WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 4, 1920.

There is no reason why a divorced man should not run for President, but there may be reasons why he should not be elected to that high office.

It costs the average farmer about $40 to produce an acre of wheat. If the yield is good he can sell his wheat at a profit, but suppose he only produces ten to twelve bushels per acre.

The towns and cities in North Carolina that made the largest gain in population during the past ten years was the towns that had building and loan associations. There is no other agency that will build up a town faster than a good, live building and loan.

Mocksville needs and should have many things, but one of our greatest needs is a small ice plant. We trust that the progressive citizens of the town will get together and organize a company before next spring and build a small factory. Those who have tried so hard this year to keep a little ice on hand can appreciate the need of an ice factory. It would be a paying proposition.

At least two hundred Davie farmers with their wives and daughters, should visit the Iredell Test Farm tomorrow, August 5th. All those who mean to go should assemble in Mocksville not later than 7:30 in the morning. Bring well filled dinner baskets with you. County Agent Reece tells us the trip and what you can see and learn will be well worth the time and gasoline used. If you have a car and a small family, take some of your neighbors who have no way to go.

Wonder what it cost the town to build the fill on Depot street last fall; and wonder what it would cost to rebuild the same fill this fall? What was the idea in grading this street last year and then letting it wash away before completing same? Do the town fathers believe in wasting the taxpayers' money, or is it negligence, careless, or downright foolishness on their part? The people would like to know. Many of them are swearing that they will never again vote for men who will let their money be washed away. Suppose the town board was composed of Republicans? Wouldn't they be impeached? Be fair, gentlemen. The people want a square deal, and they are going to get it. Depot street is a disgrace to a civilized community.

Worldliness In The Church.

We are constantly hearing, on every hand, such expressions, "The church is dead, the Sunday School is asleep, let's have some amusement to wake us up and to bring the young people into the church. These various amusements are good things, for I've been to them and know that we have a good time etc." Oh! man or woman who make such positive statements, be sure you study to prove these things, whether they be of God, or whether they be of the devil before you pour them into the minds and hearts of those whom we vain would lead aright.

Now, I know that I am everlasting night, when I see that the church needs no power to do her work save that of the Holy Spirit and the more we resort to other and all sorts of things to bring people to and interest them in church work, the less spiritual power that church has. Where in the Bible do we find that the miraculous power of the church, according to divine plan, was even to be withdrawn. It is not to be found. We do find that such power existed for some time after the apostolic age, but as worldliness crept in the Holy Spirit withdrew and just here, the devil, so subtle in his dealings, makes us believe that such things are of God and stirs up our zeal mightily, but with the result that our efforts are of naught—our works die, not being of God.

Jesus says these things goeth not out but by prayer and fasting. Why! oh why! do we neglect the plain teaching of the Bible: which we profess to follow and substitute ways and means of our own!

We cannot serve God and mammon, nor does God want mammon to draw people to the church but Jesus says "If I be lifted up I will draw all men unto me." Again he says "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." Note, he says, not things of the world, but whatsoever things I have commanded you. This a Christian finds joy not in worldly amusements but in sacrifice and service for the Lord, which is more real and abiding than any joy the world can afford. Why then do we keep right on dragging the causes so dear to our Master right in the dust of the world giving the devil one grand and glorious picnic, thwarting God's plans and prolonging the age of sorrow while there are those around the throne who cry out day and night, "How long, how long will the Bridegroom delay his coming!" and the Holy Spirit remains to quicken, guide and help. Search the Scripture, oh worldly Christian, and see if these things be not so.

A Big Wheat Yield.

Arthur Miller, a colored farmer of R. 1., is one of the champion wheat growers of Davie county. On 17 acres of land he produced 722 bushels of wheat, which is little over 42 bushels to the acre. If anyone can beat this let's hear about it.

Smith-Hudson.

Farmington July 28.—Of interest to a wide circle of friends throughout the State was the surprise wedding of Miss Maud Smith and Mr. Laurence Hudson this morning at Bethlehem Methodist church.

The impressive ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Vestal in the presence of only a few friends.

Miss Vada Johnson at the organ played softly Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus and Mendelssohn's wedding march as a recessional.

The bride wore a handsome grey costume with accessories to match.

Miss Smith has a charming personality. She is the oldest daughter of Mrs. Cornelia Smith of Farmington.

Mr. Hudson is a prominent business man of Miami, Florida.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hudson left on train No 28 for a bridal trip which will include points South.

After August 10th they will be at home to their many friends at "Ft. Lonesome" Miami, Florida.

Not Over Enthusiastic.

The esteemed Raleigh News and Observer is manifestly not enthusiastic as yet over the nomination of Cox and Roosevelt. In a recent editorial discussion of the two Democratic candidates it sets forth reasons why it thinks they will be elected but expresses no joy over the prospect and indulges in no fulsome praise of their virtues. They were the choice according to the "Oh Reliable" of the German and Irish elements in Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati and they are expected to put their candidate across the line.

Mr. Bryan a few weeks ago said that Cox had been identified with the liquor forces all of his life and that he was more objectionable as a candidate than Governor Edwards himself. This is probably the opinion of leading prohibitionists everywhere and the News and Observer is certainly in that class.

The truth is that there is a big difference between Northern and Southern Democrats. This is true not only of the liquor question but of other questions as well. We cheerfully admit that we think the Southern Democrat with all his faults is better than his Northern brother. The unspeakable corruption often practiced by the Democracy of New York, Chicago and other big cities does not exist in the South. Down here they may steal a few votes occasionally but they do not levy tribute on brothels and gambling houses.—Beaufort News.

Listen At Henry.

Henry Ford, in the of his paper July 17th has the following to say of the national Democratic convention held in San Francisco:

"The hand of the defunct, disgraceful whisky business was heavy upon men who controlled that convention. Paid agents, who were both public officials and private retainers, were in evidence everywhere. There was no question, not even the League of Nations, which received the slavish attention which hoarse received. The whole convention resembled more a "hang over" from the saloon regime than a gathering of American citizens selected to formulate policies for the solution of the problems which harass the nation and the world."

And this is the same John Henry whom Wilson elected to the United States Senate over Newberry.

That Revaluation Act.

One house we know of in a small city was assessed at $1,200 last year and State and county tax was less than $10. Now it is assessed at $5,500 and the rent remains the same, and tax at same rate next year will be $210. What are you going to do about it, brethren. Bickett says if you don't believe in this assessment, "you are a liar and the truth is not in you." By the eternal and eternal, too, we know what you ought to do. Just vote and put Bickett and his dynasty out. You can't put them to work, if what Judge Clark intimates is so Bickett will feather his nest right.—Garton Times.

Candidates And Papers.

Papers are expected to defend and boost the candidates for nothing. The candidates ought subscribe for the paper at least. And those that are taking it ought to be paid up and a year in advance. What if there were no papers?—Ex.

Compens threatens to deliver the labor vote to the democratic party. Compens has gotten to be an old story. He always did deliver as much of the organized labor vote to the democrats as he could control, so he is not scaring anybody.—Kingsbury County (S. D.) Independent.

That Special Session of The Legislature.

What will the special session of the Legislature do with the farmers demands unanimously adopted at the annual meeting last December in Greensboro? Will they give us school books and school reform, the Australian ballot, woman suffrage, and last and greatest will they repeal the infernal Bickett's Revaluation Act?

Well, for one we say if they do not give us each and every one of those things without any jokers, or strings tied to them we will vote in a set of men who will.

Judge Clark says if the people will give the command we will be obeyed. It is true the Greensboro News said last winter we were a set of fools (in so many words) and did not belong to the best class, etc. Yet we think we will have sense enough to vote without advice of any politicians or newspapers, especially one that claims to be independent, and yet is independent (or dependant) all for the Bickett machine. It said, "Bickett has the facts, the eloquence" and the newspapers would carry it to every door, etc. Well, watch all such newspapers from now on.—Hickory Mercury.

I help to make this evening hour I record the great and small, the varied acts of the days and weeks that go to make up life.

I am for and of the home; I follow those who leave humble beginnings; whether they go to greatness or to the gutter, I take to them the thrill of old, with wholesome messages.

I speak the language of the common man; my words are fitted to his understanding. My congregation is larger than that of any church in my town; my readers are more than those in school. Young and old alike find in me stimulation, instruction, entertainment, inspiration, solace, comfort. I am the chronicler of birth, and love and death—the three great facts of men's existence.

Building permits to the amount of $881,000 have been issued in Durham this year; but if building prices in Durham are on a par with prices here, after all that means a couple of houses and a dog kennel, says the Greensboro News.

The country recognizes in Mr. Wilson the nearest approach to a monarch it has ever had. He has utilized to an inordinate extent power granted his office, and has usurped power which do not belong to it.—Billings (Mont.) Gazette.

This From The Charlotte Observer.

Adverting to "Judge Pell's" in-temperate language directed at Mr. J. J. Parker, the Republican nominee for Governor. The Democratic Monroe Journal says it "will receive scant applause in Monroe, where he is known to be a man of high character and integrity. He may have been in error in his statements relative to the railroad assessment under the revaluation act—we rather think he is—but he is using Democratic authority for the basis of his allegation. Judge Pell should have struck at the root of this charge by questioning the statement of Mr. Bailey, who was the authority for the charge made by Mr. Parker, when it was first published, and not have waited until the Monroe man had an opportunity to give it wide publicity in his speeches. The Democratic party must wake up to realization that neither Tom Settle nor Marion Butler is heading the Republican ticket this year. There has been a rejuvenation of the G. O. P. in this State. The first act of its youthful nominee was to read the negro out of the party, and he has inaugurated a campaign of such a high order that more than the old cry of "negro domination" is needed to round up the usual Democratic majority in this State.

The Pace That Kills.

The accident is about the commonest item in the newspapers. The machines are smashing more people than all other means of locomotion combined, including trains, airships, and mules. It is no doubt finely exhilarating to race through the country at 80 miles per hour, to jump railroads crossings without stopping, loading or listening, to round sharp curves on two wheels, and to pay no attention to sand banks and greasy places in the road. The rush of the sweet, cool air through one's hair the admiring gaze of awe struck maidens as you fly, and the reaching of your destination on unheard of time—make the blood tingle, and the nerves jingle, and the cheeks ruddy and girls wonder. But the price is high. It is too often scrapped machinery, broken backs and death. You can't drive a mule fast enough to make him fall down and kill himself. The average chauffeur hasn't as much sense as a mule.—Danbury Reporter

Our Coffee Bill.

In the old and sinful days the prohibition orator's told us how many million dollars were spent for strong drinks and how many useful and worth while things the same millions would buy if no strong drinks was made and sold. Now that the traffic in alcohol is legally debarred some body with an itch for figuring has discovered that the people of the United States are paying over a million dollars a day for coffee. Trade authorities say we are not only importing 42 per cent more coffee than last year but are paying nearly double last year's price the average improve price having increased 80 per cent. The import value of coffee for the fiscal year is over $3000,000, 000 and the added of freight, roasting and distribution makes the average for the year more than a million dollars a day, against about one-third that sum two years ago. The increase consumption of coffee is believed to be partially the result of the prohibition of the liquor traffic.

Coffee is harmless, if not beneficial for most people and there is no attempt to put it in the whiskey class in its effect on the physical or mental powers. But it is a luxury, not a necessity. One can get on without it and in many cases is better off without it just as one can do without tobacco and in many cases is helped by omitting the use of the weed. Is it not order for the statistician to view with alarm the million dollars a day wasted on a useless if not harmful drink? Think how much the race could be benefited if that million a day were expended for religious and social service work, for instance. Then if we would save the millions and millions we spend for tobacco.—But that would interfere with business here in North Carolina. Better save the coffee money first. We don't grow coffee in this country.—Statesville Landmark.

As President, Senator Harding will not make it a prerequisite of working with him that one must have a mind "that runs with my own."—New York Evening Mail.

We believe there is one Democratic preacher in North Carolina who will refuse to vote for Cox, even though he was endorsed for president by the whole Democratic party with the exception of Billy Bryan.

Any of our friends engaged in the moonshine business, who wish to contribute a jug to our election drunk should get busy these pretty moonlight nights. Bring it to us. Your fee will be paid and no questions asked.—Bill Montgomery.

Governor Cox said in an address yesterday it will be his policy "to look to the sunrise rather than the sunset." That is the direction in which are the damp voters whose insistence first and last was that he be nominated—looking toward the sunrise.—Exchange.

Democratic campaign propaganda printed and circulated at public expense, and telling the people what a wonderful record the Wilson administration has made, already has made its appearance. No administration in the country's history has used so much of the public funds to advertise itself, as has the Wilson administration.

