Senator Ervin Addresses District Conservation Meet

Senator Sam J. Ervin, Jr. was speaker at a meeting of the supervisors of the eleven districts for Soil and Water Conservation, Thursday, October 26, at the Concord Hotel in Concord. These districts comprise Area 3.

Attending from Davie County were Knox Johnstone, Tom Gough, C. W. Phillips, Clarence Rupard, David White, Hubert Bailey and John Bailey.

The following are excerpts from Senator Ervin's speech:

Since the continuance of human life is dependent upon the preservation of topsoil, it is plain that the farmer owes a most solemn obligation to future generations. It is manifestly unfair, however, for those who are engaged in nonagricultural occupations to expect the farmer to discharge without assistance his trust. This is so for the very simple reason that all of us in equity and good conscience share this responsibility to the future.

While in the past, the soil and water conservation districts have been concerned primarily, with cropland productivity, the trends of urban scatteration, such as we have in the Piedmont Urban Region, suggest that increasing attention must be given to other types of land use studies and activities. With the shifts in urban boundaries and resulting changes in land use capability, the districts must assume a larger role in overall regional planning. The Soil Conservation Service is already proving specialized information and technical services in soil and water conservation on land going into these nonagricultural uses.

The critical problem of urban scatteration is that of the approximately 72 million acres of Class I agricultural land in the United States; over one half is within reach of existing urban centers. Of course, there are those who are willing to let present urban trends take their natural course, arguing that less valuable agricultural lands can eventually be upgraded. But, frankly, I would much prefer to see urban growth patterns guided and controlled to protect as much of this valuable agricultural acreage as possible.

Many soil conservation districts, originally organized in strictly rural territories, today find their lands being replaced by new homes, industries, highways, airports and shopping centers. Since 1961, the Department of Agriculture reports that about 6 million acres of prime agriculture land, an area approximately the size of New Hampshire plus Rhode Island, were converted to such uses. By enacting Public Law 89-560, Congress recognized the Soil Conservation Services' responsibility to provide guidance in land use changes technical assistance — practices tested for 30 years on farms and ranches. The urban oriented work initiated under this Act include the use of basins to catch and hold silt, sod waterways to safely carry away run-off water, vegetation for critical areas and other soil conservation measures of benefit to urban developers.

Urban scatteration also has a tendency to generate a resistance on the part of small communities to be absorbed by larger and more efficient units of government. These small communities — more often than not — lack an adequate tax base to meet the costs of providing needed facilities — sewers, water supply systems, police and fire protection and especially schools — and as a consequence seek outside aid, usually by attempting to bring in a few industrial plants.

Such independent actions by a large number of small communities leads to a helter-skelter arrangement of land uses in the countryside, and an inefficient system of land use control.

Area 3 of the North Carolina Soil and Water Conservation Districts is composed of eleven counties which are located in the Piedmont Region of our State. The problem of increasing urbanization of farm land is growing in your area perhaps faster than you might think. From 1960 - 1966, 160,000 acres went out of agricultural production in your Area 3 and into urban uses such as highways, towns and cities and so you can tell from these figures, that you all will be confronted with

The new home of Reavis Autos, Inc. on the Yadkinville Highway is expected to be completed and ready for occupancy around the first of 1968. The building will have 24 stalls, each with individual stall entrance, for the service and body departments. The building is of Varco Steel construction with masonary walls. Mr. Reavis said that the new building would have the most modern of automotive equipment enabling them to offer complete alignment for front ends from a car to a ton truck; equipment for straightening of axles and rear-end housings on cars. There will be a factory paint booth. The building will be surrounded by a large paved parking lot. Lawrence Reavis took over the Ford dealership here in September 1963. Fund Report Planned On Pilot Mountain Park

A second report meeting on the Pilot Mountain fund-raising campaign has been scheduled for 12:30 p.m. Friday at Howard Johnson's restaurant on South Stratford Road.

In calling the meeting, Chairman P. Huber Hanes expressed confidence that good progress would be achieved in the six-county drive to raise $350,000

This amount, plus federal funds amounting to $560,500, would be used to purchase the 1,066 acre mountain tract and an adjoining 500 acres for a state park.

Officers of the Pilot Mountain Preservation and State Park Committee and the six county chairmen have been asked to attend the meeting, Hanes said.

At the initial report meeting on Oct. 20, approximately $205,000 was reported pledged with the bulk of this in major gifts.

"Since that meeting, the campaign has been extended throughout the six counties, and I'm sure we'll have some results to report Friday," Hanes said.

The counties participating are Forsyth, Guilford, Davie, Yadkin, Surry and Stokes.

By William Friday, President University of North Carolina

In this column, to be issued weekly as a service to North Carolina's non-daily newspapers, I hope to keep you informed of the ways in which the four campuses of the University of North Carolina are serving you and the more than five millions as well as citizens throughout the nation and the world.

I will review each week major University developments that vitally affect the lives of the people in all of the State's 100 counties. For example, I will report on such matters as financial aid available on our four campuses to the young people of the State who wish to continue their education beyond high school and the agricultural and research services that flow from the University's farms, forests, and laboratories. I will also share with you facts about the University's work in coastal and water resources, highway safety, county and municipal government, and economic development.

The column will explore local applications of the University's work as well as review the University's activities that are national and worldwide in scope.

A look at a few facts may give you a new insight into the size of the University and the range of its services to the State:

—We have presently on our campuses 33,624 students enrolled as undergraduate, graduate, and professional students. The overwhelming percentage of these men and women are from North Carolina. Last year, for example, the University enrolled 2,293 from western counties, 12,600 from piedmont counties, and 8,226 from eastern counties.

—Long a national leader in graduate study, the University currently offers Ph.D. degrees in 74 fields of study and advanced degrees in most all recognized professions. Research is being conducted into ways to improve agriculture, health care, industrial programs, forests, textiles, minerals, and dozens of of other fields that affect our work and well-being as citizens.

—The University serves the State through representatives in every county seat, and through year-round operations in more than 20 other locations, the Mineral Research Laboratory at Asheville, marine laboratories at Aurora, Hatteras, & Morehead City, & experiment stations across the length an breadth of the State.

—The fourfold University has a physical plant valued in excess of $224,000,000 and a biennial operation budget of approximately $229,000,000, of which 51 percent comes from State funds.

—Since 1955, the University has operated an educational television station, WUNC-TV, serving the central area of the State. This fall these ETV services are being telecast from five transmitters at Chapel Hill, Columbia, Asheville, Concord, and Linville. The 1967 Legislature provided funds to extend the network to Winston-Salem, Wilmington, Farmville-Kinston, and Franklin. When completed, 90 percent of the State's citizens will have educational television service. The morning hours of television time are utilized to provide instruction to the public schools of North Carolina.

—Last year, Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill recorded 12,000 inpatient visits and 125,000 out-patient visits by citizens of the State. In addition, North Carolina residents paid more than 46,000 patient visits to the Dental Clinic.

—More than 54,000 young people are enrolled in 4-H Club activity and 42,216 women are actively involved in Home Demonstration programs, both functions of which are operated by the University.

These facts are superficial indicators of how your University is serving the State. In future columns, I will give you more details about many of these specific services as well as review the important regional, national, and international activities of the University. In total, these services indicate that the University of North Carolina, like all major state universities in America, is an instrument of national purpose.

In the meantime, if you have questions, suggestions, or comment about the University, I hope you will write me at the following address: William Friday, Box 309, Chapel Hill, North Carolina 27514. Your opinions are earnestly solicited.

A Night at the Theater

One hundred and six Davie students attended the opening night production of the play, "Becket", at Catawba College last Thursday.

The play was presented by the Bue Masque, a dramatic organization of Catawba College, in the Keppel Auditorium. This was Catawba's first production of the season.

"Becket" is a play written by Jean Anouilh about the life of Thomas a Becket, the famous archbishop of Canterbury. It depicts his defiant stand against King Henry II of England over the position of the church in English society. His stand led to his subsequent death at the hands of the king's men.

The students attending represented the combined English classes of Mrs. Beaver and Miss Brown, the journalism class and the Drama Club.

The journalism class at Davie has voted to have a constitution drawn up which will be used as a guide in the publication of the school newspaper. Those who will work on the constitution will include the editor and associate editor of the newspaper, the heads of the various newspaper staffs, and a special five member constitution committee selected by the journalism class.

The sophomore class held elections last week for class officers. This year's class officers are: Andy Andrews, president; Betty Ferebee, vice president; Vicki McDaniel, secretary; and Darlene Whitaker, treasurer.

SCOPE OF SPORTS

By Woody Durham / WFMY-TV Sports Director

It's great to see Joe DiMaggio coming back into baseball on an administrative level. The ex-Yankee clipper will serve as a Vice-President of the new Oakland Athletics, working hand in hand with the club's controversial owner Charles Finley. While Finley may have done a lot of nutty things in the past, he sure gets a check mark for luring DiMaggio into the fold.

I had the opportunity to see DiMaggio again recently, in Atlanta. He was attending the NFL game between the Washington Redskins and Atlanta Falcons. I overheard later that Washington owner Edward Bennett Williams considered DiMaggio a good luck charm. Up until that day, everytime DiMaggio had gone to a Washington game as Williams' guest the Redskins had won. That day, they finished in a 20 - 20 tie. And, apparently DiMaggio hasn't seen Washington play in recent weeks.

Redskin Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen said later that DiMaggio was on the plane earlier this season coming back from New Orleans, following a Washington victory, and he quipped, "I was as excited over meeting and talking with him as a little kid would have been."

Unfortunately, not too many of today's little kids are old enough to remember the magic of the name Joe DiMaggio.

Speaking of Jurgensen brings to mind one of the finest gestures that I can recall.

The student body at New Hanover High School in Wilmington recently raised $400 to fly Athletic Director Leon Brodgon to Los Angeles for the Redskins-Rams game. The reason being that Jurgensen and Roman Gabriel, both Wilmington products, would be facing each other that day as opposing quarterbacks. Both were coached by Brogden during their high school days and both went on to college stardom. Jurgensen first at Duke, and then Gabriel later at N. C. State. Both were far enough apart in high school that neither one knows the other personally.

But, what a ballgame Coach Bro[g]den saw that Sunday afternoon in the Los Angeles Coliseum. The teams played to a 28-28 tie with both Jurgensen and Gabriel having good days.

I'm sure the old warhorse was pleased with his two boys.

This coming Sunday, the Baltimore Colts will attempt to break the jinx that the Green Bay Packers seem to have over them, and you can see all the action beginning at 1:30 on Channel 2. Following the Colts- Packers game, the New York Giants will meet the Minnesota Vikings in the second game of Sunday's NFL double-header.

EDUCATION IN KOREA

Most people can hunt even if they have a heart condition, the North Carolina Heart Association says, but see your doctor first and be sure.

ALL LIMESTONES ARE NOT ALIKE!

Some will dissolve faster than others, and you get no benefit from limestone until it dissolves in your soil. Several factors determine this dissolving: rainfall, cropping system, hardness of limestone rock, and fineness of grind.

This producer has been in limestone business since 1911. Could they have remained in business this long without a quality product?

Tattle-Tales

By Gordon Tomlinson

We reported the time change last week erroneously. However, we don't think we got as mixed up as this report gives:

There is an unnamed Greensboro family which was fully conscious of the time change in wee hours Sunday.

The daughter of the house in a helpful mood set back all the clocks an hour, but forgot to tell anyone.

The lady of the house set back all the clocks an hour, but forgot to tell anyone.

The man of the house before he turned in after the late movie set back all the clocks an hour.

Guess who slept late Sunday?

We lost a subscriber this week! G. F. Daniels was the name on the mailing list. We had to mark him off! Because he really wasn't!

Last week, Mrs. G. F. McDaniel of Route 1, Advance, called to report that she was getting two papers. She couldn't find her receipt so she couldn't understand why she was getting two papers and we couldn't either.

However, Mrs. McDaniel called later in the day and reported that she had found her receipt. It was written by my daughter, Beverly, just before her marriage, and I guess in her excitement, she had written Daniels instead of McDaniel for the surname. This was put on the mailing list.

We plan to get this straightened our and hope the McDaniel family will get just 1 paper this week!

Our Heritage of Faith...

Express Your Faith, Enrich Your Life ...Attend the Church of Your Choice

Historically, the Spanish missions of the Old Southwest remind us that people of many countries, many faiths shared in shaping our nation. Our heritage of faith has a message for today: Faith can shape our lives, toward greater fulfillment, higher happiness. Faith can sustain us, daily, with the spiritual strength we need. Faith can help our children grow in character and citizenship. Faith is a force for good, in the family, the community, the nation. To express your faith, and enrich your life, attend and support the church of your choice, regularly. The churches of this community extend an invitation to all to come and worship, this Sunday.

Davie At North Iredell Friday

The Davie High Rebels will play at North Iredell on Friday night at 8 p. m.

The Rebels ran into a lot of trouble last Friday night at North Stanly and were defeated 0 to 23 in a North Piedmont Conference game.

North Stanly halfback Gary Wagoner scored two touchdowns on runs of seven and 35-yards to start the Comets on their way to victory. His first touchdown came in the opening period. He made his second trip into paydirt in the final quarter and that began a 16-point rally for the Comets. The other North Stanly touchdown came on an intercepted pass.

North Stanly scored a safety in the final period when the Rebels snapped the ball out of the end-zone on a kicking situation.

North Stanly limited the Rebels to four first downs.

The Bread of Life

THE BREAD OF LIFE

Let us worship God in spirit and in truth. Come and visit the Church of Christ in your area and discover the simple, but scriptural way to worship acceptably.

We have all heard the story of the prophet Jonah, but often distrust the principle taught to the modern-day Christian.

You remember that Jonah was instructed of God to go to Nineveh and warn the inhabitants of the impending destruction which was declared upon the city unless they repented of their wickedness.

Jonah, trusting his judgment above that of God, fled to Joppo, about 600 miles from Nineveh, to board a ship bound for Tarshish, located in the southern peninsula of Spain.

Further, you recall that the tempests of the sea convinced Jonah and the crew on board the ship that something was amiss. Consequently, Jonah was thrown overboard in order to still the raging sea. The conclusion of this story you well remember, but for our point let us stop here and reflect upon this portion.

Even though Jonah was instructed by God himself to go to Nineveh, he felt that he knew a better solution to the problem. Have YOU ever had the same attitude?

On the other hand, God had a divine plan which he fully intended for Jonah to carry out. Therefore, he opened Jonah's eyes to the importance of obedience!

What is the point of such discussion? Here it is . . . Man cannot hide from the presence of God! Oh, dare to say that we have all tried such frivolity, but have failed each time to escape the omnipotent and omniscient God of the universe.

David explains the allseeing provience of God in Psalm 139 when he writes, "Whither shall I go from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; Even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me." (verses 7-10)

How often have men attempted to deceive God of their whereabouts! Have YOU tried lately? Then give up . . . you cannot escape His presence . . . obey His Will entirely. Thank God for such divine overshadowing!

many new problems in the years ahead.

I firmly believe, as I hope you do, that the relationships between governing the urban areas and governing soil and water conservation districts in the Piedmont Urban Region call for the strongest collaboration. The two partners of this relationship, farmers and city dwellers, have purposes that overlap but are not identical. Each must contribute to a constructive partnership if this region is to remain habitable and the land is to be developed wisely.

Perhaps the growing pressures on agricultural lands surrounding urban areas will eventually stimulate stronger Federal steps. But I would hope that such effort would be deliberately directed to providing those financial, research and technical resources identified and requested by State and local agencies of government.

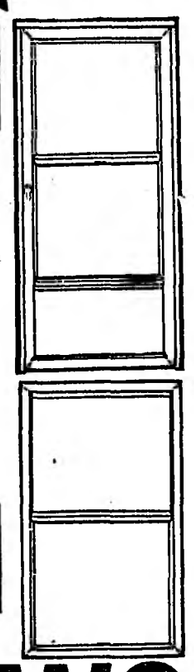

In conclusion, Hugh Bennett's dream was for people everywhere to live in harmony with their natural resources. Because many of the toughest problems faced by the Soil and Water Conservation Districts today involve conflicts with rapidly sprawling urban developments, the same crusading spirit and determination that brought land conservation measures to the rural areas of our nation since the 1930's, now needs to be applied to our urban areas. Only then we will live up to Hugh Bennett's hopes and dreams for land use in this country.

American Education Week

"'Tis education form the common mind:

Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined'."

Never before have Alexander Pope's words meant as much as they do today.

Never before have teachers had so much responsibility for educationally pruning" the minds of their students nor parents been so charged with the right and responsibility of aiding educators in this noble task. From November 5 through November 11 Davie County will salute this mutual teacher-parent effort to mold a new and greater generation by observing American Education Week.

Sponsored annually by the National Education Association, The American Legion, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the U. S. Office of Education, American Education Week reminds each parent, teacher, and student that the job of improving the educational, economic, and cultural lot of each upcoming generation is the duty and pleasure of all citizens, with teachers playing a a primary role.

"How Good Are Your Schools?" is theme of this year's American Education Week. More than 30 million parents will visit their youngster's schools to see what education has to offer their children. They will find younger teachers, more male teachers, newer classroom designs, outcroppings of computer teaching devices, and curriculum changes that make yesterday's schoolwork obsolete by comparison. They will find teachers who view the whole child—not just his test grades—and teachers who are interested in the individual child for his uniqueness, rather than his ability to fit into the norm.

According to Mr. James Everidge, "The schoolmarm of yesterday has been replaced by today's teacher, whose horizons are as limitless as the superjet age. Tomorrow's youth will stand taller and stronger than any other generation because of today's educator."

Beginning Monday, November 5, the schools in Davie County will open their doors to parents who wish to observe their children being tought. Parents will learn how good the schools really are as they attend special programs planned in and out of school.

This year's American Education Week, according to Mr. Everidge, will focus attention on seven questions growing out of the general 1967 theme, "How Good Are Your Schools?'—at shaping the character of youth? at providing learning opportunities for all? at meeting the challenge of change? at providing quality teaching? at stimulating life-long learning? at developing vocational competence? and at enriching human life?

The Bond-A-Month Plan

The Treasury Department is campaigning this fall to emphasize the "Bond-a-Month" method of purchasing U. S. Savings Bonds and new Freedom Shares, according to Knox Johnstone, Volunteer Savings Bonds Chairman for Davie County.

"Most people are familiar with the Payroll Savings Plan for automatic Bond purchases,' Mr. Johnstone said. "But if you are self-employed or otherwise unable to buy Savings Bonds and Freedom Shares where you work, you should investigate the Bond-a-Month Plan which is available at many banks. The purpose of this fall's campaign is to call special attention to this opportunity."

The Bond-a-Month Plan is a free service to depositors. It is an automatic method by which a bank purchases a Savings Bond and a Freedom Share for the customer each month, charging the transaction to his checking account.

"A lot of people are not familiar with the new companion product to Series E Bonds, Freedom Shares," Mr. Johnstone continued. "Freedom Shares are a bonus opportunity offered to regular purchasers of Savings Bonds. They are Savings Notes, paying a higher rate of interest — 4.74 percent when held to maturity (4½ years). They are redeemable after one year. Freedom Shares are available only in combination with Savings Bonds — on a regular monthly purchase plan.

"Therefore, the Bond-a-Month Plan offered by banks and other financial institutions provides a unique savings opportunity for self-employed individuals or those who, for one reason or another, are unable to join a Payroll Savings Plan where they work." Freedom Shares are available in four denominations — $25, $50, $75 and $100 — and they are issued in combination with Series E Bonds of like or larger denominations. The maximum monthly investment for the purchase of Freedom Shares is $81, cost price of the $100 denomination Individual holdings are limited to $1,350 (face amount) in any year.

Series E Savings Bonds are available in denominations ranging from $25 to $10,000. Their present interest rate is 4.15 percent when held to maturity, and they now mature in seven years. Holdings are limited to $20,000 in any year.

Buying Savings Bonds and Freedom Shares regularly serves two main purposes, according to Mr. Johnstone. "As an individual, you build up a nestegg for your future security and, as a citizen, you help your country combat inflation while meeting its obligations at home and abroad."

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

WHAT TO DO? . . . Indecision brings its own delays . . . and days are lost lamenting over lost days.

Thus wrote the German poet, Goethe, some 100 years ago.

It applies today—particularly as regards politics. Bob Scott has known for nearly four years now that he was going to run for Governor in 1968. And, as Raleigh Writer Bill Shires said only last week: The various parts of Scott's campaign seem to be falling neatly into place.

On the other hand, there still seems to be indecision as regards Stickley and Gardner . . . and Bowles and Blue and Lassiter . . . not to mention Rockefeller and Reagan.

"Every way of a person is right in his own eyes—but the Lord looks at the heart". So wrote Solomon—and those that are still undecided are no doubt searching for the way. Scott has purposed in his heart.

Meantime, day follows day . . . breeding lamentation.

CHECK . . . If you are like everybody else these days, you receive too much mail addressed simply to "Occupant". The postal rate on this type of stuff is expected to climb sharply next year. Meantime, it continues. Even members of Congress are using it.

This certain resident the other day received yet another piece of mail asking for donations to the Party. Since he belonged to the other Party, he wrote out . . a check for $10,000 . . . and signed it: "Occupant".

MY TIME . . . Virginia Thomason of Canton tells in the November issue of Reader's Digest how a Charlotte couple worked out their voting problem.

She writes that "during a city election in Charlotte, a well-known citizen appeared alone at the polls".

Somebody asked him where his wife was. He explained that he and his wife had different political views . . . "so I vote in one election and she votes in the next. That way we don't cancel out each other's vote."

"This", he said, "is MY year to vote."

DOVE TALK . . . The public opinion polls show a sharp increase in the opposition to the Vietnam War. Meantime, the collegiate protests continue . . . and the situation even became major news on the National Governors Conference from which Gov. Dan Moore has just returned.

It seems that a telegrapher was a little careless (?) on a certain wire received from the White House.

Here are some words from letters recently received from "somewhere in Vietnam" . . . and they may change you from a hawk into a dove.

"The sunset . . . why does it always remind one of home? The memories that come to mind when on a patrol and walking down a water buffalo path. I can visualize our barn . . . only a little farther on . . . and in the early morning while on guard duty, the chill before light makes me remember how cold it used to be going out to the lot and tending the chores before the school bus came . . ."

From another letter:" . . . The other day I got a letter from an old farmer who lives up the road from our place. During Thanksgiving holidays I used to dig post holes for him . . . back in high school days."

