Heart To Heart In This Issue

Within all of us, there is a unique story waiting to be shared. "Heart to Heart," a new profile series starting this week on the Davie People page, uncovers the extraordinary life stories of those who live among us.

The series is written by veteran newspaper reporter Kathy Chaffin, who worked for the Davie County Enterprise Record from 1986 to 1991. Chaffin has worked for The Salisbury Post, for which she continues to write on a free-lance basis. She also worked for The Enterprise in Yadkin County, The Tribune in Elkin and North Carolina Homes and Gardens magazine.

Born and raised in Davie County, Chaffin earned bachelor's degrees in English and political science from Appalachian State University. She has received numerous writing awards from the N.C. Press Association and the N.C. Working Press, of which she is the past president, vice president and treasurer.

Chaffin lives on Sheffield Road and will be working part time for the Enterprise Record while she pursues other writing projects.

Quilters Starts This Weekend

The performance of Quilters, the story of a pioneer woman and her seven daughters, begins this weekend at the Brock Performing Arts Center on North Main Street in Mocksville.

Performances by the Davie Arts Council's community theater group will be Friday and Saturday at 7:30 and Sunday at 2:30 p.m., and next Friday and Saturday (Oct. 11-12) at 7:30. Tickets are $8 for adults, $6 for students and seniors. Call or visit the box office.

RiverPark At Cooleemee Falls - The Bullhole Is Dedicated

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - Folks gathered around a circle marked with cornmeal here Saturday.

The 150 or so people at the dedication of RiverPark at Cooleemee Falls - The Bullhole, watched as Native Americans lit sage leaves in a container held by antlers and walked around the circle.

They touched the ground, as instructed by Liz Singing Butterfly, who led the ceremony, then put the earth to their cheeks.

They watched as she lit the ceremonial pipe, and summonsed the Spirits from the East, South, West and North.

They took a pinch of tobacco and offered it to the Spirits, all to the steady beat of a single drum.

It wasn't an usual ceremony, but the RiverPark isn't a usual site. Ancient Native American artifacts have been found there, and park organizers thought it fitting to allow the Native Americans a chance to teach others about their ancestry, and to bless the land.

Town Starts Condemnation For Park Entrance

COOLEEMEE - Town board members Monday night approved a notice of intent to condemn approximately five acres of land owned by Roger Spillman.

The action came after a closed session.

The land, on the Rowan County side of the South Yadkin River, is required for RiverPark at Cooleemee Falls - The Bullhole, because of an easement on it that extends to the old bridge. Park plans block the road and create a new entrance to the park entrance near the electric substation off N.C. 801.

RiverPark task force members had made several attempts to buy the land for the park, beginning in 2000. Two offers were made on the land, one for $22,500, the second for $30,000. When Spillman declined the offers, a third offer was made, which was also declined, said Ken Sales, task force chair.

As the land is required for access to the park, Sales requested the town condemn the property.

The board approved condemning the land and has sent notification to Spillman. The board must wait 30 days after sending the notification of intent to condemn the land before they can make a formal resolution.

Developer Would Like A Connected Greenway

By Beth Cassidy
Davie County Enterprise Record

If Roger Harris has anything to do about it, folks in Mocksville may be one step closer to good health.

Harris, real estate developer and former owner of Bermuda Run, recently completed construction of a three-quarter mile long walking trail along the back side of a new housing development on Elisha Creek, off Milling Road.

Although the trail and its adjacent picnic shelter, basketball court and playground were built partly to aid in the sale of homes in the development, Harris hopes it will be a springboard to realization of a greenway, something town board members have been discussing for years.

Under The Stars: His First Time Camping Out

I took my two younger sons on that amazing pilgrimage of boyhood this past weekend. The camping trip.

For young Michael, 3, it was his first time under the stars. We had tried the backyard, but my section of Lower Advance is infested with killer mosquitoes. With the West Nile Virus scare, parents no longer urge their kids to play outside. They order them to stay inside during the evening blood feasting hours.

For the camping initiation, we went to the rather tame wilderness of Hanging Rock State Park. Trees and a mountain, sure. But not so far from home if disaster struck.

Of course, we couldn't have gone home at night if we wanted. They lock the park gate at 8 o'clock. Nobody comes in, nobody goes out.

Aside from running out of dry clothes, disaster did not strike.

He finally fell asleep sometime around 10:30 p.m. The lure of the campfire was too much. Of course, it could have been the 10 marshmallows he ate right before bedtime.

He didn't care if they were warmed over the fire. He just wanted to eat them.

The boys were served a proper diet carefully selected to fill every major food group.

Soda. Candy. Chips. Candy.

We hiked the trails. Fell into the stream at the waterfalls. Poked in the fire. Wallowed in the dirt. Talked about bears. Looked at the stars. And made a lot of noise.

It was guy time.

On our way, we found the highway blocked at Danbury. Traffic was detoured for a parade, and it was a 20-mile detour to get back to the park. So we stopped for the parade.

We saw the South Stokes and North Stokes high school bands. The politicians. The pretty girls. And the clowns.

We threw rocks in the Dan River at Moratock Park while waiting for traffic to clear.

Then it was on to the campsite.

There's nothing like camping out to make you appreciate the comfort of a mattress.

During the weekend, I couldn't help comparing Stokes County to Davie. The two counties have a lot in common — both catching the spillover of Winston-Salem's growth. Both used to be heavily dominated by agriculture. Stokes is larger, but not by much.

Stokes has two competitive political parties, and that was obvious in the parade. They square off in November in a fashion Davie hasn't seen in 50 years. Stokes is also divided by a freak of geography. The Saura mountains may be small, but they divide the county in more ways than physically. Davie may have a growing east-west division, but it isn't nearly as severe.

Stokes is heavily dominated by two industries — tobacco and Duke Power. Both counties have struggling community hospitals. Stokes has three small high schools now after dividing South Stokes. But it is debating more school construction, too.

I had hoped the boys would hear a whippoorwill — the bird that used to entertain me as a boy at night. But they seem to be hard to find in both counties these days.

Michael woke up with the sun — ready to play again, throwing acorns and climbing rocks and jumping around the tent.

He wanted to stay. I could have spent another night, too.

Storehouse Signing Up Needy Families

To the editor:

It's that time of year when A Storehouse for Jesus starts signing up Davie County families who are in need of help with Thanksgiving and Christmas. For the past nine years, the Storehouse has been blessed to ehlp families with Thanksgiving dinner and Christmas gifts for children and senior citizens. They have also provided Christmas dinners for senior citizens who are in need. This is possible because of the generousity and love shown through sponsors in Davie County, along with a few sponsors from Forsyth County. Sponsors come from many areas: churches, businesses, civic groups, families and individuals. Sponsors help in different ways: through purchasing gifts or meals, donating financially, or buying new clothes and toys to be used as fill-in gifts for last-minute requests. Each year, the volunteers and clients are touched deeply by the community's generous outpouring to those in need.

Last year, the Storehouse provided Thanksgiving dinner for 327 Davie County families. Christmas gifts for Davie County families were provided for 785 Little Lambs (children), 16 Shepherds (adults, with majority with a physical or mental disability), and 54 Senior Stars (senior citizens). In addition, 74 Christmas dinners were provided for senior citizens.

For Thanksgiving, sponsors are given a suggested menue to purchase for unprepared meals. For Christmas, sponsors are given two suggestions of clothing items withsizes and two toys for each child. For senior citizens, sponsors are given two clothing items with sizes and two additional smallitems. Sponsors are also needed to provide Christmas dinners for seniors.

If you feel you would like to be a sponsor for Davie County families for Thanksgiving or Christmas, please call A Storehouse for Jesus at 751-1060 as soon as possible. Time goes quickly and there is a lot of work to be done in a very short amount of time. We are grateful for the Storehouse volunteers and clients and to all the sponsors who will be helping the needy this year.

Marine Collins, excutive director
A Storehouse for Jesus, Mocksville

Help Stop Domestic Violence

To the editor:

Davie Domestic Violence Services & Rape Crisis Center needs your help to remember the victims of Domestic Violence. October is National Domestic Violence Awareness Month. Purple ribbons are hanging on all the light polls through out town to remind the county that this is a growing problem. How can you help? Please wear a purple ribbon for the month of October to remember the victims that have lost their lives or are still living in, or have sucessfully left a domestic situation.

Domestic Violence is a serious problem here in Davie County. Davie Domestic Violence Services & Rape Crisis Center has worked with 1,522 individual victims since it's inception in November 1995. There are approximately 14,000 households in Davie County according to the 2000 census. Given these figures, DDVS/RCC has worked with an average of 1 in every 10 households in Davie County.

National statistics show that less than 50 percent of the victims of domestic violence report to law enforcement. This indicates that there are a large number of domestic violence incidences unreported in Davie County.

The services provided by Davie Domestic Violence Services & Rape Crisis Center are twenty- four-hour crisis line, support and referrals, emergency shelter assistance, court advocacy, and support groups.

Victims of domestic violence are often isolated from family and friends. Their connections to the outside world are often very limited. Davie Domestic Violence Services & Rape Crisis Center agency may be of service in reconnecting the victim to needed human resource agencies. The agency does not presume to make decisions for the victim, but can give options. Victims can become free from abuse.

Davie Domestic Violence Services & Rape Crisis Center is a Untied Way Agency.

Pam Brake, service coordinator

Little Girls Have Eventful Day At Miss Mayzie's

Louise Stroud

Many of you have told me that the column I wrote about Miss Mayzie's little remnant store brought back memories. Soon after that, Attorney Bill Hall's sister, Elizabeth Hall Preston of Bermuda Village, wrote me a very interesting letter about an episode that happened sometime after the store was closed. Her daughter, Nancy, had used this story while attending the Teacher Institute at Western Carolina University. I liked the story so much that with the permission of those involved, I have written it here with the hope that you will enjoy it as much as I did.

Attorney Bill Hall and his wife, Betty, and their children lived just across the road from Miss Mayzie's little store. I don't know just how long the little store had been closed when Elizabeth Hall, then in the sixth grade and her first cousin, Nancy Preston, in the fourth grade, decided to reopen the store, intending to reap high revenue. Elizabeth was to be in charge, she being the older one. They had dressed carefully for the "grand opening." Elizabeth wore a sleeveless, seersucker plaid blouse tucked inside cotton shorts while Nancy sported a red and white checked blouse and denim shorts.

Miss Mayzie met the girls at her back door with the key to the old building. The three walked together to the store and Miss Mayzie unlocked the door. She wouldn't give them the key but told them to "look after things." As you would suppose, the little store had a musty odor. The next step was to let the public know they were open for business so Elizabeth found an old paper plate, upon which she wrote the word "Open" and delegated Nancy to hang it up outside. Aunt Betty provided the hammer and nail and Nancy hung the sign on a telephone pole beside the driveway.

Meantime, Elizabeth had figured out how to get into the old wooden cash drawer. A few coins were there and it didn't occur to the girls that the money wasn't theirs, so they planned to make change for their customers. Their inventory included threads of all colors and yards of fabric piled on huge cabinets along the walls, including full bolts of cloth. The materials were probably quite old but they didn't care. The girls practiced measuring the cloth in order to be prepared when customers came in. Elizabeth counted the change over and over. She delegated the sweeping to Nancy, who found an old straw broom in a corner. By this time, they decided to go across the road to Elizabeth's house for a snack of Kook-Aid and a Little Debbie cookie.

Shortly after returning to the store, Miss Mayzie came, knocked on the door and asked, "Are y'all open?" The girls were thrilled at the arrival of their first customer. She admired their cleaning job and decided to purchase a spool of white thread since "white goes with everything," she said. Miss Mayzie gave Elizabeth a quarter and told her to keep the change.

The afternoon began to wane, but the girls did not become bored. They were making plans about how to get Elizabeth's daddy to replace siding or paint and to trim the hedges of honeysuckle that needed trimming.

Around five o'clock, Betty Hall walked across the road. She came into the store and asked how things were going and if they'd had much business. She complimented their lovely shop and bought a spool of white thread and a spool of blue, which she had not been able to find the right shade of until now. She handed Elizabeth, the cashier, a dollar bill and Elizabeth counted out the proper change. Betty then went home but turned to call to the girls that they needed to get home and clean up for supper. With everything in order, they came out of the store and Miss Mayzie was waiting at the end of the driveway. She said, "I'll lock up girls. Did you have a good day?"

"Oh, yes ma'am," they said. "We had a really good day."

"Ill see you ladies tomorrow," Miss Mayzie said.

"Okay, good night."

That night, after they were in bed, they discussed what they would do to help business. Maybe they would make a bigger sign. Maybe they could serve refreshments. Maybe they would take their wares door to door, up and down Mud Mill Road, as it was called then. The possibilities were endless.

The following morning, donning the same attire, the girls eagerly made their way to Miss Mayzie's back door and knocked. Just at this moment, alarming cries from inside the house indicated that a domestic disturbance was taking place. This frightened the little girls so much that they ran all the way home. The rest of the morning was spent in the dog lot playing with the little puppies. Elizabeth volunteered, "We probably wouldn't have had any customers today anyway." She volunteered a few more things like "we did a good job with the store, didn't we? It was fun, playing store, wasn't it?"

Evidently, Nancy agreed.

And Miss Mayzie never questioned the short duration of the reopening of the store or why it closed so abruptly.

Davie's Problems Symptomatic Of National Economic Ills

Peter Mooney

The upcoming election of county and state officials is critically important because Davie County confronts (as my neighbors here in Lower Advance would say) "a world of problems". To a large extent the problems that we face in the county are a microcosm of the problems faced at the state level. And the state's dilemmas are in turn symptomatic of large-scale national economic ills.

After a decade of growth in national income and wealth that brought visions of annual budget surpluses "as far out as the eye can see" the national exchequer today faces a string of annual budget deficits into the foreseeable future. The bursting of the information technology "bubble" had much to do with it, as did the terrorist attacks of 9/11. Yet beyond these destructive one-time events the country faces new, enormous long-term challenges to its international competitive position. Our manufacturing base is being steadily eroded by evolving comparative advantages held by our international trading partners - superior product design and engineering skills in Europe, lower cost structures in China and elsewhere in Asia, and so on.

North Carolina has for some time now felt the brunt of these international forces as globalization changes the whole nature of manufacturing, service and even agricultural activities. The former stalwarts of North Carolina manufacturing - furniture, textiles, wood products - are in decline; indeed they have been for some time now. Imports (mainly from China) now account for 40 percent of the nation's domestic furniture sales. textiles are the preserve of third-world countries, and following on the negotiation of North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) in 1994 Canada captures an ever-growing share of the domestic wood product supply chain. Meanwhile, North Carolina farmers have had to contend with four years of drought and a steady decline in domestic demand for their most profitable crop, tobacco.

Banking is another traditional stalwart of North Carolina industry that has been reshaped by the pattern of economic growth and development in North America and overseas. Local banking services still survive, yet those banks such as Wachovia, First Union et al. that seek to expand regionally and nationally are forced to consolidate in order to remain competitive. Hence Wachovia's decision to merge with First Union and in the process to leave Winston-Salem for the larger Charlotte market.

The economics of education in this country and in this state is also undergoing a fundamental "paradigm shift" due to a confluence of economic, political and social forces. On the one hand, the need for higher-level education (in our colleges, community colleges, and universities) is vital; unless our children acquire the skills needed in modern manufacturing, services and agriculture, they will simply be "left behind". Our students recognize this, and the share of high school seniors applying for admission to third-level educational institutions is growing inexorably. On the other hand, the affordability of third-level education is deteroriating. The cost of a college/university education has been steadily rising faster than the overall inflation rate - certainly faster than the gains in real income. This is true of private colleges, and it applies with a vengeance to public universities due to the parlous condition of state finances. Both North Carolina and South Carolina have experienced this budget crunch. As a result studentfaculty ratios soar, and many curricular and extra- curricular programs are either downsized or eliminated.

What does this dire economic and educational tableau have to do with us here in Davie County? Everything. First of all, in our little county by the Yadkin we are feeling the full impact of globalization as employees in the furniture industry lose their jobs. Secondly, the state's budgetary imbroglio impacts on our county budget as tax revenues traditionally returned to the counties (over $0.5 million in the case of Davie County) are retained to fill the gaping state budget deficit. Thirdly, we are witnessing a veritable implosion in our ability to provide elementary, middle school and high school education to our growing youth population.

These problems - individally and collectively - may seem daunting, but experience teaches us that they are hardly intractable. What we need today, more perhaps than at any time in our past, is visionary and courageous leadership at every level of government - national, state and local. To date that type of leadership is sorely lacking. In Washington legislators are debating the merits of additional income tax cuts; if passed we could have a "deja vu" of the disastrous deficits of the 1980s. In Raleigh the legislature has run through all its "rainy day" reserves, and now it proposes legalized gambling to replenish these funds. To suggest (as the governor does), that the purpose of his proposed lottery is to advance the cause of education is sheer and utter mendacity. And in Mocksville the county commissioners for their part have deferred until after the November election cycle the difficult decision to seek passage of two bond referenda to generate the funds required to prevent further deterioration of our schools.

We can't solve on our own the national crisis of international competitiveness nor do we have sufficient voting power to "send a message" to Raleigh. We can, however, come together as neighbors to elect conscientious and courageous men and women who will address not just the effects of our problems (e.g., diminishing local job opportunities, increasing traffic congestion on our roads, overcrowded schools, the poor showing in recent SAT scores which the editor of this paper has bravely highlighted) - not these effects, but rather the causes.

Like the nation and like the state, Davie County needs a wide range of fiscal resources in order to grow and develop. Taxes are a critical component of those resources, and Davie County (again like the nation and the state) needs a balance between the residential tax base and the non-residential tax base. Residents who rail against county property taxes are correct to the extent that we may not need higher tax rates. However, we certainly need a higher tax base.

Historically we have taken a measure of pride in the fact that Davie County is a "bedroom community", accepting steady migration of families from Winston-Salem and neighboring counties. The implication is we don't have smog-inducing and water-polluting factories to despoil our countryside. Yet people move to bedroom communities to secure a better education for their children, a safer living environment, and a superior quality of life. Today there is a distinct downside to our bedroom community status. The residential tax base grows, but the cost of community services provided to these new entrants grows faster. Unless we can attract non-residential businesses to bolster that part of our tax base, the result is "immizerising growth" - more traffic and congestion on our roads (more traffic circles, perhaps?), more over-crowding of our schools, more water shortages and land erosion as housing developments replace the rural spaces that once defined our Davie County "quality of life", and so on. Our fiscal balance has been distorted. Until and unless that balance is restored, our shortterm problems will evolve into long-term problems.

Part of our annual election cycle is already over, and the other part takes place in November. For those already elected to the Board of Education and those contending for positions as county commissioners, state senators, et al., I would hope that they grasp the dimensions of these issues, explore sometimes hard and other times creative solutions, tap regularly into the common sense of their constituents, and then share with them the logic of their ultimate decision-making. The future should not be determined behind closed doors, but rather in a truly communal effort to enhance the quality of life in this beloved county.

All Guilty Parties Should Be Punished

To the editor:

A crime was committed and my son was the only one locked up and now doing time for it, when he was not the only one named to do the same crime.

Is it because some of the other men or boys are kin or are they scared to arrest the other boys?

When I ask questions, all I get is that they are still investigating. Fair is fair, or sometimes they say, why don't you help us or me, or have you heard anything?

This is not my job. That's what my tax money pays. In Davie County, it's different laws for different folks.

To the other guys who committed the same crime, all I say to you is pray, because I'm not going to let the Mocksville police rest in peace until you all are in jail, too. If my son was wrong, you were wrong, too.

JV Raiders Deserve Praise

To the editor:

I would like to recognize and congratulate the William R. Davie JV football team for their 24-0 win against the JV Redskins. On Saturday, our boys broke their eight game losing streak.

Our boys practice hard three days a week and on game day, a lof of our boys play the entire game. We have a great coaching staff this year ... Ron Lee, Rick Dyson, John Paugh, David Henry, Greg Gobble, Justin Sheppard. Team members are Kendall Gobble, Tyler Lee, Jarrett Wallace, Zachary Paugh, David Wagoner, Jerrick McKnight, Derek Scherer, Cameron Sheppard, Alex Henry, Nathan Pearce, Brandon Medford, Tanner Bledsoe, Josh Godbey, Mack Britt, Matthew Dyson, Josh Chunn, and Clifton Bodenhammer.

Sexual Offense Article Insensitive

To the editor:

I am furious with the way this paper handled the case that was in the Sept. 19 edition. The article was titled "Man Gets 28 Years In Prison For Sexual Offense." The law states that you cannot admit a minor's name in the paper because that person is a minor. The case in point is where the mother's boyfriend molested that said minor. Granted, there may not have been much news to report in that week, but a minor should not suffer just because a reporter has no other news to write about. The article written by Beth Cassidy stated the minor's mother and father's name and address. That in itself pretty much gives the minor's name away to certain friends or people who know that family and thus rumors start. This is a little county and everybody knows everybody, so if you didn't know the family, I am sure someone knew and thus the talk started. This can be very devastating to a child in regards to his/her reputation at school, among peers, and in other aspects of his/her life. I cannot believe how insensitive this paper and its reporters can be when in regards to a child. You should be ashamed of yourself for having nothing better to do than ravage a child's life like that as if he/she hasn't been through enough already.

Greenway Expensive, But Benefits Lasting

"Once I got this done, I went to the city manager and the city attorney and challenged them to hook up to this. The time has come for a greenway," Harris said, as he walked along the scenic trail, which winds along in the woods and along the creek. Harris also had two gazebos put up along the trail, one of which is under construction.

An open house was held recently at the subdivision, and Harris said once the homeowners' association is put in place, they will be responsible for keeping up the playground area. The greenway, he hopes, will end up falling under the town's jurisdiction.

Town Manager Terry Bralley is equally hopeful about the future of the greenway.

"It's something we're exploring now, and it's something we've talked about for a long time. Mr. Harris' greenway is a great example of what one can be. Passive recreation is something a lot of people like to take part in," he said.

Parks and Recreation Director Mike Garner agrees.

"People walk the sidewalks in town, and we've got the great walking track that is open to the public at the YMCA, but something like this would carry folks out into a more natural area," Garner said on Harris' trail recently, he walked by a pasture in which there was a newborn calf. Something like that, you can't see in town, he said.

"This is something people would like to see, and it would be nice, since, as a nation, we're all tending to get a little heavier."

But as in all projects, funding may be an issue.

"This year's budget is pretty crippled," Bralley said, "and there's no money to do any projects. Anything we did would have to be grant related."

Such was the case with the Yadkin River Greenway project, in Wilkes County.

Dennis Huggins, executive director of Yadkin River Greenway, said they were able to utilize several grants, including one from the Department of Transportation, to fund their nearly $1.1 million project.

In 1994, a group was formed to study the project, and in May of this year, one and one-quarter miles of the greenway, which winds along the Reddies and Yadkin rivers, was dedicated. It will eventually be a six-mile greenway.

Huggins said money for such a project is there, in the form of federal grants. They have also taken donations, including those in memory of people, and he said one day, a woman walked up to him and said, "Here's a check for $30 - that's one dollar for each pound I've lost using the greenway."

Huggins said help has come from many places, including a bicycle club that uses the greenway, and he said they will soon begin a Friends of the Greenway campaign. "Most people will give you $100 if you look at them straight," he said, laughing.

Garner has been in contact with Huggins and may find him a valuable asset, if the project begins to become a reality.

For now, Garner, John Gallimore, county planning and zoning director, and Hank Van Hoy, city attorney, are all beginning to explore the need and space for the project. Harris' trail utilizes sewer easement space, which is maintained by the town, and he said that is the natural location for a greenway. Property owners would still have to give their permission, said Garner, and hopefully at no cost.

While Harris' path has a surface of granite dust and is about four to five feet wide, Garner said if it would be used by cyclists, runners and walkers, it would have to be paved and probably widened to six to eight feet. Huggins said their asphalt greenway is 10 feet wide, with a four foot width of granite dust on one side.

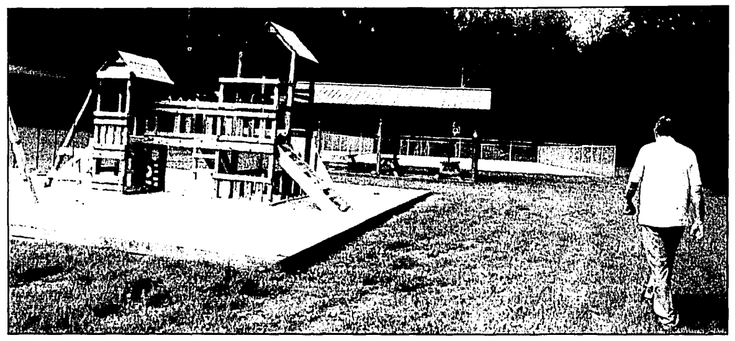
Currently, the trail meanders along Elisha Creek. Garner said ideally, what would be nice would be to extend it to run all the way to Rich Park, with part of it falling alongside the new March Woods development off Sain Road. There is already one sewer easement across U.S. 158, near Bob Wilson hill, but it would be difficult and costly to try to route the trail across the highway, he said. Part of Rich Park's land already reaches Campbell Road.

Huggins said there are companies who build bridges for greenways, and in their project, there are two bridges already built, one over each river. One of the bridges was installed in about 30 minutes, he said, with the use of a huge crane.

Although their project took nearly eight years, he said it has been a valuable asset to their community and was used by, on average, 200 people a day this summer.

The 12 families who are living in Harris' subdivision will be the ones to benefit from the trail in the near future, but he hopes someday, the trail, and its health benefits, will be much more far-reaching.

A gazebo is part of the walking trail in the development.



There are organized areas for children's play, as well as paths for walking, jogging or bicycling.

Where can you find some of the highest patient satisfaction scores for hip and knee replacements?

Right here.

Nearly four years ago, Rowan Regional Medical Center opened a superior hip and knee replacement program called Joynt Camp. Since then, hundreds of patients from Rowan and the surrounding counties have come here for surgery, gone through rehabilitation with others, and returned home quickly to a more comfortable, enjoyable life.

During that time a national research organization, operating independently, has been asking our patients about their experience. In every quarterly survey result, patients in our Joynt Camp ranked their orthopaedic surgeons, the hospital staff and their overall experience at the highest levels.

In fact, Rowan Regional's Joynt Camp for hip and knee replacement ranks near the top of all hospitals surveyed nationwide by the people who know it best – the patients. So why settle for anything less?

Fork Adds New Truck, Barbecue Saturday

FORK - A new pumper-tanker will be put into service at the Fork Volunteer Fire Department barbecue this Saturday.

One of three major fund raisers, the barbecued chicken meal starts at noon. The $6 plates include a half of a chicken, slaw, baked potato, roll and dessert.

Residents will get a chance to see the newest addition to the fire department, a 2002 International 4400 E-One truck. It can carry 1,000 gallons of water and 40 gallons of foam, and can pump 1,250 gallons.

It replaces a 1975 Ford, which is being sold to the Cornatzer-Dulin department.

Fork Fire Chief Nathan Walker said the truck committee was formed last summer. Although the truck arrived earlier this year, it is just now going into service because firefighters did much of the work to get it ready for use. The $171,000 price includes a $30,000 grant from the county.

"We've now got a little better and safer response," said Tony Moore, safety officer and chair of the truck committee. The truck has phone capabilities and has equipment that can be used for rescue.

Fork has 30 firefighters, and eight junior firefighters. Of the seven EMTs, three are EMTPs, meaning they can administer certain drugs.

A part-time paid person provided by the county mans the department several hours a day during the weekdays, when most of the regular volunteers are working.

Lodge Owners Plan Conference Center

Plans to turn Boxwood Lodge into a conference center and lodge went a step closer to reality last week.

The Davie County Planning Board unanimously approved rezoning 50 acres of Residential Agricultural (RA) and Residential (R-20) to Highway Business Special Use (H-B-S). The land, located at the southeast corner of U.S. 601 and Becktown Road, is the home of the Boxwood Lodge.

Boxwood LLC, the company formed after the land was purchased at auction earlier this year, plans to turn the property into a conference center and lodge for overnight guests.

The house and property are listed on the National Record of Historic Places.

"Boxwood is one of only a few country manor homes that were built during the great depression," said Alfred Wilson, one of the new owners. "It's one of the rare pristine examples of this type of estate that is unspoiled and remains unchanged." Wilson and his business partner plan to restore the house and the grounds.

"Our intent is a complete restoration with the blessing of the department of the interior," said Clay Lindsay. "Turning the property into a lodge and conference center allows us to return the home to its former splendor."

Overall, current plans make only minor changes to the property, adding an additional entrance on U.S. 601. Over 10 acres of property will remain as buffers and open space.

The final development plans are subject to final approval from county staff because it falls in the Cooleemee overlay district. The rezoning next goes before the board of county commissioners for a public hearing.

Planners Hear McRae Request - Again

By Kim Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

Since March, David McRae has been trying to get his property rezoned for his business.

The planning board recommended the rezoning 1.8 acres of land in front of his home on Shamrock Lane in Advance to Highway Business Special Use, acting against staff's recommendation.

County commissioners remanded the decision, or sent it back to the planners for further review.

The planning board approved the creation of a new zoning district for cottage industry. Immediately following creating the new zoning, they recommended McRae's land be approved for the zoning, pending approval of the zoning district by the county commissioners.

Commissioners didn't approve the low-impact home business zoning classification.

County attorney Bob Price presented the issue to the planning board, and shared the concerns the board raised, including: possible spot zoning, McRae building the 6,200 square-foot building before filing for rezoning, McRae's statements that Morton Builders misled him about the building permit, and whether a new zoning was needed.

According to Price, the commissioners are unwilling to consider the new zoning classification right now. They would prefer the planning board review the county zoning ordinances as a whole, a process the board has begun that is expected to take 18 months to complete.

Since the low-impact business classification wasn't approved, McRae's request to be rezoned low-impact business had to be remanded to the planning board for a second time.

"Are they passing the buck?" planning board member George Peterson asked Price. Randall Cave wanted to know how many times they had to approve the rezoning, since they've now approved it twice.

Ed Vogler asked about spot zoning as it related to this tract of land. There are four things typically reviewed when considering whether a spot zone would stand up in court. The first is the size of the tract. "This is a relatively small tract, which indicates against rezoning it," Price said.

The next issue is compatibility with the land development plan. This land was not intended to be commercial, so that's another strike against rezoning. But, the neighbors have spoken in favor of it, which could be a point in favor of the rezoning.

The last thing Price discussed with the board was the new use versus the previous uses for the land. This land has not been used for commercial uses in the past and so it would go against the rezoning.

Peterson wanted to know why the property needed to be rezoned. He quoted uses of backyard sheds and greenhouses under the RA zoning.

"I don't see this as a deviance from what we usually zone," he said. "There are probably scores and scores of people working out of their homes or backyard. Most people accept it as a healthy good thing. If commercial traffic was coming in every day, I could see the objection. I think they're making a political football of this thing. They're using a sledgehammer to hit a tack.

"I resent that they sent this back to us. If he were doing this in his basement or backroom, there would be no problem. I am totally and thoroughly in favor of this thing, and I think the message going back to the commissioners is we need to encourage this sort of thing for the health of our county."

In regards to letting the property stand in its current zoning, Price said the building was too large to fall into the small workshop portion of the zoning. For it to remain RA, he said, 'It would be a small workshop, an accessory building to the house, not used for a primary occupation, and only used for one person. McRae plans to employ 3-5 people, outside of his family. It doesn't fit into a workshop, pure and simple."

He went on to say that if the board allowed it to remain in its current zoning the matter would end up before the board of adjustment or in court.

Vogler told the board there were two issues they needed to look at, spot zoning and the land rezoning, not the building.

"It only meets one of the four criteria to approve it for spot zoning. The building was built and then applied for. If the building was not already there and the petition had come to us, would we or would we not have approved this for highway business special use?"

Daphne Frye said she would have approved it. But the issue of the size and look of the building kept coming up. Frye said that since it was already there, the board had the benefit of seeing it before they made a decision. "It's a very attractive building." Various members of the board echoed her view.

In the end, Ed Vogler was the only board member who voted against recommending the rezoning to highway business special use. The board also approved the special use recommendations from staff.

Planning Board Honors Ellis

The Davie County Planning and Zoning board honored Fred Ellis Jr. for six years of service on the board during their September meeting.

CHA President Jim Rumley talks with some of the Native Americans who took part in the ceremony.

RiverPark Dedicated At Annual Cooleemee Festival

"We believe that everything in life is a circle and that the circle is very sacred," Butterfly said. No photographs were allowed during the ceremony, and spectators remained quiet and outside the circle.

"We're blessing this land. We're blessing you. You will never be the same, in a very good way."

She compared the circle to a medicine wheel. "It's kind of like our church, where we come to pray, to celebrate. It's like a vortex of energy, and that's very powerful."

The Native Americans believe there is no separation between the land and the people. "We are all equal. We are all the same. That's the beauty of the Native American way. There is no separation. There is only the illusion of separation."

As she drew in smoke from the pipe, she summonsed the spirits of each direction to bring their gifts to the park land."

All of the Native Americans who took part in the ceremony, including Damon "Mountain Bear" Asad, the future chief of the Bear Clan, were thankful for the opportunity to bless the land once roamed by their ancestors

"It really touches my heart and I hope it touches yours," Butterfly said.

The ceremony culminated a day of activities, of reminiscing and food at the Zachary House, and the short walk to the park site at the end of Cross Street.

Before the Native American ceremony, speakers talked about the efforts to build the park, about it's importance to the region, and the political wrangling going on over land ownership and water rights.

And the Rev. Chris Williams offered a Christian dedication. A Cooleemee native, he remembers swimming and fishing at The Bullhole. He's performed a wedding and even baptized a few souls there.

"It's great to preserve God's beautiful gift of the river," he said. "Many people here can say about all the happy times they've had here."

Jim Rumley, president of the Cooleemee Historical Association, said the "Save The Bullhold - Build the Park" is a slogan that signifies two jobs.

"This morning, there was water going over the dam, and it was a beautiful sight," Rumley said. That water wasn't there for the ceremony, Rumley said, because "they (South Yadkin Power owners)" didn't want the people to see the beauty.

Rumley and his wife Lynn and the CHA are a target of a lawsuit filed by the power company.

"We're going to win this lawsuit if people are concerned about it," Rumley said. "This land must be returned to the people. Here's your 70 acres. It belongs to you people. For the first time, we're meeting on park land."

A path led visitors down to the South Yadkin River just above the dam. A yellow police tape down the center of the road marked the line between park land and power company land. A police officer was there to keep people on the right side.

State Rep. Julia C. Howard (R-Davie) said the park effort is proof what volunteers can accomplish.

"It's a special day for all of us," she said. "Every worthwhile cause has stages, a struggle and a victory. Today we celebrate a victory of accomplishment. It's from the initiative of people that most good things happen."

The volunteers building the park are creating a legacy for future generations, Howard said. She praised Lynn Rumley and the other volunteers.

"We have been united in our efforts," she said. "May God bless this special place."

Liz Singing Butterfly talks to one of the visitors to the dedication ceremony.

TOWN OF MOCKSVILLE

News Update October, 2002

SPECIAL DATES AND EVENTS OF INTEREST FOR MOCKSVILLE CITIZENS

MANAGERS CORNER

A plant closing and the lost of more than 360 jobs because of the imports made with cheap labor from the Asian countries brought reality home to Mocksville this month. The State's slow economy didn't help. It was not because our workers lack skill and efficiency, work ethics, or the. lack of an adequate facility. It is because today businesses in the US can meet production needs with fewer people or cheaper labor therefore, driving the cost of production downward. It doesn't seem to matter to the consumer in today's world where a product is manufactured. What does matter is quality and most of all price. It is hard to explain this trend to employees who have dedicated a life time to a company and who are dependent upon the company to provide a living for themselves and their families. Through no fault of their own workers find themselves starting over in mid-life and asking what new skill will they need to acquire. This is a story that is being repeated too often in America.

On behalf of the community, I wish to thank Lexington Home Brands and its workers for producing high quality goods shipped from Mocksville for more that half a century. We can not replace these jobs over night, but we pledge to be ever diligent in working with all our existing industries and continually striving to bring new jobs to this county.

If your company is looking for skilled, hard working, responsible employees, please be at the job fair October 16, 2002 from 1-6pm at the Lexington Home Brands Plant located at 101 Bailey St. here in Mocksville.

Davie County's Extension Director Retires

By Jackie Seabolt
Davie County Enterprise Record

After twenty-five years of service in Davie's Cooperative Extension Service, Director Ronnie Thompson has retired.

Thompson joined the Davie office staff in October 1977 and was promoted to County Extension Director March 1, 1984.

Though most of Thompson's duties as director have been those of an administrative role overseeing his 6 employees, his strong background in agriculture led him to focus on county educational programs in field crops like wheat and tobacco, and pesticide education.

Thompson graduated from North Carolina State University in December 1985 with a master's degree in agriculture.

A scrapbook chronicles Thompson's history of services over the years from awards he's been presented to field trips he's made to assist local farmers with any problems they may have experienced.

Since Thompson began his career with the Extension Office he has seen the number of farms in Davie County drop since the 1970's. The official census of agriculture classifies a farm as one that takes in at least $1000 dollars of income per year.

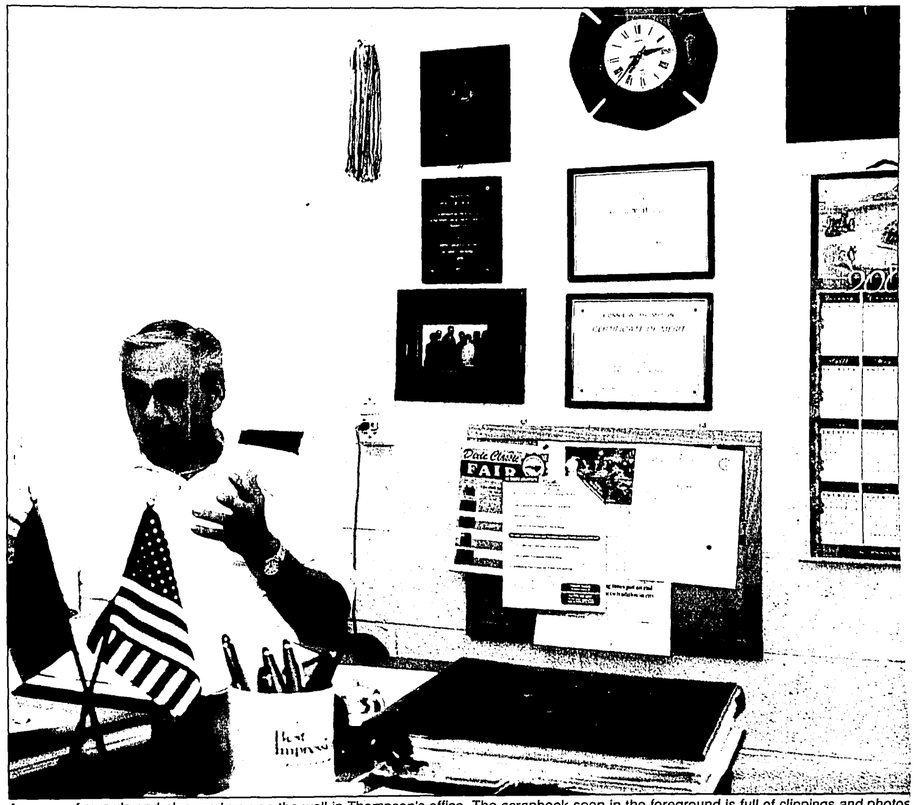
Thompson has seen methods of practicing agriculture also change over the years. The most notable he says is the change in technology. "When I started working here in 1977 we thought we were as mechanized as we could get. Most of the farms had combines and you thought there wasn't much more potential to become more mechanized and technically advanced." But now there are high tech global positioning systems in use that aid farmers in applications such as soil testing and crop yield monitoring.

"And cell phones, now that's another thing," Thompson said. The way operations went back in the early days of Thompson's work he would drive to the south end of the county to make a visit, return to the office in town, and find another resident at the south end requesting a visit. "There's no telling how many miles my legs would have saved if I had had a cell phone back then."

Some things don't ever change though. "In 1977 dry weather would get you, and in 2002 dry weather will still get you."

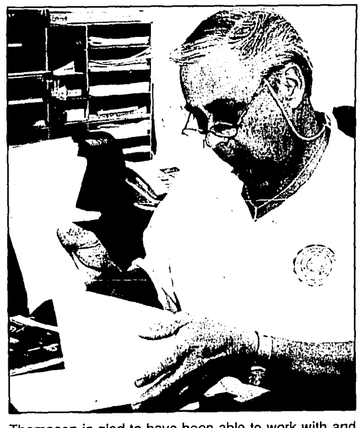
At one time the local extension office was the main source for people to get the information they needed. Thompson noted with the popularity of computers and easy access to the internet the role of local offices has changed. He feels privileged to have been able to play a part in making a contribution to local people by working with them on a one-to-one basis as they developed technology, improved their management skills, and increased the scope and size of their farm operations by sharing new information with them.

Thompson has plenty to keep him busy after retirement. He has over 40 acres in Surry County and plans to work the land as he's shown others how to do for more than a quarter of a century in Davie County.



An array of awards and plaques hung on the wall in Thompson's office. The scrapbook seen in the foreground is full of clippings and photos detailing Thompson's work with the county's extension office. – Photos by Robin Fergusson

Thompson has seen the technology of agriculture change tremendously over the years.



Thompson is glad to have been able to work with and assist the people of Davie County in farming education.

Bad, Bad Day

Soccer Team Loses Star Player, And CPC Opener

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

The Davie varsity soccer team's season suffered a major setback last week. Not only did it flop 3-0 to South Iredell in the Central Piedmont Conference opener, it lost its star player.

Moser

The most prolific scorer in Davie's 14-year history, senior Matt Moser, sustained a nasty arm injury roughly 15 minutes into a scoreless game. The score remained 0-0 at halftime, but the second half was disastrous as the Vikings blasted the dispirited War Eagles 3-0.

"It was very, very painful," Coach Jim Caudill said of Moser's dislocation. "It was devastating and we never recovered from it. He had had a couple good takes on the goal. South Iredell has been physical forever. I'm not saying (it was a dirty play), he just fell wrong. You're definitely going to get knocked when you're a player of that caliber, and he took a hit and landed awkwardly on his arm.

"I'm just thankful it's not broken and there's no other damage. But he'll be out a week and a half or two weeks at least."

The psychological damage inflicted by the injury was significant, because Davie's offense has been Moser, Moser and more Moser. He bagged a school-record-tying 20 goals in 2000, 23 last year and had 15 of Davie's 25 goals through nine games, putting him on pace for 30.

Zach Hanrahan admitted Davie's morale went down when Moser went down. Fellow seniors Andrew Scott and Micah Garner agreed. The War Eagles were an up-and-down team (4-4-1) with Moser. Without him, they could be bound for quicksand.

Volleyball Team Takes Over First

Davie's varsity volleyball team used two remarkable matches to regain its stature as the team to beat in the Central Piedmont Conference.

It's not surprising that the War Eagles defeated North Davidson and South Iredell to put themselves in the driver's seat for the regular-season title, but their thoroughness was startling. They went into North's house and rearranged the furniture like they wanted it, dominating 15-7, 15-7, 15-6 while handing the Black Knights their first league loss. Then Davie avenged a five-game loss in the CPC opener on Sept. 10 with a 10-15, 15-6, 15-7, 15-11 win over South Iredell.

That's a week that's hard to top.

"Going into North Davidson, they were undefeated, we had lost one and we were playing on their home court," Coach Dave Markland said. "I laid it on the line and told them this is the match we have to win if we want to win the conference. I told them: 'We drop this one, we won't win the conference.' And they took that as a challenge to prove a point, and that's the most focussed I've seen us this year."

Dawn Singleton lit Davie's fuse in the first game with North, sparking a 9-0 game-ending run with five straight service points. Sara Miller led with five kills.

Sensational Defensive Effort Not Enough

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Freedom rolled into town riding a blazing three-game winning streak and not even the most faithful follower expected Davie's varsity football team to hang with the Patriots in the final nonconference game here Friday.

The Patriots would have come in perfect if they hadn't turned it over five times in a 10-7 season-opening loss to Shelby. They responded with 112 points in the next three games, shredded South Caldwell, Statesville and Gastonia Ashbrook and averaged 6.7 yards a rush.

By contrast, Davie averaged single-digit scoring in four of its five games and lost three of five. You could almost smell a Freedom blowout.

Although the War Eagles failed to complete a rally and fell 17-8, it wasn't the thumping folks expected. Although offensive shortcomings left them disappointed for the fifth time in six weeks, Davie was rather content knowing it was so close, so late to a team that hasn't dipped below eight wins since 1995.

"If we get anything out of this, I hope we realize that we can play with anybody," Coach Doug Illing said. "I hope we can carry that into conference. They're very well-coached, but we're playing with two freshmen and a bunch of sophomores and we forced more takeaways and we stuffed them. We got a little confidence off the loss. I don't want them to be happy losing, but they got some confidence playing some top-quality football."

Freedom did just about anything it wanted against its previous three opponents. Josh Corpening averaged 7.6 yards per run, Trey Hennessee averaged 6.6 and option quarterback Chad Weatherman averaged 5.7. When Weatherman dropped back, he completed 19 of 33 passes.

The Patriots are sharp in every phase - kicker Stuart Mull put four kickoffs into the end zone and averaged 41 yards a punt against Davie, and their defense is so fast sometimes it looked like they had 12 or 13 players on the field. So it was no small accomplishment for Davie to trail 10-8 with less than 10 minutes left.

"We played awesome," junior cornerback Derek Cornatzer said. "We played good until the last eight minutes. We held them for a good 40 minutes. We played good technique football. It feels like we're becoming a family. We're coming together finally. Going into conference, we're looking real good."

The War Eagles (2-4) have a bye this Friday, giving them two weeks to prepare for the Oct. 11 Central Piedmont Conference opener at South Iredell.

"I can't be many more pleased (defensively). They were exhausted after the game," linebackers coach Mike Rominger said. "I like the way our DBs started breaking on the ball. Earlier we were sort of passive. We've got two ninth graders back there and they played their tails off.

"Freedom is a good team; we've got to them them credit. We didn't get as many breaks as we should. Hopefully we're going to get healthy, nonconference is over, and we're going to go for the conference championship. We can do it. We've got to have the community and school and everybody supporting us and be positive."

The War Eagles might have pulled off the upset had they stopped a fourth-down play with 5:55 left in the first quarter. The Patriots went for it on fourth-and-11 at the Davie 35. They were able to overcome 1-for-12 third-down conversions because Weatherman threaded the needle to Corpening, who sneaked over the middle, caught it right before Chris Hauser could get there and cruised 35 yards for a 7-0 lead.

What a shame that Davie's offense couldn't sustain but a couple drives, because Freedom didn't score another touchdown for 34 minutes, leading 10-0 through three quarters.

Injury Strips Davie Of Record Setting Scorer

"It hurts us to lose a player like that, but everybody's going to have to step it up and do their part to make up for it," Scott said. "We couldn't focus on the game because we were focussed on him. I think when we play them again it'll be a lot different."

"He's a big, big contribution to our offense," Garner said. "He fits in any offensive situation and makes anything happen. We've still got scorers, but now we have to come together as a team more."

Caudill was so disgusted by the loss he couldn't sleep. Lineup changes could be coming.

"We played very uninspired," he said. "No one stepped up. I watched the film until 3:30 that night because I was in such shock over the way we played after that (injury). We didn't play good at all and I'm really concerned with our effort. Some days we're ready to take on Brazil and some days we can't take on the middle schools.

"I tried several combinations and some guys off the bench are really getting after it. Technical-wise maybe they're a little behind the starters, but physical-wise and effort-wise they really work hard."

The subs who showed fire were sophomore Dylan Reynolds and juniors Corey Wood and Michael Gravatt.

"Reynolds has been tremendous in every role (marking back, stopper, outside half and forward) I've put him in," he said. "He gives 120 percent effort and with his physical abilities, he really gives us a positive. ... Wood and Gravatt had some good minutes. I'm glad they're still fighting to get starting jobs."

Notes: Davie's plight got worse the day after Moser's injury as Juan Lagos, the team's No. 2 scorer with four goals, turned an ankle in practice. ... Davie (4-5-1, 0-1 CPC) plays at home against Reynolds on Oct. 3 and against North Davidson on Oct. 8.

"I think they got flustered, frustrated and rattled," Markland said of North.

The match with South Iredell was the way it was supposed to be on Sept. 10. After dropping game one 10-15, the War Eagles stole the momentum and never slowed down.

The huge week established a five-match winning streak and enabled the War Eagles (14-2, 5-1 CPC) to stare at a delicious menu of possibilities. Although they're 208-126 since the program's inception in 1977, 125-63 in the CPC since joining the 4-A ranks in 1985 and have advanced to the state playoffs 10 times, they've never captured the conference championship outright, tying for first in 1981 and 2001. They moved into the driver's seat when North Davidson dropped a second match later in the week.

"It's our senior year and we want to do something," senior Sarah Williams said. "I feel like South Iredell's heart not there. We have a whole lot more heart. We just have to stay focussed and not beat ourselves."

While other teams may have one or two impact players, the War Eagles are a team bursting at the seams with players who can take over games. For instance, their leader in hitting percentage, Williams, only received eight sets against South Iredell. It didn't matter because Miller produced 18 kills, Allison Schafer collected 10 and Singleton, Heather Miller and setter Candice James never let South catch a second wind.

"South's a very good passing team and very strong in the middle," Markland said. "But we're the better team because we just have more weapons. Every team we play has one or two girls that are very good, but they have certain rotations where they're obviously weaker. We're well-rounded no matter what rotation we're in. We don't have to have the same girl on every night."

Davie's deadly depth was especially evident when Mandy Lambe came off the bench to serve. She put South behind the 8-ball in three of the four games, serving every point in runs of 7-0 in game two and 7-1 in game three. Not satisfied, she turned a 3-2 deficit into a 6-3 lead in four game.

S. Miller

It was Lambe's second impressive week in a row. "I was not using her as much (earlier) because I had her as a backup setter," Markland said. "But I made the decision she's too good a server to wait on Candice to be off."

Notes: Davie failed on 28 serves in the loss to South, compared to seven in the win. ... It plays at home against South Rowan on Oct. 3 and at Reynolds on Oct. 8.

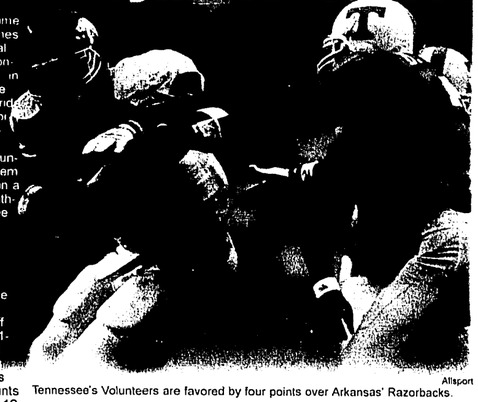
NCAA HIGHLIGHTS

Big Games Everywhere You Look



Allsport

Tennessee's Volunteers are favored by four points over Arkansas' Razorbacks.

We can't remember the last time outside of a day full of Bowl games when there were so many crucial college confrontations. Pick a conference – say the Southeastern in which Arkansas visits Tennessee Alabama hosts Georgia and Florida travels to Mississippi. We're favoring the Tennessee Volunteers to win their third straight over Arkansas, but the Razorbacks' run-powered offense should keep them within four points. Last season, in a game delayed twice by bad weather, then-eighth-ranked Tennessee held Arkansas to a total of 92 yards of offense and five first downs and won 13-3.

In Tuscaloosa, Ala., Georgia and Alabama meet for only the 12th time since 1964, and we like the Crimson Tide in an upset. These teams haven't squared off since '95, when Alabama won 31-0. Likewise, Florida hasn't faced Mississippi since a 28-10 Gators victory seven years ago, and this time Florida will win by what counts as a large margin this weekend: 12 points.

If you're a Pacific-10 fan, you'll be glassy-eyed by Sunday morning. We're picking Oregon by only three points at Arizona, despite what the Ducks did to the Wildcats exactly a year ago, rolling up 607 yards of offense in a 63-28 blitz, as Oregon QB Joey Harrington threw for three TD's and ran for three more -- then sat out the fourth quarter. Arizona last beat the Ducks four years ago.

Southern Cal is a nine-point favorite over Washington State, which was a 33-27 winner the last time they met, in 2000. The Stanford Cardinal, meanwhile, will lose narrowly to Notre Dame in a battle of top defenses -- reversing last year's outcome, when Stanford edged the Fighting Irish 17-13 in a driving wind and rain in Palo Alto, Calif., allowing Notre Dame only two completed passes all night.

In Seattle, the California Golden Bears will take their best shot at ending Washington's 19-game series winning streak -- and fall just short. In '01 the Huskies, then ranked 13th, had to come back from a 21-10 first-half deficit to squeak past Cal 31-28, as Washington's Cody Pickett and the Bears' Kyle Boller combined for six passing TD's. If they were playing in Berkeley, Cal would be favored to beat the Huskies for the first time since '76, but it won't happen in front of a Washington crowd.

Finally, U.C.L.A. visits Oregon State, and we like the Beavers by eight. Ranked among the nation's leaders in both total offense and total defense, O.S.U. will avenge its 38-7 whipping at the hands of the Bruins last year.

There are still more big contests in the Big 12. Oklahoma may find its hands full at Missouri -- unlike their last battle, in '99, a 37-0 Sooners whitewash. Texas Tech at Texas A&M looks like a dandy, and Kansas State should get some payback against Colorado, which upset then-12th-ranked K-State 16-6 a year ago.

In the Big Ten, don't miss Penn State at Wisconsin, and in the Atlantic Coast Conference, Bowden Bowl IV will kick the week-end off on Thursday night: Florida State (coached by Poppa Bobby) will take its 11th straight from Clemson (led by son Tommy).

NFL FORECAST: Sunday-Monday, October 6-7

(Sunday)
Arizona	9

Here's another matchup that the newly resurgent Panthers defense may take control of. Last year the Cardinals, like everybody else, beat up on Carolina, 30-7, evening their series at one game apiece.

Baltimore	15

The Browns move the ball best through the air and Baltimore still defends well against the pass, so this looks close. In 2001 Cleveland not only got past the Ravens for the first time, but swept them.

*Denver	35
San Diego	16

Unless the Chargers can do more than run, they're in for a long day against one of the NFL's top rushing defenses. Last year S.D. defeated the Broncos at home, 27-10, then Denver did likewise, 26-16.

*Indianapolis	24
Cincinnati	13

The most promising statistics for the Bengals fall under pass defense, which should at least keep them within shouting distance of the Colts. Indy was a 31-10 winner the last time they met, in '99.

*Miami	27
New England	24

Both clubs have plenty of offense, the Patriots are best without the ball, but the Dolphins will edge them at home. In '01 N.E. lost to Miami 30-10, then ended a five-game series losing streak, 20-13.

Pittsburgh	17

They're not dominating any stats, but the Saints are all kinds of confident -- while the Steelers are all kinds of mad and frustrated. Pittsburgh leads this series 6-5, but it's been idle for nine years.

The Browns' William Green

The Falcons' Michael Vick

Allsport photos

*Dallas	13

Not many strengths here: The Giants like to pass but often get nowhere with it; the Cowboys can shut the pass down -- or get burned by it. After beating Dallas at home last year, N.Y. lost in Texas.

*N.Y. Jets	25
Kansas City	20

Curtis Martin rushed for three TD's in the Jets' easy 27-7 win over the Chiefs in '01, but so far this season K.C.'s shown more offensive life than N.Y. With two mediocre defenses, this won't be dull.

Open date:
Detroit, Houston,
Minnesota, Seattle

Oakland	27
*Buffalo	15

They've been putting the ball up at every opportunity, but the Bills haven't yet faced a pass defense as good as Oakland's. The Raiders were 20-14 winners three years ago, the last time they met Buffalo.

Philadelphia	19
*Jacksonville	14

Often looking better without the ball than with it, the Eagles will need all that defense against the potentially explosive Jaguars. The teams have faced off once, in '97, when Jacksonville won 38-21.

St. Louis	24
*San Francisco	21

The game of the week, or another demonstration that the Rams aren't the same team that's won six straight from the 49ers? Either way a tough pick, because S.F. isn't exactly firing on all cylinders.

Tampa Bay	22
*Atlanta	16

If the Buccaneers hope to hang with the Panthers and Saints in the NFC South, they need to make a statement against the Falcons, whom they've beaten three straight times, most recently 27-14 in '00.

Washington	18

Here are two clubs still trying -- too hard? -- to measure up to their pre-season expectations of offensive greatness. Two seasons ago the Titans won their second in a row over the Redskins, 27-21.

(Monday)
Green Bay	23
*Chicago	19

We doubt the Bears, deep down, believe they can beat the Packers; last year Chicago finished a game ahead of -- but got swept by -- G.B. Also, the Bears haven't been in the Monday-night glare since '97.

Faulkner, Tucker Lead North 7th Graders To 4-0 Record

Sooner or later, this tightrope act might catch up with North Davie's seventh-grade football team. But as long as the defense keeps delivering, the Wildcats don't care about style points as long as they continue to win.

Last week at Erwin, they won the same way they did the previous week against West Rowan - with a defensive player causing a fourth-quarter fumble in North territory.

The visiting side was beginning to feel uneasy as Erwin marched to the North 30 with the Wildcats nursing a shaky 12-8 lead. Sam Tucker and his defensive friends were unfazed when it looked as though their unbeaten record was about to fall. Tucker slammed into an Eagle runner, knocked the ball out and Trent Brooks secured it to choke Erwin's go-ahead hopes.

"They had run a couple plays right down our throat, and we were getting worried because it looked like they were going to march down the field," assistant coach Danny Allard said. "All of a sudden they coughed it up."

Tucker's game-saving tackle was the same kind of lightning suffered by West Rowan. The Bulldogs were moving with a chance to overtake North's 8-6 lead, but Zack Russell-Myers forced a fumble that allowed North to salt away the clock.

Quinton Faulkner made Tucker's defensive play stand, ripping off runs that led to Nick O'Brien's icing touchdown run.

Faulkner finished with a team-high 85 yards on seven carries. O'Brien, who provided a 12-0 halftime lead on a 45-yard reception from Garret Benge, had 61 yards on six carries, and Trent Brooks added 46 on nine carries.

Brooks also led the team with eight tackles. O'Brien was second with five and Benge intercepted a pass.

"We had some big third downs that Quinton was able to convert," Allard said. "He picked up two big first downs at the end, and with his (small) size he was still dragging people. It was taking three or four people to tackle him."

Notes: North's seventh-grade team isn't clobbering opponents like its eighth-grade team, but it's 4-0 after beating Knox, West Rowan and Erwin by a combined 16 points. ... North plays at home to Southeast on Oct. 2 and at North Rowan on Oct. 8.

South Davie Outlasts North Rowan In 7th Grade Shootout

A seventh-grade shootout last week between South Davie's seventh-grade football team and North Rowan looked like a "Batman" strip.

Crack! Tanner Lowe caps an 11-play drive with a touchdown run for an 8-0 South lead. Boom! North answers to pull within 8-6. Pow! Quarterback Colby Seaford connects with Cameron Webb to extend South's lead to 16-6.

And so on. North's second possession ended with a touchdown to close the gap to 16-14. Seconds later, North returned a fumble 35 yards for a 20-16 lead. Only 1:40 remained in the half, but that was more than enough time for Seaford to hit Webb for 15 yards and Floyd Collins for 24.

That put the ball at the North 1 with 25 seconds left, and after a timeout, Lowe slammed into the end zone for a 22-20 halftime lead.

Amazingly, that turned out to be the final score.

"The way the game was going, I didn't think we could stop them," Coach Todd Bumgarner said. "They have some speed and they were slipping behind us."

The second half was a completely different story. After 16 minutes of outrageous fireworks, the defenses woke up and clamped down. Jesse Crotts, Jesse Cousins and Co. protected the lead and helped South (4-1) secure its third straight win.

After suffocating Corriher-Lipe 22-0, the Tigers lost 22-20 to West Rowan, squeezed past Erwin 22-14 in overtime and survived a track meet with North Rowan. A forfeit from Southeast was South's other win.

"Crotts is steady as they come. He never shows any emotion, but he's been super. Cousins had a another good game," said Bumgarner, who also praised the tackling of Eric Lowery, Collins, Darius Hall and Jr. Payne.

When Bumgarner called for the run, Lowe delivered, churning out 109 yards on 22 carries. Lowery added 33 yards on six tries. When Bumgarner called for the pass, Seaford responded with four completions on five attempts. That's Seaford's second sensational effort, following a 7-for-8 display against West Rowan on Sept. 5.

"When push comes to shove, Lowe's our workhorse," he said. "He's shown the ability to gain the tough yards, and Eric ran the ball hard.

"Seaford's a super quarterback. He made the proper reads and put the passes right on the money where only our guy could catch it."

Webb has reeled in 13 of Seaford's 18 completions. This time the sure-handed receiver converted three catches into 59 yards, and his long kickoff return set up the decisive drive at the end of the half.

"Webb's one of our big playmakers," he said. "He plays running back, tight end, linebacker, defensive line, free safety – wherever we need him. We like to get the ball in his hands as much as we can."

Notes: South dictated terms in the second half, ending the game at the North 10. ... After a bye week, it plays at Knox on Oct. 15.

S.D. Coach Praises Didenko Sisters

South Davie's softball team couldn't stand prosperity. The Tigers built a 5-0 lead over China Grove last week but watched the Red Devils chip away and steal a 9-7 decision in the last inning.

The meltdown made for a dark week because South met Mid-South Conference leader Erwin later in the week, and the Eagles blasted South 19-1.

"We were winning (7-6) until the last inning, but they had hits at opportune times," South assistant coach Jane Whitlock said of the China Grove heartbreak. "China Grove really hit the ball. They've got some really strong hitters at the top of their lineup."

Erwin appears to be head and shoulders above everyone. It leveled a pretty good North Davie team 11-0 and handed South Davie an even worse beating.

"Their team looks like a tournament team," Whitlock said. "They execute perfectly. Their catcher and pitcher are awesome."

Although South was disappointed it didn't hold off China Grove and enter the week 4-2 instead of 3-3, there were bright spots.

Whitlock marveled about the progress of Grace and Vanessa Didenko, twin sisters who were water girls for the football team last year and never played softball until this fall.

"They've always had the desire, the heart and athletic ability. (Football coach Todd) Bumgarner was wasting them over there giving water to the boys," Whitlock said, laughing. "I was like: 'We need those two girls.' "

The Didenkos are miles ahead of where two first-year players are supposed to be.

"They have come so far in such a short period of time," she said. "Grace made three outstanding catches against China Grove, and Vanessa made two, if not three, outstanding catches against Erwin. They do anything you tell them to do. Their hitting has come around and their arm strength's gotten better.

"They've learned a bunch. It's amazing. It's like a transformation, all within two months."

South plays at Corriher-Lipe Oct. 2 and at N. Rowan Oct. 8.

Freedom Escapes Davie's Defense With 17-8 Win

Hudson triggered an 85-yard drive to pull within two points, Davie's offense was anemic. Arnold was sacked five times, Davie had 46 yards on 40 rushes and Arnold and Andrew McClannon went 6-of-15 through the air as Freedom limited Davie to 134 total yards.

"Our defense answered the call all night," Illing said. "Our defense had their back against the wall the whole first half, kept them to 10 points and I thought that was tremendous. They played defense like Davie's defense is supposed to be played.

"It's just real disappointing the offense didn't do more. Our young offensive group doesn't know how good they can be, but that's the toughest defense we've seen this year. Mooresville had a pretty tough defense, but this defense is better up front."

The spread would have grown if not for guys like tackle Jeremy West, cornerbacks Raeshon McNeil and Derek Cornatzer, outside linebacker Ben Allred and linebackers Chris Goode and D.J. Rice. They held – thanks largely to a swarming West – Freedom's best running back, Corpening, to seven carries for minus-2 yards. Freedom had averaged 270 yards rushing and 336 total yards but managed just 114 and 228 respectively.

"It's a tough game to talk about as far as rushing because we didn't do the things we wanted. But you've got to credit them," Freedom coach Tim McMahon said. "They played hard, tackled well and defended our schemes. We've been making teams miss and breaking tackles, but they're a strong team. The slanting, we haven't seen that kind of front and that bothered us. Our kids were frustrated all night on offense."

Allred kept the score 10-0 by intercepting a pass after Freedom had taken over at the Davie 14. McNeil, just a freshman, frustrated basketball-sized receiver Jefferson by breaking up at least four vertical passes. What he did against Jefferson is why McNeil skyrocketed to varsity starter one year removed from South Davie Middle. The other freshman in the secondary is fearless ReShawn Parks.

"I've been trying not to mess up too much being a freshman," McNeil said. "I was nervous a lot. But I played my responsibility and kept up with him. I didn't even know who (Jefferson) was."

After failing to scratch on 10 possessions, Davie's offense broke loose early in the fourth. Justin Brown escaped for 15 yards. Arnold threw long to Hudson, who came down with a 38-yarder. Then Arnold, on the fourth play of the series, took a shotgun snap, darted left and went down the sideline 31 yards to give Davie new life, 10-6. A penalty moved the ball half the distance to the goal line, and Arnold ran in a two-point conversion to close the margin to 10-8.

"We answered at a very critical point in the game," Illing said. "(Earlier) we had some calls to burn them, we just couldn't execute."

"(Arnold) showed on film a lot of ability to make plays. We got caught up in a tight defense and he threw it over our heads," McMahon said.

Davie's defense was sensational until the end. Hennessee applied the dagger, tightroping the left sideline on a 28-yard touchdown run and putting it out of reach – at 17-8 – with 7:17 left.

"We just ran out of gas," Illing said of Freedom's clinching drive of six plays, 80 yards. "Look at West, (Brandon) Pane, (Sam) Stovall and Goode. Those four have been walking wounded for the last three weeks, so they're a little out of shape. That's probably what happened there. They got gassed and missed easy tackles on that long run."

War Eagle Tennis Team Marches To 10-1 Record

Davie's girls tennis team breezed to the eighth 10-win season in its 25-year history by whipping past West Forsyth 7-2 and South Rowan 6-0 last week.

The War Eagles joined the 1977, '80, '87, '92, '94, '99 and '01 clubs with their 10th win against just one defeat, a 7-2 loss to Central Piedmont Conference leader Reynolds.

They improved to 6-1 in the CPC by continuing their stranglehold on every team not called Reynolds. For the week, Megan Jordan, Alyson Walker, Carly Balsley and Holly Vines each went 2-0 in singles. Jordan-Balsley, Deanna Shamel-Ashlee Prevette and Vines-Sara Snow beat West in all three doubles matches. The doubles matches with South were rained out after Davie had clinched the verdict in singles.

"Everybody played great," Coach Kimberly Buckland said. "There's Reynolds, then there's us and then there's everybody else."

Notes: The War Eagles, who played at Reynolds on Sept. 30, close the regular season against visiting North Davidson on Oct. 2. The CPC Tournament is Oct. 8-11 at Reynolds' Hanes Park. ... Shamel is 8-3 as the top seed. Walker and Vines are 11-0. Jordan is 9-1, Allison Bowles is 9-2 and Carly Balsley is 8-2.

Golfers Combine For Best Score

Brittany Walker and Emily Pettorini shot 44s as Davie's golf team finished just six strokes behind unstoppable Statesville in an eight-team meet last week.

"We had our best score of the season," Coach Debbie Evans said. Walker, one of the league's premier players, bounced back from her highest round of the season, an uncharacteristic 49. Surging Pettorini followed up a surprising 45 from the previous week with another season-best score.

"If they can both play well, we might have a shot to quality as a team for the states," Evans said. "Pettorini's hitting the ball better, and Walker felt like she got back on track a little bit."

Peeler Wins Girls Cross Country Meet

After a string of second places, Bekah Peeler of Davie's girls cross country team stepped it up a notch and captured a meet with Reynolds and South Iredell.

Both Davie teams finished second behind Reynolds. The Reynolds boys scored 16 to blow away Davie's 57 and South's 65. Reynolds' girls had 20 to Davie's 57 and South's 60.

"We know Reynolds is the best team in the conference," Coach Darie Beiter said. "On paper our boys were supposed to beat South Iredell, and we did exactly what we were supposed to do. The girls, on paper, should have lost to South Iredell, but a couple of them ran much better. So I was proud of both teams."

Davie's boys were paced again by Brandon Shore, who finished fifth at 19:06. Corey Doub was 10th in 19:51 and Matt McAnally 14th.

Peeler grabbed first for Davie's girls in 21:47. She had run second, but no lower than second, in almost all the other races.

"She improved by 19 seconds and she had to run all by herself (because Reynolds' top three ran in a pack)," Beiter said. "The last mile was an excellent mile for her. She really pushed herself, and it's difficult running by yourself."

Peeler Beiter

Sharon Woodward was the next War Eagle in 13th, and 21st Hannah Thompson and 29th Amanda Cudd earned praise by finishing well ahead of their normal pace.

"Thompson came through. She's been way back, but she put forth a lot of effort and made drastic improvement," Beiter said. "Another person that showed a lot of improvement was Cudd."

Davie hosts South Rowan and Reynolds at Pinebrook Elementary School on Oct. 2. It runs at West Forsyth on Oct. 9.

North Davie's Kenny Barrantes scores a head-in goal against Salem Baptist.

North's Tyler Baity (11) and Andrew Linhart work the ball through the Salem defense.

North Soccer Team Needs 2 Wins For Perfect Season

Can anyone beat North Davie's soccer team? The answer remained no last week as the Wildcats bowled over Downtown 7-2 and Salem Baptist 6-2.

The player who orchestrated North's rise to 7-0 was Chris Wantuck.

"Wantuck ended up playing center midfield and he controlled both games," Coach John Marshall said. "He was one stable player that kind of worked us through both games, and he did a great job distributing the ball."

Wantuck took matters into his own hands against Downtown, scoring three goals. Tyler Baity, John Michael Bartelt, Michael Jolly and Ross Davidson had one apiece.

North's biggest scorer, Baity, did in Salem Baptist. He struck just before halftime for a 3-2 lead, then drained another shot early in the second half to push the margin to 4-2. Jolly, Cass Cassidy, Wantuck and Kenny Barrantes had one goal each.

"Salem crushed us last year," a proud Marshall said. "(After a 3-2 first half) we talked about winning 50-50 balls and being smart, and they did that perfectly."

Two seventh graders, Jeffrey Loos and Marshall Jefferson, caught the coach's attention.

"They really stepped up and played some of the best soccer they've played," he said. "Loos played some midfield (against Downtown) and actually earned a start against Salem. And Jefferson's doing a lot in the back."

Notes: The Wildcats have outscored opponents 28-7. ... Baity leads with eight goals, Wantuck has seven and Jolly four. ... Two games stand between a perfect season, at home to Forsyth County Academy Oct. 3 and at Summit Oct. 8.

Michael Sulier looks to distribute the ball.

N.D. Softball Team Pummels Foes

After losing an 11-inning nailbiter with West Rowan for second place, North Davie's softball team strengthened its hold on third by blowing Corriher-Lipe and North Rowan off the field.

Whitney Williams, Katelyn Jones, Stephanie Hinson and Breanna Dalton laced extra-base hits as the Wildcats blanked Corriher-Lipe 11-0. Pitchers Sarah Alexander and Williams combined for the shutout.

Hinson homered and tripled, Williams tripled and Gina Williams and Amy Grubbs had RBI hits as North destroyed North Rowan 19-3. North also got good swings from Emily Tierney and Dalton.

Almost every Wildcat scored against Corriher-Lipe and everybody reached base at least once against North Rowan.

"Both of them are kind of weak, but it gave us an opportunity to play a lot of people," assistant coach Angie Williams said.

North (5-2) plays at Southeast on Oct. 7 and at home to Knox on Oct. 8.

Winning Streak Reaches Five For North Davie Volleyball

Not only has North Davie's volleyball team won five straight matches, it has shut out four straight opponents.

Last week the Wildcats rolled over Downtown 15-10, 15-11 before taking two from Statesville in a doubleheader – 15-5, 15-2 and 15-4, 15-4.

What made the sweep special was North's ability to turn the tables on Statesville, which defeated North in three games on Sept. 10.

"This was a match we practiced for real hard because last time we were intimidated by their big girls's strong, overhead serves," Coach Trish King said. "So I served to the girls a lot during practice and we weren't intimidated. Their whole composure changed and we made a statement.

"Jenny Mann stunned them this time with her serves."

While Mann was her usual dominant self, she got plenty of help. Molly Chapple's setting, Britt Harrison's hitting and Morgan Owens' passing helped North repel Downtown.

Jennifer Hart's serves and Jamie Stancliff's setting keyed the verdict in the first match against Statesville. Chapple's serves made the most noise in the second match.

"Chapple is starting as a seventh grader," King said. "I've got her setting and she's really getting a lot better at it. And she had some of the best serves she's had all year."

North (7-3) plays at Forsyth County Academy on Oct. 2 and at home to Forsyth Country Day on Oct. 9.

North 8th Plays Sluggish, Still Wins Going Away

The letdown was predictable. After tearing through one of the Mid-South Conference's most consistent winners, West Rowan, North Davie's eighth-grade football team couldn't get up for Erwin last week.

Make no mistake - the visiting Wildcats sliced and diced Erwin 24-6. But Coach Ron Kirk said the performance was just OK.

"There was no lines on the field," he said. "(East Rowan's) high-school coaches hadn't marked the field in two weeks. You couldn't see the sidelines, and the referees were complaining about it. We were kind of lackadaisical. We didn't get up real good for it. We weren't as intense as we have been, and now's not the time to let up."

The Eagles were not an opponent to play around with. They shocked South Davie by two and took their first drive all the way down the field to cut North's lead to 8-6. As improved as Erwin is, though, it couldn't prevent unbeaten North (4-0) from posting another lopsided win.

"Erwin didn't have a bad team," Kirk said. "Our kids think so much about how much they beat these kids by last year (39-0), and Erwin was better coached this year. They're bigger and got some transfers in.

"I have to get on their butts about not taking anybody for granted."

It was just another routine day for North's backfield. Daniel Gough (11 carries, 138 yards), Brandon Stewart (nine carries, 79 yards) and Josh Miller (eight carries, 66 yards) amassed 283 rushing yards and averaged 10 yards a pop.

Gough opened the scoring with a 32-yarder, and the Wildcats erased any thoughts of an Erwin upset by sticking it in on their second possession for a 16-6 halftime advantage.

The margin remained two scores when Michael Weakley picked off a pass deep in North territory. In fact, the entire secondary stood tall as Adam McIlwain, Zac Gentry, Whit Merrifield, Weakley and Ben Hinson disrupted Erwin's air attack.

"Our secondary played a heckuva game covering passes," Kirk said. "They were trying to pick on McAllwain because their receiver was about the size of (North tight end Tom) Kuell. McIlwain hung with him, jumped in his face and kept him from concentrating on the ball.

"Gentry did the same thing. A couple times he came out of nowhere to knock down passes."

Notes: Erwin's blockers had a hard time containing linemen Michael Murphy and Chris Ange and linebacker Gough, Kirk said. ... North has outscored opponents 125-14. ... It plays at North Rowan on Oct. 9.

South 8th Team Makes Quick Work Of N. Rowan

South Davie's eighth graders lost two of their first three games, putting them in serious jeopardy of becoming the first South football team since 1997 to suffer a three-loss season.

The Tigers (3-2) are back, their performance said in a 40-14 thrashing of North Rowan last week, and Coach Todd Bumgarner could not be happier.

"We've had a lot of adversity and they just keep fighting back," the first-year head coach said. "We were on the mat early in the season. We were almost knocked down for the count, but we pulled ourselves off the mat and we're up fighting again. And it feels good."

Last year in the seventh-grade game between these clubs, the Mavericks made South grind out a 16-0 win. This year North sent the opening kickoff to Kenneth Brown, who wasted no time bolstering his already-large reputation as a now-you-see-me, now-you-don't magician in the open field. He raced 75 yards for a quick 6-0 lead.

"They kicked it right to Brown," Bumgarner said in astonishment. "I don't even think they could have pulled his flag. He zigs and zags and he's gone."

When North answered with a game-tying touchdown on its first possession, Bumgarner buckled down for a 12-rounder.

"I thought we were in for another wild and wooly one just like the seventh-grade game," he said.

Instead of trading blows, North didn't make another sound. Josh Eder rumbled 80 yards the second time South touched the ball. Eder recovered a fumble seconds later, and then Brown was gone again, 68 yards for a 20-6 lead.

After forcing a North punt, it was C.J. White's turn for a 20-yard dash and 26-6 halftime lead. The second half was played only because the officials were paid full game fees.

Brown tucked the ball eight times and averaged 24 yards, gaining 114 on seven rushes. Eder (94 yards on seven rushes) and White (84 yards on eight rushes) provided a fancy three-pronged assault.

When a backfield piles up 299 rushing yards on 25 handoffs, the offensive line must be doing something. The pile-movers were Brian Blackwell, Dustin Reil, Matt Wolford, Matt Pennington, Derek Abendroth and Kirsten Angell.

"We had very big holes," Bumgarner said. "There were times when Brown would have four or five yards before the guy would get anywhere around him."

The primary defensive terrors, Bumgarner said, were Justin Thompson, David Stovall, Reil and Angell. "Thompson laid some good lumber," he said. "Stovall continued to do real well, and Angell was everywhere."

Notes: South was marching toward a seventh touchdown when the clock hit zero. ... South plays at home against China Grove on Oct. 2 and at Knox on Oct. 16.

Kolby's Story

Hopes, Miracles Still Come True

Heart to Heart with Kathy Chaffin

Mother's Day, 2002: Kolby Hurt got up early on the morning of May 12. He had a lot to do.

The 10-year-old took a pair of scissors and walked outside to the rose bush beside his house on Center Circle in Sheffield Park. He examined the salmon-colored blooms and cut three of the prettiest for his mother.

Kolby put them in a vase and set it on the wooden TV table he had set up for her in the living room. He heated microwavable pancakes, prepared a bowl of cereal, poured a glass of orange juice and called Lynette Hicks in for breakfast.

She was particularly grateful this Mother's Day, having just given birth to Kolby's baby sister 10 weeks before.

A bump-up on the Hawthorne curve on Interstate 40 in Winston-Salem had sent her into pre-term labor, but doctors at Forsyth Medical Center were able to hold off her contractions for five more weeks while giving her steroids to speed the development of the baby's lungs. Ashlyn Sierra was born Feb. 20 – five weeks early, but healthy at 5 pounds, 1 ounce.

Lynette had just returned to work part time in her job as an office manager for the Northwest Piedmont Council of Governments.

At 28 years old, she had what most women dream of – a job she enjoyed, a nice home close to her parents, a devoted husband in Mike Hicks and now, two beautiful, healthy children. "It felt like our family was complete," she says.

Kolby, Ashlyn and Mike gave Lynette a red rose bush to plant beside the salmon one and a stained-glass picture of dolphins for Mother's Day. But Kolby had another surprise for his mother, a pencil sketch titled the "Lynette House."

He had spent hours on the detailed drawing of a large, two-story house featuring a side porch and a rock walkway, fountain and small pond in the front yard. He had to scrub the pencil smudges off his desk at Mocksville Elementary School when he finished.

It was a perfect beginning for a day to honor mothers. But within a few hours, a horrible accident would leave Lynette Hicks facing her worst nightmare and her son fighting for his life.

This is the story of that accident. It is a story of a First Responder EMT who was able to put his own feelings aside and initiate the care that would save his grandson's life. It is a story of the love of a mother and stepfather for their son. It is a story of hope, and many say, a miracle.

Most of all, this is a story about family.

Spencer-Hardin Couple United In Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Brandon Lee Spencer

Brandon Lee Spencer and Christina Marie Hardin of Mocksville were married in an outdoor ceremony at 2 p.m. Sept. 15 in Lewisville at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crotts of Springhill Drive. The Rev. David Snipes of Cornelius officiated.

A remembrance candle in memory of Mr. Larry Martin Spencer, father of the groom, was lit by the groom, the groom's brother and their mother to the music "Wonderful Tonight."

The bride is the daughter of Korene and Steve Maynard of Statesville. She graduated from South Iredell High School and earned a bachelor's degree in biology from Western Carolina University. She is employed at Wake Forest University Health Sciences.

The groom is the son of Gail Spencer Hutchens and the late Larry Martin Spencer. He is a high school graduate and attended classes at Davidson County Community College's Davie Campus. He is employed by his brother, Scotty Spencer, as a welder and construction worker.

The bride entered the church solo. Family, friends and loved ones responded with "we will" to the marriage of the couple.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Jackie Hardin. Bridesmaids were Amanda Telford and Jan Beaver.

The groom's stepfather, Howard W. Hutchens, was best man. Groomsmen were Scotty Spencer, brohter of the groom, and Brack Beal.

The bride wore a white satin full-length gown. It was fashioned with an off-the-shoulder, drop waist, embroidered bodice with a V-shaped neckline. The matching headpiece was a tiara enhanced withpearls and rhinestones.

Flower girls were MaKayla Semrends and Jordann Hart. Ring bearers were Franklin and James Miller.

The wedding was directed by Bonnie Crotts, the groom's mother's close friend.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held on the lawn by the bride's family.

The reeharsal dinner was held Saturday on the lawn at the wedding location, hosted by Gail Spencer Hutchens, the groom's mother.

The bride and groom were honored at a dinner at the groom's uncle and aunt (Mark and Betty Foster) in Mocksville on Sept. 6. Attending were Thelma Spencer, grandmother of the groom, Gail and Howard Hutchens, parents of the groom, and Scotty and Misty Spencer, brother and sister-in-law of the groom.

On Sunday, Sept. 8 the bride was honored at a shower at the Davie County Library given by June Beal, Jan Coleman, Johnna Beal and Kathie Brown, aunt of the groom.

After a honeymoon trip to the North Carolina mountains, the couple will live in Mocksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Kyle Lagle

Perry-Lagle Couple Speak Vows In Gatlinburg, Tenn.

Christina Dawn Perry and Bradley Kyle Lagle, both of Cary, were united in marriage on Aug. 3 at the Wedding Chapel in the Glades at Gatlinburg, Tenn.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vires of Canton, Ill., Robert Perry of Hanna City, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Kennedy of Galesburg, Ill. She is a 1994 graduate of Farmington (Ill.) High School and is employed as manager of Big Dogs in Smithfield.

The groom is the son of Rickie and Lanette Lagle of Mocksville. His grandparents are Frances Barney and the late Calvin Barney, and the late Johnny and Blanche Lagle, all of Mocksville. He is a 1994 graduate of Davie High School and a 1999 graduate of N.C. State University in Raleigh. He is employed at Analytical Science Inc. at Research Triangle Park as a statistical programmer.

The bride chose as her bridesmaids Danielle Banfield of Marshall, Ill., and Jeannie Peacock of Princeville, Ill. Krystal Perry of Hanna City was flower girl.

Groomsmen were Matt Daughtry of Knightdale and Jason Williams of Morrisville.

Immediately following the ceremony, a dinner reception was held at the Open Hearth Restaurant in Gatlinburg.

The couple celebrated with a honeymoon in Las Vegas. They will live in Cary.

A reception honoring the couple was held for family and friends on Sept. 8 at the Turrentine Baptist Church Fellowship Building, hosted by the groom's parents, Rickie an Lanette Lagle, and by the groom's aunt, Ruth Foster.

Kolby Hurt: A Story Of Hope, Prayers And Determination

For as long as she could remember, Lynette Hicks had spent Mother's Day lunch at the Cana Road home of her grandparents, Lou and Henry Kiger. But this year, her aunt and uncle, Melinda and Jimmy Gentle, had closed in the garage of their home on Chinquapin Road and turned it into a den/dining room, and the family had decided to gather there instead.

The 16 family members ate lunch together before venturing outside.

Jimmy and Kolby headed out to the garage, where a go-cart was parked.

Every year, Kolby's family went to White Lake for the 4th of July and the previous year, he had not been allowed to ride a go-cart on the recently-built track there. "He had to ride one of the slower, two-seater go-carts," Lynette says.

Kolby wanted to learn how to ride a regular go-cart before this year's vacation, and his great-uncle had agreed to teach him. Jimmy went over the directions, then satisfied that Kolby had understood, got the go-cart ready for him to ride.

Lynette was standing outside when Kolby came speeding out of the garage. He was out of control from the start, she says, driving the go-cart straight down the driveway and across a cement drive.

"At some point, we all realized that Kolby wasn't meaning for this to happen," she says. "We saw the look on his face. He was looking back and looking for help."

Lynette's father, Roy Hurt, saw the fear in his grandson's eyes and started running after him. "He had his right foot stretched out on the gas pedal," he says. "He was trying to find a brake pedal with his left foot, and he couldn't."

The go-cart headed across the Gentles' back yard, plowing through two guide wires strung up between posts so their two grapevines could grow on them. The go-cart, with Kolby still on it, sped another 20 feet or so before coming to a stop in their garden.

Lynette started running toward her son, then stopped and ran back toward the house, shouting for someone to call 911.

Roy and three other family members arrived at Kolby's side at the same time. His grandson was unconscious, and blood was gushing from a gash under his left eye where he had driven through one of the wires and from a longer, deeper cut where the other wire had caught along his neck.

Kolby Mitchell Hurt was Roy's first grandchild, and he and Lynette had lived with her parents for two years after he was born. There were no words to describe the love he felt for him.

"It hit me hard when I saw the shape he was in," Roy says. But the 49-year-old grandfather, a First Responder EMT for the Center Volunteer Fire Department, did what he had been doing on rescue calls for years – he ran to his car to retrieve his First Responder bag.

"Out of habit, even though he was my grandson," he says, "I put my gloves on."

Jimmy, in the meantime, had applied pressure to the artery in Kolby's neck to slow the bleeding.

When Roy ran back to his grandson, he checked his left wrist for a pulse. "The pulse that he had was good enough that his brain was still functioning," he says. "He was able to breathe, and his heart was still working."

Roy called for Air Care.

Mike Hicks, who arrived at his stepson's side with Roy, turned back when he saw Lynette headed toward them. He met her at the corner of an outbuilding on the property and said, "You don't need to go around there."

"I went 'Why?' " she says. "He said, 'It's bad.' I said, 'I've got to ...' "

Kolby Hurt listens as his grandfather, Roy Hurt and mother Lynette talk about his ordeal.
- Photos by Robin Fergusson

She pulled away from her husband and ran to her son.

Lynette's mother, Teresa Hurt, was in the house helping her sister and mother clean up after lunch when her niece, Denise Porter, came running through the house. Melinda Gentle asked her what was wrong, and Denise said, "Kolby had an accident."

Denise grabbed the portable phone and ran back outside with Melinda right behind her. Teresa ran to the back window, but all she could see were family members gathered at the accident scene.

"Then Melinda came running through and she was saying, 'Towels, towels,' " she says. "She took the towels out there."

Teresa held onto Kolby's baby sister and waited. "I saw an ambulance pull out of the driveway," she says. "I thought they were leaving for the hospital. Then I heard Air Care.

"I just thought I was going to die."

When Lynette reached her son, she took his hand and held onto it until help arrived. "I found strength I didn't know I had," she says. "I talked to him the whole time."

She told him how much they all loved him. She told him they were going to take care of him.

When Kolby stopped breathing, Lynette begged him to start back. "I told him, 'You've got to breathe,' " she says. When he stopped a second time, she says she jiggled him. "And he started breathing again."

"They need to hurry," Lynette says she kept saying. "Where are they?"

Kolby's shirt was pulled up, so Lynette didn't see the extensive cut around his neck until his shirt got moved and his head fell back. When the ambulance crew asked her uncle to move his hand so they could put on a neck brace, she begged him not to.

"You always hear, 'You have to keep pressure on it,' " she says. " 'Keep pressure on it. Keep pressure on it.' I said, 'You can't let go. You can't let go.' I thought he was going to bleed to death."

The EMTs put the neck brace on Kolby and loaded him into the ambulance. One of them, Eddie Spry, told Lynette later that he would never forget the last words she said to him. She had pleaded, "Don't let my child die."

The ambulance drove a quarter of a mile up Chinquapin Road to an open field where Air Care was to land. Lynette and Mike followed in their car. They waited, she says, and prayed.

"I begged God," she says, "I made a promise to Him that if He would spare my child, I would be a better person and do the right things."

Lynette says it seemed to take forever for the Air Care crew to load Kolby onto the helicopter and leave for Wake Forest University Baptist Medical Center. "Time just stood still," she says.

They found out later that it only took 42 minutes from the time of the accident, at around 2:30, for the Air Care crew to arrive at the hospital with Kolby.

Lynette and Mike made the trip in their car. Several family members had offered to drive them, Lynette says, but she told them they wouldn't go fast enough.

"Mike did really well," she says. She'd shout for him to hurry, and he'd say he couldn't go any faster.

"We got almost to Clemmons and Mike said, 'Lynette, I don't think I can do this,' " she says. "I just looked at him and said, 'Now is not the time. You've got to get me to the hospital.' "

He did.

Henry Kiger was getting ready to leave for the hospital with his wife and Roy and Teresa when Roy went into shock. Because of his EMT experience, he realized what the rest of the family would find out at the hospital: Kolby had a serious brain injury.

"I feared the worst," he says.

Teresa wanted to call an ambulance for her husband, but he wouldn't let her. Her stepfather drove as fast as he could, she says, but it seemed as if they would never get to the hospital.

Roy sat down at the nurse's station in the emergency room, where a nurse checked his blood pressure and continued to monitor his condition while the rest of the family gathered with a chaplain in a private conference room. That is where they were told about the injuries to the left front and right back sides of Kolby's brain.

"He had a subdural hematoma," Lynette says.

While emergency room staff prepared Kolby for surgery, a nurse insisted that his mother and stepfather be allowed to see him. "She said she had just had too many bad experiences," Lynette says, "so we got to see him as they were taking him back to surgery just to tell him that we loved him."

By this time, Kolby had been intubated and placed on a ventilator. During surgery, an intracranial pressure bolt was inserted into his brain to monitor the pressure caused by the injury. Surgeons also performed exploratory surgery to check for damage to his esophagus and trachea, but fortunately, there was none.

Plastic surgeons worked for hours to repair Kolby's wounds, some of which required layers of stitches.

The family, which had been joined by other relatives and friends, moved to the surgical waiting room, Lynette says, "and waited forever, it seemed." It was around midnight, she says, when they were told that Kolby was out of surgery and in the intensive-care unit.

They had moved to the sixth-floor waiting area to be close to the unit and were sitting there when Lynette heard a commotion near the elevator and turned to see what was going on.

"There they were running with my child on a stretcher headed to ICU," she says. "You can only imagine the thoughts that were going through my head."

Lynette held up well. She says she didn't shed a single tear until 2 or 3 o'clock Monday morning, when she broke down.

The first 96 hours are critical when there is a brain injury, the family was told. Kolby was extremely fortunate, doctors said, in that he had arrived at the hospital within what is called the "golden hour" in which a brain injury is the most treatable.

Lynette and Mike, Teresa and Roy and other family members stayed in the ICU waiting room, going in to see Kolby whenever they could. It would be nine days before Lynette would leave the hospital.

"I couldn't bring myself to leave," she says. "I was afraid something would happen. I was scared to go to the bathroom."

She checked the numbers on the intracranial pressure bol every time she went in to see he comatose son. One of the doc tors told her she needed to stop looking at the numbers. "He said, 'Those numbers are going to drive you crazy,' " she says.

Lynette refused. "I said 'Those numbers tell me how my child is doing,' " she says.

The closer they got to the 96 hours, Lynette says, the more hopeful they became. Family and friends, even people they didn't know, rallied around them, offering support.

"People just picked up the pieces," she says. "They kind o just knew what to do, when to do it."

Prayers went up everywhere for Kolby Hurt. Teresa says she answered at least 50 phone calls a day from family and friends checking on his condition.

When Lynette and Mike asked doctors about possible brain damage, they said only time would tell. Kolby had made it through the first 96 hours when his intracranial pressure and blood pressure rates shot up and his heart rate dropped.

"I was sitting there watching these monitors," Lynette says "and I called the nurse over and she called another nurse, and they called a doctor."

Lynette was so upset she had to leave her son's room. She was sitting in the waiting room sobbing when her aunt walked in. She had heard Kolby had moved his left arm for the first time that day and thought at first Lynette was crying for joy.

Doctors couldn't explain what had caused Kolby's condition to worsen, but once his rates had stabilized, he began to show signs of improvement. On Friday afternoon, Kolby began to come out of the coma.

Still on the ventilator, he woke up screaming, "Mom help."

"Those were the hardest two words I've ever heard in my life," Lynette says.

"It's OK," she says she told Kolby. "Mom's here."

Kolby screamed, "Mom help," again. "Of course, I los it at that point," Lynette says "But thank goodness, I looked up and the chaplain was walking in. He had to take me out."

As Kolby began to become more and more alert, he repeated phrases his mother had said a the accident scene: "They nee to hurry. Oh gosh. Where are they?"

On Saturday, he told Roy who he calls Papa, "I tried. tried. I tried to ride it."

Once, when his fourth-grade teacher, Melanie Swain, went i to see him, Kolby told her to shu up.

"Of all the children," Miss Swain told his family, "he would have never told me to shut up."

Miss Swain went to the hospital the night of the accident and returned every evening after school and on weekends for the 16 days that Kolby was there.

"She's not just a teacher anymore," Lynette says. "She's part of our family."

They started joking that Kolby had waited all year to tell Miss Swain to shut up.

A week and a half into his hospital stay, Kolby underwent more plastic surgery. Because his jaw was so severely broken, Dr. Lisa David inserted absorbable plates to hold his jaw together before wiring it shut for three-and-a-half weeks.

"The plastic surgeon said this was one of the most severe breaks in this area that she had ever seen," Lynette says. "If he breaks it again, or breaks those plates, she can't fix it again were her words."

Kolby continued to come around, but the brain injury had affected his short-term memory. That, combined with the fact that he had been in bed so long, required him to learn to walk again.

"Here again, I found strength I didn't know I had," his mother says. "I was holding Kolby up. His foot turned out, so he had to retrain his foot."

Drinking high-protein milkshakes because of his jaw, Kolby showed more and more signs of improvement.

Once, when Miss Swain brought him a bag of prizes he had earned through Mocksville Elementary's Accelerated Reading Program, she pulled a book out of the bag, Teresa says, and asked, "OK, do you know who is on this book?"

Kolby recognized his favorite NASCAR driver immediately. "Jeff Gordon," he answered.

"I went, 'Oh thank God,' " Teresa says. "That's the first point I knew he could see."

Doctors had expressed concern that the laceration under Kolby's left eye could affect his vision.

Kolby's family began to attribute his rapid recovery to prayer. "We saw prayers answered in just one day," Teresa says.

She and Roy had taken Kolby up to the playground on top of Brenner Children's Hospital. Roy pushed him up to a music box, but Kolby was unable to turn the crank to start the music.

Two more times that day, Kolby tried to turn the crank, finally succeeding on his third try. "Within that day, we watched him recover," Teresa says.

After 16 days at Baptist, Kolby's doctors made the decision to transfer him to the Charlotte Institute of Rehabilitation, where he would undergo physical, speech and occupational therapy to regain his strength.

An ambulance crew was getting ready to load Kolby for transfer when Dr. Thomas Pranikoff, the chief pediatric surgeon, dropped by to see his patient. He looked at Lynette and Mike, she says, and said, "You do realize your child is a miracle, don't you?"

The doctors and staff at Wake Forest University Baptist Medical Center were wonderful, according to Lynette.

"Those people are near and dear to our hearts," she says. "That's for sure. The doctors would sit down and talk with us. It was obvious it wasn't just a job to them, they were genuinely concerned."

If Lynette or Mike had a question, she says the nurses would call the doctors and they would try to find the answers.

One of the nurses, Tonya Thompson, offered them hope early on in Kolby's hospital stay. "She would say, 'He's in there,' " Lynette says. " 'I can just tell. He's in there.' "

Kolby Hurt spent eight days at the Charlotte rehabilitation center undergoing therapy and cognitive testing to see how his brain injury had affected his memory. "Remembering therapy," he calls it.

On June 6, he was released to come home, continuing in therapy on an outpatient basis.

It was at Davie County Hospital that speech therapist Alyssa Gayle taught Kolby how to deal with the frustration over not being able to remember or do the things he once could do.

"Ball up the frustration and throw it out the window," he says she told him. "I'll never forget that saying."

It was advice Lynette would have to follow as she dealt with tentative denials of coverage by their insurance company. "When you open up an envelope and it says you have a tentative denial for $60,000," she says, "your mouth about hits the floor."

The bill was later approved.

Kolby's homecoming meant getting reacquainted with Ashlyn, who had stayed with her great-grandparents while her brother was in the hospital and rehabiliation center.

Lynette says it was difficult for her to be away from her baby for that long when she was just getting to know her. "We had a lot of catching up to do," she says, "but we've made up for it."

Kolby, who doesn't remember anything about the accident, did remember his sister, and it didn't take long for them to bond.

"It's really amazing to watch the two of them," Lynette says. "I don't care what kind of mood the other one's in, all it takes is a smile from the other one and they're fine."

One worry that Lynette and Mike had when Kolby got home was his lack of interest in drawing. Before, Lynette says she could have taken all of the toys out of his room and given them away and he would have still been happy as long as she left him a pen and paper on which to draw.

"But I couldn't get him to draw for several weeks," she says.

Kolby drew a circle, and when his mother suggested that he draw a road, he drew a line and that was all.

Lynette's uncle advised her not to pressure him. "He said, 'If you push him and he doesn't want to do it,' " she says, " 'he may never do it again.' "

A week and a half after he got home, Lynette says she walked into Kolby's room and found him drawing.

"I told him, 'I said these drawings are even more intricate than they were before,' " she says. "And in his 10-year-old, little boy way, he looked at me and said, 'I am not a dictionary. What are you talking about?' "

Teresa, whose sister had started keeping a notebook for them the day after Kolby was admitted to the hospital, wrote in an entry that day that she was never so glad to see "attitude" in her grandson.

Though they still suffer from the trauma of the accident and cry openly when they talk about it, Lynette says her family is closer than ever and extremely grateful for Kolby's recovery.

Though some people may look upon them negatively because Kolby didn't have on a helmet, Lynette says she believes things happened the way they did for a reason.

"You look at Kolby's injuries," she says, "you look at his neck and you think about where a helmet would have fallen. The helmet could have gotten caught in the wires...

"I have to stop. I can't go any further with that."

He may have scars from the accident, but Teresa says her grandson is just as perfect to her as he ever was.

"When he was first recovering from this," she says, "all of the joy, all of the sparkle wasn't back in his eyes. But today, my grandson is in there. He is my happy grandson."

A couple of weeks ago, Teresa says Kolby scolded her for kissing him in front of people in Wal-Mart. "So I told him this week, I said, 'Kolby, what about if you and me do a high-five and then we'll know that that's a kiss, but nobody else will know that?' " she says. "He said, 'Nanny, just go ahead and kiss me.' "

Lynette and Mike say they're proud of their son. "He's a strong young man," Mike says, "a very grown-up young man."

Kolby required pain medication to sleep for two days after his jaw surgery, Lynette says, but he hasn't taken any since. "I don't think I could have done that," she says. "He's a pretty tough kid."

Now in the fifth grade, Kolby made two As and a B on his interim report card.

"He is able to do everything he did before," his mother says. "Things just take considerably longer."

When Kolby had his accident, classmates at Mocksville Elementary sent him cards and letters, signed a T-shirt for him, drew pictures and wrote poems for him. They even sang on a cassette tape Lynette played for him while he was in a coma.

When he started back to school, she says she worried how the children would react to the scar under his eye and neck. "They talked about it the first day of school in class," she says, "and to our knowledge, now he doesn't have any problems with anything there."

It's the adults who stare, according to Lynette. Mike finally told some people who were staring at Kolby in Lowe's: "He was in an accident, OK."

Kolby's plastic surgeon says the scar under his eye should be barely noticeable in a year, if at all. "Mainly what you're seeing now is the discoloration," Lynette says.

The scar under Kolby's neck has smoothed out some since Dr. David prescribed silicone sheet treatments for it. "We've just gotten started with that," Lynette says.

Though there have been many proud moments since Kolby has been home, one of them was when he entered three of his drawings in the annual Center Fair, including the one he did for Lynette for Mother's Day.

All three won blue ribbons. "You wouldn't believe our joy," Lynette says. "For him to walk away with three blue ribbons when just months ago, he had a brain injury ..."

Don't forget, she says of this story, to tell people how much they appreciate what everyone has done and is still doing for them.

"When things like this happen, it brings the goodness out of everybody's hearts," she says. "It's just extremely touching to know that people are still realizing what we're going through and that our battle's not over."

Lynette, Mike, Kolby and Ashlyn plan to be at the fish fry at Ijames Baptist Church Friday night. "We wouldn't miss it for the world," Lynette says.

There's one more thing she says she wants to say to people who read this story. "Slow down and enjoy what you've got now," she says, "instead of looking for whatever else or what could be because you don't know what the next second holds."

Not everyone has to learn like they did, she says, that life is precious.

"It's a lesson to be learned," Kolby adds, and just for a moment, it's easy to forget he's only 10.

Lynette and Mike Hicks are brought to tears remembering their son's injuries and recovery.

Kolby listens as grandmother, Teresa Hurt, tells a story.

Fish Fry To Benefit Medical Fund

A fish fry will be held at Ijames Baptist Church this Friday night to raise money for the Kolby Hurt Medical Fund.

Plates, which will include fillet of flounder, french fries, hush puppies, slaw and dessert, are $7. Food will be served in the church fellowship hall from 5 to 7:30 p.m.

Take-outs can be picked up at the community building across from the church. Delivery is available on orders of 10 or more plates.

To get to Ijames Baptist Church, take Highway 64 West to Sheffield Road. The church is located approximately one mile down the road on the right.

For more information about the fish fry, call 492-5162. Donations to the Kolby Hurt Medical Fund may be made at any Central Carolina Bank in Davie County.

First Public Service Appreciation Day A Success

N.C. Highway Patrol Trooper Michael Dalton deals with volunteer firefighters and rescue workers on a regular basis.

