appointment to head the State News Bureau? We thought it was official—or has it hit a snag?

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Us one-gallus boys at the country store Saturday night was mighty disturbed over some figgers put out by Congressman Ed Foreman of Texas. He had one of them high voltage Government computing machines git the facts on who was paying what to run this country.

Ed Doolittle bring the figgers with him and all of them was bad. Fer instants, they showed that if the Federal Revenue boys took ever cent of income made by all the millionaires in the United States in 1963 it would've run the Government 39 hours. If they took all the profits of folks making $25,000 a year or more it would keep the Government 3 days. And if they took all personal income over $10,000 the Government would eat it up in 18 days.

The figgers showed that 80 per cent of the national budget was paid by the folks that had income tax rates at the rock bottom figger of 20 per cent. In short, Mister Editor, all that money they had been wading in Washington, like paying $500 fer window curtains and such items, was being paid by the little man, us one-gallus boys.

Up hill Ed announced these figgers, all the fellers was thinking it was the rich folks that was paying the bill, the fellers passed a resolution asking the President to turn off all the lights in the White House after 6 p. m. and to start hanging bed sheets in them windows fer curtains. On account of the little man paying the bills, he ain't been speaking his piece loud enough in these matters.

Clem Webster allowed as how the great trouble in Washington was that our elected representatives give a right-turn signal when they was talking fer publication and then made a left turn when they voted.

Fer instants, he said our Congressmen was announcing all over the nation that Federal employees jur. had to git a raise so's they could make both ends meet. What happened, Clem ask. He had a clipping from the papers giving the results. The bill raised the pay of office workers 4.3 per cent, 5.6 per cent fer post office employees, and 33 per cent fer Congressmen.

Zeke Grubb bring up that item about the Texas Livestock organization taking a $2,500 gold-plated saddle to President Johnson. He was a 100 per cent in favor of it, claimed it was the first thing in this generation to enter or leave Washington with no tax money in it.

But it could be, Mister Editor, the fellers at the store complains too much. Fer instants, Bug Hookum had a bumper crop of apples this year but he was fusing Saturday night on account of they wasn't no rotten ones fer the boys.

Yours truly Uncle Dave

Summer Activities Program for Children

1. — Summer Reading

The Summer Reading Program for children of Davie County, sponsored by the Davie County Public Library, was introduced late in the last school year by the showing of a film and explanation of plans for the program by Mrs. Jack Paige, director, at each school in the county.

As a result 675 children were registered. Each child who has read 10 books during the summer and turned in a brief report on them to the library will receive a certificate. One star will be added for 5 additional books read. Each school principal will decide the date for awards at his school.

Certificates will be awarded in the schools in the early fall to 330 children who have read 10 or more books under this program.

We would like to commend the 285 other children who also participated in the program but various reasons did not complete their reading of 10 books.

The library wishes to express its thanks to the schools and teachers who offered such fine co-operation in the promotion of the Summer Reading Program. Our thanks also to the children themselves who eagerly participated and showed so much enthusiasm for the project. They are the ones who made it all worthwhile. Their response at times almost over-whelming to a small staff, but we were all delighted that their interest had even exceeded our expectations. The library is already planning for a similar program next summer. Mrs. Paige's efforts were repaid with a most successful program this year, and we hope to make our next summer reading program even more rewarding for all.

G. O. P. Leader At National Convention

Mrs. G. W. Schladensky of the Davie County Rep. Womens Club is leaving for Louisville, Kentucky on Sept. 24th to join 2,000 other delegates at the 13th Biennial Convention of the National Federation of Republican Women.

Highlight of the convention will be the Goldwater Banquet and Rally on September 25 that is expected to draw a capacity crowd of 18,000 to Freedom Hall in Louisville, an auditorium that is larger than the Cow Palace in San Francisco.

Entertainment at the Rally will be led by headliner Marty Robbins of Grand Ole Opry fame. Both Senator Goldwater and Chairman Dean Burch of the Republican National Committee will address the Rally.

Mrs. Schladensky, who lives in Mocksville, Crestview Dr. is the Finance chairman of the Davie Co. Rep. Woman's Club. She has been a leader in State and National party activities since 1962, and has been active in Teenage Republican Club (TAR'S) as well.

Mrs. Dorothy A. Elston of Delaware, President of the National Federation, has been nominated for a second two-year term, and is expected to be re-elected in Louisville. Also nominated for the four vice presidencies of the Federation are Mrs. J. F. Schlafly, Jr. of Alton, Ill.; Mrs. Norman Armitage of Spartanburg, S. C.; Mrs. Samuel Veitch of Villanova, Pa.; and Mrs. Francis Perkins of Concord, N. H. The National Treasurer, Mrs. Leveton of Portland, Oregon, has been nominated to succeed herself First Vice President Mrs. John Camp of Bryant, Iowa, is slated to become Secretary.

The two days of convention activity — preceded by two days of Board Meetings — will include campaign reports by all 52 State Presidents (D. C. and Puerto Rico included), a symposium of campaign techniques by GOP Congressmen and party leaders, a Congressional panel on issues, and luncheon addresses by Louisville's Mayor Cowger and the former Treasurer of the United States, Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest Stevens.

by Mrs. Tom Hunter in the Blanches Hanes Clement Children's Room of the Main Library, was again a success. There were nine mornings of stories and films for a total attendance of 330 children.

Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Sidden were Mrs. Dorothy Rummage and Mrs. Eva Miller of Tyro.

FOLKS FLIP FOR PET FRESH MILK

Just be sure it's PET...you bet!

DROP IN THE BUCKET!

Southern's lowered rates on grain in the Southeast show what can be done nationwide!

The savings to consumers from the 60 per cent reduction Southern Railway has made in its grain freight rates are just a "drop in the bucket" compared to the savings that could be made in the nation's total transportation bill. But these savings — already being felt in the South — will add up to an estimated $40 million annually. Especially will housewives, small businesses and farmers benefit — all of whom suffer most when unnecessary regulation keeps freight rates artificially high.

These money-saving grain rates, as now in effect, are spurring the development of a great new, billion-dollar-a-year cattle and hog raising industry in the South. More and larger feed mills, feed lots and packing houses will be needed. "Family-size" farms now have a greater opportunity to profit and grow. New jobs are being created. Families will eat better at lower cost.

And don't forget — we're talking about a rate reduction on just one commodity in just one section of the country. Vastly greater savings to consumers nationwide will result when all carriers are free to lower their rates on all agricultural and bulk commodities. Unnecessary regulation of reductions in freight rates is costing American consumers billions of dollars a year. These outdated regulations can be eliminated. In the public interest — in your interest — they should be. Now!

No Man's Land!

Many of Duke Power's free customer services are primarily for men... Farmers. Builders. Plant engineers. Homeowners.

But one of the most important of these is designed exclusively for the ladies. It's Duke Power's Home Service. And its purpose is to help housewives get the best usage, the fullest enjoyment and the longest wear from their electric appliances.

To accomplish this, our graduate home economists make over 18,500 home visits a year and answer uncounted thousands of phone calls from Duke Power customers. In addition, the Home Service Specialists handle a full schedule of talks and demonstrations to school, social and church groups — conducting over 1,900 such programs last year alone.

Home Service is another example of how Duke Power works to make it easy for you to discover the economy, convenience and joy of total electric living.

HERITAGE & MOCKSVILLE

Together For Seventeen Years

Seventeen years ago in September, 1947, Heritage began producing tables in Mocksville. The new plant covered 60,000 square feet and included the latest and most modern equipment and facilities to provide employes with pleasant and safe working conditions. Approximately 60 persons were employed when the plant first opened. From the beginning, the guiding philosophy has been to manufacture furniture which in every way incorporates the same fine features of 'custom craft-shop' furniture. These principles together with the most modern and scientific production methods have enabled Heritage to offer its customers the greatest possible value in the quality furniture field. This philosophy has contributed substantially to the continued success and growth of Heritage and the community of Mocksville.

These 26 employes helped make the first tables during the first year of operations

- DURING THESE SEVENTEEN YEARS -

- Heritage has grown from 60 employes and now provides jobs for approximately 300 people
- Heritage has paid its employes in excess of nine million dollars in wages during this period
- Heritage has paid its share of property taxes—currently 8c out of every Mocksville tax dollar
- Heritage employes have provided leadership in church, civic and other community projects
- Heritage has contributed regularly to the Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Davie County Hospital and other community projects
- Heritage has contributed to the economic welfare of the community through local purchases where possible
- Heritage has acquired additional property for possible future expansion

The County Home Is Now Just A Page Of History

Land Tract Is Sold; Buildings Demolished

By GORDON TOMLINSON

For more than a hundred years there existed for Davie County an institution known by the ignoble title as the "County Poor House." However, more humane consideration for self-respect later brought forth a change in name to "The County Home."

However, regardless of the name it bore its function was the same . . . to offer a place of abode and care to the destitute older people of the county who were without funds or means of caring for themselves. It was a tax-supported institution . . . publicly recognizing the responsibility of society to care for its poor.

To find that the problem of social welfare has always been with us, one has only to look back into the pages of history of Davie County.

While still in its first days of County infancy . . . having been created at Davie County in 1836 . . . one finds in the minutes of the County Court of Pleas and Quarter for February of 1837, the following entry:

"Ordered by the Court that the sheriff advertise and hold an election on next Easter Monday for 7 Wardens of the Poor for Davie County and notify them of the same."

In May, 1837 . . . there is the entry that reads: "At the suggestion and recommendation of the Board of Wardens, ordered by the Court that a tax of ten cents on the pole and five cents on each $100 value of lands be laid for the use of the Poor of the County for the year 1837."

Land Acquired In 1865

It is not certain today when the original "County Poor House" was built. Lee Bowles, County Surveyor, says he has been told that the original Poor House was located on the Liberty Church Road near the old Clarksville voting place. (Clarksville Postoffice was not established until 1855).

However, around 1865 the County

THE DAVIE COUNTY HOME . . . some of the buildings of which are pictured above . . . is no more. The buildings have been torn down and the land has been sold. Most of the buildings pictured above were believed to have been built in 1908. The original tract of land on which the County Home and Prison Camp were located was purchased around 1865.

of Davie acquired what was to become known as the "County Home Land" in three tracts:

One tract was purchased from James M. Johnson that consisted of approximately 95 acres. This was part of a tract of land formerly owned by James Renshaw and sold by him to James M. Johnson in the 1850's. The deed from Johnson to the County was not recorded.

A tract of 5.6 acres was acquired from E. C. Koontz and wife, Della. (Recorded in deed book 35, page 552.)

And 37.5 acres was acquired from James F. and Mary P. Moore in 1919. This Moore has bought from E. L. Gaither, Commissioner, selling lands of John M. Clement for the

Sometime in the early 1900's J. L. Bowles, Dr. James McGuire and Clint Wilson laid off the James M. Johnson tract for the County Home.

Lee Bowles recalls that some wanted to build the County Home down near Bear Creek where the land was rich and grass was growing, but Mr. Johnson said: "The folks cannot eat grass."

The first building on the Johnson land was a wooden frame building and then around 1908 a group of brick buildings was constructed to house the inmates.

Sometime around 1905 on the County Home grounds a pest house was erected in which smallpox patients were confined. When no longer required for use, this building was sold to James A. Boles who moved it to his land where at one time it was used as a dwelling house.

TB Cottage

In 1938, at the instigation of the late Dr. Lester P. Martin, County Physician, the county constructed a TB Cottage at the County Home. The cottage had a long screened porch where beds could be rolled. It was situated in an area providing plenty of sunshine. Various churches and businesses of the area combined to raise money for the necessary equipment.