And this: "Sometimes when we are out on a long patrol . . . I just try to imagine that I am on the neighbors' place . . . hunting quail . . . or at the rabbit drive they always have over at the county seat . . ."

RUNNING, TOO . . . Many, many months ago mention was made here how Shearon Harris, presient of Carolina Power & Light Co., might have gone far politically had he not chosen the way of CP&L.

Reference was made to his salary which runs twice that of the Governor) & how he doesn't have to stand for re-election and that sort of thing.

Looking through column files last week—and up bounced the letter of reply from Harris—received 'way back, but still interesting.

He does, too, have to run for re-election, he says in his nice letter.

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

The Federal debate over when, where, and how Treasury spending should be cut to avert a financial crisis has produced some peculiar response by the Congress and the Administration.

The heart of the spending problem lies in the fact that the Vietnam War and increased welfare programs have combined to bring about a prospective $29 billion deficit unless Federal appropriations are trimmed or taxes are substantially increased. Congress and the Administration have been "throwing the spending ball" back and forth for weeks, and saying, in effect, "it is not our problem, it is yours". The President wants Congress to take responsibility for making budget cuts, because spending reductions make people unhappy. Congress insists that the President undertake this unpleasant task, because he proposed the budget.

Where does the responsibility lie? Congress has the constitutional power to appropriate Federal monies. It could reduce spending, if it would exercise the courage necessary to cut appropriations. Actually, however, the problem is not quite as simple as that. There are so many billions of dollars in the spending "pipeline" that it would require a current appropriation cut-back of $2.25 for each dollar of spending eliminated in fiscal 1968. This is because there is always a lag between the appropriation of funds and the spending of those funds. Economy in government spending then, in truth, is a matter of Executive-Legislative cooperation. The President can order reductions where Congress has already delegated spending authority.

The matter then comes to what shall be cut. Logically, it would seem that since we cannot take care of our own needs, we should curtail foreign aid which recently received a new $2.8 billion authorization. Foreign aid, moreover, is financed by general revenues where the big problem is. Closer study shows that we have been running a Federal deficit for some years, and a real argument can be made that we have been borowing to give-away foreign aid in low interest loans which may never be repaid. Therefore, it would seem that here is a program that ought to be curtailed, if we want to exercise some fiscal prudence.

Instead, the suggestion has been made that the Administration is considering cutting back the flow of highway funds to build interestate highways at a time when highway safety has become a national campaign. Moreover, we find that highway funds are financed by special highway user taxes and these taxes go into a trust fund to be used solely for highway construction. One wonders if any other nation on earth would attempt to exercise fiscal responsibility in such a fashion.

Congress should not try to shift its responsibility for appropriations and fiscal responsibility to the President. It should review the budget, take a firm stand on appropriation bills, and cut programs to fit the revenues it is willing to raise by taxation. But spending cuts ought to be relevant too, and in this, Congress needs the support of the Administration and the people. In the last analysis, financial responsibility is a national obligation.

Senator Jordan Reports:

By SEN. B. EVERETT JORDAN

WASHINGTON — Many North Carolina students are undoubtedly already giving at least occasional passing thoughts to the nation of trying to get temporary jobs wth Uncle Sam next summer.

Some may be intrigued with the idea of working in Washington, particularly in the political excitement of an election year.

For others the appeal could lie in the chance to mix play with pay in one of the many national parks and government-owned recreation areas that dot the country.

There are also those whose principal interest will be in any job giving them a chance to acquire some work experience and a financial stake needed to enter or continue college.

The opportunities, in a wide variety, will be there — though perhaps not in the numbers of some past years because of the current economy drive in government.

Those that are available will be open to any who can qualify by age and scores on competitive exams to be offered by the U. S. Civil Service Commission.

But let me add a word of warning at this point.

Don't procrastinate. If you plan to apply, do it now instead of next spring when the only answer you can expect is a polite "sorry, they're all filled."

Of course, merely applying won't insure a job. There were about 250,000 bids last year for only 31,000 jobs throughout the country, so the competition is stiff. Delaying an application will only make it tougher.

For the benefit of those wanting such summer work the Civil Service Commission has issued a booklet giving full information on what's available, eligibility requirements and instructions on how and when to apply.

Copies can be secured through my Washington office or by writing to the Civil Service Commission, 1900 E. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. If you write there, mark your letter "Summer Employment Examination" so that it won't get delayed in the shuffle.

Exams will be held December 9, January 13, February 10 and March 9 for those whose applications are received by November 8, December 8, January 5 and February 1, respectively. Since appointments will be made from each exam the odds are on the side of the early bidders.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I was reading this piece by one of them Washington column writers that has got me shook up considerable. If your readers ain't heard anything about it yet, they also was going to be mighty disturbed in this matter.

The U. S. Department of Commerce is already making plans to take the 1970 cerisus. And fer the first time in history they ain't going to appoint census takers to go from house to house. Instead, ever family was going to git a 20-page questionere and if they don't fill it out and mail it back, they was liable fer 60 days in jail or a $100 fine.

This column writer reported they was going to mail the questionere out to citizens in New Haven, Connecticut, fer a trial run to git the kinks out of it. This feller reported he had got one of these questioneres official through his Congressmen. It was a heap worser, he said, than the income tax returns.

First off, he allowed, if you wasn't pritty smart it would take a month's hard work to fill it out. Farthermore, he said if the head of the household was a little on the shaky side he could have a nervous breakdown afore he got it back in the mail. He said it was red tape at the worst and a invasion of privacy.

Them 20 pages, he reported, has got dozens of entries, numbers, circles, little boxes and spaces. He quoted verbatum some of the things, like "Answer questions 26 through 35 on everyone born prior to April 1953 including housewives, students, or disabled persons as well as part-time or full-time workers." And another place they got "Please list below all persons who stayed here overnight on Tuesday, April 4,except those you have already listed in column 1, page 2." And in this list you was supposed to tell if they was single or married, give full names, race, date of birth, home address and Zip Code.

In them 20 pages you was supposed to report on the number of bathtubs, washing machines, garbage disposal units, color and black and white televisions, automobiles, if you went to college, how many in the family was working, how much they earned last year, and income from rents and investments.

In one place, this feller reports, they say "Be sure you have filled a pair of pages on each person listed in col. 1, and pages 6 and 7 should be filled on the person listed on line 1, pages 8 and 9 on the person on line 2, etc. Please notice we need answers to questions 21 through 35 on ever person prior to April, 1953, even though they may not appear to apply."

I think, Mister Editor, you, had ought to write to our Congressman and git a copy of this census form and print it now so's your readers will have three year to fill it out. We already got too many nervous breakdowns around here.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

TEXT: "A teen-ager is grown up when he prefers passing an examination to passing the car ahead." - Banking.

A mother discovered her teen-age son slumped dejectedly in a living room chair on a Sunday afternoon. She asked her husband, sitting nearby, what calamity had struck their son.

"He wants to go to the corner drug store," dad said, "but the car won't start."

When teen-agers are criticized, remember that what they do as teenagers they learned long before they became teen-aged. However, it won't harm them to read what Police Chief L. D. Harris of Manassas Park Virginia wrote for a PTA meeting.

"Always we hear the plaintive teen-age cry: 'What can we do? Where can we go?' The answer is . . . go home. Hang storm windows, paint woodwork, rake leaves, mow the lawn, wash the car, learn to cook, scrub some

Around The Old Well

By JOAN PAGE

Some concrete proposals for improvement of public school education in the state were offered here October 26 at the 13th Annual Delegate Assembly of the North Carolina State School Boards Association.

Around 450 school board members, district and advisory committee members, superintendents and principals attended the day-long session on the University of North Carolina campus. The theme of the program was "Education Today for Tomorrow's Tasks."

In his keynote address to the educators, Chancellor John T. Caldwell of N.C. State University said the United States "is a long way from realizing a goal of universal and equal education for all."

Caldwell called on school board members to use their positions to help achieve equality of educational opportunity in the state.

The public schools, Caldwell said, should provide every individual an opportunity to develop his own unique capabilities and should focus attention on the whole of a child's make-up and not just his academic ability.

The school, he said, "is society's most hopeful instrument for improving the human condition and human outlook."

Faster and more radical consolidation of school districts and city and county schools may be required if equal educationl opportunity is to be assured for all in the state, he added.

"Equality of educational opportunity may lead to schemes of salary adjustment and alteration of class size to make teaching in the more remote areas of the state and in the more remote schools more attractive to the better teachers," he said.

"The most productive nation on the globe can afford an adequate educational system. The real question is whether we believe in these things," Caldwell declared.

"The people are going to pay — one way or the other. They are either going to pay for a truly adequate system of education or for dwarfed lives in the form of unemployed and frustrated people living in poverty and delinquency."

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles F. Carroll also addressed the group. He called for " state minimum salary schedule for teachers within the range of $6,000 for college graduates without experience to $11,000 for teachers with 20 years' experience.

"To those who say all teachers are not worthy of a salary of this sort, I say that unqualified, incompetent teachers should not be employed in the first place. The vast majority of teachers are deserving of compensation commensurate with their duties and responsibilities and the majority should not be penalized by weakness of the minority."

Carroll further recommended fringe benefits for teachers and other school personnel, more effective utilization of present personnel, and up-to-date, in-service education for teachers required to teach out of their fields of preparation.

Turning to the subject of teacher militancy, Carroll defined a militant person as one "aggressively active in a cause."

Rather than have militancy evolve into sanctions or strikes, Carroll suggested that teachers, school board members, administrators and lay people work together to "channel this agressiveness in behalf of a good cause into highly productive channels purposes."

As a means of getting zeal and energy in support of an improved program of public education, he advised school board members to formulate and adopt policies covering personnel, employment, grievances, agreements and related subjects.

"The need for all county and city boards of education and administrators to review personnel policies is imperative," he said.

"The efforts and co-operation of all persons affected should be brought nto the reviewing process with the idea of producing policies that recognize the rights of all parties. There is need to spell out more clearly the duties and responsibilit-

Health Tips

FROM THE American Medical Association

School days are almost here again for millions of American youngsters.

With the approach of the fall term, the American Medical Association reminds parents once again that there are health and safety considerations that are important in preparing the small fry for another nine months of studies.

The A.M.A. recommends a thorough health examination for 5- and 6-year-olds who are starting school for the first time. Your physician will know what to do. His examination will cover all aspects of your child's health, and will encompass hearing to make certain he can hear the teacher) and vision (to make sure he can see the blackboard). It is better if this examination can be made, and booster immunization given, a few weeks before school starts.

School boards in some communities require a health exam for beginning students. Many schools also require certain immunizations against infectious disease. Your doctor will know of the requirements in your neighborhood.

Most doctors feel that 4 or 5 thorough examinations during the school years are sufficient for healthy youngsters. These usually are spaced at the start of the first school year, about the fourth grade, about the seventh grade, at the ninth or tenth grade, and upon graduation. And, of course, if any untoward symptoms arise at any time, a visit to the doctor is in order. A thorough examination also is important if the child is participating in school athletics. The doctor should be told that junior is going out for football, so that he can look for any health problems that might be heightened by rough, contact sports.

In the excitement of the first few days of school, the smaller child may forget all of the safety warnings you've been teaching him. Each parent should make sure the child knows how to cross streets and intersections en route to and from school. He should know that crossing guards are there for his protection, and obey them. He should know about proper deportment on the about school bus. He should know the rules of bicycle safety.

Community Correspondence

By NELL LASHLEY

Our Community again is saddened by the death of one of its older citizens who had lived most of his life here. John Thomas Harding passed away Monday October, 23, at the Davie County Hospital. The entire community extends its heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family of Mr. Harding.

Mrs. Queen Bess Kennen fell at her home last Tuesday afternoon. Later in the day she was entered into the Forsyth Memorial Hospital. The latest report is that she is recovering nicely and expected home soon.

Miss Linda Caudle of Appalachian State University was home for the week end.

Mrs. E. C. James entered the Davie County Hospital last week for observation. She is expected to remain for a week or more.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hartman of Mocksville and Mrs. Lashley were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Scholtes in Winston-Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brock and children, Angela and Frank, spent the week end in Fremont the guests of Mrs. Gela Mustgrave.

Mrs. S. W. Furches joined Mr. and Mrs. Frank Furches of Salisbury, Friday for a week's fishing at Myrtle Beach. This is an annual trip they make because the fish bite better and the catch is larger at this time of the year.

Miss Margaret Brock, Mrs. B. C. Brock Sr., Mrs. Burr Brock Jr. and Mrs. Lashley motored to Eden Thursday where they were the dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. Basil M. Tucker. Eden is the new name for the consolidated towns of Leaksville-Draper-Spray.

Mr. and Mrs. David Welsh and children motored to Tennessee and visited relatives over the week end.

MRS. GAITHER LATHAM ENTERTAINS HOMEMAKERS

The Pino-Farmington Home Makers Club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. B. Latham with eleven members present and the president, Mrs. Gene Smith, presiding. The meeting opened with the singing of two songs followed by devotionals by Mrs. Lashley. She based her remarks on some wise sayings of Abraham Lincoln which could be used as guide lines for better and fuller living. He said much poverty could be averted if people were taught how to help themselves by producing an income in which they could meet their needs.

Rufus L. Brock of Mocksville presented the plans for the Pilot Mountain State Park project, and the work ahead to finance it. He spoke of the great need for the people in this area to become interested and to show this interest in talk, contribution and good advertising to other people. This is something that will be of great recreational value to our North Carolina People.

Mrs. Vernon Miller gave a short program on "How to get the most out of our Furnishing Dollar". She gave three points to follow—1-Take inventory of furnishings on hand, 2—Plan on paper actual needs, 3—buy the best, finances will allow.

During a social half hour Mrs. Latham served a tempting plate of persimmon pudding, potato chips, cookies, Hallow'een candy and coffee.

A new member, Mrs. David Welsh was welcomed into the club.

The Queen B Class of the Methodist Church held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Richard Brock Tuesday with 16 members present. The devotionals were given by Mrs. Kennen. She used a short story from the Guide Post, an inspiring message of courage "to do whatever comes to one's hand to do."

A unique way to boost finances for a Church project was the MONEY TREE. After a business session Mrs. Brock served a delicious plate of jello fruit salad with wafers, nuts and cokes.

Savings Bond Sales Continue Upward

This is 64.7 percent of the State's 1967 dollar quota of $70,400,000.

Combined sales of Series E and H Bonds for September amounted to $4,548,078, up .2 percent over September, 1966.

In Davie County, Bond sales for the month were $37,471. For the first nine months, sales totaled $228,353, which is 72.1 percent of the County's quota for this year, according to Knox Johnstone, who is Davie County Volunteer Chairman for the Bonds Program.

Local Guardsmen On Duty In Winston-Salem Riot

The Mocksville unit of the National Guard was called into action last weekend to assist in the handling of the racial riot in Winston-Salem.

The local unit, Company B, 2nd Battalion, 120th Infantry, 30th Division (2nd and 3rd Platoons) moved out of Mocksville around 2 a. m. Friday morning to Lexington where they joined the Lexington part of their unit and moved on to Winston-Salem.

Lt. Carl Clark of Lexington is the sub-unit commander of the local National Guard.

Orders for the mobilization of the local unit was received here around 11:15 p. m. Thursday night. By midnight nine men had reported. Others joined the unit later as they moved to Lexington and then on to Winston-Salem.

They arrived in Winston-Salem around 4 a. m. and were immediately assigned on patrol and stationary guard on Patterson Avenue and Liberty Streets. They were armed with M-1 rifles.

Joining with other companies from Hickory, Mount Airy, Newton and Conover, the members of the local National Guard Unit served on rotating shifts throughout the four day stay. They were relieved from duty and returned from Winston-Salem on Tuesday.

A number of men from the local unit found themselves under sniper fire Friday night.

Ronald Keaton of Mocksville Rt. was hit in the stomach by a .22 calibre bullet on Friday night. However, the bullet hit the zipper of his field jacket and ricocheted off. Keaton suffered only a slight bruise from the incident.

Around 50 men of the local unit were on active duty in Winston-Salem for the four days. They were quartered in the National Guard Armory in Winston-Salem and the Parkland High School.

This was the first time that the local unit has been called to active duty to participate in such an emergency.

Ronald Keaton, left, points to the torn zipper of his field jacket made by a sniper's bullet while he was on duty in Winston-Salem. Benny F. Brown, right, is examining the bullet hole on other side of the jacket.

Davie Has 1,101 Working In Textiles

Win, lose or draw, Davie County has a big stake in the upcoming battle in Congress over textile import quotas.

This is because Davie has 1,101 persons working in the county's three textile plants and whose income is approximately $4,720,000 a year according to the latest report issued by the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina.

The ESC report for 1966, but just issued, shows that gross annual payments to textile workers is 39.7 per cent of the county's yearly payroll of $11,877,426 for all non-farming workers.

The legislative proposals in both houses of Congress would limit textile imports on wool, man-made and blended fabrics to insure orderly growth of textile markets in the United States.

While it would allow foreign producers to share in the growth of the U. S. textile market, it would not let foreign manufacturers run away with the American market, thereby throwing American textile workers out of a job. The legislation is being supported by the entire North Carolina Congressional delegation.

In North Carolina there are 262,834 persons employed in the state's 1,167 mills and are paid $1,152,029,174 annually. These people are located in 78 of the state's 100 counties and account for 40.9 per cent of all industrial workers.

Other officers for the year are Rev. Fred Barnes, president; Harold Odom, vice-president; Mrs. Gene Smith, secretary; Mrs. Howard Hanes, treasurer; and Mrs. Harry Heidelberg, chairman of the Projects Committee.

Davie Vs North Davidson In Key Final Tilt Here Friday Night

The Davie County Rebels are in a position to decide the North Piedmont Conference championship Friday night as they tackle the strong and unbeaten North Davidson Black Knights.

The North Davidson team has a record of 5 wins, no losses, and 2 ties in the North Piedmont Conference. Second place West Rowan has a record of 8 wins, 1 loss and 1 tie. A victory by the Rebels on Friday night would give the championship to West Rowan. However, a win by the Black Knights will assure them of the championship.

The Rebels will have sixteen seniors playing their final football game for Davie on Friday night. They are:

Ends: Dale Myers, Don Bailey, Larry Sherrill and Gene Shelton
Tackle: Mike Chaffin
Guards: Fred Bailey, Tom Evans and Ray Keller
Center: Lewis Hall
Quarterback: Joe Mando
Halfbacks: Ricky Hudson, Frank Short, Dale Smith, Neal Walker and Henry Johnson.
Fullback: Darrell Murray.

The Rebels rolled over North Iredell 35 to 13 for their fifth win last Friday night. The win gave the Rebels a season record of 5 wins and 4 losses.

The Rebels were sparked by the passing of Ronnie Shoaf and the running of Darrell Murray and the receiving of Dennis Cartner and Don Everhardt.

Shoaf filling in for the injured Joe Mando completed 5 of 11 passes for 215 yards and three of them went for touchdowns. Everhardt scored on passes of 33 and 36 yards.

Davie scored a touchdown in each of the first three periods and then added two more plus a safety to rack up 15 points in the final stanza.

Shoaf and Cartner electrified the crowd with an 88-yard scoring play in the third period. Shoaf, rushed hard, escaped a bevy of North Iredell players after he couldn't find a receiver. Then he spotted Cartner all alone in the flat. The fleet halfback showed his heels to at least four opposing players and streaked 88 yards for the touchdown which broke the game wide open.

Davie scored first on a four yard run by Hank Ridge, but the extra point failed. North Iredell, winless in the conference, took the lead after Morrison hit Bailey on a 40-yard scoring play. Morrison ran the point. North Iredell led, 7-6, at the end of the first quarter.

Shoaf's pass to Everhart put Davie ahead at the half, 13-7. Cartner's run and an extra point by Cat Smith put Davie ahead 20-7.

Davie scored touchdowns on a pass to Everhart ,a two yard plunge by Neal Walker and Don Bailey racked up Randolph in the end zone for a safety. Norton kicked an extra point to complete Davie's 15-point fourth period.

Red Cross News

The Red Cross sent two emergency mobile units and disaster staff members into the Brownsville section of Pensacola, Florida recently to assist victims of the torando that hospitalized five persons and destroyed 11 homes there.

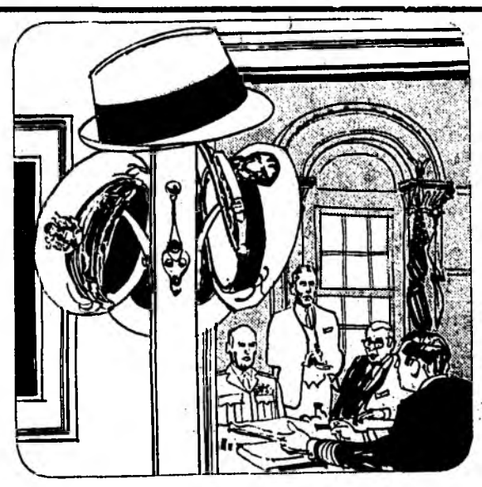

The Red Cross has cared for more than 4,000 persons who fled from their homes in the metropolitan Los Angeles-Orange County, California area due to four major hill fires.

The Red Cross has now spent or committed for expenditure $2,787,626 in helping 18,910 South Texas families which suffered losses in Hurricane Beulah and the floods which followed.

Edward Brandhorst, Disaster Services director for the Red Cross operation, has released figures on the mounting expenditures and the total cost of Red Cross relief will be more than $4,000,000. This is the 2nd most expensive operation in the past decade. All financial contributions will be welcomed. Reserves are low due to Red Cross service in the Vietnam war.

Te ricksha used in the Orient today was invented by Jonathan Goble, a U. S. Marine who visited Japan with Perry in 1854.

The value of property saved by the U. S. Coast Guard last year amounted to three times the sum alloted to the Coast Guard for its operation during the same period.

Our man with the Armed Forces

Because beer is such a favorite with service men, we brewers like to do all we can to keep its surroundings right. So USBA representatives serve as adviser members of the Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Boards throughout the country.

These men from the USBA operate hand in hand with service and civilian police, with malt beverage licensees, public boards and committees: military, civil, professional. Object: to protect those who are underage, and to insure strict observance of the law.

We're proud of the work they do.

Veterans Day Is Saturday

On Saturday, November 11, the entire Nation will observe Veterans Day 1967. Although the date was observed originally as the anniversary of the World War I armistice, the observance of Veterans Day 1967 is in no way a consecration of the memory of any past armed conflict.

The observance of Veterans Day 1967 will be more than an expression of esteem by America for her veterans. It will be even more than a demonstration of appreciation for a new generation of gallant Americans who serve the nation's purpose today.

