Analogous Politics.

Gubernatorial candidates i North Carolina would do well to tudy the result of the recent De nocratic primary in Kentucky, ir which Happy Chaudler won smashing victory over administra tion forces.

The analogy in Kentucky and North Carolina politics is that Ken tucky now enjoys the privilege of a sales tax that was modeled after the North Carolina law, and Chandler's sweeping victory came after a cam paign of aggressive opposition to this law that imposes a levy on the necessities os life.

The Kentucky legislature, directed by a persuasive mind backed by an iron hand, as was the case in mage said, "and that is to repu-North Carolina, had passed this liate every communistic doctrine aw over the protest of the citizen- advocated by the present adminisry, and this was the first time the tration . . . and nominate men voters had opportunity to express whose actions have inspired confitheir sentiments with ballots. One hundred and thirty-nine years ago George Washington made his farewell address. It is mid-"Victorian" to drag in George Washington when so many are prepared to write a better Constitution than the one he signed. Nevertheless, some of the old-fashioned may tolerate a reminder that in his farewell address George Washington said: "It is our true policy to steer clear Arthur Brisbane of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world."

Also, with apologies to pacifists and high-spirited young college gentlemen who say they would not fight under any circumstances, you are reminded that George Washington said in 1790:

"To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserv-

Mussolini is not alone in his desire for war. On Sunday in the Ethiopian capital, Addis Ababa, according to the Associated Press, "2,000 shrieking Ethiopians," yelling "We want war," gathered before the imperial palace demanding weapons. Dispatches from Tokyo tell of planning political murder wholesale.

The "god-sent troops" that have committed occasional murders in highest places are tired of "occasional" murders, and decided to wipe out the Japanese cabinet in an air raid with ombs, destroy the financial district of Tokyo, assassinate hundreds of industrial and financial leaders and "reestablish imperial despotism."

The burning of buildings to put the throne and Tokyo in a state of chaos was part of the plan.

"Death Spits Five Times" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

TERE, boys and girls, is the doggondest story you ever read in your life—the story of a lad who was called "yellow" and didn't like it. The story of a lad who, to show that he wasn't yellow, sat unmoved while they put up a wreath of flowers in his lap-a lily in his hand-while death darted at him five times across a theater stage.

His name is Philip Luongo—this lad who faced his maker rather than becalled a coward. And if you have ever got a job to do that calls for real courage, just get Phil to do it. After what he went through six years ago, in that crowded theater up in the Bronx, there isn't anything in the world that is

It was a dare that started Phil Luongo off on his big adventure. A famous French sharpshooter was appearing at a vaudeville theater and every night be called for volunteers to be his human mark—to wear a headgear with five small glass balls on it while the Frenchman shot them off one by one. Other lads had seen the show dared Phil to go up there and be shot at. And when Phil said he didn't like the idea they called him "yellow."

Phil didn't want to be shot at any more than you or I do. But they couldn't call him yellow and get away with it. With his friends he went to the theater, ready to make them eat those sneering words of theirs. They took seats in the first row of the orchestra and waited for the Frenchman's act to come on.

The fourth act had just ended and the Frenchman was due next. He cam out suave and smiling-made a short talk about his war record and showed a short moving picture of himself flying a plane in action on the Western Front, Then he went into his shooting act, performing with every kind of gun imagin able, and never missing a shot.

Phil Finds Himself Volunteering.

As his act drew to a close, he warmed up to his big stunt of the evening. He stepped to the front of the platform, asked for a volunteer to put on the headgear. But at the same time, he warned the audience that anyone who did put on the headgear would be doing it at his own risk,

It was Phil's moment to speak up, and darned If Phil wanted to do it. He kept thinking of what would happen if the Frenchman should miss. But suddenly out of a daze, he found himself holding up his hand -crying to the man on the stage that he would volunteer to be his human target.

The Frenchman seemed to look surprised—then he smiled. Phil was ushered to the stage by the Frenchman's assistant; seated in a chair over by one of the wings. He was scared to death, but he tried not to look it. Only his heavy breathing betrayed the fact that the inside of him had gone ice-cold and that his heart was pounding so hard that he felt sure it must break through his chest.

Phil Just Wasn't Going to Be Yellow.

Nobedy tried to make it any easier for Phil. In fact, it seemed as though they were deliberately trying to scare him out of it. They put a wreath of lowers in his lap—a lily in his hand. The orchestra began playing the funeral narch. The audience laughed. Apparently they were getting a great kick out of it. But Phil wasn't. He hung onto the sides of his chair, fighting off the desire to get out of it. To run off the stage and back to his seat in the orchestra. But always when he thought of quitting, there came before his eyes the picture of those pals of his, sneering and calling him vellow.

Suddenly the orchestra stopped playing. The Frenchman pushed a trunk to the middle of the stage, lay down on his back and began sighting at Phil's head along the barrel of his rifle. A new fear gripped at Phil's heart. He hadn't known the Frenchman was going to shoot at him from any such crazy position. The Frenchman's smile disappeared. His brow knit, and little veins stood glass ball on Phil's headgear fell to pieces. Another crack-and another. There Phil's courage came back to him. He sat calm and unafraid while the Frenchman shot off the other two balls and came toward him smiling, with out stretched hand.

The theater roared into thunderous applause. Phil suddenly found the spotlight focused on him. He tried to go back to his seat, but again and again he was brought back to take bows. It might have been the big moment of Phil's life, but it wasn't. The real thrill came when the Frenchman stepped forward to make a little speech.

He congratulated Phil on his courage in facing his gun-said it was the bravest thing he had ever seen done. And then he made a confession that sur-prised Phil himself. In all his years on the stage, the Frenchman said, this was the first time anyone had had courage enough to take such a chance.
Usually, he admitted, nobody volunteered, and he had to use his assistant for his final feat.

And what a look Phil gave his friends down in the front row when the Frenchman said those words.

Is One of the Oldest Barbering is one of the oldest of what are sometimes denominated personal occupations. Shaving the head or some part of it, has been practiced from the earliest times, even among nations which discouraged the shaving of the beard. Etymologically, the term barber, from the Latin word barba (beard), denotes a shaver of the beard; but it have usually been accounted one occupation. Shaving is spoken of in Job i: 20; Genesis xli: 14; Leviticus xiii: 33; and Leviticus xiv: 8-9, and in several other of the Old Testament books; but the first place where the barber is directly mentioned is in Ezekiel v: 1: "And thou, son of man, take thee a barber's razor," etc. Figures on Egyptian and Assyrian nonuments, and on some of the oldest of Chinese porcelains show that shaving of the beard and head as a sign of mourning, or subjection, or religious devotion, was practiced among all these ancient peoples. It is plainly impossible to discover the origin of barbering. It is interesting to know that in former times this calling was regarded as a profession, dentistry (at least the lancing of discarded part seek gums and drawing of teeth) and blood body of the snake.

Formation of Grand Canyon The Grand canyon has been worn by the ceaseless flow of the silt-lader Colorado river, by the storm waters that occasionally fall into the canyon, and by weathering processes. The most effective of these agencies has been the river itself. However, it has not directly carved the canyon seems that hair-cutting and shaving to its full width, nor cut the embayments that scallop the rims of the plateaus. It has cut its way vertically downward, maintaining its course al most without change. Meanwhile, the rocky walls of the canyon have been exposed to the destructive action of rain and rill, of frost and landslide, of wind and chemical action.

"Glass Snakes"

There are a number of lizards in the South that are known as "glass snakes" or "joint snakes." They are lizards and not snakes because they have movable eyelids and an ear opening. They have a tail which breaks off easily. There is, of course, no truth in the story that the glass snake hunts up the discarded tail and puts it on again, or that the tail or other discarded part seeks out the main

This habit of flies traveling great distances on other power than their own has made local fly eradication campaigns less effective than the campaigners hoped. Cases have been found where a fly carried disease germs on its legs and body for miles and infected people in the community where it settled. No previous cases of the disease were in existence in the new community and health authorities could find no other source of infection than flies.

Repeated warnings of physicians and health officials have apparently failed to instill a proper fear of the house fly in the average mind. ### Haste at the Wrong Time

Often Fatal to Motorists A motor accident never occurs if it can be avoided. Drivers do not leliberately crash into each other, skid off the road, run into trains at grade crossings or swerve into trees Traffic mishaps occur only after it is too late to prevent them. Re duced to a fundamental, they are almost always the result of too much speed in the wrong place. Speed in itself is relative. A spee of three miles an hour is too muci if it carries a load of people onto a grade crossing in front of an oncoming locomotive. A speed of 70 miles an hour, or even 80, under the proper conditions, with car mechani cally perfect, brakes in good work ing order, driver alert, road wide and smooth and the way ahead clear of traffic for half a mile, is afe enough.

Rather than put all the blame on speed, perhaps it should be placed on haste, which is speed at the wrong time. The proper conditions for speed, of course, vary. Some times the conditions demand unusually slow driving. Sometimes they permit of unusually fast driv-But drivers, if they will remember that any speed which places them in danger or causes them to be dangerous to others is too much, can often avoid accidents before they ire in the midst of them.

"to respond to any menace whatever." Still more important, in the light of developments, was the cabinet's announcement of strengthening its military forces in Libya, where General Balbo has been establishing a strong line of air repots. This colony borders Egypt on the west, and there was immediately a lot of speculation as to whether Mussolini planned to attack the British empire in that region. Italian forces in Libya have received reinforcements of 40,000 men with tanks and field artillery, and are much stronger than the British forces in Egypt. If economic sanctions were imd on Italy, Mussolini might well reply by threatening Great Britain in that quarter, by invasion and by arousing the native population to revolt.

Premier Laval's speech before the League of Nations was exceedingly clever but did not clear the situation sufficiently. While he gave assurance that France would abide by the league covenant and fulfill its obligations, he hinted that his government would demand in return that Britain enter a definite engagement to carry out the program agreed upon in London on February 3-an air Locarno with automatic enforcement and the conclusion of Danubian and Baltic security pacts.

One after another the nations represented in the league announced their support of the British stand against If the British do not back down-and that seems unlikely-and if Italy persists in its adventure, the will be called on to apply article 15 of the covenant. This requires the submission of any dispute, likely to lead to a rupture, to the council which must then try to effect a set tlement. The council also will adopt as its own the report of the committee of five, which has failed to find a solution acceptable to Italy. The par-ties to the dispute are obligated to keep the peace for three months in any event, which would prevent an Italian campaign before the rains set in again

"Take a look at this," virtually said Great Britain to Italy as she massed a great fleet of powerful warships in the Mediterranean. Many of them were at Gibraltar, others at Malta and Alex andria and yet others at the entrance to the Suez canal. Practically the entire north Atlantic fleet was concentrated in the inland sea, and there was a chain of fighting vessels all the way from there to China-and every one of them was ready to defend the supremacy of the empire. The royal air force too, was fully represented at the naval bases, and the shore garrisons were reinforced. This was John Bull's reply to Mussolini's defiance, and it might well give him pause.

"Unconstitutional" is the verdict of the American Liberty league's committee of 58 lawyers on the Wagner-Connery labor relations

"It is our belief," said the opinion written in the form of a brief, "that the statute unnecessarily and arbitrarily infringes upon the individual liberties of the employer and the em ployee and is therefore invalid."

COMPTROLLER GENERAL MC there is no legal authorization for the federal government to pay out any funds for the construction of a furniture factory at Reedsville, W. Va. This has been a project especially favored by Mrs. Roosevelt. It was intended originally that the factory should make furniture for government offices and give employment to transplanted coal ers. A year ago McCarl refused to sanction an allocation to the factory from recovery funds. Then congress turned on the project on the ground that it discriminated against private industry. McCarl says the Department of the Interior went ahead with letting contracts for the construction, nevertheless, and the building is about 80 per cent completed.

R ESOLUTIONS adopted by the Iowa Des Moines demand that President Roosevelt dismiss Secretary of Agri culture Wallace from the cabinet and halt "the program of hunger." The AAA was called "infamous Worthless and vicious."

Washington.-When President Rooseelt entered the White House March 4, 1933, every dollar Check on of federal money that Spending was expended was accounted for and vouchers reviewed by the general accounting offices. J. Raymond McCarl, comptroller general of the United States, occupied and still occupies an independent position in the accountings he directed and the reviews that were made under the budget and accounting law. But with the arrival of the New Deal and the crisis in government and the nation arising from the depression, scores of new laws were enacted, new agencie of government were created and billions of dollars were appropriated, the bulk of it being spent without reference to the accounting act or the bureau of the budget. Congress, under White House direction, did not make these new agencies or their spending accountable to the comptroller general. It was almost two years before Pres ident Roosevelt saw fit to make any of the emergency agencies, the alphabetical soup, amenable to the genera accounting office. Consequently, millions upon millions of dollars were spent and only the spending agencies knew whether they were spent in accordance with law. Now, however, things have changed. Late last winter President began extending the broad wings of the general account ing office over emergency agencies and has continued to do so until, only the other day, the last of these were made responsible to the comptroller general Thus an independent governmental unit-one with no axes to grind-again is in a position to say whether fed eral money is being spent as congress directed and in a manner which the taxpayers have the right to demand.

This spending of money in gigantic amounts always breeds suspicion. It causes people to inquire, whatever the form of government may be or what ever political party may be in control whether there is waste or graft, wheth er the then office holders are feather ing their own nests, and many another question of the like. It was true in the case of the New Deal. Observers here in Washington constantly were receiving information alleging that this individual or that had been displaying signs of unusual prosperity that rumors were affoat concerning graft and crookedness in one agency or another and that "somebody ough to expose" the goings-on with respect to a named department of government. It was not an unusual circumstance because in every administration we here in Washington who attempt to see and to hear as much as we can, get the same kind of reaction. Only, it seemed to have been worse this time and well it may have been because the amount of money made available to President Roosevelt and his subordinates was so much larger. It is my belief, however, that there has not been more of this intangible thing called graft in government in the present administration than in most others. There has been some crookedness because there have been court convic tions of some officials but I expect when and if the future lays bare all facts concerning the present adminis tration and its handling of the vast sums of money available to it, it will be disclosed that most of the New Deal officials have been honest in their disbursement of funds. Their friends may have profited but, if they have that is just a repetition of an old story, a circumstance always developing in a government managed undo the two party system. To the victors always go the spoils.

If Mr. Roosevelt has been able to keep down straight-out crookedness. he is to be commend Criticize ed. It will remove from the forthcom-Spending ing campaign some of the mud slinging that really has no place in national politics. But, while the President is entitled to commen dation for the attempts at honest dis bursement of funds, I hear more and more criticism of the way the money has been spent. Indeed, it appears now that the vast expenditures by the administration are likely to be as much of a campaign issue as, is his proposal to alter the Constitution to fit New Deal plans.

Every one knows that when an individual's pocketbook is touched, he rises in revolt. By the time the next election comes around individuals will have had their pocketbooks touched ratner forcibly by national and state and local taxes of an increased amount. Thus, it is easy to see how the criticism of Roosevelt's spending is growing and can continue to grow The government has been pushed ten or ten or twelve billion more in debt and the end is not in sight, despite the fact that Mr. Roosevelt has intimated on several occasions lately that he proposes to curtail federal expenditures except for emergency purposes. Those announcements and any future declarations he may make are not going to soften the antagonistic feeling that people have for any pubic official who wastes money whether the motives be proper or improper. From this point, one may look into the crystal of the 1936 campaign and it takes no stretch of the imagination to visualize what a pounding the New Deal opposition will give the Roose velt administration on this question of spending

When Mr. Roosevelt began spending he declared it was justified because hundreds of thousands of citizens were starving. His next pronouncement on this subject by way of explaining continued expenditure was that if the government spent freely, it would serve as a priming of the economic pump; that the circulation of federal would allow industry to sell and that industry would replace by manufac ture the things sold. That, too brought little or no result. Then we entered the current stage where the spending was to be closely supervised and only projects that held promise of actually developing manufacture and retail selling would be approved and financed by federal money. It is regrettable but it is a fact that almost nothing has come of this program,

And to make matters worse, lately Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, and Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins have locked horns on the bulk of the projects on which federal money was to be used.

It is not strange that these two men should differ Mr Honkins, being a trained, a professional, welfare worker sees things only from the standpoint of the individual who needs food. Mr. Ickes has a conception of federal spending that embraces the use of money in ways designed to start the great industries in motion. He figures that if these industries get going, they employ workers; the workers will spend their wages and the retailers will profit thereby and, as the retailers sell from their shelves, they seek replacements from the manufacturers. The controversy between Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Ickes, therefore, is not one to be settled by compromise or by soft words. In fact, it may never be settled until one or the other gets out of his place in the government debt to meet through this pay ment of their taxes. So the President's order placing all administrative agencies under the general accounting office to see that their spending is honestly done and the developments within the administration over a difference in policy must be taken together as a break for the taxpayer.

The importance of the Ickes-Hopkins row to the reader of this column however, lies largely Break for in the fact that the Taxpayers particular reader is a taxpayer. The connection is simply this: the last con gress appropriated $4,880,000,000 for use by the administration in public works and relief. If all of that sum were spent the public debt would be increased by that amount because internal revenue taxes are insufficient to offset more than the ordinary government expenditures. Therefore, if all of this money is not spent, and it cannot be spent if the Ickes-Hopkins dis-

... Agriculture adjustment administration officials are about ready to present to the farmers of this country a de-Control tailed plan for control of potato production. It will provide means for boosting the incomes of the potato farmers something more than 100 per cent, and will increase the cost of this item of food to consumers by a proportionate amount, of course. Conferences soon will be held between the AAA and representatives of farmers' organizations to work out phases of the plan requiring farmer approval. Various thoughts arise if one reflects upon potato control. First, control of potato production marks the fourteenth agricultural crop brought un-der regimentation and it presents, probably, the toughest of all of them in the matter of enforcing its provisions.

