Don't Strike Back

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hiddenite, N. C.

If you would win the victory don't strike back. If you would be a conqueror and a hero, don't strike back. God's way is always best. We never go wrong by obeying Him, and by following in the footsteps of our Savior. Jesus said: "Whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also. And if any man will sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also. And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain." (Matt. 5:39-41.)

Human nature, apart from God and godliness, is to strike back, or return evil for evil. God's plan for our lives is to return good for evil. This will always bring us our right. It will not only give us victory, but it brings to us peace, joy and happiness also. We feel glad when we go God's way, but we feel bad, mean and little when we go the way of sin and the devil. You may strike back, or return evil for evil, and get the best of the other fellow for the time, but you will lose later on.

If somebody mistreats you, don't strike back. If you are opposed as a Christian, and fought and persecuted, don't strike back. If someone tells a falsehood on you, don't strike back. Let the lie alone. It will break its own neck. If you are evil spoken of, don't strike back. While the other fellow speaks evil of you, and has a guilty conscience, just pray for him. You'll feel good and glad while he will feel mean and miserable. Let God deal with him. He can do a much better job of it than you can.

One of the hardest things to do is to keep quiet while the enemy rails upon us. While someone belittles us, fights us, or the work we are doing for God and the right. It is very easy to fire back. It takes wonderful grace to be still, calm, quiet and peaceful when stormy persecutions are upon us, and the enemy is ranting and raging against us. Our strength of character and manhood is not revealed in striking back, but in keeping still and holding steady.

If some one is cursing you, belittling and belittling you, or is making life hard for you, don't strike back. Keep still. Keep cool under test and trial. Hold your nerve, hold your peace. Stand still and see the salvation of the Lord. You'll win out. You'll rise while he falls, sooner or later. Let him rave and rant, foam and froth, but you keep still. Don't strike back. When he has spent his fury upon you, he will feel miserable while you will feel good. Beloved, it's so.

One of the hardest places in the world to keep from striking back is in the home. We believe this to be true. Things happen that tries one's patience, that tests his salvation. The home life and test is the hardest in the world to the average person. If you have victory in your heart and soul at home you can have it anywhere. Husband, don't strike back. Wife, don't strike back. If you do, you'll say and do that which you'll regret. Ask God to keep you in a spirit of prayer and a state of grace.

Don't strike back at your neighbor. We know that he may not always treat you right, nor deal fair with you, nor say kind things to you and about you, but don't strike back. Let him do the striking and you do the praying. Let him do the repenting and you do the rejoicing. Let him do the confessing and you do the forgiving. Let him live in the shadows, but you live in the sunshine. Let him do the worrying, but you do the

For A Single Shell.

The Christian Science Monitor reminds that it takes from 60 to 140 gallons of ethyl alcohol to manufacture the 1,000 to 1,500 pounds of smokeless powder required to a single shell from a battleship's turret, and therefore calls it highly important that the distillers divert their time and energy from brewing dynamite for humans, to the production of something that is so essential to victory.

The liquor industry, easier than any other can divert sixty per cent of its energies as the Office of Production has prescribed. By admission of one of its spokesmen there is on hand in warehouses a five-year supply of distilled liquors. In a pinch we could let all of it stay there and age, while 100 per cent of the distillery business is requisitioned for war use.

The Monitor raises this point: "Are we thus to be treated to the spectacle of highly paid war workers being unable to buy many things which have become necessities, yet able to buy without stint that which is capable of slowing up war production? Rationing tires, sugar, automobiles, washing machines and scores of useful materials, yet permitting liquor to flow freely is a national absurdity worthy of Gilbertian treatment."

Other and more important industries than the liquor business have had much more severely to curtail normal activities in the interests of the war effort or even to shut down altogether. Certainly then the entire distilling business can be spared, without upsetting the balances, economic or otherwise. The liquor industry is not bucking the OPM order if it is true, but it hopes to maintain a normal market against the day when its product will be no longer needed to pour into the mouth of a cannon.—Statesville Daily.

More Food For The Allies.

The agricultural marketing co-operatives have a real job on their hands.

As Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has pointed out, we must increase our production of many foods both for us and for England, which depends on this country for a substantial part of the foodstuffs that she needs. That means agriculture must have incentive to work harder and produce more.

The marketing co-ops are today fighting a battle to get the consideration the farmer deserves. They are fighting for fair prices and reasonable profits. They are working to improve production methods. The future welfare of tens of millions of farm families depends upon the success of their efforts.—Ex.

trusting. Let him do the losing, but you do the gaining. Let him have the big apple and you take the little one. Give him the best end of the bargain instead of taking it yourself. When it is all over you'll come out at the big end of the horn. You'll win. You'll rise and climb to the glorious goal.

I've had people strike at me a few times through the press, or through the mail, for the truth I have preached and written across the years. A few times it has been painful and hard to bear, but I refuse to strike back. My plan is to take it to God in prayer and let Him work it out. Praise His name. When I keep still, pray and trust Him, I know I shall have nothing to regret, but much to rejoice over. I had rather the other fellow would strike and have the guilty conscience, while I keep quiet and have the clear conscience. Amen.

Artificial Shortages

There are shortages of certain articles which we have been using practically every day and there will be other shortages.

But some of the shortages can be averted if the public does not stampede and buy more than usual.

Have you ever stopped to think that a shortage can be created in almost any line of merchandise?

Suppose, for instance, that word was to get out that there was going to be a serious shortage of sugar.

Now, mind you, we said suppose the word was to get out that there would be a shortage of that commodity. The truth of the matter is, there will be plenty of sugar for all the people.

But if everybody was scared that there would be a shortage, three-fourths of the people would rush out and buy a six-months' supply. What would be the result?

After such a stampede of buying, there would be a temporary shortage and some would be unable to get it.

On the other hand, if people bought as usual without any stampede and rush, there would be no shortage at any time.

A shortage of sugar developed a few days ago for a very brief time in Winston-Salem because of rumors of a sugar shortage. As a result, stocks were depleted, many stores were out of sugar and some people had difficulty finding some.

There was an acute shortage of sugar during the first World War. At that time a greater part of our sugar supplies came from Cuba and there was lack of transportation facilities as well as the need for sending big supplies to England and France.

But the sugar situation has changed much since then. Vast quantities of cane sugar are now produced in the southernmost parts of this country and the sugar beet industry in western states has grown to enormous proportions. There should be no more shortage of sugar now than there is of flour, corn and cotton, of which we have large surpluses.

Unfounded rumors and careless talk, the kind which pleases Hitler when it goes on in this country, can create stubborn problems. In other words, the public can be stampeded into fear of what does not exist. And that is a situation we do not want.

The government will give the people accurate information about any shortage which exists and unless you read in the newspapers or hear by radio from some official source of a shortage, disregard the street rumors.

Those who listen to the rumors and try to buy up everything in sight of any one commodity are liable to wake up and find that a substantial sum of money has been poured into a rat hole.—Wilkes Journal.

It seems that since the above article was written, a sugar shortage is about to stare us in the face. Beginning this month it is said that only one pound of sugar per person per week, can be purchased. So far as we can learn, that is about all us poor folks will be able to purchase, even were there no restrictions. A pound of sugar each week ought to be enough to keep the average person sweet.

Nine Months School.

Statesville voters approved a supplementary tax to provide a nine-month-term for schools in that city at an election Tuesday. Of a total registration of 1,230 voters there were 1,077 votes cast for and 25 against.

Little Stingers.

From The Yellow Jacket

You can't expect much when people leave their government to politicians, their charities to organizations, their religion to paid preachers more interested in their souls.

If somebody don't begin to fill up the holes and cracks where the substance of the country is leaking thru, something terrible is going to happen. A stitch in time saves nine.

The late Senator Borah once said: "When a country becomes indifferent to injustice, when it loses its capacity for indignation and anger, it has begun to decay." Yes, and the truth of that remark is in evidence today on a grand scale.

Don't you think things have come to a heck of a pass when a man without a union card has about as much chance to be a free American and secure a job as a snowball has of becoming an icicle in the infernal regions?

Speaking of the power of liquor in influencing men to evil, suggests this question: What notable American was basely murdered by a man who was bribed to commit the crime inconsideration of a barrel of rum? Send us a club along with your answer.

Old Hitler keeps informing Joe Stalin that his Russian armies have been annihilated, but Stalin pretends he is an illiterate cuss and can't read or understand German, so he keeps on fighting. It's hard to lick a man that hasn't got sense enough to know when he's licked.

See where a war correspondent says that the lowly louse may defeat Hitler and change the course of history. If so let there be lice and more lice until the last drop of blood is sucked from the blood-spilling Huns. As it was in the days of Pharaoh, may lice cover the whole German clan until there are lice on man and least from Hamburg to Hensidam.

Did you ever stop to contemplate what is going to happen when the last cent of credit has been used up and there are no more dollars to be a plied in the form of government charity? With the coming of that time we may expect the darkest hour this country has ever witnessed.

The Senator Is Right.

We hasten to agree with Senator Vandenberg, Michigan Republican, who has entered a protest in the Senate against a War Department call for bids on three thousand rubber cuspidor mats.

With civilians facing the probability of having to walk because of the ban on the purchase of tires due to rubber shortage, it is absurd that such an order was even considered.

As Senator Vandenberg suggests, it would be better to give the War Department officers a course in straight spitting. The three thousand pounds of rubber necessary for manufacturing the mats is no small item in view of the general situation. It might even be well to turn in the heavy brass cuspidors for scrap metal and substitute ash cans.

The incident has its funny side, of course, but it also serves to stress the governmental tendency to ignore practicalities when it comes to Federal business.

The abandon with which the War Department proposes to continue using rubber mats as usual regardless of the self-denials to which the rubber shortage is subjecting the masses, is on a par with the congressional propensity to continue appropriating large sums for non-essential pork-barrel spending.

Let us hope that the Washington officials as well as the people will wake up to the fact that the nation is a war, and govern themselves accordingly.—Hickory Record.

One Way Around.

The American people are having tire trouble. There is the prospect that they will have more of it, and maybe worse, before the situation gets better. In the meantime they are turning their eyes longingly to the noisy, lumbering old interurban railways, most of which are rusting from disuse. And the railroads, after all, may not be able to yank their trains off unprofitable runs and tear up their tracks to provide steel for other and more urgent purposes.

Likewise there is the prediction that the population trend to towns and cities will be halted, if not reversed. Mechanics and artisans who now are earning their keep in the cities and spending their dollars where and how they please—some of it for flivvers and gasoline to take them to and fro—may have to rent a couple rooms in town for the duration and sacrifice the joys of country life for the chicken-cooping in town.

But much of this could be avoided by a little common-sense planning. Under the present set-up a dozen cars are often used in bringing as many workers to their jobs in the cities. A little systematizing would enable two such vehicles to serve the dozen. It would not be as convenient of course, but wholesale employment of that principle would meet the argument that defense workers must be provided for. And certainly when these are given preferential treatment, everybody and his brother will be defense worker.

Right now we'd guess that the nation's automobile transportation costs could be cut by one-third under systematic planning that would fill every car to capacity—or keep it in the garage. That would pinch like the dickens and would interfere with the perspective of those who think it can't happen here. But we may as well make up our minds to sacrifice a lot of things, one of which may be plenty of elbow room in the family flivver.—Statesville Daily.

Perhaps He Got Hot About Something Hot.

The most forgetful man in the world has been found, or at least his clothes have been found.

Both Dobson draft board No. 2 and Mt. Airy draft board No. 1 have received word from the Forsyth county draft office that someone included in quotas sent from Surry for examination recently left behind the following articles. One coat, one pair shoes, one pair socks, one shirt, three undershirts, and a hat.

The clerk of the Forsyth board in writing to the two Surry boards said: "It was the coldest night of the year and I do not see how it was possible for a man to get away without his shoes."

The army had better watch out for such a soldier he might forget to take his gun into battle with him.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK.—Encouraging news is that we may keep our rubber heels, and if we have to travel on them, instead of on rubber tires, it won't be the fault of the

Small, Still Voice Of Scientists Now More Audible
Dr. Elmer W. Brandes, head of the bureau of plant industry of the department of agriculture.

For many years, Dr. Brandes has been exploring rubber jungles, wherever he can find them, studying rubber-yielding plants and staking out for the government useful data and techniques. Currently, he tells the house agriculture committee about the urgency of planting large areas of the guayule shrub. This time, the committee is listening more intently. Germany is far ahead of us in synthetic rubber production.

On occasion, Dr. Brandes has worked up a pleasant friendship with head-hunters, and should be able to get on friendly terms with congressmen. It was in August, 1928, that he landed his hydroplane in a jungle river in New Guinea. It scared the wits out of the pygmy head-hunters. But the genial and conspicuously unarmed Dr. Brandes lured them into his camp by friendly gestures and they became friends and co-operators. He has flown many thousands of lone jungle air leagues on many research expeditions to Central and South America, Asia and the Pacific islands. In July, 1940, congress provided $500,000 for a study of crude rubber in the Western hemisphere. Dr. Brandes flew to Brazil and is now offering to congress the result of his researches there.

He was born in Washington in 1891, was educated in science at Michigan State college, Cornell and the University of Michigan, taught at Michigan State and entered the government service as a plant pathologist at the Puerto Rico agricultural experiment station in 1914. He served in the World war, as a second lieutenant, in France.

THERE is one section of the populace which won't be bothered much by all this rationing of food, clothes, automobile tires and household goods. It is the group which is, for the most part, the most 'Morale Builders' part, a stranger to such luxuries. One of them asked me for a dime today.

"We gotta work fast," he said, "before the government gets all the loose dimes." If, as reported, morale is good among people who are hungry and cold, the Salvation Army has helped, and will help, greatly to this end. And rating many new stars in his crown, or cap, is Col. John J. Allan, just now becoming the Army's lieutenant commissioner for 11 central states, with headquarters at Chicago.

When, as a young man, getting a start as a jeweler, John James Allan decided to give his life to the Salvation Army, he disguised himself as a derelict, when he went down into New York's Bowery. He shared their flop-houses, wore ragged clothes and took his hand-out where he found it. "Condescending to men of low estate," in the scriptural phrase, he found reciprocal understanding when he shared their troubles. That was the start of his career of kindly and aggressive friendliness as an evangelist, and champion of the down-but-never-outs, and as a cornetist for the Bowery and for King George of England—at a command performance in 1904. He was for three years a soloist with Reeves American band of Providence, R. I.

He is the father of the United Service Organizations. It was on October 11, 1940, that he met with executives of the Y.M.C.A., the Knights of Columbus and the Jewish Welfare organization for united effort among the soldiers, and out of this meeting came the U.S.O.

He is married, the father of five children. He was born in Hazelton, Pa., in 1887, his mother having been born near Nottingham, England, a stone's throw from the home of General Booth. In the World war, he was senior chaplain of the Seventy-seventh division in France, the first Salvation Army chaplain in the American armed forces. He won the French Croix de Guerre and later received the rank of major chaplain of the U. S. army. In 1925, he entered the army reserve corps, and his "Colonel" is a military title. He was in Salvation Army work in Newark from 1923 to 1925 and thereafter in Columbus, Ohio, for eight years, managing the Greenwood Lake Camp for Children. He never trumpets himself, but the Army does.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO
By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

MICKEY ROONEY'S marriage to Ava Gardner, the pretty girl from North Carolina whose movie career has so far consisted of a few minor roles, depleted the ranks of Hollywood eligibles—and that's a serious problem. There has never been enough bachelors there to go around. Now the draft, enlistment in the armed forces, and matrimony have made it harder than ever for a pretty, unattached girl to find a presentable, unattached, male escort.

Franchot Tone, George Brent, Rooney himself—all seemed bent on pursuing the single life, no matter how many girls they were said to be engaged to. Then matrimony hit them all, like a hurricane. Pity the press agents, who'll have to find substitutes, when they want to get publicity for a film starlet by announcing her engagement to a movie celebrity!

The dearth of bachelors isn't going to bother Martha O'Driscoll, Paramount starlet; she herself removed one from circulation when she announced her engagement to Walter Brewer, a non-professional, and the brother of Mrs. Hal Roach Jr. She appeared in "Reap the Wild Wind" in one of the principal roles and recently finished work in "Pacific Blackout" in the feminine lead.

Betty Field has had a lot of good roles, but they've been non-dressy ones; in "Shepherd of the Hills" she wore makeup on her body that made it look as if she were covered with dirt, in addition to having drab clothing. Now, in "Mr. and Mrs. Cugat," in which she is co-starred with Ray Milland, she has 15 changes of clothing—Edith Head, who designed the garments, said she had the highest budget wardrobe that Paramount will provide for any of its glamour stars this year, so far once Betty will have something to wear on the screen!

Claudette Colbert goes Betty Field one better, though—she wears two wedding gowns in "The Palm Beach Story," in which she marries Joel McCrea twice—once in 1937, once in 1942—and both costumes are tops.

When the call to duty came, it found Carole Lombard ready and obedient. She did not lose her life in that call, she gave it, as willingly and freely as any soldier upon the battlefield. Her memory shall be cherished and revered down the ages by all who love that honor and freedom for which the fun-loving beloved wife of Clark Gable made the supreme sacrifice, when an airplane, carrying the film star, her mother and 20 others, including 15 army fliers, crashed near Las Vegas, Nev., none surviving. Miss Lombard was returning to Hollywood from Indianapolis, where she had gone to assist the U. S. treasury in the sale of defense bonds.

Paulette Goddard takes to the woods in "The Forest Rangers," playing a girl of the backwoods who contends with a city-bred rival for the affections of Fred MacMurray. Seems as if it would have been more appropriate to let her play city gal!

They tell us there's a new word for "oomph," which Hollywood had been tirelessly hunting. Help came from the army. A buck private was visiting the Paramount studio, and saw Jean Phillips, blonde ex-stardom, who'd just finished a co-starring role in "Dr. Broadway." He looked at her once, twice, and turned to the bystanders. "Wow!" said he. "She's got wood!"

ODDS AND ENDS—Bandleader Sammy Kaye, who, with Don Reid, wrote the stirring song, "Remember Pearl Harbor," is donating all the royalties from sheet and record sales to Navy Relief. . . . If you've made a habit of listening to those heart-stirring radio programs in which evacuated British children talk to their parents at home, you'll be glad to hear that Metro has bought "Journey to Margaret," a book about one such child. . . . Chester Morris and Jean Parker, co-starring in "Torpedo Boat," both wore something red on the first day of shooting. . . . Victor Borg tries out his routines for the Crosby programs on the pre-view audiences of other people's broadcasts.

Antique Finish on Furniture
PAINTED furniture in white or light cream usually becomes more attractive when given a finish known as "antique." In its application the painted finish of the furniture should be thoroughly dry, and if necessary, smoothed with very fine sandpaper. A coat of a thin varnish, known as a glaze, is then applied liberally. This glaze is not clear, but is tinted either with dark brown or with black. While the glaze is still wet, it is wiped off with lintless cheese-cloth in such a way that a very thin coat is left on the flat surfaces, while more is left in the carvings and moldings. The effect is to produce a shading that goes from fairly deep tones to so light a tone that it can hardly be noticed. Examination of articles of antique finish at a furniture store will give the idea. If glaze cannot be had, it can be made by thinning varnish with one-fourth as much turpentine, and tinting with color-in-och; the kind that comes in tubes.

Damp Basement

Question: The basement of our two-year-old house feels damp, although there is no standing water in it. We have six-inch cement channels under the rainwater leaders, but no underground drains, as we were warned that these might be troublesome. Is the trouble in the foundation? Is the dampness to blame for the appearance of many cobwebs at the windows?
Answer: When rainwater leaders discharge close to a house, the water may work back to the foundation walls and make the cellar damp. This is probably your trouble. The discharge should be at least 15 feet away. To get rid of the cobwebs, pull them down as they appear with a vacuum cleaner, and spray the space with an insect liquid. Work it into all cracks and joints in the woodwork and elsewhere, for it is there that spider eggs develop.

Cupboard Drawer Dust

Question: My cupboard drawers deposit wood dust on the shelves underneath. We have put in metal strips for the drawers to run on, but still find dust particles.
Answer: That dust is worn from the edges of the drawers as they slide in and out. Rubbing all the wearing parts with paraffine will end the trouble, and will also make the drawers slide more easily.

Floor Board Cracks

Question: In my hundred year old house there are cracks between the boards of the pine floors. What filler can I use that will stay in?
Answer: First, nail the boards solidly to the beams; you can toenail them at the edges. Then cut strips of pine to fit the cracks and nail them in with finishing nails.

Patched Stucco

Question: Three sides of my stucco house are in good condition. Cracks on the front side have been patched, and the patches spoil the looks. Could I have this side shingled over the stucco? Or must the stucco first be taken off?
Answer: Shingles can be put on over the stucco through the use of hardened steel nails, which are on the market for just such a purpose. Ordinary nails would bend on being driven into stucco, but these hard nails will do the trick. If your house is detached, its appearance with three sides of stucco and the front shingled might be odd. The effect would be better if the defective stucco is taken off and replaced.

Cabin Ventilation

Question: How can the attic of a cabin be ventilated? Are ventilators made that can be opened in summer and closed in winter? What ventilating device can be put in the ceiling over the stove?
Answer: Lumber yards and dealers in building material carry louvers made either of metal or of wood to be put high in the ends of the gables. These have shutters that can be closed in winter and are made with insect screens. To carry off smoke and vapors from a stove, build a hood over it, with a ventilating pipe passing through the ceiling to an outlet in the roof. The hood can be made of sheet metal, plasterboard, or anything similar.

Painting Cake Boxes

Question: In redecorating kitchen sets, such as cake and bread boxes, I do not seem to have the right oil, so that paint will take on the appearance of enamel. Can you tell me what to use?
Answer: For best results, you should start with the thorough cleaning of the boxes with sandpaper to take off old paint and for the slight roughening of the metal surface. Then put on one coat of enamel undercoat and a finish coat of enamel. These two should be of the same color, and for best results, made by the same manufacturer.

Cellophane on Windows

Question: I understand cellophane can be used on windows to keep out drafts. Can you advise me on this?
Answer: Windows have been covered with cellophane which will keep out drafts, providing there is an open space of at least two inches between the glass and the cellophane. It should be fastened on the inside of the window frame (the full length of the window) with scotch tape. This tape can be bought at most paint stores. Of course, windows closed up in this manner cannot be opened for the usual airing

Luscious to Look At and Eat, Too... Orange Sponge Cake

(See Recipes Below)

Snacks, II

"What shall I serve to guests who drop in for an evening of bridge or for a chat?" This is a question I've heard many hostesses ask, especially often during colder weather when visiting time really comes in favor again. The answer is simple, for a delectable cake with steaming coffee or hot drink turns the trick.

Your guests will have finished their supper only a short time before, and since snacks do not come late in the evening, it is best to serve something not too heavy. Light cakes, preferably those with a touch of piquancy and tartness, fill the bill perfectly. These cakes may be baked in one of your not-so-busy moments to have on hand for just such an occasion.

Hot drinks are favorites in the chilling weather. If you like coffee, be sure to have quantities of the steaming beverage on hand. If you're on the lookout for new ideas, there are the hot fruit juice combinations which hit the spot. Either type of drink goes well with these dessert-like cakes.

Here's the first cake on our list. It's like spun gold in color with just the right tartness. You'll find that the navel oranges which peel and separate easily into sections will be perfect for decorating the cake as pictured above:

- *Orange Sponge Cake.
5 egg yolks
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup orange juice
1/2 cup water
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
5 egg whites
Beat egg yolks, sugar and orange juice until light. Add water and beat 2 minutes. Add flour sifted with baking powder and salt. Beat 1 minute or until thoroughly blended into egg mixture, fold in grated orange peel and egg whites beaten stiff but not dry. Bake in 8-inch ungreased tube pan in a moderate (350-degree) oven 70 minutes. Invert pan until cake is cold. Remove. Cut in three cross-wise layers.
- *Gold Topping.
1/4 cup cold water
1 tablespoon gelatin
4 egg yolks
1/4 cup sugar
1 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
4 egg whites
1/4 cup sugar
Orange sections
Soften gelatin in water. Cook egg yolks, sugar and orange juice in top of double boiler until thick. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add grated peel and cool mixture. Beat egg whites stiff, adding 1/4 cup sugar and fold into cooked orange mixture. Spread between layers and on top.

- *Lemon Cake-Pie.
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 lemon
Blend the sugar and butter, add beaten egg yolks, milk, flour and the juice and rind of the lemon. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into an ungreased pie-crust. Bake in a slow (325-degree) oven 35 to 40 minutes. The top will be like a sponge cake and underneath there's a soft, firm custard.
- *Pumpkin Pie.
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon cloves
2 cups cooked canned pumpkin
1 cup cream, rich milk or undiluted evaporated milk
1 cup orange juice
Mix sugar, spices, salt. Add slightly beaten eggs, pumpkin, cream or milk, and orange juice. Pour into an ungreased 10-inch pie shell. Bake at (450 degree) for 10 minutes, and then in a moderate (350-degree) oven for about 50 minutes or until knife comes out clean when inserted in filling. Serve with whipped cream garnished with grated orange peel.

Lynn Says:
Hot mulled fruit juices lend tang to winter evening snacks. You can have hot mulled cider by heating the cider and adding 1 teaspoon whole cloves and 1 stick of cinnamon (tied in a bag) while the cider is heating.