The cottage was constructed to provide a place for tubercular patients. During those days all the sanatoriums were filled to capacity and there were no places to which a TB patient might be sent for treatment.

The cottage was completed and occupied by September of 1938. For an undetermined number of years it was used for housing and treating TB patients and then later was rented as a dwelling house.

There were many caretakers for the County Home. Among those that some can recall are: B. F. Stone, James Linville, M. Booe Bailey, Louis Forrest, Coe Boger, Wall Craver and Dewey Sain.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Sain were caretakers from 1945 until the home was discontinued in 1955.

Mr. Sain said that he had been told that the first house on the property was located "down in the pasture behind the barn" . . . and that it was replaced by a row of brick cottages which stood about where the last brick house was built. The brick house in which Mr. Sain and family lived with the inmates was cross-shaped. This was a two-story building which contained altogether about 40 rooms and included a kitchen, dining room, small living room, two bathrooms and 4 linen closets.

During the ten years that Mr. Sain was caretaker the average number of patients was about 12. Those of the patients able to work did odd jobs about the place. Patients were placed in the home by the Welfare Department.

Wheat, corn vegetables, pigs, chickens and 4 or 5 cows on the place helped to provide some of the food.

There was a graveyard located on the property which was kept mowed and in good condition. Mr. Sain recalls that there were several graves there but only two had markers with names on them.

By 1955 the buildings of the County Home were getting in bad condition. They were sub-standard by state and federal requirements for housing the aged and infirmed. With only 9 patients in the home, the Davie County Board of Commissioners did not deem it feasible to construct new buildings. In September of that year the nine patients were transferred to the Rivers Rest Home in Harmony. Others that would have gone to the County Home were transferred by the county into other boarding homes and the old age welfare fund of providing financial assistance to deserving individuals was established.

The original tract of County Home land was sold. In 1936, 63 acres were sold to the State Highway Commission for the Prison Camp. In 1963, two acres was sold to the Davie County Rescue Squad.

The remainder of the land surveyed out as 81 acres and was sold to DeWitt Sparks in 1964.

The buildings on the property are now being razed by F. E. Garrett of Salisbury, bringing to an end the era of the "County Poor House" or "The County Home".

ROWAN DAIRY

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Now and then one hears a loud squawk from the railroads about what bad shape they are in and how they should be rescued from their predicament by government assistance and increased business. Yet, judging from a recent experience, it is not clear that they want more business. My brother, Dr. Robert Callahan, his wife Betty and their family were visiting here and wanted to send a package back to their home in Pasadena, California. Although it weighed only 27 pounds and could easily be carried by one person, the postoffice said it was too heavy - wonder this no wonder this institution asks for lighter work and higher postage. A contact with the railway express revealed that the cost to the West Coast was almost prohibitive. Some one then brightly suggested sending the package by freight.

That idea proved to be dubious if not a mistake. An inquiry at the local railroad station was answered by the suggestion that the nearest freight office was located in suburban Mount Vernon. After driving through winding streets which seemed to date back to the Father of his Country, we determined that George Washington himself would never have found the freight office. Finally when the decrepit building was discovered in a desolate area, two gloomy-eyed employees looked slowly up from their desks and with sepulchral expression declared that they had not accepted a freight package in two years. After some reflection, one of the melancholy was taken to Manhattan, giving a individuals mentioned that it might vague address on the West Side.

En route to the elusive destination, our car found itself in a traffic jam on the F. D. Roosevelt Drive, which was not relieved by turning off via the Empire State Building, from which the shade of its builder, Al Smith, must have looked down in tolerant pity at the crawling cars and their heated occupants. With more patience than progress, we made our snail-like way across the island which the Indians valued at $24, and finally saw in the glimmering distance, the lordly Hudson River which was moving faster than we were - even its water-borne freight. By audaciously parking temporarily within the entrance of a trucking company, we were able to pause long enough for to ascend three flights of stairs and ask where the freight office was. A rotund individual who sat as if he had the world on his shoulders and did not wish to add to it mumbled something and pointed to a building across the street.

There we were told that it was not a freight office but that of another trucking concern - these, by the way, appear to be in hustling evidence everywhere. In the meantime, we had been carrying the package around at all our stops and its weight as well as the hot weather did nothing to relieve the urgency of the situation. At last, I spotted a familiar face. It was that of a former student of mine, Saul Rosen, who recognized me from his desk, arose, inquired if he could help, grabbed the package and in the manner of a good infantryman, asked us to follow him. By this time we would have followed anyone, especially this nice fellow. Into a nearby building we filed, package in hand, and soon were actually in the hands of a genial railroad man. He heard our sad story, took the package and hunted up a dispatching pad. Then and there the consignee it across the great open spaces via train. We breathed a great sigh of relief and exhaustion and left it in his care. As far as we know, it is on its way or somewhere out there still searching for a way to California, perhaps now as difficult a feat as found by our pioneers. But if it reaches its destination, little credit can be given to railroad public relations here.

Farm News

County Farm Agent LEO F. WILLIAMS

NEED FOR EXTRA PHOSPHORUS "Extra phosphorus applied to soils low in phosphorus will pay good dividends" says County Extension Chairman, Leo F. Williams.

Most of our growers apply some phosphorus to their soils at planting time. This phosphorus is applied in mixed fertilizer such as 5-10-10, 6-12, or 4-8-12. This is needed on practically all of our soils, but many of our soils need phosphorus "in addition" to the amount applied in the mixed fertilizer.

Where soils are low in this nutrient, it is advisable to broadcast superphosphate and disk it into the soil prior to the regular "at planting" fertilization.

Williams explains that there are several reasons for this need for "extra" phosphorus. First, the phosphorus in fertilizers does not move far from the point that it is applied. Therefore, broadcasting and mixing throughout the plow layer assures you of an adequate supply of available phosphorus. Mixing throughout the soil can only be accomplished prior to seeding pasture and hay crops which remain on the soil for several years.

A second reason for broadcasting "extra" phosphorus is related to the capacity of the soil to "fix" phosphorus. "Fixing" means changing the phosphorus into forms which are not readily available to plants. Your red soils are usually high in iron and aluminum and have a large capacity to tie up or "fix" phosphorus. This means that broadcasting extra phosphorus in clay soils that are low in phosphorus is extremely important continues Williams.

This fixing capacity of a soil is somewhat overcome by placing fertilizer in bands at planting for row crops.

Soil acidity is another factor affecting fixation. Soils that are below PH 5.5 have more soluble iron and aluminum; therefore, more phosphorus is fixed, making it important to lime these acid soils so that applied phosphorus can be used more efficiently.

The amount of phosphorus that should be applied depends primarily on the level of phosphorus in the soil, crop to be seeded, and the soil type. A soil test is the only practical way of determining the level of soil phosphorus. Results of soil test sent in now can be obtained in seven to ten days. Later in the year it may take three weeks or longer.

Mrs. P. W. Hairston Is New President

Mrs. Peter W. Hairston has been named president of the Associated Artists of North Carolina.

An article written by Owen Lewis, Greensboro Daily News Art Editor, appeared in Sunday's edition and is included herewith:

What started out as a maverick art organization five years ago — Associated Artists of North Carolina — now has as its president a descendant of one of Raleigh's finest families who is mistress of 4-200-acre pre-Civil War Cooleemee Plantation near here.

With the election yesterday of Lucy Dortch (Mrs. Peter W.) Hairston as its president, AANC appears to have risen above all the early talk of its being simply a protest movement against the existing art organizations.

Associated Artists, founded in 1959, is an organization of artists and art patrons, statewide in scope, now numbering more than 200 in its membership and employing a paid executive secretary, which puts on two exhibiting members and one open exhibition a year, as well as a number of invitational and special events. It also publishes a monthly newsletter.

Former Presidents I was the first president, serving for two years, and for the past three years, William C. Fields, Fayetteville portrait painter, has been at the helm. Under Fields' direction, the organization has achieved maturity, depth and standards of professionalism. Fields has brought significant figures from the national art world to judge shows, and through his monthly presidential letter has imbued the organization with a sense of professionalism.

shift of the plantation and the livestock project, while husband Peter tends to the tenants and the forestry operation.

BORN IN TURKEY

Art has been a long-time interest of Mrs. Hairston, who began drawing as a child. She was born in Turkey, lived in Athens and Paris and came to her family's native Raleigh at the age of 11. There she studied art for three years, but she has confined her production strictly to the hobby level, and wouldn't dream of entering a professional-level show.

She has been active in the Winston-Salem Gallery of Fine Arts since 1958, and as she puts it, "I've held every job from janitor to president." At one point, she was asked to manage the gallery for two weeks until a replacement could be found. When it appeared after a year that nobody was even looking for a replacement, she resigned that post.

Mrs. Hairston is still on the executive committee of the Winston-Salem gallery and the state Art Society Membership Committee, and she serves as fine arts chairman for the Mocksville Woman's Club. She has done publicity jobs for a number of art organizations.

HER GOALS

"The things I'm primarily interested in (for AANC) are contradictory," said Mrs. Hairston. "I want to push for true professional standards among exhibiting members and at the other end, I want to provide a place where the up and coming can be shown. At present there is too much middle ground."

"I hope we can encourage the use of our traveling show and other traveling shows. Perhaps we can arrange a second traveling show. It is one of the great contributions we make, both to institutions and to artists. I'm especially interested in getting good shows into towns where the public doesn't have access to are of a high professional level. Even with many of the smaller towns having colleges and art centers available, they still often have no access to good shows and show any old thing, frequently on the hobby level."

"About another goal I can't be quite as specific, but it has always been a part of AANC, and that is the improvement of art education in North Carolina. I am not only interested in the hiring of professionals for art education, but also in the improvement of the quality of art appreciation instruction given by classroom teachers.

"Art has been one of the great pleasures of my life. When I was a child I only had a chance to see shows once a year. The change in what has been made available to me has brought me great personal pleasure."

"Interested and informed laymen can make a great contribution by doing much time-consuming detail work (in art organizations) and save the artists the trouble. Somebody interested, but not deeply involved, can do the dirty work. Something that has given this much pleasure can be repaid. Besides, I enjoy it."

SPEAKING OF AANC, outgoing president Bill Fields delivered a healthy swat at the artsy-craftsy set in his last presidential letter to the membership. Fields was appointed by Gov. Sanford as a special advisor in the visual arts to the North Carolina Recreation Advisory Committee. Fields said in part:

"Unqualified teachers promoting dabbling is not my idea of visual arts, no matter how recreational it all may be, and this is what goes on in most of these centers that I have observed. I understand perfectly that the housewife who wants to escape the boredom of housewifery for a few hours does not aspire to any great heights of creativity. On the other hand, while she is escaping, she might just as well be exposed to a serious, creative approach as contrasted to the trivial dabbling she is more likely to get. Some constructive benefit is possible from the former, while only a waste of time can result from the other. Serious, qualified teachers are the only answer to this, as I see it, and is the real problem."

WINSTON-SALEM has the most highly developed arts and crafts program in the state, and a whole new series of classes gets underway there this week. From 1:30 to 9:30 p. m. today at the Community Center, the arts and crafts "Showcase" with demonstrations of a variety of arts and craft work will be presented to the public.

What the Fayetteville Bill Fields says about arts and craft programs does not apply completely to the Winston set up. There are at least three top professionals — Tom Suomalainen, Sue Moore and Jane Polz — on the staff, and a number of others who have achieved high professional recognition in their respective fields. Ironically enough, though, some of the painting classes are taught by a Sunday painter named Bill Fields of Winston-Salem.

