Opportunity Camp Is Open For Local Children

Davie County can send 12 boys and 12 girls to an Opportunity Camp for underprivileged children this summer provided some sponsors can be found.

B. C. McMurray, Acting Director of the Davie County Welfare Department, said that the welfare department had the children that would benefit from such a program provided some club or business would serve as a sponsor. The cost to sponsor a child for this camp is $20 per child.

The camp is being conducted jointly by the State 4-H Clubs and Agricultural Extension Department. It will be held from July 25th to July 30th at Camp Betsy Jeff Penn near Reidsville.

"Any club, organization or individual wishing to sponsor one or more children for this camp should get in touch with the Davie County Welfare Department immediately so that the necessary arrangements can be made," said Mr. McMurray.

Mr. McMurray also announced that there were three openings for adults to attend this camp as counselors from Davie. There is no charge for the adults serving in this capacity, he said.

Rev. Dick Denson To Become Chaplain

Rev. Dick Denson, who has served as pastor of Jerusalem Baptist Church since September of 1964, will leave next week to enter the Army as a Chaplain.

He will go to Ft. Hamilton, New York for nine weeks of Chaplain's School and from there to Ft. Hood, Texas. He will be assigned to the 1st Armored Battalion (Old Ironsides). He has been commissioned a 1st Lt.

Mr. Denson served for 2 1/2 years as Chaplain with the Baptist Hospital, 1 year of those years while in Davie County.

Mrs. Denson has resigned her position with the Mocksville Elementary School where she has taught the 5th grade for the past year.

A pulpit committee composed of Mrs. Richard Beck, Mrs. Vic Thompson, Paul Foster, Talmadge Cheek and Haywood Graves has been formed to secure a pastor for Jerusalem Baptist Church to replace the Rev. Mr. Denson.

Chip's Stops Their Mocksville Operation

CHIP'S of Mocksville closed last week. No official announcement was made of the closing.

Eugene Junker, owner of the building, said that he did not know what plans the officials might have.

Harder's have bought out one of their units in the former Chip's place in Salisbury. It is not known whether this will be true or not in Mocksville.

Republicans Make Party Selections

Swicegood, Bailey and Bryan Win

Republicans of Davie County in a light vote Saturday nominated Jerry Swicegood and John M. Bailey as their candidates for county commissioner. (See Democratic story on Sheriff's race.)

Swicegood won a clearcut decision for one of the posts polling 960 votes. Bailey had 837 votes for second place.

Mrs. Lillian Gregory placed third with 755 votes and has the right to challenge Bailey in a second primary if she should so desire.

However, Tuesday morning, Mrs. Gregory said she would not ask for a second primary. She congratulates the winners and thanks her friends for their support.

Albert Howard received 660 votes and Charlie James, 574.

Davie County Republicans also favored F. D. B. Harding for Senator of the 25th Senatorial District with 1219 votes. T. R. Bryan received 554 votes. Bryan received the nomination, however, with a district vote of 4,536 for Harding.

Davie Plans Five Year Farm Program

The Agricultural Extension Service in North Carolina has been in the process of planning a five-year program. Believing that the people should have a voice in planning a program that will affect them and their way of life, Dr. George Hyatt, Jr., Director of Extension, appointed a County Extension Advisory Board. This Board assisted the County Extension Staff in planning a total Extension program for Davie County.

Final approval of Davie's five-year program statement occurred at the last meeting of the Advisory Board, Wednesday, May 25, at the County Office Building.

County residents appointed to serve on the Board are: President, H. F. Blackwelder, Jr.; Vice-President, Mrs. Roland West; Secretary, Hubert Bailey; Executive Committee Members, Roger Gabbert, also Chairman of Agriculture; and Dr. Bayne Miller; Mrs. Armond Smith, Chairman, Family Living; C. N. Boyer, Chairman, Youth Development; J. N. Smoot, Chairman, Resource Development; John Orrell, Shirley Studevent, Clay Allen, Wade Dyson, Cliff Peebles, John Johnstone, and Johnny Sparks.

The Extension Staff wishes to express sincere appreciation for the cooperation and services of the Advisory Board in formulating the five-year plan.

Aspects Of Medicare Discussed For Rotary

Medicare and how it will affect the hospital . . . the doctors . . . and ambulance service . . . was discussed for members of the Mocksville Rotary Club Tuesday.

Wayne Eaton was in charge of the program. Paul Neil, Jr., Davie Hospital Administrator, discussed it's possible effect on the hospital; Dr. Francis Slate discussed it's medical aspect; and Wayne Eaton discussed it's relationship to ambulance service.

Mr. Neil told the Rotarians that in order for a hospital to qualify for Medicare it must be accredited; must have a utilization review committee to review the charts of all patients and certify that hospitalization is warranted; and comply with the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

"Medicare will increase both our hospital census and our patient cost," said Mr. Neil.

Dr. Slate told the Rotarians that a person must enroll in the medical insurance program. He said that this program is $50 deductible type with the patient paying 20% of all the costs above $50. This insurance covers physician services, related supplies, xray and laboratory procedures, dressings, etc.

Mr. Eaton told the Rotarians that as yet he had not been able to find out the requirements Medicare would put on ambulance service. He said that at the present time they were making between 850 and 900 ambulance trips per year and these would probably rise to a 1200 figure after Medicare becomes effective, July 1st.

"Certainly Medicare will put ambulance service on a self-sustaining basis," said Mr. Eaton.

President Bryan Sell Presided. Special guests included Neil Bolton of Winston-Salem; Carl Eaton of Mocksville; and J. G. Slate of Mocksville.

Lyerly's Custom Draperies Open

Lyerly's Custom Draperies, 31 Court Square, is now in operation. It is owned and operated by Mrs. Rena Mae Lyerly.

The shop is located in the building formerly occupied by James Paint Store. A recent ad in this newspaper stated that "the red carpet is out for you" at the local shop. As you enter, you will see the "red carpet". The walls have been covered with pre-finished paneling. The shop is divided into the reception room and the "work room".

Mrs. E. P. Evans is employed part time by Mrs. Lyerly.

Utilities Commission Makes Reply

Telephone Service Is Discussed

The North Carolina Utilities Commission has replied to the request of the Mocksville Rotary Club to check into local telephone service.

A letter from V. W. Chase, State Telephone Engineer, to Hugh Lawrence, chairman of the Rotary Committee, is as follows:

"This is in reply to your letter of April 25, 1966, which we acknowledge on April 27, 1966, regarding telephone service at Mocksville.

"It is our information that items two, three and four of the resolution adopted by the Mocksville Rotary Club of January 25, 1966, have been clear to a reasonable extent. It is almost impossible to clear these matters to the point that it can be said there will never be any more trouble.

"In regard to item one, my information is that Central Telephone Company has its part of the necessary facilities available to add six additional connections from Mocksville to the Yadkin Valley area immediately if Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation can or will provide the necessary facilities within its area.

"Efforts on our part working with the North Carolina Electrification Authority as yet have not produced results to relieve the situation you complain of, but efforts will continue to be made to reach a satisfactory solution to the problem. I am sure you realize that only the Central Telephone Company, of the two parties involved, falls under the jurisdiction of this Commission.

"I regret I do not have more to report; however, I feel I must at least write you again so that you will know we are working on the situation and will continue to do so."

Gwyn B. Price, Chairman of the North Carolina Electrification Authority, wrote Leo F. Williams concerning the Davie telephone situation as follows:

Accidents Are Reported

An accident occurred Thursday evening May 26th about 8:30 on US 158, just outside of Mocksville, involving a 1957 white and black Chevrolet operated by John Wade Blankenship of Swannanoa, N. C. Investigating officer R. L. Hanson said the driver of the car suffered a heart attack, causing the vehicle to run off the road, jump a ditch and hit a fence.

Mr. Blankenship was rushed to the Baptist Hospital by Eaton's Funeral Home where his condition remains serious.

Damage to the vehicle amounted to $150 and $50 damage to the fence owned by Albert Sain of Mocksville.

John Wesley Bohannon of Mocksville, age 16, lost control of a school bus twelve miles East of Mocksville on Rural road 1459, Thursday, May 26th about four thirty. Bohannon, operating a 1959 orange Ford, was traveling too fast for conditions, losing control of his car rounding a curve on a narrow crooked gravel road, running off the left side of the road and overturned.

Investigating officer R. L. Hanson said damage to the vehicle amounted to $300 and $40 to a fence that was damaged; owner unknown.

Two cars were involved in an accident Thursday May 26th about 6:45 p. m. on U. S. 158 just outside of Mocksville. A 1957 lavender Chevrolet operated by Catherine Smoot of Mill Street, Mocksville, was driving south on 158, when she lost control on a curve, turned around and went backwards into the wrong lane. The other vehicle which was a 1965 Oldsmobile operated by Reid Willis of Burlington was proceeding north on 158, when struck in the front by Mrs. Smoot. State Highway Patrolman R. L. Hanson investigated the accident and said damages to the 1957 Chevrolet was $400 and $500 damages to the 1965 Oldsmobile.

Mrs. Linda Hargett of Winston-Salem, driving a 1963 white and red Chevrolet, lost control of her car coming out of a curve; she swerved off to the left side landing in a ditch. There were no injuries sustained.

This accident occurred just outside of Mocksville on US 158, Thursday evening May 26th around ten o'clock.

Investigating officer, R. L. Hanson said damages to the Hargett vehicle amounted to $200.

An accident involving a 1964 red Volkswagen occurred Friday May 27th about 12:45 p. m. eight miles north of Mocksville on Highway 150. Larry Kern of Clyde, North Carolina, driver of the Volks met another vehicle passing on a double yellow line and swerved off onto the shoulder to avoid a head on collision; losing control and going through a fence owned by Allen B. Howard of Rt. 1, Advance.

Highway Patrolman R. L. Hanson investigated the accident and said that damages to the Volkswagen was $150 and $75 damage to the fence. Mr. Kern was not injured.

James Royal Powell, 26, of Ft. Campbell, Ky., was the driver of a 1965 Volkswagen Friday, May 27, at 6:30 p. m. that was wrecked. Powell was going east on US 64, went around a curve and lost control of the car. The car ran off the left striking ditch and then went into a private yard owned by Bob Powell, Route 1. Damage to the car was $100 and to the yard, $50. Patrolman John W. Pittman investigated the accident.

Two cars were involved in an accident Saturday morning May 28th around 9:30 about 1/2 mile from Mocksville on NC 801, when Barden J. Howes, Jr. of Lexington, N. C. operating a 1964 black Falcon backed into the highway, and was struck in the rear by a 1960 blue Chevrolet operated by Mrs. Mildred McDaniel of Rt. 2, Advance. Mrs. McDaniel applied brakes causing her to swerve to the left side of the road, hitting the Howes' vehicle with the right door of her car. Mr. Howes' vision was obscured because of bushes. Investigating officer R. L. Hanson's charges were intended movement for Howes. Damages to the 1964 Falcon was $50 and $360 to the 1960 Chevrolet.

Miss Glenda Sue Owings of Rt. 1, Mocksville, operating a 1966 maroon Ford about 1/2 mile west of Mocksville on US 158, Saturday afternoon May 28th around 2 o'clock, lost control of her car on a curve causing her to swing off on the road and strike an embankment. There were no injuries. Investigating officer, J. W. Pittman said damages to her car were $1200.

She was presented with a wrist watch. The contest was sponsored by the Ralston-Purina Company.

On The Home Front

All the strings will come off of green beans if the beans are put in boiling water for five minutes after washing.

If vegetables seem a little wilted, add a small amount of vinegar to the water when washing them.

If celery loses crispness, place in a pan of cold water and add a slice of raw potato. After a few hours your celery will be crisp again.

Do not wash eggs before storing. Water destroys the protective film that keeps out air and odors.

Grate a little lemon rind and put in mayonaisse to be used for fruit salads. This adds much to the flavor.

"Round Steak Round-up" Dredge a round steak in flour seasoned with salt and pepper and cook in hot fat until well browned. Place steak in a large roasting pan. Add enough flour to the fat in the fry pan to make a rich brown gravy. Pour gravy over steak and cook three hours in a 250 degree oven. Cover with foil. Add potatoes, onions and carrots one hour before removing from the oven. This makes a good Sunday dinner and can cook while you attend church.

"Frozen Fruit Salad" 2-3 oz. packages of cream cheese softened 1 cup chopped nuts 1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple. 1 large package of frozen straw berries. 1/2 pkg. miniature marshmallows, 1 cup whipped cream. 1 cup mayonaisse and a few drops of red food coloring. Soak marshmallows in pineapple. Mix all ingredients together and freeze in 1 qt. milk carton. Peel off carton and slice salad as needed. Serve on crisp salad greens. This makes 2 1/2 qts. of salad.

Homecoming Set For The Lutheran Church

Homecoming will be held at the Holy Cross Lutheran Church Sunday June 5. The pastor of the church, Rev. Jack Thyne will be in charge of the annual observance. Sunday School begins at 9:45 A. M. Worship begins at 11:00 A. M. A picnic lunch will be served at 12:45 P. M. The public is invited to come and share the worship, food, and fellowship.

Vacation Church School will begin at 9:00 A. M. on Monday, June 6 and continue for two weeks. The sessions each day are from 9:00 to 11:30 A. M. The theme this year is "Jesus and His Church". Classes are being provided for nursery ages through the ninth grades. Along with class periods and related activities, refreshments will be served. There will be music and recreation during the course of the morning. All the children of the community are invited to participate.

'Two For The Seesaw' Playing At Showboat

One of the most popular plays of recent years, "Two for the Seesaw," opened Wednesday at the Showboat Dinner Theatre with a young and distinguished New York cast directed by Broadway veteran Heinz Hohenwald.

The earthy comedy-drama filled with both humor and pathos features lovely Lynn Carlyse as a would-be dancer caught up in the rat-race of Manhattan and Scott Hale as an out-of-town attorney seeking solace from an impending break-up with his wife.

When performed to critical and public acclaim on Broadway, the warm-hearted play brought stardom to Anne Bancroft, later winner of an Academy Award. Showboat's new production of William Gibson's hit will play nightly except Monday for four weeks.

Miss Carlyse, a singer as well as an actress, made her Broadway debut last season in "P.S. I Love You" and, in addition, had the distinct honor of being selected as "stand-by" for the star, Geraldine

North American audiences have seen him on tour in "A Fat Country" with Viveca Linfors, "Detective Story" with William Bendix and in "Kiss and Tell."

His off-Broadway appearances included "The Scrapbook," "Twelfth Night," "The Sea Gull" and "Hey You, Light Man!" His movies include "The Killers," "Middle of the Night," "Haiti," "Girl on the Run" and "The Edge of Eternity."

Hale's frequent television appearances include, among many others, "Gunsmoke," "Peyton Place," "Daniel Boone," "Legend of Jesse James," "The Wackiest Ship in the Army," "Convoy" and "The Defenders."

Director Hohenwald has many directing, acting and stage managing credits, including associations with such Broadway productions as "Night of the Iguana," "Slow Dance of the Killing Ground" and "Slapstick Tragedy."

The Showboat, North Carolina's only professional dinner theatre, is located just off Highway 63 south of the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem Airport. Reservations may be made by letter or telephone.

CHAPEL HILL — The ordeal of change in newspapering was the subject of one of the final lectures delivered by a visiting speaker on the University of North Carolina campus this semester.

The guest speaker was Norman Isaacs, vice president and executive editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Louisville Times in Kentucky. He addressed a Journalism seminar on Newspaper Management taught by his former "boss"—retired editor and publisher Mark Ethridge.

Isaacs lamented the tendency of American newspapers to cling to tradition and to take a reactionary attitude towards developments and innovation in the field of communications.

"Too many papers continue to be 'married to metal' and to focus on the details of life, he observed. As in the history of American journalism, 'Papers of character, good sense and fine motives are among

Miss Shirley Thorne To Do Graduate Work

MISS SHIRLEY THORNE

Miss Shirley Diane Thorne of Mocksville, Rt. 1, has been awarded a $1000. Scholarship to be used for graduate study during 1966-67 at Wake Forest College.

Miss Thorne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Thorne.

She is a senior at Catawba College and has just completed student teaching at North Rowan High School. She is a member of Sigma Pi Alpha at Catawba and will graduate from the college, Friday, June 5, with an A B degree in mathematics.

Mrs. Gaither Plans To Work On Ph.D.

Mrs. Louise H. Gaither, Professor of Education and Psychology at Winston-Salem State Teacher's College in Winston-Salem has received a grant to do further work toward a Ph. D. degree in Reading.

Mrs. Gaither is a native of Mocksville and received the Bachelor of Arts Degree from Livingstone College in Salisbury, N. C. She received her Master's degree in Reading and Psychology at New York University.

The Grant awarded by the Piedmont University Center of North Carolina and Winston-Salem State College will enable Mrs. Gaither to study Reading problems and readers. It is hoped that her study will make it possible for a larger number of poor readers to receive help, so that they may become independent and contributing members of our society.

Mrs. Gaither realizes that it is impossible to understand and appreciate the difficulties encountered by a retarded reader without knowing something about the complexities involved in reading our language and the many reasons that contribute to reading failure. As college Supervisor of Student Teachers, she has visited many schools in the state, both white and colored. This has helped her to recognize the fact that reading problems are caused by a multitude of inter-acting factors and that each retarded reader has his unique combination of problems.

the distinguished minority."

While the newspaper industry "tried to look the other way," Isaacs recalled, radio, TV and the weekly news magazine moved in and "fragmented" the journalism profession. This led to the death of the "extra" edition and of the "today factor" in news reporting.

"The electronic era is about to engulf all of life, and yet for a quarter of a century, newspapers spent almost nothing on research," Isaacs illustrated. "We've witnessed the death of paper after paper. Ninety-five per cent of our cities have only one paper. There's no inherent virtue in monopoly. Every paper is a reflection of its ownership."

With regard to the mechanics of newspapering, Isaacs said the press is now in the "early to middle stages of losing its relationships to type."

Citing the advent of punched tapes, computers and photo-journalism, he added that "The umbilical cord of journalism to the print shop has been cut." It makes no difference, he insisted, how stories and editorials are processed once they are written.

What does matter, he said, is the "repeatability of print." And regardless of communication developments to come, any future "marriage" involving newspapers and the electronic media will result in some form of printed product.

Americans, he conceded, now get the majority of their news via radio and TV. As a result, the press has some new advantages.

"What used to be our disability is now someone else's," he said in reference to speed in news reporting. "We now have time for quality writing, time to organize and create intelligently, to dig for the background and in-depth story."

An event two weeks ago, he added, can be far more important than anything happening "today." Yet too many papers are preserving an institutional "status quo" by clinging to outmoded techniques by habit.

"Any newspaper that carried a straight who, what, when, where and why story on the Masters Golf Tournament the day after it took place," he illustrated with reference to TV on-the-spot coverage, "is a Neanderthal carving on a stone."

Taking a look into the future,

Isaacs said there may someday be well-managed metropolitan newspapers existing solely on circulation revenues.

A daily news magazine, patterned after newspapers and exploiting the "why" type of writing, was suggested as another probability. Well-fare, he predicted, will be the biggest news "beat" of the future.

Calling for fewer technicians and more broadly educated men and women, Isaacs noted that the quality of young people entering the journalism profession is "higher than ever."

"Journalism must meet financial requirements. Newspaper reporters should be well enough educated and treated as counterparts with full professors on the university faculty," he said.

In conclusion, he spoke of the newspaper's role in society. "In getting information to the American people for them to make intelligent decisions, there is no greater leadership than that provided by journalism," he said. "Editorial thrust is far greater and a newspaper's tenure far longer than those of any politician."

PINO

The Rev. Benny Bearden will deliver his last sermon at Wesley Chapel Church, Sunday, June 5, at eleven o'clock. This is the last service before conference.

Miss Linda Dull is spending a few days with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Bowden of Connecticut, Mrs. Hugh Dixon, Miss Ann Dixon and Miss Mary McMan have been visiting in Pino.

Mrs. Ray Deese and son, Tony visited Mr. W. W. West for awhile Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harper, Mrs. Lindy Hiatt, Mr. and Mrs. Bynum Davis of Forsyth County visited in the L. M. Dull home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther West and family spent Sunday with Mrs. Boyd Warlick and Daniel Warlick.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Reavis and sons of Kannapolis spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dull.

Miss Cheryl Davis of Kernersville, Mrs. Gene Miller and Lonnie Gene Miller attended the wedding of Miss Phyllis Asher and Jim Woodward at Conway, Sunday. Mr. Miller and Mr. Woodward were roommates at Mars Hill College. They also visited the Fred Grooms at Roanoke Rapids. Mr. Grooms spent last winter at the Miller home while attending Salem Business College.

THANKS!

I wish to express my deep appreciation for the support given me in the Democratic Primary last Saturday.

Tattle-Tales

By Gordon Tomlinson

Joe Patner . . . the erstwhile Luther Burbank of Mocksville . . . may soon receive a "corsage of peppered asters" for his efforts in plant cultivating.

Joe had his wife to take Miss Daisy Holthouser what he called aster plants. Well, Daisy looked at them and told Mrs. Patner that they looked like pepper plants to her . . . but not wanting to refuse the gift . . . she took them and set them out in her flower bed.

The next morning Mrs. Patner called Daisy and told her that Joe had made the mistake and that he had really given her pepper plants instead of the asters. So Daisy had to take up the pepper plants from her flower box and replant them in her garden.

"Just as soon as they are ripe . . . I'm going to send Joe a corsage peppered asters", said Daisy.

J. W. "Boy" Rodwell had several hens. These hens were laying an egg a day, making "Boy" very proud.

Otis Hendrix heard "Boy" bragging about his "well-producing" layers and decided to encourage "Boy" a little more.

When "Boy" was away, Otis would slip into the hen house and plant a few eggs. The hens went from one egg a day to two eggs per day . . . and "Boy's" pride increased.

"Best hens I've ever seen. Must be what I'm feeding them", "Boy" told Otis time and again.

This went on until the hens were laying an unbelievably number of eggs . . . that is unbelievable to anyone except Otis who had raised the daily production rate so high that he was finding it too expensive.

So "Boy" Rodwell was told the story and the next day his hens dropped drastically in their egg production.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Smith of Advance Rt. 1 are accustomed to double graduations in their family. Six of their nine children graduated from high school . . . two-at-a-time.

It all started in 1941 when their son Robert, and daughter, Elsie, graduated together. Two years later, their daughter, Norman Mae and Ella Gray graduated, followed in 1951 by twin daughters, Maxine and Jean — all from the Mocksville High School.

The trend didn't change when the grandchildren began graduating. Their first grandchildren, Eldridge and Gail Smith, children of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Smith of Advance Rt. 1, graduated from Davie High in 1960 — together.

This year the number went up from 2 to 3 as three grandchildren received diplomas from Davie High last Friday night. They were: Trudy, Brenda and Lanny Smith, children of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith of Advance Rt. 1 and Mr. and Mrs. Armond Smith of Mocksville Rt. 4.

During the years Mr. and Mrs. Smith found it quite a strain at times to pay for two class rings, two diplomas, rent two caps and gowns, plus all the varied expenses that accompany graduations. They did get bargains in their graduation invitations though by inserting two calling cards in each envelope. Also, one Annual sufficed for two people.

With all the future high school graduations of their other grandchildren, in addition to the college graduations as they begin to arrive, Mr. and Mrs. Smith see no letup in the graduation situation. They are not complaining though — just proud of each and every one that makes it.

Joe Jones Wins Honor Scholarship

JOE JONES

Joe Jones, a former resident of Mocksville and now living in Wilkesboro, has been awarded the R. M. Miler Jr. Honor Scholarship for freshmen entering Davidson College. Joe will graduate from Wilkes Central High School, June 6.

This scholarship, renewable each year, is based on leadership, scholastic promise, character and personality, and it carries a maximum value of $1200. Approximately forty such scholarships were awarded to the most outstanding applicants for admission.

At Wilkes Central, Joe has been active in school affairs, a member of the National Honor Society and a National Merit Finalist.

Before transferring to Wilkes Central, he attended Davie County High School, where he was a member of the student council, chief junior marshal and a representative at Governor's School in the summer of 1965.

Joe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Jones of Wilkesboro.

Pino-Farmington H. D. Club Meets

The Pino Farmington Home Demonstration Club met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Grady Smith with Mrs. Queen Bess Kennen as co-hostess with 14 members and two visitors present. The visitors were Mrs. Wade Bowden of New Haven Conn. and Miss Vada Johnson.

The meeting opened with the singing of the song "Standing in the Need of Prayer", followed by Mrs. Wade Furches presenting the devotion based on the theme "Concerning our need". She concluded her talk by using the prayer Chief Yellow Bird used as he prayed it with the Sioux Indians.

After a short business session the program and demonstration part of the evening was presented by Mrs. Gene West, Mrs. Gene Smith and Mrs. Gene West. Mrs. Gene Smith demonstrated the how and where alterations should be made in the pattern before placing it on the material for cutting. She also pointed out the main places where alterations are found to be needed.

Mrs. Vada Johnson who has recently returned from a five week trip to Baltimore as a delegate to the Methodist celebration of the 200th Anniversary of Methodism in America. She also spoke of an eight day trip to Bermuda. She was impressed by the colors and beauty of the flowers and the pastel colors of the houses. She was impressed by the narrow streets with the traffic moving forward on the left side of the street.

The hostesses served an attractive plate of strawberry short cake, sandwiches and coffee. Mrs. Otis Hill received the door prize.

After the meeting, the guests walked across the street and joined Mrs. Lizzie Williams, a shut-in, on her front porch and all joined with her in singing old familiar songs.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Johnson, his father and sister, Frank Johnson and Patsy Johnson were in a head on collision near Pinnacle Saturday afternoon. Edward Johnson was driving a pick up truck with all four occupants seated on the seat when a car coming in the opposite direction and driven by a man under the influence of whiskey struck head on into the truck. The windshield was knocked with much force directly against the four occupants of

To start this chain reaction, do nothing for freedom

Freedom didn't happen overnight. It took time: several thousand years, in fact, from the Code of Hammurabi to the Magna Carta to the American Bill of Rights. Centuries of study and struggle were necessary to man's even grasping the true value of individual rights. Millions of lives and untold suffering have led up to a government which makes these rights a matter of each man's birthright. As Americans, it's only natural for us to take these freedoms for granted...to assume that they will be here forever, without any effort on our part. In fact, many of us never bother to read about them, or to help make them more meaningful for our children. In short, we do nothing for freedom...yet expect this precious heritage to go on working to protect us. Sad to say, it doesn't work that way.

When you do nothing for freedom, you hasten the day when it will do nothing for you. When you fail to speak up for freedom, even when the victim is the "other fellow", you're forging a link in the chain that could strangle freedom. Do something about freedom, so it's there when you or your children need it. We have a suggestion. Support Freedom's Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa. Davie County Firms Receive Safety Awards

State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane last week presented the State Labor Department's "Certificate of Safety Achievement" to representatives of 30 Davidson and Davie County industrial and service establishments in recognition of their outstanding work in preventing accidents during the year 1965.

The safety awards were presented at a special dinner meeting attended by some 125 representatives of the award-winning firms and guests at the Lexington Municipal Club. Sponsor of the event this year was the Lexington Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Department of Labor.

Don Sharp, chairman of the Chamber's safety awards committee, presided and introduced Commissioner Crane. Also attending were William C. Creel, safety director for the Department of Labor, and Department safety inspectors Robert J. Dunnington of Winston-Salem, Thomas B. Knight of Greensboro, and Reuben B. Hornbuckle of Greensboro. Commissioner Crane talked briefly on the subject, "Safety Standards," before presenting safety awards to the winners.

"Safety standards are the guides which we use to measure or judge the relative safety of machines, equipment, work places, work processes, and performance of individuals on the job," Commissioner Crane stated.

"It is through the attention to safety standards in your plants which you have shown during the past year that you have earned the safety awards which it is my happy privilege to present to you tonight," he said.

"Before presenting your awards, I want to take this opportunity to remind you that industry has a stake not only in plant safety but also in highway safety. Industry can and should do more to promote highway safety.

"Almost one-third of the average of 150 fatalities charged to North Carolina industry each year actually happen on the highway. I want to urge each and every one of you to cooperate fully in the North Carolina Motor Vehicle Safety Inspection Program.

"The safety awards program of your State Department of Labor is based upon the following standards: Plants which operate for a calendar year without a disabling injury are not only meeting good safety standards—they are making them! Plants which achieve a 40 per cent reduction in their rate of disabling injuries during a year have made a most significant accomplishment in safety.

Robert Ratchford Receives Awards

ROBERT RATCHFORD

Robert Harper Ratchford has been awarded an honorable mention scholarship from St. Andrews Presbyterian College, Laurinburg, in the recent Vardell Scholar competition. He is also the recipient of a $300 Synod of North Carolina Scholarship.

Highest scholarship awarded at St. Andrews, the Vardell stipends are given each year on the basis of high school academic records, personality, and interviews with college officials.

Robert is the son of the Reverend and Mrs. James Edward Ratchford of Mocksville. Robert is a 1966 graduate of Davie County High School and is a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

He will be employed with the local radio station for the summer.

And plants which are able to operate 50 per cent or more better than the State average for their type of industry with regard to experience of on-the-job accidents also are accomplishing something which merits special recognition.

"It is a pleasure to recognize publicly the outstanding work in accident prevention which has been done by you fine people representing these establishments in Davidson and Davie counties. We are proud of your safety achievements and look forward to seeing you continue to improve your accident prevention records by using high safety standards in your future operations.

Commissioner Crane then presented safety awards to the following Davie County winners: 4th. year large—White Ribbon Carolina Lingerie Co., Inc. Blackwelder Mfg. Co., Inc. Piedmont Garment Co., Inc. 6th. year large—Bar Monleigh Garment Co., Inc.

By NORTH CALLAHAN

As far as past and future finance is concerned, the Yonkers Historical Society has a unique situation. Recently, officials of the society deposited $24 in a local savings bank and asked that the money remain there 335 years. The amount commemorates the sale of Manhattan Island by the Indians to the Dutch almost 3 1/4 centuries ago. The far-sighted president of the historical society has calculated that with compound interest, the money will at the end of the time deposited, total six billion dollars at six percent interest. But he admits that he is unable to estimate just how much a dollar will be worth at that time, especially if the current rate of inflation continues.

The proposal by Secretary of Defense, Robert McNamara that all young Americans serve a year or two in the military or some other government service is far from new. The same idea was put forth by Secretary of War, Henry Knox, the first to hold the post which Mr. McNamara now occupies, and was suggested about 170 years ago. This far-sighted member of President Washington's cabinet, for whom Fort Knox is named, saw much virtue in the discipline and regular habits afforded by the armed forces. He did not think of the plan for universal service so much in the way of war as being in itself beneficial to the young people of the new nation. And it might just cut down on juvenile delinquency too.

FUNERALS

MRS. OLLIE FOSTER Funeral services for Mrs. Josie Summers Foster, 80, wife of Ollie Foster of 1009 North Main Street, were held Wednesday, June 1, at 4 p. m. at Eaton's Chapel. Burial was in Oak Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Foster died Monday at Davie County Hospital. She was born in Davie County to John and Sarah Eliza Kurfess Summers. She was a member of Oak Grove Methodist Church. She married in 1911.

Surviving are her husband; one son, Ernie Foster of the home; three sisters, Mrs. Julia Bowles of Mocksville, Mrs. John Myers of Mocksville, Rt. 4, and Mrs. John Poplin of Mocksville, Rt. 3.

To My Many

Friends In Davie County

I would like to express my honest, sincere appreciation to those of you who were so loyal to me and gave of your time, energy and support during my bid for County Commissioner.

Again I say, "Thank You".

A Letter Is Written To The Editor

Things and Happenings On The Farm

(Editor's Note . . . In this modern day of complexities . . . one often finds it most refreshing to relax and enjoy a nonsensical ditty such as the following letter which recently appeared in a weekly newspaper in Kentucky).

Dear Mr. Editor:

As I have time cause I ain't busy, I tha't I'd write you a few lines, 8 or 10 pages, to let you know the up to date news about six months old. We ain't sick we just don't feel good. I am fine. Aunt Martha is dead and I hope this finds you the same.

I suppose you would like to hear about us moving from Pennsylvania to Caliwood, Hollyformia. We never started until we left, and we never turned off till we came to a crossroad that went there. So it didn't take any longer than from the time till we got there. The trip was the best part of it, if you ever come out here don't miss that.

They didn't expect us until we arrived, and most of the people we were acquainted with we knew, and those we didn't know looked like strangers. We're still at the same place we moved to last which is beside our nearest neighbor and across the road from the other side. John said he thinks we will stay here until we move some place else.

We are very busy farming. We have three cows, but we're going to sell one because we can't milk him. Eggs are a good price that's why they are so high. I sure hope we get plenty of them. We just bought 25 roosters and one old hen.

Most of the ground is so poor you can't raise an umbrella on it. But we have a fine crop of potatoes. Some are the sizes of peas, some are the size of hickory nuts and whole lot of them are little. Crop of corn too. I think it will make about 5 gallon to the acre. Some worms got into our corn last year. But we fished them out and drank it anyway. A romance started with a gallon of corn and ended up with a crib full. Mary was taking the cows to water when they were crossing a bridge, one fell thru and strained her own milk, now she gets the hic-cups once a week and churns her own butter.

The dog died last week, John said he swallowed the tape measure and died by the inches. Mary said he went up the back alley and died by the yard, but June said he crawled up on the bed and died by the foot. Everytime John gets sick he starts feeling bad. The doctor gave him some medicine and said if he gets better it will help him and if he doesn't get any worse he will stay about the same.

Mary has a quarter in her stomach, the doctor said she had been drinking to much Nehi Pop and it moved up on her. Everytime grandpa gets a toothache his tooth starts hurting and won't stop until it quits aching.

I would have sent you the money I owe you, but I already had this letter in the mail before I thought of it. I sent you that overcoat but I cut off the buttons so it wouldn't be so heavy. You will find them in the left hand pocket. We are out of jam so I sent John to New York to get some traffic jam, I've put your address on the inside of the envelope so it won't rub off.

My mother-in-law is near deaths door and we're hoping the doctor can pull her thru. June fell off the back porch and bruised her somewhat and skinned her elsewhere. Alice got the mumps and is having a swell time. The baby swallowed a roll of camera film but I don't think anything will develop.

I must close for now. If you don't get this in time to read it let me know and I will mail you a copy. If you can't read my writing make a copy and read your own. It took me three days to write this since you are such a slow reader.

Write me even if it is nothing but a check.

P. S. I would like to describe our new house where everything 'is modern. We have a kitchen, living room and two bedrooms, and there 'a little room upstairs that we just found last week. It's got a thing in it that looks like what we used to water horses in, fancier though. Then there was a little white thing about three feet tall with hot and cool water. It wasn't any good because it had a whole in it. That was to wash your face in. Then there's another thing over in the corner and that's the handiest thing in the house. You can put one foot in and wash it all over, then push a lever and get clean water for the other foot.

Grandpa tried to get a drink out of it and the lid fell and hit him on the head. It has two liks on it. Mom took the solid one to roll pie dough on. The other one has a whole in it so we framed grandpa's picture in it. Everyone says it looks natural, just as if he were setting there.

Article Says Building Costs To Increase

Now Is The Time To Buy And Build Homes

By 1970, prices of new homes will be 20 to 25 percent above today's level, predicts Richard Bullock, editor of Practical Builder, in the June issue of the business magazine for professional builders.

Because of this spiraling costs, he advises young couples to buy a new home "as soon as possible." He points out that more expensive labor and materials are adding about $1,000 a year to the cost of a $20,000 house.

Bullock bases his conclusions on an industry study just completed by M. R. Robinson, manager of the Bureau of Building Marketing Research, the research affiliate of Practical Builder.

Some of the reasons cited for buying or building now are as follows:

(1) Our economy is entering an inflationary period similar to that of the mid-1950's. Home ownership, like other long-term real property, is likely to appreciate faster than other commodities. In short, it's the strongest hedge against inflation.

(2) Available land each year becomes harder to find and develop, so it becomes more expensive.

(3) Earlier purchase of a home, preferably prior to raising a family, pays other dividends. By the time the children are ready for school, school facilities will develop and in all probability the tax burden will be less. Schools built today, like houses, will cost less than those built tomorrow.

Another factor favoring the early purchase of a home is the creation of an estate which will grow in value and can be used as collateral for borrowing for further investments—to raise funds to start a business, to pay for college educations, to reinvest for profit, and to meet the expense of adversities.

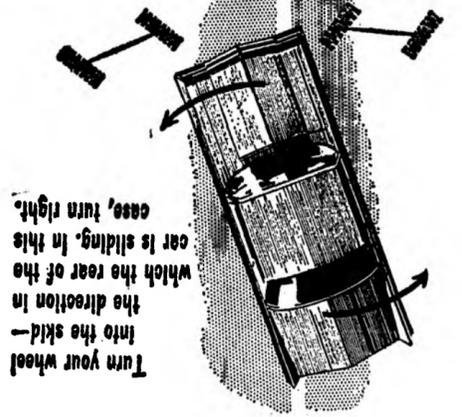

To emphasize the concrete value of home ownership, the Practical Builder story compared two family histories. Both couples were married in 1954.

The first couple bought a $17,000 homes in 1955 which today has a cur

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

WORTH MORE . . . By re-vamping the House and Senate seats and districts, the Legislature in January made them more valuable, more sought-after, more difficult to attain, and more expensive in attainment.

Thus we have seen this year big money spent to get into the Legislature. This is so mainly because some of the areas represented cover more territory than one or two of the Congressional Districts!

In counties like Mecklenburg—ten men in the Legislature—competition has, of course, been exceedingly fierce.

In fact, the biggest eyebrow-raiser of the Primary was the amount some of the hopefuls spent. Nobody realized they were that eager to come back to Raleigh!

EXPENDITURES . . . Some day, come the millennium, somebody will do something about the law outlining the amounts spent to get the office in North Carolina. Or the money wasted in an unsuccessful effort for it. But, until that day, you will find more little white lies—and some of them not so little and not so white—about campaign expenditures than any other phase of politics in the Old North State.