Here's another mulled fruit juice served piping hot: Tie in a bag, 12 whole cloves, 1 3-inch stick of cinnamon, and 1 whole nutmeg. Empty a large can of apple juice and a 12-ounce can of cherry juice in the saucepan and add spices. Heat, remove spices and serve. This recipe takes care of eight people.

Hot spiced lemon tea has lots of pick-up. Make it by pouring 5 cups boiling water over 6 teaspoons of black tea. Steep 5 minutes, then strain. Dissolve 1/4 cup sugar in 1/4 cup boiling water. Combine 6 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel, 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon and 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves, and add to hot tea. Serve at once, garnished with lemon slices. Serves 6.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for February 8

A BUSY SABBATH IN CAPERNAUM

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:21-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day.—Revelation 1:10.

The Sabbath of the Jew and the Lord's Day (Sunday) of the Christian were both intended to be days of rest. The ordinary activities of life were to cease and one was to be free to worship and to rest. The manner in which a man uses this God-given day of rest is a remarkably accurate indicator of his spiritual condition.

We have before us the account of a very busy Sabbath day which our Lord spent in Capernaum, the city in which most of His mighty works were done, but which ignored Him and His teaching to its own destruction (see Matt. 11:23, 24). As we look at our Lord's activity on that day we learn what we may do with our Sundays to make them bear fruit for eternity. We find Him in three places.

I. In the Church (vv. 21-28).

The Sabbath day found our Lord with His people in the synagogue, their place of worship. The service of worship was probably formal and lacking in spiritual vitality, but none-the-less He was there. What have we to say if we miss the opportunity for fellowship and service which church attendance brings us? Observe that because He was there He (as a distinguished religious teacher) was called upon to teach the people. He taught them in the serene consciousness of His divine authority, and the people were delighted and astonished at His message. We may not serve exactly as He did, but if we present ourselves in God's house on His day we will find the way opening for us to share in the worship.

Jesus not only spoke, but He performed a miracle. Certain it is that we could not do what He did, but we can be ready to give ourselves in service as well as in worship, or in speaking. There is much work to be done in the church, and God's people should be ready and willing to do it.

II. In the Home (vv. 29-31).

From the synagogue Christ went into the home. How appropriate! We too should go from the church to the home, always bringing with us the strength and blessing of the worship service. The daughter of a great preacher and Bible teacher said the thing she most loved in her father was that he did not give out the "cream" of his Christianity in his meetings and bring home the "skim milk." Too often we fail to bring into the home the power and beauty of the service in the church. We who have been very sweet and spiritual in the church should not come home to be sour and crabbed.

Jesus brought a blessing into Peter's home, miraculously healing his mother-in-law of a great fever, setting her free to serve. Here again we cannot do what He did, but we can, in His name, bring power and blessing into our homes.

III. In the City (vv. 32-34).

From the home the ministry of Jesus reached out to the entire city. As the strict laws forbidding travel on the Jewish Sabbath were set aside by the coming of sundown, not only the city but the entire countryside brought their sick and needy to Him.

The scene staggers the imagination as one attempts to conceive of this coming together of troubled humanity for the Master's touch. Mark tells us that He healed many; Matthew, that He healed all, and Luke, the physician, is emphatic in saying that He healed every one of them.

We may learn from this incident that our Christian faith, which has been developed and strengthened by our time of worship and service in the church, should not only reflect itself in the home, but should reach out into the life of the community in which we live. The primary interest of the Christian in his city or the place of his residence should be spiritual, a desire to bring to bear upon the people of the community the power of the gospel.

There is, however, a secondary responsibility which is of much importance and that is the extending of Christian influence into every phase of school, social, political, and business life. It is said that when D. L. Moody came into a barber shop the entire course of the conversation changed. The Christian should have an influence on problems of social welfare, the work of the public schools, the proper conduct of business in the community, and surely upon its political life. It is said that if every Christian in America would vote according to his professed convictions we could put the saloons out of business in a single election. Why not do it?

Household Hints

Water should never be poured on burning fat. It will spread the blaze. Flour will extinguish the blaze.

Always store baking powder in a tightly covered container. If it is exposed to the air some of the strength will be lost.

Store dried fruits in their original packages, tightly covered, or place them in covered fruit jars. It is best not to wash them until time to use.

A raw potato put in soup that has too much salt in it and boiled for 10 minutes will remove the salty taste.

Fruit cake makes a delicious pudding served with either hard or hot sauce. Steam the fruit cake before serving.

Always cut toast in small squares when making cream toast. It is much easier served cut in this way.

The unsightly ring left by cleaning fluids, when used to remove spots, may be avoided by placing under the spot a pad made of thick absorbent cotton.

To remove brown stains from light-colored ranges, dip a cloth in turpentine and apply to stains. With a little pressure the stains will come off.

Apply paint remover with a brush. When paint begins to curl remove with a putty knife. Remover takes time and cannot be hurried.

Many Go This Month.

Although no information can be made available from the local selective service office as to calls or prospective calls for men for army service in the future, other sources quote state selective service officials at Raleigh as saying that all men given examinations by army doctors last month and prior thereto who have not been called are expected to go to camp during February. When men have been selected for induction in any particular quota then these can be announced by the local board, it is stated, and this may be done in advance of the departure of the men from here.—The Dispatch.

The Sheffield ground hog committee met the ground hog at Sheffield Monday morning Feb. 2nd. The meeting was called to order and the ground hog was elected chairman. Said hog made a speech and thanked the people of the Sheffield community for the kindness toward him and promised them that he would do everything in his power for the farmers in this section. He was asked what about the day light saving time he said that no one could change the sun and that is what he went by. He was asked about the war and said we all must unite and whip Hell out of the Japs and then the sun began to shine and he left for his hole for 40 days more of winter and said we could hope for the best, but prepare for the worst.

Letter From A Davie Boy in Camp

Dear Mr. Stroud:—Since I have not written in such a long time, I guess you are thinking that when a fellow gets far away from home he just forgets all his friends. I haven't forgotten any of the folks in Davie, and it seems that since I've been up here and haven't been home lately, I think more of my friends and wonder how everyone is getting along.

I have been in this camp since October and like it fine here except the cold weather. We are located near Cape Cod, and it gets awful cold sometimes. I understand you have had some pretty cold weather in Davie and also a little snow. It has snowed only once up here this winter, and that was about seven inches. It only lasted a few days. The atmosphere is so damp and salty that snow doesn't last long.

It looks as though the army is going to get all the boys around home and everywhere else. I'm just wondering what all the girls are going to say. (censored) In order to keep our freedom and liberty we must all make sacrifices and have more unity and closer cooperation. I'm sure the people of Davie will do their part, for they always have.

I've talked with several of the boys that were in Carolina on maneuvers, and they all said that they were treated with more respect and made to feel more at home than anywhere they had ever been. They sure did boost the Southern fried chicken and beautiful girls. A lot of them married girls they met while down there.

The people around here have been unusually nice to us, and the most of them will go out of their way to make us feel at home. They have dances and parties, or some sort of activities for the soldiers nearly every night.

I'm still getting The Record every week, and you can bet I enjoy getting the news of Davie. I'm sorry to hear about the different deaths, and the families have my deepest sympathy. I would like to hear from anyone who wishes to write me. Here's hoping we'll win the war and all be at home soon, and if they all use the fighting spirit of good old Davie, we will win. Luck and good wishes.

County Superintendent R. S. Proctor advises us that, beginning next Monday, Feb. 9th, all Davie county schools will open at 9:30 a. m., daylight saving time. This means that the schools will operate on the present schedule. We think this is an excellent idea, as school children who are transported on buses would have had to leave home long before daylight had the opening time been advanced one hour.

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland, pretty secretary to Arthur Mulford, San Francisco importer, is amazed and angry when he unexpectedly discharges her with two weeks' salary and refuses to give any explanation for the act. The bewildered girl arrives at the studio apartment shared with her sister Sybil, feeling thankful that one of them still has a position, only to be told by her sister that the beauty salon, where she is employed, is closing up. Reading the want ads that evening, Joan decides to answer one calling for a secretary, willing to put in some night hours. Over the protests of Sybil, she goes to the address given, and finds it to be a new night club. The handsome proprietor, Karl Miller, engages her at once at fifty dollars a week "considering the unusual hours."

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER II

"Just a minute, Miss Leland. I'll give you two weeks' salary in advance."

Joan colored. Did Mr. Miller think she needed money? "It won't be necessary."

He laughed. "You will find that I do business in my own way. It is quite customary for me to pay my employees in advance."

She felt embarrassed and rebuffed as he wrote out a check and handed it to her, but she said quietly, "Thank you very much, Mr. Miller."

He opened the door for her and their hands touched on the knob. Blue eyes gazed into green. He was very close to her.

"I'll expect you tomorrow, then."

She felt a personal significance in each of these unimportant words.

"Good night, Mr. Miller!"

"Good night, Miss Leland." Again she noticed the soft, thick accent, the trick of speaking without moving the lips. He was still smiling as she closed the door.

It was almost eleven when Joan arrived home.

"You said you'd telephone," Sybil reminded her. "What happened?"

Without removing hat or coat Joan sank down before the fire. "I got the job all right, Syb. It's a night club. A man named Karl Miller."

"You don't seem very excited," Sybil commented.

"He's the most interesting man I've ever seen," Joan said softly.

"What goes on?" Sybil exploded. "Have you lost your mind?"

Joan rose and laughed shakily. "Sorry, Sybil. Anyway, I have a job starting tomorrow and the salary is fifty dollars a week."

"Fifty dollars a week!" Sybil frowned. "There's something wrong with this picture! That's too good a salary for a job without a reference. I don't like it, Joan. What's this Karl Miller like?"

Joan yawned and went into the bedroom. "Take it easy, darling! No doubt he is all right. Come on to bed, Syb. Let's not argue about it tonight."

Sybil opened the windows to the screaming wail of foghorns.

"What are your hours?"

"I don't have to be there until two and I work until around midnight."

"Joan, I'm not going to let you take that job! There's something phony about it."

Joan pulled the covers up over her chin. Her hair spilled like liquid jet over the white pillow case.

"It will be fun working at a night club. I'm almost glad that Mr. Mulford fired me."

Sybil would the last golden curl on a bobby pin and tied a net over her hair. "You're getting into something. I have a feeling."

"At least I won't be bored. You know, Syb, I've always wanted to have something exciting happen to me."

"Something like Karl Miller?" Sybil questioned, shrewdly.

"Perhaps!"

Sybil snapped off the light. "Don't be foolish, Joan! You couldn't possibly be in love with a man you've met only once."

Joan smiled in the darkness.

"Why not?"

"Because that isn't love! If you'd ever really been in love, you'd know the difference."

"Maybe I already know the difference," Joan thought, remembering a pair of shrewd blue eyes.

"Infatuation and love are two different things," Sybil's voice cut through the darkness.

But Joan was hearing another voice, a voice that put intimacy into the most commonplace words as it said, "I'll expect you tomorrow."

But Sybil lay awake, shivering in spite of the warm covers, wondering, almost afraid of a tomorrow that might be fraught with sinister significance, a significance she felt and mistrusted.

Joan's first day as Karl Miller's secretary was uneventful. The Club Elite was in the hands of painters and decorators who made so much noise and confusion that it penetrated even to the inner office. From two to five Joan worked harder than ever before in her life. Karl was particular. He scrutinized each letter she typed with a quick sweep of his blue eyes. His very presence made Joan nervous.

"I want you to memorize every name in this book," he told her, indicating a small, leather volume. "I speak to no one, in person, or over the telephone, unless the name is here. You understand?"

"You're working for the boss," he reminded her, smiling, "I'll see that we're through early."

He took a red carnation from the vase on the desk, broke the stem and inserted the flower in his buttonhole. But his eyes did not miss the flicker of expression that crossed Joan's face when she opened the book and came to the name of Arthur Mulford.

"I told you I have been in the importing business. I knew your former boss."

"Yes, Mr. Miller," Joan was too good a secretary to question his word. She turned back to her typewriter. It was almost six o'clock before Karl said, "All right, Joan, you may go now. You don't have to be back until eight-thirty."

The unexpected use of her first name sent a thrill of anticipation through the girl. She paused a moment before she opened the door, hoping that he would say something else, but Karl turned and began talking over the telephone.

"I must be crazy," Joan told herself as she hurried down the long corridor. "He hasn't any more interest in me than if I were part of the furniture."

She had dinner at a small restaurant, sipping hot coffee gratefully. She remembered with a wry smile that Sybil was worried about her salary. She could understand now why Karl thought the job was worth fifty dollars a week! She was as tired already as if she had put in a full day.

She lingered over her dessert and walked slowly back to work, pausing on the way to look in the shop windows. But she could not fill up two hours and a half and it was only a few minutes before eight when she pushed open the door of the Club Elite.

An orchestra was rehearsing in the dimly lit salon. Karl Miller sat on one of the gilt chairs listening. His keen eyes spotted Joan instantly.

"Sit down," he directed. "What do you think of the band?"

"It sounds grand," she felt the old sensation of self-consciousness. What was this peculiar excitement that seized her wherever he smiled at her?

"Is anything wrong, Joan?"

He was so sure of himself, so smooth. It made her feel like a schoolgirl. She felt positive that he knew the emotions that were racing through her heart. Positive that he knew the attraction he had for her. "Nothing! Why should there be?"

He laughed then, throwing back his head. But the laughter made her angry.

"I'd better get back to work," she said. "There's a lot to do."

He caught her hand as she rose. "How would you like to go dancing with me Friday night?"

His proposal took her by complete surprise. "Why, Mr. Miller, I'd love to."

He released her hand. "I would prefer that you call me Karl."

"All right, Karl. But what about working Friday night?"

"You're working for the boss," he reminded her, smiling. "I'll see that we're through early."

Joan did not tell Sybil about her date until the time came. Her sister did not approve.

"Going out with the boss never works," Sybil insisted stubbornly. "Honestly, Joan, I don't know what's come over you. You're not using your head at all. There's something funny about this whole business—and this man!"

"Let's not go over it again," Joan said happily. "When you see Karl Miller you'll understand why I'm so crazy about him."

Sybil sat down on the bed and watched her sister apply make-up. "If he's opening the club tomorrow, why is he running around tonight? Why isn't he in the office taking care of things?"

"That's his business, isn't it? Look, Syb, will you light the fire in the living room? I want everything to look nice."

"Nice and cozy!" sniffed Sybil. "Okay. But don't think I'm going to be the retiring sister and stay in the bedroom. I'm going to be right there to meet him."

Joan slipped into the new black velvet dinner dress she had purchased before she saw Karl Miller. She had been knowing it for an

Few More Years Would Have Toughened Uncle

The oldest inhabitant had celebrated his hundredth birthday and the reporter of a local paper called on him for an interview.

"To what do you attribute your longevity?" the reporter inquired.

The centenarian paused a moment and then, holding up his hand and ticking off the items on his fingers, began: "I never drank alcoholic liquors, or over-ate, and I always rise at six in the morning."

"But," protested the reporter, "I had an uncle who acted in that way, yet he only lived to be eighty. How do you account for that?"

"He didn't keep it up long enough," was the calm reply.

TUNE IN RED SKELTON AND OZZIE NELSON EVERY TUESDAY NIGHT, NBC RED NETWORK

by L. L. STEVENSON

Metor: When the duke of Windsor made his last visit to this country as prince of Wales several years ago, his guard was J. L. Nye—commonly known as "Bill" Nye—of the United States secret service, who is now an executive with the Guaranty Trust company. At the large formal ball given for the prince by Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, his royal highness asked Nye how he would know with which of the ladies he should dance. "Just watch me," replied Nye, "if I dance with a guest, it will be all right for you to do so."

The prince followed the advice and everything went well. But it seems that the scheme leaked out and Nye then became the most popular person at the party.

Incidentally, during the recent visit of the duke and duchess of Windsor, Nye was absent from his bank duties. He was again guarding the duke.

Delay: New York motorists who travel the Merritt highway, that marvelous Connecticut roadway that starts at the end of Hutchinson parkway, have been puzzled by being stopped night and morning by red flags while 40 or more cows saunter lazily across. Bugs Baer finally has come through with an explanation. It seems that when the highway was built, a farmer living along it retained the right-of-way for his cows to cross twice a day. So, rather than build an underpass, which would run into money, the state permits him to hold up all traffic until his herd is safely over the highway. Most motorists, particularly those from New York, who use the Merritt highway, are in a hurry. As everyone knows, cows never are. So there is much fretting and fuming on the part of the drivers, all the more so because they pay a dime to use the highway.

Far West: At the rodeo in Madison Square Garden, a trim, blonde young woman, in a white cowboy outfit and wearing a white 10-gallon hat sat on the chute and cheered the riders, all of whom she knew well. With her was a cowboy, a chunky, solid sort of a man of the open spaces who neither drinks nor smokes. The cowgirl was Sally Rand and the cowboy, her fiance, Turk Greene, the Cheyenne champion. When the rodeo moved on to Boston, the fan dancer and her cowboy went right along. Some day after their wedding, they intend to settle down on a Montana ranch.

Thoughtful: Some time ago, Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker, was entertaining Joe Cook at his country home at Stamford. In the course of a discussion, a question came up which could be settled only by consulting the Bible. Unfortunately, the Ross household did not possess a copy of the Scriptures. Cook promised to take care of the deficiency. Apparently he did so by requesting all members of the large cast of the musical show with which he was appearing on the road, to send Ross a Bible. The comics, singers, show girls, chorus girls and others sent Bibles with the result that now in the Ross library, there is a whole shelf full of them. In fact he has so many that recently he made a present of one—a Bible, not a show girl—to one of this department's alert scouts.

Hicks: Visitors needn't be royal to make New York stare. Any celebrity will do. The other night at "Candle in the Wind," Charles Boyer was in the audience. Not only did those sitting in the balcony rise to their feet and crowd forward to see him as he passed along the aisle, but occupants of the highest-priced pews stood so that they might give him a gander. And when the play was over, crowds congested the sidewalk in front of the theater until shooed away by cops. Sometimes I think there are more Hicks in New York than anywhere else.

On Park Avenue: The driver of an automobile, the jammed horn of which has been sounding for several minutes, bangs down the hood and begins kicking the tires.

FARM PRIORITIES ARE EXPLAINED

Individual Ratings Are Not Needed for Some Items.

By M. CLIFFORD TOWNSEND
 (Director, Office of Agricultural Defense Relations.)

Individual farmers are not required to have priority ratings of any kind under the defense program in order to purchase ordinary farm machinery, equipment, repair parts, fertilizers, insecticides, nails, fencing, roofing or similar items.

Priority ratings on equipment and supplies such as these are issued by the Office of Production Management to manufacturers, processors and warehousemen in order to avoid having individuals obtain ratings.

So far as the individual farmer is concerned, he does not have to have a priority rating of any kind to buy his ordinary requirements. There may be things he may not be able to get, such as aluminum pressure cookers, but in cases like this the manufacturer and not the individual farmer is the one affected by the priority rating. On special classes of machinery which are used for purposes other than farming, such as heavy duty electric motors, a preference rating will be necessary. This can be applied for on what is known as a PD-1 form obtainable from the Office of Production Management.

A number of letters have been received from farmers saying their local retailers had advised them it was necessary to secure a "priority rating" before making certain purchases.

Individual farmers who are asked to secure "priority ratings" before making purchases of ordinary equipment or supplies should advise the department of agriculture immediately of the name and address of the dealer and the product on which a priority rating was requested. There's no sense in putting farmers to any more trouble than necessary to get the things they need for food production and we want a chance to explain to the retailers that a "priority rating" is not needed for purchase of products at retail by individuals for ordinary farm or household use.

Blood Transfusions

Save Farm Animals

Blood transfusions, which have saved the lives of thousands of human beings, are now also saving the lives of thousands of dogs, horses, and farm animals—and are being more widely used in veterinary science every day.

"Ring," a collie dog at Waterloo, Iowa, for instance, has given blood to help save the lives of 20 other dogs in the last five years. He gives about a pint of blood for each transfusion and has suffered no ill effect from it, except for a strong craving for water for several days after each transfusion.

Transfusions are also being used for the treatment of navel ill in colts, where it is said that improvement is generally noted within 24 hours after injection of a pint of blood from the dam into the blood stream of the colt. In cases of calf scour, the blood from the dam is also used with excellent results. Sometimes veterinarians also use saline and dextrose solution as a supporting treatment.

In cases of sweet clover poisoning, blood from a herd of cattle which has not had access to clover is now being used to prevent fatalities among clover-poisoned animals.

Although veterinary scientists are unwilling to make definite claims in the matter, according to the American Foundation for Animal Health, they also say that blood from normal or pregnant animals will sometimes overcome certain types of sterility in cattle.

The precautions necessary in human transfusions are also necessary in treating animals. With animals, as with human beings, the blood is seldom transfused directly from one body to another. It is usually drawn into a sterile container before being injected into the sick animal.

It is interesting to note that as new discoveries are made in medical science, they are closely paralleled by similar findings in veterinary science. The American veterinary practitioner is far ahead of other countries in this respect, and his advance in scientific research is perhaps one of the reasons why American livestock is so much better protected from the ravages of diseases and epizootics than the stock of other nations.

Rural Briefs

Cows make their best and most profitable production at from seven to nine years of age, according to a recent study.

A cotton-bagging-for-cotton-bales program, calling for the manufacture and sale of up to 2,000,000 cotton "patterns" or bale covers, has been announced by the U. S. department of agriculture.

FERTILIZER CONSUMPTION REACHES NEW HIGH

Washington, D. C.—An all-time record fertilizer consumption was established when farmers used 8,811,000 tons of commercial fertilizer on their land during the past crop year, according to the annual consumption report of The National Fertilizer Association. This is an increase of more than one-half millions tons over prior years.

"Tonnage figures in themselves do not tell a complete story of plantfood consumption in this banner year, since there has been a significant increase in the amount of plantfood contained in a ton of fertilizer," said Charles J. Brand, Executive Secretary and Treasurer of the Association. "This year's tonnage figure was 16 per cent above 1920, but the amount of plantfood contained and used was 64 per cent greater." It seems likely that another tonnage increase is in store for next year. Tag sale figures for the first six months of 1941 are 6 per cent over 1940.

Now Postman Smith watches mailboxes instead of dogs.

Uruguay to Build Base

To Aid American Defense

MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY. — Early construction of a base for landplanes and seaplanes that would have full command of the vital Rio de la Plata mouth and be available for United States use in the event of war is reported planned by Uruguay.

The base, informed sources said, would include a strip of land facing the Atlantic, which would be used for landplanes, and Laguna Negra for seaplanes and flying boats.

Part of the cost, these sources said, would be met from the $17,500,000 obtained recently from the United States for national defense.

PREVENT DISEASE IN DAIRY HERD

Good Management, Feeding Will Reduce Losses.

By Dr. GEORGE TAYLOR
 (Assistant Dairyman, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Dairymen should think more in terms of herd health and disease prevention and less in terms of treatment and cures.

The value of any dairy animal is dependent primarily upon its health. Prevention of disease is far less costly than disease treatment, and good feeding and management practices can go a long way toward reducing annual losses in dairy herds due to disease.

The ration should supply the proper balance of protein, energy, minerals, and vitamins. Water is also needed.

Quality roughage, including hay, pasture and grass silage, is the most essential item of dairy feed. It is a fair source of calcium and practically the sole source of vitamins A and D in the dairy ration. Concentrates which must be fed to satisfy higher levels of production tend to be toxic to a dairy animal. This effect is largely overcome by the feeding of quality hay when pasture is not available. The long list of ailments in dairy cattle which can be avoided by good feeding includes gopher, bleed, impaction and loss of appetite.

Management ranks with feeding in importance in checking disease. Because the spread of disease is more rapid in large herds, the size of the milking unit should be limited to 50 cows or less. Separate quarters should also be provided for growing heifers and baby calves. Separate isolation and maternity quarters are also desirable.

Strict sanitation is a most important part of management. Regular systematic cleaning and disinfecting will aid materially in keeping down the causative organisms associated with disease.

Dairy animals should be allowed ample exercise under conditions where they may benefit from fresh air and exposure to sunshine.

America's War Victims Appeal for Your Help

First war poster of the new World War, painted by the distinguished artist James Montgomery Flagg, carries an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund to aid the victims of aggression upon the United States and its island possessions.

To aid the victims of warfare being waged upon America and her island possessions, the American Red Cross has issued an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced from the national headquarters in Washington.

Mr. Davis urged men, women and children to give to this mercy fund through their local Red Cross Chapters. These funds will support the Chapter's war work with the families of men in the military services, as well as the broad relief program of the national Red Cross.

President Roosevelt, who is president of the American Red Cross, issued a proclamation urging all citizens to give to the Red Cross war fund.

In launching the appeal, Chairman Davis said:

"There are millions of our citizens who desire today to demonstrate their will to victory over the enemy. Not all can be in the armed forces, and not all can volunteer their services for humanitarian work, but all can volunteer their dollars to arm the Red Cross to be their representative at the scene of battle and distress.

"Today is the day to demonstrate our high morale, our unity, our determination not alone to support our President and our fighting men at the front, but also to insure to our wounded, homeless and suffering fellow citizens in our Pacific Islands that we stand one hundred per cent ready to aid them through the Red Cross."

Looking Across Half A Century

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hidesville, N. C.

