THE BUSY WIFE.

Rev. Walter E. Isenbour, Hiddenite, N. C.
It's wash the dishes, cook the meals.
And make the beds each day;
It's listen as some child reveals
Its trouble while at play;
It's feed the hungry little tots
And soothe their aches and pains;
It's put them in their little cots,
Or keep their clothes from stains.
It's sweep and sew and patch and mend,
And wash then scrub the floors;
It's be a neighbor—good to lend—
And do a lot of chores.
It's help the husband manage well
To save a lot of bills;
It's smile when she would like to tell
Of troubles, sorrows, ills.
It's help the children off to school
And fix their lunch for noon;
It's practice well the Golden Rule
And keep the soul in tune
To do these things from day to day
The same things o'er and o'er—
And thence with patience she must pray
To reach the Heavenly shore.
It's work and toil till late at night
And rise at early morn;
It's keep her soul and spirit bright
That home she may adorn.
It's be a mother and a wife
That's saintly, kind and good;
It's live a noble, helpful life
For home and neighborhood.
God bless the queenly wife always,
And keep her full of grace,
So when she ends her earthly stay
In Heaven she'll have a place
With saints and angels sweet and fair
On God's eternal shore.
Where there will never be a care,
Nor troubles any more.

First "Political" Speech

Since Candidate Roosevelt's first admitted speech to the Teamsters Union last month, Washington observers have speculated over reaction to the Chief Executive's nod to the Political Action Committee.
Roosevelt's public endorsement of contribution from workers to Sidney Hillman's Communist directed Political Action Committee marked the first time in political history, one observer pointed out, that a candidate of a major party has accepted support from leaders isms alien to the American form of government.
Forced to abandon his role as Commander-in-Chief, the fourth term candidate made no reference to his famed "Dr. Win-The-War" slogan.
By his reference to the New Deal—after publicly pronouncing it dead a few months ago—Washington political observers say Roosevelt lost stature, that he has been forced into into his rightful role as an ambitious man seeking to retain himself in office. He has been stripped of his Uniform, leaving Franklin Roosevelt simply an ordinary candidate with an old bill of goods for sale.

Famous Forgotten Words

There will be many in this nation during the coming months who will implore you not to swap horses crossing a stream; there will be many in this nation during the coming months who will implore you not to swap horses crossing a stream; there will be others who will laughingly tell you that the appeal should have been worded, "Do not swap toboggans while you are sliding downhill."
"But it seems to me that the more truthful, the more accurate plea to the people of the nation should be this: 'If the old car, in spite of frequent emergency repairs, has been bumping along downhill on only two evilnders for three long years, it is time to get another car that will start uphill on all four.'"
—Franklin D. Roosevelt, St. Paul, Minn., April 18, 1932.
"I have not sought, I do not seek, I repudiate the support of any advocate of Communism. That is my position. It has always been my position. It always will be my position."—Franklin D. Roosevelt, at Syracuse, N. Y., 1936.
"Clear everything with Sidney."

Scrap To Japs

For years the Republicans fought to place an embargo on scrap iron to Japan. On January 3, 1939, Representative Fred Crawford, (R., Mich., introduced a bill in Congress to stop the sale of scrap iron, pig iron, and steel scraps to that country. Not until 1941 did the administration stop the sale of scrap. This was too late to prevent the building of the Jap war machine.
In the first eight years of the New Deal, over 10,000,000 tons of scrap iron went to Japan. This amount would have built 20 battleships of 45,000 tons each, 50 plane carriers of 30,000 tons each, 100 cruisers of 15,000 tons each, 500 submarines of 2,400 tons each; and still leave nearly 5,000,000 tons for planes, tanks, bombs, torpedoes, and bullets.
During the Roosevelt depression we were buying toys, novelties and crockery from the Japanese while American plants remained idle. Our plants could not compete with 25-cents per day Jap labor.

Lady Overloaded

While walking down the streets of Albemarle the other day I met a lady apparently doing her shopping. She seemed to be heavy laden. I said, "Lady, looks like you have been doing quite a bit of shopping today?" She said, "Shopping! Why no, I've just started to do my shopping; these are ration books I'm carrying."

Bluntly Bunk

Recently a friend of ours complained that the men overseas couldn't vote: And that friend was a member of the armed services of the United States.
Frankly it puzzles us as to the source of his information. Obviously he was sincere, but just as obviously he had been misinformed.
Ever since the battle over the so-called "bob-tailed ballot for service voting, the Administration has repeatedly tried to convince the people that a conspiracy existed to prevent our boys and girls in the service from exercising their Constitutional suffrage right. That is bluntly bunk.
Under the provisions adopted by the Congress every man and woman otherwise eligible to cast a ballot can do so. And what is more important they can vote a full ticket, something that Mr. Roosevelt and his Administration leaders would have denied them had they had their way.
So let us short circuit the subterfuge. Let's be honest with ourselves. The method prescribed by the Congress for participation in the forthcoming elections is a Constitutional method; it is an easy method and it is a complete method. Your son and daughter can, if they will, vote for every office on the list from the sheriff of their country to the President of the United States. To deprive them of their right to choose local officers as the New Deal proposed would have partially disfranchised them. It would have enabled them to vote for President, Vice President and Congressional representation only. Not even for Governor if one were running in their state.
The American people and the men and women in uniform are not going to be deceived at this brazen effort to prevent them from exercising their rights under the Constitution. They are not willing to be voted en masse in the manner of the totalitarian countries they are fighting. The New Deal is laying down a smoke barrage but they are accustomed to that. There is no smoke in their eyes.

No Two-Pants Suits

With 1,900,000,000 pounds of surplus wool piled up in this country, 600,000,000 pounds of it imported from Australia, it remains utterly impossible for thrifty Americans to follow the economical policy of buying two pairs of trousers with a suit of clothes.
In Idaho, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, after conferences with leading citizens Sheeprmen of the western area, found that this uneconomic condition is bound to react to the damage if not the utter ruin of American sheepraisers who have been urged by the New Deal administration to increase their flocks.

C.I.O. Thomas Said

"The candidacy of Thomas E. Dewey is preposterous and I urge that our entire CIO membership leave no stone unturned in our fight for the re-election of President Roosevelt.—President R. J. Thomas of the CIO United Automobile Workers at Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept 11. This is the same R. J. Thomas who went down to Texas to break the laws of that state and who wound up in contempt of a Texas court. He is the type of law breaker who is rallying to the rescue of the CIO-Dynasty."

Look Here!

"We favor a single presidential term, and to that end urge the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution making the President of the United States ineligible for reelection, and we pledge the convention to this principle." — Democratic National Platform of 1912

Reckless Driving

If it be true that the constitution belongs to the horse and buggy age, I would rather ride with Washington in a buggy behind a horse than intrust myself to the reckless driving of Roosevelt." — Former United States Senator Jim Reed (Dem) of Missouri

Your Tastes Aren't Right

One of the toughest problems the New Dealers say they have to face in getting things done is that of individual America of the future—the one that the collectivists plan—we will all eat what the bureaucrats want us to eat, play where they want us to play, and otherwise give up our personal freedom for "security."
Right now, for example the department of Agriculture admits that one of its No. 1 food problems is to "re-educate" housewives into the use of utility beef quickly enough to prevent great quantities of it from going to waste this season.
Why wouldn't it be a good idea to "re-educate" the bureaucrats in trying to think before they do away with the law of supply and demand so that the "re-education" of consumers won't be necessary. But this would be too simple and the New Deal won't like the suggestion at all.

No Indispensable Man

The theory that Candidate Roosevelt is an "indispensable man," the only one capable of leading the United States in the days ahead, has been blasted by Governor Thomas E. Dewey. Millions of Americans are joining Governor Dewey in refuting that theory.
"If our republic after 150 years of self-government, is dependent upon the endless continuance of one man in office, then the hopes which animated the men who fought for the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution have indeed come to nothing," declared the Republican Presidential nominee.
Under the indispensable man theory, every mother is being deprived of hope that her son may one day become President of the United States. Every schoolboy is deprived of incentive to develop leadership and statesmanship. A machine is being built to do his thinking, to govern his every act, to tell him that he is incapable of achievement.
By the same principle that one man did not build America, its peace and prosperity can never depend on an individual.
Governor Dewey has the faith in the American people to recognize and accomplish the requirements for peace and prosperity.

No Work---No Pay

A Charlotte young man advertises that he is "interested in position with no labor but good pay." We believe his interest is shared by millions, but he is the first one we've come across who is frank enough to state so in advertising for a job.
The young man, who gives his age as 32 knows better. Even in these days of help shortage we doubt if the young seeker for a soft snuff snap will find an employer who is so altruistic, or so crazy to pay a good salary for no labor.
There are some jobs that pay excellent salaries for practically no labor. Most of them are government jobs, of course, plums shaken from the political tree, rewards for past favors, so if the young man is really interested in a position with no labor but good pay we advise him to go into politics. The only trouble is that it often takes a long time before politics starts paying off, and in the meantime there is the pressing problem of buying groceries and providing baby with shoes and teethings.

Even in private industry there are occasional soft jobs, but as a rule they have had to be earned by a lifetime of hard work intelligence and unflagging zeal in helping to build up the business, unless papa owns the joint. They are rewards for outstanding past performance, for loyal cooperation, for valuable services rendered and are hardly ever dropped into the laps of young men who aspire to positions with no labor but good pay.

There are jobs with practically no labor, but alas, very little pay goes with them. So if the "good pay" part is more important than the "no labor" provision, we'd advise the Charlotte young man to roll up his shirt sleeves and prepare to do some old-fashioned sweating. And after a couple of dozen years of giving honest efforts in return for whatever pay he receives, he may find himself in the position he wants to start out with—no labor and good pay. But by that time he will have become so accustomed to work that he'll prefer to continue with his labors.—Statesville Daily.

Breakfast Patterns

A recent survey made tells us that 65 per cent of the doctors and 88 per cent of the teachers say the average person eats too little for breakfast.

Other interesting facts reveal that most people believe they get about 20 per cent of their daily nourishment from breakfast. Doctors and teachers here again estimate they get about 28 per cent nourishment from breakfast.

One of the reasons, perhaps, for skipping on breakfast is that time is limited. The survey goes on to say that people themselves estimate they spend around 12 minutes eating breakfast with farmers spending more than that, factory workers less. On Sundays, when there is no work to dash to, the time for breakfast stretches enormously, and so probably does the nourishment.

These, then, are the findings. Here are the facts: a breakfast is one of the three meals of the day and as such should provide a third of the day's food requirements—calories, vitamins, minerals, etc. In fact, planned correctly, the breakfast can take care of that serving of cereal, that citrus fruit or juice and the egg a day requirements. If the worker has a heavy schedule, the food can be made extra nourishing, such as cooking the cereal in milk, or at least serving with cream or rich milk and sugar. Have both eggs and cereal for breakfast if the calorie intake has to be upped, and serve jellies or jam with toast in addition to the butter.

Why Breakfast?
Breakfasts, good breakfasts, are important if we are to keep mental and physical energy at the highest level during morning hours.

The time elapsing between dinner and breakfast is the longest interval between any meal. The stretch between the evening meal and the morning meal is usually as long as 12 hours. Sleep consumes energy, too, for the very process of living, while asleep requires approximately 65 calories for the average-sized adult.

Now here are some breakfast patterns that will fit nicely into your schedule even if you have only 12 to 15 minutes in which to take breakfast:

LYNN SAYS

Color Notes: Use different colored dishes and pottery jugs for breakfast to make the morning as bright and gay as possible. Here's how:

Mix orange juice with cranberry juice for unusual effect.

Fleck scrambled eggs with bits of parsley, chopped chives or of bacon curis.

Add raisins to oatmeal and serve with yellow butter and sugar.

Contrast the crisp brown of sausages with fried red-skinned apples.

THE CHRISTIAN AND THE RACE PROBLEM

LESSON TEXT—Acts 10:9-16, 34, 35; 17:24-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, is acceptable to Him.—Acts 10:34, 35.

Now is the time to really face the race problem. It must be met, or America will see more of the regrettable hatred and violence which has already showed itself.

The only satisfactory answer—the only right answer—can be found in the Word of God. On its principles we must build in solving any problem, and that is especially true with regard to the vital matter of human relationships.

How to Solve the Race Problem
I. Pray (10:9).

So often we struggle and plan and work, and last of all we pray. That should be the first thing, not the last. It was as Peter prayed that he saw clearly the need of a changed attitude toward the Gentiles.

Doubtless some Gentiles would also have a changed attitude toward the Jews, if they really prayed about it. In fact, all of our prejudices based on race, creed, financial or social position would look cheap and untenable if we prayed.

Conferences, efforts toward mutual understanding, education of children (and grown-ups), tolerance, all these are good; but let us not forget to pray, and to do it first.

II. Listen to God's Word (10:10-16). Peter had a special vision, an unusual revelation from God. We no longer need such a direct communication of God's plan and purpose, for we have the written Word of God, and the Living Word has come in the person of Christ.

What we need now is to read and to hear the truth of that Word—and then to heed it. Everywhere in the Bible we find the declaration of man's equal rights. We learn that God hates discrimination or prejudice, that no nationality is unclean (v. 15) or unworthy of His grace and of our fellowship.

We know these things are in the Book; why do so many of us fail to listen to its message? We are bound by it whether we listen or not, so had we not better listen and obey?

III. Be Governed by God's Principles (10:34, 35).

"God is no respecter of persons." Why are we? The expression literally means "receiving a man's face," that is, judging or evaluating him not by what he has proved himself to be, but by his outward appearance, the look on his face.

God is interested in man's heart and what is in it (I Sam. 16:7). We should do well to follow His leading and not be controlled by the dress, the race, or the position of a man.

Note the basis of acceptance with God (v. 35), namely, a right attitude toward Him. No matter what a man's color or race may be, the grace of God in Christ Jesus can reach him, and bring him into acceptance with God.

IV. Recognize God's Authority (17:24-26).

God made the world. He rules the world and all that is in it. He is above man, and it is He who gives man the very breath of life.

That being the case, we all stand on the same level—we are equal before Him.

Everything God made was (and is) very good (Gen. 1:31). That means that He knows nothing in His nature of one group being despised and persecuted by another group self-designated as a master race.

All men are of one family (v. 26). It is God's Word. Let us believe it, and be thoughtful and kind toward the members of our own "family."

We all know how disgraceful family fights are, and how they hurt. Could it possibly be any different in the family of God? Let's quit the bickering, and together work for God's glory! We can do it—for we may—

V. Count on God's Nearness (17:27, 28).

Sometimes children fight and quarrel because they know father and mother are away and will not hear or punish. Well, God is not far away. He is "nearer to us than breathing nearer than hands and feet." In Him we (and that means all of us) "live and move and have our being."

He is here; let us not act as though He were far away. But above all, let us recognize His nearness as our life and strength, the One who enables us to live as we should with one another. We need His grace for that purpose. Let us count on it.

"We are all His offspring," that is, by creation. Then by our sin and rebellion we made ourselves the "children of disobedience" (Eph. 5:6; Titus 3:3). But we may (and many of us have) become the true children of God by faith in Jesus Christ our Lord (John 1:12). As such, we are all brethren beloved, eager for our fellow's good and for God's glory.

What has happened to Eleanor? Maybe hubby has her fastened up.

Only one more week of suspense, and then the hot air artists can take a rest for two years.

Harold Ickes says Dewey lied, and Frank Kent says Roosevelt also lied, which means the campaign is warming up.

It was Abraham Lincoln who gave the Negroes their freedom, not Franklin Roosevelt, Earl Browder nor Sidney Hillman.

Every man and woman in Davie county who is qualified to vote should go to the polls on next Tuesday and vote for the men of their choice. This is a privilege that all should exercise. Don't stay at home and then criticize the men who are elected to office in your county, state or nation.

A leading Davie Democrat told us a few days ago that the Democrats in Davie would elect one Democratic county commissioner this fall. A day or two later he dropped into our sanctum and told us that the Democrats in Davie wouldn't elect a man on their county ticket this fall. We believe he told the truth.

Mr. Roosevelt said only a few short weeks ago that he would not make any active campaign this fall—that he was too busy. Wonder what has happened in the last month that has caused him to forget what he said? Only a week or so ago he rode over New York City for four hours in a cold rain in an open car, soliciting votes. He must be frightened.

It seems possible that North Carolina Republicans may elect at least one or more Republican Congressmen this year. Thousands of good Democrats in this section have become disgusted with the rubber stamp Congress that has held sway in Washington for the past twelve years. A change would be a blessing to the country. When the wicked rule the people mourn.

Suppose Mr. Roosevelt is elected President next Tuesday. Suppose again that he should die before his fourth term expired. That would mean that Harry Truman would become President. With Truman Chief Executive, one wonders if he would appoint Sidney Hillman as Secretary of State and Earl Browder as Secretary of Labor. Give all these questions serious consideration before casting your vote on Nov. 7th.

Mrs. Roosevelt made a trip to the South Pacific last year to visit and cheer up American troops, it was said. Eleanor traveled a distance of about 26,000 miles by plane, which consumed about 40,000 gallons of gas, costing over $6,000. This didn't include the salaries of the crew and other salaries of the officers who flew Mrs. Roosevelt and a companion here. We would be very glad to know where she got enough gas coupons to get 40,000 gallons of gas, and who paid the expense of the trip. Will some of our Democratic papers in this neck of the woods enlighten us on this matter.

Republican Speakings!

An Eighth Air Force Liberator Station, England—The B-24 Liberator Four engine Bomber Group in which Technical Sergeant Robert A. James, Mocksville, N. C., is a member recently was cited by Major General William E. Kegner, commanding 2nd Bombardment Division, "for distinguished and outstanding performance of duty."

The citation in part reads: "The devotion to duty, determination and tenacity of purpose exhibited by personnel of the Group reflect great credit upon themselves, their organization and the United States Army Air Forces."

The Group, which recently completed its 100th combat mission, is commanded by Colonel Luther J. Fairbanks of Burt, Iowa, and had previously been cited by Lt. Gen. H. Doolittle, commanding Eighth Air Forces, for low level destruction of a bridge across the Loire, near Blois, France. Demolition of the span was order regardless of cost.

Earlier the group had been officially commended by General Coolidge for combat achievement on its first mission, an attack on Berlin and the longest initial assault ever flown in the European theater. The attack was one of the heaviest day light bombings of the German capital on record.

During its first 100 missions, "overcoming adverse weather conditions and fierce enemy fighter and anti aircraft opposition," the group attacked 41 targets in Germany and 59 targets in enemy-occupied Europe. Forty seven hundred (4700) tons of bombs were dropped on vital enemy installations.

Sam Hutchens, who has held a position with the Horn Oil Co., for some time is now with the Western Auto Store.

PVT. JOHN J. GODBEY, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Godbey, of R. 1, entered the U. S. Army Aug. 10th. He is now stationed at Camp Blanding, Fla.

JOBS AND OPPORTUNITY

"It took a World War to get jobs for the American people.

"Now, Washington is getting all set for another depression. They intend to keep the young men in the Army. The New Deal spokesmen are daily announcing that reconversion will be difficult, if not impossible. They say that relief rolls will be enormous.

"The reason for this long continued failure is twofold. First, because there never was a worse job done of running our government.

"When the W.P.B. fell apart, so did your chance under this administration for jobs after the war.

"The other reason for this long continued failure is because this administration has so little faith in the United States. They believe that our task is not to produce more goods but to fight among ourselves over what we have.

"I believe that we have not even begun to build our industrial plant. No living man has yet dreamed of the limit to which we can go if we have a government which believes in the American economic system and in the American people.

"There can be—there must be—jobs and opportunity for all at a high level of wages and salaries."

VOTE FOR DEWEY AND BRICKER ON NOV. 7
POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT

BRITISH AWARE OF CONGRESS

Although the average Britisher will be amazed if FDR is not elected to a fourth term, recent weeks have seen the British press and public far more aware of the possibility of Republican victory.

When Governor Dewey began his recent speaking tour, he rated about one paragraph per speech in most London papers, with an editorial tending to depreciate the GOP standard-bearer.

However, the challenger's space in the London press gradually increased during September, culminating in double-column headlines on the front pages the night after his Oklahoma City speech.

Chatting one day with a member of the British House of Commons, Congressman Mundt was asked about Dewey's chances. He replied that he thought they were excellent and that Dewey might very well go into the White House next year.

Mundt mentioned the incident later to Churchill's minister of information, Brendan Bracken, who apologized: "I thought we had them better trained than that."

PARLIAMENT NOTICES CONGRESS

An important result of the U. S. political uncertainty is the determination on the part of the British government to work with this country on the legislative as well as the executive level.

While observing the British Parliament, Mundt heard a speech by Lord Braithwaite, author of a recent bill inviting American congressmen to England as official guests.

"Our international friendship," said Lord Braithwaite, "cannot be permitted to depend on the slender reed of affection between two individuals separated by a mighty ocean."

GOOD NEIGHBORS PROVIDE COFFEE

The backstage story in regard to the near threat of coffee rationing is that the Good Neighbor policy paid dividends last month.

U. S. retail coffee prices here have been frozen since December, 1941, but the cost of producing coffee in Brazil, Colombia, Salvador and Venezuela has not.

The governments of these four countries have been under constant pressure from powerful coffee interests to get better prices in the United States.

As a result, growers have been tapering off in their acceptance of orders from the U. S. A. Gambling on an early end of the war, they decided to build up stocks for immediate sale to England, Sweden, France and Spain.

This refusal of growers to accept new orders led the War Food Administration to recommend rationing to OPA Administrator Chester Bowles last summer.

1,000,000 BAGS A MONTH

When brilliant Brazilian minister of finance, Souza Costa, was in Washington last July, he guaranteed us a minimum of 1,000,000 bags of Brazilian coffee for each of the four months from September through December.

Meanwhile, the administration found itself unable to buy coffee for delivery even next year.

It was at this point that Marvin Jones and Chester Bowles went to assist Pres. Jimmy Byrnes with their problem.

Truce Clears Battleground of Civilians

When Dunkirk became the center of operations, Allies and Germans agreed to a truce in order that civilians could leave the city. Views showing them leaving are typical of other cities along the route of the advancing Yanks.

Holland in Ruins as War Rages Toward Berlin

Typical of most Holland cities, Nejmegen, hit by German and Allied bombardment and shelling, shows the effect of the war upon that country. American soldiers aid in cleaning up the city as well as take care of snipers left behind by the retreating Nazis.

Coastguardsmen Cast Ballots

Coastguardsmen at a replacement pool in the South Pacific exercise their right to vote along with millions of American servicemen all over the world.

No Place Like Our Old Home

Even when it is in ruins like this one at Scarperia, near the Gothic line in Italy, there is no place like home. Using a shell hole in the wall for a door, the people return and lay plans on building a new home without fear of further oppression from the Nazi yolk as was their lot in the past.

Aachen Given Terms

Lieut. William Boehme, New York City, with another officer and a private carried the surrender terms to the besieged Nazi garrison at Aachen, Germany.

Snite Goes South

Frederick Snite, the "boiler kid," shown in his iron lung, with his daughter, Terese Marie, a year and three months old, as he left his Chicago home for the winter in Florida.

SNUFFY Stirweiss, the bounding Yankee second baseman, rates double ranking as a combination baseball and football star.

Grantland Rice

The Stirweiss claim to double fame brought up an old argument recently that began with this question—

"Who was the best combination football and baseball player in the history of the big leagues?"

There are more than a few who belong in this contest. First of all, there was Christy Mathewson, Bucknell's star back and the Giants' greatest right-hander.

Certainly no one could rake up a list along these lines and leave off Frank Frisch, the 145-pound Fordham flash and one of the best ball players of his or any other time.

Lou Gehrig was another Columbia football star, whose fine gridiron record was overshadowed by his baseball fame.

And there was Jim Thorpe, only a fair big leaguer, but football's finest back, and Ernie Nevers of Stanford and the Browns who was as good a back as any coach could ask for.

The Hot Parade

There must have been a few others, but even this collection shows the hot parade Stirweiss has joined.

But the main question still remains unsettled—"If 100 points were awarded for baseball skill and the same for football ability, who would finish on top?"

Mathewson, Gehrig, Cochrane, Frisch and Chandler head the baseball list. Thorpe and Nevers were the two leading football players from the group.

Slightly changing an old query—"Upon what swing doth this, our Nelson bank, that he has become so great?"

In pursuit of this information we called upon Al Ciuci, pro at the Fresh Meadow Country Club, and one of the best instructors and smartest observers of them all.

"In my opinion the success of Byron Nelson is due to his sound golf swing. Just what does this mean?"

"His head is at all times back of the ball, which accounts for his body being back of the sphere until the hit and his hands move on to complete a smooth follow through.

"His head is at all times back of the ball, which accounts for his body being back of the sphere until the hit and his hands move on to complete a smooth follow through.

"Don't forget also that Nelson is a determined competitor who is usually able to concentrate fully all the way through a tournament.

"Nelson's backswing reminds me of Douglas Edgar, whom you remember well. In my opinion Edgar was the finest iron player of all time.

GIRL OVERBOARD

by GEORGE F. WORTS

WNU RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Zorie Corey, who hates herself for being so meek, is railroaded into taking a job she does not want, assisting Admiral Duncan write his memoirs. She is in love with Paul Duncan, the admiral's grandson. Aboard the steamship Samoa, en route to Hawaii, she dances with Steve, Paul's brother. Paul is furious, and warns Zorie against him, claiming that Steve is a Nazi spy. On returning to her stateroom after taking dictation Zorie discovers that her notebook is missing. While alone on deck a brutal hand is clamped over her mouth, she is scooped up and thrown overboard. She avoids the propellers and manages to catch a life ring which some sailor has tossed into the sea.

CHAPTER X

"The nurse told me not to disturb you for a while. I'd like to see you as soon as possible. It's very important, are you alone?"

"I will be," said Zorie. She reached for her dressing gown and said to Amber: "You won't mind going out for a while. My fiance wants to talk things over."

There was droll amusement in Amber's "Ah, yes! Your fiance! Not at all, my dear."

Zorie was sitting at the dressing table, thoughtfully considering Amber's array of cosmetics, when Paul knocked. She opened the door. He came in and closed it.

She half lifted her arms, expecting that he would seize her and hug and kiss her out of sheer relief that she was alive.

He looked her over quickly. He nodded jerkily. "You were lucky," he said. "You certainly were lucky. Are you sure you're all right?"

"Yes," Zorie said. "I'm all right." She was surprised that her feeling about Paul hadn't changed. Everything else had changed, but she was still in love with Paul. With a little working over, Paul would be satisfactory.

"Well," Paul said in a business-like way, "I've just had a long talk with the captain—with the doctor and the chief officer sitting in. This is pretty serious, Zorie."

