Who'll Get Your Property?

Rev. W. E. Leebour, High Point, N. C. R4

Who'll get your property, dear soul,

When you no longer have control?

Will it be left for worldly kin

To send them deeper into sin?

Will sons and daughters law it out,

Or with each other fuss and pout,

Because they don't and won't agree

Just what the share of each should be?

Will someone drink it all away.

As sometimes happens, let me say?

Will it be spent, when you have died,

To gratify a lot of pride?

Will those for whom you've saved

It up

Expend it just to fill life's cup

With pleasure that will curse and blight

And send them down to hell's black night?

Who'll get your business, or your land,

And cash perhaps, you have on hand?

Who'll get the means that you have saved,

For which you've sacrificed and slaved?

You'd better seek God's holy will

Before you grow quite weak and ill

As to the way your means should go

When you are through with earth below

Perhaps the Lord, who ought to rule,

Would have you give to some good school;

Or give that orphan children dear

Might have the means to give them cheer;

Or send the good news far and wide

That Jesus Christ for sinners died.

Most certainly our God can use

What carnal kin would just abuse.

Forever Fools

Frankly, folks and fellow citizens, it looks like the New Deal like all such cancerous growths, has fixed its permanent abode in the taxpayers' treasury.

They have spread nearly 300 BILLION dollars over these alien ingrates, and given them arms, batonettes, food, clothing, etc., here comes word from the New Deal Secretary of State telling Congress:

"We should be prepared to send American arms to Western Europe for possibly many years." We'd like to know just why?—Yellow Jacket.

A Little Late

Augusta, Me.—A letter addressed to James G. Blaine, who lost the 1884 presidential election to Governor Cleveland, was received at the State House post office yesterday.

It was mailed 55 years ago by the U. S. Steelworkers Association in Pittsburgh. Blaine, Maine Congressman for 16 years, died in 1894.

Your Social Security Card is the key to Government Insurance payments after you are 65 and retire, or for your family when you die. Be sure to take care of it, and show the card to your employer at every place that you work.

It is better to beg for that which is honestly due you, than to run up grocery bills, house rent, paper, wood and labor bills, and leave the town owing everybody in sight, a record that has been established by a few within the past two years.

Wrong Party

HE WAS undersized, meek, diffident, subdued, and had applied for a job as night-watchman.

"Yes," said the manager, eyeing him dubiously, "but the fact is we want someone who is restless and uneasy, especially at night; someone who thinks the worst of everybody and whose suspicions are seldom if ever allayed; someone who sleeps with one eye open always; someone with remarkable hearing; someone who starts at the slightest sound; someone who is always listening; thinking there are bad characters about. A meek, mild watchman would be of no use to us. We want a large, aggressive, intrepid, and dangerous person; a good shot; bad-tempered, and revengeful, too. The kind of person in fact who, when roused, is a fiend incarnate."

"I'll send the wife 'round," said the little man.

REMOTE CONTROL

"And what would you like for your birthday present, Tommy?" asked the fond mother.

"Oh, a telephone!" replied the youngster promptly.

"What ever for?"

"Then I can ring up and answer teacher's questions without having to go to school."

Soft Pedal
A Welshman who was very proud of his bass voice was describing a wonderful dream he'd had.

"It was in a mighty choir," he said; "8,000 sopranos, 5,000 altos, 5,000 tenors—all singing together double forte."

"It must have been wonderful," said the listener. "But what about the basses?"

"That was it!" said the dreamer.

"Suddenly the conductor stopped the choir and, turning to me, said: 'Not quite so loud in the bass, please, Mr. Jones!'"

Inter-Planetary Rocket Improbable, Says Engineer

Developing a man-carrying rocket capable of being flown to the moon and back would be an engineering task roughly equivalent to designing a super aircraft carrier, and would probably require a rocket about 300 feet long and weighing about 2,000 tons, according to a General Electric engineer.

Warning that the prospect of an inter-planetary rocket is "highly improbable because of the fantastic cost and the engineering problems," he asserted that if the national security depended upon it, the job could probably be done.

The engineer, Dr. R. W. Porter, said that to escape the gravity pull of the earth, the rocket would have to streak away from the earth's atmosphere at about seven miles per second, or roughly 25,200 miles per hour.

An ordinary single-stage rocket, such as the V-2 which has attained an altitude of 114 miles, would lack the necessary push to free it from the earth's pull, Dr. Porter said.

A two-stage rocket, however, could probably break free of gravity, he added. He described a two-stage rocket as a sort of "duplex" in which a smaller rocket is carried by a larger one until the larger has used all its fuel. It then drops off and the smaller one continues under its own power.

Air Force ROTC Program Expanded by Air Command

A new program designed to nearly double college and university air force ROTC quotas for the coming school year has been announced by the continental air command, Mitchell air force base, New York.

The plan calls for an expected enrollment of 17,500 students in the air force reserve officers training corps units at colleges and universities throughout the United States for the school year 1949-50. The quota for the present school year is 9,496 students.

Under the new program, the air force ROTC students will specialize during the second year of the basic course in addition to the specialization usually undertaken in the third and fourth year advanced course.

Upon completion of one year of the basic course, the air force ROTC student will be offered seven specialized fields for the remainder of his college training. They are: general administration, maintenance, armament, communications, air comptrollership, transportation, and air installations.

The new program goes into effect simultaneously with the end of the joint air force and army operation of the ROTC program on July 1, 1949. On that date the air force will assume full responsibility for the administration and training of air force ROTC units.

A major source of new officers for the air force, the AF ROTC program is designed to eventually produce a reservoir of 12,000 specialized officers annually.

Lake Geneva Level Sinks But Eiffel Wouldn't Show

Europe's drought has hit Lake Geneva, dropping the water level near the lowest mark recorded in a century and exposing shore edge rocks unseen for decades, Swiss observers report.

As long as the River Rhone flows, however, observes the National Geographic society, the 46-mile-long crescent lake of blue on the Swiss-French border is unlikely to shrink more than a tiny fraction of its total volume.

Renowned for its rugged Alpine backdrop and for international conferences, the lake fills a vast rock canyon. Deepest holes in the canyon go down more than 1,000 feet. Even at record low water, Paris's Eiffel Tower (984 feet) would stand in Lake Geneva's deepest spot with its top far submerged.

The Rhone, born in the melting ice of a massive glacier in the Swiss Alps 6,000 feet above sea level, drops almost one mile in its tortuous, 110-mile course to Lake Geneva. Cascading down steep valleys, it becomes gray with silt as tributaries add to its size. The Rhone's flow normally provides about two-thirds of the lake's water supply.

As the waters move the curving length of central Europe's largest lake, all silt settles to the bottom. Flowing out under the seven bridges of the city of Geneva at the lake's southwestern tip, the River Rhone is clear.

$8.4 Million From Refuse

More than $8.4 million was collected by 115 cities last year from refuse collection charges, the International City Managers association reports. This included charges made for services rendered business and commercial establishments as well as to dwellings. Average collection was $73.150 with revenues ranging from $506,724 in Oklahoma City to $1,700 in Park Ridge, Ill., information gathered for the 1949 Municipal Year Book reveals. Charge is made for the collection of refuse from single family dwellings in at least 125 municipalities. Atlanta is the largest city charging residential collection fees. Its revenue from garbage collection last year, commercial and residential, was $63,500.

Purchasing Terry Towels

Remember, when buying terry towels—or turkish towels as they are often called—that they have two important jobs to do for you. They must absorb moisture, and they must be strong enough to withstand all the tugging and pullings while being used, and rubbing and twisting in laundering. So look for a firm, close, underweave—that's the weave under the surface loops—to give you wearability. And look for close, thick loops on the surface of the towel for quick drying and to do a good absorbency job. Hold the towel up to the light before buying to determine the closeness of the weave. A close weave, which will wear the best, will allow very little light through the towel.

To Veterans

Fred R. Leagans, County Veterans Service Officer, wishes to inform Veterans of World War II, that application for dividend refunds on National Service Life Insurance policies are expected to be available in September. The service office has had frequent inquiries recently regarding these dividends which will be based on the actual amount of premiums paid on the policies while in force. The Veterans Administration Office in Winston-Salem has very little information yet on the amount of the dividends, but as soon as more information is obtained the county service office inform the public through the press. The dividend checks are expected to be mailed out beginning January 1, 1950. On policies matured by death the beneficiary will receive the dividend, it is understood. On information available it is the opinion of the county service office that Veterans and their dependants in Davie County will receive $250,000 or more.

Our County And Social Security

By Mrs. Ruth G. Duffy, Manager.

Flag Day was celebrated last month. I was particularly interested in an article appearing in a newspaper urging "Flag Education." In the article the readers' attention was called to the fact that there are certain approved practices for the use of Old Glory and that each of us should be certain that we not only know the rules regarding its use but observe them at all times. As a result of what our National Emblem represents, there is another subject of much importance about which we should be thoroughly informed. I refer, of course, to the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance provision of the Social Security Act. This program is in its infancy, we might say, having been in operation only since January 1, 1937. Because of this your editor and I have agreed that you are entitled to authentic information as to your rights and responsibilities so that you can reap the benefits made possible by the program. You and I are both indebted to your editor—you, because through his paper you are getting information that concerns the family pocketbook, and I, because he gives me the opportunity to tell you what you must do to safeguard your interest in the program and that of your family in case of your death. Let's not forget this.

What is the purpose of your Social Security program? Its purpose is to provide benefits for you and your family after you reach age 65 and stop work, and benefits for your widow and children in case of your death at any age provided you have worked long enough in jobs that are covered by the program. The plan makes it possible for you through your Social Security Tax to make some provision for old age and death. Under this plan the money paid to you as a retired worker or to your survivors is yours and theirs by right just as any other insurance money would be.

Unfortunately every worker is not covered at the present time. Farm work, self employed, work in private homes, government service, public schools, hospitals and other non-profit institutions are not covered. Persons so employed do not pay Social Security Taxes and do not have Federal Social Insurance protection. Know whether or not your job is covered.

I will be in Mocksville on Wednesday, July 27, at the court house, second floor, at 12:30 p. m. I will also be in Coolemees on the same date at the Erwin Cotton Mills office at 11 a. m.

GARBLE GIRLS DISCUSS WORLD AFFAIRS . . .

So It Was Mickey Rooney Lost That Uranium!

. . . AND FIND IT'S ALL VERY CONFUSING

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE GARBLE GIRLS . . .

"Do you think they'll pin anything on Mickey Rooney for losing that bottle of uranium in that fight with Scott Lucas over American aid to the Taft-Hartley act?"

"It's an even bet. Mickey had no business giving that jug to Mrs. Whittaker in the first place, even for the honorary degree. By the way, what do you think of Margaret Vickers marrying the Ago Lillenthal?"

"You mean the Aly Acheson, don't you?"

"Oh yeah. I read so many papers so fast. I can understand it in the Aly's case because he is a Moslem but she is suppose to be a strict vegetarian and there is no evidence that when she got on that bus with the top secret documents he got on at the same time, anyhow."

"I don't see why Martha Brien got so excited about it."

"She didn't think either of 'em should have fled the country as stowaways."

"Did you read where Judy Hick-enlooper admits having kept all those Columbia library books?"

"Yeah, but they'll never convict Hickenhiss of anything, even in an extra session. It was a mistake to give either of them free scholarships."

"I get awful depressed the way things are going. Truman is too late to save Hong Kong, I'm afraid, even with Stan Musial and Johnny Mize offering to do it with 230 planes. Bob Porterfield and Harry Brecheen ain't doing so well with that Atlantic pact, either."

"What's the Atlantic pact?"

"It's the one to keep anybody on our side jumping to the Mexican league without a passport and loyalty test."

"Do you think the country's facing a big slump?"

"You never can tell so early in the season. The standing on Fourth of July is what counts. I think congress should vote for economy like ex-president Olympia recommended in the Capot report to General Symington."

"How are things going over there with the Big Six in Paris?"

"Ernie Durocher is causing trouble and they're still cross-examining Lee Shubert, but I think everybody will get pensions at the age of 45 before they get through, unless Vishinsky gets back into the lineup."

"What's the matter with him?"

"He's got a spur in his left heel."

"What're you doin' for fun these days?"

"Oh. I go to the races and baseball and the movies. I loved Spencer Tracy in The Peter Pan Handicap. And that pennant race between the Dodgers and Potsdam was a thriller. I thought for a time that Old Rockport would win."

Mary Margaret at Stadium

The Yankee stadium was hired the other day for an anniversary party thrown for Mary Margaret McBride, famous radio star. More than 42,000 people attended. That's more than half the rival Yankee baseball clubs draw.

It was a sensational affair and Miss McBride scored standing up. It wasn't necessary for her to slide, although it would have pleased the fans no end.

And if she had had to slide she could have done it. Mary (Happy) McBride has the baseball spirit. She can hit and field. No position is beyond her. If you take note of the countless commercials the lady has delivered for dinner-table edibles you have to admit nobody has been more versatile "behind the plate" over so long a period.

Mary is in her way a pitcher, too. She has never had to be yanked off the mound in her career with the NBC club. Her greatest asset is her control. There is almost no wind up in her delivery. Smoothness marks her style.

The lady is a good all-around player, too. Shortstop taxes her, but every other position is duck-soup and she will name the brand of duck soup and tell you where to get it.

The striking thing about her Yankee Stadium workout was that she was the only player. It was her party and her game. She covered all positions and played an errorless game, if you overlook a couple of dropped eulogies for a prepared jelly.

OUT of the noise and clamor of the town I have come down
To this green pasture land where sheep
Graze in the golden light,
Where shadows creep
As deliberately as they across the grass.
The slow hours pass,
And I am one with the rhythm and the rhyme
Of this still land, this quiet time;
Even my hurrying heart has stayed its pace
Within this quiet place.
Time is nothing here—the sun, the moon,
Come neither late nor soon;
There is no change in the ways of sheep.
They have kept
Step with the ages, hurrying not at all,
And no relentless call
Bids them keep Appointment with the hours. If I could stay
Day after day
Here in this clean green land, perhaps I, too,
Could be more true
To the movement of the years; could march with time
Until the far sublime
Music of the spheres
Would reach my ears,
And I could keep the tempo my life through
That sheep and shepherds do.

Star Dust
STAGE SCREEN RADIO
By INEZ GERHARD

DAN DURYEA (real name) has made his reputation on stage and screen as a heel. He has slapped Joan Bennett, Elizabeth Scott and Yvonne De Carlo. In "Manhandled," his latest film for Paramount, he twice delivers a short right to Dorothy Lamour's chin. As an actor no one can be slicker or slimmer. In real life he's one of the nicest guys you could ask to meet, devoted to his wife and two young sons, active in PTA and with the Boy and Cub scouts. He played a cur on the stage in "Missouri Legend" which set him for a similar role in "The Little Foxes" on stage and screen. In some 25 pictures he has given such excellent performances that someone's description, "a heel with sex appeal," will probably type him forever.

If Alexander Knox doesn't like his role in "The Judge Steps Out" it will be his own fault; he collaborated on the screen play. A reporter for 12 years before taking to the stage, he starts his 10th year in films with this one.

Ben Johnson, star of "Mighty Joe Young," was the favorite stunt man of Gary Cooper, Errol Flynn, Johnny Weissmuller and most of Hollywood's other male stars before John Ford and Merian Cooper discovered him in "Fort Apache." He was doing stunts for the picture on location at Monument Valley, Utah—now he's starring in their new picture.

The opportunity to paint Paulette Goddard posing as "Anna Lucasta" accounted for the stampede of students to enter the contest sponsored by Columbia Pictures at the Art Students league in New York. There will be money prizes, and the opportunity to have pictures exhibited at a New York gallery—but what the students want most is to see Paulette.

The Fiction Corner

MISTER GILL

By Richard H. Wilkinson

AT FIRST Mr. Otis Gill had seemed to take a liking to young Arthur Forbes. But he changed his opinion when the Champion began to buck the choppy seas of the open Atlantic. She was not a large liner, and the waves were running high. Arthur Forbes turned away suddenly and, clutching the deck rail for support, shaped an unsteady course for the companionway.

Mr. Gill burst into guffaws of laughter.

"Seasick!" he said, addressing a young couple nearby and nodding toward the companionway.

"Should have stayed home and tended to his knitting."

The young couple smiled politely but with a lack of enthusiasm. Neither of them felt equal to the task of getting up and following on young Arthur Forbes' heels.

The dining salon was located beneath the forward deck; Mr. Gill's table was at the extreme end, near that section where the vessel's bow began to narrow. He had hardly seated himself when he saw that young Arthur Forbes was placed two tables away and slightly behind. There was a plate of food on the table before the youth, but it was untouched. Like one in a trance Mr. Forbes was sitting with eyes widened greatly beyond their normal size, cheeks as pale as death.

After a time Mr. Gill saw that the youth at the other table was staring toward a port-hole, and his grin broadened. The port-hole was located far forward, and with each dip of the vessel one could see the entire slope of a wave, from trough to crest. Then for a space there would be nothing but open sky. It provided a sensation similar to riding on a roller coaster.

Mr. Gill knew that as long as young Forbes continued to stare through the port-hole his seasickness would steadily grow worse. And he chuckled at the thought.

After a while Mr. Gill found it was easier to stare straight ahead than to sit half-turned in his chair in order to watch young Forbes, who, after all, wasn't the most pleasing sight in the world. And in staring straight ahead Mr. Gill found that he was looking directly through the porthole at the swishing seas.

HE WATCHED idly for a few moments and then looked away, conscious of a feeling in his stomach not wholly normal. The sensation passed and he looked again at the port-hole, feeling more comfortable in his position. Instantly the same strange sensation attacked him again.

Mr. Gill was sober now; his face pale; his eyes glassy. Realization of what was happening to him came like a shock. He was seasick! Helplessly, miserably ill. Never in his life could Mr. Gill remember feeling so utterly at the mercy of anything.

Miraculously Mr. Gill reached the doorway and disappeared up the stairs. Instantly the dining salon was a bedlam of laughter. Up toward the bow young Arthur Forbes was wiping some white substance from his cheeks and grinning broadly. Several men came over and spoke.

"I'll change your order, sir. Bring you some hot food."

Mr. Forbes smiled. "Thanks. And say, steward, that was a smart idea of yours—asking me to play the role of the helplessly seasick passenger and placing Gill at that table directly opposite the porthole."

The steward nodded, eyes a-trinkle. "We have a man like Mr. Gill on board every voyage, sir. And we have that table placed there for just his type. No one else is asked to sit so far forward."

Mr. Forbes chuckled. "Think of everything for the comfort of your passengers, eh? Well, if you didn't I'm afraid this voyage would have proved almost intolerable—with Gill talking the way he was."

41 Per Cent of Land in U. S. in Herbage

Grass Top Resource, Cattlemen Assert

Grass is one of the greatest resources of this nation. In the United States there are approximately 779 million acres of land which will grow nothing but hay, grass and other herbage unfit for human consumption.

This great acreage represents 41 per cent of the total land of the nation. About 9 per cent of the lands in the United States are plowable but are used also to produce pasture, hay or forage crops. It can be concluded, therefore, that about 80 per cent of the United States would not be used if it were not for meat animals.

This little fellow, obviously so well-started in life, is symbolic of what good pasture can mean to cattle and just how much cattle depend on grass. In the United States there are approximately 779 million acres of land which cannot grow anything but hay, grass and other herbage.

Of the total feeds consumed by beef cattle 78.7 per cent is grass, hay and dry roughage. A minimum of grain is needed to bring feeder steers from 700 pounds to 1,000 pounds when the principal part of the ration is made up of hay, ensilage or other roughage.

The process of producing beef cattle normally involves the following steps:

1. The purebred operator who produces the sires and females which are the foundation of beef animal production. This branch of the cattle industry is one that requires heavy investment and efficiency in management.
2. The commercial breeder who produces the calves which are the offspring of commercial herds of female and purebred sires.
3. The pasture cattleman who grows the animal from the weaning or yearling stage to two years old, taking his profit from the poundage gained on grass and hay.
4. The feeder who "finishes" the animal from grass stage to slaughter condition, disposing of a large percentage of roughage.

Crop Rotation

Crop rotation with deep-rooted legumes, plant food and good management methods are the "gas, oil and lubricants" that keep your soil's crop producing machine going on high.

Each of these has a job to do. Each needs help from the others. They all have to work like a team.

Valuable as a good rotation is in balancing soil—building legume crops against soil-robbing row crops, it has to be backed up by wise land management methods. Cropping in even the best rotation drains the soil's supply of phosphate and potash.

And even if your good management program puts back every scrap of barnyard manure, plows under the legumes and returns straw, corn stalks and crop aftermath to the soil, you still ship away hundreds of pounds of plant food in the grain, beef and milk you sell every year.

Good Pasture Increases Dairy Herd Production

With 2.5 million fewer cows on farms now than in 1945, possibilities for profit in dairying are greater if labor-saving, high value pasture is the center of the production program. Good pasture can increase milk output and cut production costs. That means a bigger profit margin. Getting bigger pasture yields is a matter of feeding the soil plant nutrients so it can feed legume-grass mixtures.

Nay, Pauline, the price of corn, wheat, hogs and other farm products haven't soared skyward under the present administration, which took over the reins of government last January.

Reports say that about sixty thousand workers in North Carolina are without a job at this time, and nearly four million men are without employment in the United States. Who says Tom Dewey wasn't elected President last November?

Inspect Ponds

Last week D. F. Ashton, Entomologist with the Malaria Investigation and Control Unit of the State Board of Health, spent three days in Davie and Yadkin Counties with the local Sanitarian, Carl E. Shell, making inspections of fish ponds.

Only a small number of ponds in Davie were inspected at this time, but Mr. Ashton plans to return in a couple of weeks to complete the inspection. Most of the ponds inspected were in fairly good condition, and where recommendations of the soil conservation service had been followed, were well constructed. Where possible to contact the owner, Mr. Ashton made recommendations for proper management of the pond to produce the maximum number of fish and to minimize mosquito growth.

At the present time we have practically no malaria in this part of the state, but if the large number of fish ponds now being constructed in this area are not properly maintained, we may have a problem as bad or even worse than it is on the coast.

However, there is no immediate cause for alarm. State Board of Health regulations require a steep shoreline to discourage vegetative growth and some means of fluctuating the water level and draining the pond if necessary. A fish pond properly constructed and properly maintained can be of considerable economic value and a great source of enjoyment.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

GOP Leaders Rap Demo Depression And Plan Bill to Meet Situation; Brannan Plan Held Farm Vote 'Bait'

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.

FARM VOTE:

Bait Is Set

There was more to the Brannan federal farm program than had met the eye. According to seasoned Washington observers, the plan would serve as a bait for the farm vote in the congressional races next year.

