Trial Reveals Murder Plot

Chris Gregory Accused Of Killing Ex-Girlfriend

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

Nearly two years after the murder he is accused of committing, Chris Gregory's trial began Monday in a special session of Davie County Superior Court.

If convicted of first degree murder, he could face the death penalty.

William Christopher Gregory, 20, is accused of killing his ex-girlfriend, Rolanda Evette Howell after breaking into her parents' home Aug. 10, 1992. Her younger brother, Trevor Olanda "Fonzie" Howell, was seriously injured.

Before beginning jury selection, Judge Marvin K. Gray entertained motions from the attorneys.

Gregory's lawyers, Statesville attorneys David Minor and Sam Winthrop, made a motion to suppress certain statements from the jury.

Allen Whitaker, a former detective of the Davie County Sheriff's Department, said he received a call from jailer T.F. Anderson about 9:20 on the morning of the murder, informing him there was someone at the jail who wanted to talk to him about a shooting.

On the sidewalk outside the jail, Gregory told Whitaker, "I shot two people this morning."

Whitaker said he did not place Gregory under arrest or ask any questions at that time. Gregory said his cousin Sederick Gabriel "Gabe" Wilson was also involved. Wilson accompanied Whitaker and Gregory to the detective's office.

In Whitaker's office, Gregory again said he had shot two people. Whitaker said he asked

Judge Tells Mayor, Cooleemee Chief To Work Out Problems

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

The trial of Cooleemee Mayor Jackie Morton has been postponed until Aug. 25.

Davie County District Court Judge Jessie M. Conley ordered Morton and Cooleemee Police Chief Matt Dillon to try to work out the disputes underlying the criminal charges against Morton through mediation.

Morton was arrested June 28 for taking an alarm system from Dillon's office and throwing it on the ground in front of the recreation department where it was damaged by rain. Valued at $52, the alarm was the personal property of Ronnie Boger, a Cooleemee police officer.

Morton admitted taking the alarm and throwing it in Dillon's yard but refused to pay the $52.

She faces charges of misdemeanor larceny and damage to personal property.

Judge Conley told Morton and Dillon to set up an appointment with Piedmont Mediation Center in Statesville as an alternative for resolving the underlying problems.

Morton's attorney said his client was anxious to go to trial but was more interested in working out her problems with Dillon.

"Hopeful anticipations are not the greatest," Morton said.

She said they don't have to go through with mediation efforts, but both agree they should try.

The concept of mediation has grown during the past several years. Organized in 1983, Piedmont Mediation Center is one of 21 mediation centers in North Carolina.

Mediation is considered an alternative in many civil suits and such criminal cases as trespassing and assault.

"We hope to show as many people as possible how to settle problems without violence or going to court," said Billy-Faye Gill, executive director of Piedmont Mediation Center.

35 Crack Cocaine Rocks After Raid At Apartments

An unemployed Mocksville woman has been charged with selling cocaine from her apartment.

Scott

Cathy "Cat" Delene Scott, 34, of The Glen Apt. 34, was arrested after a 5 a.m. raid on her apartment Saturday.

She was charged with possession of crack cocaine, possession of crack cocaine with the intent to sell or deliver, and maintaining a dwelling for the sale of crack cocaine.

Scott was taken into custody in lieu of a $25,000 bond, pending an Aug. 18 first appearance hearing in Davie District court.

Two juveniles were also taken into custody; one had 20 rocks of crack cocaine, valued at from $20 to $50 each.

More crack was found in a drawer in the apartment, and another juvenile held three rocks of the drug, said Mocksville Police Detective G.A. Bagshaw.

Acting on a tip from an informant, officers quickly organized the raid early Saturday morning. About 14 Mocksville Police and Davie County Sheriff's Department officers raided Scott's and another apartment.

"It was a pretty good effort by both agencies," Bagshaw said." Thirteen or 14 of us went in. We hit two apartments at the same time."

Approximately 15 people were inside Scott's apartment, and most were sleeping at the time of the raid, Bagshaw said.

Most of those at the apartments were banned from returning to The Glen.

Jermell Tyress Cockerham, 16, of Statesville, was found then. He was served for a warrant for second-degree trespassing, having returned to Cedar Ridge apartments after having been ordered not to do so. He will face that charge on Aug. 18 in Davie District Court.

Sheriff's Detective Tom Grubb estimated the value of the 35 rocks of crack cocaine seized Saturday at $750.

The Tradition Continues

114th Annual Masonic Picnic Scheduled Next Week

A 114 year tradition continues next week when "The Picnic" comes to town.

It will bring a host of carnival rides for the children, bingo for the adults, and a good feeling of helping others to everyone.

Proceeds from the week-long picnic, sponsored by the Masonic lodges in Davie County, go to help support the Masonic Orphanage in Oxford.

Highlighting the week will be the picnic lunch on Thursday noon.

Thursday's program begins with music by the Davie High School band, the Oxford Orphanage Choir and entertainers from the Masonic and Eastern Star home. State Sen. Betsy Cochrane is scheduled to give the keynote speech at 11:30 a.m.

At noon, gates will open for the picnic lunch. The tables will be filled with fried chicken, country ham biscuits and other goodies that have made the annual tradition famous. Even Davie County employees get the afternoon off to attend the picnic.

This year, Thursday is being called "Old Fashioned Day," said Bob Cook, general chairman. From 1-5 p.m. that day, the only afternoon the picnic will be open, there will be no gate admission. And there will be a reduced rate for the carnival rides, he said.

The carnival area will be open Monday-Friday from 6 p.m. to midnight.

Each night, there will be free entertainment under the arbor. Steve Long, a comedian and magician, will perform each night.

Also appearing at 8 p.m. will be: Monday, Crazy Amos; Tuesday, Southland String Band; Wednesday, the North Carolina Rambler; Thursday, The Sounds of Faith; and Friday, the Harvesters Quartet.

Magic Midway will operate the midway, Cook said. It is the same company that had the midway last year.

The picnic is held in Clement Grove, off North Main Street in Mocksville.

Times 'a Changing? One Woodstock Festival Cancels

Nostalgia has its price. Twenty-five years after Woodstock, that hallmark event of the 1960s, the reunion plans are not going well.

One of two reunion concerts has been cancelled because of faltering ticket sales. Shea Entertainment Inc. had planned a massive reunion on the original Bethel, N.Y., farm where the original 1969 concert was held. It had planned 50,000 tickets, but only 1,650 had been sold.

Alas, all is not lost. Shea had planned an Oldie-Goldie reunion for the 40- to 50-year-old crowd. Still planned is a Woodstock '94 modern day concert for the youngsters. It will be 60 miles away in Saugerties, N.Y. They have sold 150,000 of 250,000 tickets, and a pay-per-view cable television deal has been struck. Tickets are $135 for the three-day concert.

So there will be a revisit of Woodstock. By the kids.

True to form, this will be an organized concert. Concert-goers will have to carpool. Tickets have been sold in blocks of four, with only one car pass. The cars must be parked in remote locations, with shuttle buses delivering people to the concert.

The cancellation may be another indication of the passage of time. The hippies of the '60s, with graying hair and bulging waistlines, just aren't ready to spend three nights on the ground in possible rain and mud. It was fun 25 years ago.

And the music sounds much better at home on the CD player.

Bill Clinton Role Model: Kennedy Or Nixon?

President Clinton has endured many insults during his term. But perhaps the worst cut of all came last time from the New York Times Magazine.

Since his campaign, the president has tried to project himself as another John F. Kennedy. A young Democratic president looking ahead to the next millennium. He even went for a trip on the Kennedy yacht. He was the main eulogist at Jackie Kennedy Onassis funeral.

But the Times said the Kennedy comparison is off the mark. The closer comparison is with ... Richard Nixon.

"In Washington, it is no longer surprising to hear the president spoken of with open and dismissive contempt. In mainstream journalism and even mor so in popular entertainment, Clinton is routinely depicted as a liar, a fraud, a chronically indecisive man who cannot be trusted to stand for anything — or with anyone ...

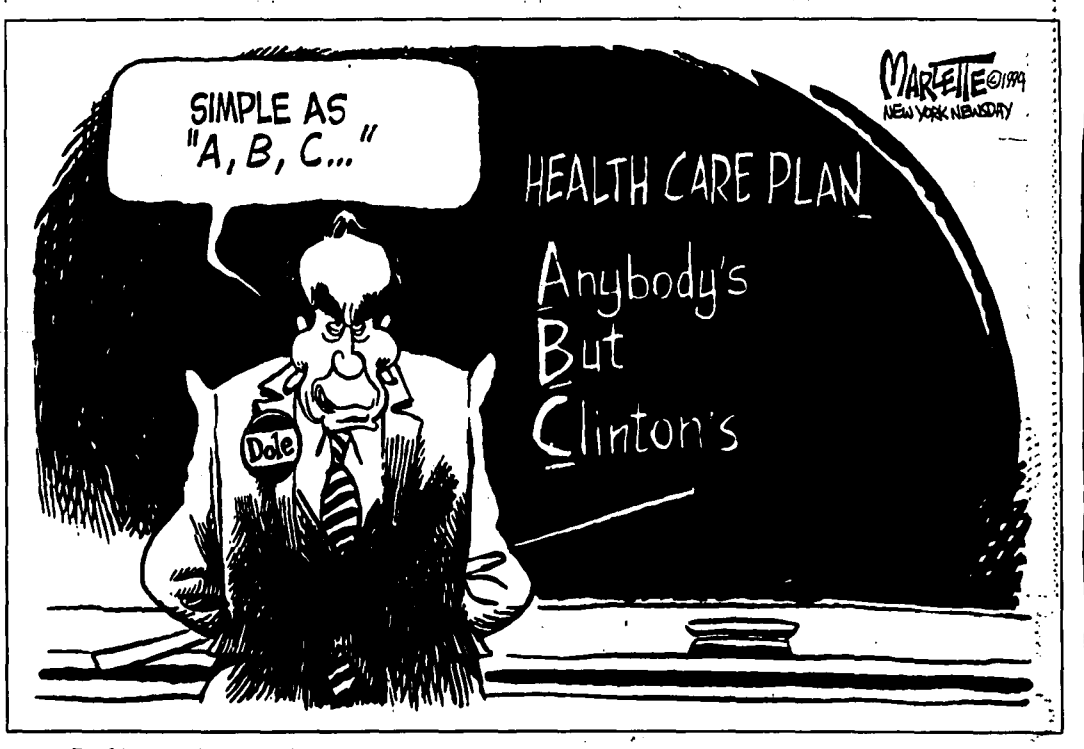

"Bill Clinton is the first president since Richard Nixon to be threatened with the awful intimacy of rejection not simply as a leader or as a politician but as a person.

"As was true with Nixon, this threat flows from a deep source, an abiding public doubt about the ethical content of the president's character."

Before his death, Nixon predicted Clinton would experience big problems when the Whitewater hearings began on television. Only days into the hearings, Clinton's staff seems to be packaging a coverup about warning their boss of a criminal probe.

This administration has been no Camelot.

Basket Contributors Needed For Annual Picnic

To the editor:

It is time again to plan for another special day of food and fellowship as we come together for the Annual Masonic Picnic. This year will be our 114th event and will be held on Thursday, Aug. 11.

As in years past, we will be able to make this a memorable occasion with your help. Well-filled baskets of delicious food are needed to make the meal the highlight of the day. Those who attend each year always have favorable comments concerning the quality and abundance of food.

Please have your food on the table, ready to serve, no later than noon. You may drive up to the tables, where the men will unload your baskets and park your car for you. Be sure to register with the ladies at the center table and receive a basket contributor ribbon.

If you are unable to bring a basket this year, your cash donation will be appreciated. Donations and proceeds from the picnic help support the Masonic Orphanage at Oxford. Children from the orphanage will be our special guests for the picnic. Please help us welcome them.

Thank you for your continued support of this worthwhile project. We look forward to seeing you on Thursday, Aug. 11.

Worth A Stamp

To the editor:

I am an ordinary person, deeply concerned about what I see in America.

For the price of a 29 cent stamp, I received from the National Taxpayers Union three pamphlets, non-religious, non-black or what, non gay or ordinary, Republican or Democrats, just folks who watch to see from Washington what is happening in the Congress.

You do not have to watch Friday the Thirteenth with Freddie, a horror show, to be frightened. Just order this material.

Check the report cards of North Carolina's Congressmen and women: (higher score means they voted to spend less of our money) Ballenger, A, 81%; Clayton, F, 18%; Coble, A, 87%; Hefner, F, 22%; Lancaster, D, 28%; McMillan, B, 72%; Neal, F, 24%; Price, F, 19%; Rose, F, 13%; Taylor, B, 73%; Valentine, D, 31%; Watt, F, 19%. The total state average was 42%. Faircloth had an A at 85% and Helms an A at 84%.

A total of 250,000 taxpayers belong to this union. As we plan to vote in November, you should order your copies of these materials.

Cooleemee Police Appreciation Day Worked

To the editor:

Cooleemee Police Appreciation Day was a tremendous success, and by far exceeded everyone's wildest expectations. I would like to take this opportunity to thank the enterprise Record for announcing the event in your paper.

I would like to thank all the individuals who volunteered their help and financial support. Thanks also to the merchants who contributed to the project and allowed us to put our announcements in their windows.

Certainly without the great outpouring of help and contributions from everyone Cooleemee Police Appreciation Day could not have taken place.

Again, my thanks to the hundreds of fine Cooleemee citizens who turned out to show their support and appreciation for their police department. Perhaps it is time for the tail to quit trying to wag the dog.

People Of Cooleemee: Solve Own Problems

To the editor:

We have lived our whole lives in Cooleemee and own our homes. Since the town has been incorporated, there are only two things we have gained. Daytime police and free garbage. We have none of the following: ambulance service, rescue personnel, night police, leash laws, water drainage control on streets, sidewalks.

We pay Mocksville for the Cooleemee Ball Park, the YMCA for the swimming pool and Davie County to collect taxes. Please stop and think.

What are the two most important things to you? 1) Life. If heart attacks occur, how long would it take to get an ambulance and would you still be living? 2) House. If your house caught on fire and nobody came, what would you do?

People of cooleemee, please go get a copy of the budget and see where your money is going. There is only a small amount for the fire department and no money allotted to benefit the age group 50-100. Somewhere in allt he planning, these people hae been forgotten and they make up the majority of th etown. Without them, there would be no town or town board. We elected five people to do what was right for everyone. If they are not capable of doing this, they should step down and let someone else try.

Let the people of Cooleemee get together and demand that the town board work for what we want and need to benefit every taxpaying citizen. Let us take pride in our town and fix it up so everyone will brag instead of criticizing. If the people of Cooleemee will work for the betterment of everyone, we can handle our own problems without any outside help.

Too Much Planning Can Ruin Vacation

Lynn Hall

I think I'm suffering a case of mini-van lag. I've just gotten back from vacation and can't quite get with the program yet. It's always like that. A week off is just enough time to get used to not wearing a wristwatch and worrying about what day it is. Then before you know it, that week you've dreamed of, saved your spare changes toward, and planned for ever since last summer, comes to an end. It seems we just get to our favorite beach, get settled in the house, I locate my favorite back porch rocking chair, immerse myself in the latest Martha Grimes mystery and suddenly it's time to pack up and head home. Some times I think the only really peaceful day I have at the beach is the second. We arrive on Sunday and spend the afternoon unpacking and getting settled. But on Monday I get up completely relaxed knowing I've got the whole week ahead of me. By Tuesday, however, I'm starting to count the days. How many left?

I read an article once that noted people are usually disappointed with their vacations because they do so much planning and have such high expectations that the actual event can never measure up to them. I know I've made that mistake in the past. Several years ago we were going camping in Williamsburg. I spent months imagining myself setting up the camper in among the trees, finding a nice shady spot for my lawn chair and then settling back amid the beauty of nature to help Richard Jury and Melrose Plant solve some baffling crime. We no more than got the camper set up, when it started to rain. It rained all that first day and into the night. It was raining the next morning and the next, and my lawn chair floated out to sea when the water in the adjacent marsh rose to hubcap level.

I try not to make that mistake any more. Now I just pick a week, make my beach house reservations and hope for the best. And as it turned out, this year was absolutely perfect. We had a house on the canal with a boat dock and it was like having a lake in your backyard. The kids got up in the morning, walked outside and jumped in the water. Normally I'm having to wade knee-deep out into the constantly shifting sand in order to do my motherly-at-the-beach-hovering. I not only get fish-nipped and a bathing suit full of sand, I also get a sore throat from having to bellow over the noise of the surf, warnings about the undertow, jellyfish and the sudden appearance of any triangular shaped fins. Here, I could do all my hovering from my comfortable and dry position up on the back porch. I barely had to raise my voice to issue reminders about rusty fish hooks, sharp barnacles and triangular shaped fins.

That boat dock was great. While neighbors on both sides of us and across the canal parked their cabin cruisers, 40 foot sailboats and high powered ski boats at their docks, I blew up my one-person rubber boat and tied it up at ours. I could climb in, stretch out with my feel dangling in the water and take a great nap. The only thing better would have been being able to turn over. But hey, who cares if I only got a one-sided suntan. It's the only side I can see.

Jury Selection Slow During First Two Days Of Gregory Murder Trial

who and where, before leaving his office to talk to his supervisor, concerned about the victims.

Winthrop and Minor said this evidence should not be included because Whitaker had gone to the jail with the knowledge Gregory was a suspect.

Winthrop said Whitaker should have read Gregory his rights before allowing him to make the statement that he shot two people. He had confessed, and his rights were still not read.

"It means nothing to advise him of Miranda [warnings] after he has already confessed twice. Miranda cannot help him then," Winthrop said.

Wilson was sent with a detective to locate the crime scene and the victims.

Whitaker said he advised Gregory of his rights at 9:25 a.m., using the standard Miranda form. According to Whitaker, Gregory seemed to understand his rights and signed the form.

According to Whitaker, Gregory said he had been on the phone with Evette the night before. She told him she wanted to date other people. Gregory had dated Evette for about four years. They had a son, Christian Xavier Howell.

Gregory said he and Wilson had gotten up around 8 or 8:30 a.m. and took some rope and duct tape from his grandfather's smoke house.

He used a screwdriver to open the door at the Howell home while Wilson watched for cars. Gregory said he got a gun from the closet and put it in his pocket.

He told Whitaker he went into Evette's room and started putting duct tape over her mouth as she screamed.

Wilson said, "He's [Fonzie] getting up."

Gregory said he gave Wilson the gun and threw Fonzie down, while Wilson shot him once in the head, Whitaker read from his notes.

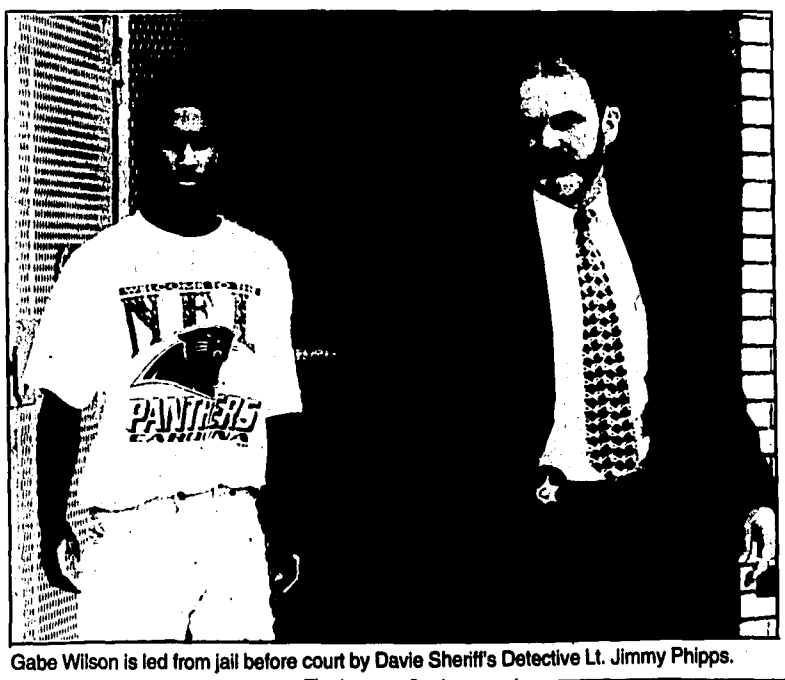

According to Whitaker, Gregory said he went back into Evette's room. She had pulled the cover up, but he could see her head and hear her screaming under the covers. He said he shot her once in the head. His son was lying on the bed beside her. Gregory said he didn't "mess" with the baby.

He said they were in the house no more than five minutes. They went back to his grandfather's house where Gregory called his mother, told her what had happened and said he was going to kill himself, Whitaker said.

Gregory told Whitaker they hadn't planned on shooting them but were going to strangle them.

At what point a defendant is in custody is an important factor in determining when Miranda rights should be read.

Whitaker said Gregory was held after their interview ended about 10:25 a.m. By that time, it had been confirmed that Evette had been killed, and Fonzie was in critical condition at N.C. Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem. Gregory was not arrested until 3:30 p.m.

Gabe Wilson is led from jail before court by Davie Sheriff's Detective Lt. Jimmy Phipps.

Whitaker said Gregory was not restrained or under guard while he made his statement.

During the time Whitaker was out of his office discussing the situation with his supervisor, Gregory would have been free to leave, he said.

Based on other cases, Winthrop said the test of whether or not a person is in custody is whether or not he feels free to leave. He said at no time would Gregory have felt free to go.

Judge Marvin K. Gray denied the motion, saying none of Gregory's constitutional rights had been violated.

Gray said Whitaker's notes from the session, which were signed by Gregory, were admissible as evidence.

He ordered a type-written statement based on those notes suppressed. Gray said it included some information not in Whitaker's original notes.

The next motion from Gregory's attorneys involved letting jurors know when he would be eligible for parole if he received a life sentence.

With a life sentence, Gregory would be eligible for parole after serving 20 years.

Winthrop cited other cases in which jurors had commented that knowing this information would have changed their decisions.

But Gray said such a motion "can cut both ways." Knowing Gregory would be out in just 20 years might encourage some jurors to vote for the death penalty.

"I feel the jury should know it will be 20 years before I'll be eligible for parole," Gregory told Gray.

Gray denied the motion.

Assistant District Attorney Eugene Morris made a motion that all three charges against Gregory be consolidated for trial. Gray granted the motion.

The charges are first degree murder for the death of Evette Howell, felonious breaking and entering into the Howell home and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill inflicting serious injury to Fonzie Howell.

As the first round of jury selection began, Gray reminded potential jurors that the defendant is innocent until proven guilty. The entire burden of proof rests with the state, Gray said.

At the end of the second day of jury selection, four jurors had been seated, receiving approval from the attorneys for the prosecution and defense. Twenty-four potential jurors were excused after questioning.

Among the reasons for excusing potential jurors were hearing impairments that might affect ability to perform duties, inability to be impartial, knowledge of a person connected to the case, inability to invoke the death penalty and preoccupation with outside matters.

Based on a court order issued by Judge Gray in February, no one connected with the case could be contacted for comment.

The order says no one may contact any prospective juror, juror, party to the case, witness, lawyer involved or person participating in the trial without express permission from Gray. He is also unavailable for interview during the course of the trial.

Gray has ordered that no electronic media be set up in the courtroom. The court reporter's trial record and the official court file are not to be made available for public inspection during the trial.

These and other rules, which are to be strictly enforced by the Davie County Sheriff's Department, are posted outside each entrance and exit to the courtroom.

Town's Mayor, Police Chief Must Go To Remediation Center To Air Differences

Most cases handled by the center come from Iredell County, but it sometimes handles cases from surrounding counties, Gill said.

Mediators are trained to be neutral and look for the underlying causes of a dispute.

According to Gill, a mediator sets up individual appointments with both parties in a dispute to find out what caused the dispute and what each one would like to have happen. The mediator attempts to find things about which both parties agree.

Based on the response from each party, a mediator may ask them to come back for another appointment or may determine that the dispute cannot be settled through mediation.

Gill said mediators offer guidance and empower people, but they do not tell people what to do. It is up to the people involved in the dispute to reach an agreement.

"We are peacemakers. We want to see communities grow and be more attractive," Gill said.

Mediation is an appealing alternative to high profile individuals involved in a dispute because, unlike court, it is not public information. Everything that goes on at the Piedmont Mediation Center is strictly confidential, Gill said.

All cases for mediation must involve a relationship. A police chief has a working relationship with a mayor. If that relationship is broken, it needs to be mended, Gill said.

"I guess it's worth a try," Morton said.

Dillon said he didn't know how this would turn out because he has already tried to work with Morton about the alarm. Only when she refused to cooperate did he have her arrested.

"The judge thought it would be best, so I will comply. I don't believe in knocking anything 'till it's tried," Dillon said.

Oak Valley Homesites Now Under Construction

Advance, N.C. – Oak Valley, the residential and golf community the Triad has waited for, is taking shape. On July 18, 1994, the Davie County Board of Commissioners voted unanimously to approve all eight of the initially planned neighborhoods.

All environmental and other necessary permits have also been approved. The Oak Valley Development has now recorded eight neighborhoods to be sold and are completing construction of all necessary utilities, roads, etc.

Hubbard Realty of Winston-Salem is marketing the Oak Valley Development. Hubbard has obtained commitments from 33 select builders to participate in the Oak Valley Builder Program. Together, they've committed to more than 200 lots! New homes are already under construction.

Underground utilities including electricity, sewer, water, cable TV, telephone and natural gas will be available in all areas. Fiber-optic cables are also being used for state-of-the-art services.

Construction on the Oak Valley Clubhouse and Arnold Palmer Signature-Designed Golf Course is set to start in September 1994, with plans to open the new six-million-dollar facility in the fall of 1995. Arnold Palmer will be on site during construction and, of course, for the grand opening.

In addition to the Triad's ONLY Arnold Palmer Signature-Designed golf course, Oak Valley offers peaceful living and distinctive neighborhoods. Each neighborhood has its own personality and price range, starting in the $130s and ranging up to the $400s. A landscaped boulevard winds through Oak Valley, allowing easy and direct access to each neighborhood. And Oak Valley residents will enjoy the low taxes and excellent schools Davie County is known for!

Davie Family YMCA Day Campers Learn About Big Bull Bash At Big Oak Ranch

Chris Shore wants to go to a rodeo.

At Davie Family YMCA Day Camp last week, he got a small idea of what he would see. Big bulls. Brave cowboys.

"I like to see the bull fighters go around and try to keep the bull off the rider," Shore said. "I thought that was neat and very interesting."

Tim Smith was at the YMCA promoting the "North Carolina Big Bull Bash," a bull riding event scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Aug. 18 and 19, at Big Oak Ranch off U.S. 158.

He brought former bull rider Clay Chapman of Clyde, Texas, and rodeo clown and bullfighter, Steve Manning of Mesquite, Texas.

Chris and another YMCA camper, Scott Nelson, pretended to be bulls charging Manning as he demonstrated how a bullfighter keeps the bull's attention without getting hurt.

The children were shown a bullriding video, and were taught some of the techniques and equipment by Chapman.

Chris Shore pretends to be a bull, charging rodeo clown Steve Manning at the day camp.

Mocksville Woman Arrested For Selling Crack Cocaine

A Mocksville woman has been arrested for selling crack cocaine.

Jacqueline Dee Helms, 44, of 756 Yadkinville Road, was arrested July 14 on six charges relating to the sale of five rocks of crack cocaine, according to a report by Mocksville Police Detective G.A. Bagshaw.

Helms was charged with two counts each of selling and delivering cocaine, possession of cocaine, and maintaining a dwelling for the sale of drugs.

She was taken into custody in lieu of a $10,000 bond, pending an Aug. 18 first-appearance hearing on the felony charges.

Three Are Found Guilty In Theft From Jewelry Store

Three people were found guilty of participating in a recent robbery at Foster's Jewelers in Davie County District Court July 28.

DuJuan Lamont Jones, 18, was charged with misdemeanor larceny. Kristi Rose Scroggins, 20, and Lisa Marie Sawicki, 21, were charged with aiding and abetting larceny.

All three pleaded not guilty, but after hearing testimony, Judge Jessie M. Conley found the defendants guilty and sentenced each to two years in prison suspended for three years with intensive probation.

Each must complete 72 hours of community service work and have no contact with co-defendants.

The chief witness for the prosecution was Ann Johnson, who previously pleaded guilty to related charges.

The four apparently went into Foster's Jewelers because Scroggins needed a new watch battery.

While Scroggins was getting a battery, Jones put a ring in Johnson's pocket, she said.

Scroggins put six stolen rings on the TV set at Sawicki's house. Scroggins said Sawicki put two rings in the mailbox, Johnson said.

Johnson said Sawicki didn't know the rings had been stolen at first but didn't encourage the others to return them when she found out - just moments after leaving the store.

Allen Foster of Foster's Jewelers said the rings were worth $160.70, but $50 damage had been done.

He didn't see anyone take anything, Foster said. He noticed the missing rings after Johnson broke a statue and ran from the store with Jones. He said Scroggins appeared surprised the others had run from the store.

Jeff Harpe of the Mocksville Police Department said Sawicki agreed to let the police search her house without a search warrant, where they found six rings on the TV and two in the mailbox.

All the missing rings were recovered.

According to Jones, he did look at the rings and even put one in his pocket but put it back before leaving the store.

He said he never saw any rings after leaving the jewelry store.

Scroggins said her boyfriend had provided the police with a lot of information. She said on the day of the robbery Johnson had taken the blame for the entire thing.

Sawicki said she didn't know the rings were in her house, pointing out that she willingly allowed the police to search it. She said she was already outside the store when the statue was broken and did not participate in stealing any rings.

Each defendant's attorney tried to have charges dismissed, but the judge denied each motion.

Assistant district attorney Georgia Nixon said that Johnson had made no plea arrangement in exchange for her testimony.

Inmate Represents Self; Sentenced To Five Years

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

An inmate charged with assaulting an officer at the Davie County Correctional Center chose to represent himself at his trial Thursday in Davie County Superior Court.

A jury found Roosevelt McNeil, 37, guilty of attacking Miranda Bryan with a chunk of asphalt on March 17.

Bryan said she was walking on the sidewalk when she realized someone was approaching her from behind with his hand raised as if to throw something. Screaming, she ran for cover but felt an object hit her in the buttocks.

When she turned to see what he was doing, he had retrieved the object and raised his hand to throw it again.

"I felt my life was in danger," Bryan said.

She said she had a deep bruise and knot which did not go away until early June.

Officer William Scott Bracken said he was inside a room working when he heard a scream. Opening the door, he saw McNeil with an object in his hand apparently ready to throw it and Bryan running toward him.

"When he saw me, he dropped it," Bracken said.

Timothy Shores, a correctional sergeant at the unit, said McNeil was cuffed and brought into his office. When he asked him what the problem was, McNeil's only response was, "Lock me up, sergeant. I want to be locked up."

An inmate can be segregated from the general prison population in what is called "lock up" or "the hole" among prisoners. McNeil had been there about a week earlier, Shores said.

Another correctional officer, Steve Allen, said he saw an object strike Bryan.

Johnny Calloway, the correctional officer who cuffed McNeil, said he saw Bryan holding her back.

Each witness agreed that the weapon was a chunk of asphalt about the size of a softball. Most of them reported hearing McNeil yelling at Bryan.

Though a chunk of asphalt is not a deadly weapon by definition like a gun or knife, assistant district attorney Eugene Morris told the jury of cases where a pencil or a person's hands could be a deadly weapon. He urged them to return a verdict of guilty of assault with a deadly weapon against a government official.

McNeil did not question the witnesses or address the jury.

In less than five minutes, the jury returned with a guilty verdict.

Because Morris did not have an official copy of McNeil's record, McNeil asked that sentencing be postponed until Friday when Morris might verify his prior record.

Catherine Graham, Moore County Clerk of Superior Court, had court records for at least 12 prior convictions.

Judge W. Steven Allen sentenced McNeil to five years in prison to be served when his current sentence expires.

Pete Walker shows 14-pound Canary Melon from his garden.
- Photo by Robin Fergusson

'Cross' Turns Out To Be Canary Melon

Pete Walker thought his watermelon vine and become tangled with his canteloupe vine.

And the result was some sort of cross between the two.

As it turned out, it wasn't a regular canteloupe vine that Walker had planted behind his Mocksville home last spring. It was a Canary Melon.

"I thought I was buying canteloupe plants, but this is what they sold me. I bought three of these and three watermelons. At first, I thought they were mixing."

How did he like the Canary Melon?

"It's sweet as sugar," Walker said.

He found out what he had by seeing some of the melons for sale in the grocery store. The only difference, his melons were three times as large. It may have been the Miracle Grow, he said.

Walker said he enjoys working, and eating the rewards from his small garden off Avon Street. The hardest thing is keeping the groundhogs and rabbits and other critters away from his goodies.

If It's August In Davie County, It Must Mean Football

Ronnie Gallagher

State Playoffs Could Split By 1995

When Mike Carter coached football at Davie County High School, he wanted a change to help the smaller schools in each classification.

Carter

Especially in 4-A, where he wanted the more populated schools in a 5-A league. He felt the schools like Davie and North Davidson could not consistently compete with the Richmond Countys and Scotland Countys, who have up to 1,000 more students.

Carter, now at 2-A Mooresville, is closer to his goal. A plan will be presented to split each classification's playoffs in half.

Carter, the current North Carolina Football Coaches Association president, said the plan will still have 32 teams in each classification. The teams will then be split evenly based on enrollment figures. The 16 biggest schools would be in one bracket and the16 smallest in the other.

Once the 16 teams are determined in each bracket, a state map will be used to dictate the two, 8-team Western and Eastern regionals. Teams would be seeded 1 through 8.

How would the teams be seeded? Either by committee (5-A coaches picking 4-A and vice-versa), power ratings, a blind draw, by winning percentage or a systen that could evaluate strength of schedule.

"If strong support is shown at the regional meetings, I think (North Carolina High School Athletic Association director Charlie Adams) is going to take it to the board," Carter told reporters. "The NCFBCA heavily supports it but it will be a matter of waiting to see what happens at the regional meetings."

If the plan goes through, it will actually knock a week off the current playoff schedule, going from five weeks to four.

"We have a concern that the season is too long," Carter said. "The idea of being able to play two state championships in one less week is also appealing."

Davie coach Randall Ward said, "I think it's a good thing

Coaches Welcome 82 Prospects

Davie County Enterprise-Record

Randall Ward opened his sixth football season Saturday when Davie County High School began practice for the 1994 season.

The War Eagles, who play in the Central Piedmont 4-A Conference, are coming off a 5-5 season.

Ward welcomed 82 prospects from four grades, including a large freshman class. The ninth graders will be attending school at the high school for the first time.

"There were quite a few freshmen," Ward said. "It should be a better situation for them (being at the high school). They'll be around their coaches more and practicing at the school they attend."

Seniors Deryl Wilson, Josh Ward, Matt Sain and Mark Mason, all starters last year, led the War Eagles onto the field. They went through stretching, basic exercises and drills.

"I was well-pleased with them," said Ward. "In the first week, we'll

Chaffin Returns From Far East Trip

By Ronnie Gallagher
Davie County Enterprise-Record

If Kendall Chaffin ever makes it on Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous, he can thank a 4.7 time in the 40.

Chaffin is back home in Mocksville after spending 11 days in the Asian country of Taiwan, promoting the new United Football League. Chaffin was one of 55 players chosen for the Asia Pacific League's Taiwan Dragons, which begin league play next season.

He was treated like royalty and even likened it to the show featuring Robin Leach.

"I still can't believe all this is happening," he said from his home last week.

Chaffin was in South Carolina on a sales job when his name was pulled by UFL officials looking for players who were impressive in the NFL Combines and camps. Also, several players with NFL experience who were cut were called.

Chaffin joined 100 others in Bowling Green, Kentucky for a tryout camp. He made the Dragon team, boarded a plane and headed to the Far East.

"The camp lasted 10 days," Chaffin said. "I was 6-4, 270 when I got there. My roommate is 6-4, 240. We were the smallest linemen there."

Suddenly, an out-of-shape Chaffin had to perform against Division I players and former pros.

"I hadn't lifted weights," Chaffin said. "I had run some. I really didn't think I was going to play again. I had my mind set that it was time to get a job and start a life for myself."

Chafin was placed at defensive end, his natural position. The defensive coach told him he not only had won a spot on the team but would start in an exhibition game, the Taiwan Classic, a week later.

Once Chaffin entered Taiwan after a 12-hour plane ride, he was no longer Kendall Chaffin the country boy.

He was Kendall Chaffin, TV star, football star...

Just plain star.

"We had the best of everything," he said. "We stayed in a five-star hotel eating the best food money could buy. We'd send our laundry out an it came back like we'd just bought it. Shirts were in plastic with cardboard collars. There was a mall in the bottom of the hotel and two or three beauty shops. Viloins and pianos were being played. It really was like Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous."

Police followed the players everywhere. Each of the 11 days Chaffin was in the city of Taipei, there were promotions and parties to attend.

One day, Chaffin and Winston Sandry of Notre Dame was asked to drive a certain man around town and have photos made with him.

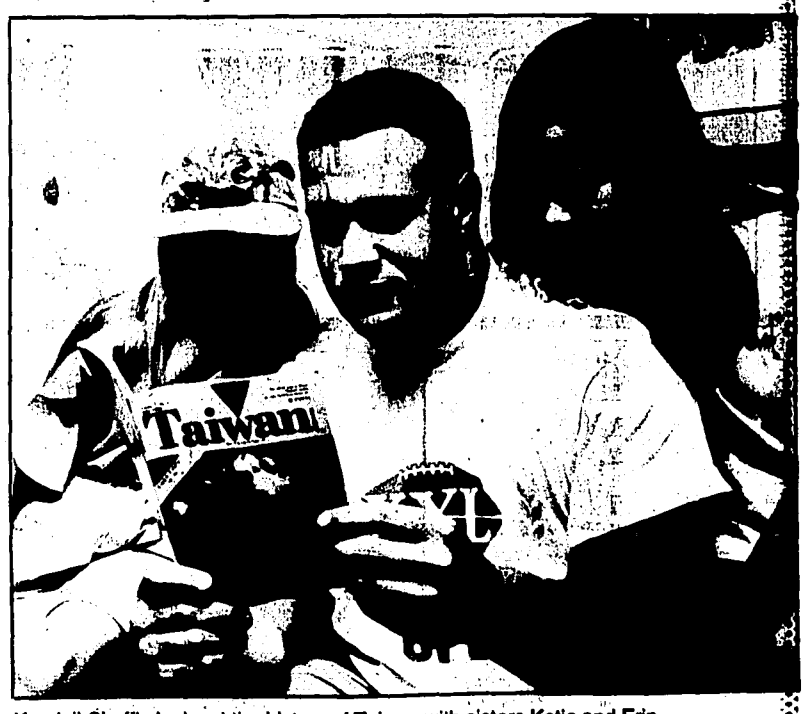

"The coach told us to carry this dude off," Chaffin said.

That "dude" was the fourth richest man in the world, one of the backers for the new American football league.

"It was a big publicity stunt," said Chaffin. "There were cameras everywhere. A security helicopter was flying over the square. Their CIA was there."

Another promotion was a ribbon-cutting at a Wendy's fast food restaurant.

"We were in this huge square, way bigger than Mocksville's," Chaffin said. "The president of Taiwan was there, the mayor of Taipei, the fourth richest man in the world, everybody."

Speaking of fast food restaurants, that was the food Chaffin couldn't stomach. The first thing he did after arriving home was head to Miller's for a cheesburger.

"I needed some American food," he laughed. "They have McDonald's, Burger King, Wendy's and Subway over there but it has that Taiwanese twang to it. There was some dog and cat eaten over there. Some of the players came home sick from the food. You never know what you're eating. It's kind of a surprise."

Chaffin had little chance to rest but when he did, he watched MTV and three-year old American soap operas. "And sumo wrestling was on every day."

But mainly, Chaffin worked for the league. He was either practicing or going to a publicity function.

"It was elbow to elbow, everywhere you went," he said. "If you're a big American, they like to touch you. They're small people over there. They just kept touching us. It got annoying at the end of the trip."

Chaffin did enjoy the children's television show he was a guest on. He and several fellow teammates showed the children some formations and discussed the fundamentals of football.

"We signed autographs and gave out tickets," he said. "The kids about ran me over."

The team gave the players spending money but Chaffin and his teammates almost lost their chance to spend it, thanks to a typhoon that hit on the second day of the trip.

Several players, including Chaffin, were shopping at the Night Market in Snake Alley.

"They have these shops where they take snakes, tie them up, take their blood and people would drink it," Chaffin remembered. "We had asked if we should go out that night. A security guy said to go because the typhoon wasn't going to hit this side of the island.

"All of a sudden, the wind started blowing real bad. The next thing I knew, a sign fell off the side of a building, busting up a car. Then, a side of a building fell down. We were hiding in the alley because stuff was blowing down the street. We had to get a policeman to get us a cab to take us home. Trees would fall and we'd have to go around them. We barely made it back."

Oh yes, there was football being played as well. The Classic was played in the 27,000-seat city

A Perfect Fit

Football Team Welcomes New Coaches

Davie County football players greeted two new coaches to the staff last week when football practice began.

Pat Mitchell, an 10-year veteran at Forbush and Western Alamance, joined the team, as did Scott Young, a first-year coach and graduate of East Rowan and Guilford College.

Mitchell

Young

Last year, Mitchell stood on the opposite sideline as Davie County whipped Forbush with a 37-point second half to win 37-7. This year, the game is at Forbush so he'll have some strange feelings.

"It will be a funny feeling," he said.

Mitchell has always had Davie County ties, despite the fact he taught at Forbush and lives in Lewisville. He is married to the former Michelle Weavil. His brother-in-law is Mike Holcomb, who is the public address announcer at Davie football games. And his mother-in-law still lives in Advance.

"I'm connected," he said.

Mitchell grew up as the son of a Marine officer. He moved around as a young boy before playing at West Carteret High School. He was a noseguard at Henderson State in Arkansas before finishing at East Carolina and Greensboro College.

He will coach defensive backs, taking the place of Cary Powers, who is coaching Davie's first cross-country team since entering 4-A.

Young also played college football and remembers Davie County well from his high school days at East Rowan, where he graduated in 1989.

"We scrimmaged them every year," he said. "And we wrestled them.

Young was a heavyweight. How did he do against one of the best teams in the state? Like everybody else.

"I lost,' he said.

He had another connection at East Rowan. His line coach was Ed Bowles, a former East-West participant for Davie County back in 1962.

"I was also familiar with Coach (Randall) Ward because he was at West Rowan when I played," Young said.

Young played both ways in high school before going to Guilford, where he was a member of the Old Dominion Athletic Conference champions during his junior year.

"We got championship rings for it," Young said. "It's something I'm real proud of."

Fall Coaches

Here's a look at the fall coaches at Davie High School:

Football: Randall Ward's assistants are David Hunt, Jerry Walser, Tim Shuford, Pat Mitchell, Scott Young, Devore Holman, David Gilbreath, Jeff Ward and Brian Cantrell.

Tennis: Mary Ann Rankin.

Volleyball: Sherrie Myers. Jayvee coach Laddin Lakey.

Soccer: Pete Gustafson. Jayvee coach Joe Ramsbotham.

News from around the Central Piedmont Conference:

• There will be a new baseball coach at Reynolds High School.

Doug Illing, an assistant last season for the Demons, will replace Tim White, who resigned at the end of last year.

Dancing Boots

It will be a young Davie County Dancing Boot squad in 1994-95. Only four of the 13 members are seniors.

Boot coach Susan Wall welcomes back seniors Angie Roberson, Allison Bowden, Ginnie Leonard and Monique Steiger.

Roberson is the captain and Bowden the co-captain.

Other Boots are Christen Arrington, Tracey Delaney, Jennifer Dull, Monica Duncan, Shelley Fightmaster, Anna Mercier, Brandi Phillips, Jessica Spillman and Shannon Williams.

Legion Baseball

American Legion baseball is over in the Southern Division of Area 2.

Rowan lost a controversial, rainy Area 3 series to Kernersville, 3 games to 2.

The crucial contest was Game 4, when Rowan lost a one-run lead in the bottom of the ninth and the game, 7-6.

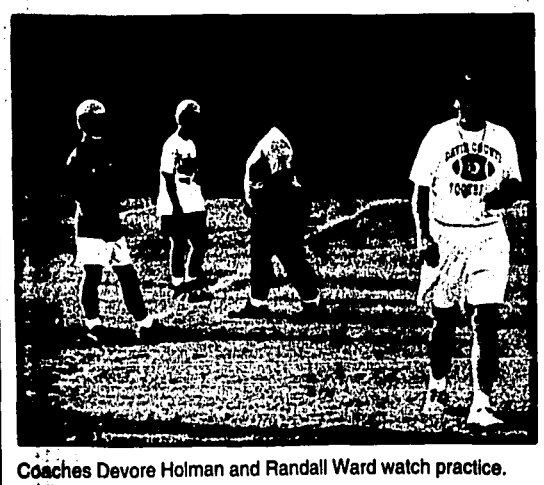

With rain an everyday scare, a day-night doubleheader was played with Rowan winning the first 8-5 and cutting Kernersville's margin to 3 games to 2. But in the second game, at Kernersville, the home team won by another 7-6 count.

Kernersville, led by many of the Glenn High School players that were led by Mocksville coach Dale Ijames, is taking on Burke County in the Western Finals.

Rowan finished with its fourth straight 30-win season, ending at 35-10.

Football Season Is Here

Coaches Devore Holman and Randall Ward watch practice.

Practice

said Ward. "In the first week, we'll get them in shape and learn the basic offense and defense. I wish they could have been in better shape but that's usually the case for the first practice. In two weeks, they'll be in better shape after two-a-days."

Ward also welcomed several players who sat out their junior year, like lineman Shannon Shoffner, who will be one of the team's largest players.

"The younger kids have good size too," said Ward.

"We're not going to be bigger than most people we play in our conference," he continued. "I tell the kids they can't do anything about the size but they can make up for it with heart, attitude and hard work."

Practice will continue each day this week from 6-8:30 p.m.

"It may be cooler in the morning but the main reason we're practicing in the afternoon is transportation for the younger kids," explained Ward.

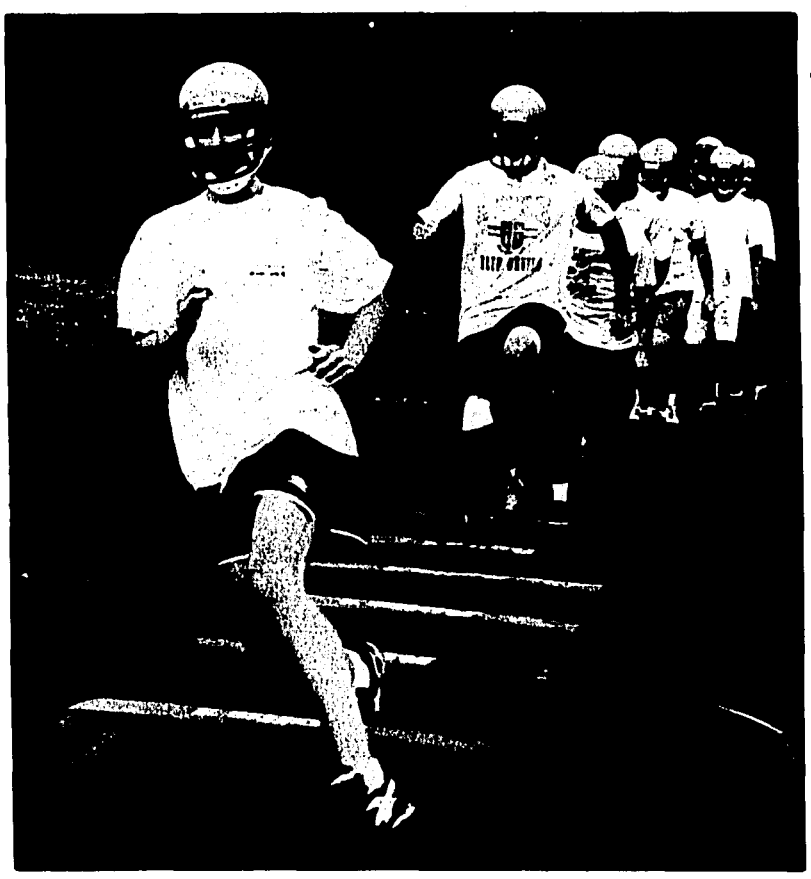

The team will hold Photo Day Saturday, Aug. 6 at the school at 9 a.m. Two-a-day practices will start Monday, Aug. 8. The morning workout is scheduled 9-11:30 and the afternoon workout is set for 4-6:30 p.m.

"This year, we'll have more two-a-days because teachers report later (Aug. 16)," said Ward. "We want to get them used to the hot weather because when school starts, that's when they'll be out there."

Davie has scheduled a scrimmage with North Rowan at home Aug. 13 at 7 p.m. The first regular season game is Aug. 18 at West Rowan in the Endowment Game. This year, the score and statistics will count, giving the War Eagles 11 games and an earlier starting time. The coaches now have only three weeks to prepare.

Ward wasn't fretting over the loss of practice time.

"It's tough but you know that everyone else is in the same boat," he said.

dium. Around 160 million watched the game, which saw Chaffin record eight tackles, a sack and eight hurry-ups, where he hit the quarterback after he threw. Chaffin had three tackles on fourth down and two tackles on goal-line stands. The Dragons defeated the United States All-Stars 23-16.

The people did the wave but Chafin said, "they don't know of the American excitement that goes along with football. They don't know anything about it. They kept asking us if it was like Australian Rules Football. We told them no. The collisions are bigger and louder."

It was enough for the promotors to say let's go ahead with the league. "The Classic was played to see how Taiwan and the sponsors would react to the game," Chaffin said. "It wsa more than they could ask for."

Chaffin was even more famous the following day when his picture appeared on the front page of the China Post newspaper.

"I couldn't believe that either," he said with a smile.

Chaffin will attend preseason camp in October at Lees McRae College and then head for Taiwan for a six-game, six-city exhibition schedule. In 1995, a 10-game schedule will begin in the six-team league.

"Chaffin may well become a very rich man.

"I'm going to make a lot of money," he said, "enough to quit my job, leave my family and move to a foreign country."

Chaffin shakes his head. He is still having a hard time understanding his good fortune.

"I just couldn't believe I was on the other side of the world from Davie County," he marveled. "I graduate, I get a job -- and the next thing I know, I'm in Taiwan."

School population goes by 10th grade through 12th grade. There has always been a question of whether a school like Davie, with around 1,000 students in those three grades, can compete with schools like Charlotte Independence and Anson County, all well over 2,000.

"I think it's the best thing for the kids and anything good for the kids, I'm all for it," Ward said.

Randy Thomas, Hunter-Safety coordinator for the Wildlife Commission and a member of the Hunter Education Association Invitational Committee. "North Carolina hosted the first invitational several years ago at Camp Lejeune and several North Carolina teams have won the national championship."

Thomas said the success of the event was due to the cooperation of Yadkin Point owner Howell Woltz and the many volunteers who supervised and scored the events.

Miller, Butcher Win

WINSTON-SALEM -- Greg Butcher and Mike Miller, both of Mocksville, are among the leaders in the points races at Bowman Gray Stadium.

Butcher is seventh in the Stadium Stock Division while Miller is ninth in the Sportsman Division.

Both had good weeks last Saturday night.

Racing Notes

Miller joined Jimmy Johnson of Walkertown as 20-lap Sportsman winners. Todd Hunt of Lexington kept a two-point lead over Gene Pack of Rural Hall in the standings.

Miller has 126 points, 158 points behind leader Hunt. But in 15 starts, Miller has two wins, more than anyone besides Hunt and Larry Eubanks.

Butcher was also a winner. He and Frank Fritts of Kernersville won 15-lap races for four-cylinder sedans of the Stadium Stock novice class. Fritts took a 15-point lead in those standings over Quaker Gap's Randy Moore.

Fritts has 298 points. Butcher has 224.

Tim McGlamery of Lexington won for the ninth time in the annual 50-lap Street Stock race, boosting his lead to 58 points over Bryan Weatherman of Jonesville.

Modified Flareup

In other B-G news, Robert Jeffreys will carry the lead in the B-G standings into Saturday night's Winston Select 199-lap race for the track's featured NASCAR Modified Division. The question is, "How much of a lead?"

Junior Miller and Tim Brown of Yadkinville won the 25-lap Modified races last Saturday. Brown's victory in the second race was followed by a dispute of scoring, which gave Jeffreys sixth place.

Binny Orrell Trying For National Motorcross Championship

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

ADVANCE - He's only going to be entering the first grade this year, but 6-year-old Binny Orrell III is already a champion motorcycle rider.

Binny races motorcross, and is going to Tennessee this weekend seeking a national title. He's the only rider from North Carolina to qualify, and is the best in North and South Carolina and Virginia. He qualified by placing fifth in a seven-state regional race.

Binny races a Yamaha PW 50 cc motorcycle, and practices on a dirt track with a jump and bumps and curves behind his home.

The most important part when racing, Binny said, is getting a head start.

His mother, Dawn Orrell, agrees. Binny is hard to beat when he gets the lead.

"He's very cautious, so I don't worry so much about him falling as much as someone running into him," she said. "He's to the point where if he wants to win, he can do it. What helps him out is he's smooth."

Although he's only 6, Binny has a room full of trophies, more than 100. He has been riding for two years.

His mother tells the story of how the tiny motorcross star was born.

"When he was 4, his dad called me from the Yamaha shop an said he was bringing this home," she said. "And the first thing he did was ride it into the fence."

"I just decided I wanted to do it," Binny said. "I practice a lot, and I win some money to buy my gear." He is one of few riders that young to have sponsors who pay for everything but the motorcycle.

He's not scared. "When you wreck, you just fall down," Binny said.

"This doesn't bother me," his mother said, "but the bigger bike may."

Binny is hoping all the hours of practice and weekends on the road going to races will pay off at the nationals this weekend at Loretta Lynn's Ranch in Tennessee.

"He's the only one from North Carolina who qualified for the nationals," his mother said. "We're proud of him. Maybe he will put Advance on the map."

Binny makes a turn in practice.

Binny Orrell: "I just decided I wanted to do it. I practice a lot, and I win some money to buy my gear."