At wreck scenes, they're always busy.

He learns some of their names, and that's about it.

But who are these people? Who are their families?

That desire to get to know one another on a more personal level led Dalton to start what may become an annual public service appreciation day.

Held Saturday, Sept. 21 at Lake Myers RV Resort, an estimated 250 law enforcement officers, EMS workers, volunteer firefighters and rescue workers and their families attended.

"The main reason I started this is we never get a chance to get together with our families ... and to thank the families for putting up with our jobs," Dalton said.

He went to Lake Myers owner Rusty Craig with the idea. Craig said he would go along, with one catch: all the services at Lake Myers would be free. The swimming pool, miniature golf, lake and other attractions were open just to the families of the public servants.

"The least we can do is take one day to get everybody's family together," Dalton said.

Area businesses supplied food and other donations, and with help from Wendell Sain, Keith Gunter, Alex Justice, Rich Allred, Don Howard, Steve and Gail Frye, Gordon Donaldchuck, Ray Chandler and the Lake Myers staff, the day went off wonderfully, Dalton said.

A highlight was a volleyball tournament, won by the Highway Patrol team of Charlene Allred, Mary Ferguson, Frank Ferguson, Michael Dalton and Rich Allred.

Other teams were from County Line Volunteer Fire Department, second; Smith Grove Volunteer Fire Department, third; and the Mocksville Fire Department, fourth.

"We got this together in two months and had an overwhelming response," Dalton said.

QUILTERS

A musical by Molly Newman & Barbara Damashek

The story of a pioneer woman and her seven daughters, "Quilters" blends a series of interrelated scenes into a "quilt" which captures the beauty, joy, challenges, and rewards of frontier life. The stories are shown in "patches" with music, dance, and drama. When the patches are all gathered into one, brilliantly-colorful quilt, the effect is both breathtaking and magical. Guaranteed to be one of the best shows of the season, "Quilters" is not to be missed!

We welcomed Nena Miller as a new member to the Methodist church Sunday. She has been very active in the church work for the past few months.

Flowers on the church altar were in memory of Gray and Pearl Hartman, given by their daughter, Nancy H. McKnight, and husband, Harold McKnight.

The Rev. Harry Sammons celebrated his 50th birthday Sept. 22. He was given special recognition by the choir and Happy Birthday was sung by the congregation. Flowers were also in the church in his honor.

Jack and Dorothy Carter spent last week in the NC mountains at Linville.

Edith Zimmerman's granddaughter, the Hendrix girls, visited her during the week. On Monday, Amanda Hendrix of Charlotte was a luncheon guest. She also visited her mother, Janie Hendrix, and grandmother, Pauline Hendrix. Saturday, Meredith Hendrix, student at UNC-Charlotte, and her friend, Adam Kerr, visited Edith. Meredith and her grandmother made a quilt top for a college project. Sunday afternoon, Melissa Hendrix Bamum of Concord visited and had supper with her grandmother.

Leonard and Mary Nell Jones and their son, Gary, spent a few days last week at Pigeon Forge, Tenn. While there, they enjoyed some of the musical shows.

We were happy to see Kae Stockton at church Sunday after being confined at home and recuperating from recent major surgery.

Dick and Rita Vogler spent Sunday at Lake Norman, going especially to be with their son, Dickie Vogler, who joined a church there.

The Advance Masonic Lodge hosted a cookout Sept. 14 at the Lodge Hall for members and the wives of deceased members. A large crowd attended, enjoying the food and fellowship.

Nena Miller visited Lib Carter last week. Lib is one of the shutins in our community.

Get well wishes go out to Matthew Mills who was hospitalized last week for ear surgery.

Maybelle Orrell had the misfortune to fall at her home last Friday and broke her hip. She was admitted to Forsyth Medical Center for surgery. Get well wishes go out to her.

Edith Zimmerman visited her sister, Ruth Collette, in Winston-Salem Friday. Ruth is suffering from acute leukemia.

Brenda Burton underwent extensive foot surgery last week. Get well wishes go out to her.

Edith Zimmerman visited Oscar and Ruth Poindexter Friday. Oscar is recuperating from a 10-day hospitalization and major surgery on clogged leg arteries at Wake Forest Medical center. Ruth is confined to home in poor health.

It's scarecrow season. Got your scarecrow ready?

Watching Ken Burns "Civil War" series has gotten me all pumped up about our Cana Store and Post Office Open House. Sure, Robert E. Lee never picked up his mail from the old store, but many of his soldiers did after the war. The old three-legged stove was the place for the old men to gather. Later in the 1950s, the Coke machine was the place all the children wanted to visit. I am so glad that this part of our community is protected with the national recognition.

Friends, family and neighbors are invited to the Open House for the Cana Store, Saturday, Oct. 5 from 2-3:30 p.m. At 2, Jim Eaton will give a dedication speech and the new plaque that proclaims the Cana Store and Post Office as being listed on the National Registrar of Historic Places will be unveiled. Hope to see you there. Get there early. This will be a good service.

Happy birthday to Cliff Ritchie and Walter Etchison. Uncle Walter will be 90 years old this year.

Briana M. Montgomery

Mocksville Teen Competing In Miss USA

Briana M. Montgomery of Mocksville, daughter of James and Kim Montogomery, has been selected to participate in the Miss North Carolina Teen USA Pageant Oct. 25-26 at the High Point Theater.

Each delegate will be judged in swimsuit, evening gown, and personal interview. The winner will represent North Carolina in the nationally televised Miss Teen USA Pageant in 2003.

Montgomery is a sophomore at Davie High School. She has been sponsored by several area businesses, in addition to family and friends.

The pageant begins Friday, Oct. 25 at 8 p.m., at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. For ticket information, call 803-648-6220.

Two New 4-H Clubs Forming

4-H Clubs are about young people having fun with friends and learning new skills.

There are two new clubs forming this month and youth and parents are invited to attend interest meetings.

The Hoofprints 4-H Club will hold its first meeting on Saturday, Oct. 5 from 10:30 a..m-noon at Tinkerbell Equestrian Center in Advance. It is open to youth ages 8 and up who are interested in learning more about horses or own their own horse. The club will meet monthly with meetings designed to give children practical experiences working with horses. Parents must attend the first club meeting. For directions or more information contact Karen Pan at 998-9610.

A new club will also be meeting in Mocksville. As a Community 4-H Club it is appropriate for youth, age 9 and up, with a variety of interests.

4-H provides children and their parents with more than 200 projects and activities designed to help you learn to grow together. Everything from food to photography, and even horses.

An interest meeting for youth and parents will be held Oct. 24, at the Davie County Extension Office, at 7 p.m.

"4-H knows your family is important to you. We also know how difficult it is to fit work, family, and home life into a demanding schedule," said Tracy Carter, 4-H Extension agent. "Often parents spend time driving their children from one activity to another and miss out on time spent together. 4-H works to solve this problem. We encourage family involvement in 4-H. It's not just a youth organization, it's a family organization.

"That's one of the reasons we are one of the largest youth organizations in the country for boys and girls," she said.

Going on tours, attending special programs, conducting community service, and sharing what they have learned are some of the things your child can do in 4-H.

"Through their club experience, youth gain skills in decision making, cooperation, communication and so much more," Carter said.

Davie County has other clubs meeting throughout the community and is always interested in working with parents and volunteers to start more. In addition, Davie 4-H also offers various special interest activities open to all Davie County youth, regardless of 4-H Club involvement.

Call the Cooperative Extension, 4-H Youth Development Program at 751-6297 to find out how you can be part of this program.

Davie County 4-H is a United Way Agency.

4-H parent Penny Calhoun works with her son, Ben, on a community service project. Ben is a member of the 4-H Teen Association which made blankets for sick children. This year's projects will include programs on financial management and a trip to Washington, D.C.

Fingerprinting Of Children Offered By Law Officers

Fingerprints.

They're a good way of identifying missing, lost or abducted children.

The Davie County Law Enforcement Association will sponsor a fingerprint day for Davie children Oct. 12 and Oct. 26.

Oct. 12 will be at the Mocksville Wal-Mart in the Squire Boone Plaza, and Oct. 26 will be at the Food Lion in Hillsdale. Both will be from 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

The fingerprints will be for the parents records, and all children from infants to age 18 are welcome. New prints should be obtained every other year.

Farmington Class Of '45 Has Reunion

Gough, Mr. and Mrs. C.M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Joe C. Harpe, Mr. and Mrs. Joe White, teacher, Mrs. Hazel S. Barbour of Walnut Cove, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Williams of Hickory.

Early Detection Key To Breast Cancer Survival

Approximately 1,200 North Carolina families this year will experience the loss of a woman they love because of breast cancer.

Some of these deaths might have been avoided if the breast cancer had been detected early. Women and family members should be aware of the need to find cancer early. Through regular physical examinations, breast cancer can be detected in the beginning stages.

Oct. 5-13 North Carolinians are urged to wear pink ribbons in recognition of breast cancer awareness, and in honor of North Carolina women who are fighting the battle with breast cancer.

During Pink Ribbon Week, Davie County Health Department will sponsor a countywide Pink Ribbon campaign to raise awareness about breast cancer. Places of worship, work places, community groups, and other organizations will be distributing pink ribbons.

The pink ribbon has become a symbol of hope for a cure of breast cancer and a reminder that breast cancer does not have to be fatal. More than 90 percent of women whose cancer is found in its earliest stages survive breast cancer and go on to lead full and productive lives. Their loved ones are spared the loss.

Too many North Carolina women are not getting the regular breast checkups that are needed for early detection. These checkups include a clinical breast examination, mammography, and monthly breast self-examination.

"The wearing of a pink ribbon by a person can remind the women whom he/she cares about of their need to get regular breast checkups. This is especially important for women over 50, since in addition to being female, getting older is the greatest risk factor for breast cancer," said Barry Bass of the Davie County Health Department. "We hope everyone in the community will be wearing pink ribbons during Pink Ribbon Week."

For more information about Pink Ribbon Week and how to get ribbons, contact Charlene Allred, R.N, breast and cervical cancer control program coordinator at 751-8700. The Davie County Health Department can provide more information on breast cancer screenings, and how women who cannot afford them can get free or low cost breast examinations and mammograms.

On Oct. 17 from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. the Davie County Health Department, Breast Clinic of Winston-Salem, Cancer Services of Davie, and the Davie Department of Social Services will be sponsoring a breast and cervical cancer screening at the health department. Call for more information and to see if you qualify for free or low cost services.

Pink Ribbon is a statewide partnership of the American Cancer Society, Southeast Division, and the NC Breast and Cervical Cancer Control Program.

IF YOU HAVEN'T HAD A MAMMOGRAM LATELY, YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU'RE MISSING

When breast cancer begins, it's as small as a dot on this page. So small that only a mammogram can find it. In fact, a mammogram can detect a problem with the breast as early as two years before you can detect it yourself, and your chances for recovery are much better if it is detected early. During the month of October, Davis Regional Medical Center is pleased to announce that Mammogram gift certificates will be available for $35, which includes interpretation by a Radiologist. Gift certificates may be purchased in the Cashier's office, between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Obituaries

William C. Anderson

The Rev. William Charles "Bill" Anderson, 85, of McAllister Road, Mocksville, died Monday evening, Sept. 23, 2002 in Colfax at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lane Hall.

The funeral service was at 2 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 26 at the Center United Methodist Church with the Rev. Stephen Blair officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Memorials: Center Methodist, 1857 U.S. 64 W., Mocksville.

The Rev. Anderson was born Aug. 22, 1917, in Davie County to the late Richard Samuel and Jenny Call Anderson. He was a graduate of Mocksville High School, class of 1935 and a graduate of Mitchell College in Statesville. In 1949 he graduated from Catawba College and later did his post-graduate studies in theology at Duke University. He had been an active minister of the Western North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church for more than 30 years and was pastor of many churches in Davie, Randolph, Cleveland, Guilford, Rowan and Burke counties. He enjoyed gardening, fishing and carpentry and spending time with family.

He was preceded in death by 2 brothers, Richard Samuel Anderson Jr. and Felix Jackson Anderson; and a sister, Mary Frances Anderson.

Surviving: his wife, Myra Call Anderson; a daughter, Mary Anderson Hall and husband, Lane, of Colfax; 3 sons, Richard Charles Anderson and wife Dorothy of Casar, Thomas Stuart Anderson and wife Linda of High Point and David Harold Anderson and wife Gloria of Mocksville; 10 grandchildren; 2 great-grandchildren; and several nieces, nephews and cousins.

Barbara B. Narten

Mrs. Barbara Batterman Narten, 80, of Bermuda Run, died Thursday, Sept. 26, 2002, at the Bermuda Village.

She was born July 19, 1922, in Dedham, Mass., to John and Elenora Carl Batterman.

Surviving: her husband of the home, Nathaniel F. Narten; 3 daughters, Trish Kravchonok (husband John) and Laura Vogel (husband Ed), all of Burke, Va., and Babs Oakes (husband Ken) of Highland Park, Ill.; a son, John Fossum of Old Bridge, N.J.; 11 grandchildren; 4 great-grandchildren; and stepchildren Spike Narten (wife Janet) of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, Sue Rathbone (husband Tom) of Cleveland, Ohio, and Chris Narten (wife Debbie) of Flint, Mich. The family will greet friends at a reception in the Living Room at Bermuda Village Saturday, Oct. 5, 2002, at 4 p.m.

George Henry Robertson

Mr. George Henry Robertson, 68, of Lexington died Friday afternoon, Sept. 25, 2002 at Lexington Memorial Hospital.

Funeral services were at 2 p.m. Sept. 29 at Advance First Baptist Church, conducted by the Rev. Kip McBride. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Mr. Robertson was born June 27, 1934, in Davie County, a son of William Henry and Ethel Lenora Robertson. He was retired from the N.C. Dept. of Transportation, Highway Maintenance Division.

Survivors: his wife, Karen Spurrier of the home; children George Michael Robertson of Advance, Pamela Dale Koontz of Lexington, Anthony Dean Driver of Mocksville, Scott Spurrier, Bill Freeman, Shawn Freeman, Cassie Spurrier, and Danny Spurrier, all of Lexington; 2 brothers, Jimmy E. Free Hearing Tests Set For Mocksville Area
Anyone who has trouble hearing or understanding words is welcome to have a free hearing test with modern electronic equipment.
Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who may have been told nothing could be done for them should have a hearing test to find out if they are among the many a hearing aid will help.
It may surprise you to know that many people with hearing problems do not need hearing aids. But they do need a hearing test as a first step in finding out exactly what the trouble is. There's no charge for the test and absolutely no obligation.
The free hearing tests will be given by Beltone Hearing Aid Specialists at the Beltone Hearing Aid Service Center at 281 N. Main Street every Friday from 10:00 am to 1:00 pm. To avoid waiting call 723-5253 for an appointment for the free test at our office or in the privacy of your own home.

Center To Celebrate Homecoming

Center United Methodist Church, 1847 U.S. 64 West, will celebrate homecoming on Oct. 6 under the historic Center Arbor, beginning with a service of remembrance at 10:45 a.m.

The Rev. Steven Blair, pastor of the Davie Charge which includes Center and Salem United Methodist churches, will be the speaker. Blair was appointed to the Davie Charge in June, and had served the Mt. Heborn charge in Forest City in Rutherford County from 1994-2002. Special music will be provided by the church choir.

Bring a covered dish for lunch on the grounds following the service.

Dutchman Creek Baptist Honors Rev. Tuggle

In September of 1962, the Rev. Thomas Tuggle, a then 36-year-old native of Stoneville, was called to pastor Dutchman Creek Baptist Church. He had organized Level Cross Baptist Church in Randleman and pastored Lakeview Baptist Church in Linwood.

The Rev. Thomas Tuggle

Dutchman Creek had needed a pastor for some time. The pulpit committee asked Tuggle to preach a service. After that one service, he was voted in as pastor.

During his 40 years at Dutchman Creek, five new preachers surrendered to preach and have gone to pastor other churches.

Dutchman Creek is a mission-minded church. In 1971, Tuggle established Faith Promise for Missions. When Tuggle came to Dutchman Creek in 1962, the church had two missionaries. Now, 34 missionaries across the world receive support. Dutchman Creek has built a church in Haiti in the early 1980s, and one in the Philippines in 2000. The church is in the process of building orphanage housing in Vietnam.

Tuggle is known for taking a stand for the things of God and for the Word of God, the King James Bible.

On Saturday, Sept. 21 at 5 p.m., a covered dish dinner was held in the fellowship hall. Following the dinner, church deacons presented a check and plaque of appreciation to Tuggle. Now 76, Tuggle said he is looking forward to many more years of pastoring Dutchman Creek Baptist and continuing to help the cause of Christ.

Homecoming, Revival Start Oct. 6 At Courtney Baptist

Sunday morning, Oct. 6, Courtney Baptist Church will observe its annual homecoming celebration with Sunday School at 9:30 for all ages and the worship service at 10:30. A covered dish luncheon will follow in the new multi-purpose building.

The homecoming service will also begin the annual fall revival meeting. Services will be held each evening Oct. 6-9 at 7. The guest evangelist will be the Rev. Stuart White, pastor of the Carolina Memorial Baptist Church in Thomasville. Special music, including a revival choir, and worship will be led by Connie Loy, guest music evangelist. She is a member of Calvary Baptist in Winston-Salem, where her husband serves as associate minister of music. A nursery will be provided for infants and toddlers.

Methodist Open House Sunday

The public is invited to an open house at First United Methodist Church, Mocksville, Sunday, Oct. 6, from 1-3 p.m., to tour the new facility.

Jimmy Myers Promoted

Judge Jimmy Myers will be promoted from lieutenant commander to commander in the chaplain corps of the U.S. Naval Reserves in a ceremony on Sunday, Oct. 13, during the 8 a.m. worship service at Bethlehem United Methodist Church, Redland Road, Advance.

Myers is one of seven to receive the promotion out of 80 who were eligible. He will have more supervisory roles over other chaplains. He serves at the Navy Marine Corp Reserve Center in Raleigh.

Supper Saturday For Pastoral Candidate At Farmington Baptist

A covered dish supper will be held Saturday, Oct. 5 at Farmington Baptist Church for Scott Lyerly, a candidate for pastor. He will conducted the worship service on Sunday, Oct. 6 at 11 a.m.

Homecoming Sunday At Cooleemee Church Of God

Cooleemee Church of God will celebrate homecoming Sunday, Oct. 6 at the 11 a.m. worship service with music by the sanctuary choir and praise team, and special guests The Gospelaires. The sermon will be delivered by the pastor, the Rev. Robert Hullette. Lunch will follow at the VFW building on N.C. 801. The Gospelaires will present a concert at the church beginning at 2 p.m. Everyone is invited.

Foster's Jewelers A Stalwart On Main Street In Mocksville

Margaret and Allen Foster's are proud of the 50-year heritage of Foster's Jewelers on Main Street in Mocksville.

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

On Picnic Day in 1952, J.A. Foster Jr. opened a watch repair shop on the square in downtown Mocksville.

Fifty years later, his widow, Margaret Foster, and son, Allen Foster, still operate Foster's Jewelrs from the site on North Main Street where J.A. had moved his shop soon after opening.

It isn't the job of watch repair that draws the customers these days, but fine jewelry and gifts.

"Jewelry is the main item and that's what I enjoy, and we do fine gifts, china and crystal" she said. "A lot of young brides registered with us."

It wasn't that way when the store opened.

Watch repair was the name of the game. At one time, Foster's employed three people to do just that task. In 1955, it cost $3.50 to repair a watch.

As customers started asking for more and more jewelry, watches began to change, as well. The mechanical watches that were apt to be damaged by dust and water gave way to the Accutrons, watches that were electrical hybrids and half mechanical. In the 1970s, quartz watches came onto the scene. They're being mass produced, keep correct time and are cheap.

"It's kind of like evolution ... evolving from a mechanical watch to a quartz," Allen said. He's responsible for jewelry repairs and sizing, and has worked at the business for the past 18 years, although he and his three sisters spent plenty of time helping out at the store while growing up.

Mrs. Foster has worked there off and on the entire 50 years, always behind the counter greeting customers. Some have been customers for 50 years. She's provided curb service, and home delivery. She used to pierce ears in the back, when that became popular.

"We just started getting small amounts of jewelry in. Eventually, customers would say they wanted a ring or this and that, and it just continued on," she said.

Both are proud of their 50 years on Main Street. Allen is quick to tell about the building, built in the late 1800s that has housed a dry goods store, a cafe, a barber shop and a general merchandise store.

They've been approached by developers in the shopping centers, but the rent is too high. As it is, they barely survived the estimated 25 percent pitfall they suffered after Sept. 11.

The support of family always helps, Mrs. Foster said. "It's been a family business. If I need something, I'll call them up."

Still a fixture at the jewlery store, she has decreased her hours some, from six days a week to five.

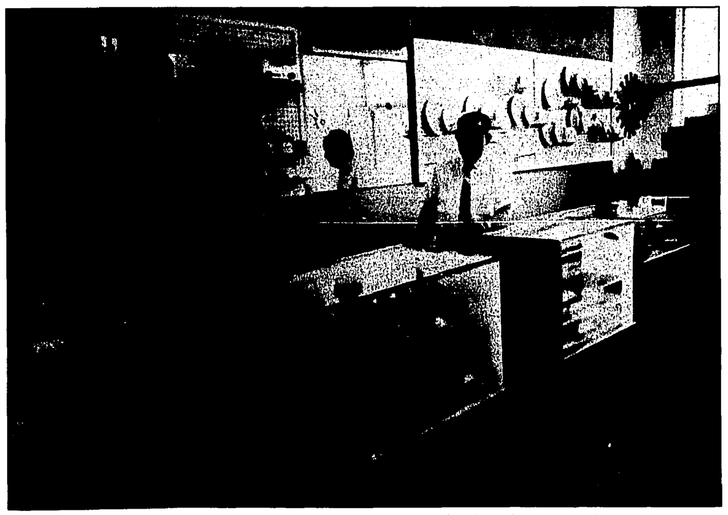
Mr. Foster died in 1995, but hadn't worked there in years because of complications from diabetes. A veteran, he had been in the Battle of the Bulge. Wounded, he entered the Spencer School of Watchmaking upon return home. He worked at a watch repair shop in Salisbury for a few years before starting his own shop in Mocksville. It wasn't long until he rented a house for his young bride in Mocksville, and soon after that bought an acre of land and built a house for his growing family.

Mrs. Foster still lives in the house.

She's proud of the business he started. And that pride swelled just a bit last month when a traveling jewelry salesman told someone else, who relayed the message: "That's the nicest jewelry shop I've ever been in."

Allen Foster repairs a piece of jewelry in his shop next door.

Foster's Jewelers has occupied this shop on North Main Street for some 50 years, originally opened as a watch repair business.



J.A. Foster Jr. mans the jewelry counter in this old photograph of the inside of Foster's Jewelers.

Margaret Foster enjoys helping customers.

Davie Schools

North Davie Middle

All Titans are reminded to return their field trip permission forms and money, along with their t-shirt order forms and money, to their first period teacher by Wednesday, Oct. 9.

In Prime Time students will discuss bullying, harassment, and compassion.

This quarter in science, Mrs. Delaney's class is studying water quality. Students have learned about GLOBE and the water tests associated with this program. This will be a yearlong study coordinated with all the eighth grade classes. One activity was to identify the quality of a stream based on the types of invertebrates that were found in the stream. Students also studied factors that influence the water table.

In social studies, they are studying the Revolutionary War. Students are writing news reports of the battles and events during this time period. They have researched their topics and are presenting them in a class newspaper. Ms. Colbert's social studies class is debating whether African-Americans should be granted suffrage. The Civil War is over but the tension continues.

The art of language brings students to the 60s. Students are designing their own 60s attire and learning how to describe it using sensory language.

Mr. Rareshide's algebra classes have completed a unit on solving and applying multi-step equations. Students are studying exponents and polynomials. Pre-Algebra students are in the midst of a unit on variable expressions and equations. In social studies they are studying the era of Andrew Jackson.

Pinebrook Elementary

Pinebrook is once againdesignated as a School of Distinction with 80 percent or more of the third, fourth, and fifth graders scoring at or above grade level. Expected growth requirements were met. Congratulations to students, staff, and parents for their hard work last year.

If you have a child who is 4 years old, he or she is invited to attend a free preschool hour at each Monday from 1-2. Plan to attend these sessions with your child, as many readiness issues will be addressed.

Tracy Miller will be substituting in Lisa Sutton's first grade.

Lowe's Foods has donated $500 to Pinebrook to use to provide incentives for the Accelerated Reading program. It was presented to Principal Mary Sine at the grand opening of the new store in Kinderton Thursday, Sept. 17.

School Pictures will be made on Wednesday, Oct. 2.

Muffins for Mom and Doughnuts for Dad will be Tuesday, Oct. 8 and Wednesday, Oct. 9 from 7-8a.mm in the cafeteria.

September's Box Tops For Books champion classes were: Mrs. Suttons 1st grade, Mrs. Graggs 3rd Grade, and Mrs. Potts 2nd Grade and this weeks winner was Mrs. Blanks 1st Grade Class. Principal Mary Sine presented the class with a certificate and the traveling apple trophy for collecting 97 boxtops. The goal for the year is $2,000. A total of $433 has been earned toward books for the media center.

Character Kids for the week of Sept. 23-27 are DeJay Allison, Austin Bell, Katlyn Simmons, Brent Williams, Mike Delucis, Alex Compton, Jacob Wood, Kenneth Hockaday, Matthew Carter, Brent Dhonnock, Karla Miner, Sarah Boyter, Dalton Hummer, Jerod Gray, Nzadi Jennett, Emily Evans, Robert Murray, Jordan Budd, Jaty Howard, Ashley Ellis, Kayla Harris, Brotani Kuhn, Jimmeeka Coggins, Ashley Helper.

The fifth grade classes have a rainbow theme and have carried that into their reading. Each class is working on a rainbow. Each color of the rainbow represents 25 books that a class has read. When all the classes have completed their rainbow a special reward will be given. A rainbow bar graph is on display in the hall.

Students of Roxanne Dalton and Linda Harris have read 100 books per class through the Accelerated Reader Program. The Scholastic Arrow Book Club will donate 100 books each to two classrooms with children in need of books through a Classroom Care Literacy Partners Program. Science classes are studying plant and animal interdependence. Numerous caterpillars were observed in the fifth grade garden. Some were bought into the classroom so the stages of metamorphosis could be observed. The butterflies were released back to the garden. Fifth graders were encouraged to enter an essay contest organized by the 4-H. The theme was Why I Am Proud To Be An American. Classroom winning entries were Michael Marrs (Dalton), Lisa Foster (Hicks), Kara Smallmam (Harris), and Atticus Lum (Howard). Fifth grade students in Mrs. Daltons social studies classes have been learning about immigration and their own heritage. Students had an opportunity to learn about foods their ancestors may have enjoyed. Students also had the opportunity to sample a few foods from other countries. This week the students will begin a unit on the United States. Ms. Hicks math students are working on skills involving symmetry, fractions, division and problem solving. Mrs. Harris math students have explored multiplication, division, fractions, decimals and percents. All four homerooms continue to work daily on mental math exercises.

Cooleemee Elementary

Kindergarten went to Horizons in Salisbury this week. They saw two programs. The first was about Native American families. The children learned about how their families were similar and different from the Indian families. The second program the children watched was in the planetarium. They observed day and night skies. The children used their imagination to see animals in the clouds and stars.

Fall Festival is Thursday, Oct. 3 from 5-8 p.m. with food and fun, bingo, cake walk, games, hay ride, and a hot dog dinner.

William R. Davie Elementary

Bus and Car Riders of the Week for the week of Sept. 9-13: Tyler Myers, Gariella Lopez, Jacob Booe, Jordan Myer, Matt Speer, Bere Patino, Lakota Marroquin, Wiley Baity, Johnny Hernandez, Adilene Almazan, and Nathan Lee.

Bus and Car Riders of the Week of the week Sept. 16-20: Mark Diaz, Leslie Taylor, Jonathan Chaffin, Casey Ireland, Justice Childress, Amber Carrion, Kendal Gobble, KeAira Smith, Erasamo Rivera, Beverly Melara, and Taylor O'Neal.

Citizens of the Week for Sept. 9-13: Colton Prim, Renee Bryant, Bictor Gutierrez, Cody Bunch, Todd McBride, Justice Childress, Zulema Martinez, Karen Diaz, Anna Tutterow, Autumn Barber, Jessica Buchanan, Kendall Gobble, Miranda Myers, Alex Henry, Leticia Patino, Josh Potts, and Alyson Jordan.

Cub reporters from Judy White's fourth grade have been snooping around the school looking for news. Several students visited the kindergarten classes to find out what they've been doing. Chelsea Ledford and Andrew Olson visited Mrs. Prince's class on Wednesday, Aug. 21. They asked questions about the class. The rules they have are "listen and follow directions" and "listen when the teacher is talking." They had been playing outside. They do fun things like playdough, playing with the overhead and playing centers. They like the school and the teacher. Some said they had a lot of homework. They have done math and reading. In PE they did music hoops. They have 10 boys and seven girls. They had made and colored octopus headbands. Their discipline is a stoplight. They have three warnings. They have eight centers in their classroom.

Latrinda Tillery and Enry Guerrero went to Miss York's kindergarten room to visit her class. They were doing O's and some were reading books. They were reading the O book with Miss York and with Mrs. Anderson. They have rules: Listen when the teacher is talking. You can talk when permission is given. They said that they like their teachers and school. They like their books a lot.

Zachary Paugh went to Mrs. Spillman's class. I'm Zachary Paugh, cub reporter, from Judy White's fourth grade. I asked questions to Mrs. Spillman's kindergarten class. They said that their rules are: Keep hands and feet to yourself, and no running and sit quietly. Her class has 12 boys and seven girls. They have been studying the letter O in spelling, and they have been reading The Oreo Book. Their favorite subject is math centers. They have been dancing to music in P.E. In art they have been making shapes and in music they have been working on the song "colors". They like going outside. They have a lot of homework, but they like Mrs. Spillman.

Emily Davis and Megan Campbell went to Linda Drye's kindergarten class, and they looked liked they were having fun.

What's Happening At Davie High

Spirit Week Favored By Teachers, Students

Spirit week is favored and was a lot of fun for Davie High students and teachers last week. Monday through Friday students and teachers dressed up to different theme's to prepare for homecoming and show their school spirit.

"It's one of the best weeks of the year and to me students seem to be excited about learning during the week," sadi Glenn Scott, graphic arts teacher. "Everyone seemed to be in a good mood."

Elise Dickmann

Scott participated in spirit week because he wants to be a good role model. "I want to show students you can have fun at school." Scott definitely recommends students to participate in spirit week. "It's part of being a student and enjoy being one while you still are."

Hugh Lee, the business math teacher at Davie, also participated. "I want the students to feel like I'm interested in what they're doing at school. It allows students to be creative and it breaks the monotony of a regular school week," Lee says.

Can spirit week be a distraction to learning? "It can be a distraction if a teacher doesn't maintain control," Lee said. "It's important to show school spirit though."

Taylor Kinder, a senior at Davie, enjoyed spirit week. "It's a whole lot of fun and it's a week where you don't have to worry about what you look like." The only thing he'd change about spirit week would be to bring pajama day back. Kinder favors school colors day because he paints his face, orange, black and white. He says spirit week "gets everyone pumped up for the game and gives everyone a good week."

Alyse Bowden, a junior, also was a participant of spirit week. "It's a great way to show school spirit." Bowden's favorite day of the week was tacky day. Bowden "You can wear anything and it's fun seeing other people's wardrobes."

Students and teachers as well were very spirited and all got to show it on spirit week.

We asked them what kind of rules they had? They said, don't talk when the teacher is talking, no running, and use inside voices. They asked them what they do in spelling. They said "L" and "O". Their favorite books are The Monkey, and Bark, George. We asked them if they liked their teacher? Jordan Myers said, "Oh, yes." We found out there are 18 kids, in the class. While we were visiting, students were working and playing in centers. Some were playing dress up. One was a lion and one was a tiger, and they were playing with frogs. Others were putting puzzles together and looking at picture books. One half of the class was making octopus headbands.

Several other reporters chose to go to first grade. Clifton Bodenhamer and Jordan Mayo went to Tina Dyson's class to see what they were doing. Mrs. Dyson said that they were doing a whole lot of science with two turtles, a tarantula, rolly polly, five fish, and Marshall the Lizard. They have a white frog and a rope fish. We learned that they do a lot of phonics. They get about 15 minutes outside to run. Sometimes they get to play on the playground. They are reading about Horse the Jaguar. They like it. Clifton and Jordan also found out that 12 students in Mrs. Dyson's class like to come to school and 4 don't. We had fun going to first grade.

Dwayne Baugh went to Mrs. Baugh's class. He asked six questions. His first question was what kinds of rules does your class have. They said no biting, no pushing, hands to self, work quietly, raise your hand. His second question was what have you been doing for the first couple of days? They said doing the math meeting, calendar board and making books. His third question was what are you reading? The Honey Bee and The Robber, and The Very Hungry Caterpillar by Eric Carle. His fourth question was what is your favorite subject? They said reading, computer and seatwork. His fifth question was what have you been doing for fun, They said playing outside and making books. His sixth question was what are you doing in P.E.? They said dancing, centers, and musical hugs.

Brenda Hernandez visited Jenny James' class. They said that for fun they play on the playground. They have nine girls and ten boys in their classroom. They said their teacher is nice. Sometimes they go outside. Some things they do in math are writing numbers and making graphs. They said they like school.

Mocksville Elementary

Student of the Week, Sept. 23-27: Jennifer Jamie, Andrew Ashby, Nathaniel Bartlett, Hannan Daniel, Zachary Finney, Shawna Wiley, Blaise Bennett, Mallory Williams, Nate Conrad, David Jones, Brandi Howell, Jasmine Covell, Miranda Williams, Jacob Lambert, Joel Cartner, Christin Griffin, Sarah McDaniel, Courney Bowman, Colleen Hennelly, Lyndsey Blalock, Jawaugn Arnold, Haleigh Brown, Kierra Rivers, Houston Smith, Zach Drechsler, Brad Gaither.

The kindergarten class of Mrs. Wyatt and Mrs. Fulton is special, evidenced by looking at "Our Family Wall of Fame." Each child made a family poster as homework that included photos and descriptions of their family and some of the special memories they've shared. They have on display a Special Family Tree. It includes large leaves with the children's versions of why their families are special. The smaller leaves in the display are their handprints.

The tree display is only one indication of autumn. Along with the study of the fall season, the class has learned about apples. They made Johnny Appleseed sandwiches and had an apple sampling day where the students tasted a variety of apple goodies.

On Sept. 27, the students welcomed grandparents for lunch. Afterwards, children sang a song and presented their guests with scented cards made using jello.

The first graders of Mrs. Whitaker and Mrs. Dyson have been reading and discussing signs of fall. In math, they are learning doubles facts and writing addition sentences. Parents have been supportive of the PTA by sending items for the kitchen basket.

Mrs. Martin's second grade class visited "Hawaii" last week. They read the story "Luka's Quilt" about a little girl that lives in Hawaii and a special quilt her grandmother made for her. They made their own paper quilts and wrote stories. They split open a coconut and enjoyed the milk and meat. They sampled fresh pineapples while they listened to Hawaiian music. Mrs. Miller, Carrie's mom, came to visit and shared photographs of her trip to Hawaii. The computer class visited Hawaii and saw flower leis, quilts and the beauty of the 50th state.

Mrs. Vogler and Mrs. Shuler's third grade class have been learning all about soil. Types of soil, layers of the earth's crust, and ways to conserve soil are a few of the concepts the children have explored. The students have also learned all the letters in the cursive alphabet. Grandparents' Day for third graders is Oct. 11.

Jessica Smith and Ms. Dunaway's class has been busy studying apples and farm life during the month of September. Students decorated t-shirts with apple prints and made delicious apple pies. From their graph of "Apples We Like," students determined that green apples are the class favorite. Units of study will conclude with a trip to Carrigan Farm and Lazy 5 Ranch.

Holal Spanish is off to a super start this year. The students are singing, playing games and learning new vocabulary. They are able to greet Senora Holmes in the hall using their Spanish phrases for "good morning, hello, goodbye and see you later."

Don't forget to practice things like counting and saying your phone number to practice numbers. All students (yes, even K5) know numbers 1-10. We'll be going a lot higher throughout the year.

Recently we have started learning how to say things in the classroom. Students have become really good at asking to sharpen their "lapiz." Coming soon will be colors and feelings. By the way, 'How are you?" Next time you see Senora Holmes bes ure and tell her, "bien, mal, asi - asi-, feliz, triste, cansado or enfermo." Hasta luego!

Cornatzer Elementary

First graders in Mrs. Uliano-Smith and Mrs. Steelman's class have been busy "down on the farm" recently. Children have been busy reading and writing about farm animals and their importance on a farm. They have enjoyed reading "The Big Red Barn." They also made their own very big red barn with farm animals galore. The class went to Horizons Unlimited in Salisbury for some hands-on science and social studies activities. The children were able to observe, predict and collect data on a chemistry experiment involving gobstoppers. Students also "walked" 200 years back in history to experience log cabin living.

Ms. Hind's class has also been taking a close look at animals on the farm. Her students reviewed the names of the animals that can be found on a farm and learned about the produts those animals produce. They also practiced their typing skills when they wrote stories about their own farm on the computer. Children were delighted when special visitors dropped by. A very friendly hen and a few adorable chicks made an egg-cellent guest appearance. And the Karriker family brought in their favorite cow and her calf for a truly moo-ving experience. Students ate snacks that are generated from farm produce like cheese, yogurt and milk. Later in the year, students will be visiting a real farm to learn even more.

Cornatzer second graders have just begun their fall unit of study. Mrs. McDaniel's class has enjoyed reading "Ox-cart Man," "Picking Apples and Pumpkins," and "Daniel's Duck." In math, students have been learning about geometric shapes, time to the half hour, reading thermometers and writing number sentences for story problems.

Mrs. McDaniel's class is very excited about her having a baby very soon. They gave her a baby shower and Mrs. McDaniel appreciated the gifts and thoughtfulness of the children and their parents. Her class has been dong a great job on taking Accelerated Reader tests and all students are working hard to earn their five points by the end of the first nine weeks.

In Mrs. Beck's art classes students have been very busy keeping the hallways de corated with their work. Kindergarteners have worked on lines, shapes and colors. They have used a variety of materials, including tape, string, rulers, markers and crayons to explore these elements. First and second graders have been looking at lines and making stormy line pictures, shape designs and primary color pictures. Students are currently working with patterns. All K-2 students drew picutres of Harry from the book "Harry, the Dirty Dog," and a selection is on display at the Brock Performing Arts Center.

Third and fourth graders started out with Lines Only pictures, continuous line mazes and American theme pictures. Recently, they have started creating their own shapes to make a pattern design. Fifth graders began the year by examining a real shell and then changing it on paper to an abstract shell. This project took them several weeks and they combned it with an American theme picture. Currently, they are working on a 3-D paper relief of varius landforms. The following students have earned Art Zone Awards: Morgan Smith - Harry the Dirty Dog, Travis Davis - Harry the Dirty Dog, Aailyah Doulin - Stormy Lines, Osmayda Gama - Maze, Adilene Vargas - Lines Only, and Candace Manning - Abstract Shells.

Cougars of the Week: Cuyler Devine, Will Myers, Jose Julian-Nava, Colby Sanders, Valerie Karriker, Kaitlyn McCoy, Carlos Rodriguez, Jose Carillo, Tyler Marshall, Kyle Bullins, Summer Sutherland, Tyler Neely, Jodie Davis, Dennis Argueta, Hunter Devine, Amber Nicholson, Salvador Benitez-Romero, Cristal Arroyo, Jordan Autry, Shayna Dillard, Yesenia Montoya.

A reminder to parents: Thursday, Oct. 3 - School photographs; Friday, Oct. 11 - Mega Event and Fall Festival; Monday, Oct. 14 - Start of Multi-Cultural Week; Thursday, Oct. 17 - Early Release Day.

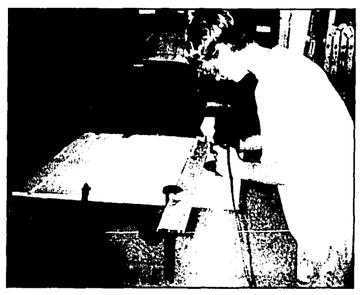
Matt Hauser sands the side of the lectern.



Matt Hauser works on a lectern for teacher Lynn Moore as part of a Boy Scout project.

Scout Makes Lectern For Former Teacher As Service Project

Matt Hauser, a Scout in Troop 575, needed to find a community service project to complete his Life Boy Scout Award.

Hauser remembered a former teacher, Lynn Moore, who met her students in various classrooms at South Davie. She had to pack and carry her supplies from room to room.

"Mrs. Moore always had to set her papers and books on other teacher's chairs and tables. She sometimes had to hold her book and notes."

Hauser wondered if a traveling podium might be the solution.

After obtaining enthusiastic agreement from Moore, Hauser designed the lectern and planned a materials list. He used birch plywood, marking and sawing panels for the sides and shelves.

Routing the sides to add strength, Hauser also created a seamless appearance. As the podium took shape, he sanded, glued and primed the surfaces.

Two unique features were added to accommodate Moore's need to walk and push the lectern. Wheels were secured on the base and a special cutout in the bottom shelf left room for the user to walk without stepping on the shelf. The final paint coats of bright schoolhouse red with black trim and pencil tray completed the project.

Hauser surprised Moore with the finished product.

"The large, roomy shelves will hold my supplies for the entire day," Moore said. "Matt created a wonderful teaching tool I will use with pride."

Moore's husband, a woodworker, complemented Hauser on his construction techniques and craftsmanship. "Looking over the pictures, I can see that Matt Hauser has the skills of a fine furniture architect."

Moore soon reported that several South Davie teachers had inquired about the lectern. "Maybe Matt should go into business," she said.

Teachers Attend Seminars

Twenty Davie teachers recently attended seminars at the North Carolina Center for the Advancement of Teaching in Cullowhee.

Attending a seminar titled "Spiritual Traditions of North Carolina" were Jennifer L. James and Alyce H. Bagshaw of Yadkinville, first and second grade teachers, respectively, at William R. Davie Elementary School.

Attending a seminar titled "K-3 Reading Success" cosponsored by the Mebane Charitable Foundation of Mocksville, were:

Patricia D. Crenshaw of Mocksville, executive director of instruction with Davie County Schools; and Hope C. San Filippo of Advance, a K-5 English as a second language teacher for Davie County Schools; and from William R. Davie Elementary - Melissa W. Brown of Mocksville, a grades 3-5 reading teacher; Luwonna E. Oakes of Mocksville, a grades 1-2 reading teacher; Danielle D. Shepherd of Mocksville, a second grade teacher; from Cooleemee Elementary - Linda T. Dorsett of Advance; Mary P. Hendrix of Mocksville, a grades 1-5 reading teacher; Kathy W. Rowe of Advance, a grades K-5 special education teacher; from Cornatzer Elementary - Karen R. Cook of Advance, a grades K-5 reading teacher; Duane T. Hartsell, a grades 1-5 reading teacher; from Pinebrook Elementary - Sandra R. Albarty of Mocksville, a grades 1-4 reading teacher; Deborah F. Crutchfield of Advance, a kindergarten teacher; from Shady Grove Elementary - Cynthia B. Minor of Winston-Salem, a first grade teacher; Melody P. Morton of Advance, a grades K-5 exceptional children teacher; Sherry C. Tew of Clemmons, a kindergarten teacher; and from Mocksville Elementary - Nancy P. Clark of Advance, a grades K-2 reading teacher; Patricia S. Coutts of Clemmons, principal; and Julie F. Hedrick of Winston-Salem, a grades 3-5 reading teacher.

A Kudzu Celebration

Local Musicians To Be Part Of Oct. 14 Event

On Columbus Day, Monday, Oct. 14 from 7-8:15 p.m., Kudzu Musical Heritage Resource Group will host the Kudzu Celebration 2002! in the auditorium of the Forsyth County Central Library at 660 West 5th St. in downtown Winston-Salem with refreshments and a celebration of the region's rich and diverse music traditions.

The event is free and complimentary sandwiches will be served to attendees from Davie, Davidson and Stokes counties from 6:30-6:55 p.m.

The celebration will feature an unveiling of Kudzu's recently completed 175 page Music Inventory of Davidson, Davie, Forsyth and Stokes counties and a musical review showcasing the music traditions in the inventory. The review will feature musicians from around the region performing bluegrass, gospel, old-time stringband music, Moravian music, jazz, and blues.

Performers will include the blues duo Wicker and Jones from Davie County, gospel performer Allen Marshall Steele from Davie County, old-time stringband musicians Kirk and Lisa Sutphin from Forsyth County with Neal Leonard from Davidson County, the bluegrass band The Dan River Boys from Stokes County, jazz musicians Joe Robinson and Fred Petra from Forsyth County, and Jeff Whitsett and a Moravian band ensemble from Forsyth County.

The Kudzu Celebration 2002! is made possible through funds provided by the Winston-Salem Foundation. Free parking is available on the street, as well as in the library's underground lot accessible from Spring St. and in the library parking lot on the corner of 5th and Spring streets diagonally across from the library. For directions to the library, call 727-2264.

For additional information on this event, contact KudzuConnections@juno.com or call 724-2008.

CenterPoint Public Hearing Oct. 8

CenterPoint Human Services will hold a public hearing Tuesday on its strategic business plan in response to changes in North Carolina's behavioral health system.

The 7 p.m. hearing Oct. 8 will be at the Davie County Public Library, 371 N. Main St., Mocksville. Others hearings are scheduled for Danbury and Winston-Salem.

The state changes will have a major impact on CenterPoint, its clients and provider partners, according to a release from Ronald W. Morton, CEO and area director.

Local area authorities can no longer be both providers of service or local management entities. Counties are now responsible for entering into an agreement with the state on how they will deliver behavioral health services. Davie, Forsyth and Stokes counties have delegated the management of this system of care to CenterPoint.

Morton said that though the change is major, it is an opportunity to build on current success and create a state model for an integrated system of care. CenterPoint's board has chosen to be a local management entity to be at the forefront of system reform. It is a pilot program. CenterPoint currently serves as both manager and major provider of local services.

Insurance Alternatives

More than 200 Davie County seniors will have their health insurance with the Qual Choice HMO terminated on Jan. 1 when the company ceases business.

They were mailed a letter Oct. 2.

There are alternative options available to these seniors for retaining health insurance coverage, said Barbara Thornton, Davie Senior Services spokesperson.

The N.C. Department of Insurance has a program called SHIIP (Senior Health Insurance Information Program). Trained SHIIP volunteer counselors will be available on Oct. 7, 9 and 10 at the Davie Senior Services, lower level, Brock Building, North Main Street, Mocksville. They will explain alternative options to those who had insurance through Qual Choice.

"We urge the seniors so notified by the HMO letter to come to the senior center to review the matter so that they do not go into January next year without having considered some alternatives," Thornton said.

Call the senior center to speak to Thornton or another counselor, 751-0611.

Southern Pine Beetle Invades Davie County

Southern Pine Beetles have invaded into Davie County.

Everyone with pine trees should keep a very close eye on them. The western areas of the county seem to be the hardest hit so far, but everyone in the county needs to be on alert for this devastating insect.

This insect can destroy acres of valuable pine timber in a very short time. Prompt action on your part can save money. The key to stopping these losses is to cut or sell all infested trees for removal from your premises. Sale or salvage cutting of these trees for sawlogs or pulpwood is usually the best way to get rid of the beetles and reduce losses.

Sometimes it is difficult to determine if trees are infested. For instance tops of some trees may be green, some may be fading yellow or red, and some may be completely dead and still be infested.

If you are not sure which trees are infested, you need the name and telephone of a buyer, or need other help with beetle control contact the N.C. Forest Service Office, 180 S. Main Street, Room 309, Mocksville, or call 336-751-5319.

Free Child Seat Check Saturday

Davie County Health Department and Davie County Sheriff's Department are sponsoring a free child safety seat check at Wal-Mart in Mocksville on Saturday, Oct. 5 from 9 a.m. until noon.

We will have free booster seats to give away for children who qualify.

Children must weigh at least 40 pounds and receive some type of government assistance such as Medicaid or WIC to qualify for free seat.

For more information please contact Andreia Collins at Davie County Health Department 751-8700.

Life Chain To Form Sunday

The Please Let Me Live "Life Chain" will once again be built on the first Sunday of Oct. 6. This is a memorial for unborn children that will be held from 2:15-3:30 p.m.

Across the United States and Canada concerned citizens have been joining in this event stated in 1987.

That year over 2500 people stood in one accord in prayer for the abortion law passed in 1973 to be changed.

Every 20 seconds a child dies by "choice". This amounts to 4,400 a day in the United States.

In North Carolina may areas will form this chain. In Mocksville the event will take place at the junction of Interstate 40 and Yadkinville Road.

PUBLIC NOTICE
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE BOARD OF TOWN COMMISSIONERS FOR THE FOLLOWING ZONING AMENDMENTS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, PURSUANT TO THE REQUIREMENTS of Chapter 160A, Article 19, Section 160-A-364 of the General Statutes of North Carolina and pursuant to Article 11, Section 4, of the Mocksville Zoning Ordinance, that the Town Board of Commissioners will hold a PUBLIC HEARING in the Town Hall, Mocksville, NC, at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, October 17, 2002.

The Board of Commissioners will consider the following text amendments to the Zoning Ordinance:

Amend Article 3, Zoning Districts, as follows:

Replace the existing text of Sections 3.2.4(d)(8), 3.2.5(d)(5), 3.2.6(d)(7), 3.2.7(d)(4), 3.2.8(d)(4), and 3.3.3(d)(2) with the following text: "Every building lot shall have frontage upon a public street except as provided in Section 8.1."

Amend Article 5, Street Regulations, Summary as follows:

Replace the existing text of item #5 with the following text: "Be public, except that private streets may be permitted on a case by case basis within multi-family, townhouse, condominium, commercial or industrial developments. Alleys shall be classified as either public or private depending upon their function according to the street acceptance policy."

Replace the existing text of item #6 with the following text: "Be the focus of one or more buildings on the development site."

Replace item #6 in Article 8, section 8.1, with the following text: "A development site consisting of one or more legal lots of record which is developed under a coordinated, approved site specific plan and which is accessed solely by driveways shall only be required to abut a public street along some portion of the development site the minimum distance of which shall be determined by the town to be adequate for public and emergency vehicle access but which shall not be less than thirty-five feet."

Add a new item #7 to Article 8, section 8.1, as follows: "A multi-family, townhouse, condominium, commercial or industrial development site consisting of one or more legal lots of record which is developed under a coordinated, approved site specific plan may be permitted, on a case by case basis, to be served by a private street network and shall only be required to abut a public street along some portion of the development site the minimum distance of which shall be determined by the town to be adequate for public and emergency vehicle access but which shall not be less than thirty-five feet."

All parties and interested citizens shall have an opportunity to be heard in favor of or in opposition to the foregoing changes. Prior to the hearing, all persons interested may obtain any additional information on the proposal by visiting the Planning Department in the Davie County Administration Building, Mocksville, N.C. between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. or by telephone at (336) 751-3340.

Whitney Flooring: Storewide Savings On Hardwood, Laminate, Tile

Tired of postponing that flooring purchase you've been planning for some time now? Want to be sure you make the right decision and go with the right company? Look no further than Whitney flooring in Clemmons for friendly, knowledgeable sales help from a friend you can trust.

Take advantage of storewide savings on beautiful new hardwood, laminate or ceramic tile floors. You'll be impressed with the new, wider width plank wood floors in classic, traditional, vintage and antiquated looks in all kinds of wood species including oak, ash, hickory, maple, cherry and more exotic likes merbau and mahogany.

Whitney's has all the latest styles in engineered and longstrip hardwood floors as well as traditional prefinished 3/4" solid plank wood floors. Be sure to check out the new 3, 4, 5 and 6 inch random width hardwood flooring from Chelsea Wood Flooring at Whitney's in a variety of stains and finishes.

Nothing creates a sense of historical charm or long-lasting warmth like real hardwood flooring. Whitney's carries one of the area's largest flooring departments and specializes in custom wood installations on all the latest prefinished wood floors.

Perhaps someone wants the look of wood but prefers low maintenance damp-mopping for their new floor. Laminate floors from Whitney's offer tremendous value with all the realism that you'd ever want from a new floor. Impact resistant, easy to care for laminate floors are all on sale at Whitney's in their newly expanded laminate department. Choose from names you can trust like Armstrong, Wilsonart, Mannington, Wilex and Uni-Clic. Don't forget to see all the latest glueless laminates that simply click together for an easy installation ideal for the do-it-yourselfer.

This fall, take advantage of another Nafco tile promotion including rebates up to $200 from the manufacturer. Choose from the latest designs in the new larger format, Permastone 16-inch solid vinyl tile for a very realistic look. More durable and realistic in design than sheet vinyl, luxury vinyl tiles offer a great cost alternative to real ceramic tile.

This time is never better to shop for flooring save big at Whitney Flooring, located off Hwy. 158 in Clemmons at 5919-C James Street. Business hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Mon.-Fri. and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays. Call (336) 766-0733 today to set up a free in-home consultation or measurement.

Pet Fest Oct. 12

Hillsdale Animal Hospital

Sometimes childhood dreams do come true. Just ask Dr. Karla Frazier, owner of the Hillsdale Animal Hospital.

Growing up in Burke, Virginia, Frazier, an animal lover for as long as she can remember, always knew that she wanted to become a veterinarian. Now she is one.

"I have always loved dogs and cats. Growing up my mom was afraid of cats so we always had dogs. But about four years ago my husband and I took in a stray cat and now we have three cats along with several dogs too," Frazier laughed.

At Hillsdale Animal Hospital, Frazier and the members of her staff share the same philosophy – compassionate care for animals.

"We all want to take the same care of our furry patients as their owners do. We treat each of them just like they were our babies," she said with pride.

As a show of Frazier's love of animals, Hillsdale Animal Hospital is holding the first Pet Fest 2002 Festival on Saturday October 12th.

Dr. Frazier describes the event as "a huge party in my backyard." "We want to make this an annual event," she notes.

Dr. Karla Frazier examines a dog.

Charges Eyed After Woman Takes Girls Out For Weekend

A Davie County woman who took her young child and her child's friend on a night of dancing and shooting pool could face criminal charges.

The girls were reported missing a day after the incident, and were found nearly two days later.

The Distric Attorney's office is considering possible charges.

According to Davie County Sheriff's Department Detective Tony Leftwich, a 23-year-old Mocksville woman had arranged to take her eight year old daughter and another girl, age 7, skating on Friday night.

According to a statement given to authorities by the woman, the two girls decided they did not want to go skating and the three instead went to the Wagon Wheel on U.S. 601 South in Rowan County, a country music dance establishment.

While there, the woman met some acquaintances and she and the two little girls left the Wagon Wheel around midnight with the acquaintances and went to J&L Game Room in Cooleemee where they played games and pool until approximately 1 a.m.

From there the woman and two girls went to the acquaintance's home in Rowan County. The children were put to bed and the adults stayed up to watch movies before going to bed.

The next day, Oct. 5, the woman was to begin a new job but decided to remain at the acquaintance's

County To Start Process For School Facilities Bond

County Board Chairman Dan Barrett informed the board of his intent to begin the school bond process at the commissioners next meeting, Oct. 21.

The item on the agenda for consideration will be what form of bond package to put before the voters. Approving a resolution to put a bond before the voters is the first step to putting the bond on the ballot. Following that, a public hearing would be scheduled.

The board is still considering how the bond should be structured. Commissioner Richard Poindexter said that he had received numerous calls since the public input sessions from voters asking that the bond be split, allowing people to vote for one portion but vote against another.

"From everything we heard," said Commissioner Michael Allen, "the elementary schools have critical needs. Another issue was a second high school. I think the one thing we did not hear was anything about the middle school."

Allen went on to say that the board had to look not only at what the school board was requesting, but what taxpayers could afford.

"The education of the public is essential in this," said Poindexter. "The bond presented to us is a 14 cent tax increase for the bricks and mortar building. That's a 24 percent tax increase. By the time you get the building going, it's a 30 percent increase."

Allen pointed out that the plan before the board is a layered approach, and that the bonds would not have to be sold all at once.

Judge Peter W. Hairston greeted guests to the Cooleemee Plantation Saturday like friends.

They were friends.

Either from years of knowing the retired lawyer and Superior Court judge, or because of their desire to promote the same cause, they were friends.

That cause is the Land Trust for Central North Carolina, which held its annual fall festival Saturday at Cooleemee Plantation, giving people a rare chance to tour the Town OKs Allen Road Rezoning

By Kathy Chaffin
Davie County Enterprise Record

In a decision that angered adjoining homeowners, the Mocksville Town Board voted 4-0 last Tuesday night to annex 25 acres off Allen Road and rezone the property for light industrial use.

Commissioners Richard Broadway, Lash Gaither Sanford Jr., Vernon Thompson and J.C. "Buster" Cleary, serving as mayor pro tem in the absence of Mayor Francis W. Slate, voted to accept the 3-2 recommendation of the planning board and approve the annexation/rezoning request. Commissioner Bill Foster, whose wife, Diane, is the real estate agent for the property, was not at the meeting.

Opponents walked out after the vote was taken.

Sanford said decisions of that type are difficult and it's important to listen to the sincere comments of concerned citizens. "You've got to listen to everything they say, and it's hard to know whether you made the right decision," he said. "I hope we did. I think we did."

Planning Director John Gallimore, whose written report on the request was included in the commissioners' agenda packets, said the proposed development for the property appeared to be consistent with the town's industrial economic policy.

"The town is not interested in annexing residential property," he said. "There are major water and sewer systems available in that area. There is a generally convenient access to I-40 because of the proximity. And campus business (the zoning classification being proposed) is a light industrial district, and it is expected to have lower than normal impacts versus other types of industrial development."

Gallimore said other residential areas in town have suffered few, if any, adverse effects from close proximity to existing larger industries.

Town Attorney Hank Van Hoy referred to Ingersoll-Rand thriving beside Garden Valley for as long as it has. "It's awfully hard to overcome that fact when people assert perceived harm," he said.

Several opponents said it made no sense to annex the site when 63 percent of the town property zoned for industrial use remains unused.

"It's unnecessary," said landowner Gary Allen of Nebbs Trail. "This is not about need. It's about greed. You've got too much on your plate as it is."

'Cammie' Books Recall Life On Davie Farm

On the list of the 10 smartest people from Davie County ... add the name of Betty McMahan.

I haven't completed the list, but she's one of the bright stars that left this soil and has excelled, becoming a world-noted biologist. She has even had two termites named for her.

She's a Pino girl, growing up in the '30s and '40s. The experience made a lasting impression.

Louise Stroud's columns in the newspaper have been describing life in Mocksville during the good old days. Betty McMahan has written several books about her childhood on the farm — the rural view of Davie County.

I checked one out unwittingly at the Davie County Library. I took it home to my son, Robert. The book jacket said the book was about a child's life on the farm in the Depression era. I told my son to read it and think of his grandparents.

Several chapters into the book, he surprised me.

"This talks about Farmington, Daddy."

I grabbed the book, thumbed through the pages and found references to Courtney, the Grange Hall and all the centers of community from my youth.

Who is this woman?

Betty McMahan has been a longtime UNC biology professor who devoted her career to the study of termites. She traveled the world searching for them, studying them and documenting their behavior.

As a 14-year-old on the farm, she climbed a tree and carved the words, "I will be a great biologist."

She fulfilled those words.

Now in retirement, she has thought a lot about her childhood on the farm. She has written three "Cammie" books, with the experiences of a little girl on the farm. Recalling the things she did with her sisters and neighbor friends, her "Cammie" lives them again.

One of those neighbor boys is now Mocksville veterinarian Bayne Miller. Also an artist, she illustrated the books as well.

If she sets her mind to it, there's not much she can't accomplish.

She has talked her way aboard freighters to travel the world. She was a Peace Corps volunteer, not as a youth, but as a retiree — going to the Fiji Islands as an insect conservator. She made a name for herself in the UNC biology department, not just for termites, but for her annual year-end ice cream cone parties for the graduate students. She did that for 40 years.

She received her bachelor and master's degrees from Duke and then her doctorate in entomology from the University of Hawaii. She followed termites to Hawaii, Egypt, India and Central America. One of her studies resulted in a BBC documentary.

Now her books give an outstanding look at what life was like on the farm 60 years ago. How they made molasses, traveled to Winston-Salem and entertained themselves without television.

Climbing that tree with a pocketknife was only the beginning of her adventure.

Mr. and Mrs. Mohammed Ali Mubarak

Davie Native In Arab Emirates Is Safe And Sound

To the editor:

I am a native of Mocksville. I have been married 20 years to a wonderful man named Mohammed Ali Mubarak. I first came to the United Arab Emirates only 10 days after I was married.

Other than a couple of years in Texas and Colorado (my husband had training there), I have lived here half my life. The Mocksville Enterprise has done two previous stories on me and my family; one in September 1983, and the other in September or October 1990. I enjoy living here very much.

The Arabs that I know and live with are totally opposite from how the media portrays them. As they say....."one bad apple doesn't spoil the whole box". You can't judge all Arabs by the deeds of a few radicals. Look at how many Americans followed Jim Jones into a suicide pact. Does that make all Americans crazy or fanatic? Of course not. Nor does Osama bin Laden or his followers reflect on the general Arab population.

But like the rest of the world, my family and I pray for peace. I hope that the Iraqi situation is settled by peaceful means, so that so many innocent people don't lose their lives.

The attached picture is me and my husband, Mr. and Mrs. Mohammed Ali Mubarak. Please inform all my family and friends in Mocksville that we are safe and sound, and that we are in no more danger than they themselves are there in Mocksville.

Dance Festival Coverage Great

To the editor:

I just wanted to take the time to say thank you to the Enterprise for their coverage of the the Dance Festival of Sept. 20. We are very blessed to have people working in our community who have pledged to support the children. My dance students were anxiously awaiting the arrival of the paper and thrilled to see a full page of many photographs of the work they had done in preparation of the dance festival. Every student in the Dance II class was featured very graciously.

The festival marked our efforts to bring the concepts of modern dance, charged to me by the state of North Carolina, to Mocksville. The day turned out to be quite exciting with an exchange of ideas from students who dance at Davie, Mt. Tabor and Reynolds high schools. The students shared the experience of learning new movement material from the guest artists and of working together to create something new. A synthesis occurred throughout the festival and was presented during the evening performance of professional dance artists, dance teachers, high school and college students. The closing piece in the festival brought together 48 high school students on stage all at once in what we called their "Entrances and Exits" dance. The experience was illuminating.

Thank you for helping us get the word out and again for the work you do for our community.

Terri Winchell
Dance Educator, Davie High

IF YOU HAVEN'T HAD A MAMMOGRAM LATELY, YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU'RE MISSING
When breast cancer begins, it's as small as a dot on this page. So small that only a mammogram can find it. In fact, a mammogram can detect a problem with the breast as early as two years before you can detect it yourself, and your chances for recovery are much better if it is detected early. During the month of October, Davis Regional Medical Center is pleased to announce that Mammogram gift certificates will be available for $35, which includes interpretation by a Radiologist. Gift certificates may be purchased in the Cashier's office, between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

house and grounds, as well as meet with the judge.

Hairston called the plantation "remarkable," and can still spout off details of construction, furniture and art work that fill the historic house. He doesn't get out much any more, but spends his time on a new book, an update of family genealogy.

"People do come to see me," he said. "I think I'm the biggest curiosity down here."

Hairston credited his son, Pete, with the details of granting a conservation easement on 1,900 acres of plantation land. It's the largest privately donated easement in the Piedmont region.

"We wanted to save the farm, so I started looking into something like this a long time ago," Pete Hairston said. "The land trust in Salisbury, I really felt confident in the work they were doing."

The easement limits development on the property, creates a protected 2,000 foot corridor for approximately two miles on the Yadkin River and provides protection for the home. Some traditional uses such as farming and timber harvesting, and limited development will still be allowed. The Hairstons still own the property.

The plantation has been in the Hairston family since 1817. Designed by New York architect W.H. Ranlett, the home was constructed from 1853-1855. It stands 50 feet high and includes 12 rooms and three porches.

The property is listed as a National Historic Landmark because of its rich history, and as a National Natural Landmark, because of an outcropping of a rare stone found on the property.

The Land Trust has several other properties in Davie County, and is focusing on the area where the South Yadkin and Yadkin rivers meet.

To Hairston, providing areas where development is limited is needed, especially in historical and natural areas.

Saturday's festival also included art demonstrations, food and drink, and an auction.

West Nile Virus Confirmed In Bird Found In Mocksville

The first case of West Nile Virus in Davie County has been confirmed from a dead bird found in the Milling Road area.

According to Davie Health Director Barry Bass, a crow tested positive for the virus.

"This confirms what we've suspected, that West Nile virus was present in Davie County, we've just not found it until now," Bass said.

West Nile virus has been reported in birds from Davidson, Forsyth, Iredell and Yadkin counties, which border Davie. There have been no reported human cases contracted in this area.

"Now that we have a confirmed case, we will no longer do any more testing of birds for the virus," Bass said. "People need to continue taking precautions to protect themselves from the disease by avoiding mosquito bites."

The virus is transmitted when a mosquito bites an infected bird and then bites a person. West Nile virus may cause flu-like symptoms in humans, such as headache, swollen glands and muscle aches, as well as a rash.

Usually the virus causes only mild disease in humans, but in rare cases it may cause encephalitis and death. Elderly people and those with weak immune systems are most likely to be affected.

Bass urges people to avoid mosquito contact by wearing long sleeves and long pants and using mosquito repellent containing DEET at concentrations of 30 percent or less (10 percent for children). DEET products should be used according to the label instructions and should not be used on children under 6 months of age.

People should avoid outdoor activities in the evening, when mosquitoes are most active, and areas where there are a lot of mosquitoes. They should check around their homes and empty containers holding water such as tires, birdbaths and flowerpots, and should clean out rain gutters.

Pet dishes and birdbaths should be cleaned out at least twice a week.

Doors and windows should have good, tight-fitting screens to prevent mosquitoes from entering homes.

People who are using rain barrels to collect water during the drought should also be sure the barrels have screens that fit tightly to prevent mosquitoes from breeding.

"The good news is that mosquito season is almost over and the first frost should remove the risk of infection this year," Bass said.

Anyone exhibiting the flu-like symptoms within 3-14 days of being bitten by a mosquito should contact their physician.

Trooper Dives Out Of Way Of Out-Of-Control Car

By Jackie Seabolt
Davie County Enterprise Record

A North Carolina Highway Patrol officer made a narrow escape from a crashing car last Thursday.

According to a statement issued by N.C. Highway Patrol District First Sgt. V.F. Mellone Jr., around 8:30 a.m. on Oct. 3 Trooper A.A. Justice was conducting a traffic stop investigation on I-40 east, approximately one mile east of U.S. 601.

Justice had exited his patrol car and was approaching the stopped vehicle. While walking towards the car Justice turned and observed another vehicle traveling in the emergency lane and heading directly towards his parked patrol car.

In an attempt to protect himself and avoid being struck by the oncoming vehicle Justice dove between his patrol car and the vehicle he initially stopped. He landed face down on the grass shoulder of I-40, according to Mellone.

The approaching speeding vehicle crashed into the rear of Justice's parked patrol car and pushed it forward causing it to crash into the rear of the pulled vehicle.

Trooper Justice was transported to Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem for treatment and has been released.

Sharon Annette Presley of North Wilkesboro was in the stopped vehicle that was rear-ended and she was transported to Forsyth Hospital where she received treatment and was released.

The driver of the speeding vehicle was Andre Dion Smith of Raleigh. He was charged with reckless driving.

Mocksville OKs Annexation, Campus Business District

Carrie Graves of Allen Road, speaking on behalf of opponents, said there is no adequate transition between the property being proposed for rezoning and the neighboring residential properties. "That's really my main point tonight."

Using the analogy of industry as a toilet, Graves said, "Everybody wants it, everybody needs it, but nobody wants to be looking at it when you're trying to relax."

Taking action to allow industry to locate that close to a residential area, she contended, would be like taking a toilet out of the bathroom and putting it into the living room. "That's not appropriate. It just doesn't go there.

"And that's what I'm sort of saying about this. This business is being shoved right in the center of a residential neighborhood."

Graves went on to compare a buffer zone being proposed for the development to a half-wall being constructed around the displaced toilet. "A half-wall around a toilet is not going to make the toilet belong in a living room," she said. "It belongs in a bathroom."

Mocksville attorney Bill Hall, one of the owners of the property, spoke in favor of the annexation and rezoning request on behalf of himself and co-owners Dr. Bob Foster, Dr. Victor Andrews and the Harris Family Trust. The group has owned the property for more than 30 years and is planning to sell it to Calvin Phelps of Mocksville once the annexation and rezoning are approved.

"I told the planning board that I think this is a win-win-win situation," Hall said. It's a win for the property owners because they would get to sell the property, and a win for the town because of the potential industrial development.

Hall referred to the 369 jobs being lost in the impending closing of the Lexington Home Brands plant in Mocksville. "This is an opportunity for the town to participate in providing employment for the people of this area," he said.

Hall said the proposed annexation/rezoning is a win for the neighboring landowners because they would know up front how the land would be used. As zoned, he said as many as 32 houses could be built on the property.

An 80-foot buffer zone is being proposed to separate the 25 acres from adjoining residential property, according to Hall.

Diane Foster of Design Properties and Realty spoke on behalf of buyer Phelps, whose company manufactures cigarettes in the middle of a predominantly residential neighborhood in the town limits. "It has not caused problems in this neighborhood," she said, "so we would propose that it would not cause problems in another neighborhood."

Phelps desires to develop the acreage to make it conducive for smaller companies, according to Foster. The reason they're not locating to property presently zoned for industrial use, she said, is because of topography, cost and restrictions.

For example, she said the restrictions in the Meroney Business Park off of U.S. 601 North call for a 20,000 square feet structure with a minimum lot size of four acres. While the industrial park off Milling Road does offer smaller lots, she said it's not a desirable location for companies that transport because of the traffic through town.

Chuck Keegan of Hidden Valley Lane said he was at the town board meeting five years ago when commissioners annexed the land for the Southpoint Industrial Park. Then, he said board members "threw us a bone" and said they wouldn't develop the land being considered for annexation as industrial.

"And now here we are five years later and you want to develop it again," he said. "You call it business campus, it's industrial ... I don't care what you call it."

Martha Bowers of Brookwood Trail also referred to the board's 1997 annexation of the Southpoint Industrial Park property, in which she said landowners were told that Allen Road would serve as a logical boundary between industrial and residential areas.

As for the 32 homes that Hall said could be built on the property, she said, "Go ahead. That's what we've been asking for all along."

Keegan expressed concerns about industrial traffic being in the same neighborhood with school buses. "I don't believe we need that on that road," he said. "It just doesn't fit there."

Mike Graves of Allen Road addressed the environmental aspects. "We already are seeing some noise pollution," he said. "There's a loud whining that people have referenced in past meetings that goes on down at Southpoint."

Industrial PA systems in Southpoint are audible at nearby residences, according to Graves.

Traffic is another concern, he said, pointing out that Allen Road residents had paid to have their road paved. "The road isn't wide enough theoretically if you start having volumes of traffic," he said.

Mark Williams, who lives off Ijames Church Road, referred to the two meetings of the Mocksville Planning Board at which the proposal was considered. The planning board, after tabling the matter at a July 29 meeting, voted on Sept. 11 to recommend approval.

Lawrence Ray Carter, Janie Neely and Brian Williams voted to recommend approval, while Andrew White and Stevie Dulin voted against it.

"One of the town planning board members used the words, 'This is crazy,' " Williams said, "and I think what he was referring to is the very thing that we've talked about: Does it make sense for you all to both annex and place an industrial building in the literal back yards of some of the people in this room?"

Williams said the neighboring landowners still haven't heard a lot about the actual benefits the town stands to gain from the proposed annexation. "We still don't know how many jobs Mr. Phelps hopes to add," he said.

There is also a question, he said, as to whether the proposed $15,000 in increased tax revenues would make a lot of difference to the town. "And this was quoted from Mr. White, the planning board member," Williams said. "Is $15,000 really going to help the town if we have to do all this work to get it done?"

Karen Richardson, who lives off Ijames Church Road, said: "Just because you can do something doesn't mean you should," she said, encouraging town members to carefully weigh the purported benefits with the negative effects it would have on landowners.

Cindy Allen of Nebbs Trail, the wife of Gary Allen, told board members she was heartsick because they had moved to Davie hoping to fulfill their dream of living in a rural neighborhood. "I'm just asking that you leave this little piece of our dream alone," she said, "and go somewhere else and redevelop and rezone and whatever you have to do to put your jobs in place, but leave your sense of community.

"Otherwise, you're going to drive all your residents out."

Four-Way Stop Starts At Mocksville Intersection

A four-way stop at South Davie Drive, Salisbury Street and Hardison Street has been installed, and some motorists seem to be having trouble with protocol at the new intersection, according to Mocksville police.

All motorists must stop upon reaching the intersection. The first obvious one to the stop sign goes through first. If two or more arrive at approximately the same time, the motorist to the right has the right of way.

Stop signs mean motorists should stop and look in every direction, not just slow down.

Police will be watching the intersection and writing tickets for violations.

Although the intersection is still wide, traffic is one lane in every direction. There are no more turn lanes.

Charges Eyed Against Woman Who Took KidsTo Dance Club

home another day. According to the statement she asked the 7-year-old if she wanted to go home and the child replied she did not. The three spent that Saturday night once again at the home of the family.

The woman stated they were up the next day around 10:30 a.m. and by 4 p.m. that Sunday the three were heading back to Davie County.

On the trip back the woman stopped at a gas station just before the Davie County line and was approached by an undercover officer and asked for her identification. The officer informed her that she and the two girls had been reported missing. They were then taken to the Davie County Sheriff's Department for questioning.

According to Leftwich, the investigation will continue and additional interviews will be conducted.

Be Wary Of Calls Claiming Fortune

If you've won the lottery, you have to buy the ticket first.

Lottery officials don't call your home to tell you you've won.

And they sure aren't going to require you to send them money.

Don't give any personal information to someone such as credit card and bank account numbers to someone who calls your home promising riches.

These are just some of the tips Mocksville Police Detective David Miller II has for area residents, especially the elderly, who scam operators target.

Two elderly Mocksville women have fell victim to scams, one tricked out of thousands of dollars, the hundreds of dollars.

Miller urges residents to be wary. The Mocksville victims were told they had won the Canadian lottery, and needed to wire money so that the conversion of millions of dollars from Canadian to American money could be made.

Friday Deadline To Register

Friday is the deadline to register to vote in the Nov. 5 general elections.

Register at the Davie Board of Elections office at 124 S. Salisbury St., Suite 102, the lower level of the Mocksville Town Hall.

3 Charges With Firing Gunshots

Three people have been charged with firing gunshots from a pellet gun into police cars, a motor home and several businesses last month in Mocksville.

Roy Lee Arnold, 16, of 445 Etchison St., Javier Demond Robinson, 17, of 340 Mountview Drive, and Michael Elliot Arnold Jr., 20, of 111 Cyprus Knoll Drive, were each charged with three counts each of damage to property.

Their bonds were set at $3,500, pending Oct. 10 hearings in Davie District Court.

Lowes Foods newest store in Bermuda Run's Kinderton Place is open, and other businesses are close to being ready to open in the new shopping center. - Photos by Robin Fergusson

Lowes Foods Opens At Kinderton Place

Davie County's newest grocery store has opened in Bermuda Run.

Lowes Foods is the anchor store at Kinderton Place Shopping Center a N.C. 801 and Yadkin Valley Road.

Bank of America and Eckerd Drugs have separate stores nearly ready to open, and Captain's Galley Seafood has announced plans to build a restaurant.

"It's a fairly new style for us," said Lowes store manager, Lee Campbell of Mocksville. "Our emphasis is going to be on clean stores and fresh produce, with lots of variety."

That variety carries over to the cheeses, wines (with an emphasis on North Carolina vintages), freshly prepared and packaged ready to eat foods, seafood and meat selections, Campbell said.

There's a floral department, a salad bar and an olive bar, a bakery with custom cakes, never from a kit, Krispy Kreme doughnuts, Boars Head meats, the Simply Delicious salad program and Tanglewood Farms gourmet chicken.

"If a customer says 'I bought this somewhere else,' we can get that for them," Campbell said.

There's Lowes Foods To Go, a program where a customer can call in their order, and pick it up within 30 minutes, already bagged and ready, for $4.95.

Each item in the store can be found on the Lowes Foods internet site, complete with a picture.

Campbell said Lowes has 93 employees, more than 70 percent full-time. They were lucky; more than 600 people applied for the jobs. Lowes in Kinderton is open from 6 a.m.-midnight daily.

Campbell, a 25-year grocery industry veteran with eight years working at various Lowes locations across the region, is glad to be closer to home.

Area residents have shown good support for the store during the first couple of weeks.

"I love this store," said Lois Metzger of Mocksville. "It's on my way home, so I can stop by." She especially enjoys the gourmet offerings, more than offered in other local stores. "They have everything."

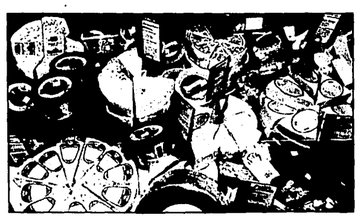
Lowes Kinderton store features Hereford beef and Tanglewood Farms chicken.

A large selection of fresh produce is an emphasis with store manager Lee Campbell.

Joe Nardone presents a fresh package of chicken to customer Lois Metzger.

Lowes carries a large selection of wines, and last Saturday hosted a wine tasting.

An olive bar is something new to Davie groceries.



Cheeses from around the world are sold at Lowes.

Flight School Opens In Advance

Carolina Flight, a general aviation and flight training company, has opened of a new flight training school in Advance at Twin Lakes Airport.

"Carolina Flight offers excellent flight instruction in well-maintained aircraft," said Rob Hess, principal and certified flight instructor. "Our flight instructors have been selected for their flying expertise as well as their ability to connect with new and seasoned students."

Carolina Flight's fleet of aircraft includes a new Cessna 172SP as well as traditional flight training aircraft such as a Cessna 152 and Piper Warrior.

All aircraft are available for instruction and rental.

"We offer quality, value-priced instruction and aircraft within our local communities," said Chris Chipman, also a principal and certified flight instructor. "Whether you want to fly to your beach home on the coast, enjoy a hobby or make a career of being a pilot, we have flexible training hours and programs to meet your needs."

Founded in 2001, the company (www.carolina-flight.com) offers flight instruction in local communities in central North Carolina. Contact Carolina Flight in Advance at: 998-8101.

Use Water Conservatively; Tank To Be Cleaned, Inspected

The Lee elevated water tank on U.S. 601 South will be out of service from Oct. 21-23 for cleaning and inspections.

While water pressure is expected to remain at or near normal, there will be less reserves for emergencies.

"Because of this, we are asking our customers to refrain from using as much water as possible during this period," said Bruce Pratt, Davie County water system director.

The county is still under moderate mandatory water conservation measures, Pratt said.

Remembering Ann
Woman Coping With Loss Of Her Only Daughter

Heart to Heart with Kathy Chaffin

Grass, greener than it has been for months, surrounds the full-length, black marble grave marker of Ann Marie Barber.

The marker is in the newer part of Rose Cemetery, where there's still more land than grave sites. Ann's 17-year-old face is etched on the top of the stone, with an alto saxophone like the one she played in the Davie High School Band displayed underneath.

Her father chose the angels that adorn the two top corners, her mother says, and the Sylvester cat on the bottom left-hand corner represents the collection she began at age 6.

Bonnie and Paul Barber left many of the ceramic and porcelain angels and rabbits that have found a home on their daughter's marker. A lion figurine was left by a schoolmate, while a cross-shaped porcelain box left by another friend holds mementos of Davie High School.

Inside, two white ribbons worn by students after her death have faded, and a band medal has lost its shine. They will have been on Ann's grave for seven years tomorrow.

It's difficult to believe it's been seven years, Bonnie Barber says, fighting tears. "It's as if time stood still. It's hard to envison what she'd be like now. She'd be 24.

"I see her friends and think they shouldn't be that old."

She is unable to stop the tears that now spill easily from her eyes. "It's that time of year," she explains. "And once again, I will survive."

Cana News

By John "Cain" Godwin
Cana Correspondent

Okay, folks, tighten your seat belts. This one is going to be a long one.

Friday, we swept out the old store and post office to get ready for the open house Saturday. With Faye Cain's help, we got the flags up lining downtown Cana. Cousin Buddy Eaton stopped by to pick up the chicken coop late Friday and early Saturday morning we had chickens. Thanks for that Buddy. The birds do a lot to take people back in time. Saturday afternoon, the crowd started rolling in. They parked in the back in Annie Laurie's field and walked down the path to the store. We had so much fun looking at the store and remembering old times. Big thanks to Amy and Cliff Riche for supplying us with bottled Cheerwine, root beer, grape and orange Nehi. We snacked on Tootsie rolls, peanuts, Nabs and Moon Pies. Jim Eaton gave us a great speech on the importance of the store and post office. Huge thanks to Cousin Jim Eaton for giving such a great speech. His solid voice and first hand experiences in the store made him the perfect person to speak. The chickens quietly cackled in the back as he asked anyone who wanted to talk about the store as they remembered. What a smart move. The people's memories just started flowing. Jim Wall and Ms. Elizabeth Eaton spoke, and Joe Ferebee told of how his dad delivered mail on the Rural Route #2 out of Cana. He told us how he would heat some large rocks on the fire as hot as he could get them, then wrap them in covers to place in the floor of his buggy. He told us this was to keep his feet from freezing in the cold, hard winters. That's old school boys. Ha, ha. Mrs. Ivy Nell Boger told how her love letters from Mr. Edwin came stamped from the Cana Post Office.

Sunday, around 2 p.m., the folks headed down the lane to Valley View for Uncle Walter Etchison's 90th birthday. Uncle Walter was one of the crew members who flew the first commercial flight to Europe. He was flying the Yankee Clipper (Flying Boat) for Pan Am. Walter is the last surviving member from this historical flight. About 110 people traveled down what used to be the Henry Howard Road. Mary Lue Benton Gibbs traveled from Michigan and Alice Blackmore Hicks from New York City. Kay Campbell from Atlanta, and Dick and Dorothy Washburn, Walter's long time friends from Lake Lure and many others from all over. At 3, we told the crowd to come out to the front yard for a surprise. Everyone was wondering where the surprise would come. Then perfectly on time, retired Piedmont Airlines Captain Bill Kyle flew his WWII Navy aircraft over the crowd and he showed us some tactical moves such as loops down flight. He finished by circling Valley View and all of Cana with a white halo of skywriting smoke. Thanks to Captain Kyle for this. The old timers heard the drowning sound of the old radial engine and it brought back many memories of when they were young.

Happy birthday to Roland West and Chip Pulliam.

With a view from Old Store, this is John Godwin, Que the Jingle.

We have welcomed several new visitors to the Methodist Church for the past two Sundays.

The annual hayride and chicken stew will be Oct. 26. The ride begins at the recreation center and later the chicken stew at the shelter.

Jason A. Wright will present an organ recital at the Methodist church on Saturday, Oct. 19 at 4 p.m. Everyone is invited.

Our community extends deepest sympathy to the family of Joe Talbert. He died last week at Lexington Memorial Hospital after an extended illness in the Meadowbrook Terrace of Davie.

Edith Zimmerman spent last Saturday morning with Bob and Mary Ann Zimmerman at their home off Underpass Road. Bob has done much wood work and carving which Edith was interested in. In the afternoon she visited shut-ins Mrs. Paulina Barney and Lillie "Bark" Vogler. On Sunday she visited shut-in Charlotte Williams.

Janine Roberts was a Sunday afternoon visitor of Olivia Talbert.

Susan Nelson visited shut-in Kazie Smiley one day last week.

Florine Black, Jimmy and Carolyn Grubb of Lexington were Sunday afternoon visitors of Florine's cousin Edith Zimmerman.

Pastor Harry Sammons wife Jane and son Lewis spent Saturday and Sunday in Ohio where they attended the wedding of a relative.

Maybelle Orrell remains in Whitaker Rehab where she is recovering from a broken hip. She is improving and hopes to be home soon. Maggie Lou Barney is still in Bermuda Village Health Center recovering from a dislocated shoulder and a broken hip. These ladies have really been missed in our community and church during their weeks of recuperation.

Jack and Dot Carter and grandchildren spent the weekend in the NC mountains.

Where can you find some of the highest patient satisfaction scores for hip and knee replacements?
Right here.
Nearly four years ago, Rowan Regional Medical Center opened a superior hip and knee replacement program called Joynt Camp. Since then, hundreds of patients from Rowan and the surrounding counties have come here for surgery, gone through rehabilitation with others, and returned home quickly to a more comfortable, enjoyable life.
During that time a national research organization, operating independently, has been asking our patients about their experience. In every quarterly survey result, patients in our Joynt Camp ranked their orthopaedic surgeons, the hospital staff and their overall experience at the highest levels.
In fact, Rowan Regional's Joynt Camp for hip and knee replacement ranks near the top of all hospitals surveyed nationwide by the people who know it best – the patients. So why settle for anything less?

Ann Barber Remembered As A Talented, Happy Young Woman

Born Dec. 29, 1977, Ann was the youngest of Bonnie and Paul Barber's three children, and their only daughter.

Paul and Bonnie started dating when she was a junior at New Hanover High School in Wilmington. Paul volunteered with Bonnie's father on the New Hanover Rescue Squad, and it was at the squad's weekly square dances that they met.

Bonnie had mentioned her interest in Paul to her father. "He's not going to ask you out," she says her father had teased. "Why would he ask you out?"

As it turns out, Paul, though he was six years her senior, had noticed Carlyle "Red" Worrell's pretty daughter with the long, strawberry-blonde hair and bright, blue eyes. He would hit her playfully with his orange work glove when she stopped by to see her father at squad headquarters.

Once, when she needed to use the phone, he told her she could only talk for four minutes. "That's OK," she says she said when she got off. "I only used two, so next time I'll have six minutes to use."

Another time, Paul stood outside with Bonnie after a Saturday night square dance while she waited for her father to pick her up. He didn't want her to have to wait alone.

Bonnie felt an attraction to Paul, but was engaged to someone else. They had just broken up when Paul, an installer for Southern Bell, asked her to be his date at the Southern Bell Ball.

Bonnie's former fiance, in the meantime, had called and said he was sorry and wanted to get back together. She had promised Paul Barber she'd go with him to a company ball, she told him, but after that they'd talk about it.

The next morning, her former fiance called and spoke to her rudely on the phone. Then Paul called with his sweet voice and asked her out again.

What was a girl to do? Her former boyfriend pushed them together, she jokes.

Bonnie and Paul were married on June 16, 1973, the weekend after she graduated from New Hanover High School. They went to St. Augustine, Fla., on their honeymoon, where their first child was conceived.

"The joke was it was cheaper to get pregnant and have a baby than it was to bring back souvenirs for everybody," she says.

Paul Joseph Barber, named after his father but without a Jr., was born March 14, 1974. Bonnie stayed home with their new son, while Paul continued in his job with Southern Bell, which eventually became AT&T.

He had been transferred to Winston-Salem, and they were living in an apartment there when Eric Charles Barber came along on Feb. 5, 1976. They had bought a house on Main Street when Ann was born almost 21 months later.

There, Paul planted purple and white irises in their yard and raised a small vegetable garden. "The boys would help him in the garden," Bonnie says, "and of course, Ann was always toddling behind."

P.J. and Eric were in school when their mother began working two days a week in a day-care center at a local bowling alley. She would take Ann with her to work.

This photograph of Ann Barber is one of her mother's favorites.

It was around this time that P.J. began complaining of headaches and pain in his chest and legs. He had begun having behavior problems and difficulty learning.

Bonnie and Paul took him to several doctors before one did a hair analysis and found that P.J. was suffering from toxic lead poisoning. He could have ingested it from the lead-based paint in their older house, the doctor said, or from the fumes from the cars and trucks that traveled up and down Main Street. (Laws prohibiting leaded gasoline had not been implemented then.)

It might be better for P.J. if they lived in the country, the doctor suggested, and the Barbers began looking around for a new home. They saw an ad for a house with 11 acres off of Godbey Road in Davie County and drove over to look at it.

There were two ponds on the property, and they fell in love with it right away. They had found their new home.

Ann was 5 when the family packed up and moved to the Center community of Davie County. The family started attending First Presbyterian Church in Mocksville, where they soon became members, and began dancing with the Freestyle Swingers, a local clogging group.

Bonnie, P.J., Eric and Ann all danced. Paul, though he didn't clog, went with them to all the events and competitions.

Dancing came easily to Ann. She was naturally graceful and felt at home on the stage.

By the time Bonnie's parents had retired from their jobs in Wilmington and moved into a mobile home beside their daughter, their granddaugher was taking dance lessons at Davie Dance Studio. After a year, Ann began taking lessons from Tilley's Dance Academy in Harmony and later, the Tilley studio in Statesville.

When Paul was laid off from his job at AT&T a year or so after they moved to Davie, he started his own business, Associated Communications, doing what he had always done — selling, installing and repairing telephone systems.

Bonnie began working at Center Mobil Mart on U.S. 64 West, where P.J., Eric and Ann would get off the bus in the afternoons. There, they met even more people in the community.

"We used to do all kinds of fun stuff," Bonnie says. "We'd just pull stuff out in the parking lot and have yard sales. We'd make silly signs and wear crazy things on our heads.

"We were just all the time having a good time."

In the meantime, the children enjoyed having their grandparents next door, and the family grew extremely close.

Bonnie took photography courses at Davidson County Community College in Lexington and used Ann as her model. She even took her to school one day for the whole class to photograph.

Ann was as at ease in front of the camera as she was onstage. The camera captured her natural beauty, and her mother showed off her photographs on the bulletin board at Center Mobile Mart.

P.J., who recovered from his toxic lead poisoning, played football all through school. He went from being a rambunctious kid to a more reserved teenager, discovering his true love in computers.

Eric, who was once so shy he'd hide if you spoke to him, played football in elementary and middle schools, but gave it up when he discovered drama in the ninth grade. He performed in school productions and became involved with the Davie Theater Group.

Ann, who befriended strangers wherever she went, continued to be outgoing and made excellent grades in school. She loved animals, and talked about becoming a veterinarian.

Life wasn't always easy for the Barbers, but it was a good life. Whatever they did, they did as a family.

When Eric became involved with the local theater group, Bonnie, Paul, P.J. and Ann did, too. Paul helped build set designs, Bonnie worked with the stage props and eventually began acting herself, P.J. manned the spotlights and Ann was in charge of the curtains.

It was around the eighth grade that Ann began talking about Brent Crotts. They were just friends, she told Bonnie, who quickly began to suspect otherwise.

In the ninth grade, they started dating, and before long, Ann and Brent were doing everything together. Ann was in love. She had never been happier, her mother says.

Ann and Brent played in the Davie High Band together, and Bonnie and Paul went to most of the games. They accepted Brent into the family, and at her daughter's request, Bonnie would even pack his lunch when she packed Ann's.

Ann embraced high school, and her parents were pleased to see how much she enjoyed it. Their daughter was happy, beautiful and healthy.

It was on a church youth trip that one of the adult chaperones noticed Ann making seizure-type noises in her sleep.

"She does that all the time at home," Bonnie says Eric told them. "We just turn her over."

Bonnie and Paul, when they were told of the incident, took Ann to a doctor, who diagnosed her with seizure disorder. He was unable to determine the cause of the seizures and when the Barbers asked about medication, said it would only mask the symptoms and they wouldn't know when she was having one.

What if she had one and was by herself? Bonnie wanted to know. The danger would be if she fell and hit her head, the doctor had responded.

Ann was on a band trip to Paris in the 10th grade when she had her second seizure. It was after the third one some time later that her mother began to detect a pattern: They usually happened when she first woke up and was a little disoriented, and they lasted only a few seconds.

By this time, Bonnie had left Center Mobil Mart and worked for a while at a professional photo lab in Clemmons and at the Sara Lee plant on Farmington Road before going to work at the Young Children's Learning Center on Council Street in Mocksville.

There, she found her calling, working in the infants' room. She loved her new job. If she was having a bad day, she says all she had to do was rock the babies, and they'd smile and laugh and make her feel better.

Ann had begun working with her mother at the day care center as a sophomore, helping out in the 1-year-old classroom next door to the infants.

"I saw her every afternoon," Bonnie says. "We went out on the playground together."

Ann continued to work there through her junior year and was still there as a senior in October of 1997. On the afternoon of Oct. 11, Brent dropped her off at the Young Children's Learning Center like he always did, and she worked until it was time for her and her mother to go home.

That evening was a routine one for the Barbers, Bonnie, P.J. and Eric had to go to the Brock Performing Arts Center to rehearse the Davie Theater Company's production of "Anything Goes." Opening night was two days away, and the pressure was on to get everything right.

Paul had some work to do on the computer, and Ann had a videotape to watch for a school assignment. She took it next door to her grandparents' mobile home. They were in Wilmington visiting her great-aunt.

Bonnie walked over to look for a camera to use in the production. Ann teased her, saying she was going to tell Papaw she had been plundering through his things.

"I told her to go ahead, I didn't care," Bonnie says.

Ann asked her mother to pick up some food for her and Brent's lunches the following day, and Bonnie said she would.

"I told her I loved her and walked out the door," she says.

It was the last time she would see her daughter alive.

Paul was working on the computer a couple of hours later when Brent called, looking for Ann. She's at her grandparents' house, Paul told him, and gave him the number. When Brent called back and said she didn't answer, Paul said she had probably fallen asleep, that he would go get her.

"When he went over to check on her," Bonnie says, "he found her face down in my Daddy's reclining chair with her book bag under her."

When Paul couldn't find a pulse, he dialed 911 and began performing CPR on his daughter.

One of Bonnie's coworkers heard the emergency call on her scanner and called Paul. He asked her to go to the Brock and bring Bonnie and the boys home.

"I didn't know what was wrong," Bonnie says when Tricia Spry arrived. "I just knew that if they had taken Ann to the hospital, I wanted to go to the hospital."

They arrived at the emergency room of Davie County Hospital just as the ambulance was pulling in with Ann.

"When they took Ann out," Bonnie says, "I said, 'That can't be my baby.' And then all of a sudden, it dawned on me that it was her and that I had to get out and go."

The ambulance crew was still working with Ann as they unloaded her, and the emergency room staff asked the family to stay in the waiting room. P.J. and Eric were as shocked as their mother by what was happening, but tried to be strong for her.

Brent's mother was working at the Davie County Communications Center when Paul made the 911 call and had left work shortly afterward to go get her son. He told Bonnie later that he knew something was terribly wrong when his mother arrived home to wake him up.

Brent arrived at the emergency room shortly after Bonnie and Paul. They all held each other and cried while they waited for news about Ann.

"I remember saying that my baby was going to be all right," Bonnie says, "that God was not going to let anything happen to her."

It was a few minutes later that Bonnie says she felt a profound sense of peace in her heart which was accompanied by an inner knowing that Ann was gone. "When I talked to Brent later, he had felt the same thing," she says.

She and Brent were in the waiting room by themselves at that point. P.J. and Eric had gone out in the hallway to try to console their distraught father. "I think he knew she was already gone," Bonnie says.

In a few minutes, they were given the terrible news — efforts to save Ann had been unsuccessful. The cause of death was asphyxiation, they were told, apparently caused by her falling on top of her book bag on the reclining chair, which opened upon impact, causing her head to fall even deeper into it.

The family could see her, they were told. Bonnie and Paul went inside, where their beautiful daughter lay lifeless on a hospital gurney.

Bonnie began to cry. Looking back, she says she thinks sometimes she should have been "yelling and screaming and throwing things."

"But I couldn't," she says, "because of the peace I had felt. I knew where she was. She knew where she was, and she was ready to be there."

Ann's faith had always been an important part of her life, according to her mother. She had been baptized at First Presbyterian Church, and just two weeks before her death, had recommitted her life to Christ at a crusade at Davie High School.

There was one thing Ann would always say when she got ready to leave someone, Bonnie says: "God loves you, and so do I."

Though she has blocked some of the memories of that night, Bonnie says she will never be able to forget the horror of having to call her parents in Wilmington.

"I asked to speak to my Mom, and Daddy immediately knew something was wrong," she says. "When you get a call at 1 o'clock in the morning, you know something is wrong. As calmly as I could, I said, 'Mom, Ann's dead.' I heard her say, 'What?'

"I said, 'Ann's dead,' and Daddy was in the background saying, 'What is it? What is it?' And Mom said, 'Ann's dead,' and then I heard Daddy start to cry."

Alma and Red Worrell packed up and headed home.

By 8 the next morning, friends began gathering at the Barber home. Over the next few days, there was a tremendous outpouring of support from Ann's friends and teachers at Davie High, fellow church members at First Presbyterian and neighbors in the Center community.

Bonnie and Paul included Brent while making the funeral arrangements, and he asked them to bury Ann in the elegant, white dress she had worn as his prom date the previous spring. He also asked them to put the stuffed bunny he had given her when they first started dating in the casket.

Brent also requested that they play "Go Rest High on That Mountain," the Vince Gill song he and Ann had fallen in love with the first time they heard it. Lewis Phillips, who was in the theater group with the Barbers, sang "Ava Maria" and "On the Wings of a Snow White Dove," one of Ann's favorite hymns, at the funeral.

The Rev. Leland Richardson, then minister at First Presbyterian, returned home early from his vacation to conduct the service.

As the days turned into weeks, Bonnie says fewer and fewer people came by. She tried to resume a normal routine as best she could, returning to work in a week.

"That was one of the hardest things I had to do," she says, "because I knew at 3:30, she wouldn't be walking in that door."

Bonnie cried a lot during those first days back at work. "I'd cry, and I'd rock babies," she says. "I'd cry some more, and I'd rock some more."

As time passed, Bonnie put on a good front. When friends, coworkers and neighbors asked how she was doing, she'd say, "I'm just fine." She'd make it through the day at work and then crash emotionally when she got back home.

What people didn't realize, she says, was that she had begun to have debilitating panic attacks that came on without warning. "A smell or a word or a glimpse of something would trigger them," she says.

With her daughter gone, Bonnie worried that something would happen to P.J. and Eric. When some friends came by to take them out one evening after Ann's death, she says she collapsed emotionally.

"I didn't do it in front of them," she says, "but after they left, I just bawled my eyes out. I was so scared something was going to happen, and I wouldn't see them again."

Bonnie wasn't the only one suffering — Paul blamed himself. After years of volunteering for the New Hanover Rescue Squad, he hadn't been able to save his own daughter.

His self-blame continued. Bonnie says, until one day, she burst out crying and screamed at him, "You want to blame somebody. OK, let's start blaming people. Let's blame me. I should have been a better mother. I should have been here ...

"I just had to let it out. I said, 'We'll just blame everybody,' and I started naming this person and that person.' "

Together, they'd work through their pain, growing even closer than before.

In the meantime, Bonnie's panic attacks continued. She'd have them at church, while walking through J.C. Penney, Ann's favorite store, anywhere that triggered a memory of her daughter.

It was in June following Ann's death in October that she had one of her worst attacks. Bonnie was in class to get her CPR certification renewed for her job. "I remember looking at the girl beside of me," she says, "and saying, 'I'm going to have a panic attack.' That's the last thing I remember."

Like she had with the other attacks, Bonnie started shaking, feeling dizzy and hyperventilating. She ended up running down the stairs and out of the building. "I had to get in the open space," she says.

That was on a Thursday night, and it was the following Saturday morning that Bonnie says she hit "rock bottom."

"I was cleaning up and ran across something of Ann's," she says, "and it just hit a trigger. The next thing I remember was hearing this little voice say 'Mom, don't do it. The babies need you.'

"And when I looked down, there was a handful of muscle relaxers and a glass of water in my hands. That was my rock bottom. And when Ann's voice told me not to do it, that's when I started to heal."

That wasn't the first time Bonnie says she had felt her daughter's presence. A music box that she had brought home from work to try to fix after someone had wound it too tightly would start playing when she thought about Ann.

"It wouldn't be the whole song," she says, "It would be just like three or four little notes."

Music boxes also began playing spontaneously in her parents' house, she says, especially in the room where Ann liked to do her homework.

Bonnie also dreamed of Ann regularly. "For a while," she says, "I could say at night, 'Ann, I need to see you. I need to dream about you tonight,' and I'd automatically have a dream about her."

In some of Bonnie's dreams, Ann was younger than she was when she died, and in some, she was still 17. In many of them, Ann would tell her mother she was all right. Sometimes she wouldn't say anything at all, but seeing her made Bonnie feel better.

She only had one dream that upset her. Ann had told her mother before she died that she never wanted to have another seizure again. "And I had told her, 'Baby, I don't want you to have another one,' " she says.

In the dream, Bonnie says her daughter looked at her and said, " 'Mom, I guess it was a bad one this time.' I said, 'Yes, babe, it was a bad one.' "

The dreams continued until about a year ago, when Bonnie says Ann told her that she wouldn't see her anymore. "You're strong enough without me now," she says Ann said in a dream.

"And as much as I would say, 'No, I still want to have my dreams, I still want to have my visits,' " Bonnie says Ann would respond that she was strong enough to go on without them.

After that, Bonnie says she didn't dream of Ann until about six months ago, when she dreamed of seeing her in a crowd. "All I saw was her face and smile, and she was gone," she says. "She was just a face in the crowd.

"To me, she was saying, 'You're not asking me to visit you anymore because you're strong enough. But I just wanted you to know I'm still there.' "

Bonnie says some people might think she's crazy for sharing her dreams about Ann. "But I believe dreams help us," she says. "When you can pray for something and it's given to you in a dream, thank God for it."

In the seven years since Ann's death, Bonnie, who is now 48, has tried to go on with her life as best she can. She still works at the Young Children's Learning Center, has continued her theater and photography work, is now on the Davie Arts Council Board of Directors and is even teaching belly dancing at Nature's Gifts.