I was born February 18, 1894, in Watauga county, Western North Carolina. I'll be fifty-three years old on my next birthday, Feb. 18. This means that I have through a little more than half a century. In one sense we think of half a century as being a long time, but in another sense it is very short. It doesn't seem but a little while since I was a child playing around my mother's knees. It doesn't seem possible that over half a century has come and gone since I first saw the light of day in this old world. It almost seems but yesterday since I went to school the first day as a child. One can scarcely realize that it is such a short space of time from childhood to old age. How fast time goes by! It seems that my playmates of the yesterdays ought to be almost children yet. But they are not. Those who are living have likewise crossed the half century line. Many of them have grandchildren. Perhaps some of them have great-grandchildren. Many of them are hid by the dust of the grave. Others have long since disappeared and I know nothing of them today. Time and space has divided us, and we shall never meet again on earth, in all probability. However, I hope to meet many of them in Heaven some glorious day.

Many things happen in half a century. Great changes take place in our own lives and in our homes. We grow from childhood to manhood and womanhood, and from that to middle age, and from that to old age, if the good Lord spares our lives. There are many shifting scenes in our homes, and in the homes and lives of our loved ones, neighbors, and acquaintances. My old mountain home still stands, yet it doesn't look as it used to. The surroundings are quite different. Father and mother have both passed away. Two sisters have married and reared families, while two remain at the old home place. The community has likewise undergone lots of changes. The old school house where I first started to school, and where I obtained most of my schooling, and where I spent many a pleasant day with dear playmates, has long since disappeared. The old Methodist church where I used to attend Sunday school and preaching, has also disappeared. Quite a number of the preachers I used to know and heard preach, have "crossed the bar" and are forever gone. Dear school teachers have passed away, while others have disappeared and I know nothing of them today. However, the good instructions they gave me still live. Their noble influence has helped me across the years to live godly, soberly and righteously. As a minister of the Gospel, a writer I owe much to them. Not only did they teach me from our text books, and do their best to enable me to grasp knowledge, but they taught us that it is noble and great to live clean, manly, womanly lives, and set such examples before us by their upright, noble lives.

Half a century has brought about many changes also in our country and nation. I have lived through the reign of quite a number of presidents, namely: Grover Cleveland, Wm. McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Woodrow Wilson, Warren Harding, Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover, and through nine years of the presidency of Franklin Roosevelt. Of all the presidents I have known it seems to me that William McKinley was the most godly. He was assassinated. I remember it very well. Gurnation was shocked and saddened by his death. While on his death bed he said, "God's will be done." While he was dying they sang that wonderful old song, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and he joined in the singing with his feeble voice. O, that we had such godly fathers today! In the hands of the nations of earth we wouldn't be in this dreadful World War.

Be Careful About It.

Remember back yonder when William Jennings Bryan and his silver coinage issue was the chief subject of conversation, even at the crackerbarrel convention at every corner grocery? Weren't those the good old days, when compared with what ails us today?

But we reckon that Bryan's fondness for silver did not include a five-cent piece compared of equal parts of silver and copper, instead of one part nickel and three parts copper, as we have handled these parts for many years.

The "nickel" in these coins is needed for other purposes now, and the government announces the government announces that hereafter the five-cent pieces will have none of it. For all the good it is doing out there in that Kentucky vault, the government could form the gold into these needed coins, except that when it decided to recall the metal—there wouldn't be any.

As long as money in any form says what the holder wants he doesn't much care whether it is in the form of seashells or beads. He has been so accustomed to counting pennies, though, that there will be the general hope these won't be tabooed.

But if the government want's a national revolution on its hands, just let it make the new five-cent pieces into a size that won't fit the slot machines. It sure would find itself in a m.s.s. What is more it would thus deprive itself of millions of dollars of revenue, for no matter how hard the lesser governmental units try to outlaw the slots, Uncle Sam continues to call them legal and takes a heavy toll.

Mix and blend the metal that goes into the five-cent piece in any proportion the government wants, it will still be a "nickel" to all of us, and to many it will be used for about the only purpose they have thought was created for—to make a slot machine disgorge. The mint at Washington had better not leave any burrs on it that might serve to jam the slots. It would have another war on its hands, right-off—Statesville Daily

Berlin claims the sinking of twice as many fighting ships as England had, and at last count the Russians had slain a third more German soldiers than had been credited to the eastern front, yet admits there are a few left.—Ex.

Very well. Gurnation was shocked and saddened by his death. While on his death bed he said, "God's will be done." While he was dying they sang that wonderful old song, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and he joined in the singing with his feeble voice. O, that we had such godly fathers today! In the hands of the nations of earth we wouldn't be in this dreadful World War.

I well remember the "horse and buggy days." The great majority of us could not even own a horse and buggy. We did our traveling afoot. I've traveled many thousands of miles afoot. I used to walk fifty and sixty miles at a time and really enjoyed the trip. I well remember when there were no automobiles. The first one I ever saw was at Boone, N. C. That has been upwards of thirty years ago. Before the days of automobiles we had very few highways. Just rough poorly graded, muddy roads. In winter weather it was hard to even travel with a wagon, or horse and buggy, over most of the roads, especially during rainy weather, as the mud was axle deep. I've seen great changes take place in our country by way of good roads and travel. A vast difference now and fifty years ago.

War Time Prohibition.

This newspaper, it will be recalled, was the first North Carolina newspaper to cry out against the government going in the liquor business, especially to the extent of having legal grog shops close by our military camps that our young men may find it just as easy to attend military affairs.

A visit to Fayetteville, with Ft. Bragg close by, will settle once and for all any doubt you may have on this school. Recently the North Carolina Christian Advocate, of Greensboro, the weekly periodical of the North Carolina Methodism carried an editorial on "War Time Prohibition" and we like it so well that we would like to pass it on to our readers who perhaps do not take that paper and so did not see it. It voices our sentiment in so many ways. The editorial is as follows:

In the first world war we had war time prohibition to conserve grain and the other elements that go into alcoholic liquors. We also set ourselves to restore the hurt that comes to the armed forces by the free flow of liquor. Why should we not have prohibition this time when the curse of alcohol is manifest about every army camp? Are the citizens certain to profit by, the liquor trade and the boys to suffer the hurt and degradation that follow the flow of liquor and its attendant vice? Cumberland, New Hanover, Wake, Durham and other counties boast of the millions gathered while no effort is made to clean up the situation in North Carolina. In fact, the doctors tell of the trouble they are having in dealing with venereal disease as liquor and prostitution continue to hold sway. The money derived from liquor stands in the way of bettering present conditions. A similar situation exists in the nation.

This government forces the boys into the camps and into the firing line. It also lays heavy taxes upon the people, but it refuses to restrain or to prohibit the liquor trade in its devastating work. No one dares to throttle king alcohol even in this time of war.

"What can a people under the double curse of war and liquor hope for? Both of these mean devastation and death. From this war at present there is no escape, but we might lay violent hands upon liquor to save our boys and our land from its death dealing work."

We gather up scraps of paper hairpins, old postage stamps and all such in the name of patriotism, while millions upon millions of dollars worth of grain and other food stuffs go into liquor. Is it any wonder that thoughtful and sensible people refuse to listen to many of the pleas for help in this hour? It is the old story of "peuny wise and pound foolish." Once the government lays a vigorous hand on Old John Barleycorn many of the present pleas for sacrifice will come with more force. War time prohibition just now would convince the American people that this Republic is in danger. This would be far more effective than the present efforts to bolster morale by catch slogans and false propaganda.—Union Republican.

Love Passages Of 1913 Work Wonders Now

Camp Berkeley, Tex.—During the Louisiana maneuvers a bunch of boys from Company A, 120th Quartermaster regiment, wandered into a deserted plantation home and found a bundle of time-stained love letters. They were written back in 1913 by a soldier stationed in Cuba to his sweetheart back home.

The prowling troopers culled the prettiest passages and incorporated them with painstaking precision in letters to their girl friends. Among the amazing results were six recent marriages in Company A.

Little Stingers.

From The Yellow Jacket

It seems that FDR has changed his freights chats to "shoot'em on the spot" talks.

In a recent one he showed signs of getting fed up on the trike business, when he said "defense cannot be hampered by the selfish obstruction of a small but dangerous minority of labor leaders who are a menace to the true cause of labor." Labor leaders must be getting pretty raw when even FDR notices it.

It is said of Mark Twain that the first time he looked upon the old ocean in all of its billowy splendor, he exclaimed; "Boy, she's a success." If Mark were back here today and could look at the ocean of New Deal doings for the past nine years, we are of the opinion he would feel impelled to remark: "Boy, she's a failure."

And why not? Civilian employees of Federal State and local government have reached a new high of 4,168,000 persons on WPA, CCC, and NYA projects and 1,944,000 in the Army and Navy. This is New Deal times. But we'll bet you our pantaloons that you don't see these figures presented in any New Deal paper.

Every man of patriotism and common sense must know that in importance and urgency our defense program is the nation's first job, but it is worse than folly to take the position that nothing else has any importance at all. Some people seem to hold to the idea that because we are living under abnormal conditions that any normal thought or action is untimely and unpatriotic. That's a dangerous attitude.

Budget Director Smith predicts that 1942's all-over spending will touch two billion a month. Other New Dealers say it will run to three billion if places can be found to spend it. Of course a way will be found if the administration has to let a contract to move the Blue Ridge back to the Mississippi valley and tear down the Rocky Mountains.

Hasn't things come to a pretty pass that a man is branded as a pro-Nazi for saying now what FDR and Willkie were saying at the moment the ballots were counted on November 5, 1940, namely, that the interests of the American people demand that we should keep out of foreign wars and promptly build an impregnable defense?

After The War--What?

Winning the war is the largest task just now, comments one of our exchanges. But what is going to happen when the billions upon billions of dollars cease to be poured into war industries and the million of young men return from the armies to find a job in civil life?

And at this time the multitudes now busy in war industries will be out of a job also. These are more perplexing questions than winning the war if we will stop to think of them.

Henry Ford when asked recently what he was going to do with his colossal new army airplane plant after the war, answered: "Make plans for everybody." This may be the answer. If so we will become a nation of great consumers in airplanes. But can we extend this production and consumption in all other industries? If so, O. K.—Ex.

Time Extended

The Board of Commissioners of the Law Enforcement Officers' Benefit and Retirement Fund at its meeting in Raleigh January 28, extended to April 1, 1942, the deadline for law enforcement officers to become members of the retirement feature of the fund and still receive prior service credits.

The retirement feature of the Law Enforcement Officers' Benefit and Retirement Fund was inaugurated July 1, 1940, and past service credit was allowed all officers who became members prior to January 31, 1941, provided contributions were made on all earnings from July 1, 1940. The Board received several petitions from law enforcement agencies stating they did not receive notice of the former deadline, and in order to make the retirement plan available to all officers the deadline was extended to April 1, 1942. All officers who become members prior to April 1, 1942, must pay contributions on earnings since July 1, 1930 in order to receive credit for past years' service.

Rubber and War

The war is being brought home to us on rubber tires. It has come to pass that the infantary advances on rubber tired wheels and the cavalry is mounted on motorcycles. Airships take off and land on rubber while all guns, equipment and foods are transported on rubber. While all of that is true the war caught the army rubber so the supply bought for civilian purposes had to be taken over. The fact that synthetic rubber that is even better than that from trees can be made is of little use at the present as we have no plants that can make it in anything but small quantities. There is no escaping the hardships that will be endured during the coming months. The blowouts will sound like war when the tires get thin and the highways hot. Replacing inner tubes will be a bigger job than making the casing last. But out of the shortage good will come. There will be fewer deaths on the highways. The fast driving killers will soon wear out their tires and will have to get off the highways. There will also be a great saving in money. There is a lot of useless driving today. After all most people have legs even if they have not used them for the past ten or more years. It will do the old legs good to make them carry the soft bodies around for a while. There will have to be a change in our life. We feel for that large and highly respected group whose livelihood has depended on the automobile business of garage work, parts, tires, gasoline and oil. The war has certainly come to their doors.—Charity and Children.

Tax Authority Has No Good Word for Taxation System
NEW YORK.—Randolph Everghim Paul, who is preparing the treasury's new tax program, is a suave, pleasant man with somewhat of a kindly doctor who tells us it is not nice medicine but we've got to take it.

He has written probably as much on taxes, and with as full authority, as any man in America, but we can't find he ever said a good word for them. In his book, "Law of Federal Income Taxation," published in 1934, he said: "It (taxation) is an evil which is in direct proportion to the rate of taxation imposed, and in these days of resumed high rates it is more important than it has been for many years."

We had suspected as much, and just now it is apparent that Mr. Paul hadn't seen anything then. He is a New York lawyer, with the firm of Lord, Day and Lord, and for the last four years has been Sterling lecturer on taxation in the Yale university school of law, previously having lectured at Harvard. It is as special adviser to Secretary Morgenthau on taxation that he is now outlining the tax program. He was appointed to the post of full-time adviser on December 12 of last year, after past part-time service in this capacity.

He is believed to be wary of any prescription by which an over-dose of taxation not only would fail as an antidote for inflation but might bring worse evils.

He is a native of Hackensack, N. J., educated at Amherst college and the New York university law school. He became a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York last June. In his treasury advisory capacity he is a dollar-a-year man.

He's Trimmed to Fit, Though Name Could Take a Cut
IT'S hard luck having a rubber shortage just when we need rubber head lines. Fly the poor copy-reader trying to work in this one: Jonkheer Alidius Warmaldus Lambertus Tjardav van Starckenborgh Stachouwer. He is the governor general of the Netherlands and commander in chief of all the Dutch armed forces of land, sea and air which are bagging perhaps more than their full share of Japanese in the opening encounters of the war in the Pacific.

His person has none of the redundancy of his name. He is trim, fit, energetic and hard as nails. At 52, blue-eyed and blue-blooded, a cold, precise realist, trained in the world's toughest school of administration, he is an ascetic in his personal habits, an abstainer from liquor and tobacco—all this in refutation of the common stereotype of the fat burgher smoking a meerschaum pipe.

The governor general of the Dutch East Indies has virtually absolute powers. But five years is the limit in which this dictatorial mandate may be exercised, and the crown, wary about dictators, may recall the governor general for inefficiency or malfeasance. That's how the canny Dutch get efficiency in their colonial empire, with a check-rein and a martingale on it.

The governor's term was up last December, but the Dutch saw this war coming and continued him indefinitely in office. At the same time, they automatically solved the problem of full centralization of wartime authority, the integration of land and air forces and of industrial and military effort. Only on one other occasion, in the first World war, has the term of the governor general been thus extended.

The governor, born in the Netherlands Indies, studied law, entered the diplomatic service, became governor of his native province, served at six foreign capitals, including Washington and became president of the university from which he was graduated. His wife is a former Baltimore girl, Christine Marburg, the daughter of a former United States ambassador to Belgium.

A knowing friend of this writer, who spent two years in the Far East, tells me that Governor Stachouwer has achieved a miracle of organization and discipline in pulling together the European and Eurasian Hollanders and Indonesians. "And," my friend added, "the natives are with him. That's going to be important in this war. They have organized jungle armies of their own and they're going to be hard to take. The governor has been tough but he has been fair and he is no tyrant."

CARY GRANT, just finishing "Arsenic and Old Lace" on the Warner lot at Burbank, Calif., is expected to apply for his final American citizenship papers any day now. He was preparing to complete his Americanization when England declared war on Germany, and stopped, figuring it as a slack-act. When he informed the British authorities that he was ready for any task they might assign him, they told him to remain in Hollywood. So he began dividing his earnings between the needy here and in England; they got the $100,000 which he received for "The Philadelphia Story," and he's donating $100,000 of his "Arsenic" earnings; all the money must be spent here.

Loretta Young finally revenged her screen sisters who have had to take slaps in the face and well-aimed blows in the name of their art. She caught Frederic March bent over with laughter during a scene in Columbia's "Bedtime Story" and launched a kick which not only deposited March in the gutter but also left him with his face in a mud puddle. To make matters worse, they had to make four takes before the scene was right—which meant four kicks, four descents into the mud for March.

George Brent had his first kissing scene with Olivia de Havilland in the forthcoming "In This Our Life." While they were making it Ann Sheridan, who works for the same studio, was on the set watching, and Brent seemed a bit bashful. "Go ahead, George, and give her a real kiss," urged Ann. "Just pretend that Annie doesn't live here any more." A week later, Ann and George were married.

For two musical misfits who couldn't get a break in New York a few years ago because they couldn't carry a tune, comedians Bud Abbott and Lou Costello are doing all right. They got their first good break by promising to learn to sing, and succeeded as comedians while they were learning. They've just made their first record, and are preparing for their next picture, "Rio Rita."

Gary Cooper probably wishes with all his heart that Lou Gehrig hadn't been a left-hander. Preparing for "Pride of the Yankees," the story of Gehrig's life, Gary is studying slow-motion pictures of Babe Herman and working like mad with Lefty O'Doul, trying to learn to use that left hand as if it came natural.

We'll be seeing a new patriotic picture before the year is over. It's "American Cavalcade," and will tell the story of Mr. and Mrs. America through dramatic historic incidents and music. It is intended for Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn.

RKO Radio is going to film the story of General Billy Mitchell, the flying general who was court-martialed because he believed so implicitly that planes were important to an army. It should be one of the year's important films.

It looks as if radio has another "God Bless America" in "They Can't Black out the Stars and Stripes," a new song written by Elliott Jacoby, musical director of the air's "Meet Mr. Meek," in collaboration with Private Jacob Goldstein of Mitchell Field.

Jimmy Durante, rated as a star by Warner Bros. since he made "You're in the Army Now" and "The Man Who Came to Dinner," says he will revive the famous comedy team of Clayton, Jackson and Durante to entertain the boys in army camps.

ODDS AND ENDS—Betty Grable and Victor Mature are not so very good in Fox's "I Wake Up Screaming," but they're trying again in "White Collar Girl" . . . The bombing scenes of "Captains of the Clouds" were hard on Brenda Marshall, whose father is manager of a large sugar plantation in the Philippines. . . Robert Taylor and Norma Shearer, last seen together in "Escape," will be teamed romantically in "Love Me Not" . . . Speech experts declare that Spencer Tracy can pick up any accent and speak like a native in several hours . . . 20th Century-Fox has a story for Pat O'Brien that he likes—"Calling Manilla."

When called upon to speak, Mr. Schwab repeated: "Mr. President, your Excellencies, my noble Lords and gentlemen—" Then mopping his brow, he exclaimed: "Well, I'm glad that's over. That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its busy and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—in the risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Enclosing Cellar Stairs
A FIRE hazard that is quite common in residences is due to the cellar stairs being under the stairs to the second floor. In the event of a cellar fire the draft up the cellar stairs would carry the flames to the under side of the stairs above, which in burning out, would leave the bedroom windows as the only escape for people trapped there. The best remedy for this condition would be the moving of the cellar stairs to a distant corner of the cellar. Another remedy is the enclosing of the cellar stairs with fireproof or at least slow burning materials; asbestos board, two or three thicknesses of plasterboard, or something similar. In addition to this, there should be a fireproof or slow-burning door from the cellar to the enclosure. With this door left open, however, the enclosure would be useless. For this reason it should have a spring or weight to keep it closed. With the stairs thus protected, a fire would be confined to the cellar for a long enough time to organize an effective fight against it.

Hot Water Relief Valve
Question: I have just installed a stoker in my hot water house heating boiler, to which is attached a 30-gallon tank for running hot water. With the constant heat of the stoker, is there any danger that the tank might explode?
Answer: If your source of hot water is a coil or a knuckle in the firebox of your boiler, explosion is a possibility, because of the possible formation of steam. If there is no check valve or meter in the cold water supply line, you will be fairly safe, because pressure developed in the tank will cause the water to back up into the main. With a check valve or meter you should put a relief valve on the tank to release the pressure before it becomes high enough to make trouble. This relief valve should be on the hot water outlet of the tank; not on the cold water inlet.

Soiled Paint
Question: Paint on our house is in good condition, but is darkened by smoke and soot. What can we use for cleaning it?
Answer: Scrub with any mild soap. You could also use a solution of one or two tablespoons of trisodium phosphate in a pail of water, for this chemical is destructive of grease. Begin washing at the bottom and go upward. If you begin at the top and work down, dirty water running over the dry paint will make streaks that cannot be taken out. Follow by thorough rinsing with clear water.

Floor Cleaning
Question: Floors that were sanded and waxed are not marked, but black with dirt. How can they be cleaned before re-waxing?
Answer: You can use liquid wax—not water wax—which will soften the wax on the floor and permit it, with the dirt, to be wiped up. It is probable that some of the dirt has gone into the wood, and washing with soap and water may be necessary. Wax does not give much protection to wood, because dirt will go through. The bare wood should have a coating of shellac, varnish or seal before waxing.

Fumigation
Question: In trying to rid my bedroom of bedbugs, fumigation with hydrocyanic gas was recommended. I have a formula, but do not know how to use it or where to get the ingredients. Will you inform me?
Answer: Do not under any circumstances attempt to use hydrocyanic gas, because of its deadliness. To breathe it would be fatal. In cities its use is permitted only by licensed fumigators. I am sending you a leaflet on the control of bedbugs that I am sure will be helpful, and which does not involve anything dangerous.

Refinishing Copper Pots
Question: The lining of our old copper pots has been worn through, and food that stands in them becomes contaminated. How can the pots be restored to usefulness?
Answer: The usual lining of copper pots is tin. The process of lining is difficult, and an excellent substitute would be to have the inside of the pots plated with chromium. This job can be done by plating shops at no great expense. Any garage can give you the name and address of one in your neighborhood.

Paint for Bricks
Question: Our house is rough red brick. We would like to paint it white, but my husband thinks that white paint would not last. What do you advise?
Answer: You will get good results with cement paint, which is intended for masonry. It comes as a powder to be mixed with water.

Roof Snow Guards
Question: During the last two winters the snows sliding off the roof damaged the shrubs and trees near the house. What can be done? Where can snow guards be obtained?
Answer: Snow guards made of heavy copper wire can be bought through most shops handling roofers' supplies and materials. To prevent staining on white house walls from copper drip, give the wire a thin coat of varnish, the kind that is applied with a cloth.

Invitation to Dinner—Tasty Onion Soup (See Recipes Below)

Let's Serve Soup

Something hot, something to warm up the system and something to stir the appetite into action so it can enjoy the meal itself—this is soup. Good companion to a dinner on cool nights or main dish for a luncheon, this is the reputation soup has acquired. So give a lift to your meals and get the appetites off to a brisk start. These savory soup recipes will help you:

Onion Soup
(Serves 4 to 6)
2 slices bacon, cubed
4 sweet Spanish onions
2 tablespoons flour
1 quart milk
Salt and pepper
Stale bread
Grated American cheese

Fry cubed bacon slowly over low heat, stirring constantly until fat is extracted. Lift out crisp bacon bits and set aside. Place thinly sliced onions in pan with some of bacon fat and saute until clear and tender. Sprinkle flour over onions, blend, add milk and crisp bacon. Stir constantly over direct heat or cook in double boiler until soup thickens slightly. Season with salt and pepper. Serve in soup plates with croutons made by toasting stale bread in oven. Sprinkle grated cheese over bread just before serving.

Split Pea Soup
(Serves 6 to 8)
1 cup dried split peas
2 quarts cold water
Ham bone with a little meat on it
1/2 small onion
Salt and pepper
Soak peas overnight, drain and cover with the cold water. Heat to boiling point, add onion and ham bone. Simmer 2 to 3 hours or until tender. Remove ham bone and season. Serve with crisp toast.

Clear Tomato Soup
(Serves 6 to 8)
1 quart brown soup stock
1 can tomatoes
1/2 teaspoon peppercorns
1 small bayleaf
3 cloves
3 sprigs thyme
4 tablespoons butter
2 sprigs parsley
1/4 cup each onion, carrot, celery
1/4 cup raw ham, diced
Salt and pepper
Cook onion, carrot, celery and ham in butter 5 minutes. Add tomatoes, peppercorns, bayleaf, cloves, thyme and parsley. Cover and cook slowly 1 hour. Strain carefully, add hot stock and season with this:

Oyster Bisque
(Serves 6)
1 pint oysters
1 1/2 cups water
Salt and pepper
2 cups milk
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon butter
1-tablespoon flour
1 onion, chopped fine
1 stalk celery, chopped fine
1 sprig parsley, chopped fine
Cook oysters in their own water and liquor until they curl. Add onion, celery, parsley and simmer gently for 20 minutes. Scald milk, add bread crumbs and cook for 15 minutes in double boiler. Put mixture through a sieve. Melt butter, blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk and crumb mixture. Rub oysters through a sieve and add to milk mixture. Serve with soda crackers.

Lynn Says:
Good soups deserve attractive accompaniments. Here are some popular ideas:
Thin slices of lemon, chopped parsley, thin slices of avocado, slightly salted whipped cream, toasted almonds.
In the bread line you can really do a lot of tricks, such as cutting the bread into fancy shapes with a cookie cutter, then toasting and sprinkling on soup before serving. Rings (made with doughnut cutter), animal shapes, hearts, stars and diamonds are popular. Cheese sticks are good too and are made by sprinkling grated cheese on bread strips, broiled and served hot.
Chopped chives or chopped parsley either by themselves or sprinkled over the salted whipped cream, add color to soup platters.

