Dedicatory services for the Union Chapel Methodist Church will be held Sunday morning at 11 a. m. Dr. R. Herman Nicholson, District Superintendent of Thomasville, will be the speaker. The Union Chapel Methodist Church is located about four miles north of Mocksville on US 601. The Rev. Carl Lain is the pastor. The history of the Union Chapel Methodist Church dates back to the early 1847 when the Methodist conducted classes in the community in a one room school house located near the present church.

Records at the Davie County Courthouse show that three acres of land was deeded to the Union Chapel Methodist Church on October 18, 1859 by John Cheshire. The amount paid for this land was $3.00. The trustees were John Cheshire, John Stinescott and Greenberry Booe.

Services were first held in a small one-room log building. The first church building was constructed in about 1865 with a balcony for slaves. A small frame church was built in 1890 and dedicated in 1895. The Rev. J. G. W. Holloway was the pastor at this time.

The present brick building was dedicated on Sunday morning, July 18, 1954 at 11 a. m. service with Bishop Costen J. Harrell of Charlotte in charge of the service. He was assisted by the Rev. M. T. Hipps, Superintendent of the Thomasville District and the Rev. W. C. Anderson, pastor.

"The building was the result of much thinking and planning which was formally initiated on July 13, 1949, with the election of a building and finance committee. Those elected included Clay Allen, Chairman; Lewis Beck, Arthur Baker, Clyde Jordan, Clyde Hutchens, Oscar Boger and Charlie B. Angell. Mrs. Lewis Beck was elected secretary and treasurer. The Rev. Foster Loflin was pastor of the church when the plans were being made.

The Rev. W. C. Anderson came as pastor in the fall of 1950. The building completed in July 1952 at an estimated cost of $16,000. A considerable portion of the labor and materials were given. At that time the church had a membership of 125. Arthur C. Baker was Superintendent of Sunday School. The number on roll was 90 and the average attendance was 70.

Man Dies Of Injuries Sustained In Collision

John L. McKenzie, 52, of Cleveland, Ohio, one of three persons injured in a collision of two cars and a tractor-trailer truck March 21 on U. S. 21 near Harmony died Friday at Davis Hospital.

McKenzie, a representative of Holly Farms Industries of North Wilkesboro and working from the Cleveland office, was a passenger in a 1965 Chrysler operated by Ralph Wright, 57, of Harmony. McKenzie, Wright and Kenneth Ward, 17, operator of a 1959 Ford which was also involved in the accident, were hospitalized. State Trooper J. L. Evans charged Ward at the time with driving on the wrong side of the road.

Paul Mason, Jr., 46, of Mocksville, Rt. 2 was operating a 1957 tractor-trailer loaded with a bulldozer at the time of the accident.

Patrolman Evans' report disclosed that both Wright and Mason were traveling south and that the Ward vehicle was out of control and swerving. Ward's car collided with Wright's vehicle knocking it against the tractor-trailer, which attempted to get by on the right side.

Wright was taken to Davis Hospital, Statesville, following the accident. He is still a patient there being treated for a crushed knee, lacerations and bruises.

Rotary Clubs Hears Of Telephone Problems

Inadequate truck lines were cited Tuesday as the primary cause of communication difficulties between the Central Telephone Exchange in Mocksville and the exchanges of the Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation.

A. W. (Bill) McDonald, manager of the Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation, told members of the Mocksville Rotary Club that the co-op had 17 trucks coming into Mocksville while there were only 8 trucks available to Mocksville subscribers wishing to call out into the county.

Mr. McDonald, using a map, illustrated the problems existing in the communication areas between the various exchanges. He traced the growth of the Yadkin Valley Telephone Cooperative from the installation of their original eight-party line system to their three exchanges existing today in Davie County.

On The Home Front

Good cooks use lots of eggs. This is the time of the year that eggs are more plentiful. So use them everyday. Use some in omelets, some in custards, some in cakes, devil some and stuff some.

Serve fluffy scrambled eggs in buttercups.

12 slices bread brushed with melted butter or margarine
8 eggs
2 teaspoons salt, 1 tsp. pepper, 1/4 cup heavy cream and some crisp fried bacon bits.

Trim crust from bread and press slices of it in muffin pans, brush with melted butter. Bake in hot oven at 400 degrees for twenty minutes.

Beat eggs until fluffy; add salt, pepper, cream and bacon. Pour into greased skillet or double boiler. Cook over low heat until set, lifting occasionally with spatula to let uncooked portion run underneath. Spoon into toast cups and serve immediately.

Eggs and Corn
1/2 lb. sausage,
6 eggs
1 can cream style corn
Brown sausage in skillet. Pour off fat. Add corn. Beat eggs and add to sausage mixture and cook as for scrambled eggs. Vary flavor by adding chopped onions or green pepper.

Freeze Your Favorite Recipes for Time Saving Meals. Suggestions: Salt looses flavor in the freezer. Pepper, onions, cloves and vanilla become bitter. Raw vegetables such as celery and green pepper lose their crispness.

Freeze cakes unfrosted for easier wrapping. If desired use butter frosting and harden in freezer then wrap. Hard cooked egg whites become tough.

Fats become rancid in a few months. Foods that are served as main dishes to be heated before serving, should be slightly under-done before freezing.

Potatoes in stews and soups become mushy. Use butter for sandwich spread instead of mayonnaise. Fried foods lose their crispness and become soggy.

I am sharing with you this week a prize winning recipe for Devils Food Cake. It is very good, so why not try it sometimes.

Devil's Food Cake
1/4 cups sugar
2 eggs
1 1/2 cups flour
1 cup buttermilk
1/2 cup shortening
1/4 teaspoon soda

Cream together sugar and shortening, add eggs one at a time. Alternate dry ingredients which have been sifted together, and buttermilk. Beat well with mixer and pour batter in three nine inch cake pans that have been greased and floured. Bake for thirty minutes in a 325 degree oven.

Dudley Collins has an old pickup truck that is almost community property... at least during hunting season. This old truck is used by Mr. Collins and his friends to haul their dogs to and from the fields of venture. During hunting season, some of Dudley's friends have the truck in use most of the time.

However, hunting season is now over and last week Dudley was out of town for the week.

Mrs. Collins noticed the old truck in the yard the first of the week and then... in a day or two... it had disappeared. She began to wonder... and she began to inquire of Dudley's hunting friends.

Roy Collette told her no, that he didn't have the truck. Jack Corriher didn't have it. Joe Spry didn't have it... And Vance Hammett came up with the thought that was beginning to haunt them all: 'I'll bet it has been stolen'.

Town Police officials were given the license number, registration number, and all the necessary pertinent facts. However, they had no more gotten the report of a stolen pickup on the air when a thought hit Roy Collette.

Calling Mrs. Collins, Roy asked: 'Did Dudley say anything about getting the brakes fixed on that old truck?' 'Well, he didn't say... but he wouldn't have told me anything about that anyway', said Mrs. Collins.

'I believe I heard him say something about getting Ellis to fix those brakes', said Roy. 'Let me call him!'

Roy Collette called Al Ellis: 'Have you got Dudley's truck?' he asked.

'Yes, I have had it a couple of days fixing the brakes', said Al. 'Well, keep it under cover until we can get the stolen report off the air', said Roy as he went on to explain.

This Al did... and later returned the old truck home... safe and sound... and with brakes.

The sleep before a television set was disrupted by the telephone. A voice on the end of the line pleaded:

'Boss man... they've got me in a little trouble with the law. Would you go on my bond?'

'How much is your bond?'... asked the sleepy boss man. 'Seven-fifty' came back the reply.

'Well if it's not any more than that I guess I can... uh... uh... you mean $7.50... or $750?' said the now more fast-awaking boss man.

When this was answered he in all clarity instructed the caller to seek a professional bondsman.

Letters Sent For Crusade

A total of 1500 letters seeking funds for the 1966 Cancer Crusade were mailed this week in Davie County.

The slogan of the 1966 Crusade is: "Fight Cancer with a Checkup and a Check." The value of the annual checkup is covered in the "Tell Your Neighbor" program. It is this: Early diagnosis and prompt treatment can save thousands of lives.

Rufus Brock, Crusade chairman says, "the check is self-evident. Without finances for important future research we can not hope to save half of those who develop cancer. Also the check provides needed funds for expanded public and professional educational programs, and service to patients." One-fourth of the money raised in the county is retained to help local cancer victims. Mr. Brock said that getting people to take personal action against cancer "is one of the most difficult things in the world. People put off having an annual health checkup or don't even have one. They avoid taking prompt action when a cancer danger signal appears. They delay until it is too late for effective treatment.

Gains in diagnosis and treatment are largely responsible for the fact that there are 1,400,000 American alive, cured of cancer. Now one in three is being saved, but it could be one out of two if proper action were taken. Progress is also being made against cancer through research supported by the Society, the Government, and other groups.

One should always be alert to cancer's "Seven Danger Signals":
1. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere.
3. A sore that does not heal.
4. Change in bowel or bladder habits.
5. Hoarseness or cough.
6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
7. Change in a wart or a mole.

For a number of years the third Sunday in July has been the date of the annual homecoming. A visiting speaker highlights the morning service and a picnic meal is spread at noon. The afternoon service is gospel and hymn singing. A revival follows the homecoming and runs through the following week.

Plans are now being made by the Union Chapel Methodist Church for the construction of a new parsonage. A lot for this project has been donated by Dorman Brown and Doyle Brown and an additional lot has been purchased adjoining the donated lot by the church.

Two Cars In Collision On Highway 801

Two cars were involved in a collision ten miles north of Mocksville on NC 801, Monday around 5:20 p.m. Involved was a 1962 Chevrolet operated by John Walter Pilcher, Jr., 40, of Mocksville Rt. 2, and a 1957 Ford operated by Clint Tucker, 46, of Advance Rt. 1.

State Highway Patrolman K. N. Bolick said that his investigation showed that the Tucker vehicle turned left in front of the Pilcher car which struck the Ford in the right rear at the edge of the pavement in the west bound lane.

Mrs. Helen Pilcher a passenger in the Chevrolet, was treated for injuries.

Damage to the Pilcher car was estimated at $300 and $175 to the Tucker car.

Cattle For Slaughter Referendum April 27th

All cattlemen in Davie County have an important stake in the Cattle for Slaughter Referendum on Wednesday, April 27. Clay Hunter, county chairman for the referendum said today.

"Interest in cattle is increasing in the county," Hunter noted. "There are many ways cattle can benefit the farm economy of the county, and we need the promotional work of the N. C. Cattlemen's Association here as much as anywhere in the state."

Anyone who sells cattle for slaughter, or gets income from such sale, is eligible to vote in the referendum. A two-thirds majority vote is necessary for the referendum to pass.

Here are some of the activities of the association:

- 1. Improvement of beef cattle marketing in the state; 2. Consumer education on selecting, cooking and serving beef and veal; 3. Sponsoring special sales for cattle; 4. Contacting buyers for Targeel cattle; 5. Sponsoring the annual Beef Cattle Conference at N. C. State University, area field days throughout the state; 6. Legislative action for the benefit of beef and dairy cattle producers; 7. Youth Organizations; 8. Meat literature.

Hunter pointed out that in the past year 24 special sales sponsored by the association saw a total of $4,422,678.53 paid for 28,534 calves and steers. He added that the Cattlemen's Conference at N. C. State University had the largest attendance ever this year - illustrating the increased interest in cattle among North Carolina people.

"The benefit of the Cattlemen's Association to North Carolina far outweighs the dime per head of cattle slaughtered it costs to finance it," said Hunter. "Beef promotion is the business of the cattlemen. There's no better way to do it than through the Cattlemen's Association."

Space Flights May Spur Water Pollution Control

If we can send men to the moon we ought to be able to rid our waterways of pollution, a water pollution control expert said today at the American Medical Association's Nineteenth National Conference on Rural Health.

Indeed, our space program might provide information highly beneficial to the pollution problems encountered in our earthly sources of water. Van Heuvelen, chief of Environmental Health and Engineering Services of the North Dakota State Department of Health, told medical and farm leaders meeting in the Broadmoor Hotel.

"Some of the staggering water management problems which are involved in manned space programs may at some future date appear as the best solution on our own continent," he said. "The space men will live with a closed system where all the water used will be recovered and reused. This is the ultimate in pollution control and may someday need to be adopted in some water scarce areas."

According to Van Heuvelen, "Water pollution control has become the most discussed, the most politically potent, and yet one of the most misunderstood of our environmental health problems."

"Contrary to what we are sometimes led to believe, there has been much progress made in water pollution control," he said. Furthermore, we have the technology and the tools for adequate waste water treatment, together with public support to put an end to the pollution of waterways, he continued.

Despite all these favorable factors, however, Van Heuvelen made it clear that there still is no single adequate solution because "pollution problems are individual and each needs its own engineering approach."

Not the least of these individual problems, he said, is the matter of determining what is adequate for a given locality. And such standards in turn depend upon the larger question of "what will be the best ultimate use of a particular waterway." "Today there is no single clear guideline in this area," he said. "We hear a multitude of engineering views, conservation views and public health demands for varying effluent standards and stream quality."

"The sanitary engineering profession finds itself in the center of public discussions over standards, bond issues, sanitary districts, and exploding algae populations in lakes and streams."

Thus, even though there may be general agreement that we must clean up water supplies, there also must be individual agreement on the precise degree of purity needed for each waterway and the best means of attaining such an objective.

"The magnitude of some of the nation's pollution problems at times is almost frightening," Van Heuvelen declared. The sources are many—communities with inadequate treatment facilities, others with none at all, industrial wastes and leaking pipelines, he said.

But the causes of pollution are not limited to urban areas and industrial complexes, he pointed out. "A large source of water pollution which is often forgotten is the excreta of farm and domestic animals." These wastes entering water supplies are serious hazards to human and animal health and have even caused fish kills.

He added that in one way or another, water pollution control "teaches all of us, even though we as individuals often do not accept our responsibility in this program."

"At this rural health conference we must recognize the rural population's responsibility to reduce pollution and improve our water resources for the benefit of all people."

"Part of this moral responsibility is to treat our waste waters and our pollution sources with regard to the rights, interests and welfare of our neighbors. Legislation, standards and regulations will not do the job alone. Bold steps to develop adequate treatment facilities and remove all sources of pollution will eventually abate the pollution of the waters of this nation."

Funds Sought For Research, Education, Service

April Is Cancer Control Month

April is Cancer Control Month by Presidential proclamation. During this month the American Cancer Society is seeking funds for important programs of research, education and service. It is also seeking something even more important for the immediate present — to communicate.

It would be just as appropriate to designate April as Cancer Communication Month. Why? As a distinguished health officer said recently: "If someone invented a drug that would cure half of the present cases of cancer, the excitement would be beyond belief. We have such a drug: It is communication."

An estimated one-half of all cases of cancer could be cured by finding them soon enough and "doing for them what we already know how to do." However, only one-third is being saved, largely because the individual does not go to his doctor in time for early diagnosis.

The problem of eliminating the gap between one-third and one-half — of adding 95,000 lives to the 190,000 now saved each year — is difficult. It is a problem of communication and motivation. Too often we are unable to persuade people to act in their own health interest — to present themselves in time for early diagnosis and treatment of cancer. At minimum, this means a health checkup at least once a year.

During April, volunteers of the American Cancer Society will be calling on you. They will ask for funds to support life-saving programs in cancer control. They will urge you to have a health checkup now — if you have not already had one — and to do so every year.

We urge you to do both.

Representative Of New Life

Easter Eggs -- An Age-Old Custom

When your children search for colored eggs this Easter, they'll be renewing a custom far older than Christianity.

Eggs represent the new life that returns to earth every spring — around the time of Easter. The custom of exchanging eggs as part of the celebration began in ancient times. The ancient Persians often dyed eggs in the colors of spring and gave them to their friends as gifts. Some early peoples believed that the earth had hatched from a giant egg.

World Book Encyclopedia says the early Christians of Asia and other eastern lands exchanged eggs at Easter. They colored the eggs red.

Elaborate decoration became the rule in some eastern European lands. The Ukrainians are famous for their beautifully decorated Easter eggs. Each village makes its own design — fir trees, horses, priests' robes, flowers, bell towers, crosses, chapels, etc. Residents of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Lithuania, and other lands also are known for their highly decorated Easter eggs.

In England, friends often exchanged eggs at Easter, although nowadays these usually are chocolate eggs. The Irish break the long Lenten fast by eating eggs at dawn on Easter.

Germans color eggs "green Thursday" — the Thursday before Easter — and carry the eggs all day for good luck. On Easter Monday the young people have an egg-rolling contest.

In Italy, a priest blesses the eggs on Easter. The eggs occupy the center of the breakfast table, with other dishes arranged around them.

In the Netherlands, children go from door to door during Holy Week, collecting Easter eggs. Young and old alike play games involving eggs on Easter Monday.

In Greece, World Book notes, people exchange eggs and baked almond cakes. In Hungary, boys sprinkle girls with water on Easter Monday and receive Easter eggs in reward.

Customs vary from land to land, but colored eggs have been associated with springtime since the dawn of history.

Proclaims Boundary Of Nesting Territory

The Hymn To Spring—The Robin's Song

That hymn to spring — the robin's sweet song — is really a belligerent call to battle.

As flocks of robins migrate north to nest, males lead the way to stake out their territory. The area may range from a few square yards to several acres.

When cock robin first sings, he says, in effect, "This is my home. Stay out!"

A robin often proclaims the boundary of its nesting territory from the same branch, rock, or post — year after year. An aggressive bird will trumpet his claim all day long—from several different vantage points, the National Geographic Society says.

Defending his domain, a robin furiously attacks any intruder. He will divebomb the trespasser in midair, then tumble to the ground in a flurry of beaks, legs and fluttering wings until the rival robin calls it quits and flies away.

But another kind of bird with dissimilar requirements for its life may share a robin's territory without any fuss.

After much trumpeting and fighting, cock robins, like all male songbirds, finally establish borders that are respected. Then the female arrives.

Attracted by the songs, female birds wander through various territories. Eventually they accept mates and build their nests.

Other birds have many ways of saying "I love you." The male penguin takes hours-long strolls along the beach with his mating prospect. Finally he offers a stone. If the female takes it in her bill, the match is on.

Courtship to a male prairie chicken means and dancing and strutting before the female, while grouse hiss and make a loud drumming beat with their wings. Mergansers chase their mates underwater. Bobolinks and meadowlarks sing and display on the wing, sometimes spiraling upward while releasing a medley of song.

Most songbirds, however, do their courtship with both feet on the ground or on a handy perch, according to the National Geographic Society's book, Song and Garden Birds of North America.

In a chapter on courtship and nesting behavior, Robert M. McClung writes: "Among most songbirds the male takes the initiative. He may sing to the female, then spread his tail and show off his fine breeding plumage. He may offer her a bit of food or drop a twig before her, presumably a symbol of the nest."

Once a female accepts the attentions of a posturing male, the two become mates. Some waterfowl and birds of prey mate for life, but most birds stay together for only one breeding season.

Game birds from many temporary and casual liaisons. "One lusty sage grouse was observed mating with 21 different females in the course of a single morning," Mr. McClung writes.

NEWS AND COMMENT FROM OUR RALEIGH BUREAU
2815 Oberlin Road

FRIENDS . . . There is an old geometric theorem to the effect that things that are equal to the same thing are equal to each other.

That being the case, former Gov. Terry Sanford may have at least a percentage of the legislative power in 1967 that he wielded so effectively as Governor in 1953.

It can't be merely by accident or coincidence that the following has occurred:

1. William Staton of Sanford, Sanford's Democratic National Committeeman, has announced as a candidate for the Legislature.

2. Bert Bennett, Winston-Salem, Sanford's chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, is also running for the Legislature.

3. Hargrove Bowles of Greensboro, Sanford's director of Conservation and Development, is running for the Legislature.

The word around here is that each of them stands a good chance of being elected.

Although each of these hard-core Sandfordites has been high in Democratic Party politics, not one has ever been a candidate for political office.

OTHERS . . . Add to these, Sandford friends like John T. Church of Henderson, who also announced for the Legislature last week, and you can see how Terry Sanford may not only be preparing for 1967 but 1968 as well.

There will likely be one or two others before it is over with.

Staton is an attorney, Bowles, Bennett, and Church are prominent business leaders in their respective communities.

With appointees of Terry Sanford (even to his chauffeur) getting their comeuppance from the Dan Moore administration, you could see more than a little knife-throwing in various directions come 1967.

NOT UNTIL . . . Billy Arthur reported in the Chapel Hill Weekly recently that he overheard the following at a Faculty Club dinner: "I had four other brothers, and we all slept in the same bed. I never slept alone till I got married."

NEIGHBORS . . . Not since Raleigh Native J. M. Broughton was Governor have we had people in the Mansion here who are so much a part of the Raleigh scene.

Having been blessed (or plagued) with three sessions of the Legislature during his first 13 months in office — and burdened with certain personnel problems from time to time — Gov. Moore has often worked from "sun to sun". Reports are the missus pulls him away from the chores . . .

So, you can see old No. 1 sitting in front of homes, apartments, houses, hotels, stores, etc., almost any night in the week. Brief visits, however.

