What We Never Regret

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hixsonite, N. C.
We ne'er regret a kindness shown
To foe or friend or chum;
We ne'er regret good seed we've sown
When harvest time has come;
We ne'er regret the patience used
In times of sorest test;
We ne'er regret the wrongs refused
When God gives us the best.
We ne'er regret the choice we make
When it is truly right;
We ne'er regret the way we take
That leads us in the light;
We ne'er regret our silence when
We're tempted strong to speak
A word to hurt our fellowmen,
Though they be strong or weak,
We ne'er regret the prayers we pray
That reach our God above;
We ne'er regret or mourn the day
We give all men our love;
We ne'er regret the years of time
We give to men and God;
We ne'er regret the upward climb
In paths that saints have trod.
We ne'er regret the noble stand
We take for righteous truth;
We ne'er regret the helping hand
We give to age or youth;
We ne'er regret the good we do
To bless our fellowmen,
And when to God we make it thru
We'll not regret it then.

Snow Farming

(Greenville, S. C., News)
The newspaper wages have been making light remarks about the man made snowstorms made possible by recently announced electronic devices.
But it seems that manufactured snow is being recognized as possible boon to dry farming regions where irrigation is a costly necessity, and its potential benefits to agricultural are enormous.
Under present irrigation practices water must be conserved from natural rains or winter snows and doled out as the crops need them. Man-made snow-storms can be produced anywhere to feed smaller projects and for storing water as needed. They may be the answer to another dust bowl problem in the Western States.

Soldiers Produce Plays In Pacific

It's show time in Japan and Korea! American occupation troops, in addition to seeing USO camp shows and the latest movies, are now producing their own plays and entertainment. They are assisted by civilian actress technicians, who help with the writing and staging and take the parts of female characters. One large-scale GI production presented in the Eribe Pyle Theater in Tokyo was "The Mikado," hitherto banned in Japan because of its satirization of the emperor.

Paradise Or Hell

Recent research into the subject of atomic energy reveals great possibilities of harnessing atomic energy for production and for the convenience of man.

Atomic energy, as the public well knows, was discovered as a means of destruction to end World War II.

But the tremendous power of the infinitesimal atom can be used to produce as well as to destroy. Already estimates are being made on the cost of atomic energy heat, and the use of atomic power to propel ships, trains and other means of transportation.

The future of atomic energy rests with the character of man. Through use of atomic power the world can be turned into a delightful paradise or a burning hell—Wilkes Journal.

What Is A Mans Profit

(Editorial by Wm. Allen White in Emporia Gazette, Aug. 1901)
The other day in Emporia, the longest funeral procession that has formed in ten years followed John Jones three long miles in the hot July sun out to Dry Creek Cemetery.
Now a funeral procession may mean little or much. When a rich and powerful man dies, people play politics and attend his funeral for various reasons. But here was the body of a meek, gentle little old man—a man "without purse or scrip." It won't take twenty minutes to settle his estate in probate court. He was a preacher of the gospel—but preachers have been buried before this in Emporia without much show of sorrow.

The reason so many people lined up behind the hearse that held the hearse that held the kind old man's mortality was simple: they loved him! He devoted his life to helping people. In a very simple way, without money or worldly power, he gave of the gentleness of his heart to all around him.

We are apt to say money talks, but it speaks a broken, poverty stricken language. Hearts talk better, clearer and with wider intelligence. This man with the soft voice and kindly manner knew the language of the heart and spoke it where it would give zest to joy. He worked manfully and with a will in his section of the vineyard, and against odds and discouragements he won time and again. He was infinitely patient and brave. He held a simple, old fashioned faith in God and his loving kindness.

When others gave money—which was of their store—he gave prayers, hard work and an inspiring courage. He helped. In his sphere he was a power! And so, when he lay down to sleep, hundreds of friends trudged out to bid him good by with moist eyes and with cramped throats to wish him sweet slumber.

And then they turned back to make money to make money—what a hollow impotent thing! What is a man profit if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?

Soldier Turn Tourists

The American soldier is seeing more of Japan today than any tourist in peacetime. GI's travel free on Japanese trains and they are busy going on private excursions or on Army-conducted tours in and around the major cities of Tokyo, Yokohama, Osaka, and Kyoto and many shrines, parks, lakes, and other points of interest throughout the islands.

GI Olympics in Pacific

American soldiers, now doing occupation duty in Japan and Korea, have a widespread sports program that starts at company level and extends right up through regiment and division competition. This winter, they will meet GI's from other Pacific Areas in an intertheater competition of Olympic proportions. Last year, more than 4,000 soldier athletes participated.

Same Family

The young lady walked boldly up to the elderly woman whom she had mistaken for the matron of the hospital. "Mav I see Lieutenant Baker, please? she asked."
"May I ask you who you are?"
"Certainly, I am his sister."
"Well, well, I'm glad to meet you. I'm his mother."

"IF MY PEOPLE, WHICH ARE CALLED BY MY NAME, SHALL HUMBLE THEMSELVES, AND PRAY, AND SEEK MY FACE, AND TURN AWAY FROM THEIR WICKED WAYS, THEN WILL I HEAR FROM HEAVEN, AND WILL FORGIVE THEIR SIN, AND WILL HEAL THEIR LAND."
—2 CHRON. 7:14.

What Nathan Forgot

A questionnaire sent out to manufacturers all over the country by the magazine Mill and Factory effectively refutes the Nathan report to Philip Murray that because the earnings of all corporations in the country add up to approximately $12 billion, each individual corporation must be proportionately prosperous, and can, consequently, afford the wage increases that the C.I.O. will demand.

Mr. Nathan, apparently, forgets that the total business of this country is done by some 420,000 corporations of all sizes and dealing in all kinds of products. In assuming that all of those corporations shared in the profits he quotes, Mr. Nathan is taking in entirely too much territory.

The National City Bank of New York, using United States Treasury figures on this point, shows that an average year only slightly more than 50 per cent of the 420,000 corporations operate at a profit. The others operate at a deficit.

This year, those operating at a deficit or with extremely narrow margins of profits are the very ones in which the C.I.O. plans to make its demands for higher wages. But the C.I.O. is organized in the form of labor monopolies. It cannot, therefore, call for wage increases in the profitable units and not in the unprofitable ones. By the very nature of its monopoly it must call for uniform increases in all units, regardless of their ability to pay.

On this point the survey by Mill and Factory shows that only five per cent of the manufacturers queried admitted that production had improved enough to enable them to absorb wage increases without raising prices. The other 95 per cent said they could not possibly absorb wage increases of any amount.

They would have to raise their prices from five to ten per cent. Such a price advance, they feared would raise the levies above the ability of the general public to pay, and consequently sales would drop off. Some manufacturers estimated the decline in sales as low as 10 per cent, but others foresaw a shrinkage of more than 20 per cent.

Such a shrinkage could result only in the dismissal of a corresponding number of employees. It will be seen, therefore, that the C.I.O. program would lead nowhere except to another price spiral, a decline in sales, and unemployment. Labor, therefore, will be the chief victim of the economy quackery of its own leaders.—Charlotte Observer.

Lewis Assists Science

(Asheville Times)

It has been said of late that John L. Lewis gives indirect aid to the Communists and their sympathizers who are always ready to proclaim on the text that democratic, capitalist America contains in itself the self-explosive dynamite of early distinction. But John also aids science. At Oak Ridge the scientists are saying that, if coal rises to $10 a ton, atomic power plants could compete with coal fuel on an equal economic basis. It may not be devotion to either pure or applied science, and let it be hoped that it is always the best interests of the miners that moves Mr. Lewis but his record shows that he can be counted on to jack up the coal price to $10 even on the Eastern Seaboard. In the interior markets, including Asheville, it has reached and passed that mark.

One Strike We Favor

Elkin Tribune.

This department has often discussed its opposition to harmful strikes on the part of labor, strikes which hurt and cripple the country's economy and work hardship upon thousands of innocent citizens. But one strike with which we are in complete sympathy is that which was staged recently by teachers in one of the nation's larger cities.

It is to no one's credit that our teachers, here as well as elsewhere, are so badly paid that it is a downright disgrace. Teachers, who must train through long years to meet the requirements of their important profession, are in many instances paid much less than the common laborer, who needs only brains and a few simple tools to ply his trade. And the unusual part of it is, everyone recognizes the important part teachers play in the education and guidance of our country's children, yet although we talk about it a great deal, and deplore it to high heaven, we do little or nothing about it.

One would think the education of our children would be of major importance to everyone. Yet when legislatures meet, it's usually the highways or some other project that gets the big money while the teachers continue to go begging as far as salaries are concerned.

Anyone who remembers the problem faced in securing sufficient teachers here this fall to complete school rolls, will realize that the teaching profession is plagued with shortages like everything else. And the reason, it has been said, is because many teachers fed up with working for low salaries, have turned to other types of endeavor rather than try to make a living on the pittance they now receive in a time when prices have skyrocketed and the value of the dollar has shrunk drastically. Other persons, who might turn to teaching as a profession if it paid a reasonable return for the education and other requirements necessary, take up other work, and the educational needs of the nation's children go begging or are left to those who are perhaps less suited to teaching than they should be.

Why must we continue to slight our teachers when their worth is so universally admitted? Why do we talk so much about their low pay, yet do nothing about it? Why cannot a state in its sound financial condition as our own adequately compensate its teachers?

Maybe some day there will be an answer. For our own good and the good of our children, we would say the sooner the better.

