IF IT WERE GIVEN ME TO CHOOSE

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hiddenite, N. C.

If it were given men to choose

One thing of all the earth;

In order that I might not lose

The greatest thing of worth,

I'd choose God's sacred holy will

Whatever it might be,

For truly this would then fulfill

All His great plans for me,

Within His will all need is found

For body, mind and soul

To make us pure, clean and sound

And lead us to life's goal,

Where all true victors go to stay

When life is ended here,

And where there is eternal day.

And peace and joy and cheer.

This poem expresses eternal truth. If every human being on earth would choose God's will above everything else no life would be lost, no soul would sink into despair. Success would crown every life and soul. There is no such thing as failure in life when one chooses God's will and lives within it as he goes thru the world. It leads to the highest, best, holiest, grandest and most glorious in all things God's will always leads away from the degrading, demoralizing, defeating, destructive things of evil unto all that is ennobling, uplifting, upbuilding and conservative. His will leads, always leads, heavenward. In God's will is glorious success success for time and eternity.

However, out of God's will is defeat. Hence the multitudes of defeated lives and souls throughout the earth today. Evil sin and wickedness a'ways brings defeat to men, both for time and eternity, and this is forever out of the will of God. When I see people all along life's journey groping their way in defeat I know they have failed to choose and live within God's will. They have absolutely missed His will. It can't be otherwise. Many have missed His will for evil pleasures, sinful indulgences, lustful habits, bad company, money and riches, houses and lands, selfish purposes, the wrong avocation, and for the sake of doing as they please. Many miss the will of God because they do not want to go where He leads, do the work He assigns, obey His commandments, yield their lives unto Him and please Him in all things. They take the way of the world, the way of evil, the way of fleshly pleasure, thus going the way of the vast multitudes, and this is never the way to life's best, most successful, and never the way to heaven. It is the way to failure, blighted lives, blasted hopes, lost opportunities and everlasting remorse. Life's better way is to take God's way—choose His will.

Leaf Farmers Voice

Protest

Tobacco farmers, over their heads in their first curings, nevertheless filled the Robeson county court house at Lumberton, one afternoon last week, in protest of the recent Washington ruling decimating the buyers and cutting the selling time 30 per cent.

Farmers from South Carolina joined in the vote which carried unanimously a resolution sent to the governors of Virginia, North and South Carolina, asking for the same selling time as that allowed last year, for the same number of sets of buyers, and for representation on the United States Tobacco association.

The initiative taken by the border belt got inspiration from Congressman Bayard Clark, who declared that if the action cutting all sets of buyers over three and reducing the hours 30 per cent could be defeated now because the tobacco people have had no opportunity to adjust themselves to this drastic order.

The Washington order does not affect Georgia's growers and war houseman; therefore, no representation came from that state.

Peace Offensive

Samson is straining at the pillars, but not with any hope of bringing down the house which shelters him. By threatening the destruction of Europe, Hitler thinks he will force the Allies to agree to a negotiated peace. The military senseless robot bombing of London, coupled with the recent mystic German broadcast is part of a well planned peace offensive.

The Germans know they have lost the war are still unwilling to surrender unconditionally. Good-bells is no longer bombastic. There is no more boasting of German superiority. But like a bad little boy who smashes the toys of his playmates because he can't have them for himself, he promises the destruction by fire and sword of occupied Europe, the dynamiting of cities, the slaughter of millions, for with all hope gone nothing remains to the Hun but the lust for blood. Frightfulness is an old German trick, but it no longer intimidates. The world has become calloused to Nazi atrocities, and nothing their devilish minds can think up will shock Allied leadership into making the least of concessions. The greater the destruction wrought by the retreating Huns, the longer will the people of Germany have to labor to restore, repair and rebuild. Resentment of oppressed peoples has grown to hate and crystallized fury, demanding retaliation—eye for eye, life for life. Let Goebbels try to talk himself out of that!

The South A Disowned Child

Charlotte Observer, Democrat.

The South has been almost completely ignored by the National Democratic convention—regarded as no more than a disowned and disinherited child.

Some of its delegates were even booed for proposing and voting for Senator Harry Byrd as the Presidential nominee.

This was high treason in the estimation of the big city machine bosses and mongrel minorities which have come to control the party's policies and programs.

Others sought to venture their protest against certain planks in the platform, but they were laughed at to the accompaniment of scorn and told to run along home and be good little boys.

The whip-lash was working with masterful unmerciful against the old line, Jeffersonian political principles of the Democratic South, part of which, at heart, at any rate, has not yet joined the brigades within the organization that worship the modern gods of their present party dominance.

And it must be fairly remarked, also, that this treatment is just about what the South has asked for.

It has come, with its 146 electoral votes, to occupy no place of superior importance or influence in the councils of the National party.

And for the logical reason that the National party leaders know that they can hog it all over Southern representation and still come up on election day with the South's support of the action and the nominees of the convention.

We are rather old-fogey down this way, trailing the times, out of step with the march of progress, dead set against the new liberalism which, in some salient respects, is nothing less abominable than an old radicalism.

That's what the party bosses say of the South.

And they say it because the South wants or what it demands of its national organization!

Perhaps some of these years it will be different.

The nation may eventually return from some of its follies and again pin its faith to some at least of the bed-rock principles and venerable landmarks of democracy to which the South continues to cling fast, even though, unfortunately, too unvoiced about them.

We, at least, down this way, are not a people solidly of strange isms and questionable cults in our political faith.

We may be a minority within the Democratic party, but we are a minority of Anglo-Saxons, and not a minority of gate crashing outsiders at the temple of the nation's Democracy.

There is much of respect among our people for the principles of Jackson and Cleveland and Wilson. These are names to be stricken from the list of immortals only because in their day these party leaders would not bend the knee to every Baal that some powerful voting group might create, or bow in reverence to some popular standard which apostates would erect.

Here in the South is the citadel of a pure and undefiled brand of Americanism as to constitutional and representative government, free from the fetters of crooked bosses in big cities, free from the shackles of vindictive groups within our own regional electorate who have gone drunk with unmerited political power.

The South, the home of democracy, may come into its own again some day, but not until America itself dominantly begins again to respect the cradle in which it was born and to show reverence to the honored ancestry from which it sprang.

A Voice From The Grave

The following letter was written by Pfc. Lester Peacock, who was stationed at Tucson, Ariz., to his father, W. D. Peacock, Statesville, R. 3, on June 24, 1944. Lester was killed on June 29th, when an oxygen tank exploded. The letter follows:

Dearest Daddy:—I just received your letter and was very glad to hear from you. This leaves me feeling fine but tired. I just got off from work at the Service Club. I work 8 hours on planes and 7 hours extra at the Club. I don't get much sleep, and I don't have much time for anything but I always take time to write you. Well Dad, I am glad to know your crops are looking good—just wish I was there to help you with them. I am praying that you keep in the best of health, and that you make good. I hope and pray that you and the kids can take care of the crops. There isn't a day passes that I don't pray for you and wish that I could be there with you to farm.

Well Dad, it isn't long until I'll have to go to my work. I get off at 4 o'clock at the Service Club and go to work on planes at 4:30 and work until 12:30 tonight, so you see I haven't got time to write much. So long, Dad, and answer soon as you can. Tell all hello. Your loving son. God bless you.

Love forever,

LESTER.

Davie Marine On Furlough

San Diego, Calif., July 20.—Among a group of 2,744 men of the Fighting First Marine Division who have returned to the United States for their first furlough in 26 months or more is Private First Class Don Stones, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Goforth, Route 1, Advance, North Carolina.

He attended the Smith Grove school at Advance prior to his enlistment in the Marine Corps, December 20, 1941, at Winston-Salem.

The First Marine Division men have scored many firsts: They were first to strike an offensive blow against the Japanese when they landed on Guadalcanal on Aug. 7, 1942. They were the first unit to win the Presidential Citation. Later they landed at Cape Gloucester on New Britain to start the campaign which has taken Western New Britain from the enemy.

Tough, lean and hard from more than two years in the jungle, the men of the First will be brought to the largest city near their homes on special troop trains then will be given 30 day furloughs at home. The special trains were arranged so these veterans of the Pacific war would not have to wreathe wartime transportation and lose much of their furlough time enroute.

Work Halted On Power Plant

Members of the High Point board of power commissioners, notified through the Winston-Salem office of the federal works agency, that work on the $8,500,000 hydro electric plant on the Yadkin river has been stopped until after the war, said that the development means the project has reached the point where critical materials and unavailable labor would be needed for further construction.

Between 85 and 90 per cent of the necessary land for the reservoir has been bought or placed under option, it was stated, and plans for construction of the dam have been completed. Stopping work at this point, it was pointed out, simply means that building the plant proper is next at hand, and that will wait until labor and materials are available.

Listen To This Democrat

The Macon Ga., Telegraph a Democratic Newspaper, has this to say about Tom Dewey and Roosevelt:

The rise of Thomas E. Dewey in popular favor has been one of the most remarkable events in the political history of this country. . . . He has made a good governor—a thousand times better than his Democratic predecessor, Roosevelt. . . .

From a Republican point of view it is rather unfortunate that Wendell Wilkie, who suffered an amazing slump in public esteem, should be playing the dog in the manger and consciously or involuntarily splitting his own party. But the brutal truth is that literally millions of American citizens have reached the point where they are not voting for anybody, but are voting against the man who wrecked his own party and sought to enslave the masses of the people with his dictatorial directives.

They disclosed that they were returning to Boston to establish Dewey-Bricker headquarters at 11 Beacon Street as "Jefferson Democrats."

Red Mites Invading Many Prize Orchards

Proper Spraying Will Aid in Control Work

Fruit orchards are being attacked by an invader as deadly as any killer insect that ever flew or crawled. The common name for the pest in the east is the red mite.

The great danger in the case of red mite is that because it is a new-comer to many sections, the great majority of growers do not recognize it when evidences of its presence appear on their trees. State entomologists have many instances in their records where the grower was utterly dumfounded when informed his trees were being attacked by red mites.

This is probably true because damage is not immediately apparent. Since the red mite attacks the fruit itself, first indications of the damage appear on the leaves, which turn brown. By midsummer, the infestation has built up to the point where the whole tree has a bronze-like appearance. Once brown, the leaves, which are very essential in growing a healthy fruit crop, remain that way for the remainder of the season, resulting in undersized, poor quality fruit.

The red mite is present in the egg stage during the winter, hatching about the time growth starts. There are several generations during the summer, populations per leaf usually running from 50 to 100 mites, although they have been observed as high as 500 per leaf. The grower, who, upon examination, finds only a few mites on his foliage, should not feel secure, for the red mite has truly amazing reproductive powers. Even though only two mites are present, they may be responsible for an increase into the many thousands in as little as 75 hours.

There are effective, tested controls for red mite. Here is what Ray Hutson, well-known state entomologist, has to say on the subject:

"Meeting the red mite problem in the apple orchard is a proposition of picking out things that will do the most good, for various conditions have a tendency toward working against one another. Certain varieties (e. g. Delicious and Baldwin) are more susceptible. A 3 per cent dormant oil kills all red mite eggs that are hit. Two applications a week apart of a 1 per cent summer oil and foliage applications are effective.

Potato Digging Machine

Proves Very Successful

A labor saving attachment that can be adapted to any power take-off potato digger has been developed by the rural engineering department at the Montana agricultural experiment station.

With the attachment the potatoes are dug, rocks and clods sorted out, and the tubers sacked and set off on the ground while the machine is in continual operation. After field tests, F. M. Harrington, head of the horticultural department at the station, estimates that the picking machine with a five-man crew does as much work as an 11-man crew picking by hand.

The station's potato digger was altered to raise the elevator apron and deliver the tubers onto a sorting conveyor instead of dropping them on the ground. As the potatoes travel along the conveyor, clods and rocks are removed.

Potatoes in Feed

Potato drying plants that have been handling low-grade potatoes purchased by the government for the past several months are still in operation, another government report says. Some of these dried potatoes are being used in livestock feeds, according to W. T. Grams of the New York State Agricultural Adjustment administration office. As they contain about 8 per cent protein, little fiber, and much carbohydrate, they have real feed value.

Pleasant Thought for Pie-Hungry Families! (See Recipes Below)

Pies Aplenty

Pies are good eating, even in the warmest weather. And better still, there are pies for every season and every mood.

For summer you may like juicy, luscious berry pies, their gay colorful fillings peeking out of a lattice crust. Or you may take the easy way and prepare chiffon pies, light and airy as a feather, with easy-to-make crumb crusts that require no baking. Whatever the type, you're certain to enjoy them.

Full of the goodness of golden peaches is this fruity pie:

Fresh Peach Pie.
4 cups sliced fresh peaches
1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon butter

Fill pastry-lined pan with fruit mixture, sprinkling the peaches with sugar and flour mixed. Sprinkle with cinnamon and dot with butter. Cover with a top crust and bake 10 minutes in a 450-degree oven and 30 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven. Serve warm.

Any of the berries may be used in this pie as the basic recipe is the same. Try it several times with blueberries, raspberries, blackberries or loganberries:

Fresh Berry Pie.
1 quart fresh berries
3/4 to 1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons quick-cooking tapioca
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon butter

Fill pastry-lined pan with berries. Sprinkle with sugar and flour. With half of the berries in the pan, cover with remaining berries, cinnamon and a dot of butter. If the berries are dry, sprinkle with 1 or 2 tablespoons water. Cover with top crust and bake in a hot oven 10 minutes and in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

Blueberry Pie: Substitute 1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice for cinnamon. Citrus Chiffon Pies are as cool as ocean spray. They are made so quickly, require no baking, and are made-to-order summer desserts:

Lemon Chiffon Pie.

3 egg yolks
3/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1/4 cup lemon juice, strained
4 tablespoons lemon-flavored gelatin
1/2 cup boiling water
3 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar

Cornflake Crust.
Beat egg yolks with a spoon in top of the double boiler. Stir in one-half the sugar, then salt, rind and fruit juice. Cook over boiling water 10 minutes until mixture thickens and coats the spoon.

Stir hot fruit juice or boiling water into flavored gelatin. Beat with the hot custard. Cool thoroughly.

Lynn Says

Bit of All Right: Baking powder biscuits are extra special when sprinkled with orange or lemon or cinnamon sugar before baking. Biscuits dressed up like this go well with main dish salads.

Don't waste leftover biscuits by making them into crumbs. They're pleasing escorts when served toasted with peanut butter or citrus marmalade.

Fruit cups are best when chilled thoroughly. Try this combination: Cooked prunes, canned yellow cling peaches, orange segments, peach syrup, honey and lemon juice.

til mixture begins to set, then break up while making meringue. To make meringue, beat egg whites until fluffy and gradually add remainder of sugar. Carefully fold meringue into filling and pile into crumb crust. Place in refrigerator until well set, about 2 hours. Serve cold.

Lime Chiffon Pie: Use lime in above recipe in place of lemon. Green coloring may be added to intensify the color.

Cornflake Crust
4 cups rolled cornflakes
1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup sugar

Roll cornflakes fine. Melt butter in pie pan, add sugar and crumbs and mix thoroughly. Press evenly and firmly around sides and bottom of pie pan.

Like custards? Then you will enjoy grandmother's old-fashioned custard baked right into the flaky crust:

Grandmother's Custard Pie.
3 eggs (or, 6 yolks)
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
2 1/2 cups milk

Beat eggs slightly, add sugar, salt, nutmeg and milk. Pour into a chilled pastry-lined pie pan. Bake in a hot oven 15 minutes, then in a moderate oven to finish. Bake until a silver knife inserted into the custard comes out clean.

French Apple Pie.
Make pastry for one-crust pie. Fit into pan and flute edges. Chill, fill with apples (for 9-inch pie, use 4 cups sliced apples, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 1 tablespoon butter). Then sprinkle with crumb topping:

1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 cup flour

Bake 45 minutes to one hour until apples are done and topping is delicately browned. Serve warm.

Want Good Pastry?
An old saying goes that "A pie is as good as its crust." No truer words were ever spoken. Unless the crust is short, tender and flaky, the juiciest berries or most luscious fruit can do nothing for the pie. Here are the rules:

1. Keep all ingredients and bowls well chilled.
2. Don't work over the piecrust. The lazier you are, the better the crust.
3. Use a minimum of water for moistening.

Two-Crust Pie Pastry.
(Nine-inch)
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening
4 to 6 tablespoons ice water

To make pastry, sift flour once, add salt and then sift again. Mix one-half of shortening into flour and cut into mixture finely. Add remainder of shortening and cut into flour until mixture has the appearance of coarse meal.

Blend lightly, using just enough water to hold mixture together. Roll on floured cloth and fit to pastry tin.

One-Crust Pies.
The method for making one-crust pies is similar to the two-crust type, but the ingredients are as follows: 1 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup shortening and 2 to 3 tablespoons ice water.

IF YOU like to knit here is a quick way to turn garments into attractive rugs. Cut or tear the rags into strips three-quarter inch wide. Turn in raw edges and use needles three-eighths inch in diameter. Knit the oval center first. Cast on four stitches and increase one at the end of each row until the depth of the work is four inches, then knit evenly for ten inches. Bind off one stitch at the end of each row until you have four stitches left. Bind these off. The diagram gives the dimensions and colors for the bands that are sewn to this center oval. Cast on seven stitches to start each band. For the outside band, start with color three. Knit seven inches, then cut the fabric strip and sew color four to it. Continue. Use a large crochet hook and fabric strips to crochet around the oval and the outside edges.

NOTE—This rug is from SEWING BOOK 4 which also contains complete illustrated directions for a knitted rag rug made in squares; as well as numerous other ways to use odds and ends of things on hand to make home furnishings and gifts. To get a copy of Book 4 send your order and 15 cents to:

Taylor F. Bailey

It is with profound sadness that we chronicle the death of Taylor F. Bailey, 63, who died at his home near Advance Saturday night. Mr. Bailey had been in bad health for some time, and seriously ill for one week. He was a long time friend of the editor. We shall miss him.

Mr. Bailey was a native of Davie County, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Bailey, and spent most of his life in this county. He was married in 1913 to Miss Clara Crouse, and was of the Methodist faith. He operated a large dairy farm. A short service was held at the home yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the funeral proper occurred at 3 o'clock at Elaville Methodist Church, conducted by Rev. P. L. Smith, J. C. Gentry and G. B. Ferree, and the body laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Surviving are his widow; one daughter, Miss Edith Bailey, at home; two sons, W. A. Bailey, Advance, and Hubert Bailey of the navy, and two grandchildren.

Davie Boy In South Seas

The following letter was written in answer to the prayers of the Prayer Band of Smith Grove Methodist Church, whose prayers are dedicated to the boys in Service who have left their church:

South Pacific, July 12.
 Dear Prayer Band:—I received your letter of July 2nd, today, and was overwhelmed with emotion to think that the people of Smith Grove, have called on the Father to care for and guide me. I hope that my deeds and conduct always justifies the faith you have in me.

I am not, and don't suppose I ever will be, in a position where I can meet the enemy face to face, but still the ones who do face the enemy must be supplied with the necessities and in that I try to do my part. There sure is no glory in this work but neither is there much danger.

I also received a letter from Mrs. Peury, dated July 2nd, and she asked me if I had any news of John Elffier Livingston. Tell her, or Mrs. Livingston, that I don't know anything more than that he was in the attack on Saipan. I hope she has heard from him ere now.

I have been kept busy recently. I had planned on getting a pass this week-end, but that will have to be postponed for there will be too much work to do. I can wait another week or two.

The war seems to be progressing very favorably now, but just in case anyone thinks it will be over in a month or two, I can say that they are over-optimistic. I believe it will take another year or more, and then it will be some time before the world is in order enough for the return home of any great amount of the boys in service. I hope, however, that it is much sooner than I have predicted. Believe me, it would be good to get back to Smith Grove once more.

Before I close, may I say that if my prayers will help, add them to yours for the ones who are in greater peril than I. May God be with them always and show them the way. Best wishes to all.

Sincerely,
 SGT. JAMES C. COMER.

The proudest title in the Army

IT CONSISTS of two simple words.
 Yet every soldier who's worth his salt covets it.
 This title is simply:
 "Good Soldier."
 It isn't just happenstance that so many women in the WAC have earned this title—the proudest in the Army.
 For wherever Wacs are working, both here and overseas, there you find a job well done. And done with a spirit so gallant and fine that high Army officers everywhere say of the WAC...
 "They're soldiers. Good soldiers!"

Young-Lacedonia

Ollie Belle Lacedonia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Bedsole, of Tallahassee, Fla., and Philip Samuel Young, son of Mrs. Mary E. Young, and the late Charlie C. Young, were united in marriage Sunday, July 16th, at 1 p. m., at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Bessie Callahan, in Tallahassee, Fla.

The double ring ceremony was solemnized before an improvised altar of smilax, fern, pastel colored asters and gladioli and white candles, by Dr. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Edward M. Bedsole. Mr. Young chose as his best man retired Col. Edwin F. Low, of the Bureau of Malaria Control in War areas with the United States Public Health Service. Mrs. Callahan was matron of honor. Miss Marylea Ann Callahan, niece of the bride, lighted the candles and Miss Patricia Lacedonia, the bride's daughter, was ring bearer.

The bride wore a becoming powder blue monette and lace frock fashioned on princess lines with matching lace hat and white accessories, with a cameo necklace and earrings. She carried a nosegay of white asters centered with an orchid.

Mrs. Callahan wore a frock of baby blue chiffon fashioned with a sweetheart neck line and a tucked skirt. The waist was made with an inserted tucked belt. Her accessories were white and her corsage was of pink asters.

Miss Callahan and Miss Lacedonia wore rose-colored tulle dresses with ruffled skirts and wrist corsages.

Mrs. Bedsole, the bride's mother, wore a crepe dress of midnight blue trimmed with white lace collar and cuffs. Her accessories were blue and white asters.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held honoring the bridal party, at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Alfred Turner assisted the brides at the bride's table. The table was covered with a lace cloth. The cut glass bowl on one end was surrounded with fern, asters and gladioli. On the other end was a three tiered wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom.

After spending some time with their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Young left on a wedding trip to New York. Mrs. Young wore a navy suit with an accordin pleated skirt, a short blue jacket and a snow white embroidered blouse. She wore blue and white accessories with an orchid corsage.

The bride is a graduate of St. Margaret's Hospital, Montgomery, Ala., and has been employed for the past 18 months by the Florida State Board of Health. She has just completed a post-graduate course in Public Health Nursing at the University of North Carolina.

The groom is a furniture manufacturer at Mocksville, and a Past Master of the Masons. Mr. and Mrs. Young are at home on Salisbury street.

HOME IS THE SAILOR
... for a few treasured hours!

There's precious cargo aboard our buses these days — young fathers on last leaves—war-wounded going home—war workers bound for the arsenals of Victory — all the thousands of active Americans who must be kept on the move. They add up to far more passengers than buses have ever carried before—in spite of the serious shortage of equipment and manpower. Our "task force of the highways" is able to carry out its vital mission only with your help... the help of all who travel wisely in wartime.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of a Flying Fortress, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men were killed while fleeing for shelter, and Old 22, with many other Foes, was demolished on the ground. After escaping to Australia, what is left of their squadron flies to Java, where they go on many missions over the Philippines and the Java sea. Java is invaded and becomes untenable. The Dutch general grants permission for U. S. fliers to evacuate to Australia. If they will first strafe Jap landing barges, which is done. They leave for Australia in an overcrowded Fortress, reach Broome airfield, circle, and come in.

CHAPTER XX

"Presently the old sheep-rancher who took care of this shack and also ran the general store strolled over, and we began to talk.

"Had any trouble around here?" I asked him.

"No," he said. "Jap planes come over once in a while. Over here, sometimes over Wyndham and Port Hedland too, they say."

"What do you mean, once in a while?"

"The last one was just last night, since you mention it," he said. "Came over very high, early in the morning."

"So at breakfast I mentioned it to the officer in charge of the field (a new man, just out from the States). 'Did you know, sir, the Japs had a recon plane over last night?' And went on to say that we had quite a bit of stuff here, and while of course the crews were terribly tired, maybe it should be moved out."

"He listened, and because I was on edge, his hesitation somehow annoyed me. But he finally said maybe I had a point there. And thinking about it, he finished his breakfast. I was glad when we got out of there after breakfast for Melbourne."

"We worked most of the night on the brakes, and then went to sleep in that hangar shack. I slept fitfully—woke at five, to get an early start. It didn't seem healthy to me or to any of the rest of us. After a makeshift mess—hot beans and coffee plus field rations—we went out to the ship at six and stood by."

"Skiles had asked the officer in charge when he could take off. But he gave Skiles to understand we were evacuees just like the others. When we were given our passenger list, we could go."

"So we stood around the plane from six o'clock until 9:10, waiting for that list and those orders. At this minute Sergeant Britt happened to look up and hollered: 'Make a run for it, fellows—here come some Zeros!' Five of us who were standing back of the plane dropped into a hole about fifty feet away."

"One Zero peeled off and strafed the Fortress with incendiaries. It caught fire immediately, then the Zero went on down and strafed a B-24, setting it afire. Then it turned and, coming in directly over our hole from the rear, strafed them again. It repeated this six times, also firing a 20-millimeter cannon at us, which caved in our hole and covered us with dirt."

"When Sergeant Britt first hollered out, a big B-24 loaded with twenty-six people had just cleared the runway. When the Zeros hit, it was out over the ocean headed for Perth. It had hardly had time to pull its wheels up—and there was no room in there for them to swing a gun in their own defense—when a Zero caught up with it and dropped it in the sea."

"Two sergeants managed to get out. They swam for thirty-two hours, one of them giving up in sight of shore. The other told us what it had been like inside there when those bullets came smashing through that packed crowd, and a few seconds later when those dying and wounded were all struggling not to drown as the water came in."

"That day the Japs got another B-24 on the ground (it had been the one General Brett himself used), three Foes, a DC-2 and a DC-3, a Lockheed—but the worst were the nine Dutch flying boats they caught out in the harbor. About forty or fifty people were killed on them, mostly women and children."

"I saw one Dutchman swim ashore dragging his wife by the hair. The whole lower half of her face had been blown away, and she was dead. I saw another woman standing on the wing of one of the planes which was burning. She had a child in her arms, and was ready to jump and swim ashore, when a cannon shot hit her in the back and broke her into halves. They both fell forward into the water, but the arms on the top half which held the child never let go of it."

"The men who were left were almost crazy with rage. One Zero was shot down by a Dutchman who stood in front of the hangar holding a .30-caliber machine gun across his arm. The gun got so hot it scorched right into his flesh, but he never noticed it. It turned out that Broome's anti-aircraft defense consisted of just this one .30-caliber gun. The Japs did the whole job in thirty minutes—didn't leave a thing."