"John, I'm gonna put you down for $25. Will that be all right? Aunt Jane, I've just got to have you listed for $50. That seems like a lot . . . but I've still got about $3,000 to account for . . ."

And so it goes; and so it is sent in to State Secretary Thad Eure. Good old Thad has no choice except to take these expense statements at face value. But, frankly, in most cases it is the joke of the generation.

Nobody pays much attention any more to expense items filed—unless it's the news people looking for ideas in a dull campaign.

MCLEAN HOME . . . When Mrs. Angus W. McLean made out her will, the former Governor's widow specified that the fine old Southern mansion she and her husband had lived in should not be permitted to decay, or be used for business purposes.

In short, it was to be torn down. Thus we find in the center of Lumberton today one of the finest bank buildings in that section of North Carolina rising on the site of the McLean mansion.

Incidentally, the big lions—of marble and concrete—which guarded the entrance to the old Governor McLean Mansion were moved to the home of their son, State Sen. Hector MacLean.

PEARSON HELP? . . . In his column of last Friday—one day before the Primary—Washington Columnist Drew Pearson devoted almost one-half of his nationally distributed thinking to the Fifth District

Although he mentioned Harold Thomerson and William Wood, Smith Bagley and Nick Glinflankis (Pearson got his spelling wrong) got the big treatment.

While he put too many n's in Nick's last name, he boosted the Durham product, says he is "given a chance of winning against the scion of tobacco millions".

But Pearson didn't say when . . . and in five times using Nick's name, he was thoroughly consistent, spelling it wrong each time.

WHAT PIGEON? . . . Speaking to the merchants in Raleigh last week, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale poked a little fun at the professional psychiatrists.

He said they recently held a three-day session at the Statler Hilton Hotel in New York City, which is just across the street from the old Pennsylvania Station, hangout for thousands of pigeons.

Shortly after the meeting began, one of these pigeons got lost, flew into the lobby of the Statler Hilton. But, said Dr. Peale, it was two days before any of the psychiatrists at the convention would admit they saw a pigeon flitting about the lobby.

IN SECOND . . . In the second, you go from second gear into high. That is the way everybody is saying—and secretly hoping—the second Primary in this State will be.

President Johnson, Viet Nam, inflation, the stock market, the decline in automobile sales, etc., have overclouded local political campaign.

The second go-around will come on June 25—four weeks following the first—and there will be new excitement; and in some unexpected places.

DOWN HERE, TOO . . . The automobile manufacturers have been reporting that the safety talk in Washington has slowed down sales of new cars.

Well, in North Carolina for the month of April sales totaled 13,320—down from 20,331 in the month of March. That's the biggest drop we have had in auto sales in many, many months.

Truck sales went from 4,730 in March down to 4,153 in April. Note only a slight decline in truck purchases as against roughly 25 per cent in autos. This would indicate that the auto manufacturers know whereof they speak.

Ford led Chevrolet by 4,001 to 3,640, indicating this was Ford country in April, at least. In third place was Plymouth at 1,265—only a little better than Pontiac with 1,247. Next came Buick at 1,071.

Others: Oldsmobile, 815 — Dodge, 694 — Mercury, 542 — Rambler, 447—Chrysler, 286—Cadillac, 181 — Lincoln, 51—Studebaker, 19 — Willys, 12—Volkswagen, 28.

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

WASHINGTON — One of the challenging problems of our time is the use of natural resources in a manner that will insure a vital civilization in the future. Most of us have spent our lives with little concern about our greatest natural resource—water. Yet every available study in recent years has demonstrated that we will have to be more prudent in the use and treatment of water in the decades ahead.

As a result, Congress now devotes major attention to the use, treatment, and storage of water supplies in virtually every area of the country. The Federal Government has been interested in finding new ways to create potable water since 1962. In 1964, one of the new Federal saline water convention demonstration plants went into operation at Wrightsville Beach in an effort to come up with a low-cost method of converting sea and brackish water into fresh water. Four other Federal facilities are also working on this same problem.

Once water problems were something that Western communities understood, but Easterners learned about only in a "western movie" on Saturday night. This is no longer true, and some of the most severe water shortages have come in recent years to the Eastern seaboard. Moreover, pure water and adequate sewage facilities is a national concern. It has been estimated that updating and modernizing existing U. S. sewage facilities will cost between $20 and $30 billion. The Conference of State Sanitary Engineers says that 5,227 U. S. communities need new, or better, or enlarged sewage facilities. All this does not take into account the expansion of America yet to come and the new demands of the future for both industrial and drinking water.

Currently there are nine bills before the Senate Public Works Special Subcommittee on Air and Water Pollution which seek to bring about a better Federal approach to water pollution. I have cosponsored S. 2947 and have urged the Committee to take favorable action on this measure to aid pollution control for our river basins.

Moore recently, the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee has been studying a bill to establish a National Water Commission, a measure which I have also cosponsored. S. 3107 seeks to establish a seven-member commission of outstanding, non-governmental appointees to develop some long-range water plans and goals. A principal task of the Commission would be to see that Federal funds are wisely used to secure the utmost cooperation by state, local, and industry officials as a means of insuring adequate water supplies.

Five years have elapsed since the late Senator Kerr's Select Committee on National Water Resources recommended Federal action in conjunction with the states and localities in comprehensive water development and management programs, expanded research into all phases of water use and development, and a study of our future water needs while there was yet time. The proposed National Water Commission would implement this far-sighted recommendation, and hopefully it would find the least burdensome way to use the water that we will have in the years ahead.

Washington Report

By CONGRESSMAN JAMES T. BROYHILL

The Minimum Wage bill, one of the major proposals of this Congress, was debated and passed by the House of Representatives last week as three long days of turbulent debate were devoted to hammering out a bill which has been sent to the Senate for its consideration. This new Minimum Wage legislation has had vigorous advocates and equally strong expressions against it by various groups and interests in our economy.

I voted for and supported this legislation. Although the bill, by no means, includes all of the provisions that I would have written into it if I had had a free choice, I feel that it represents a reasonable compromise and that it is far more equitable and moderate than would have been the case if the more drastic legislation that was originally proposed had been adopted.

If we look at the history of the so-called Fair Labor Standards Act it is interesting to note that the first statutory minimum wage was established at 25 cents an hour in 1938. That law applied to all employees who were not specifically exempted. The original law provided that one year later, in 1939, the minimum wage would be raised to 30 cents an hour. It included a procedure whereby the minimum would be raised in stages to a level of 40 cents per hour seven years after the original enactment. The law also established overtime rates of time-and-one half for overtime.

Rates of pay for most employees in the United States have risen far faster than the acts of Congress that have increased the legal minimums. The legislation has followed the processes of our economy rather than leading them. In 1949, the minimum hourly rate was raised from 40 cents to 75 cents and in 1955, another increase jumped the rate from 75 cents to $1.00. The present law sets the minimum standard at $1.25. It became effective late in 1963.

Over the years, minimum wage legislation has helped increase standards of living without substantially curtailing employment or earning power. Although there have been many millions of employees who have not been covered by minimum wage requirements, the legal standards have tended to prevail generally because an employee is free to leave low-paying employment and seek a higher paying job in an industry covered by the minimum wage requirements.

The present law covers slightly less than 30 million of the 60 million wage and salary workers in the United States. There have been good reasons for exempting many of these workers. Some of them are, in fact, in occupations where wage rates are already higher than the minimum-wage level. In still other industries, the seasons nature of activities do not lend themselves to a requirement of the Federal minimums. For some time, there has been an increasing interest in broadening the coverage of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Those who have argued for this change have pointed out that there is a direct relationship between levels of poverty and the exclusion from the protection of the minimum wage law. Among heads of families employed in industries generally covered by the Act, only 5% to 10% have annual incomes under $3,000 in 1963. In industries where employees are partially covered, the figure rises to 8% to 14%. However, in those industries where there is little or no coverage by the Federal Minimum Wage Act, the proportions jump from 33% to 49%. It is sobering when we think of the cost in public welfare assistance that is necessary in order to provide necessities for families with such limited incomes. The choice is not so much whether the minimum wage should be increased and coverage broadened. The choice really is how subsistence or better standards of living should be provided and whether it should be through productive work or by unproductive and costly welfare.

The question as to whether or not this bill is inflationary is also one which we considered very seriously. Still, we see that the most marked price increases have come in the costs of food, housing, and clothing. Thus, for the low-income family, a reduction in purchasing power means a very direct reduction in life's essentials. Those on the lowest rung of the Nation's economic ladder should not be forced to bear the burden of the spend-thrift policies that are firing the flames of inflation.

The new legislation should, in my opinion, have included greater exemptions for farm workers and for some other enterprises which have special problems. However, it does include provisions which will very largely exempt the family type farm operation and most small retail establishments. It will require the large corporate-type farms to pay their labor force according to the Federal minimum.

The new minimums under the bill would be $1.40 per hour to be effective in February 1967 and $1.60 per hour in February, 1969. His formula, too, is a compromise which stretches out the effective date so that the consequences of the bill on the economy would be spread over two and one-half years instead of the shorter time originally proposed.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I was reading in my Farm Journal where they had picked the All-American vegetable for 1965. This piece said the Gold Nugget squash and the Butter King lettuce won top honors in the All-American contest.

It's a fine thing for farmers and ranchers that they was forever coming out with seeds that was stronger and better. The Farm Journal said you could get seed that was about ready to do everything except harvest itself. We got seeds that resist diseases, that grow in wet or dry, rich or pore land. The feller writing this piece in the Farm Journal said the laboratory experts has got to the place they can fit the seed to the job.

I bring this matter up at the country store Saturday night and Ed Doolittle allowed as how our experts has done about everything except improve the human race. Ed reported he had saw where one serial company had come out with corn flakes with dried up strawberries right in the box and all you had to do was add a little milk and the strawberries come back fresh like they was on the vine. Ed said we got stringless string beans, watermelons and oranges without seeds, but up to now they ain't found nothing for his roomatism. He was of the opinion that, until they can pour a little milk over some of us old dried up humans and stir us back 50 year, they was working on the wrong project first.

Zeke Grubb was a little more optimistic about the matter. He said we now got mechanical hearts, was trading eyes and kidneys around, and afore long people would be like cars. You could go down to the parts store, said Zeke, and get replacements for what was ailing you.

Bug Hookum predicted he wouldn't be here when this happened, but he figured when we got people on this production line it would be a heap better if we just had two or three models so's it would be easier to git the parts.

Clem Webster was agreed with Zeke, said the time was coming when fellers our age would be antiques. And he allowed as how he didn't like to talk about it but us old antiques was the only ones that didn't git more valuable with age. It was a odd thing, said Clem, that a feller could buy a bed and sleep in it for 50 year and sell it for a antique for 10 times what it cost. Then he had to spend the money to stay alive on account of he was too old and wore out to work for a living. He was of the opinion, Ed Doolittle not to the contrary, that the Great Society got here just in time.

Like the man said, Mister Editor, I don't know nothing and git that all mixed up, but when I got home from that session Saturday night I couldn't decide whether it was better to be a 50-year old bedstid or a member of the Great Society.

Davie County 4-H Club exhibited Grand Champion and Reserve Grand Champion animals at the Winston-Salem Junior Fat Stock Show and Sale which was held Monday, May 23, at the Dixie Classic Fairgrounds. Randy Boyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Boyer, of the 4-Leaf 4-H Club received $1.00 per pound for his 1,086 pound hereford steer which was bought by K & W Cafeteria in Winston-Salem. Christa Petticord, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Petticord, of the Redland 4-H Club exhibited the Reserve Grand Champion steer that weighed 1,037 pounds and was bought by Bob Neill Pontiac for $4.00 per pound. Larry Boyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Boyer, of the 4-Leaf 4-H Club exhibited 820 pound short horn steer and placed 4th in the county. Roland Lakey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lakey, of the Farmington 4-H Club placed 5th in the county with a 720 pound Angus Steer. Mickey Groce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Groce, of the Farmington 4-H Club, placed 6th and 7th with two Angus Steer weighing 696 and 698 pounds.

Social Security In Davie County

A jury in Federal Court in Memphis, Tennessee on May 12, 1966 reached a verdict of guilty on two counts against a 64-year-old man charged with falsely pretending to be an employee of the Social Security Administration. This was announced today by Robert C. Thomas, District Manager in Salisbury, N. C. Mr. Lewis Green was convicted on two counts of falsely representing himself as an employee of the Social Security Administration and in such pretended character obtained the sums of $220 and $140. The violation occurred in 1964 and 1965. United States District Judge Marion Boyd sentenced Green to three years imprisonment on each count, the sentences to run concurrently. Judge Boyd also fined Green $250 on each of the two counts. Prior to sentencing Green, Judge Boyd stated that he was in complete agreement with the verdict of the jury, and he felt that the evidence presented was overwhelming in favor of Mr. Green's guilt.

Ijames Crossroads

By ANN BOYD

On Monday, May 23 Ijames softball team played Center team at Center. Larry Tutterow did the pitching and at the end of five innings, the score was 5 to 5. The bat of a big man named Daywalt who hit a home run into the pine trees proved to be their undoing and they lost to Center with a score of 9 to 7. It was a very exciting game for a spectator to watch.

On May 26 the team played Fork at Ijames field. Larry Gaitner and Larry Tutterow shared the pitching with good reliable "Cotton" Edwards doing the catching. Going into the top of the 7th inning, Ijames led the Fork team in the score of 8 to 5. It was raining and the field got so slick that the game had to be called before it was completed. The ladies under the direction of "Mama" Lanier sold hot dogs, soft drinks, and cake. In spite of the rain, everything was a success.

The Ijames team will play Blaise at the home field on Monday, June 6th. All games begin at 6 p. m.

Preparation day for the Vacation Bible School at Ijames Church will be at 9 a. m. on Friday, June 3. On Monday, June 6 they will begin at 9 a. m. and will continue through Friday. All children are invited to attend.

A Baptismal service was held Sunday at 11 a. m. at the J. C. Craffin Jr. lake. Those who were baptised into Ijames Baptist Church were: Miss Billie Pearl Snow, Miss Amy Snow, Miss Dinah Johnson, Gary Edwards and Samuel White.

Seven girls from the Mocksville area will be presented to society at the twelfth annual Sub-Debutante Ball to be held in Lexington the evening of Tuesday, June 7.

The YMCA will furnish the setting for the event which is considered one of the city's most outstanding social events of each year. The ball attracts a large number of parents and friends to see the young ladies make their debut. There will be 72 girls presented, all high school seniors, from Lexington, Thomasville, Mocksville and Davidson County.

"The Monzas", a popular combo, has been engaged to provide background music for the gala occasion. Presentation of Debs is scheduled to start at 8:30 p. m. Dancing for everyone will follow at approximately 10:30 and will continue until 12.

The Charity League of Lexington sponsors this event.

The League will entertain on Monday, June 6, at a morning tea for the Sub-Debs and their mothers at the home of Dr. and Mrs. James Welborn. That evening, an informal picnic supper for the girls and one escort will be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Klynt Ripple. Rehearsal will follow at the Y at 7:30 p. m.

Girls from Davie County, their parents and escorts are as follows:

Martha Susan Collette, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Collette, Salisbury Street, Mocksville, with James Nolan Laird and Robert Monroe Collette.

Vickie Davis, Mrs. Terry Bernard Foster of Route 4, and the late George Wyatt Davis, with Tim Davis and Brent Edward Coleman.

Judy Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Ellis, Route 3, with Eddie Merrell and Danny McDaniel.

Nancy Grubbs, Mrs. Paul Grubbs and the late Mr.

Grubbs, with Joe Mando and Tony Lyerly.

Yvonne Mabe, Mr. and Mrs. Toscoe Mabe, 513 Wilkesboro Street, Mocksville, with Steve Whitaker and Edgar Ray Mabe.

Kae Smith, R. C. Smith, Jr. of Mocksville, and Mrs. R. E. Weavil, Sr. of Ft. Myers, Fla., with Dickie Chandler, Jr. and Jimmy McCoy.

Beverly Tomlinson, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Tomlinson, with Gordon Tomlinson and Ricky Jones.

This may not be news to everyone but I am sure there are many who have never seen wood cocks here. On Sunday evening while driving with my family, some strange birds were in the road that did not try to move out. We stopped the car and found a mother wood hen with three chicks. The mother had a bill almost two inches long and the chicks also had long beaks that looked very odd.

REDLAND

The regular Redland 4-H Club met May 12 at the Scout Hut. Twila Handlin called the meeting to order after which Roberta Handlin led us in the pledges and a song. Carol Sparks and Jean Leonard had devotions.

Secretary, Christa Petticoord, called out the roll. The members responded by telling their favorite summer sport. Chris then recognized our two new 4-H members. They were Patsy Dull and Linda Byrd.

Old business was discussion on the Talent, Flower, and Dog Show. New business was the discussion of 4-H Sunday and the coming year activities.

Our program was Horse Demonstrations by Christa Petticoord and Debbie Bingham.

Debbie Bingham then had recreation. Jean Leonard and the Handlin's served refreshments which was enjoyed by all.

BAILEY'S CHAPEL

The Bailey's Chapel 4-H Club held its regular meeting May 10, 1966 at 7:00 p. m. We met at Mrs. Paul Robertson to set out our flowers. Then we went to the Bailey's Chapel Church to have our meeting. The devotions and pledges were led by Jimmy Wilson. The parts were given out for 4-H Sunday; refreshments were served by Pam, Leon, and Cecil Robertson which were enjoyed by all.

Beautification

Widespread interest in the 4-H Community Beautification program has prompted a substantial increase in 1966 state and national awards, the National 4-H Service Committee has announced.

This year The Sears-Roebuck Foundation, the program sponsor, will provide six national $500 scholarships in place of two given last year. Trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago will be increased from eight to 50, one per state.

The current 4-H program ties into the Youth for Natural Beauty program launched last year from Washington, D. C. in ceremonies presided over by Secretary of Agriculture Oville L. Freeman, and representatives of 4-H and other youth groups.

Among recent 4-H prize-winning projects was one that cleaned up, dressed up and lighted up a rural Oklahoma town of 194 residents. Another included tearing down unused farm buildings to make way for landscaping. Transforming an old farm house to a community showplace was also an award winner.

Additional projects suggested are: revive Arbor Day and remove dead or diseased trees; clear away trash and weeds; conduct home and community clean-up campaigns; repair and paint rural mail boxes, road signs, fences and outbuilding; help landscape school and church areas, fairgrounds.

Many jobs are undertaken by the club as a whole. However, the scope, time & money involved often enlists aid of the entire community. But 4-H boys and girls plan, campaign and carry out the work.

The Sears-Roebuck Foundation will offer a certificate to the 10 most outstanding clubs in the state, and a $25 cash prize for the best beautification job done in a single county.

Besides state and national awards for club members, there will be handsome medals for county winners.

Enrollment last year in the community beautification program totaled 173,450 boys and girls in 50 states, and of this number 1,148 qualified for county medals, according to the National 4-H Service Committee which distributes the awards.

All winners are named by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Library News

"Summer Sports" are in the forefront (literally), for that is the theme of the display in the vestibule case at the Davie County Public Library. If you enjoy sports actively or just as a watcher on the side-lines or as a reader, you will want to see some of these books.

The movie shown Monday night in the library's multi-purpose room was well attended, and the viewers were very complimentary. The next Monday night movies will be "Nahanni" and "The Red Balloon" on June 27 and will appeal to the children and grown-ups who bring them!

Don't forget! Story Hour and Reading Program are special summer services for Davie County Children at their library. The Story Hour is for children age 4 through the third grade. It will be every Thursday morning, starting June 2, from ten to eleven o'clock.

Now Is The Time To Buy And Build Homes

rent market value of $22,500—on a 20-year $15,000 mortgage at 5 percent interest. The $99-a-month payments during the first ten years have totaled $11,880—$4,668 of which represents the couple's equity, $6,212 interest.

The second couple rented a five-room apartment, initially for $100 a month. With steadily increasing rents, the monthly rental has averaged $138, for a total of $16,554—and no equity.

It was also pointed out that buying a home has been proven to make owners more responsible, and that their desire to improve their lives makes them better financial risks and job-holders and leads to higher family incomes.

ELBAVILLE

Miss Anne Essex is spending a few days at home before returning to summer school at ASTC at Boone.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Coulter and baby of Raleigh, spent Friday night with Mrs. Coulter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ellis. They were enroute to Greenville, S. C.

Davie Motorists Warned

Watch For School Buses

Beginning Monday June 13, the summer school programs will begin at the Mocksville Elementary School. Motorist should be extremely careful since buses will be operating on many of the dirt roads as well as the main arteries.

Many of these children standing along the roads will be pre-school children who will be attending the Headstart program so please exercise caution when passing these groups of students. Many of these routes are long, and buses in some localities may be on the road as early as 7:00 A. M. or as late as 4:00 P. M.

These programs will be operating through August 5.

Harley Graves Joins Bank In Rocky Mount

Harley P. Graves will join the staff of Planters National Bank and Trust Co. at Rocky Mount tomorrow as senior vice president in charge of the bank's commercial operations.

"He will be known in banking circles as Rocky Mount city executive," Archie W. McLean, president of Planters National, said in announcing Graves' election as an officer of the bank.

Graves terminated a long association with North Carolina National Bank May 31. He was a vice president and manager of loans and marketing in the bank's Winston-Salem operations at the time of his resignation.

He started his banking career as assistant cashier and manager of the credit department of First National Bank of Winston-Salem, which subsequently was absorbed in a merger with North Carolina National Bank.

He advanced to loan officer and assistant trust officer. He was personnel officer for a time before he was elected vice president.

A native of Mocksville, Graves attended the University of Alabama. Following military service, he was with Dun and Bradstreet as service and reporting manager before he switched to banking.

In Winston-Salem Graves has been an active member of the Chamber of Commerce, having served as chairman of several committees. He has participated in other civic and organizational affairs, including work as a member of the Forsyth County Mental Council and of the committee conducting the Forsyth County alcoholics rehabilitation program. He is a member of the executive committee of the North Carolina Bankers Association.

Graves' wife and two young daughters will continue to live at the home in Meadowbrook at Clemmons until they can complete arrangements to move to Rocky Mount.

46th Masonic District Sets Special Service

University Days For Homemakers

"Defensive Driving" and "Landscaping" are two classes being featured at University Days For Homemakers, June 22 and 23, at the University of North Carolina campus at Greensboro.

Sponsored by the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, University Days For Homemakers is geared especially to the needs of homemakers in Northwest North Carolina. All women are invited to attend.

"Defensive Driving" will be instructed by R. Layton Guthrie of the State Motor Vehicle Department. In his class, Mr. Guthrie will place emphasis on the individual's responsibility in defensive driving, how to drive and watch out for the other fellow, and the role of homemakers in highway safety.

Charles O. Bell, superintendent of grounds at the Greensboro campus, will instruct the landscaping course. He has been on campus since the summer of 1959 and the results of his work can be seen at every turn. Bell, a native of Tennessee, was a horticulturist at the University of Chicago and was in design and sales work with a Columbus, Ohio, horticultural firm before coming to UNC-G.

He has a bachelor of science degree in ornamental horticulture from Ohio State University, where he was a member of honorary academic societies related to this field. Bell has been active with the Piedmont Nurserymen's Association and serves as its secretary-treasurer. He is a frequent contributor of articles to journals on horticultural planning, design, and maintenance and has given speeches to professional and general audiences.

Two Wrecks Occur Monday In Davie

An accident involving one car occurred three miles just outside of Mocksville, Monday evening, June 6, at 6:15 p. m. when a 1953 Ford's right front tire blew out, causing the driver, James Larry McDaniel of Mocksville, Rt. 4, to lose control and run off the right side of the road and strike a fence.

Investigating officer, K. N. Bolick said damages to the vehicle amounted to $100.

Two cars were involved in an accident on U. S. 168, four miles west of Mocksville, Monday, June 6, around 2:25 p. m. when a vehicle, operated by Jasper Lee Bowles of Mocksville, stopped in the roadway waiting for oncoming traffic to go by so he could make a left turn into rural road 1410. He was struck from behind by a vehicle operated by John Crisp Brown of Rt. 2, Mocksville. The impact occurred in an east bound lane near the edge of the road. The left door of Brown car struck the right rear corner of the tall gate on the Bowles Car.

Mr. Bowles was driving a 1959 blue Chevrolet and Mr. Brown's car was a 1964 White and Red Chevrolet.

Investigating officer K. N. Bolick said that the Bowles' vehicle stop light and turn signal both worked after the collision, although he was giving an arm signal at the time of the accident. Damage to the 1964 Chevrolet was $200 and $10 to the 1959 Chevrolet.

Tattle-Tales

By Gordon Tomlinson

No one loves horse racing any better than R. C. Basinger. It just about was more than he could take when he had to miss the big televised races on recent past Saturday afternoons.

Last Saturday Mr. Basinger planned for a big weekend. He told friends he was going to the beach... take his television set... and enjoy not only the water, sun and fun... but the horse racing on Saturday afternoon.

"I have already checked the television schedule and almost all the TV stations are carrying racing at 4 p. m. Saturday", he told a friend.

So to the beach he went. He could hardly wait for 4 p. m. Saturday afternoon. He checked and rechecked the television schedules all the stations of that area were carrying "racing" at 4 p. m.

Mr. Basinger got ready. He went into his room. Settled back into his easy chair and lit his favorite pipe... and waited impatiently for the 4 p. m. racing.

Well... racing came on at 4 p. m. but it wasn't horse racing. It was auto racing from California.

It is said that Mr. Basinger spent the remainder of the weekend walking around, muttering to himself.

And speaking of horses... Frank Short, Jr. had a "horsey" experience during the final days of school.

On the day the students were allowed to wear Bermuda shorts, Frank rode his horse to school. He wore some old clothes and when he hitched his horse in the woods back of the football field, he left these old clothes and changed into his Bermudas.

He was taking an exam when someone notified him that his horse had gotten loose. Frank, and his friend Hank Ridge immediately began to search. As it had rained the night before, the two boys tracked the horse back along the trail that Frank had ridden earlier. Along the way they found bits of Frank's clothes, and later the saddle and blanket that had fallen off.

When they reached the Turrentine Road... they were two tired and muddy boys. Frank went into a store and called his mother and learned that the horse had just come into the yard.

Softball League

Results of play in the Mocksville Recreation Softball League last week were as follows:

Faniel Furniture defeated Arnold's Garage 9 to 7. Winning pitcher was Bob Lookabill. Leading hitters were J. Lookabill, B. Russ, and J. Beal. Scott was the losing pitcher. C. Barker had 3 for 4 for Arnolds.

Heritage defeated Ingersoll-Rand 9 to 3. K. Riddle was the winning pitcher. Eddie Beal had 3 for 3 to lead the hitting. For Ingersoll-Rand, L. Potts was the losing pitcher. Frank Cox had 2 for 3 to lead the hitting.

Heritage defeated Arnold's Garage 11 to 3. K. Riddle was the winning pitcher. D. Collins and K. Howell were the leading hitters. For Arnold's, C. Barker was losing pitcher. Leading hitters were C. Barker, C. Studevent and G. Clement.

Daniel Furniture defeated Monleigh 7 to 2. B. Lookabill was the winning pitcher. No one on the Daniel team got more than one hit. For Monleigh, W. Draughn and Blankenship led the hitting with 2 for 3 each.

The typical heart attack victim is an obese, cigarette smoking man with high blood pressure and cholesterol fat. The North Carolina Heart Association says. It does not follow that a slim non-smoking woman with low blood fats and low blood pressure can not have a heart attack. Have a heart-to-heart talk with your family doctor about your heart attack risk factors — and then follow your doctor's advice.

The leading goal of heart research, such as that underwritten by the Heart Fund, is to unmask the basic causes of hypertension and atherosclerosis. Once the basic causes are known, it seems reasonable to believe that new methods of prevention, treatment, and even cure may follow.

1816 Was A Famous Cold Year

Summer Skipped New England

Summer never came at all in the dismal year of "eighteen-hundred-and-froze-to-death."

The chilly spring of 1966 was nothing compared to that of 1816. The weather 150 years ago turned New England into a frigid disaster area, the National Geographic Society says.

Heavy frosts were recorded every month, a blizzard struck in June, ice storms coated trees in July, birds froze, hundreds of cattle and sheep died, crops failed, farmers perished in snowdrifts.

Scholars variously blamed a volcanic eruption and sunspots for the cold, bleakly speculating what would happen if "the sun should become tired of illuminating this gloomy planet."

Curiously, the cold year started with an unseasonably warm January, according to the Old Farmer's Almanac. Three days in May also were abnormally warm. In Salem, Massachusetts, the temperature rose to 101 degrees on May 23.

In June, things changed drastically. Salem's temperature dropped from 92 degrees to 42 degrees overnight. It snowed in many parts of the state. On June 7 a foot of snow blanketed Williamstown.

During the next few days, there were severe frosts every night as far south as Virginia. Snow fell all across New England, in New York, and Ohio.

On June 15, the Danville (Vermont) North Star reported that "on the night of the 6th water froze an inch thick, and on the night of the 7th and morning of the 8th a kind of sleet or exceedingly cold snow fell, attended by high wind, and measured in places where it drifted 18 to 20 inches in depth. . . . The shoots of leaves of forest trees which were just putting forth, and corn and garden vegetables that were out of the ground were mostly killed."

A Vermont farmer ventured out in the midst of the storm to tend his sheep. As he went out the door, he said jokingly to his wife, "If I am not back in an hour, call the neighbors and start them after me. June is a bad month to get buried in the snow." Three days later searchers found his frozen body.

So many birds were frozen that relatively few were seen in New England the next few years. One farmer regularly brought orioles into his kitchen to warm them up.

In many parts of New England, the vital corn crop failed. Those who managed to raise some food helped their neighbors. The inscription on a gravestone in Ashland, New Hampshire, reads: "Son of a Revolutionary Soldier, a pioneer of this town. Cold Season of 1816 raised 40 bushels of wheat on this land which kept his family and neighbors from starvation."

The sun that chill year of 1816 rose every morning red and rayless, as in a cloud of smoke. Scientists thought the sun may have been obscured by a globe-girdling cloud of volcanic dust thrown up by the tremendous eruption of Tamboro, in the East Indies, in April of the year before.

Dudley Leavitt, a 19th-century astronomer and almanac maker, attributed the weather to a large number of sunspots. Present-day meteorologists speculate that a combination of volcanic dust and sunspots may indeed have caused "eighteen-hundred-and-froze-to-death."

June 14th and on business houses Civic and other organizations honor the day.

This is the anniversary of the day on which the Continental Congress formally adopted the Stars and Stripes as the flag of the United States 1777. Since the first public observance of the anniversary in 1897, the day has come to be widely recognized, chiefly by displaying the flag on all public buildings and in public places, along the streets, and residences. Patriotic, Civic and other organizations honor the day.

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

WASHINGTON — One of the crime control and law enforcement bills on the Congressional calendar is the Federal bail reform bill. The Senate-approved measure gives judicial authorities new administrative techniques to handle pretrial releases of criminal suspects.

The measure which I introduced in the Senate on March 4, 1965, passed the Senate September 21, and is calendared for House action this week. Earlier this year, it became one of the Administration's nine anti-crime & law enforcement proposals. Most of the other proposals relating to police training, civil commitment of narcotics addicts, and unification of Federal prison rehabilitation functions are in the hearing stage.

The object of the bill is simple. It undertakes to apply new standards for the release of defendants in the pre-trial period. Most crimes are bailable upon the setting of a bond by judicial authorities. But financial worth is the main yardstick now in determining whether the accused shall be released pending trial.

Until recent years the bail system's weaknesses got little public attention. In May 1964, however, a National Conference on Bail in Washington focused study on bail and its problems. Out of the conference came a recommendation that legislation be adopted to give the courts new alternatives in setting bail.

The purpose of bail is to produce the accused in court for trial. To carry out this objective, the courts set a bond which the accused gives to guarantee by cash or property his appearance to answer criminal charges made against him. As it has worked out in practice, the indigent is often forced to stay in jail pending trial while a co-defendant having some financial security can be released from jail.

The Senate Judiciary Committee began work on bail reform in 1964. The hearings revealed that other factors ought to be taken into consideration in releasing suspects. Charitable foundations demonstrated that by careful screening for pre-trial release, a better bail system could be based upon an individual's character and his community ties and personal traits evidencing stability. Persons released on smaller cash deposits who had the requisite character traits came to court as well or better than those released on security bonds alone.

The result of these studies showed that the new proposals made jails less crowded and the taxpayers were relieved of the burden of supporting many pre-trial defendants. These defendants were often able to continue their employment and support of their families pending trial.

Pre-trial release of selected indigent defendants also serves justice by permitting the accused to prepare his defense, confer with counsel, and be at liberty until the court judges his case.

S. 1337 incorporates these ideas into a series of provisions to reform the bail system. Still the bill does not take a soft approach to the hardened criminal or the socially hazardous suspect or the defendant that the court feels will use pre-trial release to flee. Nor does the measure apply to Federal capital felonies. The measure still relies on the court to weigh the risks and determine what bail shall be, and it has provisions for stiff fines or imprisonment for defendants who abuse the system.

What the measure attempts to do is to offer the judiciary some needed alternatives in dealing with defendants who have no money, but are otherwise entitled to be released to await trial.

So This Is New York

By NORTH CALLAHAN

New York is literally having its ups and downs in regard to aerial transportation. For years, travellers have complained of the time it takes to get to and from local airports to the heart of Manhattan. Not long ago, Vice President Hubert Humphrey arrived here late for a speech—which for him is a major disaster—and said the reason was that it took longer for him to get in to town from the airport than it did to fly from Washington to New York. He was right. So Panam airlines did something about it, starting helicopter service from atop their tall building in midtown, which cut the time from the international airport from 45 minutes on the ground to seven minutes by air.

This seemed just fine. Those of us who fly out of the big burg once in awhile, which is a relief in itself, were gratified to know that here at long last was a solution for the commuting to and fro. But we reckoned without the insomniacs who live around Grand Central Station. One would think they would be used to anything in the way of noise and bustle by now. It is the world's busiest traffic section and I know from spending the night there, that noises such as backfiring taxis can awaken you with shotgun loudness at any time during the night. These cliff-dwellers, perhaps envious of those fortunate ones winging their way outward, have put up such a howl that it has been heard all the way to the state legislature in Albany, and steps there are being taken to curtail or even do away with, the fine new helicopter service to the airports. We cannot wish these strident dissenters a happy landing. It is hoped that helicopters can be made less noisy—as well as their critics.

Ever since last December 21st when we were given a fine Christmas present of this new aerial service, hundreds of passengers a day have simply checked their bags at a counter in the Pan American Building, ridden the world's fastest elevators to the 57th floor, proceeded to the roof and then took the helicopters. The "chopper" carries 25 passengers and 7,500 pounds of baggage and is the type used by the Marine Corps, but for commercial service, instead of containing leathernecks, it has a soft carpet and a pretty stewardess. As it leaves its "pad", the copter, somewhat noisily one must admit, makes its way above the crags and canyons of New York's skyscrapers and through a scene unlike any other in the world. From 1,200 feet up, the passengers have a quick but imposing look at the Chrysler Building, the United Nations and the bridges from Manhattan to Queens and Brooklyn, all at a marvelously close range. With its low altitude and its gentle cruising speed, the helicopter takes its occupants on a colorful sightseeing tour as well as to the airport. Many people think the ride over the myriad lights at night is better than that in the daytime.

Here is one answer to the traffic problem on the ground, with which cities are struggling and none more than here. Anything with so much power and directness is bound to be noisy, just as the quietest jets still are. And anyone can sympathize with those people who live in the area where the helicopters travel and have their sleep interrupted. But this seems minor compared to the great benefit which the new service has brought, to say nothing of the valuable time saved in transit.

When our prisons punish dope addicts for the crimes their addiction cause and turn them back to society where the pattern will repeat itself, there has been no net gain. In fact, since we know that each narcotic addict in the course of his life spreads his addiction to many others, there is a severe net loss as we also increase the traffic through the "revolving doors" of our prisons. It would seem, then, that if addicts enter hospitals under a civic commitment, we can hope that they will stay long enough to obtain the maximum results of the hospitalization. Perhaps then we will see a reversal of the discouraging experience at the hospital in Lexington where out of 1,900 addicts discharged, 90% returned to the drug habit.

As this bill was debated, one serious point of argument developed about whether those selling drugs should also be allowed the benefits of this legislation. It was my strong feeling and that of a majority of members that those who traffic in drugs are guilty of a crime so serious that there should be no relaxation of the present minimum mandatory sentences now provided in the Federal law.

It is these stiff penalties against the sellers of drugs that are a strong deterrent to drug traffic today. To reduce the penalties now would be, I feel, most unwise and would undo much of the good that this bill might accomplish otherwise.

In recent months, we have had reports of encouraging developments in the treatment of narcotics addiction. It is still too early to predict that miracle cures for this age-old scourge are within our reach. Nevertheless, the progress is reassuring. It may not be unfounded optimism to believe that this legislation in combination with medical science can restore even larger numbers of young people from being damaged by the drug habit.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Congressman James T. Broyhill

DRUG ADDICTION

Narcotics addiction is one of the world's oldest and most vicious habits. Statistics show that addiction and drug peddling are on the rise in this country and that they affect startling numbers of young people at the college and high school age. The wreckage in lives destroyed cannot be calculated. Neither can the amount of crime that is the direct result of the addicts' drive to do anything necessary to obtain drugs or to get the money to buy them. Last week, the House of Representatives turned its attention to legislation intended to deal with one aspect of this problem.

This new legislation is a marked departure in Federal law from what has prevailed. However, it is certainly not an entirely new idea since several of the States have already taken the lead in doing the same thing in situations where the States have jurisdiction.

