Visiting In The Country.

Statesville Landmark.

The Greensboro News painted a beautiful picture of a vacation in the country—of the delight the urban dweller finds at this season in going back to the old home in the rural regions, reveling in the good things to eat and enjoying the restful quiet of the country-side. Then somebody butted in and spoiled part of the picture by asking how about the country dwellers who had to furnish the feed for the visitors—feed that is worth big money in the city markets—and do the heavy work generally of providing for the entertainment of the city visitors. This jolted the News but it insists that it had in mind the old home where pa and ma would be glad to see the boys and girls come back for a family reunion.

That was the easy way around. Wherever pa and ma are found they will be too willing to sacrifice their comfort and work themselves to the limit to entertain the boys and girls in the old home. Sometimes, too often probably, the boys and girls show little appreciation, if any appreciation, at all, of the sacrifices pa and ma make for them, but if pa and ma notice that they rarely speak of it, even among themselves.

But there are many urban dwellers who have no pa and ma and no old home in the country. Some of these drop in on more distant kin or on friends. Sometimes they are welcome and sometimes they are not. But in either event the visit is a heavy tax on the country housekeeper. Help is as scarce in the country as in town, or more so. The country housekeeper, hasn't as a rule, the modern conveniences of the city sister and with her entertaining company is often a harder job. The food may be abundant and may not be grudging, but it takes real work to prepare it. Many country housekeepers undergo all that cheerfully while city kin and friends enjoy themselves. Do the latter make honest effort to return the kindness? How many country women who would enjoy a visit in town homes ever have the opportunity. Few compared with the number of town visitors to country homes. Reciprocity in this matter is not only fair and just but it would be helpful. If the town and country sisters exchange visits they would have a better understanding of each other and each other's difficulties that would be mutually helpful. The obvious lesson is that town folks should not make a convenience of their country kin and friends and if they make a convenience of their country kin or friends and if they take a vacation in the country unless they pay the tariff at the regular rates, they should "return the favor" by having their country kin and friends take a vacation in town.

What Would Jefferson Think?

Gov. Cox said in a Jefferson Day Message that the Democratic party need look no further than Thomas Jefferson for inspiration during the campaign. Thomas Jefferson is the man who wrote the Declaration of Independence declared in favor of "friendship for all nations, entangling alliances with none, and once said that he wished the Atlantic was an ocean of fire the better to separate the United States from any connection with European politics. Under the circumstances what do you suppose Thomas Jefferson, nationalist and protectionist, would think of the present day internationalist so-called Democratic party?

"My heart is in the grave with Caesar," said Mark Anthony and Wm. J. Bryan echoes him. Cheer up William! Mark Anthony came to bury Caesar, and you can do the same for Cox.—Exchange.

Morehead And Linney Confer With National Chairman.

Republican national headquarters in West Fourth street also showed signs of activity yesterday, when National Chairman Will H. Hays returned from Marion Ohio, the home of Senator Harding. Mr. Hays conferred at length with John M. Morehead, Republican National Committeeman for North Carolina, and F. A. Linney, the Republican State Chairman. They brought glowing reports of conditions in North Carolina. Mr. Morehead declares that the Republicans already had 24 counties of the 100 and that in 37 additional ones the democratic majorities were very small with an excellent chance to carry. "The Republicans are not given to rainbow chasing," said Mr. Morehead "but they do believe the party has more than a fighting chance in North Carolina this fall. If a referendum were taken now in that state, with only the democrats voting, the Wilson league of nations would be repudiated."

Among other callers were Senator William M. Calder of New York, Senator Freleighhuysen of New Jersey, Governor R. Livingston Beekman of Rhode Island, and former Representative Thomas W. Miller of Delaware, one of the managers of the General Wood pre-convention campaign. "More and more it is certain" commented Chairman Hays, that the voters realize the need of Republican success. In exact proportion grows daily the certainty of victory."—N. Y. Evening Times

Matching Wits And Law.

We attempt to legislate for our own class because the other fellow is legislating for his class. The farmer for years has suffered because the other fellow has been working as a unit in legislating for his class, but we have not. The progress we now have made along this line is very meager compared with what it must be if we keep up with the other fellow. Whether right or wrong to push class against class, as long as others are doing it, the farmer sees no hope for himself unless he also does it. But seeing the need of doing it and actually doing it is a different thing. We can't expect to make ourselves prosperous by legislation, for prosperity brought to any class in this way does not long endure. We can, however, make our own production worth on the market of our nation what it really is worth by looking after our own legislative interests. Prosperity that endures is then a thing of actually producing the wealth and converting it into the medium of exchange we call money by the aid of a system that protects our interests, the same as other classes have systems that protect their interests.—Exchange.

No one will deny that if the postal service is to meet the requirements of the country, it is absolutely necessary that fair compensation be given to the nation's faithful employees in this service. The last congress made a start in the right direction by slightly raising the salaries of the postal workers, but this should not be accepted as the last word of congress on the subject. Under the circumstances attending the vote on the report of the postal commission, it was not possible to present amendments, but it is hoped that the next congress will see its way clear to do justice to the workers in this all-important branch of the federal service.—Sioux Falls (S. D.) Press.

Gov. Cox announces that he will not have front porch campaign speeches. He doesn't want the average voter to see his political home worth millions.—Exchange

Harding And Coolidge.

The country demands a change in the White House. The people are tired of the misrule and inefficiency which have brought about chaos and unrest. Harding is the man.

Harding is for peace at home and abroad, therefore he fought that part of the treaty that would involve us in European wars. He voted for the recall of our soldiers from Russia.

He sought for the safety of our sons and our homes.

He has worked for the welfare of our children and supported the child labor law.

He has been the constant and dependable friend of the working man.

He supported and voted for the minimum wage scale and civil service retirement law, the rehabilitation industrial cripple law.

Harding has fought profiteering and worked to lower the cost of living.

He voted for the law against cornering foodstuffs.

He voted for the woman suffrage and lent his influence and his effort to bring about state ratifications.

Harding and Coolidge are both men of the people. Their sympathies and their public acts prove it.

Both were born on farms and worked for an education. Both have won to the top by clear-cut force, ability and honesty.

When Harding goes to the White House he will call into his councils and his cabinet the ablest among the many able men of the Republican party, the party founded by Lincoln, which, since the Civil War, has ever wisely guided the destinies of the country in days of stress, when human problems pressed for solution.

Both are intensely human, simple, unpretentious men whose leadership has been won by sheer merit. They have not forgotten the days when they toiled by the sweat of their brow for a living. Both are devoted home men, the kind of men to protect the safety and integrity of the home. Both are strong men, honest and deeply patriotic.

We need a change in the White House. We need strong men there. We need the strong men of the Republican party to bring order out of chaos Vote for Harding and Coolidge as a safeguard of your homes, your rights and your country.

Who Wants to Go Back To The Land?

After the Civil War we had the home-stead law, and then came the timber and stone acts. In those days when agriculture was promoted because it was the backbone of the nation every measure intended to aid the farmer and to make new farmers was pushed to the limit. The greatest concern nowadays appears to be in building good roads for automobiles, and in finding new ways so that the farmer can live in town and enjoy "community life." All this is well enough, but the fact remains that the country is dropping behind in agriculture. There is a lot of enthusiasm for the cash bonuses for soldiers but none at all plans that will furnish substantial assistance to young men, who if aided, might join in a "back-to-the-land movement."—Western N. C. Times.

By Editor Craigmiles.

Billy Sunday had just closed a three revival with $4,700 in cold cash tucked away in his vest pocket. The good old song that says, "salvation's free" seems to have side-stepped for a declaration of faith considerably more substantial.

Campaign methods may soon have to undergo some slight changes. For instance, candidates may continue to kiss the babies with good results, but it must not be forgotten that ladies who have no babies are very apt to own watery-eyed puddles.

After the battle is all over and the votes have been counted, there's going to be copious weeping, lamentation, wailing and gnashing of teeth and off in a distance in a crowd by themselves will be Christensen, LaFollette, Bryan, Debs, Hearst, Cox et al. mingling their tears together.—Mitchell County Banner.

The Coal Robbers.

The coal profiteer prosecution has at last reached the real folks in the indictment of coal operators. According to figures gathered by the Federal Trade Commission, the average mines during April was $3.26 per ton. At that time coal was costing the consumers $8 to $10 per ton and it has since advanced to around $14. Somebody got a big rake-off and it seems that neither the miners nor the local dealers got more than a reasonable profit.

The profiteers, it is alleged are a bunch of speculators who have taken advantage of an "upset market" and while they controlled only a small part of the coal output they managed to work the public for extortionate prices for coal. Better conditions are promised but the situation will not be fully met until the robbers are put to work digging coal and compelled to dig for a few years under the supervision of a convict boss who will see that they keep busy. And that is equivalent to the saying the situation will not be "fully met." Gentry of that type beat leaded-footed justice in the race nine times out of ten.—Statesville Landmark.

The Champion Cow.

The Dutch Dairy Farm, for several years, has had the champion cow of the state. She was tested again in July, last month. And as hot as the month was she registered 95 lbs of fat, 112 lbs of butter and 1520 lbs of milk—in that one month. How is that?—Hickory Mercury.

Bal Ball

It is announced that Mr. Wilson will conduct a front porch campaign. He will have a flock of White House sheep to listen to him. Perhaps they can tell whence his yarns originate.

If boasts of Mr. Cox's vote-getting ability become tiresome, Mr. Wilson can remind the Governor that while he himself carried Ohio by 36,503 in 1916, Willis was defeated by only 5,199.—St. Louis (Mo.) Times.

Candidate Cox says that Candidate Harding is under complete control of the Senate. Woodrow Wilson didn't even consult the Senate, and Brother Cox seems to want to follow in Woody's footsteps and run things to suit himself. But the free-born American citizens do not want a one-man government and Brother Cox will not be elected.

YE GODS AND LITTLE FISHES.

The Carolina Watchman, a Democratic paper printed in Salisbury, deposes and says:

"We notice that at the Cox notification ceremony one Rev. Martin P. Neville, Holy Angel's Roman Catholic church, pronounced the benediction. This is sufficient notice to the faithful catholic to vote for Cox, it is notice that the Roman hierarchy has sought and obtained pledges for such demands as it may choose to make and that the national democracy has consented to do its bidding. It is also notice to true, red-blooded Americans and Protestants if they value their freedom and right to worship as they please to see that Cox and Roosevelt never become president and vice president of the republic."

So far as we are able to see no comment is necessary on above article, except that we are anxious to know how the Protestant preachers are going to treat this timely advice.

"Who Nominates The County Officers?"

Mr. Editor:—We have no voting primary law in Davie County by which county officers are nominated. Every time a voting primary law was introduced in the legislature Davie County was exempted from its operation. Was it done for the good of the people and party or was it done in order to perpetuate the nominations of Republican candidates in the hands of a little town and county machine? It's to be hoped that every Republican man and woman in Davie County will go out to the primaries on September 4th and elect delegates to the county convention who will see that the wishes of the rank and file of the Republican party in the County are respected, and a ticket nominated that will command the respect and support of every law-abiding Republican in the County on the day of the election. It cannot and will not be done, if the little machine is allowed to dominate and control the convention as in the past. The Republican party stands for the rule of the people, and that element of the county who believe in such rule are going to be heard this year either at the convention or at the polls in November. I am asking for no office, but I want to vote the Republican ticket from president down to coroner, but I cannot do it if the convention is dominated by that element which is trying to force the nomination of certain men upon the party regardless of the wishes of the rank and file. Take notice, you cannot hog-tie and throttle the good womanhood by forcing certain candidates through the convention, nor the good men of the party either. Let's have a clean square deal in both primaries and convention. Elect delegates to the convention next Saturday who have the best interest of the people as well as the party at heart. Davie County has been Republican since 1882, and I predict that the Hon. John Parker will carry the County by the largest majority ever given a Republican provided we put out a ticket that will appeal to the best element of the entire citizenship of the county. The lawless element in the county should be asked to take a back seat, they cannot nominate or elect the ticket by themselves, and it is too much to ask the good men and women of the party to help them. "Beware of the ides of November." E. H. MORRIS.

Have Also Quit Work.

New York.—Elated by their tie-up of virtually every British ship in New York, the 2,000 or more longshoremen who suddenly quit work expect to spread their walkout to every port in the United States in the hope of forcing Great Britain to release from jail Terence MacSweney, the lord mayor of Cork, and permit Archbishop Mannix to land on Irish soil.

The women pickets who inspired the unexpected walkout of longshoremen and the marine firemen, water tenders and others who joined them, feel the same way about it. They are not going back to work on British ships, they said, until Great Britain meets their wishes.

Irish sympathizers working on American, French and Belgian steamships also quit work during the whirlwind campaign the strikers waged.

Bolshevik Reaction Against the Polish Armies Not Expected Now.

Paris.—Bolshevik reaction against Polish armies along the front east of Warsaw is not expected, at least for the present, by General Weygand, who is credited with having directed the defense of the Polish capital and hurried the soviet armies back from that city, according to the Warsaw correspondent of The Petit Parisien. General Weygand is quoted as saying that the Poles should not advance too far eastward.

Paris.—Former King Constantine of Greece, still hopes to regain his throne, claiming he never abdicated and that he is still considered the Greek sovereign by a majority of the people of that country, says the Lucerne correspondent of the Excelsior. In an interview with the dethroned monarch, the correspondent was told that Premier Venizelos would not be able to so conduct affairs in Greece as to give the country her true place.

WILL ALSO REDUCE ACREAGE

Speeches Were Delivered by Governor Cooper, Senator Dial, Lever, President Wannamaker and Others.

Columbia, S. C.—Four thousand South Carolinians declared that they would not sell their cotton at the prevailing prices, adopted plans for the formation of an export corporation with a capital stock of one million bales, pledging themselves to retire 25 per cent of the new crop from the market and agreed to reduce the acreage of 1920 crop by 33 1-3 per cent. A legal contract was drawn up to be signed by the farmers agreeing to the reduction of acreage.

There was not an auditorium in the city of Columbia big enough to hold the crowd which gathered from every section of the state for the meeting.

Speeches were delivered by J. Skottowe Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton association, United States Senator Nat B. Dial, A. F. Lever, member of the federal reserve board, Governor Cooper and others.

There were many visitors present from other states and all reported that the meeting of the American Cotton association at Montgomery on September 1, 2, 3, at which a minimum price for cotton will be fixed would be the most largely attended meeting in the history of the association.

Washington.—The American embassy at Mexico City advised the state department that the Mexican foreign office had confirmed a report that Pedro Zamora, the bandit leader who kidnapped a number of Americans and a British subject at Cuale, state of Jalisco, had offered to surrender.

The Recently Established Soviets
in Siberia Have Been Overthrown.

Harbin, Manchuria.—Western Siberian peasants have overthrown the soviets at Tomsk, Novonikolayevsk, Omsk, Barnaul and other important towns. Isolated peasant uprisings which have been in progress since spring appeared to have culminated in a general insurrection. This was led by an uprising of the Kikighiz tribesmen which followed the withdrawal of the bolshevik troops to the Polish front.

Suspect Wanted in Trunk Murder
Mystery Is Arrested in Brazil

Rio Janeiro.—Eugene Leroy, wanted by the police of Detroit, Mich., in connection with the murder of a woman supposed to be his wife, was arrested on board the British freighter Dryden, which had just arrived. Leroy was a member of the crew.

Colby Said to Have Certified a Copy Only of Suffrage Amendment

Decatur, Ala.—Ratification of the woman suffrage amendment by the state of Tennessee has not been properly certified to Secretary of State Colby, according to Representative F. S. Hall, of Nashville, leader of the insurgent legislators.

Mr. Hall declared that Governor Robert had merely "certified a copy of the house journal."

SECRETARY COLBY SIGNS AMENDMENT

WOMEN SUFFRAGISTS, AFTER A LONG DRAWN OUT CONTEST ATTAIN THEIR OBJECT.

SEAL OF THE U. S. ATTACHED

Congratulations Are Extended By the Secretary on Successful Culmination of Many Efforts.

Washington.—Secretary Colby signed the proclamation declaring the woman suffrage amendment "to all intents and purposes a part of the constitution of the United States."

The secretary's signature was affixed to the proclamation at his home a few hours after he had received from Governor Roberts, of Tennessee, the certificate that final favorable action on the amendment had been taken by the legislature of that state completing the required thirty states.

The seal of the United States has been duly affixed to the certificate and the suffrage amendment is now the nineteenth amendment to the constitution," Secretary Colby announced on reaching his office two hours after he had placed the signature to the proclamation.

Secretary Colby's statement follows in part:

"The certified record of the action of the legislature of the state of Tennessee on the suffrage amendment was received by mail.

"I congratulate the women of the country upon the successful culmination of their efforts which have been sustained in the face of many discouragements and which have now conducted them to the achievement of that great object.

Rushed to Front in Large Numbers.

Warsaw.—Russian soviet reserves are reported being brought up to the southern front in great numbers. According to information in the hands of the Polish general, Haller, reserves some distance behind the bolshevik north also are being brought up.

British Government Is Risking No
Weak Points in MacSweney Affair

Lucerne, Switzerland.—Premier Lloyd-George, in a statement concerning the case of Lord Mayor MacSweney, of Cork, who condition is grave because of his hunger strike in Brixton jail, London, said in substance that, whatever the consequences, the government could not take the responsibility of releasing MacSweney.

Destruction of Bolshevik Armies
May Now Be Considered Complete

Paris.—The destruction of the bolshevik armies now may be considered complete, according to advices received here. Of the host which swept down on Warsaw nothing is left but 30,000 fugitives. The Poles have taken 80,000 prisoners thus far, but what is more important they have captured great quantities of guns and materials.

Modification of Priority Orders
Relating to Coal, an Urgent Need

Washington.—Modification of priority orders for cars transporting coal to lake ports and "certain limitations on exportation of coal" were suggested to the interstate commerce commission as means of relieving the coal situation in North Carolina.

Oil Supply of Country Will Be Exhausted in Thirty-five Years

John Fox, engineer with the Southern Power Company, told 25 Waco, Texas, business men at the meeting of the Kiwanis Club at Charleston, that waterpower was the only source of energy which was dependable. He said the oil supply according to scientists, would be exhausted in 35 years, and gave figures on coal showing that as a "never-producing" fuel, it was subject to serious limitations, with an incident waste of 20 per cent.

CERTIFICATION MAILED COLBY

Announcement of Action of Governor and Judge Serves to Transfer Activities to Washington.

Nashville, Tenn.—Governor Roberts has certified by mail to Secretary of State Colby Tennessee's ratification of the woman suffrage amendment, after receiving from Attorney General Frank M. Thompson an opinion that a writ issued by Chief Justice D. L. Lunsden, of the state supreme court and in effect set aside a lower court order temporarily restraining the governor from taking action. The first injunction was obtained by citizens of Nashville, opposed to suffrage.

Issuance of the writ and the governor's certification serves to transfer to Washington the battle over legality of ratification. Anti-suffragist leaders declared the American constitution league was prepared to apply to the District of Columbia supreme court for an order restraining Secretary Colby from issuing a proclamation declaring the amendment in effect. So far as court action in Tennessee is concerned the only thing in prospect for the anti-s is to request the supreme court to rescind the individual action of Justice Lunsden. The court meets in Knoxville Sept. 20.

Announcement that Justice Lunsden had issued the writ, followed an hour later by the statement that the governor had mailed the certification was a bombshell in the camp of the anti-suffragist forces and an agreeable surprise to the anti-suffragists.

Positive Assertion That Germany Is Furnishing Soviets Supplies.

London.—Germany has shipped supplies and ammunition to soviet Russia, according to a correspondent of the London Times, who insists that Leon Trotsky, bolshevik minister of war and marine, visited east Prussia, in spite of official denials of reports to that effect from Moscow.

Kansas Farmers Are Growing Rich
Owing to Their Volunteer Wheat.

Topeka, Kan.—Stories of sudden wealth in the Kansas wheat belt are numerous this year, due to the unusual acreage of "volunteer wheat," a crop grown from seeds which fall in the previous harvesting. Officially estimated there are 1,500,000 acres of volunteer wheat in Kansas this year.

Jap Government May Recall All
Its Citizens in This Country.

Honolulu.—Recall by the Japanese government of all Japanese who have emigrated to the United States has been suggested by prominent citizens of Tokyo as a means of solving the Japanese problem in America, says a Tokio cablegram to Nippon Jiji, Japanese language newspaper here. The cablegram adds that the Tokio press is supporting the proposal.