When she dances, Bonnie Barber says it is as a tribute to her daughter. She dances for Ann, she says, and her heart cries for Ann.

"She will always be young and 17," she says of her daughter, "and that's why my heart will always cry."

Ann Barber touched many people in her 17 years of life. One of them was me.

When I moved back to Davie County in 1985, I began buying gas for my daily commute to Salisbury at what was then the Center Mobil Mart. It was there that I met and befriended Bonnie Barber and her family.

Ann was about 8 then, and it wasn't long before she was running to hug me every time I walked in the door. I grew to love the delightful child and found myself stopping more and more frequently to see her.

One year, Ann asked me to go one of her dance recitals, and I went, marveling at the grace and ease with which she performed.

After Bonnie stopped working at the service station, I saw Ann less and less. Every time I ran into her, usually at Wal-Mart or a grocery store, she had grown up a little more, but was always glad to see me.

Over time, I watched her mature from a beautiful child to a lovely young woman.

When my niece, Amanda, was born, I would tell her a story about "The Wind Dancer," a girl who loved to dance so much that she'd go outside on a windy day and try to twirl so fast that the wind couldn't help but pick her up and carry her away to dance all over the world.

We'd lie on our backs on the grass as I told the story, and my niece's eyes would widen at the end when I told her that if she listened carefully, she might could hear the distant laughter of the Wind Dancer.

The last time I told my niece the story was about five years ago as she has since become a teenager herself. I found myself describing the Wind Dancer more vividly than ever before.

It was only then that I realized she had a name, and it was Ann.

The American Red Cross will host an adult, infant and child CPR and first aid course on Oct. 15, 16 and 17 at the Davie County Public Library multipurpose room, 371 N. Main St., Mocksville.

The community first aid and safety course combines CPR and first aid training to teach participatns a variety of safety techniques. Upon completion, participants earn Red Cross certification. The cost is $35. Reserve a space by calling 751-1347.

The course begins Tuesday, Oct. 15 from 5:45-10:15 p.m. It continues on Wednesday, Oct. 16 from 6-8:45 p.m. and on Thursday, Oct. 17 from 6-8:30 p.m.

Among the most popular of Red Cross courses, it teaches participants to:

- recognize and care for breathing and cardiac emergencies in adults, infants and children;
- perform first aid for cuts, scrapes, bruises, burns, bleeding, sprains and strains;
- treat sudden illnesses, including poisonings and heat and cold emergencies;
- minimize the effects of shock;
- recognize emergencies and take action; and
- understand the role of automated external defibrillators (AEDs) in the cardiac chain of survival.

Robert Sweetgall To Speak On Youth Fitness Oct. 17

Mason Lee Hire

Jennifer and Carlton Hire of Advance announce the birth of a son, Mason Lee Hire.

He was born September 24, 2002 at Forsyth Medical Center. At birth he weighed eight pounds and one ounce and was 21 and one-quarter inches long.

Maternal grandparents are Bonnie and Jack Snow of Mocksville. Paternal grandparents are Delores and Steve Hire of Clemmons.

Maternal great-grandparents are Rachel and Fred Snow of Clemmons and the late Dessie and Hob Pennell of Moravian Falls. Paternal great-grandparents are Doris and Ray Hire of Clemmons and James Proctor and the late Nellie Proctor of Rocky Mount.

Thanks to a state grant, Davie County middle school students, as well as employees of the county and school system, will hear the words of Robert Sweetgall on Thursday, Oct. 17.

The grant, Youth Media Campaign, through the North Carolina Physical Activity and Nutrition Branch, was applied for by the Davie County Health Department and Davie County School System.

The goal of the grant is to promote fitness in "tweens" (ages 9-13). In conjunction with this grant, the Davie County Healthy Carolinians/Fitness Committee and the Davie County School System are promoting a wellness program to benefit school system and county employees.

Robert Sweetgall, often called the "real Forrest Gump", has walked seven times across America and is the only person to walk all 50 states (11,028 miles) in 365 consecutive days. Author of 14 books, Sweetgall has appeared on radio and talk shows, including NBC Today Show, Evening Magazine, Kathy and Regis Live, and National Public Radio. He will speak on the importance of lifelong fitness. Admission is free and community members are invited.

QUILTERS
A musical by Molly Newman & Barbara Damashek
The story of a pioneer woman and her seven daughters, "Quilters" blends a series of interrelated scenes into a "quilt" which captures the beauty, joy, challenges, and rewards of frontier life. The stories are shown in "patches" with music, dance, and drama. When the patches are all gathered into one, brilliantly-colorful quilt, the effect is both breathtaking and magical. Guaranteed to be one of the best shows of the season, "Quilters" is not to be missed!

Calahaln Friendship Baptist Plans Homecoming, Revival

Calahaln Friendship Baptist Church on Calahaln Road will celebrate homecoming on Sunday, Oct. 13. The pastor, the Rev. G. Carroll Jordan, will bring the homecoming message at the 11 a.m. service. Lunch will be served in the arbor following the morning worship service.

Myers

Revival services will begin Sunday evening at 7 with the Rev. Franklin Myers, pastor of Spencer First Baptist Church, as the visiting preacher. Myers is a native of Rowan County, licensed by Edgewood Baptist Church and a former pastor of Ijames Baptist Church. He is a graduate of Gardner-Webb University and Southeastern Baptist Seminary.

Services Monday-Wednesday will begin at 7:30 p.m. There will be special music each service, and a nursery will be provided. All are invited.

Green Meadows Baptist Dedication This Sunday

For 27 years, the front view of Green Meadows Baptist Church has remained relatively unchanged. Now, as sanctuary renovations are completed, the church has a fresh appearance to go along with its renewed commitment to serving the Lord and the community.

The sanctuary building was constructed from 1974 - 1975 under the pastoral leadership of the Rev. Walter L. Warrford, who stated at the time that, "Our church (Green Meadows) has a good future and we must have more space in order to reach the new people moving into our area, as well as being able to have the programs and to do the work it needs to do in the community." Continuing in this desire to reach out to the community, the church, now under the leadership of the Rev. Michael Waters, voted to undertake this expansion program which has taken six months to complete.

The existing sanctuary interior has been redesigned to allow for the addition of new pews including those which are wheelchair-accessible. A new construction on the front will serve as a new foyer with restrooms and will provide entrances on each side of the building in contrast to the single-entrance that existed prior to the renovations. Many other updates were also a part of the renovations including a redesigning of the parking area and the addition of a circular driveway.

Green Meadows will be holding a dedication service on Sunday, Oct. 13 at 11 a.m. The new cornerstone will be set immediately following the service.

Green Meadows is located at 1646 N.C. 801 North between the Hillsdale and Farmington communities. The church offers three services weekly, as well as Sunday School and other programs for all ages.

The Real Season

Davie Opens CPC At South Iredell

Even though Davie's varsity football team tripled South Iredell in yardage and dominated 28-3 last year, there's little danger of Davie taking the host Vikings for granted in Friday's Central Piedmont Conference opener Friday night at 7:30.

For one thing, South defeated an Alexander Central team that defeated Davie. The teams have faced four common opponents – Mooresville, Statesville, AC and Lake Norman – and the results have been comparable.

Davie might not recognize the Vikings (4-2), who, after dropping six of seven games from the end of last season through the beginning of this season, have clicked off four straight victories to enter CPC play with the wind at their back.

Davie, meanwhile, ended nonconference in a 2-4 tailspin.

"They've got a good team," Davie coach Doug Illing said. "They're very much improved and they have a lot of experience (14 returning starters from 2001). Even though they split the schools up (between S. Iredell and new Lake Norman), they didn't lose a starter."

Last year South broke even in nonconference (3-3) but got hammered in the CPC (1-4). The skid spilled over as it opened this year with losses of 30-7 to Mooresville and 7-0 to Statesville.

But since then, South has played like it's on a mission, beating West Iredell 36-20, North Iredell 16-2, Alexander Central 6-0 and Lake Norman 48-8. South Iredell and Davie, coming off bye weeks, last played on Sept. 27.

"We've got good senior leadership (16 seniors), and we've got everybody healthy," South coach Kent Millsaps said. "Last year we were missing three or four people all year with season-ending injuries, almost in the same boat as Davie. We've got a lot more speed on defense, and that's a major reason we've got four victories. We're getting after people a lot more.

"There's a totally different attitude in that locker room. They feel good about what they're doing. They've got goals they want to accomplish before they graduate."

Snakebitten Davie spent the nonconference days wearing a path to the training room, as the injury bug victimized a van load of defensive players: NG Brandon Pane, DB Billy Riddle, OLB Jon Goode, DT Jeremy

Coaches Marvel At Davie Volleyball

Davie's varsity volleyball team won last week's Central Piedmont Conference matches before they began because of the fear it puts in opponents. The War Eagles squashed West Forsyth (15-1, 15-4, 15-1) and South Rowan (15-3, 15-5, 15-6) like a bug beneath a horse's hoof.

"West is obviously having a very tough year, and I don't think West felt they could beat us," Coach Dave Markland said. "Their girls were overwhelmed and at this point in the season it's hard for them to get excited about playing.

"They knew they didn't have a good chance of winning and we played well, so it really didn't matter what they did."

South Rowan coach Jan Dowling shook her head in resignation to the dominance of senior-laden Davie.

"Hands down, Davie's the best in our league," she said. "Everyone else, we can beat if we play well. But Davie's a team we just can't touch. Davie's got size, skills and experience, but it's more than that. Those girls know how to win. That bunch was born to win and they don't accept losing."

The War Eagles have won seven consecutive matches and could easily be undefeated, losing in five games to North Iredell on Sept. 3 and to South Iredell on Sept. 10 in the CPC opener. They have captured 21 of the past 23 games while outscoring opponents by a staggering 335-147.

At 16-2 and 7-1 in the CPC, Davie has all but locked up its first outright regular-season championship ever (North Davidson and South Iredell have three CPC losses each with just two matches to go).

The War Eagles became an annual contender in the early 1980s and pieced together an amazing streak of 12 winning seasons from 1986-97. But they're just the fourth team to notch 16 victories, and they're just five wins from the record. Under Karen Calcagno in 1981, the War Eagles went 21-6 and tied for first in the North Piedmont 3-A Conference. Under Sherrie Myers in 1993, they went 18-5 and tied for second in the CPC. And under Tammy Reavis in 1995, they went 16-3, again tying for second.

"We're awesome and we've got the stuff," junior Allison Schafer said.

"Secret to our success? We've got a great coach and we've all been together for a while," senior Sara Miller said.

Markland didn't have enough game balls to go around after dismantling West (2-16). Miller, Candice James,

Unsung Star: Merrifield Leads Star-Studded Team

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Amid all the glory around horses Daniel Gough and Brandon Stewart, quarterback Whit Merrifield of North Davie's eighth-grade football team often slips into the background as an afterthought.

For those who haven't noticed, the afterthought is one of the coolest, smoothest and most efficient passers in the county's middle-school annals. For those who have gotten caught up in Gough and Stewart's unstoppable rushing figures, Merrifield has completed 33-of-53 passes over two years while directing North to 12 straight wins.

Last week, in a 44-8 romp over visiting Southeast, Merrifield attempted five passes and completed four for 87 yards.

"He is just a leader on the field," assistant coach Ronald Boger said. "He's sweet. He'll call a play before you call it. He knows and he reads the defenses. He sees what's going on because he's just that much further along (than most middle schoolers)."

Indeed, Merrifield possesses uncanny leadership qualities. That's especially evident on North's two-point formations.

"He does a lot of (audibles) on extra points," head coach Ron Kirk said. "I'll call one play and if he sees it's stacked to one side, he'll switch it to the other side."

Last year Merrifield was supposed to be too small to go 21-of-32 for 321 yards. A growth spurt has added about four inches to his stature, enhancing his high-school chances at the position. Even if Merrifield – who is 12-of-21 for 176 yards this year, including eight completions to tight end Tom Kuell – never reaches the preferred height of a high-school quarterback, don't bet against this savvy kid.

"Joe Theismann wasn't but about 5-10," Boger said.

Merrifield has compiled terrific numbers, but his value stretches way beyond statistics and his ability to

Storybook Drive: Seaford-To-Webb Lifts South

South Davie's seventh-grade football team really doesn't try to do everything the hard way. It just looked that way for the fourth straight game.

The Tigers didn't fumble the ball away three times intentionally, but it did look like they just wanted to see if they could rescue themselves in the 11th hour.

The Tigers raised their level when they needed it and stole a 14-6 overtime win from visiting China Grove last week, but not before driving Coach Todd Bumgarner crazy.

On the game's first series, South mounted a 13-play drive, chewed up the entire first quarter and had a second-and-goal at the China Grove 1. The powerful march, though, went for naught as South fumbled.

After a scoreless half, China Grove broke through for a 6-0 lead. South was poised to answer before fumbling inside the China Grove 20. The Tigers forced a quick punt, but their second consecutive play resulted in fumble No. 3.

"We could have easily been up two scores," a worried Bumgarner said.

The third fumble, at the South 40, should have put the Tigers down for the count, because their next possession began on their 35 with just 1:47 remaining. Needing to go 65 yards in 107 seconds is bad enough, but South's predicament worsened even more when quarterback Colby Seaford was sacked back to the 30 on first down.

The sack forced Bumgarner to burn his third timeout, meaning South needed to cover 70 yards in 1:32 without a timeout.

Unbelievably, South did just that. Six plays later, the game was tied. Seaford, who was 0-for-1 passing before the final drive, completed five straight passes out of the hurry-up shotgun. He hit Floyd Collins for 14 yards and connected with Cameron Webb four times for 56 yards.

"Every team has tried to take Webb away from us and he finds a way to get open," Bumgarner said. "He was nursing a hamstring pull and probably shouldn't have even been out there. But he sucked it up."

Time had dwindled under 15 seconds with South at the China Grove 9.

Worth Noting ...

Tyler Baity rescued N. Davie's soccer team (8-0-1) from a 3-1 halftime deficit and helped it remain unbeaten, scoring three goals in a 3-3 tie with Summit.

Whit Merrifield, the unsung hero of N. Davie's 8th-grade football team, is 33-of-53 passing over two years at quarterback.

Kenneth Brown and C.J. White of S. Davie's 8th-grade football team led a 38-24 win over China Grove by combining for 348 yards on 12 rushes.

Colby Seaford threw a 9-yard, game-tying TD to Cameron Webb, his fifth completion in a row, and S. Davie's 7th-grade football team pulled out a 14-6 win in overtime over China Grove.

Mike Paoni sparked a turnaround for Davie's JV soccer team, scoring the first goal in a 2-0 win over W. Forsyth and delivering a hat trick in a 4-0 win over S. Rowan.

In a shutout win over West Forsyth, Dawn Singleton and Heather Miller of Davie's varsity volleyball team combined for 17 kills - without an error.

Gut-Wrenching

Linder, Soccer Team Nearly Overcome Missing Starters Before Losing In OT

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

The odds were stacked heavily against Davie's varsity soccer team against visiting West Forsyth, the first of three Central Piedmont Conference opponents last week.

With Matt Moser, who scored 60 percent of Davie's goals (15 of 25) before dislocating his arm in the previous game on Sept. 24, watching from the sideline and fellow striker and No. 2 threat Juan Lagos nursing an injured ankle, it would take an incredible performance to knock off a West team that came in 25-1 all-time against Davie.

Linder

The War Eagles somehow handled the psychological impact of losing their star and didn't allow themselves to get discouraged. They maintained a positive attitude, plugged away and relied on Adam Linder, who provided a critical spark and knocked in a pair of game-tying goals.

But it wasn't meant to be as West outlasted worn-out Davie in two 10-minute overtime periods, 4-2.

In the middle game of the week, Davie vented 4-0 against South Rowan. But it folded against Reynolds, which romped 6-0 to drop the War Eagles to 5-7-1 overall and 1-3 in the CPC.

"I like the way the team stepped up (against West) while losing Matt and Juan," Coach Jim Caudill said. "We really hung the whole time and played well."

After playing a supporting role with two goals in the first nine games, Linder cashed in two passes from Nick Nelson, tying it at 1-1 and tying it again at 2-2 with just five minutes remaining. Both Linder goals were head-ins.

"Adam's so good in the air and Nick served the ball well," Caudill said. "We could have given up and a 2-1 effort would have been nice – but we refused to die."

After 80 taxing minutes, the War Eagles were gasping. Deeper West took advantage, scored once in each OT and handed Davie a gut-wrenching loss.

As Caudill watched West celebrate, he wondered what could have happened with Moser and Lagos on the field.

"We were unlucky," he said. "We were out of gas and they overpowered us. They've got a big squad, they're talented and their level doesn't drop off (when subs come in), and it wears you down.

"One knock could have changed the whole complexion of the game. Juan has so much range. All we needed was a knock here or there, and in a close game like that that changes everything."

Davie 4, South Rowan 0

Linder did it all, torching South with three goals. When Davie got a capping score from Zach Hanrahan at the 56th minute, it was Linder who supplied the assist.

"He just took over," Caudill said. "He absolutely was a monster out there, and he hit the post twice. Everybody stepped up but he just stepped up paramount. He was head and shoulders above everything.

"It sort of took the wind out of their sails. I expected a more physical, harder match, and they basically just finished the match out."

Reynolds 6, Davie 0

Caudill was bothered because he didn't see any fire from Davie. As a result, Reynolds named the score.

"I wasn't impressed that much with Reynolds," he said. "I was impressed with their overall effort. They're a good team and they have some very high skill players, but they work very, very hard. We just weren't in it. We never got in a rhythm. We never really believed in the game plan, and as you tire you lose your focus.

"Are they six goals better than us? No. Are they very talented? Yeah. Can we play with them? We can definitely play with them, we just have to bring our A game."

Notes: Moser revisited the doctor on Oct. 9. ... Davie plays at South Iredell on Oct. 10 and at West Forsyth on Oct. 15. ... Caudill applauded the play of Charlie Lester and Bryant Chavez.

JV Soccer Team Opens CPC With 2-0 Record

During a nonconference free fall of 0-6-2, Davie's JV soccer team got outscored 23-4 and suffered four straight shutout losses.

Thanks to Mike Paoni, the War Eagles have something to smile about. In the first of three games last week, Paoni provided Davie's first goal in five games in the first half against West Forsyth and Russel Hilton added insurance as Davie smothered the Titans 2-0.

Davie followed that breakthrough with a 4-0 blasting of South Rowan.

"That was a big turning point for us," Coach Jeremy Byrd said of the West Forsyth win. "We've been practicing hard and it's really paid off. We played really well and West is a decent team."

Paoni went crazy against South, producing a hat trick. Nick Tucker scored the other goal as Davie opened Central Piedmont Conference play with two victories.

The much-needed euphoria ended in a 5-1 loss to Reynolds, but the setback to a vaunted team couldn't overshadow the previous two games. "Our goal for the week was to win two, and if we did more that was icing on the cake," Byrd said.

Davie didn't roll over for Reynolds. The Demons had to work for a 2-0 halftime lead because of gritty play from Jason Bowles, goalkeeper Justin Schultz, Harrison Judd and Josh Parrish.

"Reynolds is by far the most skilled team in the conference. By the end we were getting pretty worn down," he said. "But I feel very good about things right now. We're playing with a lot of heart. Bowles had an outstanding game. Schultz had a tremendous game. He had at least 10 saves. And Judd and Parrish were real important in the middle of the field."

The coach also mentioned David McIlwain and Lucus Boger. "McIlwain has been very consistent at sweeper, along with Boger," he said.

Volleyball Close To Locking In Title

Schafer and Dawn Singleton had six kills each. In fact, Singleton did her damage without committing an error. Heather Miller added five kills without an error.

"We pretty much did what we wanted to," Markland said.

Davie took South behind the woodshed next.

"South never quits, they play hard and they play good defense. They just don't have the hitters that we have," Markland said. "I was especially pleased with the week that Schafer, Singleton and Sara Miller had. They hit the ball with authority and had very few unforced errors."

But the player who caused the most problems for West and South was Schafer, who shook a minor slump and rediscovered her electrical rhythm.

"She's such a good hitter and she's so valuable," Markland said. "She's one of the best hitters in the conference, and she was really on her game."

Notes: Davie played at Reynolds on Oct. 8. Its final regular-season match is Oct. 10 at home against North Davidson. "We obviously had an easy week, but the girls are smart enough to know we have a tough week coming up," Markland said. ... The CPC Tournament is Oct. 14-18. ... Junior Alyse Bowden has to be the strongest No. 7 player in the league. "She's very good," he said. "She never has a mental lapse on the court."

Statesville, Davie 1-2 Again

The Statesville and Davie golf teams finished 1-2 in an eight-team meet for sixth time, with Statesville shooting an 80 and Davie an 89 to top East Rowan (92), Lake Norman (94), Mooresville (102), North Iredell (103), West Iredell (115) and South Iredell (119).

Individually, the Nos. 4-5 scores belonged to Davie's duo. Brittany Walker finished with a 44 and Emily Pettorini followed with a 45.

The conference tournament (18 holes) will be Oct. 17 at Fox Den.

Peeler Makes A Statement

Although Reynolds' cross country teams streaked past South Rowan and Davie last week, Bekah Peeler of Davie's girls team got Reynolds' attention by winning her second straight meet in 21:48.

"This was a true race for Bekah," Coach Darie Beiter said. "This time Reynolds went after her. Their coach admitted that he wanted to see if his top three could beat Bekah, and the coach conceded that Bekah's not going to be easy to beat."

Other than trying to keep up with Peeler, Reynolds had an easy time. Its boys had 21 points to South Rowan's 42 and Davie's 73. Its girls had 26 to South's 44 and Davie's 57.

Brandon Shore was the only other War Eagle to crack the lead pack, finishing 10th in 19:51.

"West Forsyth has a girl that's up there with Bekah," Beiter continued. "(Oct. 9) is going to be the matchup with Reynolds, West Forsyth and us (at West Forsyth)."

The Central Piedmont Conference meet is Oct. 16.

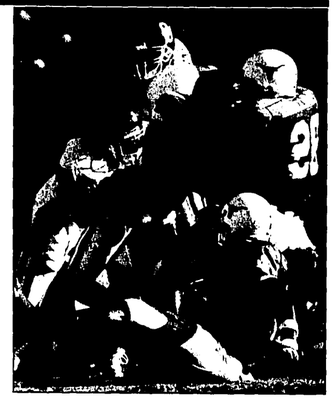
NCAA HIGHLIGHTS

The Big 12's Big Two Play a Very Big One

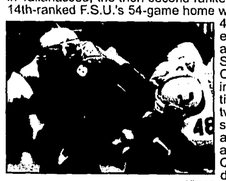


Allsport

Our obvious choice for game of the week on Saturday shapes up, as usual, as one of the best games of the year, as Oklahoma's seemingly unstoppable offense goes against Texas's immovable defense in Dallas. For the Sooners, an average game produces well over 400 yards of offense, while the Longhorns have been holding their opponents to about half that total. Texas leads the Red River War series 55-36-5 but has lost two straight games in the rivalry for the first time since 1987-88.

In their less-than-thrilling 2001 matchup, Oklahoma, then ranked No. 3, beat No. 5 Texas 14-3 despite being held to 206 total yards by the Longhorns' defense. The Oklahoma D gave Texas QB Chris Simms fits, intercepting him four times, including the game clincher, linebacker Teddy Lehman's two-yard pickoff return for a TD with 2:01 left. This week, though, it's Texas by five points.

Fourteen hundred miles to the southeast, Miami hosts Florida State in their annual Big East-Atlantic Coast grudge match. Both teams are among the nation's leaders on both sides of the ball, but the key to whether F.S.U. can stay in the game against the Hurricanes will be the Seminoles' running game, because Miami is better against the pass. A year ago in Tallahassee, the then-second-ranked 'Canes ended 14th-ranked F.S.U.'s 54-game home winning streak, 49-27, their highest score ever against Florida State. F.S.U. QB Chris Rix was intercepted four times, fumbled twice and was sacked six times, and this time around Miami's QB-hassling defense will help it to its third straight win in the series, by a comfortable 18 points.



Allsport
Miami's QB-hassling defense should help it to its third straight win over Florida State, by a comfortable 18 points.

Does Boston College have a chance against Big East rival Virginia Tech on Thursday night? If the Eagles stay within two TD's of the Hokies at home, that'll be an accomplishment. For what it's worth, Virginia Tech loves the ground game, and B.C. has one of the top-ranked run defenses in the nation. The problem is, the Hokies' run defense is even better. Last year Tech took its sixth in a row from the Eagles, 34-20, holding B.C. to just 58 yards on the ground.

One big game in the Southeastern Conference won't be too close -- Florida by 15 over L.S.U. -- and one is almost too close to call -- Tennessee by a point over Georgia. In Florida's 44-15 win over L.S.U. in '01, its 13th win in the last 14 games in this rivalry, Gators QB Rex Grossman threw for a school-record 464 yards and five TD's. On the same Saturday last October, then-unranked Georgia shocked No. 6 Tennessee 26-24, the Bulldogs' first win at Neyland Stadium in Knoxville, Tenn., in six tries.

In the Big Ten, we make Penn State a five-point favorite over host Michigan, which will end a five-game Wolverines winning streak in the series and salve a particularly nasty memory of the Nittany Lions' dismal '01 season: a 20-0 shutout at home at the hands of Michigan. It was the first home shutout for Penn State in 212 games -- since '65, the year before Joe Paterno took over.

NFL FORECAST: Sunday-Monday, October 13-14

The Broncos' Brian Griese

The Chargers' Drew Brees
Allsport photos

(Sunday)
Carolina 20
*Dallas 13
With a defense that should easily corral the Cowboys, the Panthers really won't need much offense. Carolina won the first two in this series and Dallas won the last two, most recently 16-13 in 2000.

*Denver 21
Miami 20
The game of the week? Believe it or not, both teams rank closer to the bottom of the NFL than the top in passing and pass defense. Miami won its fifth out of the last six against Denver last year, 21-10.

*Houston 17
Buffalo 16
We'll go with an upset here, because the Texans defend well against the pass -- the Bills' offensive strength -- and show signs of competence when they run the ball -- the Bills' defensive weakness.

*Indianapolis 19
Baltimore 14
Their records aside, this is almost an upset, too, because the Colts' pass-happy offense isn't sharp and the Ravens remain a defensive stalwart. In '01 Baltimore went wild against Indy, winning 39-27.

Jacksonville 23
*Tennessee 15
The Titans are searching for anything that works besides their run defense, so the Jaguars should be able to throw all day. Last year Jacksonville won at home, 13-6, and Tennessee did likewise, 28-24.

*Minnesota 29
Detroit 22
After a bye week, the Lions' stunning upset of the Saints two weeks ago may seem like just a dream. Detroit ended a four-game losing streak against Minnesota in their second matchup last season, 27-24.

*New England 26
Green Bay 24
The real game of the week? A tough pick, because the Patriots are at their best only when throwing or being thrown on, and a smart team like the Packers adjusts accordingly. They last met five years ago.

New Orleans 20
*Washington 17
From the Won't Look Like Last Time file: In '01 the Redskins trounced the Saints 40-10, their eighth win in the last nine games of the series. Washington can throw against the N.O. defense, though.

Open date:
Arizona, Chicago, N.Y. Jets, Philadelphia

*N.Y. Giants 12
Atlanta 9
This could come down to a field goal, after the Giants' defense stifles the run-only Falcons offense and the Atlanta D stifles the pass-heavy N.Y. offense. The Giants won last, two years ago, 13-6.

Oakland 28
*St. Louis 14
We keep waiting for St. Louis to figure in a game of the week but it keeps not happening, and in this one the weakness-free Raiders -- who last met, and defeated, the Rams in '97 -- may overpower them.

Pittsburgh 21
*Cincinnati 7
If the Bengals only had an air game they might upset Pittsburgh, which just can't stop the pass. Cincy managed a split with the Steelers last year, winning at home in OT after losing in Pittsburgh.

*San Diego 29
Kansas City 16
They're two of the league's top running teams, but the Chargers have all the defense the Chiefs don't. In '01, one-yard TD runs by the Chiefs' Tony Richardson won both K.C.-S.D. games, 25-20 and 20-17.

*Tampa Bay 17
Cleveland 14
For the umpteenth time it'll come down to defense in T.B., though the Buccaneers are vulnerable through the air, which so far has been the Browns' offensive strong suit. Cleveland is 5-0 in the series.

(Monday)
San Francisco 26
*Seattle 17
The 49ers should have no problems opening big holes for its backs in the Seahawks' weak defensive line all night long, and beat them for the fifth time in seven games. Seattle won last, though, in '97.

Mocksville Varsity Edges Shady Grove In OT

Cooleemee Varsity Continues Tear

The varsity William R. Davie Raiders suffered another loss, 20-0, at the hands of the Pinebrook Trojans Saturday at the Davie Youth League Football Complex in Smith Grove.

"We had three or four big plays – fumbles and intereceptions – that really hurt us," said Raiders head coach Jason Murphy.

In the first half, Lewis Favre led the WRD tacklers with four. Matthew Speers recovered a fumble. Offensively in the first half, Speer rushed for 20 yards.

The Trojans scored twice in the first half. In the second half for WRD, Favre and John Weatherman each made two tackles. The Trojan defense forced negative rushing yards.

"With only 14 kids, the heat played a big factor," Murphy said. "They were really tired by the end of the game. But we were really proud of how hard they played."

The Raiders face the Bulldogs of Shady Grove Oct. 12 at 2:30 at the Davie Youth League Football Complex.

JV – Mocksville 20, SG 8

Peter Fields scored the Bulldogs' only TD, then added the two-point conversion.

"We played well but we were beaten by a good team," said Shady Grove coach Kenny Wood. "We're improving as a team and we'll have something for them in the playoffs."

The Bulldogs' Chase Angell excelled with his running game; Fields did an excellent job rushing from his QB position, and had an interception; Cole Jackson had a fumble recovery and a tackle that prevented a TD for the Rams; Andrew Ledford had a good running game and prevented a two-point conversion; Stroud led the Bulldogs defensively with several key tackles; and Shane Winters had a great running game.

Defensively, the Bulldogs were led by Harley Stroud with four tackles, followed by Fields, Jackson and Ledford. Other players with tackles and assists were Chase Angell, Ricky Bell, Andrew Buchanan, Austin Crater, Zach Waller and Shane Winters.

The next game for the JV Bulldogs is Oct. 12 at 1 p.m.

Varsity – Mock 14, SG 12 (OT)

Offensively Shady Grove, which lost in overtime to Mocksville, was led by Josh Freeman, Zach Long, Bret Peterson, Chase Sampson and Cody Sulier. Freeman scored a TD on a kickoff return and Peterson scored the other TD for the Bulldogs.

Defensively for Shady Grove, Christian O'Connor led with five tackles, followed by John Flowers, Tanner Holden, Sampson and Sulier. Other tackles and assists were recorded from Freeman, Long, Peterson and Greg Rogers. Getting fumble recoveries were Rogers and Sulier, and Holden intercepted a pass.

"We played a hard game," Shady Grove coach Maxie Melton said. "The team is improving with every game."

Varsity – Cool 40, Corn 8

Cooleemee's great coaching staff proved a point again – the Redskins (4-0) are still undefeated after beating Cornatzer.

In the first quarter, James Mayfield scored a touchdown and Santana Arnold added the two-point conversion. Darrell Boger, Trey Lowe, Billy Fleming, Tyreese Blackwell, Zac Shoemaker, Marcus Gadson Blake Byrne and Ayanna Brooks had solid tackles for the Redskins.

In the second quarter, Perry James scored and quarterback Ryan Carter added the extra points.

James scored again and Mayfield added the two points. The margin grew in the third quarter as Mayfield scored six and James two points. And in the fourth, Mayfield scored and Lowe tacked on the two points.

Also for Cooleemee, Carter and James had interceptions, Zac Spaugh and Byrne recovered fumbles and Craig Cleary made good blocks.

The Pinebrook Trojans will try to break Cooleemee's perfect record this Saturday.

JV – Corn. 20, Cooleemee 16

Raheen Martin scored two touchdowns and Anthony Brooks added both two-point conversions for Cooleemee.

Cooleemee's Nathan Jones recovered a fumble. Channen Thomas and Mikael Pulliam made good blocks. Brooks, Michael Fleming and Martin gained lots of rushing yardage. Chris Barnhardt made tremendous blocks and tackles, and Toby Lowe made several tackles. Other tacklers were Barnhardt and Brooks.

Austin Neely added yards and Pulliam, Lowe and Neely made good blocks.

Varsity - Pine 20, WRD 0

Jake Boger scored two touchdowns and Joseph Teague added another as Pinebrook shut down William R. Davie.

Pinebrook's tackling leaders were Daniel Henderson and Chance Davis. Daven Gray and Chris Sponangle blocked well. Sponangle returned an interception 40 yards and Boger returned one 30 yards - and both picks set up touchdowns. Vince Cioce had five tackles, recovered a fumble and played solid offense.

Merrifield Directs Offense

change plays at the line of scrimmage. Unlike many quarterbacks, he's not a prima donna. Take the end of a practice several weeks ago.

"He thought practice was over, took off his shoulder pads and missed some 50-yard sprints," Boger recalled. "He came over and asked how many sprints we had run. I said about four. We ran eight 50-yard sprints and when the rest of them got done, he ran his other four. How many quarterbacks would do that? How many kids would? Most of them wouldn't.

"Guys like that, they don't fall off trees."

ONCE AGAIN, it was over quickly as North did what it wanted when it wanted in the 36-point belting of Southeast, which trailed 32-8 at halftime.

The centerpieces of North's intimidating team chewed up unbelievable chunks of yards as Gough rushed nine times for 183 yards and Stewart added 89 yards on five carries.

Gough scored on runs of 55, 49, 48 and 15 yards, and Stewart would have racked up 149 yards if a holding penalty wouldn't have erased a 60-yarder. Josh Miller, who moved from center to fullback on Sept. 18 and has filled in beautifully for injured Mark Huggins, scored from 25 yards out as North rolled up 310 yards on 17 rushes, a staggering 18.2 clip.

Stewart turned two catches into 75 yards and Ben Hinson completed his only pass attempt for 10 yards. "We played real well," Kirk said. "Southeast bunched up the middle trying to stop the off-tackle stuff. We were getting four or five yards a clip between the tackles, but we started sweeping and that's how Daniel (gained 183 yards). He bounced outside and was gone."

Notes: Hinson and Stewart led the tacklers with six stops each. Michael Murphy, Zac Gentry and Patrick O'Connor had five apiece; Hinson and Michael Weakley had interceptions; and Merrifield made four tackles and caused and recovered a fumble by deflecting a pitch in the backfield. ... Huggins, who broke a thumb in the season opener, had his cast removed last week. ... North (5-0) plays at North Rowan on Oct. 9 and at home to China Grove on Oct. 16. ... North's unbeaten seventh-grade squad received a forfeit from Southeast, which folded several weeks ago. North's seventh plays at home to China Grove Oct. 15 and at S. Davie Oct. 22.

CONGRATULATIONS

To last week's winners in our Football Contest

First Place = $25 to Jesse Coleman

Second Place = TIE $2.50 ea. to Jason Murphy & Justin Goode

Jesse Coleman missed just 5 games to claim first place this week. Jason Murphy and Justin Goode were among several who tied with 7 misses. They picked the same total in our tie-breaker and split the second place money.

Coach Kimberly Buckland talks to her Davie tennis team before its regular-season finale against N. Davidson.

Tennis Team Beats All - But Reynolds

In the Central Piedmont Conference tennis standings, there should be double spaces between first and second and second and third.

Davie whipped South Iredell, West Forsyth, South Rowan and North Davidson two times each, and Davie got whipped twice by Reynolds. The trend lasted from start to finish, including last week in the final regular-season matches as Davie lost 8-1 to Reynolds before defeating North Davidson 6-3.

The War Eagles lost 7-2 in the first meeting with Reynolds (12-1, 8-0 CPC), but defeated the other four CPC rivals by scores of 9-0, 8-1, 9-0, 9-0, 7-2, 6-0 and 6-3.

"Reynolds is tough," Coach Kimberly Buckland said. "They had a girl missing the first time we played them, so their lineup was different."

Two unbeaten records fell against Reynolds as Alyson Walker and Holly Vines slipped to 11-1 on the season at Nos. 3-6 singles, respectively. Davie's No. 2 doubles team of Megan Jordan and Carly Balsley prevented the shutout by surviving 9-8 (7-4) in a tiebreaker.

Davie put an exclamation mark on runner-up in the CPC by sweeping the doubles matches from North Davidson, which surprised the War Eagles by forging a 3-3 tie in singles.

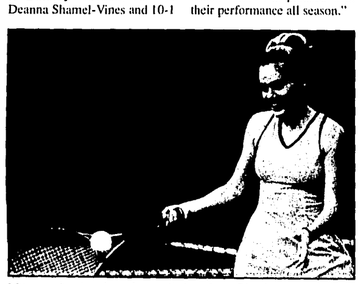
Davie's singles winners were Walker and Balsley by 10-1 scores and Holly Vines by 10-5. The Black Knights crashed into the wall in doubles, losing 9-7 to Balsley- Jordan, 10-1 to Deanna Shamel-Vines and 10-1 to and Walker-Allison Bowles.

"North had improved from the first time," Buckland said. "I don't know if we were looking ahead to the (CPC) tournament or if they had just improved that much. But we had to go into doubles to win."

The CPC Tournament was Oct. 8-9 on Reynolds' home courts at Hanes Park. Davie (11-2, 7-2 CPC) will compete in the state dual playoffs next week.

"I've enjoyed it," the new coach said. "I'm pleased with their performance all season."

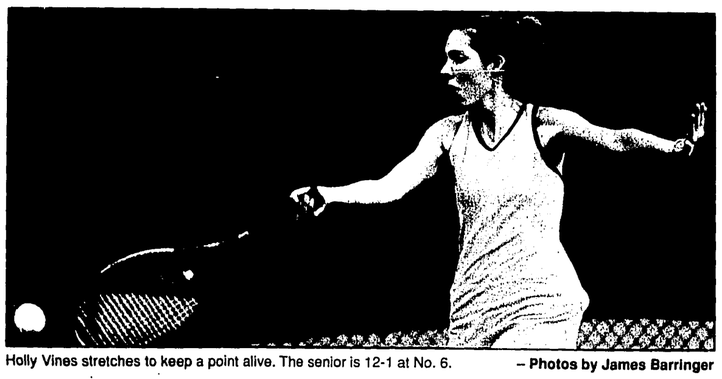
Carly Balsley hits a forehand. The junior is 9-3 at No. 4.



Megan Jordan has fun with her foe. She is 9-3 at No. 2.

Senior Deanna Shamel has battled opponents' top players all year, and stands a respectable 8-5.

Allison Bowles concentrates on the ball. The senior is 9-4 at No. 5.



Holly Vines stretches to keep a point alive. The senior is 12-1 at No. 6. – Photos by James Barringer

After Rocky Nonconference Mark, Davie Eyes CPC

West. OLB Timmy Redmond, DT Sam Stovall and OLB Kevin Boger.

Pane went down mere seconds into the opener, and the defense was patched together with duct tape over the next five weeks. Yet, Davie held five of six teams to 17 or fewer points, the exception a 37-6 loss to vicious Mooresville. The coaches couldn't have been much happier with that.

Although Goode was lost for the year with a broken ankle, he could be the only missing piece come Friday. The return of Redmond and Riddle, and a 100-percent Stovall, would be a welcome sight indeed. Riddle is so ferocious he missed the last three games and is still tied with D.J. Rice at 41 team-high tackles. Redmond hasn't played a full game since week two and he's still first with two sacks.

"We're going to be as healthy as we've been since the opener by the time Friday comes," Illing said. "I think the bye helped us as banged up as we were."

"Davie's record does not signify the talent they have," Millsaps said. "They've played a pretty tough schedule and they've had injuries. We're expecting a pretty dang good game."

If anything good has come from the injury plague, it's that guys like Dewayne Collins, Re-Shawn Parks, Thomas Schambach, Chris Hauser, Curtis Matthews, Justin Norsworthy, Terrell Wilson, Mitchell Roberts, Derek Cornatzer and Malachi Gentry received extensive action on defense and proved themselves capable of added responsibilities.

"We put them right into the fire," Illing said. "They've made some plays and some mistakes, but they've gotten good experience at crucial times. They've been in pressure situations and that's going to be tremendous for us."

Davie's offense, on the other hand, is still a concern.

It has produced 12 offensive touchdowns, but six of them came against Lake Norman in a 61-0 bloodletting. Sophomore Justin Brown is on pace for 944 yards, but the unit is only averaging 3.8 yards a run. Davie's passing game has experienced growing pains, too, leaving reliable targets Larry Hudson (11 catches, 242 yards), Brian Hunter (9-146) and Cody Stephens (4-68) with few opportunities to make things happen.

Despite the War Eagles' struggles, they still feel pretty good about their chances of vying for a third championship in four years. They handed away a victory at Alexander Central. They could have beaten West Rowan. Freedom led just 10-8 before putting Davie away 17-8. So Davie firmly believes it could be 4-2 instead of 2-4, and the CPC appears to lack a powerhouse.

"Everything we've been working toward has come," Illing said. "That's not to say those first six games weren't important because they're extremely valuable to our progression. But we've developed a lot of young kids and we should see a lot better (offensive) execution. We've become a very close unit, developed a family atmosphere, and that's something we don't feel like we had at the beginning."

Although the Vikings are enjoying a serious winning streak, Millsaps said they will probably have to play their best game to enjoy a fifth straight win. He's not sure his lines are a good match for Davie's.

Riddle

Redmond

Rice

C. Goode

"I just hope we can match up with them strength-wise because Davie is always strong up front," he said. "I just don't know if our people are going to be able to do the job. I know Stovall's been hobbled, but he'll have a two-week break going into this game and we had a tough time - as everybody has – blocking him last year. We're going to do what we can to prevent him from making big plays in our backfield like he did last year. And we've got to do some things on defense to offset their (OL) strength.

"You look at who beat who, but you can throw that out the window come Friday because I know Davie's going to step it up a notch. If we don't step it up a notch, Davie's going to come down here and whip our butt."

Notes: Millsaps marveled at Davie's defensive pups (freshmen safeties Raeshon McNeil and Parks and sophomore linebackers Rice and Chris Goode). "The two freshmen don't play like freshmen. They really impressed me with their maturity," he said. "They played Freedom and Statesville, two pretty good offensive teams, and their linebackers got to the ball. They don't play like sophomores." ... South staged a memorable defensive stand to prevail 6-0 over Alexander Central, which had first-and-goal at the 1 in the dying seconds. "That shows a lot of grit," Illing said. ... South's thin depth hasn't been a problem. "They only dress about 28-30 and play guys both ways," Illing said. "But they've pulled together and played real well." ... South's players to watch are Landon Carter (TE/DL, 6-5, 245, 4.85, attended Nike Combine in Chapel Hill), RB Ronnie Williams (6-1, 225, 1,000 yards last year), Chris Carpenter (OL/DL, 6-4, 240) and fourth-year starter Scott Gustin at LB. ... Last year Davie held Williams to 69 yards on 14 carries, outgained South 325-109 and increased its series lead to 7-4-1.

JV War Eagles Slip To 3-2

Lee Linville didn't recognize Davie's JV football team in a 14-12 loss at Morganton Freedom on Sept. 30.

"It's the worst we've played all year," the coach said after Davie's final nonconference game. "We weren't ready to play mentally. We've beaten two teams that were better than them. I don't think they'll beat West Rowan (which lost to Davie 14-8), and they lost to Statesville (which lost to Davie 21-8) in overtime."

The War Eagles' hopes for a 4-1 record heading into the Central Piedmont Conference were shattered by their own mistakes. They scored first in the third quarter for a 6-0 lead, but got burned on a fake punt and subsequently allowed 14 unanswered points.

"The offense didn't move the ball real well, especially in the first half," Linville said. "They defense played well at times and didn't play well at times. But the biggest thing was we made three mistakes on special teams that killed us."

First, after Jaspen Gray capped a 90-yard drive with a short touchdown run, Davie had a bad snap and kicker Brad Corriher hooked the extra point.

The next two mistakes really hurt. The War Eagles forced Freedom into a 4th-and-11 situation with the score 6-0, but a fake-punt run moved the chains and set up a game-tying touchdown for the Patriots, who shanked the ensuing kickoff, recovered the ball and drove down for another touchdown.

"So they scored 14 points without us touching the ball. That's frustrating," Linville said. "(On the fake punt), one guy out of nine did what he was supposed to do and checked to make sure it wasn't a fake."

Despite Davie's self-inflicted wounds, Corriher rallied the War Eagles and nearly forced overtime. On fourth-and-7 from the Freedom 17 with time running out, the freshman quarterback found John Benfield on a slant. Benfield raced into the end zone with two minutes left, but a two-point conversion pass failed and Freedom ran out the clock.

Notes: The defensive leaders were Logan Buchanan with eight tackles and ever-steady Paul Ferrell and Zac O'Brien with six each. Buchanan had six solo stops and Ferrell had four. Ferrell also caused a fumble. Brock Flowers had five tackles, including one sack. ... In a bizarre play, offensive lineman Ryan Boehm caught a 10-yard pass as the officials fell asleep and failed to whistle Davie for an ineligible receiver. "If I cut it to the right, I'm gone," Boehm deadpanned.

South's cheerleaders have had plenty to cheer about with the Tigers winning their third game in a row.

Lightning-Quick Offense

Streaking S. Davie Scores 38 On 13 Plays

South Davie and China Grove threatened to give fans whiplash as they followed the furious eighth-grade football action last week.

The defenses played hooky as the teams lit up the scoreboard with eight touchdowns. China Grove pounded out productive yardage and owned the clock, running 50 plays to South's 13.

But the Tigers' fastbreak offense made a joke out of the time-of-possession factor. Breakaway runners Kenneth Brown and C.J. White more than atoned for South's sub-par defense by combining for 348 yards and hauling the Tigers to a 38-24 victory.

"We had a few two- and three-play drives that went 60 or 70 yards," Coach Todd Bumgarner said.

Brown's startling elusiveness produced another remarkable game. He gained 229 yards on seven rushes, scored four TDs and jacked his season totals to 774 yards on 47 carries, which is virtually identical to North Davie eighth-grade star Daniel Gough (753 on 49).

"He makes people miss and once he gets the corner he's tough to handle," Bumgarner said. "He doesn't need a whole lot of room. He needs just a crease."

China Grove couldn't handle White, either. He added 119 yards on five runs, including an 80-yard lightning bolt. Josh Eder, who would be a featured back for many teams, ran for 14 yards on his lone carry.

Since staging his coming-out party three games ago, White has averaged 104 rushing yards.

"C.J. can take it all the way, too, on any play," Bumgarner said. "(On the 80-yard score), he ran through a few arm tackles, ran over one guy and popped it to the outside. He's big and fast.

The South defense allowed a season high in points, but the Tigers (4-2) grabbed their third straight win because they haven't been held below 26 points since a 22-20 loss to Erwin on Sept. 11.

"They would control the ball, we would score quick and our defense would have to go right back out there," Bumgarner said. "We played defense all day."

There weren't many defensive standouts, but David Stovall, Justin Thompson and Dustin Reil were the main reasons China Grove never caught up.

Anthony Brown and Kenny Rivers had interceptions for South.

"China Grove is a power team and they have some big running backs that are tough to bring down," Bumgarner said. "We've had the ball moved against us all year, but we seem to get the big stop when we need it. Stovall did a super job, Thompson was tough again, and Reil had his best game of the year. He was in on a lot of tackles."

South has a bye this week. It plays at Knox on Oct. 16 and at home to North Davie on Oct. 23.

Veteran assistant Howard Riddle talks to his defense.

North's Perfect Soccer Season Ends With 3-3 Tie

The North Davie soccer team's perfect season ended last week against Summit, but the 3-3 tie was more impressive than any moment during the Wildcats' 7-0 run.

"That's the best game I've seen us play because they brought their ninth graders (against our seventh and eighth graders)," Coach John Marshall said. "I didn't know they had a varsity and JV, and they jumped on us 2-0 in the first eight minutes."

The second match of the week was a laugher as North destroyed Forsyth County Academy 12-1.

Summit knocked North on its heels early and scored right before the halftime buzzer for a 3-1 lead. But after the Wildcats gained a second wind, they stormed back and preserved their unbeaten record.

Scoring star Tyler Baity rescued North with a hat trick. Twice he cut two-goal deficits to one, and he salvaged the tie on a direct kick with 10 minutes remaining. Michael Jolly assisted Baity's first goal.

"I made a couple defensive switches," Marshall said. "I brought Max Graham in in the back, moved a couple other players around and we finally settled down. We really stepped it up. After the first 15-20 minutes, (goalkeeper Jared) Nelms only had like three shots on him. We completely dominated them once we got over the fear of playing ninth graders. You could tell the difference between their ninth graders and our eighth and seventh graders. It was a major difference."

Three opponents have showed resistance against North, and amazingly the Wildcats have avoided defeat each time. They faced Forsyth Country Day and High Point Wesleyan two times each and eked out all four decisions by 1-0, 2-1, 3-1 and 2-1 scores. Summit put North's no-loss record under the gun, but once again the Wildcats found a way.

"It really shows we are a strong team because it was our first real competition besides Forsyth Country Day and High Point Wesleyan," Marshall said.

The second match of the week was bazookas vs. slingshots. Baity (four goals), Andrew Linhart (three), Micah Womble (two), Chris Wantuck (two) and Jolly (one) scored at will as North (8-0-1) raked FCA over the coals, 12-1.

"I played all seventh graders the whole second half," said assistant coach Don Tabat, who filled in for an absent Marshall. "We tried to keep the score down, and their coach said he appreciated that."

Notes: Baity upped his goal total to 15. Wantuck has nine and Jolly five. ... North's season ended with an Oct. 8 rematch against Summit.

North Volleyball Team Wins Easily

North Davie's volleyball team achieved eight wins for the eighth straight year under Trish King, but the coach would sacrifice her won-loss record for stiffer competition.

Last week the Wildcats (8-3) buried Summit 15-4, 15-4, the sixth straight match that was shorter than the visiting team's bus ride. During that streak, North claimed 12 straight games and outscored foes 170-67.

"I mixed up our lineup and let different girls play that hadn't been playing together," King, North's eighth-year coach, said. "I wish we were playing stronger teams at the end of the season because we've improved so much. You like your last few games to be stronger so you can show exactly what kind of skill the girls have now."

King is disturbed with the schedule for another reason. North was scheduled to play Forsyth County Academy on Oct. 2 and Oct. 10, but King learned last week that FCA doesn't even have a team. That meant the season finale was Oct. 9 against visiting Forsyth Country Day, which lost 25-11, 25-12 in the first meeting.

Against Summit, server Margo Masi accounted for nine points in game one. The hitting star was Britt Harrison.

"Masi had one of her best serving games," King said. "I was proud of her because she's been working real hard in practice on serving.

"Harrison had some really nice hits. She stepped up her game and her hitting at the net really improved."

South Pulls Game Out Of The Fire

It's difficult to imagine a middle-school team putting together a more improbable drive.

"For seventh graders, that's unbelievable," Bumgarner said. "Especially with that little amount of time and without hitting a big play. Seaford stood in there and took some hits, and the guys never panicked."

After China Grove stopped South's two-point conversion to force overtime, the Tigers, who got the ball first at the 10-yard line, turned to bruiser Tanner Lowe, who churned three times to the 1. Seaford sneaked in, then hit - who else? - Webb with a two-point pass for a 14-6 lead.

China Grove gained 5 yards on first down, but its fourth-down pass fell incomplete and the Tigers celebrated their third dramatic win in as many games. Although they're doing things the hard way, they're 5-1. After losing 22-20 to West Rowan, they beat Erwin 22-14 in overtime and beat North Rowan 22-20 before pulling out another victory in OT.

Notes: Lowe gained 74 yards on 14 rushes. ... Seaford's 5-of-6 heroics were nothing new. He's 23-of-31 on the season for 388 yards. The other hero, Webb, has 17 receptions for 254 yards, averaging 14.9 yards a catch. ... Bumgarner praised the blocking of left tackle Graham Harmon and the tackling of nose guard John Pfaff. "Pfaff had an outstanding game," he said. ... South has a bye this week. It plays at Knox on Oct. 15 and at home to North Davie on Oct. 22.

South Softball Team Loses Four Straight

The South Davie softball team's losing streak reached four last week as it lost to West Rowan and Corriher-Lipe.

The Tigers' matchups against the Mid-South Conference's top teams were brutal, losing 19-1 loss to Erwin and 16-0 to West Rowan. In the second game of last week, they fell short 5-4 to Corriher-Lipe.

"Erwin and West Rowan make one tournament team, the Raptors," South assistant coach Jane Whitlock said. "We saw a really good pitcher from West and their defense is really good. We just couldn't hit off her."

Corriher-Lipe jumped out to a 4-0 lead and still led 5-2 going into the last inning. In the top of the seventh, the Tigers got a two-run hit from seventh grader Taylor Randall to close to 5-4, but they left two runners standing and fell to 3-5.

"We made a run in the last inning, but we couldn't get enough offense to pull it out," Whitlock said. "We left quite a few on base."

Whitlock feels bad for South's pitcher. Lauren Parker has pitched every inning of eight games.

"Lauren's pitching pretty good," she said. "We just don't have any relief for her, so she has to bite the bullet."

South's regular-season finale is Oct. 10 against visiting North Davie. North crushed South in the first meeting 11-0.

Spotlight on Business

Betty & Howard Edwards

Edwards Siding & Windows

Johnny Walker could not believe it. After eight years of staining, sealing, sanding and painting, his home looked new with almost no maintenance at all.

That's because he called Betty and Harold Edwards, of Edwards Siding and Windows.

"The heat, the sun, the weather continually wore down my deck and front porch," said Walker of Winston-Salem. "You could wash; you could paint; but you couldn't keep it white," he said. Walker estimated that he was staining and painting at least twice a year, until he finally contacted Edwards Siding and Windows.

The experienced professionals at Edwards Siding covered Walker's rear deck with white vinyl, and replaced all of the wooden railing with durable vinyl railings. The anti-slip vinyl flooring which covered the wooden deck floor is also treated to prevent chipping; and can be hosed off for simple cleaning.

"They are very good to work with," said Johnny Walker of Betty and Harold Edwards' company. The Edwards worked with the Walkers to design a customized fit for their existing home, with just the right style and appearance that they desired. Walker and his wife were so elated with the clean, virtually maintenance-free decking that they decided to do their front porch and walkway as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Tran of Winston-Salem also called Edwards Siding and Windows, to replace the railing around their home, and the trim for their windows.

"I was very pleased," said Tom Tran of the work which Edwards Siding did for his home. So pleased that he called his father, in order to get the same work done on his father's home.

"They are good at what they do," he said.

Betty and Harold Edwards have owned and operated Edwards Siding and Windows since 1978. They are licensed and insured, beginning their business when aluminum siding was in vogue. With the advent of vinyl siding and windows, the Edwards have seen their volume of business explode.

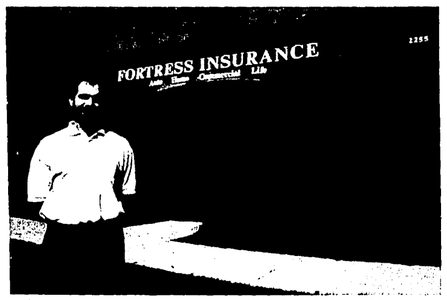
"We stay kind of busy," said Betty Edwards of the sunrooms, screened in porches, vinyl decking and vinyl replacement windows which their company installs. Edwards Siding does both residential and commercial work. They have done jobs for a number of construction companies, including John S. Clark and McNair Construction.

Edwards Siding has installed vinyl siding and windows for churches, restaurants, motels, apartment buildings; and has been contracted with the United States Housing and Urban Development. With both residential and commercial customers, Edwards Siding uses high grade materials, such as Norandex Reynolds, to give their customers the longest life and best look of their products. They also offer a labor warranty. Call (336) 764-0885 for more information.

Edwards Siding gives FREE ESTIMATES on customized decking, railings, sunroom or screened-in porch additions, vinyl siding, and all work to be performed. They will sit down with each client to create that beautiful new sunroom or renovate an existing deck. In all that they do, Edwards Siding strives to please their customers with personal service and the most professional job possible.

"Most of our work is done through referrals," said Betty Edwards. "We have built our reputation through others' recommendations."

Why wait to ease the burden of daily living? Call (336) 764-0885 or the Edwards' mobile number: 978-2299, for a no-obligation, free estimate on how to transform your home or business today.



Corbin Dirks

Fortress Insurance Group

Age doesn't matter. At least not to Corbin Dirks.

A knowledgable and experienced insurance professional, he has the willingness and capability to help anyone.

As the owner of Fortress Insurance Group, Dirks has the ability to help customers in areas as varied as auto, home, life and health. He also deals in commercial insurance.

But his versatility doesn't stop there. Dirks, a graduate of UNC-Greensboro and a Clemmons resident, also works with between 10 to 20 different insurance companies, always shopping for the best rates for his clients.

"I am a multi-outlet insurance company," he says in his office at the corner of Lewisville-Clemmons Road and Peace Haven Road. "And because I contract with so many different insurance companies, I can get my customers the best rates available. It's just better for everybody."

Some of the larger companies Fortress Insurance Group contracts with are Hartford, Travelers, Central Mututal and GMAC.

"I can give you a number of choices for rates whereas someone like State Farm can only offer one choice," says Dirks.

After graduating from UNC-G, Dirks began his insurance career working for Liberty Mutual. He accumulated six years of experience before deciding to open his own company earlier this year.

"Fortress Insurance Group is an aggressive new agency seeking new clients," he says. "Whatever your insurance needs are, we can help."

Office hours at Fortress Insurance Group are Monday-Friday 9-5 and Saturday 9-1. Dirks also makes house calls.

"I will go wherever is the most convenient place for my clients," he says. "I'm always working to give them the best prices and the best service."

Dirks adds that he enjoys the insurance business because of the people he serves.

"Everyday in this business is different. I really like meeting new people and building long-term relationships with my clients.

"And,of course, I always enjoy saving people money."

Fortress Insurance Group is located at 2255 Lewisville-Clemmons Road, Suite C. The phone number is 354-4000.

Roger Hunckler stands in front of the Knights of Columbus haunted house on Sain Road in Mocksville. The Knights have been busy in recent months getting the old house into a suitable living quarters for all the new ghouls, monsters and other scary creatures.

Just Moved In

Haunted House Promises More Scares Than Ever

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

Roger Hunckler lets out a smirky smile in front of the house on Sain Road.

Al Streit mans the saw, grinning like he knows something you don't.

The faded green house looms in the back, behind the old trees and unkempt yard. Accessed by a ramp, and inhabitated by who knows what kinds of ghouls and fools, the house beckons.

And for those who want a scare this Halloween season, the Knights of Columbus Haunted House on Sain Road in Mocksville is the place to go.

It's filled with rolling heads, screaming monsters, darkness, spooky music and noises. Be prepared to be scared.

"It's going to be a good haunted house this year," said Roger Hunckler, original Grand Knight of the Mocksville council and project chair. "We've got some really sharp guys."

Those guys have been busy for weeks, adding special effects that weren't at last year's house.

"It's going to be a lot more exciting and it's going to move a little faster," Hunckler said. Those brave enough will be escorted through the house six or seven at a time. Usually, that many make it out the back door.

He hopes to double the club's profits from last year's $6,000, all of which

Is that a come-on look, or a come on in if you dare look?

Kevin Smith staples some protectant to a wall in the haunted house. It's designed to keep the blood from causing stains.

Some of the scary ones from last year's haunted house pose for a "family" photograph.

Davie Schools

Pinebrook Elementary

Atticus Lum placed second in the county in the 4H essay contest "Proud to Be an American." Atticus is a fifth grader in Mrs. Howard's class.

The school received a grant from Duke Power to pay for materials and supplies to build new seating in the media center. Thank you to Tom & Susan Newman for their help in obtaining this grant.

In the media center K-3 students are participating in the North Carolina Children's Book Award picture book program. They are in the process of reading the 15 books that have been nominated. Copies of the nominated books will soon be available for check out. This is one of the few awards given by children. When they have completed reading the books, students will make their selection for the 2003 winner. The winner at Pinebrook for 2002 was A Bad Case of Stripes by David Shannon.

This was also the title selected as the North Carolina winner.

Mrs. Newman's fourth grade music classes began this week learning to play mountain dulcimer. This unit is taught in fourth grade in order to coincide with the studies of North Carolina in Social Studies. This unit will coincide with an arts council project taking place in October.

Ms. Hawkins art class is located in a new mobile unit behind Spanish. Third, fourth and fifth graders have completed a self ortrait, and are working on a sketchbook, including a charcoal drawing. Kindergarten, first and second have been working on projects, such as tempra painting, drawing and patterning.

Fifth grade students in Mrs. Ellis's class have been learning about the stock market. Students have "bought" and tracked stocks and are learning vocabulary associated with the stock market and finance. They have been using Thinking Maps and doing analogies.

Fourth grade students have done research on an author of their choice and did an oral presentation about the author. They have read books by the author and are preparing oral presentations and projects on one or more of the books. They have been using Thinking Maps and doing analogies.

In classroom guidance with Ms. Freimuth, kindergartners have been meeting DUSO and his friends and have been discussing feelings and differences. Third graders returned from an adventure "study skills safari". First graders are beginning to learn about making good choices, and second graders are reading about and discussing friendship and strong character.

The Character Kids program continues to highlight positive character. The current trait is respect, and students are discussing and importance of being considerate of all people and respecting differences. The Character Kids for the week of Sept. 30-Oct. 4 are Courtney Sims, Joseph Teague, Jonathan Hupp, Dillon Byerly, Malcolm Hawkins, Mary Beth Dehart, Nick Anders, Catie Montgomery, Neil Zarbock, Amber Minor, TJ Hupp, Hallie Humphries, Palmer Benson, Luke Naylor, Austin Jessup, Jonah Womble, Ben Griffey, Samone Gibson, Aaguil Peterson, Emberly Parker, Brittany Reece, Will Driscoll, Hampton Smith, Tyler Davis, Fazia Iqbal.

Support the Harris Teeter Together In Education program. Pinebrook School Code is 2202. Give the cashier your VIC card and the school's number (2202) before groceries are scanned. This is a one time process each school year.

Krispy Cream cards are on sale for $10 each.

North Davie Middle

The annual Scholastic book fair will be Oct. 11-17. Students can visit the fair during their language arts classes and before and after school. Parents can visit the book fair during parent student conferences Oct. 17 and 18. Flyers highlighting some of the titles will be sent home. Proceeds from the book fair will be used to purchase new media center materials

The Eighth Grade Stars team is focusing on the school theme "For the Health of It" in classes and in Prime Time. Students have discussed healthy living choices and relationships. They have been making bus safety pamphlets in Prime Time. As a service component of Prime Time they are collecting cooking oil and macaroni and cheese for the Storehouse for Jesus this month.

The team visited Stone Mountain State Park Oct. 10. Prior to the trip the students studied the history of the park as a part of their study of North Carolina. They collected samples of plants and leaves as a part of a science scavenger hunt activity. Students hiked to the top of the falls and had a picnic lunch afterwards.

Ronda Ely's language arts classes have completed a research project on American authors. They have been reading selections of a variety of genres from poetry to nonfiction. Students are encouraged to read a variety of outside literature for Accelerated Reader points.

Social Studies classes have been studying the colonial period and are approaching the Revolutionary War period. Students have been involved in interactive learning experiences through map activities, family trees, and class presentations.

Jamey Holt's math classes have studied units on using positive and negative numbers and setting up equations to solve. Students are solving equations and applying them to real-world situations. They are solving word problems that make them calculate information such as, distance traveled, miles per gallon, and baseball batting averages.

Students have been learning a lot in STARS science about the quality of local waterways as they are testing the chemical and living factors in and around Dutchman's Creek. While the chemical water quality is around the same level as past years, the number of different aquatic organisms has declined. They think it is due to the drought. Students will continue to monitor water quality all school year.

Fourth grade students of Jen Meagher, Tracy Dyson and Judy White enjoyed a treat Sept. 25 when they toured Davie County as part of their study of North Carolina. Mike Hendrix was tour guide. Students visited the Cana community and toured the Pheobe Eaton house on their way to Farmington. In Mocksville, they walked through Joppa Cemetery and studied old tombstones, especially Squire and Sarah Boone's gravesite. Then a tour of older homes in Mocksville was a highlight of the day. The Jesse Clement house was their last viewing before a luncheon break at Rich Park. After lunch, they stopped to see the old jail and old log home. They visited the mill town of Cooleemee and heard some of the history of that area. The highlight of the afternoon was their visit to the Cooleemee Plantation. The last site to visit of the day was the Fulton Church and then back to the William R. Davie community and the school.

Students in Second Steps are reading and writing stories. On Tuesday and Thursday the morning groups meet with their tutors for an hour of buddy reading, word study, spelling and being read to. The tutors for the 2002-2003 school year: Pan Beck, Bonnie Kinder, Pattie Whitaker, April Cave, Forrest Bonaparte, Clarence Elmore, Betty Monsees, Alice Sherrill, Gail Kelly, Aurelia Lagle, Crissy McEwen and Vic Patti. What's Happening At Davie High

Interact Club Off To Fresh Start

A new advisor and president gets the interact club at Davie off to a fresh start.

Jonathan Frye, a teacher, decided to become the club advisor. "It seemed like something positive and I believe that community service is a great aspect at school."

Elise Dickmann

Interact does make an impression throughout the community with it's service involvement. "It's a community service club. It will always benefit a community because it shows students care and it shows them there's a larger world out there. It helps students become someone better."

Marina Vendrillo, a senior at Davie, is the new president of Interact club this year. She stays busy. Her responsibilities include helping out with the jobs the advisor does, run meetings, make sure the club meets it's requirements, and try to make everything fun. "It's my senior year and I want to leave knowing I got the entire club to accomplish what we set out to do," Vendrillo said.

As president, Vendrillo has set goals for the club. "Right now we are trying to decide as a club what we want to do. So far we're thinking about doing something with the Humane Society, help out with Rotary, and maybe wrap Christmas presents."

Nicole Miller, a second year member, is active in Interact. She joined the club to stay active at school and in the community. "I also joined because I knew that it would be beneficial in planning and preparing for college," she said.

Interact has already accomplished a project this year. They made a homecoming banner and have noticed students are serious and committed. "Everyone is excited, it's a functional club," Fyre said.

Interact is a club with a definite purpose. "It helps teach all the members responsibility. We're trying to show students that volunteer work and community service can be fun and beneficial at the same time. Mainly we want people to see how great helping others can make you feel," Vendrillo said.

Haunted Houses Promises Thrills & Scares stays in the community to help the needy. Providing opportunities for the mentally handicapped is a focus of the Knights.

Last year, the group helped pay for a woman to go to another town for eye surgery. Blind, she can now see again. She saw her son, a Knights member, for the first time in more than 20 years, Hunckler said.

"I think the efforts we've done will make a huge difference. Our little council has made quite an impact, with the guys hard work and the community standing behind us."

Operation Lamb is the council's other major fund raising effort.

Last year, they took home just about every award from the Knights state organization as possible, including project of the year for the haunted house.

Hunckler won't give too many details about the haunted house in 2002, but said in a year's time, the house has been invaded by even more scarier, more demented, and more hair-raising creatures than visited last year.

The house is on Sain Road, off U.S. 158 east about two miles from Mocksville. It will be open from 7:30-11 nightly Friday and Saturday, Oct. 11-12, 18-19, 25-26 and Monday-Thursday Oct. 28-31. Admission is $7 for adults, $4 for children under 12 (If enough young people attend early in the evening, the Knights will try to get the ghouls to tone down their behavior.).

The council will donate $1 to the Davie County Schools PTA of the patrons choice. Coupons have been made available at schools, and one accompanies this article.

Hunckler said the donating to the PTAs idea came from a Knights member, who heard of a teacher having to pay for supplies for their students.

The Catholic Daughters will sell glow necklaces, and refreshments will also be sold.

"It's the largest fund raiser we have for the Knights," Hunckler said. "It worked out really well last year and everybody had a good time doing it."

You can tell from the grins of those working on the house that having a good time means putting a good scare into you.

opportunities for student involvement in character education .

Judy White's fourth grade class has almost finished a potato unit. Students, working in cooperate groups, chose a recipe from each group to cook and share with the class. They were so good it was difficult to choose their favorite potato recipe. Special thanks to Angela Wallace and Leigh Ann Campbell for helping with the cooking. Special thanks to the lunchroom staff who helped with their special touch when needed. Students enjoyed the activity even when they were forced to wear aprons. Class photographer, Clifton Bodenhamer, took lots of pictures. Once the cookbook is illustrated, it will be ready to go to press. It will include a potato recipe from each child. They will be given to parents. Students will finish Stone Fox soon. Thanks to Erin Anderson and Angela Wallace for helping with multiplication facts. Students are working hard to master those facts and win the Multiplication Race, which is over on Oct. 15.

Cub reporters, from Judy White's class have more reports. Taylor Anderson interviewed Pan Renegar's second grade class. She asked them if they like school. Most of the children said Yes. In math the students are learning to tell time to the hour. They are learning about temperature during Math Meeting. They have read books by Dave Pilkey, especially Kat Kong, Dog Breath, and Dogzilla. They are also enjoying "Amelia Bedelia" stories. Mrs. Renegar uses a weekly reward program called "On-Track". When students use good manners and good work habits, they get to have a "special" reward each Friday.

One day Ashton Whittaker went to Mrs. Danielle Shepherd's second grade class to see what they were doing. She asked Mrs. Shepherd what kind of rules that her class has? One of the rules was be respectful. They were reading stories by Dave Pilkey. They play outside on Fridays, and enjoy science experiments.

Kelsey Tifft chose to interview Mrs. Bagshaw's room because she was her second grade teacher and her sister Kendal is in her class. She asked her class several questions. The first question that she asked them was if they liked school. Most of them said yes. She asked them if they went outside very often. They said no just after break on Friday. Then their third question was if they like their classmates? They all said,"'Yes." She asked them if they like their teacher and they shouted, "Yes." Their fourth question was what books are you reading? Dogzilla and Whales was a title they gave her . The last question was if they had a lot of homework? Half said yes, and half said no. Kelsey believes Mrs. Bagshaw has a great second grade class.

Cooleemee Elementary

Students in Mrs. Wilcox's fifth grade class are finishing a study of geography. They completed a geography terms booklet and will take a test on the terms they need to learn. The next Social Studies unit will cover the study of government. This will fit right in with the upcoming general election in November. The fifth graders have learned how to take nonfiction Accelerated Reading tests in a different way. Scanning skills have been taught and the test scores have improved.

The kindergarten classes went to Tanglewood. Students learned about senses and used them to explore nature. They listened to birds, felt a skunk's fur, and saw hidden animals. They learned that a Monarch tastes with its feet and talked about smells in nature. They had a nature walk and a picnic, and spent time on the playground .

Third grade students are preparing for the annual Cooleemee trip by learning about the community's heritage. Mrs. Jones's students are making conservation posters, writing descriptive sentences by learning about adjectives, and reading Much Ado About Aldo. Mrs. Schweibert's students have been focusing on weather safety through various activities, including using the internet. Mrs. Henderson's students have been communicating throughout the school through writing letters and using the local school postal system - "Wee Deliver". Mrs. Maurer's students having been hearing things up in science by learning about energy.

The second grade classes are busy improving reading skills in cluster groups, and writing sentences with correct punctuation, subject and predicate. Mrs. McDougall's class is learning about types of communities and the things and people in the community. All the teachers are setting up parent teacher conferences and preparing report cards.

First graders in Mrs. West and Mrs. Stein's class are looking forward to a field trip to Patterson Farms. There they will feed the farm animals, see a slide show about the farm, go on a hayride and pick a pumpkin. To prepare for the trip, they have been writing about scarecrows and reading about pumpkins. The trip will be on Friday, Oct. 4. In math, students have begun their study of math facts. Report cards will be ready during the week of Oct. 14. Parents are urged to make an appointment to conference with teachers as soon as possible.

Central Davie

Developmental Day I Student of the Week, Sept. 23-27: Wray Ward. Student of the Month: Amber Myers.

Leaves have been changing colors and falling in the room. Students painted leaves, crushed leaves, Q-tip painted leaves and had leaf shaped snacks. The color of the week was green. Students made a green collage and had green snacks. The class is looking forward to having the fire truck come by for a visit and learn about fire safety and fire truck crafts.

Developmental Day II Student of the Week: Will Parker.

This week has been the 4-year-olds best week in Ms. Brandi's class. Students learned about community helpers. They talked about police officers and made a police hat and badge. The most favorite thing was to become architects and construction workers. They drew a house and then we built it, with the help of two special people, Bob the Builder and Wendy. Scoop the Bulldozer helped, too. Students were interior designers and made wallpaper prints and then painted the house on the outside. They learned about mail carriers and doctors and nurses.

The children in Ms. Tucker, Ms. Beck and Mrs. Shoffer's pre-kindergarten class have had a delightful week with the letter "D." They did activities about dogs. They made a Shepherd dog and wrote stories about their own dog or their pretend dog. They made a dachshund and spelled the word dog with dots. As an introduction to fire safety next week, they listed to a story about Sparky the fire dog and made a Dalmatian fire dog. Congratulations to Kayla Stribling for being Student of the Week. Happy birthday to Cory Heiner.

Developmental Day I Student of the Week, Sept. 30-Oct. 4: Cheyanne Jennett.

As part of the lesson on fire safety, the Mocksville Fire Department visited the class. The students met three firemen. They distributed trading cards of fire trucks and pencils, bookmarks, hats and stickers. The class was able to look inside the fire truck, and the firemen turned on the lights and siren. The children made dalmatian fire dogs with cups and painted fire trucks, colored firemen and painted dalmatians using Q-tips. They read books about fire trucks and made a fire truck snack. The class will take a trip to the Dixie Classic Fair. They will begin talking about bears and have a bear picnic.

Ms. Brandi's Developmental Day II class has been discussing fire safety. They talked about firefighters. They are friends and help. They are not here to scare us. Students took a look at what firefighters wear and the tools they use. They even dressed up like firefighters. They took the opportunity to talk about hot things and the fact that hot things burn. They loved the song "Hot Things Burn." They talked about not playing with matches, Big Bird taught them if they find a match or a lighter, do not touch it, tell an adult.

Firemen came, dressed up, and showed important fire safety rules. They showed students their truck. They talked about how to stop, drop and roll. They learned that if they smell smoke they need to get down low and crawl. Do not be afraid of the smoke detector.

The class dotted two Dalmatians, made their own marble painted fire, made a sparkly badge and made a fire hat. The class also drew flames with chalk and then pretended to be firefighters and put out the flames with water.

Sue Tucker, Joyce Beck and Amanda Shoffner taught the students about the letters "E" and "F." Makayla Hester and her mom brought in her dad's fire jacket and helmet. Each day some got to try it on. On Wednesday, firemen from the Mocksville Fire Department brought a fire truck to school. They made Smokey the Bear puppet, learned to call "911," colored firemen and big red fire trucks. They dyed boiled eggs and sprinkled the crushed shells on an "E." They are going to the Dixie Classic Fair. Makayla Hester is Student of the Week.

Mocksville Elementary

Student of the Week, Sept. 30-Oct. 4: Alex Paprotky, Devinn Lawson, Kayla Raisbeck, Shawna Spears, Ronnie McKinney, Isabel McLaughlin, Chris Short, Nicholas Dowell, Alex Frye, Alex Lawrence, Kelsey Wooten, Hope Sutterlin, Haley Ginther, Hayley Lambert, Chelsie Endicott, Chris Rhodes, Jordan O'Neill, Betsy Forrest, Lyndsey Blalock, LaQuena Thompson, Andrew Damanski, Jesse Hagan, Erin Desnoyers, Kasey Wilburn, Cassie Spicer, Heather Foster.

Mocksville Elementary is a School of Excellence and one of the top 25 schools in North Carolina making the greatest academic gains in the 2001-2002 school year.

Miss Garner's kindergarten students recently learned about the four seasons and focused on fall and its characteristics. Students read books about fall and gathered and made colorful leaves and handprints. Students wrapped up a unit on farm animals. The kindergarten class went to Baa Moo Farm Oct. 2. Farm life was encountered first hand as students petted and fed the animals, went on a hayride and picked pumpkins to bring home. In math, the class has been acting out story problems, recreating designs with pattern blocks, and creating AB patterns.

Mrs. Beaver and Mrs. Melton's class on Oct. 1 watched a buckeye butterfly emerge from the chrysalis in the classroom. The children were able to observe and discuss the characteristics of a butterfly before releasing it outside. The class also went to Vulcan Quarry Oct. 2, an extension of a study of rocks. The children are memorizing the "doubles" math facts and "plus one" facts.

Second grade students in Julie Fletcher and Debbie Brown's class are studying about apples and pumpkins. The students are studying about John Chapman, better known as Johnny Appleseed. They read the novels "Picking Apples and Pumpkins" and "Daniel's Duck." The students are practicing graphing of apples into wholes, halves, fourths, sixths and eighths. They researched different geographic areas in the United States that produce apples. Students made apple and pumpkin glyphs, and wrote and typed their own apple poems. The students designed a tri-roma to tell about setting and characters in the novel "Daniel's Duck." The class will end the study of apples and pumpkins with a tasting party Oct. 10.

Mr. Brooks and Mrs. Joyner's third grade class has written friendly letters and studying heat. They wrote letters to local police and fire departments to commemorate Sept. 11 and to thank them for keeping the community safe. In science, they have been focused on heat. Students have been doing experiments and making hypotheses to explain what heat is and how it moves. In math, they have been working with fractions and rounding numbers to the nearest 10. They will go to Horizons Oct. 8.

Miss Swain's class has been working hard in all subject areas. The most recent accomplishment was writing biographies about each other. This writing unit came as a supplement to a unit on the Wright Brothers where they learned about these heroes from the stories of other people. They are working on autobiographies as they learn about the author Jerry Spinelli from his book titled "Knots in My Yo-yo String."

On Oct. 1, the fifth grade class visited the Anthropology Museum at Wake Forest University. Students learned about the Maya Indian culture and examined Mayan artifacts, watched a slide show, and completed a scavenger hunt while visiting the Mayan Museum. Students are reading about three Indian tribes using "The Defenders," a nonfiction book by Ann McGovern. Students have chosen Native American tribes to research and report on.

During guidance lessons, kindergartners enjoyed DUSO the Dolphin. Stories shared were "The Pirate in the Cowboy Hat" and "The Best Way to Learn." For first grade guidance lessons, the topic of the week was friendship. Students discussed making friends and keeping friends. Second graders watched the story of Kyle, a singing koala bear.

Afterwards, each student shared a talent they possessed. On Oct. 2, third graders took the Otis-Lennon School Ability Test. The OLSAT measures the IQ of students. The test replaced the Cognitive Abilities Test that Davie County has given in the past. Fourth graders continued with the story "Free the Horses." The focus for this week's lesson was how thoughts and feelings directly affect actions. Fifth graders finished reading the chapter on friendship in the book "Chicken Soup for the Preteen Soul." After sharing journals that they had written about friends, they began reading the chapter on family.

Cornatzer Elementary

There will be fun for all the family at the annual fall festival Friday from 5-8 p.m. and will feature games, prizes, activities, fun, hot dogs and lots of other food. Mega events include the large slide, Jurassic Park, Moon Walk, Noah's Ark and other fun games. Play bingo, join the cupcake walk or have your face painted. Admission is $1 and children age 2 and under are free.

Mrs. Bullins's first and second graders have been working hard. First grade students have been learning lots about farms. After discussing farm animals, students wrote about their favorite. And they had a special treat when a parent brought in baby chicks and a cow to visit with them. Second graders completed an ocean study. The students learned about the kinds of ocean plants and animals, and then used circle maps to plan whale reports.

Mrs. Bullins's class worked with other second graders to plant gardens beside the playground. The gardens served as a hands-on opportunity for students to study plants as well as beautifying the school grounds.

Mrs. Moore's class has been learning about the changes that fall brings. They read books such as a "The Ox Cart Man," "Picking Apples and Pumpkins" and "Daniel's Duck." Students have done a lot of fall activities including making booklets about how an apple seed grows and writing books about why they like fall. Students will conclude a study by staging a second grade fall festival later in the month.

Music teacher Mrs. Hembree reminds fifth graders they are eligible to join an extracurricular chorus that will meet outside the regular music class time. Parents will be receiving a note from Mrs. Hembree. A concert date has been set for March 30 at The Brock and will include choruses from all Davie elementary schools.

Fourth grade students of Rachel Joyce have been reading a variety of books. Stop by the classroom and see some "wild" nature projects inspired by the book "Call of the Wild." Acceleration groups are preparing a display table for Cornatzer's Multicultural Fair featuring highlights from "The Skirt," a book about a family who shares dancing customs from Mexico with friends in the United States. Students have been sharing presentations on the book "Tales of Fourth Grade Nothing."

Students have learned about transportation when tourism experts reported on past, present and future modes of travel, including skateboards, automobiles and motorcycles. Some prospective famous shoe designers told about the new shoes they are designing. Some chefs decided to try a new nonalcoholic mixed drink made from Cheerwine, ginger ale and ice cream topped with whipped cream and cherries. The class roving news team surveyed 100 people to discover their favorite drink. The information was collated and presented to the class using four graphs. In a bid to improve school safety, a group of Mrs. Joyce's students decided that some playground rules were needed to prevent accidents similar to the one in the book. Their safety posters are displayed to remind students how to be safe.

Real Estate Facts

BEAT THE STREET!

A common refrain among active stock traders, "beat the street," reflects their desire to do better in their investing than the Wall Street averages. An average return is just not acceptable.

When selling your home, you might also want to do better than the average. "What average?" you ask. There are two averages against which you may choose to compete. First comes price, followed by the length of the sale time. The question becomes "Wouldn't you rather get the best price possible in the shortest period of time?"

For every property, there is some "top price" buyers are willing to pay. Until a buyer agrees to pay that price, there is no sale. The top price has no relationship whatsoever to the amount you hope to receive, what you paid for the property, or how much you've invested in improvements.

The top price is based on only one factor, a buyer's judgment of the value offered by the home. The challenge is to determine what that price will be. Your agent's opinion is vital to that determination. Your agent knows the street "averages", and can help you determine the right price.

Once you know the right price, don't inflate it. Offer your property in "model home" condition, set the price accordingly, and the length of time to locate a buyer will also beat the average.

Sign up at Senior Services by stopping by or calling 751-0611. A limited number of time slots are available.

Services Available In Davie For Domestic Violence Victims

What are the signs of an abusive relationship?

The book, Into the Light, based on the original text by Leslie Cantrell and revised by editors at Kidsrights gives insight into this problem. Physical and emotional abuse are discussed.

Signs of physical abuse include being beaten, bitten, choked, denied medical treatment, forced into sex, kicked, punched, pushed, slapped, shaken, stalked, forced to watch your children or pets being abused, threatened with weapons, and threatened with a beating or with being killed.

Signs of emotional abuse include being threatened, humiliated, continually criticized, called names, denied financial resources or the opportunity to participate in financial decisions, accused unjustly and repeatedly of having affairs or flirting, not allowed to earn or keep your own money, being intentionally locked out of your house, isolated from family and friends, abandoned in dangerous places, and manipulated with lies and contradictions.

In her book, Not to People Like Us, Susan Weitzman gives strategies adopted by many abused women to cope with their situations. These include denying what is happening, blaming herself, thinking that this is what marriage is about, choosing to believe he won't do it again, reminding herself of the solemnity of the marriage vows, using alcohol or drugs to soothe herself, becoming quiet, watching vigilantly, scanning to predict or anticipate the abusive behaviors, not telling anyone, explaining away his bad behavior, clinging to the idealized view of how marriage could be, and secretly strategizing how to escape the marriage.

In answering the question "Are you abused?" Kidsrights asks the following questions.

Are you are afraid of your partner and do you feel trapped in a relationship?

Do you sometimes lie to friends and family members to cover for your partner's abuse?

Are you unable to express your opinions or feelings without fearing your partner's reaction?

Do you feel pressure to ask your partner's permission to see family or friends, or to go anywhere, or to spend money on anything?

Do you have to be careful of what you say and do when you are with your partner to keep him from getting angry?

Do you feel like you are walking on eggshells when you are with your partner?

Do you feel you are living with two distinct personalities?

Do you have nightmares about your partner attacking you?

Are you beginning to believe the terrible things your partner accuses you of and says about you?

Can you no longer believe in yourself or your feelings?

"If you have recognized yourself in this column, you may be in an abusive relationship," said Martha L. McQueen, director of the Davie Domestic Violence Services and Rape Crisis Center.

There are many sources of written information on abuse.

If you wish to speak to someone personally about your situation, DDVS/RCC has a 24-hour Crisis Line. "Please call. We are here to listen and to give options if you wish," McQueen said. The number is 751-HELP.

A support group meets each Tuesday from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

18th Rabies Case Is Confirmed

Officials with the State Laboratory of Public Health confirmed the 18th case of rabies in Davie County this year.

According to Barry Bass, health director, the animal that tested positive for the virus was a raccoon. The raccoon fought with a dog that lives in the Wood Valley community off Beauchamp Road. The dog was not current on its rabies shots and will be quarantined for the next six months. The owner of the dog was exposed and is receiving post-exposure rabies treatments.

"People need to be especially wary of wild animals that are behaving in a strange or unusual manner," Bass said. "No one should ever try to pet a stray or wild animal, no matter how innocent or tame it may appear".

Bass also stressed the need for rabies vaccinations to be current. "It means the difference between life and death if an animal is exposed to rabies." He urges anyone who has a pet and is not sure of its vaccination status to contact the pet's veterinarian.

Should a wild animal bite a domestic animal or human, residents are advised to keep the animal in sight and contact Davie County Animal Control at 751-0227.

Anyone having questions about rabies should contact their veterinarian or Jeff Beauchamp, R.S., Davie County Health Department at 751-8760.

NORTH CAROLINA
DAVIE COUNTY
PUBLIC NOTICE
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE BOARD OF TOWN COMMISSIONERS FOR THE FOLLOWING ZONING AMENDMENTS
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, PURSUANT TO THE REQUIREMENTS of Chapter 160A, Article 19, Section 160-A-364 of the General Statutes of North Carolina and pursuant to Article 11, Section 4, of the Mocksville Zoning Ordinance, that the Town Board of Commissioners will hold a PUBLIC HEARING in the Town Hall, Mocksville, NC, at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, October 17, 2002.

The Board of Commissioners will consider the following text amendments to the Zoning Ordinance:

Amend Article 3, Zoning Districts, as follows:

Replace the existing text of Sections 3.2.4(d)(8), 3.2.5(d)(5), 3.2.6(d)(7), 3.2.7(d)(4), 3.2.8(d)(4), and 3.3.3(d)(2) with the following text: "Every building lot shall have frontage upon a public street except as provided in Section 8.1."

Amend Article 5, Street Regulations, Summary as follows:

Replace the existing text of item #5 with the following text: "Be public, except that private streets may be permitted on a case by case basis within multi-family, townhouse, condominium, commercial or industrial developments. Alleys shall be classified as either public or private depending upon their function according to the street acceptance policy."

Replace the existing text of item #6 with the following text: "Be the focus of one or more buildings on the development site."

Replace Item #6 in Article 8, section 8.1, with the following text: "A development site consisting of one or more legal lots of record which is developed under a coordinated, approved site specific plan and which is accessed solely by driveways shall only be required to abut a public street along some portion of the development site the minimum distance of which shall be determined by the town to be adequate for public and emergency vehicle access but which shall not be less than thirty-five feet."

Add a new item #7 as follows: "A multi-family, townhouse, condominium, commercial or industrial development site consisting of one or more legal lots of record which is developed under a coordinated, approved site specific plan may be permitted, on a case by case basis, to be served by a private street network and shall only be required to abut a public street along some portion of the development site the minimum distance of which shall be determined by the town to be adequate for public and emergency vehicle access but which shall not be less than thirty-five feet."

All parties and interested citizens shall have an opportunity to be heard in favor of or in opposition to the foregoing changes. Prior to the hearing, all persons interested may obtain any additional information on the proposal by visiting the Planning Department in the Davie County Administration Building, Mocksville, N.C. between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. or by telephone at (336) 751-3340.

PUBLIC NOTICES

NORTH CAROLINA
DAVIE COUNTY

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING TO CLOSE A PORTION OF CLEMENT STREET AND MAKE A PORTION OF CLEMENT STREET ONE-WAY

TAKE NOTICE that the Board of Commissioners of the Town of Mocksville will hold a public hearing on the 17th day of October, 2002, at 7:30 p.m. at the Town Hall, Mocksville, North Carolina, to consider a petition to close that portion of Clement Street running from US Highway 64 to the common corner of that property owned by Mocksville First Presbyterian Church (USA) and Central Carolina Bank.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE, that at the hearing the Board of Commissioners will consider the closing of the southbound lane of Clement Street running from US Highway 64 to approximately the middle of the property owned by Mocksville First Presbyterian Church (USA), and to permit northbound one-way traffic only over the present southbound lane of that portion of Clement Street running from US 64 to a point approximately in the middle of the property owned by Mocksville First Presbyterian Church (USA), as an alternative to the closing of that portion of Clement Street above described.

This 24th day of September, 2002.

The sixth grade Stingrays' team has riding the waves of success, gliding through factors and factorization and working with fractions in math class. In science, they have been studying erosional forces and plants. In social studies, they have been working on map skills and are studying Europe. Students have been sharing and discussing current events every Thursday. They will soon have new pen pals from European countries. In communications class, the Stingrays have begun swimming through the spelling and vocabulary curriculum and working on grammar skills. Students began writing autobiographies, read a novel, and challenged creative minds when they wrote stories without using the letter "E."

Students are eagerly awaiting the upcoming field trip to the Renaissance Festival Oct. 23.

The Junior Beta Club held its induction ceremony Oct. 7. Seventy-eight seventh and eighth grade students joined the 51 members in the club. The officers are: Amy Bellucci, president; Taylor Randall, president elect; Lauren Parker, secretary; and Kelly Felts, treasurer. Sponsors are Mrs. Garner, Mrs. Holleman, Mrs. Marklin and Mrs. Wenker. There are monthly meetings and at least three service projects. The service projects include a collecting canned food for Storehouse for Jesus, participating in pet therapy at a local nursing home, creating holiday cards and posters, selling lollipops to provide funding for students who cannot afford to pay for field trips, tutoring, and being "Big Buddies" to specially-identified sixth graders. Two social activities will be held during the year, the first being an after-school trip in November or December.

Shady Grove Elementary

Brenda Ziglar is the new assistant principal.

The school had a visit from SACS (Southern Association of Colleges and Schools), with a lot of work of five committees put together by Mrs. Hobson and Mrs. Rogers and from the staff members, students and parents. The PTA, as well as Mrs. Ducote for providing refreshments and food.

Kim Landreth led Beautification Day.

Second graders had a field trip to the Heritage Theater Sept. 24. They participated in a workshop about cultures, communities and cooperation. Students made paper bag puppets to represent roles they will take as contributing members of their city, county and state. They participated in a reader's theater.

The Second Steps Reading Buddy Program has begun its third year. Mrs. Ewing, the reading teacher, and her assistant, Mrs. Walton, meet with the second grade reading groups on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Volunteers tutor on Tuesday and Thursday. The program has been successful in helping the children make growth in reading. This year's volunteer tutors are: Marianne Delong, Jody Dhillon, Amy Duffner, Cindy Buchanan, Marlene Carter, Alma Stout, Rhonda Krey, Anita Bhasker, Sydney Peterson, Winifred Pool, Florence Gilmore, Donna Watts, Cindy Meeker and Martha Wellman.

The Storehouse for Jesus food drive brought in more than 350 items, which will provide food and toiletry items for Storehouse clients.

Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Conley's kindergarten class was busy this week with apples. They cooked and ate them and even enjoyed some art projects with them.

Mrs. Minor's first grade class is hard at work in "letterland." Almost all of the consonants have been introduced along with three vowels a, e and u. They continue to be successful with the new spelling program.

Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Carter's second graders are beginning to work on numbers up to 100. They are grouping in tens and ones, problem solving using tens and ones and estimating. They continue to work on learning their number facts with addition to 10 and double-digit numbers.

Mrs. Spach's class is finishing up a unit on the use of dictionaries. They are looking up words to put in their apple-ology book. In math, they have learned what line of symmetry is all about. They are working on addition facts of sums to 18. In science, they are learning about the life cycle of animals.

Mrs. Kauff is busy with her second graders reading "What Happened to Patrick's Dinosaur?" In math, the children are counting by tens, forward and backward. They are learning to identify money by counties pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters. Johnny Appleseed has also been a yummy/learning part of their week.

"Charlotte's Web" is the book in Mrs. Hendrix's class. They have created a bulletin board outside of their classroom using a spider web to write down qualities that they would look for in a friend. In math, they are subtracting from numbers ending in zeroes with great success. The computer lab is full of word searches using their vocabulary words about plants.

Mrs. Ohr and Mrs. Norman's third graders are working on elapsed time in math. This is something they will need to know for the North Carolina End of Grade test in May.

The book fair was a success. Winners of the free books and posters were: Taylor Moore, Aaron Guttenberg, Greg Brill, Elizabeth Davis, Nick Juhasz, Nicholas Irwin, Avee McGuire, Gina Smith, Sarah Barber, Will Meeker, Nathan Webb, Cara Walton, Andrew Ducote, Kyle Macey, Matthew Mills, Jennifer Russell, Elizabeth Carbone, Amanda Hester, Chris Swiergel, Kayla Cornatzer, Megan Hennings, Sorin Hill, Brittany Bennett, Logan Sessoms, Lauren West, Jacob Hester, Karch Arey, Bradley Collins, Tara Tregarthen-Knight, Jillian Duffner, Lauren Spillman, Britani Peterson, Kevin Miller, Andrew Marion.

Arts Council Sponsoring Drawing, Design Contest

The Davie County Arts Council will sponsor a "Drawing and Design" workshop open to individuals high school age and up.

The seminar will be Saturday, Oct. 26, from 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Instructor: Sue Byrne Russell. Fee: $40 includes lunch.

Art is achieved through discovery, an understanding of drawing fundamentals, and practice. In this day seminar, participants will discover the rhythm, movement and excitement of ordinary objects in extraordinary ways. You will be guided through a process of seeing line and space, by observing, seeking and sketching. You will learn how to simplify images, understand design and value, and find ways for unique expression.

Russell has 27 years experience teaching art. She has a bachelor's degree in graphic design from the University of Georgia and an master's in art education from Arizona State University and directs, Hemlocks Studio, a summer art school in Cedar Mountain. View her work on the web site: www.hemlocks.com

Interested participants are encouraged to complete a registration form and return it to the Arts Council office with the published fee at least two weeks prior to the workshop. A listing of necessary supplies will be sent with the registration confirmation. All workshops require a minimum of 10 participants.

Completed registration forms or requests for forms should be directed to: Davie County Arts Council, 622 N. Main St.,Mocksville; 751-3112; info@daviearts.org.

Weight Loss Puzzles Doctors

ATLANTA, GA -- Doctors were surprised when two separate studies found that a natural dietary supplement could help cause significant weight loss.

Although not conclusive, both studies found that patients receiving the formula called Bio-Rex 3000® lost more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to decrease the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

According to a spokesperson for Phillips Gulf Corporation, the exclusive North American distributor of Bio-Rex 3000, the company is considering additional studies in order to get federal approval to make pharmaceutical claims. Currently, weight loss claims for the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement are limited. However, with the requisite approval, the company could say that Bio-Rex 3000 decreases sugar cravings, increases metabolism and interferes with the body's ability to produce excess fat.

Bio-Rex 3000 is currently available as a dietary supplement and plan in pharmacies and nutrition stores or by calling 1-800-729-8446. www.bclabs.com.

County Commissioners Question Rural Land Class

By Kim Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

During an update on rezoning applications to come before the county board of commissioners in the coming weeks, chairman Dan Barrett asked for more information regarding the rural land class.

"Help me understand when things in the rural land class are going to be approved and when they're not," he told planning and zoning director John Gallimore.

Barrett's request stems from recent rezoning decisions by the planning board approving spot zones and rezoning land clearly meant to be rural if one follows the land use map.

"The rural land class in the development plan is not hard and fast," Gallimore said. "There are opportunities for some development."

"We need guidance on how we should consider these cases," Barrett said. "We're asked to decide when we should go outside the rural land class and when we should leave it the way the community planners said it should be. And the land classification said it should be rural."

"Ultimately it's going to come down to your own judgment," said Gallimore. He went on to say that he believes the land use map is "out of step" with the county. U.S. 64 is listed as rural, yet it's a busy road. "There's going to be a higher level of traffic there. Small scale rezonings, small scale types of businesses where individuals want to work close to their homes; you'll see a need for more of that in the future."

The land development plan doesn't address those issues. Barrett asked what kind of precedent it set if the board approves commercial spot zones for small businesses. Would it affect their

Judge To Decide On Lawsuit Against CHA

Salisbury attorney Donald Sayers presented arguments last Thursday before Guilford County Superior Court Judge Peter McHugh in favor of a motion that would throw out the suit by South Yadkin Power, Inc. against the Cooleemee Historical Association and two of its officers, Jim and Lynn Rumley.

"In my 31 years of practicing law, I have never seen a suit like this," said Sayers.

The year-old suit complained of damages to the Greensboro-based power company caused by the filing of "frivolous petitions" with state and federal agencies by the local history group.

"This action asks the court for monetary damages" as well as asking that the preservation group be "enjoining from all future petitioning activity."

Sayers cited a long list of state and federal court cases from across the country which upheld the right to petition and asked McHugh to bring an end to the suit. Sayers called it a SLAPP suit, a legal action designed to overwhelm citizen groups with legal bills deterring them from exercising their constitutional right to petition for government action.

According to Sayers, petitions are not "sham" unless there is no hope by petitioners that government action could possibly result from their filing. He pointed out that the power company's own complaint put forth that the historical association was seeking governmental action and, further, that several government orders upheld complaints from the Cooleemee group.

Sayers noted that a CHA petition led South Yadkin Power to withdraw its requested amendment to further reduce the minimum water flow requirement in the main river channel by one-half. CHA petitions also led to the recognition and protection of an 18th century grist mill site on the power company's property and be

'Critical Needs' Jobs Approved

Jobs considered "critical need" will be filled, but county commissioners last week decided to uphold the county hiring freeze.

"We are in just as dire straits financially now as we were five months ago," Chairman Dan Barrett said. He voiced his concern that if the freeze were lifted, there was the possibility the open positions would have to be cut. "Our analysis will be what needs are urgent and what needs are essential."

The jobs the board approved: a new cooperative extension director and dairy agent, one food stamp intake worker and one social work intake worker, one public health nurse, a health educator, home, health and hospice social worker, a community health assistant, the youth service librarian, two water department positions and one full time position in public works. Eleven part and full time positions within the county will remain vacant, several at the suggestion of the department heads.

The positions were approved with the understanding that they may need to be cut later. At Jim Stockert's urging that it was time to get back to business as usual, Commissioner Bobby Knight responded, "It's not time to go back to business as usual."

"Going forward, this is going to be a tough time," Barrett said.

Poindexter agreed, stressing that the commissioners were not opening the floodgates on spending, just filling critical needs.

The world is a dangerous place. Stop to pump a little gas and you might get popped by a murderous sniper.

Go on a dream vacation to Bali and you might get blown up by terrorists.

Everybody remembers what happened to the World Trade Center. In Israel, everybody eyes with deep suspicion anyone getting on the bus. From Northern Ireland to Indonesia, from Pakistan to the Philippines, there are people plotting no good.

Statistically, we're safe. Statistically.

Those events are seemingly far from us. In a world with billions of people, the victims are few.

But statistics aren't very comforting. Probabilities don't ease the anxiety of living in a ruthless world. It probably won't happen to us. But it could ...

Television and instant news have brought these terrors inside our homes, giving us something else to worry about. It's awful stuff, and it evokes fear and resolve ... or fear and cowardice.

That's why President Bush has been so determined to do something about it. To cloak ourselves in helplessness means defeat. To fear the consequences of our own actions gives the terrorists a free ride, permission to strike again.

We don't know everything that's going on inside Iraq. We don't know that government's exact ambitions. But it has a sorry history of abuse of its own citizens and attacks against its neighbors. It is a natural suspect in the aid of terrorist groups.

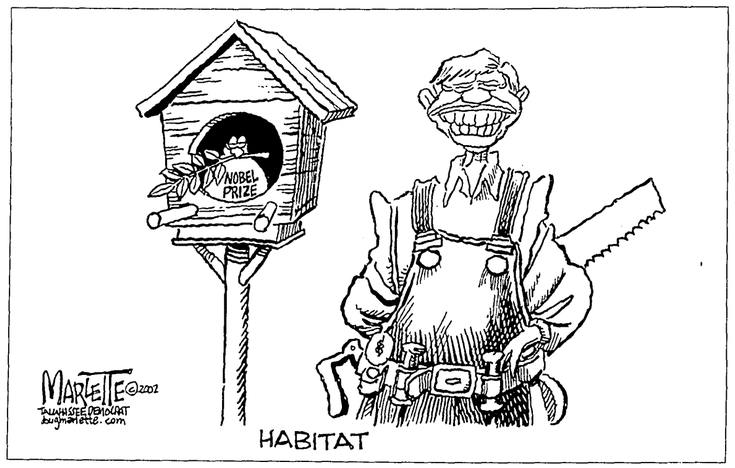
Doing nothing is unacceptable.

The world will never be completely safe. There will always be a murderer on the loose — a despot threatening to kill and plunder.

But we have to eliminate the ones we can identify. We have to track the sniper with vigilance. We have to surround and attack the despots who pepper our citizens with occasional violence ... or threaten the world with nuclear arms. We have to assist weak nations who are attacked and threatened with takeover by terrorists.

Being the world's policeman has fallen on this nation's shoulders. Statistically, we were safe — shielded by two oceans. But no longer. The September 11 attack fell on us.

It's a dangerous business. We have no choice but to accept the task.



Watching the moon: Class assignment recalls man's history of searching the stars

It was a 6th grade assignment, but I watched over my son's shoulder for the entire month.