Adoption of the potato control program represents attainment of a point in the life of the AAA where one step has led to another until control of potatoes was essential, or the whole plan of erop control flops. It will be recalled that the declared purpose of the AAA at the beginning was only for the control of cotton. Land withheld from cotton then was planted to tobacco and tobacco had to be controlled; when tobacco was controlled, and the land withdrawn, farmers in some sections turned to peanuts and peanuts had to oe controlled.

I understand the AAA is considerably worried about the job of enforcing the potato control law. That law provides compulsion against overproduction in the form of a tax club-a tax of 45 cents a bushel. In addition, there are penalties of an amazingly severe kind-$1,000 fine for the first of ense and imprisonment for not more than a year for the second. C Western Newspaper Union.

PAINT-THIRSTY HOMES DRAIN ON OWNER'S PURSE

"Americans are not accustomed to figuring depreciation costs on rest dential properties," says Arthur Stires in "House and Garden." The business man must count depreciation costs on industrial property, his story points out, yet all too seldom does he make provision for this

CHAPTER III

The village store, grandiloquently styled by a red sign the Wilton emporium, was thronged with the usual oontime crowd.

It was a still, gray day, murky with fog, and the odors of wet oilskins, steaming rubber coats, damp woolens blended with a mixture of tar, coffee and tobacco smoke, made its interior thick and stuffy. Long ago the airtight stove had consumed such remnants of oxygen as the room contained. The windows reeked with moisture: the floor was gritty with sand.

These discomforts, however, failed to he of consequence to the knot of men who, rain or shine, congregated there at mail time. They were accustomed to them. Indeed, a drizzle, far from keeping the habitues away, rendered the meeting place unusually pop ular.

Shuffling over to the counter where his friends were huddled, Zenas Henry unostentatiously joined them.

"Yes, siree, there'll be somethin doin' in Wilton now," Enoch Morton, the fish-man, was saying. "That sand bar's goin' to be the center of the town, if I don't miss my guess. There'll be more'n Charlie Eldridge fishin' in the channel.

A laugh greeted the prediction. "Who's seen her?" Captain Beniamin Todd inquired. "I have," came the piping voice of "Me and 'Becca rowed over from Belleport Saturday. The girl's Jason's niece all right, same's folks say, though she looks no more like him than chalk like cheese. A prettier little critter 'twould be hard to find. And she's head over heels in ove with the place. I'm almighty glad she's come, too, for it's goin' to be grand for Marcia, who must be onely enough out there with only the setter for company." "It's her own fault. She could have other companions was she so minded, declared Captain Phineas Taylor, significantly.

"Oh, we all know that, Phineas," greed the gentle Lemuei Gill. "There's lenty of folks hankerin' to be comrades to Marcia. The only trouble is she doesn't want 'em."

"With this girl' at her elbow, she'll want 'em even less, I reckon." Asaph Holmes interposed.

"Mebbe. Still, I figger that ain't a-goin' to discourage her admirers none. Why, within the week Sylvia's been here, I happen to know Marcia's had four buckets of clams, a catch of flounders, an' a couple of cuts of swordfish presented to her," Ephriam Wise.

the mail carrier announced.

"That stray blue-fish of Charlie Eldridge's must 'a' swelled the collec-tion some, too," put in Lemuel. "When asked Charlie what he done with it, ie owned he left it over at the Home stead. He said he never wanted to see mother fish long's he lived."

"That ain't all the gifts The Widier's had, neither," volunteered Silas Nickerson, the postmaster, who now joined the group. "More'n one lob-ster's been sneaked to Marcia after

"I don't so much mind folks makin' Marcia friendly donations," Captain onas Baker declared with guilty haste 'In my opinion, it's right an' proper they should. the tide t'other side the channel? The whole village might burn to the ground 'fore ever he could be fetched

"Well, anyhow, I'm glad this niece of Marcia's come," broke in Lemuel Gill. "She's a pleasant little critter an' will kinder stir things up."

"Oh, there's no danger but she'll do that all right, Lemmy." Zenas Henry drawled. "You can generally depend on a pretty girl to raise a rumpus Give her a month in town an' she'll most likely have all the male population cuttin' one another's throats."

Fortunately both Marcia and Sylvia were at the moment too far out of earshot for this menacing prediction to reach them. Cut off by curtains of fog and a tide that foamed through the channel, they were standing in the Homestead kitchen.

It was a room boasting space enough for an old-fashioned brick oven; an oil stove; two sand-scrubbed tables, snow white and smooth as satin; a high-backed rocker cushioned in red calico: braided rugs and shelves for plants. A regal kitchen truly-one that hespoke both comfort and hospitality.

Before the fire, stretched upon his side, lay Prince Hal, his body relaxed, his eyes drowsy with sleep; while from her vantage-ground on the rocking chair above, the tiger kitten, she cried, throwing her arm impulsive-Winkie-Wee, gazed watchfully down ly about the other woman. "Forgive upon his slumbers.

It was Sylvia, however, who, in a room its supreme touch of color. She looked as if all the blossoms in all the world had suddenly burst into bloom and twined themselves about her slender body.

With her coming, a new world had opened to Marcia. To see Sylvia jauntily sweep aside old conventions; to behold the different emphasis she put upon familiar problems; to witness her audacious belittling of issues her elders had been wont to grapple with was an experience that continually shocked, stimulated, challenged

Marcia found herself half reluctantly admiring this splendidly normal out ook: this mixture of sophistication and naivete: her niece's novel and definitely formed opinions. For, youthful though Sylvia was, she had personality, character, stratums of wisdom far in advance of her years. A very intriguing companion, Marcia admitted, one of whose many-sided ness she would not soon tire.

"Now what shall our menu be, Marcia, dear?" she was asking. "Remem ber, according to our compact, it is my turn to get the dinner."

"Anything but fish!" Marcia answered with a groan. "I'm so tired of sait-water products it seems as if never again could I touch another."

"But my dear, if you will have a stag line of nautical admirers, what can you expect? You must pay the penalty. Besides, I think you're un-grateful," Sylvia pouted. "I love clams and other sea foods."

"You've not had so many of them in your lifetime as I have. Besides, suspect you are not telling the truth Come, confess. Aren't you a wee bit fed up on clams? Clam chowder Mon day night, steamed clams Tuesday noon; clam fritters Tuesday night. And then that bluefish. Why, it was big as a shark! I used to think i would be romantic to be a Lorelei and live deep down beneath the waves; but this avalanche of fish-!" Despairingly she shrugged her shoulders. Svivia laughed.

"I don't feel at all like that. I've had a feast of fish and enjoyed it. But if I were to express a preference it yould be for the hard-shelled suffers Do select one of those for a husband Marcia," begged she, whimsically. "The others are all very well. Indeed, that bluefish swain was magnificent in his way, but me for the crustaceans."

"Sylvia! You absurd child !" "Just consider the clam character for a moment—so silent, so close mouthed; never stirring up trouble or wanting to be out nights In my opinion, he would be an ideal helpwas to be a fire an' him hemmed in by mate. Not sensitive, either; nor jeal

"Sylvia, you are ridiculous!" Marcia protested. "You forget I am your

"My mistake. I did forget it, I'll confess; and what's more I probably always shall. To me you are just ? girl I'd be head-over-heels in love with if I were a man. I don't blame all the clams, lobsters, and flounders for flock ing over here to make love to you." "Stop talking nonsense."

"But it isn't nonsense. It's the truth. You certainly are not deluding yourself into thinking these men come gal livanting out here over the flats with the mere philanthropic purpose of seeing you don't starve to death, do you? Sylvia demanded.

"Perhaps they come to see you," redged Marcia feebly.

"Me! Now Marcia, pray do not esort to deceit and attempt to poke this legion of mermen off on me. As a relative, I insist on having a truthful, respectable aunt. Consider my vouth. Isn't it vour Christian duty to set me a good example? Whether you wed any of these nautical worshipers or not is your own affair. But at least honesty compels you to acknowledge they're your property."

A shadow, fleet as the rift in a summer cloud, passed over Marcia's face. but transient as it was Sylvia, sensitively attuned and alert to changes of mood in others, noticed it.

"What a little beast I am, Marcia," my thoughtlessness. I wouldn't have hurt you for the world. You know smock of flowered chintz, lent the I never saw Uncle Jason. He left home when I was a child and is no reality to me. Even mother remem bered him only as he was when a boy. Mother felt sorry, hurt, that Uncle Jason should have left home as he did. and never come back to see her. He was an impulsive, hot-headed boy and she said he resented her watchfulness and authority. But even though he ran away in a moment of anger, one would think years of absence would have smoothed away his resentment.

"Jason-Jason loved your mother," Marcia murmured in a voice scarcely audible. "I am sure of that." "But if he loved her, why didn't he ome to see her? I know it was a long journey, but if he could only have come once-just once. It would have neant so much!" "Men are selfish-unfeeling. They forget," replied Marcia, bitterly, "You give your life to them and they toss aside your love and devotion as if it were so much rubbish.'

The outburst, sharp with pain, burst from her involuntarily, awing Sylvia into silence.

What did she know of Jason, that dim heritage of her childhood? Of Marcia? Of their life together, she suddenly asked herself.

To cover the awkwardness of the noment, she bent to caress Prince Hal who had risen and stood, alert and listening beside her.

Only an instant passed before Marcia spoke again—this time with visible effort to recapture her customary manner.

"Suppose we have lobster Newburg this noon," suggested she. "Til get the chafing-dish. What's the matter, Hal, old man? You look worried. Don't tell me you hear more fish swimming our way?"

The nose of the setter quivered and, going to the window, he growled. 'He does hear something," asserted Sylvia. "What do you suppose it is?" "Gulls, most likely. They circle above the house in clouds," was Marcia's careless answer. "The Prince regards them as his natural enemies He delights to chase them up the beach and send them whirling into the air. Apparently he resents their chat-scholar, a writer, a painter, or possibly to a physician, for it was strong as well as beautifully formed. Sylvia bent to adjust the pillow, and her eyes and Marcia's met.

Lesson for October 6 ISAIAH PORTRAYING THE SUF-FERING SERVANT

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 53:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. Isaiah 52:5. PRIMARY TOPIC-God's Best Prom-

ie. JUNIOR TOPIC—Isalah Foretells Jesus' Coming.
INTERMEDIATE AND TOPIC—What Our Salvation Cost.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT
TOPIC—The Suffering Savior.

The prophecy of Isaiah is the grand center of the Old Testament. It pictures the Servant of Jehovah with great wisdom gioriously executing the divine purpose of redemption at the cost of great suffering.

1. The Servant's Triumph (Is. 52: 13-15). The Servant here means the coming Messiah (42:1).

1. His wisdom (v. 13). He will deal prudently, for his name is Counsellor (9:6). He was filled with the spirit of wisdom and understanding (11:2).

2. He shall be exalted and extolled (v. 13). Being the mighty God, even Immanuel, Jehovah has highly exalted him (Phil. 2:9). 3. The appearance of the Servant

(v. 14). Because of his marred visage, the Jews, who looked for outward signs of royalty and worldly splendor were not attracted to him. 4. The issue of his ministry (v. 15). In his sprinkling of many nations he is revealed as the great High Priest. sprinkling the nations with his blood and cleansing them from their sins. !I. The Servant Despised and Reiected (53:1-3). 1. The unbelief of the Jews (v. 1).

They despised the words of the prophet and failed to recognize the hand of the Lord in the miracles he wrought. 2. The origin of the Servant (v. 2). He sprang out of a stump of Judiasm The and condition of the people at that time is expressed by "dry corn.

He came among his own and they apprehended him not. 3. A man of sorrows (v. 3). As the Sin-bearer of the world he suffered un told sorrows. The primary cause of his grief was their contemptuous rejec

III. The Vicarious Suffering of the Servant (53:4-6).

1. His griefs and sorrows were ours Though innocent, he was loaded down with disease and pain; not his, but ours. This awful suffering was looked upon by the world as occasioned by sin 2. He was beaten for us (v. 5). That which was our due was meted out to him. Notice the four significant words; "wounded," "bruised," despised," "stripes." The word "our shows that his sufferings were vicarious. The full meaning of the cross is comprehended in these words. 3. The reason (v. 6). All human ity. Jews and Gentiles, had gone astray. God had laid on him the in-

IV. The Death of the Servant (53: -9).

1. His strange silence (v. 7). He went as a lamb to the slaughter. How unlike men who, when wrongfully condemned, make a great ado.

2. Unconcern of contemporaries (v 8). Though dying instead of the wicked people, they failed to discern that his suffering was in their stead. 3. Buried -with the wicked and the rich. This was fulfilled in the crucifixion between two thieves, and burial in Joseph's tomb.

V. The Servant's Ultimate Victory

(vv. 10-12). 1. His suffering expressed the di-vine will (v. 10). The Lord himself laid this burden upon Christ. He was delivered according to the determined counsel and foreknowledge of God.

2. A spiritual progeny resulted from his death (v. 10). Christ declared "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone." The fundamental law of the universe, which is life out of death, found supreme expression in Christ's death on the CTOSS.

3. Through death shall come th realization of his fondest hope (v. 11). "He shall see the travail of his soul and shall be satisfied."

4. The divine reward (v. 12) The divine Conqueror shall share the spoils of victory which by a strong arm were secured. Though he took the place of a sinner, it was for the purpose of bearing the sins of many and making intercession for the transgressor. VI. The Servant's Suffering His torically Fulfilled (John 19:17-87). When Jesus of Nazareth went forth bearing his cross to Golgotha, where they crucified him, the prediction of Isaiah was historically realized.

Thought In the end, thought rules the world. There are times when impulses and passions are more powerful, but the soon expend themselves; while mind. acting constantly, is ever ready to drive them back and work when their energy is exhausted Influence

The ministry of personal influence s something very wonderful. Without helng conscious of it, we are always ssing others by this strange power. ist goes out from us.-Huck Miller.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left on a two weeks motor trip to Florida and upon their return will make their home in Sylva where the groom iengaged in the furniture business.

The bride is the attractive and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Thompsom and received her nurse's diploma at Davis Hospital, Statesville.

Winston-Salem Market Popular.

Convincing proof that the Winston-Salem leaf tobacco market is more popular than ever this year has already been furnished by the record-breaking number of growers placing their crops on sale in Twin City warehouses.

The trek to Winston-Salem started G. McDaniel, of R. 3, was ex-ing a sweet potato in town Sat-day, but these early arrivals found the warehousemen ready to welcome them. Every preparation had been made for the greatest conveience to tobacco growers and their families.

Four sets of buyers keep the sales moving rapidly, and yet there is ample time to give plenty of study to each pile of tobacco. The auctioneers take their time and gowers are assured of getting top price for heir offerings.

Although the new season has just opened, there is every indication that this is going to be Winston-Salem's biggest season and growers istice of the peace, United States in search of best prices are proving wise in carrying their crops to the Oyster Supper will be served by comen's Missionary Society of ing market in the Old Belt, but they arday evening, Oct. 5th. The patter-rollers, or at least a a good number of them were called of the entrants in this contest.

Judges were Mesdames H. C. Meto Mooresville during the cotton mill strike in that town recently. We were under the impression that the $2 50 prize, and desires to thank these men were hired to patrol the highways and try to prevent auto mobile wrecks. Guess we were mistaken.

The Davie County Fair, held in Mocksville last week, was a big success in many ways. The ex hibits were fine, and the crowds were well behaved. The busy sea son on the farms kept many away. The attendance was fairly large, at nights, and the fair was both luter esting and instructive. Davie has many fine dairy farms, good cattle, poultry and other live stock. The exhibits of farm products were good, and the fine cakes, candies, pies, canned goods, preserves, etc., was one of the drawing cards at the fair. A number of visitors from surrounding counties were present The flowers, school exhibits, live at home exhibits, together with the fine fruits, attracted much attention. All citizens of Davie county should be proud of the Davie Fair

Mrs. Koontz Wins $68 Refrigerator.

Mrs. Glenn Koontz, of Kappa was the winner in the best butter contest at the Davie fair last week. The prize was a $68 refrigerator donated by the Home Ice & Fuel Co., of this city. There were forty entries in this contest, and Mrs. Koontz is to be congratulated or winning over so many contestants About seven hours was used by the judge in testing the large a-mount of butter. Mrs. Taylor Bailey, of Advance, won second place in the butter contest. The butter exhibit was extra fine according to the gentleman from Raleigh who acted as judge.

Fine New Jail Newspaper Prestige Easy to Buy Who Is the Man?

Not much Ethiopian news. You could hardly expect it with our own white-black prize-efit. The emperor, Halle Selassie, is working on reforms doing away with abuses that Musso lini pointed out and promised to cure. He opened a substantial concrete jail outside of Addis Ababa to replace the old jail. There, according to Mr. von Wiegand's cablegram to Universal Service, "live prisoners sometimes remained chained to those who had died for days."

Newspapers in Pennsylvania, 265 of them, have celebrated "press prestige" this week. Governor Earle tells the editors, presumably shivering with delight and surprise, about "the important part that newspapers play in the lives of our people." It is as important as the part played by the people's eyes and ears, and might be taken for granted by now.

Napoleon knew about it when he said that, if he allowed freedom of the press, his power would not last six weeks. Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini could make speeches about it.