Depression in Cotton Goods Market Is Due to Unsettled Conditions

Charlotte.—Depression in the cotton goods market is the result of unprecedented conditions, and until the unsettled state of the raw cotton market, the financial field, transportation and politics reaches closer to an adjustment there can be little substantial improvement in the position of W. D. Adams, secretary and treasurer of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association. Mr. Adams said he is not a pessimist, but an optimist.

Pedro Zamora Has Released Six Americans He Recently Captured.

Mexico City.—Pedro Zamora has released six of the Americans who were kidnapped recently in the state of Jalisco, but is holding one American, W. A. Gardiner, superintendent of the Esperanza Mining company, for 100,000 pesos ransom and W. B. Johnson, a British subject, for 50,000 pesos.

PARSIMONY OF THE CONGRESS HAS SERIOUS RESULT IN EVERY SECTION.

NO PROVISION MADE FOR AIR

Is Danger of Great Deterioration in Road Equipment and Other Damage if Work is Not Carried On.

Washington.—Road building in North Carolina will be badly handicapped unless a way is found to remedy a situation caused by negligence of the last Congress, the department of agriculture announced. The state drew $1,709,290.35 as federal aid for the year from July 1, 1920, to June 30, 1921.

Congress made no provision for 1922. As soon as this money is used up plans to make new projects will have to drop unless new money is found. It takes a year to plan projects. Congress does not meet until December. If it appropriated money the law would scarcely be enacted before January or February, cutting down further the plans for a program.

Mexico City.—Establishment of air mail service between Mexico City and Tampico has been determined by the government according to Cosme Hinojosa, postmaster general.

Consumption of Gas in Country Is 15 Per Cent Greater Than Supply.

Washington.—Although production of gasoline for the first six months of this year was 13 per cent greater than for the corresponding period of 1919, the increase in consumption was 32 per cent, it was reported by the bureau of mines. Gasoline stocks at end of June were 39,841,000 gallons or 15 per cent less than the amount on hand on June 30, 1919.

tain schools in North Carolina will receive $70,000 in improvements this year from the $75,000,000 campaign which the Baptists of the South conducted several months ago to put all educational institutions on their feet.

Dunn.—With a view to stabilizing cotton ginning conditions in this part of the state the Cape Fear Cotton Ginners association was organized here with 30 members from the counties of Harnett, Sampson, Johnston and Cumberland.

Spencer.—East Spencer is to have a bank, the desired amount of stock having been already subscribed by Postmaster W. J. Hatley and other enterprising citizens of the town expected from Spencer only by the Southern Railway yards.

THE REMEDY FOR EVERYDAY ILLS

"I have used Pe-ru-na for years in cases of colds and catarrh. The results have been good, in fact, more than you claimed. Have also taken Lacupia and can easily say it is one of the best blood purifiers I have ever used."

Mr. J. F. Arendt

For Catarrh and Catarrhal Conditions

The evidence of one man like Mr. Arendt is more convincing proof to you of the merits of Pe-ru-na than any written words of praise. For fifty years Pe-ru-na has been the standby of the American family for diseases due to catarrhal inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the organs of the body. Thousands, like Mr. Arendt, have proved the effectiveness of Pe-ru-na for coughs, colds, nasal catarrh, stomach, bowel and liver disorders or any disorder characterized by a catarrhal condition. If your suffering is the result of a catarrhal disorder try Pe-ru-na. It is a true, tried medicine.

No Let-Up In Its Torture.

If you are afflicted with Rheumatism, why waste time with liniments, lotions and other local applications that never did cure Rheumatism, and never will? Do not try to rub the pain away, for you will never succeed. Try the sensible plan of finding the cause of the pain. Remove the cause, and there can be no pain. You will never be rid of Rheumatism until you cleanse your blood of the germs that cause the disease. S. S. S. has no equal as a blood purifier, scores of sufferers say that it has cleansed their blood of Rheumatism, and removed all trace of the disease from their system.

WILL REDUCE LIVING COSTS

Senator Harding's Program for Lifting Burden From the People.

FORMULA WHICH WILL APPEAL

In Place of Platitudes So Liberally Indulged In by the Democrats the Republican Candidate's Attitude Is Welcomed.

After all the vain platitudes about economy uttered but not practiced by the Democratic administration, and after the useless Democratic threats against the profiteer and the endless noisy price investigations staged by administration henchmen for political effect, it is like a welcome breath of fresh air to review the concise, straightforward formula which Senator Harding, if elected president, intends to follow as a means of reducing the cost of living:

"First—Repeal, and possibly, entirely repeal, the excess profits tax. This is the chief cause of the high price of everything today. The manufacturer collects it, the wholesaler collects it, the retailer collects it—with the result that the ultimate consumer pays three taxes instead of one.

"Second—Congress will immediately abolish the government tax on freight and passenger traffic. The public will promptly reap the benefit.

"Third—Congress will immediately increase the tariff schedules and will thereby not only decrease the tax burden now falling on this country by about $200,000,000 but will protect industries and American labor which need protection from low paid foreign competition.

"Fourth—Congress will materially modify the income tax schedules and bring about a very considerable reduction in them."

Those four short paragraphs embody a mine of economic wisdom. They foreshadow the scrapping of a convenient tax machine which has been the joy of Democratic spendthrifts, making it possible for them to put into active, wasteful practice their slogan of "Easy come, easy go." But these four paragraphs, outlined by Senator Harding to Representative Slamp of Virginia, and by him to the Republican national committee, also contain in each of their integral parts a potential means of relief for the overburdened consumer, the handicapped domestic business man and the menaced international trader, who witness other governments taking every measure to protect their own industry and foster their prosperity, while our administration remains inactive, sensing no approaching hardships but choosing to foresee only a blissful future bestowed by a kindly providence without effort on the part of the recipients.

Harding's Good Beginning.

In general the speech of Senator Harding is entitled to strong commendation because of its sober earnestness. The Republican candidate does not promise the millennium. He is not swollen with egotism, and he has too much regard for the people to think that they want him to "play demagogue. Those who rejoice in loud noises and a beating of a tom-tom will doubtless complain of the mildness of the speech, but others will see in its reserve evidence of character. Senator Harding distinctly makes a good beginning.

Deceptive Figures.

It is entirely natural that the administration should seek to counter uncomfortable charges of extravagance and waste in some dramatic showing that all can understand, but it is a pity that it could not go about it more candidly. It seeks to convey the impression that the reduction in the national debt is due to surplus revenues and shrewd financing. Nothing of the sort is true. The reduction came about through sinking fund operations automatically and through belated receipts on the Victory loan.—Louisville Herald.

Falling Between Two Stools.

Governor Cox is wet in New York and dry in Kansas. The result will inevitably be that New York will believe him to be dry and Kansas will consider him wet. Consequently, he will lose the votes of both. If the telegraph, the telephone and the mails did not exist, Cox might get away with it, but not in these days of publicity.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Change of Ownership.

Bryan has lost his hold on the Democratic party—but John Barleycorn has succeeded in securing a tighter grip.—Mankato (Minn.) Free Press.

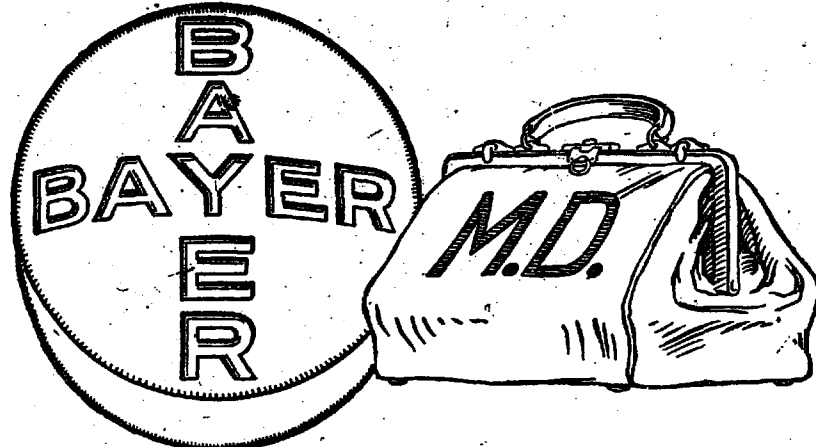

The Political Situation.

A vote for Harding is a vote for maintaining the traditional American attitude in foreign affairs—an attitude of helpfulness, of promoting peaceful settlement of disputes, but of refraining from an active part in old world entanglements except in emergencies, with out independence of action always preserved.

A vote for Cox is a vote for the league, for constant and active participation in foreign politics, for the French alliance and for the Armenian mandate.—Kansas City Star.

Other and More Cogent Reasons Induced the Old Gentleman to Hold His Wife's Hands.

As the Londoner sat in the village inn, drinking a modest pint and chatting with the local residents, he got on the subject of married life. He advanced the opinion that true happiness was more often to be found in the peaceful country than amid the turmoil of a town.

"Well, I ain't so sure about that," said one old chap. "But I do know as I sat here last night and held my old woman's hands for two hours by the clock."

"There!" said the visitor in triumph. "That upholds my argument, and shows how much you love her!" "Love her?" gasped the old chap. "Why, if I'd 'a' let go she'd have scratched my bloomin' eyes out!"—London Answers.

Our Overflowing Riches.

A Swede in Minnesota, who had but recently arrived there, was speaking enthusiastically to a friend of the wonders of America. "It ban a fine country, Niels," he said to a friend, "and very generous ban everybody here. I asked at the post office about sending money to my mother and the young man tell me I can get a money order for $10 for 10 cents."

Circumstantial Evidence.

"That man belongs to the civil service." "One would never guess it from his manners."

A Social Event.

"Did you know that Mrs. Blank has obtained her divorce?" "Oh, yes; we received cards yesterday."

Dr. Perry's "Dead Shot" has enjoyed popular approval for 75 years. Manufactured only by Wright's Indian Vegetable Pill Co., 272 Pearl St., New York City.—Adv.

SHE KNEW WHAT WAS IN IT

Little Eve Fairly Well Acquainted With the Varied Contents of the Family Bible.

Bishop Hoss said at a Nashville picnic: "The religious knowledge of too many adults resembles, I am afraid, the religious knowledge of little Eve."

"So you attend Sunday school regularly?" the minister said to little Eve. "Oh, yes, sir," said she. "And you know your Bible?"

"Oh, yes, sir." "Could you, perhaps, tell me something that is in it?"

"Indeed!" And the minister smiled. "Do tell me, then."

"Sister's beau's photo is in it," said little Eve promptly "and ma's recipe for vanilish' cream is in it, and a lock of my hair cut off when I was a baby is in it, and the ticket for pa's watch is in it."

Forgiven.

"Can you help me out, sir?" said the seedy looking stranger. "I've had some hard luck."

"I suppose you've seen better days?" replied Mr. Twobble.

"Oh, yes, sir. I once got $75 a week for playing in a jazz orchestra."

"Well," said Mr. Twobble, as he thoughtfully thrust his hand into his pocket, "I'm a humane man and I won't hold that against you. Here's a quarter."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

An Opinion.

"I think this trial marriage idea is just horrid."

"Oh, they have been working out so so for a long while."

"Nothing of the sort! It is a new idea."

"Old as the hills. Do you mean to say that every marriage isn't a trial—to one of 'em, anyway?"

Sanger's Greater European Circus Combined will exhibit at Mocksville, Saturday, Sept. 4th. This announcement is hailed with delight by the juvenile element, while some of the "old boys" are already looking about for their stray nephews and nieces. They are saying, they will probably have to go and carry the children to see the animals. But deep down in their hearts they know they would not miss the big show if there were not a small boy within a thousand miles of Mocksville on show day.

Many new and novel features will be seen in this year's program of the Great Sanger Circus. Foremost among these will be the Flying Jordans, daring and intrepid aerialists; the Silverton Trio, dancers on a lofty double wire; the Alpine Sisters, dainty and marvelous equilibrist; the peerless Potters, gymnasts; the Nelson family acrobats and two-score educated Shetland ponies, monkeys and dogs. The clown congress is a large one and is headed by Arthur Berry, Andy Rice, Sam Lewis and Valdo. In the menagerie will be seen Tom Tom the largest elephant in captivity. The big show travels aboard its own special train of railroad cars.

There will be two performances, at 2 and 8 p. m., the doors opening an hour earlier to permit a concert of popular and operatic music by Prof. Fred Melvin and his military band. A series of free exhibitions will be given on the show grounds at 1 and 7 p. m., in addition to a band concert on the downtown street at noon. The town and surrounding country is heavily billed for the appearance of the big show and local merchants anticipate the largest crowd in town on show day, in years.

It Is To Laugh!

In the memorable "he kept us out of war" campaign, President Wilson solemnly assured the country that Democracy platform promises were made to be kept when elections were over and were not "molasses to ketch flies." Governor Cox has recently paraphrased this statement by declaring that "the platform of the party is a promissory note. I shall see that it is paid in full, every dollar and every cent."

All this promising profession recalls the Democratic platform of 1912, which has thus been summarized,—to read it in the light of such statements as these is to laugh:

High cost of living due to "Republican high tariff laws, etc.; these criminal conspiracies must be broke up so as to make it impossible for private monopoly to exist." States must not be deprived of any rights reserved to them." Favor single term for President; urge constitutional amendment making President ineligible for re election and pledge our candidate (Wilson) to this principle." Denounced "profligate waste of money wrung from the people by oppressive taxation by Republicans." Demanded "return to that simplicity and economy which befits democratic government and reduction of number of offices, the salaries of which drain substance of people." No abridgment of right of wage-earners to organize." American ships to pass through Panama Canal toll free. Our platform is one of principles, our pledges are made to be kept when in office as well as relied on during campaign.—National Republican.

By nature and training Mr. Harding is a reconciler, and the country needs sorely this kind of service just now. Mr. Harding will approach every problem from the point of view of a simple, honorable and practical Americanism.—Leslie's Weekly.

Goodyear Mileage—and Tires for Small Cars

A well built tire yields much more mileage for each dollar of cost than a tire purposely made to be offered at a sensationally low price; buy the tire, not the price.

Built to deliver exceptional mileage at exceedingly low cost, Goodyear Tires, of the 30x3, 30x3½ and 31x4-inch sizes, save inconvenience, disappointment and money.

Their value results from the application of Goodyear experience, expertness and care to their manufacture in the world's largest tire factory devoted to these sizes.

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car taking these sizes, go to your nearest Service Station for Goodyear Tires—for the real worth and endurance that Goodyear builds into them.

UNCLE CAM IS UP AGAINST IT.

Democrats Have Been Inspired To Do
Some Heavy Hedging.
Tom Post, in Greensboro News.

Cameron Morrison's willingness to accept feminine votes, his bid for them in Graham where he opened his campaign for the governorship, rested light as ocean foam, to plagiarize that glorious hymnodist of Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party, on the suffragists who recall that Mr. Morrison was in Raleigh recently and forgot to remember to invite them when they were knocking at the Democratic door.

Mr. Morrison's party trick isn't pretty to them. John Parker came here and did his best to hold every Republican in line. It is undoubtedly true that Mr. Parker was up to a little political devilment on the side; but he came through on suffrage. The Republicans needed mighty little evangelism. But Mr. Morrison wouldn't say a word for the women. To have so would have been tantamount to placing himself on social and political level with John Parker and this in the piping days of aristocracy would have been too much.

The women are not crazy about voting for Mr. Morrison. They know as much about the burdens that he speaks about as they did before Tennessee ratified and North Carolina double-crossed them. Tennessee was under no party obligation at home. It had not resolved in state convention to ratify in special assembly. North Carolina had. It thought it had sense and sensed the suffrage issue. It didn't. It learned too late to act seemly about it that back home where politicians had persistently turned up their noses at suffrage, there was much sentiment against it. But they learned it soon enough to crawl and that serves all practical purposes.

But for all that Mr. Morrison has done for the women, his attitude toward them in the committee hearings of 1918, his conduct which was an affront to them and to the men, according to both; it is undoubted now that he needs the women's votes and all others that he can get, both the quick and dead. There are places in North Carolina where Mr. Morrison will hardly speak this year and he must and doubtless does feel it risky to pass by any people without giving them a chance to hear red shirtism glorified one more time. If he goes to Rockingham county P. W. Glidewell will walk out on the stump and denounce him. If he runs down to Beaufort and gets away without Lindsay Warren's sticking something in him, he will be lucky. They will hardly welcome him in a dozen places where he applied Cole Diseaseism good and proper.

And worse still; Mr. Morrison not only made a specialty of abusing certain Gardner supporters and Page backers in various places in the state; he loves to talk about it still. He has given a good deal more thought to remembering what he said about Crawford Biggs, Dan Allen and Buck Jones in Wake, to Warren in Beaufort, to Glidewell in Rockingham and to Holderness in Edgecombe, than he has given to the possible pacification of the men who opposed him. If Morrison sits down by a former Gardner to fraternize with him, the Democratic candidate for governor will hardly suggest that Gardner was a bearcat and gave him an awful race; the conversation will inevitably trend toward the dirty dogs who fought Morrison. There is much of this sort of complaint lodged against the Democratic candidate by members of the legislature.

Then Mr. Morrison appearing on the same platform with Parker a few nights ago was made to shov to peculiar disadvantage by the Republican candidate, who made a much better speech, showed far greater resource, as candidate on a wide open state and national platform made such a progressive address that the Democratic candidate on both state and national platforms of constructiveness, kicked on the Parker utterance as a Republican speech. It was a pretty good party appeal without any label, but it flabbergasted Morrison and made every Democrat in the general assembly hope that Mr. Morrison will not be rash enough to invite the Monroe Republican into a joint issue.

These and sundry other evidences that Mr. Morrison is not going to be a strong candidate; his great array of women voters who never will be for him, his quarrel with one-half of the party, his unwillingness to forget what others said about him, his great love for saying what he said about others, his resentment of a progressive speech by a Republican, all show weaknesses which will tell in joint or single canvasses. Republican members of the legislature, who seem to be very fond of Collector J. W. Bailey, declare that Mr. Bailey, who is much the smartest man in the whole Morrison party, does not think Morrison has a chance to win. Of course Bailey thinks revaluation will be the first undoing and woman suffrage the other. These Republicans declare that Mr. Bailey does not think Mr. Morrison clever enough to harmonize his ideas on tax-and his attacks on ideas. In other words, the women will scratch Mr. Morrison and revaluation will kill him very dead.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

"Harking Back"

Governor Cox affects to be much concerned at what he regards as an announcement that Senator Harding "purposes to hark back to the days of thirty years ago." His apprehensions are, we judge, only too well founded; wherefore we would sympathetically exhort him to cheer up for the worst is yet to come.

We venture to say that Senator Harding purposes to hark back even more, a good deal more than thirty years. He will hark back about fifty-seven years, to the principal of "government of the people, by the people, for the people;" a principle enunciated by one Abraham Lincoln, who was reviled and denounced by Governor Cox's fellow-partisans more than Theodore Roosevelt and Henry Cabot Lodge and Warren G. Harding all put together have been.

He will do more than that. He will hark back to the days of ninety-seven years ago, to the principle that "in the wars of the European Power in matters relating to themselves, we have never taken any part, nor does it comport with our policy, so to do," a principle enunciated by one James Monroe, whom degenerate Democrats of to-day seem to wish to repudiate and to forget.

He will hark back to the days of a hundred and nineteen years ago, to the principle of "peace, commerce, and honest friendship with all nations; entangling alliance with none;" a principle proclaimed by one Thomas Jefferson, whom Democrats to-day claim as the founder of their party while they depart from and deny the wisest of his national policies.

He will hark back, we have no doubt, to the days of a hundred and twenty-four years ago, to an utterance which ran in this fashion:

The great rule of conduct for us, in regard to foreign nations, is extending our commercial relation to have with them as a little political connection as possible. 'Tis our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world.

That utterance, we may remind Governor Cox, was made by one George Washington, whose patriotic sagacity is still highly esteemed by many American citizens, despite the efforts of the League Covenanters to belittle it.

He will hark back to the days of a hundred and thirty-one years ago, to the text of an instrument which vested in the Congress of the United States the sole power to declare war to raise and support armies, to provide and maintain a navy, and in general to make laws for the instrument known as the Constitution of the United States of America, which a great many American citizens persist in preferring to the Covenant of the League of nations.

He will hark back, even, to the days of a hundred and forty-four years ago, to an historical document which declared—

That these United Colonies are and of right ought to be Free and Independent States --- and that as Free and Independent States they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do.