"Yes," said Zorie. "I suppose it isn't an everyday occurrence."

She realized she had to make a decision. Her sole desire just now was to find out who had thrown her overboard. It occurred to her that it might be unwise to tell Paul that she had been thrown overboard. She was sure that the only people on the ship who knew were Amber, her uncle, and Pierre Savoyard. It would be impossible to prove that one of them had thrown her overboard. It would, she decided, be wiser to wait until she had talked with Steve.

"I have it all fixed up with the captain," Paul said. "The whole episode will be forgotten—nothing will be said. The incident will be closed."

"I'm afraid I don't understand," Zorie interrupted.

"You see," he explained, "a thing like this is very unpleasant for the steamship company."

"It's rather unpleasant for the victim, too," Zorie pointed out.

"You don't understand," said Paul. "This could easily cause a great deal of trouble for us all. The mainland and the Honolulu papers, if they picked up the truth—"

"The truth?" Zorie stopped him. Paul looked somewhat grim. "You see, Zorie, even while the ship was being put about to pick you up, and since then, the captain and the chief officer have been questioning the crew. Several of the crew say you were drunk. You were seen staggering about the ship."

"I see," Zorie said dreamily. "I fell overboard because I was drinking."

"Well, isn't it obvious? Didn't you?"

"Will that get into the papers?" Zorie asked.

"Certainly not! That's what I've been arranging. Everything's all fixed. The story had already been wired to Honolulu and the mainland that it was a prank. Someone dared you to walk the rail. You did. You slipped. You—"

"Who dared me?" Zorie asked.

Paul made a gesture of impatience. "No name had to be given. No one knows. One of the passengers. That clears you of any of the wrong kind of notoriety, and it absolves the company of any responsibility. You see, in a case like this, there's often apt to be a lawsuit."

"You mean, the company might sue me?"

"No, dear. You might sue the company."

"Paul," Zorie said, "you're wonderful. You think of everything."

"I even dropped in on the wireless man. They publish the shipboard newspaper, you know. I gave them a rather amusing account of it—for the passengers' benefit—and to plug any nasty rumors that might be going around. Now, all you have to do is sign this."

He held out a typed slip and his fountain pen, uncapped.

"What is it?"

"A release. It absolves the company of all responsibility."

Zorie signed it. Paul waved the release, to dry her signature.

"By the way," he said, "my brother is quite ill."

"Steve?" Zorie cried.

"Just about the time you fell overboard he was taken with an attack of acute indigestion. That was why the doctor didn't take care of you. He was busy pumping out Steve's stomach."

"How ill is he?" Zorie gasped.

"Oh, he'll be all right in the morning."

"Does he get these attacks often?"

"No, but he should—the way he drinks. I don't want to sound like a reformer, darling, but you do know how I feel about liquor. I hope you've had your lesson. I hope you'll never touch the stuff again as long as you live."

There was a familiar expression in Paul's eyes. It usually went with one of his lectures on the importance of being earnest.

"Zorie," he said, "you are still under the influence of those drinks, and I'm afraid you don't quite know what you're saying."

"I'm saying," Zorie said gently, "you'd better stop being so grim—and you'd better start stopping awfully soon. I am not the girl you knew, Paul. I am a changed person. I'm not meek any more. I am a woman who intends to fight for her rights."

"Good night, dear," Paul said hastily, as he moved to the door. "You need sleep. Sleep as late as you can. Good night."

"But . . ." Zorie began with determination. Then she realized that she must be patient with Paul. There were many people with whom she hadn't the slightest intention of being patient, but Paul was not one of them. She adored Paul. She would see to it that he lost his grumpiness and his stiffness. Then Paul would be perfect.

She went to bed. She was almost asleep when Amber let herself in. Amber opened and closed the door so carefully that it didn't make a sound. She undressed noiselessly. She took the greatest pains not to disturb the girl who had slapped her face.

The telephone awoke her at a little before nine. Amber reached for it, answered it, and handed it to Zorie, saying, "It's for you, darling."

It was the admiral. He hoped he hadn't waked her. He hoped she was feeling well after her experience—hm?

"Do you suppose you could drop around sometime this morning?" he asked. "Steve is very anxious to talk to you."

"How is Steve?"

"He'll be all right. Steve is pretty tough, you know."

"Was it something he ate?" Zorie asked.

"The doctor couldn't say. I'll tell him you'll be around as soon as you've had a bite of breakfast—hm?"

"All right," said Zorie. She would see Steve when she got around to it. She wanted to do some thinking first. And there were other things she wanted to do.

She went to the beauty parlor. She had her hair washed, waved and arranged in a becoming new way. The beauty operator was clever. She was an enthusiast. She knew just what Zorie wanted and she knew just how to help her. Zorie bought rouge and lipstick and the beauty operator helped her apply them tellingly.

"Now," the girl said, when Zorie paid and tipped her, "you are beautiful, Miss Corey. You really are."

Zorie did not have to be told, but it was nice, anyway. The mirror told her everything. But it wasn't just the new hair-do, the rouge, the lipstick. It was something new in her face. There had been an indefinable softness before—a vagueness. Her chin line seemed clearer and bolder. But the great change was in her eyes. They were clear and bright and sparkling. They had assurance. They had arrogance.

She went to the admiral's suite and knocked on the door, not with her old timidity, but with assurance. She had two lovely battles on her hands beyond that door, and they weren't going to be Battles of Manila Bay; they were going to be Jutlands.

The admiral opened the door. He was smiling absently. He looked at her. He stared. His smile became tremulous. It faded. It returned in the form of a delighted grin.

"Zorie!" he cackled. "Why! I hardly knew you, my dear! And after what you went through last night! You are lovely! Maybe I'd better fall off this ship myself!"

"Where is Steve?"

"On the lanai."

Zorie walked out into the lanai, with the admiral trotting along behind her.

Steve, in a white toweling dressing gown, was stretched out in one of the long bamboo chairs. His pallor was shocking. His eyes were pale. He looked really ill.

He grinned slowly and said, "Hello, glamour girl!"

The admiral said, "Zorie, do you think you're going to feel like working today?"

"Yes," Zorie answered, "I feel very much like working today."

"I wanted to get on with the Battle of Manila Bay, then I thought we'd go back and finish up those chapters on my first years in Annapolis."

For a moment, her resolve faltered. Habit—that detested old habit of meekness—made her pliant. But the wavery feeling passed.

"I'm sorry," Zorie said. "I'm sorry to let you waste all that time. If you want me to help you with your memoirs, Admiral, the chapters on Annapolis and everything, perhaps, but a short chapter on Manila Bay go overboard."

"Now, wait a minute—" the admiral began.

"I mean it," she said. "Steve was right yesterday. You're the only person alive who can tell the story of the Duncan family. From the little I've heard of it, it's a fascinating story, a really wonderful story. If you want me to help you on a book—that's going to be the book."

She heard a chuckle from the bamboo chair.

The admiral's eyes were fiery. His obstinate chin was unusually prominent. His right fist was clenched. With it he banged on the table.

"Nobody is going to tell me how I'm going to write my book!" he shrieked. "Not even you, Zorie. No, sir! I write my own book my own way—or there won't be a book!"

"Very well," Zorie said serenely. "There won't be a book. As a matter of fact, there isn't any portion of any book. All of yesterday's dictation—" She lifted her hands in a gesture indicative of emptiness.

"You didn't destroy it!" the admiral gasped.

"Gone!" said Zorie.

"Good girl!" said Steve.

"I'm sorry, Admiral," Zorie said, "but that's how it is."

Admiral Duncan glared at her. "All right!" he snapped. "If you say so, Zorie—all right! But only because I have the utmost respect for your opinion! Not because I agree with you for a moment—hm?"

"And that," Steve said languidly, "is the first time since grandmother died that anybody has backed down the old fire-eater."

He strode out of the room. A moment later he came back almost running. His face, usually so red, looked very pale. He was panting when he stopped beside them.

"Honolulu and Pearl Harbor," he said, "were bombed this morning!"

Coral Sea Divers Easily Overcome Grip of Octopus

Natives of the Coral sea have very little fear of strangulation in the grips of the monstrous octopus. Usually the octopus wraps its tentacles about the victim's legs, waist or neck and breaking this hold is simple. The native simply grasps the octopus' upper and lower jaws and, with a sudden powerful thrust, turns the mouth inside out. This bursts the ink reservoir, killing the octopus and causing the tentacles to uncoil.

INDULGE in a riot of color in these "South of the Border" tea towels. Make gay caballeros and señoritas in cross-stitch.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Warm feet are assured when one has to wear rubber boots in winter or when wading an icy stream, if woolen socks are first put on and then paper sacks drawn on and snugly folded about the foot. Then put on another pair of socks—heavy cotton does all right for the second pair. Feet dressed in this way get warm and stay so, no matter how cold the day or water that one has to wade.

A few cranberries added to your applesauce when cooking will give it a delicious flavor.

Cotton corduroys look best if after laundering they are not ironed, but merely brushed along the direction of the ribs while still slightly damp.

When washing windows, add a few drops of kerosene to the water to give added polish. Painted furniture is easily cleaned if a little kerosene is added to the washing water.

To save your rubber heels, have the shoemaker reverse them when they get worn on one side.

In laundering, remember the temperature of the water is important. The hotter the water, the whiter the clothes.

Soldier of the Soil

VICTORY begins with the American farmer, working from long before sunset until long after nightfall. Upon him falls the burden of feeding the fighting forces . . . the civilian population . . . and hungry mouths in war-torn countries.

To the challenge of producing more food than ever, American soldiers of the soil have responded with heroic effort. Despite shortages of help and equipment, they have established records. They have contributed mightily towards winning the war.

Now you are asked to help your fellowmen in another way . . . to contribute money to give men in the armed forces needed recreation, to give books and sports equipment to prisoners of war, to give nerve-shattered men in the merchant marine a chance to recuperate. To give unfortunate people abroad and at home a chance to have life, liberty, and happiness.

The dollars you can give are needed more than ever this year. Please give generously.

Liberality

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hidenite, N. C. Liberality is a blessed trait of the heart and soul. God loves and richly blesses the liberal, cheerful giver. "The liberal soul shall be made fat." But on the other hand the stingy soul shall be lean. Have you not yet experienced this in your own life, or seen it manifested in the lives of others?
I remember serving a church as pastor once where there was one of the stingiest men I ever saw. He was a member of that church. Although I had to travel around 25 miles twice a month to serve the church, and the salary was very small, he never gave me a dollar in cash during the many months I served. He would not give anything to the cause of God whatsoever, so far as I know, unless it was a little wheat or meat, and then someone had to ask him for it. He was a man of some means. He owned a splendid farm and raised good crops. Of course he never seemed to enjoy the least bit of religion. Poor man, he lived a selfish, stingy life and died in like manner. I held his funeral. There was little I could say in regard to his life. Nobody in the neighborhood mourned his departure, as he was a stingy, close neighbor thru the years. He left his possessions and went out to meet God with no testimony of victory so far as I know.
Almost thirty-one years ago I began giving God one-tenth of all my income, and out of the remaining nine tenths I have been giving offerings, which is according to the third chapter of Malachi, and various other Scriptures. I figure that in the years gone by, up to the present, I have given around six thousand dollars. Of course this is a small amount, yet as a minister of the Gospel serving the poor people of the land, it has meant much to me. However, I have given around six thousand dollars. Of course this is a small amount, yet as a minister of the gospel serving the poor people of the land, it has meant much to me. However, I have given it gladly, cheerfully and thankfully. God has blessed me in doing so. I have served many people who were far more able to give than me, but they have given far less. I have been figuring that wife and myself give more to the cause of God per year than eleven families of our closest neighbors all combined. Why? Because we tithe all we receive, and give out of the remaining nine-tenths, while they do not. God blesses us both temporally and spiritually, and espirotually, and we praise His holy and matchless name for it all. Hallelujah, glory to God, AMEN: Liberality is life's better way. It brings blessings to our souls that are rich and rare. Try it and see for yourself.

Brown—I've half a mind to get married.
Blue—Half a mind is all you need!

To Wives and Parents of Soldiers

If you are sending The Record to your husband or son who is in the armed forces, please see that his subscription is paid in advance. We are forced to discontinue all subscriptions to the boys-in-foreign lands or in army camps in this country when their subscriptions expires. The soldiers want their home paper. We have had to mark several names off our books this week. Maybe one of them was your husband or son.

It Positively Happened, According to Witnesses

Charlotte Observer.
This is probably just another of those "I-Saw-It-With-My-Own-Eyes" stories which seem to crop up in half a dozen cities in the United States at the same time. Tomorrow newspaper editors in Detroit, San Francisco, Jersey City, or Spokane may hear it—all from persons who saw and heard it.
Anyway, The Observer knows of two persons who will vouch for this happen Saturday afternoon on a crowded bus in Charlotte.
A well dressed woman of about 45 entered the bus. A young courtously half arose and said: "Won't you have this seat?"
The woman replied with icy hauteur: "No, thank you—I don't take seats from 4-Fs!"
Her reply had its desired effect. Crushed and humiliated, the young man kept his seat, staring straight ahead.
A few minutes later the young man rang for his stop. Turning to the woman, who had found a seat ahead of him, he said: "Madam, do you have any sons in the army?"
Still with her icy hauteur, she replied: "I most certainly do! I have one in England and one in France!"
Rising, the young man answered with a tone of finality: "Then, write them and ask them to look for the hand and arm I left over there." And he departed.
Listeners and spectators to the drama saw what he meant: his left sleeve was empty. Two girls in the bus sobbed. The woman stared straight ahead, got off at the next stop.

New Deal Ghost Town

The demoralizing story of Kingsford Heights, 755 acre tract of rich Indiana farm land purchased by the government from 14 farmers, covered with 2,974 war houses, 18 miles of streets and 72 miles of sidewalks, stores, a school, water works, sewage system, police and fire equipment, today stands as a $13,000,000 ghostly monument to the New Deal.
Following the Army's placing of a shell loading plant in that region, the Defense Housing Co-ordinator decided a new city should be built to house an anticipated 10,000 workers. Only 324 families moved in. So Kingsford Heights was abandoned and placed on the liquidation list.

Coming Grange Convention To Have Intense Interest

As The Time draws near for the opening of the 78th annual session of the National Grange at Winston-Salem, North Carolina, on November 15th, it is apparent that a large turnout of Grange members from the two Carolinas, Virginia and adjacent states will be on hand to participate in the event. Subordinate units throughout this territory are initiating good sized classes of new members. Pomona or district groups are holding special meetings for the advancement of candidates throughout the fifth degree, and special State Grange sessions will soon be in progress where the sixth degree will be conferred.
Then hundreds of Patrons will head for Winston-Salem, where the annual opportunity for receiving the Seventh Degree—climax in Grange ritualism—will be afforded at two sessions of the National Grange convention on Friday afternoon and evening, November 17th. This degree will be conferred in the magnificent Reynolds Memorial Auditorium, which all the pomp and ceremony which its beautiful ritual comprises.
Announcement is made that no trips of any sort will be included in this year's convention program, because the business before the session will require constant attention throughout its entire nine days, closing Thursday evening, November 23d.
An innovation this year will be holding the voting delegates and officers of the National Grange for another day, on Friday, November 24th when the entire forenoon will be devoted to a closed delegate session for earnest discussion of Grange procedure, dealing with the inner workings of the organization, and designed to formulate a definite advance program for the coming year, to be put into operation in turn throughout all the states, and in Pomona and subordinate units down to the smallest Grange in the country. Delegates will leave Winston-Salem on the afternoon of the 24th, rounding out a memorable ten days' get-together of Grange representatives.
One of the speakers at the Winston-Salem convention will be Chester Bowles, director of the OPA, who will thus be able to obtain first hand information on the farm attitude of the country toward the OPA, as well as probably clearing up some misunderstandings pertaining to the work of his important department.
Definite arrangements have been concluded for a 30 minute broadcast on Saturday, November 18th, at 12:30 Eastern War Time. This will be over a coast-to-coast hookup of the National Broadcasting Company and will be heard by millions of people across the continent. Quite a group of Grange leaders will give brief, snappy talks, the entire program being designed to picture a session of the National Grange in progress, particularly for the benefit of thousands of Grange members in their own homes.
On Friday morning, November 17th, a cooperative breakfast will be fast held at 7:30, sponsored by the North Carolina Cooperatives, whose program will include brief, informal talks by various cooperative leaders of the country. Several conferences of cooperatives will occur during the progress of the National Grange session, and representatives of Grange mutual insurance companies from all parts of the nation will also confer at different times, this being an annual feature of every National Grange convention.
On the morning of November 20th officers and delegates of the National Grange will be guests at a breakfast given by the Rural Electric Cooperatives and Public Utilities, and the Cotton Councils of several states will be host to the National Grange for a Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday evening, the last regular day of the session.
Inasmuch as a National Grange

Throb Of A Heartbeat

How important is the Vice President of the United States of America?
He is the second most important man in America because he is the man that may become President of the United States at any second—at a throb of a heartbeat. Yes, only a single heartbeat stands between the Vice President and the highest office on earth—the President of the United States.
Just stop and think.
Under Candidate Roosevelt, we have Harry Truman! And who is Harry Truman? Well, he's the man who was "made" a U. S. Senator by Boss Pendergast of Missouri, who in 1934 boasted "he wanted to show that he could name his office boy to the United States Senate." This same Kansas City political boss recently was released from the Federal penitentiary in Leavenworth.
And too, Harry S. Truman was the choice of the bosses at the "Clear Everything with Sidney" Democrat convention in Chicago—he was the choice of Hague, Hill man, Hannegan—not forgetting Browder, the Communist.
Governor John W. Bricker, who has served the State of Ohio for three terms is the choice of the Republican Party as Vice President of the United States. His administrative ability and his untarnished political associations must stand the spotlight of closet scrutiny.

Experience

Senator Truman, pleading for the support of "my leader and Commander-in-Chief," says the voters should judge candidates by their experience. That is an excellent yardstick. Here is the financial "experience" of the two top candidates on the Republican and Democratic ticket:
Franklin Roosevelt as President of the United States; National debt, June 30, 1932, $19,487,000,000. National debt, September 1, 1944, $209,802,341,000.
Franklin Roosevelt as Governor of New York State created a debt of $90,000,000 increasing the bonded indebtedness $110,000,000.
Harry Truman's only business venture quickly failed and a judgment of $8,944 was obtained by his creditors. As presiding judge of the County Court of Jackson County, Missouri, $500,000 a year more was spent than the county's income. Tax anticipated warrants plus unpaid bills reached a total of $2,761,300.
Thomas E. Dewey as Governor of New York State has approximately $163,000,000 surplus in the state's treasury.
John Bricker converted Ohio's $40,000,000 debt into a surplus which now exceeds $70,000,000.
Now, who wants to judge his candidate by his "experience?"

session is conducted very much after the order of a state legislative body. The appointment of sessions committees is highly important, and this list has just been completed by National Master Albert S. Goss. Among the most important of these, with their respective chairmen, are the following:—
Agriculture, State Master Herchel D. Newson of Indiana; cooperatives, State Master Morton Tumpkins, Oregon; educator, State Master Joseph W. Fichter, Ohio; taxation, State Master Ralph W. Smith, Iowa; transportation, State Master Lee R. Pritchard, Colorado; national welfare, William B. Pearson, Minnesota; legislation, C. C. Cogswell, Kansas.
Released by the Publicity Bureau of the National Grange, Springfield 3, Mass.
Another bulletin giving final details of the Winston-Salem session will be mailed about October 30.

"The Belshazzar Boy"

Just a word in defence of my good friend, Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, of Hidenite the man that stands against sin, the devil and his forces.
Bro. Isenhour, I don't think there was any mistake made in Belshazzar's Boy's name. That's just a substitute for the "New Deal Boys." If I know anything about Bible, and the interperation of the Belshazzar feast, the "New Deal" is the identical same thing.
Yours truly,
ABRAHAM'S BOY,

Planes Drop Rescue Ships Equipped for 36 People

When survivors of torpedoed ships and ditched planes cannot be rescued in other ways, a United States AAF plane now drops to them, by parachute, a boat called the Flying Dutchman, says Col. Ker's. Weighing 3,000 pounds and holding about 36 people, this boat carries food, clothing, radio, water still, fishing tackle and blood plasma; also sails, two engines and a large supply of gasoline.

When the Flying Dutchman hits the water, a mechanism sets off smokepots to mark its location and fires rockets which carry long buoy lines to assist survivors in reaching the boat.

Dress Up Vegetables, Serve Warm Dessert For Cool Weather

Vitamin-rich carrots are hidden in this lovely pudding along with nutritious cereal. It's inexpensive, point-wise and penny-wise when you're cooking on a limited food budget.

Hot Delicacies

As the weather becomes cool and blustery, we must shelve many of our warmer weather food favorites, but there are a host of other good cold weather recipes to take their place.

Nothing is quite so important to a person's well being as a good, substantial hot food served piping hot, and during the cooler months, everything at a meal may be served hot—soup, entree, vegetables and dessert.

First of all, let's look into the matter of substantial vegetable dishes you can make with home-canned produce. You probably have green beans, corn and tomatoes on hand. Here are ways to dress them up:

Scalloped Green Beans
 (Serves 5)

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup liquid drained from beans
- 1/4 cup finely cut cheese
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 2 cups drained, canned green beans
- 1/4 cup buttered crumbs

Melt butter, add flour and blend well. Add milk slowly and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add liquid from beans, mustard and cheese. Stir until cheese is melted. Add salt and pepper. Place alternate layers of beans and sauce in a buttered casserole, and top with crumbs. Bake in a pre-heated moderate (350-degree) oven for 30 minutes.

Fried Corn
 (Serves 5-6)

- 2 cups corn
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
- 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 2 tablespoons drippings
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons water

Simmer onions and green pepper in melted drippings for 3 minutes. Add corn, water and seasonings. Mix well, cover and cook slowly about 10 minutes.

Savory Tomatoes

- 1/2 cup diced bacon or salt pork
- 1 cup sliced onions
- 4 cups canned tomatoes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 4 tablespoons flour

Fry bacon or salt pork until nearly crisp. Add onions and cook until lightly browned. Add tomatoes, salt and pepper and simmer for about 10 minutes. Mix the flour with a small amount of cold water and stir into the tomatoes. Cook until thickened. This may be served as a sauce over meat, fish, cooked rice or spaghetti.

LYNN SAYS

Food Flashes: If a recipe calls for canned fruit, use stewed dried fruit if you don't have the home-canned product.

If you need whipped cream to dress up your favorite dessert, take top of the bottle milk, chill it well, combine with one of the whipped cream mixes and set in a bowl of cracked ice. Beat well. Dip scissors in flour before cutting raisins or other dried fruit. Make bread pudding of leftover cake, cookies, and bread. Serve with meringue, lightly browned to dress up the pudding, or orange marmalade, jam or jelly.

Use simple icings for cake or dust lightly with powdered sugar put through a lacy paper doily. This saves sugar!

Lynn Chambers' Point-Saving Menu

- Meat Balls in Mushroom Sauce
- Snowflake Potatoes
- Scalloped Green Beans
- Jellied Cabbage Salad
- Pecan Rolls
- Butter
- *Apple Crisp Pudding
- *Recipes Given

Another hearty vegetable dish is this one made with potatoes and onions:

- Scalloped Potatoes and Onions. (Serves 6)
- 6 medium-sized potatoes
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 8-12 pearl onions
- 2 cups milk

Pare and slice potatoes thin, with fancy cutter or paring knife. Butter casserole well. Place layer of potatoes at bottom of casserole, sprinkle with 1 tablespoon flour, 1/4 teaspoon salt and dot with some butter. Cover with a layer of onions and repeat until all potatoes, onion and seasonings are used. Four scalded milk butter. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until potatoes and onions are tender.

Hot desserts made with whole grain cereals add substantial vitamins and minerals to the diet:

Carrot Pudding
 (Serves 9)

- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/2 cups grated carrot
- 1/2 cup whole bran
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon lemon extract

Blend together sugar and shortening until light and fluffy. Add unbeaten egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition.

Stir in carrots and whole bran. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Stir into first mixture alternately with milk. Add flavoring and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 55-60 minutes. Serve warm with desired sauce and top with maraschino cherries.

On Masculine Side

Another child star who promises to weather the grim years that three Jackie Coogan, Freddie Bartholomew, Dickie Moore, and Peter Lawford out of pictures for a time is Roddy McDowall. His performances are predicated on sheer technique and vast spiritual comprehension of the adult heart. He has a unique niche in Hollywood star ratings.

Born That Way

Another small fry who promises to have such a record is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's seven-year-old Margaret O'Brien. This philosophical pixie is no run-of-the-mill beauty, either. Small Margaret's face has quality and spirit rather than baby beauty. She comes of a dancing family—both her mother and aunt are talented performers.

Still They Come

I spotted George Noakes for a winner in "Going My Way." So did 20th, I guess, because they grabbed him for the part of Andrew in "The Keys of the Kingdom." He's an English type whose soft-cheeked charm hides an athlete's physique.

Looking a Way Ahead

Warners have bought 15 acres on top of Hollywood Hills for a television studio, which they figure it will take five years to build and equip. . . . At Republic, "A Song for Miss Julie" set, are Roger Clark, who's directly descended from Capt. William Clark of famed Lewis and Clark expedition, which opened up the northwest country, and Margaret Early, who claims Confederate Gen. Jubal Early as a great-granduncle. She plays opposite Roger.

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

THIS is the year of child stars, with talented kids in greater demand than they have ever been, with the possible exception of Shirley Temple.

Central Casting boasts 1,500 small thespians whose mothers hang around the telephone night and day, waiting to snatch off their prodigies' curl papers and rush them to the casting directors. Every ambitious mother in the business thinks she has a Peggy Ann Garner, a Roddy McDowall, a Margaret O'Brien, an Elizabeth Taylor, a Jackie Jenkins, or a Ted Donaldson in her home.

Movie moguls are capitalizing on stories with child characters. Jim Ryan of 20th Century-Fox told me: "The problem isn't to find kids with talent and looks; our difficulty is to select the ideal one child for the part out of the mob of applicants."

Small stars usually disappear when they reach the awkward age. Occasionally they come back in their teens as ingenues, as did Shirley Temple, Anita Louise, and Jane Withers. But the first awkward-age star of magnitude to hit the screen is 20th Century's Peggy Ann Garner, now playing Francie in Betty Smith's current hit, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

Acting Plum

This is the most important role ever entrusted to any young player. It fell to Peggy Ann after her distinguished performance as the child Nora in "The Keys of the Kingdom"—also the child in "Jane Eyre."

This 12-year-old, who works 71 out of the 73 days required by the picture for shooting, gets two days' rest before going into "Nob Hill," where she plays Katy, a little Irish immigrant child, an emotional and important role.