Yes, Veterans Day 1967 will bring home to millions of Americans the fact that FREEDOM IS NOT FREE!

"The inescapable price of Freedom," said Gen. Douglas MacArthur, "is the ability to preserve it from destruction.'

How valuable is freedom? Ask the millions from Central Europe to Southeast Asia, to the Caribbean, who have fled the tyranny of godless communism. They seek that freedom—that individual dignity—which was bought by the courage of our Nation's founders and retained by heroism in equal portion to their courage by succeeding generations of Americans.

More than 20 million living Americans, from personal experience, know the price of our precious freedom.

No one hates war more than the war veteran. But that same veteran knows that the lofty goals of freedom, an honorable world peace, and recognition of individual human dignity cannot be attained while there are forces seeking to dominate the world through acts of aggression.

The observance of Veterans Day must be an expression of national unity—a message, clearly understandable to those forces of aggression seekings of internal weakness. The citizens of Davie County can do their country a vital service by their participation in the Veterans Day program here.

In so doing, we will not only honor our veterans—our champions of freedom—but also acknowledge the price which must be paid on demand for our freedom. Let us further resolve by our participation in Veterans Day 1967 that our percious freedom shall be preserved and that we shall perservere in our defense of freedom's cause until that day dawns on a world blessed with an honorable peace.

VETERAN'S DAY, A Day of Pride and Honor . . .

On this day, we pause in remembrance and gratitude, as we salute our veterans. Proudly, we honor all who so valiantly served their country, in defense of freedom, and those who, with equal valor, serve today.

Not only on Veteran's Day, but every day, let us pledge to give purpose to their loyalty and sacrifice. Let us strive unceasingly to maintain the democratic principals they have so gloriously upheld.

The Stake In Vietnam

Americans have "every right" to be fighting in Vietnam and only the United States 'has the will and power to stop Red China's expansionist march."

These are the views of the Malaysian Ambassador to the United States, Tan Sri Ong Yoke-Lin, in a November Reader's Digest interview with Carl Rowan titled "What Is at Stake in Vietnam: An Asian View."

"The United States has every right to be there, helping South Vietnam to repel aggression and meet the needs of her people," says the Ambassador.

"You also have a 'selfish' interest. Red China has openly and brazenly declared her aggressive intentions. If you don't make a stand in Vietnam, you risk a much bigger war in years to come.

"No fair-minded Asian believes that the United States has any ulterior economic or territorial motives. We are aware that, instead of keeping territories that you occupied in World War II, you returned them and spent vast amounts of money to rebuild them . . .'

He doubts the possibility of a negotiated settlement and expects the war eventually to fizzle out—but only after the communists are convinced that they have no hope of gaining their objectives.

"The independence of more than 200 million people in Southeast Asia; the rice bowl of the world; vast supplies of rubber, tin and oil; strategic control of critical sea lanes, the possibility of a wider war; and the integrity of a great nation, the United States—all are at stake.

"And much more—not the least of which is the simple desire of small, weak countries like mine to live free of harassment and aggression by the great powers, free of foreign coercion. That is what is at stake."

Fire Escape Plan Saves Lives

Does your family have an escape plan, in the event your home catches fire? It should: their lives could depend on it.

Before fire strikes — and it strikes frequently — the American Insurance Association urges that you sit down with your family and decide on the safest and quickest way to leave your house, should a fire break out.

In preparing an escape plan, the Association advises:

1. Draw up a floor plan, indicating all doors, windows, stairways and porches.

2. Determine alternate ways to reach the ground from each room, especially upstairs bedrooms, in the event any one escape route is blocked.

3. Hold fire drills at night as well as the day, so that each member of the family learns how to leave the premises in a hurry. Have the children lie down on their beds, then have someone yell "Fire!" The children should be able to get out of the house in less than a minute.

4. If there are elderly persons or young ones who need special care, someone should be assigned to aid them.

5. Agree on a place outside the house where everyone must assemble after leaving the premises.

Just how serious fires have become in our country is illustrated by these facts:

Every day, more than 1,000 homes are hit by fires; every 44 minutes fire claims a life, and last year fires claimed the lives of more than 12,000 persons.

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

The critical mood of the people is showing up more and more in the Congressional debate over most of the remaining bills on the legislative calendar.

The depth of the impasse on many of these bills is reflected by the fact that there is little mention of adjournment. In other years, there has been a detectable speed-up in the consideration of bills at this point as a prelude to the end of the session. The problems this year, however, run deep. The debate over our Vietnam policies and how to extricate ourselves with honor from that commitment is a continuing one. The war in turn has brought about a serious budgetary battle between the Administration and even the irrespective majorities in both Houses of Congress. A few weeks ago the House by a lopsided vote passed a continuing appropriation bill to permit government agencies whose funds have not yet been approved to operate. It attached a Federal spending ceiling on that appropriation measure. The Senate Appropriations Committee, however, did not favor any appropriation ceiling on this stopgap money bill. The measure became an issue in House-Senate conferences.

Many problems have also brought the foreign aid and poverty programs into new legislative battles. The foreign aid money bill appears far from settled. The House Labor Committee is redrafting the Administration's poverty program.

The Administration's package of civil rights proposals to aid minority races has won no concensus of support after months of study. Instead, last summer's violence and riots in major cities have brought proposals to strengthen police and Federal forces in dealing with massive violations of law and order. Last week, the Senate Judiciary Committee was still considering this bill and what its provisions should be.

Anti-crime legislation has run into drafting difficulties, too. The Senate Judiciary Committee has been working for weeks on a measure to aid local enforcement officials in their efforts to cope with mounting crime rates. This bill remains as one of the major legislative concerns to be resolved at this session.

U. S. trade policy became a major concern last month when the Senate Finance Committee attached an amendment to the Social Security amendments it is considering. Four members of the Cabinet sought to stem consideration of the trade quotas provisions which industries have urged to protect millions of American jobs against inroads made by foreign imports.

Most of these problems which confront Congress have been aggravated by reason of the Vietnam War and the critical need to deal with the financial problems facing the country. This situation has made it necessary to make some hard choices by reason of growing opposition to more taxes, more spending, and more Federal controls over individuals and the economy. In this situation, it is difficult to say what the outcome of these measures will be until the final bills are worked out.

60-Second Sermon

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Where there is no shame, the kingdom is insecure."—Seneca.

An Englishman asked a Scotsman what he would rather be if he were not a Scot.

"Why, I'd rather be an Englishman," was the reply.

Turning to an Irishman, he asked,

"And what would you be if you were not an Irishman?"

The man thought for a moment and replied,

"Sure, and I'd be ashamed of meself!"

While it is said that nothing is so shameful as to be ashamed, we are inclined to the view that the decay of moral and spiritual standards today is caused by a lack of shame. Seneca, the Roman philosopher, maintained that where there was no shame, the kingdom was insecure. It is equally true that to have individual security we must have a sense of shame. "He that has no

Washington Report

By CONGRESSMAN
JAMES T. BROYHILL

Pressure for adjournment of Congress has developed strongly during the past several weeks and it now looks as though an effort will be made to close the books on the first session of the 90th Congress within the next 30 days. While a number of important bills still remain to be disposed of, the so-called "must" legislation is receiving principal attention now. Disagreements between the House and the Senate about spending measures have been the main concern of the House and the Senate in recent days. Last week, for instance, conference reports, principally on appropriations bills arose in some form every day.

It is seldom that the House and the Senate will pass a bill in precisely the same form. When a particular bill is passed in differing versions, the differences must be resolved. Only after agreement is reached and the two bodies can approve identical language, can a bill be sent to the President for his consideration and his signature. Reaching these agreements on the spending bills has been a stormy process this year. Last week, various appropriations bills were cleared for the President, but other decisions were deferred because of disagrements.

One such bill contained the appropriations for the operation of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Earlier this year, the President submitted a budget request for $5.4 billion for the nation's space program. There were strong feelings, which I shared, that in the order of national priorities, the spending level in this program could be sensibly reduced. In the final version, the appropriations legislation reduced the figure by more than half a billion dollars below what had been submitted in the budget. This is $379 million below the funds appropriated last year although it is still $5.5 million above the figure originally approved by the House.

Following this 10% reduction in the space program budget, the House turned its attention to the huge appropriations bill for the government's Independent Offices and the Department of Housing and Urban Development. This has been one of the most controversial measures the House considered this year since it involved a variety of new Federal programs. Approximately $700 million had been cut from the President's budget request for a total reduction of about $6.3%.

This legislation included funds for the rent supplement program which committed the Federal government to pick up the bill for this program for some years to come. Unfortunately, the House was unable to hold the line against this funding even though the compromise version is far below what had been requested.

A third conference report settled the debate about public works and atomic energy spending through next June. The final figure was placed at $4.7 billion which represented a cut of approximately $117 million from the budget request.

Funds for the Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce were brought back from the House-Senate conference reduced below the budget by approximately $178 million. Deep cuts were also approved this week when the bill providing funds for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare emerged from a second House-Senate conference. Cuts for these departments amounted to about $168 million below the budget figures.

There still remain some departments of government whose appropriations bills await Congressional action. These include the Poverty Program and the Foreign Aid program, both of which rank among the most controversial Federal efforts at this time. The spending for the operations of those agencies for which legislation has not been written is authorized by a continuing resolution. Resolutions of this kind are normally passed without great argument. However, this year, the resolution is being used as a parliamentary means to enforce spending cuts that many Members of Congress feel are essential. The House and Senate are in strong disagreement about this question and the argument is scheduled to continue in an effort to work-out a compromise version of this measure. The results of this battle will tell the story of the success or failure of the Congress to apply the brakes to non-essential spending this year.

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

OPPOSITION . . . Robert Morgan of Harnett County, experienced legislator, is almost sure to announce his candidacy for Attorney General on the Democratic ticket—and thus give Incumbent Wade Bruton a lot of opposition.

Bruton is regarded as a conservative, but he is not as far in this direction as Morgan. This will be an interesting race.

COUNCIL OF STATE . . . You can put down as certainty that each member of the Council of State will have an opponent to wrestle with between now and the General Elections just a year hence.

And just who are these Council members (in addition to Governor and Lieutenant-Governor)?

Secretary of State Thad Eure; State Auditor Henry Bridges; State Treasurer Edwin Gill; Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles F. Carroll; Commissioner of Agriculture James A. Graham; Commissioner of Labor Frank Crane; and Edwin S. Lanier, Commissioner of Insurance.

Attorney General Bruton is secretary to the Council of State, and is generally regarded as being a member.

Democratic opposition has already announced against Ed Lanier, probably the hardest-working man in the whole bunch.

There is general belief here that a Democrat will oppose each Council of State member in the Primary next spring. Whether this will all be an Organized Opposition, nobody seems to know at this time.

Then, if the Council member gets by this hurdle, he will have a Republican waiting for him out there in the bushes come fall. So, it looks like a rough 1968 for Council of State members.

THE HEART . . . Where is the heart of the Democratic Party in North Carolina? This is a difficult question to answer—but many a person would say that the Council of State is as close to the heart as you could hope to get.

Go to your big Democratic gathering each two years; and you will find men like Thad Eure, Jim Graham, Edwin Gill, and Frank Crane carrying the ball.

As Commissioner of Agriculture, Kerr Scott was a member of the Council of State before becoming Governor and Senator. Probably no man alive has devoted more hours to Forty work than has Thad Eure since he first got into Democratic politics as a member of the Legislature from Hertford County in 1920.

North Carolina has gone Democratic when many a sister state in the South was swinging Republican. Appreciation for this must go largely to the Council members. Yes, many of them are getting old—as we all know and are reminded by young editorial writers from Pensylvania, Ohio, etc., every day or two.

This State may go Republican next year—the Republicans are young and fresh and new-faced—but it won't be due to any malfeasance, misfeasance, or shortcomings on the part of Council of State members. North Carolina has good, solid, honest Government.

Look to Washington—to the Supreme Court there, to bureaucracy, to the Great Society and Rusk—and you will find the real germs for Republican strength in North Carolina. Study the Potomac. It's pretty well poulited.

WILSON SALUTE . . . Henry Hall Wilson, former Union County legislator who went to the White House with the late President Kenny got a fine boost this past week in the nationall distributed "Business Week" magazine.

Under its pages headed "Washington Outlook" was this comment: "White House liaison with Congress—once the pride of the Johnson Administration—is faltering in the midst of the conflict over tax and spending policies. The smooth executive lobbying operation formerly run from the White House by Lawrence F. O'Brien and Henry H. Wilson is missed by Administration supporters. O'Brien now concentrates chiefly on his duties as Postmaster General. Wilson left to head the Chicago Board of Trade.'

Wilson, who took his new job on June 1, receives $100,000 per year.

DOWN, BOY! . . . Reports have it that LBJ's daughter has so far refused to let the President lift his little grandson. And why?

Its ears aren't strong enough yet . . .

STILL HERE . . . The warm, humid, and wind-free weather during October, and into November, stretched out the beauty of autumn in North Carolina.

The bright colors were formally kissed goodbye two or three weeks ago; but then the leaves postponed their departure. If you can't get back into the mountains, drive on Highway No. 49 between Concord and Asheboro. Breathtaking is the word for it . . . the Uwharries. Go from Spring Hope via Highway 98 to the town of Wake Forest and over to Durham.

But the apple stands along the highway—brilliant re-green-yellow splotches—from Mount Airy to the foot of the Blue Ridge! Grimes Golen, Delicious, Rome Beauty, Stayman Winesap, Black Twig, and York. Cider and pumpkins and fresh mustard greens. Nothing could be finer than North Carolina in the fall.

Uncle Dave from Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The session at the country store Saturday night was took up mostly with bankers and hogs. On account of me usual keeping a little note at the bank, I don't want my banker to git no bad ideas and thinking I was putting the two together.

But Zeke Grubb reported he had saw where a column writer named E. W. White had reported from New York that all banks in the country was soon going on the automatic.

This feller said the Federal Reserve System had put in computers and was notifying banks they couldn't handle no more checks if they didn't have that "series of magnetic ink numbers" at the bottom. He went on to say he wasn't agin machinery in general, that he thought the egg beater was the best machinery ever invented, but he was strong agin them bank computers wearing the pants and making all the decisions.

Josh Clodhopper was agreed 100 per cent with this feller, said he could recollect when his Pa would give a farmhand a check wrote on a paper poke and the feller would take it to the bank and git it cashed.

I ain't so fur to the right, Mister Editor, that I think banks had ought to handle checks made out on paper pokes, but I ain't so fur to the left neither that I'm in favor of banks gitting crazy and going 100 per cent on the automatic. Maybe you would have a few words to say in this matter, Mister Editor.

And it was at this point that Ed Doolittle brung bankers and hogs together. Ed said he had just received his Farm Journal magazine and they was some mighty interesting things in it about hogs. They claimed from 13 to 53 per cent of all hogs in the country had stummick ulcers.

And the Farm Journal experts blamed most of it on the hog owners. It warned buyers to see how hogs reacted to the owner afore they took his hogs. If the farmer has crowded them in tight, narror quarters, made 'em fight fer positions, step on each other to eat and drink, disturbed their rest and treated 'em rough, you could expect them hogs to have ulcers.

Clem Webster said he didn't want to git quoted on the matter on account of his old lady might hear about it, but he was of the opinion a heap of married men, maybe 13 to 53 per cent, had ulcers fer the same reason. They was constant gitting nagged, disturbed and treated rough by their old lady.

Personal, Mister Editor, I git smarter as I git older and I ain't got no comment on bankers, hogs or wives. They say things was now gitting so mixed up a doctor will even tell you if they ain't nothing wrong with you.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

WHY TEST SOIL?

Why should I have my soil tested? This is a reasonable question because after all, it requires some effort to take soil samples properly and to see that they reach the laboratory along with the information that must accompany them. This question might be partially answered with another question; Why do you check the fuel gauge on your automobile before you start to town or on a trip? You check your fuel gauge to make sure you don't run out of gas before you reach your destination. In spite of this modern convenience, people still run out of gas and likewise each year many crops, "run out of fuel," before harvest time says Mr. Leo Williams, County Extension Chairman.

Having your soil tested is in effect checking your soil's fuel tank. It tells you what the nutrient levels are in your soil; but it goes one step further. A soil test report also tells you the kind and amounts of nutrients that you need to add to reach a certain goal or destination. A soil test is not an end in itself, for it won't help you increase yields and profits one bit if you don't use the information it provides. It may help you save some money by enabling you to spend your fertilizer dollar more wisely but what is much more important, it can help you make more money by helping you make sure that a nutrient deficiency is not the limiting factor in your crop yields.

Have your soils tested as soon as possible reminds Mr. Williams. Don't wait till the last minute, avoid the pre-planting season rush. Take your samples carefully, as directed and use the information as guide lines in planning your fertilizer program for next year. Soil testing is a service provided you by the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. It can be one of the most valuable services available to you, if used properly. Soil sampling supplies are available now at your County Agricultural Offices.

Ten of the girls then came forward, one at a time, lit a small canle of her own, and stated one of the Girl Scout laws. The four girls who were members of a Brownie troop last year then came forward to light a candle and repeat the promise. These girls were Jill Howard, Pat Howell, Brenda Broadway, and Sandy Daniels. Mary Lynn Eaton also came forwar for rededication at this time.

The girls ended the ceremony with the singing of "When 'er You Make A Promise." Mrs. Vernon Dartt, an Assistant Leader, also participated in the program.

First Grade Honor Mrs. Robah W. Smith

The First Grade of the Farmington Elementary School in Cooperation with their teacher, Mrs. R. J. Duncan, honored Mrs. Robah Smith, Tuesday on Hallow'een eve with the parents, a grandparent, and the Principal Dwight Jackson, as special guests. The little hosts and hostesses met the guests at the door and led them by the hand to be seated on the small Primary chairs. The class room was decorated with the results of the children's handiwork. Hallow'een motifs of pumpkin lanterns, witches, black cats added snap and color to the many evidences of reading and number devices for learning which the children use in the every day routine of gaining knowledge.

Mrs. Duncan and Mrs. J. C. Harpe presided over an attractive refreshment table of cup cakes, cookies, milk and coffee. The children themselves had made the chocolate oatmeal cookies. For entertainment the children sang several songs. Mrs. Smith was presented a jolly fat pumpkin. Thirty-five children and fifteen parents enjoyed the occasion.

Fifth Grade make an Educational Tour

The Fifth Grade of the Farmington School under the supervision of their teacher Mrs. Roland West and a parent, Mrs. J. C. Harpe, took the county activity bus Wednesday and visited old Salem. Here they enjoyed a lecture tour especially for Fifth Graders. It told the life that a child lived in Colonial days. Then they drove out to Bethabara, the first Moravian settlement in North Carolina. Another high light was a visit with Myron Borax at the Nature Science Center. They ate picnic lunch at Old Salem and discussed the interesting sights they had seen. They returned to the school a happy singing crew, in time to board the bus home. The children praised the courteous bus driver, Randy Renegar.

Farmington Community Cemetery

The seven trustees, with W. W. Spillman as Chairman and Miss Margaret Brock as Secretary and Treasurer, of the Farmington Community Cemetery are doing a commendable job in getting the Cemetery into better condition. If you have not been there lately you will be pleased at the change for the better that has taken place in this area of peace and rest. Land has been reclaimed from the clearing of ground of trees and undergrowth and the filling in of a widening ditch with dirt salvaged from the road sides by the N.C. Highway Department. This once gaping ditch is now grassed and mowed along with the other area. Families are helping in that they are paying Fred Hager of Cleveland to sand blast the discolored grave stones. Boy Brock and his wife, Pearlie, are thinning two acres of wooded growth and clearing the refuse away. Arthur Scott and his family have mowed the entire area about twice a month during the summer mowing season.

The time and work that the many other interested people have donated in doing many little things in cleaning up the withered flowers and old containers left on the graves has also added much to the housekeeping of the large sacred area where the birds keep watch as they sing in this silent village of common interest.

Visit our cemetery and see for yourself then if you have any questions as how you can help maintain a beautiful resting place for those who have gone on before and for those yet to come to this peaceful sacred ground, contact any of the trustees. The trustees are W. W. Spillman, Miss Margaret Brock, Mrs. Queen Bess Kennen, Mrs. Odell James, Joe B. Smith, Luther L. West, and Eddie Newsome.

The Bread of Life

The Churches of Christ cordially invite you to attend the regular worship services. You will be warmly received into our periods of worship.

In the study of God's Word we observe many examples of mankind; some superior, some good, some fair, and some terribly poor. This is one asset which makes the reading of the Bible so interesting. We often see ourselves in the likeness of those described in the inspired Word.

There is one character connected closely with the life of Christ whose personality fits many Twentieth-Century individuals. His name is very familiar and very distasteful!

This individual was one of the chosen Apostles. He lived with the Master and saw the miracles performed with beauty and ease. He further knew of the excellence of Jesus Christ through his superior knowledge and wisdom. He had eaten with the Lord on numerous occasions, probably being present when Jesus caused five loaves and two fishes to feed five thousand men.

With such a background as this, he was still a thief. John 12 tells us of the incident when Mary anointed Jesus causing this man to show his true character when he suggested that this ointment should have been sold and the money given to the poor. But John goes further and reveals that the other apostle was not concerned for the poor, but was their treasurer and an embezzler.

Have you come to a conclusion as to the identity of this character? His name was Judas Iscariot, the man who betrayed even the Son of God.

On the other hand, let us make an application of a principle. Even though Judas was very familiar with the Master, he was not so attached to him that money had ceased to be his god.

Often we suggest that we are outstanding Christians because we are so "close" to God. Just remember . . . so was Judas!

The Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howell attended worship services at Mt. Sinai Baptist Church in Catawba county. The Rev. M. E. Walker is pastor there.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonzo West, Jr. of Winston-Salem called recently at the home of their mother, Mrs. Lula West.

The fifth Sunday annual Union meeting was held at Cedar Creek Baptist Church with the Rev. O. D. Daniels and brother E. J. Eaton in charge. Five churches were represented and a very good meeting was reported.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to the Eller and Frost family. The Frost families are from Davie County.

MORE ABOUT

shame has no conscience", said Thomas Fuller, 17th century religious writer, and W. G. Benham declared that such a person had no honor.

It is far more wholesome to correct error through shame than by fear. Fear restricts, confines, debilitates. Shame cuts deep, but offers freedom to correct error and start over. Don't be ashamed of being ashamed. Those who feel shame have depth that enables them to steer safely where the shallow shameless will run aground.

Health Tips

FROM THE American Medical Association

An innocuous-looking little spider named "The Brown Recluse" has recently been found to be even more dangerous than the long-feared "Black Widow."