The newspaper is a mirror in which the public sees itself, the newspaper's owner and the civilization of the moment. Interesting reflections of that civilization may appear soon in dispatches from Ethiopia and from London in case Mussolini should send his first 500 airplanes in the direction of Buckingham palace, the house of commons. Downing street and the Bank of England, with the message: "What do you think of explosive and mustard gas sanctions?"

The pathetic thing in journalism, as in politics, is the lack of names that the people know. Millions of Americans read newspapers with no faintest conception as to the character of the man whose newspaper they read. It might be called "anonymous nonen-There are exceptions.

One idea is to allow "Aryan" employees to take over Jewish businesses with government backing. They might take it over, but what about running it? Anybody may other Job.

Gosh, I don't know what kind of lingo a sea-cowboy uses, but I know the kind I would have used if I'd been aboard the cattleboat, S. S. Winefredian, in mid-Atlantic, that wild March night with Peter Mullan and 700 head of plunging, terrified cattle.

Pete came so close to going on the Last Round-Up or to Davy Jones' locker that it wasn't funny. Incidentally the S. S. Winefredian has since slipped quietly down the stays to Davy Jones' locker, so maybe she was just playing a re-Cattleboats, Pete says, are not exactly floating palaces. In fact, they're gen-

Pete, two other greenhorn cattlemen and an underforeman were nursemaids to the steers on the ship, and this isn't such a bad way to earn a trip to Europe -unless you hit a bad storm. And then it's awful Old Ship Groans Under Waves. The storm hit the cattleboat when she was out in the middle of the Atlantic ocean, and the old ship groaned, plunged and rolled on her beam ends at an alarming angle. The crowded cattle-seasick and mad with terror-shrieked and kicked at every pitch of the ship, and Pete says it was plain bedlam between decks.

But, storm or no storm, the helpless beasts had to be taken care of and Pete and his shipmates were right down among them doing the best they could.

Monster waves plunged in through the open upper-deck hatch and the men and cattle swished around knee-deep in sea water.

Now if you've never been on a cattleboat you are probably wondering why they didn't close the hatch and keep the water out, but the trouble with that is that it also keeps the air out, and if you've ever been on one of those loaded beef ferries you know what that means. The stench and heat from the tightly packed steers would kill a man with Giant Wave Threatens Death to All.

So the hatch was left open and the water poured in and the good ship wallowed in the high seas like a ham-strung calf at a rodeo.

It was four o'clock in the morning, Pete says, when the crisis came, 'The men were ladling out fresh water to the frantic cattle when a monster wave slapped the weary side of the ship and Pete thought it was all over.

Pete was standing in the narrow passage-way with his mates when that wave struck. The ship keeled over to a 45-degree angle and flung the cattle in heaps to the port side of their stalls.

She paused there as though trying to decide whether or not to turn bottom side up, and then righted herself and dipped almost as far on the starboard side! Wham! Those tons of living steaks shot-the-shoots across their stalls and the detaining bars with a deafening crash. Some of the stalls held, but some of them didn't, and when Pete got to his feet and looked around him he forgot all about the storm, for coming right at him along the narrow passage-way WAS CERTAIN Now a stampede on dry land is about as dangerous a thing as you can find.

Pete says it was a sight he will never forget. The maddened steers—insate with terror-came splashing along the passage-way at amazing speed-tongues hanging out of their open mouths and eyes starting out of their heads.

Men and Cattle Caught in Death-Trap.

One of the leaders fell, but the rest never paused as they trampled him to death in the foam beneath their pounding hoofs. Pete let out a yell and tried to get out of the way, but the foreman was in front of him, and the foreman was a fat man and his slow-mov-ing bulk completely filled the passage-way. Pete says he felt like a rat in a trap-those few seconds that he stood there unable to move one way or the other.

The foreman was an old-timer and when he hurdled over a barrier into a stall he saved not only his own life but Pete's, because as he jumped he felt the hot breath of the leading steer on his cheek. Well, sir, jumping into one of those narrow stalls with a frantic steer for a cabin mate was like jumping from the frying pan into the fire.

Every time the boat rocked the steer would go careening dangerously around-smashing against one side and then the other-

Luckily for Pete and his shipmates not as many of the cattle had escaped as it seemed.

But the storm finally eased up and the cattle were rounded up and led back their repaired stalls with no serious casualties to the men. There were a lot of broken legs, however, among the steers.

The animals were destroyed to end their suffering, and as the good ship teadied on her path they were buried at sea. And so, boys and girls, ends the saga.

Odors of Many Blossoms

Are Far From Agreeable Throughout the ages, scents have exercised a fascination over mankind. In far-off days, says Tit Bits lagazine, incense and frankincense were used in the temples of most religious orders. On a granite tablet at the base of the Sphinx there is still to be seen a representation of King Thothmes IV burning incense as an offering. It was the custom to prescribe artain perfumes in cases of illness. The smell of white violets was said to 12 good for the disagreeable in odor.

digestion, while a perfume made from vine leaves was supposed to keep the mind clear.

Scent-making methods today do not differ greatly from those employed long before history was written. Everyday flowers still form the basis of all really good scents, although synthetic preparations are sometimes used in cheap varieties. There are 4,300 varieties of flowers grown in Europe, of which only 400 possess any agreeable smell. More than 3,500 types of blooms are Storage Soives Problem of Surplus for Gardeners

A feature of the council's session was an address by Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league affairs. Conversations in Rome between Brtisih Ambassador Sir Eric Drummond and Premier Mussolini had led some to think Great Britain was weakening but Eden announced his government was "steadfastly determined to abide by its policy" as previously declared. He said in part:

"In addressing my colleagues at the council on September 4 I expressed the view that it was our duty to use the machinery of the league that lay to our hands.

MEN and women from all ranks of life assembled in the Yankee tadium in New York, paying nearly $1, 000,000 for their seats, and saw Louis, Detroit negro, knock out Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, in the fourth round. - The chocolate colored boxer was invincible, and Max was terribly outclassed. Louis plans to spend the winter and spring fighting South America and Europe, after which he hopes to have a chance to show what he can do against the present titleholder, Jim Braddock. GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, rereport recommended a five-year plan for making the American army into an instrument of speed, fighting ability and destructive power unsurpassed elsewhere. Quality rather than quantity, he said, was needed, and he pro-posed that all implements of war be mod. ernized and that the technical training of the officers be intensified. He said:

"Beyond all doubt, Gen.MacArthur any major war of the future will see every beiligerent nation highly organized for the single purpose of victory the attainment of which will require integration and intensification of indiridual and collective effort.

"But it will be a nation at war rather than a nation in arms. Of this vast machine the fighting forces will be only the cutting edge; their mandatory characteristics will be speed in movement, power in fire and shock action, and the utmost in professional skill and leadership.

"Their armaments will necessarily be of the most efficient types obtainable and the transportation, supply and maintenance systems supporting them will be required to function perfectly and continuously. Economic and in dustrial resources will have to insure the adequacy of munitions supply and the sustenance of the whole civil population. In these latter fields the great proportion of the employable popula tion will find its war duty."

ecent developments begins to indicate rather definitely that Party Backs President Roosevelt is going to be able to Roosevelt hold a rather united Democratic party behind him in his next campaign. The chances of a split in his ranks are very small, indeed, and barring changes of which there are at present no hints at all, the New Deal will encompass the Democratic party which nominated and elected Mr. Roosevelt as President.

By those statements, it is not meant that no defections will take place. There always are some disgruntled and dissatisfied party men who break away. They have done it with Republicans and Democrats with equal abandon. There will be some in the 1936 campaign, but not very many. These statements are made by way of discounting offshoots of consequence under radical leadership and offshoots of equal consequence behind old-line conservative Democratic leadership. It is, of course just possible that William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, and Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state under Woodrow Wilson, may succeed in develop ment of a conservative alignment with major support but the situation is not one likely to cause the New Deal leaders any particular embarrassment Likewise the death of Senator Huey P. Long removes what might possibly have been a radical party wedge. The late Louisiana senator was making some progress in development of a rad cial party but with him removed from the scene there is no longer any nossibility of that group attaining a place of importance in the political structure. They are fighting among themselves and it is apparent now that the group will be split into a score of factions, none which will have any capacity to accomplish the purposes which Senator Long had outlined.

Judged impartially, the death of Senator Long ought to enhance the Democratic prospects in Long's Death 1936. This certainly is true unless the ad-Helps ministration between now and the next election decides to court the conservative vote in the coun try and in doing so offends the progres sive segment of voters to which Mr Roosevelt largely owes his 1932 election. To reiterate, it is possible, of course, that Mr. Roosevelt or his party advisers may make mistakes v will throw the whole party machine out of gear, but they are not now in

The reason the passing of Huey Long is important from the political stand point is pictured most reliably in the history of third party movements. While it is obvious that Senator Long could never have been elected President-and I believe he was too smart a politician to think that he could have been successful-there was the danger from the Roosevelt standpoint that he could alienate some part of the vote which elected Mr. Roosevelt in 1932. If he had been able to do this, it is certain that Republican chances would have been enhanced because the Republican vote would have remained solidly behind the Republican candi-

Some years ago. Robert M. La Fol lette, then a zenator from Wisconsin, ran for the Presidency on a third party ticket. He polled about five million votes. This happened at a time when the country was reasonably prosperous. Surely, the economic conditions were of a character that bred less discontent than those of this depression era. So, astute political observers tell me that it takes little stretch of the imagination to conceive of a radica party, led by a man of the dynamic characteristics of Huey Long, being able to poll as many as ten million votes throughout the country despite the difficulties that always face the organization of a new political party. Whatever criticism may have been or may be voiced of the late senator from Louisiana, everywhere one goes among political leaders, he obtains the same expression of opinion respecting the senator's ability. He had a smart mind, one that grasped situations, particularly in politics, with great speed and he was always ready at a moment's notice to capitalize on those sitlations. Thus, if Mr. Long had lived, a is easy to imagine what he would have done in case the New Deal leaders made mistakes. He would have hopped on those mistakes with the avidity of a cat on a mouse; he would have magnified them in his speeches to his following and by these acts he would have aided and abetted the Republican opposition.

So, while the national capital was startled by Senator Long's death and appalled at the manner of his going, it is not a violation of any confidence to say that New Deal politicians are resting easier. They enjoyed Huey, the man, but they recognized in him an adversary decidedly dangerous to their cause,

Now, as to other factors involved. factors that might withdraw support from Mr. Roosevelt Other I said above that the Factors Hearst-Colby movement is doomed to defeat. The real effect and probably-

Washington.-I believe the trend of | the only effect that movement will have will be to force the Roosevelt leaders to realign their strength in some states. Mr. Hearst, with the great power of his string of newspapers behind him, has yet to succeed in creating a potent political group. He attempted it when the late Warren Harding of Ohio was the Republican noininee and James M. Cox of the same state was put forward by the Democrats. It was my good fortune to be assigned as a correspondent to the convention of Mr. Hearst's new party. It was evident then as it later was proved by the votes that the enthusiastic delegates to that convention represented a following so small as to be utterly negligible. Even with the astute advice of Bainbridge Colby, little more will come out of the current movement. Then, those who have their eyes on the facts instead of on the ballyhoo will promptly discount the talk about Democratic defection when they stop to consider some other things that are taking place. For example, there have been no more bitter dissents from New Deal policies than Senator Carter Glass of Virginia and Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma have voiced. Mr. Glass lately has engaged in rites of burying the hatchet to the extent that he is not going to run for re-election in Virginia as anything but a Democrat.

Out in Oklahoma, Senator Gore has heen making speeches that sound strangely as though he is almost friendly with the administration. He has been telling his audiences that he has stood with the President on many votes in the senate, sometimes when his vote was badly needed. Though it becomes apparent that while neither Senator Glass nor Senator Gore is enthusiastic about New Deal policies neither of them is going to desert the Democratic party.

And, so it is in any number of other cases. They may not speak glowingly of President Roosevelt in their own campaigns for re-election but as candidates they are not going to fight him openly.

"Big Jim" Farley, the master New Deal politician, successfuly avoided Avoids New of New Deal issues Deal Test in Ohio when Governor Davey of that state announced recently that there would be no special election to choose a representative at large to fill a vacancy. The Ohio governor said it would cost too much money to hold a special election, his announcement be ing made at the White House just after President Roosevelt had agreed to allot $20,000,000 in public works funds for Ohio use. But the astute Mr. Farley is not go ing to be able to avoid a test on New Deal issues in Kentucky. The situation in that state is that a Democrat of President Roosevelt's choice and who is supporting the New Deal from start finish is running for governor against a hard-holled and conservative Republican. The election will be the first week in November and thus a de vote can he measure the Roosevelt strength. Because of this, all of the maneuvers are being closely watched and the battle of those ballots obviously will be bitter.

The Kentucky test takes on addition al significance and importance because of something that happened in choos ing the Democratic nominee. The Kentucky fight is to determine whether Lieut. Gov. A. B. Chandler, the Democrat, or former Representative King Swope, the Republican, will run the state.

Governor Laffoon apparently wanted to have the Democratic nominee selected by the old convention method but the Roosevelt supporters preferred a primary. Consequently, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, a devout Roosevelt follower in the senate, was sent into his home state to see that the primary plan was made operative. The Democratic state committee which was empowered to choose the method of selecting the candidate was determined to have a convention and it was after this determination became known that Mr. Roosevelt participated in dictating the course the party should follow. Senator Barkley arrived in his home state bearing a letter signed "Franklin D. Roosevelt" urging the primary, and while Governor Laffoon was out of the state attempting to convince national leaders that his candidate for the Democratic nomination was the right one, Lieutenant Governor Chandler called a special session of the state legislature and put through a law compelling the selection of the candidate by the primary. Mr. Chandler won the nomination in the run-off although Thomas S. Rhea had polled more votes in the original primary than did Mr. Chandler. So it is apparent beyond a doubt that Mr. Roosevelt recognizes the necessity for electing a Democrat, and New Deal supporters in Kentucky say that he is prepared to battle to the last ditch to accomplish it.

Nevertheless, the for will fly in Kentucky in November. It cannot be avoided. If the administration wins, un-doubtedly New Deal stock will be enhanced in value. But, if the Repub lican nominee should win the Kentucky test, the whole New Deal must be prepared to wear an unusual black eye.

Hobo, Tramp, Bum--They Are Different

Very Distinct Class Lines Drawn Among These Groups.

To the average man the words hoho frame and bum are synony mous terms, used to designate a type of foot-loose, homeless speci men of the genus hobo. They are terms of derogation and opprobrium Not 40! Before calling a hobo a tramp, or either man a bum be sure you say it with a smile. For there are very distinct class lines drawn among these group- of un skilled and itinerant workers

A hobo is a hard worker of the nigratory type. He is possessed of a keen sense of his own innortance and value to the world their would suffer without his services. The wheat fields of the Southwest, the timberlands in the Northwest, the fruit lands in various parts of the country could not show a profit withour the presence of the hobo at strategic momenta. To displace him in the economic scaeme of things would be to keep on hand well fed and employed the whole year around, thousands of men whose services are only required a few weeks or months a year. Another distinction: The hoho travels on wheels although the ticket office is not always a part of his traveling experience.

The tramp, on the other hand. migrates according to whim or chance. And he walks, always Having nowhere in mind to get, he gets there at his leisure If he works, as he does now and then, it is because of necessity and not through any sense of personal responsibility to society at large. In the mind of the self-respecting hobo, the tramp is distinctly an infector.

The bum is looked down upon and dispised, both by the bobo and tramp. The bum travels nowhere. does nothing and is nobody. He is a parasite of the city, begging, borrowing, stealing, loading.

Clip this out and paste it in your book of etiquette. You may need it sometimes to save yourself from one of those embarrassing moments. warns the Knickerbocker Press.

SYNOPSIS

The future of the still youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe, recently released by death from her idling, self-ish husband, is a conversational tit-bit among housewives of the little hamlet of Wilton. Eligible bachelors and widowers also are interested. Marcia, despite her unfortunate marrimonial expets her unfortunate marrimonial exspite her unfortunate matrimonial ex-perience, finds pleasure in her life, but is lonely at times, and has invited her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden whom she has never seen to visit her. The girl arrives and Marcia takes to her at once, while Sylvia, expecting to somewhat elderly aunt, finds Mar more like a sister. A stranger, on verge of exhaustion, finds his way

What disaster had laid him here helpless before them?

As if their questions penetrated his consciousness, the stranger slowly opened his eyes. "Sorry to come here like this," he murmured. "The fog was so thick, I lost my bearings and my power-boat ran aground. I've been trying hours to get her off. She's hard and fast on your sand-bar."

He struggled to rise and Marcia kneeling beside him, beloed him into an upright position where he sat, leaging against her shoulder.

all that. I can get up alone," he protested. "Only please wait just another minute. The whole place has suddenly begun to pitch again like a ship in midocean. Perhaps I may be faint. I haven't eaten anything for a day or two."

"Why didn't you tell me? The soup quick, Sylvia. I only wish I had some brandy. Well, at least this is hot, and will warm you up. I'll feed you. Hand me the cup and spcon, Sylvia." "But I feel like a hahv" stranger. "No matter. We must get some thing hot inside you right away. Don't fuss about how it's done," said the practical-minded Marcia. "There! You look better already! Later you shall have a real, honest-to-goodness meal. Run and call Doctor Stetson, Sylvia, and open the bed in the room opposite

The man did not answer. Instead, he sat tense and unsmiling. his penetrating brown eyes fixed on-Marcia's face. Apparently the scrutiny crystalized in him some swift resolution, for after letting his glancé travel about the room to convince himself that no one was within hearing.