For instance, if administration leaders could extend wartime price support for another year, it would give voters a chance to pass on the controversial Brannan plan. Thus the plan could be dangled as a major issue when Democrats and Republicans began struggling for the important farm vote.

At a midwestern Democratic conference, both Brannan, secretary of agriculture, and J. Howard McGrath, chairman of the national Democratic committee, made a plea for extension of the price support program as they began to plan for next year's tug-of-war with the GOP.

McGrath, making it plain that the Brannan plan has Mr. Truman's endorsement, said continuation of the present relatively high-price support program was to be preferred to the Aiken long-range farm law passed by the 80th Republican congress. Unless congress acts, McGrath pointed out, the Aiken law will go into effect next year.

The Brannan plan is designed to support farm income at a "prosperity" level, but at the same time to provide consumers with lower prices for perishable foods—especially meat, dairy and poultry products—when there are surpluses. It would use government payments to assure desired farm cash returns.

PRESENT laws direct the government to support prices of major products at not less than 90 per cent of parity.

CONJURER:

Name, Smile

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., who inherited a name and a smile to conjure with and wasted little time in conjuring with them, has been duly sworn in as a member of the house of representatives.

The 34-year-old congressman from New York's 20th district, filling the seat left vacant by the death of Sol Bloom, ran as a candidate of the Four Freedoms and Liberal parties, although he will operate as a working Democrat in the legislative arena.

ROOSEVELT failed to get the regular Democratic nomination during the campaign so he ran on the Four Freedoms ticket. In so doing he scored a popular upset over the regular (Tammany) Democrat, a Republican and an American Labor candidate.

The third son of the late President took the oath from Acting Speaker John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), while his mother beamed happily from the gallery.

During his first day on the job Roosevelt:

CHATTED briefly with President Truman; denied a rumor that he might run for mayor of New York; allowed that he hoped congress would repeal the Taft-Hartley labor law, enact Mr. Truman's civil rights program and put through a national housing act.

It all looked like a reasonable beginning for another Roosevelt political career.

HOUSING:

Action Seen

Indications were that despite opposition from many quarters, the administration's big new housing bill would get out of committee and go to the house floor for action.

THE RULES committee, which twice last year killed similar legislation, had refused to clear the current bill. But Rep. A. J. Sabath (D., Ill.) was predicting the committee would act to clear the measure.

Sabath was on fairly safe ground, for under the new house "anti-bottleneck" procedure adopted in January, the multibillion dollar housing bill could be put to a house vote over the rules committee's objections.

THE housing program, one of President Truman's major campaign promises, was approved by the senate April 21 on a 57 to 13 vote. It then bogged down in the house.

The bill calls for a vast program of slum clearance, low-rent housing and farm housing aids.

Ex-Communist Editor Louis Budenz is shown as he told a senate committee that Gerhardt Eisler, who fled the U.S. as a stowaway, was ordered to Europe by Moscow to train "new espionage agents" for use in the United States. Budenz testified in connection with the committee's probe of subversive activities by aliens.

DEPRESSING:

'Right Now'

"I regret," the senator from Maine said, "that we are now in a state of depression. It is not a thing of the future. It is right now."

After thus evoking the spirit of the 1930's, Sen. Owen Brewster announced blandly that senate Republicans shortly would sponsor a 50-million-dollar public-works and relief-planning program "to meet the growing Democratic depression."

THE BILL to be projected along these lines would not in itself provide funds for public works, but merely would finance the planning of a "shelf" of such works to be started when deemed advisable.

Sen. Robert Taft (R., Ohio), who also is in on the deal, said that what he had in mind was a bill that would establish the framework for federal grants to states if their relief cases should reach a certain percentage of their total population.

Said Taft: "What we Republicans want to avoid is the creation of another WPA like Harry Hopkins ran."

Without trying to guess how much relief spending might be necessary under such a plan, Senator Brewster opined that would "depend upon just how bad this Democratic depression gets."

Whether this "relief bill" proposal is sincere or whether it is a cynical attempt to discredit the administration in the face of the coming 1950 elections, only time would tell.

TRUMAN:

Drops Curb Bill

There was one thing about President Truman—he was beginning to develop the ability to recognize a hint when he saw it. There have been times when the President seemed to suffer from an inability to do that, but now it's different.

The President, obviously with an understanding ear to the ground, has decided he won't press congress to give him standby war powers.

THAT'S not only wise of the President, it's good strategy, particularly since it would have been impossible for the administration to convince the 81st congress that any such powers are needed.

However, there was an official reason advanced for the change in objectives. One authority described the revision of plan as a "quiet demilitarization" of the national security resources board on White House orders. In other words, the emphasis would be away from keeping the people agitated and alerted for possible future war.

THE war powers bill would have provided a detailed mobilization act covering priority and seizure powers, controls over prices, manpower; production and transportation. It would, if enacted, go into effect automatically on the declaration of war emergency by congress.

Mr. Truman was said to have decided it would be inappropriate to try to get such a law passed in peacetime.

RED CHINA:

Quiescent

Communism, like the worm in the bud, was creeping swiftly through China as the presence of the Red conquerors began to make itself felt.

At one village meeting in northern China, a man, bewildered and dismayed by the use of the Russian hammer-and-sickle flag in Chinese Communist meetings and parades, ventured to rise and ask a question:

"WHY IS THIS DONE?" he said. "Russia is a foreign country and we are Chinese."

And the presiding political commissar snapped, "This subject is not on the agenda."

About the only thing that did show up on the agenda throughout the country was the puzzled but ready acquiescence of the Chinese to Communist rule.

As a result, the nation appeared to be well on its way to assuming a regular orbit as a willing satellite of Russia.

FOR THE MOST PART there have been no signs of coercion or compulsion in the relationship. There is every evidence that the Chinese Communists are in fact eager to follow the dictates of Moscow. And that revelation should be enough to destroy any illusion that the Chinese Communists are just simple agrarian reformers.

They are whole-hearted, completely dogmatic Communists, following the doctrines laid down by Karl Marx and adapted for 20th century application by his disciples, Lenin and Stalin—and by Mao Tse-tung, leader of China's Communists.

THERE IS as yet no conclusive evidence that the Kremlin is giving direct, active aid to the Chinese Communists. But the affinity and spirit of cooperation that exists between Moscow and Peiping, capital of Communist China, is tangible enough.

The application of China's internal situation to the rest of the world is disturbingly clear: Through the rule of Mao Tse-tung and his party, China inevitably is becoming a massive extension of the Soviet power-bloc.

PRICE SUPPORT:

Smoke, Smoke, Smoke

Arrangements for new price support programs for tobacco were announced by the federal department of agriculture.

THE government will make loans on flue-cured tobacco at 90 per cent of the parity price—as it was June 15. Loans on burley and other types of tobacco would be at the September 15 parity price, except flue-cured tobacco, which would be 75 per cent of the burley rate, and dark air-cured tobacco 68 1/2 per cent of the burley rate.

(Parity is a price based on the relationship between prices of the products the farmers have to buy and the prices of the products they sell. The government uses a basing period during which this relationship of prices gave the farmer what it considers a "fair profit").

THE RATES a pound at which the support prices will be paid was to be announced in July for flue-cured tobacco and for other types in October.

The full loans will be made only to tobacco growers who do not grow more tobacco than they are permitted under marketing quotas. These quotas have been set up for flue-cured, burley, fire-cured and dark, air-cured tobaccos. There are no quotas on other types.

Lilienthal after Strauss had told a congressional committee he had not approved shipment of isotopes to "friendly" nations abroad. BUDGET TRIM:

Asked of Truman

Congress apparently wasn't fooling about its demands for more economy in government. Nineteen senators, representing both major parties joined in sponsoring a resolution directing President Truman to cut federal spending by amounts from two million to four million dollars. The reductions would be made in funds provided for the new fiscal year, which begins officially on July first of each year.

Marshall Plan

WHEN Washington dignitaries gathered at dinner to commemorate the Marshall plan probably only one man present really knew how the Marshall plan got started—President Truman. And not even Truman knew or remembered all the details.

The birth of the Marshall plan—believe it or not—was influenced by the illness of Senator Bilbo of Mississippi. Furthermore, this plan—now a great force in revitalizing Europe—was a complete accident as far as the White House was concerned.

President Truman had been scheduled to make a speech at Cleveland, Miss., in the winter of 1947 and called in Dean Acheson, then under-secretary of state, to ask if he could get him out of a jam. He explained that to please some of his wife's friends he had promised to speak in Cleveland, that the folks in Mississippi had made elaborate preparations.

But, he said, he couldn't go. Senator Bilbo was back in the state, ill, after the Senate's refusal to seat him, and it would be political suicide, Truman felt, if he set foot inside the state at that time. He had written his Mississippi friends, he said, asking if they would accept a cabinet member instead, and they replied that they were greatly interested in foreign affairs and the only man they would take as a substitute was acting secretary of state Dean Acheson.

Acheson of course promptly accepted the President's personal plea, in fact told Truman he had been eager to make a major speech. But, he warned, it would be an explosive one.

Wallace's Mistake

So, having in mind Henry Wallace's famous speech on Russia which was officially cleared with the White House—but which Truman himself didn't read, Acheson took great pains to have his speech carefully examined.

His strategy was to have so many cabinet experts read it that it would not be sent to Senators Tom Connally and Arthur Vandenberg whom he suspected might pour on the cold water.

The perusers of the speech later held a meeting. Since there was nothing in the speech about bases, the army-navy had no objection. Dr. Nourse suggested a few changes of figures, which were accepted. Secretary of commerce Harriman, who had been talking to Acheson privately, was enthusiastic, while Truman was delighted that Acheson was getting him out of his Mississippi speaking jam.

The British press, however, played up the story big. And as a result Scotty Reston of the New York Times called on Acheson to ask whether this was a new American foreign policy.

"You had better ask the White House," Acheson replied.

Planted Question

So, at the next White House press conference, Reston asked a carefully worded question as to whether the Cleveland, Miss., speech represented Acheson's views or the administration's views.

Truman, still full of gratitude, and recalling that the army, navy, et al had approved the speech, replied that it represented administration policy.

A few days later, Acheson went to his chief, Secretary of State Marshall, and said in effect: "I have kicked a fairly important ball up in the air for you, but it's falling rapidly. How about catching it?"

After the speech, Acheson picked up a suggestion by Senator Vandenberg that a committee of prominent Americans be appointed to push the idea. Truman didn't like the suggestion, but Acheson argued him into it.

"Here is a man who more than anything else wants to get the Republican nomination for President of the United States," he told Truman, in effect. "Of his other two rivals, Governor Dewey never says anything about anything, while Senator Taft never loses an opportunity to attack you on domestic issues and crab at you on foreign policy. Vandenberg has played the game very well on bipartisan policy, and you ought to agree to his idea in order to keep him sweet."

Hoover, Baruch Out

The President did agree, and a meeting was held to appoint members of a committee to serve under secretary of commerce Harriman. Vandenberg was present. Acheson said he didn't care who was on the committee just so long as Herbert Hoover and Bernard Baruch were not.

Vandenberg, however, looking over the suggested names, said he had nothing against them, but that what the committee needed was an elder statesman as chairman.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Dad's Dislike

By Lawrence Gould

Should you marry a girl whose father dislikes you?

Answer: This might largely depend on how the girl feels about her father, since your greatest danger in this situation is that her remorse at having married someone whom he disliked might in time have the effect of "turning her against you." But most fathers do not relish the idea of giving up their daughters and may take out their resentment on any man one of them wants to marry. If this is the situation, you can only go ahead on the assumption that "Dad" will eventually realize his daughter is a woman and entitled to her own life.

gives in simple language a true, scientifically-accurate picture of the natural development of a child's sexual interests and feelings, with sound advice as to how to handle real or supposed misconduct. It's a book I've wanted to see for years.

Does anyone want to be neurotic?

Answer: Yes. At bottom there can be no other reason for developing a neurosis. But because the person does not know what he is doing and cannot help doing it, to blame him is as unfair as it is useless. A neurotic symptom—a phobia, for example—represents the only way of getting satisfaction or avoiding danger the person can recognize with his emotions, whatever his "common sense" may tell him. And he'll cling to it like the proverbial drowning man until he is helped to realize that the same goal can be attained by less painful methods.

Are normal children interested in sex?

Answer: Of course, just as they are interested in all that goes on around them, especially if their parents make a mystery or secret of it. If you are worried over your child's concern with this subject, read a new book, "The Normal Sex Interests of Children," by Mrs. Frances B. Strain. This book

KEEPING HEALTHY House Dust Often Causes Allergy

By Dr. James W. Barton

WE ARE familiar with allergy in which the tissues of some individuals (15 to 20 per cent of the population) react differently than most of us to certain substances that float in the air, are eaten in food, or injected under the skin.

We see it in forms of hay fever, asthma, head colds, stomach upsets, hives and other skin eruptions.

Allergists, specialists in allergy, tell us that there are many substances causing allergy that are still unknown or not suspected. One of the commonest causes is ordinary house dust, to which one or more of the family are allergic but blame their symptoms on pollen or similar substances.

Some years ago a magazine mentioned a case of allergy in which the father of the household, afflicted with asthma, traveled ahead of his family to locate a district where he would be free of asthma. Finding such a place, he would send for the family. Shortly after the family arrived, his asthma again would afflict him. It was only after several such movements that it was learned that it was the fur of the beloved family cat that was causing the asthmatic attacks.

While allergists have found some cases of allergy to be caused by street dust, it is more often substances in the air of the home that are to blame. Some of these substances are the children's toys stuffed with wool or cotton lint, insect sprays, heavy curtains, mattress fillings or feathers or cotton, certain domestic articles, the odors of perfumes, and powders, hair dyes, eyebrow and lip pencils.

The thought, then, is that where the cause of the allergic symptoms is unknown, and the usual test for foods and pollen have been made, the dust in the home—particularly in the bedrooms (mattresses) and in setting rooms (stuffed chairs and sofas)—should be carefully tested by an allergist. The cause of allergic symptoms can be found in the majority of cases if diligent search is made.

HEALTH NOTES

While all foods are nourishing, the foods that should be eaten daily in the usual servings (the protective foods) are meat, eggs or fish, milk and dairy products and green vegetables.

If all of us were to visit our physician and dentist regularly, many of us would not be afflicted with chronic illness in old age, as is so often the case.

Harvard research workers found that eating more sugar in training and during the Boston marathon race enabled the runners to finish farther up in the race and in better condition when they finished, than during the race the previous year when these same runners did not take sugar.

Cancer is the subject of the greatest research work in history.

SCRIPTURE: Psalms 120-134. DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalms 125.

Marching Songs

Lesson for July 10, 1949

WE did not win all the battles we fought with Japan. The day of a certain naval defeat near the Philippines, an American "baby" carrier, left to its fate, was doing its best to get away from the pursuing Japanese. All afternoon it dodged and twisted. Enemy destroyers and planes were hot on its trail, and it was a "sitting duck" in case they really got the range. No one on board expected to live. The only question in anybody's mind was: How soon will they get us? But late in the afternoon, for some reason never explained, the enemy gave up the chase, and the American ship slipped off into the protecting night. The next day, as the men gathered for a special service of thanksgiving, the chaplain read the 124th Psalm. It came as a new Psalm altogether to those men, even to those who had known it by heart.

"If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, when men rose up against us, then they had swallowed us up quick, when their wrath was kindled against us; then the proud waters had gone over our soul. Blessed be the Lord, who hath not given us as a prey to their teeth."

"Let Me Write A Nation's Songs"

THE POWER to thrill has not been lost by the Psalms, as the men on that carrier found out. The group numbered 120 through 134 in our Bibles are known as the "Psalms of David," and were originally used by the Hebrews as they went year by year up to their capital city of Jerusalem and to the Temple which was the center of their religion. Then as now, the Hebrews were a singing people. A nation that cannot sing, a nation without songs, is a dismal country indeed.

Difference among various countries is symbolized by their songs, or the lack of them. The Chinese, for instance, have no song that draws them all together in the same way that Englishmen are united in "God Save the King" or as Frenchmen once were by the "Marseillaise."

When it comes to pass, as once it did in the United States, that one part of the nation will sing one song (say, "John Brown's Body") while another part will not sing that song but another one (say, "Dixie"), then civil war is at the gates. Only people who will sing together can be trusted to live together.

Singing Church IN the long caravans, marching up the rocky hillside trails to Jerusalem, the ancient Hebrews put their faith into stirring words set to music. So it is always. All over the Christian world, wherever and whenever the singing is good, religion is warm and vigorous.

Where the heart is full, there will be song. Revivals of religion are revivals of singing. To this day a stranger in a strange city, looking for a church home, is most likely to settle down in the church where the singing is the best.

It is not an accident that the Moravian church is at the same time the church that makes more of Easter than some other churches, it is the church where at funerals the music is never sad but joyous, not mourning-songs but triumphant hymns of Christian faith.

Patriotism and Religion READ these marching Psalms through—the reading time is only a few minutes—and see for yourself how the ancient Hebrew men of God united their praise of Him with love for their country. To this day, in our Christian hymns, patriotism and religion are often combined. The English national anthem, "God Save the King," is a prayer; so is "America the Beautiful." National hymns have a rightful place in a book of public worship. For while patriotism, by itself, is a poor substitute for religion, still a man who will love his country lacks something of being a good Christian, and on the other hand a man without faith in God makes a very poor citizen.

(See Directions Below)

Vegetable Canning

GETTING VEGETABLES into the diet during the summer when the garden is literally bursting with them is no problem at all. It's much more difficult during the winter to meet the quota of two vegetables a day, unless you've made proper provision for them.

That's the best reason for canning at least a good store of them when they're available in your own garden or those of others for they may be purchased inexpensively.

Canning vegetables is one of the best ways of feeding the family economically as well as satisfying them with valuable nutrients. Chart your course now, and then sail through the season, full speed ahead.

Clear the Kitchen For Canning Time

WOMEN who do their canning on an efficiency basis such as is used in a factory. They actually prepare for the job before they start working on it.

Getting ready for vegetable canning means re-organizing the kitchen. Clear out table and shelf space that you need for jars and equipment.

Make certain you have all equipment clean and in working order before you get the vegetables into the house.

What equipment? You'll probably need sharpened paring knives for preparing the produce. Kitchen scissors that are not rusted will help in preparing some types of vegetables like green beans.

Have your canning spoons, ladles or dippers all ready in place where they're going to be used, next to the range.

Select Quality For Canning Have you ever wondered why the corn you canned is dry instead of juicy, or peas are pulpy instead of moist and sweet? The fault may lie in the kind you chose for canning.

Only the highest quality produce should find its way to the can since canning cannot improve quality. It merely preserves it.

Vegetables selected for canning are usually best when just slightly under-ripe or immature. Peas, for example should be sweet and tender; corn should spurt juice when pressed with a fingernail.

Gnarled, bruised, wrinkled or otherwise imperfect vegetables are not fit to be canned. You cannot expect them to have good flavor and color.

LYNN SAYS: Follow Vegetable Canning Pointers

On jars on which you have used a self sealing lid, do not turn the jars upside down, or bump or treat them roughly as this may cause the seal to be broken.

You'll need two to two and one-half pounds of the following for one quart of canned vegetables: whole beets, carrots, string beans and tomatoes.

Eight ears of corn will generally fill one quart when canned.

the garden to the can in a minimum amount of time will give the most satisfactory results.

Clean Vegetables Before Preparation

CLEANING the vegetables is the step after bringing them into the kitchen. This should be done before the skin is broken, or some of the valuable juices may escape. Dirt is not only objectionable in itself, but it may frequently contain certain organisms which hold spoilage. Wash the vegetables under running water, or place them in a large vessel of water and lift them out gently onto a colander. Do not pour dirty water off the vegetables, as dirt may remain in the pan and then mix with the vegetable.

IN THE CHART given above, pre-cooking is recommended for the green vegetables such as peas, green beans and similar vegetables. This means immersing in boiling water for the designated amount of time to shrink or wilt them in order to pack them easily and compactly.

Pressure Cooker Is Recommended

TO PROCESS VEGETABLES properly, a pressure cooker is an invaluable aid. For vegetables, have the gauge read 10 pounds before you start counting processing time.

The pressure should not be allowed to fluctuate since this may drain liquid from the jar and give a poor looking jar. It will also overcook the vegetables, or undercook them, as the case may be.

Vegetables are a non-acid food, and this means they require a high temperature to kill the bacteria which lurk in them. This is why pressure cooker processing is recommended for them. Fruits, which are acid, need much less processing time, and much lower temperature in which to have the bacteria killed.

Always follow the directions for your particular type of pressure cooker. One thing is generally true of all types, and that is to leave the petcock open for at least seven minutes during which time steam escapes from the cooker. Unless this is followed closely, the pressure may not be accurate, for all air must be exhausted before allowing the cooker to come to pressure.

Another safe rule to follow is to allow the vegetables to boil 10 minutes in an open vessel before tasting or eating after they are taken from the can.

After filling the jar with vegetables and water, you may find some air bubbles anchored against the sides of the jar. Remove these by running a spatula between the glass and the vegetable.

Jars which have been sealed with a self-sealing lid, should not be tested for sound until 24 hours after processing. It will take this length of time to cool the contents of the jar.

Six pounds of greens, such as spinach, are required to make one quart of the canned product.

Help for the Boss

Once in awhile, a new chapter is written in the history of labor union activities. Most labor-management difficulties are very old problems that have existed ever since man first hired-out to another; however, a lot of them belong to new situations, and sometimes we have thought they were new because we had not solved them before. But we have paid increasing attention to hours, wages, and working conditions. A new science of industrial relations has grown up, with nearly every company giving time and effort to improve things for the worker.

One-sided Progress?

In this the unions have helped. For unions in fact exist for the main purpose of looking out for their own. Now, if we have reached the place where union members can see things they can do in turn for their employers, have we not reached an important milestone in industrial relations?

Just recently Mr. Walter Cenerazzo, president of the American Watch Workers Union, led members of his union in a project designed to help the Waltham Watch Company. This company, one of three major American watchmakers, had closed its Waltham, Mass., plant December 31 because it could no longer meet interest payments on a debt of some 5 million dollars. In closing, the 96-year-old company had to discharge 2,300 workers.

What Workers Did

Mr. Cenerazzo, having an unusual grasp of the many problems that labor has to face these days, determined to do something. "If a company is worth working for and drawing a livelihood from, it's worth putting your money into to furnish the working capital to make it a success," he told union members in a mass meeting. Then Mr. Cenerazzo and Waltham employees undertook to see what they could do about it.

Right away, 820 union members pledged themselves to subscribe $318,000 in equity financing. More than $40,000 was put up in cash. One employee with 45 years service pledged $5,000. A stock-buying plan for employees was set up, permitting purchases of stock on a time-payment basis. "We expect to raise more than $1,250,000 by this method, or about $500 for each employee," said Mr. Cenerazzo.