The Brown Recluse has become enough of a health problem—several deaths and a number of serious bites—to become a subject of a research study and a recent report published in the Medical News Section of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The spider tries to steer clear of humans—hence its name—but because it likes to hide in dark recesses of buildings, it comes under inadvertent human assault in bedding, shoes and other places where it seeks daytime refuge.

The Brown Recluse has been found in at least 13 states in the South, Southwest and Midwest, and is thought to be moving into other sections of the country. Because of the spider's tendency to retreat into wadded-up newspapers or blankets or other dark areas in daytime, it easily could be transported north by vacationers to states where it has not yet been seen.

The spider may bite without the victim being aware of it. There is little early pain associated with a bite. Unlike the Black Widow, both males and females can inject venom.

Pain may be felt in two to eight hours, followed by inflammation of the skin, blistering, hemorrhage and ulceration.

Of the Brown Recluse's bite, one researcher told JAMA News:

"Several deaths have been attributed to this spider. Our data indicate a biological poison much more potent than known snake venoms, and probably more toxic than venom from the Black Widow spider." Exactly how the venom acts remains to be determined.

Farmington Classes Learn With Modern Telephone System

Telephones have been ringing this week in the classrooms of the Farmington Elementary Schools.

"Hello, this is Sherry!"

"You have a pretty dress on, Patsy!"

"This is Derek. I want to ask you a question!"

These and other such similar comments take place as the students experiment with a modern communications system under the guidance and supervision of their teacher.

The Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation has provided a dial telephone system in a self-contained mobile unit for use by schools of the area served by them. This unit is complete with eight brightly colored telephones.

The unit is mounted on wheels so that it can be easily moved from one location to another. Last week it was installed in the Farmington School and the Farmington Fifth Grade of Mrs. Betty West became the first classroom in Davie County to use the unit.

The purpose of the switchboard in its present form is to provide an educational tool for schools to use. As such a tool, it may be used by almost any age group from the first grade through high school.

For the first graders, it may be used to teach the following:

a. Identify colors of sets with names of students using sets.

b. Identify and relate uses of numbers to beginners.

c. Connect the written name of a color with the color by writing the telephone color with the telephone number on blackboard and assigning a student a person to call. The child looks at the person, and sees the color of the telephone, then obtains telephone number from color and number list on blackboard.

In a more advanced class the telephone system is used to teach how to use the telephone by dialing and talking on real telephones.

The upper grades use it in learning practical telephone manners and correct grammar usage.

High school science classes use it to illustrate electricity, magnetism, etc. demonstrated by the equipment.

This mobile system was reconditioned and put in its present operating condition by William Crownfield, Engineer with the Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation at Yadkinville. The equipment formerly provided dial telephone service to the East Bend community from 1948 to 1954. At the time its use was discontinued in 1954, it served approximately 75 telephones.

The idea of converting this equipment into a mobile unit for school use was the original idea of Mr. Crownfield.

The Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Cooperative will make the switchboard available to school of the area requesting it.

Children in the Fifth Grade of Mrs. Betty West at the Farmington School use a real telephone system to learn many things. The mobile system is made available to the schools of the area by the Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation.

Engineer with the Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Cooperative, Bill Crownfield (left) explains the automatic switchboard operation to Mrs. Betty West, teacher, and Dwight Jackson, Principal of the Farmington Elementary School. Mr. Crownfield created this unit for use by the schools.

Farm - City Week Is Nov. 17 - Nov. 23

President Lyndon B. Johnson has proclaimed the week of November 17 through November 23 as 1967 National Farm-City Week, according to Garland E. Still, Work Unit Conservationist.

The week's observance is sponsored nationally by Kiwanis International in cooperation with soil and water conservation districts.

"The event is an example of the recognition given by civic clubs and other town and city groups to the interdependence of farm and city people," said Clay Hunter, chairman of the Davie Soil and Water Conservation District.

President Johnson urged that the observances emphasize:

1. The necessity of facing the challenge of the future in agriculture simultaneously with meeting the needs of today—a theme which the Department of Agriculture calls "Agriculture/2000."

2. The need to help hungry nations help themselves to become more productive—the ultimate solution to food shortage problems.

3. The moral and practical imperative of creating a better total environment for all our citizens in both rural and urban communities, by removing the causes of poverty, discrimination, and ignorance, by controlling pollution, and by wisely and productively using our soil, water, forest, and other renewable resources

4. The importance of continuing to build an economically sound family-farm agriculture and visually beautiful countryside.

Johnstone Named Key Banker

A leading Mocksville banker has been named "County Key Banker" for Davie County. He will coordinate the farm activities of the N. C. Bankers Association in this area.

NCBA President W. Charles Barrett, of Laurinburg, has announced that John Johnstone will serve as County Key Banker during the next 12 months. Mr. Johnstone is Cashier of Bank of Davie.

For over 20 years the NCBA has received national recognition for its notable program of service to agriculture in North Carolina. Noting that the NCBA continues to place increased emphasis on this service, President Barrett thanked the 100 County Key Bankers for their contribution to this record.

He called attention to the projects sponsored by the Association such as the annual Farm Credit Conference, the two-week school of N. C. State University for 150 young farm leaders from every section of North Carolina. These scholarships have totaled over 1,000, all expenses being paid by their hometown banks. Another project is the land judging contest in the interest of soil conservation.

Barrett also reported that the banks of North Carolina continue to lend more money to farmers than any other institutional group of lenders.

County-Wide Warfare On Rats Planned

County commissioners, agricultural officials, county health personnel, and other representatives from organizations all over Davie County, met in the County Office Building, Wednesday, November 8th, and declared a county-wide war on rats.

Giving facts relative to the rat problem were Mr. Leo Williams, County Extension Chairman, Mr. Jolly Duncan, County Health Sanitarian, and Mr. H. R. Hendrix, Chairman of the County Board of Commissioners. They indicated that rats cause a lot of damage to farm and food supplies, destroy property, carry and spread disease. Because of rats traveling habits, a county-wide effort will be necessary to win the battle against them.

A campaign to reduce and control the local rat population will be conducted during the month of December. Plans are to secure, package, and distribute sufficient rat bait for every household and farm in the county. This bait will be available free of charge to all residents early in December.

Mocksville Farm & Garden Service, Junker & Son Feed Mill, J. P. Green Milling Company, and Mocksville Feed Mill, are supporting the project by supplying some materials needed for bait preparation.

DAVIE COUNTY TEACHERS were honored with a "Coffee" Tuesday afternoon of this week by the Mocksville Woman's Club. The event was held in the Multi-Purpose Room of Davie County Library and was given as part of the community observance of American Education Week. The above photo shows only a few of those attending. Decorations on the table were in the Thanksgiving motif.

Davie Rebels Lose To North Davidson

North Davidson High's Black Knights captured the North Piedmont Conference championship by defeating the Davie Rebels 21 to 14 last Friday night and will meet Lexington on Friday night for the Piedmont Championship.

The loss gave the Rebels a .500 season. In conference play the Rebels won 4 and lost 4. Overall they won 5 and lost 5. They finished in a three way tie for fourth place with East Rowan and Mooresville.

High's Falcons, who had finished their season, would have claimed the title.

North Davidson rolled up a 21-0 lead at halftime and then had to fight off a strong Davie County rally to take the victory.

Davie County charged back for a touchdown in the first period after recovering a North Davidson fumble at the 20. Quaterback Joe Mando went over from the one and Dale Smith scrimmaged the extra point.

Davie marched 80 yards in the last period to cut the deficit to one touchdown. Henry Ridge and Dennis Carter sparked the drive. Cartner ran 47 yards on one play. Ridge went over from the eight, and Smith added the point.

North Davidson capitalized on a break for its first score. It took over at the Davie 20 after a bad pass from center, and Steve Evans scored from the one. Keith Scott added the point.

Quarterback Eddie Koontz passed 24 yards to Jeff Koontz for the second North Davidson touchdown in the second period and threw 18 yards to End Ronnie Ashby for another marker.

Davie held the edge in first downs, 12-10, and yards rushing, 212 to 110.

Farmington Football Packers Honored

By MRS. NELL LASHLEY

The players of the Little League Foot Ball Team composed of boys from the 6, 7 and 8th. grades of the Farmington and Smith Grove Schools, and the 8 Cheer Leaders, girls were honored Monday night in the Farmington School Cafeteria by the Parents and Friends of the boys and girls who have so well represented their School and Community.

There are 22 boys on the Team and 8 pretty girls to lead in the cheers for the team. The Cheer Leaders are, Marie Welsh, Becky Seats, Cindy Boger, Susan Parker, Kathy Latham, Kathy Allen, and Carol Shore. The coaches who have given untiringly of their time, energy and know-how to help these boys to learn how to play this popular sport are Donald Riddle, head coach, Dwight Jackson, Danny Smith, Paul Spillman, and Richard Brock as general manager. Stan Riddle added much too as the Water Boy. During the short season the boys won four games, lost one and tied one.

A picnic supper prepared by the mothers filled six long tables. The temptation to pile the food high on the plate and readily over eat was yielded to with great pleasure. There was all kinds of food from meats to sweets. Mr. Riddle returned thanks before the two lines filed by the tables and helped themselves.

Mr. Bill Peeler, a coach at Davie High brought a timely message in which he complimented the Community on its civic pride in supporting the athletic activities. He said that sports played right teach the players how to have enjoyment and also how to take disappointments. These taken in the right attitude help in over-coming hard knocks. He emphasized the fact that one should be ever mindful that while they play the game, they too must work to win in education.

Mr. Riddle introduced the Team, the Cheer Leaders, the Coaches, the Manager and the Principal of the School, Dwight Jackson, and Mr. John McDaniel, President of the Little League Association of the Davie County Schools. He spoke of the good work being done and how this will be of great benefit as these little leagers take their places in the High School. Mrs. Nell H. Lashley was introduced as a friend of the School and the reporter for the occasion. Mr. Riddle was given rising vote of thanks for his leadership and untiring efforts in the worth while Community project.

Two films of Davie High foot ball games were shown by Mr. McDaniels. Over 100 people enjoyed this occasion sponsored by the leaders of the Farmington Foot Ball Packers. They are doing a real service to the youngsters and the entire community.

Tattle-Tales

By Gordon Tomlinson

This week the Census Bureau's population clock will tick off the arrival of the 200 millionth American.

"Old Glory" waved gaily from the portals of the home of Dr. and Mrs. Vic Andrews early last Sunday morning. Early passersby wondered about the occasion and about Vic getting up that early on Sunday morning to put out the flag.

"He really must be in a gay holiday mood for some reason", remarked one. And others surmised first one thing and another.

However, the most logical explanation was that he forgot to take it in from the day before . . . which was Veteran's Day!

The Mocksville Methodist Men's Club appointed a nominating committee to select a nominee for president for the year. Named to the nominating committee were Gene Seats and C. C. Chapman.

The committee forgot to meet and at the last meeting was called upon for a report. Gene wasn't present. C. C. Champman was and made his report.

"I nominate Gene Seats for president", said C. C.

And Gene found out Tuesday that he now has a new job.

Judge H. J. Hatcher was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club on Tuesday. He is the father of John W. Hatcher of Mocksville. One of the stories he told was this:

Two men got into an airplane for a trip and sat down in front of one another. One said to the other:

"Well, let's get acquainted since we are going to have quite a lengthy trip. I'm John Smith. I am a retired Brigadier General with 30 years of service. I am married and have two sons . . ., one is a Judge and the other an ordained minister".

The other one said:

"I am Jim Jones. I, too, am a retired Brigadier General with 30 years of service. I, too am married with two sons . . . one a lawyer and the other a district attorney".

Then they turned to the other man, asking what about you:

"I am Charles Carter. I am a retired Master Sergeant with 30 years of active service and I have never even heard of you two birds. I am not married . . . but I do have two sons and both of them are Brigadier Generals!"

Another story concerned a delegation from Asheville and from Wilmington bidding for a Kiwanis convention:

Said the spokesman for Asheville: 'Come to the land of the sky . . . where you can visit Mt. Mitchell which is so high you can tickle the toes of the angels".

Said the spokesman for Wilmington:

"Come to the land by the sea. Where you can sit on the sand with girls in bikinis on each side . . . and tickle the angels anywhere you want to!

Note to David Walker:

The reason you have missed your Enterprise was that we had transferred you to another school.

We had you in UNC-Greensboro instead of UNC-Chapel Hill.

Unknowing to you, however, you are now transferred back to Chapel Hill. We hope you enjoyed your brief stay in Greensboro. Since there are a number of boys at the school in Greensboro, we don't want to pin you down as to which school you really prefer. Our main concern is . . . we want you to get your paper!

Wm. R. Davie PTA Honors Miss Brown

William R. Davie School P T A meeting was held Monday, November 6, at 7:30 p. m. in the school auditorium. The meeting opened with the group singing, "America The Beautiful."

Following a brief business meeting, the song, "For She's A Jolly Good Lady" was sung by those attending, and the guest of honor, Miss Kathryn Brown was introduced by Mrs. George Evans. Mrs. Wade Hutchens presented the honoree with a bouquet of flowers.

The speakers for the evening were introduced by Mrs. Jimmy Carter, and the topic of the program was, "We Appreciate Your Loyal Service." Mrs. E. R. Melton represented the parents, the Rev. Wade Hutchens, the community and Supt. James E. Everidge, the county.

The Rev. B. C. McMurray was song leader, and Mrs. McMurray, pianist. A solo, 'Precious Memories' was sung by Kenneth Eaton.

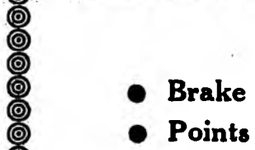

Mrs. Johnson Marklin presented a gift of silver to Mrs. Brown, and invited the students, parents, teachers and friends to a reception honoring Miss Kathryn Brown, who had been connected with William R. Davie School for 23 years. Miss Brown retired from her duties last spring.

The Bread of Life

The Churches of Christ cordially invite you to attend the regular worship services.

James reminds us that "Thou believest that there is one God; thou doesn't well; the devils also believe, and tremble." (Jam. 2:19) But what is James suggesting in this passage? May we read further into the same chapter. "But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead?" . . . Ye see then how that by WORKS a man is justified, and NOT by faith only." (verses 20 & 24)

How is a man justified in the sight of God? James says, "by works". Can one be saved by "faith only".

Then why do so many teach that one can be saved by faith alone? The answer is just this simple: Men have decided to teach the doctrines of men rather than of God!

Read James 2 for your own edification and for your own salvation. Open up your mind and heart to God and His will; consequently; obeying the Truth by showing your faith by your works.

Are you simply a New Testament Christian? Why not? Are you a member of the Church which Christ established almost 2000 years ago? You should be, for this is the body of believers who will be saved eternally at the second coming of Christ.

A View Of The Mocksville Town Square In 1932

The above is a faded torn picture . . . owned by Cecil Angell of Mocksville Rt. 4 . . . showing a view of the Mocksville Town Square in 1932 made from atop of the courthouse looking north. Note the absence of trees on the plots and the shrubbery. Also the cars of that era.

The Warfare On Rats

Each rat costs you $20 . . . and mice are costly too!

The realization of this has prompted an extensive "war on rats program" in Davie County, directed by the Farm Extension Service.

It's no secret that rats and mice are the major causes of grain contmination. Unclean grain is worth less money because it cannot be used for human food. The Food and Drug Administration is rapidly increasing its inspections and seizures of unclean grain, as well as raising its sanitation standards.

Chances are, too, that you have more rats than you think. One pair may raise 50 or more rats in a year. For every rat you see there are probably a dozen more that you don't see. Multiply this total by $20—the estimated annual cost— and it's easy to see the importance of getting rid of the rats.

Several steps are being proposed by the County Extension Service. These include:

1. PLACE BAIT CONTAINERS Cereal-type or water-type baits containing warfarin, the potent chemical discovered at the University of Wisconsin, should be placed in areas of great rat and mouse activity. A board of box may be used to protect the baits.

KEEP THEM FILLED! The bait must be made available at all times. Control should be obtamed in 10 to 14 days. A few permanent bait stations will kill newcomers and control reinvasion.

2. PROPER SANITATION Remove all rubbish piles and stack lumber and firewood neatly on racks at least one foot above ground level.

3. RATPROOFING Metal, concrete, and other ratproof materials can keep rats and mice out of corn cribs, granaries, and other places where feed is stored. Bulletins describing ratproofing methods may be obtained from the county agricultural agent.

American Home Week

With emphasis on creating a home of love and understanding, members of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, Inc. will observe American Home Week November 19 through 25.

According to Mrs. E. Lee Jones of Hamlet, chairman of the home life department, special emphasis will be placed on strengthening the home during this week by encouraging families to have a reunion, participate in community Thanksgiving observances as a family, share the Thanksgiving spirit by inviting into the home a foreign student or one who is unable to go home for the holiday from a nearby school, remember the underprivileged, handicapped or lonely senior citizen, tour a North Carolina historical point of interest and attend a sports event together, count one's blessings, & include Bible reading as part of family Thanksgiving observance.

Mrs. George H. Cates of Faison, President of the Federation, and the sixteen thousand members invite all North Carolinians to paritcipate in the suggested home life program.

The President's All-Americans

Probably every child at one time or another dreams of "making the team." Unfortunately, fewer do with each passing year. In a typical modern high school with an enrollment of 2,000, approximately 300 students—all of them boys—will be represented on 10 or 12 varsity athletic teams. The rest —the girls, the boys who are too small, or those who have to work after school and can't practice—miss out on this experience.

A little over a year ago President Johnson took steps to correct this situation by establishing the Presidential Physical Fitness Awards program. The boys and girls who earn the award are referred to as members of "The President's All America Team," and 50,000 of them already have made it.

The wonderful thing about this team is that it's open to all students, ages 10-17. It presently has more girls than boys and more 13-year-olds than high school juniors or seniors. One little girl who made it has only one arm.

All a student has to do to make The President's All America Team is demonstrate that he's more psysically fit than most members of what has been called "the Marshmallow Generation." He competes against the scores others his own age have made on the Youth Fitness Test, which measures strength, speed, ability and flexibility. No special skills are required.

The colorful emblem the winners receive certainly packs as much prestige as any varsity letter, and the Certificate of Achievement, which bears the Presidential seal & signature, is something any youngster would treasure.

Some schools haven't given their students an opportunity to make The President's All American Team because they feel the testing takes too much time. The 50,000 winners to date represent only five percent of the nation's schools, and more than one-third of them are from three States—California, Florida and Texas.

Actually, testing should be a part of every school physical education program, even if there were no awards program. It's the only way the teacher can determine the needs of the physically underdeveloped, assess program strengths and weaknesses or measure and motivate pupil progress.

Let's make sure our area is represented on The President's All America Team this year. This is one team that's a sure winner.

Editorial Briefs

The National Geographic Society numbers about 5,500,000 members around the world. It was so small in 1903 that the entire membership was invited on an excursion from the Nation's Capital to Annapolis, Maryland, to visit the Naval Academy and other "noted points of interest."

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellers at the country store Saturday night was gitting the benefit of some of Ed Doolittle's wisdum. He reported a expert in the U. S. Department of Commerce had figgered they was putting out too much fancy language from the various Guvernment agencies. He said it was running at about 1.6 cents a word at the present time.

Farthermore, said Ed, some Congressman from Illinois was advocating they set up a school fer teaching Guvernment employees how to write simple English folks could understand. This Congressman claimed it would not only help the "image of Guvernment bureaus" but would also cut down on the cost per word.

This feller, said Ed, had give out a statement he had saw from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development on how to git better race relations. Ed brung the statement along to the meeting, Mister Editor, and I copied it down fer your readers. It says:

"Action-oriented orchestration of innovative inputs, generated by escalation of meaningful dialogue, focusing on multilinked problem-complexes, can maximize the vital thrust toward a nonalientated and viable urban infrastructure."

Now I don't know how you feel, Mister Editor, about the race situation, but I figger this is just what we need. In fact, all the fellers at the store are agreed this was the answer and as soon as they found out what it meant they aimed to demonstrate in front of the court house.

Zeke Grubb said it was a great pity them Guvernment workers couldn't git out nice and appealing stuff like the mail order houses. He reported his old lady had got a folder from some company that was putting out perfumes fer wimmen. Zeke said he sneaked a look at it and they was offering perfume that smelled like fruit and claimed it was permanent. But Zeke was of the opinion it would, after a few days, git to smelling mighty temporary.

Josh Clodhopper allowed as how they had ought to be a law setting a limit on how many different smells them perfume folks could sell. He said he wouldn't be surprised none if they didn't come out with a perfume fer wimmen that smelled like new mowed hay or fresh baked bread.

Personal, I might be a little old fashioned in these matters but I'd rather smell new mowed hay in the field and fresh baked bread in the oven than smell it on some lady setting in my isle at the preaching service Sunday morning. But, anyhow, Mister Editor, it was a mighty educating session we had at the store Saturday ad I wished you was there.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

60-Second Sermon

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Order is the sister of foresight." - Ernest Dimnet.

A woman entered her daughter's home, said, "Hello" to the parakeet, and received a wolf whistle in reply. Pleased at the tribute she told her daughter what happened. Her five-year-old grandson looked at his grandmother thoughtfully and offered the best explanation he could.

"That bird," he confided, "is confused."

We all are more confused than we realize. Ernest Dimnet in "The Art of Thinking" wrote that when we say "I forgot" or "I didn't think", we admit we are confused.

Confusion is a subtle tyrant. It often masks itself with tidiness that sweeps dirt under the rug, stuffs letters and memoranda into desk drawers and pigeon-holes, starts two tasks before we finish one and, generally, stride purposefully in circles that get no where. If anyone suggests that we place things in order, we say we haven't time and such routine would restrict our freedom. Actually, the converse is true. Order is the sister of foresight and together they bestow freedom, independence and security.

We can end confusion by a little self discipline. We can think more clearly, act more decisively, live more freely and effectively, if we will order ourselves to be orderly. Try it.

So This Is New York

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Sitting across from Jack Dempsey in his colorful restaurant at 50th Street and Broadway,, I was carried back in still-warm memory for more than forty years, in one way. Yet in another way the robust giant opposite me with his wavy, dark hair and rugged face just could not seem to be 72 years old. Then I realized that it had been 48 years since he won the heavy weight boxing championship of the world, a crown which he proudly and actively wore for seven distinguished years. The sun shone through the big window and made the table warm, so Jack thoughtfully moved us; and my boyhood reverie slowly vanished too.