Under this bill, addicts charged with or convicted of a Federal crime, may be committed to the custody of the Surgeon General of the United States for treatment and rehabilitation. At first glance, this seems to trade a conviction for a cure. However, as the bill was passed in its final form, safeguards and restrictions were written in without damaging the positive results we hope to achieve through the legislation. One of the most significant provisions is that the offender will not escape punishment for a crime of violence.

Drug addiction is intimately associated with a variety of criminal behavior. In some of our larger cities, as many as 50% of the crimes committed involve users of narcotics. The pattern, while still largely concentrated in cities, is tending to spread into non-urban areas as well.

As Congress studied this legislation, it was increasingly clear that the difficulties of combatting addiction are immense. The Federal government maintains two hospitals now, at Lexington, Kentucky, & at Fort Worth, Texas, where voluntary treatment can be obtained. Addicts in considerable numbers receive care there. However, since the Federal government cannot keep them hospitalized against their will, the effectiveness of the treatment is greatly reduced and credence is given to the old belief that addicts cannot be cured. If the Public Health Service Hospitals are part of a "revolving-door process," their usefulness is greatly decreased.

When our prisons punish dope addicts for the crimes their addiction cause and turn them back to society where the pattern will repeat itself, there has been no net gain. In fact, since we know that each narcotic addict in the course of his life spreads his addiction to many others, there is a severe net loss as we also increase the traffic through the "revolving doors" of our prisons. It would seem, then, that if addicts enter hospitals under a civic commitment, we can hope that they will stay long enough to obtain the maximum results of the hospitalization. Perhaps then we will see a reversal of the discouraging experience at the hospital in Lexington where out of 1,900 addicts discharged, 90% returned to the drug habit.

As this bill was debated, one serious point of argument developed about whether those selling drugs should also be allowed the benefits of this legislation. It was my strong feeling and that of a majority of members that those who traffic in drugs are guilty of a crime so serious that there should be no relaxation of the present minimum mandatory sentences now provided in the Federal law.

It is these stiff penalties against the sellers of drugs that are a strong deterrent to drug traffic today. To reduce the penalties now would be, I feel, most unwise and would undo much of the good that this bill might accomplish otherwise.

In recent months, we have had reports of encouraging developments in the treatment of narcotics addiction. It is still too early to predict that miracle cures for this age-old scourge are within our reach. Nevertheless, the progress is reassuring. It may not be unfounded optimism to believe that this legislation in combination with medical science can restore even larger numbers of young people from being damaged by the drug habit.

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

RESULTS . . . Now that the people-the Democrats, at least—have had an opportunity to have a personal part, via the ballot, in revamping of House and Senate seats, what are some of the results?

- 1. About 20 of the 100 counties have lost House seats.
- 2. There is some bitterness between large and small counties.
- 3. In future votes—particularly in the Primary—the small counties (those with small voting strength) will endeavor to "gang up" on the large fellows.
- 4. More block-voting.
- 5. A gradual but sure gain in Republican strength.
- 6. The loss of some able men in the Legislature.
- 7. General dissension, jealousy, envy, back-biting among grassroots level Democrats in many areas of the State.

NO SUCH ANIMAL . . . With Nick Gallifanakis having Durham County to himself in the Fifth District Primary and Smith Bagley having to share Forsyth County with two opponents, the Durham resident led the ticket in the first vote.

How will it go in the second? Well, it is mostly according to which side does the better job of getting people to the polls. In the first time around, schools were not out, vacations had not started, and you had literally scores of other candidates of various kinds running for office. But, despite that, the vote was tight.

On June 25, Gallifanakis and Bagley—with one or two possible exceptions—will have the field to themselves. If there was little turnout at the first Primary, what will it be like in the second?

More and more, it's beginning to look like a down-to-the-wire race between Camel and Chesterfield, with Lucky Strike looming in the background. But Durham does not have the big-city, metropolitan outlook that Winston-Salem—two times an All-American City—has come up with in recent years. Also, keep an eye on Reidsville!

Durham is more clanish, in the first test, 80 per cent of Durham County's vote went to Gallifanakis (oh, how fortunate for him that you don't have to spell out his name in order to drop one in for him!). Now about losing Candidates Harold Thomerson and William Z. Wood of Winston-Salem declaring their "neutrality" between the two candidates in the runoff. That's a joker out of the bottom of the deck.

Were the situation reversed—and they were living in Durham and coming out "neutral"—Durham people from shine boy to millionaire would right now be on their backs. They would be all but ostracized and banished from the region.

Their endorsement of Smith Bagley would almost assure his victory. This beging so, their "neutrality" is a tremendous blow to Bagley and, of course, an equal boost for Gallifanakis down in Durham.

It reminds one of the old John Raskob-Al Smith days. North Carolina Democrats could not stomach the vot Democratic Presidential nominee. So, loyal Democrats that they were, they said they would just stay away from the polls come Election Day in 1928. But the anti-Smith boys said that staying away from the polls—remaining neutral—would constitute half a vote for Al Smith. He was for the legal sale of whiskey, you know, that would never do. Sooo, North Carolina went for Herbert Hoover.

There is just no such thing as "neutrality" in the Fifth District this time—and nobody knows it better than Wood and Thomerson. Their position constitutes half-a-vote for Gallifanakis. And that's just one of the many reasons why things look so, so close at this time in the Fifth.

WHAT THEN? And, to add to the confusion, do some thinking on this: Durham has only been a part of the Fifth District for five months. The Federal Court have said the Legislature's reapportionment is all right. However, they said the Congressional redistricting must be redone in a couple of years.

If Nick is nominated—as he might well be—and Durham is thrown back into the Sixth District or into the next door Fourth, what then?

HELP? . . . There is a saying heard now and then to this effect: "I can look after my enemies, but Lord protect me from my friends!"

No doubt Harold Cooley feels that way.

In 1964, R. Mayne Albright, Raleigh attorney, ran against the Fourth District Congressman in the Democratic Primary. Seldom has anybody in these parts—where we hear everything—heard a cussing-out as Albright gave Brother Cooley in that campaign. His words literally fried. This from a fellow Democrat, an old party buddy.

But, came the Primary, things were, alas, not so bright for Albright. Cooley cooled him in the tune of 48,275 to 33,314. In this last go between Cooley and Bill Creech, the House Agriculture chairman fared even worse, cusswise. It did seem at times as if Harold had diabetes (sugar in the blood), had put the whole U. S. Mint in his pocket, and had designing eyes on Fort Knox. And, mind you, Creech and Cooley are both good Democrats, fellow laborers in the vineyard. Cooley took Creech as he had Good Friend Albright. But it is no wonder his grin was dry as he shook a damp Creech hand of congratulations after the vote was in.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

Back in the good old days, afore the Supreme Court took over the law-making business and started running the country, June was the month for brides. But it looks like this generation ain't got no respect for the traditions of their ancestors. I was reading a piece in the papers yesterday where August was running first in the bride business and June was second.

The wimmen folks was to blame for this disrespect for June on account of they always set the wedding date. I was complaining about this matter to my old lady last night and she allowed as how it was a woman's right to git wed in whatever month suited her fancy and she would prefer not to hear no comment from the men on the subject. I took the hint and sneaked out the back door.

In case you ain't took note of it, Mister Editor, wimmen was gitting to be a major social problem in this country. They was working in them Nevada gambling points stripped to the waist, running for Governor in Georgia, and trying to join the Marine Core in Florida.

And I saw where one girl that was graduating from high school reported she aimed to pick out the college that suited her hairdo and had the best record for demonstrating.

I got a heap of sympathy fer that Methodist preacher in one of them big cities the other Sunday. He cancelled his scheduled sermon on "The Women—And What Should Be Done About Them" and replaced it with a discussion on "What To Do About The Devil." I reckon he figured it was advisable to tackle the easier problems afore taking on the tougher ones.

Outside of all this nonsense about wimmen, the papers has been full of interesting items lately. I see, for instance, where General DeGaulle was gitting mighty mad on account of we ain't moving no faster to git our troops out of France. My Pa used to say it didn't take much to make a little child happy or a little man mad.

And I was reading where they was 3,000 students from South Viet Nam that was completing their education in France this June and they had refused to go back home. They was bad needed back home to help educate their countrymen. But they aim to let us do it—and pay for it.

A column writer from Moscow was reporting last week that they was thousands of Russians without shoes. That's what they git ter not being God's chillun and I ain't got no sympathy fer 'em.

And Lyndon says soaring prices and wages was going to wreck our "guidelines." That would be true perviding we had any guidelines.

Yours truly, Uncle Dave

Many Did Not Want To Come To U. S.

1972 Olypic Games Set For Munich

The announcement recently that Munich was to be the site of the 1972 summer Olympics and Japan the site of the winter games caused consternation in some U. S. circles. Detroit had been bidding for the games for the eighth time.

Americans must look at the recent selection objectively. And one reason the committee did not award the games to the motor city is that many simply didn't want to come to the United States.

Of course, the decision was based on sports and technical and other relevant considerations to a large extent but it is nevertheless true also that the foreigner's image of typical American industrial metropolis is not a flattering one.

Our cultural attractions are certainly limited and prices are higher for foreigners than in many other countries (Munich prices are comparatively high, also). That is part of the reason we attract such a small number of foreign tourists, compared to the number we would attract if we drew visitors at a rate comparable to some of the European countries, for example.

The United tates could become a holiday paradise for vacationers, with its many beaches and mountain resorts, but such an image must be carefully sold to foreigners, who have too long seen only the seamy side of American life, race riots, city slums, and a culture-less, dollarchase way of living, portrayed in Hollywood films, on television, and by so many writers.

Raising hogs is traditional with rural 4-H members. But production methods have undergone many changes.

Young 4-H'ers on farms are urged to start a swine project. Reasons why were set forth by Dave Williams, extension 4-H livestock specialist at the University of Nebraska in an article published recently.

He pointed out that it does not require as much money to handle several pigs as it does larger livestock. With the fast turnover of pigs compared to beef cattle, the youth gains experience more rapidly and learns to assume responsibility of animals at an early age.

Said Williams: "Pigs are good for the beginner to work with because they are small and the smartest of all farm animals. They respond well to proper training, important to the youngster who is not big enough to handle a larger animal such as a calf."

He reported that in Nebraska (the 6th highest ranking state in 1965 hog production) hogs are considered "mortgage lifters" for farmers. For 4-H'ers a swine project can be "just as valuable by making possible a college education or a start as a swine producer."

Also on the plus side are scholarships and educational trips given by Moorman Mfg. Co., Quincy, Ill., the program sponsor for the last nine years. Awards are presented for the best swine projects in the nation, state and county.

Two to five pigs make a good nucleus for a market swine project, Williams said, and a breeding project should begin with one bred gilt. Additional pigs to be fed and cared for will come when the gilt farrows.

He also reminds the 4-H'ers that record keeping is a necessary part of the project, just as it is with commercial swine producers. Records should begin as soon as the 4-H'er unloads his pigs into the home lot. Feed costs are one of the most important items, as is keeping records up-to-date.

Meanwhile, thousands of older 4-H Club members across the nation have built their swine projects into commercial operations. One of the six national $500 scholarship winners last year was Lyle Paul, 19, of Bushnell, Ill. (the 2nd highest hog producing state) who started with two gilts in 1960. His 1965 project consisted of 600 head with a gross profit of $7,000.

He attributes his success in part to purchasing boars from a testing station where gains and littermate cut-out records are known. This knowledge and other scientific principles on genetics, nutrition, bacteriology and biology has enabled him to become a top 4-H swine producer. Paul has already applied his scholarship to his tuition at the University of Illinois where he is a freshman.

For information regarding local participation, contact the county extension agent.

John R. Crawford Enlists in Navy

John Hollins Crawford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Crawford of Route 1, Advance, N. C., has enlisted in the U. S. Navy under the Navy's new 2-Year Enlistment Program and has been transferred to the Construction Training Unit at Davisville, Rhode Island for outfitting and Duty Under Instruction in the SEABEE Petty Officers' indoctrination Course.

This Program authorizes the Navy to enlist personnel, who have had a minimum of 32 months experience in the construction and building trades, for a period of only 2 years. By enlisting under this Program John has gained several advantages over other enlistments in that he has gained a petty officer rating in the particular field of his civilian experience, and will begin his military service with pay of $163.00 a month in lieu of a recruit's starting pay of $87.50.

Chief Petty Officer Keller, local Navy Recruiter for this area invites anyone interested in this Program to contact him at the local Navy Recruiting Office located in the Post Office Building, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Elvie Bell Enlists in U. S. Navy

Sgt. James H. Davis, local Marine recruiter for the Mocksville area, announced that Elvie Bell, Jr. of Rt. 4 Mocksville, enlisted in the Marine Corps today for 2 years under the special 120-day delay enlistment program.

The 120-day program will enable Pvt. Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elvie Bell S. of Rt. 4 Mocksville, to Stay Home and enjoy a summer vacation before beginning training on June 23 66 at Parris Island S. C.

Sgt. Davis said Pvt. Bell, under this special "delay" enlistment will be serving a portion of his military obligation while still in school; will fast-become eligible for promotion; and will receive an automatic pay raise practically before he begins training.

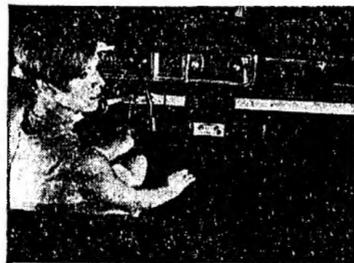

Recruit training, said Sgt. Davis, will be followed by four weeks of individual combat instruction at Camp Lejeune. From the training phase of Marine service, Pvt. Bell will be eligible for such specialist fields as aviation, communications, electronics, publicity, photography and guided missiles.

Library News

The first Print and Drawing Traveling Show of the Associated Artists of North Carolina is now on exhibit at the Davie County Public Library, and will be shown until June 20.

This show was selected from the first Print and Drawing Show of the Association which was held at Eastern Carolina College in March of 1965. Since then it has been traveling throughout North Carolina, primarily to colleges, libraries and art centers. The choice of material for the traveling show was made from a larger exhibition by Mr. Lettario Calipai of New York City. Mr. Calipai is a famous print-maker and teacher at New York University and Brandeis University, and has his own studio, in addition.

Artists represented in this collection either are or have been residents of North Carolina. Many of them are teachers in college art departments. There is represented here the work of one talented student at A. and T. College, Marvin Catterbridge, whose piece is entitled "Banjo Solo."

This show is selected not only because of artistic merit of individual pieces but also to include a great variety of the printmaking and drawing techniques such as the difficult silverpoint and others. Viewers will want to note the work of Sue Moore in "Composition", number 6 in the exhibit, and Marilyn Gordley's "The City", number 5 in the exhibit.

Styles range from the most representational to Pop Art. Many items are not prints, but drawings and collages.

One of the prize winners is an ink drawing with collage by Walter Thrift, and is entitled "Plateau Canyon, No. 2. This drawing will leave here to become the property of the North Carolina Museum of Art as the gift of the North Carolina Print and Drawing Society.

Except for prize-winners, the works on exhibit are for sale. Mrs. Peter Harrison of Davie County, is now serving as president of the Associated Artists of North Carolina.

Competitive Events Planned For 4-H'ers

Competitive livestock events for 4-H Club members are scheduled again this fall during the National 4-H Club Congress and the International Live Stock Exposition.

They are the Livestock Judging contest to be held Nov. 25, in the International Amphitheatre, and the Livestock Conservation Demonstration contest to take place Nov. 29, at the Pic-Congress Hotel.

Boys or girls between 14 and 19 years of age who have current livestock projects are eligible to enter, according to the National 4-H Service Committee.

Contestants are club members who have completed locally and statewide in cattle, sheep and swine judging or in demonstrations. The Cooperative Extension Service in each state selects the judging team of three members and an alternate.

A number of valuable awards will be given high-ranking members: Armour and Company will provide five U. S. savings bonds totaling $1,500 for the top five judging contestants. Bonds at maturity range from $50 to $100.

In addition, several other cooperators will provide valuable prizes including silver medals, trophies, plaques, wrist watches and pen and pencil sets.

Young cattlemen from 29 states entered the 1965 livestock judging contest.

Livestock Conservation, Inc. will present a $25 U. S. savings bond to each contestant in the demonstration program. Club members from 10 states participated last year showing recommended methods of handling market livestock.

Arrangements for these events have been made by the Cooperative Extension Service, International Live Stock Exposition and National 4-H Service Committee.

CHAPEL HILL — Of the 3,030 degrees awarded by the University of North Carolina here Monday, June 6, at its 172nd commencement exercises, approximately 160 of them were Ph.D.s and 300 masters degrees earned since last June.

Undergraduate and masters degrees are awarded in August, January and June each year, whereas Ph.D.s are granted only in August and June.

Recipients of graduate degrees this year can be especially proud of their accomplishments in view of the American Council on Education's recent rating of the Chapel Hill graduate school as one of the top three in the South. Chapel Hill shares this honored ranking with Duke and the University of Texas.

The Council's report is based on a three-year study of graduate education in the United States. While it does not explicitly rank the best universities in the South, it does point unmistakably to top billing for UNC at Chapel Hill, Duke and Texas.

Eight departments at Chapel Hill were singled out for their excellence in graduate instruction. The Spanish Department was ranked 8th in the nation. Rated among the top 20 departments in the nation were classics, English, French, history, political science, sociology and botany.

A quick glance at thesis topics listed in this year's graduation program shows that much of the research being done by UNC graduate students is directly applicable to North Carolina.

For example, study was made of "Factors Related to Persistence in School of White Children from Families of Low Parent Education Levels in an Urban Community in North Carolina."

A zoology student did an environmental study of the swamp cricket frog and two other types of tree frogs of the Chapel Hill region. An economist reported on "Public Policy for Depressed Areas with Special Reference to North Carolina." One educator studied selected "Aspects of the Two-Year Graduate Program in Educational Administration in North Carolina," while another evaluated "Selected Personality Measures in the Prediction of Achievement and Survival of Students at UNC."

Behavior of principals and educational levels of parents were factors in other studies. Titles of these theses were "A Comparison of Measures of the Effects of Principals' Behaviors in a Sample of North Carolina Elementary Schools," and "A Study of the Educational Progress of White First Grade Students in a Southeastern North Carolina County as it Relates to Parent Education Level."

Historians this year focused on such subjects as "The Influence of the Royal Instructions on the Major Controversies Between the Governors and the Lower House from 1731-1776," and activities of N. C. White Party Leader William A. Graham from 1804 to 1849.

Several theses were geared to the Southern region. For example, psychologists studied factors related to IQ change in white Southern rural adolescents, as well as the relationship of biological sex, psychological rigidity to visual explanatory behavior in second and sixth grade, white Southern rural children.

Political scientists concentrated on such topics as "The Political Competence of Southern Negroes," and "Southern Negro College Student Participation in the Protest Movement."

In 1904, Duke Power built its first generating station - and began planning for the second.

Today, we're planning to meet the needs for electricity in 1981.

This area has grown by leaps and bounds since that first generating station. Today, it's growing so fast that we plan fifteen years ahead to make sure that you'll always have plenty of electricity. By planning this far in advance, we're able to locate, design and build our facilities for maximum efficiency and economy. This helps us to keep your electric rates among the lowest in the nation. So, no matter how fast this area grows, we'll stay ahead. And everyone we serve will always enjoy an abundant supply of electricity at the lowest possible cost.

DUKE POWER

Plant Marshall, planned years ago, now has two generating units. By 1970, two larger units will be added.

HEALTH TIPS

FROM THE American Medical Association

About half of us are allergic to something.

Pollen in the air can trigger hay fever, certain foods may start hives. Possible allergens are countless — house dust, animal fur feathers, cosmetics, bleaches, medicines, foods, pollen. Some people are even allergic to heat, cold or sunlight. And there is the classic case of the woman who was allergic to her husband.

Most common result of allergy are four illness — hay fever, asthma, skin ailments and digestive disturbances. Hay fever is an inflammation of the eyes and nasal passages. Asthma is a disease of the bronchial tubes of the lungs. Food allergies, a sensitivity to one or more foods, can affect the skin, the digestive tract or the respiratory system. Skin allergies cause itching, sometimes rash.

Reaction to an allergen varies with individuals. One person may be only slightly upset by eating an egg. Another could become violently ill from the small trace of egg in salad dressing. There still are many unknown factors about the reason why someone suddenly becomes allergic to something. Allergic diseases are not usually fatal, but they cause untold discomfort and suffering. Although worry and stress might be a contributing factor, allergy is not an imaginary illness. It is very real to the sufferer.

Sometimes the allergen is known and can be avoided. Sometimes many tests by a physician are required to arrive at the true cause. Medical care is necessary in all cases for relief of discomfort and for protection against future attacks.

If you suspect you are allergic to something, see your doctor. Self-diagnosis and self-treatment not only are futile, they frequently are dangerous.

Your doctor often can prescribe medications that will relieve the discomfort. And sometimes he can provide treatments that will desensitize you, so that the allergen no longer causes illness.

Insuring your home can be complicated, and expensive. Until today, you probably had to pay three different premiums to get protection like this—one to insure your house and possessions against fire, theft, wind and liability. A second to continue mortgage payments if you are disabled. A third to help pay it off if you should die. Now, all three kinds of protection can be wrapped up in one simple plan from Nationwide. You buy it from one man—and pay for it with just one check. Your Nationwide agent can tell you all about it, in plain talk without a lot of high pressure. He's also the man to see for car insurance and your other life and health insurance needs. Call him today.

The man from Nationwide is on your side

By Woody Durham

Regardless of what happens in the upcoming national tournaments this has been a banner year for collegiate baseball in North Carolina. Both Guilford and North Carolina will be competing for national honors. The Quakers are playing this week in the NIAA (National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics) Tournament at Saint Joseph, Missouri, while the Tar Heels will play in the NCAA (National Collegiate Athletic Association) Tournament starting next Monday at Omaha, Nebraska. Their first round opponent will be Southern California.

In addition to these two clubs East Carolina also copped the Southern Conference title before losing out in the NCAA District 3 Tournament at Gastonia to both Carolina and Florida State. Guilford's Stuart Maynard was selected as the NIAA National Coach of the Year because of his Quakers' fine showing, and the award could not have gone to a more deserving recipient.

In addition to the entire state, the city of Greensboro is awfully proud of the brand of baseball that has been played in its vicinity this spring. Not only has Guilford College been a powerful force on the diamond, but both Greensboro Smith and Dudley are currently involved in State 4-A High School playoffs. Smith will play North Mecklenburg next Saturday for the NCISAA (North Carolina High School Athletic Association) championship, while Dudley meets Raleigh Ligon on Wednesday for the North Carolina High School Athletic Conference title. The Panthers are after their third consecutive state Negro championship.

In football . . . Halfback Gayle Sayers of the Chicago Bears will have to do it all over again. The 336 yards he accounted for during a six touchdown day against San Francisco last year was thought to be an NFL record, but actually it fell five yards short. Research confirms that in Brown of the Philadelphia Eagles accounted for 341 net yards in a game against St. Louis in 1962.

Training camps will be opened early next month for the member teams of the National Football League. The earliest opening, on July 2nd, will be the camp of the Atlanta Falcons which will be set up at the Blue Ridge Assembly Grounds at Black Mountain, N. C., which is near Asheville.

60 Second Sermon

TEXT: "Mockery is the fume of little hearts." Tennyson. A customer walked into the owner's office and handed him a bouquet of flowers. "These," he said, "are for your switchboard operator." "Thank you sir!" smiled the businessman. "You compliment our service." "This is no compliment," declared the customer. "I thought she was dead."

Is there any greater display of selfishness than mockery? When we ridicule someone or something else, we are saying, "What a big person I am, compared with someone or something else." We must feel superior to be scornful. Aside from exposing ourselves as posturing "big shots", ridicule has a more devastating result. Ridicule causes men to shrivel when their Creator planned that they should expand. They lose their self-respect under ridicule, become fearful, perhaps cowardly and they fight back in wild desperation.

Skill in ridicule is not an attribute of which to be proud. It degrades and discourages. It accomplishes evil. It does not exert any influence for good. Leave ridicule for lesser men. Concentrate on believing in people, trusting and encouraging them, thereby aiding them to become all that they may have to be. Can you wear a brighter crown?

MORE ABOUT SO THIS IS NEW YORK

Already many greater miracles than noiseless helicopters have been accomplished by modern science. It is not so easy to change human nature, however. But whatever it takes, many persons are fervently hoping that a way out will be found for this struggle between man and machine, between human need and passenger luxury. In the meantime, patience may fill the gap.

Incident Takes Place Near Hospital

Man Charged With Accosting Girl

A 31-year-old man was charged with assault with a deadly weapon last Friday after being accused of accosting a teen-age girl with a gun near the Davie County Hospital.

Delmer Eugene Hall of Mocksville Rt. 5, posted bond for appearance at court. He was charged in a warrant signed by Patricia Wood, 17, of Advance.

Mocksville Chief of Police Joe Foster said that the chain of events leading to Hall's arrest were as follows: Patricia Wood accompanied her mother to the Davie County Hospital last Friday morning to take home a member of the family. While this patient was getting ready to leave, the Wood girl told her mother she wanted to walk down and see a friend that lived on the street below the office of Dr. Bob Foster.

Chief Foster said that the Wood girl told him that when she found no one at home, she started back to the hospital and met a man in a red 1964 Pontiac. She said that this man hollered something at her but that she didn't pay him any attention.

The red Pontiac then turned around and came back and turned sharply in front of the girl. The girl said that the man called to her to get in the car and when she refused, pulled out a small pistol and said: "I said get in . . . I mean business."

At this point the frightened girl began to scream and ran around behind the car. A man and woman were sitting in a car near the doctor's office and when this man got out, the man in the red Pontiac got off. The girl ran to the hospital and told her mother and hospital authorities who promptly notified the police.

Chief Foster and Policeman Lonnie Tutterow put the description on the air. They then began a check of some of the area around town. As they were going south on North Main Street, a man in a red 1964 Pontiac pulled out in front of them. They followed this car to the square where the man parked, got out and went in Wilkins Drug. Chief Foster then sent Policeman Tutterow to get the Wood girl while he kept the man and car under surveillance.

As the man, who was identified as Delmer Eugene Hall, started to leave Chief Foster informed him that he would have to detain him for a few minutes because of some trouble out near the hospital between a girl and a man answering his description. Chief Foster said that Hall admitted that he had been out in that area and had talked to a teen-age girl but denied threatening her. Chief Foster said that Hall told him that he stopped to talk to the girl to see if she could identify a person in a photo Hall was carrying. Hall said that he had found the photo in the wrecked car that killed his brother-in-law and that for the past eighteen months had been trying to find out about the person pictured.

Patricia Wood identified Hall as the man that had accosted her and signed the warrant.

VA Programs Explained To Local Rotary Club

The Veterans Administration was discussed for members of the Mocksville Rotary Club on Tuesday by Bill Phillips, manager of the Winston-Salem Office which directs VA activities in North Carolina.

Mr. Phillips traced the creation of the VA and explained the various programs. He told the Rotarians that it was created by Presidential order in 1930 and today is serving more than 25-million living veterans.

D. J. Mando had charge of the program and introduced Mr. Phillips. President Bryan Sell presided. Oren Heffner was inducted into the club as a new member by Dave Rankin.

Man Sought For Exposure

A man is being sought for indecent exposure.

Several cases were reported to the Davie County Sheriff's Department last week of a man driving an old tan station wagon (either Mercury or Plymouth) exposing himself to women.

Sheriff George Smith said that it was reported that this man would drive up to homes in rural area of the county, and if he saw a woman in the yard, blow his horn, and when the woman walked over to the car he would have himself exposed. In the cases reported, the women immediately turned and fled into the house and called officers.

Sheriff Smith said that in no case did the women obtain the license number of the vehicle and also their description of the man (wearing sun glasses) was rather vague.

New Or Improved Housing Is In Reach Of All Rural Families

The North Carolina Farmers Home Administration State Director, Melvin H. Hearn, said today new or improved housing is well within the price range of most rural families with small incomes, because of new federal government financing arrangement and the development of low-cost housing.

"In some sections of North Carolina," Hearn continued, "we are helping families build housing on which their monthly payments, in some cases, will be just $35."

Other families are making plans to have their homes renovated inside and out. "Our loans for home improvement," Hearn added, "enable a family to put new siding on their house and fix-up and paint-up the interiors as well as the outside. These funds can also finance the installation of a bathroom or an extra bedroom."

The expanded use of the Farmers Home Administration funds is made possible through the agency's new insured housing loan program in

THE UNION CHAPEL METHODIST CHURCH . . . located 3 1/2 miles north of Mocksville on US 601, has received a grant by the Western North Carolina Methodist Conference to become a station church. This means that the church will have a full time pastor and the Rev. Carl Lain, who served this church while it was on the Mocksville Circuit, has been appointed as the first full-time minister. As a member of the Mocksville Circuit the church was associated with as many as eight churches. Due to growth the circuit was divided in 1963 to a three-point work. In 1962 this church made plans for a new educational building and an enlarged sanctuary.

This has been completed and the indebtedness has been paid for the sum of $72,000. The church is now in the process of building a new eight room parsonage with complete basement and will be located about a quarter of a mile from the church. Church services beginning on June 26th will be as follows: Sunday School 9:45 a. m.; Worship Service 11 a. m.; Youth Fellowship 6:30 p. m.; Evening Worship 7:45 p. m. Wednesday night prayer service and choir practice at 7:45 p. m.; Woman's Society of Christian Service meets the second Tuesday night of each month. The Methodist Men meet the first Sunday morning of each month.

Central Carolina Bank Is Host At Luncheon

The Central Carolina Bank and Trust Company of Coolemees was host at a luncheon Wednesday for friends and customers in the Woodleaf School Gymnasium.

This was the sixth of such events. During the past events the program has been different each time. One year there were tours of beef cattle, dairy, and truck farms. There have been talks on rabbits, research, and Russian agriculture. In 1964 Governor Terry Sanford spoke.

This year there were no tours and no speeches. It was just fellowship and good food prepared by the women of the Woodleaf community.

Zion Chapel Recognized At Methodist Conference

Attending the Western North Carolina Annual Conference, at Lake Junaluska, from this area were the Rev. Bruce Hobson, the Rev. and Mrs. Wade Wright, the Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Fitzgerald, and Miss Mabel Chaffin.

Zion Chapel Church received special recognition at this Conference as being the oldest church in the Thomasville District, and the oldest church in the Western North Carolina Conference.

Representing Zion Chapel were the Rev. Bruce Hobson, pastor, and Miss Mabel Chaffin, delegate to the conference. Miss Chaffin, in response to the special recognition given to Zion Chapel, expressed this hope: "It is my hope and my prayer that we, the members of this church, will accept the challenge which it ours, and pass on to future generations the priceless heritage that our forefathers handed down to us."

Certificates of Honor were presented to Miss Chaffin from the Thomasville District and the Western North Carolina Conference by the Rev. G. W. Bumgarner.

The Rev. Bruce Hobson, who has served as pastor of the Sheffield Charge for the past three years, is leaving this work to be nearer to High Point College, where he is enrolled in school. The Rev. Mr. Becker succeeds Mr. Hobson.

Fish Fry Saturday At Blaise Church

There will be a Fish Fry at Blaise Baptist Church, Saturday, June 18th. Fillet Flounder will be served starting at 5:00 P. M. and serving until . . . All plates will be served for a donation, and all profits will go to the church building fund.

There will also be a softball game between Bear Creek Baptist Church and Blaise Baptist, starting at 6:00 P. M. This game is a part of the regular church league play and will count in the standings. Everyone is invited to come out, eat fish, and back the team of their choice, according to the announcement.

Methodist Appointments

Four changes have been made in the Methodist ministerial appointments in Davie County.

The Rev. Joseph C. Phillips will go to Farmington Methodist Church replacing the Rev. B. B. Bearden, who will continue in Davie County but will be on the Davie Charge. The Rev. Bearden replaces the Rev. Roby Evans who will go to Edneyville Methodist Church, Asheville District.

The Rev. Forrest E. Church will go to the Mocksville Circuit replacing the Rev. Carl A. Lain. The Rev. Lain will remain in Davie County and go back to Union Chapel Methodist Church. They have been created as a station church and are no longer a part of the Mocksville Circuit.

The Rev. Paul M. Hart will go to Dulins Methodist Church, replacing the Rev. Brown T. McKinney who will go to Old Union Church at Randleman. Methodist ministers returning to their charges include: Advance-Mocks: The Rev. Carl A. Haire; Liberty-Concord: The Rev. W. R. Frost; Mocksville First: The Rev. Gilbert Miller; Sheffield: The Rev. Bruce G. Hobson; Oak Grove: The Rev. Ralph W. Eanes, Jr.; Coolemees Methodist: The Rev. Claude Hartzell.

Hospital Approved For Medicare

The Davie County Hospital has been approved for participation in Medicare program.

The local hospital was included in list of hospitals released last Saturday by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as being eligible to participate in this program. However, at the same time the announcement was made, the federal agency made it clear that this eligibility will be cancelled if later inspection discloses racial discrimination.

In its drive to enroll as many as possible of the country's 7,634 hospitals before the program of care for the elderly begins July 1, the Department of Health, Educa-

Shrine Baseball Game Set For Friday Night

The Winston-Salem Shrine Club's annual baseball game for the benefit of the Shrine's Crippled Children Hospital in Greenville, S. C. will be played at Ernie Shore Field on Friday night at 7:15 p. m. The game will put the Rocky Mount "Leafs" against the Winston-Salem "Red Sox."

Tax Rate Increased To $1.12

Town Adopts Record Budget Of $217,067.44 For 1966-67

A budget of $217,067.44, the highest in the history of Mocksville, has been adopted for the year 1966-67. This is an increase of $31,482.25 from the 1965-66 budget.

The tax rate was increased from $1.00 to $1.12 per $100 valuation. Most of the increase will go to pay off the previously approved half-million-Dollar water bond issue. This is the first tax increase in the past four years.

A breakdown of the budget adopted by the own Board of Commissioners is as follows:

Debt Service Fund
Bonds $25,000 (An increase of $10,000 over last year; Interest on bonds, $29,817.50 (An increase of $2,280 over last year); Exchange fee, $75. For a total of $54,892.50, and increase of $32,310.50 over last year.

Registered Quarter Horse Dispersal

Dutchman Creek Ranch Set Sale

The Dutchman Creek Ranch, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Carroll, will hold a dispersal sale of their registered quarter horses on Saturday, July 2nd, at 1 p. m.

In announcing the sale Mr. Carroll said:

"We have just completed the sale of our entire Dutchman Creek Ranch property and cattle, and have sold everything but our horses, trailers, and tack, which will be completely dispersed on July 2nd. It is with sincere regret that we find it necessary to disperse the entire band of registered Quarter Horses but due to the time required to operate my other business, and the lack of adequate help, since our manager, Jimmy McDonald, accepted the management duties at one of North Carolina's large cattle ranches, we are forced to sell this band of foundation bred horses that we so carefully selected from top ranches throughout the West."

"We are very proud of our horses, and the quality cults produced by our mares is a great satisfaction. We will have approximately 55 horses to sell including broodmares, colts, and our two treat reference stallions, Chieftain Five and Hired Hand Bee," said Mr. Carroll.

In addition to the horses of the Dutchman Creek Ranch, there will be additional horses consigned to the sale from the ranches of J. H. Frost, Huntsville, Texas; J. M. Rust Ranch of Sugarland, Texas; and Robert Kisselburg of Murphy, N. C.

This dispersal sale is expected to attract interested people from a great many states. Ike Hamilton, of national fame, will serve as the auctioneer.

The Dutchman Creek Ranch, located on Sain Road just out of Mocksville on US 458, consists of 970 acres. It was purchased by Mr. Carroll, a Winston-Salem finance company executive, several years ago.

Kappa H.D. Club Meets At Library

The Kappa Home Demonstration Club met at the Davie County Library, Thursday, June 9, 1966, for their meeting.

Mrs. Jack Ward explained the card index system of the library and showed a picture on "Flower Arrangement on a Budget." Various designs were arranged with only a few flowers being used for each container.

A simple holder of sand and melted paraffin was made by cutting a sponge-like material to fit a top of a container. This would keep the container non-spillable.

Following this, a tour of the library were given the members. The group's business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Oscar Koonitz. Minutes were read and roll call was answered by fourteen members and one visitor.

Miss Margaret Daywalt, clothing leader, gave literature on sewing seams, facings, hems and button holes to each member. After club collect, Mrs. Ed Dwiggins and Mrs. Bessie Dwiggins served cookies and lemonade.

Before adjournment, the group enjoyed the beautiful flower area that had been planted in memory of Miss Faith Dadmon.

MRS. BILLY LEE WOOTEN

Deep Creek Baptist Church Is Scene Of Shermer-Wooten Wedding Ceremony

Miss Sarah Janice Shermer became the bride of Billy Lee Wooten of Greensboro Sunday at 6 p. m. in Deep Creek Baptist Church. The Rev. E. W. McMurray and the Rev. J. G. Allgood performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Page E. Shermer of Yadkinville. She was "Miss Yadkinville" in 1963. Mrs. Wooten attended St. Andrews College at Laurinburg, and is a senior at ASTC, Boone where she is a member of the Verneian Society. She was on the dean's list the past year.

Mr. Wooten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman B. Wooten of Yadkinville, attended Gardner-Webb College where he was a Phi Theta Kappa pledge. He received a B. S. degree at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He was secretary of Beta Gamma Sigma, an honorary business fraternity. Mr. Wooten is a data processing administrative trainee at Burlington Industries in Greensboro and is a member of the U. S. Army Reserves.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk-faced peau de soie with appliques of lace, seed pearls and sequins. The gown was fashioned with a detachable train. Her mantilla of Alencon lace was attached to a matching pillbox and she carried a bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis, and carnations.

Miss Pamela Shermer, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ray Fisher of Hickory, Miss Anne Meares of Atlanta, Georgia, Miss Judy Caudle of Winston-Salem, and Mrs. Lamarr Reavis, Miss Linda McKnight, and Miss Marilyn Allgood, all of Yadkinville. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Marsha McNeely of Winston-Salem, and Miss Beverly Styers of Yadkinville was flower girl. All of the attendants wore empire gowns of petal pink chiffon and carried cascades of pink carnations.