Common Problems

This is the story of a company up against trouble. It is also a story of employee integrity, courage, and determination. I hope these workers succeed in saving their company. In this story, the theme of labor-management relations has indeed taken a new twist. The workers of Waltham have understood the desperate need of industry for capital. "Twice the working capital is needed now as in 1940, because of increased costs," Mr. Cenerazzo told workers.

This milestone in industrial relations proves that labor unions can see that industry's problems are their problems also. You may call it just good sense—seeing the other fellow's difficulty and helping him out of it. Another name for it is the Golden Rule.

Benjamin Franklin's Will

Franklin's last will is in the probate files of city hall in Philadelphia and his first will is in the possession of the American Philosophical society. The second will however was lost to sight for many years and turned up 20 years ago in the hands of Arthur Pforzheimer, a New York collector. According to Dr. William Lingelbach, librarian of the American Philosophical society, this is the first place in which has been found a list of Franklin's personal possessions.

Sylvester Says:

"100 years is a long time to wait for a house, but by building 500,000 public housing units per year it would take the government 100 years to place every 'low-income' American family in government public housing."

The average earnings of families now living in public "subsidized" housing is $2,200. There are approximately 20 million American families with incomes no higher than that.

On the basis of $2,200 a year income, more than half the families in the U. S. qualify for a home in a government housing unit.

But most American families haven't learned how helpless they are, for, according to U. S. Census figures, over one-half of our families with incomes below $1,000 per year already own their own homes.

Diesel Replaces 'Iron Horse'

Approximately one-fifth of the total weight of a modern diesel electric locomotive consists of copper and copper-base alloys. This figure is many times the amount of copper and its alloys contained in a steam locomotive—the romantic "iron horse" that has served the nation's railroads faithfully for over a century, ever since the Tom Thumb, built by Peter Cooper in 1829, was given a trial run in September of that year. Finally the "iron horse" is being turned out to green pastures as most of the major railroads of the country turn to diesel electric locomotives for freight and passenger service.

Riding Both Ways

The Yellow Jacket

President Truman is now learning that it is much easier to make promises during a campaign than it is to carry them out after election. Of course, repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and restoration of the old Wagner Act is a case in point, altho it is admitted here that Mr. Truman and his left wing supporters are doing their best to wipe out every vestige of the new labor statute.

But a better case in point is the question of taxes. The Democratic platform in 1948 promised lower taxes. But the smoke of battle had little more than died away in November until Mr. Truman was asking for a $4 billion increase in taxes to carry out his Socialist spending program and at the same time to "prevent inflation." Here is an inconsistency that is a real lemon.

And the effort to increase taxes, in spite of campaign pledges, have died a bornin'. The inflationary spiral began to flatten out after the election and even some of the New Dealers began to admit that deflation was a greater danger than inflation. So the appeal for new taxes lost much of its bloom and we have heard little about it of late. So, to use the words of a prominent administration critic. Apparently the Administration is trying to ride a donkey with a head or something at both ends, but travel in opposite directions at the same time. In other words out of one corner of his mouth he promised reduced taxes and out of the other is calling for increased taxes.

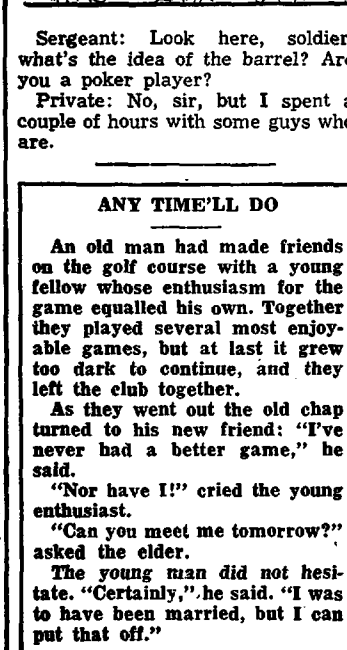

The new Agricultural proposal of Sec. Brannan is another case in point. During the campaign Mr. Truman loudly called for his own election among the farmers because of his price support program, which he said would be abandoned if the Republicans won.

The Republicans didn't win and the administration is preparing to junk the price support program. It wants to let food prices seek their own level and then pay farmers a fancy price for their produce thru use of a government subsidy—of course, at the expense of the taxpayers in town country alike.

Pays To Advertise

An Oklahoma girl some time ago inserted an advertisement in a matrimonial paper for a husband. It cost her $3. She found a man and her wedding expenses were $0. The husband is dead in less than a year and he left his widow a $11,000 insurance policy. This woman no doubt agrees that it pays to advertise.

We don't like to make X marks after your name.

No Use
Throughout the evening meal neither had spoken. But as soon as the plates had been cleared away and they were seated before the fire, the husband's face lost some of its hardness.
"You know, dear," he said, breaking the long silence, "I've been thinking over our argument."
"Well!" she snapped, without looking up from her sewing.
"Yes, dear, I've decided to agree with you after all," he said, meekly.
"That won't do any good," she sniffed. "I've changed my mind."

WISE UMP
A northern fan who never missed a game of baseball was visiting in the South, and went to see a game between two local teams. It seemed to him they were starting play without an umpire, but he finally discovered the umpire sitting in the grandstand among the spectators. Turning to a native, the visitor said: "What in the world is the umpire doing in the grandstand?"
"Oh," the native explained, "the spectators used to jump on him for his decisions so much that he figured if the folks in the grandstand could see every play to well, he'd go up there too and do his umpiring."

Forage Seeding
Bromegrass is best seeded with alfalfa by mixing the bromegrass with the grain and seeding from the main drill box. Three to five pounds of bromegrass is enough where the grass seed is sown shallow. Removal of the large hoses from the drill when fertilizer has been applied prior to seeding, allows the lighter grass seed to sift off to the side of the disks when drilling. It lands on top of the soil while most of the grain will still fall through the shoe. Six to eight pounds of alfalfa with bromegrass or a like amount of June clover seeded with two to three pounds of timothy makes a good seeding where the seed is planted shallow and lightly covered by cultipacking or dragging.

When Moon Is Full
It does not get colder when the moon is full, as many believe. Records show that cold weather is just as likely to occur when the moon is new as when it is full or in any other phase. However, there is a proverb, "clear moon, frost soon," which is true enough in the winter, because when you see the moon the sky has to be clear. It is on the clearest nights that the surface of the earth radiates away its heat most rapidly and frost, or dew in warmer weather, is most likely to occur. A layer of clouds blankets the earth and so there is less cooling of the ground at night, which prevents condensation of moisture as frost or dew.

Silicone Resins
The new silicone resins and their enamels are establishing records for their heat-resistant qualities. Silicones originate from ordinary sand and, in some ways, out-ripar the miracles of the other synthetics which the chemists have developed from coal, air and water. They have definitely established themselves in the field of electrical insulation and their use in the protective coatings field is just in its infancy.

Alfalfa Weevil Control
Spraying or dusting with DDT, chlordane, methoxychlor or toxaphene at concentrations recommended by the manufacturers is suggested by Colorado A.&M. college experiment station entomologists as an early control measure for alfalfa weevil. Farmers are cautioned, however, that such chlorinated materials should not be used after the alfalfa is from two to six inches tall since they tend to accumulate in the fat of animals and in the butterfat of milk, and may eventually carry their toxicity to the human consumers of the animal products.

Poultry Suggestions

As warm weather approaches, egg quality declines as well as egg production. Egg prices usually advance, and now eggs are selling for a very fair price. The returns being received by commercial egg producers is very encouraging. Farmers should take every precaution to conserve the quality of the eggs being produced on the farm.

Heat is the greatest enemy of high egg quality. Many producers have a cellar, basement, or other suitable places on the farm whereby eggs may be kept satisfactorily. If such places do not exist, a farmer could well afford to provide an egg cellar. About all that is necessary is the place be reasonably well ventilated, free from disagreeable odors, cool, and moist. Eggs should be gathered at least twice a day and spread upon wire racks, or left in wire egg baskets and allowed to cool overnight. If the above program is followed, much improvement will be noted in the quality of the eggs sold and the flavor of the eggs when they are consumed. It is high time North Carolina farmers and poultrymen gave serious consideration to producing, conserving and selling high quality eggs.

Pullets should be well developed before they are placed in the laying house. One of the best ways to have well developed and healthy pullets is to grow them on a good range. Tender green feed such as Ladino clover is palatable and highly relished by the birds. Soybeans and field peas will usually furnish green feed during the hot dry months. Move the range shelter and feed hoppers as needed to make better use of the green feed on the range.

Mash and water should be available at all times while the birds are on range. The mash should be kept in outdoor or covered feed hoppers to protect it from the rain and sun. Water fountains should be shaded to help keep the water cool.

When the pullets are removed from the range, they should be placed in cool laying quarters. Keep the ventilators and windows open to make the house cooler. The early pullets will not continue to gain in body weight and increase in egg production if the house is hot.

Check for lice and mites as warm weather is ideal for their presence. Dusting with sodium fluoride or painting the roost poles with a roost paint late in the afternoon on the birds at night, then hide in the roost poles the daytime. Control lice and mites by a thorough application of equal parts of used motor oil and kerosene.

Our County And Social Security

By Mrs. Ruth G. Duffy, Manager.

Last week you celebrated the Fourth of July. It is one landmark in our National history which animates and gladdens all American hearts. On other days of the year our party affiliations may be more important but on the anniversary of the birth of our Nation we are Americans all—each of us feels that our country is greater than party.

Another outstanding landmark in our history exemplifying this American spirit of cooperation in critical times is the passage of the Social Security Act in Aug., 1935, which grew out of changes that took place in our way of life. Our late President Roosevelt, in his message to Congress on June 8, 1934, described these changes as follows: "Security was attained in the earlier days through the interdependence of members of families upon each other and of the families within a small community upon each other. The complexities of great communities and of organized industry makes less real these simple means of security. Therefore, we are compelled to employ the active interest of the Nation as a whole thru government in order to encourage a greater measure of welfare and happiness and does not indicate a change in values. It is rather a return to value lost in the course of our economic development and expansion."

The Social Security Act is a foundation on which we have begun to build this security against risks which very few can meet alone and Old-Age and Survivors Insurance does provide some measure of protection to people who work on jobs that are now covered by this program. The Social Security Administration, as required by law, makes recommendations to the Congress for improving and broadening the several provisions of the Act. The chief recommendation for the past several years has been to extend the protection to all gainfully employed persons and to increase this protection against loss of income from old age and death. Summaries of these recommendations are available, upon request, at the Social Security Administration, 437 Nissen Building, Winston-Salem. I will be in Mocksville on Wednesday, July 27, at the court house, second floor, at 12:30 p. m. I will also be in Cooleemee on the same date at the Erwin Cotton Mills office at 11 a. m.

UN CHAPEL WILL HAVE NO ALTAR . . .

'Divers Are the Ways to Approach God'

. . . IT CAN BE A MANGER OR A MOSQUE

By H. I. PHILLIPS

DIVERS ARE THE WAYS . . .

"The chapel of prayer in the new United Nations headquarters will have no altar or windows. A shaft of sunlight will come through the roof. A huge marble slab, memorializing the war dead, will be the only object in the simple, cylindrical structure."—News Item.

No altar. . . .
No stained-glass windows. . . .
No man of Sorrows with His example of love, sacrifice, sorrow and ultimate victory that has stirred millions through the centuries. . . .
Just a shaft of sunlight beating in from above to symbolize hope, truth and an omnipotent power. . . .

Yet here can be the Universal Temple, the Cathedral of the Earth, the Prayer Room of All Races, Creeds and Sects, all communing with a Supreme Being in the realization that without it they are as video puppets!

A shaft of sunlight! Nothing more! Yet in it the Christian, Jew, Confucianist, Buddhist, Mohammedist and Zoroastrianist may know the mysteries of faith, see the holy of holies and seek the inspiration and guidance desired by all men.

In it, the Christian will see the manger at Bethlehem, hear "Holy Night," perceive the shepherds watching their flocks by night . . . know the cleansing beauty of the Sermon on the Mount . . . thrill at the horror of Golgotha . . . thrill at the Resurrection morn!

Here may the Jew commune with Moses and his ancient prophet, turn to Mohammed and Indian seek guidance from separate gods. In this chamber may all hear the voice!

May this be a "room a manger, a mosque, breathing the essence of divinity."

Here may troubled men, with a great duty in an hour of frightful peril, subscribe to the words of Sri Ramakrishna:

"As one can ascend to the top of a house by means of a ladder, a bamboo, a staircase or a rope, so divers are the ways to approach God, and every religion in the world shows these ways. Different are the ways that lead to the Temple of Kaighat; similarly varied are those that lead to the House of the Lord."

"There will be no windows . . . Yet on these walls and in these shadows may men of all faiths find truth, charity, brotherly love and respect for the eternal verities.

Here, denied all symbols, may they hear the flutter of wings, stir to distant trumpets, and mark, "Thou shalt not kill" in a dozen tongues.

"A marble slab will be the only object in the room . . ."

In it may the envoys see the devotion of the gallant dead, the sufferings of the widow and orphan.

May its rugged simplicity picture the kid in the sandlots suddenly defending a bloody barricade and echo the schoolgirl's laughter suddenly changed to words of comfort in a field hospital.

In Many Tongues

HE WHO has suffered much speaks many tongues.
He can be understood, he understands
The language of the countless ones who reach
For sympathy with weak imploring hands;
To each in his own tongue he has the words
That bring the quick relief of tears; he speaks
And suddenly old heavy burdens lift,
And there is hope again for him who seeks.

O you who have grown weary of your load,
Shoulder it bravely again a little while.
There will be those who may require of you
Help to go some first bewildering mile
With grief or pain. God will have need of you
As His interpreter that you may tell
Them of the hope ahead, of the healing years,
And of His love. Oh, learn the language well!

Star Dust

BETTY CLARK, star of the Sunday ABC "Betty Clark Sings," is one of those rare people who should be a lesson to all of us. It wasn't too surprising to learn that 12-year-old Betty recently was graduated from elementary school with an average of more than 90 per cent. She looks very intelligent. I was slightly surprised to learn that she skips rope and goes roller skating once a week. And of course she is exceptional as the only child in America who has her own network show. But what makes all she does especially remarkable and courageous is the fact that charming little Betty has been totally blind since birth.

The harpsichord which Eugene Ormandy bought in Vienna for Dr. Frank Black, conductor of "Harvest of Stars," with James Melton, couldn't get used to New York weather. Went out of commission and spent a year being repaired.

"The Adventures of Sam Spade" moves to NBC in September (same time, same star, Howard Duff) after being heard on CBS since September of 1946. Before that the show had put in a couple of months on ABC.

Stacey Harris, radio actor, will make his screen debut in "Postal Inspector." Harris started his acting career with Burt Lancaster on the Broadway stage, then turned to radio when Lancaster turned to Hollywood.

William Bendix finally had to wear make-up in "The Big Steal." On location in Mexico he picked up such a deep tan that his face had to be lighted to the shade it was in the scenes filmed earlier in Hollywood.

The Fiction Corner

IT WAS ETHAN PRYOR'S laughter that first attracted Abigail to him. When Ethan laughed every one else laughed. The sound had that mirthful, appealing quality that was infectious. It was good to hear. It gave you a feeling of well-being.

This all happened in 1929, when Ethan's retail antique business was netting him $15,000 a year. It was easy to laugh then. They were a jolly couple.

In 1931 Ethan's retail antique business dropped off from one-half its top amount to one-third, then to one-quarter.

That year passed and the next. The Pryors didn't find it so easy to laugh. They gave up their seven-room apartment and moved into a less expensive one.

In January of 1934 they moved to a single room in an unfashionable part of the city. Ethan was barely making enough to keep them from starving.

Abigail hunted for a week and eventually won for herself a job. It wasn't much of a job. She sat behind a glass window all afternoon and evening selling tickets for a stock company performance. The stock company wasn't doing so well. It looked as though it might fold up any day. But it paid $15 a week and would have to do until she could get something better.

Inspired, a little ashamed, Ethan went job hunting himself. He hunted a week, two weeks, without success. He began to brood. Abigail did her best to cheer him up, to get him into a happy frame of mind.

"Let's hear the old laugh ring out, darling. A pleasant frame of mind is half the battle." She sat on the arm of his chair. "Tell you what. Let's celebrate. Let's take $5 and go down to Tony's. We can have a gay time for a change."

THEY WENT TO Tony's. They drank wine and ate a big dinner. They danced. They sat and watched the floor show. It wasn't a bad floor show. Among other things there was a comedian. The comedian was sad. He wasn't funny. But Abigail laughed. She laughed as though she thought he was tremendously funny.

Ethan looked at her. A fond light came into his eyes. She was trying to be gay. She was doing all she could to bolster up his spirits. He could at least help.

Ethan laughed. It was the old time, mirthful, appealing laughter. It rolled out and filled the room. Others heard it. Others laughed. They couldn't help it. They laughed with Ethan. The comedian was inspired. After the show a man came up and sat down at Ethan's and Abigail's table. Abigail introduced him as the owner of the stock company show where she sold tickets. His name was Jones.

"Listen," said Mr. Jones. "We'll pay you $5 a night to come and laugh at our show. It's supposed to be a funny show. You can put it across."

Ethan scratched his chin. He looked at Abigail. He said: "Well, I dunno. For $40 a week I might consider it." "Sold!" said Mr. Jones. Ethan looked at his wife when he got home. "You planned it!" he accused.

"Sure," said Abigail. "When you have something it should be cashed in on. You can laugh your way through riches, my dear."

Times were getting better. People were buying antiques. By the beginning of 1936 he was doing quite well. That summer he enlarged his shop.

"Well," said Abigail, happily, "I guess we laughed our way through that depression all right."

Ethan kissed her. Then he threw back his head and began to laugh. He laughed loud and long. "There!" he said. "That laugh isn't going to cost any one a cent. From now on I laugh because I want to and free of charge. Honey, I love you."

"Ditto," said Abigail.

PUZZLE NO. 6

Ayrshire Breeders Testing Production

Keep Average Chart, Record of Animals

The Ayrshire breeders' association is the only cattle-breeders' organization in the field which maintains "average" rather than "selective" production records of its cows, according to officials.

At this time, it was reported, some 16,000 Ayrshire cows are voluntarily "on test." Daily, certified records of all phases of production and lactation are averaged into monthly records and these, in turn, are averaged into annual records. From these annual figures, "herd" averages are then computed, and these are computed into the only "breed" averages extant.

Owners of the Ayrshire cattle are given duplicate copies of the production records compiled with the help of foolproof IBM machines. This system is of immeasurable help to Ayrshire farmers in operating their herds and disposing of surplus cattle.

But this painstaking "cows on test" project is only one of the many operations conducted by the A.B.A. staff. The birth of every Ayrshire calf is recorded and registered.

The operations of the A.B.A. are helping to make Ayrshire cattle one of the most popular breeds of dairy cattle in the country. The Ayrshire is reported the highest producer of 4.0 per cent milk of any breed. Only Ayrshires produce "naturally homogenized" milk—the fat globules are so fine and tiny that they are integrated by nature with the rest of the milk. Ayrshire milk is in great demand by hospitals, and by doctors with on-diet patients.

De-Humidifier

Now the home-owner can protect property in his basement from mold, rust and mildew damage by moist summer air with any one of several simple and inexpensive dehumidifiers and a low-cost chemical—calcium chloride.

Scarce in supply during the war years, calcium chloride is now in plentiful supply. Low-cost dehumidifiers are available nationally through hardware and lumber dealers.

De-humidifiers designed to use the chemical have a container such as that shown here, for the flake which is exposed to air. Calcium chloride has the unique property of being able to absorb several times its own weight in moisture.

Montana Farm Families Assist County Agents

More than 6,500 rural men and women in 43 Montana counties gave freely of their time during 1948 to assist county extension agents in carrying forward programs aimed at bringing about improved farming and homemaking methods and better rural community living, according to the year's end report of R. B. Tootell, director of the agricultural extension service at Montana state college.

Uncovered Relics Yield Story of Primitive Man

LONDON. — Archaeologists thought they had caught a glimpse of the lives of Britain's pagan Saxon ancestors through relics dug up recently from an ancient burial ground on Farthing Down near Coudon.

Beside the skeleton of a child of about 2, probably a boy, had been placed his well-loved toy iron spear. A child in another grave was thought to be a girl.

Beneath her chin were found the colored beads she used to wear and someone, more than 13 centuries ago, had placed a large decorated bead in her mouth when she was laid to rest.

Leg and ankle bones of an old man were found to be bent, probably because he had squatted on his heels in a primitive home which boasted no chair.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Experience taught her. One mother who sends a boy and girl away to college makes a list of the things packed in each trunk and secures it to the lid of the trunk on the inside with thumb-tacks. This way she gets back at least a percentage of the things originally sent.

Wash line technique. When washing heavy blouses, shirts, etc., hang each one separately on a wooden clothes hanger and then on the line. They will dry more quickly and in better shape than when pinned directly to the line.

Dry in no time. A quick way of drying stockings is to squeeze them as dry as possible, then roll tightly in a turkish towel for five minutes. Hang in an airy place and they will dry in a jiffy.

Deposit rubbers here. A wooden box or carton placed inside the kitchen door to be used as a receptacle for rubbers and galoshes on rainy days will save the home-maker much linoleum cleaning.

Consider the mop. Floor mops, as a rule, are somewhat neglected when it comes to washing. Give your mop a good bath in boiling soapsuds every week or so. Soda added to the water will loosen the dirt wonderfully.

We wonder what has happened to that Democratic farmer friend of ours who was wagging around a big bunch of hundred dollar bills last fall and declaring that if Dewey was elected the country would be ruined? We haven't seen him since the mills and factories began closing down and cutting wages.

President Truman made many campaign pledges last fall, but up to this writing the Democratic Congress hasn't been able to make good any of his pledges. The cost of living was to come down and wages was to go up, the Taft Hartley law was to be repealed, free medical aid was to be available for everybody, and anti lynch law passed, along with a "social equality" law, and billions of dollars spent to supplement the school funds in all the states. We shall see what we shall see.

Election Called

Dr. P. H. Mason, Chairman of the Davie County Board of Elections, announces that an election will be held in Davie County on Saturday, Sept. 3rd. The voters will be given the opportunity to vote for or against the legalized sale of wine and beer in this county.

We trust that the good people of Davie will go to the polls on election day and vote on this great question as their conscience dictates.