Chicken Bouillon.
(Serves 8)
3 to 4 pound stewing chicken
2 chicken feet
3 to 4 quarts boiling water
3 stalks celery or 1/4 cup diced celery root
1 onion, sliced
Nutmeg

Clean chicken and cut into small pieces. Scald chicken feet. Skin and remove nails. Pour boiling water over chicken, feet, celery and onion. Cover and simmer about 3 1/2 hours. Remove chicken, strain stock and season. The chicken may be used creamed, in casseroles or wherever cut, cooked chicken is called for.

Lentil soup has long been among the high-ranking favorites. Because it has substance such as the lentils themselves, meat or even sausage, it's excellent served as a main dish, especially for Sunday night suppers:
Lentil Soup
(Serves 6 to 8)
2 cups lentils
3 quarts cold water
2 pounds brisket of beef or ham bone
1 stalk celery, diced
2 onions, cubed
2 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper
Pick over lentils, wash, and soak overnight in cold water. Drain, cover with cold water, and cook with the meat for 1 1/2 hours. Add celery and onion and cook for 2 hours. Blend melted fat and flour, season, then add 1 1/2 cups stock and cook until thick. Add rest of stock and serve with a slice of rye bread, sprinkled with cheese and toasted until the cheese is melted. Lentil soup is good also with smoked sausage or frankfurters in place of the meat listed above.

Another good soup that makes a meal in itself is this: Deep sea oysters are especially flavorful for this:
Oyster Bisque
(Serves 6)
1 pint oysters
1 1/2 cups water
Salt and pepper
2 cups milk
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon butter
1-tablespoon flour
1 onion, chopped fine
1 stalk celery, chopped fine
1 sprig parsley, chopped fine
Cook oysters in their own water and liquor until they curl. Add onion, celery, parsley and simmer gently for 20 minutes. Scald milk, add bread crumbs and cook for 15 minutes in double boiler. Put mixture through a sieve. Melt butter, blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk and crumb mixture. Rub oysters through a sieve and add to milk mixture. Serve with soda crackers.

THE HEALING MINISTRY OF JESUS

When you see a man setting his watch by the court house clock you may know he is a stranger here.

So far as we have been able to learn, there is no sugar shortage in this town. The scarcest article in this section are hundred dollar bills. We haven't met one this year.

Some of the politicians seem to think Senator Bailey should be defeated this year. He hasn't always agreed with the New Deal. Politics doesn't seem to be claiming the attention of the public this year. There are more serious things to think of at this time.

No one knows just how long it is going to take the Allies to lick the Axis powers. Some say one year, some five years, and one writer even says it will take ten years to put the enemy out of business. Here's hoping we can finish the job within the next twelve months. The quicker it is over the fewer men will have to suffer, bleed and die.

The cost of living continues to mount by leaps and bounds. Even the modest black-eyed peas are now selling for a third more than they did only a few short weeks ago. Only the nabob can eat bacon and eggs these mornings. The price of bacon has advanced from 15 1/2 cents per pound to 35 cents. Despite all this, let us take courage and thank the Lord that we are living in a free country.

We can't figure out why this country needs any CCC camps now. With plenty of jobs for the young men in mills and factories and on the farm, and with an army and navy of three to five million men wanted in the next year or two, it would seem like operating these camps would not be necessary. They were created to give jobs to the poor boys whose parents were in need, and who could not secure any kind of employment, or at least that is the idea we had.

North Carolina Democrats are preparing to stage about half a dozen Washington birthday dinners in different cities on Saturday, Feb. 21st. It is said that the price will be $25 per plate. The money will no doubt be used to help pay off the New Deal campaign debts that were incurred in the 1940 presidential election. Just how many New Dealers who are not at the Federal pie counter, will be able to pay this big price for one meal, we are unable to say. There will be few Davie men at these dinners, is our guess.

It is out of order for Republicans to plan a campaign or make political speeches during the emergency, but all right for New Dealers. Red Shirt Cam Morrison has already opened his campaign. Cameron has announced that he wants to go to Congress from the tenth district next fall. He wanted to go to the Senate a few years ago, but a playboy by the name of Reynolds, defeated him by the biggest majority ever given any man in North Carolina for any office up to that time. Cameron is old enough to know better.

Help Our Country

During the present perilous times all true Americans are anxious to help in the defense of our country. Farmers can greatly assist in National Defense by growing more food and food crops. The Farm Credit Administration will grant loans to all farmers who need financial assistance in producing their crops. Their loan is secured by First Mortgage on crops to be planted and interest rate is 4 per cent.

Application may be filed in Office of F. R. Leagans, Justice of the Peace any day of the week from 1 p. m., to 4 p. m., except Tuesdays.

Collect Much Tax.

Holt Barneycastle, county tax collector, tells us that up to Jan 30th, he had collected $71,069.69 of the 1941 taxes. This is about 71 per cent of the total amount of taxes due the county, which amounts to about $100,000. This is a good showing, with money scarce among the farmers, following a bad crop year.

Steal And Kill Cow

John A. Johnson and son, John, Jr., Negroes, who live near Smith Grove, were lodged in jail Thursday afternoon by Sheriff Bowden, charged with breaking, entering and stealing a cow from Marvin Smith, at Smith Grove, some time Wednesday night. The Negroes are only charged with stealing the cow, but leading her to their home and killing and later burying her. If bond is not given, they will remain in jail until the March term of Davie Superior Court.

Miss Sallie Grant is seriously ill at her home on North Main street, following a stroke of paralysis on Sunday. Her friends hope that her life will be spared.

Miss Josephine Cooley, who is at Charlotte Memorial Hospital, is reported somewhat improved, her friends will be glad to learn. Miss Cooley received serious injuries in an automobile wreck near Lexington on Jan. 16th.

A. F. Cook, of Mocksville, R. 2, was in town last Tuesday on his way home from a ten days visit to his brother, William Cook, of near Keysville, Va., who suffered a stroke of paralysis in November, but is improving some.

We suppose everybody turned their clocks and watches up one hour Monday morning, but we'll bet dollars to doughnuts that they didn't all get up one hour earlier, or go to bed Monday night one hour earlier. This will mean that the power companies will sell more electric current.

Large Crowd Enjoys Womanless Wedding.

A large and enthusiastic audience was present at the high school auditorium Thursday evening to see the "Womanless Wedding," and the beauty contest. The play was enjoyed by all present. Among those taking leading roles in the play were P. J. Johnston, the officiating minister, Rev. R. M. Hardee, the bride; J. H. Markham, the groom. At the conclusion of the play a fashion show was enjoyed. Dr. W. M. Long, bridesmaid, was awarded the prize for wearing the most stylish costume. Mack Kimbrough, bridesmaid, didn't win a prize, but many in the audience declared that he was the best looking "lady" in the cast.

Fifteen young ladies entered the beauty contest, which was sponsored by local concerns. Those entering the contest were Misses Edna Lanier, Ozelle Hodges, Jessie Maynard, Marie Johnson, Alice Holton, Addie Mars, Geneva and Dorothy Grubbs, Neva Markham, Nell Livengood, Billie Ammons, Ruth Hayes, Sarah Wagoner, Catherine and Dorothy Gibson. The judges in this contest were Miss Gladys Gaskins, Mrs. James, and Mr. Frank Herbert, of the Cool Spring school faculty. The judges selected Miss Edna Lanier as "Miss Mocksville."

Knox Johnstone was the director, and it is needless to say that the program was successfully carried out from start to finish. The program was sponsored by the Mocksville Parent-Teacher Association, and a nice sum was realized.

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland, pretty secretary to Arthur Mulford, San Francisco importer, is amazed and angry when he unexpectedly discharges her with two weeks' salary and refuses any explanation. The bewildered girl arrives at the apartment she shares with her sister Sybil, feeling thankful that one of them still has a position, only to be told by her sister that the beauty salon where she works, is closing up. Over the protests of Sybil, Joan answers a secretarial ad requiring some night work. The fascinating proprietor, Karl Miller, engages her at once, at a salary of $50 per week and insists upon paying her in advance, even though she lacks references. Sybil suspects something sinister and divines Joan's quick interest in Karl. She pleads with her not to take the job and the two quarrel. Joan accepts Karl's dinner invitation.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER III

Joan felt Karl's irritation towards Sybil. "My parents are both dead," she explained. "Sybil feels that she has to look after me."

But even Joan was annoyed to find Sybil waiting up for them later that night.

"It's almost two o'clock," Sybil snapped. "What's the idea?"

Karl Miller looked amused as he stood hat in hand in the doorway. "In that case, I shall say good-night without further delay."

When he had gone Joan turned furiously to her sister. "Why did you have to say that? I'm old enough to manage my own affairs."

There were deep circles of fatigue beneath Sybil's blue eyes. Her voice seemed to echo like a warning through the old-fashioned, high-ceilinged rooms. "You've got to quit working for Karl Miller! You've got to quit tomorrow!"

The sisters stared at each other in the dimly lit room. Joan threw her head back defiantly as she cried, "You've made Karl angry! You had no right to do that!"

Sybil smiled ruefully. "He looked more amused than angry. 'It's up to me to look after you, Joan. I feel responsible since mother and dad are gone. If anything happened, I'd never forgive myself.'"

"I know, Sybil! And we mustn't quarrel about it."

She yawned and started for the bedroom but Sybil caught her arm. "Then you will quit working for Karl Miller?"

"No. I will not. I'm twenty years old, Sybil, and I'm not going to let you or anyone else run my life."

The grandfather's clock in the corner chimed.

"Two-thirty," Joan observed, evading Sybil's worried glance. "We'd better get some sleep. Don't you have to work in the morning?"

"No. Today was my last day. From now on I'm one of the unemployed."

"And you expect me to quit my job? Oh, no, Sybil! I'm making a good salary and whether you think so or not, Karl is a gentleman."

"Maybe so," Sybil said as she snapped off the lamp, "but I don't trust him."

The next day Joan Leland arrived at the Club Elite promptly at two o'clock. Karl Miller's office was filled with baskets of flowers. Tonight was opening night but Karl was unruffled behind his desk, impeccably dressed in a gray suit, a red carnation in his buttonhole.

She was glad that she had worn her best black dress. It was an expensive sophisticated dress, the kind of dress Joan knew Karl would approve. Heavy silver earrings were her only ornament, and she had used a touch of mascara, a dash of dark red lipstick. Joan had the assurance of a woman who knew that she looked her best. Her green eyes sparkled as she closed the office door behind her.

"Good afternoon," she said demurely.

Her employer was not the type to evade issues. "I've been thinking about your sister, Joan. Tell me something about her."

Joan removed her hat and coat and smoothed her black hair before she replied, "Sybil's a little low right now. You see, she's just lost her job. The beauty shop where she worked has been closed."

Karl laughed. "Then perhaps that was why she was in such a bad humor?"

He said it with such apparent honesty that Joan was not angry. She sat down at her own small desk beside Karl's and mechanically inserted a sheet of paper in her typewriter.

Karl suddenly leaned forward. "Would it please you if I could help your sister?"

"The girl's lovely face lifted innocently to his. 'Oh Karl, could you?'"

"I think so. A friend of mine, a Mr. Murdock, owns the Ritz Beauty Salon. If I ask her, I feel sure she will be able to use another experienced girl."

Joan's eyes were shining. "The Ritz Beauty Salon! Oh, Karl, that's wonderful!" It was one of the best shops in town. Sybil would be thrilled.

"Of course," Karl continued, "your sister may not want any assistance from me since she so obviously dislikes me."

"I'm sure Sybil will appreciate it very much," Joan assured him. "It was sweet of you to think of her, Karl."

But with a swift change of attitude Karl had ground out his cigarette and when he turned again to

"All right! From now on I'm not saying another word. You can do just as you like, Joan."

Joan's eyes were void of any emotion.

"Get that orchestra leader on the telephone," he said. "I have some instructions to give him."

"Yes, Mr. Miller!" and as Joan dialed the number, she found herself more than ever intrigued by this man who had offered to help her sister. This strange enigma that was Karl Miller.

At six o'clock Joan decided to go home for dinner. In two hours she could easily make it and she was eager to tell Sybil of her good fortune.

Her sister looked up in surprise as Joan burst into the living room. "What on earth are you doing home? You didn't by any chance quit?"

"Don't be silly!" Joan cried, throwing her hat on the table. "I have wonderful news for you. Karl can get you a job at the Ritz Beauty Salon."

Sybil was genuinely surprised. "The Ritz? That smart new shop on Post street?"

"Nothing less! Isn't it wonderful? Karl knows the owner. He's going to call her and fix it up for you."

"But it's one of the best shops in town," Sybil said unbelievably. "Of course! Wasn't it nice of him? Honestly, Sybil, how can you dislike a man who is so kind? Imagine his thinking about a job for you today, of all days, when he's so busy with the club opening!"

Sybil was standing by the window. "Doesn't look like a very good night for it. It's going to rain."

"Is that all you can say?" Joan cried indignantly. "Karl said maybe, since you didn't like him, you wouldn't want his help. But I thought you would."

Sybil turned, "You're right, Joan! I do need the job. You may tell Mr. Miller that I appreciate it very much."

Joan did not notice the coldness of her sister's reply. She was happily unconscious of the expression on Sybil's face.

"How about dinner? I'm starved. I have to be back at the club by eight."

Sybil broiled the chops while Joan made a salad.

"I see you're wearing your good black dress to work. What's the idea?"

"Why not?" Joan retorted. "I'm making fifty dollars a week now and I have to look my best."

"You didn't seem to think it necessary when you worked for Mr. Mulford."

Joan put the salad bowl on the table and set places for two. "You know how I feel about Karl, Sybil! she said in a low voice. "Why make it hard for me?"

"All right! From now on I'm not saying another word. You can do just as you like, Joan. Maybe it's none of my business, after all."

Joan put an affectionate arm about her sister. "Don't feel that way, darling. But give me a little credit for knowing what I'm doing. I'm not a child, you know."

Sybil smiled as she turned back to the stove but she said no more.

As Sybil had predicted, it was raining when Joan reached the club but the weather had not seemed to affect business. Already the first guests were arriving. The bar was crowded. Gay laughter, conversation, tinkling glasses made an exciting combination of sounds which spelled success for the future. Joan felt a little thrill of pride as she passed on down the corridor to the office.

She settled herself at her desk and began to type. Karl was not there. Her mind wandered as she worked. Only a week ago she was working for Arthur Mulford. Now everything was different. Life had turned a fresh page, which Joan felt sure would be filled with adventure. It must have been fate that she answered Karl Miller's advertisement. Fate that Mr. Mulford had gone out of business and been forced to fire her.

She was thinking so intently that when he opened the door she felt the color rush into her cheeks. And she knew that his keen eyes had observed her embarrassment.

Karl seemed pleased. "Everything's going fine. Couldn't be better. By the way, I spoke to Mrs.

Murdock. Tell your sister she can start work Monday morning."

"Oh thank you!" Joan cried. "It's so kind of you, Karl!"

He rose, came around the desk. "Has it made you happy, Joan?"

"Of course," her eyes faltered beneath the steel-blue eyes.

Karl Miller laughed softly as he drew her into his powerful arms. Sybil's warnings rang in her ears but the pounding of his heart overcame them as her lips blindly met his.

There was strange magic in Karl Miller's kiss. How long Karl held her in that embrace, Joan did not know. When he released her he put a hand beneath her chin and looked deeply into the green eyes that were filled with emotion.

"Oh, Karl!" Joan cried softly, but before she could say more the office door opened and a man entered.

His eyes caught the little scene and he turned to go. "Sorry, Karl! See you later."

Joan turned back to her desk with flaming cheeks but Karl Miller did not seem embarrassed. "It's all right, Paul! Come on in. I don't think you've met my new secretary, Miss Leland, this is Paul Sherman."

Joan was forced to look into a pair of brown eyes. Their owner was tall and lithe. He had a quick smile, brown curly hair. It was a good-looking face, with its straight nose and square jaw.

"I'm very glad to meet you," Paul Sherman said emphatically.

Joan acknowledged the introduction and turned quickly back to her typewriter. What would this man think of her? Karl had said, "My new secretary," which implied that they had not been acquainted long. Joan told herself that she didn't care what Paul Sherman thought, yet—for some indefinable reason—she did.

"Paul is my right-hand man," Karl said, opening a panel in the wall which revealed a tiny but complete bar. "He manages the club. You'll probably be seeing a lot of each other. Have a drink, Paul?"

The other sat down and crossed his long legs. "A short one. I have to get out front again. Things look good, Karl. . . . What do you think of the club, Miss Leland?"

At the unexpected question addressed to her, Joan started. "It's very nice," she replied, dark lashes sweeping over her embarrassed green eyes. She had an uncanny feeling that Paul Sherman was staring at her, conscious of her embarrassment. She was so confused that she made three mistakes in one line. It was not easy for her to turn emotion off and on as Karl Miller did. She marvelled at his coolness as he sat on the edge of his desk and talked to Paul.

"By the way," Paul was saying, his eyes still on Joan, "Eric wants to see you. He's in the bar. Wants you to meet some people."

"I'll go then. Coming, Paul?"

Paul finished his drink. "I'm right with you, Karl."

Joan was relieved when they had gone. She pushed back her chair and made no pretense of finishing the letter she had been typing. It was thus that Paul Sherman found her when he returned to the office a few seconds later.

She started guiltily when he came in. "Oh, it's you again!"

"You don't seem too pleased to see me," Paul observed, shutting the door carefully behind him. "But as a matter of fact, I came back on purpose."

Joan stared at him in disapproval. "You mean that no one wanted to see Karl?"

"Oh sure! That was legitimate, but when I saw a chance to slip away, I took it." His friendly smile made it difficult to be offended.

"Well," Joan asked flatly, "What do you want?"

Paul laughed, displaying even white teeth. "To talk to you. You needn't be so annoyed. After all, I am the manager of the club."

Was there a hint of cynicism in his voice? "I'm sorry," Joan said, trying to smile. "I guess I'm not used to this type of work yet."

"That's what I am getting at," Paul said seriously. "How did you happen to come to work for Karl Miller anyway?"

by L. L. STEVENSON

Metor: When the duke of Windsor made his last visit to this country as prince of Wales several years ago, his guard was J. L. Nye—commonly known as "Bill" Nye—of the United States secret service, who is now an executive with the Guaranty Trust company. At the large formal ball given for the prince by Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, his royal highness asked Nye how he would know with which of the ladies he should dance. "Just watch me," replied Nye, "if I dance with a guest, it will be all right for you to do so."

The prince followed the advice and everything went well. But it seems that the scheme leaked out and Nye then became the most popular person at the party.

Incidentally, during the recent visit of the duke and duchess of Windsor, Nye was absent from his bank duties. He was again guarding the duke.

Delay: New York motorists who travel the Merritt highway, that marvelous Connecticut roadway that starts at the end of Hutchinson parkway, have been puzzled by being stopped night and morning by red flags while 40 or more cows saunter lazily across. Bugs Baer finally has come through with an explanation. It seems that when the highway was built, a farmer living along it retained the right-of-way for his cows to cross twice a day. So, rather than build an underpass, which would run into money, the state permits him to hold up all traffic until his herd is safely over the highway. Most motorists, particularly those from New York, who use the Merritt highway, are in a hurry. As everyone knows, cows never are. So there is much fretting and fuming on the part of the drivers, all the more so because they pay a dime to use the highway.

Far West: At the rodeo in Madison Square Garden, a trim, blonde young woman, in a white cowboy outfit and wearing a white 10-gallon hat sat on the chute and cheered the riders, all of whom she knew well. With her was a cowboy, a chunky, solid sort of a man of the open spaces who neither drinks nor smokes. The cowgirl was Sally Rand and the cowboy, her fiance, Turk Greene, the Cheyenne champion. When the rodeo moved on to Boston, the fan dancer and her cowboy went right along. Some day after their wedding, they intend to settle down on a Montana ranch.

Thoughtful: Some time ago, Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker, was entertaining Joe Cook at his country home at Stamford. In the course of a discussion, a question came up which could be settled only by consulting the Bible. Unfortunately, the Ross household did not possess a copy of the Scriptures. Cook promised to take care of the deficiency. Apparently he did so by requesting all members of the large cast of the musical show with which he was appearing on the road, to send Ross a Bible. The comics, singers, show girls, chorus girls and others sent Bibles with the result that now in the Ross library, there is a whole shelf full of them. In fact he has so many that recently he made a present of one—a Bible, not a show girl—to one of this department's alert scouts.

Hicks: Visitors needn't be royal to make New York stare. Any celebrity will do. The other night at "Candle in the Wind," Charles Boyer was in the audience. Not only did those sitting in the balcony rise to their feet and crowd forward to see him as he passed along the aisle, but occupants of the highest-priced pews stood so that they might give him a gander. And when the play was over, crowds congested the sidewalk in front of the theater until shooed away by cops. Sometimes I think there are more hicks in New York than anywhere else.

On Park Avenue: The driver of an automobile, the jammed horn of which has been sounding for several minutes, bangs down the hood and begins kicking the tires.

Alert State Policeman Saves Wind-Blown Pie

BETHEL, CONN.—No problem is too minute for the attention of the Connecticut constabulary.

State Policeman Robert J. Murphy heard a woman's scream and dashed into the home of Mrs. Joseph Leo. He saw her gazing out the second-story window with a look of dismay. Officer Murphy quickly sized up the situation, and just as quickly climbed onto the porch roof and retrieved Mrs. Leo's newly baked pie that the wind had blown from the window sill to the rain-gutter.

Raise Air Force To 400,000 Men

United States Army Steps Up Training to Reach Goal by June 30.

WASHINGTON.—Increasing its 54 combat groups to 84, the army air force is to be expanded by June 30 to 400,000 men, with a subsequent expansion to 500,000 in view.

This statement by the war department contrasted the new objective with the June 30, 1940, air force personnel, comprising only 45,914 enlisted men, 3,322 regular and reserve officers and 1,894 flying cadets, a total of 51,130.

Secretary Stimson explained that the aim was to meet "growing requirements for adequate defense of the United States and areas within the Western hemisphere vital to that defense."

Some of the groups provided by the new air training program would be assigned to overseas service in the Western hemisphere, the department said, but the bulk of them would be allocated to the air force combat command.

Trainer Planes in Plenty.

This command includes bombardment, pursuit and reconnaissance groups, and each group is composed of two or more squadrons, depending on type of equipment and tactical tasks.

Mr. Stimson said he did not know just how many more planes would be required for the enlarged program, but said it could be safely assumed that trainer planes were coming along fast enough to insure that it would be fully under way by June 30.

Completion of the program, involving the provision of the necessary planes, materiel, personnel, bases and equipment presented "a problem worthy of the utmost effort, efficiency and co-ordination on the part of the army, the army air force, the aviation industry and the American people," the department stated.

The expansion will be carried out within the framework of the present army air force, now in process of detailed organization by Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of this branch. It calls for the training of 30,000 pilots and 100,000 technicians a year.

Use Many Schools.

The expanded program, the department stated, would make the army air force one of the world's largest universities for applied science, "with a total of more than 100 flying and technical training schools in operation."

The training course envisages the use of 41 civilian schools giving 10 weeks of elementary training, 13 military and three civilian schools giving basic training, three flexible gunnery military schools, one civil navigation school, three replacement training centers for pilots, bombardiers and navigators, and three navigator and six bombardier schools.

Technical training of enlisted specialists will be conducted at 19 other schools and three replacement training centers.

Secretary Stimson also announced a three-fold expansion of the officers' training course at Fort Benning in rifle and machine gun use, and new developments in a second program to train over 350,000 civilian employees in army-operated defense plants.

Average Farm in Texas Increases to 329 Acres

AUSTIN, TEXAS.—The average size of a farm in Texas is 329 acres, Charles E. Baughman, chief clerk of the state department of agriculture, has computed.

The number of farms has decreased in a five-year period and in the same time the average farm size has increased about 55 acres.

Baughman's review of the agricultural situation shows the de-thronement of King Cotton. In a five-year period, cotton acreage decreased 1,909,664 acres. Peak of cotton cultivation was 17,700,000 acres in 1926 and the acreage in cotton in 1941 is 8,500,000 acres.

Cotton farming has declined more swiftly than other farming, Baughman said in a discussion of the statistics. While the decrease in the total number of farms (1934-1939) was 83,015, in the same period the number of cotton farms decreased 91,429.

"Two-thirds of the farmers employ the use of only one-third of the land," Baughman said, "while one-third of the farmers employ the use of two-thirds of the land. Around 428,000 people, whose family heads were formerly employed in the production of cotton, have turned to other work, while some 400,000 people have left the farms altogether."

Launching of Alabama Rehearsed for 2 Years

PORTSMOUTH, VA.—The battleship Alabama will make a big splash when it is launched at the Norfolk Navy yard here next February, a splash so big that engineers already are calculating how wharves across the narrow Elizabeth river can be protected from damage. Drag chains weighing 600 tons will help check the ship's speed.

The Alabama has been "launched" time and again in miniature in the David W. Taylor model basin, operated by the navy under the bureau of ships at Carderock, Md., and every conceivable problem connected with the actual launching has been studied.

Naval architects were letting the model of the 35,000-ton vessel slide down the ways into the basin as long as two years ago, and from these launchings engineers have collected data which tell them exactly what to expect when the sister ship of the Massachusetts and the South Dakota actually hits the river.

The model tests showed, for example, that a possible wave eight feet high might be set up by the battleship, but that the height of the wave in the confined waters of the Elizabeth river probably would not exceed five feet.

