Little Stingers From The Yellow Jacket.

Shifting from the old plea of economy, FDR now insists that the proper way to recovery is through huge spending. Well, by cracky, we are getting the spending, but where is the recovery?

Considering how New Dealers shift and straddle and see saw from one extreme to another, it need not surprise the people to hear Henry Wallace come right out and confess that he was a humbug from the start.

Would it not be interesting to ascertain just how many real Americans would subscribe to the un-American, idiotic theory that Argentine beef or any other foreign product is superior to the American product.

A lot of people wonder why we have to have an expensive President and Congress—why cannot John L. Lewis and his CIO run the government better and more economically—they have to tell FDR what to do anyway.

That new comet that came within fifty million miles of the earth is said to be receding at a rapid rate. Doubtless when it observed we had a New Deal here on earth it decided to get as far from this universe as possible.

The Yellow Jacket continues to shout "America for Americans." We sympathize for the oppressed of the earth, but we are eternally opposed to making this country the international asylum for the oppressed of the whole world.

Measured in terms of the price of wheat, a forty billion dollar national debt, tax revolts, the ten million unemployed, vacant factories and reduced dividends, it looks to The Yellow Jacket, as if the New Deal has sold the country short.

It has been talked 'round about that a European war would put F. D. R. in the White House for a 3d term. If this comes to pass, millions will come to the conclusion that Sherman knew what he was talking about when he said "War Is Hell."

Madness.

Statesville Record.

Summer time is also vacation season. But any joy we experience from this is tempered by the knowledge that this is also the time when our carelessness and recklessness send to the high point for the year the number of deaths and accidents caused by our own foolishness.

No one seems able to explain the peculiar psychology that causes us to take so many chances with our lives and limbs as we set out to enjoy the vacation season. We take chances on the highways, we jump into unknown swimming holes, we drink untested water, we force our bodies to the limit under the heat of the burning sun—in fact, we seem to think it necessary to do everything we shouldn't think of trying at home.

The result is a casualty list that should shame us. We sacrifice life, we endure suffering, we cause hardships all out of proportion to the fun we may experience or the benefits we may derive.

A vacation period is good for everybody. But it ought to be arranged thoughtfully and conducted sanely. Have a care for your own well being, and make certain that there shall be no worry or bereavement for your loved one.

Why The WPA Strike

The "prevailing wage" clause in the new relief bill was the basic cause of the WPA strike.

For example, in New York City the "prevailing wage" scale for bricklayers is $87 for 45 hours of work, or $1.93 per hour.

WPA bricklayers have been paid on that same basis.

Under the terms of the revised law, they will continue to receive the $87, but they will be required to work 130 hours for it. Their hourly pay will, therefore, be 67 cents, instead of $1.93.

The labor unions were behind the strike.

Naturally, they saw in the revised term a death blow to the stranglehold they have exercised upon both skilled and unskilled labor in the more strongly unionized centers.

They were fighting to compel the government to abide by the stipulations of their unions in the private field.

President Roosevelt was strongly against any change in the system of relief pay by which WPA workers were remunerated on the union-pay basis.

But when it came to dealing with the strikers, Mr. Roosevelt was stern and unyielding, for which he is to be commended.—Charlotte Observer.

Forsyth County Fair

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 17—The premium list for the 40th annual Winston-Salem and Forsyth County fair, to be held October 3-4-5-6-7, is off the presses and is being distributed throughout this section of the State. It is expected more interest than ever will be taken in the agricultural and livestock contests this year as the management is laying greater stress on these important departments of the big fair. Committees are now at work arranging the free attractions and other features of fair week and within a short time complete plans will be announced for North Carolina's greatest annual event. Growers of agricultural products and livestock, as well as those interested in home economic displays, who have not received a premium list may secure one without charge by dropping a postcard to the Winston-Salem and Forsyth County Fair Association at Winston-Salem.

The Small Cotton Acreage

The acreage planted to cotton this year is the smallest in 39 years. It is a little less than 25,000,000 acres. The highest during that period was 44,000,000 acres.

The circumstance, however, that the American cotton farmers have less acreage devoted to this crop this year than during any year of the present century does not argue that the production will be the small.

It may be, of course, but it is almost equally as possible for it to be the largest.

If the farmers this year make two bales where they have been making one, it will be a bumper crop.

And this goes to show that acreage reduction in itself is not the cure for the producers of this staple.

If a farmer is wise and energetic, he can reduce the extensivity of his cotton acreage and at the same time by cultivating intensively, make more on less than he formerly made on more lands dedicated to this crop.—Charlotte Observer.

MICKIE SAYS—

Kinston Lawyer Sees Dog Worming Tobacco

Reynold T. Allen, well known lawyer of Kinston declares he saw "Pug," a small bulldog, "working in a tobacco field" with a crew of negro harvesters. Pug functioned as "wormer."

"The dog tried to loaf on the job," Allen said. "His owner, an elderly negro, commanded him to go worm those plants. Pug trotted down a row gnawing off worms. I saw him seize a dozen or more. Finishing up the row, he started up another."

"The darky said Pug was as intelligent as some persons. He used the dog to chase hogs and cattle, carry bundles and fetch his shoes and socks. He said he could worm as many tobacco plants in a day as a boy of 18. The old darky said he had known of one other tobacco worming dog in Lebric county but the other dog had not been as steady as Pug."

Who Is To Drink It?

This is the report of an actual dialogue which took place between two American citizens; one of them a business man spoke frankly, as one does to a good friend:

Well, said the layman with an air of finality, "Prohibition is a failure, and we must get used to the idea of making America 'wet' again."

"But who is to drink the liquor?" queried his friend. "Will you?"

"Why, no," he replied. "you know I am a teetotaler."

"Will your son drink it?"

"No, that shall not be!"

"Would you want it to come back for the sake of your clerks?"

"No, it is my practice to discharge any clerks who drink liquor."

Do you want your customers to drink it?"

"No, I would much rather not; I am sure that those who use strong drink will not buy so much from me or pay their bill so promptly."

Would you want the engineer on your train to use it?"

"No, I admit I don't want to ride on a drunkard's train."

"Ah, then, you want this liquor for the men whom you meet driving cars on the public highway?"

"No, of course not; that is a danger to everybody."

"Well, then, who is to drink this liquor in America, pray tell me?"

"I am not sure that anybody should drink it. I guess we are better off without it."—Christian Science Monitor.

All Counties Eligible For Tenant Purchase Loans

Every county in North Carolina will receive loans to help farm tenants become owners under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, according to information received here by FSA County Supervisor, J. N. Stewart, from the State Director of the Farm Security Administration, Vance E. Swift.

Blanketing the entire state, fifty new counties were designated by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace upon the advice of the State Advisory Committee.

"The FSA has helped 389 tenants in North Carolina to become landowners during the past two years," Mr. Stewart said. "Congress, in its battle to keep the American farmer on his farm, appropriated $40,000,000 recently to be used under the provisions of the Bankhead Jones Farm Tenant Act to help stop the alarming trend from ownership to tenancy."

These loans are made for a 40-year period at three per cent interest. However, the act provides that after five years payment in full can be made at any time. Under a variable payment plan farmers may make large payments in good years with smaller payments due in years of partial crop failure or low prices.

Mr. Stewart said repayment of these loans all over the United States is remarkable with borrowers repaying 135 per cent of maturities. Further information about how to apply for these loans will be given by the County Supervisor who will be at the Court House, Registrar of Deeds office in Mocksville, about noon on Friday of each week.

A three farmer advisory committee will assist the Supervisor, examine the applications, appraise farms applicants wish to buy and recommend tenants for successful farm ownership. Borrowers will have the help and guidance of the Farm Security Administration in building or repairing their homes and in making plans to do better farming.

Although land purchase loans are limited, Mr. Stewart said the regular rehabilitation loans for items such as feed, fertilizer, livestock and farm equipment are available to eligible farmers unable to secure adequate credit elsewhere.

Fifty new counties added to the program are: Alamance, Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Beaufort, Bladen, Brunswick, Buncombe, Burke, Caldwell, Camden, Carteret, Catawba, Chowan, Clay, Cumberland, Dare, Davidson, Davie, Forsyth, Gaston, Graham, Halifax, Harnet, Hyde, Johnston, Lincoln, McDowell, Mitchell, Montgomery, Moore, New Hanover, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Pender, Perquimans, Pitt, Randolph, Rowan, Sampson, Scotland, Stanly, Surry, Swain, Transylvania, Tyrrel, Watauga, Wayne, Wilson and Yadkin.

North Carolina First.

Fifty years ago North Carolina ranked sixth among the states in tobacco production, about 30,000,000 pounds being produced in 1888.

Since then the state has risen to first place in sales of flue-cured leaf tobacco.

Last season 516,000 pounds were harvested from 611 acres and sold for $114,996 213.

North Carolina's leadership in quality production and sales is due to the prominent place it occupies in the production of fine quality leaf, according to W. P. Hedrick, tobacco marketing specialist of the State Department of Agriculture, who comes out in a warning to tobacco growers that they can maintain their position only by properly handling and preparing their crops before it is placed on the sales warehouse floor.—Charlotte Observer.

Ordered To Church.

We doubt if the plan of a certain courts in the land to sentence boys and young men to attend church for a given period of time will ever work out for the permanent benefit of those young people. It has been tried in many parts of the country—and for a time the courts received the plaudits of the press and pulpit for their good intentions—but when it comes to a permanent saving of those young folks the courts will not have a hand in it.

Our attention has been called to a story coming out of Nutter Fort, W. Va., to the effect that the chief of police there has announced that the youngster who gets into trouble in that place will henceforth go to church instead of to jail. The biggest trouble with that situation is that the chief of police there is also pastor of the Baptist Church of the village.

The young minister policeman said "Before I accepted this position I gave it a great deal of thought. I could see why it would not work, for you can work Christianity into any phase of living." His philosophy may be all right, but will it work when it is put into actual practice, is the question.

The young minister went on to say that juvenile delinquency is one of the great problems of the day. "We never have much crime in this little town, so I am going to start applying Christian principles in dealing with the young people who get into trouble and bring them into the church," he went on to say.

That's a fine way of thinking about it, but everyone knows that only the saving grace of Jesus Christ will bring about the change in men's lives and in boys as well. Dr. Ralph Herring never said a truer thing in challenge during his sermon at the First Baptist Church Sunday morning, that men must take Jesus into their hearts and lives, completely, to become new creatures.

We prefer the principal advanced by the brilliant young Winston-Salem pastor to that of the young West Virginian. Blue coats and policemen's bills will not bring about the complete salvation of young boys. There is only one way.

The West Virginian means well, no doubt, but we believe he will go further in the work of redeeming boys and girls if he will hand in that chief's badge, forget about these new wrinkles of sentencing the youth to church, and then proceed to lead them into the way of righteousness by his own life and by holding up ever before them the way of Calvary, the Christ who gave Himself that "we might have life and might have it more abundantly."—Union Republican.

Professors Score New Deal.

Hanover, N. H.—Two professors from large eastern colleges made direct attacks upon the new deal, the two saying President Roosevelt's policies mean dictatorship in the authoritative European sense.

Dr. William S. Myers, professor of politics at Princeton in a prepared address opening the three-day conference at Dartmouth College (promoted by the Branam fund committee for the defense of the constitution), applied the dictatorship term in saying Mr. Roosevelt held "it is for the President to make the policies and for Congress to find methods to carry out his will."

Walter E. Spahr, professor of economics at New York University, contended in another address that representative government in this country in the last seven years had become a "mere nose counting."

TALBOT MUNDY—WNU SERVICE

CHAPTER I

Moses Lafayette O'Leary tossed his soiled pith helmet to a coolie. Sweat streamed down his almost liver-colored face from a mass of black hair that curled with quite un-oriental vigor. He looked like a vaudeville Irish version of a Hindu without a turban. He squinted toward the setting sun. The Kadur River, where it circled the city wall, was blood-red.

"Blood!" he remarked. "If I was superstitious—"

He entered Captain Carl Norwood's tent. Norwood's native servant objected. O'Leary smote the servant. He removed a whiskey bottle, two long tumblers and a siphon from the ice-box at the rear, and came out winking at Sergeant Stoddart, who was shirt-sleeved, sweating, muscular and thirsty.

"Caught you!" said Stoddart.

O'Leary grinned. "All you're fit to catch is hell and malaria. I'm taking pity on you. Here! They sat on cases of surveyors' instruments, facing each other. O'Leary observed:

"As a sergeant of sappers, you're a sap sergeant. You believe you're here to find out why the Kadur River is all silted up. As if nobody knew it. You'll sweat. You'll wade. You'll work. You'll catch diseases; and you'll draw your pay, if you live. Pretty soon now you'll be sent home on a troop-ship to tell the English in the pubs how you'd rule India if you was commander-in-chief. You'd look handsome in a cocked hat."

"Kid yourself you know a lot, don't you?" said Stoddart. "This is good whiskey."

"Sure I know a lot. I'm three men. You're only what's left of one, and white at that. I draw one-third your pay for using three times your brains. You only know what you're told, all tripe and army regulations. Hindsight. Mine's foresight."

"You're like all Eurasians," said Stoddart. "You'd bet on all three horses in a three-horse race, and then set yourself up as a clairvoyant, along of having picked the winner. The secret of why the Kadur River has silted up is like a dog's bone that he buries in sight of half the county. The priests have a diamond mine, and they're critturs of habit. They dig by day. Come nighttime, they've been dumping clay into the river since Noah's Deluge."

"Don't you take the Scriptures in vain," said O'Leary. "Noah was a saint, which is more than you are. Stick to your river survey. Watch out that the dam don't break and learn you what a deluge is. Your job is to work with a dumpy and tape and a couple o' poles, and set down figures to be stuck away in a file. My job's to look for the reasons o' things. I'm good at it."