WELFARE:

More for Less

Signing into law a bill to reorganize the federal government, President Truman offered a major proposal. He wants a new department of welfare created with its chief officer given full cabinet rank. THE IDEA is not a completely new one. It was heard frequently during the early days of the Roosevelt era, much oftener during the latter years of F. D. R.'s regime. While this proposition commanded chief attention of the nation's press, the President offered six other streamlining plans aimed at giving the taxpayers better service for less money.

Transfer of the U.S. employment and unemployment compensation offices to the labor department.

PLACING of the two key defense agencies — national security council and national security and resources board — directly in the President's office.

Tightening up administration of the post office department, maritime commission and civil service commission.

Transfer of the public roads administration to the commerce department.

The President said the plans, which followed closely several major recommendations of the Hoover commission on government reorganization, will not "automatically" produce efficiency and cut spending.

BUT HE SAID they open the door to improvements that will make the government "more vigorous" and operate more smoothly at a lower cost "over a period of time."

No one expected any reduction in federal spending, and the President's conclusions might be construed as a preliminary defense set-up for continued federal outlay at the present, or an increased level, despite the Hoover commission recommendations and the President's own seven-point manifesto.

VETERANS:

Get Good News

Veterans of World War II were all set for a surprise bonanza.

The Veterans' administration announced in Washington that cash refunds totaling 2.8 billion dollars will begin for them about next January — that is, for all G.I.'s who took out national service life insurance during the war. These were estimated to number some 16 million.

Under the new payments, announced by the VA, each ex-serviceman or his heirs would receive an average of $175 from life insurance dividends. Described as a "dividend" the money is to be repaid from two sources:

1. An eight billion dollar surplus which developed from the fact that G.I. insurance premiums were based by law on a standard mortality (death) rate table which turned out to be higher than needed.

2. Earnings from the surplus. In general, it was explained, every veteran who took out national service insurance and kept it in force at least three months will be eligible — provided the policies were not issued after January 1, 1946. No refunds are to be made on policies issued after that date.

MEANWHILE, government officials saw in the insurance dividend payments a timely "shot in the arm" for business in 1950 which

White House Repairs Still a Question

It appeared that all the commotion about repairs to the White House wasn't quite over, although congress approved and sent to the President a money bill carrying funds for work on the White House. The money was included in a measure calling for expenditure of 671 million dollars for various government obligations.

THE HOUSE, which had passed the bill earlier, accepted a one-word amendment approved by the senate. The change would put it up to a special six-man commission whether a separate residence should be built for the first family, in addition to the job on the White House itself.

GERMANY: Partial Accord

The four-week conference of the council of foreign ministers of the four major powers had ended with partial accord having been reached. The western powers and Russia cleared away obstacles to an Austrian independence treaty and agreed to try to get along a little better in Germany.

THE RUSSIANS, however, were in there pitching right up to the final moments of the parley. The conference ended in a flurry of excitement as Russia sought unsuccessfully to make a last minute change in the announcement of the meeting's results.

The Reds had promised not to reimpose a blockade on Berlin in return for efforts to revive east-west trade in Germany. This was contained in a six-point statement of principle by the Big Four to guide negotiations in Germany.

The Russians were reported in their 150 million dollar claim on Austria for German assets, and swung an uppercut at Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito by dropping their support of Yugoslavian claims on Austria. These were the points which cleared the way for an Austrian treaty which has been ordered for presentation by September 1.

DESPITE the improvement in east-west relations growing out of the conference, American spokesmen were not optimistic in evaluating results. U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson had no immediate comment.

Work on the Austrian treaty, however, was termed a "substantial step" forward and of no little importance because it would free Austria and push Soviet troops farther back into eastern Europe.

It was felt that ground had been neither gained nor lost in Germany, should serve to stimulate sales.

The plan to start the checks rolling in January brought vigorous criticism on Capitol Hill as Representative Keating (R., N. Y.) demanded that congress set October 15 as the deadline. He introduced a bill to hurry the dividend payments to that date. He declared that the government had "overcharged" veterans on their life insurance, and that the money should be refunded "immediately, not a year from now."

'UNIVERSAL MAN':

Johann von Goethe

From every state in the union and from many foreign lands, distinguished visitors are pouring into the historic little frontier town of Aspen, Colo., to pay honor to a man born 200 years ago.

The Goethe Bicentennial Convocation and Music Festival (June 27-July 16) is presenting an imposing roster of thinkers, writers, statesmen, philosophers, educators and musicians who will seek to re-examine and re-interpret the works and philosophy of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, the Universal Man, as it pertains to the atomic age.

HEADING the impressive list of lecturers is Albert Schweitzer, of French Equatorial Africa — philosopher, doctor, musician, theologian — acknowledged throughout the civilized world as the foremost modern disciple of Goethe.

The music festival, running in conjunction with the convocation, will feature compositions based on Goethe's works, monumental music of equal stature to Goethe, and music contemporary to him and known to have been inspirational to him.

LABOR:

Bad Timing?

Was the postwar buggy ride of consumer demand and increasingly higher wages really over?

The Ford motor company thought so and said so.

CONFRONTED with a list of demands by the united automobile workers union, the company made a significant counter-proposal.

Instead of pay raises and pension, health and welfare plans as drafted by the union, the company proposed to peg wages where they are for another 18 months.

Such action, said the company, would "set a stabilization pattern for the entire (national) economy at this critical time."

THE UNION, among other things, has demanded that wages be pegged to the cost of living.

Pointing out that the cost of living is down and that the market for cars might drop to 32 per cent after this year, the company declared flatly that it would reject any change in the work contract which would mean higher labor costs — whether in the form of wage increases or pension or welfare funds.

THUS the issue was hastening to a showdown. Could industry stand firm against another round of wage increases, or would labor with its organized power so stifle industry that capitulation would be inevitable?

Indicted

There was much of mystery and charge and counter-charge in the events out of which grew the federal indictment of Preston Tucker (above). Tucker and five others were indicted by the government on charges of mail fraud, conspiracy in violations of the securities and exchange act. Tucker has retaliated with charges that the securities and exchange commission has made it impossible to continue production of the Tucker car, which was to be powered with a motor in the rear.

RED HUNT:

Harvard Cool

Harvard, the nation's oldest university, was having nothing to do with any Communist-hunting.

There was a reason, officials said. They felt that to do so might be a danger to the university's freedom and to its academic integrity.

AND, Harvard held, American freedom is the school's "true glory," as it once told a man who tried to "buy" it for 10 million dollars.

The Harvard policy statement in connection with Communist-hunting activities was put this way:

"There will be no harassment of professors for engaging in open and legal meetings. There will be no apparatus of inquiry and 'closer watch.'

"The harm done by the effort necessary to discover even a single clandestine party (Communist) member would outweigh any possible benefit."

PROMISES:

Made for Housing

House Republicans indicated they were tired of the federal housing wrangle. So, they promised, they'd introduce a housing bill to substitute for the administration's program.

It was said to include a plan for privately-owned homes and some low-rent property. In fact, the substitute measure would embody most of the administration's slum-clearance ideas.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Pity Never Akin to Love

By Lawrence Gould

Is pity really sometimes "akin to love?"

Answer: Far from it. We get the idea that it is from the fact that when we are little, our mothers appear to give us more affection when we are sick or unhappy, but to try to win someone's love after you have grown up by making him sorry for you is a serious mistake. If he feels you're blaming him, he'll hate you for it, and if he does not, you'll ultimately bore him. The English psychiatrist, Dr. Laura Hutton, truly says that "In the long run most of us are attracted by happiness in others, not by unhappiness" — or "hard luck."

Is being an "old maid" a disgrace?

Answer: Certainly not, though the notion seems to "die hard." It's each person's business to adjust to life on a basis that accepts his or her limitations, and a girl who has been so conditioned that she is afraid of marriage or cannot accept the role of wife and mother should no more be blamed for staying single than a cripple should be blamed because he "won't walk." There is no worse marriage than the sort in which a girl has forced herself to take a husband she does not love "so as not to be an old maid." Single life is infinitely better.

Can dull parents have bright children?

Answer: As a rule they have quite normal children, and what level of intelligence these children attain depends upon the conditions under which they are brought up. In the Journal of Genetic Psychology, Dr. Harold M. Skeels and Miss Irene Harms report the continuing success of the "Iowa Experiment," in which children with "inferior social histories" were given for adoption to superior foster parents. Though in many cases one or both of the children's parents were rated as "morons," the children have average intelligence or better.

KEEPING HEALTHY Preventing Deaths from Appendicitis

By Dr. James W. Barton

SOME YEARS AGO the physicians and surgeons of Philadelphia made a determined effort to cut down the death rate in appendicitis. Within one year they reduced it to less than half of what it had been.

How was the death rate reduced by more than one-half in this short time?

These physicians had learned from their own experiences three definite truths. First, that the sooner the operation was performed the better; second, that no food should be given; and third, that no pain-killing drug should be used until the cause of the pain was found not to be appendicitis, as this drug masked or hid the symptoms.

When a pain occurs in the abdomen, even as high up as the stomach, many think that a dose of castor oil or of Epsom salts is the best treatment, as it clears away poisons or wastes. This would be good treatment in most cases but for the fact that appendicitis is such a common cause of pain in the abdomen.

A sluggish liver and gall bladder cause gas, and gas pressure causes pain. Constipation is another common cause of pain in the abdomen. The reason a cathartic, like castor oil or Epsom salts, is dangerous, should appendicitis be causing the pain, is because a cathartic stimulates so much movement in the intestine and this extra amount of movement may cause the appendix to rupture. A ruptured appendix causes peritonitis, usually fatal.

When a pain occurs in the lower right side of the abdomen (which may have started higher up in the stomach a few hours before) and remains in the appendix region for an hour without shifting elsewhere, call a physician at once.

In previous days it was not unusual for patients to be transported to a large city for an operation, which meant delay and a greater chance of rupturing the appendix. Today, the "nearest" hospital has surgeons capable of removing the appendix in minutes.

HEALTH NOTES

When the ankle or any other joint is sprained (not just strained), the injured part should be placed in hot water and kept hot for an hour at a time until swelling disappears. The joint then should be bandaged and placed on a chair if the patient is sitting or on a pillow if lying down. After a few days' rest, the joint is gently moved (without weight on it), and massaged toward the heart.

Some years ago I tried to count up the number of causes of headache. When it ran over 100, I stopped. Some researchers report over 200 causes.

Myalgia in the back of the neck and in the chest muscles (sometimes mistaken for pleurisy) can be caused by an infection in the nose and throat, with a resultant rise in temperature and pulse rate.

JUST FOR THE

Hubbie—"You look tired, dear. Why don't you go to the mountains for a nice rest?"
Wifie—"Oh, I don't know. I don't think the mountain air would agree with me."
Hubbie—"Well, it would be the first thing that didn't."

Teacher—"So you want to be older so that you can do many things that your brothers and sisters do, eh?"

Small boy—"Yes, ma'am."

Teacher—"Well, who is the older in your family?"

Small boy—"Daddy is, but he got a head start."

"You should be ashamed of yourself," reprimanded the father as he gave his son a dressing down for not having advanced beyond the errand-boy stage at his place of business. "Why, when George Washington was your age he was hard at work as a surveyor, earning good money."
"Sure," replied the youth in a swift counter-attack, "and when he was your age he was President of the United States."

B-36 Probe

THE MUCH ballyhooed probe of the B-36 is now taking an unexpected and not too happy turn—at least for the navy. The turn is so unhappy that naval reserve captain Congressman Jimmie Van Zandt, the Pennsylvania Republican who started all the B-36 furor, would just as soon forget about it.

For Chairman Carl Vinson of the armed services committee is not merely probing the B-36. He is also investigating the source of the smear stories against secretary of defense Johnson and secretary of air Symington. In other words, he is probing the delicate but highly important question of who wrote Congressman Van Zandt's vitriolic speeches.

In this connection it may be significant that the navy has suddenly transferred its press relations and propaganda expert, Rear Adm. Edward Ewen, to Guam. Admiral Ewen had served only one year of a three-year tour of duty, but suddenly he was whisked off to a distant island, far from the strong arm of a congressional subpoena.

The Vinson committee also is expected to apply the microscope to the most powerful backstage lobbying organization ever to buttonhole congressmen for a government bureau—the Navy League. Frank Hecht, president of the Navy League, now has become so vituperative in comparing Secretary Johnson to European dictators, that good-natured Bob Fleming, president of Washington's Riggs National Bank, is all set to resign as treasurer of the Navy League. As treasurer of the G.O.P. congressional committee last year, Fleming helped raise around a million dollars for Dewey, and has no love for the administration. But he hasn't been able to stomach the Navy League diatribes.

The Navy League has now taken over the admiral's crusade against the bill before congress tightening unification. What the admirals say privately, the Navy League now says for them publicly.

History Repeats

Harry Truman isn't the first President to have trouble with the Navy League. Herbert Hoover also had his headaches. Just 17 years ago he got into such a mudslinging duel with the Navy League that the latter ended up charging the President of the United States with "abysmal ignorance."

Attempting to practice economy, Hoover had ordered the admirals to cut their 1933 budget. Instead the admirals upped it by 40 million dollars and Hoover sent the budget back with a demand that it be reduced 20 millions under 1932.

Whereupon the Navy League, acting as a megaphone for the admirals, hurled the "abysmal ignorance" charge at Hoover just as the same Navy League is now calling Secretary Johnson a dictator.

Most folks have forgotten the origin of the Navy League—which shouldn't be forgotten. For its founders read like a meeting of metallurgical magnates.

They include: Charles M. Schwab, Bethlehem Steel Corporation; J. Pierpont Morgan, United States Steel Corporation and owner of a controlling interest in the Carnegie Steel Company; Col. R. M. Thompson, International Nickel Company; B. F. Tracy, attorney for the Carnegie Steel and Harvey Steel companies, and director of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company; George Westinghouse, Westinghouse Electric Company; Clement A. Griscom, director, Cramp Ship and Engine Company, the Electric Boat Company and the United States Steel Corporation; S. S. Palmer, director, Lackawanna Steel Company; eighteen members of the Midvale Steel Company.

Steel Wants Big Navy

There is a good reason why these gentlemen and their successors should be the most powerful, unscrupulous, and consistently irrepressible propagandizers for a big navy.

It pays. The bigger the navy, the more steel plates, the more generators, the more copper and nickel these gentlemen sell to Uncle Sam.

Members of the Navy League have been active and brazenly admitted their activity in sabotaging American diplomats at international conference.

It was Charles Schwab of Bethlehem steel and associates who paid $25,000 to "Big Bass Drum" Shearer to frustrate the Geneva naval conference. The steel and shipbuilding companies just didn't want naval limitation to succeed. Dividends, for them, came ahead of their country's efforts for peace.

At Geneva, Shearer would have got nowhere if he had not had the all-too-eager cooperation of several U. S. naval officers sent to Geneva to work for naval limitation. Instead, they did the opposite and plumped for naval expansion.

REUNION . . . Mary Jane Truman, of Grandview, Missouri, sister of President Harry Truman, had a warm reception for the President on his arrival in Little Rock. The President was there for a reunion with his former Battery "B" artillery buddies.

MISS CAL . . . Jane Ann Pedersen, 17-year-old Santa Rosa blonde, was chosen "Miss California" in the beauty contest finals at Santa Cruz. She will represent the state in the "Miss America" competition at Atlantic City in September.

"BACHELOR" MOTHER . . . As relaxed and content as son Harold, 4 months old will allow her to be, Mrs. Marion Andrews, Stow, Mass., contemplates the future as a "bachelor" of science. She was graduated from Prince school of retailing.

GUNNER . . . This is Ruth Ann Steinhagen, the limpid-eyed, imaginative girl who lured Phillips first baseman Eddie Watkins to her hotel room and calmly shot him. Although Watkins never had seen the girl, he apparently played a big role in her dreams.

FRISCH CUB . . . Frankie Frisch, newly appointed manager of the Chicago Cubs, buttons his shirt in dressing room at Wrigley Field. Frisch succeeds Charley Grimm, who became a club vice-president in the Wrigley organization.

Plan Colorful Menus, Easily Prepared Food For Holiday Occasions

HOLIDAYS are often hard on mother because there is not only the whole family home for all meals, but also guests which may number several. Consequently, the lady of the house is so busy with food preparation and consequent clean-up activities that she never has a holiday at all.

If you're planning to celebrate Independence Day at home, use some of these simple suggestions for meals. The colors and other suggestions are in keeping with the theme of the day, but the food is kept simple by day-before preparation, and by very easy last-minute undertaking.

Weather permitting, serve supper outdoors, and save getting formal about the service as is usually the custom in the dining room. You may use colorful paper plates and napkins, too, thus eliminating much of the dish washing that always comes after eating.

HERE'S an easily prepared menu which may be started the day before:

Tomato Onion Pie
Celery Curls
Carrot Sticks
Black Olives
Tutti Frutti Salad
Ice Cream Cookies Lemonade

How to do: Prepare celery and carrots the day before and refrigerate. Place olives to chill. Prepare salad and place in freezing trays. Make cookies and make or buy the ice cream. An hour or so before dinner, prepare the tomato onion pie, and while it bakes, set the table on garden or porch.

Tomato Onion Pie
(Serves 4-6)
1½ cups crisp cracker crumbs
½ cup melted butter
2½ cups thinly sliced onion
2 tablespoons butter
1½ cups canned tomato sauce
3 eggs, slightly beaten
½ pound sharp American cheese
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Mix crumbs and ½ cup butter. Press into nine-inch pie plate to form crust. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) for ten minutes. Fry onions in two tablespoons butter until lightly browned. Bring canned tomato sauce to a boil. Remove from heat and add cheese. Stir well. Add eggs slowly to tomato mixture. Add salt and pepper. Pour over onions which have been placed in the crumb crust and bake in slow (325°) oven about 45 minutes or until set.

Tutti Frutti Salad
(Serves 6)
¾ cup shredded coconut
1 cup maraschino cherries, halved
2 oranges, sectioned and diced
1 cup crushed pineapple, drained
2 bananas, diced
1 cup whipping cream
½ cup mayonnaise
Toss together coconut and fruits. Chill and fold in cream which has been whipped. Fold in mayonnaise. Freeze until firm in refrigerator trays. Serve on lettuce cups.

HERE are some cookies which will be appropriate for the holiday:

Orange Sugar Tarts
(Makes 5 dozen)
½ cup butter or substitute
1 cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup bran
3 cups sifted flour
¾ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup orange juice
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
Colored Sugar

Blend butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Add bran and blend. Sift flour together with baking powder and salt; add to first mixture alternately with orange juice. Stir in orange rind. Chill. Roll out dough to ¼-inch thickness, working with a small amount at a time and keeping the remainder chilled. Cut into star shapes with floured cutter; sprinkle with colored sugar and bake on a greased baking sheet in a moderately hot (375°) oven about 10 minutes.

Orange marmalade is an old favorite with toast, but try this idea for a real treat: place slices of cream cheese on top of the marmalade and broil until the cheese is bubbly.

Broccoli looks good and is tasty, too, if you dress it with plenty of melted butter and garnish with rice, hard-cooked egg.

Save your sausage drippings for gravy. Sauté a few mushrooms in the drippings, then thicken with flour and add milk. This is especially delicious for chicken.

Why Church Music?

Lesson for July 17, 1949

WHY church music? Hymn books are expensive, learning new hymns is a bother, choirs are a lot of trouble. Most preachers need more time for their sermons; why not cut out the music and let them have fifteen minutes extra? No sir; it won't do. Say what you please, the average church-goer knows better than that. He may never have thought it out and he might not have heard of the word "hymnology," but Mr. Average Churchman likes music in the church, even if he never opens his mouth himself.

Our familiar "Holy, Holy, Holy," was written for use in an early morning service; "Bread of the world" was written as a Communion hymn; "Break Thou the Bread of Life" while often used at Communion was not so intended, as you can tell by reading it carefully; it was meant for use just before the reading of the Scripture.

"Day is Dying in the West" is best used in an out-door service, "Ivory Palaces" was written one Sunday afternoon in North Carolina for use in an evangelistic meeting that night. It might interest you to leaf through your own hymnal and see how many hymns were written purposely for church use.

THREE liturgical Psalms are our lesson selection. Use your imagination when you read them. As you read Psalm 24, think of a great procession marching through the streets of Jerusalem on a holy day and approaching the tall temple shining on the city's highest hill. Singing as they climb, perhaps one part of the congregation sings the question: "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? Who shall stand in his holy place?" Perhaps another group of voices takes up the answer: "He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart . . ."

As the great gates swing open, the chant rises: "Lift up your heads, O ye gates!" for the King of Kings, the Lord of Lords, is marching.

The little kings (in Israel and over the world) have come and gone; only the Lord of Hosts is the King of Glory. Singing the glory of God brings it before the mind far better than reading about it in a book!

Then the 84th Psalm is taken from what they called the "Chief Musician's Collection," evidently a part of what we now would call the choir library. It is the song of a man who loves the church and loves the people whom he finds there. Psalm 95:1-7b is also obviously a song for public worship, and still is sung every morning in churches around the world.

THE Best is Not Too Good
IF in ancient times when God's people were learning to sing, the noblest poems of inspired men were set to the best music available and used for the honor of God and the help of man, then surely Christians ought to do no less.

If you had a friend coming to see you, one whom you respect and wish to honor, you certainly would not set the table with all the chipped-up old kitchen china and you wouldn't put wilted flowers on the table and you certainly wouldn't keep the radio tuned to the tin-pianest trash you could find on the dial.

No, if you have anything for him you want it to be of the very best. Why not so with God? The house of God is no place for cheap, bad music, jingly meaningless rhymes instead of noble hymns and psalms, tiresome grind-organ tunes or jazzy swing stuff instead of music that has real power and beauty. If nonsense is bad in a sermon, it is worse in a prayer and worst of all in a hymn. If mere noise is bad in a sermon, it is worse in a prayer and unbearably bad in a hymn.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Is Bigness Bad?

Many critics of our American system use big business as a special target for their attacks. According to their charges, big business throttles competition, creates monopolies, maltreats labor, and kills small enterprises. Their attitude toward big business represents more than a natural dislike for bigness in business. It also shows their shrewdness in using the propaganda weapon to destroy our system.

If they should succeed in getting public opinion on their side, it soon would be reflected in legislation which could well destroy this segment of our economy, and eventually turn our entire economy into state socialism.

"Grown Up" Business
Big business is nothing but small business grown up. They grew up because the public allowed them to do so. No business can become big business without public approval. Public approval cannot be bought. It is earned through the hard-work process of competing against scores of other companies and giving John Q. Public a better washing machine, dress, or automobile for his money. As demand for a product grows, facilities must be increased to meet that demand. A business grows as the public, with its buying, dictates.

Good Dividends
As business grows, it becomes more efficient and makes possible real savings to the public. Our $1,500 mass produced automobile would cost $50,000 if built with the tools of 1900. Mass purchasing, production and distribution result in economies impossible to small business. Larger investment provides also the necessary extensive research demanded by keen competition.