It was found that unless the momentum of the ship was checked in some way the vessel undoubtedly would crash into the Berkeley wharves across the river. That is why the tons of chain drags, placed in 50-ton clumps and secured to pads at the side of the ship, will be employed.

Auto Light Glare Hits Women Worst, Tests Show

BERKELEY, CALIF.—Glare blindness caused by automobile headlights lasts longer in women than in men, University of California experimenters reported.

Tests were made on 150 students by Dr. C. W. Brown, H. P. Torkelson and L. B. Fisk, psychologists. A blinding light was flashed into their faces to simulate conditions in night driving.

Male students as a group showed a recovery time of almost 10 seconds less than the women. The experimenters found that the average recovery time for normal vision was 25.2 seconds.

PREVENT DISEASE IN DAIRY HERD

Good Management, Feeding Will Reduce Losses.

By Dr. GEORGE TAYLOR
(Extension Dairymen, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Dairymen should think more in terms of herd health and disease prevention and less in terms of treatment and cures.

The value of any dairy animal is dependent primarily upon its health. Prevention of disease is far less costly than disease treatment, and good feeding and management practices can go a long way toward reducing annual losses in dairy herds due to disease.

The ration should supply the proper balance of protein, energy, minerals, and vitamins. Water is also needed.

Quality roughage, including hay, pasture and grass silage, is the most essential item of dairy feed. It is a fair source of calcium and practically the sole source of vitamins A and D in the dairy ration. Concentrates which must be fed to satisfy higher levels of production tend to be toxic to a dairy animal. This effect is largely overcome by the feeding of quality hay when pasture is not available. The long list of ailments in dairy cattle which can be avoided by good feeding includes goiter, bloat, impaction and loss of appetite.

Management ranks with feeding in importance in checking disease. Because the spread of disease is more rapid in large herds, the size of the milking unit should be limited to 50 cows or less. Separate quarters should also be provided for growing heifers and baby calves. Separate isolation and maternity quarters are also desirable.

Strict sanitation is a most important part of management. Regular systematic cleaning and disinfecting will aid materially in keeping down the causative organisms associated with disease.

Dairy animals should be allowed ample exercise under conditions where they may benefit from fresh air and exposure to sunshine.

America's War Victims Appeal for Your Help

First war poster of the new World War, painted by the distinguished artist James Montgomery Flagg, carries an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund to aid the victims of aggression upon the United States and its island possessions.

To aid the victims of warfare being waged upon America and her island possessions, the American Red Cross has issued an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced from the national headquarters in Washington.

Mr. Davis urged men, women and children to give to this mercy fund through their local Red Cross Chapters. These funds will support the Chapter's war work with the families of men in the military services, as well as the broad relief program of the national Red Cross.

President Roosevelt, who is president of the American Red Cross, issued a proclamation urging all citizens to give to the Red Cross war fund.

In launching the appeal, Chairman Davis said:

"There are millions of our citizens who desire today to demonstrate their will to victory over the enemy. Not all can be in the armed forces, and not all can volunteer their services for humanitarian work, but all can volunteer their dollars to arm the Red Cross to be their representative at the scene of battle and distress."

"Today is the day to demonstrate our high morale, our unity, our determination not alone to support our President and our fighting men at the front, but also to insure to our wounded, homeless and suffering fellow citizens in our Pacific Islands that we stand one hundred per cent ready to aid them through the Red Cross."

The Need of Revivals

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hiddents, N. C.

Perhaps there are very few churches in America today but that need a real revival of old-time religion. It is a sad fact that the majority of our churches have quit having revivals, hence our weakness and deadness spiritually. When revivals cease, then evils of various kinds, sin and wickedness increase. The devil takes all the ground the church loses, and he uses it against us. A man said to me the other day that Hitler is not to blame for the world war, as millions think he is. He made rather a startling statement when he said: "The church is to blame." The more I thought about his statement the more I concluded that he was right. The church to blame for war? You may wonder how that can be. Well, let me see. We must all admit the truth, even though it is hard to admit. We realize that there has been a tremendous falling away of the church, both in attendance and in spirituality, and we have lost millions out of our Sunday schools. This has happened in America and in the European countries. Many of our preachers and theological schools have gone modernistic. We have conformed to the world. We have ceased to emphasize, very largely, the importance of real soul-stirring revivals. The church, or tens of thousands of church members, have become worldly. Many have been taken into the church without repentance and vital salvation. It is a positive fact that we can't tell the great majority of church members and professed Christians from the outside world.

Church members—multitudes of them—drink, dance, curse, swear, gamble, frolic, commit adultery, go to the places of worldly and wicked amusement, do and say just what the world does, and go hand in hand with the world. Many of them commit crime. Just as well admit the truth. They vote wet, stand for anything and everything that offers them money, pleasure, lustful gratification, entertainment and a big time. Therefore the devil takes advantage of all this and raises up dictators and wicked rulers to bring war and destruction upon us. If the churches of earth had stayed spiritual, prayerful, godly, and had kept themselves separated from the world, and had kept the revival fires burning upon their altars and in their homes across the years, it would have been impossible for the wicked rulers and dictators to have arisen. Certainly. It would be a wonderful thing if every church to day would start a mighty revival of vital, old-time, "mourner's bench," Holy Ghost salvation. Nothing would stop war so soon.

Old Gray Mare is Coming Back

Omaha—The Old Gray Mare she ain't what she used to be.

She's on the way back to popularity and those city slickers who once jeeringly asked "Will the horse ever replace the automobile as an institution?" are now asking "Where can I get a horse?"

The South Omaha auction rings are enjoying a priorities boom that is running a close second to the 1941 automobile bull market. Dealers are thronging the marts from as far away as New England and Georgia, where they're buying horses for transportation purposes as well as farm and work horses.

Five hundred animals—350 horses and 150 mules—were knocked down in one-day sale recently that had the horse auctioneers going through their double-talk routine at a faster clip than the tobacco auctioneers.

Students Wanted

New Class—The Navy Department has created a new Naval Reserve class so that high school and college students between the ages of 17 and 19 inclusive may be enlisted and placed on inactive duty until the completion of their current scholastic year—unless the military situation necessitates calling them to active duty beforehand.

Serve, Learn—Class V-1 has been organized in the Naval Reserve to give young American a chance to serve their country and also obtain free training in any of 45 trades or vocations. The period of enrollment is for two, three or four years, but all hands will be required to serve only throughout the duration of the war.

Extra Training—Schools and colleges will be encouraged to give extra physical training and studies to young men who enlist in Class V-1 during the next four months as recommended by the Bureau of Navigation. The Commandants of all Naval Districts have been directed not to call any of these men to active duty until orders have been issued by the Bureau of Navigation.

Free Trade Schools—Young men will be enlisted, allowed to complete their current year's school education if possible and then give a chance at Navy trade schools—acknowledged to be among the best in the world—where they can receive $1,500 free instruction and training to qualify them for such valuable vocations as aviation machinist, radioman, photographer, clerical worker, electrician, carpenter, molder, machinist, aerographer, hospital corpsman, diver, boilermaker, or patternmaker.

Apply Here—Those interested should apply at once at one of the following Navy Recruiting Stations: Asheville, Charlotte, Salisbury, Greensboro, Raleigh, New Bern and Wilmington.

McF. Wood, Lt. Comdr., USN. Officer-in-Charge, Navy Recruiting Station, Raleigh, North Carolina.

Republicans Elated Over Election Gains.

Washington—Republicans in Congress today saw an affirmative answer in the returns from the election of a new congressman from the Fifth Connecticut district to the plea of Minority Leader, and National Chairman Martin for a two-party system.

Thrice Mr. Martin made this plea, have the votes of a Congressional district spoken, and have each time sent a Republican to Congress from districts long since regarded safely in the Democratic column.

Congressional elections are now a year in the offing, and the opinion of many.

Reaction to the Truman and Roberts committee's reports on conduct of the defense programs indicate strongly that conduct of the war and defense spending will be the chief issues of the 1942 campaign.

While Republicans are now quiescent, they are expected to make use of current developments, as the war proceeds.

As an indication of what the Democrats may expect, Republican leaders today pointed out that two Congressional elections have been held to fill vacancies in the House since Pearl Harbor. The Republicans have won in both cases. The first instance was in the Fourth district of Colorado—a district that has been held for 34 years by the late Representative Edward T. Taylor, a Democrat. The second was in the Fifth Connecticut district. Last April the Republicans won in the 42d New York district, a Buffalo district, the district which Senator "Jim" Mead represented before he was translated to the Upper House. Here, too, the G. O. P. wrested a House seat away from the Democrats.

Jesse Jones could well loosen up and provide the money to build a factory or two to produce synthetic hope and faith that we will get our boys out of the trenches before next Christmas.—Ex.

Wagon Companies Can't Seen Along Main Street

Meet Demands.

"He who laughs last laughs longest," so they say, as you old timers who long for the "good, ole days" can now give those youngsters the "horse laugh," since Leon Henderson, the nation's price boss, has frozen the rubber supply and curtailed the supply of automobile tires.

Those children that used to laugh when you mentioned the wonders of the horse and buggy days, have set up a sudden hue and cry, especially in the great rural sections of the country, for horse and mule drawn vehicles—even the mules are getting in for their shares of the "he-haws" that are being heard across the country.

The old-time cycles who took Nellie out on that bicycle built for two may again see that proud vehicle in use as of course the bicycle has suddenly come in for its share of new acclaim the country over. (To the youngsters the compensating factor may be the easing up on the pocketbook—gas, etc., or may "Pop" will appreciate the reduction in expense.)

And the bad thing about this demand is, as far as the American public is concerned, the few wagon and buggy manufacturers left in the nation today—and there are a few—can't deliver the number of horse and mule-drawn vehicles demanded of them suddenly because they just can't get enough material to make the vehicles.

All this was explained here today by H. S. Leonard, owner of the Piedmont Wagon company, one of the oldest wagon firms in the United States, whose wagons are known the country over.

"We just can't meet the demand" said Mr. Leonard, explaining that the sudden increase for farm wagons, delivery wagons, for hauling of such things as milk, ice, and the like, had caught him unprepared—and he doubted if any other wagon firm were ready either—although his company has been making wagons continuously since 1863.

Of course the OPM has something to do with it, issuing orders that such firms as Piedmont can make only 98 per cent of their 1940 production of wagons, during the coming year.

The production of these vehicles has been very low in normal years, and all these have been simply farm wagons with an occasional buggy or sulky, built for some person for show purposes. The demand for such vehicles as buggies and delivery wagons went out almost entirely sometime around the early "20's", Mr. Leonard indicated.

Maybe now the poor downtrodden delivery boys will get a respite from the daily fear of the "boss" ranting about that fender that was bent by "some" lady driver, a couple of weeks ago, (apologies to you few ladies who can drive) and the school boy from Dad's lecture. — Hickory Record.

Wanted: 50,000 Nurses

That in substance is the subject of an advertisement inserted in national magazines by the president of the American Nurses Association, which appeals to young women with high school education or better to enter training to become "women in white." It is an outright patriotic appeal, and not a booster for the association.

In line with this appeal was the statement made last week before the Guilford Medical Society by General Henry C. Coburn, of Fort Bragg, to the effect that virtually all available graduate nurses would be needed by the armed services of the nation during the war.—The Dispatch.

Secretary Stimson says the personnel of our army will be doubled right away. And reading that we fold our arms in complacency and tell Japan "let that be a lesson to you."—Ex.

Grows Best North Carolina Wheat.

I. Brantley Speight of Winterville is the wheat king of North Carolina. He was crowned at the state crop improvement exposition held last week at Greenville and received the newly established Phillip W. Pillsbury awarded for his grain from the hands of Governor J. Melville Broughton. Pillsbury, head of the flour milling company which bears his name, established this year the award for best North Carolina wheat in order to further encourage grain improvement in the state.

Speight, who is president of the state crop improvement association, grew the prize winning grain on his Pitt County farm from seed of the Carala variety developed by the North Carolina experiment station. It was judged by W. H. Darst and W. L. Adams, farm crop marketing specialists of the state department of agriculture.

Asked his formula for growing wheat, Speight said: "See your soil is right. Plant high quality seed. Properly tend and harvest your crop. Then you have only to trust to luck as far as the weather goes, and nowadays you can let the weather man worry about that."

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland, secretary to Arthur Mulford, San Francisco importer, is amazed and angry when he discharges her with two weeks' salary and refuses any explanation. The same day her sister, Sybil, with whom she shares an apartment, loses her position in a beauty salon. Joan accepts a position from Karl Miller, handsome proprietor of a night club, who insists on paying her in advance, at the rate of $50 per week. Sybil suspects something sinister about the position, and divines Joan's quick interest in Karl. Though the sisters quarrel, Joan refuses to quit. She accepts his dinner invitation and when he tells her he has a beauty salon job for Sybil, and takes her into his arms, her happiness knows no bounds. The scene is interrupted by the entrance of Paul Sherman, Karl's manager. The two men leave, but Paul returns quickly to talk with Joan. He soon surprises the girl by asking her to tell him how she got the job.

Now continue with the story.

"A woman with green eyes is very rare. Did you know that?"

CHAPTER IV

Joan's surprise showed in her voice as she replied, "What do you mean?"

"Just what I said. Who suggested it to you?"

"I lost my job last week," Joan told him, wondering why she was doing so. After all it really wasn't any of Paul Sherman's business why she was here. "That same night I saw an ad for this one. I came down to apply and Karl, Mr. Miller, hired me."

"You didn't know Karl Miller before that?"

"I don't see what it is to you," Joan flared resentfully.

"Don't bite my head off," Paul said pleasantly. "I just wondered, that's all. I would like to be your friend, Miss Leland. You may need one."

"I'm doing all right!" Joan said, irritated.

"Okay. But just one more question. Have you met Karl's partner, Eric Strom?"

Joan answered him reluctantly. "Eric Strom? No, I haven't met him. Why?"

"I'm the one asking the questions," Paul retorted, and Joan felt that he was laughing at her as he rose and went to the door.

"I have work to do, Mr. Sherman," she said crossly.

"Call me Paul. By the way, how about having dinner with me some night?"

Joan was surprised at the audacity of this request. "I expect to be very busy," she said coldly.

"Nevertheless," Paul Sherman retorted, "I shall meet you on Monday night at six o'clock." He mentioned the grill of a well-known hotel.

"I have no intentions of being there."

"By Monday you may change your mind."

Joan sighed as the office door shut behind him. It seemed that at every turn she met a surprise. What would Karl say if he knew that his manager had tried to make a date with his secretary? The secretary whom only a few moments ago Karl had held in his arms. In a way she was glad that Paul Sherman had interrupted that perfect moment. Karl would be angry and Karl's wrath was one thing that Joan would not risk.

"Karl!" Joan thought, closing her eyes against the memory of his handsome, expressionless face, steadying herself against the flood of emotion that swept over her. "I shouldn't have let him kiss me," Joan told herself. "But I love him! I love him, yet I'm afraid..."

Even to herself Joan did not like to admit that the reason for her fear was that Karl Miller did not return her affection. True, he had taken her out; he had even kissed her. But Joan doubted that any woman could possess his entire heart. The situation intrigued her; at the same time she was frightened.

Joan and Sybil spent a quiet Sunday. Karl had told Joan that he would not be able to see her over the week-end and she found that even one day without him was enough to make her unhappy.

Sybil seemed cheerful at the prospect of starting her new job at the Ritz Beauty Shop. "What's the matter with you?" she asked as Joan sat staring into space. "We've both got a job. There's nothing to worry about."

Joan suspected that Sybil knew what was worrying her but she disliked bringing up the subject of Karl Miller. Instead she told Sybil about Paul Sherman and his proposal that she have dinner with him.

Sybil lay on the couch, her blonde hair in curlers. "He sounds all right," she commented. "Why don't you go?"

"I don't even know the man," Joan protested. "I met him only last night."

Sybil raised an eyebrow as she contemplated her sister. "You didn't know Karl Miller either, but you fell in love with him overnight. Or maybe I should say you think you're in love with him."

Joan curled up in the big chair and opened a magazine which she pretended to read.

"Look, honey, why not confess? I know how you feel."

Joan lifted a confused, radiant face. "Oh, Syb, you're right! I do love him. I'm so in love with him that it frightens me because I can't believe that he really cares about me. I'm so young and unsophisticated."

"And you're going to stay that way," Sybil said sharply. "You don't love Karl Miller, Joan! You want him because you know he's out of your reach."

"Oh, it's more than that!" the youthful voice was full of pain.

"Even so, it can't hurt anything for you to be nice to this other man. He's young and apparently he likes you. Why don't you have dinner with him?"

"I don't want Karl to be angry with me," Joan confessed.

"Is it as bad as that?" Sybil asked quietly.

Joan sighed, "I'm sorry, Syb! But that's the way it is. I can't help it."

Sybil was silent and in the twilight they could hear rain splashing against the windowpanes. When the telephone pealed through the room, Joan flew to answer it. Perhaps it would be Karl!

It was. And at the sound of his voice her heart sang.

"I find that I am going to be free this evening," "Would you like to have dinner with me?"

Would she like to? "Oh, darling!" her heart cried. But she answered demurely. "I'd love to."

Joan ran into the bedroom to change her dress but Sybil had not missed the un concealed joy in her face. Sybil's blue eyes were full of worry as she stared thoughtfully after her sister.

Joan was disappointed to find that Karl had invited another dinner guest. Eric Strom, whom Paul had described as Karl's partner, met them at the hotel. Sitting in front of the broad windows which overlooked the sea, Joan's spirits drooped.

Eric Strom asked, "Do you find the rain so depressing, Miss Leland?"

"It does seem gloomy," Joan admitted.

Karl smiled at her indulgently but the two men continued to talk about business. Joan did not like Eric. For the same inexplicable reason that she trusted Paul, she did not trust Karl's partner.

"My intuition's working overtime," Joan reflected, glancing at Eric.

He was a slight man, blond, about Karl's age. But he had none of Karl's magnetic power. There was something shifty about his pale eyes. His manner was cautious, unpleasantly so. He looked a great deal at Joan and his glances made her uncomfortable. If Karl noticed this, he gave no sign. He was cheerful during the meal, which seemed endless to his secretary. The two men, engrossed in their own conversation, left Joan free to speculate.

Joan looked at Karl, whose eyes were as sphinxlike as the vast ocean that rolled outside the broad windows. A little thrill swept over her that this man was here. But was he? For one small moment the day before she had been in his arms, but during the rest of the brief time she had known him he seemed a thousand miles away.

Joan's reverie was broken by the headwaiter who was speaking to Karl. "You're wanted on the telephone, Mr. Miller."

When he had gone, Eric Strom smiled at her and leaned across the table.

"You are very beautiful, Miss Leland. But I suppose Karl has told you that." His accent was much heavier than Karl's, and Joan found it difficult to understand. "A woman with green eyes is very rare. Did you know that?"

Joan forced a smile to her lips. "I don't believe we've met before, have we?"

He shrugged. "I am Karl's silent partner. He doesn't need me to run the club. Others can do that. By the way, Miss Leland, I would like to see you again sometime. Just the two of us."

Her piquant face was white beneath the sophisticated veil. She was afraid of this man. "I'm afraid it is impossible," she replied sharply.

But Eric Strom was not displeased. "Have a cigarette, Miss Leland? You may find that sometimes we have no choice in such matters."

Joan stared at him uncertainly. What did he mean by that? Did everyone at the Club Elite talk in riddles? First Paul's inexplicable behavior, now Eric Strom's! What would Karl think if he knew that both tried to make a date with his secretary? Paul was young. Perhaps high spirits had prompted his impudence. But Eric Strom was another matter, and Joan decided to tell Karl about it the moment they were alone.

She had no chance, however, for when Karl returned to the table he said briefly, "Something has come up. We'll have to go back to the office."

The two men exchanged glances, then looked at Joan. "Do you mind?" Karl inquired with his quick smile. "I'd like to get a couple of letters out tonight. I know it isn't in the bargain for you to work on Sunday."

She knew that she was powerless to refuse him. She would gladly have typed endless letters in order to be near him.

Karl paid the check and the three of them left. As they drove back to North Beach, sheets of rain beat upon the car. The Club Elite was closed on Sundays and Karl unlocked the door with his own key. Joan was surprised to see a streak of light streaming from the door of his private office.

Hurrying along the corridor, she reached it first and found herself face to face with Paul Sherman.

He grinned at her. "A manager never really has a day off."

Karl seemed to find nothing strange in his presence at the club. "You don't happen to have some extra time, do you, Miss Leland?" Paul inquired. "I could use some help."

Before she could answer, Karl Miller said quickly, "She has enough to do, Paul, and now if you don't mind..." He left his sentence unfinished.

"Surely," Paul grinned and sauntered to the door. "See you tomorrow," he called back but his eyes were on Joan and she knew that he was thinking of the dinner date he had proposed.

She shook her head as she looked at him over her typewriter but Paul ignored it.

Karl removed his overcoat and sat down at his desk. Eric Strom mixed himself a drink.

"Take a letter," Karl said, reading from a sheet of yellow paper, "to A. H. Gomez, Mazatlan, Mexico..."

"Dear Sir: I am happy to report that the situation you mentioned has been cleared up satisfactorily. The club will be open from eight to two and shows every sign of being successful."

Joan looked at him curiously. This did not sound like an important business letter to her. Certainly not so important that it couldn't wait until morning.

Seeing her glance, Karl said, "I'm afraid you're too tired. I shouldn't have asked you to work tonight."

"It's all right," she hastened to assure him. "I don't mind, really."

But Karl Miller had changed his mind. "I will call a taxi and send you home."

"But I'm not tired, Karl!"

He was dialing a number and Joan knew it was useless to argue with him. He went to the door of the club with her, pressing her hand as he said, "I'm sorry it had to turn out this way tonight. We'll arrange something else soon..."

Joan shivered in the damp night air as she waited for the taxi. A small coupe stopped suddenly before her with screaming brakes. Involuntarily Joan stepped back; surprised to see Paul Sherman.

"What are you doing here alone?" he asked.

"Waiting for a taxi," Joan replied with dignity.

"Well, jump in, my girl!" Paul ordered cheerfully.

He got out and opened the door of the car. "You may as well let me drive you home. You can't stand here in the rain, you know."

It did seem silly, Joan admitted, climbing in, but as Paul started the car she cried, "I left my purse in the office."

IT'S UP TO YOU TO JUDGE...

Most large organizations today have skilled men whose job it is to create a public opinion favorable to the organization and its products. This is known as the creation of good will — one of the most necessary ingredients in business.

But the peculiar thing about good will is that it only comes to those who deserve it. In other words, asking the public for good will is not enough; the business must be worthy of that good will through giving good service, through selling good merchandise, through maintaining fair prices.

One of the chief services of advertising to a consumer has been in pointing out the manufacturer and merchants who deserve your good will. It has done this by selling you the story of their goods and their policies — and then letting you judge for yourself if they are worthy of your support.

Advertising shows you exactly where you can buy, with perfect assurance that here you will find a man who is worthy, a product which is honest, a price which is right.

One of the articles that is almost impossible to find now is a little shoe with "made in Japan," printed on the sole.

There are a few folks in good circumstances who are actually too tight to contribute a penny to the Salvation Army. When these folks shake off the mortal coil they won't be missed.

We don't think much of the bill Congress passed recently giving a pension to all Congressmen who retire after serving five years. Seems that our law makers are in better shape today financially, than any other class of people.

What this country needs today is not dancing masters to teach our children to dance, at high salaries paid by the Government, but more arms and ammunition, war planes and submarines. You can't win a war by dancing even if Nero did fiddle while Rome burned.

With a great war raging throughout the world this is the time when sane, sober, honest and reliable men should be elected to office. The day of the scheming politician is coming to an end. Statesmen and not cheap ward heelers should be elected to the high offices. It is going to take the entire country—Democrats, Republicans, Prohibitionists, Socialists, Labor and all other parties, to win this war. Good men should be nominated and elected this year.

When a few little two-by-four jack-leg fellows around town quit cussing The Record, we may have to leave town. For thirty-five years we have tried to print a paper that would do the greatest good to the greatest number. We have done everything possible to build up the town and county, and make it a better place in which to live. We felt that our efforts have been rewarded to some extent. The better class of people in the town and county appreciate our efforts. Many of them have complimented us for not printing wine and beer advertisements. We had rather print a church announcement than a dance hall ad, and a pastor's sermon than a card party. We may be old-fashioned and behind the times, but we have hundreds of the best people in Davie and adjoining counties, and in 32 of the 48 states, who have been reading The Record for many years. We appreciate their patronage. Let the little two-by-fours keep knocking—we have become used to the knocks.

Aged Mason Dies.

Moses W. White, 91, died last Tuesday at Lawrence Hospital, Mooresville, following a short illness. Mr. White was a native of Iredell county. Surviving are five sons and two daughters, among them being Mrs. J. E. McNeely, of Coolemeec.

Mr. White is said to have been the oldest living Mason in North Carolina, but we believe this to be a mistake. Mr. J. M. Betts, of Chapel Hill, a brother of Mrs. James McCreary, of Mocksville, is 92 years of age, and has been a Mason for more than 60 years. He is in good health, considering his advanced age. He spends some time every summer here with his sister, and has many friends in Mocksville.

Going Strong At 82.

The Record congratulates the Rev. W. L. Sherrill, native of the Sherrills Ford community but now a resident of Charlotte, who celebrated his eighty second birthday Monday with Hickory friends. The good minister is still going strong, both mentally and spiritually, despite his more than four score years, and we wish him many more happy anniversaries.—Hickory Record.