Mr. Wooten was his son's best man. Ushers were: Pat Pope and Tom Hartsoeg of Greensboro; Ronald Johnson and Robert T. McNeely

MRS. THOMAS Q. CHARLES

Miss Ava Lou Foster, Thomas Q. Charles Wed In Fork Baptist Church Ceremony

Miss Ava Lou Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Foster of Route 3, and Thomas Quentin Charles, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Charles of Route 3, Lexington, were united in marriage Sunday, June 12, in Fork Baptist Church. The Rev. Roy V. Young officiated at the 3 p. m. ceremony.

Wedding musicians were Mrs. H. R. Hendrix Jr., organist, and Miss Jane Craver, of Advance, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza over taffeta fashioned with a lace bodice, long tapered sleeves and a chapel train of organza with lace flower appliques. Her illusion veil fell from a Victorian crown and she carried a lace-covered Bible with a white orchid showered with valley lilies.

Miss Marsha Bailey of Advance, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Charlie McBride and Miss Myra Charles, sister of the groom, both of Lexington. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Kelly Livengood. All of the attendants wore white embroidered organza over yellow tulle dresses and large yellow hats. They carried long-stemmed yellow mums.

The groom's father was best man. Ushering with the bride's brother, Johnny Foster of Advance was Ellis Myers of Lexington, the groom's cousin.

A cake-cutting was held in Fork Civic Club following the ceremony by the bride's parents.

After an unannounced wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Charles will be at home on Route 3, Lexington.

Mrs. Charles is a graduate of Davie County High School and Central Beauty College in Salisbury. She is employed at Oestreich's Beauty Salon in Salisbury.

Miss Allen, Mr. Wilson Speak Vows In Garden

MRS. LARRY C. WILSON

Robert Allen on Route 4, was the Roger Allen on Route 4, was the scene for the wedding of Miss Martha Susan Allen who became the bride of Larry Clinton Wilson Sunday, June 12. The Rev. Tony Forrest of Taylorsville performed the 2 p. m. ceremony.

Mrs. Mildred James and Miss Shirley James of Route 4, presented the wedding music.

Mrs. Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Allen of Route 4. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Allen and the late Mr. and Mrs. John Bowles. She was graduated from Davie County High School May 27.

Mr. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Wilson of Route 4, is a graduate of Davie County High School and is employed by Ingersoll-Rand. He is the grandson of Mrs. W. H. Barney and the late Mr. Barneycastle. The late Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wilson were his paternal grandparents.

The couple entered the garden together and spoke their vows under an arch of roses flanked by large baskets of roses and palms.

The bride wore a short dress designed with an empire waistline, sweetheart neckline and long sleeves. The dress featured a short train. Her shoulder-length veil was attached to a cabbage rose and she carried a satin-covered Bible with red rose buds. Her only ornament was a gold necklace, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Jimmy Kiger was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Melinda Bryant, cousin of the bride, and Miss Lynn Wilson, the groom's sister. They wore blue dotted swiss dresses designed with empire lines detailed with lace. They wore rose headpieces to match their attire and carried red roses.

Norman Forrest, the groom's cousin of Route 1, was best man.

For their wedding trip to Western North Carolina, the bride wore a green two piece dotted swiss dress with which she used black accessories and red roses lifted from her Bible.

After June 15, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will make their home on Garner Street.

The North Carolina Heart Association's program of public health education is designed to encourage patients to seek earlier diagnosis, to eliminate needless fears and to acquaint persons throughout the state with new developments in the cardiovascular field.

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

WASHINGTON — Any appraisal of the Administration's 1966 civil rights proposals might well begin with the operation of bureaucracy in recent months in the handling of Federal health, education, and welfare programs.

Under the 1964 Civil Rights Act the Departments of Justice and Health, Education and Welfare were given statutory tools of considerable magnitude to prevent racial discrimination in the conduct of these programs. Apparently, few realized that the South would comply with a law that many people felt was so distasteful. Southerners did comply. As a consequence, the Attorney General states that he has not had enough complaints about discrimination to make the programs work. So it is now proposed that the Attorney General institute actions on his own without a complaint of any kind to insure integration in public education and other facilities.

The Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare has found little discrimination upon which to act under Title VI of the 1964 Act, so unelected officials have a new goal: to exercise a maximum effort to insure so-called "racial balance" in public education and public facilities beyond the intent of Congress.

A problem that comes up constantly nowadays is that of confining the administration of laws to the legislative intent of Congress. At least two North Carolina cities have recently experienced difficulty in getting approval of education programs under the Poverty Program not because of any proposed discrimination but because of "racial imbalance." In the Charlotte case, the Poverty official stated his purpose was to "promote maximum cross-cultural experience." Under his guideline, the education of hundreds of illiterates was less important than sociological jargon about "racial balance."

Last month, a North Carolina hospital submitted a Federal compliance application in good faith, but was threatened with the loss of funds because non-whites did not comprise as large a percentage of the patient load as the percentage of non-white population of that city. Complaint about discrimination was not the issue. The allegation was in effect that the

Lights Blind Driver And Two Cars Collide

Two cars were involved in a collision last Thursday around 10:03 p. m. on a rural road south of Cooleemee.

Involved was a 1957 Buick operated by Vance Eugene Haire, 50, of Woodleaf Rt. 1 and a 1955 Ford operated by Bruce Hanceel Osborne of Cooleemee.

State Highway Patrolman R. L. Hanson said that Haire told him that he was blinded by lights of an approaching car, got over into the left lane and struck the left front of the Osborne vehicle.

Damage to the Haire car was estimated at $150; to the Osborne car, $125.

local populace did not become ill and choose the threatened hospital according to racial quotas.

Such was not the intent of Congress when it approved the 1964 Civil Rights Act. Indeed Vice President Humphrey, then a Senator, said as much during the 1964 debate in managing the bill. He said: "While the Constitution prohibits segregation, it does not require integration." Nor was it suggested that that Federal officials ought to inject racial considerations into programs where discrimination does not exist. Freedom of association is still a sacred right for all if the Constitution is to mean anything.

For this reason, I recently introduced an amendment to clarify the ambiguities which have arisen over the interpretation of Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act so that citizens can have the benefits of health, education, and welfare programs intended by Congress. My amendment would stabilize guidelines into standards that would not fluctuate from year to year, and give recipients an opportunity to present evidence in a hearing before Federal aid is cut-off.

Tattle-Tales

By Gordon Tomlinson

He drives one of the small cars and is one who is almost a fanatic about getting good gasoline mileage. Some of his friends knew that he was checking the gas mileage on his little car and decided to help him out. Time and again they would slip and pour extra gasoline into the tank over a two day period.

Finally this man drove up to the service station and had the attendant to carefully fill his tank. He jotted down the amount it took, figured the miles on the car, and got out "just-a-bouncing".

"I'm getting 80-miles to a gallon", he told the crowd of bystanders who of course immediately scoffed.

"Well here are the figures . . . just figger it out for yourself", he retorted.

Wayne Eaton can tell many humorous and interesting experiences relating to ambulance calls.

Recently he said that one night they received a call from a man who told them:

"I need an ambulance down at my house right away!"

The man then proceeded to give his name and address and with that in hand Wayne takes the ambulance and with a helper goes to the home.

They pull up, get the cot out, and knock on the door. A man's voice from the inside said: "Come in".

Opening the door they saw a man and woman sitting in two rocking chairs. When the man saw who it was he told Wayne:

"Get her out of here. Take her to Morganton . . . to the hospital or somewhere. She's crazy! She's been nagging me about something all day!"

With that Wayne said he and she then proceeded to give the man a little more trouble and as they drove away he said he couldn't help wondering if they would get another call to return before they got home . . . but this time to cart away the man.

"That woman sure looked mad", said Wayne.

And another one!

Several years ago there was a wreck at Bixby. A train hit a pickup truck. It happened this way:

A rather inebriated driver was heading out the road and had planned to make a left turn on main road through Bixby which runs parallel to the railroad. However, he turned too soon and started down the railroad only to meet a train which swept him off.

The driver was not hurt too badly but was still rather under the influence as he was being carried to the hospital and told Wayne:

"I don't believe I would have made it if the train hadn't come along. That's the roughest and bumpingest road I have ever driven on!"

Also a Dean's List student, Owens actively participated in the Baptist Student Union, the Social Science club, the Ministerial Conference as its president, the Outreach Commission and senior class activities as co-ordinator.

This fall he will be teaching in Oxford. In the near future, Owens plans to enter graduate school at Southeastern Baptist Seminary. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Owens of Colcemee.

Three Are Injured In Motorcycle Accident

A six-year-old boy and two men were injured in an accident Sunday around 7:30 p. m. on N. C. 801, 9-miles north of Mocksville.

The youth was an passenger on a motorcycle being driven by Ralph Lester Martin, 39, of Mocksville. Also involved was Harold Gray, Wilson, 33, of Mocksville Rt. 2, on a motorcycle.

State Patrolman R. L. Hanson said that his investigation showed that both motorcycles were traveling side by side when they sideswiped crash bars and lost control. Both overturned.

The injured were taken to the Davie County Hospital. Damage to the motorcycles was estimated at $200 each.

Farm Bureau Work For Farmer Is Cited

The President of the Davie County Farm Bureau said that most of the calls for unity among tobacco marketing interests "have a mighty hollow sound, as far as the future is concerned."

In clarifying Farm Bureau's position on the leaf marketing matter, President Roger W. Gabbert said, "The kind of unity called for by warehouse leaders, and even some farm groups, is a unity at the farmer's expense. It's unity that will again deny farmers an active voice in drafting tobacco marketing regulations."

The local farm leader said that Farm Bureau "is the only general farm organization that has continued to stand up for the farmer's rights in this issue."

The North Carolina Farm Bureau, he noted, is on policy record due to "a unanimous vote" at the organization's 1965 annual meeting in favor of active participation by farmers and others in making marketing decisions.

"This is the way farmers feel about this, and we do not intend to sell ourselves down the river by accepting less," said Gabbert. "We intend to stand by the policies that grassroots farmers themselves have put into the book," the Farm Bureau leader said.

He noted that Farm Bureau "has always been willing to cooperate with other groups in resolving this marketing crisis, but not if it means forcing the farmer to live with second-rate status."

Sunday, June 5th, at the Evening Worship Service of Eaton's Baptist Church the following men were ordained as deacons—Clyde S. Hutchins, Johnny Rummage and Carl Safley.

The pastor, Rev. B. C. McMurray, was joined by Associational Missionary, Rev. Elmer Thomas who gave the charge to the church; Rev. E. W. McMurray, pastor of Deep Creek Baptist Church who gave the charge to the deacons; Rev. A. E. Gentry, pastor of the Ijames Cross Roads Baptist Church who delivered a short message to the church and deacons; and Rev. P. A. Kelley, pastor of Blaise Baptist Church who offered the prayer of ordination. Also deacons from the above churches joined the deacons of Eaton's Baptist Church and the above pastors in the service.

Miss Verna Safley Receives Scholarships

MISS VERNA SAFLEY

Miss Verna Safley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Safley of Route 4, Mocksville, and a 1966 graduate of Davie County High School, has received 2 scholarships to Davis Hospital in Statesville.

One of the scholarships was presented by J. Frank Hendrix, Milling Road, Mocksville, and one was presented by the Statesville Woman's Club. Miss Safley attended a special meeting of the Club on May 12 to receive the Statesville award.

At Davie High, Miss Safley was a class vice president her freshman, sophomore and junior years; was a Spanish Club officer; Health Careers Club president; member of Future Teachers of America club; Library club; Office club; and, was a member of the National Honor Society.

She is a member of the Jericho Church of Christ and has been active in the Young People's work at the church.

Verna plans to enter Davis for the Nurses' Training September 1, 1966.

Eaton Baptists Hold Vacation Bible School

The Vacation Bible School was conducted during the week of June 6 - 10th with a total enrollment of 52 and average attendance of 50. All who participated and attended the Bible School were greatly blessed. Four professions of faith and eight rededication were made during this week of study.

David White Attends Conservation Workshop

According to Clay Hunter, chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the Davie Soil and Water Conservation District, the district is sending David White Jr., a local youth to a one week Resource Conservation Workshop at North Carolina State University in Raleigh, during this week of June 13-17, 1966. This workshop is being sponsored jointly by the N. C. Chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America, the N. C. Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts, and the State Soil and Water Conservation Committee with cooperation of many state and Federal natural resource development agencies.

According to Mr. Hunter, those students attending will receive instruction in many phases of conservation and natural resources development including soil and water conservation, wildlife conservation, forestry, etc. In addition, a well rounded recreational program has been planned including competitive sports activities and swimming.

At the conclusion of the workshop, tests will be given and first, second and third place prizes awarded to those making the highest relative scores.

Mr. Hunter indicated that this is the second year of this workshop and that interest throughout the state is apparently very high based on the present indications of the number of boys expected to participate. He further stated that this workshop should serve to create a far greater awareness of the need for proper stewardship of our natural resources.

Hollis Baker Sr. Dies Monday In Michigan

Hollis Baker, Sr., founder of Baker Furniture Company, died early this week in Michigan.

It was reported that Mr. Baker suffered a heart attack last Thursday and never regained consciousness. Full details concerning his death and funeral plans were not available.

Mr. Baker was a frequent visitor to Mocksville and the Milling Road Furniture plant.

At the time of his death he was serving in an advisory capacity to the board of directors of Baker Furniture.

Michael Gaitner Is Attending 4-H Camp

MICHAEL GAITNER

Michael Gaitner has been selected as the 4-H Club representative from Davie County to attend the annual 4-H Forestry Camp at Camp Millstone near Rockingham. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gaitner of Mocksville.

One-hundred boys — each a 4-H Club forestry leader in his county — will converge on Camp Millstone in Richmond County for the annual 4-H Forestry Awards Camp during the week of June 13.

Southern Bell will again sponsor the camp in cooperation with the Extension Forestry Department and 4-H Club Department of the North Carolina State College Extension Service. The purpose of the camp program is to further develop, among the young people of our state, forestry knowhow and leadership in the conservation and development of one of our priceless natural resources — our forest.

Special features of the camp program are training in forestry skills such as planting and caring for trees, identifying trees, proper cutting of forest for timber purposes, proper use and care of forestry equipment, and other forestry skills.

In many respects the camp resembles a "lumber jack, on-the-job training camp." It's a "working" camp — where the boys learn by doing. There are a few lectures, but most of the learning takes place in outdoors as experts skillfully guide the boys in actual forestry skills.

Citizenship and character development are stressed throughout the week's program.

But it is not "all work and no play." Any time you get a hundred healthy, energetic boys together it is necessary to program an outlet for the tremendous energy such a group generates. This is channeled into such recreational activities as baseball, swimming, and other sports.

The 4-H Forestry Camp is held annually at Camp Millstone in Richmond County as a part of this overall 4-H Forestry Program. To date, over 800 4-H Club boys, representing each of the one-hundred counties in North Carolina and nearly one-hundred county agricultural agents, have attended the camp. The camp has received recognition as one of the best planned and conducted activities of this type in the country.

Chris Petticord Wins Scholarship

CHRIS PETTICORD

Chris Petticord, Rt. 1, Advance, has been named winner of a $500 scholarship from the North Carolina 4-H Development Fund.

Miss Petticord, a graduate of Davie County High School, is one of 12 4-H'ers from across North Carolina selected to share in $6,000 of Scholarship money being distributed this year by the Fund.

A. C. Edwards, Hookerton, president of the Fund, says the scholarships are awarded to outstanding 4-H Club members for college study during the 1966-67 academic year.

The 4-H Development Fund, with headquarters at North Carolina State University at Raleigh, was organized in 1958 by friends and alumni of 4-H to help support certain phases of club work.

President Edwards explained that this is the fifth year that scholarships have been awarded. Recipients, he said, are selected on the basis of their high school record, evidence of college aptitude and 4-H Club record.

Miss Petticord has compiled an impressive record during her four years as a 4-H Club member. Her major projects have included market steers, market lambs, dog care and training, horses, frozen foods, clothing and crafts. She was named state winner in the dog care and training project this year. She has held several offices in her local club and the county 4-H council.

Miss Petticord was equally outstanding as a high school student and graduated in the top one-third of her class.

She plans to attend North Carolina State University at Raleigh and study veterinary medicine.

Other scholarship winners are Annette Tilley, Rt. 1, Bahama; Emma Jean Carter, Rt. 1, Fletcher; Sam Brake Jr., Rt. 2, Rocky Mount; Donald Bunch, Tyler; Sandra Edwards, Pendleton; Steve Szezerbiak, Castle Hayne; Gloria Jane Jackson, Rt. 1, Autryville; Dennis Cabe, Franklin; Douglas Clapp, Rt. 1, Whitesett; Wells Hall III, Rt. 1, Mt. Ulla; and Martha Jo Godman, Rt. 1, Gold Hill.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Forty-two stories above 42nd Street in the elegant Pinnacle Club, I attended a gathering to launch a new bookjapily titled and edited by Oliver Knight.

"I Protest" by E. W. Scripps. Crusty Mr. Scripps, who did not relish social occasions and once turned down an invitation to lunch with Woodrow Wilson, would have grimly laughed had he been present at all this to do over him. (When asked if he thought it was right to refuse a Presidential invitation to eat, Scripps replied, "Not right but it was a record. Since that time, some 60 years ago, much has been added to the record of Edward Willis Scripps, especially the famous exploits of his in founding a great newspaper chain and exercising whenever he felt like it—which was often—a fabulously acid tongue.

E. W. Scripps was born on a farm in Illinois, the youngest and loudest of 13 children. His father had been a bookbinder in London before coming to America. E. W. thought he was an unwanted child, held no affection for his mother, and turned to his half-sister Ellen, for affection, the two remaining devoted all their lives. She introduced him to the world of books and of men, particularly individual, independent and dynamic men, such as he himself became. On winter evening at the family farm, the family gathered around the fireplace and listened as Ellen read to them in her precise English. Throughout childhood, E. W. was sickly and knew little of ordinary children's pleasures. Usually he was bored with his playmates or angered by their criticism. He was an unusual person with a creative flair and a shell of individualism. Solitude to him meant escape and an opportunity to do what he pleased which was usually reading and daydreaming.

At the age of 15, E. W. Scripps left school because his father had a lingering last illness. The young son even took over the farm. But instead of working on it, he got neighborhood boys to do the work in the fields, while he sat in a fence corner and read. In 1872, E. W. decided he wanted to be a newspaper man. He had a half-brother who was editor of a newspaper in Detroit, but that individual did not share the ambitions of E. W. so for a time, the Michigan avenue to journalistic success was closed. But the aspirations of young Scripps were not to be denied. The next year, he went to Detroit anyway and got a job painting signs and advertising on window blinds until his brother took him into the job shop of the paper. The elder Scripps founded the Detroit Evening News and one of his carrier boys was E. W. who turned out to be such a success that he was making $50 a week in a few months. At 21, he was editor of the paper and bought one share of stock in the News. That was 1877, a far cry from the 40 million dollars Scripps was worth at the time of his death in 1926.

From that time on, the career of E. W. Scripps was meteoric. He became editor of the Cleveland Press and adopted the policy that it would print the news no matter whose name was involved. Within ten years he had control of the Cincinnati Post, in twelve years was married and celebrated by founding the Kentucky Post. In 1907, E. W. Scripps established the United Press and by the next year, he owned newspapers from Memphis to Los Angeles. Then he met Roy W. Howard, a flamboyant Indian and later friend of mine, and the two combined to form the Scripps-Howard chain of newspapers, which was to become probably the most powerful such combination in the world. Meantime,

E. W. Scripps was falling in and out with people, hobnobbing with the great and would-be great when he wanted to, and putting much of it down in what is now this new book, "I Protest." It is not only interesting but informative history of his times. He died at the age of 71 aboard his yacht and typical of the unorthodox quality of the man, was buried at sea. But his impact on our country will never be lost.

According to Actna Life & Casualty calculations, the rise in home construction costs and personal property values in recent years has caused more than half of all insured homes in the United States to be underinsured.

Lt. John F. Grimes Gets Army Commission

Second Lt. John F. Grimes III, a 1966 graduate of Wake Forest College, Winston-Salem, N. C., received his Army Reserve commission through the Reserve Officer Training Corps at the school June 6.

Lieutenant Grimes, whose parents, and wife, Cecie, live at 62 Duke St., Cooleemee, N. C., earned his commission in the Armor Branch.

As an ROTC cadet, Lieutenant Grimes was trained in various subjects which provided him with the skills necessary to command.

The 23-year-old lieutenant is a 1961 graduate of Davie County High School in Mocksville and received a B. S. degree from the college. He is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

Car Skids Out Of Control And Wrecks

An accident occurred Sunday morning about nine o'clock, six miles west of Mocksville, when a 1965 Ford operated by Mrs. Estelle Tillman Wicker of Carthage, N. C., applied brakes too slowly for other traffic and lost control of her car. She skidded across roadway off embankment.

Investigating officer R. L. Beane said the left side of the vehicle was damaged and that damages amounted to $200.

By Woody Durham / WFMV-TV Sports Director

Courage comes in all shapes and sizes. The American League this season has had many examples of raw courage on the playing field. But one case stands out above all others.

It involves a bat boy from Baltimore, a 12-year-old whose courage has tugged at the heart strings of every American Leaguer who has met the lad.

He's Jay Mazzone who is 12 years old and the son of a Maryland State trooper.

Jay is a handicapped youngster, or so one would think. Jay, you see, lost both hands when he was the victim of fire at age 2 1/2 years. Equipped with artificial limbs, he has proved himself most capable in handling the coveted bat boy's job for the Baltimore Orioles.

Using his hands with amazing dexterity, Jay carries on the manifold duties of the bat boy, asking no quarter, and refusing to consider he is handicapped.

A player asked Jay how he manages to do so many things with this sort of handicap and he replied, "Sir, I don't figure I'm handicapped. I hardly remember when I was like the other kids."

Jay's tragic accident occurred in Pleasantville, New Jersey, when he was not quite three years old. A kerosene can exploded on his snowsuit. For a month there was considerable doubt that Jay would live. But after numerous skin grafts and the loss of his hands, the youngster made it.

After his father moved to Maryland and joined the state police, a friend of the family wrote to the Orioles, explaining the lad's situation. Jay was invited to try out for bat boy. He worked a series with the Tigers last season and this year was given the visiting clubs as his own.

A sixth grader, Jay plays on a football team and is right fielder on the ball team. He swims, plays table tennis and can use a rifle.

Jay says that Bobby Richardson and Frank Corselli of the Yankees made him feel at home. Bobby offered to help Jay tie his shoe laces, but the said he could handle them all right.

Corselli gave the boy half a dozen balls and another autographed by the Yankee team.

Jay has even made the Congressional Record. A Congressman moved that a story on Jay Mazzone, written by Merrel Whittlesey of the Washington Evening Star, be read into the record as a moving example of an American boy's courage.

Pvt. Kenneth Hensley Completes Army Course

Army Pvt. Kenneth G. Hensley, 20, son of Elmer Hensley, Route 2, Hot Springs, N. C., completed a light vehicle driver course at Fort Jackson, S. C., May 27.

He was trained in the operation and maintenance of military vehicles up to and including the two and one-half ton truck.

Hensley entered the Army in February of this year and completed basic training at Fort Gordon, Ga.

He attended Enka High School and worked for Paritto Tree Surgeons in Asheville prior to entering the Army.

Pack Of Matches Abets Wreck Here On Monday

A pack of matches cost Walter Holman, 41-year-old Negro of Mocksville, more than $400 Monday.

Holman was driving a 1965 Chevrolet up Poplar Street in Mocksville and reached into the back seat to get a pack of matches. When he did he ran off the road and hit a telephone pole.

Mocksville Policeman Lonnie Tatterow investigated the accident. The car was damaged around $400.

Statewide Program Aids Medical Staffs

Health Career Opportunity

The sick must be cured, the injured must be treated and babies will have to be delivered.

To perform these tasks for its expanding population, North Carolina must increase the number of health personnel — trained specialists who staff hospitals, clinics and laboratories — and maintain required services essential to the welfare of its people.

A critical shortage of health personnel exists in North Carolina, and the nation as well, and predictions indicate future shortages that may curtail health services or reduce the high quality currently maintained.

At the present time 300 hospital beds in the state cannot be used because qualified nurses are unavailable for employment. Other hospitals, due to lack of trained personnel, are forced to assign persons to jobs requiring more training and skills than they possess.

With each new year, the situation will grow worse. The population explosion, greater longevity and less infant mortality are creating a greater demand for health services. New federal programs, such as Medicare to those over 65 years of age, will increase the need for expanded medical and dental care to the people.

By the year 1970 it is estimated that the nation will need 330,000 more physicians and 300,000 more registered nurses. The annual supply of dentists, dental auxiliaries and medical technicians must be doubled. The current annual number of occupational therapists and PhD's in psychology will have to be multiplied tenfold. Increases in the numbers of other trained personnel, such as dietitians, anesthesiologists, pharmacists and dental laboratory and medical records technicians, will be required to handle the health needs of today and tomorrow.

In rapidly growing North Carolina, there are 3.4 hospital beds for each 1,000 of its more than 4 1/2 million residents. This compares favorably with the national figure of 3.6 beds. Three large medical centers and numerous community hospitals serve the people through teaching, research and the practice of the healing arts. The effectiveness of these facilities depends entirely on having sufficient skilled professionals to utilize modern medical knowledge and scientific equipment. The tools and the know-how that have been developed are worthless without capable personnel.

Believing that North Carolinians can solve their own problem, hospital administrators established a statewide program in 1963 to inform students of health career opportunities and assist those interested in applying for training and scholarships.

Designated Health Careers for North Carolina, the program was an enlargement of a three year project that had originated earlier in the western counties of the state. A shortage of nurses in the Asheville area had prompted hospital administrators to raise funds and hire personnel for a promotional effort in the mountain counties.

The state program was developed by the N. C. Hospital Association which sought and received financial support from interested health groups, foundations and individual donors. It operates under the N. C. Hospital Education and Research Foundation, Inc., a non-profit, charitable and educational organization.

Initial results of the program are promising. A surgery completed last year revealed an increase of 36% in the number of young persons applying for training in the health field. Twenty percent more students were actually accepted in comparison to the previous year.

Since the need for trained persons in the medical and technical professions remains critical in spite of initial successes, a concentrated recruitment program will be promoted. A fourteen member staff administers the program from six district offices in Asheville, Winston-Salem, Charlotte, Raleigh, Fayetteville and Greenville. A director, with offices in Raleigh, coordinates the work of the separate districts.

The aim of the Health Careers program is to inform each junior and senior high school student in the state of health career opportunities and to assist those interested in knowing more about a specific career of their choice.

Staff members work directly with the students in junior and senior high schools, as well as with students in junior colleges and technical institutes. Special presentations are given in school assemblies and to vocational classes. Interested students may request printed material giving information on a specific career. They also request an appointment with a professional person in their community. Close liaison is maintained with school guidance counselors who are provided with a wealth of career information, guidebooks and scholarship manuals.

Health Career Clubs in the high schools are promoted by staff members. Numbering about 150 throughout the state, the clubs bring together students interested in nursing and other health-related fields in order to explore career opportunities and to achieve better knowledge of health occupations. A school advisor works directly with the club to insure that club members receive complete and up-to-date information.

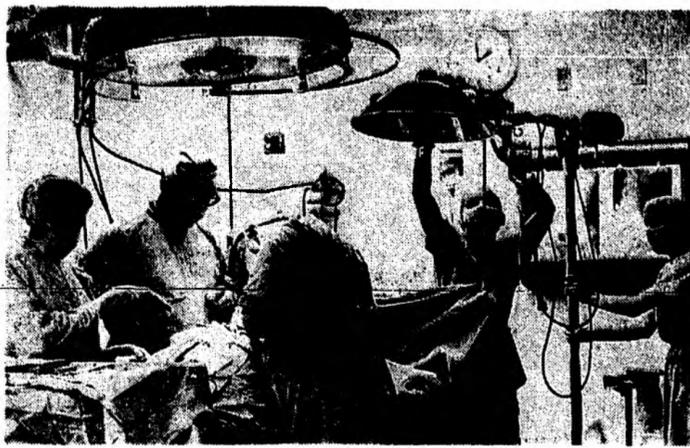

These clubs have organized a state society known as Health Career Clubs of North Carolina. A two-day state convention, held annually in a centrally-located city, attracts large numbers of students. Health Career Days are promoted in numerous cities throughout the state and these feature exhibits, tours of medical facilities and consultation with professional health persons.

Something had to be done, and now it is being done. The beneficiaries will be the people of North Carolina for they require, and must receive, the care that is essential to good health.

The New England lobster inserts a grain of sand near the base of each feeler to help keep a bearing in its nearly weightless state in water, the National Geographic says. Gravity exerts a faint but constant downward pull on the sand grains, giving the lobster what amounts to a built-in plumb line.

Until about 1900, only one nation—Great Britain—was urbanized. Now all the industrial nations have mainly urban populations, and the trend to city living shows no signs of declining.

Hospitals Are Short of Trained Personnel

Shortage of trained personnel in operating rooms, laboratories, nursing staffs, etc. create a problem that will be more intensified when medicare comes effective July 1st. The organization of Health Careers, Inc. of North Carolina are stepping up their program to interest young men and women in some of the related professions.

Operational Base Needs Enlarging

Mocksville Should Extend Limits

A tax increase of .12c and an increase in the minimum water rate from $1.00 to a $1.83 once again focuses attention on the Town of Mocksville's most critical problem . . . enlargement of its base.

For many years now there has been talk of extending the town limits but for some reason nothing has ever been done. Instead, the Town of Mocksville continues to find itself limited in its operational where-with-all simply because it does not have a large enough supporting base from which to draw.

By extending the town limits the municipality would take in areas, people and businesses that are by all rights and recognition an integral part of the town already. This would not only increase the property valuation for the town, but also its area and population. This would mean that the town would derive more funds from such state and federal grants that are allocated on the basis of population and area.

Also, and of the utmost importance, by increasing in size, the Town of Mocksville would put itself in much better shape as far as the per capita debt limit is concerned.

In fact, we can see nothing but advantages for all concerned in the extension of the town limits. If Mocksville is going to grow and serve as the hub for industrial development in Davie County then it must be in a position to offer the needed services. And we see no way for it to continue to offer these needed services unless some steps are taken to put a "few more shoulders to the wheel". For after all the cart that is being pushed is for the benefit of much more than just the encompassed residents of Mocksville.

The citizens of Mocksville . . . and the business located within its borders . . . are the ones that are paying off the water bonds. Most of this is being paid off through tax revenue and is reflected in the increased tax rate. The Town of Mocksville is also furnishing water to residents, industrial plants and businesses outside the city limits. This is fine . . . it should be done to promote growth and progress in the area . . . but don't we need a few more sharing the basic cost in the providing of such facilities?

We realize there might be some political ramifications involved by the extension of the town limits . . . but really is there a choice? You can only delay the inevitable . . . and it is only a matter of time until the town limits are extended. Putting it off . . . year after year . . . is not only penalizing the taxpayers of Mocksville but maybe "stumping" the growth of the entire area.

WASHINGTON REPORT

BOOKEEPING ITEM

There is a popular fiction in Washington that the national debt is a bookkeeping item that only needs to be watched and manipulated from time to time. It is shocking that the nation's indebtedness does not seem to be taken more seriously than it is.

Some years ago, Congress passed legislation placing a ceiling on the legal debt limit. The law means that the Treasury Department cannot borrow money beyond the limit stated in the law. I feel this is sound legislation. However, it is regrettable that spending policies have forced the Congress to abandon, for all practical purposes, the debt-limit concept. We saw an example of how frayed and tattered that concept is last week as the House of Representatives repeated the dreary and embarrassing exercise of increasing the so-called temporary debt limit. This was required because Federal expenditures are sending the national debt right through the ceiling again.

I viewed this legislation with great misgivings, particularly because of the heavy-handed manipulation of our fiscal policy during the last six months. I opposed the measure because I felt it important for the Congress to put the Administration on notice that a greater effort must be made to return to some kind of sanity in the financial management of the country.

The legislation, plus other moves this year, make a sham of efforts by the Congress to limit the debt ceiling. The pretense that this legislation is only "temporary" should be apparent to all. It is not any more "temporary" than the many other "temporary" increases that have been legislated and forgotten.

Actually, this bill would raise the debt ceiling from $328 billion to $330 billion — an increase of $2 billion. Certainly, as Federal financing goes, this is a relatively small amount. Nevertheless, there are a number of factors which make it surprising that there should be any necessity for increasing the debt limit at this time. We have to remember that there has been a speed-up of tax collections already requested by the President and granted by the Congress, his, alone, will result in $3 billion in additional revenue. By taking silver out of our coins, the Government has obtained a wind-fall profit of $1.6 billion.

By refinancing Government loans plus the sale of strategic materials in our national stockpile, another $6 billion will come into the Treasury. These are "one-shot" profits. These funds only make a particle contribution to the expanded scale of expenditures. In the fiscal year 1967, the Government will be spending more than $118 billion, an increase of $33 billion over the annual rate of expenditures only 5 years ago. Less than one third of this amount can be attributed to the war in Viet Nam.

"We have a period of prosperity for which we can be very thankful. However, spending policies of the Government are causing many of the country's economists and financial experts to worry about whether the policies of the White House will, in fact, contribute to economic difficulties. There is no doubt that the inflation we are experiencing today is largely stimulated by the pressures of Government spending and deficits. The drain on our gold reserves is causing serious difficulty for the value of the dollar both at home and abroad. All these things sound as though they ought to concern only those people who have responsibility for managing the nation's economy. However, they are of very real concern for the private citizen who is now watching the value of his savings being drained off by inflation and deficit spending in Washington as a result of the same policies which may also require a request by the White House for an increase in taxes.

Not long ago, the President asked American business to forego plant expansions to ease the problem of inflation. He al-

MUCH UNREST FOUND IN N. C. SCHOOLS

NO REST . . . Sitting in his office here at 601 Devereux Street two days after Raleigh had voted overwhelmingly to improve its schools, City Superintendent of Schools Jesse Sanderson spoke about these words:

"Almost all the enjoyment gained from the passage of the vote has been wiped out by the hickering and fussing here and there since its adoption last Saturday . . .

"And . . . so . . . I have . . . made up my mind . . . what I intend to tell the Board when it meets next Tuesday."

Due to "guidelines", teacher unrest — teachers are seldom happy any more — cantankerous parents, and the gouging, probing, the racial turmoil, the back-biting, gossip, and general cussedness of a lot of students, the average school administrator would like to follow the path taken by Jesse Sanderson.

Speaking slowly, carefully, and it seemed, painfully, one of the nation's greatest city school superintendents continued about as follows:

"There . . . is no rest . . . they worry you to death . . . hounded. You are allowed no peace. No hours, it seems, are even left for sleep — if you can sleep. There seems to be no . . . keeping up . . . with the situation . . ."

His voice trailed off. After 25 years, was it worth the effort? And it was easy to know for a fact that Jesse Sanderson would the following Tuesday announce to the Board of Education his retirement. He no doubt even then was preparing the statement announcing his decision.

It is sad to see a great man like Sanderson—and some other school administrators in this State—forced to their knees. The Board, taken by surprise the following Tuesday by the sudden announcement of retirement, asked Superintendent Sanderson if he would reconsider. He stuck to his decision. The newspapers then wrote sickeningly beautiful editorials. The Sanderson Situation exists this summer all across North Carolina, all across America. You find no peace anywhere in Administrative Education. Maybe that is as it should be, who knows?

BOWLES BOWLING . . . A few days after Skipper Bowles of Greensboro went winging through the Primary as one of the Democratic nominees for the House from Guilford, his brother John in Los Angeles also made news.

Beckman Instruments of Los Angeles announced that 49-year-old John Bowles had been named its new marketing vice president.

Bowles went with Rexall in 1949 as a sales representative. He became president of the drug division after serving as a district sales manager, regional vice president, and president.

LESS TALKATIVE . . . They voted in this new ABC store back in the mountains, and in its first day of operation, the thirsty gathered from all around.

"Among those in line was a rather prominent member of the local Baptist church, or it may have been Methodist (it certainly wasn't Episcopal). Be that as it may, as the church member stood in line he saw out of the corner of his eye his minister coming down the street. He turned his head sideways, looked down at his shoes. But despite his best efforts, the preacher, of course, saw him, spoke to him. He was most, most embarrassed.

Thereafter, for several days he dodged his minister. But suddenly one morning they ran solidly into each other at the corner of a building. The dodger was asked why he had been evading his pastor.

Finally, he admitted he had been worried at being seen by his minister at the ABC store. The preacher here in: "But don't worry about me. I am just a person, an individual. Worry about the Lord's knowing about it."

The minister talked on and on in this fashion. "Well, I'll tell you, Preacher, I've done other things now and then through life. The reason I worry so much more about you than I do the Lord is I've found Him not to be such a big blabbermouth."

CARS AND PLANES . . . If

automobiles were as long-lived as airplanes, a million Americans would be thrown out of work this year.

When we have had a car for two, three years, we hear knocks all over it. It has been bumped to the point where we are all but embarrassed to be seen driving it.

So, we trade it in on a new one.

But the fine DC-3 airplane bought by the State of North Carolina the other day is considered still in its youth. It was built in 1945 — more than 20 years ago. When an auto attains the age of 20, it is regarded as an antique.

LEMON TWIST . . . It has a long name, but there is no doubt about its purpose — North Carolina Congress Against Whiskey by the Drink.

Until recently, only the poverty-stricken seemed to be against whiskey. The dregs in the old days seemed never to have any money. But now, more and more, there is a twist underway.

This new organization is led by Millionaire Henderson Belk, who turned against whiskey at the behest of Billy Graham, and H. G. Bell of High Point. There is evidence they have money to spend in their fight—and are getting good promises of more from certain industrial and commercial companies here and there. An interesting battle is thus developing.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: My latest pamphlet from the Department of Agriculture come last week and they were a article in it saying the food surplus in this country was getting cut down to almost nothing. The piece said a real bad crop year would run us short of wheat for our own use.