Cotton Crop Estimate Is Cut Still Smaller

The Department of Agriculture has issued its latest forecast on the 1946 cotton crop, predicting that the United States will produce 8,482,000 bales. This is about 5,000 bales smaller than the estimate a month ago. It compares with 9,015,000 bales produced last year, and a 1934-1944 ten year average of 12,553,000.

At the same time, the Census Bureau announced that 7,365,914 bales had been ginned of the present crop prior to December 1, comparing with 7,382,667 bales to the same date last year to December 1 comparing with 367,619 last year.

Despite the small apparent crop, the price of cotton has been barely holding its own. This is said to be simply because the world supply is fully equal to the demand.

One Bottle of Beer

That's all they had—just one bottle of beer apiece. But they were only sixteen years old and that one bottle did its deadly work. Walking along the Nickel Plate railroad tracks, they got sleepy and curled up on the right-of-way. When the freight train rumbled down upon them they awoke befuddled and only one boy escaped.

Just a bottle of beer apiece and a high old time—but there was mourning in three homes in Hammond, Ind. And the liquor interests make out their income tax receipts!

Temptation

The nice old lady smiled at the little girl who had been left in the charge of the cake shop.
"Don't you sometimes feel tempted to eat one of the cup cakes?" she asked.
The little was shocked. "Of course not. That would be stealing. I only lick them."

STALIN'S HEALTH WASHINGTON.—Diplomatic dispatches from Moscow indicate definitely that Marshal Stalin's health has had another setback. He suffered a heart attack some time in November and now is resting in the Crimea.

This fact has been made the subject of an official report to the state department.

This last heart attack is the second suffered by the man who has ruled Russia so long. Last winter he also had to go to the Crimea to recuperate from an illness. Stalin is now 67 years old, but has crammed more diversified life and hardship into those years than any other world leader.

Stalin was imprisoned and exiled to Siberia eight times, and the years have taken their toll. He was not play-acting when he held up Churchill and Truman by staying in bed one day at Potsdam.

It is generally expected that Foreign Minister Molotov will succeed Stalin.

THE REAL-ESTATE LOBBY

Next major lobbying drive in Washington will be against rent controls, only control measure which survived President Truman's sweeping OPA decontrol order.

The President has decided to eliminate OPA completely, and has on his desk an executive order transferring rent control to the department of commerce.

The real-estate lobbyists know they can't get even a Republican congress to repeal rent control. So they've decided on a new tactic. The lobby is drawing up a bill which would transfer rent control from the federal government to the states.

This will be advanced as a "states rights" and "economy" measure. The result, however, will be the same.

Twelve states now have no rent control, and in other states most control laws are elastic.

LAME DUCKS PLAY INDIANS

Twice in recent weeks, President Truman has been visited by congressmen who asked him to appoint friends on the new Indian claims commission. Sen. Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming urged the appointment of Louis O'Hare, attorney general of Wyoming, while Representative Bill Stigler of Oklahoma brought along his candidate—Justice Earl Welch of the Oklahoma Supreme court, who is part Chickasaw himself.

The President made no commitment beyond saying he intends to announce the make-up of the new commission soon.

He did apologize to Stigler, however, for the delay in making the appointments.

What Truman did not explain was that he also had been urged to wait to see whether any worthy Democrats, defeated in the election, might want the job. The names of lame-duck congressmen Will Robinson of Utah, an excellent man, and Jed Johnson of Oklahoma, who lost out on a chance to be a custom court judge, now have been suggested.

The commission is one which will require a topflight staff, since it will have to pass judgment on all Indian claims which have not gone into the courts. There is absolutely no statutory limit on the age of the claims—which means that if an Indian tribe wants to claim that it has legal right to the entire territory of the State of Utah, the commission may have to hear the argument.

NEXT GOP CONVENTION

Although the Republican national convention is two years off, several cities already are pressing GOP moguls for the privilege of helping nominate the man they figure will be the next president of the U. S.

Rep. George Bender, Ohio congressman-at-large and head of the Cleveland Republican committee, appeared before the national committee to propose Cleveland as the convention site.

As soon as Bender proposed Cleveland for the convention site, Committee member Werner Schroeder of Illinois asked: "Isn't it true that Ohio has a couple of candidates for the nomination? Don't you think it might be better to meet on neutral territory?"

"Is there a state that doesn't have a candidate?" asked Bender. "If you're going to rule out states with candidates, about the only place we could hold the 1948 GOP convention is Miami."

POSTMASTER JIM MEAD?

The White House is afraid that if Bob Hannegan resigns both as postmaster general and Democratic national chairman the Republican senate may refuse to confirm anyone who is to serve in both jobs. One man the senate would confirm, however, is Sen. Jim Mead of New York, who lost out in his bid for governor of New York. The senate rarely questions the appointment of any senator or former senator to an official post. Moreover, Mead is considered a postal authority.

Radio Breakfast Programs Of History

(King Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn.)

Anne—Good morning, Henry. Henry—Good morning, dear. Where's my bicarbonate? Anne—Oh, come now, it isn't time for that commercial yet. Henry (studying the script)—Ah, what a lovely morning. Isn't it wonderful just to be alive? Anne (with a shudder)—I'll bet that's what you say to all your wives!

Henry—Let's start off with the weather. It's clear and warm here in the castle, with possible storms by afternoon.

Anne—With you, honey, life is one storm after another. What's the official temperature from the weather bureau?

Henry—Have you forgotten? The weather man gave me the wrong thermometer reading at yesterday's breakfast and I had him executed.

Anne—Aren't you a little hasty with your executions? Henry—Coming from a wife of mine it is a natural question, sweet, but by my troth I shall decline to answer. By the way, did you notice that stunning girl at the new pageant last night?

Anne—Every time you see Jane Seymour at an opening you ask me that.

Henry (humming)—If you see Seymour like I see Seymour... Anne—No singing commercial, please!

Henry—Oh, come on, let's eat! How are my dozen eggs on beef coming? And remember 12 slices of buttered toast will do for breakfast today. I'm not myself.

Anne—Aren't food prices awful, Henry. I paid four shillings for that roast stag you had for lunch yesterday, and that was with the feet off.

Henry—Were the feet off? I didn't notice. Here's where a commercial comes in. Is your appetite weak? Are you finicky at the table? Take Squeeper's Stomach Bitters—the ones in the green bottle and you will have the appetite of a king.

Anne—Come, Henry, don't exaggerate.

Henry—Anne, my dear, you have a very pretty neck. And that's the cue for another commercial. Anne—The secret of a pretty neck, I hope you all know, is Perth's Tissue Builder, the Cream of Royalty. A woman who uses this need never worry about her neck.

Henry—That's what you think!

Anne—Always joking, aren't you, Henry?

Henry—Am I?

Anne—I certainly hope so. Let's get off the subject of necks.

Henry—By the way, why aren't our canaries twittering this morning?

Anne—You know very well why. You ate their bird seed. Dear me, you eat everything.

Henry—Odds bodkins, you are getting flip. Stick to the script.

Anne—Oh, Henry!

Henry—Go ahead with the puff, but if I catch the fellow who named that candy bar after me I'll send him to the Tower. He'll pay for it with his head.

Anne—You're always making people pay with their heads. Do you think it funny?

Henry—You'll find out. And now, folks, it's time for our guest star.

Anne—Who are our guest stars today, Henry?

Henry—Two charming girls, Anne of Cleves and Catherine Howard.

Anne—Over my dead body!

Henry—Okay, if that's the way you want it!

W.N.U. FEATURES

Duke McCale, private detective, has established an enviable reputation in Boston in a short time by solving some difficult cases.

CHAPTER II

A nursemaid's job to a lot of iced-tea spoons. "Phoeey!" The big young man hitched his long legs over an arm of the chair and snorted in irritation.

"Keep your shirt on, Tiny," she said to the big fellow. "Duke has a hunch. Why not let him do the talking? We only work here."

Rocky made appropriate noises, adding, "So this is a conference?" "What did you think it was—the wedding breakfast?"

"All right, all right. So Duke has a hunch. Go ahead, master-mind. Go into your trance and tell us all."

Mystery Surrounds Vallaincourt

"Not much, I'm afraid," Rocky flipped open a notebook. "Showed up around these parts about a year ago. He's from New York City, or so he says. Definitely not Harvard nor Blue Book. Seems to have plenty of dough. Lives in a swank apartment on the Riverway. Doesn't work. Goes everywhere with the society crowd. The gals all do cartwheels whenever he shows up anywhere.

was Bennett, but he adopted them, and they changed to the Bigelow surname. "Then Veronica, the bride, is a daughter of this second marriage?"

"What's that?" He picked up a folded square of paper that had fluttered from her lap to the floor.

She held up a long legal envelope that had been lying beside the model.

ed study of the photographer's conception of how a well-groomed, quiet, aristocratic young woman should pose.

McCale Senses That Something's Amiss

The Bigelow house was on that mound of Beacon street that slopes gently to Charles street and the Gardens. It was almost in the shadow of the State House dome.

Wordlessly, as McCale bit his lip to keep silent, Adelaide Bigelow replaced the deed in its envelope. She turned slowly, motioning him to leave the room with her.

ety of liquor on that table." He shook his head.

"I'll wait, I think." He was obsessed with the thought that although her voice was calm, unburied, there was something empty and trembling in her.

"What is the matter with this woman? Or is it me? Am I getting out of practice? I can usually catch something significant in my own subtle way, but this baffles me.

