Garrett and family went to Yadkin College, Sunday, to visit Mr. Garrett's mother, and when reaching there found that the cyclone which did so much damage Friday had struck the home of his sister, Mrs. G. M. Isley, 8 miles east of Graham, Alamance county. Mr. Garrett and family with Mr. Vance Garrett and mother, hastily motored to the scene. They report that the large, new barn of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Isley was completely destroyed. One section of the barn roof about 10 feet square containing roofing, sheeting, and rafters, was found in front of the house about 500 yards from the barn, this being about the largest piece of the barn that was found. It was thought that this passed over the house, struck a chimney and knocked a few bricks off. There were two horses and a number of cows in and around the barn. The horses were caught under the wreck and were gotten out apparently unhurt. One cow was found dead, one unable to get up and another missing, all of the others escaped without being injured. His old leg, barn was left partly standing and not a building on the place was left undamaged. The dwelling house received the least damage. The cyclone blew up and rang off a number of large oak limbs, leaving not a tree unharmed. Some of the out buildings were swept away and have not yet been found. Mr. Garrett also reports that the cyclone struck and destroyed the home of Mr. George Vestal, one of his old friends. Mr. Vestal's wife, daughter, and son-in-law were in the house and all were very painfully hurt. One man told Mr. Garrett that he found a piece of ceiling from Mr. Vestal's house which was 1-2 mile away.

STATE POORS LARGEST SUM INTO UNITED STATES OFFERS, WASHINGTON JOURNAL REPORTS

Washington, Nov. 25.—Labor, a paper issued here, says: "Which of the 48 states contributes the largest sum to Uncle Sam's revenue? New York? Pennsylvania? Illinois? Wrong. "North Carolina! You would never have guessed the old Tar Heel state, would you?" "Yet last year it turned over to the treasury $174,725,696--ten millions more than New York and almost three times as much as Pennsylvania."

"Of this amount $149,637,306 came from the tax on cigarettes and almost every man and woman in the United States who smoked a coffin nail helped reimburse North Carolina. The tax was passed along to the ultimate consumer. North Carolina just collected the money for Uncle Sam."

"These taxes which can be passed on to some one else are the last to reduce. They enable the state to reduce the tax on the state of the Mellon type to 'pluck the goose without making it squawk.'"

"The ordinary cigarette smoker never stops to figure the extent to which he is 'plucked.' The young man across the desk says he gets rid of a package of 20 every day. The tax is six cents a package and there are 966 days in the year."

"Evidently the young man is 'plucked' annually for $21.96. That's more than his income tax and it's very much more than a married man with a $10,000 income would profit from Mr. Coolidge's proposed refund."

"The young man complains that there is nothing on his package of 20 'wills' to indicate that he is paying a tax. Mr. Coolidge and his associates are too sneered for that."

"If the ultimate consumers knew the extent to which they are being reduced, they enable statesmen torian 'squawks' that Congress would be forced to abandon all thoughts of slashing the taxes on wealth, and that might seriously interfere with the collection of campaign funds."

North Carolina is not first in all taxes. It is fifth. It pays more miscellaneous taxes than any other state.

The tax bill of the state is receiving much attention here by newspaper men. North Carolina is being widely advertised.

H. L. Menden says he has never advocated polygamy, that he does not favor it, and further, that "no sane man wants two girls, anyhow." So for once, if never again, Menden's sentiments are with the average.

And they have captured King Ben of the "House of David." Now, then, with that gentleman to be tried as a deceiver of young women, with the famous Hall-Mills trial, along with Amie, there should be no lack of scold for the newspaper readers to ponder over during the days and weeks to come.

When President Calles of Mexico put the screws down on the Catholics a few weeks ago, this paper predicted that he would either recant, or be succeeded by another president. It looks like our prophecy is coming true. According to a news dispatch of November 18th, there are now 20,000 men under arms in revolt against the Calles government.

The cool people always manage to bring about a strike somewhere just in time to keep the price of coal up. When sugar begins to take a tumble downward some kind of report is started, like the shortage of the sugar crop in Cuba, and the price again soars. But the poor cotton farmer, he has no way of boosting his cotton and the price runs just to suit a few speculators and grafters.

The town of Shelby claims that it is operating its high school at the lowest cost per pupil of any high school in the entire state. The average in the North Carolina high schools is 34.3 cents per pupil per day. The Shelby High school runs at a daily cost per pupil of 18.6 cents, just a little more than one half the cost in the state as a whole. It would seem that some of our high school officials should look into the Shelby method, for that might mean thousands of dollars in reduction of cost. If Shelby can do it, why can't North Carolina towns can.

STORY OF GIRL WHO JILTED GEORGE WASHINGTON

In his famous "History of Old Churches in Virginia," Bishop Meade prints an excerpt from an old document concerning an early love affair of George Washington, as follows:

"The eldest sister of Miss Mary Cary, had married George William Fairfax, at whose house she was on a visit, when she captivated a young man who paid her his address. His affection, however, was not returned, and the offer of his hand was rejected by Miss Cary. This young man was afterwards known to the whole world as George Washington, the first President of the United States of America."

Young Washington asked permission of old Mr. Cary to address his daughter before he ventured to speak to her himself. The reply of the old gentleman was, "If it is your business here, sir, I wish you to leave the house, for my daughter has been accustomed to add in her own coach."

It has subsequently been said that this answer of Mr. Cary to the strapping Washington, presaged the independence of the United States, and the foundation of the future fame of the first brave and best of men—our immortal Washington; as it was more probable that, had it obtained

STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER

Winston-Salem Journal:

Under the personal supervision of Mrs. Queen Bess Kennen, of Mocksville, the welfare work in Davie County has grown and developed into one of the most outstanding in North Carolina. Its development has been nothing short of remarkable.

Davie, one of the most progressive little counties in the State, began welfare work in 1919, first on a six months basis. W. M. Seaford was the first Superintendent of Welfare, holding the office for three years, giving it up in 1922 and from that time until July, 1925, the work was in the hands of the Superintendent of Education, Mrs. Queen Bess Kennen, who was chosen to take over the work in July, 1925, and she made the work an all-year around proposition.

Under the most zealous efforts of Mrs. Kennen, welfare work has become a vital part of county government in Davie. School attendance has been increased, neglected and dependent children given needed attention and the poor and infirmed are being better cared for. She has also directed special aid for tubercular patients and cripples. This work has reached into every section of the county and her tireless service has been extended to all without partiality.

At the county fair this past fall Mrs. Kennen sponsored a full day program of athletic activities and contests between the consolidated schools of her county and has raised several hundred dollars for school ground improvement throughout the county and has assisted in organizing Farm Women's Clubs and Parent Teacher's Associations along with her many other phases of welfare work.

One of the best rural county councils and associated charities organizations in the State exists in Davie County as a part of the Welfare work and is being worked out on a county wide plan. Mrs. Kennen will present this phase of her work at the coming North-western Welfare Association meeting.

Mrs. Kennen is one of the ardent promoters of the above named division of the welfare work and is Secretary of the association.

FINE WORK IN DAVIE COUNTY

What she really wants is a plain white dress, a new fur coat, a diamond ring, a new sedan, a checking account, her VERY own, a lovely new hat, or, maybe a baby grand piano. For a certainty—it's a little bit more than anything you have thought you could afford.

You know your wife don't you? You know of the unguarded wishes which are occasionally expressed—"wishes for the moon" you term them. But they are not, they are cravings of her very heart and if you would bring real joy and happiness to her on Christmas morning—you'll shut your eyes to "your common sense" and you will walk out and buy her just one article that is beyond the wildest hope of her.