THE STATE ART SOCIETY has an important board meeting scheduled for Sept. 25 in Raleigh. Among other things, the group will elect two new trustees to represent the society on the board of trustees of the N. C. Museum of Art.

MOCKS

Homecoming will be held Sunday, September 27 at Mocks Church. The Rev. E. A. Fitzgerald, a former pastor of the church will preach at the 11 A. M. service. Dinner will be served on the grounds at noon and a song service will be held in the afternoon.

The W. S. C. S. met in September at the home of Mrs. Ronnie Burton. Miss Nancy Phelps conducted the program. Fourteen members and one visitor were present.

Mrs. Mabel Dotson of Cary spent Saturday here, the guest of Mrs. Henry Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Crater, Earl and Mrs. Joe Jones and Mrs. Earl Myers attended a birthday dinner Sunday honoring George Phelps. The dinner was given in Winston-Salem.

Mrs. Ronnie Burton, Mrs. Marvin Myers, Mrs. Steve Orrell and Miss Ethel Jones attended a work shop

FUNERALS

ANN SUE MOCK

Graveside services for Anna Sue Mock, 1-day old daughter of Isaac Nelson Mock and Fannie McBride Mock of Advance, Rt. 1, were held Saturday at 11 a. m. at Mocks Methodist Church cemetery by the Rev. Carl Haire.

She died at 5:55 a. m. Friday at Forsyth Memorial Hospital in Winston-Salem.

Surviving in addition to her parents are a half sister, Kathy Dean Benfield of the home; and her grandmother, Mrs. Oleda McBride of Winston-Salem.

MRS. MAMIE COPE

Funeral services for Mrs. Mamie Velva Cope, 75, of Cooleemee, were conducted Friday at 4 p. m. at Cooleemee Episcopal Church by the Rev. Downs Spiller. Burial was in the Cooleemee Legion Memorial Park. She died at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday at Baptist Hospital, Winston-Salem. Her husband, K. L. Cope, was a former sheriff of Davie County.

A native of Davie County, she was a daughter of the late Samuel and Martha Graves Brogdon. Mrs. Cope was twice married, first to Bruce Thompson, who died many years ago. She married Cope in 1918. He was Davie County sheriff from 1926 to 1932.

In addition to her husband, other survivors include a son, Bruce Thompson of Gainesville, Fla.; two grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and a brother, Cain Brogdon of Cooleemee.

Sunday afternoon held at the first Methodist Church in Lexington. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carter spent Sunday afternoon in Lewisville, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Cornatzer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Evans of Winston-Salem visited Clyde Jones recently.

Richard Walker, North and South Farmington, Second Alternate.

This election was held at a county convention September 8, 1964, at the County Office Building; electors were farmers chosen as convention delegates at recent ASC community committee elections throughout the county.

The ASC county office at Mocksville is headquarters for the county committee, and serves as the farmers' local contact for business connected with participation in the programs administered by the committees.

Democrats To Open Headquarters—

Dan Moore Visits Here Thursday

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Dan K. Moore will officially open Davie County Democratic Headquarters during his visit here Thursday morning.

Judge Moore and other state Democratic candidates and leaders are due to arrive in Mocksville by chartered bus at 9:45 a. m. Thursday morning. They will greet friends and supporters at the Davie County Democratic Headquarters to be located in the former Sanford-Mando building, behind C. C. Sanford's Store.

Mrs. Clyde Young, Chairman of Davie County, Democratic Executive Committee, issued an invitation to the citizens of Davie to come by and have coffee and doughnuts

A New Drum Major

The Davie County High School Band will have a new look when it marches on the field Friday night at the football game between Davie and Mooresville.

This new look will be in the form of a Drum Major . . . replete in uniform and all.

Mitchell Matthews, a senior and son of Mr. and Mrs. Gray Matthews of Advance, Rt. 1, will assume these duties. His delay in appearance was due to his uniform which arrived this week.

Mitchell attended the summer music camp this past year at Eastern Carolina College and took the drum major course. This is his fourth year as a member of the Davie High Band as a clarinetist.

He will be wearing a white uniform trimmed with black and gold. The uniform was personally purchased by Mitchell with the help of many friends. Upon his graduation this spring, it will be turned over to the Davie High School.

Mitchell expressed his thanks and appreciation to all those that helped make possible his acquisition of the uniform.

Archie Jones Tells Rotarians of Ecuador

Members of the Mocksville Rotary Club heard Tuesday of experiences of Archie Jones as a Baptist Missionary to Ecuador. Mr. Jones is now home on furlough after spending a four year term in that country.

Mr. Jones told the Rotarians that in Ecuador the population is about 10% Catholic and about 1% has some Protestant inclination . . . but more than 85% have no religious activity whatsoever.

Mr. Jones discussed his work and told of many humorous experiences . . . especially dealing with the language problem.

The Rev. Fred Barnes introduced Mr. Jones. President John Durham presided. Special guests included Bill Tucker of Greensboro; Bill Proctor of Charlotte; Paul Cunningham of Statesville; and Grover Thompson of Albemarle.

Republicans Set Precinct Meetings

Davie County Republicans announced a series of precinct meetings as follows:

There will be a Republican Precinct meeting for North and South Mocksville at Davie County Court House on Thursday night, Sept. 24, at 7:30. S. W. Brown, Jr., chairman of the North Mocksville Precinct and Denton Boger, chairman of South Mocksville Precinct, urged all to attend and announced that the Republican candidates for office in the county will be present at this meeting.

Tuesday, Sept. 29, at 7:30 p.m. the East Shady Grove Precinct will meet in the Advance Community Building.

Wednesday, Sept. 30, at 7:30 p.m. the Fulton Precinct will meet at the Fire Station.

Saturday, Oct. 3, the Smith Grove Precinct will hold a chicken stew at 6 p.m. to which the public is invited to attend and a precinct meeting later that evening.

Low Shoulders Cause Two Wrecks On US 64

On Friday a 1962 Dodge, operated by Edward Lee Brackett, 49, of Hendersonville, heading east, ran off the roadway onto the right shoulder and in pulling back onto the highway the low shoulder caused the Dodge to veer over in the left lane and strike a 1957 Chevrolet being operated by Andrew Shelton of Greensboro.

The accident happened around 7:20 p. m. Friday. Damage to the Chevrolet was estimated at $450 and to the Dodge at $255. State Highway Patrolman K. N. Bolick investigated the accident. There were no charges.

Last Saturday night around 11:10 p. m. another accident occurred when a 1949 Plymouth ran off the road onto the right shoulder and in the attempt to pull the vehicle back onto the highway, the low shoulder caused the vehicle to veer to the left side of the road, skidding off into a gully.

The Plymouth, operated by Charles Douglas Curt, 19, of Charlotte, was heading west at the time of the accident. Damage to the car was estimated at $150. There were no charges.

State Highway Patrolman K. N. Bolick investigated.

Nixon To Speak For Broyhill

Former Vice-President Richard M. Nixon will make a major campaign address in support of the re-election of Ninth District Congressman James T. Broyhill, the Goldwater - Miller ticket, and other Republican candidates at a special rally in Salisbury on Saturday, Oct. 10, at 9 a. m. at the Catawba College Community Auditorium.

Nixon's Salisbury speech will be one of two appearances in North Carolina on Oct. 10. He will fly to Salisbury from Pennsylvania and is scheduled to address a noon rally in Pinchurst before making additional appearances in Tennessee later in the day.

According to Congressman Broyhill, who is arranging the rally, no tickets of admission will be issued and the public is invited to attend. Despite the early morning hour, delegations from all 11 counties of the Ninth District are planning to travel to Salisbury to greet the 1960 Republican standard bearer. Coffee and doughnuts will be served to those attending starting at 8:15 a. m. and entertainment will be provided.

Republican gubernatorial candidate Robert Gavin has announced he will be present for the rally along with other candidates and other prominent Republicans.

This will be Nixon's second visit to Salisbury this year. On Feb. 3rd he appeared at a reception given in his honor by Congressman Broyhill which was attended by a crowd estimated at 4,000. At this time, the former Vice-President praised the work of the Ninth District Congressman and pledged he would return during the 1964 campaign in active support of Broyhill's re-election.

Tire Blows Out And Car Runs Into Tree

A tire blowout on a 1957 Buick caused a 11:10 a. m. Monday causing the driver, Donald Grey Messick, 19, of Advance to lose control and hit a tree. The accident occurred on a rural road, three miles south of Bixby.

State Highway Patrolman Randall Beane said that Messick told him he was heading north when his tire blew out, causing him to lose control of the vehicle which left the roadway on the right and hit a tree.

Damage to the Buick was estimated at $300. There were no charges.

Glenn Thomason At Church Meeting

Applications For Ballots Being Accepted—

New Law on Absentee Ballots Explained

In accordance with the Civilian Absentee Ballot Law of 1963, requests for applications for absentee ballots in the General Election of 1964 are now being accepted by the Davie County Board of Elections, according to Dr. Ramey F. Kemp, Chairman of the Board.

The explanation of the new Law, as prepared by the State Board of Elections, is as follows: 1. Any registered voter, who will be absent from the county all day on general election day, or who is too sick or physically disabled to attend the polls in person, may vote

2. Only the voter himself can apply to the Chairman of the County Board of Elections for an absentee ballot. No one else can do this for him, except where voter becomes suddenly ill or disabled within five days of the election, in which case a member of the immediate family may apply for voter (husband, wife, brother, sister, parent or child).

3. Application can be made up until 6 o'clock P.M. on the Wednesday preceding the election (Oct. 28, 1964). Provided, that in the case of an unexpected illness or physical disability occurring to the voter after six o'clock P.M. on Wednesday, Oct. 28, up until ten o'clock A.M. on Monday, Nov. 2, such voter, or a designated member of the family, may be able to apply for an absentee ballot in the proper manner. The cut-off period of 8:00 P.M., Oct. 28, does not apply to servicemen.

4. All requests for absentee ballot applications must be made in person or by mail addressed to the Chairman of the Davie County Board of Elections, 600 Wilkesboro Street, Mocksville, N. C.

5. Such applications must then be properly filled out and notarized and returned to the Chairman of the Board of Elections. Then the entire Board of Elections will decide whether or not the application is valid.

Using FHA Operating Loan—

Part-Time Farmers Get Help

Part-time farmers in Davie county are using operating loan credit from the Farmers Home Administration to supplement the agricultural part of their earnings, according to Clarence H. Sink, county supervisor of the agency.

Improvements in Farmers Home Administration Loan programs now permit the farm credit agency to advance financial assistance to families on small farms. This includes farms operated on a part-time basis.

Operating loans from FHA can be used by part-time farmers to buy feed, seed and fertilizer, machinery and equipment as well as livestock. Many farmers who operate small farms. Mr. Sink said, but obtain most of their income through another job may be overlooking an opportunity to increase their farm income.

Small amounts of credit, Mr. Sink continued, often can help the farmer replace old and inefficient machinery or purchase new equipment more suitable for his part-time farming operation. "If well planned," Mr. Sink said, "with definite farm income objective in mind, this can be one of the best investments he can make.

Interest rate on operating loans is 5-percent, with a repayment period of from 1 to 7 years.

Farmers Home Administration also makes loans to purchase and develop farms, to develop community water systems, to build housing for senior citizens and farm laborers, and to meet emergency credit needs of farmers suffering from a natural disaster such as hail, flood or drought.

Further information is available at the Farmers Home Administration office located in the County Building in Mocksville, N. C.

Davie Plays Mooresville Here Friday

The Davie County Rebels will meet a supreme test Friday night when they entertain the high flying Mooresville Blue Devils at the Davie High stadium. Kickoff is set for 8 p. m. between the two top contenders in the North Piedmont Conference race.