Binny sails through the air on his Yamaha motorcycle.

Breastfeeding Meetings Set

A breastfeeding peer counseling program for Davie women is sponsored by the Davie County Health Department as a part of the North Carolina Women, Infant and Children's (WIC) Supplemental Food Program.

The breastfeeding program provides support to pregnant and breastfeeding women through individual counseling, telephone consultations and home visits.

A support group is also part of the program. It meets at the health department the second Tuesday of each month from 6-7:30 p.m. Each meeting consists of an educational session on a breastfeeding topic and an opportunity for breastfeeding mothers to share personal experiences.

A baby's immune system is not complete mature at the time of birth. Therefore, the first breast milk the baby receives shortly after birth, called colostrum, may be considered the baby's first immunization. Colostrum directly provides a newborn with germ-fighting antibodies that will protect him from disease. Breast milk is most helpful in protecting the baby while his immune system is still developing.

Breastfeeding also can lower a baby's risk of allergies. Some infants, especially in the first few months, tend to have intolerances or allergies when drinking milk-based or even soy-based formulas. There are infants who will be introduced to several brands of formulas before finding one that can be tolerated. Most infants will tolerate breast milk with no problems.

Research has shown that pregnant and breastfeeding women who receive support and information about the importance of breast milk are more likely to continue breastfeeding for at least six month, said Cathy Manson, Davie WIC director.

"Because breastfeeding is not instinctive, support groups are needed and have become very popular in the United States," said Vicky Frye, breastfeeding peer counselor.

"When we are new mothers, our emotions are close to the surface. Even the strongest of us feel weakened and unsure of our capability to breastfeed," Frye said. "A new mother wanting to breastfeed her infant can find help and support from someone who understands breastfeeding. This support may prevent her from giving into the bottle before she really wants to, which so commonly happens."

For more information or to enroll, call Frye at (704) 634-5985.

"If you are a pregnant or breastfeeding woman, do yourself a favor. Get an outside source of support," Frye said. "It can make your breastfeeding experience so much more enjoyable."

Dulcie Hauser, a resident at Meadowbrook Manor, celebrated her 97th birthday Thursday, July 28. She always made her home on Yadkin Valley Church Road in Davie County until she got disabled and then lived in an apartment in Clemmons until she had to go to a nursing home. She was a neighbor to all, and attended her church every Sunday she was able.

Toots Riddle returned home from Forsyth Memorial on Wednesday after having open heart surgery to replace the valve in his heart. He is doing better.

Spiritual Resources: The Special Book

By Lewis Savage

It isn't necessary to remind you with this article that our age and time has become one that places emphasis on the political, social, economic and entertainment fronts. This you already know. We have little time, if any, for the basic food for the soul, that of reading, studying, and meditating upon the many truths found in the Special Book, the Bible. What happened to the "Ten Commandments?" "The Sermon on the Mount?" "The 23rd Psalm?" "The Lord's Prayer?" "The Beatitudes?" "Matthew, Mark, Luke and John and the Book Of Acts?" Who were the great and godly men and women of both Testaments, the Old and the New? Have they all "gone with the wind?"

In some circles of society and higher learning, and in many home, a carerful study of "The Book" has become old fashionod and much out of date. One may well be looked upon a having "a mark of modiocrity" when he makes a sincere study of what the Bible teaches on an given subject. One may be seen as over religious while carrying the Bible in hand across the street to his meeting house. Being able to quote the scriptures from memory is certainly a thing of the past for the average person. We leave it to the preacher, the priest, and the rabbi, to quote and interpret for us. Come on, study and learn for yourself. (Acts 17: 19, 11) However, among the readers of the Bible in most all ages, have been some of the world's greatest leaders and most brilliant minds.

George Washington: "It is imposible to rightly govern the world without God and the Bible...He is worse than an infidel who does not read the Bible and acknowledge his obligation to God."

Thomas Jefferson: "I have always said and will always say that the studious persual of the Sacred Volume will make better farmers, better citizens, better husbands and wives ... The Bible makes the better people in the world."

John Adams: "My custom is to read four or five chapters of the Bible every morning just after rising. It seems to me the most suitable manner for beginning the day."

Daniel Webster: "From the time that, at my mother's feet or on my father's knee, I first learned to lisp the verses from the Sacred Writing, they have been my daily study and dillgantt contemplation."

Sir Isaac Newton: "I find more sure marks of authenticity in the Bible than in any other profane history whatsoever."

Benamin Franklin: "Cultivate an acquaintance with and firm belief in the Holy Scripture. This is yourb certain interest."

Abraham Lincoln: "I am profitably engaged in reading the Bible. Take all of the Book upon reason that you can, and the balance by faith, and you will live and die a better person."

There is a divine rule running through the Bible that should be our guide in all religious matters. We call attention to this rule in the following:

Deut. 29:29, "The secret thing belong unto the Lord our God, but those things which are revealed belong unto us and to our children forever..."

It would be a happy day in our lives if we would only learn this principle. Secret things belong to God. Revealed things belong to us. We have the right to speak, preach, teach, and live the revealed things of the Bible. Too many times we speak where the Bible is silent. We take our own laws and bind them on others. Study and search the scriptures for yourseIs - for your own savlation in heaven.

SBI Called To Investigate Cooleemee Police, Mayor

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - Something unusual happened at the town board meeting Monday night.

Approximately 60 residents showed up, and few had anything to say to the board members.

Even Mayor Jackie Morton seemed surprised when she asked for comments from the public, and no one said anything.

It may have something to do with the unanimous motion passed just seconds before that. The board wants the SBI to come in and try to straighten out the feud between Morton and the town's police department. The vote was unanimous.

Town commissioner Denny Creason said a lot of residents were concerned with the problems between the mayor and the police, and a lot of people want the dispute solved. "It's divided our town," he said.

Creason's motion was to ask the SBI to investigate claims by Morton about improprieties within the police department, and also to investigate the manner in which Morton handled the entire situation.

After the unanimous vote, Morton said: "Good, they're (SBI) on their way."

Morton has had an ongoing beef with the police department, even before she was elected mayor.

Last month, she brought her claims of personal telephone calls on town bills, personal uses for town cars, and falsifying of time cards public. Residents at that meeting weren't silent, and shouted at each other and at the board.

Also last week, Morton went to trial on charges of larceny and damage to personal property, accused of taking an alarm off the police department door and tossing in Police Chief Matt Dillon's yard. Dillon had her arrested at her home, and brought to jail in

Davie Schools To Open Aug. 24 ... On Schedule

Sorry, kids. School will open on time.

Come Aug. 24, classes begin in Davie County Schools.

Somehow, a rumor began that schools weren't going to be able to open on time, said Dr. Bill Steed, superintendent. He heard the rumor from a school board member, who had heard it from someone else.

"Our plans are to open on time," Steed said Monday afternoon.

The subject also came up at last week's board of education meeting. It was apparently started by someone who doesn't think the construction project at Davie High School will be finished.

"There's a lot of work to be done, but they (contractors and architect) say they're on schedule," Steed said.

Associate superintendent Dwight Jackson, who has been overseeing the high school project, also said school should start as planned on Aug. 24.

More On Construction

"I feel very comfortable that we will be able to open school on time," Jackson said. "There may be a couple of minor things, but things are coming along nicely."

A final inspection on the new building is scheduled for Aug. 15.

"I think we're going to be ready. There are lots of things going on, but we've got three weeks before the kids show up," Jackson said.

W.G. Potts, Davie High School principal, said the opening of the new school will be a little hectic. He has postponed staff development until later so the teachers, who report for work on Aug. 16, can help oversee the moves into the new classrooms.

110th Annual Masonic And DEU Picnic Saturday At Clement Grove

The 110th annual Masonic and DEU picnic will be held at Clement Grove in Mocksville Saturday, Aug. 13.

Sponsored by Corinthian Masonic Lodge and the Davie Educational Union, proceeds will benefit the N.C. Central Children's Home in Oxford and higher education for Davie young people.

The keynote address at 3 p.m., will feature William T. Woodard, president of the Statesville NAACP. The picnic will continue throughout the afternoon and night, with bingo, food, a disco, carnival rides and games.

The afternoon program will also feature the Yadkin Star Baptist Church Junior Choir of Lexington, Friendship Baptist Church Choir of Cooleemee, Pleasant Hill Baptist Church Choir of Harmony, and the Sensational Gospelaires of Salisbury. John Redmond of Harmony will present popular music in the evening. A native of Wilson, Woodard attended Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. He is a public manager, public housing manager and counselor. Military awards include the Bronze Star with Clusters, Commendation Medal with Clusters, and the Vietnam Honor Medal.

Woodard was named NAACP outstanding N.C. first term branch president, NAACP branch president of the year, the Medgar Evers award recipient, and the N.C. Human Relations Commission community involvement award.

He is completing his third term as president of the Statesville NAACP branch. He serves on the state NAACP criminal justice committee, the Iredell County Jail Population Task Force, and is a member and past chairman of the Fifth Street Shelter Ministries board of directors.

Gregory Murder Trial Could Go To Jury By The End Of Week

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

Marsha Howell wept openly, as Assistant District Attorney Eugene Morris described the murder of her daughter and the shooting that left her son permanently disabled to jurors Friday in the trial of Chris Gregory, who is charged with both shootings.

"All was right with their world, when they [Turner Olanda and Marsha Howell] left to go to work that morning," Morris said.

When they left on Aug. 10, 1992, their daughter, Rolanda Evette Howell, was asleep in her bed with her 17 month old son. Her brother, Trevor Olanda "Fonzie" Howell, was asleep in his room, and the house was locked.

But someone changed the Howell's world that day, Morris said.

Evette was shot once in the head, as she lay in bed screaming. Fonzie was shot in the head with the same gun.

In his opening statement to the jury, Morris laid the foundation for the testimony to follow on Monday and Tuesday.

The victims' father said he received a call from Gregory's stepfather, Jamie Grant, around 8:30 a.m. that prompted him to call home from work that morning.

A few minutes later his aunt, Lillian Dulin, called and

Cooleemee Man Wants To Sell Beer At Bait Shop

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - Beer and worms just naturally go together.

Bob McDaniel sells worms and other bait from his shop in North Cooleemee, but he can't sell beer. The city limits fall short of his property.

On Monday night, he went before the town board looking at how board members feel about allowing his shop to become part of the town through satellite annexation.

"I have people to come in and buy bait, and they want to buy their beer, bait and ice at the same place," McDaniel said. "All I'm asking is that you give me a chance. It would help my business a whole lot."

McDaniel wanted to see how board members felt before hiring an attorney to make a formal application for satellite annexation, said Mayor Jackie Morton.

"I've been there eight years, and I've never had no disturbance there," McDaniel said. "I've never had to call the law."

He showed the board of commissioners a list of neighbors he said didn't oppose to his selling of beer.

The idea got a mixed review from town commissioners.

Grimes Parker said he had no objections to the idea. Denny Creason said he wouldn't oppose the annexation unless there was an outcry of opposition from neighbors.

Darrin Hartness said he has nothing against McDaniel, but is against the beer sales. Hartness said if it was up to him, there would be no ABC store or other alcohol sales in Cooleemee.

"He runs a clean place and I feel like he could take control of the people," Hartness said, adding that his opposition was based on the close proximity of churches to the shop. Children sometimes go from church to McDaniel's store, Hartness said.

He also said other places that sold beer created problems with litter for neighbors. A woman who lives on Hickory Street agreed that litter was a problem.

Dorothy Leonard said she supports McDaniel if he wants to sell beer. "Bob's a good fellow," she said. "We already have beer and wine. If there was not any here, I would say no."

McDaniel also said allowing him to sell beer wouldn't cause much of a difference in the community. "You can walk a 10th of a mile from my store and get all the beer you want," he said.

Town board member Bob Jordan was absent because of illness.

Before such an annexation could occur, McDaniel would have to file a formal petition asking the town to include his property within town limits. The town would also have to hold a public hearing before making a decision on the annexation.

Let Baseball Players Continue To Bleed Anxious Owners

In any other year, I wouldn't care about a baseball strike. But there's too much going on this season.

My Dodgers are in first place in their weak division.

Michael Jordan, now with two homers in the minors, could be called up to play a few games with the White Sox.

Matt Williams has 42 homers with 52 games left to play in the season. It has been a year for sluggers. He stands a chance to set a new record for homers. Frank Thomas and Ken Griffey Jr. both have 38. Barry Bonds has 37. This season has the potential to break new ground.

Tony Gwynn of San Diego is hitting .392 this late into the season. He could be the first .400 hitter since Ted Williams.

But it could all end on Friday.

That's the deadline for the players' strike if they don't reach an agreement with the club owners.

The world will not come to an end. But I get an unusual delight in searching the box scores every day. Tony Gwynn's accomplishment is all the more remarkable because he's playing with dismal San Diego. He's not one of baseball's showboats; not a hot head. He's noted for his batting, not his jewelry .

Similarly, Matt Williams is a quiet slugger, playing in the shadows of media favorites such as Barry Bonds. But he could find himself in the Ruthian heights if his bat continues to swing for the rest of the season.

They can't quit now,

The strike is over a salary cap. The players don't want one. The owners, eager to hold down the spiraling contracts, do.

The players aren't pleading poverty. They earn an average $1.2 million. Aren't they just being greedy?

The owners are saying a cap is necessary for all of them to guarantee they will always show a profit. The National Basketball Association has salary caps. Already, some of the baseball teams in small markets may be losing money.

Some of these owners paid a few million for their teams, and they can now sell them for a hundred million. Other cities are fighting to have them.

Who are the good guys and bad guys in this dispute among spoiled millionaires?

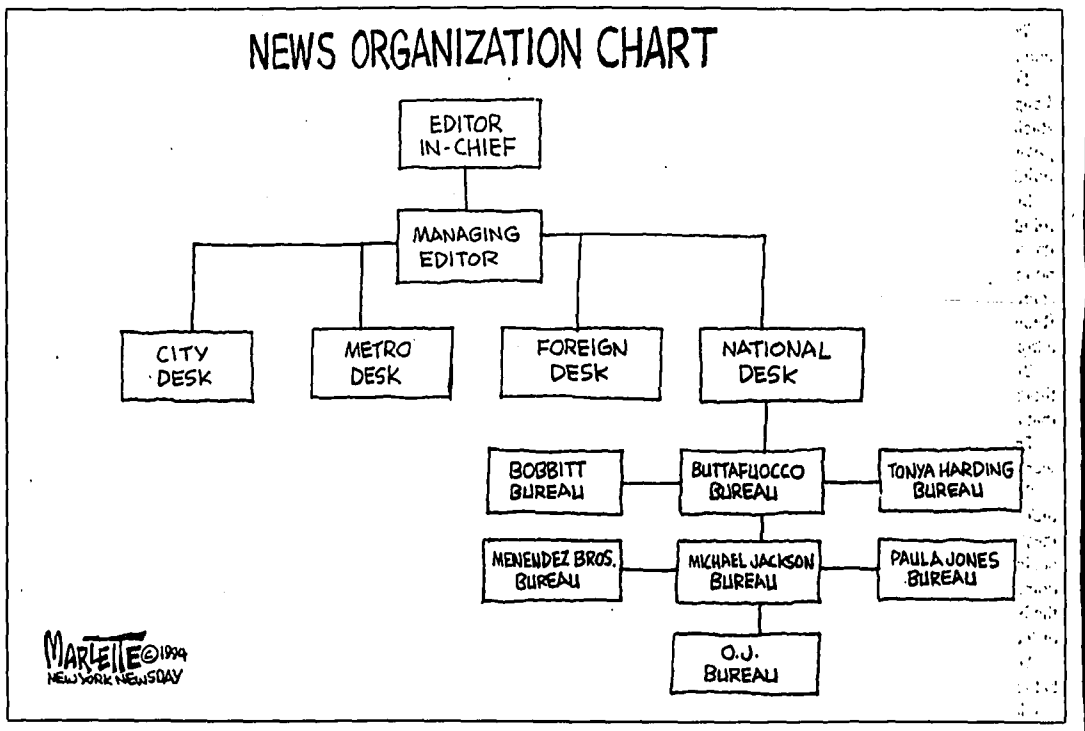

Maybe there are no good guys. But this is still America, and a baseball player should be able to demand as much as an owner will pay him. Salary caps are for lesser sports — such as basketball — and Democrats. President Clinton is offering to get involved. He no doubt will guarantee the players health care, with payment mandates from the owners. And the Marines will be sent in to supervise hotdog sales.

Don't pity the team owners. If they aren't making a profit on concessions, let them sell the teams and reap a fortune. Baseball salaries may be astronomical, but the owners are paying them — even to mediocre talent. Are the salaries too high? The ability to hit a curve ball is a rare gift. Michael Jordan, with his athletic talents, has discovered how difficult the game can be. The only players overpaid are those batting below .200 and getting their $1.2 million. There's a lot of them. Tony Gwynn earns his money. Barry Bonds is worth every penny. Every team would like to have Ken Griffey Jr. or Matt Williams.

Let the marketplace take care of salaries. Owners shouldn't be guaranteed a profit. There is a natural ceiling on what players can earn.

Let them find it on their own.

— Dwight Sparks

Bermuda Run Residents Not Against 911

To the editor:

I would have replied sooner to your editorial published July 28, however, I was out of town.

The residents of Bermuda Run are not against "911." They are very supportive of "911", very supportive of the efforts of all of the officials and staff involved, and commend the county officials for taking this action.

Your editorial, as sincere as I am sure you meant it to be, turned out to be child-like, flippant and lacking the quality of which you are capable. Mr. Boon has been a credit to Davie county and as with the other commissioners, works tirelessly on behalf of our citizens.

Please spend your time addressing the problem rather than individuals.

The problem in clear terms is as follows:

• Any community in Davie County that has a pre-existing house numbering system with numbers allocated for all houses and vacant parcels of land (if any) should not be required to change their numbers.

• It is said that the numbering system requires the entire county to be uniform and the "911" software cannot handle any differences. I challenge that statement. The concept of "911" is not new in the USA and I am sure the available software has many options which can be exercised, including use of existing numbers.

• The citizens of the communities within Davie County that have existing numbering systems are asking only for a detailed explanation.

• The officials leading the "911" effort seem to think such citizens are not appreciative of their efforts. Quite the contrary, the citizens are very appreciative of their official efforts – the citizens just want a thorough and detailed explanation, not general statements.

It has been heard, "Well, if part of Davie County needs to change, then the whole county needs to change." I feel certain the "911" software has the flexibility to encompass existing numbering systems as well as a new numbering system for the nonstandard rural areas and the net result will satisfy all citizens.

The cost of the change and the politics of the change are not the issue. The issue is lack of a detailed explanation to help citizens understand why the change is necessary. Change for the sake of change is unnecessary, costly and a waste of time. What is the compelling reason requiring all citizens to have the new numbering system whether they need it or not?

Let the leaders of Davie County be true leaders and not entrenched bureaucrats such as we find in other areas of federal and state government.

Let's not make a sweeping change without considering the comments of the citizens, taxpayers and voters of our county. In business, a "comment period" is normal and helpful before such a major action is implemented.

We're Not Stupid: It's Just Another Address

To the editor:

Please share my apology to individuals an business firms (far and near) who have good reasons to wonder why I keep reporting a new address for the residence I've occupied more than 36 years.

I respect county officials for the effort they made for emergency teams to locate citizens who need their help, but I resent the fact that they didn't know what our addresses should be when they first assigned them to use several weeks ago. I'm among many local citizens who put the assigned numbers on our houses and mail boxes, and among those who mailed the change of address notices to appropriate individuals and business firms. Unfortunately, those change of address notices hardly reached the places they were mailed to before corrected addresses were assigned to us.

It isn't difficult to change numbers on houses and mail boxes a couple of times within 60 days, but mailing the second address change notices to several dozen individuals within such a short period is a different story.

I hope our regular mail carrier won't need a day off in the near future. It isn't pleasant to imagine where a substitute or new carrier might leave our mail when three addresses are used on correspondence sent to use (address we were told to use until June 30, address we were told to use after June 30 and the second change we have been asked to use since June 30).

I don't know the individual whom we should accuse for making this mess, and I won't try to find the guilty party. I'm writing this letter to inform the public that some of us who appear to be stupid are not responsible for the address changes we've reported twice in June and July.

Woodstock '94: 3 Days Of American Express, Perrier, Designer Jeans

When it was all over, people called it three days of peace, love and music.

The year was 1968, and the United States was in turmoil. People were divided over our involvement in the Vietnam War. Racial tension was high, to the point of violent rioting. Anti-government sentiments were high. Even the political conventions were dangerous.

Mike Barnhardt

In 1968, there wasn't much room in the middle of the road. You were either against the war, for the war or behind your country no matter what. You either believed in segregation or you didn't. You were either a Republican or a Democrat. You were either a hippie or a straight.

But among all this chaos, several hundred thousand young people decided to forget all that and have a party.

These young people made history. They were Woodstock.

Promoters didn't expect the huge crowd. The Highway Patrol didn't expect the huge crowd. Most people didn't have to pay, they just went in for the music and fellowship. The performers decided to put on a free show. Richie Havens sang about freedom, Melanie about the beautiful people. Jimi Hendrix played the National Anthem on the electric guitar, with feedback - lots of feedback.

At Woodstock, Roseanne wouldn't have caused anybody to bat an eye.

Clothing was optional. Bathing was optional. Food was scarce, but drugs were plentiful. It rained and it was muddy.

This year, promoters are planning a Woodstock anniversary concert. It may be a financial success, but it's hard to imagine how it could make history.

For sure, security will be tighter. No free concert this time, guys. Promoters are greedier. They want your money. Performers are greedier. They want more of your money. The Highway Patrol and police aren't that naive any more. They won't let you drive under the influence or wreak havoc on the highways or smoke marijuana or do other illegal drugs or activities in public.

There will be plenty of food and drink at this concert, but it won't be free as before. Bring your American Express, the new Woodstock doesn't accept VISA or MasterCard.

You might as well leave the drugs at home, as well. In 1968, doing drugs was cool. We've seen too many of our friends waste their lives away - not to mention all their money - to drugs. It's no longer cool. Nowadays, doing drugs is stupid.

Looking back, maybe we've learned some hard lessons from the Woodstock generation.

Free love really isn't free. It's deadly. AIDS is proving that.

Smoking marijuana and dropping acid isn't the road to enlightenment. Just ask Jimi Hendrix.

But some things don't change, and that's the role of music. Music, though different, brings a generation together. Maybe this year's Woodstock can teach a new generation that war isn't good, that fighting among races isn't good. Maybe it can teach us all over again that we need to just get along better.

Writers Suffer Memory Loss

To the editor:

The July 28 edition of the Enterprise Record published several letters from people who live in Cooleemee and from people who live outside of Cooleemee.

My first impulse was to ignore the letters, but I have received numerous phone calls urging me to make appropriate comments. After this is published, I will probably receive phone calls telling me where to go.

I don't think it's necessary for me to state my opinion of our police department or of Commissioners Denny Creason, Bob Jordan or Grimes Parker, I stand behind them 100%.

I am abhorred by the constant barrage of character assassinations, innuendoes and nitpicking to which they are being subjected.

I hold no animosity towards any of the letter writers, nor do I doubt their veracity and I would never have the audacity to insinuate that any of them would prevaricate.

One of the letter writers is Jim Morton, a friend of mine and I hope he will always be my friend. This is not intended as a personal attack on Jim's character or his intelligence which are above reproach.

Concerning Harry Dull and Hayden Benson's letter I would like to resort to one of our fine mayor's favorite tactics by replying that for someone who wasn't at the meeting, these two sure seem to know a lot about what transpired. There's nothing like hearsay to keep the facts straight. Mr. Jerome left the meeting because he and his wife had to go to the funeral home before 9 that night. It didn't seem to me that he stormed childishly out of the building.

Harry and Hayden made reference to Hayden Beck having a fuzzy memory. In my recent dealings with Hayden Beck, I didn't notice a memory loss. However, it appears that Harry Dull and Hayden Benson seem to be suffering from fuzzy (memory-itis). They seem to have lost sight of the fact that our fine mayor (who was not elected by the majority of the voters, the majority voted for her two opponents) stated on Feb. 15 in an interview with the Winston-Salem Journal, "the town could contract police protection or rely on the Davie county Sheriff's Department." I fail to see how (to quote Harry and Hayden) "people have said that Creason and Jerome misled them in saying Commissioner Hartness and Mayor Morton don't want a police force." This is not true? Of course these two intellectual giants (Harry Dull and Hayden Benson) must have the ability to see something in her majesty the mayor's quotations which I have been unable to see. Several hundred people didn't feel that they were being misled by Mr. Creason when they turned out for Police Appreciation Day. I base this on what I saw July 23 and not on what "we were told." "people have said" or "we understand."

Another letter was written by Mr. Jim Morton, who did not grace the meeting with his presence. I don't know if Jim based his information on: we were told, people have said, we understand or all of the above.

Morton starts his letter with the question "Do you use the police car for personal business?" Mr. Morton goes on to say "again Chief Dillon bumfuzzled by the complexity of the question, responded to what are you specifically referring?" Mr. Morton is accusing the chief of being too stupid to answer the question. It is evident that no one can accuse Mr. Morton of subtleness in his brutal attack on Dillon's integrity, reputation, character and intelligence.

There is something he neglected to mention. Our fine mayor must have been equally bumfuzzled by the complexity of Chief Dillon's question, "To what are you specifically referring?" This appears to be an extremely simple question. Our fine mayor was either unable or unwilling to answer this simple question after being asked several times. It does appear that our fine mayor was either unable or unwilling to answer Chief Dillon's question. The mayor's question "Do you use the police car for personal business?" was irrelevant and immaterial.

Another part of Mr. Morton's letter deals with David Bates not being covered by the town's liability insurance. I feel this was simply an oversight on the town's part or the insurance agent's part. The latter possibility apparently has never occurred to Mr. Morton or Darren Hartness. I can't help but wonder when it will dawn on the brilliant Mr. Hartness that for quite some time he is and has been beating on a dead horse with this issue.

Speaking of Mr. Hartness, it is said when our town has a police commissioner who is against the police department.

To those of you who find yourselves incongruent with the subject matter of this letter, the only advice I can offer, if you are not already brain dead, is to wake up and smell the coffee.

Newspaper's Coverage Of Allen Case Disgusting

To the editor:

I found coverage of the Allen case in the July 28 Enterprise to be totally disgusting. I cannot see how the readers of our weekly newspaper could possibly benefit by having it laid out in explicit detail.

I thank God that my 11-year-old stepdaughter was in Carolina Bible Camp all that week where she didn't make contact with such filth. (Yes, this 11 year old is a dedicated and avid reader of the Enterprise along with a couple more of the area newspapers.) Never have I seen such detailed filth in the Winston-Salem Journal or The Salisbury Post.

I wasn't as fortunate with by 16-year-old son. He was the first member of the family to read the Enterprise that week. I suppose you can consider this negligence on my part. Somehow it never occurred to me that I would need to censor it first.

Keep up the good work guys. You're giving Hustler magazine a run for their money.

Cooleemee's Reading Program Was A Success

To the editor:

The "Dive Into A Book" summer reading program at the Cooleemee Branch of the Davie county Public Library ended July 25 with an awards ceremony and a pizza party.

Thirty-three children participated in the program with most of them completing it.

I would like to thank the Cooleemee community for their interest and support. Also, I would like to publicly extend thanks to the following: Cooleemee police and fire departments (who took time from their busy schedules to talk with us); the Kernersville Search and Rescue Team and their magnificent bloodhounds; Cindy Stephenson and her children for sharing their dwarf rabbit's habits; the Town of Cooleemee Pool; Friends of the Library; and all the businesses which made donations.

Volunteers were Kim Cranfill, Tiffany Nicole Longwith and Latisha Bumgarner.

Once again, thanks to everyone for making the 1994 summer reading program a fun and educational experience.

Murder Trial Could Go To Davie Jury Sometime This Week

told him to come home. When he arrived the yard was full of police cars, and an ambulance was backed up to the front door, Howell said.

Russell Tatum, a relative of the Howell's who lived about a block from their house, said he also received a call from Jamie Grant that morning.

After the call, he jumped out of bed and went straight to the Howell home. When no one came to the door, he went to the windows of Fonzie and Evette.

He could not see or hear anything inside. He tried to raise the windows, but they were locked. He went back to the carport, knocked on the door and called their names.

The door was locked, but he could see down the hallway. He saw Evette's son, Christian Xavier Howell, come out of her room and look toward the door. He looked into Fonzie's room then back at Tatum before walking into Evette's room, Tatum said.

Knowing the baby was in her room, Tatum went to Evette's window again and yelled. Getting no response, he went to Fonzie's window, where he heard what sounded like someone choking or gagging.

"I immediately ran to my grandmother's (Lillian Dulin) and told her to call 911," Tatum said.

From there he went back to the Howell home with his cousin, Larry Dulin, who said he broke the door open using his shoulder.

Tatum went down the hall to Evette's room, where he saw Xavier sitting on the bed beside Evette. He checked to see if she had a pulse, but there was none. She had foam on her mouth, he said.

"I picked up Xavier and went to Fonzie's room," Tatum said.

He could tell Fonzie was alive because his left hand was moving. Tatum said he grabbed Fonzie's arm and told him to hang on.

Dulin and Tatum sat with Fonzie until a detective arrived.

Dulin said Evette had broken up with Gregory some time in July and that he had seen Gregory following her on more than one occasion.

Accomplice Takes The Stand

Gregory's cousin, Sederick Gabriel "Gabe" Wilson, who has been charged in juvenile court with the same offenses Gregory faces, took the stand Monday afternoon.

According to Wilson, who was 14 when the shootings took place, Gregory said he would take him to football practice that morning. Gregory was staying with his grandfather, James "Bill" Wilson Sr. Gabe Wilson had spent the night there.

Wilson said he rode with Gregory past the Howell home the night before to see if Evette was home. The same night he overheard Gregory tell Faruq Peterson he would kill Evette if he ever saw her with another guy.

Wilson later said he didn't think much about the comment because it was not the first time he had heard Gregory say it.

He said Gregory woke him up early, saying he would take him to McDonald's before dropping him off at football practice. Wilson fell asleep in the passenger seat of Gregory's Hyundai Excel. When he awoke, they were parked in front of Wal-Mart. He fell asleep again and woke up at Floyd's store, Wilson said.

He said Gregory was coming out of the store with a box of yellow shotgun shells and a roll of duct tape. Gregory started loading a shotgun that had been concealed under the backseats, which were folded down.

Gregory placed the gun in the backseat where it went off, shooting a hole in the car. Wilson said he didn't say anything to Gregory and fell asleep again.

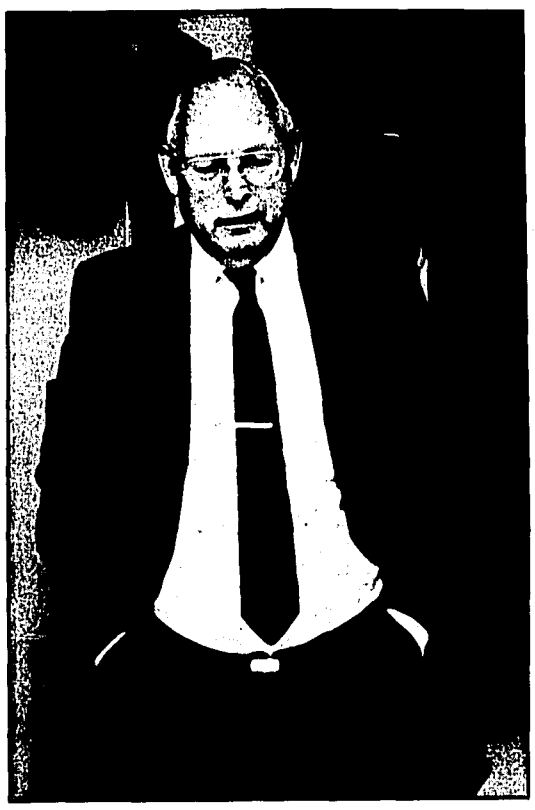

"I guess I was scared," Wilson said when asked why he didn't say anything.

Gregory drove to the Howell home and said he was going to kidnap Evette. If Fonzie got in the way, he said he would kill him, Wilson testified.

Wilson said he sat in the car while Gregory broke into the house with a screwdriver and hammer. When he got the door open, Gregory motioned for Wilson to come toward him.

He said he walked to the house, afraid Gregory would hurt him if he didn't. Gregory had beaten him up a few years earlier, he said.

Inside the house, Gregory instructed Wilson to take the phone off the hook but did it himself when Wilson did not respond.

Judge Marvin Gray is presiding over first-degree murder trial.

Wilson said he stood in the hallway in front of Fonzie's bedroom, while Gregory walked into the master bedroom, coming out with a gun.

He said Gregory walked into Evette's room and closed the door. He heard the baby cry and Evette call for Fonzie before a single gunshot was fired. He didn't hear Evette again.

Wilson said he was afraid and started walking toward the door.

He said he then heard Fonzie say, "You've got me, Chris, you've got me" before a another gunshot sounded.

Wilson said he ran to the car and waited for Gregory, who came out about two minutes later.

He said Gregory told him the gun jammed, so he had to hit Fonzie with it to get it to fire.

On the way to their grandfather's house, Gregory told Wilson to throw the shotgun, shotgun shells and screwdriver out the window.

Wilson said Gregory told him he was going to kill himself.

When they got back to their grandfather's house, Gregory called his mother to tell her what had happened. He also told his grandfather.

"He told my grandfather he had shot Evette and Fonzie, and I didn't have anything to do with it," Wilson said.

Gregory went outside and stuck his head in a bucket of water and told him to hold it under the water, Wilson said.

Gregory's step-grandmother, Ann Grant, took them to the Davie County Sheriff's Department. Wilson said, while they were alone in Detective Allen Whitaker's office, Gregory told him to say he shot Fonzie because he was a juvenile and wouldn't get in as much trouble.

Gregory's attorney, David Minor, asked Wilson why he had not tried to call for help or run to another house instead of running back to Gregory's car after the shootings. Wilson said he was afraid and didn't think about doing anything else.

Gregory's grandfather, Bill Wilson, said Gregory and Wilson left his house while he was still in bed Aug. 10, 1992.

When they came back, Gregory said he shot his girlfriend and her brother, and that Gabe Wilson didn't have anything to do with it.

Wilson said the state had promised to keep his case in juvenile court in exchange for his testimony against Gregory.

Called back to the stand on Tuesday, he said he had been informed that, if his case is kept in juvenile court, he will only have to stay in juvenile detention until he turns 18.

Officers Find Evidence

Sgt. Larry Meadows of the Davie County Sheriff's Department said he located the shotgun, seven shotgun shells and a screwdriver with a wooden handle on U.S. 64 after talking to Lt. John Stephens, who had interviewed Gabe Wilson.

After being alerted to the situation by Detective Whitaker, who had Wilson and Gregory in his office at the sheriff's department, Stephens took Wilson into his office. Wilson said he and his cousin shot Evette and Fonzie Howell, Stephens said.

Concerned about the victims, he took Wilson with him to locate the Howell home. He was the first officer at the scene.

Stephens ran into Fonzie's room. He was moaning and moving, he said.

Stephens went into the next room but got no response from Evette. He called 911 to tell them where he was and stayed with Fonzie until an ambulance arrived.

He said it looked like there had been a struggle in Fonzie's room.

Evette had a blanket half way over her head with an empty shell casing on the bed. The 25 caliber semi-automatic handgun that was used to shoot her was on the bed beside her body with an orange plastic cup covering it. A roll of masking tape was found on her dresser top.

Two live rounds of ammunition were found in Fonzie's room, one under the bed and one near the dresser.

Stephens ordered a number of pictures taken of the crime scene and returned the following day with Whitaker to remove a portion of the door frame to be sent to the SBI lab in Raleigh for analysis.

M.T. Gavin, a specialist in forensic firearms and tool marks with the SBI, said the screwdriver was responsible for some of the impressions on the wood taken from the door.

Gavin also analyzed the gun and the bullet fragments taken from the victims. He said it was impossible to determine conclusively they had been fired from the gun found at the scene.

He said the gun was functioning properly, and there was no evidence it had been damaged.

Stephens said he remained at the crime scene for several hours and did not interview Wilson until that afternoon.

Hoping to find the extent of Wilson's involvement, Stephens and Whitaker used a gunshot residue test kit on Wilson.

Whitaker said they did not know then that too much time had passed for the residue test to be effective. Almost nine hours had passed since the shootings.

C.F. McClelland, a gunshot residue specialist with the SBI, said he did not perform an analysis on the residue kit. The test must take place within four hours after the gun is fired or any residue will have worn off, he said.

According to Stephens, Wilson's testimony did not exactly correspond with the statements he made to him on the day of the crime.

Wilson told Stephens, Gregory had started talking about 1 the morning of the shootings about going to Evette's house and getting her father's gun.

He said they went to Wal-Mart that morning to get shotgun shells but did not. He said nothing about falling asleep and waking up at Wal-Mart and never mentioned being at Floyd's.

Wilson was consistent about much of his testimony. According to Stephen's notes, he said they rode to the Howell home and parked where Wilson could see Gregory breaking into the house. When the door was opened, Gregory motioned for Wilson to come to the house.

But Wilson described the shootings to Stephens much as he did in the courtroom.

He said when they got back to his grandfather's house, Gregory wanted him to drown him because he didn't want to go to jail or have [Evette's] family kill him.

Stephens said, while he was questioning Wilson, he never told him that Gregory had given a different story to Whitaker.

Wilson did not tell Stephens that Gregory had tried to convince him to take the blame for shooting Fonzie.

When Gregory arrived at the Davie County Sheriff's Department, he told Whitaker he shot two people that morning.

Later in an interview he told Whitaker he shot Evette, but Wilson shot Fonzie, while he held him down.

Doctor: Fonzie's Brain Damage Severe

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

Shot in the head with a .25 caliber automatic handgun, Trevor Olanda "Fonzie" Howell suffered severe injuries to his brain.

A neurosurgeon at N.C. Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem, Dr. James Robinson, testified Monday in the trial of Chris Gregory, who is accused of shooting Fonzie, to the extent of those injuries.

Robinson said the bullet damaged both sides of Fonzie's brain and lodged in the cerebellum, which is the area of the brain responsible for coordinating the prime motor functions.

Injuries to both sides of the brain are more serious than injuries to one side, Robinson said.

The injuries were clearly life threatening, he said. He would have estimated chances of surviving between one in five and one in 10.

He explained treatment and complications involved in Fonzie's case, including a tube, which had to be inserted into his throat to breathe for him. Fonzie could not protect his own windpipe. The tube could be used to drain his lungs.

The injury had also impeded his ability to swallow. A tube was used for feeding because he could not take food by mouth.

Fonzie developed an infection while he was in intensive care and had problems with spinal fluid building up. Robinson said the build up of fluid could result in death, so a permanent tube was placed under the skin to drain continuously into his abdomen.

"He has done exceptionally well," said Robinson.

The injury was more likely to be fatal than not, he said.

Among the long-term problems from such an injury could be personality changes, difficulty understanding, memory deficits. It is unlikely Fonzie will ever be able to hold down a job, Robinson said.

Fonzie was in intensive care for about six weeks and in the hospital for two more weeks before spending about nine months in rehabilitation centers.

According to Turner Olanda Howell, Fonzie's father, he took therapy at Davie County Hospital three days a week for a year and still has therapy sessions once a week at the Howell home.

Robinson said there is still room for progress, but two years after the injury, the amount of progress has probably peaked.

Back to the Bible

Which constitutes acceptable baptism, immersion or sprinkling? Dr. George Rice of Andrews University states that "the history of Christian baptism can be traced. Printings in catacombs and churches, mosaics on floors, walls and ceilings, sculptured reliefs, and drawings in ancient New Testament manuscripts add details to this history... The record left by these various witnesses overwhelmingly testifies to immersion as the normal mode of baptism in 10 to 14 centuries." (Ministry, March 1981). Rice went on to say that Christian who were driven, due to imperial persecution, into catacombs at Rome constructed baptisteries. Such would not have been the case of sprinkling were the practice. Rice summarizes by saying, "The remains of these baptisteries stand as the oldest archaeological witness to the rife of Christian baptism." The "one baptism" (Ephesians 4:5) we read of in the new testament involves being "buried" (Colossians 2:12) in water (Acts 10:47) "for the remission of sins" (Acts 2:38).

Cooleemee To Unveil Monument At Textile Festival

Veterans To Be Honored At Sept. 24 Event

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - Vietnam War veterans are the forgotten bunch.

Bob Thompson believes that. And he's trying to do something about it.

A veteran of the Korean Conflict and Vietnam, Thompson returned home to his mill village, and is helping a group of veterans and others to erect a memorial honoring those killed in war who lived or worked in Cooleemee.

Erwin Mills erected a marker at the Zachary House, now a museum operated by the Cooleemee Historical Association, honoring those killed in World War II.

On Sept. 24, at the town's Textile Heritage Festival, a new marker will be unveiled, honoring those killed in World War I, the Korean Conflict and in Vietnam.

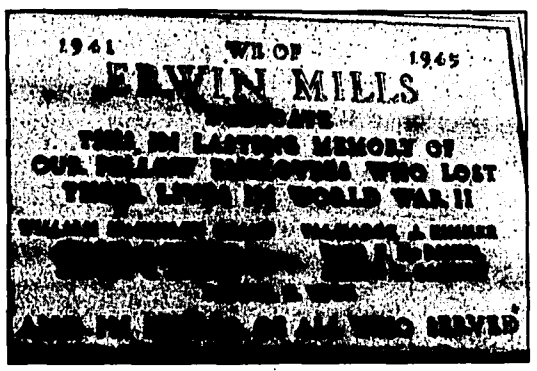

"It's not just one group doing this," Thompson said. "It's a handful of veterans doing it. The people are getting behind it. Everybody says it's a good thing. I feel good about it."

Thompson says it is important to remember those killed in action.

"I think we're flat losing pride in America," Thompson said. "I just think we need something like this to remind the kids it don't come free. Somebody had to pay for it."

The work also will include two flag poles, flags, and lights, and a gravel walkway from the street to the Zachary House.

The new monument, designed to look like the one erected by Erwin Mills, will bear the named of Charlie Jordan, World War I; Jack L. Spillman and Rufus Leonard Brinegar, Korean Conflict; and Edgar Lee Bowers, Roger Dale Howard and Samuel Waters Jr., Vietnam War.

The new plaque will be designed to look like this one erected by Erwin Mills.

The festival, a yearly event honoring textile mill village life and Cooleemee history, will have a special display on veterans from the Cooleemee.

Anyone wishing to make a donation to the monument project should send them to Bob Thompson, P.O. Box 562, Cooleemee, NC 27104.

Three Auxiliary Officers Resign

Three of the town's auxiliary officers, who aren't paid for their work, turned in their resignation Monday night.

Jerry Williams entered the VFW meeting during the meeting Monday night, placed his uniform and handcuffs on the table and handed a letter to Commissioner Grimes Parker. He then walked to a table where Dillon was sitting, talked to him for a couple of minutes and left the building.

The letter said he, Chuck Thanos and Wes Vestal were resigning as auxiliary officers.

The letter said the officers were required to be qualified for the job, but the mayor and other elected officials weren't.

"The mayor insults the police department and then wants the auxiliary to work two days a month for gratis. No way. We quit," the letter said.

The letter called Morton an embarrassment, and that it may be in Cooleemee's best interest to unincorporate. "We feel sorry for Chief Dillon and the citizens of Cooleemee," it said.

Friends Talk About Stormy Relationship

performed an autopsy on Evette Howell Aug. 11, 1992.

He determined the cause of death was a gunshot wound to the head. Based on the wound, she was probably in a reclining position when shot and died almost instantly, he said. Photos taken by Lantz were passed among the jurors.

Friend Tells Of Stalking

Aiyanna Dulin, Evette's cousin and best friend, was the last witness to take the stand for the prosecution.

Dulin said Evette had broken up with Gregory about three weeks before her death, but Gregory still came around almost every day. It got to the point they would look around to see if he was there, Dulin said.

Dulin said a little over a week before the shootings she had gone with Evette to drop Xavier off with Marsha Howell at a cookout in Harmony. On the way home they met Gregory in his car. Fonzie was with him.

Because Fonzie was in the car, Evette stopped in a driveway. Gregory came back and stopped there. He got out of his car, walked over to Evette's and told her to get out so he could talk to her. Evette told him to leave her alone, Dulin said.

She said she could tell Gregory was getting aggravated. He started getting louder and jerked Evette out of the car by her arms, pulled her to his car and made her get in the passenger seat.

Fonzie had his hands on top of the car and one foot on the inside door panel. Gregory pulled off with Fonzie hanging onto the door. Evette pulled her brother into the car and closed the door, Dulin said.

She followed them in Evette's car as far as Ingersoll-Rand. He was driving about 65-70 mph and passed three cars in a no passing zone. Dulin said she was afraid of getting a ticket or wrecking Evette's car.

She found them at the home of Gregory's grandfather. Leaving there, they went to Evette's house. Caesar Jones pulled in behind them. Gregory got out of Jones' car and exchanged words with Evette. She ran into the house with Gregory behind her. He locked the door, Dulin said.

She said both doors were locked, and no one would let them inside.

"When I yelled that Fonzie was going to get Olanda [Evette's father], he came out," Dulin said.

Aiyanna and Larry Dulin were attempting to leave with Fonzie and Evette after that. Gregory reached into the car and tried to get the keys, but Dulin put her finger over the keyhole.

When Gregory started trying to pull Evette from the car, Dulin got out and told him to leave Evette alone. He grabbed Dulin but apologized, saying he just wanted to talk to Evette.

In another incident, she said she and Evette were among a group watching T.V. at her boyfriend's house, when she saw someone looking in the window.

"I said, 'It's Chris,' and he ran around to the back of the house," Dulin said.

She said Evette told her not to leave her alone.

Someone went outside to tell Gregory to come into the house if he wanted to talk. Instead of going into the room where they were, he went into another room and hid behind a bunk bed. He said he was going to kill himself if Evette wouldn't talk to him, Dulin said.

Gregory's attorneys objected to Dulin's testimony on the grounds that it was highly prejudicial.

Morris countered, saying it was certainly damaging to their client but necessary for him to prove malice and motive.

The testimony demonstrated a consistent state of mind on the part of the defendant as well as the victim, Judge Marvin K. Gray said. He overruled the objection, stating that the prejudice does not outweigh the evidence.

The state rested its case Tuesday afternoon.

After their motion to dismiss all charges against Gregory due to insufficient evidence was denied, the defense attorneys said they expect to spend about half a day presenting their case.

Gray instructed them to begin their presentation Wednesday morning.

Davie Man Trying To Spread The Word About GATT

John Underwood doesn't watch television any more.

The news is all about OJ, and Lorena Bobbitt, and Amy Fisher.

What about GATT?

Short for the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade, GATT has the potential to put Americans out of work and change the way we live, Underwood said. More important, he said it sets up the World Trade Organization.

Fueled by radio broadcasts, Underwood is trying to spread the message about GATT. He's sent copies of tapes of the radio shows, which he listens to on short wave broadcasts when they can't be found on AM stations, to the governor and to North Carolina congressmen.

"No, people don't know about it, but it's getting rammed down their throats," he said. "If you go down here and steal a man's car, he'll go ballistic; but they're stealing his country and he doesn't even know it."

Underwood operates a business from his home off Jericho Church Road. Foreign competition allowed under GATT could put him out of business, he said.

"When Americans figure out what's going on, they'll go crazy. We've got to let these people know what's going on. They won't pull it off unless Americans let them."

Gatt lays the foundation for a world government, Underwood said. "Their goal is to dismember our Constitution and replace it with a one world government."

Under GATT, the United States would have one vote and no veto power, Underwood said. GATT could also control the flow of money worldwide, he said.

"Keep in mind that when they passed the NAFTA (North American Free Trade Agreement) under the guise of free trade, they failed to mention that your job could be in jeopardy," he said. "Under GATT, you job could now go anywhere in the world and the products made can be shipped back tariff free."

Major media don't tell the story because they're owned by the group's that favor one world government, Underwood said.

"There was a time when they called these kind of people traitors, now they call them our leaders. Wake up people and become citizens again before it's too late."

Picnic People

The Masonic Picnic carnival opened Monday night bringing smiles to area youngsters. At left, Ashton York, 3, daughter of Malinda and Chris York of Statesville, and Sharee Knight, 2, daughter of Marie and Larry Knight of Mocksville, ride a buggy. At top, others take a stroll on the midway. State Sen. Betsy Cochrane is scheduled to speak Thursday morning before the picnic lunch.

Five Going To Georgia With Flood Relief

ADVANCE - When there's a disaster, sometimes the last ones to receive help are those in the rural area.

A group from Davie County is hoping to change that this week when they take a tractor-trailer load of supplies and food for Newton, Ga., a rural area devastated by floods a couple of weeks ago.

The goods are being distributed to those in need with the help of three churches in the Newton area, said Ruth Hockaday, who organized the relief effort through Mocks United Methodist Church.

"We have the truck over half full, but when we get it all in there, I feel like it will be really nicely packed," she said Monday afternoon.

Hockaday, John Carr Phelps, Ronnie Long, Patsy Byerly and Dorothy Williams are making the trip to Georgia to help distribute the donations.

"We're going into the rural area, into an area that rarely receives any help," Hockaday said.

She has been overwhelmed with the large amount of donations.

"It's come from all over," she said. "It's been an unbelievable outpouring from people, all kinds of people. We're so grateful."

Swisher Homer Wins Title For New Union

By Ronnie Gallagher
Davie County Enterprise-Record

New Union had lost a seven-run lead. It had lost momentum.

But thanks to Michael Swisher, it didn't lose the game.

Swisher's two-out, two-run homer to centerfield in the bottom of the seventh inning gave New Union the Mocksville/Davie Parks and Recreation Department's men's church league championship last week at Rich Park. The homer helped edge Fork 10-8 in one of the most exciting finishes in recent league history.

"You couldn't have asked for a better ending," said New Union coach Randy Groce.

New Union continued its amazing streak in the tournament. For the second straight season, it came from back in the pack to win the postseason. The team finished only 6-5 during the regular season.

"We just get pumped up for the tournament," Groce said.

In the men's open league tournament, Wheels, the regular season champ, won the title with a five-run seventh, taking a 14-10 victory over last year's champion, Hart's Pizza.

Church Final

The finals of the church league took five days to complete because of rain. New Union faced Fork in the championship on Thursday night but Fork won, forcing a deciding title game in the double-elimination tournament.

The teams were forced to wait until Monday night but the layoff didn't appear to hurt New Union, which scored seven runs in the bottom of the first to take a 7-1 lead.

Davie Football Edition Scheduled Next Week

There are plenty of questions surrounding this year's Davie County football team, not just whether it can better last year's 5-5 season.

For instance:

- How about the background on Davie's two new football coaches?
- The 1965 team was the first to make the state playoffs at Davie. But what year produced the second playoff club?
- Who was the first quarterback to throw for over 1,000 yards in a season?
- What football father opened his 1,800-square foot basement for the team to lift weights?
- Do firefighting and football have anything in common?
- What football coach is also a fireman?
- How can weightlifting help junior high athletes?
- What Davie High faculty member was once on a staff with Duke's new head coach Fred Goldsmith?
- Does Marcus Wilson see a little of himself as he watches his son, Deryl, streak down the field on a long touchdown run?
- What former Davie War Eagles and Mocksville Legion players are preparing for the college football season?
- Can a country boy really succeed playing football in Taiwan?
- Get the answers to these questions and many more in the Enterprise-Record Football Edition, scheduled next week.

Football Players Dominate This Week's Headlines

Perhaps the thing about athletics that keeps us glued is that there are so many emotions involved.

It is August. Football has started in Davie County and like always, it has taken center stage on the field and in the courtroom.

The emotion that brings us down is in the courtroom with the trial of Chris Gregory.

The emotion that brings us up is on the field with the exploits of Kendall Chaffin, who is about to embark on a professional career.

Both were stars in junior high. Both attended South Davie. But not even Chaffin could dominate at that level like Gregory. He was a junior high phenom. I watched him score four touchdowns in a single game. I saw him pump in 42 points in a basketball game. Everything he did seemed effortless. He was a joy to watch.

In high school, he seemed to be one of Davie's nicest, most cordial athletes. He seemed no different than anyone else. He had a girlfriend. He ate his favorite foods: chicken casserole and pizza. He hung with his friends.

He listened to WPEG, his favorite radio station. He might grab a Cheerwine, one of his favorite drinks, and watch Fresh Prince of Bel-Air and Different World, his favorite TV shows.

On the field, he was a starting running back for Randall Ward's football team.

"He's a quiet leader," said Ward, when asked about Gregory in 1991.

Gregory said he wanted to play football in college. "Coach Ward said to prove myself every game and the scouts will see me," he said in a 1991 Enterprise story. "I'd like to play at a small college somewhere."