"Finally the officer in charge told us: 'We expect planes in between now and midnight, but we don't know how many. We're compiling a priority list, but if your name isn't called by two o'clock, I advise you to get out of here quick, and the best way you can, even if you have to walk—and it's a long walk."

"He turned out to be right. I fooled around until 2:30 and then, when my name hadn't been called, nine of us decided we'd string along with a civilian contractor who'd offered us a lift. He had thirty men and five Ford trucks, and said he was headed south down the coast for the nearest town, called Port Hedland, two hundred miles away. The Army had some emergency rations hidden in the woods, so we helped ourselves to enough of those to keep us on the trip."

"Then I began to find out about Australia. Those guys are like our Westerners—pioneer types, except bigger. When we got twenty miles out of Broome the road ended entirely. After that—nothing at all. We had to push those trucks through sand, and make long detours around salt-water marshes. Even our drinking water had to be carried in the trucks. They talked about passing three ranches. We did, and I discovered they were the only three houses between Broome and Port Hedland. A million acres is nothing to an Australian. The country looks like West Texas, and is covered thickly with what they call gum trees. They're like eucalyptus in the States. The only sign of life was kangaroos—we'd see half a dozen a day. The little ones are called wallabies and the others are big blues. They hunch low and run through the scrubby gum trees. I got tired living out of cans, so I borrowed a gun and shot a big blue, and the Aussies showed me how to eat it. You throw away all but the tail, which you make soup of, and it tastes like thick chicken broth."

"Finally I got to Melbourne, where the Air Force was gathering again—and found they had me down as a deserter, but it wasn't any trouble getting that explained."

"I got out of Java by boat," said the Gunner. "They loaded us on a train at Jockstrap and took us to some town whose name I never did learn, where a Dutch freighter was waiting to take out fifteen hundred of us. They told us we were bound for Perth, a town in Southwest Australia—about the same location and size as San Diego in the States. Alongside us at the dock was a troopship of Aussies from Singapore. Before that they'd been in Egypt—hadn't been home for years. Their boat was bound for Adelaide, way round on the other side of Australia—same location as Miami. But lots of them lived in Perth. When they heard we were going there, they all skipped ship to come aboard with us. We divided our food and lent them our mess kits. They'd lost everything at Singapore. They probably caught hell for it, but they didn't give a damn."

"The first day out we sighted a Jap plane, but it stayed up over the air, watching us. We had stuck machine guns in the belaying-pinn holes, and kept the soldiers hidden below decks so they wouldn't know we were carrying troops. Our gunners were hidden, too. But when this Jap started down to strafe, one of our gunners gave the show away by opening fire too soon—otherwise we would have got him."

"We zigzagged for five days, and then at Perth were loaded into a troop train for Melbourne. I was in the coach next the engine, and the Australians couldn't do too much for us. The engineer drew a can of hot water from his boiler and made us some tea out of his strictly rationed supply, apologizing because it wasn't stronger."

"I guess I was about the last one of us to arrive."

"Not by a couple of weeks you weren't," said Harry Schriber, the navigator, indignantly. "Because what about me?"

"We weren't worried about you, Harry," said Frank with a grin. "We thought you were dead. Way back in the Philippines, when Jack Adams' plane didn't come back to Del Monte Field from that mission. We had given you up months ago. What had you been doing, anyway?"

"Trying to get out of the damned Philippines," said Harry. "And I didn't manage it until the day before General MacArthur did—the sixteenth of March I think it was."

"Harry was the last man to come," said Frank, "and now that the gang was together we could start doing business. You see Lieutenant General Brett, who had been commanding the United Nations Air Force under British General Wavell, who was supreme commander, needed a plane to take him around the war zone. His B-24 had been lost at Broome, remember. Colonel Eubank recommended me to General Brett as his personal pilot and senior air aide, and I selected the crew. Of course when it came to picking the plane itself, the General ordered a D, because all the E's with tail guns were needed for combat and he wanted those planes saved for the boys who would be going out on missions."

"But when it came to which D we would pick, it had to be the Swoose, because there was no other left. Every plane, even of the same model, handles a little differently. I'd flown our D's out from the States, through the Philippines and Java, and I've always felt the old Swoose was just a few miles faster and answered the controls a little more smoothly than the others."

"So now, as pilot and crew of the commanding Air Force General's plane, we in the Swoose were making weekly trips into the war zone from Headquarters far down in Melbourne, up to Darwin and Port Moresby, which were then far-flung outposts on the battle line. The General would average sixty hours a month in the air—thirty of them at least in this combat zone. To get him in and out of it, the Swoose often hit 150 air hours per month."

"At Moresby it was never safe to leave the Swoose on the ground by day. We'd sneak in at night, leave the General, and be off back to Townsville by dawn, coming in to pick him up again the next night. Sometimes the General would just have time to scramble aboard while we cleared the field as the alarm sounded. He was bound he wouldn't lose the Swoose."

"We now began to get a peek out over the top at the broad picture of this Far Eastern war. There were differences over strategy, but it was never Australians versus Americans. The cleavage was ground-minded versus air-minded thinking. The Australian air generals saw eye to eye with our American air leaders. Likewise the infantry generals of both armies thought alike."

"And there was much to the infantry side of the argument. After Java fell, Australian civilians were panicky. Thousands of Australian boys had gone out to die in Africa and Singapore. Now the danger had suddenly rolled down on the Home-lands."

"Not in New Guinea, or Tulagi, or Guadalcanal, or even in Darwin, which, although on their own continent, is to the average Australian as remote as the Aleutians seem to New Yorkers. They think of Darwin as a tiny outpost separated from them by thousands of miles of impassable desert. They wanted the soldiers near the great cities of Sydney and Melbourne, where they could hear the marching and the military bands."

"This was also sound infantry strategy. The only populous parts of Australia are down in this southeast corner. We didn't yet have many battalions, supply problems were enormous, so our infantry generals agreed with theirs and with their civil leaders. They wanted to keep the army near valuable objectives, not scatter it out across seas and jungle islands, where supply problems would become formidable."

"But we of the Air Forces (both Australian and American) felt that to defend this continent we must build our fighter fields not in Australia itself, but on the outlying islands. Having these, with a few ground troops to hold our airdromes against Jap landing parties, no fleet would dare venture through our air screen to threaten the continent itself."

"We'd defended Java by pounding the Japs from Borneo. The Japs had not dared send their transports and landing barges through until they'd taken our advance bases and held air control over the Java Sea."

"The Australian Air Force was as anxious to move into this outlying island chain as we were. Early in April they'd wanted to seize Lae on New Guinea, before the Japs had had time to dig in on its north coast. At that time the Japs had only about four hundred men in the area, and it would have been easy."

"But we lacked the men and the ships—the Japs pressed on and presently took Tulagi in the Solomons, threatening our supply lines home."

POWER THROUGH SELF-DISCIPLINE (TEMPERANCE LESSON)

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 1:7-10; Jeremiah 35:5-10; 1 Corinthians 9:24-27; 1 Thessalonians 5:22. GOLDEN TEXT—And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things.—1 Corinthians 9:25.

Discipline—that word doesn't sound exactly attractive, does it? It makes us think of punishment for wrongdoing, when in reality it is a very helpful word which means teaching. Disciples learn, and thus are disciplined, so that life becomes safer, simpler, and more efficient. When the Morro Castle caught fire, there was time for everyone to escape, but 134 out of the 500 on board perished because they fought each other. When the President Coolidge sank in the South Seas 4,500 soldiers escaped alive. What made the difference? Discipline, that's all, but it was enough.

There are many kinds of discipline, and all have their important place in preparing men to live well ordered and useful lives. The disciplined life has power to meet trials and temptations. We find in our lesson three kinds of discipline:

I. Home Discipline (Prov. 1:7-10). The training received by the child early in life from its parents is of the utmost importance in forming character. Children should learn the true standards of life, and be held to obedience to them if they are later to walk in the right way.

It is here that they most effectively learn the danger of the use of intoxicants and the importance of keeping their bodies clean and strong for the service of God and country.

Soon parents (possibly misled by attractive, but false theories of education) think that the correction or punishment of a child is not to be permitted. They assume that they are being kind to a child by not limiting his development, or trying to direct it. These are the people who "curse their children with kindness," which is in fact the greatest of unkindness.

Only a fool (v. 7) will despise the instruction of his parents, and only a fool of a parent will fail to give that training which is like "an ornament of grace" (v. 9) in the life of the young man or woman.

But the discipline of the home needs the support of II. Social Discipline (Jer. 35:5-10). The social order, which concerns our relation to our fellow men, disciplines each of us. It makes many and what sometimes seem burdensome demands of us in order that we, as well as those around us, may have the privilege of living ordered and useful lives.

Wise is the man or woman who draws from his fellowship with others that helpful training which gives him stability and grace. The Rechabites had made a vow that they would not drink intoxicants, and as a tribe they stood by that vow even when tested by Jeremias. (Note that we say tested, not tempted. He knew they would stand.)

Fine family traditions have great value in guiding and controlling young people. We should, like the good man Jonadab (v. 6), establish a tradition of abstinence from intoxicants which will make all of our descendants say, "No one in our family ever drinks."

The training of home and of society has one great goal and that is

III. Self-Discipline (1 Cor. 9:24-27; 1 Thess. 5:22).

In the life of every one of us there should be that determined purpose that life shall not be lived in careless disorder, or be permitted to run out at loose ends.

We are all running a race (v. 24), and it is for us so to run that we may achieve success. We cannot run with uncertainty (v. 26). We must know where we are going.

We are fighting a fight, and at times it is a desperate, life-and-death struggle. We must not beat the air (v. 26), but strike home the telling blows which will bring victory over our enemies, the world, the flesh, and the devil.

To do this calls for training and self-discipline. It means bringing the body and its demands into subjection. The man who runs in a race does not destroy his chances for victory by using intoxicants, or other detrimental things. Surely we who run the race for Christ must be even more determined that self shall be disciplined for God's glory.

The standard for the conduct of the Christian is higher than is commonly supposed, for he withdraws himself from "every form of evil."

The disciplined believer knows that sin is sin—that what looks comparatively innocent often wears a false face covering real wickedness, or it is the first step on a downward path. To start on that way is to invite disaster. A striking example of this is the social drink—the fashionable cocktail—the friendly glass. Abstain is the word—"abstain from every form of evil."

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

About 153 million tons of agricultural products were moved from farm to market by motor vehicles in 1942, and even a greater amount is expected to be transported by highway this year. Shipments of this volume call for the use of a tremendous number of tires.

Only a small amount of rubber may reach us from the Amazon Valley, but herculean efforts are being made to get it out of the jungles, as is indicated by the report that Brazilian agencies have moved 20,000 workers into the rubber-producing country.

Improvements were shown in the symptoms of Athlete's Foot—the itching, burning, redness, etc. The report says:

"In our opinion Soretone is of very definite benefit in the treatment of this disease, which is commonly known as 'Athlete's Foot'."

Be Well Dressed— Save Bond Money

Pinafores have come out of the nursery and taken the place they deserve in fashion. Besides being flattering and practical for warm weather, they are easy to make—an ideal choice for a beginner's sewing project. The ruffled, be-ribboned pinafore pictured here is especially beguiling, and can be worn with or without a blouse. Make it yourself and put the money you save into War Bonds. The pattern may be secured at your local store. Back the Attack—Buy More Than Before.

DON WINSLOW SAYS.

LET'S BUY 5TH WAR LOAN BONDS TO BOMB THE ENEMY, AND GIVE BALM TO OUR FIGHTING MEN!

To the People of this Community

There are many urgent reasons for buying War Bonds. First, the invasion needs money. Bonds pay for planes and guns and munitions with which to beat the Axis. Our fighting men must have the best possible equipment and it is up to us to let our money provide this.

A second reason is this: There is a shortage of goods now. Later on there will be plenty for civilian desires. Money put into War Bonds now will be available then. Business opportunities will be open then, too, and the "nest egg" saved now may hatch out commercially then. Money put into War Bonds now will be deprived of its current potentiality as a part of the causes of inflation. You will be doing your part toward stabilizing the money situation by buying Bonds instead of dwindling stocks. That is a third reason.

But the best reason from a selfish viewpoint is this: Right now there is no better investment than War Bonds. There is no safer repository for your money. By buying Bonds you become a stockholder in the strongest "going" concern in the world today, the United States of America.

Telegraph Centennial Brings New Devices

Miss Lella Livingston Morse, granddaughter of Samuel F. B. Morse, left, explains to Miss Mildred Crider, telegraph employee, the workings of the original instrument. It was used in re-enacting the sending of the first telegram, "What Hath God Wrought!" from the Capitol in Washington to Baltimore.

New York (Special)—An aircraft designer in New York has just finished an elaborate set of blueprints for a huge new trans-oceanic plane. The blueprints must be at the manufacturing plant in California tomorrow. How can it be done? By telegraph, of course.

That is one of the things the communications industry will be prepared to do not many years from now, when the war is over and the latest marvels stemming from an invention just a century old will be used to tie the nation together in building a new era of peace-time prosperity.

It was in 1844 that the artist-inventor, Samuel F. B. Morse, sat down at his telegraph key in the Capitol at Washington and sent the first telegram—"What Hath God Wrought!" The message was received in Baltimore forty miles away.

The nation is observing this year the centennial of Morse's invention by special Congressional exercises, including a re-enactment of the scene in which the first telegram was sent; by unveiling a plaque in honor of the scientist; by naming a Liberty ship for him and by issuing a telegraph centennial postage stamp. Civic, educational, scientific and other organizations are holding special gatherings.

On the threshold of its second century, the telegraph industry is ready to offer many new devices and services to American business as well as to the individual. Only the war and the need for turning over much of this new equipment to war-time tasks have kept these devices from more general use.

The Telefax is one of the latest and most remarkable additions to the telegraph family. An electric eye rapidly scans a hand-written message, a picture, a blueprint or a maze of figures and the Telefax transmits it over the wire. "Messages" of this kind arrive at their destinations as facsimiles of the originals. The service operates simply as well as quickly and with 100 per cent accuracy.

Progressive installation of the reprocessor switching system is part of the Western Union Telegraph Company's long-range modernization program.

One development which is helping us with our war business is carrier current. This was discovered a number of years ago and engineers have been constantly improving it. With carrier current it is possible to send many messages at one time over a single pair of wires. Today a hundred telegrams may flash over telegraph wires simultaneously with never a mix-up.

Curiously enough, the telegraph has passed through a complete cycle since Morse's day. The inventor's first instruments were of a semi-automatic type, but gave way to the hand-operated key until more recent times. Today automatic equipment has virtually replaced the old-time telegrapher. Every year the Morse telegraph key is used less and less.

Most messages in telegraph offices are written on machines known as teleprinters which have keyboards like typewriters. The printed telegrams you receive are from a teleprinter.

Thousands of business firms, war plants and military centers throughout the country have their own teleprinters. With them, the offices can communicate with telegraph offices or with branch offices, suppliers and clients in distant cities.

Buy and Keep War Bonds

by C. O. Noble
Head, Dept. of Agricultural Economics
University of Florida

FARMERS of this Nation are performing a magnificent job of essential food production during the present emergency, in spite of their great handicaps in obtaining the necessary materials, equipment, machinery, and labor. Due to their determination to do a good job and to favorable prices for farm commodities, they are receiving higher net incomes than during the twenty-year pre-war period. The question arises as to the wisest use to make of these net incomes that will hasten the winning of this war and at the same time assist in preventing dangerous inflation during and immediately following the war. Farmers, like all other workers on the home front, are not satisfied with merely doing well the job that is expected of them. They are eagerly on the alert for other ways they may help to bring peace at the earliest moment.

As I see it, the wisest use a farmer could make of his current net income would be to:

1. Keep the farm in condition to produce to its full capacity. This is extremely difficult due to shortages of materials, equipment, machinery and labor; but it is being done by all good farmers. Much attention must be given to keeping machinery in good repair and to making the most efficient use of labor.

2. Avoid new mortgage indebtedness, and reduce present indebtedness beyond the original plan, if practicable. Meet all payments for borrowed working capital when due.

3. Place every dollar not utilized in maintaining a healthy farm business into War Bonds and plan to hold on to these Bonds until they mature, or until after the war emergency has passed. This will be the best known method to help finance the war, to help prevent inflation, and at the same time to build up the investor's financial reserves for the post-war period.

You will note that no mention has been made of personal consumption expenses. These should be kept down to the bare minimum. Our rationing system is a great aid in holding down spending for consumer goods, but every patriotic citizen should think many times before purchasing an article that is not an absolute necessity. If War Bonds are purchased first and with the determination of holding them to maturity, it will be surprising that we can do without so many supposed necessities.

The Joy of Doing Right

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hiddenite, N. C.

There is always a joy in doing right. It may not always be easy, and isn't, but somehow when we do right we feel good over it. As we meet our fellowmen on life's journey we can look every one straight in the eyes without any shame on our faces; without a guilty conscience that lashes and condemns us; without a tremor in our voice, but with a smile on our face and a sparkle in our eyes, realizing that we have nothing to be ashamed of or guilty over. It pays to live upright, clean, godly, manly, womanly before God and man even for the joy, peace and satisfaction we get out of it here and now, to say nothing of the glorious reward that awaits us when we exchange worlds.

Did you ever know of something that went badly wrong in your home, but you had nothing to do with it? You wasn't in the least to blame. Even though you was sorry of the wrong, yet you could look your parents in the face, or your brothers and sisters, or your husband or wife, and then deep down in your heart and soul feel so clean, innocent and clear that you had a joy that was blessed? Did something ever go wrong in your school, say, for instance, that someone had stolen something, and as the teacher began to inquire as to who did it, you could feel such a clear conscience that you was almost anxious for him to ask you about it? Well, there is indeed a joy in doing right.

When we live right before God and man we can walk right up to the high sheriff of the county, or the chief of police, or the detective, take him by the hand and say, "How do you do? How are you getting along? Who is giving you trouble these days? How many poor criminals have you locked in jail since I saw you the last time? Well, goodbye old friend, and may God bless you."

You can go to every prison cell of the land and ask for admission that you may endeavor to comfort the poor unfortunate inmates who have a guilty conscience and a burdened soul, when you yourself are right with God and man, and have been law abiding and God-serving. You can meet the godly preacher of the Gospel and feel that you are in touch and communion with the same mighty, holy God that he loves, serves and worships, and that you are going to the same Heaven he is going to. This is life's better way. Glory to God.

To Wives and Parents of Soldiers

If you are sending The Record to your husband or son who is in the armed forces, please see that his subscription is paid in advance. We are forced to discontinue all subscriptions to the boys-in-foreign lands or in army camps in this country when their subscriptions expire. The soldiers want their home paper. We have had to mark several names off our books this week. Maybe one of them was your husband or son.

They used to say that the hand that rocked the cradle ruled the world. If that were true pop would be an important figure indeed while mom is out working in the war plant.

Preserving The Party

A Democratic party leader from Minnesota, John E. Regan, went to the Chicago convention as a Democrat and came away as a Republican.

He will work for Dewey and Bricker, he announces and not for Roosevelt and Truman.

"My further fight in the State of Minnesota will be to preserve the Democratic party."

Several phases of the Chicago convention made Mr. Regan sick of stomach.

For one thing, his statement says, it was "a staged party."

For another, the Democratic household has become strangely infested. It is "bloated," he adds, "with communists."

And in his judgment time has come to "expose Sidney Hillman, Earl Browder, David Niles and all of their kind who now have a throttlehold upon the party."

Mr. Regan talks plainly and forthrightly.

So do many other Democrats who are nauseated with the dominance of factors in the present party who seem to have such a commanding position in its councils.

That is true of the South, much more so than in Minnesota.

But this doesn't bother the high-ups, the Kellys, Hagues, Hannegans and Flynn's of the big cities who understand that they can do pretty much as they please in the way of making old line Southern Democrats mad and still hold them in the big—Charlotte Observer.

This is strange reading to come out in the South's leading Democratic daily. It would lead one to believe that Southern Democrats would vote for the devil if a Democratic national convention would place his name on the ticket.

The Passport Affair

The Southern Baptist Convention has called to the aid and comfort the United States Government has given Roman Catholics in their effort to drive Protestants out of South America. It should be known to all that Roman Catholics do not believe in or practice religious freedom. There is no such thing as religious freedom where that church is in power. It is a new thing however for the Government of the United States to repudiate that doctrine. It was never done before the present Administration began to cater to Rome. We are not surprised that President Roosevelt should take such a stand. Any one who has noted the hold that the Catholic Church has on him could not be surprised. His Ambassador is at the Vatican now. What is surprising is that Secretary Cordell Hull could be introduced to depart from his Tennessee upbringing so far as to make it easy for Roman Catholics to get passports South American countries and hard for Protestants.—Charity and Children.

Eleanor at Juanalaska

We cannot understand how a group of sincere Christian Methodist women came to invite the wife of the President of these United States to come to Lake Juanalaska, the great assembly grounds of the Southern Methodists in the mountains of western North Carolina, and to make an address. However, that is just what happened. We hope Eleanor did not repeat her admonition given in Charlotte to young girls how to control their drinking "so they will not fall under the tables." We also hope she did not explain to our Southern Methodist women her plan to make our negro sisters the social equals of these good women.—Exchange.

From A Davie Soldier

Camp Berkeley, Tex., July 25.

Dear Mr. Stroud:—Guess you are much surprised to hear from me. I have planned for a long time to write you, but since it has been so long I will try to make up some of the lost time.

Since last writing I have lost contact with most of our Davie county boys. That is due mainly to the fact that most of them have been sent overseas. Tell the folks back there not to worry over us fellows for I'll stick my neck out to say that Davie county has produced some of Uncle Sam's best soldiers, not to mention our sailors and marines.

As you have already guessed I'm still in Texas. My only entertainment is shooting at jack rabbits and chasing armadillos. Before much longer I hope to be shooting at something much larger than either of the above mentioned animals. The people of Texas sure are true to their home state. As for me, I'll take good old North Carolina and like it. I haven't lost a thug in Texas except a lot of time trying to get out of here.

Mr. Stroud, I was wondering if the large memorial beside the court house had been finished. It was almost ready for our names when I was home in May.

Please give my regards to the home folks and as this will probably be my last letter before the war is over, and may I say that I expect to see you soon, maybe a lot sooner than we expect. This time I plan to change my title from soldier to civilian. Keep your fingers crossed for us. Sincerely, S. Sgt. JAS. SWICEGOOD.

P. S. The Mrs. plans to return soon for a visit. She will make her home with her parents while I am away. J. S.

Will Support Dewey

Mankato, Minn.—John E. Regan, Mankato, former Minnesota Democratic leader, said he will aid the Minnesota campaign of Governor Dewey and Bricker, Republican candidates for President and vice president.

"My fight in the state of Minnesota," he said, "is for the purpose of preserving the Democratic party." Regan a floorman at the Chicago Democratic convention, said the convention was a "staged job" and that the Democratic party "is bloated with communists which it is the duty of every right-minded Democrat to remove from control of the party."

"We shall expose Hillman (Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action committee), Earl Browder, David Niles, and all the other men who have a throttlehold on the present Democratic party," Regan said.

To Make Loans on Farm Woodlands and Forest Lands

The Federal Land Bank of Columbia, has extended its loan facilities to include loans on farm woodlands and forest lands according to notice received from Julian H. Scarborough, President of the Bank, by Geo. L. Crater, Secretary-Treasurer of the Winston-Salem National Farm Loan Association, which handles Federal Land Bank loans in this county.

The new timber loan plan is designed to serve all farmers who have timber land in excess of normal farm needs and are following sound forestry practices as well as those engaged in the growing of timber on a large scale. "It is now generally recognized that farm woodlands constitute a substantial part of the value of farms in the South and the recognition of this value for loan purposes will enable the Bank to extend its long-term credit facilities to more farmers," Mr. Scarborough said.

Loans on forest lands will be based on the expected normal earnings of the tract under the management of a typical operator following sound forestry practices. Normal values and not current market values of growing and marketable timber will be used in determining loan values. A cruise of the timber will be required by a timber appraiser where all or a substantial part of the loan is based on timber land. Loans will be made on both marketable pine and hardwood timber and selective cutting will be permitted under standard forestry practices. The loan repayment plan will be made to fit the individual operator and loans will usually run from 10 to 40 years. Partial or full repayment will be permitted at any time.

"The Federal Land Bank of Columbia is pioneering in the making of loans on timber lands just as it pioneered in the making of long-term farm mortgage loans at low interest rates more than 25 years ago. We are glad to be able to offer a long-term, low interest rate loan on farm woodlands in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, which constitute one of the greatest assets of the South. The Bank's timber loan program has been worked out with the full cooperation and assistance of the United States and the State Forest Services," Mr. Scarborough stated.

"Applications for loans on farm woodlands and forest lands may be made at the office of the Winston-Salem National Farm Loan Association and will be handled just as applications for regular farm loans are handled," Secretary-Treasurer Geo. L. Crater said. The Association office is located in the Wachovia Bank Building, Trade Street Branch; at Winston-Salem, N. C., and further information can be obtained by writing or calling there.

Not Amphibious

"The New Deal came to power with a song on its lips: 'Happy Days Are Here Again.' That song has ended. Even the melody does not linger on. Now we are being conditioned for a new song: 'Don't Change Horses in the Middle of a Stream.' That melody isn't likely to linger either. For eleven long years we have been in the middle of the stream. We are not amphibious. We want to get across. We want to feel dry and solid ground under our feet again.—Governor Earl Warren, California.

Believe it or not, but the Federal Government sends out one out of every 16 letters mailed in the United States. Federal departments use the mails enough to send every one of the 30 million families in this country an average of 60 letters a year.

Roosevelt, The True Soldier, Dies

There has been one sincere and true soldier in the Roosevelt family since the days of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, the dynamic President of a few years back. That was Brigadier General Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., a fighting and honorable son of a fighting and honorable father. These men will carry the banner aloft for the Roosevelt family and their names will be recorded in history as true patriots. They died the death of a TRUE SOLDIER.

So far removed from the philosophy of the man in the White House who wants to be "a good soldier" just to serve another four years in office, General Theodore Roosevelt did his fighting and his dying on the field of battle. Politics played no part in his death which came as a shock to all Americans. He went in the uniform of Uncle Sam to where men are proving their title of "a good soldier"—on the battlefield and field and today his body lies wrapped in Old Glory in the soil of France on which which he fought two wars against German aggression and the things his kinsman in the White House stands for, bureaucracy and destruction of the rights and liberties of the people.