"The Governor and his wife have dropped in here several times", remarked a Cameron Village merchant the other day. "They are just regular folks. Mrs. Moore is real folksy—just like a next-door neighbor."

Frequently on weekends you will observe Gov. and Mrs. Moore and one or two friends on about-town calls. It looks odd to see that big, black, block-long Cadillac sitting in front of a little one-story duplex apartment house.

WALKED . . . When he was Gov.

ernor, Clyde R. Hoey used to walk a half-block down the street for a Coca-Cola each morning. This always attracted attention. He was on the radio each Sunday morning with Sunday School lessons, as was also Gov. Broughton. Gov. Gregg Cherry could often be found with friends in some side-street steak house—strictly stag, of course. Gov. W. Kerr Scott was the only Governor we can recall to walk the four blocks to and from Mansion and Capitol. He did this quite frequently. There was nothing very palsy-walsy about Gov. William B. Umstead. Governors Hodges and Sanford — both nationally known and area-wide type executives—did a lot of visiting and traveling, but almost always in an official capacity.

UNPOPULAR . . . The State of North Carolina, like you and me, wants to be as popular as possible with everybody — particularly with sister states.

But our cigarette breathing is beginning to offend . . .

For about 25 years now we have fought off a cigarette tax. To put one on, we have always told legislators, would merely encourage other states to do so. We also maintained that the tax would discourage sales of cigarettes — mostly manufactured here — in any state imposing it. Our agricultural leaders would always become "alarmed". No cigarette tax.

So, what has happened? Every state in the nation — except North Carolina — has put on a cigarette tax. But, despite these taxes—and cancer talk as well—the sale of cigarettes this year will be the highest on record.

Meantime, all these other states — whose friendship and cooperation we cherish and need—have us in the doghouse of the cigarette tax.

Bootleggers buy tax-free cigarettes in North Carolina, sell them in all these other states, robbing them at a minimum of 30 cents per carton. And, since we have no cigarette tax, these extra sales mean little or nothing to our State Treasury.

South Carolina has added ten men to its revenue force to patrol the border. Virtually all the states — mainly New York (with a heavy cigarette tax) — are sniping at North Carolina.

Our failure to put on a cigarette tax has had the opposite effect we figured on. In addition, we have lost an estimated 40 million dollars in revenue since 1953.

Add all this to the fact that our cities and counties are clamoring for more and more revenue — and you can see how the States of North Carolina will take a long, hard look at cigarettes as it begins scratching around for more tax money for your city and your county next week.

Thus the failure to curtail Government spending passes by the most effective means of bringing the situation under control. Simply put, the Administration should ask the Congress to pare down program requests enough to balance the budget. This would lay the foundation for a real effort to control inflation. It would take political courage, but I think the people would welcome fiscal responsibility during wartime.

Washington — Speculation whether the Administration will request Congress to provide new Federal taxes to finance growing Federal spending. As of last week, no public decision had been announced on the tax question, but the equally discussed problem of inflation is no longer a theory to the average citizen. Prices of food, materials, and services have been going up steadily since the first of the year.

The importance of the issue is that it is commanding as much attention as waging the Viet Nam War. The argument currently being advanced for a tax increase is that it is necessary to control inflation. The theory is that the Federal Government can take away purchasing power from individuals by taxes and this will prevent the cost of living from rising.

What is overlooked in the argument advanced from increased Federal taxes is that it says little about the problem that stems from large increases in Governmental spending.

In the face of rising defense costs, the century has been told that existing Federal programs must not be cutback because there are no areas where costs can be cut.

The truth of the matter is that there are many Federal programs, especially some of the newer ones, that could be curtailed for the duration of the Viet Nam situation. We are wasting vast amounts of money for anti-poverty projects of dubious value. There is no real sense, twenty years after the Second World War, for the United States to be giving away in one form or another over $3 billion annually for foreign aid. There is no doubt that the Federal Government could tighten up expenditures for many of the vast array of programs it finances if it were willing to do so. What has happened is that the country has acquired the habit of trying to give something to everybody out of the Federal Treasury. This habit leads the Nation to consider proposals that the experience of all mankind has demonstrated leads to national decay.

Zeke Grubb, that has got a grandson working in the Navy Department, said they got a new system for keeping records where his grandson works. Clem Webster was of the opinion this could get to be a pretty complicated system. For instant, said Clem, suppose one worker was holding a rafter while another worker was driving the nail. If he didn't hit the nail and claimed the other feller let the rafter move, who would get the bean?

Josh Clodhopper allowed as how it could cause a bean shortage and might start a revolution. Josh said he was reading where Government workers operated under very particular rules. Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed Doolittle was telling the fellers at the country store Saturday night he had done, lost his cotton pickin' mind and was ready fer the man in the white suit to come and git him.

First off, he reported he had saw a piece in the papers where the U. S. Department of Agriculture was spending $100,000 on a movie film to be showed all over Europe to encourage them folks to smoke more American cigarettes. They claimed they was doing this on account of wanting to help the American tobacco growers.

And in the very same paper, reported Ed, he had saw a piece where the U. S. Public Health Service was spending a million dollars on a campaign in California trying to discourage folks in that area from smoking cigarettes.

The fellers that runs the store butted in and allowed as how the U. S. Supreme Court, that was running the country anyhow, had ought to rule ever Government agency in Washington non compus mentus. On account of his old lady being a school teacher he throws in them $20 words ever onct in a while to impress the fellers. But they got the message and was agreed 100 per cent.

60 Second Sermon

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Chance fights ever on the side of the prudent." — Euripides.

The young wife greeted her husband affectionately. "Poor darling!" she exclaimed. "You must be tired and hungry. Would you like some nice soup, tender steak, golden brown potatoes, green peas, mushrooms on toast?"

"No, darling", her husband answered firmly, "let's save the money and eat at home."

It is said that a railroad engineer, speeding in his cab, is thinking at least a mile ahead. Knowing where he is headed, he plans for every eventuality to avoid disaster.

Thinking ahead is essential, whether to forestall the wife's sales talk or to succeed in business. Most of us fail because we stumble along, bumping obstacle after obstacle, instead of making a plan and watching where we are going.

Have you any idea how few people seriously plan ahead? How few even define their goals; know where they are headed or why? Try asking, "You'll receive vague replies, usually pointed toward the short-term satisfaction of some current emotion. They wonder why they are never lucky. But it is no wonder that a foresighted few achieve success with ease. Not only is chance on their side, but they have very little competition. Do it the easy way. Plan ahead.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Congressman James T. Broyhill

It was predictable early this year that the most searching conflicts in the Congress would involve the question of the fiscal management of the country. This is not just a matter for auditors and economists to debate. It is of urgent importance to every American. What is done or not done now will directly affect every citizen. Costs of the war in Viet Nam are rising and government spending for domestic programs is increasing rapidly. One result of these pressures is the increase in the cost of living. Every housewife sees this demonstrated each time she goes to the grocery store. There is also an old saying that "inflation is the father of recession." Americans everywhere are more and more concerned about this issue.

Support of our war effort is essential. The only alternative is that we should pull out of Viet Nam and abandon that country to Communist control. The immediate problem is how to tighten our belts at home so that inflation will not weaken our economic strength. We already hear that the President is considering asking Congress to raise income taxes. Controls on installment credit are also under very serious discussion. Not too far down the road could well be Federal controls on wages and prices.

The emergency measures may be required in the future. However, they should not be considered unless we are sure that we have taken whatever steps are required to avoid them. Certainly, one of those steps is to assess our sour domestic spending and determine how much farther we want to go into new and costly welfare programs. A debate on this question occupied the attention of the House last week as the second supplemental bill for the present fiscal year was brought up. Briefly, this was legislation to provide more money for government programs between now and next June 30 when the present fiscal year ends. Bills of this kind are necessary because spending estimates have been too low. In this case, we were talking about $2.5 billion more than had been planned.

Much of the money in the bill would be used for nine new programs that the Congress authorized last year. The need for some of the programs is questionable and in some cases, inflation is highly controversial. It is in this legislation that we faced again the financing of the Federal rent subsidy plan and the National Teachers Corp. Many of us have felt that the plan to offer Federal rent subsidies is unsound and, in the long run, dangerous. The plan has very few standards and it is clear that the authors of the plan see nothing wrong in helping families pay their rent even though the family income may be as much as $0,000 or $10,000 per year. Frankly, I think that this proposal is fuzzy-minded. However, pouring millions of dollars into it when the fires of inflation are burning so brightly and rising war costs are with us makes it a primary example of a program which certainly should not be given funds.

The same serious questions arise, in my mind, about the National Teachers Corps.

These programs and so many others that are now crowding the Treasury for money lead us to a sobering conclusion. That is the requirement to establish some kind of priorities so that needed and desirable programs will be properly financed and others will be put on the shelf. It is certainly the responsibility of the White House, the Congress, and the American people to discipline themselves to meet this problem. We are in for a serious collision with the reality if we go on behaving as though we can conduct our affairs on a "business as usual" basis.

One of the big question marks on the horizon is whether so many of those welfare programs intended to help poor people will not contribute just the opposite consequence.

Increases in the cost of living—inflation—are probably the most cruel of all forms of taxation. Inflation certainly hits hardest the country's poor and middle-income families. This is particularly true in times like these when the increases in living costs are occurring so strongly in the price of food and everyday necessities.

If we really want to protect the best interests of the poor people of this country, we are going to have to start by assuring that we have a sound and stable economy and that we cannot do this if we insist upon fueling the fires of inflation with more unnecessary Federal spending.

YADKIN VALLEY
By MRS. JOE LANGSTON

Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Cheshire were Sunday luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hank Williams.

Mrs. Grady and Mrs. Flossie Gough were visitors at Yadkin Valley on Sunday and guests of Mrs. J. K. Smith.

Sunday luncheon guests of Mrs. Lillian Smith were Mrs. Evelyn Sheek and Poley Cook. Afternoon visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Thompson and son.

Mr. and Mrs. Corky Cozart and baby were week-end guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Paschal. They are presently making their home in Georgia where he is stationed with the U. S. Air Force. Mrs. Wilbur West is receiving treatment at the Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem.

The famous Rebels quartet of Tampa, Florida will return to Yadkin Valley on Easter Sunday night to present a program of song and testimony.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Boles and daughter, Linda and Mrs. Carter visited George Carter recently at Ft. Stewart, Georgia where he is stationed with the U. S. Army. Four young men from the Yadkin Valley church are now in service for our country. They are Earl Douthit in Viet Nam, Benny King in Germany, J. K. Smith in Fayetteville and George Carter in Georgia.

We have recently discovered a very interesting and educational display of flags in the lobby of Winston-Salem's Robert E. Lee Hotel. I wonder how many believe as I did that the "Rebel" flag at Davie is the Confederate flag? Anyone may go in and view the display.

The community owes thanks and appreciation to the Farmington Advance and Cornatzer, Dulin fire departments and all others that helped extinguish a fire Sunday afternoon, which for a time threatened the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burnette near Bethlehem.

Yadkin Valley people continue work in the grave yard. Work begins this week at 4:00 p. m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. The parking area has been improved. Anyone who can help with this work, please do so.

What is more rare than a day in June So the poet said. Well a day in April with redbuds, dogwood, wild plum and violets in bloom, of course.

Sponsor Joint Banquet

The Central Davie High School Future Homemakers of America and the Future Farmers of America sponsored a joint Mother-Daughter-Father-Son Banquet Thursday night in the school gymnasium. The affair was planned, organized and conducted by the officers and members of the two local chapters.

The program area was decorated with the red and white (FFA) and national blue and corn gold (FFA) colors of the two organizations. The main attraction in the decorated area was the large blue and gold sign with sprinkles of silver signifying that the banquet was given in honor of the fathers and mothers of the community.

The organizations and guest were privileged to have J. C. McLaughlin, Professor of Sociology at A and T College, Greensboro, North Carolina, as their guest speaker. Mr. McLaughlin spoke to the audience on the topic, "The Challenge of Change." He admonished those present to reevaluate their environmental situation and ask themselves the questions "Who am I? Where am I? and Where am I going?"

After this address by Mr. McLaughlin the organizations and guests retired from the banquet tables to engage in social fellowship. The parents were invited to visit the departments to observe some of the works of the students.

Social Security
In Davie County

The social security district office, located at 105 Corriher Avenue, Salisbury, has announced the continuance of extra hours open to the public through the month of April. Robert C. Thomas, District Manager for social security, said today that the experience of the last few months in enrolling people for "Medicare" has revealed that many working people are unable to visit the office during its regular hours. Some of these Medicare applicants still have additional papers to fill out and will be asked by the local office to call back in the next few months. Others who have become 65 since the first of this year may need to make application for Medicare for the first time, if they are to be covered fully when the program starts in July. To accommodate these people, the local office will be open Friday evenings through April 29 until 9:00 p.m., Mr. Thomas said.

The Veteran's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: Below are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to some of the many current questions from former servicemen and their families. Further information on veterans benefits may be obtained at any VA office.

Q — I receive monthly compensation payments from VA for a service-connected injury. A portion of my payment is for my son who becomes 18 years of age next month. If he remains in school after 18, will I continue to draw this extra income for him?

A — As long as your child remains unmarried and in school, except for normal summer vacation periods, you will continue to receive an extra allowance for him until he is 23 years old. Payment of this extra allowance would cease, however, in the event your son completes his education, drops out of school, or marries before reaching the age of 23.

Q — DO veterans need to attain age 65 before they are eligible for pension from the Veterans Administration?

A — A veteran of wartime service may be eligible for pension at any age if he can prove permanent disability and unemployability, subject to income limitations.

Q — My husband is a veteran of World War II and he has a service-connected disability of 100%. What benefits does he have when one of his family needs hospitalization?

A — The Veterans Administration does not provide hospitalization for the dependents of veterans.

Senator Jordan Reports:

By SEN. B. EVERETT JORDAN

WASHINGTON — The Senate has approved a bill which should be of tremendous help in our efforts to reduce the constantly increasing accident rate on our highways. The bill would require automobile manufacturers to put safer tires on cars at the assembly line.

There are also a number of other highway safety measures pending in the Congress, but priority consideration was given to the tire safety bill while hearings and studies continue on the others.

In recent years there have been increasing complaints that a number of manufacturers have either put inferior or borderline tires on new automobiles which will not stand the weight of the cars they are on, or the moderately fast speeds of our interstate and primary highways.

This situation, as well as the general confusion the public encounters in buying tires, has created a condition which must be corrected if we are to be successful in reducing the number of people being killed and injured in highway accidents.

The big problem involved in automobile tires is the fact that the customer has no way of measuring the quality or safety of the tires on the market other than through brand names such as "premium," "first-line," etc., and in many cases people buy so-called "economy" tires unaware of the sad fact that they in all probability cannot stand up under the wear and tear of today's automobiles and highways.

In its efforts to help correct the situation, the Senate has passed a bill which would require the Secretary of Commerce to conduct exhaustive tests with the cooperation of the automobile and tire manufacturing industries, and establish a set of tire quality requirements for new automobiles as well as the grading and identification of replacement tires in order for the public to know what they are buying.

In doing this, there is no effort on the part of the Congress to dictate to the public what kind of tires they buy but it is the duty of the Congress, in the public interest, at least to see to it that the public is aware of what constitutes a safe tire at the time it is purchased.

Tom Hauser Heads Pork Referendum

Tom E. Hauser of Rt. 2, Advance, N. C. was recently appointed Chairman of the Pork Producers Referendum in Davie County. In this referendum on April 27th, farmer's will be voting to continue for three-years the present 5 cents per head assessment on all hogs sold for slaughter in the state. This money is used to finance the research, educational, and promotional program of the Pork Producers Association. The major activities of the Association during the past year have been two research projects with North Carolina State University in which some very significant information on baby pig scours and parasites of swine were discovered through a field study on the causes of baby pig scours. Another project that is showing great promise from the standpoint of economics of hog production is the nutrition study to determine the most practical and profitable method of feeding brood sows with today's modern rations.

The Association also carried on an active Educational Program by distributing more than 150 thousand pieces of information concerning handling, preparing, cooking, and the nutritive value of pork to housewives in the state. In addition to this all Home Economist in the state received information kits to help them tell the Pork Story in their classrooms and with consumer groups.

Two of the most widely publicized activities of the Association during the past year consisted of point-of-sale promotions to encourage the use of more pork in outdoor cookery and a joint promotion with the egg and milk people encouraging better breakfast with pork.

Mr. Hauser stated that the Pork Producers Association was organized by farmers who felt that Pork Producers needed a representative organization and he urges all producers to get out an devote to continue the many worthwhile activities of this producer, organized, controlled, and financed organization.

Polling places for the April 27 referendum will be announced in the next issue.

"Virginia Woolf" Is Showboat Presentation

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" which caused an instant sensation when it opened three years ago on Broadway is the current production at Showboat Dinner Theater, opening Wednesday (April 6) for a four-week engagement.

Edward Albee's controversial play follows the successful engagement of Julia Curry in "Janus."

Baz Arini of New York, Showboat's fulltime director, has completed rehearsals in Manhattan and brings the professional cast to Showboat.

Heading the cast are Maxim Taguer and Elizabeth Ives, who originated the roles of George and Martha with the New York Arena Repertory Theater, and Eddie Jones, who toured as Nick for nine months with the National Company, starring Nancy Kelly and Sheppard Strudwick.

The role of Henry in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" will be played by lovely Betty Harryman, who recently completed the off-Broadway engagement of Jean Giraudoux' "Tiger at the Gates." She played Helen of Troy.

Taguer, who was guest star at Tanglewood Barn Theater at Clemmons in 1961, has appeared on Broadway with such stars as Helen Hayes, Paul Muni, Tallulah Bankhead, Melvin Douglas, Viveca Lindfors, Franchot Tone and Barbara Bel Geddes.

Taguer has appeared in such Broadway hits as "Inherit the Wind," "The Deputy" and "What Every Woman Knows."

A veteran of most major television series, Taguer appeared at Tanglewood as Big Daddy in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," Sgt. King in "No Time for Sergeants" and Sheridan Whiteside in "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Miss Ives is coming to the sunny South after a season of winter repertory at the Stowe Playhouse in ski-happy Vermont. One of her leading roles there was that of Martha in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

In addition to performing with the New York Arena Theater, repertory Miss Ives has appeared widely on New York television and radio and in numerous children's theater productions.

Jones, who appears as the ambitious young man involved with Martha and George, is known to millions of afternoon-TV-watchers as Matthew Steele in "Young Dr. Malone."

He has had a long association with Edward Albee characters, having appeared in off-Broadway productions of the playwright's "The Death of Bessie Smith" and "The American Dream," as well as the nine-month tour of the National Company with Miss Kelly and Tar Heel Sheppard Strudwick.

Miss Harryman has appeared on stage and television in New York and toured Germany as Comfort in "Pursuit of Happiness."

Heinz Hohenwald is returning to Showboat to stage manage "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" He stage managed Showboat's initial production, "Mary, Mary," which had Julia Curry as leading lady.

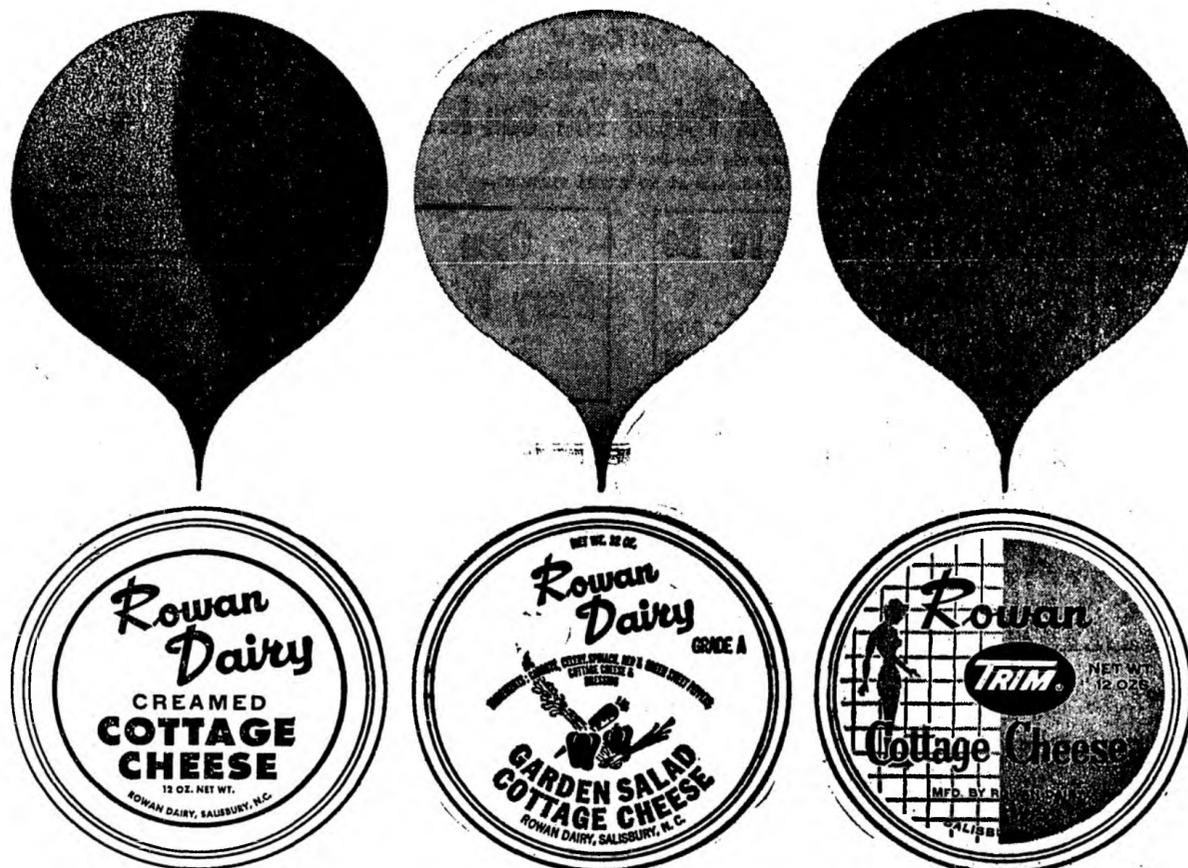

Hohenwald, on Broadway, acted in and stage managed "Night of the Iguana" stage managed "Slow Dance on the Killing Ground" and was associated with the recent production of Tennessee Williams' "Slapstick Tragedy."