Therein also is the "key" to all your shopping. You give gifts to those you love. Love calls for sacrifice and he is happiest who knows that the gift which thrills is the gift that is just a little grander and a little more personal than was ever expected.

All things are relative. This man who goes a little beyond, seemingly has plenty with which to afford such shopping. But when truth is known it is just as difficult for him as that man who obviously has a more strict limitation.

The point is—no man will or can overstep his position in life. The joy it will bring to woman's heart will never be known when man does his Christmas shopping as suggested above.

American markets are without doubt the greatest in the world. Prices are not high. We find in our stores the best merchandise to be had in the world. What was a luxury a few years ago may now be almost a necessity, due to great production development, advertising—and a higher—much higher standard of living.

Woman's mind has mostly bought this about. She it was who first learned of these new and better things—she it was who desired them—she it is who usually is first to have the vision and the courage to bring them into her home.

So Mister Man, loosen the strings on your purse just a wee tiny bit. Cock the old trigger on your hand and go out this week and select some real Christmas presents for your loved ones.

I hope—well I hope that IIE reads this article.

Won't I shout "Merry Christmas"—and mean it?

HOW TO GET MORE MILES OUT OF THE GAS YOU USE

Driving a car with leaky valves is a losing proposition. It burns oil, wastes gas at every stroke of the pistons. You don't get the power you should have and you don't get the mileage there is in your gasoline—it is wasted. It is like pouring water into a gopher hole.

We are valve doctors—valve specialists. We cure them. We have installed the best method ever devised for the treatment of warped or burned valves and valve seats—the KWIK-WAY SYSTEM—and it sure does the work. Valves treated by this system retain compression, save gas, save oil, give you more power, more mileage—and 100 per cent more pleasure in driving, and the cost is so reasonable that the gas you save will soon pay for the job. And that's a fact, too. Drive in—let's talk valves.

NO SLACKER, OTTO: HE PROMISED TO PILFER KAISER'S CAR FOR UNCLE SAM

Winston-Salem, Nov. 27.—Here's another Otto Wood story that might as well be repeated, inasmuch as he went to the trouble of writing this book of stories about himself. This one is said to be the real truth.

According to the man who recited the story, Wood attempted to enlist in the army during the war, but instead of going to a recruiting station, he applied directly to Secretary of War Newton D. Baker. At the time, Wood was a fugitive from justice on about six federal warrants charging him with transporting stolen cars across the state line.

Wood made his way from his hiding place to the mother's home and there intimated a letter to Secretary Baker. He told the department head that he was a fugitive, and that he owed considerable "time" to the government because of his misdoings. He also said that he had an armed arm, and therefore could not promise satisfactory service should he be placed in the infantry or some other branch requiring specified duties.

This is the outstanding part of the letter: Wood wrote the secretary that if he (Wood) were sent to France to join the expedition, that it is a task for mankind to comprehend how to really promise to bring back the Kaiser, but he would certainly get the finest limousine the German ruler had in the royal garage.

It is not related that Wood ever expected to receive a reply to his unusual offer.

GREENSBORO MAN SAYS HE TALKED WITH OTTO WOOD

Greensboro, Nov. 30.—A. A. Tilley, 1220 Holbrook Street, former owner of E. T. Ahman, supervisor of the city's construction forces, is authority for the statement that on Friday morning, around daybreak, Otto Wood and a companion in a Ford coupe, were driving out of the city along West Lee Street, when Wood caught sight of Mr. Tilley and had the machine halted after repeated tootings of the horn.

When the machine came to a halt Otto leaned out of it and engaged Mr. Tilley in conversation. There was mutual recognition between the two and that is not strange since Mr. Tilley states he and Wood were raised near each other in Wilkes county and have known each other ever since. The Greensboro man talked with Wood for a few minutes, Otto asked him, it is said, whether he would have to drive around by Guilford College to get on the Charlotte road. Wood, he said, told him that he would, Wood remarked he was not pleased since the folks out in that section didn't seem to like him. After a few minutes' the coupe moved on.

How the agonizing pain of an acute attack of rheumatism was eased, and recovery hastened is told in a letter from John Smith of Shock, Ky.

And it is amazing—the quick, genuine comfort that Sloan's gives. It doesn't just deaden the pain. It acts up the body to throw off the cause. No need to rub even. A little Sloan's rubbed on lightly—and the healing of fresh, germ-destroying blood begins tingling through the aching places. Before you can believe it the pain, swelling and stiffness are relieved. Sloan's Liniment KILLS PAIN was held at Eaton's Church last Sunday morning, with a strong sermon by pastor Cashwell, and a collection for the Thomasville Orphanage. The same subject was used for the prayer meeting service on Sunday night.

Miss Mossa Eaton who holds a position in the State Library at Raleigh spent the Thanksgiving service here with her mother and sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Wade Fulton, of Winston-Salem, were guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hutchens through the week end.

Master Thomas Minor visited friends at Mocksville last Friday and Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jones and children, of Mocksville, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Jarvis and children, of Farmington, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. G. Leagans.

Corn shuckings and "big feasts" are all the go now. There is one for every day this week.

NEW MOVIE HOUSE

Mocksville and Davie is now assured of a real Theatre building, which will be located on west side of North Main Street, between W. L. Call and the Anderson building which is an ideal site for a business house.

Mr. C. B. Mooney, one of North Carolina's best known contractors has this contract, and with his wide experience in building many school buildings, churches, etc., we know in advance that our play house will be properly constructed for the safety of patrons. The grading and basement is being dug this week and laying of brick will probably also be started this week. Several cars of material have arrived and with fair weather the building will be ready for occupancy early in the new year.

Our townsman, Mr. J. A. Daniel, owner, states that he expects to put in quite a lot of new equipment which he'll tell us about later.

COMpletely CRIPPLED THIRTY-FIVE DAYS

Tried simple home treatment—now walks easily without cane.

How the agonizing pain of an acute attack of rheumatism was eased, and recovery hastened is told in a letter from John Smith of Shock, Ky.

"I was taken with a pain in my left leg, and for thirty-five days I could not sit up," he writes. "I got no better until I began using Sloan's Liniment. Before I had used one bottle I could sit up, and now I can walk without a cane."

And it is amazing—the quick, genuine comfort that Sloan's gives. It doesn't just deaden the pain. It acts up the body to throw off the cause. No need to rub even. A little Sloan's rubbed on lightly—and the healing of fresh, germ-destroying blood begins tingling through the aching places. Before you can believe it the pain, swelling and stiffness are relieved. JUST FOLKS

By Edgar A. Guest in Charlotte Observer

So young, so beautiful, so fair
Upon the cross He died
Age had not silvered white His hair
When Christ was crucified.

So young to die He seemed, and yet
Were longer life allowed
Who knows what snares His feet
Had met,
What mockings from the crowd?

Had age made pitiful His eye
And withered Him with strife
He might have left, as you and I
Little to mark His life.

God called Him when His work was done
From all that lifemay hold,
Knowing the dangers they must run
Who silver and grow old.

STATE COTTON MILLS, SECOND

Raleigh, Nov. 25.—There were 6,094,088 cotton spindles in place in North Carolina on October 31, 5,849,958 of which were in actual operation at some time during the month, according to figures just released by the United States Department of Commerce. The active spindle in place, was 307. North Carolina was second only to one state in the union, Massachusetts, in point of spindles in place and active spindleage.