Davie Soldier Receives High Praise

Camp Blanding, Florida
February 7, 1942.

Sgt. Claude Boger
Company F, 169th Infantry
Camp Blanding, Florida.

My dear Sgt. Boger:
On Friday, February 6, I inspected your mess hall and kitchen and found it to be outstanding—outstanding not only within your regiment but within the entire 43rd Infantry Division! Your floors and mess tables were bright and clean; your supply room was neat and orderly arranged; your kitchen knives had been cleaned in every crevice; your stoves reflected good care! Item by item your kitchen and mess hall deserves the rating of SUPERIOR.

It is vitally important that soldiers be fed good food and plenty of it. Therefore the responsibility which is placed in the hands of a mess sergeant and his assistants is great—and only good men should be entrusted with that responsibility. You and your staff have demonstrated fully your good work that you deserve this trust, and it is well placed in your hands.

I would like to extend to you and to the men who assist you my congratulations for a job well done. I am sure that you will maintain your splendid work in this mess and in every other mess which the changing fortunes of military service might place in your care in the future.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN H. HESTER,
Brigadier General, U. S. Army
Commanding.

Sgt. Claude Boger is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Boger, of R. 3 Claude was inducted into the U. S. Army last spring as a Private, and is another Davie boy who is making good. The Record is glad to join his Davie friends in wishing for Claude all the good fortune possible

Boger-Anderson

Robert Lee Boger, of Cana, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Boger, and Miss Margaret Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Anderson, of R. 2, were united in marriage on Saturday, Feb. 7th, at York, S. C., with Mrs. E. Gettys Nunn performing the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Boger will make their home for the present with the groom's parents. The Record joins their friends in wishing for them a long and happy married life.

Progressive Music Club

The Progressive Music Club held its February meeting at the home of the teacher, Miss Louise Stroud, Saturday afternoon. After the business session, the following musical program was given:

Duet, A Little Prayer, Copeland; Jane Click and Nan Bowden; Old Melody, Presser; Jane Click; Duet, Sing, Robin, Sing, Spaulding; Coleen Smith and Miss Stroud. A short sketch of the life of Stephen Foster was given at this time by Martha Bowden, after which she played a group of his songs, including "Oh! Suzannah," "My Old Kentucky Home," and "Beautiful Dreamer." A duet, "Parade of the Amazons," Morrison, by Janie Naylor and Miss Stroud, concluded the program.

During the social hour, several contests were enjoyed, prizes being awarded to Janie Sue Naylor and Germaine Wellman. Refreshments carrying out the Valentine motif were served the group.

Robert Hall Neely

Robert Hall Neely, 73, died Saturday at his home, Mocksville, Route 2. The funeral was held at Union Chapel Methodist Church Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. F. A. Wright conducted the services. Burial was in the church graveyard.
Surviving are one son, B. S. Neely of the home and two grandchildren.

Letter From Davie Soldier.

Hello Mr. Stroud:—I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know I am still in the thinking of home. I certainly hope you and all my friends in Davie are enjoying the best of health and prosperity.

I have been at Camp Blanding for 4 weeks now. I have been in the army a year now, and I am still in the same Company and Regiment that I have been in. I have been on several different army posts and Fort Benning, Georgia is the best place I have been. It seems more like North Carolina soil. There are six of us from Davie in the Regiment. I think we are lucky to get to stay together. I have been in the army long enough now to become accustomed to the routine of army life. Every American boy should be proud to fight in order to preserve our Great United States. We are fighting for the future security and freedom of our relatives and loved ones.

I certainly do enjoy The Davie Record each week. I usually read everything in it, and hope I can continue to get it as long as I am in the army. I will soon be 23 years old, and I guess I have been reading The Davie Record about 12 or 15 years.

Well, it is hard for me to think of much to say. I will close wishing you and my other friends the best of luck.
Your friend,
KERMIT SMITH
Co. F, 20th Engrs., A. P. O. 304,
Camp Blanding, Florida.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

Air Circus Pilot Has Wings Spread Over Burma Road
NEW YORK.—Something like Horatius at the bridge, or the little Dutch boy with his finger in the dyke is the American Col. C. L. Chennault and his American pilots, guarding the Burma road and dropping the Japanese as fast as they come.

Their score is more than 60 Japanese planes downed, including 24 bombers, with a possible score of around 100, taking into account the enemy planes hit but not downed on the spot. They're doing all this with antiquated planes, and so far they've lost only 10 of them.

Six years ago, Colonel Chennault headed the army team of precision acrobats which spread heart-failure among the crowds attending the Seventh Annual Army Air races at Miami. He and his mates, Lieut. J. H. Williams and Lieut. William McDonald, put on probably the dizziest air show ever seen and at the same time a demonstration of the amazing maneuverability of airplanes under highly expert control.

The colonel, a lean, dark, quiet, wiry man, was 45 years old when the above air show came off. He retired from the army and holed up in a neat little house at Waterproof, La. He had his books and his dog and he was going to enjoy life with his friends. However, he kept up his studies of air tactics and strategy, having written two authoritative text books on these subjects.

In 1937, he was approached by a representative of the Chinese government who proposed that he become air adviser to the Chinese government. This led to his four years' service in China in which he organized and commanded the present A.V.G., or American Volunteer group, which is now fighting the Japanese along the Burma road.

When he was here in January, 1940, he said that the Chinese planes were liquid-cooled and at a great disadvantage against any up-to-date machine. A quiet, reserved officer, with no dash of the swashbuckler in his make-up, he says that he and his boys can hold the road if they can just get a few more fairly fashionable planes.

THE United States marine corps did not need the saga of Guam and Wake island as a reminder that it is an old established firm. The corps is two years older than the present United States government, and on November 10 of this year will celebrate its 167th anniversary.

Its anchor, globe and eagle emblem and its "Semper Paratus" have been pretty nearly everywhere, and, historically speaking, it will be old stuff to the marines, wherever they land.

Just now it has its highest ranking commandant in history, with the President's elevation of Commandant Thomas Holcomb from the rank of major general to lieutenant general. General Holcomb, 42 years with the corps, is a quiet-spoken, heavy-set, business-like officer who, like his "Leathernecks," has been around a lot and has a way of making himself at home under inhospitable conditions.

His World war honors, won in France, include a citation by General Pershing, the Navy Cross, the Silver Star, the Purple Heart and the Legion of Honor ribbon.

He entered the marine corps as a civilian. His rough-and-ready military education later was supplemented by a course in the command and general staff school in 1925. He saw service in China and the Philippines, back in the dawn days of "manifest destiny," and in the World war he commanded the Second battalion of the Sixth Marines in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. He was assigned to Cuba in the post-war years and, by 1935, had attained the rank of brigadier general. In 1936 he was made a major general and commandant of the marine corps.

The Continental congress set up the marines, the oldest branch of the American armed forces. Away back in 1802 they took Derna, in Libya, recently taken by the British. They were fighting pirates in the Dutch East Indies in 1835; in Tripoli in 1840 and Formosa in 1867. Their range has been north and south from the Arctic to the far South Seas, and east and west around the globe. Without disparagement to other forces they have come to symbolize tough fighting prowess and capacity for fast catch-as-catch-can milling anywhere.

Secret Army-Navy Headquarters in East

America's eastern seaboard is guarded by a closely co-ordinated defense and offensive system, by land, sea and air, with leaders working in unison at secret headquarters somewhere in the New York area. Above are two views of army and navy commanders conferring in the plotting room of the secret joint headquarters. (Official U. S. army and navy photos.)

Nelson Defends $1-a-Year Men

Donald M. Nelson, war production chief, tells the senate Truman committee investigating defense that it is "hampering" him by frightening business men who are badly needed in war effort. He defended $1-a-year men who have been criticized by the committee. Nelson is shown (right) shaking hands with Sen. Harry Truman, chairman.

C., will command the new destroyer, sister ship of the U.S.S. Hambleton, which was commissioned at the same yard in December.

On Only U. S. Rubber Plantation

Uncle Sam is now making up for lost time on a 150-acre plant introduction station at Miami, Fla., where the government's star agronomists are experimenting with rubber plants to increase the yield. Here you see workers collecting latex, or rubber sap, from an 11-year-old "guinea pig" tree, one of the first of the experimental trees planted here.

Succor for Wounded

In this picture wounded defenders of the desert fortress of Tobruk are shown approaching a hospital ship somewhere in Libya, after they had been relieved by the drive of the British imperials into Libya after months of siege. The British navy played an important role in the battle of Tobruk and the drive across Cyrenaica.

Star Dust

ONE day recently Marlene Dietrich was called back to Columbia studios for special scenes for "The Lady Is Willing," her new comedy with Fred MacMurray. One bit of action had her being besieged by autograph hunters in front of a theater. As one little girl thrust forward her book the star looked at her closely, saying, "Haven't I seen you before?" She had; "Before I became an actress," said the youngster, "I got your autograph in front of the studio." The "actress" is 11-year-old Carol Anne Lever.

Cecilia Parker, Mickey Rooney's sister in the Judge Hardy Family series, rejoins the family in "The Courtship of Andy Hardy." In private life Mrs. Dick Baldwin, Miss Parker retired temporarily some months ago to welcome the stars;

CECILIA PARKER

In the two pictures that were subsequently made, she was referred to as "visiting in New York." The first day that she came back to work, she walked on the set with her baby girl in her arms; shooting couldn't start until every member of the cast had held the infant.

"Here Comes Mr. Jordan," which a lot of people thought was the best picture of 1941, is to have a sequel, known at the moment as "Hellbent for Mr. Jordan." Let's hope that it won't be as disappointing as sequels usually are.

"Able's Irish Rose," heard coast-to-coast over the NBC network every Saturday, has been enacted in every country in the world. The late Will Rogers saw a full production of the play in China, with Chinese "Murphys" and "Levys."

Edward G. Robinson has sold his home studio, Warner Bros., the idea of starring him in "The Death of Jim Gower," which was presented on his "Big Town" radio program recently; it deals with an idealistic but drunken newspaper man.

A drop of water proved to be the most temperamental "actor" in the cast of Columbia's "The Adventures of Martin Eden," the Jack London classic. Representing a tear, the drop of water required seven "takes" to sizzle on a hot iron held by Claire Trevor, the most "takes" of any scene in the picture.

Ona Munson can't get rid of that jinx that's been pursuing her. Her nose was broken when a make-up mask was being fitted to her at Warner Bros.; then she showed up at the "Big Town" broadcast with bandages on four fingers and one leg, from injuries received while she was making a jungle picture at Universal.

Virginia Payne, star of radio's "Ma Perkins," declares that it's the programs with the family background that pay dividends. "Ma" has been on the air for more than 2,500 consecutive performances; "Amos 'n' Andy," "Bachelor's Children," "Pepper Young's Family"—they all go on forever, seemingly. They make stars, too; Don Ameche and Tyrone Power are just two who've graduated to film stardom from there.

When he finished work as "Mr. Cugat," Ray Milland left with Mrs. Milland for a vacation at Sun Valley. Veronica Lake and her husband also headed for Sun Valley, when she finished "This Gun for Hire"; two pairs of skis were fastened to the top of their car. But after a few days of winter sports they yearned for Florida; made the trip in such a rush that, when they reached Miami, the skis still rode the car top. Passers-by stared, thinking them slightly mad, or maybe just ignorant of the fact that they were headed the wrong way.

ODDS AND ENDS—Chester Morris spent two days in a laundry hamper for scenes in Columbia's "Confessions of a Boston Blackie." Joe E. Brown's costumes for "Shut My Big Mouth," in which he impersonates a woman, were designed by the creator of Rita Hayworth's screen wardrobe... Lew Ayres and Laraine Day, separated in the "Dr. Kildare" series, are to be reunited in a murder mystery film, "Fingers at the Window"... Thornton Edwards swears that he got a ticket for speeding when he was on his way to work in "Torpedo Boat," to make a scene in which, as a speed cop, he gives Richard Arlen a ticket for speeding!

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills after many years of worldwide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorders of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be a better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination, sometimes worn or disturbed kidneys, putting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feeling weak, nervous, all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Household Hints by Lynn Chambers

This Valentine Cake Goes Straight to Your Heart! (See Recipes Below)

Cupid's Day

Hearts are king for a day and with these magic little symbols you can do up some magic tricks that will make small entertaining a triumph. You can have a party if you like in the Valentine theme, or you can work in the decorations of hearts, Cupids, red-and-white or pink-and-white color schemes in just serving refreshments.

The idea is to be festive and just gay enough to put you and your family in a good mood. So plan to be on speaking terms with Valentine's day with the star selections I'm including in today's recipes.

If you're really planning a party, any number of ideas offer themselves as a gracious part of the entertainment. For instance, if you're far enough north to have ice, an ice carnival is fun. A masquerade in which the guests come dressed as some of Cupid's famous victims goes over well. A card party featuring games such as "Hearts" or "Old Maid" might answer your needs, or perhaps a dance with heart and cupid decorations in crepe paper.

*St. Valentine's Day Cake.

- 3 cups sifted cake flour 3 teaspoons double-acting baking powder 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup butter or other shortening 1 1/2 cups sugar 1 cup milk 1/4 teaspoons lemon extract 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add flour alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add lemon extract. Fold in egg whites quickly and thoroughly. Bake in heart-shaped pan, 9 by 9 by 3/4 inches in a moderate (350-degree) oven 65 minutes or until done. Spread rose-tinted Seven Minute frosting on top of cake. Sprinkle moist sweetened coconut on sides of cake while frosting is still soft. Decorate top with cardboard arrow and a heart of coconut.

Seven Minute Frosting.

- 2 egg whites, unbeaten 1 1/2 cups sugar 5 tablespoons water 1 1/2 teaspoons light corn syrup 1 teaspoon vanilla Rose vegetable coloring Combine egg whites, sugar, water and corn syrup in top of double boiler, beating with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary beater and cook seven minutes or until frosting stands in peaks. Remove from boiling water; add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. Tint with vegetable coloring.

*Valentine's Day Salad.

- (Serves 6) Pimiento 1 1/4 teaspoons gelatin 2 tablespoons cold water

Lynn Says:

Valentine ideas are practical for the celebration of anniversaries even after St. Valentine's day is past.

Recently I saw an anniversary celebration at which a cranberry mold was used. Cranberry jelly cut in heart shapes was placed around the big mold. The number of small hearts corresponded to the number of years the couple had been married.

The heart-shaped cakes and molds of ice cream are much in use for anniversary celebrations and carry out the idea effectively. Heart-shaped candies may also be used to decorate whipped cream or desserts.

Valentine Day Supper Party

Children's Valentine Party

- *Heart-Shaped Sandwiches Hot Chocolate Ice Cream or Sherbet *St. Valentine's Day Cake *Recipes Given.

- 1 1/2 cups cottage cheese 1/2 cup finely chopped celery Salt and pepper Dash of cayenne pepper Lettuce and other greens

Place a border of thin strips of pimiento around the bottom of heart-shaped molds. Place small hearts cut from pimiento in center. Dissolve gelatin in cold water and finish dissolving over hot water. Add cottage cheese, mix well, then celery and seasonings. Fill molds, chill, and when firm unmold on lettuce.

Extra special describes some dishes perfectly, and such is my verdict for this chicken loaf:

*Chicken Loaf With Mushroom Sauce.

- (Serves 10 to 12) 1 4-pound chicken, stewed, meat diced 1 1/2 cups chicken broth 1 cup milk 3 eggs Salt and pepper 1/2 cup bread crumbs Pimiento 1 cup rice Cook rice in boiling salted water until done. Do not rinse. Beat egg yolks slightly, add to rice. Then add chicken, bread crumbs, chicken broth, milk, stiffly beaten egg whites and seasonings. Butter a loaf pan and dredge with extra bread crumbs. Lay strips of pimiento all along bottom of pan diagonally. Add chicken mixture. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 1 1/2 hours in a pan of hot water. Allow to stand 1/2 hour in pan after taking from oven before attempting to unmold. For mushroom sauce, canned mushroom soup may be used. Flavor with the juice of a half lemon and a dash of nutmeg. If you desire to make a mushroom sauce, make 2 cups of medium white sauce, add 1 cup sauteed, chopped, canned or fresh cooked mushrooms. Season this with lemon juice and nutmeg. Meringues, crisp and chewy, are unexcelled for desserts when main courses are on the heavy side. They lend themselves to all types of decorations and in this instance, you can serve them filled with strawberry ice cream or one of the red ices.

*Meringues.

- (Makes 10 shells) 6 egg whites 3/4 cup granulated sugar 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon vinegar 1/2 teaspoon vanilla Add salt and vinegar to egg whites, then beat until foamy. Add vanilla, then add sugar, two tablespoons at a time, beating steadily all the while until whites are very stiff. Spoon onto ungreased sheet and hollow out centers. Bake in a slow oven (250-degree) on an ungreased cookie sheet for 1 hour.

*Heart-Shaped Sandwiches.

Use whichever kind of bread you prefer, and cut into heart shapes with a large heart cutter. Butter and fill with desired filling.

Two choice fillings which carry out the Valentine theme are these: Ham put through the grinder or chopped fine and mixed with finely chopped celery and pickle, moistened with mayonnaise. Jellies or jams in red blended with cream cheese are also attractive.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, B. D., GOLDEN TEXT, Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for February 22

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JESUS APPOINTS AND TEACHES THE TWELVE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 6:12-26. GOLDEN TEXT—Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5:16.

God is sovereign and has all power. He might, therefore, perform His works without the help of man, and on many an occasion He does just that.

That fact makes it all the more glorious that He ordinarily works through men, giving to them the privilege of companionship with Him in service. Sinful and weak though they may have been, they become strong and holy in Him, able to do valiant service in His name.

I. Appointed to Serve Christ (vv. 12-19).

It is the constant teaching of Scripture that those called to serve God are not self-appointed. They are

1. Chosen by Him (vv. 12, 13). He chooses whom He will, gives them the gifts and the grace for ministry (and both are important!), and provides them a place of service. It is vital to the servant of Christ that he know that he has been chosen and called of the Lord. Only with that assurance can he meet the problems and bear the burdens of the work.

Observe that it was after a night of prayer that Jesus appointed the twelve. How many churches give that much prayer to the choosing of their leaders? Do we not need it far more than did our Lord?

2. Called from Many Walks of Life (vv. 14-16). The apostles were men of widely differing gifts, temperaments, and personal characteristics. Some had unusual ability, others apparently were of ordinary qualifications. They were of many occupations, fishermen, a tax gatherer, etc.; but not one was by profession a preacher or priest.

Were men to choose for such offices they would look within the narrow limits of a few learned professions, with certain nationalities preferred, and with position in life an important factor. God cuts across every man-made limitation and calls His workers as He sees fit.

3. Companions in Service (vv. 17-19). At once the twelve received their introduction to service to the great multitude diseased, demon possessed, in spiritual need. It was Jesus who healed them (and notice that "he healed them all," v. 19), but verse 17 tells us that the newly appointed apostles came and stood with Him. They had fellowship with the healing and serving Christ, just as we may have it in service for Him today.

II. Prepared to Live for Christ (vv. 20-26).

Service for Christ is as much (perhaps we should say, more) by life as by ministry. The twelve needed instruction that their spiritual perspective might be right. He tells them

1. How to Meet Difficulties (vv. 20-23). Poverty, hunger, weeping, being hated for Christ's sake, these were the things that Jesus knew His servants might expect, so He prepared them. They were told that these things need not disturb them, for there is a kingdom coming; there will be a time when every hunger will be satisfied, when weeping shall turn to laughter.

Hatred for Christ's sake is declared to be the occasion for the outburst of joy because of the reward which awaits in heaven. Scripture speaks much of rewards, and we do well to encourage ourselves and other Christians by the blessed prospect.

Meeting difficulties is a matter of having mental and spiritual eyes rightly focused. If we do, we can see right through them and see that on the other side there is blessing.

But there are temptations in another direction, so He tells them

2. How to Avoid Dangers (vv. 24-26). Jesus is here speaking of those who, lacking true spiritual vision, revel in the satisfaction of worldly things without a thought of God. The passage, however, may well be applied to the worker for Christ. Often he will be tempted to covet the wealth, the prosperity, the pleasures, and popularity of those round about him.

The question which comes to him is, Why should I and my family not share these pleasant things? Therein lies a temptation to become worldly-minded, centered in the temporalities of life. Let him learn that money in itself cannot bring lasting joy; that the fullness of this world is soon exchanged for an eternal emptiness; that the shallow laughter of this world's fun rapidly gives way to weeping.

The praise of men—popularity with those who know not Christ—is a fickle thing. One day they will praise a man to the skies; and the next day no evil word or disgraceful treatment is spared to destroy and dishearten him.

Blaine Minded Not Abuse, Just So He Wasn't Ignored

James G. Blaine, the famous American statesman, at one time was being bitterly attacked by a leading New York newspaper. His friends were fearful that this adverse publicity would harm his career, and pleaded with him to come to some understanding with the paper.

One old friend of his, who was on good terms with the editor, was certain that he could exert some influence and offered to intercede with the editor. "Don't bother," said the shrewd Blaine, "I don't mind being abused, so long as I am not forgotten."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Applesauce and cranberries make a delicious combination to serve with roast pork.

In planning meals, bacon should be considered as fat rather than meat, because it contains very little protein.

Stainless steel utensils have to be heated slowly over a low flame or the foods being cooked in them will scorch.

A pinch of salt added to very sour fruits while cooking will greatly reduce the quantity of sugar needed to sweeten them.

Use one-half can of pineapple juice and one-half water when you bake meat. It gives it a new and different flavor.

When steaming pudding always have the water boiling. It should come up to at least two inches from the top of the mold. Replenish with boiling water to prevent the pudding from failing.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Metor: When the duke of Windsor made his last visit to this country as prince of Wales several years ago, his guard was J. L. Nye—commonly known as "Bill" Nye—of the United States secret service, who is now an executive with the Guaranty Trust company. At the large formal ball given for the prince by Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, his royal highness asked Nye how he would know with which of the ladies he should dance. "Just watch me," replied Nye, "if I dance with a guest, it will be all right for you to do so."

The prince followed the advice and everything went well. But it seems that the scheme leaked out and Nye then became the most popular person at the party.

Incidentally, during the recent visit of the duke and duchess of Windsor, Nye was absent from his bank duties. He was again guarding the duke.

Delay: New York motorists who travel the Merritt highway, that marvelous Connecticut roadway that starts at the end of Hutchinson parkway, have been puzzled by being stopped night and morning by red flags while 40 or more cows saunter lazily across. Bugs Baer finally has come through with an explanation. It seems that when the highway was built, a farmer living along it retained the right-of-way for his cows to cross twice a day. So, rather than build an underpass, which would run into money, the state permits him to hold up all traffic until his herd is safely over the highway. Most motorists, particularly those from New York, who use the Merritt highway, are in a hurry. As everyone knows, cows never are. So there is much fretting and fuming on the part of the drivers, all the more so because they pay a dime to use the highway.

Far West: At the rodeo in Madison Square Garden, a trim, blonde young woman, in a white cowboy outfit and wearing a white 10-gallon hat sat on the chute and cheered the riders, all of whom she knew well. With her was a cowboy, a chunky, solid sort of a man of the open spaces who neither drinks nor smokes. The cowgirl was Sally Rand and the cowboy, her fiancé, Turk Greene, the Cheyenne champion. When the rodeo moved on to Boston, the fan dancer and her cowboy went right along. Some day after their wedding, they intend to settle down on a Montana ranch.

Thoughtful: Some time ago, Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker, was entertaining Joe Cook at his country home at Stamford. In the course of a discussion, a question came up which could be settled only by consulting the Bible. Unfortunately, the Ross household did not possess a copy of the Scriptures. Cook promised to take care of the deficiency. Apparently he did so by requesting all members of the large cast of the musical show with which he was appearing on the road, to send Ross a Bible. The comics, singers, show girls, chorus girls and others sent Bibles with the result that now in the Ross library, there is a whole shelf full of them. In fact he has so many that recently he made a present of one—a Bible, not a show girl—to one of this department's alert scouts.

Hicks: Visitors needn't be royal to make New York stare. Any celebrity will do. The other night at "Candle in the Wind," Charles Boyer was in the audience. Not only did those sitting in the balcony rise to their feet and crowd forward to see him as he passed along the aisle, but occupants of the highest-priced pews stood so that they might give him a gander. And when the play was over, crowds congested the sidewalk in front of the theater until shooed away by cops. Sometimes I think there are more hicks in New York than anywhere else.

Alert State Policeman

Saves Wind-Blown Pie
BETHEL, CONN.—No problem is too minute for the attention of the Connecticut constabulary. State Policeman Robert J. Murphy heard a woman's scream and dashed into the home of Mrs. Joseph Leo. He saw her gazing out the second-story window with a look of dismay. Officer Murphy quickly sized up the situation, and just as quickly climbed onto the porch roof and retrieved Mrs. Leo's newly baked pie that the wind had blown from the window sill to the rain-gutter.

FARM FAMILIES NEED A-1 DIETS

Use of Protective Foods Will Aid Good Health.

By MISS MABEL G. FERNALD
(Home Demonstration Agent, Ohio State University.)

One of the best ways rural homemakers can help in the defense program is to promote better health through better nutrition for the family.