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" is an adult play.

U. N. C. — Around The Old Well

By JOAN PAGE

CHAPEL HILL — Editors of NEWSWEEK magazine and THE NATIONAL OBSERVER and a TV network newsman made some interesting observations on newspapering in discussions held here during "Journalism Week."

Ed Diamond, senior editor of NEWSWEEK; Don Carter, managing editor of THE NATIONAL OBSERVER; and Charles Kuralt of CBS News reviewed the status of the press and its relationship to radio and television.

They were among some 15 big-name journalists from over the United States appearing on the week-long program, a new project of the University of North Carolina Journalism School.

Diamond stressed changes in the audience.

"Our new audience is younger, brighter, more literate, has more money and is tired of old formulas," he said. "It is electronicized and televised. It expects Viet Nam in the parlor each evening."

A newspaper diet of "crime, sex and fires" will no longer suffice, Diamond warned. "Television has brought immediacy of the news" and thereby endowed newspapers and magazines with a new role.

He defined this role as "practicing total journalism." This, he said, consists of sighting a problem, reporting its background, analyzing the current situation, offering solution and making predictions.

"Television is like a Chinese meal," he compared. "It lasts an hour . . . whets the appetite and makes you want more. TV stimulates the public's appetite for news."

Calling on newsmen and feature writers to satisfy the public's hunger for news, Diamond challenged them to shun cliché stories, fillers and syndicated copy and to perfect the skills of "digging, writing and reporting."

Carter observed that "scoops" in newspapers are fast fading.

"Radio and TV have eroded spot news and are dipping into community service," he said. "As a result, content of newspapers is changing."

Carter cited a need for more specialized information in newspapers, such as event schedules. "There's a need for an almanac for day-to-day living," he said, pointing to the public's expanding leisure, interests and incomes.

He agreed with Diamond that TV stimulates the appetite for news.

"Network news coverage is good and getting better," he said. "Newspapermen should keep posted on what radio and TV are doing. Newspapers put flesh on the bare bones of news. The press should concentrate on presenting thought-provoking matter, in-depth reporting, human interest stories, background stories, and telling the news in terms of people."

The press should repeat and report facts presented by the "electronic" media, but implement them with the WHY of the news, he said. The press should focus on the WHO of the news through explanatory interviews and local tie-in stories.

"We should make more use of maps, diagrams, charts, designs and color for impact," Carter suggested. "We should fill up with meaningful, hard-to-get studies and analyses. Readers don't have to read stories they aren't interested in, but they do have to watch them on TV."

Kuralt, a UNC alumnus and former editor of THE DAILY TAR HEEL, cited five major problems in television news coverage. There is a shortage of newsmen skilled in writing, editing, production and factor; the physical problem of altering a situation being reported on; the "star" angle of TV coverage; and the fact that TV is not basically a news medium.

"The TV camera takes you there and shows you what happens, but we haven't done much to explain the WHY of the news," Kuralt observed. "TV can't possibly compare with papers in 'space' given to news events."

Kuralt emphasized the fact that "the object observed is the object altered." Some serious "moral problems" are raised, he noted, because sometimes the presence of a TV camera alters a situation. He cited incidences where "scenes" or demonstrations occurred because a TV cameraman was present, and others where murder and destruction didn't occur because the camera was there to record it.

"The TV man alters a situation whereas a reporter for a paper can cover an event by standing quietly by and observing," he explained.

Kuralt expressed personal opposition to the "star system" in television news coverage, but said it seems to be inevitable. Oftentimes, the TV reporter becomes the center of attraction, rather than the news event, and the public looks upon him as a "star."

He noted that television is not a medium dedicated solely to news. "It's more like we're running comics on Page One and news on Page Eight," he described. "TV doesn't have an editorial page. The TV reporter must strive to be fair."

He listed "telling the human story" as television's main asset. "We do this quite well," he said. "By simply showing things as they are, we can have tremendous impact."

He recalled a story on "Christmas in Appalachia" which he did for CBS. Though the program wasn't carried by half of the network's affiliates, it resulted in the National Guard being mobilized to handle all the packages sent to the area.

"My mail continually reminds me how loud our voice is," he said. "The medium itself is enough to humble us all."

Library News

Services for the Blind and those with poor vision is one of the many advantages offered by your Davie County Public Library. It is a still expanding part of the work here, but is much appreciated by those who make use of it.

For some time the library has been able to land recordings of parts of the Bible.

For the last few months we have received the large type edition of Reader's Digest, designed to make interesting reading available to those who need very large print to save eye-strain. This is published not only in English, but in thirteen other languages. (Of course, ours is in English!)

From time to time books are coming out in very easily read print, and they are being added to the library as they are published.

A magnifying glass is kept in the library and anyone who would like to use it while in the library may ask for it at the circulation desk. We have one patron who always gets it and says it is a great help!

Travel and vacation time approaches. You'll want to hear the library radio program, "Washington, Magnificent Capitol", a history of our nation's capital, given by Mrs. Knox Johnstone, Station WDSL, at 10:30 A. M., Friday, April 8.

Friday Is Deadline For Filing

The deadline for filing for County and district offices will be at twelve noon on Friday. After that it will be too late for any political aspirant to throw his hat into the ring.

County Commissioners. Republicans: Mrs. Lillian Gregory, Albert Howard, Jerry Swicgood. Democrats: M. H. Grace and C. F. (Bud) Ridenhour.

Two Democrats from Iredell County have filed for the two seats open to Davie and Iredell Counties. They are Robert A. Collier, Jr. and Fred B. Bunch, both of Statesville.

Two Republicans have filed for the State Senate seat for the counties of Davie, Yadkin, Watauga and Wilkes. They are F. D. B. Harding of Yadkinville and T. R. Bryant of Wilkesboro.

The law provides that owners of property adjoining the town limits may petition for incorporation. Following a public hearing the governing body may or may not bring the area into the town at their discretion.

Soil and Water Conservation District Makes Boundary Change

The boundaries of the Davie Soil and Water Conservation District have been changed under the provisions of Article 1, Chapter 139 of the North Carolina General Statutes to include town and village lots and government owned or controlled lands within the boundaries of the district effective March 9, 1966.

The boundaries of Davie District were amended to read as follows: "All the lands lying within the county of Davie." The District boundaries were changed in the interest of facilitating service to the people and it was determined that all landowners and occupiers, as well as the public in general will benefit by the program of the District for the Development, conservation, and wise use of the natural resources of the county.

Order of priority adopted for service by the District Board will be as follows: 1st priority . . . farmers; 2nd . . . schools and community development; 3rd . . . industry; and 4th . . . City and home owners.

As The Twig Is Bent TV Show April 19

AS THE TWIG IS BENT, the story of one of the most unusual and exciting schools in the United States...

The program examines the new school, its purpose, and the unique teacher-pupil relationship that exists in the school.

The North Carolina School of the Arts is the only state-supported school in the country, training the 220 students in attendance for professional careers in drama, dance or music.

AS THE TWIG IS BENT shows intricacy of training, the drudgery of constant practice and the exacting disciplines which are required of the students.

The program should re-ignite area interest in the school, which was established two years ago after a crash 48-hour drive among Winston-Salem citizens netted over one million dollars to insure its location in the Twin City.

AS THE TWIG IS BENT will document this unique story of specialized education in the performing arts, Tuesday, April 19, at 7:00 P. M. on Channel 12.

BAND PLACEMENT OF FERTILIZER

Band placement is one of the best methods of applying starter fertilizer (fertilizer applied at planting time) to row crops says Mr. Leo F. Williams, County Extension Chairman. Starter fertilizer is usually required for most row crops unless the nutrient levels are already quite high. Applying fertilizer at planting time often pays big dividends. The reason for this is young plants have a great need for plant nutrients, often before their root systems are well established. By placing bands of fertilizer close to the young plant, its roots can be supplied with nutrients at the early stages of growth. This enables the young plants to get off to a fast start. Phosphorus is particularly important to young plants and should be placed in the soil before or at planting time. Topdressing phosphorus is generally not very effective since it does not move very rapidly in the soil. These are the reasons most starter fertilizers are relatively high in phosphorus.

While band placement of fertilizer is a useful method it must be used with caution, reminds Mr. Williams. Fertilizer salts, particularly nitrogen and potassium, when placed in direct contact with the seed or roots of the young plant can result in poor germination or burning of the young roots. For this reason starter fertilizer should be placed in one or two bands 2 to 3 inches to the side and 2 to 3 inches below the seed or young plant. This places the plant nutrients close enough so the young roots can grow to them easily and still not be injured.

If large amounts of fertilizer are to be applied at planting time it is a good idea to broadcast at least part of it. A rule of thumb to follow is not to exceed 80 pounds of actual nitrogen and potassium combined as a band placement at planting time. The best way to determine the amount of plant nutrients you need to apply is to have your soil tested. Band placement is a good method of applying at least part of the fertilizer you need, but be certain to place it properly.

Tattle - Tattle - by Gordon Tomlinson

A call for Louise Miller at the Ladies' Night banquet of the Mocksville Lions Club last Thursday night might have started a stampede. There were a total of three present.

Special guests at the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Miller of High Point, Mrs. Sheek (Louise) Miller of Mocksville went up to Mrs. Miller and introduced herself saying:

"I am Louise Miller!"
"And I am Louise Miller", came back the reply.

And with the coincidence of the same name they struck up a conversation during which the Mocksville Louise Miller recalled that although their names were acquired through the matrimonial route, there was another present that was Louise Miller prior to getting married. She was Mrs. R. L. Whitaker Jr. . . the former Louise Miller.

Perhaps Davie County has at last broken the jinx of tragic happenings that has shrouded so many of our Easters.

For many years past now, many tragic happenings have occurred during the Easter observance . . . Friday through Monday.

One year that was a fatal wreck at Advance when a car hit a tree. Another year on Good Friday afternoon a convict stole a car in Winston-Salem and ran headon into a High Point man on US 64 West, killing him.

One year on Easter Monday a young boy killed his mother with a shotgun blast.

Another year fishermen along the Yadkin River were pelted with shotgun blasts.

And there have been a number of sudden and unexpected deaths of prominent citizens during this period.

Of course we had the sorrow of deaths during this period this year, but apparently Davie County escaped the more sensational, tragic happenings we are happy to say.

Word should be spread around that 12-noon on Friday is the absolute deadline that anyone can file for sheriff.

At the present time . . . and the best that anyone has been able to count . . . there are eight running for this office in Davie County. However, the rumors of candidates for this office and the office of constable are making outsiders wonder just what kind of lawlessness we have. As one non-county resident observed:

"If your officers are paid on the fee basis, which I presume they are . . . business must really be good for the offices to be that desirable!"

With all the candidates that are running . . . and all the political cards being strewn around . . . one man has come up with a vital question for anyone being a candidate for political office. Similar to the descriptive phrase of "A card carrying Communist" . . . he asks: "Are you a card scattering candidate?"

HOPE FOR HEARTS

TETANUS

With the coming of spring and a return to gardening and other out-of-doors activities, the risk of tetanus increases.

For several years the American Medical Association and many state and county medical societies have carried on continuing campaigns to urge the American public to protect itself against this very serious disease.

Tetanus — commonly known as lockjaw — need not happen. By means of immunization, tetanus is almost entirely preventable.

The tetanus spores can be found in the cultivated soils of most areas picked up by plants or animals, and introduced into the victim's body by something as inconsequential as the scratch of a thorn or an insect bite.

While millions of babies and members of the armed forces have been inoculated against tetanus, the fact remains that about three-fourths of the adult population is lacking in immunity. The protection offered by immunization wears off after a few years and must be re-established by booster shots, which most people fail to get.

Once they enter the body, tetanus spores "hatch" into microscopic bacteria, which begin to multiply. In the process they liberate one of the deadliest of all poisons which attacks the nerve centers, causing convulsions and muscle spasms — some so severe that victims have been known to fracture a vertebra.

Usually the first nerves affected are those of the head and neck which control the chewing muscles. These turn rigid with spasm, giving the disease its familiar name — lockjaw.

In a clean, free-bleeding cut tetanus spores usually are washed out. Or if they do sprout into bacteria, the microorganisms may be destroyed by the oxygen in the blood. But when blood flow is slight, or when the spores are insulated by imbedded dirt and debris, the tetanus bacteria may gain a deadly foothold within the body. This is because tetanus bacteria thrive in the absence of air.

No drug can halt a full-blown case, and about 60 per cent of those stricken die.

Protection by immunization should be started early — one and a half to two months after birth — for the scrapes and falls of childhood offer tetanus many opportunities. In children, as well as adults, immunity is initiated by a series of three shots, spaced over eight weeks, and followed by a booster dose within six to twelve months. Immunity is maintained by boosters every five years.

Good turn for electric customers—

Emptying coal cars like berry baskets helps to keep Duke Power rates among the nation's lowest.

This rotary dumper, used at a Duke Power steam electric generating station, can empty 100 tons of coal in less than a minute. That's just one of the ways we've found to increase our efficiency.

Every day, we're looking for new and better methods of electric generation, transmission and distribution.

This search, coupled with your increased use of electricity, has led to efficiencies that have permitted us to reduce rates six times since January 1, 1960.

Today, Duke Power's rates are 18% below the national average.

We're proud of this downward trend, but we're not resting on it. Even now, we're working to make electricity even more economical to you.

Falls Below North Carolina Standards

Davie Jail May Be Condemned

The Davie County jail is among the 25 county operated jails which should be condemned the state jail inspector said last week.

Leslie D. Smith said that the Davie County jail and 24 others county-operated jails fall below standards and should be condemned and new ones built.

"Davie County", Smith said, "has a sorry Jail situation. The Jail just behind the courthouse, was built in 1909 and is a fire-trap".

Smith's finding at the Davie County jail included: Inadequate lighting and ventilation, poor painting, poor heating, inadequate sleeping arrangements, no proper facilities for women, and fire hazards. There is no fire escape or exit from the second floor. He also termed toilet facilities and other plumbing as inadequate and pointed out there were no facilities for prisoners who become violent.

The Davie County Commissioners have been well aware of this problem and have been considering plans for correcting the situation. Local Commissioners are reportedly studying the possibility of perhaps enlarging the courthouse and the addition of a jail, or the construction of a new jail on the property recently acquired behind the courthouse.

During the last term of the General Assembly the commissioners sought to have a bill passed that would have provided a special tax levy of five cents for $100 valuation to be used for this new needed construction. The bill was to have been introduced by Rep. Donald Bingham of Davie Co., but he did not do so reportedly because of an indication from Senator James V. Johnson of Iredell County that he would not back the measure in the Senate.

Unless a special tax levy is authorized, the only other way to raise the necessary money for construction of new facilities would be through a bond issue which would have to be approved by county voters.

Should the Davie County jail be condemned, prisoners could not be lodged or kept here. Instead they would have to be transported and kept in jails in surrounding counties with Davie County paying that unit the board and lodging bill.

May 15th to June 10th Is Period In This Area

Another 17-Year Locust To Appear In '66

Within a few weeks, or from May 15 to June 10th, the morning air of North Carolina will be pierced by the shrill sound of millions of locusts announcing their freedom nderground imprisonment their release can be predicted with as much certainty as can the next eclipse of the moon. It was in May and June 1949 that the newly hatched grubs of their parents wormed their way into the soil in heavily wooded areas to live for the next 17 years feeding upon the roots of trees and shrubs in that area; never to move from the wooded area where they were placed by their parents. These inmates of the soil have long since been given a number, as well as a race, being dubbed Brood VI of the 17-year periodical Cicada or Locust.

There is no other insect in North America that causes the curiosity or wonder as does the 17-year Cicada, which makes its sensational appearance in late May and early June every 13 or 17 years, depending upon the brood to which it belongs.

On the designated morning in late May, as if by pre-conceived signal, the young crawl forth from their dime-sized tunnels in the ground, and thence, to nearby trees where they begin to hastily transform into adults. Time is precious to them and within hours, the freshly hatched adults fill the morning air with their piercing sounds ringing like a thousand buzz-saws running. This continues each day for about 3 weeks during which time the adults mate, and then after their eggs are laid in nearby young tender twigs of trees and shrubs for the next generation, they die. Life is short for the adults, their show is over, they move from the stage.

The periodical Cicada is named "Magicicada" because of its "magic-like" appearance, which caused much astonishment to people in olden times. Early colonists familiar with the Biblical locust plague of Egypt believed they had come to America. Indians thought Cicadas were evil spirits coming to do harm. There is a false belief that the "W" on the fore wing foretells the coming of war!

Brood VI has been known to exist since 1779 and is recognized since then as a separate brood.

Reports with specimens if possible, of the occurrence of the 17-year locust from any part of the State will be appreciated for our insect survey records. These should be sent to the Division of Entomology, N. C. Department of Agriculture, Raleigh, North Carolina.

At The First Neglected Church

The Death Of Mrs. Prayermeeting

Mrs. Prayermeeting died recently at the First Neglected Church on Worldly Avenue. Born many years ago in the midst of great revivals, she was a strong, healthy testimony, praise, and heart holiness.

Quickly she grew into worldwide prominence and became one of the most influential members of the famous Church Family.

For the past several years Sister Prayermeeting has been in failing health, gradually wasting away until rendered helpless by stiffness of knees, coldness of heart, inactivity and weakness of purpose and will power. She has suffered spiritual anemia, rheumatism, fatty-degeneration of the heart, general paralysis, loss of weight, dizziness and weakness. She was but a shadow of her former happy self. Her last whispered words were injuries concerning stock market quotations and places of worldly amusement.

Sister Prayermeetings' older brother, Class Meeting has been dead many years.

Many surgeons and liberal physicians, including Dr. Works, Dr. Joiner and Dr. Highbrow, disagreed as to the cause of Mrs. Prayermeeting's fatal illness, administering larger doses of organizations, socials, contests, dances, bridge parties, drives, athletics, suppers, bingo games and finally trying religious education, but to no avail. A post-mortem showed a deficiency of spiritual food coupled with lack of prayer, fasting, faith, heartfelt religion, shameless desertion, and nonsupport as contributing causes of her death.

Carefully selected pallbearers, Brothers Cold Heart, Luke Warm, Wordly Minded, Pleasure Mad, Go Getter, and Efficiency Expert were urged to bear the remains of Sister Prayermeeting tenderly away, but none of them appeared.

Her favorite old hymns were not sung, but high soprano, Miss Ima Modern, rendered, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," Beautiful Isle of Somewhere, however, she had no idea of where this fancied island might be. Pastor Formality delivered the funeral oration. The body now rests in the beautiful cemetery of Bygone Glories, awaiting the summons from above. In honor of the passing of Sister Prayermeeting, the official board has voted that the church will close on Wednesday nights, except on the third Wednesday of each month when the Ladies' Pink Lemonade Society serves refreshments to the members of the Men's Bowling Team.

Her last rites: Sobbing over memories of her past beauty and power.

Health Spending Increases, Physicians' Share Declines

CHICAGO—Americans are increasing spending for health care. But they still spend more for tobacco than for hospital care, and more for hospital care, and more for cosmetics and haircuts than for doctor bills, reports The AMA News, published by the American Medical Association.

Spending for health care totaled $25.2 billion in 1964, according to figures of the U.S. Department of Commerce. That's an increase of 7.8 per cent from the $23.4 billion spent in 1963.

Hospitals receive the largest share of health-care spending—about 30 cents of every dollar. The total spent for hospital care in 1964 was $7.6 billion. This compares with $7.8 billion spent on tobacco products. Other portions of the health-care dollar are divided among drugs, 17 cents; dentists, 10 cents; health insurance, 7 cents; appliances, 4 cents, and miscellaneous expenses, 5 cents.

The remaining 27 cents goes to physicians. This percentage has declined slightly over the years. Twenty years ago, physicians received about 28 cents of every dollar spent on health care.

Expenditures for physicians' services totaled $6.8 billion in 1964, compared to $7 billion spent on personal items such as cosmetics, haircuts, and toiletries. This was the distribution of the health-care dollar 10 years earlier: hospitals, 24 cents; physicians, 28 cents; drugs, 18 cents; dentists, 12 cents; health insurance, 8 cents; appliances, 5 cents, and the other services, 5 cents.