We heard a Democrat say the other day it would be a good idea if this country would go Republican, that he was looking for a picnic; and that he didn't want the Democrats to be in power when it arrived. The Record is of the opinion that if more folks don't go to producing more and consuming less there is going to be a picnic regardless of what party is in power.

A Fine Farmer.

Mr. H. C. Koontz, manager of the Erwin cotton mill farm near Cooleemee, is one of Davie county's best farmers. Since Mr. Koontz took charge as manager, the Morris farm has improved rapidly, until it is now one of the most productive farms in this section of the country. Mr. Koontz has about fifty acres in corn, at the Morris farm which at this time promises an abundant yield. Of this it will require the products of some fifteen acres to fill his silo. He has 15 acres in alfalfa, which has been mown twice and will be mown twice more yielding many loads—tons of the finest hay.

He has sixty acres in clover to be turned, preparatory for wheat sowing and fifty acres which will be allowed to stand over for next year. Mr. Koontz informs the Journal representative that he will sow 90 in wheat the coming fall. The wheat yielded unusually well this year. At the Morris place, they threshed 2,515 bushels, averaging 41 bushels per acre. This wheat is too fine to turn into flour, as it should be marketed for seed wheat, which will be done. The total acreage raised on all the company's farms Mr. Koontz informs us, was 7,435 bushels. There were 35 head of beef cattle on the farm, and when silo-fed through the winter, they usually average about 2,000 to the head.

They raise hogs extensively, having about 75 head of pigs at this time; and most of them will be fattened on the farm, if there is a large yield of corn this year.—Cooleemee Journal.

Two Democratic leaders in the White House at once is not conducive to harmony.

Republican County Convention.

Notice is hereby given that a Convention of the Republican party of Davie County will be held at the Court House in the town of Mocksville, N. C. at 1 o'clock p. m. Monday the 6th day of September, 1920, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the legislative, sheriff, register of deeds, county treasurer and Board of Commissioners of Davie County, and to transact any and all business that may properly come before said Convention.

The Primaries to select delegates for said Convention will be held at the various voting precincts in the several townships on Saturday the 4th day of September, 1920, between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock p. m.

By order of the Executive Committee. This Aug. 2nd, 1920.

This League Craze.

We fools are not dead yet. We are in all parties, social and business circles and even in all churches. Some say we are not moral if we do not join the league. God deals with the world as a nation, and communities as families. Nations having different notions and interests cannot form a league without interfering with local self government, the foundation principle of democracy. This government and country is a fulfillment of prophecy to be one country without a king, a church without a pope. The more we mess with the autocracy and popery of Europe, the more run counter to God's will. The church's business is to serve the world morally but even it can't do by forming a league with it. We can't establish peace by forming a league with war. We can't establish democracy by forming a league with autocracy.—Hickory Mercury.

A Georgia Democrat For Harding.

"American politics is the greatest game on earth," said Maj. Edwin Glass, a veteran of Lee's army, at the Ebbitt. "Every Presidential election sees different platforms put up by the contending parties, and they are always worthy of study. I am from Georgia and have always voted a straight Democratic ticket but this year I am going to vote for Harding because I think he is the man. Harding, in my opinion, is most nearly the type of man to meet the present crisis in the United States and his running mate Collidge, I consider a splendid choice for the Vice Presidency."—Washington Post.

What's done as much as anything else to fill up the movie houses

LOOK at the crowds that step out of their cars in front of the movies every summer evening.

The movie managers would be renting half of their theatres for store space, if it weren't for the automobile.

It is typical of Americans that they took to the automobile as a matter of course—just as they have to the movies and to every other great invention of the last half century.

And the same thing has happened everytime. Taking things as they come is a fine way to foster waste and extravagance.

As regards tires, the comeback is about due. People are pretty near through paying for something that isn't there when they look for it.

What a man pays for in a tire is quality—not a limited number of miles or the privilege of getting a rebate in case the miles don't come up to the limit.

U. S. Tires are guaranteed as to quality—with no limitation of mileage.

And that holds just as good for the small car tire as for the biggest U. S. Tire we've got. There's only one standard of quality with U. S.—and the size of the car has nothing whatever to do with it.

We represent U. S. Tires in this town. You'll find it worth while to talk to us before you buy any more tires.

About Kingdom Of Cotton.

Addressing the North Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' Association in Asheville Mr. Theodore H. Price, of New York, said in part.

We are justified in assuming that Adam was not worried about the high cost of living until he had eaten that famous apple and he and Eve began to think about clothes. From that time to this, the art and business of making textiles has grown until it is today the most important industry in the world.

It is prehistoric, and the story of its growth is literally woven into the history of our civilization. Very early in its development it became specialized. The duty of spinning was assigned to the unmarried women or "spinners," because it did not require the attention or concentration that was necessary in the "wiefen" or wives who did the weaving. This was, however, before the days of the automatic loom.

Yes, the textile industry is a very ancient and honorable one. In its beginnings it antedates civilization and to its present development it generates a trade that employs the physical and mental energy of an amazingly large number of people.

But it was not until cotton was commercialized through the invention of the cotton gin and the spinning frame that the textile industry came to occupy the place that it does today, and although it is hardly more than one hundred years since cotton became available in quantity we now take it for granted that a constantly increasing supply is assured and are enlarging our manufacturing capacity and our use of cotton goods accordingly.

While the history of civilization sustains the belief that whenever there is an overwhelming need a means to meet it is found, it is also true that between the acuteness of the need and its satisfaction there is often an aching and distressful hiatus against which society might have protected itself if it had been more forehanded. It is not such forehandedness in the matter of cotton supply sufficient to keep their spindles going and meet the world's requirements that I would plead with the cotton manufacturers today.

Cotton—gun cotton made from the hitherto despised linters—may be said to have won the war. The automobile industry is dependent on cotton for the fabric in its tires and the "fabrikoid" with which its cars are upholstered and its tops are made.

The tobacco crops needs millions of yards of cotton cloth to protect it and our hospitals would be crippled without absorbent cotton bandages. Most of our rubber hose is made of cotton and there is a suspicion that the same thing is true respect of our woolen goods. Flannels have been made of cotton ever since the "Revolution" at Greensboro became successful, and those who have realized as they heard the "Cannon booming" there that cotton towels have now entirely displaced those that were formerly supported to have been made of linen. Lard and olive oil are made of cotton oil. The cotton seed are used for fertilizer and for bread and even the paper money that we are at present spending so lavishly is made of cotton mixed with silk.

I will not go into figures, but in the United States alone we now consume about 7,000,000 bales, or 3,500,000,000 pounds of cotton annually, which is at the rate of 35 pounds apiece for each man, woman and child in the country. The world's population is supposed to number about 1,700,000,000 persons. If they all consume as much cotton as we do in America, 112 million bales of 500 pounds each would be required to supply them, whereas less than 20 million bales are now grown, and the production appears to be decreasing rather than increasing.

It is this tendency toward a decrease in cotton production to which I would specially direct your attention, for it imperils the enormous investment that the cotton manufacturing industry represents and unless it is reversed, must ultimately lift prices for goods to a good point that will reduce the demand below the output upon which the prosperity of the mills is conditioned.

It is all very well to say that the law of supply and demand will correct the situation. It does not seem to do so. Sixteen years ago the United States produced more cotton than it will in the season upon which we are now entering, and in the interval the price of cotton has risen from less than ten to more than 40 cents a pound. Until within the last decade a price of over twelve cents a pound seemed to work an increase in production but latterly this has not been the fact.

Various explanations are offered for what seems to be a case of arrested development. I cannot bring myself to believe that there is no profit in growing cotton at forty cent a pound, or that other crops pay so much better than they are grown in preference. The agricultural department recently published a very exhaustive study of the cost of cotton production during the season of 1918, which showed that it ranged from 8 cents to $1.07 per lb. and averaged 13 cents. No, the trouble seems to be social rather than economic.

Why should not a group of cotton spinners get together and organize a cotton plantation just as you organize a mill, with a plantation village instead of a mill village in which the farm labors and their families should be provided with the comforts and amusements that other city dwellers enjoy, and from which the workers could be taken out each morning in automobile vans to the field, where they would be expected to work intensively, but no longer than your factory hands work? For overtime when it was necessary they should be paid at the same rate that their co-laborers in the city receive.

Robt. Kiser Writes.

A letter received from Mr. Robert Kiser at Vass, Moore county, says he has the finest crop in Moore county, and the finest crop he ever saw. Mr. Kiser has 40 acres in tobacco, and he says it is all good. Mr. Kiser wants a hand and says he will pay $100.00 per month till his crop is finished. We are sorry we can't help him. Hands here want $5.00 per day and board, and you furnish the cigarettes and pop.—Danbury Reporter.

Crowding Small Farmers.

The lure of the city and the hope of higher wages under more desirable working conditions is not the only reason for young men leaving the farms. Big farmers reaching out and getting more land within their grasp have put more than one family off the farm. The number of our farms is decreasing and the size increasing. The large farmer is growing larger and the small farmer is quitting because he is finding it harder and harder to compete with a more wholesome way of tilling the soil. This is not wholly a desirable state of affairs but it is a fact, nevertheless, and we must admit it and face the problem as it is. The small farm, well tilled, has ever been held up as the ideal today as ever, but we are drifting away from the conditions that enable the small farmer to live and improve his small farm to live and improve his small home in competition with the farmer who reduces production by cutting a wide swath.—Ex.

Democrats Acknowledge Mistake.

In his statement regarding the appointment of a secretary of agriculture, Senator Harding said he was gratified to know of the "acknowledgement of at least one mistake of the Democratic administration."

"I note," the statement said, "that the Democratic candidate announces as one of the first reforms he has in mind, to appoint a 'real' dirt farmer as secretary of agriculture. That is a reform the Republican party does not need to adopt. For 16 years, under Republican administration, we had a real farmer from a real farm, as secretary of agriculture—Uncle Jim Wilson of Iowa, who made the department the greatest of its sort in the world. He ran it for the farmers, made it an instrument to fight for the farmers and to serve them in a thousand ways."

"When the Democrats came into power they brought a university president as secretary of agriculture and after him a publisher. The Democratic party certainly needs to be reformed in this regard. The Republican party certainly does not. As in the past, the Republican party will go on developing the department for the service of real farmers and real farmers. 'The truth is that if the great department of agriculture that Jim Wilson built up under McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft, had been maintained and carried forward under the old Republican ideals of practical usefulness half our problems of high cost of living would have been solved for us in advance. 'It gratifies to see this early recognition of at least one mistake of the Democratic administration, and purpose to correct it by returning to Republican methods. A lot of others will be found that can best be corrected in the same way and when the country comes to pass on the program it will decide to apply the Republican method of correction directly—thru a Republican administration.' Another caller today was Senator Cummings of Iowa, chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee who discussed the transportation situation. In a statement later the Iowa senator praised the Republican candidate, who he declared "is as progressive as any man in the country, bar none."

Mr. Wilson's ambition to be the last of the Democratic presidents seems to be in a fair way of fulfillment.—St. Louis (Mo.) Times.

The Masonic Picnic.

Thursday was a big day for Mocksville, Davie county and the surrounding country. The forty-second annual Maconic picnic was held at Clement Grove, and at least ten thousand people were here to help participate in this great homecoming. The features of the day was the annual address by Hon. Gilbert T. Stephenson, of Winston-Salem, the concert by the class from the Oxford Ophanage, and the old-fashioned country dinner which was spread on long tables which groaned beneath the weight of the good things. People traveled more than a thousand miles to partake of these good things. The Cooleemee band dispensed sweet music for the exercises. The address by Judge Stephenson was one of the best ever heard on a similar occasion, and has been highly complimented. The behavior during the day could not have been better, as not a single arrest was made. Only two or three of the picnickers seemed to have been under the influence of liquor, and nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the day. People were here from all the surrounding counties and many different States were represented. The day was a success in every way. The proceeds, not including the excursion from Winston-Salem, amounted to about $2,000.

Davie Farmers To Visit Iredell.

The Davie county farmers will go to the Iredell Test Farm, near Statesville, on Friday, Aug. 20th. This picnic was to have been held on Thursday, Aug. 5th but was rained out. All farmers with their wives and children are urged to meet in Mocksville at 7:30 Friday morning and go on this outing. Bring well-filled baskets. The trip will be worth much to all those who attend.

Farmington News.