Those words occurred in a document known as the Declaration of Independence, to the maintenance of which the signers pledged their lives their fortunes, and their sacred honor; and which their descendants to-day have no mind to abrogate or to repudiate.

Since thus to "hark back" seems to be the order of the day, it may be appropriate to suggest that Governor Cox himself might do well to hark back to a still more ancient date than any of these, to a Code which says "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," and to inquire of the practical managers of his campaign how much longer they purpose to let the Forgers of San Francisco stand in the leading item of their platform—Harvey's Weekly.

TAXES - TAXES

Hickory Mercury.

Last year were a thousand or more acres that I could see from my front door that hardly produced enough to maintain the people that lived on them. These were good acres and in one of the best farming sections in Piedmont North Carolina. Why was this true? No labor. Why no labor? Because cotton mills, lumber mills, fertilizer factories and other manufacturing industries had drained the country of its labor at prices far above what the farmer could pay. The farms produced nothing to sell—no revenue.

The inmates of these farm houses were poorly clothed. Why? The price of clothing was three times above its normal level while the income from the farm would not pay the price of comfortable clothing during normal times.

What lands were cultivated, were cultivated with old plows and half worn out machinery. Why? The price of farm machinery was entirely out of reach of the farmer's income—the farm had no revenue and the farmer did not want to mortgage his farm for tools to farm it. But he may have to do this yet, or leave the farm.

The price of every thing the farmer has to buy—clothing, machinery, fence, fertilizer etc.—has multiplied a number of times while the productive capacity of the farm, has not increased a penny. On the other hand the low market of wheat, corn and meat—the products that maintain human life—has had to meet the high price of fertilizer, farm implements, etc., that aid in producing

As if these infernal conditions were not bad enough, last fall a local tax assessor came around and raised the assessment of these farm lands from three to five times what they were during normal times when labor and other conditions were such as to permit a small income.

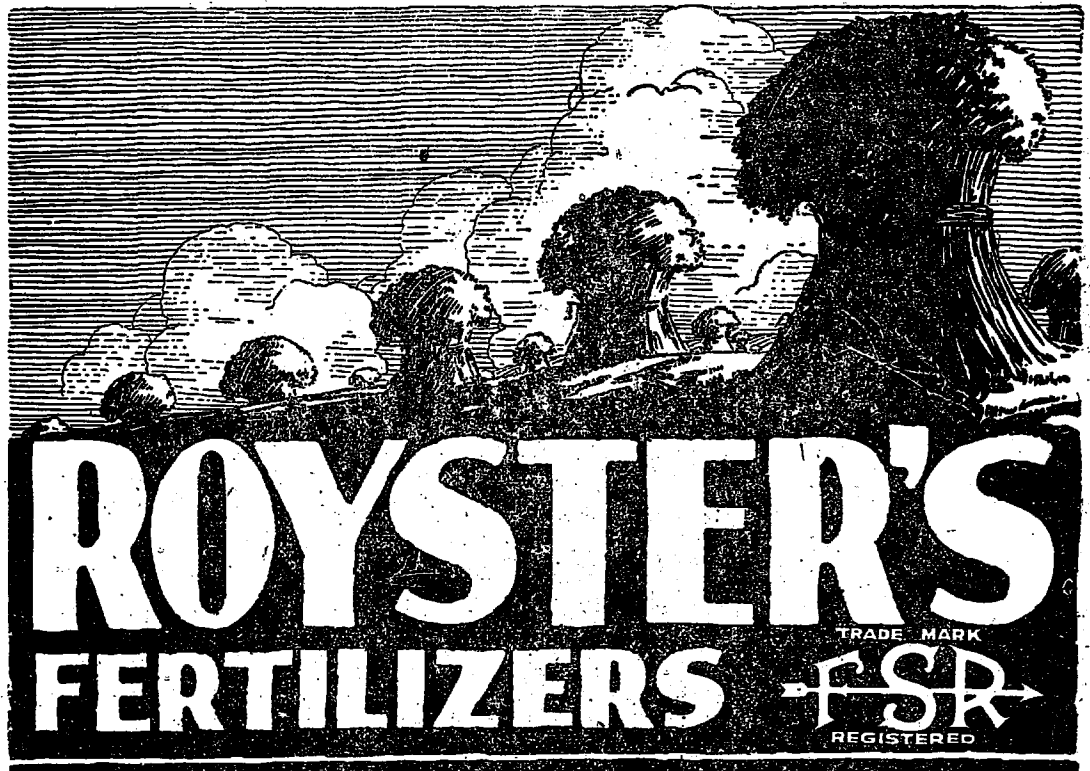

The farmer is thus taxed on his labor to where he must do without it on his tools to where he must use them old and half worn out; on his fertilizer where he must leave them off; on his family necessities to where he must forego them; and on his home to where he will soon have to sell and rent lands on which he was born.

Farms, like solvent credit, should be taxed according to their ability to produce profit. A mortgage of ten thousand ($10,000) dollars bearing six per cent interest should be listed at ten thousand ($10,000) dollars, but no farm should be listed at ten thousand dollars unless its annual income for an average of ten years is six hundred ($600) dollars. No attempt has been made by the tax listers to ascertain the revenue producing capacity of the farms they have listed and, as a result, most farms are assessed far above their capacity to produce. Shall these conditions remain or will this present legislature correct them?

It seems that Mr. Cox has talked too much.

And our sheriff doesn't get as much salary as some smaller officeholders who are appointed and not elected.

The county candidates will now get busy shaking hands, kissing the babies and telling the ladies what good fellows they are.

Here's to the ladies who vote this fall—once our superiors but now our equals, as a fellow from Georgia said the other day.

A lady wants to know who is running this town and the schools. Pardon us, madam, that is a state secret, and we know not.

Salsbury, Statesville and other towns are selling street bonds. Seems that our town could do likewise if an effort was made.

Factories and mills throughout the country are closing down or running on half time. A back to the farm movement may soon be under way.

Statesville is rejoicing over a brand new daily—The Statesville Daily—which made its appearance last Wednesday. It is a newsy and well gotten-up paper and is bound to succeed in that live town.

Davie Republicans Name Ticket.

The Republicans of Davie County met in the court house Monday afternoon and nominated a county ticket. On account of the busy season, the attendance was not large, although every township was well represented. There were several candidates in the convention for the legislature, treasurer, commissioners, sheriff, etc. Hon. A. E. Holton, nominee for the United States Senate, was present and addressed the convention. His speech was practical and pointed, and made the Republicans feel better and the Democrats worse. The following ticket was nominated: Legislature—A. T. Grant, Jr. Sheriff—G. F. Winecoff. Register—J. S. Daniel. Treasurer—J. L. Holton. Coroner—W. D. Foster. Surveyor—M. C. Ijames. County Commissioners—J. F. Rattledge, W. E. Boyles, C. W. Alexander. J. S. Daniel was re-elected county chairman.

What Happened At Court.

The following cases were disposed of at the August term of Davie Superior Court, which was in session here last week with His Honor Judge Lane, of Reidsville, on the bench and Solicitor Hayden Clement, of Salisbury, prosecuting. The court adjourned Wednesday afternoon:

Pope-White Wedding.

A wedding characterized by dignity and simplicity took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gaston L. White in Clarksville township, Wednesday, September 1st, 3 o'clock when their daughter Minnie Elvira became the bride of Mr. Marshall Duke Pope, Rev. S. W. Hall, pastor of both bride and groom, officiating, using the ring ceremony.

The porch was the scene of the wedding which was decorated with potted plants. Just over the doorway was an arch of evergreen and fern under which the vows were spoken in the presence of many interested friends.

Prior to the ceremony Rev. W. V. Brown, of Cycle, sang "O Promise Me," accompanied on the piano by Miss Melvaine Hendrix, who also rendered the Wedding March, and during the ceremony played softly, "To A Wild Rose." At the first sound of Mendelssohn's, Rev. Hall came through the doorway and took his place, then came Mr. John Pope, brother of the groom, groomsmen, with Miss Sebia Hutchins, bridesmaid. Miss Hutchins wore a pink organdie, trimmed in turquoise, a pink hat, and carried a bouquet of pink balsam and fern—then Mr. Guy Collett, with maid of honor, Miss Laura Booe.

who wore white georgette, a black picture hat and carried white lilies mixed with fern. Next came the groom with his best man, Mr. W. Bryan Booe. The bride came on the arm of her brother, Mr. Wm. H. White. The bride who is a beautiful blonde, never looked more lovely than in her tailored suit of peacock blue silver cloth, trimmed in grey tulle, grey gloves and accessories to match, carrying a bouquet of white geranium and lace fern. Mrs. Pope is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. White. Mr. Pope is the oldest son of Mrs. Emma Pope Hendren, and is a prosperous farmer. Both bride and groom were raised in this community and are much loved and admired by all who know them.

Immediately after the ceremony delicious refreshments were served on the lawn, after which the bride and groom left by automobile for Statesville, where they took train for a ten days tour in the mountains of Western North Carolina. After their return they will reside in the village of Cana, where Mr. Pope is now erecting a handsome bungalow.

The bride and groom were recipients of numerous and beautiful gifts, showing the esteem in which they are held.

THE HAUNTED POOL.

Epiphany.—Dr. John Michelson, just beginning his career, becomes resident physician and companion of Homer Sidney at Hartley house. Mr. Sidney is an American, a semi-invalid, old and rich and very desirous to live. Mrs. Sidney is a Spanish woman, dignified and reticent. Jed, the butler, acts like a privileged member of the family. Hartley house is a fine old isolated country place, with a murder story, a "haunted pool," and many watch-dogs, and an atmosphere of mystery. The "haunted pool" is where Richard Dobson, son of a former owner of Hartley house, had killed his brother, Arthur Dobson. Jed begins operations by locking the doctor in his room the very first night. Doctor John fixes his door so he can't be locked in. He meets Isobel, daughter of the house, and falls in love at first sight. In the night he finds the butler drunk and holding Mrs. Sidney by the wrist. He interferes. Mrs. Sidney makes light of it. John buys a revolver. John overhears Jed telling Mrs. Sidney he will have his way. In reply she says she will not hesitate to kill him. Mrs. Sidney asks John to consent to the announcement of his engagement to Isobel. The young people consent to the make-believe engagement. Later they find it is to be head of Jed, who would marry Isobel. Jed tries to kill John, but the matter is smoothed over. John, though engaged to Isobel, conceals his love. Mr. Sidney visits a nearby prison and has Dobson, the murderer, pointed out. Queer stories of the "haunted pool" are told.

"And tell and stories of the deaths of kings," said Jed, drawing his chair nearer to the fire and spreading out his hands before it. He was drinking more rationally now, slipping his wine instead of gulping it. He had arrived at his desired state and wished to maintain it.

Mr. Sidney seemed to feel a comfortable glow as Jed drank. There was no doubt that by suggestion he obtained physical sensations of stimulation and joviality.

"If we had a ghost," said Mr. Sidney, "it would walk on such a night." The wind made an extraordinary attack upon the windows as he spoke and sneaked a soughing sound from the chimney.

"Tell the doctor the story of the pool," Mr. Sidney said to Jed. "We are in the comfortable werewolf state. Let's have our legend. Do you want to add a shiver to your contentment, doctor?" he asked.

"I want to hear the story," said Mr. Sidney.

"So do I, once again," said Mr. Sidney, "on such a night."

"This place once belonged to a family named Dobson," said Jed.

"It was a very old family—for American families," said Mr. Sidney. "Come over in 1840," said Jed.

"English Puritans from Holland," said Mr. Sidney. "Go ahead, Jed. I shan't interrupt."

"After the capture of New Amsterdam from the Dutch by the English, the Dobsons came down from the north and bought this manor-house from the Dutch family that had it. Then the Dobsons lived here in a simple fashion."

"They renamed it Hartley house for their father, who was Hartley Dobson. That's its name now."

"I don't want to break in unnecessarily," said Jed, "but where do you get your information, Jed?"

"It's all in records in the library," he answered, "and if I am going to tell the story I want a fair chance. . . . A lot of generations of Dobsons lived here. There was always a Dobson family in the house, and the property came down to the generation that made this story. There were two boys in that family—a half century ago—the sons of James and Henrietta Dobson."

"Henrietta Dobson died when her son Richard was nine years old and her other son Henry was seven years old. James Dobson died two years later, and the boys were parentless. This family was an argument against families."

"That's one of the heterodox notions, I have instilled in an innocent mind," said Mr. Sidney. "Jed, you must not repeat phrases in your narrative. You parrot things and try to pass them as observations."

"You'll have him surly in a moment," I suggested, "and then where is the story?"

"I never knew him surly," said Mr. Sidney, "and he could not be in his genial wine."

Jed showed the flicker of a malignant glance in my direction and went on with his story evenly and good-naturedly.

"I don't pretend to have all the details or to understand it," he said; "but from what I learn, Richard Dobson, the elder brother, was strong and brutal. Henry Dobson, the younger brother, was frail and sensitive. I guess they hated each other from the cradle."

"Dick, when he was four, and Henry was two, found ways of tormenting his younger brother. The best thing Henry ever had from Richard was contempt."

"I have known families of that nature," said Mr. Sidney. "Our conventions teach us to regard a family tie as a sacrament. In many cases it is only an odious obligation leading to tragedy."

"Dick knew all of Henry's weaknesses," Jed continued. "Sometimes he would torture him physically, by twisting his wrist or rolling him over on the ground when young girls were around. Sometimes he would torture him without laying hands on him."

"Dick was a thick-headed brute, but he had a genius for cruelty. When their parents died and the boys approached their majority, Henry was almost an imbecile for fear of Dick."

"Dick wanted then to get his inheritance and go out into the world, but the estate was left in trust until both boys were of age. Dick came of age and was obliged to wait two years for Henry."

"I was astonished by the succinct and philosophical brevity of this ignorant man's narrative. Mr. Sidney was at ease in his chair with his eyes closed and a placid expression of pleasure on his face. Jed was active in gesticulation as he talked. That was the effect of the wine. The wind continued to pull at the chimney and scold in the corners."

"Jed has read a great deal to me," said Mr. Sidney without opening his eyes. "I think he has become theatrical."

"Well," said Jed, "to shorten a story, when Dick, being twenty-one, found that he had to wait two more years for Henry, he became more brutal than ever. In some way or other, the night of the murder the two brothers happened to meet in a tavern in a village not far from Hartley house. Henry did not want to go home with his brother, but they both got drunk and they started to walk home together."

"No one has been able to do much more than guess at what took place, but it was known that Richard was a brute and that Henry was scared of him but was not a coward. They must have had a violent quarrel."

"There was a cottage near the pool. The only person in it at the time was a little girl, whose parents were not at home. She was awakened by cries and swearing. She said that she heard one man say: 'The hell and you dead in the morning.' Then she heard sounds of a struggle and was scared and hid her head under the bedclothes."

"When her parents came home she told them what she had heard, and they went out with a lantern to the place from which the noise came. They found parts of Henry's clothing. The next day Richard was found, ten miles away, still drunk. He confessed that he had killed his brother in a drunken rage."

"Afterward he said that he hadn't, but he admitted that there had been a quarrel. It was a most celebrated trial. Richard was convicted though the state could not produce any indubitable physical evidence of Henry's death. The contention over this evidence made the case noted."

"Richard Dobson is in the penitentiary at Altwick now. Henry's ghost is what is supposed to come back to the pool."

The wind howled outside, and the fire burned cheerfully. As a romantic I felt rebellious. The ghost story would not have any human element in it a prisoner in a nearby penitentiary. It was too common a savor of the present.

"But Stevenson would have liked the story," said Mr. Sidney. "It has so much hair in it. Probably it is because I live here where this tale of horror has its scene that I enjoy 'The Master of Ballantrae' so much."

CHAPTER VI.

When I said good-night to Mr. Sidney and Jed I did not go to my room. A little alcoholic stimulant to one unaccustomed to it will break down routine. I went to the library to select a book and take it to my room. The fire in the library was burning cheerfully. The wind had a clear sweep at the windows. To a slightly exhilarated perception the circumstances were alluringly comfortable.

I found a good book, but lost the inclination to go to my room. I sat down in a comfortable chair, having turned off all the lights except that of the reading lamp. The library was large, and when the reading lamp alone was lighted there were deep shadows and the room was largely in darkness.

I read for a while and then fell asleep. I had no intention of doing that, but drowsiness came irresistibly and I was gone before I could force myself to go to bed.

It was two o'clock when I awoke. The wind had died down, I felt restless and uneasy, not being accustomed to falling asleep in this fashion. The sensation of waking up and having perceptions struggle to establish not only location but identity was unpleasant.

I started then for bed but stopped at the main door of the house on my way. I went to look to the fastenings and found that Jed, whose duty it was to close the house, had forgotten to lock and bar the door.

It was this incident of seeing the chain hanging down and of going to the door that suggested a cure for my unpleasant restlessness after the nap in the library. I opened the door and went outside for a walk.

The moon in its last quarter was rising in a cloud-filled sky. There was light one instant and then dark. I expected the dogs to join me, but none came.

A challenge arose within me—to go down by the way toward the haunted pool. It was the moral taunt of a suggested cowardice. I thought of the place and of all I had been told of it; and the instinctive apprehension, perceptible as I stood on the steps to the entrance, provoked the challenge.

It seemed imperative. It would have been a moral retreat to go back into the house, as would have been sensible, lock the door and go to bed. That seemed like backing down in the face of an inviting danger. These challenges are inconsequential, but they seem important to character.

I did not have the real moral courage, which was to turn my back on the invitation and go indoors. I went down the steps to prove to myself my confidence in myself—thereby disproving it.

As I neared the pool, the moon went behind a cloud. I came to a clump of bushes. The moon came from behind its cover. There was a gentle flood of returning light. I was in, or rather behind, a screen of trees and brush. The pool was fifty feet away.

At the edge of the pool a man was revealed in the moonlight. He leaned on a stick.

The moon went behind another cloud, and the figure on the bank became indistinct. It almost disappeared. I stood still, with apprehensive shudders working up and down my spine. The phenomenon was outrageous and unbelievable. The moonlight flashed out again for an instant. I saw the figure again but persuaded or tried to persuade myself that I did not see it.

I said to myself that it was a bush twisted into extravagant shape by my imagination.

The moon went under a great dark cloud. I made a moral and physical retreat. I did not run. That would have been confession and confession and expression of desire. I was hypocritical and walked, but my moral defeat was complete.

There was a man at the haunted pool. I had seen him and something had deterred me from speaking to him, finding out who he was or why he was there.

A really violent change came into our lives. A suggestion that Mr. Sidney was to go to the South for the winter was acted upon, and within a month I was separated from the place and people so important in my affections. Doctor Brownell had been called to Hartley house by Mr. Sidney's discouraging condition. Our invalid had overtaxed himself the evening he displayed such activity in his room, such unusual strength and agility. The following morning he was almost in collapse. I was alarmed and telephoned Doctor Brownell, who came out at once.

"You will see his will pull him through," he said. "If it were not for that, I should be alarmed. He's very low."

"I blame myself for permitting the unusual exertion," I said. "My judgment was dulled, I think, by my happiness at seeing him so strong. He really seemed strong. It did not seem fictitious or unnatural."

Doctor Brownell said that the phenomenon was not new in his experience with Mr. Sidney's case.

"I have had it six years," he said, "and this is the sixth time he has gone from 'unequaling' to 'unequaling' strength to extreme and dangerous weakness. And always in the fall—something about this time. Each time I have seen his will assert itself and strengthen him in his exhaustion."

I went to the library to select a book

The day I called Doctor Brownell I had been too concerned and alarmed to pay much attention to anyone but Mr. Sidney and did not observe until toward evening that Jed was maliciously unfriendly again in his attitude toward me. Finally he made it apparent by a bit of vicious insolence. I had determined never again to take hold of that nettle gingerly but to clutch it.

"What do you mean by that?" I asked.

"There is a plague of officiousness about here, or has been since you came," he said. "You locked the front door last night some time, didn't you?"

"I found it open this morning, and after I had walked about the grounds for a while I came in and threw the bolt," I told him.

He seemed unpleasantly astonished—jolted and disturbed.

"You were abroad last night?" he exclaimed.

"You had locked me in, I know," I said, "or thought you had. I found my door bolted when I went back to my room. I wasn't in it when you bolted it," I added. "I was asleep in the library. When I awakened I went outside for a moment. The door was unfastened. I bolted it when I came in."

Jed was more disturbed, and he showed it.

"Where did you go?" he asked.