The Department of Commerce reported these expenditures for health care in 1964:

Hospitals, $7.6 billion, up 12.5 per cent over 1963; physicians, $6.8 billion, up 5.5 per cent over 1963; drugs, $4.4 billion, up 5.2 per cent; dentists, $2.4 billion, up 5.8 per cent; health insurance, $1.8 billion, up 6.3 per cent; appliances, $1.1 billion, up 9.7 per cent, and other services, $1.2 billion, up 6.9 per cent over 1963.

NEWS AND COMMENT FROM OUR RALEIGH BUREAU 2615 Oberlin Road

OUT OF HOME . . . It is estimated in Raleigh that there are probably over 2,000 private clubs in North Carolina serving alcoholic drinks of various kinds across the bar.

Since this would be an average of 20 per county, it seems a little on the high side. However, consensus is that more whiskey is actually being sold across the bar than in the open-saloon days of 50 years ago.

The 1967 battle cry of those wanting alcohol sold in public places by the drink is already taking shape and goes as follows: "Let's get whiskey out of the home".

DRINKERS . . . North Carolinians apparently like to drink—beer, wine, rum whiskey, and even a little tequila now and then. Tequila is Mexico's favorite drink, is an intoxicant—sold in North Carolina ABC stores—made of certain type of fermented cactus juice. Wow. Tarheels love strong drink—and the millions of dollars in taxes that strong drinks brings in.

Many units of local government—city and county—already crying for more money, could not make ends meet without their income from alcohol of various kinds.

COMING EVENTS . . . Coming events often cast their shadows before. Thus we can see now that the two main fights in the next Legislature will be concerned with: 1. Cigarette taxes. 2. Drinks sold legally across the bar.

TYPICAL PLACES . . . Ben Jenson, in one of his many writings, remarked that "the law is an ass". What with the many judicial pronouncements we are getting dress days—from brown bags on up to school prayers—one never knows what next to expect. Legislative bodies these days are kept busy straightening out—or catching up with—judicial decisions.

Too many criminals whose guilt is beyond doubt are being set free through legal technicalities and as a result of some innocent error on the part of under-paid law enforcement personnel. Example: the other day a man went into a big department store, tried on a suit, was walking out with it when arrested for shoplifting. The judge freed him because the N. C. Shoplifting Laws refers to concealed merchandise—and he had not concealed the suit.

Your suspicions are as good as any as to why—after 25 solid years of it—brown-bagging has suddenly become illegal. And, as to serving drinks in clubs: this is one of the main reasons for the existence of many of these clubs.

then, the motel club, the American Legion Club, the VFW Club, etc. It may be that one reason "leading citizens" have not made more of an outcry for open bars in North Carolina is that so many of them already have access to across-the-bar drinks.

Be this as it may, the hotels—if they can hold out for about if months—now have what they have been looking for in that judge's decision against out-of-the-home drinking.

FROM THE CITY . . . In the 1967 Legislature, those who are against saloons will be accused of preferring to have whiskey served in the home. A lot of argument will be forthcoming as to why alcoholic beverages should be served only outside the home, away from the children.

Now that the Legislature has been reappointed to favor heavy population centers like Raleigh, Durham, Greensboro, Fayetteville, Winston-Salem, Charlotte, and Asheville, look for more open-bar sympathy than ever before.

Without going into the social aspects of the matter, we would like to say this: nothing is more tacky, and nothing gets us laughed at more by tourists, than the toting of liquor (slosh-slosh) in the brown bags as we dine out evenings in our posh restaurants.

And, as to the alphabetical aspects of ABC, consensus seems to be it has one letter too many—the last one.

MORE SANFORD . . . Last week in reporting here that former Gov. Terry Sanford's party chairman, national committeeman, and head of C & D are candidates for the Legislature, we failed to list these other Sanford stalwarts who are also running: Sneed High, Fayetteville, former head of the N. C. Revenue Dept., under Gov. Sanford; John Henley, Fayetteville, head of the Division of Purchase and Contract with Gov. Sanford; and Good Friends Sam Burrows of Asheboro, Billy Harrison of Rocky Mount, Dave Reid of Pitt County and Dub Graham of Mecklenburg.

Seriously and frankly, it looks right now as if Terry Sanford may have it if they are all elected—more real tiger-hunting friends in the Legislature than Gov. Dan Moore. It promises to be a most unusual—and interesting—situation.

This Sanford Group could, and will might, hold the balance of power on all highly controversial matters coming up in the 1967 Legislature. How they will affect Lt. Gov. Bob Scott's plans, nobody knows.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: I see where one of them Washington column writers named John Cramer that works for a outfit called the Scripps-Howard Newspapers has sneaked up on a possum hiding in the Pentagon woods.

He come across a agency there that ain't hit a lick of a blacksnake in four months. The Big Brass in the Pentagon explained that all them workers was waiting for a big computer to git installed and they was running four months behind with the installing. This column writer said the name of the new agency was IPS of RFB of OD of AI&DSC which stood for Input Preparations Section of Report Preparations Branch of Operations Division of Army Information & Data Systems Command.

I bring this item up at the country store Saturday night and some of the fellers was disagreed in the matter. Ed Doolittle allowed as how it wouldn't make no sense to hire a bunch of carpenters to build him a barn four months afore he got the lumber to build it. He was of the opinion this was more of that non comus mentus business the store-keeper was talking about last week.

Zeke Grubb was agreed with Ed, said them workers could've been earning their pay for four months by cleaning junk piles, picking up beer cans and helping Lady Bird in the America Beautiful program.

Clown Webster of the Great Society argued everybody was missing the main point, that it would take four months for them workers to learn the name and call letters of their new agency and that didn't nobody want to be working for somepne he couldn't spell or pronounce. I'll let you umpire this one. Mister Editor, and if you git to any decision in the matter, put it in your computer and send it along.

Incidental, Ed told the fellers the "Image" of the Great Society was getting worse all the time, reported he had saw where they was a big rash of phony $5 bills in New York and Boston. He claimed it was a sad state of affairs in the Great Society when them counterfeit boys was stooping to $5 bills. Anything under a $20 bill nowadays, said Ed, had ought to be throwed into the poverty program collection plate.

It's a great pity, Mister Editor, some of the sessions at the store ain't recorded for history. I read once that some of the best writing in the world was in newspapers but it was enjoyed and forgot like the weather. It's the same way with some of the sessions at the store. I reckon they was times when some of the greatest philosophy of this age has come from fellers like Ed, Zeke, Clem, Bug, Josh and the store-keeper.

Yours truly, Uncle Dave

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Congressman James T. Broyhill

FAMINE

Americans have a great deal of difficulty imagining famine and its ravages upon a whole population. It is true that we have privation and poverty in this country. However, the vision of massive hunger and starvation is foreign to Americans and something outside their experience. The bounty of American food production is so great and our distribution system is so effective that the problem we have developed is surpluses rather than shortages.

Nevertheless, hunger still stalks some parts of the world and probability of starvation on a huge scale is on occasion a very real prospect. This problem is particularly acute in India, that huge and teeming subcontinent whose problems are as its geography. Last week, the Congress came face to face with the issue of what this country might do to help ward off almost certain disaster for the Indian people.

Since India became independent after World War II, she has neglected her agricultural production. In 15 years, food production has been increased by 75%. Even so, India's population increases at an even faster rate and the country has been dependent upon outside help for many years.

Added to this problem, India has suffered from a natural disaster. Crops in that part of the world depend upon the monsoon—a rainy season when soil is conditioned and can store up the essential water for the crops to be planted. Last year, in large areas of India, the rains did not come. The blight of drought spread over the land and disaster seemed sure to follow. As we understand the problem, the resulting famine is sufficiently great that its victims could well number in the millions. An additional six to seven million tons of grain will be required if the Indian people are to meet this crisis and a world-wide alarm has been sounded.

It is hoped that many countries either with food surpluses of their own or with the means to buy food will contribute to this emergency. The President has pledged under authority he already has been given by the Congress that the United States will contribute 3½ million tons between now and next December. Canada has already come forward with one million tons of grain from its stocks and it seems likely that other countries will follow.

The United States effort is part of an international undertaking that has three general purposes. First, is the program of actual agricultural commodities. The second is an effort to combat malnutrition, especially in mothers and children and, third, a program to encourage and assist the Government of India to expand its farm production so that it can more nearly meet its own need for food.

As I have pointed out earlier, the President already possessed the legislative authority to make this emergency commitment. Nevertheless, he felt it should be done with Congressional endorsement and cooperation. The Congress responded quickly with virtual unanimity.

Very frankly, the lack of argument over this proposal by no means indicates that the Congress is unanimous in its feeling that the food we have already sent to India has been used effectively. Serious doubt exists that it has been used properly for hungry people. There are also disturbing questions about whether the Indians, locked in the vice of old customs, are doing enough to help themselves. The country had also become embroiled in military conflict with Pakistan which it could ill afford. Our relations with India have not been uniformly smooth. The government of that country has often been critical of American policy without proposing any sound alternatives in a world confronted by Communist aggression. It is imperative now, that India takes greater strides to meet its overpopulation problem and the threat that eventually mass starvation will be the means for enforcing population control if positive steps are not taken.

All these things are gigantic and perplexing problems for India and for the rest of the free world. They are matters that affect the long-term consequences of peace and stability in our world and the world our children will know. Yet, the need for food in India is immediate and it is rapidly approaching the point of desperation. Under the circumstances, this country has only one choice—to act quickly and promptly. It was this kind of action that was taken last week.

Senator SAM ERVIN Says:

WASHINGTON — What started out to be a short Congressional session dedicated to improvement of existing programs and laws has turned into another effort to enact broad new programs. Presidential messages have been coming to Capitol Hill for weeks now with regularity urging new Federal aids at home and abroad. Moreover, the Viet Nam War has shifted Congressional concern from reform to inflation, taxes, and the conduct of the war.

Hopes for a short session have all but evaporated. What all this means is that Congress will have less time to devote to the improvement of old programs and instead will be devoting much energy to the consideration of educational plans for overseas children and a new flock of civil rights bills. In this climate, criticisms leveled at the anti-poverty program and the alleged misuse of Federal Housing funds are almost certain to get less attention than they merit. Congress ought to take a long, hard look at existing Federal aids to individuals, communities, states, and the world. Such an effort would certainly improve many Federal programs and cut waste out of others.

Instead, the President has announced that he is sending down another set of anti-discrimination bills, is suggesting new and more costly city development plans at a time when the Federal Government is pressed to hold down expenditures, and is advocating passage of a rent-subsidy program that poses future budgetary problems.

In the Congressional workload are some new programs that have much merit. The President has proposed amendments to the Federal Water Pollution Control Act that I strongly favor. I have joined in the introduction of two bills on this subject. Conservation of pure supplies is a national need vital to life in the years ahead.

The Water Pollution Control Act, which I co-sponsor, simply takes a new approach to the old problem of stream pollution and water shortages. Principally it would shift functions from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to the Department of Interior, and it would also create a commission to study the nation's water needs, especially with respect to pure water.

Other Administration-backed programs which I support are the tire safety standards bill and the anti-crime proposals. In this connection, I have introduced some anti-crime legislation on my own to curb rising crime rates and have worked on the legislation in the Committee. All in all, Congress still has much work to do before the snow flies. As of April 1, of twenty-five major Administration measures on the Congressional calendar only three had reached the status of "final action". In addition, twelve regular appropriation bills still had a long way to go, and a multitude of lesser bills were in the "study" and "hearings scheduled" stage.

If any consensus has developed at this stage of the session, it is this: Congress is less prone to create new Federal programs that will add to the already mounting tax burdens of the country.

60 Second Sermon By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Revenge is a confession of pain." — Seneca.

A tourist entered a cafe in South Africa and was startled to see a customer in full uniform, only six inches high.

"Evidently you don't know the major," said the manager. The tourist admitted this, so the manager picked the little man up, placed him on the table and continued.

"Speak up, major. Tell the Yank about the time you called the witch doctor a bloody fake."

It appears that the witch doctor had his revenge. Many times we may wish that we could be as effective in "getting even" with someone. However, attempted revenge doubly delights the one who commits an offense. He knows that his intended injury was successful. Therefore, wise men do not, by seeking revenge, give others the satisfaction of knowing how deeply they were hurt.

Revenge also makes a hurt continue longer than necessary. As long as someone seeks revenge, his hurt will remain. Bacon, in his Essays wrote, "A man that studieth revenge keeps his own wounds green, which otherwise would heal and do well."

There are few acts that waste time, talent and energy and so shrivel the soul as revenge. Dismiss it. It has no place among intelligent men.

Piedmont baseball fans were given a last minute preview look at the major leagues this past weekend when the Washington Senators played the Boston Red Sox in a Saturday afternoon exhibition game at Ernie Shore Field in Winston-Salem...

AS expected baseball talk was abundant before the game between players, coaches, managers, and various area press representatives. One thing for certain came out of all the pre-game chatter. Everyone feels this year's American League pennant race will be just as wide open as the one last year...

Billy Herman, the Red Sox skipper, says he doesn't believe the Yankees can win without a "Heathen" Mickey Mantle. Asked about his own club's chances Herman said he felt it was capable of a first division finish...

Last year Boston had the American League's top home run hitter (Tony Conigliaro with 32) and the second best overall hitter in the league (Carl Yastrzemski with a .312 average)...

Yastrzemski, who formerly played with Raleigh in the Carolina League, won the American League batting title in 1963 with a .321 average. When asked about his hitting he immediately came back with the type comment you like to hear...

Social Security In Davie County

"Many Davie County clergymen have an important decision to make by April 15," Robert C. Thomas, social security district manager in Salisbury, said today.

The 1965 Amendments to the Social Security Law gave clergymen who had missed out on previous opportunities to sign up for social security coverage another chance to elect this protection. Now this latest "open season" provided by law is about to run out, he said.

Mr. Thomas explained that clergymen are the only occupational group who must decide on their own whether they want their earnings to be subject to social security in order to get protection for themselves and their families against the risks of death, disability, and low incomes and illness in the later years.

"A clergyman takes the first step in obtaining social security protection by signing Form 2031, available at all social security and Internal Revenue Service offices. The full name of the form is, "Waiver Certificate to Elect Social Security Coverage for Use by Ministers, Certain Members of Religious Orders, and Christian Science Practitioners." He then pays the social security taxes, at the rate set for the self-employed, on his earnings from the ministry.

His religious organization, church, or synagogue is not committed to payments by this decision on his part. He will continue to make these payments as long as his earnings, after expenses, are $400 or more in a year. "I urge clergymen who have any doubts about their present coverage or questions about coverage for past or for future years to get in touch with their social security office without delay. The time is short. And much may be at stake for clergymen and their dependents," the district manager said.

"About the only clergymen not affected by this elective provision in the law are those who have taken vows of poverty, or those who have earnings of $6,000 or more from another form of endeavor," Mr. Thomas concluded.

About two Americans die every minute from heart and blood vessel disease. The premature death and disability from heart and blood vessel disease is the nation's leading health problem, the North Carolina Heart Associations says.

Around The Old Well
By JOAN PAGE

CHAPEL HILL — Ten leading Americans of varied backgrounds and occupations will discuss "Man, Mind and Myth" during the five-day Carolina Symposium to be held on the University of North Carolina campus April 17-21.

From noted cartoonist Al Capp, creator of "Li'l Abner," to Harvard economist and former Kennedy advisor John Kenneth Galbraith, the Symposium cast is star-studded. Included among the big-name speakers are a leading politician, three writers, a philosopher, two historians and a theologian. All sessions are open to the public.

Galbraith, the keynote speaker, will open the Symposium Sunday evening, April 17. The advisor to the late President Kennedy, author of THE AFFLUENT SOCIETY and former editor of FORTUNE MAGAZINE, will speak on "Myth and Modern Man."

Appearances by the Very Rev. Alan Richardson, dean of York Cathedral; NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE's colorful writer Thomas Wolfe; Princeton philosophy professor and Nietzsche expert Walter Kaufmann; novelist and short story writer Nelson Algren; novelist Ralph Ellison; Arizona Congressman Morris K. Udall; Yale history professor C. Vann Woodward; and Daniel Boorstin, professor of American History at the University of Chicago, are also scheduled.

"The Genesis of Myth" will be explored Monday by Dean Richardson and Daniel Boorstin. Dean Richardson, international lecturer and author of THEOLOGICAL WORLD BOOK OF THE BIBLE, will discuss man's attempt to explain the absolute. Boorstin, noted scholar and traveler, will present a study of the interrelationships between a society's mythology and the evolution of its history.

Kaufmann and Algren will speak Tuesday on "The Role of Myth." Outstanding philosopher and author Kaufmann will discuss the effects of myths on an individual's thoughts. Algren, author of best-seller THE MAN WITH THE GOLDEN ARM and A WALK ON THE WILD SIDE, will examine the relationships between myths and mores.

Wednesday, Arizona Congressman Morris K. Udall will talk on the part myth plays in politics. A former star basketball player and captain of his college team, Udall played professionally with the Denver Nuggets while working on his law degree. The brother of Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall is also known for scoring the highest grade on the Arizona state law board examination in 1949.

Also on Wednesday, cartoonist Al Capp will take a candid look at the myths of American citizens and society at large. Featured regularly on NBC's Monitor radio programs, Capp believes man's inhumanity to man is the basis of all humor. This conviction finds expression in his artistic and literary creation, "Li'l Abner," a 20th century folk tale known for its satirical comments on current topics.

Wolfe, Woodward and Ellison will conclude the Symposium Thursday.

The new literary sensation, Tom Wolfe, will speak on the American dream in contemporary society. Author of the recent best-seller, THE KANDY KOLORED TANGERSINE FLAKED STREAMLINED BABY, Wolfe has made a name for himself by breaking every possible literary tradition. Many of his articles have appeared in ESQUIRE. His works are serio-comic comments on pop society and he employs a technique similar to stream-of-consciousness writing, stretching non-fiction to its limits.

Woodward and Ellison will discuss Southern myths and their manifestations. Author of THE STRANGE CAREER OF JIM CROW and THE BURDEN OF SOUTHERN HISTORY, historian Woodward holds both the Ph.D. and law degrees from UNC. He received the National Institute of Arts and Sciences Literary Award in 1954 and is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Ellison is author of THE INVISIBLE MAN, published in nine languages and honored with the National Book Award for Fiction, the Russwurm Award, and the National Newspaper Publishers Award. He once edited THE NEGRO QUARTERLY.

The symposium was created in 1927 to promote the sharing and exploring of ideas on campus. For almost 40 years, it has sponsored thought-provoking discussions on themes of timely interest and importance.

The symposium was first called the Institute for Human Relations, then changed to the Carolina Symposium on Public Affairs. In 1960, the name was shortened to Carolina Symposium.

In earlier years, the symposium was held every four years. More recently, it has been staged every two years and now alternates with a biennial Fine Arts Festival.

"Myth" is defined as a story which embodies and explains an already existing institution, rare happening or belief and thus a powerful force in our society. The guest symposium speakers will dissect "myth" from every angle.

Nearly a hundred UNC students have assisted in planning this year's Symposium program. George Butler of Montego Bay, Jamaica, is chairman and Dr. Daniel Patterson of the English Department is faculty advisor.

Other Symposium officers are David Lane of Durham, program chairman; Bill Graham of Chapel Hill, executive secretary; Mary King of Greensboro, secretary; and Eric Van Loon of Nashville, Tenn., treasurer.

Health Dept. Urges Power Mower Safety

"Every householder should include safety in his lawn care program this year," urged Dr. Leo Record of the Davie County Health Department, "by following a few simple precautions in power mower operation."

With the time here for the seasonal resumption of grass cutting chores, he called special attention to possible hazards of power lawn mowers. The Doctor explained that the greatest majority of injuries are caused by only two types of accidents — objects being picked up and thrown by the blades, and direct injury to hands and feet by blades.

To help avoid these and other types of injuries, Dr. Leo Record offered suggestions for safe operation of power lawn equipment.

1. Read and be sure you understand the operating procedure manual for your mower.
 2. Always keep your mower in top operating condition.
 3. Fill gasoline tank out-of-doors and away from any possible sources of fire. Never fill tank when engine and exhaust are hot.
 4. Stand away from mower when starting, and be sure it is on level ground.
 5. Mow during daylight hours and when grass is dry.
 6. If mower is self-propelled, keep in step with it. Don't let it pull you along.
 7. Never walk in front of a grass discharge chute when mower is running.
 8. When mowing an incline, move along the face of the slope, never up and down.
 9. Never take passengers on a riding mower.
 10. Don't leave mower unattended if it is running. Never attempt to clear blades or do any work on the mower until it is shut off and the spark wire or power cord is disconnected.
 11. Store fuel in approved safety cans in an outside location.
 12. Before mowing, check the lawn for objects that could be thrown by the blades.
 13. Keep children and others away from the mowing area.
- Though the power mower adds greatly to the convenience of maintaining a lawn, it should be treated as a potentially dangerous machine and care should always be taken in its operation. Mower manufacturers have made considerable effort to make their products as safe as possible and most have built their machines to conform to the safety standard set by the American

Standards Association. A mower meeting this standard will display a triangular seal with the initials ASA in large letters and the words "Conforms to Safety Standards." Your health department suggests you look for this seal when purchasing a new mower. Dr. Record concluded by saying, "Observe a few simple rules and practice common sense for safe operation of power lawn equipment this season."