Last Friday night the Rebels outclassed Chase in a non-conference game in winning 32 to 0. Davie scored in every quarter.

The Rebels pushed across four touchdowns from inside the three-yard line and scored another on an 85-yard gallop by Randall Ward in the third quarter.

Ward's 85-yard run provided the third-quarter touchdown. John Parker went across from the two on a quarterback sneak for the final Davie TD. Boger's kick was good.

Nayrex Barnhardt got the scoring parade going in the first quarter going over from the one. Ken Boger booted the extra point. Bill Nesbit lugged the pigskin across from the three for the second Davie first quarter score.

The Rebels defense was outstanding, holding Chase to zero yards gained rushing. Chase completed four out of 11 aerials for 26 yards.

Davie had 14 first downs to 2 for Chase and gained 280 yards rushing while holding Chase to 0. Davie completed one pass in four attempts for 5-yards; Chase completed 4 for 11 for 26-yards. Chase intercepted one of Davie's passes. Davie kicked one time for 28-yards; Chase punted four times for an average of 29-yards per kick. Davie was penalized a total of 45 yards and Chase 20.

Operation R6P - (Reduce 6 Pests)

Immediate, widespread action is needed if Davie County tobacco growers want to strike a blow at their biggest disease problem.

B. G. Westbrook, associate agricultural agent, says a little time spent now will prevent a lot of the destructive brown spot disease from making it through the winter.

"We need to clean up old tobacco fields immediately," Westbrook said. "Stalks should be cut and stubbles plowed out."

"Not only will this help reduce brown spot next year, but it will also reduce mosaic, nematodes, hornworms, budworms and flea beetles."

Westbrook pointed out that brown spot has been the most destructive disease of flue-cured tobacco for the past seven or eight years. Losses in 1963, were estimated at $5.5 million. They were equally high or higher in 1964.

Despite the high losses, about the only thing growers can do at present is to follow good cultural practices, such as cleaning up old fields.

Westbrook explained that brown spot is fungus disease. The fungus produces spores or seed-like bodies that can be blown around in the wind.

It is believed that the disease survives the winter on old tobacco stalks and roots, and perhaps on some weeds. If the stalks and roots are destroyed immediately after harvest so they will decay before spring, chances of the spores making it through the winter are reduced.

Westbrook stresses, however, that it doesn't do much good for just 50 or 75 per cent of growers to clean up their fields. The disease spreads easily and builds up rapidly. Therefore, it is important for every grower to clean up his field. In that way, he will not be harboring disease for his neighbor.

Enjoy a "MAGIC CARPET" of Warmth in Every Room of Your Home!

The NEW Kresky "EVEN-HEATER"

RADIATES-CIRCULATES

The exclusive new "SNORKEL-FLO" design draws air into the top-rear of the heater and fans it gently down through the heat exchanger. A smooth carpet of mellow warmth flows out the bottom front, automatically controlled for health and comfort.

Now you can have your own "magic carpet" . . . the new Kresky "EVEN-HEATER" with exclusive "SNORKEL-FLO" . . . that changes cold floors in a twinkling to woolly-slipper warmth. Imagine the comfort of heat where heat belongs, at floor level, healthful from room to room—from top to toe. You owe it to yourself to own today's "magic carpet"—a wonderful oil-burning Kresky "EVEN-HEATER."

ATTRACTIVE — Every homemaker will thrill to the harmonizing color of the new "EVEN-HEATER." It's made to be a part of your home—charming, modern and so easy to keep clean and sparkling new.

ECONOMICAL — It's smart to own a Kresky because it's engineered to use only as much oil as you need for the warmth you want. No ducts or registers needed—it costs less to install and maintain an "EVEN-HEATER."

CAREFREE — Kresky comfort means ease of mind, too! Just set the fingertip thermostatic controls and steady, healthful temperature is automatically maintained. You'll wonder how you ever did without "SNORKEL-FLO."

COMPACT — Only 22" x 34 1/4" x 32" high—the Kresky "EVEN-HEATER" delivers 61,150 BTUs of big-job heating. Yet it fits, like furniture, where you want it placed, sending "magic-carpet" warmth from room to room.

Congressional Rally To Be At Taylorsville

The Ninth District Democratic Congressional Rally will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 28, in Taylorsville. Top officials of the Democratic Party will make a tour of all Congressional Districts starting Oct. 13 and ending Oct. 28. Moving over the State with the caravan will be Dan K. Moore, nominee for Governor; Bob Scott, nominee for Lt. Governor; Governor Terry Sanford; members of the Council of State; Senators Ervin and Jordan; and the Congressman in whose district the entourage appears; candidates for the General Assembly from counties within the districts; and others.

NOTICE OF STATE BOND ELECTION
To be held on Tuesday, November 3, 1964 (the date of the general election) in the STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA on the issuance of $100,000,000 STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA PUBLIC SCHOOL FACILITIES BONDS OF 1963

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN TO THE QUALIFIED VOTERS OF DAVIE COUNTY that Governor Terry Sanford, by Proclamation dated August 12th, 1964, has called a State bond election to be held in each County of the State of North Carolina on Tuesday, November 3, 1964 at which the following question will be submitted to the qualified voters of the State of North Carolina:

Shall the State of North Carolina contract a new debt on behalf of the State by issuance of one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000) State of North Carolina Public School Facilities Bonds of 1963 for the purpose of providing grants-in-aid to the various counties of the State for the construction, reconstruction, enlargement, improvement and renovation of public school facilities, and for the purchase of such equipment as shall be essential to the efficient operation of the facilities; Provided: In the event the State Board of Education determines and finds as a fact that any funds allocated by Chapter 1079 of the 1963 Session Laws of North Carolina from the proceeds of said bonds to the respective county and city administrative units are not needed for the construction, reconstruction, enlargement, improvement or renovation of public school facilities or purchase of equipment for school facilities by any of the administrative units, such unneeded funds allocated to any of the administrative units may be used for the retirement of school bonds issued by the county or municipality in which such administrative unit is located prior to the date when said Chapter 1079 became effective?

The issuance of the bonds referred to in said question has been authorized by Chapter 1079 of the 1963 Session Laws of North Carolina subject to a favorable vote of a majority of the qualified voters of the State who shall vote in said State bond election.

The polls for said election will be open from 6:30 A.M. to 6:30 P.M., Eastern Standard Time, at the same places at which the general election will be held.

Absentee ballots will be allowed in said election. The provisions of G.S. 163-31, 163-31.1 and 163-31.2 govern the registration of voters. The times and places for registration and the names of the election officials are the same as for the general election being held on the same day. Qualified voters who are not certain whether they are registered should contact the County Board of Elections.

Dated this 23rd day of September, 1964.

New 1965 Chevrolets Go On Display Thursday

"Chevrolet takes its longest stride into the fine car field with its 1965 passenger cars — plus offering the widest variety of luxury models and product features in its 54-year history", said an official of the Chevrolet Company this week.

On display in the showrooms of Pennington Chevrolet Company this Thursday, September 24th, will be many of the 45 models of the five distinctive lines of new Chevrolets. Twenty of these 45 models will be "sport models" — convertibles and hardtops.

There are all-new cars in two lines: ... The regular Chevrolet moves to a new prestige plateau with the greatest comfort and luxury ever offered.

... The Corvair makes a dramatic advance with its first major styling change in five years.

Customers approved design, with significant styling refinements, is continued for the Chevelle, Chevy II and Corvete lines. The Corvete also becomes the first American car to provide four-wheel disc brakes as standard equipment.

Among approximately 400 accessories and optional features available on 1965 Chevrolets is the first EM stereo system offered by an auto maker. Another is a telescoping steering column to give greater driving comfort for Corvairs and Corvettes.

O. K. Pope, manager of the Pennington Chevrolet Company, issued an invitation to the public to come in and view the new 1965 Chevrolets beginning Thursday morning. They will remain open until 9 p. m. each evening. There will be free refreshments and favors, and in addition

Home buyers ask us—

- Q.—I want a home loan that will give some flexibility in making payments. Could we make payments in advance?
A.—You certainly can. There's a pre-payment clause written right into the loan.
 - Q.—How does it work?
A.—You can pay ahead on the principal of the loan at any time.
 - Q.—What are the advantages of advance payments?
A.—One: you save interest charges. The faster you pay off the principal, the less interest you are charged. Two: you don't have to worry about emergencies forcing you to miss a payment if you have made payments in advance.

Seventh Season Presents Thirteen Productions . . .

Tanglewood Theatre Attendance 19,282

Tanglewood Barn Theatre closed its seventh season successfully Sunday night and tallied a total attendance of 19,282 for its thirteen productions.

The most popular play was "Anniversary Waltz" which drew an audience of 1844; "The Male Animal" drew 1601. Each of the Tanglewood Barn Theatre's productions runs five nights, Wednesday through Sunday, weekly. An exception this summer was the production of "A Man For All Seasons," Tanglewood's second play of the 1964 season, which attracted a total of 2523 people for its two-week run through the Fourth of July holiday.

A season tabulation revealed that 35 states and Canada were represented during the summer. Virginia contributed the largest number of out-of-state patrons with an average of two parties per night. Visitors from other states in notable numbers were, in order, Florida, New Jersey, South Carolina, Georgia, Maryland, New York, Tennessee, Ohio, Illinois, Pennsylvania, and California representation averaged a party per week.

The estimated 115 North Carolina towns represented during the season suggests statewide interest from the mountains to the coast inclusively. The greatest numbers of regular patrons attended from Greensboro, High Point, Salisbury, Burlington, and Charlotte.

The average attendance figures show that Saturday is the most popular night, with Friday, Sunday, Wednesday and Thursday following in order of attendance.

A highlight of Tanglewood Barn Theatre's seventh season was the commemoration of the theatre's 100,000th patron, Vance Paschal, of Winston-Salem, at the fifth show "Come Back Little Sheba." Also attending this memorable performance was Sidney Blackmer who starred in the original Broadway production.

The professional acting company was comprised of four actors and four actresses for the season with guest stars Judy Palmer and Peter Bromilow appearing in the final production "Private Lives."

Veteran Tanglewood actor Don Subolik and newcomer JoAnne Akalaitis were in residence the entire 15 weeks. Don will pursue his acting career in New York, and JoAnne's immediate plans include a year of study in France.

Jim Lawless, outstanding in a variety of roles this summer, missed the last two weeks of Tanglewood production in order to report to the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre, in Minneapolis, where Jim has been awarded the largest McKnight Fellowship available for the study of acting.

Diane Linders' responsibilities on the teaching staff of the Drama Department at Cornell University called her from Tanglewood prior to the close of the season. Robert Shea returned to New York for graduate study at New York University in Speech Pathology.

The popular Hardy couple—Bill and Martha Nell—participated in the first half of Tanglewood's season. Bill's commitment to a Film-making Workshop in Los Angeles necessitated the Hardy's early departure. Mr. Hardy is an Associate Professor in the Department of Radio, Television, and Motion Pictures at UNC, Chapel Hill.

Barbara Ellison who was at Tanglewood for the first three productions will be working in New York this winter as a production secretary.

Managing-Director James H. Walton resumed his duties Monday morning as Director of the Wake Forest College Theatre and as an instructor in Speech. Guest Director Robert Kafil returned to New York as an administrative secretary with Actors Equity. Tom Behrens, Designer and Technical Director for the season at Tanglewood will remain in Winston-Salem as a staff member of The Little Theatre.

New Ford Lines Go On Display At Reavis Autos

What is termed as the greatest line-up of the greatest Fords ever will be on display in the showrooms of Reavis Autos in Mocksville beginning Friday.