The Baptist revival meeting at Farmington church closed Sunday, Aug. 8th. Rev. Bradshaw, of Hickory assisted Rev. Hall. His very able preaching was helpful and far reaching in its influence. Thirteen united with the church and were baptized. The meetings were largely attended throughout the entire week. The people expressed their appreciation of Rev. Bradshaw not only by their loyalty to the meeting but added a generous offering at the close. The Methodist people began their revival Sunday, Rev. Vestal will be assisted by Rev. Snow of Mt. Airy. A large congregation attended Sunday. Rev. Snow is a very interesting and convincing speaker. He helped Rev. Vestal last year in a very successful meeting at Bethlehem so comes with his reputation already established. All are planning for a helpful meeting. The V. I. S. lawn party was not given on the school grounds last Saturday night as planned on account of rain but the young folks gathered at the old Post office building and sold cream. Played games and enjoyed themselves right royally. The lawn party given by the young married ladies class was quite a success. Proceeds will be used for new improvements being added to the F. C. church. Mr. and Mrs. James, of Winston, visited the week end with Mrs. James' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker. Mr. L. C. Bowden and family, Mr. Oscar Allen and family were entertained to Sunday dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Kennen. Mrs. J. W. Vestal wife of Rev. Vestal is quite sick at this writing. Miss Erna Sheek is visiting friends and relatives in Farmington this week. A Delco Electric light plant was installed here in the M. E. church this past week by Sanford Co. of Mocksville. Miss Margaret Brown, of Norfolk Va., is spending her vacation with home folks this week. Mr. Early Smith of Winston spent Sunday at home. Mr. Allie Long of Cooleemee, visited his parents the long end.

A TRIP TO DAVIE COUNTY.

An Outline of What We Saw, Heard And Enjoyed.

At 11:30, July 28, we boarded No. 22 for Mocksville. The train was crowded. Despite the automobiles constantly running, there never was more traveling on trains than now. The cause, what it means, and what will be the result, no one knows.

MOCKSVILLE REACHED.

We reached Mocksville at 1:52. There was not a big crowd lounging around that depot. Of course, the two boys were there to meet grandpa. The first man we met was D. V. Davis, a cousin-in-law, and an ex-Confederate soldier. But he is the same matter-of-fact "Dau" we were glad to see him again.

Mr. Will Clement, one of Davie's farmers, was there. Not in an automobile, but in a buggy. In a good old spirit of his father, he kindly asked us to get in and ride uptown. The ride and his conversation reminded us so much of his father and of the good old way we used to travel together in his day.

AT DAUGHTER'S.

Of course, we found daughter, Mrs. C. F. Stroud, waiting and watching for us. Though she thought we had been to dinner, yet one of the first things that appeared was milk and apple pie. Milk was the first thing that was given us in this life, and we don't care if it is the last. And apple pie is better than political pie, because the hands that prepare it are cleaner, and it fits one for service, and not to be served.

THE SMALLEST WOMAN.

That evening, with daughter, we visited the smallest woman in the world. She was visiting in Mocksville, the home of her birth. We have known her since we were children together. She knew us, and was the same talkative and clever little piece of humanity. She promised to come and spend a week with us some time. Her maiden name was Mariah Nail. She married one of the smallest men in the world, Maj. John Mertz. For years they traveled with a show. They now live in Salisbury. She is 68 years old and is not one bit grey. And though a low, fat, chunky little woman, yet she only weighs 48 pounds. She never did weigh over 55 pounds. It was a treat to see Mariah again.

A GOOD PRAYER MEETING.

At night, we attended the prayer meeting at the Baptist church. They have one of the prettiest little church buildings in the State. Rev. Peary conducted the service for the pastor. His subject was: "Protecting children from high-up popular danger." A timely discourse. All enjoyed it. A 15-year-old girl is the organist, and a natural, gifted one. We had a cool and pleasant night's rest.

MOCKSVILLE A GOOD TOWN.

Tuesday, we met many old friends whom we had not seen in 35 years. We met a few schoolmates, and pupils which was a rare treat to us if we did have to be introduced to each other again. Mocksville is small, but a good country town. There we saw more horses, mules, wagons and buggies in one day than we see here in three days. And we saw fewer automobiles, because they have fewer of that kind of folks as yet.

WHERE WE DISCOVERED AMERICA.

About 5 o'clock, our only living and half-brother, H. M. Deadman, came for us and carried us six miles out home which took about 15 minutes, as the roads are good. We call it "home" because it was there that we first discovered America. On reaching home again, we at once became a boy, and while there lived over our first 25 years again in the yet, sacred memories of juvenile events, and of the many who long ago, finished life's work and are resting and waiting on the other shore which has gotten so near, we can almost see them becoming and hear them calling us. Our stay around the home of childhood and mother, was indeed an earthly "haven of rest" to us.

JERUSALEM CHURCH HOME-COMING.

Saturday morning about eight of us piled into one automobile, and went to the "Home Coming" day at Jerusalem. We did not go by way of Jericho, as that is about nine miles south-west of that Jerusalem. Three or four hundred people were at the homecoming. Four of the charter members were present. It was a glorious handshaking, and renewing acquaintances, with the younger members and children of the pioneers who are wearing the mantels and doing the work of those who have long ago—some of them—taken their flight on wings of the death angel to the home above. And the resemblance and kindly spirit were so strikingly manifest of the long ago, one could not help but feel that "it was good to be there," and wish that such could abide forever and everywhere.

At 10 a. m., all assembled in the church. After devotional exercises, the address of welcome was made by the pastor, Rev. Henry Miss Vera Ruth, who was to make the responsive address being kept at home on account of sickness, Rev. Freeman, the young and clever pastor of Cooleemee church, in behalf of the visitors, accepted the hearty welcome. In christian spirit of love and fellowship, these were heart-to-heart addresses.

After a beautiful duet by two young sisters of the First Baptist church of Salisbury, Rev. C. S. Cashwell of Statesville—but a former pastor of Jerusalem—preached. His subject was: "Christ in the home." He discussed Bible references of Christ being asked and permitted in the home:

A home of a feast; a home of trouble; a home of sickness; and a home of death. And by it, every one received his love, his sympathy, his admonition and his blessing. The next today, he showed, is Christ in every home. It was a timely, gospel sermon, and all enjoyed it.

A FINE DINNER.

After the sermon, prayer and a song, the meeting was adjourned for dinner. It was a fine, large dinner. It was so willingly given, and so cheerfully and freely served that it reminded us of the good old-time dinners of 40 years ago. It consisted of ice water, meats of all kinds, pies, cakes, pickles, fruits, etc. The most delicious part of, and during it all was, the oneness of spirit that spiced, flavored and sweetened it. After dinner, for an hour, with hearts as full of good things, as their stomachs were, it was a treat to hear them talking about days gone by, and the lives of loved ones gone just across the Jordan into the promised land. It was indeed a heavenly feast.

About 2:30 we reassembled in the church. After two songs and a prayer, the meeting was thrown open for talks by the brethren. Several responded. By motion, the home-comers adjourned to meet there again on the first Sunday in August 1921, and all went away happy. It was a successful home coming.

HOME COMING AT FORK CHURCH.

Sunday we piled into that same automobile again and went over to a home-coming at Fork church the mother of Jerusalem Church and the grandmother and a half-grandmother of at least four other churches in that county. There were about 600 present. They had singing, speaking and a big dinner, and then some more speaking and singing. About 58 years ago, we were baptized into that church. A few years later, 25 or more of us received letters and organized Jerusalem Church. Although we had not been at Fork Church in 40 years, yet it appeared like church-home to us. We met many friends who have become mothers and fathers since we saw them last. It, too, was indeed a home-coming to us. Many memory, broken ties were rekindled never to be broken in life again. Prof. Alderman's speech was a fatherly and teachable one. If all teachers were like him, the world would soon get better, and God knows it needs it.

A PLEASANT RIDE.

After the services we got into Brady Foster's car, and came back to Mocksville and spent another night with daughter. It was a good car and a smooth pleasant ride. On this road we passed the Hanes residence where the Hanes boys in Winston were born and reared. The country looked natural along that road, too.

MET MANY FARMERS.

Next day being the first Monday many farmers from all parts of the county came to Mocksville. We met many of them. They reported fair crops generally, especially corn, cotton and tobacco.

FINE FARMING COUNTY.

Davie is a small county, but has as much fine farming lands for corn and wheat as any county. As yet, there are no stock and dairy farms, but they have as suitable lands for such as any county. On the Salisbury and Mocksville sand-clay road is the finest farming scenery we ever saw—thousands of acres almost level and in cultivation can be seen at one view, good land too.

THE BIGGEST WHEAT YIELD.

So far as we have heard, Davie is ahead of all the counties of the State in the biggest wheat yield this year. It is stated that Arthur Miller, a colored farmer, on R. 1 from Mocksville, on 17 acres, produced 722 bushels of wheat, a little over 42 bushels to the acre! Who can beat that?

We left Mocksville Monday evening at 3 o'clock and arrived home about 5. We enjoyed the trip, but there is no place like home, let it be ever so humble.

as a Basis for Estimating
Roofing Cost

The Certain-teed guarantee provides a basis for estimating the approximate cost per year of your new roof. Certain-teed Roofing, Number 3 Heavy, is guaranteed for fifteen years. It usually lasts longer. Taking fifteen years as the assured life and dividing the unusually low cost of Certain-teed, as compared to most modern types of roofing, by this figure, you readily see how economical Certain-teed is. The light and medium weights of Certain-teed are also guaranteed, five years for the former and ten years for the latter. In addition to its durability, Certain-teed is weather-proof, fire-retarding and spark-proof. And it costs less to buy, less to lay and less to maintain than any other type of good roofing. See a Certain-teed dealer about roofing. If he hasn't enough of the weight you want in stock he can quickly get more from a nearby Certain-teed warehouse or distributing center.

CALOMEL DANGER TOLD BY DODSON

Says You Cannot Grip, Sicken, or Salivate Yourself if You Take "Dodson's Liver Tone" Instead

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It can not be trusted any more than a leopard or a wild cat. Take Dodson's Liver Tone, which straightens you right up and makes you feel fine. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.—Adv.

WAS TO BE MORE YELLING

Safe to say That Father's Prediction Turned Out to Be Absolutely Correct.

The sweetly peaceful scene in the little sitting room was suddenly disturbed by a loud yell, and the honored guest sprang wildly from the chair into which he had just sunk, while the daughter of the house felt her face grow pale.

She had had hopes from this visit. Alas, poor girl, were they to be disappointed?

Father took the matter—and his small son—firmly in hand. With a graceful apology he removed the bent pin from the chair and the aforesaid small boy from the room.

"Now, look here, Charles," he said sternly, "in the back yard, why did you do it?"

"It—it was an experiment, father," faltered the lad.

"An experiment?" snorted father. "The only man who has visited your poor sister for years, and you go and drive him away!"

"Well, dad," explained the boy, "he advertised that he is a painless dentist, and I wanted to find out if it was true, and it wasn't. You should have heard him yell!"

"Yes," was the father's grim comment. "And some one else is going to hear you yell now?"

The KITCHEN CABINET

WAYS WITH FRUIT.

Before the cherries are all gone, you may provide a tasty relish by canning:

Cherry Olives.—Fill a jar with well washed, dry, ripe, large, good flavored cherries, without removing the stems. Half fill the jar with cold water and fill to running over with good vinegar; add one teaspoonful of salt to every pint, seal as usual. These cherries are especially good with meats.

Raspberry and Currant Preserve.—Take six pounds each of currants and raspberries, wash, stem, and pick over, wash again and drain the currants. Put them into a preserving kettle, adding a few at a time, and wash. Cook one hour, strain through a double thickness of cheese cloth. Return to the kettle, add sugar, heat to boiling point, and cook slowly twenty minutes. Add one quart of raspberries when the syrup again reaches the boiling point; skim out the raspberries, put in a jar, and repeat until all the raspberries are used. Fill the jar to overflowing with the boiling syrup and screw on the tops.

Preserved Peaches.—Peel and cut in halves sufficient peaches. Fill the cans, packing as full as possible, then add granulated sugar to fill every crevice; seal and put into a lay lined hole, deep enough in the ground to escape frost. In the spring when the frost is gone, dig them up and you will find the most deliciously flavored peaches. A pit or two left in the peaches adds to the flavor. Be sure to mark the spot where they are buried, or the whole garden may have to be spaded to find them.

Green Apples and Onions Fried.—Slice two or three medium sized onions very thin; put to cook with a tablespoonful of any sweet fat. When softened add a pint of sliced green apples unpeeled. Add a little water, sugar and salt and cook until the mixture is well browned. Serve as a vegetable with steak.

Face Looked Familiar.—Dinah was a product of New Orleans, a big, plump "yaller gal," who could cook the finest dinners for miles around. One day a new butler appeared on the scene, and Dinah's mistress noticed that she took a great interest in the man.