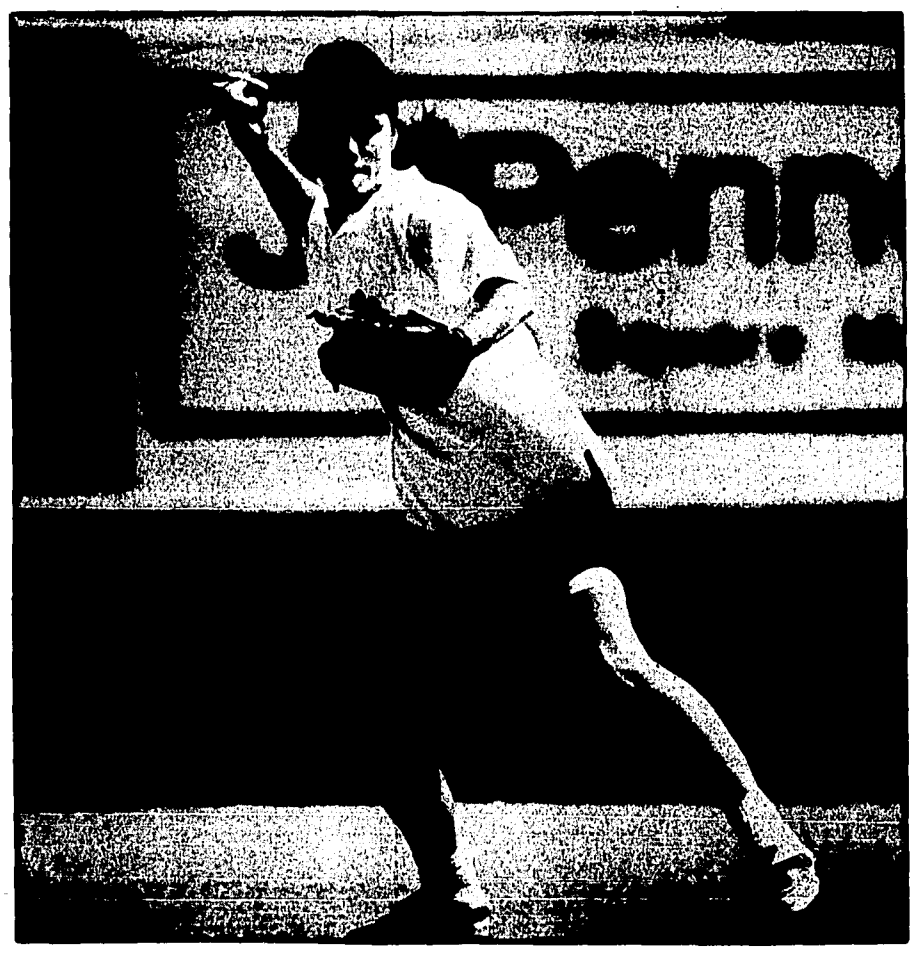

He laughed about improving the way he carried the ball. "In the first scrimmage, I fumbled," he said sheepishly.

Now, it appears Gregory has fumbled his life away. He has been accused of killing his girlfriend. Assuming he goes to prison, he'll be up for parole in 20 years. He may be given the death sentence. That will be up to a jury.

There were two other football players involved in the shooting of Gregory's girlfriend: Gabe Wilson and Fonzie Howell. Wilson, now 16, would have surely been at Davie's Photo Day Saturday had he avoided the murder scene. He may have been counted on to be a good Former Davie High softball player Linda Potts tried out for for the Silver Bullets recently in Durham.

Silver Bullet Tryout

Potts Works With Famous Women's Baseball Team

By Ronnie Gallagher
Davie County Enterprise-Record

DURHAM -- Yes, Linda Potts did try out for a women's baseball team. But she admits that the object wasn't really to make the club.

"I wasn't trying to get on a Wheaties box any time soon," she joked.

No, the idea was to one day be able to tell her children and her grandchildren that she actually tried out for a professional team.

The opportunity was presented by the Silver Bullets, a newly-formed women's team, sponsored by Coors Brewing Company. It had a tryout in Durham recently and Potts was one of 80 women on hand to work out for former Atlanta Braves pitcher Phil Neikro, his brother Joe and Silver Bullets pitching coach and director of player development, Tommy Jones.

It was more low-key than when the first team was formed last year. A total of 1,800 hopefuls showed up for that tryout. Forty-nine were invited to spring training and 24 were kept.

This tryout was to fill only one spot.

"We're very selective," Neikro explained. "Our standards are very high. We are out there playing men who have been involved in the game since they were seven or eight years old. We're playing in front of crowds of 30-40,000. It takes a lot of guts, not to mention a great deal of skill."

That was proven the night before when the Silver Bullet pitcher tossed a no-hitter against a men's team in Charleston, S.C.

Potts, a 1987 graduate of Davie High and an all-conference softball player, showed plenty of guts by simply being there. She was a slow-pitch softball player. She had never played baseball and the differences were major.

Fast Pitch On Hold For Now

By Ronnie Gallagher
Davie County Enterprise-Record

Practice for fast pitch softball started last week at Davie High School.

So why wasn't anyone on the diamond practicing?

Because Davie is like practically all of the other 300 high schools in North Carolina. Fast-pitch softball is being put on hold for at least a year.

The North Carolina High School Athletic Association sprung a shocker on athletic directors in July by announcing that it would offer the sport for the first time in 1994. It would then be up to the schools to include it in their program or wait until next season.

For a team wanting an easy state championship, this may be the perfect opportunity. With so few schools expected to field a fast-pitch team on such short notice, a school could almost win by default. The NCHSAA realizes that and said if there was a championship series, it would include all four classifications

Most ADs feel the NCHSAA decided to add the sport because of pressure from the civil rights office of the U.S. Department of Education. That office sent a letter to state superintendant Bob Ethridge, asking that it be offered by 1995.

A survey of all middle and high school girls in North Carolina last spring showed that slow-pitch barely won out, with 40 percent showing no preference.

NCHSAA assistant director Dick Knox said, "Now, it's up to the schools to see if they can afford to offer the sport and if there is interest."

Most athletic directors, like Davie's Buddy Lowery, do not think many schools will have it during this first season. The budgets were drawn up without fast-

Time Out For Gus

Davie County soccer coach Pete Gustafson and his daughters Emily, 6, and Annie, 4, take time out during practice to feed their dog, Gus, 10.

Davie To Scrimmage Cavaliers Saturday Night

Davie will be hosting a football scrimmage with North Rowan at War Eagle Stadium Saturday, Aug. 13.

Gametime is 7 p.m. It will prepare Davie for its season opener Aug. 19 at West Rowan in the annual Endowment Game.

The Endowment Game, which didn't count stats or records last year, will count eveything in 1994. North Carolina teams have been given the opportunity to play 11 games in a season.

Boston Or Strike

Fran Parker thought she had the perfect birthday present for husband Grimes when she bought tickets to the Boston Red Sox-Cleveland series.

The only problem was that she bought the tickets back before strike talk. She fretted for weeks that the players would stop playing and she'd be stuck.

But the players decided not to strike until Aug. 12, leaving the Parkers breathing a sigh of relief. They made their Femway Park appointment last week.

No Team For Steele

For the first time since he can remember, Darrell Steele will not be coaching a sport this fall.

Notebook

In the past, he had always coached the North Davie Middle School softball team.

Now, he says he'll try to open the gym for basketball players. He is also the boys basketball coach at Davie High.

Allen Hurt

A promising freshman went down before football practice even began.

Shane Allen, from South Davie Junior High, broke the big toe on his left foot during a weightlifting session earlier in the summer when a teammate dropped a weight on it.

He went to the beach on a family vacation, was swimming in the ocean and hit his foot against someone else's shin, breaking the foot. He is in a soft cast.

Doctors have told Allen he won't be able to play for six to eight weeks.

More Injuries

Two other Davie football players besides Allen have suffered injuries.

Speedster James Clement has a pulled groin, which trainer Jim Lightle said needs rest.

Shannon Shoffner, a lineman, has a pulled muscle in his back.

Legion Report

Kernersville defeated Burke County four games to two last week to win the Western North Carolina American Legion baseball title. It will now face Wilmington, which defeated Garner 4-2.

This will be the fifth time in last 10 years Kernersville has made the state championship. Two times came under Dale Ijames, who is now the Mocksville coach.

Mariners' Biggest Win Was Raising $14,000

The Mariners made it.

Forget about winning enough games to qualify for the national AAU 12-under baseball tournament in Minnesota. The real victory was raising enough money to send the team.

But that's what coaches Dink Smith and Steve Ridenhour faced after the Davie County Mariners, an all-star team of Davie and Davidson County players, finished second in the North Carolina tournament.

Players sold raffle tickets. Parents gave some money. Businesses gave even more. And last Thursday, the team boarded a bus and headed on the 1,100-mile trip.

The team is assured of playing six games in the nationals. There will be 40 teams participating. Davie County players include Drew Ridenhour, Jerrod Stanley, Clint Bailey, J.C. Williard, Ross Smith, Scott Frazier, Jeremy Smith, Bradley Willard and Shawn Brooks.

But the highlight of the Aug. 6-13 trip will probably be marching around the Metrodome carrying the Davie County and state flags during the Boston Red Sox-Minnesota game.

Potts

First there was the baseball, a bit smaller than a softball.

"It was like going from a basketball to a golf ball," said Potts. "I would try to throw it like I made a hard softball throw but the ball would go up and dip down."

Then, there was the distance to the bases: 90 feet instead of softball's 60.

"The base looked like it was three miles away," she said.

But Potts felt she was ready. She had worked out with a former Triple-A baseball player in Clemmons, a pitcher who tossed batting practice for a few weeks before the tryout. She used a 30-ounce Easton.

"I worked out about an hour, hour and a half," Potts said. "If I had it to do over again, I'd work more on fielding and throwing than hitting."

The hitting would be held for last. First, the players were instructed to run the 90 feet in 4.5 seconds. Potts' time was 4.52.

"There were five in a group and I got in with a fat girl so I wouldn't look so slow," she said with a grin. "It wasn't like running (the 60 feet) from first to second at the Radar Base (Softball Field)."

Then, each player took turns fielding four grounders at shortstop and throwing to first base. The coaches were looking at quickness, footwork, throwing strength and accuracy.

Accuracy may have been the most important step in staying on the field. Neikro told the prospects that the first baseman would not move to the right or left, would not bend down and wouldn't reach up.

Potts made her four throws, all of which the first baseman caught, and then was sent to the bleachers. She was not given a chance to bat. Her tryout had ended suddenly.

But the chances in the future will be plentiful, according to Neikro, the 14th winningest pitcher in Major League history. He told the prospects that several colleges were looking at beginning women's baseball teams. A minor league system in Europe is a strong possibility with 120-150 women selected to participate.

"I don't want anyone to take it personally when we start whittling it down," Neikro told the players.

"This program is going to be around for a long time and this won't be your only chance. Some of you will be very close to making it so don't give up."

If another tryout occurs, Potts said she will not be among the prospects.

"I went out there just to say I did it," Potts said. "I wouldn't go back. There's not enough interest in it. Nobody would watch the games."

Lynn Hall contributed to this story.

pitch, a coach, a schedule or a playing facility.

"Who can we play?" Lowery wanted to know. "Who's going to have it? There's a lot of things to think about since it came up so late."

No athletic director wants to hurt the volleyball program, which has already sent players to camp and prepared for its start. Lowery even wonders if there are enough female athletes to adequately field all the teams. In the fall, there are tennis, volleyball, cross-country and cheerleading.

"That's already around 110 girls," Lowery said, adding that with freshmen coming to Davie High this year, there will be about 1,400 students in school.

But he said added that with the double participation rule, it could be done.

"We knew because of the timing, it would be difficult (to field teams)," said the NCHSAA's Rick Strunk, associate executive director for special programs. "I can't say how many have committed."

Strunk said he wouldn't know until Sept. 15, teh cutoff date for schools reporting they would include fastpitch. He termed 1994 a "phase-in" year.

Lowery would have to look at several roadblocks if he were to add fastpitch this fall. A coach would have to be hired. The athletic budgets and schedules would have to be changed. Would Rich Park's facilities be available to Lowery? And considering so few schools will take on the task of fielding a team on short notice, how much travel would be involved?

Schools that decide to have fastpitch would begin their season Aug. 22.

"I still don't see it phasing out slow-pitch," Lowery said.

running back, just like Gregory. His little league coach used to rave about his potential.

But he was at the scene when a bullet went into the head of Howell, the brother of the victim. Fonzie, like Wilson, was beginning to make his name as a potentially great running back and athlete.

Wilson is now saying he did not shoot Howell. Gregory said earlier that he did.

Fonzie lived but has endured serious injuries. He won't ever have the chance to play football at Davie like Gregory.

What are most people saying to me about Gregory?

"How could it have happened?"

But this eerie story is another in the long line of Davie County football tragedies in this county over the past eight years. A 1,000-yard rusher committed suicide. An all-star from Davie was killed in a car wreck just weeks after playing a key role in the East-West Game. A little league coach was put in jail for killing a man and burying him behind the Smith Grove fieldhouse. And just last year, a football player was killed in yet another car crash.

There are also several football names famous from junior high or little league still floating around the court reports in this newspaper each week for cocaine, theft and ... well, you name it. I always planned on putting those names in the sports section, not the court reports.

That's why Davie County needs the Kendall Chaffins. We need the uplifting qualities he brings. We need his mischievous grin and country boy naivete.

He makes us laugh. He makes us feel happy for him.

In fact, with the Gregory trial continuing on Main Street of Mocksville, Chaffin's success story could not have been more timely. There's probably more talk surrounding Chaffin's freak introduction to pro football in Taiwan and his promising future than the depressing news coming from that courthouse.

What are most people saying to me about Chaffin?

"It couldn't have happened to a nicer boy," is the common sentiment. "Kendall deserves it."

His life will be a good one.

Chris Gregory was always nice to me when he was in high school. He seemed just like Chaffin and all the rest of the War Eagle athletes.

A good kid.

Chaffin

Gregory

We won't be able to turn our backs on what has happened to Gregory. This is a small town and nothing goes unnoticed. Nothing is forgotten. We cry for the family of the girl who was killed. We cry when we see Fonzie -- but we also force a smile because God has allowed him to stay with us.

Football has once again brought us all of the emotions, from the ecstasy of Kendall Chaffin to the excruciating pain of Chris Gregory.

Fork's Grady Barney puts everything he has into hitting this pitch.

There were plenty of close plays during the church league playoffs.

New Union

We felt pretty good," Groce said. "We knew it was do-or-die. We wanted to come out and jump on them early."

Fork actually started the scoring when Mike "Topcat" Seaford singled and scored in the top of the inning.

The lead didn't last long. Clark Gobble, Steven Dyson, Michael Swisher, Robert Edwards, David Allen and Terry Allen all had hits in the bottom of the first for New Union.

Hits by Swisher and Melvin Allred helped score Randy Keller in the second and it appeared New Union was in the midst of a rout.

Fork would have none of it, scoring six in the fifth to climb within 8-7. Andy Lanier, David Tkach, Danny Walser, Walter Ridenhour, Eddie Wilkins and Doug Greene all had hits while Daniel Ward reached on an error.

The comeback was complete when Seaford reached on an error in the top of the seventh and scored on Troy Bailey's hit.

Suddenly, it was 8-8 but Groce said New Union was nowhere near falling apart.

"We felt confident," he said. "We knew we had the top of our lineup coming up in the bottom of the seventh."

Gobble began the inning by flying out. Steven Dyson reached on an error but was forced out on a grounder by Keller.

That brought up Swisher, New Union's catcher, who is one of the league's top power hitters.

"He's definitely one of the threats, as far as home runs," Groce said. "Even if he doesn't hit a home run, we know he's going to hit it hard."

Swisher produced, slugging a mammoth shot over the centerfield fence. It sent the large New Union crowd into a frenzy.

"You could tell it was gone when he hit it," Groce said. "It was good for the fans. We had a huge crowd. There were people there who hadn't watched a game all year."

New Union outhit Fork 16-15 with Swisher going 4-for-4. Gobble, Steven and Terry Dyson and Jeffrey Spry all had two.

Fork was led by four players with two hits apiece.

Groce said there was a good reason his team peaks in the tournament. He has his entire squad there.

"Industrial league hurts us," he said. "Steven Dyson, Randy Keller, Jeffrey Spry, Robert Edwards and Clark Gobble missed several games. But we had them for the tournament and we won."

Groce likes the church league because it is competitive. Victory 1 won the regular season but did not reach the finals. Neither did last year's tournament finalist Liberty.

"The league as a whole is pretty even," he said. "But if we had all of our players for every game, I'm confident we'd be on top."

Open Finals

The open league's finish was almost as exciting. Wheels, the regular season champ, found itself down to Hart's, 10-9 going into the seventh inning.

But it batted around, scoring five runs and taking the title. Troy Bailey had the big hit, while Steven Parker, Britt Osborne, J.C. Hendrix and Rick Allred also helped in the comeback.

Wheels had defeated Hart's in the winner's bracket championship and then Hart's, led by Gary and Jeff Blalock, Scott Vogler and Perry Creason, bounced back to beat Crawford Door, forcing another meeting with Wheels.

Danny Walser tosses a pitch for Fork.

Mike Seaford forces a runner at second for Fork's softball team.

Co-ed Play Begins

Total Of 13 Teams In Rec League

The Mocksville/Davie Parks and Recreation Department has begun its co-ed softball season.

There are 13 teams playing this fall: Crown Wood 1,2,3, Rockets, Village Trophy, Jones Landscaping, Osborne Service, Shore's Bullets, Stevie O' Lounge, Eaton Farms, Barbecue House and Davie Auto/Sweet Lovers.

The league will play every Monday and Thursday at two sites:

Hickory Hill Swim Team Awards Swimmers At Banquet

Brad Clark and Adriene Bridgewater were named Hickory Hill Eels of the Year at the swim team's annual banquet.

Clark and Bridgewater won the Ron Brown Eel of the Year Award, the highest honor from the club as outstanding boy and girl swimmer. Meagan Clark, who won the girls award last year, was named David Sanford Spirit Award winner for her dedication an hard work.

Austin Powell and Meagan Clark won in 10-under while Brad Clark and Felicia Swan in 11-over were awarded for scoring the most points.

The Most Improved awards went to David Stein and Bailey Marrs in 10-under and Richard Broadway and Amy Sink in 11-up. These were awarded due to dropped seconds in swim and stroke techniques.

The Coaches Award went to Brent Gaither and Becky Call in 10-under and Larry Umberger and Sarah Stein in 11-up. This award went to swimmers who showed dedication, attitude and improvment.

Ryan Powell, Mike Heiny, Brad and Meagan Clark were given medals for breaking Hickory Hill records in their age groups.

Nancy Clark and Donna Powell were thanked for their outstanding part in being league representatives for Hickory Hill.

The award banquet came after the Eels participated in the Greater Winston-Salem Swim League Championships July 23. They finished sixth, beating out Forsyth Country Club.

Meagan Clark won three gold medals. Ryan Powell, Larry Umberger and Brad Clark each had two golds. Relay swimmers Wesley Johnson and Richard Broadway each had one.

A lack of numbers kept Hickory Hill from finishing higher. Only Willow Run, Clemmons West and Sherwood were ahead during the 11-and-up age groups.

Willow Run scored 501 points to win the event, followed by Clemmons West with 407, Sherwood 387, Old Town 231, Brookwood 213, Hickory Hill 195 and Forsyth 176.

The Eels did come away from with a trophy. They won the Sportsmanship Award for the second straight season.

Also finishing with medals for high finishes:

In 6-under, David Stein, Bailey Marrs and Russell Clark.

In 7-8, Meredith Bridgewater.

In 9-10, Meagan Clark, Austin Powell, Lauren Davis and Becky Call. The medley relay team of Clark, Davis, Call and Jenny Broadway was fourth. The boys freestyle relay team of Powell, Chirs Stein, Brent Gaither and Mitchell Roberts was eighth.

In 11-12, Brad Clark, Larry Umberger, Adriene Bridgewater, Dana Call and the girls medley relay (Bridgewater, Call, Nancy Vogler and Emily Harpe). The boys medley relay team (Clark, Umberger, Wesley Johnson and Richard Broadway) won the first relay gold medal for Hickory Hill in 10 years.

In 13-14, Ryan Powell, Heiny, Erin Umberger, girls medley relay team (Umberger, Callie Bailey, Kristen Powell and Krista Lemasters).

Coach Karen Umberger was excited about Powell's two gold medals and two silver medals.

"Ryan did an excellent job in the championships when one realizes Ryan swims against year-round swimmers and he swins only summer league and winter season at Davie High School."

In 15-18, Felicia Swan, Amy Call, Seth Newman, girls medley and freestyle relay team (Swan, Call, Gretchen Umberger and Lori Vogler), boys medley relay team (Erik Crutchfield, Chris Bigenho, William Johnson and Newman) and the freestyle relay team (Crutchfield, Bigenho, Johnson and Ryan Powell).

Swan served as Umberger's assistant coach.

Fall Practice At Davie

Tennis Season Begins

Rankin

What team at Davie High School gets ready for practice each day by jumping rope 400 times?

Must be girls tennis.

Mary Ann Rankin has seen a resurgence in tennis interest over the last two years. It comes mainly from a 6-6 Central Piedmont Conference record against teams like Mount Tabor, West Forsyth and Reynolds, all known statewide.

"We had 20 come out, which is more than usual," Rankin said. "There is more interest with the ninth and tenth graders. Last year, the ninth graders at South Davie (Junior High) had to play there."

The junior class was the largest with seven players, while the freshmen and sophomores brought out five in each class. There are three seniors: Jenny Mando, Kelly Archer and Jill Rowe.

Rankin said she would probably have to cut the team, hopefully to 12 but she may keep 14.

"Ideally, I'd like to cut to 12," she said. "You can't have 20 and have the type of practice you need."

Rankin may keep 14 because she has 11 players returning. Junior Tami Ramsey will be the team's top player at number one, while seniors Archer and Mando, along with junior Beth Campbell, should continue playing in the starting lineup.

"Tami has played a lot and she should be comparable to our team record," Rankin said.

Ramsey will take the number one spot from graduated Carrie Brown, who was 6-6 last season.

Other returning players are Stephanie Carter, Laura Prillaman, Johnna McDaniel, Izzy Tutterow, Tiffany Harris and Holly Landry.

"If I keep 14, it will be to allow some youth to build for the future," Rankin said.

Practice will consist of establishing a ladder, number one through 14. Throughout the season, girls can make the starting lineup by winning and climbing.

Rankin said she doesn't necessarily teach but rather looks more into strategy.

"I'm not a pro," she said.

Davie's team climbed to fourth last year behind the three Winston-Salem schools but feels the War Eagles had a chance to finish third.

"We lost to South Stokes 5-4 twice," she said. "They surprised us. But our lineup should basically be the same this year."

Rankin is happy over one of her doubles teams: Ramsey and Mando, who played together last season.

Rankin and Susan Poole were 21-0 in high school but she said that most high school girls prefer singles.

"High school girls don't understand doubles," she explained. "It's more complicated than it seems. Girls don't like playing the net because you can get hit with the ball."

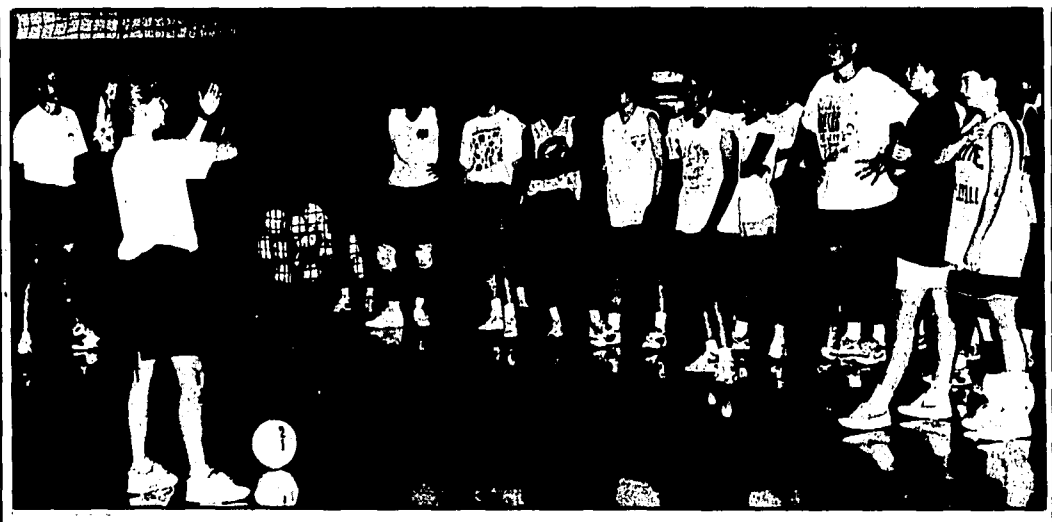

So Ramsey and Mando worked together this summer taking doubles lessons and even entered some tournaments.

"We inevitably lose at number one doubles because of who we've been up against," Rankin said. "Maybe those two working together will pay off an we can do better in that area."

CPC Report

• There will be a new baseball coach at Reynolds High School.

Doug Illing, an assistant last season for the Demons, will replace Tim White, who resigned at the end of last year.

Practice in several fall sports began at Davie High School last week, including (clockwise from top): Sherrie Myers instructs her varsity and jayvee players during the first day; Maria Newsome and Jonette Williard go through a drill; Corey Ratledge tries to get the ball past Jerimiah Clement during soccer drills; jayvee soccer coach Joe Ramsbotham oversees practice; Jenny Mando takes a break; Tami Ramsey practices to be Davie's number one player.

Myers, Gustafson Impressed

Pete Gustafson, soccer enthusiast and Davie County High School coach, should be smiling. In his world, his sport has taken off.

First, his girls soccer team had its first winning season and made the playoffs for the first time back in the spring. Then, he enjoyed the United States hosting the World Cup.

Gustafson

So, was it any surprise that his boys soccer team had more prospects than usual?

Gustafson saw 46 bodies out for practice and it's a good thing. He lost 12 seniors and nine starters.

Gustafson is in his fifth year as coach. The program is in its seventh. He is the third coach, following David Hayes and Jim Lightle.

The War Eagles have only three seniors, Jonathan Dixon, Ben Forrest and Tim Fisher, all of whom saw plenty of playing time last year.

"Obviously, we're picking seniors for leadership," Gustafson said, "along with juniors with playing experience."

Coach Joe Ramsbotham is working with the jayvee team, mainly on fundamentals. "He's trying to teach them to touch the ball softer," Gustafson said.

Gustafson plans to keep 18 on the varsity and 20 on the jayvee. He keeps more on jayvee because he says, "There's always a kid that may show potential a little later than the others. We want to give him that opportunity."

Davie opens with a scrimmage, tentatively set for Aug. 16 against Salisbury.

Volleyball Practice

Sherrie Myers welcomed 33 prospects to volleyball practice last week in preparation for the opener Aug. 18.

Forbush, North Iredell, West Rowan and Starmount are coming to Davie for a jamboree on that day.

The Central Piedmont Conference opener is scheduled for Sept. 8 at West Forsyth.

Myers is expecting to cut down to 24 players for the varsity and jayvee teams. Laddin Lakey will coach the jayvee team.

Myers has three returning players: senior Maria Newsome and juniors Laura Moyer and Jonette Williard.

"Laura has worked hard on her game," Myers said. "She's only missed three weeks. She'll be one of the best setters in our conference and a player to watch."

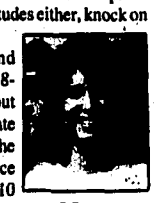

Overall, Davie has six seniors, five juniors, 11 sophomores and 10 freshmen on the roster.

"It's about what I expected," said Myers. "We're a little up from last year. I feel like we have a good foundation. Laddin had the ninth graders last year."

Fundamentals and conditioning have been the focus of the first two weeks of practice.

"A lot of the girls were like me -- they did nothing over the summer," she joked.

"We have all-around athletes here," she continued. "Some are doing it to get ready for basketball season. We seem to have a good bunch. They're very enthusiastic and eager to learn. We've had no problems with attitudes either, knock on wood."

Myers

Myers and Davie were 18-5 last year but missed the state playoffs for the first time since entering 4-A 10 years ago.

Big League Finishes Third

The Davie Big League baseball team finished the 1994 season with an 11-9 record, finishing third.

South Forsyth, full of Parkland and North Davidson players, won the league. That was no surprise, considering North tied for the Central Piedmont Conference title and Parkland won its 3-A North Piedmont Conference crown.

"We played them fairly well," said head coach David Hunt.

The Davie County coach did see three of his players named to the all-star team that will go into district play. Ron Armstrong, Mark Mason and Eric Shook are all-stars.

"They learned a lot," said Hunt of his team. "There were improvements made by several kids, which is my purpose."

The league was a good one, according to Hunt. "We faced some pretty good pitchers," he said. "We hit the ball well."

Pitching was a major concern for Hunt.

"We were really terribly short on pitchers," he added. "Everyone that pitched for the high school was on Legion."

Seeing time on the mound for Davie were Armstrong, Mason, Jason Harbour, David Whitaker and Matt Sain.

Ron Armstrong made the district Big League all-star team.

Learning To Be A Cowboy

7-Year-Old Already A Champion 'Mutton Buster'

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

TURKEYFOOT - What does a 7-year-old boy who wants to grow up to be a bull-riding cowboy do for practice?

He rides "sheep goats."

Adam Lee Stroud, son of Jesse and Annette Stroud of Rock Spring Church Road, got interested in rodeos from a family friend, Keith Crider.

"Mr. Keith," as Adam calls him, talked the youngster into entering a "mutton busting" contest at a Charlotte rodeo. Adam did well. The next time, he won.

Mutton busting is boys riding sheep, the same way the bigger boys ride bulls and broncs.

"You have to ride for eight seconds, but I stayed on for two or three seconds extra," Adam said. "The first time, I was shivering as hard as I have ever shivered in my entire life."

And now Mr. Keith has a couple of goats for Adam to practice his riding. "I think he sort of adopted me and my wife," Crider said.

"That's a sheep goat," Adam said as Mr. Keith got the animal ready for a practice ride.

Adam gets on and Mr. Keith lets the animal go. When it runs out of rope, it bucks Adam to the ground.

Adam gets up shaking his head. "Man, that's one wild sheep," he said, and climbs on his back again. "Whoa, I ain't ready yet," he tells Mr. Keith.

Adam said he tries to concentrate before making a ride. "I'm thinking about getting off that thing safe. That's all I'm thinking about," he said.

Would he want to try a safer rodeo event, like barrel racing? "No way, that's for women," he said.

Adam spent his birthday money to buy cowboy clothes.

"Adam, at the house, rides everything like it's a bull," his mother said.

"I want to be a bull rider," Adam, who will be a second grader at William R. Davie Elementary School, said. "My favorite things at the rodeo are bull riding, steer wrestling and mutton busting."

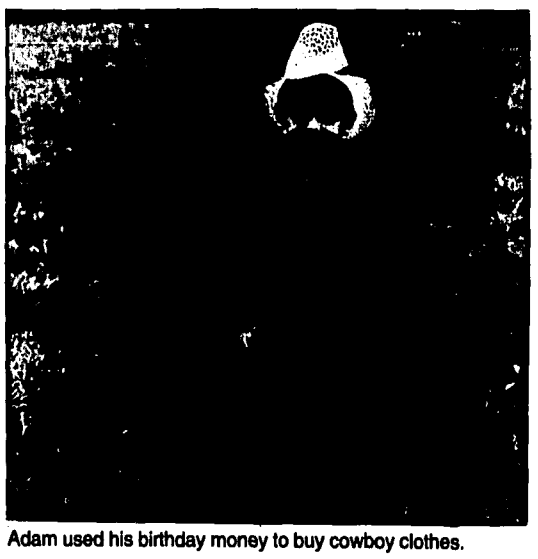

And there's no question about his favorite cowboy. "Mr. Keith, that's the best cowboy I know."

Keith Crider shows Adam Stroud how to use a rope.

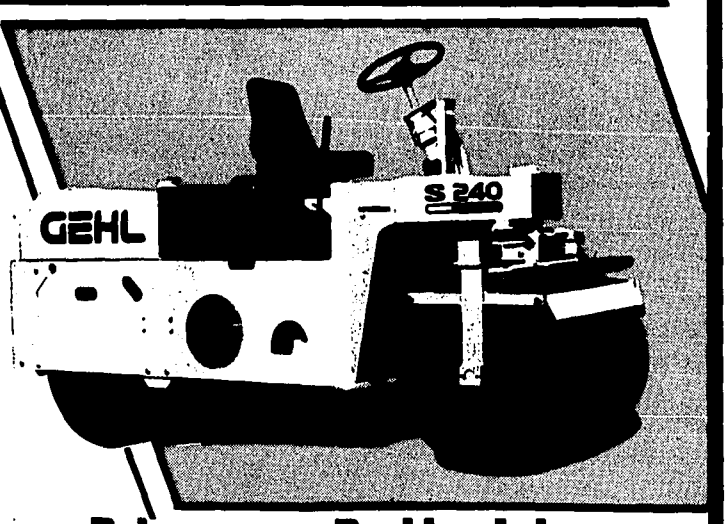

The falls can be tough as 'Mr. Keith' helps Adam learn how to ride animals for the rodeo.

Adam used his birthday money to buy cowboy clothes.

Davie High School Gets A New Look

The 375 freshman entering Davie High School this year won't be the only ones in new surroundings.

So will the sophomores, juniors, seniors ... and teachers.

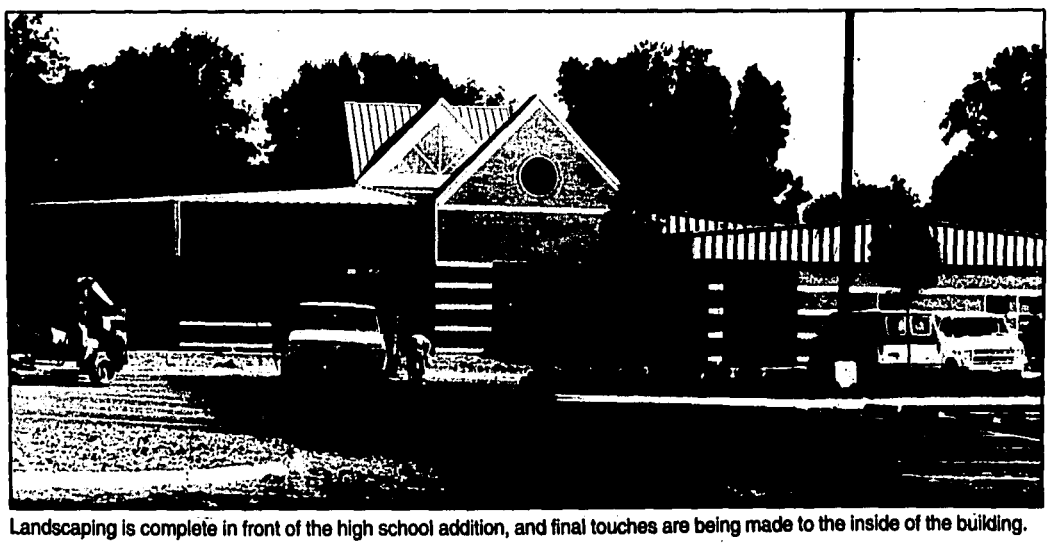

A new building, at over 30,000 square feet has been completed at the front of the school. It will house the media center, two exceptional children's classrooms, a multi-purpose room, band room, chorus room, drama room, dance room, guidance offices.

Parts of the old school that housed those functions are being renovated into regular classrooms.

The addition is complete, and some furniture and equipment has been moved into the media center, guidance offices and band room, said Dr. Bill Steed, superintendent.

There is still a lot of work to be done in the older part of the school, but contractors say the work will be completed before students arrive on Aug. 24. There may be a few minor details left, but classes should begin on time, Steed said.

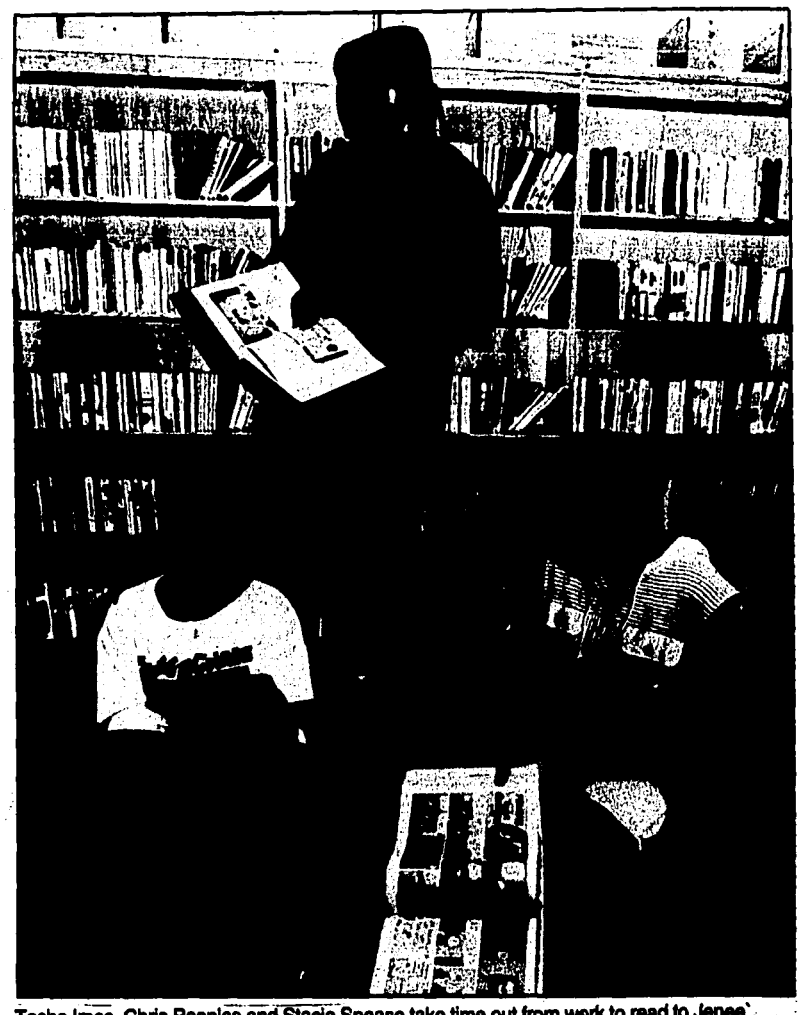

An open house for the new high school will be held in September, Steed said.

Landscaping is complete in front of the high school addition, and final touches are being made to the inside of the building.

As mom works, Jenee` Wilson, 3, finds a book in the media center to keep her company.

Tasha Imes, Chris Peoples and Stacie Spease take time out from work to read to Jenee`.

Youth Challenge Students Build Courtyard

When Davie High School students begin attending classes later this month, they'll have a new area to visit with each other between classes.

A courtyard area with benches was built by teen-agers in Summer Youth Challenge, most of whom will be Davie High students themselves.

"I like doing this project," said Tiffany Redmon. "I learned how to work with different people."

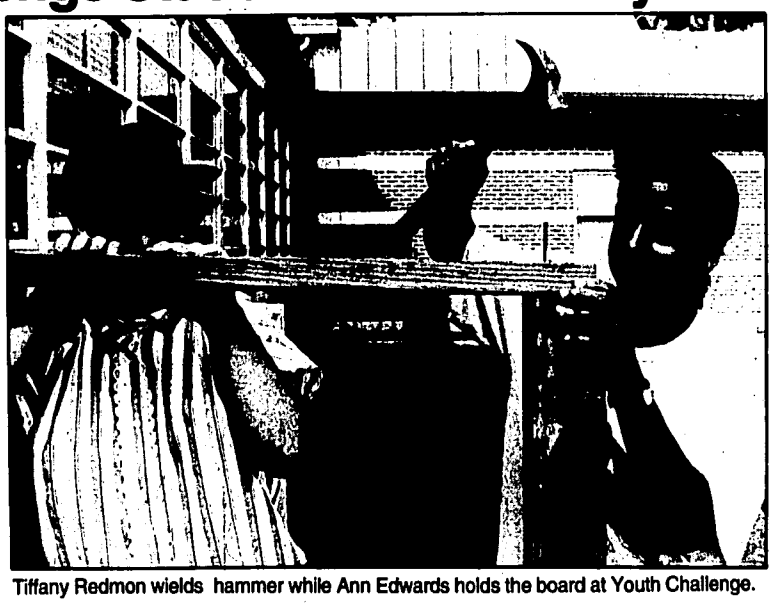

The best part, Redmon said, was getting paid for her work.

Program director Kimberly Blue said the teens, age 14-16, are paid based not only on their work, but on their attitudes.

"The goals are to provide a lot of enrichment activities and provide a lot of job skills," Blue said, "to give these kids some idea of the work world, job responsibility."

They worked on the courtyard weekly during the six-week program, which also included class work, guest speakers and field trips.

Between two buildings at the school, the courtyard includes two walkways to an area with benches. The students also put sound barriers around air conditioning units between the two buildings.

Tiffany Redmon wields hammer while Ann Edwards holds the board at Youth Challenge.

"This is an area where a lot of kids wait for the bell to ring," Bell said. "This is a good group of kids and we had a lot of fun."

DHS Orientation Aug. 18

Davie High School Orientation for ninth and 10th grades and their parents will be held Aug. 18 from 3:30 -8 p.m.

Tours of the campus will begin each half hour and individual students schedules may be picked up in the mew multi-purpose room before or after tours. There will be a $10 registration fee per student.

W.G. Potts, DHS principal, will hold parent meetings at 4, 5:30, and 7 p.m. in the gym. Teachers, counselors, and PTSA members will be on hand to assist parents and students.

S. Davie Schedule Pickups Scheduled

The students from South Davie Middle School may pick up class schedules beginning Monday, Aug. 8, from 8 a.m.-noon and 1-3 p.m.

Students must pay a $10 instructional fee and seventh and eighth graders must pay a $5 physical education fee. School insurance will be available.

Special Children's Needs Sought

The Davie County Schools, as part of continuing child find efforts, conducts an annual census of all professional service providers serving children in Davie County.

This census is for all children ages birth to 21 who have, or are suspected of having special needs and who are not receiving services from the Davie County schools.

Children with special needs include: academically gifted, autistic, deaf/blind, behaviorally/emotionally handicapped, educably mentally handicapped, hearing impaired, specific learning disabled, multihandicapped, other health impaired, pregnant, physically handicapped, speech/language impaired, severely/profoundly handicapped, trainable mentally handicapped, visually impaired, traumatic brain injured, and preschool developmentally delayed.

The results of this census assits in identifying these children and their needs as early as possible in order to provide appropriate educational services and to plan for future programs. Any information as well as the name of the reporter will be kept confidential. The information will be used solely for educational purposes and a follow-up will be made by school personnel with the child's family.

Pizza Added To Davie High Menu; WRD Gets Food Bar

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

School lunches won't be the same at two Davie schools this year.

At Davie High, a commercial pizza (bids are being taken from local restaurants) stand will be set up, one of six lines offering different food selections.

And at William R. Davie Elementary School, students will serve themselves at a food bar, Judy Sell, food services director, told members of the board of education last week.

Several changes are being made at the high school cafeteria, as 375 more students are expected when ninth graders attend there this year.

The old drama room has been added to the cafeteria, and an open area to the back side is being closed in to provide more seating space. There will also be a salad bar, food cart and two lines leading into the kitchen area.

A change from recent years, the food will again be prepared at Davie High School.

That won't be the case at William R. Davie and Mocksville Middle, Sell said, where the food will be prepared elsewhere. That practice has proven to be safe, and foods that are supposed to be warm stay that way, she said.

"If you didn't see the food coming in the back door, I don't think you would be able to tell a difference in the food your are served," Sell said. "We feel it's a very sanitary method ... and hopefully financially feasible."

The food bar at William R. Davie should help students make decisions. Similar projects at other school systems showed little food waste after the first week or two, she said.

"I think it will be very attractive ... a good atmosphere, helping students learn how to make choices, learning about nutrition."

There will be the same number of food service employees on site who can assist students who need help, she said.

New Regulations Discussed

Like always, school lunches are a political hot potato.

New regulations set to go into place in a couple of years could drastically change what schools serve, Sell said.

"The main thing is to cut the fat content," she said. All foods will have to have 30 percent less fat, and recipes and menus will have to be entered into a computer for verification.

"What happens if you produce all of this politically correct food and the kids won't eat it?" asked David Owens, chairman of the board of education.

"Right now, they're saying that doesn't matter, and that bothers me," Sell said. "Unless we get those students to eat it, we're not going to accomplish very much."

That could worsen the problem now at the high school, where a small percentage of students eat the available food. She hopes the addition of pizza and other items will increase the number of students who eat in the cafeteria.

The key, she said, is teaching kids to eat more healthy foods at an earlier age. "Kids must be taught what to eat," Sell said.

1994-95 Prices

Students in grades K-5 will be 85¢ full price, and 30¢ reduced. Lunch prices will be $1.40 and 40¢.

In grades 6-12, full price breakfasts will cost 85¢, and reduced breakfasts will be 30¢. Lunch prices will be $1.50 and 40¢.

Extra milks will cost 25¢, and adults will be able to eat lunch for $2.

Davie Native Earns Degree At College Of The Air Force

FORT MEADE, MD. - Senior Airman Paula Carter had been out of high school two years and didn't look forward to going back to the classroom. So when she decided to pursue an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force, she "started at rock bottom."

Sgt. Barry J. Carter had no such qualms. Before he enlisted in the Air Force, he had earned 80 hours of college credit. For him, the decision was to finish what he started.

Together the husband and wife, met at Clark AB, the Philippines, carried on their quests for elusive sheepskins. Their reward came in June when the 694th Intelligence Group members both received associate degrees from CCAF.

With her diploma in intelligence collection, Paula Carter became the first person in her family to earn a college degree. "It made me feel good to get a degree of some kind," she said. "I'm the oldest in my family with two sisters at home. I'm setting an example for them, and I want them to be proud of me."

Just finding time for school proved tough for the couple. To start with, they couldn't study together; they hardly saw each other. Paula works day and midnight shifts in the 32nd Intelligence Squadron. Barry worked day mids and swings in the 29th IS. Both had to schedule studies around other military classes required to say proficient in their jobs.

Despite those obstacles, they persevered.

Unlike her high school experience, in college course Paula Carter "found out I was a lot more dedicated to classes. I could concentrate. I noticed a difference in homework-I had to do it. It was important for me to be on the honor list, and I am. But the big motivation was I was paying for school."

She took more than 10 classes that cost around $150 each for tuition and books. Combined cost for the Carters come to more than $2,000.

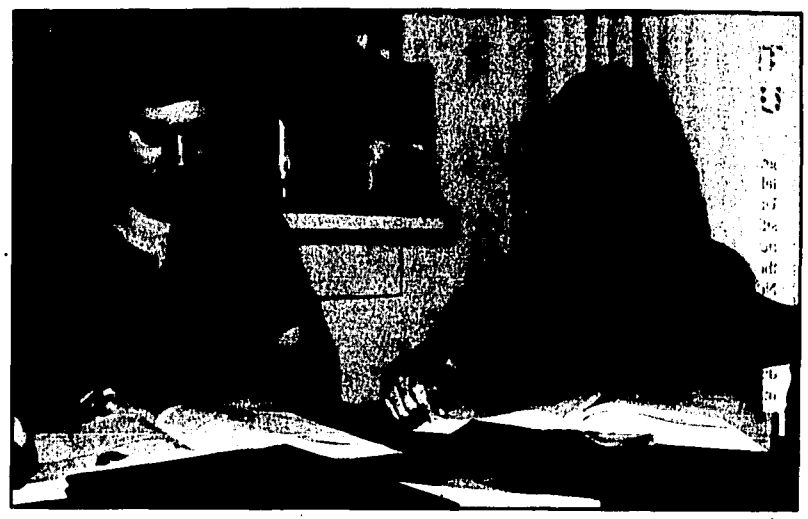

Barry Carter, with an associate degree in intelligence and imagery analysis in hand, said it was money well spent. "CCAF os a stepping stone," he said. "All these courses count toward four-year degrees. We're at the point in life if you don't have more than a high school diploma, you won't have many doors open to you."

Both airmen are making good on their words. Combined with his earlier college credits, Barry is six hours away from a bachelor's degree in sociology through Regents College in New York. Another six hours atop that and he can earn a double major in sociology and history. He hopes to complete one of those four-year degrees in October.

Paula has taken about 12 hours beyond her CCAF degree as she works for a certificate in business management. She eventually wants to earn a bachelor's degree in accounting.

The Carters urged other service members to follow in their footsteps, especially, said Barry, since the first step is relatively easy.

"Most airmen don't understand that, with technical schooling and professional military education, they might already have a full year's worth of college credit," he said. "It's all wasted if you don't go to the Education Office and started work on a degree."

Barry and Paula Carter take time to study together for degree from Air Force college.

On Dean's List

Tamitha Raye Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilmer R. Allen of Advance, has made the spring semester dean's list at Salem College by earning a minimum 3.5 grade point average.

Leverenz Gets Elon Award

Kristin Lynne Leverenz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leigh E. Leverenz of Advance, and a 1994 graduate of Davie High School, has been awarded an honors scholarship to attend Elon College for the 1994-95 school year.

The scholarships, which range from $1,500 to $6,000, carry with them the opportunity to participate in Elon's Honors Program. Elon awards the scholarship based on the student's high school academic record.

Pinebrook To Use Administrative Team

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

Pinebrook Elementary School won't have a principal for most of the upcoming school year, with administrative decisions being made up of a team of teachers, parents and administrators.

Larry Lanier, assistant principal, will be the lead administrator of the team.

Members of the Davie County Board of Education, after meeting with members of the team behind closed doors last week, approved of the plan.

It will allow principal Melvin Fogg to attend a residency program for a doctorate in education at Appalachian State University. He is expected to return in May; and though not being paid, has agreed to help the team when possible.

Part of the money from Fogg's salary will be used to hire an additional teacher, and a part-time person will be hired to handle other administrative duties.

"The real strength is there's going to be a leadership team at the school helping Mr. Lanier make those decisions," said Dr. Bill Steed, superintendent, "making sure communication stays open between the grade levels."

The proposal was formed at the school, and Steed said he told them it would be up to them to make it work. The central office staff would provide support services, he said.

"You are the ones who are going to make this work the staff and the parents at Pinebrook," Steed said. "It's not a normal interim principal role. The decisions will be made by that leadership team."

Steed said the education board members wanted to be sure that students wouldn't suffer from the plan, that not teacher would be taken from the classroom to help with some administrative duty.

"I think it's worth a shot," Steed said. It ties in well with the site-based philosophy, with more decisions that affect local schools being made on the local level.

"If you give employees and professionals an opportunity to make those decisions, it makes more sense that they will be successful," Steed said.

The school has already started informing parents of the plan, and having parents on the committee should get the word out, Steed said. The plan will also be discussed at an Aug. 22 open house at the school.

Connors

Three Attending UNCC Program

Three recent Davie High School graduates are among the 38 students taking part in the University Transition Opportunities Program at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte this summer.

Bonaparte

UTOP, held during the summer school session prior to the participants' first fall semester, offers invitations to a limited number of students. Preference is given to students who live in small towns, rural areas and inner city communities.

UTOP builds upon the scholastic abilities of the students through university courses and intensive contact with university academic support services and extends beyond the typical classroom encounter.

The program continues throughout the student's UNC-Charlotte career with academic advising and monitoring. Upon completion, UTOP students have seven credit hours toward graduation.

The three students are: Nicole R. Bonaparte, daughter of Emanuel and Forrest Bonaparte; Jaime L. Clement, daughter of James "Buster" and Louise Clement; and Chastity M. Connors, daughter of Thomas and Kathleen Connors.

Four Are Named To Dean's List

Four Mocksville area students were named to the spring semester dean's list in Salem College's continuing studies program.

Tona Faye Comatzer of Advance, Beth Ann Grundfast, Christine Johnson Latham and Deborah Darlene Markland, all of Mocksville, maintained a minimum 3.5 grade point average to qualify for the honor.

Parents The Key To Success

Children are interested in the things that interest their parents, and school is no exception. Parents really are the key to getting the school year started right.

The first day of school can seem frightening to even the most confident child. Getting your child off to a good start can lead to a successful year. Here are sone ways your can help make the school year more pleasant:

•Be positive. Tell your child about the benefits, rewards and fun of attending school. Let him know you are proud of him.

•Discuss with your child his/her concerns about school. Encourage positive thinking, and teach your child how to give themselves a "pep talk".

•Arrange to take your child on a tour of the school before school starts. Schedule to meet the principal and visit your child's classroom(s), the lunchroom and recreational facilities.

•Make leaning enjoyable at home by providing a special place for completing homework.

•Be enthusiastic about school. Get involved with school projects, volunteer at school and stay in touch with your child's teacher.

•Instill in your child a love of learning. Let him/her see you read at home and show your child that you enjoy reading. Demonstrate through your actions that leaning is a lifelong experience.

PARENT PLEDGE

As a parent, to start the school year off right I pledge to :

•Participate in my child's education by supervising homework, talking with and listening to my child and volunteering at school.

•Accept my children for who they are. I will nurture those qualities that make each of my children special and make every effort to help them improve areas of weakness.

•Read to or with my children every day of the year.

•Expect the very best from my children at all times.

•Turn off the television during the time designated for homework, reading and family "pep talks".

Teachers Attend Workshop On Using Natural Resources

Six teachers from the Davie soil and Water conservation District recently participated in a workshop held Salisbury for educators to learn hands-on ways to teach through natural resources.

This down to earth natural resource education workshop was sponsored by the Davie, Rowan, Iredell, Davidson, and Cabarrus Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

Participating in the workshop were: Eva Everett and Susan Wall Smith, Mocksville Elementary School; Cindy Orsillo, Karen Myers, Vickie C. Potts and Amanda Plyer, Pinebrook Elementary School. Each earned three renewal credits by completing the workshop.

Lessons included Project Wild and Aquatic Wild, conducted with the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission; Project Learning Tree with the N.C. Cooperative Extension Service; Project Soil and Water with the N.C. Division of Soil and Water conservation, Soil Conservation Service, USDA, and local conservation districts; and The Stream Watch Experience with the Division of Water Resources.

Frances Jenkins, national conservation teacher of the year, demonstrated her classroom techniques.

For more information on conservation education and technical assistance available through the Davie Soil and Water conservation District, contact the district office in Room 313, County Office Building, 180 S. Main St., Mocksville, or call 704-634-5011.

Holly Landry Is Selected For Talent Identification Program

A Davie County student is among those from across the nation attending a special academic program at Duke University this summer.

Holly E. Landry of Mocksville is studying math problem solving as part of Duke's Talent Identification Program for youngsters in grades seven through eleven.

"TIP tries to bring together the best in the nation, the best faculty, the best staff, the best technology, the best methods that we can possibly find and provide a stimulating and enriching experience for young people," said the director, Tom Ulmet.

TIP courses are fast-paced and intensive allowing students to progress at their own pace. During a three-week term, students enroll in a single course and generally complete the equivalent of a year of high school or a semester of college level work. Students spend six hours per day in class on weekdays and three hours on Saturdays.

Students invited to participate in the program test in the seventh grade and achieve scores comparable to college bound high school seniors on the SAT.

Instructors are members of university faculties, outstanding teachers from secondary schools and advanced graduate students experienced in teaching bright students. Students are organized in living groups by course of study and eat meals with instructors and resident advisors, who supervise small groups during free time for social and recreational activities on evenings and weekends.