This huge investment pays dividends to workers, too. Labor-saving tools multiply the productive capacity of the worker and ease the load from his back. This greater production allows him higher pay and shorter hours and puts him in a class far above workmen of any other nation.

Bad for Whom?
Small business has fared well in this progress story. You see, big business has created thousands of enterprises that owe their existence to its production. Without the huge output provided by the automotive industry, the average city would be without its many accessory stores, radiator shops, repair shops, filling stations, parking lots, and garages. Far from being exterminated, small business continues to develop.

Big business has made a striking contribution to our nation's prosperity and progress. As long as it is operated by human beings, there will be occasions for justifiable criticism. However, minor criticisms must not be allowed to destroy the true importance of big business to a growing nation. It is essential to a continued dynamic economy. The public, having created big business, will further prosper by its continuance.

Purchasing Terry Towels

Remember, when buying terry towels—or turkish towels as they are often called—that they have two important jobs to do for you. They must absorb moisture, and they must be strong enough to withstand all the tugging and pullings while being used, and rubbing and twisting in laundering. So look for a firm, close, underweave—that's the weave under the surface loops—to give you wearability. And look for close, thick loops on the surface of the towel for quick drying and to do a good absorbency job. Hold the towel up to the light before buying to determine the closeness of the weave. A close weave, which will wear the best, will allow very little light through the towel.

Sylvester Says:

"100 years is a long time to wait for a house, but by building 500,000 public housing units per year it would take the government 100 years to place every 'low-income' American family in government public housing."

The average earnings of families now living in public "subsidized" housing is $2,200. There are approximately 20 million American families with incomes no higher than that.

On the basis of $2,200 a year income, more than half the families in the U. S. qualify for a home in a government housing unit.

But most American families haven't learned how helpless they are, for, according to U. S. Census figures, over one-half of our families with incomes below $1,000 per year already own their own homes.

Diesel Replaces 'Iron Horse'

Approximately one-fifth of the total weight of a modern diesel electric locomotive consists of copper and copper-base alloys. This figure is many times the amount of copper and its alloys contained in a steam locomotive—the romantic "iron horse" that has served the nation's railroads faithfully for over a century, ever since the Tom Thumb, built by Peter Cooper in 1829, was given a trial run in September of that year. Finally the "iron horse" is being turned out to green pastures as most of the major railroads of the country turn diesel electric locomotives to freight and passenger service.

DOES IT PAY?

Rev. W. E. Leebour, High Point, N. C. R4
We often hear somebody say
Of this or that, "Well does it pay?"
They usually think in terms of health

In terms of dollars, or of wealth;
They think of what they'll gain or lose

In something temporal if they choose,
But fail to think of what may be
The outcome in eternity.

But let us use some common sense:
When thinking of our recompense
For what we think and say and do
And just the course that we pursue
It doesn't pay, without a doubt,
To go through life and leave God out.

Give ourselves to earthly things,
Though we might seek the place
Of Kings.

What brings the greatest dividends
I want to say to you, dear friends,
Is not the things of earth we gain.
Nor even health, free from pain;
It's giving God our lives and time
Our souls that are to Him sublime.
So when we come to see His face
We'll have with Him a dwelling place.

ABC Store Election

(Statesville Daily)

There is only one thing that can be said in favor of ABC stores, which is profits from the liquor traffic are retained by local and State governments instead of enriching bootleggers. But when it is considered that establishing legalized liquor stores invariably brings increased alcoholic consumption and public drunkenness, most people will agree government is better off without these profits.

The Iredell County ABC election was not called for the purpose of bringing legalized liquor to the county, but to prevent part of it from going west, and we confidently predict that when the votes are counted July 23, Iredell will remain in the dry column by a substantial majority.

Of course, voting against Iredell ABC store won't reduce liquor consumption in the county. Oceans of the stuff trickle down the throats of the throats of the thirsty every year, but it has always been so, even during the days of national prohibition.

But making it more readily available won't solve the drinking problem either. The solution lies in education. It is a problem for the schools, the churches and the parents of young people. Din the evils of alcoholism into their ears without end.

To Vote In Quotas

Saturday, July 23, has been designated by Secretary of Agriculture, Charles F. Brannan as the date for holding a free-cured tobacco marketing quota referendum, according to R. R. Bennet, extension tobacco specialist at State College.

Tobacco growers in the six free-cured tobacco states will vote on whether they approve marketing quotas for 1950; 1951; and 1952; for 1950 only, or are opposed to quotas.

The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 as amended requires the proclamation of a marketing quota whenever it is found that the total supply of free-cured tobacco as of the beginning of the marketing year exceeds the reserve supply levels as defined in the act. The 1950 quota will be proclaimed on or about July 1 of this year.

Whenever a quota is proclaimed, a referendum must be held to determine whether growers are in favor of or opposed to the quota. Quotas are in effect only when approved by two-thirds of the growers voting in the referendum. Except for 1939, when they were disapproved by growers, marketing quotas have been in effect on free-cured tobacco every year since the enactment of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938.

Long Time No See

A HOUSE agent had a farm on his books which was supposed to be haunted, and to prove rumor wrong he decided to engage a man to stay there for one night. The following day he was up early and went round to see how the man had fared. But the man was not to be found. On the lawn he discovered the remains of a window, sash and shutters completely wrecked, but of the watchman there was no sign.

Four days later the house agent came across him tramping along a country lane three miles away. "Hallo, George!" he cried, "Where have you been all this time?"

The man wiped the perspiration from his brow. "Boss," he replied "I've been coming back."

GETTING EVEN

A school teacher was stopped by the police for driving through a red light and was immediately brought before the judge.

"So," said the judge, "you're a school teacher. That's fine. Madame, your presence here fulfills a long-standing desire. For years I've hoped to have a school teacher standing there. 'Now,' he thundered, 'sit down at the table and write, 'I went through a red light' 500 times.'"

HER MISTAKE

Jimmy, who had been climbing trees, came in for the second time with his trousers torn.

"Go upstairs and mend them yourself," ordered his harassed mother.

Some time later she went to see how he was getting on. The trousers were there, but no Jimmy.

Puzzled, she came downstairs, noticing as she returned that the cellar door, usually shut, was open. She went to the door and called down loudly and angrily: "Are you running around down there without your trousers on?"

The reply came sternly in a man's deep voice: "No, madam I'm reading the gas meter."

Knew What He Wanted

The producer of a new play telephoned an unemployed but well-known actor at his boarding house and offered him $500 a week to play the lead.

"Not on your life," replied the actor. "I wouldn't touch that part for less than $1,000 a week."

"Well," said the producer, "come on down to my office and we'll talk it over."

"What?" shouted the actor. "And get locked out of my room?"

Letter Submarines Promote Safety and Health of Crew

In the evolution of the modern submarine, medicine has come to rank with engineering in the development of efficient underwater craft and in promoting the safety and health of the crew. Captain Thomas L. Willmon of the medical corps of the U. S. navy told members of The American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

He said that the medical man, who is the "human engineer" of the submarine, has solved many of the problems of the past, which are now augmented by improved tactics, equipment and construction, enabling deeper submergence, greater submerged speeds, and more prolonged effectiveness of the weapon. He traced the history of the submarine from 1824 in the time of James I of England, when a Hollander, Cornelius von Drebbel, constructed a wooden shell covered with goat skins, powered by 12 oarsmen, which successfully made a submergence to 15 feet with the august personage of the king aboard.

"Many engineering developments have been largely the result of submarine requirements," said Captain Willmon. The lead acid storage battery received great impetus as did the diesel engine which was developed for safety and to enable burning of a less highly refined and cheaper grade of fuel.

The atmosphere of the submarine has always required study and control, not only as regards oxygen content, but also for noxious gasses and fumes, including hydrogen from the storage batteries, chlorine generated by salt water gaining access to the sulfuric acid of the storage batteries, and carbon dioxide content of the atmosphere inherent to long submergence. Coincident with long submergence or even surface operation, in tropical waters, temperature and humidity control within the submarine were found to be mandatory.

Just How to Go About Oiling Sewing Machine

There is no regular rule to follow as to how often a sewing machine should be oiled. When there is a collection of lint and old oil it should be removed and a fresh oiling made. After about eight hours of running the machinery needs just oiling. To clean a machine you need one cup of kerosene or coal oil; a rag; a brush or chicken feather; a pie tin; a screw driver or nail file. Use the kind of machine oil that is recommended by the company that made the machine.

Before you start cleaning the machine, you should remove the needle, bobbin, presser foot and face plates. Then loosen the belt. Place the pie tin under the needle bar and pour about 1/4 cup of kerosene oil in it. Take your brush filled with kerosene and give the machine head a good "washing". The opening on the back is an important place to clean. Tilt the head back and clean the underside. Be careful not to get kerosene on the belt. Oil and kerosene are not good for electric wires or leather belts.

Now turn the wheel of the machine. Oil every part that seems to rub some other part. Oil every bearing on the head of the machine and one on the treader part. Soak up all excess oil and put all parts back on the machine before completing the cleaning job.

Tests Helping Davie Corn Growers

How Pete Carter's hybrid corn turns out this year will determine to a large extent corn-growing recommendations for Davie County in 1950.

Mr. Carter and two other farmers of the county are conducting corn variety demonstrations this year, using a total of 11 varieties. Yields from the individual rows will be checked carefully to determine which varieties are best suited to Davie conditions.

Here's the way County Agent F. E. Peebles explained the purpose of these demonstrations:

"Variety demonstration with corn are carried out each year at branch experiment stations over the state, but findings at Rocky Mount or Raleigh or some other station may not be applied with complete accuracy to Davie County conditions.

"To get a somewhat more representative picture, we test varieties right here in the county. In these farmer demonstrations, we try to create as ideal conditions as possible insofar as planting, cultivation, and fertilization are concerned. Each variety is treated alike.

"At the end of the growing season we try to sum up the results and then make recommendations for the next year.

Mr. Carter whose farm is on Route 1, Advance, planted 11 varieties May 12 on land which had been in red clover last year. He used 3 1/2 foot rows and spaced the seed 14 inches in the drill. In all he used 600 pounds of 4-10-6 to the acre.

Varieties used in the demonstration this year are: NC 26, NC 1032, Tehn. 10, S 211, S 315; V 125, V 50, Dixie 17, NC 27 (from two sources) and an open-pollinated variety.

The two other farmers conducting variety demonstrations in Davie are Charles Craven, Route 4, Mocksville; and Vivan Speaks, Route 1, Advance.

Results from the three demonstrations will be averaged at harvest time.

Our County And Social Security

By Mrs. Ruth G. Duffy, Manager.

This past week I was impressed with two things in particular. One of them was that many do not know that this Old-Age and Survivors Insurance program is actually what its name says—Old Age Insurance, and Death Insurance. The other was that many do not know that an application has to be filed before payments can be made. The old age part is pretty well understood.

So important is the death insurance payment to the families of you workers, that I want to repeat what I have written many times before in this column. Children under 18 of a worker who dies insured under this program, are eligible to receive payments each month until they are 18. Widows of insured deceased workers are eligible to receive payments each month regardless of how old they are, if the widows have children are eligible to receive these payments in their care. A widow 65 years old or over is eligible to receive payments for life if her husband was insured at the time of his death, whether or not there are any children under 18.

We were really kept busy this past week. We received 26 new claims for benefits. Of these 26 claims 14 were filed by workers 65 or over and their wives who were 65 or over. The other 12 were filed by relatives of workers who have died. In looking over these claims I found that no one lost any monthly checks in the 14 claims that were filed by living wage earners and their wives. Several of the widows filing claims for themselves and their children were surprised when they were told they would receive checks each month for the children and for themselves until the children are 18.

There was one sad case in our week's work on claims. It was the case of a young widow with one child, age 6. Her husband had been dead 5 years. She could have been getting a check for $26.18 each month since her husband's death had she filed her application in the month he died. Out of consideration I did not tell her how much she had lost. I did ask how she found out that she could come in. She told me she read my article in this paper. It would certainly be a good thing for all of you workers to tell your wives what they should do in case of your death. A note put in with your insurance policies or other valuable papers telling your wife to get in touch with Social Security Office, 437 Nissen Building, Winston-Salem, at such time might make a difference as to how your loved ones get along.

I will be in Mocksville on Wednesday, July 27, at the court house, second floor, at 12:30 p. m. I will also be in Coolmeemee on the same date at the Erwin Cotton Mills office at 11 a. m.

AS JUNIOR PULLS ON POPPER'S SHOES . . .

F.D.R. Treads Across the Political Stage

... NEW DEALERS RUSH TO SHINE 'EM

By H. I. PHILLIPS

NEW ROOSEVELT THREAT . . .

It looks as if there is to be another Franklin D. Roosevelt in the American political picture, like it or not. The big build-up for Junior is on and he starts off with this advantage or handicap, all depending on your viewpoint: He looks like popper, talks like popper and screens like popper. He is what might be called "a spittin' image."

Even if it makes you wince, there is no escaping the fact that all these things shape up into an appeal to millions of American voters. Franklin Junior is a mere kid, a long hop from a statesman and a green hand on the squad, but the name, the model and the manner represent advertising assets.

Any company selling soap, shaving cream or cigarettes that had lost its trademark and suddenly discovered an exact duplicate would cheer no more loudly than the New Deal addicts are cheering at the moment. They think Junior has the same box-office appeal. "Run this right," declared a smart Democrat politician the other day, "and in five or six years there will be plenty of voters who will think daddy has returned from the grave." "Wanna bet?" is the answer of others. "The imitation never sells like the original. No matter how they stage-manage it, Junior will always be just a copy." But neither side is positive. And that's what is causing so many arguments.

Elmer Twitchell went out as an Inquiring Reporter the other day and asked the question, "Do you think F. D. Roosevelt, Jr., is ever likely to be President?" The results follow:

McSheddy, Jabez, Z., house-painter and lifelong Republican: "When you ask me that smile!"

Botts, Peter D. L., skywriter and Democrat: "The kid is as good as in. I knew the old man would spring a surprise like this."

Hemstitch, Rudolph, advertising agent and G.O.P. leader: "Would you mind repeating that question. And if I heard you right the first time, please pass the aspirin."

Crummett, Alonzo, engineer and New Dealer by habit and instinct: "Listen, bub, if the kid sounds right over radio hookups, develops that old toss of the head and shows a scorn for other people's dough, he is good for five terms."

Peezie, Homingway D., unemployed member of the National Republican club: "I was afraid something like this would happen. There's no justice. Just when a Republican gets to feeling confident somebody slips him a Mickey Finn."

Raviola, Antonio F., lifelong Republican: "The Democrats have all the luck. Why do not Republican Presidents have sons who look like their fathers?" (Would that be good?—Ed note.)

Steukle, Arabella H., housewife and leader in the Women's New Dealer Club: "If Truman doesn't improve, the next candidate on our ticket won't have to look like a Roosevelt. He can look like anybody but Truman."

Ye Broadway Bogle

"Miss Liberty" is the most talked-of coming musical and we think some of the sets should be done by James M. Flagg . . . and that the cast should include Red Skelton, George White and Gloria Blue . . . How about an alternate title "Twin Beddoes?" . . . Several ticket brokers have been ordered to close . . . They might have been prepared for it by the reviews of their hearings . . . Liz Taylor, we see, will marry Bill Pawley, Jr., instead of Glenn Davis, the former West Point grid star . . . Liz says there was never anything serious between her and Glenn . . . He just misunderstood the signals, eh?

Branch Rickey has returned a ball player and $25,000 to Pittsburgh following a claim that the player he turned over in exchange had a sore shoulder . . . We don't know about the player's shoulder, but there's no stiffness in the Rickey arm when he can hand back that much moolah . . . Some of those video vaudeville shows are going to collapse if there is ever a bladder, seltzer bottle or wig shortage.

This is June, the month of weddings, and it seems all right to warn one and all that two can live these days as cheap as four.

"THEY THAT WAIT UPON THE LORD"

(ISAIAH XL, 31)

WEARY one, lay hold on God and claim This glorious promise, prove its depth and length,

And let it warm your being like a flame: Who waits on God, he shall renew his strength. Your weariness shall pass forevermore; You shall forget your sorrow and your tears, You shall be young again—God will restore The years to you, the seeming wasted years.

You shall mount up as eagles, you shall fly On strong swift pinions through the dazzling noon, Or cleave the night on wings to reach the sky, One with the racing wind, the stars, the moon. And you shall run and not be weary, Heart, The golden hills shall fall beneath your feet, The journey's ending will be as the start, So fresh you will be, and the way so sweet. But more than lifting wings, or strength to run, Will be the joy, after the old restraint: To walk unburdened, free beneath the sun, The long bright miles before you, and not faint.

NEXT OCTOBER the Lux Theater of the Air will celebrate its 15th anniversary on the air; the whole studio could be filled with stars who have appeared on the program, with a special section of young actors and actresses who made their dramatic debuts in radio on it. Gregory Peck, Bette Davis, Ginger Rogers, Robert Taylor, Barbara Stanwyck, Wanda Hendrix, Ray Milland, Walter Huston and many others have been starred on the theatre. Margaret O'Brien was about the youngest when she made her debut. As she had not yet learned to read, she had to memorize her lines. Next year's line-up of stars will be impressive, as usual.

Thousands of feet of on-the-spot action for "The Big Wheel" were obtained at the Indianapolis races last Memorial day. Mickey Rooney, after finishing "Quicksand" goes right into this auto racing film, with Lina Romay.

When James Mason bought the old Buster Keaton home in Beverly Hills he found there was no way to change the light globes beneath the swimming pool except from underneath. So all through making "The Blank Wall" at Columbia he looked forward to excavating around the pool, with the idea of finding out whether there really was a hidden room somewhere under it.

James Melton will take a combined pleasure and business trip to the Hawaiian Islands while the NBC "Harvest of Stars" show is on an eight-week vacation. He plans to take his family along, and to give four concerts.

One of the prettiest items owned by the wardrobe department at Warner Bros. is a rose-point lace bridal veil—has a sweep of 10 yards, is valued at $3,000. You'll see Patricia Neal wearing it in "The Fountainhead."

The Fiction Corner

HE-MAN'S CODE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

ANDY had sensitive eyes and delicate hands but Leonie, born and bred a westerner of pioneer stock, was human. She loved him. It wasn't until after they were married that she discovered he was a physical coward.

She found out the night of Serena Boone's engagement party. Tony Swift was there. As usual he was drunk. He was a handsome devil, this Tony, tall and bronzed and reckless. He had been Leonie's childhood sweetheart. Sweetheart said she would have married him if it weren't for his drinking.

The first thing Tony saw when he came through the door was Leonie and Andy dancing together. A scowl crossed his face. Then he laughed. When they whirled past him he stepped up and whacked Andy on the back.

"Tony's cut," he grinned. "Make way for a man."

Leonie flushed. Andy hesitated, looked at Tony, then gave way smiling. "Sure thing," he said. "Your dance, Tony."

As soon as she could, without appearing too obvious, she asked Andy to take her home.

There she accused: "Why did you let him insult you? Oh, the shame of it!"

Andy was startled and bewildered. "Let who insult me, honey?"

"Who?" Se stared at him. "Tony Swift, of course! I was never so humiliated in my life."

"Tony? Oh, you mean because of what he said? Shucks, honey, Tony didn't mean anything. He was drunk."

The appalling truth flashed across Leonie's brain in that moment. Andy was a coward! He'd been afraid of Tony, which was why he evaded the issue! With a little whimpering cry she turned and ran sobbing from the room.

A week later, on Saturday night, Andy stopped by at Seth Lancey's store to see Seth on a matter of business. A couple of boys from his mine were there, drinking at the bar. Minutes later, talking with Seth, he heard a rumpus out front. Investigating he discovered that two boys were engaged in a brawl with three men from the Bar V cattle ranch. Andy stood by and watched a while. Others joined in. It began to look as though the place would be wrecked. Andy got out of there.

Leonie heard about it the next day. That settled things for her.

ANDY was bewildered and unhappy. The next day he found himself brooding over the situation. By mid-afternoon he could stand it no longer. Leaving Noah Tait in charge of operations, he drove home. As he strode up the walk he heard a cry. He burst open the door and found Tony Swift trying to kiss his wife. Tony wasn't drunk. He was babbling something about Leonie really loving him.

Tony whirled at the sound Andy made. His lip curled. "Oh! The sissy from Bos—"

Andy strode across the floor. His face was black. "I guess," he said bitterly, "your dumb, after all. You need teaching." He struck out. Tony tried to dodge, but Andy's fist clipped him on the chin so hard that he went down.

"Damn you!" He lunged, but Andy wasn't where he expected. Andy's fist flashed out again, and again Tony went down. Andy jerked him to his feet and hit him again. He hit him a third time and a fourth. Blood covered Tony's face. Tony whimpered for mercy. Andy dragged him to the door and threw him out.

"Andy!" Leonie fled into his arms. "Oh, my darling, you were wonderful! Oh, precious, forgive me for what I said. Andy, why didn't you do that before—that night at the dance?"

Andy frowned. "Why, shucks, honey, I don't like to fight. Don't you see? He was drunk then. There was no need."

Leonie laid her head on his shoulder. "I see, darling. Of course I see."

Soap Holes Found Value in Disguise

Produce Magic Mud With Multiple Uses

Ever since Belle Fourche, S. D., was a rip-snorting cattle town at the end of the old Chisholm trail its residents have been damning the "soap holes" that plagued the area.

Fast-riding cowboys often took a nasty tumble in this super-slippery mud and cattle were forever getting bogged down in them.

But now, like a man discovering his hives are really a blessing, Belle Fourche has found its soap holes are one of its biggest assets. Every one of them is filled with a magic mud called bentonite. It's an odorless, tasteless, soapy mud with a thousand uses and scientists are thinking up new ones every day.

Most of us already are using it a half dozen times a day, but almost nobody has heard of it. Men use it in shoe polish and hand cleaners. Women use it in face powder, lotions, beauty cream. Bentonite also is found in many types of paint, plaster and cleaning agents. It's handy for filling holes in giant dams and for casting moulds for molten metal. Forced down thousands of feet into the earth this magic mud lubricates the drills in oil wells and sends the debris up to the drillers.

Bentonite is the most absorbent material found in nature. When moistened it swells to several times its normal size. This quality makes it useful in waterproofing housing foundations and many other industrial uses.

Its new uses and increasing popularity for its older uses all add up to a boom such as Belle Fourche hasn't seen since the gold rush. In the past 10 years the population has practically doubled and bentonite now pours $600,000 a year into the town in the form of additional purchasing power.