South Carolina achieved a higher rating of efficiency in its spinning operations for the month than any other state in the union, which an average active spinning hour mark of 317.

ADVERTISING THE STATE

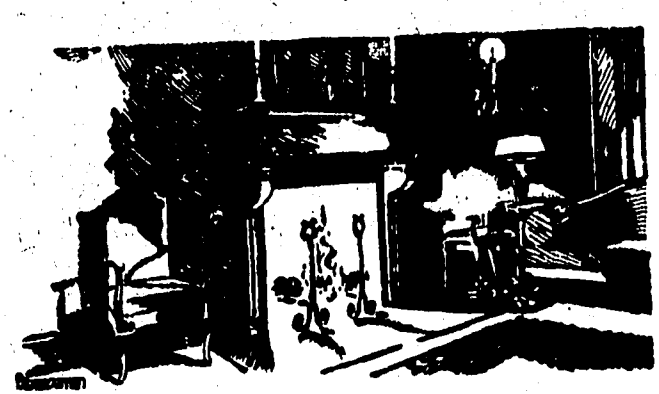

The gathering of more than one hundred representative men from various parts of the State in the House of Representatives, in Raleigh, Monday, developed strong evidence of the sentiment for a publicity campaign for North Carolina opportunities, resources and attractions. The meeting spent much time in weaving out a workable plan and made considerable advance in that direction. The general idea was of popular endorsement and the machinery was started out of which may evolve a practical organization to handle advertising funds and properly expend the money. The cities and towns are to contribute their part to the general fund. There is yet much detail to be worked out, but there is prospect that in the course of a few months, the people outside the State and the world at large will be hearing from the Old North State.—Charlotte Observer.

Mockville, N. C., Dec. 9, 1926

A New York man buys the crown worn by the former rulers of Russia and pays a fabulous sum of money for it. The crown was worn, it is said, by Katherine The Great, also, but why should a New Yorker want it had enough to put out such a sum of money? It goes to show that while we boast of our democratic sentiments, we are at heart still worshippers of royalty.

That the milk campaign which has been on in this state for over a year is having a most excellent effect on the public health, there is no question. Many who have followed the "drink more milk" have found it more effective in promoting health than all the medicine in the country. Milk is man's most perfect diet, and, fortunately for the world, it is easily digested and assimilated. Let the campaign continue, and let more people "drink more milk," and we shall see better health.

And speaking of diets good for the health, and this being the turnip green season, let us take this opportunity to recommend most highly that humble but healthful dish. As we have heretofore said, there is more real medicine in a few square feet of turnip greens than in a whole drug store. Turnip greens, if properly cooked and eaten with discretion, will cure almost any disease to which mankind is heir. It is the belief of many people, among one of the which, is us.

There is a lot of pure devil being pulled off concerning the type and kind of young life we have in our homes, schools and churches today, to the discredit of our boys and girls, declared Dr. J. H. Sanders, president of the Western North Carolina Methodist Episcopal Conference, speaking at a fathers and sons banquet held in Winston-Salem last Tuesday night. The good doctor then paid a high tribute to the young generation with this statement:

"My own personal opinion is that this is the best generation God ever had, or we ever had, with which to do business. A lot of them are not what they ought to be, but what about their dads? I think some of us have already forgotten more devilment than our young people today know; or may be the pity is that we haven't forgotten it."

Now was he not hitting pretty close to the truth?

Judge A. M. Stack comes out openly for Al Smith for President. He does not believe that his wet proclivities, nor his Catholic faith would have anything to do with his faithful and able administration of the duties of the office. Neither does he believe that Smith's candidacy would disrupt the solid democratic South.

The Judge may be right, but, somehow we doubt whether or not the rather intolerant Protestant South would be willing to cast its vote for a Catholic, even though he may have the endorsement of its party in the nation. Then, too, Smith's stand on the whiskey question would possibly not take so well in the South where prohibition first had its birth in this country. That Smith is a very able man, that he is a popular man, in fact, that he is the one man who could be elected on the democratic ticket, provided he could command the vote of the solid South, there is hardly any question. Yet, the South support him wholeheartedly? And certainly without the solid South no democrat can expect to have a ghost of a chance to be elected president of the United States.

An organization of public spirited men, known as North Carolinians, Inc., is starting a movement looking to the advertising of this state's resources, climate, and should grasp the attention of all leading citizens of the state. Just now is a most opportune time for this state to get the ear of the outside world. The Florida boom has been smashed, and North Carolina is already commanding the attention of investors and prospective investors and home seekers, the country over. Just the other day we read in the papers or where another New England cotton manufacturing company had decided to move its plant to the South, and it is generally known that many of the cotton manufacturers of New England are considering moving South. Our new system of highways has put the country to talking North Carolina, and our progress along all other lines has been to our credit. So considering all these things, it is pretty safe to say that a dollar spent advertising North Carolina right now will possibly bring quicker and more profitable results than at any other time in our history as a state. Let the folks, therefore, stand by North Carolinians Incorporated.

The trial of case of R. C. Hendrix against the Southern Railway was begun in Superior court Monday and was given to the jury Wednesday morning. It has been a hard fought case. W. E. Brock and Jacob Stewart, Attys. for plaintiffs. Plaintiff is suing for $20,000 for personal injuries.

FARM FOREST IS LABOR SAVING CROP

Raleigh, Dec. 8.—Reducing labor costs increases profits in any business and most progressive business men are constantly on a search for labor-saving systems. Farmers do this by installing labor-saving machinery, but there is still another way which has been largely overlooked and this lies in giving more attention to labor-saving crops.

The farm forest is one of the great labor-saving crops for North Carolina farmers, says R. W. Graeber, extension forester. "This crop is within the reach of every farmer without a great outlay of money if he will only cooperate with Nature and follow the system which Nature so plainly suggests."

Mr. Graeber states that no special soil preparation such as plowing and harrowing is needed for a crop of pines, oaks or poplars. No seed is needed if a few seed trees are left in place. No fertilizer is needed because nature maintains the fertility of the forest soil through the machinery of leaves and twigs. All that is necessary is to keep out destructive forest fires. When the fires are kept out, a heavy blanket of leaf litter prevents weed growth and helps to hold a good supply of moisture. It is in the harvest alone with a timber crop that the labor man is required.

"Nature has provided fine conditions for tree growth in North Carolina," says Mr. Graeber. "Good soil, ample rainfall and a long growing season will permit any farm woodland to produce an annual growth of one-half to one cord of wood per acre, while many acres of pines are producing two cords and more an acre each year. Where a farmer does not cut more than the annual growth of his timber, a self-perpetuating, labor-saving crop is made an actual reality."

It is not necessary to spare the ax but it is necessary to use the ax that the best tree specimens have an opportunity to contribute their share to an unending crop, states Mr. Graeber.

According to Mr. Harrill, this rally was one of the best club meetings that has been held in North Carolina this year. The members were brought in from their schools by trucks and were entertained at a free motion picture show by local persons.

NEW YORK BANK TAKES $10,000,000 HIGHWAY SCHOOL BONDS AT 4.25

Other $10,000 on Short Term Note Also Goes to First National Bank—Governor McLean's Cleverness Saves the State Considerable Sum—The State Is Now Back in Its Old Time Form—Bonds Won't Be Peddled Around.

Raleigh, Dec. 2.—Without any competitor, the First National Bank of New York, which has today taken $10,000,000 of North Carolina highway and school bonds, then showed the other $10,000,000 across the counter on a short term note, the transaction carrying an option on the second millions at 4.25 even as the first.