At last her mistress could stand her curiosity no longer and asked: "Dinah, do you know that new man?"

Dinah took another long and scrutinizing look and then slowly and reminiscently replied: "Well, I dunno, Miss Alice; but I think he was my first husband!"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Friend in Need.—Mrs. Flatbush—Who is that man with the red nose you just bowed to? Mr. Flatbush—Oh, he's a man I met out west.

"He is certainly not a prohibitionist, is he?"

"Why, I never had occasion to ask him, dear."

"But how did you happen to meet him?"

"Well, we were traveling out of Milwaukee on the same train one night. He had a bottle, and I discovered that I had a cork screw."—Yonkers Statesman.

Unprofitable Combination.—Howell—Is your new hired man satisfactory?

Powell—I should say not. He is one of the heavy eaters and light workers.

Better a dozen freckles on your face than one on your character.

A DINNER FOR A HOT DAY.—For a beginning to the warm weather dinner there is nothing more refreshing than the fruit cocktail. With fresh berries, cherries, melons or citrus fruits one has a great deal to choose from which to choose. A most dainty fruit cup may be prepared as follows: Cut the edible centers of muskmelons into balls with a French potato cutter; arrange them in the glasses; have both fruit and glasses chilled. Pour over a sauce made from Canton ginger, using some of the sirup and a tablespoonful or two of the chopped ginger for a dozen glasses. For those who do not enjoy the ginger flavor, make a mint sirup, and garnish the glass with a sprig of fresh mint. An orange sauce with the mint is another good combination. In fact one may use any sauce at hand. The pink heart of watermelon cut in balls and served with any desired sauce is another attractive dish.

Chard in White Sauce.—Cook the midrib of chard until tender when serve in a white sauce or with a brown butter sauce, etc. Use celery or asparagus. This makes another vegetable dish and one which is very wholesome.

Chicken With Asparagus.—Cut up a chicken and stew until tender, saving the broth. Cut up the chicken and keep hot over hot water, not to lose its moisture. Cook a bunch or two of asparagus in the chicken broth, saving the broth and later cooking noodles in the same broth. In this way the seasoning of chicken and asparagus will season the noodles. Prepare noodles by adding flour to beaten egg until thick enough to roll out, then cut in strips and, after standing a few minutes to dry, cook them in the broth. Have all hot, put a layer of noodles on the serving plate, over this a layer of cooked asparagus, then a layer of seasoned chicken; serve hot. Celery, salt, pepper and salt are used for seasoning. Celery is used in place of the asparagus in a dish called warmelin, which is most savory when prepared according to directions, using at least three bunches of celery to one fair-sized chicken.

Special Care of Baby.

That baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your physician will tell you that baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than baby's food.

A baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for infants and children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your baby must receive special care. No baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

Terrible Tortures From Itching Skin Diseases

No Sure Relief Until the Cause is Removed.

When the blood becomes infested with millions of tiny disease germs that attack the skin, then the fiery irritation and intense itching will remain with you until these germs are removed from the blood.

Genuine relief therefore, can only be expected from a treatment that goes right to the seat of the trouble, and strikes at its cause. Such a remedy is S. S. S., the reliable old blood purifier that kills the germs of disease, and sends a new supply of rich red blood coursing through the veins.

S. S. S. has been used successfully in some of the worst cases of eczema and other skin disorders.

One Saturday morning, however, his father was in a great hurry, and failed to say anything about taking Henry with him. YOUNGSTER MADE WORD GOOD

Though, as it Turned Out, It Was at the Cost of Some Personal Discomfort.

Marshall, who is five, lives in a flat building. He is a real boy and although he has a rear yard and a sand pile in which to play, his mother has more or less trouble keeping him off the streets. A neighbor saw him across the street one morning and the next day called his attention to the fact that he was out of the zone mapped for him. He was one of the busy ones about a vegetable wagon.

"Yes," he said, "I had to get some sungs." The next morning he asked his mother for the market basket. He immediately disappeared and soon returned, accompanied by the vegetable man. In the basket were three pounds of potatoes, a box of berries and two cantaloupes. Mother had to settle whether she needed the goods or not. At any rate, Marshall made his word good with the neighbor that he had to get "some sungs." When questioned by the same neighbor about his shopping expedition he said: "Yes, and mother spanked me, too."

POET'S WORD GOOD ENOUGH

Student Was Absolutely Satisfied Without the Necessity of Seeing Any Poofs.

A good story is going the rounds of Princeton about Prof. Alfred Noyes, the English poet.

Professor Noyes, it is well known, likes very much to read his works aloud to his friends, and at Princeton, with so many young men under him, he is usually able to gratify this liking to the full.

The other day Professor Noyes said to a junior, who had called about an examination:

"Wait a moment. Don't go yet. I want to show you the proofs of my new book of poems."

But the junior made for the door frantically.

"No, no," he said, "I don't need proofs. Your word is enough for me, professor."

CHAPTER II—Continued.

The gardener's name was Williamson. He had been on the place almost from the time of Mr. Sidney's purchase of it. He was attached to it, proud of his work and fond of it and its results. He had a neat little cottage beyond the gardens. His wife was very pleasant and thought too much of my services. Williamson himself was a fine man, and I am interested in gardening. Consequently, having to visit the family every day or every other day, I formed a habit of talking with him. When by chance, I spoke of the ghost story to Williamson, with no more purpose than I ever had had in these inquiries, I noticed that he was a bit embarrassed.

"I take no stock in the stories about the pool," he said. "I'd just as lief pass it at midnight as midday—almost."

"Be honest, Williamson," I suggested laughingly.

"Almost, I said," he replied. "But I did see something at the pool."

He was a straightforward, unimaginary sort of man. I was sure he was not about to indulge in romance.

"I know something of these stories," he said. "I have not gossiped much about—I was coming from town late after midnight. It was the second year of our being here. I was in the fall or late summer—I do not remember. As I came along the road by the pool, I saw the figure of a man standing by the edge of the river. It was light enough for me to see that the figure was leaning on a stick or cane. I stopped and was going to call out, but for some reason—I don't know just why—I didn't. The figure did not move. I began to feel creepy and went on as gently as I could. Fifty feet farther, I heard a rustling in the brush and I thought I saw a face. I couldn't be sure, but I thought I did. I knew I heard a rustling. When I got out in the open, I ran the rest of the way home on the turf."

"There was nothing very alarming about that," I suggested. "My romance needed more substance. You saw a man and heard a noise."

"There was nothing in seeing a man and hearing a noise," said Williamson. "It was the effect."

"That was due to the hour and the place."

"No, I'm not superstitious. I was not thinking of the place. The man on the bank was different from a man. I could not see why. I didn't think he was a man. It was not because I was scared at first. I became scared as I looked at him. He did not move. He did not seem to be alive. When I felt shivers starting up and down my back, I knew I was scared. Then when I heard the rustling, I went home as quickly and quietly as I could."

CHAPTER III.

Jed certainly was the most significant disagreeable fact in the house, and his influence the most significant malignancy. He had been sobered by the discovery of his attack upon Mrs. Sidney, but as he began to recover from his disfigurement, and as the sense of caution began to lessen, he again asserted, or suggested, control, particularly when he was drunk. He never allowed Mrs. Sidney to know this. In their strange association at Horatian who feasted and was tactful, respectful, considerate and jovial.

To Mrs. Sidney he was at times courteous and thoughtful, at other times disrespectful or even brutal. Sometimes he seemed to frighten himself. When I saw that he was again beginning to show disrespect for her, I was for putting an end to it. Mrs. Sidney was horrified when I said that Jed could be brought to terms. She held up her hands.

"No, no," she said. "Not in any event! Never please, speak to Mr. Sidney. Please never think of it. Jed is invaluable to Mr. Sidney. He is not so discourteous to me as you might think. He is gruff, and drinking does not make him better, but it is Mr. Sidney's whim that he should drink. It

The MYSTERY of HARTLEY HOUSE

by Clifford S. Raymond
Illustrated by Irwin Meyer Copyright by George H. Doran Co.

"ENGAGED!"

Synopsis.—Dr. John Michelson, just beginning his career, becomes resident physician and companion of Homer Sidney at Hartley house. Mr. Sidney is an American, a semi-wealthy, old and rich and very despondent to live. Mrs. Sidney is a Spanish woman, dignified and retiring. Jed, the butler, acts like a privileged member of the family. Hartley house is a fine old isolated country place, with a murder story, "haunted pool," and many watch-dogs, and an atmosphere of mystery. The "haunted pool" is where Richard Dobson, son of a former owner of Hartley house, had killed his brother, Arthur Dobson. Jed begins operations by locking the doctor in his room the very first night. Doctor John fixes his door so he can't be locked in. He meets Isobel, daughter of the house and when in love at first sight. It is the night he finds the butler drunk and holding Mrs. Sidney by the wrist. He intervenes. Mrs. Sidney explains. John buys a revolver.

Jed's attitude toward me was a thing to drive distracted a person who cared what it was. I did not. He could be interesting, and then I was interested in him. He could be stupid, and I avoided him. He could be quarrelsome, and I fought him back. It seldom was a matter of sobriety or insobriety with him. He was best matured to me at times when he was most intoxicated. He was sulkiest at times when he was perfectly sober. At other times he quite reversed this. One never knew from his physical condition what his disposition might be at the time.

He served at dinner when Mrs. Sidney, Isobel and I, more ceremoniously than we cared to, dined. Certain domestic ceremonies pleased Mr. Sidney and he liked to know that in some respects the hereditary character of his place was being maintained as if he had been active.

When Jed was in good nature, he frequently sought me out for talks, and when he was in good nature, I encouraged him. I did not want to open up any secrets the house might have, merely to wean what they were, but I knew Mrs. Sidney needed help, and I thought I might give it if I knew how. I also thought that Jed some evening when pleasantly and good naturedly drunk and garrulous might say more than he intended. There were many opportunities, but he never did.

One night—this was in September—I was walking about the place with the mastiffs at my side. I stood a while at the edge of the woods looking at the house. In its shadowy bulk it seemed fit container of mystery. Only a few windows were illuminated. It was the river side of the house that was bright at night.

I walked slowly across the lawn toward the side where Mrs. Sidney's rooms were. A small balcony opened off her sitting room. I could hear her talking to some one on this balcony. The person she was talking to, as I heard in another moment, was Jed. I was then almost under the balcony.

"I am a resolute man," Jed was saying. "I'll have my own way. I'll have what I want. I'll make you glad to come to terms. I'm a reasonable man, too. Now, admit that I've been considerate."

I started to get out of hearing as quietly and rapidly as I could, but I heard Mrs. Sidney's voice vibrant with indignation, say:

"I ought to have whipped."

"That is silly, unreasonable passion," said Jed.

"I shall not hesitate to kill you," said Mrs. Sidney.

Then I went out of earshot. The fact that Jed could threaten Mrs. Sidney in this fashion was inexplicable. It could not be explained by his servility to Mr. Sidney, great as that I hope it is to ask me to take Jed in hand," I said.

"No, it is to ask you to permit me to announce the engagement of my daughter Isobel to you. Don't be alarmed. It shall not make any difference in your life. It is a desperate expedient I am using out of a difficulty."

I felt as if I were in a spiritual fog. "Is that the only way I can help you out?" I asked.

"The only one," she said. "I have thought of everything."

"Has it to do with Jed again?" I asked.

"With things I cannot possibly explain. Is there any one who would be distressed by such an announcement?"

"Not a soul," I said, "—except Miss Sidney."

"I would not cause pain," said Mrs. Sidney. "Are you sure there is no one?"

"Mrs. Sidney," I said, "you are the only lady who ever has given me a thought since I knew my mother. I am merely wondering what Miss Sidney will think of me in such a role. Will she understand why I take it? I am not hesitating. I hope I do not seem to be, but I know—I suspect—that your decision is sudden."

Isobel's affection for us is greater than her demand for independence. She is a current and had been carried down stream. On the bank had been found a few torn bits of clothing—the sleeve of a coat, a collar spotted with blood, a necktie and a piece of a white shirt. There also had been found a heavy walking stick, bloodied and with hair in the blood.

I had not been sitting on the bank five minutes when I was startled by a shot from the nearby thickets, and a bullet hit within two feet of where I was sitting, knocking off the bark of a tree. The report was not that of a small shotgun such as Jed had carried. It was the report of a rifle or pistol.

The chipped bark showed that a bullet, not shot, had hit the tree, and I was unpleasantly conscious of what had happened. Jed had shot at me, probably with a large caliber revolver. He could not have had a rifle, unless he had one hidden in the brush. I had seen what he carried, not only as he left the house but as he was dodging through the thickets.