Tommy Laughran, another good fighter in his day, came by and shook hands with Jack Dempsey, who stuck out a husky hand with a knot on the thumb, the only sign of his own boxing days I could see. Others paused to greet him and as we talked, I ate some of the cheese cake for which the restaurant is famous. What does he do nowadays? Well, besides being at his restaurant, Jack, his wife and some friends will soon go to London, Rome and Trieste for personal appearances. For exercise? Jack walks and occasionally swims, weighs a trim 210 and admitted it might be better at 200. But he is in trim enough to take care of himself still The other night, he replied to my query, he was taking his wife home on 53d Street in a cab, when a hoodlum opened the

By CONGRESSMAN JAMES T. BROYHILL

In these days when some glimmer of cost-consciousness is beginning to dawn on official Washington, we begin to see some examples of the astronomical commitments the Federal government has assumed. Some of these, of course, relate to new programs enacted during the past several years. However, there are also old obligations that pose very serious problems for the American people. Among the questions which have been shoved aside for too long is the financing of the Civil Service Retirement Fund.

Although most Americans are covered by the Social Security program, the several million persons working for the Federal government and retired from Federal jobs are covered by a much older and different retirement system. Under today's laws, Federal employees contribute 6½% of their pay to the retirement fund while the employing Federal agency contributes 6½% to match the employees' contribution. These combined contributions when invested in interest-bearing government securities, cover most of the cost of the retirement benefits now being earned. However, the normal cost of the present system is estimated at about 1% higher than the current contribution rate. Nevertheless, when all factors are considered, the financial structure of the system, we are warned, is not bright.

Last week, the Post Office and Civil Service Committee of the House on which I serve, began considering this problem & what can be done about it. The Chairman of the U. S. Civil Service Commission led off with an array of discouraging statistics.

The accumulated future liability of this retirement fund over and above it present $17 billion in assets has been estimated at more than $48 billion as of last June. This liability is due to be paid in the future for benefits based on services that employees have already performed for the government. The liability grows by approximately $1.5 billion every year and in some years, notably 1966 and 1967, it increased at an annual rate of approximately $4 billion. One of the distressing reasons for this huge indebtedness results from the fact that the Federal government has not made its contribution to the fund on a regular basis. As a matter of fact, during the first years of the system's operation, all benefits were paid solely from the contributions of employees with the government making no contributions at all. Since these early days, there have been Federal contributions from time to time. However, only since 1957 has the government been required to match the contributions of the individual employee.

Under the circumstances, it is easy to understand that huge amounts of interest are lost to the fund because of the failure of the government to pay its share. This loss now runs to approximately $1.7 billion a year.

Another factor that has been important is that new and increased benefits for Federal workers and retired personnel have been granted many times without arrangements to provide the retirement fund with the

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

FIRST? . . . To Pat Taylor of Wadesboro, candidate on the Democratic ticket for Lieutenant-Governor, may go the honor of having the first political advertisement for the 1968 campaigns.

Going into Asheville—and placed there in time for the recent Democratic gathering—stands a big billboard. It has only a few words: "North Carolina Needs Pat Taylor for Lieutenant-Governor."

With this statement, of course, Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles of Greensboro violently disagrees. He doesn't think Tarheelia particularly needs Taylor anywhere except in Wadesboro.

In time, Candidate Taylor will find that literally thousands of others—besides Bowles—will say that North Carolina can get along without him very well. But as of right now he is front-runner.

SHELBY FIRST? . . . On Tuesday, November 7, Christmas decorations were hung by the city with care—in hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there.

It did seem that fine old Shelby, home of North Carolina political leaders—Governors Gardner, Hoey, and Speaker Mull, among others—had chalked up another first for 1967.

A BLESSING . . . On Wednesday, November 9, Christmas came trailing into Hendersonville. And thus it goes now throughout the State . . . in city after city.

Although there is some criticism about early planning for Christmas crowding out Thanksgiving, it is now admitted that spreading out the Christmas-buying season does reduce the breakneck loping of last-minute buying.

ALREADY . . . A recent issue of the Satevepost showed these two men walking along the street. Over their heads on the lightpost hung Christmas decorations.

. . . One of the men was saying to the other: "Hard to realize it's October already."

OUT OF PAST . . . Few people now living in North Carolina had heard of Robert Lassiter, Jr., of Winston-Salem, when it was rumored a few days ago that he might run for Governor on the Democratic ticket next year.

"Who is this fellow Lassiter?", they asked. Here he is: Lassiter.

Well, his is a funny career, in a way. He was much better known 15 years ago—when he was 40 and had a promising political future—than he is today at 55.

Lassiter came to the Legislature from Mecklenburg County in 1949. Incidentally, this was Gov. Kerr Scott's first Legislature. As a freshman, Lassiter didn't cut much ice. He was regarded as a conservative.

He came back to the Legislature in 1951 and quickly became known as a comer, a man of the future. Always dressed like Fifth Avenue and with his jet-black hair and dark, piercing eyes, he made a good impression . . . in the House and out over the State. He was a good debater.

Charlotte, hungering then as now for more political power, saw in Bob Lassiter a future Governor. He had all the finances necessary (his mother was a Hanes) and tremendous background: Woodberry Forest; his A. B. at Yale; and his law degree at Harvard (1938). He had served as Lieutenant Commander in the U. S. Navy during the War.

In 1951 they were suggesting that Lassiter try for Speaker of the House in 1953 . . . and to move along from there. Then somehow—for some reason—Bob Lassiter dropped out of politics. It may have been that the Legislature as then constituted was a little too rural for him. There were those who thought so. Be that as it may, Robert Lassiter dropped from public view as far as the State focus was concerned. Why?

Here is what happened to some of his friends who were in the 1949 Legislature with Lassiter:

Woodrow Jones of Rutherfordton went to Congress, later resigned, is now a Federal Court judge.

Roy Taylor of Black Mountain, now in Congress.

J. Frank Huskins of Yancey County, long-time Superior Court jurist.

B. T. (Buzz) Falls of Shelby, later solicitor, now Superior Court judge.

Walter Crissman of High Point, became Superior Court judge.

Clifton Blue of Aberdeen, served many more terms after 1949, became Speaker of House, ran for Lt. Gov., still active politically.

Joseph Branch of Enfield, Halifax County, handled various political campaigns, is now Associate Justice, State Supreme Court.

Hugh Alexander of Kannapolis, had distinguished career as Congressman, was defeated by Broyhill, is now employed by special House Committee, resides in Washington.

Eugene Bost of Concord, later Speaker of the House.

J. K. Doughton, Sparta, later became Speaker of House.

William T. Hatch, appointed Superior Court judge by a grateful Kerr Scott, now practices law in Raleigh.

John Kerr, Jr., Warrenton, later Speaker of the House.

—Meantime, Lassiter was content to sit on the sidelines.

NERVE . . . Bob Lassiter, now of Winston-Salem but planning to return to Charlotte, says he is different from some others mentioned for Governor in that he has the "nerve to try for it". He can get strong financial support—but it is a long step from 1951, when he stepped out of politics (he has been attorney for Hanes), to the hot Governor's race in 1968.

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

Discrimination is a dirty word among many members of Congress these days — that is unless they are the ones doing the discriminating.

Earlier in this session of Congress, the House of Representatives passed H. R. 2516, a bill to protect certain persons from violence while exercising constitutional Rights Subcommittee.

The intent of a bill of this nature is proper — to protect persons exercising constitutional rights from violence or threats of violence. I abhor violence, as do the great majority of the people of North Carolina, and I shall continue to fight for legislation designed to curb violence and crime.

In the Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights offered a substitute measure for the House-passed bill and the Subcommittee adopted it by 5 to 1 vote. Unlike the Administration's bill, which protects only one group of Americans, the substitute measure protects all Americans who are exercising Federally protected rights.

My substitute also provides Federal protection for the working man who is going to and from his work, and it also safeguards individual freedom by prohibiting labor unions from levying fines on members for refusing to take part in a strike they oppose.

One of the most important aspects of the substitute bill is its inclusion of six titles to protect the constitutional rights of the American Indian, who has been neglected throughout our history. He has yet to attain his rights as a first-class citizen.

The full Judiciary Committee, by an 8-7 vote, rejected the substitute bill and adopted instead a bill which would protect only certain classes of persons.

If it is to work for any, the machinery of Federal justice work for all. The premise of our Constitution is equal justice under law for all men.

On November 1, I introduced the Subcommittee substitute bill on the Senate floor in order to give the members of the Senate an opportunity to protect the rights of all Americans. This measure will give those who really believe in equal justice under law a chance to undo the money necessary to finance these increased benefits.

I would sincerely hope that those who shout "discrimination" the loudest will take a look at what they did and realize that the bill they presently support is the very essence of discrimination.

Now that years of neglect have magnified the problem into a major issue, legislation is being considered. It is doubtful that the full Federal payment owed the fund can be made and other somewhat less painful means are being sought to assure that obligations will be met. One basic change that is being urged is that each benefit added in the future must also provide authority for meeting its eventual cost. This is a welcome change in philosophy. It is the only sound way to continue if we are to create some sort of order out of the fiscal shambles that have occurred.

If there is anything encouraging to be found in the present situation, it is the fact that the Congress and the Administration are showing more willingness to pay the piper for past carelessness and, I believe, irresponsibility.

Under the Social Security Program, where the law strictly requires prompt payments by both employees and employers, a situation such as has developed with the Federal Retirement F3nd would be impossible. There is no excuse for the Federal government to exercise any less responsibility toward its employees than a private employer. However, in this case, we see what happens when the Federal government attempts to shirk its responsibility. Paying the bill, indeed, becomes very difficult even for Uncle Sam and it is that simple but awessome fact that we now face in this instance.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

but his parents were from West Virginia, his grandfather being a captain in the Confederate Army. Asked if he still likes the small town, he nodded wistfully and went on to describe the joys of knowing all the neighbors, breathing the fresh air, sleeping well in the peaceful quietness and always feeling at home. With this he struck a strongly sympathetic note in me. Jack likes young people and door and made the mistake of trying to pull Dempsey out. A right to the chin and the rowdy ended up flat on the sidewalk. "I guess I shouldn't have hit him," Jack grinned, "but just couldn't resist it."

when asked about opportunities in athletics today, he said that boxing is not the clean sport it used to be but believes it is improving. "Any kind of sports is good," he stated. "Baseball, football, whatever a person likes, he should do and do it well. Education comes first. I wish I had gotten a better education. But one has to want badly what he goes after, or he will not succeed. Nothing worthwhile is easy."

Last summer Marge said to George (for the hundredth time)

So they talked to a Duke Power representative who told them, among other things, that electric heating is growing in popularity every day. Today, it's being installed in more new homes and apartments served by Duke Power than any other type of heating. When Marge and George selected flameless electric comfort heating he recommended an Electrical Modernization Dealer. Before you could say Jack Frost, Marge and George had electric comfort heating installed in their home.

Gene Seats To Preside At Annual Northwest Event

B. Eugene Seats of Mocksville, President of the Northwest North Carolina Development Association, will preside at the annual banquet in Elkin on December 7th.

Dr. James Ralph Scales, president of Wake Forest University, will be the principal speaker at the meeting which is set for 6:30 p. m.

"We feel that Dr. Scales' message for Northwest people will be a major contribution to making this annual meeting one of the best in our program's 15-year history", said Mr. Seats. "As a distinguished educator, Dr. Scales' knowledge and work in this field are a great asset to this area, state and region."

Dr. Scales, 48, became president of Wake Forest University earlier this year.

He is a native of Oklahoma. His father, John Grover Scales, was a pioneer Baptist minister and attorney in Oklahoma. The son was an honor student at Oklahoma Baptist University, where he received his B. A. degree in 1939. He earned his master's and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Chicago and at the University of London.

Dr. Scales served Oklahoma Baptist University in several capacities over a period of years — as instructor and professor of history and government, and as vice president and president from 1950 to 1965. He then went to Oklahoma State University as dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and professor of political science.

— Speaker —

A highlight of the banquet meeting will be the announcecemnt of area winners in the community development competition, and the presentation of plaques and cash prizes totaling some $4,000.

Tom Davis, president of Piedmont Aviation, will be master of ceremonies. Eugene Seats of Mocksville, association president, will preside.

Entertainment will include selections by the Franklin School Treble Ensemble of Mount Airy, directed by Sandy Beam. This group, long popular in the area, performed at Expo 67 in Canada this year.

The annual event at Elkin has drawn capacity attendance almost from the first year. Neil Bolton, Secretary, said reports from all 11 counties to date indicate a sell-out of tickets for the approximately 800 seats available.

"Some counties may have a few tickets unsold at this time," he said. "Interested persons wanting tickets should see their county directors."

Davie Puts 1943 Names On Jury List

The Davie County Jury Commission has completed it's initial assignment.

The law requires that three times as many names be placed on the jury list as were used in all county courts during the last biennum. The commissioners selected approximately 60% of these names from the tax listing records and 20% from the voter registration. A total of 2,000 names were drawn for the raw or unculled list, and no non-personal listings were eliminated at this stage.

After the screening process was completed, 1643 names remained to be placed on file for possible jury duty during the next beinnum. This number falls well within the requirements of the law.

In the screening process names were deleted for the following reasons only:

. . . Non-personal listings.
. . . Non resident of the county.
. . . Duplication of names on the tax and voter lists.
. . . Disability.
. . . Felony convictions.
. . . Deceased.
. . . Served as a juror with the preceding two years.

Members of the Davie County Jury Commission include Ben Ellis, M. H. Grose and Bill Howard.

Freddie was selected by the local Morehead Committee consisting of Lester P. Martin Jr., Chairman; R. B. Hall and John Brock.

Davie County Students To Receive T. B. Testing

Health nurses, rather than teachers, will administer the tests and grade the results in the comprehensive tuberculin detection program in the ninth grade that has become possible by the little Christmas Seal. This year hundreds of Davie County students will be tested. Next year, it is hoped that all first and ninth grade children will receive the tests.

Christmas Seal funds have provided a new way of testing. The test is given by a simple stamp on the arm. The test is given in the class room and is hardly even felt. All positive reactors will be re-tested and exrayed to see if they have the TB germ. Today, TB can be stopped before it starts. The Davie County Board of Health has been contacted to begin Tuberculin testing of all ninth grade children in the schools.

This year the Christmas Seal Campaign is being conducted from the Forsyth County Association. Hugh Larew, chairman of the Davie County Association last year, offered to have the campaign conducted from the Forsyth office. He felt that the county would receive services not previously available to smaller associations.

Christmas Seal Receipts Received from residents of Davie County will still be financing the cost of X-Ray films given at the Davie County Health Department. However, Free Services offered by the Forsyth Tuberculosis and Health Association through Christmas Seal Funds, are available to all Davie County residents. The service include free X-ray services on Wednesday and Friday from 11:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m., and free breathing tests on Tuesday from 1:00 p. m. to 4:00 p. m. By appointment only. Breathing tests are important in finding emphysema and other chronic airway obstructive Diseases.

The association also rents respirators to emphysema sufferers, and provides assistance to patients and their families.

The Forsyth Association Welcomes any inquiries from Davie County as to how their contributions will be used. Inquiries should be directed to 233 West Fifth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C., 27101, or by calling 725-8365 (Area Code 919).

PARADE IS DEC. 9th

Article Written About Local Man

An article from "The Rolling Review" mentions a Davie County soldier in Germany. It reads as follows:

Two soldiers of the 4th Bn., 35th Armor dig German-American relations the most.

Sp. 5 Luther F. Holder and Sp. 4 James D. Broadland, both of the battalion's maintenance section, cleared and leveled a site for a German soccer field in the town of Liprichhausen. Using an M-88 track recovery vehicle, the two soldiers leveled the 125-yard-long field and removed three large trees during their week-long stay.

"We lived at the home of the town's second mayor," Holder said, adding that everyone was friendly and the food was delicious.

The soldiers worked on the field, which is adjacent to a grade school, following an agreement between Col. Harlan C. Stine, 1st Bde. CO, and the major of Uffendheim, according to Major Ronald J. Ellefson, executive officers of the 4th Bn. 35th Armor.

"The project was a good change of pace from normal duties," Holder said, and added, "The kids at the school treated us like heroes."

Rat Control Campaign Is Underway In Davie

Ten thousand pounds 10,000) of rat bait is being readied for the county-wide War on Rats Project. The bait will be distributed free to every household and farm in the county.

Campaign workers expect the bait to eradicate a high percentage of the county's rat population. According to the campaign committee, the bait wil be delivered to city and county distribution points December 6th.

The campaign was organized last week when a group of county leaders met and decided to do something about numerous complaints and damage results from the tremendous rat population. Many farmers, feed processors, and home owners have complained of the rat problem and the damage occuring.

Advisers working with the committee recommended the county-wide campaign, because rats and mice travel great distances, and suggested the organization of the entire county to get rid of the rodents. The committee decided to put the program into effect immediately, because rats are moving into feed and feed supplies this time of year. The bait ingredients, Warfarin, has been purchased by the County Commissioners, and the corn is being furnished free by Mocksville Farm & Garden Service, Junker & Son, J. P. Green Milling Company, and Mocksville Feed Mills.

Campaign workers are urging all county residents to start making plans to take part in the control program.

Floating Shower Honors Mrs. James Fesperman

A floating stork shower was given Saturday night, November 16 at the home of Mrs. Grant Smith on Cherry Street, honoring Mrs. James Fesperman of Salisbury. Hostesses were Mrs. James R. Bowles and Miss Kathy Smith.

The refreshment table was covered with a cloth with storks and babies in shades of pink and blue and lighted with pink candles. Floating ice cubes with tiny pink rose buds were used in the punch bowl filled with cherry punch. Mrs. Bowles served punch and Miss Smith served the cake squares decorated with babies, rattlers and bottles. Nuts were also served.

A baby lamb filled with pink, blue and white flowers was used on the gift table.

Approximately fifty guests called during the evening.

The Fesperman's son, James David Jr. was born October 21 in Rowan Hospital and weighed only two and one half pounds. He is still in the hospital and now weighs four pounds.

The British House Of Lords

Some Englishmen are seeking to reform the House of Lords—again.

Parliament's upper chamber, a prime example of the British genius for adapting old institutions to modern needs, has long been a favorite target of critics and reformers, the National Geographic Society says.

Prime Minister Herbert Asquith called Lords the "lethal chamber." Not long ago a left-wing Lord, in his maiden speech, said the House should be abolished.

The present Prime Minister, Harold Wilson, doesn't propose to go that far. But he wants to reduce the number of hereditary peers who have voting rights in the House of Lords and to curb its power to delay legislation.

Besides some 150 life peers and peeresses, whose titles die with them, the House of Lords consists of nearly 900 hereditary dukes, marquesses, earls, viscounts, and barons, two archbishops, and 24 senior bishops of the Church of England. (Baronets and knights do not sit in Lords.)

Mr. Wilson reportedly would cut the number of voting members to perhaps 300 Lords, who would be chosen by their peers. In practice, only a hundred or so Lords are active in the work of the House. The others, called 'backwoodsmen," appear only when a controversial issue, such as capital punishment, is being debated.

Lord Esher, who called himself a "persistent absentee," said, "Absenteeism is deeply imbedded in our national way of life."

The Lord's right to veto measures proposed by the elected House of Commons once was unlimited. Today, the Lords have no control over money bills; they may block other legislation for only one year. Mr. Wilson would like to shorten this period to six months.

The Lords still play an important part in revising nonfinancial bills passed by Commons. They also initiate legislation on issues considered too controversial for the elected members of Parliament.

Though its power is limited, the House of Lords cherishes the art of oratory. A peer once discoursed brilliantly on the breeding habits of whitefish. In conclusion, he mentioned that the last time he had spoken in the house was in a debate on fisheries—30 years earlier.

In a debate on control of gambling, Lord Kilbracken discussed odds in dice games. Gaining his knowledge, he reported ruefully, had been "exceedingly expensive."

The Lords reached peaks of caustic eloquence before admitting titled women to membership. Earl Ferrers declaimed, "Why then should we encourage women to eat their way, like acid into metal, into positions of trust and responsibility which previously men have held?"

Once admitted, Baroness Asquith questioned the traditional gentility of lordly debate. "When a noble Lord is interrupted by another one," she said, "intead of heaving half a brick at him, he thanks him. What on earth is wrong with asperity?"

No matter what changes the House of Lords undergoes, one observer comments, the prospects are that it "will still be flourishing, and Englishmen still will be arguing about it, when the Last Trump peals in the sky."

Gold Is Everywhere!

Gold, unlike green money, really does grow on trees.

Tissues of aspens, firs, willows, and some other plants hold tiny but measurable amounts of the precious metal. One of the best goldbearers is the horsetail. Though extraction is so expensive that the plants cannot be profitably used as a source of ore, some prospectors believe the presence of certain gold-bearing plants in an area serves as a clue to the location of big deposits in gravel or lodes.

Oddly enough, the monarch of all metals is found, at least in minute amounts, almost everywhere in the world, the National Geographic Society says.

Scientists of the Interior Department's Geological Survey recently struck gold in the excavation for a new expressway in downtown Washington, D. C. The find was no bonanza; the construction gravel contained only 60 to 90 cents worth of gold in every ton of dirt.

Far richer veins of gold, however, once supported a gold mine industry near the Nation's Capital. A small museum in Potomac, Maryland, perpetuates the history of the Maryland Gold Mine which yielded more than $150,000 in gold from 1867 to 1940, when it was closed.

Although the American West has provided most of the Nation's gold, sizable nuggets have been found in such unlikely places as Maine, Massachusetts, and Michigan.

Surprisingly, Georgia, not California, was the scene of America's first major gold rush. Some 10,000 prospectors invaded the mountains of north Georgia in 1828, founded a string of rip-roaring frontier towns, and mined so much gold that by 1838 the Government had opened a branch mint there.

The gold-rush capital, Dahlonega, took its name from a Cherokee Indian word meaning 'yellow metal."

Gold fever has flared up, at one time or another, in nearly every part of the world from Afghanistan to Zambia. The lure of gold triggered the exploration of the Americas and sped settlement of California, the Yukon, Alaska, Australia, and New Zealand. At one time, gold mining rivaled sugar as the national industry of the Fiji Islands.

There's even gold in them thar waters. Modern Forty-niners, using snorkels instead of sluices, hunt for fortunes in the rivers of California and Alaska.

The gold is usually of the placer variety, jarred loose from veins by a swift stream and carried by water to rest in gravel deposits. One lucky prospector reportedly picked up $900 worth of gold nuggets in three days.

"But there's one big difference between the Forty-niners and us," says a skindiving sourdough. "We take a lot more baths."