Rural families could improve their diets by using more protective foods such as milk, eggs, fruits, and vegetables produced on the farm. The average family does not eat enough of these products to adequately supply body needs. Studies show that only one-fourth of the families in United States have good diets, more than one-third have fair diets, and another third have poor diets.

The fact that 40 per cent of the men given physical examinations in this country failed to pass because of ailments due to faulty nutrition should spur homemakers on to a better food program. There is much discontent and unhappiness in family life due to poor health. America wants to protect her children with plenty of the right food.

Well-balanced meals at regular hours and plenty of rest and sleep are essential for normal growth. Foods necessary for an adequate diet at moderate costs have been worked out by nutrition specialists who say children should have four cups of milk daily; adults, three cups; Irish or sweet potatoes should be served once or twice a day; dry beans, peas, peanuts, and nuts, three times a week; tomatoes, citrus fruits, or other vitamin C-rich foods, one serving a day; leafy, green, or yellow vegetables, one or two servings a day; other vegetables and fruits about two servings a day.

Every member of the family should have an egg a day in addition to those used in cooking. Lean meat, fish, or poultry should be served seven or eight times a week; cereal daily; bread at every meal; and dessert once or twice a day.

An adequate diet can be made possible by careful planning by the homemaker but each individual will have to assume his share of the responsibility by living up to the higher nutrition and health standards.

Farm Marketing

Progressiveness is a distinctive characteristic of many of the co-operative organizations for marketing farm products, the U. S. department of agriculture notes in reviewing recent reports. "In many fields," says George H. Thomson of the Farm Credit administration, "co-operatives are maintaining their leadership. One large co-operative, for example, developed the X-ray method of inspecting fruit which reveals defects hidden from old inspection methods. An olive co-operative perfected a machine which pits ripe olives at the rate of 750 to 1,000 a minute. It has enabled the association to lead the way in putting out a commercial pack."

Exercise for Cows Is First Rate Tonic

During the winter months cows should be turned out daily for exercise as fresh air and sunshine, combined with a moderate amount of exercise is nature's best tonic for them. Cows that are stabled continuously become lame, stiff and develop a general unthrifty condition, he reminds dairymen.

Research has shown that moderate exercise tends to increase slightly, both the percentage and total yield of butterfat. Cows also benefit from direct exposure to sunshine when they are turned out-of-doors. The ultra-violet light in sunshine penetrates the skin and produces vitamin D from traces of ergosterol found in the skin tissues. Sunshine and quality roughage are the principal sources of vitamin D in the dairy ration.

The length of time cows should be permitted to remain out-of-doors will naturally depend upon weather conditions. It is a good plan to provide an exercise paddock on the sunny side of the barn where it will be sheltered from the prevailing winds. From a management standpoint, it is a good idea to clean the barn and re-bed the stalls while the cows are outside.

Disease and War

Germany's invasion of the Channel islands, home of the Jersey and Guernsey dairy cattle breeds, has infected them with foot-and-mouth disease, according to Dr. John Mohler, chief of the federal bureau of animal industry. The islands were occupied in the summer of 1940. Russia's invasion of Finland last year brought the disease to that country, too. He emphasized the importance of effective quarantines to protect U. S. livestock from foreign disease.

Launching of Alabama

Rehearsed for 2 Years
PORTSMOUTH, VA.—The battleship Alabama will make a big splash when it is launched at the Norfolk Navy yard here next February, a splash so big that engineers already are calculating how wharves across the narrow Elizabeth river can be protected from damage. Drag chains weighing 600 tons will help check the ship's speed.

The Alabama has been "launched" time and again in miniature in the David W. Taylor model basin, operated by the navy under the bureau of ships at Carderock, Md., and every conceivable problem connected with the actual launching has been studied.

Naval architects were letting the model of the 35,000-ton vessel slide down the ways into the basin as long as two years ago, and from these launchings engineers have collected data which tell them exactly what to expect when the sister ship of the Massachusetts and the South Dakota actually hits the river.

The model tests showed, for example, that a possible wave eight feet high might be set up by the battleship, but that the height of the wave in the confined waters of the Elizabeth river probably would not exceed five feet.

It was found that unless the momentum of the ship was checked in some way the vessel undoubtedly would crash into the Berkley wharves across the river. That is why the tons of chain drags, placed in 50-ton clumps and secured to pads at the side of the ship, will be employed.

Uruguay to Build Base

To Aid American Defense

MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY.—Early construction of a base for landplanes and seaplanes that would have full command of the vital Rio de la Plata mouth and be available for United States use in the event of war is reported planned by Uruguay.

The base, informed sources said, would include a strip of land facing the Atlantic, which would be used by landplanes, and Laguna Negra for seaplanes and flying boats.

Part of the cost, these sources said, would be met from the $17,500,000 obtained recently from the United States for national defense.

PREVENT DISEASE IN DAIRY HERD

Good Management, Feeding Will Reduce Losses.

By Dr. GEORGE TAYLOR
(Extension Dairyman, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Dairymen should think more in terms of herd health and disease prevention and less in terms of treatment and cures.

The value of any dairy animal is dependent primarily upon its health. Prevention of disease is far less costly than disease treatment, and good feeding and management practices can go a long way toward reducing annual losses in dairy herds due to disease.

The ration should supply the proper balance of protein, energy, minerals, and vitamins. Water is also needed.

Quality roughage, including hay, pasture and grass silage, is the most essential item of dairy feed. It is a fair source of calcium and practically the sole source of vitamins A and D in the dairy ration. Concentrates which must be fed to satisfy higher levels of production tend to be toxic to a dairy animal. This effect is largely overcome by the feeding of quality hay when pasture is not available. The long list of ailments in dairy cattle which can be avoided by good feeding includes gorter, bloat, impaction and loss of appetite.

Management ranks with feeding in importance in checking disease. Because the spread of disease is more rapid in large herds, the size of the milking unit should be limited to 50 cows or less. Separate quarters should also be provided for growing heifers and baby calves. Separate isolation and maternity quarters are also desirable.

Strict sanitation is a most important part of management. Regular systematic cleaning and disinfecting will aid materially in keeping down the causative organisms associated with disease.

Dairy animals should be allowed ample exercise under conditions where they may benefit from fresh air and exposure to sunshine.

America's War Victims Appeal for Your Help

First war poster of the new World War, painted by the distinguished artist James Montgomery Flagg, carries an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund to aid the victims of aggression upon the United States and its island possessions.

To aid the victims of warfare being waged upon America and her island possessions, the American Red Cross has issued an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced from the national headquarters in Washington.

Mr. Davis urged men, women and children to give to this mercy fund through their local Red Cross chapters. These funds will support the Chapter's war work with the families of men in the military services, as well as the broad relief program of the national Red Cross.

President Roosevelt, who is president of the American Red Cross, issued a proclamation urging all citizens to give to the Red Cross war fund.

Hopeful Signs

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hiddenite, N. C.

It is a known fact that we are living in perilous times with the outlook that worse is to follow. However, there are some hopeful signs among the many dark and trying scenes that are about us, and that confront us. We find that many people are praying. They are turning their thoughts and hearts toward God. It is an absolute fact that many people realize the need of help that is beyond that of man, therefore they turn toward God and Heaven. This is commendable; this is as it ought to be. God can help us when all earthly help and assistance fails and comes to naught.

In yesterday's mail I received this short letter from one: "Mr. Isenhour, I have been reading your good sermons in the paper. I want you to pray for me that I may be saved." The writer of this short note signed no name. The tone of the letter sounds like some soul is in trouble and wants help from the Lord—wants salvation. It is most blessed to desire prayer for one's salvation. God hears and answers the prayers of His people in behalf of the penitent sinner or may bring one to repentance through the earnest, sincere prayers of somebody else. Yes, dear soul, you shall have an interest in our prayers. You ought to pray most honestly and sincerely for yourself also. God will hear the prayers of the penitent sinner. You can be saved from all your sins, cleansed in heart and soul, and made a fit subject for Heaven. It will pay you ten million times to seek the Lord in repentance until you find Him precious to your soul. He is still in the soul saving business. Just roll your sins over on His mercy and He will bear them all away, and then sanctify your soul.

One of our readers from Bakersville, N. C., writes, saying: "Pray for me to be saved and healed of my habit and a great burden. Pray for my five children to be saved from the tobacco habit. If God will help me I will give my life to do His will. I feel like I am lost." Now we know that a soul lost in sin, and bound by a bad habit, and carrying a great burden, is in a deplorable condition. But when one asks for prayer that she may be saved from sin, made free from a binding habit, and have a heavy burden removed, and likewise asks for prayer for her children, this is a hopeful sign. God can help people like that. He can save to the uttermost and delivered from all binding habits. He can also heal the diseased, sick body.

O, that multitudes of people would turn to God for help! So many, many are bound hard and fast by some bad, injurious habit which is taking their money, robbing them of health, happiness and salvation, and will keep them out of Heaven. Why not pray and sincerely repent? It is the only hope of deliverance from sin, the devil and hell that stands just ahead. However, God hears the humble cry of the penitent, of the soul in trouble, and the prayers of those who love and worship, serve and reverence Him in behalf of others.

Another reader says: "I have been reading your good messages for several years, and have been helped quite a bit by them, although I am not as spiritual as I desire to be. I desire your prayers. Pray also that my brother may be released from the training camp. He was the only brother we had with us. Father is blind and can't do any work, so you see we need brother at home so much. He is Velocipede, 1865 Style, Put Into 1942 Use!

Durham—With automobiles parked and their owners taking to bicycles to conserve rubber tires, Dr. Trela D. Collins figured he'd go them one better by using no rubber at all.

Dr. Collins, pastor of Lakewood Baptist church, brought forth from his private museum an old two-wheeled velocipede of the 1865 vintage. The wheels are of hand-forged steel.

But, after much effort to learn the art of his forebears and ride the antique, the minister admitted that he had "as soon stand up and walk as try to sit down and walk."

This particular type of velocipede was invented by Ernest Michaux, of London, in 1865, and was the direct successor of the Old Bone Crusher of an earlier date, but Dr. Collins is sure the inventor could have made very few improvements to remedy the shock of the ride.

Constructed of steel and wood, the antiquated two-wheeler portrays something of the artistic in workmanship and genius. The front wheel, which is the central and sufficient means of motivation, is 50 inches in diameter. With pedals fastened directly to the front axle there is no chain or rod drive. The rear wheel is about 14 inches in diameter and operates on a swivel.

The velocipede, which has been in Dr. Collins' family for more than 75 years, is in excellent condition.

Sweet Marie

(Chicago Sun)

There used to be a popular song which had its vogue years before our present young soldiers was born. The first line of the chorus was "Come to Me, Sweet Marie," and though neither tune nor lyric ever hit them, lonely boys in uniform on the highway between Alexandria and Fort Belvoir, Va., must have been thinking that topped the other day when they picked up scraps of paper—scores of them—and found this message: "Soldier Boy, please write me. Marie Thomas, Arlington, Va."

So they started writing—all sorts of letters, from diffident and respectful to what is known in the jargon of the day as "hot." But—and oh, the pity it!—Marie's Ma stepped in and shut off the whole business. You see, the child is only eleven.

in a rough bunch of boys, and he is homesick. He says that he is praying very much and believes there is something good coming. So please pray for us. These are awful days.

Indeed, dear sister, you shall have an interest in our prayers. God has in store all that you need for your soul, and he can bring your brother home in answer to your prayer, if such is His will. It pays to pray. Our heavenly Father does great and wonderful things for those who pray and put their trust in Him, and will do wonderful things for others in answer to the prayers of His dear children and saints. It is too bad that so many of the soldier boys are rough and sinful. They need God. Many of them will never get back home alive, in all probability, if this awful war continues. Therefore let's pray for their salvation. How they need Jesus to take care of them! Every soul on the face of the whole earth needs the Lord Jesus Christ and vital, Holy Ghost salvation. Nothing else can save us.

Prices Eighty Years Ago

According to an old clipping containing the Charlotte market quotations in June, 1860, a year before the Civil war, the cost of living was much lower than at the present time. Bacon and hams were quoted at 22½¢; butter at 15¢; corn at 85¢; chickens at 20¢ each; eggs at 12¢; flour at $6 50 a barrel; molasses at 70¢; mutton at 5¢; pork at 7¢; North Carolina whiskey at 51 to 58¢ a gallon, and northern whiskey at 45¢ to 55¢. The scale of prices just before the Civil war, as some will recall, were not so very different from the scale preceding World War No. 1. Prices just before the present war were much higher. Liqueur about $6 per gallon; hams 30 to 40¢; butter 25 to 30¢; chickens go to 80¢; mutton 30¢; eggs 30¢; flour about $8 per barrel, molasses $1 per gallon and no North Carolina peach brandy at any price.

Agriculture and Defense

During the present perilous times every true American are putting forth every effort in the interest of National Defense, looking forward to the time when we will have worldwide peace.

Since agriculture, especially food and feed, means so much to National safety at this time, every farmer should, in co operation with programs outlined to you by your County Farm Agent and Home Demonstration Agent, plan an individual program of farming that will best fit into the National program.

In the connection the U. S. Department of Agriculture, through the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan office of the Farm Credit Administration, stands ready to assist farmers who find themselves in need of financial assistance by granting loans for crop production purposes to farmers who are unable to obtain financial assistance through their local banks or Production Credit Associations. The farmer must have a well balanced cropping program, planting sufficient food and feed crops for home use and to feed his live stock in addition to sufficient cash crops to take care of his family needs and to repay his loan.

These loans are secured by a first lien on all crops with an interest rate of 4 per cent.

Applications may be placed by calling at the office of F. R. Leagans, in Mocksville, any day of the week between 1 p. m., and 4 p. m., except Tuesdays.

Many Laggard In Filing Returns

Raleigh—A large number of North Carolina truck and bus owners are still laggard in filing their returns in the statewide truck and bus inventory by the traffic advisory committee to the War Dept. L. G. Watters, technical adviser, said today.

Out of a total of 138,000 trucks and busses registered in the State there are about 40,000 unreported.

This inventory is designed to give the War Department readily available information on transportation facilities throughout the nation for use during periods of emergency.

The Advisory Committee desires a complete initial inventory for all of 1941. All new purchases or transfers of trucks and busses between September and December 31st should be reported by owners.

Owners desiring additional questionnaire cards or information regarding filing out the cards should contact their local defense chairman or the office of the Highway Traffic Advisory Committee in Raleigh.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—In the years between the two world wars, Dr. Winifred V. Richmond of St. Elizabeth's hospital, Washington, D. C., devoted intensive research to the ravages of war on the mind and personality of the young. She became a leading authority in this field and, in her work today offers unique and highly informed conclusions as to how to safeguard children, particularly adolescents in the intensifying psychological war.

The problem, she finds, is largely the stabilization of parents rather than the young. She cites primitive cultures. Primitive man takes his horrors in his stride. He has a physical and emotional equipment to meet them. He doesn't crack up, and neither do his children. Young children get emotional security from their elders. Such is Dr. Richmond's drift in her many books and articles, the latest of which is her newly published book, "Making the Most of Your Personality."

Within the last few decades she has examined countless children in the twilight zone of near-emotional and psychological collapse. She has saved or helped to save many of them. Her findings are compiled in her latest book, addressed to both parents and adolescents. Safeguarding the children in the "war of nerves" is her campaign.

She is a devoted, graying abbess of science, born in Elizabeth, W. Va., in 1876, holding degrees from Ohio and Clark university. She taught 15 years, starting her career in a one-room country school, and moving on to the teaching of mental hygiene, and in wide fields of research, in many universities.

The Yippy, Dippy, Lippy Fakir of Ipi The German are giving him another workout among the wild tribes of Afghanistan and northwestern India, having used his incendiary talents for years before the start of this war.

Kipling's "Man Who Would Be King," operating in the same territory, was just an old stick-in-the-mud, compared to the emaciated wild-eyed little man, with his hair dyed bright red and a yell that gives everybody a nervous breakdown for miles around. His dish is "scouring the infidel British." He is the "Avenger of the Church of Islam," an ace troublemaker for the Germans and Japanese just now, with his skill in provoking murderous religious wars. The British take him seriously, as his inflammatory range is such that it might necessitate the withdrawal of troops from Burma and Bengal to guard the Khyber pass.

As a matter of fact, the British have taken him seriously for many years. They have chased him on foot and on horseback, with planes and armored cars, with an army of 40,000 soldiers, and with everything but bloodhounds. But he has always slipped just out of reach. He has been known as "The Holy Man of the Suleiman Mountains," and among the tribesmen the legend grows that he can do a clever disappearing act when the police are closing in.

Although he is now only 41 years old, he has been a practicing hell-raiser for 20 years, one of the best in the business. He grew up in the bazaars of Peshawar in northwest India, a coolie, and the son of a camel driver. He has led border tribes in several violent uprisings, notably in 1931 and 1932. His Pathan raiders have been notoriously bloodthirsty.

News reports are that Axis agents are gearing him in widely organized radio campaigns.

HOLLYWOOD may not see Katharine Hepburn working before its cameras again for some time; she left when she finished "Woman of the Year" with no plans for making more pictures, but with plenty for doing that new play; if it runs as long as "Philadelphia Story" did she won't be ready for pictures again for more than two years.

Incidentally, Spencer Tracy—who also wants to do a play, if he can find the right one—had his hair cut for that new Hepburn picture, the first time he's done that since 1935, when he had a haircut for "Murder Man," which he made with Myrna Loy think back and you'll remember that he's been doing "unshaven and unshorn" roles, a long string of them.

Case investigators on the air's "Are You a Missing Heir" program travel thousands of miles and spend hundreds of dollars in search of those heirs—so imagine their surprise under a legatee turned up practically under their noses; she's Agatha Friederick, and is a script-writer for the agency handling the Heirs program.

We know only that "the studio has made some concessions" in that difference of opinion between Deanna Durbin and Universal that's kept her off the screen all this time. Last October it was reported that she was demanding the right to choose her vehicles and approve her leading men and directors—when a star takes things into her own hands that way she's usually on the skids that lead to oblivion. Now she's set to make pictures again. Her husband, Vaughn Paul, will not change his mind about his resignation as a Universal producer.

John Payne replaces Victor Mature in 20th Century Fox's "White Collar Girl," in which he plays opposite Betty Grable. The picture is scheduled to get under way soon, with John Brahm directing.

It seems to be children's day at the Columbia studios. Baby Davy James, the infant Marlene Dietrich didn't drop in "The Lady Is Willing," has a new contract with options that cover a total of 21 years; now a year old, he's known professionally as "Wonder Baby Corey," his name in that picture. And 15-day-old Norma Jean Wayne is working in "Blondie's Blessed Event."

That bartender whom you'll see with Richard Arlen and Arline Judge in "Wildcat" once had his day as a famous man. He is Tom Kennedy, and once upon a time he fought Jack Johnson for the world's heavyweight championship.

Speaking of war pictures—Paramount bought a story called "Channel Port" way back last April, and now is going to do something about it. It will be filmed in England, and executives are hoping to get Laurence Olivier or David Niven for the lead. It's a Commando story; the hero's a long-distance swimmer, who swims the channel from France to England with important information.

Columbia grabbed the title, "The Commandos," first, however; their story deals with an American boy who becomes one of that daring band, and a girl in Norway who heads an underground movement against the invaders—one more "boy meets girl" plot, in a new setting.

"Bedtime Story" has a parallel in real life, Helen Hayes' announcement that she would retire for two years was contradicted by her husband, Charles MacArthur who has a new play for her. Same plot as the picture!

ODDS AND ENDS—Band bookers are optimistic, despite the war—Sammy Kaye, for example, has been booked through January, 1943. A preview audience liked Donna Reed so much in "The Courtship of Andy Hardy" that the picture was given a new ending, a happy one for her. In Universal's "Wake Up and Dream" band leader Woody Herman not only makes his film bow but dances a bit for the customers. Joan Crawford's salary for the role that was to have been Carole Lombard's in "He Kissed the Bride"—$112,500—will all go to charitable organizations. "Sullivan's Travels" is not only very funny; it has a message as well.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

'Modernizing' Old Style Houses
SOME neighbors of mine have a brick house built about 60 years ago. It is square and chunky, with nothing in its design to make it attractive. It is of the period when craftsmen and jig-saw work were the fashion, but that today makes it look hopelessly out-of-date. Its occupants knew that it could be made prettier, but were undecided as to how to go about it. They finally made a business of driving through all of the surrounding suburbs to the look-out for houses of somewhat the same proportion, that might give them ideas of what to do. It did not take them long to make up their minds. All of the jig-saw and ornamental work was stripped off, and the porch roof and columns were replaced by woodwork of modern design that they found at a lumber yard. The front door had been hardly more than a rectangular hole through the wall. This they replaced with a stock entrance of Colonial design, with a fan-light and side-lights opening on an entrance of the same design. This, and the trim of the house, which had been an ugly yellow, was repainted white. The effect of the house was completely changed. Instead of being an eyesore the house became one of the most attractive in the neighborhood, with a dignity that had been entirely lacking. The whole job took only three weeks, and the cost was less than a thousand dollars.

Broken Roof Slates
Roof slates are secured by nails going through the upper ends, the nail heads being hidden by the slates of the course next above. There is always a little looseness in slates, and there may be breakage when the slates are rattled by a heavy wind. In replacing a slate, the nails cannot be reached because of the slates above. By one method a strip of sheet copper is used, eight or ten inches long and two inches or so wide. This is secured by nails at one end about half-way up the space left by the missing slate. The new slate is then put into place and is held there by bending the free end of the copper strip over its lower edge.

There is sometimes leakage through a slate roof when a heavy wind blows fine snow or rain under the slates. This can be prevented by raising the lower edge of each slate enough to put a dab of roofing cement underneath to secure it to the slate of the course below. This job is best done in warm weather when the roofing cement is plastic and spreads easily.

Cigarette Burn
A mahogany table has been burned by a cigarette. I tried to remove the spot by rubbing with steel wool, but this left bare wood. How can this be refinished?
Answer: If that ever happens again, scrape the charred wood with a razor blade, which is better for the purpose than rubbing with steel wool. For a finish, put on two or three thin coats of quick drying varnish with a camel's hair brush to build up the depression to the level of the surrounding finish. Each coat of varnish should be hard before putting on the next.

Knotty Pine Finish
Question: How can knotty pine be finished to obtain a soft mellow appearance?
Answer: The usual finish is liberal wiping with a half-and-half mixture of linseed oil and turpentine. After an hour or two for soaking in, wipe the surface dry. Repeat in two days. This will not check the mellowing that comes with age. Another good finish is penetrating wax, which can be had clear or tinted with wood colors. Either finish can be followed by waxing.

Damp Cellar
Question: Ten years ago I had my basement ceiling and sidewalls covered with chemically treated cement to keep water from seeping through. This has been satisfactory until now. I am having trouble again. What can I do to keep my basement dry?
Answer: Age and dampness have destroyed the effectiveness of the cement. As this has lasted for ten years it has done very well, and your best move will be to have the treatment repeated.

Finish for Tile
Question: Last summer we put down a porch floor of quarry tile six inches square, with red mortar joints. At the time it was rubbed with linseed oil, but now it has smeared and the color is no longer pretty. How can it be brightened?
Answer: Wiping with turpentine should clean the surface, which seems to be giving the trouble. With the tile clean and dry, put on two or three coats of paste wax, each well rubbed.

Headroom Above Boiler
Question: I have had my rotary oil burner taken out of the old coal burning furnace and installed in a new boiler designed for oil burning, and hope to save oil. I have read from time to time that there should be 18 inches headroom from top of boiler to the steam main. I only seem to have nine inches. I should like your opinion as to how this installation will work out.
Answer: The distance is figured from the boiler water level and not from the top of the boiler. This distance should be at least 18 inches.

The Truth of It Is . . . This Cherry Torte Is Good!
(See Recipes Below)

Washington Day Ideas

It took Washington to make the cherry famous by telling the truth about cutting down that famous tree, but it takes only a sampling to make us appreciate the excellence of this luscious red-ripe berry.

If you're sensitive to color, and most of you are, I am sure, then you can make the most of the possibilities which the cherry offers for pepping up winter mealtime. With appetites riding high, but opportunities for decoration fairly low in these colder months, the Washington birthday and its synonym the cherry, come to the rescue. All of today's recipes have "Um-um" tacked onto them, so make your bids for fame by starting off with:

*Cherry Torte. (Serves 6 to 8)

Torte Layer:
1 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1/4 cup butter
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
Combine flour, salt and sugar. Cut in butter with knives or pastry blender. Add beaten egg yolk and mix thoroughly. Press this mixture into baking dish or pie tin. Cover with cherry topping and bake in a hot (425-degree) oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate (350 degree) for about 20 minutes. Serve hot or cold, with whipped or plain cream if desired.

Cherry Topping:
1 No. 2 can red, tart, pitted cherries
1/2 cup sugar
4 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon butter
Drain juice from cherries. Heat to boiling point. Combine sugar and cornstarch. Add enough cold water to make a smooth paste. Pour this gradually into the boiling cherry juice and cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from fire, add cherries and butter.

This upside down cake is as good as it looks because the cherries are interlaced with the delicious caramel mixture. You'll be extra clever for varying the dessert course with this newcomer to the upside down cake family for it's bound to carry off first honors:

Cherry Upside Down Cake.
2 eggs
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup boiling water
1/4 cup cake flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon lemon or orange extract
1 1/2 cups red, pitted cherries
1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup brown sugar
Beat yolks until thick; add sugar gradually. Continue beating and add water. Mix well and add sifted

Lynn Says:
The cherry family is one with many branches. In addition to the red, tart pitted cherries which are abundant in the summer and which can easily be put up well in cans, there are two other types of cherries worthy of mention.