Thus by waiting a day and declining to accept the bids of Wednesday, the state gained nearly $275,000, and if the First National exercises its option half a year later, the state will have profited $708,875 according to the statement of Governor McLean. The cleverness of the executive's trading breaks out over every device for hiding it. In a statement giving details he shows how the savings have been made.

The state is now back to old time form. It would seem that the days of high money are over. Governor McLean by keeping North Carolina bonds off the market has automatically increased the demand for them. The First National bank took these bonds from its own resources. It is representing no syndicate. It speaks for itself. The beauty of today's work is that these bonds will not be on the market at all, so that the next issue floated by the state will run into none bargained for today.

The ten millions offered today began maturing in 1930 and run through 1938. The next $10,000,000 will begin where the first left off. The state has rarely traded so well. It is, like Richard, itself again.

Chester B. Masslich, noted bond attorney of New York, was present at the sale today and no member of the council of state had higher satisfaction than he. He and Mrs. Masslich and their daughter were in the city today and after the big deal they set out for New York through the country. Nobody in North Carolina sings the songs of Zion in this state land with more function than Mr. and Mrs. Masslich and Miss Masslich. And the truth of the business is that North Carolina folks are going after the family in the hope of moving more money to the state here. Much of Mr. Masslich's professional business goes out of North Carolina.

After the sale Governor McLean issued the following statement:

"We are very much pleased that the sale of the 10 million bonds for basis, brings about the result for which Mr. Lacy and have been striving for nearly two years. We started out in the early part of 1925 to handle the bond sales in such a way as to substantially reduce the interest rate which North Carolina has been paying upon its long time bonds. These are the first long time bonds the state has sold at less than approximately 4 1/2 percent and definitely places the long time bonds of the state of North Carolina on a 4 1/2 percent basis for the first time since the large program of bond issues was launched five years ago. The difference between the rate of 4 1/2 percent and 4 1/2 percent on the 10 million bonds sold today amounts to $270,625, and, of course, that amount in interest is saved for the tax payers by virtue of the fact that we have gotten the interest rate down from 4 1/2 percent to 4 1/4 percent. If the First National bank exercises the option which holds good until April 1, 1927, and takes the other 10 million at the 4 1/4 percent rate, it will have every reason to believe will be the case, the saving to the people of the state on this additional 10 million dollars will be $432,250, or upon the entire 20-million issued, the sum of $708,875.

"I am very much pleased to observe that the bond circular prepared under the direction of the bankers in New York, upon which these bonds were offered for sale, urges, among other reasons, that calling attention to the desirability from an investment standpoint, North Carolina bonds are located. And the more support that is given them, the better. For as the church grows, the more it will prosper. Nothing that goes into the state has advanced far in applying to the administration of the state's affairs the same principles and methods of business economy which have been found necessary for the prosperity and service ability of private enterprises. Perhaps the most important measure enacted by the general assembly of 1925 was the act establishing an executive budget system. The administration of this system is under the executive direction of the governor, who supervises the financial affairs of the state in much the same way that the head of a large business supervises the various departments. The governor thus becomes, in effect, a director of economy and efficiency. As a part of the executive budget system the general assembly declares it to be the fixed policy of the state to maintain at all times a balanced budget, to the end that expenditures shall never exceed available income. All statutes allowing general and unlimited appropriation of money are repealed by the budget act and every department, institution and agency of the state is placed upon a definite appropriation basis. As director of the budget the governor was given power to reduce appropriations pro rata when deemed by him necessary in order to bring the total appropriations for all purposes within the limits of the revenue actually available under the same fixed policy. The spirit of this advanced legislation has been carried out since the passage of the act, and the results are highly satisfactory."

First thing a man acquires about, when he considers moving from one community to another, are churches and schools. If the community he has in mind as a possible place of future residence has good churches and schools, more than likely he'll decide to go there. But if there are no churches and the schools are poor he'll look elsewhere for a place to live.

For no one moves except to better himself, and the community without churches and will only poor schools has little to offer the new comer. Some persons may say that in the nature of things there are no churches but if they were to move, the chances are they wouldn't pick a churchless community to go to. If they have any sense they'll look for a place where there are no churches they'll stay right where they are.

Schools, of course, are supported by taxation and run for six months except where the people are more liberal and progressive than the State as a whole, in which event they have seven, eight or nine months of school, depending on the degree of their progressiveness. The ordinary rural community, as is well known, has but six months of school. Such communities, as a rule, have preaching only once a month. They are backward in both education and religion. Living conditions are poor. The average man in such a community, in which event they have seven, eight or nine months of school, depending on the degree of their progressiveness. These Improvements are Important

There are two general classes of motor car improvements. Those made primarily for their effect on the public—and those made primarily for their effect upon the car.

You will perceive at once that Dodge Brothers new five-bearing crankshaft, two-unit starting and lighting system, air cleaner and other recent improvements, are the sort that represent genuine value.

They are sound and substantial betterments, producing definite and marked results, and as such they are typical of Dodge Brothers methods and product.

AT CHRISTMAS TIME, MAN APPRECIATES MOST HIS "HOME-SWEET-HOME"

Here are all the good greetings of the season to those men in Home Sweet Homes of their own, particularly thanking those who have favored us with their patronage. Maybe they have new plans for the coming year—and if so we take this opportunity of soliciting their trade on the basis of first, quality—and secondly, low price, for building material of all kinds.

If you are not in a home of your own this Christmas then you know the urge to have one—and we ask that you allow us to help in the fulfillment of that ambition. If you start now to that end, in the Spring or Summer you can be in a position to build—and that is where we can serve you. From plans to moving-in day, we can save you money at every turn.

ELECTRICITY AND HIGH PRODUCTION SECRET OF AMERICAN WAGES AND PROSPERITY.

From Public Service.

Nine representative members of British trades unions have gone back to England after a tour of the United States to discover what they termed the "secret of high wages in America." The solution they carried back was "productivity."

"If we had America's electric power and some of its best machinery we could hold our own with the best in the world," said one member of the commission.

"The secret of high wages," said another member, "is purely a question of the development of electrical engineering, the organization of industrial plants, and giving the right men in the right place."

The commission carried back home a conviction that electricity and machinery driven by cheap and abundant power is the secret of our industrial supremacy.

They also carried back a new idea of what this development means to the worker himself. Hardwood floors, a tiled bath and a telephone are luxuries unknown in the homes of most English workmen.

21 KNOWN DEAD IN INDIANA MINE; FIVE ARE MISSING

Thirty of the Men Rescued Are in Serious Condition, Suffering From Burns and Broken Bones—Little Mining Town of Francisco Now in Mourning.

Princeton, Ind., Dec. 10.—Another explosion occurred in the Francisco Coal Mine No. 2 this morning, but as no rescue workers were in it at the time, no further casualties resulted. The mine was ordered sealed immediately leaving within its workings the three men unaccounted for and the bodies of two others which were found early today.

Rescue workers, unaccounted by the sealed hazard of fire, today combed the subterranean passages of the Francisco Coal Company's No. 2 mine at Francisco, seven miles from here, intent upon finding the five men who remained in the workings after the explosion of Thursday morning, which killed twenty-one men.

The pitchy odor of smoldering pine drove the rescuers from the shaft last night after they had accounted for 66 of the 71 men who were caught by the explosion as they went to work yesterday. Pausing only for a few gulps of coffee, the beary-eyed crew members gathered about a chart of the underground chambers and spent three hours checking and rechecking to determine which of the entries had been explored. Then, intent on reaching remote chambers, unexplored since the explosion, they descended again.