"I'll admit," said Stoddart, "you could find a drink in the Sahara. What d'you kid yourself you're here to find out?"

"I might risk giving you another drink if you could tell me where the Captain's heading for this minute."

"Easy," said Stoddart. "Pass the bottle. Captain Norwood is on his way to the Residency to report arrival."

O'Leary kept his hand on the bottle. "What else?"

"Nothing else. Regulation routine. In case you don't happen to know it, and you're an ignorant savage, a Resident at the court of a Maharajah is an Army officer who's no good at soldiering. So they put him in the 'political.' As a rule he's no good at that either. He's a sort of ambassador. He attends functions. And he keeps out of trouble whenever he can. They tell me this Resident is a dabster at doing nothing and keeping it wrapped in cellophane."

O'Leary passed the bottle: "Well, you get your drink, but you don't deserve it. I'll bet my month's pay against yours that the Captain's in trouble already. Trouble's what he came here for. Did you ever know Norwood not to get what he's after?"

"There's someone else after something," said Stoddart, staring over the rim of his tumbler, beyond O'Leary. "I'll bet you know who he is. And I'll bet you know what he wants, you're bleeding ferret. What is it?"

"You'd better scram," O'Leary answered. "Secrets and sergeants don't mix good."

Stoddart snorted: "There you go, murdering the King's English, as well as not minding your own business. You picked up the word scam in the movies and you think it's clever. The trouble with you is, Moses, that you try to talk too many languages, but you can't shoot a bee-line in one of them. Talk English."

"I will," said O'Leary. "You scam. That gentleman who's making you so curious is going to have to talk English too, on account o' my dignity."

"Who is he?"

"He's the oil-can."

"Meaning what?" asked Stoddart.

"He looks greasy enough from the heat, but you haven't looked at him, so you didn't mean that."

"All right, I'll educate you. After that, you scam and learn English. I'm keeping him waiting o' purpose."

"On account of your dignity?"

"No. My dignity is like that bottle nose o' yours: it's been punched a time or two, but there it is. It's inseparable and I'll be buried with it. I'm keeping him waiting on account o' his indignity that needs a bit o' taking notice of, so it won't be no secret from him. His name is Noor Mahlam. No, not baa-lamb. Mahlam. He's the oil-can that goes around dripping the lies into the local works to make 'em grind good, and smell rotten and sound scandalous."

"Reporter for the local paper?" asked Stoddart.

"No. He's from the underworld district."

Stoddart grinned. "Seeing he's a friend of yours, I might have guessed that."

"You've drunk your drink, so scam."

"I'd like another drink."

"I wouldn't be good for you, and you know it. What you want is information. Well, I'll tell you. Kadur City is hot."

"You bet it's hot," said Stoddart. "It's a hundred and five this minute, in the shade of my awning. But I suppose you didn't mean that."

"It's tough all right," said O'Leary, "but perhaps Lahore goes it one worse."

"I never was in Lahore," said Stoddart.

"That's why you're still in the Army. Stay away from Lahore, and maybe you'll get home safe to England with a pension. Lahore is full o' women who'd as soon knife you as look at you."

"Yes, I know what you mean. I've heard tell of 'em."

"And those women o' Lahore," said Moses O'Leary, "are about the square root of one-tenth of one per cent as bad as the men. This man Nor Mahlam, who is squinting right now at the back o' my neck, is a jewel in the crown of Kadur's infamy."

"What do you suppose he wants?" asked Stoddart.

"He wants news, you sapper. He wants to know why Captain Catch-em-alive-o Carl Norwood is in Kadur."

"You'll tell him?"

"Bet your boots and medals I'll tell him."

"Will you give him a drink?"

"I will not. For the sake of a harmless innocent like you I don't mind letting down my dignity at times. But I wouldn't steal Captain Norwood's whiskey for that buzzard."

"He doesn't look like a buzzard. He looks fat and good natured."

Moses Lafayette O'Leary took a private swig from the bottle inside Norwood's tent, and then put it away in the chop-box. With his hands in his trouser pockets for the sake of dignity, he strode toward the tree beneath which Noor Mahlam sat wondering how to breach the subject of his meditations. He did not appear to be wondering. His black turban only partly concealed a philosopher's forehead. His silver-brimmed spectacles enhanced the mellow mildness of intelligent dark brown eyes. His nose was fleshy and good humored. His black beard and moustache were well cared for. They concealed something. His mouth was not in evidence. He arose to greet Moses O'Leary and, judging by the movement of his beard, he smiled, but the smile was invisible. At close quarters it was evident that his bulk was mostly fat, not muscle. He fitted flabbily into a bazaar-made black alpaca European suit.

"How d'you do, Noor Mahlam."

"How do you do, sir."

Moses O'Leary straightened himself slightly and drew his right hand from his pocket. He had to live up to being addressed as "sir" by a man of means from the underworld district. But it stirred his alertness. His suspicion, and more than that, was already wide awake. His voice hardened a trifle:

"Sit down, Noor Mahlam. Hot, isn't it? No, I'll stay on my feet. I've business to attend to. Can't spare you more than a minute or two."

"How did you know my name, sir?" asked Noor Mahlam in silky accents that suggested there was something else than silk beneath. It was a quiet agreeable voice, unless one listened to it too attentively.

Moses O'Leary smiled with the pride of the expert who needs no praise to justify his self-esteem:

"It's my job to know things. Check me. You were a lawyer. You served a term in prison in Cawnpore for cheating a client. You were disgraced. And now you're cheating everybody. Am I right?"

"Sir, I'm a public relations counselor. It is a new profession, in India."

"It's a new name for an old game," said O'Leary. "But you've come to the right place. I'm the publicity man o' this surveying party. What do you want?"

Noor Mahlam looked bland and innocent. His eyes were as kind as the milk of the moon, but his mouth remained hidden. He wiped the sweat off his face with a handkerchief, then removed his spectacles and wiped them too, before he answered:

"I want nothing, Mr. O'Leary."

"You're a lucky bloke!"

"I came to enquire if I can be useful. If I could have the ear of your officer—"

"I'm it. I'm both ears. I'm his teacher, his keeper, his nurse, his confidential secret'ry, his father confessor and information man."

"Sir, if you are truly in Captain Norwood's confidence—"

"Try me. Him and me are like the two sides of a rupee. He'd believe me even if I was to tell him you're honest."

"I could reciprocate, Mr. O'Leary. There are many people to whom it is highly important to know why Captain Norwood is in Kadur."

"Have you heard about the survey of the Kadur River?"

"Yes, Mr. O'Leary, but nobody believes that."

"Well, it's the fact. We're here to run a survey of the Kadur River."

"Ah! But of what else than the river? I am commissioned to offer rupees fifty for correct information."

"And me a poor man! If I weren't a good Christian and afraid to take the name of the Lord in vain, I'd be critical o' your conscience. D'you think it's decent to insult my poverty with an offer o' fifty rupees?"

"Sir, I might make it a hundred."

"You'll have to make it twice that before I'll hesitate. Besides, I don't think I need you."

"Mr. O'Leary, I think you underestimate my value. There is nothing that I don't know about the politics of Kadur. I am the trusted informant o' people in very high places."

"High?" said O'Leary. "In the magistrates' courts they call 'em low places. You can go look for another customer. Captain Norwood's decent."

"Ah, but how about you?"

"I know how to take care o' myself. What d'you take me for? A tourist?"

"Sahib, I can tell you actual, authentic facts about the palace."

The word "sahib" was a mistake. It stiffened O'Leary's feeling of superiority. It spurred him to contemptuous offensive tactics:

"I don't believe you. What's new at the palace?"

AROUND THE HOUSE

Quick Baking.—Fruit and berry pies with lattice-style tops require less baking time than the regular two-crust pies.

Keep Oils Cool.—Store oils, such as olive or vegetable, in the refrigerator. They are likely to become rancid when opened unless they are kept chilled.

Use for Leftovers.—Leftover rice or macaroni mixed with cooked meat makes a good filling for green peppers or tomatoes. The latter need to be cooked only 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

To Inform You.—Read the labels on canned foods. Many tell the number of slices contained in the can. Others give additional useful information about the contents.

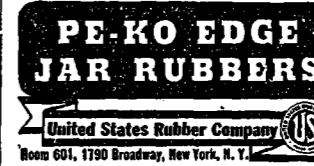

Stains on Ash Trays.—To remove cigarette stains from brass ash trays, rub the trays with a paste of salt and vinegar. Then wash them well in hot water and soap suds.

Washing Knitted Goods.—When laundering sweaters or knitted suits be careful not to stretch them while wet or they will be too large when dried. Before washing, lay the garment on some light-colored paper and trace about it with a pencil. When it has been rinsed fit the garment into the tracing and lay paper and garment on a Turkish towel to dry. Drying may require two days, but the fitting will be correct.

Care of Bread Box.—Summer calls for diligent cleaning and airing of bread and cookie boxes, pantry and cupboard shelves and refrigerators. Since bread molds easily in the summer, it is best to buy just enough for each day's needs.

EAST AND WEST

Gay and Interesting Designs for Cushions

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

"DEAR MRS SPEARS: I like to make interesting cushions—in summer bright cotton covered ones and silk covers in the winter. The cost is nothing as I find that after the waists of dresses are worn out, there are still parts of the skirts that are good enough to give long wear when made into these covers. J. B."

Thanks, Mrs. J. B., for that suggestion and here are two covers that you might like to try. To make the contrasting edge for the round one, stitch two-inch strips together in points as at A, trim as at B clipping between the points then turn right side out. Pull out smoothly and press, then gather as at C. Stitch to one section of the cover as at D, then stitch the two sections together leaving an opening for the cushion.

To make a pattern for a modernistic patchwork cover, cut a rectangle of paper, then divide it into sections as shown. Use these sections as patterns to cut the fabric adding a seam allowance as at F.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

"Public office is a private snap." Right So said the old Hickory Press and Carolinian 50 years ago. The saying, though old, still holds good.

Everybody should be getting ready to come to the big Masonic picnic on Thursday of next week. Help us to make this the biggest and best picnic ever held in Davie county.

Commissioner A. I. Maxwell will be a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of North Carolina in 1940, says the daily press reports. We wonder how Mr. Maxwell feels about the infamous three per cent sales tax and the prohibition question?

It is said that there were more arrests made and drinking around and in Mocksville over a recent week-end, than had occurred here in many years. We have plenty of officers, together a number of wine and beer establishments. Mocksville has had a mighty good reputation for soberness and good behavior for many years, and we hope that our officers will see that the laws are enforced. We cannot afford for our town to lose its good name.

Governor Clyde Hoey is a great prohibitionist, despite the fact that he kept very quiet about this great question while the legislature was in session last winter. It hasn't been many months since Governor Hoey paroled Chris Moschoors, notorious Asheville trafficke rin illicit booze, who led a charmed life for years but was finally caught, convicted and sentenced to prison for 18 months. After serving only six months our prohibition governor granted him a parole. We learned this information from an Asheville daily paper, and presume that it is true. How the mighty have fallen.

The 61st annual Masonic picnic will be held in this city at Clement Grove, on Thursday, Aug. 10th. This bids fair to be one of the biggest and best picnics ever held in Davie county. Governor Clyde Hoey will deliver the annual address, and it is needless to say that those present will hear a fine speech. There are plenty of country hams, chickens, all kinds of fine pickles, fruits and other good things in Davie to be used in preparing the big picnic dinner, which is always enjoyed by hundreds of Masons and their friends. The Lee riding devices will be here to furnish amusement for the young people, and a class from the Oxford Masonic Home will be present to render worth-while programs. For the past 40 years The Record has spared neither time nor expense in boosting these annual picnics and home-comings. They mean much to the fatherless and motherless children at Oxford, and deserve the support of all our people. The Record has grown up with these picnics and we feel that we are indeed helping a worthy cause in asking the support and co-operation of all the people, not only in Davie, but in all surrounding counties to spend one day in Mocksville and lend their support to this noble cause. All former Davie citizens who are living in other states, are given a cordial invitation to return to the old home county for this one big day, Thursday, Aug. 10th.

A. C. Wood.

A. C. Wood, 86, of Advance, one of Davie county's oldest and best known citizens, died Saturday night in a Winston-Salem hospital. Funeral services were held at Advance Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and the body laid to rest in the church cemetery. There are no immediate survivors.

We Visit The Mountains

An editor seldom gets away from his shop more than one day at a time, but early on Friday morning, July 21st, this scribe, together with his wife and two daughters, climbed into their ancient Chevrolet and headed for the mountains. We left in the rain, and ran through several showers before reaching Marion, which was our first stop, where we had breakfast. When we reached Ridgecrest the sun was shining and the remainder of the day was fair and warm.

Our next stop was at Asheville, where we spent a short while. As usual, the highway between Asheville and Marshall was under repair, and we had to detour via Weaverville and Mars Hill. This road is not so bad, but fences are needed along the winding mountain roads between Mars Hill and Marshall. Our next stop was at Hot Springs. We had visited this town before but this was our first visit to the spring, which is only a short distance off the highway. If you think the water from this hot spring isn't warm just put your hand or foot in and find out. We left Hot Springs about noon and were soon passing through Newport, a bustling town. Our next stop was at Sevierville, Tenn., where we arrived about 3 o'clock. We spent the night in this town, which nestles between the Pigeon rivers at the foot of the Great Smoky Mountains. It is about 25 miles to Newfound Gap and Clingman's Dome, which have an elevation of more than 6,000 feet above sea level. The editor and wife and son, moved from Sevierville to this town 32 years ago. While living there we worked on Montgomery's Vindicator and also published The Horne, a weekly paper. The old town has grown wonderfully in the past 32 years. There are many modern homes, good public buildings, theatre, hotel, good streets, water system, electric lights, etc. Most of our old friends have passed to the great beyond. Among the few left were Editors Roy Montgomery and H. O. Eckels, Assistant Attorney General George Allen, John B. Waters, Victor Stafford, Mrs. Rogers and sister, Miss Serena Bowers and a few others.