She's not a pretty child in the conventional sense; she has beautiful bone structure and a face full of character that takes on beauty when the role demands.

Household Hints

Place brown sugar in a mason jar while it is still soft, and it will keep that way.

Once food has started to boil, turn down the flame. It does not need a large flame to keep it boiling.

Low temperature is the secret of tender eggs. Too high temperature or extended cooking time toughens the protein in the egg.

Paraffin used for covering jelly should never be heated to the smoking point. This causes it to shrink from the side of the glass.

A bag of salt may be used in place of a hot water bottle in a pinch. Heat the salt on a skillet, then pour it back into the bag and use.

To oil the lock on your door quickly and easily, dip the key in the oil, and turn it in the lock several times. This accomplishes the oiling with the least mess, and the least effort. But, of course, taking the lock apart and oiling it completely is still the better way.

Splendid Cough Relief Is Easily Mixed at Home

No Cooking. Makes Big Saving.

To get quick and satisfying relief from coughs due to colds, mix this recipe in your kitchen. Once tried, you'll never be without it.

First, make a syrup by stirring 3 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This makes a full pint of splendid medicine and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is amazing. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you sleep. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Check your tire pressure before inflating and save tire mileage and troublesome flats urge the Office of Defense Transportation. A passenger car tire that is 3 pounds below the lowest of its running rates can be suspected of having an undisclosed puncture. Five pounds' variance is allowed in truck tires.

Ordinary statistics are dull, but here are some that are significant when you consider that a 6.00 x 16 passenger car tire weighs about 22 pounds; there are 60,000 pounds of rubber in a battleship; 55,195 pounds in an aircraft carrier without plane complements; 4,358 pounds in a destroyer; 65,000 pounds in a submarine.

We have met the enemy and he is ours.

Some of the boys are trying to explain today how it all happened yesterday.

The election is a thing of the past but the country is still doing business at the same old stand.

Some of these fellows you meet today wearing a woe begone look, have just paid off their election bets.

A Mocksville New Dealer last week predicted that Dewey would carry 17 states and Roosevelt 31 states. Where is that New Dealer?

Apologies are now in order. If we have said meaner things about the New Dealers than they have said about us then we offer our sincere apologies.

Persons who bet on the election were not entitled to vote yesterday, but so far as we know, they all voted—even Franklin Roosevelt, who said he had bet on the election.

We wonder how Ralph McDonald felt Saturday night while addressing the voters of Davie county. Remember what Ralph said about Gregg Cherry last April? We do.

What happened to all those folks who were running trying to put up their last dollar that Davie county would go Republican? Did they place any bets, and have they collected?

We didn't hear a Democrat or a New Dealer even hint during the recent campaign that the Republican party was the Negro party. There's a reason for all things.

Roosevelt Wins

With returns far from complete as we go to press Wednesday morning, it appears that Roosevelt has been re-elected by a substantial majority over Thomas Dewey. From latest reports Dewey was leading in 16 states and Roosevelt in 32 states, with a popular vote of 18,000,000 for Roosevelt and 16,000,000 for Dewey. The next Senate and House will have a slightly increased Democratic majority. The gubernatorial line-up will be somewhat different, but it is thought that the majority of the states will have Republican Governors, among them being one from Missouri, the home of Harry Truman, the newly elected Vice-President. Roosevelt carried New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, the entire south, together with several far western states, with New Jersey and Illinois still in doubt. Dewey carried several New England states, a few far western states, most of the mid-western states, together with Indiana and Ohio.

THE LAST TRAIN OF WAR FREIGHT...

It will look like any other "fighting freight" you see rolling on the Southern Railway these days.

But this will be the last train heading off to war. Then, "tomorrow" will begin... a glorious new era of peace and freedom for war-weary people everywhere. Then, tents and uniforms from Southern textile mills will become gay frocks for laughing, carefree girls.

Then, strong Southern steel that made massive tanks, will build bridges and skyscrapers.

Then, gleaming Southern aluminum, miracle plastics and vital chemicals will go into the countless new products of the post-war world.

And then, the Southern Railway will be ready with the matchless efficiency and dependability which has been developed in the "testing laboratory" of total war.

Yes!... it will be a great day for the South... and for the Southern Railway... when that "last train" pulls out. For it will mark the beginning of a new-found peace and prosperity in a Southland of unlimited opportunities.

We have published two or three news items about large pumpkins grown in Davie this fall. The largest one weighed 63 pounds, and was grown by Charlie Brown, of R. 2. We thought he was the champion pumpkin grower in the county, but we were mistaken. W. I. Spry, of R. 4, grew a pumpkin in his garden this fall which weighed 80 pounds and measured 70 inches in circumference. Can anybody trot out a bigger pumpkin?

NAZI MASS EXECUTIONS

Underground observers coming out of Germany have reported that the Nazis already have begun the systematic elimination of the vast army of slave labor imported from Russia, France, Czechoslovakia and various occupied countries.

Details of the story are so ghastly that they hardly can be believed. Yet the accuracy of the observers has stood up in the past; also the wholesale slaughter methods of the Germans at Lublin is already a matter of official record.

It is estimated that the imported slave labor inside Germany totals about 10,000,000. Either because Hitler fears their sabotage and rebellion, or else because they are a drain on Germany's food resources, machinery has been devised to kill them off. The number killed so far is estimated at around 1,500,000, though this is a very rough estimate. Absolutely definite, however, is the fact that mass execution depots, such as that at Lublin, already are set up in various parts of Germany. These have been witnessed.

Reason for the cold-blooded system of mass executions is explained as follows by underground observers who have come out of Germany: Originally, storm troopers were given a list of 15 to 20 persons and told to shoot them with their revolvers in the night. Sometimes this included whole families with children. So not even the S. S. men could take it. They suffered nervous collapses, had to be sent to sanitariums.

As a result, the mass execution system was worked out at Lublin, and now at other places. It takes only a few men to handle the lethal chambers, and enough personnel can be found to perform the gruesome work without becoming insane.

LOST BATTALIONS

Of all soldiers in the U. S. army the most distressed over the war department's demobilization plan are the men over 35 years of age. They get no extra retirement points because of age. In fact, some of them, because of bad health and inability to get overseas, may be among the last to leave the army following V day.

Stranded in camps throughout the U. S. A., they have become the "Army's Lost Battalions." Many were snapped up by selective service in the early days of the war despite deafness, blindness in one eye and shortage of fingers—all at a time when the army was in a rush to get almost anyone. Now many of these men are doing semi-military tasks.

At Fort Meyer, Va., one group is daily assigned to grave digging at the National Cemetery. Others count socks and shirts for the quartermaster corps, are now becoming psychological problems for the army. Some found that infirmities when they entered have become aggravated since, but will never be recognized as having received disabilities in service.

The war department points out that "theoretically" men over 38 had an opportunity to leave the army more than a year ago, if they had job opportunities in war industries. But the war department also admits that it had to stop somewhere, and that since the WAC recruiting program failed, it is now necessary to retain the 35-year-olds to make up for the scarcity of WACs.

ARKANSAS FARMER IN LONDON

What most impressed alert young Congressman Brooks Hays of Arkansas during his London trip was the farm miracle the British have performed during the war. Hays was Arkansas head of the Farm Security administration before coming to congress, so traveled widely in rural England, was amazed by the economy of land use.

"Here's an island about one-third as large as the state of Texas," Hays said, "but with 50,000,000 people. And it is growing two-thirds of all its food."

"The British won't keep on growing so much food after the war," Hays says, "but what they're doing with their land right now is miraculous. And they like it, even though most of them never worked in the fields before. I didn't talk to a single one who wasn't tickled that we had sent them less food and plenty of fertilizer and farm machinery. They're really proud of what they were able to do and glad they haven't had to eat nothing but hand outs from this country."

CARTEL MYSTERY STORY

Last month, FDR wrote a letter to Secretary of State Hull, told him: "Keep your eyes on this whole subject of international cartels. . . ."

Now Wendell Berge, assistant attorney general in charge of trust-busting, has written quite a detective story of his own. It is a book entitled: "Cartels Challenge to a Free World." If you want to understand some of the major traps into which the coming peace may find itself ensnared, it's worth reading.

BY GRANTLAND RICE

WHAT are big league and what are minor league cities? This situation today is something of a joke. While the Cardinals and Browns were playing the sixth game of the recent world series before 21,630 spectators, Baltimore and Louisville in two so-called minor leagues were playing to 52,833 fans in Baltimore.

Baltimore has no big league team and St. Louis has two big league teams. Yet Baltimore outdraws St. Louis by a wide margin. Baltimore will draw over 60,000 spectators at any big football game, especially a contest involving Navy and Notre Dame. It will draw from 40,000 to 50,000 for any good pro football game.

Grantland Rice is a stronger sporting center than St. Louis, yet Baltimore has no big league club and St. Louis has two big league clubs. If this is to be continued suppose we drop the names Major League and Minor League. It doesn't make any sense.

This doesn't apply only to St. Louis, a good sporting city. It applies to several other cities who certainly do not rate any two major league teams. Attendance figures and general interest in major sports can prove this statement.

Los Angeles' Future

In baseball lingo Los Angeles is rated as another minor league city. Yet Los Angeles, in major sport, can outdraw any so-called major league city I know, and I'm not barring New York.

On the same afternoon I've seen Los Angeles send out 91,000 fans to a Rose Bowl game and over 60,000 racing followers to Santa Anita. I've never seen New York or Chicago produce over 150,000 spectators in one afternoon, and I doubt that I'll ever see this happen.

As a sporting capital I'd rate Los Angeles on a par with New York and Chicago. It is only a question of a short time before Los Angeles will have over 5,000,000 inhabitants.

There are now 10 so-called big league cities. Chicago, St. Louis, Boston and Philadelphia each have two big league clubs. New York has three. Most of these big league cities can't even compare with Los Angeles and Baltimore in the way of sporting interest or probable attendance figures.

There have been changing tides in population and sporting interest that have made the old order look worse than foolish. What is going to be done about it? Probably nothing unless some of the cities mentioned revolt and start a major league of their own which would outdraw many of the cities now listed in the major league class.

Certainly Los Angeles, San Francisco and Baltimore belong in this group. Buffalo is another big time spot.

Football Leagues

We'll get further proof of this later when football brings in at least one more big time organization. It is our belief in this new turn that Baltimore will outdraw any city now on the National Football league with the possible exception of New York, and it may outdraw New York with anything approaching a good team. Baltimore in a good league with a good team will average over 50,000 a game. How many others cities can match that? Los Angeles might pass 60,000.

This country is getting too large and conditions are changing too rapidly for any city, barring New York and Chicago, to have more than one major league baseball team. Owners in these cities have franchises. They had better start planning to switch these franchises or find themselves in another tough baseball war they can't win.

The same thing goes for pro football. The answer here is that only a few pro teams have made any money. I know of several cities where promoters have lost from $150,000 to $300,000, with no local competition. Pro football has lost as much as it has made.

Yale's Team

"Who is the best football player you've seen so far this season?" I asked Al Marsters, who was one of the best backs in Dartmouth's history. He has been officiating this fall.

"I'd pick Walker, the big Yale end," Al said. "He is tall, big, strong, and fast. He is also on the alert side. Walker is a fine football player. He knows what it's all about. As a player and an official, I've seen many fine ends. But I'd say that Walker is one of the best."

GIRL OVERBOARD

by GEORGE F. WORTS

THE STORY THUS FAR: Zorie Corey, who takes herself for being so meek, is railroaded into taking a job she does not want, helping Admiral Duncan write his memoirs. She is in love with Paul Duncan, the admiral's grandson. While aboard the steamship Samoa en route to Hawaii a hand is clamped over her mouth and she is scooped up and tossed into the sea. She avoids the propellers and manages to catch a life ring which some sailor had tossed overboard when he saw her fall. Zorie is rescued, and learns on recovering from shock that Steve, Paul's handsome brother, was taken violently ill at the time she was thrown overboard. The admiral announces that Pearl Harbor has been bombed.

CHAPTER XI

"They can thank God they're not in Honolulu, where civilians aren't allowed out of their houses after dark," Steve said impatiently. "They'll come if you want them to. And I don't really give a damn who comes as long as you get Basil Stromberg. Tell him you've got to discuss the future of the sugar and pineapple industries with this war on, and the difficulties of shipping between Hawaii and the Mainland, with all these Jap submarines around . . . Three or four other couples to balance the table—but a nice gay crowd."

His deep voice became a rumble. A minute later, Zorie heard a car start. The admiral presently returned along the path he and Steve had taken.

The sudden ferocity with which war had burst upon the Pacific had put all of them under an increasing strain. And Paul was trying too hard to make up for lost time. She was finding his over-zealousness at times trying and she was finding it more and more difficult to keep Steve out of her thoughts. One evening at her stateroom door when Paul had kissed her good night, and had asked her—as he did so often these days—if she still loved him, she had murmured, "Of course I do, Steve."

She was so frightened she turned cold. But her voice must have been too low for him to hear, or his own thoughts too turbulent. He hadn't noticed the slip.

She could not drive Steve out of her mind. And she was still undecided, still torn between her infatuation and her patriotic scruples. She had tried to rationalize it by assuring herself that she could, any time she wished, notify the authorities, and by her knowledge that there was, still, in spite of her sure suspicions, nothing she could prove. She dreamed about Steve. Often there were strange dreams in which both he and Paul figured.

If Steve suspected her suffering, he was being very nice about it. It was, she supposed with some bitterness, an old story with Steve—being kind to all the women who made fools of themselves over him. As, for example, Amber Lanning was doing.

Most of all, she didn't want Paul to become aware of it, although she was sure that his renewed ardor was making him blind. She did not want Paul to be hurt. And regardless of where her heart wanted to lead her, her mind was still at the controls. Her mind kept insisting that she would, in a little time, fully recover. By then Paul would be back on an even keel and they would, at an appropriate time, be married.

Of the remainder of the trip on the blacked-out ship, she would unreasonably recall most vividly, not the frantic excitement of the passengers, nor the tension, the alertness, the white war-worn faces of Honolulu under martial law, but her childish jealousy of Steve's attentions to Amber. Amber, with her lack of inhibitions, wasn't making any efforts to conceal the fact that she, too, had gone overboard for Steve.

The war, curiously, affected Zorie scarcely at all. After the first awful feeling, when she learned of the devastation at Pearl Harbor and at the army and naval air base, her self-possession returned. Her new fearlessness was impervious. She wasn't afraid of torpedoes or Japanese bombers and, as she saw neither submarines nor bombers, her fearlessness was not tested. After the first day's attacks on Oahu, the enemy was occupied with Wake, Hong Kong, the Philippines and Singapore. Yet Zorie was certain that, if the enemy returned, she would not be frightened.

Often she came upon Steve and Amber, walking together, playing ping pong, or the horse races, or shuffleboard. They were always laughing, always so oblivious in each other that they were oblivious.

She tried not to let Paul see how it affected her—the bleak fury, the jealousy, the hatred that swept her. After the first day, there was little war news. All the passengers' radios were confiscated and only curt official bulletins from Washington were issued. On the day after the attack on Oahu, two United States destroyers magically appeared and escorted the "Samoa" on her zigzag course the rest of the way.

But they hadn't been. Her own fiery hatred of Japan, of all the Axis powers, had made her problem suddenly acute. Yet she had, despite the intensity of her feelings, done nothing about it. She had rationalized it by telling herself that the blow might kill the admiral. She had decided to talk it over with him, to tell him about all her suspicions, and let him decide what action to take.

She had grown very fond of the peppery old man. Her brightest recollections of that strange voyage had been her work with him. He had no fear of submarines and he was determined to get on with The Book. Once he was reconciled to Zorie's disinterest in his Annapolis pranks and the Battle of Manila Bay—now being fought again with terrible new weapons—he had plunged into the story of the Duncan clan.

He was anxious to get on with it, but he had told Zorie there would be no work today.

Paul found her in the arbor a little before noon and she had lunch with him on a lanai shaded by a Pride of India tree. The centerpiece was an arrangement of translucent spikes of blood-red ginger flowers. She tasted her first baked breadfruit.

As one man they raised their glasses to her.

"I've been thinking things over," Paul said. "You once mentioned that you'd prefer it if I gave up my ambition to be a professor of psychology, and went to the plantation as a cut-cane luma and worked up."

"But, Paul, I didn't say that!" Zorie protested. Or had she? "Did I ever tell you how we came by Uluwehi E Kai?"

There was suffering in Paul's eyes. He was preparing to be self-sacrificing, noble. To please her. He was telling her the story of Uluwehi E Kai, but she scarcely heard him. She was wishing he would stop being so humble. His over-anxiety to please her had reached a very irritating stage. She scarcely caught the gist of what he was saying.

A Hawaiian queen had once lived here. The admiral had bought Uluwehi from the Hawaiian crown fifty years ago. Until recently it had been part of the Duncan Plantation. On the death of Grandmother Duncan, he had sold the plantation to a syndicate in which he owned a large interest, retaining only Uluwehi. He also had large interests in other sugar and pineapple properties, and in banks and hotels, in steamship and air lines.

"I know you're enchanted with Uluwehi," Paul said. "I'm seeing it as I never saw it before—through your eyes. I know how you'll hate to live anywhere else. So, if you say the word, I'll start in tomorrow as a field luma."

Zorie shook her head with firmness. "No, Paul. I will not interfere in a decision as important as that."

"But you've fallen in love with this place!" "That has nothing to do with it. Your career comes first!"

"His eyes were gray, then green. 'If I thought you could go back to Elleryton without hating it—'" "But of course I could, darling!"

He was doubtful. He really looked wretched. "I'd rather make any sacrifice to keep you happy."

"No, Paul," Zorie said crisply. "Your future isn't to be worked out on that basis. Decide what you want to do and I'll abide by it."

"There isn't a lovelier spot in the world than this," Paul said, "and you would lead the happiest life you've ever known. You'd be the boss of the Duncan clan. And the mistress of Uluwehi is the undisputed queen of this island. I know how crazy the admiral is about you. There's nothing he wouldn't do for you. . . . I realize all that, and I realize how attractive that setup would be to any woman."

She had sensed most of this. She had seen herself presiding over this lovely place, modernizing, simplifying some of the rooms, giving lively parties, taking hold and running things, and restoring Uluwehi to its former glory . . . Of course it appealed to her!

"But is your career here, Paul?" He shook his head tragically. "No. That's just it."

"The instant this book is finished," Zorie said crisply, "we'll go back to Elleryton." She had a sudden glimpse of the twin chimneys of the Fenwick Body Plant and of the social life—Mrs. Folsome, Mrs. McGonigle, Aunt Hannah. "Now let's stop all this silly argument."

He came around to her chair and kissed her on the cheek.

"Thank you, Zorie," he said solemnly. "That was what I wanted you to say. Would you like to be married here?"

Zorie hesitated. Her heart was beating in slow, cold thumps. "Yes, Paul. Of course!"

"It would be a lot of fun," Paul said. "We'd have a luau—an old-fashioned Hawaiian luau. Would you like that?"

"Yes, dear."

"I've been thinking," Paul said, "that we might be married Sunday."

A knifelike pain went through Zorie's heart. Trying to control her voice, she said, "Day after tomorrow?"

"Yes," said Paul. "Why wait? We've been putting it off long enough."

It was true. They had. Rather, Paul had. For more than a year they had been on this vaguely engaged basis. And there hadn't been a day when she hadn't hoped that Paul would decide not to wait.

But that had been in Elleryton. His announcement left her with a feeling of panic. She realized that she hadn't the slightest desire to marry Paul day after tomorrow.

He was fondling her shoulder. "Then," he said, "we'll fly over to Kona for a few days. We'll come back here and stay until the admiral's book is finished. I'll find plenty to do. I want to do some more work on my dissertation."

He was trying to be gay and reckless. But he wasn't convincing Zorie and he wasn't convincing himself. He sensed that something was wrong, but he didn't know what it was.

"Would you like it that way, honey?"

Zorie was gazing at the garden. "This would be a lovely place to be married," she said. She would not try to escape it. She would go through with it. She could not let Paul down.

She wanted to cry. All the time Paul was talking, she'd been seeing Steve at her wedding—Steve watching her with a brother-in-law's detached pride and fondness.

"Well, then, that's settled," Paul said vigorously. "We'll be married Sunday. I'll attend to everything."

She was about to leave her room when one of the maids brought her a lei of white ginger flowers. When she put it on, it fell almost to her waist. If she had needed a completing touch, the chain of glowing fragrant white flowers supplied it.

She asked the maid who had sent it.

"Mr. Duncan."

"Mr. Steve or Mr. Paul?"

"Mr. Steve."

It almost went without saying. With all his ardor, his anxiety to please her, Paul would never think of sending her a lei—especially a white ginger lei.

She went out onto the lanai with its blackout curtains of heavy blue velvet. The admiral, Paul and Steve were already there, but none of the guests had come. The three men were drinking Old-Fashioneds.

They stared at her as she crossed the lanai. As one man they raised their glasses to her. It was almost involuntary. The expression in their eyes was a toast.

She murmured, "Thank you, sir," demurely.

Steve made her an Old-Fashioned. She noticed dry little lines about his mouth and eyes. He looked tired and worried and tense.

She was aware that Paul, in spite of his resolves, disapproved of the frankness of her star sapphire dress. He had betrayed it in his eyes after the admiral had complimented her. It was, she thought, disheartening. Paul did not want her to be radiant. He wanted her to be dull. He had always wanted her to be dull. And when, to please him, she had dressed dully, he had frankly admired women who were colorfully dressed. She wondered why. She wondered what the solution was.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE CHURCH DURING WAR AND PEACE

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:43-48; Romans 12:1-7. GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called sons of God.—Matthew 5:9.

Everywhere men are talking about the coming peace. They are concerned lest having won a war we may lose the peace through the selfishness or the indifference of men. It is a great problem and one about which we are rightly concerned.

Why is it then that the most important factor in assuring a just and friendly settlement of the problem is left out of men's deliberations? Why is there so little (if any) thought of God and prayer to Him for the needed guidance and wisdom?

We know that there can never be an abiding peace until Christ comes to establish His kingdom, but in the meantime, we should seek to bring Christian principles to bear on the relations of men and nations. We are to show:

I. A Higher Measure of Love (Matt. 5:43-48).

The world has established its own principle of conduct based on selfish advantage. It pays to be polite to those who can favor you, so cultivate their good will by acts of courtesy and kindness. Your neighbor may be able to help you in an hour of need, so do good to him as you have opportunity.

But an enemy—what can you gain from kindness to him? Hate him, and treat him like an enemy.

Christianity knows nothing of such a spirit. Even though it be necessary to fight against wicked men in order to hinder their evil plans, we need not lose our love for them. Even those who spitefully use us may be loved for Christ's sake.

"Consider Him that endured such contradiction of sinners against Himself" (and went right on loving them), "lest ye be wearied" in your own love for those who bear the sad name of enemies (see Heb. 12:3).

This is admittedly a high standard, but it is not too high for those who know the love of Christ.

II. A Higher Degree of Loyalty (Rom. 13:1-4).

An intelligent Christian is the best citizen. He knows that all government is based on the power and authority of God, and hence he recognizes the legality and authority of duly constituted governmental agencies.

No matter how much man has perverted or degraded government, yet it is in essence the expression of a ministry of God (v. 4). How deeply ashamed that should make those who regard political office as a means of personal gain and advantage, or who use their authority to permit or promote that which is against God.

Every public official should recognize God as the giver of his authority and seek the Lord's special grace and guidance in the discharge of his duties. Every citizen should highly regard the one who rules as having a power ordained of God (v. 1), for the good of the nation (v. 4).

Here then is the solution of the political problems which are causing upheaval all over the world, namely, a revival of Christian testimony and faith, for it will lead to a loyalty on the part of the people which is quite unknown where Christianity does not bring its true influence to bear.

That kind of love for men and loyalty to government necessarily brings about:

III. A Higher Standard of Patriotism (Rom. 13:5-7).

There is more to real patriotism than flag waving and high-sounding oratory. There must be a conscientious willingness to serve the nation in willing obedience to the command or the request of proper authority.

The Christian gives just that kind of patriotic support to his country (v. 5). His enlightened conscience demands it, and he responds.

Then too, there must be support of the government by the payment of taxes. Think of the thousands who are engaged in the business of evading their just share of the cost of government.

The Christian has no share in such things, for he is ready to pay his share of the expense of government as a ministry of the Lord (v. 6).

No government can function properly nor long endure which does not have the respect and confidence of those governed. There can be nothing but criticism, discontent, and disobedience in such an atmosphere.

We have said it before, but we say it again—the best thing that could happen to America politically is a revival of Christianity. Our national leaders ought to set the example and encourage the people to follow in repentance, restitution and God's blessing. Read II Chronicles 7:14.

War Bonds as Investment for Farmers
 by Warren W. Hawley, Jr., President
 New York State Farm Bureau Federation

IN CHECKING figures of the Farm Credit Administration, I find that farmers are paying off mortgages faster than at any other period in the history of the Federal Land Bank.

At the same time, farmers are building up cash reserves, but the wise investment of this money is an extremely hard job for farmers to undertake. The temptation is to try and obtain as high an interest rate as possible.

Many of us see no reason why we should not get as much interest on our money now as we had to pay the bank when we were forced to borrow during the depression.

The answer is that today money is cheap—"expanded" as the bankers express it. Therefore interest rates are low except in very speculative securities. Naturally no farmer wants to risk losing his hard earned cash.

We farmers know our own business and we can invest money in it safely because we understand it. However, when we branch off into other fields, especially the highly technical field of investments, most of us encounter sad experiences.

In these days it is virtually impossible for farmers to put their surplus cash back into the farm. War-time conditions prevent us from repairing buildings, and buying new machinery, automobiles, trucks and other equipment we must eventually have if we are going to stay in business.

So the smart thing for farmers to do is to invest their surplus money in War Bonds where it is as safe as a dollar bill. These bonds increase in value the longer they are held; they can be cashed after sixty days in case of need, and they will provide a reserve for investment after the war in the business the farmers know best—the business of farming.

I confidently predict that if farmers will do this, the dawn of peace will signalize a new day for agriculture.

Acquaint Yourself With God

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hiddenite, N. C.

"Acquaint now thyself with him, and be at peace: thereby good shall shall come unto thee."—Job 22:22.

What a wonderful thing it is to acquaint one's self with God: His acquaintance with God: His acquaintance is far beyond that of all earthly acquaintances. He brings to us sweet peace, joy and happiness. He leads, guides and directs His dear children. He is over mindful of their need and supplies it according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus" (Philippians 4:19) Praise His holy and matchless name.