I brung this matter up at the country store Saturday night and Ed Doolittle claimed if we didn't stop our food giveaway program to them foreign countries we was fixing to change places with the folks we was trying to help.

Zeke Grubb reported he had saw a piece in his farm magazine where they was a shortage of blackeyed peas in this country right now. Zeke claimed blackeyed peas and hog meat had held America together for 200 year and we better quit giving 'em away immediate.

I don't know, Mister Editor, what the answer is to the nation's farm problem. We start out paying millions to git farmers to cut down on crops, more millions for shortage of the surplus crops they was raising, and now we was running short. Actual, fer 20 year the Government has been running the farm program on a guessing basis. They ain't nobody in Washington it seems, that knows nothing about the problem. But ever administration comes up with a new answer, and it's always wrong.

Clem Webster said Saturday night the Government couldn't even do its own farming with any sense. He said he was reading a piece where the Navy Academy in Annapolis had a typhoid fever scare back in 1911 and started its own dairy so's the students would git unainted milk. This scare disappeared 40 year ago but they was still running their own dairy and milking their own cows at the Academy. The General Accounting Office figured out the other day, reported Clem, that they could buy milk of the same quality from local dairies at a savings to the taxpayers of $84,000 a year.

Bug Hookum come up with the best answer to the problem I've saw anywhere. Bug said Saturday night our Congressmen knowed about all the millions we been wasting for years, come home to mend their fences and complain about it, but they ain't done nothing about it in the last 30 year.

Bug allowed as how the answer to the whole problem was, to elect a Congressman fer six month terms. If he didn't do nothing in six months, git a new one, and keep rotating 'em ever six months till we git some results. And he was in favor of electing Senators on a one-year basis, and make 'em come home ever year and give account of theirselves.

If you like this idea, Mister you might give it a editorial whirl.

Uncle Dave

Around The Old Well

By JOAN PAGE

Lobbying activity relating to a measure with which he was well-acquainted, one with which he was not well-acquainted, and about the techniques and general effectiveness of interest groups.

By focusing on congressmen's perceptions and responses to lobbying activities, the study offers a new perspective on this facet of American government. Previous studies of the subject have centered on activities of interest groups rather than on responses of congressmen to those activities.

"It is the congressman, not the interest group representative, who must finally cast his vote in committee or on the House floor," the authors explain. "Interest groups can have a direct influence on Congressional decision-making only insofar as they have an effect on individual congressmen. We have therefore chosen to concentrate on the way congressmen view interest groups."

The professors discovered that, for the most part, congressmen accept interest group activities as a normal part of the legislative process. Elected officials look upon lobbies as representatives of wants and needs of various elements of the people and as a valuable source of information.

They also found, however, that congressmen have definite ideas on the "proper" role of interest groups in the law-making process. Congressmen are apt to be resentful if interest groups appear to encroach on what congressmen view as their "proper domain"—that is decision-making.

The authors note that when an interest group spokesman oversteps himself in dealing with a congressman, he runs the dual risk of affording the congressman's ideas about the manner in which an interest group should conduct itself, and offending his sense of dignity and integrity.

Three basic reasons are cited in the book as to why lobbies do not dominate the legislative process. Lobbies do not have a monopoly of access to congressmen—they do not have at their disposal effective instruments of pressure, their "pressures" are not passively received by Congress but are actively molded and channeled by formal and informal rules of congressional operating procedures. A key instrument of power (the professors illustrate, would be the capacity of an interest group to defeat a congressman at the polls. This instrument is rarely at the lobbyist's disposal.

Data in the Hunt-Scott study shows the potency of most contact techniques used by interest groups to be slight. Instruments that might be effective are illegal (bribery), suspect (making a campaign contribution), or impractical (trying to influence a congressman's election).

The primary justification of interest groups in the eyes of many congressmen is that they serve as vehicles for conveying information and opinion from various segments of the public to the congressmen.

"It is one thing to provide a congressman with information in competition with other sources," the authors observe, "and quite another to be able to influence his vote in a significant way."

One of the reasons congressmen place a high value on information provided by interest groups, they explain, is that Congress itself does not provide adequate alternative ways to satisfy information needs. The study points to a need for re-examination and reorganization of Congressional arrangements for gathering, processing, retrieving, analyzing and using information.

"Those who are troubled by the presumed power of interest groups might consider whether this feature of Congressional reform would not do more to weaken the position of interest groups than passage of more stringent lobby registration requirements," the authors suggest. "Removal of the basis for a key service function performed by interest groups might be a more effective way of dealing with interest groups than use of legislation."

Hunt and Scott reason that if legislative action is NOT simply the vector of interest group pressures on Congress, then there must be room for concern on the part of legislators for the national interest.

"Congressmen can and do have ideas relating to the welfare of the nation as a whole and these ideas are not defined wholly in terms of group advantage," they conclude.

"Congressmen have an opportunity to introduce these ideas in Congress and often have freedom of

CHURCH OF CHRIST

June 20 - 26

Each Night At 7:30

Preaching By

A. W. CHISM

Dallas, Texas

- Congregational Singing
- Fellowship and Prayers
- Simple Gospel Preaching
- Bible Questions Answered Nightly

Many of you heard A. W. Chism in a Gospel Meeting at North Main two years ago. We are happy to bring him back to Mocksville and to give you another opportunity to hear the gospel preached by him. We hope that YOU will take advantage of the opportunity. Each sermon will be sound and sensible. Those who didn't hear the speaker two years ago are encouraged to visit us during this meeting. All are invited. No collection will be taken—you will never be "begged" nor embarrassed. Our purpose for this meeting is to have the gospel preached, believed, and obeyed.

We all know that June is— "DAIRY MONTH"

An important event to those of us who deal in feeding cows for the providing of milk and other Dairy Products for the table in your home.

This is the 30th Anniversary of this Nationwide DAIRY INDUSTRY—and this recognition serves as a fitting backdrop to highlight the importance of milk—and to salute our own Good Davie County Farmers and Dairymen.

Ijames Cross Roads

The Ijames Soft Ball team played Blaise at the local field, June 6. Larry Gaither started on the mound with Tommy Gobble doing the catching. Some excellent footwork in the outfield was done by Larry and Roger Johnson. The Ijames team won 18 to 6. The ladies of the community wish to thank everyone from Blaise who helped in the selling of hot dogs and soft drinks.

The Ijames team played Bear Creek at the William R. Davie field, June 6. It was a real thriller as the score was tied 14 to 14 at the end of the game. The "Sudden Death" playoff was used and the Ijames team lost 15 to 14. Bear Creek team remains undefeated in the league. Dwight Blackwelder and Odell Gobble made some spectacular catches in the outfield as it rained during most of the game and the grass was wet and slippery.

The Ijames team will play Center at the Ijames field, Thursday, June 16. A special invitation is extended to all the people of Center community to come to the game and support the refreshment stand for the benefit of the team.

The Vacation Bible School of Ijames Church was held Sunday night, June 12. Each class was asked to tell what they had learned during the week and their crafts from each class was displayed. An average attendance of 70 attended during the week. Money collected will be used to fix the church sign at the intersection of Highway 64 and Sheffield Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Laymon and children of Austin, Texas visited Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Glasscock last Thursday.

Miss Debbie Rice of Clemmons spent the week with Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Gobble and Stanley Gobble.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray Gentry and Ricky and Tommy Wofford of Winston-Salem spent last week with Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Gentry.

Mrs. Allee Clontz of Route 1, Advance, pictured above, who plays the piano with a honky tonk sound will play at the Grand Opening of the SEVEN DEVILS Mountain Resort, Saturday, June 18. It is located midway between Boone and Linville, N. C. Allee is the 1963 Dixie Classic Talent Search winner. She is married to William Brodus Clontz. They have two daughters, Sandra and Lisa. She is the daughter of Ira Clinton Ellis and the late Ivey Bowden Ellis, of Route 1, Clemmons, N. C.

Campbell Heads Development District

The Board of Directors of Yadkin Valley Economic Development District, Inc. approved the employment of Claude A. Campbell of Fayetteville, North Carolina, for the position of District Program Co-ordinator. Mr. Campbell presently serves as Assistant Director of the Sandhills Community Action Program headquarters at Carthage, North Carolina, serving four counties.

Mr. Campbell is 33 years of age and is married. He is a graduate of Appalachian State Teachers College with a B.S. degree and has done graduate work toward his Master's degree in the field of guidance.

Mr. Campbell taught school at Westfield in Surry County for two years in the late 1950's.

Although several deserving applicants who lived within the four county area served by the Yadkin Valley Economic Development District, Inc. were deserving, the Board of Directors acknowledged Mr. Campbell's knowledgeability of the programs designed to combat poverty and he brings with him valuable experience.

Efforts are now being made to solicit employment of staff personnel and to get the program underway.

As a general rule begin with 15 minutes exposure the first day, and increase the time by a few minutes a day. The time of day is important, with the midday period, when the sun is directly overhead, being the hottest for burning purposes.

Continued tanning brings gradual changes in the blood vessels of the exposed surfaces. The connective tissue of the skin degenerates, causing wrinkles and a coarsening of texture. The "V" of the neck becomes permanently reddened and the freckle-like dark spots appear on the skin. These spots can sometimes be the start of skin cancer.

Sun bleaches the hair, too, and over a period of time the sun-bleached hair becomes brittle and unmanageable. However, the damaged hair will eventually grow out.

The physical benefit of tanning are almost nil. The only beneficial effect the sunlight, other than the psychological lift of sporting a good tan, is the formation of vitamin D, and the American die already provides an ample supply.

HEALTH TIPS

FROM THE American Medical Association

HEALTH AND SAFETY TIPS FROM THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

One dermatologist (skin specialist) has predicted that sun-tanning some day will no longer be a "statue symbol" and that people will quit basking their outer hides to a golden brown each summer.

The dermatologists have long known of the hazards of sun-tanning, such as premature aging of the skin and various freckles and blemishes.

But your doctor also knows that, whatever the future brings, some Americans today still are sun-tanners, and thus the American Medical Association suggests that if you must tan, do it without burning.

Gradual tanning with a minimum of discomfort is possible for most people. Gradual exposure to the sun is the safest and simplest method of acquiring an attractive tan.

Social Security In Davie County

First medicare premium notices are in the mail to more than 2 million of the elderly people who signed up for the voluntary doctor bill insurance to supplement their basic hospital insurance under medicare, Robert C. Thomas, social security district manager in Salisbury, announced today.

Another 15 million older people enrolled for the doctor bill insurance will not receive premium notices, Mr. Thomas said. Their $3 permiums will be deducted from their monthly social security, railroad retirement, or civil service benefit checks, beginning with the checks due early in July.

The premium notices now being delivered, Mr. Thomas said, call for quarterly payments of $9, payment for the doctor bill insurance protection for the months of July, August, and September. This is one-half the cost of the protection; the other half is paid out of general Federal revenues.

With the punch card premium notice is a return envelope pre-addressed to one of six social security payment centers which are located in New York, Philadelphia, Birmingham, Chicago, Kansas City, and

San Francisco. Payment should be made by check or money order payable to "Social Security Medical Insurance," Mr. Thomas said.

Older persons who cannot manage to make the quarterly premium payment of $9 or have any questions about the premium payments, may get in touch with their social security district offices. Premium payments for medical insurance are due on or before the first day of each month of coverage, he pointed out. The Salisbury social security office is located at 105 Corriher Avenue. That office will be open until 9:00 PM on Friday nights through June.

60 Second Sermon
By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Excuses only account for what they do not alter."—Disraeli.

A visitor to the plantation expressed his surprise that William, the gardener, a man of 40 or so, had never married.

"Why, William?" exclaimed the visitor. "You know that Adam was a gardener and he had a wife."

"Yessuh, I know," William replied, "He had a wife, sho nuff, but he didn't keep his job long after he got her."

We are clever in thinking of reasons why we should not do the things we don't want to do. William used the Garden of Eden as his example. Excuses can become a treacherous crutch. The more we use excuses, the more we need them to avoid obligations. Our crutch shows. We become known & are not trusted. The crutch breaks and we limp badly.

At times we should and must make excuses. But this should not become a habit. Accept responsibilities even when they are unpleasant. Make gracious gestures even though they are burdensome. It is good discipline for you and invariably will result far more pleasantly than you imagined. Excuses not only do not alter situations, they fail to account for them. When possible, it is better to do bravely than to limp away on an excuse.

DISPERSAL SALE
DUTCHMAN CREEK RANCH
Mocksville, Rt. 3 Sain Road
Saturday, July 2nd at 1:00 P. M.

It is with sincere regret that we find it necessary to disperse the entire band of registered Quarter Horses at our Dutchman Creek Ranch, but due to the time required to operate my business, and lack of adequate help, since our manager, Jimmy McDonna, accepted the management duties of one of North Carolina's large cattle ranches, we are forced to sell this band of foundation bred horses that we so carefully selected from some of the top ranches throughout the West.

We are very proud of our horses, and the quality colts produced by our mares is a great satisfaction. We will have approximately 55 horses to sell including: broodmares; colts; and two great stallions, Chieftain Five and Hired Hand's Bee.

We will have 20 head of additional horses from out-of-state co-signed to this sale. These will be performance horses as well as breeding stock.

TO SELL: Chieftain Five, an own son of Silver Wimpy, out of an own daughter of Royal Peppy. A proven sire of quality get.

U. S. Air Force Has Enlistment Programs

Local Air Force Recruiting Sergeant Jim Brand announced today that the Air Force has a new program which allows young men to enlist up to 120 days before actually reporting to active duty.

Called the Delayed Enlistment Program, this new Air Force plan gives men the opportunity of enlisting while still in high school with a guarantee of later active duty Air Force training following graduation.

Young men who are between 18 and 27 years of age are eligible to enter the Delayed Enlistment Program, according to Sgt. Jim Brand, providing that they can meet Air Force mental and physical entrance requirements.

This new program is especially advantageous to those desiring to enlist in the Air Force but who are temporarily not in a position to do so because of school status, seasonal employment, or other personal reasons, the Sergeant pointed out.

Those who enter the Air Force under the Delayed Enlistment Program will be called to active duty between 30 and 120 days after joining. The specific date for active duty call will be mutually arrived at by enlistee and recruiter prior to enlistment.

Sgt. Jim Brand cautioned young men not to confuse the Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program with similar sounding so-called "120 day programs" offered by other services. The Air Force program differs considerably. For example, men enrolled in the Air Force program who fail to graduate from high school on schedule, who are accepted for college enrollment, or who incur any other personal hardship prior to their reporting date for active duty may apply for immediate discharge from the Air Force.

Further information may be obtained by telephoning Sergeant Brand at Winston-Salem, N. C. or by writing the Air Force Recruiting Office, 514 North Trade St., Box 856, Winston-Salem, N. C.

MORE ABOUT Washington Report

As asked that American housewives cut down on their spending at the supermarket. These might very well be methods that could be useful in dealing with inflation. However, it seems to me that if American business and the American consumer are to be enlisted for this cause, the Government itself should lead the way by showing restraint. It certainly has shown little willingness to do this and I believe the debt limit legislation of this past week is another example of what happens when the Federal Government fails to meet its responsibility for the careful and prudent management of the nation's money.

Recipients Of Music Scholarship

Four students of Mrs. Elmo Foster, piano teacher, who are studying the "Progressive Series Plan of Music Education" will attend the 1966 summer session of the St. Louis Institute of Music, St. Louis, Missouri, from June 20 through July 29.

They are 1966 graduates of Davie County High School and are as follows: Miss Cathy Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eldr Wilson of Advance; Jimmy Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson of Advance, Route 2; Miss Elizabeth (Liz) Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Evans, Route 1, Mocksville; and, Miss Beverly Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Foster, Route 3, Mocksville.

Having completed the respective pre-requisites in music they have been awarded summer sessions scholarships to the Institute by the Art Publication Society. To qualify for such scholarships, the local teacher recommends students in the early years of study, depending on interest and qualifications, to become enrolled with the Art Publication Society. Upon being enrolled, they begin serious study knowing that having met the requirements and upon High School graduation, they will be eligible for such a scholarship. The various phases of study include music theory, keyboard harmony ear training as well as applied music. Written theory examinations and examinations in applied piano are given under the local teacher at regular intervals and sent to the Society. They are graded by the Board of Examiners and recorded in the Society's files. No grade below 90 is ever accepted.

Such students automatically become partial members of the National Pi Mu Music Society and, after passing a certain examination in St. Louis this summer, they will be initiated into full membership, a highlight of the Pi Mu banquet.

Students continuing their music education and meeting the Society's requirements will be eligible for future summer sessions. They do receive diplomas and certificates according to work completed at each session. While in St. Louis the students will visit many points of interest and will engage in various social activities arranged by the Pi Mu Society. Included in the six weeks' schedule are two visits to the Municipal Opera in Forest Park; a tour of St. Louis; a Mississippi excursion on the steamship Admiral; a visit to Grant's farm; and the Pi Mu banquet and pageant. They will attend the Summer Music Festival at the Chase Park Plaza Hotel and "Mid-Summer Madness" at Clayton Community Center. Also, a highlight of this session will be an arm chair tour, by way of color slides and travelogue, to places visited by the 1965 Foreign Seminar students. The Foreign Seminar is a special feature of the Institute each summer. Mrs. Foster, who is an active Progressive Series teacher and is now teaching in the Shady Grove School, has been invited to attend such a Seminar.

The students' stay in St. Louis will be an enjoyable one as it is not only a source of higher learning, but one of meeting new friends as most of the states are represented at these sessions. To celebrate the students "going away" and marking the end of 8 and 9 years of music instruction, Mrs. Foster entertained the group and their parents with a cook-out at her home on Route 3 Monday evening, June 13.

Annual Achievement Day Is Held

Davie 4-H Talent Demonstrated

4-H'ers throughout Davie County had a chance to exhibit their abilities as demonstrators Saturday, June 18th, at Mocksville Elementary School. The event was the annual County 4-H Demonstration Day. Elimination contest in project areas are conducted to determine which 4-H'ers will represent the county at District Demonstration Day.

Out of the twenty-four demonstrations presented, eighteen will represent Davie County in District competition June 30 at Elkin High School.

Cash certificates, applicable toward 4-H Camp or State 4-H Club Week, were awarded to the best demonstrators. Winners this year were Linda Blackwelder, Twila Handlin, Roberta Handlin, John Vogler, and Linda Marshall.

The club having the most entries will be presented with a "Demonstrations 1966" banner. Mocks 4-H Club took this honor for the second consecutive year. Redland 4-H Club was second and third was the North Davie 4-H Club.

1966 4-H Health winners were also announced. They are: Senior Teens, Linda Blackwelder and Eddie Leagans; Early Teens, Sherry Shoaf and Jerry Koozil; and Pre Teens, Kathy Smith & Roland Lakcy. The Senior Teens Kink & Queen will participate in the State 4-H Health Pageant during 4-H Club Week in Raleigh.

Judges for the demonstrations were Mrs. Louise Smith, Mrs. Jerri Paige, Mrs. Sue Short, and Beaumont Nance.

The following 4-H'ers will represent Davie County at District Demonstration Day: Pam McCulloh, Dairy Foods and Public Speaking; Linda Marshall, Fruit & Vegetable Use and Talent; Linda Blackwelder, Egg Cookery and Farmer Co-operative; Roberta Handlin, Home Improvement; Carole Sparks, Sewing; Larry Boger, Public Speaking; Jane Ruple, Farmer Co-operative; Debbie Bingham, Livestock Production; Gene Jones, Boy's Electric; Roger Blackwelder, Soil and Water Conservation; John Vogler, Forestry; Ricky Hockaday, Entomology and Poultry Barbecue; Eddie Leagans, Forage Crops and Tractor Driving; Jane Vogler, Fruit and Vegetable Production; Twila Handlin, Dress Revue; Marcia and Dale Myers, Talent; and Sharon Hendrix, Talent.

Other demonstrators were Lynn Jones, Judy Carter, Pam Carter, and Mickey Groce. Approximately sixty persons were on hand to observe the demonstrations.

4-H Dress Revue Held

The 1966 4-H Dress Revue was conducted Saturday, June 18, at the Elementary School in conjunction with county Demonstration Day. Entering the stage through a rose-decked gate constructed by Mrs. R. C. Handlin, ten 4-H'ers modeled outfits constructed in their 4-H clothing project as Mrs. Pat Jones narrated the revue.

The winners were awarded cash certificates sponsored by Bell's of Mocksville. They were: Senior Teen, Twila Handlin, wearing a yellow "little boy print" suit; Early Teen, Roberta Handlin, in a plaid, dacron-poplin suit; and Pre-Teen, Christa Tubert, modeling a navy jumper and white blouse. Second place winners were: Karen Cook, Susan Vogler, and Debbie Cook.

Other entries were: Lynn Jones, Judy Carter, Carole Sparks, Mike Gathers, and Lib Bullard. Judges for the Dress Revue were Miss Jane Lee, Assistant Home Economics Extension Agent, Davidson County, and Mrs. Armond Smith.

Janice Douthit Attends National Conference

JANICE DOUTHIT

Janice Douthit of Route 1, Advance, has been selected to represent the state of North Carolina at the National Youth Conference on Natural Beauty and Conservation. The conference will be conducted at the Sheraton-Park Hotel in Washington, D. C., June 26-June 29.

This cooperative activity has been planned and will be conducted by young people from ten youth organizations. The program is being planned (1) to provide opportunities for youth to show people what they are doing in natural beauty and conservation; (2) to demonstrate to the nation that youth can work together on worthwhile community improvement activities; (3) to learn more about the crucial needs for beautification and conservation; (4) to become acquainted with recognized authorities in the fields of conservation; and (5) to meet and associate with other young people from various parts of the county.

Janice, daughter of Mrs. Henry I. Douthit, is a rising Senior at Davie County High School and has been an active member of Four-Leaf 4-H Club since its beginning. She will be the only 4-H club member from N. C. attending the conference.

Other youth organizations will be represented including Boy and Girl Scouts, FFA, FHA, Church Youth Groups, YWCA's and YMCA's.

Kemp Is Named To Moose Post

DR. R. F. KEMP

Dr. Ramey F. Kemp, a member of Mocksville Moose Lodge No. 1949, was appointed Deputy Supreme Governor of North Carolina for the 78th annual international convention of the Moose in Chicago, June 13-16.

He was appointed by the new Supreme Governor of the Moose, Harold D. Ross and will serve as a special representative of the Supreme Governor, the top elective officer of the fraternity.

Kemp attended the special breakfast held for the new deputy supreme governors at the headquarters hotel, the Conrad Hilton, Wednesday morning. He was installed along with other Supreme Lodge officials at the final convention business session Thursday morning.

The deputy supreme governor's medallion, the badge of authority of the office, and formal commission will be presented to Kemp at a special meeting to be held soon in his home state.

Reader's Digest Uses Local Item

Mrs. John Weldon Pennington, of Mocksville, is the recent recipient of a $100 check from the Reader's Digest for an anecdote submitted to the magazine's department "Life in These United States." Mrs. Pennington's contribution appears in the July issue. It is as follows:

Our cat discovered an ingenious method of warming himself. He would jump onto the hood of the car as soon as it was driven into the carport, and soak up the engine heat. I thought he'd be frustrated when we bought a car with the motor in the rear. But my husband apparently had the cat's welfare in mind when he brought the new car home: he backed it into the carport.

That Helpless Feeling

Mrs. Barbara Morgan McBride, 25, of Mocksville Rt. 4 found out that helpless feeling last Saturday when she pushed on her brake pedal and had no brakes. The car, a 1956 Chevrolet, continued on across NC 801 off an embankment and overturned one complete time. Damage to the car was estimated at $175.

Richard Gartrell Is Back In Mocksville

RICHARD GARTRELL

Richard Gartrell, son of a former Mocksville Presbyterian minister, the Rev. E. H. Gartrell and Mrs. Gartrell, was in town Monday selling Webster's Encyclopedic Dictionaries. He is doing this work during his summer vacation.

Richard is one of four children and received most of his education in Gama, Brazil, where his parents have lived and worked as missionaries for fifteen years. He was four years of age when he left Mocksville. (Continued On Page Five)

Murray Heads Local Board of Directors

Central Carolina Bank & Trust Company has formed a Mocksville Board, and announced its intentions to erect a bank office here in the near future.

At an organizational meeting last week, the following were named as board members: Ben C. Ellis, George R. Hendricks, Robert L. Hendricks, T. L. Junker, D. J. Mando, Lester P. Martin, Jr., George E. Merrill, Jr., Sheek Miller, E. C. Morris, M. H. Murray, W. W. Smith, and Paul H. Stroud. The Board elected Murray as chairman, Charles F. Bahnsen as secretary, and named Murray, Martin and Morris as an executive committee.

Bahnsen, manager of the bank's Coolceem office for many years, will now have as his prime responsibility organization and supervision of the new Mocksville office. He will continue to devote time as needed to the Coolceem Office, and for the present will maintain his home there.

In other action, the Board recommended that the bank purchase as site for the new office a lot on the northeast corner of South Main and Water Streets.

Meeting with the board in their organizational session were: George Watts Hill, the bank's Chairman; Paul Wright, Jr., President; W. L. Burns, Jr., Senior Vice President; and J. A. McLean, Vice President.

Ellis is owner and operator of a dairy farm in the Yadkin Valley area. George Hendricks, a retired merchant, is a farmer and breeder of Charolais cattle. Robert Hendricks, owner of Hendricks Brothers Used Cars, is a member of Mocksville Masonic Lodge, and general chairman of the annual Masonic Picnic.

Junker, also a member of Mocksville Masonic Lodge, is incoming president of Mocksville Rotary Club. He is president of Junker & Son, feed mill operators.

Mando is distributive education teacher at Davie County High, and owner of Mando & Company. A past president of Mocksville Rotary Club, he is a member of the Masonic Lodge, past district vice-president of the Jaycees, and is currently serving as Mayor of Mocksville.

Martin is a partner with his brother, George in the Mocksville law firm of Martin & Martin, and a former member of the N. C. legislature. A past master in the Masonic Lodge, he is a Rotarian and a trustee of Appalachian State College.

Merrill is owner of a beef cattle farm in Clarksville Township, a member of Mocksville Masonic Lodge, and owner of Hendricks & Merrill Furniture Co. Miller is a member of the Masonic Lodge, of Mocksville Lions Club, and is president and general manager of Miller's Diner and Restaurant, Inc. He has for several years served as a director of the N. C. Restaurant Association.

Morris is a former chairman of Davie County Commissioners, is a past president of Mocksville Rotary, a member of Mocksville Masonic Lodge, and is serving as president of Mocksville Industrial Development Corporation. He is president of Morris-Larew Insurance Co., Inc.

Murray, a former member of the Mocksville Town Board, belongs to the Rotary Club, is a director of Holly Farms, Inc. and is general manager of Mocksville Feed Mills. Stroud is a Davie County Commissioner, is owner of a Hereford cattle farm, and has a lime and fertilizer business.

Smith was born and educated at Sheffield, and still operates a farm and business there. Over the years, he has had interests in dairy farming, real estate, and several other fields. He is a Mason.

Census Bureau To Test U. S. Smoking Habits

Families in this area will be included in a nationwide survey of smoking habits as part of the June Current Population Survey of the Bureau of the Census, according to Director Joseph R. Norwood of the Census Regional Office in Charlotte.

The questions on smoking will be in addition to the monthly employment survey conducted for the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U. S. Department of Labor. Questions will be asked in selected households of 357 sample areas of the nation.

The questions on smoking, which are sponsored by the U. S. Department of Health, Education & Welfare, will be asked of all persons 17 years old or over to determine if the person has smoked at least 100 cigarettes in his life; if he smokes cigarettes now; how many a day; if he smoked cigarettes three years ago; and if so, how many a day at that time.

Persons also will be asked if they have quit smoking cigarettes for two weeks or longer during the last three years; how many times they have stopped smoking for two weeks or longer during the last three years; and what was the longest period of abstinence from cigarettes during the last three years.

In addition, males will be asked about cigar and pipe smoking habits at the present and over the last three years. Information obtained from individuals by the Census Bureau is confidential by law and can be used for statistical purposes only.

CITE DAVIE PHARMACIST . . . Robert B. Hall (right), Mocksville pharmacist, receives the first annual Don Blanton award at the 86th annual North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association convention held June 12-14 in Asheville. The award, presented by President-Elect Charles Blanton (left) of Kings Mountain, son of the award honoree, was given to Hall for outstanding effort by a North Carolina pharmacist during the past year. William Thomas Boone (center), pharmacist from Asheville, presided at the convention.

The following was given by Charles Blanton of Kings Mountain as he presented the award to Mr. Hall:

The profession of Pharmacy has advanced tremendously over the last years. We believe this advance is due in large measure to efforts of practicing pharmacists who have looked beyond the confines of their immediate practice, and have worked long and hard through county, state, and national associations to bring about the elevation of pharmacy to a position of respect. Through the award I am about to present, the N. C. Ph. A. seeks to recognize the member pharmacist who has done the most during the past year to advance the principles and ideals of Pharmacy. A man who regards the practice of pharmacy not as a job, but as a way of life—worthy of preserving and improving and being proud of as a profession. A person who has given generously of his time to pharmacy and has set a worthy example to other pharmacists and other citizens.

This award is given in memory of my father, who loved Pharmacy as few other men I have known. Born in 1903 in Forest City, N. C., one of eight children, he was forced to drop out of school to help earn a living. He worked in the local drug store and was encouraged by the pharmacist to return to school and to eventually enroll in the School of Pharmacy. With the gracious help of Alice Noble, to whom he has ever remained indebted, he finished pharmacy and became licensed in 1926. As a partner in Kings Mountain Drug Co. from 1937 until his death in 1963, he lent honor and dignity to the profession of pharmacy. He served many years as elder in the Presbyterian church & counted all men as friends. He served seven years on the executive committee of the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association and was its president in 1957.

The first recipient of the Don Blanton Award is a man who served with my father for awhile on the executive committee. Though a generation apart there was a great mutual admiration between them. This man is a man of great worth to the profession of pharmacy. Born in Mount Olive, North Carolina and educated in the city schools of Mocksville, at Wake Forest College and the UNC School of Pharmacy, he is currently serving as President of the N. C. Pharmaceutical Research Foundation, Chairman of the Consolidated Student Loan Fund, Chairman of the Legislative Committees of both the N. C. Ph. A. and the N. C. Association of Professions, member of his district Board of Health and a trustee of the Consolidated University of North Carolina. He is past-president of N. C. Ph. A. and is serving or has served with distinction and dedication of 27 various boards and committees other than the ones named. He, his wife, Hope and their 3 children make their home in Mocksville, N. C. He is Robert B. Hall.

Car Goes Off Roadway And Into Field Saturday

A 1959 Ford went out of control and ran off a rural road, into a ditch, back across to left and into a field.

The accident occurred last Saturday around 4 a. m. on Rural Paved Road 1801.

Richmond Green Lyons, 23, of Mocksville Rt. 4 was operating the car and was charged by State Highway Patrolman R. L. Beane with operating car to the left of center.

Damage to the car was estimated at $75.

MRS. LARRY C. WILSON

The garden of Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Allen on Route 4, was the scene for the wedding of Miss Martha Susan Allen who became the bride of Larry Clinton Wilson Sunday, June 12. Tony Forrest of Taylorsville performed the 2 p. m. ceremony.

Mrs. Mildred James and Miss Shirley James of Route 4, presented the wedding music.

Mrs. Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Allen of Route 4. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Allen and the late Mr. and Mrs. John Bowles. She was graduated from Davie County High School May 27.

Mr. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Wilson of Route 4, is a graduate of Davie County High School and is employed by Ingersoll-Rand. He is the grandson of Mrs. W. H. Barneycastle and the late Mr. Barneycastle. The late Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wilson were his paternal parents.

The couple entered the garden together and spoke their vows under an arch of roses flanked by large baskets of roses and palms.

The bride wore a short dress designed with an empire waistline, sweetheart neckline and long sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil was attached to a cabbage rose and she carried a satin-covered Bible with red rose buds. Her only ornament was a silver necklace, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Jimmy Kiger was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Melinda Bryant, cousin of the bride, and Miss Lynn Wilson, the groom's sister. They wore blue dotted swiss dresses designed with empire lines detailed with lace. They wore rose headpieces to match their attire and carried red roses.

Norman Forrest, the groom's cousin of Route 1, was best man.

For their wedding trip to Western North Carolina, the bride wore a green two piece dotted swiss dress with which she used black accessories and red roses lifted from her Bible.

After June 15, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will make their home on Garner Street.

Miss Linda Spry Honored At Party

Miss Linda Spry, whose engagement to Bobby Diggins is being announced this week, was honored at a Lingerie Shower Friday night, June 17, at the Mocksville Moose Lodge when Mrs. Francis Clark and her daughter, Teresa, joined hospitality in entertaining.

The honoree wore a pale pink cotton dress trimmed with crocheted lace and pinned the corsage of pink carnations and gypsophila presented to her by the hostesses to her attire.

Several bridal games and contests were played by those attending.

The honoree opened her many gifts after which refreshments consisting of pink punch, decorated cake squares, mints, pickles and nuts were served to the guests.

The bride's table was centered with an attractive arrangement consisting of a pink paper umbrella raised over a square of pink carnations, gypsophila and fern encompasped with pink satin ribbon.

Informal Party For Mrs. Upshaw

Mrs. D. J. Mando, Mrs. Bob Hall and Mrs. Jack Ward joined hospitality in entertaining with an informal coca cola party Monday morning in honor of Mrs. Arthur M. Upshaw, Jr. who will be moving with her family to Wilkesboro this week.

The honoree and guests gathered on the patio of the "Hobo House" in the yard of the Hall home on Highlander Drive. During the social hour, iced coca colas, cheese straws, dainty sandwiches, petite fours and nuts were served.

As a "going away" present, the hostesses presented Mrs. Upshaw with a wicker kleenex box.

Republican Women Plan To Sell Flags

The Republican Women's Club of Davie County is still taking orders for U. S. 50-Star flag kits.
They have many different types for the home, school, and for the merchant. The home kits come in two styles, one for installation on the house, and another to be set in the lawn. The kits come complete with flags, halyard, pole, brackets or pole spike, and a gold eagle or ball for the top of the pole. Also, there is a choice of wood, aluminum or steel poles.
Immediate orders are expected to be received before or by July 4th. Let's all fly a flag on this day! The flags may be ordered by contacting any member of the Republican Women's Club.

STRONG WIND TOPPLED THIS TRAILER... from its foundation last Thursday afternoon. The wind picked up the trailer and moved it about 12-feet from the foundation on which it was resting and toppled it over in the corn field. The trailer, unoccupied at the time, was in the yard of the Roy Beauchamps on Mocks Church Road.

Storms Damage Area Of Davie

Davie County apparently got the brunt of two winds and rain storms last Thursday. One occurred Thursday afternoon and another Thursday night.

More than four-inches of rainfall was reported in the northeastern section of the county. Strong winds ripped away power lines, overturned a house trailer, tore roofs off homes and barns. Lightning destroyed a barn and killed twelve cows.

M. L. Mullis, Duke Power representative, reported power out in a large portion of the area.
The overturned trailer was in the yard of Roy Beauchamp on the Mocks Church Road.

The dead cows belonged to Ralph Moore of Harmony.
The electrical storm Thursday night resulted in the lightning strike on the barn of Floyd Dull of the Pino community. A quantity of hay and the farm equipment valued at several thousand dollars were lost in the blaze.

Several large trees were shattered by lightning and the wind tore huge limbs from others.
The barn of Sebon Cornatzer was blown down and the wind reportedly twisted a large oak tree.

Failure To Yield Causes Sunday Wreck

Ethel Anderson Wilson, 41, of Mocksville was charged with failure to yield right of way when the car she was operating was involved in an accident Sunday, June 19, at 12:15 p. m. almost in front of First Methodist Church.
Lonnice Tutterow, of the Mocksville Police department, investigated the accident. He gave the following account: Mrs. Wilson, operating a 1959 Pontiac, was traveling up Church Street, and at the corner beside the church she ran a stop sign. Her car struck the right rear door of a 1964 Chevrolet being operated by Bessie Gill Gabriel, 63, of Asheville. The impact caused the Gabriel car to slide around in the street stopping some 65 feet from point of impact and face south.

Lottie Mae Low, a passenger in the Gabriel vehicle, received injuries, and was taken to Dr. B. L. Richards office, and treated.

FARMINGTON

The Farmington 441 Club met June 18th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Johnson. The sponsor committee gave the club a hamburger fry and all the trimmings. Mr. Johnson grilled the burgers while everybody else ate. We had 14 boys and 7 girls present. Also a large number of parents. Mr. Vestal Potts met with us and he had a lot of games planned which we played until the heavy rain parted everyone.
We all had a good time and went to thank the sponsor committee and also thank Mr. Potts.

REDLAND

The regular Redland 4-11 Club met June 9th at 7:30 p. m. at the Gun Club.
Vice-President, Carol Sparks, called the meeting to order after which Jean Leonard led the club in the pledges. Roberta Handlin then led the club in a few songs. Secretary, Christa Petticoard, had the roll call. The members responded by telling if they had a 4-11 uniform. Minutes of the last meeting was read and approved. The visitors were then recognized and welcomed.
New business was the County Picnic, 4-11 Horse Show, Demonstration Day, and the Flower Project. A Radio Program committee was then elected.

Our program was on Manners and Etiquette given by Mrs. Bingham. It was enjoyed by all. Demonstrations were then given by Roberta Handlin on "Arranging Flowers", Pam McCulloh on "Dairy Products", and Christa Petticoard on "Horses".
Betsy Bingham had recreation after which Mrs. Bingham served refreshments.

Race problem?

Men of conscience feel our nation's problems in their souls. And our souls must be the starting place for our recognition of the inalienable rights of man.