Fifteen years ago Belle Fourche shipped out three carloads of bentonite. Last year its production was 6,187 carloads and this year they expect carloading to go considerably higher.

Scientists say that bentonite, a strange mixture made up mostly of dust from prehistoric volcanoes, is found almost nowhere in the world except in the Black Hills of Wyoming and South Dakota.

It is the most absorbent material nature ever has devised, they say, and a half dozen teaspoonsful will soak up a glass of water.

We understand that a big temperance rally will be held in this city on Sunday, July 31st, to discuss the wine and beer referendum, which will be voted on in Davie County, on Saturday, Sept. 3rd. A prominent speaker will be present to discuss this question of prohibiting the sale of wine and beer in this county. Further information about this rally will appear in our next issue. Seems that practically all Western Carolina counties are voting to outlaw the sale of these intoxicants.

Davie County tobacco farmers will have the opportunity on Saturday, July 23rd, to go to the various voting places and cast their ballots for or against three propositions, as follows: 1st. Do you favor marketing quotas for three years, 1950-51-52. 2nd. Do you favor the quota for one year, 1950, but oppose quotas for three years. 3rd. Are you opposed to any quotas. If quotas are approved, acreage allotments, conforming to past general patterns, will be set. Polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. We hope that every tobacco farmer in Davie will take time to go to the polls Saturday and cast his ballot for what he believes will be to the best interest of tobacco growers throughout the county.

Tobacco Referendum July 23

Farm Bureau and Grange leaders from North and South Carolina have called on five cured tobacco growers to "register a 100 per cent vote on Saturday, July 23, in the referendum on Tobacco Associates and Marketing Quotas" to protect their export program and stabilized prices.

The appeal has come from R. F. Shaw, Greensboro, Executive Vice President of the North Carolina Farm Bureau and other prominent farm officials in the two Carolinas.

"Tobacco Associates have been helpful in many ways," Shaw said. "Shortly after it was organized there was a House Finance Sub-Committee hearing on a proposed $80,000 deficiency appropriation for the tobacco program."

Commending the export promotion program, he asked why other commodity groups had not taken similar action. He fully agreed that farmers who did that much to help themselves were entitled to liberal consideration for government funds they needed. The appropriation was approved without delay when voted on.

"Farm Bureau urges every grower to vote to continue Tobacco Associates—one of the most essential, aggressive, business-like programs I have ever known."

"The State Grange," said Caldwell "Supports Tobacco Associates because it permits tobacco industry groups to work together in promoting exports of our cured tobacco. It is imperative that we know the changes taking place in international affairs so that we can make necessary adjustments in production and marketing plans. It gives the five cured groups a voice in the development of international programs so essential to our welfare. Tobacco Associates has achieved much."

"We sincerely hope every grower will vote for the Tobacco Associates program in the July 23rd referendum."

Want Roads

About 400 rural citizens from Davie, Stokes and Forsyth counties went to Winston-Salem one day last week to hear about plans for hard-surfacing secondary roads. They met with Mark Coforth, of Lenoir, the genial State Highway Commissioner of the Eighth District. The meeting was very harmonious, and our rural friends are hoping that work will begin at an early date on some secondary roads in this section.

Requests were made for the following roads in Davie: Road from Cornatzer to U. S. 64; road from Mocksville by Jericho and Davie Academy to U. S. 64 at Junction with N. C. 901; and the Sheffield, Turkey-Foot road.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Asks 45 Millions to Spread U.S. 'Know-How' Throughout World; A-Bomb Urged as Defense Weapon

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

U.S. KNOW-HOW:

Share for World

Back in January, President Harry Truman delivered in his message to congress, a multiple-point program. In that program was mentioned "point four" — one of the proposals he made and one which raised some eyebrows and set off no end of speculation on "when and how."

"POINT FOUR" was a proposal to share United States "know-how" in varied fields with other friendly nations of the world. In that proposal, the President asked congress to go along with a plan to let such nations in on how the U.S. does things economically, mechanically, industrially.

After speculation died down there was nothing more said about "point four" until recently. Then, President Truman told congress exactly what he wanted. First, he asked for 45 million dollars to help the backward countries of the world through U.S. aid.

CALLING that a first step, he listed some other factors also as "preliminaries." These included: Technical assistance to be provided through the United Nations or directly by the United States.

Private investment to turn undeveloped areas into producing for the world economy.

Authority delegated by the congress to the President to give him power to administer the program and authority to delegate it to the secretary of state and to other government officers as he deems appropriate.

"We are here embarking on a venture that extends far into the future," he told congress. He added that "grinding poverty and the lack of opportunity for many millions of people in . . . certain regions . . . constitute the greatest challenge of the world today."

A-BOMB USE:

Limits Asked

How would idealism fare against expediency in the matter of atomic bomb use in a war crisis?

That was a question with which congress was being asked to deal. Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) asked congress to declare the atomic bomb as a weapon of defense only for the free nations—not to be used unless an aggressor hurls it first.

TO RISK a masterpiece of understatement, that could be a most dangerous policy as even a child could see. Give an aggressor first shot at us with the bomb before we retaliate? Some critics of such a plan might reasonably demand: How silly can you get?

An enemy equipped with enough bombs, and permitted first drop, could put this nation, or any nation, in such a fix that there'd be no use and no opportunity to retaliate with the bomb.

From here it looks as though Senator Flanders may have nothing but his trouble for his work.

FLANDERS explained his plan as one which he believed might speed the United Nations' efforts to write an agreement on world-wide control of atomic energy.

Asked whether his plan might not arouse criticism that this country is denying itself its foremost weapon, the senator replied, "I don't think we should sell our immortal souls to the devil."

But in the American concept, stemming from 1776, to sell one's freedom to an enemy through non-use of the bomb might be tantamount to the situation which the senator finds distasteful.

ECONOMY:

Warning Sounded

President Truman's administration was coming in for some criticism as a result of the current bipartisan economy drive in congress. Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) warned that if the drive succeeds, it will put a powerful political weapon in President Truman's hands—and in an election year, at that.

Aiken argued that it would be tantamount to handing the President a two billion dollar campaign fund for the congressional elections next year.

FIFTY-SIX senators — 21 Democrats and 35 Republicans — have signed a petition to take up a resolution which would force Truman to balance the budget by cutting federal operating appropriations from five to 10 per cent in the fiscal year.

The familiar white material used primarily as a cast for broken bones has long been overlooked as a source of infection, the university men said. A man in a Montreal

Top Teacher

Sarah Churchill, left, daughter of England's Winston Churchill, had the best possible coaching for her stage role in "The Philadelphia Story." Her tutor, at right, was Tallulah Bankhead, famed stage and screen actress.

TRADE PACT:

Britons Jump Gun

In matters affecting its own welfare, Great Britain never has taken any but the realistic view, hence the signing of a five-year trade pact with Argentina — a pact to which the United States has vigorously objected.

THE PACT, calling for exchanges totaling 500 million dollars the first year, and looking to at least an equal volume the other years, commits the two nations to virtual barter.

The U.S. objected to the pact on the grounds that it violates the spirit of free competitive international trade.

Argentine President Juan Peron rapped outside criticism in a speech at ceremonies marking the end of negotiations which lasted more than five months.

"It is not possible," he said, "to hide the evil intentions and evil designs behind this criticism. This type of economic warfare is a sign of incapacity."

OPEN criticism of British action came from Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) who accused Britain of "selfishly promoting her own economic interests at the expense of the U.S. and European countries." He contended that the pact "defeats the very purpose of recovery and free exchange of goods in the world."

Paul G. Hoffman, U.S. economic cooperation administrator, also was concerned. He said he was strongly opposed to this type of "bilateral agreement" and that he would use every influence to discourage such two-way pacts.

LANDLORDS:

'Freeze' Is Out

Landlords would breathe with some relief as they read the latest announcement by federal housing expediter Tighe Woods.

Woods said "the freeze principle of rent control is now a thing of the past."

FOUR new rules easing rent controls would indicate that the situation, but a closer look might raise some doubts.

First, owners putting more value into their property would be in line to collect increased rents. Then, local rent officials would have more leeway in adjusting rent ceilings in harmony with local real estate principles. Third would be the elimination of the "freeze" principle, and, fourth, making an "option" as to probable rent hike limits available to landlords before they actually repair or improve their property.

BUT—and there were three of these—the tenants still have protection. The proposed repairs or improvements can only be made with the tenant's permission, however, with these conditions the tenant may be overruled:

1. If the improvement is needed to maintain the property.
 2. Where the improvements are consistent with local "practices and customs" or property management.
 3. If the change is such as would increase the rental value in a normal market where free bargaining prevailed.
- The rules were dispatched to all rent offices, Woods said.

BONUS BILL:

Idea Won't Die

Tennessee's Representative Rankin was nothing if not persistent. The Democratic legislator again was planning a measure to obtain a bonus for U.S. war veterans.

THE chairman of the house veterans committee disclosed that he was grooming a multi-billion dollar bonus bill as a follow-up to veterans' pension legislation. He indicated he might seek action at this session.

Whether he knew it or not, he was in for some rough sledding, for even as he discussed the proposed measure, some members of his committee voiced the belief there would be no more major veterans' benefit bills reported out of committee at this session.

COMMENTING on his measure, Rankin said he regarded adjusted compensation — or bonus — as a possible solution to the whole question of veterans' benefits.

He has managed to bottle up measures to extend the "52-20" GI jobless pay beyond the July 25 expiration date, terming unemployment payments "rocking chair money."

The bonus bill, Rankin argued, "would deduct from the compensation all this sit-down money, on-the-job-training and college benefits."

AIRLIFT:

An Anniversary

The winged boxcar flew into Berlin's Tempelhof airdrome. It landed five tons of steel wool and textiles on the concrete airstrip at exactly 12 o'clock.

THE LANDING was accomplished in magnificent solitude. However, it was an event of a sort that seldom goes unnoticed.

For that landing rounded out one solid year of "Operation Airlift" the hottest weapon in the cold war.

Despite that, it was probably one of the most unattended birthdays in history. The American twin-engine C-52, nicknamed the flying boxcar, trundled to a loading station like any other plane.

THE FLIGHT, made by Lt. Michael B. Seeley, Bakersfield, Cal., was the 235,314th of the 365-day airlift. His load brought the total to a million, 943,655.9 tons of food, coal, machinery and other supplies that kept Berlin going during the Russian blockade.

The combined British-American task-force was dumping an average of 8,200 tons daily into the city with such ease nobody paid much attention to it any more.

WAGES:

Hike on Way?

A bill to increase the present minimum wage in the United States from 40 to 75 cents an hour had cleared its first hurdle and was on its way to further consideration.

THE measure was approved unanimously by the senate labor committee.

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), a committee member, said the labor department figured that if the bill became law it would mean pay raises for about 1.25 million workers who in interstate commerce now make less than 75 cents an hour.

However, the senate committee did not go along with the idea that the law should be broadened to include many workers not covered by it now.

PEPPER said that the bill had been broadened so that it included only an additional 100,000 non-farm workers. These, he said, are engaged in processing agricultural products in so-called "areas of production."

"Farmers," he pointed out, "still would have the exemptions they now have."

Recovering

Eddie Waitkus, star first baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, who was shot by 19-year old Ruth Steinhausen, was up and around again. It was believed he would be able to rejoin the team and play some more ball this season.

SEARCH:

Keep It Legal

The United States supreme court ruled that search and seizure must always be within the law and that states as well as the federal government must guarantee citizens protection against illegal practices.

BUT there was a difference. The court held that evidence illegally secured may be used in state courts, if state law so permits, but such evidence still cannot be used in federal courts.

MIRROR
Of Your MIND'Money Quarrels'
Are Symptomatic

By Lawrence Gould

Can "money troubles" wreck a marriage?

Answer: Only when combined with other, though perhaps unconscious factors. People to whom lack of money has brought actual hardship may take out their bitterness on one another, since it's natural (if childish) to want to blame someone for your troubles. But most quarrels over money are no more than an excuse for venting irritation over deeper and more intimate dissatisfactions which the people are unwilling to discuss—or perhaps even admit. An otherwise happy, well-adjusted couple will not "split up" over money.

Should a three-year-old visit his playmates?

Answer: Certainly, if he is welcome, and if they have mothers who can watch the children at play—for children of that age can't always be trusted not to hurt each other when they quarrel, as they probably will. By the time he is three years old a child should begin to learn the most important lesson of his childhood—the technique of getting on with people of his own age on an equal basis. He will never learn this lesson by staying at home and playing by himself, or by being in his mother's company all day long.

Is ignorance ever a "safeguard"?

Answer: In itself, no. The most that can be said for it is that it is better than misinformation or than certain kinds of partial knowledge. If "a little learning is a dangerous thing," it is because it's apt to be exaggerated or distorted. A smattering of psychology may be worse than ignorance if it makes you think that because neurosis may be caused by repressed feelings, you should give free rein to every latent knowledge is the best and surest safeguard in the long run.

KEEPING HEALTHY

Self-Demand Infant Feeding

By Dr. James W. Barton

ONE OF THE jokes commonly current is that Mrs. Smith "must" have perfect children because she brings them up by the book. As a matter of fact this bringing up by the book has saved the lives of thousands of children for, whereas, before mothers were taught proper infant feeding, about three in every 10 children died at birth or during the first year. Today only about one in 20 dies during this period.

The first great gain in extending the life span began with the saving of the lives of children by proper feeding during their first and second years.

In the Canadian Medical Association Journal, Dr. C. K. Rowan-Legg, Ottawa, states what we all seem to forget is that the child has an emotional life as well as just the physical, and needs more than food to keep him healthy and happy. "The feeding of infants with a definite amount of food at fixed intervals neglects the emotional side of the child's life. Modern psychiatry feels that peace and physical pleasure make a more sound foundation for a stable personality than does too early exposure to strict discipline and denial."

The infant is born with three needs—satisfaction of hunger, comfort, affection. Food should be given when it needs it and not thrust upon it when it doesn't need it. "When the hunger rhythm or time arrives and the infant is given food, the amount of crying by the child is greatly reduced, which makes life easier for the mother."

Your family doctor knows, as do most mothers, that infants must do a certain amount of crying to stretch and strengthen the lungs, so that if well fed and comfortable, a little crying will do no harm.

Dr. Rowan-Legg points out that some infants because of their makeup or personality, need to be fed at other than the regular four hours, and if they are hungry at three hour intervals and not at four hours, the mother should tell this to her doctor or children's specialist, who will make the necessary adjustments as to amount of food and intervals between feedings.

While infant feeding is the most important part in building a healthy infant, comfort and affection closely follow.

HEALTH NOTES

Neurosis—believing you have a physical ailment when none exists—is becoming increasingly common.

Fear of the future, so common today, is making many individuals old before their time. Fear takes away interest in everyday affairs which arouse our interest and enthusiasm. Once we lose these, we allow ourselves to grow old rapidly.

Individuals who can rest and sleep during tense periods have fewest neurotic (nervous) symptoms.

One of the established facts about low back pain and sciatica is that when the symptoms are worse when the patient is on his feet, injury should be suspected. Of course, injury and infection could both be present.

DREW PEARSON

Feud Has No Basis

THE 48-HOUR mystery over J. Edgar Hoover's resigning as head of the FBI got stirred up from two separate sources.

One was President Truman, who got highly indignant at the smearing of a lot of innocent bystanders when the FBI reports in the Judith Coplon case were published. Truman felt that unchecked rumors should not have been allowed to get into the FBI files, and for a while he was all for firing the efficient FBI chief.

The other source was J. Edgar Hoover's public relations man, Lou Nichols, a smart and likable Greek-American, formerly Nicholopolous, who, in his zeal to protect his boss, sometimes outsmarts himself.

It was Nichols who set in motion the rumor that Hoover was about to resign—as a backfire against Truman's intimation that it might be a good thing to have Hoover resign.

Nichols was busy as a bird dog dropping hints to newsmen about friction between Hoover and his chief, Attorney General Tom Clark, and one editorial in a local Washington newspaper followed Nichols' conversation almost verbatim.

Nichols is the same alert busy-body who shuttled back and forth between the FBI and Capitol Hill last summer when it was a good bet the Republicans were going to win in November. He seemed almost as much at home in the office of Congressman Parnell Thomas, chairman of the un-American activities committee, as the congressman himself. (Thomas is now under indictment in a kickback scandal.)

Nichols also was chummy with G.O.P. Senator Ferguson of Michigan, a bitter foe of the justice department. In fact, Lou was credited with slipping Ferguson the Elizabeth Bentley spy data, and was so active that some Capitol observers were unkind enough to say Lou was playing his cards to become chief of the FBI once the Republicans took office — though this observer has never detected anything but strict devotion to his chief.

Clark and Hoover

Contrary to reports of trouble between Hoover and Attorney General Clark, Hoover never sent a letter threatening resignation, and here is what actually happened between the two men.

Clark telephoned Hoover after Dr. Edward U. Condon of the bureau of standards had asked for an FBI apology. Jokingly, Clark called Hoover "Dr. Condon." Hoover laughed.

Clark then asked how many confidential agents he had lost as a result of making public the FBI reports in the Condon case. Hoover said he had lost about 12, and that the one that was most important was inside the Russian embassy.

The attorney general said he had been talking to Acting Secretary of State Webb, who said he was sure the Russians knew they were being watched.

Clark went on to say that he simply could not drop the Coplon case rather than produce the FBI reports because, if he did, every espionage agent in the United States would figure he had immunity.

Hoover then asked if the justice department couldn't take "a contempt" as in the Touhy case in Chicago. There, gangster Roger Touhy had demanded that certain FBI reports be produced in court, and the justice department had refused, even though Judge John Barnes threatened to hold the local U.S. attorney in contempt.

Clark replied that the Touhy case was different from the Coplon case in that Touhy was making an appeal and the burden of proof was on him. Therefore, all the justice department risked in taking "a contempt" was a $100 fine. In the Coplon case, on the other hand, Clark continued, the justice department was the prosecutor, and if it was held in contempt the judge would not merely assess a $100 fine, he would dismiss the case.

Hoover said he guessed the attorney general was right. He added that publication of the FBI papers in court was now water over the dam, but he would be dead opposed to producing the "top secret" document.

Clark Agrees

Clark said he heartily agreed, and that if the judge ruled this report had to be published, then he would appeal to a higher court and if overruled there, then he would move to dismiss the case. (Since then, Judge Reeves has ruled that this top-secret document was not to be produced.)

The conversation was completely cordial throughout as have been relations between Hoover and Clark ever since Clark became attorney general.

Follow Rules for Fruit and Berry Canning (See Directions Below)

Can Fruits Well

SUCCESSFUL fruit and berry canning is comparatively simple, but good results depend upon your being well-informed of the proper methods as well as accuracy in carrying out certain given directions.

If you canned fruits and berries last year and had some spoilage, then check over the tips I'm giving and see where you slipped. True economy depends upon having success with every jar you've put up.

Lack of success in putting up fruit and berries may not have been due to any canning procedure. Your first essential job is to select sound fruit and berries. Fruit or berries must be firm and ripe. Over-ripe material may be used for jams and jellies but should never be canned whole. Discard bruised berries or fruit as well as those which are speckled. The fresher the fruit or berry, the better is your chance of canning successfully. If you have your own orchard or garden, then you can go right out and pick the produce and rush it into the kitchen for canning. This is the ideal way to can.

Blanching Means Removing Skins

IT'S sometimes desirable to blanch fruit, or peel it. This process means dipping the fruit, such as apricots, peaches, etc., in hot water for a minute or so, then in cold water. The skin will slip off easily with just a slight pressure of the fingers or palm.

If you're blanching a bushel of fruit, do it in small doses. Letting the fruit stand in either the hot or cold water for more than the required minute will make it too watery.

Hot Water Bath

Best for Fruit Canning

FRUITS and berries, generally hold their shape better when packed hot or cold into the jars and are then processed by the hot water bath.

The open kettle method, whereby the fruit is cooked in a large kettle on top of the range and packed while boiling hot into sterilized jars, is preferred by some people. After packing in the jars, the

LYNN SAYS:

These Canning Tips Will Help You

To make one quart of canned fruit, you'll need two and one-half pounds of fresh apricots. The same weight of peaches and pears will also give a quart of canned fruit.

Two medium sized pineapples are needed to yield a quart of the canned product.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

pressure cooker may also be used for processing. The pressure cooker, however, is not as essential to canning fruits and berries, as it is in canning vegetables.

Precooking is recommended on the chart above for such fruit and berries as are watery. This method gives a better pack.

Wash Fruit Thoroughly, But Avoid Soaking

BACTERIA lurk in soil, and for this reason, it's necessary to wash fruit and berries thoroughly. However, this does not mean that you allow the fruit or berries to soak in water. They may become waterlogged and give you a very watery pack once the fruit is in the jar.

Whole fruits should be washed under gently running water and placed in a colander to drain as soon as washing is over. Berries may be dipped in and out of fresh, clean water in a basin and then placed in a colander to drain. Running water may break the berries apart.

How to Choose The Best Syrup

IN THE CHART, it is suggested that you add syrup to the fruit or berries after it has been packed in jars. In some cases, it is advisable to precook the material in syrup before packing in the jar.

For the small soft fruit such as sweet cherries and berries, use a No. 1 or a thin syrup made as follows:

Use three cups of water to one cup of sugar and bring to a boil.

The medium, or No. 2 syrup is used for peaches, sour berries, rhubarb, cherries or gooseberries.

It is made by using two cups of water to one cup of sugar and bringing to a boil.

The heavy, or No. 3 syrup is generally used on large sour fruits that have to be made extra sweet.

Scum should be removed from the syrup after cooking, before pouring the syrup on fruit.

Corn syrup and honey may be substituted in whole or in part in making the syrup. All honey, and no sugar, will change the flavor of the fruits as well as make it slightly darker.

From three to three and one-half pounds of strawberries are needed for a quart of canned material since they have a high percentage of liquid.

One and one-half to two pounds of cherries or plums will yield a quart of the canned product.

To sterilize jars for canned foods, wash them first in warm, soapy water. Rinse thoroughly. Cover jars with warm water and allow to come to a boil. Boil for 15 minutes. Let stand in water until ready to use.

Right With God

Lesson for July 24, 1949

"GET RIGHT with God" is an expression which has been sometimes used by people. It is not a coarse or cheap idea. It is the most important thing you can do. Think what it means to be wrong with God!

That means to be out of harmony with his will, going "across the grain of reality" as the old Greeks used to say. To be wrong with God means to be a rebel against reality, to have the power of the universe working against you, and so to be headed for sure destruction. Wrong with God, you cannot win. Right with God, you cannot lose. To be right with God means to be in line with the purpose that runs through all things; it means in the simple language of the Bible, to live as a child of God.