School Children Entertained at Kennon Krest

Mrs. Queen Bess Kennon entertained the children of the Second and Third Grades of the Farmington School at her home Friday afternoon with an Easter egg party. The happy smiling guests and their teachers, Mrs. Roland and Mrs. W. W. Howell, were greeted at the front door by the Easter Bunny — really little Cecil Lashley all dressed up in rabbit costume with a fancy jacket, hat, long ears and all — and Mrs. Nell H. Lashley. Little Bunny led the guests into the spacious living room and into the dining area and around the dining table. The table with its center decoration of a graceful lacy floral arrangement with colored baskets made of egg shells hanging from the small twigs was flanked with little egg filled willow baskets. One for each bright eyed guest. Mrs. Kennon assisted by Miss Vada Johnson, Miss Margaret Brock, Mrs. Wade Furches and Mrs. G. H. Smith served the guests cookies and hot chocolate. The children sang several songs and presented the hostess with gifts from the Grades. As the children left they sang "Happy Easter to you" and said good-byes to Miss Vada Johnson at the door.

Soil and Water Conservation Planned — Davie District Signs Agreement

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has signed working agreements with 2 new soil and water conservation districts in North Carolina. They are the Hertford Soil and Water Conservation District and the Davie Soil and Water Conservation District.

The Hertford district, with 225,048 acres, was organized after the dissolution of the Roanoke-Chowan district, and has headquarters in Winston.

The Davie district formerly was part of the now-dissolved Middle Yadkin district. It covers 169,000 acres.

Under the new agreements, agencies of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will help the districts in conserving and developing soil, water, woodland, wildlife, and other resources and in watershed protection and management.

D. R. Williams, administrator of USDA's Soil Conservation Service, said SCS will offer technical assistance to cooperators in the 2 districts in developing, applying and maintaining conservation plans to protect and improve the land.

The districts also will be eligible for funds, services, cost-sharing, credit and facilities from State, local and private sources.

Supervisors for the Davie Soil and Water Conservation District of Mocksville, are Clay Hunter, Route 3, chairman; Joseph L. Smith, Route 3, vice-chairman; H. F. Blackwelder, Jr., Route 5, C. W. Phillips, Route 3, and H. L. Bailey, Route 1, Advance, N. C.

North Carolina has 8 soil conservation districts that cover the State.

The Davie Soil and Water Conservation District has just published an up-to-date Long Range Conservation Program . . . copies of this program are now available to persons and organizations in Davie County.

Cancer Crusade Still Continues

Midway in the last half of the American Cancer Society's 1966 Crusade against Cancer in Davie County "substantial progress has been made."

This was reported by Rufus L. Brock, chairman of the Crusade who said gains have been made in both education of the public and in funds raised.

Mr. Brock said latest reports, still incomplete, show the Society has already raised over $600. "This is slightly above what was raised last year at the halfway year at the halfway mark," he continued. "However, a total of $1300 was raised in the county last year and we still have a long way to go in the next two weeks to reach that figure," he concluded.

Mr. Brock added that there is still much to be done. He urged that everyone in the county make every effort to make a contribution for cancer research, education and service.

He explained, "We want every adult to know that a physical check-up every year is essential if we are to save half of those who develop cancer. We want them to know cancer's danger signals."

"And we need their construction if we are to continue to expand our fight against cancer on the three fronts we have fixed for ourselves — more research, more education, more service to patients."

"Let's make the final days of the Crusade an all-out effort with all systems working perfectly."

Tattle-Tales

By Gordon Tomlinson

Those who know Miss Flossie Martin know just how busy and active she stays with her historical work at the Davie County Library and with her work at the Baptist Church. In fact, recently she has been so busy that she is seldom at home during the day.

The man Miss Flossie had employed to take care of her yard was not accustomed to seeing her around her house and yard at all.

Recently, on a pretty spring day, Miss Flossie decided to remain at home and work in her flowers. This she was doing when her yardman arrived.

After working a few minutes, this man walked up to Miss Flossie and inquired:

"Did the library and Baptist Church fire you?"

Mrs. Douglas (Sylvia) Fink was late to work Monday afternoon . . . and she had a good reason . . . at least to her.

Coming out the door of her home she saw a big black snake slither by her and crawl under a lawn mower near her car. Sylvia retreated back into the house. Finally the snake crawled out from under the lawn mower and as it headed for the house . . . Sylvia headed for her car . . . and came on to the Duke Power office.

If Mrs. Grace Human, sister of Mrs. Francis W. Slate, tells you to "Buy A Donkey" . . . don't get disturbed. She is only thanking you in Afrikaansese.

Afrikaansese for "thank you very much" is "Baie Dankie" which is pronounced "Baize a donkey".

So if you are told to "buy a donkey" . . . just smile and reply: "You are certainly welcome!"

On The Home Front

Tri colored cookies is a treat for the children as they come in from school and play.

3/4 cup butter or shortening
1/2 cup sugar, 1 tblsp. vanilla
1 egg
2 1/2 cups sifted flour, 3/4 teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 tsp. salt
1 square unsweetened chocolate and red food coloring

Cream butter and sugar and add other ingredients. Divide dough in 3 parts, add chocolate to one part, enough red food coloring to another part to make a pretty pink. Line a wax paper box or foil box with foil and pat out one layer of chocolate dough, add layer of pink dough, then layer of vanilla dough. Chill for several hours. Cut into thin slices and bake until done in a 350 deg. oven.

Some people like a bit of icing on pound cake. Here is one that really dresses up a pound cake and has a good zesty flavor also.

Juice of two or three lemons and approximately 2 1/2 cups confectioner's sugar. Strain lemon juice and add sugar. The quantity of sugar depends on the amount of juice in the lemons. Beat vigorously until thick enough to spread. Use a thin bladed knife that has been dipped in water.

Coffee icing is a good variation using 1/3 cup strong, clear coffee and powdered sugar and vanilla flavoring. This is good on pound cake.

A Few Household Hints
Cut sheets of tinfoil to fit under flower vase dollies. Dampness will not reach polished surface.

Evergreen shrubs or rose bushes may be protected from dogs by throwing moth balls on the ground. Dogs will not come near the bushes.

An old wheelbarrow painted white makes a portable plant bed and can be moved anywhere.

Use a pipe cleaner to tie up a house plant; easier on plant than strings.

Use a storage nail of clean wood for small garden tools. This will retard rust.

Save the green top of fresh pineapple for an unusual house plant. It is easily rooted.

Artificial flowers may be made to look like new by placing them

JOHN PARKER

John Parker To Play At Spartanburg

The following article appeared in the Sunday, April 17, issue of the Salisbury Post concerning John Parker. The article was written by Jim Correll, Post Sports Writer and was as follows:

John Parker, former Davie County High pitching ace, will be on the mound for the Spartanburg Phillies of the Class A Western Carolinas League this season—maybe.

That maybe depends on Uncle Sam and the United States Army.

Parker, who lives in Cooleemee during the off season, had to return home from Spartanburg Friday night to attend a meeting of Army Reserves in Winston-Salem yesterday and today. And according to his mother, Mrs. Grimes Parker, Sr., he may have to go to basic training and then to active service.

"We're just hoping he can be deferred," said Mrs. Parker. And in typical motherly fashion she added, "I don't think they should take him just when he's getting a chance to prove himself."

Parker signed with the Philadelphia Phillies at the end of the High school baseball season last year after posting a perfect 11-0 record for Davie. He pitched 82 and two-thirds innings for the Rebels, striking out 156, walking 25, allowing just 23 hits and seven runs, only five of which were earned.

The 6-5, 190-pounder hurled the win over Shelby, a two-hit, 1-0 shut-out, that gave the Rebs the Western North Carolina High School Activities Association championship. He fanned 14 and walked none in that game.

DELIVERY CHANGED

After graduation, he joined the Huron Phillies in South Dakota. The pros tried to change his style of delivery, concentrating mainly on his left leg, which they thought ought to be raised higher during the windup. As a result, he lost more games than he won for Huron.

This year, however, the Phils told him to go back to his old style, the one he used to such success in high school, and it apparently has paid off. He pitched in a game that Spartanburg won over a Triple-A team, and also saw action in a game against the Double-A Winston-Salem Red Sox of the Carolina League that ended in a tie because of rain.

Since changing back to his old style, dragging his right foot and keeping his left knee lower than the pros at first wanted, he has found that his pitching is much more effective. In high school, Parker threw a great deal of high balls, but now his control has improved and he's keeping the ball a lot lower, a necessity in pro baseball.

PHILLIE STARTER

Although it hasn't yet been announced who will be on the regular rotation list as starting pitchers for the Phils, Parker says that according to preseason report he will be one of the crew. In a release in a Spartanburg newspaper recently, Phils' manager Bob Wellman was very well pleased with Parker's progress and had high hopes for him this year.

Parker had hoped to start the Spartanburg opener tomorrow night against the Greenville Mets, but he won't get back to the city until tomorrow morning. He considers it doubtful that he will get to start in that game due to a lack of rest over the weekend.

Rowan Dairy sour cream is tart, tangy, sharp, zesty.

But there's one thing it isn't.

Sour.

The word "sour" is an unfortunate one. Actually, sour cream is a cultured smooth milk food. We make it from fresh pasteurized and homogenized cow's milk. In the processing we remove half the butterfat. That knocks off a whole load of calories that count. Then we add plenty of milk protein, vitamins and minerals. And of course our popular Rowan Dairy cultures.

Will you suffer from malnutrition if you pass up Rowan Dairy sour cream? Not likely. But you will miss out on a delightful and versatile dairy food.

One taste and you're back on the farm.

Imprisoned Man Wins Court Fight For Freedom

A man sentenced to prison in Davie County court will soon be free for the first time in about five years...

James Washington Simpson was sentenced in Davie County Superior Court in the early part of the 1960s to 9 to 10 years on nine charges of breaking and entering, some felonious charges.

Simpson sent writs of habeas corpus to various state courts after his confinement but his sentence was upheld. He finally sent a writ to federal court in Asheville.

Last December, Judge J. B. Craven Jr. of the Western District Federal Court decreed that Simpson's constitutional rights had been violated as he was not represented by counsel in the cases resulting in the sentences.

He ordered that the petitioner be released by the state on or before last Feb. 15 unless the state elected to re-try him again.

Simpson was transferred from state prison to Mocksville where he was jailed to await trial.

Last January, Judge Harvey A. Lupton while presiding during Superior Court here, entered a judgment stating that the state had initiated proceedings to re-try Simpson.

Attorney Claude Hicks was appointed to represent him. Attorney Hicks said he could not prepare an adequate defense for the defendant on such short notice.

The case was continued until the present term which began yesterday.

Yesterday the state elected to not prosecute (drop charges) against Simpson which for all practical purposes means the federal judge's order for his release will be effective.

However, Simpson must serve a sentence on an escape which is not covered by the federal order. When he finishes serving the escape sentence, Simpson will be released from prison.

60-Second Sermon

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Competition never ruins a nation. It makes it." — Eff Thomas.

On a hot July evening the doorbell rang. A child's voice inside a clown's false-face cried:

"Trick or treat!"

"What's the idea?" asked the man who answered the door. "This isn't Hallow'een."

"I know," responded the child, "but there's no competition tonight."

Some people would remove all competition from our world. They want everything to be easy for everybody; ending all struggle, all effort. There would be no winners or losers. At times this might seem desirable, but what a dull, inefficient world it would be. No one would strive to make things better or to act more efficiently. Why should they? No competition would spur them to try and no reward given for trying.

Lack of competition embarrasses Communist Russia today. Its leaders invent claims of war-like threats by the free world to spur its citizens to action. We know that a nation can become great when its

Yadkin Valley News

By MRS. JOE LANGSTON

A great improvement has been made in the parking area at Yadkin Valley recently. Work continues in the graveyard, which adds greatly to the appearance of it. Many thanks to those who have been able to help in this work.

Robert Williams has been transferred to the Va. Hospital at Durham; his parents visited him on Saturday and finds he is still undergoing tests to determine his illness. He would appreciate cards or stamps for a collection he has started. Cards should be addressed to Robert L. Williams, Va. Administration Hospital, Fulton Street and Erwin Road, Ward 6 A, Durham, N. C.

Well, the gremlins were really at work with the press last week! That was Mrs. Reid Hauser and not house rat, the W. M. S. met with. The topic of discussion this month is, "New Foreign Mission Fields."

Valley Church last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Noah Robbins of Warner's Trailer Park and Mr. and Mrs. C. Teague who moved into the community a few months ago.

If you want to hear a good sermon, Yadkin Valley invites you to attend their eleven o'clock worship service any Sunday, except for fifth Sundays. The public is welcome.

Mrs. Nannie Foster remains in poor condition at her home.

Mrs. Fred White has been confined to her home for many months now.

Mrs. Wilbur West has returned home from the hospital and reported to be improved.

Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Cheshire were Sunday luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Howard. Their afternoon visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Beck and children.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Howard on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Chester Howard and family of Beeds. A great attraction just now for the children of George Howard is a baby pony who just recently arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Langston attended the wedding of William R. Hartgrove and Linda Gayle Wright in Winston-Salem, Saturday.

Social Security

Older people in the Davie County area who did not sign up for the voluntary doctor bill insurance under Medicare before the close of the first enrollment period on March 31 have been given a little more time. Robert C. Thomas, social security district manager, announced today.

In legislation signed by President Johnson last week, Congress has extended until May 31 the deadline for enrollment by persons 65 or over.

Nearly 90 percent of the Nation's elderly were enrolled for the doctor bill insurance when social security offices closed at midnight on March 31, Mr. Thomas said. Only 5 percent had turned down the protection which supplements the basic hospital insurance provided persons 65 and over.

Another 5 percent had not made up their minds either way, or else were not aware of the deadline and the need to sign up for the supplementary protection.

Older people who have not yet applied for their Medicare benefits should get in touch with the nearest social security office now, Mr. Thomas said. Persons 65 or over by February of this year who delay signing up until past May 31 will have to wait 2 years for another chance to enroll. The next general enrollment period will be October 1967 through December 1967 with no medical insurance benefits payable until July 1968.

The social security district office in Salisbury is located at 105 Corriher Avenue. The phone number is 632-6470. That office is open Monday through Thursday from 8:45 AM until 5:00 PM, and on Friday

THE DAVIE COUNTY LIBRARY--The Realization of A Dream

The New Building

The new Davie County Library Building contains 10,000 sq. ft. and is located on North Main Street in Mocksville. It is 128-ft. by 384 ft. and the building cost was $140,047.01. Charles Morris Grier and Associates, Inc. of Charlotte were the architects. J. H. Allen, Inc. of Ashboro was the general contractor.

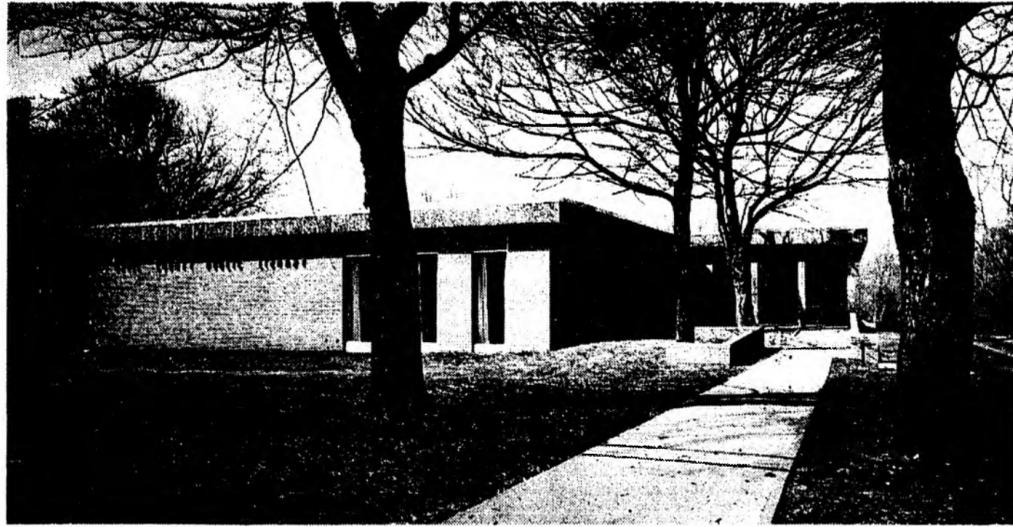

Furnishing and equipment cost amounted to $30,051.18 and the total cost was $170,098.19. Including the volunteer labor and donations the building has a value in excess of $200,000.

The roof structure is composed of steel joists supported by structural steel columns, steel beams and load bearing masonry walls. Generally, interior walls are non-load bearing. Exterior walls are of North Carolina brick. Floors are vinyl asbestos and ceramic tile. Brick pavers are used at the exterior. Wall finishes are black walnut paneling, vinyl fabric and painted stacked concrete block. Ceilings are acoustical lay-in tile. Several partitions are aluminum and glass. The exterior fascia is composed of exposed aggregate panels. The soffits are plaster. Cement asbestos and exposed concrete panels are used. All materials are durable and have maintenance free qualities.

Sculpture accents the garden area.

The building is heated and cooled with forced air flowing from ducts located in the ceiling. The system is designed to provide simultaneous heating and cooling to separate parts of the building. The heat source is gas.

The lighting system is designed to provide a light level in excess of 150 foot candles. Recessed fluorescent fixtures are used throughout the building.

THE NEW DAVIE COUNTY LIBRARY . . . located on North Main Street in Mocksville. Since the above picture was made the grounds have been landscaped, with low boxwoods and azaleas, and grass planted. The small area around a tree left standing in the parking lot is planned as a memorial garden. The entrance court contains a low bench and pieces of statuary executed by Ogden Deal, sculptor of Greensboro. It is interesting to note that Mr. Deal used his own three children as models for this work.

A dream often represents a wish — a wish comes from a desire — and a desire evolves from a need. In retrospect this is the formula that has created the modern public library in Davie County.

The first step to resolve the need for a public library in Mocksville and Davie County took place around the close of World War I. A Woman's Club, with the late Miss Ruth Booc playing a leading role, established library facilities in the old courthouse that stood then in the middle of the Mocksville Square. Members of this club gave of their time on certain afternoons to keep the library open and the late library, the Woman's Club gave ice cream suppers and carried out other fund raising projects.

The next library was located in what was an old law office located about where the Horn Oil Company now stands on Main Street. This was a small, quaint building with lattice work on the porch and large boxwoods in the yard. Miss Lillie Meroney kept the library open in the afternoons. (Editors note: There is some question as to whether this sequence is right or should be reversed).

After several years of operation this library was then closed and books donated to the Mocksville public schools. For some years thereafter the school library was kept open one afternoon each week during the summer for the benefit of the community. Miss Hazel Glimmer Baity & others served as librarians.

The desire for a public library in Davie County resulted in the formal organization of one in 1943. This library came into being with a box of 12 books loaned by the North Carolina Library Commission (forerunner of the present N. C. State Library). These books were housed in an upstairs room of the old postoffice building on the square. The circulation that year was 7,067.

There being a real determination in Davie County to keep library services for its citizens, a certified librarian was required. It was arranged that Mrs. Paul B. Blackwelder should buy and process books at home and Miss Meroney would keep the library open.

In 1944 Mrs. J. Frank Clement became librarian. At that time it was moved into the basement of the courthouse, adding more books and services. The library began operating bookmobile services into all sections of the county in 1949. Operating on a regular schedule, the library was carried to the people. The late Dick Brinegar was the driver of the first bookmobile and Mrs. Clement went along as the librarian. Later, bookmobile librarians were Mrs. E. F. Etchison, assisted by Mrs. Leonard Wallace and Mrs. Armond Smith; Mrs. Roy P. Marsh, assisted by Mrs. Armond Smith; and at the present, Mrs. B. J. McMahan is the bookmobile librarian, assisted by Mrs. Armond Smith.

By 1954 the library, with 8,772 books and a circulation of 55,795 was exhibiting growing pains. This was the year the new county office building was completed and the library moved into the basement quarters of this building. These quarters provided room for 10,000 books. Mrs. Paul B. Blackwelder became librarian in 1959 at the retirement of Mrs. Clement.

Continuing to expand its services, the Davie County Library by the time 1960 rolled in was one of the most vital institutions of the community.

Early in 1961, Mrs. Blackwelder took on two student assistants to help in the duties of supervising the library. In September of 1961, Mrs. I. H. Huske began to work on a half-time basis.

In 1962 the Davie County Library received a federal grant of $2000.

The Dreamers

In order to have a dream . . . you must have dreamers. In order to realize dreams . . . you must have thinkers . . . planners . . . and doers. In the case of the Davie County Public Library these were the trustees.

W. E. Reece, now of White Plains, N. C. was the first chairman of the board of trustees serving from 1943 to 1945. Other members of this first board were Mrs. J. Frank Clement, who served until she became librarian in 1945; Charles Isley, 1943-1948; Mrs. Garland V. Greene, 1943-1963; Mrs. H. P. Latham, 1943-1964 (serving as treasurer for 17 years); Leo Brock, 1943-1955.