LET US TRULY BE THANKFUL, ALWAYS...

Thanksgiving Day is a time for all of us to give thanks for the blessings we share . . . opportunity to pursue personal goals . . . and the privilege to enjoy our own way of life.

We're Grateful

Thanks to you, we are proud to be a part of this thriving community . . . and to serve our friends and neighbors in the finest tradition.

Best wishes for a happy Thanksgiving Day!

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I was reading this piece by some column writer that was quoting a feller that lived in Russia fer quite a spell and knowed the country real well. He said we would have to do 8 things to 'catch up" with them Russians.

1. Tear down 7 out of over 10 homes we got in America.
2. Take out 9 out of ever 10 telephones.
3. Junk 95 per cent of all the cars and trucks we got.
4. Cut all pay checks 75 per cent.
5. Rip up 2 of ever 3 miles of railroad track.
6. Send 60 million Americans back to the farm.
7. Sink 8 out of ever 9 ocean ships we got.
8. Destroy 40 million television sets.

This feller said the only thing they got that evened up with us was the power to make nuclear war.

It is a great pity, Mister Editor, they didn't make a agreement with us on nuclear weapons and git on with the business of building up their nation on them 8 items. But I saw where some Congressman said we had made 52 agreements with Russia since 1917 and they ain't never kept a single one of them. So I reckon we couldn't trust them on oath or under heaven.

I brung them 8 items up at the session at the country store Saturday night and Clem Webster of the Great Society was of the opinion more and more countries was gitting the bomb and fer generations to come we was going to have to live with it.

Zeke Grubb was agreed with Clem, said he had done quit worrying about it, just went to preaching ever Sunday and prayed fer the best.

Ed Doolittle, that ain't never had a kind word fer the Democrats or the Great Society, allowed as how we still got a heap of things in this country that needs fixing. Fer instant, he said, we was gitting ready to spend millions to git rid of the rats in them big cities when it would be cheaper to git rid of the garbage that caused the rats.

Bug Hookum reported his old lady claimed what was wrong with the country was them Congressmen wasn't gitting enough advising from their wives.

Personal, Mister Editor, don't quote me but I don't think them folks running the Great Society needs any meddling from the wimmen folks. Things was bad enough already. History never worked it out fer Sitting Bull to room with General Custer at West Pont, and history didn't mean fer wimmen to handle the fine points, like rats, taxes, bombs and gitting to the moon.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

60 Second Sermon

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "It is the burning glass of concentration that sets fires." - Eff Thomas.

A book club member rushed up to Arnold Bennett who wrote, "How To Live 24 Hours A Day," and gushed,

"Oh, I've just read your book and I'm determined I'm going to concentrate!

"Is that so?" inquired the author. "On what are you going to concentrate?"

"Oh, giggled the enthusiast, "on lots of things!"

The sun shines on the earth for hours at a time, yet only where its rays are concentrated on a combustible object will it set afire. As children, we have used a burning glas to concentrate the sun's rays on paper or wood, watched the smoke curl upward and seen the flame burst forth. Concentration does the same for any task on which we focus all our attention and energy. The reason we do not concentrate more is that we have only a surface interest in things. We seldom develop an all-consuming interest that causes us to concentrate every energy on it. When people do, they stand out. We term them "genius." Actually, all they do is to concentrate on one object until it bursts into flame. They stand out because, while many talk about it, too few are willing to make the sacrifice of concentrating.

Washington Report

By CONGRESSMAN JAMES T. BROYHILL

The most controversial new program of the past several years has been the so called "War on Poverty." Last week, a long debate on the bill was closed for another year with the House approving the program. The revisions made by the House bill were relatively small in view of public sentiment. I did not favor the passage of this bill as it was written.

The House action assures the continuation of the present anti-poverty program at approximately its present level. There may be more participation by State and local authorities in the spending of Community Action funds. In addition, there may be some tightening of the use of poverty program funds for political activity. The legislation in the House was approved for only one year, instead of the two-year period recommended. However, when the House-Senate Conference completes its work on a final bill, the results will be very close to what the President requested.

It seems unusual that a program which has as its announced purpose the eradication of poverty should be so fraught with strife. Nevertheless, criticism and dissatisfaction have marked most of this program from the beginning. The program's early mistakes were excused because it was said to be plowing new ground. Unfortunately, after three years and $7.2 billion, it is still plowing much of the same questionable ground. In spite of very large infusions of Federal money, we still have before us the basic question of how to deal in a meaningful way with the causes of poverty.

Poverty, wherever it exists in our society, is a serious and urgent problem which demands the continuing and dedicated attention of all Americans. The present "War on Poverty" is not a sudden awareness that poverty exists in America. For many generations, the forward thrust of the American system has involved expanding and creating opportunities for people to better themselves. Our future progress depends upon the continuing attainment of new material benefits and the increased participation of all Americans in the economic and social life of the nation. Therefore, in our efforts to assist people, programs should be planned so that the money we spend genuinely helps people to help themselves. It seems to me that too often, the poverty program has failed to keep this in mind.

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

MILK . . . With all the talk about cigarettes and whiskey, you don't hear much about milk any more. But dairy products are being consumed by children of all ages in greater and greater quantities.

As of last week, two dairies of this section of North Carolina were claiming credit for the great success the State University football team had in 1967.

Pine State of Raleigh, founded by the late great Dr. B. W. Kilgore about 50 years ago and stil owned by his offspring, said members of the Wolfpack—both regulars and subs—have been great consumers of Pine State milk this year.

Then came long Meadow of Raleigh and Durham with the observation that this firm also stocks various snack bars at State, and that not all the credit should go to Pine State. True.

Milk is still the perfect food —and it would be interesting to know the thousands of gallons of it the Wolfpackers have downed this season.

After his long tenure at State, the late Dr. Kilgore became State chemist. During his years as Commissioner of Agriculture, W. Kerr Scott made few important decisions without consulting Dr. Kilgore. They were both in the dairy business; and Commissioner Scott regarded as Gospel the words which moved so cautiously from the mouth of his Chemistry Divison head.

Dr. Kilgore was one of the fathers of pasteurized milk in this section of the country. Now, of course, all the milk you buy is not only pasteurized (purified by high temperature) but homogenized (milk and cream mixed).

The bringing together of milk and cream all but did away completely with the "creamline" advertising so prevalent 25 years ago. But the milk you buy today is not only as pure as unfiltered sunlight, it has just the right amount of richnes for enjoyment and health.

Dr. Kilgore used to have a great time telling of his experiences in pasteurizing milk. "We don't want any of that cooked milk", people would say, "we want it just like it comes from the cow."

But nowadays one seldom hears any more about "raw" milk — that's the "uncooked" variety—and we take for granted that our milk has been freed of germs by pasteurization. In the late teens and early twenties, dairies had a hard time winning their country bumpkin customers over to germ-free milk.

Now, of course, we want no other kind . . . thanks to men like Dr. B. W, Kilgore, W. Kerr Scott . . . and Dr. Louis Pasteur.

NEWS . . . It may be a good sign for the Republicans . . . or a bad sign for ditto . . . but they seem to be making most of the political news in North Carolina these days.

One day it is John Stickley of Charlotte; and then comes in swinging Jim Gardner of Rocky Mount . . . then this or that Democrat has decided to turn Republican. Funny business.

And, of the Democrats, only Gov. Dan Moore and Lt. Gov. Bob Scott stay in the headlines. With his attacks last week on Cloud Tweny activities of UNC, the way-out stuff of the Prisons Dept., and some silly Court doings, Scott seemed to be getting closer to the People all the time.

In a couple of well-timed (and well-written) speeches, the Lieutenant-Governor cut a lot of ground from under his opposition. If he continues on his present course, Messrs Stickley, Gardner, and Broughton could soon find themselves crowded into the Me Too Corner. That's an unpleasant spot for any politican.

TIME FLIES . . . Twenty-five years ago right along now there was no brighter political star in Dixie than J. M. Broughton.

The year was 1942; and he was in his second year as Governor of North Carolina An excellent speaker, a religious leader, a fine story-teller, and a liberal, there were those who said he could go to the Top.

Six years later J. M. Broughton went to the U. S. Senate, but death from a heart attack nipped in the bud his national career

Thus is was a little sad last week to hear Broughton Hospital in Morganton referred to as Browntons by naive North Carolinians of the area. They should definitely be put in the low-brow category!

OUT-OF-TOWN . . . People who say there is too much centralization of power and authority in Raleigh should love the N. C. Merchants Association.

Although 243 of its 3,200 members are in the Raleigh area, this organization has sponsored within the past 12 months 68 area meetings outside the capital city. Total attendance: nearly 4,000.

NOTES . . . You have heard of Pepsi break, Coke break, and coffee break . . . but at the N. C. Dairy Products Convention their 34th) coming on Jan. 17-19 at Pinehurst, the 15-minute rests between programs will be labeled—you guessed it—milk breaks. (and probably brighter heads the next day) . .

There was talk during the weekend that J. M. Broughton, Jr., was "about ready to announce" for Governor . . . Could be . . . and oldtimers around Raleigh were saying 1968 could be the busiest political year ever known in North Carolina . . . as regards number of candidates, heat, money, etc . . . Excitement!

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

Few issues command more intense day to day concern than crime and justice in this country as our citizens try to cope with lawlessness and its tragic effects.

Like other Americans, I am deeply concerned about this problem. It has a direct bearing on the survival of our civilization. No individual is truly free if he remains in mortal fear that his person, his property, and his home will be ravaged by criminals and that all that he cherishes may be senselessly destroyed.

For this reason, I have fought to secure legislation to aid the police and the courts in their prosecution of criminals. Recently, the Senate Criminal Laws and Procedures Subcommittee favorably reported three amendments, which I have sponsored, as a part of the 1967 Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

My amendments, in essence, would restore rules of evidence which have protected society from the menance of crime since the founding of the Republic. They would restore the use of voluntary confessions in criminal prosecutions and the use of eye witnesses to identify the accused. My third amendment would permit the accused to have his day in court, but would terminate endless litigation over the guilt of criminals who have exhausted their appellate rights through the highest State and Federal Courts. It would prevent lower Federal courts from sitting in judgment on criminal cases previously tried in State courts.

These amendments are necessitated by recent decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court which ignore the fact that the victims of crime are just as much entitled to justice as is the accused. These rulings are contrary to all the precedents down to the date of the decisions, and are based on sentimentality for the accused rather than upon the gravity of the problems they foster.

Voluntary confessions by the accused in criminal trials have been largely excluded as evidence as a result of the June 13, 1966 Miranda decision. Under this strange ruling, the Supreme Court reversed the role of the police officer from that of society's protector to that of protector of the rights of the criminal.

More recently, the Supreme Court went a step further and made it ridiculously difficult for courts to receive in evidence eye witness identifications of criminals, if the witness has taken a "forbidden look" at the accused while the accused is in custody.

These court opinions have created absurd and illogical handicaps for law enforcement officers who deal with staggering crime burdens never before experienced in the history of this land. Dividends (continues

FERTILIZER: KEY TOOL FOR A DYNAMIC AGRICULTURE

Fewer farmers, using less land, now provide more and better food and fiber for increasingly more people. A hundred years ago one farmer provided enough for himself and about four other others. Today's farmer produces enough for about twenty-seven people. And 10% of the farms produce over 50% of total farm sales and 56% of the farms produce 95% of total farm sales in this changing agriculture of the United States.

A substantial portion of this tremendous rise in productivity per farmer can be attributed to increased usage of fertilizers. This fertilizer growth is part of a long-term trend. During the past few years when the number of tractors doubled, the use of fertilizer quadrupled. All evidence suggests even more rapid expansion in the years ahead. Because farmers have been depleting the natural fertility of their land from the beginning, the soil must be replenished with increasing amounts of plant nutrients if an everexpanding population is to be adequately fed. This is not only necessary but highly profitable to the farmer. It is estimated that, on the average, every dollar invested in fertilizer will return about three dollars in higher crop yields of better quality.

In spite of the sizeable tonnage of fertilizer used in North Carolina, the need for increased fertilizer use remains great. It is estimated that one-half again as much fertilizer as is now used would be needed if all North Carolina crops were fertilized at the minimum recommended rate.

One of the best ways to develop a sound and sufficient fertilization program is to have your soil tested. Along with the results of the test you will receive a scientifically based fertilization scheme. Plan now to make use of this service offered by the Soil Testing Division of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. It will help you to capitalize on the profit potential fertilizer offers. Soil sampling supplies are available at your County Agricultural Office.

QUALITY FEEDER-PIGS

The demand and price for good quality feeder-pigs remains good. Even though the price of slaughter animals has been at it's cheapest level in sometime, the demand for pigs has increased and the price has been extremely strong. This is the sort of situation that agricultural marketing people have been predicting all along. This is one of the main reasons that the feeder-pig enterprise has been recommended so often during the last year to farmers that are considering adding to or expanding their farming operation. This price relationship of the top slaughter hogs to quality feeder-pigs gives good quality feeder-pigs producers a good profit at most all times. Feed-out operators have the facilities and equipment for feeding hogs and generally keep them filled to capacity no matter what the price relationship is. This makes a good steady demand for quality feeder-pigs at all times. To help meet this demand, feeder-pig markets have expanded. Davie County feeder-pig producers have more sales and more markets located closer than ever before. These trends are expected to help increase th volume of feeder pigs produced in Davie County.

NEW SUPERSTITIONS STILL POPPING UP

..Old superstitions, unlike old soldiers, do not fade away. They are replaced by new superstitions and new misconceptions, says TODAY'S HEALTH GUIDE, the American Medical Association's manual of health information for the American family.

This is particularly true of superstitions and misconceptions about health. New scientific advances and discoveries breed a whole new crop of health superstitions.

Some of the new ones cataloged in the health book are—

Today, we have the mistaken idea that necessary and harmless chemicals used in processing foodstuffs may cause mysterious diseases like cancer. (They won't.)

We see people afraid to cook with aluminum utensils for fear of poisoning the feed. (They will not.)

We observe people who refuse to wear glasses, and others who shun much-needed hearing aids. (Both are completely accepted by society today.)

People oppose fluoridation of public water supplies because the same chemical has also been used for poisoning rats, overlooking the fact that the whole difference lies in the matter of dosage. (Fluoridated water is completely safe.)

Many people blame climatic changes on the atomic bomb; past generations attributed such changes to artillery fire, to the use of radio and television. (The bomb has not changed climate.)

Countless mothers live in fear for their children's lives because a heart murmur had been reported. Although murmurs should be checked by a physician most heart murmurs are harmless.

There is still active opposition to the use of immunizing procedures, such as vaccination and immunization, because of superstitious dread of introducing a poison into the system. (The vaccines now in general use are safe).

There is a modern cult of naturalism which holds that only "natural foods" are wholesome because foods grown with the aid of chemical fertilizers are inadequate. (This isn't true.)

Gifts Are Sought For Dorothea Dix Patients

The Dorothea Dix Volunteer Service Guild is again sponsoring the project of collecting Christmas gifts for all the patients at Dorothea Dix Hospital. Mrs. William M. Long is serving as Davie County representative to the board of directors of the Volunteer Services Guild.

"Anyone wishing to donate to any individual patient at Dorothea Dix Hospital or contribute to the general Christmas Cheer collection for these patients should contact me and deliver all gifts before December 13", said Mrs. Long.

Tht gifts are not to be wrapped, but the donor's name and address is to be included in each one. Members of the Wake County branch of the Volunteer Service Guild will do all the gift wrapping in an attempt to see that all patients receive gifts of about equal value and according to individual wants or needs.

Cash donations will be gladly accepted and will be used for Christmas gifts if they are so dtsignated. The most needed gifts this year are cigarettes, deodorant, tiolet articles (for men and women). Any gifts for men are usually more needed.

Gifts that can be used by groups (may be new or used in good condition) may include: Popcorn poppers, floor model hair dryers, portable or hand hair dryers; pictures, musical instruments, bicycles, artificial arrangements, recreational equipment and supplies, sports equipment and table games. All year round clothing (used in good condition) is always needed, especially in large sizes.

If further information is desired contact Mrs. W. M. Long, phone 634-2941.

STAGE AND PEP BANDS HOLD AUDITIONS

Auditions are being held this week for the Davie High stage and Pep bands. Auditions are being held under the direction of Mr. James Daughtrey, Davie's band director.

To try out for either band the person must be a member of either the Intermediate or Senior band. Each person is required to play one prepared piece and to sight read one of Mr. Daughtrey's choosing.

Both bands are extracurricular and will represent Davie at various functions during the school year. The Pep Band provides music during the halftime period of home basketball games. The stage band performs publicly and at various school concerts.

Final sales for the Davie yearbook, The Clarion, were held this week. According to Clarion advisor, James Wall, more than nine hundred annuals were sold during the two selling periods.

Red Cross News

The American Legion, its Auxiliary, and the American Red Cross will join forces during the coming Holiday Season to bring comfort and perhaps life, itself, to the unfortunate ill and injured who will need blood during the holidays.

These nation-wide organizations will sponsor a special Holiday Blood Donor Drive from December 4, 1967 through January 8, 1968. This is a critical time of the year when the need for blood increases and the number of blood donors drops far below the usual monthly average. It is also the period which includes December 7 on which, twenty-six years ago, hundreds of gallant men lost their lives in the attack on Pearl Harbor. A gift of blood in memory of these men and their host of comrades who have fallen in the nation's wars would be a fitting tribute to their sacrifice.

All Posts of The American Legion, Units of the Auxiliary, and all Red Cross chapters participating in the Red Cross Blood Program are joining in the humanitarian effort to keep the life-line of blood in plentiful supply. Every American and every American organization is invited to donate blood in the Holiday Season either through the Red Cross or through hospital and community blood banks, where no Red Cross center operates.

MORE ABOUT

to mount that these court rulings are obstructing the administration of justice in this country.

The prevention and control of crime is our country's most serious domestic problem. In fighting for these amendments, I feel that the crime control bill will accomplish little unless it permits the police and the courts to deal with crime without illogical restrictions.

MORE ABOUT

Washington Report

There have been a number of problems plaguing the program from its begining. I have felt that Congress itself is largely to blame for the confusion, cross purposes, and questionable expenditures that have caused so much scandal and dissatisfaction. In its original legislation, the Congress took an essentially political slogan and put together a vague bill calling for an ill-defined program larded with money. The administration of the program has been so shot full of problems that time is overdue for Congress to define its terms and provide guidance for how it wants the people's money spent. This year's bill made some "cosmetic" changes, but it did not offer the deeper and more fundamental revisions that ought to be made. During last week's debate, there were efforts to reform the program. Many of these amendments had great merit. However, they were brushed aside in the debate with little or no consideration.

Little was done to clear away the jungle of administrative growth which syphons off so much of the money provided. There are 7,572 permanent Federal jobs in poverty program activities. Nearly one-half of these employees are paid more than $10,000 per year. In the Job Corps, which is one of the poverty program's activities, it costs $8,000 for each person receiving training. The cost and the discouraging record of practical benefits from the Job Corps requires a new approach. By all odds, the most successful work has been done in the Head Start program for preschool children. Even in this, however, there have been examples of waste that could be prevented.

In my opinion, a dynamic and successful anti-poverty program should vastly increase its emphasis upon job training for young people who want to work. The energies of other Federal, State, and local programs of vocational education ought to be coordinated. Huge and heretofore untapped resources of private industry should be explored and mobilized since it is in the private sector of the economy that skills are needed and productive jobs must be found.

Very frankly, the challenge to accomplish full and positive results lies before us in this effort. However, we are showing too little willingness to learn from our mistakes and get on with the job. Congress has, regreaatably, passed up is chance again to do what the American people had a right to expect long ago.

Yadkin Valley Telephone Co-op Meeting Saturday

The Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation's thirteenth annual meeting of the members will be held Saturday afternoon, December 2nd at 1:30 p. m. in the Yadkinville High School auditorium in Yadkinville, N. C.

Roy Armstrong, Executive Director of the John Motley Morehead Foundation, Chapel Hill, N. C., will be the guest speaker.

James M. Parks, president, reports that the annual meeting program will include business reports, election of directors, old and new business and free door prizes. A special entertainment feature this year will be the Starmount High School Band.

The corporation, a non-profit and member owned, REA financed, telephone cooperative is guided and regulated by a nine member board of directors. Members of the board are elected each year at the annual meeting. The officers of the corporation are elected by the board from its members. James M. Parks is president; Wade Groce is vice-president; Homer C. Myers is secretary-treasurer. All members of the board, including the officers, are elected for a one year term of office.

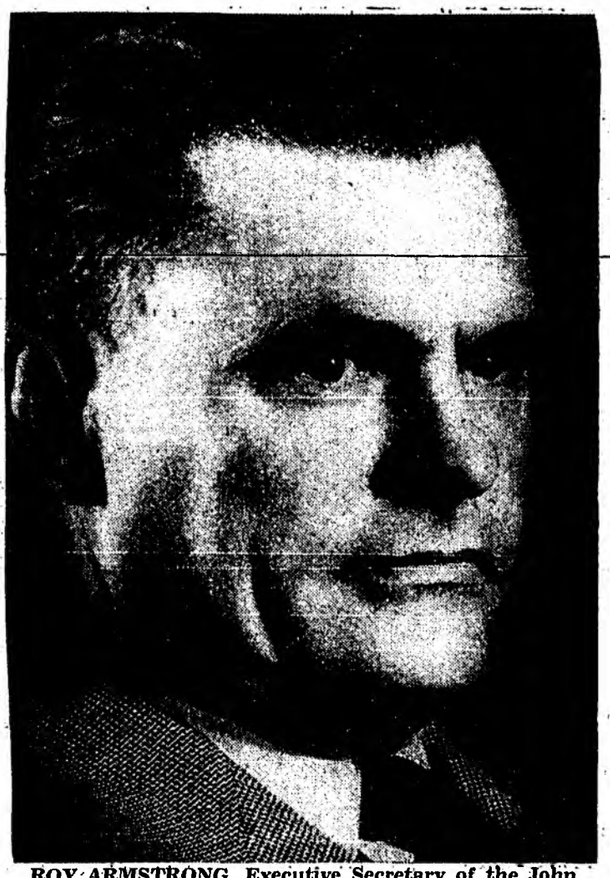

The nominating committee has submitted the following candidates to be voted upon for the board of directors to serve for 1968:

Davie Area (Elect 2): Wade I. Groce and Harvey L. Gobble (incumbents); John M. Bailey and Glenas M. McClamrock.