General Theodore Roosevelt had in his veins the blood of a fighting father who won fame as organizer and commander of the Rough Riders who battled that Spanish tyranny mightily end. That's the side of the Roosevelt family that America should bow its head and pay homage to. They gave their all that freedom might live. General "Teddy" was not satisfied to give up his brother, Quentin, in that other war against Germany. He gave his own life. And when the high ranking general of the American Army in France lowered General "Teddy" into the grave there stood like a statue his own son, Captain Quentin Roosevelt, a captain in "Teddy's" favorite division—the "Fighting First."

The general's heart would have been gladdened could he have known of the presence at his funeral of several hundred rankless doughboys and scores of patriotic French resistance leaders and their families who showered the coffin with the roses of Normandy.

Another "Teddy" has come on and passed off the stage of life and they like all others on that side of the Roosevelt family, will make American history glorious and future school children will study in their books how "Teddy" and his own rose to heights of glory because they gave their all for their country never seeking to perpetuate themselves because of their deeds.—Union Republican.

Adequate Water for Stock Is Essential

Improvement Seen As Production Aid

Full utilization of grazing areas, with an attendant production of more and better meat and dairy products requires adequate water for livestock on range and pasture. No matter how palatable and plentiful the forage, if sufficient water at regular intervals is not available, livestock will not reach a good marketable condition.

Development of enough wells and springs and ponds to supply the necessary water is not the only requirement, WFA points out. Proper distribution of the water in relation to available forage is essential to efficient grazing as full utilization cannot be realized if an adequate supply is not accessible to livestock on any part of the pasture or range acreage.

Stock-water developments are important on farm pastures in humid areas as well as on the ranges in semi-arid and arid states, according to government authorities. While the greatest need is in the latter areas, inadequate facilities prevent the fullest use of good pasture on many farms because the owner is not aware that a lack is possible in the more humid section where he is raising stock. Also, he may not realize how influential stock-water supplies can be in improving the quality and quantity of range and pasture feed.

In many states, farmers may receive assistance in carrying out stock-water developments under the conservation program administered by the agricultural adjustment agency.

Conservation of soil and water are aided indirectly by development of necessary pasture and range watering facilities. With proper development and distribution of water supplies, grazing can be restricted on overgrazed, eroded or depleted land and the stock rotated over other areas in keeping with their grazing capacity. Adequate water supplies on farm pastures, while encouraging more uniform grazing, will also aid pasture improvement practices, and decrease damage from erosion.

Water facilities are, roughly, of two kinds—natural and constructed. Springs, streams and lakes are in the first group. The second requires drilling, excavation or other construction work to make water available, and includes wells, artificial reservoirs and ponds, ditches, and troughs and storage tanks attached to springs and reservoirs.

Fertilizer Increase

Half Million Tons

American farmers this year will use well over 11,000,000 tons of commercial fertilizer—a new all-time high. That's half a million tons more than were used in 1943 and 3,000,000 tons more than in 1940.

Adjustments in analysis of complete fertilizers to be sold in different states have been made to insure the best possible use of the available materials supplying nitrogen, phosphoric acid, and potash. The nitrogen content of many of the available grades has been increased somewhat, indicated supplies of this important plant food being about 35 per cent greater than last year.

While some fertilizer ingredients are available in somewhat larger amounts this year than last, all of them, including such important nitrogen-carrying materials as ammonium sulfate, sodium nitrate, ammonium nitrate, and fertilizer compounds, are still on allocation by the War Production board.

Large Worm Loss

Experts say the average wormy pig, if it lives, requires one-fifth more feed to reach the same weight as an uninfested one. Since about half of the pigs in the United States are said to be infested, elimination of internal parasites would save great quantities of feed. It would save many hogs, veterinarians estimating that worms kill one pig in ten. By wide experiments and use, phenothiazine has proved to be the only drug that will control nodular worms. It also controls roundworms or Ascarids as effectively as other commonly used anthelmintics. Phenothiazine is usually given with dry feed mixtures to hogs confined to a pen, although individual doses of pellets, tabs or as a drench with a syringe are also used. The drug should be given according to printed directions or under the supervision of a veterinarian.

In a speech just before the election four years ago, Mr. Roosevelt declared that at the end of the four years this country would have a new President. We think he told the truth, whether he realized it or not.

Mr. Roosevelt promised the mothers four years ago that if he was elected their sons would not set foot upon foreign soil. Wonder what these mothers whose sons have been killed on foreign soil, are thinking these days?

Senator Guffey, New Dealer, of Pennsylvania, says that Thomas Dewey will not carry a state in the November election. If there is a bigger liar in the United States than this New Dealer we would like to take a look at him.

Mrs. James Farley is one of countless thousands of Democrats who will not vote for Roosevelt next November. What this country wants is a President who will retire at the end of the second term and not try to hold office for life.

It is going to take a lot of money and a big bunch of crooked election officers to defeat Tom Dewey for President next November. From present indications it seems that this Government is going to be run by the people for the next four years instead of by a few dictators.

George Washington made a wise remark some hundred and fifty years ago when he said, "when the people support the Government the country is in good shape, but when the Government has to support the people, the country is in bad shape," or words to that effect.

According to most of the political polls we have seen, it seems that Tom Dewey is going to defeat Roosevelt by as big a majority as Roosevelt defeated Willkie in 1940. Franklin seems to have reached the Zenith of his glory is now facing defeat at the polls in November.

Madame Eleanor spent a day or two in Western Carolina recently. After returning home she wrote several articles about where she went and what she saw. In writing of Waynesville she writes it Waynesboro. If there is such a town in North Carolina as Waynesboro we never heard of it. So it seems that Eleanor makes mistakes as well as her hubby.

The Wilkesboro Hustler says Roosevelt has made a few mistakes but that he has been right most of the time. We challenge the Hustler to submit proof. Maybe he is referring to bringing the liquor back, putting millions of able bodied men on the Federal payroll, increasing the National debt to nearly two hundred billion dollars, turning this country over to Earl Browder John L. Lewis, Henry Wallace and Harry Hopkins, and appointing a personal ambassador to the Vatican.

The cannery is open each Tuesday and Friday from 9 a. m., to 6 p. m. In the first 2½ days operation 700 cans were put up.

Letter From France

Somewhere in France, July 16
 Dear Mr. Stroud:—Just a few lines to let you know that I am thinking of you and hope that you are well. As for me, I am feeling fine at present and in good spirits.

I receive your paper once a week and I do enjoy reading the news about the home town. It's almost as good as getting a "Sugar Report from my best girl."

As you see, I'm now in France and glad to be doing my part. The work we are doing makes me, and would make you, proud of our Medical Corps. The Medics, as the boys in any other branch of the Service will tell you, are really doing a fine job.

I don't like the weather here, and outside of that, there isn't much I can tell you about France. In spite of everything that has happened here it is very pretty country and the people appear very glad to have us. Of course I can't speak French and don't think that I ever will as it is a very difficult language and I don't see how they can speak it themselves.

I have seen Hitler's Atlantic Wall, or a part of it, and it looked as tho a cyclone (made in the U. S. A.) had struck it. The only "Supermen" near the Wall were either prisoners or long rows of wooden crosses.

I am being careful, taking good care of myself, and looking forward to reading your paper—in Berlin.

Remember me to any of my friends you happen to meet, and give them my best wishes. I'll be seeing you all soon, I hope.

Your friend,

Pfc. MAGNESS HOWARD.

Let's Face Facts

Hot Controversy Rages
Over Food Distribution
For Liberated Peoples

By BARROW LYONS
WNU Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—

Some pretty warm discussions about whether citizens of liberated territories should be rationed on 2,000 calories of food a day, or 2,600 calories have been going on in Washington behind closed doors. The difference is 30 per cent, and when measured in total dollars, tons or available shipping space, this may be the difference between what is possible and what is impossible of accomplishment.

The army is the only agency in a position to distribute food in liberated territories during the early weeks of occupancy. It is prepared to preserve civil order and health. Until order is restored sufficiently to permit other agencies of our government to function, the army must assume responsibility.

Barrow Lyons

In approaching the nutrition problem the army consulted civilian authorities as to how much food—how many calories of a balanced diet—would provide a minimum for health. In the early stages of liberation the army does not feel that it can undertake to provide more than a minimum. The effort to beat enemy forces must take precedence over everything else, and at times battle requirements absorb all transportation the army can command.

What is more, we have found food distribution facilities badly disrupted in many areas. In some sections of Italy virtually all shopkeepers, who were Fascists, have disappeared, and untrained persons had to be found to handle distribution of food and supplies.

Some Difficult Problems

Nor have experienced distributors always proved trustworthy. Food entrusted to wholesalers by civilian agencies has not always found its way into normal channels of distribution. In India and North Africa much of the grain and flour sent in was withheld from distribution by wholesalers who profited by the hunger of starving peoples, until their practices were discovered and ended.

So the army is not undertaking to deliver more than a minimum diet to the people of France, Italy and other liberated territories. If civilian agencies, when given access, can supplement this, they will be welcomed.

In determining what constituted a minimum essential diet for the maintenance of health the army shared responsibility with civilian agencies—state department, foreign economic administration and department of agriculture. UNRRA was not invited to participate in the discussions. An interdepartmental committee, including army experts, decided that 2,000 calories a day, with some exceptions, was the minimum for maintenance of health.

Now, however, FEA nutrition experts disagree. They feel that we should undertake to provide more than 2,000 calories a day—at least 2,600 calories. It is pointed out by them that the average American gets from 3,000 to 3,200 calories a day.

The army does not object to people in liberated territories getting all the food possible, if it does not interfere with transportation of soldiers and supplies to the fighting fronts—but army officials do not wish to see the development of heavy civilian traffic until the Germans are beaten. It has become evident that slow victory would mean willful destruction by the Nazis in subject countries of millions of people. If we are to save their lives we must use available resources to the limit.

Belgium to Help

After the Germans are beaten all concerned hope to do much better for liberated peoples. For instance, the Belgian government in exile plans to purchase food for its own people. It has the money and skeleton organization. It will approach undernourishment as an illness. The "sick people" of Belgium are to be fed back to health as rapidly as possible so that they can assume quickly their normal functions.

Our own authorities would approach the problem of feeding similarly. One of the first tasks of the surgeon general's office will be to make surveys to determine exactly what are the food deficiencies of liberated territories, and then see that the right kinds of food are distributed.

It should be noted that the 2,000 calories, which has been set as the nutrition goal, is the basic allowance for the average adult. Extra allowances are provided for those performing heavy labor.

In this connection Dr. Mark A. Cirauld, in charge of labor education for the Nutrition Program branch, department of agriculture, points out that the average German worker today gets around 2,100 calories, as compared with 5,500 calories for an American lumberman and 4,500 for a truck driver.

Diner De Luxe at Burma Front

American field service ambulance drivers en route to the Burma front lunch on a flat car and find that the food is as good as in a de luxe diner. These volunteers are serving with British and Indian forces. They travel by boat, road and rail for long distances, always with their assigned ambulances.

Efficient Job of Demolition

General Talks With His Men

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme Allied commander, is shown in center of circle as he addressed men of the First division in Normandy. The general made a special trip to France to decorate 24 men for valor in the field. Despite his many duties he usually finds time to personally inspect all troops under his command and to listen to their problems. His popularity at the front has proven as great as on the homefront. Hundreds of American homes have received letters from General Eisenhower telling of good work done by their GI boys.

Yanks Shell Retreating Nazis

As one American soldier pulls the lanyard of a howitzer, two others hold ears and turn away from the roar as they shell retreating German troops near Carentan. American columns are still reported as advancing everywhere along the western half of the Normandy front despite powerful opposition.

Stimson in England

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson is shown examining the remains of a flying bomb shortly after it exploded in England. The war secretary has been conferring with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in England and inspecting American troops on invasion fronts.

'Fello Needs a Pal'

Constant companion of this sad-eyed bewildered Japanese youngster was "Shipper," the ship's mascot of a coast guard-manned assault transport, where the "Little Tojo" found haven and medical treatment from the strife that surged over his Sai pan home.

Invasion of England

From the gaping bow doors of an LST, German prisoners of war stream ashore at a British port. When they used to sing "We Sail Against England," they never dreamed that the landing on the shores was going to be like this—as prisoners of war.

Gen. Hideki Tojo has been relieved of his post as chief of the Japanese army general staff and has been succeeded by Gen. Yoshijiro Umezu (above), ambassador to occupied Manchuria.

PEAKING SPORTS

By Bob McShane
Released by Western Newspaper Union

ALTHOUGH night baseball has been the most important factor in keeping the game alive during wartime, there are still a few believers in the major league circuits.

Ed Barrow, president of the New York Yankees, has little enthusiasm for the vesper version. According to columnist Dan Parker, he cooled off on the proposition almost a half century ago when his Paterson, N. J., club of the Atlantic league, starring one Honus Wagner, took part in the first professional ball game under arc lights at Wilmington, Del.

It was back in 1896, about the first of July. And, according to Parker, "In the flickering blue light of carbon-stick arc lamps, the first night game in organized baseball ran into trouble soon after it got under way when the rival pitcher, steamed up by Barrow to play a practical joke on Wagner, substituted a Fourth of July torpedo for the ball the first time bow-legged Honus came up to bat."

"Honus took a toehold for his cut and met the paper-covered bag of gunpowder flush on the detonator, causing such an explosion that the game broke up in a riot. Ed thought night baseball was a snare and a delusion then and he still sticks to his belief, although he wavered a bit this spring when the Yanks slumped both in attendance and in the league standing. He said:

Change of Heart

"Under certain conditions, I wouldn't be too opposed to night baseball. But what good would it do me to change my mind this year when we couldn't install equipment for night games even if we wanted to?"

It wasn't so long ago that Clark Griffith was a determined opponent of the night game. But the situation has changed. Mr. Griffith is one of the most radical advocates of the electrically-lighted sport.

There's a good reason for Griffith's change of heart. Washington is glutted with federal employees who couldn't take time off for an afternoon game. They did want baseball, but had to have it in the cool of the evening. Logic—and business acumen—dictated the answer to Griffith. Washington now is the night baseball center of the major leagues. Griffith has permission to play as many night games as he desires, except on Sundays or holidays.

Many changes have come to pass during the past 12 years. Of the 15 major league clubs, all but 5 have facilities for night baseball. Those 5 fields remaining in the dark are Fenway park and Braves field in Boston, Wrigley field in Chicago, Briggs stadium in Detroit and the Yankee stadium in New York. These parks couldn't install the powerful batteries of lights on their steel towers now if they wanted to, because, even though the ban on such construction was lifted not long ago, the material required isn't likely to be available until after the war.

The Evidence

Not that General Electric will go into rhapsodies, but we're in favor of night ball. Joe Doakes, the boy who helps turn out materials for war, deserves a break. He probably likes baseball. But he can't knock off the job Thursday afternoon to see the Yanks and White Sox battle. Night baseball provides the answer. Joe can see the game. He is happy.

And Joe, multiplied a few hundred thousand times, makes the baseball club treasurer happy.

The case of the Southern association is proof of the value of the night game. This fine organization practically owes its existence to Mr. Edison's incandescent lamp. All games except those on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays are played at night in Billy Evans' circuit.

Evans wasn't wild about night baseball when he resigned from the Boston Red Sox and took over the presidency of the association. It didn't take him long to find out that the lights made the difference between black and red in the ledger. Association cities which formerly attracted 300 on week days now draw 3,000 in the hush of the evening.

The preponderance of evidence favors night ball. The situation is likely to continue.

SPORTS SHORTS

Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska played football at Nebraska Wesleyan more than 30 years ago. He starred on the eleven.

The Saratoga, N. Y., Spa golf course has no grade steeper than 5 per cent because of cardiac patients at the resort.

Emil Verban, the Cardinals' new infielder, has a twin sister, Frances, who is a softball star.

The St. Louis Cardinals won their first National League pennant in 1926. Since then they have won six more.

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that clog the system in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Be Well Dressed— Save Bond Money

Pinafores have come out of the nursery and taken the place they deserve in fashion. Besides being flattering and practical for warm weather, they are easy to make—an ideal choice for a beginner's sewing project. The ruffled, be-ribboned pinafore pictured here is especially beguiling, and can be worn with or without a blouse. Make it yourself and put the money you save into War Bonds. The pattern may be secured at your local store. Back the Attack—Buy More Than Before.

DON WINSLOW SAYS.

LET'S BUY 5TH WAR LOAN BONDS TO BOMB THE ENEMY, AND GIVE BALM TO OUR FIGHTING MEN!

To the People of this Community

There are many urgent reasons for buying War Bonds. First, the invasion needs money. Bonds pay for planes and guns and munitions with which to beat the Axis. Our fighting men must have the best possible equipment and it is up to us to let our money provide this.

A second reason is this: There is a shortage of goods now. Later on there will be plenty for civilian desires. Money put into War Bonds now will be available then. Business opportunities will be open then, too, and the "nest egg" saved now may hatch out commercially then. Money put into War Bonds now will be deprived of its current potentiality as a part of the causes of inflation. You will be doing your part toward stabilizing the money situation by buying Bonds instead of dwindling stocks. That is a third reason.

But the best reason from a selfish viewpoint is this: Right now there is no better investment than War Bonds. There is no safer repository for your money. By buying Bonds you become a stockholder in the strongest "going" concern in the world today, the United States of America.

THEY DIED TO MAKE THEM FREE

This poignant picture made by an Army Signal Corps photographer shows a kneeling Roman mother and her child gently and reverently placing flowers over the still forms of two American boys who paid the supreme price to liberate them from the Nazi and Fascist grip. Look at their faces and you will see that both mother and child realize that these Americans died for them. Remember this picture when you are asked to buy an extra War Bond during the Fifth War Loan.

Save Money—Yet Dress Smartly and Put Profits Into War Bonds

The age-old art of needlework gains new significance as an aid to win the war. By crocheting your own accessories, you can add new color to a last year's costume, and put the money thus saved into War Bonds. One of the season's smartest sets is this crocheted white cotton hat topped by a red feather, and scalloped pouch bag with a shoulder strap. Directions for crocheting this or a similar hat and bag set may be obtained at your local store. Back the Attack—Buy More Than Before.

Unconquerable Power

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hiddenite, N. C.

The power of God is unconquerable. He stands far above the most powerful dictators and wicked rulers of the earth, and the most powerful armies they can assemble, even numbering many millions. No man, no nation, no army can conquer God and His blessed, marvelous, glorious truth. He goes forth conquering and to conquer. And what He does is right. So if we are on God's side we can rejoice and shout victory in the face of the devil and all the hosts of hell. Turn to the 91st Psalm and read it. Read it again and again. Read it daily and live in it. This tells us what God can do for His people. No demon power can overcome and destroy one of God's dear children as long as we live within His will and abide under His shadow, unless He permits us to suffer at the hands of the devil, or even lose this life for His sake, although He positively will not allow the devil to destroy the soul of the righteous. Sometimes God gets greater honor and glory out of letting somebody suffer, or even be martyred, for His cause and kingdom, yet this does not limit the power of God.

And isn't it wonderful that we have access to this unconquerable power? Old Elijah prayed unto God and He stopped the rain and dew for three and a half years. Then he prayed and the God of heaven sent rain again. And we are told that Elijah was a man subject to lack passions as we are. The three Hebrews who were cast into a furnace of fire that was so hot that it killed those who cast them in, were in such communion with God, and had His power with them so marvelously, until they came out unharmed. Yes, they came forth with such victory until they convinced the world of God's power. Daniel prayed and the ferocious lions in the den into which he was cast could not hurt him nor harm him in the least. Paul and Silas prayed and God shook the old prison into which they were unjustly thrown and the doors came open, the jailer and his household were saved, and the authorities set the prisoners free—that is Paul and Silas. And we have access to the same powerful God today. O let us pray! Hell rages, but God can command the devil and, all his hosts to stand back and do His people no harm. It is glorious indeed that we can be in tune with God and have His unconquerable power round about us, in us, over us, and know that the demon forces of hell rage at us in vain. Glory to God forever. Hallelujah! Let's take our stand for God, the right and truth, and hold to His unchanging hand until we can shout victory in heaven forever. "O that man would praise the Lord for His goodness, and for His wonderful works to the children of men!" Thank God for His power unconquerable.

We Are Ashamed

Bragging as if it were something to be proud of the beer "Foundation" reveals the shameful fact that last year the beer drinkers of North Carolina paid into the tax basket for the state and the nation Nine Million Dollars.

This does not take into consideration that which was paid on wines and liquors but these figures standing alone are disgraceful enough to make North Carolinians heads hang with shame.

Nine million dollars is enough to build a $90,000 library in each of the 100 counties of North Carolina. —To-Morrow.

Thomas E. Dewey

When Governor Dwight Griswold of Nebraska placed the name of Thomas E. Dewey in nomination at the Republican National Convention in Chicago he devoted two short paragraphs to the personal side of Dewey's life. He merely said: I like him because he came up the hard way. He was born in a small town in Michigan. He went through his public schools. He worked his way through the University of that great state. He went to the metropolis of this nation—and made good.

"I like the kind of father he is and the kind of family he has. I like the fact that he says grace at meals. We Americans believe in that."

But to the people of Owosso, Michigan, it would take volumes to tell the human side of the lad whom they know as "Tom." The boy who became nationally known long before he was forty, and who became nationally known long before he was forty, and who was named the Republican Presidential candidate is a typical mid-western boy from a small community. Like other boys in Owosso he went fishing, played baseball on the corner sandlot, played football in the autumn, and sang in the church choir on a Sunday. Like other youngsters of small towns, "the Dewey boy" worked during his school vacations, sometimes on a farm; sometimes in his father's small newspaper shop. And in the fall he eagerly returned to his classroom.

Although Dewey's family was highly respected, and affluent to the degree that a small town newspaper editor is prominent, the family could not be called prosperous. Tom found it necessary to work his way through college. But long before he was ready for ready for the university, Tom Dewey was saving money from his after-school work to finance his education.

Dewey's father didn't live to see the great honor bestowed upon Tom, but his mother is still living in the home in Michigan where the Republican standard bearer was raised. Dewey's grandfather, as a delegate to the historic convention under the oaks Jackson, Mich., helped to create the Republican Party in that critical year of 1854; a year in which crisis, comparable to the present, confronted the nation.

Another "Blunder"

When 2700 jars of peanut butter were destroyed recently by Federal marshals under a Federal court order at Idaho Falls, Idaho, because the jars weighed 15.66 ounces instead of 16 ounces as stated on the labels, Dr. Paul B. Dunbar, acting food and drug administrator, admitted that such waste of food was a "blunder" on the part of representatives of his agency. The blunder could have been averted and the food conserved either by replacing the jars, by adding peanut butter to increase the weight to label specifications, or by donating the food to a charitable institution.

National Grange at Winston-Salem Next November

The National Grange is recognized as the leading spokesman of the farm people of the nation, due to its active participation in agricultural affairs and the firm stand it has long taken in behalf of the farm interests. Consequently its annual convention, always largely attended, attracts widespread interest and what the Grange has to say on pending national issues commands universal attention.

This year's National Grange convention—the 78th—will be held at Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and the dates are November 15-23. Preparations for this great get-together of rural people are already well started and North Carolina Grange members will play the host in their usual royal fashion, supported by fellow Patrons in adjoining states. The beautiful Reynolds Memorial Auditorium at Winston-Salem will afford an admirable meeting place for the largest sessions of the convention, and the National Grange headquarters will be the Robert E. Lee Hotel.

The "big day" of the convention will be Friday, November 17, which will witness the conferring of the climax degree in Grange ritualism—the Seventh—whose attainment is the ambition of all Grange ritualists. The degree will be given afternoon and evening on that day, for the convenience of Patrons coming from North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia and Tennessee, with an expected total of 2,500 or more. The Grange Seventh Degree ranks very high in ritualistic procedure and members often travel long distances to secure it.

To the Winston-Salem convention will come prominent figures in national affairs—many of them Grange members—and declaration there adopted will have far-reaching influence in the settlement of many grave problems of the times. With the occupancy of its new Headquarters Building at Washington, D. C., the National Grange becomes a more important factor than ever before in its championship of the agricultural welfare.

A carefully-prepared program will characterize the Winston-Salem nine-day convention, on which will be included leaders in agricultural educational activities of this group of states; and the advantage of this great section will be put convincingly before the Grange visitors, who will come from nearly 40 states. The publicity possibilities contained in the November Grange event, for North Carolina and the adjacent area, are very great and will be emphasized to the utmost.

Later a series of Sixth Degree meetings, with that Grange degree conferred in preparation for the Seventh at Winston-Salem November 17, will be announced, meeting the convenience of local groups eager to ascend to the topmost round in Grange ritualism. As fast as the convention program is developed its most important features will be given wide publicity. State Master Harry B. Caldwell of North Carolina has the hearty backing of a host of Patrons who will serve in various preparation activities; while neighboring State Masters are joining hands vigorously in making the convention one long to be remembered. The 66th annual session of the National Grange was held at Winston-Salem in 1932 when W. Kerr Scott, present North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture, was State Master, and a decided impulse to

Democratic Party Ignores South

Laurens, S. C.—Declaring that "it is quite obvious that the National Democratic party, as presently constituted, is no longer the party of the South, E. Coke Bridges, of Heath Springs, a delegate to the national convention of the Democratic party held in Chicago, said that "the road down which we are being carried by those in power will, some day, make a most unhappy comparison with similar roads of wreck and ruin which are today being traveled by many unfortunate peoples in other lands."

Mr. Bridges, who is the mayor of Heath Springs and former state senator from Lancaster county, attended the convention in Columbia. He says, however, that the delegates from South Carolina and other Southern states might as well stay at home as the party "has been taken over by a mostly combination which has reduced the South to a decayed knot on a rotten log."

According to Mr. Bridges, former United States Senator James F. Byrnes had over 700 votes pledged for the vice presidency but that Sidney Huffman, CIO would not support the ticket with any Southerner on it. He says that Hillman told Byrnes there were too many Negroes in the CIO for it to support a ticket containing a Southerner.

"To begin with," said Mr. Bridges, "there was no semblance of democracy connected with the convention. It was operated by the big state and big city bosses, Flynn of New York, Hague of Jersey city, Kelly of Chicago, and a few others, including Sidney Hillman of the CIO."

"The CIO through its president, Sidney Huffman and its Political Action Committee were definitely a powerful force behind the scenes and in the convention. This organization with its Russian-born Communist leader has well nigh taken over the Democratic party."

"The National Democratic party today has no more in common with the party of our fathers than a pig has with a peafowl. The time-honored principles which our forefathers have always stood for and fought for have been so trampled in the dust of political expediency as to become unrecognizable."