"I walked around," I said, "down by the river."

His discomposure became acute. He looked sick.

"Where were the dogs?" I asked. "I didn't see any."

He tried to smile.

"They were with me," he said. "I was out, and you locked me out. That's why I have been so indignant. I came back and found I had to break into the house. I was in a hurry. You wouldn't have liked it yourself."

"I don't like it myself. I don't like being locked in my room. I'll not have it. I thought I had given you to understand that it would not be tolerated. I do not want to annoy the family by complaints, but I will not endure that."

"Well, you can see the occasion for it. You were loose last night, and your conscientious indignation made trouble. I knew your type. The moment I set eyes on you, I said here's a trouble-making person with a duty. You show it. Of course, you had to bolt that door. You could not assume that it was open for a purpose. No thought of anybody that might be outside! I knew you. That's why we're safe only when you are locked in your room."

"Well, I'll not have it," I insisted, "and you can understand that. It is flat. Why do you have to run around the grounds at night?"

"Do you have to be judge of my habits? If you do, it may satisfy you to know that I frequently have many duties to perform for Mr. Sidney in the night. I frequently drink too much wine. I frequently walk around the grounds to clear my head and be able to do what is needed by Mr. Sidney."

My mind had jumped to a conclusion.

"Were you at the pool last night?" I asked.

"Yes," he said.

He was very ugly.

"You seem to be a Paul Pry," he said. "You ought to be manacled."

I was not interested in Jed. I was thinking of my figure at the pool. As embodied in Jed it did not fascinate me.

"It might have been in Montevideo."

Life in the Navy.

Charlotte.—Chief Quartermaster W. A. Wilson, officer in charge of the local United States navy recruiting station, has received letters from James M. Cox and W. G. Harding, respectively, for the presidency of the United States in which both gave the navy their highest indorsement as a means of training.

In his letter Governor Cox states: "Not only is it evident that a brief period of service is offered to the young man, but opportunity comes to him in this service for a better education and an increase in his earning capacity for future life all of which will raise to a higher level our already praiseworthy standard of citizenship. The liberal education that comes by travel and meeting other men in all parts of the world is available and the associations are indeed attractive."

Commenting on the advantages offered by the navy Senator Harding had the following to say: "I think better of the service in the navy for the young men of America than I am able to tell you. Under the modern plan of instruction and training, service in the navy literally fits young Americans for practical life and gives them a wholesome conception of service to the country. Apart from these things of abiding worth, there is a fine opportunity for all young men in the navy to enlarge the horizon of their views and their experience. If I had a son I could wish him no better fortune than a wholesome period of service in the navy of the United States."

Hickory Schools to Open.

Hickory.—The public schools of Hickory will begin the fall term on Monday, September 6, and recess in time the following Tuesday for the first circus parade of the season to strike this section. It is hoped that the session, which was interrupted by influenza for the past two years, may run the full nine months without mishap. Superintendent R. W. Carver has all his teachers under contract. The city has leased a furnished house in a good residential section for the teachers.

Henderson Confesses Guilt.

Asheville.—In his lonely cell in the Buncombe county jail, where he was brought for safe keeping Frank Henderson, of Madison county, broke down under the cross-examination storm of his keepers and confessed to the murder of his wife in the little village of Runion the night of August 24, according to Sheriff Mitchell, of Buncombe county and Sheriff Bailey, of Madison county who visited him in his statement Henderson exonerated Susie Sams from any blame for the death of his wife.

DR THACHER'S LIVER AND BLOOD SYRUP

You're as Sick or as Well as Your LIVER
How's your liver? Are you constipated, bilious, grouchy? Have you dizzy spells, dull headaches, bad taste in your mouth, foul breath? If so, you need Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup; which has been knocking out troubles of your sort ever since the good old southern doctor first prescribed it away back in 1852. On sale at your drug store.

You're as Old or as Young as Your BLOOD
If you would stay young in health as you grow older in years, have a care for your blood. Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup puts life into your blood; purifies and enriches it; makes it tone up the whole system. Also keeps your bowels open and is a tonic and a cleanser combined. Good for the whole family. Sold at your drug store.

Andy Antos, Thompsonville, Ill., wrote Jan. 21, 1918: "I feel that I should send you a testimonial for Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup, which I have used for twelve years. Before I used it I could not do a whole day's work; because I was so weak in my kidneys, but I am now strong and healthy."

J. M. Sexton, Box 147, Ocala, Fla., wrote Jan. 22, 1918: "I used a bottle of your Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup in my family with a four-year-old child that had bad kidneys, caused him to lose weight, and I found it to be more good than all the medicines that I ever got hold of."

TO MEET THE EMERGENCY
Youngster Had Little Difficulty Mak-

He Would Do.

As the old lady strolled on the cliffs near a seaside town she came across a well-dressed in the well-known seaside rig.

"What do they teach you in the seaside?" she asked him, with a beaming smile.

"To be mainly citizens, and true to king and country," replied the lad promptly.

"And what are you going to be when you grow up, my little man?" went on his self-appointed examiner.

"A soldier, to fight for the king,"
was the patriotic reply.

"Very brave," applauded the old dame. "Now, suppose you saw the king's coach dashing along, with running horses, straight toward the edge of this cliff, what would you do?"

The youngster eyed her in disgust.
Evidently she was one of those people who never imagine a boy has any sense. He determined to settle her one and for all, so he replied:

"I'd shut my eyes, and sing, 'God Save the King.'"—London Answers.

POULTRY CACKLES

CARE FOR LITTLE CHICKENS

When First Put Into a Brooder They Should Be Protected by Board or Wire Frame.

When chickens are first put into a brooder they should be confined under or around the hover by placing a board or wire frame a few inches outside (this would not apply to the small outdoor colony brooders). The fence or guard should be moved gradually farther away from the hover and discarded entirely when the chickens are three or four days old, or when they have learned to return to the source of heat, poultry specialists in the United States department of agriculture say.

Young chickens should be closely watched to see that they do not huddle together or get chilled. They should be allowed to run on the ground whenever the weather is favorable, as they do much better than when kept continuously on cement or board floors. Weak chickens should usually be killed as soon as noticed, as they rarely make good stock, while they may become carriers of disease.
Brooders should be disinfected at least once a year, and more frequently if the chickens brooded in them have had any disease.

FOR SUCCESS WITH POULTRY

Good Stock is First Fundamental for Best Results on Farm—Dual-Purpose Breeds Best.

The first fundamental of successful farm poultry keeping is good stock.
Of course, it is well known that farmers may at times get fairly good results from ordinary stock, but at the same time it must be remembered that with the same care and attention better results will be obtained from good stock. By good stock is not necessarily meant stock which has been bred for exhibition purposes. It means standardbred stock, which by virtue of its pure breeding has been systematically developed and which is better fitted therefore to give the results expected of it and to yield a more uniform and more desirable product.

On the average farm the poultry flock is expected to furnish eggs and

Plymouth Rock is Good for Eggs and Table.

poultry for the farmer's table as well as to produce a surplus for sale. For that reason the so-called general-purpose breeds, such as the Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte, and Rhode Island Red, which are good layers and at the same time make excellent carcasses for the table, are recommended by poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture as best suited to the farm needs. A further advantage of good stock is the fact that the owner will take a pride in such a flock which he will not feed in a flock of mongrels, and as a result he will give the hens better care.

CULL UNPROFITABLE LAYERS

It Will Help Increase Profits for Breeder to Dispose of All Hens in Poor Condition.

While some hens will prove to be profitable, others are kept at a loss and are a drag on the profitable hens in the flock. It is important, therefore, to cull out the unprofitable producers, as this will increase the profit realized from the flock as a whole.
Any hens found to be sickly or in poor condition should be culled as soon as discovered.

INJURIOUS LITTLE RED MITE

Insects Sap Vitality of Hen by Sucking Her Blood and as a Consequence She Won't Lay.

The little red mite saps the vitality of the hen by sucking her blood. Hens have actually been killed, virtually eaten alive, by mites. Hens cannot lay except when their vitality is maintained. Vitality and mites cannot exist in the same henhouse.

FEEDS FOR YOUNG CHICKENS

Little Fellows Should Be Given Just Enough to Satisfy Appetite and Keep Them Busy.

Young chickens should be fed not more than barely enough to satisfy their appetites and to keep them exercising, except at the evening or last meal, when they should be given all they care to eat.

spring. On her recovery she was assured by her friends that the operation had taken ten years away from her looks. Laughingly one day she complained to the doctor: "If three hours on the operating table made me

"Five hours there, my dear madam," soberly retorted the surgeon, "would

"Eatonic, in Four Days Did Me $20 Worth of Good"

So writes Mr. Edward W. Bragg of Mecra, Ind., who suffered from stomach troubles for a long time but could not find anything to help him, but at last had faith enough to give eatonic a test. It quickly removed the excess acids and poisonous gases from the body and the misery disappeared. Of course, when the cause of the trouble is removed, the sufferer must get well. Eatonic is quick, sure and safe, and the lasting benefits come in new strength, life and pep.
Your druggist will supply you with Still Unsubdued.

Marian had formed the bad habit of sucking her thumb. Her parents had wasted considerable time and energy trying to cure her of this.

The day that a little sister arrived in the home her father said: "Now, Marian, you must never suck your thumb again, as the baby might see you, and do it, too."

Marian coolly replied: "When I want to suck my thumb I'll turn my back on her, and she will never know anything about it."

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for infants and children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this—It is important. Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

HAS NO PAIN NOW

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Mrs. Warner.

Ocala, Fla.—"Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of stomach I could not lie in bed. I suffered so it seemed as though I would die, and I was not regular either. I suffered for a year and was unable to do my housework, could only wash dishes once in a while. I read an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. It surely did wonders for me. I have no pains now and I can do my housework without any trouble at all. I will always praise your medicine as it does as much good in female weakness, and you may use these facts as a testimony."—Mrs. LESTER E. WARNER, R. 1, Box 69, Ocala, Fla.

The reason women write such letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. and tell their friends how they are helped is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives. Freed from their illness they want to pass the good news along to other suffering women that they also may be relieved.

Self-Centered.

TUBERCULOSIS IS SERIOUS MENACE

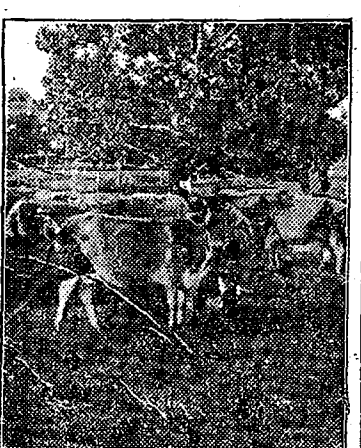

Ran Its Course Through Illinois Herd of Dairy Cattle With Great Rapidity.

ANIMALS REACTED TO TEST

Danger of Disease to Cattle and Swine Demonstrated by Sale of Hogs From This Farm Early in Year—Test Is Urged.

The extent to which bovine tuberculosis, if uncontrolled, runs its course through a herd of cattle is shown in a recent report received by the United States department of agriculture from one of its field inspectors in Illinois. Every animal in a herd of grade Holsteins and Jerseys reacted to the tuberculosis test. The herd consisted of 14 cows, two calves and two bulls. Upon post-mortem examination six of the animals showed such extensive lesions that the entire carcass was condemned and destroyed. All of the other reactors likewise showed lesions though not of such an extensive nature as to necessitate destruction of the carcass. The fact that every animal in the herd reacted and showed lesions makes the case one of the most striking ever recorded.

Swine Owners Cautioned.
The danger of tuberculous cattle to swine was further demonstrated by the sale of hogs from this farm early in the year. The first lot of 21 hogs sold showed such extensive lesions of tuberculosis upon post-mortem that the packing company refused to accept the remaining 50. These were subsequently sold to a local shipper and their identity and destination are not known. If the swine are still alive they are undoubtedly a menace to other stock. The bureau of animal industry cautions swine owners against purchasing stock from farms where either tuberculous cattle or swine are kept.

Chronic Cougher Died.

The bureau inspector also reported that a week after the shipment of hogs had been made, a milk cow—a chronic cougher—had died and the younger stock was allowed to devour the carcass. Such a practice is responsible for a great deal of tuberculosis among swine in the United States. According to bureau officials, the fact stated should cause any live stock farmer who finds tuberculosis among his hogs or whose shipments of hogs are refused because of extensive lesions of that disease, to have his herd of cattle tested promptly. Unless the origin of infection is known and removed, tuberculosis is liable to run its course among all the cattle and swine on the farm.

TESTING SOILS FOR ACIDITY

Valuable Information May Be Secured by Insertion of Blue and Red Litmus Paper.

One of the common methods of testing soil for acidity is to get from a drug store a few pieces, each of blue and red litmus paper. A speck is inserted into the soil to be tested, and the color of the paper is noted. When the speck is withdrawn one piece of the litmus paper of each color is placed into the opening made by the speck, and the soil is pressed firmly against the litmus paper which is allowed to remain a minute or so, or until the paper is acted on by the soil moisture. If the blue litmus paper turns red the soil is acid. If the red litmus paper turns blue the soil is alkaline. If the paper is not changed in color the soil is neutral. If you wish to get the degree of acidity you had best get a test made by a chemist.

KEEPING SCUM FROM TANKS

One of the Best Methods Is to Use Very Small Amount of Copper Sulphate or Blue Vitriol.

One of the best methods of keeping the green scum from gathering in water tanks is to use a very small amount of copper sulphate or blue vitriol. The copper kills the organism which is a small plantlike growth called algae. The amount of copper in the water will not be large enough to poison live stock. A proportion of one-half ounce to 80 gallons of water is enough to kill all ordinary growth of this kind, and it can be repeated as the new growth appears.

HAIRY PERUVIAN HAS SPECIAL ADVANTAGES

Should Not Be Confused With Smooth-Leaved Variety.

Is Rapid Grower, Recovers Quickly After Cutting and Furnishes More Pasture During Winter and in Fall and Spring.

Peruvian alfalfa has decided advantages over other varieties for those sections of the United States where it will grow, say forage experts of the United States department of agriculture. This should be taken as applying to the true or hairy Peruvian alfalfa and not to the so-called smooth-leaved Peruvian alfalfa. This latter name the specialists regard as unfortunate, as it leads to confusion in the seed trade and gives unscrupulous dealers an opportunity to make excessive profits on mixed seeds. The "smooth Peruvian" is hardly distinguishable from common alfalfa.

The principal advantages of Peruvian as compared with common alfalfa are its more rapid growth, quick recovery after cutting, and ability to grow in cooler weather, thus furnishing more pasture during the winter and in late fall and early spring. The territory in which common alfalfa could be profitably replaced by Peruvian includes a comparatively narrow strip down the Pacific coast and along the Mexican border and the Gulf, thence up the Atlantic coast to the vicinity of Charleston, S. C. It cannot be grown to advantage where the winter temperature falls below 10 degrees.

This alfalfa was first introduced into this country by the United States department of agriculture in 1899. The earliest introductions were not perpetuated, however, and it was not until 1903 that considerable efforts were made to produce a supply of seed. The subject of the Peruvian alfalfa industry is discussed in detail in department of agriculture circular 83.

TIMBER RAISING IN EASTERN UNITED STATES PAYS BECAUSE—

1. There is plenty of cheap land unfit for agriculture.
2. The abundant rainfall permits rapid tree growth.
3. Transportation facilities by rail and water are good.
4. Numerous large cities furnish an adequate market.
5. The region is far removed from the virgin supplies of the Pacific Northwest.

WAGON TAILBOARD IS HANDY

Adjustable Device Makes It Possible to Shovel From Fowl Load of Apples or Potatoes.

This tailboard makes it possible to commence shoveling from a full load of potatoes or apples; it may also be used as a hopper to pour the load into a chute. The board is attached to the bottom of the wagon box with heavy strap hinges, put on with bolts. Heavy sheet iron is fitted to the outside of the tailboard and is bent up at the sides to form wings, as shown.

Adjustable Wagon Tailboard Helps.

The sheet iron is fastened to the wood with soft-iron rivets, the washers on the upper end of the rivets being sunk into the wood to leave a smooth surface for shoveling. The tailboard should be reinforced with wooden cleats on the outside, in order to withstand rough handling. The supporting chain is adjustable to hold the board at any angle from below level up to vertical.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

ELIMINATE UNTHRIFTY BIRDS

Starved Chicks Will Never Pay for Feed and Care Used in Trying to Raise Them.

In any lot of chicks there will be found certain starved or unthrifty individuals. Such birds will never pay for the feed and care used in trying to rear them. It is not only good sense but also good business judgment to call these unthrifty chicks just as soon as they are discovered. There also will be found certain cockerels which exceed their fellows in the rapidity of growth and maturity. It is well to mark and save such cockerels which reach a good size to use as breeders.

NO CONTRACT WITH EUROPE

Senator Harding Exposes the Fallacy of President Wilson's Position.

COUNTRY GAVE NO PROMISE

"America's Part in the World War an Obligation to Ourselves" Is the Declaration Made, and Facts Upheld It.

In his latest address Senator Harding devoted a few words to the president's favorite theory that the United States is bound by some sort of promise, contract or other form of obligation to carry out its particular scheme for joining the United States to the league. Senator Harding's reply is simple and convincing.

He says the truth is that America's part in the world war was an obligation to ourselves, performed in sympathy with assigned—not allied—powers and our part in winning the war was a manifestation of American conscience, not the fulfillment of a written obligation.

Such is the truth and it is important to insist upon it because the contrary has been asserted repeatedly in high quarters and has already been echoed in the speeches of Governor Cox. The people of the United States believe in keeping promises and if the assertion that the United States made any sort of promises, expressed or implied, which bind the country to the league is believed by a number of voters those voters will vote to the best of their ability to make that promise good.

Senator Harding touched the whole question at a vital point when he contrasted the words associated and allied. This country made no alliance with any other nations before the war, during the war or after the war. The only promise implied in the declaration of war was that the war would be fought to a finish and its results secured. Everything contained in the treaty of peace which goes beyond that goes beyond anything that the United States agreed to or can be bound to. Whatever else is done will be a matter of new and independent agreement.—Detroit Free Press.

Put Europe First.

After the signing of the armistice President Wilson went to Europe and spent nearly eight months in Europe or on the ocean between, neglecting American affairs and letting his own country drift, in the midst of serious unsolved problems. When he returned he plunged the country into a dispute between the executive and the senate, not over American but European affairs. From December, 1913, to July, 1920, President Wilson's neglected his own country, and thought of Europe before America. There is no remedy except the election of a Republican president and a Republican congress.

Governor Cox's Promise.

Governor Cox has made a public pledge to carry out the foreign policies of President Wilson. "What he promised," said the governor, "I shall endeavor to carry out with all my strength to give."

The Country Can Expect Nothing from This except an attempt to involve the United States in all the dangers of the alliance known as the League of Nations.

An explicit promise of this sort no amount of soft peddling later can modify.

Wilson Fooled by Premiers.

When he sat round the peace table with such badly disposed men as the premiers of the great powers seemed to be, President Wilson little thought France and England were hatching the scheme to combine in shutting out dear America from the oil supply of the world against which he is now protesting. But, as the late Timothy J. Campbell of Tammany, referring to the Constitution would put it, "What's the league covenant between friends?"

Harding's Position Proper.

No one can now say what will be the exact situation in March next either with respect to the attitude of the senate or with respect to international conditions. No one knows what can be done, or even what should be done, and as a sincere man Mr. Harding refuses to commit himself to any precise program. He is for a league substantially like the Wilson covenant but the Lodge reservations, and this is as far as he can honestly go.—New York Sun and Herald.

The People are going to elect Harding and Coolidge because they are tired of Democratic inefficiency and misrule.

Duty Up to Republicans.

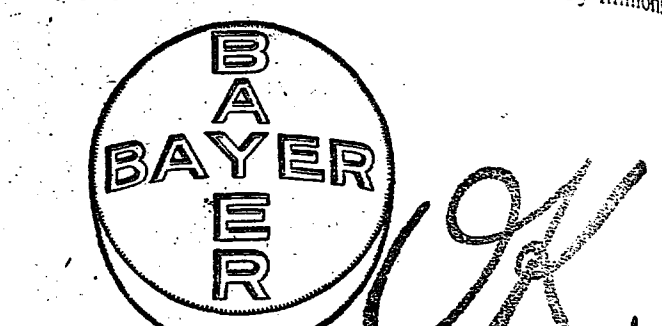

The Democratic administration left the finances of the country in bad shape, the currency inflated until the American dollar is worth less than 50 cents. The Republicans must repair the damage.