Later members of the board of trustees included Mrs. Walter Woodson, 1948-1963 (deceased); J. D. Parker, now of Glenville, 1951-1954; Mrs. B. T. Broeder, 1956-1962; and S. G. Wallace, 1963-1964.

Mrs. Eugene S. Bonman, present chairman of the board of trustees, became a member of the board in 1945. Serving as chairman for the past 21 years she has had a leading role in the transition the dream to reality.

In addition to Mrs. Bonman, other present members of the board include George Shull, appointed in 1948; John Grace, appointed in 1955; Roy Huffac, appointed in 1964; Mrs. Queen Bess Kennen, appointed in 1964; and Peter W. Hairston, appointed in 1964.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK

This is National Library Week (April 17th through April 24th).

This annual observance began several years ago as a joint effort of the American Library Association and the American Book Publishers' Council. It has steadily grown and today has the full participation of the press, radio and television.

This year's National Library Week has a dual theme:

READ: And know what you are talking.

READ: And keep growing

The National Library Association feels that education is not keeping pace with the growing number of adults of college level who cannot go on to college. Libraries offer a continuing education throughout life, and result in well-balanced, well-informed citizens.

Coinciding with the observance of National Library Week, this year is the dedication of the new Davie County Library Building . . . many features on which appears in this issue.

Open 43 Hours

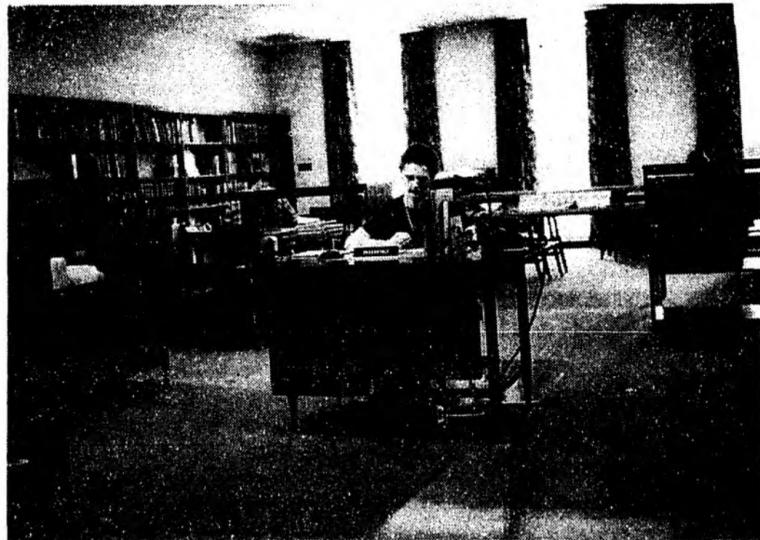

The Davie County Library is open to the public 43 hours a week . . . with morning, afternoon and evening schedules.

Contained in this new library are books, periodicals, pamphlets, newspapers, pictures, slides and films, music scores, maps, recordings, and all types of reference materials.

The library has 20,000 volumes and around 2,000 are added each year. Approximately 25% of the library book budget is allotted to new and replacement titles for children and young people.

DAVIE COUNTY LIBRARIAN . . . Mrs. Paul B. Blackwelder is shown above in the main section of the new library. This is the view one gets immediately upon entering. This main section provides adult seat grouping with new books, newspapers and other periodicals close at hand; young adult seating with young people's fiction, college catalogues, information on armed forces, and other material of interest to them nearby. This area also includes study tables and chairs.

THE REFERENCE SECTION . . . is located in the main portion of the library and is under the supervision of Mrs. I. H. Huske, pictured above. In addition to encyclopedias and other reference works, patrons may ask the reference librarian for aid from pamphlet files and magazine files. Mrs. Huske will also provide answers by telephone whenever practicable.

THE HISTORY ROOM . . . is under the supervision of Miss Flossie Martin shown above with several sketches of famous old landmarks of Davie. This room is devoted to the preservation of Davie County history and contains Miss Martin's historical collection of clippings, pictures, letters, old books, etc. in vertical files. There are also files of old newspapers. Lined the walls of this room are open shelves containing gift books, framed documents, etc. There is also a glass enclosed display case for historical relics.

THE LIBRARY WORKROOM . . . a large, convenient working area with cabinets, storage space, equipment for handling books and clippings, and desks for the bookmobile librarians. Mrs. B. J. McMahan, bookmobile librarian, is shown above at work on some of her records. The book returns open into this room and also the loading platform. The librarian's office and secretary's office also adjoin this area, as well as the staff lounge and small kitchen.

The Library Is Needed By Youths

By BEVERLY TOMLINSON
There is a saying that "the youth of today will be the leaders of tomorrow." And a truer statement has never been spoken.

As seniors in high school, most know where they have been but few know just where they are going. Looking back on what our lives have been up to now, the question still remains for most of us...

For instance, if I was interested in becoming a dancing teacher, I could go to the library, find the books on dancing, and from them a whole new future might be mine.

There is one objection I have about the library, though. The only night it remains open is Monday. As for me, that night doesn't always suit and I am sure there are others, too.

The community welcomes Mr. and Mrs. Roger Foster, who have recently moved here from Reeds. They have bought the Croll's homeplace.

Mrs. Mildred Wood of Danville, Va. and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Robertson of Winston-Salem were Sunday guests of Mrs. Cora Kimmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilburn Green of Salisbury visited Mr. and Mrs. Buster Carter, Saturday night.

More About Davie County Library

This was used to buy a basic collection of books for a branch library in Cooleeme. Burlington Mills furnished the physical facilities and agreed to pay the librarian's salary.

By 1963, there were 14,581 volumes in the library and circulation had increased to 56,674. Mrs. Jack Paige was employed as secretary; Mrs. Huske became a full-time employee; and in 1964 Mrs. Etchison moved from the bookmobile into the library as a half-time worker.

Mrs. Jack Ward became full-time secretary in 1965 following the resignation of Mrs. Paige.

It was in November 1965, following years of wishing and dreaming, that the movement was launched to secure the new library.

With Knox Johnstone heading the fund raising campaign, assisted by H. R. Hendrix, Jr. and Mrs. P. M. Johnson, a kickoff dinner was held at the Rotary Hut with Dr. Dale Gramley, President of Salem College, as the featured speaker.

A building committee was named consisting of John M. Groce, chairman; George H. Shutt and Roy Hoffner. Charles Morrison Grier and Associates, Inc. of Charlotte were the architects and J. H. Allen, Inc. of Asheboro became the general contractors.

By December of 1965 the dream had become a reality. During December and January, with members of the Mocksville Woman's Club assisting, the move was made from the basement of the County Office Building into the new facilities.

On February 21, 1966 the dream became a reality with the opening of the doors to the public. Sunday, April 24, 1966 will be a proud day for Davie County as this library will be officially presented with a formal dedication service and open house.

Letter to Editor

Dear Sir:
Though I am by no means a practitioner of religion, I would like to suggest what I feel certain caused the death of Mrs. Prayermeeting whom the Enterprise-Record reported dying at the First Neglected Church.

Since Mrs. Prayermeeting seems to have been very, very old, she probably just wore-out herself and died. However, I suspect her condition was complicated by a condition many old people (and young people with old minds) are afflicted with: that is a pre-occupation with issues that were dead many years ago, illiteracy about the present, and importance for the future.

In other words, if her mind had been in the shape her body was, poor thing, she would have been a jackass. I have heard people comfort the bereaved in this way, "You would not have wanted her to live in that condition. It was better for her to have died than live like that."

Serving With Marines

Marine Private C. L. Shoffner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Shoffner of Route 1, Mocksville, N. C., was graduated from Marine recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot here.

During his eight weeks of intensified recruit training under veteran noncommissioned officer Drill Instructors, he learned small arms marksmanship, bayonet fighting, and methods of self-protection. He also received instruction in military drill, history and traditions of the Marine Corps, and other academic subjects.

He will undergo four weeks of individual combat training and four weeks of basic specialist training in his military occupational field before being assigned to a permanent unit.

Sincerely yours'
Roby Evans

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where them Russians has come out with a new five-year plan for "economic development." Amongst the things they was promising the Russian people by 1971 was color TV sets, stretch socks, and a "adequate supply of baby foods."

This story was wrote from Moscow by a reporter named Vincent Burke and he said they didn't make no perdition about the housing shortage, about families of six and eight living in two-room apartments in the cities, and two whole families living together in 3-room houses out in the rural parts of the country.

I bring this matter up at the country store Saturday night and Ed Doolittle was of the opinion them Russians was always putting the plow in front of the mule, like encouraging the baby business afore they git 'em space to live.

Furthermore, claimed Ed, them five-year plans in Russia was all hot air, said it made him recollect when ole Khrushy was over here that time beating his shoes on the United Nations table. He was bragging to reporters you could buy a can of American beer in Moscow for 10 cent in American money. The only trouble, allowed Ed, was they didn't have no American beer and no American money.

Zeke Grubb announced he aimed to write his Congressman and see if we could git a five-year plan out our way. Zeke reported he ain't never saw a color TV set and all he knows about stretch socks was when his old lady darned his two pair and added a half-inch patch to the heels. Wimmen folks, claimed Zeke, invented stretch socks back during the depression, one patch and a half a inch to the sock.

Clem Webster reported, getting away from the Russians and back to the wimmen folks, he had saw where the Census Bureau had give out the figgers that in 1965 they was 8,000 marriage licenses issued that wasn't never used. He was wondering if out of that 8,000 they was more men or wimmen that had second thoughts about the matter.

The fellers was about even devided on this question. Ed guessed 7,900 of them was men. He claimed a woman would put on a bathing suit and never go near the water but when she got that wedding dress ready she meant business. On account of my old lady might see this piece, I give the fellers the diplomatic approach of Dean Rusk and guessed it half and half and fifty-fifty.

They ain't no way of finding out who backed out, but it is a sad story, Mister Editor, for love and matrimony when 8,000 couples failed to git in the finals.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Dave

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

HONOR FOR ERVIN . . . Certain key people throughout North Carolina have received within the past two weeks special invitations to an exclusive dinner to be held in Washington, D. C. on Sunday evening, May 1, at the Hotel Park Sheraton.

The event, to honor U. S. Sen. Sam Ervin and House Minority Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan, will also observe the 177th anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington as President.

This annual dinner, sponsored by the trustees of the American Good Government Society, will attract approximately 250 people. The cost: $25 per person.

The only other North Carolinian to be honored by this group was Congressman Graham A. Barden, now retired and ailing at his home on Trent River out from New Bern.

First recipients of the awards: Harry Byrd and Robert Taft, in 1953.

Principal speaker for the May 1 dinner will be Archie Davis of Winston-Salem, Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. executive and current president of the American Bankers Association.

Other outstanding Americans honored by the Society include: Herbert Hoover, Walter George, Richard Russell, Lewis Strauss, Wilbur Mills, John McClellan, Everett Dirksen, Frank Lausche, Karl Mundt, and Barry Goldwater.

JUST FOLKS . . . This State University sophomore called his mother up in the mountains to tell her he had just got a good weekend job at the Oriole Restaurant in Raleigh.

Mamma listened and then said: "Oh, honey, I'm so glad to know you can earn a little money as a folk-singer. Now don't let it interfere with your studies."

"Mother, I'm not a folk-singer. I said folks-singer. I sling out folks—they call it bouncing down here—what come in carrying brown paper bags."

AS YOU WERE . . . There are hundreds and hundreds of Tarheels now employed as bureaucrats and otherwise in Washington, D. C., and a lot of them were home for the Easter holidays.

Piecing together various reports and rumors, you gather that the valley between those two Democratic mountains, Lyndon B. Johnson and Robert F. Kennedy, daily grows broader.

Washington grapevine says that Kennedy is certain to be a candidate for the Presidency in 1968 or 1972. He is definitely preparing for 1963 in several key states — North Carolina included — if LBJ falters or grows faint in the least.

It seems that the key points are the Negro and Labor.

At the moment, Labor is keenly disappointed with President Johnson; and it seems doubtful . . . that Negro leaders would go with Johnson if they could have a Kennedy. LBJ has Vietnam on his shoulders. Robert F. Kennedy does not.

Now here in North Carolina a lot of Kennedy money was spent in 1960. This could be repeated — effectively, too — in 1968, just two short years from now.

Meantime, you have a solid dozen Terry Sanford apostles who were in the middle of the Kennedy promotion in 1960. They know Robert well. He was here, as you recall, in the 1960 gubernatorial campaign and returned for the Sanford inauguration. This "solid dozen" — you have read of them here in the past two weeks — are running for the Legislature from all sections of the State. Is this part of the picture? It is not beyond the realm of imagination that Terry Sanford will be Robert Kennedy's running mate in his bid for the Presidency in 1968 — or 1972. It all, somehow, seems to add up.

Kennedy, a dyed-in-the-wool, authentic genius—and a millionaire many times over to boot—reached the ripe old age of 40 this past November. Sanford is 49.

Here is how Robert Kennedy's father once compared Bobby and the son who became President: "Bobby is more direct than Jack. Jack has always been one to persuade people what to do . . . He (Bobby) resembles me much more than any of the other children."

INFLATION . . . A fellow tossed a nickel into a blind man's cup. But he refused to take a pencil, whereupon the blind man said: "Whether you take a pencil or not, they are now up to 10 cents each."

UNDERGROUND . . . It has been a long time coming—with a lot of dry wells along the way—but Eastern North Carolina seems at last to be coming on as an important area for underground wealth.

Since geologists are ultra-cautious, it is difficult to get much from them unless their findings show the real thing.

But here is a report from the April 9 issue of Business Week which will bear repeating:

"Oceanographers are turning up a lot of new knowledge about the ocean floor off the southeastern coast of the U. S. Recent research indicates there may be oil in sedimentary rocks found there . . . When he stepped ashore in Beaufort, N. C., last week with a group of graduate students from Columbia University, Dr. Bruce C. Heezen reported: 'This increases the potential in exploration for oil in the offshore areas of Florida, Georgia, and the Carolinas.'

By JOAN PAGE

CHAPEL HILL — Visitors to Chapel Hill now have another scenic attraction to add to their list of sight-seeing musts.

It's the new North Carolina Botanical Garden, a 329-acre haven of natural forest land flowers for every season. It opened officially Easter Sunday.

Entrance to the shady trails, now splashed with pastels of spring, is on the Southeastern edge of Chapel Hill, at the intersection of Laurel Hill Road and the U. S. 15-501 Bypass.

Dr. C. Ritchie Bell, professor of botany at the University, is director of the garden, which is comprised of both privately donated and University-owned land. William Brown, also of the UNC Botany Department, is assisting Dr. Bell.

The garden will be administered by the UNC Botany Department. Ninety-five per cent of the garden's property will be devoted to conservation and public use, the rest to research.

"There is nothing incompatible about scientific research and amateur garden work," Bell explains, noting that botanical research has been going on in parts of the woods there for several years.

The grounds will be open each day from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. They have been developed through gifts, research grants and the Botany Department budget.

The original tract of 160 acres, part of the old Mason farm, was set aside in 1952 by University Trustees with provision for financing through normal University budgets. Much of the land has been given privately and only for "botanical purposes." William Lanier Hunt gave 125 acres, the late Dr. W. C. Coker and Coker College in South Carolina gave 36 acres, and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Gray donated eight acres.

Tracts in the garden are named for those who gave land. Visitors wander along trails in Mason Woodlands, Gray Bluff Garden, William Lanier Hunt Arboretum and Coker Pinetum.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Dubose of Chapel Hill gave a greenhouse for experimental work last year. The largest grant, $12,000, came from the UNC Water Resources Research Institute. Other grants have ranged sponsored by the Women's Progressive Club. Mrs. Geraldine Eaton is president, Mrs. Jannette Parks, secretary and Mrs. Sarah Wiseman, assistant secretary.

Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howell attended worship services at the Smith Grove Baptist Church in Hiddendale, N. C. The Rev. G. A. Dula was host pastor.

Rev. L. R. Howell made a business trip to Yadkinville, recently.

Sunday callers at the William Eaton home were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Eaton and children, Denise, Mike and Clay and Mrs. Ann Campbell of Winston-Salem.

from $500 to $2,000. They have come from the N. C. Board of Science and Technology and the UNC at Chapel Hill Research Council among other sources.

Introducing the garden is a mile-long strand of pine needle paths, which Dr. Bell hopes to eventually extend to 20 miles. "The 329 acres we have," he says, "is land of quite various habitat. Plants being as fussy as they are, this gives us a big advantage."

Bell plans to develop the garden along natural and rustic lines and to include all varieties of North Carolina plants.

"I'd like eventually to get every species of woody plant, tree, shrub and vine, and as many perennial herbs and ferns as I can from the Southeastern part of the country," he says.

Cold weather will be less of a problem for Bell than for gardeners who plant solely for color and display. Bell plans to rely in part on wild flowers which are "at home" in the forest and can take care of themselves when the mercury drops.

"If you're out strictly for show," he warns, "you're at the mercy of nature."

Southeastern flowers, such as blood-root, jack-in-the-pulpit, lady slipper and dogwood, appear in the spring, explains Bell. Summer brings on a "green interlude" with few blooms. Then in the fall, there's another floral burst from flowers such as astors and golden rod.

"The real beauty of this particular site for the garden is that it already has plants there," Bell observes. "As our benefactor William Lanier Hunt says, 'It's really been a garden for the past 100 years.'"

He hopes to experiment with colors and textures of native plants as soon as possible. The garden may be used for research or study by anyone willing to follow the general plan Bell has set up for development of the grounds.

There are many plans in the making now. Bell hopes to cooperate with other schools and with garden clubs in exchange programs so students will have the opportunity to work in varied soils, climates and natural settings. The Garden Club of North Carolina, whose membership totals 17,500, plans to establish its headquarters in the garden. It's president serves on the garden's Advisory Board.

William Lanier Hunt is chairman of the N. C. Botanical Garden's Advisory Board. Members are Mrs. W. C. Coker of Chapel Hill, Mrs. R. L. McMillan of Raleigh, Hugh Morton, of Wilmington, Henry Foscue of High Point, George Stephens of Asheville, Dr. Harry Billica of Greenville and Mrs. W. C. Landolina of Clemmons, president of the Garden Club of North Carolina.

Rotary Club Cities Areas Of Telephone Complaints

The Mocksville Rotary Club has requested the North Carolina Utilities Commission to check into the local telephone service.

Hugh Larew, chairman of the Rotary Committee, sent a letter to the Utilities Commission on Monday of this week, requesting them to undertake an investigation into the telephone situation here in Davie County in the interest of seeing what constructive steps might be taken to improve local service.

The letter pointed out that the Mocksville Rotary Club has been on record as feeling that the telephone service in Davie County "his now become intolerable".

"Three months ago the Rotary Club adopted a resolution setting forth our complaints and forwarded this resolution to the Central Telephone Company and the Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation, the two organizations providing our telephone service. We have had cordial and frank discussions with representatives of both organizations, but we can only conclude that the situation has reached a stalemate due to differences between the two organizations. We of course are totally unable to assess the validity of the opposing views of the telephone company and the cooperative. However, we are acutely aware that our telephone service is daily deteriorating and causing great inconvenience and hardship to local citizens," wrote Mr. Larew.

With the letter Mr. Larew enclosed a copy of the resolution adopted by the Rotary Club on January 25, 1966. This resolution set forth the specific areas of unsatisfactory service. With regard to these, Mr. Larew wrote the Utilities Commission:

"You will note that we mention several items of unsatisfactory service, but item one is the real serious complaint. For the past few years, subscribers of Central Telephone Company and members of the cooperative have been able to make calls throughout the county on a toll-free basis. Although the cooperative could receive as many as 18 calls from the Central equipment, Central only has 8 outlets to the cooperative. You can imagine our situation when you realize that our county has only one incorporated town and one consolidated high school and that the 18,000 people of this town and county are very closely tied together. Business and professional men report having spent hours trying to get a free line to the cooperative and in many instances have had to drive to a distant point in the county because no telephone connection could ever be established."

Special guest speaker will be E. A. Andrews, Jr., vice president of Mountain Retreat Association, Montreat, N. C. There will be special music by the 40 voice Accappella Choir from Glade Valley School at the morning session.

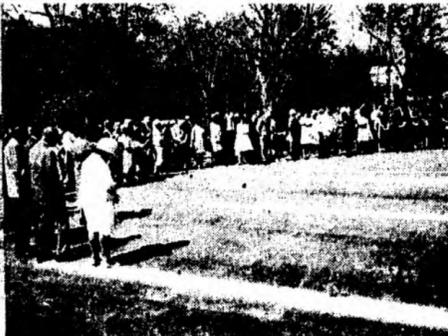

Mrs. Paul Blackwelder is currently serving as assistant recording secretary. Mrs. Eugene Bowman, a member of the nominating committee. Mrs. W. F. Robinson, chairman of Spiritual Retreat and Mrs. Lawrence Miller of Coolemece as Key Woman for Glade Valley School.

2. Fenders (or mud guards)
3. Light in front

5. Safe peddles
6. Safe chain
7. Chain guard
8. Brakes must be in good working order
9. Handle bars must be in good condition
10. Stand must be working properly

The events will include both American and English made bicycles of all sizes. The events are as follows:

Hitting the Target - This bike game requires skill and good coordination. As you will soon see, finding the mark requires timing and marksmanship, but the game itself is lots of fun.