TIP also allows the students to enroll in college-credit courses.

Rain, Sun And Extra Fertilizer Makes For Large Sunflowers

WILLIAM R. DAVIE - Margaret Bracken grows sunflowers every year at the family's farm off Boozie Lane.

But none have compared to this year's crop. Some of the plants reached heights of 15 feet, maybe higher.

"I grow them every year, but this is the first time I've had any this big," Bracken said. "This is a little patch of new ground my husband fixed up.

"I'm always sticking flowers here and sticking flowers there," she said.

Her secret is no secret. "I watered them with Miracle Grow," she said.

"Most of the time I let the birds have them, but I'm going to save one head so I'll have the seed for next year."

Bracken plans to save the seed from the largest head.

Spiritual Resources: 'Promised Land'

By Shirley Cottle

I have a "love affair" with Davie County. Perhaps it is because I journeyed here from another area, and realize the blessing of living such a place. It is a place of seasonal change and beauty. It is a place of friendly people, loving people, helpful people. It is a place in which I feel safe. It is a place where my church people are me extended family, and my place of employment brings me great pride. It is living in a community and county where the compassion of people is beyond measure. I am not naive enough to believe that there are not problems for they exist here as anywhere, yet I believe that 'in this place' persons genuinely are striving to make unpleasant situations better. Through numerous avenues, persons of this county are striving for the betterment and growth of this place I call 'home'. God had heard our family prayers some twenty plus years ago, and our earthy 'promised land' became Mocksville.

There is a beautiful story found in the Old Testament book of Exodus that tells of a nation of people who were led to their 'promised land' because God heard their prayers and petitions and answered them. And He selected one person to lead their way. This man's name was Moses. The Egyptians ruled by Pharaoh had "made the Israel people's lives bitter with hard labor in mortar and bricks and all kinds of labor in the field, all their labors which they rigorously imposed on them." (Exodus 1:14.) God comes to Moses in that well-known story of the burning bush and makes His plan known. "And the Lord said, 'I have surely seen the affliction of My people who are in Egypt, and have given heed to their cry because of their taskmaster, for I am aware of their sufferings. So I have come down to deliver them from the power of the Egyptians, and to bring them up from that land to a good and spacious land, to a land flowing with milk and honey . . . Therefore, come now, and I will send you to Pharaoh, so that you may bring My people, the sons of Israel, out of Egypt." (Exodus 7, 8a, 11) The road to this 'promised land' was not easy, nor did it happen overnight. But God was the director, and Moses followed His direction. After forty years they realized the place of their home. Where would they have been without God and his direction? Where would they have been had they not prayed to him for deliverance? Where would they have been without his servant Moses leading them forward? We can only speculate.

I'm glad God answered our prayers with a place in Mocksville, Davie County. That did not happen overnight, and many times it seemed frustrating in the waiting and wondering. But God blessed us in His time. I am grateful for those persons here that have been obedient to God in leadership roles. In our churches, government, educational system, places of employment, and more for they have made my earthy 'promised land' a wonderful place to be. Have you asked God for direction in your life, as to where you shall live, or how you may serve? Have you taken all your cares and sufferings, worries and frustrations to Him and in faith believe He heard and will answer? He did it for the nation of Israel and Moses led them forward. He has done so for us too, and our leader is Jesus Christ. Under his direction, our 'promised land' is life eternal. "And the Lord said, I have surely seen the affliction of My people." And He sees your needs too. Just ask.

Arthur Bostick leads a donkey from the family's barn in the Davie Academy community. - Photos by James Barringer

Bostick: "They (donkeys) are more lovable than horses. You can do more with them."

The Bostick's granddaughter, Charity, learns how to handle donkeys with a young gennet.

The Bosticks breed - and show - mules and donkeys.

Down On The Farm

Couple Has Fun With Donkeys And Mules

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

Used to pastures full of horses and cows, passers by are liable to be in for a big surprise when they see a herd of donkeys running in the fields along Davie Academy Road.

Arthur and Eva Bostick raise mammoth donkeys at their farm there. To be classified a mammoth, a female (gennet) must be at least 54 inches tall. A male (jack) must reach at least 56 inches in height.

"We were raising mules, and I decided I wanted a jennet. That's what got us started," Eva said.

The Bosticks had been raising draft mules for several years, breeding a mammoth jack with Percheron draft horses. A Percheron weighs about 1,800 pounds. They also raised draft horses for sale.

Mules are sterile. The only way to produce one is by crossing a horse with a donkey.

The Bosticks got their first jennet about two years ago. According to Arthur, they now have the largest herd of donkeys he knows about on the east coast both in individual size and number.

"They are more lovable than horses. You can do more with them. They're just like a bunch of dogs," Eva said, as several jennets followed her around the pasture.

The Bosticks' granddaughter Charity, 7, has been working with the youngest gennet, two-month-old Caroline.

"She does real good with her," Arthur said. She has been leading her around with a rope, which is the first step in breaking a donkey. After that, they are trained for whatever they will be used for, such as pulling, riding or showing.

Caroline was a twin, but the other colt didn't make it. Three sets of twins have been born on the farm but the Bosticks haven't yet been able to save both colts from a set.

They are expecting another donkey colt on the farm soon. Eva said they have sold three jacks since they started breeding donkeys and have promised to sell two jennets and another jack as soon as they have them.

Most people are either interested in showing the donkeys or breeding them for mules or more donkeys.

The Bosticks have entered one of their jacks in several competitions. Three-year-old John Boy has brought home two blue ribbons.

Mules are also becoming popular as showing animals. Mules are more in demand now than ever, Arthur said.

"A mule is much smarter than a horse. A mule watches every step he makes. That's why you never see a horse go down in the Grand Canyon," Arthur said.

The Bosticks advertise their donkeys and mules through the American Percheron Association. Arthur has been vice president of the Percheron Association in North Carolina and now serves on the board of directors.

He said one of the biggest markets for the large mules they produce with their Percherons and mammoth donkeys are Amish farmers, who still use mules for work. Most of them don't own a lot of land and work their animals too hard to spend time breeding them, Arthur explained.

The Bosticks have one Percheron mare and are looking for another, so they can get back in the business of raising mules. Mules sell better in pairs, Arthur said.

A good team of three-year-old mules will sell for around $5,000.

Donkeys sell from about $700 to more than $2,000, depending on size and age. The longer you keep them, the more you can make, Eva said.

The Bosticks usually ask $600 for jack colts and $800 for jennet colts. At maturity, they could bring closer to $2,000.

The bigger they are, and the bigger their ears are the more they are worth, according to Eva.

To measure the ears, they should be held down flat on the head. "A 30-36 inch ear span is what people are looking for," Eva said.

People often visit the Bosticks to see their donkeys. A few people have small burro donkeys, but mammoths are rare in this part of the country.

Arthur said to get mammoths, a breeder must keep breeding up – large donkeys with larger donkeys.

"A lot of people around here prefer smaller mules for wagon trains," he said.

The Bosticks have been breeding John Boy as a stud jack to outside horses for people who are looking for show mules or riding mules. Breeding with a smaller mare produces a smaller mule.

"I have bred him about 30 times this year," Arthur said.

Unfortunately, John Boy's popularity for breeding has cut down on his show competition. "It's hard to get him to stand still," Arthur said.

The Bosticks just joined the Draft Horse and Mule Association. In addition, Arthur enjoys collecting old wagons and other horse-drawn farm equipment.

He is superintendent for a brickmason company and spends a lot of time on the road every day. Arthur is also an auctioneer. Eva helps work at the auctions and tends to the animals while Arthur is at work.

The Bosticks lived in Davidson County for more than 20 years before moving to Davie County.

"We love it here," Eva said. "It's real quiet."

The only intrusion in the peaceful solitude they've found is the occasional sound of braying from the barn.

Death

Jury Takes Little Time Sentencing Convicted Murderer To Death Row

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

A Davie County jury returned a recommendation for the death penalty Monday in the trial of a man convicted of first degree murder.

William Christopher Gregory, 20, was found guilty of first degree murder in the death of his ex-girlfriend, Rolanda Evette Howell Aug. 10, 1992.

Gregory was also found guilty of breaking into her parents' home and shooting her brother, Trevor Olanda "Fonzie" Howell, in the head with the same gun.

The sentencing phase of the trial began last Thursday, after the jury returned its guilty verdict.

Prosecutor Eugene Morris said the state would rely on the evidence presented in the guilt phase as grounds for seeking the death penalty.

He argued that the injury to Fonzie Howell was an aggravating factor, warranting the death penalty.

Witnesses Praise Gregory

Defense attorneys David Minor and Sam Winthrop called numerous witnesses to prove the 23 mitigating factors they asked the jury to consider.

Dr. James Gross, a psychiatrist at Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh, said he had interviewed Gregory six times beginning 10 days after the shootings.

Among his findings were that Gregory was chronically unhappy, had poor insight and ego strength, had a high risk for suicide, was emotionally detached and was obsessive about his deceased girlfriend.

He said Gregory had said, "Most of the time I wish I was dead."

Morton Again At The Center Of Controversy

Former Mayor's Wife Says Cooleemee's New Mayor Shoved Her

Morton

Cooleemee Mayor Jackie Morton quarrelled with and knocked down the wife of former mayor Bill Gales Tuesday inside the town hall.

Mrs. Libby Gales of Ruffin Street suffered a cut on the arm and bruises.

"There was an accident this morning," Morton said when contacted about the incident, refusing to discuss it further.

Bill Gales, Cooleemee's first mayor, said he had taken his wife for a medical examination after the incident.

"Right now, I have no comment," he said.

No criminal charge had been filed Tuesday evening by Davie County magistrates.

Mrs. Gales filed a complaint with the town's police department.

"There was a complaint filed on an assault," said Police Chief Matt Dillon. Dillon said he was

Fire Dept. Payment Dispute Leaves Some In No District

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

A dispute between Courtney Fire Department and Davie County officials has left about 100 residents in northwestern Davie in fire protection "no man's land."

And it will cost them more when it comes time to buy homeowner's insurance.

The dispute was over funding, and could have been settled, according to Davie County Manager Ken Windley.

Windley said he received a letter last spring from the Courtney Fire Department saying it would no longer cover areas in Davie County.

After meeting with Fire Chief Johnny Williard and Davie Fire Marshal George Frye, Windley said he learned Courtney wanted more money. Courtney receives $500 from Davie, and answers an estimated average of three calls a year in Davie, Windley said.

Windley said he never heard from Courtney until two days before Davie commissioners adopted its budget. Courtney was asking for 7 cents per $100 property valuation, the same as Yadkin's fire tax rate.

"It was a substantial increase," Windley said. "I would have been glad to have talked with them. With any of the out-of-county districts, we would be able to work out an agreement."

Davie County has a 4-cent fire tax rate, but it is distributed evenly among the departments and not based on property tax evaluations in a certain district.

Williard did not return a telephone call to discuss the subject.

Windley said that William R. Davie could pick up about half of the homeowners that were in Courtney's district.

Faye Holding of the N.C. Rate Bureau said those residents not included in a fire district would pay more for homeowners insurance. Based on a structure valued at $60,000, yearly rates would go from $358 to $440 for masonry structures and $413 to $523 for frame structures.

Although not officially in a fire district, residents in the affected area will still receive fire protection, said Frye, the fire marshal. Departments will respond to emergency calls.

Courtney isn't the only department that may be upset with what Davie pays for fire service. Windley said he has heard "rumblings" from Lone Hickory Fire Department, but it still covers a small area in the extreme northwest corner of Davie bordering Iredell and Yadkin counties.

Lone Hickory receives $500 from Davie.

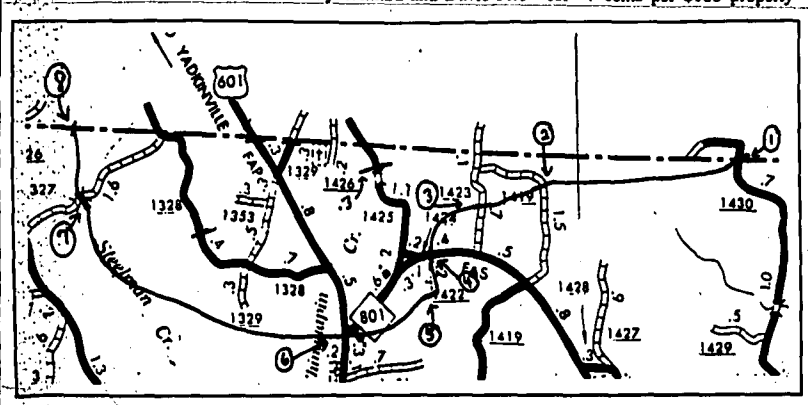

Two other out-of-county departments receive portions of Davie's fire tax money.

Scotch-Irish Fire Department in Rowan County receives $800 to cover mostly undeveloped areas along Mr. Henry and Ratledge roads.

And Clemmons receives $20,000 of Davie's fire tax money to cover most of Bermuda Run and a portion of Hillsdale.

Windley said he based the amounts given to the departments

In grade 5, Davie over a point higher in reading, over two points higher in math.

In grade 6, Davie was almost two points higher in reading, over two points higher in math.

In grade 7, Davie was just over a point higher in math, and almost three points higher in math.

In grade 8, Davie was just over a point higher in math and reading.

Life At Standstill: Baseball Strike Has Us In Withdrawal

The daily newspaper stayed in the driveway this morning for hours. I had little reason to wander out in my usual early morning stupor to pick it up.

No baseball. No sports.

First thing in the morning, I always totter out to the edge of the street for the newspaper as the coffee brews in the kitchen. With a fresh cup of coffee, I settle down in the chair to find out who won the game. And wake up.

This week there are no games.

There's nothing on television at night. ESPN doesn't have its nightly game. There's no Chicago Cubs game on the Chicago cable station. No Atlanta Braves on TBS. Nothing on SportsSouth.

The sports channels have been reduced to replaying games from the past. They have shown Birmingham Barons games even when Michael Jordan didn't play. They have rebroadcast boxing matches that are 10 years old.

Libraries across the nation must be doing a brisk business. Men are crowding in to check out books.

The strike is affecting everyone.

Beer sales will fall.

Domestic violence will increase.

Yards will be mowed too often and the grass will die.

Pity the sports editor of the major daily newspaper. Which non-story will be the lead today? There is nothing. Football hasn't started yet. Pro basketball is still in the middle of its four-month break. They're not even playing soccer.

Last week we could debate the merits of the strike. We could ponder the salary cap issue.

This week ... Life is hard. Withdrawal symptoms are apparent all around. I don't pity the baseball owners. I don't sympathize with the baseball players. I just want my box scores in the newspaper.

My coffee doesn't taste the same.

President Clinton Blames All But His Own Party

If we didn't have politicians, we would have to create them just for entertainment.

President Clinton was in rare form last week after suffering the embarrassing defeat of his $33 billion crime bill in Congress. If anything is popular, fighting crime is. Yet, the bill failed.

He immediately attacked Republicans and the National Rifle Association for defeating the bill. What he seems to forget is that the Democrats have controlled Congress for all his lifetime. It was his own party that left him.

The crime bill would build prisons and hire policemen. But it was larded with high-dollar plans to pay people to play basketball instead of committing crimes.

If President Clinton had designated just $1 billion in the crime bill for baseball — to help finance the poverty-striken major league owners or to bankroll the striking players — Congress might have approved the bill.

Clinton backed the wrong sport.

It's Time To Get Tough On Criminals

To the editor:

An unbelievable response to Davie's drug problem; a drug dealer should have gotten 155 years got five years probation. No letters to the Enterprise. Doesn't anyone care? From July 14 to Aug. 4, 106 people went to District Court in Davie County; 96 of them were dismissed, reduced or suspended with probation. It's nice to know that Davie County is not contributing to prison overcrowding.

Is it too much for Davie County voters and taxpayers to ask that we have a sheriff who can train officers to bring hard evidence that will stand up in court, a district attorney who will prosecute cases aggressively and ask for maximum sentences, and judges who will give lawbreakers jail time?

Davie County is fast getting to be known as the place to be if you want to shoot up a neighborhood, deal drugs, prostitute, beat your wife or just ignore the law. All you have to fear is suspended sentence, reduced charges or dismissed all together.

If there are enough people who think as I do, that we can do better, maybe in November we can get a county commission that can do better than build the China Wall at Davie High School, a sheriff who can get evidence to the DA, and a DA who can get a conviction and a judge who wants to get criminals off the streets and our of our neighborhoods and in jail where they belong.

114th Masonic Picnic Was A Great Success

To the editor:

The 114th annual Masonic Picnic on Thursday, Aug. 11, was enjoyed by many and was another successful year. On behalf of the Basket Committee and all of the Masons of Davie County, our sincere thanks to everyone who helped in any way.

Proceeds from the dinner tickets sold, plus donations from those who were not able to prepare a basket, have already totaled over $2,500, and other donations have been promised. We know those of you who did participate are pleased that you had a part in making this event another memorable one for the children at Oxford Orphanage.

More children from Oxford Orphanage attended the picni this year and all had a great time. Many comments were made by them over the abundance and quality of food. Attendance was good form people of all areas, and fun and fellowship were enjoyed by all as the delicious food was consumed.

Thanks again to every person who helped to make the 114th annual Masonic Picnic a greatsuccess. We'll be looking forward to seeing you next year at the 115th.

Hickory Street Group Responds To CHA Letter

To the editor:

On July 18, the Hickory Street Citizens Group spoke to the Cooleemee Town Board concerning the old school on Hickory Street, and injustices that exist in the Hickory Street area.

On July 22, the Cooleemee Historical Association wrote a letter to one of our members, who is a member of CHA. This letter was also sent to other members explaining what the Hickory Street citizens group meant when we spoke to the town board. We do not need the CHA to clarify anything for us, because what we said was what we meant. There was no hidden message, our only purpose was to bring attention to the areas where we felt the town board was neglecting.

At the same time, the CHA outlines a plan to establish a revolving fund to help sell houses in the downtown area of Cooleemee as they become available. We would like to ad our support by passing along this information to groups that promote home ownership for minority citizens. Like the CHA, we have an interest in reaching a racial balance in this once all-white town.

To clarify the statement made by CHA concerning the gathering of material for exhibition, history needs no interpretation. An award-winning historical association should be well aware that accomplishments in the past cannot be erased. Whites and blacks together contributed to the founding and building of the Cooleemee Mill Town. We are very proud of these, our black forefathers, who labored many years, even when not always fairly compensated.

With the determination of a member of The Hickory Street Citizens Group, and a lot of communication with the black community - a small portion of our history has been exhibited at the Zachary House.

Our aim is to bring hope and opportunity to our youth of Cooleemee, and a greater understanding of themselves and the world.

We encourage the cooperation of all concerned citizens of Cooleemee and Davie County. With strong determination and direct action, we will succeed.

Bessie Wilson, Genelle Watkins

You know that transporter room aboard the Starship Enterprise? I need one of those.

I haven't heard of any one working to develop this, but if the government is paying some bureaucrat to spend all day pouring different brands of catsup out onto paper plates to see which is really "thicker", then surely we've got someone working out the particulars of instantaneous relocation. It answers so many needs. Highways and the unending revamping and improving they require would be a thing of the past. You wouldn't have to worry about keeping that one section of the garage clear in order to park your car. Since you won't need a car, you can have the whole thing just for storing your collection of valuable junk. No car means no gasoline, no oil changes, no tire rotations or inspections stickers. It means no car payments or insurance premiums. On the down side it means no drive-thru at McDonalds or Taco Bell, but without that insurance bill to pay, I could move up to a sit-down restaurant with table-side service.

I know that there will be a lot of people totally against this idea since it would eliminate quite a few jobs. We wouldn't need the DOT, highway patrolmen, airline pilots, toll booth operators, auto mechanics or used car salesmen. Still, if it came down to a serious vote, I believe that the powerful organization known as Carpoolers International, made up of mothers and fathers, would carry the day. Without trips to school, the doctor, baseball practice, dance rehearsal, cheerleading practice, piano lessons, soccer games and the mall, there would be more time for important things. I hear people say that Shakespeare was the greatest writer who ever lived and as we all know, he's been gone quite awhile. So why hasn't there been another Shakespeare? Because he or she's been too busy transporting children from the othodontist to Girl Scouts, and home in time for swim team practice. We might be buying tickets for more than just the "Nutcracker" at Christmas if today's Tchaikovsky wasn't always stuck in traffic on Lewisville-Clemmons Road several hours a day traveling back and forth between the high school, the YMCA and Judy Baylin's Dance Studio. Maybe Leo de Vinci Smith doesn't have time to paint because he's got two children who play soccer and they practice in different places at the same time. Would Eleanor Roosevelt, Florence Nightengale and Clara Barton have been able to give of themselves so unselfishly if they'd had to carpool for Brownies and school field trips? Would Madam Curie have been able to discover radium or polonium from behind the wheel of her mini-van during five o'clock traffic? I think not.

If scientists can master that particle relocation problem, the world's in for a major leap forward. With more time available the average American will finally have time to master foreign languages, learn to play musical instruments, paint, sculpt, cook, discover new galaxies, study exotic horticulture, translate hieroglyphics and perhaps even find time to replace that empty toilet paper roll.

Noise Insulted Audience, Speaker at Masonic, DEU Picnic

To the editor:

Saturday, Aug. 13, Davie County citizens attending the 110th annual Masonic and DEU Picnic at Clement Grove were outrageously insulted. After enjoying the voices and music of the visiting choirs, the keynote speaker, William T. Woodard, was introduced. He is president of Statesville NAACP. Woodard began speaking about 4:10 p.m.

At 4:15 p.m., a generator motor, parked at the rear of the arbor, was turned on. The noise was loud and disturbing to the listening audience and the speaker. While several men were attempting to find a responsible person to have it turned off, I noticed one of the riding machines in motion with four passengers. There were about 75 people listening to the speaker.

Julius Suiter, master of ceremonies, made a public apology to the speaker.

Embarrassed For Town Residents

To the editor:

This letter is in replay to Mr. Bert King's letter in the Aug. 11 edition of the Enterprise. While I certainly commend Mr. King on his impressive vocabulary (or use of Webster's Dictionary), I will keep my comments in simpler terms.

Although I do not live in Cooleemee (I live approximately two miles away) and have only gained information from Cooleemee citizens, newspapers and television, I felt compelled to write a reply to Mr. King's scathing remarks that referred to Mayor Jackie Morton and those that defend Chief Matt Dillon.

I served three years as a commissioners officer in the U.S. Army's Military Police Corps, during which time I served as the assistant police chief for an installation which had a combined military and civilian population of approximately 12,500. I have had experience in and insight as to how police officials should interact with the community and with those who represent the community.

It was alleged Chief Dillon refused to furnish background check information on police officers to the town commissioners when asked to do so by Mayor Morton. Chief Dillon should not have had the choice. He works for an provides services to the town, and it is the responsibility of the mayor and town commissioners to ensure that the law enforcement officers they hire have satisfactory backgrounds before they are hired.

It has also been alleged that Chief Dillon and some of his officers have used town property, to include vehicles and business telephone lines, to conduct personal business, while on duty. This is an infraction of the most basic rules of serving as a public employee, from the town level all the way up to the federal level. Every mile driven and every toll call made from a town government phone line costs the taxpayers of Cooleemee money. Which is worse, taking a burglar alarm from a door or taking money from the taxpayers by misappropriating town property through unauthorized vehicle and telephone use? There is no difference. Mayor Morton was arrested for her actions. Therefore, if these officers have committed the actions that have been alleged against them, they should also be disciplined in an appropriate manner.

Mayor Morton is not without faults. She has made several poor judgment calls. The fact remains that she was chosen by the citizens of Cooleemee through the democratic process to represent them. Chief Dillon ought to be professional enough to respect her position as mayor. No one says that he has to respect her as a person, but he is compelled to respect her position, due to the fact she is representing the interests of the community. If he feels that he cannot do this, and be part of a team, then he should vacate his position as the chief of police.

Mr. King accused Mayor Morton as being bumfuzzled at a question. She asked Chief Dillon if he used the police car to conduct personal business to which he replied, "To what specifically are you referring?" You said the mayor was either unable or unwilling to answer the chief's question. It is clear, Mr. King, that the chief was unwilling to answer the mayor's question honestly and directly. How do you come to the conclusion that this question was immaterial and irrelevant? I vehemently disagree. Chief Dillon's reluctance to answer the question would lead one to conclude that Chief Dillon had indeed used the police car to conduct personal business and was trying to sidestep or cloud the issue by directing the question back to the mayor. Mr. King, police officers need to be icons of integrity, honesty, and professionalism, and should possess characters above reproach. If Chief Dillon and his subordinates have committed indiscretions, they should exercise some moral courage and admit their mistakes to the town commissioners and to Mayor Morton. They should then be reprimanded in writing and put on administrative probation for 180 days. If any further infraction should occur, they should be relieved of their duties as police chief and officers. Law enforcement officers enforce laws but are not above the law themselves. Mr. King, I'm sure that you are aware that a democratic government is made up of a series of checks and balances so that an individual or individual section of government does not gain too much power. It would seem that Chief Dillon does not want to be checked or balanced by the leaders of the community which he serves.

It has also been written that Mayor Morton is against the police department. It seems to me that she is no so much against the department itself, as she is opposed to the way it is being run now and has been run in the past. It appears, Mr. King, that you and your cohorts that constantly criticize the mayor and would prefer a good old boy who looks the other way while misappropriation of town property occurs, as opposed to a mayor (who in this case happens to be a woman) who demands a cost effective police department that has the public's interest and protection as its primary mission.

I am embarrassed for the honest citizens of this town that have to endure such negative publicity. Mr. King, if you do not like the way the Mayor Morton and the other town commissioners handle the administration of the town of Cooleemee, and can't stand the heat, then you should get out of the kitchen. And take your coffee with you.

Give 'em hell, Jackie.

Back to the Bible

An Appeals Court has ruled it unconstitutional for Gideon International to hand out Bibles in public schools in Indianapolis. Such indicates the direction that our society is going. It is all right to hand out condoms to school students. It is all right to graphically instruct high school students on how to have safe sex. It is all right to provide free abortion counseling to children as young as 14 without parental consent - yet unconstitutional to give student a Bible. Do our children need to be protected from the dangerous doctrines of the Bible such as "love thy neighbor as thyself" (Mark 12:31), and "let us do good to all men" (Galatians 10:6). Evidently some governing officials feel that the Bible endangers society. If the Bible were to gain influence in our society then it would be disastrous - Parents and teachers would be respected by children, policemen would no longer be needed to roam the halls of our schools, hatred and bigotry would cease, teenage pregnancy would decline, and on and on we would go.

Embarrassed For Town Residents

To the editor:

This letter is in replay to Mr. Bert King's letter in the Aug. 11 edition of the Enterprise. While I certainly commend Mr. King on his impressive vocabulary (or use of Webster's Dictionary), I will keep my comments in simpler terms.

Although I do not live in Cooleemee (I live approximately two miles away) and have only gained information from Cooleemee citizens, newspapers and television, I felt compelled to write a reply to Mr. King's scathing remarks that referred to Mayor Jackie Morton and those that defend Chief Matt Dillon.

I served three years as a commissioners officer in the U.S. Army's Military Police Corps, during which time I served as the assistant police chief for an installation which had a combined military and civilian population of approximately 12,500. I have had experience in and insight as to how police officials should interact with the community and with those who represent the community.

It was alleged Chief Dillon refused to furnish background check information on police officers to the town commissioners when asked to do so by Mayor Morton. Chief Dillon should not have had the choice. He works for an provides services to the town, and it is the responsibility of the mayor and town commissioners to ensure that the law enforcement officers they hire have satisfactory backgrounds before they are hired.

It has also been alleged that Chief Dillon and some of his officers have used town property, to include vehicles and business telephone lines, to conduct personal business, while on duty. This is an infraction of the most basic rules of serving as a public employee, from the town level all the way up to the federal level. Every mile driven and every toll call made from a town government phone line costs the taxpayers of Cooleemee money. Which is worse, taking a burglar alarm from a door or taking money from the taxpayers by misappropriating town property through unauthorized vehicle and telephone use? There is no difference. Mayor Morton was arrested for her actions. Therefore, if these officers have committed the actions that have been alleged against them, they should also be disciplined in an appropriate manner.

Mayor Morton is not without faults. She has made several poor judgment calls. The fact remains that she was chosen by the citizens of Cooleemee through the democratic process to represent them. Chief Dillon ought to be professional enough to respect her position as mayor. No one says that he has to respect her as a person, but he is compelled to respect her position, due to the fact she is representing the interests of the community. If he feels that he cannot do this, and be part of a team, then he should vacate his position as the chief of police.

Mr. King accused Mayor Morton as being bumfuzzled at a question. She asked Chief Dillon if he used the police car to conduct personal business to which he replied, "To what specifically are you referring?" You said the mayor was either unable or unwilling to answer the chief's question. It is clear, Mr. King, that the chief was unwilling to answer the mayor's question honestly and directly. How do you come to the conclusion that this question was immaterial and irrelevant? I vehemently disagree. Chief Dillon's reluctance to answer the question would lead one to conclude that Chief Dillon had indeed used the police car to conduct personal business and was trying to sidestep or cloud the issue by directing the question back to the mayor. Mr. King, police officers need to be icons of integrity, honesty, and professionalism, and should possess characters above reproach. If Chief Dillon and his subordinates have committed indiscretions, they should exercise some moral courage and admit their mistakes to the town commissioners and to Mayor Morton. They should then be reprimanded in writing and put on administrative probation for 180 days. If any further infraction should occur, they should be relieved of their duties as police chief and officers. Law enforcement officers enforce laws but are not above the law themselves. Mr. King, I'm sure that you are aware that a democratic government is made up of a series of checks and balances so that an individual or individual section of government does not gain too much power. It would seem that Chief Dillon does not want to be checked or balanced by the leaders of the community which he serves.

It has also been written that Mayor Morton is against the police department. It seems to me that she is no so much against the department itself, as she is opposed to the way it is being run now and has been run in the past. It appears, Mr. King, that you and your cohorts that constantly criticize the mayor and would prefer a good old boy who looks the other way while misappropriation of town property occurs, as opposed to a mayor (who in this case happens to be a woman) who demands a cost effective police department that has the public's interest and protection as its primary mission.

I am embarrassed for the honest citizens of this town that have to endure such negative publicity. Mr. King, if you do not like the way the Mayor Morton and the other town commissioners handle the administration of the town of Cooleemee, and can't stand the heat, then you should get out of the kitchen. And take your coffee with you.

Give 'em hell, Jackie.

Back to the Bible

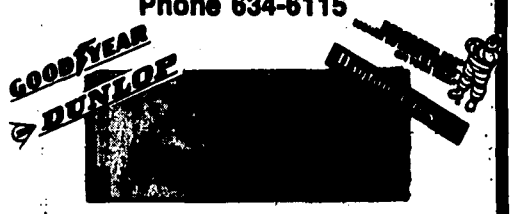

An Appeals Court has ruled it unconstitutional for Gideon International to hand out Bibles in public schools in Indianapolis. Such indicates the direction that our society is going. It is all right to hand out condoms to school students. It is all right to graphically instruct high school students on how to have safe sex. It is all right to provide free abortion counseling to children as young as 14 without parental consent - yet unconstitutional to give student a Bible. Do our children need to be protected from the dangerous doctrines of the Bible such as "love thy neighbor as thyself" (Mark 12:31), and "let us do good to all men" (Galatians 10:6). Evidently some governing officials feel that the Bible endangers society. If the Bible were to gain influence in our society then it would be disastrous - Parents and teachers would be respected by children, policemen would no longer be needed to roam the halls of our schools, hatred and bigotry would cease, teenage pregnancy would decline, and on and on we would go.

Gregory Found Guilty Of First Degree Murder

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

Chris Gregory appeared withdrawn as his attorneys presented arguments on his behalf last Wednesday, the second anniversary of his ex-girlfriend's murder.

After a week of jury selection, two days of testimony from prosecution witnesses and one day for the defense to present its case, it took a jury less than an hour to return a verdict of guilty to first degree murder and two other charges Gregory faced.

Gregory was accused of breaking into the home of his ex-girlfriend's parents, taking her father's gun and shooting her while she lay in bed with their 18 month old son.

Evette Howell died almost instantly. Her brother, Trevor Olanda "Fonzie" Howell, was also shot that day and is still undergoing rehabilitation.

Psychologist Testifies For Defense

Dr. Bert Bennett, a psychologist, said he conducted an evaluation of Gregory while he was in the Davie County Jail, beginning Nov. 11, 1992.

Gregory appeared to be depressed and seemed almost as if he wanted to be punished, Bennett said.

According to Bennett, Gregory said he and Evette had been together since he was 14 and she was 13. They had been viewed in the community as "a really tight couple" until Evette became pregnant.

Gregory told Bennett Evette's family had sort of rejected him then. Later she started pushing him away, saying she wanted to see other people.

Bennett said Gregory became increasingly obsessed with Evette.

"He could not get the thought of her out of his mind," Bennett said.

It appeared she made a clear message that she didn't want to be with him, but Gregory believed, if he could get her alone to talk to her, she would come back to him. That became almost a singular focus for him, Bennett said.

Gregory said he thought about killing himself but decided not to in the hope that they might get back together.

Gregory told him the night before the murder, Evette said she didn't want Gregory in her life anymore. She was going somewhere with another man, and they were going to take the child.

When he woke up Aug. 10, 1992, his plan was to kidnap Evette and take her somewhere to talk, Bennett said.

When he got inside the Howell home, he remembered there was a gun in her parents' closet. He said he got the gun, fearing Fonzie might try to use it against him if he awoke.

He told his cousin, Gabe Wilson, who was with him, to hold Fonzie's door while he got Evette. But Fonzie woke up. Gregory gave the gun to Wilson. There was a struggle, and the gun went off, hitting Fonzie in the head, Bennett said, relating the story as Gregory had told him.

Gregory took the gun and went to Evette's room. She had pulled the covers over her head and was screaming. He closed his eyes and fired the gun once. Evette's screaming stopped. He and Wilson ran from the house, Gregory told Bennett.

Bennett listed symptoms of depression, including insomnia, low self-esteem, poor concentration or decision making and hopelessness, which Gregory appeared to be suffering.

He said an obsession is an urge that a person feels he must do. He gave an example of a person with a hand washing obsession. If that person cannot wash his hands, he might have a panic attack, Bennett said.

Even though Gregory had been told by Evette and her family that she did not want to be with him, he could not let go, Bennett said.

In addition to his interviews with Gregory, he administered a personality test.

Bennett said three things stood out from the test. Gregory was depressed. He is a worrier with a tendency to obsess, and he has a tendency to be impulsive – to do things without thinking clearly. These things affected his ability to reason.

Bennett said Gregory was also under a lot of stress. Losing Evette was as traumatic as a divorce or marital separation might be for the average person, but his personality left him unable to deal with it like others would. He didn't feel he could go on without her.

"Based on all the information I came away with, I believe he did not have an intent to kill her," Bennett said.

As the gun went off, hitting Fonzie, the situation went out of control. Gregory lost what little bit of rationality he had, Bennett said.

Prosecutor Eugene Morris attempted to destroy the credibility of the witness, pointing out that Bennett had never testified in a murder case before and was basing his opinion on five and a half hours total time with Gregory.

Morris asked Bennett if it would not be normal for anyone who had spent three months in jail to be depressed.

Bennett said it would be normal, but he believed Gregory had become less depressed in jail.

Morris said Gregory was rational enough to remember the gun in the closet, to tell Wilson to guard Fonzie's room, to bring duct tape to keep Evette from screaming and not to harm his son, who was on the bed with Evette.

Morris said Bennett had not stated once in his written report that he did not believe Gregory had formed a specific intent to kill. He brought up the fact that Bennett was being paid to testify.

Bennett was the only witness for the defense in the first phase of the trial.

Possible Charges Set

Before the charge conference began, defense attorney Sam Winthrop, made a motion to dismiss all charges against Gregory. The motion was denied.

Attorneys for the prosecution and the defense agreed that second degree murder could be considered as a possible charge.

In Fonzie's shooting, the jury could find Gregory guilty of either assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury with intent to kill or assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury.

Because questions had been raised about whether it was Gregory or Wilson who shot Fonzie, Morris asked the judge to instruct the jury about the law for aiding and abetting.

Gregory was also charged with breaking and entering. No lesser charge was considered for that offense.

Defense Says Did Not Intend To Kill

"You've heard that for four years the one thing that was constant in [Gregory's] life was his love for Evette, and I guess he believed she would always be there for him," Winthrop said, beginning his closing argument to the jury.

Gregory was following Evette, trying to get her to talk to him because he wanted to save what he had. He did not want to kill her.

Gregory could not deal with rejection. His whole life was built on the fact that they were the perfect couple. He couldn't stop the cycle that was going in his mind. The only thing he could think was he had to get her back, but everything he did made it worse, Winthrop said.

"Chris Gregory did not have the specific intent to kill," Winthrop said. "I submit the facts bear that out. He went there to talk to her."

Winthrop argued that Gregory was so focused on getting Evette back that everything else went by the wayside.

Others would grieve and move on, but Gregory couldn't move on, he said.

"When he shut his eyes and pulled the trigger, he wasn't thinking. It was an impulse," Winthrop said.

He said it was not justification for what Gregory had done but that he was under passion at the time of the murder – not carrying out a premeditated plan.

He told the jury they could consider that the defendant lacked the mental capacity to formulate the specific intent to kill Evette.

A jury has to hold the state to its burden. Bennett's explanation is the only one that makes sense, he said.

"[Gregory] is entitled to a reasonable doubt," he said.

Prosecutor Gives Closing Statement

Morris began his argument to the jury by showing them pictures of Evette's body, pointing out that it was the second anniversary of her death.

"It doesn't get any worse than this in this courtroom or any courtroom," Morris said.

Attacking the defense argument, Morris said Bennett didn't have everything he had testified to in his written report. He called him a "hired gun" paid by the defendant.

Morris said it's not always possible to get physical evidence, but he called SBI experts to prove they had tried.

The jury would have to ignore a confession made by Gregory to find him not guilty of first degree murder, Morris said.

He had a shotgun in his car, tape and rope or wire to strangle her, said he knew the gun was at the Howell home and had been heard saying he would kill Evette if her ever caught her dating someone else, Morris told the jury.

He said the defense had tried to destroy the credibility of Gabe Wilson as a witness because the state had given him a deal in exchange for his testimony.

"Gabe told what Gabe told before he got that deal," Morris said.

He asked jurors to compare the reasoning ability of a 14-year-old to that of an 18-year-old. Wilson told officers where it happened, showed them the house and told them about a shotgun, shells and a screwdriver he had thrown out of Gregory's car.

Gregory didn't mention the shotgun going off in the car, as Wilson did. Wilson should be treated differently, Morris said.

Morris told the jury they could question Wilson's testimony but reminded them to look at all the times he had told the truth.

Wilson had testified to seeing Gregory rough up Evette on prior occasions.

"As if taking her life two years ago today wasn't enough, the last week of her life on this earth she was stalked," Morris said.

"You don't get found not guilty of first degree murder because you were obsessed with something," he said.

In his statement to Detective Allen Whitaker of the Davie County Sheriff's Department, Gregory admitted to planning the murder that morning.

"Don't let him get away with this in this county," Morris said. "You are the voice and conscience of this community."

"Two years later, make Evette's life worth something," he said.

Convicted Murderer Sentenced To Death By Davie County Jury

He said he believed Gregory was experiencing depression at the time of the murder that could have impaired his judgment.

Gregory's stepfather, Jamie Grant, said he would trust Gregory with anything and loved him as a son.

He said Gregory was never a financial burden and often volunteered to help with work around the house.

Grant said he took the Rev. Daniel Brown with him to visit Gregory at the jail on the day of the shootings. He said Gregory was crying and shaking.

Brown said he talked to Gregory that day about accepting Christ, and he did.

"It was the only thing I knew to say," Brown said.

Numerous teachers, coaches, friends and relatives took the stand that day to tell what a good person Gregory had been apart from the crime for which he was convicted. His school, work, criminal and prison records were passed among the jury for consideration.

Gregory's Mother Takes Stand

On Aug. 12, Gregory's mother, Shirley Grant, took the stand, trying to save her son's life.

She said his father had gone to prison when Gregory was 1 year old and committed suicide when he was 9.

For several years, it was just the two of them. She said her son did his chores and accepted responsibilities around the house.

As a teen-ager, Gregory had held several jobs and paid support to Evette for their son, Christian Xavier, Grant said.

She said he cared for his grandfather, Bill Wilson, running errands for him, cooking, cleaning, mowing and even helping him shave.

Childhood pictures and photos of his graduation were passed among the jurors as well as some athletic awards he had received.

Since he has been in jail, she said she has had contact with him almost every day, calling when he is in Davie County and writing when he is elsewhere plus visiting as often as possible.

She said he wrote letters to his sisters and drew them pictures two or three times a week.

Gregory cried as his half-sisters, Latoya, 5, and Andrea, 3, ran to hug him, one of the only times he displayed emotion throughout the trial.

The defense rested after the testimony from Gregory's mother.

Judge Marvin K. Gray met with attorneys in his chambers for a conference on sentencing.

After lunch he told jurors it would take some time to copy all the materials they would need and to organize paperwork.

He said their deliberation would begin after closing arguments from the attorneys on Aug. 15.

Morris Calls For Death Penalty

The state is asking for one punishment and one punishment only – that Gregory be sentenced to death, Morris said.

He said the state had worked to give the jury all the facts and circumstances needed. He said their decision should not be based on sympathy for Evette or Gregory but on facts.

"They're going to ask you to spare his life," Morris said.

"He had no mercy for Evette Howell on Aug. 10, 1992, as she screamed under her covers. He's going to ask you to do something that he wouldn't do for someone he said he loved," Morris said.

He said the aggravating factor presented by the state outweighed all mitigating factors the defense could offer.

"But for the grace of God, where would Fonzie be?"

Gregory almost committed two murders that day, he said.

Attorneys Plea For Gregory's Life

The defense had shown facts that would justify saving Gregory's life, Minor said.

He said he hoped the jury would consider each mitigating factor presented and weigh them against the state's one aggravating factor.

Gregory did not have the maturity to overcome the great internal conflict he was experiencing.

He reminded the jury that Gregory had been so depressed after the murder that he had to be medicated.

Minor said Gregory was planning to go to college. He was aimed in good directions – not someone about to commit violence.

He asked the jurors to look into their hearts to find what was right, offering several readings from the Bible.

"By sentencing him to life imprisonment, you are not cutting him a break," Minor said.

He asked the jury to give Gregory a chance to grow up and become a man, sentenced to a lifetime of knowing he murdered the mother of his son and having to look into his son's eyes.

He said Gregory's life had been like a book with the first chapter, growing up without a father; the second chapter, attending school; the third chapter, Evette and their tragic breakup. The final chapter was left for the jury to write.

Gregory is a living, breathing human being – not just a defendant, Minor said.

"If you have any mercy at all, spare his life."

He said he was not asking the jury to excuse what Gregory had done but to spare his life.

Winthrop said Morris was arguing that a few minutes of Gregory's life outweighed everything else he had done in a lifetime. He didn't want to look at whole man, just five minutes in the Howell house.

"One hour of one day of one man's life, a terrible hour," said Winthrop, "an hour we wish we could take back."

Winthrop said Gregory had clearly done bad, but, when the jury looked at his life, they would see he had done good.

"The state has not proven enough to take his life," Winthrop argued.

He said the defense attorneys were just asking for a chance for Gregory to live. It would not be the kind of life he would have had.

"He is now relegated to having to ask for his life," Winthrop said.

Judge Lists Mitigating Factors

Before the jury was asked to begin its deliberation, Judge Marvin K. Gray instructed them about what was involved and went over each of the 23 mitigating factors presented by the defense one at a time.

Those factors were that Gregory was suffering from depression, obsession and impulsivity at the time the crime was committed. He was only 18 and was unable to appreciate the criminality of his conduct. He had also turned himself in.

Other mitigating factors presented were that he was a good son, brother, friend and student. He had a loving relationship with family members and had cared for his grandfather.

He was a high school graduate involved in extracurricular activities while in school. He was a conscientious, hard-working employee.

The fact that his father had been in prison and committed suicide was offered for consideration.

He had not been a financial burden to his family. He voluntarily supported his child to some degree. He had no prior record of violence. He offered no resistance to arresting officers, gave a statement and has a model prison record.

The defense attorneys asked that a catchall be added for any other circumstances that might apply.

Sentenced In Other Cases

After the jury had been polled individually about their recommendation for the death penalty, Judge Gray said it was time for sentencing for the assault and breaking and entering charges.

Morris asked for the maximum sentence, saying Gregory mercilessly left Fonzie bleeding in the house, locking the door behind him.

Winthrop said the defense would rely on the same mitigating factors that appeared in the murder case.

Gray said the aggravating factor of mercilessly leaving the victim outweighed the mitigating factors. He also had to consider a prior conviction of misdemeanor larceny, he said.

The judge sentenced Gregory to 20 years in prison for the assault on Fonzie and three years for breaking into the Howell home.

In the first degree murder case, Gray said the jury had unanimously recommended the punishment of death.

He said Davie Sheriff Bill Wooten should deliver Gregory to the warden of Central Prison in Raleigh, who would be responsible for seeing that the penalty was carried out.

"May God have mercy on his soul," Gray said. "The work that I do is not always pleasant."

Court was adjourned at 4:25 p.m. Monday after Gray thanked the jurors and Davie County Sheriff's Department for their service throughout the trial.

He commended the attorneys, saying both sides presented good, well-prepared cases.

Defense Will Appeal Decision

Winthrop said the defense would like to give notice of appeal.

He said he and Minor would have written notes of appeal filed within a week.

Eugene Morris would make no comment about the case.

Howell Family Relieved Trial Over; Survived By Prayer

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

Surrounded by family and friends at their home Monday evening, Olanda and Marsha Howell celebrated the 18th birthday of their son, Trevor Olanda "Fonzie" Howell.

They're grateful he is alive.

Just hours earlier William Christopher Gregory was sentenced to death for the murder of their daughter, Evette.

Evette Howell

Gregory shot Evette on Aug. 10, 1992 while their 18 month old son, Christian Xavier watched.

Gregory and his cousin, Gabe Wilson broke into the Howell home that morning while Evette and Fonzie were asleep in bed and shot them both in the head.

Fonzie's Recovery A Miracle

Fonzie suffered brain damage and has had to learn to eat, walk and talk. He is still undergoing rehabilitation. He walks with a cane and has trouble remembering things. Doctors have told them not leave him alone, Marsha said.

Fonzie's recovery has been better than expected.

"The doctor told us he'd live two hours – two days at the most," Olanda said.

"We've been through a lot, but nobody will know what he's been through," Marsha said.

She said he had died once at the hospital while she was there, but the doctors were able to bring him back.

The Howells had to tour numerous rehabilitation facilities, trying to choose the best situation for Fonzie. He spent time in several rehabilitation centers before coming home.

Marsha said she didn't want it to look like they were celebrating what had happened in court that day.

"I just can't rejoice over somebody's death," she said.

But her mother told her they had never missed celebrating Fonzie's birthday.

Family Relieved

Olanda said support from family and friends and prayer has gotten them through everything.

He said he is somewhat relieved by the outcome of the case in court but does not believe it is over.

In addition to the emotional strain, he said they have spent more than $25,000.

During the trial, Olanda reported to work at 6 every morning, leaving in time to get ready for court.

Marsha also went to work at 6 a.m. throughout most of the trial, going home to help Fonzie get ready for court.

Parents Talk About Evette

The Howells said a number of facts that could have hurt Gregory's defense were not brought out in court.

Olanda said the reason she broke up with Gregory was because he was "messing around on her" with other girls.

Marsha said she knew her daughter.

"Evette needed some space, but she would have gotten back together with him," Marsha said.

They said Evette was planning to attend college, and that she and "X" had never been a financial burden.

Marsha said in the weeks after the breakup, Fonzie would tell them to go to bed and he would stay up with "X". She said he admitted the night before Evette's murder that he had been staying up to make sure Evette got home safely.

He didn't tell his parents that Gregory was following Evette because she had told him not to tell.

"She was always protecting [Gregory]," Marsha said.

"X" Remembers Mother's Murder

"He will stare up at the light when he tells it," Marsha said.

Evette's eyes were open when she was found murdered on the bed, as if she was staring up at the light.

"X" describes hearing her make a coughing noise.

Marsha said he also describes being chased one night by a person driving a car with loud music and thinking he would kill him.

Custody Of Child Uncertain

The Howells have kept their grandson, who is now 3, with them since their daughter's death but have been unable to adopt him without Gregory's permission.

According to Olanda, Gregory's parents, Shirley and Jamie Grant, had wanted custody of "X". But they said Gregory would sign him over to the Howells if they would agree to go for a plea bargain in the case, he said.

Marsha said they had not deliberately kept "X" away from the Grants.

The child calls Marsha "Mama" and refers to Evette as "Mama-vette".

When asked where "Mama-vette" is, "X" points up.

Marsha said he says he wants to take an airplane ride to see his Mama.

"He says and does things like her every day," Marsha said.

Relaxing at home on Fonzie's birthday, the Howell family, "X", Marsha, Fonzie and Olanda.

Chris Gregory's Mother: 'Two Wrongs Don't Make A Right'

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

"Two wrongs don't make a right," said the mother of a man sentenced to death in Davie County Superior Court.

A jury found Shirley Grant's son, William Christopher Gregory, guilty of first degree murder last week.

On Monday, the jury recommended Gregory be put to death.

Shirley Grant said what her son did to Evette Howell was no worse than what the jury was doing to him. She said she doesn't know how they will be able to sleep at night.

Prosecutor Gene Morris argued throughout the trial that this case was especially deserving of the death penalty because Gregory had also shot Evette's brother, Trevor Olanda "Fonzie" Howell. Fonzie survived a gunshot wound to the head but suffers from brain damage.

Gregory and his cousin, Sederick Gabriel "Gabe" Wilson, broke into the Howell home Aug. 10, 1992. After shooting Fonzie and Evette, they ran from the house and locked the door behind them.

Gregory was found guilty of breaking and entering and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, inflicting serious injury. He was sentenced to 23 years in prison in those cases.

Wilson, who was 14 at the time of the shootings, faces the same charges Gregory did. In exchange for his testimony against Gregory, his case will be kept in juvenile court. If convicted, he will be released from juvenile custody when he turns 18.

Gregory's stepfather, Jamie Grant, said this is not fair.

He said Wilson has been praised for taking officers from the Davie County Sheriff's Department to the Howell home and providing them with other information.

Gregory was the one who called his mother after the shootings and told his grandfather what had happened. If not for Gregory, Wilson would never have turned himself in, he said.

On their way to see Gregory after the trial, the Grants said they will continue to fight for his life.

"They won the battle, but God's still in control," Shirley said.

The Grants said their faith in God has brought them this far and will continue to see them through the ordeal.

Shirley said they are happy with the defense provided by Gregory's attorneys, David Minor and Sam Winthrop of Statesville. They will handle the appeal.

According to Jamie, several mistakes were made in the trial that could cause the Supreme Court to overturn the decision but did not want to comment about them.

Even though Gregory killed Xavier's mother, Shirley said, "How will he feel when he grows up and they tell him that they killed his father?"

She said she has not been permitted to see her grandson during the past two years but has hired a lawyer to change that situation.

She said she will maintain daily contact with her son and fight for him to the end.

Gregory's step-grandmother, Ann Grant, who is also related to the Howell family, said, "I'm just hurt over everything. Both sides are my family."

"I never thought that it would come to this," she said.

Gregory's mother, step-father and grandmother leave courthouse after death sentence.

Gregory's family waits outside courthouse during murder trial of their son and grandson.

Davie House Damaged By Fire

A house in southern Davie was severely damaged by a fire last week.

A passerby reported the fire just before 5 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 9 off U.S. 601, about a half mile inside the Davie County line.

"Flames were already coming out of the front window," said Jerusalem Fire Chief Wayne Williams.

Williams said firefighters did a good job of keeping the fire from destroying the house.

"It only took them a couple of minutes to knock it down," he said. "It (the fire) had already vented itself."

No one was in the house at the time of the fire. It was owned by the Chunn family, and was rented to someone else, Williams said.

Firefighters weren't sure what caused the blaze. "They think maybe it was some type of wiring problem," he said.

Cooleemee and Mocksville firefighters were also called.

Speaker Addresses 100 At Picnic

Gospel music lifted through the arbor at Clement Grove Saturday afternoon.

Fish sizzled as NAACP members cooked at the fish fry. Children laughed and ate cotton candy and candied apples. And a guest speaker tried to inspire the 100 or so people in attendance.

Woodard

But there was one person noticeably absent at the 110th Masonic and DEU Picnic, proceeds from which benefit the N.C. Central Orphanage and for higher education of Davie County young people.

B.T. Williams, a mainstay at the picnic, was unable to attend because of sickness.

"This place just doesn't seem right without him," said Julius Suiter, master of ceremonies.

Hubert West, who spoke on behalf of the Davie Educational Union (DEU) said he had talked to Williams earlier in the day and he was thinking about the picnic. "He's got the picnic on his mind," West said.

William T. "Woodie" Woodard, president of the Statesville NAACP, gave the keynote address.

"The NAACP is the oldest, largest, most effective and most respected civil rights organization in the world," Woodard said.

The group was founded by blacks as well as whites, and is welling to help people of any race, sex or origin, he said. "The NAACP will fight anybody's battle, if that person's civil rights are violated.

"An injustice against any man is an injustice against every man," Woodard said.

The gospel music program was dedicated to the Howell family, who was in the midst of going through a trial in the murder of one of their loved ones and the shooting of another.

"The gospel song takes us back a mighty long way," Suiter said, "to a story of the hard times we suffered many years ago. Although we've come a long way, we still have a ways to go," Suiter said.

He said it is also important to show young people that there's more to black music than the Motown sound.

Courtney Excludes Davie From Fire District

on past experience and requests. He said he was told Clemmons covers the area in Davie because it is closer than Smith Grove.

Clemmons is just over a mile closer to the Bermuda Run entrance than Smith Grove.

In the past, county commissioners approving the contract with Clemmons cited savings on homeowner's insurance because of a lower fire insurance rating in Clemmons.