Mule or Man? THERE are two ways in which a man can come into line, so to speak, with God. One is by being whipped into it, and the other is by a free act of will. The poet of the 32nd Psalm begs his readers not to be like mules or colts (Ps. 32:9). These animals can be broken and controlled by their masters. But they do not understand what is going on, and if left to themselves they would never serve.

They have to be caught, harassed and driven. But God does not want to treat human beings like that. Getting right with God is not a business of getting into harness, being beaten into walking on the right road. That is not God's way. He pleads with us through his inspired poet: Be not as mules—be men!

Facing Up to Yourself THE short good Bible word for being wrong with God is Sin. The very first step toward being right with God is to see yourself as you are. No one ever went to a doctor till he at least suspected he was sick. No one ever went to school of his own accord who thought he knew everything. And no one will come to God who thinks he is as good as he needs to be. When life goes hard with us, when everything about our life seems twisted and rotten, we make all sorts of excuses for ourselves, we lay the blame on our parents or our friends or the social and economic system in which we live (doubtless all these have a share in creating our troubles), but we hate to look at ourselves in the mirror of truth.

This comes first: recognizing our own wrongness, not just weakness but wrongness. When we reach the point where we can say with the Psalmist, "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me," then we are on the right road.

"Hide Thy Face" THERE are two things we never hear about in the Bible. One is that God never forgave anyone who did not repent, and the other is that he refused to forgive any one who did repent. But repentance is not merely regretting that a wrong was done; still less regretting being caught. Repentance, the kind the Bible describes (as in these Psalms for example), means a complete change of attitude, it means coming over on God's side and seeing sin the way he sees it, seeing life the way he sees it.

God's forgiveness is not of the grudging, remembering, reminding kind. But condoning and forgiving are still a world apart. Condoning means saying in effect, It is all right, it makes no difference, you can go on sinning for all I care.

Some human "forgiveness" may be like that, but not God's. His forgiveness is based on real repentance, and the aim of it is to save the sinner from his sin.

Plenteous in Mercy THE Psalmists saw clearly what kind of God we have. He is not like the holder of a mortgage waiting till the first time some payment is deferred gives him a chance to pounce down and evict his tenant. We are not criminals against whom God is a prosecuting attorney, trying to pile up evidence against us. "If thou shouldst mark iniquities, who shall stand?" We are children, lost and wandering children, rebellious and disobedient children, but still children; and God holds open the door of mercy.

Scientist Measures Blood Ejected in Beat of Heart

A simple method of measuring the amount of blood ejected by each beat of the heart has been perfected by Dr. W. F. Hamilton, professor of physiology, University of Georgia. This is an important research development, since it is helpful for a physician to know the output of the heart in a patient, particularly since the height of blood pressure is in part determined by the amount of blood the heart must process.

Dr. Hamilton injects a known amount of dye into a vein, then collects a series of samples from a needle thrust into an artery. The greater the blood flow, the more dilute is the dye in the arterial sample. Comparison of the new technique with older, more complicated, ones in the same subjects showed the measurements to be nearly identical.

When the heart contracts and blood is forced into the aorta, the pressure in this vessel increases. Measurement of the distensibility of the aorta and the pressure change from the heart beat lays the basis for a calculation of the output of the heart from the pressures generated in the aorta by the heart.

Dr. Hamilton is also studying the role of the kidney in congestive failure of the circulation—so-called heart failure. Indications are that, as the circulation fails, less oxygen is available to the tissues. This sets up, by an unknown mechanism, a stimulus to the kidney to remove a large quantity of salt and water from the urine and pour it into the blood. With a healthy heart, this would increase the volume of blood in the body and enable the circulation to meet a temporary emergency.

Sylvester Says:

"You've got a choice here!"

The only country in the world where you can still choose your own style of clothing; choose to build a home of your own; choose the materials and location. Take away the right to choose, to select, and to own, and you destroy democracy. On a nationwide scale here's how Americans choose to spend their incomes. They spend four times more for food than they do for housing and rent. They spend 1 1/2 times more for clothing and 1 1/2 times more for household expenses. They spend as much on liquor and tobacco as they do on homes and they spend twice as much for liquor, tobacco, travel, entertainment, horseracing, cosmetics and other things rarely referred to as necessities than they do on housing.

It's a great country. You still have a chance to choose between freedom and government-controlled regimentation.

Damp-Proofing

The outside of basement walls should be covered from footing to grade with an acceptable damp-proofing. FHA, for example, requires that masonry unit walls be damp-proofed by the application of a one-half inch thick coat of Portland cement plaster, over which shall be applied at least one heavy coat of undiluted hot tar, asphalt or other acceptable type of compound. The damp-proofing should be carried down in a curved "cove" over the top of the footing.

Spanish Dagger

The Spanish dagger (yucca carnerosana) is a branched yucca, with thick, long, broad leaves, up to three feet in length, and it attains a height of 10 to 15 feet or more. Big Bend national park is one of the very few areas in the United States in which it can be found. There it is seen in extraordinary abundance in Dagger Flat, an area some two miles in width by 10 in length, in the northeastern part of the park.

Sylvester Says:

"100 years is a long time to wait for a house, but by building 500,000 public housing units per year it would take the government 100 years to place every 'low-income' American family in government public housing."

The average earnings of families now living in public "subsidized" housing is $2,200. There are approximately 20 million American families with incomes no higher than that.

On the basis of $2,200 a year income, more than half the families in the U. S. qualify for a home in a government housing unit.

But most American families haven't learned how helpless they are, for, according to U. S. Census figures, over one-half of our families with incomes below $1,000 per year already own their own homes.

Diesel Replaces 'Iron Horse'

Approximately one-fifth of the total weight of a modern diesel electric locomotive consists of copper and copper-base alloys. This figure is many times the amount of copper and its alloys contained in a steam locomotive—the romantic "iron horse" that has served the nation's railroads faithfully for over a century, ever since the Tom Thumb, built by Peter Cooper in 1829, was given a trial run in September of that year. Finally the "iron horse" is being turned out to green pastures as most of the major railroads of the country turn to diesel electric locomotives.

This section has had warm weather in years gone by, but so far as we can learn from the oldest inhabitant, last week broke the record. The hot wave started the first of the week and every day got a little hotter until Thursday when local thermometers hit 106 degrees in the shade. Friday was a little cooler. Several towns in the state reported temperatures of 108 to 109 degrees.

The editor of The Record attended the 54th annual convention of the North Carolina Press Association which was in session three days last week in Hickory with headquarters at the new Hotel Hickory, one of the finest and best equipped hotels in the south. Sorry we haven't space to give a full account of the meetings. A number of prominent men were present among them Hon. Thomas Dixon, Judge Francis D. Winston, Editor Josephus Daniels and others. The address of welcome was delivered by Hon. W. A. Self, of Hickory. A banquet was given the visiting editors and their families Thursday evening, and the Chamber of Commerce gave the scribes a barbecue dinner at Blowing Rock Friday. About 150 was present for the convention.

The King Of Love

Rev. W. E. Leebour, High Point, N. C. R4

Nor walk with princes here,
Nor own a mansion grand that brings

A lot of things that cheer;
But what is better far than this
I'm walking with my Lord,
Who fills my heart with peace and bliss

That's free from all discord.
Oh bless the Lord, the King of Love
Whose grace 'tis sweet to share;
Who watches o'er us from above

With kind and tender care;
Who keeps us by His pow'r divine
Along life's rugged road,
Is now preparing us to shine

In heaven's blest abode!
He blesses us along life's way
And saves us from ev'ry task
He hears us when we kneel and pray

And gives us grace within;
He strengthens us for ev'ry task
He gives our hands to do,
And lift our burdens when we ask

And always proves so true.
'Tis Sweet to be a child of God
A pilgrim from the skies
Though some may think it seems quite odd

Because of broken ties
That bound us once to things of each,
From which we now are free,
Which we esteem of little worth

Compared to what we'll see.

The way to get a job is to hold on to Truman's coat-tails.

When some men get elected to office and set out to make jackasses out of themselves they generally succeed.

A river becomes crooked by following the line of least resistance.

The longer one carries a grudge the heavier it becomes.

The man who does not read good books has no advantage over the man who can't read.

The New Deal boom has become a boomerang.

If you drive like the Devil you will soon be with him.

There never is a large enough crowd on the straight and narrow path to make you feel cramped.

God can forgive sin but He will not bless laziness.

According to the news dispatch there are three and one-half million people in the country looking for jobs. See Mr. Truman.

"Give 'em hell" Harry has never shown any sign of recanting on his SOB blast and it is our guess he never will.

The statement that the Taft-Hartley Act is a "slave labor" law is not true and Truman knows it.

Back stage there is a real alarm in Washington over the weeks estimate of three and one half million unemployed.

Congress is hunting for something new to tax. Why not a levy of $5 or $10 on all pledges of politicians not fulfilled?

Daughter a Variety

No Use

ENGLISH Playwright Richard Brinsley Sheridan and his wife invited another couple to their house one evening. After dinner the two ladies retired to another room and left the men to their cigars.

"Don't breathe a word," whispered the playwright to his friend. "We've just inherited a piece of valuable property. But my wife and I have promised faithfully not to tell a soul about our good luck."

"Why are you telling me, then?" asked the guest.

"Simply because I'm certain," smiled the author, "that Mrs. Sheridan is upstairs confiding our secret to your wife."

FAIR QUESTION

The sailor home on leave was telling his fiancée's family some rather tall tales of his adventures. All listened, enthralled, except the youngest son, who was obviously unimpressed.

"You see, Tommy," said the sailor, after one extra-startling story, "I always believe in fighting the enemy with his own weapons."

"Oh, yeah," sneered the lad, "And how long does it take you to sting a wasp?"

"E" for Effort
Five professional wisecrackers sat discussing gags and cracks too dead ever to be used again. One asked whether anything could be salvaged from that old one: "Who was that lady I saw you out with last night?"

They all fell silent, wiggling pads and pencils, thinking. In fourteen seconds this slip was tossed onto the table: "Who was that lady I saw you outwit last night?"

He Knew
The recruit was causing his sergeant a lot of trouble.

Finally the N.C.O. went up to him and said sarcastically: "Do you realize you are the only one in step?"

"Well," said the recruit, "it's no good telling me—you'd better tell the other fellows!"

New Steel Age in Offing For Land of Midnight Sun

Norway, long an iron ore exporter, plans to roll its own soon in a big and modern iron and steel works.

Up by the Arctic circle, the small seaport of Mo-I-Rana ("I-Rana" means in Rana district) is undergoing an amazing transformation into Norway's "Far North Pittsburgh."

Hydroelectric power for the plant, bomb-proof chambers for the power generators, and railway tunnels cut deep inside the mountains are a few arresting features of the project.

With a working harbor and plenty of iron near by, and a north-bound railway already reaching past Mo, this gateway to the lands of the midnight sun finds itself the center of a potential steel age that recalls stirrings of long ago.

Norway's first Iron Age lasted from the Roman era well into medieval times. Its cultural developments started with the expansion of Roman influence in northern Europe, and the importation of raw iron and fabricated iron objects.

Later, following the discovery that native bogs were rich in iron deposits, the early Norwegians began making their own iron products. From iron smelted in primitive blast furnaces, they created a surprising number of useful articles, from kettles and other kitchen utensils to sickles and axes.

The iron age, which made possible the building of more advanced boats, helped lay the foundation for Norway's seagoing activities, still a major factor in the nation's economic life.

Lipstick Stain on Fabric Calls for Prompt Action

Lipstick was made for lips—not for decorating table linens, handkerchiefs and blouses. However, accidents do happen occasionally and, when they do, then comes the question of how to remove the stain.

Helen Zwolanek, clothing specialist, University of Illinois college of agriculture, says lipstick stains on fabrics call for prompt action. At best, such stains are difficult—sometimes impossible—to remove without injuring the fabric.

If the material is washable, first loosen the stain by working glycerine or vaseline into the fabric. Then launder it in the usual way. Don't apply soap or other alkalis before you loosen the stain. They are apt to set it.

If water spots the material, work vaseline or lard into the stain. Then either sponge with carbon tetrachloride or dip the stained part in a bowl of the solvent. If a trace of color remains, sponge the fabric with denatured alcohol. Be sure to dilute the alcohol when you use it on acetate rayon and colored materials. One cup of the denatured alcohol to two cups of water is a good proportion.

Treatments for Wood
According to publications of the National Fire Protection association, the natural combustibility of wood may be decreased by impregnation with fire retardant chemicals or with fire-retardant coatings.

Wood that is impregnated with an adequate quantity of fire-retardant chemicals will not usually support combustion. For interior work, combinations of ammonium phosphate and ammonium sulfate have been used as fire retardants. Other chemicals that have been used are ammonium chloride, sodium borate and zinc chloride. Most of these chemicals are soluble and would be washed out where exposed to the weather or when used on floors cleaned by washing. Certain materials when applied as coatings over wood provide some protection against ignition of the wood and spread of flame.

Wood Duck Restoration
Considered by many to be America's most beautiful waterfowl, the wood duck is being given special attention through a project inaugurated by the Massachusetts bureau of wildlife research and management, according to the Wildlife Management Institute. To supplement the state's short supply of hollow trees, in which the wood duck customarily nests, the bureau is distributing free to sportsmen and landowners several thousand nesting boxes fashioned from war-surplus packing crates. Two thousand already have been erected by state personnel. The boxes are placed on poles six feet above the water and from 15 to 20 feet from shore. Installation in trees was found to attract predators to eggs and ducklings and to result in the boxes being used by squirrels, mice, and owls.

Notice, Veterans!

North Carolina veterans of both World Wars I and II, who are unable to follow a gainful occupation because of disability may be entitled to a pension even though the disability is not a result of a military service.

The North Carolina Veterans Commission announced that pension laws for non-service connected disabilities have been liberalized, thus affording older veterans an opportunity to qualify for total disability despite the fact that the specific degree of disability may not be total. Many veterans who have been denied total disability in the past are eligible to apply again.

Single veterans whose income annually is $1,000 or more, or veterans with dependents whose income is over $2,500, cannot qualify.

Veterans whose employment is limited because of a disability should contact the nearest office of the North Carolina Veterans Commission immediately. Service officers are familiar with the requirements to be met and are ready to assist veterans in making proper application.

The Commission office serving Davie County is located at 134 S. Main St., Mocksville, and veterans of all wars and their dependents are asked to call on Fred R. Leagans, the Davie County Service Officer, or his Secretary, Mrs. Maxalene S. Matthews, for any assistance or information. The services are free and the office is open daily from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

"Spitting Cobra"
The "Spitting Cobra" snake is perhaps, more dangerous than the other cobras, since it not only bites at close range but some species may "spit" venom from a short distance. The Ringhals, a "spitting" snake, is the shortest of the cobras, averaging about four feet in length. When disturbed, it will eject venom in two streams from the fangs, accompanied by the expulsion of air from the lungs, so that the venom is sprayed several feet in a fine shower. Entry of the venom into the eyes causes intense pain, followed by inflammation and partial or total blindness. The black-necked cobra also sprays its venom. This snake is larger than the Ringhals, attaining a length of seven feet when fully grown, and it rears and "spits" upon slight provocation.

Dye Them To Match
Maybe you have a clump of odd stockings in your bureau drawer—perfectly good singles, the mates to which have been disabled by run-trouble. Well, the chances are you never will buy another pair with exactly the same color and heel shape, so why don't you dye them to match? You can buy color remover, recommended as a first step, and dyes in 10 cent and 15 cent packages. Directions are on the packages. You can re-dye to advantage when hosiery color-styles change, too.

Public houses and social planners are urging the Government to guarantee U. S. citizens food, clothing, housing, amusements, education and medical care. What happens when people are provided these things?

The American Indians have been pampered, and dominated by our government for 80 years. Here's what they had to say to Senate Committees:

"The flag that flies upon the Capital dome here, that says under the Constitution, every man shall have his day in court, every man shall have his personal rights, his property protected—that means absolutely nothing on an Indian reservation."

"You give any race of people, regardless of creed, a dole and a hand-out and you have got a dependent, and they will continue to depend on that and sooner or later they become lazy, lazy and undependable."

Our County And Social Security

By Mrs. Ruth G. Duffy, Manager.

Every day somebody wants us to tell him what somebody's Social Security Number is. He is usually surprised when we tell him we can't. The reason we can't is because we don't know. The reason we don't know is because there are too many of you with the same name, and because we don't know which one of you worked. We have to know exactly who you are before we can tell what your number is.

Who are these people who want us to tell them your number? They are not busybodies prying into your personal affairs. They are the men who help you build up your Social Security Account. They are your employers. They want to know what your number is so they can correctly report how much you have been paid. Each of your employers reports how much he paid you so that you and your family will get credit for it on our books, and so that you and your family will be able to derive benefits when you are old or when you die. Each employer wants his report to be right because it's costing him money; but he also wants it right because it means so much to you.

The employers in this area have done a good job of reporting, and the Social Security Administration has done a good job of posting the wages to individual accounts. Every three months we get reports on about 45 million men, women and children who work. So long as you give your number to your employers, the same number, it does not make any difference if you worked on a different job every week for the last twelve years. You will have credit for all your wages. The more you have posted to your credit the more you get when you retire, or your family gets when you die. It pays you to watch this as you watch the bank to see that it gives you credit for what you deposit there.

July is the month in which employers all over the United States make their reports for wages paid their employees during April, May and June. If you have worked for anyone during these months to whom you have not given your Social Security Number and name exactly as they are written on your card, see that he gets his record corrected immediately for he will file his report before July 31st.

I will be in Mocksville on Wednesday, July 27, at the court house, second floor, at 12:30 p. m. I will also be in Coolemeec on the same date at the Erwin Cotton Mills office at 11 a. m.

DON'T SHOOT FIRST BASEMAN UNLESS . . .

Childhood Memories Drive Batter Berserk

. . . YOU WISH TO BE SWITCHED TO THE MINORS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A PSYCHIATRIC EXAM

(Wherein Elmer Twitchell, having shot a first baseman, is questioned for reasons.)

Doctor.—Now, then, I want you to relax and let your thoughts run freely.

Elmer.—Are you a good psychiatrist?

Doctor.—Yes, I never played first base in my life.

Elmer.—What position did you play?

Doctor.—I was a southpaw pitcher in my college days.

Elmer.—That does it! I must have my gun back . . . Please, my gun! . . . It rests my nerves so!

Doctor.—Quiet! I'm trying to help you out of a very serious jam.

Elmer.—That could have done it.

You shot a ballplayer and can go to prison.

Elmer.—Do they put people in prison for shooting ballplayers?

Doctor.—If they didn't some clubs would be bumped off in a single afternoon. Now, listen, there must be a psychopathic reason for what you did. As a child how was your home life, and you'd better make it bad. Was there, for instance, ever a Christmas when your folks spent $5 on your brother for a first baseman's mitt and only $2 on you for a book?

Elmer.—That could have done it.

Doctor.—Did your father ever read the baseball summaries aloud? Did you ever live in Brooklyn back in the days of those eccentric infielders? Was anybody in your family a baseball fanatic?

Elmer.—I had an uncle who used to recite that Costello thing entitled "Who's on First?"

Doctor.—Good. I'll make a note of that. In your infancy were you ever chased with a ball bat for not doing your homework?

Elmer.—I seem to remember something like that. And I recall that as a little child I was taught to walk too early. I developed an aversion to walks.

Doctor.—That would explain it if you shot a pitcher. In school did you ever have a teacher who wore a mask and chest protector?

Elmer.—No, but I had a kindergarten principal who carried a sawed-off bat and insisted he had been ordered to punt.

Doctor.—In your immature years did you ever play softball?

Elmer.—Yes. I was such a poor hitter I never got to first except when hit by the pitcher. And I never got to second because there wasn't a 300 hitter on the team.

Doctor.—Now it's all clear. If you ever were to get to second base you knew you would have to shoot the first baseman . . . The idea took possession of you! . . . It became an urge! . . . You couldn't resist it! . . . We can explain everything to the court. You are as good as free.

Elmer.—Goody! Goody! Can I have my gun back?

Doctor.—Probably, but we may have to switch you to some other league!

President Truman says there is no depression. If your are out of work it is all a red herring.

Milton Berle and his former wife, Joyce Matthews, separated in 1947, were remarried the other day . . . The ceremony was disappointing to us as no Texaco quartette showed up to sing the wedding march . . . It was one time on a Berle program where the other performer got equal billing . . . Everything went off smoothly. Surrogate Bill Collins, who presided, refraining from opening the ritual with "Tell ya what I'm gonna do."

Miracles

Grace Noll Crowell

THEY sought the Master's healing touch,
They followed Him down lane and field,
And every ailing, seeking one
Who came to Him was healed.

O Master, still today we come:
The great throngs down the earthly roads,
We bear our sorrow and our pain,
We stoop beneath our heavy loads.

We pray, and often grief is stilled,
And pain becomes a strange, past thing;
Our loads are lifted, many times
Even from our remembering.

And these are miracles as great
As those far ones on sea and land.
All healing, all release, dear Lord,
Comes from Thy hand, Thy unseen hand.

The Fiction

Corner

MAX SANDERS' home had been robbed of jewels valued at $50,000. The jewels were kept in a wall safe behind a picture in Max's study, which was located on the second floor of his Beverly Hills home.

Inspector Ray Beatty was assigned to the case. Leo MacDougal, a police officer, who had been summoned from his beat, showed Inspector Beatty the evidence that had thus far been discovered.

First there was a ladder placed against a window that opened into a second floor hall. This window had been discovered open.

Inspector Beatty told MacDougal to summon all the servants. Then he questioned them. They all had good excuses. Sid Furbush, a secretary, had spent the night at the movies with a friend. Edwards, the butler, had read in his room until Mr. and Mrs. Sanders returned from a party, when he admitted them.

It was right after that, that Mrs. Sanders went to the safe to replace the jewels she had worn, and found the others gone. Martha Greene, the housekeeper, had been in her room all evening. Her room was located on the second floor. She had gone down to the kitchen about 10 o'clock for a bite to eat and found Viola Matson, the maid, there with her boy friend. Returning, Martha had passed Edward's room and seen Edwards sitting by his table, reading.

INSPECTOR BEATTY dismissed the servants and went back to the study. He examined every inch of it. Then he went into the hall and examined that. He also examined the window and the ladder and the ground below the window. It had rained a little the night before and he found some footprints beside the ladder. They looked like men's footprints.

Inspector Beatty sought out Sid Furbush. He asked the secretary if Max Sanders held business conferences in his study. Furbush said that he did.

"The chances are, then, that he's had occasion to open the safe when others were present?"

"It's quite likely."

"I want to complete a list as you can make me of all the people you've known to be in the study during the past month."