In announcing the public showing, Lawrence Reavis, manager, said that the new 1965 models of Ford, Falcon, Fairlane, Mustang, and T-Bird would be shown. During the two day showing, refreshments and favors will be given to those attending plus an opportunity to win door prizes of free gasoline to be given away.

As to the various new models Mr. Reavis pointed out:

The Ford will be the most changed in the 15-year history.

All 17 models in the 1965 Ford lineup — including a new luxurious

"LTD" series — are literally new from tires to roof and from bumper to bumper," said Mr. Reavis.

Mr. Reavis said that "The rare combination of improved performance with increased fuel economy marks the tastefully restyled Ford Falcon for 1965. This involves a careful blending of more powerful engines with improved transmissions which give not only added performance and at the same time, gas savings of up to 15 percent."

"The Fairlane is the most popular intermediate-size car on America's highways and is completely restyled inside and out for 1965 and has been given a big car ride to match its new big car look," said Mr. Reavis.

The Mustang, announced in hard-top and convertible models by Ford Division as the first of its 1965 cars last April has added a third model . . . the "2-plus-2" fastback. This new Mustang provides seating for four . . . fold-down rear seats permit added luggage and lengthy equipment to be carried inside the car with driver and passenger.

Thunderbird, the luxury car of the Ford line, has new exterior trim and ornamentation for 1965 plus new standards of comfort and elegance. Other new features of the 1965 T-Bird include: Front disc brakes; sequential turn signals; convertible dome light; keyless locking system; reversible keys.

Two Cars Sideswiped On Narrow Dirt Road

Two cars sideswiped one another around 5:45 p.m. Monday on a narrow dirt road, three miles north of Cana.

State Highway Patrolman Randall Beane said that his investigation disclosed that a 1962 Ford, operated by Bobby Gene Cook, 27, of Route 5, Mocksville, and a 1955 Cadillac, operated by Hubert Boles, 56, of Route 5, Mocksville, sideswiped one another when they met on the narrow road.

Damage to each car was estimated at $200. There were no charges.

Social Security In Davie County

"I know the Social Security Administration keeps good records of self-employment income, but I just want to make sure."

This is a statement frequently heard in social security offices throughout the county, according to Taft McCoy, field representative for social security in Davie County.

"It raises a very important point," McCoy said. "We appreciate the trust self-employed people put in our ability to keep accurate records of their self-employment income. However, it is only good business to make certain those records are correct, especially since future social security benefits are based on these records."

There are two ways a self-employed person can help the Social Security Administration keep his record accurate. First, he should make sure that the Schedule SE Form 1040 (US Report of Self-Employment Income) is properly prepared. He should make certain that each item on this report is filled in accurately and completely, especially the social security account number. Of the more than 7 million self-employment returns filed each year, over 3 per cent are received with either incorrect social security account numbers or none at all.

The second way to help insure that your social security record is correct is for the self-employed to ask for a statement of wages from the Social Security Administration from time to time. The Social Security Office has postal card forms that are to be used for this purpose. The office at 105 Corriher Avenue, Salisbury, N. C., will send one of these postal cards upon request.

Matter of A Lot To Lose . . . Nothing To Gain—

A Union At Heritage Is Not Needed

Some sage once observed: "If you build a better mousetrap . . . the world will beat a path to your door".

By the like token, if you establish a growing and progressive business . . . there will be others that will want to get in on the act.

That is the way we view the current effort of the Carpenters-Joiners Union, operating out of Statesville to persuade the employees of the Mocksville Plant of the Heritage Furniture Company that they should unionize.

It was in September of 1947 that Heritage began producing tables in Mocksville. Approximately 60 persons were employed at that time in one of the most modern furniture plants in the entire nation. Produced was the tops in quality furniture, reflecting a type of craftsmanship that could only be possible with happy and satisfied employees.

During the past seventeen years his company has grown and today provides employment for approximately 300 persons. During this period Heritage has paid these employees in excess of nine million dollars. In addition to this salary, they have made available the very best in fringe benefits and contributed on behalf of their employees to various church, community and civic projects.

Today Heritage furniture . . . made in Mocksville . . . is distributed on a national basis . . . and brings prestige not only to the company and its craftsman, but to the entire community as well.

Recently representatives from the district office, located in Statesville, of the Carpenters-Joiners Union began a drive to bring about a union at Heritage. So far their attempts have been confined to passing out cards and literature among the employees and attempting to persuade certain ones of these that their lot would be better off with a union . . . than it is now. But this we cannot see.

We know of no company that has been more concerned with the welfare of their employees than Heritage. We know of no company that has more progressively kept pace with the times . . . offering the most modern of equipment and the best of working conditions . . . than Heritage. We know of no company during a 17-year period that has offered more consistent employment and at the top prevailing wage . . . than Heritage.

There is a place in this modern world for most anything . . . but by the same token there are places where some things just won't do. For example:

There is certainly a place for gasoline in our every day lives. This gasoline, properly used, provides fuels for our motor vehicles that transport us to the many places we need to go. However, this same gasoline . . . improperly used in the wrong place . . . and in the wrong way . . . can well result in a tragic conflagration that destroys everything.

The above illustration is only to lead us into the observation that there are places where the organization of labor may serve a useful purpose . . . but there are other places where such organization or attempted organization may prove harmful to all concerned.

This attempt to organize the employees of Heritage Furniture Company can serve no useful purpose whatsoever. What will it gain for the employees that they do not already have? What will it contribute to the company's reputation as one of the top craftsmen in the furniture field? What will it add to the feeling of personal independence and pride that the individual employee of such a company now possesses?

Now back to our initial thought:

The unionization of Heritage employees will be of much more benefit to the Carpenters-Joiners Union than it will be to the Heritage employees. In this, as we see it, the union has nothing to lose and everything to gain . . . the Heritage employees have a lot to lose and nothing to gain . . . and so does this community.

A Center Grange Good Health Project of 1948

Senator SAM ERVIN Says:

WASHINGTON — The two big questions deadlocking Congressional adjournment . . . medical care for those 65 years or older under social security and how to deal with the Supreme Court's controversial reapportionment decision . . . may get some new approaches this week. Last week found them to be impendable in opinions voiced in cloakrooms over how much longer the second session of this Congress would continue.

Some members were already on the campaign trail between roll call votes as day to day sessions shortened a little, corridors on Capitol Hill became quieter with the tourist season slackening, and autumn in Washington brought all of the traditional splendor of fall.

In a series of Senate roll call votes on the reapportionment rider to the foreign aid bill, and motions and amendments thereto, the filibuster went on. At issue is the question of what action, if any, Congress proposes to take to permit State legislative bodies to determine reapportionment matters that have traditionally been decided by them. The Congressional move enunciated by the House passed Tuck bill and the proposed Mansfield-Dirksen rider stem from the far reaching June 15th Supreme Court decision which overturned this long established power.

The Senate has rejected a "slap on the wrist" McCarthy-Javits resolution which would have expressed the "sense of the Congress" that Federal courts grant more time to the states to comply with reapportionment orders. In a subsequent vote, it also rejected a strong resolution patterned after the House approved Tuck bill to forbid Federal Courts from exercising jurisdiction over matters of state legislative reapportionment.

As last week ended, neither those favoring a strong curb on Federal interference with reapportionment problems nor those favoring the Court's extension of its power into this new field of judicial decrees, had the votes to settle the issue.

The controversial medical care program for the aged under social security rested in a Senate-House conference to resolve conflicting views on two versions of social security amendments. The House bill, which provides a 5 per cent increase in benefit checks to some 20 million beneficiaries of social security, does not contain any social security plan for medical care. Thus the issue before the 12 conferees is whether to include a Senate passed medicare plan that to date never has gained majority approval in the House Ways and Means Committee, and whose influential Chairman Mills, has a large voice in all tax matters.

The resolution of these two issues would likely pave the way for adjournment. The other remaining major bills, such as foreign aid, the Appalachia program, and the supplemental appropriations bill do not appear to raise the controversies that reapportionment and medicare have.

VACATIONS
A vacation cottage in the popular A-frame built of easily obtained lumber like Douglas fir can provide as many as three levels for summer living.

NO CHANCE . . . Consensus in the Eighth and Ninth Congressional Districts is that Jonas and Broyles, our two Republicans in the SURPRISING STRENGTH . . . We have been on trips as far east as Elizabeth City and as far west as North Wilkesboro and Charlotte within the past two weeks. In all areas, Goldwater seems to have much more strength than we thought when looking at the State from the Raleigh scene.

In fact, we have run into a Democrat here and there—on a real finer heading towards 90—who has never, never split a ticket . . . but will vote for Barry Goldwater come November.

BY THE THOUSAND . . . Dr. Martin Luther King, Negro leader whose sense is not of the common variety, makes votes for the GOP every time he opens his mouth.

QUIET . . . But there is an ominous quiet these days on city streets. And each hour of quietude means votes for President Johnson.

A wave of demonstrations between now and November 3, covered as they are by the news media, could swing millions of ballots to that man in the horn rims.

INCIDENTALLY, Goldwater is doing more for the glasses business than any man since Harold Lloyd. The women went wild about him here in Raleigh. He was quick with the wisecrack, very personable, and completely at ease with a few or a crowd.

SIXTY AND NOW . . . In 1960, you had John F. Kennedy running against the Vice President of the United States. If President Eisenhower had been a small percentage of the politician President Johnson is, Nixon would be President today.

FOUR YEARS ago, here in North Carolina, Vice President Nixon carried 39 of the State's 100 counties in his bid for the Presidency. He polled 655,420 votes to 713,136 votes for Kennedy.

THIS TIME, you have Goldwater running against the President.

IT IS TRUE that race relations have worsened, thus weakening the Democrats, but not since Herbert Hoover in 1932 has a President failed to win re-election.

GOOD NEWS . . . L. R. Harrill of Raleigh, who built the 4-H Club program in North Carolina to one of the very best in the nation, is at work on a history of the first 50 years of the 4-H Club work in this State. He is now gathering material, hopes to begin writing shortly after a three-months' tour to far-sounding places with strange-sounding names.

DOING WELL . . . The Democrat's two deposed Congressmen — Alvin Paul Kitchin of Wadesboro and Hugh Alexander of Kannapolis — are doing all right, thank you, as attorneys for important U. S. Senate Committees watched over by Senators Sam Ervin and Everett Jordan.

While their annual salaries are perhaps slightly less than when they were members of the House, their expenses, too, are much less—particularly those coming along on biennial occasions and connected with staying in office.

Nosey neighbors of Alexander, seeing a moving van around his Kannapolis home one twilight last week, are still wondering if he plans take up residence in Washington, D. C.

IT'S THE LAW . . . You can't walk a block these days without being stopped to hear at least one Old South story about the Civil Rights Law.

THIS ONE is different from the others in that it happens to be the truth.

In the Research Triangle area not too far from Raleigh, a few days ago four white boys and two colored — all of them slicked up a la collegiate — piled out of this car and into the small restaurant and loudly called for service.

One of the two waitresses, taken aback a little, was uncertain as to what to do. As she faltered, her older, more experienced assistant moved quickly from the back, brushed her aside. "Let me handle this," she said.

Motioning to the two colored boys, she said: "You all sit right here." With that, she gave each of them a glass of water. Glancing at the four white boys, she said, "Stand around as long as you like, boys. You don't get fed here, but the Law says I must feed your Negro friends — and that's what I'm going to do."

The six collegians — at least four of them blushing—quietly left the restaurant.