But that isn't the case any more, since Smith Grove has a new rating that would make insurance payments the same as Clemmons if within 1,000 feet of a fire hydrant.

Windley said county commissioners don't get involved in setting fire districts unless asked to do so, that most are worked out between departments.

He did say that Smith Grove is working on asking for a vote among residents in it's coverage area for a separate, higher fire tax rate, with all of that money going to Smith Grove's department.

Morton In Argument At Town Hall

told that Mrs. Gales and Morton got into an argument over "past vendettas."

Mrs. Gales told him what transpired. "She grabbed her, went to kick at her and shoved her out of the door," Dillon reported the woman said.

The incident apparently occurred sometime between 11:30 a.m. and noon, Dillon said. Mrs. Gales had gone to town hall to speak to Town Clerk Shirley Jacobs when the argument started.

Dillon said he didn't plan to press any charges in the incident, that it would be up to the parties involved.

There was a witness to the argument, but not to the alleged assault, he said.

Town board member Denny Creason, a frequent critic of Mrs. Morton, said the incident confirmed his opinion that she should resign.

"She just loses control. There's no reason for physical violence, certainly not toward a 67-year-old woman. She should resign. She's gone too far now to be effective."

Morton defeated Gales in the mayoral race in 1992. Gales would not say why his wife had gone to the town hall or what she and Morton had talked about.

Cooleemee Briefs

Attorney Asked For Emergency Meeting

Members of the town board went behind closed doors at an emergency meeting on July 25, Mayor Jackie Morton reported at a regular town board meeting last week.

That meeting, to discuss personnel, was held at the request of an attorney with the Institute of Government, Morton said. No action was taken as a result of that meeting.

New Town Attorney Officially On Board

Lori Hamilton was welcomed as Cooleemee town attorney last week at her first town meeting. Town board members had previously approved hiring Hamilton, on the recommendations of former town attorney Hank Van Hoy, who resigned for personal reasons.

Children's Library To Be Expanded

An improved children's section is in the works for the Cooleemee Branch of the Davie County Public Library.

A citizen had requested more services at a recent town board meeting.

Last week, Commissioner Denny Creason reported on plans for the library, which include buying books to update the children's section.

Computer lists of new books should be available within two years, Creason said, and books other than reserved materials may be renewed at the Cooleemee Branch on a limited basis.

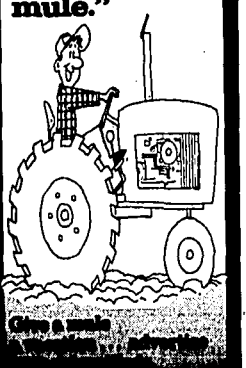

Contract With Davie Sanitation OKd

Town board members last week approved a garbage collection contract with Davie Sanitation for $4.81 per household per month, an increase over $4.15 currently charged.

Donna Henderson, Janice Shepard and Dawn Ludwick learned how to teach agriculture.

Teachers Attend Ag Workshop

Teachers from across the state recently attended a continuing education workshop in Asheville to learn how they could better incorporate the "Ag in the Classroom" program in their schools this year.

Attending the three-day workshop from Davie County were Donna Henderson and Dawn Ludwick. Teachers received three hours of renewal credit for attending the workshop.

"Ag in the classroom" is a state-approved program designed to foster a greater appreciation of agriculture among the state's youth. Under the direction of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, the program provides teachers with a variety of lesson materials about agriculture and related industries.

Gov. Jim Hunt sent greetings to all participants at the workshop reminding teachers of the important role agriculture plays in the state's economy. "Agriculture is the state's 'number one' industry accounting for one third of the state's income and generating 21 percent of its jobs," Hunt said.

During on-site tours, educators visited the dairy farm of former N. C. Farm Bureau vice president S.E. Johnston, where approximately 600 Holstein and Jersey cows are milked each day . Teachers also toured N.C. State University's Mountain Horticultural Research Station in Fletcher.

In the workshop, teachers received instruction in various teaching strategies and designed their own lesson plans to better share with their pupils the new things they were learning about agriculture.

N.C. Farm Bureau President Bob Jenkins expressed his thanks to teachers for attending the workshop for, "recognizing agriculture's vital role in the state's economy and helping to educate school children about this important way of life."

"I sincerely appreciate the efforts our teachers have made to utilize the 'Ag in the Classroom' teaching material and help the state's people develop a deeper understanding of agriculture, " Jenkins said.

Students Travel To Charlotte

On Monday, July 18, a total of 18 grade school students and two teachers boarded a van at Cooleemee School for the first of five trips that week to Charlotte to attend the Star Base Camp sponsored by the Air National Guard and Mecklenburg County Schools.

Each day the students learned about aviation and the many aspects of what is involved. They used math and science skills to file a flight plan, located items using compass and map skills, worked together in teams to reinforce communication skills, learned about survival techniques, flew in a flight simulator and were involved in many other activities too numerous to mention.

During these activities they were introduced to and worked with outstanding role models both in aviation and education. These role models stressed the importance of being drug free in order to do their best in their chosen careers.

The students will be sixth graders this fall and were chosen for their interest and ability in the area of science and math. The week ended with a presentation of skits and a graduation ceremony which was attended by many parents.

Cooleemee students learn aviation at Star Base camp.

Sheila McClenny learns what it's like to operate an aircraft.

FARM BUREAU INSURANCE

You Think Life Insurance Is Too Expensive. Think Again!

Think About Low Cost Life Insurance With Premiums Guaranteed To Stay The Same For 15 Years.

- Your Edward D. Jones & Co. representative now has available life insurance from Protective Life Ins. Co., one of the country's most respected life insurance companies.
- Your premiums are guaranteed to remain level for 15 years. Look at these examples, based on premiums for a male, non-smoker, preferred risk class.

Issue Age	Annual Premium $100,000 Coverage	Annual Premium $250,000 Coverage
35	$170	$ 308
45	$285	$ 573
55	$610	$1,298

After 15 years, premiums increase every 5 years with level-to-age-100 rates after age 80. In addition, you can get 20% lower premiums by paying a 2 to 5 year premium at issue with Protective's multi-year payment mode.

Mocksville Briefs

Sain Road Subdivision Is Approved

The board held a public hearing at town hall before voting unanimously to approve the final plat of Bradford Place Subdivision on Sain Road.

The property has all necessary permits. There was no opposition.

50 Acres Annexed Into Town Limits

The board voted to extend the corporate limits of Mocksville to include 50-acre area near Funder America and Duke Power. The owners of this property, which joined the town limits, requested annexation. No opposition was expressed.

Rich Park Playgrounds Are Upgraded

Parks and recreation director Mike Garner reported that work on playgrounds was finished in July.

The old playground equipment was dismantled and replaced by new equipment.

Bill Wise said the old equipment will be set up at a different location.

Industrial Blvd. Project Near Completion

The Public Works Department is about 95 percent finished with its Industrial Boulevard project, according to Danny Smith.

He said the department is planning some smoke tests in fall to locate problems in the waste system.

Town manager Terry Bralley said Mocksville has been able to upgrade its Hunt Creek facility from producing 190 gallons per day to 250 gallons.

According to Bralley, such a change usually costs about $3/gallon, but Mocksville was able to work out a deal with the state to make the change for less than $10,000 total.

Board Looks At Duke Power Property

The Board is talking to Duke Power about purchasing some land for the creation of a park in the downtown area of Mocksville. Bralley plans to discuss progress at the September board meeting.

East Church St. Now Walnut Street

Complaints from a company that was having problems receiving business deliveries led the board to rename East Church Street.

The other end of East Church Street is Walnut Street, going through a name change in the middle. Because no one received mail on East Church Street, the board agreed to name the entire street Walnut Street.

This dog is one of many available from the animal shelter.

War Eagles Ready To Hose-Down CPC Foes

Ronnie Gallagher

In Davie County, it seems, every little boy grows up wanting to be either a football player or fireman -- or both.

In the county this fall, there will be 14 football teams in high school, middle school and youth leagues. The number of fire departments almost equal that total. In this little county, there are 12 fire departments, almost one per team.

In football, the participants have to be fearless, risking injuries such as sprains, torn ligaments and concussions. In the fire department world, the participants have to be fearless as well. They not only risk injuries like heat exhaustion, heat stroke, bleeding and burns but they also risk their lives.

Football players and firemen are basically made in the same mold.

Want more consistencies between football and firemen? Here goes.

• Tires are important. A fire engine needs them. A football player runs through them.

• The Cooleemee Fire Department has a fireman named Devore Holman. Davie's football team has a coach named Devore Holman.

• When firemen from Sheffield-Callahan head out on an assignment, their goal is to put out the fire and prevent a building from destructing. A football player's goal is to win and prevent his program from destructing.

• Firemen, like the ones at William R. Davie, wear uniforms before they hit their "playing field." Football players, like the ones at Davie High, do the same thing.

• There's a quarterback named Jim Kelly playing for the Buffalo Bills. There's a chief at Mocksville named Jim Kelly. The names are the same, how about the paychecks?

• They say numbers win. The more numbers, the greater your chance of success. In sports terminology, Smith Grove should kick butt. That's the largest fire department in the county with 47 members.

• Advance, with 39 members, and Cornatzer-Dulin, with 37, would always be a threat to make the finals.

• County Line Fire Department would be the determined underdog. It's the only department that can't field an offense and defense, since it has only 20 members. When it succeeds, it is sweeter.

• Fire departments have chiefs. Football teams have coaches.

• Behind every successful man is a female. Football teams have cheerleaders. Fire

Friday Night's Game

West Rowan Is Returning Talented Players

In college football, most of the larger schools have a patsy to open their season with. They get that easy win against an outmanned foe.

That won't be the case when 4-A Davie County travels to 2-A West Rowan Friday night for the opening of the 1994 season in the annual Endowment Game.

Raper

West Rowan is good.

"We're in the middle of a cycle of good athletes coming through," said Falcon coach Ron Raper. "We've had success at the middle school."

In fact, West Rowan Middle School won the Piedmont Middle School Conference's eighth grade crown last year, led by two good running backs.

"But neither are with me," said Raper. "It's tough."

But he does have several outstanding prospects returning from a 5-5 season in 1993. The Falcons barely missed the playoffs, finishing 4-3 in the Yadkin Valley Conference. They lost to North Stanly in the 10th game, forcing a four-way tie. Raper's squad eventually lost in a schedule tiebreaker.

Raper returns his starting quarterback in 6-3, 180-pound junior Tim Hogue, who threw for over 1,000 yards last year but didn't make all-conference. "Mitch Ellis of North Rowan threw for 2,600," said Raper.

Lamont Smith rushed for almost 800 yards and scored 14 touchdowns. He also had four interceptions on defense. He is 5-9, 170.

The only returning all-conference player is Josh Osteen, a 6-0, 200-pound tight end/linebacker. Graig Barber is one of West's biggest players at 6-1, 240 pounds. He is a three-year starter at defensive tackle.

Davie coach Randall Ward is looking forward to playing at his former school. Before coming to Davie, he coached in Mount Ulla for eight years, including two playoff teams in his last two. He made the second round in 1988 and returned to his alma mater in 1989.

"There are good memories," Ward said, pointing to the friendship he still holds with the principal Henry Kluttz. "The people in the community supported me when I was there. Of course; these things have nothing to do with what goes on on the football field."

Raper came from East Rowan to replace Ward and this season welcomed 66 players. "That's about where we stay," he said of the numbers.

A total of 17 are juniors, while 14 are seniors.

Expect a close game Friday. The last three meetings between the teams have ended 13-10, 15-14 and 9-6.

It's a good rivalry," said Raper. "The players know each other. Some of our kids probably live as close to Davie as they do West. I think (the close scores) come because the makeup of the schools are a lot alike."

The 9-6 Davie win last season came in the first-ever Endowment Game, where the North Carolina High School Athletic Association took half of the gate. There was also confusion on whether the stats and record were valid.

This year, it counts. It will begin an 11-game regular season for both teams.

"The schools get more money and that's good," said Ward.

The Offense

Wilson, Vaughters Replacing Cuthrell, Eure

This is the best way for Randall Ward to describe his offense: People in key positions are back for the Davie County War Eagles in 1994.

The quarterback returns. Two runners should admirably fill the holes left by Jared Eure and Hamilton Cuthrell. Several receivers are back. Besting last season's 5-5 record is certainly not out of reach.

"We have experience," Ward said. "We have a lot of two-year starters back and we'll try to feed off that experience from last year."

Davie will still have a small line but Ward is the first to remind everyone that his lineman always have to over-compensate.

"We haven't been big since I've been here," said the sixth-year head coach. "We need execution, technique, effort and playing as a unit. I know those sound like cliches but it's the truth."

The Backs

The experience on offense begins at quarterback with junior Neil Cornatzer. He only completed 33 percent last year -- but that was last year.

"He's more confident now," Ward said. "He knows the offense and knows what to expect. The team has confidence in him. They know all Neil will do is get better."

Replacing 1,000-yard rusher Cuthrell and the 500-plus yards from Eure will be Deryl Wilson and Jonathan Vaughters.

The Defense

Defensive Backs Are Talented, Experienced

Davie County football coach Randall Ward decided to go from defensive coordinator to the offense this season. He said all of the coaches would coach defense.

They'll all be coaching what many think is the strong point of 1994.

Especially the defensive backs.

"The kids feel real good about the defense," said Ward. "We need to build on what we've accomplished the last couple of years and we need to be more consistent. But we do have more depth, which should help."

The Defensive Backs

Without a doubt, Davie County will have the most experienced defensive backfield in the Central Piedmont Conference. All four starters return in Josh Ward, Mark Mason, Matt Sain and Deryl Wilson.

Everyone is excited about that group.

"That's one of our strengths," understated Ward. "They all have fit into their role real well. They are a unit -- a real close bunch. They feel real good about themselves and think team over individual."

Those four combined for eight of the team's 13 interceptions in 1993, led by Ward's four and Wilson's three.

"They take pride in each other," Ward said.

They also have plenty of help: Neil Cornatzer, Josh Nail, Eric Shook, Jason Harbour, Zach Stokes,

Witty MEAC Coaches Keep Players Like Goolsby Entertained

One thing about playing in the MEAC that keeps players like Kevin Goolsby in stitches is the wit of the coaches.

Goolsby

Goolsby's coach at N.C. A&T, Bill Hayes, is one of the more ebullient coaches and he proved it during the preseason coaches show. It had to be one of the more entertaining gatherings in college football and not just because of Hayes. All of the coaches were spewing out more one-liners than strategy.

S.C. State coach Willie Jeffries was asked if his favored team would pass more than last year.

Notebook

"Yeah, we'll pass you on the highway."

Bethune-Cookman coach Cy McClarien on his predicted last place team: "I don't know if we're going to throw it, run it, or stick a fork in it."

As for Hayes, he said, "We're infant. We're the infant Aggies."

That's good news for redshirt freshmen Goolsby and Gerald Roberts, who may see more action than anticipated this season.

Kendall Chaffin told his father, Tom, that he had ordered a box full of Taipei Dragon t-shirts and ballcaps. Recently, UPS left a big box at their home.

But when the box was opened, there were no shirts or caps. Only Chaffin's pillow and a bunch of dirty clothes he had left in Taiwan.

New South Stokes coach Ray Rhodes had the right idea. What better way to create some newfound excitement at a perennial loser than to open 1994 with a midnight practice?

"We did this to generate a little enthusiasm," said Rhodes, a familiar face to Davie County fans from his days at Chestnut Grove. "It's the only game in town. It's also nice and cool (at midnight)."

It worked. South, 0-10 last year, welcomed 71 prospects.

Is there anyone more interested in Davie football this season than Bill Ward.

Get this. He has sons Randall (head coach), Jeff (assistant) Josh (grandson) and Andy (grandson) to keep up with.

The 1994 War Eagles

Offense

Wilson averaged six yards a carry in limited action last year. Vaughters was averaging about 80 yards per game until an ankle injury slowed him down.

Wilson will also be the backup quarterback to Cornatzer.

"Deryl's real quick and has good balance," Ward said. "He gives us speed and quickness. He's also a good enough athlete to be the backup quarterback.

"Vaughters is deceiving. He's bigger (195 pounds) than you think."

Because of the runners, Davie is switching to split backs after sticking with the I-formation last season. Also seeing time at tailback are David Daye, James Clement and James Hudson. Clement, who was close to 1,000 yards last year on the jayvees, is still nursing an injury. He's a junior. Hudson didn't play last year.

Daye rushed for over 1,000 yards as a freshman jayvee player last season. "He's one of two sophomores we're keeping on the varsity," Ward said. "You don't keep sophomores unless you're going to use them."

Vaughters will be joined at fullback by juniors Daniel Brewer, Eric Bracken and Derrick Pettiford, a transfer from High Point Andrews.

The Receivers

Davie averaged only 83 yards per game passing last year but the wide receivers are important, according to Ward.

"We'll be looking at different formations," he said. "At this position, we ask a kid to catch the football, block downfield and run a lot. He's very important to many of our plays but he doesn't get the credit."

Eric Shook, Matt Sain, Mark Mason, Jason Harbour, Wesley Foster, Zach Stokes, Billy Allen, Alan Lakey, Eric Eaton and Josh Nail make up the list of receivers.

"It's a real good group of kids," Ward praised. "Some will go both ways. The numbers are there."

Ward's son, Josh, a 6-3 jumper, is the tight end. He led the team last year with nine receptions. He'll be joined by Justin Carter, Scott Rumple, Jason Murphy, Jimmy Purdue, Bobby Brown and Chris Dinkins. Several will see action, considering Davie will go to a two-tight end alignment at times.

"Josh is 6-3 and Justin is 6-1," Ward said of his seniors, "so they have good height and good hands. They block well and have good strength."

The Line

At center, Ward can choose from senior Kevin Robertson, junior Derek Foster or sophomore Allee Boyce. Foster is one of the team's heavier players at 230 while Boyce is among the tallest at 6-3. But Robertson is showing Ward this may be his year.

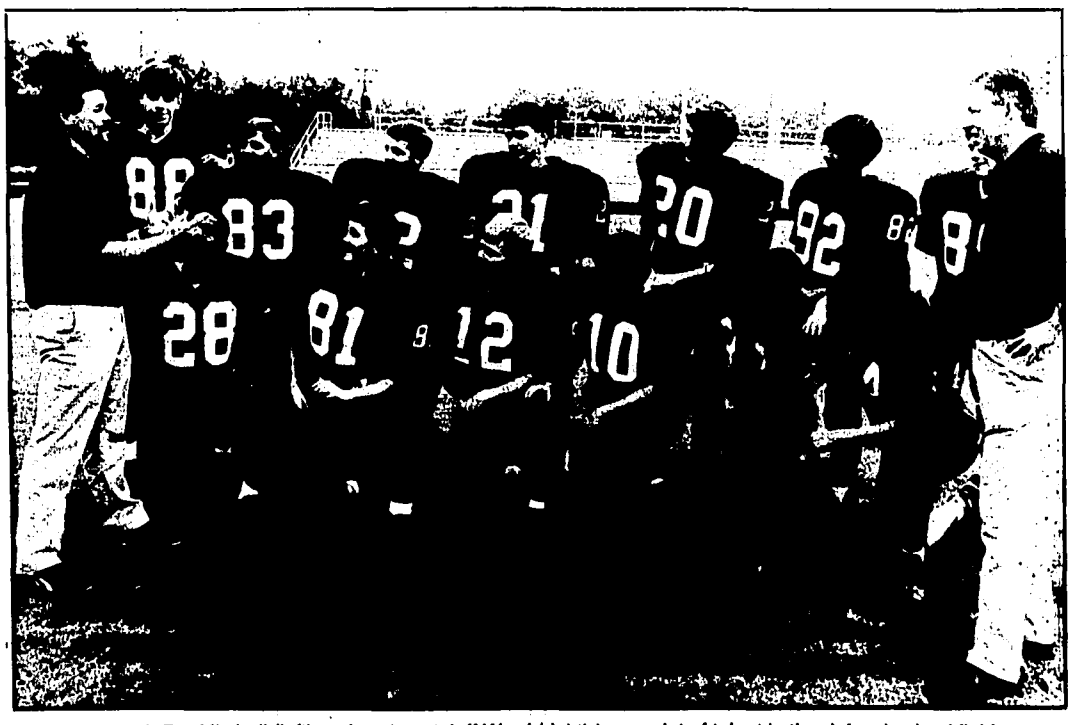

"Recently, Kevin has looked as good as he has since he's been here," said Ward.

Guards and tackles include Sam Griffin (6-1, 219-pound junior), Michael Hunter, Brian Angus (220 pounds), Jason Boger, Michael Strickland (218), Paul Keaton, Justin Foster, Anthony Smith (239) and Dusty Smith.

"We always have one or two kids that are big," Ward said. "If these people think they can do the job, they can," he said. "We all talk positive. We don't talk negative."

There's reason for the positive outlook this year.

"We're further along on offense than we've been in a number of years," Ward said. "They understand what they're doing and they have a good concept of the offense. A lot of these players have played three years and a lot are two-year starters."

First-year coach Pat Mitchell (left) and assistant Jeff Ward (right) have a lot of talent in the defensive backfield.

First-year coach Scott Young and assistant Devore Holman talk to their horde of defensive linemen.

Defense

Stokes, James Hudson, Eric Eaton, Alan Lakey and Billy Allen.

Stokes and Nail were among the hardest hitters on a 9-1 jayvee team last season.

"We really have some good athletes in the secondary," Ward said.

The Linebackers

Linebacker coach Tim Shuford has always fielded one of the CPC's top groups of hitters and led by James Vaughters, a 6-2, 195-pound bruiser, nothing should change. He'll join Daniel Brewer, the jayvees' top defensive player last year and Scott Rumple, an oft-injured senior.

Ward says he is happy that Rumple is starting the season healthy.

"The last couple of years, Scott has been hurt," he said. "He would've played a lot last season. He's always been a good linebacker so if he stays healthy, we're looking forward to getting him out there."

Other linebackers include Michael Hunter, Bobby Brown, David Daye, Michael Strickland, Jason Murphy and Eric Bracken.

The Linemen

Davie's noseguard might be the smallest in the conference in James Clement, a 5-10, 178-pound speedster. But Davie's noseguard may also be the quickest. Ward said the experiment is working so far, despite Clement's nagging, groin injury.

"He has quickness and strength," Ward said, "and that can cause a lot of problems."

Sam Griffin will also see time there.

Defensive ends and linemen include Justin Foster, Paul Keaton, Derek Foster, Jason Boger, Brian Angus, Kevin Caudle and Chris Dinkins.

Caudle, a 6-0, 200-pound lineman, is the anchor of the interior. Colleges are interested in the three-year starter.

"He's our most experienced lineman," said Ward.

Anthony Smith, Justin Carter, Allee Boyce, Dusty Smith, Wesley Foster, Jimmy Purdue and Shannon Shoffner will also play. Carter is a two-year starter at defensive end.

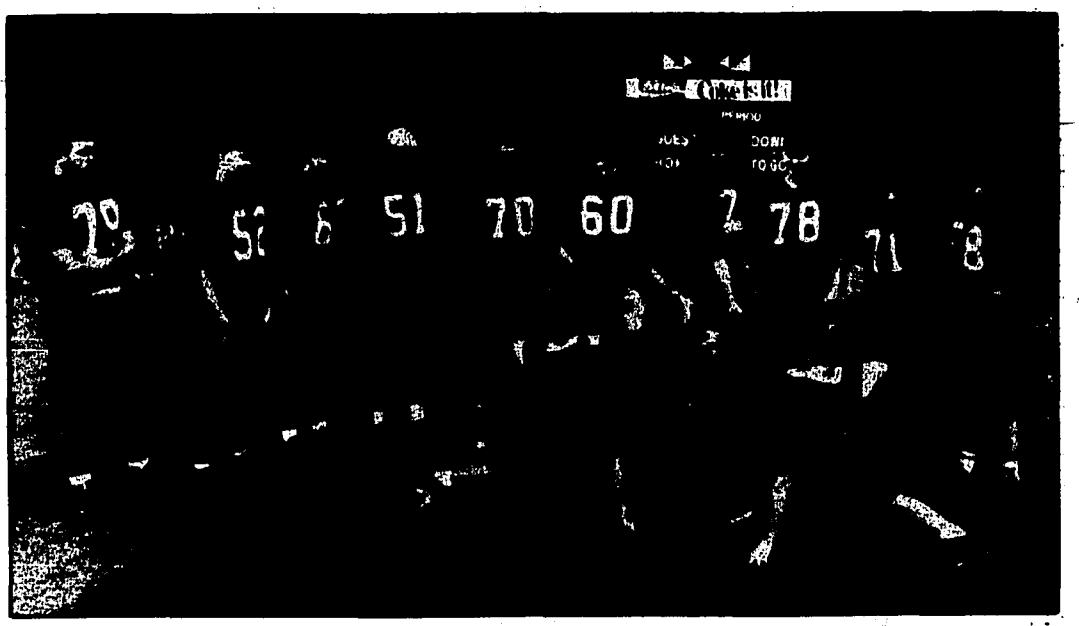

Shoffner should miss a couple of weeks because of a back injury but Davie can use his 6-3, 220-pound frame. He is a senior who sat out last season.

Outlook Bright

Ward thinks the defense can dictate the outcome of a game.

The defense had several good games last year, holding North Iredell, Forbush, Starmount, South Stokes and Reynolds to two touchdowns or less.

"The defense can't stay on the field the entire night," Ward said. "We'd like to make sure the defense can hold enough to give the offense 10 posessions."

Coach David Hunt uses a hands-on approach to teaching his Davie County linemen.

Caudle: The Defensive Leader

Kevin Caudle will never forget the beginning of his football career at Davie High School. Only a sophomore, he was placed on the varsity.

"When I was little, I always came up here to watch Davie play," he said. "Then, came the day I got to run out there. It was pretty cool. The first day we got to hit when I was a sophomore, I was run over by Corey Deese. But it was great. I knew they wouldn't pull up a sophomore unless I was going to get to play."

Caudle envisioned three years of greatness as a defensive lineman.

But as vivid as his first days on the varsity are, so are the memories of how all of his dreams almost crumbled during his junior season at Mount Tabor.

"It was a pass play," he remembered. "I was running downfield, ready to tackle this guy. Mark Mason actually was the one that dove in and hit me."

Caudle had taken a vicious hit to the thigh. He laid completely still as the stadium fell quiet. He had a bruised femur bone but at the time, it seemed much worse, especially when the rescue squad delicately placed him on a stretcher and headed for the emergency room.

"I thought I had broken it," he said. "I cried almost all the way to the hospital.

"I was scared. It was like a nightmare. I love football. It's the only sport I really love. If I had broken my leg, I'd never get to play again. I was hollering and screaming. I couldn't help it."

The doctor eventually told Caudle he had some good news and some bad news.

"The good news was that it wasn't broken," said Caudle. "The bad news was that Davie was getting beat 42-0. I was kinda glad I missed it."

Amazingly, Caudle was back by the third quarter of the following game. But his season ended on a sour note. Davie lost four of its last five games and finished 5-5.

"I really thought we'd make the playoffs," Caudle said. "We were a lot better than when I was in the 10th grade. Every week, it was a disappointment. I figured we'd beat Reynolds and West Forsyth.

"And the South Rowan loss (27-7) was a big disappointment."

This year, he is the leader of the defensive line. He doesn't do sack dances like Mark Gastineau. He doesn't point and talk trash.

"I'm dedicated," he said. "I can be mean when I make a tackle but I don't get down on the ground and growl. I keep to myself and get the job done."

Especially against anyone that tries to move the ball on the ground.

"He's better against the run," said Coach Randall Ward. "He's worked harder on gettin stronger and technique-wise, he's good."

Despite being light for a defensive lineman at 6-0, 200 pounds, his saavy has created interest from several colleges. Smaller schools in the state like him. The ACC schools have contacted him. Even the University of Miami has written him.

But his favorite is the University of Pennsylvania of the Ivy League.

"I don't need anything big," he said of his future. "I just want to play college ball. I'm going to try and go to Penn. It's good academically. I'd like to get football and academics balanced out."

So now, it's up to Caudle to have a strong season and increase the attention.

"I'd like to have about six tackles and two sacks a game," he said. "That's 60 tackles and 20 sacks. That's a lot of sacks."

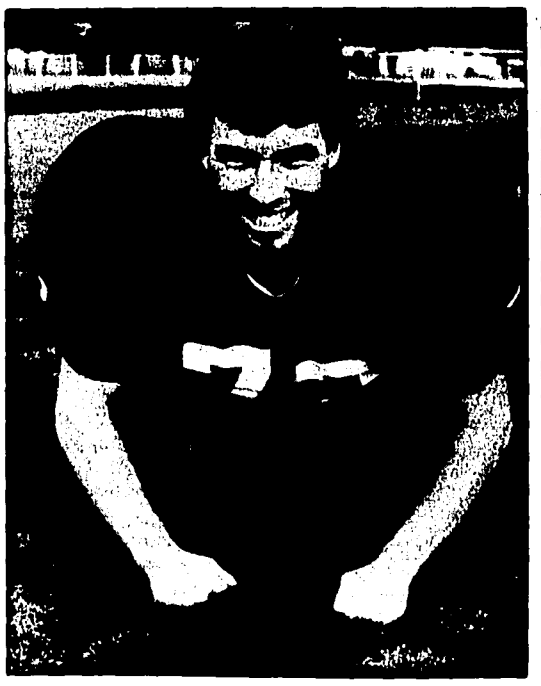

Playing as a sophomore helps him identify with the young freshmen and sophomores of today.

"It was great when I was a sophomore," he said. "I just learned. So I understand what they're going through. I have to keep them in line and keep them straight."

He'd also like to leave the young players remembering the 1994 season. He'd like for his team to be a yardstick for future success. The only way to do that is to make the playoffs and win Davie's first-ever playoff game.

"We were picked to finish fifth," he said, "but we can finish second or third. Last year, we almost beat Reynolds and West Forsyth. They lost a lot of people.

"We have all of us back."

Player Profile

That's My Boy!

Ward Playing Under Watchful Eye Of Father

It's the classic scenario. The player who makes the heady, smart play is the coach's son.

Why? It's easy to understand the game when you're around it your entire life.

Look in the dictionary for the true definition of what it takes to be succeed as a coach's son and you'll find the name of Josh Ward.

Randall's boy.

Randall Ward, Davie's head football coach, and Josh Ward, the coach's son go home every Friday night, either celebrating a big win, or lamenting a tough loss.

It's a team effort with them, whether it's on the field or in the kitchen.

Many times, the coach's son is the quarterback. Josh has been one.

But he has also played defensive back, tight end, running back, linebacker and defensive end.

Whew.

It shows he has the athletic genes,. especially when you look back at his father's 1,000-yard season here and his scholarship to Wake Forest.

But finally, in his senior season, Josh has his positions set on offense and defense. He will line up as a tight end and defensive back.

"I like where I am this year," he said. "These are the best places for me."

They were the best places last year too. He led the team in interceptions with four and receptions with nine.

At 6-2, 180 pounds, he seems too light to be a tight end. But he somehow gets open and has sticky fingers. He seldom drops the football.

"I know people will be bigger but it doesn't make any difference to me," he said. "I'll just go harder."

Defensively, he says of the secondary, "We did real well last year and we were all juniors. We should do better this year."

Ward said he learned most of his football at an early age, while tagging along with his father, who was then the coach at West Rowan.

"When he was at West, I went to a lot of the practices up there early in the morning and hung around," he said. "I was the ballboy for three years. I learned a lot of stuff just hanging around. I was the manager in the seventh grade."

Now, he wants to succeed for his father and his school. Not only does he play football for his dad but is coached by him in golf. He also is a starter for Darrell Steele in basketball.

"You want to be the best and show him you're the best," Josh said.

The elder Ward just smiled at the father-son relationship.

"I tell him not to play for me but to play for his team," he said. "I tell all the players they play for each other."

But he is glad to have Josh on the field.

"He led the team in interceptions last year and gives us experience at free safety," Ward said.

So Josh plays hard for his teammates -- and silently for his father.

"It doesn't make any difference to me," he said of having his father as the coach. "I like to play football. It's just like I'm any other player out there. He doesn't treat me any differently -- and I like it that way."

The younger Ward agrees with the other players on the War Eagle squad. He wants to avenge last season's 5-5 season.

"We played real well and we had a good season," he said. "Only three or four games didn't go our way at the end."

Davie could win the league

"Mount Tabor has a good team but if we play the best we can, we'll be second. We could be first."

Ward has individual goals also.

"I'd like to match what I did last year as far as interceptions," he said. "On offense, I'd like to get the ball more and end up with more receptions than I did last year."

With last year's seasoning, he should accomplish both goals.

Which would make the player's father a very happy man.

Josh Ward led Davie in receiving and interceptions in 1993.

Mason Wants To Hold All Opponents To Three Points Or Less

It was late in the practice when Mark Mason, known for his hard hitting as a defensive back, went out for a pass on offense.

Reaching for the football, Mason was sent sprawling by Josh Nail after one of the hardest hits of preseason.

Mason didn't mind, of course. He was actually praising Nail's hit.

"That's what football's all about," he laughed later, holding his ribs. "Hitting is great. I love to hit."

That's why Mason is in the defensive backfield again this season at Davie County, along with fellow seniors Matt Sain, Deryl Wilson and Josh Ward. He feels this group will be the best secondary in the Central Piedmont Conference in 1994.

"We're strong and we have a lot of depth defensively," he said. "We can do better than last year."

Last year was a 5-5 finish, worse than most players expected.

"We had a lot of close games," Mason pointed out. "The ones we lost were real tight. We shouldn't be disappointed this year. We've all been there."

The memories of close losses, like the 14-13 defeat to Reynolds, still haunt Mason.

"That was a heartbreaker," he said, "but it showed how one mistake will kill you."

Mason will play strong safety, a position that gives a player a chance to make mincemeat out of ballcarriers.

"A strong safety has the flat and we take the pitch man on the option," he said. "We're wide open for a big hit. I remember having some big hits last year."

Coach Randall Ward loves Mason's intensity.

"He's built along the same lines as Matt Sain," said Ward. "He hits and he hustles. He's versatile in several areas."

Ward let him prove it last year. He ran the ball. He caught the ball (averaging 21.5 per catch). And he played defense.

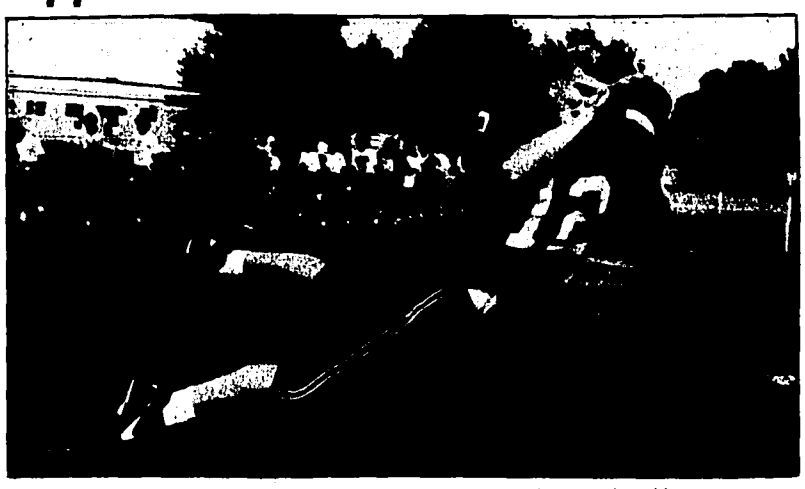

"I like being back there with the defensive backs," he said. "I've been around them since our sophomore year, so we communicate. We're always on the same page.

The closeness remains off the field; too.

"We're friends," he nodded. "We always do stuff and go places together."

Mason has taken it upon himself to be a senior leader. He barks at his younger teammates when necessary.

"I think we have good seniors that can give a lot of leadership," he said. "We always back each other up. Somebody can do something wrong but we won't chew them out. We tell them to keep their heads up and get 'em next time."

Mark Mason hopes he can pick off a few passes in the War Eagle secondary this season.

Mason said he really doesn't know any of the freshmen because he didn't go to school with them. So he'll lead by example. He has his sights set on several goals.

"I'd like to hold teams to three points or less," he said. "I think this defense can do it."

What about teams that want to beat Davie by going to the air?

"I don't think so this year," he said with a gleam in his eye.

Some of the pain from a .500 season was taken away a couple of months after football season, when Mason was a big part of Davie's first state championship ever -- in wrestling.

But Mason said he couldn't forget the football team not meeting expectations.

"Sometimes, you still think about what you've could've done and where you could've been -- and why you're not there," Mason said.

"You've just got to go on and play better each game and learn from your mistakes."

At North Davie Junior High, he played on two conference champions. He had a winning season as a jayvee.

Now, it's the varsity's turn.

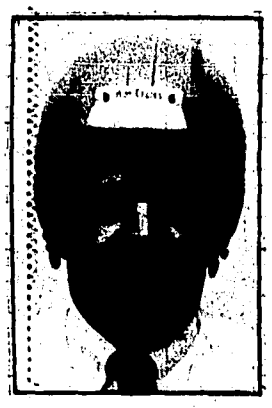

"I'd like to put a conference championship up here and go to the playoffs," he said. "That's another one of my goals."

There may be one more goal that Mason didn't mention. He'd certainly love for the coaches to let Josh Nail go out for a pass just once while he's in the secondary.

Punting Is A Dangerous Skill

Matt Sain can remember the punt sailing over his head. But he also remembers being able to scoop it up, get off a running kick of 40 yards and keeping his team out of danger.

"Everybody thought I'd get sacked," he laughed. "But you've got to get the punt off. Everybody thinks you're dumb if you don't."

Punting is just one of the endeavors heaped on Sain's shoulders this year. The whirling dervish is also a member of the Central Piedmont Conference's deepest secondaries. He is a pass-catcher. He is also a team leader, a role he cherishes.

"It seems just like yesterday I was a sophomore working with Brent Spry and Bubba (Coleman). It feels great being a senior and a leader out there."

Spry helped Sain become a punter.

"In the 10th grade, I started working with Brent. He showed me things to do like getting a spiral or kicking it further. I just started working at it and it came around."

The first two games last year, Sain's average was not over 30 yards. But from the third game on, he was among the league's best. He didn't attempt a punt against South Rowan but in the other seven games, he averaged at least 33 yards. His best effort came against Forbush: four punts for a 42-yard average.

"It gets nerve-wracking, hoping you can get it off," he said. "But it really feels good when you get a good punt off."

Then, there's defensive back, a position he loves to play. He joins three other returning starters.

"I love it back there and I love everybody that plays there. There aren't many people as close as we are. It helps tremendously (being friends). We're always picking each other up. We have guys who will take your head off if you make them mad."

Davie coach Randall Ward loves Sain's intensity. Sain stands only 5-7 and weighs 167.

"He's a hustler," Ward said. "He's a good, quick, aggressive player. He gets the most out of what he has."

Sain says his size does not make a difference on the field.

"If you do the basic things they try to teach you, it doesn't matter about your size," he said. "I'm a hustler and hard-nosed all the time. At least, I try to be, anyway.

Offensively, he had his moments as well. He caught two passes for 16 yards but did have one punt return for a score -- that was nullified by a penalty.

A good season was nullified by close losses. Davie fell twice by two points and once in overtime, finishing 5-5.

"At the beginning of last season, I thought we had a sure shot of going to the playoffs," Sain said. "But I look back at the games and realize how close we were. It could have easily been us going to the playoffs as Reynolds and Mount Tabor."

Sain wasn't prepared for a season like that. He had always been successful. He only lost one game in three years of youth league and won two titles at North Davie Junior High. This year, he wants to play on only the sixth team in 39 years of Davie High to make it to the postseason.

"Mount Tabor will be a tough team but I think we are the two top teams in the conference."

He also knows that Davie has never won a playoff game.

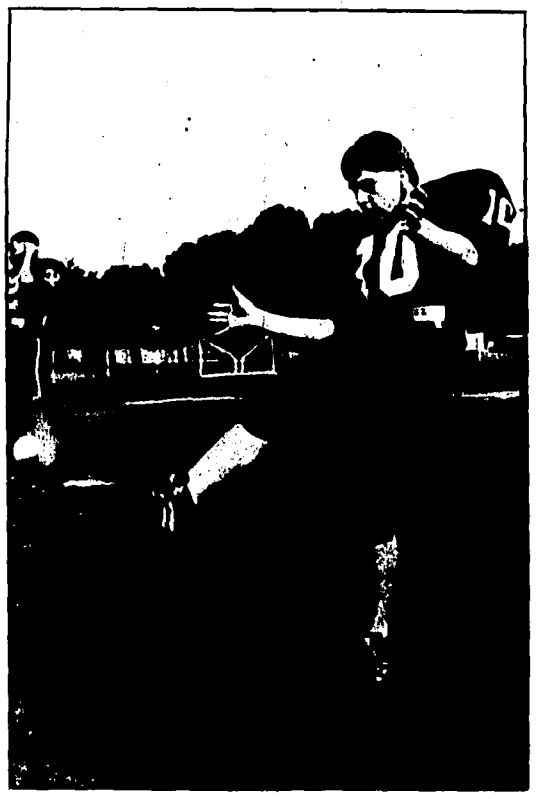

"I know the people playing here," he said. "If we make the playoffs, we'll give our all to win. No team had ever won a state championship until last year and it's the same boys out here now. We know what it takes."

The state title came in wrestling, something Sain hasn't forgotten a second of.

"Once you've experienced it, you want to do it all the time," he said with a grin.

But just being out on the field gives Sain a rush.

"To me, when the band gets going, we run out on the field and everybody is cheering -- there's not much like that. It's fun."

Matt Sain should be one of the CPC's top punters this season.

Davie's Shining S-T-A-R

Wilson Will Be One Of CPC's Premier Athletes

Deryl Wilson doesn't like being called this year's "Star of Davie County Football."

"It's just a team thing," he says. "That's about it. We all play hard. We all want to win."

But most feel that if Davie is to win, Wilson may be the key. The chisled running back and defensive back is Davie's returning all-conference player. He has speed. He has moves. He has hands. He has it all.

Boy, does he.

College scouts know him. North Carolina has written him. Small colleges want him.

Why? Because of the flashes of brilliance last season during his junior year:

• In the second game of the season against Salisbury, he intercepted a pass, ran it back 27 yards and set up a score.

• In the fifth game against South Stokes, he ran an interception back 46 yards for a touchdown.

• In Game 7, against Reynolds, ranked eighth in the state, he came up with arguably the most spectacular play of the season, an over-the-head, 31-yard reception that set up a score.

• Against North Davidson in Game 8, his 28-yard catch set up a score.

• In the final game of the season against arch-rival West Forsyth, he got a chance to run due to an injury to Hamilton Cuthrell. He responded with two touchdowns, one on a twisting, 36-yard run. He finished with 78 carries on only 12 carries.

All of that was accomplished in a limited offensive role. The final statistics still saw him second in interceptions, third in receiving, scoring and fumble recoveries and fourth in rushing. He averaged 6.3 yards per carry and a whopping 25 yards per catch.

"He has a lot of athletic ability," said coach Randall Ward. "He's one of our fastest players and on defense, he's a hitter."

With Cuthrell gone, he will be given the ball. "I think I'll like it," he said.

But he truly loves defense. There haven't been many defensive backs at Davie who hit harder. He proved it with his biggest hit of 1993 against South Stokes.

"I hit him and he just fell back," Wilson remembered. "After a hit like that, you want to holler, scream, yell. Mostly I talk to my teammates and get them pumped up."

In the final game of the season, a 20-13 overtime loss to West, no one was more pumped than Wilson. West's quarterback Brian Mayers, a former student at North Davie Junior High before transferring, had told him constantly how he was going to beat Davie.

"He'd been telling us that," Wilson said.

But Mayers was only 0-8-1 passing in the contest. He did nothing against Wilson and the Davie secondary.

"We all made sure of that," said Wilson. "We all wanted a piece of him."

In overtime, it appeared Davie would win. Starting from the 10-yard line, Wilson took the first handoff to the two.

"I thought we had the game," he said.

But amazingly, Davie didn't get in. West eventually scored and sent Wilson and his teammates home aching from another close loss and a disappointing 5-5 season.

"It was a heartbreaker," Wilson said. "We wanted that game more than any other and we should've won.

"All I could think of was this year and how we had to get them back."

The offensive heroics is not what Wilson plays for, though. He is a defensive back, pure and simple.

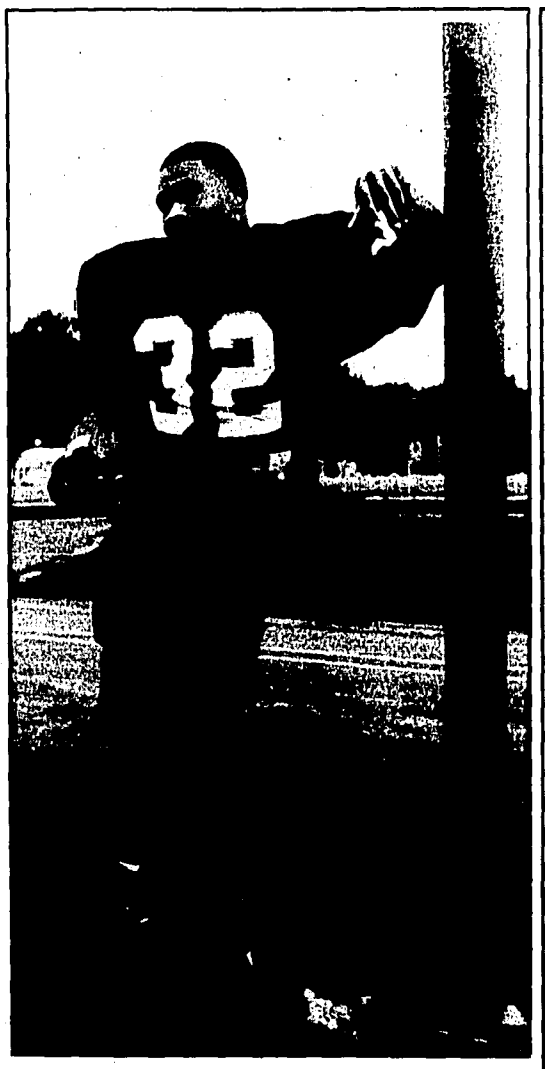

"If I play in college, it will probably be defensive back," said the 5-10, 180-pounder.

He has heard the past reputation of Davie's secondaries. He has heard people like to pass on the War Eagles. He has heard the secondary is slow.

"That's no more at Davie," he said with a smile. "Our DBs get after it. Our first day of hitting, we all got after it. The seniors kept everybody hyped up."

That day helped Wilson remember his first season on varsity.

"When I was a sophomore, the seniors tried to push you and you really didn't understand it," he said. "Now that I'm a senior, I understand where they're coming from. The seniors then just wanted to win and wanted everybody to give effort."

Deryl Wilson has several colleges interested in his talent.

Wilson is ready for the first game Friday at West Rowan and he thinks the War Eagles can do well in the Central Piedmont Conference.

"If we can get past Mount Tabor, we'll have a better season than last year," he assured.

And then, there's West Forsyth, who'll be visiting Davie on the season's final Friday.

"We'll be looking forward to it," he said.

Some will be expecting him to be the star, not only in that game but all games.

Again, he downplayed his talent. With a shrug, he said, "I just go out and try to get the job done."

Boy, does he.

Vaughters Needed On Offense And Defense

When Jonathan Vaughters thinks back to his junior football season at Davie County, his fondest memory may have occurred in the very first game, a 21-7 victory at North Iredell.

Vaughters helped break open a close game with a 64-yard scoring burst down the sidelines.

"I didn't think I'd break it," he said, "but the next thing I knew, I was gone. I was just thinking about everybody seeing me do it."

To take the spotlight from the senior backfield of Hamilton Cuthrell and Jared Eure, who most coaches in the Central Piedmont Conference felt was the best tandem in the league, was saying something.

After four games, he was averaging 5.9 yards per carry and had two touchdowns to his credit. He was confident heading into the first CPC encounter with South Stokes.

Then, the injury.

Vaughters was heading out for a pass during practice when teammate Dujuon Jones, a defensive back, fell on his ankle, severely twisting it.

"I messed it up," Vaughters said. "I tried to keep working on it. But I knew it was bad. I didn't play much after that."

The CPC season began without him. In the next five games, he carried the ball only 10 times for 15 yards.

"I came in every now and then," he said. "My ankle wasn't right until the last game of the year against West Forsyth."

Coach Randall Ward gave the then-healthy Vaughters the ball 16 times for 50 yards. He felt part of the offense again.

"I was disappointed last year because I didn't finish what I started," he said. "It could've been a lot better if I hadn't hurt my ankle."

Vaughters also had a good game defensively against West Forsyth. It was at linebacker that he made his name when he wasn't running the ball.

"I like playing linebacker," he said. "I love to hit somebody. I got to play there a lot because Kyle's (Duncan) knee was messed up. I had my hardest hit against West when I hit the quarterback. He got the ball off but I hit him hard."

"This year," he said, "I want to make it a lot better. I want to make up for a lot of things."

He'd also like to make up for last year's disappointing 5-5 season. The War Eagles started 4-1 before losing four of the last five.

"I knew we were better than 5-5," he said. "Some games we showed up, others we didn't."

Vaughters will lead by example, unlike last year.

"I had the freedom last year," he said. "I didn't have to worry about the pressure of being a senior."

This year, the 6-2, 195-pounder will be, perhaps, in the mold of Eure, who also was a fullback and linebacker.

"I don't know if anyone can be another Jared Eure," said Vaughters. "He loved to block. He didn't have a bad attitude because he didn't get the ball a lot."

Expect Vaughters to get it in 1994.

"He's sneaky big," said Ward. "He has good leg drive and runs the ball well. He's an all-around athlete. There's a different makeup there between him and Jared. Jonathan is more of a running back than fullback."

The athleticism has drawn some rave reviews. Vaughters, despite the ankle problems, was a big enough bruiser that he got attention from colleges like West Virginia.

He'll be counted on to be a leader.

"I don't talk that much off the field but I can't say that I don't on it," he said with a grin. "I do talk. I try to be a leader out there."

Vaughters' goals?

"I want at least 800 yards (rushing), get seven or eight sacks and get a couple of interceptions," he said matter-of-factly.

Make no mistake about it. If Vaughters accomplishes his goals, he'll be able to talk all he wants.

Jonathan Vaughters will be a linebacker and fullback for Davie County in 1994.

Football And Firemen

F&F

departments have the Ladies Auxilary.

• The Chicago Bears of fire departments would be Mocksville. It is the oldest and has the most tradition. It is led by its coach, Papa Bear Kelly.

• The expansion team would be Cooleemee Fire Department, since it was the last one formed, back in 1981.

• Jerusalem firemen may hose a blazing inferno. Davie's football team may hose a foe, something like the 33-0 rout over South Stokes last year.

• Two important words for football players are "line" and "pressure." Same goes for firemen.

• There's a Jerry Jones who owns the Dallas Cowboys. There's a Jerry Jones at Fork Fire Department. The names are the same, how about the paychecks?

• In the fire department world, it's mouth-to-mouth. In football, it's shoulder pad-to-shoulder pad.

• In both worlds, you have your communication system. Davie's football team has the Enterprise-Record. The fire departments have S.T. Dunn, Sadie Williams, Ronnie Roberson, John Butero, Alice Hanes, Steve Frye, Jonathan Wishon, Dean Myers, David Hutchins, Tina Jones, Patsy Turrentine, Jackie Taylor, Michael Galliher, Gina Boger and Ross Spry.

Wow, their staff is bigger than ours.

• There's a czar in both worlds. Davie has school superintendant Bill Steed. Fire departments have fire marshall George Frye.

• There's a firemen at Farmington named Joey Mason. There's a father of a football player named Joey Mason.

• A football team has a program filled with pictures, stories and plenty of ads. So does the Davie County Volunteer Firemen's Association -- and it's program has more ads than the high school.

• Some football players have perfect names for its players, like Steven Baker, "The Touchdown Maker."

Some fire departments have perfect names for firemen -- like Center's Alan "Red Hot" Sparks.

• Football players go through a practice ritual called two-a-day. At Advance, firemen go through Hockaday -- Ricky, the chief, that is.

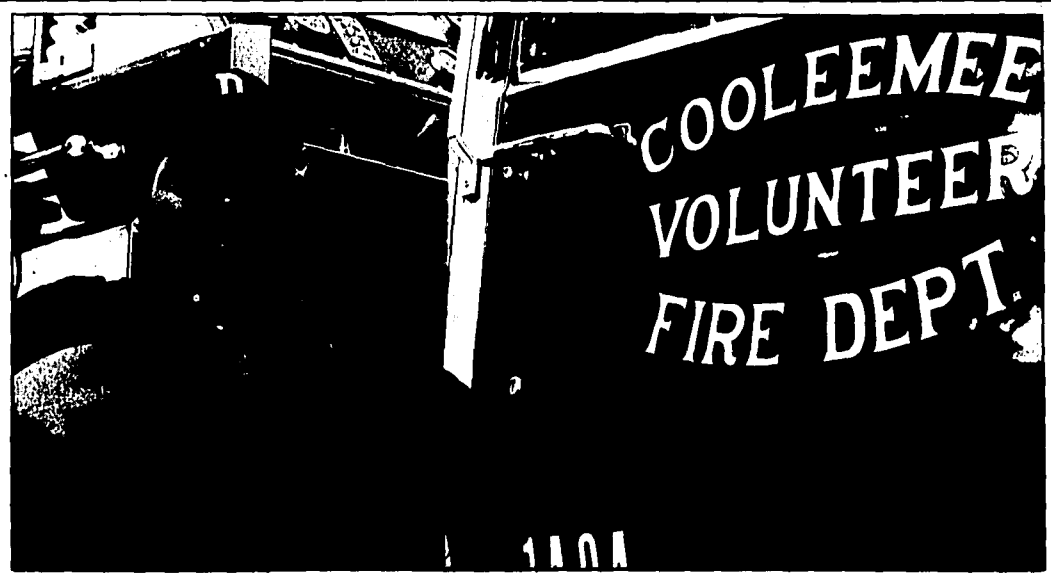

• In case of an emergency, we're told by fire departments to remember 9-1-1. Davie head coach Randall Ward would love to remember 1994 as the year his football team went 9-1-1.