If you live in an area where, because of tradition, acceptance of human dignity for all is undiscovered—seek to discover what your faith says about human dignity, the brotherhood of man.

If you live in an area where greater "freedom" seems apparent—examine the situation in the light of your faith, for the fullest meanings of unselfishness and brotherhood.

You can help overcome the lack of understanding in our land . . . and possibly a chasm in your own heart. Worship this week . . . put your faith to work for a fuller understanding of yourself, for a fuller unity of spirit among all men.

One Person Injured In 3-Car Wreck Saturday

One person was injured and three cars were damaged in a wreck last Saturday on US 64, 4 miles east of Mocksville. The accident happened around 10:30 a. m.

Hillard Edward Curry, 18, of Lexington N. C. was injured and was carried to the Davie County Hospital. He was the driver of the 1960 Oldsmobile.

Others involved were John Felix Jones, 30, of Mocksville N. C. operating a 1961 Chevrolet; and Charles Daniel Cox, 36, of Cary, N. C., operating a 1965 Chevrolet.

State Highway Patrolman R. L. Beane said that his investigation disclosed that all three vehicles were going east on US 64. Jones stopped to make a left turn and Curry, unable to get stopped, struck the Chevrolet in the rear. Cox, also following close behind, could not get stopped and slammed into the rear of the Oldsmobile.

Damage to the 1961 Chevrolet was estimated at $300; to the 1960 Oldsmobile $600; and to the 1965 Chevrolet, $300.

Lady Champion — Barbara Spann, Tampa, Fla., 84x100.

Junior Champion — Clint Kimel Jr., 94x100.

Five-man Team Champion — Winston-Salem Gun Club (Jack King, Herb Wyatt, Clint Kimel Jr., James Tucker and J. O. Simpson).

Two Cars Are Damaged In Wreck On US 601

Two cars were damaged in a collision last Friday around 2:45 p. m. on US 601, 6 miles south of Mocksville.

They were a 1959 Rambler operated by William T. Mash, 74, of Tampa, Florida and a 1965 Corvette operated by John Daniel Hodges, 23, of Mocksville N. C. Damage to the Rambler was estimated at $175 and to the Corvette, $500.

State Highway Patrolman R. L. Hanson said that his investigation disclosed that Hodges was making a left turn into a rural road. Mash was following too close, was unable to stop and struck the left front and side of Hodges vehicle.

Mash was charged with following too close.

Shetland Pony Runs Into The Side Of Car

A Shetland Pony and a 1965 Plymouth collided around 6:45 p. m. last Friday on a rural road, 4 miles east of Mocksville.

The car was being operated by Robert Harper Hall, 40, of Winston-Salem.

State Highway Patrolman R. L. Hanson said that Hall was traveling south on Rural Paved Road 1618 when a pony ran out into the road into the right side of the car. The pony belonged to Buck Taylor of Mocksville N. C.

Damage to the car was estimated at $200.

Cheek Graduates At Annapolis

ENSIGN R. L. CHEEK

Ensign Robert Lewis Cheek, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Cheek of 167 Wedgewood Circle, Concord, graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. June 8th.

Cheek is the nephew of Mrs. Clarend Howard of Mocksville and Wayne Nesbit of Coolemece, and is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Nesbit of Woodleaf.

He is a graduate of Boyden High School in Salisbury. He was commissioned an ensign and received a bachelor of science degree.

He will now enter the Navy's nuclear power program, beginning the first training phase July 11 at the U. S. Naval Submarine School at Groton, Conn.

While at the Academy, Cheek was a member of the Brigade activities committee and layout editor of the "Splinter", a school magazine. He was the coach for his company's volleyball, 150-pound football, and softball teams which participate in the intercompany athletic competition held at the Academy.

During his senior year, Cheek held the rank of midshipman ensign while in command of a squad and was 1st battalion chief petty officer.

Eddie Robertson At N. C. Forestry Camp

More than 90 boys from counties all over North Carolina attended the 20th Annual North Carolina Forestry Camp for farm boys last week at Camp Hope near Canton.

Representing Davie County at the camp was Eddie Leon Robertson of Rt. No. 2, Advance, North Carolina.

The camp is conducted by the North Carolina Forest Service of the Department of Conservation and Development and is sponsored by Southern Pulpwood Conservation Association. It is financed by the following member companies of the Association: Champion Papers Inc., Canton; International Paper Company, Wilmington; The Mead Corporation, Sylva; Reigal Paper Corporation, Riegleswood; and Weyerhaeuser Company, Plymouth, N. C.

At the camp the boys were given forestry instruction in courses taught by professional foresters from the North Carolina Forest Service and the sponsoring pulp and paper companies. Instruction was given in tree identification, fire suppression and control, forest management, insect and disease-timber estimating and utilization.

It wasn't work though. The boys were given an opportunity to participate in organized sports and recreation as well. Softball, volleyball, swimming and other fun activities helped to round out the over-all camp program.

At the conclusion of the camp the top boys were awarded prizes for excellence in forestry work and camping and sporting events.

Outdoor Drama Set For Winston-Salem Moravian Play Opens July 5th

Winston-Salem will be the site of a new outdoor drama to be produced this summer in conjunction with the bicentennial celebration.

This newest North Carolina outdoor drama, TILL THE DAY BREAKS, in the inspiring story about the Moravians and their search for a better place and a better time. The drama will open on Tuesday, July 5th, and run nightly, Tuesday through Saturday, for eight weeks ending on Saturday, August 27th. There will be an indoor matinee each Sunday afternoon.

The drama will play in a 600 seat amphitheatre designed and constructed for this production. The theatre is located on the Salem College campus and is adjacent to the Old Salem Restoration area.

Salem Drama, Inc., the producer, is a non-profit organization dedicated to educational charitable purposes. The members of the board of directors are citizens of Winston-Salem, volunteering their time and effort in this project.

The author of the drama is Richard Stockton of New York, winner of the Samuel Goldwyn Creative Writing Award, the Samuel French National Play Contest, and H. K.

Smith, Sr. National Competition. TILL THE DAY BREAKS will be directed by Joseph Hamer of New York. Mr. Hamer has been associated with network television on the DEFENDERS, NAKED CITY, and PLAY OF THE WEEK.

The richest reservoir of acting talent in the United States, Actors Equity of New York City, will provide the actors for the drama. The eleven highly experienced actors are headed by Russell Gold and Leta Bonnyge. Both have extensive Broadway experience.

TILL THE DAY BREAKS reveals the life of the Moravians, a religious group, who had roots in Czechoslovakia, but came as missionaries to settle in the New World. The plot will point up the patriotism of these early Moravians and their strong love of peace. Certain traditions will be woven into the plot. Among these traditions is the Easter Sunrise Service with the use of brass instruments and the great chorales from the post-Bach period.

It is this tradition that brought national attention to Winston-Salem as the Easter City of America. Part of this ceremony will be used in the production.

U. N. C. Around The Old Well

By JOAN PAGE

CHAPEL HILL — The Varsity Men's Glee Club of the University of North Carolina here is off on a singing tour of Europe.

The 40 male singers, under the direction of Dr. Joel Carter, left for Europe June 14, after appearing on the Ed Sullivan Show Sunday evening, June 12. The Tar Heel voices treated the nation-wide audience to "Hey Look Me Over" and "Dixie."

The group will sing to collegiate and public audiences throughout the British Isles, Holland, Germany and Switzerland. Their repertoire includes musical interpretations of the life and ideas of Thomas Jefferson, and adaptations of the poetic works of Robert Frost and Carl Sandburg.

North Carolina songs—such as the University's alma mater, "Hark the Sound," and "The Old North State" and "North Carolina Is Home To Me" — will be sung, as well as a number of Negro spirituals.

Soloists are Lee Faulkner of Marshville, Lee Swenston of Greensboro, Jack Allison of Gastonia and William Reel of New Bern.

Joek Lauterer, a crack student photographer, is accompanying the group to Europe to send back weekly accounts of the club's adventures. Joek's first report has arrived with details of the flight to New York City, cab rides from Kennedy International to the towering Statler Hilton, rehearsals at CBS and the Club's singing appearance at New York's St. George's Episcopal Church.

From the Raleigh-Durham Airport to New York City, the clouds were filled with Tar Heel voices. Soon as the plane rose above the "heaving air pockets," says Joek, the "Carolina Gentlemen" began to serenade their Illinois stewardesses with "Viva Tutti."

The Club's tour manager, Alvin Tyndall of Wilson, was experiencing his first plane ride. He managed to maintain his composure throughout the ordeal, greatly comforted by a special flight bag of medicines assembled for him by well-wishing nurses at Watts Hospital.

Joe Wagoner of Misenheimer was dismayed that the plane's supply of current periodicals included no comic books or PLAYBOY magazines.

Cab driver 79094, Buddy Aronovich, was the first "Big City" contact for Earl Hadden II of Charlotte, John Lambert of Raleigh and John Hutcheson of Winston-Salem. Buddy's first remark was to a fellow cab-driver: "Hey Beechead! Move your sardine can!" He then ventured to share his professional problems with the boys.

The Brooklyn-brogued cabbie immediately informed the boys that "Dere are 12,000 cabbies in de city an' it costs $30,000 to get a license. De're controlled. Dey stopped giving out cab licenses in 1934. Then a license was only $10."

Buddy offered to take the boys anywhere they'd like to go. "If you wanna go to California, you put up de money and you gotta car—$75 a mile."

Joek describes a CBS studio as "buzzing, clacking, milling and alive with colorful people." "Grey" men, he added, are simply not allowed in the place. "Color is everywhere. From all directions, there are fierce shouting pinks, oranges, and reds."

He tells of the hour of rehearsal for the Ed Sullivan Show.

"In the end of one of the crawling, white corridors of the CBS Building, the Club stood rehearsing before a panel of Sullivan show producers and directors. The chief director was a small man, deep-lanned, in a wool white turtleneck sweater, white pants, white socks and white tennis shoes. He looked like a sailing captain."

Joek reports that the directors were "most impressed" with the Club's liquidmoulded version of "Dixie." The director "in white termed it "lovely."

"The air was relaxed," Joek reports. "This was big-time TV but no one acted or behaved that way. Two trumpeters in the CBS Orchestra hammed it up a bit. A technician passed out fistfuls of lollipops to cameramen. But all talking stopped as the Glee Club swung into the soothing strains of 'Dixie.'"

Joek saw some 20 monitor cameras in the CBS control room all filled with UNC Glee Clubbers. "You gotta swell group there!" a roly-poley technician commented as the boys filed out of the studio.

Sunday morning, June 12, the Glee Club presented a musical program, accompanied by the massive organ at St. George's Church on the edge of "the Village" in New York City.

Church bulletins bore the inscription: "Music and Worship: The Varsity Men's Glee Club of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill." The rafters of the lofty ceiling were filled with strains of "This Is My Commandment," a Bach fugue entitled "My Spirit Be Joyful," "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?" "Sing To God With Gladness," a musical adaptation of the 100th Psalm.

The congregation eyed the UNC men carefully as they marched out of the church. Joek recalls. He overheard two elderly ladies discussing the Glee Club on the front steps of St. George's.

"You know the best thing about that group?" quizzed one of the senior citizens to the other. "They all had short hair!"

Regular Exercise Can Provide Both Physical and Mental Tonic, says AMA ISOMETRIC EXERCISES — The following exercises do not involve movement, but rather muscular contractions. One of their advantages is that many can be done at times and places where normal exercise would be impossible, such as in the office. Hold each contraction forcefully for six seconds. Repeating is not necessary. 1) Organ Grinder. Push head against hand, then pull hand against head. 2) Thinker. Push forehead against palm, then push back of head against palm(s). 3) Bird. Put back of head against door jamb, then push with palm in the same manner. 4) Simpson. Push palms against door jamb, then push one arm high against jamb and push again. 5) Sista. Sitting with back against one door jamb, push feet against other side, then push other foot in same manner. There's more to physical fitness than mere muscles, but you can't be truly healthy and a bundle of flab at the same time. To be physically fit you must be both medically fit and dynamically fit. The two don't necessarily go hand in hand, points out Raymond L. White, M.D., director of Environmental Medicine and Medical Services for the American Medical Association. "Medical fitness means body soundness. This can be determined only by a medical examination. Dynamic fitness or 'action capacity' is a measurement of strength, agility and endurance," he said. "A person who shuns activity may get a 'clean bill of health' from his doctor but if he can't endure even slight exertion, he's hardly physically fit. On the other hand, neither is the athlete with a chronic or undetected health problem." Evidence indicates that exercise also may help prevent heart and blood vessel diseases. Active people have fewer heart attacks and a better recovery rate when such attacks do occur. The best exercise is enjoyable exercise. Activities such as hiking, swimming, skiing, tennis or gardening along with their physical benefits can provide relief from tension, thus serving as a safe, natural tranquilizer. When there is no opportunity for taking exercise in such form, however, a daily walk and series of callisthenics can provide much the same tonic. Above are a few examples of scientifically sound exercises, taken from the AMA pamphlet, "Physical Fitness." Used daily, they will help to increase muscular strength, body suppleness and motor reaction, and to improve circulation and other body functions. Start out slowly, Dr. White warned, and gradually work up to the point where you can do all of these exercises quickly without stopping. In a sense it seems silly to be concerned about strength and endurance in a push-button age. But the fact is, the human body was not designed for push buttons but for work, said Dr. White. "The absence of dynamic fitness through lack of physical exertion is a detriment to health. Furthermore, muscle tone, or lack of it, can be a factor in your whole outlook on life." Strength and endurance, developed through regular exercise, leads to skill and grace. Not only do daily tasks become easier, you also look better and so feel more at ease in social situations. Even more evident, however, are the benefits to physical health, Dr. White pointed out. Since exercise is a factor in weight control, it indirectly aids in preventing degenerative diseases, such as diabetes and arthritis, which are more prevalent in the obese.

Heffner's Open New Store In Clemmons Center

Oren J. Heffner of Mocksville is opening a new and enlarged Heffner's Land of Food in Clemmons this week. The new store, located in the Clemmons Center, will have more than 9500 sq. ft. of selling space and will feature the most modern super market equipment.

This is the seventh such establishment opened by Mr. Heffner in the past seventeen years.

There was the original Heffner and Bolick Grocery opened in 1949 on the square in Mocksville; then came his move and opening of the store North Main Street in Mocksville in March 1955. In 1956, he opened a store in Yadkinville.

In 1960 he opened the store in Clemmons. In August of 1963 he moved his Mocksville store into more modern and expanded quarters and shortly thereafter did the same thing in Yadkinville.

Mr. Heffner has been in the grocery business practically all of his life. Born on January 27, 1925 in Maiden, Catawba County, he is the son of Mrs. C. J. Heffner and the late Mr. Heffner.

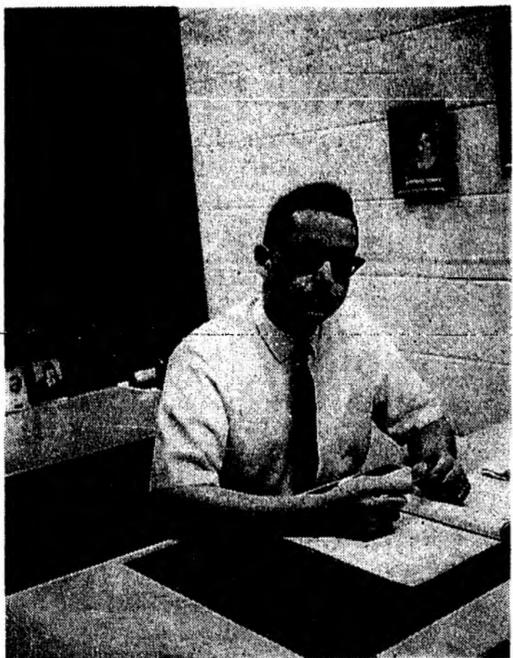

His father operated the leading grocery store in Maiden until his death in the early 1950's. Mr. Heffner grew up in the grocery business working in his father's store after school and on Saturdays.

Mr. Heffner entered the service in May 1943 and served with the U. S. Air Force.

In 1948 he was married to Miss Frances Sharpe of Hiddenite and Winston-Salem.

At that time the grocery store in Maiden had grown to such an extent that new fields for expansion were sought. Mr. Heffner was attracted to Mocksville and in February of 1948, opened a store there.

The Heffner and Bolick Grocery Company operated two stores . . . one in Mocksville and one in Maiden . . . until the death of Mr. Heffner's father. At that time, Mr. Heffner sold out his interest in the Maiden store and along with J. B. Sharpe, his father-in-law, acquired full ownership of the Mocksville store. A short time later, Mr. Heffner acquired the original interest of Mr. Sharpe to become the sole owner.

OREN J. HEFFNER . . . opens seventh store this week in The Clemmons Center.

Jungle Proves Foe In Viet Nam War

Soldiers fighting in Viet Nam discover a formidable enemy—the "jungle."

The tangled barrier of vegetation often seems more deadly than any human enemy. It not only deters troop movements, but even hampers communications. Back-pack radios designed to transmit up to 10 miles often cannot be heard for more than a mile and a half in a jungle.

Yet "jungle" is little discussed in geography textbooks, either as a term or natural feature, the National Geographic Society says. British geographer L. Dudley Stamp says the term is "to be avoided in scientific literature." Professor A. W. Kuchler, of the University of Kansas, announced he was banning the word because "almost every author attaches a different meaning to it."

Originally, the term jungle seems to have been used mainly for deserts rather than luxuriant forests. British hunters applied the word — originally Sanskrit — to almost any place they sought game. In India jungle came to refer to rain forests.

For the most part, modern geographers use the term jungle sparingly and only to designate the very thick vegetation that develops on the edge of a tropical rain forest. The jungle, in this sense, is only a minor part of the rain forest. But it is the part that men become most familiar with, since it develops around clearings and on the shores of rivers and lakes. Here the combination of sunlight and moisture produces dense plant life.

The jungle made early explorers think that the rain forest itself was almost impenetrable. Actually, a traveler finds it easy to walk in a rain forest, once he has hacked through the jungle edge. Scottish-born naturalist Ivan Sanderson discovered this when he was lost for three days in the Guiana rain forest. He walked about "as easily as a man strolling along the platform of a railway station, meeting fewer obstacles than you would expect to encounter in an ordinary American or European wood."

After sundown on the third day, Sanderson heard a radio blaring. His wife had left the radio going full blast as a beacon. He attracted her attention by shouting and firing his gun, but his troubles were not over said Sanderson. "It took us three hours — with me hacking and crawling from the inside as they chopped from outside — to force a passage through the jungle wall."

Small plants of temperate climes become towering giants in the rain forest. Members of the rose family soar as high as an 18-story building. Violets become as big as apple trees.

The interior of the forest is dark; the air, still and dank. Roots spread out wide but do not go deep, for moisture is abundant. Occasionally a lofty but shallow-rooted tree crashes, creating an opening for sunlight.

The surrounding plants strain silently to fill the gap. The tree that climbs highest will have first chance at the life-giving rays of the sun. A bamboo plant may grow a foot a day.

In the treetops, birds, monkeys, insects, and reptiles move about, invisible to someone passing below. The floor of the forest — like the floor of the sea — is little more than a cemetery for animals and plants falling down from the green canopy above. The interrelationship of life in the green canopy of the rain forest is still little known, because that environment is so inaccessible to human observers.

Washington Report

DEFENSE BILL

The House of Representatives dealt last week with two aspects of the defense of the Nation. The first of these bills provided the authorization that Congress must give if the major weapons form our Armed Forces are to be provided. Certainly, the details of the Department of Defense Procurement bill add up to a huge list of items which are needed to sustain the defense of the country. Aircraft is an almost bewildering variety—missiles, Naval vessels, tanks, and research and development on these and tens of thousands of other items are part of the overall picture.

For this one bill alone, $17.4 billion for the procurement of hardware is required. It also contains a 3.5% pay raise for all members of our Armed Forces.

One of the great arguments that has been going on between the Congress and the Department of Defense for years has been about nuclear-powered aircraft carriers. We have had one such carrier. Two more such ships have remained in the planning stage. The Defense Department has now requested funds to construct a second carrier. Having had a personal opportunity to inspect the nuclear-powered carrier, the USS Enterprise, I can attest to the literally fantastic power that this great ship possesses as a weapon of war, if need be, and a force for peace in these dangerous times.

It seemed to me as I studied this legislation that the House Armed Services Committee had done a good job in attempting to provide what the country may need during the next twelve months. All of us know at these times that international incidents can develop into ugly threats to the general peace almost instantaneously. A great nation such as ours is risking its own security and the security of the world if it is unprepared.

The second bill this week approached the defense of the country from a considerably different point of view. It is the extension of the Defense Production Act. That little probably has little meaning to the average American citizen. However, this law was first enacted in 1950 shortly after the Communist invasion of South Korea. It provided much of the emergency authority which the White House used to mobilize our national economy to support the Korean War effort. Although there has been little use of the emergency powers, there could be a sudden need for drastic and immediate action based upon some critical event in the world. Among the original provisions of the Defense Production Act was authority to control consumer credit in our economy. In other words, the machinery was provided whereby the President of the United States could, by Executive Order, require that down payments and buying on credit be tightened. This authority was allowed to expire, however, in 1953 when the Korean War was brought to an end and it has not been included in the subsequent renewals of the Defense Production Act that have occurred since that time.

The bill this year attempted to restore that power to the President and it was on this point that considerable controversy arose. None of us would argue that the stand-by powers of the Defense Production Act are not needed. They are necessary even though we hope that they may never have to be used. Still, many of us felt that the inclusion of this amendment is inappropriate. If the President feels that this authority is necessary to fight inflation, he certainly can request Congress to consider it. Nevertheless, the President has made no such request. I am glad that when the matter was put to a vote in the House of Representatives, the attempt to include emergency power to control consumer credit was defeated and the Defense Production Act was extended without its inclusion.

It seemed to me that this debate has made a contribution toward urging that Federal spending processes be curtailed and that the habits of the American consumer should not be blamed for the inflationary spiral that threatens the country today. As one observer put it, the bill would have said, in effect, "John Q. Public will be urged by the Government to tighten his belt, while the Federal Government lets its belt out another notch."

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Be good to your old man." - Taylor Roth.

As the crowded bus jolted and swayed, a stout woman standing up lurched against a seated passenger, tearing his newspaper and knocking his hat over his eyes. Immediately he arose and offered her his seat.

"You are very kind," said the woman, panting for breath.

"Not at all, madam," he replied. "It isn't kindness, it's merely self-defense."

We think of self-defense as a retaliatory action; an attitude we assume to protect ourselves against aggression. But self-defense also can be a defense against ourselves. We, physically and mentally, abuse ourselves far more viciously than any outsider. When Taylor Roth suggested "Be good to your old man" he wasn't speaking of a parent. He was speaking of the person you will be when your hair has turned white and the lines of the years have eaten deeply into your soul. Now is the time for you to be good to that old man. What you do to yourself today will show 10, 20 or 50 years from now. Think of the person you want to be then, and be good now to the old man you will be.

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

WASHINGTON — For the 9th consecutive year the national debt is going up. Again this year, the cause is persistent deficit spending by the Federal Government. This time, though, inflation is a disturbing problem as the country examines its financial health.

War and high domestic expenditures have brought about economic conditions that guidelines, voluntary controls, and business promises to the President have failed to solve. Anyone paying his monthly bills is by now familiar with higher prices. But what to do about inflation is again tempting the country to evade the main problem—Government spending.

Persistent deficit spending by the Federal Government is brushed aside by a new breed of Keynesian economists as less important than new proposals of control business and individual spending. Seldom is it stressed that the Federal Government could exercise more prudence in pumping dollars into the economy. This, it is said, would involve political perils. Still a cut in Federal domestic spending and a little prudence in dispensing foreign aid dollars would hit inflation at its source.

Human nature being what it is, inflation is difficult to cope with because it is so pleasantly deceptive to the people and their politicians for a time. Statistics are cited in batches that the people are growing richer and "there is nothing to worry about." Soon or late it does not work out that way and the evils of inflation begin to appear. All of which brings to mind a great poem by Rudyard Kipling who analyzed this problem long ago.

In his poem, "The Gods of the Copybook Headings," Kipling recounted how the gods of wisdom, whom he calls the Gods of the Copybook Headings, and the gods of expediency, whom he calls the Gods of the Market, always contend for the allegiance of men. In simple language taken from the axioms of old-time school copybooks, Kipling tells how men suffer when they forsake wisdom for expedience, and therein he struck at the heart of our problem.

What the great English poet described as perishable policies and political nonsense comes to mind in reviewing our current deficit spending theories. According to modern theorists, we are told that our national debt should not be a matter of concern for it need never be paid. Indeed, it is said, it ought to be increased. We are told that prosperity comes by the Government incurring debts, that balanced budgets are obsolete, and that inflation is good for the nation's financial soul.

Simply put, this is political expediency. If one gets confused listening to such theories, more is to follow. We are next told that too much debt and too much deficit spending brings on the need for some Federal controls over individuals to regulate their pay increases and their spending habits. If one listens further, he told that a tax increase is the ultimate weapon to control individual spending, but not Federal spending. Somewhere along the way the hope is advanced that Government revenues, spending, and inflation will all balance out next year, and the problem is put aside for a time. So controls come quietly and there is less freedom.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: I was reading in the papers where one of them science fellows at Harvard said in a half a billion more years the day will be 30 hours long.

I bring this item up to the country store Saturday night and Ed Doltie allowed as how, with all them politicians from Washington coming home this election year to mend their bent and broke down fences, we got to be thankful we ain't got but 24 hours as of now.

Incidental, said Ed, speaking of science, he had saw where a medicine school is one of them big universities had got a federal grant of $280,000 to make a life-size mechanic man that could do everything a real man could do and then some. Ed was of the opinion this was a real switch, with the Government

Effort To Sell Scott on Senate??

Will Forsyth Stick With Bagley?? SANFORD IN '68? . . . The rumor persists that Terry Sanford, now a Raleigh and Fayetteville attorney, will run for Governor in 1968.

With Lt. Gov. Robert Scott making four or five speeches every week—and turning down that many more—the question of what he will do naturally arises. It is being taken for granted he is running for Governor . . . only. Put down as a sure thing that former Gov. Sanford and Lt. Gov. Scott will not run against each other. They are fairly good friends; and have too much sense to let such a thing happen. Or, so they say. The grapevine adds that one of the main projects of Sanford friends in the 1967 Legislature is to persuade him not to run for Governor in 1968. Then, what?

SEN. SAM . . . Conservative Sen. Sam Ervin of Morganton will become 70 on September 27. He must run for re-election in 1968. Sanford people say it is safe to assume that virtually all of the liberals—and most of the colored people—will be against Sen. Ervin.

They hope to sell Bob Scott on running for the U. S. Senate in 1968. Whether they can do this remains to be seen. One thing is for sure:

The Governorship is for only four years. The U. S. Senate is forever. Perhaps Sanford can be pushed in the Senate direction . . . or B. Bennett.

Thus in 1968 you would have a neat package of Sanford-and-Scott. It all adds up—and would be a tough combination to defeat. With one or two little trades here and there, they can come up with sufficient funds to make the mare go. As of now, it all depends upon Scott.

OINTMENT FLY . . . Sen. Sam Ervin could put a real fly in this flavormore ointment by retiring, thus leaving the way open for Gov. Dan K. Moore to fill by appointment his unexpired term. Wow.

TEN MILES . . . But the biggest obstacle—and one all but insurmountable—any Sanford friends with Scott senatorial ideas in mind must overcome is this:

U. S. Sen. Everett Jordan, cousin of the Lt. Gov's mother, Mrs. Kerr Scott, and now giving in for another term, lives at Saxapahaw.

Can Bob Scott (and the people of North Carolina) be sold on the idea of our two U. S. Senators living in the same county, residing only ten miles apart, and being in the same family? Hardly. Then will Sanford run for Governor in 1968?

BATTLEGROUND . . . As the contest comes down to the wire in the lackluster fight between Smith Bagley of Winston-Salem and Nick Galifianakis of Durham, it looks as if Rockingham County may be the battleground in this Fifth District Congressional wrist-tapping. But watch Forsyth!

Other than lack of interest, the thing which seems to be hurting Galifianakis most is that he is from Durham County. He can't help where he is from, of course, but Durham has been a part of the Fifth for only a few months.

QUERY . . . The Bagley followers are saying—and it is hard to answer—that there must be another Congressional redistricting. "If Durham is once more taken out of the Fifth, what will happen? We could be —if we elect somebody from Durham—without a Congressman again in a short while," say they . . . The Federal Courts, of course, have given their blessings to the legislative redistricting (N. C. Legislature), but have held that the Congressional shift will have to be brought up again. You hear this repeated over and over again in the counties of the "old" Fifth.

HAULERS . . . Both candidates are said to have plenty of money to spend.

Much of it will be used on June 25 to haul disinterested voters to the voting places. In fact, outcome of the race could be determined by the side that has the larger number of cars —and-haulers—those gentle persuaders.

Another thing: the people in Durham, including the newspapers, etc., seem to be all-out for their native son. This does not seem to be true in Winston-Salem. Also, the AFL-CIO June 10 News endorsed Galifianakis.

A lot of checking here and there about the Fifth has been done by Raleigh prophets. But it is difficult to figure. It looks as if Galifianakis will take Caswell, Person, and Durham—with Rockingham, Stokes, and Forsyth going to Bagley. But will Forsyth match Nick's Durham vote?

Reports are that former Gov. Luther Hodges, now chief promoter of Research Triangle, is putting in some Nick ticks so that the Triangle can have personal representation in Washington . . .

AT HOME . . . If Forsyth will stand by its resident, Bagley will win. Galifianakis has been camping out up there for the past two weeks, however. Forsyth in the Wood-Scott Congressional race four years ago went for Scott, who resides in Stokes, rather than for its own W. Z. Wood. It beat Wood.

In the second Primary of 1964 (Moore vs. Preyer), Durham cast nearly 25,000 votes; Forsyth over 30,000; and Rockingham a little over 11,000. Should Forsyth give a third of its vote to the man from distant Durham, then Nick Galifianakis will be your next Congressman from the Fifth District.

NOTES . . . Taylor Sanford, now 60ish and the man who took Wake Forest baseball to the national championship (later coaching at Hargrave M. A. and Camp Lee) . . . is incurably ill . . . at his home in Petersburg, Va. . . News & Observer Editor Jonathan Daniels is coming out with a new book, "The Time Between the Wars" . . . in August.

Gravemarkers of the future may read, "Died at age 43. Died again at age 91." According to a North Carolina Heart News Bureau survey, more than 100 Tar Heels once dead, are alive today because of timely application of a new death reversal technique known as closed chest cardiac resuscitation.

servicing as game warden at a officers rod and gun club. This Congressman said on television, reported Zeke, that if the committee had kept on investigating they might have found 90,000 instead of 9,000 that wasn't doing nothing that civilians couldn't do better and cheaper.

Bug Hookum said he was thankful to get this television report on account of he had stored his quilt set in the attic and had quit looking at the dudburned thing. Bug said it had got to where ever other commercial was about a patent medicine and the gist of all of them was that after a feller had got to be 35 year old he had done had it. He reported he would get up in the morning ready to go out and work like a horse and after watching a few

Monday for a vacation at the Billmore Estates.

Rev. and Mrs. Bearden Honored
Members of the churches of the Farmington Methodist Charge honored Rev. and Mrs. Bennie B. Bearden Sunday with a picnic dinner on the spacious front lawn of the Farmington Church. Long tables filled with home-cooked food, and glasses of cool tempting iced tea and soft drinks were served by the church families.

Rev. and Mrs. Bearden were presented a silver service from the Womens Society of Christian Service by its president, Mrs. W. W. Spillman. It was in appreciation of their service to the Churches and to the Community during their six years of residency on the Farmington Charge.

Special guests for the occasion were Rev. and Mrs. Marvin Gold and two sons, Andy and Paul Gold, of the Baptist Church.

Rev. and Mrs. Bearden are moving Wednesday to the Davie Charge parsonage in Mocksville. He will be pastor of three churches, Center, Hardison Chapel and Salem.

Rev. and Mrs. Joe Phillips the new Pastor of the Farmington Charge moved into the Parsonage Wednesday afternoon. They have been living in Franklin, N. C. They have a family of two children, a daughter who is in training for a nurse at the Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem, and a son who graduated from High School this year. Rev. Phillips is scheduled to conduct preaching services at Mount Olive at Wyo. and Huntsville on this coming Sunday.

Library News

The attendance is increasing at Story Hour sessions at the Davie County Public Library but any children who would like to start now are welcome. There are two groups under the direction of Mrs. Charles L. Farthing, Children's Librarian for the summer.

Pre-school children have Mrs. Rufus Sanford, Jr. as their leader, assisted by Mrs. Harry Heidelberg.

The older group is entertained by visiting leaders who alternate in story-telling for ages 6 through 8.

So remember:
Story Hour — Each Thursday
10 to 11 AM
Davie County Public Library
For children 4 through 8 years old

The Summer Reading Program is off to a fine start, thanks to Mrs. Farthing's good work and the eager interest of the many young people participating! There is still time to sign up for the Reading Program if you have not.

HEALTH TIPS FROM THE American Medical Association

With the return of warm, sunny days, millions of Americans are once again toasting exposed skin at the beach, beside the pool, in the backyard, almost anywhere out of doors. Many of the sunbathers are using one of the sunscreen lotions and creams that are now readily available, in an effort to acquire a tan with a minimum of burning and discomfort. Actually, your doctor will tell you that suntanning has little or no beneficial effect on your health. Excessive tanning can cause premature aging and wrinkling of the skin, and can be the trigger that brings about skin cancer. But, if you insist on tanning, you will be interested in some facts on sunscreen lotions and creams. Sunscreens are chemicals which absorb various wave lengths of ultra violet rays to various degrees. They do not shut out all radiation, else you would never tan. Among the most effective sunscreens are some long, technical names—para-aminobenzoic acid and its derivatives, the salicylates, and digalloyl trioleate compound. Read the label to be sure the product you select is a sunscreen. Apply the sunscreen product at least every two hours, after each swim, and whenever the protecting film may have rubbed off. Give vulnerable areas such as neck, shoulders and nose a double dose. Also available are artificial sun-tan lotions which produce a color change on the skin simulating a natural tan. It is important to realize that artificial sun-tan products do not provide protection against sunburn unless they also incorporate a sun-screening agent. Lubricate the skin to help prevent excessive drying effects of the sun. Apply an emollient cream or lotion before retiring. Even more important than use of lotions or creams is the exercise of common sense: Don't stay in the sun too long. Persons 65 or over who continue working will save themselves time applying for social security benefits now. Get in touch with your social security office for full information.

Eddie Robertson At N. C. Forestry Camp

More than 90 boys from counties all over North Carolina attended the 20th Annual North Carolina Forestry Camp for farm boys last week at Camp Hope near Canton. Representing Davie County at the camp was Eddie Leon Robertson of Rt. No. 2, Advance, North Carolina. The camp is conducted by the North Carolina Forest Service of the Department of Conservation and Development and is sponsored by Southern Pulpwood Conservation Association. It is financed by the following member-companies of the Association: Champion Papers Inc., Canton; International Paper Company, Wilmington; The Mead Corporation, Sylva; Reigal Paper Corporation, Riegglewood; and Weyerhaeuser Company, Plymouth, N. C. At the camp the boys were given forestry instruction in courses taught by professional foresters from the North Carolina Forest Service and the sponsoring pulp and paper companies. Instruction was given in tree identification, fire suppression and control, forest management, insect and disease timber estimating and utilization. It wasn't work though. The boys were given an opportunity to participate in organized sports and recreation as well. Softball, volleyball, swimming and other fun activities helped to round out the over-all camp program. At the conclusion of the camp the top boys were awarded prizes for excellence in forestry work and camping and sporting events.

A NEW INDUSTRY in town creates a chain-reaction of benefits that gives a big boost to the economy of the whole community. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce says that every 100 new factory workers means 100 more households... 359 more people... $710,000 more total annual personal income... 65 more people employed in non-manufacturing businesses.

Southern Railway benefits, too, when a new industry comes to the area it serves. That's why our Industrial Development Department, working with other community builders, aggressively seeks to help new industry locate an available plant site along our lines. That's why we have a national advertising program inviting business leaders to "Look Ahead—Look South" for greater opportunities for profitable long-range industrial growth.

For us, helping the South to grow is an important job. It's a rewarding job, too. Along our lines alone, in the past 15 years, businessmen with an eye for growth and profit put $8 billion in more than 5,000 major industrial developments, providing 285,000 new job opportunities for the people of the South. Everybody benefits when industries accept our invitation to "Look Ahead—Look South."

Cedar Creek

The members of the Cedar Creek Baptist Church and the community are deeply saddened over the death of Miss Margaret Ann Eaton, who so devotedly cared for her mother, Mrs. Mary Eaton who is blind. We believe she heard the voice say, "Well done thou good and faithful servant."

Out of town guests attending the funeral of Miss Margaret Ann Eaton were: Airman first class Benjamin West of Richmond, Va., who is on his way to Viet Nam; Sgt. Glenn West and family who have been stationed in Iceland and enroute to a station in New Mexico, William West of Goldsboro, Miss Cora Eaton of Pittsburgh, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Eaton, Clarence Eaton and daughters, Gloria and Celeste of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Nichols of Statesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eaton were overnight guests of their mother, Mrs. William Eaton recently.

Lester Howell called recently at the home of Alta and E. K. Eaton. The Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howell attended the funeral of Mr. Harris, a former member of Demasos Baptist Church in Wilkesboro, Sunday afternoon.

Arthur Eaton of New York City and Mrs. Cora Bailey of Winston-Salem called Sunday at the home of Everett and Alta Eaton.

We welcome Miss Lou Frances Eaton who has recently returned home from Cincinnati, Ohio. Miss Eaton taught school in Cincinnati the past year.

Mr. and Mrs. George Woodie and son of Martinsville, Va. and Rhodwell were in the community Sunday.