"I'll get it." "I'd rather you didn't talk about it." continued he, hurriedly, "Just put it n a safe place. Will you, please?" "Certainly."

Puzzled, but unquestioning, Marcia thrust her hand beneath his sodden clothing and drew forth a small, flat bex, wrapped in a bedraggled handkertremendously obliged."

"Of course I will," smiled Marcia.
"Look! Here is my pet hiding-place. This brick in the hearth is loose and under it is plenty of space for this small box. I'll tuck it in there. Just until I struck that old-sea-chest in the ead high and defiant. "Besides that, in my top bureau drawer is a string of gold beads that belonged to my great-grandmother." she continued, daring laughter curling her lips. "They are very old and are really quite valuable." "We'll make a note of those, too," odded the man, his eyes on hers.

"I'm afraid that's all I can offer in the way of burglary inducements." "That bein' the case, s'pose you an' me start gettin' the patient upstairs broke in Doctor Stetson. we don't next we know he'll be havin' pneumonia as well as a bad wrist," The stranger's admiring glance fixed itself on Marcia's. "What is my next move?" he in-auired. "I told you before—you must take off your wet things and rest," she rereated. "You still prescribe that treatment?"

"I still prescribe it." "In spite of the—the symptoms?" "Why not?" was her quick answer.
"Very well. I am ready, gentlemen." Erect, even with a hint of de fiance in his mocking smile, the man rose to his full height. "Before we go, however. I must correct a slight error You misunderstood my name. It is not Carlton. It is Heath-Stanley

"And yet you told me, Marcia, this was a quiet, adventureless place!" burst out Sylvia, the instant the door had closed.

"It doesn't seem so to me. When shipwrecked mariners fall into your arms entirely without warning, I call it thrilling. Who do you suppose he is?"

"He told us his name." "Of course-Heath. Stanley Heath. It's quite a romantic name, too. But didn't mean that. I mean where did he come from and why? Didn't he tell

"Not a word." Obviously the girl was disappointed. "I thought perhaps he might have while I was upstairs. I was gone long enough for him to pour out to you his entire history. At least it seemed so to me. I ransacked every closet and drawer in sight trying to find something for him to put on. It wasn't hold it a second until I pry the brick hall that I discovered parameter and un-There we are! Now give it to derwear. I hope you don't mind my taking them."

A shiver passed over Marcia.
"No. They were Jason's. I ought to have told you they were there. I kept them because I thought they might sometime be useful."

"Well, they certainly are," replied Sylvia. "They will exactly fit Mr. Heath. Where do you suppose he came from? And how long has he been knocking about in that boat, I

"How do I know, dear?" Marcia sighed, as if determined to control her patience. "You know as much about him as I do. I mean," she corrected, honesty forcing her to amend the assertion, "almost as much. I did, to be sure, talk with him a little while waiting for the doctor, but he did not tell me anything about himself."

The moving of chairs overhead and the sound of feet creaking down the stairway heralded the return of Jared Stetson and Elisha.

Marcia went to meet them. "'Tain't a broken wrist, Marcia," was the doctor's greeting on entering the kitchen. "Leastways, I don't think it is. I've bandaged it an' Lish an' me have your friend snug an' warm in bed. Tomorrow Ill look in again. For tonight, the bandage will do. A hot inexperience. water bottle mightn't be amiss. Nor a square meal, neither. Beyond them two things, there ain't much you can do at present, but let him sleep. Seems a nice sort of felier. Known him long?"

"Not so very long." "Why, Marcia-" broke in Sylvia. "One sometimes comes to know a person rather well, though, even in a short time." went on the older woman, ignoring the interruption. "S'nose 'twas a-comin' to see you that brought him down this way," Elisha volunteered. "Somehow I don't recall meetin' him before."

"He hasn't been here before," was the measured response. "Oh, so he's new to Wilton waters. That prob'ly accounts for his runnin' aground. Fine lookin' chap. Has quite an air to him. Nothin' skin. Silk with monograms on 'em.

Must be a man of means." Silence greeted the observation. "Likely he is havin' a power-boat in' leisure to cruise round in her," persisted the undaunted Elisha. "I really couldn't say." "Well, apparently he ain't one that coasts of his possessions, an' that's to his credit." interposed Jared Stetson zood-humoredly.

Elisha's interest in the stranger was not, however, to be so easily diverted.
"Seen the boat?" he inquired.

"No." "Oh, you ain't! I forgot to ask Heath the name of her. I'm sort of a crank on the names of boats. It always riles me to have a foolish name given a boat. No matter how small she is, her plankin' is all that divides ier owner from fathoms of water, an' in view of the fact he'd oughter regard her soberly an' give her a decent name." "Well, I hope the name of Mr. Heath's boat will meet with your approval," ventured Sylvia archly.

"I hope 'twill," was the glum retort, as the sheriff followed Doctor Stetson through the doorway. The moment the door banged behind them. Sylvia turned toward Marcia "Forgive my butting in, dear," apologized she. "But I was so surprised. You did say you didn't know Mr. Heath, didn't you?"

"Yes." "But—but—" es it's just as well not to 24:16). tell all you know—especially in a place like this," was the evasive response. Was the reply a rebuke or merely a caution? Sylvia did not know. And what was the meaning of the rose color that flooded the elder woman's cheek? Had Marcia really meant to give the npression that she knew Stanley Heath? And if so, why?

Sylvia wracked her brain for answers to these questions. She would have been interested indeed had she known that while she wrestled with the enigma, Marcia, to all appearances busy preparing the tray for the invalid upstairs, was searching her heart for answers to the-same questions. Why had she sought to shield this stranger?

The man was nothing to her. Of his past she had not the slightest knowledge, indeed he might be the greatest villain in the world. In fact, circumstances proclaimed him a thief. Nevertheless, she did not, could not, believe There was something too fine in his face; his eyes.

True, he had made no attempt either to defend himself or to explain away the suspicions he must have known would arise in her mind. On the conwith a devil-may-care agdacity that fascinated her, he actually appeared to have tried to deepen in her mind the impression of his guilt.

Still she refused to believe. Even in the face of overwhelming evidence she clung to her unreasoning faith in him. Suppose he had stolen the gems and fled with them from Long Island? Suppose he had lost his bearings in the fog; tossed aimlessly on the sea for day and a night; and then run aground at her d rstep? It was possible, quite possible, even probable. Yet was 1t? Not for a man like Stanley Heath, Marcia stubbornly insisted. So deep was the conviction, she shrank lest he should feel called upon to justify or defend hir self. (1. BE CONTINUED)

THE STORY OF JEREMIAH

LESSON TEXT-Jeremiah 1:6-10; 26:3-15. GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt go to all that I send thes, and whatsoever I command thee thou shalt speak. Jeremiah 1:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of Jeremiah.

JUNIOR TOPIC-The Story of Jeremiah.
INTERMEDIATE AND
TOPIC—Taking TOPIC—Attacking Entrenched Evils. ADULT

1. Jeremiah's Call (1:1-10). 1. It was pre-natal (vv. 4, 5). Before Jeremiah was born God ordaineJ him a prophet to the nations. 2. His diffidence (v. 6). This seems to have grown out of his youth and

 His hesitancy overcome (vv. 7, 8). God graciously appeared to him and made clear that he should go where sent, speak as commanded, and to be not afraid of the faces of his enemies. This was accompanied by the assurance of the divine presance. It matters little as to the strength of the foe if the presence of God is with the messenger.

4. The divine message given (v 9) The very words were put into the prophet's mouth, not merely the thoughts but the proper words to express the thoughts.

5. The nature of his ministry (v. It was to be wider than that of prophesying. Six words were given as descriptive thereof. The first four are destructive in their implication; "root out," "pull down," "destroy," and 'throw down." The last two are constructive; "build" and "plant." destructive precedes the constructive. II. Jeremiah's Grief (9:1).

The unbelief of the people made him feel that his efforts were fruitless. Seeing so clearly the awful doom which awaited this people, he wept sorely. The true prophet of God rakes to heart the seriousness of his ministry and sorely grieves over the wicked unbelief of the people. III. Jeremiah's Prophecy in the emple Court (26:1-24). I. Jeremiah's solemn warning to Indah (vv. 1-7). The Lord commanded him to stand in a conspicuous place in the Temple and proclaim the judgment which was about to fall upon them, The object was to provoke them to repentance. If they did not repent, God would make the Temple as Shiloh, Shiloh was once the dwelling place of God: now it had fallen into decay So will it be with the Temple. Jeremiah was sent to speak the words which his Lord had told him and not to diminish a word. 2. Jeremiah on trial (vv. 9-11). a. Cause of arrest. He was arrested for speaking all that the Lord had commanded. b. The charge (vv. 8, 9). They charged him with a capital crime which involved pretending to speak for God and speaking against the Temple and the city. This would make him to be guilty of blasphemy and sacrilege, both of which were to be punished by death (Deut., 18:20+ Lev.

c. The princes sit in judgment (vv 10. 11). We thus see that matters of state were not entirely in the hands of priests, but in part were controlled by members of the royal

3. Jeremiah's defense (vv. 12-15). Threats of death did not deter him from preaching, but only inspired him to repeat his message with clearness and tenderness.

a. Reiterated the divine commission. b. He urged them to amend their ways and to obey God and thus avert the divine judgment (v. 13). c. He gave himself up (v. 14). He did not resist the powers of government. Knowing that God had sent him, he was content to trust God for

d. Warns of fatal consequences. He frankly told them that God had sent him and if they killed him they would be guilty of defying God.

4. Jeremiah saved (vv. 16-24). a. The princes pronounce him not guilty (v. 16). They were convinced that Jeremiah was speaking the truth. b. The elders plead for Jeremiah (vv. 17-23). They cited two cases; Micah (vv. 18, 19) and Urijah (vv.

20-23). They argued that killing God's prophets did not turn aside his judgment but intensified it. The only way to avert the judgment is to turn from c. Jeremiah rescued by Ahikam (v. 24). He was a man of such influence that he was able to interfere at such a critical time.

Daily Living

State Grange Meeting.

The 1935 state Grange convenion, which closed in North Wilkesboro, was one of the most suc cessful the organization has held in North Carolina, according to the opinions expressed by a number of visiting delegates.

Before adjournment the Grange had, through means of resolutions adopted a far reaching program while at work in the Spencer car America left Lexington on r bus. Making that is calculated to wield a telling influence in the state.

Adopting numerous resolutions at the closing sessions of its annual meeting, the Grange urged strictest economy in administering available state revenues.

Placing its membership on rec ord in favor of schools and securi Mrs. Sink, of Lexington, J. C. Kester and ty aid, the Grange indicated a will Mrs. Kesler, of Salisbury, W. R. Flemming inguess to accept increased taxation

Propaganda To Influence Men Yery Cheap Empire Good Airplane News

The learned Doctor Lorge, of Teachers' college, Columbia university, has been studying laws governing propa-ganda that influences human minds, experimenting on 99 ducated" adults from the list of unemployed, from twenty to sixty-nine years old. These were asked to ex press their views of "some opinions" ut tered by Lincoln Roosevelt, Hoover, Thomas (the Socialist candidate), Coolidge, Hearst, Karl Marx. Many that reacted favorably to the name of "Lincoln" did not approve Lincoln's statement:

'Capital is the fruit of labor, and could never have existed if labor had not existed."

Those that "objected" had sound reason on their side. Capital is not the fruit of labor any more than labor is the fruit of capital. Capital and labor are both the fruit of human intelli-

The intelligence of Thomas A. Edison supplied labor, jobs employing millions of men and paying billions in wages, and that Edison intelligence alone supplied capital to those that knew how to use Edison's ideas on big scale.

The great element in "propaganda," "persuasion," in advertising, is repetition. Say a thing often enough and the average man believes it, not asking why. Of all human convictions, none is more firmly fixed, immovable, than those based on supersition, ignorance, falsehood and preposterous credulity.

Encouraging news: "An aviation program of more than 1,000 new planes to cost approximately $60,000,000 has been mapped by the Army, Navy and Marine corps for 1936."

If we can afford five thousand million dollars to prevent the depression killing too many Americans we may well spend sixty million dollars to keep foreigners from shooting at all of us.

The Van Sweringen brothers had railroad properties that financial writers called a "three billion dollar em.

Perhaps "three billion" referred to bonds, watered stocks and other "securities" of the "empire." In any case, the Van Sweringens borrowed forty-eight million dollars on that "empire," largely from J. P. Morgan & Co. They did not pay the forty-eight million dollars, the whole thing was put up at auction, the Van Sweringens ought back control of the "three-billion-dollar empire" for three million dollars, one-tenth of 1 per cent of the three billions and forty-five million dollars less than the amount borrowed

Are Our Eyes Getting Weaker?

Defects of Vision Increase With Years—Poor Light a Cause.

When born, nearly all bables have normal eyes. With the same kind f care that carries them through infancy and childhood, happy and healthy—their eyes should remain normal.

But it has been found that by the time children finish grade school, 20 per cent of them have defective vision. When they have finished college, 40 per cent have eye difficulties Forty years of age shows 60 per cent with defective vision, and past sixty, 95 per cent are so affected.

Why should the eyes of so many show such an alarming increase in visional defects? Because these children, these growing girls and boysyoung and older men and women used their eyes with too little light! In the daytime outdoors there is, of course, plenty of light-the natural daylight nature developed our eves to see by. The light from an unclouded sky gives us 10,000 foot candles. Baltingheta Heroul. the Ethiopian foreign minister, sent to the eague this message: "A telegram received

Baltingheta

October 3 from Ras Sevum, informs the imperial government that Italian military airplanes this morning bombarded Aduwa and Adigrat, leaving many victims among the civilian population including women and children, and destroving numerous houses.

"A battle is at this moment taking place in the province of Agame.

"These events, occurring on Ethiopian territory, constitute a violation of the empire's frontier, and a breach of the covenant of the league, through Italian aggression."

A Reuters dispatch from Addis Ababa said the Italian force advancing on Agame had been defeated, but this report probably was false.

The Italians, moving south from the Asmara region, crossed the Mareb river frontier at widely separated points and converged in heavy columns toward Aduwa, the scene of the terrific Italian defeat 39 years ago. Government authorities in Rome at first denied that Adua and Adigrat had been bombed, but this action was reported by American correspondents with the Italian . army.

Haile Selassie's order for general mobilization was carried throughout the empire by the ominous beating of the war drums, and his eager warriors responded by the hundred thousand. The emperor's first war order was to his chieftain, Ras Kabada, and three other generals, to take 50,000 men to Mt. Mussa Ali. The defense in the North was entrusted to the Negradas of Wollacho. It was estimated at Addis Ababa that the emperor could count on the services of about 1.250. 000 fighting mén, and the women also are ready for active work in the con-

SIMULTANEOUSLY with the opening of hostilities in Ethiopia, Mussolini gave the signal for tremendous mass gatherings of all Fascists in Italy. Millions of Black Shirts in all the cities dropped everything and assembled to cheer for the Duce and his African adventure. From the balcony of the Venezia palace in Rome the premier shouted the words that committed his nation to a policy that may mean either victory or ruin. He reiterated his determination to seize territory from Ethiopia but declared he would do everything possible to pre-European war. But he warned the League of Nations and all nations to keep their hands off, saying:

"To sanctions of an economic character we reply with our discipline, our sobriety, and our spirit of sacrifice. To sanctions of a military character we will reply with measures of military character. To acts of war we will reply with acts of war."

Summoned hastily to a meeting of the league council in Geneva, the statesmen of Europe found themselves confronted by the fact that an undeclared war was being waged by a league member against a league member. Article XVI of the league covenant provides for severe penalties for such a war when the aggressor has been determined. The sanctions range through an economic and financial boycott to final military penalties. Before going to Geneva, Anthony Eden of Great Britain conferred with Premier Laval of France in Paris. He had instructions to throw the full support of his movement behind league efforts to isolate or halt the conflict in Africa. French officials believed that if sanctions were applied by the league. would shut off loans and raw materials from Italy. The mobilization of the British navy in the Mediterranean and the Red sea continued with accelerated speed.

FIRM assurance that the United States would not be drawn into a foreign war was given by President Roosevelt in his address at San Diego. He said:

"We not only earnestly desire peace but we are moved by a stern determination to avoid those perils that will endanger our peace with the world. As President of the United States I say to you most earnestly once more that the people of America and the government of those people intend and expect to remain at peace with all the TREASURY report for three months lending September 30 showed a firstquarter deficit of $832,000,000. This was 34 per cent greater than for the corresponding period a year ago which at that time was a record deficit. Ex penditures for the quarter amounted to $1.830,000,000. This was an average of about $20,000,000 a day.

The deficit occurred in spite of in creased taxes and other revenues in cident to improved business. Total revenues for the three months were $998,000,000 compared with $954,000,-000 in the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year

A substantial amount of the inrease in expenditures was due to AAA payments to farmers. TRAVELING rapidly to the Pacific coast for some fishing, President Roosevelt delivered several important addresses. The first was at Fremont,

Neb., where he spoke to about 15,000 farmers and was enthusiastically received. Mr. Roosevelt set forth the chief accomplishments of his administration to date, and challenged his opponents to do better. He defended the legality of the New Deal doings and made it plain that be guarantee. It is democracy in the ood old American sense of the word. Coming to the AAA, in which his hearers might be supposed to be most vitally interested, the President asserted that "agricultural adjustment is an expression in concrete form of the human rights those farmer patriots sought to win when they stood at the bridge at Concord, when they proclaimed the Declaration of Independence, and when they perpetuated these ideals by the adoption of the Consti-

No matter what attempts may be nade to tear it down, "the principle of farm equality expressed by agricultural adjustment will not die," the President told the crowd.