It likely was a pistol or a revolver, and that was why he had missed me. I was stupefied for an instant, and I did not jump or start. I was motionless, not even looking around, but I was thinking rapidly. A subconscious protective idea formed almost instantly, and when the next moment another shot came from behind me, I fell forward on my face, rolled a couple of feet to a bush, turned my face in the direction from which the shot came, got out my pistol and lay still.

After a minute or two which seemed a very long time, Jed's face came in view in the brush. He looked malevolent but seemed undetermined and cautious. I think he was uncertain whether to leave my body where it lay and have it discovered, or throw it into the river and have my disappearance unexplained. His decision was given him by the noise of a farm wagon approaching on the road, and he disappeared. I was ready to shoot him if he came near me.

I was young and had youth's confidence, but nevertheless this event would have sent me away from Hartley if it had not been for Isobel and Mrs. Sidney. They needed even my small help and I had to remain.

I had tried to remain, but I had also to protect myself. Another time Jed might miss. On the way back to the house I thought out a plan which I believed would work. I inquired for Jed and was told that he was with Mr. Sidney. I found him there drinking, and my entrance gave him a shock which he plainly indicated. His fright made him so ugly that he was comic.

"After all, we are engaged."

World's Highest Village.
The little village of Karzok in Kashmir is said by a writer in L'Astronomie to be the highest in the world. Its altitude is 14,948 feet. The buildings consist of a few wretched stone houses and a small Buddhist monastery. Kashmir is the most northerly state of India and lies wholly in the Himalaya mountains. Not far from its eastern border is Mt. Everest, the loftiest peak, so far as known, in the world.

"We are indebted," said Isobel, with a chill and unkind restraint. Then she smiled and said:

"Good night, doctor. If I am inconvenient at any time, put it down to a naturally bad temper."

Jed had taken a small shotgun and said that he was going after rabbits, which were unusually numerous and threatened to be damaging to the young brush about the place. It was an October afternoon with a warm sun. An hour or two after Jed had gone, I went out for a walk, going down by the pool.

I was in the brush for fifteen minutes, and it happened that while I was there I saw from a little prominence the figure of Jed on ahead with his shotgun. He was some distance away, but I could see that he was going stealthily from tree to tree in an odd fashion for one hunting for rabbits. It was as if he were stalking something rather than trying to kill rabbits up out of the brush.

I went toward the pool. Once again I saw Jed ahead of me. I came out on the path and went on to the river bank, where I sat down.

Whenever I saw a piece of drift in the pool and watched its movements, I thought of the body of the slain brother. It had been whirled into the current and had been carried down stream. On the bank had been found a few torn bits of clothing—the sleeve of a coat, a collar spotted with blood, a necktie and a piece of a white shirt. There also had been found a heavy walking stick, bloodied and with hair in the blood.

HAREM OF "TREE MAN" BROKEN UP

Mexican Ranch Owner in Arizona Emulates Solomon in Conjugal Acquisition.

Phoenix, Ariz.—Establishing a harem on a cotton ranch near the city, Crenslu Rodriguez, a Mexican, had made a fair start toward surrounding himself with a household like unto that attributed to King Solomon, when the city police interfered, kicked Careless Cupid out of the Rodriguez establishment and dragged the occupants into the municipal court.

Confronted with a formidable array of evidence against him, Rodriguez admitted to Judge Thomas that he had lived with at least five erstwhile wives within the past six months.

"But I am a free man, I do as I please," he explained through an interpreter.

Testimony was introduced showing that Rodriguez had been cautioned concerning his domestic entanglements several months ago and at that time had gone so far as to take out a license to marry the woman with whom he then was living. But before he had carried out the nuptial ceremony his fickle fancy had been attracted to another woman, Simona Cordova. Both the jilted woman and Simona, the last love of the cotton-picking Lothario, appeared in court.

The woman whose marriage ceremony began and ended with the issuance of a wedding license was permitted to return to the ranch, where she was promised employment, while Crenslu Rodriguez and Simona Cordova will continue to live together for at least the next 25 days. However, their living apartments will be separated by the iron bars of the city jail.

Man Holds His Wife Under Bridge as Train Thunders Past.

Peoria, Ill.—Trapped by an oncoming train while they were crossing the railroad bridge here, Charles Workman, a coal miner, grasped his wife around the waist and swung to the trestle below. As the train thundered by overhead the wife became hysterical, raised her head above the rails and was struck on the head by the step of the last car. It is believed her skull is fractured.

The train struck her from her husband's grasp and she started a 40-foot plunge to the hard road below. He grasped her wrist, however, and with his arm wrapped around a small girder managed to hold her suspended for several minutes, until help arrived.

Kansas City.—Doubting the statement, made by his teacher, that fire applied to the soles of the feet of a sleeping person was not felt for several minutes, 14-year-old Morrell Foster, of Kansas City, Mo., determined to verify it.

He tried the experiment on his grandmother, Mrs. Ethira C. Bachelder, a paralytic, and set fire to the bed clothes. Before the blaze was extinguished, she suffered burns that resulted in her death.

Fatal Family Fight.

Asheville.—Bryson Hensley, age 37, was shot and died almost instantly; Eugene Hensley, his son, died here in the Mission hospital, and his daughter, Mrs. Prudence Banks, age 19, is in a dying condition following a deadly battle that it is said to have been waged in Yancey county, ten miles south of Burnsville.

Carl and Henry Banks, charged with homicide, had not been arrested at a late hour, according to word received here, although passes are said to be scouring the mountains in search of them.

The deadly affray between families living next door is said to have been started by a quarrel between children of the Banks and Hensleys being taken up by their elders. It is said that Bryson Hensley walked up to the scene, whereupon the two Banks boys opened fire on him. He is said to have managed to draw his revolver, after being mortally wounded, and returned the fire. Mrs. Banks is said to have heard the shooting and run to her father's side. She was shot immediately by one of her brothers-in-law, according to rumors reaching here. Meantime Eugene Hensley managed the scene, falling with a bullet wound in his side before he could reach his father's revolver.

Mrs. Banks and young Hensley were placed in automobiles to be taken to Asheville for treatment, although they lost a great deal of blood during the journey here, which lasted more than ten hours, on account of the bad condition of the roads. When finally they reached the hospital at 9 o'clock in the morning they were too weak to undergo operations necessary to remove the bullets that still remained in their bodies.

Divisionists Hold Picnic.

Maxton.—The second of the series of Robeson county division picnics which was held at Maxton was a great success. In spite of clouds and occasional rains, several thousand people were present. The program started with a parade made up of decorated floats and cars, one float representing liberty and another LaFayette, the names of the proposed new counties. Thirty barbecued pigs and hundreds of picnic baskets furnished more food than the crowd could eat.

Farmers Want Law Changed.

Greensboro.—At a recent meeting of the North Carolina Farmers' Association in session here, a program was unanimously adopted to "substitute for the revaluation act," declaring it was in the "interest of wealth."

In this document the officers and executive committee of the state union set forth their views concerning taxation, voicing their intention of seeking basic changes in the revaluation law at the special session of the North Carolina general assembly in Raleigh this month.

Enclosed About the Jewels Captured From Swede Sailor Was Quantity of Communist Literature.

Washington.—Traffic by bolshevik agents in precious stones, supposed to have formed part of the famous jewels of the Russian royal family, has been unearthed by federal authorities.

The 131 diamonds found on Nels Jacobson, a Swedish sailor, by customs officials in New York July 23, it became known were enclosed in a package addressed to "Comrade Martens." Using this as a lead, federal officials began an investigation which they declare has definitely connected Ludvig C. A. K. Marens, self-styled soviet ambassador to the United States, with the traffic. Disclosure of the fact that the package was intended for soviet agents in this country was withheld by customs authorities when Jacobson was arrested.

Enclosed about the diamonds taken from the possession of the Swedish sailor, Jacobson, whom officials exonerate from any complicity in the illegal proceedings, was a quantity of communist literature.

LETTER SENT TO NASHVILLE

Suffragists Apparently Undisturbed as They Look For Pressure to Be Put on By National Leaders.

Raleigh, N. C.—Sixty-three of the 120 members of the lower house of the North Carolina legislature sent a telegram to the Tennessee legislature assuring that body that North Carolina will "not" ratify the federal suffrage amendment and asking that the measure be not forced upon the people of North Carolina by Tennessee.

If the 63 signers of the telegram in the house vote in accordance with their expressed views, the amendment will be defeated in the house by six votes.

Harry F. Grier and Lindsey Warren, anti-leaders in the house and senate respectively, claimed four additional votes in the lower house against ratification, all of whom are expected to arrive in Raleigh before the fight begins.

The suffragists appear to be undisturbed, looking for pressure from national leaders to overcome the opposition lead of the anti and declare they expect the amendment to be ratified.

MUNITIONS OF WAR WANTED BY POLAND

SEEK A SOLUTION OF PROBLEM OF REVIGORATING FAST-WANING POLISH SPIRIT.

ASK PERMISSION TO RECRUIT

Opinion is Held By Some That the President Has Power to Suspend the Anti-Enlistment Law.

Washington.—After successive conferences between the Polish minister and Secretary Colby, the state department took up the problem of finding means of revigorating the fast-fading strength of the Polish state and thereby of fulfilling the assurance of support to the Poles contained in the recent American note to the Italian ambassador.

Polish officials have explained that in addition to the desire for war materials they were most anxious to obtain authorization of the United States to permit recruiting by Poles in America for the Polish army. It was said that not only had many offers of enlistment been received by the legation from Polish citizens, resident in the United States, but many others had come from former American veterans of the world war.

While a statute forbids enlistment for armed expeditions in the United States for employment against friendly power, some officials claimed the President had authority to suspend operation of the law under his wartime powers.

LAYS STRESS ON BOUNDARIES

Government Recalls From Action That May Result in Recognition of Russian Bolsheviki Regime.

Washington.—The American government declared for the maintenance of the political independence and territorial integrity of Poland and against any dismemberment of Russia.

In a note addressed to the Italian ambassador, Secretary Colby speaking with the approval and consent of President Wilson, said the United States took "no exception" to the efforts to arrange an armistice between Poland and Russia and would "regard with satisfaction" a declaration by the allied and associated powers that the "territorial integrity and true boundaries" of Russia would be respected.

The government flatly stated, however, that it would not, "at least for the present," participate in any plan for the expansion of the armistice negotiations into a general European conference because it would in all probability involve two results from which the United States "strongly recoils."

"The recognition of the Bolshevik regime. A settlement of Russian problems almost inevitably upon the basis of a dismemberment of Russia."

The note was in response to an "agreeable intimation" from the Italian ambassador that his government would welcome a statement of the views of the American government on the Polish situation.

SPEEDING CHARGE LAID AGAINST COX

UNPLEASANT INCIDENT MARKED ITINERARY OF DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE AND PARTY.

ENTIRE PARTY WAS ARRESTED

Governor Orders Cars to Proceed and Informed Motor Cops They Could Find Him at Any Time.

Columbus, O.—An unsuccessful attempt to arrest Governor Cox on a charge of automobile speeding and harmless accident to one of the cars of newspaper men accompanying him furnished excitement in the motor trip of the democratic presidential candidate returning from Wheeling, W. Va.

The attempt was declared by Roy E. Leyton, adjutant general of Ohio, to have been planned to embarrass the democratic nominee.

At Jacksonsville, O., about 32 miles east of Columbus, the governor and his party rode slowly through, disregarding outstretched arms of a shirt-sleeved man, and also a large group of persons gathered there. Within a few minutes two motorcycle officers stopped the governor and press correspondents, declaring all under arrest and demanding their return to Jackstown. Governor Cox identified himself, but the officers said they had orders from Jackstown authorities to arrest all four automobiles of the party "no matter who they contained" on charges of speeding.

"You can reach me at the executive office at Columbus any time," Governor Cox replied, ordering all the cars to proceed and leaving the officers busy taking down car numbers on the fly.

Philathea Pres., and myself visited the Sunday School at Fork a few Sundays ago and they have a wide awake Sunday School and we were greatly impressed with the number of fathers and mothers who attend ed the Sunday School. Mr. Barnes and Miss Byerly made some interest-

"Sounds Good But Won't Work."

Mr. Editor: The Winston-Salem Journal's editorial in issue of July 30th interests me, and with your permission I shall briefly show the editor of the Journal that it will work.