To get blessedly acquainted with God should be the sincere desire of every man on earth who has the privilege through the Gospel and the influence of Christians. Job says to get acquainted with Him means that good shall come unto us. And who doesn't want good to come unto him as he journeys through life, and when he reaches the end of his race here? Men seek good in various and many ways outside the will of God, only to be sadly disappointed. Really all that is truly good and worth while comes from God, and by getting acquainted with God by coming as a penitent to the feet of Christ, there repenting of all his sins and forsaking them. His sins may be forgiven and his soul saved. Then to get better acquainted with Him the believer can come back to Christ and consecrate his all unto Him and trust Him for entire sanctification. This is a blessed work of grace that purifies the heart and soul and enables one to live a victorious Christian life.

As one lives for God daily he may get better and better acquainted with Him through much prayer and absolute obedience to His will. God will walk with all those who sincerely desire His presence and strive to do His will. This brings many good things to his life, body, mind and soul. When tests and trials come to those who are acquainted with God they always know to go to Him for help. He is ever present to bless them, care for and keep them. He gives grace and courage to His children. He keeps them from the snares and pitfalls of the enemy. He leads them by waters still and through pastures green. He makes of them also soldiers good, great and useful. Amen. This is life's better way.

If you are sending The Record to your husband or son who is in the armed forces, please see that his subscription is paid in advance. We are forced to discontinue all subscriptions to the boys-in-foreign lands or in army camps in this country when their subscriptions expires. The soldiers want their home paper. We have had to mark several names off our books this week. Maybe one of them was your husband or son.

Nothing To Do

(Twin City Sentinel)

A contemporary tells of the mountaineer who took a war job in a Western North Carolina town. Someone asked him how he liked the town. He replied that it would be all right if there were something to do during his leisure hours. But in this town, he said, there was nothing to do but go to the movies and "eat ice cream".

Many war workers in other Southern cities and towns may feel the same way about the leisure hour entertainment afforded by the community in which they work. And odd as it may seem, the farmer who goes on a war job probably is as much "lost" during leisure hours as a worker from a larger city, for on the farm there are no leisure hours during the busy seasons of the year.

This feeling of loneliness induced by the lack of "something to do" or absence of companionship is left by newcomers to a much greater degree than by natives or long residents, since the latter have formed contacts and found personal interests which keep them occupied in their leisure hours.

The larger towns and cities of this area are beginning to provide greater recreational facilities and wholesome entertainment for their residents, soldier visitors, et al. Small towns as a rule are not financially prepared to develop elaborate recreational projects. But the lack of diverse forms of entertainment can be offset appreciably by a widespread community interest in newcomers which manifest itself in invitations to attend church, visit in local homes, and so on. This spirit usually crops out in many Tar Heel towns, so the newcomers soon become "acclimated" and discover as he goes along that the town he thought was so "dull" is a rather sprightly little place, after all.

Rambling Ravings---

Eventually, there will be a lasting peace. Someone has predicted that in a billion years mankind will entirely disappear from the earth. If you don't believe it, wait and see. . . . ## So Easy?

(Charlotte Observer)

The American war machine keeps on rolling.

It is now rolling with slower tempo on the western front in Europe, but it is rolling, nevertheless.

It is rolling spectacularly in the Pacific where dramatic and decisive naval and air battles have scored heavily for the fighting forces of the United States.

From one point on the map of the world to another, it rolls. From one battlefield to another, sometimes removed by multiple thousands of miles.

Wherever it goes,—this American war machine, it rolls on toward victory.

Thousands of square miles in the measureless waters of the Pacific are conquered and islands tucked away for keeps.

Town after town in Europe, great cities and small, heavily fortified by the enemy, strong, tough outposts of defense, are captured, and the machine keeps rolling.

The newspapers put in the headlines,—how easy it all seems to be! They emblazon victory after victory for America's phalanxes of unconquerables.

Groups of people stop on the streets and discuss the irresistible drive of their fighting men.

It all seems so natural that it should be so, and it should be so, and is taken with an excited confidence and pride.

And America has too largely fallen into a frame of mind that is out of step with the grimmer facts of the case.

The victorious rhythm of the rolling machine of American war power has become so lyrical that the sad notes that are struck unnoticed by unattuned ears.

It is the roar of the big guns smashing at the entrenched citadels of the enemy that is pleasantly heard.

It is the zoom of American's planes, piloted and crewed by immortally brave and intrepid American boys that makes such happy music.

It is the dashing, smashing, blasting power of great tanks, battleships, and assorted engineering of destruction that swells the notes of victory into a crescendo of intoxicating melody which cheers the American heart.

Here is a mighty assembly of guns and shells and bombs unprecedented in all history. It is America's war power, and it will not be denied.

It is not being denied. It is racing from one conquest to another with a force that is cyclone in its of enchanting victory, SOME OF THESE MEN are knocked out of the ranks and stay behind,—for ever.

That's something to think about, shouldn't it be?

Every time you read of a town being taken in Europe as the army rolls relentlessly along in its march toward the day when it will all be over, consider that every one of towns and villages that are taken some Americans boys are left by devastations.

Americans are happy to consider that, after all, there are men in these sky-encircling planes, that there are men behind these belching guns, that there are men who risk their lives by the tens of thousands every moment of every day and every night in this panorama of war, men, boys from our own homes and hearthstones.

And they too often forget that with every step of this procession their comrades roll on, but their own rolling days are over and the town they help to take with their life's blood is the last town they will ever see anywhere on earth.

It wasn't so easy for them, was

Selling Your Home

The State.

We know of people in several towns who have sold their homes. Sold them at a big price, too.

In most cases here is what happened;

Mr. Jones has a comfortable home but it isn't quite what he wants. He is desirous of building a larger place out in a new residential section. He finds that property values are high at the present time, so he decides to sell his home and move into an apartment for the duration.

So far so good. He gets rid of his house and he is now living in an apartment. Even though his former home may not have been exactly what he desired, he soon discovers that it was a lot better than the small apartment in which he is now residing.

"But don't worry," he assures his wife. "The war won't last long, then we'll build exactly the kind of house we want."

You see, the way he figures it, property values are going down after the war. People will be moving out of apartments and houses. Rents will be lowered and so on.

But what is going to happen in his own individual case? Simply this:

Building materials are high. They're hard to get, in the first place, and prices are up considerably over what they were before the war. But does our friend, Mr. Jones, think for a moment that the price of building materials is going to be lower when the war comes to an end?

If he does, he is sadly mistaken. Prices are going to be higher than they are now, and the reason for this is that everybody and his son will want to build a new house or renovate an old one. So long as this demand for material exists, it is foolish to think that prices will be lower than they are now.

Which means that if Mr. Jones wants to build within three years after the war comes to an end, he's going to have to pay more for his home than he'll ever be able to get out of it. We're of the opinion that he would be better off if he had stayed in his old house.

Not so easy for these tens of thousands who have been left by the roadside as their regiments kept up their parade of grim and bloody progress toward the next town on the map to be taken.

Not so easy for the other thousands who have gone down to their flaming foam of the great waters as the forces in the Pacific roll on into the Philippines and will later roll right into the capital of the Japanese jaguars.

This military machine of our nation will not be stopped short of its distant goal of victory, but already hundreds of thousands of the men who make this machine roll have been stopped, and other boys rushed in to fill their places who, too, many unhappily be also stopped and left behind to be cruelly buried under alien earth.

Might think of this sometimes when you are gloating over the thoughts of the historic victories now being won or if you should be saying to yourself, "How easy it all is!"

My Notions

John Wesley Clay, in Winston-Salem Journal.

We saw a bunch of children, once, who wanted to play see-saw. Because the leader got on one end of the whole bunch wanted to get on the same end. Their childish quirk broke up their game.

We knew a woman, once, who ate so much lettuce, and other little nothings, that she became so green the cows licked at her dress as she passed by.

We knew a man, once, who carried himself in such a shape—he would carry one shoulder higher than the other—that he finally grew into an awkward shape like a scare-crow in a watermelon patch.

We knew an old dame, once who took so many little round pills that her joints finally became ball-bearing.

We knew a man, once voted the straight Democratic ticket so often that his ears grew large like the donkey. And his voice!

We knew a man, once, who voted the stright Republican ticket so often that his political brain grew small like the brain of an elephant. And it is said that the elephant's brain is very small.

Shucks, a little variety would have put voice into their lives.

Washington, D. C. EISENHOWER'S BRILLIANT PLANNING

When the inside story of General Eisenhower's European war planning is finally told, the American public will be amazed at some of the things he has put across. Here is part of the story.

Long before D day Eisenhower had timed every operation down to the last minute. The most important maneuver was to break through the Germans' Atlantic wall and wedge an opening through which other troops could pour. The German High Command considered this wall impregnable. Yet Eisenhower's driving demand for offense was such that he allotted his men exactly 45 minutes to get through. He had each move so carefully timed and planned that, after 45 minutes, other ships, supplies, men would be piling up on the beach, would have no place to go unless the break-through was accomplished in the time allotted.

Before the invasion a full-scale replica of German fortifications was constructed in England, built from aerial photographs. And day after day, American troops rehearsed their break-through. The best time they were able to make in these rehearsals, however, was one hour and 30 minutes. But when D day finally came, thanks to General Eisenhower's dynamic planning, they made it not in 45, but in 35 minutes.

But with his advance into France timed to the hour and day, Eisenhower, after the original break-through, ran into difficulty.

Lieut. Gen. Omar Bradley kept right on schedule in penetrating south into Normandy. And Maj. Gen. Joe Collins was on schedule or ahead of it in penetrating Cherbourg. In fact, they had developed, in cooperation with Eisenhower, a new type of advance. Instead of advancing so many miles and then waiting for supplies to come up, as at the slow-moving Anzio beachhead, they developed the tactic of barging ahead regardless of supplies.

Thus General Collins surprised the Nazis and the world, ignoring Nazi machine-gun nests, forgetting about supplies and forging right into Cherbourg before its defenders knew what was happening.

Trouble with Monty. Eisenhower's chief trouble, however, was with General Montgomery, whom Winston Churchill once described as "magnificent in defeat, insufferable in victory."

General Montgomery had been given Caen as his objective. But days passed and nothing happened. The offensive-minded Eisenhower kept hammering at Montgomery, urging an advance. But nothing happened. Actually, Montgomery had just as high a rank as Eisenhower, had seen many more battles, so Eisenhower was in no position to get too tough.

Finally, Air Intelligence showed that German resistance behind the Allied lines was a mere shell. He could tell from air observation that the Nazis were able to bring up only about 25 per cent of their needed supplies. Their reinforcements had to hide in the daytime, advance only at night. Most of the bridges across the Seine were down.

So Eisenhower, tired of waiting for Montgomery and already behind schedule, gave the order for General Bradley to ignore Montgomery and break through the Nazi lines to the south.

DEMobilizing OLDER MEN War department officials are under heavy pressure to make one very important change in the army's plan for demobilization.

The demobilization plan did not consider servicemen's age. However, men overseas, particularly those in the European theater, have been angrily pointing out that the British demobilization program gives each man a specific number of points for age, thus assures older men a better break. The army said it had drafted older men "reluctantly" because most were heads of families. The GIs now point out that it would be equally logical to discharge these older men among the earliest, since they are needed by their families.

Veterans' administration studies reveal that the cost of keeping older men in uniform is greater than for younger men, since the army pays out large sums for dependency. Alotments have proved meager and scarcely able to keep families together. Yet, under the demobilization plan as it stands now, family heads would be among the last men to be released.

CAPITAL CHAFF

The danger of a new crime wave as a result of letting returning war heroes keep captured revolvers and machine guns is worrying officials. Publisher Joe Patterson wasn't kidding when he explained that the New York News was dropping the "Presidential Battle Page" because of libel. He faces a libel suit from CIO's Beannie Baldwin. . . . The GOP accused Baldwin of drawing a salary from the government while working with the CIO and Patterson printed it.

Famous Animal in Aleutians

Here is "Babe," the most famous animal in the Aleutian islands. Babe, a cow, was brought to that western outpost by plane and now provides seven quarts of fresh milk daily for the headquarters staff. In charge of Babe is Earl Gist, seaman 2/c, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Shown at the right, looking over the famous cow, is G. L. Peterson of Minneapolis. Dehydrated milk is being used by most of the troops in that section as well as other war theaters.

Ready Airfields for Smash

As U. S. troops expanded their wedge on Leyte Island and drove the Japs into the hills, the newly taken airstrips were being put in order for air drives on major Jap areas. As arrows indicate, the next major steps are expected to be aimed at Mindanao and various islands in the central Pacific. This move will be a direct smash at Jap supply lines.

WHAT pitcher in baseball has had the greatest combination of speed and a curve ball?

This argument developed with great speed recently in a gathering of baseball notables. Your correspondent put this matter up to a long list of managers and old players, who should know what they are talking about. It was generally agreed that Walter Johnson had the king of all fast balls. That's about all old Barney needed in his prime.

Grantland Rice

It was also conceded that among the smarter pitchers you had to rate Alexander, Mathewson and Hubbell. Dizzy Dean was also given a high rating as an all-arounder with speed, a good curve and a change of pace when necessary.

I think it was Casey Stengel who added up all the qualifications needed and his score card put Carl Hubbell on top. After all Hubbell won 24 consecutive games.

Cy Young drew the nomination for durability, including arm and head through more than 500 victories, 510 to be exact.

The list of great pitchers is extremely long, dating back to 1900. There was Ed Walsh—Addie Joss—Smoky Joe Wood—Jack Chesbro—(both Walsh and Chesbro won 40 or more games in one season). There was Herb Pennock and Lefty Grove and Ed Plank. There was Bob Feller, one of the best. And Dazzy Vance, voted the most effective of all pitchers excluding Johnson. Alexander, Matty and Hubbell finished under a blanket.

Connie Mack's Decision

In the midst of all this confusion we finally decided to put the problem up to Connie Mack, who has only been around in baseball a brief matter of 60 odd years.

"Just what is the argument about?" Mr. Mack asked.

"The argument is this—what one pitcher had the greatest combination of speed and curves?"

"My goodness," Connie said. "I think that's quite simple. His name is Rube Waddell. Now Johnson had the best speed. But Walter only had a fair curve ball. His speed was enough. Matty and Alexander depended largely on control and smartness. Grove and Feller both had fine speed. But you are talking about both factors—speed and curves."

"Now I'll tell you about the Rube. He had terrific speed. He was a big, loose, lanky fellow who was almost as fast as Johnson. I know outside of Johnson I never saw any one faster."

"But his curve was even better than his speed. The Rube had the fastest and the deepest curve I've ever seen. You know what great hitters Lajoie and Cobb were? What wonderful batting eyes they both had? Well, I've seen the Rube pour one over that started and looked waist high. I've seen both Larry and Ty swing at this pitch as the catcher dug it out of the dirt. I've seen great hitters miss Rube's curve ball more than a foot. I honestly believe that the Rube's curve often broke at least two feet. But what is more important it was a fast curve, one that came up in a hurry and then ducked like lightning."

"Now, I'm not saying Waddell was the greatest pitcher of all time. I'm saying that he could have been and should have been for the simple reason that he had more natural stuff than any other pitcher I've ever seen. I mean by this that he had the best combination of what you are talking about—speed and curve. But the Rube had too many sidelines. Now and then he'd take a few days off and go fishing, without saying anything to me about it."

I recalled one of the last times I ever saw Waddell pitch. He had Cleveland beaten 1 to 0 in the last of the ninth when an error, a Texas leaguer and a pass filled the bases with none out. The next three coming up were Lajoie, Bradley and Flick, three of the best.

The Rube had brought out two friends who were sitting in a box. He left the pitcher's mound and walked over to the box remarking, "Ladies, I'll be with you in about two minutes."

He then struck out Lajoie, Bradley and Flick on nine pitched balls. I'll have to string with Mr. Mack on this opinion, which I like to do on any opinion Mr. Mack has to offer.

Georgia's Contribution

The Red Clay Hills of Georgia have given sport more than their share of stars. It was in this state that a kid by the name of Tyrus Raymond Cobb came to fame around 40 years ago, via Augusta and Detroit.

It was from Atlanta another kid named Bobby Jones moved into the national spotlight of golf back in 1916 at Merion when said youth was only 14 years old. Such champions give any state a running start.

GIRL OVERBOARD

by GEORGE F. WORTS

THE STORY THUS FAR: Zorie Corey, who hates herself for being so meek, is railroaded into taking a job she does not want, helping Admiral Duncan write his memoirs. She is in love with Paul Duncan, the admiral's grandson. While aboard the steamship Samoa en route to Hawaii a hand is clamped over her mouth and she is scooped up and tossed into the sea. She manages to catch hold of a life ring some sailor tossed overboard. On recovering from shock Zorie learns that Steve, Paul's handsome brother, with whom she is infatuated, was taken violently ill at the time she was thrown off the boat. The admiral makes the announcement that Pearl Harbor is bombed.

CHAPTER XIII

It was the first time that she had exchanged more than a few words with any of them since the night one of them had thrown her off the "Samoa's" stern.

She became aware that all of them were under a strain. Mr. Lanning drank his cocktails as fast as Steve would make them for him. By the time dinner was announced, he must have had seven or eight. Amber was nervous. Once, when she lit a cigarette, Zorie saw her hands shaking. Something, Zorie guessed, was in the wind, and only Paul was unaware of it. He was aware only of her. Whenever she glanced at him, he was looking at her with that puzzled expression in his eyes. He did not drink at all. When she had her second cocktail, she glanced at him. The old familiar expression of stern disapproval was about his mouth.

Why, Zorie wondered, did he disapprove of everything that was really fun? She suddenly felt hopeless about Paul. She wondered if they could ever work things out. She saw Paul suddenly as one of the unfortunates he was always talking about—the maladjusted people, the problem children grown up.

Eight of the admiral's guests were attractive couples from various parts of the island. The ninth to arrive was a big man with iron-gray hair and a square ruddy face.

His name, Basil Stromberg, meant nothing to Zorie at first. Then she recalled the fragment of conversation she had overheard between Steve and the admiral in the garden that morning, with Steve saying, "I don't care a damn who comes—as long as you get Basil Stromberg."

Zorie sat down beside Paul and asked him who Stromberg was. "He's the manager of one of the biggest plantations on the island. I suppose he's just another Nazi, although I never suspected it before."

"Why?" Paul shrugged. "Well, Steve seems to prefer Nazis. It looks to me as if he's turning Uluwehi into a Nazi hotbed."

"Are these other people Nazis?" "I don't know. I'm a stranger here myself. Basil is an American citizen. He was born on Kauai—of German parents. He was educated in Germany and he spends long vacations there. I believe he's been there quite recently. Shall I ask him?"

"Paul—please!" "But you asked a question and, with me, the inquiry of a beautiful lady is a ringing command."

Zorie realized that Paul was furious about something, and suppressing it only with an effort. She had looked forward to this dinner party, to pretending she was the princess of Uluwehi; but now that it was here, she was miserable. Paul's disapproval and the tension she sensed in Steve were spoiling everything.

It was a pity, because it might have been a delightful dinner party. Dinner was served by four pretty Japanese girls who wore beautiful kimonos and obis and resembled Japanese dolls. She watched them curiously and observed how mask-like their young Oriental faces were. Paul had said if she knew what these young Japanese were thinking these days, she would run for her life. It was hard to believe.

There were flowers in the center of the long table that made it difficult for her to see Paul. She could see all of Steve's face. He was being amusing and charming, but he wasn't fooling Zorie. Something was happening under the surface and he was taking the most elaborate pains to prove that nothing was happening.

When dinner was over, they returned to the lanai under the big banyan tree for coffee and brandy. Zorie sat down beside the admiral. When they had finished coffee, Paul said: "Shall we take a little stroll? We won't be missed."

He was furious about something. His eyes had that familiar narrowness and his mouth its well-known thinness. He disapproved of other things, too. She wondered, in a little flurry of panic, just what she'd done to make him so angry.

She hoped he wouldn't be too harsh with her. They had taken hardly a dozen steps when he pulled her arm away. He was taking her toward the iron-wood arbor on the beach.

"What—what is it, Paul?" Zorie asked.

"I want to have a talk with you," Paul answered. "But not just yet. I want to think a little."

When they reached the arbor, Zorie's eyes were growing used to the starlight. She found a bench and sat down. It was the same bench on which she had sat that morning to wrestle with her problem.

Paul did not sit down. He stood near her, with his hands in his coat pockets. From that characteristic posture, with one shoulder down a little, she knew what to expect, and she wondered if he took that stance when he was addressing his classes.

"Zorie," he said, "this evening has shown me exactly what I'll be up against when we're married. I've been watching you and studying you all through dinner—analyzing you as I've never bothered to analyze you before. I've had the pleasure of watching you—the girl I'm going to marry day after tomorrow—staring continuously at another man, with such adoration, such worship that it nauseated me to watch it."

Her sense of fear suddenly departed. With it went all of her old feeling of meekness. Zorie got up. "Paul," she said softly, "I think you'd better stop. I think you don't quite realize what you're saying. I think you had better be awfully careful, Paul."

"I know what I'm saying," Paul said harshly. "I'm saying that you're nothing but a natural-born cheat! It was written all over your face! You were goofy-eyed! You were ga-ga! You sat there, just drooping over that brother of mine!"

Zorie saw dim figures in the starlit darkness beyond the hedge.

"Paul—"

"Let me finish," he snapped. "Paul, I'm warning you. I won't let you or any other man say such things about me."

"You'll let me say what I have to say," Paul replied.

Zorie sat down again. He continued in the same strain. Her shameless adoration of Steve.

"Look at those flowers in your hair! Ever since he put some white ginger flowers in your hair, you've been wearing them like a holy symbol! Steve the great, Steve the wonderful puts ginger flowers in your hair and you melt. You go blah!"

It was, she supposed, inevitable. Out of him was gushing the bitterness that he had kept dammed up since that morning of their discussion on deck. She realized the truth—Paul could not take it. He had cracked under the strain he had imposed on himself. His solicitude had been a pretense, his ardor a sham.

He did not, she realized, love her. Not at this moment. In the mornings he might, but not now. He hated her for revolting against his Victorianism. He hated her because she had refused to be disciplined and dominated. It was really as simple as that.

"I can't go through with it," Paul said. "I want to be released from our engagement."

Any other time, Paul's outburst might have been justified—a little justified, although nothing she had ever done, except in her innermost thoughts, could have justified this.

"I understand," she said gently. In spite of the ugly things he had said, she was sorry for Paul. Tomorrow, if she knew Paul, he would humble himself, would plead for her forgiveness. Yet, even tomorrow, he might realize that things, after this, could never be patched up. She hoped he would. She hoped this was the end.

"You're free," Paul said wistfully. "You're free to do whatever you wish, to marry anybody you please." To marry anybody she pleased! That, in his mind, meant Steve. As if she had merely to mention to Steve that she was now free to be his—and he would clasp her in his arms, to have and to hold, forever!

Perhaps, in one sense, Paul was right. Certainly, a large part of Steve's attraction was physical. She could not recall ever being attracted so strongly to Paul.

Anyway, she would not have to marry Paul. She had escaped!

Zorie was aware of a sense of soaring relief.

"I understand, Paul," she said quietly. "Everything's finished. Perhaps it's best. I think we'd better go back now."

"Ah, yes—back to your lovely Nazis!"

Halfway to the blacked-out lanai, Zorie heard men's voices. They came from the other side of a high box hedge that she and Paul were about to pass.

Paul seized her wrist. He whispered: "Keep quiet!"

He pulled her close to the hedge, Zorie saw several dim figures in the starlit darkness beyond the hedge. Then she heard Steve's voice.

"This war is apt to ruin everything," he said. His voice sounded very apt to be trouble. I've spent most of the day at Kokee, looking the ground over. The only favorable factor is that they're working with only a skeleton crew. They'll be reinforced in a day or two. If we're to get in there, it will certainly have to be tonight."

Steve's voice hesitated. Zorie tried to see his face, but she could not.

"Briefly, the setup is easier than I expected," he went on. "JY-419 is there. It's being used every day, but not at night. They're using the old hookup for night-time listening."

Steve paused again. "I've learned one thing of vital importance. It will detect a plane more than fifteen hundred miles away. That's five hundred miles better than I was told in Madrid."

"Why," another voice interrupted, "didn't it detect the bombers that came over Pearl Harbor last Sunday?" The voice was so strained that Zorie identified it, with difficulty, as Winthrop Lanning's.

"How can you expect me to have the answer to that question?" Steve answered. "The old hookup would have detected them. The carrier could not have been more than two hundred miles offshore. Why didn't the Oahu listening stations report them in time?"

"What is this trouble you mentioned?"

"It has nothing to do with getting JY-419 out of the listening post," Steve answered. "JY-419 is in one compact sheet-steel cabinet that weighs, at a guess, between eighty and one hundred pounds. It is being kept in a small building some distance from the regular equipment. There's only a small plain padlock on the door."

The pressure of Paul's grasp increased on Zorie's wrist. He had no doubt felt the tremor that had gone through her. She was beginning to realize fully what this meant.

So this was Steve's "very dangerous game"—plotting with these sly, sinister people to rob his own country of a secret and valuable plane-detecting device!

All the ugly things Paul had told her about Steve, together with all the ugly things of which she herself suspected him, were in his voice now.

"We can break that padlock and carry the cabinet out."

"Wait a minute," another voice interrupted, and Zorie recognized it, with its softness, as Pierre's. "How do we get it out of that listening post? Those sentries are shooting at shadows?"

"Probably," Steve answered. "It will be dangerous and difficult, but it isn't impossible. I'd like to see which JY-419 is locked up in within fifty feet of the edge of the Kalaiau Lookout. I mean—the edge of the canyon. The sentry at that post won't expect anyone to come up over that edge."

"But is it humanly possible?" Pierre broke in.

"Yes. There's an old goat trail, now overgrown with vegetation, that I used as a boy. Don't forget I know every inch of that country. We can slip in and out past the sentry."

"How?" Pierre asked dubiously.

"It has been raining in the mountains for two days and nights. It was raining steadily up there all day. Don't forget that this is our rainy season. We can safely count on rain tonight."

"But if it isn't raining?" Mr. Lanning asked.

"Then we will overpower the sentry."

"That is very, very risky!"

"The whole job is risky," Steve said impatiently. "It always has been. The fact that the war is on doubles the risk. But that is not my worry. Winthrop. With these blue headlights and with occasional halts by the Provisional Police it will take an hour to drive as far as we can safely go. It will take us fully three hours to follow that old trail to the listening post, to get in, secure JY-419 and to get back to the car. That will bring the time to three o'clock, if we leave here at eleven. They will discover that JY-419 is gone by six at the latest. The navy will tear this island apart looking for it. Don't forget that this island is under martial law and that JY-419 is as vital a war secret as the famous bombsight."

"I won't," Mr. Lanning said dryly.