Question Demands an Answer.

Early in the war congress voted $100,000,000 to President Wilson "for war purposes" to spend as he saw fit. How did he spend it? Perhaps this is what he is reported to be sending to Poland.

The Social Instinct.
"You don't seem to take the same interest in your work that you did at first," remarked Farmer Cornsheel.
"I take as much interest as ever," replied the hired man. "But what's the use of my trying to do so much work that I'll get unpopular with the rest of the help?"
No Laughing Matter.
"I admire the man who laughs at danger, don't you?" "No, I think he has a mighty poor sense of humor."

HAD USE FOR HIS MILLION HE GOT HIS ROUTES

Zeb Would at Least Employ It to Good Advantage, as Far as It Would Go.

A party of baymen gathered round the stove in a little oyster shack on the Great South Bay started the old question of what they would do if they suddenly came into possession of $1,000,000. Some bought great ocean-going yachts; others endowed schools, and one even offered to contribute his to help out the government.

The question finally came round to old Zeb Banks, noted as the ne'er-do-well of the fishing neighborhood. "And now, Zeb, you've been keeping pretty quiet," one of them said. "Just what'd you do if you had a million dollars?"

"Well, I don't know 'actly," responded Zeb reflectively as he spat at the stove. "I reckon I'd pay it on my debts 's far as it went"—Saturday Evening Post.

This reunion will be a yearly event. J. F. Click of Hickory, is chairman, and Miss Ruth Hodges, of Mocksville, R. 4, is secretary. It was a great day for all those who were present.

Mr. M. D. Pope and Miss Minnie White, both of near Cana, were united in marriage last Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gaston L. White. Rev. S. W. Hall, pastor of the bride and groom, performed the ceremony in the presence of many friends of the contracting parties. The bride received many handsome presents. The Record wishes for this popular young couple a long, happy and prosperous life.

Gov. Bickett Called Down.

Gov. Bickett called all the farmers liars by saying that "any man who did not believe in the Revaluation Act was a liar and the truth was not in him." He got by with this temporarily. He developed into a great military Governor, and told his troops to go to Graham and "shoot straight." They went and shot straight at an empty cornfield and some innocent, peaceable citizens. They got one man and wounded some, and this being such a howling success, that we suppose he was feeling his military oats so much that he decided he would take a hand in running the United States Army and ordered a criminal pardoned and sentenced him to enlist in the Army or Navy. But here, by the eternal, is where he broke his lasses jug. Uncle Sam notified him that he was not enlisting criminals to associate with honest, clean-charactered Americans. Bickett's estimate of the character of our boys must be low.—Gaston Times.

1000 Silver Dollars Idle.

A sack of 1,000 silver dollars recently delivered to San Francisco bank had been in the vault of the Sub-Treasury since the day the coins were minted, October 21, 1891. The bank figures that if the money had been drawing interest from the date it was coined the sack would now be worth $3,000 instead of $1,000.

Personally Mr. Cox is not in exactly a position to cry against "monied class" and "money in politics." He himself is rated as several times a millionaire this money having been made since he entered politics and the bulk of it since the war began. The Economy of Using Goodyear Small Car Tires

So-called bargain tires, made up for sensational sales and offered at ridiculously low prices, do not attract careful buyers.

They are far more concerned with what they get than with what they pay because they know that in the end it is performance and not price that delivers actual tire economy.

The popularity of Goodyear Tires, of the 30 x 3-1/2, 30 x 3-1/2 and 31 x 4-inch sizes, is based on the fact that they deliver exceptional mileage at exceedingly low cost.

NUMBER 10

Political Freedom Is An Issue Of Campaign.

John J. Parker Republican candidate for governor, spoke in the courthouse at Shelby. He discussed state and national issues, especially the revaluation act. He said his prediction about the effect of the revaluation act had been verified by the report of the state commission. He contended that under the revaluation act the railroads would pay less tax. The banks would pay less. The owners of personal property would pay less, while real estate would pay more. "This shows," said he, "that the effect of the revaluation act is to throw a greater burden on the farmer. He will pay between 50 and 60 per cent more taxes." But probably the most interesting part of Mr. Parker's speech was that part which dealt with the treatment of O. Max Gardner by the machine. He said: "One of the great issues of this campaign is political freedom. The question which presents itself to every man who loves his state is whether the Simmons-Watts machine should be allowed to strike not only the Democratic party, but the state of North Carolina. The political history of this country shows that whenever a party holds power for a long number of years it develops a machine which stifles the progress of the party, and uses the government of the state not for the purpose of bettering the condition of the people, but for serving the purpose of the machine."

"This is what has happened in North Carolina. The reason that we have done so little for agriculture, for roads, for schools and for labor is because the reactionary Simmons-Watts machine has its grip upon the throat of the Democratic party and of the state. The progressive and forward looking men of the state will not crawl in the dust before the machine and the machine grinds them to powder. "The only way to get rid of the machine is to defeat the Democratic party at the polls. As soon as the machine loses the state offices it will go to pieces and the progressive element of the Democratic party will have a chance to get control of that party and make it a power for good in the state. But you cannot beat the machine by fighting within the party. The reason is that no man is strong enough by himself to overcome a machine whose ramifications extend into every precinct of the state. Roosevelt was the most popular Republican who ever lived, but he could not break the power of the Republican machine in 1912. Kitchin was probably the most popular man in North Carolina but he dashed himself to pieces against the Simmons-Watts machine in the same year and his friends have been proscribed by the machine ever since."

"One of the great evils of the machine rule is that it deprives the state of the services of its best men. The machine never forgets. The man who fights it is consigned to eternal oblivion and his friends who supported him are led to the guillotine whenever they offer themselves for public office. Max Gardner is a case in point. He supported Kitchin in 1912. In the eyes of the machine that was an unpardonable sin. Now, Max is a splendid fellow. He is a man of character and ability. He is personally one of the most popular men in the state. He aspired to the governorship and the machine had left hands off. He would have beat Morrison by thousands of votes. But eight years ago the machine had promised the governorship to Morrison. The word went down the line that Gardner was to be slaughtered at all cost, and not even his great ability and popularity could stand against the machine. I shall not tell you how they beat him. You know the methods that were used, methods that caused the cheeks of every loyal son of North Carolina to blush with shame and righteous indignation."

"A man asked me the other day 'Gardner could come back.' That depends upon the outcome of this election. The machine will use the same methods against me that they used against Gardner. If they succeed they will do for Gardner and his friends what they did for Kitchin and his friends. There is no hope for the progressive young men of the Democratic party as long as the machine is in control. If, on the other hand, I am elected, the machine will go to pieces and Gardner and the progressive younger element of the Democratic party will take charge of that party and will make it stand for something other than an office-holding machine."

"Nothing better ever happened to the Republican party than its defeat in 1912. The defeat killed the Barnes machine and the men in the Republican party who stand for something have come to the front. Nothing better could happen to the Democratic party than for the Simmons-Watts machine to be beaten at this election."

"I ask every forward-looking North Carolinian to join with me in this election and help me beat the machine. I pledge my administration to a program of constructive reforms to which every progressive citizen of North Carolina can and will subscribe. Let us lay aside partisan prejudice and vote for political freedom and for the good of North Carolina."

Political Publicity.

The newspaper man has a lot of friends when a political campaign looms up in the distance. Fellows who never previously had manifested interest in him begin to show him attentions. People who never seemed to care much about his newspaper, suddenly shows an intense desire to secure its support.

This is perfectly natural, since the newspaper offers the means by which candidates can touch the greatest number of voters. The expense of reaching them through advertising is trifling, compared with the cost of circulating by letter. Nothing in any newspaper is read more attentively than the political advertising, since the voters all want to know what a candidate has to say for himself.

When the wire pullers appeal to people's prejudice, the honest man through a newspaper ad. A vigorous campaign of facts and reason in this form is a hard one to beat. The newspaper travels faster and it reaches many more homes than any political heeler can touch.

A frank, sincere newspaper statements appeals to the public mind. People feel that a candidate will stand by a statement made in printer's ink. They like the man who comes out in the open with a positive statement of his views.

In a campaign fought through advertising, facts and logic and reason stand the best chance. Narrow and prejudiced views do not sound well in cold type. But clear and constructive ideas, intelligent point of view and the appeal to reason, win the attention of the voters as they sit down at their leisure to read and think. This way of playing the political games is peculiarly attractive to the man of ideas and the campaigner for good government.—Exchange.

Six Are Born In Same House Within 3 Hours.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 28.—Bunk Jones was pacing the floor, as prospective fathers are wont. "Triplets" was announced. But Jones continued to pace the floor, as prospective fathers are wont. An hour passed. "Twins." Jones did not alter his course. Another hour passed. "A granddaughter." And there are six howling good reasons why Bunk Jones farmer, near Murry, is "all smiles."

Before his wife, who is 42 years old, gave birth to triplets, Mrs. Willie Jones, daughter-in-law, was sent for. An hour after arrival of the triplets Mrs. Jones presented granddaddy with twins. In the meanwhile, Mrs. Isiah Parks, a daughter had been in to attend the two mothers. Within less than an hour she, too, had become a mother, a daughter completing the sixth born in the same house within three hours.

The Republicans are fondly hoping that Franklin D. Roosevelt's health will enable him to fill every speaking date made for him up to the time polls open.

A "Wet" Catspaw.

Governor Cox, we are told, is a "wet" candidate. That is to say, he is against Prohibition. He may not indeed, abrogate the Eighteenth Amendment, nor reverse the decision of the Supreme Court. But he is "wet," and his nomination was a triumph for the "Wets" and his election would make the "wet" victory complete. So we are told, not by his opponents but by his friend, who chortle in their glee at the way in which they put it over Mr. Bryan and the Anti-Saloon League by nominating him for the Presidency.

Now, we do not know nor do we particularly care what Governor Cox's personal convictions on the subject are, nor what his attitude is toward the Eighteenth Amendment, nor yet what it would be if he were elected President. To our mind the ratification of the Supreme Court, have disposed of the matter, exception, of course, so far as it is remitted to Congress for possible changes in the enforcement act. But it does seem to us that it so vulgarly and vociferously exploiting Governor Cox's alleged humdrum, the various local bosses who nominated him are simply using him as a catspaw to dull their own parochial chestnut fire.

They know perfectly well that the election of a "wet" President would not and could not reopen the saloons and breweries and distilleries. But they also know that the "turning down" of Mr. Bryan and the nomination of a reputedly "wet" candidate will greatly enhance and confirm the local prestige and power of Mr. Murphy in New York, and Mr. Nugent in New Jersey, and Mr. Brennan in Chicago, and the other machine-operating bosses in the large cities. That is why all those gentlemen were in favor of Mr. Cox and why they got together at French Lick and laid plans for homecoming the convention into nominating him! It will confirm their grip upon their local State machines; and perhaps it will embolden their fellows to sell booze on sly with a little more assurance than they would have felt had a "dry" candidate been nominated.

That is all there is in it. Of course the playing of so much gigantic and cynical a bunko game upon the "wet" is not a self-redeeming performance nor does it invest with the beauty of holiness the nomination which was made by the bosses for such a purpose. It makes the whole business seem unspeakably sordid and mendacious. Mr. Bryan was a least sincere in his advocacy of a plank approving the Prohibition Amendment, and he reasonably held that its adoption would go far toward assuring effective enforcement of the law. But the "wet" bosses did not dare to adopt an anti-prohibition plank, but left the platform silent on that subject, so that the party could say "Good Lord!" and "Good devil!" according to its plights; and then nominate a man whom they could exploit as a "wet" for home consumption.

It was, they doubtless thought, a smart performance. It was, about as smart as that of the man who tried to sit upon two stools at once.—Harvey's Weekly.

Unfortunate Comparison.

When a person solemnly states that he is "worked like a dog" all day it is probable he hasn't considered the correct meaning of the phrase. The Concordia (Kan.) Press says that if this were literally true the twenty-four hours would be spent thus. One hour digging out a rat, two hours gnawing a bone, one hour waiting for a cat to come down from a tree, half an hour begging to come into the house and the rest of the time sleeping on a mat in front of the door fighting fleas.

A Sign From Washington.

A writer of note declares that the country is rapidly becoming feminized—that the women are gradually taking over all of the work of men. Oh, joy! What a relief it would be if they would only complete the job in time for us to take one royal loaf before we cash in. But there's no such luck.—Springdale Wash. Reformer.

This country, it is said, will soon be blazing with Cox electric signs. That's a strategic blunder. His campaign is already suffering from its cynical a bunko game upon the "wet"

Is Dead Anyhow.

The Representative chronicles the doings of subscribers and non-subscribers alike but we would rather write the obituary of a non-subscriber than anything else. A man who will live in a town year after year without subscribing for the home newspaper is a dead one anyway.—Fox Lake, (Wis.) Representative.

The Record believes that good men should be elected to all the offices and the editor will vote for such men.

The ladies are going to vote this fall. Of course they will not all vote but enough of them will vote to cause some of the politicians some sleepless nights.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is billed to speak in Asheville next month. If Teddy is as good an orator as his father the Mountain City has a treat in store for its inhabitants.

The Record editor may be in favor of road bonds and lots of them, but The Record has hundreds of readers who are opposed to the county issuing more bonds at this time.

Our Republican and Democratic brethren who are running for office or who mean to run for office this fall had better be mighty careful about what they say about woman suffrage, lest they be swatted at the ballot box in November.

If Senator Overman would make a few more speeches like he delivered in Concord Saturday, North Carolina would go Republican in November. Sometimes a big man can make a mighty little speech. Overman has hurt himself and his party.

The Democratic county convention has been called to meet at the court house in Mocksville, on Saturday, Sept. 25th. We get the information from one of the leaders that at least two ladies will be placed on the ticket—one for the treasurer's office and one for register of deeds. There is some talk of a woman for the legislature.

That is a pretty story from Tennessee, where Robert Burns, a county boy 22 years old and the Republican representative from a mountain county, held in his vote the destiny of woman's suffrage in the United States this year. Only one vote was needed to carry the measure in the house and he held it. He waited long to know what to do. At last his old mother wrote him a letter and this mother's letter settled the matter and he enfranchised a nation of women. No he didn't but his mother did.—Ex.

Hon. Cameron Morrison was nominated over Mr. Gardner because he was against woman suffrage. He is still against it, and he finds now thousands of women with ballots in their hands ready to vote. He is in a great dilemma. He cannot ask them for their votes and yet he must have their votes to be elected. The fact is clear as can be, that Mr. Parker will be our next Governor. The unstable, see-saw game Mr. Morrison has played and the shady treatment given Mr. Gardner in the primary has hurt his chances with both the Democrats and all the women. Parker is making a great head-way in the east and the West is strongly for him. He stands well with the farmers and the workers in the mills and everywhere. Throwing politics aside and Parker is nearer the hearts of people than his opponent. He stands four-square to every wind that blows, he belongs to no machine, his aims are for the people's good, his ability is great and it looks now as if he will sweep the state by the aid of the former Democrats who are sick and tired of the machine methods of his opponent and his backers.—Concord Observer.

DODSON STOPS SALE OF CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" is Taking Place of Dangerous, Sickening Chemical, Say Druggists

Every druggist in town has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it," Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle doesn't cost very much but if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, just ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day.—Adv.

HARDING WARNS AMERICAN LABOR

What Democratic "Tariff for Revenue Only" Means to the Workers.

WOULD FORCE LOWER WAGES

Easy to See That a Flood of Cheap European Goods Made by Un-Paid Operatives Will Surely Follow Democratic Success.

In Republican fashion Senator Harding gives due and timely notice to the workmen of this country that the American job is in danger—that general unemployment threatens through an excessive growth of imports. This is that they may take notice thereof and govern themselves accordingly. The Democratic newspapers are calling the senator's bugle note on the necessity of protecting American labor "a return to the tariff graft," which fools nobody but Democrats. Practically, the German mark's gold value, in which all American commodities are priced, is 2.15 cents; the gold value of the French franc 7.20 cents, and the Italian lira 5 cents. Marks thus have less than one-tenth of their normal value, francs about a third, and lire one-quarter. American workers for wages may well consider these figures in view of the Democratic platform declaration for a tariff for revenue only. The wages of the German workman before the war were about half of a like American workman. Now the German is paid in depreciated marks and although he gets more marks his actual wage is reduced from two-thirds to three-fourths. If he got $1 a day in gold in the first half of 1914 he now gets 21 cents a day gold. A similar reduction in wages has occurred in France, Italy and Great Britain.

The workers of America can figure out for themselves what will be the effect here when German factories, manned by 25-cent-a-day workers get fully under way. The only bar to the entry of their goods in this country is a tariff for revenue only, say the Democrats; as soon as the needs of this government are met, these cheap goods can flow in without hindrance. Intelligent men need not be told by any newspaper what will happen. Wages must drop to meet the low 25-cent-a-day cost abroad. Already incoming goods are filling up warehouses of American ports. And this is merely the beginning of the movement. A Republican protective tariff alone can save American labor and American markets from foreign competition.

Cox Would Favor Profiters.
Governor Cox's declaration in favor of a tax on the total volume of business, in place of the excess profits tax, has brought forth widespread unfavorable comment in the West, where the plan is looked upon as of the greatest benefit to the profiteers, and in direct contradiction of the governor's earlier threat to exterminate the profiteer.

The Cox proposal, it has already been pointed out, is one to make the rich richer and the poor poorer, and would work untold hardships upon the man who is operating a small and growing business.

Call for Declaration From Cox.
The Post seems to be trying to make votes for Mr. Cox as an anti-Wilson reservationist. Will it have the courage or the fairness to demand of Mr. Cox that he declare himself to be such? The country knows where the Republican senators and most of the Democratic senators stand on that question. It also knows where Mr. Wilson stands. The only disingenuousness discoverable is in the Democratic candidate's silence.—New York Tribune.

Polish Question Not Political.
The Polish question is not, as Secretary Colby says it is, a political question. It is not an issue in this campaign, and ought not to be an issue. The friends of Poland should address themselves to all parties and to the heart of the American nation. They should disregard the advice of the political secretary of state, who abandons the American doctrine, that political differences in the United States end at the boundary lines.

Harding on Suffrage.
"We welcome women into full participation in the affairs of government and the activities of the Republican party. We earnestly hope that Republican legislatures in states which have not yet acted upon the suffrage amendment will ratify the amendment to the end that all of the women of the nation of voting age may participate in the election of 1920, which is so important to the welfare of our country."

Truth About Suffrage.
State legislatures that have ratified the amendment: Republican, 29; Democratic, 6.
Legislatures rejecting the amendment: Republican, 1; Democratic, 6.
Governors calling special sessions to ratify amendment: Republican, 18; Democratic, 9.

In view of these facts can the woman who wants the ballot conscientiously say that the Democratic party has been anything but long on promise and very short on results?

THREE YEARS WITHOUT HOPE

A Story of Sickness and Suffering with Final Return to Health
It will do you good to read it

No matter how long nor how much you have suffered, do not give up hope. Do not decide there is no help for you. There is. Make up your mind to get well. You can. There is a remedy in which you may place full reliance as did Mrs. Rozalia Kania of 39 Silver Street, New Britain, Conn. This is what she says: "I had cramps for three years and thought I would never be any better. I could not eat without distress. Slept with my mouth open and could hardly breathe. No medicine helped me. I had catarrh of the stomach. Now I have no cramps and am feeling well and healthy. I wish every suffering person would take PE-RU-NA."

Catarrh effects the mucous membranes in any organ or part. PE-RU-NA, by regulating the digestion and aiding elimination, sends a rich, pure supply of blood to nourishment to the sick and inflamed membranes and health returns.

For coughs, colds, catarrh and catarrhal conditions generally, PE-RU-NA is recommended. If you are sick, do not wait and suffer. The sooner you begin using Dr. Hartman's well-known PE-RU-NA, the sooner you may expect to be well and strong and in full possession of your health. A bottle of PE-RU-NA is the finest emergency, ready-to-take remedy to have in the house. It is fourteen ounces of prevention and protection.

Sold everywhere in tablet or liquid form.

Saved An Operation

MR. W. F. NELSON, a merchant of Hixon, Tenn., says: "That the daughter of one of his neighbors, Mr. James Roberts, was in such a condition with female trouble that an operation was advised, and the young lady was sent to Chattanooga for its performance. She dreaded the operation, and STELLA VITAE having been recommended, decided to try that first. She has taken six bottles and is happily on the road to recovery. She is able to do her usual work and is in better health than for years before, but continues to use it. She writes: 'STELLA VITAE will do all you claim.' Her father says 'She began to improve at once, after taking STELLA VITAE.'"