Now I am going to quote a few lines from Chapter 90, laws of 1919—An act to raise revenue, a portion of Section 4 of said act, and it reads thus: "Individual stockholders in any corporation, joint stock association, limited partnership, or company paying a tax on its capital stock shall not be required to pay any tax on said stock or list the same, nor shall corporations upon which the tax has been paid by the corporation issuing the same be required to pay any tax on the said stock or list the same. Nor shall any individual stockholder of any foreign corporation be required to list or pay taxes on any share of its capital stock if two thirds in value of its entire property is situated and taxed in the State of North Carolina, or if such corporation has tangible assets within this State assessed for taxation at a value of the total stock owned by citizens of this state, and the corporation pays franchise tax on its entire issued outstanding capital stock at the same rate as paid by domestic corporations." Now I will give you a portion of Article 5, Section 2, in part; and it reads as follows: "Laws shall be passed taxing by a uniform rule all money, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint-stock companies or otherwise."

The only way that I can see why or how the legislature seemingly ignored the above part of section 2 article 5, of the constitution in passing its act to raise revenue, was that it regarded double taxation as not conforming to a uniform rule if you take that to be true for its ignoring of the constitution (which is a debatable question) now if so construed double taxation when it comes to apply to corporations why cannot it also exempt individuals similarly situated? If I owe $5,000 for a farm and the party from whom I buy the farm pays tax on the note and the mortgage, please tell me why I should not hold my farm exempt from tax as long as the seller pays tax on my note? A certificate of stock in a bank or other corporation is property. A promissory note is also property and is taxed as such; then why discriminate against the individual who holds property pledged to the payment of a debt for same? A stock certificate and a bond are nothing but a promise to pay the holder the amount for which it is written. I believe that our constitution will have to be amended before these reforms can be made in our tax laws but now is the time to ask the legislature to appoint a commission to investigate and make recommendations to the next session of our legislature so that a just, fair and impartial taxation system be enacted into law—and written into our constitution. To my mind the putting in the law a provision to exempt holders in stock in corporations from taxation where the corporation pays tax on its issued stock—is a rank discrimination against the man who has to pay tax on property which is pledged to the payment for a debt when the holder of a note or other evidence of the debt is paying tax on same—it is double taxing in the latter case and is exempting from double taxation where the corporation is concerned—I admit there are serious and vexatious problems confronting us in adjusting our taxation system but that every citizen of our great State be given a fair square and honest deal is worth all an honest effort to bring it about in time and effort takes. Equal and exact justice before the law should be our slogan and watch word from now on. Nothing less will satisfy our people, as a people we must hang together, or some of us may hang singly.—E. H. MORRIS.

Mr. Villa is up to his old tricks of dynamiting trains. Which indicates that Mr. Villa is of that small number that believes the democrats have a chance to elect another disciple of "watchful waiting."—Tulsa Okla. World.

At the opening of the second primary contest between Gardner and Morrison, Mr. Gardner made his first speech at Aberdeen on June 17th. Mr. Gardner paid his respects to Mr. Morrison as follows: "Mr. Gardner's opponent is a man superlatively unfitted by nature and lack of grace to fill the high office to which he aspires. I have been associated with him in various capacities for 30 years. His highest conception of the functions of a political party is to capture places of profit for leaders of the party. He has not and never has had any idea that government should be adopted for the intimate needs of the people. Mr. Morrison is wholly out of harmony with everything in the state, except the machine. Those who wish to do business with him must take a long revenue doodler to be introduced. He is incapable of being more than a cog in a wheel or at most a wheel in a machine. The political machine, now coming to Morrison's aid fought every progressive measure to come before the legislature while I was a member of it."

If half of what Mr. Page says of Mr. Morrison is true then he is unfit to be Governor of the great State of North Carolina. No one will charge that Hon. John J. Parker, the Republican candidate, is not fit for Governor. The Democratic county paper of Mr. Parker's home town says that he is a man of the highest character and one who prizes the welfare of his state above every consideration.—Ex.

How About It, Mr. Farmer?

The Canadian farmer sold his wheat at threshing time last year for $2.15 a bushel and, in addition a participating certificate showing the number of bushels he had marketed and which entitled him to whatever advance there was. When the business of the year was closed each wheat grower received in addition to the $2.15 cents a bushel, between 50 and 60 cents a bushel on every bushel marketed, upon presentation of the participating certificate. Here is a fair, square way of dealing. The prices established at delivery put the Government "in safe" and gave the grower his needed return at threshing time, together with a guarantee of a "comeback" determined at the windup of the business of the season, based upon the actual selling price of the wheat deducting only the actual cost of handling.

Here in the United States the Government's grain corporation closed its affairs with a profit of more than 50 million dollars. Under the Canadian plan this would have been returned to the growers, to whom it belonged, but the American farmer received none of it. Instead he had to witness the spectacle, many times, of his own board of control keeping down the price of wheat with threats of dumping a large accumulation on the market whenever there were indications of a recovery in the price. Nevertheless, the control was ended with a profit of more than 50 million dollars, beside paying immense salaries to numerous officials, all of which was wheat money that rightly belonged to the folks who produced the wheat.—Gaston Times.

William J. Bryan does not seem to be an admirer of the democratic presidential nominee, for, in speaking of him at San Francisco, the "Commoner" said "he disgraced Ohio and now would disgrace the nation."—Warsaw (Ill) Bulletin.

Franklin Says,

How Far Will Your Car Go on a Pint of Gasoline?

Watch for the FRANKLIN equipped with a fruit jar, showing just how many miles you can go in a FRANKLIN, which will be in MOCKSVILLE, AUGUST 25th, 26th, 27th and 28th.

Everybody is invited to take a free ride during these four days, and see the FRANKLIN go three and one-half miles on a single pint of gas. And at the same time watch how easy it rides over the rough roads at a speed of twenty to forty miles per hour.

This is not a sales contest, but just to get you acquainted with the most wonderful car in the world. You will not be asked to buy, and in taking a ride you are under no obligations to anyone, whatever. So don't be bashful, and when the Salesman asks you to take a ride just get right in and you will be surprised how easily it will take you over holes in the streets and roads.

FRANKLIN has many more features than this space will permit us to tell you, so we will let the car tell them better than we can on the dates mentioned above.

If you want to run for a county office you will have to speak quick or wait two years for another opportunity.

North Carolina wouldn't but Tennessee did—so the ladies can get busy and see that all the sisters vote this fall.

North Carolina Senators who voted against woman suffrage in Raleigh last week will have a picnic when they arrive home.

It is said that if Cox is elected President the League of Nations treaty will be ratified within sixty days. All the more reason why he should be defeated.

If the women are going to vote in November election this year they should attend the primaries and the county conventions and help select the men that are to fill various county offices. It might be a good idea to put one or two on the county tickets.

John Parker, the Republican nominee for Governor has stumped the State in favor of suffrage, while Cameron Morrison, the Democratic nominee has remained at home and is opposed to the women voting. Wonder which of these men will receive the women vote this fall.

Put in plain words, the issue Mr. Wilson wants to put before the people is: Shall we mind our own business, or shall we try to decide European affairs? He will find the American people say next November that we had better attend to our own business.—Kingsbury County (S. D.) Independent.

From what we can hear and read Senator James L. Sheek, of Mocksville, Davie county, North Carolina, must be right much opposed to woman suffrage. He voted to postpone the direful moment until 1921. Senator Jim will no doubt retire from public, political life from thenceforth and forever.

Of course the democratic platform will deplore the high cost of living, commend the Palmer cheap cuts, and declare that under a democratic administration all goods will sell below cost. But wonder what it will say about sugar?—Houghton (Mich.) Mining Gazette.

Sober-minded business men who have voted the Democratic ticket at the last two elections will welcome the opportunity to vote for level-headed men of Harding-Coolidge type. And among men who will cast their first vote next November will take advantage of the opportunity to align themselves with a forwardlooking, constructive, sane political party.—Nashua (N. H.) Telegraph.

WHICH SHALL IT BE?

Harvey's Weekly, in discussing the acceptance speech of Governor Cox, on the Democratic presidential ticket, closes its article with the following language:

No; if words have meanings, and if anything is made plain in a speech which is prefaced with the remark that "We are in a time which calls for straight thinking, straight talking and straight acting," it is certain that Governor Cox has completely surrendered himself to President Wilson's League of Nations policy, so in the coming election a vote for him will be a vote for the convention, Article Ten, reputation of the Monroe Doctrine, and all the rest without reservations, without so much as the dotting of an i or crossing of a t. The "great and solemn referendum" has got him in its grip, beyond all power of quibbling or evasion.

Our Country: That is the issue.

The United States of America, free and independent, or a League of denationalized nations, dominated by an alien military alliance: Which for Americans?

Republicans of Davie Take Heed.

Mr. Editor:—Below is a paragraph taken from a recent interview of Rep. State Chairman Frank Linney. I want the rank and file of the party to read it and go out to the primaries on the 4th of September and see that such men as Mr. Linney says should be put up for officers, and let's see that men are nominated that the best women of Davie County will be proud to walk up to the polls and vote for in November. Here is what Chairman Frank Linney says: "I personally favor woman suffrage, and as a matter of party policy cannot put out candidates clean enough for the best women of the State to support, it should go out of business as a political organization." This rings clean and clear and every Republican in the County should see that it is heeded in the coming primaries and convention. It is more likely that the women of Davie County will vote at the approaching election, and should that be true, we may look for the true and good womanhood of the County to demand that men may be nominated and elected to office in this County who will see that the laws are enforced, and that their sons and daughters are protected from the debauchery going on at this time in certain sections of the county. Laws and order should be the watch word, and none but good and true men should be put on guard. The true and good womanhood of the county should assert their power and influence whether they are given the ballot this year or not. Many of the best men of our county are asleep or are too busy chasing the dollar to take a hand in governmental affairs. Its no time to sleep and slumber when the enemy is at the gate, when the good name, character and future lives of your sons and daughters are going down before the debauchees. Go to the primaries, comes out Monday September the 6th, and see that your wishes are heeded. We are passing through one of the most crucial periods of the world's history and it's a wise man who can see enough ahead to foretell what is in store for us. Let's put Davie county in the front rank of law and order counties. We can do it, and it should be done.

Turner Reunion.

The seventh reunion of the Turner family was held the 19th of Aug. at the home of G. A. Rudacil and his wife Jane L. Rudacil, the youngest one of the Turner family, and notwithstanding the night before was raining and the day was cloudy and threatening, there was a good turnout of the Turner family and their descendants who came from Davie, Fowan and Cabarrus counties, and was increased by a large turnout of friends and neighbors, and were honored by the presence of two honored Confederate veterans namely, C. A. Guffey of Rowan Co., and John L. Pish, of Davie Co. The exercises were opened with prayer by Pinkney Turner and the speech of welcome was made by H. F. Turner, and also enlarged by giving history of the Turner family from James Turner who was born in the year of 1690, and down to the present Turner family, which was the sixth generation. It was listened with close attention after which Pinkney Turner discussed the importance of well spent life against an ill spent life, and illustrated and enforced it by using the first division of the Psalms after which a sumptuous dinner was spread by the ladies on the table 36ft long and the divine blessing was asked by Pinkney. Then the joyful eating such as only the former can do began by the large concourse that surrounded the table and after all had eaten there was much left on the table. The evening was spent in social intercourse until the goodbye time drew apace and we had to part. Thus another day of happy greeting and hand shaking spent with a hope that we all will meet again next year at Pinkney Turner's house. BEAVERDAM.

Letting the World Alone.

Mr. Harding does not fear that the failure of any of his plans or policies will "break the world's heart." In the first place, his plans and policies are all American and the world is not immediately concerned in them, and then he is not reaching out in perspective to entangle this government in the world's affairs; he isn't even contemplating a visit of several months to Europe when he becomes President.—Kansas City Journal.

Warren G. Harding is the direct antithesis of Woodrow Wilson in almost every way, and stands for representative as opposed to autocratic government.—Providence Journal.

"A 40 Cent Dollar."

Mr. Editor:—It was my great pleasure to forward to Raleigh last week petitions signed by 500 of the rank and file of Davie County's citizens and taxpayers protesting against the revaluation being placed on their property, and the 6 per cent flat rate income tax amendment to be submitted to a vote at the November election—we favor a graduated rate increasing as the income increases. I want to thank the farmers of Davie County who co-operated with me in circulating these petitions; it was a busy time with the farmers, but we did fine all things considered. I have never, nor am I now opposed to equalizing values, or placing a fair and reasonable value on all property, but at this time of inflated values—when Governor Bickett in his message to the legislature (Aug. 10, 1920) says that "the dollar is now relatively worth 40 cent," it strikes me as being unwise to place an inflated value on the farm land of our State. We need to give every reasonable encouragement to keep our young men on the farm, but to tax the mortgaged farm and leave untaxed the investment in Stocks is a rank and unjustifiable discrimination against that class of our people—the legislature should correct this unjustifiable discrimination against that class of our people—the legislature should correct this injustice at the earliest date possible. There is no question but that our taxation system needs overhauling, and I hope for its early consummation, that equal and exact justice may be meted out to all alike without regard to wealth or poverty. Aug. 11th 1920.