Washington Report

BY CONGRESSMAN JAMES T. BROYHILL
9TH DISTRICT OF NORTH CAROLINA

Unfinished Business
Washington's big guessing game these days concerns when Congress will adjourn. Since nobody knows when the gavel will fall, there are many predictions. The majority and minority leadership have hopeful eyes cast on Oct. 1, but less optimistic guesses run as late as Oct. 17.

Among the big bills requiring consideration by both the House and Senate is the proposed Appalachia program that appears stalled at the present time. The strategy seems to be that if the Senate approves the bill first by a top-heavy majority, the bill will be brought to the House. The possibility of this dims as the Senate continues its impasse with the proposal to delay the effect of the Supreme Court's decision on the reapportionment of State legislatures.

The House has already acted on the reapportionment question. In this debate, a Constitutional amendment to clarify the confusion raised by the Court's decision was discussed. A second round began last week as the House Rules Committee approved a joint resolution for debate which contains the actual language of such an amendment. It is likely to receive attention very soon and will be discussed in this column later.

Arguments over two other big bills must be settled before adjournment. They are the pending Social Security bill and changes to the Defense Education Act. Both have been passed in differing forms by the House and Senate. The differences in both bills are large and efforts are now going on to hammer out some agreement behind closed doors before they are reported back for final consideration.

On the Social Security bill, virtually all public attention has been focused on the medical care amendment the Senate added to the House passed bill. However, there are a total of 64 differences to be worked out before the bill can be sent to the President. It should be ready for final action this week.

Health, Education and Welfare

than a decade one of the largest departments in Washington. The activities given to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare make a long list even in a bare outline form. We saw that recently when the House gave final approval to legislation providing $6.5 billion to operate the Department until next June 30. The bulk of this amount (almost $3 billion) finances Federal contributions to the States for various cooperative programs. Of this, $2.8 billion is for grants to the States for the Federal share of public assistance payments.

Approximately $1 billion is set aside for the National Institutes of Health to finance research into cancer, child health, heart disease, mental health, allergies, arthritis, and other diseases where cures or preventives are still sought.

More than $245 is programmed for hospital construction. Air pollution problems ($21 million), nursing services and training ($21 million), sewage plant construction ($90 million), construction of community mental health centers ($35 million) and health professions education aid ($110 million) are only a few of the items from this long list.

Under its education activities, the Department is budgeted to spend roughly $1.5 billion. About one third of this will go for the construction of college facilities, $287 million for loans to college students and other programs under the Defense Education Act, $185 million for vocational education, and $332 million for payments to public schools in areas with impacted population problems because of Federal activities.

During the debate on the President's poverty bill, the argument was made that the Federal government and the States are already deeply involved in a war on poverty through programs directly and indirectly related to such an effort which have been added to the law books one by one. Although the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare is only one department, it provides a glimpse of how massive these commitments have become over the years.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I been pritty busy all week in what them school folks calls the field of higher education. It all come about on account of a matter bring up by my preacher Sunday morning. He allowed as how any man that was 50 year old and didn't have a philosophy in life wasn't worth his salt.

I'm 50 year old with plenty to spare and I'm trying ever day to be worth my salt. I got crab grass, chickens that ain't laying, milk cows that was behind in production, notes at the bank, arthritis in my big toe, but I ain't shore about this philosophy item.

60 Second Sermons
By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Nothing is so popular as kindness" - Cicero.

A columnist who attacked a screen star in his paper was embarrassed to meet the star at a party a few days later.

"I'm really sorry I wrote that," apologized the writer. "I guess I'm just a jackass."

"Don't say that," said the actor pompously. "You're no more a jackass than I am."

"That," murmured the critic, unkindly, "is close enough."

There is so much thoughtless unkindness in this world. People do not plan to be unkind. In fact, they plan an enormous amount of what might be termed "professional kindness." We give grandly to causes, make a note of it for tax purposes and smugly think we are kind. That isn't the kind of kindness we mean. The truly kind person is kind in little ways. Strangers notice it, people in trouble warm to it, those who least expect it expand in it and love the one who extends their kindness.

There is too little genuine kindness in little things. Yet this kindness takes nothing more than an understanding heart and a moment's expression of that understanding. Plan a moment each day in which to be kind in some way. There is no more certain way to grow and enjoy growing.

TOO EXPOSED
If your home entrance is too exposed to the street, why not install a simple wood screen to soften the approach? You sometimes need only an eight foot section seven feet tall to provide some privacy.

First off, I didn't even know how to spell it. I went over to Ed Doolittle's to study up on it in Ed's dictionary and couldn't even find it. I was looking under the F items and Ed's daughter, the one that works in the city and calls dinner "lunch," showed it to me in the P section. The same folks that spells numonia with a P probably invented the P in philosophy. I ain't never spell numonia with a P and I don't aim to start putting one in philosophy.

From the best I could get out of Ed's dictionary, philosophy is "moral wisdom." That's gitting too high up on the ladder, Mister Editor, fer me. Fer instance, I always drive around till I find a parking meter with some time left on it. I know it's wisdom, but is it moral? Looks to me like my preacher could slick to the Bible and leave the dictionary out of it. I aim to put this item on the agenda at the country store Saturday night. Clem Wesber, that finished the 8th grade and is our outstanding scholar, can probably throw some light on the matter.

Gitting over to matters I can handle a little better, I see where one of them Washington column writers says Goldwater didn't decide to run for President a year ago until his old lady give the go-ahead signal. I wouldn't doubt it none. I been married a long time and I've found it's mighty hard to git around a woman. And this is special true if she's double parking.

Incidental, the papers this week was so full of politics they was beginning to look like the Congressional Record. Ed Doolittle, that claims nothing but Republicans will git by St. Peter, is telling around the community he found a hen egg in his barn with BG on it fer Barry Goldwater. But I recollect back in 1948 Ed found an egg with TD on it fer Tom Dewey. So I don't put no faith in Ed's hens.

Personal, Mister Editor, my hens has about quit laying. They slowed up in July when the Republican convention started, quit when the Democrats gathered. I reckon they was too worried about the future of the country to set still.

Your truly,
Uncle Dave

Host To Editors At Breakfast—

Governor Sanford Discusses Programs

Last week Governor Terry Sanford was host at a series of breakfasts to editors from all over the state. At these breakfasts the Governor discussed the affairs of the state and explained the intricacies of the various programs. Some of the more interesting points he discussed were as follows:

A plan now being developed by the Traffic Code Commission which would take cases out of the courts and put them under "administrators" who could suspend or revoke licenses. The Governor pointed out that most motorists are not too concerned about traffic fines but were concerned about losing their licenses. He pointed out that such a system has been in effect in the State of Connecticut and that their highway fatality rate is one of the lowest in the nation. This plan would operate similar to that of licensing and control of airplane pilots.

Commenting on a question concerning about the North Carolina law preventing a Governor from succeeding himself Governor Sanford said he thought this had some merit. "In fact it might be better if a Governor was prevented from stepping from the Governor's chair into the race for U. S. Senate", he said. In this he pointed out that under the present setup the Gov. is concerned only with the surgency to put his programs across just as quickly as possible . . . and that if he were concerned with running for re-election, he might be more concerned with political popularity than with putting across the best programs for the state. He also said, however, that four years were pretty short to put across many programs and suggested that one six-year term might be more ideal.

He said that he felt that most of the programs he had initiated would be carried on by the next administration. "They are sound programs and will benefit the people of this state . . . there would be no reason for not carrying them on", he said.

His plans for the future . . . "Probably return to the practice of law", he said he had not been offered a position in Washington and that he doubted if he could financially afford to take one if it should be offered.

He said the 'across the board sales tax' program was the biggest accomplishment of his administration in that it provided a sound tax structure and basis for putting across the other needed programs.

He cited the failure to reduce highway fatalities as being the most disappointing part of his administration. "We tried . . . we initiated several programs . . . but nothing worked. It seems that our citizens have almost reached a point where there is total disrespect for highway safety", said the Governor.

This sentiment expressed by most of the editors present was that Governor Terry Sanford brought to North Carolina bold and imaginative programs which are pushing our state to the forefront in the nation. All agreed that he will go down in history as one of North Carolina's best Governors.

Mrs. Hendricks made these announcements at a Neighborhood meeting held on Friday morning, September 18, in the Girl Scout Room with the Neighborhood chairman, Mrs. Jack Sanford, in charge of the meeting.

Other Neighborhood personnel includes: Troop Consultant, Mrs. Jack Sanford; District Advisor, Miss Daphie Gattford; Cookie Chairman, Mrs. Jack Sanford; Camp Promotion Chairman, Mrs. Ed Short; Publicity Chairman, Mrs. Ed Short; Brownie Consultant, Mrs. James Boger; and, Junior Consultant, Mrs. John Gintner.

YADKIN VALLEY

Burgess (Bert) Carter, long time resident of this community, passed away on Saturday. Funeral services and interment were conducted at Yadkin Valley Church on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Oscar Allen and Miss Eloise Ward of Farmington visited Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Smith on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blake of Greensboro visited relatives in this area on Sunday.

Gray Matthews was able to return home from the hospital last Thursday. He is still on crutches, but has improved.

Will Howell remains a patient at Forsyth Memorial Hospital. His condition remains about the same.

Mr. and Mrs. Earnest McKnight and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Howard visited Mrs. Bertha Lloyd at Chapel Hill on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris Boyer and sons, Randy and Larry; and Mrs. Elzie Marshall and daughter, Linda, were Sunday evening visitors of the Gray Matthews family.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Langston and daughter, Nancy, spent Saturday in Statesville with Mr. and Mrs. Willie Langston.

Mrs. Annie Holm of San Antonio, Texas, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Eugene Kauser.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert King visited Mr. and Mrs. Henry McBride on Sunday.

Visiting the Joe Langstons on Sunday were Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Cheshire and Mr. and Mrs. Willard Foster.

Did you see the big article in Sunday's Winston-Salem Journal stating: "Democrats Draw Line, South's Vote Expendable." Well if "Expendable" means what Webster says it means, I'm of the opinion that very few Southerners agree with that.

Library News

By MRS. I. R. HUSKE

The first book of its kind is now in your Davie County Public Library! It is "Vaughn's Parade and Flood Guide"—and is just in time to help and interest our own Davie County people as they think of plans for the various parades held during the fall season!

L. F. Vaughn is known all over the United States as a parade and float expert. His wide experience and knowledge of the special materials needed, and of how to handle them, have brought him many calls from small towns for advice and assistance in building floats.

As floats have become more elaborate the smaller cities, particularly, are unable to keep up with these advances. Something to simplify the process is needed and this book is the result.

It answers the question, "Just how do we go about organizing a parade, anyway?" It is full of do-it-yourself ideas, and also gives an interesting section on the history of parades. There are many helpful illustrations, showing finished floats and also methods of working on them; also, a chapter on clowns in a parade.

Committee members responsible for floats will surely want to see this book! Let us know if you would like to have it reserved for you!

'65 Chevrolet Impala Sport Sedan

Chevrolet Impala '65

It's longer, lower, wider—with comforts that'll have many an expensive car wondering why it didn't think of them first. More shoulder room, more leg room up front. Curved side windows, an instrument panel that's a conversation piece. In fact, just about everything's new right down to the road. And even that'll seem newer because the Jet-smooth ride is smoother than ever.

'65 Chevelle Malibu Super Sport Coupe

Chevelle Malibu '65

Here's all that made Chevelle America's most popular new-sized car—plus some new surprises. Like those cleaner, holder lines. Like the silky way its new ride skims over the choppiest roads. Like V8 power that'll make you think we stole some of Corvette's stuff—which we did. All told, five engines are available from a quieter six to a V8 that comes on 300 horses strong.