We left Sevierville on Saturday morning shortly before noon, passing through Newport, Greenville, Jonesboro, Johnson City and Elizabethton. These are all progressive towns, ranging from 1,000 to 30,000. A short while was spent in Greenville and Johnson City. We arrived in Mountain City about 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon. This is one of the prettiest little towns in East Tennessee. It is situated in the heart of the hills, with Doe Mountain towering over it on the south. We spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. M. Wagner, who showed us every kindness. On Sunday we, with Mr. and Mrs. Wagner, visited the thriving little town of Damascus, Va., which is situated on Laurel River, in the midst of wonderful mountain scenery. Near this town is Backbone Rock, where thousands of people visit annually. The scenery is unsurpassed. A tunnel, large enough for cars to go through has been blasted in this mammoth rock, which is 85 feet high and at least a hundred feet long, with plenty of room on top for sight-seers. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lanier and family and Clarence Turrentine, of Mocksville, are living in Damascus.

We visited Silver Lake, which is said to be bottomless, which is about ten miles from Damascus. While in Mountain City Sunday, we attended Sunday school at the Baptist church, morning services at the "Republican" Methodist church and evening services at the "Democratic" Methodist church. We met Editor Berry, of the Johnson County News, and his foreman, Mr. Ward. They are issuing a fine little weekly newspaper. The citizens should stand behind this live weekly paper.

We left Mountain City shortly before noon, passing through Trade, Tenn., Boone, North Wilkesboro and Statesville, arriving home at 5

Those wishing to take a short vacation through the mountains of Western Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia, couldn't find a more beautiful route to travel, or finer people with which to mingle. We are hoping to visit this section again. We almost forgot to mention the fact that blackberries are just beginning to get ripe around Mountain City.

Winston-Salem gets the largest amount, $27,000, while West Jefferson gets the smallest amount $350. Mocksville gets $1,035, Yadkinville $400; Wilkesboro $520. Just what part of our town will get the improvement we can't say.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Within the exploits of men of achievement may—and often does—lie the favoring element of chance, frequently recognizable. But often, too, it is hidden in a vague background of contributory factors.

In Jascha Heifetz's agreement to appear in a forthcoming motion picture, Sarguel Goldwyn's powers of persuasion has long excite the envy of his rivals and the admiration of his friends. The eminent violinist's personal aversion to the screen as a medium of expression has long endured in the face of repeated offers. Mistrust of sound track reproduction of the notes of his beloved violin was joined with his repugnance to the elemental music he believed he would be called upon to play and, above all, was his objection to strutting the screen as an actor. So Goldwyn's success in overcoming the great musician's reluctance is now being proclaimed.

Yet, lying back of Heifetz's name on the dotted line of a Hollywood contract are various impponderable factors. His wife, for instance, who was Florence Vidor of screen fame, may have been the influence behind his first appearance on any stage in a histrionic capacity. This was last spring when he took the role of a hill-billy fiddler in the annual show of a sophisticated midtown club, of which he is a member. Garbed in overalls, cotton shirt and red wig topped by a broken down straw hat he played "Turkey in the Straw," violin upon his knees, as the time-honored jig tune has never before been played. And for an encore there was "Danny Boy."

So who can say that the siren voice of Sam Goldwyn was not merely the fanning of a flame lighted when, with gusto and amid wild acclaim, he sawed a violin lying across his knee?

Born in Vilna in 1901, Heifetz's American debut came in October, 1917. An American citizen now, he lives in Redding, Conn.

Sam Goldwyn it was who lured Maxine Elliot to the screen back in 1917 and she was but a predecessor to such exalted artists as Geraldine Farrar.

PAUL ROBESON'S magnificent bass voice will have adequate opportunity for expression in his portrayal of the title role of Sam Byrd's forthcoming production of a play adapted by the author from Roark Bradford's John Henry stories. There will be incidental music by Jacques Wolfe.

One often marvels at events, apparently casual at time of occurrence, which are found significantly to have affected human lives and so shaped destinies. When Paul was a senior at Rutgers, where he had won high scholastic honors and gained for himself a national reputation as a football end, he was looking toward the cloth as a profession. His father was a clergyman in a small community in New Jersey and, from boyhood, Robeson's idea had been to follow in the paternal steps.

Not long before graduation, the elder Robeson died and among the funeral arrangements was a plan to have the presiding bishop of the church conduct the obsequies. Accordingly, the prelate came to the scene of the funeral from his home in a village in the southern part of the state and after the services he addressed the assembled mourners substantially as follows:

"Brothers and sisters, I had to borrow the money to come to this scene of sorrow and unless you all contribute to defray my journey home, I am afraid I shall have to walk."

Whereupon, of course, the necessary traveling fund was raised. After a while the bereaved son met the late Foster Sanford who was his football coach, his guide, mentor and friend.

"You are still headed for the ministry?" Sanford asked.

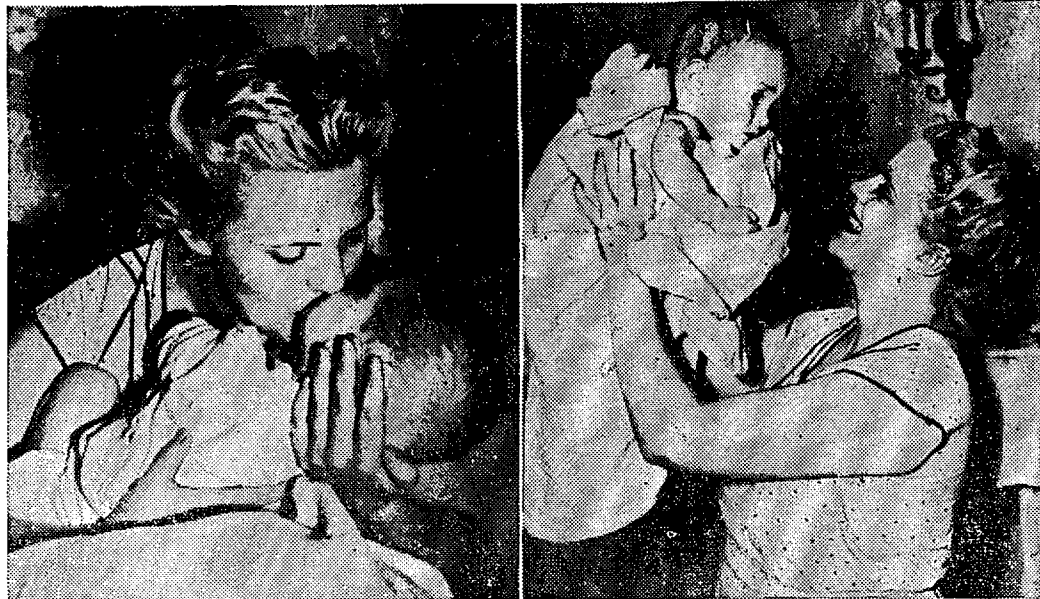

"Yes sir," was the reply. "I still am, sir."

"The highest you can ever get to be in your church is a bishop, isn't it?" Sanford asked and when Robeson said that was true, the coach fixed him with his compelling blue eyes. "And so you are even to enter a profession where, going as a bishop, you will have to borrow money to get from north Jersey to south Jersey."

That was all that was said. But next day Robeson came to his friend, confiding his intention to plump for the law and for voice.

Mother's 'Breath of Life' Saves Unconscious Infant

Quick thinking saved a tiny life recently when nine-month old Gary Bucholz was found unconscious in his bathtub by his mother, Mrs. Marie Bucholz, 20, of Chicago. The horror-stricken mother hurriedly picked up the baby and breathed into its mouth, as shown at the left. Recovery rewarded her quick action, and policemen, firemen and a doctor arriving at the home were confronted with this happy ending.

ELIJAH: A LIFE OF COURAGE

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 18:30-39. GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is far from the wicked; but he heareth the prayer of the righteous.—Proverbs 15:29.

"Let courage rise with danger." Such is the plea of Webb's great hymn, "Stand Up for Jesus." Christianity in our day calls for courageous men and women.

Courage should be distinguished from such related things as bravery, valor, or bravado. Bravado is an affectation of a reckless bravery which surely has no place in Christian life and activity. Valor is associated with daring and vigorous action, for example, in battle. To be brave means to meet a challenge with confidence and resolution. To be courageous means to steadily meet perils of which one is deeply conscious, doing so because of the call of duty. Courage holds a deeper and nobler meaning than the other words, carrying with it the idea of moral strength and, in the case of the Christian, faith in God as one devoted to His cause.

Elijah was courageous, and he stands before our Christian youth today as an example of that godly courage which

I. Works in the Open (v. 30). Men whose deeds are evil love the darkness rather than the light. God does not work in the dark. All of His workings are in the open sunlight. Every one is welcome to "come near" and see what is done. Elijah knew God and he acted like God's man. What a tragedy it is that not all of God's servants have followed his example. If we had the open and above-board dealings of Elijah in the affairs of our churches, we might see more of the fire and power of his ministry. Certain it is that the administration of church affairs which has to be carried out in hidden corners by whispered conversations and by secret manipulations behind the scenes, is not God's work at all, it is the work of man.

II. Asks No Favors (vv. 33-35). Elijah rebuilt the altar himself. He asked no help of the unbelieving prophets of Baal or of apostate Israel. How old-fashioned he seems in this day when so much stress is laid on a false unity of the faiths, and there is so much solicitation and acceptance by the Church of the help of unbelievers in financing the supposed work of God. Note also that Elijah invited his enemies to make the answer to his prayer more difficult by pouring water on the sacrifice. This was not an act of bravado, it was for the purpose of demonstrating that there was no fraud. He was willing that the enemies of the truth should make the demonstration more difficult if that would be to God's glory. There is a delightful old-fashioned flavor about that act, too, in these days when men are frequently willing to compromise with unbelief and even with sin in order that the work of the Church may be carried on without too much difficulty. Here again we have an explanation of the lack of spiritual power in our times.

III. Honors God, Not Man (vv. 30-32, 36-37). A man of bravery wants recognition for himself, while the courageous man asks only that the cause for which he fights shall be successful. Elijah had long since demonstrated that he was absolutely fearless, and sought no favor or glory (read the entire story). Now in the tenseness of this moment, he carefully rebuilds the altar of the true God (v. 30), makes it a testimony of unity to a divided Israel (v. 31), and he does it all in the name of the Lord (v. 32).

His prayer (vv. 36, 37) is a profoundly simple expression of a complete faith in the true God and His power on the part of a man who recognized himself as being only the divine servant. He made no plea that God would vindicate him or his ministry, but he did plead that the name of the Lord should be honored in the midst of an unbelieving people.

IV. Brings Eternal Results (vv. 38, 39). "The fire of the Lord fell." The lying prophets of heathendom were routed. Many recognized Jehovah as the true God. While Israel did not long remember the lesson learned here, the story has continued as a testimony that will strengthen the people of God as long as time continues.

In God's Treasury Treat the weakest and the worst with reverence, for, like yourself, they are the temples of the living God.

Abides Forever The world passes away and the lust of it, but he that doeth the will of God abides forever.—1 John 2, 17.

Attractive Holiness The holiness of Christ did not awe men away from Him, nor repel them. It inspired them with hope.

There's Even A Wheat Field At The World's Fair

What is probably the costliest land ever used for growing wheat is the one-third acre "wheat field" of the Continental Baking Company at the New York World's Fair 1939. The field, in the heart of the Fair grounds, is located significantly at the intersection of the "Avenue of Pioneers" and "Agriculture Row," not far from the famed theme symbols, the Trylon and Perisphere.

The wheat was planted late last September under the direction of the New York State College of Agriculture of Cornell University. Grover A. Whalen, president of the Fair Corporation, and M. Lee Marshall, president of the baking company, presided at the dedication ceremonies.

Approved grain-growing methods were followed throughout The grain was drilled, with complete fertilizer applied at seeding time, and was top-dressed recently with Arcadian nitrate of soda. This is the familiar American nitrate produced at Hopewell, Virginia. The crop, which will be harvested in midsummer, is creating much interest on the part of visitors from the South and other sections of the country.

What is probably the most beautiful land ever seen for growing wheat is the one-half acre "wheat field" of the Connecticut Sinking Company at the New York World's Fair 1939. The field is the heart of the Fair grounds, is located centrally at the intersection of the "Avenue of Planners" and "Avenue of the Future," not far from the Grand Canal, the "Tribune" and "Parade" grounds.

What Are You Doing About It?

Last week we were up in Washington, D. C., and had a conversation with a certain gentleman up there which proved to be rather interesting.

We were talking about expenditures of government, including the cost of relief, WPA and other items.

"I was reared in Pennsylvania," he told us, "and as a boy I remember five or six fellows in our town who never had any desire for work. They spent most of their time hanging around pool-rooms. Sometimes they'd get a temporary job, but they would grow weary of it and would go back to loafing again.

"Recently I went up home on a brief vacation. I saw some of those same fellows. They are now grown men, but they're still hanging a round the pool-halls. There's only one difference: they're on relief, and you might say that they are getting paid for loafing. And the folks who are having to foot the bill are you and I, and all others who work."

There is nothing particularly new about that, and the chances are that you have heard the same thing before.

Of course, there are two sides to the picture. On our relief rolls to day there are many thousands of worthy individuals: people who, because of hard luck or misfortune, have been unable to get anything to do. And permit us to say, with reference to that class of individuals that they are worthy of relief and should be given assistance. We're for them.