Sgt. and Mrs. Henry Cain and daughters were callers at the home of their father, S. L. Cain. They also attended the funeral of Miss Margaret Ann Eaton. Mrs. Maggie Lewis accompanied the Cain's here. Betty Eaton spent the week-end with friends in Winston-Salem.

The friends of Mrs. Ella Cain, who is ill at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Lou Ella Blue in Winston-Salem, are praying for an early recovery for her.

MISS MARGRETTE ANN EATON

Funeral services for Miss Margaret Ann Eaton were held at Cedar Creek Baptist Church, Wednesday evening at 3 p. m. by the pastor, the Rev. Charles Hay. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Surviving are her mother, Mrs. Mary Eaton; two sisters, Mrs. Luja C. West of Mocksville, Rt. 4 and Miss Pearl Eaton of Winston-Salem, two brothers, Clarence and Arthur Eaton of New York.

One-fourth of all men and one-third of all women in the United States who survive to age 70 can expect to live past age 85, according to Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians. Further gains in longevity can be expected from development in the heart disease field, says the North Carolina Heart Association.

BY LEO WILLIAMS

SOIL TESTING FOR GARDENS AND LANDSCAPED AREAS

The summer season is an excellent time to test soils where lawns, gardens, and ornamental shrubs and trees are being grown states County Agent Leo F. Williams. This is especially true for areas where plants are not growing normally and a plant nutrient deficiency or imbalance is suspected.

Frequently poor growth or death of plants results from high concentration of fertilizer salts in the rooting zone. The soil testing laboratory, located in the North Carolina Department of Agriculture building in Raleigh, uses a soluble salt test to determine whether or not there are toxic levels of salts present. Plants affected by high salt concentration usually have a "scorched leaf" appearance and sometimes die suddenly. Leaching water through the soil helps to lower the salt concentration. In severe cases, action must be taken quickly or the plants will be in a period of two or three days. More frequently plants grow very slowly or not at all. A soil test for soluble salts will determine if such a problem exists.

A strongly acid soil condition is a rather common occurrence in soil areas around the home, especially where no lime has been used. This condition results in poor growth and provides a more favorable soil environment for some undesirable weeds and grasses. This is easily detected by a soil test and can be corrected with lime. Subsoils are usually strongly acid, consequently, where soils from basements have been distributed over the yard, lime is generally needed. The amount of lime to use must be determined by a soil test as it is possible to use too much lime and create other problems.

The problem of over liming frequently occurs around the foundations of homes. The mortar used in laying bricks and discarded scraps of plaster board frequently contain liming material. When this is mixed with the soil around the foundation of a home, the soil pH can rise to the alkaline range above seven. If the pH gets too high, plant nutrient imbalances can occur and cause problems. This is a rather difficult situation to deal with. However, a soil test can identify such problems and corrective procedures will be suggested. Sometimes it is desirable to replace the soil. It should be remembered that there are many pests that injure plants and cause poor growth. There are very effective chemicals available for control of insects, blights and others. Simple spray programs are available and should be used for best growth of plants. When using these chemicals, play it safe by following the directions on the containers and store them in a safe place away from children. If you have growth problems, want to make new plantings or maintain present plantings, see your County Agricultural Agent for soil sample cartons and sampling instructions.

DISPERSAL SALE DUTCHMAN CREEK RANCH

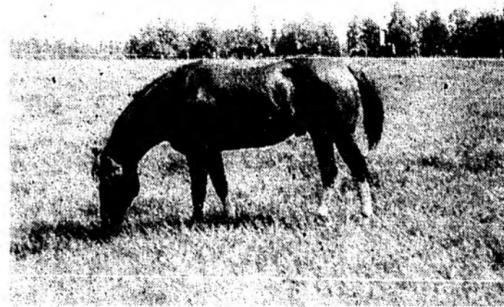

Mocksville, Rt. 3

Sain Road

Saturday, July 2nd at 1:00 P. M.

It is with sincere regret that we find it necessary to disperse the entire band of registered Quarter Horses at our Dutchman Creek Ranch, but due to the time required to operate my business, and lack of adequate help, since our manager, Jimmy McDonnal, accepted the management duties of one of North Carolina's large cattle ranches, we are forced to sell this band of foundation bred horses that we so carefully selected from some of the top ranches throughout the West.

We are very proud of our horses, and the quality colts produced by our mares is a great satisfaction. We will have approximately 55 horses to sell including: broodmares; colts; and two great stallions, Chieftain Five and Hired Hand's Bee.

TO SELL: Chieftain Five, an own son of Silver Wimpy, out of an own daughter of Royal Peppy. A proven sire of quality get.

TO SELL: Hired Hand's Bee 238,786, our many time champion stallion who boasts the bloodlines of King Ranch through his sire, Hired Hand's Cardinal, and is out of an own daughter of Bill Cody.

We will have 20 head of additional horses from out-of-state co-signed to this sale. These will be performance horses as well as breeding stock.

Ijames Cross Roads

The Ijames Soft Ball Team played Bixby Presbyterian at Bixby June 13. The Ijames team lost 15 to 14, but the team and people of Bixby made one of the best host in the league. Everyone enjoyed the game and had a good time.

The team played Center, June 16, at the local field. Some excellent infield work was done by Donnie Gobble on first, "General" Mark White on 2nd and Kenneth Lanier on 3rd. The team played a good game, however in the 6th inning, Harpe and Tutterow of the Center team were both trying to catch a high fly ball in right field and ran together, doing minor injury to each other. The game was unable to continue as Center was playing a 9 man team and had no replacements. The score was 15 to 6 in favor of Ijames.

The team will play Cornatzer at Cornatzer June 23, and Oak Grove at Ijames, June 27.

The girls team are starting their games and will play on Wednesdays. They will practice every Tuesday at 5:30 p. m.

Harlequin Theatre Opens June 29th In Winston-Salem

Professional summer theatre returns to the Piedmont this summer with the opening on June 29th of "The Harlequin Stock Theatre in Winston-Salem. Productions will be presented by a resident professional company in the comfortable, air-conditioned theatre of the James G. Hanes Community Center located at 610 Coliseum Drive.

James H. Walton, the Managing Director of The Harlequin Stock Theatre, brings a solid background of pleasing Piedmont audiences for he was the Managing Director of the Tanglewood Barn Theatre in Clemmons, North Carolina, during its seven seasons. While at Tanglewood, Mr. Walton directed some of them was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Chaffin, Sunday, June 19. 75 relatives attended. Mr. Ijames is an amateur magician and spent the afternoon entertaining the children with his tricks. Mrs. Ijames is a professional cake decorator.

Out of town guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Otis Chaffin and Janet of Cheraw, S. C., Mr. and Mrs. Duke Ijames of Salisbury, Mr. and Mrs. Duke Tharpe and Misses Nannie and Edmonia Powell of Harmony. Kathy and Keith Chaffin attended a birthday party for Sandra Moffitt of Philadelphia, Pa. who is visiting their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James Green.

twenty productions, including "Mr. Roberts," "The Pajama Game," "The Plenic," "A Thousand Clowns," "A Man For All Seasons," "The Curious Savage," & "Accent on Youth." Mr. Walton, who holds the B. A. and M. A. in Speech from the University of Nebraska, has been an instructor in the Speech Department and the Director of the Wake Forest College Theatre for the past ten years. In the Fall, he will be joining the faculty of the University of Delaware as a Lecturer and Director of the University Theatre.

Another familiar face of The Harlequin Stock scene is that of Tanglewood actor Al Christy who returns from Kansas City, Kansas, to the many friends he made during his Tanglewood seasons of 1959 and 1960. Al is perhaps best remembered for his roles as Father in "Life With Father," Elwood P. Dowd in "Harvey," and Franklin Delano Roosevelt in "Sunrise at Campobello."

The Harlequin Stock Theatre has scheduled nine plays calculated to offer the most in pleasing summer fare. The season's curtain raiser is a lighthearted musical about love, "The Fantasticks." This hit musical, which holds the record as the longest-running Off-Broadway production, will run two weeks, June 29 through July 10, and will be followed in succeeding weeks by "The Moon is Blue," "Light Up the Sky," "Mary, Mary," "Never Too Late," "The Little Foxes," "The Play's The Thing," "Outward Bound," and "The Voice of the Turtle."

Admission will be $2.50 (Saturday $3.00), and during the first production coupon books worth $12.50 will be on sale for $10.00. Special rates for groups of twenty or more are also available. Reservations may be made by writing to The Harlequin Stock Theatre, 610 Coliseum Drive, Winston-Salem, North Carolina, or by phoning the box office at 723-2404.

HOPE for HEARTS

CHAPEL HILL — North Carolina's Grandfather Mountain is an apt symbol of the North Carolina Heart Association's 1966 "Hope for Hearts" educational crusade.

Open heart surgery may safely be performed on patients in their 60's and 70's, according to the North Carolina Heart Association. The state heart disease control agency cites a report by a team of surgeons at Baylor University School of Medicine in Houston, which indicates that the risk is no greater than for younger patients with similar heart ailments.

Until now, it has been thought that the use of a heart-lung machine to carry circulation away from the heart while it was being operated on might prove too much of a strain to elderly patients, and many physicians have been reluctant to recommend it. However, the Baylor surgeons operated on 54 patients ranging in age from 60 to 73 between January, 1957, and December, 1964, and found that deaths within two weeks after surgery were no higher than in younger patients. In most cases, surgery in the older group was performed to correct heart valve defects or ventricular aneurysms (a thinning out and ballooning of the heart valve defects or ventricular aneurysms (a thinning out and ballooning of the heart muscle wall which poses the danger of fatal rupture). Only two patients in the group were operated on for defects originally present at birth; the others were cases of acquired heart disease, frequently the long-term result of rheumatic fever. All patients were severely ill. Many had ceased to respond to other forms of treatment and were operated upon only in a last-ditch effort to save their lives.

To Operate On July 4th Weekend

Courtesy Patrol To Aid Motorists

A Holiday Road Patrol of 138 men has been formed for July 4th weekend by the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association to aid motorists and observe truck drivers.

D. W. Royster of Shelby, President of the trucking industry group, said NCMCA courtesy patrol cars will be on the most heavily traveled highways of the state during the peak traffic hours during the holiday weekend. The 91 cars will be manned by experienced trucking industry personnel who will be particularly alert for motorists in trouble.

Colonel Speed, Commander of the State Highway Patrol, commended the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association for its cooperation during the holiday weekends and said: "We again welcome the assistance from the safety men of the trucking industry. Their wide experience on the roads and their record of assistance last year, will aid substantially during this period of high density traffic."

NCMCA Executive Vice President, J. T. Outlaw emphasized, "We plan to again cooperate with the State Highway Patrol in every way possible, however, our men do not have arrest powers. The courtesy road patrol is a part of NCMCA's continuing annual Truck Safety Program."

Some of the Holiday Courtesy Patrol cars will be equipped with tools, spare fuses, warning flags, first-aid equipment and gasoline safety containers. In addition, some of the cars are radio equipped to allow the Holiday Courtesy Patrolmen to summon repair equipment or additional help.

Participation by the NCMCA's Council of Safety Supervisors is in conjunction with courtesy and safety campaign being sponsored by the American Trucking Association for the trucking industry.

Davie Rescue Squad Gathers For Meeting

Capt. Clay Tutterow presided at the Davie County Rescue Squad meeting held Monday p. m. in the Squad building on Sanford Avenue. The devotional service was conducted by Chaplain Abe Howard.

During the past week, the squad members assisted with traffic at a wreck on Highway 601.

Ten members were present for the meeting.

July 4th Event

The Cooleemee Jaycees will hold a July 4th Cooleemee Field Day. This event will take place at the Cooleemee Ball Park, starting at 10:00 A. M. Monday, July 4th, and lasting all day.

There are numerous events planned for that day, such as softball Games, Sack Races, Three-Legged Races, Ugly Man Contest, Horseshoe Tournament, Greasy Pole, Greasy Pig and many others. It certainly will be a day of complete enjoyment for the entire family.

The Senior Citizens Club of Cooleemee will assist the Jaycees with duties such as serving ice cold watermelon, homemade cakes & pies, and also help the Jaycee wives at the concession stands.

Junker Is Now Rotary Prexy

TED JUNKER

Ted Junker took over the reins of the Mocksville Rotary Club on Tuesday, succeeding Bryan Sell.

Other officers serving with Mr. Junker during the ensuing year will include: Roy W. Collette, 1st Vice-President; O. K. Pope, 2nd Vice-President; Hugh Larew, Chester Blackwelder and Bryan Sell, Directors; Paul Neil, Secretary.

Before turning the gavel over to Mr. Junker, Mr. Sell expressed appreciation to the various committees for their cooperation during the past year. The lane chairmen made reports of accomplishments during the past year.

John McMillan was inducted into the Rotary Club as a new member by Dave Rankin.

Paul Neil reported that during the past year the club gained four new members and lost one. Total membership of the Mocksville Rotary Club to date is 49.

Committee assignments announced by Mr. Junker are as follows: Club Service Activities, Roy W. Collette, General Chairman; Attendance, George Shutt; Classification, Dave Rankin, Cecil Morris, Jeff Caudell; Club Bulletin, Joe Patner and John Durham; Fellowship, Ed Goodwin and Fred Barnhis; Magazine, Francis Slate; Membership, Grady Ward, Leslie Daniel, S. B. Hall; Programs, Lester Martin and Ed Short; Public Relations, Gordon Tomlinson; Rotary information, Graham Madison; Sergeant-at-Arms, Jack Pennington.

Vocational Service, O. K. Pope, General Chairman; Buyer-Seller Relations, Bill Daniel; Competitor Relations, Sam Howell; Employer-Employee Relations, Jim Bowman and Harry Murray; Four Way Test, Peter Hairston and Ed Cox; Occupational Information, Gaither Sanford; Trade Associations, Wayne Eaton.

Community Service Committee, Hugh Larew, General Chairman; Community Safety, Jim Andrews; Crippled Children, Ray Hartness; Rural Urban, Leo Williams; Scholarships, Awards and Student Loans, Bob Foster; Student Guest, John Norton and Roy Cartner; Youth Chairman, Gene Seats; Inter-Act.

And speaking of dogs! Bill and Jane have a dog. The dog's name is "Jocko". Bill and Jane love "Jocko" and "Jocko" loves Bill and Jane.

"Jocko" had fleas, Bill and Jane didn't want "Jocko" to have fleas. Bill and Jane sprayed "Jocko" so "Jocko" could stay in the house.

New "Jocko" has no fleas. Bill and Jane have more problems. The fleas left "Jocko" but went all over their house. Bill and Jane are now seeking out the fleas . . . but at night the fleas seek out Bill and Jane.

Moral of this story is: When you spray for fleas be sure to keep your dog outside.

Little League

Woodleaf beat Mocksville in Little League play Tuesday, June 21, in a hard fought game.

Pete Martin led the hitting with a double. He also made a diving catch to retire the side with the bases loaded in the 4th inning. Joe Harris started Mocksville's 2nd rally in the 3rd inning with a perfect bunt.

Woodleaf came up with 1 run each in the 3rd, 4th and 5th innings for their 3 runs. Farris was the leading hitter for Woodleaf. Foster was the winning pitcher. Harris was the loser.

Thursday, June 23, Mocksville defeated Farmington 8 to 6 in a close game.

Scoring 6 runs in the 1st inning, Mocksville had to scrap all the way for the finale score. David Poplin hit a solo home run for the winners. P. Beaver, Buck Hall, R. McDaniel each had 2 for 4 to lead the hitting for Mocksville.

Riddle had a perfect day at the plate for Farmington getting 3 for 3, one of them a tape measured homer. Boger also had a home run and a single.

T. Johnson was the winning pitcher. Boger was the losing pitcher.

Saturday, June 25, Mocksville defeated Advance 7 to 5 in another tough game. A lapse in Advance's defense gave Mocksville 2 unearned runs, which was the final margin of victory.

Warren Joyner had 2 singles, P. Beaver had 3 singles and T. Johnson had a home run and a single to lead Mocksville hitting attack.

K. Cornatzer and R. Boger led Advance in their hitting with 2 for 4. One of R. Boger's was a triple.

Softball

Results of play in the City Softball league are as follows:

Ingersoll-Rand defeated Monleigh by a score of 11 to 3. L. Polts was the winning pitcher and V. Dartt was the leading hitter with a 3 for 4. W. Draughn was the losing pitcher. L. Robertson led the hitting for Monleigh with 3 for 4.

Heritage defeated Daniel's Furniture Company by a score of 3 to 1. Winning pitcher was K. Riddle and E. Beal was the leading hitter with a 2 for 3. B. Lookbill was the losing pitcher.

Arnold's Garage defeated Heritage with a score of 12 to 11. C. Barker was the winning pitcher for Arnold's Garage and leading hitters were C. Barker, L. Barker and J. Dulin, each with a 2 for 3 and G. Clement with a 3 for 4.

Daniel's Furniture Company defeated Monleigh by a score of 6 to 0. B. Lookbill was the winning pitcher and W. Draughn the loser. S. Shore led Daniel's with a 3 for 3. Hitting for Monleigh was W. Draughn and J. Robertson.

The schedule for Thursday night, June 30, will be Heritage and Monleigh and Ingersoll-Rand and Arnold's Garage.

Mr. Soybean Producer . . . Please Read This!

Soybean producers, old and new, big and little, are asked to attend a meeting in Raleigh, North Carolina on Thursday, July 7, at 10:00 AM. in the auditorium of Williams Hall at North Carolina State University.

Matters that will effect the present and future status of soybeans in North Carolina will be discussed. We would like to have a representative group of growers from Davie County attending this meeting, for we have a stake in the expanding soybean program in North Carolina.

At the present time, we are seeing all past acreage and price records of this crop erased. Have you ever sold soybeans for $3.50 a bushel? Will you be permitted to plant all the soybeans you want to in 1971? I don't know, do you?

Does North Carolina have a future in the production of soybeans in the United States? We only produced 2.4 per cent of the total U. S. production in 1965. What voice do we have in the soybean program in North Carolina, in the United States, and in world markets?

Your presence and your experience will be called upon to answer these questions in Raleigh at 10:00 AM on Thursday, July 7, 1966. Plan to attend, you can always cultivate your soybeans on Friday.

Towed Truck Causes Wreck

Miss Dottie Warren Howard, 20, of Cooleemee was injured Monday night when her 1965 Buick was struck by a runaway 1947 Ford pickup truck.

Miss Howard was admitted to the Davie County Hospital with compound nose fracture and a knee injury. She underwent surgery Tuesday morning.

The accident occurred around 8:15 p. m. on US 601 South near the Davie County High School.

State Highway Patrolman R. L. Hanson said that his investigation disclosed that William Leonard Fisher, 42, of Mocksville Rt. 1, was driving a 1947 Dodge truck and was towing the 1947 Ford pickup, which had no wheels on the front. Just as this combination met the Howard car, heading north, the chain broke and swung the Ford pickup into the left lane of traffic and hit Miss Howard's car head on.

Both vehicles were a total loss. Fisher was charged with failure to secure load and improper registration.

N. C. Commissioner Of Agriculture

James A. Graham Is Picnic Speaker

JAMES A. GRAHAM

The North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture will be the featured speaker at the 88th Annual Masonic Picnic to be held at Clement Grove in Mocksville on Thursday, August 11th.

James Allen Graham, who has served in this position since July of 1964, will deliver the featured address at noon on that day.

George Martin, program chairman in announcing Mr. Graham as speaker, said:

"It is a great honor to secure Mr. Graham as the speaker for the annual Masonic Picnic. Mr. Graham is well known throughout this area and has a lot of Davie County friends."

Mr. Graham was born in Cleveland, Rowan County, on April 7, 1921, son of James Turner and Laura Blanche (Allen) Graham, a native of Davie County.

He graduated from the Cleveland High School in 1938 and from N. C. State College in 1942, receiving a B. S. in agricultural education.

He is farmer, owner and operator of a commercial livestock farm in Rowan County.

He began his professional career as teacher of vocational agriculture in Iredell County, 1942-1946; Superintendent of Upper Mountain Research Farm, 1946-1952; Executive Secretary of the Hereford Cattle Breeders Association, 1943-1956; manager of Dixie Classic Livestock Show and Fair, 1946-1952.

He was appointed Commissioner of Agriculture on July 29, 1964, by Governor Terry Sanford to complete the term of the late L. Y. Ballentine. He was elected to this office in the general election of November 1964.

He is married to the former Helen Ida Kirk, formerly of Mocksville. They have two daughters, Alice Kirk Graham and Laura Constance Graham.

Mr. Graham accompanied Governor Terry Sanford to the 1964 picnic.

Planning Party To Visit This Summer

Davie Expects Watershed Study

A watershed planning party from the Soil Conservation Service will be in Davie and neighboring counties this summer to study Hunting-Bear Creek Watersheds.

The Hunting-Bear Creek Watershed lies within Wilkes, Yadkin, Iredell, and Davie counties. Bear Creek is wholly within Davie County.

The study will determine whether flood control is economically feasible, and the amount of damage from flooding and erosion on the watersheds. Other considerations will be recreation, municipal water storage, land treatment, forestry, and wildlife values.

Hunting Creek Watershed covers 43,000 plus acres in the southeastern part of Wilkes County. Hunting Creek heads in the Brushy Mountains and flows along highway N. C. 115 south, almost to the county line. Most of the land south of U. S. Highway 421 east of Wilkesboro drains into Hunting Creek. The planning party will take 15-20 cross-sections in Wilkes County for use in planning control measures which are needed to control flooding. Other cross-sections will be taken in the other counties so that a coordinated program can be worked out.

This is a local project with federal help, and differs from a federal project. Under Public Law 556, the Small Watershed Act, local people must grant easements for improvements and, after establishment, they revert to the original owners.

Also, local people must maintain improvements completed.

Provisions can be made for municipal water storage if desired by any municipality. Recreation can also be included.

MISS MARY ELIZABETH DENNIS WEDS
WALTER HAROLD RICE ON SATURDAY

In a pretty mid-day ceremony on Saturday, June 25, Miss Mary Elizabeth Dennis became the bride of Walter Harold Rice Jr. The Rev. R. Claxton Hall heard the couple's vows at the Clemmons Baptist Church.

Mrs. Gene Greene of Winston-Salem was soloist and Miss Stella Sam of Hong Kong, China, was organist.

The bride is a graduate of Southwest High School and Mars Hill College. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Robert Dennis of Advance.

A graduate of Greenville (S. C.) High School and Clemson University, the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harold Rice. He received a master's degree and joined Iota Lambda Sigma professional fraternity. He is a member of the Wade Hampton High School faculty in Greenville, S. C., and is president of S. C. Industrial Arts Education Association.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of floral brocade silk, which she had made. The material was a gift from Hong Kong, China. The gown was made with an empire waist line, wide elbow-length sleeves and a stand-up rolled collar with a cathedral-length train attached to the collar at the back. Her veil of illusion fell from an orange blossom crown, and she carried a bouquet of roses and lilies-breath.

Mrs. Tom Hart of Kernersville was matron of honor. She wore a pale yellow dress, made with empire lines, and carried a bouquet of daisies.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. H. C. Myers of Union Grove, a cousin of the bride; Mrs. Gerald Creswell, the groom's sister; Mrs. Tracy Heath of Kinston; and Miss Ellen Havens of Asheboro. Their gowns were of mint green and they carried daisies.

Miss Cathy Creswell, the groom's niece, was a junior bridesmaid. Flower girls were Mary Myers and Frances Myers, cousins of the bride.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were Gerald Creswell and Jerry Skelton, both of Greenville; Charles Hudson of Travelers Rest, S. C.; and H. C. Myers of Union Grove.

After a wedding trip to the beach, the newlyweds will live in Greenville, S. C.

After-Rehearsal Party Honors Bridal Couple

Miss Sara Marlene Dull and her fiance Calvin L. Trivette were honored with an after-rehearsal party Saturday evening in the Fellowship Hall of Wesley Chapel Methodist Church in Pino. Hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Reavis, Mr. and Mrs. Vestal Dull, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Dull.

A bowl of Queen Ann's lace and fern centered the bride's table overlaid with a lace cloth. Lighted white candles in crystal holders cast a soft glow on the scene. Punch, wedding cake, nuts and mints were served.

Palms and colorful gladioli decorated the hall for the party of forty five guests.

Miss Linda Spry Honored At Shower

Miss Linda Spry, bride-elect of Bob Dwigings, was honored at a miscellaneous shower Friday night, June 24, at the home of Mrs. Bill Collette on South Main Street when Mrs. Collette and Mrs. Bill Bowles joined hospitality in entertaining.

The honoree wore a navy blue voile dress. She was presented with a corsage of miniature household items by her hostesses.

Several bridal games and contests were played by those attending.

The honoree opened her many gifts, after which refreshments consisting of evergreen punch, mints, pickles, cake squares and nuts were served to those attending the party. The bride's table was centered with a white wedding bell surrounded by ivy with yellow candles on each side.

Corvette Hits Bridge
In Wreck On US 158

A 1966 Corvette went out of control last Saturday around 2:30 p. m. and hit a bridge on US 158, 5-miles out of Mocksville.

State Highway Patrolman R. L. Hanson said the vehicle was being operated by Clyde Samuel Brinkley, Jr., 17, of Valdese, N. C.

Patrolman Hanson said that his investigation disclosed that Brinkley was passing another vehicle, ran off the edge of pavement onto shoulder, jerked wheel back, car slid sideways across to the right side and struck corner of bridge, spun around and off the road.

Damage to the car was estimated at $1,000.

Miss Sara Marlene Dull became the bride of Calvin Leon Trivette Sunday, June 26 in Wesley Chapel Methodist Church at Pino. The Rev. Benny Bearden, the couple's former pastor, performed the 5 p. m. double ring ceremony.

Miss Dull is a Davie High School graduate and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Webster Dull. Mr. Trivette is a graduate of the same school and is employed by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company in Winston-Salem.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza styled with a controlled bell-shaped skirt with a court train. Her veil was attached to a crown of pearls and she carried white orchids on her white Bible.

Mrs. Gene F. Smith was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Marcheta Dull, niece of the bride, Miss Caroline Trivette, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Shirley Daywall.

All of the attendants wore pale blue embossed taffeta dresses with matching headresses and carried long stemmed white carnations.

The bride-groom's father was best man. Ushers were Roger Caters of Winston-Salem, uncle of the bridegroom; Randy Reavis, Vestal Dull and Jimmy Dull. Junior ushers were Wayne Dull and Russell Smith, nephews of the bride. Wedding musicians were Mrs. Clarence Elmore, organist, and Miss Teresa Smith soloist.

Most heart attack risk factors are either preventable, curable or treatable, says the North Carolina Heart Association.

Church Activities

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

The circles of the church will meet as follows:

Circle 1, Mrs. Ted Junker, chair-man, will meet Monday, July 11, at 2 p. m. with Mrs. Gailther Sanford on North Main Street.

Circle 2, Mrs. Frank Brown, chairman, will meet Tuesday July 5, at 6:30 p. m. at the church for a picnic supper.

Circle 3, Mrs. C. B. Phillips, chairman, will meet Tuesday, July 5, at 10:00 a. m. with Mrs. Knox Johnstone on North Main Street.

Circle 4, Mrs. E. E. Goodwin, chairman, will meet Tuesday, July 5, at 6:30 p. m. with circles 2 and 5 at the church.

Circle 5, Mrs. Carroll Foster, chairman, will meet Tuesday, July 5, at 6:30 p. m. with circles 2 and 4 at the church for a picnic supper.

Circle 6, Mrs. James Bowman, chairman, will meet Monday, July 4, at 8:00 p. m. with Mrs. R. B. Sanford, Jr. on Church Street.

FIRST BAPTIST

Communion will be observed at the eleven o'clock worship service, Sunday, July 3.

On the recommendations of the Board of Deacons, there will not be any more services at 8:45 a. m. until further notice.

TURRENTINE BAPTIST

A white Bible presentation service was held at the church, Sunday, June 26, by the Young Woman's Auxiliary, who presented Miss Shel-by Jean Spry, bride-elect of Allen Eugene Wensil, with a gift of a bride's Bible. This is a tradition with the auxiliary to always pre-sent a Bible to any member of the auxiliary before her wedding. The church was decorated with the Y. W. A. colors which are green and white.

The honoree was escorted in ar-seated before the members who formed a semi-circle around her, holding lighted colored candles signifying the many moods of wed-ded life.

Special music was furnished by Mrs. Mildred James and Miss Brenda Spry.

Following the service, the guests were invited to the Fellowship building for refreshments which consisted of cake and punch.

BIXBY PRESBYTERIAN

Bible school was held at the church last week with an average attendance of sixty-five. Fifty three of the children had perfect attend-ance.

A picnic lunch was enjoyed by the children at the church, Friday. The group presented a program Sunday morning.

Bible school directors were Mary Boger and Josephine Tutterow. The Rev. Glenn Thomason is pas-tor of the church.

Ijames Cross Roads

Mrs. Noah Boger is confined to her bed at the Patterson Nursing Home in Spencer. The family is taking times sitting up with her.

Mrs. Mattie Sue Blackwelder and Calvin Prevette entertained the Intermediates class of Ijames Church with a party, beginning with a soft ball game at 6:00 p. m. at the Ijames field, after which they went to the community building for refreshments and to play games. Sixteen members attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Ijames and Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Gobble visited Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lanier, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ratledge, Jr. and Harley Chaffin were Sunday luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Chaffin. Mrs. Mattie Sue Blackwelder joined them in the afternoon and they all visited Mrs. Noah Boger at Patterson Nursing Home in Spencer.

Mr. and Mrs. James Butler and sons of Tampa, Florida are spending this week with the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Gentry.

Mrs. Arizona Hayes visited Mrs. Pearl White, Sunday at Davis Hospital in Statesville.

Mrs. Ossie White is improving and is expected to return to her home this week from Davie County Hospital.

The Rev. John McDaniel, former pastor of Ijames church preached at the Sunday morning worship service and then visited in the community.

The annual Cleary reunion was held at the community building Sunday, June 26.

Mrs. Elta Mae Norman and daughter, Margaret of Goldsboro spent a few days last week with Mrs. Ina Tutterow.

Spending the week-end at the beach were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gobble, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Beck, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Gobble and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Tutterow.

The boy's softball team played Fork team in a double header at Fork, June 20. They played five innings in each game in order to get the two games in before dark. Ijames lost the first game 11 to 7, but won the second game with a score of 9 to 5. The boys now have their new jerseys and wore them in this game for the first time. They are blue and white.

The girls played their first game June 22 with Oak Grove at the local field. Judy Gobble started as pitcher with Dot Gobble as catcher. Patsy Beck relieved a pitcher in the fifth inning. The Ijames team lost 9 to 10, but it was a very well played game.

The girls will play at Bixby June 29, and Center at the Ijames field, July 6.

The boys played Cornater there June 23 and won with the score being 16 to 9. "General" Mack Whited did some real good hitting and all the boys played some good ball.

The Ijames boy's team will play Blaise there, June 30, and Bear

The 12th Reunion of the descendants of the late Ruben and Katherine Deese Rollins were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Rollins, Sunday, June 26, with 75 in attendance.

A picnic lunch was spread at noon, after which a business discussion was held. Denny Rollins, president, and Mrs. Bill Seaford read the minutes of the last reunion. New officers for a two year period were elected. The meeting place for the reunion next year will be at the original home place in Union County, N. C.

Officers elected were president, Clifford Fowler, vice president, Hoyt Stearns and secretary, Martha Fowler.

On The Home Front

You might want to try this for easy fare for a picnic, cook-out, reunion, or any big crowd. Get a 6 lb. canned ham and have your meat man slice it for you and then tie it with a string for you. Place ham fat side up on a rack in a shallow pan. Spread a cup and half of apricot preserves on top and stud with cloves. Bake in a 325 degree oven for fifteen minutes per lb. Baste with juices three or four times while baking. Cut and remove string and presto, the slices will fall apart in nice servings.

For a quick broiler meal — use a 1 lb. and 4 ounce can of sweet potatoes drained, 2 (12 oz.) cans of chopped ham and 1 can of pineapple slices sprinkled with brown sugar. Broil for fifteen or twenty minutes about 3 inches below heat until thoroughly heated. Just add a green salad or cole slaw and a quick meal results.

For a quick tarta sauce: combine 1 cup mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons pickle relish, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 1 tablespoon minced parsley and 1 tablespoon chopped pimento. Mix together well and chill. Makes 1 1/4 cups.

For a salad that can be made ahead, you might want to try this rhubarb celery salad. It hits the spot for a warm day. Make up one package lemon gelatin, according to directions. When syrupy, stir in 1/2 cup drained rhubarb sauce and 2-3 cup finely chopped celery. Chill until firm. Serve with salad dressing on lettuce.

Orange Coconut Cake — good to eat and easy to prepare and serve. Use one package of cake mix and make according to directions. While cake is baking, combine 1 cup flaked coconut, 2 tablespoons orange juice and 1 tablespoon orange rind. Whip one cup of heavy cream until very stiff, fold in coconut mixture and spread on cake. Chill for several hours before serving. This is so delicious that I'm sure it won't last long as everyone will want seconds!

Social Security In Davie County
Arrangements for the beginning of Medicare are just about complete. Robert C. Thomas, social security district manager, who has been keeping track of progress in getting the new program of health insurance for the aged into operation said today that all steps possible have been taken to insure the program's smooth start.

Davie County Hospital in the Mocksville area with a total of 59 beds has been certified eligible to participate in the medicare program. All participating medicare hospitals have been sent copies of Hospital Manual with the admission and billing procedures under medicare. Admitting a medicare beneficiary will be much like admitting a patient covered by Blue Cross or a private health insurance policy, Mr. Thomas said. The patient will be asked to show the health insurance identification card sent to him in the mail.

All physicians in this area have by now received their personal copies of the Physician's Reference Guide, along with copies of the Medicare Handbook that is being mailed during the month of June to the 19.1 million people 65 and over who are covered by the medicare program.

The Physician's Reference Guide describes the benefits payable for the Nation's elderly people under the hospital insurance program and the payments for doctor bills and other medical services covered under the voluntary program of medical insurance for which 9 out of 10 of those 65 and over have enrolled.

Medicare beneficiaries will find answers to most of their questions in the green Medicare Handbooks being sent to them through the mail. However, the district office in Salisbury will be glad to explain any point that may not be clear, Mr. Thomas said. The handbook tells what is and what is not covered by medicare and how the benefits will be paid.

Most people 65 and over in this area have already received their Medicare Handbooks and their red, white, and blue health insurance identification cards, Mr. Thomas said. Identification cards were mailed first to those signed up for both the hospital insurance and the voluntary medical insurance. Anyone who signed up for medicare, but has not received his identification card by the end of the 2nd week in July, should inquire at the social security office, Mr. Thomas advised. If a person must go to a hospital before he has received his health insurance identification card, Mr. Thomas noted, the hospital will arrange to check his eligibility.

Questions about the Health Insurance provisions should be directed to the local social security office at 105 Corriher Avenue, Salisbury. The telephone number is 633-6470.

Hollis S. Baker—A Researcher

Initiator Of New Furniture Styles

During the past 30 years, Hollis S. Baker, who died in Grand Rapids on June 12, exerted probably the greatest influence on the country's home furnishing style "trends" of any man in the industry. From the time in 1925 that he became president of the interior woodwork company his father had founded in Allegan, Michigan in 1890, his interest in fine traditional furniture of Europe, and his wide travels and research, resulted in the introduction of many "firsts" in the industry.

students of art and design, archeology, and history.

When the plant was moved from Allegan to Holland, Michigan in 1933, it was already specializing in authentic European designs. An important part of this specialization was the introduction of hand methods of French polishing. To do this work, Mr. Baker brought from New York a group of finishers who had been trained in this method in Europe or in small custom cabinet shops in the East. Never before had any factory assembled so many custom craftsmen of this caliber.

Since then, Baker has introduced many other "firsts." Throughout the thirties and forties, the company was a recognized leader in the field of authentic 18th Century English reproductions. In 1948, it introduced the Far East collection — to initiate a new and widely accepted style trend. Just a year later, Baker introduced America to the Danish Modern trend with the designs of Finn Juhl of Copenhagen; and in 1950 gave first impetus to the classic and Italian Provincial styles, with the introduction of the Palladian group.

Four years ago, the A la Carte concept — the one-of-a-kind look in fine traditional European reproductions — was premiered, to become today's strongest trend in the fine furniture field.

At the time of his death this month Hollis S. Baker had completed a new book, "Furniture in the Ancient World," scheduled for publication in October by the Macmillan Company in this country, and the Connoisseur Press in England.

Mr. Baker's masterful volume covers a span of twenty-five centuries — from 3100 B. C. to 475 B. C., the beginning of the Classic period in Greece. It is the first major work on "ancient" as distinct from "period" furniture; and the first to compare the types that evolved in different civilizations, tracing the influence of these earlier pieces on later French, English and Hollis Baker devoted a lifetime to travel and study in researching "period" and modern design, but until this present work, he concentrated principally on what seemed most suitable for present-day use. This has resulted in the accumulation of something like 1,400 antiques and models for design study now in the Baker Museum for Furniture Research in Holland, Michigan, and the associated collection in the Baker Museum and Craft Shop in Grand Rapids.

"Furniture in the Ancient World" resulted from Mr. Baker's natural curiosity about "what went before?" — and his decision to find out, as a sort of hobby "side-interest." The "hobby" soon became a consuming, all-absorbing pursuit of information and for the next five years his research led him to such places as the Valley of the Kings at Thebes on the upper Nile; Knossos, royal city of ancient Crete; Bagdad; and many other Near Eastern areas of early civilizations.

They were fortuitously preserved by the extremely arid climate of the upper Nile Valley, where they had been buried in their owners' tombs are now carefully preserved in museum collections.

In 1957, Baker purchased the 90-year-old Grand Rapids Chair Company. Retaining its name, the company operates as a division of Baker, Milling Road of North Carolina, specializing in Milling Road furniture. Two years ago a plant was opened in Mocksville.