A quick black anger flared up in him. His impulse was to stalk from the house, but reason held him, reason and the disturbing unrest that had remained in his brain and nerves ever since her visit to his office that morning.

It was a model, to scale, of a small modernistic house, set in miniature landscaped grounds. Complete with casement windows, sun deck, glass-walled patio, it was an architect's dream of the plus ultra in a civilized dwelling place.

What he created was good, so good in fact, that the one in charge of the feast remarked about it. The Lord never does anything by halves, nor in a careless or defective way.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE AUTHORITY OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—John 2:1-8. MEMORY SELECTION—Whatever he saith unto you, do it.—John 2:5.

The witness of John concerning Jesus as the Son of God had been attested by the divine knowledge of Jesus and his personal call to his disciples.

It is interesting to note that for this, the first of his miracles, he chose a festive occasion in the home. He had been invited to be a guest at a wedding (v. 2).

I. He Commands (vv. 1-3).

He was neither host nor was he the one charged with responsibility for the serving, but when the time came for him to do his mighty act the servants were ready to obey the admonition of his mother and do what he said.

Mary may have had some responsibility for serving the guests. Why then had she not looked to the supply of wine? Apparently she who knew of what had taken place at the baptism of Jesus and immediately after, and having in her heart the memory of what occurred at his birth (Luke 2:14), thought it time for him to do some great miracle.

He was indeed ready to do so, but in his own way. "What is that to thee?" in verse 4 really carries the meaning: "This is a matter which I must care for in my own way," and he did.

II. He Creates (vv. 9-11).

The act of creation was already done, but now the fact came to light. He had changed the water into wine, the juice of the grapes. This was not a case of adding something or diluting the remaining wine. Here the water, as he decreed it even without the use of a spoken word, was no longer there, but the best of wine.

Jesus was and is the Creator. He was present at the beginning of all things (note the "let us" in Gen. 1:26), and it is declared that "by him were all things created" (Col. 1:16-17). In fact, "without him was not anything made" (John 1:3).

What he created was good, so good in fact, that the one in charge of the feast remarked about it. The Lord never does anything by halves, nor in a careless or defective way.

He made a great quantity of wine probably more than 100 gallons, and it was of the greatest excellency.

Some would read verse 10 as though our Lord were here helping along a drunken wedding party, but of course that is not true. The steward was simply recognizing the ordinary rule of serving whereby one uses the best one has until there is no more like it, then takes the inferior provision. To use this inferior to excuse drunkenness is only possible for those "eager to mar, if by means they could, the image of perfect holiness which offends and rebukes them" (Trench, quoted by Leisli).

III. He Controls (vv. 12-16).

After a few days with his family and his disciples, he went down to Jerusalem for the great feast of the Passover. There he found his Father's house being misused and defiled. His holy indignation kindled, he spoke and acted with authority as he drove these "racketeers" out of the temple.

People like to hear about a God of love, one who knows their weakness, and is kind toward their infirmities. But we must not forget that God shows his love by a great and holy hatred of sin, and a desire to deliver us from that sin. This means that he must and will deal in drastic fashion with those who persist in their sin.

This is a majestic picture. The Son of God and Son of Man steps into the center of this unholy traffic and with mighty, holy indignation (not anger) drives it out.

Why did these men who were so deeply entrenched and so eager to make money flee before the wrath of a lone man? It was only because they recognized divine authority. He has a right to control men, for he is God.

Here's wishing for every one of our readers a happy and healthy New Year. May the year bring you many blessings and but few sorrows.

Sheriff Paul Foster and his deputies are making tough sledding for some of the Davie County joy water dispensers. Much Christmas liquor was captured by the officers, and a number of arrests were made.

Move To Montreat

Dr. and Mrs. Robert King left last week for Montreat, where they will make their future home. Dr. King has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church for the past 13 months. Their host of friends were sorry to bid them goodbye, but wish them Godspeed in their new field of labor. Dr. and Mrs. King made many friends during their stay in Mocksville.

Christmas Decorations

A visit around the town on Christmas night was well worth the time spent. Many residences were glowing with multicolored lights in windows, on inside and outside Christmas trees. Among those deserving special mention were the homes of Mrs. John J. Larew, Dr. P. H. Mason, Grady Ward, Frank Fowler, P. J. Johnson and Dr. W. M. Long. There were perhaps others on streets we did not have the opportunity of visiting.

Severe Pounding

Members of the Mocksville Baptist Church gave their pastor, Rev. J. P. Davis and family a severe pounding last Monday evening. Many good things to eat, together with useful gifts were presented the family. The affair was enjoyed by all who participated.

New B. & L. Secretary

Mrs. Fletcher Click has been elected Secretary of the Mocksville Building & Loan Association. Prentice Campbell, who has been connected with this association for the past 13 years, and secretary since the death of B. O. Morris, resigned his position is now with the Pennington Chevrolet Co., on Wilkesboro street. Mrs. Click has held a position with Sanford Motor Co., and C. C. Sanford Sons Co., for a number of years.

Mrs. Mary Peacock

Mrs. Mary Peacock, 90, died at the Rowan County Home on Dec. 28th. Funeral services were held at Pleasant View Baptist Church on Dec. 30th, with Rev. E. F. Eagle officiating, and the body laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Surviving are two sons, Willie, of R. 4, and Wiley, of Cleveland; one daughter, Mrs. Noah Hursey, of near Coxsary Line; two brothers, N. T. Foster, Mocksville, and S. A. Foster, Elkin; one sister, Mrs. Fannie Parker, Winston-Salem.

Mrs. Mattie Sheek

Mrs. Mattie Furches Sheek, 78, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Furches, of Farmington, died at her home in Norfolk, Va., on Dec. 27th. Funeral and burial services took place at Norfolk on Dec. 29th. Mrs. Sheek had been in failing health for several years. Surviving are one son, Frank Sheek, of Norfolk; three daughters, Mrs. Henry Neely, Rock Hill, S. C.; Mrs. Pat Baker and Miss Bernice Sheek, at home; one brother, D. K. Furches, Farmington. Mrs. Sheek was the wife of the late C. F. Sheek, of Davie County, who moved to Norfolk more than 30 years ago. Mrs. Sheek had many friends here who were saddened by news of her death.

Want Bonus For Vets

Whereas, the North Carolina Encampment, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, in annual encampment assembled at Winston-Salem, N. C., on June 10, 1946, adopted a part of its legislative program a project to obtain a State Bonus for Veterans of World War II:

Now Therefore, Thomas Ray Davis Post 4014, Veterans of Foreign Wars of Mocksville, Davie County, N. C., with an active membership of 401 World War Veterans, all of whom have had combat experience in warfare on Foreign soil, in business session assembled does hereby request the Member of the General Assembly for Davie County, and State Senator from the 24th State Senatorial District, to support and work for the passage in the 1947 session of the General Assembly, a State Bonus for Veterans of World War No. II.

Further ordered, that a copy of this petition and resolution be presented Davie County's member of the General Assembly and the State Senator for the 24th State Senatorial District, to each of the newspapers printed in Davie County. F. R. LEAGANS, Post Commander. C. F. MERONEY, Jr., Adjutant.

Money-Baie

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Baie, of Churchland, announce the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Marie, to Floyd E. Money, which occurred Dec. 26th, at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. J. E. Pearson, at Dobson. The ring ceremony was used.

The bride wore an aqua suit with black accessories. Mrs. Money attended the Mocksville High School. Mr. Money is a son of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Money, of Ronda. He recently received his discharge from the Navy, after serving in the European and Pacific theatres. Mr. and Mrs. Money hold positions with the N. C. Finishing Co., Salisbury. Following a short honeymoon they are at home on Route 1, Linwood.

Holman-James

Miss Mary Nell James, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence James, of this city, and Clyde Holman, son of Guy B. Holman and the late Mrs. Holman, of R. 2, Mocksville, were united in marriage on December 25th. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Fred R. Leagans, the officiating magistrate, on Oak street.

Moses Lefler

Moses Lefler, 66, a native of Jerusalem township, who moved to Winston-Salem 35 years ago, died in a hospital in that city on Dec. 24th, as a result of being hit by a truck on Dec. 20th. Funeral and burial services occurred in Winston-Salem Dec. 26th. Surviving are the widow and three sisters, among them Mrs. Abbie Williams, of R. 4. Mr. Lefler was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lefler, of Ephesus.

Every person who travels is entitled to these facts about bus transportation during 1946. Greyhound Lines started this first peacetime year with almost exactly the same equipment which had already carried more than half a billion passengers—troops and war workers—up, down, and across the Nation for four hectic war years.

Many of the coaches were worn and weary. Some of them broke down. Replacement parts were hard to get. Worst of all, some passengers were, on occasion, left at stations, delayed, or inconvenienced because of the shortage of serviceable buses.

In spite of these handicaps, Greyhound did its level best to continue efficient service, and it succeeded in carrying far more passengers than it had served even in the busiest pre-war years. During this difficult period, Greyhound has been deeply grateful for the understanding and patience of all who have traveled the great highways of America.

Increased comfort, convenience, and travel pleasure are assured Greyhound travelers in 1947. Early in the coming year, the first shipment of 1,400 modern new coaches—on order for many months—will be delivered and immediately put into service. They will have scores of improved features for added safety and riding ease.

And this is only part of Greyhound's long-planned, nationwide improvement program, which includes the construction of fine new terminals in key cities, the modernization of wayside stations, the installation of two-way radio in all coaches for better schedule control, more additions to the present chain of 65 Greyhound Post Houses.