All of us know, however, that there are many people who are on relief and have no business being there. There are many people holding down WPA jobs who have relatives to look after them but who find it more convenient to let the government undertake that job. There are others who, because of some local political pull and ability to get out the votes, have been allowed to get on the relief rolls as a reward for their services. They aren't entitled to assistance and don't deserve to get it. They are keeping other and more worth folks from getting help.

The situation, instead of showing signs of improvement, appears to be growing steadily worse.

What are we you going to do about it?

"What can I do," may be your reply to that query. "I agree with everything you have said, but there's nothing I can do."

And that seems to be the general attitude of the average throughout the country. All are agreed that the government is spending many millions of dollars for relief that ought not to be spent. But what can be done about it?

Here's a suggestion:

One of the reasons that there are are so many people getting help from the government is because nobody knows anything about it. Right now, we'd be willing to wager that you don't know one-third of the people in your own community who are getting this form of assistance. Most of us don't know a soul.

In various cities and towns throughout the country there are being formed organizations to study tax problems, efficiency in local government and other things of that kind. There's one of them in Raleigh and there probably are several others in the State. If organizations of this type would make a study of the relief rolls and the WPA rolls and stir up a fuss about those individuals who have no right to receive aid from the government,

More Of The Same Thing.

There have been so many losses sustained by the Federal government in its loans to business already that Jesse Jones, head man of the RFC which has one of the government's agencies in this field, is "a shamed to tell" a Senate investigating committee.

Nevertheless, we are assured that the new lending spending measure which the White House has sent over for Congress to sign on the dotted line, a measure designed to dump somewhere between three and four billions more in loans to business for recovery purposes, will be accepted by the law makers and authorized.

Usually, when a creditor finds that an individual to whom money has been loaned, isn't paying it back, he quits such a customer.

But Uncle Sam still plays Santa Claus with all alike.—Charlotte Observer.

Praying The Politician Cant Stand.

A Congregational Church minister of Madison, Wisconsin, will make no more prayers as chaplain of the Legislature of that state.

It all comes about because of the sort of prayer he made recently in conveying that assembly.

It was this short succinct, intelligent, earnest:

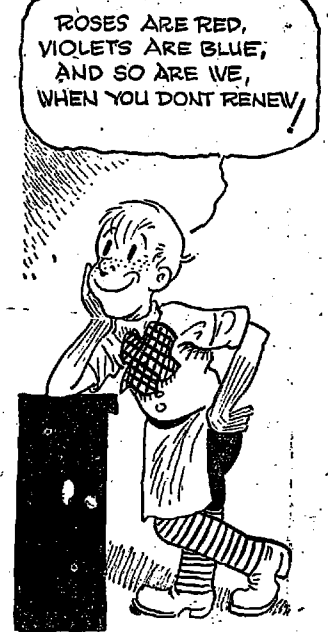

We invoke etoy wrath upon reprobate men who come to this city to corrupt public official, buy and sell legislation, a traffic in the honor of government.

We invoke thy wrath upon little men in large places who stoop to canny shrewdness to thwart the people's will and reduce the business of public affairs to mistrust and contempt.

We pray thy blessing upon this commonwealth which is thy home and upon those of its chosen officials who seek to establish justice, in-cree right and uphold the honor of the state. Give thou the light of wisdom, the mighty of righteousness to rule this chamber today.

Naturally, the politicians stand up under such praying as that.—Charlotte Observer.

MICKIE SAYS—

Taft Scores New Deal.

Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, arguing the Republican point of view in a discussion of the political outlook of the nation, asserted in an address at Charlottesville, Va., that the present lending program of the present lending program of the administration is "even more dangerous than the present program."

Rep T. V. Smith, Democrat of Illinois, sharing the platform with Senator Taft in the final program of the two-weeks institute of public affairs at the University of Virginia praised the New Deal for its efforts looking toward the transformation of "the mercenary motivation of industrialism into a philosophy of the common good."

Senator Taft, who has been engaging Representative Smith in a series of debates over the radio, said prosperity could be restored, but not "by government regulation of agriculture and commerce and industry." He argued that present laws need modification, and "above all, the laws must be administered with the constant effort to encourage the development of private industry."

The lending program, he contended, is "more dangerous than the spending program, for it moves the spending entirely from the control of the appropriations committees of House and Senate, which even in these dangerous days retain a certain hardboiled attitude."

He described the Barkley bill as "merely a smoke screen for billions of uncontrolled federal spending."

A Real Man

A real man never talks about what the world owes him, the happiness he deserves, the chance he ought to have, and all that. All that he claims is the right to live and play the man.

A real man is just as honest alone in the dark, in his own room, as he is in public. A real man does not want pulls, tips and favors. He wants work and honest wages.

A real man is loyal to his friends and guards their reputation as his own.

A real man is dependable. His simple word is as good as his Bible Oath.

A real man does not want something for nothing, so the "get-rich-quick" people cannot use him.

A real man never hunts danger, and never dodges it when he should meet it.

A real man is—well, he is an honest man, the finest, best noblest, most refreshing thing to be found on all the green earth—unless it is a real woman.—Arthur unkwon.

D. W. Barnes Passes.

D. W. Barnes, 87, father of Mrs. B. P. Garrett, of Center, native of Davidson county, who died at his home on Route 5, Lexington, on Thursday morning, July 27, at 11 o'clock, after an illness of five weeks, was buried in Chestnut Hill cemetery Friday afternoon, July 28.

The funeral services took place at the home at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Mr. Teague, of Smith Grove, assisted by Rev. Mr. Davis of Enon, after which the funeral party left immediately for the cemetery.

Surviving Mr. Barnes are the following sons and daughters: W. F. Barnes, Salisbury, R. 1; O. L. Barnes, Lexington, R. 3; R. T. Barnes, Linwood, R. 1; Mrs. R. L. Buie, of Lexington, R. 5; Mrs. B. P. Garrett, Mocksville, R. 1; Mrs. Ernest Carter, Lexington, R. 5. Also two sisters, Mrs. Jinny Hilliard, of Davidson county, and Mrs. Cyuthia Sharp, of Lexington; also 27 grandchildren and 32 great grandchildren.

Mr. Barnes was a well known farmer of Davidson County and was loved by all who knew him. He has left many friends to mourn his death.

The WPA Shake-Up.

State WPA Administrator C. G. McGinniss announces a shake-up of North Carolina relief rolls which will result in the discharge of virtually all persons who have been employed continuously for the last eighteen months. It is estimated that this will effect 8,500 relievers, or one out of every five and the purging is to start immediately.

Only 3.4 per cent of the younger workers, 18 and 19 years of age, have been employed continuously for eighteen months, while 31.67 per cent of those who are 55 to 64 years are affected. That means that the shake up will work a hardship on those least able to find work in private industry, and there is added tragedy in the fact the discharge will apply to those actually working with their hands, for by some curious quirk of reasoning the shake up does not involve those charge with administrative work, although some of these may be reached through the budget reduction which will cut some of them from the payroll.

Workers who for eighteen months have been cashing their government pay check will find it mighty hard to get along without it. Some of them probably had figured that they were a permanent fixture and may feel resentful, but those who foot the bill will consider that here is a start toward discouraging the notion that the government is a permanent Santa Claus; that noses should be turned in the direction of private industry, and that if it works a hardship it falls on those who for eighteen months have been given a lift, and who during that time haven't tried very hard to find a niche somewhere else.

When this rule is applied it will hit many poor husbands who have been taking it easy; likewise it will strike at the family budget of other husbands who have been gainfully employed, but whose wives have also been turning in a substantial sum provided by Uncle Sam. Most of the latter, however, are in the administrative brackets and won't be reached.—Statesville Daily.

Miss Boger Entertains.

Miss Ruth Boger, teacher of the Junior Class of Union Chapel church, entertained her pupils at a delightful party, Saturday evening July 29th, at her home on Route 2.

After many games were played, Miss Boger, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Grady Boger and Ella Mae and Nora Boger and Edna Hendricks served refreshments to the following members:

Frances and Dorothy Hutchens, Willie Mae and Mary Frances Jordan, Louise Woodward, Hazel, Garnett and Elizabeth Boger, Johnny and Bailey Haneline, Clarence Elam, Jr., John and Clyde Holman, Gilmer and Lorence Boger.

Twas His Mother

The able editor of the Newport Plain Talk is a close observer of what's being done and said. In a recent editorial this is what he mentioned:

While a good many people no doubt read the daily column of Eleanor Roosevelt in the newspapers, it became evident the other evening that all members of the Roosevelt household are not interested in what the lady he to say from day to day.

In a radio program program by Prof. Quiz the other evening one of the Roosevelt boys was guest artist. A quotation from Mrs. Roosevelt's column was read and he was asked to name the person who made the statement. The young fellow just admitted that he didn't know who would say such a thing; and his face probably turned red when the Professor announced that it was Mrs. Roosevelt.

Little Cotton Crop Too Much

It looks as if the South is not going to make much of a cotton crop this year from the standpoint of volume.

It has planted the lowest number of acres in this crop in 39 years at d, in addition to that factor, the growing conditions in some of the major cotton producing states have not been conducive to a large yield.

The prospect is at this date, for a crop of around 11,000,000 bales which ordinarily, would be regarded as small enough to guarantee extraordinarily high prices.

But it so comes about that with the loss of our foreign and the decreased consumption of cotton in this country, plus the tremendous carry-over from previous years now largely held in warehouses and practically owned by the Federal Government, almost any production at all is too much to give the producers much hope.

The south has always had this problem of cotton on its economic hands but it is doubtful if there has ever been a time when it was as complicated and as difficult of intelligent and practical solution as it is today.

Our First Identity

William T. Ellis.

"I want to be nothing else more than I am a Christian," said a deep observer of life. "Before I have an identity as a merchant or as a Republican or as a rich man, I hope to be known as a disciple of Jesus Christ; so that whenever my name is mentioned I will instinctively be thought of as a Christian. That, after all, is the one important fact concerning me.

It may be a slight twisting of the primary meaning of the passage, but I like to think that the disciples were first called Christians at Antioch—that is, before they were considered as Jews or Greeks or Macedonians or Persians.

President Roosevelt went fishing on Sunday. Some of the daily papers reported that he caught a marlin that weighed 70 pounds, while others papers said he didn't catch a fish.

The Record office will be closed all day Thursday. If the editor is alive and the Lord willing, he will be on the picnic grounds all day looking for his "enemies" with a receipt book in one hand and the other ready to gather in frog skins or cart wheels.

Thursday is the big Masonic picnic, the day hundreds of old people as well as young people look forward to from one year to the next. It is needless to say that thousands of people will be here from many sections of the country for this big annual event.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—One day, a long time ago, a 17-year-old girl, Janet Lord, was walking along Hanover street in Boston, a place where you meet seafaring men from all ports of the civilized world. Attracted by a hymn tune, she stopped before a building, listened to the music of a melodeon, the lusty chorus of men's voices, and, at length, drawn by a power greater than her girlish timidity, she mounted the steps and so entered the headquarters of the Boston Seamen's Friends society. Thus destiny took hold of Janet's life and showed her the way to go.

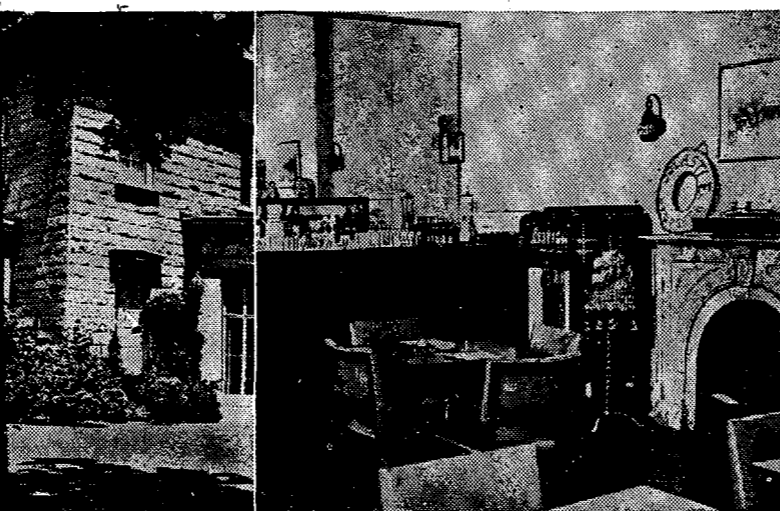

Now Janet Roper, house mother of the Seamen's Church Institute on South street, New York, is observing the fiftieth anniversary of her conversion.

Twins—Five Sets of 'Em—Amaze New Yorkers

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fifield of East Thompson, Conn., shown with 11 of their 13 children, including five sets of twins, as they lunched in a New York restaurant. New Yorkers were as much amazed at the sheer number of the children as the children were of the city's skyscrapers. The youngest set of twins, Franklin Delano and Eleanor Roosevelt, are only two years old. The oldest child, Marguerite, 13, is seated next to her mother at the head of the table. Two of the children including an infant son, are not shown.

'Heaven' Can Wait—If Newport Has Its Way

Mrs. Kaufman, widow of the multi-millionaire Joseph Kaufman, was recently refused a liquor license when she planned on converting her mansion into an exclusive dinner and fireworks started. Mrs. Kaufman created a furore in the ultra-fashionable resort by "Father" Divine, Negro cult leader, as a "heaven" for his followers. The Negro cult leader, and is completing plans for establishing the new "heaven." Left: The Kaufman mansion. Right: The bar for which Mrs. Kaufman was refused a liquor license.

per met and subsequently married a Congregational clergyman, engaged in similar service. They worked together in Gloucester, in Canada and in Oregon until her husband's death in 1915, when she came to the Seamen's institute on South street. She has no illusions about sailormen, holding them to be no better and no worse than other men. Her work, and her three daughters, living with her in Brooklyn, comprise her enthusiasms.