Inspector Beatty left Sid Furbush making out the list, summoned MacDougal and went down the hall. He entered one door after the next, first knocking to make sure the room was empty. Presently he returned to the hall, bearing a pair of shoes.

Carrying the shoes he returned to the study and asked Furbush if they were his shoes.

"Why, yes," said Furbush. "Why? Where did you get them?"

"Out of your closet. I searched the closets of all the servants till I found a pair of shoes with some mud on the soles. It was you who committed the robbery."

"You're crazy. That's a cock-eyed theory. The robber came up the ladder."

"No," said Inspector Beatty, "that's only what you expected us to believe. That's why you put the ladder there and left the window open. The robbery was committed before you placed the ladder there."

"How do you know that? You can't prove it."

"I won't have to. What I can prove is that no one came up the ladder. It rained last night. There was mud. There's mud on your shoes. The shoes fit the footprints at the foot of the ladder. Yet there is no mud at all on the rungs of the ladder. If there had been I would have probably been fooled and not been sure that some one inside committed the theft. Besides you had the best alibi. I checked with the man with whom you said you attended the movie. He broke down and confessed everything."

MacDougal was amazed. Afterwards he said to Beatty: "I didn't know you checked with Furbush's friend. When did that happen?"

"It didn't," said Beatty.

Might Have Been Highest

If Aconagua hadn't "blown its top," its name might be far more famous than it is today. This Argentine mountain might have been renowned as the world's highest peak. According to World Book encyclopedia, Aconagua, highest mountain in the western hemisphere, erupted many centuries ago with such force that it totally destroyed its summit and all signs of its volcanic crater.

50 Years Of Service

With this issue of The Davie Record we complete 50 years of service to the people of Mocksville, Davie and adjoining counties.

The Record was founded in 1899, by the late E. H. Morris, who was editor and owner of the paper for eight years. The present editor and owner purchased the paper from Mr. Morris in 1907, and for the past 42 years we have tried to give the people of this section a newspaper that could go into the homes of all the people, and contain news and features that would appeal to the entire family.

Our sincere thanks is extended to all our advertisers, subscribers and correspondents who have given us their support and assistance for the past 42 years.

We have stood for what we thought was right and used our time and means for better roads, better schools, better farms and good citizenship. We have made many mistakes in all these years, but have carried on to the best of our ability. It has been our aim at all times to serve all the people of this section to the best of our ability. We shall continue to fight for the principles we believe to be for the best interests of our town and county. Your continued support will be greatly appreciated.

Let Soldiers Off For Encampment

Major Wm. M. Long, commander of Medical Co., 120th Inf. unit of the N. C. National Guard, appealed today to employers to release their men who are members of the company for period of National Guard encampment to be held at Ft. Jackson, S. C., during the period of Aug. 14-28th.

Major Long cited the following item from the current issue of the National Guardsman:

"Just about the time this issue of National Guardsman reaches you, some thousands of your fellow-citizens will have begun a sudden transformation. They will have abandoned their daily routine in preparation for the National Guard's annual field training period. That two weeks is the climax of a whole year of two hour, once-a-week drills at home. It is only in the field training that they can run through their various plays and learn to function and to fight, if it ever becomes necessary again."

It will mean that much more of contribution to the safety of your home, your family, your business, and your country.

The local unit is composed of 100 enlisted men and officers.

Against Alcohol Schools Will Open Sept. 1st

Dear Editor:—I was asked to make a statement, giving reasons why I am against beverage alcohol. There are many reasons, but I venture three.

I am against legalized beverage alcohol because it is morally wrong for our government to be in this kind of business. It is ethically wrong for our government to make liquor, give it the protection of our laws, put in places of respectability on our street corners, and entice our citizens to drink. "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, that putteth thy bottle to him, and makest him drunk also that thou mayest look on their nakedness." Hab. 2:15. Our national government should outlaw the liquor business, and prosecute the violators thereof.

I am against legalized beverage alcohol because it is economically unsound. No nation has ever been able to drink itself into prosperity, or to lower its taxes by the sale thereof or to build better schools by the revenue therefrom, or even to reduce the amount of bootlegging by the so-called control thereof. "That which is morally wrong cannot be economically sound." "Woe unto him that buildeth a town with blood, and establisheth a city by iniquity."

I am against beverage alcohol because the use of it is destructive to human character. We are in the business of trying to get our sons and daughters, our citizens of Davie County to build strong Christian characters. Beverage alcohol is one of our strongest enemies in this program. It destroys brain cells, debilitates the will, enslaves the body, wrecks manhood, and brings grievous conditions in the home life of our people.

Therefore, I shall wield my influence, my prayers, my work, my my vote against the sale of legalized beverage alcohol in Davie County, in the state and the nation whenever the opportunity is mine.

Improved Phone Service

The Central Telephone Co., of Mt. Airy, who own and operate the Mocksville telephone system, has furnished us the following facts as to the many improvements made in this county since they have owned and operated this system. The report follows:

This is a common battery exchange, now being served by a two-position Kellogg non-multiple common battery switchboard, equipped with 360 lines.

Since December 31, 1945, the original one position common battery switchboard has been replaced by a modern two position common battery switchboard. 160 lines have been added, an increase of 80 per cent in switchboard lines and 100 per cent in switchboard positions. Automatic ringing has been installed, charging equipment and batteries replaced, and a wire chief's cabinet installed. Toll circuits were increased to six—a gain of 100%.

Service was made available to 280 additional stations, an increase of 78 per cent. Rural stations increased 57.6 per cent.

A service man is now stationed in Mocksville. Prior to this period all repair service was obtained from Elkin, a distance of 40 miles.

Two rural lines were strung to Advance, a distance of some 12 miles, and new pole lines constructed in the Advance community. Three miles of new rural lines were constructed on the Elk-in road.

A new cable was placed in the business district, giving much needed relief.

Net additions of $47.85 for rights-of-way; $3,097.00 for central office equipment; $16,582.00 for station apparatus, etc.; $5,207.00 for pole, cable and wire line; $1,897 under construction; $1,542 for transportation equipment, furniture, etc., making total net for 1946, 1947 and 1948, $23,374.35.

Several Mocksville Merchants attended the Southern Furniture Exposition, which is being held at High Point last and this week.

Against Alcohol Schools Will Open Sept. 1st

The Davie County Board of Education has set Sept. 1st as opening date for all the schools in the county, according to Superintendent Curtis Price. This is the approximate date schools opened last year. There will be two days for Thanksgiving, and Christmas holidays will begin approximately December 21st.

Mr. Price states that Davie gained three white elementary teachers and one colored elementary teacher based on last year's average daily attendance.

This year the Agricultural Department at Shady Grove will open for the first time since before the war. Mr. J. Charles Barber, of Barber, N. C., has been employed as agricultural teacher at Shady Grove, and started his work July 7th. Agriculture teachers are paid one-third by the Federal government, one-third by the State, and one-third by the county.

The County Board of Education has approved opening the Shady Grove Home Economics Department this year. Mr. Price states that Miss Julia Ann Speas has been elected to fill this position which runs for nine months. Salary is paid wholly from county funds.

Miss Catherine Dennis informed the Superintendent Monday that Mocksville High School is now being placed on the Vocational list for 1949-1950 term.

The Board of Education has been conscious of the need for vocational training in the schools, and has taken steps to provide vocational departments in each high school.

Mr. Price states that three vocational agriculture departments have been reopened during the past few years and one new home economic department added. It is true that additional expense is incurred by these additions, but at the same time needed services to the children of the county is being provided. Every high school now has the vocational courses added to its course of study. It is a step toward better high schools in Davie County.

E. S. Lapish

Economy Talked

PRESIDENT TRUMAN discussed plans for fortifying the nation's economy against depression in a recent off-the-record talk with six Democratic senators and congressmen.

Only a meager announcement leaked out to the press, but here are the highlights of what happened. A program of "economic expansion" was proposed that may affect the future of every American.

President Truman greeted the congressional group by saying: "I think I am way ahead of you on this."

Then he pulled several charts out of his top, right-hand drawer showing the latest national statistics on prices, wages, profits and production up to the end of May.

He admitted that the first symptoms of depression are beginning to show and agreed that the best plan is to attack any "mild break" in the economy to stop it from spreading. He stressed, however, that he is not worried about depression—as long as each problem is met before it grows into a crisis.

Factory Loans

The legislators who called on the President were Senators James Murray of Montana, Elbert Thomas of Utah, John Sparkman of Alabama, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Congressman Andy Biemer of Wisconsin and Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas of California—all Democrats.

At the top of the five-point "economic expansion" program they urged on Truman was promotion of private investment and production by offering FHA-type loans to build plants. Private enterprise, they agreed, is the key to a healthy economy. The legislators also recommended:

1. A national advisory board, combining the business, labor, agriculture and consumer committees that now exist separately;
2. Measures to deal directly with serious unemployment wherever and whenever it develops;
3. Long-range planning for public works and resource development;
4. Voluntary adjustments in purchasing power.

Truman said he couldn't endorse the program without studying the details, but remarked: "You are my kind of folks."

Their kind of thinking, he added, had always coincided with his own. It had been his belief and policy to ease off inflation controls gradually and give the economy a chance to adjust itself. But the G.O.P.-controlled 80th congress scrapped all controls at once, let prices and profits soar unchecked; then, as a last straw, passed a "rich man's" tax bill.

"That was no time for a rich man's tax bill—when profits were at their highest," Truman shook his head.

The inevitable result was "economic dislocation," the President declared. From such dizzy heights, it would only be natural for prices, profits, wages and production to come crashing down. Therefore, he said, the government must throw roadblocks in the way to prevent stampeding the economy into depression. If the public doesn't get panicky, Truman added, there is no danger of depression.

Dixiecrat Postmasters

South Carolina's wily Sen. Olin Johnston reversed the tables on President Truman the other day and applied some sly counter-pressure to get postmasters appointed in his state.

It is no secret that the President has been holding up appointments to punish southern senators and congressmen who have opposed his program. But what the White House didn't take into account is that Johnston happens to be chairman of the senate post office committee which must pass on all postmaster appointments.

So the South Carolinian sidled up to Sen. Howard McGrath, Democratic national chairman, and later to Senate Secretary Les Biffle, the President's close friend. Drawing sweetly, Johnston let it be known that he was disturbed over not getting postmasters for South Carolina, and hinted that maybe he would just block all appointments until those for his own state came through.

Johnston allowed time for his remarks to pass on to the White House, then called for an appointment. When he was ushered into the President's office, he talked about other matters. Then he mentioned casually: "I notice a lot of postmasters have been appointed lately, but my state hasn't gotten any."

Wouldn't the President, please, he asked, look into the matter? Scratching a note on his pad, Truman replied: "Yes, we'll attend to that right away."

Freeze Foods for Future Use
(See Recipes Below)

Freeze your Foods

ROAST TURKEY in mid-summer, broiled chicken in January and strawberry shortcake in December, these are some of the items which are a real possibility on menus if you have facilities for freezing your food. This may be a freezer right in your own home, or it might be space rented at one of the large lockers that are now available in so many localities.

Foods know no season when it's possible to freeze them, and, this, of course, is one of the best ways to avoid meal monotony. You simply freeze the food when it's at the peak of the season, then eat it when you want it.

Freezing food is one of the simplest of preserving methods since foods require only a minimum of preparation, and they retain their freshness until thawed and prepared.

How to Prepare Meat For Freezer

IT'S a simple job to freeze meat for future meals and you need follow only a few simple rules to do it successfully.

When choosing animals for freezing, select those healthy ones of size and weight which will produce the quality of cuts preferred by the family. Excessive fat is unnecessary, but an ample covering of fat protects the lean from drying out during the frozen storage. This latter does not apply to veal since that meat has little fat.

These rules apply whether you purchase meats from a market or produce house. Ask for quality cuts from prime cattle, and mention that you intend freezing them and the butcher may be more careful in his selection.

Once the carcass is prepared, chill the meat immediately as bacteria grow rapidly at the high temperatures. Molds, bacteria and yeast may ruin the flavor of the meat unless it is chilled at once.

Meat cutting is no job for a novice and should be done by the butcher or an expert meat cutter at a locker plant. You, however, should specify cuts you want, if you've purchased a carcass or part of one. It's a good idea to have the meat cut in family size portions to eliminate waste, since the meat cannot, or should not be frozen once it has been thawed.

It's popular, too, to have meat boned since it requires less freezing space, and since the bones cannot puncture wrapping paper once they're eliminated.

Proper Wrapping Saves Quality

IT'S UNWISE to economize on wrapping paper for frozen foods since the meat may dry out and "freezer burns" often result. Regular butcher paper, ordinary waxed paper or grocery store type paper are not used. Moisture and vapor-proof paper bags or cartons made especially for this purpose are best. They should be easy to fold, wrap or handle, tough enough to resist tearing, and capable of receiving an ink or china pencil mark for labeling.

LYNN SAYS: Use These Freezing Tips to Help You

Varieties are of great importance in the successful freezing of fruits. Apples for sauce, for example, should be Baldwins, Greenings, Northern Spy or Yellow Transparent types.

Study the freezing space which will be available to you, and plan how much of each fruit, vegetable, meat or poultry you will have. Don't overstock one item so that you can't freeze something you want.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

Chicken Shortcake with Gravy
Buttered Lima Beans
Carrot Sticks Beverage Cookies
Peach Salad in Cherry Gelatin
Peppermint Ice Cream.

Each bundle of meat in the freezer should contain enough meat for your family for a meal. Wax-ed or waterproofed paper may be used between each hamburger, steak or chop since this makes them easy to separate and hastens thawing once they come out for use. Or, in this case, you may readily remove two or three chops without thawing the whole package.

Pull the proper wrapping tightly around the meat to smooth out all possible air and eliminate air pockets. The package should be smooth and firmly packed to conserve storage space.

Seal the paper with a "drugstore fold" which means bringing one edge over the other and folding it over the shorter sheet. Now twist or fold the ends and seal with acetate (scotch) tape. This tape is not affected by moisture or cold.

Label all packages so you can easily identify them when you want them. The label should contain the type of meat enclosed, the number of servings or the weight in pounds, and the date on which it was wrapped for freezing.

As soon as the meat is wrapped and labeled, place in the freezer. If you do not have a freezer at home, store the packages in the refrigerator until you can take them to the locker, but this should not be more than a few hours.

Frozen Poultry Keeps Well
Frozen poultry is one food which keeps well in its frozen state, and requires even less attention than freezing meat since you yourself can prepare it for freezing with no special tools. Clean the bird and dis-joint it, and in place of cooking it, wrap it for freezing to be cooked several months later.

Birds are killed, bled, plucked, chilled and dressed before they can be packaged. If you desire, it's a great convenience to stuff the poultry and freeze it in that state, so the poultry is ready to pop in the oven for Christmas or Thanksgiving dinner. Do not use sage in the dressing if you expect to keep the bird more than three months since the flavor permeates the meat.

Here's a guide for chicken to be frozen: broilers should not weigh over two and a half pounds dressed, or be over 12 weeks old; frying chickens should weigh from three to three and a half pounds and be 20 weeks old.

Fowl for fricassee may weigh from four to six pounds and can be from one to two years old. A roasting chicken should weigh four to five pounds, but is best if not more than a year old. Capons should weigh from 7 to 10 pounds but should not be over 8 to 10 months old.

Fruit juices for breakfast or beverages are easily frozen. Select good juices from well-matured fruits and chill thoroughly. Extract the juice and pour into paraffin coated tubs or cylinders. Freeze immediately.

Water used for washing fruit, berries and vegetables should have ice in it unless the temperature is lower than 65°.

Speed the harvest to the freezer just as you speed food to the can for canning to prevent food value loss and deterioration.

God Can Be Trusted

Lesson for July 31, 1949

EVEN if you do nothing else with this lesson, it will be a good thing to learn by heart some of the Psalms of Trust which have been selected for your study this week. They are far too rich to be treated in one column.

Who Can Trust in God?
(PSALM 34:16-22.) Not every one has a right to trust in God. Those who do not believe in him, do not love him, work against him, try to break down and corrupt those who do believe in him—these need expect nothing at his hand. But there are three classes of persons who are encouraged to put their trust in God. One is the "contrite," the repentant, those who sincerely wish to be cut free from their sins—these can surely trust in God for forgiveness. One who cannot trust God for forgiveness has no right to trust him for anything else. Then the "righteous," as the Psalmist calls them, have a right to trust in God.

If that word means only the perfectly and altogether good people, it would leave all of us out. But in the light of the Bible as a whole, the righteous are those whose dominant desire is to love and serve God.

Their service is imperfect, their love is far from perfect, and no man is without sin. But if you can say with Peter, "Lord, thou knowest that I love thee," then you have a right to trust in God. Also the broken-hearted can safely trust in him. Whoever else may break your heart, God will not. He is the great Mender of hearts. For the little sorrows there may be lesser comforts; but the real heart-breaks only God can cure.

Why Trust God?
PSALM 37 gives an answer: The opposite of trust is worry, and worry never did any good at all. Worry eats into the mind, casts no light, gives no strength, solves no problems, worry makes any trouble worse. Then the writer of Psalm 30 gives another reason for trust: he had tried it. If trust in God were simply a doctrine of theology or a theory of preachers, not many people would take it seriously.

Trust is really passed on by a kind of contagion from heart to heart. If there are not more people who know what trust means, it is because those who have known have kept it too much to themselves.

It would be a wonderful stimulus to most churches to have a little "cell" of people who would really agree to trust God every day.

When to Trust in God
One of Dickens' famous characters used to make a great point of being cheerful under the most uncheerful circumstances. Anybody can be jolly when everything is lovely, he said. There's no credit in not worrying when there's nothing to worry about. Although the writers of the Bible, one and all, trusted in God, not one had an easy life. Read Psalm 46, for example; it gives a picture of a world much like ours of today, shaken to its foundations, torn by wars, a desolate, discouraged world. If it made sense to trust only under bright skies, religion would have perished long ago.

For What Shall We Trust God?
NO ONE PSALM puts the whole truth in one nutshell. If you read Psalm 91, for example, by itself, it would seem to prove that if you trust in God you will never die a violent death, nor an early one; but too many saints (and indeed our Lord himself) had died early and violent deaths, for us to take Psalm 91 in that way. Trusting in God does not mean he will give us long life. It means he will give us strength to match our days.

It does mean he will give us all we need. It does not mean we shall be shielded from troubles. It does mean he will save us from troubles greater than we can bear. It does not mean that in this life we shall be wholly free from burdens or from pain; it does mean we shall have strength in our souls (Ps. 138:3).

Which is the greater thing—to be a weakling wearied by a straw's weight, or to be one of God's athletes, able to bear the worst the world can pile on?

Britain Charges Belgians With Eating Work Horses

LONDON.—Despite Belgian importers' guarantees, the 2,000 British horses shipped there annually practically all are slaughtered for food, instead of being worked as agreed, Arthur W. Moss, of the Royal Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, charged.

"The meat is processed and mostly sold in the form of Antwerp sausages," he said, after returning from Belgium.

"Immediately the horses on my ship were disembarked, they were branded on the neck with a hot iron and a hole was punched in the right ear to insert a number peg. The following day they were slaughtered."

Tin In Short Supply

The world shortage of tin is so critical that it would continue for at least another year even without the stockpiling programs now in operation in the United States and abroad, Walton S. Smith, vice-president of the Metal & Thermit Corporation, New York, declared at the 115th national meeting of the American Chemical society. World production of tin is expected to reach 170,000 tons this year and 190,000 tons in 1950, while world demand is estimated at 190,000 tons, he said.

Cut Farm Costs

Cost-cutting machinery produced by American factories since the war is helping farmers keep costs down this spring. Combines, post-hole diggers, hydraulic scoops, milking machines, special harvesters, and many electrical machines are reducing the need for high-priced help. One Kansas farmer harvests and chops green sorgo with a machine that cost $2,000 but saves hiring five men at $8 each per day. Another reclaimed six acres of swamp land, worth $200 an acre, with a digger that cost $475.

Farmer Invents Rock Picker

Anton J. Jochim, an ambitious young farmer of Inverness, Mont., has invented a rock picker which he claims will handle anything from mere pebbles to boulders weighing 300 pounds, according to National Patent council. The machine is 122 by 9 ft. and weighs 2,200 pounds. Bed and dump box are mounted on two sets of dual wheels in the rear and a single wheel in front. Hitched to a tractor, the picker covers an eight-foot swath with tines four feet long.

Uncle Sam Says

July 4 is the day when we as a nation celebrate Independence. Though the going, at times, has been rough we have persisted in upholding the ideals of freedom and security. And you can maintain individual independence, the freedom from financial worry, if you are investing regularly in U. S. Savings Bonds. With half of 1949 already gone how much money have you saved away? There is but one way for you to celebrate future independence—and that is by saving your money today. In ten short years you will receive $4 for every $3 you put into them.

U. S. Treasury Department

Ouch!

Ben—Gladys is a wonder. She actually talks with her eyes.
Jim—Yes, and I suppose that when she feels like using strong language she just gives a cursory glance.

Uncle Sam Says

The original 49'er risked life itself in the trek to California seeking opportunity and security. Today, Americans can provide for a secure future during the U. S. Savings Bonds Opportunity Drive now in progress. Instead of having to use a covered wagon, an original of which you will see in principal American cities during the drive, your opportunity will be found right at home.

Damp-Proofing

The outside of basement walls should be covered from footing to grade with an acceptable damp-proofing. FHA, for example, requires that masonry unit walls be damp-proofed by the application of a one-half inch thick coat of Portland cement plaster, over which shall be applied at least one heavy coat of undiluted hot tar, asphalt or other acceptable type of compound. The damp-proofing should be carried down in a curved "cove" over the top of the footing.

FINE WATCH REPAIRING

Watchmakers must keep abreast with all new developments in the field of Horology. Sylvester Says:

"100 years is a long time to wait for a house, but by building 500,000 public housing units per year it would take the government 100 years to place every 'low-income' American family in government public housing."

The average earnings of families now living in public "subsidized" housing is $2,200. There are approximately 20 million American families with incomes no higher than that.

On the basis of $2,200 a year income, more than half the families in the U. S. qualify for a home in a government housing unit.

But most American families haven't learned how helpless they are, for, according to U. S. Census figures, over one-half of our families with incomes below $1,000 per year already own their own homes.

Diesel Replaces 'Iron Horse'

Approximately one-fifth of the total weight of a modern diesel electric locomotive consists of copper and copper-base alloys. This figure is many times the amount of copper and its alloys contained in a steam locomotive—the romantic "iron horse" that has served the nation's railroads faithfully for over a century, ever since the Tom Thumb, built by Peter Cooper in 1829, was given a trial run in September of that year. Finally the "iron horse" is being turned out to green pastures as most of the major railroads of the country turn to diesel electric locomotives for freight and passenger service.