The AAA has made "honorable history," the President declared, and as a result, smoke is pouring from chimneys again and workers without regu lar jobs are obtaining employment.

He served notice that it is the purpose of his administration to "use ev ery square mile of the United States for the purpose-to which it is best adapted." Nature must be harnesse instead of despoiled, he asserted. At Boulder Dam the President assisted in the dedication of the great project and delivered an address in which he announced that government spending for employment purposes was nearing its end and that now private industry must take up the burden of decreasing the army of the un-employed. He defended the administration against the charges of "boondoggling" and said its efforts "meet with the approval of the people of the nation." He touched only lightly on the power question. VAN SWERINGEN brothers have regained control over the vast railway and real estate empire they built and lost to New York bankers. At the eight of the boom this was valued at $3,000,000,000. Washington.-The Republican party | leadership has made its first moves for the 1936 campaign. G. O. P. Ready The executive com-for Fight mittee of the Republican national committee has held a meeting here, a session that started and ended with enthusiasm bubbling over. The reason the members gave for all of their joy was, as expressed by Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, that "the tide has definitely turned and we are going out to defeat President Roosevelt for re-

Whether all of this joy is justified o one can tell, but certainly the Republican wheelhorses for the first time in almost five years have shown signs of genuine fight. They are convinced that Mr. Roosevelt and his News Deal are in a tail-spin and they are committed now to help the present admin-Istration to continue until it crasheshelp it by calling attention to every shortcoming and every mistake it has

While, as I said, the executive com mittee meeting simply bubbled over with enthusiasm, unbiased observers could not help reaching the conclusion after they watched the situation that the committee did very little of a constructive nature. It may be that this group was not intended to map out many plans, but if it did not have that purpose, one is inclined to rise and in quire: Why hold a meeting?

The one outstanding action taken was the authorization given Chairman Fletcher to establish a young Repub lican club division in the national committee headquarters here. The rest of the session that lasted all day apparently was given over to the ex change of ideas. All politicians and observers as well recognize the necessity for the exchange of ideas but the question is being asked around Washington what they are going to do with these ideas.

Rank and file Republicans may take heart in the circumstances that brought their party leader-

See It as ship to headquarters Good Sign four months earlier than they ordinarily meet. It is a good sign, from the Republican standpoint. It ought to mean that they are all set to do business and to keep doing business until they have elected a candidate to the Presi dency in November, 1936. But still, none of the Washington writers was able to determine exactly what is go ing to be done. The Washington writ ers can hardly be blamed, if inside in formation that leaks out is correct because the executive committee real ly did not get very far with any plans. I said above that the wheelhorses ap peared to be full of fight. There was every evidence of this. There was also evidence of possibilities, at least, that there may be family fights. There is no doubt that many members of the national committee do not like Chairman Fletcher. Likewise, Chairman Fletcher is not certain members of the committee over which he presides. It is made to appear, therefore, that there may be ne mud slinging before the machine is attuned for the campaign next year If there is much of it, the Republican party may as well save the money it is preparing to spend, as money always is spent in a campaign, to defeat Mr. Roosevelt. It won't have a chance if it is going to fight without a united front against such apposition as the President and his party set-up is prepared to give.

It may have been by coincidence or it may have been by design but what-Won't Help ever the reason, the Either Lucas, former executive head of the Re ublican national committee, in filing a libel suit against one of the party embers is not going to help either Mr. Lucas or Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman from New Pork. Mr. Lucas has sued Mr. Hilles and Frank R. Kent, Baltimore newspaper columnist and political commentator, for $200,000 libel. He charged in a suit filed on the same day that the executive committee met here that Mr. Hilles and Mr. Kent were "conspiring" to destroy him politically. It is unlikely that Mr. Lucas can sustain his charges in court but whether he can or cannot sustain them, the court action against a prominent member of his own party, a man with whom he was associated in party leadership, naturally will have a disrupting influence. It will go far beyond the two personalities involved because obviously the names of other party leaders will be dragged in.

Mr. Kent said after learning of the libel action that Mr. Lucas was acting "silly" and he was not alarmed at all. The comment here among observers who know both Mr. Lucas and Mr. Kent seem to think that the action was brought by Mr. Lucas in order to upset Mr. Hilles, Mr. Lucas has disliked Mr. Hilles for years and so, in the opinion of many astute political writers, Mr. Lucas is seeking to wreck any political aspirations Mr. Hilles has by joining him as a defendant in a suit against Mr. Kent.

Mr. Lucas, it will be remembered, is the individual who got mixed up in a rather sour mess in the effort to beat Senator George W. Norris in Nebraska. Senator Norris has bolted the Republican party and supported Democratic nominees through the last eight years, meanwhile continuing to claim Republican affiliations when he sought election to the senate. While it was never proved how much Mr. Lucas had to do with it, the belief has always prevailed that it was Mr. Lucas who conceived the idea of persuading George W. Norris, an obscure grocery story proprietor in Nebraska, to file for the United States senate against Senator George W. Norris who was then seeking re-election. Punishment was meted out to the Groceryman Norris who, it appeared after the thing was over, was more or less of an in nocent bystander who was willing to lend the use of his name.

Thus when a few weeks ago, Mr. Lucas personally sent a questionnaire to the hundreds of Republican state and county chairman, seeking their views as to'a Presidential nominee for the party, those who remembered his services with the Republican national committee immediately wondered what his object was. I have tried to ascertain what the purpose might be and have thus far had no success other than the statement which Mr. Lucas made to me.

He told me at the time of his poll that he wanted to discover exactly what the sentiment was of those party chairmen far removed from the hot bed of party control. It was his conviction, he said, that the method he was employing would bring to the attention of those in control of the Re publican party facts that should awaken them and keep them from al lowing the party machine to be sub ordinated to the wishes of a few. He declined to name those few.

Now, however, he is in the limelight in a new fashion. If he has been dam aged, as he claims, by the conspiring of Mr. Hilles and others, then he ought to collect and those who conspired ought to be exposed. Nevertheless, unbiased observers remain without a conviction that Mr. Lucas has been the victim of such a con-

Let us turn from a discussion of political rows and personal enmities to learn something About Miss about one of the O'Reilly most calm and complacent women who has ever served in a public capacity. I refer to Miss Mary M. O'Reilly. It is probable that few of those who read my observation on Washington affairs ever have heard of Miss O'Rellly, nor is it strange that they have not heard of her for I do not believe there is any individual more retiring and less desirous of publicity than she is. For 32 years, Miss O'Reilly has ing as a minor clerk she continued as servant of the public in the office of the director of the mint. She did a job at once so faithful and so efficient that promotions continued to come until eight or ten years ago she was made assistant director of the United States mints. Administrations came and went through all of those years and Miss O'Reilly continued to do her job, to do it so faithfully that no one ever thought of what her political affiliations may have been.

A few days ago, there came from the White House an executive order which said that the treasury might continue to keep Miss O'Reilly on the pay roll for a year after November 1-she will be seventy years old on that date and under the law would be forced to retire. Secretary Morgenthau, however, recognized the unique capacity and quality which Miss O'Reilly possesses and has extended her term of service.

I was telling a Washington visitor the other day the system employed in the national Capital Why No for the identification "J" Street? of streets, explaining that the north and south streets bore numbers and the east and west streets were named after letters in the alphabet or with names beginning with those letters in the order of their appearance in the alphabet. In the course of my ex-planation my friend discovered that there was no street given the letter "J" and it resulted in a little research work to determine why this had happened.

From records of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of Washington and from the office of the register of deeds. I found definitely that the letter never had been used alone although out be-yord "the first alphabet" where names are used for streets and the names begin with the alphabet in regular order, there are streets whose names begin with "J." But there was no "J" street and never had been Further inquiry developed what 1 believe to be the basic reason namely, similarity of the letter "I" and

"J" when written.

SYNOPSIS

The future of the still youthful and omely "Widder" Marcia Howe, recently The future of the still youthfur and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe, recently released by death from her idling, selfish husband, is a conversational tit-bit among housewives of the little hamlet of Wilton. Eligible bachelors and widowers also are interested. Marcia, despite her unfortunate matrimonial experience, finds pleasure in her life, but is lonely at times, and has invited her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden, whom she has never seen, to visit her. The girl arrives and Marcia takes to her at once, while Sylvia, expecting to see a somewhat elderly aunt, finds Marcia more like a sister. A stranger, on a more like a sister. A stranger, on the verge of exhaustion, finds his way a Marcia's home. He explains that his to Marcia's home. He explains that his power-boat ran aground in the fog. Secretly, he asks Marcia to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so Elisha Winslow, town sheriff, brings news of a jewel robbery on a neighboring estate. The stranger gives his name as Stanley Heath.

Far from demanding explanations, she resolved she would give him no chance to make them.

Therefore, when his meal was ready and every last inviting touch had been given the tray, she said casually to Sylvia:

"Suppose you take it up, dear?"

"Yes. Why not? Do you mind?" "Not at all. I just thought perhaps you'd rather."

Marcia shook her head.

"I want to stir the Newburg and see it doesn't catch," she explained, avoiding the girl's eyes. "We are too hun gry to risk having our dinner spoiled. You might just wait and cut the chops for Mr. Heath and fix his potato. Find out, too, if there is anything more he wants. You needn't hurry back. I'll keep things hot."

The task suggested did not, appar ently, displease Sylvia.

"Here goes Red Ridinghood," she murmured, taking up the tray. "All is, if I don't come back, you'll know the wolf has eaten me.'

In spite of herself, Marcia smiled. She opened the dor and stood watching while the girl ascended the stairs for the hall was unlighted and the tray heavy.
"I'm safe," called a merry voice from the topmost stair. Marcia came back into the kitchen She finished preparing the lobster straightened the silver on the table and let in Prince Hal. Ten minutes passed!

Half an hour went by. She fidgeted and stooped to pat the Then she went to the window. Slowly the fog was lifting. By afternoon the weather would be finejust the right sort to get the boat off. She would go up the beach and watch the men while they worked. The house was close. She longed for air and the big reaches of the out-of-doors. A jingle of glass and silver! It was Sylvia returning with the tray. Her eyes were shining.

"He ate every bit!" she cried. "You should have seen him, Marcia. It would have done your heart good. The poor lamb was almost starved. He asked for you the first thing. I don't think he altogether liked your not carrying up the tray, although of course, he was too polite to say so." 'You explained I was busy?'

"Yes. But at first he didn't seem satisfied with the excuse. However, he soon forgot about it and become gay as a lark. Didn't you hear us faughing? The potato would fall off the fork. I'm not as good a nurse as you. My hands weren't so steady. I'm going back again for his wet clothes. We can dry them here by the fire, can't

"Yes, indeed." "It's a pity there isn't a tailor at hand. His suit ought to be pressed."

"I can do it," Marcia declared with eggerness. "I'm quite used to pressing men's clothes. I always pressed Jason's."

This time the name dropped unnoticed from her lips. Indeed she was not conscious she had uttered it. She was not thinking of Jason.

Sylvia was glad Heath was asleepvery glad indeed. She did not be-grudge him a moment of his slumber. But what a delightful person he was when awake! His eyes were wonderful-so dark and penetrating. hored right through you. And then he listened with such intentness, watching every curve of your lips as if fearing to lose a word. Such attention was distinctly flattering. Even though your chatter was trivial, he dignified it and transformed it into something

How interested, for example, he had been in Marcia; in learning she had been married and now lived a widow in the old Daniels Homestead! And what a host of inquiries he had made about Jason—the sort of man he was and how long ago he had died!

Sylvia had not been able to answer all his questions, but of course she had asserted that Marcia had adored her husband because—well, not so much because she actually knew it, as bewidows always did. Certainly Marcia had declared she loved the Homestead so deeply she never in tended to leave it, and was not that practically the same thing as saying

Anyway, the thing that really mattered was Mr. Reath's interest in her-Sylvia; in her trip east and her de scription of Alton City, the little mid- had stolen it from that Long Island western town which was her home. How he had laughed at her rebellion at being a school teacher, and how insidiously he had hinted she might not always be one! Oh, he knew what to say-knew much better than Billie Sparks, the soda fountain clerk, or even Horatio Fuller, the acknowledged beau of the town. In fact he made both of them seem quite commonplace—even Hortie. Fancy it!

Probably that was because he had traveled.

Apparently he had been almost everywhere—except to Alton City. Odd he should never have been there when he had visited just about every other corner, both of America and Europe. Not that he had deliberately said so. He was far too modest for that.

It was while trying to find out where his home was that she had stumbled upon the information. And come to think of it, she did not know now where he lived, she suddenly remembered. She actually did not know whether he had a father or a mother; a brother or a sister. So occupied was she with her thoughts she had not thought once of Prince Hal. In fact she had supposed that he had gone up the beach with Marcia. Now she suddenly became aware that he stood sniffing about the hearth, scratching at its surface as if he scented something beneath. He must not do that, and she told him so in no uncertain terms. Nevertheless, in spite of the rebuke, he con tinued to poke away at the spot, whining faintly, until his persistence aroused her curiosity and she went to ee what disturbed him. "What is it, Prince? What's the mat-hand. "You'll wake Mr. Heath. Tell Missy what the trouble is. Do you smell a mouste under there?"

For answer the dog wagged his tail. "I don't believe it," Sylvia demurred. "You're only bluffing. Well to convince you, I'll take up the brick."

Fetching from the pantry a steel fork, she inserted the prongs in the crack and pried the offending brick out of its hole.

Instantly the dog snatched from the space beneath a handkerchief containing a small, hard object.

Sylvia chased after him. "Bring it here, Hall That's a go dog! Bring it to Missy."

The setter came fawning to her side and unwillingly dropped his prize at her feet.

As it fell to the ground, out rolled such a glory of jewels the girl could scarcely believe her eyes. There was a string of diamonds, of awaking and demanding supper Stanley Heath slept without a break dazzling as giant dewdrops; a pearl and sapphire pendant; several beautiful rings; and an oval brooch, its emerald center surrounded by tier after tier of brilliants.

Sylvia panted, breathless. She never seen such gems, much less held them in her hands. How she longed to slip the rings upon her fingers and try the effect of the diamonds about er slender throat!

Prudence, however, overmastered the impulse. Marcia might return and surprize her at any moment. Before that the treasure must be returned to the place from which it had been taken. Gathering the rainbow heap together she reluctantly thrust it into its blue leather case, snapped the catch, and placed it once more under the brick. Then with relief she stood up and wiped the perspiration from her fore-

It was not until she was again in her chair, book in hand, and struggling to quiet her quick breathing that she dis covered she still held in her hand the handkerchief that had been wrapped about the jewel case.

It was a man's handkerchief of fines anxious to reach him before he goes linen and one corner bore the embroidered initials S. C. H.
She had known it all the time!

There was no need to be told the jewe's were his. What puzzzled her was when he had found time to hide them. He had not, so far as she knew been left alone a moment and yet here was his booty safe beneath the floor. She rated it as booty, because there

Bangor, Maine News.

President Roosevelt's appeal to the clergy of the Nation for "advice and counsel" drew an immediate response from Dr. David M. Steele, rector emeritus of the church of St. Luke and the Epiphany.

Dr. Steele's open letter to the President read as follows.

"I received yesterday, franked through the mail postmarked under recent date, what purported to be a perponsal letter from you. It was enclosed in an official-looking envelope on one corner of which was printed "White House, Official Business.' On the other corner was printed the exhortation. 'Buy United States Saving Bonds, Ask Your Post Master.' This is precisely what I would not buy at resent.

"Nevertheless, I opened the let ter. Naturally I was highly honored until I realized it was cheaply mimeographed and signed with a rubber stamp. In what you are pleased to call my 'high calling' as a reverend and dear sir, I have been broad smile. He had just sold 626 familiar with this shabby procedure pounds of tobacco which brought for upwards of forty years. My custom has been to confine such things to the waste basket. But when you speak of my intimate daily more you touch my pride when you of the executive branch of the gov support of the President was grainspeak of my wise and sympathetic understanding.

"I plead guilty to this latter. If you had half the understanding I have of the aforesaid people, you would hang your head in shame at what you have done to them. You and your Administration have utterly ruined them: so that with relief and doles and pensions, all the piffling perequisites that you are handing out, I literally cannot get a man to do a day's work. The comnunity is full of so called unemployed-until you try to employ them. Then they simply will not work. Why should they?

"You go on to speak of your 'new social security legislation,' old age pensions, unemployment insurance and those much-sobbed over children who are dragged in upon every occasion. Oh, yes! And you want that Public Works Progress promoted. These are, all of them, precise ly things I do not want, each for a different reason. "You ask me, as a further favor, to write about conditions in my own community. They are doubtless not unlike conditions in every other community, county and State throughout the Nation. Conditions are bad, and the evil has been brought about largely by you and your maudlin entourage, your col lege professor theorists, your timeserving political and other hench men, who have cluttered up the national payroll. and has invited her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden, whom she had never seen, to visit her. A stranger, on the verge of exhaustion, finds his way to Marcia's home. Secretly, he asks Marcia to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so. Elisha Winslow, town sheriff, brings news of a jewel robbery nearby. The stranger gives his name as Stanley Heath. Sylvia, by chance, discovers the jewels, and naturally believes Heath is a robber. She realizes that Marcia must have hidden them, and decides to say nothing, putting the gems back in their hiding place. "Have you that?"

"The Biltmore, New York City."

"Yes." "Everything safe with me. Do no worry. Marooned on Cape Cod with Nothing serious. Home soon. Love. Stanley."

the same moment Marcia descended the front ones. Once in her room, she closed and locked the door and sank panting into a chair to recover her breath. Well, at least she had not been cought and in the meantime the lewels were quite safe.