Their first duty was to locate and determine the extent of the fire suspected to exist in the portion of the mine to which the five missing men might have gone after the explosion. Their skepticism that their comrades had survived the terrific explosion and the fire 12 hours later was scarcely concealed.

Crews marked the doors of nearly a score of the modest dwellings near the mine mouth to-day as the survivors of the disaster rose from the shock of it, and their arduous rescue efforts made before the work was taken over by trained teams from adjacent mining communities.

State mine inspectors from nearby cities were in charge of the work and they were aided by federal teams from Vincennes, Evansville and Danville, Ills.

Thirty victims, five of them critically injured, remained in local hospitals today. All of them had been burned and some suffered broken bones when the impact of the explosion threw them against timbers and mine walls. Mine officials were at a loss to determine the cause. The Francisco mine long reputed to be one of the safest in the Indiana bituminous field had virtually every known safety device and had been inspected thoroughly only a short time before the blast.

MOBS TAKE 27 LIVES IN 1926

Lynchings Toll Shows Steady Growth, Bishop Clement Tells Churchmen

Minneapolis, Dec. 10.—Twenty-seven lynchings, nine more than the whole year 1925, had occurred in the United States up to November 15, 1926, the committee on race relations reported to the Federal Council of Churches to-day.

"This," said the report, "represents the worst setback since 1922 in the campaign to marshal churches against lynching, and the plea of the churches for a lynchless land seems farther from realization than any year since that time."

Bishop George C. Clement, of Louisville, Ky., is chairman of the committee. The number of lynchings reached 27 when three negroes—one man and two women—were killed by a mob at Aiken, S. C., October 8, with one negro victim at Dover, Tenn., the same night, and three victims in Texas on November 11.

This makes nine more victims in ten and a half months of 1926 than suffered this fate in 1925, and 12 more than in 1924. It lacks one of equaling the total of 28 for 1923.

Careful studies made by the committee in international cooperation of counties and sections of states where lynchings have frequently occurred, indicate some correlation between the economic and social condition of the beginning and ending violence.

"Increase of the atrocious evil of lynching is arousing much agitation and causing much thoughtful consideration again on the action of the United States Congress to make mob violence a federal offense."

"It is clear that whatever action is taken for the passage of laws against lynching, the church must carry the great responsibility for arousing its members and the nation to act."

Jews and Christians will exchange speakers at district conferences in 15 states under a good-will and friendship movement outlined in another report. Committees in 160 communities already have been created to promote the movement, which is an extension of a development whereby professors have been exchanged between Christian and Jewish theological seminaries.

Counsel appointed by the court defended Gray, resulting in hasty preparation of his defense, the governor's reason read, virtually all Stanly county officials, Prosecutor P. D. Phillips, Trial Judge Mitchell Schenck and every juror sitting joined in requests for executive clemency.

"I hesitate to interfere with this sentence, but I am compelled to respect the views of the officials and citizens of North Carolina when they have acted with such unity of purpose and more especially where they have been moved solely in the interest of justice," Governor McLean declared.

Had all facts, recently developed, been presented before the trial jury, its verdict, without doubt would have been otherwise, the governor concluded.

There Is No Santa Claus ?

To Children, Christmas is a time of happiness and joy! Their carefree, irresponsible natures are allowed to run rampant. But they should not be allowed to grow up with the belief that father will always play Santa Claus and that he will always provide—or others will provide the necessities and luxuries of life. Sooner or later they must play Santa Claus to themselves and their families. Gifts that they receive will be purchased with money from their own pocketbooks at the expense of their own labor. Teach them Thrift! Give them a bank book for Christmas with a small sum to start the account! Encourage them to save. Help them add to it and cultivate the desire for independence. Woolworth Company, which started in 1879, doing an annual business of $6,750, and grew into a world's largest chain of five and ten cent stores doing a yearly business of over $250,000,000 in this country alone, today cut a $32,500,000 "melon" for stockholders by declaring a fifty per cent stock dividend.

The company is capitalized at $100,000,000 with only $55,000,000 stock outstanding, so that no increase in capitalization will be necessary. The dividend is payable February 1 to stockholders of record, January 10th.

From the origin of the company until 1912, its program of expansion was financed entirely through reinvested earnings.

ANOTHER DEATHS LAST WINTER EXCEEDED NUMBER OF WAR VICTIMS

New York, Dec. 10.—Deaths in the United States this year probably will exceed by 75,000 the total number of deaths during the war, according to Dr. J. H. Hollen, of the Equitable Life Insurance Company of Iowa, said in an address today before the convention of the Association of Life Insurance Trustees.

More Americans were killed by automobiles during the past two years than in the world war, he asserted, estimating that the total number of deaths in automobile accidents would exceed 22,000 this year. Suicides increased 10 per cent during the year. While deaths by murder dropped 7 per cent, figures so far indicate, he said.

The year's increase in the death rate, Dr. Hollen pointed out, should not be taken as indicating such a trend for recent years, as the mortality rate during the period of the past six years alone has decreased more than 9 per cent.

The expected increase of 75,000 in the number of deaths this year, Dr. Hollen said, that 22,000 more will be caused by normal causes of the country's population, and that 53,000 deaths would result from the higher mortality rate for the year.

The death and west have led in the growth of life insurance companies since 1900, Julian Price, president of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, said today. N. C. told the convention.

When he returned to Calahala, he began to teach school again. For a number of years he taught his neighbors children and was very much loved by his students. He was considered one of the best of the "long gone school masters." He always said that "I run the school instead of letting the children run it."

For several years he was a prominent merchant and farmer. At one time he manufactured tobacco which was sold all over the South.

In the passing of "Uncle Ab," Calahala loses its oldest citizen. He was the youngest of a family of eleven and lived to be older than any of them. All of his family had passed away before they were sixty-eight. He made his long years useful to himself and others.

A good man has answered the summons.

In making up your mind as to what you will give your friend for a Christmas present, think of the Mocksville Enterprise. Do you know of anything else costing only $1.00 that would be appreciated more every week during the coming year than a year's subscription to this paper? Use Enterprise subscriptions as your Christmas presents, therefore.

Only a week and a half until Christmas. And the shopper and the merchant should both get busy. If those who have not yet done their shopping will do so at once, the merchant and his help will be spared the usual Christmas rush of business. The merchant can do much to induce the people to shop early by the proper advertising of his holiday goods. Only one more issue of the Enterprise in which to carry holiday advertising.

Monroe Journal brings to attention a fresh old idea which used to prevail that when a man wore his hat turned up behind, it indicated that he had come to a bad end. And the old idea was that a man who had come to a bad end was an independent citizen; that he was free from debt and had a pier on him.

The idea originated at a time when 90 out of every 100 farmers were "too poor to go without leaning against a fence," like the traditional turkey. And his poverty kept him to go about with his head down and the mark of a failure written on his forehead. The idea of the man who had the nerve to turn his hat up behind on the side, had to do with it, he was a man of means. Younger generation will not be what we are talking about, the "old boys" will recall that a difference in the color of a farmer's hat now and a quarter of a century ago, most any farmer not only the nerve to wear his hat turned up behind, but he wears the roads in his automobile. He wears his fields with tractor and gasoline engines his men with a riding cultor. And set of them not only wear corn, but wheat, oats, hay, and nearly everything that is produced on a farm in North Carolina, while the spirit of success are written on his face, that those who in may not.