As the year 1947 rolls along, more new buses will daily come from assembly lines to join the Greyhound fleet, and the improvement program, hampered by the material shortages of 1946, will gather speed. So, look forward to better highway travel—by Greyhound—beginning soon, and increasing each day of 1947.

BY GRANTLAND RICE

The college football season is over — on football fields. But it really should be only beginning on the part of those who believe that true college football is a great game and should be saved. We mean saved from too much out-right professionalism and a degree of semi-professionalism that is just as bad. It may be that we have harped on this subject too often. But it is still a vital matter to those who love college football as it should be run and played.

Grantland Rice

There are four leading organizations who should have a hand in this checking up.

1. The college presidents—who are supposed to be the heads of their institutions. These men control student obligations, classroom ability.
2. The graduate managers.
3. The football coaches, who have much at stake and who have taken a big part of the beating.
4. The alumni who are interested in something more than winning teams at any cost. Those could be major factors.

Southern Situation

Here is a letter that might interest you:

"Dear Sir:
I happen to be from the South where I know that the football situation, from a student or an amateur angle, is pretty bad. But it is just about as bad, although better covered up, in many other sections. Down here we pay and take care of a lot of football players who in too many cases are poor students. But I have found the same thing is true pretty well around the map. I don't believe any reformers are going to stop this. I believe it will fall of its own weight from the feeling I have found developing among the students themselves and the alumni. They are getting sick of seeing their colleges represented too often by physical education and other soft-course players who are interested in football only for pay, and a professional job later on.

"Many of these students can just about read and write, and they improve little even in this respect. Don't think the real students don't know this. Most of them know the ones that have been brought in, are being paid and what soft courses they are taking. They know how professional the game has grown in many places. And I've also run across a number of coaches who are getting fed up with their jobs of recruiting or taking care of the paid men brought in.

"I put this problem up to a veteran football coach in the East who knows most of the inside answers. 'I doubt,' he told me, 'that you can prevent certain forms of payment that can be so easily covered up. There will be no real improvement until entrance tests are made much stiffer, until college classroom requirements are lifted many degrees. I am referring to physical education players, for whom football is a good part of their college work. There are several other soft courses I might mention where big, fast and valuable football players are taken care of. These boys are getting nothing out of college except football. After all, you are supposed to go to college largely for an education. Why not have each college print on its football programs the courses its football players are taking?'

Harm to Character

"Of course poor boys deserve their chance for an education. Thousands, possibly hundreds of thousands, who never kicked or threw a football do get that chance. Football is too great a game to be wrecked by the modern desire to win, no matter what the ethics, no matter what the cost. These forget the great harm they also are doing to young players from the side of building character. They know who is cheating."

"As a player and a coach and a man of high character this man's name stands high in football. Oddly enough, Frank Butterworth, one of Yale's most famous stars, and John Kieran, the philosopher and thinking machine, had the same answer—'Abolish all gate receipts, as Army and Notre Dame did for years.' 'You can't have amateur sport with big gate receipts,' Kieran says."

Illiterate Athletes

I already can hear one indignant war cry. "Our college standards are high. We meet every particular in this respect." Certainly the Big Nine and the Ivy league are among the leaders. But how did one of the college stars from one big conference, who had starred on a team for two years, misspell 41 out of 56 words in a certain brief examination (some of these is a 14-year-old high school boy wouldn't have missed) and still be eligible for football?

"Chust look at dis! It's coal!"

John Peter Salley, one of an exploring party, had picked out what seemed to be another rock, and found it to be bituminous coal. Today West Virginia, with its 585 mines, often is referred to as the "coal bin of America."

When William Tompkins used natural gas as fuel to evaporate water from brine in 1841, he became one of the first men in the United States to use gas for industrial uses. West Virginia's natural gas production in 1944 was 213 billion cubic feet.

In 1797 Elisha Brooks began extracting salt for commercial purposes from a brine spring in Kanawha valley near the present site of Charleston. Other West Virginia salt works have been operating for more than 100 years.

Develop New Industries.

As early as 1790 a furnace was built by Peter Tarr of Kings Creek, near the present site of Weirton, now one of the biggest steel producing cities in America. Cannon balls made here were used by Commodore Perry's fleet in the Battle of Lake Erie in 1813.

Michael J. Owens, son of a coal miner, invented a bottle-making machine in 1903 and started a new epoch in that industry. West Virginia produced, in prewar years, glass, china and pottery valued at $0 million dollars annually.

Mifin Marsh made stogies and sold them to passengers on Ohio river boats in 1840. M. Marsh & Son, Wheeling, is reputed to be the largest stogie manufacturer in the United States.

And back in 1915, when World War I cut off the Getman supply of playing marbles, Akro Agate was founded at Clarksburg, and today the concern makes over half of the world's glass marbles.

But lest West Virginia's industrial achievements blind us to her other claims to fame and distinction, let us look farther than bituminous coal production, natural gas, petroleum, chemicals, salt, stone, hardwood timber, steel and iron manufacture, textiles, glass, pottery, ceramics and others. There is also the romantic and historic West Virginia. And there is the mountainous and scenic West Virginia which has become one of the nation's greatest recreational areas.

THE PANHANDLE STATE . . . Surrounding the map of West Virginia are typical scenes of the state: (1) Blackwater falls; (2) the administration building at Babcock state park; (3) a modern coal tipple; (4) New River canyon, and (5) apple growing.

Eastern Panhandle Is Favorite Spot for Vacationers

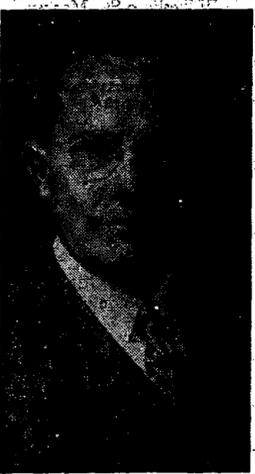

Old-timers used to talk about "this neck of the woods," and West Virginia's Eastern Panhandle may have the answer to how the expression started. Back in the wilderness days, the area was called "The Northern Neck of Virginia."

Eastern Panhandle retains a flavor all its own. Gouging into Maryland and Virginia as it does, it partakes of the traditions of both those states and remains somewhat different, if not apart, from the main area of West Virginia.

In 1776, the village of Martinsburg had "30 houses" and the community was building "a courthouse of no inconsiderable size and elegance." Today Martinsburg is the industrial center of the Eastern Panhandle.

West Virginia's Eastern Panhandle has as its main attractions Cacapon state park, old homes of CHIEF EXECUTIVE . . . Clarence Watson Meadows was elected the 22nd governor of West Virginia in 1944. A former lawyer, he had served as state attorney general and judge of the 10th judicial circuit court before his election. He is a native of Beckley, W. Va., where he was born February 11, 1894.

The first white men went into what is now West Virginia as early as 1719, and a few years later cabins were being built. After 1735, South Branch valley began to fill up with the overflow from Shenandoah valley and from Pennsylvania and Maryland. Settlers were of several nationalities — and the composition of the people of West Virginia always has been different from that of the country east of the mountains.

Story of Controversy.

West Virginians heartily supported the Revolution and sent troops to help New England and the Middle Colonies, but the history of western Virginia before 1861 is a story of controversy with eastern Virginia. Socially, politically and economically, the two sections were unlike from the very beginning. Western Virginia was democratic while eastern Virginia was aristocratic. The idea of separation was foremost long before the Civil war.

When war broke out between the states in 1861, there were bound to be repercussions through the entire state. Eastern Virginia was the heart of the Confederacy. Western Virginia was opposed to secession. The long desired separation was effect, not with the Civil war as a cause, but rather as an opportunity. On December 31, 1862, the congress of the United States gave its consent to admit West Virginia as a state, and the next spring, on April 20, 1863, President Lincoln issued his proclamation. West Virginia became the 35th state of the union two months later.

Many Historic Shrines. Three states and two rivers meet at historic Harpers Ferry where John Brown's anti-slavery raid was staged. Blackwater falls, Seneca rocks, Pinnacle rock, the burial mound at Moundsville, the state capitol building, the historic shrines — all are interesting and worthwhile.

From mountain tops to blue grass farms, the agricultural side of West Virginia is a revelation. Anyone must marvel at the agriculture and fruit that are produced in a state that ranks among the first in industry. Prize beef and bituminous coal? Yes, anything is possible in West Virginia.

Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson was born at Clarksburg, and West Virginia also gave the nation John J. Davis, Pearl S. Buck and Ann Jarvis. In case you've forgotten, it was Ann Jarvis who in 1907 asked a group of Philadelphia friends to wear white carnations on the first anniversary of her mother's death — and thereby founded Mother's Day.

State of Contrasts.

The state's northwestern border is the Ohio river, the aquatic highway that opened the west. But the Monongahela and the Kanawha rivers are important too. West Virginia's elevations range from 240 to 4,860 feet above sea level, with the highest average elevation of any state east of the Rockies. Yes, it's a mountainous state, but every wooded hill, every shady nook and every sparkling stream belongs to just such a state. About 60 per cent of the state's area is covered by forest, with trees ranging from spruce in the highlands to prickly pear cactus and other semi-desert plants in the lowlands.

Scenery, wildlife and extensive semi-primitive areas combine to lure vacationists to West Virginia's two vast national forests, the Monongahela and the George Washington. The state also has 15 state parks and seven state forests.