Third Party Ticket

Washington—Plans for holding the Byrd-for-President organization intact to help in the formation of a third party anti-Roosevelt ticket were announced by John U. Barr of New Orleans, chairman of the recent campaign to make Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia the Democratic presidential nominee.

"The event of the next 30 days may develop the fighting names and slogans under which we will wage our battle," Barr said in a statement. "At the proper moment we shall make the necessary announcements. There will be a genuine Democratic ticket for the electoral college."

Barr did not detail any of his plans, but he is believed to be preparing to go South to lead a band to dissident Democrats in trying, through petitions and other means, to get electors on the ballot pledged to some Democrat other than the President.

Grange work in this area resulted. Of further local interest is the fact that Mrs. Margaret H. Caldwell, wife of the North Carolina State Master, is National Superintendent of the Grange Juvenile Department, and this phase of Grange work will be strongly emphasized at the coming convention.

Eyes On Mrs. Tom Dewey

One of the issues of the presidential campaign with the denomination of President Roosevelt. Never before has a President's wife been the issue which Mrs. Roosevelt is sure to be, thinks the Richmond, Va., Times Dispatch.

Not only so, but there will be a great contrast between Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Dewey. The latter is quiet retiring, 41 years old, and decidedly good-looking. Furthermore, her conception of the First Lady's proper role in the White House is in direct conflict with that of Mrs. Roosevelt. In her first interview with the press after her husband's nomination, Mrs. Dewey said:

"I have no intention of doing radio work or making speeches or writing a column. I intend to leave those things to my husband."

Thus if Mrs. Dewey goes to the White House, she will follow a much more conventional course than Mrs. Roosevelt has done. Many will welcome this departure with fervent enthusiasm.

Mrs. Dewey was born in Sherman, Texas, is said to be a collateral descendant of Jefferson Davis, and is a former singer in a road company of George White's Scandals. She was never a chorus girl, of course, her roles having been purely musical. It was at the Chicago Musical College that she met Tom Dewey, also a singer of parts. They warble duets together occasionally. Will they warble them in the White House, beginning next January 1?—Union Republican.

Disaster Faces Farmers
If Boom in Land Values
Continues to Skyrocket
By BARROW LYONS
WNU Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—

One glance at the current USDA index of farm real estate values indicates that a boom in land values is well started, which, if not checked by the most vigorous legislation, is likely to develop into a condition that will have a disastrous effect upon farming for many years to come.

The average value of farm land per acre for the nation as a whole has been rising at the rate of about 1 per cent a month since the latter part of 1943. At the moment, the movement has slowed down slightly—but this is a seasonal condition, and unless inflationary forces are checked, acceleration can be expected in the fall and winter, when farmers generally do most of their land purchasing. They have time to look around and bargain then.

Only the very young farmers of today cannot remember what took place in the farm land boom of the last war, and the two years that followed that war. It took five years then for the national index of land values to climb from a level of 124 in 1915 (the average for 1935-1939 equals 100) to the 205 level in 1920. Those figures are March 1 averages for the nation in the years mentioned. That was a climb of 65 per cent.

Started in 1942

This time the inflationary movement did not start until 1942. It began from a somewhat lower level of values, as the chart accompanying this article shows, and for the first two years the rise followed closely the pattern of 1916 and 1917. But beginning last winter, the rise in the third year of increase has been far more rapid than in the third year of the previous boom. In the first three years of the World War I boom the rise was 26 per cent. In the first three years of the present boom the rise has been 34 per cent.

If the upward climb continues until next March at the same rate, the rise for the first four years of the present movement will be more than 50 per cent, compared with 36 per cent in the first four years of the previous boom. That would mean that inflation of farm land values is sneaking up on us much faster than last time, and threatens to go very much further, for the war is still in progress, inflationary forces are much greater than 25 years ago, and we already are beginning to relax price rise restraints.

Let me quote from the bulletin on the subject issued by the USDA bureau of agricultural economics in March, this year. It says:

"In the principal agricultural areas the value-stimulating forces are increasing in strength, while the value-curbing influences are weakening. The predominant forces operating in the farm real estate market stem from conditions of high farm commodity prices, record farm income levels and growing accumulations of funds available for land purchase."

The analysis points out that demand deposits of country banks in 20 leading agricultural states increased 30 per cent during 1943, and by January, 1944, had trebled from 1939. This condition continues to grow, as farm income from marketing this year compares well with the all-time record of last year. There is a bumper wheat crop at excellent prices, and other crops promise high cash yields.

Increase in Transfers

The most alarming feature of this movement is the increase in the number of transfers for speculative purposes. Reselling after only short periods of ownership is increasing, especially in the Pacific and North Central regions. In the latter part of last year, almost three-fourths of the tracts resold were held for less than a year, and over two-fifths for less than six months.

Despite earnest pleas made to halt this boom through purchase of war bonds, instead of land, the only promise of effective action yet to appear has been the bill introduced by Sen. Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, which would impose a 90 per cent tax on profits made from the sale of farm land held less than two years.

Some responsible officials fear that if the full vigor of the present boom is publicized, it will lead to greater speculation, with resulting stimulation of the boom—and greater disaster when values collapse.

The first contingent of Brazilian troops is shown arriving in Italy to take its place beside the American, British and French Allies in the fight against the common foe. A Yank guard of honor was on the docks at Naples when the Brazilians disembarked. Brazil has asked that her troops be used on every front. Brazilian air troops have received training in U. IT REMAINED for Arne Andersson, Swedish schoolteacher, to prove to the world that talk of a four-minute mile was more than wishful thinking.

In the greatest mile race of all time, Andersson toured the distance in 4:01.6. Running against the famed Gunder Hagg, Andersson came the closest to achieving the goal of some 70 years. He has definitely proved his superiority over Hagg, and has removed any doubt that there is anyone in his class. And it should be noted that Hagg knocked off the mile in 4:02, better than any previously recorded time before their duel.

Andersson's 4:01.6 mile was the latest development in the running of the event that has become a monopoly for him and Hagg. They have broken the record four times in the past two years, shaving nearly five seconds from the 4:06.4 chalked up by Sidney Wooderson of England in 1937.

In 1943 Andersson established a world record of 4:02.6. At 28, the flying Swede cut a full second from that mark. For the first three quarters of his race with Hagg, Arne actually was eight-tenths of a second ahead of the four-minute pace. He ran the first quarter in 58.8 for the fastest lap ever made in a mile race. When he reached the half-mile mark, with 60.5 for the quarter, he was hitting pretty much the pace of a good middle-distance man. He made the third quarter in 62.9 and the last in 61.4.

In running 4:02.6 last year Andersson ran his quarters in 58.5, 62.5, 61.8 and 59.8. Comparison of the two races shows that he was 1.7 faster on the first quarter than last summer and two full seconds on the second lap. This gave him a total advantage of 3.9 seconds for the half. He began to lag and ran the third quarter 1.9 slower and then lost 2.4 in the final. It is obvious that he has improved over the first half mile. But he will have to develop a stronger finish to clock the four-minute mile.

Francis Powers, Chicago sports writer, points out that Col. Arnold Strobe Jackson, English Olympic champion in 1912, calculated that the four-minute mile will be reached only if a runner can pace himself to 58, 62, 61 and 59 seconds. That is a punishing schedule. It demands a terrific start, a breathing spell during the second quarter with a gradual pickup during the third and speed enough for a slamming finish.

A Comparison

Andersson bettered Jackson's standard for the first quarter and was 2.7 ahead of time at the half. He fell 1.1 back of schedule on the third, but was still eight-tenths of a second to the good for the three-quarters. The final lap was his undoing—he went 2.4 off the Jackson pace.

Andersson indicated earlier in the season that he would have come to the United States but for previous running commitments in Sweden. Hagg, too, has announced that he will return to the United States at "the earliest possible convenience."

Their appearance here would furnish grand entertainment, but the competition we could provide during the summer would make an early trip to this country rather futile.

It would be better if the two Swedes would come for our winter season. They could meet America's milers when they were in top form. It is also doubtful if Andersson and Hagg, during the warm months, could approach the time they made in their homeland, where they can run late in the evening when it is cool and there is no bothersome humidity.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood. You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. Try Doan's Pills. Don't help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Let's Face Facts

If Boom in Land Values
Continues to Skyrocket
By BARROW LYONS
WNU Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—

One glance at the current USDA index of farm real estate values indicates that a boom in land values is well started, which, if not checked by the most vigorous legislation, is likely to develop into a condition that will have a disastrous effect upon farming for many years to come.

The average value of farm land per acre for the nation as a whole has been rising at the rate of about 1 per cent a month since the latter part of 1943. At the moment, the movement has slowed down slightly—but this is a seasonal condition, and unless inflationary forces are checked, acceleration can be expected in the fall and winter, when farmers generally do most of their land purchasing. They have time to look around and bargain then.

Only the very young farmers of today cannot remember what took place in the farm land boom of the last war, and the two years that followed that war. It took five years then for the national index of land values to climb from a level of 124 in 1915 (the average for 1925-1939 equals 100) to the 205 level in 1920. Those figures are March 1 averages for the nation in the years mentioned. That was a climb of 65 per cent.

Started in 1942

This time the inflationary movement did not start until 1942. It began from a somewhat lower level of values, as the chart accompanying this article shows, and for the first two years the rise followed closely the pattern of 1916 and 1917. But beginning last winter, the rise in the third year of increase has been far more rapid than in the third year of the previous boom. In the first three years of the World War I boom the rise was 26 per cent. In the first three years of the present boom the rise has been 34 per cent.

If the upward climb continues until next March at the same rate, the rise for the first four years of the present movement will be more than 50 per cent, compared with 36 per cent in the first four years of the previous boom. That would mean that inflation of farm land values is sneaking up on us much faster than last time, and threatens to go very much further, for the war is still in progress, inflationary forces are much greater than 25 years ago, and we already are beginning to relax price restraints.

Let me quote from the bulletin on the subject issued by the USDA bureau of agricultural economics in March, this year. It says:

"In the principal agricultural areas the value-stimulating forces are increasing in strength, while the value-curbing influences are weakening. The predominant forces operating in the farm real estate market stem from conditions of high farm - commodity prices, record farm income levels and growing accumulations of funds available for land purchase."

The analysis points out that demand deposits of country banks in 20 leading agricultural states increased 30 per cent during 1943, and by January, 1944, had trebled from 1939. This condition continues to grow, as farm income from marketing this year compares well with the all-time record of last year. There is a bumper wheat crop at excellent prices, and other crops promise high cash yields.

Increase in Transfers

The most alarming feature of this movement is the increase in the number of transfers for speculative purposes. Reselling after only short periods of ownership is increasing, especially in the Pacific and North Central regions. In the latter part of last year, almost three-fourths of the tracts resold were held for less than a year, and over two-fifths for less than six months.

Despite earnest pleas made to halt this boom through purchase of war bonds, instead of land, the only promise of effective action yet to appear has been the bill introduced by Sen. Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, which would impose a 90 per cent tax on profits made from the sale of farm land held less than two years.

Some responsible officials fear that if the full vigor of the present boom is publicized, it will lead to greater speculation, with resulting stimulation of the boom—and greater disaster when values collapse.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of the Flying Fortress, "The Swoose," tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines, killing eight of his men and demolishing Old 89, with many other Forts, before it could get off the ground. After escaping to Australia, what is left of the 19th Bombardment Group flies to Java, where they help defend the island until it falls. U. S. fliers evacuate to Australia to carry on the war from there. The 19th Bombardment Group is back in business again, and Kurtz once more flies "The Swoose." Buzz Wagner, hero of the Philippines, who has a desk job in Australia, steps into a P-39 and shows his boys how to nip the Nips.

CHAPTER XXII

"'Because the real truth is,' he said, 'our present Army fighters don't climb fast enough, or high enough—and they don't have the range. Every Jap knows this, if the people back home don't. Maybe it would hurt their morale to find it out, but I'm only thinking of the morale of my pilots.' That's why he wanted to come home. Poor guy."

"Meanwhile Florida played on in the sunshine," said Margo, "and I was trying to write letters to some of the other girls we knew whose husbands would never come back. Some of the letters I wanted to write I couldn't. For a while I had been on exhibition because my husband was supposed to be dead in Java, and they'd look at me and groan with patriotic sympathy, and then get to work planning the next golf tournament. I'd look at those strong, healthy young golf professionals, coaching flabby men on the putting greens, and wonder why they weren't in uniform. Only that was the wrong attitude; they'd tell you we need recreation now, more than ever, to keep our morale up during the war. I suppose it was true, but I kept wishing the weary boys in uniform I knew could be getting more of it, instead of these stagnant, contented men."

"There were some more names to be added to that list of letters," said Frank, "but with us the feeling had changed. It was wonderful to be able at last to smash them back, as the fighters had done at Darwin. And from its base in North Australia, the old 19th Bombardment Group—which included the 7th now—was flying out over New Guinea and New Britain islands, landing heavy punches on them at Lae and Salamaua, and at Rabaul."

"Now the Jap lines of communication were as far extended as ours had been; now we had something like the equipment they had put against us. We knew, of course, they were busy digesting Java and the Philippines. But we felt now they could never knock us back on our heels again, because we were getting solidly dug in so we could soak up their punches and put out a few of our own. It was a nice feeling."

"Also the Japs were getting a healthy respect for the E-model Forts."

"Not long after the Olympics, I heard Kobi Ishi had entered the Jap Air Force. After that I thought of them all as Kobi Ishi, a pretty good diver with some fair tricks and a toothy smile, but nothing you can't handle if you train for it. Maybe they're all fanatics, craving to die for the Emperor, but I remember a story the 19th told me in Australia."

"Six of our Forts were coming in over Rabaul to give the Japs a pasting when one lone Zero showed up. The six Forts were all brand-new E models, and the Japs had learned about them. The Forts continued in formation, but keeping their guns trained on the Zero. Now most fighter pilots, whether they're American, Jap, or German, are nervous and quick like fox terriers. There's no gap between thinking and acting, so you can almost watch a fighter plane and read its pilot's mind. That's how it was with this little Jap. He starts in, thinking here's a chance to pick off a Fort, and then suddenly he sees all those guns and thinks how sweet and cute his little almond-eyed geisha is back home, and how nice it would be to get back to her, so about half a mile away he pulls out in a turn, out of range, and continues parallel with the six Forts, thinking it over. Well, the little geisha finally wins out over the Emperor, because he doesn't go in, but he thumbs his nose at them in his way: flying alongside, with all of our gang watching, he starts doing Immelmann turns. It's a half-loop, which brings you out upside down only flying backward, quickly followed by a half-roll, which turns you right side up again. And it's one of the hardest tricks in the book if done properly—beautiful flying, the boys said, and he kept doing it over and over, just out of range, as much as to say, 'Boys, I'm not coming in, but don't think I can't fly.' Kept it up for fifteen minutes in his latest-model super-charged Zero, and just as he flipped off into a cloud, our gang waved their applause for the flying circus, and he gave them the high sign back. To me he was Kobi Ishi. I'd like to meet him after the war."

"In early April Port Moresby on New Guinea was our problem child. Our air base there was a single jungle-hewn landing strip with no adequate anti-aircraft guns. We were building dispersal fields, but they weren't done yet, so that the aircraft had to be lined up along the side of that gravel runway and of course were slow in getting off, which made it a setup for the Japs. Also, our equipment was flown by green youngsters from the States. The big problem was supply. Moresby is as far from Melbourne as Los Angeles is from Pittsburgh. Then at every state line the Australian railroad changes gauges, so all the freight cars had to be unloaded. We had about a dozen B-24's to bring supplies in over the water from the end of the railroad at Townsville, but only about four of these were operational; the rest were under repair.

"And the Japs were still a nuisance at Moresby—dropping down from the overcast to strafing our field at 40 feet altitude. We spent a lot of our time there, and had some close calls getting out to save the Swoose."

"I'll never forget our closest one," said Master Sergeant 'Red' Varner,

The cannibal head hunters who lived in the jungle used to stalk the tame village natives.

the Swoose's crew chief. "We got just a minute and a half's notice that the Japs were coming. Now the General could have stepped down into a foxhole and been perfectly safe there, watching the Japs pound the field. But not our General—he wanted to save that plane, and we had to run like hell to jump in, the General leading everybody, slam the doors, and lam out of there. We had to take off down wind, which was bad, missing a little hill by a lot less than 100 feet. We wouldn't have missed it if it hadn't been for those smart trees they have on New Guinea growing on top of that hill—the most intelligent ones I've ever seen. Because they saw us coming and ducked. I happened to be looking out and saw them. Then I looked back, and bombs were already breaking on the field right in the dust of our take-off."

"The Colonel here, who of course was doing the piloting, pulled a smart one. The Japs were right on top of us, so he hugged the ground—figuring then the Zeros couldn't dive on us without mashing their own propellers into the bush. We went hell for breakfast, wiggling in and out of gullies hardly 40 feet off the ground, and then out over the sea, where we could see a cloud cover to hide in. We had all kinds of rank aboard that day—Australian Air Force generals and other visiting firemen—and some of them weren't used to scuttling through gullies in a four-motor plane, and by the time we got into that cloud they were sprouting some gray hairs."

"By May, though," said Frank, "we began to get the situation in hand at Moresby. We got some dispersal fields back in the hills for our planes and an operational alarm net so now we can intercept, and also the Zeros run into an intense cross fire from the ground which sends them trailing off across the jungle on fire. So presently strafing is out, and we have only regular raids by high-altitude Jap bombers pounding the field. Our fighters are getting better every day, and pretty soon they're chasing them out over the coast, jettisoning their bombs, which whistle down harmlessly to tear up empty jungles."

"For a while we had a labor problem. The tame village natives we'd hired to work on the field didn't like the bombs, and when the alarm sounded, instead of jumping into the foxholes they'd beat it into the jungle, and maybe not come back for a couple of days. However, this soon stopped, because the cannibal head-hunters who lived in the jungle used to stalk them and chase them back, and as between the bombs and the head-hunters, the natives chose the bombs, so we got plenty of work done."

"By now we weren't worried about Port Moresby. We had that in fair shape, and our bombers were going over almost every day to pound the Japs. But we were uneasy about the other shore of New Guinea. The Japs had already dug in at Lae and Salamaua—supposed they came on down the line and put in an airfield at Buna, right opposite Moresby? They could cause us plenty of trouble, intercepting our bombers on the way out and back."

"General Brett was particularly anxious, and wanted to move in and take Buna in May. There was nothing there then but a native village and an old Catholic mission. But Melbourne said no, because it would mean landing troops to defend our airbase there."

"But the Air Force knew if the Japs ever got Buna it would take a first-class expedition to get them out. Finally General Ralph Royce, who was General Brett's operations chief, flew out over northern New Guinea on a personal inspection of the whole coast, and sent to Melbourne a detailed report, endorsing a field at Buna as vital to our future air operations."

"Presently his reply came. In reference to his report on the establishment of a landing field at Buna, Melbourne headquarters commended him for his initiative in making the reconnaissance, but found that owing to lack of facilities, it wasn't possible at this time."

"But this friendly little ground-air argument over Buna was soon settled. The third week in July our reconnaissance spotted a Jap Naval task force moving toward the north coast of New Guinea, and 'ow just off Rabaul. We weren't sure where they were headed—maybe around the island, to capture Moresby itself."

"We were taking no chances, so on July 24 General Brett hit them with everything he had, little as it was—medium and light bombardment, Forts and obsolescent dive bombers."

"But for twenty-four hours the fog closed in, hiding them. When it lifted they were sixty miles off Buna. Now we knew the Jap High Command was thinking in the same strategic terms as we were in the Air Force."

"Even though the weather gave us this very short time to pound them, we made them pay for their Buna landing. But still they could sneak a transport through during the night to put troops ashore. Had we had only a little infantry and artillery at Buna, they could have held them off, giving the Air Force a chance to pound their landing barges at dawn. But we didn't have, and when morning came their transport was steaming away empty."

"In only two days the enterprising little devil had chopped a landing strip out of the jungle. A few days later their fighters were rising off it to attack our bombers as they took off or returned to Moresby after pounding the Jap base at Rabaul. "It took almost six months of hard fighting by both Australian and American infantry, down over the Owen Stanley range—finally led by General MacArthur himself—to clean the Japanese out. What we have now is real co-operation. The ground forces know the vital importance of airfields, and I hope we in the Air Force have come to appreciate the tremendous importance of the unity of air, land, and sea."

"A man doesn't know what distance means until he flies that end of the world," said Red, the crew chief. "Remember the time we had to make a forced landing right in the middle of the place?"

"I'll never forget," said Charlie, the bombardier. "It was about the time of that Buna business."

"We had left Darwin," said Red, "and were flying across the Australian desert headed for Cloncurry. We had empty-ump rank aboard, about sixteen in all—General Royce, General Perrin, General Marquat, and some Australians—Air Marshals they probably were—and also Lyndon Johnson, a big lanky guy from Texas, a real Congressman, only now he was out inspecting this area as a Navy Lieutenant Commander. "Well, we're flying along over this wilderness which looks like the rumpled parts of New Mexico or Arizona, heading, we think, for this Cloncurry, only our arrival time goes by, and no Cloncurry."

"Harry, the navigator, begins to check things, and discovers that his octant has gone out on him—it's like a sextant on a ship, only you use an air bubble instead of the horizon. It wasn't Harry's fault—the prism was turning all right, but now he could see the recorder wasn't. He came up out of the navigator's compartment into the cockpit shaking his head, and told Frank here what had happened—that he had no idea where the Swoose was. 'You can have her now, Major,' he says. 'She's all yours!'"

"Well, first the Major got our radioman to working, trying to get up some Australian station which would give us a bearing. But I guess they were all asleep. Our gas was getting lower and lower. And the sun was sinking, too. And that country below us was all rumpled up like someone had slept in it.

Were we to be directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want bread.—Thomas Jefferson.

The Gallop Poll would indicate that Roosevelt followers of yesterday are deserting Franklin like rats leaving a sinking ship.

A Roosevelt man told us a few days ago that he had cast his last vote for Franklin Delano. Brother there are thousands of Democrats who are following in your footsteps.

Melville Broughton, Democratic Governor of North Carolina, says that the Democratic party has been taken over and is being run by the Northern Negroes and the C. I. O. An honest confession is said to be good for the soul.

JOHN W. BRICKER

There is good reason to believe that the New Dealers became as nervous when Governor John W. Bricker, of Ohio, let it be known that he would take second place on the Republican ticket at Chicago as they did when it became obvious that Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, would be the Republican nominee for President.

For, like the man with whom he runs, John W. Bricker has become a symbol in America of efficient, honest, reliable, progressive government and has won a reputation of being free from machine political domination, independent of racketeers in any form, and utterly fearless in a fight for what he knows to be right.

When he takes over with President-Elect Dewey next January in Washington, Vice President-Elect Bricker will bring to the task clean hands, a pure heart—and a wealth of experience in cleaning up a bad mess. Like Dewey, Bricker went into office in a state after a long period of Democratic control in which poor government and bad government were inextricably intertwined.

Taking over in 1938 in the Ohio Statehouse, on the heels of the now notorious Davey crowd, Governor Bricker quickly showed that he had meant what he said when he talked about economy in Government. As one biographer has pointed out, Governor Bricker within a month fired 3,000 State employees without creating a single vacancy.

He not only reorganized the State government in Ohio from the top to the bottom, he revitalized the whole organization with a new enthusiasm to do a better job. Good State workers quickly learned that only the political stragglers and the political patronage-eaters would lose out, that action—not words—counted with John Bricker.

When Bricker took office, Ohio was millions in the "red," and the books were in such shape that few fiscal experts could make heads or tails of the whole thing. After five years as Governor, Bricker could report that Ohio had approximately $100,000,000 socked away for a rainy day. He could further report that taxes have been lowered and that the state was getting a dollar's worth of service for a dollar's worth of expenditures.

Luckily for the American people, "Brick" Bricker, as he has been known to friends since college days, decided to try to enlarge his sphere of usefulness. As the running mate of Governor Dewey, he adds much to the Republican National Ticket.

Eight Ears In One

A short while ago we carried a small advertisement for a gentleman who wanted to correspond with ladies between the ages of 35 and 45 years. A letter received from the gentleman a few days ago said the ad had brought results.

In our last issue we advertised a Chevrolet automobile. The car was sold to one of our subscribers in less than 12 hours after the ad appeared.

A gentleman ran an ad wanting to rent a farm. He received a number of replies, and one man drove a distance of about 25 miles one night to interview him in regard to the ad. There is no doubt but that it pays to advertise in The Record.

A PUBLIC STATEMENT

We desire the public to know that we did not refuse to take a Whitaker child to the hospital who was thought to have infantile paralysis. It has been rumored that we did refuse and this public statement is made to clear up the matter—in justice to ourselves.

We were called and asked to take the child to the hospital in an ambulance. While preparations were being made, we contacted a physician about precautions to be taken from danger of contagion of infantile paralysis by subsequent ambulance patients. We were advised that the child had been taken to the hospital previously in an automobile and that it was wiser to carry the child back by the same transportation—that it could be done safely and without danger.

Later we were called and told that the car which was used for the transportation of the child did not have adequate gas and tires. We immediately offered to furnish gas and tires without any charge. We requested that we be informed when other arrangements were complete for entering the child in the hospital so that we could get the car to provide the necessary gas and tires.

We were not subsequently informed that arrangements had been concluded and were later advised that another ambulance had been used instead of a car.

We feel that the public should know that we were anxious to get the child to the hospital at a personal expense and would of course used an ambulance if no other means of transportation were immediately available. At the same time we were impelled to follow medical advice in prevention of the spread of this fearful disease about which medical science has little about means of contagion. Precaution for the public demands that public vehicles for the transportation of the sick or injured be free of danger of infantile paralysis.

While every person afflicted with infantile paralysis should of course have instantly available all of the resources of the community, at the same time care and caution should be exercised in protecting the public at large—particularly when an ambulance is subject to all kinds of emergencies at any time. Everyone should cooperate and, in our opinion, follow the doctor's advice about saving lives and protecting the health of our community.

Hog Cholera Can Be Properly Treated

Vaccination and Care Essential

Hog cholera is a serious contagious swine disease caused by a virus, which is a substance so small that it cannot be seen through a microscope. It costs a loss of $1,500,000 annually to swine growers, according to a report issued by Clemson Agricultural college.

The symptoms of hog cholera are loss of appetite, high fever, and either constipation or diarrhea. The affected animals usually remain in the bed, but when forced to move, walk with a wobbling gait. The sick pigs usually die within six to ten days but may linger three to four weeks before they die.

The virus which causes hog cholera is present in the body tissues, fluids and excretions of hogs affected with hog cholera. Therefore, food, water, bedding, and soil become contaminated very quickly with blood and bowel eliminations.