JUDGE MANLEY O. HUDSON of the Permanent Court of International Peace at The Hague, recently arrived here, is characteristically spending his vacation at Cambridge, Mass., looking into things of international juridical import. He was once Bemis professor of international law at Harvard, a post he took, somewhat in discouragement, when his career was diverted by the refusal in 1928 of the United States to join the League of Nations.

The world's leading authority on all questions pertaining to comity among nations, this world to him is no abstract thing, no matter of geographical division. Human affairs and relationships are his passion. A Missourian—he was born in St. Peters in 1836—he reverses an attributed reaction of citizens of his commonwealth in that far from asking to be shown, he is at all times willing, nay eager, to demonstrate.

Genial, incurably optimistic, mentally brilliant, he enjoys nothing so much as to stand at bay in intellectual combat, indulging with D'Artagnan's ardor in sword-play, in thrust and riposte, until his opponents are either convinced or, at any rate, silenced. He will plunge into contest, or, if no struggle is waging, he is very likely to start one.

Now 62 years old, Judge Hudson entered the League of Nations secretariat with its origin in 1919, and ever since he has been attached to it. Two years earlier, he was with the inquiry and peace terms commission established by the state department and later, in Paris, was a member of the international law division of the committee to negotiate peace. Work then begun led directly to the World court bench when the league assembly gave him the second highest vote—48 out of 50—ever received by a candidate.

William Sewell college, Liberty, Mo., is his alma mater and Harvard, where he took post-graduate courses; his alter mater.

Connett, in his homemade sub, has made approximately 400 dives, once crossing Lake Michigan under water from Chicago to Michigan City, Ind., a distance of 37 miles. The sub is powered by two sets of batteries and has all the usual submarine equipment.

Police Close 'Human Slave Market'

Photographers had to be alert to get this view of America's most novel matchmaking establishment, "The Human Slave Market," for immediately after bids got under way, Fallsades, N. J., police stepped in and sent six people to jail on the charge of maintaining a nuisance. Here the auctioneer is asking for bids on a young man, an elderly gentleman and a young girl. The idea of the "market" was to offer marriageable subjects on the block.

Masquerade Revealed

Involved in a minor traffic mixup, James W. Phipps was taken to a Pasadena, Calif., police station. There a sergeant penetrated the disguise and revealed "him" as a woman. Twice married, Phipps is the present "husband" of Mrs. Mabel Phipps, 50. For 23 years Minerva Phipps masqueraded as a man. "His" first wife died in 1928.

ELISHA: A LIFE OF HELPFULNESS

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 5:1-10. 14. GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye kind one to another.—Ephesians 4:32.

"Loving kindness and tender mercies" (Ps. 103:4) are among the glorious attributes of our God, and consequently characteristic of those who love and serve Him. The world has all but forgotten these virtues, for in its brutal determination to achieve results there is only an outward veneer of courtesy and consideration which extends itself primarily to those from whom some advantage may be obtained or who are highly regarded because of their wealth or position. The poor and needy, the aged and afflicted are quickly brushed aside as unfortunate hindrances in the path of progress.

In all times God's people have been those most considerate of others. It is they who have given time and effort and means to help those in need. The life of Elisha is well characterized as a life of helpfulness. It is surprising to find how many of his miracles were for the purpose of helping others. God's servants are called to be leaders and to be preachers, but they are nonetheless called to carry on a life of helpful service. Elisha's experience with Naaman suggests how we may exercise such a ministry. Without seeking to designate verses in the text, shall we observe that we must

I. Find the One in Need.
It is not always that the one with the deepest need makes himself known. In fact, it is commonly true that those who have the greatest need and are possibly the most worthy of help keep their sorrows to themselves. Certainly it is true that those afflicted with the leprosy of sin do not often come to church. We must go out and seek them and bring them in.

One of the weaknesses of many churches today is that they go through their regular services, which may include preaching the gospel, and then they lament the fact that sinners do not come to the services to hear and be saved. Let us be reminded that it is our business to go out into the highways and the byways to find those in need. Naaman's experience illustrates how the simple word of a little slave girl was instrumental in bringing the leper in touch with the man of God. Had she failed in her responsibility, the prophet would have missed his opportunity to minister. Even the humblest believer has his important work, seeking out the lost and needy, and may thus be the means of bringing about great blessing.

II. Locate and Diagnose the Condition.
Naaman knew that he had leprosy, but he did not know that he had a blight of soul called pride. The prophet, acting under the guidance and control of God, struck right at the heart of things when he directed Naaman to crush his pride and to show his faith by obeying God's command to wash seven times in the Jordan.

The story has many important applications. Let us be sure that in our efforts to help people physically or socially, we get through to their real need, the need of Christ. Let us also be careful not to modify or change God's requirement. There is one way of salvation—through faith in Christ; there is no other remedy for sin. A man "must be born again" or "he cannot enter the kingdom of God" (see John 3:3-7). If men are too proud to get that way, they cannot be saved. Observe also that there was no respect of persons on the part of Elisha. Naaman was a great and distinguished man, ready to bestow rich gifts, but the man of God had no interest in those things. He wanted only to give God's message.

III. Apply the Remedy.
One would be quick to condemn the trained physician who, having found his patient and having given his attention to his need, made a careful and accurate diagnosis and then sent him away without applying the cure which was in his possession. As the servants of Christ the great Physician, engaged in the cure of souls, we need to be equally wise. It is commendable to engage in a discussion of the problems of needy men and women, expressing our heart interest in that need. It is desirable that we clarify our knowledge of their need and accurately understand the truth of the gospel which meets that need. However, all of these things are quite meaningless unless they result in the bringing of the gospel to bear on the lives of the unconverted.

Solitude.
An hour of solitude, passed in sincere and earnest prayer or conflict with, and conquest over, a single passion or subtle bosom sin, will teach us more of thought, will more effectually awaken the faculty and form the habit of reflection than a year's study in the schools without them.—Coleridge.

Origin of Skywriting

Skywriting is a development of the World war and was originated in England by Maj. John C. Savage, R. A. F., who conceived the idea as a means of sending military signals over great distances when other communications were impractical or impossible. It was not perfected until after the war, however, and was used for advertising purposes first when Capt. Cyril Turner wrote "Daily Mail" above the heads of amazed racing enthusiasts during the running of the derby at Epsom Downs in England in May, 1922.

In October of the same year Captain Turner introduced skywriting to America when he wrote "Hello, U. S. A." high above New York.—Hazel K. Wharton in New York Times.

The Country Doctor

"I think the country doctor is entitled to more recognition and commendation than they are receiving," declared a citizen who was reared in the country and talked as if he knew how to appreciate the physicians who generally have to travel over unimproved roads day and night in order to serve their patients.

"I recall that back in my childhood days, these physicians carried their own medicines in their satchels. Most of the remedies were known as the more simple ones—the kind that if they didn't cure certainly would not kill," commented the old chap reciting his story.

He said that these old-time doctors reminded him somewhat of the old-time Methodist circuit rider. They, too, carried saddle-bag bundles instead of medicine, they contained a Bible and clippers, especially when the religious instructor was expecting to be away from home a week or more.

The writer remembers hearing an aged woman, back more than half a century ago, tell about one of those old-time country doctors, who when he lost a patient, would never send in a bill to the family for his services, no matter how many visits he had made to the patient. Asked why he adopted such a plan his reply was to the effect that he did not feel that his medicine and treatment had done any good, therefore he was not entitled to any remuneration. On the other hand, the story went, when his patients recovered either a brief long illness, that physician never forgot to send a bill, though even then his charges were a ways considered reasonable.

New York Skyscrapers Form Back Drop For Air View of Fair

The Trylon and Perisphere, theme of the New York Fair, are seen dominating the 1216 1/2-acre tract. At the lower right is the international area with its magnificent foreign pavilions grouped around the Court of Peace below the Lagoon of Nations. At the lower left is the Court of States. The picture shows the Fair's close proximity to Broadway and the skyscrapers of upper Manhattan.

Actually the Fair is only 10 minutes from Broadway by Long Island Railroad, and about 25 minutes by subway. By motor the trip requires about 30 minutes, with 5 parking fields furnishing ample space. New roads and bridges have prevented congestion of traffic.

Long And Useful Record.

The Davie Record is 41 years old, the present editor and publisher of which, Frank Stroud, has been at its helm for 32 of these years.

There is much intriguing in what Editor Stroud says of his labors during these more than three decades.

In his anniversary statements is mirrored much of the experience through which every newspaper, great or small, passes at some stage of its life, as well as an adequate reflection too of the personal reactions of those whose energies go into its making:

Hear him:

"In spite of all the hardships, cussings, broken presses and smash ed type, we have managed to get the paper out on time every week without missing an issue. The Record editor has seen the town grow from a small country village into a live, progressive town, with all city conveniences. There is but one firm doing business here today that was in operation when we arrived—C. C. Sanford Sons Co. We have tried to serve the public in every way possible since coming here. We made a hard fight for good roads, good bridges, better schools and more co-operation among the people of the entire county, and we have lived to see our dreams come true. It will be our aim to carry on this good work, always working for a better town and county in which to live."

Our brother quite clearly senses what a newspaper's duty is in respect to the community in which it is located. He states the case admirably. —Charlotte Observer.

Davie Record Is On Its 41st Year Now.

Editor Frank Stroud is to be congratulated on the beginning of the 41st year of the life of the Davie Record. That's a long time and yet so short a time. The Record keeps plugging away, serving its people.

Confederate Is Named.

Samuel Jefferson Lambeth, the only surviving Confederate veteran in Davidson county, has been appointed a member of the county pension board. His commission from the state pension had been received in Lexington Friday by Clerk E. C. Byerly, who has notified Mr. Lambeth of the honor.

Too Many Payrollers.

Indiana Farmers Guide.

Attorney-General Frank Murphy recently declared that there now are 4,000,000 people in government employment, and that the public payroll runs to $6,000,000,000 a year. Mr. Murphy should know what he is talking about, and the facts are awful. Six billion dollars a year to national and local office holders! About a $200 tax each to the average family and more than one-eighth of the national income! That is, to a certain extent, the price of politics, and we repeat that it is awful.

We agree with Mr. Murphy that an end should be put "to the ancient practice of passing out government jobs in payment of political debts." He does not think it is necessary to make any drastic curtailment of governmental functions and activities in order to eliminate at least a million of these public employees and reduce the payroll by more than a billion dollars. Both parties are to blame, of course, and may be expected to resist stoutly any effort to do away with machine politics, but the voters should see to it that a billion dollar operation be performed on the public payroll, as Mr. Murphy suggests.

Still On Job.

Thirty-two years ago Frank Stroud moved over to Mocksville and began editing the town's newspaper. He has ceased, been cussed, praised, and been praised (also invited to leave town) so these many times, but with the ups and downs he says he still believes Mocksville is the town of towns (he only visits Brevard occasionally) and "hopes" that newspapermen will have a chance at Pearly Gates. —Transylvania Times.

MICKIE SAYS—

Third Term not chief Reason

The Charlotte Observer:—

The Republicans seem generally to feel that the next Presidential election is theirs and in the bag.

The Democrats somewhat generally fear that the Republican steel right about the matter.

The dissatisfaction among the latter is the target fly in the ointment.

It is the lack of unity that may tear the Democratic convention to smithereens, conceivably doing almost everything to wreck its prestige and standing in the next referendum, even to the naming of an independent who could even be the present President, if he should desire the regular nomination and miss it.

The Gallop poll, however, shows that the President is unimpressively popular as a third term which, in our convention, is not so much because he may be a third term as that the mind of the country is progressively moving toward a more conservative President to succeed him.

Isn't It Already Here?

Senator George of Georgia, who is among the Democrats who are necking the President a pain in the neck these days, attacked the latter's lending-spending bill in principle and "denounced it as putting the country on the road to state socialism."

It may be only to quibble over terms to remark that instead of putting the country on this road, this measure would virtually send it down the line to the actual definition of state socialism.

If having the Federal government engage itself with its subsidies in practically every phase of private enterprise is not state socialism, then those who gave us the definition of state socialism used the wrong language. —Charlotte Observer.

Life Insurance Is Screw!

"Life insurance is screwy," writes an insurance authority. "You have to buy it when you don't need it because when you do need it, you can't get it. It is designed to take care of the two major hazards of life; i. e., either you will not live long enough or you will live too long."

It's easy to postpone buying life insurance—anyone can have a lot more fun with money than paying premiums. But there's no fun in waking up some morning with the knowledge that it is too late to obtain adequate insurance protection—and to have to face a dependent old age.—Ex.

Morality And Third Term.

General Hugh S. Johnson asks the following question regarding the way Attorney General Murphy is traveling about the country mixing in grand jury investigations of crime:

Is there, by any chance, any low political propaganda in his traveling about the country, preaching about how, if the states and cities do not purify their elections and their judges, he is going to do it in his self advertised odor of sanctity and, on that basis, advocated a third term for Mr. Roosevelt?

Speed Vs. Economy.

Economy and safety go together in driving.

Harold T. Hammond, prominent traffic engineer of the National Conservation Bureau, accident prevention department of the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives, gives three outstanding examples of this rule.

1. Moderate speed saves wear and tear of the engine and reduces tire, gasoline and oil consumption. This is confirmed by careful estimates showing that on the basis of a 1,000-mile journey the cost per mile of oil, gas, tires and maintenance is two and one fifth cents at 45 miles an hour. When the speed goes up to 55 miles an hour the cost per mile mounts to three and three-tenths cents, or about one third greater—and each hour saved costs over $2!

Moderate speed also tends to cut down accidents. Statistics show that high speed is the greatest single element in the nation's toll of high way deaths. Authoritative figures indicate, also, that the higher the speed the more serious the accident—at 40 to 49 miles an hour, one injury accident in 30 is fatal; but at 50 miles and faster, one injury accident in 13 is fatal.