Whew. Didn't think football players and firemen had so much in common did you? But whether going after a fire or the endzone, they're all after the same objective: a successful finish to their job.

In a small town, firemen and football players are our heroes. They come to our rescue. They save the day.

Football players and firemen. We couldn't live without them, could we?

Holman A True Volunteer

Devore Holman is a Davie football coach and a volunteer fireman for Cooleemee.

When he's out on the football field, Devore Holman's adrenaline gets going when he sees a big hit.

Off the football field, the adrenaline continues to flow.

Off the field, Holman is also a volunteer fireman.

After two years serving Advance, he came to Cooleemee in 1990, where he now serves as lieutenant.

Holman smiled when asked about the comparison

"They both get your adreanline going rapidly," he said.

Holman, who was hired this year as a faculty member at Davie High School, is in his usual position as one of Randall Ward's assistants. The 1984 War Eagle graduate says, "A big hit still gets the juices flowing."

He can remember his days on the field when the burly lineman helped Davie to the state playoffs, along with teammates Chris Jacobs and Darren Peebles. He went on to play one year at Winston-Salem State before returning to Davie County and getting married.

While football is in full swing, the same can't be said for firefighting.

"It hasn't been too bad lately," Holman said. "We had a backup call to Jerusalem but I was on the practice field and didn't respond.

"I'd rather not be active," he continued. "I hate to see people lose everything."

Holman, who is pushing 300 pounds, says some people have the wrong impression of him as far as being a fireman.

"People think since I'm a big man, I'm not scared of anything," he said. "But you see things like we see on fire scenes and wreck scenes and it cuts you real deep inside."

Once, after a fatality, Holman said he realized that "I am real vulnerable."

Holman worked for Cooleemee as a training officer for over a year before being named lieutenant. He enjoys his jobs as fireman and coach because it gives him a chance to be around all ages and all types of people.

"The best part of the (fire department) job is helping others," he said. "I really enjoy that. During football, the best part is working with the kids, hoping they get something out of it. We're not only coaching on the field, we're trying to instill a few good values. We help the players grow up into young men."

Peeler Coached Davie County's Second Playoff Team

In 1973, People Forgot 1965 Playoff Team For A Season

Jeff Ward grew up around Davie County football, thanks to brother Randall, now the head coach of their alma mater. He had heard the stories of the 1965 team that went 10-0 during the regular season.

But when he was a senior, he was convinced that the 1973 football team, despite two losses and a tie, was the greatest team in Davie County history.

"Randall was on the (1965) team," said Ward, now an assistant War Eagle coach under his brother. "But we had the attitude we were better than them. We still do. We thought we had the best ballteam ever at the school."

With a grin, he added, "I don't know if that's true but that was our attitude."

As far as athletic talent, he has an argument. The 1973 team featured Tommy Eanes, the first quarterback in school history to throw for more than 1,000 yards in a season. It had a power back in Doug Quarles. It had a big play slasher in Marcus Wilson. It continued the school's tradition of having a topnotch kicker in David Dwiggins. There weren't many receiving duos better than Billy Clark and Tom Anderson.

"And don't forget," Ward reminded, "we had a great offensive line. Jeff Ward, Jack's boy, David Bean, David Desnoyers, Dickie Kiser -- they were really small but they got after you."

The 1973 War Eagles were only the school's second playoff team, following 1965. It came in Bill Peeler's fourth year as head coach. And according to Wilson, everyone expected the 8-2-1 season.

"I didn't know much about the 1965 team," Wilson said. "But from the eighth grade on, we thought we could have a good team."

Davie was coming off a 5-5 season in 1972 but Wilson said, "We knew what we had coming back. We knew we'd do better than that."

Davie's 4-0!

After blitzing West Davidson 56-7 in a scrimmage, Davie won its first four games. The fans could sense something special about this team. The War Eagles were exciting to watch, whether it was the running or Eanes' pinpoint passing.

But it was the defense that scored the season's first touchdown when Anderson picked up a fumble and went 40 yards for a score. It started a 21-7 victory over West Rowan.

Peeler expected Wilson to be a blanker. But Ward was out with mononucleosis and Quarles, after running 33 yards on his first two carries, injured his knee.

"I came out at halftime and was a halfback," laughed Wilson, who finished with 55 yards and two touchdowns, one running, one passing.

South Stokes fell 21-6 as Clark caught two Eanes touchdown passes. Eanes was 7-of-9 for 149 yards and three scores. Wilson ran for 78 yards and Ward, back from his illness, intercepted two passes.

The fans were ecstatic after a 64-6 rout of North Stanley in Week 3. Four different players scored two touchdowns apiece, with Ward running in from 61 and 37 yards. Dwiggins kicked eight extra points, giving him 14 in only three games.

But Eanes was the talk of the town. He tossed two more touchdowns, giving him six in three games.

"Tommy was probably the best throwing quarterback we've ever had here," Ward said. "He had a great arm and he was accurate with it."

Wilson echoed those sentiments. "Oh man, he was good. A lot of people thought he was cocky but he had to be to play quarterback. He was confident."

Eanes was also one of the leaders off the field, according to Wilson.

"Before every game,. five or six of us would go to the Tommy's house and his father would tape us up. It was cool. We'd listen to fight songs and get pumped up."

When Davie slipped past South Iredell 13-6 in Game 4, the War Eagles were leading their division in the North Piedmont 3-A Conference and were anticipating the next week's confrontation with powerful North Rowan and its star fullback/linebacker Jimmy Heggins.

Win Streak Stopped

North Rowan defeated Davie 27-12, despite two scoring runs by Wilson, one on a 74-yard sprint up the middle, thanks to a key block by Bean.

"I knew Heggins but he was on the sidelines when I ran the long one on a draw play," Wilson said. "The next time we were on the field together, he told me,. 'It's a good thing I was on the sidelines. I would've run you down."

Wilson and Ward believed him. Heggins went on to be the defensive captain at Florida State.

"Heggins was the premier player in the league," Ward said, shaking his head. "He was a man among children."

Wilson did get his bell rung. After Davie fell behind the Cavaliers, Eanes told him to go long and when he leaped, he had his feet cut out from under him.

"I went in at halftime and started taking my pads off," he said. "I was looney the rest of the game."

Davie bounced back the next week against a good Mooresville team, winning 27-14., thanks to some motivation by Peeler.

"Mr. Peeler was a hard-nosed coach who demanded a lot of effort and hustle," said Ward. "But he was also a players coach. You knew he cared about you. It meant a lot to me because I gave him everything I had and I knew he was giving me all he had."

"If he said jump over the trees, I tried to do it," Wilson said.

Ward, however, wasn't a part of the Mooresville win, sidelined by an ankle sprain. It gave Wilson and Quarles a chance to run together and they combined for three touchdowns and 169 yards on the ground, 98 by Quarles.

"Quarles would run a good play and Peeler would call it again," remembered Wilson. "Doug was tired. He'd say, 'Hey Marcus, how about switching sides?' We did and I'd run it."

Eanes continued throwing for touchdowns, thanks to Clark's diving, catch in the endzone. Davie had 335 yards of total offense and was back on track.

Davie scored only once against South Rowan but Anderson's 17-yard scoring catch was enough to beat the Raiders, 7-6. Defense won this game, as Wilson's heroics came on the other side of the ball. He picked off two passes. Billy Mottinger and Larry Driver continued their season-long, good play.

And for good measure, Wilson was his usual self on offense, averaging 11.3 yards per carry on seven tries.

Clark caught his fifth and sixth scoring passes in a 28-28 tie against North Iredell in Game 8. Wilson grabbed a 70-yarder and Anderson hauled in his fourth TD grab of the season.

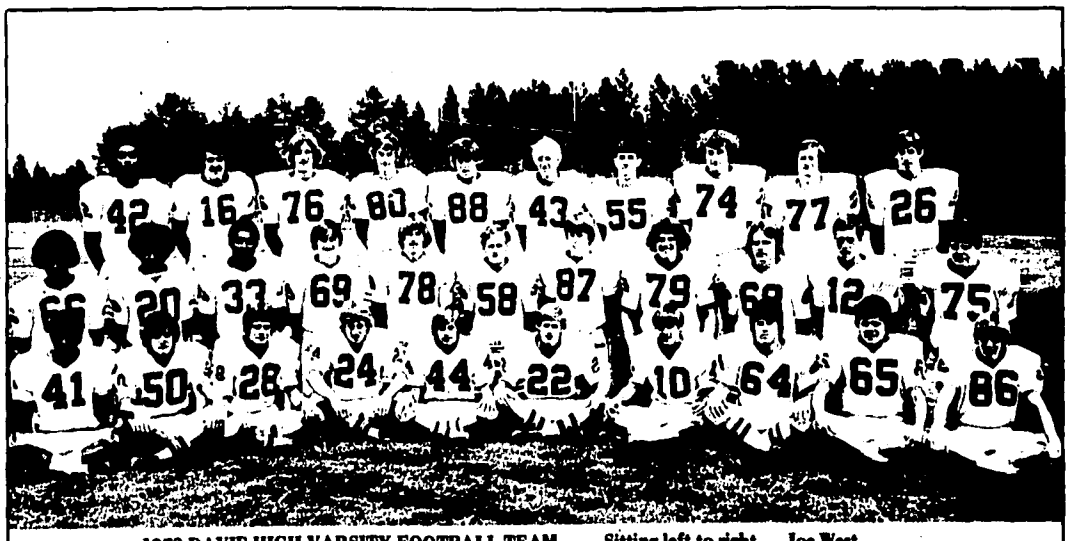

Wilson had his best outing in Game 9, a 42-14 win over North Davidson. He ran for touchdowns of 33, 21 and 42 yards.

"Marcus had great speed, real good moves -- and was a great guy to go along with it," said Ward. "Quarles had a larger frame and was more of an open-field runner. Marcus could run better in traffic."

Wilson didn't think he was that fast. "I couldn't run against the clock," he said. "I ran only a 4.7 40. But I was kind of elusive."

There were a number of marks set against North Davidson. Davie clinched a playoff berth. Eanes went over the 1,000-yard mark and despite not throwing a TD pass, he ran for one. Anderson set a school mark with a 100-yard interception return.

Ward thought to win a playoff berth that season was something special. The North Piedmont Conference was a tough one.

"There were some great rivalries," he pointed out. "You couldn't have played in a better league as far as competition."

Davie then wrapped up the regular season at 8-1-1 with a heated, 12-7 win over East Rowan. Ward had his best game offensively, running for 113 yards and scoring twice. Wilson ran for 92 more.

"We were ready for the playoffs," Wilson said. "We were confident."

Ending It Too Suddenly

Mooresville had won the other division and brought a four-game winning streak into the playoff game with Davie. But the War Eagles had no fear. They had won their division by a whopping three games over South Iredell.

The confidence was apparent on the first drive. Davie took the opening kickoff and bullied its way downfield for a score.

It was almost frightening how easily the War Eagles did it. Eanes to Anderson for 11 yards. Quarles up the middle. Wilson around the end for 17 more. When Ward raced in from eight yards and Dwiggins boomed his 30th extra point of the season for a 7-0 lead, few in the crowd of 4,500 were giving Mooresville a chance.

"We ran it right down their throats," Ward said.

Then, Eanes was injured.

With its leader being rushed to Forsyth Memorial Hospital in Winston-Salem, Davie crumbled. Mooresville scored 27 points in the second quarter and went on to a stunning 49-19 victory.

"We were upset about Tommy," Wilson said. "We were getting reports on him that he was going to have an operation for a separated shoulder. A bunch of us went to Forsyth to see him after the game."

Peeler told reporters the loss of Eanes, who would have three months of rehabilitation for his torn ligaments, was devastating.

"When we lost our quarterback, we lost half our offense," he said afterward.

Even today, Ward doesn't make excuses because of Eanes' injury.

"To be honest with you, we had some players that gave up after that and I don't understand why," he said. "That has puzzled me all my life. Tommy was a big part of the team but he wasn't the whole team. We had such a good running attack and such a good passing attack -- Craig Michaels came in and replaced Tommy and did well (throwing for 102 yards) -- its just hard to figure."

A Great Season

It wasn't the way the players wanted to end the season but they took solace in the fact Davie landed six War Eagles on the North Piedmont all-conference team: Both Wards made it, along with Anderson, Eanes, Mottinger and Dwiggins.

Wilson, despite a 90-yard kickoff return in the playoff game and 12 touchdowns for the year, was not named.

Eanes overcame his shoulder problems to play at Elon College. Anderson played at Catawba and Wilson and Quarles headed for J.C. Smith University near Charlotte.

"It's pretty much forgotten now, I think," Wilson said of the eight-win season.

Some of the players have stayed in Davie and others have moved out of state. Some are still in football, like Ward, who is nurturing his own son, Andy, a sophomore quarterback. Bean helps coach a semipro team. Eanes is the head coach at East Surry High School.

Three of the assistant coaches are still working within the school system: Randall Ward, Julius Suiter and Ronnie Riddle.

Wilson, lean and trim after 20 years, looks like he could still put a few moves on a defensive back.

"No way," he laughed. "Bean did ask me to play for his team, though."

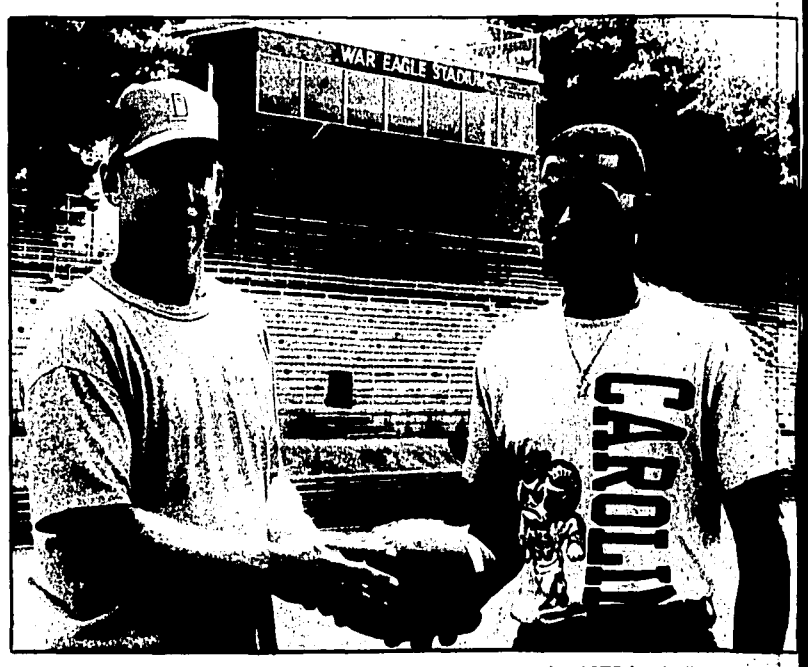

The Class of '74 should be holding its 20-year reunion this fall and one can bet the most talked about topic will be the football team during their senior year.

And the most debated question? Which team was better: 1965 or 1973?

"Our attitude was that we were better," Ward said again.

Wilson mulled over it for a few seconds

"Well, we were at least the second best team."

Jeff Ward (left) and Marcus Wilson were two mainstays on the 1973 football team.

Kiser: He Was One Tough Cookie

Ask any of the running backs on the 1973 Davie County football team about the keys to their 8-2-1 season and they all point to the offensive line.

"They were small but tough," said Jeff Ward.

None more so than center Dickie Kiser, a 5-10, 160-pounder. There's one game he won't forget -- the 12-7 victory over East Rowan.

It's one of Ward's favorite war stories.

"When we got on the bus to go home, we had already taken showers and were in our street clothes," he said. "But Dickie was sitting there in full uniform. He still had all his stuff on."

Coach Bill Peeler confronted Kiser. "What's the problem?" he asked.

"Dickie didn't know where he was or where we were," Ward said. "He didn't know who won."

Kiser had been up against a noseguard that stood in a two-point stance every play -- giving him a forearm shiver each time.

"Every play, Dickie took a shot right under the chin," Ward said. "His whole face was bruised. He had been beaten silly."

Afterward, Kiser tried to drive himself home. He made it -- barely.

"Somebody followed him home and when Dickie got to the first light in town, it changed four or five times before he went. He didn't know which way to go."

Ward said he loves that story, but only because it showed the effort of Kiser and all the linemen.

"He still played the entire game," said Ward. "He was tough."

The Coaches

Young Can Bring Championship Experience To Davie County

If Scott Young can bring anything to the Davie County football team this fall, it's this:

He knows how to win championships.

Young

After a career at East Rowan High School, Young went to Guilford College the year it made the transition to Division III. By his junior season, the Quakers were vying for a title. They traveled to Emory and Henry, where a field goal in the waning seconds gave them a 17-14 victory and the Old Dominion Athletic Conference crown.

"I can remember it all," he said of the winning kick. "There was 1:19 left. I was on the field when it happened. That's probably my happiest moment on the field as a player."

He hopes to have the same type of moments at Davie. He sees no reason the War Eagles can't win too.

"I think it looks good," he said. "I'm impressed with the coaches coming in, saying, 'This kid has put on 15 pounds and this kid has put on 10. It shows the players are working hard. I'm optimistic and looking forward to a good year."

When the War Eagles hit the field for the first practice of the season, Young was asked if he was nervous heading out to his initiation to coaching.

"I think I would've been nervous but the coaching staff here has made me feel so welcome," he said. "I'm not a bit nervous. I'm excited. If there's any butterfiles, it's from the excitement."

Young has plenty of ties to Davie County. His line coach at East Rowan was Ed Bowles, an East-West all-star from Davie. East always scrimmaged Davie. And Young even wrestled Todd Smith in 1989, his senior year. It was during that year that he made his career choice.

"I've wanted to be a physical education teacher and coach since my senior year in high school," he said. "I knew I'd be lucky if I received anything financially to go to college. Football was something I knew I wouldn't play but four more years. By coaching I can continue being around the sport."

Davie will be his first paid job. Last year, he volunteered his time at Erwin Middle School, where he had attended. He was able to teach the linemen there how to play both sides of the ball, considering the 6-0, 270-pounder went both ways in high school and played offensive guard in college. Now, he has Davie's defensive line -- and he appears in good enough shape to play there right now.

"I've gotten a little softer," he chuckled, "but I still lift some."

In fact, he'd love to begin a weightlifting program at Davie.

"I enjoyed lifting in high school," he said. "Maybe I could keep the weightroom open a few days a week and keep it going."

Young is happy that he could begin his high school career at the highest level of competition in North Carolina -- 4-A.

"Mr. (principal Dub) Potts and I have talked a lot," he said. "It was nice meeting him. I feel real fortunate being here. I get along real well with the coaching staff. I look at Davie as a future."

But the past is always there too. A reminder is that championship ring on his finger that he earned on the field at Guilford.

He is on the sidelines now but the goal remains the same -- a championship ring.

Living With Marine Dad Toughened Up Mitchell For Football

Pat Mitchell owes his football life to his father. It was his father, an officer in the Marines, that got his career in the sport started.

By lying.

Mitchell

Mitchell was five years old and living in Morehead City when he begged his parents to let him play on a team with his seven-year old brother.

"I convinced my parents to tell a fib so I could play," said the first-year Davie football coach with a grin. "I was always into football because a brother-in-law played for Bear Bryant at Alabama. He was very influential. Since then, I haven't missed a football season in 28 years."

But he has played and coached all over the place. With a father in the service, he was born at Camp Lejeune and has lived in North Carolina, Arkansas and even three years in Japan.

Kind of a Major Dad experience?

"It was sort of like that," Mitchell mused, "except my dad wasn't that pleasant. No, really, he's a pussycat. But he'd get that Marine thing going every once in a while."

Bulldog Image

Mitchell can bring that type of hard-nosed approach to a Davie team that has finished with a winning season only once since entering 4-A 10 years ago. His bulldog image was nurtured in high school at West Carteret, where, despite his small stature, he was a noseguard.

"I was pretty mean, pretty quick and pretty strong, I guess," he said.

After graduating from West Carteret in 1979, he turned down an appointment to Annapolis and went to Henderson State University in Arkansas to play football.

"It's a different world," Mitchell said of college football. "It's a business. I try to tell some kids that but they don't always listen."

He transferred to East Carolina but finally finished his college days at Greensboro College.

"I've been everywhere," he laughed. "My dad said I saw the world on tuition. I got away from that ECU environment and decided to take my college education seriously. I needed a small, academic setting. So I went to Greensboro. Dad said I'd either be a preacher or a teacher."

By choosing to coach, he became both. After working for a year as the manager of a group home for mildly handicapped adolescents, he was called by the staff at Western Alamance, where he stayed almost two years before getting the call to Yadkin County.

Forbush Bound

Mitchell then went to coach Tom Fish and Forbush, where he found out what losing was all about. Forced to play in a 3-A league, the Falcons seldom won and usually ended up on the bottom of the conference.

Mitchell stayed at Forbush eight years, the last four being very successful under Derrell Force, an import from South Carolina.

He said there's nothing like a winning football team to get the student body excited about the rest of the school year.

"You set your tone for the year in football," he said. "When the team wins, you can tell a tremendous difference, although the kids are constantly changing.

"(Winning) was a real boost at Forbush. We saw an increase, not only participation but in attendance for games. And not just football. The total athletic program was better off."

Forbush actually did the unheard-of, threatening Northwest 2-A power Starmount, even beating them during Chad Greene's senior season.

Last season, Forbush played at Davie and led the War Eagles at halftime. But Mitchell watched the Falcons collapse under a 37-point Davie County second half. This year, Davie visits Forbush.

"When I go down there, I'll be on the opposite side," Mitchell said. "It will be a funny feeling."

He won't be seeing his friend Force, who went to South Brunswick High School. When Force left Forbush, so did Mitchell.

"Things change and I was due for a change," he said. "It was best for everyone concerned."

Davie Ties

Mitchell is on this side of the Yadkin-Davie border now but doesn't feel out of place. His wife, Michelle, is a Davie High graduate. His brother-in-law does the announcing from the press box. His mother-in-law lives in Advance.

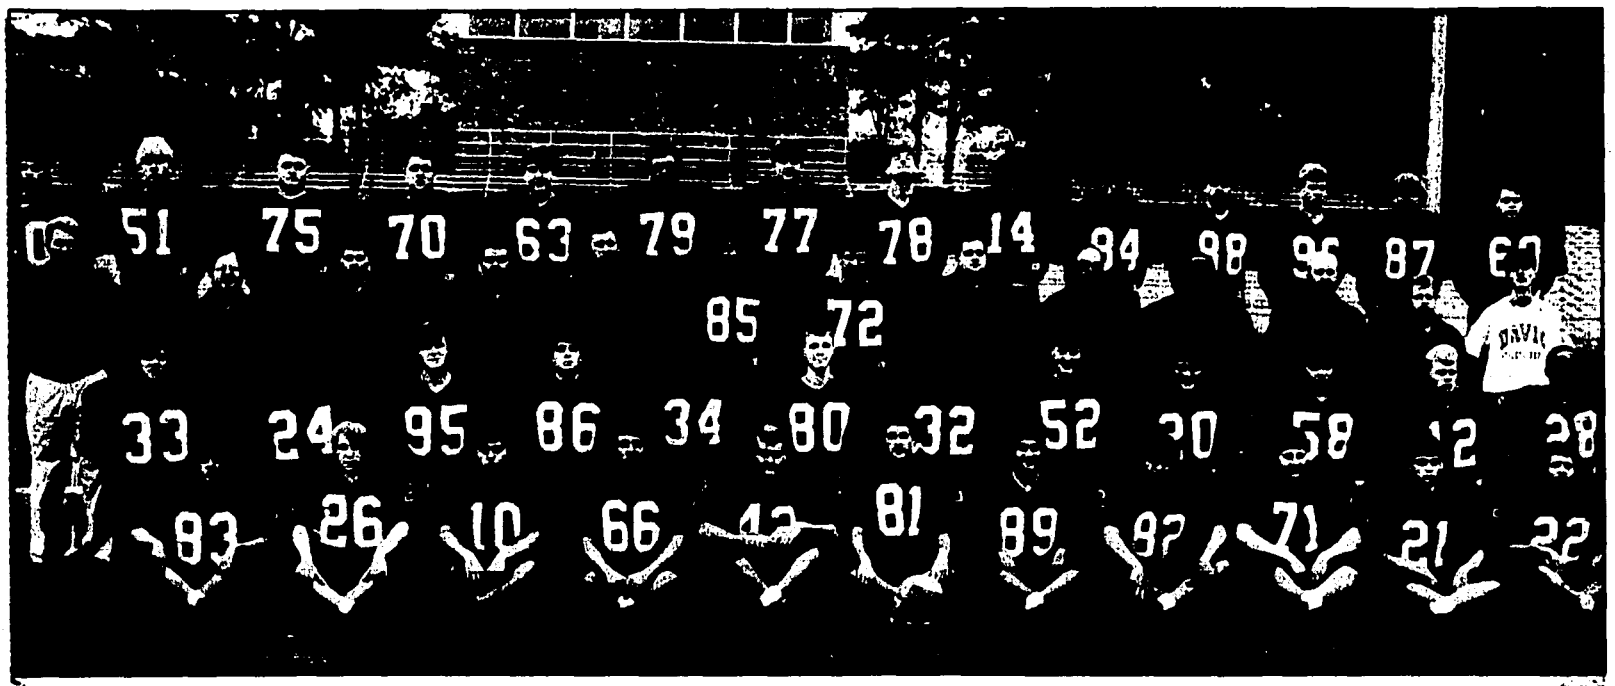

"It's almost like a homecoming," he said. "I'm connected."

Mitchell likes what he sees so far. He feels he can honestly say he is looking forward to coaching at Davie.

"There's great potential here," he said. "There are good athletes, a tremendous facility and the school appears to have good support in the community. There's a very good coaching staff. I'm real pleased to be here."

And he ain't lying.

Jayvees Have Tradition To Carry On

Can Quarterback Ward, Davie Match Last Year's 9-1 Record

Jerry Walser is an assistant coach for the Davie County varsity football team but he is also the leader of the jayvee team.

Walser feels privileged. The jayvee team has been one of the school's most successful over the past four years with a 30-10 record. The War Eagles were 9-1 and Central Piedmont Conference champions last season.

"I'm real excited over the possibilities," Walser said, "because of the size and ability of the offensive line. You're talking about kids who want to do things right. And the backs are going to like what they do for them."

Walser said he has told his players not to rest on last year's laurels.

"I told them they are not the defending champions. We are the pursuing champions. We want to be on the offensive, not on the defensive."

This Year's Stars

Several sophomores return to the jayvees with experience, including quarterback Andy Ward, who helped his game even more by attending quarterback camp over the summer.

"I've really been tough on Andy," said Walser. "I want him to be a leader. Last year, we had guys like Josh Nail -- guys who were vocal leaders. I want Andy to take charge. A quarterback should be the leader.

"Andy has come 100 miles since last year. His foot speed and physical strength is better."

Jonathan Creason, a ninth grader from South Davie Junior High, will back him up. But Walser said he was a good enough athlete to play running back as well.

Walser said Matt James and Shane Campbell have won starting spots in the backfield. James is a highly-touted freshman.

"Shane and Matt will carry the load," Walser said. "James is an excellent running back."

Aubrey James has grown considerably since last year and Walser likes his game. Nathan Joyce is an all-around athlete from South Davie. David Mackie, Craig Longworth, Dustin Allen and Heath Grooms could also see time in the backfield.

"I feel pretty good about the backs," Walser said. "We have a good mix of speed guys with power."

Receivers coach Brian Cantrell has a good crop of pass-catchers, led by Jesse Bonds. Also, he and Walser can choose between Scott Cornatzer, Ryan O'Neal Jon Mauney, and Olivion Brown.

The tight ends will include Ray Spain, a hulking, 6-5, 213-pound freshman.

"Right now, physically, Spain is something else," marveled Walser. "If we can get his hands and feet (coordinated), he'll be a good one."

B. J. Kiser is also a tight end, along with Jason Jolly, Shawn Chaffin, Chris Alexander and J.J. Grady.

As good as his skill people are, Walser has fallen in love with his line, a mixture of strength and power. He can hardly believe the size. Five weigh over 200 pounds and five others are over 180.

The centers are Brian Murphy (205 pounds) and Joel Crotts (237). Guards are Brian Myers and Will Lowdermilk. Also on the line are Jake Marion (out due to injury, Jacob McGarrity, Eric Godbey, Jason Robertson, Jeff Caccavella, Jamien Smith, Jeremy Helton, Ryan McClannon, Alan Livengood and Chuck Cleary.

But clearly, the most impressive to Walser is 6-5, 242-pound David Koontz.

"When you look for potential, he has the body type," said Walser. "As far as execution of what we're teaching, there's nobody better on this team."

With a shake of the head, he added, "You put Koontz and Spain side by side and that's two big human beings."

The Outlook

Walser doesn't particularly like making predictions on jayvee teams.

"That can get you in trouble," he says. "But if these guys stay together, they're going to be something. We have seven offensive linemen so we have depth there. We have good backs."

Leading this year's Davie jayvee team will be returning quarterback Andy Ward (left) and Matt James, a talented running back from South Davie.

Lifestyles Of The Rich And 'Country'

Chaffin Will Have To Adapt To New Way Of Life In Taiwan

Kendall Chaffin was asked what he thought about playing professional football and living in the Asian country of Taiwan.

"It ain't Mocksville," he said.

But the 1989 graduate of Davie County High School and recent defensive standout at Wingate College is preparing for his return. A mini-camp next month at Lees McRae College will get him ready for the start of a career he used to only dream about.

But Taiwan? What happened to football in Green Bay? Or Atlanta? Or New York?

The NFL is only so big and Chaffin knew it when he finished a sparkling career at Wingate. He took a sales job, putting football out of his mind.

But leave it to Bob Turner, an American corporate giant, to give players like Chaffin another outlet. Turner, a t-shirt magnate, had failed in the United States Football League a few years ago. He looked out of the country, first at Europe in 1993 to replace the NFL's collapsed World League. The NFL then announced a return to Europe with a reduced, miniature World League.

Turner looked elsewhere. A study of the Asia Pacific Rim strongly recommended a change in direction.

Turner went after Asia's wealthiest men and formed the United Football League. Sports entertainment is in great demand there, Turner said, especially in Taipei, Osaka, Hong Kong, Tokyo, Shanghai, Manilla and Singapore, cities targeted for American football.

Of course, he had to prove it to the sponsors, who would put up the money. His staff chose 3,000 names from NFL camps and Combines and cut it to 100. These 100 went to a training camp and 55 would be picked to become Taipei Dragons, the very first UFL squad. These players would be the guinea pigs, playing an exhibition game, the Taipei Classic, in the 27,000-seat Olympic Stadium before some of the more prominent people in Asia.

Chaffin was one of the players who went on the 11-day trip. Suddenly, he was a Hulk Hogan, towering over the small Taiwanese. He stood 6-4, 270 pounds but wants to get up to the 280-290-pound range.

He and his teammates stayed at a 5-star hotel. They were treated like royalty. They ate gourmet meals ("the food was laid out like it was a picture," Chaffin said). They were on TV shows. They went to a party every night. They hobnobbed with the wealthy.

He would practice, eat, do publicity stunts, practice, go to a party and eat some more.

"When my friends ask me what it's like to be a professional football player, I say it's all it's supposed to be and more," Chaffin said. "They can't believe it -- like I can't believe it."

If he walked the streets of Taipei, he was mashed into the mass of bodies, elbow-to-elbow. He was fascinated at how bad the drivers were. It was nothing to see nine cars and 20 scooters piled into four lanes, trying to manuever.

"I got tired of the ratrace," Chaffin said from his Mocksville home. "I can sit around here and not see anybody. Over there, everything is so fast."

Story Of Taiwan

Taiwan, an island off the coast of China, has 22 million residents, 3.3 million in the city of Taipei. It is the world's largest holder of gold reserves, has the second largest foreign currency reserves internationally after Japan and is the world's 13th largest trading nation.

"The cost of living is high," Chaffin said. "Everything we have is made over there but it still isn't cheap. They love American money."

Chaffin said the people were very cordial. He was surprised that most spoke English. The TV stations were English. The newspapers were English.

He said there are beautful scenes in Taipei.

"It's pretty with the mountains," he said. "The city is in a valley. There's a lot of pollution and it's hot there but the people are real nice."

And despite over 3 million inhabitants, Taipei is safe.

"There's no violence at all," Chaffin said. "A woman can walk down the street at 3 a.m. and be safe. They had martial law until 1987. They'd take drug dealers and on the spot, no questions asked, shoot them."

Chaffin didn't have much time to even think football. But when the Taipei Classic was played, he held his own. His mug was even seen on the front page of the China Post newspaper.

Those 11 days told him he could play in the NFL.

His backup at defensive end played for the Phoenix Cardinals. The tackle he went up against every day was Greg Sherman, just back from the New York Jets. His roommate came from the Green Bay Packers' camp.

"It makes you mad when you know you have the same ability but didn't get the same shot," Chaffin said.

Remembering His Roots

He won't forget where he came from, he assures everyone.

"This is for the people I played with at Davie and Wingate," Chaffin said. "I'm no better than they were. I just got the opportunity, a shot to play. Maybe this will be a stepping stone to something bigger."

In 1994, there will not be a bonafide United Football League. The Dragons are set and now, another team is being developed. The two squads will spend this season on a six-game, six-city tour, showing off the future of American football in Asia. Turner estimates the impact on the country's economy will be $100 million in the first three seasons of the league.

In 1995, a full slate will be played. A 10-game (five home and five away) schedule has been set.

Chinese, Japanese and Phillipine businessmen will support the league. Turner's aim is to have 600 players, coaches and officials involved with the Asia Pacific Conference. He is targeting the 16-35 age group, which in the region, are avid fans of international consumer trends. He is convinced the city and team will develop a close association, generating a strong community sentiment and following.

The league will also provide Taiwan with heroes -- like Chaffin.

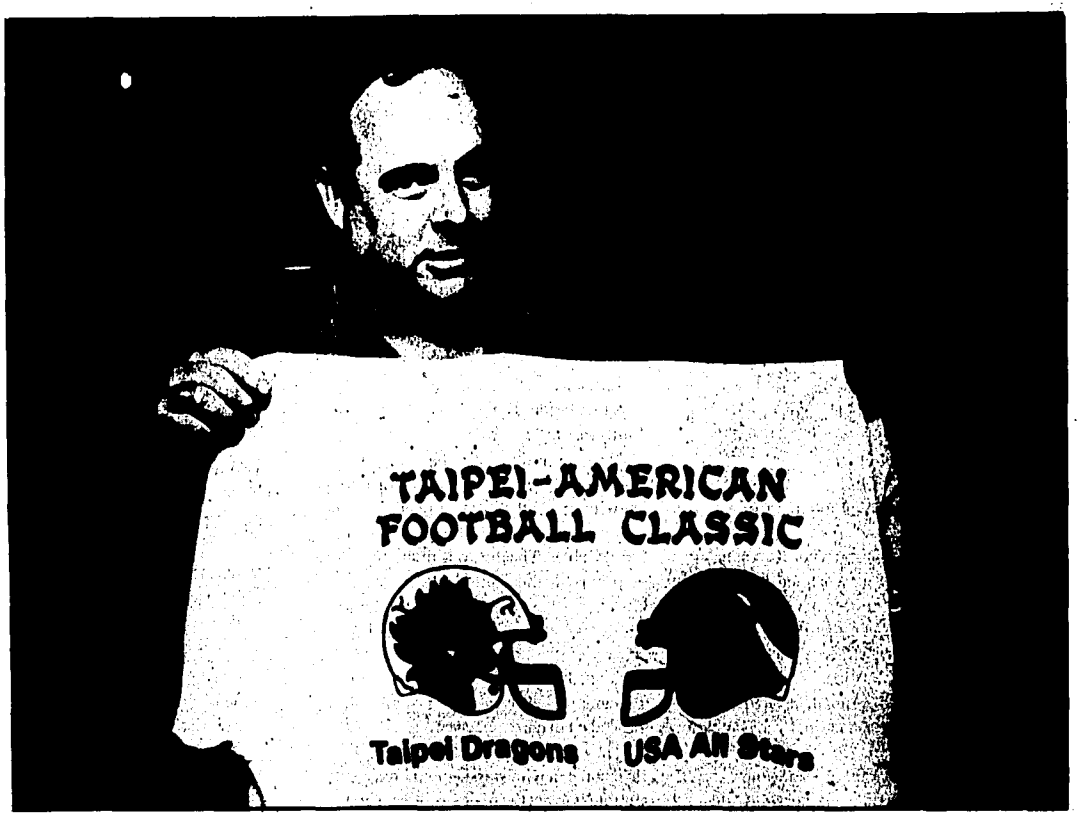

He plans to live like one.

"We stayed in the seventh best hotel before," he said, "When we go back, we're staying in the second best in Taiwan. It's called Asia World. (The league) is going to put us up and pay for everything. It's going to be a big success. Turner has too many people backing him.

"I'm going to make a lot of money."

Which means Kendall Chaffin, country boy son of Tom and Debbie Chaffin, is going to hear violins play next to his table when he eats. He's going to have someone waiting on him hand and foot, doing his laundry, bringing him food. Cameras will be flashing in his face. CIA agents will surround him.

You know, it really ain't like Mocksville.

Tom Chaffin proudly displays the jersey of son Kendall's new football team: the Taipei Dragons.

Kendall Chaffin now has two newspapers to read: the Davie County Enterprise-Record and the China Post.

College Report

Kennedy Remembers Duke Coach As A Motivator

Joe Kennedy was in the coaching business long enough to know when he sees something or someone good.

Believe him when he says Duke football is in good hands with new football coach Fred Goldsmith.

Kennedy

Goldsmith came to the Blue Devils from Rice University in Houston, where he rubbed elbows with Jill Knox, a former Davie County star and currently assistant women's basketball coach.

But he had several other stops along the way, including his first head coaching job in Florida.

With Kennedy.

The two were matched up when Kennedy, originally from Thomasville, accepted his first paid assistant's job at Charlotte High School in Punta Gordo, Florida. The year was 1969.

"We were the Tarpons," Kennedy said. "It was the fishing capital of Florida."

Kennedy went on to eventually coach at Bartlett-Yancey, North Johnston and finally at Davie from 1976-78, where he finished with a 15-15 record. He has remained here since as a teacher.

But the memories of being around Goldsmith are still vivid.

"Fred was very intense and a very good communicator," remembered Kennedy. "He's a sharp guy who knows how to get things done."

Kennedy said Goldsmith had a knack of getting what he wants. He laughed when telling one of his favorite Goldsmith stories.

"He and his wife, Pam, are from the Coral Gables area," Kennedy explained. "Fred was very serious about this girl when he went to Western Carolina to play football. He found out Pam had a grandmother living in the North Carolina mountains, in Bryson City, I think. He got Pam to live with her grandmother and go to high school there so he could see her. That shows how persuasive Fred can be."

Kennedy and Goldsmith stayed only one year together before Kennedy got his coaching opportunity at Bartlett-Yancey.

"Fred impressed me," he said. "We were both very young. He was a student of the game. He knew more football than a man of his age really should have known. But he had a great mentor at Coral Gables. That was one of the best high school programs in the United States and the best in Florida at that time. Florida football was very strong. It had spring practice. I ran Fred's weight program."

Kennedy remembers a Goldsmith ploy to get his teams revved up, a ploy he is sure still works for the Duke coach.

"He was really good at doing things pre-game. He'd come in with stories or records -- all kinds of gimmicks to get the players going on the field at an emotional high. He was really good at getting kids pumped up."

Goldsmith still is. He has sent all 1,200 incoming freshmen a personal, autographed note of encouragement, inviting them to come cheer on the Blue Devils.

The basketball team has the Cameron Crazies. Goldsmith, whose team plays in Wallace Wade Stadium, wants the football team to be cheered on by the Wade Wackos. He is having shirts printed up.

That doesn't surprise Kennedy. Even 25 years ago, he could see a bright future for Goldsmith, who promoted himself as well as his program.

"Fred was very ambitious," Kennedy said, saying he somehow got in good with Penn State coach Joe Paterno.

"He'd do things that would give him a chance to move up," said Kennedy. "We'd get highlight films, scouting info, defensive diagrams, everything, from Penn State."

The two split after the 1969 season but other assistant coaches from Charlotte High would keep Kennedy informed of Goldsmith's whereabouts. He went to Deland High School near Daytona Beach before heading for the college ranks.

"Fred worked very hard and was very organized," Kennedy said. "But he wasn't sure whether he wanted to continue to mix the responsibilities of classroom teaching and coaching because coaching was what he really wanted to do."

Through letters, Kennedy kept up with Goldsmith's roadtrip across America. First, it was an assistant's job at Florida A&M. After a stint at the Air Force Academy, he followed Ken Hatfield to Arkansas as defensive coordinator. Finally, he took the head job at Rice, a school similar to Duke in stringent academic standards. But he found a way to win there and now has the same challenge at Duke, where the program is down.

When Kennedy read that Duke had hired Goldsmith, he said, "I was pleased and a little surprised, thinking here's 'ol Fred back in North Carolina. I wasn't surprised from the achievement standpoint because of what he had done for Rice and the fact that he is real good friends with (former Duke coach and current Florida coach) Steve Spurrier. I'm thinking Fred was best man at Steve's wedding. I think they talked and Fred found out all he needed to know."

Goldsmith has his work cut out for him at Duke. In Barry Wilson's four years, the Devils never finished better than 4-6-1 and were 4-26 in the ACC. In the last 31 years, only twice has Duke finished with at least six wins, both comingunder Spuurier in the late 1980s.

Can Goldsmith turn the program around like he did at Rice?

"Duke's name may be more eye-catching," Kennedy said. "In terms of competing against the level of competition, it's quite similar. If he can schedule right outside the ACC, win some ACC games and get into a situation where, in a few years, Duke goes to a bowl game, then he's done a great job at Duke University. It would be like what Spurrier did."

Kennedy seems excited about the prospects of seeing his old friend and coaching buddy.

"I'm going to get in touch with him," said Kennedy. "I hope to see him when Duke comes over to Winston-Salem and plays Wake Forest."

Bad Luck Hits Bovender Again

Anterior Cruciate Ligament Injury Sidelines Receiver

If Gray Bovender has had any luck at all since entering the University of North Carolina, it's been mostly bad.

Two years ago, he tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee during a non-contact drill in practice. He rehabilitated the knee, came back last season to play in nine games, catching three passes for 48 yards. The receptions came against Ohio University, Clemson and Duke.

Bovender, a former Mocksville Legion baseball star, came into this year prepared to take over for graduated Bucky Brooks and Corey Holliday at wide receiver. In fact, Mack Brown had him penciled in at the position.

But only two weeks before the opener, the unbelievable happened again. Last week, during another non-contact drill in practice, he tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee. He is out for the season.

Brown told the Winston-Salem Journal, "It's a devastating blow to our football team. Gray was one of two wide receivers with game experience. I feel so badly for him because I know how hard he worked to come back from the injury to his left knee."

Bovender will now help tutor the young receivers who will be thrown to the ACC wolves.

"Gray is going to remain a part of our team and help coach those kids," Brown said.

Bovender led West Forsyth to the state 4-A championship game.

Other Players with Davie County ties....

Two former Davie County teammates will hit the field for North Carolina A&T University this fall.

Kevin Goolsby and Gerald Roberts are expected to see time for Bill Hayes' club.

Goolsby played only one play in 1993 but with the losses of several offensive linemen, he should see plenty this season in his redshirt freshman year.

Roberts was redshirted last year as well but expects to play wide receiver for the Aggies.

Hayes has even said players like Goolsby and Roberts have a shot to play because the Aggies will be young.

• Last season, some thought Chad Greene was crazy when he asked to be redshirted for his junior season.

The move looks brilliant now. With Lonnie Galloway graduated, Greene will have two years of eligibility remaining.

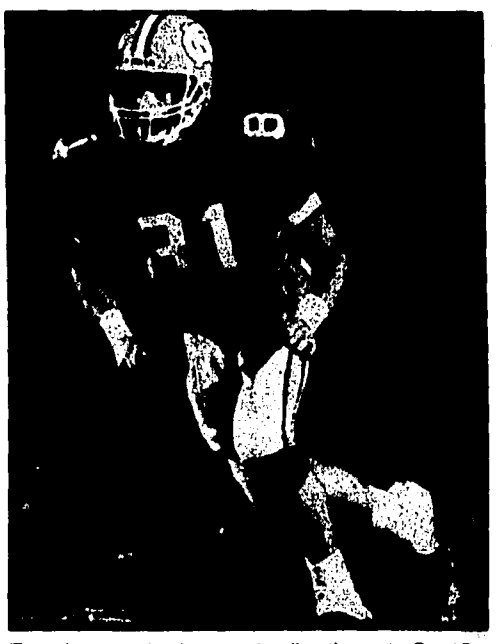

Greene, a former flamethrower for the Mocksville Legion baseball team, hopes his arm will carry Western to the Southern Conference championship.

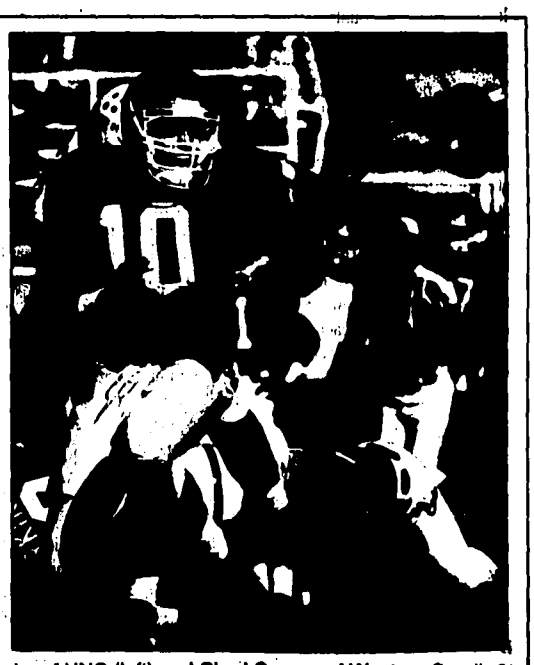

He was backup quarterback as a freshman and sophomore, becoming the first freshman to start a game at Western in 30 years. In 1992, he threw for 240 yards and three touchdowns while playing in every game, either at quarterback or on special teams. He also returned an onsides kick for a score.

Greene played at nearby Forbush High School, where he was the Northwest 2-A Offensive Player of the Year in 1990.

"Chad is an outstanding leader who has talents comparable to Lonnie Galloway," said coach Steve Hodgin. "He has experience and knows our offense inside and out as he has been in the program for three years."

Western opens Sept. 1 at home against Lenoir-Rhyne.

Two players going in opposite directions are Gray Bovender of UNC (left) and Chad Greene of Western Carolina.

Weightlifting Is For All Ages

Lee McCulloh's basement is well-stocked with weight machines and free weights. Davie High is taking advantage.

'Bodies By Lee'

Area Man Brings Davie County Athletes To Basement Full Of Weights To Pump Some Iron

Lee McCulloh looked around the huge basement of weightlifting equipment, then looked at his wife.

"I've got what they need," he said, referring to the Davie High School athletes. "But they don't know me."

They do now. Football players at Davie were traveling to McCulloh's Oak Grove Church Road home throughout the summer, building up their strength under the tutelage of a true weightlifting guru.

McCulloh, whose son, Matt, is a freshman at Davie, made himself known. He went to head coach Randall Ward with the idea of putting the players under a strict regimen of weightlifting.

"Randall came down and looked over what I had," McCulloh said. "I told him what I wanted to do and he liked what I had to say. I have better equipment than the school."

Ward also liked the basement. It is 1800 square feet, plenty of room for the 26 bodies who worked out there. And if they turn out like McCulloh's son, then the strength level will definitely help on the field against the always-larger opponents.

"Matt only weighs 98 pounds but he bench-presses in competition all around," McCulloh said. "He does well because of his light weight. Competition benching is based on percentage of body weight. Somebody who is 98 pounds lifting 145, that's almost 150 percent of your body weight. That usually gets you a trophy.

"I started Matt in the fifth grade with just a bar that weighed 30 pounds. I worked and worked with him. I saw he wasn't going to be that big. All I wanted to show the kids was if I could do that with him, what could I do with their size. Who knows how much it can help the football team."

Ward thinks quite a bit.

"Lee's an experienced weightlifter," he said. "We're always going to be smaller than most of the teams we play in our conference so this has to help. He's really helped the kids. It's a nice gesture."

The six-week program began June 12 and McCulloh admitted to being a drill sergeant.

"The workout would last an hour, an hour and a half," he said. "But they worked. I didn't let them stand around.

"I taught them how to bench competitve-style," McCulloh explained, "which they weren't used to doing. I taught the right technique and form on everything they did. It made a big difference. They all appreciated it."

McCulloh, 47, is a former weightlifter. Two torn rotator cuff injuries ended his career but he says he still lifts. "For 47, I do all I can," he said with a smile.

"With weightlifting, you get what you put into it," he continued. "You need a team around you. It's an individual situation. You can be as good as you want to be. That's what I liked about it."

McCulloh was working with the players five nights a week.

"I've dedicated my time but it was well worth it," he said. "These are real good kids. Most of them were seniors. Everyone would ask, 'Are you going to let us come here so we won't have to go to the high school?'"

McCulloh is already thinking about next season.

"I want to start with the underclassmen," he said. "I want to start with them in February or March and see what we can do in six months instead of six weeks."

He thinks the difference can be phenomenal.

"If we work with this next class early, you'll see some seriously strong kids," McCulloh said. "You'll have some true 300-pound benchers."

Lee McCulloh's son, Matt, has won events by benching 150 percent of his weight.

Junior High Players Use Weights To Prepare

Beck Started Program Long Ago

Are middle school athletes too young to be lifting weights?

Not if they lift properly, according to North Davie Middle School athletic director and football coach Ron Kirk.

"The seventh and eighth grades aren't too young to start lifting if you do it moderately," he explained. "You have to learn to pace yourself."

For the past 12 years, North has invited its athletes to the school for weightlifting sessions two or three times a week. This year, the numbers are way up, with 29 attending in anticipation of the seventh and eighth grade football seasons, which begin Aug. 23.

Just last week, coach Chris Callison and assistants Jerry and Howard Riddle greeted a roomfull of eager weightlifters. While the seventh graders went outside to run, the eighth grade went through their drills.

The 30-or-so bodies would have made former coach Sam Beck smile. This is what he envisioned when he began the program two years after North opened. He wanted to get his Wildcats prepared for the rigors of high school football at an early age.

"He had some free weights and then a Universal machine," said Kirk. "We did it in the spring. When Sam started coaching baseball, we did it three days a week in the spring and three days in the summer."

But the interest fizzled. Kirk finally revitalized it five years ago.

"We started three or four weeks before football," he said. "We've done it ever since, just enough to get them back in shape. At the time we do it, the kids are ready to come back to school and get involved in something."

Kirk was quick to point out that this isn't powerlifting. The prospects go through about 15 stations doing lightweight repetitions. They may work out an hour to 90 minutes.

"It's not a lot of powerlifting like in high school and college," said Kirk. "We get a little more tone back and work on our endurance with the running."

Kirk said he knows other middle schools are into lifting. He said wrestling was a good example. The Wildcats never look threatening as far as bulging muscles but they have won four straight conference titles.

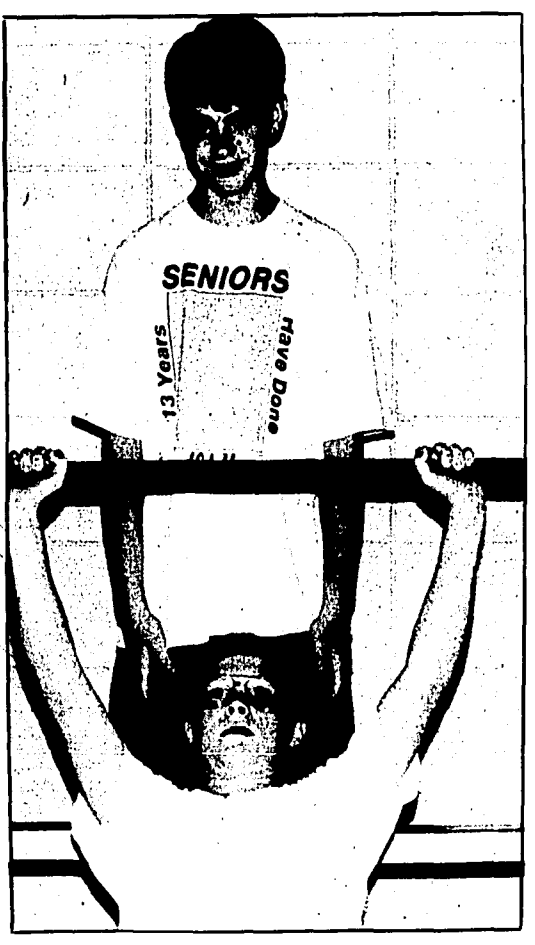

"We go places and see big, strong kids. They lift and play ball all summer. In wrestling, everywhere we went, as far as physical looks, we were twice as small. But we got the job done. We do a lot of conditioning that doesn't show muscles. It helps their strength. And they have good technique."

The lifting is mainly for toning. Being out of condition is usually not a problem for 12 and 13-year old boys, who are hyper anyway. Kirk knows at this young age, the players can usually play all day without getting tired.

"I don't think they ever get real out of shape," he said, "unless you have a kid overweight or real, real lazy."

North Davie coach Chris Callison walks among the 29 Wildcat prospects who have been lifting weights twice a week during the summer months.

Coaches say weightlifting helps the Wildcat athletes.

ND, SD Practices To Begin

North and South Davie middle schools are ready to begin football practice.

North Davie Middle School's first football practice has been changed to Friday, August 19 at 6 p.m.

Snakebit

Two, 1-Point Losses, Overtime Defeat Hurt

The 1993 football season left Davie High School coach Randall Ward wondering what the War Eagles must do to put a winning season on the board.

A 5-5 record could have easily been 8-2 had it not been for two one-point losses and another defeat in overtime. In all three games, the War Eagles dominated.

Below is a look back at 1993 with a game summary and coach's comments.

Davie 21
North Iredell 13

A strong fourth quarter that saw 13 points helped Davie past 3-A North Iredell in the season opener.