Four or six coffee cans, bowls or other receptacles are set up in a row about 15-feet apart along a 100-foot long course. If the ground is soft press the receptacle into the ground a little with the open end up.

The rider-players are given a supply of bottle caps, stones, marbles or some other small objects. The contestants then ride in line as close as they wish, dropping the objects in the receptacles.

Each team is given a number corresponding with the number of the rider, who must drop his object into that particular receptacle. This game is judged by points. The rider who finds the mark most frequently is declared the winner.

A variation is for the contestants to have as many objects as there are cans. Riders then cycle down the course at average speed, dropping one object into each can. Hits and misses are counted after each run.

Coasting Race - The object of this race is to determine which contestant can coast the longest distance - after pedaling as hard as possible for a distance of at least 15 feet to a prescribed starting line where the coasting officially begins.

It takes a lot of skill to coast along in a straight line. Have a referee mark the spot where each rider stops. It then becomes the object of the next rider to use the mark as an objective to shoot beyond.

Speed Race - Race for 50 yards. First to cross finish line is the winner with 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th places receiving ribbons.

Slow or Snail Race - This is one of the most sensationally funny races ever held on bicycles. It is a simple race in which everyone has an equal chance. Every type of bicycle can be used - and it is for boys or girls, tall or short, fat or slim.

The object of the race is to see which rider can travel slowest - and that's quite a feat in cycling. The last rider to cross the finish line is the winner, provided, of course, that the contestant has not violated any of the rules.

A course 50 to 100 feet long is laid out, with several lanes 3 to 6 feet wide. Lanes may be made by stretching strings or chalk. A rider is disqualified if he deviates from his line, touches foot to the ground or turns around.

At a signal, each rider gets underway at the starting point, riding as slowly as possible. If there are too many contestants to make lanes for all, run the race in several heats; winners of heat then compete in final race.

It's quite a trick to ride slowly without violating one of the rules above. But the race will prove exciting to riders and spectators alike. Be sure you have a referee to decide who has violated the rules.

Newspaper Race - This race has proved popular with newsboys who deliver papers by bicycle - but only when they are on a picnic. Normally it is part of their day's chores to hurl newspapers onto the front steps of their customers' homes. It's a good race for all bike riders.

A course of 100 yards is required. About 10 feet from the starting line, six or eight barrels or other receptacles are placed 15 feet apart, providing plenty of riding space for the contestants, who travel in a parallel lane eight feet from the barrels.

Now the object is for each rider to throw a folded newspaper into the barrel while his bike is in motion. The contestant who hits the mark most frequently, that is succeeds in getting the papers into the barrels, is the winner.

Variation: This race can be played on a 1/4 to 1/2 circular mile track, with barrels placed about 75 feet apart around the track. The contestants mount their bikes with newspaper folded flat into canvas bag. They ride around the track rolling their papers tight as they ride dropping one at a time in each barrel.

In this version, if the papers do not enter the barrel or open because they are not rolled tight, the rider must stop, pick up the paper and place in the barrel rolled tight. Each rider should be provided with as many papers as there are barrels. The track can be circled several times if it is a small one.

Water Race - Riding a bike while balancing a cup of water in one hand can be a wet experience for a cyclist, but you'd be surprised what fun you'll have participating in this race.

A paper cup is filled to the brim with water. The rider holds it in one hand over the top of his head and races his bike to the finish line not too far away. Set your own distance.

The winner of the race is determined by the first six riders who cross the line. The one with the most water in his cup gets the prize. The winning group can vary - 3, 6 or 10 - depending on the number of contestants in the race.

Shoe Race - All of the contestants line up in a straight line at the starting point, a few feet from each other. They then take off their shoes and place them next to their respective bikes.

They then make a mad, shoeless dash to the end of the field - about 50 feet away - turn around and hurry back to the starting line, put their shoes on and lace them completely. They remount their bikes and travel the course to the finish line.

The first contestant across the finish line is the winner. It is possible to hold this race on an oval or round track, or a playground area.

Superior Court Ends Session

A Mocksville man has been awarded $21,000 in compensation for injuries received in a truck-trailer accident in a jury verdict in the Mixed term of Superior Court held here Thursday, April 21.

Wayne C. Young of Mocksville was awarded the amount, which is about nine times the amount of damage awarded at the end of the first trial.

Young, as assistant truck driver, charged the B & O Railroad was negligent by parking an engine partially across a highway at night.

The truck in which he was a passenger smashed into the engine more than four years ago near Backman, Ohio. Driver of the truck, Melvin West was also injured and a Forsyth County jury recently awarded him $20,000 in damages.

The railroad company appealed the verdict from Young's first trial in which he was awarded $3,500. It is expected to appeal last week's decision, as well as the Forsyth judgment.

Other cases disposed of that were not reported last week are as follows:

James Washington Strapan, re-trial. Not pros with leave. Court ordered defendant returned to State Prison Department.

Calvin S. Collins, petition for writ of Review, denied.

Caudell Lumber Co., Inc. vs H. S. Boger and Virginia S. Boger, nonsuited.

George Franklin Wagner vs Elmer Jones and Charlie Jefferson Hedrick, motion for attorney fees denied.

Jack G. Corriher vs Wade Johnson, motion heard in chambers.

Divorce actions granted included:

Kenneth Ross Rumble vs Jacqueline T. Rumble; George Walter Brown vs Jessie Ruth Felker Brown; Robert C. Boger vs Doris H. Boger; Bobby G. Gregory vs Wilda Lambert Gregory; LaQuita Orr vs James E. Orr; and Hazel C. Spillman vs James R. Spillman.

Divorce actions continued included: Fred Edward Redman vs Mary Florence Hairston Redman; Mary Alice S. Holshouser vs Herman Maxwell Holshouser; and Mary Edith S. Lash vs Terry Eugene Lash.

The grand jury reported during this week's session of Davie County Superior Court that the county jail building upstairs plumbing needs repair, plaster in the living quarters was bad, and the kitchen sink needs immediate repair and painting.

Judge Copeland ordered copies to be sent to the commissioner of jails in Raleigh and a copy to the county board of commissioners with a request from the court that the "recommendations" be implemented promptly so far as necessary repairs to the jail are concerned.

"Otherwise" the court order stated, it may be necessary for a future judge of superior court to close the jail.

Tattle - Tattle -

Got a chuckle out of this last week.

A man was being interviewed for a job as a truck driver. After asking several questions, the personnel director asked the man to suppose himself to be in these circumstances:

"You and your relief driver, Leroy, are on a trip. Leroy is asleep. Suddenly you see a big tractor-trailer approaching you. Then you see another big tractor-trailer pull out into your lane to pass. Both of these big tractor-trailers are coming at you. What would be the first thing you would do?"

The prospective driver scratched his head a minute and then replied: "The first thing I'd do would be to wakeup Leroy. He's never seen a bad wreck!"

And the Rev. Gilbert Miller passes this one a long:

A driver of a trailer-load of new automobiles found himself without lights one night. In order to make it to a service station, he turned on the lights on a car on the top row. Of course this car, elevated above the cab, had lights shining almost down.

Soon after he had done this and was on the way, he saw another car approaching. This approaching car began to weave, and then ran off the road and down an embankment. The truck driver immediately stopped and went to the aid of the wreck motorist, who was by that time climbing out of his vehicle, unhurt . . . but all shookup.

To the question of "What happened?" the shaky motorist replied:

"I saw these lights coming at me . . . and it didn't take me long to figure that if that vehicle was half as wide as it was high, I had no chance at all!"

Mr. Miller also told this . . . and I wished I had thought of it.

He said that he was asking one member of his congregation why he didn't come to church more often.

"Don't you like my sermons", asked the Methodist minister.

"Sure I do. You preach good sermons", said the man. . . "In fact . . . they are so good that they last me a long time!"

cordial invitation to the public to attend all services.

left shoulder in an attempt to avoid a head-on collision with the truck. However, the patrolman said, the truck driver saw the oncoming vehicle in his lane of traffic and he veered his vehicle to the right shoulder also in an attempt to avoid a head-on crash.

The two attempts, however placed both vehicles on the same shoulder and still closing the distance toward each other. Matthews then drove his truck back onto the highway but the right front portions of the truck and the car collided at the edge of the pavement.

Matthews' truck, then overturned in the west-bound lane, spilling several hundred bushels of apples.

Matthews was treated at Davie Hospital for minor injuries. A passenger in the car, John David "Chrisien, 19, of Northport, N. Y., also was treated at the hospital for minor lacerations.

Patrolman Bolick said the produce truck was righted about 11 a. m. However, it was still about an hour later before all the apples were removed from the highway, mainly by motorists whose cars were stopped at the wreck site.

Damages incurred were estimated at $1,500 to the car, about $2,000 to the truck and $600 to the apples.

HEALTH TIPS

FROM THE
American Medical Association

HEART ATTACKS

Heart disease is a broad term that covers many different types of disorders.

Heart and blood vessel ailments are the leading cause of death in the United States. Millions of people are walking around with some sort of heart or circulatory problem.

No one can tell you positively that a given pattern of life will prevent a heart attack. There are still many unknowns. But there is enough evidence on the causes of heart attacks to suggest a few fundamentals.

Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association, offers some suggestions —

Worry about "symptoms" that may or may not be heart disease is futile. Clear away the doubt by consulting your physician. A regular checkup will enable him to discover many budding heart problems early.

Regular, moderate exercise to keep physically fit is advised by most health experts. However, the term "moderate" is important and plenty of rest to ease the work load on the heart is equally vital.

Keep your weight down. It isn't too difficult to devise a diet that will provide proper nourishment without adding surplus pounds. Ask your doctor what you should weigh and how to reduce if you're overweight.

Tensions and anxieties aren't easy to reduce or eliminate from your life. But it's wise to try. Adequate vacations each year are important. A relaxing change of pace on weekends helps.

Research studies have analyzed the possible roles of tobacco, dietary fats and other elements in heart disorders. Extensive studies are still under way. If there are doubts in your mind regarding personal habits, consult your doctor for suggestions on new patterns.

Most people who have heart attacks recover and can go back to work. High blood pressure usually can be controlled. Recurrent attacks of rheumatic fever, forerunner of rheumatic heart disease, can be prevented. Strokes aren't necessarily hopeless, and invalidism can often be reduced or prevented. Heart defects often can be repaired and sections of diseased arteries often can be replaced through surgery. Many patients with circulatory disorders affecting their legs and arms are helped by treatment.

You cannot be certain of preventing heart disease. But you can control or lessen some of the factors that often are associated with a tendency toward heart troubles: your best course is to talk it over with your doctor and follow his counsel.

Dixie Classic Fair Offers National Wool Needlework

Among the many exhibits and contests planned for this year's Dixie Classic Fair is one of particular interest to all non-professional knitters and crocheters in North Carolina and Carroll, Grayson, Patrick and Henry counties in Virginia. Now in its fourth successive year under the co-sponsorship of the National Hand Knitting Yarn Association and the American Wool Council, the National Wool Needlework Contest will be of prime interest at the Fair, scheduled for October 4-6 in Winston-Salem.

"We're very pleased with this contest," Mrs. Raymond Hill, Superintendent of the Fair's Homemaking Division, said. "and were glad when its sponsors asked us to include it at the Fair. I know that many of the area's talented knitters and crocheters will be interested and enter."

Anemia

If your blood has too few cells or too little hemoglobin, you have anemia. Hemoglobin is the red coloring substance in the red cells.

A favorite self-diagnosis by people who do not feel well is anemia. Although more often than not this sort of diagnosis is completely wrong, anemia is a serious health problem.

The symptoms of anemia typically include fatigue, shortness of breath, lack of energy and a generally washed out feeling. However, the presence of one or more of these symptoms does not justify a self-diagnosis of anemia.

Anemia can have various causes — improper diet, poor absorption of food, excessive or chronic bleeding, injury to the bone marrow, certain parasites and infections. Whatever the cause, it isn't safe to make your own diagnosis and to treat yourself. Only a physician can determine what is causing your anemia, and can then prescribe treatment.

The function of the hemoglobin in your blood is to pick up oxygen from the air you breathe in and carry it to all your body tissues, as well as to carry carbon dioxide from these tissues to the lungs to be breathed out. If anemia reduces the number of red cells and the amount of hemoglobin, the blood can't carry enough oxygen to supply your body's needs.

Unless you have some abnormal condition, you can prevent nutritional anemia by eating a variety of nourishing foods. There are all sorts of products on the market that are advertised to supplement your diet and correct nutritional deficiencies. None should be used unless you have been examined by a doctor and he has prescribed some particular product for your particular deficiency. Otherwise, the odds are great that you are wasting your money, with the risk of overdosing yourself with more nutrients than your body needs.

If you suspect that you are anemic, see your doctor. He will first determine whether you actually are anemic, and, if so, what is the cause. Then he will be able to prescribe treatment.

The contest's categories include afghans, sweaters, and three-piece baby sets — both knitted and crocheted. There is no limit to the number of categories a contestant may enter; however, only one design may be entered in each class. A first place blue ribbon award will be made by the Fair's judges in each of the six categories. In addition, one of these winners will be named "Best of Fair" and will receive also a special engraved trophy. Second and third place winners in each category will be awarded a red and white ribbon respectively.

The Dixie Classic Fair will send the names of the six first place winners to the National Hand Knitting Yarn Association, which will send the winners complete information for entering the national finals.

All articles submitted for judging in the 1966 National Wool Needlework Contest must be knitted or crocheted of 100% wool or mohair yarn purchased in the United States. Entries must have been completed since January 1, 1966, and each entry must carry one label of the yarn used.

The deadline for entering designs for this contest in the Dixie Classic Fair is September 16. Further information and instructions may be obtained by writing the Dixie Classic Fair Office, P. O. Box 7525, Reynolds Station, Winston-Salem.

Davie County Has 22 So Far This Year

People Cause Brush Or Forest Fires

With Spring finery appearing on the trees, another spring fire season is drawing to a close in Davie County, and the Davie County Forester's Office has reported twenty-two brush or forest fires during this season.

Paul J. Bonardi, Davie County Forester, consider this a low figure, compared to some other counties in the state, but Mr. Bonardi is quick to point out that it could have been much worse and that the county was most fortunate in having some of its potentially worst fires burning in areas where they could be, and were, rapidly suppressed.

The largest fire of the spring season destroyed twenty-seven acres, much of it commercial forest. Others ranged from a tenth of an acre up. The saddest part of the story is that all but four of the total were caused by the same thing . . . people burning trash or debris. Mr. Bonardi considers it an old story of poorly chosen times and places to burn debris, by people not equipped to control their fire, and some under weather conditions almost sure to have created an uncontrolled blaze. Many of them did.

People caused all but two of the fires recorded in Davie County, so it follows that those same people could have prevented those fires and Davie County would only have had two fires with a total loss of less than two acres.

Mr. Bonardi also complimented the local news media for their excellent cooperation in publicizing the burning permit program and the North Carolina Burning Laws which will remain in effect until June 1. He also mentioned the response of the county residents in cooperating with the Forest Services by securing permits or by waiting until after four o'clock in the afternoon to burn.

During the summer months the Forester's office will be establishing fire wardens in different areas of the county, who will also be agents for burning permits. Some of the Wardens already posted are Edward Beck, Liberty Church Road; Claude Beck of Jerusalem District; David Essex on the Lexington Highway; and J. C. Brigman in the Jerusalem District who is also the County Smoke Chaser. The Warden for the Farmington District is Wade Groce, also Chief of the Farmington Volunteer Fire Department. County residents should become familiar with the names and locations of the Wardens in their District and may secure that information by calling the Forester's office at 634-5319 or 634-5265.

Mr. Bonardi urges all Davie County residents to continue to be wary of unsafe fire conditions, and if in doubt, call his office before doing any burning. It is wise to remember that people cause most of the forest fires that destroy North Carolina timberland . . . and those same people can prevent those fires just as easily.

Ranks As Engineering Wonder Of World

The Interstate Highway System

The Interstate Highway System — now half-finished — ranks as one of the engineering wonders of all time.

The biggest public works project in history will require 1,800,000 man-years of labor before it is completed in 1972.

Excavators will move enough material to bury an area as big as Connecticut knee-deep in dirt.

The sand, gravel, and crushed stone needed for construction would girdle the earth with a wall 50 feet wide and nine feet high.

The road pavement, if made into one huge parking lot, could accommodate two-thirds of all the motor vehicles in the United States.

More than 21,000 miles of the 41,000-mile network of expressways were open to traffic in the spring of 1966, the National Geographic Society says. Another 5,800 miles are under construction, and engineering or right-of-way work is in progress on 11,356 miles.

Started in 1956, the Interstate System is scheduled for completion in six more years. It will link virtually all of the Nation's major population centers with high-speed, multilane, limited-access highways.

The system will make a reality of the motorist's dream of driving from Maine to California without encountering a traffic light. It already is possible to make a signal-free run from Boston to Des Moines, Iowa.

The Interstate Highway System is expected to save 8,000 lives a year when completed. Studies show that the new highways have an accident fatality rate of only 2.8 deaths per 100 million vehicle-miles, compared to 9.7 deaths per 100 million miles on older roads in the same areas.

With the $46.8-billion system half complete, engineers are looking beyond 1972, studying nationwide highway needs for the next 20 years, and debating highways of the future.

One proposal calls for superexpressways with a speed limit of 100 miles an hour; 120 would be permitted for passing. Called the "Century," the first such highway would run between Washington, D. C., and Boston.

Drivers of passenger cars would not have to compete with trucks on the century. Trucks would have their own "super-freightways."

Old cars would be barred from the Century, and cars entering the new highway undergo a safety test. Drivers with bad accident records would not be admitted.

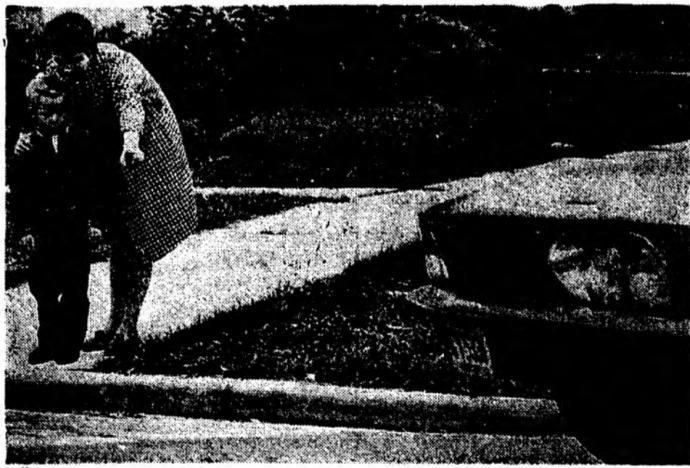

Automobiles will enter the superhighway via a "slow" road with a speed limit of 80 miles an hour, then take a ramp at 90 to the fullspeed limit of 80 miles an hour, then take a ramp at 90 to the fullspeed "chute" with flat shoulders and no ditches, culverts, or poles to hit.

Electronic sensors in the road will sound a warning buzzer in an automobile if it approaches the car ahead too closely. When a car starts slowing down, warning lights on its roof will flash and a buzzer will sound in the vehicle behind it to reduce the danger of rear-end collisions.

The Century could open the way for fully automated highways. Under a system already tested, electronic circuits buried in the road would guide vehicles, and control speed, distances between cars, breaking, and steering.

Look Before You Cross The Street

"Instill in your child the habit to 'look all ways' before crossing a street" is one of the major points of a school age safety checklist recently published by the Easter Seal Society. Posing by models, this picture demonstrates the importance of looking for the automobile coming around a corner as well as those approaching along the street to be crossed. The checklist is available free from the North Carolina Society for Crippled Children and Adults (The Easter Seal Society), P. O. Box 839, Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

Washington Report

By CONGRESSMAN JAMES T. BROYHILL

MONEY BILLS

The Easter period marks what at one time was known as the halfway point in a session of Congress. This is certainly a misconception based on a little fact and a lot of fiction. A number of years ago, Congress passed the Legislative Reorganization Act. One of the provisions of this law expressed the purpose that Congress should adjourn each year about July 1. If this hope were ever fulfilled & if Congress did actually adjourn by this time, then Easter would be about the halfway mark. However, the Nation's business is too demanding & too complex to be disposed of in short sessions. The traditional halfway mark is more likely to be about a one-third-of-the-way station as sessions now last nine months and even longer.

Last year, the Congress was engaged in the most rapid, break-neck session that the country has seen in this generation. Legislative proposals were sent to Congress from the White House and in short-order they were translated into bills and passed into law. To many observers, too many of these bills were inadequately thought-out. Even those who supported them often felt that reasonable prudence and thoroughness were being sacrificed for the sake of speed and a spectacular record for producing new laws.

New events and second-thoughts have changed the mood of Capitol Hill this year. Things have moved more cautiously and there has been less willingness to push forward into the regular "bread and butter" bills that the Congress must consider each year. I refer to the large appropriations bills — the legislation in which Congress approves the money that the many departments, agencies, and bureaus must have to operate. It is through this appropriations process that the money is made available for old and new programs that Congress has already approved in principle.