ADVERTISING

The economic and social value of advertising visualized what is called "The Spirit of Post-er," is the purpose of unique lithographic display. It has just reached the post office of this community. The courtesy of the Foster Advertising Co., the benevolent influence of the various of public—newspaper, radio, direct mail and other—is brought to the attention of the public in a most impressive manner. In vivid color an eye beautiful female figure has been extended to the community distribution of commodities by the same token to those who have need for these facilities.

The new poster, which is displayed along the streets of this community, the work of Michael M. Heff, New York City. It was by the Outdoor Advertising Association of America, and its display here it is in the of hundreds of cities and all over the United States. It was adopted, it seemed best to exemplify the purpose of the poster, which, in the last decade, so systematically and so developed as to constitute ed with, and at the request of the holder of the book, secured to be a deed of trust, the book will be exposed for sale to the highest bidder for cash at the Helton house door in Mocksville, N. C., on Monday the 27th inst. at 10 o'clock a. m. The book is a copy of the following description: "The poster situated in the center of the town, the ship David Co. the important function beginning advertising in bringing the advantages of this modern age to the people. They will see on our panels a beautiful design-color, technique, lines, balance, pleasingly suggestive; that is art. It delivers a sales message quickly—a subtle idea of something they need in a pleasing manner. That is in a poster. That is advertising—whether it be in the columns of this newspaper, in a magazine or on the outdoor poster panels."

ROMANCE OF A "BUSTED" BANK

Charlotte Observer: If every broken bank in North Carolina could "come back" to the benefit of its depositors like an ancient institution in a little Rhode Island town has come back, it would be a merry Christmas in this State, for a fact. But unfortunately, banks are not in the habit of marking come back of the kind. The institution in question was founded in 1840. It had the confidence of the people of the town, as it had their money. Every fourth person in the town carried savings in the bank. About 25 years ago the managers of the bank heard much talk of Florida, and in the end they invested a large part of the bank's funds in orange groves. When the show-down came they had neither oranges nor money, so the bank went broke. Four months later, however, the directors paid out 25 per cent in dividends and have since issued dividends. But now comes the astonishing part. The Florida orange groves have "come in," even though some of the depositors are dead and others scattered over the country. The bank has just paid its depositors 140 cents on the dollar—and more is to come. Only two directors survive and these distributed $300,000 on top of the money that had been paid to cancel the lost deposits. The directors are advertising for some of the original depositors who whereabouts are not known. Incidentally, this is a remarkable incident of its very rare, and it is the more worth passing along for reason of the boost in it for a Florida institution that is sometimes looked at with suspicion—the orange grove.

COUNTY EXTENSION WORKERS TAKE A WEEK'S SCHOOLING

Raleigh, Dec. 16.—Seventy-nine farm demonstration agents and 47 home agents spent the past week at State College at their annual short course and conference. The agents discussed problems peculiar to their own work during the morning hours and then went to classes as students for the remainder of the day. How to meet the present serious situation was one of the serious questions before the agents and it was agreed that the campaign for better balanced farming would meet the situation by reducing the present cotton acreage some 30 percent. The men felt that farmers would be loathe to sign blanks obligating themselves to reduce the acreage 25 percent but stated that many of the farmers to whom they had tendered the plan of crop diversification had seemed pleased with the idea. It was agreed that an intensive campaign for better balancing the crops and livestock of the State would be put on immediately following the holidays. The value of club work, promotion of the poultry industry, crop statistics, the value of demonstrations, and the marketing of surplus produce were five other important matters to which the agents gave attention.

According to Dean I. O. Schaub, the conference last week was one of the most satisfactory gatherings of extension workers held in recent years. Both the men and women appeared to be imbued with an ideal of service. Facts and figures were presented to show that valuable results are being secured from the State on this work. Not only are the agents aiding farmers in following better systems of agriculture on their individual farms but they are also doing much to aid farm women in having more comfortable and efficient homes, said Dean Schaub.

ERLANGER Y. M. C. A. QUINT DEFEATS MOCKSVILLE HIGH BY SCORE OF 21-34

Leonard is Outstanding Star of Game. While Captain Waters Shows up Well for Losers

Erlanger, Dec. 10.—The Erlanger Y. M. C. A. Quint defeated the fast little team from Mocksville in a hard fought game here last night by a score of 34-21. With splendid teamwork on both sides the red terrors were able to keep a few points in the lead throughout the game. At the end of the first half the visitors were only three points behind the locals. Until this time the high school lads played a splendid passing game. However, they failed in many attempts at the basket. They played a tight five men defense, thus making crisp shots hard for the locals; who relied principally on the long shot.

Captain Waters and Dwiggins at guard were probably the outstanding players for Mocksville. They succeeded in several attempts to carry the ball thru the opponents line of defense. The team work of the two teams was about equal, but when it came to trying for the basket, Mocksville seemed to have "bad luck." The "Y" quint missed five tries for the basket. This game was featured by musical sportsmanship on both sides. Good feeling existing from the very beginning of the game. The writer expects a very successful season from the high school boys. The line-up: Mocksville: R. F. Erlanger, R. F. Kooztz, Latham, L. F. Edwards, Waters, R. G. Barnes, Dwiggins, L. G. Berrier. Substitutes: Mocksville—Averi for Neely, Mooney for Latham, Angell for Waters, Neely for Hendrix, Erlanger—Berrier for Kooztz. Referee: Zeb Waiser (N. C. State College).

More Value than the Price Suggests

In the year just drawing to a close the price of Dodge Brothers Motor Cars was materially lowered.

Yet during this period more important improvements were incorporated than in any year in Dodge Brothers history. Advances were made in engineering and body designs. The cars possess a greater degree of smoothness, silence and ease. They are more comfortable, more beautiful.

Current prices—made possible, of course, by constantly mounting sales—are therefore not an obvious measure of value. Prices, in fact, have never told the full story of Dodge Brothers dependability and basic worth.

But now, more than ever before, there is far more value than the price suggests.

GOLD PRODUCTION IN NORTH CAROLINA SHOWS INCREASE

Raleigh, Dec. 9.—Gold production in North Carolina during 1925 jumped more than four hundred per cent over that of the previous year with an output in 1925 of $18,540 compared with $4,540 in 1924, a report made today by State Geologist R. J. Beyer to Wade H. Phillips, director of the Department of Conservation and Development, reveals.

The report of the geologist shows that North Carolina produced nearly half of the gold output of the eastern states in 1925 and almost twice as much as any other. Georgia came second with $9,683; Tennessee, $7,421; Pennsylvania, $4,900; and Virginia, $683. The gold from Pennsylvania and Tennessee came from the refining of copper bullion and was slightly greater than in 1924. Only a few mines were active in North Carolina during 1925, but the great increase was due to work at Rich Cog Mine at Eldred, Montgomery county. Ore is treated by amalgamation, while the concentrates are saved for treatment by cyanidation. Another mine at Gold Hill in the same county was operated during the year. Other counties furnishing smaller amounts of gold are McDowell and Rowan.

ANOTHER "TAKEN FOR RIDE" AND LEFT DEAD IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Dec. 10.—The body of Joe Alberty, which apparently had been "taken for a ride" by enemies and shot to death was found early today lying in a street in "Little Italy."

Beside the body was piled clothing with bullet holes corresponding to the wound over the man's heart. Police found no one who had heard shots leading them to the theory that the killing must have taken place in an automobile.