She took the case stealthily from her nocket. Now that the gems were in her possession, it certainly could do no harm for her to look at themeven try them on, as she had been tempted to do when she first discovered them. Probably pever again in all her life would she hold in her hand so much wealth and beauty. Accordingly she unwound the hand kerchief and opened the box. There lay the glistening heap of treasure, resplendent in the sunshine, a far more gorgeous spectacle than she

Going to the bureau, Sylvia took out the jewels, one by one.

She clasped the diamonds about her neck: fastened the emerald brooch in place; put on the sapphire pendant; then added the rings and looked at herself in the gold-framed mirror.

What she saw reflected dazzled her. Who would have believed jewels could make such a difference in one's ap-They set off her blond heanty so that she was suddenly transformed into a princess.

Slowly, and with conscious coquetry, like a preening bird, she turned her head this way and that, delighting in the creaminess of the neck the gems encircled, and in the fairness of her golden curls.

She really ought to have jewels. She was born for them and could carry them off. There were myriad women in the world on whom such adornment would be wasted—good and worthy women, too.

Then a voice interrupted her reverie. It was Stanley Heath calling. She heard Marcia reply and come hurrying upstairs. Guiltily Sylvia took off her sparkling regalia: tumbled it unceremoniously into its case; and slipped it into the drawer underneath a pile of nightdresses. Then she softly unlocked the door and sauntered out.

It was none too soon, for Marcia was speaking to her. "Sylvia?"

"How would you feel about going over to the village for the mail and to do some errands? The tide is out and you could walk. Prince needs a run."

"I'd love to go." "That's fine. Here is a list of things we need at the store. You're sure you on't mind going?" "No, indeed. I shall enjoy being Then suddenly Sylvia had an inspiration which she instantly acted upon.

"Why don't you go?" she inquired "You didn't sleep much last night, and a walk might do you good." "Oh, I couldn't," objected Marcia with haste. "I've a hundred and one things to do. Thanks, just the same." "Well, you know your own business best. Is this the list?" "Yes. There are quite a few items, but they won't be heavy. Here is the pasket. Prince will carry it. That is his job and very proud he is of doing it. Good-by, dear, "She's dreadfully anxious to get us out of the way, isn't she, Prince?" commented young Sylvia as she and on her mind? She's up to something.

Marcia isn't a bit of an actress. She's too genuine." Marcia, standing at the window watching the girl, would have been astonished enough had she heard this astute observation. She did want Sylvia out of the way. The girl had read her correctly.

She must telephone the messages to the stationmaster at Sawyer Falls, the adjoining town where the railroad ended and the nearest telegraph station was. She got the line and had no soone dictated the telegrams than she heard Heath's voice. During the interval that had elapsed since she had left him, both of them had experienced a reaction and each was eager to make amends.

Marcia regretted her flippancy. It had been childish of her to give way to pique and punish Heath simply be cause it was proved he had a wife. Why should he not be married? No doubt the absent Mrs. Stanley Heath was a dashing, sophisticated beauty, too, who lived in luxury at the great city hotel to which the first wire had been sent.

Heath had been quite frank about the message and its destination. On thinking matters over, it occurred to Marcia he might have considered this the easiest way to inform her of things he found it embarrassing to put into words.

And she? Instead of appreciating his honesty.

chivalry, gentlemanly conduct as she should have done, and receiving it graciously, surprise had betrayed her into displaying resentment.

She was heartily ashamed of herself. No matter how much it humbled her pride, she must put things right. For tunately it was not too late to do so.

Lesson for October 27

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST (Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 5:1-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise. Proverbs 20:1.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Daniel Solves

JUNIOR TOPIC—At the Feast of JUNIOR Belshazzar.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOFIC—What Drink Leads To.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT
TOPIC—The Facts About Alcohol.

Beishazzar's Impious Feast (vv.

1. Those in attendance (vv. 1, 2). Those present were Belshazzer, his wife and concubines, and one thousand of his lords.

2. Their behavior (vv. 3, 4). a. They drank wine and engaged in drunken revelry.

b. They committed sacrilege. They drank wine from the-sacred vessels taken out of the temple at Jerusalem. c. They worshiped idols.

II. The Handwriting on the Wall (vv. 5-16). 1. The time of (v. 5). It occurred "in the same hour" in which they were engaged in their drunken debauchery. 2. The effect upon the king (v. 6). "The joints of his loins were loosed and his knees smote one against another." 3. The king's behavior (vv. 7-16). a. He called for the astrologers and soothsavers, offering them rewards of gold and of position (vv. 7-9).

b. Daniel brought in at the sugges tion of the queen (vv. 10-16). The queen was perhaps the wife of Ne buchadnezzar who remembered Daniel's service in interpreting the dream of her husband.

III. Daniel Interprets the Writing (vv. 17-28). 1. Daniel's address to the king (vv 17-24).

a. He brushes aside his promised gifts (v. 17). He would not have his speech limited by the king's gift. b. He reviewed before Belshazzar the history of Nebuchadnezzar (vv. 18-24). He showed clearly that Belshazzar should have profited by the experiences of his father. 2. The interpretation of the writ ing (vv. 25-28). "Mene" means "numbered" (v. 26). "God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished It."

"Tekel" means "weighed" (v. 27). "Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting." c. "Peres" means "divided" (v. 28).

Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians." IV. The Judgment Executed (VV

29-31). So rapidly did the divine judgment fall that Belshazzar was slain and Darius the Median took the kingdom that same night. The Chaldean dynasty ended with Belshazzar. We may therefore, interpret this whole scene as pointing to the conditions at the close of the time of the Gentiles, and as adumbrating their prevailing con ditions. Let us note 1. The stupidity of men. Belshaz "Now what do you suppose she has by example. Nebuchadnezzar's fate should have deterred Belshazzar. 2. The magnificent splendor. This great feast was characterized by pomp. display and parade. How character istic of our own age!

3. Luxury. The famous hanging gardens of Babylon were a noteworthy example. Signs of luxury abound to day on every hand. The licentiousness of the king with his many wives and concubines Licentiousness is likewise notoriously prevalent today. 5. Blasphemous sacrilege. The sacrilege of this day may be in excess of that of Belshazzar's day and expresses itself in a. A profession of religion for pecuniary gain, social and political b. The use of the pulpit of the Christian ministry for notoriety and trine. c. Uniting with the church and attendance at the Lord's table so as to cover up secret sins.

WASHINGTON DIGEST National Topics Interpreted BY WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington,—The President and his | whom they have taken back on the two chief relief advisers, Harry L. Hopkins and Secretary Ickes, have Hey seek to fill in their time and just Relief Job just completed a cross-country tour and are now in possession of information on which to base the future course for management of the relief job this winter. What their plans are, beyond the use of the funds appropriated last winter, remain confiden-tial but without doubt the country can expect to see some very definite changes in the practices that have been followed. The New Deal was swept into the governmental control upon the twin arches of recovery and relief. The recovery arch seems to be holding up. The relief arch, I believe, can be said to be teetering. At least that is the conclusion that must be drawn on a set of circumstances in which billions have been spent to tide destitute persons over their distress only to leave millions of them still looking for government handouts.

It is quite apparent that Mr. Roosevelt took his two relief advisers on his Western trip chiefly for the purpose, like the well-known bear, of going over the mountain to see what he could see. The word that has come back to Washington is that he saw some things that were not altogether encouraging. He found that his previ-ous relief methods were not in high favor in the Middle West and on the Pacific coast. Hence there are some changes in prospect. New Deal opposition has characterized the President's vacation trip westward as being, in part, politics. Whether this be a fact or not, anyone can recall that there is an election in November, 1936, and that shrewd politicians begin many months in advance to oil the campaign machinery and see that the gears mesh. It is not at all unlikely, then, that while Mr. Roosevelt was sincerely examining the relief situation and attempting to ascertain for himself what should be done to make the going easier for those in distress, he probably had in the back of his mind thoughts of how those same people would react when they go to the polls a year hence and find his name as the Democratic Presidential nominee.

Some months ago Mr. Roosevelt announced with emphasis that the job of taking care of the Courting destitute must be

States and private charity. It was, he said, no longer a federal proposition. A good many observers here felt at the time he made that announcement that he was courting trouble. Those who took that view have found their conclusions amply supported by the facts since developed. The President indeed has courted trouble and it is a species of trouble that is going to remain with | The President in his statement asserthim throughout a long, hard winter ed that the deficit next June 30, will just ahead. Messrs. Hopkins and Ickes were on their transcontinental tour. To the average person, however, the solution is not so apparent.

That brings us to a phase of federal administration, a new circumstance and problem, confronting the nation. I describe it as a new problem which in fact it is when considered in the light of developments since the New Deal took control.

It seems to me that it ought to be said the Roosevelt administration failed to profit by a knowledge of what has happened heretofore in the use of the dole. Just across the Atlantic has been available a splendid demonstration of what the dole can and will do to a population. The British government listened to the appeals of the professional relievers and humanitarians and adopted a dole. It has taken that nation four years to whittle away even a part of the situation it built up for itself. Here is the crux of the problem: At any time a governmental agency begins to feed people, to clothe them and to provide them with the other necessaries of life free, by that act it inculcates in those people—not all of them of course—a feeling that the world, and particularly their government owes them a living. A certain percentage of them immediately become convinced that while the dole may be smaller than their weekly pay check earned in industry, it comes without work. In fact, it breeds lazijust taken Aduwa where 8.000 of our colonial troops 6,000 of our Italian troops, were killed 40 years ago, and Italy humiliated." That was a proud moment in Musso

After Mussolini gets the news by radio-telephone he telephones it to the Italian king's summer residence.

For a change from war, consider this incident. Before the entrance to the "Recess club" frequented by Wall Street's "Who's Who," stood George C. Haigh, banker; Matthew S. Sloan, who used to run New York's electric light and now runs the "Katy" railroad, a learned friend of Mr. Sloan's and this

Mr. Sloan said, with finality that marks greatness, "Mr. Blank," mentioning the name of a well-known Republican candidate, "will be elected in 1936" Your parrator buttonholed the first man passing, a Wall Street deniwell-dressed, asked him "Who is Mr. Blank?" mentioning the name of Mr. Sloan's candidate.

"Never heard of him, don't know who he is. Who is he?" the pedestrian replied and went on. Of the next ten, nine would have said, similarly, "Never heard of him," but all ter would have heard of Franklin D. Republicans must take somebody whose name is known if they can find him; failing that, they would well to select him now and see to it that his name is known before election day comes around.

Despite possibilities of widespread bombing of cities if "that war in Enrope" should come, Vatican City, ruled by the pope, does not consider antibomb defense necessary. Osservatore Romano, representing the Vatican, denies reports that shelters against air raids would be provided in Vatican City. It says:

"The Holy Father has reason to be lieve that the dome of St. Peter's, regardless of whatever the occasion might be, is the most inviolable de fense, firstly, because of the celestial protection of the Prince of Apostles for whom the dome is the sacred sign and symbol, and because its mass inso clearly the holy place, respected and venerated during the most obscure centuries."

That the magnificent building erected by Michelangelo, with his priceless statues and naintings within it, would be respected by even the most barbarinvader seems certain.

Little things start big things. Doctor Potter, formerly professor of politi-cal science in the University of Wisconsin, one of an international committee of four that tried to settle a quarrel between Italy and Ethiopia in 1934, says that Italy has good ground for complaint against Ethiopia, and that a soldier's casual shot at a bird probably caused the present trouble.

Mr. Joseph E. Uihlein, an able citizen of Milwaukee, who takes infor-mation with him on his travels and is therefore able to bring information back, returns from England with the impression that, despite greatly improved conditions in Britain, English and other Europeans are expecting something unpleasant to happen. What it is, where it will start, what will cause it, nobody is prepared to say, but there is a feeling of apprehension a vague anticipation of some catas trophic event.

The President assures the nation that on this occasion America will not meddle with what does not concern it. What will the United States do about selling food to Italy, if, through "sanctions," the League of Nations tries to starve out the Italians, as Germany was starved? If a chain is no stronger than its weakest link the chain that makes up efused to associate themselves with the assembly's action. The Austrian and Hungarian representatives already had announced that they would not participate in any sanctions against Italy because of their political and economic relations with the Fascist government.

If any of the nations concurring in the league's decision wishes to declare war on Italy, it now has the legal right to do so. The nature of the penalties to be imposed and the manner of procedure was to be determined by committee including all members of the league council, except Italy, and all Italy's neighbor nations except Austria and Hungary.

The meeting of the assembly first heard an eloquent speech on Italy's behalf by her chief delegate, Baron Pompei Aloisi. He charged that the league had been unfair, that it hai used "two weights and two scales" in its work, that it had acted against Italy where it did not act against Japan in the Manchurian crisis, that it did not even consider Italy's complaints against Ethionia. "Why not Japan?" he asked. "Why not Bolivia and Paraguay in the Chaco war? Why Italy?" Before the decision nation after nation registered its adherence to the league covenant.

"I shall make only a brief declaration," said Pierre Laval of France. 'France will face her obligations. I said this before the council. I repeat it before the assembly. The covenant s our international law.

"Action must now be taken," said Anthony Eden of Great Britain. "I declare the readiness of his majesty's government to take full part in such Vladimir Potemkin of Russia an nounced that his government was determined to fulfill its obligations Switzerland also emphasized its willingness to participate.

"No other delegation has asked to speak." said President Benes quietly inescapably led. . . . From three different and, in the main, unrelated "I interpret the silence of all as indicating the concurrence of their governments with the opinion of the guilt—viz: embers of the council. The assembly will place this on record."

Austria and Hungary cannot of themselves supply Mussolini with much in the way of raw materials for war; but there is the chance that he may eceive, through those countries, ma terials from Germany if the neutrality proclaimed by Hitler does not prevent. Already the big packing comnanies of Brazil have suspended negotiations for the sale of 22,000 tons of meat to Italy, and Greece has stopped the shipment of donkeys to the Italian armies. The economic sanctions also will put an end to much of Italy's export trade, as well as her imports.

Making good on his threats and promises, Benito Mussolini sent his armies crashing across the border of Ethiopia, starting a war that gave all Europe the jit-ters. Under the command of Gen. Emilia De Bono, chief of the Italian colonial armies, the Italian troops laboriously advanced from Eritrea, crossing the March river from tier and capturing Adirhat had already been practically ruined by Gen. De Bono bombardment from planes. The immediate objective was Aduwa, the scene of the terrific Italian defeat 39 years ago. After several days of hard fighting against the defending Ethiopians, who lost prab-ably 2,000 killed, the Invaders arched into Aduwa, and considered that the disgrace of 1896 bad been The Italian soldiers of General Marivigna's command entere i first, carrying to the principal square and there erecting a big stone mont ment inscribed "To the fallen heroes

JACK IS NEEDED IN PRESENT DAY. SAYS AUTHORITY

A jack of all trades has usually been considered a handy fellow to have around. But it is the fashion to consider that such a general facility implies a lack of particular expertness, or to express it in simpler Angio-Saxon, "jack of all trades; master of none."

Now speaks up a vocational expert to protest at this belittling of Jack In these days of hazardous employment and drastic occupational changes resulting from the rapid advance of the machine, the jack of all trades is needed, says Prof. Harry D. Kitson of Teachers college, Columbia. Even if Jack is master of no trade, he is much more master of his own destiny than the one-occupation man. Therefore, says Doctor Kitson, today's vocational guidance effort should endeavor at all costs "to avoid giving young people the obsession that they are created for one occupation."

This, unfortunately, seems to be one result of relying too heavily on the aptitude tests and other methods of gauging ability which have been devised in great detail by the vocational guidance experts. Such tests have value; but they also have limitations. Doctor Kitson one judges is an expert with a saving sense of reasonableness. He recognizes there is a danger of not being able to see the woods for the trees.

The jack of all trades was supposed to be an outstanding human product of the pioneer days. who alone, or with a small isolated group, was battling the old frontier, had to be a jack of all trades. And sometimes he was master of several. It is surprising now to see the modern industrial setup, the antithesis of the frontier, demanding the same qualifications.

What Well-Dressed Eskimo

Is to Wear This Winter Here's what the natives of St Lawrence island, bleak spot in Bering sea, will wear this winter:

Sealskin pants with the fur inside over which is a second pair of heavy reindeer skin trousers with the fur outside. Two pairs of stockings, sealskin and reindeer skin, with heavy fur mukluks or boots over all Two parkas or skin coats with long hoods to throw over the head in stormy weather. The inner coat is sometimes lined with birdskins. Gloves or mitts of dogskin or wolverine are worn constantly.

The same styles prevail for wom-en, men and children.

Results of Liquor Control.

John Barclay, in The State.

You have asked for replies to the article entitled "Results of Liquor Control" in the issue of September 28, 1935. I am unable to reply from the standpoint of other counties than Wilson, but I think there is a very of this community's stalled WPA different answer from Wilson County to your article.

Mr. Miller says there has been no noticeable increase in drunkenness. He goes on to give his reaction from different people he interviewed. It seems strange to me that he didn't go to the records of the county or counties. May I present them so far as Wilson County is concerned?

In July of this year there was a slight increase in arrests for various iquor charges over July, 1934. There was a further increase in August, and still a larger increase in September over the same months of last The figures in detail are as follows for Wilson Co

The fact that there were twice as many arrests for illegal possession for the purpose of sale in September, 1935 as in 1934, would not indi cate a very great decrease in boolegging.