The first of these is a white type cherry commonly called Queen Anne. This lends itself well to salads and adds distinctive flavor especially when used in combination with other fruits such as pineapple, oranges, grapefruit and bananas. A little bit of the Queen Anne cherry goes a long way.

The other type, called Bing cherries, are deep, dark red, and quite sweet. For that reason they are at home in desserts. They can be made into sauces and served over ice creams and puddings.

dry ingredients. Beat in thoroughly and fold in flavoring and stiffly beaten egg whites. Melt butter in heavy skillet and add brown sugar. Over this spread cherries, then pour over cake batter. Bake 30 to 40 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven.

If you ever have cherries left over you may thicken the juice with cornstarch mixed in water and heated to the boiling point. This is especially good on rice or cottage pudding or as a sauce over ice cream.

Cherries and peaches are an inspired combination, especially in pie. You'll be enthusiastic over this one:

Peach Cherry Pie.

1 recipe plain pastry
3/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup flour
1 1/2 cups canned tart red cherries
1 1/2 cups sliced peaches (canned)
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
1/4 cup juice from canned cherries
3 tablespoons butter
Drain fruit. Mix flour and sugar and sprinkle 1/2 of the mixture in a lined pastry tin. Add fruit and cherry juice to which has been added the almond extract. Sprinkle fruit with remaining flour-sugar mixture. Dot with butter. Make lattice top for pie and flute edges. Bake in a hot (425-degree) oven 10 minutes, then in a moderate (350-degree) oven 25 minutes.

Meat balls, slim the budget and still remain a good main dish for dinners this season. They're nutritious and flavorful made with egg, milk and bread, and colorful with green peas riding in the rich brownish red gravy:

*Meat Balls. (Serves 6)

2 slices bread
3/4 cup milk
1 beaten egg
3/4 pound ground beef
1/4 cup ground pork
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons chili sauce
1 small onion, grated
2 cups strained tomatoes
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup peas, cooked
Soften bread in milk, add egg. Mix meats and add seasonings, salt, pepper, chili sauce and onion. Form into balls, roll in flour and brown in hot fat. Add tomato and Worcestershire sauce and simmer for 35 minutes. Add peas and cook until they heat through.

Banana Muffins.
(Makes 10 muffins)
2 tablespoons shortening
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup chopped banana
1 egg
1 cup vitamin-enriched wheat flakes
1/2 cup milk
1 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
Blend shortening and sugar, add chopped banana and egg and beat thoroughly. Stir in wheat flakes and milk. Sift dry ingredients and add to first mixture. Stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin tins until 3/4 full and bake in a moderately hot (400-degree) oven about 30 minutes.

Creamed Spinach.
Wash spinach leaves carefully under running water, being careful to remove all dirt. Boil without water 5 to 7 minutes or until tender. Drain and chop fine. Make a medium thick cream sauce, and blend into the chopped spinach until it becomes part of the leaves. Season to taste with salt, pepper and a little dash of nutmeg. As a garnish serve wedges or slices of hard-boiled egg around the spinach platter.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE veterans of minor league baseball, whose chances of breaking into the big time circuits were almost nonexistent a year ago, are taking renewed hope.

The reason is obvious. Younger players, between 20 and 25, usually are unmarried. In times like these, clubs are hesitant about signing such men. Uncle Sam has a prior claim to their services.

Johnny Nee, veteran New York Yankee scout, admits that baseball's oldsters will claim the attention of ivory hunters next summer. Nee expects to see a good share of 30-year-old rookies in spring training camps in 1943. At least if the war continues.

"As I see it," Nee said, "we must look for older players—those who have families and consequently are not likely to be drafted—but who might have a year or two of major league ball in their systems."

The high premium which has been placed on youth causes the public—and some club owners—to forget that quite a few graybeards have made names for themselves in the majors. Wilcy Moore, for instance, was 30 years old when he came to the Yankees in 1927. Moore managed to win 19 games and lose only 7 that year.

Lou Fette and Jim Turner were 30 years old when they hit the majors with the Boston Braves and each won 20 games his first year. Heber Newsome, 32 years old, never had been in the majors until last season. He won 19 games for the Red Sox.

The Big Upset

Fred Haney, manager of the St. Louis Browns, foresees startling changes in both big leagues this summer. He is quite firmly convinced that the Browns can move up to the first division, and he wouldn't be at all surprised if the Phillies relinquished their tail end position. His attitude is based on the matter of players' ages.

Cleveland, he maintains, won't play the same brand of ball without Feller. The Boston Red Sox can't compensate for the loss of Ted Williams and their young, improved pitchers. The Tigers can't replace Greenberg.

The Browns are more fortunate in this respect. They are an older club with more married men aboard. They won't suffer so much from the draft. Every club in the league will be losing men from time to time, but the Browns may lose fewer.

The Yankees can stand the loss much better than any other club. They could lose any two or three—or more—players and still be the one team to beat.

The National League, of course, is faced with the same critical problem. The outcome of the pennant battle may depend on the draft. Many a familiar name will be missing from the rosters when the season opens on April 14.

The St. Louis Cardinals have a large share of married men, but also a considerable number of younger stars. Just how many young pitchers will be on hand in mid-April is anybody's guess.

About the Dodgers

The Dodgers could be in much worse shape. They get a break in the number of pitchers they have from 35 on up. But, like the remaining clubs, they will lose a number of younger men who were slated for increasingly important roles. It's useless to name each club—the problem is general.

Although major league difficulties make the headlines, the minor league situation is even more critical—particularly at the lower end of baseball's ladder. Class C and D leagues likely will be hard pressed for players before the year is ended. Salaries in Class C run about $100 a month, in Class D about $80.

The present uncertainty on the baseball front—both major and minor—may result in an exciting, scramble which will sharpen interest to an unprecedented extent. The season probably won't go according to pattern. It promises to be a year of surprises and upsets. Teams which have been kept on the winning side of the ledger by the efforts of one or two men will find their positions extremely precarious—especially if those men are of draft age. The situation isn't unhealthy. Baseball won't suffer from the uncer-

General John J. Pershing's son has enlisted in the U. S. army as a private. Some sons of big men list only as lieutenants, captains or colonels.

The North Carolina Democrats have opened their campaign, war or no war. What is sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander.

Here's hoping that enough men and boys will be left on the farms to produce enough food to not only feed our fast growing army, but all of the aged men, the women and the children. No army can fight without rations.

We are living in a wonderful world. Some of the men who are working in munition plants and factories are getting more money for one day's work than some of our soldiers boys are getting for a full month's work.

The Twin-City Sentinel says that the editor of The Davie Record is considered a conservative Republican. The Sentinel would have a hard time convincing Davie county Democrats that Frank Stroud was a conservative Republican, and had been for 49 years.

"The darkest hour is just before dawn," according to an old saying. The Japs and Hitlerites have achieved some notable victories but the time is not so far distant when they will get what is coming to them. It may take some time, but eventually they will suffer threefold for their hellishness.

A young friend who has been employed in a textile mill for several years, dropped in to pass the time of day with us a few days ago, and showed us something that we hadn't seen up to this time—a $1,000 victory bond which he had just purchased. This young man is a life-long Republican, and believes in backing his country to the limit.

Harold Ickes seems to think that there might be a shortage of gas in the near future. Just how this can happen with no new auto tires being sold, we can't figure out. Horse, bicycles and skates don't consume gas. We hadn't heard from Harold lately. Thought maybe he had decided to enlist in the army and help us win the war.

Davie county will vote on a Congressman, a Senator, Solicitor, Representative, Clerk of the Court and Sheriff this year. So far as we know Solicitor Avalon Hall will have no opposition from the Republican party. He has served in this high office for four years and has made a fine record. He has filled the office with honor to himself and the great party he represents. There is no question but what he will be elected, as this district is almost solid Republican. There is much talk of the Republicans naming Jack Vogler for Sheriff and G. G. Daniel for Clerk of the Court. There is some talk of Johnson D. Lybrook, for State Senator, and Attorney B. C. Brock for Representative. Those who run for various offices haven't much time left in which to file their names.

Only 35 Confederate Vets.

Of the 127,000 North Carolinians who served in the Civil War, 1861-65, there are only 35 now living. Davie county is listed as having one, Noah Brock, but Mr. Brock left Davie county more than 60 years ago, and located in Indiana, where he is now living. Mr. Brock is 106 years old, and is in excellent health considering his advanced age. Forsyth county has one Confederate soldier still living. Rowan county has three; Iredell county one; Yadkin county one, and Wilkes county two.

Mrs. William A. Davis.

Mrs. William A. Davis, 72, died at her home in Jerusalem township on Monday evening, Feb. 16th, at 11 o'clock, death following a stroke of paralysis which she suffered on Dec. 8th.

Funeral services were held at Concord Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, with her pastor, Rev. G. W. Fink in charge, and the body laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Davis is survived by her husband and nine children, three sons, C. W. and G. W. Davis, both of near Woodleaf; Joe Davis, Salisbury; six daughters, Mrs. Nora Cartner, Mrs. Maude Goodman, of near Salisbury; Mrs. Beulah Hood, of Needmore; Mrs. Verste Campbell, of Dunn, and Mrs. Alice Nail, at home. A number of brothers and sisters also survive. In the death of Mrs. Davis the community in which she lived has lost one of its best women, a good neighbor and a Christian woman. To the bereaved family, The Record extends sympathy in this sad hour.

Clarksville News.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kearns and Miss Mabel Bloomberg, of High Point, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Sofus Eaton.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Linsert, of Archthage, visited relatives here recently. Miss Janyce Eaton entertained the intermediate class of Chestnut Grove Methodist Sunday school at her home on Saturday night. Games and contests were enjoyed by all, with Faye Naylor and Johnnie Bracken winning high scores. The business served refreshments to the following guests: Miss Ruth Earle Peoples, Johnnie and Lucille Bracken, Faye Naylor, Pansy and Verna Evans, Mary Nell and Carolyn Eaton, Pearlina Beck and Martha Bowles, Messrs. Gene Seats, Lewis Beck, Marshall Bowles, Toromy Eaton and Lester Naylor.

Thursday night was the regular monthly meeting of the P. T. A. of William R. Davie school. A very interesting Founders Day program was given. Among the interesting features on the program was a piano solo by Miss Louise Stroud, vocal solo, "Bluebirds Over The White Cliffs of Dover," by little Miss Yvonne York, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James York, a duet by Mrs. James York and Mrs. E. C. James. Dr. Lester Martin gave an interesting talk on the origin of the Parent-Teacher Association, and last but not least on the program was the serving of delicious cake and coffee to the many parents and friends present.

War Deaths In 1941

Deaths in the armed forces of all belligerent nations in 1941 are estimated at between 1,250,000 and 1,600,000 by statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Old Hitler is going to have a big debt to pay when he is jerked hence.

Total Registration 776.

In the nation-wide registration which took place Monday, Feb. 16th, there were 776 Davie county men who wrote their names on the dotted line. All male citizens between the ages of 20 and 45 years, who had not registered in previous drafts, were required to register. A few, who were unable to register on the 16th, have since had their cards filled out.

The total registration in the various townships was as follows:
Mocksville . . . 250
Smith Grove . . . 59
Davie Academy . . . 27
Cooleemee . . . 194
Wm. R. Davie School . . . 80
Fork Church . . . 36
Farmington . . . 55
Shady Grove . . . 75

Total . . . 776
The total registration in North Carolina exceeded 200,000, while the total for the United States was about 9,000,000. Of this nine million, 1,650,000 were between 20 and 21 years of age.

Repeal Pension Bill

Washington, Feb. 19—In response to angry criticism from all over the country, the Senate voted tonight 75 to 5, to scrap the "pensions for Congress" law and then decided to give the nation's fighting men a broad raise in pay.

Exactly one month after it voted, 42 to 24, to grant pension privileges to members of Congress, the President, vice president and cabinet, the chamber reversed itself in response to widespread reaction that included a "bundles for Congress" movement and other barbed criticism.

Only five senators voted against the repealer, which now goes to a House which seems anxious to approve it. The five "no" votes were cast by Senators La Follette, Progressive of Wisconsin, Nye, Republican of North Dakota, Wallgren, Democrat of Washington, Clark, Democrat of Idaho, and Mead, Democrat of New York.

Soon after the vote, the chamber accepted a suggestion from Senator Clark, Democrat of Missouri, and voted for an increase of 20 per cent in the base pay for enlisted men and 10 per cent for officers serving in the army and navy in foreign countries, and in Midway, Hawaii and the Philippines.

Alfred Gullett

Alfred Gullett, 84, died Thursday morning at his home near Cooleemee.

Surviving are two sons, Alex and Cap Gullett, of Cooleemee; nine grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home. Burial was in Jerusalem Cemetery.

P. T. A. Observes Founders' Day.

The P. T. A. of the William R. Davie school met Thursday evening. Mrs. Homer Latham, temporary president, presided over the meeting, in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. Frank Essic. After a short business session, the meeting was turned over to M. S. Cline, chairman of the Founders' Day Program Committee. Dr. Lester P. Martin made an interesting talk on the founding of the P. T. A. This was followed by a guitar duet by Mrs. James York and Mrs. E. C. James, Jr., and a quartet by Betty Sue Whitaker, Peggy Cline, Roger Whitaker and Flake Cline.

An impressive "Founders' Day" playlet was given at this time by a group of P. T. A. members, after which a piano solo was rendered by Miss Louise Stroud, and a silver offering taken. Cake and coffee were served by the Girl Scouts to the members of the P. T. A., and visitors present.

Register For Defense

There will be a registration of all persons who wish to volunteer for defense work, at the court house on Saturday, Feb. 28th, beginning at 9 a. m. This is a very important matter, and Mayor Caudell urges all who will, to register on that day—men, women and children. We are in war—and we must win it. Do yours part.

Sheffield News.

Several more farmers in this section say that their wells have gone dry.

Cheshire school P. T. A. met Wednesday night. Mrs. Clay Salmon was elected president. Mrs. Balsa Renegar vice-president and Miss Luna Goforth, secretary. The next meeting will be March 16th. A very good program is being arranged. Plan now to be there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gaither announce the arrival of a nine-pound son, Ernest Benjamin, last Thursday.

Pomp Smith, who has been on the sick list for some time, is improving. Mr. Smith says he is a charter member of the Sheffield Grange, but not a single Grange member has been to see him.

Mrs. Jim Cleary is critically at Davis Hospital, Statesville.

A large number of wild ducks passed through this section last Friday. One old timer said they might have been some of the Mrs. Donald Ducks.

Goodbye Tin Cans

Canned pork and beans, spaghetti, perhaps other canned foods will soon be a relic of peace times in the Mocksville stores and homes. Uncle Sam needs the tin that is being used to make these cans. Many foods that have been put in tin cans will no doubt be packed in glass jars and bottles during the duration. Fruits, vegetables, milk and fish will be sold in cans unless forbidden by a future regulation.

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland, secretary to Arthur Mulford, San Francisco importer, is amazed and angry, when he discharges her and refuses any explanation. Her sister Sybil, with whom she shares an apartment, loses her beauty salon position the same day. Joan accepts a position in a night club, as secretary to handsome Karl Miller, who pays her a high salary in advance and gives the unusual hours as the reason. He obtains a job for Sybil and makes love to Joan, who is fascinated. Paul Sherman, his manager, interrupts them, returns later to invite Joan to dinner with him. Joan meets Karl's partner, Eric Strom. Both Paul and Eric seek to make dates with Joan. On one Sunday, when Karl, Eric and Joan were at dinner, Karl is called to the telephone. He then asks Joan to come to the office for some dictation. She writes one short letter and Karl suggests she go home in a taxi. While she is waiting, Paul shows up in his car. She tells him she had forgotten her purse.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER V

"I'll get it for you," Paul offered. "And let Karl know you're taking me home? Oh no! I'll go myself." Joan wondered why everything seemed to interfere with her romance with Karl. Both Paul and Eric seemed bent on making trouble. But she could not be rude to Paul. After all, Karl seemed to like him.

The door of the club was unlocked as she slipped in and hurried down the corridor. Afterwards she wondered what instinct prompted her to pause for a moment as she stood with her hand on the doorknob of Karl Miller's office. The hall was dark, save for the crack of light beneath the door. An open window beside her led to a fire escape where the rain fell noisily on the metal balcony. Perhaps her hesitation was due to the fear that Karl would be angry with her. Perhaps the uneasy feeling that he might discover Paul was taking her home. But Joan paused and her heart was beating heavily.

It seemed a long time but in reality it was only a few seconds that she stood there listening to Eric Strom's voice.

"Ja, Karl! Bitte!" Karl's reply was harsh, "Nein, Nein! Es ist verboten."

Joan did not understand but instinctively her hand drew back from the door. This was a private conversation. Karl would not want her to hear.

But her nervous gesture had made a small sound, which Karl Miller's ear caught immediately.

He threw open the door with a violent gesture. "Joan! What are you doing?"

"I forgot my purse," she faltered, feeling Eric Strom's sardonic eyes upon her.

"Karl's relieved smile reassured her. "Of course! Here it is."

Joan made a hasty exit, closing the door quickly behind her, but as she walked down the dark hall she realized that she was shivering.

"What's the matter?" Paul demanded as Joan got in the car. "You're as white as a ghost."

"Nothing!" But the girl's hands were clasped nervously. "Let's go home. Please!"

Joan tried to tell herself that nothing was wrong. Just because Karl and Eric Strom had been speaking in their native tongue was no cause for alarm. But she found herself saying to Paul, "Do you speak German?"

"So that's it! You overheard Karl!" "You haven't answered my question."

"And I am not going to," Paul said firmly as he stopped the car in front of her apartment building. "Do you mind if I come in for a minute?"

"Please!" Joan cried, exasperated. "Is there any good reason why I shouldn't work for Karl?"

"And she doesn't approve of your working for Karl, either?" "Please!" Joan cried, exasperated. "Is there any good reason why I shouldn't work for Karl? Do you know something against him?"

Paul stared into the fire but he was silent. "Then you don't know anything?" Joan continued.

Paul tossed his cigarette into the flames. "Okay, Joan. You win. I can't say any more. But remember this. Watch your step! Will you?"

"Thanks for the advice." "It's for your own good," Paul Sherman said, picking up his hat. "How about that date tomorrow night?"

Joan smiled faintly. "Don't you ever give up? I told you—I couldn't go."

They stood at the door measuring each other with their eyes—Paul's, a mask that told her nothing, Joan's challenging him, defying him to speak one word against Karl Miller.

"I won't bother you any more then," Paul said quietly. "Good night."

In the bedroom, Sybil was propped up in her bed, wearing a blue satin bed jacket, reading a magazine. "Was that Karl?"

"No, Paul Sherman, giving me some good advice about working at the club. He doesn't think I'm the type, whatever that means."

She slipped into her warm bathrobe and sat down on the edge of her sister's bed. "I met Karl's partner, Eric Strom, tonight. He tried to make a date with me, too. It's a shame the way everyone tries to double-cross Karl."

"How in the world did you happen to come home with Paul?" Joan explained, but did not mention what she had overheard when she went back to get her purse. Before she could finish the telephone rang.

Karl Miller's voice came forcefully over the wire. "Joan? You are home safely?"

"Yes. I've been home for some time." She smiled, picturing Karl on the other end of the line. How sweet that he could be so concerned! "I just wanted to be sure that you were all right. Good night, darling."

It was the first time that he had called her "darling." Her pulse leaped at the unfamiliar endearment.

"We will not work tomorrow," Karl informed her. "We shall have dinner together alone."

Joan went back to the bedroom with shining eyes to tell Sybil. "Then you won't meet Paul?" "Of course not! I wouldn't anyway."

Joan had not considered the possibility that Karl Miller might take her to dinner at the same place Paul suggested but as they walked into the lobby of the hotel Paul had mentioned, Joan saw him coming out of the bar. He nodded pleasantly as he passed them and Joan breathed a sigh of relief. Their meal was almost finished when Joan saw Paul again. He was sitting alone at a corner table directly behind Karl. When they left, Joan, looking over her shoulder, saw Paul behind them. Was he deliberately following her? Was this his idea of a joke? But Joan did not tell Karl. He might have discharged Paul and she did not want him to lose his job on her account.

"Isn't anyone on board?" she asked, drawing closer to Karl. "There are a couple of sailors below. I saw them as we came up. We'll wait here a few minutes. Do you mind?"

"No. It's fun!" Karl walked to the table, poured some whisky out of an old-fashioned crystal decanter, and quickly downed it.

"This ship has been to South America, all through the West Indies, even to Japan."

"How I'd love to go to some of those places! I'm so tired of living such an ordinary life. Just eating and sleeping and working day after day."

She moved her hands with an impatient gesture. Her figure was straight and slender in its black wool dress, her face pale ivory with its eager mouth and flashing emerald eyes.

Karl Miller caught his breath as he looked at her. "I'd like to take you to South America, darling! Maybe I can some day. Would you like to have me show you the world?"

"More than anything!" she cried recklessly. "Oh, Karl..."

He pressed her hand to his lips. "You're beautiful," he murmured. "You're beautiful and exciting, and I love you, liechen! Do you know what liebchen means? It is sweet heart! It is what you are to me!"

His arms were around her. Liebchen! This foreign word held a curious fascination for her. It was like Karl. Strong, strange and sweet.

"You believe me, Joan? You believe me?" The drone of foghorns seemed a mournful undercurrent to her rapidly beating heart. "Yes, Karl, I believe you."

As Karl's arms closed about her Joan heard a faint sound outside the cabin door.

Startled, she cried, "What was that? Karl, did you hear it?" "Probably one of the sailors." But his hand reached to the inside pocket of his coat and he walked swiftly to the door and flung it open.

There was no one. The stairway leading down to the deck was empty. Karl looked out into the dark night.

"You must have imagined it! No one is there."

"I heard something. I know I did. Oh Karl, let's get out of here. You can see your friend some other time, can't you?"

"His voice was controlled. "Just as you wish."

But as she preceded him down the steps Joan saw a figure disappear into the shadows of the deck and even in the fog she could see that it was Paul Sherman!

THE PARABLES BY THE SEA

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:26-32; Matthew 13:44-50. GOLDEN TEXT—Never man spake like this man.—John 7:46.

Parables as a means of conveying truth reached perfection in the hands of the Master Teacher, Jesus. Taking short stories of well-known events or facts from daily life, He presented profound truth in the most simple and attractive form.

Except for the parable of the four kinds of seed which He interpreted (Matt. 13:18-23), He left it to His listeners to make their own application. This has led to some difference of opinion, but in general the parables are received as excellent and helpful portions of God's Word.

I. Normal Growth Is Blessed (Mark 4:26-29)

God is patient. He awaits the normal, healthy, steady growth of the seed. Man is so impatient he must have forced growth, artificial stimulation, and even artificial ripening of the fruit.

The same attitude enters into his care of his children. They must get ahead in school beyond their years. They must get out and make a living long years before they have learned to make a life. Why not let them mature in the orderly, God-given way?

The same is true in the work of the church. There must be immediate "tangible" results or he will not give his support. Anyone with judgment knows that spiritual life takes time to develop, and that spiritual results cannot be judged by physical or tangible standards.

II. Abnormal Growth Is Dangerous (Mark 4:30-32)

Normally the mustard tree is a small plant, and when it grew into a great tree something abnormal had taken place. Birds (which always denote something unclean in Scripture) came to lodge in its branches.

Just so, Christianity was never intended to be made up of a nominally Christian world empire in which ungodly men (the dark birds of the evil one, Matt. 13:19) should find comfortable lodgment. Unfortunately, that is just what happened to Christianity in the so-called conquest of the Roman empire at the time of Constantine. The results were disastrous. The same principle is evident today in the control of much of the church by worldly men.

III. Redemption Is Costly (Matt. 13:44-46)

While it is true that our redemption is worth more than anything else in all the world and that the Christian would gladly set aside (or would he?) everything for Christ's sake, yet that does not fulfill the thought of this parable. After all, what has a sinner (whose own righteousness is described in Scripture as "filthy rags") to sell in order to obtain redemption? And is it for sale? (See Eph. 2:8.)

Obviously we here have the Saviour with His all-seeing eye and loving heart noting in fallen humanity the pearl of great price, His own Church. He then gives up all the glory He had with the Father, comes to the earth, and even becomes sin for us that He may bring us to God.

Salvation in Christ is no little thing, not something which was purchased with gold or silver, but with the precious blood of Christ. We ought to value it highly, and because we are bought with a price we ought always to glorify God (I Cor. 6:20).

IV. Judgment Is Certain (Matt. 13:47-50)

All kinds of fish were in the net, and until the cord was drawn and the net emptied they looked much alike and enjoyed much the same standing as "citizens" of the sea. But when they faced the fisherman there was a quick division, and a final judgment upon the had ones.

It is true that in God's kingdom (as it is now manifested in "mystery" in the Church) there are many who have come in by false profession, through carelessness of pastors or church officials, etc. They go through the motions, they look and act much like Christians. (Although even here they create questions in the minds of true followers of Christ.) The day is coming, however, when they shall stand in judgment before the Christ whom they profess to love and follow. How terrible shall be their doom!

They need not wait in fear for that day. They may now, today, make right their relationship with God.