Hamilton Cuthrell took the first step toward a 1,000-yard season with 158 yards on 13 carries. He scored on runs of 30 and 73 yards, while Jonathan Vaughters sewed the game up with a late, 48-yard dash.

The defense may have won the game, however. North was within Davie's 20 four times but failed to score. The Raiders missed three field goals.

Ward Says: "I'll go anywhere with these kids. They're just a tough bunch."

Record: 1-0 overall; 0-0 in the Central Piedmont Conference.

Salisbury 21
Davie 20

In an unbelievable outcome, Salisbury ran in two fumble recoveries for touchdowns and won despite losing at one time 20-7 and being dominated by the War Eagles.

Two Ron Armstrong catches of 23 and 30 yards set up a score. Cuthrell scored twice and finished with 76 yards. But it was still a bitter defeat.

Ward Says: "This team is mentally tuned in. Tonight, we just made mistakes we shouldn't have made."

Record: 1-1 overall; 0-0 in the CPC.

Davie 37
Forbush 14

All 37 points were scored in the second half, the most points in a game since 1983. Davie managed only 58 first-half yards and trailed at halftime 7-0. But Cuthrell got cranked up with three scores and 112 yards rushing. Matt Sain averaged 42 yards on four punts.

Ward Says: "They wanted to prove they could play football."

Record: 2-1 overall; 0-0 in the CPC.

Davie 17
Starmount 14

Davie had a good offensive game against one of the state's top 2-A teams. The War Eagles racked up 342 total yards, including 281 on the ground.

Cuthrell and Jared Eure scored touchdowns and Cuthrell finished with 159 points. But it was Marnic Lewis' 22-yard field goal that won it with four minutes left.

Ward Says: "It was a real physical game. We reached down and played hard. We had several guys who had their best game defensively."

Record: 3-1 overall; 0-0 in the CPC.

Davie 33
South Stokes 0

No contest. Cuthrell's 80-yard scoring run started things. He has 10 touchdowns in five games to go with his 170 yards. Deryl Wilson, Josh Ward and Dwuan Jones intercepted passes with Wilson going 46 yards for a score.

Ward Says: It took a while to get going but the boys really played well, especially on defense."

Record: 4-1 overall; 1-0 in the CPC.

Mount Tabor 42
Davie 0

In another shocker, Davie was never in the game, thanks to eight turnovers. It was a sloppy game as both teams combined for 11 turnovers and 200 yards in penalties. The first play from scrimmage was Cuthrell's 22-yard run. It was Davie's highlight of the game. Davie never crossed midfield after halftime and had only 122 yards of total offense.

Ward Says: "You name it and we made mistakes on both sides of the ball."

Record: 4-2 overall; 1-1 in the CPC.

Reynolds 14
Davie 13

Davie outplayed the eighth-ranked 4-A team in the state but fell short when an extra point missed in the fourth quarter. Eure's 58-yard run set up the first Davie score. Cuthrell had a 44-yard touchdown run and 123 yards rushing. The defense held UNC recruit Jomo Legins to under 100 yards for the first time this season.

Ward Says: "It was more than a gallant effort. I've had a lot of football teams give me effort, but this was the best a team has ever given me."

Record: 4-3 overall; 1-2 in the CPC.

Davie 21
North Davidson 14

The defense forced three interceptions and two fumbles in the win, one going for a score by linebacker Mike Agrillo. Both Cuthrell and Eure were over 100 yards rushing and both scored TDs.

Ward Says: "Last week, we played our hearts out and lost. This week, we played our hearts out and won."

Record: 5-3 overall; 2-2 in the CPC.

South Rowan 27
Davie 7

The enigmatic season continued with the Homecoming loss. A long Cuthrell scoring run tied the game at 7 but South reeled off 20 straight points, thanks to five recovered fumbles. South played much better than its 3-6 record. Cuthrell still ran for 170 yards.

Ward Says: Give credit to South. They took advantage. You win by out-executing the other guy on both sides of the ball. That's what happened tonight."

Record: 5-4 overall; 2-3 in the CPC.

West Forsyth 20
Davie 13

In the most frustrating game of a frustrating season, Davie dominated only to lose in overtime. In the first half, Davie controlled the ball for 38 plays to West's 12. The game was still tied at 6 going into halftime. In overtime, from the 10-yard line, Wilson ran to the two on first down. But Davie could not get two yards in three other tries. West scored and won. Cuthrell sat out with a knee injury and Wilson took up the slack, scoring twice and running for 78 yards. Eure had 76.

Cuthrell still finished with 1,152 yards and led the team in scoring with 14 touchdowns and 84 points, the best single-game season since Reggie Sales five years earlier.

Ward Says: "This is a tough one to swallow. It wasn't from a lack of effort."

Final Record: 5-5 overall; 2-4 in the CPC.

Rain Interferes With Scrimmage

The weather did not cooperate with Davie County's scrimmage against North Rowan Saturday night.

The scrimmage got off to a late start, due to rain.

The Davie staff did not want to play on the football field because it would be torn apart with the wet sod. So the scrimmage was moved to the practice field.

Each team had three series of 10 plays. Deryl Wilson scored twice for the War Eagles and North Rowan eventually scored twice as well.

The scrimmage was called off due to darkness but assistant coach Jerry Walser said much was accomplished.

"It was what a scrimmage is supposed to be," Walser said. "The jayvees did not play because we got off to a late start. But we saw a few things we can work on to get better."

North Rowan was huge, according to Walser.

"It was a very physical scrimmage," he said. "There were ferocious blocks on each side. Up front, North Rowan was as big as anybody we'll see this year. They had speed at every position.

The varsity did bring up sophomore lineman David Koontz, making him the third tenth grader on the roster, along with running back David Daye and lineman Allee Boyce. Koontz stands 6-5 and weighs 224.

"He got in on 3, 4, 5 plays," Walser said. "We just wanted to see what he could do."

The jayvees have to wait yet another week before they get into action. There will not be an Endowment Game for jayvees against West Rowan Friday night.

Other Scrimmages

Six of the seven Central Piedmont Conference teams will play Endowment Games Friday.

Mount Tabor hosts Glenn, North Davidson hosts Thomasville, South Stokes hosts Mount Airy, South Rowan goes to East Rowan and Reynolds travels to East Forsyth.

West Forsyth is the only school not to schedule an Endowment Game.

This Year's Favorites

While last season had no clear-cut preseason favorite, this year is no contest.

Mount Tabor is thought of by almost everyone to win this year's CPC title. Bob Sapp's club has plenty of returning talent.

West Forsyth and Reynolds, despite heavy losses to graduation, are expected to be in the upper echelon.

Davie County was picked to finish fifth.

The State's Best

Nine players from the Central Piedmont Conference were named to the Top 100 Seniors and Juniors List for 1994.

South Rowan, which finished only 4-6 last year, surprised the league by having three named: 6-4, 205-pound linebacker Jeff Kerr, 6-3, 185 wide receiver Adrian Parker and junior lineman Lee Daugherty.

Reynolds also had three named, including seniors Chris Smalls, a defensive lineman, and two juniors, quarterback Bennie Griffin and linebacker Chris McCoy.

Mount Tabor placed senior lineman Chris Ellison, a 6-3, 266-pound behemoth, and defensive lineman Kelvin Jones, who stands 6-2, 245.

David Fleishhauer, a 6-5, 245-pound defensive lineman, was chosen to the list.

Davie County will see one of the state's best quarterbacks Sept. 16 in Chris Charles, who leads B.W. Holt's powerful Starmount squad.

Expect New Names

Don't expect the same names winning the four state championships this season.

In the last three years, 12 different champions have been crowned. Nobody has repeated since Richmond County in 4-A and Swain County in 1-A did it from 1988-90.

Last year's winners were Northern Durham in 4-A, West Brunswick in 3-A, Lincolnton in 2-A and Hobbton in 1-A.

A Belly Full Of Fun

Masonic Picnic Had Lots Of Food

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

In Davie County, people care about the right things.

"You appreciate the values of hard work and common sense," State Sen. Betsy Cochrane told the crowd at the 114th annual Masonic Picnic. "In Davie County, values are right and the family unit is strong."

Cochrane spoke to about 100 people who had gathered under the arbor. They had just listened to a choir from the N.C. Masonic Children's Home, and a rhythm band from the Masonic and Eastern Star Home for the elderly. Both organizations receive the proceeds from the picnic, sponsored by Masonic lodges in Farmington, Advance and Mocksville.

Others weren't quite as patient as those under the arbor.

About 50 had lined up to enter the picnic area, where tables had been filled with fried chicken, ham biscuits, casseroles, sandwiches, salads and desserts by Davie cooks.

Cochrane said Davie should be proud of its Masonic children. Her father was a Mason, and impressed those values upon his family.

"I am proud to be here not only as your guest, but as my father's personal representative," she said.

Living in stable communities like Davie County, it is hard to realize the serious issues facing society, Cochrane said.

We must, she said, learn how to better take care of and take care of more old people. Better nutrition and better health care is increasing the life expectancy, increasing the number of elderly.

Public education is equally as important, and there must be something to solve the disparity between the best and worst educational systems, Cochrane said.

Other problems, such as increases in crime, teen pregnancies, divorce, lower SAT scores, is a result of the breakdown of families.

"Don't think government will be successful in solving these problems," she said, unless we accept the fact that individual responsibility is the underlying cause.

Forefathers to Piedmont North Carolina brought moral values, were thrifty and conservative and believed in hard work. "These could be put to good use today," Cochrane said.

Problems must be solved in the local communities first, and they must be solved because of the values and character of the people in those communities.

"The people of Davie County know right and wrong, good and bad. I'm convinced the kinds of values and ethics the people in Davie County have holds the key to correcting most of the serious issues we face in some of our larger communities."

"Proclaim" will perform Sunday at Salem Methodist.

Gospel Group To Perform

If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God; if any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth: that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom be praise and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

1 Peter 4:11

The gospel singing ministry "Proclaim" will perform at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 21 at Salem United Methodist Church.

The group, based in Statesville, began in 1989 when a minister asked a group of young men to sing at a Sunday evening worship service.

Now, Mike Cline, Michael Roberts, Rodney Harrison and Rick Cline are singing at other churches, because, as they put it, "music plays a very special part in worship and ministry."

Proclaim performs all types of gospel music, from southern to traditional and even a little contemporary.

Mike Cline, Roberts and Harrison make up the vocals while Rick Cline is sound engineer.

Mocksville Church Group Aids Refugees

World media has captured the hearts of thousands of sympathetic people in North America who are responding to the unimaginable human suffering and brutal tragedy taking place in Rwanda.

The Seventh-day Aventist Church in Mocksville is helping through the International Adventist Development and Relief Agency (ADRA. ADRA has established a 12 person multinational medical team in Goma Zaire. This team is providing health care for 100,000 refugees with a primary focus on cholera treatment. ADRA water trucks are on hand in the camps purifying and distributing pure water. Between 20,000 and 30,000 people receive clean water every day from these trucks. About 210,000 refugees will receive much needed clothing and blankets from ADRA's warehouse, Adventist Community Service Centers, and Seventh-day Adventist church members in North America who donate their time and supplies.

A United Nations cargo plane loaded with 2.5 tons of ADRA medicines, cholera kites, antibiotics, medical equipment, water pumps, tanks and hoses with water purification tablets included, is now on its way to the camps from Nairobi, Kenya. Aboard this plane is a medical team of professional personnel, including Dr. Hugo Sosa, who heads ADRA's medical aid to Somalia.

Two more trucks are now leaving Uganda headquarters loaded with food, clothing, water pumps for wells, and high protein biscuits for disaster victims--enough to feed 55,000 refugees. ADRA has been working in Rwanda since 1979 until they were driven out.

ADRA's 25 years of work in Africa placed this agency in a strategic position to respond immediately to the crisis. It maintains a comprehensive network of facilities in Tanzania, Uganda, Kenya and Burudi.

Jenkins To Celebrate Second Anniversary

The second anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. Donald R. Jenkins will be celebrated Sunday, Aug. 21 with a fellowship dinner at 1:30 p.m. at Shiloh Baptist Church in Mocksville.

Jenkins

The Rev. W.E. Martin, choir and members of the Cedar Creek Missionary Baptist Church will conduct the service at 3 p.m., along with Mrs. Selena Mayberry, soloist.

Since assuming the Shiloh pastorate, Jenkins has led the church in several projects, including centralizing its budget, purchasing 3.5 acres of land adjacent to the church, and increasing tithes and offerings.

Many improvements have been made at the parsonage and fellowship hall, where a new central heating system was added.

At the church, a new pulpit Bible and pew Bibles have been purchased, new carpet has been placed in the vestibule, and carpet has been placed on the outside front porch. Gravel has been placed in the driveways, and steps have been erected leading to the fellowship hall.

Several members have either joined the church or have been restored to membership, and Jenkins teaches the Adult Sunday School class.

Shiloh's bulletin has taken on a new look under Jenkin's administration.

He also has plans for future projects, including adding Sunday School classrooms, new sanctuary and fellowship hall carpet, putting cushions in the pews, completing walkways around the church and developing the recently-purchased land.

Jenkins is president of the Davie County Branch of the NAACP and teaches English at Winston-Salem State University. He is also completing his doctorate in English at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

He is married to the former Linda Diann Swann of Laurinburg.

Jenkins' motto is: "If I can preach the unadulterated Word of Christ and help somebody as I pass along, then my living shall not be in vain."

Jerusalem Plans Homecoming

Jerusalem Baptist Church, 3203 US Hwy 601 South, will hold homecoming services beginning Sunday morning Aug. 21, with Sunday school at 9:45.

The Rev. Dennis Tofano will be guest speaker at the 11a.m. service.

He since has pastored several churches in the Texas, California, and North Carolina area. He is the former pastor of First Baptist Church in Welcome. He is presently involved in the discipleship ministry of Reavis Memorial Baptist Church in High Point.

A covered-dish meal will follow the service in the church arbor. Following the meal at 1:30p.m. there will be a time of music and fellowship with the New Souls Quartet.

Spiritual Resources: The Daisy

But Jesus said, "Let the children along, and so not hinder them from coming to me; for the kingdom of Heaven belongs to such as these."

By Shirley Cottle

Dear Child of God:

Have you ever walked with your parents or a friend, perhaps a grandparent, and saw a daisy growing where you walked and stopped to pick it? Perhaps your have pulled the petals off and said those familiar words your have heard others say that are like this: He or she loves me, loves me not. And you continue to say this until all the petals are gone. When you end with the last petal, you are saying "loves me" or "loves me not". That doesn't mean that the person you thought of really does or does not love you, for no flower can give you the answer to a human feeling.

However, I do like to think of the daisy as God's flower of love. The way I do this is to say with each petal I remove, "He loves me, He loves me, he loves me." In the New Testament Scripture, I John 4:8, are these wonderful words, "God is love." For God does love us always, and his love is more beautiful than a lovely daisy, and his love never ends.

The next time you are walking and pick a daisy, remember that each petal on that flower is a reminder that "He loves me. He love me."

Happy walking.

This Watermelon Is Big ... But Wait

You think this watermelon is big, just wait until next year.

Doug Carter, proud grower of an 86-pound watermelon in 1994, is already predicting a bigger melon next year.

He plants the Carolina Cross variety, and expects big melons.

Last year, a single vine yielded 56-, 54- and 49-pound melons.

This year, he cut all the extra melons off the vine, hoping all the growth would go to that one big one.

It worked, but the weather may have kept it from getting even bigger, Carter said. "All the rain pushed it to ripen too quick." At his garden in Farmington, 5.25 inches of rain was recorded in late July and early August.

"I beat last year's record but I'm going to push this one next year," Carter said.

Old School Target Of Neighborhood Group

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - Parents are afraid to let their children play in the neighborhood.

Residents have trouble getting by the traffic and pedestrians in the streets.

Welcome to North Cooleemee, home of drinking and drug deals.

But if a group of these residents have their way, that will be the North Cooleemee of the past. They're trying to clean up their neighborhood, starting with the old school.

They've asked the town for help, and are working with Roger Spillman, who owns the building. The old school has become a hangout. Weeds grow up the back of the building, and in the front, people sit in old chairs and make trips to the street to talk to passers-by. Trash cans filled with old liquor, beer and wine bottles were overflowing, and only recently have been emptied.

> "The people have lost confidence, especially the young people. They have no hope."

"I feel like that building is symbolic of what this community needs," said Genelle Watkins. "The people have lost confidence, especially the young people. They have no hope."

Cooleemee has no structured recreation programs for young or old people. "We have no youth programs," she said. "We don't have a YMCA, we don't have a recreation program. Outsiders come here and they think they can do whatever they want to do."

Bessie Wilson said neglect of the neighborhood is racist, and goes back for years.

When Davie County Schools no longer had a use for the building, which began as a school for blacks, they offered it to the county. County commissioners refused to

Cooleemee Mayor Going To Court

This Time, She Is Accused Of Assaulting Former Mayor's Wife

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

Cooleemee mayor Jackie Morton is going to court again.

On Tuesday afternoon, she was issued a criminal summons charging her with assault inflicting serious injury.

Morton knocked down Libby Gales, the wife of former mayor Bill Gales, in a quarrel at Cooleemee Town Hall Aug. 16.

According to the criminal summons, Gales said Morton grabbed her, hit her and knocked her down, injuring her back and right shoulder.

Bill Gales said his wife filed charges with the Davie County magistrate's office Tuesday morning but would not comment further.

Morton could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Police Chief Matt Dillon said Mrs. Gales filed a complaint with the town's police department on the afternoon of the alleged assault.

Dillon said, because there were no witnesses to an assault, it was up to the parties involved to press criminal charges.

Town clerk Shirley Jacobs said she heard Morton and Mrs. Gales arguing but did not see anything happen.

Dillon said Mrs. Gales told him she had gone to town hall around 11:30 a.m. to talk to Jacobs when she and Morton got into an argument.

Morton grabbed her, tried to kick her and shoved her out the door, she told Dillon.

Magistrate Robert W. Cook said he chose to issue a summons rather than a warrant because Morton had not bothered Mrs. Gales since the incident and had made court appearances when ordered to in the past.

According to Cook, the only

Fire District Funds Studied

Elvis, Mayberry And Dancing In The Streets: It's A 'Blast From The Past'

Grease back your hair. Put on your bobby socks. And shine up that old Mustang.

Downtown Mocksville is having a party this Saturday. Even Elvis is coming.

Called "Blast from the Past," the day-long celebration will feature contests, music and cars.

Highlighting the event will be The Catalinas from 1-3 p.m. and Harry Deal & the Galaxies playing for a street dance from 7-10 p.m.

Elvis has promised to bring his 30-minute "Hunka Hunka Burning Love" show, but the time isn't definite.

The day starts at 10 a.m. with a classic car parade from Rich Park to downtown. The cars will be on display throughout the day.

Other entertainment will include karaoke, local bluegrass musicians, cloggers and drama students.

Harry Deal's group played for a street dance here a couple of years ago, and several hundred area residents put their feet to the pavement. "When we did the street dance, everything everybody said was real positive. They wanted us to do it again," said Janice Schooler, executive director of the Downtown Merchants.

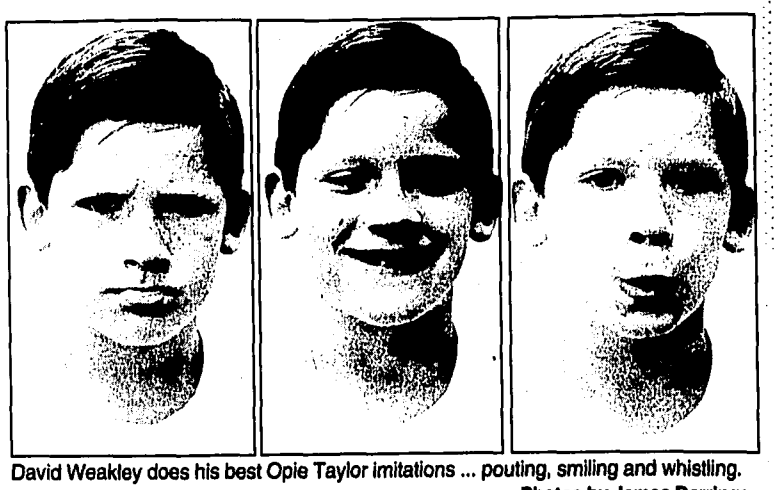

Not wanting to compete with the Arts Alive festival, they decided to make cars the feature of this celebration.

In addition to the display, there will be a poker rally, with participants driving on a type of scavenger hunt across Davie County to pick up envelopes containing a card. The best poker hand at the end wins the top prize.

Prizes and trophies will also be awarded for the many contests, such as pie eating, hula hooping, jitterbug, and sock hop fashion show.

Andy Griffith's Mayberry patrol car will be on display Saturday, and will be on hand Friday when WXII does a live weather report from downtown. Area residents wanting to get on television should be there by 6 p.m., said Jonathan Wishon, organizer.

Gregory Trial Leaves Community With Sorrow

There was no feeling of relief. No vengeful sense that he got what he deserved. No belief that a message has been sent to criminals.

Just sadness.

The murder of Rolanda Evette Howell is still hard to believe. Hard to believe because of its stupidity, its incredible tragedy and because the plot was hatched by a young mind that should have known better.

In striking ways, the case is Davie County's mini-version of the O.J. Simpson case.

William Christopher Gregory, the former high school star running back, killed his sweetheart, the mother of his infant son. Because she had broken off their relationship.

It's impossible to feel anything but sorrow for the families on both sides of the tragedy. They are good people, respectable families. They conducted themselves with unusual dignity during the trial. Gregory's mother never tried to dodge her son's responsibilities for his actions. The Howell family, in its grief, exhibited courage and a quiet resolve to see the trial through.

The Howells have suffered. Their beautiful daughter is gone. Their teenaged son, so promising and athletic, has been savaged by a bullet in the brain. And their infant grandson, a witness to the murder of his mother as he huddled in bed with her, has been left with those haunting emotional scars.

Gregory's actions — so bizarre, so callous — defy explanation.

Nothing in his life suggested he was a mean person. He had no criminal history. There was nothing to suggest the future. But at one critical moment, Chris Gregory used incredibly poor judgment. Not once, but repeatedly.

Was it a Romeo and Juliet fantasy?

Did he grasp that death is permanent?

He was carrying a loaded shotgun in his car. It had accidentally discharged at a store after he bought shells. But that didn't shake him from his plan. He went on to break into the house that early morning. Evette Howell was still sleeping with their 18-month-old son.

According to the testimony, Gregory closed his eyes and pulled the trigger. The blast killed his sweetheart, the mother of his son, as she pulled the bed covers over her head and screamed.

If we could understand love-blinded rage, if we could blame the same mentality that turns lovers into killers, what happened next can't be defended. Evette's brother, Trevor O. "Fonzie" Howell, waking up and responding to her screams, was also shot. He was left for dead.

Gregory and his 14-year-old cousin, Gabe Wilson, then fled, locking the door of the house behind them.

The baby ... was left behind. Left in the bed with his dead mother. Left to wander from room to room, from mother to uncle. Left for more than an hour. Gregory's own son.

If anything robbed the jury of sympathy, if anything could have chilled the mercy from their hearts, it must have been that.

The murder and trial have been a great tragedy. Our hearts have ached for both families. Chris Gregory was not a bad person. He had been taught goodness and decency. But on one morning of his life, he ruined it all.

Law Officers, Not Mayors, Are Qualified

To the editor:

This letter is in reply to Karla Bean's in the Aug. 18 Enterprise.

I also feel compelled to write and feel more qualified.

I also served in the military police and retired from the nation's largest sheriff's and best sheriff's department. I believe it is now the third largest police department. I have an associate degree in police science, a teaching credential in same, an unaccredited law degree and more than 1,500 hours training on police subjects. I even worked for Davie Sheriff's Department for seven years.

Karla Bean, I think you need to learn more on police administration and functions.

One of the biggest problems in this state is politics in police work. A department should be led by the department head under given guidelines. Some states hire through civil service to obtain the best qualified applicants. They are also protected under civil service and is a form of checks and balances. Neither the chief or mayor hire. Nor does a politician run or restrict the police in their function.

The last man hired by Cooleemee was an auxiliary officer, who worked undercover and obviously it was not broadcasted. His background had to be checked prior to being an auxiliary and if not approved, he would not be certified by the state.

Alleged means declared without proof. Karla Bean, you are accepting as fact that what is alleged. I would like to have specifics before I accuse.

As far as Mayor Morton entering a locked police department door, it shows a lack of proper courtesy. It may even involve a federal Supreme Court decision called the "Michigan Stripping Act." I'm told it restricts high politicians and others from entering secured areas. In this state, it may be breaking and entering. In some states, the entering and taking is called burglary and treated as a felony.

As far as respecting the position and not the person, I find it hard to do with our Democratic presidents, Hillary and Bill. This is why we have an impeachment provision.

Chief Dillon was schooled and tested in order to be a certified officer. I know him, worked with and for him and have always found him to be highly qualified and professional. He wasn't certified by votes.

Police should be above reproach as should all politicians. Past surveys have shown that the public trust police more than politicians.

I worked as an auxiliary officer for Cooleemee and I'm aware of Ms. Morton's unusual thinking. If she is not against the police, she has a strange way of administration. A prime example was her original proposal of drug testing of every three months. It would cause some to allege that the police are dope addicts.

Law enforcement officers are not above the law, neither are mayors or presidents. If Ms. Morton had asked Chief Dillon a specific question, I'm sure he would answer appropriately.

Morton was arrested for her known conduct. She was given a chance to correct the situation and refused. I believe the city commissioners said she should pay for the damage. The judge recommended mediation, which also failed. We now await court and/or an investigation by the state.

I consider Matt Dillon as a good friend and also know him as Chief Dillon, an excellent chief.

By the way, Karla, what do you think of Ms. Morton the mayor pushing Mrs. Gales?

Mariners Make Trip

To the editor:

On Monday, July 25, the Davie Mariners AAU baseball team began their pitch to fulfill a chance of a lifetime to play in the national 12 and under AAU tournament in Burnsville, Minn.

The tremendous generosity demonstrated by local and area businesses and individuals provided the financial support that was necessary to turn the chance of a lifetime into the experience of a lifetime for 15 young men.

Thank you.

New Addresses Not Handled In A Professional Manner

To the editor:

I am outraged by the unprofessioal manner in which the Davie County Planning & Zoning Office is handling the assignment of new addresses for the 911 system. I never received notification of my new address from the post office, so I phoned the Planning & Zoning Office in mid-June. I was given my new address and told to begin using it on July 1. I made numerous address changes, (license, checks, address labels, signs, mailbox, creditors and relatives) based on this information.

I recently (Aug. 15) discovered that my neighbor and I were assigned the same address. After some investigation I found that mine was assigned in error. Now I am expected to change my address again, and at my cost. This is totally absurd. I did not make the error, but am expected to pay for all these changes again with just a "we're sorry" from the Planning & Zoning Office.

In talking with John Gillmore from Planning & Zoning, I learned that there are other people who have been assigned the wrong address. Are we all expected to pay for their mistakes? I have written letters to the county manager and the county commisssioners to ask for reimbursemint for the changes I will have to make due to their error and I encourage every person who was issued the wrong address to do the same.

Paying for these kinds of mistakes only sends the message that it's OK to do a bad job, at the expense of the residents of this county. Well for this resident, it's not OK.

Rednecks Pick Teeth With Knife

Mike Barnhardt

Rednecks are more popular than ever.

Books are being written about them, comedians are making thousands off them, radio announcers are getting a few chuckles off them.

Being a redneck has become so fashionable that those born without the traits are just plain acting red. It's enough to make a true redneck blush.

So how can you tell if your neighbor is a Davie County redneck?

If you could walk under his pickup truck without ducking, he might be a redneck. If there's a "If You Don't Like Hank Williams You Can Kiss My (Insert a picture of a donkey here)" bumper sticker, he is a redneck.

If a Confederate flag is somewhere on his property, he might be a redneck. If the Confederate flag is used to cover the picture window in his living room, he is a redneck.

If he wears a Davie County Rebels shirt, he might be a redneck. If he would shoot an eagle if it flew over his property, he is a redneck.

If he thinks a barbecue sandwich and a Cheerwine is a gourmet meal, he might be a redneck. If he starts slobbering at the talk of pickled pig's feet and Old Milwaukee, he is a redneck.

If he talks to his dog nicer than he does his wife, he might be a redneck. If he spends more time with his dog than his wife, he is a redneck.

If he cleans the grease from under his fingernails with a pocket knife, he might be a redneck. If he takes the knife from his fingernails straight to pick last night's supper from his teeth, he is a redneck.

Don't think that men have cornered the redneck market. Your neighbor female girl woman lady friend could be a redneck, as well.

If she wears a wide leather belt with her name engraved on it, she might be a redneck. If that belt is holding up a pair of jeans that hasn't been washed in this decade, she is a redneck.

If her hair is so big she has to turn sideways to go through a doorway, she might be a redneck. If lighting a match anywhere near that hair would cause a Hiroshima size explosion, she is a redneck.

If she thinks race car drivers are better athletes than Olympic decathletes, she might be a redneck. If she should leave her man for one night with Darrell Waltrip, she is a redneck.

If she knows how to use a muzzleloader, she might be a redneck. If she has a lifetime hunting license, she is a redneck.

If her theory on makeup is the more you use the better it looks, she might be a redneck. If she buys eye shadow by the bucket full, she is a redneck.

If her idea of a perfect man has something to do with the truck he drives or his ability to pick out the best John Wayne movie from the satellite dish, she might be a redneck. If she borrows her man's pocket knife for fingernail cleaning and teeth picking, she is a redneck.

Legion Baseball Positive Experience

To the editor:

I subscribed to your paper this past spring because of my interest in Mocksville Legion baseball. I have not been disappointed. Ronnie Gallagher has done a superb job of covering legion play. Legion ball is a wonderful opportunity for talented young men to spend their summers learning while playing a game that they love. These young people, both players and fans, chose to spend their summer involved in a very constructive activity. We need more opportunities similar to this to offer our young people during the summer.

On behalf of my nephews, Adam and Russ Pardue, their family, and loyal fans I send a special thanks to everyone who made this experience possible. Of course an extra special thanks to Coach Ijames, who is one in a million.

Bessie Wilson and Genelle Watkins talk about strategies for improving neighborhood. - Photos by Robin Fergusson

When the photographer arrived, people hanging out at the old school fled, but the sight is common for Wilson and Watkins.

Hickory Street Group Trying To Turn Eyesore Into Community Center

accept the building. One said the blacks had torn it up. Another made a racial joke. That was in 1989.

The town of Cooleemee also didn't want the building, and soon after incorporation, it wasn't sure what part of the area was in the city limits.

"They didn't want Hickory Street because they didn't want any blacks in town," Wilson said. The town chose to accept the Zachary House, she said. It is in a predominately white neighborhood.

"What it boils down to is they decided not to address this problem, period. We feel like what they did was a disservice to this community," Wilson said.

"This community, this part of the county, we don't hardly get anything from our tax money," Watkins said.

"People who live out there can't even let their children go out and play," said Wilson. "It's ridiculous. There's a curve there and they'll just park in the street. Every day, there's people there like they're daring you to hit them.

"Seeing it every day, we decided to start a group and see if we could get something done," Wilson said.

They made their plea at a town board meeting, asking for members to work with their group. Grimes Parker volunteered. Parker and board member Darrin Hartness have met with the group and shared ideas.

"We need strong support," Watkins said. "It needs to be a community program."

They have discussed purchasing the building. Grants could be available, they said, if the town gets involved.

Spillman said he would sell the building for what he has in it. If it was a non-profit group, he would be willing to give them a break on the price and use it as a tax write off.

Spillman said he bought the old school to use as a warehouse, but other space became available at the Burlington mill site within a year and he moved most of his goods out of the old school. "There's a little bit of stuff in there, but nothing that would take me very long to move."

There's also a woman living in the old school. Spillman said he has told her to leave, but as of last week, she was still living there.

Wilson and Watkins fear for the woman's safety. The building is dirty, and the woman appears to be abused, they said. They asked Social Services to help the woman, but were told she would have to ask for the help.

"She said she has to take water in there ... to make the commodes work," Wilson said.

"It's sad to see living conditions like this in America," Watkins said. It would be wonderful to see her in nicer housing. Where's the help when people need it. She has problems with drug abuse and alcohol abuse."

Wilson added: "Every time we see her, she has a black eye or a bruised face."

Spillman said the condition of the building has worsened, but it can still be renovated.

That's exactly what the Hickory Street group wants. The building would be an excellent place for youth programs or elderly programs.

When it was offered to the town five years ago, a developer had a plan to renovate the school into apartments for the elderly.

"They denied a lot of people down here housing, people who really needed that type of housing," Wilson said.

Hartness told fellow board members about a program in Spencer, which offered after school and summer programs for the youth. Parents pay $10, and the program includes devotions, academics, cultural awareness activities, and recreation. It is funded privately and by United Way and other agencies.

"It has a real community value ... for kids who may be out in the street if it weren't there," he said.

Hartness sees that as a good use for the North Cooleemee School building.

"It would take a lot of money. There are a lot of grants out there, and I hope the town could kick in some funds for this project."

Wilson liked that idea, as well.

"If we could get to them when they're young, maybe we could make a difference," she said.

For now, they're faced with drumming up enough support to buy the building. That will take $30,000 or more. Then there will be repairs. It needs a roof, and the windows have been covered with cement.

Whatever happens, members of the Hickory Street group will be right there.

They're not going to stand by and listen to empty promises, Wilson said. They need help. They deserve help.

North Cooleemee has been neglected for too many years, she said.

Harry Dean & The Galaxies will perform for street dance Saturday night in Mocksville.

Fire Tax Allocations Under Study

are as important as a house in Bermuda Run," Brickey said.

"Ms. (Diane) Foster said there's no north, south, east or west. I take exception to that. You're paying Clemmons $20,000 a year to provide fire protection to Bermuda Run. Is my tax dollar going to provide fire protection to Bermuda Run?"

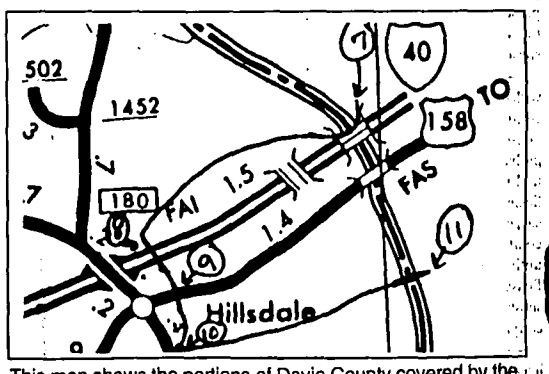

County Manager Ken Windley said negotiations with Courtney Fire Department resumed last Friday.

He met with county commissioners behind closed doors Monday night, but no official action was taken after that meeting. The board did not decide on an amount to offer Courtney.

Fire departments, including Courtney, will still respond to calls in Brickey's neighborhoods.

Courtney, upset over the amount of money offered by Davie officials, decided not to include Davie property in its district. That will mean the average homeowner will have to pay more than $100 more a year for insurance.

County commissioner Carl Boon, a Bermuda Run resident, said Clemmons has been providing fire protection to an area in eastern Davie for a long time, even before Bermuda Run was developed. The Clemmons district extends beyond the Bermuda Run boundaries, he said.

This map shows the portions of Davie County covered by the Clemmons Fire Dept.

Clemmons also covers much of the Bahnson farm in Davie County (see map), and part of property along U.S. 158 east of N.C. 801.

Joe Long, chairman of the county board, said the out-of-county fire department appropriations are based on the amount of area covered. "All of this is being mulled over by the board, and the board has not come to a decision," he said.

The money for fire departments comes from a county-wide 4-cent fire tax. After out of county departments are paid, $20,000 to Clemmons, $800 to Scotch-Irish, and $500 to Lone Hickory, it is divided evenly among Davie's departments, regardless of size of the area covered, the amount of property value or population.

This year, each of Davie's volunteer fire departments will receive $38,000 from the fire tax.

Blast From Past Is This Saturday

On Saturday, there will be Mayberry look-alike contests. Come dressed as Andy, Barney, Aunt Bee, Opie, Floyd, Goober or Ernest T. Bass. If you want to have your photograph made with a Mayberry character, cut outs will be available.

At least one Davie boy, David Weakley, 7, son of David and Kimberly Weakley of Advance, has been told many times he looks like Opie. He doesn't like it much. "I don't really watch it (Andy Griffith Show) that much," he said. Times do change. The Andy Griffith Show goes up against the Power Rangers. Not much of a choice for a 7-year-old boy nowadays.

Concessions will be available throughout the day and night, and hot air balloon rides will be available, weather permitting, from 5-7 p.m. There will be a dunking booth, face painting and street chalk art for the children.

A special meeting has been called for 7 p.m. Thursday at town hall, at which time the board is expected to act on a resolution requesting the district attorney bring in the SBI to investigate Morton's claims of wrongdoings in the police department, and to investigate Morton's conduct during her investigations and accusations.

Four vehicles collided on N.C. 801 around 2 p.m. Aug. 17.

According to Trooper P.T. Hennelly, all four were traveling south. As Yonnie Renee Allen, 18, Mocksville, approached a traffic light where the other three vehicles were stopped, the light turned green.

Lynda Moss Alexander, 48, of Advance started to go, but her 1986 Jeep stalled. Juanita Hute Groce, 47, of Advance, remained stationary behind Alexander in a 1989 Dodge van.

Bobby Pool Dunn, 61, of Advance, saw Allen approaching from the rear and pulled his 1986 Dodge pickup to the right to avoid being hit.

Allen's car struck the back left quarter of Dunn's truck before hitting Groce's van in the rear, forcing it into Alexander's vehicle.

Allen was charged with failure to reduce speed.

No injuries were reported.

Two Injured In Accident

Latrance Gray Peebles, 24, Mocksville, and Sonja Cherise Carter, 24, Winston-Salem, were taken to N.C. Baptist Hospital for treatment of injuries after an accident on Baltimore Road at 7:50 a.m. Aug. 17.

According to Trooper P.T. Hennelly, Peebles and Carter were traveling north when Carter stopped her 1983 Honda to make a left turn.

Peebles attempted to stop her 1978 Toyota but could not, striking Carter's car in the rear.

Carter told Hennelly she signalled to turn left, but Peebles said Carter had pulled onto the road from a parking entrance and stopped in the road.

Peebles was charged with failure to reduce speed and no seat belt.

Cooleemee Town Clerk Resigns To Take Job In County Tax Office

COOLEEMEE - The town clerk here resigned last week, and a town commissioner is likely to resign soon.

Clerk Shirley Jacobs said she found a better job in the Davie County Tax Office, and will work in Cooleemee through Aug. 31.

She wouldn't say whether recent troubles at town hall had anything to do with her resignation. "No comment," she said.

Jacobs turned in her resignation a day after an alleged altercation between Mayor Jackie Moron and the wife of the town's first mayor, Bill Gales.

Gales' wife reported that Morton had pushed her out the town hall door, causing her to fall.

This Thursday, Jacobs has been called to testify in Morton's trial for larceny and damage to property. Morton is accused of stealing an alarm from the town's police department door, and Jacobs was the only other person in town hall at the time.

Jacobs said she has enjoyed working for the town, but the new job is full time with more benefits.

Town officials are also pleased with her work, and gave her a merit pay raise this year.

Morton said applications are being accepted for the job. The town is advertising for applicants in the Salisbury Post, Davie Enterprise Record and with the ESC, she said.

Town commissioner Darrin Hartness also may resign soon. Hartness has a new job in Stanly County, and said he is looking to move closer to that job.

Since coming on the board, Hartness has studied situations such as the swimming pool and police department and offered the board options on how to handle the issues.

Formerly a computer specialist with Rowan-Salisbury Schools, Hartness began working Aug. 8 as instructional technology specialist for Stanly County Schools.

Davie Fire Service Recognized

North Carolina Insurance Commissioner Jim Long recently recognized the fire service in Davie County with a certificate for having 100 percent participation in the N.C. Fire Incident Reporting System.

Fire departments must file a report each time they respond to an alarm. These reports are collected by the Davie Fire Marshal's office and sent to the state.

According to Cynthia F. Winbon, coordinator of education and incident reported for the N.C. Department of Insurance, the data collected through the reporting system has been critical in the areas of injury prevention, training and standards development, and legislation on behalf of the fire services.

"Thanks for helping us to fight fire with facts," she said.

Davie Fire Marshal George Frye said he is proud to accept the certificate on behalf of the Davie County fire departments. "I thank each department for submitting their reports in a timely manner each quarter," he said.

Local Musicians To Perform At Fest

Davie County musicians will be among those taking the stage this Saturday at the Union Grove Music Fest at Fiddler's Grove Campground.

The program, from 7-10 p.m., will feature seventh and eighth generation of acoustical string band music played by families of the Union Grove community.

That includes the Harper Van Hoy family, with Harper on fiddle, wife Wansie on the bass tub, and son Hank of Mocksville on the guitar. Hank's son, Matt, will be among other children to play percussion instruments and possible do a little clogging. Other family members play the hammered dulcimer, guitar and banjo.

The Southland String Band, featuring Davie residents Carl Wicker on banjo, Dr. Frank Tolbert on guitar and vocals, David Long on guitar and vocals, Sharon Anderson on vocals, Bill Foster on bass, Ricky Naylor on mandolin and vocals and Randy Gardner on guitar, is also scheduled to perform.

Other groups will include L.W. Lambert and the Blue River Boys, The Ireland Family, The Lunsford Family and the Gospel Voices.

The campground is located off N.C. 901 in Union Grove.

Local Attorney Named To Case

Local attorney Grady McClamrock has been appointed to serve as one of the defense attorneys for a man charged with the 1985 murder of a 16 year old Lexington girl.

Ricky Lee Sanderson was sentenced to death in Iredell County in 1987 for the murder of Sue Ellen Holliman.

In a 1986 taped confession, Sanderson said he got up on the morning of the murder and injected himself with drugs.

He admitted to breaking into the victim's house, pulling her to his car and riding around with her in the passenger floorboard for about two hours before he stopped and forced her into the trunk.

After injecting himself with more drugs and digging a grave in a field, he removed her from the trunk, choked her and stabbed her in the chest with a knife, he said in the confession.

Evidence was found in his car and on the victim's body to indicate she had been in the passenger area and trunk of his car.

The N.C. Supreme Court granted Sanderson an appeal based on incorrect jury instructions in that trial.

The judge told the jury they must find a mitigating factor unanimously before considering it. That is true for aggravating factors presented by the prosecutor, but only one juror needs to believe a mitigating factor is present for it to be given consideration.

The Supreme Court said the verdict might have been different if the jury had understood this.

District attorney Butch Zimmerman said Sanderson had filed a letter requesting the appointment of a second counsel and is asking for a speedy trial.

Judge W. Steven Allen, who appointed McClamrock to the case, said his service is appreciated and goes above and beyond the call of duty.

First attorney for the case is Jim McMillan of Davidson County.

Davie Schools

North Davie Middle School

The PTSA's Fund Raising Campaign "WUC-25-TY?" will start Friday, Aug. 26. The goal of $12,000 will be used to help network the new computer lab with each of the classrooms. As well as this fund, several PTSA committees such as Student Enrichment (which has plans to bring many programs to middle school students), Beautification, Student Directory and Hospitality, members are selling wonderful Innsbrook wrapping paper to meet our goal. If each student would sell $50 worth of paper that would give the PTSA a profit of $25 per student, which would equal $15,500. That's parent power.

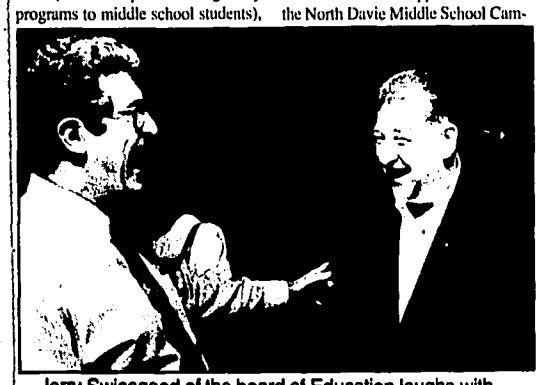

New faces will appear all around the North Davie Middle School Campus this year. With the exit of ninth grade teachers to the high school and with many other transfers, there has been an entrance of nearly 30 new personnel. Beginning his second year at the helm, Principal Larry Bridgewater and staff assures all incoming 6th and 7th graders and returning 8th graders a year of excitement and anticipated wide-spread success. "If it's to be, it begins with me" is the theme for the 1994-95 school year. Look forward to a weekly profile of new staff as well as news of the eclectic excitement that will encompass the Wildcat campus.

He has been the keynote speaker at several major educational conferences, including the National Dropout Prevention Conference and the National Effective Schools Conference.

Three From Davie Complete Summer Ventures Programs In Science And Mathematics

Three Davie students were among 600 from 89 counties to complete the 1994 Summer Ventures in Science and Mathematics program.

Timothy Carle of Advance and Leslie Fender attended sessions at Western Carolina University, and Derek Foster attended a session at Appalachian State University.

Drawing from sub-disciplines within biology, chemistry, earth sciences, pure and applied mathematics and oceanography and physics, the program provides participants opportunities to work with university faculty and master teachers in the investigation of a problem of the student's choice.

The program is designed to enrich high school courses work, expanding the students' experience in scientific inquiry, mathematical problem solving and computer applications.

Students were taught elementary design, laboratory skills, instrumentation, mathematical modeling, strategies in mathematical problem solving and exploratory data analysis.

Information was provided about careers in science and math, as was social issues related to science and communication skills for math and science competitions.

The program is the nation's largest research-oriented, cost-free residential summer program.

Books Can Help With Late Summer Vacations

Planning late summer and early fall car trips?

In North Carolina, Off The Beaten Path, read about everything to visit from museums, special restaurants and picnic areas, to garden shops.

Touring The Western North Carolina Backroads describes places such as Plum Tree, the site of the film adaption of John Ehle's novel The Winter People. The author Carolyn Sakowski tried to avoid interstates and the Blue Ridge Parkway which have been covered in other guidebooks. The preface is a necessary part in which she states that she has "tried to alert readers when rough roads may be anticipated." She gives framework and other important coutions for the use of the book.

The Davie County Public Library has a wide variety of books on tape for those times in the car when the travelers are between scenic areas. Bored riders can listen to books by John Grisham, Mexico by James Michener, Skinwalkers by Tony Hillerman, or Elvis Is Dead And I Don't Feel So Good Myself by Lewis Grizzard among many other titles.

Davie Woman To Celebrate 106th Birthday

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

ADVANCE - She dresses herself every morning – never forgetting to put on an apron like she always wore as a housewife. She makes up her bed and heads to the dining room for breakfast.

If that alone doesn't sound exciting, you should hear some of the stories the oldest resident at Meadowbrook Terrace Nursing Home has to tell about living more than 100 years.

Born Aug. 29, 1888, in Surry County near Dobson, Lela Wolfe Simpson will be 106 Monday.

She will celebrate Sunday with a birthday meal at Quincy's, which will include a special visit by a WXII TV news crew from Winston-Salem.

She is also expecting birthday wishes from Willard Scott of the Today show and Aunt Eloise of WTQR radio in Winston-Salem.

"I don't know how I've made it," she said. "I just lived."

Her daughter, Thelma Plemmons of Farmington Road, said she brought her mother to live with her in Davie County 20 years ago after she broke her hip.

Plemmons had to have surgery about four years ago. That's when Simpson moved to Meadowbrook Terrace.

"They're good to her here," Plemmons said.

She now visits her mother every day.

Plemmons said she often heard her mother say the Lord has blessed her, and her life has centered around her family.

She married Walter Simpson in 1903 when she was 15. They had eight children.

Plemmons said three of Simpson's children are still living. The youngest is 70. She has 20 grandchildren, 47 great grandchildren and nine great, great grandchildren.

Simpson said it was never a struggle to raise eight children because her husband helped.

"We had plenty. We didn't ever suffer for anything," she said.

She said she remembers things about her youth better than she remembers the recent past.

She said she had three or four sweethearts before her husband, but she can't remember their names. She said there was a little room in the front of the house where she did her courting.

She said she used to walk to church and school. She completed the seventh grade, which was as high as one could go at the local school at that time. She said all the students at the school were in one room.

"We used to go to church a right smart piece from home. We went in a covered wagon and all thought we had it made," she said.

She said she could remember her grandfather, Israel Moses, giving her a whipping when she was 10 years old for "hollering".

She was raised on an old plantation where they used to have slaves. Her family bought the property soon after she was born.

Plemmons said the Wolfe family dug all around the property looking for money they believed the previous owners had buried. She said her mother still believes there's money hidden up there.

Simpson can also remember her first car ride. It was in the 1920s when her husband had just bought a Model T Ford.

She said she didn't know how to start it, so her husband did and let her drive it all the way home.

"When I got home, I didn't know how to stop it, so I ran it into the house," she said. She added that she was able to slow it down a little first.

Simpson said she has been dipping snuff for about 90 years. She said her husband's mother got her into using it to brush her teeth when she was 15.

"I didn't know it would be a habit," she said. "I chew chewing gum now to keep from using it."

Plemmons said her mother used to do a lot of reading. She can't see to read her Bible anymore but likes to keep it nearby.

"She was a super cook. She made pies and cakes – no just one or two, but a dozen," Plemmons said.

She said her mother can't be as active as she was when she was younger because her sight and her hearing are so poor, but she still likes to go to singings at the Meadowbrook Terrace chapel and loves to have visitors.

"I have a lot of friends and loved ones everywhere around," Simpson said.

Other than problems with her hearing and sight, Simpson has broken both hips and pins in them. She is still able to walk with a walker.

Arthritis medication is the only medicine she takes. She weighs 93 pounds and just received a clean bill of health from the doctor.

Simpson said she appreciates everything that is being done to celebrate her birthday.

Plemmons said her mother is excited about the party.

"I told her if she lives to be 2000, I'm not having her a big party," Plemmons said.

About to turn 106, Lela Simpson still makes up her bed every morning.

Grilled Poultry Adaptable To A Variety Of Tastes, Recipes

Grilled poultry can be enhanced in a number of ways to achieve a variety of taste variations.

Change the flavor of basic barbecued chicken or turkey by adding different aromatic woods to the fire (mesquite, cherry, apple or hickory). There are many different marinades, basting sauces and rub-on seasonings to enhance the natural flavor of grilled poultry. You can go fancy with grilled kabobs by alternating chunks of chicken/turkey on skewers, with chunks of raw vegetables and fruits for more exotic backyard entertaining.

Here are some poultry cook-out suggestions from the N.C. Poultry Federation that will surely make your Memorial Day celebration a great success.

For more detailed grilling information and additional grilled chicken and turkey recipes, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Chicken/Turkey Grilling Recipes, c/o NCPF, 4020 Barrett Drive, Suite 102, Raleigh, NC 27609.

Basic Grilled Chicken/Turkey

On prepared grill with rack about 6-8 inches from heat source, place broiler-fryer chicken halves, quarters or parts. Grill, turning frequently (using tongs to prevent piercing skin), about 1 to 1-1/4 hours or until fork tender. Whole turkey breasts, turkey hindquarters and turkey halves will take about 1-1/2 to 2 hours to cook. Homemade or bottled barbecue sauces may be brushed on poultry during last 15 minutes of grilling time.

Simply Great Grilled Chicken

1 cut-up broiler-fryer chicken
1/2 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup sherry
2 tablespoons canola oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon pepper

In jar with lid, place soy sauce, sherry, canola oil, garlic, ginger and nutmeg; shake well. Reserve half of mixture for basting and pour remainder over chicken in bowl. Cover chicken and marinate in refrigerator 4 hours or more. Place chicken on prepared grill, skin side up, about 8 inches from heat; sprinkle with pepper. Grill chicken, turning and basting with reserved marinade every 10 minutes, for about 1 hour or until fork can be inserted with ease. Makes 4 servings.

Tempting Tomato Chicken Grill

4 broiler-fryer chicken quarters
1/4 cup fresh lime juice
1-1/2 teaspoons chopped chives
1 teaspoon freshly grated ginger
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 cup medium salsa, chunky style

In small saucepan, mix together lime juice, chives, ginger and garlic. Add olive oil and chili powder and heat to boiling over medium heat (or in microwave if glass dish is used). Stir in salsa. Place chicken in single layer in large shallow bowl. Pour sauce over chicken and turn to coat well. Cover and refrigerate at least 2 hours. When ready to cook, place chicken on prepared grill, skin side up, about 8 inches from heat. Grill, turning every 10 minutes, about 1 hour or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Heat marinade to boiling and boil about 3 minutes; pour over chicken. Makes 4 servings.

"Tried & True" Turkey Barbecue Marinade

2 parts sauterne or white wine (lemon-lime soda may be substituted)
1 part soy sauce
1 part peanut, cooking or salad oil
Variations: (add to taste)
Chopped onion
Crushed garlic or garlic powder
Ginger root, peeled and grated or ground ginger
Worcestershire sauce
Flavor enhancer (monosodium glutamate)

Combine all marinade ingredients and pour over desired turkey parts (drumsticks, thighs, wings, breasts, hindquarter roasts, steaks, tenderloins, or filets. Marinate for at least two hours (and up to 24 hours) covered and in the refrigerator. (For no-mess marinade, place turkey parts inside a double plastic bag, pour marinade over meat, secure top of bag with a twister and refrigerate for 2 to 24 hours.) Cook on grill or broil or bake turkey parts in oven. Baste with marinade, if desired.

Chinese Broiled Kabobs

Marinade:
1/2 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup salad oil
1 tablespoon grated fresh ginger (or 1 teaspoon ground ginger)
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon honey
3 cloves garlic, minced

Allow 1-2 oz. raw, boned turkey (either white or dark meat or a combination of each) per person. Cut into 3/4 inch cubes. Combine marinade ingredients thoroughly. Put turkey cubes in marinade and put in refrigerator for several hours or overnight.

Drain and put turkey on skewers with pineapple chunks and cherries. Cook on both sides over hot coals or broil in oven about 8-10 minutes on each side or until meat is tender. Brush meat occasionally with marinade, if desired.

New Friends Found In A 'Baccer Patch

Travis Bracken was in a family tobacco field a couple of weeks ago when he met his newest friends.

"Before I knew it, there they was," the 6 year old said of finding three little kittens wandering around.