'65 Chevy II Nova 4-Door Sedan

Chevy II Nova '65

It may be the expensive-looking thrift car you've laid eyes on. But thrifty it is. The big difference being that Chevy II's marvelous mechanical efficiency now wears a debonair new look. And offers a new range of engines, including a new 300-hp V8. You could get the idea that saving you money was the last thing we had in mind—if it weren't for that price sticker on the window.

New top-of-the-line Corvair Corsa Sport Coupe

Corvair Corsa '65

Now's this for sport with an international flair! The longer, wider design gives all closed models a hardtop roof, along with more shoulder and entrance room. And to go with the racer look, there's up to 180 hp available in the new Corsa series, up to 140 hp in the Monza and 500 series. Also a flatter riding independent suspension, more responsive steering and a wider road stance.

New Midway Show Is Set For Dixie Classic Fair

The James E. Strates Shows will provide for the first time the midway entertainment at the Dixie Classic Fair in Winston-Salem, Oct. 6-10, it has been announced by Neil Bolton, fair manager.

When this traveling city of 50 railroad cars arrives in town, a burst of energy will take place as every one of its approximately 1,000 citizens will transform over 2,000,000 pounds of canvas, electrical cables, steel girders, water lines, electric lights and food supplies into a bright, fun-filled mile of midway. And when the work is completed, the people of Strates City will don their costumes and bright uniforms, ready to welcome and entertain all who pass through the gates to their city.

The exciting, brightly lighted mile of midway will provide amusement for all the family. They will have their choice of such spine-chilling rides as the Roll-O-Plane, which stops high in the air and then spins and hurls backwards towards the ground, pulling out of its frantic dive at the very last minute. Or the breath-taking Round-Up, which spins its riders until they're pressed back against the cage and then throws them up in the air at a 45 degree angle.

Fairgoers can also find thrills by visiting the Midway's hair-raising motorcycle act with daredevil drivers screaming around the vertical walls of the motor-dome and riding on one foot without holding on.

One of the biggest attractions of the James E. Strates Shows, however, is not found on the midway, but directly inside the city's main entrance. It is the largest free circuit menagerie on the road. Five movie performers are included in the exhibit: Three ponderous pachyderms who have been featured performers in the "Tarzan" movie series, and two African hyenas who appeared in Walt Disney's "Swiss Family Robinson." The largest of the other animals in the menagerie is George, a blood-sweating hippo from the Nile River, who lazes about in his custom-made traveling swimming tank and lawns at onlookers.

The menagerie also includes such unique jungle beasts as Charlie, a gigantic sacred Brahma bull from India; five llamas from the towering Andes Mountains of Peru; Jamie, a zebra who is white with black stripes; Cocoa, the chipper chimp; a black-maned Nubian lion family; baby deer; a bear, and a varied array of animals whose silly antics will delight youngsters of all ages.

No midway is complete without refreshment, games, music, and a bevy of dancing girls. Strates has them too — musical reviews with shows that are comparable to those seen in large night clubs, target shooting games for big prizes, great tests of skill and strength, and, of course, popcorn, hot dogs and cotton candy.

The "mayor" and president of Strates Shows is E. James Strates, a 34 year old ex-marine who took over the shows 5 years ago, following the death of his father, James E. Strates, who was the founder of America's largest railroad shows.

"Our business is selling entertainment," says the husky show president, "and we believe in selling it honestly. We do what is right and I think that when a person does just that, it always turns out for the best." Young Strates, who considers his father the greatest of showmen, adds, "Our show was founded on honest entertainment and that's the way it's going to operate as long as I'm in control."

Strates and his lovely wife, Phyllis, are show people who love their way of life. With their three young children, they make their home on the railroad the year around, residing in a luxuriously built railroad car that looks as comfortable as a Southern mansion.

September 25 Through October 3—

National 4-H Week

Throughout the United States, 4-H'ers will observe National 4-H Club Week, Sept. 26 through Oct. 3. The head-heart-hands-health youth are among 2-1/4 million members of 94,700 clubs in urban, suburban, and rural areas throughout the 50 states and Puerto Rico.

With the goal of "4-H for more in '64," current emphasis is on the program's flexibility — club projects and activities adaptable to fit needs of youth from any background or circumstance.

Dr. Carlton Blalock, state 4-H Club leader, says this is the time that 4-H'ers take a look at their accomplishments for the year and make a report of their progress to the people in North Carolina.

Blalock says it also provides an opportunity for the 4-H'ers to say "thank you" to more than 20,000 volunteer adult leaders who play a vital role in the lives of these young people and to over a 1,000 business concerns who serve as sponsors of some phase of the program.

According to Blalock, there is still a need for leaders — even those who can afford to devote only a small amount of time. Long range plans call for more than doubling the present number of leaders to adequately serve the young people.

A major local and national aim of this year's 4-H Week observance will be to recognize the 50th anniversary of the Cooperative Extension Service, of which the 4-H youth program is a significant part. In 1914, when the Smith-Lever Act authorized the Extension Service, the same federal legislation provided funds for 4-H Club work. For this reason, 4-H also celebrates a Golden Anniversary.

Special 4-H Week activities planned for North Carolina include special newspaper editions highlighting local 4-H activities; radio and television stations will feature 4-H news; special recognition banquets will be held for leaders and sponsors; some 90 roadside billboard posters will be displayed along the highway; special exhibits will be displayed; and 4-H'ers will present special programs at civic club meetings.

Mrs. Crowell Is Named To List

The following is a reprint of an article that appeared in the Times-News of Hendersonville, N. C. concerning Mrs. O. Bernard Crowell, Jr., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Knox Johnstone of Mocksville. It was written by Carol Goode, Women's Editor.

Mrs. O. B. Crowell Jr. was painting her basement last Wednesday afternoon when she was notified of her inclusion on this year's list of the Twelve Best Dressed Women in Western North Carolina.

"I wondered what Miss Ramsey (Gertrude Ramsey of the Asheville Citizen-Times) would have thought if she could have seen me then!" said Carroll. "I was wearing blue jeans and covered with paint!"

This is not young Mrs. Crowell's customary attire as those who know her or have seen her modeling in local fashion shows will attest.

Carroll thinks of herself as "Mrs. Average Housewife," and as such is pleased to be included in the best-dressed category, since she feels she represents so many young mothers who do not spend a great deal of money on clothes.

She does have very definite thoughts on the subject which bear repeating since they apply universally.

Her basic philosophy can be put into one word, "simplicity," with "conservative," and "casual," running close behind.

Emphatic about good-grooming and neatness, Carroll finds shorts in summer and slacks in winter best fit her working schedule—and she prefers to do her marketing before 9 or 9:30 a. m., if she is wearing shorts. She dislikes seeing short-shorts or hair in curlers worn on public streets. And not many women look well in pants, it should be added.

Extremes in style or color are not for her, nor for the majority of women, she believes. She would rather see others wear dramatic costumes, not herself, choosing instead plain styles with good lines and proper fit.

One of her hobbies is hatmaking, which is self-taught, and she especially enjoys remodeling.

For the Crowells' conservative social life, there is currently one long, formal gown in Carroll's wardrobe. This is for the holiday season. "It is a shame we don't have more occasions to dress here in Hendersonville," she said.

Carroll disposes of unbecoming garments, believing it a great waste to keep something in the closet which might better be used by someone else. Yet she still has and still wears a trousseau dress with such enduring lines that with only slight alterations, it has been enjoyed for years.

Carroll and husband Bernard, with their children, Knox, 7, and Elizabeth, 5, recently moved into their new home on Cliff Drive in Laurel Park. This is really Carroll's hobby, for she designed the house herself. She attended Salem College, where she majored in home economics with emphasis, not on clothing, as one might expect, but on interior decorating.

Two Cars Collide At I-40 Ramp on NC 801

Two cars collided around 4:45 p.m. last Wednesday near the I-40 ramp onto N. C. 801 at Hillsdale.

State Highway Patrolman Larry Woods said that his investigation disclosed that David Franklin Gregory of Advance, Rt. 1, was operating a 1956 Ford Station Wagon and was heading north on N. C. 801 in the direction of Farmington.

A 1963 Oldsmobile, being operated by Zack Lafayette Massey, 74, of Waynesville, Rt. 5, came up the ramp into N. C. 801, made a left turn. Massey told Patrolman Woods that the sun was in his eyes when he made the turn into the path of the 1956 Ford Station Wagon. The Oldsmobile struck the station wagon in the right rear side, doing approximately $200 damage.

Driver Charged After Colliding With 2 Cars

A driver was charged with operating a car intoxicated after striking two cars in an accident around 11:30 p.m. last Friday on U. S. 64, two miles east of Mocksville.

Millard Franklin Adams, 43, of Lenoir, Route 1, was charged with operating a car intoxicated and improper registration by State Highway Patrolman K. N. Boltick.

Patrolman Boltick said that his investigation disclosed that Adams, operating a 1952 Plymouth was heading west. A 1953 Ford, operated by Henry Lawton Grant, 30, and a 1954 Chevrolet, operated by William Clay Dorsett, 34, of Effland, Route 1, were heading east. Adams, in the Plymouth, veered over into the left lane some 3 feet, striking both the Ford and Chevrolet on the left front.

Damage to the Chevrolet was estimated at $700; to the Ford, $400; and to the Plymouth, $100.

WIND BAFFLES
One of the slickest attachments to a fence top to make more comfort is a wind baffle. Place an 18-inch baffle at an angle of 46 to 60 degrees pointed inward to the yard. This causes the wind to arc upwards and protects the yard for one and half times the height of the fence.

Burgess P. Carter, 85
Funeral services for Burgess Ferguson Carter, 85, who died Saturday at Lynn Haven Nursing Home were held Monday at Yadkin Valley Baptist Church by the Rev. Alvis Chesire and the Rev. Carl Hale. Burial was in the church cemetery. He was a retired farmer of Route 1, Advance. He was born in Davie County to Rasmus and Sally Howard Carter. He was a charter member of Mocksville Methodist Church. Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. James Zimmerman and Mrs. Clyde Weatherman, both of Advance, Rt. 1, and Mrs. James Bracken of Rt. 5, Mocksville; a son, Lawrence Carter of Advance, Rt. 1; eight grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; and a brother, P. R. Carter of Route 1, Advance.

Dr. Kemp To Attend State Moose Meeting
Dr. Ramey F. Kemp of Mocksville will attend the 38th annual convention of the North Carolina Moose Association in Wilson this week end. Dr. Kemp has seen service over the past year as president of District Three in the State Association. An estimated 500 delegates are expected to attend the three-day meeting, Thursday-Sunday. State association president, James E. Hopkins of Havelock will preside over business sessions. Carl A. Weis, Supreme Secretary of the fraternal order, is to be the official representative from the Supreme Lodge at Mosehcart, Ill. He will address the convention on Saturday.

Tobacco Diseases
Tobacco diseases are much worse on some tobacco farms than others. This can be due to several things, such as more susceptible varieties, no rotation system, poor culture practices, and weather conditions.

On farms that usually have trouble with diseases, many times the practice of plowing out tobacco stubbles immediately after harvest is not done. Plowing out and destroying old tobacco stalks has proven to be one of the most effective practices to reduce tobacco diseases.

Join the R6P (Reduce Six Pests) campaign. Destroy and plow out tobacco stubbles immediately after harvest.

BEEF CATTLE SALE

Over 100 heifers and several bulls of each breed are to be sold at the Iredell County Fairgrounds October 9th. This is the first Performance Tested Sale in this section of the state. All cattle consigned to this sale are from Performance tested herds. The calves from these herds are weighed and graded by a representative of the N. C. Cattle-men's Association.