The Mystery of Hartley House

ALCOTT'S STORY.

Synopsis.—Dr. John Michelson, just beginning his career, becomes resident physician and companion of Homer Sidney at Hartley house. Mr. Sidney is an American, a semi-invalid, old and rich and very desirous to live. Mrs. Sidney is a Spanish woman, dignified and reticent. Jed, the butler, acts like a privileged member of the family. Hartley house is a fine old isolated country place, with a murder story, a "haunted pool," and many watch-dogs, and an atmosphere of mystery. The "haunted pool" is where Richard Dobson, son of a former owner of Hartley house, had killed his brother, Arthur Dobson. Jed begins operations by locking the doctor in his room the very first night. Doctor John fixes his door so he can't be locked in. He meets Isobel, daughter of the house, and falls in love at first sight. In the night he finds the butler drunk and holding Mrs. Sidney by the wrist. He interferes. Mrs. Sidney makes light of it. John buys a revolver. John overhears Jed telling Mrs. Sidney he will have his way. In reply she says she will not hesitate to kill him. Mrs. Sidney asks John to consent to the announcement of his engagement to Isobel. The young people consent to the make-believe engagement. Later they find it is to head off Jed, who would marry Isobel. Jed tries to kill John, but the matter is smoothed over. John, though "engaged" to Isobel, conceals his love. Mrs. Sidney visits a nearby prison and has Dolson, the murderer, pointed out. Jed tells the story of the Dobson murder. The family go south for the winter and John is homesick.

Dr. Brownell suggested the winter trip to the South. Mr. Sidney's vitality needed careful nursing. It was important to protect him from winter rigors, even as they could be mollified in a sickroom. The doctor said he himself felt the need of a change. He prescribed one for both his patient and himself. He and Mr. Sidney made the arrangements. Mrs. Sidney and Isobel were to go.

Arrangements went ahead rapidly, and a sense of desolation increased within me. Romantic folly came to its accounting. The fairy story was to be ended without youth's necessary "They lived happily ever after."

The yacht came up to its mooring and lay by the landing for a week while the provisioning was being cared for. Hundreds of bottles of Mr. Sidney's fine wines were put on board—for the unspeakable Jed.

Isobel was eagerly anticipatory. Mrs. Sidney, I thought, seemed merely to be resigned, with trepidation.

Doctor Brownell said he was depriving me of an interesting voyage. If he did not go, I should have been needed, but he thought it important for his efficiency that he conserve his strength over the winter, and he asked me to act as one of his assistants.

That was flattery. It was intended to be so.

Mrs. Sidney was the one who offered me the real balm.

"John," she said, "we shall want you with us. We shall miss you."

"Don't you think, Mrs. Sidney," I suggested, "that now we can consider this fiction terminated?"

"You mean your engagement to Isobel?"

"Surely."

"No, please," she said. "On the boat there will be no problems. The community is too compact and must be considered. But when we come back, I'll need you just as before."

Isobel said: "Good-by, John. Be at the landing when we return. You'll be the first person I want to see."

I ought not to have been so disconsolate. These were fair portents, but a portent does little to console a loss. I stood on the little dock and watched the yacht go down the river. And when it had disappeared below the point of land south of the pool, all the world was sad and life had no prospects to give it value.

Charles drove me to the city. I was a bit of human driftwood for a week. It did not matter that they were coming back. They were gone; that was the disaster. It was in the present; the future is too ambiguous for consolation or comfort.

I went through a winter of ecstatic distress, trying to be efficient in my discharge of professional duties for Doctor Brownell and to be professionally composed in aspect and mind. I had an anguished delight in my experiences. My loneliness was my most acute pain and my most cherished comfort. I did not want to profane the emotional solemnity of so much unhappiness by subjecting it frequently to the banal touch of sociable life in the ordinary. It was a joy to be profoundly unhappy.

I had letters from the enchanted party in the South. Mrs. Sidney wrote twice a week with great affection. Mr. Sidney once a week dictated to Jed a letter, cordial and jocular, for me. Occasionally Jed added a sheet for himself, kindly or rasping as the mood had him at the time.

Isobel also wrote, but with the greater eccentricity. While they were at Palm Beach I had a letter a day from her for four days. Then I had none for two weeks, although they remained at Palm Beach. She made the postman a tragedian for me.

In one letter this virginal Imp wrote as if I were her lover, and that letter was as the song of the meadow lark from a snow-covered field in March, as the odor of lilacs on a warm night in May.

The Sidneys went to the Bahamas, but did not remain there. They were me that Mr. Sidney was well. Doctor Brownell was convinced that all were the better, himself included, for their experiment and that Mr. Sidney's condition would permit a longer voyage in his pleasant circumstances. Consequently they were going on to South America. Mr. Sidney wanted to revisit Montevideo.

From Montevideo I had a letter from Jed in a different tone from his sarcastic banter and taunting. I thought it was the letter of a man who had suffered a shock. I could not say why I thought so, but I thought something had disturbed him. I gathered the idea that something had changed Jed's view of life.

Early in March came letters saying that my folks shortly would be on their way home, to arrive after the uncertain spring had resolved itself securely into weather safe for a feeble man who had accustomed himself to luxurious temperatures. I then felt invigorated, as by a promise in March of hepatic. My winter was breaking up.

I met an old-time acquaintance, a dentist who had been several years in South America. His name was Alcott, Henry Alcott.

Alcott and I never had been intimate or affectionate, but we greeted each other with ardor. I was homesick. Alcott may have been. There is a loneliness associated with a return to a place which has forgotten you and receives you as an alien.

We had dinner together and enjoyed our meeting. There was fervently, at dinner, a reminiscent amateness in his conversation. It suggested that he was smirking over exploits which he might relate if his restraints were broken down.

He had a talent for merely carnal stories. They gained additional currency in his telling of them. I must have been given the record of half the amatory experiences of South America for two years. Alcott told them with gusto. The one that fascinated me he did not emphasize more than the others. As he told these stories he was trying to convey the charm of sex-adventure in Latin America. I think he wanted, by other instances, to suggest his own adventures.

A man named Sinclair—that was as Alcott remembered—the name, but it might, he said, have been St. John or Southgrove or Sergeant, or anything else, beginning with S; it was long before Alcott's time in South America, and he merely told the story because it was a standardized episode—this man Sinclair, an Englishman or a man from the States, a fairly young man, anyway, and attractive, had fallen in love with a most charming young woman of excellent family.

Alcott could not remember whether the little episode had been staged in Rio or Valparaiso or Buenos Aires or where.

"It might have been in Montevideo," he said. He did not emphasize the remark, but the remark subsequently emphasized the story for me.

Sinclair—Alcott thought we might as well agree upon Sinclair as a name—had come out of somewhere, or nowhere and had made a great deal of money. When he fell in love, he was an advantageous match. The parents accepted him gladly.

Sinclair and the young lady were married, but he did not have the Latin genius for isolating and guarding a woman. Neither did he have the genius for completely interesting and absorbing a woman. He was in the shipping business. He was a very practical and business-minded man, but Alcott had heard, a genial and jovial man nevertheless.

Lovers came, as lovers will. The lady was too charming and had too much freedom. She was innocent and guileless, but her husband was not the barrier needed. Alcott said he thought she was of noble sort and was betrayed by her idea that human beings had character.

He was not precise as to the dilemma she had entered, how or why she entered it. A man of reputation for discreet gallantry, a handsome man of attractive culture, was encouraged by her frank and unchilled attitude toward him to try a desperate measure.

There was a designing servant in the house. The lover corrupted the servant and was introduced into the house. The husband was supposed to be away on a business trip. He came back ahead of time, as husbands sometimes do, and stopped at his club before he went home.

A friend of the lover saw him and, knowing what was being essayed at the man's home, was aghast. He induced other friends of the lover to try to detain the husband on one jovial pretext or another while he communicated with the house. He was unsuccessful in his attempt to use the telephone. The other men were unsuccessful in their attempt to detain the husband. The friend began a race with the husband to reach the house. Unluckily for him, the cab he took not only was pulled by the faster horse, but, he being conscious that it was a race and the husband being unconscious of it, his driver had reasons given him for speed.

It was unfortunate for the friend, because there was a tragedy later, and he was its victim. He arrived in time to warn the lover. The lady, appalled by the appearance of the lover, aghast to consider that she had been thought so unworthy as to attract these attentions, and suffering from a confusion which blunted her judgment, had not called her servants, but had endeavored with a dignity consciously self-compromised to assert her self-respect and reveal her lover's reason.

In a turmoil of abasing emotions she was engaged in this effort of self-control and assertion of dignity when the friend destroyed all composure by his announcement. The lover went instantly out of a window. The friend, having his own dignity of innocence, would not compromise his self-respect in this fashion. The husband arrived upon a scene which could not be explained. His wife, in spite of her efforts at control, was in hysteria. The friend's presence was inexplicable. Arrangements were made to satisfy honor. The friend was killed in a fashion satisfactory to the police and wholly satisfactory to the outraged husband.

There was the situation: an innocent man dead, a wronged husband satisfied, the wife absorbed by the romantic lying statement of the man who sacrificed himself, that in the transaction he had been presumptuous and the wife entirely guileless—and the guilty lover gone scot-free. But the servant knew the tremendous possibilities in this, Alcott thought.

Then Alcott went to other stories. As he drank more, he made them personal. I felt sick. It was outrageous for my recollection to emphasize his merely incidental remark:

"It might have been Montevideo."

CHAPTER VII.

It may seem unreasonable that a story by a man who had been in the different acquaintance, his started a solvent at work on my consciousness. I am discussing, now, matters I had tried to keep out of my consciousness. Things at Hartley had insisted upon an explanation which I did not want to find or give.

I could not kill a curiosity, although I was shamed by it. I felt indecent in my almost involuntary conjectures regarding Mrs. Sidney. Circumstances did demand an explanation. No one could perceive the strange facts of the house and not speculate as to their cause. It might be unpleasant to do so, but it was impossible not to do so. The predominating fact, however, was that my folks were coming home, and I knew that my affection for Mrs. Sidney had become a sacrament and my affection for Isobel a tragedy.

The yacht brought these dear people to the landing in the river at Hartley house. I, in the city, was called on the telephone by Isobel. There was a dynamic value in the inspiration of her voice. She was, in her greeting, cheery and wholesome. It was a glad, clean "Hullo!"—crisp and jovial.

My people came home in May, and the day after their arrival I went to Hartley house with my belongings, including, in an ecstasy, to take the well-known ride into the wonderful world of fancy and endeared companionship, by the haunted pool and into the jovial household.

Jed, I knew as soon as I saw him, was changed—not violently but in some fashion and perceptibly. Mr. Sidney was not. His geniality could not change. He made me feel that he had missed me and was rejoiced to see me again. Mrs. Sidney seemed, spiritually, to continue to lean on me for support, thing that I perceived in abasement and with a sense of unworthiness and unreliability. Isobel was as whole some as the air. In the most pleasant circumstances life was resumed at Hartley house.

Jed had not wholly lost his truculence and his occasional flashes of malevolence, but he was subdued. I thought he seemed furtive.

I asked Mrs. Sidney if she had observed a change. She said it had not occurred to her to think of it as a change, but she had been a difference, for which she was grateful. She remembered that when they were making their visit to Montevideo Jed had gone down to the docks and had come back obviously disturbed. She had observed the fact without giving much thought to it. She was not sure but that there had been an amelioration of Jed since then. She had regarded the event as insignificant. It might have had a meaning, but if so, it was obscured.

Our days were of pleasant routine, but nevertheless, for reasons which I have tried to make perceptible if not explicit, the expectation was touched by dread. We had, for several months, no outstanding incident or disturbing happening. Mr. Sidney's health remained exceptionally good. He created a new interest in his life: he had not forgotten his visit to the penitentiary, and he was eager to do what he could for the reformed. Evidently he thought of his restricted life as something not wholly alien, except for its comforts, to theirs. The most that he could do was to send books and occasionally to prepare a Sunday afternoon program of music to be given by a small orchestra which he had brought out from the city. He never went back to the penitentiary, but once a week Jed or I drove over, and he was interested in our accounts.

Jed was beginning to wear off the fine aspects of his good behavior. Some restless ambition tortured this man, and some power he had not completely used invited him to make full use of it.

I had implored Mrs. Sidney to inform me instantly if he became obnoxious again. I understood how important it was to protect Mr. Sidney's peace of mind, but I thought I had the upper hand of Jed—although not understanding his case at all—and could manage him.

Isobel, knowing that she was pursued by the ridiculous ambitions of the man, found amusement in it. I found only moral nausea. I could see Jed's arrogance arising again, and twice a week I was awakened by his singing in the hallway as he came from drinking in Mr. Sidney's room. I was expecting something to happen; and something did, but it was certainly not what I expected. It opened up a new phase of the mystery.

One morning I was waiting for Jed to bring my coffee to the pleasant room which he early in our acquaintance had recommended. Not the least curious thing about Jed was the fact that he seldom in his sober moments was anything but a perfect servant when service was demanded. It did not matter how serious and deadly the issue might be between Jed and me as men; when the matter lay between Jed and me as servant and served, Jed was the servant. Therefore, no matter how things might stand with us when, in the morning at an early hour, I went to the room Jed originally suggested; I expected him to come with my coffee, and he always did.

It was my habit to arise at seven o'clock and be dressed and in this room by half-past seven. I usually read a book until Jed brought the coffee and the morning paper. It was a luxurious and restful experience to have this hour each day.

This morning in question I was reading placidly when looking out the window. I was startled to see a strange figure of a man on the lawn. He was close to the house, almost under my window, and I even could see that he wore earrings. He had a handkerchief around his neck. He was wearing a black coat. I thought he was Spanish, and I thought he was a sailor. These were only impressions, but they identified him for me later. He was passive and was looking up at the house in an interested but puzzled fashion. harmlessly, one would have said, if the wholly unexpected nature of his presence had not been in itself significant.

Men wearing earrings were not so common of sight as to allow one wearing them to be unnoticed. Strangers of any kind seldom came our way. Strangers of his kind were extraordinary. He was looking up at the windows as if he sought the answer to something that had interested if not mystified him. I knew, in every instinct, that he had not come in by chance but by design.

I was looking, leaning forward, at this strange phenomenon on the lawn when a crash of metal and breaking china gave me a shock. Jed—whom I had not heard entering—had seen over my shoulder the stranger on the lawn and had dropped the coffee tray.

"You knew that man and you wanted to kill him."

Buy Car of Army Meat

Asheville.—City Purchasing Agent Schoepf on authority of the city commissioners, sent an order to the big government warehouse at Chicago, for a solid car load of canned meats for sale at cost to the people of Asheville. It is believed that the order will be received here between September 15 and October 1.

Mr. Schoepf states that the car will consist of bacon in 12-pound cans similar to the bacon sold here by the city last year. There will be hundreds of cans of roast beef in one and two-pound cans; corn beef in cans weighing less than one pound, one pound and two cans; corn beef hash in one pound and two-pound cans; pork sausage in two-pound cans.

There will not be any groceries sold, the purchasing agent states, but he believes that the people of the city will be well pleased with the meat when it comes. If the first car proves to be a success then other cars will probably be ordered by the city from time to time during the winter months, it is stated.

The car of meats will cost about $5,000. Last year on three cars of groceries and meats ordered and sold by the city the commissioners came within $10 of breaking even, the purchasing agent reports and this is considered a splendid report in view of the large amount of goods handled.

Not The Right White

Charlotte.—The Clyde White wanted by the police on a charge of keeping liquor, is not the Clyde White of the E. C. White Electric Floor service, according to a statement of Mr. White.

The floor service White lives in Sunnyside section, Belmont, has been working in Charlotte for a number of years and has yet to be haled into the police court, he says.

Interurban Incorporated
Charlotte.—The North Carolina Lines, Inc., is the name of a corporation for which a charter has been applied which has as its object the building and operating of interurban lines from Charlotte to Winston-Salem, the company having bought the line and franchise of the old Charlotte Rapid Transit company as an entrance into Charlotte.

The organization of the company was a joining of the ideas of Harry F. Hann, of Winston-Salem, and C. C. Coddington, of this city.

Popular College to Open
Rad Springs.—Flora Macdonald college will open for the twenty-fifth annual session on Tuesday, September 14. More than 125 applicants have been refused admission owing to lack of space.

States represented this year are North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Virginia, Arkansas, Texas, Mississippi, and two other countries, Japan and Cuba. North Carolina leads with South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia and Florida following in the order named.

Big Timber Tract Sold
Asheville.—One of the last great tracts of uncut virgin timber lands remaining in the whole Appalachian region was sold when John Curry, of Druid, Madison county, bought 10,000 acres of land in Cocke and Sevier counties, Tennessee, from John C. Arbogast.

This tract of timber is considered by all lumbermen who have a personal knowledge of it to be one of the finest bodies of virgin hardwood and spruce timber land left in this part of the country.

BAD RISK TO KEEP SICK

Insurance Companies Won't Take a Man Who Suffers Continually From Stomach or Liver Troubles.

Acworth, Ga.—"We have used Black-Draught in our family for years, and can say I never have found a liver medicine that could equal it," writes Mrs. J. A. Millwood, of this place. "It is fine for indigestion, headache and sour stomach," she continues.

"I use it for the family, and certainly feel it has saved me a lot of money."

"I am glad to recommend Black-Draught, and am sure if others would use it they would be as glad as I've been."

Thousands of families keep Theford's Black-Draught in the house all the time, for use at the first sign of indigestion, constipation, colic, colds and fever, thereby preventing illnesses that might develop seriously.

When you notice that you are bilious, have a bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, offensive breath, or if you are dizzy at times, restless, sleep poorly—do not neglect your liver. It is calling for prompt treatment. Use Theford's Black-Draught. Its merit is widely acclaimed from long satisfactory use.

Watch Your Kidneys!

That "bad back" is probably due to weak kidneys. It shows in a dull, throbbing backache, or sharp twinges when stooping. You have headaches, too, dizzy spells, a tired nervous feeling and irregular kidney action. Don't neglect it—there is danger of dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease! Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands have saved themselves more serious ailments by the timely use of Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

A North Carolina Case

Mrs. P. C. Brannock, 5 Main St., Mt. Airy, N. C., says: "I had catches in the small of my back and I couldn't rest properly at night. My kidneys didn't act right and my head ached constantly. I was terribly nervous and dizzy. I heard a lot of Doan's Kidney Pills I got a supply and when I had finished one box I was entirely cured."

It may not be generally known, but it is a fact that should be borne in mind, that Samuel Comper's son has been very tenderly cared for by the Democratic administration since it came into power. At the present time he is chief clerk of the Department of Labor with a salary of $3,500 per year. Perhaps that is one of the reasons why his notorious father is such a staunch Democrat. Ostensibly a non-partisan, and with his thoughts centered on the welfare of the laboring man regardless of partisan politics the elder Comper is one of the most steadfast supporters that Mr. Wilson ever had. Not since the present campaign for the presidency started has Mr. Comper had anything but praise for Mr. Cox and his platform, or anything but criticism for the Republican platform and its candidate. And that will be the attitude to the end.

When you go to church in your Ford be sure to arrive on the grounds after the service has begun, and don't forget to drive back and forth across the church grounds a time or two in low gear, meanwhile blowing the horn long and shrill, then there is a cut-out that should always be wide open when you drive up into the church yard. There might be some deaf ones in the congregation who have not learned that you have a John Henry.—Exchange.

VOLUME XXII.

MOCKSVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, SEPTEMBER 22, 1920.

NUMBER 11

Some Of The Sights Of Presidential Greatness.

The New York Times, administration organ, says:

"The Republicans have made the discovery that a great man is really out of place in the Presidency."

The Times fails to get the point. What the Republicans claim is colossal egotism, self-assurance and autocratic assumption, while satisfactory evidence of greatness to the henchmen and organs of an exalted ego in office, is not necessary proof of greatness. Nor is it absence of those qualities, offence to every self-respecting man, an indication of incapacity to reflecting people.

Greatness and humility go hand in hand. It was so in the case of Washington and Lincoln. Neither of these men, either personally or through their press agents, claimed to be divinely inspired, or to be so much better and wiser than their fellows that what they said and thought must be considered final by everybody. It is only in behalf of small calibred men in big bore place that such claims are set up by their disciples.