"I'm certain that we can get in there and get out with it," Steve continued. "But what will we do with it? It is very much like a play in a football game. We will have the ball, but we won't dare keep it. We must pass it as quickly as we can into safer, stronger hands."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for November 19

CHRISTIANITY AND DEMOCRACY

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:13-17; Romans 13:8-10; I Peter 2:13-17. GOLDEN TEXT—Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ.—Galatians 6:2.

No form of government can claim divine authority, for God's Word does not prescribe any special form of government. But (and this is most important) the principles upon which government should be established are clearly given in God's Word, and the form of rule which best fits into the teaching of the Word necessarily calls for our interest and support.

We find in the Bible the declaration that men are equal in the sight of God, that government is to be a ministry for God (see last week's lesson), receiving its authority from Him and serving Him in exercising that power. Men are to be loyal to the government because they are loyal to God. Our lesson carries forward the teaching of last Sunday. It tells us that:

The Christian Citizen Is— I. Subject to Both God and Country (Mark 12:13-17).

His devotion to God and the things of God is to be expected of the Christian. We almost said that it is taken for granted, and sometimes that is so true there is no reality in his life. But surely if he is a follower of Christ he must be devoted to Him and to His cause.

But what about his country? That relation appears anew in the striking story of Christ and those who came to test Him, yes, to trap Him with a skillfully worded question.

The Pharisees, who hated Rome for its domination of Palestine, and the Herodians, who supported Rome in its control of the land, were enemies, but they joined forces to tempt Christ. They knew that if He said "Yes" to their question, the Jews would be angry, and if He said "No," He could be condemned as a traitor to Rome.

The trap was set, but it caught only the crafty hunters. Taking their own pocket money He declared that if they used Caesar's money they ought to pay taxes to Caesar. The coin stood for an orderly government, benefits of which they enjoyed and which they ought to support.

No real Christian will evade his duty to his country whether it be to pay taxes, to take part intelligently in its government, to defend it, to pray for it, or otherwise to show his love. One of the blots on the Christian church is the lack of civic righteousness on the part of many of its members.

II. Devoted to Both Brother and Neighbor (Rom. 13:8-10).

The Christian loves his brethren; indeed that love is one of the tests by which we may know that a man is truly born again (I John 3:14). But that love reaches out beyond the circle of the brethren and touches every man who has need of it. The teachers of the Jewish law had sought to circumscribe that word "neighbor," but the Lord effectively dealt with that viewpoint in the story of the Good Samaritan (Luke 10).

All the commandments concerning the vital matter of personal relationship are summed up in the one admonition, "Love thy neighbor as thyself" (v. 9). When love controls, there will be no social dishonesty, a strife or ill-will. There will be no violence to the person or property of another, for "love worketh no ill to his neighbor."

This is the real "good neighbor policy." Even between nations, we need more real love and less effort to impress one another by diplomacy and good will expeditions. Let there be less political manipulation and more loving, and we shall find our neighbor both personal and national, responding in kind. Love draws out love from another.

III. Submissive to Both the Law of God and Man (I Pet. 2:13-17).

"Fear God" (v. 17); that is, be eager that there is no failure on your part to please Him by obeying His law. But we expect more; he is to be a law-abiding citizen, obeying the laws of his country "for the Lord's sake" (v. 13).

The believer may, by his godly faithfulness to his government, effectively witness against the ignorant criticism of foolish men who would have us think that being a Christian makes a man a weakling, or so other-worldly that he is useless in this world.

Our freedom in Christ is not an excuse for careless or wicked living. Not at all—just the opposite in fact. We "honor all men." How can that be done? Only by the grace of God; but by His blessing we can do it. That makes for the real appreciation of man, which is the very foundation of our democracy. If it means anything, it must have as its foundation principle the supreme value of human life and the dignity of the soul of man.

SEWING CIRCLE PATTERNS

Dress-Up Frock a Favorite Lingerie Set Is Most Flattering

Graceful and Slimming
THIS princess charmer, accented in rickrack, will do things for your figure and make you the envy of your friends. Trim with novelty buttons.

Pattern No. 8691 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 short sleeves requires 3 1/4 yards of 39-inch material; 1 1/4 yards machine-made ruffling to trim. For this pattern, send 25 cents in coins, your name, address, size desired, and the pattern number.

Very Attractive
THE round-necked, extended-shoulder treatment of this nightgown is very flattering and unusually easy to cut and sew. Insert a narrow satin or velvet ribbon in the draw-string top—make the sash of the same ribbon. Edge the attractive bed or breakfast jacket with narrow lace and tie it with another pretty bow of the same shade ribbon.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

A small bowl of vinegar placed in a room will absorb tobacco smoke.

Line the container in which you remove ashes from the furnace with wet paper to keep down the dust.

Keep your windows bright and clear on the inside during the winter by merely wiping them off with a soft paper napkin each week. This will remove the most dirt and polish them at the same time.

To pick up broken glass from the floor, wet a newspaper and gently wipe up the glass with it.

So you are having trouble starting wooden screws with a screwdriver? Well, put them through a piece of cardboard first and then hold the cardboard while the screw is starting into the wood.

After baking always leave the oven door open to permit the moisture to escape and thus prevent the oven from rusting.

In wringing out pillow cases in the laundry, always insert the closed end into the roller first. This will prevent possible bursting of the seams.

If your lamp shades are dingy and yellow on the inside, they probably are absorbing quite a large percentage of the light you need to see by. To restore their reflecting abilities, paint the inside with two coats of white shoe polish. Pat the second coat on carefully after the first is completely dry.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1231 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20; 40 and 42. Size 14 nightgown requires 3 1/4 yards of 39-inch material; jacket 1 1/4 yards. For this pattern, send 25 cents in coins, your name, address, pattern number and size wanted.

"I always inoculate vetch, clovers and peas with NITRAGIN. It is mighty cheap crop insurance."
"My neighbor tells me it made the difference of no crop and a successful crop."
"I increased peanut yields 10 bushels per acre."

Benefits to Our Readers

THE PUBLIC nature of advertising benefits everyone it touches. It benefits the public by describing exactly the products that are offered. It benefits employees, because the advertiser must be more fair and just than the employer who has no obligation to the public. These benefits of advertising are quite apart from the obvious benefits which advertising confers—the lower prices, the higher quality, the better service that go with advertised goods and firms.

One fellow remarked on the morning after the election that "The Democrats registered them and the Republicans voted them."

Both Democrats and Republicans in Davie county were amazed at the nearly 1200 majority rolled up by the Republicans in this county in the election last week. Just what happened to cause the big turnover hasn't been determined. We believe the good work done by E. C. Morris, Republican County Chairman, G. G. Daniel, Secretary, and the Republican candidates and their friends, had much to do with the large majority piled up on Nov. 7th. All deserve credit for their good work.

A Friend Departed

In the death of John G. Morrisett of Winston-Salem, which occurred recently, the editor of The Record lost a long time friend—one whom we had known for nearly thirty years.

Mr. Morrisett was the Junior member of Morrisett Co., one of Winston-Salem's oldest and best known department stores. The Morrisett brothers S. W. and J. G., moved to Winston-Salem some 30 years ago, and opened "The Busy Little Store," on North Liberty street, where they remained for many years, later moving to the present location on West Fourth and North Trade Street. For more than a quarter of a century the editor has visited the Morrisett Store nearly every week. This store has been advertising in The Record since going into business in Winston-Salem. We shall miss Mr. Morrisett on our weekly visit—his cheerful "Hello, how are you today," will be heard no more. Morrisett's will not be the same since he has gone. To the bereaved wife, son and brother, the editor extends deep sympathy in this hour of sadness. Winston-Salem has lost an honest, upright Christian gentleman—a man whose place will be hard to fill.

Navy Boys Like Record Gaither Killed In Action

Amphibious Force U. S. Navy.
Dear Mr. Stroud:—My buddy was reading me some of your very interesting news, and I decided I would write you a letter. It seems as if you really put the important things in your paper. We boys in the service like the straight dope, and yours is right straight from the shoulder.

This buddy I spoke of is Motor Machinist Mate 3-c W. C. Vickers. He knows his motors and knows his papers. In his opinion your paper is one of the best in North Carolina, and I'm inclined to believe him after hearing him read quite a few articles.
There is one article which touched me most of all, and that was entitled "A Touching Letter." It is true and I feel sorry and hope you will accept my deepest sympathy. I am but one fellow in a million, but I too, have a brother that has been on two ships shot out from under him. He is now in the Philippines. Please inform Mrs. Daywalt that she has the deepest sympathy from all who knew and loved her son.

Some day Germany and Japan will pay and pay dearly for their sins down in hell. We also enjoy the articles by Rev. W. E. Isehour and Oliver Green's revival. Keep up the good work and we'll all be home in a little while.

Fish for Dinner... Have It Often (See Recipes Below)

Fish Foods

Those red point problems won't come out by themselves. They need the expert guidance of the home-maker who makes a hobby of working out her point budget to suit her own particular needs.

We've discovered lots of delicious foods since food rationing began, and not the least of those is fish. It's a fairly inexpensive food and gives a wealth of protein, vitamins and minerals.

Fish may be purchased whole or as fillet or steaks. Scales may be left on when the fish is cooked for they usually soften in the cooking process. The methods usually employed for preparing fish are the same as used for meat — broiling, frying, baking and even boiling. If well cooked and seasoned, fish can be a welcome addition to your table.

Broiling Fish.
When using a whole fish for broiling, clean thoroughly, then wipe dry and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Brush the broiler pan with fat and place fish on heated rack, about two inches from broiling unit. Broil until fish is well browned and flakes when tried with a fork. It will take from 5 to 12 minutes to broil the fish, depending upon its size.

If you are broiling fish fillets, brush them first with melted fat and sprinkle lightly with flour to give them a crispy surface after broiling.

Baked Haddock with Dressing. (Serves 4)
3 haddock steaks (about 1 1/4 pounds)
3/4 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup chopped parsley
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup fine bread crumbs
Place steaks in shallow, buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Sauté onion and mushrooms in butter for 5 minutes. Add all remaining ingredients. Spread over fish. Bake in a moderate oven for 30 to 35 minutes. Serve plain or with creamy sauce. Strips of bacon may be placed on top of dressing before baking.

Tartar Sauce for Fish.
1/2 cup minced onion
1/2 cup chopped sweet pickle
1/2 cup chopped green olives
1/2 cup minced capers
1/2 cup minced parsley
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup tarragon vinegar
Drain first five ingredients and add to mayonnaise. Add vinegar. Bass, halibut, perch, pickerel, pike or trout may be substituted for the haddock in the above recipe.

Mackerel with Bacon and Onions. (Serves 4)
1 pound fillet of mackerel
Salt and pepper
1 cup sliced onions
4 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup fine, soft bread crumbs
2 slices crisp, broiled bacon

LYNN SAYS

Fish Sauces: For white sauce variations, you'll enjoy the following: Add 1 tablespoon chopped shallots to 1 cup medium white sauce; or 1/4 pound sliced, blanched almonds toasted with butter; 2 chopped hard-cooked eggs; 1/2 cup cooked shrimp with 1 hard-cooked egg; or 1/2 cup grated cheese.

Fish Stuffings: To 1 recipe plain bread stuffing, may be added: any one of the following: 1/2 to 1 cup sliced, sautéed mushrooms; 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper; 1/4 teaspoon mace; 1/2 cup ground onion; 1/2 cup grated raw carrots; 2 tablespoons minced parsley; 1/4 teaspoon savory seasoning and 1/4 teaspoon celery seed.

Arrange fillets in shallow, greased baking dish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Sauté onion gently in butter until tender but not browned. Turn out on fish, sprinkle with crumbs and top with bacon. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) until fish is done, about 15 minutes.

Salmon and Vegetables. (Serves 6)
2 tablespoons diced onion
2 tablespoons butter
2 cups cooked peas
1 pound salmon, cooked or canned
2 cups diced, cooked potatoes
Dash of pepper
1/2 cup sour cream

Cook onion in butter until tender but not browned. Add liquid from cooked or canned peas and cook until reduced to 1/2 cup. Place potatoes in shallow baking dish, add peas and sprinkle with pepper. Break salmon into large pieces and arrange on top of vegetables. Combine reduced liquid mixture with sour cream and pour over vegetables and fish. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 40 minutes until vegetables have absorbed most of the liquid.

Fish Fritters. (Serves 4)
1 pound small fish
3 eggs, separated
3 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon minced garlic
1 tablespoon minced parsley

Cook fish, remove skin and bones; mash. Beat egg yolks light and thick, then add remaining ingredients. Fold in whites of eggs which have been stiffly beaten. Drop by spoonfuls into hot fat and fry until brown. Serve with tomato catchup, tartar sauce, or egg sauce.

Scallops are another excellent fish to serve when you want something different for a meal. They lack fishy taste and smell and are boneless and easy to fix:

Fricassee of Scallops. (Serves 6)
2 pounds scallops
2 tablespoons butter
1 onion, sliced
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup stock from scallops
1 tablespoon minced parsley
Salt and pepper
1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Simmer scallops 5 to 6 minutes. Melt butter, add onion and cook about 3 minutes. Stir in flour until well blended, add stock and cook until mixture thickens. Add parsley, salt and pepper. Beat egg yolk, and add to hot sauce gradually. Cook for 2 minutes, then add scallops and lemon. Serve at once.

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

THIS is the story of three actresses who brought the home front right into your home. Primarily, however, it's the tale of one star who had the courage to depart from ingenue leads — who took a chance at a mother role and then found herself mothering two other stars in real life as well.

This is the behind-the-scenes story of Claudette Colbert, Jennifer Jones, and Shirley Temple in "Since You Went Away" — a combination that is smashing box office records across the land. Every time a like going up to David Selznick and giving him a pat on the back — not alone for the picture, but for taking my advice and casting Claudette as mother.

It all started one day while David was scouting around for a top star to play the heroine of the home front — mother.

"Why don't you get Claudette Colbert for it?" I asked.

"She wouldn't consent," he countered.

Subtle, Wat?
"Let me run a little yarn that you want her for it and we'll get her reaction," I said.

D. O. S. agreed. Next day I came out with a story. At 8:30 a. m. sharp Claudette had me on the phone. She wanted to know where in the devil I had gotten such an idea — what ever gave me the notion that she would consider playing the mother of a couple of girls that old?

Then I went to work on her. "David Selznick doesn't make anything but good pictures, does he?" I asked.

"Well, no."
"You don't expect to be an ingenue all your life, do you?"
"Well, no."
"You're an actress, aren't you?"
"I've been accused of it."
"Well, why don't you think it over?"

"All right, but Selznick hasn't asked me yet."
"He will," I replied.

She was receptive and asked to see a script. Naturally, at that stage of the game there was none.

Claudette called me. "I've never taken or accepted a part without reading the script first. What if it isn't suitable for me?"

"Listen, Claudette," I said. "This is going to be a big picture. Selznick doesn't make failures. He can't afford to make anything but a success — and to do that it's got to be just right for you as well as the others."

Claudette agreed, and the deal was set.

There's Many a Way of Wearing These Chic and Lovely Scarfs

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT'S a scarf season!

Not for decades, if ever, has a lady's scarf made such a sensational splurge in the fashion world as now. The new scarfs are that eye-thrilling and versatile, you feel the urge when once you start buying, to keep on and on until you have assembled quite a collection. Right you are, for to keep pace with fashion this fall you might as well plan to wear a scarf with most every one of your costumes.

However, as chic and charming as the new scarfs are in themselves, they tell but half the story. The other half centers about the many tricky ways there are of wearing a scarf. Just look (to the right in the illustration) what one lacy, sheer pure wool stole-scarf can do to the simple black dress, if you deftly tie it sash-like about the waist. The turban is also made of a twin wool stole draped and wrapped with utmost artistry. You can work out fascinating color schemes in a scarf ensemble like this, for those wool-stoles which are "tops" in fashion come in lovely shades, and are smart for dinner wear as well as for about town and sport wear.

In the oval to the left see a beguiling sheers of sheer wool oblong scarf, arranged about the throat with a touch that bespeaks an attractive accent to any sport outfit. A good-looking pin adds sparkle as well as holding the scarf in place. This scarf comes in ten beautiful jewel colors.

What could be more attractive for smart restaurant wear and other gala occasions than a sequin-embroidered oblong print scarf, which as you will observe (in oval to right) drapes easily as a turban. This oblong scarf also sounds a high-fashion note worn ascot fashion, for as you may know scarf-swatched necklines are tres chic this fall. The print is done in a multi-color English floral.

Sheer Lace Allure

In creating this season's evening and dinner gowns designers are playing up the allure of sheers of sheer black lace. This very attractive dress demonstrates how interestingly exquisite black lace is being used for high-style dinner gowns. In this instance the sheer top which is such an outstanding feature in smart styling is fashioned in a most beguiling manner. The sprightly lace peplum is lined with horsehair to make it ripple.

Breast Pocket Monogram

A monogram medallion on the breast pocket of one's blazer is the new rage among college girls. For that matter monogrammed sweaters are setting a new fashion that has developed into a tremendous vogue. So get busy girls and embroider a monogram in gay yarns that will give your smart sweater a new look of distinction.

patterning in a veritable medley of delectable tones and tints. You'll love this scarf with its glitter-glamor and its gaiety.

Now that we have told you such sparkling news in regard to the new oblong scarfs, let's turn our attention to the stunning large print squares which are so outstanding in the new collections. Who ever heard of a blouse made of a map of the Pacific, depicting on a 35-inch square of silken sheen the North Pacific and South Pacific and the islands of importance in between. To prove that is a reality and not a myth, see for yourself to the left in the illustration just such a blouse made of a map-printed square and worn as here shown with a patrician tailored suit. This color-bright square is also just what you'll be wanting to throw about the shoulders of your chic sweater dress.

An even more exciting silken scarf to wear with your sport clothes is a large La Marseillaise square. The print delineates an inspiring figure of La France surrounded by the words of that famous French national anthem. The border shows a patriotic motto in a most colorful, eye-catching pattern.

Another timely item in line with present-day events is a striking square scarf which prints famous buildings in Rome, the group centered within a small map indicating that "all roads lead to Rome"

As to the little sketches in the background of the illustration they show a new tassel scarf which is a three-way type that can be worn as a turban, a scarf or a sash. This scarf is ever so attractive with the fall sport suits and slacks.

Pearl Chokers and Shell Combs in Vogue

Along with the return of many other little elegancies that graced the fashion picture in the early Victorian days comes now a revival of tortoise shell combs for hair glamour and what's more are going to wear handsome pearl chokers again, just as they did in days of yore. So now choose your tortoise shell hand-carved comb and be the first to flaunt it before admiring friends. You can get the true-to-type Spanish tortoise shell combs, if you like. You may be fortunate, and have one tucked away in your treasure chest. The smaller sizes shown in the stores are pretty pearl-encrusted or take on decorative jewel and bead craft or perhaps are mounted with sequin-covered butterflies and flowers. It's going to be a new experience for most of us to wear anything high about the throat, but the now-fashionable pearl chokers and fancy velvet ribbon dog-collars demand just that.

Ermine on Black Suits

The little black suit with ermine accents is making its appearance at fashionable gatherings. The ermine is used discreetly and effectively — perhaps to cuff an off-the-face hat, a corresponding note sounded in a wide ermine cuffs on the sleeves. A very youthful black suit has a collar of snowy ermine finished off with a cluster of tiny ermine tails.

Trimming Around Armhole

A clever fashion is getting underway this season. It's a dressmaker touch of trimming around the armhole with a band of contrast fabric or with embroidery or beadwork or braid passementerie.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Progress of our Pacific war program and the growing possibilities of reasonably quick receipture of some rubber areas in the Far East have made men who know the rubber industry best emphasize the need for sound policies to deal with the economic and political problems which the gradual return of natural rubber will raise.

Mexico has its own way of conserving tires. Mexican motorists are required, by government regulation, to keep their cars idle one day a week. Car owners select their "motorless day" and then must display on their windshields a sticker of a color designated for that day of the week.

NEWS OF LONG AGO.

What Was Happening In Davie Before The New Deal Used Up The Alphabet, Drowned The Hogs and Plowed Up The Cotton and Corn.

(Davie Record, Nov. 18, 1914)

J. T. Baitv spent Saturday in Winston.

Jacob Stewart went to Yadkinville Thursday.

S. F. Binkley spent Thursday and Friday in Winston.

M. J. Hendricks, of Cana, was in town Friday on business.

Mrs. E. H. Morris returned Friday from a visit to her parents at Clemmons.

Mrs. T. A. Stone and babe visited relatives in Winston several days last week.

C. C. Stonestreet, of Kannapolis, is spending a few days with relatives around town.

P. W. Ravmor left Tuesday for a few weeks' visit to his brother at Campobello, S. C.

Mrs. Ross Mills, of Statesville, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Horn last week.

Mrs. Ollie Scott, of Tobaccoville, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Brown, on R. 1.

J. P. Burton, of near Hickory, was in town last week on business and paid our office a visit.

Mrs. E. E. Sorinkle, of Winston, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Brown, on R. 1.

The 28th Senatorial district, composed of Wilkes, Davie and Yadkin, gave a majority of 2,137 for Linville Bumgarner, Republican, of Wilkes.

J. T. Cartner has opened a stock of notions and groceries in the brick store at the depot.

A son of Enos James, of near Eurrentine, while rolling a saw log Friday morning, received a bad cut on his leg. The gash was about ten inches long, and Dr. Martin dressed the wound.

The State Central Highway thru Davie county is about completed. The grading is finished from Hall's Ferry to Mocksville, and as far as County Line. It is hoped that the highway will be completed this year.

Announcement is made of the coming marriage of Wiley Crotts, of Corry, Pa., formerly of Mocksville, to Miss Mary Carrell, of Corry, to take place during the holidays. Mr. Crotts is a son of Mr. G. W. Crotts, of near Mocksville.

Dr. T. W. Lingle, of the Davidson College faculty, spoke to the county teachers at the school building Saturday. His subject was, "Germany in Peace and War." His address was enjoyed by those present.

North Main street is to be widened, graded and made into a first-class sand-clay road. Many front yards will suffer as a result, but it would be a shame for the highway to stop on the outskirts of town.

J. H. Walker and daughter Miss Minnie, of Sparta, S. C., who have been visiting relatives in the county for a week, returned home Tuesday. Mr. Walker is a native of Davie, but left here 35 years ago, and for the past 20 years has been in Sparta. His many friends were glad to see him and to know that he is making good in the State of Bleasism and Tillmanism.

R. M. Woodruff, of R. 3, one of Davie's best farmers, tells us that he has fifty acres of land in corn this year. He says it will shuck out about 2,000 bushels, an average of 40 bushels to the acre. Jim Hall, one of his colored tenants, will make seven or eight bales of cotton and a big crop of corn.

The Tithing is The Lord's

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hiddenite, N. C.

Thirty one years ago I read a book written by a Methodist preacher entitled "The Methodist Armor", which I consider a very wonderful book. Among the many good things it taught was tithing. Not only did the author substantiate the fact that tithing was right from the standpoint of Scripture, but he gave a great many testimonies of those who had practiced telling how God had blessed them.

So many people say that tithing is only taught in the Old Testament, and that it isn't thought in the New Testament. Well, Jesus Himself approved of it (Matt. 23:23) and that is enough to prove to us that it is right. Whatever Christ set His approval upon we may know is pleasing unto God. And if God richly blessed the faithful tither in Old Testament times, who thus honored Him with his earthly substance, why won't He bless men in like manner today? He will; He does. Praise His holy and matchless name forever.

I figure that my tithes and offerings to God's cause through the years have amounted to something like $6,000. This has been given to Him so freely. It never goes grudgingly. Every dollar that comes into my hands I lay aside 10c as my tithing. Every time I receive ten dollars I give a dollar to God's cause. I put it into an envelope, and then it goes for home and foreign missions, for the orphan, for the purpose of supporting ministers of the Gospel, and for many other good, worthy causes. Not only do I give one-tenth of all my income, but give offerings out of the remaining nine tenths. This is taught in Malachi the third chapter. Read and study it.

God has enabled me to raise a family, pay all my bills, educate my children, even though serving poor appointments as a pastor, stay even with the world, and owe no man anything but to love him. This is life's better way. Try it and see how God will bless you.

If you are sending The Record to your husband or son who is in the armed forces, please see that his subscription is paid in advance. ## A Soldier Writes

Editor of The News:

I'm a Charlotte boy and used to be a regular News reader, so I'd like to have my say about the way the wives and sweethearts of servicemen are stepping out on us while we sweat and worry in these army camps a long ways from home.

I went back after a well-deserved furlough to find my wife chasing around with a garage mechanic who was making big money and could show her a good time. Now I'm trying for a divorce, but that's hard for a soldier to get because of small pay and being away from his home state.

My brother who is 21, had a sweetheart who was 18. He saved $75 on a private's pay in the New Guinea jungles and sent his girl an engagement ring—to learn his sorrow that she'd married a man almost twice her age!

Then there was Joe who bunked next to me. He had a wife and two kids he was crazy about. After sweating out all those long miserable months for a furlough, he went home to find his wife out drunk with some other man.

I'm hoping you'll print this and let all those bored and lonely wives and sweethearts know that we servicemen are really getting disgusted with the way things are going at home.

You might mention, too, the loose dependency allotment law which gives a woman ever a soldier. Soldiers don't like it in present form and think it should be changed. Too much money is not good for some women—and they don't give a hoot because they know the soldier can't stop it.

Advance Soldier Describes Invasion

He's fought through four invasions, but you have the word of Pfc. Harvey R. Hartman that going through one doesn't make the next one any easier to take.

"I was scared to death," the Advance infantryman, son of Mrs. E. M. Hartman, reported simply. "And I'd like to see a man who's been in one and says it didn't scare him."

If anything, going through one assault landing makes it tougher to face the next one "because then you know what you're in for," Pfc. Hartman explained.

To illustrate this point, he said the first invasion in which he had a hand—the landings in North Africa two years ago this month—found him less frightened than any since then.

The hardest of all, he said, was Salerno.

"The Germans sent their planes over and massed their armored divisions and threw everything they had at us," he asserted. "We stayed there on the beaches for five days simply because we couldn't get inland."

They did get inland, subsequently, and by the time Hartman was transferred to England two months later, in November, 1942, the forces were well beyond Naples.

Salerno was the hardest invasion, but not the hardest fighting. That came in Normandy, after Hartman had lauded with the assault forces on the beaches on D Day, June 6. The actual landing there he didn't find so hard, but the battles that developed later were another story.

"That was the worst fighting I've ever been through," he recounted. "Those hedgerows, you know. They divide the land off like rooms in a house, and if you stick your head up you get it shot."