Mr. Miller says in his second observation that nobody much is paying any attention to the liquor stores. As a matter of fact Store No. 1 in Wilson County in the last three months has taken in $68,906 40, which is approximately $100.00 per hour. It would seem that somebody is paying more than attention to them. As a matter of actual record, this son on the "business" of being a is more money in three months for liquor at Store No. 1, than the Wilsenator, to explain to him that there son High School and three white grammar schools in this town cost creasing) taxes, are to be socked to The Association Against the Probiduring all last year. It is more than the combined budgets of all the set up boards, bugle-blowers and na- bition Amendment, the militant wet. churches in Wilson during the past year.

Mr. Miller also says in the article that a number of people told nim that they believed there would be less liquor sold as a result of legal Rev. Walter Dodd left Monday done his dead level best in finding for a two weeks business trip to the particular projects being pressed and starting them toward the White paper has at last admitted that it does a pay to advertise.

Wets and drys wail together over the sorry fact that the evils which repeal was supposed to eradicate have greatly multiplied in this country.

Drunkenness has increased. Bootlegging continues to flourish. Beer gardens, taverns and road houses debauch youth. And poverty and crime through his FERA program, to start are still with us. Judging from its social and moral results, repeal is a dismal flap.

FORD V·8 FOR

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market. and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"-some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery - always of sterling quality and excellent taste-is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made-Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 51/2 gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermosyphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New style hood louvres permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears The gear shift lever now travels a

"Ironing Day Blues"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

SHAKE hands, fellow adventurers, with a new member—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Meyer, who, like a good many other adventurers, doesn't believe it is necessary to travel great distances and penetrate vast wildernesses to find excitement.

As a matter of fact, all Mary has to do when she is in the mood for a little excitement is to walk upstairs and take a look at that closet door—the one that let her in for a lot of grief one Tuesday morning not so many years ago One squint at that door and memory brings back to Mary all the excitemen her system happens to crave at the moment. There's a story back of that, lads and lassies—a story I know you'll all want to hear. And here is Mary herself

Tuesday, all over the country is ironing day, and that, among other things, is what Mary was doing when old man Adventure caught up with her. She had piled up a good-sized stack of neatly ironed linen by lunch time, and then stopped to put a few things on the stove for the mid-day meal. While lunch was cooking, she had a minute or two to spare, and picked up the stack of already ironed linen, to carry it upstairs to the linen closet.

The load was a heavy one and Mary was tired. Her feet dragged as she climbed the stairs to the second floor landing, and she had trouble lifting the bundle up to the shelf. As she raised it over her head, she lost her balance Her hand, reaching out to steady herself, hit the closet door and slammed it

Mary Finds Herself Locked In.

Mary finished placing the bundle on the shelf and turned to go. She reached for the door-knob-and her hand slid along a smooth surface. Funny about things like that. You can live in a place for years, and then run across some thing in it that you never noticed before. In all the time Mary had been in that house, she had never discovered that there was no door-knob on the inside o that closet.

How to get out. That was the question. She was locked in a closet whose latch worked only from the outside. She pushed and hammered with all her might, but the door was too strong for her. It began to look as if she'd be there the rest of the afternoon, for none of her family was expected home before

Mary took off her shoe and began nounding the lock with her heel but beside putting a few dents in the heel, she accomplished nothing. Then her little dog, attracted by the noise, began barking outside the door. For a few moments he continued his howling, and Mary could hear him jumping against the door. Then he ran away, to continue his racket in another part of the house. He did that several times, and then, to Mary's nostrils, came the acrid smell of smoke.

All at once there came to her an appalling explanation of her little dog's antics. The house must be afire, and the little fellow was trying to warn her of her danger. Locked in that closet Mary would be burned to a cinder before anyone came to her rescue, and the thought almost threw her into a fit of Dog Tries Desperately to Help.

Her little dog was back at the door again. He had stopped barking now and was sniffing at the floor near the lower part of the closet door. That gave Mary an idea. She got down on her knees and ran her fingers along the bottom of the door. There was a crack almost an inch wide between the door and the floor. If she had something solid to fit into that crack, she might be able to jimmy the lock.

Her heart pounding, and her hands cold as ice, she began searching the closet for some hard object that might be pressed into service as an emergency jimmy. It was pitch dark in that cupboard, and although she was pretty certain that there was nothing but linen and bedding on the shelves, she examined every inch of them with her groping fingers. She was about to give up when she thought of the floor, and, getting down on her knees again, she began feeling about.

Suddenly her roving hand came in contact with something hard and cold. was an old-fashioned bathtub seat-the kind that had iron lugs which fitted over the rim of the tub. Mary fished it out, worked one end into the crack under the door, and gave a heave at the other end.

Quick Thinking Saves Mary From Cremation.

The bathtub seat held-but so did the door. Mary threw all her strength into it and gave another heave. This time she was rewarded with a crackling sound, as the wood split around the lock. In another second she had the door

The upper floor was filled with smoke. Mary dashed down the stairs and halted in the kitchen. No-the house wasn't afire. But the food Mary had put on the stove was just about burned to a crisp. It was that burning food that had produced the smoke and also excited her little dog, to say nothing of the way it had excited Mary.

Japan Serves Full Meal Before Tea Is Offered In its early days the teabush was called cha and in early English writings is referred to variously as chatcha and chaw and later is called tay and tee. Oddly enough, states a writer in Pathfinder Magazine, the tea shrub belongs to the plant family known as theaceae. From the name cha is also derived chanoyu, the Japanese word for a time honored institution, the tea ceremony, rooted in the principles of the Buddhist sect, Zen, and founded on admiration of the beautiful in daily life such as cooking, etc. This ceremony takes place in the chaseki (tearoom) which is usually about nine feet square, or smaller, to suggest gentee! poverty to the guest although no exense is spared in the interior. Each guest crawls into the room through a small door about three feet square and finds an alcove filled with expensive ornaments and a fireplace for steeping tea sunk into the floor. According to the rules of best Japanese etiquette a full meal is served before the pouring and drinking of the tea. This custom was founded under the Shogun Yoshimasa about the mid dle of the Fifteenth century and still flourishes among those who remain faithful to and cherish the old spirit of Japan.

The Leyden Jar Various forms of machines were developed for the purpose of producing electrification by means of friction. In 1709, Francis Hauksbee mounted a glass globe on a shaft and geared it so that it could be rotated at high speed. Friction was produced by holding the palm of the hand on the spinning globe. Such devices produced an electric charge of considerable strengthwhich was, however, available only when the machines were in operation. About 1745, Ewald George von Kleist and Pieter van Musschenbroek, working independently, performed experiments which led to the invention of the "Leyden jar." This was a glass vessel, with inside and outside coatings of lead, by means of which a charge of electricity from a frictional machine could be accumulated and earthquake. The gas explodes and later released by making a connection flings up masses of oil which return between the two coatings.

Chinese Wall, Engineering Feat Tradition says more than a million men worked 12 years to build the grea wall in China that winds its way ward from the sea, over hill and dale, mountain and valley, twisting and turning, with high defense towers at distances of 150 to 200 yards along the entire way-a barrier against the warlike Tartar hordes that attacked again and again throughout the years. As a feat of huge engineering achieve ment it stands unsurpassed, and it has stood more than 2,200 years, for it was built in the Third century B. C. Its top is paved with granite blocks, about 12 by 4 by 3 inches, and could serve as a parade ground today.

Organized Crime Old Organized crime is not new. Fifty years ago Chicago had several hundred pickpockets, few of whom ever spent a day in jail in a decade because they were never caught with the loot having passed it to a confederate Each telephoned his attorney every hour. Failure to do so meant he was arrested, and his lawyer would immediately appear with a writ of habeas corpus and obtain his release, some times as often as three times a day.-Collier's Weekly.

The Mexican Flag The ensign of Mexico is a tricolor of green, white and red, with the arms of the country imposed upon the white section. The arms originated with the legend that the Aztecs could not settle until they found an eagle with a green serpent in its beak, standing on a cactus plant situated on an island in

The essential truth of the Bible is ters that flow down stopped and were not dependent upon the accuracy of dammed up at a distance at Adam its history, and there are many passages in the Sacred Writings which aust be interpreted in a symbolic rather than a literal sense.

It is remarkable, however, how Old Testament history, after being abeled as "legendary," or, at best, 'exaggerated," has recently been conirmed as a result of independent retearch.

For instance, a little while ago, destructive critics simply laughed at the story of the Flood, and at sucn incidents as the crossing of Jordan dryshod and the collapse of the walls of Jericho. But today excavations on ancient sites in Palestine, Egypt, Mesopotamia, and elsewhere have vindicated the Bible narrative completely, even on the points most seriously challenged.

To take an example, it used to be urged that Abraham must have been merely a nomad, quite unlettered and utterly incapable of the acts and words and vision attributed to him. We now know, from discoveries at Ur of the Chaldees, that, as a youth in that city, he was a member of a community enjoying a high degree of civilization. The land of Ur had great cities, settled laws, a state religion, a thriving commerce, schools and monasteries and libraries.

Springing as he did from an influential family, Abraham would partake of the culture and learning of Ur. In short, the circumstances of place and time as we now know them, are not opposed to the Bible narrative. But let us see what modern meth-ds of investigation have revealed about specific incidents. Take the Flood, upon which so much scorn has een cast. During the winter of 1928-9, the excavators of Ur in Babylonia came upon a stratum of alluvial deposit which made a clear break in the succession of civilizations occupying that site. They came to the conclusion that it could only be explained by a flood of great extent and duration, occurring about 3000 B. C. or earlier.

So, quite apart from the account in Genesis, and the one on the Babyionian tablets in the British museum it'would appear that the account of great flood, which destroyed cities and people over a vast region, is not legend but history.

The very existence of Sodom and Gomorrah, which the Bible tells us were destroyed in Abraham's time, has been doubted, yet, only last year, an airman flying over the Dead sea saw through the crystalline water what appeared to be extensive ruins. Further investigation is to be made. But other ruins have been found, covered with ashes, in the neighborbood of the Dead sea.

We learn from the Bible that Lot, Abraham's nephew, chose the valley of Sodom because of its extreme fertility. Today there is, perhaps, no more desolate region

What happened to it? In the heavly bituminous soil there probably occurred one of those terrible explosions and conflagrations which logical formations of the oil districts of North America.

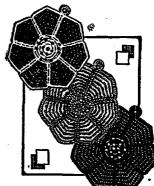

In such soil vast reservoirs of oil and accumulations of gas occur. These may suddenly be released either by their own pressure or by in a fiery rain which will go on plazing even when it falls on water. Saline mud may also be ejected. and these things combined render a fertile land utterly barren. Such a phenomenon would account for all he statements in the graphic Bible parrative. Now turn to Joshua 3:14-17 in the Revised Version, in which is related honor without duties attached.

Laval. French premier, tired of dan gerous goingson in the Mediterranean, gerous goings on in the Mediterranean nounces bluntly: "There ain't going to no war," requesting England to remove her battleships from the Mediterranean.

The wise British have known all along that there was to be no war, but thought it well to indulge in virtuous demonstrations.

Britons rarely make diplomatic mistakes: diplomats of other countries are children to them, although France is an exception to that rule.
Washington believes the war will

Capturing Aksum will impress Ethioplans. The holy city, surrendered by the Ethiopians without a shot, contains the tombs of all Ethiopian rulers since the time of Sheba. The Coptic Christian bishop of Aksum voluntarily gave the keys of the city to the Italian Gen. Emilio de Bono, at Aduwa. He accepted the keys, proclaimed Italy's annexation of Aksum, sent a force to surround the city and prevent looting the monasteries and the ancient cathedral of St. Mary Zion.

In that cathedral the original Ark of the Covenant is believed to be preserved. Ethiopian history relates that when Solomon sent the son of his high priest, with other sons of great dignitaries, to accompany Sheba's son after his visit to his father, the son of the high priest took the original Ark of the Covenant with him, substituting an imitation ark, much to the indignation of Solomon and that high priest. In justice to the high priest's son, it must be stated that an angel appeared and gave him instructions sbout stealing the ark.

Laval in Uncomfortable Position as Anglo-Italian Relations Grow Worse—Senator Vandenberg "Not a Candidate."

found himself in a light place because of his efforts to retain the friendship of both Great Britain and Italy and to keep his government from being upset by its foes at of trying to find a way to bring about a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war. Laval proposed that Britain withdraw its big home fleet from mollify Mussolini, This

Pierre Laval suggestion was laid before the British cabinet and turned down flatly. The cabinet gave hearty approval to the policy at Geneva of Capt. Anthony Eden and Samuel Hoare, secretary for foreign affairs. Its stand was reported to be substantially this: Mussolini will respect nothing but force. He would interpret any withdrawal of Britain's Mediterranean forces as a sign of weakening. If Mussolini wants clear the way for Italo-Ethopian peace talks, let him half his armies in Ethiopia and accept league terms as basis for negotiation as Ethiopia already has done.

Furthermore, the British governmen called on Laval for a definite reply to its question whether France would cooperate with the British fleet if there were an open break with Italy. The French answers to this query had been too wabbly to suit Downing Particularly the English vanted to know if their fleet would be permitted to use the French naval dockyards. It was believed that if Laval could not satisfy the British, the latter would withdraw from active leadership in the League of Nations and refuse to renew the Locarno commitments on which France relies for protection against Germany.

DISPATCHES from the African war front are subjected to so severe a censorship that they are not only unsatisfactory but often quite unreliable. All kinds of sensational stories are circulated and some of them may be true. One such is the report from Diibouti, French Somaliland, that Italians killed a number of British Somaliland subjects near the Ethiopian frontier, some of the victims being members of the came corps that is a part of the colonial army. British Vice Consul Lowe heard, also, that Italians had gassed and shot a lot of cattle and goats in British Somaliland. Certainly relations between Italy and Great Britain were growing worse daily and there were many predictions that the two nations would be at each other's throats before long. The British have been in a deadly cold humor ever since they found out that Musso lini's friends had been trying to stir up en anti-British revolt in Egypt. Now the border between Egypt and Italian Libya is the scene of swift ETHIOPIA'S representatives in Geneva were told by delegates of several nations that Mussolini was ready to end the warfare if he were given considerable cessions of territory and certain large economic advantages. This tentative offer was transmitted to Addis Ababa, and the reply of Emperor Haile Selassie was a determined "No." The Italians want virtual control over the entire country, and the emperor is not willing to give up a yard of territory. The Italians in northern Ethiopia were jubilant over the desertion of Degiac Halle Selassie Gugsa and several thousand warriors. This Gugsa is a son-in-law of the emperor and a descendant of King John who reigned in the last century. The traitor was installed as ras or chieftain of the occupied territory. \ ties of the banks."

The senator expressed the belief business was "reviving," declared relief and other emergency expenditures would drop as continued improvement was shown, and predicted many work projects would be of lasting benefit

IT DOESN'T take much these days to cause the Republicans to rejoice. The latest event hailed by them as a barbinger of victory next year was merely a by-election in Massachusetts to fill a vacancy in the state senate. The district normally is Republican and this time as usual a Republican was elected. The reason for the G. O. P. shouts was found in the decreased vote polled by the Democrats and the fact that Salem, a mill town and former Democratic stronghold, was captured by the Republicans.

Democratic leaders said that the is sues in the election were purely local and that the reverse at most was a rebuff for the administration of Demo eratic Gov. James Curley. The Re publican leaders asserted that the New Deal no less than Curley was involved

Washington.—It may be, and possibly [ almost like a college yell: "We want true that the bulk of our people pay little attention to the fact that gold than currency run off in the printing Gold Is Pouring In is pouring into the United States in an unprecedented volume. I can understand how the wheat farmer of the plains country or the cotton farmer of to the heavy concentration of yellow metal to which the United States has been subjected. But the link nevertheless exists. It exists as surely and as definitely as night follows day and, therefore, it becomes a subject in which all of us are vitally interested Since the beginning of September a widespread flight of capital from Europe has manifested itself in the shape of gold exports to the United States. Three or four hundred millions of dollars in gold have landed here in that time. They bring the net inflow of gold for the year well above $1,000,-000,000. And, going a bit further, this addition plus another $1,000,000,000 places our gold stocks in excess of $9,400,000,000, or roughly $2,000,000,000 more than was held here when the dollar was devalued under President Roosevelt's instructions.

It seems impossible to attribute this heavy and prolonged inflow to any single cause. Immediately after devaluation of the dollar, there was a steady stream of yellow metal headed for the United States which was due almost entirely to a desire of American holders of gold, temporarily stored abroad to repatriate. But even in that case, there was a contributory factor to be considered. Monetary manipulation by the American government had a temporary effect on our exports, increasing them to some extent and it was increasing the balance of payments due to this country. So, we find our policies—that is, policies of the Roosevelt administration—responsible for the start of the inflow.

Later, another influence developed, Under the pressure of American monetary policies, foreign powers found their allegiance to the gold standard everely strained. Silver purchases by the treasury had an effect. The combination was primarily responsible for the second rush of gold.

Subsequently, the Italian-Ethiopian controversy began to take serious form and a new flood of gold to America de veloped. This was different than that which had immediately preceded it because this movement was related to international conditions of a political nature whereas the previous movement had resulted without relation to international strife in a military way but centered wholly upon American monetary policies and their effect upon economic conditions abroad.