2. Easy starts and stops saves gas, tires and brakes. It has been figured that a flashy get-away uses up double the gas of an easy one, and that every time you stop on a dime you waste a dollar's worth of rubber.

Easy starts and stops also help prevent collisions at intersections. In cities, more than half of all injury accidents occur at intersections. Many of these are collisions between two vehicles unable to stop in time, and rear-end smashes caused by sudden stops. Hence the driver who would avoid mishaps should take it easy at crossings.

3. Inspection of the car before a trip may save possible delays and breakdowns. A charge of $15 for towing a disabled automobile five miles is not unusual, and this does include the cost of repairs.

By following these three rules—moderate speed, easy starts and stops, and safe car maintenance—the Bureau's traffic experts point out, the motorist will achieve the double purpose of saving money and avoid accidents.—Ex.

Not Profitable.

That there can be no substantial profit in the liquor business was well demonstrated during the past week when fines of almost $14,000 and a bout 360 months in prison were meted out in federal court.

That is a lot of money and a lot of time to spend for the illicit business, to say nothing of penalties which may be collected by the government for unpaid liquor taxes.

If men who deal in illicit liquor in these parts would put the time, effort and money into some legitimate undertaking, we venture to add that they would be materially better off, to say nothing of a conscience which would allow sound sleep without fear of being caught and hauled into court.

If operations in the illicit liquor business in Wilkes were as big as were described by the government agents, an enormous amount of work time and money went into the manufacture and transportation of the liquor, an amount sufficient to carry on a sizeable industry.—Wilkes Journal.

Limerock Mine Will Be Open In Yadkin.

Gordon Hackett, of North Wilkesboro, member of the State highway commission, has issued an order calling for the opening at an early date of the limerock mine near Silem on the Yadkin river and mining will get under way.

Mr. Hackett has authorized the Yadkinville convict camp officials to use convict labor in reopening the old mine deposit, the lime to be used for agricultural purposes.

Grover Sherman, superintendent of the Yadkinville convict force, has charge of the work which was begun at the mine this week.

Up until the flood of 1916, the mine was operated by a private company very profitably. That flood destroyed the machinery and deposited heavy debris in the lime pits which was never removed and the work was abandoned. It is said that lime can be mined from this deposit, which is unlimited, and sold to farmers at $1.50 a ton at the mine, a dan effort has been made to have the mine opened for some time.

According to a recent geological test the mine produces lime of a very fine quality.

Are Farmers Worth While?

Southern Planter.

Until farmers convince the politicians, at the polls, that agriculture is truly a great business, farm people will continue to be treated as "small fry," in matters governmental.

The farming class has been given less than any group in our population.

Organized labor gets about what it wants in the way of protective legislation, local, state and national, industry is always dished out the biges, "piece of pie," but agriculture has been content with "the crumbs that fall from the Master's table." This is particularly true in the southern states.

Take Virginia, for example; two-thirds of the state's population is rural. As a business, Virginia agriculture is a 750 million industry, including the value of farm lands, buildings, machinery and livestock. Farming employs and profoundly influences the attitudes and philosophy of the state's population, yet only scant consideration has been given Virginia's many distressing agricultural problems.

The state ABC stores sold only seventeen million dollars worth of alcoholic liquors last year. On the construction, maintenance and improvement of Virginia roads, the state and federal governments last year spent but twenty six million dollars. Gross farm income in 1938 for Virginia, on the other hand, was approximately 170 million dollars. Yet the state pays the commissioner of agriculture only $6,000 per year; the state highway commissioner, $12,500 per year; and employs three ABC board members at $7,500 each, a total of $22,500 a year!

The Southern Planter does not say that the highway commissioner is overpaid, nor that $22,500 is too much leadership for the seventeen-million dollar liquor monopoly; but it does say that by the same reasoning $6,000 is not sufficient for the leadership of the state's greatest maker of men, the farming industry, which last year produced 170 million dollars in wealth. The politicians evidently think farmers are not worth while.

HOT WEATHER BILIOUSNESS

Have you noticed that in hot weather your digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious, and your bowel action sluggish or insufficient. These are some of the symptoms of biliousness or so-called "torpid liver," so prevalent in hot climates. They call for calomel, or better still, Calobabs, the tasteless, calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure. Calobabs give you the effects of calomel and salts combined, helping Nature to expel the sour, stagnant bile and washing it out of the system. One or two Calobabs at bedtime with a glass of water, and all next morning your system feels clean and refreshed, your head is clear, your spirit bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure. Genuine Calobabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages bearing the trade mark "Calobabs." Refuse imitations. Trial packages only ten cents; family packages twenty-five cents, at your dealer's (Adv.).

Courtesies.

We don't happen to be one of the favored flock receiving one, but we are told that the sheriff's Association has authorized and provided cards bearing the great seal of North Carolina and reading "This is to certify that John Doe is entitled to courtesies from all peace officers."

That is carrying courtesy a little too far. One would think that every citizen of North Carolina is entitled to "courtesies from all peace officers."—with or without a card.

It can be argued of course that this little piece of pasteboard is an innocent acknowledgment of the high-standing of the holder in his community, and meant only to serve him in emergency, and may be tickle his vanity a bit.

But it could serve to cover a multitude of sins, and things being as they are, that is exactly what those courtesy cards are for, John Doe doesn't always conduct himself abroad as he does at home, and if he is inclined to take on a little more joy water than is his custom or decides to do a little stepping-out in all the various other ways known to man, and runs into the law, it would come in mighty handy to poke one of those cards in the face of a peace officer. Members of the sheriff's association are lodge brothers, in a way, and as the Kingfish has so often pointed out "us brothers has got to stick together." Not every officer would so honor them of course, but most of them would, else the association never would have had them printed.

The Fayetteville Observer reminds that "Too many favored politicians are already being granted superprivileges by law enforcement agencies: some of them the privilege of violating the law for profit and getting away with it, while the little fellow is pinched and thrown in jail.—Statesville Daily.

Fifty-Nine Years Ago.

The State.

We quote, without comment, excerpts from an editorial which appeared in the Elizabeth City Carolinian April 14, 1880:

"It is an old adage that 'facts are stubborn things.' It is recklessly, when great issues are involved, to ignore them.

"While the whole American people unite in honoring President Grant and are proud of his fame, it is a fact that the thoughtful portion of them do not favor the movement to again place him in the Presidential Chair.

"Great as he is, and as much as he enjoys the confidence of his country, his infatuated supporters make a great mistake in supposing this greatness and confidence overbalance the solemn conviction so largely entertained in the public mind that a violation of the unwritten law of the Republic against a third term would be a dangerous advance toward monarchy. It would be felt as a removal of one of the Revolution established and the victory over the Rebellion preserved."

It Isn't Worth It.]

Last week in Cleveland, Ohio, a 20 year old youth was taken by police from the roof of a burlesque theatre. He was found peeping through a ventilator into the room where the chorus girls were dressing. "It Isn't Worth It," the young fellow said to the officers who arrested him. That is usually the cry of the fellow who has sown to the wind he starts reaping the whirlwind. "It Isn't Worth It," most of the thousands of young men would tell you who have thought there was such a thing as getting something for nothing, only to end in our state prisons and workhouses. It Isn't Worth It." Why can't more people learn this before it is too late.—Ex.

And The Orgy Goes On.

Under the New Deal government spending is over-reached the endurance of the taxpayer, the number of government jobs has topped anything ever before dreamed of by the feeders of the public trough, nostrum human brain could device has been tried, and the country now tends toward a return to traditional conservative policies.

Under these conditions, why should the present incumbent of the white house desire a third term? His record is made, and the historians will interpret it.

As old Omar says: "The moving finger writes, and having writ, nor all your piety nor wit, can erase a line of it."

And Mark Antony says: "The evil men do lives after them; the good is often interred with their bones."

The truth of the third term situation is more likely to rest with the New Deal boys who do not want to lose their job.

In all probability the president himself is tired, needs a rest, and does not desire a third term. He must know that the next occupant of the white house will have to face many serious problems. The economic processes upon which the record-breaking prosperity of the country was based have been interred with, and, in many cases, rarely destroyed. Readjustments will be difficult. Many millions of people have become accustomed to easy hand-outs by the government, and will not cease to go back to work. Some of the sources of wealth creation have been dried up.

Thus it is more probable that the president now refrains from an announcement of his intentions because he desires to avoid the loss to his party of New Deal support in the 1940 elections. Without him the New Dealers will be lost.

Europe is counting on this very thing, a gradual trend back to traditional conservatism to be confirmed by the 1940 elections.

And so are many generators of commerce and employers of labor in the United States.—(By a Louisiana Democrat)

Work Or Get Out.

(From The Durham Herald.)

There are thousands of people in United States today who honestly need Federal relief money and who are not to be grudge it.

And, unfortunately, there are those who are able to work but prefer to let the government support them in idleness.

The latter are giving the national relief administration a black eye, and are making it increasingly harder for the government to get appropriation for those who are in genuine need.

It was with a good deal of sympathy therefore, that we noticed reports yesterday of a new "work or get off relief" law which Pennsylvania has put into effect.

The state will attempt to provide jobs for those on relief. Prevailing wages will be paid. If the jobs aren't accepted, then the refuser will be cut off relief.

Naturally, a tremendous cry has been raised to heaven that this is forced labor. Such a charge, of course, is silly.

No one can make a man work. But the government can let him know that if he doesn't work, and that if he doesn't have a good excuse he need not expect to get paid.

It seems to us that the government owes it to those who are willing to work but can't, to do everything possible to get perennial loafers off relief rolls.

If they don't, then it will be increasingly difficult to find money for those who are honest.

MICKIE SAYS—

District Soil Office Located In Salisbury.

Notification has been received by J. C. Barber, chairman of the board of supervisors of the Middle Yadkin soil conservation district, from the state committee at Raleigh that the district has been officially approved and that the district office has been located in Salisbury.

The state committee informed Barber that the state and Washington authorities had approved the district, which includes Rowan, Cabarrus, Davie and Davidson counties, and that it was now ready for operations.

The state headquarters have been established in the post office building here with I. E. Michael to serve as district conservationist.

Applications for district assistance may now be made through the county agents of the four counties in the district. A referendum was held in these counties in accordance with the state soil conservation districts act during February and March of this year.

Irebell county is also included in the Middle Yadkin district, but has not held a referendum.

Five supervisors were elected some time ago to serve the district. They are: J. C. Barber of Rowan, L. B. Barrier of Cabarrus, J. G. Crawford of Davie, and J. L. Heise and D. G. Wilson of Davidson.

Dismissals Are Ordered Resumed.

Washington.—The WPA today ordered its state administrators to resume the dismissal of persons who have been on the work relief rolls continuously for 18 months or more.

Col. F. C. Harrington, the work projects commissioner, telegraphed the administrators that the dismissals should be resumed since Congress adjourned without changing recently enacted legislation requiring them.

The dismissals had been suspended by Harrington on July 28 pending a final decision by Congress on proposals to ease the requirements of the new relief act.

"In his telegram the commissioner said: "All relief workers except (war) veterans who have been continuously employed on WPA projects for 18 months or more * * * must be dismissed prior to August 31, and after August 31 all relief workers except veterans who have been continuously employed for 18 months must be discharged at termination of such continuous employment."

Stemming Machine Replaces Workers.

Danville [Va.] is looking forward to the forthcoming tobacco season with an increase in its unemployment, and a subsequent greater burden on the relief agencies in the fall, as a result of replacement of hand stemmers in the tobacco factories in that city by stemming machines.

Several hundred negroes who make a living during the fall and winter months working in Danville stemmeries will be thrown out of work when tobacco plants resume operations in the fall due to installation of stemming machines.

Officials of leaf companies blame the wage and hour act for their decision to gradually abandon hand stemming in favor of machines, claiming that minimum wage provisions of the act make the cost of stemming by hand prohibitive due largely to comparatively low production ability of hand stemmers.

Each stemming machine does the work of 50 hand stemmers but since 12 are required to operate and service a machine, this actually throws .38 out of work to the machine.

Companies in the process of installing stemming machines are D. B. Webb Brothers, J. M. Edmunds and company and the stemming branch of P. Lorillard company.

Officials of the Imperial Tobacco company have announced that the Danville plant probably will not stem any southern tobacco. Since on several occasions in the past the company has not stemmed tobacco in Danville it cannot be said that the wage and hour law is wholly responsible for the action this season.—Ex.

A Good Idea But It Didn't Work

The new deal's spending and lending program by which the nation was expected to lift itself out of the depression by its own bootstraps might have been a good idea had it worked but it doesn't prove out by such a text. The spending program has bogged down with the result that the national debt has been increased nearly $24,000,000, and the unemployment figure is about 11,500,000, with 20,000,000 receiving relief in some form, and the farmer's plight is gradually growing worse with business so burdened with taxes that no demand is created for the products of the farm. Recognizing the situation, the New Deal continues spending, having a piece time peak last year with an expenditure of about $9,500,000,000. A seven year trial period shows the program does not work, and "the best proof of the eating."

American Virtue.

On a sick bed in an Iowa hospital lay Cecil Davis, a farmer, worrying not so much about his health—that was improving—as he was about his fine crop of wheat, ready for the harvest; but with no one at home to take matters into their own hands. Six combines were sent to the Davis farm, with sufficient men to operate them. And as the six harvesters bit into the field of golden grain, a group of women gathered at the empty farm home and prepared one of those old-fashioned "thresher dinners."

It seems that a "good time was had by all." By nightfall the grain had been cut, threshed, and hauled away to be stored. The tired men and women returned to their homes light of heart at the thought of another good deed performed. And on his hospital bed Cecil Davis muttered a prayer of thanks that neighborliness was still an old-fashioned American virtue.—Exchange.