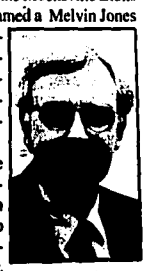

He didn't waste any time in claiming them for his own. Of course, they had to have names. He chose Todd, Copper and Rastus.

"He carried them around in a paper sack," said his grandmother, Margaret Bracken. "It has done him a lot of good, the responsibility of taking care of them. He's the one who feeds them and waters them," she said.

George Kimberly Receives Civitan Jones Fellowship

A member of the Mocksville Lions Club has been named a Melvin Jones Fellow, the highest honor conferred by the Lions Club International Foundation.

Kimberly

Dr. George Kimberly becomes the fourth Mocksville club member to receive the honor, and joins Bob Davis, Frank Stroud and Bill Edwards as a Melvin Jones Fellow.

"I think it's more of a tribute to the Mocksville Lions Club, because while I was president, not because I was president, we had a real successful year in helping blind people, visually handicapped people and hearing impaired people," Kimberly said.

Under his leadership, the club also launched two fund-raising projects, a bluegrass and old-time music festival and an auction.

The club had a "significant" increase in membership, and earned the following district awards: Best Club (for community service projects helping visually and hearing handicapped); Most New Members; Highest Percentage Membership Increase; 100 Percent Club; 100 Percent Secretary; and Most Points.

"We had a real, real active year from all the members, which was probably the main thing," Kimberly said.

Edwards said he nominated Kimberly because of his humanitarian efforts, many of which he does in confidence. Kimberly was nominated for helping others for the past 26 years, through the Crisis Center, and in underdeveloped countries.

"The Melvin Jones Fellowship is an honor, it's not an award," Edwards said. "It's conveyed to someone who has conveyed humanitarian service. He's done an awful lot of humanitarian work, most of it in confidence."

Spiritual Resources: His Greatness Is Unsearchable

By Shirley Cettle

On a recent Saturday morning we rose early, packed a backpack with lunch and headed for the Blue Ridge Parkway. My husband and I were going to revisit a part of the parkway that we had been on several years ago, and look for a few trails to hike. As we well remembered, the beauty of our North Carolina mountains did not disappoint us. We would drive a little bit, see a view that was breathtaking, stop and take a picture and hurry forward. At one park, we were able to hike to a rocky area and sit down on an outcropping of rock, eat lunch with a view as far as our eyes could see of mountain grandeur. We saw deer eating in an old apple orchard, a groundhog scurrying across the road, and even stopped to assist a turtle across the highway. And to make the ending of reflection on a passing rain shower and observed the most beautiful rainbow of many years. Its beauty was so breathtaking, that we stopped the car on the side of the road and sar for minutes to try and take the entire scope in. I tried to take pictures of the whole rainbow, for it was visible in its full arch, but my camera lens could not capture it all.

God through His magnificent creation of earth and all that is in, above, and around it; gives us wonders upon wonders of visional beauty. And it is a beauty that requires only the cost of time spent in observing. On the parkway, we were required by law to drive at slower speed, with many area's designated as stopping places for better views. Perhaps we should try to so order our weekly schedules that at certain times we slow to a lesser speed and even stop at a point to get a better view. As we stopped to see the rainbow, most people passing us by were non observant to the scene around them. Their pace was too fast; they were reluctant to stop. It is difficult to see all that God has for us if we are going at a top-notch speed. Sometimes we need to slow down, and even stop. The vision before us can be breathtaking. Perhaps if we slowed our daily pace and loooked more closely at those around us, we would be refreshed as well. God's beauty can be found in all of His creation; the mountain, the rainbow, the deer and the turtle, and the person beside us. But stopping to look is the only way to take in the full picture.

The Psalmist in chapter 145 proclaims: "Great is the Lord, and highly to be praised; and His greatness is unsearchable. One generation shall praise Thy works to another, and shall declare Thy mighty acts." (Psalm 145:3,4)

God's mighty acts are all about us. It is up to us to share them with others, passing them on from our generation to the next. The rainbow was brilliant in its many colors, forming a perfect arch, but we had to stop to take in the fullness of the scene. Have you spent some time this week observing God's beauty in creation? It is all around you, if you will but slow down, and find a stopping place to observe. You won't be disappointed.

Brady Angell Was Dedicated

By Jeanne Houpe
Davie County Enterprise Record

The Davie County soil and water conservation effort lost one of its leading forces Aug. 18, with the death of Brady Angell.

"He was dedicated to soil and water conservation," said Lib Turner of the Davie Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD).

In fact, it was a stipulation of his will that his successors maintain his land in a preserving fashion, she said.

Angell began his association with the N.C. Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts in 1941. He was elected district supervisor of the Tri-Creek SWCD in 1952, which included Forsyth, Yadkin and Stokes counties.

At the time he was manager of the Children's Home Farm in Forsyth County. During his 40 years as manager of the farm, he applied conservation practices, which improved production from the land. Through his leadership, the farm grew from less than 100 acres to 450 acres – all covered by a conservation plan.

When it became a separate conservation district in 1954, he continued to serve as supervisor of the Forsyth SWCD.

After retiring from the children's home in 1967, he decided to return home to Davie County where he went into the poultry business and operated a 350-acre farm.

Angell always said, "Conservation is the most important phase of agriculture."

He had soon returned to that interest in soil and water conservation, serving as associate supervisor for two years prior to being elected to the Davie County SWCD Board in 1971.

"I was very impressed with his concern for soil and water. He put that interest before any personal gain," said current vice-chairman of the Davie County SWCD, E.C. Tatum, who served with Angell.

"He was constantly trying to do what was right for the people of Davie County," Tatum said.

He served as chairman of the board for three years but gave up the positibn because he was involved in so many other activities. He was elected vice-chairman where he served until his retirement in 1992.

In addition, he represented Davie County on the Yadkin River Environmental Advisory Council Board.

"Even in his later years, when he really wasn't able, he was still at the meetings trying to do whatever job needed to be done," said Turner.

Angell was a natural leader, holding offices in nearly every organization or activity in which he participated.

The only farmer in the Mocksville Rotary Club, he held several offices, including president.

As president of Joppa Cemetery, he developed a plan to restore and preserve this cemetery where Daniel Boone's parents are buried.

Angell had been active in the N.C. Grange, serving on the state level as well as in Forsyth and Davie Counties. Positions included chairman of the executive committee of the N.C. State Grange, vice-chairman of the board of directors and chairman of the finance committee of N.C. Grange Insurance Company.

He also served as Deputy Master Grange in Davie County, on the executive committee of Mid-Davie Grange and was an insurance adjuster.

He was an active member of First Baptist Church of Mocksville and served on the finance committee for three years.

"The world would die but for the fidelity, loyalty and consecration of those whose names are unhonored and unsung."

This quote was used to describe Brady Angell as a nominee for the N.C. Association of Soil and Water Conservation District's Hall of Fame. Angell was inducted in 1993 after 50 years of service to soil and water conservation.

"Brady Angell was one of the most highly respected men I've ever known," said John Barber of the Davie SWCD.

"He was a man of integrity," Tatum said. "The people he came in contact with are better for having associated with him."

"He has served the community well. Losing him will be a big loss," Tatum said.

Davie Dominates West Rowan In Opener

Ronnie Gallagher

Don't Have That Baby On A Friday, Okay?

Notes 'n' Quotes.....

Randall Ward had just one message for me considering the impending birth of my soon-to-be....something. We don't know if it's a boy or girl.

"Don't have it on a Friday," he joked recently.

Ward

If Joan had dropped that baby last Friday, I would have missed perhaps the happiest smile I've seen on Ward's face in a long time. His team completely dominated West Rowan in a 28-8 victory. It was without a doubt the best opener in Ward's six-year career in Davie County.

This should be a very interesting football season. There are five teams that think they have a chance at the three Central Piedmont Conference playoff berths. Davie is one of them.

Maybe the first sounds my new baby will utter is "Playoff-bound."

Just for the record, Davie cross country coach Cary Powers and his wife, Amy, are expecting a newborn at any time as well. We took lamaze together.

We have our beepers. We're pumped. We're ready for the big game.

Fans of Kendall Chaffin love it. Fans of Bubba Coleman are jealous.

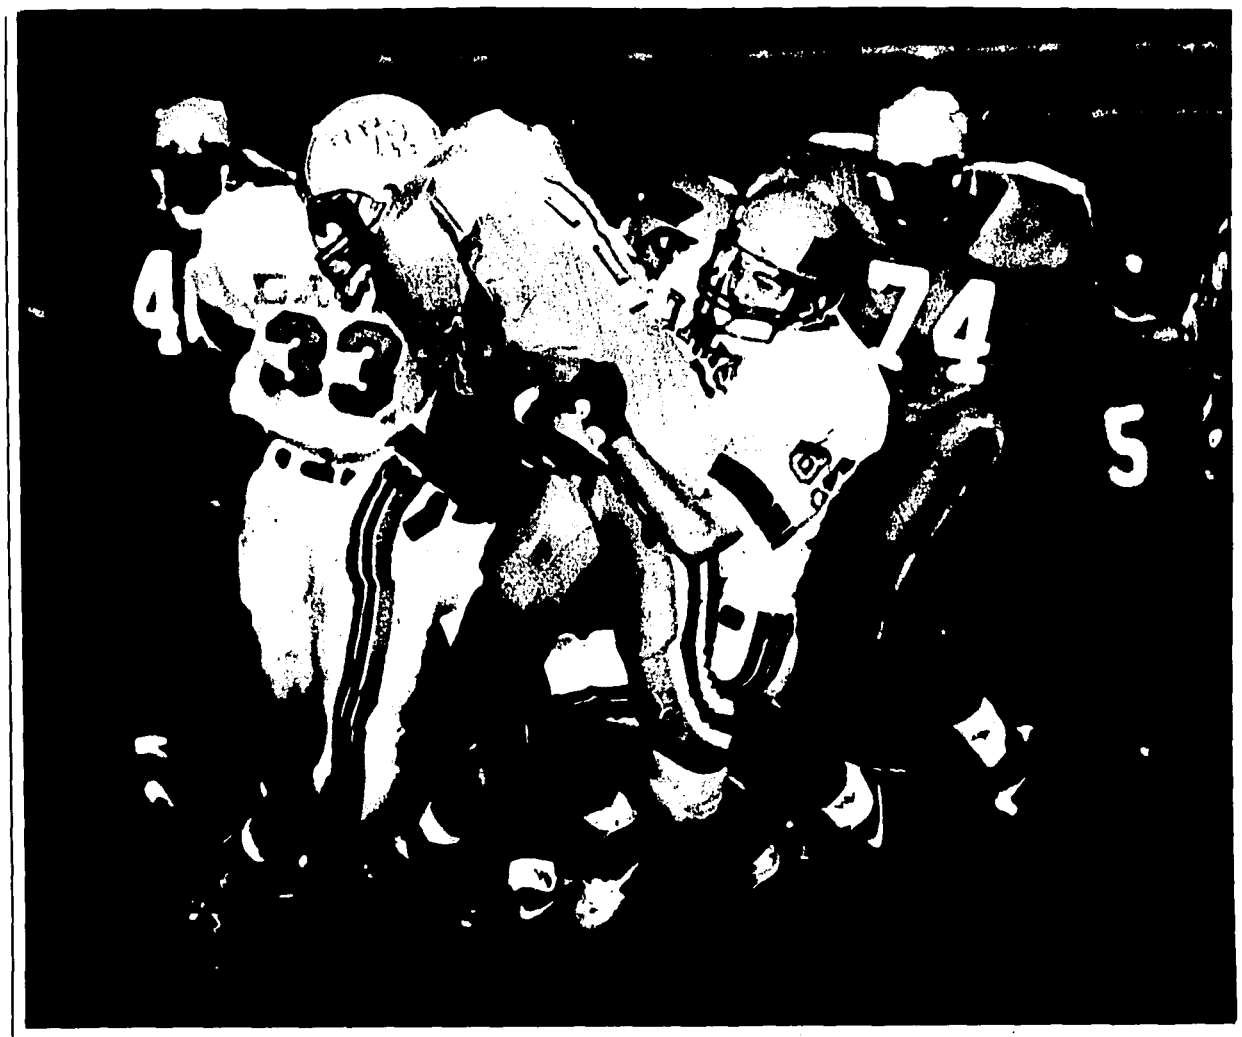

It's that time of year again. Whose name can the sports editor run into the ground week after week after week?

Chaffin

Two years ago, it was Davie High's Coleman, who was all-conference quarterback in football, all-conference point guard in basketball and all-conference shortstop in baseball.

Secondary Forces 30 Incompletions In 28-8 Victory

By Ronnie Gallagher
Davie County Enterprise-Record

MOUNT ULLA -- Now, that's the way to start a football season.

At least, that's how Davie County football coach Randall Ward felt after his War Eagles opened the 1994 season with a resounding, 28-8 victory at West Rowan.

Ward watched his team dominate the Falcons from the opening kickoff, rendering West's highly-touted passing game inefective.

Not that West Rowan didn't try. Junior Tim Hogue attempted 40 passes but Davie's secondary forced 30 -- count 'em, 30 -- incompletions.

Ward was amazed afterward at the total.

"To be honest with you, it did surprise me that he threw that much," he said. "I knew he'd run the spread before but I thought he'd run the football at us a little more than he did."

Offensively, the 28 points were the most in an opener since Ward came six years ago. The War Eagles had a long drive in each quarter that resulted in a touchdown and the running game prospered behind a revamped line.

"The kids came out and played well for a first scrimmage," Ward said. "But we're further along this year than in year's past on offense and defense. The kids did a super job."

West coach Ron Raper was certainly impressed.

"Davie played harder than we did," Raper said. "They executed their offense and defense better."

Passing Game Rusty

Davie's defensive secondary of Josh Ward, Deryl Wilson, Mark Mason and Matt Sain is supposed to be a strength for Davie in 1994 and it was tested early and often by Hogue, who threw for 1,600 yards as a sophomore last season.

But he missed on his first nine passes, overthrowing several receivers and having several

Mariners Finish 11th In AAU Play

BURNSVILLE, MN. -- Davie County marched on Minnesota recently -- to play baseball.

A 12-under all-star team, filled with Davie and Davidson County players, won a trip to the AAU national tournament, where it finished 11th out of 44 teams.

The highlight of the trip, however, may not have been on the playing field. It came when the Mariners marched with their Davie County and North Carolina banners during the Minnesota Twins-Boston Red Sox game at the Metrodome.

The Davie Mariners marched around the Metrodome with the Davie County and N.C flags during the national AAU 12-under baseball tournament.

Davie had qualified forthe nationals by placing second in the North Carolina AAU tournament to the Cabarrus Bandits. But once in Minnesota, coaches Dink Smith and Steve Ridenhour saw the Mariners play like a state champ, defeating three state champions and making the single elimination championship round.

It wasn't a good start. Davie was only 1-2 in a preliminary round, forcing it into a tough bracket.

But the Mariners came alive against the best in the country.

Davie actually lost its first game of the round to Bloomington, Mn., blowing a four-run lead and falling, 9-8. Josh Foltz and Jeremy Bowers each scored twice.

The Mariners then ripped off a

Cross Country Isn't Really New To Davie

Back In The 70s, War Eagles Were A State Powerhouse

Cross Country?

What's that?

To the 34 members of Davie High School's newest team, that's the only question they could come up with.

Coach Cary Powers had the answer.

Powers

"Cross country," he told them, "is running, running and more running."

This is not a sport for someone lazy so Powers said he welcomed the athletes who were in shape.

"A lot had obviously run over the summer," he said. "We did some 30-minute evaluation runs to see what kind of shape they were in."

The youngsters may be new to cross country but Davie isn't. Back in the mid-70's, under coach Burt Barger, the War Eagles were a state powerhouse. They seldom lost to anybody, thanks to Andy Atwell, Tim Austin, Barry McBride and Mike Barnhardt, among others. Back then, there weren't that many cross country teams and Barger's War Eagles

Records: Davie 1-0, North 0-1.
Last Week: Davie defeated West Rowan 28-8; North was defeated by Starmount, 26-12.
Last Year: Davie defeated North Iredell, 21-13.
Last Year's Record: Davie: 5-5 overall, 2-4 in the Central Piedmont Conference; North Iredell 4-6 overall, 1-4 in the Foothills 3-A Conference.
Coaches: Davie: Randall Ward 38-48 in eight years; North: Charles Love 95-103-3 in 19 years.
Players To Watch: Davie: TE Josh Ward; DB Deryl Wilson, RB Jonathan Vaughters, DE Justin Carter. North: DE Michael Clark, RB Carl Jones, DT Jabbar Stevenson, TE Andy Turner.
Next Week: Davie hosts Salisbury; North Iredell hosts Mount Airy.
Overview: North could have been much better last year had its offense kicked into gear. The Raiders still outscored their opponents, 157-145....Love will be looking for help from a championship jayvee team (8-2, 6-0)....Clark, at 6-2, 210, is a major college prospect at defensive end. In only eight games last year, he had four fumble recoveries and five quarterback sacks...North will rely on Coach Spider Thompson's defense, which has five starters returning.

Mitchell Knows All About Heated Rivalries

With only one school in the county, Davie High School really has no idea what a real rivalry is all about.

Mitchell

New football coach Pat Mitchell knows. He had eight years of the Forbush-Starmount series. He says it has calmed down considerably because the boys see each other so much from little league to high school. In fact, players from both schools even join forces on Mocksville's Legion baseball team.

"They grow up together and play ball against each other in little league football. It's a love-hate relationship. They'll rag on each other but you'll see them shake hands and hug necks after a football game."

He'll still play Starmount, only now against Davie, Sept. 16 in Boonville. Last year, after defeating Mitchell and Forbush, Davie surprised some by beating Starmount, a consistent 2-A playoff participant.

"After playing Davie, I was confident they'd beat Starmount," Mitchell said. "Starmount will be tough. They always are."

Stats

STAT FACT: Last year, Davie finished 5-5, the 11th time in the 39 years of the school that it has won five games.

TV Football

A high school football game of the week will be televised this year on WLXI, Channel 61. This is Tri-State Christian Television and is available on cable systems.

Games will be taped Friday night and shown Saturday afternoons, beginning Sept. 2 and running through Dec. 2.

For the Record

FOR THE RECORD: The longest winning streak heading into this season is held by 4-A champ Northern Durham with 15. Lincolnton, the 2-A champ, has won 10 straight.

At the other end is Asheville Erwin with 21 straight losses. North Brunswick is second with 19.

CPC Football

Six of the seven Central Piedmont Conference football teams began their season last weekend with Endowment Games.

Besides Davie's win over West Rowan, Mount Tabor and Reynolds, favored to win this year's crown, each scored 42 points in wins.

South Rowan, which is as excited as it has been in years, won 14-0 on Saturday night.

The losers were North Davidson, 20-0 to Thomasville, and South Stokes, which fell to Mount Airy, 27-0.

West Forsyth was the only school not to play an Endowment Game.

This week's games have Davie hosting North Iredell, Mount Tabor at East Forsyth, North Davidson at West Davidson, South Rowan at Northwest Cabarrus, South Stokes

Who, Me?

Davie County may never have had a state championship but assistant coach Jerry Walser saw three of them during his playing days at West Davidson.

Try Lexington with Deems May, who now plays for San Diego in the NFL. Try Thomasville. Try Randleman, with Antonio Goss of the San Francisco 49ers.

As a freshman, Walser stood the sidelines. West was gettin blown out by abou 30 points when he was summoned into the game at linebacker.

Luckily, Goss ran away from him on two plays before retiring for the night.

Lucky for Goss, that is.

"I told people that he was scared of me," said Walser.

Trivette Gone

Last year's boys tennis coach at Davie, Joey Trivette, has left school to travel with a rock band.

Trivette plays the keyboards.

New Goal Posts

The football field looks better and better as athletic director Buddy Lowery gets it ready for the 1994 season, which begins in only three weeks.

Lowery has taken down the goalposts and the school will get new ones.

"They're worn out," Lowery said. "The crossbars are sagging and the uprights are not high enough."

Lowery and faculty members David Crotts and Jeff Barneycastle have done most of the summer work on the facilities.

Wrong 'David'

Last week's story on the 1973 football team left off one of the War Eagles' six all-conference players.

It was reported that David Dwiggins was all-North Piedmont Conference.

It was the wrong David.

David Desnoyers was one

Davie

dropped.

"The kid can play football and he has some good receivers," said Ward.

Raper said his team missed last week's scrimmage due to lightning so this was really the first competition the Falcons faced.

"It's the first time we've gone against someone else," Raper said. "We plyed like we were inexperienced. We dropped some passes that I don't think we'll continue to drop. We played with a lot of first game jitters."

Davie didn't. It took its first possession 58 yards for a score.

Thanks to a roughing the punter penalty, Davie ran deep into West territory behind Wilson and Jonathan Vaughters. A 21-yard burst up the middle by Vaughters gave Davie a first down on the 15.

A penalty and a loss put the War Eagles back to the 20 where quarterback Neil Cornatzer tossed a perfectly-thrown ball to Wilson, curling past two defenders for a touchdown.

Josh Ward then sneaked past the West secondary for a 46-yard scoring catch from Cornatzer one minute into the second period. Davie took a 14-0 lead into halftime.

Ward's pass came after Davie had sucked the West defense in with a number of runs up the middle.

"I feel like you have to run the football," said Ward, the coach. "If you're running well, you can do the play-action pass and get some results from it. That's basically what happened. We set up the pass with the run."

Important Drive

The drive that may have sewed up the game came after the second half kickoff.

Wilson ran the kick back to the 44 and Davie scooted downfield quickly. Sophomore David Daye had 17 of the yards on two carries. Vaughters bulled 20 yards to the one, where he took it in on the next play. Vaughters finished with 93 yards rushing on only 12 carries.

Ward said he talked about a good drive to open the second half.

"You may not score but you need to get good field position and put the defense in a positive situation," he said. "Coming out in the second half, the first four or five minutes set the tone. The kids did that. It was one of the keys to winning."

The 21-0 lead didn't last long. After a Davie fumble, Hogue finally connected with Chavis Cowan on a 37-yard scoring pass. A two-point conversion made it 21-8 midway through the third quarter.

"Any type of offense like that scares me to death," Ward said. "They're always in the ballgame. We're sitting there 21-0 and suddenly, it's 21-8. One more touchdown and they're back in it."

The younger Ward wouldn't allow it. He intercepted a pass to begin the fourth period. It led to the final scoring drive, capped by Cornatzer's one-yard sneak.

The finish surprised some. West Rowan is expected to be one of the top teams in the Yadkin Valley 2-A Conference and is loaded with talented skill people.

"I told (the players) to come in Monday and get ready for East Rowan and continue working toward a conference championship," Raper said. "That's what we're expecting to do."

Ward couldn't have been happier.

"You win games by outexecuting the other team," he said. "Our experience came through tonight. These kids are a unit -- and they feel like a unit."

West Rowan is not playing like a unit -- yet.

"We have a lot of good football players," Raper insisted. "We were not a good football team tonight. But we will be."

Notes:

• Hogue finished only 10-of-40 passing for 123 yards.

• Cornatzer has already completed more touchdown passes in one game than he did all of last year, when he had one.

• Daye, playing his first varsity game, finished with 53 yards on eight carries. Wilson ran for 54.

• Michael Strickland had a sack of Hogue late in the game.

• James Clement recovered a fumble.

• Davie will play North Iredell Friday in its home opener.

Plenty Of Eagles Involved

There were plenty of offensive standouts in Davie County's 28-8 victory over West Rowan Friday night.

Three different players scored touchdowns. Four are in the scoring column.

There was one interception by Josh Ward and a recovered fumble by James Clement. Deryl Wilson, Jonathan Vaughters, Ward, Neil Cornatzer and Matt Sain were all prominent names in the win.

He deserved everything he got. He is currently a jayvee basketball player at the University of North Carolina.

Now, Chaffin, another Davie High graduate, deserves it. This is the fifth straight week his photo has been in the newspaper, mainly due to his experience as a pro football player in a new Asian league. His team is in Taipei, Taiwan.

What is it this week?

How about the NFL. You know, the league in America?

Greg Gaines, an L.A. Ram scout, called Chaffin recently, inquiring about his time in the 40, his weight and his height.

"I asked him what a good height was for an NFL defensive end," Chaffin said. "He said, 6-2, 6-3. I'm 6-4.

"I asked him what was the weight of a defensive end. He said 285-290. I'm at 270."

The phone call was made because Chaffin knows Gaines' cousin, who told him about Chaffin on a family trip to L.A. The initial contact, added to the phone call, has Chaffin heading for Atlanta Sept. 15 to visit the Ram official in person. He has already sent his bio and his scout sheet from the NFL Combine. He is still waiting for a game film of the Taipei Classic, in which he shined.

Chaffin isn't fooling himself. He won't be in the NFL this year and said he is certain to go to Taiwan

"But next year ... maybe. It's good to have a contact."

At first, Chaffin was told his training camp for the Taiwan team would be at Lees McRae College. Last week, he received a call stating it had been moved to California, beginning at the end of October. His six-game exhibition season across Asia begins in November.

Chaffin likes Gaines for one reason in particular. If they hit it off, he knows why.

"He's an ol' country boy," Chaffin said.

Speaking of Chaffin, I'm jealous. I thought I was his personal sports editor.

Now, since he has begun a pro football career in Taiwan, he has two newspapers following him -- the Davie County Enterprise-Record and the China Post.

I can't be scooped by the Post, whether its in Salisbury or China. I need to be in Taiwan and cover him. Let's see, I need plane fare to Taipei. I need lodging. I need spending money. I'll have to take my wife and kid. That's going to be quite a sum of money.

Oh well, I'll get the publisher on it right away.

Madonna has made it quite clear she loves basketball players. So much so, in fact, that she is installing a 24-second clock in her bedroom.

Ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha!

I was reading in another newspaper about a youth C-Ball baseball team that finished with seven and a half wins compared to three and a half losses.

Would someone like to explain that one to me?

This baseball strike is really serious. One player was told he couldn't grab himself until the strike was over.

Ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha!

If you had told me there were going to be 23,700 people in the Greensboro Coliseum to witness the weigh-in for the BassMasters finish, I'd have asked who was fishing, Dean Smith and Coach K?

The World Cup was televised in countries across the globe. Which means that people have been yawning in 100 different languages.

Ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha!

And finally....

There are positions still to be filled at Davie High this year. One is Mother of the Year.

To apply, go ahead and write up your letters to the editor about how your son and/or daughter is the greatest athlete in school but isn't playing because the coach doesn't know what he's doing. Make sure to call now and reserve your meeting with the principal. But since he will defend his coach, go ahead and reserve your meeting with the superintendant too -- just in case.

Don't forget to go all over Davie County and ridicule the coach you really don't know personally over his lack of knowledge, despite the fact you've never been to practice or never played the game yourself.

And be prepared to have everyone laughing at you behind your back and feeling sorry for your kid.

If you think you meet this criteria, then hey, you're a Mother of the Year candidate!

And with that, I am outta here.

Mariners

three-game winning streak:

• Against the Tennessee state champs from Nashville, Davie fell behind 6-1. It cut the margin to 6-5 by the fourth and eventually won, 9-8.

Leading hitters for Davie were Brandon Berrier and Zack Snyder. But it was Scott Frazier that knocked in the winning run.

• Davie sent its ace, Steven Sanford, to the mound against the Virginia state champs from Tidewater. Virginia managed only one run, while Drew Ridenhour knocked in both Davie runs for a 2-1 victory. The defense was just as outstanding in the field.

• Snyder, Berrier and Adam Persiani all saw time on the mound in a 3-2 victory over the Iowa state champions from Iowa City.

Ross Smith had two RBIs and Ridenhour one.

On To The Finals

By this time, Cabarrus had been eliminated but Davie was moving on into the title round as North Carolina's representative. It met the Illinois state champs from Chicago.

For six innings, it was the Steven Sanford Show. Davie's ace was given an early, 1-0 lead on a triple by Bowers and a double by Snyder. In the sixth, singles by Berrier, Ridenhour and Snyder put the Mariners up 2-0.

But in the bottom of the sixth, Sanford began tiring, allowing a run on two singles and a walk. Snyder was brought in but a two-run double won the game for Illinois.

Smith said that Illinois and Davie had met during their Metrodome parade and even talked about meeting in the finals.

"This was a once-in-a-lifetime experience for 15 boys," Smith said. "This was a fitting ending to a great week of baseball."

Awards

The Davie players were also among the best in fundamentals, placing high in several competitions.

Perisani was second in pitching accuracy.

Shawn Brooks was third in outfield accuracy.

In the Around The Horn competition, Berrier, Frazier, Snyder and Jeremy Sink finished third, throwing it around the horn in 5.5 seconds.

Leading hitters for the Mariners were Bowers (.533), Foltz (.353) and Ridenhour, Snyder and Berrier, all at .333.

Neil Cornatzer passed short and long against West Rowan and didn't really have to worry about a hard rush. The junior signal caller tossed two TD passes of 20 and 46 yards.

try teams and Barger's War Eagles traveled all over the state.

That won't be a problem this year. Davie has a full Central Piedmont Conference slate. The first meet will be Aug. 29 at North Iredell. Davie will host its own meet Oct. 12 against South Rowan, North Davidson and Reynolds.

Powers saw only three seniors try out (Mike Ferree, Beth Wall and Lynna Hanes) "but I have a ton of freshmen," he said.

Wall, a basketball star who has been hampered by a knee injury, is having no pain.

"She said it only bothers her lateral movement," Powers said. "Running cross country shouldn't be a problem."

He has a trail to run at Rich Park and also uses the track facilities at the high school.

Cross country involves running over varied terrain. Courses can be one and a half miles to 3.2 miles. Participants run over gravel, parking lots, dirt, grass and in the woods.

The scoring is like golf. The lowest five scores are tabulated.

The meets are doubleheaders. The boys usually take 18-20 minutes to finish, according to Powers, while the girls take around 35.

Ferree will lead the boys. There are also seven juniors: Clint Alexander, Rodney Carter, Nathan Foil, Timmy Gilbreath, Anthony Ward, Bryan Willard and Joe Willard.

Sophomores include James Clevenger, Adam Connor, Dan Edwards, Daryn Glasco and Brad McNeil.

Freshmen are Nathan Ferree, Shannon Mayhew and Jamie and Jason Neese.

The junior girls are Kelly Robertson, April Shamel, Melissa Shouse and Heather Johnson.

The key to cross country at Davie High School: run, run and run some more.

Sophomore girls are Allison Foil and Holly Landry.

Freshmen include Colleen Brooks, Leslie Holcomb, Erin Umberger and Rebecca Carle.

"If you can get 10 decent make runners and 10 decent girl runners, you can field a competitive team," Powers said.

Powers said most cross country runners are good students because of the discipline it takes in the sport.

Powers said he was very pleased with the attitude and the effort so far.

"There hasn't been any griping or complaining," he said.

Davie's runners always enjoy a Cary Powers pep talk.

The Contest

Play The Football Contest And Go Home With $250 -- NOT!

This is it.

This is the week the sports editor routs everyone who plays the most famous football contest in Davie County.

That's right. The Davie County Enterprise-Record Football Contest begins now.

You've waited a year. Now, it's time to be slimed every week for your poor predictions. It's time to give you ESPN nicknames. It's time to hand out weekly awards for greatness and futility.

And, uh, oh yeah, the publisher -- that gracious Mr. Moneybags that he is -- will award a first place prize of (ho-hum) $25. Second place receives (another ho-hum, please) $10. Where does this guy come up with such a large amount of money each week?

Yes, the money alone is enough to make you play. But there's one other incentive that may intice you.

Two hundred and fifty bucks.

That's what you'll get for predicting every single game correctly during a week.

Yeah, right. It's never happened during the sports editor's reign. It never will. Trust me. The sports editor doesn't put easy games like Florida State-Wake Forest in here. Never. Ever.

Only the toughest college and pro games.

Why no high school? Because the college and pro scores can be found on TV a hundred times over the weekend. When we used to put high school games in, people would be calling the next week, whining, "I couldn't find the score." Besides, a survey showed people know more about college and pro.

The only time high school games will be used is when we can't find enough college or pro. Like this week, for instance. It's all high school. There will be some high school next week, also, until the big boys get going.

What about these nicknames, you ask? Simple. If the sports editor, the Chris Berman of Mocksville, can think up something corny enough, you'll get one.

You'll love them. Just ask Janice "You Got To Know When To" Holcomb, or Leon "The Man From" Ladd, or Ronald "Take Your Trash To The County" Cranfill or Kevin "Absence of" Mullis.

Most players come up with their own nicknames. They correspond with the sports editor, especially when he messes up.

By the way, the sports editor will play with you week after week. He will put his record in full view.

So, while you're terrible, no one may find out. If he's terrible, everyone in the county will know it.

But hey, you should know that already.

So be prepared. The Enterprise-Record contest begins next week, Aug. 25.

Try it. You'll love it.

Hey, I know it's a lot of high school games. But it's all we've got. You're guess will be as good as mine.

Cheerleaders Attend Camp

Several Davie County cheerleaders have gone on to college to do what they do best: promote spirit for their schools.

Some attended the recent cheerleading camp at East Tennessee State University in Johnson City, Tn. It is the largest camp in the world. While there during the Aug. 8-11 camp, they learned from and met 1,500 other college cheerleaders.

Among the former Davie students attending were Brent Campbell of Appalchian State University and Allison Buckner and Matt Osborne, both of N.C. State University.

The Wolfpack squad finished first in their division against 15 other squads.

Appalachian State finished sixth in its division, competing against 25 other squads.

Allison Buckner of N.C. State and Brent Campbell of Appalachian State were together at the recent cheerleading camp at East Tenessee State University.

Softball Team Wins Berth

The Wishon-Carter softball team wrapped up a championship by winning first place in the final of three tournaments that make up the Star Triple Crown.

By placing first, the team receives a berth in the World Series, a team sponsor trophy, Triple Crown t-shirts, individual plaques and patches and bat bags.

Several members of the team are from Davie County.

Davie Tennis/Volleyball

Ramsey, Mando Will Lead Davie County Tennis Team

Before his tennis scrimmage with Davie High last week, the North Iredell coach told Mary Ann Rankin that he didn't know what he had. North is down in talent from last year.

Davie then proved it, mashing the Raiders, 8-1 and taking all six singles matches.

Rankin, in her third year as coach of the girls, likes her team, despite the graduation loss of three-year starter Carrie Brown.

Tami Ramsey and Jenny Mando will probably fit into the one and two positions. Beth Campbell is number three.

While some players try to avoid the number one spot due to the talent in the Central Piedmont Conference, Ramsey is primed and ready.

"I don't think she's scared," Rankin said of her star junior. "She'll just go at it full-force. That's the way she is. She practices all the time and thinks about what she's doing. She has a game plan."

Mando, a senior, has improved steadily over the past four years.

"She really got serious," Rankin said. "She started taking lessons, she's learned to slice her serve, she gets to the net better and she serves better. She does a little of everything. She is by far the most improved player I've ever seen from when she began."

Ramsey and Mando are also Davie's top doubles team. The two have entered tournaments together over the summer.

"They're great friends, which makes for great doubles partners," Rankin said. "They know what each other will do."

Rankin is putting a lot of emphasis on the doubles team as it prepares for the postseason.

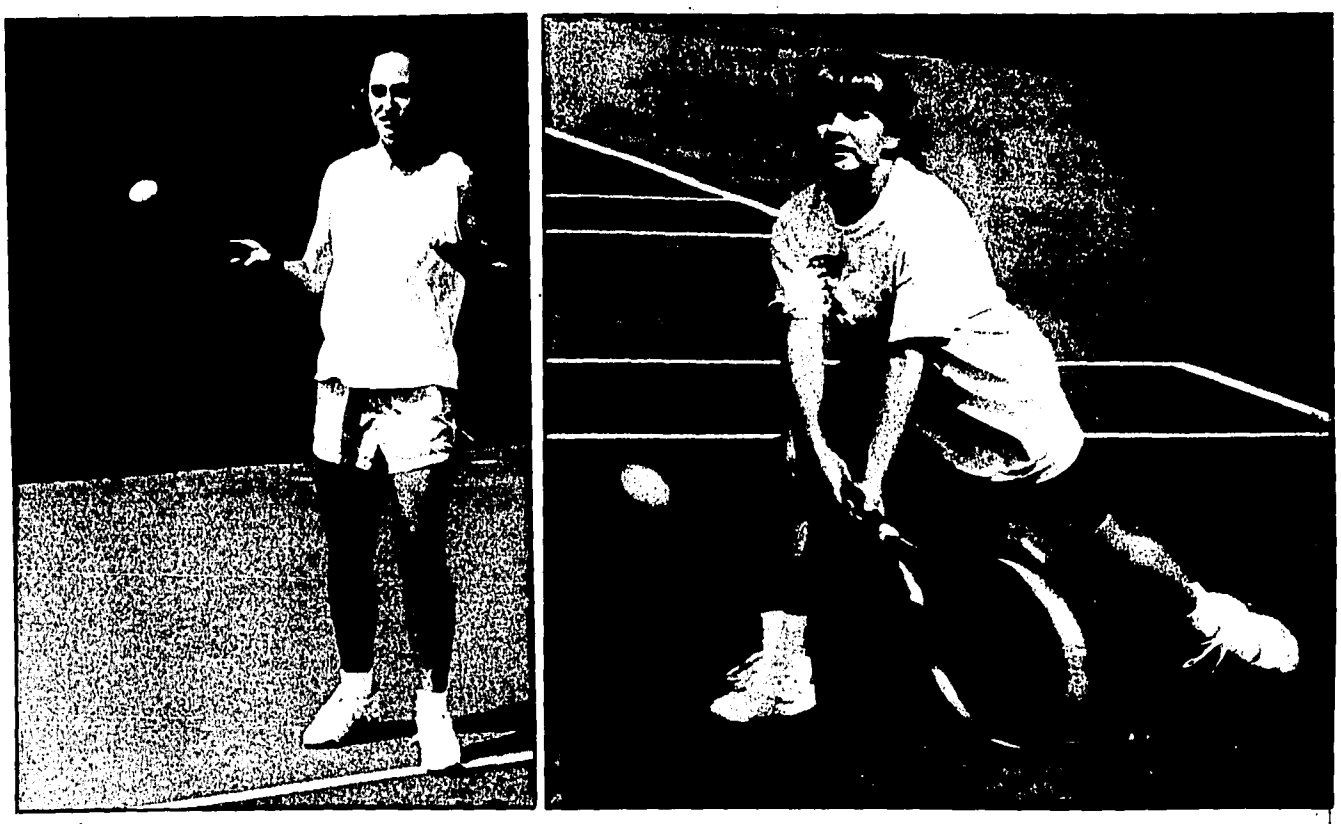

"They realize if they go anywhere, it will be in doubles," she said.

The number three spot has been nailed down by Campbell, a junior who is in her third year as a starter.

"Beth is a steady player who rarely makes mistakes," Rankin said. "She's more of a baseline player who frustrates her opponents and lets them make a mistake."

Up For Grabs

While the top three singles spots are secured, the final three are up for grabs. Tiffany Harris, Stephanie Carter and Laura Prillaman could win their way onto the court while seniors Kelly Archer and Jill Rowe want one of the six spots as well.

Tiffany Harris (left) and Laura Prillaman are fighting for starting positions on the Davie County tennis team.

"I'd say that 1-2-3 are set," Rankin said. "Their records indicate where they should be. I don't know about the rest of the lineup. It could be something (Friday) and Monday, it might change."

Harris has attended camps and taken lessons. "She's played a lot," said Rankin.

Of Prillaman, she said, "Laura has taken her game up a level. Her quickness helps her the most. She can cover the court."

Carter, Rankin said, is a consistent player who keeps the ball in play. She, like Campbell, is a baseliner.

Archer is a four-year player but Rankin said, "She's frustrated right now. She missed a week of practice so others had a chance to move up. But Kelly will be back."

Rowe has played for Rankin over the past two years. "Jill is a real steady player who might push for a starting position," Rankin said.

Also on the team are Johnna McDaniel, Izzy Tutterow and Carrie Johnson.

Tutterow, a junior, is coming back from a sledding accident last winter which saw a cast on her hip, surgery and a rod in her leg.

"She's still going to physical therapy," said Rankin. "She still can't jump rope and when she runs certain distances, she has to stop and walk. But she's come a long way."

Johnson is in her first year playing on the team and McDaniel played her way into a starting doubles role in the scrimmage. She played as a freshman and lessons have helped her.

The Outlook

If Rankin has a problem, it's with the bottom of her lineup.

"Carrie beat Tiffany in a challenge match 9-7, but Tiffany beat Laura 9-8," she said. "How do you make a fair lineup? But if that's a problem, it's a good problem to have. It means we're stronger down the line."

Last season, Davie finished fourth in the CPC behind Mount Tabor, Reynolds and West Forsyth. The team's record was 8-8 overall and 6-6 in the league.

She sees no reason the same goal can't be reached. The War Eagles actually have the talent to finish higher, maybe third.

"South Stokes surprised us last year twice, 5-4," she said. "But this team is basically the same girls. I feel like I really know these girls and know their styles. I know what to tell them for advice and encouragement."

Rankin sees Tabor and Reynolds finishing on top with South and Davie fighting for third. Ramsey might be the difference.

"South has its number one back but I think Tami can beat that girl," she said.

"I feel the same way I did last year. We're the best middle-of-the-pack team and if we sneak in for third, I'll be excited."

Chemistry Seems Right For Myers

Volleyball Team Wants Back In 4-A Playoffs

All it took was a scrimmage with North Iredell, Forbush and Starmount to get Sherrie Myres' blood boiling with anticipation.

Volleyball season is about to begin and her Davie County War Eagles look in mid-season form.

Davie was to travel to Statesville Aug. 24 to open the season. The first home match is Aug. 30, also against Statesville. The early scrimmage only reinforced Myers' thoughts about her talent.

"We didn't keep score," Myers said of the scrimmage. "It was mainly a time limit so you could work on your combinations. Let's just say I was pleasantly surprised with what I saw. I wasn't expecting anything like it."

What Myers got was a dominating performance. Led by returning players Maria Newsome, a 6-3 blocker, Jonette Williard, a defensive specialist and Laura Moyer, the team setter, Davie turned some heads.

Myers hopes the good play continues in the always-tough Central Piedmont Conference. Davie just missed out on one of two playoff spots last season, losing a controversial, five-set match to Reynolds that kept it out for the first time in 10 years.

This year, the conference receives three berths, making Davie's trek to

Davie Fisherman Reels In 'Jaws'

James Rose was making his last cast into a Davie County pond at about dusk on Wednesday, Aug. 17.

He was fishing a purple, rubber worm about five feet from shore.

Ten minutes later, he had the bass of a lifetime on the shore. He tried to weigh it on bathroom scales, and it was well over 11 pounds, but the tail reached to the floor.

Area Sports

The next morning, on more reliable scales, the largemouth bass weighed in at an even 12 pounds.

"He was my last cast," said the 39-year-old Mocksville man. "I took my kids fishing. I told my kids I'm going to cast three more times, to get their stuff ready. That third time lightening struck.

"I thought it was a little bass at first, because all I felt was a little nibble. Then I set the hook and the rod went down for the water."

The next day, he was carrying it around in a cooler, showing off for friends, and looking for a taxidermist.

He caught it in a private pond in central Davie. Rose said he has caught several in the 4-8 pound range in the pond.

Gustafson On Davie Soccer Team: 'We're Green'

Just when Davie High soccer coach Pete Gustafson's team was beginning find itself, it lost 12 seniors to graduation. Gustafson came into this year with basically young and inexperienced players to try and better last year's 10-11 season.

How young are the 1994 War Eagles?

"This team is beyond young," said Gustafson. "We're green."

But he also knows his team has potential, as evidenced by its performance in a 2-0 scrimmage loss to Morganton Freedom last week.

"Freedom usually wins its league," said Gustafson, whose good friend coaches the Patriots. "And for a half, we played them heads up. In the second half, we lost our momentum after they scored. We started arguing with the referees an wanted to play them more than Freedom.

"But we are capable of good ball."

The Veterans

The few veterans remaining from last year are good ones, however.

Dan Callahan is back for his junior year. The junior defender was Davie's only all-Central Piedmont Conference performer in 1993.

"He's our most experienced player (he plays in the Twin City League in Winston-Salem) and our highest skilled player," Gustafson praised. "He's pretty quick and distributes the ball well. He dribbles, fakes ... he does a lot of things."

Gustafson has only three seniors on the team: goalkeeper Ben Forrest, stopper Jonathan Dixon and midfielder Tim Fisher.

Dixon is a lanky, 6-3 player whose wing span can upset some opposing scoring opportunities.

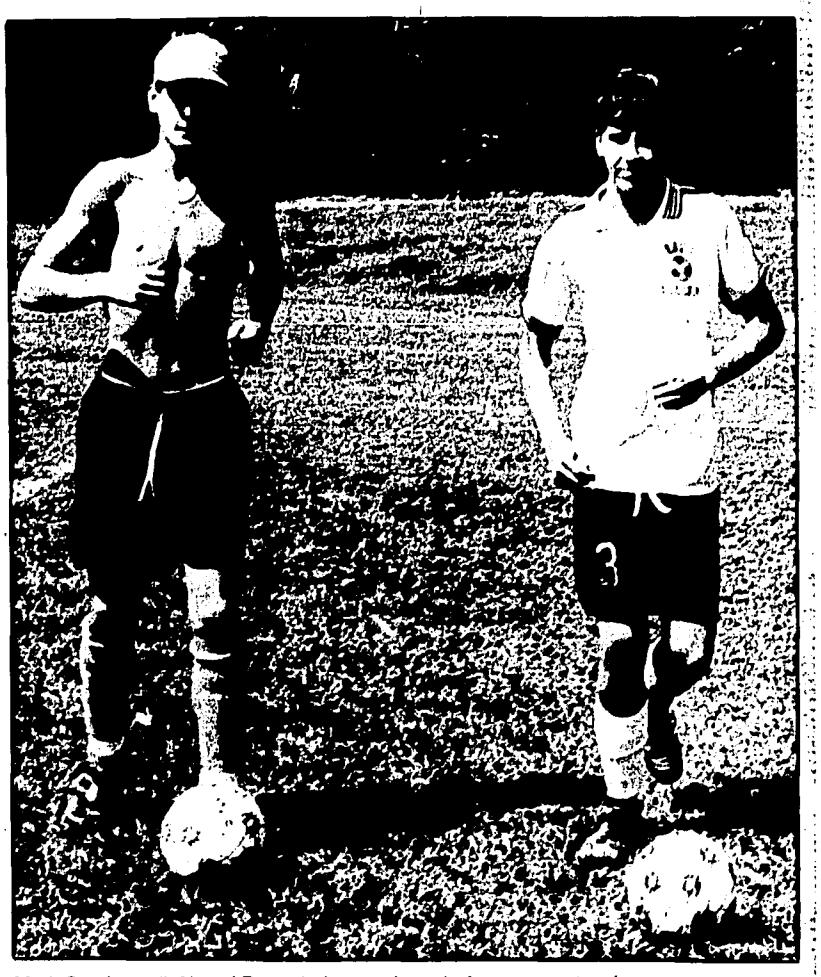

"He's one of the few older guys that can keep his cool," Gustafson said. "He's been with me four years and he is starting to communicate with his teammates. His skill level has increased tremendously. He's good in the air and can win a lot of balls in the penalty box."

When it comes to Fisher, Gustafson said, "I can't think of anybody who has improved as much as Tim Fisher. A midfielder is a link between the defenders and the offense and he has to distribute the ball to our offensive targets. He's another whose been here four years. He's doing better ... he needs to refine it and work on technique."

At times, Eric Prim's shotmaking thrills his coach.

Forrest has the keeper attitude: aggressive and ready to block anything in his way.

"He's good at one-on-ones and sliding out at a defender," Gustafson said. "He doesn't allow easy balls. It takes a certain frame of mind and a little tougher kid to play keeper. You've got to enjoy diving and getting bonked on the head with soccer cleats."

The Rest

The rest of the team is very young.

Gustafson will look at sophomores Josh Barnhardt and David Potts as defenders.

"Josh used to play up front but he has stepped in and accepted his role," the coach said. "David is probably the least experienced member of the team but he's hanging in there."

Joining Fisher as a midfielder are juniors Mark Stephens and Matt Young, as well as freshman Aaron Elwood.

"Mark is an outside midfielder who I hope continues to get stronger. As far as Matt, I expect a lot out of him. He has to distribute the ball more but he is a good worker. He needs to concentrate more."

Gustafson seemed impressed with Elwood.

"He's very fast and someone who will get stronger and stronger. Nobody works harder and he does exactly what I ask."

Strikers for Davie include Erik Crutchfield and Eric Prim.

"Crutch is in good shape and he's working to move the ball more," Gustafson said. "He's refining his skills everyday. Prim will give you goose bumps with a shot -- and then you won't see one again for a week. He's capable of wonderful things. Right now, it's just a confidence thing."

Other players include Bryan Lakey, Will Hege, Scott Henderson, Will Edwards, Boger Hartsell, Chad Nichols and Jason Stockert.

Hege, a sophomore is the backup goalkeeper and Gustafson likes his potential. Gustafson said that Henderson is "the classic example of a quality freshman." Edwards has more skill than most players his age but needs to work on his strength.

Hartsell is in his first year of soccer. Nichols is coming off major surgery and has been watched carefully. Gustafson called Stockert "fast and tough."

The Outlook

Gustafson kept only 17 players on the varsity this season but is contemplating moving up two or three more. The jayvee team, under Joe Ramsbotham, kept 23.

Gustafson got a quick and long look at his team, which had three games scheduled for the first week -- on back-to-back days.

"I don't like three in a row," he said. "It's clearly a disadvantage. We'll try to prevent that from happening again. But there is a lot of conditioning."

Davie will need it against the powerful teams that always dominate the CPC -- particularly West Forsyth and Mount Tabor.

"West will be favored in my opinion," he said, "with Tabor and Reynolds up there. South Rowan won't be as strong. They lost a whole group of boys who grew up playing for the same coach. I don't know much about South Stokes and North Davidson."

postseason a bit easier.

"A bad call against Reynolds kept us out," Myers said, "but you can't cry over spilt milk."

Helping Hands

Myers knows what she has back is bonafide talent. She had her eye on who would replace departed players like Shannon Umberger, Tracy Robbins and Tracie Sechrest. Thanks to Katie Desch and Jenny Stewart, she can breathe easier.

"I loved the way Katie and Jenny fit right into the puzzle," she said. "Katie is a defensive specialist and Jenny is a right front hitter."

Myers is expecting big things from senior Newsome and juniors Moyer and Williard.

"I've never seen Maria play volleyball like she did in the scrimmage," Myers said. "Jonette picked up right where she left off. And Laura has played since last year. She will make our team so much better."

Junior Janis Barney is a blocker who should benefit from battling Newsome in practice.

"She's stepped right in to that sixth spot where Umberger was," Myers said. "She knew what to expect from playing with Maria. When Maria rotates to the backrow, she's stepping in."

Shannon Allen, a senior defensive specialist, was Myers' Most Improved Player last year.

"Her role is to dig," Myers said. "She's one of our best diggers. "She has to be one of our best passers and has to read the offenses."

Brandi Hendrix and Beverly Coulston are both senior hitters.

Myers kept two sophomores in Megan and Amanda Hendrix.

"I have a different philosophy from other coaches," Myers said. "I don't have trouble with pulling up sophomores. They get a good idea of what to expect.

"Megan is learning the setter's spot," she said. "Laura is really the only one we have. Megan will also be a defensive specialist. Amanda has such strong legs that one day, she'll be a front row attacker."

Myers had no problem keeping freshmen either. North Davie's Wendi Cartner has been brought up to the varsity. She is a middle blocker and a hitter.

"Wendi just has a lot of natural athletic ability," Myers praised. "She's a coachable young lady and I have high expectations. I want her to be exposed now to the varsity level."

The Outlook

Nothing ever changes in the Central Piedmont Conference. West Forsyth is always the team to beat, despite graduation losses. The Titans just refuel. Reynolds should also be good again.

"West Forsyth has played since this time last year," shrugged Myers. "Reynolds has played since this time last year. Davie has had one player (Moyer) that has played since this time last year."

In fact, Davie opens its CPC slate Sept. 8 at West. The War Eagles go to Reynolds a week later.

But she still expects to be in the playoffs. Last year's 18-5 record was not good enough to get in. This year, the War Eagles should be back.

"This is a tremendous senior class and we have good athletes in all of the classes," she said. "It's been such an asset getting the freshmen involved now and allowing them to get a dose of the coaches."

Laddin Lakey will again coach the jayvee squad, despite having only 11 players, about half who are freshmen.

Grandpa's Canteloupes

Bill Knight of Route 6, Mocksville, grew these 20.7 and 16.4 pound canteloupes, show with his grandchildren, Christopher and Brittany Knight. They are the biggest he's ever grown, but he doesn't remember the variety. "I just bough a pack of seeds and planted them," he said.

Frances Beck Attends National Conference

Frances Beck of Mocksville attended the National Association for Family and Community Education's 58th national conference Aug. 7-11 in Little Rock, Ark.

The theme "a multi-faceted tomorrow for today's family" mirrored the association's mission of strengthening individuals and families through continuing education, leadership development and community service.

Beck was a delegate to the national meeting of Extension homemakers from Davie County and the Northwest N.C. District.

"In today's rapidly changing world, our association works to promote an agenda that educates, supports and promotes the family in its global context," said Judy Weinkauf, president. "This conference emphasizes our commitment to empower members to become leaders in their communities on family issues."

Beck attended workshops such as "How To Talk So Kids Will Listen and Listen So Kids Will Talk," "Growing Up In A Socially Toxic Environment," and "Walking In Other Mocassins."

Jordan

Jordan has held numerous sales and marketing positions in this 10 year career with the company, the most recent being regional manager over Eastern North Carolina.

A Clemson University graduate, Jordan has been instrumental in recruiting for the sales and management trainee program. He was recently appointed to the board of advisors for the school of Industrial Technology at East Carolina University in Greenville.

Jordan and his wife, Robin, live in Raleigh. Their son, Chris, a 1994 Wake Forest-Rolesville graduate, plans to enter North Carolina State University the fall.