The people have merely concluded: Well, if all this arrogance and false pretense and egotistical autocracy is greatness, give us mere man hereafter. But of course they very well know it is not greatness, but mere pretense of super-humanity put forth by sycophantic politicians and newspapers in behalf of the leader whose hand-me-down opinions they habitually present to the public. As for the public, it has finally "got wise" to the situation, and is no longer impressed with all this talk about omniscience and even divinity in connection with the nation's most powerful office holder.

The Republicans not only do not believe that greatness is out of place in the Presidency, but they think it is appropriate in the cabinet and in every other important post of national responsibility. They do not propose to stage a show in which star gets all the press notices, and is supported by nonentities and mediocrities whose failings are expected to make the merits of the headliner glow with the brighter effulgence.

The Republican party believes it has presented for the Presidency a far greater man than the present occupant of the office. And one of the signs of his bigness is that he is not a vain, egotistical autocrat who would ask or expect court journals like the Times to grovel at his feet and accept his utterances as the result of divine revelation. Senator Harding has the genuine sort of greatness the people of this country would like to see once more in the Presidency of the United States.—National Republican.

Will Stick To Degrified Campaign.

In spite of much talk of a speaking tour for Senator Harding, Senator New is authority for the statement that absolutely nothing definite has been arranged along that line. "It may well be," says he, "that Senator Harding will speak elsewhere, but this is far the future to determine. Any statement of time or places he may speak is entirely unauthorized." Thus far the candidate has adhered, to his front porch campaign, and the enthusiastic support he is receiving is testimony to its effectiveness. Senator Harding has given no indication that there would be a departure from the style of campaign he mapped out soon after the nomination, and Senator New's statement is proof that what others have had to say about the candidate, speaking in other parts of the country are without foundation.

Confusing.

Funny, isn't it, to have members of the cabinet going about the country denouncing the Republican Congress for cutting down their appropriations, and at the same time candidate Cox declares that the Republicans have done nothing to lift the burden of taxation!

Self-complacency is the root of much failure.

Bad Business.

The Daily News is regarding the business wholly from a business standpoint, and Commissioner Maxwell isn't. The business of government is to make human life and rights safe and to promote happiness; in doing this it also protects private property. Private property should support government. All property under any division of government should pay its exact and equal contribution to the support of that government.

In exempting all property in the state from any tax whatever for the support of the state government for this year the General Assembly has, the Daily News believes, been moved by political considerations. It may be contended that it is putting into effect a separation of source of revenue which has been demanded for years by many tax reformers. Even so, looking at the matter from a purely business point of view, this is simply to lose millions of dollars of revenue that might just as easily have been obtained as not, that is sorely needed by the state's institutions, and that could have been collected in such small sum out of each $100 worth of property that the average man could have had no cause whatever for complaint. We believe that a tax of three cents, five cents, or even more, would have been just as effective an argument for the majority as no tax at all will be; but regardless of that, this year of all others the new system should not have been put in force.

There is no one to deny that the state years ago appropriated what was then considered a large sum of money to the state's educational institutions. There is no one who will deny that they needed all of it then. There is no one who will deny that their needs have since greatly increased, nor that conditions have taken the value out of that appropriation, so that the institutions are now in worse condition—as compared with their needs—than they were at that time.

And that is just one item of many proving that the tax act just passed at Raleigh is bad business. And bad business ought to be bad politics.—Greensboro News.

UNDER ONE FLAG.

By Will H. Hayes.

We fight for the faith of the fathers of the republic and for perpetual freedom of the sons and daughters of America. Sometimes a picture points a principle no less than a moral. Such a one recurs to my mind. It was a cartoon published on the day after Governor Cox delivered his speech on the editorial page of his chief newspaper supporter in New York. It depicted the candidate hauling a flag to the top of a pole.

The banner was unfamiliar to the eye, but unmistakable in its meaning. It bore no heraldic device or other symbol. There was not a sign of a stripe, not a suggestion of a star. Emblazoned upon a plain black ground in large letters were the words, "The League of Nations," and nothing more. It was the new motto of an old party. It symbolized surrender of American independence—a surrender, please God, that shall never be made so long as the spirit of patriotism continues to animate the hearts of American free men.

But a more apt or more exact portrayal of the chief purpose of the Democratic party, dictated by its leader and declared by its candidate, could not be devised.

As I looked at that striking and significant sketch, I could not but wish that I were capable of making a companion picture that should emphasize the vivid contrast between their aspirations and ours. There would be nothing novel in my illustration, nothing strange to the vision, nothing startling to the emotions. It would be a mere reproduction of that first Star-Spangled Banner produced by the nimble fingers of Betsy Ross.

A companion picture, did I say? No, never. There can be no campaign banner to the Stars and Stripes as a symbol of the great republic. There shall be but the one flag. But that flag I would paint and hold for a moment to the light of heaven that all might mark the difference between the old and the new. There would be no need to hoist that banner. It was raised on Dorchester Heights by George Washington. But a few days ago I saw it re-raised in Mario, Ohio, by Warren G. Harding. For nearly 150 years it has floated over this free land, and never once been lowered. And at the base of the pole I would draw, facing our national emblem, Let it not be tarnished now. Illumine afresh by sending forth the message that Maine continues inflexibly American and rejoices in the privilege of being the first to voice to her sister states the spirit of complete victory which surely in November will crown Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge, now leaders of the party, then leaders of the public.

A Campaign Relic.

A local Democrat is treasuring in his desk a button that he wore in the campaign four years ago. This year on election day he is going to get out this button, put it on and walk proudly to the polls and vote the Republican ticket. This is what the button says: "War in Europe; Peace in America. God bless Wilson."—Clay Center (Kams) Times.

A Prophetic Soul.

Villa surrendered because he was afraid of the United States, thus indicating that he has been intelligent enough to get into the fact that the United States government is going to change hands.—Boston Transcript.

The Battle Won. Jordan Passed, the Woman Suffrage Act Last.

Charity and Children.

They are raising a row over the ratification of the 19th amendment by the Tennessee Legislature and may postpone the permission to allow women to participate in the fall election; but the opposition might as well lay down their arms. They are whipped. The extension of suffrage has come and we hope that the women will have their way. It is against all reason and justice that North Carolina, which is opposed to woman suffrage should be compelled to submit to it whether or no; but state's rights is a thing of the past. Our women might as well read up on politics and prepare to go to the polls whether they want to do so or not. We have never contended or believed that women are less fit to vote than men. They have as much sense as men, and perhaps more. Our objection to woman suffrage is based on entirely different grounds. The extension of suffrage will vastly complicate the political situation without any special benefit to either party. The women are subject to exactly the same influences as men. As a rule, families think alike on political questions. In the South a majority of the women will vote the Democratic ticket; in the North a majority of them will go Republican. We doubt very seriously that either Gov. Cox or Senator Harding will receive considerable benefit either way by the adoption of woman suffrage. Politics is a dirty thing any way you look at it. The women instead of purifying politics will themselves be contaminated by mixing actively in the campaigns. There is an offensive element among the women. The picketers for example. There are others who are having an itching for office holding. These will derive the only advantage that will come to woman by the amendment and these are a dangerous element to be injected in our political life. But whatever the result, the battle is won, and we might as well submit to the inevitable and not try by technicalities to deprive them of the victory they have finally achieved.

Rocky Mount Barbers Want to Be Millionaires.

The barbers and the board of alderman of Rocky Mount played to a capacity house Friday night when the motion offered by Alderman Parrish two weeks ago to place a tax of $50 upon each barber chair in retaliation for an increase in the costs of haircuts to 50 cents and shaves to 25 cent up for final action. The various participants in the fight got some weighty arguments off their chests before some pacifier on the board suggested that no change could be made in the taxes now as the barbers had already paid their 1920 license fee some time ago. With this information checking any action the troublesome motion was indefinitely tabled.—Exchange.

A crooked politician is one who believes that somebody can fool all the time and it's up to him to do as much of the time as the others will allow him.

Morrison and Parker to Say It Face to Face at Reeds.

Cameron Morrison, Democratic candidate for Governor, and John J. Parker, Republican candidate for the same office, will speak from the same platform at Reeds, about five miles west of Lexington, on October 8. The speeches of two candidates will be upon the occasion of the annual community fair at that place. It has not been announced yet whether the candidates will stage a set joint discussion, or whether they will divide the day, with one taking the forenoon and the other the afternoon. The speeches are expected to attract one of the largest crowds gathered in Davidson county in quite a while.

Railroad and Sun Time.

A young salesman who had been reared in the city, was traveling through the mountains of Virginia. On the top of a divine he met the star-route-mail-carrier. "What time is it?" he asked.

Pulling out his watch, the mail-carrier deliberately replied: "It's three o'clock by railroad time."

"By railroad time!" said the young man. "It looks to me like you people 'way back here in the mountains would use sun time."

"What for, young man? We are a damned sight closer to the railroad than we are the sun!"

Road and Bridge Work Outlined.

In order that the people of the county may know what can be expected in the way of road and bridge work in the near future, I wish to give an outline of the work that has been already ordered by the county officials and will be carried out as fast as the county force can do the work.

The county mules are now at work on a road leading to the Irredell county line by way of Dr. Cain's place. This road will be a top soil road and its entire length, of two and 1/4 miles has no grade of over four percent and no curves but what can be made at twenty miles per hour with safety. This job will be completed in about two weeks and then the force will move to the road between Holman's Cross Roads and Cana. There is about three-fourths of a mile of road there that is ordered topsoiled. After that work the force will move to the lower Statesville road between County Line and Harper's place. This road has been graded but there are several places that in rainy weather gets very bad and these worst places have been ordered topsoiled. Also the bottom at Hunting Creek has been ordered improved. From here the force is to go to road between Bixby and Fork Church. There is two and one-half miles of this road, part of which needs relocation, and all needs topsoiling, as it prevents the people in the Fork Church section reaching the improved road between Mocksville and Advance.

When the winter weather gets too bad to topsoil the force is ordered to move to the road between Roberts Bridge and Courtney. There is a section of two miles up there that breaks the link of the state system between Salisbury—Mocksville—Wilkesboro line. This road is almost impassable now and it is imperative that something be done in the near future. I will say further that this road has been neglected by the County officials in view of the fact that the State had offered to build it. However it has been ascertained that under the state program it would be two or three years before they would reach this road. Therefore the county intends to build it independent of the State.

The road thru Smith Grove has been surveyed and it is in the hands of the State at present. We have been officially informed that this road will be contracted in the next thirty days. The road from Mocksville to Fulton is now being surveyed and we understand nearing completion. This also is a State Road and not under the jurisdiction of the county. However, we expect that it will be contracted some time next year. The road from Mocksville to South river, our first road to be improved under State control is completed as to grading and draining and will have the surface finished in about two weeks. Several State officials have advised us that this is one of their nicest pieces of work this year.

Right here I wish to say for the benefit of the people of this county who do not happen to be informed as to the plan of work between the County and State roads, that the right highway for the road and the material for surfacing same must be guaranteed free of all charge to the State by the county before the State will agree to build the road. This arranged, the State proceeds to send engineers in and they reserve the right to locate the road as they see fit. They contract the building of the roads and they supervise the construction and receive it when completed. The contract price is borne one fourth by the county and three-fourths by State and Federal Government. The county has nothing to do with the question as to where the road is located or how it is to be built but that responsibility is bore alone by the State.

The following bridge work has been ordered done and the County Engineer is now securing price of steel: The Roberts bridge is one that will be built in the next few weeks. Also the bridge at the old Critz mill will be built this fall. These two bridges are in the same section of the county but in very bad condition and needing attention. Both these bridges will be of steel beam structure and will be designed, fabricated and erected by the County Engineer, as a saving of several thousand dollars will be effected by building them in this way over what it would cost by contract. The bridge over Bear Creek on the County Home road will be replaced by a steel structure as soon as it has been reached. Also the Bear Creek Bridge on the lower Statesville road is to be replaced by steel in the early spring.

For further information of the public I wish to say that the work of topsoiling done since in the early spring by the county force has cost only half what it would have cost had it been done under contract at the present price of work.

N. S. MULLICAN, County Engineer.

RESOLUTIONS.

1st. We the Republicans of Davie County in convention assembled, do hereby pledge ourselves and the candidates this day nominated, to cooperate with the lawabiding element in Davie County in executing and enforcing the laws of our State and nation. That violators of the laws may now and here take notice, that if elected, we will impartially do our best in protecting all our citizens in the enjoyment of all their legal rights regardless of creed or party; with these resolves, we ask the support of all citizens of the county, and especially the newly enfranchised womanhood of the county, recognizing the principle that no law can be violated without inflicting injury to the good citizenship of each and every community.

2nd. Resolved that we believe in the rule of the people and that on all questions of extra taxation and most especially bond issues which are tending to so increase the burdens of taxation that the people are beginning to groan under the weight thereof, especially the agricultural classes; therefore we believe that when bonds are thought to be necessary for the building of roads that the question should be submitted to a vote of the people, we also favor a better system of keeping up the public roads of the county before much more money is spent for road building.

3rd. Resolved that the public schools of our state should be divorced from partisan politics to the extent at least of electing the county school boards by the people, and that at the election when such board is voted for, both parties should nominate and vote for two members each of said board, and the political party carrying the election in said county is to have a majority of said board.

4th. Resolved that the farmer is the backbone of every civilized government and that the agricultural interests of our country should have the active and ungrudging support of all the people and every legitimate means should be used to help him improve his lands, his home and his school to the end that farm life should be more attractive and remunerative, thus helping and encouraging the young men to remain on the farms and help build up the waste places and make of rural life the most ideal of all.

5th. We are opposed to double taxation of all kinds and especially the taxation of the farmers home when the note and mortgage representing the purchase price of the same is listed and bearing tax in the state—we also favor a taxation system that will be just to all and not place upon the farmer an equal part of the burden of taxation out of proportion to the earning power of his land, we believe in conserving the farmers timber supply by exempting it from heavy taxation.

6th. Resolved that we favor the calling of the citizens of Davie County together in mass meeting early in December 1920, for the purpose of consulting together and formulating plans for any and all special and needed legislation for Davie County at the approaching session of the general assembly in order that the representative of this county may know in advance what the people need and want, and be prepared to give said representative all possible cooperation and assistance in Legislating for and in behalf of the people.

The above resolutions introduced in the Republican convention by E. H. Morris, and the committee on resolutions composed of five members to wit: Boss Grant, J. F. Moore, B. F. Holton, B. C. Brock and T. F. Bailey reported that they be rejected, the vote in convention to reject was about three out of 56 delegates. These resolutions are published so that the Republicans of the county can see and know where their party stands.

INS HIS WAY WITH A WIN

Democratic Factions See Nominee Cox a Political Flirt.

IT MAKE HIS EYES BEH

One Eyelid to Administration and the Other to the Anti to Catch Voters Coming and Going.

Timing his way with a wink at with propriety he adopted Democratic campaign slogan, "Gone with the Wind," to G. J. Karger, the Winston-Salem correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer. Mr. Karger opines that it is necessary at the outset for Cox to try to catch the voters coming and going with a wink as a belated meaningful motion. Illustrating one of the number in which Mr. Cox seems to wink helpful to his cause. Mr. Karger cites the Cox pilgrimage to Washington. Recognizing the boldness of the party, Mr. Cox had to reckon with the home went to Washington to see what happened is thus: "Mr. Cox pledges himself to give what President on promised; and by virtue of touching proof of fidelity of the administration is his. A wink is directed toward the administration, who are supposed to have wisdom enough to know when they see one and to wink in the proper spirit. The wink is too far in the background of the wink that softened action and gives expression to shyness and disappointment. The wink, the public must be told, and what's more mollifying? It's so elusive, so dodging so much of personal. And so another wink was a grand seal, resulting in the grand seal of the Democratic "countdown." so on at the outset of the campaign and through the campaign pictures Governor Cox with one eye for the administration and a sly motion of the other to the anti-administrationists.

O. P. Women Organized. Republican women have an organized and perfected and capable of as the 27,000,000 women voters. Anthony amendment, according to statement issued from anti-party yesterday. Statement pointed out that women have co-ordinated with Republican men in the state, county and precinct associations. In appointing women to these committees, Republican committee affirms that they put into practice the platform forth in the platform adopted at Chicago, namely that, "We welcome into full participation in the government and the party of the party." This step was taken before there was any definite whether women of the county be granted the franchise in the part in the presidential entire is called to the fact. Harriet Taylor Upton, Ohio worker, is vice chairman of the executive committee. of the members of this county women. They are: Mrs. L. Livermore and Mrs. Cora E. Robinson, New York; J. McCormick, Illinois; the Bradley South, Kentucky; Jeannette A. Hyde, Utah; Gerine Phillips Edson, California; Manley L. Fosseen, Minnesota; Upton. Similarly, a vice chairman of each of the state committees of the county and of the precinct organizations.

The Double Cross. Double Cross "The Double Cross" on my breast I wear it. Sometimes Dry and sometimes Wet, and sometimes both swear it."

Runs a campaign dirty of New York vintage. While Mr. Murphy of Tammany bossed the job of putting Mr. Cox in the white of his eyes, and trying to play both ends against the middle, that is, to be "double-crossed," he is planning to invest Cox with the above mentioned.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Justice to the Dead. Governor Cox, the Democratic says that in justice to the dead should be no separate present state of war after up their lives for the victor. Free Press.

Puts the "Son" in Wilson. Mr. Cox says he isn't bossed. But the "son" of Taggart do put the "son" in Wilson? It seems to be no possible way James can be himself.

Vegetable Compound.

Lowell, Mass.—"I was all run down and had an awful pain in my right side, was persistently constipated and had very dizzy spells. I suffered for three years and was perfectly miserable until a friend was telling me to try Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and

WOMAN SLAYS HER AVENGER

Shoots Man Who Had Killed Two

Her Honor.

ARGUES OVER MOTOR

First Husband Ambushed and Killed Six Years Ago—Her Ranch Foreman and His Father Were Shot by Wilson.

Winfield, Kan.—A year and a half after he had shot two men to death
to avenge his wife's honor, Homer S.
Wilson, himself, was shot and killed on a lonely country road, near Winfield, Kan., by Mrs. Wilson. He is the fourth man, intimately acquainted with his pretty dark-haired wife, who

Charles West, first husband of Mrs.
Wilson, was shot and killed from ambush near Tahlequah six years ago.
Then Frank Anthony and his father, William, fell at Wilson's hands because Wilson charged young Anthony, foreman of Mrs. Wilson's ranch, at Tahlequah, had been too friendly with Mrs. Wilson while her husband was in the army.

Were Returning From Cattle Buying Trip.

Mrs. Wilson killed her husband as they were returning from a cattle buying trip to Dexter, 22 miles east of Winfield. With the Wilsons at the time were Charles Ridgeway and Ed Glass, who have ranches near Dexter.

Wilson had been driving his automobile very fast, according to the story told by eye witnesses to the tragedy.
When a stop was made for tire trouble and Wilson left the car, Mrs. Wilson slid into the driver's seat, insisting she would drive. An argument followed and Mrs. Wilson suddenly shot twice with an automatic pistol she had taken from the flap of one of the seats.

After Wilson had been inducted into the service he complained to the draft officials that his wife had reported suffering at the hands of her former,

Frank Anthony. When he returned from the army he engaged Anthony in a duel in the street, shooting him twice. The elder Anthony rushed around a corner and was shot dead by Wilson as he reached for his fallen son's gun.

Acquitted Under "Unwritten Law."
The successful duelist was acquitted by the jury under the "unwritten law."
He testified at the hearing that his wife had confessed the Anthonys had ambushed and killed her former husband and had sworn also to kill Wilson.

Wilson, thirty-five years old, gained fame in the cattle country through his ability as a lariat thrower. He was with the 101 Ranch Wild West show several years as chief of its cowboys, touring Europe and South America with that circus. Mrs. Wilson is of Indian blood, according to friends.

Bathub Is Too Warm.
Philadelphia.—Before going upstairs to take a bath, Solomon Salikin, proprietor of a hardware store in Philadelphia, lighted an oil lamp and placed it in the store directly below the bathroom.

Later, Solomon, sitting in the bathtub, noticed that the water was becoming unusually warm. He turned on the cold water. It failed to reduce the temperature. Getting out to investigate, Solomon found flames eating through the floor beneath the tub.
He suffered a $4,000 loss before firemen extinguished the blaze.

Wasp Bored Holes Through Ear.
Springfield, Mass.—Rushing into

Beechly had a wasp which had punc-tured her ear four times removed by the physician.