He tracked the progress of the moon — waxing and waning, from full moon to new, quarter by quarter.

It is a fascinating thing — inspiring wonder and awe for thousands of years. Even now that we have figured out how it works, it's still a marvel.

Little wonder some people thought some monster was eating the moon.

The general disappearance and reappearance of the sphere was enough to keep people up at night.

It kept us up, too. Growing and then fading. Sometimes visible, sometimes not.

County Alcohol Would Level 'Selling' Field

To the editor:

We are all aware of the confusion and congestion and annexation of property in East Davie by Bermuda Run. However, the way this anexation is playing out is confusing, to say the least. Spot anexation is all I can come up with.

First they annex parts of Kinderton, (not all), as I understand it, only the business section. I am quite sure the Kinderton development is not completed, but presently the only business section is the Kinderton shopping center, and thats on the other side of I-40, a long walk from Burmuda Run.

It is a nice shoppiong center and Lowes Food store is top of the line. Food Lion had a monopoly in Davie for too long, of course, now they are at a disadvantage, no wine or beer sales which Lowes has, courtesy of Burmuda Run. The rumor has it Burmuda Run is jumping another hurdle, 801 and is probably going to annex Tanglewood Crossing, home of Food Lion of Davie County. For what reason? Tanglewood Crossing has pavement, street lights, sewage, etc. could it possibly be for the sale of beer and wine? Perish the thought. Parts of Davie are still legally dry, besides, the clergy wouldn't stand for that, would they?

Speaking of the clergy, when Mocksville was to have the vote on alcohol sales, the preachers were out in force, anti-signs lined the streets in oposition, and yet it passed. When Lowes opened in Kinderton Shopping Center, it was the first store to sell legal alcoholic beverage in East Davie. No protesters showed up. There were a few deputy sheriffs standing around, I imagine to watch for teenagers trying to purchase beer or wine.

I went by there three or four times just out of curiosity, just to see if anyone protested the sale of beer and wine, and incidentally, the free samples they were handing out were delicious, but no ptotesters.

My point is, instead of having all this spot annexation for the sole purpose of the sales of alcoholic products, since there is not much if any opposition to the alcohol isssue, vote on it (countywide). Then everyone will have a level playing field.

The way it is in East Davie, the only one profiting is Bermuda Run, pulling in the taxes with little if any outlay.

Woman Honored To Be Subject Of Editorial

To the editor:

What a huge compliment: to find myself the subject of the editorial in this week's Enterprise-Record. My mama might have believed every word of it, but your mama was a fellow student at Farmington High School, one who actually deserved those accolades, and she could have told you that the subject of that editorial sounded much too exalted to be the Betty McMahan she used to know, some 60-odd years ago.

My sister Edith's copy of the paper arrived this afternoon and she didn't get around to reading it until tonight. Then she called my apartment (in the same building of our retirement village) and said, "You must come and see what I'm reading in the Davie paper." I very much appreciate those kind words, Dwight, and especially the fact that you and Robert found the Cammie books of interest. I did enjoy growing up on a Davie County farm, and (as you implied in the tribute to your Dad in an earlier editorial) farm kids seem to have an advantage in learning the habits of hard work and in having a feeling of being important to keeping the family going. I now have nine great-grand nieces and nephews, all of whom are city kids, and I wanted them to know about the joys of growing up on a Davie County farm during the Depression years. That's why I started writing the Cammie books, with Cammie representing my 10-year-old self (though I gave her a younger brother instead of two sisters), and I embroidered the stories when I thought they needed more zip. Those were tough years, but everybody in the community was in the same boat, and we all found ways, through school, church, and Grange, to make life very good.

While I'm about it, I want to tell you how much I enjoyed your recent account of the overnight camping trip you made with Robert and Michael? Wasn't it a Stokes County park? Although I've never actually met you or your family, I feel I know all of you through your parents and your editorials. Thanks again for this latest one, and please give my best to your mom.

Many Helped Kolby Hurt Family Through Stress-Filled Days

To the editor:

We wish to thank everyone who helped us through the stress filled days following our grandson Kolby Hurt's accident.

Within minutes of informing our family and friends of the accident, you were by our sides offering prayers and loving support.

We want to thank Jimmy and Melinda Gentle for staying night and day when we were so distressed.

There were many phone calls from people wanting updates on Kolby's condition at the hospital. We appreciate everyone taking the time to make these calls and all the love and encouragement offered to our family.

The people who left us messages of prayers and encouragement on our answering machine, hearing your voices helped up cope and get to the next day with hope.

Our newborn granddaughter Ashlyn's great grandma and great grandpa, Lou and Henry Kiger, and great aunts, Lisa and Melinda, were so helpful to take over the care of the baby. This was a big responsibility, which they handled beautifully.

We didn't leave the hospital except for short periods of time during the daytime so we depended on our family and friends to remind us it was time to eat. Roy's parents, Roy and Lou Hurt, and his sister and brother, Tricia and Kit, were there getting us food when we were too worried to realize it was time to eat. We can't remember all the people who brought food but be sure we are extremely grateful for everyone of you who filled our waiting room to overflowing.

The many fire department friends from Center, Sheffield-Calahaln, and William R. Davie who were there for us shows how special these people are. We also want to thank all the emergency and medical personnel who responded to the accident scene and came to the hospital, too. The quick response of air care being dispatched we believe played a major role in Kolby's survival. To the people who allowed them to come, even though we are such a short distance from Winston-Salem we will forever be grateful. We the people of Davie County are very fortunate to have so many people who give their time so freely to help others.

We thank God for providing the many talented medical personnel at Baptist Hospital with the skills to save Kolby's life. Baptist Hospital is a big, scary place, but an excellent place in a trauma situation where care of patients and their families is top priority.

Thank you to the many pastors who came to pray with us which gave us hope and strength.

Kolby's fourth grade teacher, Ms. Melinda Swain, got the horrifying news late Sunday night of Kolby's accident. Her mom had her at the hospital in minutes and she was there everyday until Kolby was moved to Charlotte Rehab. She and Mrs. Pristas even made the long drive to visit there. We want the families of future students of Mocksville Elementary School to know if your child is fortunate enough to have Ms. Swain as a teacher you will be blessed with a great young lady who cares for her students.

Mrs. Flynn, Kolby's first grade teacher, thank you for bringing a smile to Kolby's face. We know we have a special grandson and this reminds us how he has touched other's lives.

Kolby's friends, B.J. Plummer and Kelsey Bryan, came to visit. It was one of the happiest days of his time in the hospital.

Our neighbors, Joyce Bowles and Jackie Harris, Lynette's neighbors, David Hand and David Robbins, took such good care of our animals. We were so thankful. Our neighbor, Christine Johnson, who stayed up all night praying, your are special. We have many caring neighbors and are very fortunate to live in such a loving, giving place as Davie County.

We want to tell everyone how wonderful the Ronald McDonald House is. A beautiful place, giving families of sick children a place to eat, bathe, relax, and sleep. When you see the boxes to make donations, please drop in some money.

Thank you Kathy for letting everyone read your beautiful story in the Enterprise so they know what a special child Kolby is.

Thank you to every person who donated food, time, and hard work to have the fish fry benefit for Kolby. Thank you all for coming to buy food and the people who gave donations. Because of your generosity Kolby will be able to get the help with his school work he needs to get back to the academic level he was before the accident.

We want to thank Mike and Lynette for being such good, loving, and strong parents for our grandchildren. We are proud of you.

Most important of all we want to thank God for sparing our grandson's life. He means the world to us.

We hope no one else has to go through this kind of pain, but if you do, we want to be there for you as so many have done for us.

Kolby's Grandparents, Roy and Teresa Hurt

Celebration Of Halloween Another Indication Of Moral Decline

To the editor:

I remember the good old days when Halloween was looked forward to by just about everyone, including myself. It seemed so innocent to dress up in scary costumes and go from house to house and get candy.

Now I feel differently. The world is in bad enough shape as it is with the moral decline. This is a holiday that I wish was discontinued.

If you have a Bible, then I would strongly encourage you to see what the scripture references listed in this letter have to say relating to Halloween.

Many people tend to explore the dark side of Halloween (mostly out of curiosity). This is one of the most harmful aspect of the holiday (poisons come in all sorts of packages). Don't be deceived. Spiritual poison is the worst kind. Read about the wisdom of the Holy Spirit in (1 Corinthians 2:6-16).

Most Americans don't know how this holiday (geared towards children) got started. My hope is that all who read the information that I'm providing will be better informed about Halloween, and make wise and safe choices.

Satan is a master of deceit (2 Thessalonians 2:9-12). He will let you think that there is nothing wrong with celebrating Halloween - that it's harmless and fun for the children. What's wrong with giving candy to the children, and dressing up in costumes? Nothing, but let's take a look at the origin of "Trick or Treat" and Halloween.

Halloween started in the British Isles with people called "Druids" (Pagans). Oct. 31 was a night of terror called Samhaine (pronounced sow-en) and considered a Holy Day for Pagans. That night the Druids would go from house to house taking victims for human sacrifice (usually virgins). In exchange for the victim, they left a Jack-O-Lantern ... which was supposed to protect the home from death demons that night. Often on Oct. 31 at midnight some religions and Satanist perform macabre ceremonies and rituals like sacrificing animals, and even people. Surprisingly enough, it still happens to this day.

People try to communicate with the dead by holding a seance. This is a form of witchcraft. Uninformed people are not aware that there are really demonic spirits that can be contacted (whether they intentionally want to contact them or not). When you try to communicate with the "spirits", you may be inviting unwanted spirits that will torment you.

The spirit world is real, just as real as the physical world, influential and powerful. If you aren't careful and know what you are dealing with then I can assure you that you'll be asking for trouble.

The Bible specifically shows how God feels about forbidden pagan practices. (Deuteronomy 18:10-12) says: "Let no one be found among you who sacrifices his son or daughter in the fire, who practices divination or sorcery, interprets omens, engages in witchcraft, or casts spells, or who is a medium or spiritist or who consults the dead. Anyone who does these things is detestable to the Lord."

The book of Ephesians has to say: "And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather expose them. For it is shameful even to speak of those things which are done by them in secret (Ephesians 5:11-12) ."

Jesus Christ said this in (John 8:12) "I am the light of the world; he who follows me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the light of life".

Don't think Satan looks the way cartoons depict him, in a red suit, horns, and pitchfork. Satan started out in Heaven as one of the most beautiful of all the angels (then called Lucifer). After his folly, he was cast out of Heaven along with a third of all the angels. (Isaiah 14: 12-15, Ezekiel 28:2-19) Do you honestly think he's going to sit back and do nothing? The Bible refers to him as a roaring lion seeking for whom he may devour (1 Peter 5:8).

The way I see it, Halloween is black or white. Either you fall for the lies of the enemy, and celebrate it the traditional way, or you find an alternative and give glory to God.

I am a Christian and I have convictions about giving homage to Satan. If you go along with the dark side of the Holiday, then that's exactly what you're doing. We should be giving glory to God instead. "As for me and my household we shall serve the Lord" (Joshua 24:15). Many details and alternatives to trick or treat and Halloween can be found on web sites listed at the end of this letter. If you have Internet access, I would encourage you to check the following sites: www.walton.com, graceland.gentle.org, www.christiansunite.com, www.christianitytoday.com and the website, www.halloweenoutreach.com.

Elliott Engel Programs At Library A Success

To the editor:

On behalf of the Davie County Public Library, I would like to thank the three special organizations which helped to make possible the successful Elliot Engel programs on Oct. 10. The Rotary Club of Mocksville made a generous donation to the library and helped promote the program. Rotary clubs give men and women an organized outlet for contributing to their community and carry out a variety of projects to meet community needs. Through the Davie County Arts Council, the library program received support from the N.C. Arts Council, an agency funded by North Carolina and the National Endowment for the Arts. The Davie High School Student Council gave a wonderful donation to the funds for the programs. Because these groups helped, the library was able to offer afternoon and evening programs to give Davie residents a better chance to hear the popular Dr. Engel. People who attend the presentations by Elliot Engel are thrilled with the quality of the information and entertainment. For giving valuable space in the newspaper, the Davie County Enterprise Record deserves much credit for the success of the programs.

The library extends its appreciation to all the wonderful people who attended the Elliot Engel programs and to the groups who contributed to the programs.

Humane Society The Only Hope For Unwanted Animals

To the editor:

We were reminded again this week of the fact that the ASPCA and the Humane Society of the United States has declared October as National Adopt a Shelter Pet month. Our personal experience has been that there can be no more loving a pet than one that has been rescued from a "shelter" and almost certain death if not adopted. Last Tuesday, the Winston-Salem Journal featured an interview with Dr. Robin Brock, DVM, president of the Davie County Humane Society. Dr. Brock laid out the plans of the society to build and operate an animal adoption center. Also, in the article, Mr. Robert Cook, Davie County director of animal control, reported that more than 1,000 dogs and 350 cats were euthanized in 2001. Imagine the happiness and joy these pets could bring to Davie County residents once adopted. The society's pledge is to find a home for every "adoptable" dog or cat, so that none need be destroyed.

The Humane Society of Davie County was founded in 1991. By developing an extensive adoption and education program on the proper care of pets many innocent animals can be saved. The society must have, however, a permanent adoption center where education programs can be held and animals can be cared for while waiting adoption. Over the years numerous successful fund raising events have been held with support from many of its friends. To date, more than $70,000 has been raised for the construction of a new animal adoption center on property already owned by the society. Fund raising gifts together with grants from foundations will be needed over the next year to raise an additional $300,000 before construction can begin. Most of these monies will need to come from the citizens and businesses in Davie County if the society's goal of having an adoption center by 2005 can be realized.

I would encourage each and every pet lover to consider making a contribution to this worthy cause. All donations of $500 or more will be honored on a plaque at the entrance of the new adoption center. Contributions can be forwarded to The Humane Society of Davie County, P.O. Box 153, Mocksville, NC 27028. Please give this request some serious thought. In working with the county, the humane society can greatly reduce the number of innocent animals euthanized every year and the sooner the better. Thank you.

Davie Shows Loving Spirit In Support Of Kolby

To the editor:

A movie titled Field of Dreams used the words "build it and they will come" to entice a former baseball player to build a baseball field. Neighbors of Kolby Hurt had another dream. They dreamed of holding a benefit fish fry for him to help his family offset medical expenses from a tragic accident. Have it and they will come. Well, they did. And man, did they come.

They came in cars, small vans, big vans. They came in RVs, on motorcycles. They came in horse trailers. They came, the teachers, bankers, senate candidates, lawyers, doctors and nurses. They came as friends, family, strangers, and neighbors. They came. Churches, fire departments, EMS and so many more groups came to help and to donate. Three of the group homes of Davie County came to support this young man. This community came together for a special boy. Kolby expected nothing to be given to him, but was thoughtful enough to design his own thank you card to give to everyone who came.

What love this Ijarnes community gave to this little boy. But not just Ijames. Not just his friends, but strangers came from different areas of Davie County to help raise $5,430 for The Kolby Hurt Medical Fund established at CCB. We served over 600 people. What a testimony for the kind of people we are in Davie County. What a testimony as to the kind of family Kolby has that so many were interested in helping.

Maybe it's because we see what his mother has seen in him from birth. Kolby is special. Roy Hurt, Kolby's grandfather, works as a first responder and probably saved Kolby's life. The love his family gave him, great doctors and nurses helped to pull him through this terrible accident. His mother's love was powerful, but more than a mother's love, there was God's love. His mercy and healing power is what came to this child. God gave a mother her son back. I have no doubt that Kolby will give back to others in the years to come. He is a special child.

Along with us, his whole family would like to say: Thank you. Thank you all so much for showing once again what a loving county Davie is, to all those that donated and/or came to help in any way.

The Kolby Hurt Medical Fund is open and you can make a donation at any CCB Branch in Davie County. Thank you again.

Are We Still One Nation, Under God

To the editor:

We say we are One nation under God. Are we?

The Pilgrims came to America with one book, the Bible, God's word. These people layed the foundtion to establish one nation under God.

I believe that God created heaven and earth, and everything in it. If anyone thinks otherwise; why did not everyone just walk into existence without procreation, grown men and women?

We have become one big melting pot of sin.

We have profaned, polluted, perverted, added to, and taken away from God's word.

God so loved the world that He gave His only son to save us from our awful lot.

Jesus built one church, and he died for it. He is the head of it, and the savior of the body. There is no other name under heaven by which we must be saved.

What have we done? We have divided, twisted, renamed and messed up the Body of Christ; the church that Jesus built. His church. John 17:20-21, Jesus prayed that we all be one.

Now, everybody has their own church, their own opinion, their own doctrine, everybody's name but Christ. Some people are overjoyed to be infidels, and devil worshippers.

Fellow citizens, because of this, America is under siege. Terrorists are running wild, people molesting, brutally killing children, marrying and remarrying as many times as they choose, and to womever they please. Children are doing everything they are big enough to do. That is not right. Parents are not able to discipline or chastise their childen because it is against the law. We are afraid to go out of our own homes, and afraid to come back in.

We are mean, hateful, arrogant, evil, sexually immoral, adulterous, faithless, heartless, ruthless, murderous and such.

Wars, and more wars. We had better humble ourselves and pray that the one who has all power is on our side, or woe are we.

Take heart, America. It's not too late to repent. Jesus said that a few will make it, and our few are not like His. We need to get a credible version of God's word. Read it, believe it, and live it.

We could become one nation under God, and more. Jesus said, where two, or three gather in His name, He will be there. Remember, love covers a multitude of sin. Jesus is the answer.

Bullies Are School Terrorists

To the editor:

On Sept. 11, 2001, Americans came face to face with the grim reality of what "terrorism" is all about. The events of that day caused people from coast to coast to come together in a sense of unity like they had never known before. We as Americans had seen the brutality of terrorism on the news and in the papers before, but it had always been somewhere else, never in America. Now it had hit home, and all across this nation people spoke out. The united voices of Americans said, "We will not tolerate terrorism." Our President spoke out saying that we would not stand by and act as if nothing happened. He declared that we as a people would defend ourselves against the terrorists, and that those who harbored them were no better than they were in the eyes of the world.

Terrorism is still alive in America. The terrorists are still being harbored by the veil of bureaucracy and legalistic red tape. There

The election board members will meet each Tuesday at 4:45 p.m. to review absentee ballot requests. Absentee ballots will be counted in the election office between 2 and 5 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 5, but the results will not be announced prior to the 7:30 p.m. closing of the polls.

Questions may be directed to the election office at 751-2027.

School Bullies ...

are terrorists that our children are having to live with each day in the schools they attend, the schools our tax dollars fund. In Davie County we have child terrorists. We all know them as school bullies. We remember them from when we attended school, and they are still active today. They attack and prey upon those that are smaller and weaker than they are. They try to force their beliefs and their ideals on those around them by means of intimidation and violence. That makes them terrorists.

Recently at North Davie Middle School an incident occurred involving an act of terrorism. A school student was attacked by another student, one that was bigger and stronger. The terrorist knocked the student's books out of their hands. The student turned the other cheek, as those of us who proclaim Christianity teach our children to do. The student gathered their books up and continued into class. Pursued by the terrorist, they were confronted again a few moments later. The student was shoved against the wall. Instead of cowering, the student acted in self-defense. He struck back at the bully, only to be seen by a teacher. The teacher, having walked in on the final act of this drama, made a judgment call on what they had seen. There was no further investigation into the matter to find out what started this conflict. The case was closed, and so were the eyes of justice. The student was on their way to the principal's office, but there was to be no fair trial or hearing. The teacher had already passed judgment before the student had a chance to speak in their own defense. The higher powers had already begun to close this case. The parent was called and told that their child had been expelled from school, no ifs, ands, or buts. The terrorist was still free and still roaming the halls of North Davie without the slightest hint of punishment. The one who had carried out the acts of terrorism in our public schools was treated as if they were the victim, while the true victim was punished for taking a stand for their freedom.

How many times have we told our children they should defend themselves against bullies? How many times have we as Americans asked for justice against those who were responsible for the terrorist attacks on Sept. 11? Our ancestors fought, bled, and died for the freedom that we so freely enjoy. They fought against the oppression of the terrorists and bullies of the world. They too, at times were looked upon as the ones who should be punished instead of being offered a helping hand. If we are not willing to take a stand for the freedom and justice that we all claim to hold so dear, then what kind of message are we sending to the children of today? Why not just tell them that they're on their own, that it's a tough life, and that if they can't make it, well, too bad. Those are the breaks. That's life.

That's bull.

This nation was founded on the principals of freedom; freedom to worship without the eccentric dogmatism of the church, freedom to start a new life and to follow through with the dream of building a better life for oneself and one's family, freedom to live life without the fear of being hunted down and attacked for having a mind of your own. When we tell our children to simply stand by and cower down to the terrorism of school bullies, we are telling them to give up those freedoms which our forefathers so valiantly died for. We are telling them, "Don't be an American; be a coward. Don't stand up for what is right." How can we as Americans, and as citizens of Davie County hold our heads up when we have forcefully lowered the heads of our own children onto the executioner's block? In a sense, that is exactly what we are doing. We have told them that their freedom and their right to live a life free of social slavery is not worth fighting for. It is better to be a slave to the system than to be a free man.

I am ashamed to know that our school system is not open to the idea of justice. If you look, there is an American flag flying in front of our schools. I have to ask myself if the educational system knows what that flag truly stands for? They are responsible for teaching the history of this great nation to our children. What are the children being taught about freedom, about liberty, about being proud to be an American? Do those that are in charge of our schools know what the words "liberty and justice for all" really stand for? If so, then why don't they live what they speak? Why was there no investigation into the events surrounding the student and the "terrorist"? Why is it that according to the disciplines of our justice system, if this student is involved in one more incident like this at school, they would be sent to juvenile court? The student had to finish out the day at school taunted by the words of the bully that "He had gotten this student expelled from school." The terrorist won this round, and the school administration simply stood blindly by and abided these acts without question.

This student is not one who has any history of violence or behavioral problems. It is not normal for a student to pick a fight with another student who is twice their size. A person of any level of intelligence would realize that there was more to this case than what the teacher had seen. The teacher, along with the administration at school was unwilling to take a stand against terrorism in our schools. They failed in their duty to teach our children what the word justice is all about.

I pray that the leaders of our school system would open their eyes to the problem of child terrorism in our schools before more of our children fall through the cracks of our school justice system. I pray for our children attending these schools, that they will be protected from this type of violence, and from all types of intimidation and hate. I pray for our teachers, that they would be willing to take a stand for the basic principals upon which this country was established, and that they would be willing to discern right from wrong. I ask you, the public of Davie County to pray for them. Pray that our schools will be a safe place where the children of this county can go and not know the day to day fears of being attacked by a bully, and not being able to defend yourself, and not having anyone in the faculty to help defend them. I ask you to join me in prayer because the children are not allowed to. Pray for our school systems that they will be safe once again.

Sincerely, and not ashamed to be an American and a Christian.

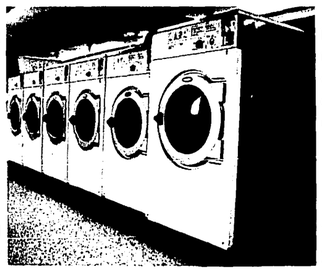
Walker's Coin Laundry & Car Wash

Celebrating 39 Years In Mocksville

Bailey and Linda Walker, owners, would like to tell the people of Davie and surrounding counties about the new equipment at their laundry.



- 12 Triple-Load 40 Lb. Washers
- 2 New 55 Lb. Washers
- 17 Top-Load G.E. Washers (16 Lb.)
- 24 Gas Dryers that dry in 30% Less Time

All This Equipment is state of the art. With all the benefits of added feature selections, new large and super loads, we have been happy to bring these improvements and wash change through 39 years. So bring in all of those bed clothes, comforters, blankets, spreads, pillows, drapes and area rugs. We have a good selection of vending detergents.

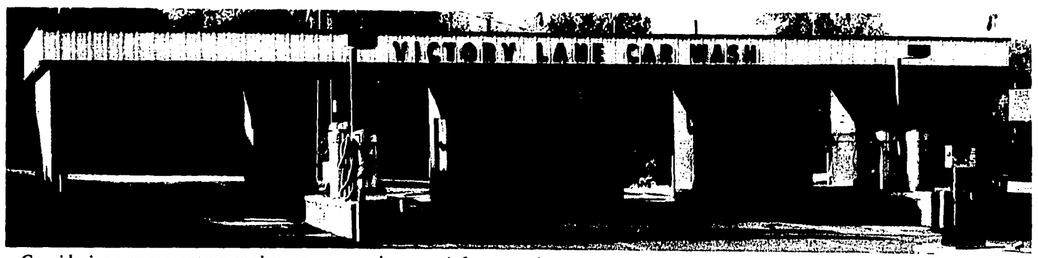
- Change Machine: Bills: $1, $5, $10, $20
- Refreshment Bar Available

While you do your laundry, you can clean your car next door at Victory Lane Car Wash.

The car wash business has changed through the years, also. We have the latest and best equipment on the market. In addition to good equipment, for a better clean, we invest in the finest chemicals. We offer special tire cleaner, high pressure soap and rinse, low pressure pre-soak, soft foamey brushes, and for a finishing touch - "clear coat" wax, that will make your car shine.

We have three vacuum islands in front and rear of car wash, and a detail drying area, as well. Change machines provided at towel and Armorall vending area. Fragrance machines are also available,

All chemicals are tested weekly. If you can't get your car clean with a reasonable amount of money, you need to see Bailey or Kenny. We will help you. You will be glad if you come to see us!



Considering our present water shortage, we are happy to inform you that in our present city system, approximately 62% of our water is recycled; therefore, we at Walker's Laundry & Car Wash, in cooperation with the Town of Mocksville, are being conservative and environmentally conscience.

Located on Sanford Avenue in Mocksville.

Davie Men Told Stay Away From Each Other

Two Davie men were sentenced to time served for an assault that took place off Cana Road in June.

According to Davie Sheriff's Detective Robert Trotter, around 9:48 a.m. on June 14, a call was placed to 911 that two people were injured at a residence at 111 Cana Road. Trotter said one man, Miguel Angel Lorenzo-Mayo, had been struck in the head with a metal object and another, Salvadore Arias Bello, 31, of 131 Marlene Street, Mocksville, received cuts to the face from a knife.

A third man, Meregildo Flores Garcia, 26, also of 131 Marlene St., was uninjured.

Bello and Garcia were each charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, inflicting serious injury, a felony.

In District Court last week, Bello's attorney, Michael Parker, said Bello and the "alleged victim's wife (Lorenzo-Mayo) had an affair. The victim tells Garcia to bring Bello to his house or he'll kill him (Garcia). He did.

"The alleged victim comes out of the house yelling and screaming, and the wife tosses Miguel a knife. Garcia tosses Bello a tire iron, and he cleans his (Lorenzo-Mayo's) clock. He got what he asked for," said Parker.

Parker said Bello had already been stabbed three times and that the attack by Bello was self-defense.

"This is a problem between a man and his wife," said Parker.

Bello pleaded guilty to assault inflicting serious injury. Parker said the only reason he pleaded was because there was an INS order for deportation and Bello had already served four months in jail awaiting trial.

"My guy's going back to Mexico," he said.

Garcia's attorney was Doug Mease, of Forsyth County. Garcia pleaded guilty to aid and abet assault inflicting serious injury.

Previously, Lorenzo-Mayo's wife, Evodia Cortes-Rodrigues, had appeared in court, because she had had Bello charged with rape. Bello was jailed for a short time after that allegation.

In District Court Aug. 15, it was revealed that Cortes-Rodrigues had actually had an extramarital affair with Bello, and when her husband was about to find out, she made up the story to protect herself. She was convicted that day of making a false report to the police station and was sentenced to 30 days in jail suspended for 12 months unsupervised probation.

Judge Jimmy L. Myers sentenced Bello and Garcia to 60 days in jail each with credit for time served, which was 60 days. They were encouraged to stay away from each other.

In an unrelated incident, Bello was also charged with DWI, and Myers sentenced him to 60 days in jail with credit for time served.

Where can you find some of the highest patient satisfaction scores for hip and knee replacements?

Right here.

Nearly four years ago, Rowan Regional Medical Center opened a superior hip and knee replacement program called Joynt Camp. Since then, hundreds of patients from Rowan and the surrounding counties have come here for surgery, gone through rehabilitation with others, and returned home quickly to a more comfortable, enjoyable life.

During that time a national research organization, operating independently, has been asking our patients about their experience. In every quarterly survey result, patients in our Joynt Camp ranked their orthopaedic surgeons, the hospital staff and their overall experience at the highest levels.

In fact, Rowan Regional's Joynt Camp for hip and knee replacement ranks near the top of all hospitals surveyed nationwide by the people who know it best – the patients. So why settle for anything less?

Commissioners Seek Advice On Deviation From Zoning Map

ability to turn down rezonings for larger businesses or industries?

Gallimore believes it does. Small rezonings, like those the board has seen recently, have limited impact on the surrounding area. "As a legislative decision, I don't think you can compare and say it ties your hands. Each rezoning has to stand or fall on its own merits."

"I think it would be helpful for this board to know when we should deviate from the plan and when we shouldn't. Because there's a group of citizens that sat down with a map and said, 'we think the county should look like this,'" said Barrett.

Commissioner Richard Poindexter asked if backyard businesses were being addressed in the new ordinances the planning board is reviewing.

"I think the planning board has a clear intent to work with home businesses so that limited types of activity can take place without having rezoning after rezoning," Gallimore said. "More people are looking for home occupations."

He also said he expects it to be 12-18 months before the ordinances are completed.

"This board is somewhat hobbled with the ordinances that were put in place in the past," Poindexter stated, also saying that it was inevitable that they would see change.

"I don't want to see our land use plan look like Swiss cheese," Barrett said. "I think we need to make sure that we make the rules so that they're understandable to us and the public. Otherwise, it looks like if you ask for it, it'll be approved. Whatever the rules are we need to make sure they're clear to us and the public."

Gallimore said that 70 percent of the county is zoned Residential Agricultural. "As the county grows, more people will want to do commercial activities."

Judge Hears Evidence On Cooleemee Lawsuit

showed, said Sayers, that their filings were not frivolous.

Greensboro attorney Derek Allen, representing South Yadkin Power, argued that there existed "genuine issues of material fact" which should preclude McHugh from issuing a summary judgement in the case.

These included an allegation of trespassing by the Rumleys and the historical group. Allen maintained that a Bullhole volunteer "pass," which he entered into evidence backed up SYPs complaint of trespassing. Issued in the spring of 2000 to more than a hundred volunteers, Allen contended that a few of these volunteers had strayed from park land in Rowan County across the river onto power company property.

"Their motive was to run South Yadkin out of business," argued Allen, who maintained that in tort (injury) cases motive is critical issue of material fact. An affidavit from Geraldine McGee of Cooleemee was introduced which stated that "earlier this year, I was in the Cooleemee Post Office and personally heard Lynn Rumley" say "South Yadkin Power is going to be put out of business. It is just a matter of time now."

Allen argued that the Cooleemee group's petitions had "purposefully impeded" progress in completing construction of the hydro-electric project. Evidence submitted by both sides showed that the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission halted all further construction on the project in August 1999 because SYP had failed to meet its four-year deadline to finish the project, that CHA petitions to FERC did not begin until the following year, and that the power company's request for an extension was granted by FERC in August of 2000).

Another issue of material fact, Allen argued, was South Yadkin Power's allegation that the historical group had "interfered" with the contract between the power company and Davie County from whom it had leased the Cooleemee Dam. SYP's eviction from the dam will go to arbitration Nov. 7-8 in Greensboro.

An amicus ("friend of the court") brief from the Washington-based National Trust for Historic Preservation was filed with the court by former Miss North Carolina Janet Ward Black and introduced by John O'Neal. It also argued for a summary judgement.

The National Trust outlined efforts by Cooleemee's history group to call the existence of the Pearson-Fisher Grist Mill site - with its 20-foot stone walls - to the attention of government agencies.

Despite earlier denials of the grist mill ruins by the power company, the NC State Historic Preservation Office deemed the site eligible for the National Register of History Places and thanked CHA for its efforts. Any future plan for installing a power turbine at the grist mill site will now have to have prior approval by these agencies.

"This kind of advocacy" said the National Trust "is the very essence of a healthy democracy, and is constitutionally protected by the First Amendment to the United States Constitution..."

Power company attorney Derek Allen said his clients had failed to list the grist mill site in their inventory of historic structures when applying for their federal license because it had been submerged in water.

Briefs presented by CHA and the Trust argued that legal precedents discounted tort claims when it was established that a lawsuit would result in "chilling" citizens' first amendment rights.

Judge McHugh told those present that he would accept a written response to the National Trust's brief from attorney Derek Allen and make his decision about the historical group's motion on Oct. 18.

3 Birds Found With West Nile, No More Tests Taken

Two additional cases of West Nile Virus in Davie County have been confirmed by the State Laboratory of Public Health.

According to Barry Bass, Davie health director, two more crows have tested positive for the virus.

One bird was found in the Oak Valley area of Advance and the other on McClamrock Road in Mocksville.

"These two crows were submitted for testing prior to the first positive case being discovered in Davie County, since that time we have done no additional testing of birds for West Nile virus," Bass said.

There have been no reported human cases of the virus in Davie County.

The virus is transmitted when a mosquito bites an infected bird and then bites a person. West Nile virus may cause flu-like symptoms in humans, such as headache, swollen glands and muscle aches, as well as a rash.

Usually, the virus causes only mild disease in humans, but in rare cases it may cause encephalitis and even death. Elderly people and those with weak immune systems are most likely to be affected.

Bass urges people to avoid mosquito contact by wearing long sleeves and long pants and using mosquito repellent containing DEET at concentrations of 30 percent or less (10 percent for children). DEET products should be used according to the label instructions and should not be used on children under age 6.

People should avoid outdoor activities in the evening, when mosquitoes are most active, and areas where there are a lot of mosquitoes. They should check around their homes and empty containers holding water such as tires, birdbaths and flowerpots, and should clean out rain gutters. Pet dishes and birdbaths should be cleaned out at least twice a week. Doors and windows should have good, tight-fitting screens to prevent mosquitoes from entering homes. People who are using rain barrels to collect water during the drought should also be sure the barrels have screens that fit tightly to prevent mosquitoes from breeding.

"People need to continue taking precautions to protect themselves from the disease by avoiding mosquito bites but the good news is mosquito season is almost over and the first frost should remove the risk of infection this year," Bass said.

Anyone exhibiting the flu-like symptoms within 3-14 days of being bitten by a mosquito should contact their physician.

Bermuda Run Holds Hearings On 3 Ordinances

By Ken Richardson
Davie County Enterprise Record

BERMUDA RUN - A public hearing on three town ordinances - animal control, open burning and discharge of firearms - was part of the monthly town council meeting here on Oct. 8.

Town Manager Beth Dirks said the ordinances were customary in nine out of 10 towns and that Bermuda Run was merely "putting these in place because it is appropriate to do so. We want them there in case they are needed."

Other topics on the agenda included an update on the condition of town roads, the problem of a large tree that presents a safety hazard by blocking fire truck access to some homes, and equitable water rates.

The animal control ordinance is primarily concerned with dogs running wild. These dogs are neither on a leash nor under voice control of their owner.

During the council's discussion, this ordinance was commonly referred to as a leash law. Dirks said similar laws exist in the other two incorporated sections of Davie County, Mocksville and Cooleemee, but not in unincorporated areas. Bermuda Run has been incorporated since July 1, 1999.

Two options were discussed under the open burning ordinance. The first would prohibit burning of any kind. The second would permit burning on a limited basis from 8 a.m.-6 p.m. "of leaves, tree branches or yard trimmings originating on the premises of private residences and burned on those premises...".

Jim Rockaway of Riverbend Drive, spoke in favor of limited burning.

The discharge of firearms ordinance triggered a lengthy discussion among council members.

The ordinance prohibits the discharge of a firearm any closer than 300 feet from the nearest residence. Don Welch, of 152 Boxwood Circle, suggested that the final language might prohibit such activities as target shooting.

Mayor John Ferguson thanked the residents who attended and said their comments, either pro or con, would be considered in the final shaping of the ordinances.

Bob Cornish of Bermuda Run Drive, president of Maisonettes, one of the town's homeowners associations, expressed concern about a large tree which prevents fire truck access to a half dozen homes in that section.

The road narrows from two lanes to one lane around the tree. Although cars can get around it, larger vehicles can not. According to Cornish, when a brush fire occurred in that area, the fire truck could not get to it and a smaller firefighting vehicle was then dispatched to put it out. Fortunately, there was no loss of life or property, he said.

When Cornish asked the town to contribute to the cost of tree removal, Dirks said that the town was not in a position to do this because the tree was located on private property and the road was not owned by the town.

Dirks saidonce the tree, stump and roots were removed and the road deeded to the town, then the town would repair the road.

Before adjourning, the town council voted to begin charging each association on the bulk water system for actual usage instead of the present flat rate of $30 per unit per month.

The council established that the monthly charges will consist of a minimum rate of $10 for up to 1,500 gallons and $3.21 for each additional 1,000 gallons above the minimum. This is similar to the water rate being charged by Davie County.

Dirks recommended that the various homeowners associations advise their members of the change in water rates.

Real Forrest Gump Here Thursday

Two more steps are being taken to bring wellness to Davie County.

Robert Sweetgall, the only person to walk all 50 states, 11,028 miles, will appear at the Brock Gymnasium Thursday, Oct. 17. Presented by Davie County Wellness, Sweetgall has appeared on the Today Snow, Evening Magazine, Kathy and Regis Live, and National Public Radio.

He has walked seven times across America and is known as "the real Forrest Gump."

Sessions are from noon to 1 p.m., from 1:45 to 2:30 p.m. and from 3-4 p.m.

The other step being taken, according to Mike Garner, director of Mocksville-Davie Parks and Recreation, is that the Healthy Carolinians of Davie County are applying for a grant that will aid in the planning stages of a greenway.

If the grant is given, it will provide the group $7,000.

According to the grant proposal, in the 15-year Davie Parks and Recreation Master Plan that was published in 1999, it was noted there were no existing greenway trails in the county.

The project will begin in the Mocksville area, adjacent to the new housing development called Elisha Creek, off Milling Road. Developed by Roger Harris, former owner of Bermuda Run, the development, in addition to homes, sports a three-quarter mile long walking trail along the back side, which will be the beginning of the greenway, something town board members have been discussing for years.

Garner said any citizen interested in serving on the committee to help realize this goal should get in touch with him at 751-2325. The committee will be made up of county and town leaders, developers, business people, landowners, school employees and interested residents.

Unchartered Waters: Davie Volleyball Wins CPC

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

The Central Piedmont Conference race was anything but that for Davie's varsity volleyball team. After opening with a dud and losing to South Iredell in the CPC opener, the War Eagles bolted past the next nine tests to end the regular season 18-2 and 9-1.

Nine previous teams were determined to be an outright conference champion, but seven of them finished second and two of them (1981 and 2001) tied for first. An unprecedented regular-season finish was the War Eagles' top priority from the word go, and here they are.

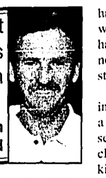
And they made it look so simple, sealing sole possession with a 15-10, 15-5, 15-2 blitz over Reynolds and tacking on a fourth straight shutout at 15-8, 15-4, 15-2 over North Davidson before a spirited Senior Night crowd here Thursday.

"We had no offense because they are so big," North Davidson coach Denese O'Hara said. "We couldn't get the ball through them or around them. We had to rely on them to make mistakes, and they didn't make too many."

Davie coach Dave Markland, who won five Southern Conference titles at Appalachian State, inherited a sinking ship in 2000, played a bunch of sophomores and went 5-12.

Two years later, the War Eagles, winners of nine straight, are on the verge of rewriting the entire record book. The next win will give them the second-most in Davie's 25-year history. Four more will break the 21-win record from 1981, but that team needed 27 matches to do it.

"Our next major goal is to advance in the state." - DHS Coach Dave Markland



"I had no idea (21 was the record)," Markland said. "It sounds like I don't have any goals because that certainly wasn't a goal. If it had been, I would have scheduled more matches. But our next major goal is to advance in the state."

With Davie trailing Reynolds 10-8 in game one, Heather Miller gave Davie a backbreaking burst of momentum, serving seven uninterrupted points, including six aces. Allison Schafer (eight kills) and Sarah Williams (seven kills, no errors) finished off the Demons.

"Heather did not feel well at all, and she sucked it up," he said. "Her serving was the key factor when it was tight."

Davie took North Davidson, which was trying to tie South Iredell for second at 7-3, to blocking-defense school.

"I would have much rather Davie gone undefeated in the conference," O'Hara said. "Now we have to win the conference tournament, and Davie will be tough to beat."

Dawn Singleton, Sara Miller, Williams and Schafer (10 team-high kills) had a field day, sending one missile after another past the dazed Black Knights.

"We've been a good offensive team all year, but the biggest thing that allowed us to win as easily as we did was our defense and blocking," Markland said. "Defense, and in particular blocking, is nothing but desire. Even with skill, if you don't have the desire it's a hard skill to execute, and our blocking

Davie Does The Right Things In CPC Opener

BARIUM SPRINGS – The offense produced a relentless ground game and mixed in disguised passes. The defense welcomed back Timmy Redmond, Billy Riddle and Sam Stovall and applied vice-grip pressure. And kicker/punter Kevin Winters did a convincing imitation of David Wooldridge.

At long last, Davie's varsity football team looked like a worthy contender for its third Central Piedmont Conference title in four years," and its timing couldn't have been any better, bowling over host South Iredell 30-3 in Friday's CPC opener.

"The first six weeks we've been talking about: 'Hey, let's just weather the storm and let's keep pulling together as a family,' " said Coach Doug Illing, whose team created questions by going 2-4 in nonconference play. "And I've been noticing about the last three weeks that everybody's coming together more

Six Davie tennis players – Holly Vines, Alyson Walker, Deanna Shamel-Allison Bowles and Carly Balsley-Megan Jordan – competed in the CPC Tournament, and all six advanced to the regional. Vines and Walker are a combined 30-4 in singles.

Jamar Bratcher rushed for 112 yards, Brad Corriher went 4-for-4 passing and Brock Flowers made 10 tackles as Davie's JV football team routed S. Iredell 36-0.

Daniel Gough pushed his rushing total to 882 yards with two games to go, and Brandon Stewart swarmed for 11 tackles as N. Davie's 8th-grade football team floored North Rowan 34-0.

Garret Benge picked N. Rowan's secondary apart, going 7-of-7 for 90 yards and helping N. Davie's 7th-grade football team overcome the injury to Trent Brooks and rally for a 30-20 win.

Adam Linder of Davie's varsity soccer team has nine goals in five games, including four in 3-2 and 2-0 wins over N. Davidson and S. Iredell respectively. Nick Nelson's assist against N. Davidson helped break a 2-2 tie.

James Arnold rushed for 140 yards and threw for 135 as Davie's varsity football team opened CPC play with a 30-3 win over S. Iredell. Justin Brown added 110 yards on the ground, and Kevin Winters drilled a 47-yard field goal.

Linder Puts Davie Soccer Team On His Back

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Three weeks ago, the notion of Davie's varsity soccer team overcoming Matt Moser's injury and challenging for a state-playoff berth would have been absurd. Now, it's a serious possibility.

The War Eagles just won't go away. Last week they faced North Davidson, which was 3-1 in the Central Piedmont Conference, and South Iredell, which handed Davie a miserable 3-0 setback on Sept. 24, the same day scoring machine Moser nearly broke his arm.

The War Eagles were supposed to lose both, fade into the darkness and follow their 1997-2001 script.

But up stepped Adam Linder, who has been a tonic that Davie badly needed. He concocted a hat trick to give Davie a 3-2 win over North Davidson, and he broke a scoreless game in the second half to propel Davie past South Iredell 2-0.

Davie has found a formula, senior Zach Hanrahan said. It's called teamwork.

"It's been there the whole time, and it's just starting to come together," he said. "(The Moser injury) has made us come together."

Linder did it all in the do-or-die clashes, starting with North Davidson. He sank a game-tying goal at the 20th minute, and he put Davie ahead five minutes later. Then with the game tied for the second time, Linder delivered the game-winning goal at the 49th minute. Crucial assists came from Hanrahan, Charlie Lester and Nick Nelson, who distributed the clincher.

"He's awesome," Hanrahan said of Linder. "He's stepped up so big."

Against South Iredell, Linder did it again with a dramatic flair. After 43 scoreless minutes, he took a Hanrahan pass and punched in the decisive goal. For insurance, Linder assisted the next goal at the 51st minute, to Patrick Little.

Linder has scored nine goals in the last five games. Contrast that with two goals over the first nine games.

Hanrahan

"Even before Matt went down, Adam was making plays that don't make the scorebook," Hanrahan said.

Davie Tennis Advances All 6 To Regionals

Davie's girls tennis team, riding the winningest two-year stretch in team history, made a little more history in last week's Central Piedmont Conference Tournament at Hanes Park in Winston-Salem.

"For the first time ever, we had all six girls qualify for the region," Coach Kimberly Buckland said.

Players had to make the CPC semifinals to advance to the Midwest Regional, and every Davie representative did – Holly Vines, Alyson Walker, Megan Jordan, Carly Balsley, Deanna Shamel and Allison Bowles.

•Vines overcame an injury to go 5-1 in singles. The senior closed with three straight wins to claim the singles consolation.

"She had a pulled tendon in her foot, but she hung in there," Buckland said. "She beat the No. 2 girl from South Rowan and the No. 2 girl from West Forsyth. So she was really strong."

After receiving a first-round bye, sophomore Walker romped in the quarterfinals before losing (6-0, 6-0) to one of the state's finest, Kara Worsley of Reynolds.

"Alyson probably played the best that anybody could against Worsley," Buckland said. "She's ranked fifth in the state. The final came down to No. 1 Reynolds and No. 2 Reynolds, and that wasn't even close (6-0, 6-1). Alyson took her to deuce several times. She did really well."

There's No Slowing Peeler

Bekah Peeler is not only potentially the best runner in the Central Piedmont Conference, she is among the top 15 in Northwest North Carolina.

In a cross-country meet with West Forsyth and Reynolds last week, the Davie sophomore grabbed her third straight CPC win in 20:31, five seconds faster than West Forsyth's Emily Williams and just five seconds behind the No. 10 time in the Class 4-A girls checklist for NW North Carolina.

"Again, I don't believe Reynolds was really running, but the girl from West was," Coach Daric Beiter said. "She stayed right with (Williams), and then where she had to make a move she went. With 100, 150 meters left, she passed her and opened up a five-second lead. That was her best time of the season."

West won the boys meet by nipping Reynolds 28-29. Davie had 84. In the girls meet, Reynolds led at 30, followed by West at 38 and Davie at 71.

Although Davie got dusted again in team results, seven other War Eagles delivered season-best times, including Matt McAnally and Brandon Shore of the boys and Allison Mackintosh, Karen McDaniel, Marie Robertson, Ashley Sizemore and Hannah Thompson of the girls.

"Every girl that finished the race had their best time," Beiter said. "So we're improving at the right time."

The CPC meet is Oct. 16 at West Forsyth.

The Midwest Regional is Oct. 26.

Sizzling Volleyball Team Hosts State Playoff Game Oct. 22

took them completely out of their offense.

"Singleton spiked one that bounced about halfway up the wall. When Dawn catches it right, she hits it as hard as anybody we've got.

"Schafer hit one that hit the camera. She's become an awesome hitter. She's gotten very smart and she's developed an offspeed shot. When you add her power in, it's hard to defend both."

Server Mandy Lambe came off the bench and promptly drove the nail in the coffin. "How do you sit there on the bench for an hour and then serve two straight aces?" Markland said in amazement.

The War Eagles are overflowing with spotlight-grabbing stars – seniors Sara Miller, Sarah Williams, Singleton and Heather Miller and junior Schafer – but the motor is senior setter Candice James.

"We work great together and Candice knows what kind of set everybody wants," Sara Miller said. "When you get a kill, a lot of times you've got to thank the passer and the setter. It's a team sport."

• The War Eagles' CPC Tournament semifinal match is Oct. 16 at 4:30 p.m. at South Rowan. The final is Oct. 17 at 5:30.

• Davie will host a first-round 4-A playoff match on Oct. 22 against Northern Durham. Last week the third-seeded Knights were 17-5 and just 5-4 in the PAC 6 Conference, but those four league losses came against 20-0 Riverside, the defending state champ, and Chapel Hill (21-3). "When you take away those four losses, they're basically 17-1," Markland said. ... Should it advance, Davie will also host the second round on Oct. 24, most likely against Chapel Hill. Markland is pushing for a 7 p.m. game time, but it could be earlier. Call Davie at 751-5905 to find out the time.

• The state playoffs have not been kind to Davie. In a streak that defies logic, the War Eagles are 0-10 in 10 state-playoff appearances. Sara Miller is itching to lift that dark cloud. "We're at a peak," she said. "We're finally starting to pick out stuff ourself. Markland doesn't have to tell us everything we do. It's starting to come more natural."

• A large, energetic crowd bathed Davie in cheers against North Davidson. Markland is hoping for more noise next week. "I'm very appreciative of the crowd we had," he said. "And Charles (Hayes) announcing the game added a lot to it. They don't do that anywhere else in high school."

James H. Miller

JV Volleyball Team Has Up-And-Down Week, And Season

The Davie JV volleyball team's seesaw season was typified by last week's matches. The War Eagles buried Reynolds 15-9, 15-2 before losing to North Davidson 2-15, 15-12, 8-15.

The season-ending split left Davie at 7-9 overall and 5-5 in the Central Piedmont Conference.

Mandi Reid was the driving force against Reynolds, and she got key help from Ashley Davidson and Nicole Maready. "Everybody played good, but we did have some really good serving from Reid," Coach Janice Jackson said. "Reid got a run going and served a bunch, and Davidson and Maready played good at the net."

The War Eagles were alternately potent and poor against North Davidson. Janna Seamon provided a spark off the bench on two occasions.

"We didn't play at all the first game," Jackson said. "We came back and played really good in the second game, and the third game started out like the second game. Seamon did really good serving and setting in both games that she came in. But we just lost it (midway through game three)."

Register Now For Church Basketball

Registration for church-league basketball has begun. The deadline to enter a team is Nov. 15. Call Joe Boyette at 751-2325.

Walker Cards A 37

Brittany Walker of Davie's golf team shot a 3-over-par 37 and tied East Rowan's Brittany Staton for medalist honors last week at Bermuda Run West.

East Rowan was the better team, though, shooting an 87 to Davie's 92.

Davie competes in the 18-hole conference tourney Oct. 17 at Fox Den. The regional tourney will be at Fox Den Oct. 22.

C&C Wins Tournament

C&C Painting captured the coed softball regular season with a 10-0 record, but R&H Lawn Care won the tournament with a 17-7 victory over No. 4 seed Modern Tree Service. Red Pig won the consolation title by defeating Prater Trucking.

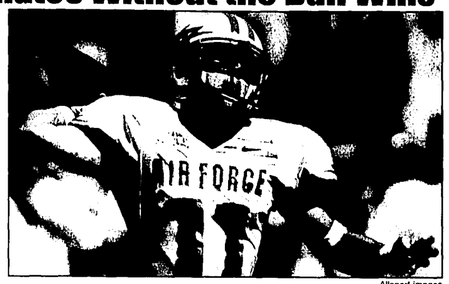
NCAA HIGHLIGHTS

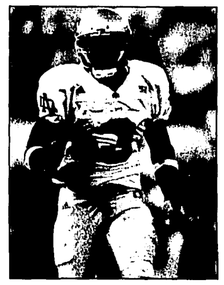
He Who Dominates Without the Ball Wins

When the subject is big-time college defense, two of this season's prime exhibits are Texas and Kansas State, which meet on Saturday in Manhattan, Kan. Pick your defensive category -- rushing, passing, or total defense -- and you'll find both the Longhorns and Wildcats among the nation's statistical leaders. In their last two matchups, in 1999 and '98, it was the K-State defense that shone, in 35-17 and 48-7 wins. Before that the teams hadn't met since 1942, when Texas rained some of its own D on the Wildcats, trouncing them 64-0. This time things are different, with an outcome almost too close to call, so we're favoring K-State by four points to take a 4-3 lead in this very occasionally played series.



Allsport images
WR Arnaz Battle and the Notre Dame Fighting Irish (below) boast a running defense that will push them ahead of Chance Harridge and the Air Force Falcons (above).

Another very big game unfolds in the Big 12, and it looks just as tight: Iowa State visits Oklahoma, and the Sooners are a three-point pick. Like the first pairing, they haven't met since '99, when Oklahoma was a 31-10 winner, its seventh straight in the series since the Cyclones' last victory in '90. Defense will tell the tale here, too, with both Oklahoma and Iowa State among the nation's best in total defense. On offense, the Cyclones like to put the ball up, and how close they stay to the Sooners will depend on how may gaps they find in Oklahoma's excellent secondary. Not many, we predict.



The battle to watch in the Big Ten is Ohio State at Wisconsin, because it, too, appears closer than a TD. Last year, then-unranked Wisconsin upset then-No. 21 O.S.U. 20-17, rallying from a 17-0 deficit, holding the Buckeyes to -4 yards in the second half and finishing them off with Mark Neuser's 33-yard field goal with 2:13 left to play. This time the Badgers will have to find a way to slow O.S.U.'s methodical ground game to stay within upset range.

In Gainesville, Fla., the Florida Gators (Southeastern Conference East) host the Auburn Tigers (SEC West), and the Gators have a major score to settle. A year ago Auburn shocked Florida, then ranked No. 1, 23-20, on Damon Duval's 44-yard field goal with 10 seconds left.

Defense made the difference, as the Tigers intercepted four Rex Grossman passes and held the Gators to -36 yards of rushing. In a battle of two of the nation's best all-around offenses, Florida will win by 12.

Moving west, we're picking Notre Dame by a measly two points over host Air Force in a matchup of a superb running offense -- the Falcons' -- and an overpowering run defense -- the Fighting Irish's. These teams' last two games were three-point wins: 34-31 Notre Dame in '00 and 20-17 Air Force in '96. Finally, in the Pacific-10, Oregon is a slim four-point favorite over Arizona State and Southern Cal a surprising 24-point choice over Washington. A.S.U., which last beat Oregon in '97, no longer has to worry about Joey Harrington, who threw a school-record-tying six TD passes in the Ducks' 42-24 victory over the Sun Devils last year, and U.S.C. wants some payback for its 27-24, last-second-field-goal loss to the Huskies in '01.

NFL STAT PACK

NFL FORECAST: Sunday-Monday, October 20-21

(Sunday)

Dallas 13

With both offenses and both defenses ranked in the league's bottom third, anything may happen here -- but in each of the past three seasons, the Cardinals and Cowboys have beaten each other at home.

*Baltimore 19
Jacksonville 17

Losers of their last four games against the Ravens after winning the first eight, the Jaguars had to be happy to part divisional company. Baltimore's offense is anemic, but its defense is coming alive.

Carolina 24
*Atlanta 12

The Panthers can stop anything the Falcons run or throw at them, so it won't matter that Atlanta has won seven of the last eight in the series, including two straight sweeps of Carolina in 2000 and '01.

Chicago 20
*Detroit 16

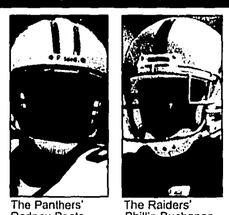
Like the Cards and Cowboys, Chicago and Detroit are struggling to make things work on either side of the ball. After edging the Lions at home last year, 13-10, the Bears shut them out in Detroit, 24-0.

*Cleveland 21
Houston 9

The last time these cities faced off, in '95, Houston won 37-10. Though the Texans play decent pass defense and the Browns can't do much but throw, they'll re-start the rivalry with a different result.

Denver 26
*Kansas City 22

With one of the best running games in the NFL, the Chiefs have proved that they can beat anybody, and a Denver win will be something of an upset, since K.C. has taken five of the last six in the series.



The Panthers' Rodney Peete

The Raiders' Phillip Buchanon
Allsport photos

*Green Bay 32
Washington 16

Perhaps the only factor that may keep this contest interesting is the Packers' problems with stopping the run. In '01 G.B. pounded the Redskins 37-0, the first shutout for both teams in eight years.

Buffalo 21

A big test for the Dolphins, with the Bills throwing the ball as well as anyone and Miami struggling on pass defense. The Dolphins swept Buffalo for the second straight season last year, 34-27 and 34-7.

Open date:
Cincinnati, New England, N.Y. Giants, Tennessee

Minnesota 17
*N.Y. Jets 10

We've misread these clubs almost every week, but the Vikings at least have a working offense; nothing's working for the Jets. N.Y. has won five of six in the series, including their last matchup in '97.

*New Orleans 28
San Francisco 23

A terrific pairing, and N.O.'s D will be keying on the 49ers' ground game. The Saints have no doubt been reminded several times of last season's finale, a 38-0 home-dome wipeout at the hands of S.F.

*Oakland 27
San Diego 14

The Raiders have won eight of their last nine against the Chargers -- 34-24 and 13-6 in '01 -- and the dominance will continue if S.D. can't muster any passing to go with its outstanding ground game.

*Philadelphia 21
Tampa Bay 14

Their offense is slowly improving, but the Buccaneers caught just by keeping the Eagles' offense from exploding. Last year, just like in '00, Philly ended T.B.'s season with a wild-card-playoff win.

*St. Louis 24
Seattle 17

Surely here is a team the Rams can welcome to the NFC West by dominating it through the air. Then again, the Seahawks' best defense is their pass defense. St. Louis won last, 37-34, two years ago.

(Monday)

*Pittsburgh 20
Indianapolis 19

The Colts have the statistical edge in almost every category, but beating the backs-against-the-wall Steelers at home is a lot to ask. Pittsburgh's won eight straight in the series; they last met in '97.

Rams Prevail In 22-16 Nail Biter Over Cornatzer

For the third straight week, the varsity Mocksville Rams were in a nailbiter to the end at the Youth Football Complex at Smith Grove. The Rams battled the Cornatzer Cougars for second place in the regular season, and the Rams prevailed 22-16.

The game started with the Rams scoring on a 13-yard run by Michael Wainwright, who added the two-point conversion for an 8-0 lead. The Cougars answered with a 10-play drive, and tied it at 8.

With the score 8-8 in the third quarter, the Rams stopped Cornatzer on downs at the Cornatzer 12. The Rams took immediate advantage of the field position and scored on a 12-yard run by Josh Oswell. Jevin Scott made it 16-8 on the conversion.

The Cougars quickly responded again, marched downfield and scored at the end of the third. They also converted the conversion, tying the score up at 16.

The Cougars punted from their own 10, Oswell caught the punt on a hop and raced down the far sideline to the Cornatzer 15. On fourth-and-17, the Rams pitched to Oswell, who sprinted 22 yards to the house with under 20 seconds to go.

Oswell's heroics gave Mocksville its fourth victory of the year and second place. The Rams got a bye for the first round of playoffs and will play the Shady Grove-William R. Davie winner on Oct. 26.

Varsity - SG 22, WRD 14

Shady Grove came out strong and quickly took the lead, building it to 22-0 by halftime.

"We played well as a team," said Shady Grove coach Maxie Melton.

Josh Freeman, Bret Peterson and Cody Sulier recorded good play. Peterson led the defense with four tackles, followed by Greg Rogers with two and Christian O'Connor with one. Other key tacklers and assists came from Tommy Bennett, John Flowers, Freeman, Zach Long and Ben Sink.

The Bulldogs scored three TDs, one each from Freeman on a 55-yard run, Peterson and Sulier. Tanner Holden and Chase Sampson both had two-point conversions. Freeman led with rushing, followed by Long. Sulier recorded an interception.

The Raiders fought back in the third quarter with a 22-yard TD run by Lewis Favre. Matthew Speer scored the Raiders' second touchdown on a 65-yard dash in the fourth quarter. Favre ran in the conversion to bring the score to 22-14.

"I was proud of their effort in the second half. They could have just laid down and quit, being down 22-0, but they didn't," said Raiders coach Jason Murphy. "We played our best game of the season."

Trey Preston led the team with eight tackles, followed by Favre and Brandon Sowers with five each. John Weatherman made four sacks while Matthew Speer came through with three. Josh Goins, Wesley Paugh and Colby Hempstead had solid defensive games as well.

"We had our best day defensively," said Murphy. "Offensively, we had Michael Tilley doing a great job at quarterback.

Murphy also praised the outstanding blocking of Clark Dalton, Dylan Ratledge, Austin Brown, Weatherman, James Ray and Jacob Draughn.

The Raiders face Shady Grove once again on Saturday as first-round playoff action begins.

JV - Pinebrook 16, Cool 8

In the first quarter, Brian Plott, Mick Spillman and Andrae Jones had good blocks for Cooleemee. Anthony Brooks recovered a fumble. Raheen Martin and Brooks gained yardage.

In the second quarter for the Redskins, Colby Taylor made a tremendous tackle to stop a two-point conversion. Chris Barnhardt and Shawn Ebright made good tackles. Hugustus Freman, along with the offensive line, made good blocks.

In the third, Channen Thomas, Toby Lowe and Austin Sills had good blocks, and Michael Fleming made good tackles.

And in the fourth, Barnhardt had a 58-yard TD and added the two points. Tyron Stockton, Joshua Jacobs and Mikael Pulliam had good tackles. Tony Deese and Jacobs had good blocks.

The Redskins have a lot of third graders who have learned a lot of fundamentals.

Varsity - Cooleemee 34, Pinebrook 0

The Redskins completed a perfect regular season.

In the first quarter, Perry James scored a touchdown and James Mayfield had the two-point conversion. Santana Arnold, Matt Garretson and Marcus Gadson had good tackles.

In the second, James scored again. Chris Smoot, Blake Byrne and Craig Cleary had tremendous tackles. Garretson recovered a fumble. Arnold intercepted a pass.

In the third, James and Arnold scored. Clayton Smith and Taylor Frye had good blocks. Zac Spaugh, Auyanna Brooks and Ryan Carter had good tackles.

In the fourth, Mayfield scored and Trey Lowe added the conversion. Darrell Boger and Zac Shoemaker had excellent tackles.

For Pinebrook, Chance Davis had a good all-around game. Daven Gray, David Oakley and Tyler Chilen blocked good. And Austin Bell played good defense and recovered a fumble.

JV – Shady Grove 8, WRD 0

"We played the best defensive game that we have played all year. Our offensive backs also played well," said Shady Grove coach Kenny Wood. "We played well as a team."

Peter Fields scored the TD, with Shane Winters scoring the two-point conversion.

Good play came from Christian McGougan, Harley Stroud and Shane Winters. Defensively, Cole Jackson led with seven tackles, followed by Fields and Andrew Buchanan with four and Andrew Ledford with 3.

Other tacklers and assists came from Ricky Bell, Tommy Dillon, Trevon Faulkner, Vance Greene, Richard Kelly, Jacob Lynch, Christian McGougan, Jordan Myers, Joe Sink, Harley Stroud, Zach Waller and Winters. McGougan recovered a fumble. Chase Angell did an excellent job running the ball, with a 35-yard run. Winters recorded an interception.

The Bulldogs play Oct. 19 at 10 against WRD.

Davie Sports News From October, 1972

• Mooresville's football team scored on a 24-yard run with 1:05 left to beat Davie 28-24. John Munday gave Davie a 6-0 lead on a 40-yard run. Davie struck again on Munday's 74-yard run and Jeff Ward's two-point conversion. Billy Clark caught a 35-yard pass from Tom Eanes and David Dwiggins added the conversion for a 21-15 lead. Dwiggins' field goal gave Davie (4-3, 3-2 North Piedmont Conference) a 24-15 lead heading into the fourth quarter.

• Eddie Rabon and Wayne Tate won the championship of the Annual Twin Cedars Four-Ball golf tournament. They took a 6 and 5 win over Jimmy Whitaker and Jimmy Brown inn the championship match.

Other flight winners were Bob Benson-Robin Benson, Kenny Jordan-Jerry Allman, Fred Hamilton-Woodrow Mabe, John Corpening-David Mack, Jimmy Ellenburg-Bill Russ, Charles Crenshaw-Charles Markland, Thomas Archer-Harold Redfern, Steve House-Jack Finney, Ernest Casey-Bobby Thompson, Larry Veach-Don Godwin and J.G. Crawford-Grady Ward.

• The Cooleemee Rebels split two football games, losing 32-0 to Spencer and beating East 28-22 in the final 40 seconds. Kenneth Howell recovered a fumble on the East 9, and Danny Howell scored the final touchdown. Joey Shore and Kenneth White also scored for Cooleemee. Perry Ridenhour, Terry Creason, Gray Hillard and Ron Bivins led the defense.

Arnold Runs For 140, Throws For 135 In Opener

and starting to pat each other on the back.

"(Against stout nonconference competition) we gained a lot of experience under pressure situations. They've got seven games under their belt. Our freshmen aren't freshmen any more and our sophomores aren't sophomores any more."

The maligned offense turned up the volume and turned down the skeptics. The War Eagles had averaged just 9.4 points against Alexander Central, West Rowan, Mooresville, Statesville and Freedom, and sophomore quarterback James "Cooter" Arnold had misfired on 36 of 57 passes.

It didn't figure to get any easier against the Vikings, who held five straight opponents to 7.4 points while building a four-game winning streak. They lost 7-0 to Statesville, which lost 14-12 to Davie. They won 16-2 over North Iredell, which beat a West Rowan team that defeated Davie 14-12. They won 6-0 over Alexander Central, which beat Davie 13-7.

N.C. Prep Football News picked Davie over South Iredell by a point. But Illing didn't get discouraged by his offense and he stuck with Arnold through hard times. The offense rewarded his confidence, with Arnold accounting for 275 yards on the ground and through the air and fellow sophomore Justin Brown rushing for 110 as Davie exploded for 373 yards.

The War Eagles, coming off a bye week, were a picture of anxiety for seven weeks. After the final horn, they embraced in hugs, released the 2-4 agony and dumped the water cooler on Illing, who broke into a sky-wide smile.

"We cut back on some things (offensively), worked real hard at executing little things at every position and you see what can happen," Illing said. "The first six weeks we played with a lot of things, and I think we're getting confident with what we're doing."

After stumbling out with two punts, Davie's offense looked like a million dollars.

The War Eagles moved 90 yards in 13 plays for a 7-0 lead, facing third down one time and scoring on a 17-yard sweep by Arnold, who took a pitch from Andrew McClannon, who entered the game when Davie employed an I-formation.

Arnold displayed his game-breaking acceleration by rushing for 140 yards on 21 carries, and he delivered passes on rhythm, going 7-of-9 for 135 yards.

"We overcame a bunch of penalties and still scored 30," senior center Justin Lanning said. "We went back to fundamentals. We need more off weeks like that."

Davie kept the chain-crew busy in the fourth quarter, marching 83 yards on 14 plays. While Arnold juked, Brown brought the hammer, pounding 28 times for 110 yards, his third 100-yard night.

"You saw the life our defense played with after we scored," Illing said. "When we control the ball like that, our defense plays a lot more aggressively and a lot more upbeat. That's something we hadn't been able to give our defense, getting them off the field and letting them watch some football. It's been pressure on them to keep it low-scoring, and it was good to see them feed off the offense."

The offensive line, senior receiver Brian Hunter said, had a lot to do with Davie's uprising. Lanning, Zach Jakob, Justin Norsworthy, Matt Markland and Trent Young, and tight ends Ted Randolph and Cody Stephens, knocked the Vikings out of the picture.

"The OL showed up and I can't give them enough praise," Hunter said. "That's what we expect them to do, and they'll do it every week. They gave us plenty of time. We've got the greatest OL in the league - I'm boldly going to say that."

South coach Kent Millsaps agreed.

"Just like I thought going in: Could we match up with them physically up front? And the question was answered. They physically outmanned us, and they won because of that," Millsaps said. "They've got two running backs for the future that are good right now, and they healed up (defensively) at the right time for us."

Winters was brilliant. It doesn't get any better than this: three touchbacks, punts of 52 and 46 yards and a long-distance field goal.

With Davie nursing the 7-0 lead at the end of the first half, Winters set up shop 33 yards out, but a botched snap resulted in a 14-yard loss. Davie called time with one second on the clock and teed it up at the South 37. Winters nailed it, right down the gut with plenty to spare.

The 47-yarder was just three shy of Wooldridge's school record, and it sucked the competitive air out of South.

"Coach Illing asked me if I could do it, and I knew I could because I've been doing it in practice," Winters said.

"He's consistently getting better," Illing said. "You can't say enough about his kickoffs."

Electrical plays by receivers Larry Hudson and Hunter set up the spirit-sapping field goal. Arnold heaved a 33-yard rainbow down the left side to Hudson (three catches for 58 yards), who somehow came down with it over his left shoulder while tightroping the sideline. Then Hunter turned a 1-yard swing pass into a 20-yard sprint to the South 16.

Hunter (three catches for 61 yards) converted a third-and-11 on a screen pass to help Davie make it 16-0 in the third, and he took another screen 30 yards to make it 23-3.

"I got a great block from Hudson and Randolph down the field," Hunter said of the 30-yard score. "But I really don't care (about my numbers) as long as we get the win."

The defense – which desperately missed outside linebacker Redmond, safety Riddle and tackle Stovall – stopped South cold. Brandon Bledsoe and Stovall smothered the Vikings after they recovered a fumble at the Davie 23, and Ben Allred blocked a field goal that preserved the 7-0 lead.

The statistics revealed that Davie did almost everything right. It scored on four straight possessions and converted 10 straight third downs. It built advantages of 21-3 in first downs and 373-87 in yardage. Seven of the Vikings' nine possessions resulted in punts, and they failed on 10 of 12 third downs.

"Our defense made big plays, our offense made big plays and our special teams made big plays," Illing said. "We've been preaching to get all three phases on the same page, and you saw what the outcome can be."

Notes: Davie's win looks more impressive when you throw Statesville's stunner over Kannapolis on Friday into the equation. "Holy cow," Illing said when hearing the outcome. ... Davie feared Redmond's senior season was over in the third game. "Through the help of God and physical therapy, I'm back," he said.

A Season-Defining Game

West Forsyth Comes To Davie Friday Night

It's a bloodthirsty rivalry that matches the emotions of North Carolina-Duke, Florida-Florida State, South Carolina-Clemson.

Davie vs. West Forsyth. 'Nuff said.

"It's become a good rivalry," said Davie football coach Doug Illing, whose team hosts West Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the second Central Piedmont Conference game for both teams. "It's a clean rivalry but it's real heated. We shouldn't have any problem motivating them."

While Davie (3-4, 1-0 CPC) is coming off a flawless 30-3 win that snapped South Iredell's four-game winning streak, the Titans face an extremely difficult week. Their CPC opener against visiting South Rowan was rained out Friday and moved to Monday, Oct. 14, creating an awkward two games in five days.

"It might have put a kink in their preparation," Illing said. "Luckily we got ours in, and we've got to take advantage of it."

"This is more like baseball," West coach Russell Stone said Sunday. "Our field doesn't drain the greatest, and it was in terrible shape. It was almost unplayable. We could have gone out there and slopped around.

"The coaches want to prepare, but the kids are probably happier doing it this way. You don't want to spend any time looking ahead because you've got a tough one (Oct. 14). You try to tap dance around that, stay focussed on South and at least get some base prepared for Davie."

Stone used the unexpected off night to scout Davie. He saw James "Cooter" Arnold's dazzling combination of 140 rushing yards and 135 passing yards. He saw Justin Brown pour on another 110 rushing yards. He saw Kevin Winters launch a 47-yard field goal and two long punts. He saw receivers Larry Hudson and Brian Hunter dart through open spaces. He saw the return of Timmy Redmond and Billy Riddle, who helped Davie hold a 23rd opponent in 24 games to 21 or fewer points.

"I thought they were really, really good," Stone said. "Their skill players were pretty talented and their defense was impressive. South Iredell had a lot of kids back from last year, but Davie wore them down quick. They had precision on offense. The kid threw the ball good."

The Titans' confidence is at its highest level in several years. After getting torched 38-8 by Davie and suffering their first losing record (3-8, 2-3) since the 1980s last year, they're back to playing vintage West football.

They made believers by erasing a 14-3 hole and stunning defending 3-A champion Parkland, 24-14, in the opener. They beat Mount Tabor 16-7, lost 14-7 to Glenn, beat North Forsyth 14-11, beat East Forsyth 46-14 and beat Northwest Guilford 41-7.

Davie faces the tough task of solving Harold Bennett, a 5-6, 145-pound jet who has already topped 800 yards rushing. He put up 132 against Parkland, 99 against Mount Tabor, 181 against East Forsyth and 233 against NW Guilford.

As explosive as Bennett is, he can be slowed. Glenn held him to 32 yards on nine rushes and Davie held him to 60 yards on 14 rushes last year.

"He hasn't proven himself against teams we're about to play," Stone said.

The Titans (5-1) beat a Parkland team that went 15-1 last year and returned QB Monte Purvis and 3,000-yard runner Jed Bines, and they were tied with high-octane Glenn until the final minute.

But their last three wins have come against struggling opponents. North Forsyth was 0-3 and West's longest scoring drive was 28 yards. East Forsyth was 0-4 and West allowed 21 first downs. And NW Guilford was 1-5.

Although West's air attack has sometimes struggled – much like Davie's – Bennett isn't the only offensive player who has made huge plays. Fullback Jamie Lilly ran 17 times for 123 yards against Glenn. Korey Dillon broke an 85-yarder and Joe Brewer a 70-yarder against East Forsyth, as West piled up 370 rushing yards on 28 attempts. And Dillon rushed for 89 yards on 10 totes against NW Guilford.

The West defense has been a rock all year, forcing six turnovers against Parkland, holding Mt. Tabor to 48 yards and scoring two touchdowns against North Forsyth.

"We haven't righted our (passing) ship by any means," Stone said. "You've got to have some type of balance. Our defense has really been the story. Offensively we're a little like Davie. We struggled early and scored enough to win because our defense played unbelievably tough. We played good offense (against East Forsyth and NW Guilford), but those teams weren't the best."

This could be the season's defining game. If the War Eagles prevail, they will head to South Rowan with a shot at an inside track in the CPC.

They realize, however, that West should prove a much sterner test than South Iredell.

"The defense is going to have their hands full," Illing said. "It will be one of the best running teams we've seen. They'll be a lot like Freedom running the ball, and Brewer's a threat out wide. They've gotten the ball deep to him several times."

Notes: Sam Stovall, a four-year starter and Division-I prospect at defensive tackle, continued to hobble Friday and it's clear his ankle isn't going to get much better. "He's going to be bothered with it the rest of the year," Illing said. "It's just not going to get healthy without a good month's rest. So he's going to be playing injured." ... West leads the series 13-7, but the last six meetings are 3-3.

Bratcher, Corriher, Flowers Pour It On South Iredell

Jamar Bratcher posted his third 100-yard rushing game, Brad Corriher completed every pass attempt and Brock Flowers collected 10 tackles as Davie's JV football team bounced back from a disappointing 14-12 loss to Freedom by smashing South Iredell 36-0 in last week's Central Piedmont Conference opener.

Davie had three first-half possessions and cashed in all three for a 22-0 lead.

"We were a lot more physical than they were on both sides of the ball," Coach Lee Linville said. "We played with a lot more focus than we did against Freedom."

The Vikings were no match for Bratcher, who carried 12 times for 112 yards and scored three touchdowns.

"He was running through people. Of his 12 carries, he had five for double-figure yardage," said Linville, who cited blockers Ryan Boehm, Jordan Grimes, Grant Lakey, Tony Booe, T.A. Steele and Charlie Monger for creating Bratcher's 9.3 average. "The OL did a real good job, being physical to get him through the first wave of the defense."

Corriher could do no wrong. The freshman quarterback tucked the ball four times for 40 yards. He completed all four pass attempts, and he converted all four extra-point tries.

"And he had two completions called back because of penalties," Linville said.

Two of Corriher's spirals went to Zach Vogler for 33 yards and John Benfield reeled in one. "Vogler's been our best receiver, and Benfield's really come on lately," he said.

Sean Wagoner set the tone in the opening seconds by leveling a would-be tackler on a punt return. Besides Flowers' 10 tackles, Logan Buchanan had seven tackles, one sack and one caused fumble; Wagoner and Jason Johnson had seven tackles apiece; Jaspen Gray, who set up one TD with a fumble recovery, and Dustin Morgan had six tackles; and Fowler and Andrew Darey added fumble recoveries.

"The biggest hit was Wagoner. He laid a guy out," Linville said.

Notes: Vogler completed a pass to Troy Blakley for two points. ... Davie (4-2, 1-0 CPC) plays at West Forsyth on Oct. 17 at 6 p.m.

Randleman Racer Beats Jeff Flood At The Farm

The final Doug Herbert Performance Parts Carolina Coalition Bracket series was completed last weekend. All of Saturday's events were completed before the rains washed out Sunday's race. The eighth stop on the four track series which including Rockingham, Piedmont and Mooresville Dragway's crowned three first-time champions for the $40,000 race series.

Mike Fulk of Ararat, Va., the TOP Eliminator points leader coming into the event, captured the $10,000 top prize in winning fashion. Fulk, a former two-time Farmington five-second champion, drove his '89 Chevrolet Camaro, to the runner-up finish Saturday night. Turtle Brannon of Boiling Springs defeated the new champ in the finals, posting a 5.00 ET at 137 mph to stop the red-lighting Fulk. The win by Brannon in his Chevy-powered dragster moved him into third of the Carolina Coalition standings. Tommy Truitt of Burlington, the newly crowned Piedmont Dragway track champion, finished third in his Chevrolet Nova. Number two points finisher Thomas Cain of Lumberton won the "Run for the Money" with a dead-on run in his small powered Chevy dragster.

Veteran "foot braker" Scott Macy of Randleman picked up the Sportsman division race win Saturday at the Farm. Macy defeated local racer Jeff Flood of Advance for his first Doug Herbert Carolina Coalition win of the year. Flood, driving his Chevrolet Vega, broke right of the start, giving Macy his second Farmington win this year. Wade Holbrook of Lexington and Jesse Hicks of Greer finished third and fourth. Bob Tatum of Salem, Va. held on to take the $5,000 championship prize in Sportsman. Tatum beat out Richard Alford, Jr. of Raleigh by two points and Farmington's 2002 champion Chris Plott of Winston-Salem by ten points. Plott, in his "Cougar Daddy" Mercury also picked up the number one qualifying spot (Run for the Money" with a dead-on run of 7.570 on a 7.570.

The Varner Brothers ruled the Trailers of the East Coast Junior Dragster division Saturday. The defending Halloween Jr. Nationals champion Travis Varner of Stanley defeated big brother Billy Ray Varner III in the finals. Billy Ray led the standings going into the final race and sealed the championship with his runner-up finish. Travis clocked a winning ET of 8.81 seconds at 71 mph to collect his first runner-up finish. Travis clocked a winning ET of 8.81 seconds at 71 mph to collect his first Trailers of the East Coast win of the season. Cory Funderburk of Pageland, SC finished third. Billy Ray finished twelve points ahead of Chase King and younger brother Travis placed third in the final standings.

The Carolina Coalition point standings will be made official later on this week. The next event at Farmington Dragway will be in three weeks, Nov. 2-3. The annual Halloween Junior Dragster Nationals. Saturday, Nov. 2 and 20th annual BIG 5-Second Shootout race on Sunday, Nov. 3. Check out www.farmingtondragway.com for more information.

"He was setting everything up."

Now Davie (7-7-1, 3-3 CPC) can see a playoff berth (the six-team CPC awards three) that was outrageously improbable when it opened 0-2. When Moser heals, look out. "I'm really looking forward to this week," Hanrahan said.

JV Soccer Team Falls To North

The Davie JV soccer team couldn't keep a good thing going. After jumping out to 2-1 in the Central Piedmont Conference with crisp victories over West Forsyth and South Rowan, the War Eagles disappeared in a 3-0 loss to North Davidson last week.

"We absolutely should have beaten them," Coach Jeremy Byrd said. "We came out flat and did not play our game. I think West Forsyth is as good as North Davidson, and we beat West 2-0."

The War Eagles' sixth shutout loss dropped them to 2-8-2 overall and 2-2 in the CPC. They play at home to South Rowan on Oct. 17 and at Reynolds on Oct. 22.

"We just weren't in the game and they very much were," Byrd added. "North Davidson played great from the time they came out. They wanted to win."

Shamel-Bowles each won quarterfinal matches before falling in the semis.

"(Seniors) Shamel and Bowles only played together once or twice previously, so I was really proud of them," Buckland said. "(Juniors) Jordan and Balsley played great. They have for three years, and they'll be together again next year. They communicate so well on the court."

Notes: Davie, the No. 2 seed from the CPC, faced Durham Jordan, the top seed from the PAC 6, on Oct. 15 in the first round of the state 4-A duals. ... Davie goes to Chapel Hill for the Midwest Regional on Oct. 18-19. ... Vines' record is 17-2 and Walker is 13-2. Jordan-Balsley are 10-2 in doubles. ... Davie went 15-5 last year and carried an 11-2 record into Durham Jordan. The only two-year stretch that tops that was 1976-77, when Davie went 18-3 overall and 12-0 in the North Piedmont 3-A for its only two conference titles.

Former Davie Golfer Wins 16-Team Tournament

James Stewart of Methodist produced back-to-back 70s in last week's 16-team Greensboro College Invitational golf tournament.

The junior from Advance tied for first place in regulation, then defeated Corey Garner of Oglethorpe on the third playoff hole for the individual title. Stewart, a 2000 Davie High graduate, parred each playoff hole, while Garner bogeyed the third hole.

Stewart was an All-Dixie Conference performer last spring, and he finished 31st in the NCAA Division III championship to help Methodist to third place.

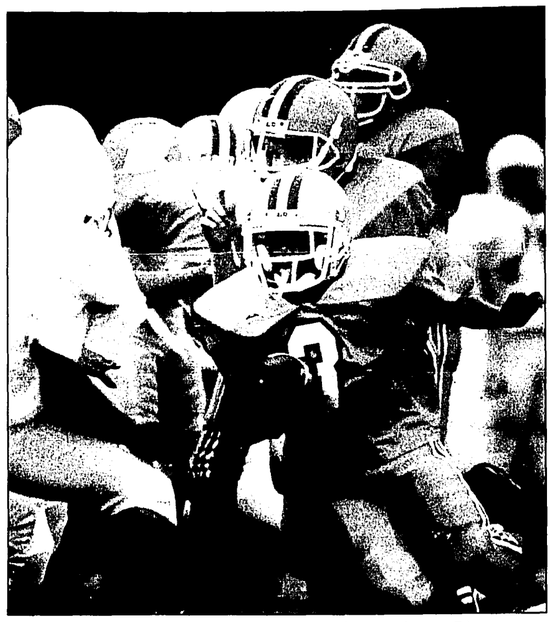
North Rowan tries to bring a North Davie ball carrier to the turf.



Little Quinton Faulkner has put up big numbers for North's unbeaten 7th team.

North Loses Brooks, Still Wins For 6-0

There goes Quinton Faulkner.

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

North Davie's seventh-grade football team lost a vital two-way starter in Trent Brooks and still remained unbeaten with a 30-20 victory over North Rowan last week.

Almost nothing can rock the morale of a team more than a devastating injury to a star player. Brooks dislocated and fractured his ankle early in the contest, depriving North of a running back and linebacker who was among the anchors during wins over Knox, Corriher-Lipe, West Rowan and Erwin.

But instead of folding like a two-dollar suitcase, the Wildcats pulled together like a closed fist and gave the Mavericks a lesson in grit and determination.

"You hate to see somebody have to get hurt to wake them up, but we as coaches saw this team finally come together," Coach Ron Kirk said. "There was a unity lacking, but right after Trent got hurt they adjusted their attitudes and went out there with fire in their eyes. They were determined to win that game for him, and all of them signed the game ball for him."

The Wildcats came out sloppy, failing to secure the opening kickoff and allowing six points on the third play from scrimmage. Brooks wiped out that foolish mistake on his first and only carry of the game, racing 35 yards to the end zone for what led to an 8-6 advantage.

But Brooks was yanked down from behind as he crossed the goal line and suffered a horrible injury that was similar to Davie senior Jon Goode's. He underwent surgery that night as two screws were inserted and he faces several months of rehab. The good news is he should be fully recovered by baseball season.

"It was just a freak injury," Kirk said. "They both (ball carrier and tackler) didn't know where they were. He just got dragged down from behind, and his ankle got caught up under him and popped.

"He probably held together better than anybody else did around him. His foot's laid over to the side, and the first thing he asked was if he scored or not. He wasn't worried about his ankle.

"He's a stout little kid and he's as tough as nails. When you lose a player like Trent, you lose two positions."

The Wildcats were ripe for the picking, and the Mavericks' run-and-shoot attack charged down the field for a 12-8 lead. The combination of losing Brooks and facing a deficit would have probably been a crushing blow to another team, but the Wildcats fired back for a 24-12 halftime lead and scored 22 unanswered points for a 30-12 fourth-quarter cushion.

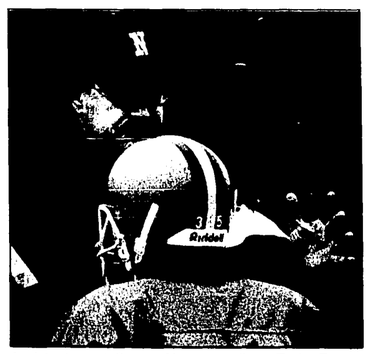
The offensive stalwarts were quarterback Garret Benge and runners Nick O'Brien and Quinton Faulkner. The Mavericks dared Benge to throw and he burned them with surgical precision - 7-of-7 for 90 yards, including four strikes to O'Brien.

"We run that off-tackle play so much, they start biting on that motion man, and then we slip one of those tight ends or halfbacks out," Kirk said. "They were playing nine or 10 in the box, like three yards off the line of scrimmage."

O'Brien demonstrated his versatility by gaining 89 yards on 12 carries and 72 yards on four receptions. Faulkner sliced up 57 yards on seven carries. And then there were Dusty Smith, Taylor Evans and Ethan Curtis, unheralded players who rose to the occasion.

"After Trent got hurt, we could have folded up," Kirk said. "It gave other people opportunities to show what they had, and they went out there and kicked some butt."

Notes: Curtis and O'Brien led with five tackles each. Zack Russell-Myers had three and Joel Barnett had an interception. ... Benge's laser passing included two-point conversions. ... Kirk recognized Adam Ridenhour's effort on both sides of the line. ... The Wildcats (6-0) have found a way to win three close ones, including 8-6 over West Rowan and 18-8 over Erwin. ... They close at South Davie on Oct. 22.



Assistant coach George Newman talks to Taylor Evans.

ND Volleyball Closes With Streak Of 7 Wins

Jenny Mann put a fitting climax on her season-long highlight reel as North Davie's volleyball team capped a 9-3 record with a 15-0, 15-8 thumping of Forsyth Country Day last week.

"I hate to keep mentioning her name, but Mann had two saves that were probably the best I saw all season from any team," Coach Trish King said. "She's got tremendous athletic ability and she's got a bright career ahead of her at the high school. She's a good-natured kid who works real hard, and she's such a good teammate."

The Wildcats went out in style, blanking FCD in game one and collecting their sixth straight shutout. The season was a ho-hummer for King, who won eight or more matches for the eighth straight year and pushed her eight-year North record to 78-24.

"Morgan Owens had some really nice passes, and Britt Harrison had some nice hits," she said of the FCD finale. "I wish we could have beaten First Assembly one time, but I'm real pleased with the season."

Notes: The Wildcats lost twice to invincible First Assembly and split with Statesville North took 18 of 20 games from everyone else.

North Soccer Team's Only Loss Is To Freshmen Team

Preserving an unbeaten record against a team of ninth graders was asking a bit too much, even from a North Davie soccer team that soared to 7-0 and amazingly tied Summit in the first meeting.

Two weeks ago the seventh- and eighth-grade Wildcats rallied to tie Summit 3-3, and last week they gave Summit another scare by jumping ahead 1-0 on a Tyler Baity-to-Michael Jolly connection.

North frustrated Summit throughout the first half, going into break tied at 1. But its magic ran out in the second half as Summit finished with four unanswered goals and a 4-1 win.

"Their ninth graders completely dominated us the rest of the game," Coach John Marshall said. "We hung with them the best we could, but their size and athleticism just took over. Their coach made some moves. I think he basically told his ninth graders to step it up, and the same two players scored and assisted on all four goals."

The Wildcats, who accelerated their rise by pulling out three one-goal games in the early going, ended the season 8-1-1. Among the most exciting moments were Baity's score in a 1-0 win over Forsyth Country Day and Michael Sulier's clincher with 10 minutes left for a 2-1 win over High Point Wesleyan.

The top scorers were Baity with 15 goals, Chris Wantuck with nine and Jolly with six.

"We had a great season," Marshall said. "Each week we got better and we were very competitive with Summit. For two halves we played them even, for one half we beat them, and for one half they beat us.

"This team really deserves an unbeaten record, because they played so well and I hate it had to take a bunch of ninth graders to beat us."

North Softball Needs Strong Finish To Beat Upset-Minded South Davie

North Davie's softball team swept overmatched South Davie 11-0 early in the season and 8-1 last week. The rematch, though, wasn't nearly as easy as the score sounds.

There wasn't a soul who would have predicted a South upset after watching the Wildcats wallop South from start to finish on Sept. 9. But it looked like a shocker might be brewing when the Tigers took a 1-0 lead into the fifth inning.

After bowing to North star pitcher Whitney Williams in the first meeting, Samantha Hobson greeted the fireballer with a second-inning double. Rachel Goin did better than that, socking an opposite-field ball over the right fielder's head and racing to third with an RBI triple.

"Just getting the bat on Whitney tickled me to death," South assistant coach Jane Whitlock said. "It was a confidence-builder for them. It showed them there's no pitcher they can't hit, that it's all in their head. (After the Hobson and Goin hits), everybody felt like: 'Yeah, we can hit it, too.' "

Williams' counterpart, Lauren Parker, isn't as flashy but she was just as effective for five innings. Parker pitched around repeated trouble in the early innings and didn't lose her shutout until North pushed across a game-tying run in the fifth.

"And Lauren's shoulder (which was injured against North Rowan two days earlier) was giving her fits," Whitlock said. "I didn't think she was going to make it through the whole game, but she was determined to stick it out."

In the top of the sixth, the Wildcats' superior talent took over. They exploded for five runs in the sixth and tacked on two more in the seventh.

Still, South could take pride in playing five tight innings with a team that has won five straight, including 10-0 over Southeast and 17-2 over Knox earlier in the week.

"I was real proud of them because we played real good defense," Whitlock said. "They knew that's the toughest we've played all year defensively. Everybody in the outfield (twins Vanessa and Grace Didenko and center fielder April Stockner) made a play. April had never played before either, and she caught a line shot from Whitney. I hated to lose but we did step up."

Notes: For North, Emily Tierney laid down a nice bunt and Breanna Dalton and Rachel White had solid hits, Coach Amy Speckin said. ... North ended the regular season 8-2, good for third in the nine-team Mid-South Conference. ... South snapped a four-game skid with a 31-8 drubbing of N. Rowan. "They've improved but it was the same," Whitlock said. "Their pitching gives them fits. We scored a ton off passed balls and steals." ... South ended the regular season 4-6. ... The MSC Tournament is Oct. 22-24 at Southeast.

North 8th Romps To 6-0

It's getting harder and harder not to mention Brandon Stewart in the same sentence with Daniel Gough.

Stewart – who plays in the same backfield with Gough, but doesn't make as many headlines because of Gough's ridiculous rushing numbers – was in the middle of everything last week for North Davie's eighth-grade football team, which buried North Rowan 34-0 for a 6-0 record.

He averaged eight yards on six rushes, he completed a 28-yard pass on a trick play and on defense he piled up 11 tackles, two sacks, two pass deflections and an interception.

Plenty of other stars came through for North's roadblock defense. Gough made seven tackles and caused a fumble. Adam McIlwain and Ben Hinson made six tackles. Patrick O'Connor and Tim Hudson, who caused a fumble, had five stops. And Zac Gentry scored a defensive touchdown.

"We played a heckuva defensive game," Coach Ron Kirk said. "Two times we tackled the punter. One time he fumbled the ball into the end zone, and Gentry recovered it for a touchdown."

Michael Murphy, Gough, Stewart, Josh Miller and Tom Kuell have been constants on a defense that's given up 22 points in six games. But they've been bolstered by the emergence of O'Connor and Chris Ange, who are increasingly coming of age.

"O'Connor has stepped in at one of the linebacker spots (for injured Mark Huggins) and done a good job," Kirk said. "And little ol' Ange does a good job on the line.

"Our secondary's small (Hinson, Michael Weakley, McIlwain and Whit Merrifield) but they get the job done."

Offensively, it was just another day at the office for Gough, who gained 129 yards on 11 carries and scored on runs of 56 and 28 yards. His season total of 882 yards includes performances of 151, 182, 99, 138 and 183.

When Kirk was asked if Gough ever has an off game, he said: "Yes, he only had 99 yards against West Rowan. And that about killed him."

Gough has two games to achieve 1,000 yards for back-to-back seasons, and a big share of the credit should go to offensive linemen Murphy, Kevin Boehm, Wesley Potts, Josh Dixon and Josh Chesnee.

"Those halfbacks can't run without that OL," he said. "If they weren't blocking, we wouldn't be putting these scores up."

Notes: Miller enjoyed his finest rushing moments with 72 yards on five attempts. Talk about a scary attack - the No. 3 threat, Miller, is averaging 8.4 yards a run. "And he's probably a better center than a fullback," Kirk said. "As big as he's getting, he'll probably go to the OL or DL when he gets to high school." ... Merrifield misfired on eight of 10 passes, but the completions totalled 71 yards and accounted for two scores. Hudson hauled in a 50-yarder and Kuell made two grabs for 49 yards. ... In the final two games, North plays at home to China Grove on Oct. 16 and at South Davie on Oct. 23. "We don't need to look ahead because China Grove doesn't have a bad team," he said. "They scored 24 on South Davie (in a 38-24 loss)."

Spotlight on Business

JB's Drive Thru offers expanded menu

Whether the subject is great food, variety on the menu or friendly and reliable service, two words immediately come to mind when discussing JB's Drive Thru – "consistent excellence."

Located at 2432 Lewisville-Clemmons Road, JB's has become a local business success story since opening in Clemmons five years ago.

First-Class Service

The key to that success has been an enduring commitment to provide each and every customer with an enjoyable meal at an affordable price.

"And to also give them outstanding service," adds JB's owner Mickey Craver. "JB's has had the same staff since it opened and together they have a combined total of over 40 years of experience in the restaurant business. They know all of our regular customers by name and they pride themselves on giving everybody first-class service."

Expanded menu

Menu items at JB's Drive Thru range from the famous JB's hot dogs and hamburgers to chopped barbeque, BLT and fish sandwiches. Combo meals start at just $3.39 and there's also a menu for the kids.

Ice cream, shakes now being served

New to the menu this year are several dishes, including a tasty Fish-n-Chips meal, chili-cheese fries, beer-battered onion rings and a host of ice cream offerings. Soft serve ice cream cones, sundaes and mouth-watering milk shakes are available in chocolate, vanilla and twist while sundaes come in chocolate, strawberry and pineapple. Milk shake flavors include vanilla, chocolate, strawberry, peach, pineapple, banana, oreo and butterfinger.

Craver is quick to highlight one of the best meal values in the area – the JB Special. For just $5.99, customers receive two toasted footlong hot dogs and two large orders of season french fries. Any order can be jumbo-sized (which includes a jumbo order of french fries and a jumbo drink) for only .40 above the combo cost.

In addition to the Fish-n-Chips meal, Craver says other great meals include chicken strips, barbeque platters and hamburger steak. All meals include slaw and fries and cost just $4.49.

To personalize your experience at JB's, Craver suggests brining in a photo of your pet to add to the store's famous Pet Gallery, viewable as you drive up to the windown. "We'll even give your dog a dog biscuit if you bring 'em by," he laughed.

With that kind of personal service, it's easy to see why JB's Drive Thru continues to be one of the most popular eating establishments in the area. JB's is open each Monday through Saturday 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. The phone number is (336) 766-6011.

Good Vehicle Maintenance Includes Regular Service Begins At George's Village Garage

Although it is no secret that cars give higher performance with regular servicing, George Pries at George's Village Garage says that many people still fail to do it.

"When you don't regularly service your car, all kinds of problems can arise," said Pries, owner of the popular Clemmons garage. "Head gaskets, hose problems, radiators, cooling systems that need to be flushed out are just a few." Pries noted that failing to service a car can result in large repair bills down the road.

"One car owner drove 32,000 miles in one year," said Pries. "When she brought her car in, the tires were shot. She had never rotated the tires."

George's Village Garage is equipped with state-of-the-art computer systems specific to many different makes of automobiles. George's five mechanics are experienced in not only the American brand cars, but Toyotas, Nissans, Mazdas, Porsches, Mercedes, and even the rare de Loreans. These quality professionals spend hours each year in seminars and training to be current on the latest in car performance.

George's computer diagnostic equipment allows customers to bring their cars in for an accurate and honest evaluation of both major and minor problems. George's Village Garage is well-known for their fair treatment of their customers.

"George is an honest, down-to-earth Christian," says Stuart Claassen of Clemmons. He has brought all four of his family's cars to George's for more than eight years, because of George's good reputation in the community.

"We do a lot of driving. I'm very comfortable sending my kids up there," said Claassen.

George's Village Garage, which began in a two-bay shop on Ramada Drive, has expanded to seven bays at its present location at 2570 Lewisville-Clemmons Road in Clemmons. Kevin Pries, George's son, oversees the garage's smooth operation as General Manager.

Tires are one item on a car that rapidly deteriorate. George's stocks a number of popular and sturdy brands, including Firestone, Michelin, Dunlop, Lee, Bridgestone and Hankook. See the trained professionals at George's, before you get stranded on the open highway with worn or punctured tires.

George Pries states that cold weather is especially wearing on tires. George's Village Garage gives speedy service in their seven bays, and will have you back on the road quickly for optimum performance.

"Maintain your tire rotations," said Pries. "In this fast-paced world today, people are so busy running kids to soccer that they fail to follow their owner's manual for maintenance." He recommends regular servicing to prevent more expensive problems and longer life of your automobile.

Cars are a costly investment. Protect your investment with good service and expert care from the skilled professionals at George's. They will provide you with a straight-forward assesssment of any repairs needed, and a fair estimate of what it will cost.

George's Village Garage is located behind Sagebrush Restaurant, at the corner of Lewisville-Clemmons and Old Glory Roads. Call 766-7862 for an appointment today.

Davie People

Scott Hager talks about his life, move to Davie County and the love of his life, Sharon Ann Chinn. They met through a love of Elvis. - Photos by Robin Fergusson

Scott and Sharon Hager share a smile and a new life together.

A Dream Come True

Disabled Man Finds Love In Fellow Elvis Fan

Heart to Heart with Kathy Chaffin

Members of the First Baptist Church of Mocksville and several guests, including myself, had the rare opportunity Oct. 6 of watching a dream come true.

That was the day Jeffery Scott Hager and Sharon Ann Chinn became man and wife.

The wedding, held immediately after the Sunday morning worship service, was traditional, yet simple. Many guests had tears in their eyes. Some cried openly.

They knew how much the ceremony meant to 41-year-old Scott. Born with developmental disabilities, including cerebral palsy, he had always dreamed of getting married. But the women he had met couldn't see past his disabilities.

That was before Sharon, who has some disabilities of her own. "Finally," he says, "I've found someone who loves me for me."

It was a common love of Elvis that brought the two together. They watched a videotape of Elvis' "Aloha from Hawaii" concert on their first date and enjoyed his movies and listened to his songs throughout their courtship.

And at the reception at the Davie Family YMCA following the wedding, deejay Adam Cunningham made sure that Elvis songs were interspersed throughout his selections. Though Scott doesn't have full use of his right side due to the cerebral palsy and Sharon's left leg is stiff from a former broken hip and knee, they danced to his favorite Elvis song, "I Can't Help Falling in Love with You."

Oh, how they danced.

The newlyweds admire the Elvis plates that adorn their wall.

Hand in hand, the Hagers take a stroll near their home.

The Hagers relax at their home in Mocksville.

Boger-Panozzo Couple Married In Wilmington

Susan Renee Boger and Nicholas Paul Panozzo of Little Rock, Ark. were united in marriage at 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 12 in a traditional double-ring ceremony at Covenant Moravian Church in Wilmington. The Rev. Jon Peterson officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Kenneth and Sharon Boger of Mocksville, and the granddaughter of Willie and Marie Cope of Advance and the late Clay and Louise Boger of Mocksville. She is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington and is employed as a research technologist at Arkansas Children's Hospital Research Institute in Little Rock.

The groom is the son of Ken and Thea Smeets of Corpus Christi, Texas and Dr. David Panozzo of New Lenox, Ill., and the grandson of Eleanor Gucwa of Orland Park, Ill. and the late Ted Gucwa, and the late Virgino and Julia Panozzo of New Lenox. He is a Marine sergeant and recruiter for the U.S. Marine Corps in Little Rock.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore an ivory strapless satin ballgown with rum pink border, accented with beaded Venise lace with chapel train.

Mrs. Nicholas Paul Panozzo

The satin edged veil was attached to a beaded headpiece. She carried a nosegay bouquet of white mini calla lilies, lilygrass and caspia.

The bride chose as maids of honor Michele Arthur and Jenel Small of Wilmington, friends. Junior bridesmaids were sisters and the bride's cousins, Elizabeth Boger, Katherine Boger and Halleigh Boger of Sparta.

The groom's father was best man. Groomsmen were: Scott Boger, brother of the bride of Baltimore, Md.; Kevin Mraz, a friend of St. Louis, Mo.; and Ken Smeets, his step-father of Corpus Christi.

Flower girl was Kayla Raisbeck of Mocksville, cousin of the bride.

Reader was Dr. Christy Redfearn of Wilmington. Program and guest register attendants were Rita Emilson, the bride's aunt of Clemmons, and Brittany and Ashley Cope, the bride's cousins of Advance.