Fishing, hunting, hiking, riding, swimming, golf, tennis, boating — well, what do you want for recreation? And what is your trade, what are your business ambitions, your specifications for success? And what of your "dream" home where nature is loveliest? Perhaps the answer is — in West Virginia!

War Bonds Will Yield Huge Flow of Cash for Many Years

THE president of a small bank in a rural midwestern town, here to attend a bankers' meeting, told your Home Town Reporter the other day that interest on war bonds and U. S. savings bonds held by the depositors in his little bank alone would average almost $100,000 a year for the next 10 years.

To me that is an amazing revelation, for it is the answer to the confusion in the minds of many persons throughout the country as to why the treasury department is continuing its drive to sell U. S. savings bonds although the fighting is over. Also, the treasury's working balance and anticipated tax revenue are enough to meet government expenditures for some time to come, and they have been sufficient since the close of the Victory Loan in December, 1945. The government actually does not need the money it is obtaining from the sale of savings bonds.

Then why sell bonds? I asked Verne Clark, director of treasury's savings bond division, for the answer. It boiled down to the fact that the government policy was to have the people collect the interest on the public debt.

Said Clark: "Wise management of the public debt is an important function in which every citizen must be vitally interested until that debt is paid. Purchases of savings bonds directly by the people are a definite part in that management . . . of keeping ownership in the hands of the people . . . and add another privilege to American citizenship, the privilege of sharing in the payments on the debt."

Enormous Buying Power

Here are some amazing figures: According to treasury statements, war bonds now outstanding, including all series, total $49,700,000,000. If these bonds are held to maturity the interest to be paid on them in the next 10 years will total approximately 13 billion dollars, or an average of about $1,300,000,000 a year. That is purchasing power! It almost equals the total national income from banking in 1943; it is approximately the equal of the national income from insurance in the same year; it is more than the average annual national income from bituminous coal; it adds up to a new national spending power. And remember, this is interest only, not the $49,700,000,000 of principal, much of which also will be paid before the 10-year period is up, because some of these outstanding bonds are already five year old.

Bringing this new purchasing power down to that little midwest town, that $100,000 a year in interest alone is more than the annual payroll of half the industries in the town, and if those industries shut down for any reason, folks there would look upon the fact as dire calamity coming to the community. The only factor which can shut off this annual interest is redemption of the bonds before maturity.

Here are some more amazing comparisons: In Texas, the people hold approximately a billion and a half dollars of war and savings bonds on which the 10-year interest would be $375,000,000 or an average of $37,500,000 a year. That total interest amounts roughly to one-third of the total value of Texas farm products in 1944, given by the bureau of the census as $1,115,669,126.

Large Part of Income

In Indiana value of farm products in 1944 amounted to $538,000,000. The 10-year interest on a billion dollars worth of war bonds held by Hoosier citizens will be approximately $250,000,000, or about one-half the total farm income for 1944.

In an eastern state, Massachusetts, folks hold two billions in bonds with an approximate $500,000,000 interest total and that figure, according to the census bureau, is four times the total value of farm products sold and used in Massachusetts in 1944. The annual interest, $50,000,000, probably equals the annual payroll of any one of a dozen thriving industries in that industrial state.

It seems to your Home Town Reporter that these figures bring home to every citizen all the familiar appeals for the continued purchase of savings bonds.

But the fact remains that the management of that public debt is important and we'll have it with us for some time to come, so it seems to this reporter that as long as the folks in the home towns of the country must pay that debt in their federal taxes, their one hope of repaying any return, aside from the privilege of living in this country of ours, is to continue to buy government savings bonds and to hold what they have until maturity. Somebody is going to get the interest on that huge debt. It might as well be you, the common citizen.

Almanacs Long-Lived in U. S.; One in 250th Year

Among the oldest publications in the United States are the local almanacs the contents of which appeal chiefly to farmers, says Collier's.

For example, Gruber's Hagers-town Almanac is now in its 149th year, the Old Farmer's Almanac in its 154th, Daboll's New England Almanac in its 174th and Foulsham's Almanack in its 250th year.

Sublime to Ridiculous

A slightly tipsy gentleman walked into the telegraph office, took a pencil, spent three or four minutes in deep thought, and wrote this message to a friend in St. Louis:

"Tra la, tra la, tra la, tra la."

He signed it and presented it to the lady behind the counter.

"After checking it," she said: "That will be 64 cents."

The gentleman paid her and she said: "You used only eight words."

"What would you suggest adding?" he finally asked.

"Well, how about just adding 'tra la,'" she said.

"No," he said firmly, "that would just make it sound silly."

This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Truly Surprising

So Easy. No Cooking. Big Saving. You may not know it, but, in your own kitchen, you can easily prepare a really surprising relief for coughs due to colds. It's old-fashioned — your mother probably used it — but for real results, it's hard to beat. It's no trouble. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients in concentrated form, well known for quick action in throat and bronchial irritations.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of splendid cough syrup, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils. Children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick relief, it's a wonder. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, eases the soreness, makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

London Today
England suffered much during the war. Many blocks in the heart of the great city of London, completely razed by the Nazi "Luftwaffe," remain unrepaired. All parts of the city sustained scattered damage from the raids. They took much punishment bravely, and they are industriously setting about to repair their country.

Perhaps it is partly Britain's proximity to continental troublemakers and the consequent disaster, although some of these trouble spots have been pawn as well as threat during her history, that gives the people such an awareness of foreign relations. They have learned the defenses that are usually provided by a good foreign office, and have developed shrewd international statesmen. There is little apparent disunity in their foreign policy.

Nonetheless, war came to them, and their sufferings were great. Reconstruction in Britain is moving slowly. A long time will be required for complete rebuilding, even of her damaged streets and destroyed buildings. Materials are short, and rationing diverts most materials into home building, which is proceeding slowly also.

Rationing Slow-Down
Most Britons feel that rationing of materials has slowed production. The government is meticulous about "filling out forms," and the proper approval must be had to obtain each different type of building material. Sometimes brickwork must stop because the bureau controlling glass has not approved and returned the forms for buying windows.

The London press announced while I was there that building contractors were being granted extra gasoline rations because of the additional travel required to get their numerous forms filled out and circulated to wholesalers and retailers, which they found necessary to do in order to complete a building.

All rationing seems to move slowly. For instance, I had to obtain food points to give the hotel for the week I was in London. Upon the advice of the hotel manager that I should report at the rationing office when the doors opened at nine o'clock, I arrived at 8:45 and found a long queue already waiting. Eventually I found myself in a special room for foreign visitors, with only a few of the waiting applicants, and had to wait only about an hour. The speed of the ration clerks reminded me of some of our own paid clerks during the war: it was evident they were not paid by the number of customers they served and that they had no fear of competition.

Queues and Bread
England is experiencing a greater shortage of food, clothing, and gasoline than during the war, and therefore rationing has not been eliminated. On the contrary, some items are now rationed which were not under rationing during the war. Queues of from 50 to 300 people were constantly on the streets, at most all hours, waiting to get rationed articles.

I was actually hungry every day I spent in England. Bread counts as one of the three courses available for a London dinner, and if bread is ordered this eliminates either the soup or sweet. During my last day in London a hotel waiter was fined $20 for inadvertently putting a roll on the table for each of two men who had not ordered bread. They chanced to be inspectors.

Meat Control
Collapse and failure recently of government control over an important commodity, required in the daily lives of the people, points up an important moral for Americans. In lettering bold and poster-size, amounting to handwriting on the wall, this moral shows that we are not ready for this kind of regimentation in peacetime. We may re-enact the plot again with new characters at some future time, but the result will surely be the same.

This we must know before more harm is done: A controlled economy is not compatible with American democracy. The real reason for complete failure of meat control lies in the fact that Americans have been brought up on a free market. They have found the greatest sort of freedom in this kind of economy. They desire no substitute.

Few Old Cows
Prices the government allowed for hogs and cattle on foot were not high enough to induce farmers to sell their animals. Early in October the New York Times sent a reporter into the heart of the Texas-cattle country. Trailing buyers at Fort Worth for both major and independent packers, the Times reporter saw them bid OPA ceilings and come away with only a "few old cows" out of 5,700 head of beeves listed that day. Choice animals were "grabbed off" by traders at prices in excess of ceilings, while 7,000,000 beef cattle continued to roam the southwest Texas range.

Like any man who successfully invests capital and puts hard work into an enterprise, the cattle raiser is well taught about markets. But a controlled economy puzzles him first, muzzles him later. The farmer, like the manufacturer, has learned to watch markets: to buy and sell advantageously in an honest, competitive market. And in our land we have found that the consumer, who buys the food and manufactured goods at lower prices, is best protected by this same free market.

Failure Recognized
Why could a black market exist? The public wanted meat badly enough to pay more for it than the ceiling price. I am not condoning black markets, but it needs to be said that this one was a general revolt against price controls on meat during peacetime, when the public knew the country had more livestock than usual. The failure of controls was dismal, and the entire population recognized it.

Some folks, prompted by Communist thinking and desiring to destroy freedom of opportunity, blamed the failure on the packing houses. People who know nothing of the facts may believe that accusation. The facts are that prices packers could legally pay did not bring livestock to market. Neither did a few men in Congress cause the farmers to withhold hogs and cattle. It was not the "feebleness" of the law, but the law itself, that turned a free market into a black market.

Dynamic is the word for our American economy. It cannot be trampled down at one point and budgeted at another, at the whim of some far-away controller. Neither can you expect it to by-pass the bottlenecks of government control, using the laws of honest economics with which it is familiar—without disastrous results to the American way of life.