Only calves that met certain standards are accepted for the sale. The standards allow only calves that have grown well with good beef type to be eligible for the sale.

With more emphasis now on growing and producing ability, these heifers and bulls should be excellent for herd replacement or breeding stock.

REDUCE 1965 TOBACCO PESTS

Research workers continue to find good reasons why farmers should try to cut their old tobacco stalks and plow out the stubbles immediately after harvest.

B. G. Westbrook, Associate County Extension Agent, says cleaning up the tobacco field will not only cut losses from nematodes, mosaic and brown spot but will greatly reduce the insect population for next year.

"Entomologists call good cultural practices in the late summer one of the most effective and economical methods of reducing hornworms, budworms and flea beetles," Westbrook said.

By getting rid of old tobacco stalks and roots immediately after harvest, the farmer deprives insects of their food supply and breeding place.

Both hornworms and budworms overwinter in the top two inches of soil as pupae. This means that turning up the stubbles as recommended will greatly reduce the number of moths that will emerge the following spring.

Some research data, Westbrook reports, also indicates that the pupae are usually buried in the row than in the middle. Turning up the roots, therefore, would get most of them.

Westbrook says researchers at North Carolina State have found that most of the budworms which make it through the winter are produced after September.

Research workers also report that over 90 per cent of the overwintering hornworms are produced after August 1.

This means that the earlier the old tobacco stalks can be destroyed the better. The farmer who cuts his stalks immediately is likely to spend less money for insecticides and have less crop damage in 1965.

For the stalk cutting program to be really effective, however, Westbrook says every farmer would need to cut his stalks. In that way he will not be producing insects for his neighbor to fight next year.

DIFFERENT TYPES OF LIMING MATERIALS

Fall is a good time to apply lime for the coming year's crops, so a review of some of the different types of liming materials may be of timely interest reminds County Extension Chairman, Leo F. Williams.

Technically, a liming material is any material high in calcium (or calcium and magnesium) that has a neutralizing effect on soil acidity. There are a number of different liming materials available, some of which are listed below along with their neutralizing equivalent:

Neutralizing Equivalent
Dolomitic limestone (agricultural limestone)	95-108
Calcitic limestone	85-100
Burned (caustic) lime	150-175
Hydrated lime	120-135
Burned oyster shells	90-110
Marl	50-90
Basic slag (8-10% P2O5)	50-70

The greater the neutralizing equivalent, the greater the neutralizing power or effect per pound of material.

Dolomitic limestone contains magnesium as well as calcium and is a good source of these important, essential nutrients says Williams. Particle size is also a factor to consider in choosing a liming material. The more finely ground the material the quicker it will react and neutralize the soil acidity; however, all liming materials are required by law to be of a certain minimum fineness in order to be sold as a liming material. Bulk lime that is stored out of doors often becomes wet. This moisture should be of no concern providing the material is dry enough to spread.

Williams also points out that a soil test is necessary to determine the need for lime. Soil test liming suggestions are based on the neutralizing equivalent of dolomitic and agricultural limestones, the most commonly used materials, so if some other liming material is used, the amount applied should be adjusted according to its neutralizing equivalent.

Regardless of which liming material is used, be sure and keep your soils limed to optimum levels suggests Williams. Liming is often overlooked, but is one of the most important steps in a good farming program.

LAWN UNDER TREES—A friend of mine asked me to work him out a program for growing a lawn under trees . . . said he would do anything I suggested. My first suggestion was for him to engage a tree surgeon, a bulldozer, and for he and his wife to leave home. Today I have one less friend, but he has a good sod of grass. His wife blew a fuse when she saw how many trees we removed. And, she nearly fainted when she noticed how many low limbs we removed from the remaining trees.

Before you condemn me, let me explain that I first suggested leaving the trees and using a ground cover of periwinkle. She wouldn't hear to that . . . afraid of snakes. Too, she wanted a place for the children to play.

This brings up the subject of which grass grows best in shade. For any grass to make a decent sod you need considerable light. Quite often, though it is not necessary to remove a tree to get more light. Removing low limbs and thinning may do the trick. If you expect to have a good sod underneath, the lowest limb on your tree should be ten feet or more from the ground.

WHICH GRASS TO PLANT—Your best grass depends on where you live and the amount of shade you have. From Raleigh west, I would suggest Kentucky Bluegrass or Creeping Red Fescue. You might like a mixture of these grasses. If you have light shade or full sun, Kentucky-31 Fescue would be the best grass. In the mountains, Bluegrass is still our best grass. Plant these grasses in late August or September. From Raleigh east, especially on light soils, I would suggest Zoysia for the shade. On heavier soils you might try Creeping Red Fescue. In light shade, Centipede does well. In full sun, you can either use Zoysia, Centipede or Bermuda. Along the coast, St. Augustine does well in the shade. Plant all these grasses in spring.

LIMING AND FERTILIZING—If you have time, have a soil test made and follow recommendations. If you haven't time for a soil test, use 50 to 75 pounds of agricultural lime for 1,000 square feet. Also, 20 to 30 pounds of turf-grade fertilizer (slow-acting nitrogen) such as 10-5-5 or 10-6-4 for each 1,000 square feet. Be sure to work this fertilizer and lime into the soil since lime and phosphate move very little through the soil.

RYEGRASS—Do not include rye-grass in your mixture. It will choke out your other grass. If you have a summer grass such as Bermuda, you can overseed with rye-grass in September. Rye-grass will injure your summer sod, but the damage will be less if you fertilize the summer grass when the rye-grass begins to die.

FERTILIZE FESCUE AND BLUEGRASS—September is the time to fertilize your Fescue or Bluegrass. Use a complete fertilizer or some form of nitrogen. Fall feeding is more important than spring feeding. Also, this is a good time to "patch up" your old lawn. Rake the bare spots, add fertilizer and seed, then mulch with straw.

Today is '65 Pontiac Day.

1965: The year of the Quick Wide-Tracks

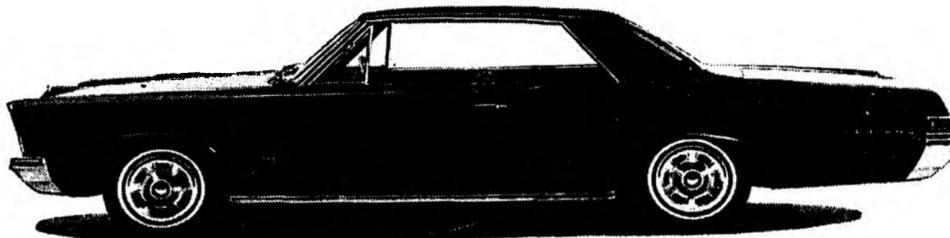

What do we mean by "quick"? Just this: A new-all-over Pontiac offering a new Turbo Hydra-Matic—the silkiest, swiftest-shifting automatic transmission you ever touched a toe to; eager new Trophy V-8 power; new steering agility; a surer-footed Wide-Track ride. And a new Pontiac Tempest that's become even more of a Pontiac with new style, new length and Pontiac-quick reflexes to match. You never knew cars could be so beautiful, and so keenly alert to your touch. This is your year to drive a Wide-Track—quick!

'65 Pontiac Pontiac

How does the success car outdo itself for 1965? Beautifully, just beautifully. But this Pontiac has no intention of getting by on looks alone, though it could. So there's new quickness, Pontiac style. A new nimbleness. New fuel savings. A smooth, easy new ride. Drive a '65 Pontiac and see how one success leads to another.

'65 Pontiac Tempest

Tempest's even more of a Pontiac now, and what more could a car be than that! The '65 Tempest looks like a Pontiac, as you can see. Rides like a Pontiac on Wide-Track. Goes like a Pontiac, too: a 140-hp six is standard. Or you can get a quick V-8, up to 285 hp. You'll wonder how we can keep the price so low on so much car.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Behind the bright lights of Times Square is a quiet native of Alabama who is responsible for putting most of the neon sparklers there. His name is Douglas Leigh and he has become a real by-word for central Gotham illumination. A soft-spoken gentleman of 57, Leigh has been called the Lamplighter of Broadway and the King of Spectaculars. At the last count, he had some 15 of the huge lighted signs blinking or puffing above the receptive crowds who always seem to be wandering up and down the magic thoroughfare, gawking at whatever free show meets their fascinated eyes. And Leigh gives them a show. Probably most famous is the Camel Cigarettes sign showing a young man blowing smoke rings of marm-mouth size out over the heads of the passing throng. It has been a quarter of a century since this sign went up - just about the time I came here - and it appears to be just as attractive today as ever, even with the unfavorable things said about smoking.

Leigh does things in a big way. Remember the one that was almost as long as a gridiron, with a 75-foot waterfall pouring down between two giant Pepsi Cola bottles? Often have I heard folks stand on the sidewalk and wonder out loud where the water all came from and where did it go. On a hot summer night, it made one cooler just to look at this metropolitan Niagra Falls and the great display is still missed by many of us. But with the passing of an old idea, Leigh comes up with a dozen new ones, including a proposal to build a colossal convention hall between 7th and 8th Avenues and 41st and 43rd Streets. For one thing, this would help to eliminate what is probably the dirtiest and dingiest section of midtown Manhattan, a street of infamy infested with human screwballs of the most bizarre order. In short, the street here is a disagree to the city. Many attempts have been made to clean it up but few have any lasting effect, so maybe this wizard of the big lights can yet do this needed job. It is a big one but no job is too big for him, in fact, such undertakings only seem to pose a challenge to the man who came here with an idea and a second-hand car which he virtually pawned to get his business started.

At the southern end of Times Square - an appropriate section for the Alabamian - stands the old Times Tower, or what is left of it. For this landmark too has felt his magic touch and is to be remodeled as new headquarters for the Allied Chemical Corporation. There are those who miss the fine old landmark but as one of the former occupants, Ray Erwin, said, "air conditioning and modern conveniences of similar nature soon make one lose the nostalgia he may have felt for the old structure." Across the street is the mellowing Claridge Hotel which at times has housed more pigeons than people, and Leigh has already made plans to do it over also. While others run to the outskirts or suburbs and build anew, he takes the old buildings and gives them faces—or at least sells them to people who do.

On a hot summer day, a dip in a cool stream can be wonderfully refreshing. Equally refreshing when you're relaxing afterwards with friends is a hearty glass of beer. There's hardly another beverage around that suits what you do for fun as much as beer. Camping, hiking, or just lounging on a lawn chair—beer brings to each just the right touch of extra good living. Your familiar glass of beer is also a pleasurable reminder that we live in a land of personal freedom—and that our right to enjoy beer and ale, if we so desire, is just one, but an important one, of those personal freedoms.

Yes, Douglas Leigh may safely be said to represent a legendary type of New York success story, although it has not spoiled him. He has had his failures as well as successes and knows that for every money-making coup such as he makes, there are many more such projects which lose out. Actually, his formula is simple. Available to you without a doctor's prescription, our drug called ODRINEX. You must lose ugly fat or your money back. No strenuous exercise, laxatives, massage or taking of so-called reducing candies, crackers or cookies, or chewing gum. ODRINEX is a tiny tablet and easily swallowed. When you take ODRINEX, you still enjoy your meals, still eat the foods you like, but you simply don't have the urge for extra portions because ODRINEX depresses your appetite and decreases your desire for food. Your weight must come down, because as your own doctor will tell you, when you eat less, you weigh less. rid of excess fat and live longer. ODRINEX costs $3.00 and is sold on this GUARANTEE: If not satisfied for any reason just return the package to your druggist and get your full money back. No questions asked. ODRINEX is sold with this guarantee by: WILKINS DRUG STORE, Mocksville. Mail orders filled.