If this infected material gets into the digestive tract of susceptible swine, these animals will develop hog cholera in a few days.

Hog cholera is usually spread by moving sick hogs, by moving unvaccinated hogs in contaminated trucks,

Barren, Calif., "blue blood," test and ready to be shipped east to aid in strain improvement. Barbara Williams, 3½, whose father raised the hog, gives it a farewell feeding.

By dogs, buzzards and other animals, by mud and manure carried from infected to noninfected farms on the shoes of individuals, on wheels of farm vehicles, by careless handling of hog cholera virus, by feeding table scraps and garbage which contain hog bones and uncooked pork trimmings and by improper disposal of the carcasses of hogs which have died of hog cholera.

Hog cholera can be prevented by vaccinating healthy animals with adequate amounts of hog cholera vaccine and virus produced by a reputable laboratory. They should be vaccinated when six to seven weeks old.

Corn Cobs Come

Into Their Own

In competition with wood flour as a plastic material, corn cobs should bring the farmers about $20 a ton. While transportation will be the deciding factor, it is planned to establish small mills throughout the country to manufacture the plastic.

While commercial organizations have become interested in research work with corn cob plastics the lead was taken by Dr. O. R. Sweeney of Iowa State college. This work was with waste corn stalks, corn cobs and other waste cellulose in the form available on every farm.

Estimates indicate a market for a million tons of plastic material annually when the work is fully developed and machinery made available. A new drying and grinding plant has been perfected. It takes a supply of four to five thousand tons of corn cobs in a radius of six to eight miles to make an investment in a community drier and grinder practical.

Milkweed in Demand

The extraction of edible oil, chemically similar to soybean oil, is the only one of the new uses to which this weed has been put as a war measure.

In Canada, the milkweed has been a good source of rubber. The leaves from one acre will yield from 200 to 300 pounds of rubber gum.

The floss of milkweed can be converted into a substitute for kapok which is in much demand for life preservers and linings for flying suits. This floss should be picked in early September after the seeds turn brown and before the pods open up.

Plans for Wintering

Satisfactory wintering of beef cows on forest ranges of the south-east is possible if they are given a daily supplemental feed of two pounds of soybean or cottonseed meal per head. This type of feed has been found to stimulate appetite and make for better use of native range. Although meal feeds are on the scarce list, it is pointed out that the supply required is small in proportion to the quantity of beef produced.

Food Problems Can Be Solved By Careful Cooking

Vegetable platters offer light summer eating possibilities. Arrange them in a pretty pattern with green beans or asparagus making a pattern with macaroni in the center and spaces filled in with corn kernels.

There's nothing like good food well prepared. It's a pleasure both to the cook who prepared it and also to the one fortunate enough to eat it.

Proper preparation is a matter of following rules carefully. That's why we have recipes carefully tested and with accurate directions given. Formerly, good cooks put in a lump of butter, a handful of flour, etc., but no one else could cook like they did.

Now we have recipes so that everyone can be a good cook as long as he follows directions. Vegetables, to be perfection itself, must be cooked to doneness with just a bit of crispness left in them. Pies must have a crust with flakiness that will melt in your mouth, with creamy smooth fillings or luscious juicy berry fillings.

Cakes are at their best with fluffy, fine grain texture, well flavored icings or frostings. Ice creams and sherbets should be frozen so that they are creamy and contain no ice particles. And now, to get down to the business of preparing food with results such as I have just described. The first is an ice box cake with chocolate filling:

Chocolate Ice Box Cake.

(Serves 6)

- 4 squares unsweetened chocolate
- ½ cup sugar
- Dash of salt
- ¼ cup hot water
- 4 egg yolks
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten
- 1 cup cream, or evaporated milk
- 2 dozen lady fingers

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sugar, salt and water, stirring until sugar is dissolved and mixture blended. Remove from boiling water; add egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly. Place over boiling water and cook 2 minutes or until thickened, stirring constantly. Add vanilla and fold in egg whites. Chill. Fold in cream.

Line bottom and sides of a mold with lady fingers or strips of sponge cake. Turn chocolate mixture into mold and place remaining lady fingers on top. Chill 12 to 24 hours in refrigerator. If desired, add ½ cup walnut meats to chocolate mixture before turning into mold. Unmold.

There's a short-cut method to making finer, lighter cakes. If you want a real treat in making cakes, try the new method. Be sure ingredients have stood at room temperature for 2 hours or more so that shortening is soft and pliable:

Maraschino Cherry Cake.

- Sift together in a bowl:
- 2½ cups cake flour
- 3, 3¼ or 4 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1½ cups sugar

Add:

- ½ cup shortening

Lynn Says

Point Stretchers: For the vegetable course, combine two left-overs such as lima beans and corn; tomatoes and eggplant; peas and small onions; cauliflower with peas.

Stuffings stretch meats: prune and apple stuffing for roast duckling or veal; celery stuffing for lamb roll; oatmeal stuffing for pinwheel beef roll; and apple stuffing for roast pork or slices of ham.

Potatoes can stretch hamburgers or hash. Or, use leftover mashed or rice potatoes in stretching these meats.

Vegetables can stretch scrambled eggs. Try carrots, celery and onion.

Lynn Chambers' Point-Saving Menu

- *Jellied Veal Loaf
- Corn on the Cob Potato Chips
- Cole Slaw
- Preserved Fruit
- Rye Bread Sandwiches
- *Peach Pie
- *Recipes Given

- ¼ cup maraschino cherry juice
- 16 maraschino cherries, cut into eighths
- ½ cup milk

Mix with electric mixer or by hand with spoon for 2 minutes, by the clock. Scrape bowl frequently. Add:

4 egg whites

Continue beating for 2 minutes, scraping bowl frequently. Fold in ½ cup chopped nuts, if desired. Pour into 2 well-greased and floured 8-inch cake pans. Bake about 30 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven. When cool, ice with boiled or seven minutes icing.

The peach crop looks plentiful and luscious and it seems like part of it should go into those light, fruity pies:

Peach Pie.

- 2 cups sliced peaches
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ¼ cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 teaspoons butter
- Dash of salt
- ¼ teaspoon almond extract
- 1 9-inch baked pastry shell

Sprinkle peaches with lemon juice and sugar. Cook slowly to extract juice. Mix juice with cornstarch and blend. Cook over low heat until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from fire. Add butter, salt and almond extract. Add peaches. Pour into pastry shell. Chill. Garnish with cream or piped meringue if desired.

Chocolate Ice Box cake can go back on menus again for those summer meals with light main course. Use either lady fingers or strips of sponge cake for the base of the cake.

Veal is a simple and economical meat, but elegant if properly prepared in this chilled loaf style:

Jellied Veal Loaf.

- 1 veal knuckle
- 1 pound veal shoulder
- 1 onion
- 2 eggs
- 9 pimiento olives
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

Have the veal knuckle sawed in 3 or 4 places. Simmer the knuckle, veal, onion and seasonings in water, cover until veal is tender, about 2 hours. Chop veal fine. Garnish the bottom of the loaf pan with sliced hard-cooked eggs and sliced pimiento. Add chopped veal. Strain the broth and cook until reduced to 1 cupful. Pour over meat, add salt and Worcestershire sauce. Press meat firmly into pan. Chill. Unmold and serve with preserved fruit and cole slaw in lettuce cups.

A sauce to go with fish or vegetables is Hollandaise. Here is a quick-made recipe:

Hollandaise Sauce.

- 4 eggs
- ½ cup melted butter
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- ¾ cup boiling water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Stir egg yolks, adding melted butter gradually. Season with salt and paprika. Add boiling water, stirring constantly. Place in double boiler and cook until thickened. Remove from fire. Add lemon juice and serve immediately.

To Hollandaise sauce to serve over fish, add one of the following:

- ½ cup chopped pimiento olives
- ½ cup capers
- ½ cup chopped tart pickles

If you wish additional instruction for canning fruit or berries, write to Miss Lynn Chambers, 210 South Desplaine Street, Chicago 6, Illinois. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

THE PROPHET IN THE LIFE OF ISRAEL

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 3:19-21; 7:3-12. GOLDEN TEXT—He that hath my word, let him speak my word faithfully.—Jeremiah 23:28.

Remarkably up-to-date is the helpful guidance found in this lesson. When our nation finds itself facing those other nations which would destroy our Christian faith, and we know that we need the key both to a true victory and a satisfactory peace, the message of this scripture comes with fine helpfulness.

The prophet Samuel (who was also priest and judge) served God in ruling his people at a time when they were under the hard heel of the Philistines. The way out of oppression was revealed in God's Word, which brought revival and deliverance—which was not forgotten in the day of triumph.

I. God's Word Declared (3:19-21). While a prophet had the ministry of foretelling, his chief work was forth-telling. He told of the future, but his larger ministry was to declare the message of God. As Samuel did this in faithful devotion to the Lord, there was the immediate blessing of God which established the prophet throughout the whole land.

Those who are timid about "limiting" their ministry (imagine that!) to the Bible should learn of Samuel, that it is the only really effective message. God will not "let you down" if you teach and preach His Word. He let none of Samuel's "words fall to the ground" (v. 19) and He will not desert us as we give forth His truth.

Note that the Lord Himself came to strengthen and encourage Samuel (v. 21). He is just as gracious to His servants today. He comes to them in that blessed strengthening fellowship which stirs their hearts and fires them anew with holy determination.

II. Man's Heart Revived (7:3-6). The response of the people to Samuel's message was of their sin and idolatry. They proved the reality of their repentance by putting away their heathen gods.

Such repentance and appropriate action is a prerequisite to spiritual revival. God cannot give us His blessing if we hold on to our sin and idolatry.

Note how the revival expressed itself. They gathered together and prayed (vv. 5, 6). Spiritual life thrives on the gathering together of God's people. The crisis in Israel was met by a convocation of the people. We need to revive the great soul-stirring religious gatherings of a generation ago. Go yourself, and encourage others to go. Let the fire of God burn, and let those who meet scatter far and wide as brands which will light new fires.

"I will pray," said Samuel. He was a great intercessor (I Sam. 15:11, Ps. 90:6; Jer. 15:1). Revival starts in the faithful intercession of a burdened heart. Should we not ask ourselves, "Have I really prayed for revival in my church, my city, and my country?"

III. A Nation Delivered (7:7-11). "Cry unto God . . . he will save us," was the word of Samuel. They cried, and He did! "The Lord thundered with a great thunder," and discomfited the enemies of Israel.

In these days of warfare we might well cry out, "Lord, do it again," thunder upon our enemies and defeat them in such a way that they and we shall see that it was the hand of God and not of meat (See Ps. 20:7).

That is one thing for which we might well pray, for "behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear" (Isa. 59:1).

Seeing Israel at prayer, the enemy took advantage of them and attacked. In the previous battle at this very spot (see last Sunday's lesson) Israel had been defeated because they had fought with the weapons of man. Now, with God's weapons of prayer and faith, they had glorious victory.

IV. God's Mercy Remembered (7:12). Samuel raised a stone of remembrance, to remind Israel in the years to come that the Lord had been their help. A defeated, disheartened, sinful people had turned to God in repentance and faith, and God had given them victory. They must never forget His mercy.

One of the great concerns of thinking men in our day is the fear that victory may come to us before we are spiritually and morally ready to receive it. If it does, we shall see a mad rush into excesses of all kinds, a bold glorying in our own ability and power, and even greater forgetfulness of God.

What America needs now is a deep going spiritual revival which will both prepare us for a God-given victory, and for the peace which is to follow.

When you have an old clock that refuses to run any more, it can be used in a sick room to tell when it is time for the next dose of medicine by moving the hands to the time it is to be taken. This makes it easy to remember.

A little paraffin on a sticky window cord will be found helpful.

A handy receptacle for sundry tacks, nails and screws that will be polite to your fingers, is a large cork kept in the kitchen cutlery drawer for convenience.

When having difficulty in opening a fruit jar with a metal top, place it upside down in hot water and leave for a minute or two and try again. The metal top will usually expand and loosen readily.

Place This Attractive Sofa on Your Budget

YOU can buy a bond and have this sofa too, and that is about as near to having your cake and eating it as anything I know of. It is built around an old cot but it is smart and substantial and has a back and ends and soft reversible cushions.

The frame is the trick. The rest is the simplest sort of slipcovering job with loose cushions made to fit. The sketch shows exactly how the frame is made though you may have to substitute other materials according to what is available. Any sort of wallboard or composition board or even a damaged piece of plywood will do to nail over the framework of lumber; and it is not essential that the back be made double as shown here.

NOTE—This sofa idea is from BOOK # which Mrs. Spears has prepared for readers. This 32-page booklet also gives full details for transforming many other old pieces of furniture and step-by-step directions for repairing sagging springs are illustrated. RHEUMATIC PAIN

Just rub a little of this on the sore spot. Don't put off getting C-223 to relieve pain of muscular rheumatism and other rheumatic pains. Caution: Use only as directed. First bottle purchase price back if not satisfied. 60c and $1.00. Today, buy C-223.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The reason for the great demand for tires and other rubber products for military motor equipment is evident when it is realized that today's infantry divisions require 3,500 ordnance vehicles of 160 different varieties. The same size outfit in World War I was equipped with 4,400 horses and 153 ordnance motor vehicles.

Because of the poor condition of tires and other parts, 43 per cent more cars had breakdowns and had to be towed from the tunnels beneath New York's Hudson River in 1943 than in any peacetime year, although traffic was 28 per cent lower than in 1941.

Be Well Dressed—
Save Bond Money

Pinafores have come out of the nursery and taken the place they deserve in fashion. Besides being flattering and practical for warm weather, they are easy to make, an ideal choice for a beginner's sewing project. The ruffled, be-ribboned pinafore pictured here is especially beguiling, and can be worn with or without a blouse. Make it yourself and put the money you save into War Bonds. The pattern may be secured at your local store. Back the Attack—Buy More Than Before.

U. S. Treasury Department

To the People of this Community

There are many urgent reasons for buying War Bonds. First, the invasion needs money. Bonds pay for planes and guns and munitions with which to beat the Axis. Our fighting men must have the best possible equipment and it is up to us to let our money provide this.

A second reason is this: There is a shortage of goods now. Later on there will be plenty for civilian desires. Money put into War Bonds now will be available then. Business opportunities will be open then, too, and the "nest egg" saved now may hatch out commercially then. Money put into War Bonds now will be deprived of its current potentiality as a part of the causes of inflation. You will be doing your part toward stabilizing the money situation by buying Bonds instead of dwindling stocks. That is a third reason.

But the best reason from a selfish viewpoint is this: Right now there is no better investment than War Bonds. There is no safer repository for your money. By buying Bonds you become a stockholder in the strongest "going" concern in the world today, the United States of America.

A smile no Nazi torpedo can wipe off. Marion Porter, Steward 3/e, who hails from Spartanburg, S. C., was in the water three hours after his ship was torpedoed in the Mediterranean. A 20 mm shell case was thrown against his leg when the tin fish hit and fractured it badly. Now he is waiting for his injury to heal so that he can get another crack at the Axis.

The going is tough in the jungles of Rendova in the Solomon Islands. Marine Pfc. David Phelps of Bridgeport, Conn., was thrown from a reconnaissance car and received a fractured right leg and compound fracture of the left. But Phelps is pulling through as you can see here. Phelps is twenty-two.

This is Seaman 1/c Melachi H. Rich, of Quitman, Georgia. He is only 18 but a veteran of action in the Mediterranean. The destroyer escort on which he served was torpedoed and he was hit in the spine. For weeks he could not move his feet but can move one foot pretty well. Four buddies are in hospital. They were all rescued by a sister ship.

This poignant picture made by an Army Signal Corps photographer shows a kneeling Roman mother and her child gently and reverently placing flowers over the still forms of two American boys who paid the supreme price to liberate them from the Nazi and Fascist grip. Look at their faces and you will see that both mother and child realize that these Americans died for them. Bless The Lord

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hiddenite, N. C.

In the 103rd Psalm we read: "Bless the Lord, of my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name." This is a Psalm of David. Surely he was living close to God when he wrote this marvelous, wonderful Psalm of praise, of adoration and reverence. He loved the Lord, and he was enumerating the blessings that God was bestowing upon him, he appealed to his inmost soul when he said: "All that is within me, bless His holy name."

Why should we not continually bless the holy name of our God, praise, reverence and adore Him? Think of the many blessings He is bestowing upon us from day today, and of the many favors He grants unto us. Every blessing we receive comes from Him. He is the giver of all good things. He created us in His own image and likeness, crowned us with glory and honor, placing on us just a little lower plane than the angels. We are indeed "fearfully and wonderfully made." Man is the supremely created being of earth. He stands above all other creatures. And God loves us, honors us and blesses us above every being throughout the earth. Glory to His holy name.

If people would continually bless the name of the Lord everywhere, and especially Christians, it is unknown how God would uplift us in our hearts, souls and lives. Not only would we be much happier, but we would wield a powerful influence over sinners in bringing them to the Lord Jesus Christ, meanwhile bringing glory to our heavenly Father. If multitudes would completely change the contents of their hearts and souls, and continually bless and praise God instead of fret, murmur, worry and complain, it would be glorious. They would have far better health, would enjoy life far better, would be far sweeter in their souls, with all bitterness taken out, would live longer, and life would be far brighter and sunnier, and they could bring salvation to multitudes of lost souls, and God would get honor and glory. If multitudes of people would go to blessing and praising God from day to day, from hour to hour, thousands of homes would be happier, families would be held together, husbands and wives would get along better, as it would take the irritableness and unpleasantness out of homes, and they would seem much akin to heaven. Try it and see. This is life's better way. "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name."

The Little Tin Cans

The little tin cans that have been so patriotically salvaged by the good women in American kitchen have been diverted from the war effort and have now gone on a drunk to the far corners of the world.

Yes, the well-meaning effort of our women, and their untiring desire to be of help to the boys over there have become as sounding brass and tinkling cymbals.

And for this insult against all our efforts, we are indebted to the WPB for releasing metals for one billion cans to be filled with beer for shipment overseas. From now on, when we go into a ten cent store looking for a little medal gadget that we used to get for the asking and now fail, we will think of these billions of cans now sailing the seven seas. Constancy is still a jewel!—Ex.

A Massachusetts editor reports that in the Bay State "Don't change horses in the middle of the stream" has been revised to read "Let's change horses and cross the stream."

Just Like Folks

For 10 days with pick and shovel sixty men are said to have worked at the job of excavating a coon dog from a cave near Monterey, Mo. Their efforts were successful and old Drive, hound belonging to Henry Light, bids fair to recover in time for the fall hunting.

Is this positive proof of man's love for his best friend or conclusive evidence that Missouri people, whose lusty singing of "Makes no difference if he is a houn," you gotta quit kick'n," my dawg around," featured Champ Clark's nearly successful campaign for the Democratic nomination in 1912, are any tender of their dogs than the rest of us? We doubt it.

Of the 60 we concede there might have been a scant half a dozen who were concerned for either Drive or Henry; the rest of the lot, we bet you, slighted home or farm work in a belief that somebody would make a movie or a ballad of the affair, or just for the novelty of it.

Women folks, too, were toting coffee, sandwiches and pies to cheer the men on, but do you reckon many of these were of the type who really get provoked at themselves if the wash is not on the line before taking-out time on Monday or who sweep the yard while waiting on soft-soap to boil?—Greensboro Daily News.

Time For Change

It isn't at all surprising nor is it unexpected that New Dealers' proponents should lose no time getting out the mud balls to hurl at Governor Dewey, or any other candidate that might have been put forth by the Republican Party. So much mud has been heaved at the GOP in the past twelve years another plastering won't make much difference. The fact still remains, the definite swing away from the New Deal has the boys worried and it can be confidently expected this time that many a mud ball will contain a brick.

The biggest howl will undoubtedly come from those who feed, financially, at the public trough. To them it's like a dentist bearing down on an exposed nerve and their groans will be heard reading. They'll cuss Hoover, who isn't a candidate for anything, to high heaven for exercising the rights of any citizen to express his views, they'll belabor Dewey "because he isn't keeping faith with the people of New York" by not staying on the job, forgetting Roosevelt was a Governor and campaigned for the Vice Presidency years ago and then they'll even bring out the Boy Scout charge on Dewey, forgetting twelve years ago when the President was all for ousting members of the Supreme Court because they were old men, a state in life in which he himself is now engulfed. He was for youth and vigor at the time but then he was twelve years younger.—Davis, Calif., Enterprise

If we are to have a government of the people and for the people" it must be a "government by the people."

Watch For Your Check

Declaring that every effort is being made to expedite refunds on 1943 income tax returns C. H. Robertson, Collector of Internal Revenue, said refund checks are being mailed to taxpayers of the North Carolina District at the rate of 3,000 per week.

"To every taxpayer of this district who is entitled to a refund on his 1943 return, I would like to say," Collector Robertson stated, "your refund is being processed as rapidly as possible. I cannot tell you exactly when your refund will come through, because it might be today and it might not be for a few months. But I can promise you that you will be paid interest at the rate of six per cent per year for every month your refund is delayed after March 15."

Throughout the country we have about 18,000,000 refunds to make. In each case, the return must be compared with employers' withholding tax receipts and other documents. In many cases, returns contain errors that must be corrected.

"This involves a tremendous amount of work that must be done with a comparatively small staff, due to wartime manpower shortages. Obviously, the entire 18,000,000 refunds cannot be completed at the same time, and some taxpayers must wait another few months."

"However, a million checks are being distributed every three weeks and so you can see that, in your case, you may get your refund fairly soon."

Collector Robertson suggested that taxpayers refrain from writing letters to inquire about their refunds, because, in fairness to all taxpayers, the checks are being written in the order in which they are mechanically processed, and it is impossible to determine the status of any individual case without disrupting and slowing up the whole procedure.

However, if a taxpayer has changed his address since he filed his return, he should advise the collector of both his old and new address.

A Mere $250,000

Senator Alben W. Barkley says that the "difference between $15,000,000 and $15,250,000 is rather inconsequential" and, of course Senator McKellar agrees with him. No wonder we can't get the truth about spending in Latin America as long as the New Deal is in power.

Far From Indispensable

The New Dealers say Franklin D. Roosevelt is the one man the nation can't do without in winning the war. Washington newspaper correspondents, noted for their disinterested attitudes, say he is only "show" man when it comes to usefulness in Washington.

Look Magazine recently made a survey of opinion of Washington correspondents asking whom they considered to be the most useful Washington official.

Was Roosevelt first? Not on your life.

Was Roosevelt second? Not at all. Franklin D. Roosevelt was THIRD man in the race.

In other words, Franklin D. Roosevelt is very indispensable. He can be done without.

First most useful man, according to the correspondents, was a soldier General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff. Second most useful man, according to the correspondents, was Cordell Hull, Secretary of State.

The same survey made a poll to determine the 10 least useful persons in Washington. Among those getting high score were Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor; Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury; Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of the Treasury; Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture; Henry A. Wallace, Vice President of the United States; Frances Biddle, Attorney General—the majority of Roosevelt Cabinet.

Also voted among the ten least useful were: John E. Rankin, Democrat Representative from Mississippi; Harry L. Hopkins, special assistant to the President; Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic Senator from Pennsylvania, and Paul V. McNutt, director of the Federal Security Agency.—Ohio Republican News.

Mule Survives Flood Of 1916, Still Plows

There is a mule on the farm of W. Knox Huffman, in rural Catawba county, that has lived a long and eventful life. The old boy, 28 years old, was swept down river for 12 miles in the memorable flood of 1916 but lived to plow many a row of cotton in the years afterwards.

Joe Puckett, a worker with the Catawba soil conservation service, found out about the mule last week when he was working on a farm in Oxford community, where Huffman lives.

It seems the mule colt was born in Watauga county. When he was just four months old, he and his mother were swept into a flooded river as the water rushed down from the mountains of Watauga. The mother was drowned, but some twelve miles down the river some spectators saw the head of a young mule bobbing along through the water and they dragged the little fellow out. He was taken back to his master and some time later was sold to the Catawba county man.

The old mule is still plugging along, doing his best to help the war effort through production of food and feedstuff.

Little Business Hit

Approximately 70,000 retail stores have closed since Pearl Harbor, mostly among family-operated firms and those employing only a few people. The principal reasons for closing are: shortage of help, lack of supplies, difficulties due to rationing and the many Government reports that must be filed.

As the trump to Mr. Roosevelt's new slogan, "Win the War," the Cullman, Ala., Tribune suggests that "the Republicans adopt for their 1944 campaign 'Win the Peace.' What will it profit Americans to win the war and lose the peace?"

Vote Getting Compromise

When the Bankhead bill to increase price on textiles was before the Senate, OPA Administrator Chester Bowles and the New Dealers fought it tooth-and-nail. It was, they said, "highly inflation."

But when the White House gave the word it needed more votes for the fourth-term drive, the New Deal compromised on price control and a bill was passed giving the OPA administrator power to grant increases where needed. Since that action was taken, several major increases in textile prices have taken place.

This is what is called "holding the line against vote losses."

Bureaucratic Immunity

A New York housewife hired a young woman as part-time maid through the United States Employment Service. A few minutes after the maid reported for work the housewife went up to the roof for a sun bath. When she returned both the maid and a purse containing $18 were gone.

The housewife, who had forgotten the maid's name, called the USES. She was told that it would be against regulations to tell either the name or address. Only in the event of an infraction of the Social Security Act, violation of the Federal Income Tax law, forging a Social Security benefit check, or illegal action by a Social Security employee could that information be given out. Not even the FBI could budge USES from that firm stands, which was backed up by the War Manpower Commission.

Mayor LaGuardia called the regulation "cocked-eyed." We agree, and then some. We also think that the regulation should be amended before someone, tempted by this bureaucratic immunity, commits a more serious crime than the theft of $18.—Muncie, Ind., Press.

ADMIRAL KING SLAPS

Insiders now admit that friction between Secretary of the Navy Forrestal and Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Ernie King is just as bad as it was between King and the late Frank Knox—or worse.

Knox and Admiral King rubbed each other raw. King used to go over the head of the secretary of the navy, even overruled him regarding the navy's new gray summer uniform, which Knox—and most navy men—opposed.

When Forrestal became secretary of the navy, it was hoped that relations would be harmonious. Last week, however, Admiral King publicly gave his chief an adroit slap-down.

Forrestal, Admiral King and fighting Admiral Halsey were holding a joint press conference. The secretary of the navy was asked if he had any comment on the fall of the Tojo cabinet. He replied that navy personnel, including himself, were not supposed to comment on politics.

Whereupon Admiral King interrupted and, almost as if the secretary of the navy were a little boy, corrected him.