NEWS OF LONG AGO.

What Was Happening in Davie Before The New Deal Used The Alphabet, Drowned The Hogs and Plowed Up The Cotton and Corn.

(Davie Record, Jan. 9, 1924.)

Cotton is 33½ cents.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest James, on Friday, a fine son.

E. L. Flowers, of Hickory, was in town Wednesday on business. Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Vestal McCulloh, on Friday, a fine son.

John LeGrand returned Sunday from a visit to friends in South Carolina.

C. B. Mooney will build two houses near the graded school in the near future.

U. S. Marshal C. G. Bryant, of Winston-Salem, was in town last week on business.

E. P. Bradley has begun the erection of a large dwelling house on Maple avenue.

James Kimbrough, of Winston-Salem, spent a few days in town the past week with relatives.

Work is progressing on the new bungalow being built for Dr. Lester Martin near the high school building.

Miss Mary Hodges, of Winston-Salem, spent the Christmas holidays with her parents, Prof. and Mrs. J. D. Hodges, on R. 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fyne, of Henderson, spent several days in town last week with Col. and Mrs. Jacob Stewart.

T. J. Caudell has moved his pressing club from the court house to the basement under the Southern Bank & Trust Co.

After spending the Christmas vacation with their parents, Misses Sara and Ruth Hodges returned to Guilford College Tuesday.

J. W. Wall has moved his family from Cana to this city, and they are occupying a house on Sanford avenue until Mr. Wall completes his new residence on Church street.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Penry, of R. 3, on Thursday, a daughter. The infant is a well developed child with the exception of one hand missing. The arm is normal but stops at the wrist.

The Bank of Davie held their annual stockholders meeting on Dec. 27th. All of the old officers were re-elected for the year, and a semi-annual dividend of 4 per cent. was declared.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Haire and three children, of Booneville, have moved to this city and are occupying rooms at J. J. Eaton's. Mr. Haire is day operator at the Southern Railway depot. The Record is glad to welcome these good citizens to our town.

The consolidated school election which was held in Shady Grove township on last Monday was carried by a majority of 130 for the erection of a consolidated school to be located in or near Advance. It is said that the new school building will cost about $70,000. The citizens of Shady Grove are to be congratulated on this progressive move.

W. E. Boyles, of Bixby, was in town last week and told us that the new Smith Grove consolidated school building, which was erected by the Boyles Building Co., was practically completed and that the school had moved in, with an enrollment of about 250. The new building is of brick and contains 10 rooms. The building cost about $35,000, and is modern in every respect. Prof. W. E. Brown is superintendent of this school, which is located between Redland and Smith Grove.

BURIED TALENTS

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hixdenite, N. C. There are many buried talents in the lives of men today. Which could be a gracious blessing if the owners would but say; "Take my talents, blessed Master, Which today I hold in store; Use them for the good of others; They are 'Thine forever more.'"

Some whose talents now are hidden Maybe 'neath some sin and shame Might uplift and bless their fellows. And climb up the hills of fame, If they'd only yield to Jesus. All they have and all they are. Knowing as they do His bidding. No one's life He'll ever mar,

Some could fill a place as teachers. Some as missionaries true, Some as preachers, some as writers, Some as mighty leaders, too. Winning souls and helping pilgrims On their upward climb in life, Bringing peace to men and nations. Helping rid the world of strife.

All could shine in righteous beauty. And God's wondrous love and grace,

As they labor in His vineyard, Striving each to fill his place, If their precious buried talents— Gifts more wonderful than fame, Were all given to the Master For the glory of His name.

Sugar Outlook For 1947

The scarcity of sugar continues to worry the American housewife but she can get some comfort from the fact that the retail price hasn't fluctuated as violently as after World War I when it jumped from eleven cents a pound in 1919 to twenty-seven cents a pound in 1919 to twenty seven cents in seven months.

Experts on the world outlook for sugar says that the 1946 production, 27,200,000 tons, was the smallest in twenty-two years. The estimate for next year is 30,000,000 tons, but this is thirteen per cent below the average for the 1935-39 period.

It is generally agreed, however, that a moderate increase in the amount of sugar, available to industrial users and housewife will come in 1947. Cane and beet production in this country will be larger and the crops in other areas, that supply the United States offer promises of larger supplies.

The sugar experts say that the United States is getting 5,600,000 tons of sugar in 1946, which is about two million tons less than in 1940. As normal consumption is figured at 98 pounds it would require 7,000,000 tons to supply the normal American demand and it is barely possible that this amount will be available in 1947.

Soldiers See Latest Movies

Soldiers serving in Japan and Korea see more movies than they did at home. Under sponsorship of the Army Special Services Division, at least four changes of Hollywood movies are presented weekly, many of them before they appear in New York. The GI's also attend live stage shows, including USO and their own soldier productions.

All Sports in Japan

Sports minded GI's doing occupation duty in Japan have little difficulty keeping busy in their leisure time. They have organized a baseball league, "The American League of Japan," softball, and basketball teams, and have the exclusive use of 15 golf courses, 15 swimming pools, and a number of resort beaches. For winter sports enthusiasts there is even skiing and skating.

They Seldom Repeat

There is much speculation as to the political future of President Truman. Of late there has been much debate among the wisecracks as to what effect the strike of the coal miners will have on the future chances of the President to succeed himself.

Since the election there seems to be a tendency at Washington to loosen controls and to restore the government "to the people." Many observers believe that the results of the recent election has had some effect on the President, who thinks that now the people have registered their opinions as to the New Deal he is no longer duty bound to carry out all the New Deal policies. Others are of the opinion that the release of all controls is being encouraged by the left-wingers themselves in the hope that a mess will be stirred up which will discredit not only the President but the Republican Congress and rebound to the benefit of Henry Wallace and his satellites.

It is generally admitted that President Truman will have the Democratic nomination handed to him in 1948 if he wants it. Most observers believe he will adopt a wait-and-see attitude so far as the nomination is concerned. If things look better for the Democrats in 1948 he would then accept the nomination, but if things continue to go from bad to worse, he may well turn down the nomination.

Getting a Congress, especially a House, of opposing faith generally spells disaster for the administration in the next election.

It is pointed out that Mr. Truman is the sixth President in recent times with an opposing National House of Representatives. The first five were Grover Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison, William Howard Taft, Woodrow Wilson and Herbert Hoover. In each of the five instances the administration party did not elect its Presidential candidate in the succeeding general election.

The odds, therefore, would seem to be entirely against the Democrats in this field to capture the Presidency in 1948. However, sooner or later there comes an exception to most rules. Despite the record of the past, it may be taken for granted that even if Mr. Truman decides not to run in 1948, there will be plenty of Democratic candidates who will be willing to accept the honor.—Union Republican.

G. O. P. Solons Will Push Federal-Aid Housing

Senate Republicans are determined to push a Federally subsidized public housing program as the first step in a modified long-range home construction plan.

Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican steering committee, told a reported he plans to split off and introduce separately the public housing section of the Wagner Ellender-Taft bill which was shelved by the outgoing Democratic controlled Congress.

The W. E. T. bill, which Taft and two Democratic senators sponsored, was a sweeping measure providing for housing research, a permanent national housing agency, liberal loan and investment arrangements and other construction incentives.

Many of its features were opposed by real estate organizations. The bill passed the senate but found a pigeon-hole in the House.

The Free Hands Of American Labor

It is refreshing to know that some labor leaders have not been carried away by a "rule or ruin" policy toward industry—and are not advocating programs whose purpose is to get more pay for less work. An excellent case in point is provided in an article in Reader's Digest by Walter Cenerazzo, president of the American Watch Workers union.

Mr. Cenerazzo's article is in the form of a letter to union members. He writes: "Sales makes wages. Production makes sales, and low cost, low-price production makes more sales.

"Capital and management can absorb wages up to a point and still reduce prices, increase sales and spread prosperity. But now we've raised wages to where management can't do it alone. Now the unions have got to help capital and management carry the loads of more goods, more services and more welfare for the American people.

"American free enterprise now has to be saved by the unions as well as management. Our foreign competition is more and more socialistic. We Americans are representing real free enterprises almost alone. You, my fellow unionists hold in your free hands the decision between Americanism and totalitarianism."

That is the attitude that can make labor great and powerful and respected. Any other attitude is ruinous to labor as well as to the country which represents nothing but the result of the labor of all the people.—Ex

Pointing The Way

Senator Bridges of New Hampshire, recently issued a statement in which he said: "Government needs its own taste of rationing, ceilings and priorities—and in the same rigid measure that these things have been imposed on the people.

"There must be a rationing of money to spend.

"There must be a rationing of money to spend.

"There must be a ceiling on public payrolls.

"There must be priorities on new and costly projects.

"The American people are vigorously demanding a government that spends no more than it receives in taxes, that lives within the ability of its people to pay, that balances its budget and cuts its debt."

If that vital goal is to be achieved, every governmental non-essential must be eliminated, and every penny of avoidable expenditure must be cut from future budgets.

The economy drive should begin with the activities which are not properly not properly within the sphere of government, and which would be provided by the taxpayer business if it were allowed the opportunity. The outstanding example of this lies in government electric power projects. At this very moment, the socialists are demanding that the government spend untold millions to create and develop a Missouri Valley Authority, a Columbia Authority, and a number of others. None of these would provide a single necessary thing that private industry under local government regulation cannot and should not provide. Not one of them would produce benefits sufficient to offset the losses that occur when trees enterprise is liquidated, and more and more property is removed from local tax rolls.