"The mountain fighting in Tunisia and Sicily and Italy was nothing to compare with those hedgerows. The only way to get the Germans out was by bayonet and bullets, at close range."

On June 16, on the Cherbourg peninsula, Pfc. Hartman was wounded in the neck and back. He spent four days in a hospital and went back to fighting. Four days after his return, on June 24, he was wounded again, once more in the back and neck.

That's the reason he's at home now. He is on sick leave from Kennedy General Hospital, Memphis, Tenn., and has been visiting his aunt, Mrs. Ralph W. Ziglar, of Winston-Salem, R. 7, between visits with his mother at Advance.

Pfc. Hartman wears the Purple Heart with an Oak Leaf Cluster, and on his campaign ribbons are four battle stars. Actually, there should be five stars, or, rather, a silver star denoting five battles. Two of the stars he won for the North African campaign; one represents the invasion and campaign in Sicily; one is for Salerno, and one is for the Normandy landing and campaign. Besides these awards, he wears the Good Conduct Ribbon, the Combat Infantryman Badge, and the Presidential Unit Citation.

Now 24, he has been in the army four years and eight months and was overseas more than two years. He has three brothers in service, one of whom, Pfc. Clinton Hartman, has been wounded twice and is now fighting in Germany. Seaman First Class Avery Hartman is in the Navy in the South Pacific, and Pfc. George Hartman is with the army air forces at Spokane, Wash.—Winston-Salem Journal.

Davie Boy In Italy

15th Army Air Force in Italy—Sgt. Oscar B. Poindexter, Advance, N. C., recently completed his second year of overseas duty with the 15th AAF P 38 Lightning fighter bomber group, now based in Italy.

Activated in May 1942 and sent into action in Africa late in December 1942, the group was among the first long range fighter units in the Mediterranean Theatre of Operations. Since its first mission flown from American soil on Christmas Day 1942, the group has achieved an outstanding combat record rolling up the top score of any fighter unit in the Mediterranean Theatre of over 550 enemy aircraft shot down in aerial combat.

Hindered by adverse weather and trying living conditions, frequent shortages of vital parts and supplies, the men of this group, serving through the African, Sicilian, Italian, and European aerial offensives, formed themselves into a hard hitting, smooth working combat team that won for them two Presidential and one Distinguished Unit Citations.

The group was first cited for leading the mass P 38 low-level strafing attack on German air bases in the Foglia, Italy area, on August 25, 1943, in which over 150 Junker 88's and fighters were destroyed or damaged on the ground.

The second citation was for an aerial battle on September 2, 1943, with enemy attempting to intercept a formation of B-25 bombers attacking rail yards in the Naples area. The Lightnings encountered 70 aircraft and shot down 24 of them in a savage battle which carried 100 miles out to sea. Not a single bomber was lost.

The third citation, recently presented to the group by Major General Nathan F. Twining 15th Air Force commander, was awarded for the historic long range fighter-bomber attack made June 10, 1944, against the Romana Americana Oil Refinery, Ploesti, Rumania, then a high priority target in Europe. In this attack, P 38's led by Colonel William P. Litton, Shaw, Mass., flew 650 miles to the target at tree top level, then climbed at the last moment through fierce anti-aircraft fire and swarms of enemy fighters to drop their bombs on the smoke screened target, scoring hits on oil installations.

Sgt. Poindexter has been awarded the Good Conduct Medal, wears three campaign stars on his European, African, Middle Eastern ribbon, and the Distinguished Unit Badge with two clusters.

Award Oak Leaf Cluster

15th AAF in Italy—T-Sgt. Norman S. Chaffin, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman S. Chaffin, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stacy H. Chaffin, R. 1, Mocksville, N. C., has recently been awarded an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal. Sgt. Chaffin, who is an Engineer Gunner with a B 24 Liberator heavy bombardment group which has flown 350 combat missions, received his awards in recognition of his many aerial flights over enemy territory.

Sgt. Chaffin received his Gunner's Wings at Harlingen, Texas, December 18 1943. Besides the Air Medal with Cluster, he has been awarded the European-African-Middle Eastern Theater Ribbon, and is authorized to wear the distinguished unit badge.

Before entering the army, June 16, 1942, Sgt. Chaffin was employed by C. C. Tutterow, Inc., Charlotte, N. C. He graduated from High School in Mocksville, and attended Pfeiffer Jr., College.

Thanksgiving Favorite... Turkey With Cranberries! (See Recipes Below)

Turkey Talk

This time every year we set aside a day of thanks—thanks for the bounty of the year, our good fortune, our harvest. We may have worried about ration points, about balancing the budget, but hasn't it been a good year in spite of it all? Yes, so good! Our day of thanks is appropriately celebrated with as good a feast as can be set upon the table. The turkey is frequently the queenly bird that sets the tone for the whole dinner, so let it be proud and beautiful.

To Roast Turkey.

Rub inside cavity with salt, ½ teaspoon or less to each pound of bird. Place enough dressing in the neck to fill the cavity nicely. Fasten skin to the back. Stuff cavity well but do not pack too tightly. Truss, then grease skin with unsalted fat which has been melted. Lay in pan on a rack, preferably on one side, back breast down, and keep in this position throughout the roasting period. Cover with fat moistened cloth, then roast at constant temperature until tender, turning bird to the opposite side, still back up. Turn bird breast up when about half done. Do not sear, cover or add water to the pan. Sprinkle melted fat on cloth as it dries out.

Testing for Doneness.

Move the leg by grasping end bone. If the drumstick thigh joints break or move easily, the turkey is done. If a thermometer is used, it should register an internal temperature of 190° F. when placed inside in center of inside thigh muscle. If placed in the center of the stuffing, it should register 180 degrees F.

Weight	Oven Temperature	Total Roasting Time
8-10 lbs.	325 deg. F.	3-3½ hrs.
10-14 lbs.	325 deg. F.	3½-4 hrs.
14-18 lbs.	300 deg. F.	4-5 hrs.

Speaking of Stuffing
There are several different types of stuffing which may be used for the bird. There is the basic bread stuffing which may be varied in at least five different ways:

Bread Stuffing
(For 12-16 lbs. of turkey)
1½ pounds loaf bread, stale

Lynn Says:

Trussing Turkey: Insert needle through breast through rib at the base of the thighs. Draw cord through and pull string across by pulling cord through openings formed by folding wings triangular shaped out to the back. The needle does not go through the flesh here. Tie cord at the side (where needle was first inserted) making body of bird compact.
Put in part of dressing through vent opening. Then insert needle between two bones at each drumstick joint and bring cord around to the tail, through the backbone. Tie securely.
The neck opening offers a place to insert part or all of the stuffing which should be filled to make breast and neck well rounded.
Fold neck skin under wing tips and string to keep in stuffing and make a nice appearance. After roasting remove cord before serving.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for November 26

THE CHRISTIAN VIEW OF INDUSTRY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:15-26; II Thessalonians 3:10-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let him that stole steal no more; but rather let him labor, working with his hands the thing that is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth.—Ephesians 4:28.

Work is a blessing, and the proper attitude toward it is an important part of the life of a Christian. Industry has found its best and most dependable workers among those who believe in Christ. It has also come to realize that the strengthening of the faith of its workers makes them better workmen; hence we see all over the land the interesting development of chaplains in industrial plants. That activity rightly planned and properly conducted can be of great value to both the individual and to industry.

Our lesson rightly deals with the individual. Christianity is a personal matter, a life rather than a theory. It deals with the man rather than the mass.

I. We Are Accountable for Opportunity (Luke 19:15).
The king in this parable is Christ, who has now gone away, to return when God is ready for Him to set up His kingdom on earth. In the meantime His servants have been given that which they should be using for Him.

Two things stand out in this story. First, the fact that Jesus is coming again. There are many scoffers who deny that blessed truth (II Pet. 3:3, 4). There are many believers to whom the promise has become but a formal truth in a confession of faith or a creed. But the failure of men to recognize truth and their unwillingness to hold it precious, do not alter the fact. Jesus is coming again!

When He comes, He will have many things to accomplish, but the most important is that there shall be an accounting with His followers (who are supposed to be His servants) regarding the life they have lived. What will your answer and mine be in that day? It depends on what we are and what we are doing right now.

The basis of His judgment appears in the following verses, where we learn that:

II. We Are to Be Rewarded for Faithfulness (Luke 19:16-26):
When believers stand in the presence of Christ to answer for the deeds done in the flesh (our sins were judged at Calvary!), it will not be a question of what church you belong to, or what family name you bear, or how much money you have amassed. No, the only question asked will be, "Have you been faithful in trading with the gifts, the abilities and the opportunities which God has given you?"

Note that there are three different judgments here, but all on the one ground of faithfulness. The first man represents those who with all diligence and zeal seek to grow spiritually and to serve the Lord with glad abandon. All that they have and are they give to Him for His glory and for the winning of others to Him. They will be commended by the Lord and great will be their reward!
The second man, with equal opportunity, did accomplish something, but not too much. He represents those who do want to serve the Lord but with no special zeal, no great measure of sacrificial endeavor—just "average" (what an unfortunate standard!) Christians.

The Lord is fair. He does not deprive them of their reward. In the measure that they have been faithful, they too shall find joyous service for Him. But observe that there is no special word of commendation in this case, and there is a limited reward.

The third man represents those who profess to be in fear of God. He seems to demand so much of them and they are not ready to give it. After all, they say, we want to enjoy life. Why should the Lord expect so much of us? Not only do they lose all reward, but the Lord must take away even that which He has already given.

III. We Are Commanded to Work (II Thes. 3:10-12).

From the day that God put Adam in the garden of Eden to care for it, honest work has been the lot of all mankind—yes, and his honor. There is no place in the economy of God for the man or woman who is able to work but is not willing to do so. "If any will not work, neither let him eat" (v. 10).

Apparently there were some in the church at Thessalonica who perverted the teaching of the Lord's return, who said that if Jesus were coming any day there was no use working. They had turned the truth completely around. The point is that since Jesus may come at any time, we should all be doing our utmost to accomplish all we can so that we may stand in His presence with joy, and not with shame.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Many rubber items in common use are shaped at the factories in giant extruding machines, which in general appearance and action are much like the ordinary kitchen meat grinder. Rubber, mixed with chemicals, is extruded in one shape desired—round, square, rectangular or tubular.

The critical operating temperature in a tire is about 240 degrees at its hottest point, and is reached quicker in a synthetic rubber tire than in one made of natural rubber. Speed, load and inflation are chief factors in developing tire heat, which accounts for tire users being cautioned about respecting them.

The season of pumpkin pie is now here. Why should we worry over politics.

It will be two years until another election rolls around, for which we should all be thankful.

All of the election bets should have been paid by this time. Some of the boys are smiling while others are looking mighty sad

We are glad that the election is over for another two years. Some of our friends were elected and some were defeated. No one can get everything he wants, especially in an election.

We thought Davie county gave a big majority, but when we read the returns from Wilkes county it made us feel that we had a long way to go before catching up with the "State of Wilkes." That mountain county gave a Republican majority of more than 3,000.

It is hoped that when the Republicans take over the county on the first Monday in December that they will immediately thereafter take the necessary steps to see that the court house clock is right at least half of the time. That clock has actually caused people to miss buses and get home too early or too late for their meals

If the editor has said or printed anything that would offend any of his friends during the recent campaign, he is indeed sorry. We have tried to be conservative in what we have said. So far as can remember, we haven't called any of the New Dealers or Democrats in Davie liars or thieves, and have no apologies to make for voting the Republican ticket.

Home on Furlough

Pvt. Frank H. Short, who is stationed at Camp Gordon Johnston, Fla., is spending a 10 day furlough in town with his wife and parents.

To Open New Store

Otis Hendrix, of Mocksville, R. 3, has rented the Call building, next door to Hotel Mocksville, and will open a new hardware and grocery store this week.

Mrs. Gillespie Gets Big Vote

Mrs. Melvin Gillespie, of Brevard, Democratic candidate for Register of Deeds in Transylvania county, polled the largest vote of any candidate in the recent election. Her majority was 899. Ralph Fisher, Republican candidate for Representative in Transylvania county, defeated his Democratic opponent by 112 majority. Mrs. Gillespie, before marriage was a daughter of rs. W. L. C. II and the late Mr. Call, of this city. She has many friends here who will be glad to learn of her election.

Marines Coming Home

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 10—Fifty-six U. S. Marines from the South and Southwest, veterans of the Saipan and Guam campaigns which brought American forces to Tokyo's front door, have returned to the United States and soon will be home on furloughs, it was announced by Southern Procurement Division Headquarters here today.

Nearly all this contingent of Leathernecks are members of the Fourth Marine Division which helped blast the Jap from Saipan in 25 days and from Guam in 20 days.

The veteran fighting men now are being reclassified and reassigned to stations in the United States before beginning their furloughs.

Among them is Pfc. John Greer Crawford, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Crawford, of Coolemeec.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

WAR IN SOUTH AMERICA

Washington, D. C. Most Americans have been so engrossed in the World War that if you told them war was brewing right here in the Western Hemisphere, they never would believe it.

Yet buzzing backstage in the Washington diplomatic corps has been a growing, worrying reverberation over the ultimate danger of war between Argentina and Chile—not this year, perhaps not next year, but before very long.

Additional attention was focused on the unhappy situation with Argentina's bid for a conference of Pan-American foreign ministers—on an obvious move to put the U. S. A. on the spot and force recognition of the Fascist Farrell militarist government in Argentina.

The whole tangled diplomatic controversy between Argentina, the United States and other neighbors is so involved that it takes an expert to understand it. But out of the mess emerges these basic and alarming facts:

1—Argentina is rushing armament. Hedy Lamarr's former husband, Fritz Mandel, the Austrian munitions king, about whom "Idiot's Delight" was written, is busy building airplanes for Argentina night and day.

2—Argentina could bomb Santiago, capital of Chile, from Mendoza, just across the Andes, in 40 minutes. It would take five hours for Chile to bomb Buenos Aires, capital of Argentina.

3—The people of Chile today are worried sick over Argentina. The Socialist, Communist and Conservative parties, usually vigorously divergent, are now united on this. They fear that the Argentine Fascists, looking for means of keeping themselves in power, as Hitler did with the German people, will make a Czechoslovakia out of Chile.

Brazilians Admire Argentina. Other Latin Americans are divided. Paraguay, Bolivia, Peru sympathize with Argentina. Officially Brazil does not. But actually the Brazilian army, plus many of the Brazilian people, are rooting sympathetically for the one country south of the Rio Grande which has successfully thumbed its nose at the Colossus of the North and got away with it.

Nothing succeeds like success, especially in the Latin American mind. The state department adopted only halfway measures with Argentina; snubbed her diplomatically, but made her prosperous economically by continuing to buy meat. The Argentines didn't care much if they were snubbed as long as they were prosperous.

Result is that many "good neighbors," though not liking Argentine Fascism, enjoy seeing U. S. diplomacy come to grief.

NOTE—Meanwhile, the United States is less equipped to handle things in our own hemisphere than ever before in two decades. Secretary Hull is sick. His best Latin American experts were friends of Summer Welles and were given the gate after Welles resigned.

CONCERNING THE WAR'S END

A lot of people have tried their hand at predicting the war's end, including this columnist. Some were high-up officials, some private prognosticators. Some were pretty good, some pretty bad.

Rep. Earl Wilson, Indiana Republican, in June, 1943, got an average compilation from 140 congressmen that the war would be over in October, 1944.

Adm. William F. Halsey, who predicted "complete, absolute defeat for the Axis in 1943," was asked again, on December 13, 1943, and "wasn't so sure when the war would be over."

Gen. "Hap" Arnold, chief of the air forces, on February 14, 1943, predicted "the German war will be over by February 14, 1944."

Jim Farley, on January 20, 1943, "The war will be over this year."

Gen. Levin Campbell, January 15, 1943—"The war will be over in about two years."

Herbert Hoover, November 6, 1943—"Certainly we are now in the last stages of the war."

Raymond Moley, November 8, 1943, predicted end of the war "earlier than envisioned by the administration."

Senator O'Mahoney, Wyoming Democrat, January 2, 1944—"The most conservative Swedish observers do not believe that Germany can endure beyond next June."

Sun Fo, president of the legislative Yuan of China, January 2, 1944—"Germany will be knocked out between the spring and summer of this year."

Henry Ford, March 20, 1944, predicted war would be over in two months.

Senator McKellar of Tennessee, July 21, 1944—"The Red army will be in Berlin in 60 days. The war will be over on all fronts in six months."

Congressman May, Democrat, Kentucky, July 28, 1944—"Germany will capitulate by December 1."

Aviation Conference Underway

Adolph Berle, assistant secretary of state, and temporary chairman, is shown as he made the opening address of the International Civil Aviation conference held in Chicago. Delegates representing 50 countries met in first conference of its kind, hoping to work out a plan for world air transportation. The conference has dedicated itself to the world-wide peace-time aviation development.

GIs Build Bamboo Water Line

Bamboo water line is supported across a defile by trestle also made of bamboo. This improvised line, in Yunnan province of China, the end of the lines for American army supplies, released hundreds of Chinese coolies from carrying water in order that they could handle other essential war supplies for American and Chinese forces.

Gain by Gain Toward Victory

This map shows the steps taken by Gen. Douglas MacArthur as he kept his vow to return to the Philippines. On the second day of January, 1944, he made his first major leap-frog jump along the coast of New Guinea from Lae to Saidor. The map shows the succeeding operations, climaxing in the invasion of the Philippines.

Awarded Nobel Medicine Prizes

Doisy, St. Louis, Mo., (center); and Dr. Herbert S. Gasser, of the Rockefeller Institute, New York city, were awarded the prizes for medical research work.

Guest of Air Force

Grantland Rice

Sportlight

of GRANTLAND RICE

THE discussion involved a young fellow by the name of Stirmweiss, the Yankee second baseman. The general agreement was that his fine 1944 record placed him on top of all second basemen from both major leagues. Especially his base running in a year where base running was moving back with the Great Auk among the extinct species.

At this point I began to think of the greatest percentage base running of all time. A short while later I was lucky enough to run into the holder of this record, a tall, slender fellow by the name of Max Carey.

"No," Max said, "I was never much worried about even the fast and smart Stirmweiss breaking my two-year record. As I recall it I made 54 attempts to steal one season and got away with 52 of these. The next year I tried 52 steals and got by with 48. So out of 106 attempted steals I was thrown out only six times, completing what you might call 100 jaunts from first to second. I think my average for those two years was around .96 per cent."

"As you get older you begin to think more about any record you might have made. In my opinion base running is far more important than many managers seem to think it is. You'll see good hitters who get on pretty often, who are fast enough, stealing maybe three or four times a year. Clubs fail to realize that good base stealers can upset a pitcher more than almost any other factor."

"I'll tell you why," Mercury Max continued. "I never tried to steal off a catcher in my life. I ignored the catcher completely. I always stole off the pitcher, getting my lead when it was too late for him to change his pitch. Don't think this helped him any the next time I got on. For one thing it broke up his concentration and a pitcher's complete concentration is a big part of his job. It wasn't easy for him to be thinking of the runner on first and also putting that ball where he wanted it to go."

Base Running Wanted

"I know the fans like base running, a lot more base running than they are getting today."

"Who is the ballplayer that so many rate as the greatest of all time? His name is Ty Cobb. Cobb was a great hitter, but he was just as good a base runner. And one of the main things all old timers remember about Ty Cobb was his brilliant base running that upset many a defense. Cobb would steal from 60 to 96 bases each year. His total, as I recall it now, is close to 900 steals. You can understand how many games all this must have won. Cobb ran much wilder than I ever tried. His idea was not only to get an extra base but also to crack the morale and steadiness of the catcher, the pitcher and the infield. Now and then he made hopeless attempts, just to keep them guessing."

"Yes, it was Cobb's base running they always talk about. You recall in the recent world series in St. Louis what so many were talking about? It was the 1931 series where Pepper Martin started to beat the Athletics, and they were talking about Pepper's base running."

"As you know John McGraw and Ed Barrow always picked Honus Wagner as the greatest ballplayer of all time, even over Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth. Wagner, of course, was a great shortstop and a great hitter. But Honus didn't stop there. He was also a brilliant base runner. Carrying his 200 pounds, Wagner often stole more than 50 bases a year, which is one of the main reasons for his selection by two such eminent baseball authorities."

"I can't recall even an attempted steal in the recent games between the Cardinals and the Browns. No one tried to bother the pitchers by even faking a steal. This gave each pitcher a chance to keep his full concentration on handling the bat. The answer was 92 strike-outs in six games for a new record."

"I know the crowds like base running and base stealing. They get a thrill out of seeing some fast runner take his whirl from first to second. If he makes it he is only one hit away from a run. If he doesn't try, he is two hits away from a run unless it happens to be a long blow, a double or a triple. But teams today are waiting for the one big punch, the one big inning."

"That was alright when you had Ruth and Gehrig on one club. But not nowadays. Most of them now are one and two-base hitters. Especially one-base hitters. These could drive in a lot more runs if that man on first would only get to second. A lot of us used to get there. Why can't they get there now? There is plenty in the way of speed today to pick up 35 or 50 stolen bases a year for any fairly fast man."

"I know a great many thousands of fans feel about it just as I do. The game has been throwing away one of its greatest arts."

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities from the blood. This poisons the system and upsets the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nationwide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

GIRL OVERBOARD

by GEORGE F. WORTS

THE STORY THUS FAR: Zorie Corey, who hates herself for being so meek, is railroaded into taking a job she does not want, helping Admiral Duncan write his memoirs. She is in love with Paul Duncan, the admiral's grandson. While aboard the steamship Samea en route to Hawaii she is tossed overboard, but is rescued. On recovering from shock she learns that Steve, Paul's handsome brother, with whom she is infatuated, was taken violently ill at the time she was thrown off the boat. Pearl Harbor is bombed while they are steaming towards Hawaii. Two destroyers escort them to Oahu. After landing, Paul releases Zorie of her pledge to marry him.

CHAPTER XIII

Mr. Lanning's throaty voice said: "I have already anticipated this problem. My suggestion is that you and Pierre go to the listening post and secure JY-419. Once you have it, Pierre will tell you where and to whom it is to be delivered. Not that I don't trust you, Steve, but the present situation is too critical for taking chances."

"I understand," Steve said. "I hope this person you have in mind is prepared to get it off the island instantly. That will be no small job in itself. Under a navy ruling, all small boats have been ordered to remain in port. The logical, simple way would be for a rowboat to take it out and turn it over to the commander of a Jap submarine—if the Japs are to be allowed in this. A rowboat could slip out without being noticed and it could make contact with a Jap submarine previously notified by a short-wave station."

"The problem of getting JY-419 off this island," Mr. Lanning said with a touch of irritation, "has already been worked out. When do you and Pierre plan to leave here for the lookout?"

"As soon as possible after the guests leave."

"You said eleven. Shall we agree on that?"

"Yes."

"Very well," said Mr. Lanning. "Leaving here at eleven, taking into consideration the inevitable contingencies, you should be able to deliver it anywhere on this island within five hours. To be safe, say six hours. Therefore, plan to deliver the cabinet to the place that Pierre will designate at or before five o'clock."

"The money?" Steve asked.

"The man to whom you will deliver JY-419 will have the money for you in thousand-dollar bills."

"I'm not doing this entirely for the money," Steve said. "I want Germany to have JY-419. I want to do all I can to help. Are you quite sure this man to whom we will deliver it will be able to get it off this island—and out of Hawaii?"

"You need have no fear on that score," Lanning assured him. "What time have you now?"

"Exactly ten-thirty."

"Set your watch, Pierre," Lanning said. "At precisely eleven, you will meet Steve at the garage. Is that correct, Steve?"

"Yes."

Zorie had been trying to hold her breath. Then she tried breathing without making any noise. She felt desperately ill.

Paul was tugging at her wrist. He pulled her away.

When he was well beyond their hearing, he said: "Our hero! My wonderful big brother! Do you realize what that meant?"

Zorie tried to answer, but she was so stunned, so weak, she could not produce her voice.

"He's not only a Nazi sympathizer, he's selling out his own country; his own navy! JY-419! I think I've heard of it—some kind of radio gadget that can detect the approach of enemy planes. Something like the device the British've been using for night fighting, but good for fifteen hundred miles!"

She hardly heard him. Her brain was numb. Her knees were so weak she could hardly stand. It was horrible.

"The scandal this will mean to the family!" Paul was saying. "The blow it will be to the admiral!"

"Oh, yes," Zorie said weakly.

"We've got to head it off," Paul said. He was so excited he was panting. "You realize, of course, we must be extremely careful. Those men are dangerous. Do you think, with a deal on like this, they'd hesitate to kill you—or me?"

To Zorie, it didn't seem important. It now occurred to her that any means they took to prevent these men from stealing JY-419 would jeopardize Steve's life. A corner of her brain jeered that death was a fate he deserved. Then it occurred to her that Paul was not qualified to deal with a situation so realistic, so dangerous as this.

"Don't do anything," she said, "until we've thought it over."

"Yes," Paul agreed. "We must be careful. This is dynamite."

She was suddenly alarmed, frightened at what Paul, with this dangerous knowledge in his possession, might do. She was afraid that his hatred of Steve might urge him into something sheerly vindictive.

"Paul," she said tremulously, "I want you to promise me you'll do nothing until we've considered it."

"We've very little time," he answered. "Less than an hour."

She looked at the luminous dial of her wrist-watch. It said ten-six.

No more than three minutes could have passed in the eternity since she and Paul had stolen away from the hedge.

"Where—what is Kokee?"

"It isn't a place—it's the name of a region, or area, in the mountains above Waimea Canyon. Thick ohia woods, with summer cabins scattered through them. On the highest hill is the navy listening post, placed there because this island is farthest west. We have our choice of notifying the listening post, or the F. B. I., or the provisional police. But perhaps there's a better way—a smarter way!"

She didn't trust him. "Paul, I want you to promise me!"

"I understand," Paul said, and he laughed softly. "You want to save him. You love the man. He's your hero. You adore him. But don't forget that I have a sentimental stake in this, too. Steve is my brother—my only brother! The big brother whom I've always envied and worshipped and feared! And he's a traitor to me and my family and my country. I've got to think of all those things. I'd like to save Steve, family and country, too."

The dinner guests were leaving. Zorie caught a querulous glance from the admiral, and she didn't blame him. She was supposed to be, in a sense, his hostess. Slipping off with Paul, staying away all this time, had been inconsiderate and rude.

Mr. Stromberg was the last to leave. He walked off, solidly and importantly, toward the path, lighted by dim blue-shaded bulbs—a blackout precaution—that led through the garden to the garage and the parking space. Before the curtained lanai door closed, she was sure she saw someone join him. She wondered where Amber was.

Pierre Savoyard and Winthrop Lanning returned to the lanai, but Steve did not.