"I will comment on that," he announced, despite Forrestal's statement that political matters were not for comment by navy personnel. "Obviously, the cabinet would not have fallen unless there was dissatisfaction on the part of military leaders with the conduct of the war. The Japanese can be expected to continue to wage war with all the powers they possess."

Secretary Forrestal took the admiral's remarks—interpreted by those present as an indirect slap-down—without saying a word.

VETERAN STRUGGLE

One of the most important behind-the-scenes struggles for postwar power is now being waged between the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Actually, the Veterans of Foreign Wars are in a better position than the Legion to get a head start on recruiting veterans of World War II. The VFW charter from congress permits recruiting men before they are discharged, while the Legion must wait until a man leaves the service before recruiting him.

Fact is the VFW has picked up more than 400,000 new members since Pearl Harbor, while the Legion's gains have been relatively paltry. At the start of the war, the Legion had more than one million members, the VFW only a quarter million. But today the VFW magazine has the largest overseas circulation of any non-governmental publication, is now read by 300,000 men monthly. As a result, VFW is picking up members at the rate of 5,000 a week, while Legion officials fret, plan their own recruiting drive later.

One reason for VFW success has been a policy of tacitly bucking the American Legion on key policy matters. VFW helped paint the Legion as "anti-labor," then turned around and attempted to arrange a deal whereby all CIO and AFL members in the service would join the VFW instead of the Legion when they left the service. More than two million union men are in the service.

However, labor has not fallen for the bait. Instead, trade-union chapters of the American Legion are being rapidly built up to help combat any anti-union feelings of returning servicemen.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars also made "hay" with a speech delivered by national Legion Commander Warren Atherton in the South Pacific area recently. Atherton debunked the idea that men in the front lines fighting the Japs want furloughs home. The VFW immediately took advantage of this statement, set up a terrific howl for overseas furloughs, soon found membership applications pouring in.

SITUATION IN GERMANY

Uncensored military and political dispatches reaching the diplomatic corps reveal that the German army is defeated and that fat Hermann Goering, father of the Luftwaffe, may soon rise as the German "man on horseback" to try to make peace with the Allies.

This dramatic turn of events catches Franklin Roosevelt plotting Pacific strategy while the biggest break of the war is coming 5,000 miles away in Europe. Whether Roosevelt does anything more about it or not, however, you can write it down that Hitler and company are through. It's just a question of how much Germany can salvage before the last shot is fired.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The Berlin radio beamed to America tried a new propaganda trick the other night. An announcer, introducing a newscaster, said, "The views of this commentator do not necessarily reflect the views of this station."

Army air corps officials say that Jacqueline Cochran, head of the WASPs, barges into their offices, pounds on their desks, says, "I used to work in a factory, I know what the little people want," then delivers ultimatums about her lady fiers.

Burma Road Remains Important Military Object

This section of the Burma road in China was taken by a signal corps photographer. The China-Burma-India theater of war contains 24 switchbacks as shown in this photograph. Even before America entered the war, engineers from American military and civil life were cooperating with the Chinese in the improvement and development of this highway system. The road is essential to China. It serves as the only line of communication, outside of air, that serves a vast portion of the country. The road has been under air bombardment almost continually since the start of the Chinese-Japanese war.

America's Answer to Nazi—Rocket Projectiles

Loading Projectile

Rocket Armament of P-47

P-47 Thunderbolt has eight deadly .50-caliber machine guns in addition to the new rocket gun armament. Special training has been given the ground crew as well as members who operate the rocket guns.

America's answer to the Nazi flying bomb has been the further development of the new rocket gun armament on the huge P-47, which not only can do as much damage as the flying bomb, but actually does many times as much, for the bombs can be accurately placed.

Clothing Survives Flying Bombs

English families are pictured salvaging some of the clothing and hosiery still intact, after a Nazi flying bomb had wrecked a big outfitter's store in southern England. The goods were said to have been scattered far and wide by the force of the blast. Some 5,000 of these bombs have fallen in England.

FIGURES from the nation's race tracks are sufficient evidence that horse racing has lost none of its popularity.

With the season about half gone for many of the major tracks, betting totals are high enough to indicate that just about every record will be broken in 1944. The present betting spree is unprecedented in American thoroughbred history.

Just seven years ago the parimutuel tracks totaled a fancy $266,000,000. That amount was even greater than many an enthusiast had predicted, but the follow-up has been little short of phenomenal.

Each year, since 1938, the betting handle has increased. In 1939 it mounted to $291,000,000, and in 1940 climbed to $408,000,000. Racing officials thought that the 1943 mark of $705,000,000 would stand for quite some time, but with the 1944 season slightly more than six months old, it is obvious that all records are to be shattered thoroughly.

Heavy Gains Reported

The country's biggest tracks are operating on a colossal basis. New York, Chicago, New England, California and Detroit all report heavy gains. More than a billion dollars will have been wagered by bettors before the season's end.

It should be remembered, too, that this total is the legalized betting at the tracks. It has been estimated that at least an equal amount is wagered with illegal handbooks throughout the nation.

When New York's season passed the halfway mark as the Saratoga 30-day meet opened, indications were that by mid-November at least $400,000,000 will have been wagered, and the state treasury enriched by some $27,000,000.

The New York estimate is based on the assumption that the second half of the season will be comparable to the first. When the Empire season ended, marking the halfway point, the total betting for 96 days (97 were originally scheduled but races were cancelled on D-Day) came to $208,038,623. If the second half of the campaign equals the first, the total would reach $416,077,246. And there is every reason to believe that betting won't fall off at any of the major tracks.

During 1942 the average Detroit racing fan bet $26.96 every time he went to the Fair Grounds to aid in the improvement of the breed. In 1943 this average went up to $33.50. But in 1944 the average jumped to $39.04 and is still mounting.

New York Average

However, New York continues to stay ahead in matters of horse racing.

During the racing at Jamaica, it was figured that the fans averaged $72 a day. When the New York races were shifted to Belmont, the average jumped between $92 and $100 a person.

Race track operators are quick to realize that such huge figures may in time work against them in the form of increased taxes. They have attempted to solve this problem by making huge contributions to war relief agencies.

During 1943 these war relief contributions totaled $8,618,480.86.

According to John N. Sabo, Detroit turf editor, more than $160,000,000 is invested in race tracks, horses and big breeding farms. The estimated value of the horses racing in the United States today is $55,000,000.

"Actually," Sabo writes, "under present-day high prices of thoroughbreds, the total is greater. Horses which cost $1,500 two or three years ago now are unobtainable at twice that figure."

"A good indication is the racer Pericles which William A. Hellis of New Orleans purchased for $66,000 as an untired yearling."

The 'Racing Sky'

It wasn't so long ago that racing officials were having more than their share of trouble. The sport was being condemned quite widely as a wartime luxury—something that could be eliminated from the national scene without loss to morale. The tracks were making big money. And they were a bit slow about contributing their share to war relief organizations.

The contributions made by the tracks have been impressive, but not out of proportion. Racing is big business—and extremely profitable. The sport not only can afford to be generous, it must be generous. It is too dependent upon the public's good will to be anything else.

SPORTS SHORTS

Cleveland sport fans have donated $15,000 to a fund to provide playing equipment and free medical care to sandlot ballplayers in the city.

The president of the newly formed Pacific Coast professional football league, J. Rufus Klawns, got his start playing under A. A. Stagg at the University of Chicago in 1909.

The first no-hit, no-run game in the American Association this season was hurled by Walter Brown of Toledo, to defeat Milwaukee, 1-0. Brown walked four men.

Davie County Schools Will Not Open Aug. 28th

The Davie County Schools will not open until such time as Dr. Carl V. Reynolds and local health authorities consider it safe for schools to open in this county, it was decided by the Davie County Board of Education in a regular meeting on Monday, Aug. 14th. Previously the board had set August 28th as a tentative opening date. The new decision may mean that the schools will open on September 18th, however, should conditions improve it is possible that the opening date may be set earlier than September 18th. The local school authorities have no inclination to take any chances with the dread disease and indicated a full co-operation with Dr. Carl V. Reynolds in the matter of school openings. As soon as the polio situation develops so that an intelligent decision can be reached as to an opening date, all teachers will be notified by letter from the office of the County Superintendent of Schools.

Parents Urged to Co-Operate in Keeping Children From Public Places

While expressing appreciation of the fine spirit of co-operation shown by parents of children in Davie County, members of the Davie County Board of Health are urging parents to continue to keep children 15 years old and younger away from public places. Parents are urged especially to refrain from making visits out of the county into areas where they may be exposed to polio cases or carriers. It is also urged that visits of people from other areas be avoided if possible. Davie County has been fortunate so far, and it is hoped that the citizens will continue to show the same fine spirit of co-operation that has been in evidence since the announcement of the ban on public meetings several weeks ago.

Davie Teachers Elected

Practically all vacancies in the Davie County schools have been filled according to an announcement from the office of the County Superintendent today. The final allotment of teachers has been received from the State Board of Education giving Davie County 100 State allotted teachers. The county lost five teachers this year on the basis of average daily attendance. Two teachers were lost from the Mocksville school, one was lost from the Advance school, one from the Farmington school, and one from the Liberty colored school.

Teachers are allotted by State Board of Education on the basis of average daily attendance. The county statistical report for 1943-44 shows a decline of 194 in the average daily attendance for the year and a decline of 189 in the average daily membership. The total average daily membership for the year 1943-44 was 3,016 against an average daily membership of 3,205 for the preceding year. The percentage of membership in attendance for 1943-44 was 94%. This is a very high percentage and is thought to be considerably above the average for the State as a whole. It is understood that practically all counties in the State are losing teachers this year because of the decline of enrollment and attendance.

Davie County has been especially fortunate in securing replacements to fill the vacancies in teaching positions and in principalships. At the time this article was written there were five vacancies in the county schools but it is understood that the position of principal of the Advance school and one teacher in the same school have been filled and further announcement will be made pending release from present positions. It is understood that the school officials have in hand sufficient applications to fill all vacancies. No other resignations are expected since under State law teachers are not allowed to resign 30 days before the opening of school.

The complete list of teachers and the schools in which they are expected to teach is as follows:

Also Army Air Field, Victoria, Texas—With the graduation of Class 44 G from Aloe Field and other single engine, advanced flying schools throughout the AAF's Central Flying Training Command, another group of fighter pilots joined the ranks of the mighty United States Army Air Forces. At Aloe, these new flying officers mastered the art of military flying. Here they learned to fly the famed Texan trainer and received many long hours of instruction in formation, night and instrument flying as well as numerous ground school subjects.

The majority of the graduates will return to Aloe Field as flying officers to pursue a course in aerial gunnery and transition training in fast, modern fighting planes. Lack of Machinery Calls for Sharing

Million of Workers Needed for '44 Harvest

With the harvest season well under way in most farming areas, the problem of getting enough labor and machinery to do the job at the right time is again present.

With little or no prospect of more large combines and labor-saving equipment for having this season, the War Food administration is urging small grain producers to make the greatest possible use of existing machinery. Owners of combines available for custom work will have to help their neighbors to insure harvest of the crop. Sharing of all types of equipment will be necessary, says WFA, but the production schedules have run far behind on heavy machinery.

Custom use of large combines and the more expensive types of haying machines would be necessary even if manufacturers had completed their production schedules on time, it is pointed out, as a result of curtailed manufacture since the beginning of the war and the failure of some old machines to carry through. Production of corn pickers was reported as lagging in late spring, but there were prospects of a step-up before the harvest. Shortages of manpower for manufacturing plants and of component parts for the machines are reported as largely responsible for production delays.

Emphasis is also being given to the need for keeping old machines in tip-top condition. While most farmers will have checked over their equipment before harvest time, to avoid breakdowns after the beginning of the work season, frequent check-ups during the period of operation are also essential to efficient use.

It is anticipated that some four million volunteer urban workers will be required to complete the harvest, as farm population is at a 30-year low and those remaining on farms used every bit of help they can get. Farm labor requirements are based on farm production goals, set at another record-breaking level for 1944.

Requirements for volunteer farm labor are for two million men, 1,200,000 boys and girls, and 800,000 women. In addition to increased use of women and part-time workers, and intensive local community recruiting drives, labor recruitments include more imported labor from Mexico, Jamaica, the Bahamas and other nearby countries, and a number of available prisoners of war.

Processing plants handling large quantities of the food produced by America's farmers are also in need of some 750,000 part-time workers before the end of the year.

Farm Income Moving

Toward a New High

After reaching a record high figure in 1943, farm cash income has continued to show expansion in 1944, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. Although government benefit payments during the first quarter dropped to $224,000,000 this year from $271,000,000 last year, this decrease was more than offset by a gain in receipts from marketings.

Total farm income in the first quarter this year amounted to $4,511,000,000 as against $3,968,000,000 in the same period last year, an increase of 13.7 per cent. The increase in receipts from sales was due partly to a 5.3 per cent higher price level for farm products and partly to a gain of 10.1 per cent in the quantity sold.

The price level of goods which the farmers bought was 8.0 per cent higher than a year ago in the first quarter. This was more than offset by the gain in income and, consequently, the farmers' purchasing power showed a 5.2 per cent rise. This gain in purchasing power, however, was made in the first two months. In March, the farmers' purchasing power was slightly smaller than a year ago, thus providing support to the present expectation that the farmers' purchasing power for the year as a whole will be smaller than in 1943 despite a record high income in 1944.

The farmers' cash income in 1944 is now estimated at $20,011,000,000 as compared with the previous high record of $19,764,000,000 in 1943. The increase which is now indicated will be sufficient to offset the prospective higher price level of goods bought by the farmers. Consequently, the outlook is that the farmers' purchasing power in 1944 will be 3.4 per cent smaller than in 1943.

Bacon Sandwiches Make Grand Outdoor Eating

(See Recipes Below)

Picnic Tips

There's nothing like the great outdoors to produce great appetites. And there's nothing that tastes so good as food eaten in the great wide spaces in sand, under the pines amid the smoke of a fire.

Our recipes and suggestions today are designed to fit those who want to do part of their cooking at home, and finish when they arrive at the picnic. It is easy to lay out a well spread when everything is well organized and planned ahead.

You'll like the recipes because they're not fancy. They do make for some downright good eating, though, and will give you a grand experience in outdoors eating.

Food is best packed in hamper or tied in cloth. It's easiest to carry that way. If you have anything breakable, use a metal container.

Best Type of Fire

For those of you who want to cook outdoors, use the trapper type of fire. Never start cooking until the wood has burned and is a bed of glowing red coals.

To make this type of fire, place 2 medium sized logs (green) 6 to 8 inches apart. Between these set up dry twigs and shavings. Carry something that will make the fire start easily, a bit of tissue paper with a few dry twigs. The logs can be adjusted to fit the cooking utensil.

Our recipe round-up starts with the favorite hamburgers. If you snuggle in the extra cheese, you'll like the flavor:

All-American Hamburgers.

(Serves 6)

1½ pounds hamburger

¼ cup milk

1 teaspoon salt

Dash of pepper

¼ pound American cheese

4 tablespoons butter

6 buttered buns

Mix meat with milk, salt and pepper. Form 12 thin patties, of the meat about 3 inches in diameter. Cut 6 slices of cheese slightly smaller than meat patties and place the cheese in between the meat patties, sandwich-fashion. Seal edges well. Melt butter in a skillet and fry the patties slowly for 10 to 15 minutes. Serve on toasted buns.

Hot Cheese Frankfurters.

(Serves 10)

20 frankfurters

¼ pound sharp cheese

Split frankfurters lengthwise and fill with long strips of cheese. Wind a strip of bacon, spirally, around each frankfurter and fasten at ends with toothpicks. Toast on forks or long-handled toasters over fire until bacon is browned and cheese is melted. Place in a hot toasted roll and serve with relish.

Creamy Scrambled Eggs.

(Serves 6)

6 eggs

Lynn Says
Campfire Ory: Make sure the drinking water is safe on your camping trip. Boiled water always is, sparkling water isn't necessarily.

A hole dug in the earth in the shade of the tree, lined with small stones makes a nice outdoor refrigerator. Moist caves, shallow underground streams, small drops or falls are all good "refrigerators."

Be sure to put your campfire out. Water is the best thing, soil next best.

A canoe paddle makes an excellent bread board or a checker board! Paint squares for checkers and play with cookies or candies.

Lynn Chambers' Picnic Menu

*Bacon Sandwich

*Roasted Corn Cherry Tomatoes

Cocoa

*Rocks Fresh Fruit

*Recipes Given

½ teaspoon salt

4 tablespoons butter

¾ cup diced American cheese

If desired

Beat the eggs well. Add salt and pepper, if desired. Melt butter in heavy skillet and pour eggs into pan, stirring well as the mixture begins to thicken. When eggs are partially cooked, add cheese. Serve on toast when thick. Do not overcook.

Bacon is a grand outdoor appetite tempter. It is also an important concentrated source of food energy that you'll need after working hard outdoors.

If you are frying bacon at the picnic, then this is the best method to follow: Place the strips in a cold skillet over a low fire. Turn frequently until all parts of bacon are evenly crisp but not brittle. Do not let fat smoke. For extra crispness, drain off the fat as the bacon cooks.

Bacon Sandwich.

To make delectable sandwiches, fry the bacon as directed above with thick slices of fried onion and tomatoes served on toasted buns.

Have you caught some fish? Nothing will taste better than a chowder made in a chowder kettle over a bed of coals:

Fish Chowder.

(Serves 6)

5 slices bacon, diced

3 medium onions, diced

2 pounds fresh fish, boned

2 teaspoons salt

1 teaspoon pepper

5 to 6 medium potatoes, sliced or diced

1 quart milk

4 tablespoons butter

2 tablespoons flour

Fry bacon and onion together until onion is light brown. Cut fish into small pieces and rub with salt and pepper. Add potatoes to chowder kettle. Cover with boiling water and cook 30 minutes. Blend flour with ¼ cup milk. Add remaining milk to fish and stir in flour mixture. Add butter, simmering constantly. When mixture thickens, serve in soup bowls with crackers.

Like vegetables cooked outdoors? Then, here is one:

Roast Corn.

Use fresh sweet corn. Remove corn silk but leave husks on. Dip the ear, husk and all into a pail of water and lay on a grate over a hot bed of coals. The water turns into steam within the husk coating and thus cooks the corn, making it steamy and juicy instead of dry and tasteless. Corn may also be roasted by burying in the ashes.

Cookies and fruit make the ideal campfire dessert. Take cookies easy to carry such as:

Rocks.

(Makes 5 dozen)

1 cup shortening

1½ cups brown sugar

3 eggs

1 teaspoon cinnamon

¼ teaspoon cloves

3 cups sifted flour

1 teaspoon soda

1½ cups walnuts

2 cups raisins

Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients, chopped nuts and raisins. Drop from spoon onto greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven.

If you wish additional instruction for canning fruit or berries, write to Miss Lynn Chambers, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago 6, Illinois. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

ISRAEL'S FIRST KING

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 9:15-21; 10:25-27; 11:12-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king. —1 Peter 2:17.

"Well begun is half done," says the old proverb, reminding us of the importance of a good beginning. While it does not guarantee success (see next week's lesson), it is eminently desirable, and truly helpful. Israel had foolishly tired of being a God-ruled nation and had begun to demand a king.

Samuel was directed of God to the man of His choice, Saul, in a very remarkable way. He entered upon his service as king as an obedient and earnest ruler. (Would God that he had continued in that way!)

We note a number of favorable elements which indicated the possibility of a successful reign. He was—

I. Wanted by the People (9:15, 16).

A ruler forced upon a nation is sure of opposition, but here the people were clamoring for a king to rule over them. The way was wide open to the interest and the affection of their hearts. Saul was just the type to please them. Physically he was head and shoulders above the people—a desired thing in a ruler (10:23). He was mentally fitted (10:25)—humble (9:21), spiritually right (10:6-9), tolerant and kindly (11:13), and a good military leader (ch. 11).

II. Chosen by God (9:17).

All these qualities commended Saul to God as well as to the people. In fact, he was God's choice. A man could not enter upon high office with any more auspicious token for good.

Observe that what looked like a purely chance visit to Samuel, when Saul was on business for his father, was the occasion for the making known of God's choice. Out of a simple experience in daily life came an event which changed his entire destiny.

III. Anointed by the Prophet (9:18-20).

The man of God's choice had met God's man, Samuel, who proceeded to instruct him, and to privately anoint him as king. It was a tender scene. The aged prophet, rejected by the people as God's ruler over them, quietly and sweetly obeyed God's command to anoint the young man to be king.

Public recognition, which came later, was important, but, with Saul as with every servant of the Lord, the personal anointing of God, in the hidden place of communion with Him, was the matter of highest importance.

IV. Humble in Attitude (9:21).

That pride, which was ultimately to be Saul's downfall, was beautifully absent at the beginning of his reign. Although of good family, and well-equipped, he saw himself as poor and insignificant, not ready for such an honor.

That is the right attitude for one who is to serve God. Pride and self-assurance do not befit the man who stands in the presence of the Almighty.

V. Guided by Principle (10:25).

Saul did not enter upon his office, new as it was to both him and to Israel, without a Constitution, that is, without principles of action. Samuel, the Lord's prophet, wrote down "the manner of the kingdom" in a book. How interesting, and how important.

Rulers who imagine themselves so wise that they need no controlling laws, and so powerful that the law may not question their decisions, are certainly not rulers after God's plan. Knowing the heart of man, his weakness and pride, God has provided true principles by which the ruler is to be guided, yes and controlled.

VI. Forgiving in Spirit (10:26-27; 11:12, 13).

Some "worthless fellows" despised Saul and would not recognize him as king. The urge of the flesh was to destroy them, and especially did that seem proper because of their worthless nature. But Saul, in true kingly spirit, said that there was to be no revenge, just rejoicing. To be of the right spirit toward one's enemies is the hall mark of Christian character.

VII. Established in Office (11:14, 15).

While there is the secret whisper of God in the heart, and the personal anointing by the Lord's servant, there should be the public recognition which establishes the Lord's servant in the eyes of all people. Saul had this at Gilgal. It placed him among the kings of the earth, and prepared the way for his dealing with other nations as well as with his own people.

Applying that truth to those who serve Christ, we say that there is upon the church the obligation to recognize God's call and anointing by giving that official recognition which sets the testimony and service of the individual free to exercise itself among men in general.

Roads and Cities Were Built by Salt and Incense

Salt and incense were the chief economic and religious necessities of the ancient world, and most of its great commercial routes were established because of them. One of the oldest roads in Italy is the "Via Salaria." The salt route from Greece to the mouth of the Dnieper led to the same salt pans that supply the Far East today in normal times.

It can be said that London was built by salt, for the first settlement on the banks of the Thames owed its origin to the fact that there rested the pack-trains carrying salt from Cheshire en route to the shores of the channel for export to Gaul.

Famines in India

Because the food crops of India are destroyed by the failure of either of the two annual monsoon rains, a disaster which has occurred at frequent intervals throughout history, the people of India have suffered from famine far more than those of any other country, says Collier's. In fact, they constitute more than half of the 200,000,000 persons who have died of starvation in the entire world during the past 1,000 years.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Millions of dollars will be saved by American purchasers of rubber items in post-war days because of the availability of synthetic and the influence its cost will have on the price of natural rubber. Rubber authorities anticipate that hereafter synthetic rubber prices will serve as a ceiling over charges for the plantation product.

Special rubber pipe lines have been developed which troops can string across rivers, ravines or gulches in battle areas to deliver fuel to motor equipment. The "pipe" yield to the force of concussion, but never break.

Constitution Amendments

Besides two articles in the original Bill of Rights, only two other proposed amendments to the U. S. Constitution failed because they were not ratified by the necessary number of states.

The first, proposed in 1810, was to bar titles of nobility, while the second, proposed in 1861, was to prohibit interference with slavery.

The pending Child Labor amendment has been ratified by only 21 of the required 36 states since it was proposed 20 years ago.

U. S. Treasury Department

To the People of this Community

There are many urgent reasons for buying War Bonds. First, the invasion needs money. Bonds pay for planes and guns and munitions with which to beat the Axis. Our fighting men must have the best possible equipment and it is up to us to let our money provide this.

A second reason is this: There is a shortage of goods now. Later on there will be plenty for civilian desires. Money put into War Bonds now will be available then. Business opportunities will be open, too, and the "nest egg" saved now may hatch out commercially then. Money put into War Bonds now will be deprived of its current potentiality as a part of the causes of inflation. You will be doing your part toward stabilizing the money situation by buying Bonds instead of dwindling stocks. That is a third reason.

But the best reason from a selfish viewpoint is this: Right now there is no better investment than War Bonds. There is no safer repository for your money. By buying Bonds you become a stockholder in the strongest "going" concern in the world today, the United States of America.

The Farmer and War Bonds

by Mr. A. S. Goss

Master of the National Grange

WE FREQUENTLY hear farmers raise the question as to whether or not they should buy War Bonds as long as they are in debt. The answer to this question should depend in large measure upon the nature of the debt and whether or not it is current. If part of it is past due, and the borrower expects to experience difficulty in meeting past due payments, he probably should bring his debt into current position before investing in Bonds. If, however, his payments are current, there seems to be no reason why farmers should not buy as many Bonds as they are able. Most individual investors in government Bonds are carrying debt in one form or another, at rates higher than the Bonds will yield. This is as it should be if the purchaser is in an earning position which permits the accumulation of some surplus, for we all owe it to our government to do our utmost in the financing of the war, even though the transaction may result in our paying some extra interest on outstanding debts.

When a farmer owes money, he is always concerned as to whether his crops will sell at prices which will enable him to repay his debt. When prices are high it is good business and conservative finance to reduce the debt as rapidly as possible because when prices are low, it takes more crops and more efforts to make the payments.

We should not forget, however, that a government Bond will pay off an equal amount of dollars of debt, no matter whether prices are high or whether prices are low. It is, therefore, a sound and conservative practice to buy government Bonds and lay them aside to make payments on existing debts when they fall due. In fact, quite aside from the patriotic appeal, it is good business to buy Bonds rather than make pre-payments on debt, because the time may come when the ready cash is needed and the money tied up in pre-payments cannot be returned. If this money is invested in Bonds, it can be converted into cash to meet any needs which may arise.

If everyone followed the policy of buying no War Bonds until their debts were paid, few Bonds would be sold to the public. We have an obligation to help finance this war which is vastly more important than the income we may receive on the investment of money in War Bonds.

Farmers are finding it impossible to maintain their machinery and buildings in a satisfactory state of repair. They are finding that they cannot replace worn-out equipment except at excessively high cost.

It would seem to be sound and conservative business practice to lay aside money to make the repairs and replace worn-out equipment when material and machines are again available. No safer place can be found to lay aside money for such purposes than in government Bonds.