CROP ROTATION MAKES SOIL MORE FERTILE

Bladenboro, Dec. 16.—A definite rotation of crops is building up the soil fertility on the farm of C. E. Callahan of Bladen County and is giving him more profitable yields per acre.

Mr. Callahan began his rotation in 1923 and has continued it since. Though the weather for the past three years in this section has been either too dry or too wet for best results, the farm has produced a profit in spite of these difficulties. Two rotations are used, one for the feed crops and the other for the cash crops. The feed crop rotation is practiced on three fields of seven acres each and consists of corn and velvet beans one year, followed by corn and soybeans after which fall planted oats and vetch is used. The third year, oats are planted for hay followed by soybeans and lespedeza for hay and rye as a cover crop.

Mr. Callahan secures an average yield of 30 bushels of corn per acre. He makes about 3000 pounds of soybean hay per acre and the lespedeza has given him a yield of 2,250 pounds of hay per acre each year for the past two years. This feed he has used with two mules, a herd of short-horn cattle, three pure bred sows and a good bunch of pigs, and a flock of white leghorn poultry. His sales of livestock and livestock products for 1928 have amounted to $1,200.

His cash crop rotation is on two fields of three acres each. In this he plants cotton followed by rye for turning under and tobacco, the second year followed by cowpeas. He has made money on his cotton each year, including 1926, reports County Agent J. R. Powell. His yield of cotton this year was at the rate of 1,700 pounds of seed cotton which brought him a total of $86.67 per acre. "The cost of the fertilizer was only $9, leaving a gross profit of about $76."

According to Mr. Powell, the soil on the Callahan farm is so fertile that he cannot use ordinary methods of growing tobacco. He uses little nitrogen and lets his tobacco grow high. This year he made a profit of $528 per acre on this crop.

SOIL SURVEY HAS EIGHT DEFINITE VALUES

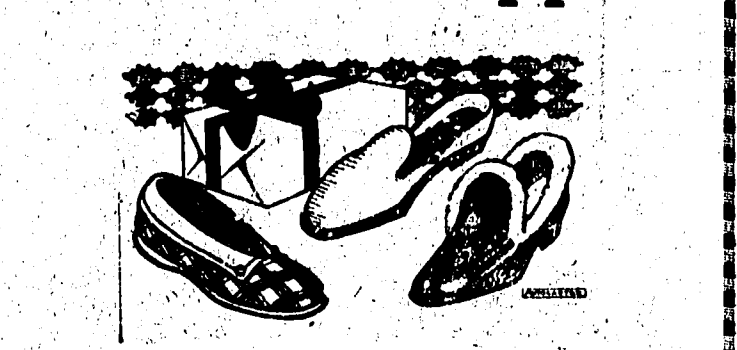

Raleigh, Dec. 16.—Now that soil surveys have been made of a majority of the counties in North Carolina, farmers should use the results of these surveys in finding out more about the land which they work.

"The soil survey has eight definite values," says C. B. Williams, head of the department of agronomy at State College. "North Carolina was one of the first states in the union to begin this work. A systematic study of the soils has been made and all of the results are now available to the farmer. The survey work with fertilizers and the crop improvement work is carried on strictly with reference to soil types. At first, the larger and more important soil types were selected for the location of branch experiment stations and outlying fields. As more funds became available, this research was extended to the less extended areas until now the College has a vast fund of information about the soils."

The eight definite values of the soil survey are given by Prof. Williams as follows: It provides all agricultural workers and farmers with reliable information about the kinds of soil in a given area and gives information about the general agricultural conditions in this area. It provides an opportunity to apply results on farms which are on the same soil types. Though the soil on a certain farm has been surveyed, information secured at other points on the same soil may be applied here. It saves personal research by the farmer. It helps the owner to describe his soil when writing for information. The soil survey report is the only published source of accurate information. It gives the boundaries of typical soils so that findings about plant food needs may be applied anywhere within these boundary lines. It shows where a grower may find typical soils for growing special crops like truck or peach trees successfully. It aids the farmer to know and handle his soil for most efficient returns per acre.

1,000 board feet of lumber. The cotton-field reclaimed by the volume could be made still larger—growth of pines. These trees are through systematic thinning, furnish a labor saving crop and each of the areas studied was one that returns a profit, states once an abandoned, badly washed. Mr. Graeber.

LET PINES GROW ON POOR ACRES

Raleigh, Dec. 16.—Since the cotton farmer can hardly get a profit from cotton grown on anything but the most fertile acres where high average yields may be made it might be wise to try putting some of the poorer acres or marginal acres in pine trees. "We know that it is only the farmer who gets a high yield of cotton per acre who can make any profit from its production, especially in a time like this," says R. W. Graeber, extension forester at State College. "The profit then comes from a lower labor cost per pound of cotton produced. If we study the cost of producing cotton in North Carolina, we find that when the crop is selling at an average price, there are about 50 percent of the acres that are marginal or sub-marginal land. By this, we mean land that pays only for its wages and cost of the fertilizer with no other profit. The submarginal acres are worse than this. When cotton is not selling at an average price, the condition is worse."

Therefore, states Mr. Graeber, it might be wise to use some of this poor producing land and grow up in pines. Shortleaf and loblolly pines will pay a profit on the poorest cotton land. At the present prices of lumber, the fully stocked stands of pines will pay a profit of $100 or more per acre. According to the price of lumber, the submarginal acres are worse than this. When cotton is not selling at an average price, the condition is worse."

Mr. Graeber has made some investigations recently in eight Piedmont counties of North Carolina and finds a rapid growth of shortleaf and loblolly pines on one and one-half to two cords of wood per acre annually. This is a good rate, he states, to 700 on up to 1,000 board feet of lumber.

Daniel Boone Rests In Kentucky Capital

Famous Pioneer Had Hard Time
During the Later Years
Of His Life

"I have no spot that I can call my own whereon to lay my bones. This is one sentence from a simple and affecting memorial address to the people and Legislature of Kentucky by the famous pioneer, Daniel Boone. At the age of 60 he had joined the second tide of immigration that was pouring into another newly opened country, hoping at last to satisfy that land hunger which had led the men of his time ever westward, and he had met fresh disappointment.

Losing through defective titles the many acres of land he had located there, he appealed to Kentucky, in whose forests he had wintered when hundreds of miles from civilization, with no companions but his guns and his dog; to whose hunting grounds he had guided many parties of hunters, surveyors and settlers; into whose wilds he had cut the first "wilderness road," within whose borders he had built the first fort of the more than a hundred "stations" that sheltered the early inhabitants from the Indians; and where he had twice "located" many acres which he had lost through poor trades or unsettled titles.

Judge how touching was such a reminder from a man who in the prime of his life had helped to carve more than a million acres from the wilderness and to make secure its virgin soil for settlement, addressing, too, the generation that occupied that land as a Sovereign State in peace and plenty. Kentucky heeded his cry for aid and forwarded it to Congress, which readily granted him more acres. It is pitiful to relate that the greatest old man, lost this also in lawsuits and at the age of 85 was buried at last in the alien soil of another State.

He was not, however, forgotten by Kentuckians. In 1846 the Legislature passed a bill to have his remains brought back to the State.

became Bryan Boone, to the State Cemetery at Frankfort and reburied them on the brow of a high cliff overlooking the lovely and picturesque valley of the Kentucky River. When their coffins were lowered, the pallbearers threw in a few handfuls of earth; then each one of the thousands of persons gathered from all over the State for the imposing ceremonies, passing by, threw in a handful of the soil they were consecrating, as a symbol of his personal possession—YOUTH'S COMPANION.