Fork News Notes.

On Friday, Aug. 13, 1920, the children, grand-children, and many of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Garwood gathered at their home here to celebrate the 74th anniversary of their birth, as Mr. and Mrs. Garwood were born on the same day, and are exactly the same age. And it was indeed a happy gathering and everybody seemed to enjoy the day to the fullest. At 1:30 o'clock the large table which had been placed on the spacious lawn, was loaded with everything to eat that anyone could wish for, and the crowd was well filled, and then there still remained several baskets of fragments to be taken up, and it was said that some ate so much, that they were awful glad that Dr. G. V. Greene was there too, so he could administer help if it was needed for over-eating.

After that the tables were filled with nice watermelons and cantaloupes which were also greatly enjoyed. Attorney Arthur Williams, of Greensboro, made a short talk about the anniversary of this much beloved couple, and with fitting remarks presented them with some nice gifts from their children, then T. I. Caudell of Coolesema, made a talk and led in prayer, after which the crowd soon began to disperse each wishing that this good couple may enjoy many more such happy occasions. Those present from a distance were, Rev. and Mrs. A. G. Carter, of Rosemary, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Alderman and four daughters, Misses Mary, Madge, Antoinette and Alice, of Greensboro, N. C., Attorney and Mrs. Arthur Williams and small son, of Greensboro, N. C., Mrs. L. M. Williams of Hanes, Mrs. Newsome, and Rev. J. F. Carter of Wauhtown, Mr. and Mrs. Clate Tranoou and seven children of Booneville, N. C., Mrs. K. Lee Jones, and children of Atlanta, Ga., T. I. Caudell, of Coolesema, and Mr. Joe Merrell of Greensboro, and quite a host of friends and neighbors were present from this community. May we all meet together at their home again many such times in the future.

W. L. Sanford Dead.

A telegram was received here Tuesday by C. C. Sanford, telling of the death of his son W. L. Sanford which occurred in San Francisco, following a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Sanford was about 49 years of age, and is survived by his father, two sisters and five brothers. The body will arrive here this week and the interment will be in Joppa graveyard. Mr. Sanford spent most of his life in Mocksville, and has many friends here who will be sorry to learn of his death.

Samuel T. Naylor Dead.

Samuel T. Naylor, a former citizen of Davie county, died in a Fort Worth, Texas hospital Saturday, Aug. 20th, age about 80 years. The body will be brought back to his old home for burial, and funeral and burial services will probably be held today at Farmington. Mr. Naylor left Davie county in 1868 and went to Iowa and later moved to Texas where he lived until six years ago when he came to Winston-Salem to make his home with his children. He had gone to Texas to visit his daughter when the war came. Mr. Naylor served in the 9th North Carolina Cavalry. Peace to his ashes.

Province House, Once One of the Most Famous Colonial Mansions, Has Been Partially Preserved.
There stands today on Bussworth court in Boston but a portion of the old Province house, a most interesting relic of Colonial days; and the rest of the court is lined with modern office buildings. But in 1820 it was considered a very genteel part of town. Oliver Wendell Holmes lived in the old Province house for 18 years. At the farther end of the court stands an iron-wrought archway, decorative design, which was used in the early part of the nineteenth century as an entrance to the governor's garden, a part of the Province house grounds. This has been carefully preserved, as have the stone steps which lead to the lower level. The Province house was immortalized by Hawthorne in his "Twice-Told Tales."
The historic staircase now is gone, and only a portion of the exterior of the house is left. It was built in 1697 by Peter Sargent, a wealthy London merchant, and was considered one of the handsomest residences in town. During the days of its popularity the governor gave many balls there.

WARN OF INJURY BY CHINCH BUGS

Spring Flight of Insect Continued Over Much Longer Period Than Usual.

HARM TO CORN APPREHENDED

Department of Agriculture Urges Steps Be Taken to Check Infestation—Kerosene Emulsion Will Stop March of Pests.

Warning messages from Missouri, Indiana and Illinois state that the chinch bug is appearing locally in the southern portions of these states and somewhat farther north in Indiana. The spring flight of the bug continued over a longer period than usual, and for that reason the infestation has been extended to larger areas. The bureau of entomology, United States department of agriculture, apprehends severe injury to the corn crops later on unless steps are taken to check the infestation, and is assisting to the extent of its ability toward putting control measures into effect.

Where Bugs Hibernates.
The bureau of entomology offers the following information: The chinch bugs spend the winter in clumps of bunch grass and under dead leaves and rubbish. In the spring they emerge and fly to fields of young wheat, where they lay their eggs on the root tops and stems. When the wheat commences to ripen and dry, the young bugs leave the wheat fields in armies and walk—for most of them cannot fly—to the cornfields, where they do the greatest damage.

The fact that they make the migration from the wheat to the corn by walking gives the farmer his opportunity to check the invasion by pouring road oil along the bottom of a shallow furrow dug across the line of march. Deep holes should be dug every 25 feet along the furrow on the side nearest the wheat to trap the bugs.

Spray Infested Corn.
Corn already infested may be sprayed with kerosene emulsion along the first rows to prevent the bugs from going farther. Some corn will be injured by the spray, but the balance will be safe from the bug.

As a preventive measure, burn all trash and dried grasses, especially such as grow in clumps like "broom sedge" during early winter or early spring. Roadsides and pastures should receive most thorough treatment of this character.

VEGETABLES REQUIRE PROPER VENTILATION

Plan Outlined for Securing This in Storage Room.

Lacking Essential Can Be Overcome by Providing Air Duct of Wood, Metal or Terra Cotta, Fitted in One of the Windows.

It is necessary to have good ventilation if food and vegetables are to be kept safely in storage. In many cellars under dwellings the lack of ventilation is the only essential that is lacking. However, this can usually be easily overcome by providing an air duct constructed of wood, metal or terra cotta, which, fitted in one of the windows, is desirable, as it permits the cool air to enter at the bottom of the room. Two or more joints of 6-inch stovepipe, one with a damper, and an elbow may be used. A piece of board with a hole the size of the pipe is fitted in the window in place of one of the panes of glass. Another pane of glass may be removed from

Details of construction for the ventilation of a storage room in a basement. The air duct may be made of wood, terra cotta, or metal and installed in place of a pane of glass, thus avoiding cutting through the cellar wall. A hinged door the size of another pane of glass may serve as an outlet for the warm air.

the sash and a small hinged door fitted in its place, which when open allows the heated air to escape. In cold weather both the hinged door and the damper in the stovepipe must be closed. The windows in the storage room should be darkened in order to protect the vegetables from the light. Barrels, crates, boxes, or bins may be used as containers for the various vegetables, but movable containers are preferable to remove them for cleaning. It is advisable to construct shelves or a slat floor to keep the crates, boxes, baskets, and other containers off the ground. This is highly desirable to insure a free circulation of air and to prevent the containers from harboring mice, rats, and other vermin. The shelves for canned goods along one side of the room need not be more than 6 inches wide.

MARQUIS WHEAT IS POPULAR

Yielding Quality Greater Than That of Any Other Variety. With Exception of Durum.

The popularity of Marquis wheat is still gaining in the spring-wheat states. This variety contributed 67.8 per cent of the spring wheat crop of 1919 in Minnesota, 47.5 per cent in North Dakota, 63.8 per cent in South Dakota, and 71.4 per cent in Montana. It was hardly in evidence in the sowings of 1914. The yielding quality of the wheat is greater than that of any other variety except Durum, a variety that is gaining in popularity, although less than Marquis.

SANITARY QUARTERS NEEDED

In Order to Insure Pigs Greatest Amount of Vitality Every-thing Must Be Clean.

A point that should receive the earnest attention of every progressive hog raiser is the necessity of having all quarters clean, with sanitary hog wallows, fresh, clean drinking water, and well lighted, ventilated and comfortable quarters in order to insure for the pigs the greatest amount of vitality and resistance to disease.

Facts for Sick Women

Reliable Information

All American women know of the great success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in restoring to health women who suffered from ailments peculiar to their sex, yet there are some who are skeptical and do not realize that all that is claimed for it is absolutely true—if they did, our laboratory would not be half large enough to supply the demand, though today it is the largest in the country used for the manufacture of one particular medicine.

The Facts contained in the following two letters should prove of benefit to many women:
Buffalo, N. Y.—"I suffered with organic inflammation and displacement. When lifting I had such pain and bearing down that I was not able to stand up, and it hurt me to walk or go up or down stairs. I was going to a doctor without any results and he said the safest thing would be to have an operation. I met a lady who told me she had had three operations and was not well until she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt relief after taking two bottles of Vegetable Compound and I kept on with it until I was cured. I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and they are fine. Everything used to turn sour on my stomach and the Liver Pills relieved that."—Mrs. A. E. BOGGS, 233 Fargo Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

"VOTES FOR WOMEN IN 1920" WINS

Washington and Tennessee Legislatures Ratify the Susan B. Anthony Amendment, Thus Giving the Necessary Thirty-Six States Out of Forty-Eight.

Victory Crowns Seventy Years of Persistent Struggle by Devoted Champions—Some Notable Features of the Long Fight for Equal Suffrage Through Amendment of National and State Constitutions—Some Names Made Immortal by the Contest.

Washington.—"Votes for women in 1920" wins. Washington and Tennessee have ratified the Susan B. Anthony amendment. This gives the 36 necessary states.

When Miss Anthony began talking in public of "woman's rights" she was derided and hissed by the men in her audience as a "freak of nature." Undismayed, she carried the campaign to Congress and to the states. During the Civil War she demanded that women be given equal rights with the newly enfranchised negroes. The answer she got was: "This is the negro's hour." For several years after the Civil War Miss Anthony endeavored to secure an interpretation of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments which would allow women to vote.

Finally, in 1872 at Rochester, N. Y., she tried to force an interpretation by voting at the polls. She was arrested and fined. She refused to pay the fine, but was not sent to jail.

In 1875 Miss Anthony drafted the amendment to the Constitution which has now been ratified. In 1878 the amendment was introduced in the senate by Senator Sargent of California. It was defeated in 1887 and thereafter was not even debated in Congress until 1914.

"During the years the constitutional amendment campaign was making no progress the women won many victories in the states. They secured full suffrage in Wyoming (1869), Colorado, Utah and Idaho (1894), Washington (1910), California (1911), Kansas, Arizona and Oregon (1912), Montana and Nevada (1914), New York (1917), Oklahoma, South Dakota and Michigan (1918). They won presidential suffrage in Illinois (1913), Nebraska, Rhode Island and North Dakota (1917), Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana, Maine, Minnesota, Missouri and Tennessee (1919) and Kentucky (1920). Partial suffrage prevails in many of the states. In Illinois, for example, women vote for candidates for all offices not mentioned by the state constitution.

The National American Woman Suffrage association in 1912 opened headquarters in Washington and began an active campaign for the passage of the amendment. In 1916 it established branch headquarters there which were devoted entirely to the amendment campaign.

The National Woman's party, organized in 1910 by Alice Paul, established Washington headquarters in 1913 and introduced the militant into the campaign.

Alice Paul—the third Quakeress to immortalize herself—is the spectacular figure of the struggle. She is a practical politician and developed the excellent card index on members of Congress that practical politics has ever seen. Pretty soon she was serving notice through the White House pickets that the president was the "man higher up." The arrest of nearly 500 of these picketers had no effect. Incidentally Miss Paul herself served seven terms in jail.

The amendment was beaten three times in the senate and once in the House before it was finally passed by the Sixty-sixth Congress June 4, 1919, by the necessary two-thirds majority.

The resumption of woman suffrage work after the Civil war was marked by the organization in 1889 of two national organizations: National Woman Suffrage association, with Mrs. Stanton and Miss Anthony leaders and headquarters in New York; American Woman Suffrage association, with Mary A. Livermore, Julia Ward Howe and Lucy Stone leaders and headquarters in Boston. The line of division was this: The former wished to concentrate on the passage of a constitutional amendment; the latter was in favor of obtaining the suffrage through amendments to state constitutions. In 1890 the two organizations were united under the name of National American Woman Suffrage Association, and work was pushed along both lines of endeavor.

Mrs. Stanton was president until 1892. Miss Anthony served until 1900, resigning at the age of eighty. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt was its head, 1900-1904. Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, recently deceased and possibly best loved of all the leaders—a woman of transcendent gifts and eloquence—was president until 1915. Mrs. Catt was then again chosen.