Music was provided by Steve Gray, vocalist and pianist, and Duke Ladd, organist and pianist.

A dinner reception was held at Grouper Nancy's Restaurant and Catering at the Historic Downtown Wilmington Coastline Center. Greeters were Mr. and Mrs. David Cope and Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Cope.

After a wedding trip to St. Maarten in the Caribbean, Lesser Antilles, the couple will be at home in Little Rock.

Social Events

• A rehearsal dinner barbecue, hosted by Randy and Jayne Phipps Boger, aunt and uncle of the bride, was held at Hugh McRae Park.

• A miscellaneous shower was hosted July 27 by aunts of the bride, Teresa Raisbeck, Rita Emilson, and Jayne Phipps-Boger.

• A shower on Sept. 1 was hosted by the maids of honor, Michele Arthur and Jenel Small.

Mrs. William Jarratt White

Spillman-White Couple Married

September Dawn Spillman of Mocksville and William Jarratt White of Yadkinville were united in marriage at 7 p.m. Sept. 14 at Farmington United Methodist Church. The Rev. Jim Raines officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Paul and Connie Spillman of Arrowhead Road, Mocksville. She is a graduate of Davie High School and attended N.C. State University. She is employed by Land Tek of Advance.

The bridegroom is the son of David and Anne White Jr. of Courtney-Huntsville Road, Yadkinville. He is a graduate of Forbush High School and earned a degree in welding from Surry Community College. He is employed by R&K Steel of Yadkinville.

The bride chose her sister, Leann Spillman, as maid of honor, and the groom's sister, Emily Booth, as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were: Amy Campbell, Melinda Spach, Amber Hamm, Melissa Spach, Sharon Spillman (the bride's sister-in-law), Cassie Demos and Emily Fishburne.

The groom's father was best man. Ushers were: Marshall Spillman (the bride's brother), Jason Ladd, Scott Booth (the groom's brother-in-law), Lee Gobble, David Casanova, Trevor White, Curt Demos and Bradley Bircham.

Miniature bride was Hunter Chamberlain. Flower girl was Kaitlyn Hutchins, and Austin Aldridge was ring bearer.

After a reception in the church fellowship hall, the couple went on a wedding trip to Ocean Isle. They are at home in Huntsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boyd Ashley

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Dean Whitaker

Floer-Ashley Couple United In Marriage

Karen Marie Floer of Clemmons and Robert Boyd Ashley of Cooleemee were united in marriage in an outdoor ceremony at 7 p.m. on Aug. 24 at the Glendale Springs Inn in Glendale Springs. Brad Bennett officiated the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Helen Mack of Clemmons and Eric Floer of Little River, S.C. She is a 1987 graduate of West Forsyth High School and is employed as an administrative assistant with Raffles Salons, Inc. in Winston-Salem.

The groom is the son of Robert M. Ashley of Orange Park, Fla. and Virginia Kennedy of Mocksville. He is a 1986 graduate of Davie High School and Central Piedmont Community College and is employed as an LPN at Forsyth Medical Center in Winston-Salem.

Her cousin, John McCloskey, of Glen Mills, Penn., escorted the bride. The bride's attendant was her mother.

The best man was Ron "Tiny" Cranfill of Mocksville.

The couple celebrated with a honeymoon cruise through the Western Caribbean.

The couple will live in Cooleemee.

Rives-Whitaker Couple Married In Ft. Lauderdale

Betsy Lynn Rives of Salisbury and Larry Dean Whitaker of Mocksville were married Saturday, Sept. 27, on the beach in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The Rev. Terrence Scalzitti officiated.

The bride, daughter of June W. Rives of Salisbury and the late Carolyn B. Rives, is a graduate of East Rowan High School. She is an employee at Rives Motor Co. and Rives Store.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Whitaker of Mocksville, is a graduate of Davie High School. He attended Mitchell Community College in Statesville and is self-employed.

Following a cruise to Key West, Fla., Cozumel, Mexico and CoCo Bay in the Bahamas, the couple are living in Salisbury.

Lyons-Naylor Engagement Announced

Angela Cecelia Lyons and James Kelly Naylor of Mocksville announce their engagement.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Howell. She is a graduate of Davie High School and Forsyth Technical Community College, and is employed at Crown Wood.

The groom-to-be is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Naylor. He graduated from Davie High School and attended Winston-Salem State University. He is employed at QST.

They will be married Nov. 9 at Shiloh Baptist Church.

South Davie Middle Assistant Principal Maureen Gildein with students Danielle Russell and Amy Belucci attend the Mocksville Woman's Club meeting.

South Davie Students Speak To Mocksville Woman's Club

On Oct. 9, Amy Bellucci, Danielle Russell and Maureen Gildein attended the monthly meeting of the Mocksville Woman's Club.

They were treated to lunch at Bermuda Run Country Club and shared information about South Davie Middle School.

Gildein, assistant principal, reported that South Davie's student population grew by 50 students this year for a total student population of 705. She also reported that 87 percent of the students are above grade level, scoring at Level III or Level IV on the end-of-grade tests.

She said that 100 percent of the students passed the computer proficiency test.

Amy Bellucci, South's Beta Club president, reported on service projects the club is involved in. They collect canned food items, take pets to a local nursing home and tutor students at school. Membership into Beta Club requires students maintain at least a "B" average and maintain good behavior and citizenship.

Danielle Russell, student council president, reported on activities that student council is involved in. The students promote Red Ribbon Drug Week by having dress up activities each day. They collect coats for needy persons and adopt a family for the holidays. The student council shops for their adopted family each year. There are 29 members elected from the student body. Advisors are Kim Young and Mary Anne Byerly.

A Baptismal service was held at the Methodist Church Sunday morning during the worship hour when 8 month old William Frank Vogler IV was baptised. The Rev. Harry Sammons officiated. Will is the son of Frankie and Christine Vogler and has a sister, Abby Vogler. Standing at the altar with the young couple were the baby's grandparents Norma Vogler and David and Gail Solomon.

Hunter LeRoy celebrated his first birthday Saturday, Oct. 12 with a cook-out party at the home of his grandparents, Charlie and Ruth Latham. Hunter is the son of Sandy and Heath LeRoy. Paternal grandparents Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy from Clemson, S.C. attended, as well as many aunts, uncles, neices and nephews. Twenty-six people enjoyed the party and seeing Hunter go hands first into his birthday cake. He received many gifts and was first to strike at the hanging "papier-mache pig" filled with candy and other treats. Hunter was assisted by his Dad Heath in this feat.

Brenda Zimmerman of Glen Cove, Long Island, N.Y. flew in Friday for a holiday weekend visit with her mother Edith Zimmerman. While here she went over to Hunter LeRoy's birthday party, visited Eugene and Bess Bennett and was among the visitors at the Methodist church Sunday. On Sunday afternoon Brenda and Edith visited Ruth Collette in Winston Salem. She flew back to N.Y on Monday.

Maybelle Orrell came home from Whitaker Care/Forsyth Medical Center on Friday where she has been recuperating from hip surgery.

Jason Wright will present an organ recital this Saturday, Oct. 19 at 4 p.m. at the Methodist church. Everyone is invited.

Christopher Kimball, student at East Carolina, was a Sunday dinner guest of his grandparents Naylor and Stella Vogler. His parents Joel and Susie Kimball of Clemmons and sister Emily, student at Greensboro, were present for the dinner.

The breakfast at Wesley Chapel United Methodist Church is Saturday, Oct. 19 from 6:30-10 a.m. Menu consists of country ham and redeye gravy, sausage and sausage gravy, scrambled eggs, grits, baked apples and biscuits. Everyone is invited.

Bryan and Suzanne Lakey were guests at Wesley Chapel Sunday.

Bob and Louise Dill spent last week at Holden Beach with their daughter and her family, Fran, Dennis and Megan Craver. Bob's sister from Atlanta, Lena Lowery, also joined them for the week.

James and Lelia Essie spent the weekend at their old home in Caswell County. It was a cousin reunion of 20 cousins, many of which did not know each other. They came from Atlanta and Marietta, Ga., Columbia, SC, Charlotte, Oxford, Winston-Salem and Reidsville. After lunch on Saturday, they visited the old Neal-Graves Cemetery nearby and the old Bethesda Presbyterian Church Cemetery where many of their ancestors are buried. Six attended Bethesda Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning where their fathers and grandfathers were active members.

The annual Hunter Reunion of ancestors of Samual and Robena Etchison Hunter was held last Sunday in the fellowship hall at Wesley Chapel. Approximately 75 family members from South Carolina to Virginia enjoyed a covered dish lunch together.

IF YOU HAVEN'T HAD A MAMMOGRAM LATELY, YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU'RE MISSING

When breast cancer begins, it's as small as a dot on this page. So small that only a mammogram can find it. In fact, a mammogram can detect a problem with the breast as early as two years before you can detect it yourself, and your chances for recovery are much better if it is detected early. During the month of October, Davis Regional Medical Center is pleased to announce that Mammogram gift certificates will be available for $35, which includes interpretation by a Radiologist. Gift certificates may be purchased in the Cashier's office, between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

A Mutual Love Of Elvis Brings Local Couple Together

Getting married was the second dream to come true for Scott Hager.

The first was on Dec. 1, 1995, when he moved into the Duke Street Apartments in Mocksville. The apartments were part of a Supported Living Program started by Davie County Group Home Inc. for developmentally disabled adults.

Scott was apprehensive about moving to Davie County. He didn't want to leave his family and friends in Iredell County, where he had lived for most of his life.

But it didn't take him long to feel at home here. He started going to First Baptist Church with program director Judy Rosser, soon becoming a member, and bonded with the other residents of the apartments and group home.

Scott started working at New Horizon Enterprises, a vocational program for developmentally disabled adults in Davie County. Located on Wilkesboro Street, it was there that a job coach encouraged him to audition for a play being put on by The Enrichment Center in Winston-Salem.

It wasn't long before Scott had claimed the role of Linus in "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

Afterward, he began attending The Enrichment Center full time before starting a job doing janitorial work at the Y. Today, he works five days a week for a few hours each day.

Scott loves what he does, and the independence that comes with it has brought a profound sense of contentment to his life. While it's something most people take for granted, he grew up thinking he might never be able to find a job.

Born Sept. 26, 1971, Scott Hager was the youngest of three children in his family. His earliest memories of his family are happy ones, but the good times didn't last for long.

By the time Scott was 6, his father had become obsessively jealous of his mother. "She couldn't have any friends," he says. "She couldn't go out and socialize with anyone."

His father didn't even like for his mother's parents or sister to visit them. And it upset him when she allowed Scott or his brother, Mark, to invite their friends over.

He was afraid someone would find out the terrible truth about what was happening in the Hager home.

"It started with the beatings," Scott says. "He'd start out on my mama and then take it out on us. If we said anything wrong or did anything wrong, he would beat us.

"He wouldn't use a belt. He would always use his fist."

As he got older, Scott says he realized the beatings had started even before he was born. When his mother turned 21, for example, he says she told him later, her father wanted to take her out to eat for her birthday.

But Scott's father had said, "No, you need to stay here," he says she said. "She went on anyway because it was her birthday, and she wanted to see her daddy. When she got back, he beat her.

"This went on for years and years and years."

He even beat her when she was pregnant. Scott says he believes this may have been why his sister, Lisa, more than 10 years older than him, was born with profound developmental disabilities. She couldn't walk or talk and had to be fed and cared for like a baby.

And he says he will always wonder if his own disabilities were caused by his father beating his mother when she was carrying him.

When he was little, Scott says his father worked while his mother stayed home and took care of him and Mark and Lisa. They had fun when it was just the four of them.

Scott adored his mother, and the bond between them grew closer every year.

She knew how much her youngest son loved to play with the buttons on the television set, and when it wasn't working right, she could always guess what had happened.

"She was a good mom," he says. "She loved helping people. She'd do anything she could for me. She loved me."

Day after day, Scott worried about what kind of mood his father would be in when he got home. Some days, he would be in a good mood. But when he was in a bad mood, "I heard conversations like, 'If our children hadn't been born, you would have been dead a long time ago,' " he says.

Scott says his mother worked hard taking care of them and cooking and cleaning. "He wouldn't lift a finger to help her," he says. "And when he worked second and third shifts, he had to have peace and quiet while he slept.

"If we made any kind of noise, he would get mad and rage and holler."

His parents' relationship improved, he says, when his father started taking his mother to play golf with him. As her golf skills improved, she even started playing in tournaments.

"Then she got better than him," Scott says, and the jealousy returned. "He would check to see who she was riding in the golf cart with. It would be one of his friends, but he thought something was going on."

After working in the same job for years, Scott says his father got mad at work one day and quit. "He went to a new job," he says, "and it wasn't long until he quit again."

Scott and Mark were in school when their father decided he'd stay home and take care of Lisa while their mother went to work. "He would feed her," Scott says, "and when she would spit the food out, he would slap her in the face."

As he got older, Scott begged his mother to get some help. "I sat her down and I said, 'This can't go on anymore,' " he says. "I offered, I said, 'Let me call the police.' "

She always said no. If she tried to leave, Scott's mother told him, his father would track her down. He would never leave her alone.

Scott's love of music, especially Elvis songs, provided an escape from the nightmare in which he was living. He would lose himself and his problems in the music.

"My daddy always said, 'You're not going to amount to anything,' " he recalls. "He said, 'You're never going to have a job. All you want to do is stay here and listen to music.' "

It hurt to hear things like that, but Scott says what caused him the most pain was when his own father called him "retarded."

"That isn't a word that should be used," he says. "Handicapped would be OK, but retarded?

"I've got a good outlook on life, and I'm working. I don't consider myself as being retarded."

Mark Hager was able to escape the nightmare when he graduated from high school and got married. Scott was happy for him. "He finally got out of the house," he says.

Scott continued living at home after he completed high school and started going to the Iredell Vocational Workshop in Troutman. He began learning vocational skills and earning a little money of his own.

But his family life continued to deteriorate. The first week of April 1987, Scott's father followed his mother to a service station across the street from their house, where Scott says she told him he started shouting at her and dragged her back home by her long, dark hair. The next day, she made him leave.

But Scott's hope for a peaceful life with his mother and sister was cut short when his father showed back up a few days later. It was April 14, a Wednesday, he recalls sadly, at about 4 p.m.

Scott says he tried to get to the door to lock it when he realized it was his father, but it was too late. He came in, held out a $200 check and asked Scott's mother where he could get it cashed. "I don't know," Scott says she told him.

Before he realized what was happening, Scott says his father had pulled a pistol out of his pocket and shot his mother, once in the chest and once in the head. "This is what you get for cheating on me," he says his father said as he pulled the trigger.

"She fell to the floor with blood coming out of her nose and the back of her head," Scott says.

He screamed at his father: "Why don't you shoot me, too?"

"I just might," his father answered.

Scott, fighting tears, says he held his mother in his arms. "All I could do was lay there with her blood on my hands," he says.

His voice breaks with emotion as he recalls what he said to her. "Don't die," he says he pleaded over and over again. "Don't die. Don't die. I need you. I love you. Come back to me."

After a while, Scott says he was able to compose himself enough to run to the service station across the street and shout for someone there to call for help. The police came and took his father to jail.

They also took Scott to the station to make a statement, after which he says he and his sister were taken to a family friend's house to stay.

Lisa was aware of what had happened to their mother, according to Scott. "She couldn't walk or talk," he says, "but she knew what was going on."

Their mother had always said that if something happened to her, Lisa wouldn't live long without her. "There's nobody that can take care of her like I do," he says she said.

They were still staying with the family friend 11 days later, Scott says, when his sister died in the middle of the night. Lisa Hager was buried beside of her mother.

After that, Scott stayed with various family friends and relatives until Mark took him to the Western Carolina Center in Morganton, where there was a residential program for the developmentally disabled. "It was not a good environment," Scott says. "People would run in and out hitting on you and stuff like that."

He had only been there a month when Mark moved him to the Kelly Group Home in Statesville. "There, my life changed for the better," Scott says.

The group home staff taught him to cook, clean and care for himself, and Scott attended The Village Place vocational program, also in Statesville, on weekdays.

During this time, he underwent long-term therapy with a psychologist from Tri-County Mental Health to help him come to terms with what had happened to his mother. He continued to enjoy his Elvis music and began collecting Elvis memorabilia as a hobby.

After eight years in the group home, Scott moved into an apartment on Front Street in Statesville, where he lived with a roommate. He enjoyed being on his own, but didn't feel safe in the neighborhood. "There were drug dealers and stuff like that," he says.

That was when his case manager with Tri-County, Tori Ingram Stapleton, told him about a new apartment program opening up in Mocksville. Tori was from Davie County and had worked with director Judy Rosser.

Scott didn't want to be away from what little family he had left. His brother convinced him it was a good move.

"I found out I wasn't that far away from home," he says. "It was like a 25-minute drive, so I realized after a month or two that he had my best interests at heart."

Mark and his wife, Ann, and Scott's aunt and grandparents visited him in Mocksville, and he began to flourish in his new home. His family and many of his new friends in Davie went to see his theatrical debut in "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

There was even an article about him being in the play in the Davie County Enterprise Record.

But it was the job at the Y, where his friend, Robb Williams, was already working, that brought Scott the most satisfaction. He enjoyed being with his coworkers. They worked hard, he says, but they had fun, too.

Still, there was something missing in Scott's life. He was lonely, and his dream of having a wife remained unfulfilled.

Judy Rosser says she never dreamed that Scott would become interested in Sharon Chinn when she introduced them last year. Sharon, who has mild developmental disabilities herself, had stayed with Judy's parents for 13 years.

She needed a home, and Judy's parents needed someone to help take care of them so they wouldn't have to go into a nursing home. It worked out great for everyone, according to Judy.

"I'll be forever indebted to Sharon because my parents got to stay in their own home," she says. "Her parents were dead, and she loved my parents like her own."

When Judy's mother died in 1993, Sharon says the obituary included her as an adopted daughter, and she continued to live with the man she considered to be her father. Some days, she accompanied him to a local day program for stroke victims, and on other days, she prepared meals in their home and invited his friends to eat with them.

Though she had family of her own, Judy says Sharon was never very close to them. "They just never really understood about her disability," she says.

When their father's condition worsened, Sharon began to worry about what would happen to her when he died. She shared her concerns with Judy, who helped her to get on disability and found her an apartment in Kentucky.

She would always be a part of the family, Judy assured Sharon. "All the major holidays, you'll come down here," she says she told her.

It was on one of those visits, after Judy's father had died, that Sharon met Scott. Judy knew that Sharon loved Elvis and that Scott loved Elvis, so she asked them if they wanted to watch one of Scott's Elvis movies together.

"So that was the beginning of what I just thought would be something for her to do on those visits," Judy says. "I never dreamed it would spark a little romance."

But spark a romance it did.

Sharon says she thought Scott was cute the first time she met him, but she had been through two bad marriages and was not looking to get hurt again. Besides, he was 16 years younger than her.

Scott fell for Sharon right away. After watching an Elvis concert together, he asked her to come back so they could watch more of his Elvis videotapes.

"When Judy would pick her up at the apartment," he says, "it's like I couldn't eat or sleep or do anything. The next morning, I couldn't even concentrate at work."

When Sharon returned to Kentucky, Scott shared his feelings for her with Judy. "I said, 'You know, Judy, I can't get this woman out of my head,' " he says. "I asked her, 'Do you think there's a possibility something may come out of it?' "

Judy told him they could spend more time together when Sharon came back to visit. That would help him sort out his feelings, he says she told him.

It was on her next visit that Sharon raised the age difference between them. "I wondered what people might say about him going out with somebody older," she says. "But he said, 'It doesn't matter to me what age you are. It's the person inside.'

"So I accepted that."

It wasn't long before Sharon felt the same way about Scott as he did her.

She was visiting at his apartment one day, Sharon says, when Scott asked her if she wanted something to drink. When she said yes, he got up to fix her a glass of water.

"He was handing me the water," she says, "when he said, 'If I decide to get married, you're going to be the one.' I said, 'If that's a proposal, I accept.' "

Scott says he looked at her and said that wasn't the way he wanted to propose. "Give me a chance to do it over again?" he says he asked her. "She said, 'I already accepted.' "

Later on, Scott got down on his knees and asked Sharon to marry him. She said yes, again.

They didn't mention their engagement to Judy, who took them downtown some time later to eat lunch and window shop. When she had gone, they went into Foster's Jewelers on North Main Street to look at engagement rings.

"There were so many," Scott says. "I had her to try on different rings to see which one she liked the best if I was going to buy her one."

Sharon picked out one she liked, and Scott put it on layaway.

Scott wanted to surprise Sharon with an engagement party in the spring, so he solicited Judy's help in planning it. They arranged for Scott's family to meet them at the Sagebrush Steakhouse in Statesville after church one Sunday, where he got down on his knees and proposed once more to Sharon.

She accepted yet again, and Scott presented her with a half-dozen roses with the engagement ring tied to the ribbon wrapped around them. "It was a very special occasion," Judy recalls.

They picked Oct. 6 as their wedding date because it was Scott's mother's birthday. When they talked to the Rev. Van Lankford about it, he told them the church was being renovated then and that the ceremony would have to be held in the fellowship hall.

That was OK, Scott told him, it was very important to him to have the wedding on his mother's birthday. "Even though she couldn't be with me here on earth," he says, "she could celebrate with me up there."

In performing the ceremony, the Rev. Lankford asked the people in the congregation, which included Scott's family, to show their support for the couple by standing. Not one person remained seated.

"A lot of people were extremely happy for them," Judy says.

The weather that day was perfect for a wedding, sunny with crisp autumn temperatures. Lee Barber, Judy's son-in-law, drove the couple from the church to the reception in his convertible.

"The wedding was something from a Cinderella storybook," Scott recalls. "It kind of felt like we had to pinch ourselves to make sure it was real."

The staff at the Blowing Rock Assembly Grounds in Blowing Rock, where Scott and the other apartment and group home residents attend a camp every summer, offered them a room for their honeymoon, and other friends paid for their expenses as wedding gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Hager returned home last Thursday, moving into a newer, bigger version of Scott's Duke Street apartment.

He says he's never been happier. "I'm glowing," he says. "I'm more at peace with myself."

When they first got together, Sharon says she told Scott up front that he was No. 2 in her life. " 'I hope you're not mad at me,' " she says she told him. " 'but God's No. 1, and you're No. 2' "

Scott says he told her he felt the same way. After all, it was God who brought them together.

"As long as we keep Him in perspective in our lives," he says, "we'll be fine."

Scott and Sharon Hager share a kiss after their wedding.

"I think it's going to be grand," Sharon says of their life together.

And they both smile.

A five-star rating is nice, but what we really like is the rating from our patients.

Recently, a national healthcare organization gave Rowan Regional Medical Center five stars for its maternity services. It's the highest rating a hospital can get. Needless to say, we're proud of the physicians, nurses and other members of the maternity staff who provide the very best care for new parents and their babies.

At Rowan Regional, we pride ourselves on superior marks when it comes to patient satisfaction and excellence in healthcare.

So it's nice to see that other people are starting to know the score, too.

From Groceries To Souls

First Methodist Renovates Former Store

Jack Corriher remembers the days in 1960 he and H.R. Hendrix built Heffner's Land of Food in Mocksville.

It later became Food Lion, then a manufacturing plant, and then vacant.

Oren Heffner later sold the building and land, for a good price, to First United Methodist Church of Mocksville, which sits just across North Main Street with little to no room for expansion.

During the last year, Corriher spent many hours in the building, helping as his construction firm converted it to the church's new $1.2 million family life center. The church celebrated with an open house Sunday.

"Right here is where the meat counter used to be," Corriher said as he pointed toward the front of the stage in the main room of the renovated structure. It can seat 300 or more, has an adjacent commercial kitchen and television sets mounted to the ceiling that could allow the broadcast of services or other events from the sanctuary from across the street via closed circuit television.

The doors on either side of the back of the main hall have stained glass above them, stained glass that Corriher has had in storage for some 28 years. It was in the original sanctuary built 110 years ago, and replaced during a 1974 renovation.

The building has 18,000 square feet, doubling the space the church has across the street. The building, which had little renovations over the years, was gutted and built from scratch.

With all the space, architect John Fuller had to think big. There's a big conference room, a big youth room, a big basement for the Scouts, new playground equipment, and offices for the ministers, the Revs. Charles Turner and Crystal Alexander, and other church officials.

"We converted it from a grocery store to a family life center, and everybody has given wonderful reports," Corriher said.

He points out the 272 linear feet of cabinets, and the mouldings, which were built on site by Corriher, Elmer Stoneman and John Cottle. "I worked for 16 months here on this thing," he said. "I'm proud of the way it turned out."

An Awesome Experience

Storehouse For Jesus Medical Mission Team Returns From Ghana

By Chet Bahn
Special to the Enterprise

The word "awesome" was given a workout Friday, Oct. 11 when participants in this year's Storehouse for Jesus medical mission to Ghana, West Africa, reported to friends and supporters in the fellowship hall of First Baptist Church in Mocksville.

Their trip began Sept. 12 and ended Oct. 1.

From the first speaker, Dr. Francis Slate, a retired surgeon and mayor of Mocksville, to the last, John Collins of Advance, assistant executive director of A Storehouse for Jesus in Mocksville, people spoke of the "awesomeness of God," to Ghana as an "awesome land," and to the people of Ghana as "awesome" in spirit, and to themselves as having had an "awesome revival" of their belief in humanity.

During their "journey for salvation" of Ghanaians, physical and spiritual, the Storehouse group members treated 3,348 patients (malaria was a dominant illness), the surgeons among the team performed 63 hernia repairs, the physicians wrote 13,380 prescriptions filled under the direction of retired pharmacist Bob Rauch of Mocksville, and saw 1,099 give their lives to Jesus Christ during Crusade services in Kadjebi and small nearby villages, all of them some four hours or more by car from Ghana's capital city of Accra on the Atlantic coast of West Africa.

One member of the team said the roads they traveled were nearly impassable gravel trails.

Medical care and treatment was not the only event on the schedule of the travelers.

They also distributed more than 1,500 pieces of clothing and pairs of shoes, 150 tennis balls for the children, and saw a proposed playground cleared of weeds, trees and other growth, and the erection of playground equipment shipped from the United States, following a special fundraising project conducted by team member Cynthia Baldwin of Advance and Rauch of Mocksville.

Nine Ghanaian pupils were added during the trip to an existing 80 students whose costs of higher education as well as, in some instances, room and board, are paid for by North Carolinians under a Storehouse for Jesus educational project begun about two years ago.

There were some gifts, too, including presentation by the Storehouse during the opening ceremony in Kadjebi, Ghana, of a high-powered microscope for the Kadjebi Health Centre. Other gifts to the health centre included a centrifuge, two hospital examination beds and two wheelchairs.

Gifts to the community's "District Children's Library" included $3,000 worth of books and about $4,000 in equipment for the playground, including basketball goals, swings and a number of basketballs.

Slate presented the "key to Mocksville" at the opening ceremony to Chief Nana Ogyeapooo Akompi II of Kadjebi, to the chief's surprise.

Chief executive director of A Storehouse for Jesus, Marie Collins, who started the Storehouse as a one-person operation less than 10 years ago, was the first speaker of the Friday evening report meeting.

She called the Storehouse team's travels "an awesome trip, one which we shall never forget."

The Rev. Dennis Marshall said that "for those who were healed by our team, those of us were truly blessed." He led the group in singing a Ghanaian song which observed that "Yesterday is gone, another day is come, do something new in my life." He told the audience of Storehouse supporters that the song was first sung to his wife, LaRue, a registered nurse and second-time team member, by a group of about 15 children, "and tears came to her eyes as she listed to their song."

Slate said "it was a real pleasure working with the group standing behind me." All members of the U.S. team stayed in the local chief's six-bedroom home, both beds and air mattresses in each bedroom, during the team's Kadjebi visit.

The mayor said that his roommate Rauch arose early. Following breakfast and morning devotions, Slate said one of the high points of the day was walking through Kadjebi to the government clinic where patients had "gathered by the hundreds, special blue cards given to the patients with emergency medical needs. Local doctors saw patients all day long."

One evening during dinner at the chief's house, villagers brought in dresses they had made that day for the women in the group, using material they had selected earlier in the day.

> "The period for devotions was my favorite part of the day, and then we would walk from our devotions to the clinic where people waited for from three to four days to be seen by a doctor."
> - Myra Ireland

Slate said he felt badly that some people who needed to be seen by the doctors could not be seen because of the tight scheduling, and he said he felt for those who could not be helped.

Nurse Peggy Page of Claremont told the supporters that although English is the official language of Ghana, that country has citizens who speak one of as many as 75 dialects. She said that devotions were held each morning of the visit to Ghana by the Storehouse group. Page said the schools in Ghana teach English and French plus as many as nine dialects.

Life expectancy in Ghana, she said, is 57.4 years; there are 57 deaths from every 1,000 live births; average family income is about $410 a year; unemployment averages about 20 percent, and 85 percent of the people have annual incomes "below the poverty level."

While Accra, the capital city, is more modern, Kadjebi, where the medical mission team spent most of its time, has neither television nor telephones, and no newspapers are circulated there. The people live simply.

Myra Ireland, a nurse from Cleveland, N.C., said the medical mission team "became one large family" and the children with whom they came in contact "were so beautiful."

"The period for devotions," she said, "was also my favorite part of the day, and then we would walk from our devotions to the clinic where people waited for from three to four days to be seen by a doctor.

"You felt that they loved God in their churches," she said, adding that there was frequent drumming and dancing. "Worshipping of the people was, and is, my greatest memory from the mission."

Emily Johnson of Mocksville, who helped Rauch in the pharmacy, said that Sept. 21 was the first day off for the team since it began its work a week earlier. She told the Storehouse supporters that team members made a little excursion to distribute clothing and candy in villages near Kadjebi. Among the children seen was a totally naked young boy named "Michael."

Members of the mission team gave him clothing, but he refused to put it on before he had a bath, because he did not want to dirty the clothing. Michael, according to Johnson, was awesome. She added that "it shouldn't be that hard to be a child."

Rauch said it was a pleasure to be a part of the group, although the pharmacy stayed busy all day. "I enjoyed being with the people of Ghana again, and enjoyed playing with the children."

When it came time to assemble the playground equipment, he said that "I found I wasn't as mechanically endowed as I thought I was."

In recalling highlights of the trip, he said it was "very hot, very humid, but we got to visit a waterfall which was very impressive. We also visited the fortress where slaves were being held by their captors before being shipped across the ocean, one-third to Brazil, one-third to the Caribbean and one-third to America."

"The people," Rauch said, "want to reciprocate for the Storehouse gifts, which included about $100,000 worth of medicine. Every time you go on a mission trip like this, you see the hand of God at work."

Cynthia Baldwin of Advance said she took two toy trucks to Ghana with her this trip, to give to the two boys who gave her their handcrafted truck models last year which were made from pieces of tin cans with D-cell battery slices for wheels.

"I found one of the boys among the children who flocked to us, and God brought the other one to the porch of the chief's house so that he, too, could receive the toy truck I had for him."

During a video prepared by Mrs. Baldwin, Marie Collins is shown telling attendees at the opening ceremony, "Thank all of you very much for inviting us to come back this year. It is only through the grace of God that we are here. We treated about 1,500 patients in five days last year. God commands us to love one another."

This year's total proved to be 3,348 patients treated.

"We were well represented by team members in Ghana," Dennis Marshall said. "I truly had a blessed time and want to thank everyone who had anything to do with sending us to Ghana. It's awesome to see just how big God is. God is event bigger than what I believe Him to be.

"I asked my wife this evening what it was she learned from being there again. She told me that 'the things that I thought were important in our world just aren't important.'

"For example, a man walked up to me and told me that 'I haven't had a chance to get through the line.' Then he pulled from his pocket the remains of what had been a small tube of hydrocortisone cream he obtained from the group last year, and said he needed another.

"Part of the feeling you have under those circumstances is that what you're doing is just a 'Band-Aid.' But the man with the used-up tube showed us we did more than that."

The clergyman added that Phil Fuller gave the team hundreds upon hundreds of small metal crosses to distribute. And, he recalled, "If you offer the children candy in one hand and a cross in the other, every time they will take the cross."

He told of one 5-year-old boy who desperately wanted a cross. "I gave him a cross and a Bible," Marshall said, "and the very next day the boy's father gave me a colorful stole, simply for having given his son a cross and a Bible." He wore the stole during his presentation.

When LaRue Marshall went to the podium, she told how a group of Davie County seventh graders collected $100 which was converted, by Mrs. Baldwin, into three basketball goals and four basketballs for the new playground.

Mrs. Marshall, a nurse who worked in the maternity clinic at Kadjebi last year, desperately wanted the prenatal clinic freshly painted, and when team members saw it again on the first day back there, they found it had been painted white and pale yellow.

John Collins said: "We had a good time last year. This year it was ten-fold better. We drew people from 15 and 20 miles away who never would have come to the clinic."

He said he was asked by carpenters building a house, " Why do you love our children?" He said his reply was simple, "Because of Jesus Christ. That's why."

"People in Ghana do not yet understand the concept of volunteering," Marie Collins said. "But, watching Cynthia Baldwin's videotape tonight makes me want to go back to Ghana right now. We are laborers together, laborers with an awesome God."

Started by Mrs. Collins less than 10 years ago as a one-person effort to provide help and hope for the destitute, the Storehouse owns its own building in Mocksville, serves "clients" from Davie and adjacent counties with food and clothing and conducts a free medical clinic one night a week for Davie residents between the ages of 21 and 65 who are without health insurance and with demonstrably low incomes. The Storehouse also operates a pharmacy for eligible Davie residents three days a week.

Aided by 75 or more volunteers from Davie, Forsyth and Rowan counties and with the support of congregants of about 65 churches throughout Davie County, the Storehouse has never paid anyone a penny in salary. Registered with the IRS as a charitable organization, gifts to A Storehouse for Jesus at 464 Depot St. in Mocksville are fully tax-deductible.

Its Ghanaian counterpart, A Storehouse for Jesus - Ghana, is wholly independent, although patterned after the local organization. Michael Asantey, a Hershey Foods consultant residing in Ghana, serves as its executive director, and according to Mrs. Collins, "is vital to the growth of A Storehouse for Jesus - Ghana. He is truly awesome in what he does and accomplishes."

Members of the Taradiddle Players will perform Teeny Tiny Tales Oct. 31 in Mocksville.

Teeny Tiny Tales To Be Performed Here

The Davie County Arts Council will continue its 2002 - 2003 Season, "Catch a Connection to the Arts", with Teeny Tiny Tales, performed by the Tarradiddle Players, touring Company of Children's Theatre of Charlotte, on Thursday, Oct. 31 at 9:15 and 10:30 a.m.

Both performances will be at the Brock Performing Arts Center, 622 N. Main St., Mocksville.

This show is based on new and familiar children's stories, rhymes and songs. A colorful blend of pantomime, dialogue and music, Teeny Tiny Tales is an introduction to the world of live theatre.

Including "The Teeny Tiny Woman" and "The Itsy Bitsy Spider," the show's emphasis is on storytelling and audience participation.

The target audience is preschool age children.

All tickets are $3. For information call the Arts Council Box Office: 751-3000 or e-mail: boxoffice@davicarts.org. Check out the web-site: www.davicarts.org.

Fire Marshal On State Board

Davie County Fire Marshal George Frye was elected to a second one-year term as secretary/treasurer of the N.C. County Fire Marshal's Association at the group's quarterly meeting Oct. 2 in Lillington.

The association is a statewide organization with nearly 200 members who are fire marshals, deputy and assistant fire marshals, fire inspectors, fire protection industry representatives and state government officials.

The mission is to provide additional training for members and to facilitate an exchange of ideas and information to better protect North Carolinians from the hazards of fire.

Frye has been Davie County's fire marshal since 1990.

Hi, my name is Bailey Thomas McKnight and I turned one on Sept. 24.

I celebrated with a big party at my home on Sept. 28.

My parents are Tim and Sherry Bailey McKnight and I have a big brother, Matthew.

My grandparents are Charles and Judy Bailey of Advance and Jackie McKnight of Mooresville.

My party guests enjoyed a cookout and birthday cake with a rubber ducky theme.

I enjoyed spending time with my friends and family. I am also enjoying playing with all of my presents (my big brother is enjoying them, too).

Thank you all for coming to my party and making it so special. I love you all.

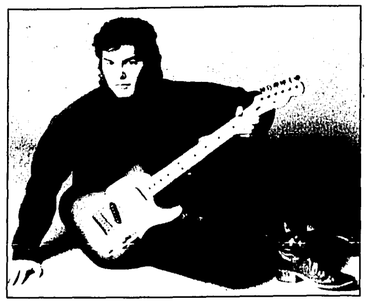
Hello, my name is Brooklyn "Brooke" Marley. I turned two years old Oct. 16.

I had two parties - Elmo and Winnie the Pooh. I celebrated with my family and friends.

My parents are Tim and Jackie Wall Marley of Asheboro.

My grandparents are Hal and Jenny Wall of Harmony and Gene and the late Patricia Marley of Asheboro.

My great-grandparents are Pansy Wall and the late Clarence Wall of Mocksville; Gene and Louise Redding of Asheboro; and the late Lloyd and Lela Hunt of Lexington.



Patrick Fitzgerald Bledsoe received a standing ovation at a Shriner's Convention.

DHS Graduate Performs Original Song At Convention

A 1993 Davie High School graduate received a standing ovation when he introduced and performed an original song written for the Shriner's at their convention in Myrtle Beach, S.C. Sept. 27-29.

Patrick Fitzgerald Bledsoe, son of Jerry and Shelia Bledsoe of Mocksville who lives in Alcoa, Tenn., was asked to perform a song written by him and published by Patrick F. Bledsoe Publishing. He designed his own CD cover and disc. He performs using the name Patrick Fitzgerald.

He will perform Oct. 18-20 in Knoxville, Tenn., at the Shrine Circus.

CDs of the song, "Tiny Hands, Tiny Feet" (A Song For The Shrine) are available by contacting the Kerbela Temple in Knoxville at 865-573-1901. The CD has four cuts of the song, one with orchestra and vocals, orchestra karaoke, piano and vocals and a piano karaoke. Words for the song are included on the inside cover.

Another CD with 12 songs is being planned.

All profits from the sale of the CD will go to support the Shrine's 22 children's hospitals.

Flu Vaccinations Offered By Health Department

The Davie County Health Department will be giving flu and pneumonia vaccinations to Davie County residents at 3 locations on Saturday, Nov. 2, 8:30 a.m.noon.

• Center Fire Department, 2265 U.S. 64 W.;

• Trinity Baptist Church, 2722 U.S. 601 S.;

• Farmington Fire Department, 1880 Farmington Road.

Each year, influenza, commonly known as the flu, kills 20,000 people and hospitalizes 100,000 people in the United States. It is one of the leading causes of death in older adults. Pneumonia is responsible for 14,000 deaths in older adults each year.

Symptoms of the flu begin suddenly and may include fever, severe headache and body aches, sore throat and cough. Fever, chills, muscle/joint pain and extreme fatigue characterize the disease. The flu can make a person more susceptible to pneumonia, an illness that puts a strain on the heart and lungs.

"The flu vaccination can provide protection against this deadly disease," said Davie Health Director Barry Bass.

He urges older adults to make a habit of receiving the flu vaccination each flu season. Older adults should also receive the pneumonia vaccination. One pneumonia vaccination provides protection for a lifetime for most people. Both vaccinations can be received at the same time. Individuals who receive the flu vaccination reach their peak immunity level within two weeks.

The cost for the flu vaccination is $10. The cost for the pneumonia vaccination is $20.00. Medicare B and Medicaid will be billed for those who present their cards at the time of vaccination.

Beginning Tuesday, Oct. 22, health department clinic dates and hours for flu and pneumonia vaccinations will be: Tuesdays, 1-4 p.m.; Wednesdays and Fridays, 8:30-11 a.m.

For questions concerning the flu or pneumonia vaccinations, call the Davie County Health Department at 751-8700.

Christian Network For The Needy To Meet Oct. 22 At Storehouse

The Christian Network for the Needy will hold its next meeting Tuesday, Oct. 22 at 7 p.m. at A Storehouse for Jesus on Depot Street in Mocksville. Members and friends are invited.

The network is a non-denominational outreach to help those in need in Davie County. there are more than 30 churches and civic organizations with more than 120 members active in the outreaches. CNN members sponsored 35 children so they could attend Christian camp this summer. A Storehouse for Jesus is one of the main outreaches with which CNN is in constant contact - letting members know of the needs of Storehouse, which in turn, helps the needs of those less fortunate. From monthly food drives to having members volunteer at the Storehouse, sponsoring families at Thanksgiving and Christmas, to helping financially, are some of the ways the ministry works in the community.

For more information, attend the Oct. 22 meeting or call Virginia Burnette at 998-2660 or Vickie Whicker at 998-5387.

Bryon, Kevin Kirkpatrick Earn Eagle Scout Awards

On Sunday, Sept. 29, Bryon and Kevin Kirkpatrick were presented with their Eagle Scout award at the First Presbyterian Church in Mocksville by Scoutmaster Edwin Owens and Assistant Scoutmasters Dwight Creason and Paul Draughn.

The ceremony began with his mother pinning each son with his Eagle Scout Medal. In return, Bryon and Kevin each pinned their mother with the Mother's Eagle Pin.

Their father presented the Eagle certificate to each son. Bryon and Kevin each pinned the Eagle tie tac on their father.

Troop 525 presented each scout with a framed picture of a scout with a soaring eagle. Owens pronounced Bryon and Kevin to be Eagle Scouts at the conclusion of the ceremony.

A reception was held in Bryon's and Kevin's honor at their home after the service.

The presentation reflects the spirit of scouting. Eagle Scout is the highest award scouting has to offer and reflects the high ideal of the scouting program.

This achievement requires the scouts to earn a minimum of 21 merit badges, the completion of an Eagle service project, and continued involvement in the troop through positions of leadership. The Eagle service project requires that the scout demonstrate leadership skills, and be beneficial for the community, school, or religious institution.

Bryon's Eagle Scout project was to plan and supervise the construction of picnic tables for the First Presbyterian Church. This included purchasing materials, scheduling a workday, and organizing the group of workers. Participants included scout troop members, church youth group and adult members of the church.

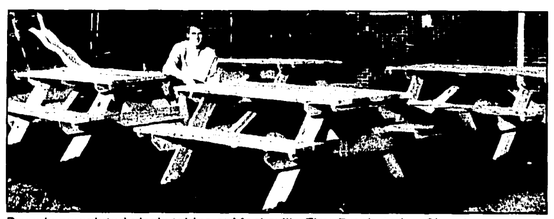
Kevin's Eagle Scout project was to plan, build, and set out birdhouses on the nature trail between Pinebrook School and Vulcan Materials. This included purchasing materials, working with scout troop members to construct the houses, and organizing a day to place the houses.

Bryon and Kevin are members of Boy Scout Troop 525 and are members of the Order of the Arrow. Order of the Arrow is a national brotherhood of honor scout campers. Troop 525 is sponsored by Holy Cross Lutheran Church of Mocksville. Kevin is an Assistant Scoutmaster and Bryon is a Junior Scoutmaster for the troop.

Bryon and Kevin are the sons of Michael and Karen Kirkpatrick of Mocksville. They are members of the First Presbyterian Church in Mocksville and attend Davie High School where Bryon is a junior and Kevin is a senior.

Kevin (above) and Bryon Kirkpatrick show the plaques they received. The hand carved eagles were made by their grandfather, Grover Bledsoe of Pennsylvania.

Bryon (above) and Kevin Kirkpatrick are pinned with the Eagle Scout medal by their mother, Karen, while father Michael looks on.



Bryon's completed picnic tables at Mocksville First Presbyterian Church.

Kevin's completed birdhouse is ready for the nature Trail at Vulcan Materials.

Farmington firefighter Dustin Spillman is in full gear so that young students at Pinebrook can see all of the equipment.

Inside the "smoke house," Pinebrook Elementary students get some fire safety tips.

Students Learn Some Fire Safety Tips

Sparky the Fire Pup was a big hit at Pinebrook Elementary School last week.

He took part in some gym classes with the young students, chased them up and down the halls, and exchanged some high fives.

But mostly, he helped to teach them fire safety.

Members of the Farmington Fire Department were also on hand, with a smoke house purchased by Center Fire Department with a Federal Emergency Management grant.

Farmington Chief Todd Naylor said students in grades kindergarten through third had a short class session on fire safety, ranging from tips around fireplaces and in the kitchen, to escape routes to the stop, drop and roll if you catch on fire.

A firefighter in full gear was on hand, so that students would know what one looks, and sounds like, and not be afraid.

The smoke house is a miniature house which can be filled with smoke so that students can practice an escape. Students with second floor bedrooms were led to the top floor of the two-story portable house.

They got stickers and books, all on fire safety.

"Kids really enjoy and look forward to this, and we hope they learn something," Naylor said.

Firefighters from across the county gave similar programs in other elementary schools.

Team Up For Fire Safety: Davie Fire Marshal Offers Advice

Team up for fire safety.

"It's a simple idea: team up with the people with whom you live, work, play, and worship so that all of you will be better prepared to prevent, and if necessary, survive a home fire," said Davie Fire Marshall George H. Frye Jr.

Frye offers these facts from the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA):

• A home fire is reported to a fire department in the United States every 1-1/2 minutes.

• Someone in the United States dies in a home fire every 2-1/2 hours.

• Three in every 10 home fires start in the kitchen - more than any other place in the home.

• Cooking fires are the number one cause of home fires and home fire injuries in the United States and Canada.

• Cigarettes and other smoking materials are the number one cause of home fire deaths in the United States and Canada. Nearly a thousand people are killed each year.

• Nearly half of fatal U.S. home smoking fires start in upholstered furniture. Non-smokers can help smokers make sure ashes, embers and butts do not fall in or on couches and chairs, and that ashes and butts are doused with water before being thrown away.

• Each year, two of every three home heating equipment fires in the United States, and three of four related deaths, are attributed to space heating equipment, including decorative fireplaces and chimneys.

• Candle fires are on the rise in the United States. In recent years, candles have been associated with more than 10,000 home fires, more than 150 related deaths, and more than 1,000 related injuries each year.

• Nearly half of U.S. home candle fires start in the bedroom.

• Each year, at least 250 people die in home fires associated with electrical distribution equipment problems such as wiring, cords and plugs, light fixtures, switches and outlets, lamps and light bulbs, and fuse and circuit breaker boxes.

• Over half of U.S. electrical distribution equipment home fires and related deaths involve equipment located or partially in walls or ceilings, which should be checked and fixed only by a licensed electrician.

• Smoke alarms listed by a qualified testing laboratory are the most effective early warning device available. Having working smoke alarms in your home cuts your chance of dying in a fire nearly in half.

• One-half of fire deaths occur in the six percent of homes with no smoke alarms.

• Automated fire sprinkler systems typically reduce chances of dying in a fire and the average property loss by one-half to two-thirds in any kind of property where they are used.

• According to an NFPA survey, one-fourth of U.S. families have developed and practiced a home fire escape plan.

"You can help change these statistics by teaming up with your family, friends and coworkers to do three simple things," Frye said. Install and maintain smoke detectors . Develop and practice a home escape plan. Hunt for and remove home fire hazards

"Working together we can reduce the injuries and damage caused by fire," he said.

Students Receive Fire Prevention Materials

Davie County students in grades K-fifth received fire safety coloring books offering fire prevention tips, as well as advice on what to do in case of an emergency.

Firepup, the mascot of the National Fire Safety Council, is featured prominently in the material.

"I am very grateful to our local businesses and civic organizations which participated in this very important project," said Davie Fire Marshal George H. Frye Jr. "Their generous support will help make Davie County more fire safe."

Frye also expressed appreciation to Davie County Schools for agreeing to present the materials to the students.

"It takes a cooperative effort in the community to help our young people become aware of the potential dangers of fire and to teach them how to react in an emergency," he said.

Although the material is planned for distribution during Fire Prevention Month, it can be used at any time.

The following reports are from Judy White's fourth grade cub reporters.

"I am Tori Norris, cub reporter, to Mrs. Donley's third grade class. These are some of the questions I asked them. I said, "What kind of rules do you have?" They had a lot of rules. I can only remember one or two: One of them was being nice to each other. They raised their hands to show me how many kids were in their class. There were 15 girls and 10 boys. That equals 25 boys and girls in their entire class. Then I asked, "Have you been good in class?" They said they were very good which means yes. I asked them what is your favorite subjects? They said math, science, art and music. Then I asked them what they do for fun. They said watch T.V. That's a TV bunch. I asked if they like their new teacher. They all said yes. Then I asked them, "What do you do if one of your kids get in trouble?" They said they had to turn cards. Then I asked, "Have you done any spelling test yet." They said yes a couple. My final question was what are you studying now. They said continents, characters, and friendship. I chose to interview Mrs. Donley's class, because I had her as a third grade teacher and I know some people in her class this year. I believe Mrs. Donley has a great class this year."

Jarrett Wallace and Alex Henry went to Mrs. Cmothers' room.

"We asked these questions. First, we asked what they had been doing in Math? They have been learning about subtraction and measuring. Then we asked what have you been doing in spelling? They said rhyming words. The third question was what do you do after you unpack? They said math meeting. Our fourth question was do you go outside everyday? And they said no. When Jarrett and I were there, we went outside almost everyday. Our fifth question was what books have you read? They said Lost and Found. Our other question was do you like your classroom better than last year? They said yes. Our last question was do you like your homework? THEY YELLED, "NO!!!"

Jourdan Blakley and Heaven Shoffner went to Ms. Dyson's fourth grade class.

"They were doing cursive handwriting when we went in their class. They also do math sets too. Ms. Dyson's class has been good. They do the Pledge of Allegiance in the morning. They do eat in their room on special days. They do have rules like no running and no talking when others are talking. They discussed bus safety. They are reading Stone Fox. Ms. Dyson said most of them keep their desk clean. They're going to read about Davie County next week. They are looking forward to the Davie County tour with Mike Hendrix. For discipline they put their names in the discipline book. Ms. Dyson's class works hard."

Joaquin Ramirez and Jerrick McKnight are reporters in Judy White's fourth grade class, their own class.

"The class' favorite subject is math. The students think math is fun because Ms. White makes the book like it's fun. She models the subject for her students. The class is having a Multiplication Race Crossing North Carolina. Taylor Anderson was the first to finish. Everybody is studying so they can catch up. Students said they like homework especially reading, because they like to learn new things. Mrs. White is reading Harry Potter and summarizes what is happening daily. They like math homework because it makes them smarter, so they can get ready for fifth grade. They were asked if they like to come to school, and Jourdan Blakley said she want to learn and learn. Latrida Tillery said she wants to get smarter. Peyton Blakley wants to be good at new things and become a genius. Emily Davis wants to learn more than her brother. Zachary Paugh wants to be "King of Math." The students have many rules: Be polite, Obey all School Rules, Be on Time, Organize All Materials and Talk when Permission given. Students and teacher have decided that they need to do more work and LESS TALKING! We are having a good year."

"Mrs. Meagher's fourth and fifth grade combination class is a great class. I asked them six questions. I asked them about their class schedule. They said they had reading and math in the morning and science and social studies in the afternoon. I have friends in her class. I can name four people in Mrs. Meagher's class: Cameron Shepperd, Megan Boyer, Jordan Dredan and Jelena West. I wish they were in my class this year. I was nervous when I went inside. But thank goodness my teacher, Mrs. White, said Taylor Anderson could go with me. I thought maybe the 4th grade might be in the class. They weren't, but the 5th grade was. I was like, oh my goodness! I can't do this. But I did. The next question I asked was what have you been doing? They said, a bunch of math, studying clouds, social studies, and the continents. The next question I asked was, how many girls and boys are in each grade? They said 5th grade had 3 boys, 4th grade had 6 boys, and 5th grade has 6 girls, and 4th grade had 6 girls. I added the total of how many girls and boys. There were all together 24 students."

Stephanie Moreno and Carolina Oliva-Hernandez interviewed Mrs. Whaley's fifth grade class about their first few weeks of school. The girls learned that Mrs. Whaley's class is reading Kavik the Wolf Dog as a whole group and that Mrs. Whaley is reading Where the Red Fern Grows to the class aloud. In social studies to go along with their studies of Kavik the Wolf Dog the class is learning about the Pacific States which includes Alaska. Each student had to create a map of Alaska which are on display. In mathematics the class is doing basic math reviews of what they had learned in the fourth grade. Class discussions on many subjects are enjoyed by all. Their class schedule for this year: reading, math, lunch, after lunch they have language arts, social studies, science, cluster time and enhancement classes along with physical education. To finish out the day the class gets to have 15 minutes silent reading period. Fridays are rewards days, because the kids that are good get a 30 minute play time. An outdoor activity, such as kickball is a favorite of the class. The kids have expressed their personalities by making "ME" collages to get to know each other. Mrs. Whaley's class is made up of 15 girls and then 10 boys who all agree that Mrs. Whaley is a good teacher.

David Myers went to his brother's fifth grade class, taught by Ms. Ireland.

"They were doing math. The class was learning about horizontal and vertical lines. They were doing a very good too. If students get in trouble, Ms. Ireland makes them sign the book. Then she grows horns and her eyes roll. Their rules are to respect others, don't hit, just the plain ones. The book they were reading was American Tall Tales. On Fun Fridays they play kickball. Their favorite subjects are science and math.

Judy White's fourth grade students had to say farewell to Katie Potts, Spanish student, from the high school. Katie had been helping in the class with several students for the first nine weeks of school. The class presented her with a card, a framed photograph of the students that she had worked with, and a William R. Davie sweat shirt.

North Davie Middle

Eleven students received exemplary bus passenger awards and were treated to lunch at McDonald's on Mocksville: Brandy Cockerham, Sean Batty, Monica Zakamarek, Daniel Baker, Jennifer Strange, Alex Beauchamp, Daniel Litten, Teri Cope, Kyle Croslin, Kayla Sims, Sy Easling. The Knight Team prime time classes have focused on "Getting to Know You" activities. Hard work, goal setting, bullying, respect and responsibility, the school wide theme, have been discussed.

Language arts classes began the school year reading The Green Book, a science fiction story, which correlated with science classes. In the students literature textbook they have been studying various genres in the theme of "Growing and Changing". The classes are reading the novel, The Door in the Wall, which fits with a study of the Medieval Period.

In social studies, students have completed their first unit of study, an overview of European history. They began with the Greek and Roman civilizations and traveled through the centuries for a brief view of the Middle Ages, the Renaissance and Reformation, World War I and II, and the Cold War. They are focusing the regions of Europe, beginning with the Mediterranean Region. On Oct. 22 the Knights are looking forward to visiting the Renaissance Festival in Huntersville to enhance a study of the Middle Ages in European history. Students will experience craft demonstrations, music, dance, comedy skits and a re-creation of a jousting tournament. The Knights will attend the Greek Festival Nov. 12 to culminate studies of Mediterranean Europe.

The Knights have explored problem solving, order of operations, powers and exponents, scientific notation, equations, and statistics. Students have expanded their thought process by creating their own word problems and acting them out. This has taken them to the moon, the market, CD store, and a revival meeting. These endeavors are designed to make math come to life and be more applicable in the everyday world. Knights will be studying decimals, factors, and pre-algebra in the near future.

Knight students have completed a study of space during the first quarter. The culminating activity was "Space Day" celebrated Oct. 11. Students completed group projects during class time, had refreshments provided by parents, and watched a special space movie. The second quarter study will be soil. Students will bring a soil sample from home in which to test pH, nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium levels. Students will learn why these macronutrients are important to the soil. Students should be able to differentiate between clay, sand, and silt by using test methods.

Important Dates: Oct. 17, early release for parent teacher conference; Oct. 18 & 21, no school, professional days; Oct. 18, P. E. Club trip to Stone Mountain and no school; Nov. 4-15, year-book sales.

Mrs. Spach and her second grade class has read "Luke's Quilt." Some of the skills worked on were long vowel sounds ee, ie, ea, ay, & ai. They also worked on glossary skills with this lesson.

Mrs. Redmond and Mrs. Burford are teaching their second graders adding and subtracting in "BOO" math. In science the children learned about "Land and Water Habitats" where animals and plants get all their needs met.

The second graders in Mrs. Kauff and Mrs. Boswell's class presented dinosaur projects. The review was "Hungry, Hungry Dinos." The children have learned about the kinds of sharks. In math they are learning how to count with coins, using half dollars, quarters, dimes, nickels and pennies. They are learning ways to make the same amount of change.

Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Carter had a take home project, "To Make a Fire Safety Poster". Counting by 2s, 3s, 5s, and 10s has been a math project. They have worked with ones, tens, odd, and even numbers as they continue to work on addition facts.

Third graders in Mrs. Johnson's class are taking off with the "Book It

What's Happening At Davie High

Davie Expands to DCCC

A total 469 new faces joined the halls and classrooms of Davie High this year. With such a large group of students added to the high school's student body, all at once, something had to be done.

Elise Dickmann

Davie High's easy access to Davie County Community College, right across U.S. 601, provided an answer. Davie doesn't have enough classrooms, yet DCCC has empty ones.

During student's everyday class periods buses are taken to and from DCCC for classes such as ELPS and US History. Students and teachers seem to be dealing with the new adjustment in a positive way.

Keith Whitaker, an ELPS teacher says, "I don't mind driving buses and this year's freshmen are the best I've ever had, so they handle it wonderfully."

Jeremy Byrd, a U.S. history teacher says, "It's different because we have to bus over there, but overall it's been positive. We have a big room, we seem to have everything we need there, and the staff has been very nice."

Students even seem to like the change. Drew Yeager, a freshman and student of Mr. Whitaker's class says, "It gives me a feeling of maturity, getting to learn at the college." It's definitely different than being at the high school."

Alyssa Smith, a junior and student of Mr. Link's U.S. History class says, "I like having classes at the community college because it's a different environment from the rest of my classes everyday."

Busing to and from the community college does, on the other-hand take away class time. Whitaker comments, "Students lose about ten minutes a class, but I'm at the same place in the curriculum as I was last year at this time." Some teachers pick up the pace a little, but others such as Byrd says, "It can be a challenge with time, but we can still get things in. I'm making do with what we have."

On the other-hand, Smith says, "We are always behind because the busing to and from the college takes class time away." Staying at the high school would be easier to her. "I think we would have more time to learn and not have to rush through everything", she comments.

But, time isn't an issue to some students. Marcie Dickmann, a freshman in Whitaker's ELPS class says, "Mr. Whitaker speeds the lesson up and makes up for lost time." Dickmann and Yeager also like the different surrounding of DCCC that is different from all of her other classes.

Students as well as teachers adapt to DCCC and make it home for now.

Program" in reading. In order to get pizza coupons, students must read 4 books on their level in October and pass the computer test.

Mrs. Hendrix and Mrs. Plyler's third graders have started a story in their reading book, concen-trating on vocabulary words and comprehension. They began a "Fire Safety Unit" with a speaker. A spelling bee was fun. The class read a story about a spelling bee and the students asked to have a spelling bee. The teachers and the students brainstormed all the words to be used in a fun spelling bee that was on Oct.11. The class is participating in the "Shoe Box Gift," in which they have the opportunity to give to the less fortunate. This involves creating shoebox of gifts for needy children. A list of items to fill the box with was sent home over the weekend. The class hopes to fill 10 shoeboxes.

Students have been excited about starting the first classroom novel, "Bunnicula", in Mrs. Ohr and Mrs. Norman's class. They will be doing various activities to help with comprehension skills. Dollar signs are flowing through the class as the students started working on money. They will use play money to help reinforce how much change they would get back from certain purchases.

Mrs. Smith and her class has been invited to Marchmont Plantation to view airplanes. Mrs. Smith's class is participating in the shoeboxes for the Ministries.

Mr. Manzullo's fifth grade class had a field trip to Horizons Unlimited.

Students of the Week for Sept. 30-Oct. 4: Amanda Osmond, Walker Powell, Shan Dhillon, Justin Mallard, Samantha Maurice, Katie Reed, Lilly Smithdeal, Nick Boswell, Abigail Dupree, Sarah Jane Cranfill, Austina Burton, Nichole Casey, Kendrick Fruits, Rebecca Robertson, Tyler Callaway, Alexandra Smithdeal, Casey Zakamarek, Nick Sizemore, Matt Adderton, Kristen Karns, Taylor Moore.

Students of the Week for Oct. 7-11: Brant Dupree, Maddy Voreh, Tauran Wyse, Curtis Mabe, Scott Dennard, Caroline Wagoner, Kayla Lane, Carly Cook, Ashleigh McIntyre, Stephanie Graham, Morgan Rowe, Jay Stancliff, Vance Greene, Lake Shabach, Alyssa Mossman, Luke Bartelt, Jennifer Rominger.

Cooleemee Elementary

Miss Boddy's class has been busy this week practicing fire safety. The teacher intern from Davie High, Ms. Benfield, and her father treated students to a firefighter demonstration. They suited up and showed how to keep safe in a house fire. They learned how to stop, drop, and roll.

The students of Miss Brown and Mrs. Levens have finished a unit on the farm. The class read "Jimmy's Boa Ate the Wash" and wrote stories about their favorite pets. Mrs. Levens read "Charlotte's Web" to the class; after which, students made individual dioramas.

The students in Mrs. Cornatzer and Mrs. West's class took a trip to the pumpkin patch on Friday. They made a scarecrow, went on a hay ride, and picked their own pumpkins. This week they visited the Cooleemee Fire Department, where firefighters showed the fire trucks, talked with about what to do in case of a fire, and gave each a fire hat.

Fifth graders are wrapping up their first quarter. Many students have met their Accelerated Reader requirement and will be participating in an ice cream party to celebrate their accomplishment. Fifth graders have started their weekly guidance lessons with Ms. Tevepaugh. About half of the fifth grade students have started working with the new Accelerated Math program. All students will eventually work with the program.

Mrs. Essic's science classes have completed a unit on weather and climate, and they were kept busy tracking the many tropical storms and hurricanes during the past month. They are beginning a unit on Earth's changes.

Mrs. Custer's class has been studying the letters A and P. The student's made penny banks and pencil holders with pointy patches on them. They have also been doing activities learning about patterns and had a great time at Fall Games. The students played various games with students from the other elementary schools.

The fourth grade went on two field trips. Last Friday they went to Old Salem. The students got to weave, work with pottery, and paint. On Monday, they went to Rich Park and talked about conserving water, recycling and more. In math they are starting to work on multiplication. This will be a large focus for the next few weeks, along with some new material.

Mocksville Elementary

Student of the Week, Oct. 7-11: William Collett, Ross Ginther, Jonathon Shoaf, Cody Sanders, Anthony Hinchker, Nick Sinopoli, James Dale, Nandia Johnson, Amber Hunter, Aisha Mock, Faith Collins, Barry Etchinson, Alex Lashmit, Savannah Taylor, Sarah Spomanagle, Gabe Smith, Anna Marie Whitaker, Katera Cockerham, Elizabeth Santis, Joey Marcella, Stephanie Parker, Alex Lantis, Krista Hamm, Kirsten Gaddy, Rachael Moore, Kelcey Sykes, Michael Lanning.

Ms. Langer and Mrs. Zoubeck's class has been working very hard. They have been working on the sound of the letters h, o, g, l, p, t and a. They have begun to identify the sounds in words. They started a word worm and have added several words to it that the children are able to read. They are talking about the fall season and how it affects living things. They can order the numbers 0-10 and can identify a missing number.

Mrs. Everett's first graders have been reading and writing about insects and spiders. They read the book "What Bus Is It?" by Pat Cummings. The book is about a teacher who takes her class on a field trip. The children learn how to compare and contrast different kinds of bugs. In math, the students are memorizing their doubles and the plus one facts. The children are awaiting the PTA Fall Festival Oct. 24.

Mrs. Starnes and Mrs. Brown's second graders have been practicing letter writing. The topic of these letters was grandparents. Their rough drafts showing the five parts of a letter were typed in a final draft in the computer lab. Addresses of those that will be their guest(s) for Grandparents' Day were put on envelopes along with our class' return address. Stamps were designed based on what the children think about when thinking of their special guest. These deliveries were made in person Oct. 11.

Mrs. Lankford and Mrs. Shuler's third graders have been studying plants and what they need to grow. The students have observed what happens to plants when they have no water or light. They learned the parts of the plants and function of each part.

The class has finished two more novels, "Fish Face" and "Freckle Juice" and are reading "Donovan's Word Jar." They are creating a word jar with new words they are collecting from novels.

They will soon begin a study of letter writing and will share letters with a pen pal from another elementary school in Davie County. They will write to them all year and eventually get to meet them in May.

Mrs. Price's fourth grade students are observing black molly and guppy babies, born in late September, in the class aquarium. At the Air and Water Conservation Field Day at Rich Park, students visited nine learning stations. On Oct. 15, fourth graders will make dulcimers from shoe-boxes as part of the Elementary Appalachian Project and a study of North Carolina. Representing Mrs. Price's class are Student of the Month Ashton Swicegood, and Terrific Kids Chase London and Kevin Jordan.

Sylvia Smith and Ms. Stewart's class went to The Museum of Anthropology on the campus of Wake Forest University. They learned about the culture of the Mayan Indians. Ayana Banks celebrated her birthday on the same day.

In science the class is studying the weather. The novel they are reading in communications connects with this study. They are reading "Night of the Twister." They have tracked the recent tropical storms and hurricane to improve their skill with lines of longitude and latitude, as well as study the weather.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. McDaniel and Mrs. Peacock's class have been learning about farm animals, apples and fall. Activities have included making a farm scene for the classroom. Each student has made farm animals to put on the mural as well as a "personalized" farmer with each child's picture. The class painted apple prints, planted apple seeds and made apple/farm animal print t-shirts. They wore their shirts on their field trip to Carrigan Farms and the Lazy Five Ranch. The children had lunch with their grandparents this month. They will travel to the Brock Center at the end of the month to see a play, and then travel to a pumpkin patch to collect the "perfect pumpkin" for each child.

The fourth and fifth grade music students gave a performance at the September PTA meeting titled "Welcome Back to School." The students learned to play accompaniments on pitched and unpitched instruments, read rhythm patterns and performed them in a round with body percussion, added movements to a piece of music to help distinguish its form, and discussed the proper way to use their singing voices.

Third graders have studied a unit on meter and learning to identify how the beats are grouped in music by looking at the time signature and listening to a variety of musical examples. They have explored form in music by identifying verse and refrain and discussed what makes each section of music different. They have been singing all types of music including traditional children's songs, folk songs, and even a fun new favorite; "Supermarket Shuffle."

The second grade classes have been singing a variety of music in a study of form. They danced to the beat of "Old Dan Tucker" and "Shake Them 'Simmons Down" as they learned about folk music in preparation for the Appalachian Project being sponsored by the Arts Council in October. They are learning to "follow the road map" of music as they identify traditional music symbols and terms, as well as clapping and playing rhythm patterns on instruments.

Vibration has been the "buzz" word in the kindergarten and first grade music classes. They experimented with their voices and instruments to see what is making that sound. The kindergartners have been learning about the difference between singing and speaking voices while singing songs about colors and numbers. Their "Brown Bear, Brown Bear" puppets got to try out their singing voices. They clapped and played rhythm patters along with these songs.

First graders have been playing hand bells, xylophones and the glockenspiel to accompany songs about voice, such as "You'll Sing a Song" and "You've Gotta Sing." Earlier in the year, the first graders played rhythm instruments and followed a percussion score as they began to learn note names and patterns. They started the year with an "Old Black Fly" buzzing around.

Cornatzer Elementary

Students have been taking part in the school's second Multi-Cultural Week. The week started with a Yankee Doodle Dandy assembly, followed by the Parade of Flags. On Wednesday, students went to the Multi-Cultural Fair in the gym, where they were able to visit stalls from many countries and learn about their customs. The week culminated on Thursday with a dance assembly.

The school's PTA Fall Festival last week was a success with hundreds of students and families.

Kindergarten and first grade students are planning to celebrate the 100th day of school in a special way - by reading 100 books. The goal is for all K-1 students to have read 100 books by Jan. 17, the 100th day of school. All students who meet this goal will earn a ticket to join the audience for a special assembly program.

Students in Karen Cook's acceleration classes are off to a great start. Second graders are learning short vowels and contractions. They read "Best Little Monkey" and "The Trouble with Money." Third graders are learning short vowels and antonyms as well as discussing pioneer life after reading "Wagon Wheels." Fourth graders are working with long "A" patterns and antonyms. They have read "Poppy's Chair" and the "Picture Book of John F. Kennedy," a biography.

The kindergarten class of Mrs. Myers and Mrs. McBride has been in the fall spirit. Students enjoyed a unit about apples. They graphed, drew, painted, counted, and even cooked apples. Students had some hands-on experience as they peeled their own apples to make applesauce for an afternoon treat. Students have been talking about the seasons of the year. They made trees with their arms and decorated them and decorated them for the seasons. The favorite has been the pumpkin unit. Students learned about the life cycle of the pumpkin and saw many sizes and shapes. They decorated, sequenced, counted, graphed and made pumpkin muffins. A pumpkin decorating contest was fun - everyone was a winner.

Mrs. Myers' students joined other kindergarten classes on a field trip to Horizons in Salisbury recently where they had a picnic lunch in the park. Students have been getting ready for their first report card and Mrs. Myers is looking forward to seeing all parents at conferences.

Mrs. Dalton's kindergartners have been having fun with apples and pumpkins. They learned about the sounds that the letter "A" can make and read lots of literature about apples and Johnny Appleseed. In centers, students made apple prints with gummy worms crawling in and out - a way to learn positional words. They made an apple tree by writing a number and number word on the trunk and fingerprints represented apples on the tree. Students also graphed their favorite apples after having a tasting session, and on Sept. 26 they celebrated Johnny Appleseed's birthday by making applesauce and wearing a hat that

South Davie Middle School Inducts 78 Into Beta Club

South Davie Middle School's Junior Beta Club held its annual induction ceremony Monday, Oct. 7.

Seventy-eight seventh and eighth grade students joined the 51 members already in the club.

The officers are: Amy Bellucci, president; Taylor Randall, president elect; Lauren Parker, secretary; and Kelly Felts, treasurer. Sponsors are Mrs. Garner, Mrs. Holleman, Mrs. Marklin, and Mrs. Wenker. They have monthly meetings and complete at least three service projects during the year.

The service projects include a collecting canned food for Storehouse for Jesus, participating in pet therapy at a local nursing home, creating holiday cards and posters, selling lollipops to provide funding for students who cannot afford to pay for field trips, tutoring, and being "Big Buddies" to specially-identified sixth graders.

Two social activities will be held during the year, the first being an after-school trip in November or December.

New members include: seventh grade - Angelica Loj, Ashley Absher, Tanner Lowe, Mary Absher, Eric Lowery, Alex Appelt, Dee Ann Lytle, Trey Archer, Braxton McDaniel, Caitlin Atkinson, Kristin McMillan, Summer Best, Erika Miller, Sarah Bishop, Sarah Moore, Sarah Blackwell, Maria Nail, Amanda Bridges, Jeff Nuckols, Kenzie Brown, John Parker, Lee Cain, Elizabeth Peeler, Grady Cartner, Nicholas Potts, Tayler Cave, Amy Presley, Dylan Cheek, David Pruitt, Meghan Collins, Taylor Randall, Amanda Cook, Ashley Scholl, Tonya Correll, Justina Scott, Morgan Costner, Colby Seaford, Caleb Creason, Billy Short, Tatum Crews, Rachel Simpson, Elizabeth Crowe, Nora Smith, Chelsea Davis, Drew Spillman, Michael Domanski, Sonny Stanley, Magan Doss, Amanda Stewart, Abe Drechsler, Laura Vanhoy, Jon Ferree, Matt VanHoy, Lameisha Fowler, Erin Williams, Mary Kate Frisby, Brian Gaither, Tekaira Gaither, Ashlee Haithcox, Brittany Harris, Lauren Hauser, Brian Hicks, Kristy Hite, Noel Holland, Clint Howell, Brandon Jones, Tori Karlek, Jamie Keegan, Ayanna Leach; eighth grade - Heath Boyd, Debbie Goldner, Jennifer Hamilton, Jodi Harpe, Zach Howard, Jamie Koontz, Cassandra Meloy, Terrance Phifer and Allyson Reynolds.

Jonathon, Vanessa and Justin Barker enjoy refreshments. Justin is an eighth grade student and member of the Beta Club.

Julie Marklin and Tina Felts serve punch during the Beta Club reception, organized by Mrs. Felts.

Sonya Hunter shows her pride in her daughter, Elizabeth Choplin, who has been a Beta Club member for two years.

resembled Johnny Appleseed's cooking pot. Students learned lots of information during the week they studied fire safety. Through activities they learned about the tools that firefighters use, how to prevent fires, and also ways to escape a fire. Students also learned what to do in case of an emergency, how to dial 911, and how to give their name and address.

Most recently, students have been focusing on pumpkins and the letter "P." They have finger painted a pumpkin patch, glued pumpkin seeds on matching numbers, studied the parts of a pumpkin, and had a pumpkin decorating contest. Cathy Byerly and Becky Peeler's third graders have read biographies. Students learned about famous people, including Benjamin Franklin, Helen Keller, Roberto Clemente, Harry Houdini and Beethoven. In science, children have been learning about soil and will build upon this knowledge during a field trip to Horizons in Salisbury.

In P.E. classes, all grades worked hard to prepare for the annual Jump Rope for heart. They perfected short rope skills, simple jumps and more complex jumping. Jump Rope for Heart was held Oct. 2 and students raised more than $1,600 for the American Heart Foundation. "They did a great job, as well as having fun and raising money, they also learned lots about their heart and how exercising can benefit health," said P.E. teacher Tammy Reavis, who is busy organizing the annual fall field day which will be held Oct. 31 for all grades.

Cougars of the Week: Nicole Lusk, Manuel Roman-Munoz, Ashley Browning, Tristan Stewart, Emilie Fetherhey, Ryan Hepler, Bibiana Arroyo-Vargas, Dylan Maciaszek, Darius Banner, Katie San Filippo, Karina Ramirez, Brittany Hoose, Tracie Thomas, Britney Willis, Jessica Stanley, Drew Andrade, Erin Deadmon, Erin Naylor, Esteban Obando, Lizbeth Enriquez, Dillon Rothrock.

A reminder to parents: Thursday, Oct. 17 - Early Release Day; Friday, Oct. 18 - No school, parent conferences; Monday, Oct. 21 - No school, parent conferences; Wednesday, Oct. 23 - Venezia's Night; Friday, Oct. 25 - 7:15-8:15 a.m., PTA breakfast for children, parents and faculty; Thursday, Oct. 31 - Fall Field Day.

Central Davie

Developmental Day I Student of the Week, Oct. 7-11: Adam Peacock. Color of the week was brown. Students had brown snacks and made a brown collage. The class talked about bears. They painted bears brown and colored bears. They read books about bears and learned songs about bears. They acted out Goldilocks and the Three Bears. They brought their bears from home to share with each other and to have a bear picnic on Friday. They had a great time at the Dixie Classic Fair, and are thankful for all of the parents and grandparents who went. They enjoyed seeing all the animals and petting them. The class will begin talking about the color orange, fall and pumpkins.

Developmental Day II Student of the Week: Charlie Collett. Ms. Brandi's class has been discussing fall and leaves. They have a blast examining colors. They liked our nature walk. Students collected several items. The children enjoyed raking leaves into a pile and jumping in them. They read several books on things they can do in the fall, and learned many things through leaf movement games.

Sue Tucker, Joyce Beck and Amanda Shoffner's pre-kindergarten class has been studying the letters "F" and "L." The children sponge painted fall leaves onto trees. They continue to practice tracing and cutting skills. They wrote the letter "L" with red licorice on big leaves and wrote stories about the leaves. Students stamped fish on a large "F" and used little lizard stickers on the letter "L." One of the math activities centered around frogs. Using plastic frogs, they counted frogs on a log, counted frog hops and sorted frogs by color.

A trip to the Dixie Classic Fair was exciting because most had families to share the day. Ms. Sue got cotton candy for the children to share the following day. Student of the Week is Cory Heiner. Cory is a good leader and a good friend to everyone.

South Davie

Mrs. Anderson's social studies students have been studying Ancient Egyptian civilization. Culminating activities including pharaoh research, Egyptian cartouches and an in-depth study of the Egyptian pyramids.

Mr. Adams's classes have been working on a group project concerning weather. Students have worked hard on these projects. Classes are working on body systems. They will go to Hickory to visit the Catawba Science Center Oct. 25.

Ms. Salyers's general math classes have been studying fractions. First period completed maze projects. Sixth and seventh periods completed posters and comic strips.

Ms. Salyers's advanced math class has been learning to solve equations and inequalities. This class completed the first quarter project of writing, designing and publishing a math magazine.

Mr. Brickey's communication classes have been working on getting ready for this year's writing test by working on spelling and reviewing grammar. Both concepts are new to the test this year.

Advanced communication classes have been working hard at Wordly Wise. They have been working on a current issue project that will conclude at the end of October. They have begun a pen pal program with a middle school in Sweden.

School Board Briefs

November Meeting Begins Early

The school board will meet Nov. 4 at 6:30 p.m. at Central Davie Education Center. The meeting will start with an executive (closed) session.

Garner Wal-Mart Teacher of the Year

Belinda Garner was honored by the board of education for being named a Wal-Mart Teacher of the Year. "I love what I do," said Garner. "You're nominated by the students of Davie County. This is a very special honor." She teaches sixth grade math and science at South Davie Middle School.

Parker Receives Beasley Service Award

Daughn Parker, Davie Schools food service director, was honored with the 2002 Mary Long Beasley Distinguished Service Award, which is given by the North Carolina Food Service Association.

Christine Correll, Culinary Arts Winner

Christine Correll won first place in the seasonal decorations competition among school food service workers. Correll created a garden theme for the students at Cooleemee Elementary School.

Teacher Assistant Hours Reinstated

Although the board of education won't have complete allotment information from the state budget until Oct. 14, members were given some preliminary numbers. "We can restore teaching assistant numbers back to what they were last year," said Superintendent Dub Potts. They were expecting an 8 percent cut from last year, but the cuts weren't as bad as projected.

Fingerprinting, DNA Records

After a meeting with Sheriff Allen Whitaker, the schools will be offering the opportunity to start fingerprinting and DNA records for kindergartners. In the past, some schools have offered the program but asked parents to pay for it. This year funds will come out of the sheriff's budget. It is estimated that all K-5 students could be recorded in two years. A meeting was scheduled to discuss the program with principals and parents will be notified once a procedure is in place.

Mebane Foundation Awards Grant

Davie and Yadkin schools have been collectively awarded a $25,000 grant for Hill Center programs for teachers. Details of how the training money will be split have not been worked out.

Community School Fee Schedule

Due to some confusion in the community school fee schedule, it has been proposed that the wording be changed from "football fields" to "athletic fields." All rates in the schedule would remain the same.

Family Life Education Changes OKd

The board unanimously approved adding a fourth grade girls one-time class covering hygiene and puberty. Frances Tutterow told the board that research shows that puberty is occurring earlier in boys and girls. The program is one in which parents must give permission for students to attend.

North Davie Advisory Council Change

K.J. Keiser was approved to take the place of his wife on the North Davie Middle School advisory council. His wife accepted a position which precludes her from completing her term.

Shady Grove Gym Named

The board approved naming the Shady Grove Elementary School gymnasium after Vestal Potts. Potts worked with Davie County Schools for 35 years, and spent more than 40 years as a community liaison in Shady Grove, board member Janie Garnett said.

Budget Amendment Approved

The board approved an increase of $21,825 for fuel truck maintenance and school equipment and technology allotments.

Schools To Offer Program For Pre-Kindergarten Age

Davie County Schools will open a "More at Four" pre-kindergarten classroom beginning Oct. 28.

This class will be held Monday-Friday at Cornatzer Elementary School from 8:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. The program is offered at no charge.

If you have a child who will be 4 years old on or before Oct. 16, you may pick up an application at any of the elementary schools, Central Davie Education Center or the Davie County Schools Administrative Office. A limited number of slots are available.

The application deadline is Oct. 23. Contact the preschool coordinator at 751-7704 for more information.

Retired School Personnel Meet

Davie County Retired School Personnel met for their regular monthly meeting at noon on Oct. 3 at Bermuda Run Country Club.

Sheriff Allen Whitaker was the speaker. He gave information on ways to increase home security, vehicle safety, personal safety, and neighborhood safety. Whitaker also reviewed duties of his department which includes 30 sworn officers and some 30 other civilian and detention personnel.

He offered to give the group a tour of the new Davie County Detention Center, and said he hopes to continue the DARE program in the schools despite state budget cuts.

President Lorene Markland reported the welcome news that the state budget includes a two percent cost of living adjustment in retired teachers' pensions, retrocative to July 1. The increased amount will be reflected in October retirement checks. She stressed that a strong state-wide retired school personnel organization is crucial to insuring future consideration by the legislature. An increase in membership of 10-15 percent is needed.

A health fair will precede the next meeting at 11 a.m. Nov. 7, which will also be at Bermuda Run Country Club. Flu and pneumonia shots will be available from the Health Department. There is no charge if you have Medicare; otherwise there is a $10 fee for flu shots and $20 for the pneumonia vaccine.

A blood profile will be available for $16 which gives a complete blood count, triglycerides, cholesterol, and blood sugar. Blood pressure checks will be given free. State NCRSP president Nell Hunneycut will be a guest at the meeting. Call Sadye Barger at 751-5489 or Lorene Markland for information.

2 Attend Cooleemee Ordinance Hearing

By Kim Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

COOLEEMEE - Two people attended the Cooleemee public hearing on the proposed town ordinances.

After more than an hour of discussion between commissioners, and later the public, the board unanimously approved the new ordinances. The ordinances went into effect immediately, and are all inclusive, replacing previous ones.

Previously, the towns ordinances totaled about 35 pages. Now they have 130 pages of ordinances and definitions, dealing with everything from the authority of the mayor in a state of emergency, to abandoned and junked vehicles and nuisance dogs and loose fowl.

Under the new ordinances, amusement businesses such as game rooms and pool halls will have to apply for a license, at a cost of $50. They will be given two weeks to comply with the new ordinances before they apply for the license.

Last minute changes made during the public hearing included limiting the hours of operations of pool halls and game rooms. With the changes, they will close at 10 each night, and cannot open before 1 p.m. on Sundays.

Burning permits for locations within the town limits will be given by the town clerk. Members of the board considered allowing burning on certain days or banning burning entirely, but decided they couldn't do so until they could offer leaf pickup instead.

Trish Chandler wanted specific information regarding nuisance dogs and disturbing the peace, two issues that have plague her neighborhood. While there is no limit to the number of dogs a person can have, there are provisions for loud and habitual barking and dogs running loose. People running kennels or breeding dogs, she was told, would be dealt with through the zoning ordinances. The first offence for nuisance dogs gets a warning, the next time there is a problem, it's a $50 fine. There are fines in place for disturbing the peace as well.

Carl Smith asked that the code officer be given some sort of identification so people know who he is. This individual contracts to the town and comes when requested to site homes that are in violation of nuisance ordinances, such as a home with a junked car in the yard. Michael Barron suggested the officer could ride with the police chief so there would be no confusion.

With the approved changes to the draft copy of the ordinances, the town will send the changes to a publisher to get a clean copy printed. The town will receive a total of 12 copies of the bound version, which will be available at various places in the county for the public to review. Until then, a copy can be found in the town clerk's office.

No Charges To Be Filed Against Woman Who Took Girls For Weekend

In a press release issued by the State of North Carolina General Court of Justice, District Attorney Garry Frank has said the woman who took her eight year old daughter and a seven year old friend out for the weekend will not receive criminal prosecution.

This decision was announced after careful review of investigative reports provided by the Davie County Sheriff's Department concerning the case.

The woman and the two girls were reported missing after not returning home Saturday, Oct. 5 as had been planned.

The press release pointed out that the seven year old friend had stayed for overnight visits with the woman and her daughter on other occasions and all other times the woman had returned the child home in a timely fashion.

The woman was stopped Sunday, Oct. 6 on her way to Davie from Rowan County where she and the two children had spent the weekend. The press release stated the woman was unaware that she, her child and the seven year old were the subject of a search.

In conclusion the press release said the evidence and factual information contained in the investigation did not reveal any criminal intent on the part of the woman but instead indicated a serious lapse in judgment on her part.

Re-Elect

Michael D. Allen

Republican Incumbent for

DAVIE COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

Citizens of Davie County:
Thank you again for your support this past Primary Election. There are many issues that are being addressed by our present board. Before I make a decision, all facts are looked at and considered. This is where citizen's input comes in. I feel I am the right candidate to be a voice for the citizens of Davie County. To bring across what they say, what the county can afford, and what the county deserves.

I am seeking your support and your vote on November 5th to continue this task.

The state budget has put a tremendous burden on the taxpayers of Davie County. Money owed to Davie County is "no longer there" but we are using our right to fight for it.

I believe in a balanced growth in all aspects of Davie County. This includes industry, schools, businesses, and housing. To achieve this, we all have to work together as one. This means listening to the citizens, business leaders, along with local and state government. Each area that has concerns have their own special needs. I take each issue, along with the information before me and cast a vote that I feel is the best for the citizens of Davie County.

Our county is known for its outstanding volunteerism. I am concerned about what goes on in Davie County. This is why I am asking for your vote on November 5th.
If re-elected I will perform to the best of my ability for you, the Citizens of this Great County of Davie.

Thank you,
Michael D. Allen

High School In, Middle School Out In Bond Proposal

By Kim Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

Almost two years after the original facility needs plan was sent to Raleigh, county commissioners approved beginning the school bond process Monday night.

"When the capital request first came before the board it was in excess of $50 million," said county commissioner Ken White, who served on the school facility task force. "We've tried to be sensitive to what out taxpayers could handle. We have emerged with a plan that we think will allow us to start on the task of meeting our facility needs."

One bond will be put before the voters around March or April 2003. The total cost is not to exceed $29 million. Getting down to that figure took a lot of discussion between the board of education and the county commissioners, discussion that continued through Monday afternoon, prior to the county board meeting.

White said the most critical school needs were at the elementary and high school levels. By removing the middle school from this package, the total cost dropped by close to $10 million. "We will probably have a continuum of the planning process for the middle school," said White. "Right now, we've got to live within our means."

"There will be middle school needs in the future and we are committed to addressing them," said Commissioner Bobby Knight. "The issue is affordability due to circumstances beyond our control."

Family members watch as rescue members work at the wreck scene.

Couple Dies In Wreck

A Mocksville couple died last week when their car crashed into a creek close to their home on Liberty Church Road.

Family members discovered the car, submerged in a creek, the following day. Highway Patrol investigators aren't sure exactly what happened.

Trooper A.J. Farmer reported that Harold Sidney Renegar, 72, was driving the car when it went off the road to the right, hit a tree, and overturned into the creek.

Renegar and his wife, Sherlie McEwen Renegar, 74, both died.

The two were on their way home from a doctor's appointment on Tuesday, Oct. 15. Family members reported them missing later that night, and sons found the car on Wednesday morning.

The couple was described as loving parents devoted to their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Davie High Quits Offering APP Classes To Students

By Kim Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

Appalachian State University's Admissions Partnership Program (APP) will not be offered to Davie High students next year.

The high school plans on offering Advanced Placement (AP) classes through the national College Board advanced placement program instead. But parents haven't accepted the decision with open arms.

The majority of the parents who attended a Wednesday night meeting were upset. Prior to the meeting they had received letters from Appalachian regarding upcoming registration and were invited to a meeting on Oct. 16.

Upon learning of the university's letter, a letter was sent from the high school warning parents not to commit funds to Appalachian, as the program was not going to be offered.

Dr. Linda Bost, Davie High School principal, scheduled a meeting to explain the situation to parents, which she described as a misunderstanding. The guidance

County OKs Additional Half Cent Sales Tax

By Kim Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

Effective Dec. 1, Davie County will see a rise in the sales tax to 7%, of which the county receives 2.5%.

The half-cent increase is expected to bring in approximately $500,000 by the end of the fiscal year in June.

"I feel that it is a forced issue," Commissioner Michael Allen said after making the motion.

"It is something we don't want to do. But we are losing money that is dutifully ours and this is really only the one option, with the exception of the lawsuit, that we have."

"It's certainly no consolation to me or this board to have to enact this sales tax," said Commissioner Bobby Knight, seconding Allen's motion. "It's disappointing…but we don't have any choice."

The money created by the sales tax increase would help fund basic services throughout the county that were funded through reimbursements, commissioners said.

Raleigh also approved a "hold harmless" clause that would help Davie and other counties that won't raise an equal amount of money through the sales tax, beginning in January 2003. For at least 10 years, the state would pay Davie County the additional money needed to meet what the county used to receive through reimbursements. If the county receives $1 million from the sales tax increase, the state would provide the additional $1.6 million to meet the $2.6 million the county previously received.

"No one's excited about this, but it appears to be the best thing overall," said Chair Dan Barrett.

Turn Clocks Back 1 Hour

Daylight Savings Time ends at 2 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 27, so be sure to turn your clocks back one hour before going to bed Saturday night.

The weekly "Water Watch," an ongoing list of water usage in Mocksville and Davie County, appears on page 4 of this issue.

The watch includes the amount of water used during the past week in each of the water systems.

Davie County is still under a Stage 3 moderate mandatory water conservation policy. This means that residents are required to conserve water, and can only use water for gardening and washing cars on Wednesday evenings and Saturday mornings.

Town Delays Action On Request To Close Street

By Kim Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

More than 40 people crammed into the Mocksville Town Hall to speak in favor of closing the section of Clement Street between Water Street and Lexington Road.

No one spoke in opposition, although some of the town board members said they had received calls at home asking the street not be closed.

Tom Nesbit spoke on behalf of the First Presbyterian Church.

"The church has freely given its property for the town," he said, referring to land the church had given for expanded parking on Main Street and additional land so that U.S. 64 could be broadened.

"We willingly give our property so that the town can benefit. But Highway 64 is now a major truck route and Clement Street is a danger. It's an accident waiting to happen. It is a clear and present danger to the members of our congregation, to the children, to the elderly, to anyone crossing that street."

According to Nesbit, the turn onto Clement Street is blind and drivers can't see people crossing the street. He said the town had asked as early as 1988 that the road be closed. He went on to say that if that section of Clement Street were to be considered a new project today, the N.C. Department of Transportation would not approve it.

The board was considering an alternative to closing the street that would make it a one-way road.

Nesbit believes that by considering the alternative, the board admits there is a problem. As a counter offer, the church has offered to put a curb cut into its parking lot at their own expense and pay the road closing costs.

Fall Colors On Display In Mountains

LITTLE SWITZERLAND — You could almost see the leaves turn colors.

They were almost all green the day before. And now, they were putting on the hues of yellow and red

We were at 3,600 feet — high enough to feel the crisp fall air, but low enough to be under the clouds that moved in Sunday afternoon.

The place is well named.

It's as close to the real Switzerland as I ever expect to be, but it must have a touch of the real thing.

It was sweater weather — a good 10 degrees chillier than back at home.

The first leaves were gently falling as we drove on the Blue Ridge Parkway. It's a good thing the parkway was built during Depression years. Environmentalists and lawyers would never allow it to be built now. The strand of highway that winds through the mountains lets us get close to the leaves, the mountains, the streams and the bears that help us appreciate the nature environmentalists never want us to see.

Sunday was one of those beautiful days that mixed all the elements of nature. Rain threatened, but the sun darted in and out of the clouds. The tops of the tall mountains had already put on the first colors of autumn, but the lower peaks were still green.

People drove slowly and marveled.

Blustery winds pushed off the leaves and littered the highway path, and the rush of wind from the traffic kicked them back into the air.

There was more to see here than the mountains and the leaves.

We stumbled on a book store packed with more books than the National Archives. The store front was small, but the building seemed to stretch for a mile. The aisles were maybe three feet wide, and we sucked in our breath to wiggle around other customers.

The aisles made a labyrinth, and books were stacked in every conceivable nook — head high and higher. Books about everything. Used books, new books. Reference books. Best sellers. Hard to find books. Leather bound. Paperback.

Fortunately, I didn't have much cash. Robert would have broken me. He wanted to negotiate a deal with the owner — to work for books.

She was the one person who could make sense of the store. She knew where things were. There was a system in the chaos.

Traveling in the mountains is no longer the challenge it used to be. Wide, four-lane highways now can carry tourists to see the leaves. But there are still those winding, looping, twisting roads that bring out the Richard Petty in some of us. Others are suddenly timid on the roads.

There's no need to be in a hurry at this time of year.

"Getting there" is less important than simply taking in the beauty and splendor of the fall colors.

People who are supposed to know about such things have predicted a bad year for the mountain colors. They could be right about that. It's too early to say.

But even a bad year is inspiring in these mountains. If Sunday's colors are any indication, there won't be too many people disappointed to be here.

We had to come home too soon.

Keep APP Classes At Least 2-3 More Years

To the editor:

I want to thank Dr. Bost and her staff for the interesting presentation on the new AP program at Davie High School starting next year. I was impressed with the 18 months to two years of research and planning that went into her decision to end the APP program. It was apparently such a time consuming study that there was no time to include parents, students, the SIT team or the school board in the decision process.

This meeting, and the strange timing and events that led up to it, were a wonderful education in the governance of the public school system, at least in Davie County.

I appreciated that Dr. Bost took full responsibility for the decision. Unfortunately, aside from suffering a short period of caustic comments of irate parents and a few bold students, she will not suffer any consequences of her unilateral decision-making. She doesn't pay our children's college tuition - parents do. She doesn't have to spend a full year in a classroom, and then repeat the same course again in college because, she was afraid to take the test, or because she had a bad test day - the student does. We don't get to vote for principals - we vote for school board members.

The presentation for the AP Program displayed the wide array of programs that might be available to gain the interest and participation of a much wider cross section of students. Unfortunately, most of these programs would not be available at Davie in the immediate future, with the shortage of money, teachers, and classroom space. The staff was sorry they could not provide any specifics on programs, schedules, or teachers, but none of these plans are complete - but they will be in time for the students to make their decisions for next year's curriculum. Of course, they won't be in time for anyone to identify any problems and reconsider the APP program which has a registration deadline of Nov. 6. Dr. Bost has scheduled the next meeting to discuss progress on the AP Program for Nov. 13.

I strongly encourage concerned parents to do as Dr. Bost and her staff suggest, go to the AP web site (apcentral.collegeboard.com) and learn more about the additional fantastic opportunities that students throughout the country have through the AP Program. But, I also encourage Dr. Bost and the administration, to consider the position they are putting the students already tracking through their selected curriculum in. It would be great to keep the APP available for the next two or three years to allow those in the system to follow their current plan, or to take advantage of any of the AP opportunities that can be made available in the Davie High School as the AP Program opportunities are phased in. It is imperative that the administration allows those, already locked into their Junior year's curriculum, targeted with the intent of finishing with the APP courses, with no flexibility or availability of AP courses this year to move to, the opportunity to successfully complete their high school careers at DHS.

Former Student Says APP Courses Vital To Davie High

To the editor:

I am a college junior studying abroad in Florence, Italy. I participated in the APP program at Davie High School from 1999-2000.

Davie High School will lose a vital asset in the lives of its students if the APP program is cancelled. Rather than teaching to a test, as too many high school classes are forced to do these days, the APP program gives the teacher a freedom not offered in most classes.

I found, when I entered college my freshman year, that I had read more diverse and worthwhile literature my senior year than most of my fellow classmates had throughout their entire high school career, including those who had taken the AP English test.

Davie High School should be grateful it has a teacher such as Mr. Hoyle on faculty. Before having him, I'd never had an English teacher with the ability to clearly communicate his ideas to a group of students. For two years, Mr. Hoyle pounded literature and grammer into my head, and I do not think I would have learned as much or as well if had I taken the AP class.

It would be a great disservice to the students, parents and faculty of Davie High to lose such a gifted instructor and program due to the machinations of one person. I know that my opinion reflects that of many, and hope that it is considered before any rash decisions are made.

Naval Academy Midshipman Says APP Courses Helped

To the editor:

This is Travis Ervin, I am a second-class midshipman at the U.S. Naval Academy. The civilian translation is I am a junior. I was saddened to hear about possible changes to remove the Appalachian Partnership Program (APP) from the Davie County School system.

This is, undoubtedly, one of the worst decisions the school system could make. The partnership program has been highly influential in my acceptance into both The Naval Academy and West Point. Having actual college level courses as opposed to high school courses with a test at the end is a great advantage over many other school systems.

The United States Naval Academy does not accept any previous credit, whether transfer or AP. Instead they administer validation tests, giving the student a chance to "place out" of courses. The courses I placed out of were courses I had taken APP in rather than AP. In addition, the Partnership attracts quality teachers who are enthusiastic in their subject and challenge a student. In many of my classes at Davie High an A was expected without effort, but a B or C in APP English was a badge of honor.

While at the academy, I have not scored below a B on any paper I have written, and most have been A's with minimal effort. I have the ability to proofread other people's papers and teach them to form their ideas into well-written arguments. For example, I helped one classmate in English, plebe year, who had taken AP English and was struggling in a class that I spent little time in. One of my classmates, an English major, regularly asks me to proofread his papers because I "am not afraid to bleed all over them." This is not because I am an inherently good writer (I am majoring in mechanical engineering.) but because I was well taught. I truly learned something in my APP classes because we were expected to learn. Each class set high standards and did not accept excuses for underachievement. These classes were of sustenance and of much greater worth than mere college credit. Instead, they actually equip students to learn, and prepare them for success, instead of weaving an intricate mask of deception for the college boards to see - a mask that would only be ripped to shreds the moment a student steps into a real college classroom.

The proposal to eliminate the APP system from the Davie County School System is a poor judgment call. By watering down classes to tickle the eyes and ears of a university, Davie County is setting their students up for failure in higher education. This decision will weaken faculty at Davie High, lower the quality of education, and harm students greatly. Tools the partnership program equipped me with are some of the only gifts I received from the Davie School System I continually find use for, and the deletion of this program will mark the downfall of education in Davie County. God bless each one of you.

Storehouse Coverage Great

To the editor:

Although I naturally cannot speak for the scores of people who give so much to the work of A Storehouse for Jesus, their humanitarian work truly speaks worlds for them, I am personally so grateful to the Enterprise Record for the coverage it provides for Storehouse activities.

The Storehouse is one of the true wonders of not only Davie County, but North Carolina as well, and the recent Storehouse Medical Mission to Ghana in West Africa is yet another demonstration of genuine selflessness on the part of those who volunteer with the Storehouse.

Thank you for finding so much space in last Wednesday's paper to help tell one part of the amazing story of the Storehouse, which does so much for so many, in Ghana as well as right here at home. Its volunteers are absolutely the greatest.

Vote For Elizabeth Dole

To the editor:

I know he is a rich businessman. I hear that he can pay for his campaign without any help. He and his family own a $2 billion business, according to reports. He is a Democrat and that gives him all the Union support as well as the gambling business and others I won't mention.

He said he wants to create jobs, but the way he talks, he will hurt businesses and drive more of them out of our country. That is more bad news, loss of jobs and more people on welfare. Some Democrats have said they will not do anything to help the country when a Republican is president.

Bowles worked with Bill Clinton and supported him. I don't know why the Democrats support him. They say they don't trust a rich businessman in politics. But maybe it's just hardworking honest men they can't get along with.

He will tell anything he can and even distort it trying to hurt Elizabeth Dole. I didn't vote for Dole in the primary but she looks good now.

I don't think we need to send anyone to work with Tom Dashal and Ted Kennedy. They are trying to ruin President Bush by blocking everything he tries to do. That is hurting the future of our country for everyone.

Keep Opportunities At Davie High

To the editor:

Davie County Schools offer services in gifted education to students from elementary grades through high school. One mission is to offer partnership among schools, home, community, business, and industry. A variety of learning opportunities are provided to provide a unified, rigorous, and challenging curriculum.

At Davie High, special and advanced courses have been options offered to students. AP classes, Dual Enrollment/APP courses, correspondence courses, and credit by examination are a few of these choices.

My daughter took two APP courses her senior year and was pleased not only to earn college credit but to have the opportunity to continue her education at Appalachian State University. Many of her friends took both AP and APP courses providing the opportunity for advanced study at the high school level.

I support the continuation of a variety of choices for advanced learners. The Appalachian Partnership Program allows students the chance to experience college-level work and allows them to earn credit with strong grades throughout the course, not just by taking an exam at the conclusion of their course.

Students Say APP Classes Valuable

To the editor.

We have recently been informed of the impending cancellation of the Appalachian Partnership Program at Davie High School. This program, also called the APP program, is a partnership with Appalachian State University that allows seniors to take college courses like English and calculus in a college atmosphere and receive college credit.

As recent participants in the program and current college students, we are curious to know the motivation of the administration in canceling it. We do not understand why a program that provided benefits to us and numerous other graduates is being cancelled.

As freshman at UNC Chapel Hill, we were exempt from some of the more introductory courses thanks to the APP program. We saved time and money and may even be able to graduate within three years because of the college credit that we earned at Davie High. To cut this program will violate the mission of the public school system: providing the best educational options for the most students. While some students find that the APP program does not meet their needs because they go to private colleges (which do not accept APP credit), the majority of students from Davie High will find that their credits are welcome at the college or university of their choice. In addition to this, the APP classes are more oriented toward teaching the subject in a collegiate manner as opposed to the test teaching that is used in AP courses, the alternate to APP. APP teaching better prepares students for the college academic experience.

We encourage students and parents to contact the school board about the cancellation if it occurs. If enough people get involved, then hopefully future students at Davie High will be able to take advantage of this valuable opportunity.

Kolby Hurt's Family Amazed At Outpouring

To the editor:

We continue to be amazed at the outpouring of love and support for our son, Kolby Hurt, and our entire family. Words alone cannot express the gratitude our family has for all that the community has done to help us after a go-cart accident left Kolby seriously injured on Mothers Day. Whether you have said a prayer, gave a donation to his medical fund, or simply thought of us, please know that we are forever grateful.

To James Baptist Church and all of those who were involved with or attended the fish fry benefit for Kolby, we thank you from the bottom of our heart. We feel truly blessed to have the support that we have had since the beginning. We also sincerely appreciate the fact that others realize our battle is not over and that the community is still there rallying support for us.