CALOMEL LOSING OUT IN SOUTH

Mr. Dodson, the "Liver Tone" Man, Responsible for Change for the Better.

Every druggist in town has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel.
They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.
"Calomel is dangerous and people know it," Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle doesn't cost very much, but if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, just ask for four money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels.
It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience
all the next day like violent calomel.
Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day.—Adv.

Same Thing.
Franklin D'Olier, the head of the American Legion, said at a banquet in Philadelphia:

"Two doughboys were exchanging war memories the other day.

"I was never much stuck on myself," said the first doughboy, "but, all the same, I brought a cross back with me from over there. Did you bring back a cross, Bill?"

"The second doughboy puffed thoughtfully on his pipe.

"Well," he said, "I brought back a French wife."

POULTRY

GIVE INCUBATORS BEST CARE

Machines Should Be Cleaned and Disinfected Before Storing Away for the Winter.

After the hatching season is over,
clean and disinfect the incubators, empty the lamps and carefully store
er place on the incubator for some time after the hatching season is over will cause trouble when it is started again, as the oil tends to work up into the hood.

The incubator should be disinfected once a year, or oftener if any disease is present in the hens or chickens, say poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture.
Some operators prefer to disinfect

Some Operators Disinfect Their Incubators Before or After Each Hatch.

their incubators before or after each batch. A 5 per cent solution of a reliable coal-tar disinfectant or carbolic acid may be used to wash out the machine and to disinfect the egg trays and nursery drawer. If the burlap is very dirty it may be cheaper to renew than to clean it.

For an incubator of about three cubic feet capacity one may pour one-half ounce of formalin, which contains 40 per cent formaldehyde, on one-half ounce of permanganate of potash in a pan in the incubator, which produces a very penetrating gas and thoroughly disinfects the machine. The door of the incubator should be closed just as soon as the liquid is poured into the pan and left closed for twelve hours or longer. Incubators should be well aired before they are used after disinfecting, especially when formaldehyde or any disinfectant which produces a gas has been used.

SUPPLY OF GRAIN FOR HENS

Fowls Will Consume More Food in Spring Than in Fall—Amount Varies With Breeds.

The feeder must use his own judgment in deciding how much grain to give the hens, as the amount of feed which they will eat varies with different pens and at different seasons of the year. They will eat more feed in the spring while laying heavily than the summer and fall when laying fewer eggs.

A fair general estimate is about one quart of scratch grains and an equal weight of mash (about one and a half quarts) daily to 13 hens of the general purpose breeds, such as the Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, or Wyandottes, or to 16 hens of the smaller or egg breeds. This would be about seven and a half pounds each of scratch grains and of mash daily to 100 Leghorns and about nine and a half pounds of each to 100 general purpose fowls. If hens have free range or large yards containing green feed a general purpose hen will eat about 75 pounds of feed in a year and a Leghorn will eat about 55 pounds, in addition to the green stuff consumed, it has been found in experiments conducted on the government poultry farm.

RID FLOCKS OF ALL VERMIN

Regular Attention and Proper Treatment Will Prevent Troublesome Lice and Mites.

It is absolutely unnecessary for poultry to be seriously troubled by either lice or mites. Regular attention and proper treatment of the quarters will rid the flock of mites, and if body lice are found the birds should be treated for these also. Usually if a place is provided where the hens can dust themselves they will keep the lice in check.

LOUSY FLOCK UNPROFITABLE

Lice Are Detrimental Because of Irritation Caused by Crawling About and Gnawing.

True bird lice of the order Mallophaga never feed upon the blood of their host but feed upon exudations from the skin, epidermal scales, bits of feathers and hair. They are detrimental to the host by causing irritation due to crawling about and their gnawing habit. A "lousy" flock of chickens is not a profitable investment.

HOLY CITY AS IT IS TODAY

Redeemed but Waiting to Be Clothed in Raiment That is but Her Just Due.

It is well, as we leave the gentle allurement of flowers in the Garden of Gethsemane and turn toward the city, that our hearts have first been filled with serene joy, writes William D. McCracken in Asia magazine. We regard the fearfully tried city with something of the compassion that the Master felt for it. Seventeen times destroyed—bitterly hated—anxiously sought—how desolate a history since Nebuchadnezzar captured it more than twenty-five centuries ago.
And only the other day, it seems, at Christmas time in 1917, Jerusalem was captured again, this time by Jesus friends, the British after an assault with the Turks that the city itself should not be bombarded. There was some fighting on the Mount of Olives, and reconnoitering airplanes dropped a bomb or two in and about the Garden of Gethsemane. But Jerusalem had been captured for the last time, and the last offensive was devoid of evil.

Redeemed today, but in her nakedness, Jerusalem waits to be clothed.
She has as yet no grace, no covering for her ugly wounds. Some day her sides will glisten with the brightness of a heavenly radiance; she will be washed and anointed like a bride waiting for the bridegroom.

EFFICIENCY OF FARMER VARIES

Some Are Able to Detect and Eliminate the Low-Paying or Losing Enterprises.

OTHERS SHOULD MAKE MORE

Information Obtained in Keeping Records Is Valuable in Assisting Farmer to Secure a Balanced Business for Next Year.

Farmers, just like other business men, vary widely in the degree of efficiency displayed in running their business. Some are able to analyze the farm business and thus to detect and eliminate the low-paying or losing enterprises. Others, lacking the knowledge of how to make a systematic analysis of the business as a whole, know that their profits are not what they ought to be, without knowing how to go about it, to increase them. They may be able to find and correct the obvious errors in the small-sized farm business, but in handling a business of considerable size they often fail to spot the enterprises that are losing money for them. Such men may or may not make money, but at best they fall short of making as much as they might. A farmer may be making a large net profit on his potatoes and losing it all by keeping low-producing cows. Similarly a man may be making money on his cows and losing part of the profit on another enterprise. Hence the paramount importance of records to the farmer.

Farm Returns Studied. Careful studies made upon a large number of farms enable the office of farm management of the United States department of agriculture to make some interesting statements in this regard. For instance, they find that only 10 per cent—usually less—of the farms studied are managed so as to secure better-than-average returns from all four factors—size of business, yield of crops, live stock, and labor—while from 20 to 30 per cent of the farms considered have only one factor better than the average. It must be understood that no one of these factors will determine success.

The figures given which relate to the labor income will prove most interesting to farm employers. The analysis has reduced the labor cost of farm work to figures. An acre of hay, on an average farm, costs the labor of one man and one horse for a ten-hour day to cut, cure, and harvest it; oats, wheat, and barley, one and a half days of man labor and three of horse.

Without Keeping Records the Farmer Cannot Tell How Much He Is Making and on What Crops.

corn for the silo, three man days and five and a half days for a horse; onions, sold in bunches, require about 93 days of man work to only ten for the horse; dairy cows take 18 days of man time every year and two days of horse time—so on through a list that includes about every item of farm effort. This information is valuable both in securing a balanced business and in assisting the farmer to estimate his labor needs for the coming year. It is contained in a new publication of the department of agriculture, bulletin 1130, "A Method of Analyzing the Farm Business."

Advice of Experts Available. With the bulletin go blank forms for the purpose of preparing the analysis. Upon these blanks the farmer can inventory his business and then, if he feels unqualified to abide by his own judgment upon the results shown, he may secure the advice of experts by submitting the data gathered to his county agent, or to his state agricultural college, or he may send it directly to the department of agriculture to have the analysis made.

MARKET FOR SURPLUS TRUCK

Fruit and Vegetables Otherwise Wasted Can Be Sold in Small Quantities by Using Motor.

The motor truck express routes in many localities make it possible for the farmer to market his surplus fruit and vegetables in small quantities that would otherwise be wasted. When there is more than enough for canning purposes, this method should not be overlooked.

FARM WOODLAND CAN BE MADE PROFITABLE

Erroneous for Farmers to Saw Up Choice Timber.

Many Valuable Logs Go Into Cross Ties When They Would Bring Much More Money If Sold as Saw Logs—Other Hints.

It is a mistake to saw up choice logs of white oak, ash, cherry and yellow poplar for rough uses at home or to use clear black walnut for gate boards or split up white oak burrs for fence posts. This fact is emphasized in many ways in a new publication, "Forestry and the Farm Income," issued by the forest service, United States department of agriculture. Farmers are told that many valuable logs go into cross ties when they would bring the owner much more if sold as saw logs. Likewise, large numbers of rapidly growing trees are cut which produce only one small tie, whereas, if left to grow for from three to five years, they would yield more than double the profit. To avoid making such mistakes, owners of farm woodland should familiarize themselves with the uses for which each kind of timber is best adapted. Timber that is cut in the late spring and summer months should be handled with special care to avoid injury, because freshly cut wood is then more likely to be attacked by insects and fungi than during the colder months. Seasoning proceeds more rapidly during the warmer season and may cause excessive checking, which is not beneficial to the timber. If rightly handled, posts, poles and logs may be cut at any season without their durability being affected. In no case should wood be allowed to lie in direct contact with the ground. The opportunity for insect attack and decay can be reduced to a minimum by peeling the timbers and opening them off the ground in a shaded but dry place. This, however, does not retard checking of the wood.

Logs are sometimes stored under water, in the hot season, to prevent blue stain, checking, insect attack, and decay. Painting the ends of logs with a yellow ochre or barn paint will very materially retard injury by end checking. Painting peeled timbers with creosote will prevent sap stain and decay.

NEW SEEDINGS FOR PASTURE

Sheep Better Suited for Grazing Than Horses or Cattle—Rye Favored for Fall Pasture.

New seedings of clover and timothy should be pastured lightly. Sheep are better suited for this purpose, than horses and cattle, but care must be used to prevent them grazing the new meadows too closely. Stalk fields, from which the corn and stover have been removed, furnish considerable feed in the form of grass, weeds and an occasional stalk and ear of corn. It is well to allow the stock to clean up this feed that would otherwise go to waste. In order to provide more good fall grazing it is a good plan to sow rye at the last working of the corn crop.

WHY HARDING IS COX'S SUPERIOR

Senator Student of National Problems Who Will Not Barter Principles.

GOVERNOR IS A MOUTHPIECE

Democratic Nominee Is the Hope of Administration Officeholders and Fetch-and-Carry Boy of Mr. Wilson.

Immortal custom, since the days when newspapers began, has placed upon them the burden of declaring their choice for a candidate for public office and giving their reason for that choice, vigorously or timidly as their policy may dictate, says the Providence (R. I.) Journal.

The Journal has tried to the best of its ability to arrive at such a conclusion concerning Governor Cox and Senator Harding. One of these men will be called by the nation to serve it as president of the republic for the next four years—a period of stress and trial; a period of reconstruction not only for our country but for the world; a period already darkened by the shadows of doubt, by the dangers of radicalism run wild, by grave and vital problems almost beyond the power of mortal man to foresee or analyze.

The Journal's choice for president is Warren G. Harding. It believes that, judged from the standpoint of patriotism, statesmanship and deep and abiding love of the ideals that have made the republic what it is, he is infinitely superior to Governor Cox. Senator Harding is a keen student of national problems, who cannot be induced to barter his principles for any personal or party advantage. He is a man who begets confidence, who holds the respect and affection of all who come in contact with him.

Governor Cox is a shrewd, able and active politician, playing the game asleep and awake. He is the mouthpiece of "Charlie" Murphy and Tammany Hall and the bosom friend of "Tom" Twombly, whose pleasure resorts in Indiana have been for many years the meeting place of all the scoundrel and discredited elements among the Democratic leaders.

But, above and beyond these things, the election of Governor Cox would mean a continuation of the Wilson policies and the unspcakably vicious Wilson methods. It would give another lease of life to the regime that has sought to drive Americans like "Tom" Twombly, whose pleasure resorts in Indiana have been for many years the meeting place of all the scoundrel and discredited elements among the Democratic leaders.

No party has an option on all the virtues or all the vices. President Wilson is not the Democratic party and has never been its real spokesman. And in Governor Cox we see not the standard-bearer of a great party but the hope of Democratic officeholders and a fetch-and-carry boy for Mr. Wilson. He has already publicly pledged his devoted and loyal support to the president's "ideals." He is thoroughly acceptable to Mr. Wilson—they both say so—and no man is acceptable to Mr. Wilson whom Mr. Wilson cannot handle like a blind and dumb automaton.

Not So Much.

It is beginning to dawn on the country that Jimmy Cox is not so much of a candidate for president. The careless manner in which he shoots off his mouth indicates that he has not much idea of the importance of the position he is seeking. As a matter of fact, Jimmy appears to be a swashbuckling politician who likes a drink and has otherwise some human qualities, but one that is about as well qualified for the presidency as a good natured and popular bartender would be. It is with extreme regret that we are moved to these observations because we had a sneaking fondness for Jimmy, but that was before we had read some of his campaign utterances.—Peoria (Ill.) Star.

Let Us Forget.

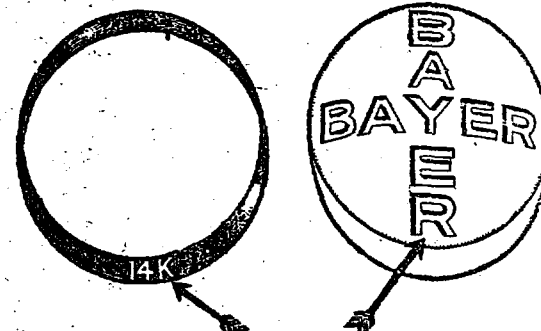

You'll have to hand it to a Democratic politician who has the nerve to get up this year and talk about what the Democratic party is going to do for the people when everybody holds in fresh remembrance just what it has been doing to the people for the past 336 weeks.—Marcus Hook (Del.) Press.

"See America First"

The Democratic president may still hold to his expressed opinion that the cause of the League of Nations is greater than the senate and greater than the government, and the Democratic candidate may share that opinion, but the people of the United States are disposed to demand that the safety and prosperity of America shall come first with the American government, and that the well-being of the American people shall not be sacrificed or neglected for a visionary internationalism.—Pueblo (Colo.) Chieftain.

ADMITTED HE WAS LOSER SOMETHING JOB NEVER DID

Convivial Gentleman Preferred to Buy His Wife Rather Than Comply With Wife's Request.

Three men about town had a very good day at the races. Each vowed that he would go home and cheerfully obey the first request that his wife made him. A bottle of wine depended upon the result.

The following night they compared notes. "My wife told me, as I slipped on the cat's paw, to break all the china in the house, so I did," said No. 1. "I happened accidentally to sit on the piano," said No. 2, and my wife suggested that I should utterly ruin it, so that instrument will be heard no more."

Then No. 3 spoke. "I went for the top step that was not there and fell full length," he explained, "and my wife remarked that she would be pleased to see me break my neck."

"And?" queried his companions, breathlessly. "Oh, I am paying."

Most Amazing. "Alger is losing his memory. It's been going on now for two months." "But how could it?"

Filled with pride, Mr. and Mrs. Brown started out for a drive in their new motorcar. Mrs. Brown was hoping the neighbors were watching, but her husband was too busy steering to hope about anything.

Alack! Before they reached the end of the road the car stopped, and stayed that way with a male-like persistency. Mr. Brown tried every lever and handle in turn. Then he got down from his seat and began to investigate.

Presently he lay down and crawled underneath the car until only his number nine were left visible. In a few moments the car gave a sudden jolt and then stopped, and a veritable roar of language, more forcible than polite, became audible.

An Appeal to Republicans. REPUBLICAN STATE EX. COMMITTEE, Greensboro, N. C.

The Republican Voters and Law Respecting Citizens of North Carolina. It is the opinion of competent legal authority that the Absentee Voter Law is in violation of the constitution of the State and will be so declared by the Courts before the election.

It is a known and sworn to fact that under this law brazen frauds have nullified and destroyed the integrity and purity of the ballot and thousands of our soldier boys and other citizens were defrauded of their votes by forging their names without their knowledge.

The Republican State Executive Committee has employed counsel in the persons of Judge W. P. Bynum, Judge R. C. Strudwick, and Attorney Sidney S. Aldermen.

These lawyers have been authorized and directed to proceed immediately, and to the court of final appeal if necessary, to have removed from the books this illegal and iniquitous provision of the present Election Law.

The expense of this litigation will be heavy and will not be less than $3,500.00 by conservative and competent estimate. This is a mere pittance in comparison with the benefit accruing to every law respecting citizen and to the fair name of our state.

The Republican State Committee appeals to the Republicans and to those citizens of the State who believe that the sanctity of the ballot is the only guarantee of a free, lasting and economical government of and by the people to make possible this all important undertaking and to carry it on to successful conclusion.

The suit has been instituted and the Republican State Committee most earnestly asks you to aid in carrying it on. Will you send at once to Frank A. Linney, State Chairman, Greensboro, N. C.

The Paint for your House is

STAG SEMI-PASTE PAINT

The "Stag" is made from pure materials just as lots of other paints, but what makes it wear better is the way its made.

The Stag Paint is made in paste form. It contains sufficient dryer, coloring matter, etc., but you thin the paste with Linseed Oil when you are ready to begin your painting. As you will readily see, the result is an absolutely fresh paint, uniform in color, and very economical.

The ballots For The November Elections.

The Raleigh News and Observer state that within the next few days printers will begin work on the 5,000,000 National State and congressional ballots that will decide the November election in North Carolina. The number is the largest that has ever been ordered in the State, and will require the steady work of the printers for several weeks. They will be mailed out before the 15th of October.

There will be a million tickets bearing the name of Cox and Roosevelt, Democratic national nominees, and 700,000 dedicated to Harding and Coolidge. Another million State Democratic tickets will be printed and 700,000 for the Republicans bearing the party nominees for all State offices. Approximately 2,000,000 congressional tickets will be printed.

The number of tickets required in the election is determined by the party vote in the last preceding national election with an added 25 per cent for normal growth. The figures this year have been doubled on account of the enfranchisement of the women. So far no provision has been made for the Socialist, Prohibitionist or other tickets that are in the field in the State and nation.

The Great Cost of Automobiles.

Careful estimates reveal the fact that the public is spending over $6,000,000,000 a year, or $280 per family, for operating and riding in automobiles. 87 per cent of which are passengers cars. With the road-building and maintenance cost added to the above, automobilism will likely foot up as great a sum total to the American public as the operation of the railroads.

Goodyear Tires for Small Cars Are Popular Because Economical

There is nothing but disappointment in buying cheaply made tires that are announced as wonderful bargains at a few dollars each and then fail after brief terms of service.

Get exceptional mileage at exceedingly low cost in Goodyear Tires, of the 30 x 3, 30 x 3½ and 31 x 4-inch sizes, built of Goodyear-selected materials and with Goodyear skill and care.

Due to their precise manufacture in the world's largest tire factory devoted to these sizes, their quality is most economically produced and therefore most economically employed.

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car taking these sizes, go to your nearest Service Station for Goodyear Tires; ride farther and fare better.

THE BIG FORSY

Winston-Salem, the most progressive City will pull off this year best Fair in North Carolina from the extensive that are being made.

What about the Fair is a question often asked. The best of this not an old story, true one, for each Fair bigger than the previous.

More attention has each department of year than ever before. ums for agriculture, poultry are strong and if these departments it will not be the management.

Thousands of people the State look forward to the Annual Fair with It is a time when we are for a short season when the city comes in relationship with the country when problems of life.

This year special attention given to clean, high amusement features. will be filled with new concessions.

For this season a company has been secured to be on hand in a blaze of

There will be special from all points. North the increased cost of the great expense in the Fair, there will be admission. Only 50 cents and 25 cents for children. The dates this year a 6-7-8, day and night.

There will be enclosed grounds a complete Authorized Field Artillery, and men, equipped with 75 mm. guns. They bit of captured enemy or, machine repair trucks, tentage and equipment. This is the first our people have had to guns from across the ocean.

Got the Worst

We read of an incident preacher made a test. dience and got the worst member of his congregation drunk and his head back of the pew in front asleep. The evangelist who wanted to go to the up. All responded excited man. Then the quipped those who were hell to stand. The company the others in sitting roused the drunken sinner heard enough of the proposition to sense the fact that invited to stand. He his feet and, looking marked: "Parson, I do what question we are it seems to me you and hopeless minority." the congregation can be agined than described.

Hire Gov. C

We do not know highest remuneration talent can expect in a campaign. We are convinced, however, that Hays and his organization $3,000,070 to bestow it way for the election. Harding they could depend at least $2000,070 were possible, in employment nor Cox to keep on the continue to exhibit his itremendable unfitness dent of the United York Sun Herald.