Every time we buy a Bond we are not only assisting in financing the war, but we are also doing our bit to prevent that most dreaded economic disaster called inflation. If each one of us would invest as much as we could in government Bonds, the danger of inflation would be greatly reduced.

Buy and Keep War Bonds

by C. O. Noble
Head, Dept. of Agricultural Economics
University of Florida

FARMERS of this Nation are performing a magnificent job of essential food production during the present emergency, in spite of their great handicaps in obtaining the necessary materials, equipment, machinery, and labor. Due to their determination to do a good job and to favorable prices for farm commodities, they are receiving higher net incomes than during the twenty-year pre-war period. The question arises as to the wisest use to make of these net incomes that will hasten the winning of this war and at the same time assist in preventing dangerous inflation during and immediately following the war.

Farmers, like all other workers on the home front, are not satisfied with merely doing well the job that is expected of them. They are eagerly on the alert for other ways they may help to bring peace at the earliest moment.

As I see it, the wisest use a farmer could make of his current net income would be to:

1. Keep the farm in condition to produce to its full capacity. This is extremely difficult due to shortages of materials, equipment, machinery and labor; but it is being done by all good farmers. Much attention must be given to keeping machinery in good repair and to making the most efficient use of labor.

2. Avoid new mortgage indebtedness, and reduce present indebtedness beyond the original plan, if practicable. Meet all payments for borrowed working capital when due.

3. Place every dollar not utilized in maintaining a healthy farm business into War Bonds and plan to hold on to these Bonds until they mature, or until after the war emergency has passed. This will be the best known method to help finance the war, to help prevent inflation, and at the same time to build up the investor's financial reserves for the post-war period. You will note that no mention has been made of personal consumption expenses. These should be kept down to the bare minimum. Our rationing system is a great aid in holding down spending for consumer goods, but every patriotic citizen should think many times before purchasing an article that is not an absolute necessity. If War Bonds are purchased first and with the determination of holding them to maturity, it will be surprising that we can do without so many supposed necessities.

YOUTH AND TRUTH

Rev. Walter E. Ienhour. Hiddenite. N. C.

I saw a youth go forth one day
Who met the truth along the way;
Said truth to youth, "Come go with me,
I'll make you noble as can be;
I'll lead you far from every wrong
And build you up and make you strong
For God and His eternal cause,
And keep you true to nature's laws
Said youth to truth, "I'll go with you
And trust your strength to take me through
This world of sin, with every test,
Because I want to do my best
To live for God and all that's right,
And be a burning, shining light,
So when my race on earth is run
I'll hear my Master say, well done.
I saw the youth begin to climb
And rise in life to things sublime;
His aims were high, his purpose good;
He used his time as each one should
He formed no habits bad nor vile,
Though others said, "He's out of style;"
He proved himself a noble youth
And on and on he followed truth.
He lived a life upright and clean,
And shunned the low and vile and mean;
He didn't steal, he didn't lie,
Nor serve the devil on the sly;
His face was bright, his eyes were clear,
As on he journeyed year by year
Along the road that leads to God
Which blessed, saintly men have trod.
In after years I saw this youth,
Whose strength and leader was the truth,
Come up to grand and hoary age,
Like some blest patriarch or sage;
And looking back across the past
He said, "I'm nearing home at last;
Then soon he went to meet his Lord
And to receive his rich reward.
Although he didn't reach a throne
And cause a monument of stone
To be erected to his name
To long perpetuate his fame,
His sons and daughters call him great
And strive his good to emulate,
While hundreds live for God today
Because he led them in this way.

Still At It

While Franklin D. Roosevelt and various New Dealers promise full post-war employment, the WPB and the Army and Navy are taking part in a knock-down-drag-out fight in Washington as to the extent industry will be allowed to reconvert during the war.

As this newest battle on the Potomac goes on, thousands of small industries are unable to make plans for reconversion, although many of them are unable to make plans for reconversion, although many of them obviously have filled all war contracts and will soon have nothing else to do to manufacture.

The Washington aim, even this New Deal, is to keep everything confused so that nobody will know what is being done—or why.

A New "Emergency"

Washingtonians are getting apprehensive again. Three new emergency buildings are being constructed on Independence Avenue near the Smithsonian Institution, although it is a matter of common knowledge that half of the "emergency" buildings which have been constructed since the war began are not being utilized to capacity.

One cab-driver opines that maybe the New Deal is going to man the new emergency buildings with straw men. He pointed out that the papers are full of pleas to staff the agencies already in existence and he wonders how the New Deal is going to fill up these new buildings.

Democratic Leader Denounces Roosevelt

Baltimore—Howard W. Jackson, attacking President Roosevelt's 4th term candidacy in a strongly-worded statement, said he would vote in November "against one-man Government, against Earl Browder and Sidney Hillman."

The Democratic party leader and four-time Mayor of Baltimore, who was defeated for re-election by Republican Theodore R. McKeldin last year, issued his statement in reply to a charge by the city party chairman, Harold A. Keene, that the former mayor previously had bolted the party.

"If I had been against the nominees of the Democratic party in 1928, '34, '38 and '40," Mr. Jackson declared, "I would have said so as I am now doing in reference to a candidate—President Roosevelt—who long since in my judgment has ceased to be a Democrat."

"I am for many of the principles of the Roosevelt administration—unemployment insurance, old-age pensions, aid for dependent children, collective bargaining (which should be a two-way and not a one-way street) and guarantee of bank deposits."

"But I am against most of his administrative policies. He has played politics with labor-management and with radical groups, purged members of Congress who would not be subservient to him; ordered Congress to pass legislation of doubtful constitutionality, endeavored to organize the Supreme Court and make it subject to his views."

"He piled bureau on top of bureau; he serves the radicals; he commits us to so many things that we do not know our obligations and liabilities, actual and contingent; he pretends to distribute wealth, which cannot be done; he favors legislation to limit income."

"He is dissipating the wealth of the Nation," Mr. Jackson continued, "as evidenced by the fact that 1930-1940 is the only decade in American history in which the wealth of the Nation did not increase."

"We cannot make the rich poor without making the poor poorer. If we cannot accumulate wealth, all become poor except the ruling classes. When government can do no wrong, individuals have no rights."

"I am against government in peacetime that spends $2 and collects only $1."

Make It Simple

An Ohio farmer's wife wrote the OPA asking for the price of turkeys, received in reply 30,000 words of printed matter, then in desperation wrote her Congressman, "I still do not know the price of turkeys. It would take a Philadelphia lawyer to cipher it out. Is there something that can be done to make them answer a simple question simply?"

An X mark after your name means you owe us.

To Wives and Parents of Soldiers

If you are sending The Record to your husband or son who is in the armed forces, please see that his subscription is paid in advance. We are forced to discontinue all subscriptions to the boys-in-foreign lands or in army camps in this country when their subscriptions expire. The soldiers want their home paper. We have had to mark several names off our books this week. Maybe one of them was your husband or son.

How Do You Like It?

While we hear daily about an acute manpower shortage in this country and while the Army is handicapped by an acute shortage of truck tires needed to keep armament rolling, Ray Tucker tells us in his widely published National Whirligig column that "the Nation's tire plants have all the personnel they need to produce the maximum amount of casings wanted by essential military and civilian services."

The only reason they cannot meet General Eisenhower's requirements, declares Mr. Tucker, is that "Mr. Hillman's unions will not permit their members to do a full day's work."

"An experienced hand can turn out about 14 or 15 tires in the ordinary working day, but C. I. O. regulations provide that maximum production must be measured by the output of the most inefficient man in the factory. His total comes to about 10 casings a day."

How do you like that—you whose sons, husbands, and brothers are fighting and winning the war and you who are making sacrifices to do your part on the home front?

Mr. Tucker further asserts—and many others in a position to know the facts have said the same in effect—that Hon. James F. Byrnes last month went to Chicago "with the assurance of White House backing for the Number Two place. But . . . Sidney Hillman served notice on the White House that he would bolt the Democrats if the South Carolinian's services were recognized in any way . . . He was shunted because a powerful labor leader turned thumbs down on him."

And how do you like that evidence of power in the hands of the czar of the organization that decrees rubber plant workers making acutely-needed tires for our boys "over there" shall produce daily only as much as "the most inefficient man in the factory" while the army in these critical days grapples with an acute shortage of truck tires and the Nation worries over a manpower shortage?

How do you like the power Mr. Hillman exercises in the Democratic party, in the armament factories and in the White House?—Charlotte Observer.

Child Neglect Is Criticized.

Delinquent conduct of mothers in this area has necessitated the taking of stern steps by the Norfolk County Department of Public Welfare to protect the children.

Since last Thursday 12 children whose mothers have left them locked up by themselves for hours, or otherwise neglected them, have been reported to the Welfare Department.

W. L. Murphy, superintendent of the Welfare Department, said this morning that such behavior will not be tolerated.

In all the cases reported in the last week, the husbands of the women are in the service.

It has been necessary to take four of the children and put them in foster homes. Some of the mothers have received jail sentences up to 90 days in court, and the Welfare Department may find it necessary to prosecute others.

The mothers, whose children have been put in foster homes, may never get back the custody of their babies. Before they can regain this custody, they must prove that they are fit parents.

Fathers, who are at sea or on foreign soil, must be notified and in some extreme cases brought home to straighten out their family affairs. This entails much expense for them, and cause a bad break in their morale. Worry about their children and their wives will often make a man unfit for military service.

Mr. Murphy says the trouble now caused by war wives who do not look after their children is impeding the war effort materially.

Despite the allotments the mothers receive from the Army or Navy for the care of their children, many of the youngsters have been found wearing rags.

In many cases it has been necessary for the Welfare Department to completely re-clothe the children in addition to finding foster homes for them.

In several cases, youngsters have been neglected by their war mothers to such an extent that hospitalization and medical care have been needed by the children.

"This must be stopped, and it will be stopped," Mr. Murphy promised.—Norfolk Pilot.

"We Gotta Change Hosses"

We gotta change hosses
In the middle of the river,
Got too many hosses
No gas for the fliver.
So we gotta drive a hoss
And if he won't pull
Regardless of the boss

When your old hoss balks
In the middle of the river,
No use to just talk
And sit there forever.
Gotta have a new hoss
Or go under the waves
For we can't get across
There's no other way.

We will change hosses
Before it's too late,
And all our hosses
Ere we meet our fate,
Then we'll look back across
To the forty four seen
And honor our hoss
That pulled across the stream.

LIVING MEMORIALS

FOR ALL OUR BOYS.

In memory of me, you wouldn't erect
A dreary stone that wouldn't reflect
No thought of joy or living things,
Or hope for which the whole world sings.

I ask that you go plant a tree
To cast a shadow cool, for me.
A tree to bless the weary earth,
Or any monument of vital worth!

In haunting memory or marble cold,
I want no story of my valor told.
Forlorn and desolate, they stand
For years,
Despair they bring, and lonely tears

Instead, I beg you plan a place,
A playground—where children race
A little lake—a bathing beach,
A happy place—in easy reach.

For all the Boys—on sea or land,
For all the Flyers—who victory planned,
From the Spirit World—We unite
Our pleas—
For playgrounds—pools—and glorious trees!

No futile piles of stone to mar,
The landscape view—both near and far!
Dead monuments are but idle toys,
Give living things for our noble boys!

MILLICENT EASTER

Heavy Loss On Eggs

The War Food Administration's regional office in Chicago sold seventy carloads of eggs to feed mixtures for conversion into animal protein feed. Purchased at WFA's egg market support price, the seventy carloads, according to a newspaper dispatch, represented an investment of $340,200 and were sold for $2,100, so WFA took a loss of $338,100. It's high time that the hens on America's farms declare a strike, or receive instructions via a New Deal directive to discontinue production.

Rome Has Monument to King Costing $5,000,000

Rome's monument to Victor Emmanuel II, king of Italy from 1851 to 1878, is the costliest memorial of its kind in the world, says Collier's. Built of white marble and embellished with numerous sculptured groups and reliefs as well as a great equestrian statue of the king, this massive structure occupies almost a square block.

It is as high as an 18-story building, cost $5,000,000 and was under construction for 26 years before its dedication in 1911.

Keep Cool With Shrimp Salad in Aspic
(See Recipes Below)

Keeping Cool

There are still warm days ahead through late summer and early fall, and plenty of opportunity for keeping cool.

Formerly it was thought that one should eat extremely lightly of just low-calorie salads with hardly enough nourishment for the body, and cold drinks. Now we recognize the necessity of using enough proteins in the diet to keep the body in good condition, and also know that a cup of hot soup will be as cooling as the coolest drink.

Naturally our proteins may be in the form of salads for we like them especially well in the summer. Here is a good one using a shrimp in aspic, both cooling and nutritious:

Lemon Aspic.

Serves 6

2 tablespoons gelatine
1/4 cup cold water
1 1/2 cups hot water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup lemon juice
1 cup cooked or canned shrimp
1 cup chopped celery
Chicory or other salad greens

Sprinkle gelatine into cold water. Add hot water, salt, sugar and lemon juice. Cool, then add shrimp and celery. Chill in ring mold. Unmold on crisp salad greens. Fill with:

*Shrimp Salad.

(Serves 6)

1/2 cup cooked or canned shrimp
2 tablespoons french dressing
1 cup diced celery
1 cup lettuce, cut in pieces
1 cup peas
Mayonnaise to blend

Marinate shrimp 15 minutes in french dressing. Combine with remaining ingredients. Garnish the lemon aspic with lemon quarters and shrimps.

Do you ever feel that potato salad has a flat taste? That can easily be remedied by marinating the cubed potatoes in french dressing to give them an extra flavor.

Creamy Potato Salad.

(Serves 6)

4 cups cold, boiled potatoes, cubed
1/2 cup french dressing
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 medium onion, minced
3 hard-cooked eggs
1/4 cup diced celery
3 slices bacon, fried and crumbled
6 sliced radishes
1/2 cup mayonnaise or boiled dressing

Marinate potatoes in french dressing one-half hour. Toss together with remaining ingredients and serve with cold meats, wedges of tomato and cucumber slices.

Chicken Salad.

(Serves 6)

2 cups diced chicken or veal
1/2 cup diced celery
1/2 cup sliced, toasted almonds
Salad dressing

Mix all ingredients with enough

If you are looking for fruity salads, there are any number the family will like:

Fruit Ginger Ale Salad.

(Serves 6)

1 tablespoon gelatine
1/4 cup cold water or fruit juice
1/4 cup orange or other juice
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup ginger ale
1 cup fruit

Soften gelatine in cold water. Place bowl over warm water and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Add sugar, salt and fruit juice. Cool and add ginger ale. Chill, and when mixture begins to thicken, add fruit cut in small pieces (canned pineapple, pears, apricots, cherries or fresh fruit such as oranges, apples, grapes or bananas). Two tablespoons of ginger may be added if a high ginger flavor is desired. Turn into individual molds that have been rinsed in cold water. Chill. Unmold on lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

Best Salad.

(Serves 6)

1 tablespoon gelatine
1/4 cup cold water
1 cup cooked salad dressing
1 cup cream or evaporated milk, whipped
1 1/2 cups chicken or diced veal
1/2 cup almonds, blanched and chopped
1/4 cup malaga grapes, canned
1/2 pineapple or oranges
1/2 teaspoon salt

Soften gelatine in cold water. Place in dish over boiling water and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Cool and combine with salt, salad dressing, whipped cream or whipped evaporated milk. Fold in chicken, using white meat, almonds, and skinned grapes, seeded and cut into pieces. Turn into mold, rinsed with cold water, and chill until firm. When firm, unmold and garnish with lettuce, almonds and grapes.

*Fruit desserts? Here are two with apricots and peaches:

*Peach Crumble.

(Serves 6)

8 fresh peaches, sliced
1/4 cup water
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/4 cup flour
1 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon salt

Arrange peaches in buttered baking dish; sprinkle with water and lemon juice. Blend sugar, flour, butter and salt together until mixture resembles rough cornmeal. Sprinkle over peaches. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until peaches are soft and top is brown and bubbly, about 35 minutes.

Apricot Dessert.

Fill honeydew melon ring with orange sherbet and garnish with apricots halved and peeled, marinated in lemon juice and cantaloupe balls.

Cover Crop Seed Increase Sought

Supplies Needed to Maintain Acreage

Growing of legumes and cover crops—with particular emphasis on seed production—is receiving more attention than usual from Uncle Sam this year.

The nation's farmers for many years have relied upon legumes and cover crops to protect their soil from erosion, preserve valuable moisture, and gather life-giving nitrogen from the air. In most cases, these crops are plowed under as green manure to make room for more profitable row crops, such as cotton, corn, or tobacco.

Heavy wartime demands for more food and fiber crops from each acre under the plow have increased the need for seeding legumes and cover crops. Records show that growing these crops in winter will bring about a substantial increase in per acre yields of subsequent crops. The urgent need for more feed crops to support added numbers of livestock also has a place in the picture, WFA says. These crops provide excellent pasture for several weeks before turning under, thus supplementing dwindling supplies of concentrated protein feeds.

Principal emphasis is being placed on harvesting of seed from 1944 crops of legumes and grasses because supplies now are at dangerously low levels. Adequate supplies of these seeds are essential for providing winter feeds, protecting land during the winter months, and maintaining soil productivity at high levels.

Increases in production of legume and grass seeds must be made in 1944 if there are to be sufficient new seedlings this fall for hay and pasture production and for soil acreage in regular crop rotations. Nations liberated from Nazi domination will need seed quickly to help reestablish themselves by restoring their devastated farmlands. Shipping seed abroad is an economical way of exporting food and lessens the drain on our own food supplies.

Harvesting of legume and cover crop seed will be encouraged under provisions of the 1944 conservation program of the Agricultural Adjustment agency. Substantial payments will be allowed for each acre harvested, up to a maximum of 25 acres per farm. Prices of seed will be supported at levels designed to give the farmer a fair return. Crops eligible for AAA payments and support prices include most principal legumes and grasses.

In addition to the profit realized, farmers are being urged by the WFA to produce adequate supplies of seed for two principal reasons. First, WFA says, if farmers are to maintain their record production levels, every effort must be made to keep the nation's farmlands in top productive condition. Any effort to draw upon soil fertility without replacing it is a dangerous gamble which may result in declining production in later years. In the second place, many of the crops now being produced in record quantities to meet urgent needs are soil depleting. Continued production of these crops makes it imperative that productivity be preserved by every means possible.

Here is how the situation sums up:

1. Red clover—Reserves at 40 per cent of 1940 level.
2. Alsike clover—Carryover reduced one-half by two short crops.
3. Sweet clover—1943 crop smallest since 1922. Carryover July 1 expected to be 40 per cent of 1939-1943 average.

Cattle Liver Flukes

Liver flukes, long a serious menace to cattle production in parts of Texas and other western states, are now being fought with a new chemical treatment, according to the War Food administration. The drug "hexachlorethane" is combined with bentonite in water to make a smooth emulsion that is easily given as a drench. Liver flukes, difficult to reach by medication, are small, flat, leaf-shaped parasites.

That Bulldog Grip

The proverbial "bulldog grip" of the bulldog does not result from obstinacy or any other quality but from the construction of the animal's mouth. The lower jaw is longer than the upper jaw, and therefore it is physically impossible for the dog to let go while there is any tension on the object being gripped.

BRIEF, comfortable, cool and pretty—that's the sort of summer clothes the youngsters like! This brother-and-sister play set is easy to make and launders like a charm when done in nice cotton materials.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1991 is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 3, boys' overalls, requires 1/4 yard of 36-inch material; blouse 1 1/4 yards; girls' jumper, 1 1/4 yards of 36-inch material; blouse, 1 1/4 yards.

ABOUT

Using a combination of natural and synthetic rubber in the post-war period may result in automobile tires that will establish new high marks for longevity, according to a B. F. Goodrich chemical technician. He cites the big mileage returned from Goodrich synthetic tires, made in 1949 and composed of both types of rubber, as the basis for his predictions about post-war tires.

Another reason for tires for essential transportation: At the beginning of last year, 85,168 school buses were in service transporting 4,258,788 children over 1,383,000 miles of one-way route.

Those Texas Democrats are still in a fighting mood. They are talking of running Lee O'Daniel for President on the Democratic ticket in the Lone Star State.

One fellow has it figured out that the European war will be over on Sept. 7th, 1944, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Here's hoping he knows what he is talking about.

The watermelon and cantaloupe is about to become extinct for this season, but there is always something to look forward to. The muscadine and the pumpkin will soon be ripe.

The Winston-Salem Journal is sorry that Sidney Hillman and the C.I.O. have captured and ran away with the Democratic party, but Editor Martin will swallow the whole outfit and vote 'er straight this fall.

The Baltimore Sun, one of the big Democratic daily newspapers, has come out for Tom Dewey for President. From the editorials appearing in The Charlotte Observer, seems that paper thinks pretty well of the Republican presidential nominee.

And now it is said that President Roosevelt was off on a vacation when he visited the Hawaiian and Aleutian Islands. Perhaps he was combining business and pleasure. Thousands of soldiers are stationed on these islands and most of them are voters.

The Gallup Polls shows that F. D. Roosevelt is ahead in the race for President. Sometimes these polls are right and sometimes wrong. We haven't forgotten the Literary Digest poll a few years ago when it gave the election to Alf Landon. Poor old Alf carried but two of the 48 States. No one will know who is elected until after the votes are cast and counted.

It is less than three months until the November election, but things are very quiet on the political front in Davie county. The boys running for office are too busy helping win the war to get out and do much campaigning. Many voters in Davie county couldn't give the names of those running for office on either ticket. Things will no doubt warm up as a cool weather approaches.

A female worshiper of Franklin Delano and Eleanor is rejoicing because the Gallup Poll says Franklin is leading Dewey. He or she who laughs last laughs best. Our Democratic Governor says that the Democratic party has been taken over and is being run by the Northern Negroes and the C. I. O. And yet the Southern Democrats are wedded to their idols. But many of them have the nerve to vote for men and not party. Honest men and women don't want to turn this country over to Sidney Hillman, Earl Browder and a bunch of Communists.

An X mark after your name means you owe us.

Davie Soldier Killed

Miss Doree Cook, R. 2, received a message from the War Department Friday, advising that her brother, Pfc. John Cook, was killed in action in France on Aug. 12th. This is the 13th Davie county man who has lost his life in the present world-wide conflict. Mr. Cook is survived by several sisters and has two brothers in the service.

A Short Court

The August term of Davie Superior court convened at 10 o'clock Monday morning with his Honor, Judge Wilson Warlick, of Newton, presiding, and Solicitor Avalon E. Hall, of Yadkinville, prosecuting. Knox Johnstone acted as foreman of the grand jury. This jury finished its work by noon Monday. There were about 30 cases on the criminal docket and about 20 cases on the civil docket. Most of the criminal cases were driving drunk and violating the prohibition law. There were a number of divorce cases. The court adjourned Monday afternoon.

Memorial Service For
Lieut. Joe Leagans

Memorial services for Lieut. Joe Leagans, who was killed June 7th in France, will be held at Eaton's Baptist Church, Sunday, Sept. 3rd, at 2 o'clock. Rev. Dallas Renegar, assisted by Rev. McCluskey, of the Pilgrim Holiness Church, Greensboro, will conduct the service. The public is invited.

Receives Purple Heart

Mrs. Florence Williams, of R. 1, has received from her son, Pvt. William Williams, who was wounded July 6th in France, a Purple Heart, which was awarded him by the War Department.

American Legion to Join
In Paper Campaign

Davie County Post No. 174 will co-operate with more than 12,000 Legion Posts throughout the nation in a drive to collect two million tons of paper and rags. Sunday, September 3rd starting at 12:30 noon, the date set by the National Headquarters, will be the date for the drive in Davie County.

Each precinct and township will be covered in this campaign by Post No. 174 with The Exception of Jerusalem and Cooleemee. These precincts are at present being covered by Boy Scouts Troops of Cooleemee.

The need for waste paper of all kinds is so serious that the Army has for some time been salvaging containers back home from combat areas. That should not be necessary if we, on the home front, were doing our duty.

The full co-operation of every family in Davie County in this worthwhile undertaking is needed. All kinds of paper and paper products are needed - old newspapers, magazines, cardboard, etc., and cotton or wool rags.

Plans have been made for trucks from each area or neighborhood to call on each home in their area to collect every available pound.

Search your basement, attic and out-houses and have it ready for the truck when it calls. If paper or magazines are tied in bundles of 25 to 50 pounds it will greatly facilitate handling.

If the day set should be rainy the drive will be postponed until the following Sunday.

Five hundred is the largest number of attacks flown by a bombardment group, medium or heavy, in the Mediterranean Theater of operations.

U. S.-BRITISH OIL ACCORD
This column, it should be noted in advance, is likely to be dull. But if you are interested in keeping your son or husband out of another war, it should be important.

The United States and Great Britain are just concluding the first agreement aimed to remove the danger of war—an agreement on oil.

Oil is one of the most ticklish economic subjects in the world. Oil is what makes a nation's battleships move, runs the automobiles, sends the planes into the air—in fact, spells the difference between a nation of strength or a nation which must bow to the whims of others. The present oil agreement seeks to settle the battle for oil; eliminate one important cause of war.

The last war was scarcely over when Great Britain began maneuvering to corner the oil supplies of the world. British leaders were quite frank about it.

United States Protests.

Finding itself in this position, the United States government jumped into the battle for oil with vigor. The secretary of state, Charles Evans Hughes, wrote a series of blunt, bare-faced notes to the British, wanting to know why they barred American oil companies from Palestine, since Palestine was not British but merely mandated to the British by the League.

Meanwhile, the British, though barring the U. S. from their areas of interest, quietly invaded ours. They turned up with concessions in Colombia, not far from the Panama Canal. Even in Panama proper, a British gold-mining company staked out a huge and suspicious claim in an area where no gold was known to exist.

History Begins to Repeat.

In World War II, history at first began to repeat. The five senators who toured the world war fronts came back with the story of how the U. S. A. was rapidly depleting her oil reserves while the British were hoarding theirs. They told how the British were trying to keep us from further developing oil resources in Arabia; how the British had a refinery on the Gulf of Persia, 50 per cent idle, while we shipped oil clear across the Atlantic to British armies in the Near East.

Yes, it looked as if history would repeat.

On last April 29, however, representatives of the British and American governments negotiated an informal understanding aimed to eliminate the oil battles of the future. It was an excellent, far-sighted agreement. And during the last two weeks in Washington, Lord Beaverbrook and his associates have been negotiating with Secretaries Ickes and Hull to make this informal oil agreement formal and binding. This time, the British have been far more cooperative and far-sighted than in 1919—with one possible exception.