As was told in Kolby's Story by Kathy Chaffin in a previous edition of the Enterprise-Record, miracles do happen. Just five months ago we didn't know what the future held for Kolby due to a brain injury. Since that time he has won three blue ribbons in the Center Fair for his artwork. Just last week he received his report card for the first nine-weeks of his fifth grade school year. He received four As and three Bs. As Kathy's story said and we firmly believe, miracles do happen.

Kolby continues to make improvements and is continuing with tutoring to bring him back to his level of ability prior to his accident. We continue to have confidence that he will make a full recovery with continued prayers and support from our family and friends, and even strangers that just happen to read Kolby's Story or have heard about his accident.

Again, may God take care of each of you as he has taken care of us.

Reasoning For Cancelling APP Classes Not Adequate

To the editor:

Recently Dr. Linda Bost, principal of Davie High School, made the decision to drop the Appalachian State University's Admissions Partnership Program (APP). This program allows high school seniors to take college coursework through Appalachian State during their senior year. Dr. Bost plans to replace these classes with Advanced Placement (AP) classes.

With APP courses, students get credit for their full year's worth of work, just like they were taking the classes at ASU. With the AP program, whether the student gets college credit or not depends on their score on a single test upon completion of the course.

I understand that the AP program is a nationally standardized way of gaining college credits as a high school student, but I believe this decision has been made in haste and without consulting those students and parents that it will impact. If the high school is going to replace the APP with AP, it should be transitioned in to ensure that no child is left behind the curve.

I agree that a more diversified curriculum should be offered to the students of Davie High, but why should we throw away a decades old program that has proven itself to offer a great opportunity for our students? Why should the students now in their junior year, suffer a reduction of opportunities, just because they are stuck in the transitional year?

After hearing the administration say that the University of North Carolina system would stop accepting APP credits, I called UNC Chapel Hill and NC State and was told that the high school's administration was mistaken. The UNC university system accepts, and will continue to accept through the foreseeable future, credits earned through the APP program. In fact, 47 colleges and universities in the southeast accept APP credits including all UNC public schools, the University of South Carolina, Florida State University, and the University of Virginia. An additional 25 schools will accept these credits with certain conditions.

In addition to there not being adequate reason to cancel the APP program, there is also not enough time between now and next school year for this high school to prepare for the new AP courses. With the last day to sign up for the APP program being Nov 6, and Dr. Bost's next meeting with parents scheduled on Nov. 13, she will have successfully assured that there is no way back.

If there is no way to save the APP program, I ask that it at least be transitioned out instead of being cut immediately. This would give the high school enough time to prepare to teach the new courses and give current high school students an opportunity to keep their course planning intact.

Former Counselor Favors APP Courses

To the editor:

By nature, I am most always unwilling to enter into controversy, but because I feel so strongly about the benefits of the Admissions Partnership Program (APP) offered at Davie High School through Appalachian State University, I am writing this letter. APP allows students to apply during their junior years of high school to ASU. Admission is based on prior academic performance and PSAT and/or SAT scores. Accepted students must perform satisfactorily on placement tests. Strong academic students who do not desire to receive college credit may also take the courses. Although not all are offered at this time, Davie High has had APP courses in math, English, biology, Western Civilization, and Spanish. Instructors must meet the same rigorous requirements that their peers do on campus. Students who wish college credit pay tuition. Courses are college-level, using college textbooks.

Upon satisfactory completion of the course work, students receive college credit at ASU. Some students continue their studies at ASU, but the majority do not. These credits are accepted as transfer credits at other colleges, both public and private, in North Carolina and other states. UNC-Chapel Hill and NC State welcome APP students. A few schools, including Duke, do not accept them. Appalachian maintains an up-to-date list of those colleges which do and do not.

Davie High also offers Advanced Placement (AP) courses in other subjects, including US History. AP recommends that these courses be year-long. The huge difference between APP and AP is "the test" on which AP students must perform well in order to receive credit. Students spend many hours preparing for these tests, and only a few are able to gain college credit. APP takes into account year-long performance to determine competence and mastery of skills. Most APP students receive college credit.

English and math are the bases upon which other successes in college may be determined. APP students at Davie High spend more than twice the time in class learning than their counterparts do on any college campus. A strong foundation for future studies is established.

I encourage former APP students and their parents to make their experience with APP known. You have come to me to tell how much it helped. Tell everyone, especially the school board and central office.

Davie High is a comprehensive high school. The vocational, technical and college preparatory programs have all been good. Traditionally, Davie High has attempted to meet the academic needs of all its students. Certainly, the APP program is designed for the strongest students, but their right to a quality program cannot be denied. APP has set us apart from other systems, and I am disappointed that we might be losing it. Frankly, I am puzzled as to why.

Liquor Is The Devil In Liquid

To the editor:

This is in response to the letter from Henry Juergensen on Oct. 17.

I am not of the clergy, but I am a born-again child of God. When Food Lion on 601 South put in the strong drinks, I was heart broken. I thought the city limits came to the overhead bridge. I got on the phone and did some calling. It had been annexed into Mocksville. I called the Food Lion and told them that I would not be back until the strong drink was removed. Food Lion had another store in Mocksville, why not leave that one for people opposed.

I have been going to the one on Hwy. 158. If it starts selling strong drink, I will go somewhere else. I will not support Davie County in strong drink.

It is inconvenient for me to go a long way to buy groceries. We, in the country, do most of our business in Mocksville. We should have had a vote. We would gladly welcome a chance to vote against it. They are not being fair to us by limiting the sale to the city limits. I cannot understand how the city can just annex the parts they want.

Liquor is the devil in liquid form. It ruined by first marriage, and I will fight against it as long as God gives me strength.

Congressman Richard Burr talks about national issues during a reelection campaign visit to Mocksville last week.

Burr Discusses Economy, Iraq

U.S. Congressman Richard Burr brought his reelection campaign to Davie last week, meeting with local residents on the street at at restaurants.

What's on their minds?

The economy appears to be the number one concern of local residents, Burr said, followed closely by the terrorist threat and potential war with Iraq.

A Republican, he agrees with the president's stance on Iraq, and the action by legislators.

"This was the right thing for us to do," Burr said. "The UN resolution has to play out, and it will be the first of the year before the president has to make crucial decisions."

Terrorism worldwide, Burr said, is alive and well. He has confidence in President Bush.

"This is one of those classic times when the president can be the only one to make that decision."

Congress, in the meantime, can concern itself with going about the business of running the government.

Burr said the domestic threat level could be raised a level in the near future.

Recent bombings have been tied to al-Qaida in other countries, and the United States would be making a mistake to think it won't happen here again, especially when leaders of that group are calling for death to Americans.

Burr thinks Osama bin Laden is still alive, but isn't sure what his role is in directing al-Qaida.

The number one issue on people's minds, however, is the economy.

"They want to know what the Congress is going to do."

Burr favors tax code changes that would help U.S. manufacturers remain competitive in a global market.

One problem faced by U.S. companies is that the depreciation tax value on equipment is based on the physical life of the equipment, rather than on the technological life of that same piece of equipment. In other words, equipment can be outdated before it wears out.

County Starts School Facilities Bond Rolling

The bond approved by the commissioners would pay for elementary school improvements immediately as well as some renovations at the high school. Then, beginning in 2005, the second high school and additional renovations to the current high school would begin to be completed in time for the 2007-08 school year.

The board of education agreed to pay for some of the immediate capital funding needs at the high school through their own means. They plan to use the money for the science wing renovations.

According to White, the board of education also believes they can shave an additional 10 percent off the task force's recommendation.

"These two boards are working extremely well together," said Michael Allen, county commissioner. "It's not exactly what the task force asked for, but we have to look at all the people in the county."

With these changes to the bond package, the initial cost for the elementary school improvements would mean an approximate tax increase of three cents. In 2005, when work began on the second high school, there would be an additional 3.5-4 cent tax increase phased in.

"The ultimate decision as to whether this goes or doesn't falls on the voting public," said Commissioner Richard Poindexter, before the board unanimously approved starting the bond process.

Following the vote, Board of Education chair Marty Carter said, "We know this bond cannot perfectly meet every need we have, but it does make huge strides to meeting our critical needs. We will work with you to make this bond a reality."

Town Delays Action On Street Closing Request

"I don't think anyone on the council would want to thwart His will," Nesbit said in closing. "Don't let your heart be hardened."

"We all have seen children nearly hit going across that street," said Peggy Wallace. "We try to be cautious, we try to warn them, but several times children have been let out of cars and darted across the street."

"If this was a busy street, they'd all probably be more aware," said Julie Parker, with her son standing next to her.

Eleven children were present at the meeting.

"But the fact of the matter is this road is used irregularly. People tend to cut through at a high rate of speed because they don't expect anyone to be there.

"We've had enough close misses back there that we're on notice. In a town the size of Mocksville, if something happens it's going to happen to someone we all know and love," Parker said.

"I've almost been hit two different times walking out with my mother," said Candice Carter, daughter of the Rev. Neal Carter. "Each time I've almost been hit, the car was coming from the direction you want to make one way. The one way road will not make the play area safe."

After all the public comments had been heard, town commissioner Bill Foster took issue with some of the comments.

"I can't let it go by that no one has complained about the road being closed. They don't come to the church to complain, they come to us. A large number of people in the community want the road."

When pressed, he said that approximately 25 people had contacted him and were against closing the road. He refused to name the people. He did say that the reason they didn't want the road closed was because they used it to get into town.

Members of the crowd wanted to know why those people weren't at the meeting.

"This is a public hearing," said Parker. "If people have complaints this is where they should be. Not in meetings with you two weeks ago, not over the phone. There is no reason why people can't drive 20 yards up and turn at Horn's."

"We're not getting any help from DOT," Foster said. "We have one major problem and it's traffic. It's getting worse every day. The experts are saying use corridors to get traffic off the main roads."

Foster thinks directing people through the church parking lot was more dangerous than the current situation. "Who's responsible if there's an accident? It's on private property. We need to balance the community with the church's best interest."

He went on to say that every street in Mocksville presents a danger.

"Kids almost getting hit is not an isolated case at Presbyterian," said Vernon Thompson.

"Your problem is not unique," said Foster. He said he had hoped a left turn light at Horn's would help, but to date DOT isn't interested in doing so.

"I have people telling me we need to open more streets instead of closing them," said Thompson. "We've got cluttered streets now, we need to open them instead of close them."

Commissioner Lash Sanford asked the board to take it to a vote and made a motion approving closing the road. Without a second, the motion failed.

Commissioner J.C. "Buster" Cleary motioned for the discussion to be tabled for 30 days while the town met with DOT to discuss a turn signal at Horn's. The motion passed with Sanford in opposition.

CARLYLE SHERRILL FOR STATE SENATE

Jim Graham
1870 Sutton Drive
Raleigh, NC 27605

September 24, 2002

Dear Friends,

The people of Yadkin, Davie and Rowan Counties have the opportunity to send an outstanding individual to the State Senate. His name is Carlyle Sherrill.

I have known Carlyle's granddaddy, his daddy and now him. All have been good men and friends of agriculture. In fact, when I was in my teens, the first agricultural product I ever sold was a mule I sold to Carlyle's granddaddy.

Not only is Carlyle smart enough to be a lawyer, he has the common sense and willingness to work hard that comes with being raised in the country. He is active in the North Carolina Cattlemen's Association and the Santa Gertrudis Breeders of the Carolinas.

Over the years, I have made a special effort to watch Carlyle show Santa Gertrudis cattle at the North Carolina State Fair. His sons, Scott and Colton, are now following in the family tradition by showing in the State Fair junior shows. Colton won Grand Champion last year at the junior show, and he was only five years old.

Carlyle stands for hard work, common sense and family. You can't go wrong voting for Carlyle Sherrill, because he is a goodun'.

Sincerely,

Jim Graham

Jim Graham
Former Commissioner of Agriculture

P.S. I look forward to Carlyle's service in the Senate.

Where can you find some of the highest patient satisfaction scores for hip and knee replacements?

Right here.

Nearly four years ago, Rowan Regional Medical Center opened a superior hip and knee replacement program called Joynt Camp. Since then, hundreds of patients from Rowan and the surrounding counties have come here for surgery, gone through rehabilitation with others, and returned home quickly to a more comfortable, enjoyable life.

During that time a national research organization, operating independently, has been asking our patients about their experience. In every quarterly survey result, patients in our Joynt Camp ranked their orthopaedic surgeons, the hospital staff and their overall experience at the highest levels.

In fact, Rowan Regional's Joynt Camp for hip and knee replacement ranks near the top of all hospitals surveyed nationwide by the people who know it best – the patients. So why settle for anything less?

County Line firefighters Joanna Campbell, Jack Koontz, Brian Koontz, Preston Neely and Justin Jenkins with the newest truck to the department's fleet.

County Line BBQ, Chicken Pie Supper This Saturday

County Line Volunteer Fire Department will hodl a pork barbecue and chicken pie supper Saturday, Oct. 26 at the fire department on Ridge Road, off U.S. 64 West of Mocksville.

Barbecue sandwiches will be available beginning at 9 a.m., and the meal, eat in or take out, begins at 4 p.m.

The event is one of two suppers held each year to help pay for upkeep of the department. The department serves an estimated 2,000 pounds of barbecue at each meal.

A new truck has been added to County Line's fleet, a 2002 brush truck that uses compressed air foam to put out fires.

"It helps penetrate down into it and it smothers it," Jack Koontz, chairman of the board, said. "With us running the interstate so much, this really helps. Something like this can make a big difference."

Fire Chief Brian Koontz said that a car fully engulfed in flames was extinguished in less than two minutes.

Not only is the foam better than water at putting out most fires, it is lighter and fewer firefighters are needed to handle the hoses.

The new brush truck has a type of joy stick inside that controls the foam that can be sprayed from a nozzle attached to the front of the truck.

Brian Koontz said County Line has 22 firefighters on the roster, and more are always needed.

Dilmore On Presidential Commission

Robert B. Dilmore of Mocksville has been selected to serve on the Presidential Business Commission for North Carolina.

The commission is a group of business and professional people and political strategists who will be advising the Republican leadership on how to protect the president's majority in the House in the upcoming elections.

Dilmore was selected based on contributions as an honorary chair of the party's business advisory council, a position he still holds. Dilmore is expected to play a key role in helping the party craft its strategy in the closing weeks of the campaign.

"The 2002 election will be critical in determining the course of our nation, particularly in terms of tax relief and national defense," said Congressman Tom DeLay of Texas, who announced Dilmore's appointment. "I am thrilled to have Mr. Dilmore's expertise and input as a resource in the final weeks."

Dilmore will be invited to high level meetings in Washington, and is expected to receive a thank you picture of the president.

Veterans To Be Honored At Nov. 11 Event

The Mocksville-Davie community will honor U.S. veterans of all armed forces on Monday, Nov. 11.

There will be a parade from First United Methodist Church, on Main Street to the veteran's monument in downtown Mocksville. The parade will leave the church family life center at 10:40 a.m. No preregistration is necessary.

For those not wishing to be in the parade, the observance will begin at the veteran's monument at 11 a.m. There will be music from the Davie High School band, and special presentations.

There will be a poster and essay contest for Davie County's younger residents. Savings Bonds will be given to winners in each category.

Youth through fifth grade age students are invited to submit posters "Honoring Our Veterans," on poster paper, between 8.5 and 11 inches and 17 by 22 inches. The name, address, and age of the artist should be written on the back of the poster.

Youth from sixth through 12th grades are invited to submit essays on the topic, "We celebrate Veteran's Day because ..." These essays should be no more than one typed page, on the front of the paper only, in no larger than 14 point type and no smaller than 12 point type. The author's name, address and age should be written on the back of the paper.

Deadline for submission is Oct. 31. There will be a box at Mocksville Town Hall for essays and posters. If you have any questions, call 751-0857 and leave a message.

The posters will be displayed downtown on Veteran's Day. Several essays will be read by their authors.

James Bruce Martin was a finalist for a national truck driving award.

Local Trucker Named One Of The Best By National Association

James Bruce Martin, who drives for Jerry Prater Trucking of Mocksville, has been named a finalist for the driver of the year sponsored by the National Association of Small Trucking Companies.

Martin has driven for Prater for more than three years, and has been a professional driver for more than 33 years.

"He has been a wonderful driver and a great employee," said Traci Taylor, Prater's safety coordinator.

"As a finalist for this prestigious award, Mr. Martin joins a very elite group that represent the best of our 40,000 drivers," said Buster Anderson, NASTC vice president. "Jerry Prater Trucking is proud of their drivers and should be proud of themselves. It says a lot about a company when they can attract and keep employees of this caliber."

Cooleemee Briefs

Police Radars Become Surplus

Town board members voted to donate two pieces of police radar equipment to the sheriff's department. The older models were designated as surplus.

Workshop Scheduled

The board plans on holding more frequent workshops through the year, which will allow them to spend more time discussing issues in depth. The next workshop is scheduled for Oct. 22, 5:30 p.m. at town hall. Topics include the new ordinances, the Cooleemee newsletter, the financial feasibility of filling an open police position, and a town survey.

Walking Path Getting A Face Lift

The board approved funds to clean up the walking path between Cross Street and the shopping center. The path is used by local residents but has been in need of repairs that the board couldn't afford. Recently they received a quote for clean up, grading and adding gravel to the walk that was significantly lower than others they had received. In addition to the drainage being improved, the board approved additional funds to have the shrubbery removed from the area.

Additional Police Protection Eyed

The board is looking at ways to pay for the open police officer position. There are two officers and the chief working eight-hour shifts, and none of them can take time off. The sheriff's department has been helping to ease some of the burden on the town. While the board understands the need for an additional officer, the state budget cuts hampered abilities to pay for the position. They plan to discuss the issue further in an October workshop.

Town Survey Under Consideration

Commissioner Fran Parker is researching a town survey. "I feel like we need to know what people's thoughts are, and where they want us to go on some things," she told the board. Town Clerk Dolly Urdanick mentioned that the town used to hold annual forums at the fire department.

Presentation On 211 Phone Program

The United Way wants to offer Davie residents a 211 program for health and human services phone calls. The organization believes that a number of the phone calls 911 receives are really calls that could be handled by the 211 service. The program is still in its earliest stages of discussion and no action was required by the board.

Public Safety Memorial Considered

Edwin Owens made a presentation regarding a public safety memorial site for the county. A meeting among the department heads, county and municipal officials is scheduled for Oct. 29, 7 p.m. at the Mocksville Town Hall. Owens asked that a member of the town board, as well as the police chief, attend the meeting.

Mowing Violation Letter Approved

The board approved the wording of the mowing violation letter. The letter will be sent to residents whose property is in violation of the mowing ordinances. Upon receipt of the letter, the resident will have five days to comply with the ordinance.

Town Truck Repaired

The town truck has been repaired and is back on the road. Commissioner Aubrey Wensil asked the board members to use the truck when going somewhere on town business so that it will continue to run smoothly.

Town Looking For Leaf Vacuum

Cooleemee is researching the possibility of getting a leaf vacuum. Mocksville has a used one they may be willing to get rid of, but it would require some parts. If the town is able to find a vacuum it can afford, a truck would be needed to carry the leaves as they are collected. Wensil is continuing to look for ways for the town to be able to offer leaf pickup.

New Commissioner In November?

The board is in the final stages of talking with all the possible candidates for a new commissioner seat. The seat will become vacant provided the board votes for John Chandler to fill the mayoral seat.

APP Classes Discontinued At Davie High

office scheduled an October visit from Appalachian, not knowing the program was being discontinued.

"In studying the full curriculum last year, we realized we needed to pump up our advanced courses," Bost told parents. "The trend is moving to AP instead of dual enrollment. The curriculum audit was my wake up call a year and a half ago. This has been a long time coming."

Parents were upset because the APP classes offered by Appalachian State University counted for high school and college credit at some colleges. According to the high school's presentation, 35 colleges will accept APP credits without restrictions. Only five high schools in the state offer the program.

"The duty of a high school is not to grant college credit, it's to offer the highest level education we can," said Bost. "How much college credit a student can earn is not the job of this school, but we still want to offer a strong program."

The AP program, offered by the College Board, the same organization that offers the SAT, is nationally recognized. AP classes are accepted by colleges and universities in North America and over twenty foreign countries. There are 35 AP classes offered by the College Board in 19 subject areas.

"Ninety percent of colleges grant some sort of credit or advanced placement for AP," said Jennifer Topiel, College Board. According the College Board website, an average of 62 percent of students who take the exam will receive a grade that will earn advanced placement in a college course, college credit, or both. "Students can receive anywhere from three to six credits for the exam. They could skip their freshman year."

Among the issues the parents brought up, was the concern that the AP classes were, for the most part, year-long, which tied students hands when choosing classes. "The advantage of the block system is having so many choices, but that isn't true when the classes are year-long," said one parent.

Bost agreed. "We want to open the program up so that students don't have to take year long classes." She also said that the transition class, next year's seniors, will have more flexibility with scheduling deadlines because of the program change, and stressed the school would work with them.

"The issues here go way beyond one child, one family," Bost said. "Unless you have money for college tuition, you can't afford to take the APP program."

While there are registration, class and book fees for the APP program totaling over $300 per class, there is no fee to take an AP class. The cost to take an AP exam is $80. The number of credits given for a class is determined by the college accepting the advanced placement credit. Students can also file for a reduced AP exam fee if they are in financial need.

North Carolina State and Wake Forest universities were two of the schools that accept the credits, with stipulations. A Wake Forest representative said they will only accept the APP credits if the classes are taken at a college facility. They would not accept classes taken on the high school campus.

A counselor from NC State's admissions department said NC State won't allow courses to be counted twice. "You can't earn senior English credit and college credit [for the same class]. Students must exhaust all possible high school level classes before they can take college classes." This is the same reason Duke won't accept the classes.

The high school is considering many possibilities with the AP program, including offering classes at non-traditional times, such as after school. "We're looking at small AP classes."

"But if you offer them after school, you limit the extracurricular activities the colleges look for," one parent said. Bost said the program is in planning stages.

An additional concern parents voiced was that the AP program "teaches to the test." In order for students to receive college credit, they must take and pass a nationally used AP exam. The exams are taken in May. Students can take AP exams without having taken an AP class, and juniors can retake the test the following year if they choose.

"If we're smart enough to take these courses, we're smart enough to plan our own futures," a student said.

"The decision has been made," said junior, Heather Patton. "There's nothing we can do about that. So let's go in a positive direction." She also requested student involvement from the transitional class to help ensure they can continue their advanced classes next year without issue. Bost agreed when no parents spoke against the idea. The first meeting between teachers, staff and students is scheduled for Oct. 25, with a second scheduled for Oct. 30.

The next meeting with parents has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Nov. 13 at Davie High School.

New Procedures Available At Davie Hospital

For more than 23 years, gastroenterologists Drs. Bruce McCune, Randolph McMurchy, and Victor Sears have been providing consultative services and a gastrointestinal clinic at Davie County Hospital.

With the expansion of services available as a community access hospital, the doctors have added liver biopsy to the cadre of endoscopic procedures they perform.

Liver biopsy, which is performed under a local anesthestic, has become important because of the increased incidence of Hepatitis C. Providing this service at Davie County Hospital makes it more convenient for patients, they said.

"We like the ability to provide services locally," said McCune. "It is always a plus when patients can receive quality health care in their own community."

Among the endoscopic procedures available is colonoscopy, the gold standard for detecting colon cancers before they have spread to other parts of the body.

Colorectal cancer is the fourth most common cancer in the United States, and the second leading cause of cancer death. The reason for the high mortality rate is the majority of colorectal cancers are not detected until they have spread to other areas of the body. People shy away from colonoscopies because they have heard they may be uncomfortable, or they may be afraid of finding a cancer.

"People are always scared of the unknown," said McCune. "But preventive medicine procedures like colonoscopy allow us to detect problems when they are highly treatable, thereby offering the patient the greatest opportunity for a positive outcome."

McCune encourages patients to be proactive in requesting preventive medicine procedures. "Sometimes it's the patient's responsibility to say to the doctor 'Don't you think it's time I had this procedure?'"

Livestock Owners Eligible For Help

Livestock owners in Davie County can apply for assistance under the Livestock Compensation Program, available to livestock owners located in counties designated by USDA as being a primary disaster area due to the prolonged drought.

The assistance is a cash payment based on the number of livestock owned on June 1, 2002 that were owned for a minimum of 90 days. Payment rates per head are beef cows, $18; dairy cows, $31.50; stockers, $13.50; buffalo and beefalo, $18; and goats and sheep, $4.50. A filing deadline will be announced at a later date.

Livestock owners may contact the Davidson-Davie Farm Service Agency at 301 E. Center St. in Lexington or call 248-2687 extension 2 for more information about this program.

OCTOBER 2002

Elections Office Prepares for November 5

With the general election just around the corner, the election staff is working hard to guarantee everyone has a chance to vote. This year there are several options for people who can't vote on November 5 or are unable to get to their polling place.

Any voter can request to vote by mail, by contacting the office before 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, October 29. Requests may be made by the voter, or on their behalf by a member of their immediate family or verifiable legal guardian.

The "one-stop" voting in the election office begins Thursday, October 17th and will close at 1:00 p.m., Saturday, November 2nd. Voters are no longer required to give a reason for requesting a ballot by mail or for voting in the office.

The only exception for the vote by mail and one-stop voting deadlines are for persons who are sick or disabled. In these exceptions ballot requests or voting in the office will be available until 5:00 p.m., Monday, November 4th.

All absentee ballots must be returned to the election office by 5:00 p.m., Monday, November 4th to be eligible for counting.

The fourteen polling locations will be open Tuesday, November 5th from 6:30 a.m. until 7:30 p.m. for voters to cast their vote for the candidates of their choice.

The election office is located at 124 S. Salisbury St., Suite 102, the lower level of the Mocksville Town Hall. They are open each day from 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. Questions may be directed to them during these hours by calling 751-2027.

Senior Center Gets New Name

Exciting changes have taken place at the Davie County Senior Center over the past few years. Seniors now have a broader range of programs and services available to them than ever before. In order to make the public more aware of this broad scope of offerings, the Davie County Commissioners recently approved a recommendation to change the name to Davie County Senior Services. Although the name has changed, the quality service seniors in this county have come to rely on will not change.

Senior Center programs such as educational, health and wellness, social and volunteer opportunities will continue to be an important part of what Davie County Senior Services offers. In addition, the agency will continue to strive to bring new, needed services for seniors in Davie County.

One exciting change is the availability of transportation to several social events throughout the year, such as the annual Senior Christmas Party, which will be held December 12 at 2:00 p.m., in the Nutrition Site of Senior Services. Clemmons Moravian Church will demonstrate an authentic Moravian Lovefeast at this year's party. Anyone interested in attending should call to pre-register; attendees 60 years or older who need transportation to the party should call Senior Services by Dec. 6. Transportation will be arranged by the agency with YVEDDI and will be offered at no cost, however, donations for this service are requested and will be used to provide transportation to even more events.

For more information about the programs and services offered by Davie County Senior Services visit the agency at 622 N. Main Street, located in the bottom level of the Brock Building, or call 751-0611.

October is National Domestic Violence Awareness Month

Davie Domestic Violence Services And Rape Crisis Center has events planned throughout the month to promote domestic violence awareness. Purple ribbons were distributed at the middle schools and high school to honor victims of domestic violence. Informational displays were set up at various locations throughout the month and a candlelight vigil was held on October 14.

A fundraiser drawing will be held on Wednesday October 30 at 2:00 pm. The grand prize is a custom area rug worth $500. Other prizes include handmade porcelain dolls and other local favorites. Tickets can be purchased for $1 at the center.

The center provides a 24-hour crisis line, 751-HELP (4357), for individuals experiencing domestic violence, sexual assault or rape. Crisis counseling is available. While representatives are unable to go to a home, they will send help, meet victims at the magistrate's office or the hospital.

Weekly radio shows air on 1500 WDSL am radio every Wednesday at 9:30 am and support group meetings are held every Tuesday evening at 6:30 pm. For more information, please call the office at 751-3450.

October Is Fire Prevention Month

Residents are urged to take the proper precautions when burning yard waste. Branches and limbs must be 6" around or smaller to be legally burned. Anything larger should be used for firewood or hauled away. Make sure all fires are continuously attended and have a water source nearby. County residents need burning permits, which are issued through the North Carolina Forestry Service, and are available at several area convenience and hardware stores. Before starting a fire, please call the Communications business line at 751-0896 and inform them of when and where you will be burning yard waste.

Residents within the Mocksville town limits may not burn leaves except in small quantities because state air quality regulations prohibit the practice where leaf pickup is available. Mocksville residents are asked to rake leaves to the curb, and can contact Mocksville Town Hall at 751-2259 for more information. If you plan to burn yard waste in Mocksville please contact the fire marshal's office at 751-0453 before you start.

State air quality regulations prohibit the burning of household trash, even if the burning is contained in a barrel. Violators can face hefty fines. This is an EPA regulation, not a fire issue, and the fire marshal's office has no control over this area. If you have questions or need to report a burning nuisance contact the Winston-Salem office of the EPA Air Quality Division 336-771-4600. Burning of anything other than reasonable amounts for natural yard waste and brush is prohibited.

It is also illegal to burn lumber, construction and demolition debris or existing structures. If you have a dwelling or other building you would like to have burned contact your local fire department and see if they could use the structure for fire training. This is the only way a structure can be legally burned. The fire department must file a report with the EPA and get their approval before using any structure for fire training. Otherwise the debris must be hauled away to an approved dumpsite.

Planning Board Reviewing Updated County Ordinance

The Davie County Planning Board has begun reviewing a new draft of the zoning ordinance. The original zoning ordinance for Davie County was adopted in 1973 and was substantially updated in 1984 and again in 1992. However, the basic zoning districts and standards have changed very little since the original ordinance was adopted. The county adopted the 2020 Land Development Plan in May 2000, and planning department staff worked nearly 18 months on preparing a draft ordinance for the Board to review.

The Planning Board is meeting twice a month in workshops to review the draft ordinance. Workshops are on the 2nd Tuesday of each month at 12 p.m. and the 4th Tuesday of each month at 6 p.m. at the County Administration Building. As progress is made, the Board expects to involve the public as much as possible to seek comments. A series of informational meetings and public drop-in sessions are planned around the county next year in hopes of having county residents provide feedback on any proposed changes. The proposed changes will also appear in the Davie County Enterprise as each zoning classification is reviewed.

Questions regarding the proposed ordinance or the planning board workshops, may be directed to the Davie County Planning Department, 123 S. Main Street, Room 307, Mocksville, NC 27028 or by telephone at 336-751-3340.

County Receives Disaster Mitigation Grant

Davie County has been approved for a grant offered by the North Carolina Department of Crime Control and Public Safety - Division of Emergency Management. The Pre-Disaster Mitigation Program for Hazard Mitigation Planning provides technical and financial assistance to local governments to help write plans that will help reduce injuries, loss of life, and damage and destruction of property in the event that we are confronted with disaster.

The counties in North Carolina will develop and submit a plan to NCDEM. By having a Pre-Disaster Hazard Mitigation plan, the goal is to lessen the impact that disasters have on the people and property in the county. Dwayne Smith, Director of Emergency Services and Johnny Frye, former Director of Emergency Services, will write the plan for Davie County, which will be sent to the State for its approval. Then the plan will be sent on to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) for final approval.

For more information on county services please contact the appropriate office from the list at the bottom of the page.

Worth Noting . . .

Election Results Posted Online

Election results can be found on the Davie County website (www.co.davie.nc.us) fifteen minutes after they are posted by the election office. A big banner will be on the homepage making it easy for visitors to find election information.

A lot of other county information is also just a mouse click away. Meeting minutes and agendas for the county board of commissioners, planning and zoning board and the board of adjustment are all online. The GIS database, which lists property information, has recently been updated. To access this information, log onto the Davie County website at www.co.davie.nc.us.

Library Hours Extended

With the help of state aid, the library has extended its hours. Normal hours of operation were cut back due to budget cuts this year. Under the new hours, the library still opens at 10:0 a.m. and remains open until 8:30 p.m. Monday-Thursday, Saturday 10:00a.m. - 3:00p.m. and Sunday hours are 2:00 - 5:00p.m.

Deeds To Be Computerized

The register of deeds office is currently in the first stages of a conversion project that will allow all deeds to be entered into a computerized system that will eventually allow for Internet access. Due to the budget crisis, the project is moving slowly and a completion date has not been set.

Sheriff's Update

The oil spill cleanup around the courthouse will soon be completed, allowing for additional parking at the courthouse.

The new kitchen at the detention center has been opened, allowing for on-site cooking. Originally ABL was doing the cooking at the hospital kitchen and transporting meals to the center.

Detention officers have been taking a driver's training course at the driving pad at the Davidson County Community College Davie Campus. The course allows the detention officers to practice close maneuvering of police equipment.

Water Restrictions Remain In Place

Moderate mandatory water restrictions remain in place for the foreseeable future. The recent rains have helped yards, but have not added much to the ground water table. Residents are asked to continue to conserve water. It took five years of below-average rainfall to get the state to this point; it will take well-above-average rainfall to get back to normal.

Chair's Comments . . .

If often is easy, with all of the issues we face as a county, to forget how fortunate we are to live in Davie County. To paraphrase Terry Bralley, Mocksville's Town Manager, a lot of people would like to have the problems we face. To my mind, there is no finer place to live than Davie County.

It all starts with our finest natural resource, our citizens. Whether you were born here or moved here from somewhere else, we are blessed with wonderful, caring, God-fearing people. I bet that we have as many churches per capita as anywhere in the United States. Our citizens are committed to their families, as reflected in our excellent schools. It is quite a testament to our county that the biggest issue facing our commissioners, and then our citizens, is the size and priorities of a school bond referendum.

Our citizens are also special in their support of worthy causes. If our people get behind a project, there is no way it can fail. The most recent example of this is the Davie County Hospital, which literally was "resurrected from the ashes." With this kind of can-do attitude, there is no limit to what can be accomplished.

We have also been blessed in our county with good stewardship of our financial resources. Counties and towns across this state have been hit hard by Governor Easley's seizure of monies owed to local governments, but Davie County has survived better than most because it had maintained a strong "rainy day" fund to protect against such emergencies. We certainly are not out of the woods yet, but with the guidance of Jim Stockert, I am confident we will remain a fiscally sound county.

Although Davie County has been affected by the drought, we are blessed with rivers on both our borders, the Yadkin and the South Yadkin. We have also benefited from an outstanding working relationship between our county and its three municipalities – Mocksville, Cooleemee and Bermuda Run. Working together to ensure that all Davie residents have water as the river levels drop has only strengthened that already strong relationship.

Round-abouts and road congestion continue to be topics of conversation and concern, but we have established good communication with the Department of Transportation, which is responsible for roads. We are fortunate to have excellent road systems, and the DOT has committed to taking steps to relieve the pressure in our most congested areas. We are also working with DOT, Forsyth County and the Highway Patrol to try to alleviate some of the congestion caused by Festival of Lights traffic.

Although growth continues to be a complex subject, there is a commitment to finding the proper balance between commercial, industrial and residential growth. All of us now recognize that we simply cannot be a bedroom community; we need the commercial / industrial tax base and infrastructure to provide jobs for our citizens and keep our tax rate low.

The other good news in this area is the recognition of the importance of zoning and consistent enforcement of our laws. Zoning, which has been in place since the 1970s, allows our citizens to plan for the future with some certainty as to the possible changes in land use in the county. This planning will also help us to ensure that there will be land preserved for rural uses, such as forests and farm land, for the benefit of future generations.

None of this is to minimize the importance of the issues we face. School facility needs, land use questions, sewer and water expansion, and many other challenging issues must be resolved. In addition, we have to learn to do more with less, especially in light of the state's decision to take 2.5 million dollars per year owed to our county to address the state's budget shortfall.

Nonetheless, I have no doubt that Davie County will address these and future issues with the type of responsible leadership and decision-making of which we are capable. This obligation is one borne not only by our elected officials but by all of our citizens. We are all called upon to be good stewards of the blessings God has given us.

Vernon Dull Takes Part In Senior Legislature

Vernon Dull from Davie County attended the fall meeting of the N.C. Senior Tar Heel Legislature in Raleigh Oct. 1 and 2.

The Senior Legislature, established by the N.C. General Assembly in 1993, provides information and education to senior adults on matters being considered by the General Assembly and makes recommendations to the General Assembly on the legislative needs of older North Carolinians.

Vernon Dull and Marie Miller are the delegates/alternates of the Senior Tar Heel Legislature from Davie County.

The delegates to the Sr. Legislature identified five priority issues for action by the General Assembly in the year 2003 legislative session. They were as follows: end freeze on community alternatives programs for disabled adults, retention of background checks for home care personnel, maintain home and community care block grant services for impaired older adults at current level, expansion of development and funding for senior centers, and support for dental care for special care residents.

Vernon Dull also was briefed on the state budget status by Dan Gerlach, Senior Advisor for Fiscal Policy to Gov. Mike Easley, and heard a presentation about the Senior Care, the new state prescription assistance program for seniors which began Oct. 1.

Little Bennett Has Colossal Game

West Forsyth Running Back Leaves Davie In The Dust

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Davie's varsity football team scouted Harold Bennett and West Forsyth from close range when the Titans hosted South Rowan in a postponed game on a Monday night, four days before the Titans were to visit Davie.

Davie knew the Titans would give the ball to Bennett 20-some times and ask one of the tiniest high-school tailbacks in the world to lift them to another victory. In three games leading up to Davie, Bennett burned East Forsyth with 181 yards, Northwest Guilford with 233 and South Rowan with 221.

West's game plan was as predictable as the sun rising in the east, and the War Eagles, like almost everyone else on the West schedule, were powerless to stop it.

Yes, West (7-1, 2-0 Central Piedmont Conference) is for real. Any doubts were left in the vapor trails of Bennett as West raced past Davie 28-11 in the second week of CPC play.

West's quote-machine coach, Russell Stone, said of Bennett, who rushed for 418 yards in five days, including 197 against Davie: "Oh geez, that's an unbelievable week for any kid, especially for one that weighs (150 pounds and stands 5-6). It's not the X's and O's, it's the Jimmys and Joes, and Harold is some Joe."

"He's a player," Davie coach Doug Illing said. "I feel like our defense stood toe-to-toe with them, but that's a top-quality running back. You know he's going to get some yards, and to be able to shut him down completely is unheard-of."

Things couldn't have started much better for Davie (3-5, 1-1 CPC).

Walker Stuns Statesville Star For Golf Title

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Meredith Morrison of Statesville's golf team absolutely dominated Davie's Brittany Walker and everyone else in the eight-team conference.

Except when it mattered most – in last week's eight-team conference meet at Statesville's Fox Den. During the regular season, Walker averaged an impressive 43.1 strokes over 10 nine-hole matches but she lost seven battles with Morrison.

But Walker picked the perfect time to trump Morrison. Playing as never before, the senior shot 78, beat Morrison by four strokes and captured the individual conference championship against players from Statesville, East Rowan, Lake Norman, Mooresville, North Iredell, West Iredell and South Iredell.

"Meredith always plays real well, as far as conference matches in nine holes. She's always 2- or 3-over, sometimes better," Walker said. "She just didn't have a good day. None of her putts were falling."

While Morrison's putter wavered, Walker displayed brilliance around the green in the first 18-hole match of the year.

"What helped me so much was eight to 10 feet I was somehow making most of those putts to make par or bogey," Walker said. "When I play good, it's because of my short game. I didn't hit it fantastic off the tee, but my short game was on and I got up-and-down a lot."

Walker said the championship performance topped her list of golfing accomplishments, which includes two state tournament appearances.

"Both of my 37s (this season) were nonconference, so I was pretty upset about that," she said. "Making it to

South Iredell Stings Davie In CPC Volleyball Finals

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

If people thought the Davie High volleyball team's loss to South Iredell on Sept. 10 was a fluke, and quite a few did, then they were wrong.

The Vikings, upon further review, are pretty darn good. After splitting in the regular season, the CPC heavyweights met for a third time in last week's CPC Tournament final at host South Rowan. Second-seeded South shrugged off a 15-13 loss in game one and totally controlled the next three games, smothering No. 1 Davie 15-10, 15-12 and 15-8.

"South came out with a lot of intensity," Coach Dave Markland said. "They passed the ball extremely well, they served very well and they played incredible defense. I do give South credit."

Davie's effort couldn't be faulted, only its execution. Dawn Singleton did her part in the middle, but no one else turned in significant contributions.

"We did not block well as a team," Markland said. "Singleton worked extremely hard and got hands on a lot of balls. But with the exception of Dawn, we didn't block well at all. We didn't serve particularly well."

The Vikings can be one-dimensional, but star Amanda Nantz is so

With Moser Back, Davie Continues Resurgence

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

While the journey has had some hazardous moments, Davie's varsity soccer team is right where it hoped to be at the beginning of the season – in the hunt for second place in the Central Piedmont Conference.

The War Eagles continued to transform a late-September collapse into a late-October surge by tattooing South Rowan 8-3 last week in Davie's final home game.

"There were several highlights. It was a fun night," Coach Jim Caudill said. "It's always good to go out on Senior Night like that. It gives them a good taste in their mouth."

The War Eagles were poised for a meltdown early in the CPC season. They lost 3-0 to South Iredell on the same day they lost their one-man gang (Matt Moser) on offense to an arm injury. Next, they lost 4-2 in overtime to West Forsyth as the slump extended to five losses in six games and dropped Davie to 4-6-1 and 0-2 in the CPC.

But stubborn Davie foiled the odds while Moser was either sidelined or limited, and so much of what went wrong during the slump as gone right at the most opportune time. Moser, who made appearances while less than 100 percent but missed essentially six games, regained his familiar form with two goals and one assist against South.

Davie welcomed back Matt Moser, who scored 2 goals vs. S. Rowan.

"It takes time to get back in the flow, and he had two brilliant goals. It looked like Matt," Caudill said. "And (sophomore goalkeeper) David Stein really played good in goal."

Davie also got goals from Zach Hanrahan, Patrick Little, Adam Linder, Micah Garner and Andrew Scott. Linder, Little and Lester added assists.

The resurgent War Eagles have won four of five and three straight. The principal reasons are Nick Nelson, who has done a masterful job on defense, and Linder, who carried Davie to stirring wins of 3-2 over North Davidson and 2-0 over South Iredell two weeks ago.

"When Matt went down, I thought that was going to be devastating," Caudill said. "I looked to (captains) Nick and Linder for leadership and they took over. Nick took care of the back

North 8th Locks Up 1st Title With Ease

The outcomes were never in doubt, but North Davie's eighth-grade football team didn't handle its fourth (Erwin) and sixth (North Rowan) outmanned opponents the way Coach Ron Kirk would have liked.

In the seventh game of the season last week, the Wildcats were strong as garlic, clobbering visiting China Grove 48-16.

"I didn't think we had played like we could since the West Rowan game (on Sept. 18)," said Coach Ron Kirk, whose unbeaten team has routed everyone by no fewer than 18 points. "We played good against Southeast (a 44-8 victim on Oct. 7), but we kind of were in a lull against Erwin and North Rowan.

"But I felt like we got back on track, and we just about played an error-free game. I stressed to them to play these last two games error-free as they could, and this was a pretty good showing of that."

How's this for a scratch-your-head stat: Daniel Gough rushed 11 times for 203 yards and reached 1,000 yards for the second straight year. Thomas Hunter (1,129 yards in 1994) and Brandon Pane (1,036 in 1999) were the only other runners to achieve the milestone before Gough posted 1,013 yards on 71 carries last year.

With one game to go, Gough has 1,085 yards on exactly 71 carries, meaning he needs just 45 yards at South Davie to establish a new single-season record over North's 10 middle-school years.

"I know Johnny Riddle, Tyrone Martin, David Daye and Keith Lunsford went over 1,000 (during North's junior

Worth Noting ...

Daniel Gough of N. Davie's 8th-grade football team needed 45 yards against S. Davie on Oct. 23 to set the team's single-season rushing record. He entered with 1,085 yards on 71 carries, a 15.2 average, after running for 203 yards against China Grove. Brandon Stewart had 113 yards on 3 carries, QB Whit Merrifield went 5-of-6 and Josh Dixon played awesome on the line.

Senior Brittany Walker of Davie's golf team shot 78, overcame Statesville's seemingly unbeatable star and won the eight-team conference championship.

Jake Porter rushed for 96 yards and three TDs, blocker Ryan Boehm opened gaping holes and Sean Wagoner was seemingly everywhere on defense as Davie's JV football team blasted West Forsyth 33-0.

Kenneth Brown's 10-yard run tied it in overtime and C.J. White's conversion won it as S. Davie's 8th-grade football team escaped 22-20 over Knox.

Allison Schafer of Davie's volleyball team had 18 kills - and no errors - in a shutout of Reynolds in the CPC Tournament semifinals.

Never Say Die: Brown, White Rally Tigers To OT Win

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

South Davie's eighth-grade football team found a way to summon some energy just when it looked as if the Tigers were falling apart with the game on the line.

They recovered from a potentially crushing fumble late in the fourth, overcame Knox's touchdown on the first possession of overtime and pulled out a harrowing 22-20 victory last week at Knox.

The teams traded blows all day. South led 6-0 before Knox forged a halftime tie at 6-6. South led 14-6 before Knox tied it with five minutes to play.

Late in the game with the score 14-14, it looked as if C.J. White was going to be the goat. He fumbled at the Knox 20, the regulation clock expired, and Knox took the ball first in OT and covered 10 yards for a 20-14 lead.

But South refused to die. On the first play of South's OT series, Kenneth Brown exploded 10 yards to tie it, and White more than made up for the fumble, powering in on the two-point conversion for the decisive points.

"White was determined after that fumble to atone for it," Coach Todd Bumgarner said. "He wanted the ball and I was confident in him."

Bumgarner was ecstatic to escape for a 5-2 record heading into the final game.

"Knox is a good team," he said. "They've got big players, fast players and a lot of athletes. I was tickled pink my guys can handle the pressure situations like we were in. It's a huge win. ... A lot of teams we've played, Kenneth is a little faster and slicker than them. But Knox has got some slick and fast guys, too, and they matched us with athletes. They probably hit us on defense as hard as anybody, and I know North Davie is going to hit us harder than that."

Once again, Brown was Mr. Everything. On a day when South clawed for 172 yards, Brown rushed for 86 yards, scored two touchdowns and even passed for 24 yards on 3-of-4 accuracy. If that wasn't enough, he "made some tackles in the secondary where if he doesn't make them they probably score a lot more points," he said.

Brown kept South in the game, but his supporting cast on defense was too impressive to ignore.

The Tigers denied Knox inside the South 5 at the end of the half. Justin Thompson made an interception. Other instrumental plays came from Kirston Angell, Tristan Hairston and Kenny Rivers, who preserved the 6-6 tie on the two-point conversion.

"They ran a bootleg and Rivers came up and made a big tackle, which proved later to be real critical," Bumgarner said. "Angell had a real good defensive game. He probably played his technique as good as he's played all year. I was real pleased with him. And Hairston stuck his nose in several plays and made a pretty good impact."

Notes: Josh Eder rushed twice for 16 yards and caught a 13-yard pass. ... Chris Brogdon went 2-of-3 passing. Thompson had 3 receptions for 31 yards. ... South (5-2) tried to spoil North's perfect record (7-0) in the final game Oct. 23 at 4 p.m. at South.

North Football Program's Bid For Perfect Season Ends

The North Davie football program's record ride, a pair of 6-0 records heading into last week, came to an end against visiting China Grove's seventh graders.

Who'd have thought, after watching North's two teams combine for a 21-51 record from the first year of middle-school play in 1993 through 1997, the program would carry two perfect records into the third week of October? Coach Ron Kirk's Wildcats erased their reputation as losers four years ago and went 35-26 from 1998-2001.

The run extended to 47-26 before the Red Devils handed North a 20-14 loss in overtime.

"I've been coaching for 26 years, I've been here for 23 years, and I can never look back and see two teams with (perfect) records like that," Kirk said. "I mean (former South Davie coach) Barry (Whitlock) had several of them like that, but we haven't. 15-1 would be great if we play good (this week)."

Just when it seemed that North would need an improbable drive to force overtime or win the game at the end, China Grove botched a punt to give the Wildcats the ball at the China Grove 15 late in the fourth quarter.

Then the Wildcats, who squeezed past West Rowan 8-6 and Erwin 18-8 earlier in the season, came painfully close to pulling out their third nailbiter. Garret Benge tied it at 14-14 on a quarterback sneak with less than a minute to play, enabling North to all but guarantee the win with a successful two-point conversion.

Benge's two-point pass fell incomplete, though. China Grove, taking the ball first in OT, scored in three plays, then picked off a third-down pass to seal the game.

"China Grove came in here ready to play on a wet and rainy and nasty day, and we didn't," Kirk said.

The Wildcats were hampered by two missing starters. Trent Brooks, a key cog at fullback and linebacker, broke his ankle in the previous game and No. 2 fullback and defensive starter Taylor Evans was out of town and didn't play. Brooks' fullback replacement, Ethan Curtis, did fine with 32 yards on six carries, but the Red Devils bottled up North's best runners, limiting Nick O'Brien (45 yards on 10 carries) and Quinton Faulkner (12 on four) to 57 yards as North generated just 125 total yards.

The Wildcats managed to hang around and create late drama. Faulkner sliced the deficit to 8-6 with an 8-yard run and Benge fired to O'Brien, who caught all three of Benge's completions, on the conversion play to make it 8-8 at halftime.

After a scoreless third quarter, China Grove moved back ahead 14-8 early in the fourth.

"I was really wanting two undefeated teams, but we've never had two conference champions in the same year, either," Kirk said. "So we've still got a lot to shoot for."

Notes: North's top tacklers were Bradley Greer, Adam Ridenhour and Zack Russell-Myers with 5 stops each. ... The Wildcats (6-1) played at 5-2 South Davie Oct. 22 with a chance to achieve their first outright conference championship on the seventh-grade level.

high years, 1980-1992), but usually that was their ninth-grade year," Kirk said. "I can't think of any others, and I can't ever remember anybody having a 1,000-yard season back-to-back, not even Tyrone."

Incredibly, North's other rushers were every bit as effective as Gough, who scored three touchdowns on runs of 45, 47 and 51 yards as North built a massive 32-8 halftime lead. Brandon Stewart ripped off runs of 60 and 40 yards and finished with 113 yards on three measly carries, and Michael Weakley gained 40 yards on two touches.

It didn't seem fair that North was deadly through the air, too. Quarterback Whit Merrifield completed five of six passes for 76 yards, including a 40-yard strike to Stewart.

All told, North gained 453 yards on 25 plays, an 18.1 average.

"Stewart (who surpassed 500 rushing yards for the season) could probably easily rush for 100 yards every game if he were the main back," Kirk said. "Give a lot of credit to that line (of Josh Dixon, Michael Murphy, Kevin Boehm, Josh Chesnee and Wesley Potts). And (tight ends Tom Kuell and Justin Smith) need some credit because we use our ends more for blocking than throwing."

It's difficult to do with so many star players, but Dixon, who plays tackle on offense and end and tackle on defense, went out and grabbed a little of the limelight.

"Dixon came to play," Kirk said. "Everybody was oohing and ahhing over him on the sidelines. He uses his quickness and speed and he's got good blocking techniques. He knows how to take on a big man and not get beat. He doesn't take them up top, he takes them down low."

Linebacker Gough and safety Ben Hinson led the way on defense with 10 tackles each. Stewart picked off two passes, Merrifield and Patrick O'Connor had eight tackles apiece and Dixon had seven. Gough and Merrifield recorded sacks.

"We put Merrifield at defensive end late in the game and he knocked the (you know what) out of the quarterback," Kirk said. "He loves to play defense."

Notes: Even though there's one Mid-South Conference game left, the win locked up North's first outright conference championship as a middle school. ... The Wildcats (7-0) played at South Davie (5-2) on Oct. 23 at 4 p.m.

South 7th's Late-Game Magic Runs Out

South Davie's seventh-grade football team, which battled its way into the Mid-South Conference championship hunt with a mixture of grit and favorable bounces, finally saw its charms run dry in a 20-6 loss last week at Knox.

Most everything seemed to go the Tigers' way in four fantastic finishes. After a 22-20 loss to West Rowan in week two, they beat Erwin 22-14 in overtime, beat North Rowan 22-20 and beat China Grove 14-6 in overtime.

The fifth thriller in as many games saw South take over at midfield with two minutes to go and Knox clinging to a 14-6 lead.

"We've been in that position before," Coach Todd Bumgarner said. "We've fought back all year in games where we could have rolled over, and we fought back again."

South moved the chains twice as the clock dipped under a minute. The second first down of the last-gasp drive came on fourth down when receiver Cameron Webb made an unbelievable 10-yard catch from quarterback Colby Seaford to put the ball at the Knox 25 with 40 seconds left.

Seaford went 7-of-14 for 79 yards, including five connections to the amazing Webb.

"The guy tipped the ball, Cameron tipped it up and caught it as he was falling down," Bumgarner said. "The word's gotten out that to contain us you have to shut No. 9 down, but he still caught five passes even though they were keying on him so much."

South's hopes for a dramatic rally ended when Seaford's next pass was batted into the air by a defensive end. It floated to a star Trojan who raced all the way down the field for a clinching touchdown return.

Despite the loss, the Tigers were their normal gritty self. They stayed with a team that buried China Grove 30-6 (South needed OT to get past CG), jumped out to a 6-0 lead on their first series and forced a clutch three-and-out to give themselves a shot at the end.

"Knox has four or five really good players," Bumgarner said. "We were in their territory late in the game trying to tie it up. Knox (routed) China Grove and China Grove's got a good team."

Tanner Lowe carried the entire load on the ground, capping a 12-play drive for the 6-0 lead and gaining 79 hard-earned yards on 22 carries. Knox went ahead 8-6 at the end of the first quarter and broke a 66-yard run for a 14-6 lead in the second half.

"Our offensive line won the battle in the trenches about all day," Bumgarner said, pointing to Graham Harmon, Jesse Cousins, Justin Burton, Luke Ray and John Pfaff and blocking backs Brandon Jones and Jesse Crotts. "We don't have the big-play threat, and without (Jones and Crotts) we would be in a lot of trouble. We're pretty much a four-and-a-cloud-of-dust team, but the first drive we dominated and pushed them around. You go down there wishing that (a quick lead) is the scenario, and it was."

South's best tacklers were Floyd Collins and Eric Lowery on the perimeter, and Austin Wood, Darius Hall, Jr. Payne and Justin Downs. "Our defense probably played the best game they've played all year," he said.

In the final game of the season, South (5-2) hosted North Davie (6-1) on Oct. 22.

• Davie's volleyball team was ousted in the first round of the 4-A playoffs for the fifth straight year, falling to 25-1 Charlotte Providence in three games. Behind seniors Kelly Ramsey and twins Kelly and Kristy Kowalske, Davie finished second in the CPC behind unbeaten West Forsyth and entered the playoffs at 13-4.

• Sam Beck's North Davie freshman football team improved to 6-0 with a 30-6 win over North Davidson. Tyrone Martin rushed for 209 yards to push his total to 687 in five games. Jared Eure (eight tackles) and 6-4, 230-pound Shane Shoffner led the defense.

• Despite just 16 players for Coach Barry Whitlock's freshman football team, South Davie improved to 4-2 with a 28-0 win over Southeastern Stokes. Kevin Grubb and Jerome Carter both rushed for 90-plus yards.

• Shady Grove beat Cooleemee 8-0 on a fourth-quarter touchdown run by Derrick Smoot.

• Six players from Davie's tennis team qualified for regionals. Kim Wennerberg and Tanja Sherden made it in singles and Tiffany Fleming-Kathy Cozart and Amy Duncan-Jeanie Marklin made it in doubles.

NCAA HIGHLIGHTS

Is Joe Pa Getting Older or Just Getting Better?

Getty Images
Ohio State's Buckeyes are favored over Penn State's Nittany Lions this time only because they're playing at home.

What a difference a year makes. Exactly 52 weeks ago the Penn State Nittany Lions were going nowhere, having lost their first four games of the 2001 season before finally winning one, and now they faced Big Ten rival Ohio State, which had embarrassed them 45-6 in '00 but had also fallen from the Top 25. The Lions played an inspired second half against the Buckeyes, coming back from 18 points behind to win 29-27 and -- finally -- giving coach Joe Paterno his record 324th victory.

It was a historic day, but we're sure Joe Pa would rather be here, now, a year later, facing the same opponent under much different circumstances. Both teams are back in the national spotlight, with offenses that are among the best in the country, and Penn State is quite capable of knocking off Ohio State. We're favoring the Buckeyes, who've traded wins with the Nittany Lions since '96, only because they're at home, where their fierce run defense will force Penn State to go to the air, where mistakes are usually made. O.S.U. by two points.

Speaking of run defense, the Georgia Bulldogs are the equal of Ohio State and just about everybody else, which they'll prove in a Southeastern Conference showdown at Kentucky on Saturday. Despite their recent dominance over the Wildcats, however, our computer makes the Bulldogs only a one-point favorite. Last year Georgia won its fifth in a row in the series and its 10th in the last 11 games with Kentucky, 43-29, but since then the Wildcats have undergone a Penn State-like rejuvenation, and they could make this one of the best games in the S.E.C. this season.

Penn State's Joe Paterno.

A couple of other big contests could be huge if they go the way we think they will, the most prominent of which is Notre Dame's visit to Tallahassee, Fla., to play Florida State, only the fifth time ever that these schools have faced off. The Fighting Irish will find nothing but trouble against a team still steaming after barely losing to Miami and then sitting out a week. We've got F.S.U. by four in these teams' first meeting since the Seminoles' 31-26 win over the Irish in the '96 Orange Bowl.

In the other major rankings-rearranging game, we like Southern Cal over host Oregon in a two-point Pacific-10 upset. The U.S.C. Trojans haven't forgotten their 24-22 loss to the then seventh-ranked Ducks last season on a late Oregon field goal. The Ducks have won four straight in this rivalry, but Southern Cal will win this battle of two of the nation's top defenses.

Three more intra-conference matchups shouldn't be missed. In the Big 12, it's Texas by eight over Iowa State, which is winless against the Longhorns in three tries. In the S.E.C., Tennessee is the slimmest of favorites over Alabama to extend to eight games the longest winning streak ever against the Crimson Tide. And in the Big Ten, Iowa is a three-point underdog against the Michigan Wolverines, who took their seventh in a row from the Hawkeyes in '01, 32-26. Number eight looks even closer.

NFL FORECAST: Sunday-Monday, October 27-28

(Sunday)		*Minnesota	28
*Baltimore	20	Chicago	21
Pittsburgh	17

The Steelers are off and on, but if they could take it to the Ravens' weak pass defense they'd stay in the thick of things in the AFC North. Pittsburgh bounced Baltimore from the 2001 playoffs, 27-10.

*Buffalo	27	*New Orleans	23
Detroit	14	Atlanta	17

Speaking of taking it to a weak pass D, the Bills, whose air game is among the NFL's most productive, will do that all day against the Lions. Buffalo was a 22-13 winner the last time they met, in 1997.

*Cincinnati	17	Oakland	30
Tennessee	16	*Kansas City	14

A virtual tossup, because the Bengals can stop the pass, which is all that's working for the Titans. After losing seven in a row to Tennessee, Cincy ended the divisional rivalry in '01 with a 23-21 win.

The Ravens' Javin Hunter

The 49ers' Jeff Garcia
Getty Images

Cleveland	19	Indianapolis	24
*N.Y. Jets	13	*Washington	17

Never mind their solid air attack -- even the Browns' mediocre running will look good against the Jets' defense, one of the league's worst. And N.Y.'s offense? There isn't any. They last battled in '94.

The Redskins can run on the Colts' suspect defensive line, and Washington's secondary can handle Indy's passing game, but the 'Skins lack the confidence of the Colts, who won last in this series, in '99.

*Dallas	22	*Jacksonville	21
Seattle	12	Houston	13

Who's as helpless as the Jels against the run? The Seahawks, so guess what the Cowboys will be doing. And Dallas's D doesn't have much to worry about. Last year, though, Seattle spanked the Cowboys 29-3.

As is so often the case in this wacky season, a good team (the Jaguars) has a glaring weakness (run defense) that a poor team (the Texans) can exploit. In this pairing, however, that won't be enough.

Denver	29	Tampa Bay	14
*New England	27	*Carolina	9

Offense, anyone? The Patriots are all pass and the Broncos mostly run; N.E. can't stop the run and Denver fears the pass. In '01 the Broncs beat the Pats for the 12th time in their last 14 games, 31-20.

Defense, anyone? The NFL's two best teams without the ball may score on each other, but we're not sure how, because both struggle with the ball. The Buccaneers are two for three against the Panthers.

(Monday)
*Philadelphia	25
N.Y. Giants	19

This could be good if the Giants' ground game, the biggest weakness on either team, steps up. In '01 Philly ended a nine-game N.Y. series winning streak with a narrow four-point sweep, 10-9 and 24-21.

William R. Davie Wins 4-OT Battle Against Shady Grove

JV – WRD 6, SG 0 (4 OT)

After a hard-fought battle against William R. Davie, the Shady Grove Bulldogs emerged scoreless in the fourth overtime of the game and the Raiders prevailed.

"Defensively we played hard. Offensively, we couldn't get anything going. Also, we were missing several key players," said Shady Grove coach Kenny Wood. "We would like to give credit where it is due - WRD did what they had to do to win."

Key Bulldog players were Cole Jackson, who led defensively and recorded an interception; Andrew Ledford, who recorded a sack and recovered a fumble; and Shane Winters, who did an excellent job in his first week at QB.

Defensively for Shady Grove, Jackson led with eight tackles, followed by Ledford with six and Harley Stroud with four. Other tackles and assists came from Chase Angell, Ricky Bell, Tommy Dillon, Vance Greene, Taylor Hedrick, Christian McGougan and Winters. McGougan and Winters recovered fumbles.

The Bulldogs will play their final game on Nov. 2.

Varsity – Corn 42, Pine 36

In a classic shootout, Pinebrook led 8-6 after one quarter, it was tied at 22 at halftime, Cornatzer led 30-22 after three and 26 points were scored in the fourth.

Pinebrook's touchdowns came from Chance Davis (who scored twice and rushed for a whopping 217 yards), Vince Ciocc, Billy Martin and Daven Gray. Its longest scoring runs were a 15-yarder by Davis and a 26-yarder by Martin. The Trojans got two-point conversions from Jake Boger, Gray and a completion from Ciocc to Chris Sponangle.

Martin recovered an onside kick with 2:10 to go, which led to the tying TD, a 3-yard run by Davis.

Eddie Smith had seven tackles. Gray had five tackles and 46 yards rushing. Joseph Teague had an interception. The offensive line – David Oakley, Michael Marrs, Zach Dunn, Cameron Taylor, Wesley Blake and Clint Slater – did a great job blocking, and Ciocc passed for 58 yards.

Varsity – SG 26, WRD 0

Shady Grove dominated the Raiders in first-round playoff action. "We had a good team effort, and we are looking forward to playing Mocksville," said Coach Maxie Melton.

The Bulldogs got excellent play from Cody Sulier, who scored three TDs; and Jake Ballman, Cassidy Champney and Tyler Shelton. Defensively, Bret Peterson and Sulier led with four tackles each. Other tackles and assists came from Ballman, Champney, John Flowers, Tanner Holden, Brad Landreth, Zach Long, Christian O'Connor, Chase Sampson and Shelton.

Offensively, Sulier had 105 yards and Bret Peterson 84. Peterson recorded a TD and Long an interception.

The Bulldogs play the Mocksville Rams this Saturday.

JV - Cool 22, Cornatzer 14

For Cooleemee in the first half, Raheem Martin had five carries and a touchdown run of 55 yards. Chris Barnhardt had seven carries for 50 yards, including a TD and a two-point conversion. Anthony Brooks had four carries for six yards. Nathan Jones had great blocking. The offensive line had great blocks as well. On defense Martin, Mikael Pulliam, Shawn Ebright, Andre Jones and Channen Thomas had tackles for losses. Michael Fleming prevented a TD with a great tackle. Tony Deese and Jeremy Edwards also had tackles.

In the second half for Cooleemee, Toby Lowe, Thomas, Pulliam, Jones, Austin Neely, Deese, Andrew Kastings, Fleming, Edwards, Martin and Barnhardt had great tackles. Barnhardt had four carries for 45 yards, including a TD. Brooks had two carries for two yards, and Neely had two carries for five yards.

Shady Grove To Dedicate Gym

War Eagles Crash Against CPC's Hottest Team

West's returner muffed a punt minutes in and gave Davie the ball at midfield. Quarterback James "Cooter" Arnold and running back Justin Brown chewed up 31 yards on three plays for a second-and-3 at the West 25. But West knocked Davie back six yards on the next two plays and forced a 48-yard field goal from Kevin Winters, who missed one week after nailing a 47-yarder.

West punted on its first two series, and Brian Hunter returned the latter one 25 yards to the West 32. Davie produced three straight 7-yard gains, but hit a wall at the 11 and settled for a Winters field goal.

"We didn't take advantage early," Illing said. "We had a good turnover and good field position. We needed that punch, and we couldn't find it offensively."

West's defense was so tough to crack that Davie didn't come close to scoring an offensive touchdown after Winters' 29-yarder for the 3-0 lead with 9:36 left in the second quarter.

"Our defense was tremendous as always. You can't say enough about them," Stone said. "They're undersized – the biggest guy is about 230 - and it's just tremendous the way they get after people."

After trading defensive blows for 14 minutes, the dam broke and the tidal wave reached 28 unanswered points. On the play following Winters' FG, Bennett took a pitch and galloped 65 yards - untouched – down the sideline for a 7-3 lead.

"We drew that one up on the sideline," Stone said. "The way they were lining up, we thought we'd catch them one time. If you give the little man a little room, boy it's over."

West treated Davie's defense rudely, a defense that had held 23 of its last 24 opponents to 21 or fewer points. Bennett made two electrifying runs on West's second series of the second quarter to establish a 14-3 halftime lead.

Davie felt dizzy after watching the CPC's most exciting offensive player rack up 161 yards on 13 carries - just in the first half.

"It helps to have that big hitter," Stone said. "Our left tackle and left guard are 240, but the center's 170, the right guard's 210 and the right tackle's 212. So we have to get some seams and let the little guy take off."

The halftime margin was just 11, but it felt much larger because Davie's offense ran into a quick, swarming defense that frustrated the War Eagles at every turn. Arnold and Brown trampled South Iredell with 100-plus rushing yards each, but West stuffed Brown between the tackles and kept Arnold from reaching the corner.

Davie's offense, which failed to reach the end zone on 12 possessions, was surely slouching in its seats during film study. Together, Brown and Arnold had 69 yards on 33 rushes, and 10 completions between Arnold (8-of-17) and Andrew McClannon (2-of-4) resulted in just 58 yards.

The Titans had 15 first downs to Davie's eight, they held a 250-69 advantage in rushing, they outgained Davie 313-127 and Davie went 2-of-13 on third down.

It left Illing wondering what went wrong.

"We've got to do a better job," he said. "We wanted to play well at home for our fans, and we let our fans down."

With the momentum steamrolling against Davie and West smelling blood, the Titans drove 65 yards in eight plays – without facing a third down – to make it 21-3 with 3:20 left in the third.

The finishing touch was a 44-yard hookup from QB Brad Peterson to Drew Greer to the Davie 1. Billy Riddle was right there with Greer, but it was a "perfect throw and perfect catch," Illing said.

After getting just three touches in the first half, fullback Jamie Lilly took over in the second and bulled for 71 yards, including a 35-yard romp for a 28-3 lead.

"Lilly's a tough fullback. They don't give it to him much, but when he does get it he churns four or five yards," Illing said.

While Davie is far removed from last year's 9-2, 4-1 season, the Titans have restored much of their glory. After suffering their first losing record since the mid-1980s last year (3-8, 2-3) and getting walloped 38-8 by Davie, they have won every game except a last-minute loss to Glenn.

"Last year South Rowan, Davie and the one we're going to play next Friday (North Davidson) really beat us, and they all stuck one on us late in the game," Stone said. "So they made our preparation easy. We started Thanksgiving before the playoffs were over, and they started with a tremendous purpose. We revamped our coaching staff and the new people we brought in are tremendous coaches. We had lost our way as a program, we weren't getting enough qualified coaches on staff and our kids had lost their work ethic. And we've got it back with this year's team.

"Davie works hard. You can work hard and get beat so I'm tickled to death that it's paying off for them."

A trick play gave the War Eagles something to cheer about.

They took a page from Tennessee's Music City Miracle on the kickoff following West's final TD. Hunter ran the kickoff a few yards, stopped in his tracks and fired across the field to Ben Allred, who blasted 80 yards to the end zone.

"We had to get something going," Illing said. "We were searching for something big."

Brown slammed in on the two-point conversion to make it 28-11, but it was too late. The War Eagles needed a miracle to rally from 17 down in 11:06, and a turnover on downs with 8:17 left closed the book.

Things went so well for West - and so badly for Davie – than when Gareth White made a beautiful horizontal interception with the score 14-3, Davie's possession started at its own 5.

But Stone recognized the fact that Davie is depending on a bunch of sophomores and two freshmen.

"I wouldn't be surprised if we get to play Davie again down the road (in the 4-A playoffs)," he said. "I told (Davie assistant) Devore (Holman): 'I don't want to play you any more.' Their defense is very impressive. I know they've got some young players, but their down people, Stovall in particular, and their nose guard, No. 7 (junior Brandon Pane), are tough. I thought (Pane) was their best player tonight. We were going to single him and double some other people, and he kind of made it come back to haunt us. I'm not even sure of the kid's name, but he is one fine football player.

"(Sophomores Arnold and Brown) will be something. There's a quarterback at Mt. Tabor, O.C. Wardlow, that's a freshman that reminds me a lot of James. He looked great (against South Iredell). We put some pressure on him. He made some nice throws, but our DBs played well."

After delivering the classic "Jimmy and Joe" line, Stone offered more colorful sound bites on the Davie-West rivalry.

"There's no better rivalry," he said. "I think people cut us a little short and talk about some other rivalries around the state. This one's probably as good as there is. They just don't realize how intense this thing's gotten in the last few years since we've been trading victories (West leads 4-3 since 1996). Honestly, I think the fans hate each other, or it's close to that, and there's some animosity with the players because they see each other and talk. But I really enjoy Coach Illing and his staff – we clinic together a lot and talk quite frequently. So as long as we can keep that on a civil nature, it'll be a great rivalry."

Notes: Bennett settled for 197 yards on 27 carries, putting him around 1,200 for the year. ... Davie, which has been on a lose-win trend since week two, had won six of seven CPC games. ... The War Eagles got a sack from Jeremy West and a fumble recovery from D.J. Rice, a duo that came in leading them in tackles for losses.

JV Football Torments West Forsyth, 33-0

Davie's JV football team has been a runaway express in the Central Piedmont Conference, beating South Iredell 36-0 and West Forsyth 33-0 on Oct. 17 in Clemmons.

Jamar Bratcher capped drives of 70 and 80 yards for a 13-0 halftime lead. His second touchdown run turned out to be his final play, sitting out the second half with a slight shoulder separation, but not before rushing 14 times for 86 yards.

Davie, though, compensated for Bratcher's injury with ease. Jake Porter gained 96 yards on 16 carries and scored three TDs, Jaspen Gray put up 49 yards on seven carries, and the defense spearheaded a 20-point fourth quarter as Davie stomped its way to 5-2 overall.

The only downer for Davie was a season-ending injury to freshman quarterback Brad Corriher, who broke his collarbone on a third-quarter option run. With Corriher – who completed 10 of 15 passes in the previous two games – done, the controls will go to freshman Jonathan Dwiggins, who finished up against West.

"I'm going to hand it to Dwiggins," Coach Lee Linville said. "He settled down and did what he had to do. He got everything lined up. Now we've got to find us an emergency quarterback."

The War Eagles didn't need to put the ball up against West, rushing for 239 yards and tormenting West with five touchdowns.

"Bratcher would have had 150 rushing if he would have played the second half," Linville said. "And Gray gives us more speed and shiftiness."

West's troubles worsened in the fourth as Davie's opportunistic defensive backs got into the act.

• After a bad punt snap, Davie took over at the West 15 and scored its third TD.

• Gray intercepted the ball at the Davie 20 and returned it 69 yards to the West 11, setting up Porter's second TD run on the next play.

• Jason Johnson's interception led to another Porter score, and the ensuing two-point conversion (Davie went for two because of the injury to Corriher, who is also the kicker) with 90 seconds left wound up being the final play of the game.

"On the two-point conversion, Tony Booe took a knee to the head, blacked out on the field and they decided to call the game," Linville said.

The defense has given up 22 points in four games. Andrew Darcy had Davie's third INT. Dustin Morgan and Sean Wagoner led with eight tackles each, Paul Ferrell had six and Terrell Wilson five.

"The defense brought on the explosion," Linville said. "You can't say enough about the defense. Coach (Tilden) Carter and Coach (Matt) Sain have done a great job with them."

The Titans' offense had seven possessions and went three-and-out five times. They had no answers for Wagoner.

"Wagoner was all over the place," Carter said. "When Corriher got hurt, he stepped in and kicked. His first kickoff, he kicked the ball right down the hash where we wanted it and made the tackle."

Bratcher, Porter and Gray averaged six yards a pop, and they have Ryan Boehm to thank for that. The sophomore offensive lineman drew rave reviews when coaches broke down the film.

"Every play we were rewinding it and saying: 'Watch Boehm!' " Linville said. "I mean every play. The defensive tackle he was blocking was on skates almost all night. He is really pushing people around."

Davie Looking To Make It 6-1 Vs. South Rowan

The War Eagles can't let last week's sobering 28-11 loss to West Forsyth sting them again this Friday. There's still much left to achieve in the final three weeks of the Central Piedmont Conference, and Davie's football team could conceivably enter all three as a favorite.

If recent history is any indicator of how things will turn out in Landis starting at 7:30 p.m., it looks good for the War Eagles (3-5, 1-1 CPC), who have won five of the last six meetings with South.

The Raiders enjoyed a fast start, beating North Rowan 28-14, Salisbury 17-0 and East Rowan 35-6. But they have lost five straight, including 15-9 to West Rowan, 43-19 to Mooresville, 31-3 to Kannapolis, 42-7 to West Forsyth and 20-14 to Reynolds.

But when you dissect three common opponents, the Davie-South matchup looks close. South lost to West Rowan, Mooresville and West Forsyth by a combined 100-35, while Davie lost to the same three teams 79-29.

West Forsyth coach Russell Stone, though, considers Davie a sure bet. "South Rowan can't beat Davie," he said.

The Raiders have been miserable on both sides of the ball in their last three games, getting outscored 93-24. They jumped on Reynolds 7-0 on a 40-yard burst by Henry Norman, but fumbled twice in the shadow of their end zone and allowed two touchdowns in 49 seconds and 20 unanswered points in the 20-14 loss.

South runs the wishbone and tries to 4-yard teams to death. Davie is only slightly better in the passing department, going 43-of-101 while Hoke Shirley and Andrew Morgan are 38-of-92 for South.

Notes: The War Eagles' streak over South would be six if it weren't for a blown 13-0 fourth-quarter lead in their last trip to Landis, 2000. South blocked a punt deep in Davie territory with 45 seconds left, scored to force overtime and escaped 19-13. ... The other five scores since 1996, all Davie wins, have been 21-7, 21-14, 28-7, 27-17 and 27-14 last year. ... Davie leads the series 13-9.

and Adam took care of seeing that we won. He did phenomenal things."

During Moser's six-game recovery period, Davie needed someone to do magical things, and Linder delivered. He produced a hate trick in a 4-0 win over South Rowan and scored four goals in the 3-2 and 2-0 wins over North Davidson and South Iredell.

"He was on a different level than everyone else," Caudill said. "Moving in (from another state) and not knowing everybody, that's difficult. I knew he was a great player early because he was so versatile. He wasn't playing poorly, but he wasn't that player who stood out. And now we're seeing the kind of player he is."

This week is huge. Davie – which played at West Forsyth on Oct. 21, at Reynolds on Oct. 22 and closes the regular season at North Davidson on Oct. 24 – can finish anywhere from second to fourth. An improbable 3-0 week by Davie (8-7-1, 4-3 CPC) would lock up second. A 2-1 week would make a solid possibility. A 1-2 week could drop Davie to fourth, the final state-playoff berth.

"We definitely want to stay away from fourth because fourth gets Mt. Tabor in the first round of the playoffs," Caudill said. "Tabor is the No. 1-ranked team in the state, and that would be a difficult task for anybody.

Caudill

Nelson

"This is what you play for. Maybe it's because I like this group so much, but I still don't think we've played our best match yet."

Notes: Juan Lagos and Mario Gil have also recovered from injuries. "We've got our preseason depth back," he said. ... Moser has 17 goals and Linder 12.

Patrick Law controls ball.

A Pair Of Gildein Goals Leads To 3-0 JV Win

Davie's JV soccer team, which couldn't win a game in nonconference play and started 0-6-2, won for the third time in five games last week.

The War Eagles (3-8-2 overall) improved to 3-2 in the Central Piedmont Conference by drubbing South Rowan 3-0. Andrew Gildein sandwiched goals around a Harrison Judd score as Davie put away the Raiders by halftime. Gildein's two goals were assisted by Nick Tucker.

Danny Smith joined the fun in the second half, but his goal was waved off by an offsides penalty.

"David Mellwain and Lucus Boger did real well on defense," Coach Jeremy Byrd said. "Josh Parrish had a good game in the middle of the field. Parrish and Judd really stepped up and controlled the middle of the field."

This is the final week of the season. The War Eagles played at West Forsyth and at Reynolds earlier in the week. They close at North Davidson on Oct. 24.

Star Bekah Peeler: 'Sick' Finish To Marvelous Regular Season

What worse timing to become sick?

Bekah Peeler finished first or second in every regular-season meet for Davie's girls cross-country team. She won three straight races down the stretch. She ran her best time in the final week of the regular season, 20:31.

Peeler

She was primed for a showdown with Reynolds' Melissa Abramson and West Forsyth's Emily Williams, and the Central Piedmont Conference's individual championship was sure to come down to those three.

The CPC meet was held last week at West Forsyth's 5K course, the same course where Peeler ran the 20:31. This time, in the meet that counted and determined eight all-conference spots, Peeler was under the weather. There was no comparison to the normal Peeler and sick Peeler.

She finished 24th.

"It was heartbreaking," Coach Daric Beiter said. "Cross country comes down to one meet. Even though she dominated the conference all season long, she was sick, I'm sick and about half the team is sick. She ran a faster time (Oct. 9) than what the (CPC's) winning time was, so she would have been right there if she was feeling healthy."

Abramson took first by edging past Williams 20:33 to 20:35. Peeler came around in 23:39, a 3:08 drop from her previous time.

"She gutted it out and did the best she could, but you could tell she wasn't herself," Beiter said. "If she was healthy, it would have been a great race. Even though she doesn't have that patch saying she was all-conference, we all know she was, and the other coaches do, too."

"But we have regionals and the state meet, and I talked to her about regionals being redemption."

After Peeler's 24th, Ashley Sizemore shaved 90 seconds off her previous time and finished second for Davie's girls. Brandon Shore led Davie's boys at 19th. Both Davie teams finished last.

"Shore had his mind set on getting all-conference. He just couldn't keep up the pace, but he gave the effort," Beiter said.

"The other guy who had a good race was (freshman) Aaron Holifield."

Notes: In the boys meet, West Forsyth was first at 18, followed by Reynolds at 42, South Rowan at 88, North Davidson at 104 and Davie at 137. Reynolds' girls triumphed at 22, followed by West Forsyth at 57, South Rowan at 77, North Davidson at 88, South Iredell at 135 and Davie at 154. ... The Midwest Regional is Oct. 26 at West Forsyth.

Volleyball Team's Win Streak Ends In CPC Finals

good it didn't matter. Her sizzling night was summed up by six kills in game four, when South sealed a three-games-to-one upset.

"They are probably the best passing team in the conference," Markland said. "They do have some weaknesses and we tried to exploit that. But they did a good job covering their weaknesses. They are not as versatile an offense as we are, but their middle (Nantz) is a very strong hitter, and because of their passing they were able to go to her time and time again. Across the net they don't have the hitters we do - that's just a fact - but they went to their strength all night long."

The season-series numbers were virtually even. South outscored Davie 167-155. The games were 7-6 in favor of South. Davie went 10-2 against CPC teams, while South went 9-3.

Davie, interestingly enough, claimed 27 of 28 games against everyone else in the CPC (West Forsyth, South Rowan, Reynolds and North Davidson).

"I still feel we're the better team, and it was a very disappointing loss," Markland said. "We laid it on the line, but we possibly at times tried too hard. It was their night."

The War Eagles, coming off their first-ever outright conference championship, breezed into the final by whipping Reynolds (8-13) by scores of 15-6, 15-5, 15-5.

Allison Schafer was on another planet, piling up 18 kills against zero errors. Sara Miller added eight kills with one error. "(Setter) Candice James was smart enough to stay with who was hot," Markland said.

Although South Iredell crushed Davie's 10-match winning streak, Markland will be surprised if the setback affects Davie's psyche in the 4-A state playoffs. Davie (19-3) hosted Northern Durham on Oct. 22. If Davie prevailed, it will host a second-round match on Oct. 24. Call the school at 751-5905 for the starting time.

"We're aware we're in territory we've never been in before and we'll respond very well," he said. "We're playing at home and I still say we're an extremely talented team. Given some (home crowd) adrenaline, we can play a very strong match. There wasn't the same emotion (at South Rowan). There was little crowd and it was a completely different atmosphere."

regionals and state is good - that's definitely an accomplishment – but to win the tournament championship was pretty big. We don't play 18 holes a lot, but this was my best 18-hole round."

Walker

Davie's No. 2 player, Emily Pettorini, struggled (scoring 98) after making dramatic strides and putting together 45-44-45 in the closing matches of the regular season.

"Emily beat me one time and she was right there with me at the end of (the regular season)," Walker said. "So I know she has the potential to play well."

The regional was Oct. 22 at Fox Den. The state tournament is Oct. 28-29 at Pinehurst.

Welborn Gets Ace

Ed Welborn shot a hole-in-one on Oct. 10 at Hickory Hill.

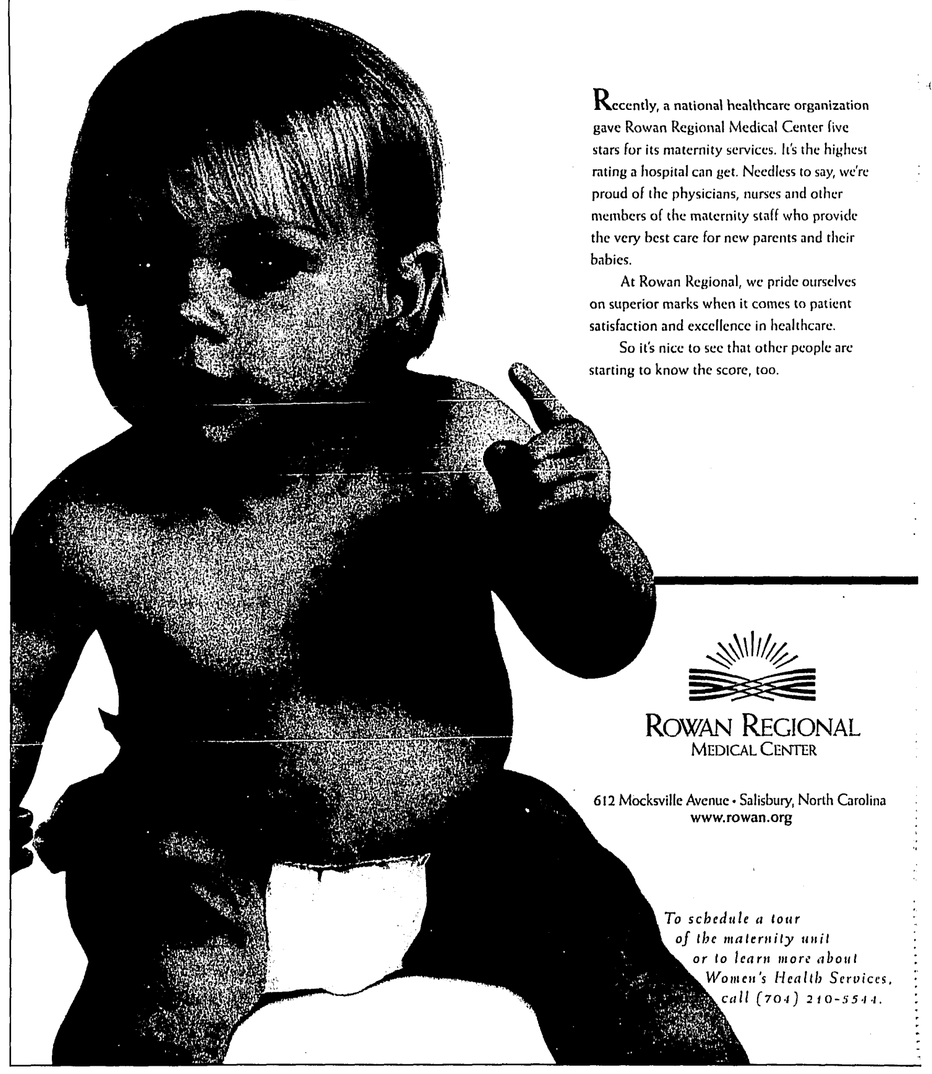
He pulled out an 8-iron on No. 15 and holed the par-3 from 158 yards away. Welborn was playing with Tommy Nance, Ray Crawford and Phil Ward.

Stewart Stays Hot

Methodist golfer James Stewart, who won the Greensboro College Invitational two weekends ago, stayed hot by taking runner-up in the Wilson Gordin Collegiate Tournament, which had a field of 12 teams from last spring's NCAA Division III championship.

The 2000 Davie High graduate shot 70-72 at Deer Track Golf Club in Surfside Beach, S.C., and was just one stroke behind the winner. It marked the second straight year that Stewart claimed second in the Wilson Gordin Collegiate Tournament.

A five-star rating is nice, but what we really like is the rating from our patients.



Recently, a national healthcare organization gave Rowan Regional Medical Center five stars for its maternity services. It's the highest rating a hospital can get. Needless to say, we're proud of the physicians, nurses and other members of the maternity staff who provide the very best care for new parents and their babies.

At Rowan Regional, we pride ourselves on superior marks when it comes to patient satisfaction and excellence in healthcare.

So it's nice to see that other people are starting to know the score, too.

Bob Potter's Forestry Career Takes Them All Over The World

Heart to Heart with Kathy Chaffin

Bob Potter gets a phone call from an old friend while photographer Robin Fergusson and I are at his West Church Street home to interview him for this week's "Heart to Heart" feature.

We can hear the excitement in his voice from the next room as he makes plans to meet him at the Adams Mark Winston Plaza Hotel. That was Bert Husch, he says as he rejoins us, an American forester he first met when they were both working in Rome in the 1960s.

Bert now lives in Chile, where he's vice president of the Chilean Society of Foresters, and it's been 36 years since Bob has seen him. He's in North Carolina attending the Society of American Foresters meeting.

Bob tells Phyllis, his wife of 50 years, the news as soon as she arrives home. She's been to an aerobics class at the Davie Family YMCA, where she has served on the board of directors and as board chairperson, and by the store to pick up a few groceries.

"Phyl, you can't imagine," he begins. "Guess who I got a telephone call from about half an hour ago? Bert Husch. He's in Winston-Salem, and this afternoon, I hope you'll go with me to visit him."

"Yes, OK," Phyllis responds, to the delight of her husband.

"Phyllis is always ready to go somewhere," he says.

A phone call from an old friend in Chile is just one of the benefits of Bob's career in the U.S. Forest Service and the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. It is a career that took the Potters all over the world before they retired to Davie County in 1988.

"It seems like almost anywhere we go now, we meet up with people or come across names that are very familiar," he says. "In reading the newspaper about world events such as in Afghanistan where we have been or in Yugoslavia, where we spent a fair amount of time and still have friends we communicate with, the world just seems more a part of our family."

Their adventures are chronicled in "The Life and Times of Bob and Phyllis Potter," a 51-page autobiography he put together for family and friends:

Phyllis and I are both in our 70s, have lived in seven states and four countries. When we meet up with people we have not known, usually we are asked, "Where are you from?" or "Where have you been?"

When we tell them where we have lived and what we have done, inevitably, they say, "You should write a book."

So Bob did just that, relying on the journals he was required to keep for his jobs for dates and other specifics. The book and an accompanying collection of photographs was a gift for his three daughters and eight grandchildren this past Christmas.

"They enjoyed the pictures," he says of the grandchildren. "I don't know that they all read the autobiography, probably not.

" I figure at some point in the future, as they grow up and develop curiosity about their family background, they might read it."

Titled "The Formative Years (1927-1952), the first section of the book covers Bob's childhood in Summit Hill, a coal mining town in eastern Pennsylvania. Born on Aug. 20, 1927, Robert Vernon Potter was the second of three children, and the only boy.

Bob had just turned 2 when Phyllis Jean Sones was born in the western part of Pennsylvania in Butler, about 30 miles north of Pittsburgh. She had one brother, Vernon, who is four years her junior.

Phyllis was still in high school when Bob enlisted in the U.S. Navy. He served for three years before returning to Pennsylvania and enrolling as a forestry student at the Mont Alto campus of Penn State College, now Penn State University.

The highlight of Bob's freshman year was his acceptance by the U.S. Forest Service for a summer job on the Umpqua National Forest in Oregon. His father drove him and a roommate to Harrisburg, Pa., from where they planned to hitchhike the rest of the way.

We arrived there about 8 a.m. but did not get a ride until about 8 p.m. We learned later that there had been a prison breakout in a Pennsylvania prison the night before and radio announcements by the State Police advised motorists to NOT pick up hitchhikers!

Blackwelder-Harris Couple Speak Vows

Nicole Lynnette Blackwelder of Mocksville and James Warren Harris III of Charlotte were united in marriage Saturday, Oct. 12 at 4:30 p.m. at Back Creek Presbyterian Church in Charlotte.

The Rev. Ben Mull of Statesville officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Doug and Mary Blackwelder of Mocksville. She is a 1995 graduate of Davie High School and a 1999 graduate of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. She is employed as a flight attendant with US Airways.

The groom is the son of Janet and James Warren Harris Jr. of Charlotte. He is a 1991 graduate of West Charlotte High School. He is employed by Harris Mustang of Charlotte.

Escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a halter neckline gown of beaded silk organza over satin. The aline skirt was adorned with lightly scattered sequins and beads. The veil of tulle was elbow length and featured a beaded head-piece.

The bride carried a bouquet of white roses and hypericun.

Beth Nash of Monroe was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Luci Harris, sister of the groom, and Jennifer Green of Charlotte, Sabrina O'Neal and Jenny Swaim of Mocksville.

The groom's father was best man. Groomsmen were Robbie Harris, the groom's brother, Alan Cochrane, Tripp Crosby, and Andy Walker, all of Charlotte.

Jenny Benson of Charlotte was the guest register attendant. Jennifer Jones of Winston-Salem, cousin of the bride, was program attendant.

Music was provided by organist Ellen Bulow. Soloist was Deena Faris.

The wedding was directed by Barbara Cochrane of Charlotte.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the Family Life Center of the church.

A buffet was served. The four-tier wedding cake was adorned with roses.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner for the bridal party, Friday, Oct. 11, in the Family Life Center of the church.

The couple celebrated their wedding with a honeymoon to Antigumi. They will reside in Charlotte.

IF YOU HAVEN'T HAD A MAMMOGRAM LATELY, YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU'RE MISSING
When breast cancer begins, it's as small as a dot on this page. So small that only a mammogram can find it. In fact, a mammogram can detect a problem with the breast as early as two years before you can detect it yourself, and your chances for recovery are much better if it is detected early. During the month of October, Davis Regional Medical Center is pleased to announce that Mammogram gift certificates will be available for $35, which includes interpretation by a Radiologist. Gift certificates may be purchased in the Cashier's office, between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Work Sought For Art Show

Last year The Davie County Arts Council and The Art Group sponsored "A Public Hanging" for the first time.

More than 30 artists participated.

Due to the favorable response from artists and the community, this show is being held for the second year in the lobby of the Brock Performing Arts Center, beginning with a reception from 6-8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 15, and continuing on display until Jan. 6, 2003. The community is invited to the reception, where they can enjoy some refreshments and have an opportunity to talk with the artists. Prizes and the judge's comments will be given at 7 p.m.

The title "A Public Hanging" reflects the intention of this show to encourage area artists and give them a place to show and sell their work.

Two- and three-dimensional work, and fine crafts are welcomed. Each artist can submit two pieces and at least one of them will be shown. The exception would be if the Arts Council feels work is not in accordance with community standards. Interested artists and fine craftsmen should contact the Arts Council offices for a prospectus containing the complete rules and requirements. There is a $5 entry fee, with prizes to be awarded of $100 for first, $75 for second and $50 for third. Honorable mentions will be awarded at the discretion of the judge.

The selector and judge for this show is Sterling Edwards, an exhibiting member of Associated Artists of Winston-Salem and a faculty member of the Sawtooth Center for Visual Arts. He conducts watercolor workshops around the country. His paintings are in private and corporate collections throughout the United States and Canada.

The co-chairs organizing the show are Patricia Dee and Sue Boggs of Mocksville.

For more information or a show prospectus, contact the DCAC at 622 N. Main St., Mocksville, 751-3113, or E-mail: info@daviearts.org.

Family Chooses Davie After Living Around The World

It took four nights and five days, but Bob and his roommate arrived safely at the forest supervisor's office in Eugene, Ore. There, Bob was assigned to a trail maintenance crew removing overgrown brush and fallen trees along park trails.

After four weeks, he was transferred to the Bohemia Mountain Lookout, where his workday consisted of carrying drinking water in a five-gallon backpack from a spring a mile away, cutting firewood for heating and cooking, clearing brush from around the tower site, painting and maintaining the cabin and making two daily telephone reports to the Ranger Tower.

This was the first of a lifetime of adventures Bob Potter was to experience with the Forest Service.

In the meantime, Phyllis had graduated from high school and enrolled at Clarion State Teachers College, transferring to Penn State College the following year. She was pursuing a degree in physical education and performing with a college dance team when she and Bob met.

Phyllis graduated in June 1951, working as a bank teller that summer before starting a job as a high school physical education teacher in Indiana, Pa. Bob spent that summer working for the Forest Service Smokejumper organization in Missoula, Mont., returning in August for his final year at Penn State.

He spent the $500 he had earned over the summer for an engagement ring for Phyllis, and they were married on Saturday, June 7, 1952.

After his graduation the following Monday with a degree in forestry, the newlyweds headed to Montgomery, Ala., where Bob had been accepted into the management program at Koppers Co., Wood Preserving Division. Phyllis had accepted a secretarial job in the plant office there at a nice salary.

They had only been in Alabama a few months when Bob received an offer to go to work for the U.S. Forest Service, and they headed to Jasper, Ark. They moved from there to Clarksville, where their first daughter, Robin Jean Potter, was born on May 22, 1954.

She and Phyllis were in the small hospital in Clarksville which, at that time did not have a nursery so Robin spent her first several nights in a bureau drawer in Phyl's room.

After two years in the Ozark, Bob received orders to transfer to the National Forests in Alabama. They started out in Haleyville, moving to Centreville after he was selected to fill the District Ranger position in the Tuscaloosa Ranger District.

In early 1957, Phyllis discovered she was pregnant with their second child. It wasn't long afterward that Bob was informed of his selection to be one of two Forest Service participants in a one-year Public Administration Fellowship at Harvard University, beginning in August of that year.

Bob had just finished putting their furniture and household goods in storage in a vacant coal bin in Centreville and driven to Phyllis' hometown of Butler, where she and Robin had flown to be with her parents, when their second daughter, Amy Elizabeth, was born on Aug. 14, 1957.

Children and grandchildren make up a big part of the Potter's life.

Phyllis and the children continued to live with her parents while Bob completed his first semester at Harvard.

By the end of the first semester, I feared that I would fail in this attempt at "higher" education. But my spirits were greatly lifted by my reunion with Phyllis, Robin and Amy at Christmastime. I had rented, near the campus, a first-floor apartment to which we all returned after the holidays.

My involvement with our family and Phyl's encouragement and typing of my term papers greatly helped me to settle into a more meaningful and productive routine. And lo-and-behold, I succeeded in meeting the qualifications for a master's degree in public administration.

After graduating, Bob was assigned to the Forest Service's Division of State and Private Forestry in the regional office in Atlanta, from which he would serve and assist the state forestry organizations in Texas, Tennessee and North Carolina for the next three years.

"During this experience," he says, "we were attracted to the climate and location of North Carolina." It was that memory that would lead them back to the state years later.

Though they enjoyed living in Atlanta, the death of Phyllis' father in 1959 and Bob's father in 1961 prompted him to request and receive a transfer to the Washington, D.C. headquarters of the Forest Service so they could be closer to their mothers. It was there that they purchased their first home — a bi-level, four-bedroom house in Alexandria, Va.

The Potters were living in their new home when their third daughter, Emily Ann, was born on Sept. 26, 1961.

In Washington, D.C., Bob was assigned to the Division of Program Planning and Legislation. "My ambition at that time as was the ambition of most young foresters was to be chief of the Forest Service," he says, "Eventually, I reached a point where I realized that wasn't likely to happen."

In the meantime, he became acquainted with Dr. Bob Winters, director of the International Forestry Staff of the Forest Service. If he stayed in the Forest Service, Potter says Winters told him, he would have a challenging career, but the new field of International Forestry offered "literally a liberal education not only for me but for my entire family."

So in December 1963, Bob transferred to the International Forestry staff, eventually opening up a whole new world to the Potter family. For the first three years, he interviewed foresters sent to the United States from other countries and helped place them in schools to complete their graduate training.

His first overseas job came in September 1966, when he was assigned to the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations headquarters in Rome. "Phyllis and the children lived in Rome," he says, "and became Italians for three years."

Daughters Robin and Amy attended an American type school in Rome, and Emily spent her first school year in an Italian kindergarten. She had a difficult time because all communication was in the Italian language. Frustrated, she would say, "Don't talk to me in that Talian."

As a project officer, Bob supervised ongoing forestry projects in Latin America and Asia involving 70 professional staff and investments of $26 million. He traveled extensively in the position, visiting project sites in the Dominican Republic, Brazil, Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand and the Philippines.

Some of the trips lasted as long as six weeks, and he carried a harmonica with him to play during his off-duty time.

Upon arriving in Rome, Phyllis decided she wanted a Siamese cat and posted a notice on the FAO bulletin board. One of the English secretaries there told her she had a Siamese kitten and would bring it in the next day.

When they met, the secretary handed Phyl a small critter, eyes not yet open, and devoid of any hair. Phyl felt obliged, at that point, to take the cat but hoped that eventually, it would begin to look more like a cat than like a newborn bird.

Well, we had that cat, Guilio, for many years and it never did get fully clothed. It also was mean and ill-tempered. When we were moving from that apartment to return to the USA, one of the movers, a big burly Italian, was on one of the balconies packing boxes when he saw the leaves on an ivy vine move.

He went closer to see what was behind the vine. He then turned and ran into the apartment shouting, "chimee! chimee!" which, in Italian, means monkey! He had seen Guilio.

Phyllis had become proficient at speaking, reading and understanding the Italian language and their daughters were experienced travelers by the time the family returned to the United States in August 1969.

A month later, the Forest Service confirmed that Bob had been reassigned to the International Forestry staff in the Washington office as assistant director. Soon afterward, the Potters sold their Alexandria house, which they had rented when they left for Italy, and bought a new house adjacent to the village of Potomac, Md.

In his new position, Bob was responsible for the training of foreign nationals, the recruitment of United States specialists for overseas work and for planning and implementing international forestry conferences.

After the government of Jamaica applied to the U.S. State Department for a loan and technical assistance to improve the Blue Mountain watershed of its capitol city, Kingston, Bob was among a three-man team assigned in 1973 to determine the financial and technical feasibility of such a project. Phyllis was able to visit for two weeks of his six-month stay there.

In November of the following year, Bob's mother died at age 76. Immediately after attending the funeral, he flew to Rome, where he picked up information at FAO headquarters on his new assignment in Peshawar, Pakistan.

Bob was there to assist the Pakistanis in locating timber resources in the Himalaya Mountains that would have value in the world market. "They were wanting to modernize their Army," he says, "but the only place they could get current armaments and weapons was on the world market."

Since my assignment was initially for one year with extension probable, my family was allowed to join me but we were not allowed to bring furniture or household goods. We quickly found a house to rent and set about purchasing furniture from the many small shops in open street markets.

As we drove about town in the Volkswagen Passat provided by the UNDP (United Nations Development Project), hordes of children and young men would gather around the car to see our daughters — blond, blue-eyed females with faces and lower legs exposed — a rarity in this extremely conservative Muslim country.

Robin had started attending the Maryland University School of Nursing when Bob relocated to Pakistan, so she flew across the globe to spend Christmas with her father before returning to the States.

Phyllis, Amy, Emily and their Scottish terrier, Andy, joined him in early January. Since there was no English language school in Peshawar, Amy and Emily attended an American-style school in the capitol city of Islamabad, 200 miles away.

The school had no boarding facilities, so the Potter girls stayed with an Australian couple during the week. On the weekends, they would fly to Peshawar, where they were met and carried home by a Pakistani with a horse-drawn cart called a tonga.

In May 1976, the family returned to Potomac, and Bob was reassigned to the Division of Legislative Affairs in the Washington office of the Forest Service. For the next five years, he worked preparing legislation reports, drafting legislation and attending congressional and legislative committee meetings promoting the establishment of wilderness areas in the United States.

This required several trips to the sites being proposed as wilderness areas. Among the legislation enacted were the Boundary Waters Canoe Wilderness and the Central Idaho Wilderness laws. Bob also assisted in processing legislation for a Lake Tahoe National Recreation Area and a California Wilderness Act.

The Potter family, in the meantime, continued to grow. Amy, who had earned a degree in liberal arts at her parents' alma mater, Penn State, married writer Jonathon Imbody of Allentown, Pa., on June 3, 1978.