Senator Bridges points the way. Let Congress follow.—Union Republican.

Parking Meters

The Legislature will be flooded with requests from little towns all over the State to legalize their parking meters. A large number of towns, and hamlets, bursting with growing pains, have harkened to the Lorelei song of parking meter salesmen and installed the construction in violation of the law, and now find they can't make the public put their coins in the slots and unless the public does it voluntarily the hoped-for revenue isn't materializing. Knowing people as we do, we are sure that few will contribute cash for such a cause. On the contrary, they will snicker up their sleeves for being able to park in front of a meter without having to make the deposit.

We suppose the Legislature will be accommodating, for local laws are usually passed without much opposition, but since Statesville is also determined to go into the parking meter business, we might as well examine the merits of the racket.

Parking meters don't increase available parking space. It is a convenience for those who have the money, for instead of having to move their vehicles every hour, they merely deposit another coin and let them set. It will drive some parking into residential streets near the business section, to the annoyance of householders who paid for the street paving and feel they might also have the right to install parking meters in front of their properties. Instead of relieving congestion they merely spread it, fan it out. They will considerable trade from the town's main business section to neighborhood stores and suburban shopping centers where parking is free and unlimited. The uptown merchants will suffer, while those on the fringe will gain.

We predict that, when normalcy returns, parking meters will be disappointing. The chief beneficiaries are the manufacturers and salesmen of the nuisance contraptions. Statesville Daily.

Won't Let Him Alone

The New Dealers simply will not let President Truman live his own life.

The President had enough perspicacity to see that the November election was a clear indication that the people wanted a modification of some of the more radical New Deal tendencies, and he felt rightly that the returns released him from the obligation to carry out all of the Roosevelt policies and made him President in his own right.

In view of the election results, he is said no longer to consider himself simply the executor of Roosevelt policies and intends to act at his own discretion from now on.

But Senator Glen H. Taylor, of Idaho, is unable to see it that way. He has told the President publicly that he is still merely Roosevelt's legate, that he must carry out the late President's policies without change, and, in effect, that Mr. Truman is not supposed to have a mind of his own.

It seems to us, however, that the President is following the proper course. With all respect to Roosevelt, he cannot remain President after he is dead.—Charlotte Observer.

Beer And Wine Vote Proposed

Shelby—Citizens of Cleveland county will vote May 10 on the question of whether beer and wine is to be sold in the county, under provisions of a bill to be presented to the General Assembly by State Senator Lee B. Weathers and Representative O. M. Mull. Mr. Mull said today that the bill has already been submitted to North Carolina Attorney General Harry McMullan, who has declared its legality.

Drafting of the proposal follows a conference between the county's two representatives to the Legislature and religious leaders of the county, who had originally sought a bill banning the sale of beer and wine.

A compromise reached at the session provided that Weathers and Mull seek passage of a bill allowing the special election.

First Aid Severe injuries should be treated promptly by a doctor, but scratches and small cuts, which happen so often to children, may be treated safely at home with simple precautions. According to Dr. Benjamin Spock in his "Common Sense Book of Baby and Child Care," the best treatment for scratches and small cuts is to "wash them with soap and pure water on a piece of sterile absorbent cotton." If not, keep a bottle of hydrogen peroxide for the washing and rinsing. According to this authority, an antiseptic is less important than careful washing.

Here's hoping the sugar shortage will soon come to an end. Since the OPA went out of business the meat shortage is a thing of the past. Turn sugar loose and there will be no sugar shortage.

In our opinion the good people of Davie County will never vote to license liquor stores in this county. What we need is less liquor and more good drinking water. Before voting for more liquor consult your pastor and read your Bible.

Mocksville has made much progress in the last few years. Many new homes have been built, a number of new business houses have been erected, a locker freezer plant, one of the largest furniture factories in this section, a new steam laundry, a large lumber plant in South Mocksville, and a number of smaller wood-working plants. Many other buildings will be built when material is available. What we need now is more dwelling houses. A number of families are anxious to locate here as soon as they can secure living quarters. Let's all pull together for a bigger and better town in which to live.

Davie's Senator, Lafayette Williams, and Representative Knox Johnstone are on their jobs in Raleigh. These gentlemen are well qualified to represent the good old county of Davie, and despite the fact that one is a Republican and the other a Democrat, we feel sure that they will work together in helping to make laws that will benefit the entire State as well as Davie County. It has been suggested that these gentlemen introduce a bill making the office of County Auditor and Tax Collector in Davie elective instead of appointive offices.

Beer and Wine Election

Raleigh, Jan. 8—The first beer and wine referendum bill to reach the new 1947 General Assembly was introduced today by Representative O. M. Mull, of Cleveland, whose measure calls for a vote in his county on May 10, on the question of retaining or abolishing the sale of beer and wine in his county.

The measure would ban the sale of beer and wine in Cleveland and after July 1, if a majority vote for prohibition in the May 10th referendum, and possession of wine and beer for sale would be illegal. Violation would constitute a misdemeanor punishable in the discretion of the court.

Drug Store Entered

Some unknown thief or thieves broke into Hall's Drug Store some time between 11:30 Wednesday night and 6 o'clock Thursday morning and carried away the store's narcotics. So far as could be learned no money or other merchandise was taken. The loss was less than $100. Entrance to the store was made by prizing the lock on the front door. It has been only about three months since the Wilkins Drug Store was entered in the same manner, and all the narcotics stolen. Here's hoping the guilty party will be captured.

Porter Beauchamp also killed a big hog Friday that weighed 656 pounds. When we get hungry next summer we will know which way to travel to get a square meal.

D. W. Smith, of Woodleaf, was in town one day last week on business.

Don't Like Republicans

We once asked a prominent merchant if he didn't want to do some advertising in The Record. He asked us if we didn't edit a Republican newspaper. We told him that our paper was a Republican paper. He remarked that he didn't care to do any advertising with us—that our paper was read only by Negroes and poor white trash. We didn't have our gun with us, and he was a much larger man than the editor.

There are a few business houses that do not advertise with us. We don't know if it is because our paper is Republican, or because they don't want Republicans to do business with them.

The Record has a large circulation in Davie and surrounding counties, with not more than two per cent Negroes.

The best people in the world read our paper—hundreds of the best people in the county, both Democrats and Republicans. We do not claim to run an independent paper to get Democrats to either read or advertise in our paper. When a merchant advertises with us he knows our paper represents the party of Abe Lincoln and William McKinley. When a man subscribes for our paper he knows that he is getting a Republican paper. For forty years we have been a citizen of Davie County—fact is, we were born in a log cabin in Calahan township, and spent the greater part of our life in Davie county. We are not ashamed of our politics. We patronize all our merchants, regardless of their party affiliations, and will continue to do so, regardless of consequences.

Linda Jane Anderson

Linda Jane Anderson, infant daughter of H. J. and Mrs. Irene Anderson, died at the home of her parents, Mocksville, R. 2, Thursday morning.

She is survived by the parents; one brother, Arnold Gray Anderson, one sister, Mrs. Ann Anderson; and the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Malcus Boger.

Funeral services were held at the Jericho Church of Christ at 11 a. m., Friday. Rev. J. F. Binkley officiated and burial was in the church cemetery.

Health Department Information

We should know by this time that our local Health Department has a Division of Sanitation. In simple language sanitation means the promotion of health by close attention to cleanliness. The old-time and at one time, the most extensive of all the activities of a well organized public health unit was this effort to control the spread of diseases and to prevent disease by encouraging public cleanliness and doing away with health risks created by nuisances and unsanitary conditions.

The Division of Sanitation in our local Health Unit at this time is headed by Mr. Carl E. Shell, who is a reasonable man and a well qualified Sanitarian. It is the duty of this officer to inspect cafes, hotels, lunch rooms, soda fountains, markets, slaughter pens and all other places in the community that offer foods and accommodations to the public for monetary considerations. He undertakes to find out if our foods come from healthy sources and if they are handled in a sanitary manner. He undertakes to find out if there are facilities for properly refrigerating and storing foods intended for public consumption, or whether they are poorly kept and exposed to rats, roaches and filth. He attempts to see that John Q. Public gets a clean glass, a clean plate and clean knife and fork, and that his food is prepared in a clean place by healthy people. He inspects our schools with a view to improving the school living conditions for our children. He inspects and examines into our public milk supply, our public water supply, our sewage and waste disposal systems, and he seeks on all sides to correct any unsanitary conditions that may exist. All of this is done with kindly intentions to promote the interest and co-operation of both the operator and the public consumer. When necessary, however, this officer can and does exercise his legal authority to compel changes in behalf of sanitation and the public health.

protection offered us by pure water supplies, wholesome milk supplies and safe sewage disposal. We should all back up every effort to maintain clean, healthy public accommodations such as restaurants, hotels, public toilets and the like. Moreover, when it becomes necessary we should feel free to consult our health department on matters of both private and public sanitation.

Because there are so many diseases that may spread through unsafe sewage disposal and unprotected water supplies, it is important that private individuals contact our Sanitary Division for advice before the actual construction of wells and sewage disposal plants. The service of the Sanitary Officer is available to anyone wishing professional advice on these subjects. Mr. Shell serves a large territory, but he may be contacted through the local Health clinic, the County Nurse, or by mail addressed to the Department of Sanitation, Davie, Stokes, Yadkin District Health Dept., Mocksville, N. C.