After U. S.-British experts laid their excellent April 29 ground work, Lord Beaverbrook kicked over the traces at some things, and he seems to be keeping a more watchful eye on the interests of the empire than on a fair future peace. For instance, he has been insisting that Britain have the right to ban the sale of U. S. oil in England, despite the fact that British Shell sells in this country. However, the basic agreement is truly encouraging when it comes to future peace.

Provisions of Agreement.

It provides, first: "That petroleum shall be available in international trade to the nationals of all peace-loving countries in adequate volume, at fair prices and on an equitable and non-discriminatory basis."

This means that, if the U. S. A. runs out of oil or vice versa, it is up to Britain to help supply us unless, for example, oil or the other attempts to conquer Ethiopia as Mussolini did, and the world peace machinery countries attempt to cut off their oil as the League tried to do to Italy but, because of pressure from the big companies, could not do.

The agreement also gives "equal opportunity" for "acquisition," "development," etc., in areas under concession. This eliminates cutthroat rivalry for new fields. Each nation is to respect the valid concessions of the other and its citizens.

Finally, and very important, "exploration, development, operation of refineries and distribution shall not be hampered by restrictions imposed by either government or its nationals."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Caution Mr. Turk—If you want the real low-down on why the Turks finally broke with Germany, it was because Hitler had moved troops out of Bulgaria just opposite Turkey. After that, the Turks weren't afraid of being attacked. . . . With Sweden and Switzerland both closed to Hitler for escape, his few remaining havens are Japan—which won't last long—and Argentina. . . . It has long been rumored that the Nazi top men were building up cash reserves in Argentina.

First American Ambulance Train in France

Transferring patients from ambulances to the first hospital trains to be operated in France by the American army. The train runs from Lison to Cherbourg and is made up of box cars left behind by the Germans. Insert shows closeup of wounded being loaded on train. Photo by telephoto. The box cars were completely overhauled to provide all equipment necessary to handle the wounded while they were being transferred to base hospital at Cherbourg. During the last war the U. S. army operated several base hospitals in France.

Three Generations and a Family

Not all of the refugees have left France. This grandmother, mother and children took to the woods as war rolled their way. They had been without food for days when found by American troops.

Among the thousands of refugees who landed at Hoboken, N. J., to spend the war's duration in a camp in the U. S. was the family of Jacob Dresdner, shown after coming ashore. The family is composed of Jacob and his wife and their nine children, from Hungary. With the rest of the lucky thousand permitted entry under the President's plan, they will be kept in Fort Ontario, near Oswego, N. Y., until the end of the war at which time they will be returned to their own countries. Insert shows how many of the refugees when forced to flee their homes tried to carry a few valuables with them.

Yanks Pass Through Periers

Yank column passes through the French town of Periers on their drive toward Paris and Berlin. The American tanks are shown as they pass through the ruins of this old French city, which was added to the list of captured towns. As was true in other French cities, the GIs were received with open arms by the citizens of Periers.

Sub Blasted by Depth Charges

Panicky Nazis pour out of the conning tower to the deck of a submarine blasted to the surface by depth charges planted by U. S. coast guard and navy destroyer escorts somewhere in the Atlantic. A few minutes later the crippled U-boat plunged to the bottom of the sea. Twelve Nazis were picked up and became prisoners of war.

The Anxious Seat

Seated on the radiator of a jeep, this German sniper in civilian clothes is being driven to American headquarters after his capture near St. Saver Lendelin. He looks a trifle worried—and well he might.

Young U-Boat Chief

A 26-year-old commander of a Nazi U-boat was captured after his ship was sunk by coast-guard-manned destroyer escort in the Atlantic. He was a former Californian.

Speaking Sports

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Two of the nation's most widely heralded civilian heavyweights were on display at Wrigley field in Chicago a couple of weeks ago and proved one thing—there is no need for Sgt. Joe Louis, current custodian of the world's championship, to go into serious training for the defense of his title.

The Chicago debacle saw Joe Baksi, a big, tough hulk, maul his way to a 10-round decision over Lee Savold, Paterson, N. J., heavyweight. The victory carried with it recognition of the Illinois Athletic commission as "duration" heavyweight championship. That means until Louis, Conn. Pastor and the rest return.

We had figured Savold to win. Not that we were particularly interested, but after all it was a fight supposedly of some consequence in the current heavyweight picture. Incidentally, that picture is dark, forbidding and not very interesting to see.

Fighting Machine

It wasn't so long ago that Savold, the loser, looked like a fine fighting machine. But the machine appears to be quite well worn out. He had two good rounds against Baksi the fourth and fifth—but he wasn't the same fighter who scored previous successes in Chicago against Nate Bolden, Lem Franklin (twice) and Lou Nova.

Baksi is no graceful gazelle. He plods ahead with his pointed jaw stuck out belligerently and his huge hands flopping. But that jaw is fashioned of granite and is impervious to blows that would wilt a man of lesser stamina.

Savold was in bad shape much of the time, having been mauled in close about the head and kidneys. Baksi slammed lefts to the body and whistled short, right uppercuts across the chin. From the sixth round on the big Pole kept pressing his advantage, until, at the finish, Lee's nose was bleeding and the left side of his body was the color of a boiled lobster.

Even Hymie Wiseman, Savold's manager, couldn't think of a thing to say in defense of his boy. "He looked like a preliminary boy. There can be no excuse except that he didn't—or couldn't—untrack himself. I swear that on his gym showing he looked unbeatable. He never was better."

Great Hearted

He had one thing that reminded onlookers of the Savold of yesterday. He had the same heart that he did when he disposed of Bolden, Franklin and Nova. When the last round sounded there were many who insisted that he had gone over the crest, and that from now on his fights would continue to grow less effective. Perhaps the pace Lee has always maintained finally caught up with him, depriving his legs of speed and his fists of punch.

Savold made no excuses. "I was in shape," he said in his dressing room, "but the maritime service took some zip out of me. I can't concentrate too much on my ring wars, especially when I'm training for a bigger battle."

The fight wasn't a howling financial success, luring a $43,355 gross gate, which probably means the show was promoted at a deficit since the headliners took 60 per cent of the net. It also proved a bit boring to the assembled 16,135 spectators, 7,500 of them being uniformed servicemen and women, who were Promoter Jack Kearns' guests.

To be truthful, the customers, probably including Kearns' nonpaying guests, began to boo the action about the time of the seventh round and didn't stop until the bout reached its somewhat inglorious end.

Louis and Conn

Perhaps we're too critical, but there are only two contemporary heavyweights we'd travel any distance to see—Champion Joe Louis and Contender Billy Conn.

Both men are real fighters. Both have the heart for it, the ability to fight and are capable of putting up a real show every time they step into the ring.

In our book, Jack Dempsey and Joe Louis are the two greatest heavyweights of all time. Both men were dangerous from the start.

Origin of Pulp Paper

When a young German paper maker, Gottfried Keller, kicked a wasp's nest on a walk through the woods in the 19th century, he was impressed by the nest's texture, which was similar to rag paper produced at the mill where he worked.

He showed it to a chemist friend, and the two concluded the wasps made it from spruce tree fiber. They succeeded in making paper from wood, and thus the pulp paper industry was born.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, listless, nervous, when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood. You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and watery urination with burning and stinging is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

CHAPTER I

The giant moths of Kokke—those damp black ghosts—and the smell of sour honey, which were so trivial as facts but so vital to Zorie Corey's tears, were among the things that made it hard for her to put a proper valuation on the events themselves. There were moments of terror which, when she awoke in the night, she could now contemplate with amused detachment. And there were moments of lesser danger which, even in retrospect, could bring a scream into her throat.

Perhaps Paul Duncan could have explained all of it, in his clever, analytical way. Some of it he did try to explain, because, in his jealous heart, he adored her. And some of it was better left unexplained and even unremembered. It might have hastened her recovery if she could have wiped from her memory that night in mid-Pacific when she fell down and down through endless blackness, with that soft, terrifying whisper in her ears—"Ah-nah! Ah-nah!"

And she could have well forgotten, too, the jasmine-scented dawn when she stood beside a stunted tree three thousand feet above the green and purple depths of the tropical canyon with an automatic pistol kicking in her hand, although it would always seem that it had happened not to her but to an unbelievable girl who had stepped out of her just long enough to attempt murder.

Yet all of it fitted into the one bright romantic pattern of intrigue and adventure which she would always cherish, even unimportant trifles—the quarreling of the minah birds just at dusk and again just at dawn; the annoying habit Grandfather Duncan had of saying, "You understand—hm?" and the metallic luster of moonlight on palm fronds leaping in the trade-wind; the gleam in Pierre Savoyard's eyes whenever he ate meat; and the pride that Amber, the girl from Martinique, took in herself; and the strange urbanity of the man who called himself Winthrop Lanning.

But she was never vague about Stephen Decatur Duncan, with his languid manner, his mocking blue eyes and his treachery.

Probing about in her mind on these sleepless nights, in a blacked-out room on an island at war, she saw herself, on that dismal afternoon in early December, in a drowsy little university town, sitting at her desk and wishing, among other things, that she was not so meek.

She was privately very certain that her wishing had started it and that every step she took that day was an unerring step in the direction of her destiny.

From her typewriter desk, in the English Department, Zorie Corey could look out across the small campus and over some of the rooftops of this town in which she had grown up and of which she was now, she told herself, a helpless victim. She had just uttered the fraudulent wish so often voiced by youth when it is overcome by a sense of frustration—she wished she'd never been born. She then uttered three wishes, all related, in a row. She wished she wasn't so meek. She wished she had courage. She wished she'd had the gumption to tell the wife of her distinguished employer to jump in the river.

"My dear Miss Corey," Mrs. Folsome, in her gushing way, had said over the telephone a few minutes previously, "would you mind terribly distributing the invitations for my tea next week? I think it really should go out tonight and I think it's so much nicer having them delivered by hand, don't you? And Professor says you're so dependable. So will you drop around for them when you're through?"

"I'd love to, Mrs. Folsome," Zorie Corey had said in her melodious young voice, instead of any number of appropriate things she might have said.

She might have mentioned that she didn't possess a car; that it was going to rain; that she was terribly rushed. She might have suggested that Mrs. Folsome neatly affix a two-cent stamp in the upper right-hand corner of each of the envelopes and drop them in one of the green receptacles that an all-seeing government has placed at numerous street corners for the convenience of its citizens.

"Why," Zorie Corey rebelliously muttered, "don't you deliver them with your own hand, you old tightwad?"

Zorie Corey wished she was a war nurse. Then she wished she lived in California. But anywhere would do. Anywhere but Elleryton.

"Professor says you're so dependable." And well he might! Professor Bowdoin J. Folsome was head of the English Department. Zorie Corey was his half-time secretary, and his notion of the hours that a half-time secretary should keep was from noon sharp until she slid from her chair with exhaustion. The half-day was supposed to end at five, but she often worked until six-thirty—nine—sometimes midnight.

She expertly estimated that the work he had piled on her desk would keep her occupied until seven-thirty. After that she must deliver his wife's invitations. There would be about thirty of them and the addresses would be scattered all over town.

And she had a date tonight with Paul Duncan. Paul did not like to be kept waiting. Next to cleanliness, with Paul, came punctuality.

She gave herself the brief luxury of contemplating, in a private archive of her mind, her fiancé's lean, good-looking face, his clear gray-green eyes, his strong, slender hands. She loved Paul's hands. They were clever and nervous and yet they were very masculine.

Paul had a brilliant mind, and his understanding of human foibles, his amusing way of pricking the bubbles of vanity and conceit and hypocrisy was a source of delight to Zorie. Paul was an instructor of psychology. And he was much too good for this small midwestern university.

She would, she decided, knock off at five-thirty.

At six, she was still typing in her fast, efficient way. At six-thirty, she called Paul's boarding-house. He wasn't home. The voice that answered didn't know when he would return.

At seven, Zorie called again. Paul, she was told, had dined out. He was probably in the library doing research on his dissertation.

At seven-thirty-eight, she finished the last of her typing and laid her afternoon's production; in neat piles, on Professor Folsome's desk.

She would be late for her date with Paul, and he would tell her again that the trait he admired most in the wives of the men he knew was punctuality.

One of the troubles with being meek, of always saying yes and never no to a request, Zorie reflected, is that you're always getting yourself into hot water.

She paused and looked at the gloomy office, with its littered desk, its overflowing wastebasket, the pamphlets and catalogs and books scattered and stacked about—all so typical of Professor Folsome's untidiness.

At the back of the desk, a confusion of books, memoranda, pens, pencils, and bottles and pots of ink of various colors, was presided over by a gilded cast-iron Buddha about eight inches high. Most of the gilt was gone. He was fat, benign and rusty. A student from Siam—the son of a prince—had given the Buddha to Professor Folsome. It was the sallow Siamese princeling had mentioned with a drolly disparaging air, a wishing Buddha from a jungle temple near Chengmai—a genuine jungle wishing Buddha.

Zorie Corey was a sensible girl and she took no stock in heathen idols or any of the nonsense you hear about them, but as she looked at the wishing Buddha, a curious thing happened. It began to glow.

The explanation of this phenomenon was prosaic and simple, but Zorie wasn't instantly aware of that. The glow was greenish and ghostly and it seemed to come on as if the jungle Buddha were trying to call her attention to himself and his reputation.

What had happened was that the shifting clouds above the Fenwick Body Plant had glowed brightly for a moment in the glare from the floodlights which surrounded the buildings—one of the measures being taken to discourage saboteurs—and this glow had let the curving surfaces of the Siamese Buddha catch and momentarily hold a ghostly gleam. Even his eyes seemed to glimmer.

"I wish . . ." Zorie Corey began impetuously, and hesitated. Then she made her wish. She wished she could be whisked to a leisurely land of palms and jade-green seas, of strange flowers with intoxicating scents, of birds that left bright flames in their wake, and of delightful people too gallant to take advantage of her meekness. She next wished that Paul Duncan was there with her. Then she wished that she would lose her meekness.

That made a total of three wishes, and three wishes were, according to tradition, the correct number.

There should be, of course, some sort of ritual. She bent down quickly and kissed the cast-iron jungle Buddha three times on the brow, one kiss for each wish. He tasted dusty and rusty.

She stepped back and gazed somewhat defiantly at the Buddha, who no longer glowed, but sat there in the jungle of a dusty old English professor's desk, a dark lump in the darkness, as if, in glowing once, he had spent his magic force and would never glow again.

Zorie waited and a curious tingling went along her spine.

Nothing noteworthy happened. Zorie Corey did not find herself speeding through the night on a Persian rug, nor did she feel one degree less meek.

The telephone in her cubicle began to ring. She ran down the hall with her heart racing out of all proportion to the amount of exercise she was giving it. As she ran, she pictured the man who was calling her, and the man was, curiously enough, not Paul Duncan. He was a total stranger. He was tall, bronzed and big-shouldered with merry eyes and curly hair and a big easy smile and a lazy, romantic way about him.

He would say to her in a deep, resonant, cheery voice: "Miss Corey? I have just been authorized to offer you an opportunity to leave Elleryton at once and take a very interesting journey."

But the voice that responded to her breathless hello was neither deep, resonant, nor cheery.

"My dear," it said, with just a hint of severity, "I thought you'd be over for these invitations ages ago. Had you forgotten?"

"No, I hadn't forgotten," Zorie answered in her melodiously meek voice. "I'm just leaving."

It was an unseasonal December night, rainy and warm—the kind of night that might be transformed by a sudden north wind into a glitter of ice-clad trees and telephone wires.

As she started along the campus, with her head bowed, as if in shame, against the drizzle, she indulged in still another wish. She wished she had had the courage to ask her Aunt Hannah for her coupe for a couple of hours.

Zorie went up on the wide porch of the big old fashioned gray house where the Folsomes lived. A colored maid answered the doorbell and brought Zorie the stack of invitations in a cellophane wrapper.

Zorie was on the point of asking her if she could borrow an umbrella, but the door was quickly closed, and she decided against pressing the button again, for the maid had looked cross.

She examined the invitations under the porch light. They were addressed in Mrs. Folsome's spidery handwriting. The addresses were faculty wives and a few of the more prominent townswomen. There was no envelope addressed to Zorie Corey.

She went down the steps and into the rain. Less than one hundred feet from the Folsomes' front porch, on the corner, was a telephone pole to which was affixed a street light. The street light clearly illuminated two objects, a mailbox and a large trash basket on the side of which was a stenciled sign.

Zorie stopped. Two temptations were tugging at her. The first was to buy thirty-two-cent stamps and mail the invitations. The other temptation appealed strongly to the renegade in her, but it was as spurious as her wish that she'd never been born.

Thinking of the malicious gossip that flew around at these faculty teas, she gazed at the sign on the trash basket.

KEEP YOUR TOWN CLEAN
USE THIS!

"How I'd love to!" she murmured. Across the street was a taxicab with the meter ticking. She was too preoccupied to notice it. Yet she would remember every other detail of that night, of that moment: the sound of it, the look of it, the smell of it, the feel of it; all the little things that make a great moment so real in afterthought—the rattle of the rain on the tree.

SAUL REJECTED

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 15:10-22.
GOLDEN TEXT—Because thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, he hath also rejected thee from being king.—1 Samuel 15:23.

Moral failure is a direct result of disobedience to God's law. He established the moral order in the universe. His is the only right way, and the man who does not walk in God's way is wrong no matter how successful he may seem to be at the moment.

After a brief period of success, Saul sinned by intruding into the priests office at Gibeon (1 Sam. 13:10-14). This was soon followed by his disobedience in the battle with Amalek (1 Sam. 15:1-9). This brought final judgment from the Lord, and Saul stood revealed as

I. A Self-Will'd Reckless (vv. 10, 11).

"Turned back from following" God means just one thing, that is, turned back to self-will. These two principles, which are mutually exclusive, rule all actions of man—it is either God's will, or self-will.

Saul, who had every opportunity to make good as Israel's first king, lost out completely, and so turned away from God that God had to turn away from him, which is the thought expressed by "repenteth" (v. 11).

II. A Lying Hypocrite (vv. 12, 13).

Knowing that he had done just the opposite, Saul puts on his best "Sunday-go-to-church" manner and professed to be very pious, and completely obedient (v. 13). One marvels at his temerity, but not so much when one thinks of those in the church who put on the same kind of a "front" to cover a worldly, self-centered life.

Nothing hurts the cause of Christ more than the nervy hypocrites who deny by their lives before the community the thing for which the church stands. By the way, are you a hypocrite, you who read these lines? If so, flee to God in repentance. You are in bad company.

III. A Proud Deceiver (vv. 14, 15).

The difficulty with falsehood is that ultimately the truth comes to light. With Saul it came quickly, for the sheep which he said were dead were alive enough to bleat at just the right time. The deceit of Saul thus was proved in the very instant of his false declaration of innocence.

"Be sure your sin will find you out" (Num. 32:23) is not just a religious theory, it is God's word. "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper; but whose confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy" (Prov. 28:13).

IV. A Proud Disobeyer (vv. 16-18).

Now Saul had to stand before Samuel and hear the words of God's condemnation. He had to face his own life and see there the ground of the judgment of the Lord. He was reminded of the day of his humble dependence on the Lord, which had brought him exaltation to the highest place in Israel.

To be small in one's own eyes is to be great in the eyes of the Lord. He is looking for the acceptable sacrifice of a humble heart (Ps. 61:17; Isa. 57:15).

The tumult and the shouting dies;
The captains and the kings depart;
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice;
An humble and a contrite heart;
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget!

—KEPLING.

V. An Argumentative Evader (vv. 20, 21).

Once set in the way of disobedience, there seems to be no limit to the bold stubbornness of man. Instead of breaking down in contrition and confession, Saul tried to face the matter down by further argument and tricky evasion.

"I have obeyed," said he, "but the people." Who was king? Did the people obey Saul, or Saul the people? There is nothing honest about laying your sins over on another. How often people do it!

Notice also that Saul became very religious again. If anything had been done that seemed wrong, it was with a good purpose; they were going to "sacrifice to Jehovah."

"The sacrifices and ceremonies of religion are to aid and promote obedience, not to be a substitute. Disobedience can never be made a virtue, even though attended by a thousand sacrifices" (Stanley).

VI. A Rebellious Reject (vv. 22, 23).

"To obey is better than sacrifice." Oh, that we might learn well that lesson which God through Samuel tried to teach to Saul. We need to recognize that giving to the church, or working for the church, is not enough if there is not obedience to God; and with us that obedience must be the recognition of Christ as saviour and Lord.

Lip service, half obedience, a willingness to make sacrifices were not acceptable in the case of Saul. Be sure they are infinitely less acceptable to God in this day when we have His Son who wants to be our Saviour and to give us the enabling grace to obey His will.

Be Well Dressed— Save Bond Money

Pinafores have come out of the nursery and taken the place they deserve in fashion. Besides being flattering and practical for warm weather, they are easy to make—an ideal choice for a beginner's sewing project. The ruffled, be-ribboned pinafore pictured here is especially beguiling, and can be worn with or without a blouse. Make it yourself and put the money you save into War Bonds. The pattern may be secured at your local store. Back the Attack—Buy More Than Before.

EGAD! WHO CAN REFUSE
SURE-FIRE
INVESTMENT?

To the People of this Community

There are many urgent reasons for buying War Bonds. First, the invasion needs money. Bonds pay for planes and guns and munitions with which to beat the Axis. Our fighting men must have the best possible equipment and it is up to us to let our money provide this. A second reason is this: There is a shortage of goods now. Later on there will be plenty for civilian desires. Money put into War Bonds now will be available then. Business opportunities will be open then, too, and the "nest eggs" saved now may hatch out commercially then. Money put into War Bonds now will be deprived of its current potentiality as a part of the causes of inflation. You will be doing your part toward stabilizing the money situation by buying Bonds instead of dwindling stocks. That is a third reason.

But the best reason from a selfish viewpoint is this: Right now there is no better investment than War Bonds. There is no safer repository for your money. By buying Bonds you become a stockholder in the strongest "get out" in the world today, the United States of America.

The Strongest of Bonds—Your Dad and Your Country, Is the Slogan of Father's Day, June 18—Buy Bonds

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—Father's Day which falls on June 18th, 1944, will be a different kind of celebration of this event than in days before the war. This year ends American fathers away from home and family and by hundreds of thousands in uniforms of the Armed Services of our country. Many fathers are overseas. So this year's Father's Day is America's "Salute to our Fighting Dads". The National Father's Day Committee, in conjunction with the United States Treasury, is conducting a gigantic Father Bond Drive. There is an earnest and all-abiding awareness to push on to victory in the observance of this year's Father's Day. And every move being planned for the event is keyed to that

Buy a Bond for Father's Day. Father, himself, needs no reminding and will take note of the holiday created in his honor by himself buying bonds for Father's Day. The family is being urged to remember Dad—with War Bonds. The nation is being asked to wear the Father Rosette, a floral decoration made of War Stamps—a gentle reminder to all that there is only one idea in anyone's mind for this year's Father's Day and that is the winning of the war as quickly as possible and that means War Bonds and more War Bonds.

The Farmer and War Bond Purchases

by Charles W. Holman, Secretary
The National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation

AMERICAN farmers have a great deal more at stake in purchasing War Bonds than simply a patriotic urge to assist in financing the war so that it may be prosecuted to an early and victorious conclusion. Modern war demands governmental expenditures far in excess of those which may be met by current revenue receipts. This means Government borrowing. If a large part of this borrowing is through commercial banks additional inflationary spending power is created through the expansion of credit. On the other hand, if the borrowing is largely from individuals much of their excess funds are drained off. Hence, the pressure on prices resulting from unusually large funds bidding for limited amounts of goods and services is relieved, and thus inflation retarded.

A tremendously increased agricultural production and some increase in average prices received above those paid by farmers have raised the net income of all United States farmers from the 1935-39 average of $4.7 billion to $6.3 billion in 1941, $9.4 billion in 1942, and an estimated $12.5 billion in 1943. With available supplies of farm machinery replacements and building materials limited, Agriculture has a fund available for either debt retirement, savings readily liquidated for future purchases of machinery, buildings, etc., or for present investment in land.

A marked decrease in farm mortgages in recent years indicates that much of this fund has been properly applied to debt retirement. However, activity in land sales and a very marked increase in land values demonstrate that farmers are probably diverting a large part of this fund into land purchases. From March 1, 1943, to March 1, 1944, average land values per acre rose 15 per cent, with the larger part of the rise taking place in the last four months of the period. The increase during this four-month period was the highest on record, being 20 per cent greater than the average monthly rate of increase for the 1919-20 boom year. Average values per acre have increased more than one-third in the past 3 years. In the 1916-19 period the rise was about the same.

It appears that an overcapitalization of probably temporarily high farm commodity prices is in process just as in World War I. Large mortgage debts incurred now, at high levels of income, will prove disastrous when both total agricultural production and prices fall. Land values are based on the net return to land. With the end of the war in sight and with the prospect that farm labor and other costs will require a relatively larger return leaving the return to land less, the logical course for land values at present would appear to be downward rather than upward.

Therefore, it appears that farmers would do well to invest every available dollar, beyond that needed for debt retirement, in Government Bonds. These can be held against the day when necessary farm replacements will be available and when farm land values will have become more stable. In this way the individual farmer may assist in hastening the day of return of his son, and also have capital available to help finance him in ventures of his own choice.

War Bonds as Investment for Farmers

by Warren W. Hawley, Jr., President
New York State Farm Bureau Federation

IN CHECKING figures of the Farm Credit Administration, I find that farmers are paying off mortgages faster than at any other period in the history of the Federal Land Bank.

At the same time, farmers are building up cash reserves, but the wise investment of this money is an extremely hard job for farmers to undertake. The temptation is to try and obtain as high an interest rate as possible.

Many of us see no reason why we should not get as much interest on our money now as we had to pay the bank when we were forced to borrow during the depression.

The answer is that today money is cheap—"expanded"—as the bankers express it. Therefore interest rates are low except in very speculative securities. Naturally no farmer wants to risk losing his hard earned cash.

We farmers know our own business and we can invest money in it safely because we understand it. However, when we branch off into other fields, especially the highly technical field of investments, most of us encounter sad experiences.

In these days it is virtually impossible for farmers to put their surplus cash back into the farm. War-time conditions prevent us from repairing buildings, and buying new machinery, automobiles, trucks and other equipment we must eventually have if we are going to stay in business.

So the smart thing for farmers to do is to invest their surplus money in War Bonds where it is as safe as a dollar bill. These bonds increase in value the longer they are held; they can be cashed after sixty days in case of need, and they will provide a reserve for investment after the war in the business the farmers know best—the business of farming.

I confidently predict that if farmers will do this, the dawn of peace will signalize a new day for agriculture.