Their daughter, Robin, who had graduated from the Maryland University School of Nursing, married Newlin Morgan, a biomedical engineer from Wyoming, on April 23, 1980. When the father of the bride returned home from the wedding, held in the Fourth Presbyterian Church in Bethesda, Md., another job opportunity was waiting for him in the mail.

Dr. Horst Geuting, with whom he had worked in Pakistan, had written, asking him if he would be interested in an assignment in Lesotho, southern Africa.

"Lesotho stands at an elevation between 5,000 and 11,000 feet," he says, "and it's relatively barren because for hundreds and hundreds of years, it's been overgrazed land. The only place where there was any woody vegetation was in three main river drainages running from nerth to south."

Bob was assigned to work with the government of Lesotho to develop a village tree planting project, to help establish and run a forestry school for Basuto boys and to organize and help develop a national forest service.

Among his accomplishments were identifying local vegetation suitable for soil stabilization, overseeing operation of nine nurseries on village land producing 80,000 trees annually from cuttings, seeds and seedlings acquired locally and encouraging village chiefs to make their land available for tree planting.

Phyllis accompanied Bob to Lesotho, making their home in Maseru, where the climate was dry and moderate. Every other weekend, they drove to Bloemfontain, about 200 miles to the west, to purchase groceries and other necessities.

In October 1981, Bob was informed by the FAO that he qualified for "rest" leave if he took it by the end of the year. He and Phyllis returned home for three weeks the following month, at which point he informed the Forest Service that on Aug. 20, 1982, he would be 55 years old and with his 35 years of service, would have enough time in to retire from the U.S. Civil Service.

Bob and Phyllis also visited with Emily, who was enrolled in the Maryland University School of Nursing. They were concerned about their youngest daughter's large, impersonal classes and the lack of family contact and encouraged her to join them in Maseru.

Emily arrived in December and with her mother's help, was soon enrolled in a registered nurse training program in Addington Hospital in the coastal city of Durban.

Though Bob's retirement became effective on his 55th birthday the following summer, he continued to work in Lesotho for the duration of his three-year term of duty.

In February 1983, we started our home leave with two weeks skiing in Kitzbuhel, Austria, and ended with four weeks in USA. At our house in Potomac, Md., Robin and Amy hosted a wonderful retirement party for me attended by about 70 friends, including three living former chiefs of the Forest Service ...

We also participated in the March 27 "dedication" service for Annie Morgan, who was born Sept. 29, 1982. Our return to Lesotho was by the southern route to Rio de Janeiro and Capetown.

While visiting with Emily in August 1983, the Potters met her boyfriend and future husband, Dr. Tom Wammenburg. He was working as a resident surgeon in the trauma ward at Addington hospital.

Phyllis' 81-year-old mother died of heart failure on Dec. 7, 1993, and she returned home for the Dec. 12 funeral. Emily was already in the United States on home leave and also attended.

During their final year in Lesotho, Bob and Phyllis began discussing how they would spend their retirement years. Though his assignment would end in February 1984, their house in Potomac was rented through August 1985.

"So we flew to Luxembourg," he says, "and bought a Volkswagen camper and spent the next year and a half just meandering around Europe.

"We spent quite a bit of time in Rome, where we still had many friends. We spent some time in Greece, Yugoslavia, Germany, all parts of Italy, Switzerland, where The Potters ...

They spent a month in France, a month in England, where they had friends with whom Bob had worked in Pakistan, and three weeks in Ireland, where they had friends with whom he had worked in Lesotho.

The couple returned to the States for Emily and Tom's wedding in Bethesda on Dec. 22, 1984, remaining to spend Christmas with their daughters, son-in-laws and grandchildren. They left to return to Europe on Jan. 19 with several family members, including Robin, Newlin and Annie, for a ski vacation in Kitzbuhel.

On Easter Sunday of 1985, Bob and Phyllis boarded Icelander flight 643 for the United States. Robin was at the Baltimore-Washington airport to welcome them home.

We were glad to be home. Our "gypsy" life during the past year and a half now seemed somewhat unreal — almost like a dream. The "safari" through Europe was a unique, once-in-a-lifetime experience.

Memories of it did not "fade away." We had made many new friends and had strengthened our ties with older acquaintances. Now it was time to reunite with family and our American friends and put domestic matters in order. As we visited, we had an ample supply of stories to tell those who were interested.

Upon arriving back in the States, the Potters retrieved their camper from the Wilmington harbor and visited the latest additions to the family — granddaughters Jeanne Imbody and Sarah Morgan. They visited with Bob's sisters and their families in Pennsylvania and New York and Phyllis' friends in western Pennsylvania, taking time out to attend his 40th high school reunion in Summit Hill.

The Potters' travels took them through Florida, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee, Arkansas and North Carolina, where they looked for a place to which to retire.

They narrowed their choice to the Piedmont area of North Carolina mainly because of the climate. "We did not know anyone in that area," Bob says.

In August of that year, Bob and Phyllis moved back into their home in Potomac. "We spent the next three years as residents," he says, "kind of patching up, painting up, cleaning up and getting the house ready for sale."

Phyllis resumed horse-riding lessons at the Potomac Horse Center and rejoined the ladies chorus of the Welcome to Washington Club, and they both returned to the choir at Fourth Presbyterian Church.

I made my eighth biennial visit to the Gerontology Research Center in Baltimore for another three-day round of physical, medical and mental tests to determine the factors affecting and those affected by the aging process.

I had entered this program in 1969 and will continue to volunteer as long as I can. I enjoy the contact with the research personnel and consider this a "window" into the personal changes I experience and into the rapidly changing technology in medicine.

The Potters returned to South Africa to visit with Emily and Tom in September of that year. She was training and working in midwifery, and he was working as a resident at the Naval Medical Center in Durban.

Bob and Phyllis returned to their Potomac home in time to spend the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays with the rest of the family. They started out 1986 with a three-day trip to North Carolina to continue to look for a retirement home.

While looking at real estate property in the Piedmont area, Bob and Phyllis took trips in their camper, going as far west as New Mexico and as far south as Florida. They spent some time in Massanutten, Va., and enjoyed it so much that they bought a one-week time-share there.

They continued to be active skiiers and skiied in Park City, Deer Valley and Alta ski areas in Utah in 1986, later returning to Europe to ski in Kitzbuhel, Austria, and visit with friends. Granddaughter Alexandra Erin Wannenburg was born that March 17, followed by David Wesley Imody on June 13.

Two days later, Bob began a six-week consultancy to Sudan to help design and plan the restructuring of forestry administration there. During this time, the Sudanese foresters with whom he was working were invited to visit Zimbabwe, and Bob was asked to accompany them.

Once they had returned from the 10-day trip, flying Zimbabwe and Ethiopian airlines, Bob was detained in Khartoum, Sudan, where he was told his visa was not valid.

"I spent about four or five hours in a room with no windows, the door locked and no telephone," he says. "They took my passport from me. They took my airplane tickets from me. My luggage was in another part of the airport."

Finally, at about 9 that night, the passport control officers came and told him he was being deported to Ethiopia. "I was the only passenger on the plane," he says.

Bob was flown to Asmara, Eritria, where he and the pilot shared a room for the night before going on to Addis Ababa the next day. There, a U.S. Consular Officer met him, arranged for hotel accommodations and assigned him an office, secretary, desk, typewriter and telephone for the five days he was at the embassy waiting on a new visa for Sudan.

When he finally arrived back in Khartoum, Bob says it took him two days to round up the Sudanese foresters so they could write their report. "It was accepted by the Sudanese government," he says, "and I came back home."

During the Potters' travels to North Carolina, they became acquainted with a real estate agent in Clemmons, a friend of their real estate agent in Potomac, who introduced them to Davie County. They visited with her and began putting in writing what they wanted in a retirement home.

"It was a chore," Bob says, "but finally we arrived at something that both Phyllis and I could agree on."

In the meantime, he continued to be called on for consulting work for the Forest Service. After the Sudan trip, he spent more than a month working in Nepal to analyze a forestry development project being proposed by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

When the job was completed on Nov. 25, 1987, Bob left for Johannesburg, South Africa, to meet Phyllis for a two-month visit to Durban, where they spent time with Emily and Tom and 8-month-old Alexandra, who family and friends called "Sweetpea."

They also returned to Lesotho to visit with old friends before returning to the States, where granddaughter Laura Melissa Morgan had been born on Jan. 18, 1988.

In the spring of that year, Bob returned to Lesotho to assist in a team appraisal of a World Food Program project. Then on August 26, after three years of looking at prospective retirement homes, the Potters bought an 18-acre farm on Becktown Road in Davie County.

Calling it "Genesis Farm" in observance of their new beginning, the Potters moved the furnishings they had collected from their world travels into the four-year-old farmhouse and began building fences and cutting walking and riding trails in the wooded areas around the house.

On Oct. 19, 1988, the night before Robin, Newlin and their three daughters were planning to visit, Bob and Phyllis received a phone call from them with tragic news.

That morning, Annie and other playmates were in the basement of the Morgan house playing with various toys, including a jump rope and a small, wooden sliding board. Emily was visiting at the time. When the children were called upstairs for lunch, all the kids showed up except Annie.

Robin went down to investigate and found Annie at the foot of the sliding board with the jump rope around her neck and unconscious. Apparently, she had been playing with the jump rope but wanted to get in one last slide before going for lunch.

In her haste she must have put the rope across her shoulders or possibly even around her neck and unknown to her, the handle at one end of the rope caught on the top of the sliding board. The rope strangled her when she got to the bottom of the slide.

Robin and Emily tried to resuscitate her and immediately called the ambulance. But Annie died shortly after arriving at the hospital. She was six years old.

Bob and Phyllis drove to Bethesda that night to be with their family. A memorial service was held four days later in a church filled with family and friends and many of the rescue and hospital workers who had tried to save Annie.

Newlin's brother Evan, and Amy sang several songs including one that Amy had composed that morning.

The music was beautiful, the service was one of thanksgiving for Annie's life, short as it was. Robin and Newlin, though heartbroken, retained their composure and expressed their love for Annie and for God who had given her to them.

The next day, Annie, accompanied by Newlin's parents, was flown to Laramie, Wyo., for burial in the family cemetery lot there. Robin, Newlin, Sarah and Laura joined them there.

Annie's death was a tragedy we will never forget. It cannot be reasoned. Only faith and trust in God can suffice.

Bob and Phyllis placed a statue of a little girl with a bouquet of flowers in her hands on their Genesis Farm as a memorial to Annie. There, they continued to build their retirement dream, adding a deck, barn, horses and a tractor.

"That was really a wonderful experience," Bob says. "For the next 10 to 12 years, we lived there and all of our grandchildren got acquainted with farm life and riding horses, and dogs and cats.

"They all got to ride and drive the tractor and all that stuff. During that time, two of our daughters and their families actually lived within a half mile of our farm."

In 1990, Bob flew to Sierra Leone, West Africa, for a three-week consultancy for Tropical Research and Development's project titled "Community Participatory Forestry for Fuelwood in the Western Region."

There, Bob was mugged by two teenagers while walking along the beach. Because the hotel at which he was staying had no security boxes for the personal property of guests, he was carrying his valuables with him.

After knocking Bob on his back in the surf, the muggers escaped with his bag containing $200 in U.S. currency, a wrist-watch, $3,000 in travelers' checks, his credit cards, $4,000 worth of airline tickets, his passport, visa and room key.

He started chasing after them and was joined by a lifeguard who ran into a woody thicket and returned with one of the muggers and Potter's bag with only the U.S. currency and wristwatch missing.

After spending hours at a police station trying to explain what had happened to an officer who spoke no English, Bob went to the United Nations representative there and told her about the incident. "Finally, she gave in and assigned me to another hotel," he says, "a little more expensive, but they had safety deposit boxes."

And the bed, unlike the one in the first hotel, he says, was not infested with fleas.

Entering the decade of the 90s, Bob and Phyllis Potter continued to enjoy their life on the farm, going for ski vacations and other travel adventures, including two cruises on Renaissance Cruise Line ships. Their family also grew with the addition of their youngest grandchild, Robbie Wannenburg, on Jan. 19, 1991.

During a 10-day horse trip through the Bob Marshall Wilderness just east of Glacier National Park in Montana in 1995, Phyllis suffered a pinched nerve in her hip.

Even though she had to be lifted into and out of her saddle, she "hung in there" and gave a pretty "gutsy" account of herself.

Phyl's toughness served her well a few years later when she underwent arthroscopic surgery on her knee, had a three-week spell of "Bell's Palsy" and had surgical removal of a cancerous tumor from her breast followed by seven weeks of radiation treatment. She's getting to be a "tough ole cookie."

As the kids moved further away and Phyllis began to get more and more involved in community activities such as the Y and the Mocksville Woman's Club, Bob says he began feeling isolated on Becktown Road.

"I found myself alone on the farm," he says, "scooping manure, baling hay and after a while, I thought, 'This isn't what I want.'"

Getting Phyllis to leave the farm, however, was not an easy task. "She's an excellent wife and a wonderful mother," Bob says, "but she's not a pushover.

"So whenever we make decisions that involve the family or moving, it has to be a unanimous decision or it doesn't work."

It took a while, but Bob convinced Phyllis that they should put the farm up for sale. "But first we had to get rid of the horses," he says, "and that was a painful ordeal."

They found a buyer for Phyllis' horse, the younger of the three, and donated Bob's 21-year-old quarter house to the Davie County Special Olympics for use in its equestrian program. The pony, a cross between an Appaloosa and a Welsh, is now owned by daughter Emily and grandson Robbie, who now live in Lewisville, and is boarded on a farm near the Potters' former Becktown home.

Bob and Phyllis looked around for a home in Mocksville for some time, finally finding a wooded lot on West Church Street that they liked. After convincing the owner to sell, they cleared the land and built the brick house in which they now live. "We've been in the house one year now," Bob says.

Phyllis continues to be active in the Y and the Mocksville Woman's Club, of which she serves as chaplain. She is also on the board of directors for the Davie County Group Home.

Bob is a member of the Mocksville Rotary Club and the board of directors for the Davie County United Way. He and Phyllis attend the First Baptist Church of Mocksville.

After years of excellent health, Bob says he awakened last November and couldn't get out of bed.

"Every joint and muscle in my body hurt," he says, "I couldn't dress myself. I couldn't get up. I couldn't feed myself, and it was that way for several days."

A doctor diagnosed him with inflammatory arthritis and prescribed medication to help with the pain. "And the symptoms let up somewhat," he says.

The arthritis was followed by asthma, and then at the first of this year, he began to have difficulty breathing. "I had been a jogger since 1963, so I always figured I had a good, strong heart," he says.

His heart was strong, but fluid was beginning to collect in his pericardium, the sac around it, and also in his lungs. "I've spent a lot of time going back and forth to Baptist Hospital since then," he says. "I spent four days there where they put a needle in and drained off a lot of the fluids."

Now that he's on medication to prevent the fluid from collecting, Bob says he's just beginning to get back to where he's feeling good.

"That means I want to get up in the mornings," he says, "thinking of things I want to do. I'm eating OK. I'm sleeping OK. I manage to work around here, doing yardwork for maybe three or four hours a day and then I'm pooped.

"So I come in and sit down in my chair and my dog, my black lab, Bud, comes in and we read."

While they read, three Siamese cats sit on the chair across the room and wait on his wife. "They're Phyllis' babies," he says.

The cats are named for the Zulu tribe in Africa, where the Potters got them. The father, Umsebi, is 14 years old, while the mother, Umbali, is a year older than him. Their baby, which is now 11, is Umtata.

Like most grandparents, Bob and Phyllis love to brag on their children and eight grandchildren and display their artwork and crafts throughout their new home. The statue of Annie has been moved from the Genesis Farm to their back yard on West Church Street.

"When they come to visit, pretty near everybody pays a visit to Annie to keep her alive in the memories of the family," Bob says.

He looks back on his 75 years of life with gratitude in the last section of his book titled, "We Have Been Blessed."

When dear old Bob Winters proposed that my career in International Forestry would be a liberal education for the entire family, he was more prophetic than perhaps even he realized. We continue to be blessed with the discovery of new "worlds" and new friends.

The genes inherited from our parents, Phyl's good cooking, active lifestyles and good medical counsel given freely by our daughters and their husbands have kept us in reasonably good health ...

We thank the Lord our God, our families and our friends for our endless blessings."

Historical Group Begins Holiday Gift Campaign

COOLEEMEE - The Cooleemee Historical Association has begun a holiday gift campaign in support of operating its Mill Village Museum.

Created in 1995, the museum is Davie County's only manned historical attraction and it has been visited by thousands.

As part of the funds campaign, the Cooleemee history group has entered a partnership with Our State: Down Home in North Carolina magazine. As a "Community Partner" the historical society will receive a percentage of each subscription sold.

Our State, published since 1933, is the only North Carolina publication devoted to Tar Heel travel, history, personalities, food, and folklore. From Murphy to Manteo, Our State features charming stories and photography from all over North Carolina.

Subscription forms are available at the Davie County Library's History Room, at the Literary Book Post in Salisbury, at Davie Discount Drugs and the Zachary House in Cooleemee.

A subscription costs $21.95 and checks should be made payable to "CHA." If you would like a subscription blank, call 284-6040.

A first in a series of Historic Cooleemee glass Christmas ornaments has also been created. The colorful glass globe features Cooleemee's Old Wood School. Artist Glenda Beard will be signing ornaments at the Zachary House from 2-4 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 7. Suggested donation is $10 per ornament, with $2 additional for mailing. Orders may be sent to CHA, PO Box 667, Cooleemee, 27014.

Ashley Cope

Ashley Cope In N.C. Teen Pageant

Ashley Cope will participate in the N.C. Teen Pageant Saturday, Oct. 26, at 5 p.m. on CBS.

"It has been a lot of hard work, but well worth it," she said, "this by far has been the opportunity of a lifetime. I also have been fortunate enough to meet some of the most greatest people.

"I want to encourage every young adult to be who you want to be. Believe in yourself, before others, and don't be scared to make those dreams become reality. Most of all, keep your head held high no matter what, and never give up," she said.

Cope said she is grateful for all of her sponsors.

A large crowd attended breakfast Saturday. Thanks to everyone who came and also to everyone who helped. The next breakfast will be held the third Saturday in November.

Jerry Banks, Layleader of Farmington United Methodist Church, spoke at our church Sunday. James and Lelia Essic and Libby Banks were visitors.

Vernon Dull hosted a chicken stew at his home Saturday night for neighbors and church members. Around 35 attended and everyone had a great time.

Dan Stanley, son of Joan Barsdale, had surgery Monday. We pray that he will have a speedy recovery. Joan's daughter, Amy, of Michigan is spending this week with her mother and stepfather, Paul Barsdale. She came especially to be with her brother during his surgery.

Ethan Boger spent Tuesday with his grandparents, Harmon and Nora Latham.

Larry and Mary Berry of Lakes Whales, Fla. were overnight guests of Betty and Roland West at Frostlands. Walter Etchison joined them for dinner.

We extend our sincere sympathy to the family of Jamie Reavis for their loss. Curtis Lee Reavis, Jamie's husband, was a former resident of this community.

"In Memory of Mrs. Annie Bowles"

I've lost another customer and friend, she was faithful to the very end.

She lived a long and happy life, and I'm sure she was a good wife.

I'll remember her all my days, especially with her winning ways.

The Lord and family she truly loved, and I'm sure she is with her Father above.

Love and best wishes to her family I say, Thank God for sending her my way.

Love in Christ,

Kids love birthday parties at McDonald's in Mocksville. Senior citizens celebrating their birthdays were in their second childhood at McDonald's Oct. 7.

This party was enjoyed by cousin Dave Leonard, sister Delores Clendenin, and the clown of McDonald's - Peggy Hoskins.

Our advice to all senior citizens is to thank God for each day and enjoy life one day at a time. Do a good deed each day for a friend and a shut-in. Remember, it's not the years in your life, but it's the life in your years that count. God bless all of our McDonald buddies.

Fall storage at Bermuda Mini's

Customers from across the Triad are finding Bermuda Mini's Self-Storage to be the ideal location to store their valuable possessions.

"Bermuda Mini's has a great facility," says Elaine Reed of Advance, a customer of Bermuda Mini's. "The staff there is very friendly, helpful and efficient."

Bermuda Mini's Self-Storage, located off of Highway 158 in Advance, operating since 1996. The 296 storage units are surrounded by a state-of-the-art security system, including a computerized access gate with an individualized code for each customer. Computers monitor the time of each entrance into and exit from the property. A six-foot high chain link fencing, topped with barbed wire adds to security. Spotlights perpetually flood the perimeters of the property at night.

Richard Lawrence of Charlotte rates Bermuda Mini's Self-Storage very highly. "They have a very friendly staff and clean facility. I would recommend them any time." For furniture, computers, or other possessions susceptible to extreme heat or cold, Bermuda Mini's offers climate-controlled storage units. These specialized units maintain a year-round temperature regulation to protect your possessions. Lesta Carpenter of Winston-Salem found that even the humidity of heavy rains did not affect the items she had stored at Bermuda Mini's.

"In all that heavy rain we had, nothing in my storage unit even got damp," she said.

Many people about to sell their homes find Bermuda Mini's as the perfect way to eliminate the clutter in their home to make it more attractive for buyers.

Sandy Scholl, now assistant manager at Bermuda Mini's Self-Storage, originally came to the storage facility as a customer.

"We moved here from Pennsylvania," Ms. Scholl says. "We looked at all the storage facilities before renting at Bermuda Mini's. They were just the best," she says. Ms. Scholl rented with Bermuda Mini's for seven months, while her new home was being built. She was so impressed with the professional attitude and friendliness of Manager Jessica Denzendorf, that she has been an employee there for the past two years.

"We go out of our way to make arrangements for customers," says Manager Jessica Denzendorf. Clients are able to use a trailer to move items to the storage unit, at no cost. Call Bermuda Mini's for more details on this unique opportunity.

Free keyed security locks are also provided for Bermuda Mini's customers.

Businesses find the special long-term and rental of consecutive units an attractive alternative at Bermuda Mini's convenient location. The staff will work with commercial customers to design special access times and other benefits.

Are you tired of all that clutter stacked up in your home? Need to move some furniture out in order to sell your home? Call the efficient, courteous staff at Bermuda Mini's Self-Storage at 998-9661 today.

Bermuda Mini's Self-Storage is located at 146 Commerce Drive in Advance next to Bermuda Quay Shopping Center on U.S. 158. Now, you can also contact Bermuda Mini's at its new e-mail address, bminis@hotmail.com.

Good Vehicle Maintenance Includes Regular Service Begins At George's Village Garage

Although it is no secret that cars give higher performance with regular servicing, George Pries at George's Village Garage says that many people still fail to do it.

"When you don't regularly service your car, all kinds of problems can arise," said Pries, owner of the popular Clemmons garage. "Head gaskets, hose problems, radiators, cooling systems that need to be flushed out are just a few." Pries noted that failing to service a car can result in large repair bills down the road.

"One car owner drove 32,000 miles in one year," said Pries. "When she brought her car in, the tires were shot. She had never rotated the tires."

George's Village Garage is equipped with state-of-the-art computer systems specific to many different makes of automobiles. George's five mechanics are experienced in not only the American brand cars, but Toyotas, Nissans, Mazdas, Porsches, Mercedes, and even the rare de Loreans. These quality professionals spend hours each year in seminars and training to be current on the latest in car performance.

George's computer diagnostic equipment allows customers to bring their cars in for an accurate and honest evaluation of both major and minor problems. George's Village Garage is well-known for their fair treatment of their customers.

"George is an honest, down-to-earth Christian," says Stuart Claassen of Clemmons. He has brought all four of his family's cars to George's for more than eight years, because of George's good reputation in the community.

"We do a lot of driving. I'm very comfortable sending my kids up there," said Claassen.

George's Village Garage, which began in a two-bay shop on Ramada Drive, has expanded to seven bays at its present location at 2570 Lewisville-Clemmons Road in Clemmons. Kevin Pries, George's son, oversees the garage's smooth operation as General Manager.

Tires are one item on a car that rapidly deteriorate. George's stocks a number of popular and sturdy brands, including Firestone, Michelin, Dunlop, Lee, Bridgestone and Hankook. See the trained professionals at George's, before you get stranded on the open highway with worn or punctured tires.

George Pries states that cold weather is especially wearing on tires. George's Village Garage gives speedy service in their seven bays, and will have you back on the road quickly for optimum performance.

"Maintain your tire rotations," said Pries. "In this fast-paced world today, people are so busy running kids to soccer that they fail to follow their owner's manual for maintenance." He recommends regular servicing to prevent more expensive problems and longer life of your automobile.

Cars are a costly investment. Protect your investment with good service and expert care from the skilled professionals at George's. They will provide you with a straight-forward assesssment of any repairs needed, and a fair estimate of what it will cost.

George's Village Garage is located behind Sagebrush Restaurant, at the corner of Lewisville-Clemmons and Old Glory Roads. Call 766-7862 for an appointment today.

Harold Sidney and Sherlie McEwen Renegar

Harold Sidney Renegar, 72, and his wife, Sherlie McEwen Renegar, 74, of Liberty Church Road, Mocksville, died Tuesday, Oct. 15, 2002 from injuries sustained in an automobile accident near their home.

Mr. Renegar was born Sept. 13, 1930 in Iredell County to the late Merle and Ethel Chamberlain Renegar. He was the retired owner and operator of Renegars Sawmill, and was a member of Liberty Baptist Church.

Mrs. Renegar was born April 13, 1928 in Yadkin County to the late Stanley and Lena Trivette McEwen. She was retired from Williams Textile and was a member of Liberty Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Renegar were united in marriage on Aug. 5, 1947.

A daughter, Margarette H. Renegar, preceded them in death on June 21, 1949.

Survivors: their children, Jimmy Dale Renegar, Mocksville; Gary Kenneth (Sharon) Renegar, Mocksville; Sherry Renegar (Paul) Vadney, Charlotte; Janeece Renegar (Joe) Grech, Mt. Pleasant, S.C.; 7 grandchildren; a great-grandchild; Mr. Rengar's brother, Lloyd Renegar, Harmony; Mrs. Renegar's sisters, Mattie McEwen Renegar, Mocksville; Mary Faye McEwen Hobson, Mocksville; and 3 brothers, J.C. McEwen, Mocksville; Price McEwen, Salisbury; Jesse McEwen, Mocksville.

He was preceded in death by a sister, Lillian Harris, and a brother, Sherman Renegar. Mrs. Renegar was preceded in death by a brother, Russell Job McEwen.

Their funeral service was held at 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22, at Liberty Baptist Church by the Rev. Marvin Blackburn. Burial followed in the church cemetery.

Mary Lee Shaird

Mrs. Mary Lee Shaird, 71, of Greensboro, died Oct. 15 in Wesley Long Nursing Center.

Survivors: 3 daughters, Julia S. Williams and Jennifer Shaird of Cambria Heights, N.Y., and Annette S. Douglas of Greensboro.

Funeral services were held Oct. 20a t 2 p.m. in the chapel of Graham Funeral Home in Mocksville.

Jamie Jones Reavis

Mrs. Jamie Jones Reavis, 67, of Koontz Road, Mocksville, died Thursday, Oct. 17, 2002, at her home after a battle for 16 years.

The funeral service was at 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 20 at Blaise Baptist Church, with the Revs. Glenn Sellers and Archie Jones officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Memorials: American Cancer Society, 622 Forsyth Medical Park, 1900 S. Hawthorne Road, Winston-Salem, 27103; or the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Institute, 5005 LBJ Freeway, Suite 250, Dallas TX 75244.

Mrs. Reavis was born Feb. 19, 1935, in Davie County to Ruth Stroud Jones of Mocksville and the late J.C. Jones and was retired from Crescent Electric of Mocksville, where she was a customer-service representative. She was a charter member of Blaise Baptist Church and a Sunday School teacher. She loved all types of wildflowers.

Survivors, in addition to her mother: her husband for more than 50 years, Curtiss Lee Reavis of the home; 3 daughters, Celinda Reavis (Michael) Howell of Raleigh, Nora Reavis (Dodd) Haynes of Charlotte, Tara Reavis (Henry) Jacumin of Raleigh; 2 grandchildren; 2 sisters, Doris Vance of McLean, Va., and Joyce McCullough of China Grove; and 2 brothers, Archie Jones Sr. of Mocksville and Donnie Jones of Rapelje, Mont.

Annie M. Bowles

Mrs. Annie McClamrock Bowles, 94, of Mocksville, died Tuesday, Oct. 15, 2002, at Autumn Care of Mocksville.

Mrs. Bowles was born Sept. 25, 1908, in Davie County to the late Mary Eanes McClamrock and the late George McClamrock.

Mrs. Bowles was preceded in death by her husband, Albert M. Bowles, in 1968.

She worked as a seamstress at B&F Manufacturing in Mocksville and was the oldest member of Oak Grove United Methodist Church.

The Todd Nelon quartet will perform Sunday at Mocks.

Quartet To Be At Mocks

Todd Nelon, the son of Southern Gospel music legend and Hall of Fame member Rex Nelon, will be in concert Sunday, Oct. 27 at 11 a.m. with The Todd Nelon quartet at Mocks United Methodist Church in Advance.

For 13 years, Nelon shared the stage with his father as bass guitarist and vocalist for The Nelons. As family responsibilities grew, he left the road. When his father died, Nelon wanted to continue and honor the heritage he had left, which led to the formation of The Todd Nelon Quartet. He is joined by Rodney Swain, Paul White, and David Jordan.

Everyone is welcome. The church is located just off N.C. 801 South, three miles from U.S. 158 at Mocks Church and Beauchamp roads in Advance. For further information, call 998-5518.

Burnette's To Be At Bread Of Life

The Burnette's will be in concert at Bread of Life Baptist Church at 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 27. The church is located on N.C. 801, just off U.S. 601 North from Mocksville. For more information, call 463-3192 or 463-2178.

Breakfast Saturday At Union Chapel

A country ham and sausage breakfast will be held at Union Chapel Methodist Church, U.S. 601 just north of I-40, Mocksville, from 6:30-10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 26.

Singing Sunday At Turrentine

There will be a gospel singing at Turrentine Baptist Church on Sunday, Oct. 27 at 6 p.m. Featured will be the Southern Gospel singing group, Merciful Heart from Lexington. There is no admission, but a love offering will be taken. Everyone is invited.

Storehouse Accepting Sponsors To Provide Thanksgiving Dinners

A Storehouse for Jesus is accepting sponsors for families at Thanksgiving. Individuals, churches and other groups sponsor families each year, providing them with Thanksgiving dinner.

Last year, there were 327 families (1,074 individuals) sponsored through the Storehouse. Call Marie Collins at 751-1060 Monday-Thursday to let her know how many families you will sponsor.

A Storehouse for Jesus is also accepting sponsors for children adn senior adults for Christmas. Last year, there were Christmas gifts provided for 785 children, 16 adults and 54 seniors. There were 74 Christmas dinners provided for 74 senior citizens. Call Collins if willing to help. Past sponsors have included invididuals, churches, businesses and civic organizations. Sponsorship is not limited to one child.

"Please prayerfully consider making this Christmas a special Christmas for a child or senior in our community," said Vickie Whicker, Christian Network for the Needy secretary and treasurer.

Redland Pentecostal Holiness Planning Fall Festival Saturday

Redland Pentecostal Holiness Church will be having a fall festival on Saturday, Oct. 26. Music will be provided by Farmington Bluegrass & Gospel beginning at 6 p.m.

Sunday will be "Old Fashioned Day" beginning at 10 a.m. with Sunday School and worship at 10:45. Dress up in "old fashioned" clothes for old-time convention singing, and "tent revival" preaching. Lunch will follow the service.

The church is located on Baltimore Road and U.S. 158 in Advance. Look for the tent.

Cornatzer Treat House Oct. 31

Break The Cycle

Group Remembers, Honors Domestic Violence Victims

By Mike Barnhardt
Davie County Enterprise Record

At age 25 with an 8-year-old son, she had experienced much more of life than most young women her age.

And it wasn't all pleasant.

Her husband abused illegal drugs. She found out too late, and suffered through years of physical, emotional and financial abuse.

It wasn't easy, but she got out.

With some help, she got out.

The woman was one of several who spoke during a candlelight vigil last week sponsored by Davie Domestic Violence Services and Rape Crisis Center DDVS/RCC. The local agency is instrumental in her recovery, as well as that of other victims.

"Thanks to Davie Domestic Violence, I have been able to walk away for good," she said.

She urges other women in similar circumstances to do the same.

"You are strong enough to do it. They taught us that we are the strong ones because we withstood all the abuse."

The support is there, just use it, she said. Admitting she isn't fully recovered, she relies on the local agency.

"You have to take it one day at a time. During your most difficult times, what you need is help."

That help is available by calling 751-HELP, she said.

A man talked about learning, while in college, that his stepfather had been abusing his mother, in the home with his younger sister.

His mother was college educated, yet she didn't even tell the man to leave. She didn't call police.

"There are no social boundaries with domestic violence," he said.

Luckily, the man did leave, but the feeling that he could return lingers in the back of their minds.

Another woman moved to Davie in part to get away from a violent situation. She had nothing but praise for Davie Domestic Violence Services.

"These people have given me so much," she said. "They have given me respect for myself. They helped me find a place to live ... find a job."

Martha McQueen, DDVS/RCC director, said that Davie has more than its share of domestic violence cases.

In the past six years, the agency has seen 1,300 separate clients. One in 10 families have reported domestic violence, when statistics show that less than half of such cases are ever reported.

"It is very significant," McQueen said. "Folks need help. We need a new way of understanding how to live with one another.

"Let people know there is hope in Davie County. People who have to live in constant pain and fear are heroes. They have survived."

The group that had gathered under an oak tree in court square in Mocksville each lit candles, and they tied ribbons to a wreath in memory or honor of a domestic abuse victim they knew.

"We hope that our actions will matter," said the Rev. Neal Carter. "Too often, we turn away from the victims."

Local Business Helping To Rebuild America

Area And Out Of State Visitors Tour Plant

By Jackie Seabolt
Davie County Enterprise Record

As part of a combined effort between the United States Department of Energy and a local building manufacture more than ten representatives from the Energy Department and surrounding school systems visited Mocksville on Tuesday, Aug. 27 to tour Insulated Component Structures building manufacturing facility in Davie County.

ICS on Farmington Road played host as part of the Rebuild America School program to show the process of building energy efficient classrooms like the newest addition they recently constructed at Davie High School.

EnergySmart Schools is part of the Rebuild America program and focuses on improving communities nationwide through energy efficiency.

In many school districts, energy costs are second only to salaries. Energy costs exceed the cost of supplies and books. Nationally, K-12 schools spend more than $6 billion annually on energy and at least 25 percent of that could be saved through smarter energy management, according to the Department of Energy.

Visitors from Raleigh, Virginia, South Carolina, Mississippi, and Tennessee toured the ICS plant and were shown the steps from beginning to end as to how the panels for energy efficient buildings are built on site in the plant.

The panelled walls are made by injecting two-part urethane foam into a frame press. The injected foam reacts, creating heat and pressure, filling the core of the panel. The expanding foam bonds directly to the panel skins, cures and forms a solid, durable, efficient, high-strength building component.

As part of a product demonstration ICS Sales Manager Scott Hansen took a plastic cup and mixed the two ingredients for the foam by hand. As the color and texture of the mixture began to change the visitors watched as the foam expanded and cured to a solid. The wooden stick used to stir the ingredients was permanently implanted in the foam. A demonstration that showed the strength of the wall panels.

Constructed panels are shipped directly from the Mocksville plant and are easily and efficiently constructed using an interlocking cam-lock system in which a steel keyed lock exerts an 800 pound force that secures the walls together. The result is a solid construction process that is highly resistant to gravity and wind forces.

After the plant tour visitors were taken to Davie High School where they were shown the new classroom built by ICS as part of the Energy Smart Schools Rebuild America program.

Long term goals of this program and ICS are better environments for education and learning and increased understanding of energy issues not only locally in our county but in the entire country.

Mrs. Hendrix and Mrs. Plyer's third graders worked on telling elapsed time by reading schedules and calendars. They read the story "Max Malone" and discovered that you can get a great feeling from helping others. Next they will be reading a novel by Roald Dahl "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory"

Mrs. Redmond and Mrs. Burford are having a recycling contest. Each student had to invent a new use for an object with a prior purpose. This will coincide with a science and social studies unit on "The Environment."

Mrs.Hobson has placed pictures from grandparents day in the photo section of her web page.

The leaves are falling in Mrs. Spach's class. Children made leaves and pumpkins out of orange paper strips. They have worked on contractions, vowel sounds, comprehension questions and are reading the book "Little Witches Big Night".

Mrs. Kauff and Mrs. Boswell's class is reading "Dancing With Manatees," a non-fiction book about these mammals. In science they have begun a drug education unit. They will learn the importance of accepting themselves the way they are. Students learned about Christopher Columbus sailing the ocean, and all of his discoveries, with his three ships the Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria.

Mrs. Hobson and Mrs. Rogers and the staff worked to make the visit from SACS a success.

Students in Mrs. Culler's fourth grade class attended Science Day at South Davie. Eighth grade students led fourth grade students through a variety of science experiments. To complete a science unit, Mrs. Culler's class has been working on an animal booklet. Students were responsible for researching an animal,gathering facts, putting information in booklet form, and presenting findings to the class. Students have been reading Shiloh, which has generated discussions about the appropriate way to treat animals.

First grade studied fire safety last week. They made a trip to the Cooleemee Fire Station. They have been studying about Christopher Columbus.

Students in Mrs. Fleming's fifth grade class are studying U.S. government. Each student is reading a book from the media center about some aspect of government. They will then make a report on the book to the class. In math, the students are starting to use the Accelerated Math program.

North Davie Middle

The Rocket team began the year exploring a thematic unit on space. While studying the history of space exploration, students in science class built projects to depict planet travel. They also prepared power point presentations about the planets and the solar system. In language arts class the novel, the Green Book which is a science fiction story about a family in space who leaves Earth due to a "disaster and settles on Shine to set up a new colony in space. The theme is survival and the love of reading.

On Sept. 20, space day was held to culminate this unit. Students watched a movie on Leonardo Da Vinci and flight, launched rockets, read a story on space spin-offs, and enjoyed puzzles on space.

Students are studying decimals in 4th and 5th period math classes. Advanced math just completed a study of mean, mode, and medium and designed posters to display this concept.

Social studies classes have learned about the five themes of geography, the Renaissance and Reformation, gifts of the ancient Greeks and Romans, and map skills. Renaissance activity days were celebrated Sept. 16 and 17. Students dressed in costumes on the time period, games were played that were part of this time period, snacks were shared, and math, reading, and science activities were introduced. On Oct. 22 the sixth graders went to Huntersville to participate in the NC Renaissance Festival for demonstrations on jousting, puppetry, crafts, and other events.

During Prime Time students have participated in getting to know you activities, respect and responsibility discussions, and have enjoyed gym activity and dear.

Foreign Language Club Active In School, Community

Elise Dickmann

The foreign language club has only just begun with service projects for the school and community. So far, the club has participated in the homecoming parade with a float, had a candy fundraiser, and gone out to eat together three times. Their biggest club accomplishments are yet to come.

Heather Patton, president and second year member of the club, looks forward to their biggest project. "We use money to purchase two boxes of Kleenex for every classroom. We will do this again next semester."

Martha Thurston, a junior and new member to the club, looks forward to preparing for the Christmas parade. Thurston decided to join the club because she thought that she could learn more about foreign cultures. She recommends students to join the club. "We go out to eat every month and participate in fun activities."

The club will sponsor children for the angel tree at Christmas and give away a foreign language club scholarship.

Patton has made goals for the club and herself, as president. "My goal for the club is to get teens involved and interested in foreign languages. I hope it can be a club where people who enjoy foreign languages can come together and help the school and community." she says.

Susan Marion, a Spanish 2 teacher and 5-year foreign language club advisor, also has goals for the students by the time they leave the club. "I want them to understand the importance of different cultures diversity."

Marion decided to assist the club five years ago to work with the students outside of class. "I enjoy the responsibility and I like to help organize and plan activities," she says.

Allison Yount, a first year Spanish I teacher and foreign language club advisor at Davie, also likes to meet students that aren't just in her classes. "I want members to have a realization that there's other cultures and to have appreciation for them."

As president, Patton stays busy with her many responsibilities. "I, along with advisors, the vice president, and secretary, plan community and school service projects, as well as social events."

She decided to run for president this year because she really enjoys Spanish and being member of the club. "I thought running for president would be a good opportunity for me to display my leadership ability."

As the foreign language club stays active in the school and community, both advisors and member's work together to get things accomplished. "I hope that club members will realize that they can have fun with a foreign language," Patton says.

Bus and Car Riders of the Week of Oct. 7-11: Hafiegh Wooten, Sherlyn Johnson, Clint Mast, Jenna Dowell, Maggie Barneyeastle, Julio Gutierrez, Zulema Martinez, Lupito Castro, and Payton Brooks.

On Oct. 31 from 9-10, Barbara Weaver, guidance counselor, will offer a parent workshop. The topic is "The Stresses of Being a Parent." The presenter will be Barbara Owens, the director of exceptional children. The workshop will be in the media center.

Art contest winners during the recent cafeteria promotion were Matthew Scarlett from Mrs. Baugh's room, Michaela Boger from Mrs. James' room, Yoana Alvarado from Miss York's room, Jodi Gregory from Mrs. Renegar's room, Miguel Ramirez from Mrs. Ireland's room and Ke'Aira Smith from Mrs. Meagher's room.

The new fifth grade chorus began rehearsals in early October, with more than 35 students meeting before school every Thursday.

The fourth and fifth graders have been busy with a unit of meter and learning to identify how the beats are grouped in music by looking at the time signature and listening to a variety of musical examples. They have enjoyed learning some new songs, and were challenged by singing a few traditional Mexican folk songs in Spanish such as "De Colores" and""La Cucaracha." They will begin a unit on folk songs and instruments from the Appalachian Mountain region.

The second and third grade classes have explored form in music by identifying verse and refrain and discussing what makes each section of music different. They have danced to the beat of""Old Dan Tucker" and""Shake Them 'Simmons Down" as they learned about folk music in preparation for the Appalachian Project being sponsored by the Arts Council in October. They are learning to "follow the road map" of music as they identify traditional music symbols and terms, while singing some new favorites such as "Supermarket Shuffle."

Vibration has been the "buzz" word in the kindergarten and first grade music classes. They have aexperimented with their voices and instruments to see just what is making that sound. The kinders have been learning about the difference between their singing and speaking voice while singing songs about colors and numbers. Their Brown Bear, Brown Bear puppets got to try out their singing voices. They clapped and played rhythm patterns with these songs.

The Old Black Fly has been "Bussing" around the first grade classes. They have been playing hand bells, xylophones, and the glockenspiel to accompany songs about their voice such as, "You'll Sing a Song" and""You've Gotta Sing". Earlier in the year, the first graders played rhythm instruments and followed a percussion score as they began to learn note names and patterns.

Cornatzer Elementary

The first Fall Festival was a success. Hundreds of students and their families packed into the school for an evening of fun, food and games. They enjoyed rides in the Mega Event, face painting, the cupcake walk, bingo, hot dog suppers and more. The event was organized by the PTA and the school and raised $2,300.

Last week, students enjoyed a Multi-Cultural Week, the highlights of which were a Yankee Doodle Dandy Assembly, a Fair in the gym, and a special dance assembly. Students learned about the history and cultures of seven featured countries when they visited the Fair in the gym, the Netherlands, Mexico, Italy, Spain, Paraguay, Venezuela and the Dominican Republic.

Many students are celebrating reading success, having earned goal points to attend Swim Parties at the YMCA later this month.

First graders in Mrs. Brooks's class have been pumpkin detectives. They staged a "Pumpkin Extravaganza" in their classroom. Students worked at a number of special centers in small groups. Activities included measuring the circumference of a pumpkin, weighing a pumpkin, tasting pumpkin pie, weighing pumpkin seeds and eating roasted pumpkin seeds. Students then had to describe how the pumpkin seeds and pie tasted - with mixed reactions.

Mrs. Hayes's class of second graders went on a field trip to Horizons in Salisbury classes on Native Americans, where students learned how Indians made tools, hunted for food and made clothing. Students were placed into groups and made a tool that could be used to find food, build a shelter or make clothing.

The second class was about the moon. Students undertook experiments in groups to find out: the moon's size in relation to the earth, how much they would weigh on the moon, and the distance form the moon to the earth. After completing their experiments, students watched a show in the planetarium called "Moon Witch." After the film, students were allowed to do their experiments over again, this time using the knowledge gained from watching the film.

Students in Mrs. Terry's fifth grade class have been reading and testing for the accelerated reading program. All class members have accumulated at least 10 points and have cards on the wall outside the media center. Many met their goal for the first quarter and will be attending the upcoming swimming party as a reward. Some have also met the October goal for the Pizza Hut Book-It program and have received a certificate for a free pizza.

Mrs. Terry's communications classes have been reading a biography about President Franklin Roosevelt. Her math class has been working with fractions and recently learned how to do short division. These students also created some timelines, showing memorable milestones in their lives. In science, students have learned about ecosystems and biomes.

During the upcoming nine weeks, Mrs. McPherson, the school counselor, will be providing classroom guidance lessons for third, fourth and fifth graders. Various topics will be covered including: goal setting, self-esteem, managing feelings, self-control, cooperative behavior, responsibilities, individual differences and cultural diversity.

Last Thursday, Tania Castillero, assistant director of Multi-Cultural Affairs at UNCG, spoke with Latino students in grades K-5 about cultural identify, self-esteem, and her own experiences immigrating to the United States from Panama.

With the holiday season soon upon us, various organization and people will be asking for ways in which they can assist students. If interested in sponsoring a family or if you need assistance, contact Jenny McPherson at 940-5097. At any time of the year, you may donate to the "Tools for Schools Program," which provides school supplies to children whose families do not have the resources.

Student of the Week, Oct. 14-18: Stephanie Jamie, Kevin Sides, Jenny Robbins, Autumn Stewart, Rachael McLaughlin, Tatum Edwards, Jessica Rebbe, Quientin Joyner, Heather McClamrock, Amanda Long, Stephen Seaford, Kevana Jackson, Angelica Edwards, Tyler Gaddy, Evan Lankford, Britney Kilby, Logan Ren, Toren Rivers, Tyler Downing, Rachel Hoffman, Matt Iles, Viri Asencio, Perry Ferrell, Jevin Scott, Gavin Russell, Iesha Hairston, Catherine Brake.

Kindergartners in Kaye Vandiver and Jodi Walker's class have been studying the fall season and the changes that are taking place. They have enjoyed doing many apple activities, including apple prints, eating apple snacks, and reading books about apples. They also learned about squirrels and owls. The children will learn more about fire safety as they get ready for a field trip to the fire department. They will learn about Christopher Columbus.

Mrs. Flynn and Mrs. Cook's first graders have been celebrating fall by observing the changes. They made squirrels and brought in nuts. They have cut the pumpkin and scooped out the pulp. They are learning about spiders and bugs and watching them creep. Most of all, they have been fascinated by butterflies...many have come into our room to visit and flutter as they are passing through.

Mrs. Wall-Smith and Mrs. Pruitt's second grade class take an adventure into the apple orchards and pumpkin patches as they experience autumn days. Learning Stations including how to make apple pie, measuring with an inch worm, a tasting day with apple and pumpkin products, chlorophyll and changing leaves, pretending to be an apple falling from a tree and writing about that incident.

In Mrs. Strickland's third grade class, students are working with adjectives to describe nouns. Each child picked one adjective for each letter of his/her name. They will type the names on the computer and display them in the room. Also, they are in the middle of an economics unit dealing with wants/needs/goods/services. They will reenact an assembly line in which each child will have one particular job.

Mrs. Pristas's fifth grade class took a field trip to the Wake Forest Museum of Anthropology Oct. 16. Students studied the Mayan people and learned a lot about their culture. In class, they are studying the expansion of the United States and are reading a novel about Lewis and Clark. They are learning the location and capitals of all 50 states.

Mrs. Crosby and Mrs. O'Neal's class made bats by tracing their hands and ghosts by tracing feet. The students thought this was entertaining. They made jack-o-lanterns out of Tide detergent bottles and spiders from water bottles. The students participated with the Davie Arts Council and made xylophones and shakers. This was in conjunction with the study of Appalachian folk music.

Amelia Bedelia To Bring Fun To Brock

The Davie County Arts Council will continue its 2002 - 2003 Season, "Catch a Connection to the Arts", with Amelia Bedelia and Stories from Around the World!, a Story Salad production, on Monday, Nov. 4, at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. at the Brock Performing Arts Center, 622 N. Main St., Mocksville.

Your guide on this voyage is everyone's favorite maid, Amelia Bedelia. In Bravo, Amelia Bedelia! (Based on the book by Herman Parish), she assists at the school band concert with hilarious results. Following this zany overture, she takes you on a musical romp across the planet as she discovers stories from around the world. Target Audience: K-4.

Tickets are adults, $8; students and senior citizens, $6; and groups of 15 or more, $5.

For information call the Arts Council Box Office:751-3000 or e-mail: boxoffice@davicarts.org. Check out www.davicarts.org.

Derek Green Attending Leaders Conference

Derek Bryan Green has been selected out of 400 students across the country to attend the National Young Leaders Conference in Washington, D.C. this month.

Green

The conference is a leadership development program for high school students who have demonstrated leadership potential and scholastic merit. The conference theme: "Leaders of Tomorrow Meeting Leaders of Today."

Throughout the six-day conference, Green will interact with key leaders and newsmakers from the three branches of government, the media and the international community. Highlights include welcoming remarks from the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives, and a panel discussion with prominent journalists at the National Press Club.

Green will also meet with Senators and Representatives to discuss issues facing the nation.

Green is a junior at York High School, Yorktown, Va. He is the student director of the editorial department for the school's newspaper, The Talon. He is a Life Scout in Boy Scout Troop 201 in Yorktown.

He is the 16-year-old son of Lt. Col. Bryan and Blair H. Green, formerly of Salisbury, and the grandson of Melvia and Cecil Hutchinson of Salisbury, and Jean and David Green of Mocksville. He is the great-grandson of Helen Hall of Rockwell and Cathleen Hutchinson of Salisbury.

Erin Hege VP Of SGA At Meredith

Erin Hege is the vice president of the Student Government Association for 2002-2003 at Meredith College in Raleigh.

She will serve on the association's executive board and as chair of the Senate, which oversees new policies and club constitutions.

Hege is a junior majoring in business administration with a concentration in marketing and a minor in professional communications. She is a 2000 graduate of Davie High School, the daughter of Ed and Cathe Hege of Advance.

Women Educators Honor Members For 25 Years

Alpha Delta Kappa, an international honorary society for women educators, has a major purpose to promote high standards of education and strengthen the status and advancemnt of the teaching profession.

The Davie County Beta Mu chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa had Mary Lynn Vestal, district vice president of the North Carolina ADK, as a guest speaker at the Oct. 22 meeting. Organized in 1969, the Beta Mu chapter honored members who have been in the local chapter for 25 years: Helen Crenshaw, Sadye Barger, Ann Barnhardt, Helen Everhart, Kate Foster, Ellene McIntyre, Shelby Nichols, Ruth Short, Elaine Strider, Esther Wall and Edith Waller.

A college scholarship is provided each year to a Davie High student by the Beta Mu chapter. Members volunteer at local schools and community activities throughout the year.

Beta Mu chapter will provide funds for an educational project at Central Davie in October.

Two Earn Degrees

Two Davie students at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro earned degrees following the summer semester.

Jennifer Nicole Furches of Advance earned a bachelor's degree.

Amelia Hill Miner of Advance earned a bachelor's degree.

Davie Native Inducted Into Union Agriculture Hall Of Fame

The late Elmer Glenn Latham was inducted into the Union County Agriculture Hall of Fame Sept. 24.

Latham

He was born Jan. 30,1907 in Davie County, the eldest of four children of John Marvin and Flora Louise Hunter Latham, brother of Harmon Latham and Louise Dill and the late Paul Latham.

Growing up on a family dairy and tobacco farm, in the ninth grade at Mocksville High School, he decided he wanted to teach agriculture.

On his way to accept an athletic scholarship at Catawba College, he hitched a ride with a Methodist minister. After the minister heard Latham's story, he talked him into going with him to Weaver College, where the minister was an instructor.

Weaver College was in Weaverville just above Asheville in the mountains. It later became Brevard College. While at Weaver Latham played lots of ball. He was right end on a football teamwith a perfect record and they won the 1928 state junior college championship. He was shortstop on the baseball team and forward on the basketball team. His athletic sweater is on display in the Weaver Room at Brevard College.

After two years at Weaver, Latham transferred to what was then N.C. State College in Raleigh, now North Carolina State University. He received a bachelor's degree in agricultural education in 1931.

Latham's plans after graduation were uncertain until he learned the new agriculture teacher position in Unionville was about to be created. He was hired by the school superintendent, Claude Gaddy and Unionville School principal, J.B. Haney. He taught agriculture, horticulture, shop, forestry and landscraping.

After 29 years at Unionville, he transferred to the same job at nearby Piedmont High School when it opened in 1960. He was there until his retirement in 1972, a total of 41 consecutive years of teaching agriculture.

Latham also coached baseball and trained and sponsored students in FFA competitions.

He served as an advisor and helper to local families frequently demonstrating such practices as dehorning cows and terracing fields.

Special school and community projects he instituted during the 1940s were a sweet potato curing house, a welding shop, a creasote vat for treating fence posts and poles for barn construction and a community cannery. Several of these projects were maintained for 15 to 20 years. Equipment from the cannery is still used for making Brunswick stew for the Unionville Barbecue.

During World War II, Latham taught defense classes and trained men in skills of welding for the Virginia shipyards. After the war, he taught agriculture classes to the veterans to help improve agricultural practices.

Latham's leadership fostered the construction of Unionville School's agriculture building. The construction was done over a three year period by ag students and community members. The building was completed in 1950 as one of the top three in the state.

His students also built the first greenhouse at Piedmont High School.

He married Helen Holloway of Unionville and had five children. They lived on a 63 acre farm across the road from Unionville School. He maintained a herd of registered jersey dairy cattle. In his retirement years, he enjoyed dairy farming, bee keeping, vegetable and rose gardening, bird hunting and especially following the ACC basketball and football teams.

Circulation problems led to the amputation of both his legs in his later years and to his death on June, 5 1994.

Dole To Campaign In Davie

Elizabeth Dole, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, will be in Mocksville Saturday, Nov. 2 at 10:15 a.m. to meet voters.

Her stop is part of a 60-county tour of North Carolina in the final week before the election.

A native of Salisbury, Dole was in Mocksville during the spring, and her husband, former Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, has also stumped for his wife in Davie County.

Peggy Harrison, county campaign coordinator for the Dole effort, said Dole will be at the war memorial at court square for about an hour.

In case of rain, her visit will be moved to the Republican headquarters, also on the square.

Other county GOP candidates are expected. Sheriff Allen Whitaker will introduce Dole, and Congressman Richard Burr and others are expected.

Mocksville Briefs

Private Streets Possible

Town board members unanimously approved zoning amendments allowing for private streets on a case-by-case basis in multi-family, townhouse, condominium, commercial or industrial developments. This change in effect repeals the previous decision, made in the late 1990s that required the streets to be public. Only one person spoke in opposition of the amendments, and he wanted the amendments to include single-family housing subdivisions.

Homeland Security

Mocksville passed a resolution endorsing the National League of Cities Hometown Security Day on Tuesday, Oct. 22. In addition the resolution urges Congress and the President to pass a homeland security bill and finalize funding for homeland security. The resolution mentions, "$3.5 billion promised for first responders and the $22 million per month reimbursement promised cities and town for providing local law enforcement at the nation's commercial airports."

Davie Voters To Elect 2 County Commissioners

Davie voters will select two county commissioners when they go to the polls Tuesday.

Democrat Bob Rose is challenging incumbent Republicans Michael Allen and Bobby Knight (See candidate profiles, page 4).

There is also a contest race for two seats on the Davie Soil and Water Conservation District Supervisor board, with Gregory C. Stiling challenging incumbents John T. Barber and James "Jim" McBride.

In District Court judge races, Cynthia Garner Barnhill and April C. Wood are vying for one seat, while Mary F. Covington and Martin Gottholm seek another.

Democrat Carlyle Sherrill of Salisbury and Republican Andrew Brock of Farmington seek the 34th N.C. Senate seat.

There are several state and national races on the ballot, including a constitutional amendment making a technical correction to allow dedication and acceptance of property into the State Nature and Historic Preserve by the General Assembly by enactment of a billr ather than a joing resolution.

The 14 polling places in Davie County will be open from 6:30 a.m.-7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 5.

Voters who have moved from within the precinct they are registered in may return to that precinct, pick up an election day transfer slip, take this to the election office and cast their vote. These same voters may avoid going to their old precinct first by taking advantage of the no-excuse early voting in the election office until 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 2.

All voters can vote early in the election office Thursday and Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. and Saturday, Nov. 2 from 8 a.m.-1 p.m.

The deadline for requesting that a ballot be mailed was Tuesday, Oct. 19 at 5 p.m. with the exception of sick or disabled voters who may request a ballot by mail or cast their

A Lawyer For The People

George Martin Honored For 50 Years Practicing In Mocksville

By Kim Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

Residents, friends, family and coworkers gathered on Wednesday, Oct. 16 to celebrate George W. Martin's 50 years of practicing law in Davie County.

The celebration came as a surprise to Martin, who was told he was attending a group celebration. He had no idea.

Court was opened by the honorable Preston Cornelius, then later ruled by Judge Kimberly Taylor.

"George Martin's handprints and footprints are all over this community," said Terry Bralley, Mocksville town manager.

Through his willingness to serve, Martin has acted as town attorney, county growth champion and helped author new codes. His work promoting industry in Davie County accounts for more than 1,200 jobs.

"That's not bad for a part-time attorney. Thanks for caring enough to stay. The community remains eternally grateful," Bralley said.

Mocksville Mayor Frances Slate presented Martin with a framed copy of a resolution passed by the town for 50 years of practicing law with integrity, and for conducting his personal and professional life with honor, working for the needs of the poor and the downtrodden.

"George has always been a lawyer for the people," said his partner, Hank Van Hoy, who led the celebration."He would provide his

Students Give Ideas On Davie High AP Program

By Kim Justen
Davie County Enterprise Record

"We're looking for ways to restructure the advanced classes to be the most helpful to the most students," Dr. Linda Bost, Davie High School Principal told students and administration members present to discuss the best way to make the new AP program work.

"I wasn't on board before," said June Johnson, academically intellectually and gifted program coordinator at the high school. "After this meeting, I'm a convert."

Scheduling has always been a concern with the advanced classes. There was a request for the AP classes to be one semester classes where possible. If the class were offered in the first semester, it would be several months before students could take the AP exams, which are offered in the spring.

The school presented ways of scheduling. For English literature, there would be a senior honors English class in the fall, taught by Terry Hoyle. The honors class would prepare students for the AP English literature class the second semester, taught by Pat Noel.

"Mr. Hoyle likes this plan because it is basically the APP course," said Bost.

Hoyle and Noel would plan works to be read in each class, ensuring there wouldn't be any cross-over or duplication.

By setting up the program this way, students would have the choice of stopping after the honors class or continuing to the AP class, depending on their interests and abilities, Bost said.

Hoyle does not want to teach the AP class, not because he doesn't believe in it, but because he plans on retiring in the next few years.

"Ms. Noel is going to be here longer that I am," he said. The new program should be led by someone who isn't planning on leaving in the near future, Hoyle said.

An equivalent program would be offered with calculus. An honors calculus class in the fall, followed by the AP Calculus BC class offered in the spring. The BC class covers more information than the AP Calculus AB class. Students could take both Calculus AP exams in the spring. The APP calculus class was equal to the AP/AB class, so the new offering would cover more material than its predecessor, Bost said.

In the previous meeting, parents said they wanted more one-semester classes to open student schedules. The administration was concerned that if a one semester AP class was offered in the fall, it was too long between the course and the exam for students to do well.

The proposal on the table is to take a 90-minute block period and split it into two 45 minute AP classes that would last all year. By spreading the content through the year, it would still be fresh for students when the spring testing took place, Bost said.

"Mr. Hoyle was pretty pumped about this," said Bost.

Students suggested the next AP classes to be added to the program should be psychology and a foreign language. AP biology, computer science, US history and physics B are already offered at Davie High.

A second group of students will meet with the teachers and administration, and a meeting with the parents is scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 13.

Man Cited For Bilking Center VFD

By Beth Cassidy
Davie County Enterprise Record

A Davie man has been charged with two misdemeanors after he failed to complete construction of a portion of Center Fire Department.

Larry Clifford Hayes, 47, of 151 Hayes Lane, Mocksville, was charged Oct. 22 with impersonating a general building contractor and failure to do work after being paid to do so, both misdemeanors.

According to Davie Sheriff's Detective Robert Trotter, on Sept. 12, Dean Tutterow, the chairman of the board of directors of Center Fire Department, contacted him regarding possible fraud on a building

Carnival At The Brock

A Halloween Carnival will be held at the Brock Gym, North Main Street, Mocksville, from 5:30-8 p.m. Thursday, with a hay ride, games and a costume contest. Call 751-2325 for more information.

Knights Haunted House

The Knights of Columbus haunted house will have its last two nights Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 30-31, on Sain Road, off U.S. 158 just east of Mocksville.

"I would like to thank the community for its support in the haunted house, all the volunteers, the Knights of Columbus, the Catholic Daughters and the Squires, and all others who have volunteered to help," said Grand Knight Vincent Mannino.

Both nights, everyone buying a $7 ticket will receive a free slice of pizza. Patrons can designate $1 of the $7 to go to a school PTA.

"It has been a tremendous success up to this point. We have raised a goodly amount of money for our PTAs in our schools, but let's not stop here," Mannino said. "Let us continue Wednesday and Thursday to make this an extremely successful adventure for our community, our PTAs and the Knights of Columbus."

Raising Boys Takes Some Adjusting

The big one is coming home this week for a brief visit. The middle sized one is thrilled with the joys and wonders of middle school. And the wee little boy has adopted both the attitude and demeanor of a cowboy.

My boys.

One of these days I'm going to figure them out.

The big one was easy. All I had to do was play ball with him all day long. He never kept secrets. During pitch in the backyard, he told me everything on his mind, anything troubling him, about bullies and girlfriends and grades.

Baseball is the great communicator.

The middle one doesn't play ball. It took years for me to adjust to that. He's a voracious reader, and I finally found a way to get on his playing field. I check out books for him at the library. Ten or so at a time. Some he reads. Some he dismisses. I never have been able to predict which book he'll like. But that has become the same avenue for communicating with him that pitching in the backyard was for the big boy. Of course, that means I have to read some books I never would have read otherwise. Some of them are good. Some ... we don't talk about. Robert is more reticent than his big brother. He doesn't tell me everything. Either life is good, or he's more selective in his discussions.

Instead of playing baseball, he has become very good at piano. He's my future Mozart. He doesn't have my awkward fingers.

The little one doesn't figure to be like either of his older brothers. I had mentally penciled him in as a linebacker a couple years ago. But his first venture into sports has not been promising.

He joined his first kiddie soccer team at age 3. Either he's too young, or he doesn't have a future at soccer. He didn't want to kick the ball. He didn't want to stand in line. He didn't want to be there.

That didn't bother me too much. I didn't want to be a soccer parent. But what if he feels the same about football and baseball?

My dad had a firm rule when we were growing up on the farm: No horses.

He was so happy to replace the last horse with a tractor he did never wanted another one. And there was another factor: Horses eat. A lot.

Bert Bahnson once told me a secret about horses: If you want to break a man financially, give him a horse.

That wisdom may prevent me from giving Michael his ultimate dream. A calf is more interesting. And cheaper.

We had 4-H beef calves when I was growing up. They were fun to raise, fun to feed and fun to groom and train to walk on a halter.

The downside was the project's end. We took them to the Dixie Classic fairgrounds to the annual show and sale.

My brother and I came home with the biggest checks of our young lives, about $300, for our efforts.

But we had just sold our best friends and companions to buyers who didn't plan to establish a long-term relationship with our steers.

Their plans seemed almost criminal, and clutching that money, we knew something of how Judas must have felt.

In The Mail ...

Republican Voter Endorses Bob Rose

To the editor:

I am a registered Republican in Davie County, but I am supporting the candidacy of Robert Rose, a Democrat, for county commissioner.

Bob Rose is a former controller for the Wake Forest University School of Medicine. He served in that capacity for 15 years and had another 12 years of experience in related areas in the same institution. There also was an appointment as a financial consultant to the National Institute of Health. These and other roles followed a solid education in business administration.

As a retired faculty member of the medical school, I am familiar with Bob's performance. He handled an annual budget in excess of $300 million and was very skillful in establishing priorities.

Various roles in community service have documented his sincere interest in Davie County and North Carolina.

I feel that our youth are the number one commodity of our county. The general infrastructure of the county is also a major concern. Dealing with the public school issues requires logical thinking and establishing priorities. I am confident that very few members and candidates for the county board (if any) have had Bob's experience for serving in that capacity.

There are three canddiates running for county commissioner and the top two vote getters will be elected. The more votes for Bob Rose, the better his chances. At the same time, fewer votes for the opposition will also help elect Bob. It will be an uphill struggle and he needs and deserves your support. The importance of this outcome is more important than party politics. That is why I plan to vote for Bob Rose on Tuesday, Nov. 5.

Writer Said There Isn't Much Opposition To Strong Drink

To the editor:

In reply to Mabel Couch's letter to a letter I wrote, in it I did not say I was for or against strong drink, only that there wasn't much opposition to it. She apparently assumed I was a boozer. Sorry to disappoint anyone, I do not drink.

If you would have addressed your comments to the home office of Food Lion, Lowe's Food, Bi Lo, etc., instead of me, they may have agreed with you and stopped selling that 'Evil Rum' or beer, although I doubt it.

I made a suggestion prior to the alcohol vote in Mocksville, form a 'Carrie Nations' club. Sharpen your hatchets, break some bottles of wine, punch some holes in those beer cans, let them know you mean business.

I can almost guarantee that will get their attention. In closing, you said you couldn't see how they could annex only what they wanted to. That is called spot annexing.

You sound determined to right this wrong, 'sale of that liquid devil.' When you get this 'Carrie Nations Club' with a sizable following, I will have your hatchet chrome plated for you.

Hugh Campbell Gets Endorsement

To the editor:

Judge Hugh Brown Campbell Jr. is running to keep his seat on the N.C. Court of Appeals. His 36 years of practicing law in Charlotte and his personal integrity qualify him to serve. His job as attorney for Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Education from 1980-94, his army service in the JAG Corps Colonel (Ret.) and admittance to the US Court of Military Appeals, and his service to his church as vestry member of his church are indicative of his life experiences and values.

This is a job he loves, one he is imminently qualified to hold and one in which he works tirelessly in research and study to render fair decisions.

Judge Campbell and his wife and three sons have been friends of mine for a long time and I can personally vouch for his dedication to his family and his legal career and his impeccable character.

Please vote for Judge Campbell who will continue to serve honorably and uphold the integrity of our Court of Appeals.

Uncle Olin's Stories Reflected His Love For Life

All of his stories began the same way.

With a chuckle.

They ended the same way, too. With a chuckle, with everybody within hearing distance laughing.

Mike Barnhardt

Uncle Olin could tell a story better than anyone. He could take an everyday happening, a mundane, boring happening, and add his humor, his unique way of looking at life, and make it a story you could hear over and over, and never tire of hearing it.

Maybe it's because Uncle Olin never tired of telling the stories.

Among my favorites was when he went to play golf for the first, and I think, last time. He had a blast, and so did everyone else playing in his group. From the way it sounded, before they finished, everyone on the golf course - employees included - wanted to join that group.

And there was that first kiss. I'm not even sure if it was Uncle Olin who got the kiss, or one of his friends, but even back then, girls from a certain part of the county had a reputation. The Barnhardt's were simple, country people. They thought tongues were for wagging - in your own mouth.

He told stories of practical jokes, of work, of growing up. All with a humorous twist.

Yes, Uncle Olin had the gift of storytelling. A wonderful gift that he shared with us all.

In one sense, his life was ordinary. Work, family, church. But in another sense, it was extraordinary. Devoted to family and life and God, he loved it all. That love of life translated into those stories that made us all laugh. Uncle Olin laughed with us, and we laughed with him.

An evening under the shade tree was never boring with Uncle Olin around.

He was quite a farmer, as well. I'm a hack gardener, but Uncle Olin never told me so. He would, however, make comments to let me know that it was the right or wrong time to plant this or that, and that criss-crossed string was about the only way to keep crows out of a young corn patch.

People all over Davie County have sampled Uncle Olin's watermelons and canteloupes, whether they know it or not. He sold to some local stores until a few years ago when his health started failing.

Uncle Olin died last week at age 94, leaving behind a host of children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and even more relatives and friends and neighbors. I've never met anyone who has met Uncle Olin who didn't treasure their time with him.

He was special. We could all learn a lesson from Uncle Olin. Be happy and enjoy life.

God is probably chuckling right now as Uncle Olin tells one of his special stories. Heaven is a happier place.

Couple Supports Bob Rose

To the editor:

In the upcoming race for Davie County commissioner, we want to heartily endorse Bob Rose. Bob has been a true friend in all ways. He has demonstrated his commitment to our community through many activities in church, volunteerism including many hours with Habitat for Humanity, selfless service to individuals in need and involvement in multiple committees and boards. His background in finance and personnnel issues uniquely qualifies Bob for service as a county commissioner. Bob Rose is a compassionate and thoughtful man whom we encourage the voters of Davie County to support for county commissioner on election day.

BR Resident Gives Rose Nod

To the editor:

As a registered Republican voter in Davie County, I am urging my fellow Republicans to join me on Nov. 5 in supporting Bob Rose for Davie County commissioner.

The Enterprise Record's front page article this week on the school bond proposal highlights our need to elect a professional, fiscally experienced manager to the county board of commissioners.

Mr. Rose's background as controller at the Wake Forest University School of Medicine and his record of community involvement makes him superbly qualified to serve us as a Davie County commissioner.

On Nov. 5, as we enter the voting booth, we should set aside the Democrat and Republican Party labels and vote for Bob Rose.

Say Thanks To Joe Smith

To the editor:

I am writing this letter to let people in Davie County and the Town of Mocksville know that they have a special person volunteering for the high school athletic teams. That young man is Joseph Smith, but a lot of people know him as Crazy Joe. He has been working and volunteering for the school for 10 years. I think he needs more praise and more thank you's.

A few years ago, he was living in Nashville, Tenn. but one phone call from Coach Illing got Joe to come home to work with the team.

Also, this young man gave up a college scholarship to N.C. State to help the athletic teams. The big reason why he does all this is because he loves it with all his heart. While he has been helping the team he has seen three coaches come through Davie High, Coach Ward from 1993-96, Coach Brown from 1996-98 and Coach Illing since 1998.

I also think that he needs to be inducted into the new hall of fame at the school. Please give this young man more praise and thank you's.

The Price For Freedom

To the editor:

God has truly blessed America. Our flag flies high today. It has never had to bow to any nation. More than any other nation on earth, Americans have the right to the pursuit of happiness and to freedom and justice for all. We have freedom to worship, freedom to raise our families, freedom to do many things no other nation has the liberty to do.

Yes, we have many freedoms, but these freedoms were not free. Freedom has never been free, nor will it ever be free. In the20th century alone, our nation has fought in two world wars and has been involved in 3 campaigns (Korea, Vietnam, and Desert Storm) to guarantee our freedom and to help other nations to keep their freedom. Over 36,000,000 American men and women have had to leave the security of home and the comfort of family to go to foreign soil to fight to secure our freedom. Over 450,000 have paid the supreme price by giving their lives for our great country. More than 1,300,000 have been wounded on the battlefield. Many of these have returned home with physical disabilities that have changed their lives forever. Thousands more have returned home from foreign soil in body, but their mind still stays on the battlefield. For many, these wars and campaigns are still an emotional battle.

Even those who never set foot on a battlefield have paid a high price. Many wives have had to raise their children alone. Many families have experienced grief and hardship because a loved one never came home or came home physically or mentally impaired.

Many lives have been changed forever to give us the freedoms we enjoy. May we never take them for granted. Let us remember and thank those who have given so freely to our nation. Most of all, let us thank God for blessing America. As we move forward into the twenty-first century, Americans have already paid a great price for freedom. Our prayer should be one of thanksgiving to God for all that He has done for this great land and one of petition asking God to continue to bless America.

Republicans Support Rose

To the editor:

The undersigned endorse Bob Rose for Davie County Commission because he will bring knowledge and experience which will be desperately needed in the future.

Bob Rose retired after 15 years as controller of Wake Forest Medical Center. He has more than 35 years experience as a financial expert with knowledge in budgeting, cost control, procurement and project management. At Wake Forest Medical Center he managed a $300 million budget.

As such: Bob Rose knows finance; Bob Rose knows budgeting; Bob Rose knows project management; Bob Rose knows cost control; Bob Rose knows how to oversee and manage million dollar projects.

Davie County, in the next six to eight years, will be spending millions to improve the schools. There will be as many as eight projects going on at the same time. Bob Rose has the knowledge and experience to oversee these projects. He is our best hope to exercise strict cost controls, avoid cost overruns, compete projects on time and help contain property tax increases.

No other candidate has the experience and capabilities as Bob Rose.

If you are for better county management and less proeprty tax increases, you will vote for Bob Rose, a fiscal conservative, a wise and experienced leader. We are registered Davie County Republicans in support of Bob Rose.

Firefighters Deserve Praise

To the editor:

On Sept. 4, our home was lost to fire. We want to send our heartfelt thanks to Center, County Line, Sheffield-Calahaln and Mocksville fire departments.

I sometimes wonder if we as a community really think about how much our local community fire departments really do? We talk about our heroes of 9-11, but what about our own local ones - the ones who have jobs and families - but still take time to put their lives on the line for us.

I, for one, will never forget them. God bless each and every one of you.

In Search Of County Water

To the editor:

We would like for Davie County officials to give us the definition for county water. It seems to us that it would mean anyone in Davie County who wants or needs water would be eligible for county water. We have been trying to get county water for several months and at that time we had a little water, now we are out and still can't get any Davie County officials to give us any help with getting water.

We think that the Davie County officials are more concerned about the welfare of these out of town people moving into these housing developments. These people don't give a hoot about Davie County. The only reason they come here is for the low taxes. We feel it is time for Davie County to wake up, and try to help the people that have lived here all their life, paid taxes and made Davie County what it is today.

When the water lines were put here several years ago, we were not asked if we wanted county water. It didn't even come close to where we live. My question is, why can some people have water and others can't. We pay taxes just like everybody else.

Rose: Bring Infrastructure Up To Par

What attributes do you consider most important in a county manager?

Rose: The county manager should be an individual with approximately 10 years of progressive experience in county management and at least five years as county manager. The manager will need to have an excellent knowledge of regulatory issues, finance, grant sources to assist in county finances, personnel, public relations, industry recruitment and above all, demonstrated leadership abilities.

Discuss the school facilities bond.

Rose: The School Facilities Task Force worked long and hard in reviewing the respective school facilities and presented a recommendation to the School Board for consideration. There are needs, in all levels of school facilities, due to the fact that expansion and maintenance of facilities has not kept pace with growth. This is evident by the number of mobile classrooms at each facility except Cornazer. The task force discussed at length the needs at each level of elementary, middle and high school and attempted to define a program and time schedule to meet the most critical needs. The needs at the elementary level exceed those of the other levels and should be met first. The second high school issue, while valid due to size and available space at the existing location, needs to have additional curriculum study to determine how the respective schools should be structured. Should there be a simple duplication of existing programs at each location, for example, or should academic functions be duplicated with the career programs located in a central facility? This is not just a facility issue, but also one of defining the future educational program of the county and how to manage them without creating a signifiant burden on the taxpayers, especially those who are on fixed incomes. Additional facilities mean additional operational costs which must be provided by the state or county. To meet all of the capital needs immediately, plus operational costs would require an increase in the tax rate of approximately 16-20 cents. This creates a potential problem given the current economic and financial status of the county and the state. The educational budget is the largest component of the county budget and represents approximately 26% of the total budgetary expenditures. Perhaps the whole educational issue should be addressed on the question of what is a reasonable percentage of available tax dollars that should be allocated to education for programmatic and capital needs.

Discuss growth.

Rose: Growth for an entity such as Davie County can and usually is an opportunity and a problem. Growth, if not managed properly, creates problems that only become worse if not addressed quickly. The educational facility issue is a good example. The growth has outstripped the availability of the schools to keep up. It can create problems in the area of transportation, law enforcement, social services, and health care. To manage growth adequately requires long range planning and visionary management to avoid major problems in the areas mentioned above. Davie County is experiencing an excessive growth rate given the infrastructure in place. The growth is occurring primarily in the residential arena and little or nothing in the industrial arena. We need growth in the industrial arena to assist in the tax base of the county. However, to be able to recruit industry we must plan to improve the infrastructure such as water and sewer facilities countywide to meet the needs of residential and industrial growth.

What is the most pressing need in Davie County?

Rose: The most pressing need is how to bring the county infrastructure up to par within available resources and to put in place a long range planning program to access the needs 3-5 years down the road assuming certain types of development occur. The second most pressing need is to recruit industry to increase the tax base. The county cannot meet the overall needs on residential growth. The commissioners recently turned down a development because there was not adequate sewer capacity in that portion of the county. There was no mention of the additional potential impact on schools, roads etc. that the development would have created. It is critical that the county have information that informs it of the cost of various types of development and to perhaps plan where this should occur within the county. One avenue to accomplish this is to involve citizens in task forces with county personnel from the appropriate offices as staff support to review critical areas and make recommendations to the commissioners or other appropriate body. The commissioners can then devote their efforts to evaluating and implementing the recommendations and spend an adequate amount of time on long range issues.

Why are you seeking this public office?
I have always enjoyed being involved in community organizations and activities. I have served as a board member at the Second Harvest Food Bank of Northwest North Carolina, the Better Business Bureau of Northwest North Carolina and Tarheel Triad Girl Scout Council. I was a member of the School Facilities Task Force and serve as a member of the Board of Equalization and Review. I serve as a member of the Pastoral Parish Relations Committee and Council on Ministries in my church. There are many issues facing Davie County in the near future and it will require the efforts of all citizens and county officials to meet the challenges. I believe that my past experience in education and health care fiscal management can be an asset in setting priorities to meet the issues of education facilities, hospital and EMS management and budgetary planning that limits operational costs to available resources in a rapidly growing organization.

Knight: Finances, Schools Priority

What attributes would you consider most important for a county manager?

Knight: Education, experience, leadership ability, good communication skills, the ability to work with the business community and with local, state and federal agencies. He or she should also have good budget experience and integrity.

Discuss the school facilities bond.

Knight: The school facilities task force did an excellent work in identifying the facility needs of our school system. Those needs are valid and should be addressed as soon as possible. There is also an issue of affordability, we cannot place an excessive tax burden on the taxpayer. The school board, school administrators and the commissioners must determine our most critical needs and decide on a bond proposal.

The state's budget woes and the withholding of the reimbursements from counties does not help. If we knew the status of those reimbursements our decision making process would be less difficult.

Discuss growth.

Knight: It is obviously more desirable to be in an area that is experiencing growth as opposed to an area with little or no growth. But we have to manage growth, we have in place zoning ordinances, a land use plan and other policies that allows growth in an orderly fashion. These tools are subject to review and change.

Any new growth management tools that might be considered should be studied very carefully since we need growth. There is currently a growth study under way which should give cost analysis and will provide information on areas where growth should be encouraged.

What is the most pressing need in Davie County?

Knight: The most pressing need at this time is the school facilities and our financial status in regards to the state reimbursements. My hope is for the reimbursement issue to be resolved with counties and municipalities getting full reimbursements. We then could present an affordable bond referendum to the citizens.

MichaelAllen: Business Sense And Common Sense

What attributes would you consider most important for a county manager?

Allen: There is no "most important." All aspects of a county manager are extremely important. A county manager should be an excellent communicator to all parties involved. The position represents the county on local and state levels, employees of the county and a sounding board for the county commissioners. Excellent public relations skills are a must. They need to have proven leadership skills, a self motivator, and encourage employees under them to make judgment calls, and show productive leadership skills of their own. A county manager should have management experience in town and/or county government with proven results as well as a clear understanding of human relations.

Discuss your opinion of the proposed school facilities bond.

Allen: First, let's start off by giving praise to the board of education for keeping the Davie County school system in the top class in the state. The proposed bond for the school facilities shows a definite need within our school structure. It is an extremely difficult task of understanding for the board of education, task force committee, and the Davie County commissioners to put a bond on a ballot with the possibility of not passing. This issue is for all the citizens of Davie County to decide. The aforementioned groups also have to look at the increase in taxes required to support the entire proposed bond which includes another high school. There is an estimation of increase on your property taxes for the entire proposal of 16 cents on 100 dollars. Can the average citizen of Davie County afford this? The school facilities needs has been brought to the table. This process took over a year to come to a standard conclusion from the task force and the board of education. One of the county commissioners tasks, along with the board of education is to create a timeline for this process and the accountability for the funding for this massive needed process/project.

Discuss growth.

Allen: The county is growing at an alarming rate. The situation is that certain areas are influxed more than others. Are we growing too fast, slow or just right? An answer can be given to all three. What is needed for the county is a 'balance of growth.' This can be achieved by the lot size you build on, size of the home built, and better guidelines and ordinances set forth by the developments association and county planning. Other areas and guidelines concerning growth can be upgraded and studied for a 'balance of growth.' The county commissioners strive to listen, change, upgrade, approve, disapprove, modify, and any other verb or adjective you can think of concerning growth. Growth has impact. Impact cost. It is extremely pleasing to know families want to move to Davie County. Citizens of Davie County, please help in the 'balancing act.'

What is the most pressing need in Davie County?

Allen: An immediate pressing need is our drought situation in Davie County. Half of the county is aligned with the Yadkin River. It is at an all time low. One commodity in life that can't be reproduced is water. We need to conserve. The county needs to make the water/sewer master plan a priority 1 need. Wells are drying up all over the county. Help us in this endeavor. Another extremely pressing need is our school facilities needs. The children in the school system are our future.

Other Issues

Allen: We live in a county where everyone knows growth is in high gear. The county also has several other issues that need to be addressed. I ask you, the voter, to vote for Michael D. Allen on Nov. 5th. I will continue to bring to the table sound business sense where decisions will be made on investigations and facts, not on 'hear say.' I have been working with our local and state government for the past several years and asking for your vote and support to continue in this position. County government can not work to its potential without sound communication between all parties involved. Communication, education, business sense and common sense is what is needed and I bring this to this position. Again, I ask for your support and your vote for Michael D. Allen on Nov. 5, 2002.

Allen: The opinions of the citizens of Davie County need to be heard. I am a voice for the people of this county and by being reelected for Davie County commissioner I will continue this endeavor. I have been given the opportunity to help you, the citizens, understand the decision making process along with policies and procedures for county government. I work hard in achieving this goal for both sides concerning an issue. With a sound communication base for the citizens of Davie County along with county government we can work together both more efficiently and effectively. I bring this need to the table.

Man Gets Suspended Sentence After Crashing Into Patrol Car

By Beth Cassidy
Davie County Enterprise Record

The driver of a car that crashed into a stopped patrol car was given a suspended sentence in Davie District Court last week.

Andre Dion Smith, 31, of Raleigh, was driving a rental car east on I-40 around 8:30 a.m. Oct. 3, Trooper A.A. Justice had stopped his N.C. Highway Patrol car on the shoulder, after pulling over another vehicle, driven by Sharon Annette Presley, of North Wilkesboro.

Smith's attorney, David Minor, said Smith "had been driving a long time, was very tired, and misjudged the distance. He went over to the shoulder, and there was the patrol car."

Justice, noticing what was about to happen, dove face first onto the grass between his car and the one he had stopped. The collision propelled his car into the back of the stopped car.

Minor said when he talked with Smith, "He cried and told me how sorry he was."

Smith was charged with reckless driving to endanger. He was held in jail for 18 days awaiting trial. He works in telemarketing and cares for his 15 year old sister, said Minor.

Judge Jimmy Myers said because of structured sentencing, he had to give a suspended sentence. He sentenced Smith to 30 days in jail suspended for 18 months supervised probation. He ordered Smith to write letters of apology to Justice and Presley, pay $292 for his court-appointed attorney, and pay a fine of $50 and court costs.

He was also ordered to make restitution for property damage in the amount of $14,025, or if insurance pays any of that, whatever is not covered by insurance.

Smith could have taken active time, but declined. If he had, he would not have had to pay any restitution.

Mocksville Mayor Dr. Francis W. Slate reads a proclamation honoring George Martin on his 50 years of practicing law. - Photos by Robin Fergusson

Surrounded by his family, George Martin stands as court is opened.

Fellow attorney Hank Van Hoy praises Martin as a person and as a lawyer.

Attorney George Martin Honored

services for free or for a bakers dozen of chicken pies. He acts out of a sense of what's right."

Martin was surprised by the ceremony.

Over the years, Martin and his wife Brooke have acted as anonymous donors, giving thousands of dollars to local charities. "Charity is as much a part of their fundamental nature as breathing," said Van Hoy.

In addition to the resolution from Mocksville, Judge Taylor also presented Martin with the highest honor the governor can place on a citizen of North Carolina, the Order of the Long Leaf Pine.

Throughout the ceremony Martin looked stunned, proud, and like he'd rather be somewhere else. A fact that came out when he thanked everyone present, saying, "This is not my cup of tea. Thank you all."

Martin received another honor during the presentation. The previous week, during the regular meeting, county commissioners approved hanging a portrait of Martin in the superior courtroom.

At the end of the presentation, Van Hoy motioned the court to approve a motion honoring the services to the community Martin has performed through over the last 50 years.

"I can't think of anyone more deserving," said Judge Taylor as she allowed the motion.

Following the ceremony at the courthouse, a reception hosted by Martin's law firm was held in the county commissioner's room in the county administration building.

Man Cited For Doing Unlicensed Contractor Work For Fire Dept.

project. In the fall of 2001, Hayes, doing business as H & H Builders, won the bid to construct a 42 by 80 foot metal building as an addition to the fire department.

To date, only a concrete pad has been poured at the site,Trotter said.

Hayes was paid $48,566 between October, 2001 and February, 2002, and Trotter said about 90 percent of that money was county funds, with the other 10 percent donations. Hayes had quoted $67,890 for the entire project.

Trotter said Tutterow and Mark Williams, chief of the fire department, tried to work with Hayes to get the project completed, but after numerous failed attempts, contacted the sheriff's department. They wanted Hayes charged with fraud, obtaining property by false pretense, but because some of the work was done, showing Hayes intended to complete the job, the charges were misdemeanors.

Hayes' contractor's license expired on Jan. 30, 1998.

Trotter said, "I hope the community gets from this that he has been violating the same law every time he's taken up a contract since then."

In addition to the concrete pad, Trotter said there is a minimal amount of metal at the site, which is rusted and full of weeds.

Hayes is scheduled to appear in District Court Nov. 21.

Educated in Davie County Schools
Chief, Comatzer-Dulin VFD
Past President, Davie County Fireman's Association
Smart Start Board
Juvenile Crime Prevention Board
Child Health Advisory Board
CenterPoint Human Resources
Emergency Services Committee Member

I am asking for your support again and your VOTE on November 5th to keep my seat as Davie County Commissioner. I have proven qualifications such as:

- Revitalizing the Davie County Hospital.
- Continuous improvement to the water / sewer system.
- Working with our School Board for our children's needs today and for the future.
- Working with other agencies for a qualified standard of living.
- Prevent unfair and unwanted practices within local government.
- Applying for state and federal grants instead of the use of tax dollars.
- Fighting state government for Davie County's rights.

The last 3½ years of being one of your Davie County Commissioners has been a tremendous experience and I am asking for your support to continue. Federal and State levels of government have put a huge burden on our County. I am fighting for you, the Citizens of Davie County to ensure that we are treated fair and just. I take every situation seriously and investigate each before I make a decision or cast a vote. You need a listener and a 'sounding board' for your concerns and I am that person.

Lack of communications creates problems.
Good communications get things DONE.

I ask for your support and your VOTE on November 5th to continue my endeavors of better local government standards, balanced growth, a boost industry, thus creating jobs within Davie County, and to act on the needs for our local school system.

Thank you,
Michael D. Allen

Applications Being Accepted For Energy Help

The Davie County Department of Social Services will be taking applications for the Low Income Energy Assistance Program Nov. 4-15 at the Food Stamp Office, at 256 Hospital St., Mocksville, Monday-Friday, 8-30 a.m. 5 p.m.

The office will be closed Nov. 11 for Veteran's Day.

Eligibility for the program is based on income, resources, and the household's heating source. The household must be vulnerable (subject to the rising energy cost).

Some Food Stamp households will automatically be eligible. Those households should have received a notice informing them of their eligibility. Food Stamp households that are required to apply in person will receive a notice.

Other households which wish to apply should come to the office. Verification of the total household income and resources for October 2002 will be required.

The program is not first-come first-serve. All those who apply during the designated time who are eligible will receive a one time payment to help with heating bills. It is not the intent to cover all of a household's heating expenses, but to supplement these bills on a one-time basis. Those eligible for this assistance will receive their payments around Feb. 1, 2003.

Households which have an immediate need for assistance with heating costs should contact the Department of Social Services. The department does have limited funds available through the Crisis Intervention Program to help with these needs. To be eligible for the crisis program, a household must be in a crisis, or life-threatening situation.

Those who are homebound and have no relatives to come to the agency to apply for them should call the Department of Social Services at 751-8850 to receive instructions on how to apply. Only those who are homebound and have no relatives should call. All others interested in the Energy Program are required to come to the agency on Hospital Street to apply.

Holiday Recycling Schedule

The Davie County recycling program has announced its holiday schedule.

For Thanksgiving, those scheduled to be picked up on Nov. 28, Mocksville East, will be picked up on Nov. 27.

For Christmas, there will be no pickups Dec. 24-26. The Dec. 25 pickups will be on Monday, Dec. 23. The Dec. 26 pickup will be on Friday, Dec. 27.

There will be no service on Wednesday, Jan. 1. That day will be collected on Thursday and Friday, Jan. 2 and 3.

Children's Safety Day Saturday At Kinderton

A Children's Safety Day featuring free identification cards for children and a fall costume contest will be held at the Kinderton Lowes Foods Saturday, Nov. 2 from 10 a.m.-2 p.m., at N.C. 801 at I-40, Advance.

Representatives from the Davie County Sheriff's Department will be on hand to fingerprint children and provide parents with an identity card for their child.

Law enforcement officials recommend that every child have a current photo ID containing personal information that can be easily accessed in an emergency. They also suggest giving a copy of the ID to schools, daycare centers and babysitters. The ID should be updated every six months. Nationwide Agent Jim Gildein is providing the cards free.

Judging for the costume contest begins at noon. First, second and third place prizes will be awarded, and each child participating will receive a gift.

Public Meeting

Communications Enhanced Three Stage Relicensing Process

Alcoa Power Generating Inc. – Yadkin Division (Yadkin) is initiating the process of relicensing its Yadkin Hydroelectric Project - (Project No. 2197) with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). You are invited to attend a public meeting to learn more about the Yadkin Project, its history and operation, the natural, cultural and recreational resources of the Project, as well as details about the relicensing process itself.

These meetings represent an important opportunity for the public to help Yadkin and FERC identify the issues that should be addressed as part of the Project relicensing. Also, Yadkin staff will be on hand to discuss relicensing issues and interests and to answer questions about the Yadkin Project and the FERC relicensing process.

In addition to public meetings, Yadkin will maintain a public reference room containing pertinent information on the Project at the Penta Engineering Building at 48 Falls Road in Badin. Beginning in November 2002, this room will be open for public use.

The agenda for all public meetings will be the same:
- Introduction
- History & Resource Issues
- Relicensing Process Overview
- Public Input

For more information, or to receive pertinent relicensing materials, call Pat Shaver at APGI – Yadkin, 704-422-5678. Information is also available at www.yadkin-apgi.com.

HAVE A SAFE AND HAPPY HALLOWEEN

Trick or Treat Safety Tips

- Face Paint is preferable to a mask.
- Make sure masks have adequate holes for respiration and vision.
- Be visible – Wear some sort of reflective clothing, carry a bright orange bag and carry a flashlight or glowstick.
- When walking stay on the sidewalk or on the left side of the road facing traffic.
- Young children should always be accompanied by an adult.
- Never let the child go down a street by themselves.
- Walk with the children to each house and wait in the driveway or by the door until the children return.
- Older children should travel in pairs or in groups and should never venture down a dark, empty side street.
- Dark, unlighted houses should be avoided.
- Save all candy until returning home, then inspect it carefully.
- Throw away all unwrapped or suspicious looking goodies.
- If a child becomes sick, try to remember what he or she ate and where it came from. Call the doctor or hospital ER immediately and save all wrappers.

Davie Slips And Slides Past South Rowan

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

LANDIS – Doug Illing and Davie's varsity football team didn't care that Friday's win at South Rowan was hard on the eyes. Winning ugly was a lot better than the alternative in rainy, sloppy conditions that were perfect for four-wheelers or mud wrestling.

The 12-10 Central Piedmont Conference win doesn't guarantee anything for a Davie team that's shooting for second place (assuming frontrunner West Forsyth avoids an upset loss), but a loss would have been bad for a team that's trying to scratch and claw its way to a sixth winning record in seven years.

Up-and-down Davie improved to 4-5 overall and 2-1 in the CPC, while the free-falling Raiders (3-6, 0-3) suffered their sixth straight loss and fell to Davie for the sixth time in seven years.

"About all you can say is we survived," Illing, Davie's fifth-year head coach, said. "We couldn't get any (offensive) consistency, and that's tough to do in this weather. But it doesn't matter if we won by half a point - it's a win, we're 2-1 in the conference and we'll take it, especially down here."

While neither offense could overcome awful conditions from steady rain, Davie used two plays to stave off South – a Derek Cornatzer interception return deep into South territory and a home-run ball from quarterback James Arnold to receiver Larry Hudson.

"Two breaks cost us the game," South coach Rick Vanhoy said. "Take those two breaks out of the game and we win. It's as simple as that."

After a 24-yard punt return to the Davie 29 led to a 3-0 South lead, the Raiders put together one of the game's few sustained drives, converting two third downs and moving to the Davie 39. But just when South could have taken command, its momentum turned into a mini-disaster.

Receiver Patrick Atwell slipped on an out route, and waiting for the pass was cornerback Cornatzer, who grabbed the ball and raced the other way.

"Patrick just fell down," Vanhoy said. "It wasn't the quarterback's fault or the receiver's fault. Just fate jumped up, grabbed Patrick and jerked him down to the ground. If he stays up, who knows."

Cornatzer was finally dragged down after a 58-yard return, and Davie scored six plays later for a lead it never relinquished.

"The receiver came out and his eyes were real big," Cornatzer said. "I just had this feeling, a gut feeling, he was going to throw it and I just read it."

"He's worked hard to get that opportunity, and he made the most of it," Illing said.

Davie almost wasted it. South dropped Justin Brown and Arnold for no gain on three straight tries from the South 2. But on fourth-and-goal, Arnold

Towering Turrentine Ends Memorable Volleyball Season

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

This wasn't how the Davie volleyball team's storybook season was supposed to end. The War Eagles claimed the first outright conference championship in their 25-year history and seemed destined to add more gloss to a record season.

All season they imagined what it would be like to end 0-10 state-playoff frustration in front of a rowdy home crowd and reach, if not break, the record of 21 wins in 1981.

Davie put up a gutsy effort, but it was not in the same league as visiting Northern Durham in last week's first-round 4-A playoff match. How good is the Pac-6 Conference? The Knights, led by an unstoppable skywalker named Tiffanni Turrentine, were the most devastating team Davie faced all year – and they finished third in the Pac-6.

Some of the other Davie teams that made the playoffs might have let a first-round exit overshadow a strong regular season, played certain points over

Unbeaten, Unchallenged

8th Wildcats Finish 8-0 As Gough Sets Rushing Record

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

One by one they fell, all swept aside by a runaway express known as North Davie's eighth-grade football team.

Not only did the Wildcats go unbeaten, they went unchallenged, applying frosting to an 8-0 cake with a 30-14 victory at South Davie in last week's season finale.

Ron Kirk has walked the sidelines for 26 years, but never has a moment been sweeter or more vital. Coach Sam Beck's 1990 and 1991 squads achieved perfection, but that was during the junior-high era.

In nine previous middle-school seasons, Kirk won two division titles, finished conference runner-up three times and had to share last year's seventh-grade title with South Davie and Knox.

Record-breaking runner Daniel Gough and a wrecking-crew defense crowned Kirk's football career, clinching the Mid-South Conference championship in the second-to-last game and running over South (6-2) to become the first of 20 middle-school teams at North to finish unbeaten.

"About all I had to say to them before we left was: 'Are y'all ready to do this?' They went berserk getting on the bus," Kirk said.

The Wildcats lost their seventh-grade debut 14-0 to Knox, then ripped off 15 straight wins. The cumulative 15-game score: 570-86. Even more amazing: The closest margin during the run was the final game, 16 points.

"They were fun to be with. For 23, 24 kids to do this ... I'm going to miss them bad," Kirk said.

"We just didn't do anything with their offense," South coach Todd Bumgarner said. "You don't win 15 in a row without having talent, and you don't win 15 in a row without having excellent coaching, and they've got both."

North was a punching bag from 1993-97, going 21-51 between two teams. Since turning to the Wing-T offense in 1998, it's 49-28.

"Since we changed to this offense and the coaches really got behind it, we've had a lot of success," Kirk said. "I've got a good bunch of guys (assistants Danny Allard, Jason Boger, Ronald Boger, Matt McPherson, George Newman and Darren Peebles) to work with, and I totally believe in

Landmark Moment

War Eagle Soccer Team In Playoffs For First Time

Davie's varsity soccer team wanted to pick up steam with the season venturing into unfamiliar territory, instead of losing its last two regular-season games.

But the War Eagles still accomplished their mission, qualifying for the 4-A state playoffs for the first time in their 15-year history with a 2-1 overtime win at West Forsyth in the first of three games last week.

Davie lost 4-0 to Reynolds (14-5, 10-0 Central Piedmont Conference) and 3-0 to North Davidson, but those setbacks could not dampen the spirits of first-year coach Jim Caudill, who inherited a team that went 3-7 in the CPC last year and guided it to 5-5, good for third place. The CPC awarded four playoff spots.

"To be honest, we'd never been in that position and it looked like we would have been satisfied with a tie," he said after the North Davidson loss when a Davie tie would have given the War Eagles an unprecedented second in the CPC. "It's new territory for us and it was just a treat to be playing for second."

The War Eagles (9-9-1, 5-5 CPC) broke even in the CPC for the first time since 1996 and hosted North Mecklenburg, the No. 5 seed from the ME-CA 8 Conference, on Oct. 30 at 7 p.m.

"It's a game they'll remember the rest of their life, win or lose," Caudill said.

West was an on-the-fence game for the War Eagles. They were either going to fall one way, losing to West for the 27th time in 28 games and possibly missing the playoff train on a tiebreaker. Or they were going to jump the other way and give themselves a shot at a historical second-place finish.

South Stops Conversion, Beats North 14-12

By Brian Pitts
Davie County Enterprise Record

Tanner Lowe scored the decisive touchdown as South Davie's seventh-grade football team slipped past visiting North Davie 14-12 in last week's season finale, but quarterback Colby Seaford and tight end Cameron Webb put the Tigers in position for an edge-of-your-seat victory that blocked North's bid for a conference championship.

Does that sound familiar?

"They've been connecting all year," South coach Todd Bumgarner said. "Seaford's been steady all year, and to be successful we had to get Webb the ball as many times as we could."

The game was scoreless when South's diminutive quarterback found his main man in the right flat. Webb grabbed the pass and sped away 30-some yards for a 6-0 lead. The same combination upped the lead to 8-0 on the two-point conversion.

North never quite overcame that early jolt.

The passing duo came through all year as South matched North's 6-2 record. Seaford finished the season 33-of-52 for 532 yards, pretty remarkable stuff for a field general who can see over the line only when his center hunkers down. Seaford's talented target secured 24 of those completions for 356 yards, a 14.8 average.

"He's a heckuva little quarterback," Bumgarner said. "I wouldn't trade him for anybody in the conference. He's got a good arm to be so little. They were there covering Webb (on the touchdown), but the throw was just where it needed to be."

On the game's next series, a sensational catch by a North receiver sent the Wildcats marching toward the end zone. On fourth-and-20, quarterback Garret Benge heaved it deep with three orange jerseys in the vicinity, but Zack Russell-Myers somehow came down with it for 25 yards.

Moments later, Nick O'Brien capped the drive from five yards out. South,

Adam Linder tied it and Matt Moser won it as Davie's soccer team beat W. Forsyth for the second time in 15 years, 2-1 in overtime. David Stein had 11 saves.

Derek Cornatzer's 58-yard INT return set up a go-ahead touchdown and Larry Hudson's 59-yard reception from James Arnold provided breathing room as Davie's football team held off South Rowan 12-10.

Katie McDougall and Whitney Williams provided hits as N. Davie's softball team scored three runs in the seventh inning to tie Erwin, which ultimately prevailed 4-3.

Kurt Bivins and Andrew Darcy had interceptions and Dustin Morgan had several tackles for losses as Davie's JV football team recorded its third straight shutout.

Jr. Payne and S. Davie's 7th-grade defense stopped N. Davie's two-point conversion in the final minute, sealing a 14-12 win.

Daniel Gough rushed for a record 1,234 yards as N. Davie's 8th-grade football team achieved 8-0 immortality. Kenneth Brown of South finished with 981 yards.

Davie Golfers Finish Third In Region, Advance To State

One week after capturing medalist honors in the conference golf meet, Brittany Walker fired the fifth-best score in last week's West Regional at Fox Den in Statesville to lift Davie's golf team to this week's NCHSAA championships.