A CHRISTMAS CARD

There is a lovely stable,
The holy Christ-child lay;
With none to bid him welcome,
On that first Christmas day,
The Prince of Peace Immanuel
Had come with sinful man to dwell.

Behold, and see Him lying,
On the poor manger bed,
No royal robe enfold Him,
No crown above His head,
Though Angel hosts His praises sing,
His own reject their promised King.

But humble shepherds hasten,
To seek the wondrous sight;
Those to whom the Angels came,
On that eventful night,
Following in their quest for Him,
The guiding star of Bethlehem.

And lo! o'er desert dreary,
Lead by that same bright star,
With gifts of gold and spices,
Jane wise men from afar,
See them kneel in sweet adoration,
Men of heathen land and nation.

Come, let us join in singing,
With Angels and with men;
Praises to the glorious Immanuel,
The holy babe of Bethlehem,
Hosannas to our mighty King,
Let all creation shout and sing.

THE BIBLE TEST

The results of the voluntary writers' test on "The Life and Work of Jesus of Nazareth" appears below. My work has been a labor of love. The course of study was absolutely non-sectarian. I am deeply grateful for the cooperation of the school authorities and for the responsive attitude of the pupils.

SCHOOL NEWS

Miss Bertha Lee closed her series of Bible lectures last. Her work has been very helpful and we feel fortunate to have had her with us. The school children presented her with a box of candy at the end of her last lecture.

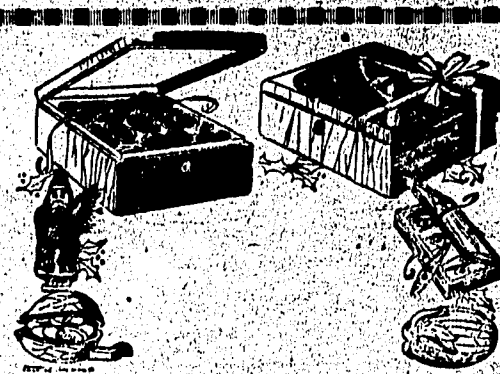

The program rendered by Mrs. Andrews music class, Friday night, was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. Mrs. Andrews is proving to be a most helpful worker in the school and town.

School closed Friday, with both teachers and pupils filled with the Christmas spirit. The sixth grade gave a little play, "Christmas Everywhere," at the chapel hour Wednesday morning and the seventh grade gave, "Santa Claus at School," Friday morning. The elementary school had a Christmas tree and program Friday afternoon.

Coach Young's basket ball charges met the "Black Hurricane" from Churchland, Friday evening and took the long end of a 23 to 12 score. This was Churchland's first defeat after six consecutive victories. It was the first game on our new indoor court, and the boys went into it determined to win, and at the close the "Black Hurricane" was changed into gentle breeze. Too much cannot be said of the splendid work Mr. Young is doing with the boys. He is a clean young man who believes in clean sports and pure play, and whose children are under his care.

She knows—and you know—that HER box of Christmas candy must be just a little better—a bit more tasty—in a much more attractive box—than just Xmas candy. AT CHRISTMAS TIME MAN APPRECIATES MOST HIS "HOME-SWEET-HOME"

Here are all the good greetings of the season to those men in Home Sweet Homes of their own, particularly thanking those who have favored us with their patronage. Maybe they have new plans for the coming year—and if so we take this opportunity of soliciting their trade on the basis of first, quality—and secondly, low price, for building material of all kinds.

If you are not in a home of your own this Christmas then you know the urge to have one—and we ask that you allow us to help in the fulfillment of that ambition. If you start now to that end, in the Spring or Summer you can be in a position to build—and that is where we can serve you. From plans to moving-in day, we are at your service at every turn.

State Has 153 Violent Deaths Within Month

Bureau of Vital Statistics Reports Figures Compiled For November

35 ARE BURNED TO DEATH

Raleigh, Dec. 15.—One hundred and fifty-three North Carolinians were victims of violent death last month, the bureau of vital statistics of the state board of health revealed today.

A seasonal increase in the number of persons burned to death brought deaths from that cause up to 35, only 10 below the consistent leader, deaths from automobile accidents.

Another normal seasonal increase brought the number of deaths from accidental gunshot wounds up to 12.

Total number of violent deaths for the first 11 months of 1926 was 1,518. Deaths from automobile accidents led the list with 353.

The violent deaths in November:

Forty-five from automobile accidents; 55 burns; 24 homicides; 13 suicides; 12 accidental gunshot wounds; 10 from gunshot wounds of a doubtful nature; six from railroad accidents; four from accidental drowning; four from automobile and railroad accidents at crossing; none from lightning.

SQUIRE BOONE

by J. K. ROUSE

Many years before the Revolutionary War, in November 1751, Squire Boone and his large family decided to move to the state of North Carolina. Before Squire Boone came to the State of North Carolina he was a farmer and trapper in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, but the game in this section of the country was soon caught by the hunters; therefore he decided to go to a state where plenty of game could be found.

The Boone family, after a long journey of many hundred miles from their home in Pennsylvania, arrived in Rowan County, now Davidson County, North Carolina, in the year 1751. This pioneer was looking for wild game to trap and he found plenty in that valley of the Yadkin.

From an extract in the "Record of the Moravians," we find where on April 24, 1759, the settlers were killed by the Cherokee Indians. The settlers often had to set up at night and be ready to fight, if Indians should make an attack on the settlement. And when the Boone family moved into this wild country along the Yadkin river they found many dangerous Indian tribes.

H. A. Spraker has said in his book, "The Boone Family," that Squire Boone was born in Devonshire, England in 1696. He was the son of George Boone, Daniel Boone, that famous Indian fighter, of North Carolina, Tennessee, and Kentucky, was only eighteen years of age when his father came to North Carolina.

Daniel, under the supervision of his father, Squire Boone, became one of the greatest hunters and explorers America has ever produced. There is no doubt that young Daniel received his love of adventure from his father.

After reading several large reference books concerning the history of the Boone family, I was surprised not to find the burial place of Squire Boone mentioned. However, after consulting another book on the Boone family I found that Squire Boone died in the year 1765 and was buried in the old Joppa cemetery at Mocksville, in Davie County.

The good people of Mocksville, and Davie county, I am sure have heard every since they were young that Squire Boone and Sarah Boone, his wife, were buried in the old Joppa cemetery. As a native of Davie county, I hope the good people of Mocksville and Davie county will try to inform the people of our State that we have the parents of our National hero buried in our county.

THIRTY-EIGHT YEARS

To the people of Mocksville and Davie county, Greeting:—On December 27, 1888, Mrs. Cashwell and I with two small children, Bertha, three years and Roy, a month and a half old, landed in Mocksville. We had come to stay.

Many days have passed since then. Many changes we have seen. Yet have been upheld till now. Who could hold us up but "Thou?"

For eleven of the thirty-eight years, Mocksville was our home. Not a year has passed, however, but that I have been in the county serving churches, assisting in meetings, visiting friends and the sick, burying the dead, marrying the young people. Yes, and sometimes some of the old. Isn't it funny that even old people want to get married?

Have we had a good time? So much of plenty, peace, pleasure, and prosperity. So little of sickness, sorrow, suffering, and sadness.

The lines have indeed fallen unto us in pleasant places. Our life has been such a happy heritage. I am glad that in the providence of God the path of duty leads through Davie county.

People of Davie I greet you— you have been good to me. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, from everlasting to everlasting, and let all the people say "Amen." Praise ye the Lord.