West Yadkin Area (Elect 2): Fred J. Brandon and Dale W. Thomasson (incumbents); Ralph D. Hanes and Kenneth Allred.

Iredell Area (Elect 3): James M. Parks, H. C. Myers, Jr., and Ralph Dowell (Incumbents): J. D. Mann, T. H. Wallace and W. L. Bunton.

East Yadkin Area (Elect 2): Clint C. Poindexter and Charles I. Miller (incumbents); Clay M. Hobson and Charles D. Holcomb.

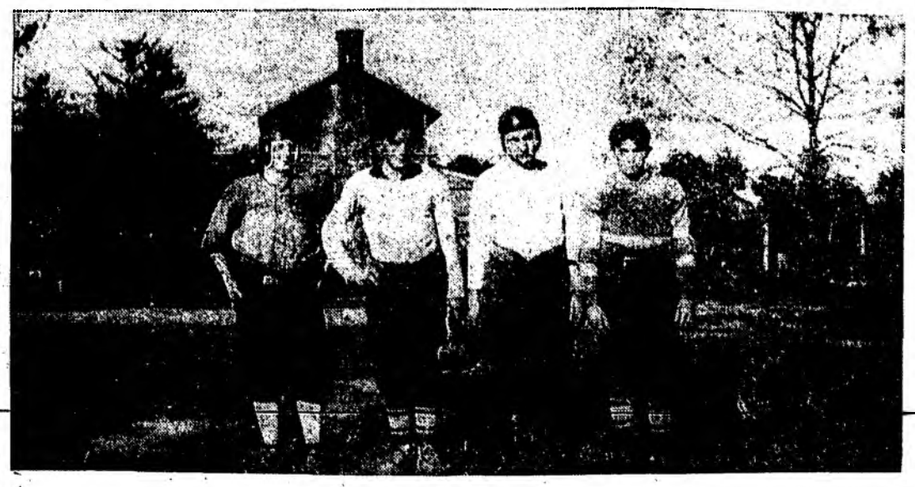

ROY ARMSTRONG, Executive Secretary of the John Motley Morehead Foundation, is a native of Spencer, North Carolina. He graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1926. After serving two years as a school teacher in the Greensboro Public School, he returned to the University to study law. He was president of his law class. Mr. Armstrong is a Colonel in the North Carolina National Guard. During World War II, he served in the Navy. The John Motley Morehead Foundation that Mr. Armstrong serves as Executive Director was created by John Motley Morehead, III, in 1945. The foundation was first engaged in the planning and erection of the Morehead Building on the Campus of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The building houses the Morehead Planetarium, the Copernican Orrery, The Genevieve B. Morehead Art Gallery, the State Dining Room, and the Foundation Offices. Since 1951, the efforts and entire resources of the Foundation have been used to provide grants for undergraduate study and fellowships for graduate and professional study at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The Morehead Awards and Fellowships are made solely on outstanding merit without consideration of need. In the period 1951 through 1966, five hundred and fifty seven students have accepted grants from the foundations. The 1966 report values a four year scholarship at $7,000 for a North Carolina Student and $8,700.00 for out of state scholars.

Craft Exhibit

Christmas crafts made by local 4-H'ers and Extension Homemakers will be on exhibit in the County Office Building Auditorium Monday and Tuesday, December 4 and 5.

The exhibit will be open from 9:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. both days, and from 7:00-9:00 p. m., Monday night, December 4th.

The public is cordially invited to come and see Christmas ideas on display.

Who are these football players? They played many years for the Mocksville High School. The above picture was made before any additions or improvements were made to the original Mocksville building. The old house in the back of the players stood where the present gymnasium now stands. If someone will identify them . . . and provide the information . . . we will rerun them along with a story.

Davie Jail Termed AS One Of Worst In State

The Davie County Jail has been classified as one of the worst in the state and should be condemned.

This opinion was expressed last week by Leslie D. Smith, the inspector of correctional institutions in North Carolina Department of Welfare.

Smith described the Pasquotank County jail as "the worst in the state", but, "We've got some others that border on being just about as bad."

Jails on Smith's list as "just about as bad as Pasquotank" include those in Wilkes, Davie, Brunswick, Columbus, Clay, Transylvania, Madison, Alexander, Cabarrus, Stokes, Caswell, Richmond, Granville and Perquimans counties.

The 1967 General Assembly enacted a law that provides for the state Board of Public Welfare, with the approval of the governor, to set standards for jails. These standards are being drafted now, Smith said.

He noted the law also gives the commissioner of public welfare the authority to condemn jails which fail to measure up to standards.

Drastic Action

However, Smith pointed out that closing a county's jail is a drastic action that probably would be taken only as a last resort.

Smith said that in addition to the 25 per cent of jails which should be condemned, another 25 per cent need improvements in the way they are run and the other 50 per cent are "well run and in some cases expertly run."

He pointed out Currituck County has recently "voluntarily torn down its old jail and replaced it with a modern facility." Yadkin County has just completed "a modern jail that suits the size of the community," and Hoke County has closed its old jail and is building a new one.

Smith noted, however, that many counties have money for new schools and hospitals, but "they just haven't got enough money to build a jail."

The jail inspector pointed out that in addition to being concerned about how people are treated, people in a community ought to be interested in the security of their jails."

Prone to Escape

"Most of our old jails," he said, "are escape prone. Prisoners stay in them because they want to."

Although conditions in many North Carolina jails are bad, Smith said the state is a leader in the movement to improve jail conditions. He noted that only 18 states have jail inspection programs.

Smith plans to have four area supervisors working out of his office so that jails can be inspected more often. The new law requires inspections at least twice a year.

Smith also said he is working with the North Carolina Department of Community Colleges to offer courses to jail personnel beginning next January or February.

"I feel the situation will clear up," he said, "without a lot of forceful action on anyone's part."

New Patrolman

The North Carolina State Highway Patrol has assigned Cpl. W. R. Wooten to Mocksville effective as of December 1st. Cpl. Wooten has been stationed in Canton, N. C.

Cpl. Wooten will be in charge of the local staff of State Highway Patrolmen that includes Randall Beane, Ken Bolick, Bill White and A. L. Stokes.

National Guard Reorganizes

The North Carolina Army National Guard is undergoing reorganization that will change the 30th "Old Hickory" Infantry Division from an infantry to a mechanized infantry division.

Under this plan, effective January 1, 1968, the Mocksville unit will become Headquarter, Headquarters Company, Inpart, 1st Mechanized 139th Infantry. At the present it is Company B Inpart, 2nd Btn, 120 Infantry.

The one single organization in North Carolina most affected is the 30th Infantry Division as it converts from an infantry to a mechanized infantry division. The division is reduced from its current 88 units to a total of 54 and its strength reduced from 10,986 to 7,883.

Retained in the division structure would be the division base; one signal battalion with four companies; one engineer battalion with four companies; one brigade headquarters; one armored cavalry squadron with three troops; one military police company; one division artillery headquarters battery; one 155mm self-propelled field artillery battalion with five batteries; one 155/8 inch self-propelled artillery battalion with five batteries; one "Honest John" rocket battalion with three batteries; one headquarters company and band of division support command; one administration company; one medical battalion with two companies; one supply and transport battalion with three companies and one maintenance battalion with three companies. Also, the division would have two armored battalions and two mechanized infantry battalions with four units each.

The greatest loss to the division and the State are two of its brigades. This means the elimination of two brigade headquarters and four infantry battalions. Also, the division losts its aviation battalion. The Army Guard will also loso the special forces company with elements located in Wilmington and Charlotte.

The divisional losses are offset somewhat by the substantial gain of non-division units which includes a five-battalion force. Non-divisional units would include a State headquarters detachment with five operational sections; one mechanized infantry battalion with four companies; two military police battalions with four companies each; one transportation battalion with four companies; one maintenance battalion with four companies and one medical detachment with two medical teams.

Art Showing Set For Lorin Mixon Is Sunday

Lorin Mixon of Garden Valley Estates, Mocksville, will have a one man Art Showing at Davie County Library Sunday, December 3rd from 3 to 5 p. m.

Mr. Mixon was the winner in the "Open Air Art Show" held in Mocksville in October and sponsored by the Woman's Club.

The public is invited to attend this showing. Refreshments will be served by members of the Mocksville Woman's Club.

Mr. Mixon was asked to write a few notes to acquaint the public with his background. The following are his comments: "My first recollections of Art are recalled back to the first grade where we worked with crayons. The only thing I remember specifically was how carefully I wanted to stay in the lines.

Though I learned to use cursive writing quite acceptably by the end of the third grade, my painting introduction was to begin that year at Christmas time when a thoughtful aunt sent me a paint set.

I enjoyed Art throughout elementary school and was fortunate in having a talented teacher in the eighth grade that introduced me to oils. I did much of my pencil work between the grades of 8 to 10 and most of the pencil work in my collection was done during these years.

During High School, I did little art work, but took it up again in College at Madison, Tennessee and, after 3 years in the Marine Corps I returned to Madison College and the University of Florida.

My serious painting really began when we moved to the mountains at Burnsville, N. C. The scenery was so beautiful there that it was hard to resist trying to capture it on canvas.

My work now in the elementary schools is especially enjoyable as this is the age that many times one sees the possibility of a career and this age is easily stimulated to accomplish."

Rat Eradication Will Start Here

The rat bait is ready for the War on Rats Project. "Pick up your free supply at the community distributing point nearest you on Wednesday, December 6, from 7:00-9:00 p. m." said officials sponsoring program.

A group of citizens meeting with county officials organized the War on Rats Project several weeks ago. The bait will be free to all home owners. This was made possible by Mocksville Feed Mills, Junker & Son Feed Mill, Davie Farm & Garden, J. P. Green Milling Company, who furnished 9,500 lbs. of yellow corn. The County Commissioners purchased the Warfarin.

All county residents are asked to join the campaign to reduce the county rat numbers. County Agricultural and Health officials urge you to support the campaign, because they feel rodent control is worthy of an all-out community effort. On the farm, in the city, at home and at business, rats and mice are a serious menance to community health and prosperity. When economic losses are added to the health problems caused by these rodents, the importance becomes clear.

Community organizations will aid in distribution of the bait. Residents should contact the nearest organization listed here for the free rat bait: Advance Fire Department, Mocksville Fire Department, Center Fire Department, Clarksville Ruritan Club (William R. Davie School), Farmington Fire Department, Smith Grove Ruritan Club (at Smith Grove School), Davie Academy Community Building, Cooleemee Fire Department, Jerusalem Fire Department, and Cornatzer-Dulin Fire Department and Fork Fire Department.

Cedar Creek

"For he holds in mind a pattern as fair as his love is strong, which grows each day in the weaving; not a single thread goes wrong. No warp in his hand shall tangle, no slumber his eyelids close; We only can thwart his purpose when our stubborn wills impose. Our tangled and broken efforts to walk in his kind command will give life and added lustre, restored by his loving hand. "So thrust in the weaver's wisdom, In his love and unfailing, care, and the fabric of life, completed, someday will be wondrous fair." By-Devon

Pvt. William M. Edwards With The Marines

Marine Private William L. Edwards, son of Mrs. Gertrude B. Edwards of Clemmons, N. C., was graduated from eight weeks of recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot here.

He will now undergo from two to four weeks of individual combat training and then, after leave at home, will report to his first Marine Corps assignment.

The intensified Marine recruit training emphasizes rigid physical conditioning and survival techniques, both at sea and ashore, to develop self-confidence and endurance. Marksmanship with the M-14 rifle and 45-caliber pistol are equally stressed, and close order drill instills the traditions of Marine Corps teamwork.

Doctor In The Kitchen

HOW TO USE LEFTOVERS

The best solution to the leftover problem is, of course, not to have any. That takes shrewd calculation on the part of the homemaker, and is always subject to the appetite variations and caprices of her family.

The plain fact is that there will sometimes be foods left over from the best-planned meals. With costs high and rising, the thrifty home planner cannot afford to throw away useful foodstuffs. She must be concerned, too, about the nutrition of her family, and be sure that leftovers will not be lacking in essential nutrients.

There is a way to achieve both objectives, and it is relatively simple. It requires different handling for various kinds of leftovers, plus their integration into subsequent meals or snacks in such a manner that the total daily menu will represent an adequate supply of essential nutrients, and be good to look at and to taste.

The first important point is to care for leftovers so that they will keep. They should be put away under cover and refrigeration as promptly as possible. Warmth and oxygen — air — favor deterioration; so does light in some instances. The refrigerator provides cold and darkness. Some foods may be frozen after cooking, if they have not been frozen before; many cooks make double portions of popular dishes, and freeze half for future use.

Certain types of leftovers do not lose nutritional value either in storage, rewarmed or used as cold cuts. Meats, fish and poultry have the same important protein values as leftovers that they had the first time around. Carbohydrates like noodles, rice or potatoes do not lose appreciably unde proper storage. Fresh fruits and vegetables may have less vitamin value when they are kept over, but their mineral content is not lost.

These facts point to the simple and practical solution for using leftovers without disturbing the family's nutrition. Just be sure that a meal which is based in part on leftovers, shall include fresh and freshly prepared fruits and vegetables, to make up for the possible losses of vitamin values in leftover food.

In a well-planned dietary program, with plenty of all kinds of nutrients based on a varied selection from the four food groups the milk and meat groups, vegetables and fruits, breads and cereals), the likelihood of shortage from vitamin losses through re-heating, is naturally much less than in a diet which is close to the border line.

Wise choices to begin with help take care of leftover problems.

Taxpayers Ask I.R.S.

Question and Answer Column No. 67-43

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q - I already paid my tax bill but I just got another bill for it anyway. What should I do? .... ..

A - Return the bill with the notation that you have already paid it. Give the date the payment was made and the office to which it was sent to help identify your payment.

The computer system used for the processing of tax reurns operates on a sequential or step by step basis. Information can only be fed into the system at the beginning and not at any particular stage in the processing cycle. In your case, this could mean that the data on your tax payment had not reached the stage where bills are issued before it was time for a reminder notice to be sent to you.

Q - What's the provision of the law that allows a deduction for losses suffered as a result of street riots?

A - Losses stemming from riots are handled under the same provisions as those providing tax relief for casualty and theft losses. If a personal property loss qualifies under these provisions, that part of the loss exceeding $100 may be deducted. Qualifying business property losses are deductible in full.

A casualty is defined as the complete or partial destruction of property resulting from an identifiable event of a sudden, unexpected nature. Losses resulting from hurricanes, torandoes, floods, storms, fire as well as from riots qualifying under this provision.

For more details, send a post card to your district director and ask for a copy of Document No. 5174, "Disasters, Casualties and Thefts."

Q - Where can I get a copy of an estimated tax declaration?

A - Send a post card to your district director asking for a copy of Form 1040ES.

The next quarterly installment on estimated tax payments is due January 15. A taxpayer amending his declaration or filing an estimated form for the first time, should also do this by January 15.

Q - I've been supporting my uncle for some years. Will I lose my deduction for him if he goes into a rest home?

A - A close relative does not have to be a member of your household to qualify as your dependent. As long as other tests are met, you will still be able to claim your uncle as a dependent even though he no longer lives with you.

Q - I take care of my neighbor's child while she works. Do I have to pay tax on what she pays me?

A - The money you receive for this should be added to your other income for the year. If your gross income from this and other sources amounts to $600 or more then you return. with your husband then this income must be reported even when it is under $600.

If net income from taking care of your neighbor's child totals $400 or more you also may be liable for a self employment tax. Be sure to check this when you add up your income for the year.

Local Students Are Invited To Try For Pfeiffer Scholarships

Scholarship interviews for Pfeiffer College's competitive academic Trustee Scholarship for students entering in the fall of 1968 are now being scheduled by the college. A special invitation is out to students from the greater Mocksville area to make application for these awards.

The series of some 50 scholarships, many valued to $4,000 over four years, are designed for students who have notable high school records, demonstrated leadership potential, strong personal motivation, and who are interested in independent library, laboratory and classroom projects.

Dr. J. Lem Stokes, H, Pfeiffer president, said that a detailed folder on the scholarship awards as well as the total program of student financial aid is available to students of the greater Mocksville area upon request to the scholarship Committee. Pfeiffer College, Misenheimer, N. C., 28109.

The series of scholarship awards, plus a program of student loans and work-study plans, covers study in a wide range of subjects including the world of business, the natural sciences, the social sciences, choral and church music, religion, teacher preparation, languages and literature, and pre-professional study areas.

President Stokes noted that in student financial aid programs where acutal financial needs is a stated requirement, the family income of the applicant must be under $15,000 in most cases. The College awards some $250,000 in student aid yearly.

In the fall of 1968 Pfeiffer will launch its new academic program entitled AIM (academic - incentive - motivation) which has drawn much favorable comment from leading educators. It places great stress on independent student study, decreases emphasis on the traditional classroom lecture teaching method, and replaces the customary letter grading system with an incentive unit award plan, thus allowing the student to set his own pace toward graduation.

ASCS News

1968 Upland Cotton Crop

Growers again this year will vote by mail on marketing quotas for their 1968 upland cotton crop, W. B. Denny, State Executive Director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said today. Ballots are to be returned to the ASCS county office—by mail or in person—during the period December 4 through 8.

"Beginning with the referendum on marketing quotas for the 1954 crop, growers have approved quotas for each year's cotton crop," Mr. Denny stated. "In the vote last year, on quotas for the 1967 upland cotton crop, 91.6 percent of the growers voting approved the quotas. More than 300,000 persons voted—a gain of more than 40 percent over the previous year."

By law, quotas must be proclaimed by the Secretary of Agriculture in years when the total cotton exceeds the normal supply. That is the case this year.

Because growers cooperated fully in the 1967 cotton program, and because of abnormal weather conditions and insect infestation, cotton acreage and yields for 1967 were substantially below last year's, and the upland crop will total only a little over 8 million bales. Since domestic usage and exports during this marketing year are expected to exceed the small 1967 crop, the carryover by August 1, 1968, is expected to fall to about 7 million bales.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman recently praised cotton farmers for the "magnificent job" they have done in whittling down the huge supply of cotton to a stock of manageable size in the short period of 2 years. Now, he said, the challenge is to produce the right kind of cotton and to keep production and demand in balance.

The 1968 program has been designed to produce sufficient cotton to meet expected demand and to encourage the production of a higher percentage of the medium and longer staple lengths.

Tattle-Tales

By Gordon Tomlinson

There are advertising signs and then there are advertising signs. However, one on US 64 West near Cool Springs could cause some out-of-state travelers quite a bit of confusion.

This sign, along side of the highway, proclaims in rather large letters:

"Cool Springs Gin" and then underneath it in equally as large letters is the Pepsi Cola advertisement.

Of course, we all know that what is referred to, is the Cool Springs Cotton Gin . . . but it doesn't say so . . . And Cool Springs is rather an enticing name if one thinks of the beverage gin.

So, no doubt many motorists are remarking . . . If only to themselves . . . as they pass by this sign:

"MMM that's a new brand on me! And, it's the first time I've ever heard of it in combination with Pepsi Cola-"

Recently one day Johnny Norton's car had one tire . . . which according to one astute observer was definitely flat on one side.

This fact was pointed out to his father who tersely observed:

"Well . . . that's his worry. I've told him and told him to keep air in that tire!"

Seeing some quizzical looks, John hastened on to explain further:

"You see it has a slow leak that he hasn't been able to find . . . but does all right if he puts some air in it every day . . . but he forgets . . . and then has to call for help!"

This explanation clarified the statement:

"I've told him and told him and told him to keep air in that tire!"

Social Security In Davie County

A person reaching age 65 should enroll in Medicare during one of the three months immediately preceding the month of his 65th birthday, Robert C. Thomas, district manager in Salisbury, said today. This ensures that Medicare coverage will begin with the 65th birthday, Thomas stated, but a delay beyond this time will postpone Medicare coverage. Enrollment made the month a person is 65 or in one of the three months afterwards will cause the person to wait a month or more for his health insurance coverage. An extended delay in filing may prevent medical insurance coverage indefinitely.

Persons already receiving social security benefits will be mailed a card on which enrollment may be made for the medical insurance. This should arrive about three months before the 65th birthday, and should be returned without delay in the envelope enclosed with the card. If the enrollment card is lost or not received by the first of the month before age 65, the Salisbury Social Security Office should be contacted immediately.

Even if the person is continuing to work, an application must be filed with the Social Security Administration in order to establish entitlement to Medicare coverage.

The Salisbury District Office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursdays, and from 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. each Friday night.

"You can speed up payment of your first social security check by following a few simple suggestions," Robert C. Thomas, Social Security District Manager in Salisbury, said today. He suggested that people considering retirement should find out ahead of time how much they can expect in social security benefits and what papers and documents they will need when they apply.

"By inquiring before you retire," Thomas said, "you help us to get your social security payment to you promptly. You can, for example, find out whether you already have on hand a document that may be acceptable to prove your age."

Thomas also suggested, "file early and bring evidence of your age with you." You should file your claim two or three months before you actually retire, so there will be adequate time to request any needed information not readily available. Besides your social security card, you should bring evidence of last year's earnings. If you worked for wages, this can be your W-2 form. If you were self-employed, your tax return and cancelled check or money order stub will be needed.

"In addition, you will need to bring some proof of your age. You may not have an original birth certificate, but you probably have other records at home that show your age or when you were born. These records may be a delayed birth certificate, an old insurance policy, or a family Bible. Any of these will help to prove your age. Don't put off filing because you have no proof of age," Thomas said.

The social security office is located at 105 Corriher Avenue, Salisbury. The people there will be glad to advise you on how to receive your first social security check at the earliest possible moment.

LAST CALL TO THOSE WHO WOULD LIKE TO HAVE A RECORD MADE OF YOUR VOICE FROM HOME, FOR YOUR SON OR HUSBAND OVERSEAS.

CALL: 493-6642

The Piedmont Carolina Red Cross Blood Center received a letter from Major Edwin Guy of the State Highway Patrol, and a few lines were as following: The Highway Patrol has been called upon 105 times in 6 months to transport blood from Piedmont Blood Center to various hospitals. We the members of the Highway Patrol are in full sympathy with the blood program in N. C. and many of our individual members donate regularly. We do feel, that our services have been misused in transporting blood, and if all hospitals will comply with the Centers policy of keeping an adequate supply on hand, our services in this respect will be curtailed significantly.

When Davie county Bloodmobile was in Cooleemee, Oct. 12 we had 16 donors, some of these were workers with the Bloodmobile.

Each donor ought to know that when he gives a unit of blood his body replaces the gift within 48 hours. Nothing can replace the feeling of pride and self-satisfaction he receivers from the knowledge that he has helped someone.