Walker's 86 and Emily Pettorini's 103 gave Davie third in the team race. Statesville won the regional at 163, Wilkes Central had 186 and Davie 189. The two lowest scores counted in the team competition, and the top three teams and the top three individuals not on a qualifying team advanced to the state, which was held Oct. 28-29 at Pinehurst.

Pettorini

"It wasn't a 78 (like my conference-championship performance), but it was good enough," Walker said. "It actually wasn't a bad score. I didn't play that bad. I had three double bogeys on the back, and that made my score look worse than I actually played."

Gutsy Effort

North Softball Gives Erwin A Major Scare

North Davie's softball team bowed out in the semifinals of the Mid-South Conference Tournament last week at the Salisbury Sports Complex, but it was a loud exit.

Erwin crushed North 11-0 on Sept. 16, but this time the third-seeded Wildcats wouldn't back down. They pushed the No. 2 Eagles to the bottom of the last inning and did it with a never-say-die spirit, overcoming a 3-0 deficit in the top of the seventh.

"We had nothing to lose and everything to gain," assistant coach Angie Williams said. "We went up there with a fiery attitude to play. We told them to give it all they had and walk away with no regrets, and that's what they did. They did not give up."

The Eagles used two hits off pitcher Whitney Williams to mount a 3-0 lead in the third, but their lead was never safe. The Wildcats threatened with baserunners time after time through six innings, yet found themselves down by the same 3-0 score going into their final at-bat.

"We kept getting people on base," Williams said. "We had a couple good hits (by Williams and Stephanie Hinson) right at somebody."

The Wildcats finally broke down the door in the seventh. Katie McDougall drove a pitch between short and third. Williams singled up the middle. And Lauren Mitchell, Katelyn Jones, Gina Williams, Rachel White and Breanna Dalton coaxed walks as North caught Erwin at 3.

Erwin, however, answered with a run in its final at-bat to spoil North's valiant effort.

"(Mitchell, Williams, White, Jones and Dalton) were able to foul off enough pitches to get a walk, and they really made a difference," Williams said. "We certainly made a game out of it, and they were nervous at the end. Erwin switched pitchers and we had them worried."

Williams tossed a complete-game two-hitter as North smothered No. 6 China Grove 5-0 in the first round.

The Red Devils' best chance to reach Williams was when they had runners at second and third with one out. But a Williams strikeout followed by a nice play by second baseman Jones preserved the shutout.

North also got key contributions from right fielder Mitchell and first baseman Dalton.

"Mitchell made a good catch to end an inning when they had runners on base," Coach Amy Speckin said. "Dalton had a really good hit. She hit one way over the center fielder's head, and she made several good stops at first."

The Wildcats clicked off six straight wins before falling short to Erwin, which raised its record to 12-1. North's run extended a strong tradition: The Wildcats went 9-3 for their ninth winning record in 10 middle-school seasons. They came close to making a tournament-final appearance for the first time since 1993. And they improved their record as a middle school to 86-39. Speckin is 17-7 in two years.

"They have a lot to be proud of," Williams said. "We were right up there with the top two, and the other coaches knew it. They were very complementary of our girls."

Notes: North lost two games by a total of two runs, including a 3-2 loss in 11 innings to West Rowan, which carried a perfect record into the final. ... Erwin ousted South Davie 12-2 in the first round. South finished 4-7 after a 3-1 start.

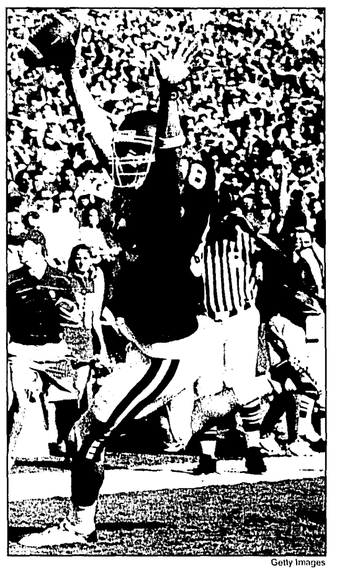
NCAA HIGHLIGHTS

You Beat Us Last Time? So What?



Getty Images

This weekend the top teams are spread all over the map, and several of the matchups they're involved in will break with recent history in those series. Take Colorado at Oklahoma, for example. The Colorado Buffaloes may be the last serious threat to the Sooners' bid for an undefeated season, and Colorado has a couple of factors in its favor. The defending Big 12 champion would love to prove that it can beat this year's conference bully, which it didn't face in 2001. Second, the Buffs have had their way with Oklahoma in recent years, last meeting and beating them in '99, 38-24. Since the Sooners' last win in the series, in '87, Colorado is 8-0-1 against them.

This battle, however, will likely hinge on the running game, which is the Buffs' offensive strength. It's also one of Oklahoma's defensive strengths, and if Colorado goes to the air instead, it'll discover the Sooners' other defensive strength. The string of nine games without a win will come to an end with a 13-point Oklahoma victory.

In the Big East, Virginia Tech and Pittsburgh did meet last year, and by the end of Saturday's game in Blacksburg, Va., their 2001 clash will seem like long, long ago to the Pitt Panthers. In that one they stunned then-12th-ranked Virginia Tech (our 29-point favorite) 38-7, paced by QB David Priestley's three TD passes in the first half. The Hokies never got into the game, turning the ball over four times and gaining all of 15 yards on the ground, 151 total yards and eight first downs. It was Virginia Tech's worst loss since a 52-21 embarrassment by Syracuse in '96 -- and one the Hokies will avenge by 16 points or so.

Yet another example of last-time-don't-mean-nothin' involves the Big East's Boston College Eagles and their visit to Notre Dame, where we've got the Fighting Irish by 10. In '01, when both teams were struggling and their game didn't mean much, the B.C. defense stopped a Notre Dame drive in the final minute and beat the Irish 21-17. This time around, after big-time challenges from Pitt, Air Force and Florida State, Notre Dame will dispatch the Eagles with dispatch.

Then, of course, there's the Southeastern Conference's World's Largest Outdoor Cocktail Party, Georgia vs. Florida in Jacksonville, Fla. Don't be fooled by Florida's recent absence from the Top 25, because the Gators are always a threat to the Bulldogs, and a four-point Georgia win will be huge. Last year, then-No. 6 Florida beat then-No. 15 Georgia 24-10, the Gators' 11th win in the last 12 games of the series. On Saturday, the 80th time these schools will meet, the Dawgs will get their first win over Florida since '97 -- just barely.

Oklahoma's defensive strengths will push the Sooners to a 13-point victory over the Colorado Buffaloes.

There are favorites this week whose wins won't break with recent tradition: Ohio State over Minnesota, Texas over Nebraska, Washington State over Arizona State, Florida State over Wake Forest, Tennessee over South Carolina, and U.C.L.A. (in an upset) over Washington. Michigan and Michigan State, however, have been trading wins since '98, and this year it's the Wolverines' turn.

NFL FORECAST: Sunday-Monday, November 3-4

(Sunday)

*Atlanta	20
Baltimore	16

The Ravens are even less productive on offense than the Falcons and can only stop the run, so Atlanta will find a way to sneak past them. The teams' only meeting, in 1999, was a 19-13 OT Baltimore win.

*Buffalo	21
New England	20

We're counting on a home field to trump a defensive advantage, with two pass-happy offenses but only one superb pass defense, the Patriots'. N.E. swept the Bills last year for the first time since '97.

Dallas	19
*Detroit	13

Look for the Cowboys to stay on the ground and win narrowly, or go the air, where the Lions' defense is helpless, and win convincingly. Detroit, which beat Dallas in '01, 15-10, scores inconsistently.

*Houston	17
Cincinnati	14

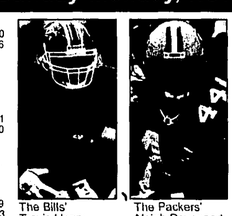
The flip-a-coin pick of the week, turning on who makes the last mistake, but the Bengals can't stop anybody -- not even the Texans -- who runs the ball, and they have a down-right Detroit-like offense.

*Indianapolis	28
Tennessee	13

Both teams will try to throw all day, but only the Colts will succeed while their stellar secondary breaks up Titan attempts. Tennessee was a 19-16 winner in the '99 playoffs, the last time they met.

*N.Y. Giants	22
Jacksonville	16

Here are two one-dimensional offenses -- the Giants all pass, the Jaguars all run -- but N.Y. has the superior D. Each has won one of their two matchups, the Giants most recently, two years ago, 28-25.



The Bills' Travis Henry

The Packers' Najeh Davenport

Getty Images

*Oakland	29
San Francisco	26

If these clubs have any hope of meeting again in a major bowl, they'll need to solve serious problems: the 49ers' woeful passing game, the Raiders' pass defense. Oakland won last, 34-28 in OT in '00.

*Philadelphia	25
*Chicago	17

Given the Eagles' statistical superiority to the Bears on both sides of the ball, this shouldn't be close -- but something tells us it will be. Philly excused Chicago from last year's playoffs, 33-19.

Open date:
Carolina, Denver, Kansas City, New Orleans

Pittsburgh	21
*Cleveland	14

After Bill Cowher yanked Kordell Stewart, the Steelers got win No. 1 against the Browns in Week Four, 16-13, on a Todd Peterson field goal in OT. Pittsburgh has steadily gained confidence ever since.

St. Louis	26
*Arizona	13

The Rams had energizing victories over Oakland and Seattle but then had to sit out a week and wonder if they were real. They'll get only their second win in their last seven games with the Cardinals.

*San Diego	35
N.Y. Jets	10

Our nominee for probable blowout of the week, with one of the league's top ground games -- the Chargers' -- running roughshod over the league's worst run defense -- the Jets'. They haven't met since '94.

*Tampa Bay	24
Minnesota	7

Nearly shut out by the likes of the Jets two weeks ago, the Vikings may not score at all against the Buccaneers. In the last seven years of their NFC Central rivalry, T.B. beat Minnesota at home.

Washington	20
*Seattle	19

Flip-a-coin, take two. The Redskins, who beat the Seahawks 27-14 in '01, will have to run to win, because they won't get far through the air on Seattle. And Washington is no great shakes on the ground.

(Monday)

*Green Bay	28
Miami	24

The Dolphins have to feel good about playing at night after their thrilling win in Denver three Sundays ago, but doing it again in Green Bay after a loss to Buffalo and a bye week is too much to ask.

Mocksville Varsity Edges Shady Grove, 14-12

Varsity – Mock 14, SG 12

For the second time in three weeks, the Rams and Bulldogs played a game that could be classified as an Instant Classic. This game had a little more meaning than the first one, for the winner would be the first to advance to this week's championship game.

Near the end of the first quarter, Michael Wainwright intercepted a Bulldog pass and returned it 21 yards. The Rams went on a 10-play drive that was finished on a 1-yard plunge by fullback Michael Jones. Wainwright added the two-point conversion, giving the Rams an 8-0 lead with 5:14 remaining in the first half.

The Bulldogs scored on a long touchdown run, making it 8-6 at the half.

In second half, Satonia Gray recovered a Bulldog fumble. The Rams went on a 12-play drive capped off on a 5-yard scamper by Wainwright. The two-point conversion came up just short, ending the quarter with the Rams leading 14-6.

On the fourth play of the final quarter, Devaron Scott and Kelcey Sykes pressured the Bulldogs quarterback, causing his pass to float high where it was picked off by Will Marrs.

The Rams, not taking advantage of the miscue, fumbled on their fifth play. Shady Grove quickly turned the Mocksville turnover into six points on a long touchdown run. The all-important conversion was stopped by the Rams, who were able to run out the clock.

Rams coach Kerwyn Wilson said it was a solid team win. "Everyone really played their hearts out to win this one," he said.

The Rams play the Cooleemee Redskins this Saturday night for the DYCFA Championship.

"We were simply outplayed," said Shady Grove coach Maxie Melton.

For the Bulldogs, Josh Freeman scored a TD on a 45-yard run and Bret Peterson scored on a 79-yard run for the Bulldogs.

Offensively, the Bulldogs were led by Freeman with 165 yards and Peterson with 99 yards. Other yardage was recorded by John Flowers (21), Chase Sampson (15) and Cody Sutler (15).

Defensively for Shady Grove, Flowers had an interception. Peterson led with 12 tackles, followed by Josh Freeman and Zach Long with five. Other tackles and assists came from Flowers, Tanner Holden, Christian O'Connor, Tyler Shelton, Ben Sink and Sutler.

The Varsity Bulldogs play their last game on Saturday at 3.

JV - Mocksville 28, Cool 6

In the first quarter, Chris Barnhardt and Anthony Brooks received yardage for Cooleemee. Barnhardt blocked a passing play.

In the second quarter, Andrae Jones, Austyn Neely and Barnhardt had good tackles for the Redskins. In the third, Mikael Pulliam made good tackles. Raheem Martin received yardage. And in the fourth, Martin made a touchdown. Quamaine Imes and Brooks had good tackles.

The Redskins play for third place in the playoffs Saturday at 1 p.m. The Raffle for the football players will be held Nov. 15 at the banquet.

Varsity - Cool 44, Cornatzer 6

In the first quarter, Perry James recovered a fumble. James scored and James Mayfield added the two-point conversion.

Mayfield had a 70-yard kickoff return and James had the two-point conversion. Marcus Gadson and Zac Shoemaker had good tackles.

In the second quarter, Mayfield had an interception. James had a touchdown and Mayfield a two-point conversion. Chris Smoot and Darrell Boger had good tackles. Mayfield had another touchdown. Trey Lowe and Zac Spaugh had yardage. James had an interception.

In the third, Tyresse Blackwell and James had yardage. Craige Cleary and Clayton Smith had good blocking.

And in the fourth, Santana Arnold scored with Mayfield making the two-point conversion. Shoemaker had yardage. Matt Garretson, Steven Wilson, Blake Byrne and Malcolm Hawkins had good tackles. Lowe made an interception and took it all the way to the goal line for a touchdown.

The Redskins play Saturday at 7 p.m. at Davie High School for the playoff championship.

Cornatzer's 58-Yard Interception Propels Davie To 2-1 In CPC rolled right on play-action and lofted into the end zone to Stephens. The difference was 6-3 after the point-after kick was blocked.

"Your footing's real poor for a kicker, and our team needs confidence," Illing said of his decision to go on fourth. "If they would have stuffed us right there, I like our defense on the goal line. I didn't think it was that hard of a call."

Arnold had trouble throwing a wet ball all game, except at the end of the first half when one completion accounted for nearly all of his passing yards.

On third down from the Davie 41 with just 45 seconds on the clock, Hudson ran a deep post. Sophomore Keith Fuller was in position to pick it off, or at least deflect it, but he misjudged the flight and Hudson brought it down, waltzing 59 yards. Although Davie's two-point play failed, it led 12-3.

"Fuller went up about a second too early, and (Hudson) made a great play," Vanhoy said.

"We've got the heart, but a little good luck wouldn't hurt this team," South offensive tackle Scott Moyer said. "We felt like we were going to take control and pull it out, and things fell short once again."

The rest was up to the defense because Davie's offense couldn't get out of its own way, committing 12 penalties for 125 yards. The Raiders were flagged for just 30 yards, but their discipline was offset by three turnovers.

"We kept kicking ourself with penalties," Illing said. "Second-and-5 would end up being second-and-15. We'd get a five-yard gain and a 10-yard penalty, five-yard gain and 10-yard penalty."

Every runner was stuffed at the line repeatedly and no one broke off any big gains. Arnold, whose 76 yards on 16 rushes looked magnificent compared to everyone else, and one South back had the biggest runs of the night, a pair of 10-yarders. Davie had 125 yards on 37 rushes, South 94 on 39. Davie had 188 total yards, South 179. The public address announcer called the punters' names 12 times.

South gained enough yards to make it 12-10 with 4:54 left in the third quarter, but Davie's defense made sure the score stayed that way for the final 17 minutes.

Gareth White made his team-leading third interception. The other defenders who hurt South were Brandon Bledsoe, Timmy Redmond, D.J. Rice, Justin Norsworthy, Billy Riddle, Sam Stovall, Dewayne Collins and Chris Hauser.

"Redmond's a warrior," Illing said of the senior who missed significant time with a knee injury. "He's playing on one-and-a-half legs and he's refusing to go down. It's his senior year and he's going to play to the very end if he has to walk out there on his hands. That's the fight, grittiness and leadership that we've got to have."

Punter Kevin Winters sealed the victory by giving South miserable field position with just 4:15 left. From the South 38, Winters pulled out a short iron and knocked the ball out of bounds at the South 4. South, four plays later, punted from its 9.

"I told the defense every time bad things happen to step it up, keep our composure and don't let crazy stuff happen," Redmond said. "We kept our composure and did what we had to do to win. I told them we can't depend on an offense to score on a muddy field. We had to get the offense the ball back so they could run the clock down and get it over with. That was a sweet punt."

Cornatzer Redmond Rice White

Winters had a gorgeous 54-yard coffin corner waved off by a flag, then shanked punts for 8 and 9 yards. With the game on the line, he nailed South to the wall.

"I knew Kevin could do it, and the defense came through big," Illing said. "South got a little momentum in the third, and our defense bowed their neck and kept them out."

Notes: The teams managed three touchdowns on 22 possessions. ... Norsworthy, who's playing both ways at OL and LB, recovered a fumble. ... Sophomore linebacker Rice is playing with a purpose that belies his youth, following in the footsteps of brothers J.J. and Neil. "He is stepping up," Illing said. "He's acting like he wants to take it to another level."

3 CPC Games, 3 Shutouts For Davie JV Defense

Davie's JV football team led South Rowan 6-0 at halftime, but it might as well have been 60-0.

That's how helpless it's been for opposing offenses. Davie tacked on a second touchdown for a 14-0 victory over the visiting Raiders last Thursday, but the game was all but decided when South fumbled minutes into the game to set up a touchdown.

With three Central Piedmont Conference games in the bag, it's Davie 83, opponents 0.

"They didn't run it on us much at all," Coach Lee Linville said. "The defense again played great. Every time South was getting momentum across the 50-yard line, we'd get a turnover."

The offense played without four starters who suffered injuries in the previous game against West Forsyth – quarterback Brad Corriher, who is out for the season with a broken collarbone; workhorse running back Jamar Bratcher (shoulder); right tackle Ryan Boehm, who was promoted to varsity; and left guard Tony Booe (concussion) – and it slogged to 153 yards on a rainy, slippery night.

It got the job done, thanks largely to Jake Porter, who rushed for 95 yards on 16 carries. When Porter didn't run the ball, Davie sputtered to 19 yards on 15 carries.

"He's a prototypical fullback," Linville said. "He's a freshman that stepped up and played well with Bratcher out."

Davie recovered South's early fumble and went to work at the South 38. Porter and Jaspen Gray accounted for all 38 yards, with Gray reaching paydirt from 10 yards out. Davie missed the extra point.

In the third quarter, Davie tested the air on first down and Troy Blakley connected with Zach Vogler, who secured a 34-yarder to the South 14. Porter chewed up the remaining yards on two runs, then converted the two-point conversion to cement the win.

Blakley (2-of-3 for 39 yards) and Jonathan Dwiggins shared the quarterbacking duties.

"We ran in plays with them alternating every play, and that worked pretty good," Linville said. "Offensively, the main thing we did was not turn the ball over. We played field position."

Although offensive highlights were scarce, the injuries up front opened the door for Zach Yokley, who made his opportunity count. Josh Reinsvold filled in for Boehm.

"Yokley probably graded out the best of all the offensive linemen," Linville said. "He was a backup at left guard, but he's probably going to see more time because of the way he played."

The defense got interceptions from Kurt Bivins and Andrew Darcy and completely stifled South's wishbone/I-formation. Only two teams – Mooresville and Freedom – have put up more than eight points on Davie (6-2, 3-0 CPC), which has held the other six opponents to 22 points.

"I think Bivins and Darcy are battling to see which one comes up with the most interceptions," Linville said. Assistant coach Tilden Carter identified seven other defenders: Dustin Morgan, Andrew Beck, Logan Buchanan, Sean Wagoner, Brock Flowers, Paul Ferrell and Jordan Fowler.

"Morgan had three or four tackles for losses," he said.

Notes: Corriher's injury cost Davie at three positions - quarterback, kicker and punter. Charlie Monger assumed the punter duties, and "five of his six punts were good," Linville said.

Reynolds Rebounds, Figures To Give Davie All It Wants

Davie's football team is coming off a hard-fought 12-10 win, one Coach Doug Illing was not willing to give back, but it's clear that Davie must play much better Friday night at 7:30 on Senior against visiting Reynolds.

A repeat performance will not work in the next-to-last Central Piedmont Conference game. If the War Eagles (4-5, 2-1 CPC) are to win back-to-back games for the first time all season, they have to do a better job offensively and they have to overcome more injuries to a hardluck defense that can't stay healthy.

For the Demons (3-6, 2-1) are in no way similar to the team that walked dejectedly to the locker room after giving away a 21-20 decision to North Davidson and falling to 1-6. They're walking with some swagger now, after beating South Rowan and South Iredell.

Davie and Reynolds are tied with North Davidson for second place.

"They're getting a lot of confidence," Davie coach Doug Illing said. "I think they're just kind of settling into a new coaching staff, a new philosophy and the way they do things. That's the scary part."

The Demons were supposed to fold after collapsing against North Davidson, which scored two touchdowns in the final five minutes, including a 35-yard touchdown pass with 15 seconds left to steal it.

In despair, first-year coach Mike Propst's Demons have somehow pulled themselves back together. After going 1-10 last year, and dropping 16 of 18 games since late in 2000, they're carrying good vibes into Davie's final home game.

Moreover, you'd be hard-pressed - even during their hard times - to find a coach who doesn't envy the Demons' talent pool.

Reynolds lost 32-14 to High Point Central, 26-10 to Parkland, 35-7 to Mount Tabor, 30-24 to North Forsyth, 35-28 to Page and 21-20 to North Davidson. It defeated East Forsyth 45-21, South Rowan 20-14 and South Iredell 21-0.

"They lost a tough one against North Davidson, but I think they gained a lot of confidence in that game, and they've carried that over the last two weeks," said Illing, a Reynolds assistant before taking over at Davie in 1998. "So they're a dangerous team right now. They're always a dangerous team athletically. It's the same ol' Reynolds. They have some very good skill guys."

Reynolds has an extremely versatile running game. Quarterback Jermaine Pitts had 92 yards rushing against High Point Central, 77 against South Rowan and 62 against South Iredell. Running back Edwin Burke had 286 yards on 15 carries against East Forsyth, 178 yards against North Forsyth, 74 against South Rowan and 143 yards against South Iredell. And running back Justin Woazeah had 103 yards on 20 carries against South Iredell.

"Burke's a stud," Illing said. "Their record doesn't reveal how good they are, that's for sure."

Pitts is also capable of hurting a defense in the air. He threw two touchdowns against East Forsyth, went 7-of-9 for 165 yards against North Davidson and has completed scoring passes of 41, 55 and 70 yards. While Austin Boehme is his primary target, Burke had TD catches of 51 and 63 yards against North Forsyth.

"We don't have anybody that can run with Boehme," Illing said. "So we're going to try to keep him under our wings. They'll be in the wishbone 90 percent of the time, and they're going to try to catch you sleeping and give it to Boehme every once in a while on a reverse or just a streak.

"(Also) I think they've settled into a new defense. We saw them early in the year in a different type of defense than what we saw on film."

DAVIE'S WIN OVER SOUTH was costly as sophomore linebacker Chris Goode was lost for the rest of the season with a third-level concussion. That came four weeks after outside linebacker Jon Goode, Chris' senior brother, sustained a season-ending broken ankle.

"It's the worst kind of concussion you can get," Illing said. "It's a bad situation where you can't have contact for a long period of time."

Notes: Chris Goode's absence has taxed the responsibilities of Justin Norsworthy and Brandon Pane. "They're just going to have to play two positions (Norsworthy at OL and LB and Pane at NG and LB)," Illing said. "But they're two of our best players and they're going to step in and make plays." ... Ryan Boehm, a sophomore OT who was pulled up to varsity for South, injured his shoulder and is questionable for Reynolds. Safety Billy Riddle is also questionable with a pulled hamstring. ... With Davie's depth becoming a serious issue, DTs Brandon Bledsoe and Sam Stovall might see time on the OL. ... Freshman DBs ReShawn Parks and Raeshon McNeil missed the South game but are expected back this week. ... Stovall showed at South that he's rounding into form. "He's finally got that sprained ankle out of him," Illing said "It looked like he had fun out there for the first time, not having to worry about hobbling around," ... Though Reynolds leads the series 9-8, Davie has won four of the last six, including 50-10 last year.

Stewart Triggers 15th Blowout Over 15 Games

the Wing-T. I lose the ball sometimes, I wish I would have found this system when I had Zeke Earle and some of those guys when we were struggling."

Gough whipped down the field 11 times, scored two touchdowns and shattered the school's middle-school rushing record. Needing just 44 yards to match Thomas Hunter's record in 1994, the halfback ran for 149 yards and eclipsed the mark by 105 yards.

The stats will blind you if you look too long at them - 82 carries, 1,234 yards and a 15.0 average. Last year Gough gained 1,013 yards on 71 carries.

"We knew we weren't going to be able to hold him under (44 yards), but I thought we would tackle him a little better than we did," Bumgarner said. 'But he's as good as advertised. He doesn't stop. He doesn't get brought down by one man very often."

South's star, Kenneth Brown, showed no fear and threatened to give South a stunning first-quarter lead. But North's Brandon Stewart made the toughest tackle in football - one-on-one in the open field with an elusive runner – on a fourth-down Brown sweep at the North 25.

The tackle, one of Stewart's team-high seven, drained most of South's fuel.

"South was slamming it down our throats," Kirk said.

"I thought we had a play called that would score, and Stewart snuffed it out," Bumgarner said. "Stewart was all by himself. If he doesn't shoestring him, we're up 6-0. Stewart's a heckuva player. I can't wait to watch him in high school because he's going to be a good one. You can mark that down."

North turned Stewart's stop into an 8-0 lead. It was still 8-0 late in the first half, when Gough bounced off Tiger jerseys like a pinball and rumbled down the sideline 50 yards. Whit Merrifield's keeper on the two-point conversion made it 16-0 at halftime, plenty of cushion for a defense had given up 38 points in seven games.

"I thought maybe my defense could make a statement there, and Gough just ruined it all," Bumgarner said. "He made a couple guys miss and broke three or four tackles. That's a super team and you can't get too far behind them and think you can come back."

South cashed in a North fumble when C.J. White powered through the middle 35 yards. Quarterback Chris Brogdon bootlegged and hit Justin Thompson to make it 16-8 in the third quarter.

But North wasted little time resuming control, scoring the next 14 points.

"We had a game (at 16-8)," Bumgarner said. "Unfortunately, we had to give the ball back to them."

When you're moving the sticks on every run and dominating the line of scrimmage, there's no reason to pass. But with South's eyes glued to the flashy backfield, silent assassin Merrifield faked a handoff and completed a 32-yard touchdown to tight end Tom Kuell, pushing the lead to 24-8.

Brown and White's numbers were impressive (121 yards on 18 carries and 72 yards on nine carries, respectively), but Gough, Stewart (5-58 rushing), Merrifield (2-40 rushing, 2-of-2 passing) and Josh Miller (6-31 rushing) offset them with 313 total yards to South's 205.

Fullback Mark Huggins, who averaged 9.7 yards to rush for 496 yards last year, broke his hand in the opener. He never returned but North never slowed down. Stewart averaged 12.5 yards a carry, Miller averaged 7.8 and Merrifield threw for 358 yards, firing 12 of his 21 completions to Kuell.

"Miller (who moved from center to fullback when Huggins went down) came to play," Kirk said. "He went full force. He made good blocks on Gough's runs. We put him at defensive tackle, and the next thing I know he was busting through the line making tackles in the backfield. ... Kuell made some great tackles, and Josh Chesnee had several tackles."

Brown, who showed his backside to startled defenders all year, just missed the 1,000 barrier, finishing with 981 yards on 79 carries.

Brown would have joined South's Ricky White, Billy Riddle, J.J. Rice and Neil Rice and North's Hunter, Brandon Pane and Gough in the 1,000 club if it weren't for an early-season injury. The injury cost him six quarters in South's only losses, 14-8 to West rowan and 22-20 to Erwin.

"I know in my heart if he plays against Erwin we beat them. We should have won anyway," Bumgarner said. "If he runs it that game, he gets 150 yards easy. If Stewart doesn't make that tackle, that's 20 more yards right there on that first drive."

"Brown's a good kid," Kirk said. "I shook his hand after the game. I know he was upset."

Notes: South didn't have runner/passer Josh Eder, injured in practice. As a result, South went 0-of-7 in the air. "If they would have had Eder, that would have added another punch," Kirk said. ... Both South teams went 6-2 in Bumgarner's first year as head coach, meaning 12 of 16 teams in the past eight years have won six or more games. "You're never pleased with a loss, especially against a big rival. But I'm proud of the way my kids played," Bumgarner said.

North-South 7th Battle Goes Down To The Final Play

though, blew up North's swinging-gate play on the conversion to maintain an 8-6 lead.

The game was mainly a duel between Lowe and O'Brien. Even though the defenses saw them coming, they found a way to get into the end zone. South recovered a North fumble and rode Lowe, who scored for a 14-6 lead to finish with 79 yards on 17 carries.

Lowe became the focal point of the offense in the third game, and he responded with 102, 109, 74, 79 and 79 yards. Making first downs possible were linemen Graham Harmon, Jesse Cousins, Justin Burton, John Pfaff and Luke Ray; blocking backs Jesse Crotts and Brandon Jones; and tight ends Webb and Austin Wood.

"Our offensive line did an outstanding job of opening holes," Bumgarner said. "I can't say enough about what they did."

O'Brien (55 yards on nine rushes, and 490 yards overall) answered Lowe at do-or-die time. He carried the Wildcats 50 yards, scoring from the six and drawing them within 14-12 with 57 seconds left.

"O'Brien probably had his best game of the whole season," North coach Ron Kirk said. "I got in his face the day before the game, and he was lowering his shoulders and running through people."

But the Wildcats needed three more yards to keep its title dreams alive. On the two-point conversion, O'Brien took the handoff over right tackle and cut left, where he met Jr. Payne and a beehive of enemy shirts, going down at the 1.

"I knew O'Brien was going to get it," Bumgarner said. "It was just a matter was it going to be the toss, the counter or were they going to pass it to him. They get their best player the ball as often as they can; we were just fortunate enough to stop him.

"My defensive line played their best game of the year. Darius Hall was a big contributor to that. Crotts was just outstanding. In the second half, we moved Crotts to the side that O'Brien would run to. Justin Downs and Payne did a super job. Eric Lowery had another real steady game. Floyd Collins tackled well."

The Wildcats had a chance to be something special. Instead, they were left to think about what might have been, and those thoughts were all about conversion shortcomings. In the previous game, they failed on the two at the end of regulation against China Grove, then lost 20-14 in overtime.

North had a second chance. A win over South would have delivered a championship because the Wildcats handed West Rowan its only loss, 8-6, and thus owned the tiebreaker. The top of the standings wound up with West Rowan at 7-1 and North, South and Knox all at 6-2.

"That's two times in a row that extra points killed us," Kirk said. "In most of the games we didn't execute our extra points but about half the time, and that came back to bite us. If we would have scored two more points (at the end) against China Grove, we wouldn't have had to worry about South Davie.

"But O'Brien did all he could do; South played good defense on that. You can't complain too much about a 6-2 season. We made a run for it at the end, and I told Bumgarner: 'Be ready for another barnburner next year.'"

Bumgarner was a gracious winner.

"This was really my first North-South game. I enjoyed the win but I've got so much respect for Coach Kirk and his staff," he said. "You want to do good against them, but we're friends and it's tough when you have to go against your friends."

Sarah Williams skies for a hit as Tiffanni Turrentine goes for a block.

Davie Runs Into Buzzsaw

and over in their minds and tried to figure out if there was anything else they could have done.

But there was nothing the War Eagles could do to prevent a 7-15, 10-15, 4-15 defeat, and an 18-2 regular season made this a memorable season no matter how it ended.

"Four losses, you couldn't ask for much more," senior Sara Miller said. "I'm glad we got this far. I wish we could have advanced and gone down in history as the first team to win in the playoffs, but they're a really good team. I'll give it to them.

"You can't get everything, and conference champions is good. I can't complain. We have a great coach, all our seniors were really sad, but there's nothing much you can do against a team like that."

Davie Markland, a Davie High graduate, returned home from Appalachian State to rebuild a sagging program in 2000. Davie went from 5-12 to 13-7 to 19-4 with the kind of senior class (Miller, Sarah Williams, Dawn Singleton, Candice James, Heather Miller and Megan Dwiggins) that coaches dream of having.

"We'll replace the players – good players come along - but it's going to be hard to replace the people that I had," he said. "(Jokingly) I thought I was going to kill them when they were sophomores before they could ever get to be seniors.

"They're fun to be around. They learned a lot, I hope, and I learned a lot. Being around these kind of people probably made me a better coach. I have no regrets. It was a great season."

Davie raced out of the chute, grabbing a 6-4 lead in game one. But an 8-0 Northern Durham run brought Davie back to reality. The run grew to 24-2 as the Knights steamrolled to a 13-1 advantage in game two.

Northern Durham's jaw-dropping play was fueled by the 5-foot-10 Turrentine, who displayed her 23-inch vertical and smacked at least a dozen superhuman kills that Davie had no chance of getting a hand on, much less returning.

"She really put it together," N. Durham coach Susan Clements said. "When Tiffanni's on, there's not much going to stop Tiffanni."

"She obviously could do something nobody else on the floor could do," Markland said. "We didn't have a defense against that. If we didn't put it away right off and she got a set, we were sort of at her mercy. I told my hitters to pick a side and hope that was the side she swung at. That was our only hope."

The Pac-6 – which also includes Roxboro Person, Durham Jordan, Chapel Hill, Riverside and Orange – is so stacked that No. 6 Jordan shut out No. 3 Northern Durham (19-7, 6-4) in the Pac-6 Conference Tournament.

Later in the week, Northern Durham beat Chapel Hill in five games, setting up a final-eight clash with defending state champ and 24-0 Riverside.

"We lost twice to Riverside and twice to Chapel Hill (in the regular season)," Clements said. "Last year in the state championship in Raleigh, we had played and beaten several of the teams that were playing there."

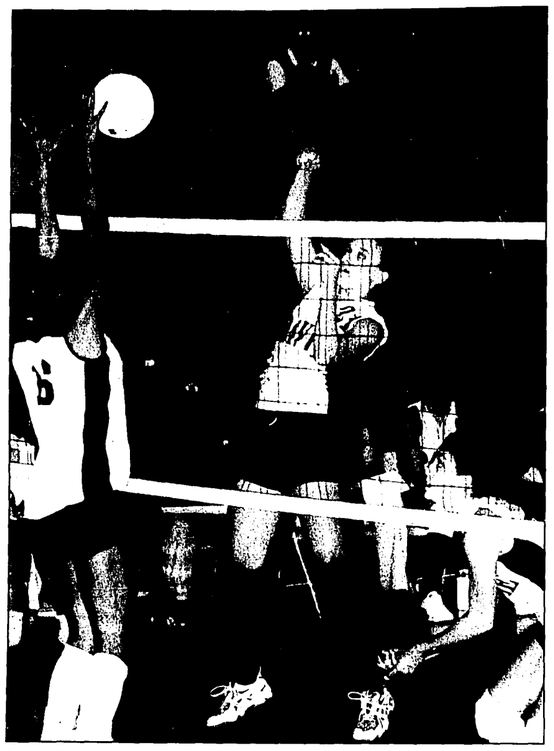
Davie suddenly came alive after digging that 13-1 hole in game two. Allison Schafer pounded five kills during an 8-0 run. When Davie climbed to 14-10, the crowd, which had to be a record turnout for a volleyball match, was so loud you could feel the gym move.

Northern Durham, however, regrouped and scored 16 of the final 20 points.

"You couldn't ask for a better crowd at a volleyball game," Miller said. "I wish we could have given them something back."

"I was just really proud of the team," Markland said. "We competed to the very last serve. We could have easily, so easily, laid down in game two. They played their hearts out. Everything we attempted to do, we tried as hard as we could to do it.

"I thought we played a very nice match, we just played a better team. I would love to see that competition earlier in the year and more often because it's just a different level. Our girls were doing things that we hadn't begun to do. I knew we had the ability to do it, but you play to the competition sometimes."



Sara Miller tries, but getting the ball over Tiffanni Turrentine was no small task.

Stein, Chavez, Garner, Gil Play Big In OT Win

After years of frustration against West, Davie wasn't about to let the dark side of that scenario happen, even though it appeared that's exactly what would happen when West struck first in the 19th minute.

"We went flat, hung our heads and it almost looked like: 'Well, here we go again,'" Caudill said. "It seems like every school has a nemesis, and it happens to be West and Reynolds here. When we face them, we feel like second-class citizens a lot of times, like we're not worthy of winning.

"But they weren't going to lose. No doubt about it, they came to win."

Adam Linder tied it with 10 minutes left in the first half, and Matt Moser scored the game-winner one minute into overtime.

"They had a different look (in OT)," Caudill said. "I said: 'We've got to do two things – score first and refuse to lose.' And they did that. They were so focussed, it was almost like I was directing it, which I'm not that good."

Moser's decisive shot gave him 18 goals. Linder deposited his 13th goal and Mario Gil and Micah Garner supplied the assists.

"Moser scored a Moser goal," Caudill said. "I've seen so many of them this year. He stepped up. He's that great of a player."

But keeper David Stein (11 saves), Bryant Chavez, Garner and Gil were just as instrumental to one of the most rewarding wins ever.

"Stein was outstanding," Caudill said. "The goal they scored, a high-school keeper doesn't stop that shot. He gets better and better. David is smart.

"Garner and Chavez absolutely took away the forwards from that (1-0) point on. They won every ball in the air and made their forwards ineffective. Micah got the ball and knocked it right to Matt's feet (for the winner). And Gil's speed, aggressiveness and hustle is working so good for us."

Chavez

Gil

Garner

Stein

The showdown for second was scoreless for 60 minutes. Caudill believes things might have been different with Gil in the game. He suffered a scary injury on a collision with North Davidson's keeper 15 seconds into the game.

"That was a killer," he said. "It was (the injury to) Matt Moser all over again because Mario's been playing so good. He's been a spark, he's inspired people when they get tired and he's one of our speedsters. He had a collision because he's so ferocious. He went headlong right into the keeper and went unconscious."

North's ice-breaking score sapped Davie, which failed to match North's hunger.

"We played really strong for 60 minutes," Caudill said. "But when you play to tie, you're going to lose. To me it was a 1-0 game because after that first goal, all the air was let out and we knew we were third."

Even though Davie failed to seize second, Caudill said the important thing was being there. The Davie-North Meck winner goes to unbeaten Mount Tabor, the top-ranked team in the state, on Saturday.

"It's going to be fun," Caudill said. "(Should we advance), a lot of scouts will be at Tabor. We have some guys that have college aspirations, and it could be good for us."

A Lump On The Breast Quickly Changes Lives

Heart to Heart with Kathy Chaffin

Jackie Knight didn't get upset when she discovered a small lump in her left breast during a monthly self-examination in February of 2001.

"It's probably nothing," she says she thought.

Besides, she was scheduled for an annual checkup at Winston-Salem WomanCare the following week. She'd ask her gynecologist about it then.

A week later, Dr. Steven Cook examined the lump. "He was really concerned," Jackie says, "because of the way it felt and the way it looked."

The doctor's reaction worried her a little. "But I was still like, 'Well, if it is anything, they can just take it out,' " she says. " 'It'll be OK.' "

Jackie, who was 34 at the time, was referred to the Breast Clinic at Wake Forest University Baptist Medical Center, where she worked as a secretary in the intensive-care unit. There, she had a mammogram to pinpoint the lump and check for other abnormalities in her breasts.

A day or so afterward, she went for an appointment with Dr. Edward Levine, a general surgeon at Baptist, who did a needle biopsy in his office.

Within 15 minutes, the results were back: Jackie had breast cancer.

"It has to come out," she says he told her. She would need a complete mastectomy. A lumpectomy, in which only the lump and the tissue around it is removed, was not an option.

"Because of the size and where it was at, he said he'd have to take over half the breast to do that," Jackie says.

She was alone when she heard the news, having decided to wait and tell her family when she was sure of the diagnosis. Still, she remained calm.

"It was like, 'OK, let's get it done,' " she says, " 'get it over with, get it out and then let's go on.' "

Jackie knew there was a high survival rate for breast cancer when detected early, and she had been doing regular self-examinations for years. Three of her mother's sisters had survived the disease, and she had met many other survivors through her job at Baptist.

Dr. Levine arranged for her to meet with a chemotherapy oncologist, a radiation oncologist and a plastic surgeon that same day. The setup is convenient for patients, she says, "but it was a little overwhelming at times."

Not sure if she would need both chemotherapy and radiation, Dr. Levine had arranged for her to see oncologists in both areas, just in case. Afterward, a plastic surgeon reviewed reconstructive options with Jackie.

"That first day, I didn't make any decisions at all," she says. "They gave me all my options and all the paperwork and all the telephone numbers to call if I had questions."

Jackie returned for follow-up appointments a week later. Her mother, Ramonia Doub, who lives beside her daughter on Fork Bixby Road, and her sister, Debbie Jones, who lives on Milling Road and also works at Baptist, went with her.

This time, Dr. Levine scheduled the surgery for March 19. He would remove the breast, after which the plastic surgeon would perform the reconstructive surgery he had recommended because of Jackie's young age.

The procedure consisted of putting in a metal tissue expander with a port, into which the plastic surgeon would inject regular dosages of saline until the tissue expanded to the point where he could remove the expander and replace it with a permanent implant.

In the days leading up to her surgery, Jackie continued to be calm and optimistic. The hardest part was telling her 13-year-old son, Joe, about the cancer.

"I told him everything," she says. "I told him exactly what was going on, exactly what to expect. He had

A five-star rating is nice, but what we really like is the rating from our patients.

Recently, a national healthcare organization gave Rowan Regional Medical Center five stars for its maternity services. It's the highest rating a hospital can get. Needless to say, we're proud of the physicians, nurses and other members of the maternity staff who provide the very best care for new parents and their babies.

At Rowan Regional, we pride ourselves on superior marks when it comes to patient satisfaction and excellence in healthcare.

So it's nice to see that other people are starting to know the score, too.

Davie Woman Talks About Breast Cancer

been around some people who had gone through chemotherapy before and had lost their hair and everything, so he kind of knew some of it."

Jackie says she could tell her son was scared, even though he tried not to show it. "And with me being so calm, it helped him," she says.

Joe was only 4 when his parents divorced, and he and his mother had always been close. "It's always just been him and me most of the time," she says.

Early on the morning of March 19, Jackie and her family left Davie County for Baptist, where she was to be prepped for surgery at 10 a.m. It ended up being delayed for six hours due to emergency surgeries that came up that day.

The first thing Jackie remembers after the surgery is hearing a nurse she knew from working in the hospital trying to awaken her. "I remember her saying, 'Jackie, you've got to wake up, you've got to breathe,' " she says. "I could hear her and I could see her face, but it was like I could not wake up.

"That was really scary."

What Jackie found out later was that her oxygen stats were dropping every time she awakened briefly and went back to sleep.

"I remember one of the anesthesia doctors standing over my bed going, 'If she's not going to wake up, we're just going to have to intubate her and send her to intensive care,' " she says. "My stats were dropping really low from what they said. He was very serious."

Jackie says she heard her nurse friend tell him, "No, you're not touching her. She'll be OK." Then she says the nurse pleaded with her again to "Wake up."

"So I woke up after that," she says. "It's like that scared me enough ..."

Though she was given pain medication, Jackie says she doesn't remember being in much pain. Even after she went home the following evening, she says she took very little pain medication.

The surgeon had good news for Jackie. Only two of the 16 lymph nodes removed during her surgery showed any signs of cancer, and those had only small traces.

A few weeks later, in mid-April, Jackie started on chemotherapy. The surgeon had inserted a catheter in her chest so the drugs could be given intravenously. High dosages of pre-meds were given to prevent nausea.

"I never got sick," Jackie says. "That was one of my biggest fears. I don't do well when I get sick and have to vomit. I go to my mom's house. She has to take care of me."

Jackie went to the hospital every three weeks for a treatment. The first four rounds, which consisted of Cytoxin and Adriamycin, took 45 minutes to an hour to complete, while the last four, consisting of Taxal, took two and a half hours.

In the meantime, Jackie had been seeing her plastic surgeon, who was injecting saline into the tissue expander in preparation for an eventual implant, regularly ever since the surgery.

Knight and her son Joe discuss the disease.

Jackie Knight looks over some of her crafts.

After her first chemotherapy treatment, Jackie went and got her long, brown hair cut short in case it fell out. The hairdresser braided it, and they sent it to Locks for Love, a nonprofit organization which makes wigs for children who lose their hair due to illness.

Once she had completed her second treatment, Jackie's hair started coming out a little bit at a time. "I would be sitting, and I would see hair fall out," she says. "It was like, 'I can't take this.'

"So I went one day, and I just brushed and brushed and brushed and got as much out as I could."

Then she took the razor she used to cut her son's hair in the summer and shaved what hair she had left.

"I had a difficult time then," she says, "but then it was over and it was OK. I knew it was going to come back."

That part was difficult for Joe. "When I got my hair cut, he said, 'You don't look like my mom' " she says. "He was used to the long hair."

Jackie lost all of the hair on her body. "I had no hair on my legs," she says. "That was great. I didn't have to shave."

She tried wearing a wig, but had to use tape to keep it on. She only wore it three or four times on special occasions such as when she directed her niece's wedding.

Most of the time, Jackie says she wore a fitted baseball cap with a ponytail on it when she went out. Actually, it was a novelty item from Spencer Gifts at Hanes Mall, she says.

At home, she wore a bandanna around her head.

It was September 2001 by the time Jackie had completed her chemotherapy treatments. They were followed by 35 days of radiation therapy.

"I drove myself," she says. "I even drove myself to my chemo treatments when they would let me. I had to beg to do that, but I did so well."

Jackie attributes her success with the treatments to a good attitude. "I think you can make yourself sick," she says. "If you try to keep your head up and keep smiling and keep going, then you'll be OK."

She was unable to return to work during her treatments, however, because of the risk of infection. "In the unit I work in, we get a lot of pneumonia patients and a lot of patients with infections in general," she says.

She completed her radiation therapy in November and by the end of that month, had started back to work for four hours a day, two or three days a week.

Around the middle of December, she became sick and began running a fever. She had had recurring sinus infections since high school and attributed it to that. Dr. Melissa Champe Segle of Mocksville, her general physician, prescribed an antibiotic.

While she was at the doctor's office, Jackie started experiencing pain on the left side of her mid-back area. A urine sample tested positive for infection, so Dr. Segle gave her another antibiotic for that.

By the time she had finished the prescriptions, Jackie says she was feeling better. "The sinus infection was better," she says. "The pain was better. But I was still running fevers."

At times, her temperature got up to 104 degrees, but most of the time, stayed in the 101- and 102-degree range. She went back to Dr. Segle, who was unable to find a reason for the fevers.

Neither could Dr. Cook, her gynecologist, or her oncologists, one of whom referred her to an infectious disease doctor at Baptist. He could find nothing wrong.

The plastic surgeon, in the meantime, continued to see her regularly, but could not give her any saline injections while she was running a fever. Jackie says she questioned him about there being a problem with the tissue expander because she was experiencing pain in her side near where it was.

"Can it be an infection there?" she says she asked him. "He said, 'No, no, no, no, no, there's nothing wrong there.' "

The plastic surgeon sent her for an ultrasound, but nothing showed up.

"So here I am thinking I've got some kind of weird disease now," she says. "I did great until December when the major stuff was supposed to be over."

Jackie was having more and more difficulty working. "I was trying, but I was so exhausted that I couldn't do more than four hours," she says. "Some days, I would go in, and I'd be there an hour and have to come home."

She continued to run a fever, which hovered at between 99 and 100 degrees. "Once in a while, it'd be up to 101," she says.

In early February of this year, Jackie went for a regular appointment with her plastic surgeon. "He went to examine me and said, 'How long has this little spot been here?' " she says. "He said, 'It looks like a little pus spot.' "

Jackie told him she was running late and had gotten dressed quickly, not noticing any problem with the surgery site. The plastic surgeon drew fluid from the spot and sent it to the lab to be tested.

Thirty minutes later, he told her she was having surgery that day. The fluid had tested positive for staph infection.

"I reacted very badly to that," she says. "That is the only time that I did lose it. I got very hysterical."

Jackie says she had planned to take Joe to a rodeo that night, a Friday, and told the plastic surgery he would have to wait until Monday to do the surgery.

"It's something we do every year," she says of the rodeo, "and I was determined I was going to take him. We had already been through so much."

"Do you realize you could die?" she says the plastic surgeon asked her. "He said, 'Do you realize if you go and do what you say you're going to do, you could collapse?' "

A friend who worked in plastic surgery called Jackie's sister on her job in the hospital and asked her to come to the office. There, Jackie says, they literally cornered her and wouldn't let her leave.

"I was so mad," she says. "I don't know what I said or who I said it to at that point. I know it was ugly because they both told me, 'You need to apologize.' "

Jackie refused. She was taken into surgery that afternoon. "I didn't have a choice," she says.

The plastic surgeon removed the tissue expander and washed the area out and closed it up. "There was some tissue and muscle that I lost because of the infection," she says. "I have a nasty scar and a nasty indention."

That night, Jackie's brother-in-law took Joe to the rodeo. Her sister had promised her before she went into surgery that he wouldn't have to miss it.

The most frustrating thing about the whole experience, she says, was the certainty she had had all along that something was wrong. "It proved to me that we do know what's going on in our bodies."

"I've told a lot of people this," she says. "I would much rather go through chemotherapy and radiation than go through that infection I went through. I think it was just a combination. I knew there was something wrong, and I was tired of going to doctors.

Jackie Knight: "I would much rather go through chemotherapy and radiation than go through that infection."

"I had spent a year going. It was like, 'It's time for this to stop now.' "

Though there are two other reconstructive procedures that she could have, Jackie says she has opted for a prosthesis, at this point, anyway.

"I'm fine with that," she says. "There's a lot more to me than that, and what good does it do you anyway? It's just there for looks."

Jackie says she hasn't been back to the plastic surgeon since she had her follow-up visit after the surgery. She sees her general surgeon every six months and her chemotherapy and radiation oncologists every three months.

Though her blood counts are within the normal range, she says they're in the low part of the range. Her chemotherapy oncologist prescribed an iron supplement to try to build them up. Jackie also takes a daily dosage of Tamoxifen to guard against recurrence.

The chemotherapy treatments caused problems with her monthly menstrual cycle, so Jackie had to have surgery to scrape out the endometrial lining of her uterus.

Looking back on everything that has happened, Jackie attributes her calmness to knowing that her family and friends would have been there for her if she needed them. "If I had gotten sick and couldn't have taken care of my son, there were plenty of people waiting there that would have done that," she says.

Joe's teachers at North Davie Middle School were wonderful, according to Jackie. "They knew what was going on and they could tell if he was having a bad day," she says.

Though she doesn't bring up the experience, Jackie says she is always happy to talk with people about it. The other day at work, for example, she says she spent her lunch hour talking with a coworker whose friend had just been diagnosed with breast cancer.

Jackie, whose hair has grown back curlier and a little darker than before, wore a pink ribbon in observance of the fight against breast cancer even before she was diagnosed with the disease. She continues to wear one today and encourages women of all ages to do regular breast self-examinations.

Yearly checkups are also important. "If you're not at the age where they're doing mammograms, the doctor still checks you," she says. "He can feel a knot that you're not going to feel."

As for women who may be recently diagnosed with breast cancer, Jackie has this advice: "Keep your head up, and it'll be OK. You have to take it one day at a time."

It's also very important, she says, for women going through treatment to try to find a hobby or something to keep them busy.

"I would have gone crazy sitting here with nothing to do," Jackie says. "I made angels."

She points out an angel tree topper and an angel ornament that she made out of safety pins, beads and wire. She made hundreds of them while taking her treatments, including some red, white and blue ones after the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001.

In fact, it was from selling her angels that Jackie says she earned the money to buy her Christmas presents while she was out of work last year.

"I had beads all over the house," she says. "Anywhere I went, if I knew I was going to be there for over an hour, I would take an angel with me to work on."

Jackie says she enjoys making angels and believes they were with her during her surgery and subsequent treatments. "I believe they're around all the time," she says, "no matter if you're going through something or not."

She participated in the Davie County Relay for Life this year and was amazed at the number of participants in the survivors' dinner. "I did not realize there would be so many there," she says. "It was packed. People were standing up."

As for her future, she doesn't spend a lot of time worrying about a recurrence. There's too much she wants to do.

One is to become a volunteer for the Pink Broomstick breast cancer visitation program and another is to go back to school to study information systems technology. She has already completed an application for the Davie Campus of Davidson County Community College, but still has to take a test before being accepted.

"I've just got to make the commitment," she says. "That's more scary than anything I've been through."

Jackie, now 35, continues to work in the intensive-care unit at Baptist on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, doing 12-hour shifts. "If I am going back to school, that'll work out great," she says.

It'll probably be two years before she starts. By then, Jackie says Joe will probably be at the point where he's saying, "Mom, go away."

Until then, she says she wants to spend as much time as possible with her son, who inherited his mother's bright, blue eyes and outgoing personality.

"Everything I do is for my son and just making sure that he has the best life I can give him," she says. "That's all I think about right now is him."

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

If the disease hasn't touched your life yet, the odds are that it will. The latest statistics by the American Cancer Society project that one of every eight women will develop breast cancer.

My mother was only 48 when she died from the disease. All across Davie County, there are families without mothers, grandmothers, sisters, wives, daughters, aunts and granddaughters because of breast cancer.

Encourage someone you love to do monthly breast self-examinations and to go for regular checkups and mammograms. With early detection, the survival rate is high.

Statistics provided by Cancer Services Inc. of Winston-Salem, which has an office in the Brock Center, include the following:

• Breast cancer is the second leading cause of cancer deaths for women in the United States, and the leading cause of cancer deaths for women between the ages of 20 and 59.

• African American women are slightly less likely to get breast cancer than Caucasian women, but are more likely to die from it.

• More than three-fourths of new cases of breast cancer are found in women 50 and older.

• One-third to one-half of all breast lumps are found by the woman herself through breast self-examination.

• If breast self-examination is performed monthly, a woman can easily notice changes or abnormalities in her breasts.

• Eighty percent of all breast lumps are not cancerous.

• A mammography — a safe, low-dosage X-ray picture of the breast — may detect a breast lump as small as a pin head, up to two years before it can be felt.

• The amount of radiation received from a mammogram is less than that from an X-ray at the dentist's office.

• Medicare pays for an annual screening mammogram for eligible women age 40 and older.

More information is available from Cancer Services at 751-0313, the American Cancer Society at 1-800-227-2345 and at numerous Web sites on the Internet.

Davie County has several breast cancer survivors who reach out to recently-diagnosed women through the Pink Broomstick visitation program coordinated by Cancer Services. In 2001, 28 breast cancer patients were assisted through the program.

Volunteer Pat Atkinson of Mocksville says volunteers visit with the patients in their homes, offering empathy, encouragement and assistance in such areas as exercises to help regain use of the arm after mastectomy.

"We try to let them know that they are not alone," she says. "They want to know

The nighttime hayride is a highlight of the Cornatzer Methodist Church fall festival.

Cornatzer Methodist Has Fall Festival; Plans Halloween Event, Nov. 23 Dinner

Dillan gets a ride on Digger the Pony.

Josh, Tyler and Parker are hayride pals.

Folks sample some of the chicken stew.

Good food, good fun, and good fellowship were to be found at Cornatzer United Methodist Church Saturday, Oct. 19 evening as the church held its annual Fall Festival.

Bluegrass gospel music by Johnny Howard and friends fed the spirits of those in attendance while a black pot of chicken stew fed their stomachs. A large selection of cakes, pies, and persimmon puddin' was available for those with a sweet tooth.

Children enjoyed riding Digger the Pony and the wet chill of Bobbing for Apples. Several door prizes were awarded to adults and children.

A highlight of the evening was the traditional hayride in the cool dark night with a big moon overhead.

"I think everyone enjoyed this evening" said Pastor Harold Zimmerman. "It was nothing fancy, just friends and neighbors getting together for good clean fun. The simple pleasures are often the best."

Zimmerman is thankful for all the folk who attended, worked, cooked, and donated to make this event a success, and for the local merchants who provided food items and door prizes.

On Halloween night, Cornatzer Methodist will host its third annual "Treat House." Trick or Treaters are invited to stop in for lots of goodies.

Cornatzer's United Methodist Women will hold a chicken pie supper in the fellowship hall Saturday, Nov. 23. For tickets or more infor-mation, call Zimmerman at 998-0687.

REPUBLICANS AND INDEPENDENTS FOR BOB ROSE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

WHAT WAS IT LIKE FOUR YEARS AGO?

Then	There was no need for a $40 million school bond issue.
Now	The incumbents are asking for only $29 million for fear the voters will reject $40 million. Obviously, $29 million will not solve the problem.
Then	There was a generous budget reserve fund in Davie County.
Now	The reserve fund is almost depleted.
Then	Taxes were less
Now	Taxes were raised last year by means of a reassessment; taxes will be raised next year if a school bond issue is approved; taxes will likely be raised again the following year because our County will not be able to meet the mandate for an adequate reserve fund; taxes will likely be raised again and again over the next ten years because the bond issue proposed for 2003 will be inadequate to meet the needs for 2002 and beyond and the millions of dollars of cost in providing classroom space for the Kinderton children will not be provided for by the bond issue.
Then	Mobile classrooms were an insignificant part of the school budget.
Now	Eleven percent! This money should be used to educate our children.
Then	Davie County was a rural county
Now	Davie County is quickly becoming a county known for uncontrolled growth; high taxes; and overcrowded schools as well as little zoning enforcement or land use planning.
Then	The incumbents had no experience in managing large budgets and planning for the future of a large enterprise.
Now	They still don't!

Bob Rose has had more than 20 years of experience as Comptroller of the Wake Forest University School of Medicine and has had major responsibility for annual budgets of $200 to $300 million. Davie County is in serious financial trouble, and Bob Rose has the experience and commitment to turn things around.

Artists Invited To Take Part In 'A Public Hanging'

Last year The Davie County Arts Council and The Art Group sponsored "A Public Hanging," a show with more than 30 artists.

Due to the favorable response from artists and the community last year, this show is being held for the second year in the lobby of the Brock Performing Arts Center, beginning with a reception from 6-8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 15, and continuing on display until Jan. 6, 2003. The community is invited to the reception, where they can enjoy refreshments and htalk with the artists. Prizes and the judge's comments will be given at 7 p.m.

The title "A Public Hanging" reflects the intention of this show to encourage area artists and give them a place to show and sell their work.

Both two and three-dimensional work, and fine crafts are welcomed. Each artist can submit two pieces and at least one of them will be shown. The exception would be if the Arts Council feels work is not in accordance with community standards.

Interested artists and fine craftsmen should contact the Arts Council offices for a prospectus containing the complete rules and requirements. There is a $5 entry fee, with prizes to be awarded of $100 for first, $75 for second and $50 for third. Honorable mentions will be awarded at the discretion of the judge.

The selector and judge for this show is Sterling Edwards, an exhibiting member of Associated Artists of Winston-Salem and a faculty member of the Sawtooth Center for Visual Arts. He conducts watercolor workshops around the country. His original paintings are in many private and corporate collections throughout the United States and Canada.

The co-chairs organizing the show are Patricia Dee and Sue Boggs of Mocksville.

For more information or a show prospectus, contact the DCAC at 622 N. Main St., Mocksville; call 751-3113, or email: info@daviearts.org

Pino News

Harmon and I held our annual Cana Road Chicken Stew Saturday. We started this about six years ago because there were a lot of new people moving into the neighborhood and this gave everyone an opportunity to get to know each other. It was very successful and we have been doing it every year since. This year around 50 friends and neighbors attended. We had several members from Wesley Chapel plus some out-of-town guests, Ted and Judy Hoffman, Ethan and Allison Boger and Joe and Becky Hunter and thier grandson, Derick.

Visitors are Wesley Chapel Sunday were Ted Williams, Jerry Snyder and Martha Warner's grandson, Garren Warner.

Toni Horton was honored with a surprise birthday party at Sagebrush restaurant in Winston-Salem given by her husband, Tom, and friend, Peggy Chapman, on Friday night. Those attending were her parents, Helen and Fred Martindale of Venice, Fla., brother and sister-in-law, Mark and Judy Scolaro, sister, Valerie Huffman, sister and brother-in-law, Julie and Michael Strong, and nieces, Briana and Kiley, all from the Indianapolis, Ind. area. Also attending were the Tommy Drifter band members and Wesley Chapel friends and neighbors. Toni's family was also in town to see the Lou Reid and Carolina and Big Country Bluegrass Band at the Brock Performing Arts Center. The show was kicked off by Tommy Drifter and the Lost Travelers Band of which Toni is a member.

Justin Losh was recently home for a two-week visit with his parents, Tom and Toni Horton. He has lived in Salvadore, Brazil for the past eight months. He taught an English class, studied Capaerea and toured Brazil during that time. While he was here, he provided the Wesley Chapel congregation with a short talk about his travels. Also while he was here he spent several days with his friends, Nathan Beckerman and wife in Charlotte. He attended the Dixie Classic Fair with Bri Beckerman, and friends, Bryan and Suzanne Lakey, invited him to their new home in Mocksville for dinner. Tom and Toni hosted an open house party for him before he left for Indianapolis. His stepbrothers, Bill and Jeff Horton, and their families, Jack and Peggy Chapman, Angie and Shane Hill, Pat, Kathy and Matthew Miller and Bryan and Suzanne Lakey came by to share a bowl of chili and a short visit.

Hi, my name is Savannah Beck. I turned three on October 14. I celebrated my birthday at my house with all my friends and family. My birthday cake was decorated with butterflies, and I had lots of balloons.

My parents are David and Robin Beck and they surprised me with a big swing set. My grandparents are Judy Beck and the late Howard Beck and Robert and Diane Dickens.

I just want to thank everyone for all the gifts and for coming to my party. I had a great time.

We are triplets: Robert David, Riley Alexander and Abbigail Leigh Gross. We were born Sept. 5, 2002. Our parents are David and Kindal Gross from Fort Smith, Arkansas. Our grandparents are Ed and Rosemary (Livengood) Gross. Our great-aunt is Jackie (Livengood) Williams and our great-grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. A.N. Livengood from Advance.

Brad and Amanda Lagle of Mocksville would like to announce the birth of their son, Carter Scott Lagle. He was born September 28, 2002 at 10:28 a.m. at Forsyth Memorial Hospital. He weighed 5 lbs. and measured 18 1/2 inches.

Maternal grandparents are Steve and Barbara Smith of Mocksville, and paternal grandparents are Gene and Tammy Lagle of Cooleemee.

Bazaar Saturday At Smith Grove Methodist

The annual fall bazaar at Smith Grove United Methodist Church will be Saturday, Nov. 2 from 8 a.m.-2 p.m.

Among the features: an antique car and tractor display; games and face painting for the children; a white elephant sale; a mystery cake; a noon auction of a large children's rug; baked goods; pecans and flavoring; crafts of all kinds, including crocheted ornaments and other Christmas items; decorated bluebird houses; and food, including ham and sausage biscuits for breakfast and barbecue sandwiches, hamburgers and hotdogs for lunch.

Christ Clontz is pastor at Smith Grove, a church that features two Bible study groups, men's and a women's groups, ball teams, choir, Young at Heart for seniors, and youth and teen groups. Before and after school programs, as well as a summer program from children grade kindergarten through sixth in the Children's Ministry, are directed by Tammy Hall.

The church welcomes visitors to the bazaar and to services. Sunday School is at 10 a.m. worship at 11. Call 998-3854, email SmithGroveUMC@aol.com or write to 3492 U.S. 158, Mocksville.

Walk (11,028) Miles In His Shoes

Nationally Famous Fitness Walker Encourages Students, Employees

By Wendy Horne
Davie County Schools

What does an M&M and the length of a football field have in common?

Try walking the full length of the field just to burn off the calories in that one little piece of candy.

Those were just a few of the tidbits of information shared with Davie County middle school students and guests of Rob Sweetgall's presentation at the Brock Gymnasium Oct. 17.

Due to a state grant and sponsored by the Davie County School Health and the Davie County Health Department, Davie County middle school students, as well as employees of the county and school system, were able to hear the motivating words of Robert Sweetgall.

Sweetgall encouraged students at North and South Davie to implement a healthy lifestyle during the morning of the 17th, and then moved on to share the same philosophy with employees of the county and school system during the afternoon.

Both groups were encouraged to follow a healthy diet and practice some sort of physical activity on a daily basis.

Sweetgall has walked seven times across America and is the only person to walk all 50 states (11,028 miles) in 365 consecutive days. Using this as motivation for others, Sweetgall shared with his audiences the benefits of walking.

Guests were given the opportunity to try out pedometers that show how many steps you take over a given period of time.

"How many of you have been told, 'if you don't exercise at least three times a week for 30-40 minutes, and your heart rate isn't above a certain BPM (beats per minute), your workout isn't beneficial? Well, research now shows that any form of physical activity has real health benefits. Individuals who average 3,000-4,000 footsteps per day can in fact increase their lifespan," he said.

Sweetgall's primary goal was to help promote fitness in the "tweens" (ages 9-13) of Davie County. At the conclusion of each session at the middle schools, students were asked if they would be willing to participate in a school walking program that would require them to use pedometers to track their steps per day. Nearly 100 percent of students at both middle schools raised their hands to volunteer. Students will be given this opportunity within the next few weeks, thanks to the state grant that will fund the purchase of a limited number of pedometers at each middle school.

Author of 14 books, Sweetgall has appeared on numerous radio and talk shows, including NBC Today Show, Evening Magazine, Kathy and Regis Live, and National Public Radio. Nearly 1,400 middle school students and more than 100 school and county employees took advantage of the words of Sweetgall on Oct. 17.

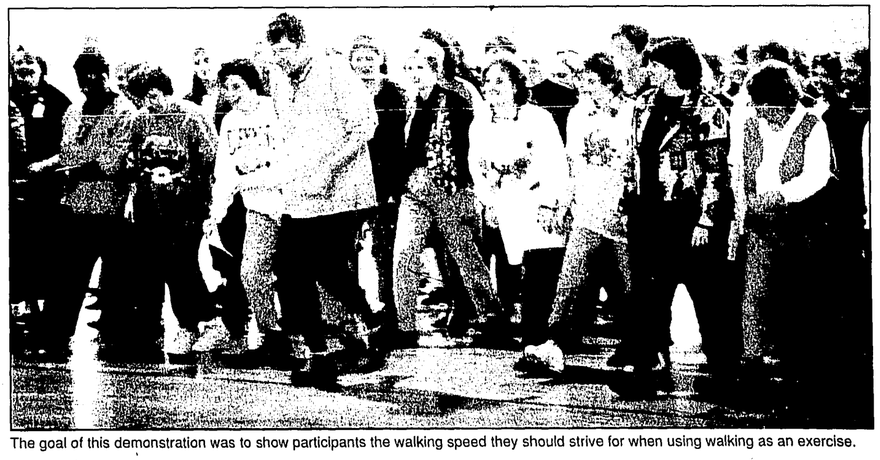
Liisa Mecham and Connie Little, school employees, accumulated more than 500 steps in less than five minutes.

Dr. Van Johnson, assistant superintendent and director of operations for Davie Schools, and his wife, Pat, a teacher at Shady Grove Elementary, clip on their pedometers as they prepare to participate in the Sweetgall's walking demonstration.

Employees of Davie County listen as Sweetgall speaks of the benefits of physical activity.

Sweetgall holds the shoe he wore during his last walk across America.

Mocksville Police Chief Jack Keller smiles as he puts his best foot forward during a pedometer demonstration.



The goal of this demonstration was to show participants the walking speed they should strive for when using walking as an exercise.

North Davie Middle

Aces honor roll students were treated to social time with pizza and drinks Tuesday, Oct. 22 from 12:15-12:52.

Aces students who completed first quarter with no negative discipline problems and no incidences of not completing their work, attended Aces All the Way! on Wednesday, Oct. 23, for social time with food and drink. Parents donated items for these reward activities. The next end-of-quarter reward activities will be held in mid-January of 2003. Food, drink, and monetary donations will be needed then.

On Monday, Oct. 14, the Aces team went to Stone Mountain State Park in Roaring Gap. Our students played, socialized, had a picnic lunch, and hiked on the trails. Parent volunteers: Cindy Booe, Joel Boyles, Mike DeHart, Sheryl Maine, and Layne Robertson. For photos from the trip, log on to:www.ndms.davie.k12.nc.us <http://www.ndms.davie.k12.nc.us/ >. Then click on the wildcat picture, then click on academic teams, and then on Aces 8th Grade. Follow the instructions on the main page to get to the Aces photo page. Visit each Aces teachers academic page for assignment and homework information as well as other topics of interest.

Stone Mountain trip student comments:

Holly Harris, "This was a very fun and healthy trip. I had fun hiking and seeing the waterfall. We all enjoyed the free time to play. It was a beautiful day and a very fun field trip."

Marissa DeHart, "This was the best field trip of middle school so far. I had a lot of fun with my friends and I got to know some people that I didn't know very well. We had limits, but we also had the freedom to enjoy ourselves."

James McEwen, "I really liked our Stone Mountain field trip. The sun was shining and it was warm and the park was very beautiful."

The next Aces field trip will be Monday, Dec. 9 to Old Salem for the annual Candle Tea. Students will learn a history lesson on Moravian life 300 years ago, then go out to eat for lunch in Winston-Salem. The permission for this trip was included with the Stone Mountain information packet.

Aces students are given extra credit in each core subject for participation in the PTSA Reflections Contest. The categories are literature, music composition, visual arts, and photography. The theme is "Signs of Courage." Rules and information will be sent home in mid-November.

Aces Prime Time classes have been involved in discussions concerning: courtesy, making assumptions, cheating, and lying. Students are paired up with sixth grade prime time buddies to help new students become better adjusted to middle school. The Christmas Shoebox Storehouse for Jesus Projects is coming soon.

Science is being taught by each teacher this year. In eighth grade, there are four main curriculum areas. Mrs. Stuart is teaching adaptation, Mrs. Williams is teaching physics, and Mr. Hendrix is teaching hydrology and population dynamics. On Nov. 1, Aces students will be moving to a new teacher with a new area of study.

Mr. Hendrix's classes are studying the early colonization of America, with Indian battles, slavery beginnings, witchcraft hangings, and religious uprisings. Soon, students will begin an in-depth study of the American Revolution.

Pre-Algebra classes have finished a unit on integers and solving equations. They are solving inequalities.

Science students presented information for Chapter 17 on physics. These presentations included tic-tac-toe, hangman, an acrostic, word search, and a board game to review material.

Language arts students are reading and studying a variety of materials. Some students are reading O'Henry short stories and analyzing literary components, while others are reading newspaper articles and letters to editors. Aces students will begin writing a colonial journal this week and begin studying background materials for the revolutionary war novel, Johnny Tremain. This will continue as the students are studying the American Revolution in social studies classes.

With the student-led conferences, more than 70 percent of the Aces parents came to hear their children discuss their academic successes of first quarter. The surveys completed by parents showed that 90 percent of parents preferred this format as opposed to the teacher-led conferences.

Robin Foster-Pulliam is a new teacher assistant.

A Spirit Week is under way. On Monday, students and staff observed "Tacky Day." On Tuesday, students enjoyed "Sport's Day" and Wednesday is "Western Day." To finish out Spirit Week, students will experience "Book Character Day" Thursday and then "Patriotic Day" Friday.

Friday, Nov. 1 is the annual Fall Festival, with dinner and an evening of fun. Support the PTO.

Students have been enjoyed an art project this week sponsored by the Arts Council. Students have made musical instruments and each grade level which highlight the study of the Appalachian arts.

Citizens of the Week for Sept. 27-Oct. 25 participated in the Citizenship Luncheon Oct. 30: Frank Bledsoe, Dakota Ritchie, Cavin Caldwell, Duke Whittaker, Francisco Chame, Maria Rogers, Tyler McLamdriana, Barron-Manzanaraz, Keenan Shoffner, Kyle Stevens, Peyton Brooks, Dakota Thompson, Tyler Kelly, Jonathon Whitaker, Abigail Hall, Trey Lagle, Adeline Uriostegui, Jacobe Stewart, McKenzie Brookman, Kenneth Tompkins, Julio Gutierrez, Trini Alvarado, Wiley Baity, Somaya Zantout, Uriel Gamez, Kendall Lanier, Sarah Myers, Avery Brown, Maggie Meagher, Sarah Myers, Joseph Whitaker, Brooke Wallace, Antonio Gabino, Jessica Stewart, Tyler Myers, Bethany Barkley, Kirsten Cockerham, Brittani Cartner, Sarah Anderson, Chris Callaway, Brittani Cartner, Ricky Wilson, Gisela Gutierrez, Sara Contos, Lokota Marroquin, Josh Blackburn, Deyanira Hernandez, Taylor Weatherman, Nora Zantout, Kendall Gobble, Lindsey Sanders, Derrick Danner, Kendall Gobble, Zack Rogers, Chasity Spry, Tanner Bledsoe, Amanda Stark, Casey Ferrebee, Tanner Bledsoe, Alecia Moreno, Jarrett Wallace, Megan Campbell, Andrew Olson, Tori Norris, Heaven Shoffner, Clint Mast, Brooke Wagoner, Rigoberto Uriostegui, Casey Ireland, Dylan Ratledge, Brandon Gammons, Kalee Trivitte, Megan Boyer, Heather Scherer, Sherlyn Johnson, Breck Want, Colby Hempstead, Danielle Young, Samantha Tarleton, and Brittannie Ball.

South Davie

In Mrs. Branan's communication classes, various genre of literature have been studies; some groups have read the novel "Where the Lilies Bloom." Set in the North Carolina mountains, it is the story of a young girl trying to provide for her family after her father's death. Projects ranged from dioramas to research of North Carolina wildflowers and "home remedies." All groups have done a short story unit, with selections ranging from "Charles," a kindergarten student who "disguises" his misbehavior at school by inventing a "villain" to "Stop the Sun," a story of a boy who is trying to understand his father's Vietnam experience. Groups have read Davie County "legends" and North Carolina Indian myths, as well as coastal lore. Students have done posters to illustrate literary devices and "story pyramids" to outline elements of fiction. We continue to stress Accelerated Reading and Test Prep, as we work on strategies and skills that will be assessed on the End of Grade tests.

Mrs. Gaither's math students have been working on a variety of math objectives. Students are learning to use variables in equations for problem solving in preparation for high school algebra. Many students exceeded their Accelerated Math goal for the quarter and received extra credit toward their final grade. Students should be working on math problems outside of class each school day except Friday.

Mr. Crenshaw's classes have been busy. They have studied the Age of Discovery and colonization, and the French and Indian War. Students did maps, planned trips, studied geography and other details about North Carolina. More recently they have studied North Carolina businesses like RJ Reynolds and Food Lion. A trip to Reynolda House was taken in September. A detailed comparison to two presidents will begin soon.

Ms. McClamrock's science classes have been studying a unit on the earth's interior. The topics included earthquakes, volcanoes and plate tectonics. The students participated in a variety of activities including reading and answering study guides, watching videos, drawing diagrams representing faulting and folding, completing puzzling plates, modeling seismic waves using a slinky, rock identifications, and visiting the computer lab to review databases on earthquakes and rocks. Currently, we are learning about the NC mountains in preparation for our trip Oct. 30. The students are learning about the geology of Grandfather Mountains and Linville Caverns. The activities include a NC map study, videos of the Blue Ridge mountains, a study of block bears and metamorphic rock observation.

Mrs. Markland's Life Skills classes have been learning about the

What's Happening At Davie High

Seniors Making College Decisons

It's that time of the year for seniors at Davie High. The upperclassmen's stress levels remain high as they start to fill out college applications.

Seniors are encouraged throughout the school year to keep their grades high, visit college campuses, and take the SAT or ACT. Colleges look for many aspects in a student.

Elise Dickmann

Kimberleigh Archer, a guidance counselor, considers academics and SAT scores most important when colleges are making decisions.

Sheena Smith, a senior, has applied to Coastal Carolina, Appalachian, and UNC Charlotte. "It's been a lot more involved and takes more time than I thought it would." She wants to study business administration.

"It is very hard because you have to be careful with how you answer each question," says Matt McAnally, who started applying about a month ago.

On the other hand, Becky Page, a senior who started applying over the summer says, "It hasn't been too bad. On-line applications made it a lot easier because cfnc.org saves all of your information from application to application, so that saved a lot of time." Page plans to study middle grades education at Appalachian, Eastern Carolina University, or UNC Greensboro.

Students apply to many schools, in hopes of getting in, but of course, they have their top choice.

McAnally's is Duke. "I've grown up loving everything about the school and there is such a prestige in saying that you graduated from Duke," he says.

Jenny Broadway, a senior who has just finished filling out applications wants to go a little father away. Her number one choice is University of South Carolina. "They have a good psychology program", she says.

Like Broadway, Page's number one choice is based on her area of study. She wants to attend Appalachian the most. "They have a good teaching program from what I've heard and I loved the campus when I went there to visit", says Page.

Smith concentrates on the college environment. She really wants to attend Coastal Carolina University. "I love the beach and I want to be somewhere where I'd be happy."

The seniors aren't alone when filling out applications. The guidance office at Davie stays involved with the students during this time ofyear.

"We have all of the materials they need to apply," Archer said. We pas sout a time line to all of the seniors at the beginning of the year that tells them when to start applying and when to take the SAT."

Guidance counselors also meet with parents and students together when requested. "We can help took up prices and requirements the colleges that they want to attend," Archer said.

Now that many seniors have sent in their applications, what's next?

"I'm preparing now by trying to keep my grades up and raise them if possible, McAnally said. "I am getting ready to run indoor track in hope of getting a track scholarship."

Broadway is also keeping scholarships in mind. Her plans are to find out where she got in, visit campuses and apply for more scholarships.

Besides the SAT more testing can be done before college. "I am planning to take the ACT and keep my grades up because collages will still be looking at my grades," Smith says.

The final process that the seniors have to face is leaving home. Some students are ready, while others are a little unsure.

Broadway says, "I'm ready to get out and be on my own, even though I'll miss my friends and family at home."

Smith feels the same way. "I would miss my family, but I think I could do it", she says confidently.

Page timidly says, "I think it's time and I'll probably be homesick, but I'll be ok."

After graduation on May 24 all the hard application process will finally pay off. Seniors will enter into their long awaited anticipation of college.

responsibilities of a baby sitter. This activity has been enhanced with the use of the Baby Think It Over simulator. The infant simulator (Baby) will cry at random, unpredictable times and requires the student to care for it by figuring out if it needs feeding, burping, rocking or a diaper change. Activities vary in length from 1-30 minutes, approximately the amount of time needed to care for an infant. Students were allowed to check Baby out for a weekend. The students found that the Baby changed their lifestyles profoundly. The Baby required a great deal of time and attention, plus its demands were unpredictable and had to be met promptly. They especially loved the nighttime care sessions. A special thanks to all the parents who helped make this a very realistic experience for their child.

The students have also been inviting small children from birth through four to class to help them learn about the different stages of development. We are very appreciative of all the parents, grandparents, aunts and teachers who participated in this activity. We would also like to thank everyone who donated items for the Baby Think It Over activity.

Cornatzer Elementary

Cornatzer students all had a thumping good time in PE last week. Ms. Tami Langdon of the Dance Studio in Mocksville was in school for a day to show all students the basics of clogging. Children learned about the history and tradition of clogging as well as watching Ms. Langdon clog and then having a great time trying to follow along.

Karen King's fifth grade science class has enjoyed researching animal habitats and how living organisms compete in various ecosystems. Students are now identifying and illustrating the earth's biomes by comparing plant and animal life within each zone. Students in communications have been taking a journey on the Underground Railroad. The class novel, "The House of Dies Drear," is giving students insights into the brave and heroic struggles of the slave's flight to freedom. In the mystery, students experience excitement and adventure when a modern family moves to a new community and overcomes personal differences and prejudicial feelings. Re-enacting several episodes of the novel has been entertaining to the students. In math class, students have become "fragmented" while working with fractions. Math Superstars and Math Essentials are also keeping students sharp, relative to other math concepts.

Second graders in Mrs. Robinson's class have completed their study of the autumn season. They read the books "Picking Apples and Pumpkins," "Daniel's Duck," and "The Ox-Cart Man." On Oct. 25, they held a class fair. The activities included a caramel apple booth, game booths, and crafts such as quilling, mosaics, tin punch, quilting and good luck charms. The next unit of study will be government. All the students in the class met their accelerated reading goals and qualified to go to the swim party at the YMCA.

Cougars of the Week: Keion Joyce, Anali Gomez-Donato, Austin Vandall, Michael Stegall, Renea Shrewsbury, Savanna Thomas, Jeremy Jones, Trent Hill, Jacob Horton, Tyler Russ, Leah Johnson, Osmayda Acevado-Gama, Diana Rodriguez-Salgado, Justin Jones, Megan Lawson, Adina Guyton, Sydney Nelson, Nicole Casstevens.

Cougars of the Month: Josh Lankford, Jordan Earle, Chad French, Giselle Rodriguez, Sydney Autry, Caleb Foote, Giselle Hernandez, Kaitlyn Viars, Quwanna Doby, Matthew Beauchamp, B.J. Lanier, Leslie Fulton, Griselda Marcelino, Denise Ramirez, Walter Varona, Drew Andrade, Sarah Shaver, Cristal Arroyo, Shelby Hendrix, Lisbeth Enriquez, Melia Sheets. These students were guests at a special lunch in the media center hosted and provided by the Mocksville Woman's Club.

A reminder to parents: Wednesday, Oct. 30 - Venezia's Night; Thursday, Oct. 31 - Dairy Queen Night, Advance and Fall Field Day; Fri., Nov. 1 - PTA Cookie Dough Sale starts and Picture make-ups; Monday, Nov. 11 - Veterans' Day, no school.

Mocksville Elementary

Student of the Week, Oct. 21-25: Jennifer Jamie, Alex Wilson, Jason Snyder, Jalinye Arguiana, David Michalski, Meredith Kurfees, Ashley Sheets, Ethan Reavis, Jose Mena, Elizabeth Holland, Kaykeel Dillard, Codi Bradford, Ryan Wood, Tyler Gaddy, Brianna Brown, Jose Sanchez, Heather Carnter, Ana Burton, Ashley Cook, Trevor Silvia, Blake Wise, Brock Reynolds, Josh Berryhill, Lauren Strickland, Corey Shortlidge.

The staff was treated to lunch at the Daniel Boone Inn in Boone Oct. 18. This was in celebration of being a School of Excellence and one of the top 25 schools in North Carolina making the most academic growth during the 2001-2002 school year. The staff presented Mrs. Coutts a cake in honor of her birthday. It was a relaxing day of team building.

The Kindergarten classes have been busy learning about fire safety this week.

All of the kindergarten classes went on a field trip to the Mocksville Fire Department Oct. 24. Mr. Lipscomb showed them the fire trucks and equipment while Mr. Carter talked with them about fire safety. They even got to see Mr. carter slide down the fire pole. Thank you to Mr. Carter and Mr. Lipscomb for taking time out of their busy schedule to show us the fire department.

Mr. Myers with Davie County EMS brought an ambulance out to the school for all of the kindergarten classes to see. He also talked with them about how to stay safe. Thank you to Mr. Myers, Mr. Daye and Mr. Walker for taking time out of their busy schedule to show us the ambulance.

Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Pruitt's class has been reading the book "Picking Apples and Pumpkins." Our parents donated apples, pears, caramels and a large pumpkin. We made caramel apples and apple sauce. We also carved a pumpkin and roasted the pumpkin seeds. We used measurement and graphing skills. We have been doing a wonderful job reading and have been very successful at passing our accelerated reader tests.

Mrs. Vogler would like to thank all parents of her students for coming in for parent conferences. The class had 100% participation in these conferences. The third grade class is currently working on writing skills. They have read the book "If You Were a Writer." To give their writing "pizzazz" and preciseness, they are learning and using a variety of adjectives and strong verbs. They are also preparing to perform a musical along with all other third graders at the Nov. 19 PTA program.

Mr. Strickland's fourth grade class is beginning the novel "Sadako and the Thousand Paper Cranes" by Eleanor Coerr. We spent several days last week researching topics related to our novel: Japan, Hiroshima, leukemia, atomic bomb and World War II. Each group worked very well together and enjoyed presenting their findings to the class. One group of students took the actual measurements of the atomic bomb "Little Boy" and drew a life-size picture of it. With this background knowledge, the story of Sadako should be more meaningful for every student.

Mrs. McKnight's fourth grade class is busy at work. We are currently reading "The Westing Game" as a class. It is about 16 people who gather for the reading of Samuel W. Westing's will. To their surprise, the will turns out to be a contest, challenging the heirs to find out who among them is Westing's murderer. This book is challenging, but very interesting.

We are getting ready to finish up our science unit on animals. We have learned a lot about adaptations and habitats. This has been a fun unit for the students. To end up our unit, we will be doing a stuffed buddies projects. The children will choose a stuffed animal that they have and do a presentation on that animal. They will have to research the animals adaptations and habitat.

Our October Student of the Month is Lyndsey Blalock and representing our class for Terrific Kids is Echo Burgdofer and Joel Shuler.

The new nine weeks began with a field trip to the Museum of Anthropology at Wake Forest University. Students learned about the Mayan culture, and participated in a scavenger hunt at the museum. We are also studying Native American culture in North America, and are reading about three great leaders who changed the course of our history. The class has started "A Wrinkle in Time," by Madeline L'Engle, and are researching some of the famous people mentioned in the novel. From Michaelangelo to Einstein, students are using online encyclopedias and technology to create posters of more than 15 famous people.

All children made creative clay whistles last week, with the help of the Sawtooth Center in Winston-Salem, to learn more about Appalachian art. Our Student of the Month for October was Cristi Stockner, and our Terrific Kids were Zeb Ramsbothan and Katie Taylor.

MES students have been busy in the Media Center. Kindergartners and first graders have been hearing fall stories and eating apples. They will act out the story "Big Pumpkin" just in time for Halloween. Second and third graders alive been studying authors and illustrators. Second graders have learned about Tomie DePaola while the third graders have been introduced to the unusual books of Chris Van Allsburg. Fourth and fifth graders have been working on their reference skills by using the encyclopedia and almanacs.

All second-fifth grade students have had the opportunity to shop at the Accelerated Reader store. Keep up the good work.

And a bit of exciting Technology news: The school recently purchased 34 new iMac computers for the lab and for teachers. A special thanks to our PTA for their support of our Technology and our AR program.

Central Davie

Developmental Day I Student of the Week, Oct. 14-18: Jessie White. We have been talking about the color orange and learned about things that are orange. We had fun painting stuffed paper bags to make into pumpkins. We are looking forward to going to the Brock Auditorium to watch a play Oct. 31. We will begin talking about Thanksgiving, Pilgrims, Native Americans and turkeys.

Developmental Day II Student of the Week: Will Parker. Last week, we worked on fall leaf projects. We made a fall wreath out of leaves. The fall festival was Oct. 25.

The children in Ms. Sue, Ms. Jo Jo and Ms. Amanda's pre-kindergarten class had lots of fun learning about the letter "G." They listened to the story of the Three Billy Goats Gruff and then acted it out. They made ghost masks with green and gold glitter. They put gumdrops on the letter "G." made ghost ornaments and ghost windsocks. They also made ghost toast and ate it for a snack. Our specials thanks to Mrs. Alice Barnette who helped our week go smoothly while Ms. Jo Jo and Ms. Amanda had to be out of our class.

Student of the Week is Tom Cowden. Tom does his best every day and he is a good friend.

Folk Entertainers To Be At The Brock On Nov.8

The Davie County Arts Council will continue its 2002 - 2003 Season, "Catch a Connection to the Arts," with Timmy Abell & Laura Boosinger in concert, on Friday, Nov. 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Brock Performing Arts Center, 622 N. Main St., Mocksville.

When you combine the finest in family entertainment along with true-to-the-tradition Southern Appalachian folk music, a boatload of musical instruments, and good, old-fashioned fun, you get an evening with Timmy Abell and Laura Boosinger.

Their performances include old-time favorites, as well as, songs for young folks and a collection of traditional folk instruments. Storytelling, poetry, audience participation, and humor round out the show.

Tickets are $8 for adults, $6 for students and senior citizens, and $5 for groups of 15 or more. A Senior Center "Dinner and A Show" for $15 senior citizens includes dinner at 6:30 p.m. downstairs at the senior center and the concert. RSVP for dinner by Friday, Nov. 1.

Contact the Arts Council Box Office at 751-3000 or e-mail: boxoffice@daviearts.org.

Hospice Chaplain Discusses The Life Affirming Ministry

United Way

On July 1, 1984, Hospice of Davie County began its service as a community-based, nonprofit organization to serve the residents of Davie County.

The purpose of Hospice is to minister, share concern and render aid to the terminally ill and their families.

Neal Carter, minister, First Presbyterian Church, Mocksville, has served as chaplain of Hospice ofDavie County for the past four years.

"As human beings, we are, by and large, social creatures," Carter said. "Being such, most of us do not wish to die alone in a sterile, impersonal surrounding cut off from family and friends. Nor do any of us wish to die in pain. Most would prefer, if possible, to spend our last days at home ... alert and free of pain ... among the people we love. Hospice of Davie County is dedicated to making this possible.

"Hospice is life affirming, designed to meet the special needs of they dying where death is not hastened nor postponed. Death is not viewed as a tragedy but rather as a natural ending of a person's life.

"With Hospice care, people who are terminally ill can remain at home in the comforting presence of family and friends, with pain and symptoms managed. The Hospice staff encourages the patient to live fully while honoring his or her decreased physical abilities.

"Being a member of a Hospice interdisciplinary team is rewarding when physical, emotional, and spiritual care is extended to the terminally ill and their families and the bereaved in order to bring aid and comfort. I believe that the staff, whether medical, ministerial, or administrative, is a mutually empowering team called to ministry.

"The essence of Hospice care is derived from the multifaceted and comprehensive approach of the Hospice interdisciplinary team, whose members look for solutions to patient's medical, psychosocial, and spiritual problems. The diversity of talent creates a blend that can sort out various problems to find the approach most suitable for the individual patient and family.

"We attempt in every manner to provide competent care for the patient and the family. This care would not be possible if it were not for the many dedicated Hospice volunteers of this community," Carter said.

An important aspect of this volunteer help is the local clergy. The local clergy is an integral component of the Hospice concept, he said. All members of a Hospice team attempt to meet the spiritual needs of patients and families as questions and fears arise when death becomes more imminent, but the patient's clergyperson is a resource to the staff, the terminally ill patient, and the patient's family who are grappling with the life and death issues.

"The local clergy represents faith and a link to God and eternity," Carter said. "With a pre-established relationship with the patient, a local clergyperson can explore areas sometimes unreachable by anyone else; furthermore, the local clergy can assist Hospice as involvement with the family continues into the bereavement period when spiritual care may be the most important ingredient in grief support.

"To all of the clergy of Davie Clergy - thank you for your much needed support."

Hospice ofDavie County is supported by United Way funding, community donations, memorial contributions, and bequests.

County Delays Action On Meadowood Expansion

Lee Barber and others were asked county commissioners to rezone 6.184 acres of land on Junction Road from Residential Agricultural to Residential R-20 to expand the Meadowood subdivision on the south side.

During the public hearing, the two landowners affected by the rezoning and building of a road on their land spoke in opposition. The owners said they had not received notification of the meeting and questioned actions taken since they had purchased their homes.

Both said they were told at the time of buying their homes that there was no plan to expand the subdivision. After sharing issues she was having with her property, Jennifer Solis said, "You need to check into it and make sure that higher standards are going to be met."

She went on to describe a "sink hole" in her yard. She had contacted the company several times to no avail and worried about the safety of her 3-year-old daughter in the yard after the road is added to land taken from her property.

"If we had known about the road, we never would have bought it."

"There are some valid concerns here," said Commissioner Ken White. He asked Mel Jones, one of the people seeking the rezoning, to investigate the issues.

"We have a lot of questions here tonight that we need to get some answers for," said Richard Poindexter. "I think it's only proper that we table this."

Town Planners Meet Oct. 30

There will be a called meeting of the Mocksville Planning Board Wednesday, Oct. 30 at 7 p.m. in the Mocksville Town hall to review of the proposed Milling Way Garden Villas development.

Arthritis Pain Mystery Solved

Horse Liniment is the secret!

OCALA, FL. -- An ingredient used to treat inflammation in thoroughbred racehorse legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx™ and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Scientists suggest that ARTH-Rx works by intercepting the pain messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain. Although the mechanism is not totally clear, pain is relieved in the affected area because the pain signal actually disappears.

ARTH-Rx is the only product on the market with Neurocaine and is available in a convenient, pleasant scented roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, ARTH-Rx is available in pharmacies, nutrition stores, and even some feed stores. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446.

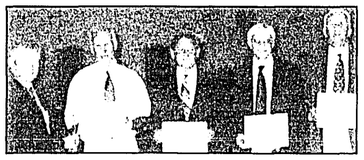
Floral Designer To Speak Nov. 19

Reggie Walser, noted area floral designer, and owner of Reggie's Flower Shoppe in Welcome, will present a program demonstrating his extraordinary arrangements and innovative approach to floral design on Nov. 19 at Bermuda Run.

Sponsored by the Advance Garden Club, their Winter Gala is scheduled to start at 11:15 a.m. Luncheon will be served at noon, followed by Walser's demonstration. The price for the luncheon and the presentation is $22.50 per person, and includes one raffle ticket for an arrangement by Walser, valued at $75. Additional raffle tickets will be available at the door.

A silent auction for all the seasonal centerpieces and holiday items designed by the Garden Club members will begin at 11:15 and will end prior to Walser's demonstration. All profits will be used to provide scholarships to a student or students from Davie County choosing to enter the field of horticulture or agriculture in college. The Winter Gala tickets may be purchased from Denise Brown 998-8439 or Beth Holcombe 998-6008.



Masonic Awards

Hi...my name is Joseph Karl Osborne, but you can call me "Joey."

I turned four years old on August 19, but Mommy is just now getting my picture put in the paper...I told her she was late!

I had a fun family party at my Mom-a-rie's house, (my grandma, Marie Jones), and my Aunt Lela and Uncle John Butero were there. Also my sister Amanda, and of course Mommy and Daddy (Karl and Joanne Osborne) too! Grandpa Wilford couldn't be there, but I still got lots of presents with the money he sent me!

Speaking of presents...it looked like Christmas! Thank you to all my family for lots and lots of them, and also to my neighbors, Barry and Marijka Bass, and Cathy Bassiouni, and members of my church family at Calvary Baptist Church who gave me gifts, and sent cards. It all made me very happy!

There was lots of food at my party, and I had my favorite Winnie-the-Pooh, Piglet, and Tigger on my cake. Mommy complained about something called calories, getting fatter, and something about birthdays making a person old and gray, but I think she must be wrong because my hair is still black.

Thank you again for presents and cards, and I'll be back in the paper next year when I turn five in August...I only hope I won't have to wait until October again!

Betty & Howard Edwards

Edwards Siding & Windows

Johnny Walker could not believe it. After eight years of staining, sealing, sanding and painting, his home looked new with almost no maintenance at all.

That's because he called Betty and Harold Edwards, of Edwards Siding and Windows.

"The heat, the sun, the weather continually wore down my deck and front porch," said Walker of Winston-Salem. "You could wash; you could paint; but you couldn't keep it white," he said. Walker estimated that he was staining and painting at least twice a year, until he finally contacted Edwards Siding and Windows.

The experienced professionals at Edwards Siding covered Walker's rear deck with white vinyl, and replaced all of the wooden railing with durable vinyl railings. The anti-slip vinyl flooring which covered the wooden deck floor is also treated to prevent chipping; and can be hosed off for simple cleaning.

"They are very good to work with," said Johnny Walker of Betty and Harold Edwards' company. The Edwards worked with the Walkers to design a customized fit for their existing home, with just the right style and appearance that they desired. Walker and his wife were so elated with the clean, virtually maintenance-free decking that they decided to do their front porch and walkway as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Tran of Winston-Salem also called Edwards Siding and Windows, to replace the railing around their home, and the trim for their windows.

"I was very pleased," said Tom Tran of the work which Edwards Siding did for his home. So pleased that he called his father, in order to get the same work done on his father's home.

"They are good at what they do," he said.

Betty and Harold Edwards have owned and operated Edwards Siding and Windows since 1978. They are licensed and insured, beginning their business when aluminum siding was in vogue. With the advent of vinyl siding and windows, the Edwards have seen their volume of business explode.

"We stay kind of busy," said Betty Edwards of the sunrooms, screened in porches, vinyl decking and vinyl replacement windows which their company installs. Edwards Siding does both residential and commercial work. They have done jobs for a number of construction companies, including John S. Clark and McNair Construction.

Edwards Siding has installed vinyl siding and windows for churches, restaurants, motels, apartment buildings; and has been contracted with the United States Housing and Urban Development. With both residential and commercial customers, Edwards Siding uses high grade materials, such as Norandex Reynolds, to give their customers the longest life and best look of their products. They also offer a labor warranty. Call (336) 764-0885 for more information.

Edwards Siding gives FREE ESTIMATES on customized decking, railings, sunroom or screened-in porch additions, vinyl siding, and all work to be performed. They will sit down with each client to create that beautiful new sunroom or renovate an existing deck. In all that they do, Edwards Siding strives to please their customers with personal service and the most professional job possible.

"Most of our work is done through referrals," said Betty Edwards. "We have built our reputation through others' recommendations."

Why wait to ease the burden of daily living? Call (336) 764-0885 or the Edwards' mobile number: 978-2299, for a no-obligation, free estimate on how to transform your home or business today.

Roof-Brite Can Fix Unsightly, Stained Roofs

American Roof-Brite has the answer for those unsightly, if not damaging stains that appear on shingle roofs. Professional roof cleaner and American Roof-Brite owner Don Sunday is the expert behind the business. With over 30 years of roof-cleaning experience, American Roof-Brite has the knowledge and technical skill to kill roof fungus spores, the usual cause of the black or discoloring stains on asphalt and fiberglass shingles.

Don bought his American Roof-Brite dealership over four years ago, alter researching the company and its product. What he likes to impress upon his customers is the method he uses to clean roofs.

The first step is to apply an environmentally safe, biodegradable cleaning compound to the roof area. This application sits on the roof for several minutes. The formula eats away at the cause of the roof stains, fungus. This is one of the steps that separates American Roof-Brite from other rool cleaners, who just spray the roof with a high-pressure wash.

The next step for Don is a low-pressure/high volume wash. Don is passionate to let his clients know that this low-pressure wash is an important difference in roof cleaning technique. Most people assume that what a roof needs is a high-pressure wash. This, Don says, could not be farther from the truth. In fact, a high-pressure wash usually causes damage to a rool, tearing up shingles from the roof, which can result in interior water damage. Not good. The low-pressure/high volume method used by American Roof-Brite has been trusted by homeowners for over 30 years.

The third, and final step that Don incorporates, is the application of a stainblocker, or sealer. This layer of protection is guaranteed to prevent fungus growth for three years.

Rool stains are not just ugly, but the fungus that causes them can damage your home. Merely washing your rool is not enough. The three-step process used by Don Sunday and American Roof-Brite is an environmentally safe, professionally proven method for killing rool fungus, and preventing it.

American Roof-Brite is owned by Don Sunday. You can reach Don at (336)-785-2030.

REPUBLICANS AND INDEPENDENTS FOR BOB ROSE

There Are 29 Million Reasons To Vote for Bob Rose on November 5th. Someone needs to take responsibility for the uncontrolled growth in Davie County that has caused the need to spend $29 million for school improvements. The two incumbent Commissioners running for re-election have permitted development after development to proceed without any thought about adequate classroom space for the children who live in the developments. No future development should be permitted unless the development can pay for the infrastructure required by its residents-such as schools, roads, sewers, and environmental protection--or it can be established that the development will generate sufficient tax or other revenue to pay for the infrastructure.

Bob Rose was a member of the School Task Force and he knows that when 11 percent of the school capital budget is allocated for mobile classrooms that all of our children will be deprived of significant funding necessary for their education. The issue is "unconditional growth" and the people responsible need to be held accountable. Two of the longest sitting Commission members are running for re-election. No commissioner should be re-elected who does not have a consistent record of opposing uncontrolled growth. Uncontrolled growth is to our schools, taxes, and way of life as kudzu is to our land.

Bob Rose deserves your support. Bob was Controller of Wake Forest University School of Medicine for fifteen years. Ha has the leadership and financial skills necessary to make a difference. A vote for Bob Rose is a vote for planning, financial responsibility and the well being of Davie County taxpayers and their children.

VOTE FOR BOB ROSE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

19 From Davie Complete DCCC Adult Programs

A total of 19 Davie adults completed the Adult High School Diploma (AHS) and the General Educational Development (GED) programs at Davidson County Community College during the 2002 Summer Session.

The AHS program is designed for adults who did not complete their high school education through the public schools. The program provides students with the means to earn their Adult High School diploma by completing course work in English, math, science, and history.

The GED program is a means for adults to obtain a high school diploma. Individuals take the GED exams to demonstrate high school level competencies in English, social science, reading, and math.

The following students completed the two DCCC programs:

AHS Graduates

Advance: James W. Baxter, John D. Fattaleh, David B. Groce, Kevin J. Mick, Tammie S. Minor;

Mocksville: Scott Richard Baston, Eddie Burch, Joseph A. Ferrell, Christopher M. Lewis, Stephine V. Phipps

GED Graduates

Amanda Ann Willard of Advance, Servando Maya of Cooleemee, and Chris W. Blalock, Morgan Wesley Harris, Sandy Ann Russell, Nathan E. Short, Angela Stevenson, William B. Whaley and John R. Wood, all of Mocksville.