With four months already passed, only three of these bills have been passed by the House of Representatives and, so far, none has had final Congressional action. The 1967 bill for the Department of the Interior and related agencies was passed by the House recently. Slightly more than $1.2 billion had been requested in the President's Budget. The House reduced this amount by about $35 million. Next came legislation to provide money for the Treasury and Post Office Departments. $7.2 billion had been requested in the Budget. About $36 million was shaved from this bill when it was approved by the House.

In another part of the appropriations process, $17 million had been requested for the operation of the White House. This, too, was reduced by a little more than $300,000. There remain ten major appropriations bills to provide the money needed by all parts of the Federal government. So far, the time-table calls for House action on one of these bill each week.

Part of the uncertainty about the appropriations bills come from the general controversy about the President's Budget, the cost of the war in Viet Nam, the inflationary pressures in our domestic economy, and the cost of the new welfare programs Congress enacted last year.

The warning signals rang early this year as Congress was presented with two huge supplemental appropriations bills. These proposals were to provide money to tide agencies through the first six months of 1966. One bill for the Defense Department called for $13 billion more than the Department had already received. The other supplemental bill carried $2.5 billion for other non-defense programs.

Even though there is a noticeable "go slow" attitude about the appropriations bills, there is little desire on the part of the House to cut down in any great way on spending. Neither is there much will to establish priorities where the relative importance of one program over another could be considered. Although war costs are rising, the national debt is climbing, and income tax hikes are being discussed there still seems to be blind optimism that Uncle Sam can assume more and more responsibilities coupled with unlimited spending.

A number of us who disagree with this kind of thinking have tried to bring about cuts in the appropriations bills. In each case, we have insisted upon test votes in an effort to force new economies in spending. Each time these votes have come up, the economy efforts have been beaten back. Nevertheless, we expect to continue the fight at each opportunity in the months ahead hoping that the voice of the people will be heard amid the noise in Washington.

60-Second Sermon

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Selfishness is visible to all but those who are selfish." — Eff Thomas.

The bashful young man approached the father of his girl-friend. "Er - I - uh - am asking your daughter's hand. Er - have you any objection?" he asked.

"None at all," replied the father. "I'm very unselfish, but take the hand that's always in my pocket."

A lot of selfishness is buried in claims to unselfishness. Selfish people honestly do not realize that they are. It is this invisibility of selfishness to those who have it that makes it so difficult to root out.

How many times have you been talking with friends only to discover that they haven't heard a word you said? Their minds were on their desires. They were waiting quietly only for an opportunity to inject their interests into what you were saying. That is invisible selfishness; unrealized selfishness. When a friend cannot give a few moments to another's interests, what is it but selfishness, demonstrating bad taste and ill breeding?

One of our wisest acts today would be to check ourselves for invisible selfishness; the selfishness that is always annoyingly visible to others. Being unselfish, even with a little attention, can make us the most popular and best informed people in our community. Try it.

WASHINGTON — The Senate Subcommittee on Air and Water Pollution has been conducting hearings on proposed amendments to implement the Water Quality Act. Water has become a national concern, because usable water supplies have been shrinking rapidly in recent years.

Along with other Senators, I have co-sponsored S. 2947, a bill to take more effective steps to preserve and purify our water resources. I support S. 2947 for a very practical reason. Several years ago, the Senate Select Committee on National Water Resources found that water supplies are diminishing yearly in relation to our national needs. The Select Committee found that population and industrial growth will double our water needs by 1980 and triple these needs by the year 2000. This means that soon our growing demand for water will be more than the available supply, and water will have to be used over and over again to meet our needs.

This focuses attention on the problem of pollution. Control of water pollution stands at the apex of any effective water management program. As the late Senator Kerr used to say when he discussed pure water, pollution is never a very pleasant subject. Yet it exists and gets worse each year. Man is careless in changing what the Eternal Creator put on earth in a more beautiful and pure form. Since man creates pollution, solving the problem is not easy. The Potomac River, in sight of the Capitol, is a prime illustration of ineffective controls to prevent filth from going into a once pure river. Last year Congress became concerned and acting upon a Presidential recommendation enacted the most comprehensive anti pollution bill to date. The 1965 Act was a first step. Already, it needs to be implemented.

No area of the country is exempt from water pollution problems. Summer droughts have brought water shortages to all regions of the country, and pollution becomes greater when water levels decline. Our state, which has abundant water resources during normal rainfall months, has not been exempt from concern over water.

The importance of S. 2947 is that it is not a crash program, but a long-range one to coordinate governmental, industrial, and individual efforts to meet water needs before they become critical. A herculean task is involved, and no one-shot effort will bring about a cure. The measure is a six-year plan.

Disagreements that once raged over whether government had any business dealing with water pollution have abated into disagreements over the proper role of each level of government in such activities. S. 2947 represents a balanced attempt to bring individuals and their governments into a coordinated effort to deal with this basic problem that has plagued many other civilizations.

Historians tell us that the fate of nations has often been determined by how well they controlled fresh water supplies, and that empires have vanished when they failed to cope with the problem in time. This is a problem that we must solve if we are to maintain the basis of life and a vital civilization.

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

WHAT IS LEGAL? . . . Now you see it. Now you don't. Or, to be more even more vague — on again, off again, gone again, Finnegan.

Last year, it was school prayers. Early in April, it was brown bags. Three years ago, it was highway signs. Now it is highway-building equipment.

Only the judiciary seems to know any more what is "legal" and what is "illegal".

And, alas, even it has doubts. Also, to add to the confusion: what is legal in Podunk may be strictly illegal in Podunk. The only places where you find any semblance of certainty is in that never-never land of the common tater or out there on our good old cloud twenty-the editorial page.

But woe unto the poor defendant. Over him constantly hangs that sword: Ignorance of the law is no excuse (for violation).

One would think that with the relatively simple Ten Commandments as a guide, we might be a little more definite with our man-made law-making. They are brief, to the point, and oh so easily understood.

NO LONGER . . . There once was a song that ran something like: "Just friends, lovers no more. Just friends — but not as before . . ."

That is the way it goes now among many old lovers in the N. C. House of Representatives. They have served together for years and years, each representing his own little county. But now these little counties have been combined into one big House district.

The old representatives want to come back to Raleigh, love the smoke-filled rooms of the Sir Walter. So, they are fighting it out — with each other — here and there all across the State. Good friends yet — but not as before.

SONS . . . Durham, county and town, is a political hotbed this time.

You have Floyd Fletcher, son of A. J. Fletcher of toeve fame, running for the House. Exceedingly popular in Durham, he has served on the City Council — as has his brother, Fred, here in Raleigh. Floyd runs WTVD . . . or it runs him . . . and Fred Operates WRAL-TV.

Also running in Durham for the House: Kenneth Royal, Jr., son of the former Secretary of the Army and one of Durham's most prominent citizens.

Incidentally, North Carolina is becoming a great father-son area, politically speaking. Tarheels, proud of their State and its leaders of yesteryear, seem to like the inheritance idea.

FAGS OR FOOD? . . . Candidates for the Legislature are trying desperately to look in another direction on the tax picture. But, as the campaign begins moving into high gear next month, some of them will likely be faced with this decision:

Whether to be for a tax on cigarettes or to be for a 25 per cent increase in our sales tax (from three cents to four cents on each dollar spent for food, furniture, etc.). The cry in the 1967 Legislature may well be: "Fags or food?"

IN THE FIFTH . . . The hottest Congressional race in the State so far continues to be in the Fifth, where four stalwarts are having it out to determine who will succeed Ralph Scott, retiring.

Of the four men running, three are from Forsyth County. This means a sharp division in the total vote. It also could mean — and they are so saying in the district — that Nick Galifianakis of Durham is likely to be in second place when the votes are counted on May 28.

The thinking back of this conjecture is that Galifianakis seems to be well in the lead in Durham and Person counties.

THREE TIMES . . . The year 1961 was not a bad one in North Carolina. Times were good, with President Kennedy moving well along on his new frontiers and Gov. Sanford getting going with quality education.

And yet — in March of 1961, we sold only 9,245 new cars in North Carolina. This March, according to figures released last Friday, total sales were 20,331 — more than two times the number sold in March of five years ago!

Sales of trucks — another excellent barometer of business — this past March ran to 4,730, more than twice the 2,048 sold the same month in 1961.

New car sales in March of 1965 were 17,006 — new trucks, 3,258.

The gap between Chevrolet and Ford became larger in March, Ford selling 5,407 new cars to Chevy's 4,912. In March of last year, Ford sales totaled 4,361 and Chevrolet's 4,218.

Here is how some of the other brands ranked in March: Pontiac, 1,787—Plymouth, 1,609—Buick, 1,132.

Oldsmobile, 1,115—Dodge, 832—Rambler, 628—Mercury, 607—Chrysler, 418—Cadillac, 292—Lincoln, 60—Imperial, 19—Studebaker, 23—Willys, 15; foreign, 1236 of this number, 832 were Volkswagens, and 19, miscellaneous.

ON THE BRIDGE . . . One of the first things travelers from North Carolina into Florida notice is that in tourist-conscious Florida, fishing is permitted from highway bridges. Here, there is no way provided for fishing from bridges. In fact, it is against the law — or was, a few moments ago, and may still be. Our bridges are so constructed it is dangerous to do bridge-fishing.

Among his other forehead-wrinkling worries, Highway Chairman Joe Hunt is being urged to decide to let Old Wright Memorial Bridge across Currituck Sound be used as a fishing pier. Not only is old Currituck soundly loaded with croakers, but a favorable decision by Chairman Hunt might pave the way for N. C. bridge-fishing in the future.

Senator Jordan Reports:

WASHINGTON — I have co-sponsored a proposed constitutional amendment which would provide for voluntary prayer in the public schools.

The vast majority of the people of the United States became greatly concerned when the historic school prayer decision of the Supreme Court made it unlawful for prayers to be prescribed for use in publicly supported educational institutions.

For generations it has been part of the American tradition that most of the public schools open each day's session with a pledge of allegiance to the flag and a prayer of some sort.

As a result of the Supreme Court's decision, there has been a great deal of misunderstanding as to just what the decision prohibited and as a result, most of the schools simply eliminated any prayer as such, but it did prohibit school boards or other school authorities from prescribing or requiring any certain prayer to be said.

The constitutional amendment which I have co-sponsored would clear up the confusion that has been so widespread about this matter. It would amend our Constitution by explicitly "permitting the voluntary participation by students or others in prayer."

I think the amendment would serve two very useful purposes. First of all, if it is adopted, it would indirectly encourage public schools to provide for voluntary participation in prayer. Secondly, such an amendment would make it abundantly clear that it is not the intention of the people or the government of this nation to prohibit prayer in public schools.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: The session at the country store Saturday night was what them Pentagon boys would call "Operation Explosion."

Zeke Grubb reported he had saw a piece in the papers where our population would hit the 200 million mark by November and we would add 30 million more by 1975.

The storekeeper butted in to say the price of meat had gone up another notch, and that's when the explosion started.

Ed Doolittle, that claims he can't never recollect a single good crop under the Democrats, said he longed for them good old days when he was a boy and folks was complaining with that ditty: "10 cent cotton, 30 cent meat, how in the world can a pore man eat?"

Ed said it looked like the more people we git and the more food we need the less people we can find to work the farms in this country. He allowed as how the Congress even passed a law to arrest Mexicans that was trying to snk into this country and earn a few dollars working in the fields. We was giving money away by the boatload, said Ed, to anybody that ask for some, but we won't let a pore man come in and work for it.

Even Clem Webster, that is general strong for the Great Society, said it looked to him like hiring Mexicans to harvest crops was a better deal than letting fruit and vegetables rot in the fields. Clem admitted it looked odd for us to spend $400 million getting them folks from Cuba over here, gitting them homes and jobs, but we arrested 50,000 Mexicans last year fer trying to come acrost the border to trade labor fer spending money.

SIGNUP FOR CROPLAND ADJUSTMENT PROGRAM UNDER WAY

The Cropland Adjustment Program — available in 1966 for the first time — offers major advantages to farmers. W. B. Denny, State Executive Director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said recently. Signup in the program now is under way at North Carolina ASCS county offices.

The program is designed to fill a need not quite met by the annual acreage allotment and diversion programs in achieving and maintaining supply-demand balance for farm products. It is also expected to provide more hunting, fishing, and other opportunities for outdoor recreation.

CAP is especially attractive to farmers who want (1) to shift from production to surplus crops to other activities, (2) to retire gradually from farming while continuing to live on the farm, (3) to continue working off the farm, or (4) to take advantage of other local employment opportunities.

Farmers participating in CAP will receive adjustment payments related to the value of the crops normally produced on the land, and conservation cost-share payments on the land diverted.

Denny reported that through March 25, a total of 1,833 North Carolina farm operators have applied for agreements under CAP, and 226 agreements have been signed.

While no deadline has been set for the signup under the Cropland Adjustment Program, farmers who are interested in diverting acreage under a long-term rather than an annual agreement are urged not to delay filing a CAP application. There is a limitation on the total acreage within a county or trade area which may be placed under such agreements.

Prices for the 1966 crop of soybeans will be supported at a national average of $2.50 per bushel, according to W. B. Denny, State Executive Director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. This compares with the support of $2.25 per bushel which has been in effect for soybean production since 1961.

Denny explained that the average price received by farmers from the 1965 crop is expected to be about $2.60 per bushel. However, the increased minimum level of support for 1966-crop soybeans will protect farmers against any unwarranted price declines at harvesttime when marketings are usually the heaviest and prices lower. At the same time, it will encourage farmers to expand plantings to provide a stable supply of soybeans.

Growers participating in the feed grain program are urged to consider carefully the desirability of shifting corn acreage to soybeans as a crop in much demand and for which production increases are vital if needs are to be met. Feed grain supplies, on the other hand, are more than adequate to meet needs.

Soybeans offer farmers a good cash alternative to corn; they have been the top individual crop dollar earner among U. S. agricultural exports for four consecutive years and have been pushing higher each season. The soybean crop now ranks fourth in total value of production among the principal crops produced in the United States. They are an important cash crop in 30 states. Preliminary estimates place the farm value of the 1963 crop at nearly $2 billion.

As announced earlier, growers who take part in the 1966 feed grain program may plant soybeans on acreage intended for producing feed grains under the program and still receive the price-support payment earned through program participation. Price-support payments are 30¢ per bushel for corn, 20¢ a bushel for barley, and 50¢ a hundredweight for grain sorghum. The payments are made on the farm's projected yield of the feed grain acreage planted under the program, up to 50 percent of the total feed grain base.

Producers can receive price support on their 1966-crop soybeans through warehouse - and farm-stored loans, and through purchases, either as individuals or through their approved cooperative marketing associations. Program availability and loan maturity dates will be announced later.

MORE ABOUT Uncle Dave Says:

The fellers was agreed they had never heard Clem say such harsh words about the Great Society.

Ed admitted they was some problems in Washington that was hard to handle, and that was as close as Ed ever has come to saying anything nice about the Democrats.

Bug Hookum, that had ought to know all about work on account of he spends more time looking at it than doing it, said he had saw a piece in his pamphlet from the Department of Agriculture where they wasn't much surplus left in this country now except tobacco and cotton. Nobody wants the cotton, said Bug, and you can't eat tobacco, so it looks like we'll have to take them farms out of the soil bank and git back to work.

Them Government experts, Mister Editor, was like the feller taking long steps to save soles on his $30 shoes and busting out the seat of his $40 pants.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

Michael, Betsy Davis, Richard Wyatt, Mrs. Kathryn Klinder and Mrs. Martha Hager of Winston-Salem.

HOPE FOR HEARTS

A TIP FROM THE PROS

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The voice of the umpire is being heard in the land: "PLAY BALL." The call of the wild pitch is almost irresistible, but before getting on your charley horse, take a tip from the pros, the North Carolina Heart Association cautions. They're in top shape on opening day, but you're not. And there's the rub—or the rubdown, as Bob Quincy, University of North Carolina sports publicist points out in the following article distributed by the North Carolina Heart News Bureau.)

By BOB QUINCY

Sports Information Director, University of North Carolina For the N. C. HEART NEWS BUREAU
CHAPEL HILL — Tony Cloninger! Gaylord and Jim Perry! Smoky Burgess! All from North Carolina and all have at least two things in common: They're baseball players and they have hearts.

The latter concerns the North Carolina Heart Association. Cloninger and the Perrys are relative youngsters by major league standards. Burgess, from Caroleen, N. C., began his career in 1944, a greybeard in the crowd. Yet, Smoky can play a strenuous game without too much concern about his physical condition.

Why? Burgess is in shape, just like Cloninger and the Perrys. Oh, it may have taken longer, but his heart is prepared for the strain of swinging a bat, crouching behind a plate, running bases.

The professional baseball player strives to be in top shape for opening day. He begins his return to physical conditioning in March of every year and by mid-April he is able to stop, go and slide. Most such men are in their 20's. Others, like Burgess, are in their late 30's. They pace themselves accordingly.

Can you say the same for yourself? Check off these points on your scoreboard: age? weight? occupation? Do you get a moderate quota of exercise every day? just on occasional weekends? or just on your vacation?

For most men in this automated, motorized, mechanized era, work involves minimal muscular activity. Our recreation, too, is, for the most part, passive in form (although in North Carolina's year-round Variety Vacationland, it needn't be).

It would be a good idea to break this pattern, you're thinking? And why not now, when spring beckons? You're right, so far. But whatever the season, start with a short, easy workout. Pace yourself gradually, the North Carolina Heart Association says, and stick to one basic rule: blow the whistle when you've had enough. Come June, you may be able to go the distance in a Sunday game with your youngsters — if they'll have you on the team.

And you'll be in better condition for tennis, swimming and other summer sports that can make or break your vacation. You will look better, feel better, and you'll be doing your heart a favor — especially if the habit takes, and a daily constitutional becomes part of your way of life in all kinds of weather.

Don't try to become a Yankee outfielder with your first workout. Not even the pros would be that foolish.

King of the Mountain

What boy hasn't played at, or dreamed of being king of the mountain? Children—yes, and all too many adults—seem to find security in imagining themselves "the biggest thing in the world" . . . able to vanquish all comers.

With real maturity comes the realization that we aren't quite "the biggest thing in the world." And very often the foundation of true maturity is true religious faith. For faith asks not that we be "bigger and better" than others, but rather that we search everlastingly for the very best that we, as individuals, have in us.

Is "something big" missing from your life? Seek your faith. Help your children to seek theirs. Worship—this week—at your church or synagogue.

New Parcel Post Legislation Pending

Residents of Mocksville would save thousands of dollars annually on heavier packages under parcel post reform legislation pending in Congress. Postmaster Roy Cartner said today.

The saving could be $2 to $3 a parcel, or more, he explained. Equally significant, Postmaster Cartner said, there are many instances where mailers decide not to send such parcels at all, with resulting losses of much business by the Mocksville Post Office.

Postmaster Cartner's report was based on a new analysis of parcel post reform legislation, H. R. 12367, sent to him from Washington, D. C. by President James O'Toole of the National Association of Postmasters.

At the same time, the postmaster reported the parcel post reform measure would help the Post Office Department reduce the postal fund deficiency to its lowest level since enactment of the Postal Policy Act in 1958 — from the present $76 million deficit to $187 million.

On behalf of the Postmaster Association, which has thrown its full support behind legislation introduced at the request of Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien, Postmaster Cartner made these points of particular interest to residents of Mocksville:

As a first class post office, the local office cannot accept most parcels of more than 20 pounds or more than 72 inches dimensions if they are going to another first class post office 150 miles or more away.

Such parcels sent by private express, at much higher charges, often cost several dollars more than by parcel post.

However, H. R. 12367 would provide new parcel post limits of 40 pounds and 100 inches, with resulting savings for mailers at the Mocksville Post Office.

An increase of 14 cents a parcel would be needed to offset the parcel post deficit, but, if H. R. 12367 is enacted into law, a much more moderate increase averaging 8 cents a parcel would be provided, Postmaster Cartner said.

More than 100 smaller size post offices are raised each year from the second class to first class. When they are raised, parcel mailers under the present restrictions must often suffer added costs involved in private express company handling of the heavier parcels.

Residents of smaller post offices enjoy limits of 70 pounds and 100 inches for parcel post packages. In a recent typical example, Ronoke, Alabama, a second class office, was raised to first class. A parcel of 21 pounds was formerly sent to Bainbridge, Ga., about 155 miles away, for $1.59. Now, if it is sent at all, it is sent by a more expensive means. In the case of the Railway Express Agency, it would be $4.70.

Residents of small communities who do not have the limitations imposed on first class post office mailers suffer nevertheless as a result of the limitations on parcel post, provided 14 years ago under a law favoring REA, the NAPUS report indicated.

Because of lost volume in first class offices — which today serve 140 million Americans — parcel post rates (or taxes) for everyone have been raised about $500 million since 1951. Overall increases in parcel rates have totaled about 130 per cent.

Some post offices more than 150 miles away from Mocksville which are now affected by the limitation here include: Atlanta, Baltimore, Chicago, San Francisco.

The parcel post reform legislation would go a long way toward correcting parcel mailing problems and reducing expenses, the Postmaster noted.

For parcels going less than 150 miles, the present 40-pound limit would be retained, but a new size liberalization to 100 inches from the present 72 inch limit would be beneficial for these parcels, the Postmaster explained.