George Speaks Out.

Washington.—Senator George, Democrat of Georgia, spoke out today against a third term for President Roosevelt and demanded a "prompt settlement" of the issue.

Shortly before leaving for his home at Vienna, Ga., the senator, whom President Roosevelt tried vainly to unseat last year, asserted that he opposed the third term "under any circumstances or conditions."

"The course followed by the great and patriotic leaders of the past against the third term for any President and under any condition is wise and right—not in normal times but especially in abnormal times, times of upheaval and chaos in political thought and action.

"The prompt settlement of this issue in line with the examples set by great statesmen and patriots of the past will substantially serve the best interests of the Democratic party and the country."

He declined to enlarge on this statement. Apparently, however, he meant that President Roosevelt should not wait any longer to state his intention for 1940.

Summing up the sessions which adjourned Saturday, George listed the rejection of the President's lending bill as one "no-able accomplishment" of the 76th Congress.

"This program," he said, "would have added more than five billion dollars to the indirect national debt. The defeat of this measure is primarily important because it marks the beginning of the end of spending for pump priming purposes and reasserts the power of the Congress over the nation's purse."

He pointed out as "noteworthy" the fact that Congress provided the full amount asked by the President for relief and national defense in the fiscal year 1940. In addition to the lending bill's defeat, his list of the session's accomplishments included the elimination of the tax on undistributed profits, legislation to aid railroads, and the general overhauling of the social security act.

Backbone of the Nation

The article below is taken from The Nebraska Farmer is almost as old as the state of Nebraska, and is published in the shadow of where William Jennings Bryan lived so many years, and rose to his greatest fame:

The complete unanimity of reader opinion, published elsewhere in this issue, urging a farmer inquirer to stay off WPA rolls and thereby retain his liberty, independence, character and family self-respect, is indeed heartening, and commendable. The plea against WPA participation is from farmers who have fought successfully to stay off relief, and from some who are on, much to their sorrow. These readers have presented nearly all the arguments against WPA, and little else needs to be said.

We hope our farm correspondent and his family heed the advice, and that other who may have a similar problem will hold fast to cherished ideals of individual initiative, thrift, political independence and family pride—in short, to continue to remain "on the backbone side of the nation."

"Aside from any benefits, which WPA has admittedly provided for many distress families and individuals, its greatest evil lies in the incentive for passive acceptance of Uncle Sam, regardless of the opportunity or their ability to find means of self-support. That is the road to social decay and the downfall of democracy.

And now it seems that President Roosevelt is going to change the date of Thanksgiving from Nov. 30th to Nov. 23rd. We wonder what this man will do next?

With as many people looking for work as we have here, it seems strange that people have to be imported from other counties and states to fill certain jobs or positions.

The Winston Sentinel seems to be advocating more highway patrolmen. That paper talks like the patrol should be increased from the present 200 to about 500. Does this mean that there are still 300 democrats in North Carolina who are out of a job?

The Congress which recently adjourned spent and appropriated more money than any other Congress that has ever assembled, so far as we can find out. The total amount charged up to this Congress was more than thirteen billion dollars. We will never forget what a howl went up when a Republican Congress spent one billion dollars a few years ago.

The Record doesn't believe in putting on the dog, and it doesn't believe in exaggerating facts. Several daily and weekly newspapers in this section, in writing up the Masonic picnic held here recently, said that between ten and twelve thousand people assembled here to hear Governor Hoey. Maybe so, but we don't see how that was possible without at least 6,000 people slipped through the gates without purchasing tickets. Only a little over 7,400 tickets were sold during the day and evening, and at least half of them were sold after Governor Hoey had made his speech. Please, boys, let's keep history straight. Ten thousand is a whale of a crowd when you come to think about it.

Large Poplar Tree.

Talking about big trees, reminds us that Davie county has one of the largest poplar trees in this section, so far as we know. This tree is near Hunting Creek, on the Wiley Baily farm, and measures 23½ feet in circumference. The tree is about 75 feet tall, and it is about 50 feet to the first limb. We might add that there is a hive of bees in the top of this tree, but no one has climbed it to get the honey.

Smithwick Named Agent

Robert R. Smithwick, formerly Davie county farm agent, but later serving in Haywood county, has been named county agent-at-large for the Mountain Area. Mr. Smithwick has many friends in Davie who will be interested in this announcement.

Rich Park Lighted.

Rich Park, Mocksville's beauty spot, which we all enjoy, and which was made possible by our public spirited citizen, Thomas W. Rich, can now be enjoyed both day and night. Electric wiring was completed last Wednesday, and the lights have been turned on, which turns night into day. For the past several years, since the park was opened to the public, all the picnics and suppers had to be held during the afternoon or early evening, but now that the park has been lighted, after supper picnics and parties can be held there. The thanks of all our citizens are due Mr. Rich for his generous gift to the town.

Colored Boy Dies.

Joseph Wilson, 13 year-old colored boy of Davie county, who was injured on Aug. 12th, near County, died at Long's Hospital that afternoon. He sustained a fractured skull and a broken leg. The automobile which struck the boy was coming toward Mocksville and was driven by Sherman Coon, of Indiana. The accident, it is said, was termed unavoidable. The boy was a son of Andrew Wilson, of Mocksville, R. 4. The funeral was held at Pine Grove, Methodist church Tuesday afternoon of last week.

Noah Brock 103 Years.

Noah Brock reached his 103rd birthday anniversary Monday, Aug. 14th. The day was celebrated quietly at his country home with a family dinner, with all his grandchildren and great-grandchildren present. The grandchildren were Lee Painter, of Darlington, Ind., and Mrs. Wm. A. Dow and Mrs. Stirton B. Parker, of Grand Rapids, Mich. Mae Lee Dow, Wm. A. Dow, Jr., and Richard Brock Parker are the great-grandchildren. Others who enjoyed the chicken dinner were Mrs. Lee Painter, Stirton Parker, Mrs. Margaret Dorrell, Mrs. Edith Brock, also Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Clasky, of Grand Rapids, Mich. In the afternoon about 30 friends called wishing him many happy returns of the day. "Uncle Noah," as his many friends call him, is enjoying splendid health. Every morning he goes to his mail box which is about a quarter of a mile round trip, besides doing other chores about the barn and house. He helped "doll" up the place before his birthday celebration by mowing quite a number of weeds with the scythe, and the day after, he killed a four foot snake with his cane. There are only three surviving Civil war veterans in this county, two Union veterans and one Confederate. The only Confederate veteran is when he read in The Davie Record of the automobile wreck in which Mrs. J. L. Sheek and J. A. Kimbrough were injured he said, "They are my sister's children." We were all very sorry to hear of the accident. They were only about 75 miles from our home, and we would have enjoyed their visit so much.

EDITH M BROCK.

Darlington, Ind.

School To Open Sept. 7th

The Mocksville schools, together with all the white schools in Davie, will open the fall term on Thursday, Sept. 7th. The colored schools throughout the county will open on Monday, Sept. 11th. The schools are opening a little earlier this year than usual.

Junior Order Convention.

The state convention of the Jr. O. U. A. M. convened in Salisbury yesterday, with many prominent Juniors present from all sections of the state. Officers will be elected this afternoon at the closing business session. A number of Mocksville and Davie county are attending the convention.

Hearing Postponed.

The utilities commission Thursday postponed until Sept. 12, a hearing for the Salisbury Mount Airy Coach Company seeking to operate from Salisbury to Mr. Airy, via Mocksville. The hearing had been set for Aug. 24th. Mocksville people are very much interested in this matter, as it now takes two days to go to Salisbury and return by rail.

John Lee Hamilton.

John Lee Hamilton, 78, died at his home near Fork Sunday. He is survived by his widow, three sons, F. J. Hamilton, of Rowan county, and R. F. and J. H. Hamilton, of Mocksville, R. 3; two daughters, Mrs. T. J. Seaford, R. 3, Mocksville, and Mrs. C. L. Crofts, Granite Quarry; three sisters, Mrs. Molly Cornell of Rowan county; Mrs. Jesse Bellard, Coolemees, and Mrs. Ida Lucas, of R. 3, Mocksville; three brothers, Charlie, of Kannapolis, and Henry and Albert, of Rowan county. Former Local Pastor Dies.

Rev. R. S. Howie, 70, for four years pastor of the Mocksville Methodist church, died at his home in Thomasville last Monday afternoon following an extended illness. Mr. Howie retired from the ministry about six years ago on account of ill health. He is survived by his widow one son and two daughters. The body was laid to rest at Harrison Methodist church cemetery, near Pineville, Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Howie had many friends in Davie who were saddened by the news of his death.

Elmer B. Smith.

Elmer B. Smith, 34, died Monday night at the Forsyth County Sanatorium. He was a son of Samuel D. and Bessie Hege Smith. He had been ill for two years. Surviving are the father and step-mother; one sister, Mrs. W. J. Leach, of Mocksville; three brothers, Hege Smith, of Keokuk, Iowa; Fhause Smith, of Winston-Salem; and S. D. Smith, Jr., of High Point, two half sisters, Misses Arvesta and Ruth Smith, of Mocksville; and two half brothers, Kermit and John Smith, of Mocksville. Harmony Road Is Open To Traffic.

Highway route 21, from Stateville to Brooks Cross Roads, better known to those in the Statesville section as the Harmony and Turnersburg Road, is once again open to traffic. The road has been under construction for the past several weeks, and travelers had to detour around that peculiar section. The road between the two points mentioned has been resurfaced and bad curves widened. The road before work began on it was a cement tar-filled road. It had long been in service and was rather bumpy in places. Recent construction has resurfaced the road with a tar gravel combination which has smothered out rough places and added to the durability of the road. It is now a pleasure to travel over the road. The car tires groop the road well and it is smooth touring. Several other highways in Iredell county are to be resurfaced in like manner. The Statesville-Mocksville highway is now under construction. It is said that this highway will not be open to through traffic for about two more weeks.

Gets Last Word On Thanksgiving.

Lancaster, Pa.—J. Hay Brown, Jr., Lancaster attorney and son of the late chief justice of the Pennsylvania supreme court, today sent the following telegram to President Roosevelt: "Why don't you change Christmas to your birthday."

Singers from Hanes and Thomasville will be heard during the day. Everyone is invited to come and bring a well-filled basket.

Sheffield News.

This section had a hard rain Thursday night and Friday morning. Small streams were very high. The stork spent Tuesday night with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reeves and left them a fine girl. Bobby, the little three-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Richardson, who got his foot caught in a wagon wheel and mashed up very badly one day last week, is improving.

A. M. Gaither, prominent merchant of Harmony, R. I. says he is going to start building his new store near Sheffield right away. Mrs. R. P. Richardson remains very ill.

It is almost school time again and not a consolidated school house has been built in the western part of Davie. Some of the children will have to go to Mocksville and others to Cool Springs and Harmony in Iredell county, and some to Farmington. Campaign promises are like pie crust, easy broken.

Notice, Wheat Farmers.

There will be a meeting at the court house in Mocksville, on Monday, Aug. 28, at 2 p. m., which will be of interest to all commercial wheat growers. Mr. Horace Godfrey, who is connected with the AAA, in the state office, Raleigh, will be present at this meeting to discuss the wheat program in general, and will also take up the matter concerning wheat crop insurance. Let me urge all commercial wheat growers to be present. Don't forget the time and place. Mocksville court house, Monday, Aug. 28, at 2 p. m. D. C. FANKIN, County Agent.

Call It A Day.

Congress has adjourned but that doesn't mean that all the unsettled business the members left at the desks will be the pain-in-the-neck for another session of the seventy-sixth Congress before a new one is elected. And there is plenty to indicate that the legislation shunted a side in the closing days when the boys were in such a hurry to get back home, will have to be faced and a noise made like settlement, one way or the other. But January being that much nearer a national election, there is nothing upon which to hang the hope that these issues will not be judged by political expediency alone.

The wage-hour act, which was best deferred until its workability could be further tested, obviously will need revising. Something definite will have to be done about neutrality, war time profiteering and embargoes and such; evidently the Hatch "clean politics" bill will have to be clarified and extended to cover more of the multitude of sins, and it is barely possible that the lending and housing program cannot be shunted aside with the same bravado and unconcern with which these important matters were met in the closing days.

It is generally admitted that President Roosevelt wasn't so hot as a driver of legislative effort. Much of what he asked a stubborn Congress refused to give. Yet a breakdown of the record of the seventy-sixth Congress will show that the members, in their disposition of the President's various proposals, marched up the hill and then marched down again, doing most of the shouting and armflinging on the way up, and mighty quiet about it heading back to shelter.

The President gained his point on many issues of major importance that the Congress did not dare refuse, the members several times times out-distancing him by adding millions of dollars to appropriations for this and that, while individually crying to high heaven for economy. But this does not black out the fact that congressional snarling and howling indicates very plainly the President has lost prestige among his political buddies. Even some of those from North Carolina who had ridden on his coat tail, joined with Republicans to defeat some of his most cherished objectives. And there is open warfare within the President's own party that probably makes the Democratic donkey mighty sick in the pit of his stomach.

Anyhow, Congress has adjourned, and that's something to be thankful for. —Statesville Daily.

In this land we have there are thirty-five million on relief.—On the Dole!

The government is furnishing these unemployed a living. Our government in Washington say that they must do it.

Over in Alabama they were giving unemployment checks. They did not even call on the people to come to the office to get these checks, but sent an agent out where they were in swimming with a cigarette in one hand and a bottle of beer in the other. These checks amounted to from $5.00 to $12.00 each.

An Old Railroader.

North Wilkesboro—“Forty nine years ago I was at the throttle of the first train to North Wilkesboro,” Swift Hooper, veteran engineer, said after he arrived with the train from Winston-Salem.

“I hear they are going to have a big celebration here next year when the town is 50 years old,” he added before indulging in some very interesting reminiscences about the town's early life.