Hollis M. Baker, now President of Baker Furniture, Inc., repeated family history when he joined the company on graduation from college. Frank VanSteenberg, who came to Baker as a designer in 1928, and in 1953 became president, is now Chairman of the Board.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

I was just thinking last week, reading the automobile ads in a slick magazine, that we got the smartest people on earth. Take these engineers that designs cars. They'll come out with a model that is the very last word in everything. Folks buys it, and in six months they've produced another model that makes the old one anywhere from 5 to 10 year out of date.

I reckon, though, that everything this day and time is perishable fast. They say news is the most perishable thing on earth and even in this country they manufacture a heap of news, especial from Washington, afore it happens to keep it from spoiling.

I was discussing this matter at the country store Saturday night and Ed Doolittle allowed as how it was a pity we got the smartest people on earth and didn't none of them ever git to Washington. He said he was glad I brung this item up on account of he had fetched some figgers he wanted the fellers to hear.

According to this piece Ed had, our post office department was handling 74.3 billion pieces of mail this year, would handle 77.7 billion pieces in 1967. Ever day, the piece said, folks was mailing from New York to Los Angeles 210 million letters, cards, packages, bills, newspapers, magazines and advertisements. In the whole country, the piece said, the post office was averaging 2 pieces of mail a day for ever man, woman, and child in America.

And Ed reported he had saw a piece where Congressmen Rumsfeld from Illinois, Langen from Minnesota, and Gross from Iowa claimed the postal service was getting worse ever day.

One of them, said Ed, reported Goldberg of the United Nations wrote some greetings to a affair in Nashville, Tennessee, airmailed it from New York to Mrs. Gore, wife of the Tennessee Senator, six days afore the affair and it got there the day after the event was held. And one of them Congressmen reported a feller named Floyd Kline, Indiana traffic director, sent out plans for a 40-day safety campaign. The mailman delivered Kline's announcement to a Indianapolis newspaper — just 5 blocks away—after the campaign ended.

If we got the smartest people on earth, claimed Ed, how come we couldn't send some of them to Washington to take the politics out of the post office department, stop millions of pieces of junk mail, set up a proper budget and git the manpower to run the thing proper like General Motors would run it.

Ed got powerful worked up over the matter, Mister Editor, and I was mighty sorry I brung up the new model car item of the meeting.

Uncle Dave

INDEPENDENCE DAY, the FOURTH OF JULY, is the greatest patriotic holiday in the United States. The "Fourth" and several days before it have long been marked by explosions of torpedoes, firecrackers, and other noisemakers, as well as displays of fireworks. For many years these explosives took a heavy toll of life, but the "sane Fourth" idea greatly lessened the casualties. Many cities forbid the indiscriminate sale of firecrackers, and communities have fireworks displays, conducted by experts. The Declaration of Independence from Great Britain was passed by the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1776, was the first state to make this occasion a legal holiday. Nowhere there is a record of its observance by the citizens of New Bern, N. C., in 1778, and it was celebrated elsewhere before the act of Pennsylvania was followed by all the states.

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

WHO, ME? . . . If the N. C. County Commissioners Association has its way about it, North Carolinians in the year beginning July 1, 1967, will pay an estimated $50 million more in sales taxes than they are paying this year. A $30 bag of groceries would go from $90.90 to $120.

They said officially a few days ago in annual meeting that they want the sales tax increased from three per cent to four per cent.

That is an increase of one-third in the tax rate. Your county commissioners want this extra cent of taxes to come to the counties. The cities, of course, would like to get in on it, too.

Recently, a county commissioner was approached on his group's plan to fix it so that for every dollar you spend, four cents would go for sales tax.

"Are you for this increase of one-third in the sales tax?", he was asked. "Do you want to go on increasing taxes?"

He began to squirm . . . remembering no doubt that he had won re-election by only the skin of his teeth. "Well, now. Hold on a minute. That's the organization talking — not me personally."

This commissioner suddenly recalled he's just hired help—at the will of the taxpayers. It may be he will want to check further with the voters before declaring himself — personally — in favor of a 30 per cent increase in the sales tax.

In his head-long hop away from an equitable property tax, he has forgotten that a lot more voters pay sales tax than ad valorem revenue. Yes, it is true: "The Lord must have loved poor people. He made so many of us."

And—fortunately or unfortunately—they do like to vote!

MAKING MARE GO . . . This physician here in Raleigh likes to ride horses. He owns several, spends too much time out in the country away from his practice. He was criticized for it.

This spring he bought a beautiful Palomino. He looked her over carefully after making the purchase. She rides like a Kennedy Rocker. So, after deep thought, the riding doctor decided to name her Consultation.

Now when you call his office almost any afternoon, his sweet-voiced receptionist tells you the doctor is not in—"I'm sorry. He's out on Consultation."

FIVE SONS . . . When he was Governor, Luther Hodges recognized a lot of untested young talent in the local arena. He raised them to prominence; and they held up.

One of them was Ed Kirk, formerly a newsman with WPTF, Raleigh radio station. Kirk served with distinction with Hodges; and for many years now has been one of the officials of the prospering N. C. National Bank.

Kirk lost his father, the Rev. J. E. Kirk, a few days ago. He had served Baptist churches in various sections of the State for over 50 years. In addition to Ed here, two other sons survive: Dr. Daniel Kirk, dean of Calabaw College; and Missionary James Kirk of Salvador, in Brazil.

GENERAL MIXUP . . . for a recently revamped district, the Fifth really put on a shooow in the Galifianakis (we still have to look it up each time we write it—Bagley affair. There has been no more conservative Congressman up there than retiring Rep. Ralph Scott. Galifianakis had the all-out support of AFL-CIO. But Mrs. Scott, who's been married to her husband for 37 years, went with Labor and Galifianakis . . . and so did 32,968 (unofficial count) others!

—His supporters in Winston-Salem were not able to sufficiently sell Smith Bagley to the voters in Forsyth County. This, in the main, brought on his defeat . . .

—The "neutrality" of First Primary Losers Wood and Thomerson—with Thomerson finally coming out for Galifianakis — turned the tide for Durham . . .

—Roger Upchurch of Durham, young and aggressive manager for Nick and one of the area's outstanding attorneys, lost his brother-in-law suddenly five days before the runoff . . . and was very much below par during the final hours of the campaign . . . But he can probably go to Washington as administrative assistant if he wishes.

—Several young attorneys . . . and some not so young . . . in Winston-Salem were for Nick in a left-handed way. They reasoned that, if Bagley won, at the tender age of 31, they might never have a chance for the office. But with Galifianakis winning and a reshuffling of the Fifth (almost a certainty), there would be another campaign . . . and more candidates . . . two years hence . . .

More . . . More . . . More . . .

—Although Labor chose Galifianakis over Bagley, naturally, CIO-AFL is not expected to have 100% smooth sailing with Nick. His record in the Legislature, while on the Liberal side, showed some solidly conservative votes on occasion . . .

RUNOFF . . . The State is probably getting a good man in the Senate with J. F. (Jeff) Allen. But it is also losing one in the defeat of Sen. Jennings King of Laurinburg . . . really an outstanding State Senator. He, like Bagley, now knows that it takes something besides money to win . . . in some sections of N. C. King spent almost as much (upwards of $10,000) trying to get back to the Senate as W. Z. Wood stated he spent in his vain attempt at the 5th Dist. seat.

Washington Report

Unemployment Compensation

Occasionally, there is an example of holly controversial legislation which is rewritten and reshaped by a Congressional Committee so that what seems to be a certain knock-down fight becomes, instead, an exercise in armly when the bill is debated on the Floor of the House. That happened last week when the bill to change the unemployment compensation program was debated and passed. The vote of 374 - 10 did not reflect the heated arguments about this bill that had gone on since the President recommended a complete overhaul of the 31-year old program more than a year ago.

The battle had been joined in the House Ways and Means Committee. For many months, the White House's effort to Federalize the unemployment compensation program has been fought over in public hearings and closed sessions of the Committee. The hearings alone produced five volumes of testimony which occupied 2,191 printed pages. Among those States who sent spokesmen to oppose the President's plan was North Carolina.

It was encouraging that the Ways and Means Committee chose to delve into these new proposals carefully and that in the final analysis, the Committee repudiated most of the major changes that had been recommended.

It seemed to me that the unemployment compensation program's value has been well established over the years. It has provided needed assistance to employees and families in periods of unemployment. Altering the Federal-State relationship on which the program has been based could have serious consequences. Changes that ignored pivotal concepts in the program could also do serious damage to it.

One of these concepts is in the financing provision which encourages States to grant reduced credits to employers with favorable employment records. The purpose of this has been to stabilize employment and to encourage employers to avoid unnecessary lay-offs and shut-downs of plants. Many observers felt that this so-called "experience factor" would be badly undermined if the President's plan prevailed.

Under the White House plan, it would be possible for a worker to draw 52 weeks of unemployment compensation after having worked only 20 weeks immediately preceding his unemployment. The philosophy of compensation for idleness was deeply implanted in the original bill. This is foreign to the more positive concepts upon which unemployment compensation ought to be based. Subsidized unemployment has too often brought the program into disrepute. Further steps down this road could only seriously weaken it. Prompt recognition of the need to help an unemployed man find a job or open the opportunity for him to receive training to perform a new job are more positive alternatives.

Behind the President's bill was the charge that the States have not done enough or have been too slow in the unemployment compensation field. Nevertheless, the evidence shows considerable progress by most of the States. Today, an unemployed person receives more benefits sooner than at any time in the history of the program. What is more important, the benefits he receives will also buy more of life's necessities than at any other time during the program's three decades of operation.

Even though the philosophy of the White House bill was not acceptable, it was felt that improvement in the program should be made within the framework of the Federal-State concept. Among these improvements was an additional 13 weeks of benefits in times of high unemployment. Congress recognized during the economic dips of 1958 and 1961 that when unemployment is high, jobs are not easy to find and the hardship of unemployment is that greater. By making this a permanent part of the law, there is a soundly financed way to "provide for a rainy day while the sun shines."

The House-passed bill broadens coverage of the program at the same time increases the Federal unemployment tax on employers from 3.1% to 3.3% and increases the taxable wage base from the present $3,000 to $3,900 in 1969 to $4,200 in 1972. Additionally, it eliminates the "double dip" which allowed persons to draw full benefits in two successive years following a single separation from work. Also sound, in my opinion, is the new right of States to obtain for the first time judicial review in any arguments that may arise with the Secretary of Labor.

In summary, this legislation that now goes to the Senate represents a much more sound approach, in my opinion, than had been originally recommended.

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

WASHINGTON — The housing title of the 1966 Civil Rights Act is being offered to the country as a "national necessity" to end discrimination in the sale, lease, and rental of all forms of housing.

This calls to mind the truth uttered by William Pitt, the younger, when he said that — "Necessity is the plea for every infringement of human freedom." This time the plea is that homeowners and renters must do the Government's bidding.

A few years ago, such a proposition would have been considered absurd. The deference paid to such a proposal now comes from the emotional impact of any legislation to ban "discrimination." Compulsion that would be abhorred in any other area of law is recommended with no qualms if "civil rights" is inserted in the title of the measure.

What about the homeowner who has been lost in much of the discussion? How would he fare in the investment of a lifetime of labor and service which he places in his home or the apartment he rents? The housing title would give him vast new concerns. Decisions that he now makes could bring all sorts of battles with Government agencies and the Federal courts. If he chose the right purchaser, or the right renter, he would have no troubles, but if his decision did not conform to the latest government guideline on housing, neighbors, and how one ought to make a judgment, his troubles would begin.

Title IV of the proposed 1966 Civil Rights Act states that prospective home purchasers would have legal grounds to challenge the sale or rental on grounds of discrimination and have free legal services to present their grievances. Upon a finding of discrimination, the Federal court could grant a permanent or temporary injunction, or award damages against the homeowners for "humiliation," or even make him pay the prospective purchaser's lawyer fees. The whole power of the Federal Government could be arrayed against a citizen who simply chose to sell his house to a friend or a stranger whom he liked.

Against such odds, homeowners might turn into a nightmare of red tape, intimidation, and litigation. Peaceful souls would conclude that the best way to sell a home was to pick an individual that the Government was most likely to approve.

Advocates of such measures say that "human rights" ought to overrule "property rights." This is nonsense. Property has no rights, only attributes. Property attributes do present a human right, a civil right—a right protected by the Constitution. It is basic to a free and contented society.

Once it was said in maxims that had respect that "the king of England could not enter the poorest man's tenement without an invitation," that a man's home was his castle, and that "property ownership brought stability to the community." Now the Government proposes to stand at the threshold of every door with a "For Sale" sign in the yard.

So the country finds itself arguing over whether the Government ought to pick and choose homeowners and approve the disposition of pro-

An Old Story Repeated

A Statement Of Philosophy

In 1923, eight of the worlds greatest financiers met in Chicago. They included:

1. The president of the largest independent steel company.
2. President of the largest gas company.
3. The greatest wheat speculator.
4. President of the New York Stock Exchange.
5. A member of the President's Cabinet.
6. The greatest bear in Wall Street.
7. Head of the world's greatest monopoly.
8. President of the Band of International Settlements.

These men were considered by many to be the world's most successful men . . . at least they had found the secret of making money.

But now, 43 years later, where are these men?

1. The president of the largest independent steel company, Charles Schwab, died a pauper. The last few years of his life he lived on borrowed money.

2. The president of the largest gas company, Howard Hopson, is now insane.

3. The greatest wheat speculator, Arthur Cutten, died abroad, insolvent.
4. The president of the New York Exchange, Richard Whitney, was released from Sing Sing Prison.
5. The member of the President's Cabinet, Albert Fall, was released from prison so he could die at home.
6. The greatest bear in Wall Street, Jesse Livermore, died a suicide.
7. The head of the world's greatest monopoly, Ivar Kruger, the Match King, died a suicide.
8. The president of the Band of International Settlement shot himself.

The same year, 1923, the winner of several of the most important golf championships, including the U. S. Open and the P. G. A. tournament, was Gene Sarazen. Today he is still strong, still playing an excellent game of golf, and very definite solvent.

Conclusion: Stop worrying about your business and get out and play golf.

Senator Jordan Reports:

BY SENATOR B. EVERETT JORDAN

WASHINGTON—I am hoping for early passage of a bill I introduced recently which would greatly improve library facilities and services for the benefit of the blind and other handicapped persons.

For many years the Library of Congress has had jurisdiction over the basic administration of the library services program for the blind and the bill I introduced, which has already been approved by the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration of the library services program for the blind and the bill I introduced, which has already been approved by the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, would expand this service and extend it to other handicapped people.

In reviewing the progress we have made in general public library services in the past ten years, I found that a large vacuum existed in the services we provide handicapped people.

These include the blind, the partially blind, people who have lost both arms, people who have lost all their fingers, and people who are in iron lungs or other respiratory devices which make ordinary reading difficult or impossible, people who are disabled as a result of multiple sclerosis, muscular dystrophy, cerebral palsy, Parkinson's disease, and other crippling ailments.

The library services program for the blind, better known as the Talking-Book Program, has meant a great deal to many thousands of people who cannot read. I think there is an urgent need to provide this same type of service, through tape recordings and other devices for our other citizens who cannot enjoy reading as other normal people do.

The proposed program would be administered through the State Library in Raleigh in the same manner as the current program for the blind is administered. No new agency would be required.

Most of us are inclined to take public libraries for granted, but there are still many people without the services of a public library.

In North Carolina, for example, we have public library services in all of the counties, but in a few areas this service is so limited that there are still nearly 100,000 people in our state without any truly local public library service.

We are making progress and we need to increase our efforts in this direction. Last year we built 12 new public libraries in the state and thus far a new projects have been approved

Rolling Comedy Is Playing At Showboat

A rollicking, action-packed comedy, "Ready When You Are, C. B.!", will open at the Showboat Dinner Theatre, Greensboro, on Wednesday (June 29) for four weeks of theatre-going fun.

The play, which starred Julie Harris on Broadway in 1964-65, gets its title from the punch line of an oldtime humorous anecdote concerning the moving picture problems of Director Cecil B. DeMille (a North Carolina native son from "Little" Washington, N. C.) The famous anecdote is incorporated within the lines and plot of the comedy, which deals with Annie, a screwball would-be stage actress who makes a living subtletting her New York apartment periodically to travelling actors.

Much action and clever repartee fill the play's two acts when Annie's newest tenant comes to town in the person of an Adonis-type movie idol who has skipped the set of a multi-million dollar wide screen extravaganza and who wants to hide out from impending lawsuits. Annie warily consents to allow Jones, the actor, to stay in her flat—as much because her zany, penny-pinching nature will not allow her to pass up the $300 a week rent as because an actress friend, Felicia, asks her to take Jones in as a special favor "for personal reasons."

Appearing in the Julie Harris role of Annie will be Rosalind Lacy, a California-born beauty who has appeared in theatre and TV in "Ring Around the Moon", "All the King's Men", "Detective Story", "Come Blow Your Horn", and in several Off-Broadway productions.

Playing opposite in the role of Jones, the matinee idol on the run, will be Jack Bell, an earlier Showboat favorite in "The Tunnel of Love." Since playing at the "Boat" in January, Bell has been with the APA-Phoenix Repertory group on Broadway in "War and Peace" and has appeared on the New York Television Theatre's production of Ionesco's "Bedlam Galore for Two or More." A versatile actor, Bell has also been seen in "Come Blow Your Horn", "Mary, Mary", "A Thousand Clowns", "The Rose Tattoo", as well as a number of Shakespeare roles. TV viewers may recognize him from roles in "The Nurses", "Gun Smoke", "Car 54" and others.

In the role of Fran, Roseann Conte will play the friend of Annie who tries to help the zany Annie and the actor-on-the-lam adjust to their problems, attractions to one another, and ensuing complications. Miss Conte has appeared in Williams' "Summer and Smoke", and in "Born Yesterday", "Petrified Forest", "The Importance of Being Earnest", and Off-Broadway in the noted Rodale Theatre.

ARNOLD HUSSER

Marine Second Lieutenant Arnold L. Husser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald K. Husser, Sr. of Route 2, Advance, N. C., has flown his first solo flight in a T34 "Mentor" trainer aircraft after approximately one month of Primary Flight Training Squadron One at Stanley Field Naval Auxiliary Air Station, Pensacola, Fla.

The "Mentor" is the military's version of the civilian Beechcraft "Bonanza".

He will continue on to more advanced phases of his flight training for approximately 13 more months, before receiving his pilot's "Wings of Gold."

Davie Students Make Catawba Dean's List

The top academic students at Catawba College for the spring semester have just been announced by Dr. Daniel E. Kirk, dean of the College.

Included in the list of some 101 students are four from the Mocksville area. They are William E. Evans, rising senior and son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Evans, Jr., Route 5, Mocksville; William A. Teague, rising senior and son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Teague, 8724 Cash Drive, Winston-Salem; Teague is married to the former Joyce M. Whitaker and they reside on Route 2, Mocksville.

Shirley D. Thorne, June graduate and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark N. Thorne, Route 1, Mocksville; and Molly C. Tutterow, June graduate and daughter of Mrs. Maggie S. Tutterow and the late Mr. Tutterow, Route 1, Mocksville. Miss Thorne graduated cum laude (50 percent of all grades were "A") and Miss Tutterow graduated magna cum laude (75 percent of all grades were "A").

include Hope Harcastle as Felicia, the overly-theatrical, over-dressed actress friend of Jones, and Sandy Gray in the juicy role of Sadie, the movie idol's outspoken mother. Both Miss Harcastle and Miss Gray have appeared successfully in many Broadway and television plays.

Veteran Stage Manager Bill Casey will be in charge of this coming production, which of course will be directed by Heinz Hohenwald, Showboat's permanent director.

Showboat Dinner Theatre is located just off Highway 63, about 2½ miles south of the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem Airport, near the Airport Exit of Interstate 40.

For the four-week run of "Ready When You Are, C. B.!", Showboat's buffet will begin at 7 p. m. and the play at 8:30 p. m.

FROM THE American Medical Association

"Tell me about 'The Pill' doctor. Does it work? Is it safe?"

These are questions that millions of American women are asking today. The answers are not always simple.

"The Pill" to which the questions refer is known to physicians as an "oral hormonal contraceptive." Its proper use permits a couple to refrain a high degree of control over whether and when the wife becomes pregnant. It is now being used regularly by several million American women.

Actually, there are a number of different pills, all designed to control fertility, that have been licensed by the federal government and are now on the market. All are available only by prescription.

The Committee on Human Reproduction of the American Medical Association recently published a report on "The Control of Fertility" for the guidance of physicians in practice.

"The Pill" is one of half a dozen methods available for control of pregnancy. The AMA Committee's report says: "the nonsurgical contraceptive methods, in descending order of theoretical effectiveness are (1) oral hormonal control; (2) intrauterine devices (IUD); (3) mechanical devices; (4) foams; (5) creams and gels used alone; rhythm, and coitus interruptus; (6) other chemical methods."

"The need for control of population, whether in nations or in individual families, is now recognized on a world-wide basis," the Committee report said.

"The effectiveness of the oral contraceptives is virtually 100 per cent, certainly the highest of any method short of surgical sterilization or total abstinence," the Committee said.

"The suppression of ovulation by the oral administration of progestogens has been under study since 1954. At present eight products in various dosage forms have received clearance from the U. S. Food and Drug Administration for use as contraceptive agents.

"The chief side-effects of oral hormonal contraceptives are spotting and breakthrough bleeding, nausea and vomiting, breast tenderness and weight gain, but these usually diminish with successive cycles and can be minimized by adjustment of dosage or shift in products.

"Breakthrough bleeding can occur in as many as 25 to 30 per cent of first cycles, usually diminishing in succeeding cycles. The advantages of having several products available to choose from are obvious, offering opportunity to shift both dosage and product until the one best suited to the patient's physiological makeup is found. To date, no increase in the incidence of malignant transformations has been reported in those women who were found to be free of pelvic cancer prior to taking the oral contraceptives.

"The possible association of thromboembolic phenomena (blood clots) with the use of oral contraceptives has been reviewed by several committees," the Committee said, adding that no connection has been found. "However, in order to allow for the unlikely occurrence of thromboembolic episodes, it has been suggested that women with previous vascular problems, varicose veins or other factors which may predispose to thrombophlebitis should be watched carefully.

"Changes in liver function and jaundice have occurred in women taking oral contraceptives. For this reason the drugs are contraindicated (not to be used) in patients with either a reliable history or presence of liver disease or dysfunction. Likewise, the presence or history of breast or genital cancer are considered absolute contraindications to hormonal contraception.

"There has been no evidence to support the belief that hormonal contraception has an adverse effect on menopause. On the contrary, an increasing number of gynecologists are finding these drugs helpful and recommending their use for the regularization of the irregular menopausal cycle and the control of menopausal symptoms.

"Because of concern about possible long-term adverse effects of the oral hormonal contraceptive, the FDA presently limits administration from 1 1/2 to 4 years, depending on the drug and duration

Around The Old Well

By JOAN PAGE

CHAPEL HILL. — Two exceptional art exhibitions await visitors on the University of North Carolina campus here during the month of July.

One is a collection of colorful, space-age paintings. The other is an exhibit of works of art, such as glass, silver and jewelry, fashioned at the end of the century.

Titled "In and Out of This World," the space-age exhibit will continue until July 15 at the Morehead Building. It features awesome and imaginative depictions of planets, stars, comets and galactic cataclysms by one of the world's leading painters of astronomical subjects — Chesley Bonestell.

The 77-year-old California artist is acclaimed for his ability to convey with photographic realism scenes and sights he has never seen. His canvases portray such scenes as Saturn viewed from one of its moons, astronauts digging in on Mars, exploration of the Moon, the destructions of New York and Moscow by hydrogen bombs, and the end of the world as seen from a mountain top.

An architect and astronomer, as well as an artist, Bonestell draws on the best available scientific information for his paintings. He has been labeled "the first and perhaps greatest artist to portray what eventually may be discovered to be true."

He has co-authored several books, of experience with it use. Continuing studies of several large groups of women have been in progress for over ten years, however, and no evidence of long-term adverse effects has been shown."

It is clear from the AMA report that "The Pill" is highly effective in controlling fertility. But it also is clear that there are some individuals who cannot use "The Pill", and that there are others in whom its use must be carefully watched by a physician.

As is true of most drugs, there is no single answer to the question "Is 'the Pill' right for me?" The physician must provide the answer on an individual basis for each patient.

including "The Conquest of Space," "Conquest of the Moon," "Exploration of Mars" and "Beyond the Solar System." In addition, he has served as advisor on several films dealing with space exploration, employing his photographic technique in background effects.

In contrast, the exhibit across campus at the Ackland Art Center takes a look backward. It features works of art from the end of the century, such as glass, silver, ceramics, jewelry, books, posters, furniture, drawings and paintings.

Titled "Arts of the Fin de Siecle," the exhibit will run through July 31. These works are examples of "Art Nouveau," or "new art," that emerged at the end of the century.

This "new art" fulfilled a liberating function of an "anti" movement, just as "Pop Art" is doing today. It discarded old, outworn conventions and set the stage for developments which followed in the 20th century.

Nature in its most unexpected aspects appealed to the "new art" artist. The exotic and different were expressed in such forms as long flowing lines of tendrils and plant stalks. Certain motifs, such as the lily, peacock and sunflower, occurred in numerous works. Women long flowing hair merging with drapery and decoration dominated the period.

Leading institutions, such as the Metropolitan Museum and the Museum of Modern Art in New York City and the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D. C., have lent works for the exhibit. So have a number of collectors from the Research Triangle area.

This exhibit of "new art" is accompanied by a special exhibition of "Drawings Related to the Art Nouveau" assembled and displayed at the Fogg Museum of Art at Harvard.

Viewing hours for the space-age exhibit in the North Gallery of the Morehead Building are from 2 to 5 and 7:30 to 10 p. m. weekdays; 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Saturdays; 1 to 10 p. m. Sundays.

The Ackland galleries are open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m., and on Sundays from 2 to 6 p. m. It is closed Mondays.

DISPERSAL SALE DUTCHMAN CREEK RANCH

Mocksville, Rt. 3

Sain Road

Saturday, July 2nd at 1:00 P M.

It is with sincere regret that we find it necessary to disperse the entire band of registered Quarter Horses at our Dutchman Creek Ranch, but due to the time required to operate my business, and lack of adequate help, since our manager, Jimmy McDonnal, accepted the management duties of one of North Carolina's large cattle ranches, we are forced to sell this band of foundation bred horses that we so carefully selected from some of the top ranches throughout the West.

We are very proud of our horses, and the quality colts produced by our mares is a great satisfaction. We will have approximately 55 horses to sell including: broodmares; colts; and two great stallions, Chieftain Five and Hired Hand's Bee.

TO SELL: Chieftain Five, an own son of Silver Wimpy, out of an own daughter of Royal Peppy. A proven sire of quality get.

TO SELL: Hired Hand's Bee 238,786, our many time champion stallion who boasts the bloodlines of King Ranch through his sire, Hired Hand's Cardinal, and is out of an own daughter of Bill Cody.

We will have 20 head of additional horses from out-of-state co-signed to this sale. These will be performance horses as well as breeding stock.

FARMINGTON MASONS ENJOY PICNIC

The Farmington Masonic Lodge 265 celebrated St. John's Day Saturday afternoon with a fellowship picnic on the front lawn of the Methodist Church. As the families and guests gathered the younger ones joined in games of ball and croquet. The older people sat under the wide spreading maple trees and renewed acquaintances and reminisced of other days.

At seven o'clock Joe Langston welcomed the group and introduced the speaker, the Rev. A. C. Cheshire, Pastor of the Yadkin Baptist Church. He spoke briefly on the past growth of the Lodge and of some of the people who have shared in the development of the Lodge and the Community. He said that Masonry taught its members to believe in themselves and in each other. He also said that "Masonic Principles grow in influence on the individual as he grows older".

Rev. Joe Phillips pronounced the invocation, after which both young and old gathered around the long, well filled picnic tables and enjoyed the ample supply of delicious home-cooked food prepared by the women. About 75 attended the occasion.

PINO FARMINGTON H. D. C. MEETS AT LIBRARY

Wednesday afternoon eighteen members and guests of the Pino-Farmington Home Demonstration Club met at the Davie County Library for their June meeting. Mrs. Everett Elchison greeted the guests and explained features that would help in the effective use of the Library. Mrs. Jack Ward showed a colored movie of the outstanding Winterthur Gardens in Pennsylvania.

The devotions were presented by Mrs. Grady H. Smith who reminded us that life is like a garden — full of opportunities for love and beauty and healthful work. She said that it takes care and thought and effort on the gardener's part to keep the flowers blooming and the weeds under control.

After a business session, the hostess, Mrs. Wade Furches, served sweets and coco cola. The group was then given a conducted tour by Mrs. Huske over the impressive new Library. Guests present were Mrs. B. G. Lakey, Mrs. H. C. Boger, Miss Eloise Ward, Teresa Smith and little Barry Wayne Holt.

Rev. J. W. Vestal of Lexington was in the Community Friday making pop calls upon old friends.

Miss Gayle Hicks who has been spending her vacation with her mother, Mrs. Sarah Hicks returned Sunday to the Lorraine Hospital in Mooresville where she is a student.

Mrs. Norman Blake's Sunday School Class of Young People of the Baptist Church motored to Doughton Park Sunday for a picnic outing. Those going were Misses Pat and Karen Lakey, Patsy Johnson, Gayle Hicks, Jimmy Groce, Charles Pileher, Norman Blake, William and Teresa Blake and Mrs. Sarah Hicks.

Carrier Boys Leave For Florida Trip

Barry Williams of Mocksville was among the 38 Journal and Sentinel carrier-salesmen who left at 7 a. m. Sunday for a five-day trip to Florida. They won the trip in an efficiency contest sponsored by the newspapers. This will be the 18th year the carriers have been awarded trips.

They will ride a chartered bus driven by R. O. Hicks, who is making his 17th trip with carrier-salesmen. The carriers have made annual trips to Washington, and in 1955 New York City was added to the summer vacation tours. In 1964 and 1965 the carriers visited the World's Fair. Other trips to places of interest have been to Norfolk, Williamsburg, the Caverns at Shenandoah, Va., Blowing Rock and Raleigh.

This will be the first trip for this group to Florida. They will spend tonight in Jacksonville, then go to St. Augustine, Marineland, and spend Monday and Tuesday nights in Daytona Beach. Wednesday they will tour Silver Springs and return to Jacksonville. They will return to Winston-Salem Thursday night.

Hill arrived Tuesday for a few days visit with Mr. and Mrs. Grady Smith and other relatives in the community.

Billy Johnson who has been a patient in the Davie Hospital returned home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Misenheimer of Forbush were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brock, Saturday afternoon.

Yadkin Valley News

The Rev. A. C. Cheshire will be on vacation from the pulpit at Yadkin Valley Church for the first two Sundays of July. Sunday School will be held at the usual hour, 10:00 a. m. and training union at 6:30 p. m.

Mrs. Fred White's condition has improved enough to allow her to be up in a wheel chair at the hospital.

Mrs. Jimmy Melton, a recent bride was honored with a bridal shower by her maternal aunts, Mrs. James Bracken and Mrs. James Zimmerman. Decorations of green and white were used and refreshments of cake squares, pickles, nuts and lime punch were served. Mrs. Melton is the former Linda Weatherman.

John David Jones was dismissed from Davie County Hospital, Friday, where he underwent tests and x-rays for a few days last week.

Ronda Willard is attending Rainbow Girls Camp at Banner Elk this week.

Janice Douthit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Douthit left Sunday from the Greensboro Airport to attend Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's Beautification Conference. Janice attended this trip through the Davie County 4-H club work.

Douglas Beauchamp, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Beauchamp received a severely sprained ankle last week which required medical attention.

A large crowd attended the St. John's day picnic of Masonic Lodge No. 265, Saturday evening, which was held on the grounds of Farmington Methodist Church. Several special guests were there, including the new Methodist minister and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Phillips. The Rev. A. C. Cheshire was guest speaker for the occasion. Attending from this area were lodge master, Frank York and family, Mrs. Besie Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Langston.

A beautiful wedding was held at Yadkin Valley Church Saturday afternoon when Miss Doris Jane York became the bride of Roy Lawrence Anderson of Rock Springs.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Jimmy Nail was matron of honor and wore a gown of light green. Other bridesmaids were dressed in pink. Decorations were composed of pink snapdragons and white mums.

The Rev. A. C. Cheshire officiated.

Mrs. Anderson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Travis York.

Congressional Candidate Visits Federal Officials

BOONE, N. C. — During a four-day (June 13 - 16) stay in Washington, D. C., Robert Bingham, Democrat Congressional candidate from the Ninth District, met with Sergeant Shriver, director of the national War on Poverty, to discuss problems within the district.

In the Capitol city, Bingham also talked with Vice President Hubert Humphrey, Secretary of the Interior Udall, Secretary of Agriculture Freeman and Carl Albert, House Majority Leader.

Bingham and Shriver studied a map of the Ninth District and talked about the Neighborhood Youth Corps and Head-Start projects in the area. The Congressional candidate described Shriver as "Most attentive while we talked about programs within the Ninth District which concentrate on raising the level of prosperity."

Shriver told Bingham that the fact that Watauga County has been dropped from the Economic Development Administration's list of depressed areas should be looked into.

Bingham also relayed a message from William E. Thomas, deputy director of WAMY Community Action, expressing concern that the mountain county is no longer eligible from EDA grants. WAMY is a poverty agency working in four counties in Northwestern North Carolina.

"Our district is . . . one of the reasons that the anti-poverty program was created," Bingham said. "Many of the problems that exist here caused the program to be born." Bingham said he explained to Shriver that some of the criticism of poverty programs in the Ninth District is that money may be being mismanaged or mispent. Shriver said he is aware of the problem and most of the problems are a result of just getting underway, and that the benefits they are to bring are yet in the future.

Shriver and Bingham were in agreement that the way to keep from having to spend much more money in years to come is to underwrite the cost of the poverty war now.

Bingham said House Majority Leader Carl Albert pointed out benefits that Democratic Congressmen can deliver to their districts and recalled accomplishments of former Congressman Bob Doughton. Albert also related stories about Doughton's horseback campaigns through the mountainous region of his district. Doughton was a principal figure in securing the Blue Ridge Parkway.

Udall talked about conservation problems in the Ninth District and noted stream pollution as one of the primary concerns of his department.

Two bills, Food for Freedom and Tobacco Subsidy, were discussed by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman. The bills were introduced by Congressman Harold Cooley, D-N. C., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

As for the nation's second highest official — Bingham said Mr. Humphrey was pretty busy, but as the cameras clicked for pictures, he did comment that the Minnesota wins weren't doing as well as he expected them to.

The Ninth District candidate also met with John Criswell, Director of Congressional Affairs for the Democratic National Committee. Criswell spoke at a Bingham-for-Congress rally May 26 in Boone.

Bingham said his Washington trip comprised series of briefings and pictures and sessions with the Democratic National Committee on campaign strategy.

CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE . . . Robert Bingham of Boone is shown above talking over some of the Ninth District problems with Secretary of Interior Udall during Mr. Bingham's recent visit in Washington, D. C. Mr. Bingham will be the Democratic candidate for congress this fall opposing incumbent Congressman James T. Broyles.

Enrollees in the two-week Business and Office Education Institute will return to their respective schools as coordinators of next year's Business and Office Education program in North Carolina high schools.

The institute program was designed to prepare the teachers to give students better practical work experience in a training situation. During their two weeks here they have worked with various business machines, compiled a high school vocational business training manual and prepared job instructions and work units.

The institute, supported by funds provided by the Vocational Education Act of 1963, has been conducted by two members of the ECC School of Business faculty — Mrs. Thadys Dewar, institute director; and Mrs. Ouida C. DeBter, institute coordinator. Guest consultants have been Mozetta Sykes of Richmond, Va., and Maciel Via of Raleigh.

60-Second Sermon

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "To become perfect follow the advice you give to others." Eph. Thomas. "Madam," said the doctor, "Your husband must have absolute rest."

"Well, doctor," said the wife, "he just won't listen to me -"

"A very good beginning, madam," broke in the doctor. "A very beginning."

If we would only act on the advice others give us, we would be perfect. However, it's odd how imperfect are those who are always so willing to offer advice. You would think that they would be perfection, itself. They are not, as you well know. We cannot afford to ignore history and experience or we are condemned to repeat our errors. However, many times we will get farther if we simply refuse to listen. Advice, even well intentioned, can become confusing and lead to despairing indecision. When advice, spoken or written is given, don't follow it, necessarily. Don't swallow it. Lift it. Weigh it. Use it to stimulate your thinking. Build with it or discard it, if it doesn't fit your plans. Some look on advice as a teller we should use to restrict our movements. However, sound advice inspires individuals to creative action. When it does anything less, the best advice is to refuse to listen.

Put away the paint can, Pete

Impala Sport Coupe

Park your new Impala Sport Coupe right out front. Let your neighbors admire the handsome sculptured lines. There're luxury and comfort inside. The Sport Coupe comes with color-keyed deep-twist carpeting. There's richly tufted textured pattern cloth upholstery with deeply padded vinyl bolsters. Eight standard safety features including seat belts all around. Your Impala can have the personal touch. Order a pushbutton AM/FM radio with FM multiplex stereo... Four-Season air conditioning or Comfortron, a 7-position Comfortilt steering wheel or a Tilt-telescopic wheel. For extra power, order a whisper-smooth Turbo-Jet 396 V8 or the big Turbo-Jet 427 V8.

So what about that painting chore, Pete? Who'll notice with a new Chevrolet Impala Sport Coupe in your driveway! Big-saving summer buys on Chevrolet, Chevelle, Chevy II and Corvair.

CHEVROLET

See your Chevrolet dealer for fast, fast delivery on all kinds of Chevrolets...V8's and 6's!

Sen. Ervin Says

MORE ABOUT Senator Ervin Says: party. The record is replete with evidence that such control laws foment evasion and disrespect for law in general. This proposition is all the more extraordinary when one considers that every time such proposals have been put to a vote of the people they have been decisively rejected.