Zorie glanced at her watch. It now said ten twenty-eight. She had decided that the safest plan—the only safe plan—was to warn Steve that she knew what his "dangerous game" was, to warn him that if he did not abandon it, Paul would notify the authorities.

She started to cross the lanai to tell Paul that she was going to find Steve. But Paul was speaking. He was already executing a plan of his own.

He said, "Admiral, aren't you getting a little fed up with this latest joke of Steve's—this terrific interest he's pretending in Nazism?"

Paul paused, with a strange smile. He looked pale and determined and his eyes looked pale, as if he were frightened.

Zorie, catching her breath, quickly glanced about the lanai. Only Mr. Lanning and Pierre Savoyard and Paul's grandfather were there. The three men were staring fixedly at Paul. The admiral's bushy white brows were bristling ferociously. The flesh about his eyes was crinkled into diamond-shaped holes out of which his china-blue eyes glared.

"Paul . . ." she began.

"I saw the order," Paul went headlessly on, "commanding Steve to report for duty at his post in Pearl Harbor laboratory as soon as he's finished up here. Everybody knows that court-martial of his was just a gag—that he's been away all this time on a furlough."

Paul's voice went on, but she hardly heard it. Pierre Savoyard darted a brief venomous glance at her and walked swiftly out of the lanai.

Without a word, Winthrop Lanning followed. He did not even glance at Zorie. Grim-faced, he walked to the curtained door as if at any instant he might break into a run. Once he was outside, Zorie was sure she heard him running.

For a moment she stood listening to Paul, watching the play of eagerness in his lean, pale face.

She knew as well as he did that nothing of what he had said was true—that he had chosen to say just that because it would instantly destroy Winthrop Lanning's and Pierre Savoyard's trust in Steve.

It was Paul's way of handling a situation that he himself described as dynamite. He had done it deliberately, and she realized that he would claim, no matter what the consequences were, that his motives had been purely patriotic.

Zorie slipped out of the curtained door and found herself running before she was aware that she had commanded her legs to carry her as fast as they could. Steve had said he would meet Pierre at the garage at exactly eleven. There was time to spare, but she must reach him and tell him what had happened. What he chose to do about it did not concern her. Paul had deliberately jeopardized Steve's life by what he had said, and Zorie felt that it was her simple duty to warn him. If Savoyard and Lanning really believed that he had all this time been double-crossing them, they would certainly kill him without hesitation. Certainly, they had given a sufficient demonstration of their ruthlessness.

She recalled the look Pierre had given her before he ran from the lanai, and she ran faster, holding up her sun-pleated star-sapphire dress so that she would not trip on it.

She ran past the tiny far-spaced blue lights that marked the path to the garage. The garage, when she reached it, was dark and empty.

"Steve!" she called. "Steve!"

He did not answer her. She looked at her watch again. It said ten forty-five. Steve might not be here for fifteen minutes. He might be in his room at the house.

She started breathlessly along the path toward the house. And as she started, she heard, off to her right, in the jungle-like garden, a familiar, terrifying whisper.

"Ah-nah!" it said. "Ah-nah!"

There were sounds in that direction, as if someone were struggling or floundering about in the dense growth. Then she heard a soft thump—a sound that might have been made by a body falling.

She flattened herself against a tree. The man passed within four feet of her, walking rapidly toward the garage.

The man was Pierre.

When he reached a turn in the path, Zorie left the tree and walked to the dark opening out of which he had come. Had he already found and killed Steve?

Zorie pushed her way through soft, damp growing things. It was so dark she could see nothing. But her feet had found another path. It was the path on which she had been standing this morning when Steve and the admiral had passed on their way to the garage, when Steve had said, "I don't give a damn who comes, as long as you get Basil Stromberg."

She paused and called softly, "Steve! Steve!"

There was no answer. She took a step toward the house. Her toe touched something soft, yielding. She became aware of the sudden spicysweetness of ginger flowers. It seemed to be all about her.

She bent down. Her groping fingers found, first, a pasteboard pack of matches lying on the ground. Then she touched flowers and a woman's soft, abundant hair. The flowers were still moist, as if they had been freshly plucked.

Her exploring fingers next found a face, a chin, then the texture of silk and soft, warm flesh under it. She straightened up. She wanted to scream, but she could only whimper.

It was Amber! Amber—with fresh ginger flowers in her hair! Zorie knelt down in the path beside her. She placed her ear against Amber's breast. There was no sound of a heart beating. In Amber's body there was nothing but stillness.

Pierre had killed her. Rising from her knees, trying to collect herself, Zorie realized that Amber might have been killed because of those white ginger flowers in her hair! Zorie could not recall that Amber ever wore flowers in her hair. She had come here tonight and picked these flowers and put them in her hair. Why? Because she admired their effect in Zorie's hair? Because she was envious?

What she did know—what she could arrive at by the simplest and most logical of deductions—was that Pierre had killed Amber by mistake. He had intended to kill Zorie! She recalled his glance just before he left the lanai. He must have come upon Amber just as she had picked the white fragrant flowers and put them in her hair. He must have run to the garage to find Steve and, in back-tracking, had seen Amber striking matches to pick the flowers. He hadn't seen her clearly enough. It now occurred to the terrified girl that Pierre was still hunting for Steve. She must find him first!

She did not hear footfalls in the path. She heard nothing until the beam of a flashlight, its lens covered with blue cellophane flashed in her face, then was lowered to the dead girl lying in the path, and Winthrop Lanning's amazed voice said, "Miss Corey! Why did you do this?"

Regrets

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hiddenite, N. C.
There are more or less regrets in the hearts, minds and souls of practically all mankind. Even after multitudes of people seek the Lord, obtain pardon, and realize that they are in sweet fellowship with Him, and that they are traveling heavenward, they regret some things they have done in the past, or something they said, or something they left undone as a solemn duty. Maybe they failed to win a soul to God that had slipped away unprepared to meet God. Maybe they did some rash deed—even committed murder—and they will regret it the longest day they live. Maybe they wounded a loved one, or somebody else, by a rash, harsh, thoughtless word, and the soul of that person slipped away without the offender even apologizing, asking forgiveness, and making it right. Maybe they felt deeply impressed to speak to someone about his soul, but let the opportunity pass forever unaccepted. As they think back over the past they deeply regret it. The greater number of all our regrets could be avoided, and would be, if we would only surrender our lives completely unto God, take heed to His commandments, obey His word and do His blessed and holy will. This is the only safe way to pursue in life, and the only safe thing to do. No one ever regrets obeying God as he journeys through life; but everybody, sooner or later, regrets disobeying Him and living in sin and wickedness. Absolutely. Then, why not take the sure way? Why not take the way that not only means the salvation of the soul for time and eternity, and Heaven at last, but that also marvellously saves many sad and sorrowful regrets? This is life's better way. Why not follow it? It is wisdom on the part of any and every person to do this; but folly on the part of all people to fail to do it. The safe way is the best way, the most honorable, peaceful, blessed, beautiful, holy and sublime way. One of the great wonders of life is that people will serve this devil instead of God, and then suffer many a regret along life's pathway as a consequence. As their precious time is wasted, never to be recalled, they regret it. As their golden and priceless opportunities slip by, never to return, they regret it. As they face death, God and eternity, having lived sinful and wicked, they regret it. Yes, regret it forever.

A Nation That Is Damned

Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? They that tarry long at the wine—Prov. 23:29 and 30.
Who does not know that a nation of drunkards is doomed and damned?
According to God's holy word and history, all nations that forget God will be cast into hell.
The greatest calamity that ever could have entered our sweet land of Liberty, and our Christian nation, was the liquor traffic. It is the foulest corrupting influence in the history of American politics.
Our leaders of our nation has been tarrying at the wine for 11 years, so now look at the results? There is no way to forget God quicker than filling up on liquor, wine or beer.
The fall of France was caused by strong drink. Liquor had overcome their reason; they only tried to drink their way to peace and happiness. Did they? They had invited social degradation. They had defied the laws of nature and the laws of God.
We know what liquor has done, and we know what it will do, but still we have scolded leaders of the Church that went out to the polls and voted directly and indirectly for that dreadful curse. How can we as a people that are trying to follow God have any confidence in them? If you say anything to them about voting for the continuing of the legalizing of strong drink, they will say "Oh it's O. K., the government is behind us." But what is behind the Government? I'm sure it isn't God, for said, "No drunkard can enter his kingdom." So from all that I derive from God's holy word, the only one that is behind the liquor business is the big boy that was cast out of Heaven, because he the devil wanted God's place and to ruler of the heavenly world.

Pity If Only A Gesture

Secretary Ickes, in keeping with the custom in such cases, has submitted his resignation a member of the President's Cabinet. This is merely a prosaic formality and Mr. Ickes, of course, hopes and expects that it will be no more than that.
But it would be wholesome for the new Roosevelt administration, conducive to the unity of the American people and, therefore, for the good of the country if the rabble-rousing Ickes should be kicked out of the new Cabinet.—Charlotte Observer.

An Encouraging Sign

There was one very encouraging sign in connection with last Tuesday's balloting, and that was the noticeable trend toward independent thinking and independent voting.
Used to be that a Democrat was almost scared to announce publicly his intention of voting for a candidate on the Republican ticket. Used to be that a Republican was in the same fix when it came to voting for a Democrat. But, thank heaven, that kind of foolishness seems to be fading out of the picture.
Prior to Tuesday's election, the Raleigh Times, generally regarded as a staunch supporter of the Democratic party, came out in an editorial and announced that it was supporting Dewey and Bicker. We heard any number of Democrats make the statement that they intended voting for Dewey. We also heard Republicans aver that they intended voting for Roosevelt.
That's the kind of attitude that merits commendation. It shows that the voters are beginning to think for themselves, instead of letting the leaders of the party do their thinking for them. We predict that the old bogey, "Party Loyalty," is going to be showed more and more into the background. Of course those individuals who are holding public office are going to get very far with it.
Millions of voters voted for Roosevelt Tuesday because they honestly felt that he was the man to lead us to a successful completion of the war. They didn't vote for him because he was a Democrat and because they were Democrats.
Millions of voters voted for Dewey because they felt that the best interests of the country demanded a change in the administration. They didn't vote for him because he was a Republican and they were Republicans.
So far as other sections of the country are concerned, a large proportion of the voting population has been independent in its voting. In the South, however, we have been backward along this line. Democrats voted the Democratic ticket because their fathers and grand fathers were Democrats. Republicans voted the Republican ticket for similar reasons. Now, however, it is beginning to look as though a change were taking place, and we predict that it is going to be a change for the better.—The State.

Where Your Treasure Is

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."
Matt 6:21.
Friends, did you ever stop to think about this? It seems as if the treasure of people's hearts to day are on the things of this world. They are seeking pleasure instead of God and his work, especially our young people. You can go to church and sometimes you will see a few young folks, but most of them that are still here, are somewhere else. They don't seem to care anything about the Lord and his work, or where they are going to spend eternity. It is an awful thing to think how the young girls and women are doing, with their husbands in foreign service. Some are running around with other men. Stop, young girls, and think for just a little while and get down on your knees and go to God in prayer, and ask him to stop this war, instead of thinking about having a good time.
We need people today who will stand up for Jesus Christ, and try to get people to turn away from sin and the devil. We read in the Bible where it says, "If I be lifted up from the earth, I will draw all men unto me." My friends if we don't lift Him up and give our hearts to Him, and trust in His love and mercies and obey His calling, where are we going to land? If we trust in God and let Him have His way in our hearts, He will carry us through to a home in heaven where moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal. "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."
GLENN WILLIAMS.

Who Runs The AAA?

Since 1933 there has been a carefully nurtured fiction that the "cooperating farmers" ran the AAA. It was held aloft as an inspiring example of "democracy in action." Iowa farmers found out differently last month, when H. Laurel Dieterich, Iowa state committeeman, was fired unceremoniously, and replaced by John I. McLaughlin, former state AAA fieldman.
Scores of county committeemen protested by telegram. Not satisfied with official doubletalk by Guy Smith, deputy regional director, committeemen in nine counties called a mass meeting to present their protest in person to LeRoy K. Smith, regional director who had dismissed Dieterich.
LeRoy Smith told the committee point blankly that power to hire and fire rested in Washington; that committeemen were appointed for only six months so that Washington could make changes whenever it felt like it.
Asked to give specific reasons why Dieterich was not reappointed, Smith said "There's nothing you can say specifically. He's just not an outstanding committee man." But other reports from Iowa suggest Dieterich's main shortcoming was the small size of his cash contribution to the Democratic party.
Dieterich tells Farm Journal that "the issue is whether the AAA is to be administered by farmers or dictated by Washington. If it is supposed to be dictated by Washington, let's quit kidding the farmer."—Ex.

Was It A Trick?

On the eve of the recent election members of the Stokes county board of elections, of which A. J. Ellington is chairman, and other officials are alleged to have received a threatening letter signed by "An Able Committee" and mailed from someone in King.
After all the publicity given in the daily press citizens of Danbury and other sections of that county are wondering what became of the investigation? Did it bog down for lack of evidence? Did prove a "hot brick" in somebody's hands? At least the much-heralded publicity has dropped out of sight.
The letter is alleged to have charged that the Democrats had stolen the last election and would try to steal this one and threatened the death of Ellington, who, it was charged in the letter, "should have been killed long ago," and also promised that "the Able Committee" would "get Sheriff John Taylor and Solicitor R. J. Scott," and would blow up the court house.
Well, no one got killed, neither was the court house at Danbury blown up. So far as publicity is concerned Chairman Ellington, Solicitor Ralph Scott and Sheriff John Taylor are still "among the living and doing fairly well."
Reports from Danbury said the three officials, who were so terribly threatened, were not in the "least alarmed," but they called upon the State Bureau of Investigation and in as little time as it would take for their auto to speed from Raleigh to Danbury representative of the SBI arrived on the scene and were given a copy of the letter.
Even the Federal Bureau of Investigation, headed by that master mind J. Edgar Hoover, got word that somebody had been threatened and some of its crack sleuths were rushed to Danbury.
Latest report from Danbury said "Both agencies are now on the trail of the letter writer, who if caught will have to answer the consequences of his threats and for using the mails to blackmail."
All friends of law and order in and out of Stokes county trust the writer of such a threatening letter is apprehended and made to answer to the court. It is found the letter was just another political trick the bloodhounds will return to Raleigh and Charlotte.

Smartly Curtaining Your French Doors

HOW to make French door curtains harmonize with the window treatment in a room is a question that always arises. Frequently, over-draperies are omitted for the doors even though they are used for windows. The same glass curtain material is then used for the windows but a heading and rod is used both top and bottom. However, over-draperies add dignity. Either a wooden or a metal rod extending well beyond the sides of the door frame may be hooked in place as shown here in the diagram.

NOTE—This sketch is from a new book by Mrs. Spears called MAKE YOUR OWN CURTAINS. This 32-page book is full of smart new curtain and drapery ideas with illustrated step-by-step directions for measuring, cutting, making and hanging all types from the simplest sash curtain to the most complicated lined over-drapery or stiffened valance. takes on flavor from tomatoes and bacon:

Lima Beans in Tomato Sauce.
(Serves 6)

1 1/2 cups dried lima beans
3 cups cold water
1 1/2 cups canned tomatoes
4 whole cloves
6 slices of bacon
1 medium-sized onion
2 tablespoons flour
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Wash beans. Soak overnight in the water. Cook slowly until tender. Simmer tomatoes with cloves 10 minutes; remove cloves. Fry bacon in skillet until crisp. Remove bacon and brown onion in drippings then add flour and seasonings and blend well. Add tomatoes and cook until thickened. Add beans and serve with warm bacon over top.

You've heard often enough the nutrition story on liver. Here's another recipe to add to your collection on this excellent meat:

Liver With Spanish Beans.
(Serves 5-6)

1 1/2 cup dried kidney beans
1 quart cold water
1 cup canned tomatoes
2 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf
1/4 teaspoon powdered thyme
2 medium onions, sliced
1/4 cup shortening
1/2 pound thinly sliced beef liver
1 tablespoon flour

Wash beans, soak in cold water overnight. Drain and measure the liquid and add enough water to make three cups. Add again to the beans together with the next five ingredients. Sauté onion in shortening until tender but not brown, then add to the beans, reserving fat. Cover and bring beans to a boil, simmer until tender, about 2 1/2 hours.

Meanwhile, dredge liver in flour and brown in shortening in which onion was cooked. Cut liver into small thin strips and fold into the beans.

Liver may also be marinated in French dressing for one hour before frying whether it is prepared as above or for fried or broiled liver. The dressing seasons the meat thoroughly and gives it an attractive flavor.

A casserole that is a time as well as money saver is always a good recipe to have on hand:

Hamburger Deep Dish Pie.
(Serves 5)

3/4 pound hamburger
3 teaspoons salt
1/4 cup tomato juice
1/2 cup peas
3 large potatoes, diced
6 small young carrots
5 small onions
Biscuit dough

Place carrots, peas and potatoes into large kettle. Add tomatoes and cover tightly. Cook about 12 minutes.

Grease a casserole. Cover bottom with half of hamburger and sprinkle with half of salt. Add part of the cooked vegetables, then hamburger, salt and remaining vegetables. Pour vegetable juices over all. Cover with biscuit dough cut into biscuits and bake in a fairly hot oven (375 degrees) for 50 minutes. Use remaining dough, if any, for biscuits.

It's Good This Way, Too: Green beans with small onions in cheese or mushroom sauce. Scallop oysters in cream of celery soup. Make the soup or use the canned if you want to save time. Combine cranberry sherbet with mint sherbet for first course. Add pink coloring to honey before serving on pancakes if you like a bluish on the flapjacks. Add chopped ripe olives to carrots or celery or the two vegetables when combined. Creamed onions are a good vegetable dish to serve with ham.

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

"THE hardest thing about making a movie is landing the job to make it." This disarming statement comes from Edmund Goulding, who, if he doesn't know all there is to know about directing pictures, can at least give lessons to nine out of ten of his contemporaries.

What was your favorite picture? "Dark Victory"? "Grand Hotel"? "The Old Maid"? "Rip Tide"? "The Devil's Holiday"? "Love"? "White Banners"? "The Trespasser"? "The Constant Nymph"? "Claudia"?

Goulding directed them all, and many more.

Rugged Individualist
Goulding is like no one else here. His technique is his and his alone. He welcomes temperament. The tougher they come the better he likes 'em.

There is so much to write about Goulding that in this article you can get only a glimpse of the man. When I say that he is fabulous I'm pulling my punches.

I'll let Eddie talk. I quote:

"Most of the people who have interested me are those who are in some kind of spot. They were either beginning or desperately anxious—Bing Crosby, a natural... Bankhead, beautiful, vital... Constance Bennett, so positive... Alexis Smith, so nervous... Dolores Moran, so green... Joyce Reynolds, so young... Gig Young, so anxious... Geraldine Fitzgerald, so Irishly indifferent... Louise Hayward, Noel Coward's tip and mine... David Niven, so refreshing... Fay Bainter, so scared of the movies... Helen Hayes (for whom he wrote 'Dancing Mothers')... Paul Lukas, so bothered about our language... Richard Barthelme, so ambitious... Some weird fate brings me into other people's lives when they need me."

"Show me someone trembling, perspiring, fearing they're not good, hoping they will get by—someone to whom the enterprise means life or death—and I become their soldier."

Begins With Research
"I want to know all about them. I want to enter their lives, know all their problems; their aches, pains, fears, apprehensions, and hopes. I'm paid well for my trouble, because there is great strength to be given by someone who digs and understands more than surface problems."

As this is being written Edmund Goulding is doing what he considers the most important picture of his career. It's "Of Human Bondage," the Somerset Maugham story that catapulted Bette Davis to stardom. Her part of Mildred, the cockney girl who wrecks the life of Philip Carey, is being taken in the present version by Eleanor Parker.

Goulding's method of conditioning Eleanor, an almost unknown, for the important role is typical of his thoroughness.

He went down on the set of "Between Two Worlds" to see her. She was very beautiful, quiet, more unlike Mildred than anyone he'd ever seen.

Eleanor said: "Of course I want to play the part of Mildred, but I'm sure I can't."

"What makes you so cocksure you can't do it?" asked Eddie.

She answered: "Well, it takes an actress, and you've got to be English."

Eddie continued the narrative: "Well—something happened then. It was instinctive, I was a challenge. It was my ego, I guess."

"I asked her to sneak away when she could, talk cockney with me. I got the English actress Doris Lloyd to help her. At the end of the week I knew she could do it."

"I worked with her like a psychiatrist. Altogether it took two and a half solid months of work to play around with that girl until she blindly believed in me."

"We made the test, and I will stake my reputation in the theater and films on the statement that Eleanor Parker is as great and exciting, as thrilling and promising an actress as I've ever directed."

Writer, composer ("Love, Thy Magic Spell Is Everywhere"), artist, world traveler, student, Eddie Goulding is above all things a human being whose entire time and effort are spent on knowing and understanding people. He loves people.

Wax your book shelves. This will permit books to slide in and out easier and cause less wear on them.

In order not to scorch milk, rinse the pan with water for several minutes before heating the milk.

If candles are soiled, rub them with a cloth dipped in alcohol. Or they may be rubbed with lard or other fats.

To clean under the piano, place an old sock moistened with polish over a yardstick.

Add salt to the water in which eggs are to be cooked. This makes the shells more brittle and easier to remove.

When sending a book through the mails, cut the corners from several heavy envelopes and place over the four corners of the book to protect them.

A little skim milk rubbed over leather chairs several times a year will keep the leather soft and prevent cracking.

Never use a big unsightly knot when sewing. Even a tiny knot should be hidden on the wrong side. Most dressmakers do not use a knot at all in the ends of basting threads because in removing basting the knot may catch in the threads of the fabric and pull them. Three or four fastening stitches at the beginning and end of basting will hold it securely.

Some of the boys are still trying to figure out why Davie county went 1200 Republican majority.

We were under the impression that when a king or queen were crowned, his or her subjects were allowed to look on from a distance.

A political observer remarked a few days ago that there was one person who was afraid to get out of sight of the court house for fear somebody would get an office while he was away.

It is said that President Roosevelt will have a private inauguration next January. This doesn't necessarily mean that he is ashamed to be seen taking the oath of office for the fourth time.

Westbrook Pegler wrote a few days ago that President Roosevelt had lied to Congress. Well didn't Harry Hopkins call Mr. Dewey some kind of an unmitigated liar just before the election. How pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in peace and unity.

We would be glad to have every preacher in Davie county read The Record. We have most of them, but there are a few who do not take the paper. We are glad to publish all the church news, and would be glad to do everything possible to help make this a better community in which to live.

Thanksgiving has come and gone, and it is less than a month until Christmas Day. Do your shopping early this year and avoid the rush. Read the advertisements in The Record, and patronize the merchants who appreciate your business enough to ask for it. You can save both time and money by heeding this timely advice.

The Record editor managed to get a few pumpkin pies and a slice or two of turkey for Thanksgiving. We are hoping that some of our friends will remember us with a jug of locust beer and a persimmon pudding between now and Christmas. We are being modest and are not asking for a turkey or a country ham.

Bond Drive Progressing

Last week $46,900.00 was paid in cash for Bonds in the first week of the 6th War Bond Drive. This is over one-third of Davie's quota of $134,000.00, and the best sales for any drive so far.

Coolleeme started their campaign Monday of this week. The drive closes December 16th.

Any of the three drug stores in the county will be glad to take your order for Bonds. Give a Bond for Christmas.

Swisher Awarded Medal

On Nov 2nd, Brigadier General Hardaway, Commanding General of the 37th AAA Brigade, presented Pvt. Wintfred C. Swisher a Good Conduct Medal. This Medal has been awarded this soldier in recognition of faithful and exact performance of duty, efficiency through capacity to produce desired results, and behavior becoming a Soldier of the United States. Prior to Military Service the above named soldier resided in Mocksville, R. I.

Leaf Market Holiday Set

Christmas holidays on the Winston-Salem tobacco market will extend from the close of sales on Friday, Dec. 15, to Tuesday morning, Jan. 9, 1945. Sales Supervisor James T. Booth disclosed.

Sales will continue after the holiday "until the crop is sold," he asserted. The holiday will be the same for all markets.

Davie Boy In France

Sixth Army Group, France - A column of infantry, still several miles from its objective, halted near a little cross road in the Vosges Mountains in Eastern France, and dug in. Ahead was a mile of logs, fallen trees, cement, and hastily constructed road-blocks, part of them mined and booby-trapped. Mortars and 88's zeroed in by nearby German artillerymen, added a wall of steel and shrapnel to an already effective blockage.

Not far behind the infantry, a field telephone jangled sharply in a bivouac area where a detachment of Mine Clearance Engineers of the Seventh Army waited tensely. Orders were given; location, type of obstacles, and equipment required to clear one of the longest road-blocks yet encountered in the Sixth Army Group sector.

The Engineers, using medium tanks with special bulldozer attachments, swept forward into the maze of entanglements, pushing the obstacles to one side, and detonating mines and ingenious booby traps. Meanwhile, artillery laid located the enemy mortars and 88's, and were blasting them out of position. Doughboys rose from fox holes and the advance continued up the road. Later in the day, the objective was reached and another step taken towards the German border.

"The Germans are using more mines and road-blocks," said Ernest Russell, First Sergeant of the Engineer Mine Clearance Company. "And that's where we come in. The Krauts haven't built anything yet that we couldn't tear down." Members of the company include Cpl. Thos. W. Tutterow, Mocksville, R. I.

Sgt. Howard German Prisoner

T Sgt Hugh Thomas Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Howard, of Advance, R. I., who was reported missing in action over Germany since Oct. 15, 1944, is a prisoner of the Germans. According to a message received by his parents, Nov. 24, for the International Red Cross.

Club Elects Officers

The Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. Oscar Allen last Wednesday. Conservation of the space was the topic for discussion. New officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Ed Johnson; Vice-Pres., Mrs. Nerson Miller. The hostess served delicious refreshments to the guests. One new member, Mrs. J. S. Folger, was received into the club.

Davie County Schools Increase Enrollments For Second Month

The schools of Davie County showed an increase of 48 pupils in enrollment for the second month as compared with the enrollment of the first month of school. All white schools showed an increase for a total of 33 pupils and the enrollment for the colored schools was increased by 15 pupils. However, the net loss for the county over the last day of school for last year showed that the schools still need 51 pupils to come up to the enrollment of last year. It is thought that a good many children are still absent on account of farm work but parents are urged to start the children at once since the weather is so bad for children to be of much value on the farm.

The schools have completed a program of collecting used clothing which can be distributed through the Welfare Department to any children who may need clothing in order to go to school. The public is requested to assist in seeing that every child in the county is enrolled in school.