Now, let us consider what can hap-Those acquainted with finance recognize in the ex-What

Can Happen stock of gold-the largest in American history and approximately 45 per cent of the entire world stock-the existence of a potential, if indeed it is not a probable, base for inflation. There is so much gold held by the American government, which holds virtually all of the gold stocks in this country, that no end of paper money can be issued against it. Those who believe in that type of currency policies say that it would be perfectly safe; that the government could pay off dollar for dollar or even more than a dollar for every paper dollar outstanding from the gold it holds. This school of thought contends that there is actually a shortage of money in circulation and insists that this is one reason why the country has not recovered from the depression more rapidly than conditions show. Of course, a cold appraisal of that argument catalogues it as the same old de mand for inflation of the currency and everyone knows what inflation will do in the way of wrecking the nerson who works for wages or whose sole income consists of a compensation delivered to him in the form of weekly, semimonthly, or monthly pay checks. The size of that check never has and never will catch up with the increase in prices which that individual must pay

Then, there is another potential tional cemetery with full military danger in this tremendous horde of gold. It is in many ways similar to that which I have just related. It is, however, more of a psychological condition than the first. I refer to the attitude usually adopted by those who pull for inflation when they see a government possessed of vast stores of

> In this instance, the tangent of inflationist sentiment is joined with the We Want sponsors of the silver buying program.
> More Money They see all of this gold and silver and they simply cannot resist the opportunity for continued howling, Their more money," the more money which they desire being nothing more nor less presses of the great bureau of engraving and printing in Washington. Whether it is the first or the second type of inflation that is demanded, weather it is the printing press money the South or any other type of farmer or the money issued against gold as can fall to become excited over the security, the results are the same. It security, the results are the same. It influx of gold in the last five or six is to be remembered in this connection months. It appears to be a far cry that none of us can obtain gold from from the grain fields or the cotton fields or the quarries or the small town tration demanded of and obtained from congress legislation which definitely prohibited payment of gold for mone-tary use by the treasury under any circumstances except for the settlement of balances owed foreign nations. But that fact has not deterred demands by inflationists. They are calling and will continue to call for more paper money and with every call the prices you pay for commodities are bound to increase -that is, they will increase until or unless there is a release of gold again for circulation as money.

So, it is quite apparent that as long as this influx of gold continues and as long as other nations are harassed by monetary manipulation in the United States, we are continually threatened with a "business boom" which is nothing less than inflation of credit. The real danger confronting this country, then, lies in that direction. Summarized, the threat is this: if that inflationist "business boom" gets started, no power on earth is able or will be able to stop it. The next and final step after that is complete destruction of our currency, and medium of exchange.

Political developments in the last few weeks have been completely dominated Stirred by by the splurge of ac-

Hoover of former President Herbert Hoover. His pot shots at the New Deal in several speeches have agitated the Democrats much more than they are willing to admit and, notwithstanding assertions of satisfaction, they have thrown a new fear into the laps of the Roosevelt New Dealers.

But, if the Hoover speeches have excited the New Dealers and the conservative Democrats, they have almost precipitated a riot among the Republicans of whom he must be said to be, at least, the titular leader. The bulk of the Republicans look upon Mr. because of these recent speeches, as a potential Republican nominee for the Presidency against Mr. Roosevelt next year. They look upon him, further, as an individual who is likely to disrupt plans that contemplate reconciliation, a love feast, among the various factions of the Republican party. They have been struggling to lay a base for this love feast and because of the intense hatred that some of their number have for Mr. Hoover, his activity has opened this breach again, made it a blood-red Political observers and commentators have shown all manner of excitement because Mr. Hoover has made no state ment whether he will or will not he a candidate for the Republican nomination. In plain words, they have been trying valiantly to conduct a cam-paign that will smoke out Mr. Hoover and make him say whether he is or is not a candidate.

All of the efforts to find out what Mr. Hoover proposes to do have failed and will continue to fail, even with the underground work of the New Deal, to bring from him a statement as to his purposes. He will announce them in his own good time and his statement will be definite when it is made.

Personally, from all of the information I have been able to assemble. I do not believe that Mr. Hoover has any intention of seeking the nomination. I am convinced his purpose is directed wholly and completely end: he fears the New Deal and he is trying with all of the power that he cossesses to acquaint the country with his views which are obviously in opposition to the theories and policies and experiments of the New Deal. From cources which I consider to be faithful, because they always have been accurate heretofore, it is apparent to me that Mr. Hoover desires to lend his help in acquainting the country with the things in the New Deal which he regards as dangerous to our nation's well being and that beyond such a purpose he is content to enjoy life as a fisherman and vacationist.

But there is another phase of this situation which seems to me to warrant consideration. While some of the anti-Hooverites have been denouncing him, even calling him names unde their breath, Mr. Hoover has done the Republican party a big favor. By his attacks on the New Deal; by his condemnation of the things in it which he regards as certain to be destructive; in short, by his activity which many construe as a campaign for the nomina tion, he has made the Republicans conscious of the job they have to do. He has awakened them and has put fight into them which three or four short months ago did not exist.

SYNOPSIS

The future of the still youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe, recently released by death from her idling husband, is a conversational tit-bit among housewives of the little hamlet of Wilton. Eligible bachelors and widowers also are interested. Marcia is lonely, and has invited her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden, whom she has never seen, to visit her. A stranger, on the verge of exhaustion, finds his way to Marcia's home. Secretly, he asks Marcia to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so. Elisha Winshow, town sheriff, brings news of a jewel robbery nearby. The stranger gives his name as Stanley Heath. Sylvia, by chance, discovers the jewels, via, by chance, discovers the jewels and naturally believes Heath is a rob ber. She realizes that Marcia must have hidden them, and decides to say nothing, putting the gems back in their hiding place. Marcia admits to herself that she has altogether too deep an interest in her guest, but is powerless to overcome it. Heath has wired "Mrs. S. C. Heath," New York, saying he is safe. He also orders a man named Currier to come at once. Sylvia, in her room, bedecks herself with the jewels. At Marcia's approach she hides them there. ber. She realizes that Marcia must have

Therefore, a very different Marcia Howe responded to Stanley Heath's She was now all gentleness, friendiness, and shyly penitent. Stanley, again master of himself. velcomed her with amazement. Could nan ever fathom a woman's moods, he asked himself? Why this chastened and distractingly adorable Marcia?

Well, if he could not fathom her, he at least was grateful for her understanding. Nevertheless he did mentally observe he had not dreamed her to be so many sided or credited her with a tithe the fascinations he had so unexpectedly discovered her to possess.

"Here I am, Mr. Heath. What can do for you?" was her greeting. This time she did not hesitate, but went directly to the chair beside his bed and sat down. He smiled and, neeting his eyes, she smiled back. This was better. Heath sighed a sigh of relief.

"I've been thinking, since you went down stairs, about Currier. He ought to arrive late tonight or early tomorrow morning. He will start the moment he gets my wire. Although he will not know in which house I am quartered, he will have the wit to inquire, for he has more than the ordinary quota of brains. I don't know what I should do without him. I shall have him leave the car in the village and after he has delivered over the clothing he is to bring, he can take the noon train back to New York, carrying the jewels with him."

"I see," nodded Marcia. heartily welcomed the intelligence that the jewels with their damning evidence, if evidence it was, were to be removed from the house. The sooner they were out of the way the better. If they were not damning evidence they at least were a great responsibility. Suppose something were to happen to them? Suppose somebody suspected hev were in the house?

"So," continued Stanley Heath, "I think sometime today when you have a good opportunity you'd better get he case and bring it up here. I shall hen have it here in my room and I can hand it over to Currier without any trouble.' "I'll go fetch it now. Sylvia has gone to the village and this is a splendid chance," cried Marcia.

"Fine!" "I'll be right back." He heard her speed down the stairs and listened to her step in the room helow.

A few moments later she came rac ing back, white and breathless. "They're gone!" she cried. "The place is empty! The jewels are not there!" Her terror and the fear lest her pallor foreshadowed collapse produced in Heath that artificial calm one some times sees when a strong nature reins itself in and calls upon its reserve

The man thought only of how to quiet her. Reaching out, he touched her hair. "Hush, Marcia. The jewels will be found. Don't give way like this. I cannot bear to see you. The whole lot of them are not worth your tears. "But you left them in my care. It was I who suggested where to hide them," she moaned. "I know. And it was a splendid idea, too. I could not let that sheriff of yours peel off my clothes and find the diamonds on me. He isn't a man of sufficient imagination-or perhaps he is one of far too much. I am not blaming you-not in the least. We did the best we could in the emergency. If things have gone wrong, it is no know. The pillow-cases were in procfault of yours."

But you trusted me. I ought to have watched. I should not have left the kitchen day or night," declared Marcia, lifting her tear-stained face to his "You have been there most of the time, haven't you?"

"I went to see them get the boat off yesterday." "Still, some one was here. Sylvia was in the house." "Yes, but she knew nothing about the jewels and therefore may not have realized the importance of staying or deck. All I asked her to do was to remain within call. She may have gone upstairs, or into another room.

"When she comes back, you can ask her. Now we must pull ourselves together, dear," went on Stanley gently. "It is important that we do not give ourselves away. Sylvia may know nothing and if she does not, we must not let her suspect."

She rose but he still held her hand. a common misery routing every thought of conventionality.

The firmness and magnetism of his touch brought strength. It was a new experience, for during her life with Jason, Marcia had been the oak-the one who consoled, sustained. For a few delicious moments, she let herself rest, weary and unresisting, within the shelter of Stanley Heath's grasp. Then she drew away and, passing her hand across her forehead as if awak ing from a dream, murmured: "I'd better go down. Sylvia will be coming." "Very well. Now keep a stiff upper lip,"

"I will-I'll do my best." Even as she spoke the outer door opened, then closed with a bang. "There's Sylvia now. I must go."

"I'm awfully sorry I banged the door," she apologized. "A gust of wind took it. I do hope I didn't wake up Mr. Heath. Here's the marketing. And "Of course I don't care a button for Hortie. Still, it would be rather good fun to see him. It seems ages since I've laid eyes on him. You know how it is-you get used to a person who is always under foot. You have to think about him if only to avoid stepping on him. And after all, Hortie isn't so bad. Thinking him over from a distance, he really is rather nice. Come and sample the candy. It's wonderful, He must have blown himself and sent to Chicago for it, poor dear! I'll let you see the letter, all except the part which is too frightfully silly. You wouldn't care about that. I don't my-

Sylvia shrugged her shoulders. Alas, this was no moment to talk with her, and artfully draw from her the happenings of the previous day. Inwardly distraught but outwardly calm. Marcia took the letter and tried valiantly to focus her attention upon it. To her surprise, it was a manly, intelligent letter, filled with town gossip, to be sure, yet written in delightfully interesting fashion.

"Your Mr. Fuller sounds charming," she said as she gave it back.

"Oh, Hortie is all right-in some vays." Patronizingly slipping the letter into her pocket, Sylvia shifted the subject. Nevertheless, a betraying flush colored her cheeks. "Now we must start dinner, mustn't we? Don't you want to ask Mr. Heath which way he prefers his eggs—poached or boiled? And Marcia, while you're there, do put a pair of fresh pillow-slips on his pilows. The ones he has are frightfully tumbled. I meant to do it this morn

As the door closed behind the elde oman, artful young Sylvia smiled. "There! That will keep her busy for a few moments at least. I know those pillow-cases. They fit like a snake's skin and are terribly hard to get off and on."

She crept into the hall and listened. Yes, Marcia and Stanley Heath were talking. She could hear her aunt's gentle insistence and the man's protests. That was all she wished to ess of being taken off.

Up the stairs flew Sylvia, to return second later, the jewel case swather its loose wrappings.

"If I can only scramble it in there efore she comes," whispered she. "I shall draw the first long breath I've taken since last night.

An anxious interval elapsed before the brick was pried out and the case slipped beneath it. Nevertheless the feat was accomplished, and trium phant, relieved, happy Sylvia set about preparing dinner.

What a long while Marcia was staying upstairs! Why, one could change a ozen pillow-slips in this time.

"I guess they are tighter than I re nembered them. I needn't have rushed as I did," pouted Sylvia. "What can she be doing?"

When at last Marcia returned, some thing evidently was wrong. "What's the matter?" demanded Sylvia, "Is Mr. Heath worse?"

"Worse? No indeed. What made you think so?" "You look fussed."

"Do I? You'd be fussed had you shrunk frightfully. Well, they are on

"Come and get dinner then. I'm starved. My walk has made me hungry as a bear. You must go out this fternoon, Marcia. It is a glorious day and you need to be pepped up. To her surprise, Marcia demurred.

"Thank you, dear, but I think I won't go out today. I'd rather sit here and read." "Nonsense, Marcia! You're getting middle-aged and lazy. You'll lose your nice slim, hipless figure if you don't watch out."

"I'm too tired to go out." "The air would rest you."

"Not today, dear," Marcia said with inality. "I have some mending to do and lots of other little things that I have been saving up for a long time. Since I prefer to stay, why don't you tramp up the shore and see 'My Unknown Lady'? She is beautiful and you haven't seen her yet."

"I'd love to-if I cannot coax you to zo out."

"You can't. I'm adamant on not stirring out of this room." "Well, if your mind is made up to that extent, I suppose there is no use n my trying to change it. I would like to see the boat." "I'm sure you would. Stay as long as you like. There will be nothing to do here. Mr. Heath will probably sleep and in the meantime I shall get my sewing done." As Marcia spoke the words, her mind was busy.

So Sylvia had not stirred from the kitchen on the previous afternoon! The theft of the jewels must, then, have taken place during the night. Nevertheless, she was puzzled, for she had no memory of finding anything awry when she came down at unrise to lay the fire. When had the gems been taken, and who had taken them? No wonder she craved solitude to ponder the conundrum! This, however, was not the paramount reason she desired to be Despite the enigma of the jewels lespite the mystery surrounding Stanley Heath, deep in her heart somesinging—singing!

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC-Nations Accountable to God.

I. The Siege of Jerusalem (VV. 1-3). 1. The time (vv. 1, 2). It began on the tenth day of the tenth month of the ninth year or Zedekiah's reign, lastwrestled with those pillow-slips as I ing about eighteen months. The tenth have," was the reply. "Either the pil- month, according to the Jew's calenows have swelled or the cases have dar, corresponds to our December-January, as their calendar began about the middle of March. The reason the exact time is given is that this was to be an event of great importance to the Jews in their exile. In their gloomy exile God directed Ezekiel to utter a parable unto the captives of that day (Ezek. 24).

2. The method (v. 11). Nebuchadpezzar came in person with a large army and encamped against Jerusalem building forts against it round about. It is thought that several walls were built around the city, shutting it in On the tops of these walls forts were built from which missiles of destruc-tion could be hurled by their engines of war against the city. With the city thus shut in, its fall was only a question of time.

3. The famine (v. 3). Geikie says It was speedily followed, as is always the case, with an outbreak of pestilence. Food was well-nigh gone. There had long been no bread. Mother: were at last driven to murder and eat their children. The richest citizens wandered about searching for scraps in the dung hills." Even out side the city the people were starving "There was no bread for the people of the land." It is estimated that one-third of the people of Jerusalem lied of starvation.

II. Zedekiah's Flight and Fate (vy 4-7). "The city was broken up" (v. 4).

The Chaldeans had succeeded in making an opening in the wall so large that they could make their way into the city in spite of all that the Hebrews could do. Resistance was carried on to the bitter end.

2. Zedekinh's flight (v. 4). The king with his men of war fled by night to ward the plain. His object no doubt was to cross the Jordan at Jericho and hide in the mountains east of the Jordan.

3. Zedekiah's fate (vv. 5-7). a. He was overtaken in the plain of Jericho (v. 5). As soon as the Chaldean army discovered the fligh they pursued and captured him.

b. He was brought to the king of Babylon at Riblah (v. 6). Riblah was a town north of Damaseus. It was the king's headquarters from which be directed his armies against Tyre and Jerusalem. Before Nebuchadnezzai Zedekiah was tried as a criminal.

c. His fate. His sons were slain in his sight. His own eyes were put out He was bound with fetters of brass and they carried him to Babylon where a remained a pricepar to the day his death (Jer. 52:11). iii. Jerusalem Destroyed (VV. 8-10)

The dismantling of the city was delayed a month, perhaps awaiting instructions from Nebuchadnezzar who was at Riblah. The work of destruc tion was executed by the officer next in rank to the king.

1. They burnt the house of the Lord (v. 9). This was the sacred temple built by Solomon, with additions and alterations. Before burning it, they nlundered it of all its sacred con

3. Burnt all the houses of Jerusalem (v. 9). The implication is that the common houses were left for the neonle (v. 12).

4. They broke down the walls of erusalem. The aim in this was to render the walls useless as a means of defense.

IV. The Disposition of the Temple urniture and Priests (vv. 13-21). 1. The temple furniture carried to Babylon (vv. 13-17). The pillars of brass and the brazen sea were broken into pieces by the Babylonians and together with the utensils were carried to Bahvlon. 2. Certain officers and priests taken to Riblah (vv. 18-21). These officers and priests and three score men of the land were taken to Riblah, where they were slain by the king of Babylon. The events recorded in Second Kings cover a period of 308 years. God had said, "If thou wilt, then I will"; they had invited disaster by disobedience.

Forgotten Hospital. Complete, Is Found

Forgotten for half a century, a ospital has been found on the seaoast of Denmark, and government officials are considering what to do with it. It was built in 1879 for cholera patients, there having been a cholera epidemic in Europe and a recurrence was expected. Soon after the opening a sailor believed to have had the dread disease, was admitted. He proved to have nothing worse than measles. No other pa. tients came, and the place was closed and forgotten.

A young journalist found the hosnital, with everything complete from heds ready to use, to medicines and salt cellars containing salt put there 54 years ago. The discoverer has suggested that it be converted into vacation resort for poor children of Copenhagen.—Montreal Herald.