Actually, the gift of one unit of blood may help several persons. Increased knowledge of the properties of blood and new scientific techniques have led to great advances in efficient uses for blood contributions.

All community groups and organization are invited to join in this special drive by donating blood through the Red Cross Blood Program or through community and hospital blood banks.

Salem Christmas 1800 Set For December 18th

The spirit of Christmas in Salem in 1800 will be re-created in Old Salem, restored Moravian congregation town, on Monday evening, Dec. 18.

Streets in the area of Salem Square will be blocked to vehicular traffic on that evening to permit the leisurely mingling of visitors, Salem College students and Old Salem staff members, many of whom will be in Moravian costume. There will be cooking in the kitchens of the Miksch Tobacco Shop and the John Vogler House, and music from the archives of the Moravian Music Foundation will be presented at both the Vogler House and the Single Brothers House. S. C. S. Administrator Will Receive Award

Administrator Donald A. Williams of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service, has been named a winner of the 1967 Rockefeller Public Service Award in the field of Administration. He is one of five 1967 Award recipients. The award includes a tax-free cash award of $10,000. Presentations will be made at a luncheon in Washington, D. C. on December 6.

Mr. Williams is the third head of the Soil Conservation Service since the agency was established by Congress in 1935. Mr. Williams has guided the agency's program through its change from "the dust-bowl ago" when erosion control was its primary responsibility to current additional responsibilities for water conservation, flood control and land use planning.

Mr. Williams recently stated, "Conservation is everybody's business because it affects everybody — in the cities as well as on the farms."

Today the work of the Soil Conservation Service involves metropolitan planning and zoning boards in the blending of rural and urban interests in land use.

Mr. Williams is a native of South Dakota and received his education in that state's public schools, South Dakota State College and the University of South Dakota. He received an honorary degree of Doctor of Agriculture from South Dakota State University in 1956. He joined the Soil Conservation Service in 1935 and held various field positions as a conservation engineer prior to his move to the Washington Office seventeen years ago.

Mr. Williams also serves as a consultant to the Ford Foundation and has been adviser to the governments of seventeen countries, including India, Turkey and New Zealand, on soil and water conservation problems, programs and organization. He has been consultant to the Agency for International Development in Latin America and in Asia, and directs SCS projects in several countries for them. He left on October 17th of this year for three weeks in India, where he is reviewing the Soil Conservation Service technical assistance program for India, and will return on November 20.

Mr. Williams received the Distinguished Service Award of the National Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts in 1957 and the Distinguished Service Award of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in 1958.

Jehovah Witnesses Attend Seminar

"The course of man in the twentieth century has moved this generation from the horse-and-buggy era to the most critical time in human history," said Joseph Saia, as he spoke to 1,030 Jehovah's Witnesses and others in assembly in Winston-Salem, N.C.

Speaking on the subject, "Will God Intervene in Men's Affairs?" Saia added, "The morals of people and nations have progressively declined and this has brought man into opposition to God."

Saia declared, "Man has drenched the earth with human blood. He has polluted air and water. His mismanagement of food has brought starvation to a great portion of the earth so that the population explosion leaves man's life in jeopardy." Saia emphasized, "Man has stockpiled horrible weapons to the point of destroying mankind several times over. Truly, the 6,000 year history of mankind shows that man is heading toward failure and ruin." To prove his statement, Saia quoted the Revelation concerning God's judgment 'to bring to ruin those ruining the earth."

He then cited another Revelation indicating that unseen evil forces are gathering the warring nations to the war of God the Almighty. Here Saia declared, "God will intervene in men's affairs for the sake of man and for the vindication of God's own Word and purpose. God will bring to pass His will on earth for which all Christians pray. God's 'Prince of Peace' Christ Jesus will bring a righteous administration to earth to administer peace, prosperity and life-everlasting to its inhabitants."

J. C. Smith, presiding minister of the group from Davie County, said, "The beneficial teaching received by our local delegates will help us to build up the faith of our community through home Bible study service."

HEY, UNCLE!

Hey, Uncle how much does it cost to rear a child?

You allow us taxpaying parents only $600 a year to feed, clothe, house and train a youngster. In your Federal Job Corps you spend $7,000 a year! This is quite a difference!

Now, which is the correct figure? Either we're allowing you too much or you're not allowing us enough.

You allow taxpaying parents a $600 deduction for the care and feeding of each child . . .

Yet under the Cuban refugee program you assume minimum upkeep requires $1,200 a year—and if the Cuban boy or girl is attending school—an extra $1,000 a year.

How come you shortchange the home folks?

In the austere environs of a Federal prison you have discovered that it costs—to maintain one person with no frills, no luxuries, and no borrowing dad's car—$2,300 a year.

By what rule of thumb do you estimate that Mom and Dad can do it for one-fourth that amount?

Under Social Security you will pay $168 a month to maintain the elderly, What makes you think we can maintain our young'uns on $50 a month?

And, Uncle, your VISTA program (Volunteers in Service to America) spent $3.1 million last year to train only 202 trainees. That indicates that the cost of maintaining and training one youth for one year is more than $15,000.

Then how come we taxpaying parents get an exemption of only $600 to maintain and train one youth for the year?

Or let's see how much you spent upkeeping one youngster in military uniform. House, $55.10 a month. Food, $30.27 a month. Clothing upkeeping, $4.20 a month. That comes to $1,074.84 a year. Are they not cheaper by the dozen?

How in the world do you expect us parents to manage more efficiently than you, because we usually do.

With all our expenses, we American individuals have more than enough savings to offset our debts; you don't.

With all our prosperity, you Uncle, are still spending per year $2.9 billion more for relief than during the depths of the depression. So it may be that you are uncommonly extravagant.

But however we try to rationalize and explain you, it is still a hurtful affront when you allow us hard working dues-paying home folks only $600 a year to rear a legitimate child—while you, under ADC, will pay more than $800 a year to upkeep an illegitimate one. There's something rotten here—and we're not in Denmark!

Memories Of A Tough Cop

I have just celebrated my 20th years as a traffic officer . . . I have many memories, pleasant memories of joyful occasions, happy outings and above all my many friends.

But, I also have horrible memories of terrible incidents . . . the unpleasant duty of delivering death messages, the broken homes, the weeping of mourners in our churches, and the moans of the dying on the highways.

I remember walking among the dead along the railroad tracks, with an arm in my hand, searching among the bodies to find one with a missing arm . . . an upturned face in the roadway and the rest of the body a distance away . . . cutting torches sparkling in the night, cutting the twisted metal away from mangled bodies . . . playing with a two-year old girl in my home on Sunday and seeing her in her coffin on Wednesday . . . searching the roadside after a wreck and finding the upturned face of a 17-year-old boy in the beam of my flashlight, his body down in the ditch . . . pulling six teenagers from the wrecked, half-submerged vehicle in the tailwaters of Lake Lucy, four dead and two crippled for life . . . two small boys sitting on the shoulder of the road crying, blood and tears streaming down their face, their father lying on one side of them dead and their mother on the other side dying.

I remember standing in the center of the roadway crying, the body of a little four-year-old girl in my arms, her golden hair flowing in the wind, her blood running down and dripipng off the end of my elbows. Yes, six feet and 200 pounds of TOUGH COP crying unashamedly and I looked up to God and I prayed, "Oh, Lord have mercy.

These horrible incidents, all true, and many, many others, did not happen on battlefields of far-off lands. They happened within a few miles miles of the City of Henderson . . . Here in North Carolina.

You, THE PEOPLE, ARE THE ONLY ONES WHO CAN STOP IT! WE NEED YOUR SUPPORT IN OUR FIGHT FOR SAFER HIGHWAYS!

ADVENT

Light The First Candle

December 3rd

Advent is a four week-season which looks forward to the coming of Christ. It begins this year on Sunday, December 3rd, and ends with the birth date of Christ, Monday, December 25th. Actually the Christmas season on the liturgical calendar goes 12 days beyond the nativity day or until Jan. 6, the Epiphany.

In many homes and churches during this season of Advent candles are lighted, one candle for each of the four Sundays before Christmas. On Christmas Eve, as all four candles burn, one large candle, symbolizing Jesus Christ the Light of the World, lighted. Sometimes Advent candles are white. Some people like to use purple. the liturgical color for the season. Others prefer to use red candles in keeping with traditional holiday colors.

Whatever the color of the candles - indeed whether or not we observe the season by lighting candles this is a time of preparation when we can withdraw briefly from the mounting busyness of our lives and devote ourselves to the preparation of our spirits. Now we can make ready our inner-most selves to receive anew God's gift of love, the Christ.

This is the season of high expectancy for Christians everywhere, a season for clearing away all spiritual debris, a time for making room in our hearts for his coming.

As we light the candles of Advent, may this be our thought:

O come to my heart, Lord Jesus
There is room in my heart for thee.

Washington Report

By CONGRESSMAN JAMES T. BROYHILL

Congress continues to confront problems of varying dimensions as legislative schedules bulge during what was, until recently, thought of as the closing days of the session. Developments at home and abroad have squelched adjournment plans and the Congress will almost certainly continue on through the year.

Our own economic difficulties and the unsettling consequences of the devaluation of the British pound are causing new and urgent requests by the White House to increase income taxes. As we have discussed in this column, the House of Representatives and the President have been deadlocked on essential questions of the country's financial management.

On the one hand, the Administration has been calling for a surtax of at least 10% in order to meet serious economic problems predicted during the next six months. We are told that a tax increase is required to prevent the serious inflation that will result from an estimated Federal deficit of $29 billion.

Those of us who have opposed this tax increase do not deny the urgency of our present situation. However, the strong view has developed in the Congress that tax increases are not adequate to meet the problem. The feeling is strong here that there must be a thorough reassessment of spending policies. This involves a greater element of expenditure control than we have seen heretofore. The country has before it the unpleasant choice of cutting back many of its non-essential programs in order to give priority to those Federal activities which demand first consideration.

The war in Vietnam and its rising costs is accounting for a very large share of the Federal budget at this time. There is no reason to think that war spending will not soar to even higher levels as battlefield requirements increase. So long as we have committeed Americans to the field of battle, we must be willing to provide them with every resource necessary to complete the mission that has been assigned to them.

Certainly, the consequences of the devaluation of the British pound are not completely known to us now. Nevertheless, we are seeing another demonstration of the inter-dependence of the world's financial structure. It has been necessary already for action to be taken which will increase interest rates in the United States. Our economists tell us that this is required if we are to prevent the flight of dollars out of the country. If this were to happen, it would only increase the balance-of-payments problem which the United States has had to face for the past several years. Other steps will surely follow that will be felt on every main street in the United States.

Out of the recent events, there are lessons which the United States should view very soberly. One is that a nation cannot presume to spend more than its available resources indefinitely if its financial position is to remain strong. A second lesson is the fact that Socialist programs can drive a nation to the brink of bankruptcy.

The tax increase proposal is now scheduled for additional consideration by the House Ways and Means Committee. However, it is unlikely that the House of Representatives will agree to the President's plan unless the White House first agrees to major cuts in expenditures and the assignment of priorities in Federal spending. These closing weeks of 1967 will probably see a collision of economic philosophies.

The Congress itself has been assigning its own priorities to various programs coming before it. For instance, the House followed its action of making

60-Second Sermon

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "When gratitude is dead, you no longer have a human being." - Monaghan.

The clergyman was trying to hearten a discouraged parishioner.

"You say you haven't anything to be thankful for? Just look at your neighbor Fordhym. He just lost his wife by pneumonia."

"Well," said the discouraged one, "that doesn't make me grateful. I'm not Fordhym."

It is said that few people show gratitude today. Perhaps we are slightly disappointed, ourselves, when others do not express appreciation for help extended. Looking on gratitude in that manner, we miss its most important benefit. Gratitude is not important for its meaning to

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

U. S. involvement in the Vietnam War, Federal fiscal policies, and crime and violence at home have been the dominant themes of the 1967 session of Congress.

A corollary issue has been the priorities to be assigned to stepped-up war efforts and to proposals to expand domestic social programs. The question all along has been whether the country will fund all the demands made upon it within the bounds of fiscal responsibility.

The war effort to date has commanded essential Congressional majorities in showdown votes on appropriations, but there has been a great division on how the country should deal with domestic issues, including Federal spending and taxes. This division is illustrated by the failure of the Congress to agree on the best means of controlling the anticipated $29 billion deficit.

On the brighter side, the fight against air pollution achieved success as a measure which I have strongly supported at this session. The Air Pollution Control Act was recently signed into law by the President. I think this measure points the way toward cooperative efforts of purifying the air we breathe, which, of late, we have found so contaminated. The Federal employees privacy bill won Senate approval, and is now in the House. There is still hope that the crime control bill, which I discussed in last week's column, can receive approval in this session. If not, the legislation will be pressed at the next session.

Several measures, which I have opposed, have been laid aside for this session. These are the campaign fund bill and the so-called "civil rights" bill. Early in the session the Senate killed the Presidential campaign fund bill whereby the public treasury would finance the campaigns of candidates of major political parties for this office. More recently, following Senate Finance Committee approval of a new bill to fund the campaigns of Presidential and Senatorial candidates in general elections, the Senate has shown no inclination to renew the battle over this issue. I have consistently opposed Treasury disbursements of funds to political candidates, and expect to fight this measure to the limit if it is brought to the Senate again.

The Administration's civil rights bill appears to be dormant following a narrow committee victory (8-7) which reported out a bill applicable only to one group of citizens. During committee consideration of this measure, I offered amendments to make the bill applicable to all Americans. The closeness of the committee vote has made it unlikely that a battle will be waged over this legislation until next session. The Soviet-American Consular Treaty won Senate confirmation over my strenuous disapproval. The argument was made by the bill's proponents that the treaty would build bridges of understanding between our nation and Russia. The ratification has brought little change for the betterment of relations between our two countries. In fact, it is well to note that the Soviets have since increased their shipments of arms to Vietnam to destroy American lives.

The Administration and Congress have yet to resolve the problem of the Federal budget. I have stated many times that if a real effort were made, the budget could be cut to a point that would restore financial responsibility. Since January 10th when Congress convened, I have voted to cut appropriations by approximately $8 billion. This is a pressing need which must be faced if the budget crisis is to be resolved.

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

IN THE AIR . . . Don't let it raise your eyebrows out of place, but at least one—and possibly two—members of the August North Carolina Council of State may not run for re-election next year.

A decision from each is expected in January.

BUBBLES . . . Good friends of Secretary of State Thad Eure winced just a little last week when he said something to the effect that Republicans are 'just blowing bubbles" when they talk of big gains for their party in North Carolina in 1968.

If Thad had let it stand at that, everything would have been fine. But that wasn't enough—he went ahead and quoted a whole stanza, or chorus, from the song . . . and didn't miss a word.

He seemed to know it well . . . too well. It reached the height of its popularity about 1921. That year, Thad Eure became 22 . . . and danced many a foxtrot to the music of Paul Whiteman and Nathaniel Shilkret.

KEEP FARMING . . . Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham tells about these two old farmers who were asked what they would do if they were to inherit a million dollars.

One of them said he would retire, sit on the front porch, fish a little, and let the rest of the world roll by.

The other one scratched his head, thought a moment, and then said he believed he would just keep on farming "until it's all gone".

MIDDLE-AGED . . . That fewer young people are going into agriculture is shown by the fact that the average age of a farmer in Wake County is now 46 . . . according to recent survey.

DON'T KNOW IT . . . Recently a certain worker for the Poverty Program in Western North Carolina was heard to say: ". . . I suppose my most difficult task is convincing people that they are really poor."

NOW . . . AND THEN . . . Upon reading the other day the Government's statement that the cost-of-living index for October would have been higher were it not for the stability of food prices, a friend of ours did some checking with Winn-Dixie in Raleigh and came up with the following interesting comparisons for November 11, 1957, as against November 11, 1967:

Three pounds of Crisco on November 11, 1957, cost 99 cents as compared with 89 cents for this November 11. Here are other items, with the first figure, each time, November 11, 1957: Morton Salt, two for 25 cents—and same this year; four-pound package pure lard, 85 cents and 57 cents; Del Monte Peaches (1 lb-13 oz) 33 cents and 35 cents; Quart of Miracle Whip, 65 cents and 67 cents; Quart of White House Vinegar, 27 cents in 1957 and 27 cents this November; five-pound size camp syrup, 67 cents and 69 cents; one pound of Maxwell House Coffee, 97 cents and 83 cents; Quart Duke's Mayonnaise, 73 cents and 67 cents; two pounds of long grain rice, 33 cents and 35 cents; 24 ounces of Welch Grape Juice, 39 cents in 1957 and same in 1967; the same baby food that sold three-for-31 cents on November 11, 1957, sold this November 11 at six-for-67 cents; a pint of Wesson Oil, 37 cents and 39 cents.

But he failed to check on ready-to-warm-and-eat shrimp; oysters; melon from Mexico; candy from Finland; frozen vegetables and pies of all kinds; and pizzas; and a wide assortment of other "groceries" which were not even available on November 11, 1957.

WINNER . . . Incidentally, Winn-Dixie last week won the Governor's Retail Food Industry award for doing the best job this year in promoting foods produced in North Carolina. R. Clyde Rigdon, who heads the Raleigh division servicing 70 stores in this State, accepted the plaque from Gov. Dan K. Moore.

Winner last year was Colonial Stores.

N. Y. BY CAR . . . At least two candidates for Governor so far agree on one thing—roads will be an issue in the 1968 gubernatorial campaigns.

John Stickley, Republican candidate probing for a nerve in position, thinks he had found something in highways.

Bob Scott, like his road-building daddy, senses highways and bi-ways as roots of interest to Republicans and Democrats alike. He has said as much. Gov. the cavernous mouth of the op-Kerr Scott black-topped 12,000 miles of rural roads during his four years in office.

But Stickley says if "the Raleigh crowd had wanted it", we would have today a big-east-west thoroughfare running from the sea to the mountains.

Out of all this talk may come toll roads for North Carolina. So far, with the extra penny of tax on each gallon of gas (originally voted in 1949 and redone last year) we have avoided the toll highways so popular now in Virginia, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, West Virginia—to name a few of the states.

You can ride from Raleigh south to Jacksonville, Fla—around 500 miles—without a toll of any kind. Go 500 miles north to New York City, and your total tolls for the trip will be $5.50 per car.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

You probable recollect I made mention in my little piece here a while back they was going to save money in the Post Office Department by using rubber bands instead of twine fer wrapping mail.

Well, Zeke Grubb's preacher come by the country store Saturday night and he had the details, official and everthing. It was a 2-page memerandum he got from the brother of a feller that goes to his church & works in the post office. When the session was over, the Good Parson give it to me fer enlightening your ignorance, Mister Editor, in this matter.

It says, first off, that these bands was "fat and oval in shape." It makes note to the 700,000 postal employees that they was gitting "fat bands" because it was easier fer "clerks applying the band to grasp the bands one at a time from a pile with less effort than to grasp normally formed bands one at a time from a pile."

Right here, I'm strong in favor of the new bands. Anything to reduce the efforts fer our post office boys.

And the memerandum goes on to explain how the bands was to be handled. "First," it says, "pick up the bundle, apply facing slip on the top or bottom as required; second, pick up rubber band, place over short dimension of bundle; and third, pick up second rubber band, place over short dimension of bundle at the center."

The memerandum had some pictures to show how to put the rubber bands around the mail. Farthermore, it says "at no time will two different methods of tying mail be used in the same case."

It goes on to say "receptacles for bands wil be used by employees, to store used bands, which will be used again, if they do not break first. Officials will receive progress reports on the entire operation."

The Parson got a standing ovation from the fellers when he got through reading the memerandum. Ed Doolittle said that part about using the same bands twict if they didn't break was real economy in Guvernment. He allowed, beween used rubber bands and turning off lights in the White House, we was new having real economy and he perdicted the Federal budget would drop.

Bug Hookum was also mighty pleased with this new rubber band operation at our post offices. He said he was worried about they might git to wrapping mail by computers and he didn't know what was going to hapen to this country when them compters got to drinking likker, running around with wimmen and gossiping about each other.

Yours truly,

Uncle Dave

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale put it this way, "It is impoisible to be grateful and embittered at the same time. It is impossible to be grateful and irreligious at the same time." We would add that it's impossible to be grateful and over-bearing at the same time; impossible to be grateful and cynical; impossible to be grateful and selfish. Gratitude blots out so many undesirable characteristics in men's lives that, for our own good, expressing gratitude should be our full-time occupation.

drastic cuts in the Foreign Aid Program by approving the continuation of the Peace Corps. Last week, with little fanfare, the Peace Corps was given a large vote of confidence for the work it has been doing in 58 underdeveloped countries in the world. Even here, however, there are some clouds of dissatisfaction on the horizon as we begin to see larger administrative costs threatening to develop an unnecessary bureaucracy within the Corps. We also have reason to be concerned about the relatively small contributions being made by the host countries themselves who are receiving the benefits of the Peace Corps program.

Davie County ARC Seeking Memberships

The Davie County Association for Retarded Children held a regular meeting Tuesday, November 21st, with 25 members and friends present.

Mrs. C. M. Anderson, president, reported that all letters had been mailed for the Fund Drive and the treasurer, Mrs. W. M. Long, reported that early response was most encouraging.

Mrs. P. A. Kelly and Robert Hoyle spoke to the group about the Sheltered Workshop for the Retarded which has been opened recently in the old Ellis Crossroads school building in Rowan County. It is hoped that Davie and Cabarrus Counties will join with Rowan County in the operation of this workshop which will provide instruction leading to jobs for the mentally retarded who have passed the age of 16.

The Association planned also to push on in their quest for a class for the Trainable Retarded in the county schools. It was reported that the state of North Carolina provides $70 a month for each child in a Trainable class, and it is hoped that Davie County will be able to supplement that amount so that a teacher and an aide can be employed for such a class. The county is now paying tuition for 7 pupils who are attending a class for Trainable Children in Winston-Salem. The Association for Retarded Children would like to find 10 or 12 applicants for such a class in this county.

It was decided after discussion that a float be decorated and entered in the Mocksville Christmas Parade on December 9th.

A
flameless
furnace?

It's true. It's electric. And because it's flameless, it spreads gentle, even warmth to every room in your home.
What's more, the electric furnace is economical to operate because of Duke Power's low electric rate.
And for year round comfort, you can add air conditioning more easily and economically because smaller air conditioning equipment is needed.
Although Duke Power neither sells nor installs heating equipment, we'll gladly furnish the facts. So talk to a representative soon. Just tell him you want information about the furnace that's flameless.