Mrs. Frank Leslie left a large legacy to Mrs. Catt to be used in the work of the National association made arrangements at the St. Louis convention of 1919 to dissolve its organization and become the League of Women Voters. These arrangements became effective at the Chicago convention in February last.

The Mystery of Hartley House

By CLIFFORD S. RAYMOND

Illustrated by IRWIN MYERS

Copyright by George H. Doran Co.

"JOHN!"

Synopsis.—Dr. John Michaelson, just beginning his career, becomes resident physician and companion of Homer Sidney at Hartley house. Mr. Sidney is an American, a semi-invalid, old and rich and very delectable. Mrs. Sidney is a Spanish woman, dignified and retiring. Jed, the butler, acts like a privileged member of the family. Hartley house is a fine old isolated country place, with a murder story, a "haunted pool," and many watchdogs, and an atmosphere of mystery. The "haunted pool" is where Richard Dobson, son of a former owner of Hartley house, had killed his mother. She particularly delighted to demonstrate when Jed was serving dinner. I thought she would end by getting me shot in the back, but Jed had rated me finally as unimportant, which did my egotism no good. For such a rascal to discard me, formally betrothed as I was to Isobel, in his scandalous pursuits of that beautiful girl, was preposterous.

CHAPTER III—Continued.

Mr. Sidney never liked to have his vicarious drinking interrupted, but he always was good natured.

"Well, doctor," he said, "what now? Is Jed drinking too much for my health?"

At that moment no possible amount of liquor would have been too much for Jed. The wretch must have thought I was a ghost.

"Jed may drink himself to death, for all me," I said. "That probably is the best end he can come to. I think he is galloping right here, and would better hit him when you can spare him."

"We can't spare Jed to have him hang," said Mr. Sidney. "He's too useful. Who else could drink my wine of an evening? Go along with the doctor, Jed, and see what he wants. It's probably a matter of pills or powders for me."

Jed was recovering from his shock, but he still showed the effects of it.

"No hurry," I said. "I'd rather wait a half hour. I'll be in my room."

I went there and wrote two letters. Both were to omit, they related circumstantially what had happened that afternoon. One I addressed to a lawyer I knew, and the other to Dr. Brownell. Jed knocked at the door as I finished them. He was still un-nerved.

"I have something I want you to read," I said, and gave him the letters. He read them and moistened his lips.

"You don't need to talk, Jed," I said. "I'll do all the talking that's necessary. I am not getting away. I am going to stay right here, and you'd better be very careful of my health. These letters go out tonight. The men who get them will keep their mouths shut so long as I am alive. If anything should happen to me, whether you had anything to do with it or not, you'd have a difficult time with a jury."

"It was a mistake," he said. "I would not do you any harm. I shot at a rabbit with a pistol, when you had a shotgun?" I said. "You did! I was the rabbit."

CHAPTER IV.

Jed came to me the next day in one of his candid moods.

"I did shoot at you yesterday," he said.

"I know you did," I replied.

"And you're wondering why and you're wondering if I intend to do it again?"

"I don't wonder at anything you do," I said. "And you know that if you do it again, the evidence is prepared against you. I think I am perfectly safe. I know you are a coward."

"No, I'm not a coward," he said, as if he were stating a fact and not making a boast. "I never do anything without a purpose, and when I have a purpose, I do it no matter what the consequences may be. The reason I wanted to shoot you was because you were engaged to Isobel. I intend to marry Isobel. Now I know that you are not going to marry Isobel. You are just the foolish fellow that her mother thought she could build up around Isobel and keep me from trying to marry her. Isobel doesn't want you. She is laughing at you. So we might as well be friends again."

"You preposterous old fool!" I said.

"You senile alcoholic! You are a violation of decency. You exhaled, exasperating old goat! You would sicken the moral conscience of a mummy. If you ever associate your aspirations with the name of Miss Sidney again, I'll cut your throat with a paper knife."

Jed smiled and made me feel ridiculous.

"I am a more intelligent man than you," he said. "You are too simple for the complexities of life. You could not possibly be sufficient for a girl of Miss Sidney's character. She would die of boredom in six months. There is nothing preposterous about my candidacy for Miss Sidney. I am older than I'd like to be, but that is all."

"You are a hideous old fool," I said, "but I think I can handle you, and I give you warning."

"If am going to be quite friendly," said Jed.

"You flatter yourself," I said.

"Well, anyway," he said, "I'm friendly."

He proved to be so. The life of the house went placidly from day to day. Isobel, with a sense of our posturing toward each other, made mocking gestures of affection which shocked her mother. She particularly delighted to demonstrate when Jed was serving dinner. I thought she would end by getting me shot in the back, but Jed had rated me finally as unimportant, which did my egotism no good. For such a rascal to discard me, formally betrothed as I was to Isobel, in his scandalous pursuits of that beautiful girl, was preposterous.

If Mrs. Sidney had known that I was actually in love with Isobel, she would not have sought relief from her distress by the arrangement which made me her daughter's protective fence. The only thing I could take credit for in this absurd situation was that Mrs. Sidney was not allowed to know the state of my feelings.

I was as sensible as a corrupting romanticism would permit me to be. I knew that any affection I might place in this fashion was a real and serious emotional vice, which if not controlled might lead to unhappiness. That consciousness had steadied me, but it had not delivered me.

Isobel walked brightly through the old house of tragedy—as surely it was, however hidden the tragedy. She was the glint of sunshine in the aisles of the dark woods, the odor of roses against the wall. She had the charm of the hollyhocks, the freshness of the heptatica in the spring, the beauty of the wild rose in June.

I did not know my feeling more than a liver sausage shows a soul, I hope I may be punished. What I thought of Isobel was my own affair, so long as I kept it strictly my own affair.

I took myself in hand with as much energy and promptness as I could, following the announcement of our engagement. I did not want to confess myself a fool. I did not intend to do so if I could help it.

I overdid it. I became disagreeable. I kept as much out of Isobel's presence as possible. I never willingly was alone with her. I did my best to avoid meeting her or speaking to her. Isobel met the situation with her natural frankness after I had been giving this demonstration of myself for some time.

"Doctor," she said, "this household necessarily imposes friendships upon the people in it. I wonder if we could not be a little more agreeable to each other."

I did not know what to say. I hoped not to be a hypocrite, and I did not want to be absurd.

"I shall be glad to be as agreeable as I can," I said after some mental stuttering. "I want to be, but I am so awkward."

"I want to be, too," said Isobel; "and if we both want to be, we shall not have to growl at each other every time we meet. Even mother does not quarrel with me and father will detect it."

Without saying anything more, she made me see that I had used a cheap device to escape the consequences of a foolish affection. The girl in a very friendly fashion had shown me that my avoidance of her was marked, cool and unreasonable. It was wholly reasonable from my poor standpoint, but from no other.

I saw that I was meeting my difficulty by running away from it, and I not only did not like the timidity of escape in this fashion, but furthermore, I did not like the opinion Isobel formed of me because of it. I had to face the music, and after that I did. It ought not to have astonished me that I felt better instantly. I knew that a coward only increased his troubles.

I imagine if I had not seemed such a professional stick, such a thing aloof from human emotions, Isobel would have been merely friendly and kind. As it was, she was tantalizing. She liked me well enough, but that meant very little. If she did not drive, ride, walk or play tennis with me, she had a choice of the servants. It was I or nothing.

I was with Mr. Sidney a number of hours every day. They varied, sometimes seven or eight a day in different periods, sometimes three or four. Very little of this time was occupied in professional duty. Life at Hartley house would have been intolerably lonesome if I had been there merely as a practitioner. And therefore I welcomed a routine that was outside my profession. Mr. Sidney had a delicacy of perception which told him when attention upon even so amiable an invalid might be drawing upon the physical reserves of the people waiting upon him or being with him. He always managed that they never should feel the fatigue of it.

We saw no company at Hartley house. We made no calls and received none. We extended no invitations and received none. The estate was baronial, and it had baronial habits, but it brought no friends to the doors. It was nearly always with regard to Isobel that the condition seemed unnatural. For an invalid like Mr. Sidney it was natural enough. Mrs. Sidney was wholly devoted to him; I was engaged in professional duties; and it had been known that the position was natural to be content with what they had of life or with the performance of duties for which they were paid and which they might abandon at will. But this was Isobel's life. She was young, vibrant, beautiful, but vistas opening into human prospects were closed to her. And she was engaged to a piece of professional dead wood who happened to be the only masculine thing available when her mother was in great distress.

Later Isobel said that as a woman she knew of course that I loved her, but this is evident fiction. She did no such thing, and it would be an unkindness to her to think so. What was only comedy if I were, as she thought I was, an indifferent, unfeeling man, would have been cruelty if it had been known that the position was mockery of denied hopes.

Isobel used me to gain her liberty. She affected familiarities and called me "John" derisively, or worse "dear" or "old dear." I protested, in more pain than she could guess.

"We are engaged," she said. "What should I call you?"

"You might consider the fact that we are not engaged," I suggested.

"But we are. If we don't act as if we were, you'll not be any protection against Jed. Don't you want me to call you John?"

"Of course I do," I said. "It's perfectly straightforward, natural and proper."

"Then it's the 'dear' and 'old dear' you object to, and I perfectly delight in calling you 'old dear.' It fits so "I think I shall continue to call you John just that way," she said. "It seems more honest and decent. After all, we are engaged."

Sometimes Mr. Sidney could be taken out in an automobile, of a warm, fair afternoon. It was not often that his strength permitted this, but whenever it did, I was glad not only to allow but to suggest that he make use of all opportunities.

The most beautiful of our river drives brought us, within the limitation of Mr. Sidney's strength, to the penitentiary at Alvirde. It was a hideous structure of barracks, work-rooms and walls, of cells and armed guards; but it was in lovely surroundings, and if we took the best roads, we came naturally to the prison walls.

Mr. Sidney would look at the enclosure and the guards in the turnouts as if interpreting his own life in the terms of prison existence. We may have taken this drive by the prison road ten times when, approaching it on another of our outings, Mr. Sidney had the driver stop at the entrance.

"I feel very strong and well today, doctor," he said, "and if you do not object, I think I should like to go inside. I have seen the outside so many times, I have a curiosity to see the inside."

I consented, thinking that with Jed and me helping him—we acted as his legs, guiding and sustaining his feeble motions—he was strong enough to make the effort. I did not know whether it was good or bad psychology to give him a sight of so many imprisoned men, but my instinct suggested that it would, in his case, be good. He was a logical, reasoning man—a rare phenomenon in the human race. If he had been emotional and sentimental, I should have had more doubt.

Mr. Sidney was important enough to be known in the neighborhood. The warden of the prison came to meet him in the office as soon as we had entered. He was very cordial to Mr. Sidney, who himself never showed more his aristocracy of democracy. I am a democrat. I am most fond of an aristocratic democrat. Such was Mr. Sidney.

Mr. Sidney visited the penitentiary.

Flat Feet.
Symptoms of flat foot are pain along the instep or even in the calves of the legs, knees, thighs, hips or back, often mistaken for rheumatism or other troubles. The person stands with feet well apart and toes turned outward. The ankle bends inward and the weight falls on the inner line of the foot so that the entire sole rests flat on the ground.

Fox Squirrel's Nests.
In the South, instead of living in the hollow trees, the fox squirrels build big nests in the tops of the pine and other trees, usually of Spanish moss, says the American Forestry Magazine. In these they steep, also carrying to them the pine cones. In the hardwood forests of the North, dry leaves take the place of the Spanish moss, and a conspicuous nest is built with an entrance hole at the side.

Every boy knows several men whom he intends to whip when he grows up.

Colonel Bryan was a noble sight at San Francisco as he stood upon the quarter-deck, tears streamed down his face and proclaimed his willingness to die at his post on the good ship Prohibition, and yet, when the Prohibition party called on him to show his faith by heading their ticket, he declined.—Exchange.

In Chicago the doctors are writing prescriptions for a pint of whiskey for the thirsty at $4 per prescription. That is the modern way the man with money nullifies the law. It is a game in which the M. D. reaps a tidy sum, but his gain comes at the expense of his eternal disgrace.

Small Cars—and the Declining Cost of Tire Mileage

You are aware, of course, that during the last ten years, Goodyear has been able steadily to increase the amount of mileage built into its tires. Do you realize, also, that this increase has been accomplished without extra cost to the user—that Goodyear Tires are priced no higher today than in 1910?

In no tire in the Goodyear line is the declining cost of mileage more evident than in the present 30x3-, 30x3 1/2- and 31x4-inch size Goodyear Tires made especially for small cars.

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car taking these sizes, go to your nearest Service Station for Goodyear Tires—get the exceptional worth and endurance that Goodyear builds into them.