E. P. Rattledge, progressive farmer, of Woodleaf, was in town Wednesday. Pink says all his cotton has been harvested and sold. He made 22 bales, which brought him over $2,500 bales, including the cotton seed. He will be able to purchase a few Christmas presents.

BUT BONDS WILL HELP YOUR BOYS DO IT!

Your fighting men are paying back the Japs for Pearl Harbor, that "deed that will live in infamy." But it's a long way yet to Tokyo—where the final installment will be collected.

We, at home, can't fight shoulder to shoulder with our boys. Yet we can help today by getting behind the 6th War Loan Drive with every dollar we can scrape together. This is every American's war. Buy an extra $100 Bond—and don't wait till you're asked. For we've a tough job ahead.

Your Bonds prove that you haven't forgotten Pearl Harbor, Bataan and the thousands of other crimes against humanity by the Jap hordes. Your Bond is an installment on what it's going to cost us to crush the Japs in the long sea lanes of the Pacific—it's going to take more superfortresses at $600,000 each, more P-47 Thunderbolts at $50,000 each—more of every type of material.

And remember, when you buy Bonds you are saving for your future and the future of your country. Don't put it off—buy that extra Bond today.

A Miniature Of North Carolina

I would like to see this book on the private reading list of all thoughtful Americans.

JOHN T. FREDERICK,
Chicago Sunn Book Week.

"It is one of the best and most interesting biographies I have ever read" — C. C. Wyche, United States District Judge, Columbia, S. C.

"The style is splendid and the subject matter is interesting from beginning to end. . . . Every lawyer in North Carolina and every other citizen of the state interested in its history ought to read (this) book." — John J. Parker, United States Circuit Judge.

"It is a thoroughly fine piece of work and deserves a place among our great legal biographies." — John W. Davis, Former Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

"This, to me, is one of the most fascinating biographies of recent years. It is a miniature of North Carolina painted by an artist. The clear, non-technical, non-legal style carries the readers from one scene to another in the life of a man whose influence as a soldier, scholar, chief justice of his state and champion of reform will last for ages." — Ben K. Lacy, Jr., Pres. Union Theological Seminary.

BRITAIN'S BANKRUPT STATUS

One of the most important documents bearing on the postwar world soon will be issued by the British government in the form of a White Paper. It will be a survey of Britain's financial position and a frank admission that she is bankrupt.

The White Paper will tell in detail how British investments throughout the world have been liquidated to pay for the war and will come to the conclusion that if the British Empire is to continue free trading, she must have outside help.

The alternative to free trade and free competition, the White Paper will say, is a system of barter, restricted trade and cartels, such as that practiced by Germany after the last war. International cartels, of course, have been blasted publicly by President Roosevelt and one British corporation, Imperial Chemical Industries, already has been prosecuted by the justice department on a charge of conspiring with the Du Ponts before the war to control the world production of certain chemicals.

According to inside word from the diplomatic corps, the publication of Britain's frank survey of her bankrupt financial position will coincide with the secret conferences now taking place here between Lord Keynes and U. S. officials regarding the renewal of lend-lease.

With the war in Europe nearing a close and with U. S. forces now getting a greater proportion of war supplies direct from the United States, British war needs for lend-lease are dwindling. However, the British have proposed in Lord Keynes' private conversations, a new type of postwar lend-lease whereby the British could resell goods to foreign countries in order to reestablish their export trade.

Keynes Proposal

Word leaking from the diplomatic corps is that Lord Keynes now proposes a total lend-lease allotment to Great Britain of $1/2 billion for 1945, of which $1/4 billion could be reexported in British trade. Most of this would be in the form of American raw materials which the British would process into finished goods and then sell. The British do not propose that finished American products be given them for reexport, but only that they get lend-leased raw materials to revive their crippled industries.

One proposal is to set up a new postwar lend-lease court composed of one Britisher and two Americans which would decide which goods could be used for British trading purposes.

The whole plan will be submitted to congress probably before Christmas.

ARMY'S PREFABRICATED BRIDGES

One of the great but little known stories of the Western front is the way in which army engineers got a group of bridge experts together nearly two years ahead of the European invasion and designed fabricated sections of bridges which would exactly replace specific bridges in France, Holland and Belgium.

Through the European underground, army engineers were able to get exact measurements of the bridges which they knew would be destroyed by the retreating Nazis. Each part was numbered, and special assembly crews, trained in England, rehearsed the job of putting them in place.

When the invasion came, these bridges traveled so close behind our advancing armies that they were frequently ahead of the field kitchens. And on arrival at a destroyed bridge its replacement was a matter of hours.

HILLMAN WOULD END PAC

Sidney Hillman didn't advertise it, but during the last days of the campaign he took steps to disband his controversial Political Action committee. The final decision will not be up to him alone, for the whole thing will be threshed out at the CIO national convention in Chicago. But not waiting for the convention, Hillman sent notice to most of the 200 members of the PAC staff that they go off the payroll before then.

Originally PAC was set up as a permanent organization, and there are several schools of thought inside the CIO regarding its continuation. One group, including auto workers' president R. J. Thomas, wants to keep PAC alive. Hillman, on the other hand, wants to shut up shop, concentrate on New York politics, and also get his health back.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

All during the war, FDR has been a close reader of Carl Sandburg's "Lincoln" and has continued his reading during the campaign. Someone who dropped into his private study one day found a copy of the book open to Lincoln's war days.

During the 1864 campaign, McClellan's followers accused Lincoln of squandering public funds, mismanagement of the government, destroying civil liberties, meddling with the war, and standing out for "unconditional surrender."

Their Days of Hunger Are Over

Train Wreck Toll

General view showing the wrecked Challenger streamlined train, which resulted in the death of 12 persons and in the injury of at least 100. Seven cars were derailed, three miles from Colfax, Calif.

HERE is an extremely interesting report we have just received from Frank Leahy, the coach, now a navy lieutenant, who turned out such powerful teams at both Boston college and Notre Dame.

"Dear Grantland: Just a note from out in the Pacific to say hello and to let you know something about what the writer is doing for the U. S. navy. Am connected directly with the Commander Submarine Force, Pacific Fleet, and my job consists of further installing and supervising the recreational facilities of the major submarine bases in the Pacific area.

The average submarine patrol into enemy waters is from 50 to 60 days' duration. During this period the crew is compelled to go with very little fresh air, practically no sunshine, and, except for the first few days of the patrol, they are without fresh fruits and vegetables. In addition to this, they are constantly under pressure, due to their presence in enemy territory, which is a continuous threat to their safety. As one can easily imagine, when the patrol is completed and they finally come into port the men are badly in need of attention and a thorough rest. In fact, a mile stroll would utterly exhaust any one of them.

Plenty of Athletics

Rest and recuperation centers are maintained at all major submarine bases for the purpose of giving these men an opportunity to rest and regain their normal vitality. They are assigned to a cottage at the recuperation center for approximately 15 days, during which time they are relieved of all duties and are completely at their leisure. Athletic programs are arranged by the recuperation center for the participation of all men who desire to take part. This consists of the following—softball, touch football, volleyball, handball, tennis, weightlifting, beach facilities, and several other miscellaneous games. There is a beer hall operated by the recuperation center where the men are able to purchase a limited amount of beer daily. Nightly movies are shown for the submariners, which, of course, are free of charge, two shows each night. A recreation hall is provided and includes pool tables, table tennis, and a reading and writing room.

"At the end of two weeks of rest and recreation, these men are fully recuperated and are ready and eager to go out once more to take another crack at the enemy. The submariners are a grand crowd of young men, are doing a wonderful job and deserve much credit for the damaging blows they are inflicting upon the Japs.

"The writer visits each of these rest and recuperation centers from time to time and is connected with them in a supervisory capacity, making observations and recommendations for an ever increasing efficiency in operation.

"It is my fervent hope that this terrible mess will end in a comparatively short time and that all of us will be able to once more return to our normal pursuits.

Sincerely,
Frank Leahy
Lieutenant, USNR"

Another Bowl Problem

If you are looking for Bowl trouble, I can slip you another one. Service men are insisting that Service teams, Pre-flight, Air-Fields and others be given a Bowl chance. At first glance this sounds fair enough. But this also means tossing in veterans, including former pros against many 17-year-old kids.

Suppose, for example, Randolph Field's Ramblers were named. They would have to be. This squad includes some ten or eleven pros, plus a number of college veterans. They were good enough to beat Rice 59 to 0 and Texas 42 to 6, under wraps. Former-pretty good pros are on their second and third squads. Strong service teams should be matched together, not used against college teams. I mean the better Service teams, and these are the ones you'd have to pick.

It would be a great idea if one of the Bowls could name the two best Service teams and put them together. Certainly Randolph Field would be no contest against any college team in the country, including Army and Navy.

Amazing Youth

This will go down as the football season of amazing and astonishing kids. For kids of 17 are more than holding their own with veterans.

If you care for two shining examples I can give you the names of two Georgia Tech freshmen, Dinkey Bowen and George Matthews. Each is 17. They have not only defeated Bob Jenkins, big Don Whitfield, Ralph Ellsworth, Bruce Smith, and a flock of other nationally known Navy stars.

In This Corner—the Winners

Another term in the White House has been assured for Franklin D. Roosevelt, who together with his running mate, Harry S. Truman, right, received a total of 432 electoral votes, 17 less than the Democrats secured in 1940. Truman, senator from Missouri, gained nationwide fame as head of the committee investigating war expenditures. Dewey and his running mate secured a total of 99 electoral votes, unless late soldier votes change the picture, which is not considered likely by most political observers.

Wives of Winners

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, upper; and Mrs. Harry S. Truman, wife of the newly-elected vice president of the United States. Unlike the first lady of the land, Mrs. Truman takes little part in politics or in public life activities. Mrs. F. D. R. says she is ready for new term.

Too Late for Treasure Hunt

Insert shows Rudolph Wickel of Verona, N. J., as he left for Holyoke, Mass., to dig up a bonanza of $1,000, whose location was told him as a studio agent on a quiz program. Others heard the program, and Wickel arrived to find that Joe H. Roy and his 14-year-old brother-in-law, Henry Martels, already had the money, as shown above.

Posted on Election Returns

GIs of the American news services broadcast election returns to American soldiers all over the world from the New York headquarters of Yank magazine. The army news services shooting the result overseas with an estimated 25,000 words by cable and another 25,000 by radio to furnish the armed forces with early returns.

GIRL OVERBOARD

by GEORGE F. WORTS

THE STORY THUS FAR: Zorie Corey is railroaded into taking a job she does not want, helping Admiral Duncan write his memoirs. She is in love with Paul Duncan, the admiral's grandson. While aboard the Samoa en route to Hawaii she is thrown overboard, but is rescued. Pearl Harbor is bombed while they are steaming towards Hawaii, and two destroyers escort them to the Isle of Oahu. After landing Zorie and Paul overboard Paul's handsome brother, Steve, with whom Zorie is infatuated, plotting with Winthrop Lanning to deliver some radar equipment to the Axis. Believing Steve is in danger Zorie rushes into the night to save him and discovers the body of beautiful Amber Lanning on the ground.

CHAPTER XIV

"I didn't!" Zorie wailed. "Pierre did it! Just this minute! He must have strangled her!"

Mr. Lanning held the light not too steadily on her face. "Miss Corey," he said, "this is tragic. This is very, very tragic."

The next thing, his hand was clamped over her mouth and he was holding her tight against his body with his other hand and arm. She could not move.

In the silence, she heard footfalls on the other path, and the sound of men's voices. She identified them as Pierre's and Steve's. They were going to the garage.

She struggled. She tried to free herself, but Mr. Lanning was prepared for it. He held her so tightly that she could not move.

He held her until the sound came of a car starting, then the soft whine of its gears. The crisp sound of its exhaust retreated and faded.

Holding her securely, Mr. Lanning shook out a folded handkerchief. It was, she discovered later, a large one. He forced the thick center part into her mouth and tied the ends tight behind her head, so that she could not cry out.

He seemed to have recovered his composure. He was, once again, the calm, urbane gentleman she had known on the "Samoa." He was meeting an emergency, a serious crisis, as men of his sort always do, with finesse and sureness.

"I'm so sorry, Miss Corey," he said. "But this is really necessary. This is a very critical time, I assure you, and you have stumbled upon something that is very embarrassing to me."

He carried her along the path to where it joined the other path. He carried her into the garage. With his flashlight, he found some short pieces of rope. He tied Zorie's feet together, and he tied her hands securely behind her.

"I am really so sorry about this, Miss Corey," he said. "But I can't leave you here. I assure you, you are most embarrassing to me. I have to keep an appointment, and I dare not leave you here."

He found some soft cushions and placed them on the floor of a sedan. He arranged Zorie on these cushions, and he was extremely gentle about it.

He closed the door, then got into the driver's seat, backed the car out, and started. Zorie knew when they were climbing the hill out of the cove to the cliff, and she wondered if he intended throwing her off the cliff.

The car stopped presently and Mr. Lanning got out and opened the rear door. It was now raining hard.

He removed the gag from her mouth, but he did not remove the cord from her wrists or ankles.

Zorie's lips were numb and there was a bitter taste in her mouth. He took off his coat and draped it about her shoulders. He gathered her into his arms and started at a trot through the rain.

In the light of his pocket torch, which danced as he ran, she saw the house—a large cabin painted a dull green, now shining wet with rain. Mr. Lanning carried her up on a porch, unlocked a door and carried her inside. He directed his light about the room.

It was a cozy, nicely furnished room—typically a man's idea of what a comfortable living-room in a mountain cabin should be.

He carried her through this room and into the one beyond, a smaller room at the back of the house. It was a combined study and breakfast room, and beyond it, through an open door, she caught a glimpse of the kitchen.

Mr. Lanning gently set Zorie in a chair beside a window. He closed the living-room door and lighted a kerosene lamp on the table.

He sat down in a chair facing her. He looked her over with anxious solicitude. Her lovely sun-pleated star-sapphire gown was spattered with purple-red mud.

As she stared at him, all her courage, the fortitude that had been sustaining her, threatened to leave her. She had a quick appalling glimpse of the girl she had once been, the girl who had changed so miraculously. She felt herself slipping back irresistibly into that perpetually meek, timid, frightened girl.

Then her wavering eyes returned to Mr. Lanning's flushed face and steadiest. Strength and courage came back in a flood. She told herself she would not revert to her old self! She had won that fight! She wasn't afraid! No matter what happened, she would not let her old meekness return!

"I am very sorry," Mr. Lanning said, "to have to keep your hands and feet tied, Miss Corey. But this is an extremely dangerous situation. I may be occupied with other things, and you must realize that, under the circumstances, I cannot entirely trust you."

He took a flat quart bottle out of his hip pocket. He undid the foil about the neck of it and unscrewed the cap.

"Brandy," he said, "is always so comforting in a crisis. Will you join me?"

"No," Zorie said huskily.

The precautions he had taken were alarming. If he merely intended to detain her a while, to question her, he would have untied her hands and feet. And something in his manner, in his eyes, was alarming, too. For the first time since he had discovered her bending over Amber's body, she felt thoroughly frightened.

During most of the ride she had been too occupied with thoughts of Steve to give much thought to herself. She had reasoned that he and Pierre would probably not go to Kokee. Pierre would doubtless shoot him as they drove along. She was sure that Pierre intended to kill Steve. He might be dead now.

Her thoughts returned briefly to Paul. She could recall so clearly his vindictive expression as he said those things that he should have known might sentence Steve to death. A man of Paul's type was not to be trusted in a situation calling for honest thinking. At this moment, her feeling for Paul was one of sheer loathing. Because of his vindictive nature and his unpredictable nature, his brother was possibly dead and she was in a position of the utmost gravity.

"What are you going to do with me?" she asked.

Winthrop Lanning tilted the bottle to his mouth and drank. His hand was shaking a little. He put the bottle back on the table.

He looked at her. The steadiness of her stare seemed to disconcert him. He glanced away. He made a grimace.

"Nothing," he answered. "The matter is no longer in my hands."

"Whose cabin is this?" Mr. Lanning's dark eyes were vague. The gray flesh under them looked more puffy than usual. He bent forward.

"Miss Corey, you have in your possession an extremely dangerous piece of information. I regret exceedingly that it happens to be in your possession. I am very much afraid that the outlook for you is very serious. I am very much afraid that there is no hope at all for you."

He sighed heavily. "You are entirely innocent. I admire you very much. And I do wish there was some way out of this for you. I will gladly help you in any way."

Zorie's mouth was very dry. "Do you mean—I won't leave this cabin alive?"

Mr. Lanning avoided her eyes. He seemed to be genuinely upset. "The gentleman to whom this cabin belongs will be here presently. He will have to decide. Meanwhile, since things are so completely hopeless for you—is there anything I can do?"

"What is happening to Steve?" He lifted his shoulders slowly and let them fall. "I do not know, Miss Corey. I haven't the faintest idea. I will gladly answer any question you care to ask."

"I think I'm beginning to understand," Zorie said, "it's either your life or mine. Isn't that true?" "Only partly, Miss Corey. It is really a little more comprehensive than that. If you should be set free, you can say so many dangerous things, not only about me but about other people."

"But if I disappear, how will that be explained?"

"Many people disappear and it is never explained."

"How will Amber's death be explained?"

His eyebrows went up. "But my dear Miss Corey, I thought that was quite obvious to you. You are such a clever young lady I sometimes forget you've had no experience with this sort of thing."

"Are you saying," Zorie gasped, "that her death will be blamed on me?"

"But it is already blamed on you!" he said, as if he were greatly surprised. "Where do you suppose your compact is? Where do you suppose your handkerchief is?"

"By her body!" Zorie cried.

"But of course, Miss Corey!"

Zorie took a deep breath. Mr. Lanning was gazing at her sadly.

"Men in your profession do things so thoroughly," she said. "I'd forgotten. As you say, I'm not used to this sort of thing. When Amber is found, with those simple proofs that I killed her, the authorities will assume that, in grief or panic, I went off and perhaps threw myself off a cliff. I suppose that's very obvious."

He was nodding. His attitude remained one of mild amazement. It was all so obvious, so logical, to him.

"You're sorry," she said quietly. "You're awfully sorry that I must be liquidated. But you've arranged it so that I haven't a chance."

Mr. Lanning shook his head. "No, Miss Corey, I don't say quite that. There may be an alternative."

"Is there any alternative to my being killed in cold blood?"

"I do not say that there is," he answered. "I only say there may be."

"Where did Steve and Pierre Savoyard go?"

"I don't know, Miss Corey."

"But don't you assume that Pierre will kill him?"

"I think that Pierre will try. But Steve is very clever. If he was aware that your fiance said the things he did, he would be better prepared to cope with Pierre. But he wasn't aware. Therefore, Pierre has a slight advantage. But only a slight advantage. It may not be enough. I am speaking very frankly. Pierre is not clever. He is relentless, but his intelligence is not always alert. And in this profession, cleverness counts more than relentlessness. Therefore, Steve has an even chance of coming out of it alive."

Zorie believed he was being honest. If Steve had a chance of coming out of it alive, he might come to this cabin. It would improve Steve's chances—and her own—if she could persuade Mr. Lanning that Paul had been lying maliciously and that Steve had been honest in his dealings with these people.

If Steve reached this cabin alive, she was certain he would not let them kill her, provided he was given a voice in the matter. It came down to that very ironical basis: Her only chance to get out of this cabin alive was to convince Mr. Lanning, and anyone else who came in, that Steve was what he actually was—a true-blue Nazi! And if she could somehow save her own life, she would have a chance of trapping them all.

She suspected that Mr. Lanning, in his present frame of mind, would be an awfully hard man to convince. First, she must secure all the information he would part with.

"Who owns this cabin?"

"One of your dinner guests—Basil Stromberg. You are surprised?"

"And Mr. Stromberg will have the final say, whether I'm to live or not?"

"Yes, Miss Corey."

"When will he be here?"

Mr. Lanning looked at his watch. "I told him two-thirty. It is now twelve-forty. He is usually very punctual, but he had certain arrangements to make and he may be a little late."

Zorie supposed that these arrangements had to do with getting the precious cabinet containing JY-419 off this island. Mr. Stromberg was doubtless contacting a Japanese agent who would arrange to have JY-419 delivered to a Japanese submarine.

"Are we in Kokee?"

"Yes. On the edge of Waimea Canyon—the most beautiful canyon in the world. More beautiful, in my opinion, than the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. I sincerely hope you will live to see a Waimea sunrise, if this rain will only stop. You will see it from this window. The edge of the canyon is only a hundred feet away. From this window, the view is superb."

He went around the table and opened the window.

"We don't have to blackout here," Mr. Lanning said. "There is nothing across the canyon but swampy wilderness. Of all the dreary restrictions of modern warfare, the one I detest the most is the blackout."

He returned to his chair. He had another drink. The level in the bottle had already gone down amazingly. Zorie recalled the seven or eight cocktails he had had before dinner. His eyes were as clear, his hands and his voice and evidently his brain were as steady as if he hadn't a drop.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for December 3

WORLD-WIDE CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

LESSON TEXT—John 17:18-23; I Corinthians 1:1-3; 12:4-7, 12, 13. GOLDEN TEXT—Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through thy word; that they all may be one.—John 17:20, 21.

Unity among the believers in Christ is much talked about and desired by many in the church. They seek a single Christian communion in the world, or at least a gathering of all Protestant churches in one body. Such outward unity may be impossible to attain, and in fact might be quite undesirable if it did not express a unity of spirit and of true faith.

That fact, however, should not hinder us from seeking a world-wide fellowship of all believers of every race and creed in the unity of the Holy Spirit. The true church, the invisible body of Christ, is not divided, even though its members are scattered in many denominations.

We are reminded in our lesson that whatever else may be true about us, we (that is, all believers) are united in Christ. We are

I. In the World—but in Christ (John 17:18-23)

Even as Christ was sent of the Father into the world to be the Light of the World, so we are here in the darkness of sin and sorrow to shine as lights for Him (Matt. 5:14-16).

He did not pray that His disciples (and that includes us, v. 20) should be taken out of the world (v. 15) but that they should be kept from sin in the world.

So we are in the world. But let us never for a moment forget that though we are in the world we are also in Christ. He will give us—in fact He has given us—grace and glory so that we may represent Him in the world.

There is to be a oneness about believers (v. 21), not alone because of their good (blessed as that may be), but in order that the world may know and believe in Christ (vv. 21, 23). The obvious corollary to that truth is that every evidence of division and friction between God's children is an opportunity and an excuse for the world to deny the truth of the gospel.

"Behold how these Christians love one another" was the baffled testimony of the pagan world in the early days of the Christian church. They could argue with their philosophy and question their theology, but they had to admit that something had happened to these people which made them really love one another.

II. In the Church—but in Christ (I Cor. 1:1-3)

The church, even in its outward form of local assemblies and denominations, has a place of great importance in the world. One could certainly not find a more wonderful body of people nor more satisfying opportunity for service than that afforded by the church.

The ones to whom Paul addressed this letter were members of "the church of God which is at Corinth," but they were what is of infinitely greater importance, "saints"—those who had been sanctified, or set apart from this wicked world, in Christ Jesus.

This glorious distinction was not theirs alone, but belonged to "all that call upon the name of the Lord Jesus in every place" (v. 2). Here again we have that fellowship and unity in the love of Christ which transcends all other relationships and which ignores the boundaries of race, color, social position—yes, even of church membership.

No matter who or where another believer may be, Jesus Christ is "their Lord and ours" (v. 2). One could shout, "Hallelujah—Praise the Lord!" for such a delightful communion of all those who love Him.

III. In Service—but in Christ (I Cor. 12:4-7, 12, 13)

God has worked to be done in the world. To accomplish that work, He gives diverse gifts to men. How wonderfully He endows and calls men and blesses them in His service! We can think of nothing more satisfying than to serve Him. But even here we must keep in mind that the important thing is that we are not individual stars to shine in our solitary glory. No, indeed, we are only a part of a great plan and purpose being carved out by "the same Lord" (v. 5). We are called, commissioned and sent by the one Holy Spirit (v. 7). We are "one body" (v. 12), baptized by the Holy Spirit into that blessed relationship, and it is that body of Christ which is at work in the world to do His will.

Nor does that in any way minimize the glory of the value of what we are called to do. On the contrary, it enhances our calling and encourages us to greater endeavor. We are not alone. We are in the Lord's service, yes; but first of all we are in Christ, and that means that we move forward with a great world-wide fellowship of those who have like precious faith.

Our War With Japan

The Sixth War Loan marks a new turn in the war both on the fighting and the home fronts. It points our tremendous war effort definitely in the direction of the Pacific. During the first five war loans Americans were primarily thinking in terms of beating Hitler.

Now our government asks us for a loan of 14 billion more dollars of which five billion dollars must come from individuals. Why? Haven't we nearly finished off our so-called Number 1 Enemy? Can Japan hold up our powerful war machine very long? Your son, brother and friend in his Pacific foxhole wouldn't raise such questions because they are up against realities, not day dreams. They kill or are killed. They pray every waking moment for a sky-darkening cover of friendly planes. They thank America for giving them the finest medical care in the world when their rendezvous with destiny in a Pacific jungle is at hand. They know the war with the Japs is just beginning.

Here are some other Pacific realities so that you will understand why there must be a Sixth War Loan and why it is absolutely necessary that it be a success:

The Allied Military Command has estimated that it will take years, not months, to lick Japan.

Japan's present army numbers about 4,000,000 with 2,000,000 more men available and fit for military service who haven't been called up to date. Another 1,500,000, between the ages of 17 and 20, are not yet subject to the draft.

The Jap Air Force is growing.

In addition to millions of native workers, Japan has a potential slave force of 400,000,000 conquered people. 50% of Japan's labor force is made up of women. Another 25% boys and girls under 20, the balance men. The Jap workday is twelve to sixteen hours with two days off a month. The Jap cannot leave his job, change it, or strike. The highest daily wage equals about three American dollars—30% to 75% of which goes to taxes and compulsory savings.

The Jap, as our men in the Pacific know, will fight to the death. As far as the Jap is concerned, the outer Empire—and the men who defend it—are the expendables. The Jap will fight the Battle from inside the inner Empire.

The Jap believes that we shall weary of war too easily and too early.

In the invasion of France, supply ships had an overnight run to make. In the coming Battle of Japan, ships in the Pacific will have long-reached round trips that often take five months to make.

These realities are worth thinking about before you keep your home front rendezvous with a Victory Volunteer. Perhaps you will feel that the national personal Sixth War Loan objective—purchase of at least one extra $100 War Bond—is entirely too small for you. The better we face the realities confronting our forces in the Pacific the quicker the whole bloody business will be over and the sooner we will welcome home our fighting men. That's an American reality to work for with all our dollars and our sweat.