“I brought the first train here on August 9, 1890. I can remember that day very well. There was no depot and the train stopped about even with the place where the Blair residence now stands.”

In answer to a question about the size of the town then, the old engineer who then was a gangling youth explained that there was no town and that the only house stood on what is now Kensington Heights.

But after the coming of the railroad the place grew rapidly and soon became a center of commerce in this section.

Hooper's first name is really Swift, although many people have been under the impression that it was a nickname given because he had driven some fast trains on the Southern system.

He began railroading at the age of 16 before there was a Southern line and has been with the Southern ever since it was organized. With the exception of seven years, he has been making his daily trips between North Wilkesboro and Winston-Salem.

He was engineer on the old number 97 which wrecked near Danville in 1903, but the train met disaster when Hooper had a day off and was visiting home folks in Davie county. A lot of people are of the opinion that there never would have been a wreck of the old 97, which had been memorialized in ballad form, if Hooper had been at the throttle.

In December this year Hooper will have completed 50 years as a railroad engineer and he is just full of interesting stories about what has happened during a half century of railroading.

He knows the line between Winston-Salem and North Wilkesboro as an average man would know the walk between the street and his front door step. He knows every landmark along the way and many who live by the railroad never forget a wave of greeting to the veteran behind the throttle.

Hooper is driving a much bigger locomotive than he formerly did. It was found necessary to put on a more powerful engine when the schedule was moved up. The train now reaches North Wilkesboro in two and one-half hours after leaving Winston-Salem, and this time includes 17 scheduled stops, the longest being at Elkin, the largest town on the route.

Hooper is not through by any means. He enjoys his work.—Winston-Salem Journal.

Roosevelt Changes Thanksgiving.

New York — President Roosevelt's announcement he would break a 75-year old tradition by moving Thanksgiving Day up a week—to help out business—stirred both protest and praise from governors, turkey growers and football coaches.

The president said at Campobello island yesterday he had decided the traditional last Thursday in November was too late for Thanksgiving, so he was advancing the date from Nov. 30 to Nov. 23 this year.

Many different dates have been used since the Pilgrim Fathers celebrated the first Thanksgiving in 1621, the president pointed out. He said business people had complained the “last Thursday” date established by President Lincoln usually threw the holiday too close to Christmas shopping.

This sounds silly, President Roosevelt said, but added he was willing to go along with merchants on the matter.

The precedent-shattering change, automatically making liars of all 1939 calendars, promised to upset the nation's multi-million dollars turkey day football industry.

It also raised the possibility for the first time since nation-wide observance was established by George Washington, Thanksgiving might be celebrated on different parts of the country.

Some of the season's biggest and oldest grid games are scheduled for Nov. 30, which the schedule makers thought would be Thanksgiving Day.

Moving the games back to Dec. 2 or up to Nov. 23 will be impossible in some cases because the teams already have games on or near those dates.

“We'll vote the Republican ticket if he interferes with our football,” said Bill Walton, coach of Ouachita College, down in Arkansas, where Republicans are practically museum specimens.

More seriously James Frasier, chairman of the selectmen of historic Plymouth, Mass., where Thanksgiving started, said he heartily disapproved and would place the matter before the selectmen.

“Plymouth and Thanksgiving are almost synonymous and merchants or no merchants, I can't see any reason for changing it,” he said.

Gov. George A. Wilson of Iowa said if he had anything to say about it, the date would remain Nov. 30. He's a Republican.

On the other hand, Gov. William H. Vanderbilt of Rhode Island, another Republican, said “There appears to be some common sense in the idea.”

A third Republican governor, Ralph L. Carr, of Colorado, said President Roosevelt's action “seems rather arbitrary,” and continued:

“He has the power to make this nation thankful, if he would, by improving the lot of its people. He could better speed the time for Thanksgiving in that way than by changing the calendar.”

A Democrat, Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey, decided “one day is as good as another.”

But many a football coach failed to agree and from many parts of the country came expressions of varying perturbation.

Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of Big Ten athletics, said the decision would not make any difference in that conference schedule.

“Of course, we'll be violating our rule requiring us to end our season on the Saturday before Thanksgiving,” he said, “but that rule is based on Thanksgiving being the last Thursday in November.

Most produce men agreed the change would have little effect on the supply of turkeys available for Thanksgiving market, although one said, “A week can make a lot of difference.”

Mule In Politics.

The New York Times editorializes rather mournfully on the vanishing mule and concludes with an eloquent tribute to the mule which “in war and peace has done his bit.”

The mule obituary was occasioned by a report from the World's Fair that difficulty was experienced in getting twenty army mules to take part in the Missouri Day celebration at the Fair.

“We hope the mule will not disappear,” the Times sentimentalizes.

“The mule served effectively if not gloriously in the Civil War. He hauled supply wagons for both sides and did more good to mankind than all of Sheridan's or Morgan's cavalry. He laid back his ears and kicked with all his heart, for he was fundamentally a sad and disappointed animal, but he did bring in the bacon.

“Those who love him and have talked to him in Chaucer's English and have been kicked by him will now drop a tear or two.”

It is at this point that we hasten to reassure the mule mourners whom we were about to join until we read a dispatch from Carolina Beach headlined, “Mule Men Back Cooper for Governor.” So, we would advise the Times editor to look Southward where the mule is by no means in his obsolescence.

No sub, down in Dixie the mule has become a political power. He may even have a part in electing a governor of North Carolina. The mule dealers' session at Carolina Beach probably ended in two gees and a how for Cooper.—Twin City Sentinel.

F. R. Wrong!

Washington, Aug. 8.—It may be something of a surprise to President Roosevelt, but Congress in the recent session did not pass a bill to create five new judgeships.

In a statement last night on legislation affecting the judiciary, the President said such a bill was awaiting his signature. House records show, however, that the bill was blocked in the adjournment rush.

Rep. Celler (D-NY) sought unanimous consent Friday to bring the Senate-approved measure up for House passage.

Rep. Michener (R-Mich) protested an additional judgeship would be set in New Jersey whereas a vacancy had existed unfiled in that state for 18 1/2 months.

Bridges And Taft Openly Make Race.

The campaign for the Republican nomination for the presidency is getting an early start. Senators H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire and Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, have definitely announced their candidacies. Others are expected to get into the race shortly.

Senator Bridges has gone Senator Taft one better, in that he has already chosen his campaign manager, Representative Charles Hawks, Jr., of Wisconsin, driving the honor.

Both of these candidates are comparatively young men. They are going to make a great appeal to those perhaps first coming into the fold. Both men are vigorous speakers being among the top ranking men in the senate. Taft has the one advantage over Bridges, in that he has a wonderful background in the record left him by his illustrious father, William Howard Taft, the only man who ever stepped from the White House to Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. And he filled both with honor to himself and his nation.

Senator Taft is preparing to make a trip in a very short time to the west coast, going by automobile and meeting the people, learning their sentiments and finding out the true conditions of the country.

Senator Bridges announces that he is going into the camp of all anti-New Dealers for his support and that he will make a whirlwind speaking campaign through the midwest and out to the coast this fall.

Six Democrat Senate Seats Thought Lost.

Washington — Senator Logan (D-Ky) forecast today a possible Democratic loss of a half dozen Senate seats in next year's election.

There was a slight possibility, he added, that Democrats could defeat two Republican Senators—Johnson of California and Barbour of New Jersey.

Logan listed as the seats “we are liable to lose” those held by Senator Burke of Nebraska, Chavez of New Mexico, Donahy of Ohio, Gerry of Rhode Island, Guffey of Pennsylvania and Maloney of Connecticut.

He told reporters there would be a hard fight in Indiana, where Senator Minton, the Democratic whip, is seeking re election.

Although commenting that President Roosevelt “has a lot of friends,” among the 33 Senators whose terms expire after the 1940 election, Logan predicted the Chief Executive would keep hands off the senatorial campaigns.

“It is unlikely that some one who has burned his fingers once will stick them into the fire again,” he added, in reference to the President's unsuccessful efforts to defeat three Democratic Senators last year.

Over 11,000,000 Bales.

Washington—The Agriculture department forecast a cotton crop of 11,417,000 bales in its first estimate of this year's production.

This estimate of production in bales of 500 pounds gross weight was based on conditions as of August 1, and on the area in cultivation area, less the 10-year average abandonment of acreage, was placed at 24,424,000 acres.

Truck Farmer Interviewed.

Columbia, (S. C.) State.

Q. Mr. Taylor, how long have you been selling produce on this curb market?

A. For 40 years.

Q. Where is your farm located and how large is it?

A. It is 16 miles from Columbia in Lexington county and is 86 acres.

Q. Where were you born?

A. Within two miles of where I'm now living.

Q. Do you consider this curb market much of an aid to South Carolina farmers?

A. Well, it was until the hucksters got hold of it.

Q. Hucksters? What's the difference between you and a huckster?

A. Everything I sell over this counter I grow. They buy theirs and sell it.

Q. Can the farmer do that and then undersell you?

A. I don't know anything about that except that their's doing it.

Q. When the New Deal inaugurated its plowing under policy did it help you much?

A. Well, you see that applied to cotton and I wasn't planting cotton then. When the government cut down on cotton planting everybody started planting truck and my market was overrun. There was only one thing for me to do and that was to start planting cotton—and I did. In other words, the plow it-under policy didn't help me any—in fact it hurt my business.

Q. How are prices this year?

A. About the same as last year, but hats not saying a heap.

Q. From what single product do you gain the most profit?

A. From my flowers, but like everything else, people have found out that flowers make the most money and now everybody's selling them.

Q. What period do you recall as being the most profitable for you?

A. Any time before Roosevelt came in.

Q. Say, there, you sound like a Republican. Are you?

A. Nop, I'm not a Republican but I sure made out better when Hoover was in office than I'm doing under this New Deal.

Q. How many are in your family, Mr. Taylor?

A. Three. Me, my wife and 17-year-old daughter.

Q. Are you planning to send your daughter to college?

A. Nope.

Q. Well, with three in the family and your only child a girl, who does the farming?

A. I have a negro family living on the farm.

Q. Well, tell methis? what one thing do you think would benefit the farmer more than anything else?

A. I've been a farmer all my life and there's only one thing I ever knew to help the farmer and that was for prices on farm products to go up. But whrts the use of boosting farm prices if prices on what I have to buy go higher? Its beyond me. I can't figure out the answer to that last question.

Q. Do you plan to remain a farmer all your life?

A. Yes, I reckon so since that's all I know how to do.

It all depends on whose ox is gored. Some folks can get away with anything.

Some folks seem to be able to see three men when there is but one. Some of our folks are selling drinks that will cause folks to see things.

Congressman Bulwinkle, of Gascon county, who has hung around Washington for many years drawing his breath and salary, says he is going to run again. We are not surprised, but here's hoping some good democrat will defeat him in the primary next June.

Senator Robert Taft, of Ohio, says he is willing to run for president on the Republican ticket next year. There are a number of prominent Republicans who seem to be more than willing to fill this important office, among them being Senator Vandenberg and Thomas Dewey.

The Statesville Daily seems to think that the people are going to meditate before electing a Republican president to serve with a democratic or New Deal Senate. From the way things look at this distance it would seem that this country is going to have a Republican president and Congress, and a democratic Senate next year.

Most of the county, state and Federal officers are very courteous and gentlemanly, but once in a while one finds a little two-by-four officer who hasn't the first instincts of a gentleman. We have met a few of this kind. They are generally some one who has been picked up and given a seat at the pie counter as a reward for political work that wouldn't bear close investigation. We are glad to say that there are not many of this class.

This country managed to get along for more than a hundred and fifty years without WPA, NRA, CCC, AAA, or any other alphabetical, money-spending-tripped organizations, and the people are fast becoming disgusted with this New Deal wasteful spending. The democrats are doing as much cussing as the Republicans. No country can spend a dollar for every 63 cents it receives in revenue. A halt will have to be called, and the sooner the better.

A gentleman was telling us a few days ago about a New Deal Federal officer whose duty it is to go over the county and measure the cotton acreage to see if the farmer is exceeding his quota. This Federal officer spent a good many days or weeks measuring acreage, and found that the farmers in all his county had planted but two acres over the total allotment for the said county. The officer received $4 per day for all the days spent in measuring acreage. We doubt if all the cotton produced on this two acres would pay for the time spent by this brother who was on the Federal pay roll at $4 per day.

Court In Session.

The August term of Davie Superior Court convened at 10 o'clock Monday morning with his Honor, Frank Armstrong, of Troy, on the bench, and Solicitor Avalon Hall, of Yadonville, prosecuting the docket.

About 70 cases were docketed for trial at this term of court, but the serious illness of Attorney B. C. Brock caused a number of cases to be postponed.

The court crowd Monday was not as large as usual for the first day. There are a number of important cases to be heard, among them two manslaughter cases, a large number of drunken drivers cases, and several liquor cases. The full court proceedings will appear in our next issue.

Historic Center Methodist Church.

On next Sunday, Sept. 3rd, hundreds of people, both old and young, from Davie and adjoining counties and states, will assemble at this historic old church and former camp ground, to attend the annual homecoming and old and young folks singing. This church was organized more than 100 years ago, and is located four miles west of Mocksville on the Statesville highway. Everybody is given a cordial invitation to be present for this enjoyable occasion.

Yadkin Man Convicted Seen Along Main Street Of Vote Fraud.

Yadkinville, Aug. 25.—A Yadkin county jury this afternoon convicted W. D. Holcomb, 58 Jonesville WPA foreman, of election irregularities after deliberating for two hours. He also ordered Holcomb to remain away from voting places on election days for three years, except for the purpose of actually casting his own ballot.

Holcomb, witnesses testified, was one of the Democratic counters in North Knobs precinct during the election last November.