ALERED MORDECAI, M. D. Health Officer.

Lee Ketchie, of Statesville, R. 4, was a business visitor here Thursday, and paid our office a pleasant call.

Notice Of Dissolution

Notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between Grady N. Ward and Harvey L. Gobble, trading as Davie Tractor and Implement Company of Mocksville, N. NEWS AROUND TOWN.

Mrs. Joe Graham spent last week with relatives at Winder, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Fulk, of near Yadinville, were Mocksville visitors Saturday.

Mrs. Thomas Poplin spent the week-end with relatives at Winston-Salem and Danville, Va.

Mrs. Carrie Foster has been quite ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lewis Williams, on R. 4.

James A. Kimbrough and Roy Sain, of Winston-Salem, were Mocksville visitors one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Nesbitt, of Kannapolis, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Nail, on R. 2.

Miss Margaret Smith is spending several days in Washington City, the guest of Mrs. W. S. Detwiler.

Miss Roberta Bowles, has returned home from a week's visit with relatives in Washington, D. C.

Preaching at Jericho Sunday afternoon, Jan. 19th at 3 o'clock by Burrell Prince, Jr., of Statesville. The public is invited.

Chief-of-Police C. R. Plowman, who has been laid up with flu since before Christmas, was able to resume his duties last week.

Master John Johnstone, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Knox Johnstone, who has been quite ill for the past two weeks, is much better, we are glad to note.

Harley Sofley has begun the erection of a 6-room dwelling house on Wilkesboro street. Mr. Sofley owns a number of nice building lots on this street.

Attorney A. T. Grant entered Davis Hospital, Statesville, about ten days ago, where he is taking treatment. His many friends are hoping for him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith and little daughter, Donna, who have been making their home on R. 2, have moved to Selma, where Mr. Smith holds a position with the Southern Railway.

Mrs. Smoot Shelton, of R. 2, who underwent operation at Davis Hospital, Statesville, two weeks ago, was able to return home last week, her friends will be glad to learn.

Mrs. W. A. Foster, of Draper, N. C., in renewing her subscription to The Record, writes: "I am sending you $2 for the good old Davie Record. Don't want to miss a copy." Many thanks.

R. C. Shaw, popular rural letter carrier on R. 1, was in town one last week and gave our office a pleasant call. Mr. Shaw has delivered thousands of Davie Records during his many years as letter carrier in Iredell county.

Clerende Grant, of R. 4, who had 16 birds entered in the Madison Square Garden Poultry show, New York, won two first prizes. Twelve of the 16 birds were winners. Mr. and Mrs. Grant and daughters spent a week in New York attending the show. Mr. Grant is Davie's champion poultry grower and always wins when his birds are entered in poultry exhibits.

G. W. McClellan, who has been soil conservationist in Davie for the past six years, has resigned his position to be effective Feb. 1st. Mr. McClellan has accepted the position of general manager of the Forsyth farm and dairy artificial breeding association. He will move his family to Forsyth in the near future. The Record is sorry to lose these good citizens, but wish them well in their new field of labor.

All men in South Calahaln interested in donating work on the Community building are asked to meet there on Tuesday, Jan. 21st. Bring carpenter tools, putty knife, ladders, shovels and mattox. The work to be done is repair of window sash and shutters and putting the outside in shape for painting. The building committee will direct the work. A committee has also been named to place material on the ground for two sanitary privies.

Mrs. Frances Parker

Mrs. Frances Parker, 79, for many years a resident of Mocksville, died at her home in Winston-Salem last Tuesday afternoon. She was the wife of the late Alando Parker. Funeral services were held at the home Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, with Rev. Thos. B. Flynn officiating, and the body brought to Liberty Methodist Church, Mocksville, R. 4, and laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Surviving are one son, Ray Parker, of Greensboro, one daughter, Miss Geneva Parker, of Winston-Salem; two brothers, N. T. Foster, Mocksville, and S. A. Foster, Elkin; one half-brother and two half-sisters.

Former Resident Dies

Mrs. Violet Foster, 44, a native of Davie County, and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Foster, died at her home in Forsyth County Jan. 6th. Funeral and burial services took place at New Philadelphia Moravian Church, Forsyth County, on Wednesday. Surviving are the husband, the mother, three brother and two sisters.

James H. Smith

James H. Smith, for many years a citizen of Mocksville, died at the home of relatives at Danbridge, Tenn., on Jan. 6th, following a stroke of paralysis. Funeral services were held at Danbridge and the body brought here Wednesday afternoon and laid to rest in Joppa cemetery beside his wife, the former Miss Maggie Meroney, who died July 12, 1944. Mr. Smith was a painter, and moved from this city to Winston-Salem about 25 years ago. He moved to Greensboro, and later to Washington, D. C. Surviving are one son, Charles Smith, of Greensboro; two daughters, Mrs. W. S. Detwiler, Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Clyde Russell, of Graham. Several grandchildren also survive. Mr. Smith had many friends in Mocksville who were saddened by news of his death.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leach have moved from the Bowles house on Wilkesboro street, to the McGuire house, just south of town.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

DISPLAY HISTORIC DOCUMENTS
WASHINGTON.—Attorney General Tom Clark is hatching a unique plan for selling civil liberties to the American people. He will send a special train through the 48 states carrying some of the priceless treasures of American freedom.

It was Clark, working quietly behind the scenes, who had more than anyone else to do with organizing the president's special committee on civil liberties, which will study southern lynchings and race problems.

Accordingly he has evolved the idea of sending a special train across the United States containing the most sacred documents of American history which guarantee our freedom.

At first Clark proposed equipping two special cars—with showcases which would display the Bill of Rights, the Declaration of Independence, the Emancipation Proclamation, the Constitution and so on.

However, he found that the Proclamation of Emancipation by which Lincoln freed the slaves was in the hands of Abraham Rosenbach of Philadelphia, famous collector of old manuscripts. Clark, therefore, called Rosenbach to tell him about his plan and ask for the loan of the proclamation.

Rosenbach agreed to cooperate, and suggested an entire train instead of two cars. He offered to help raise the extra money and, as a result, it now is planned to equip an entire special train with showcases in which will be displayed the most cherished documents of American history. Soldiers will guard the train, just as guards stand watch continually over these documents in the Library of Congress. In addition, as the train arrives at each state border, an extra car will be added displaying the historic documents and civil rights mementoes of the state.

Finally, Clark plans to have large-size duplicates of the freedom documents "blown-up" as permanent exhibits to be left behind in the high schools of each city through which the train passes.

IRON CURTAIN STAYS DOWN
Assistant Secretary of State Bill Benton, who has tried desperately to lift the iron curtain, recently was prevented by the Russians from visiting Moscow.

Benton was scheduled to fly to Moscow with Chester Bowles, his old advertising partner. But the Russians found Benton had only 48 hours in which to make the trip, let him get as far as Berlin, then stalled him for 48 hours, claiming Moscow weather made it impossible for his plane to land.

Finally, Benton went back to Paris, where he checked by coded cable with the American embassy in Moscow, found that the weather in Russia had been perfect during the time he was being barred from the Soviet capital.

Benton, who is in charge of state department information, has tried to beam radio broadcasts into Russia in order to give the Russian people the real truth about the USA. Many Russians don't even know that the American army and navy participated in the war against Japan.

NEW WAGE POLICY

A new policy line in preventing strikes was agreed on at a secret meeting of Secretary of Labor Schwelmbach and his top advisers.

Hereafter, government mediation machinery will swing into action four to five months before union contracts expire in major industries, instead of waiting until union demands and strike threats are in the air.

It is felt that many serious work stoppages can be avoided if union demands are anticipated and negotiations begun well in advance of contract expirations.

First major industry on which the new policy will be tried will be the maritime, which faces another possible work stoppage in June. At that time, union contracts of seamen of the AFL and CIO on the west and east coasts expire.

PROBE MONOPOLY

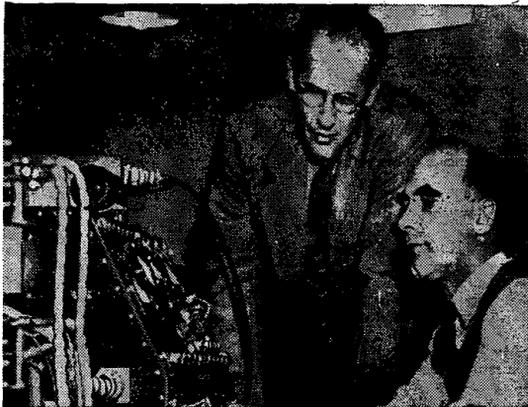

The department of justice is trying to decide whether to bring anti-trust proceedings against American Telephone and Telegraph company for freeing out small competitors. Independent, would-be manufacturers of telephone equipment have little chance to break into the market because of the A. T. & T. policy not only of owning all its own equipment but buying it from its own Western Electric company, a 99 per cent A. T. & T. subsidiary.

CAPITAL CHAFF

The coal strike may seriously affect next year's potato and apple crops, according to the department of agriculture. The trouble is that the shortage of coal tar curtailed supplies of insecticides, which are needed to fight such crop pests as the chinch bug, the European corn borer, the codling moth and the potato bug. James Mead, retiring New York senator, now has the inside track for chairmanship of the Democratic national committee.

NEW INVENTION TALKS BACK . . . Designed by Dr. Donald H. Andrews, professor of chemistry at Johns Hopkins university, a new method of radio reception through superconductivity is shown by Donald (Sandy) Andrews, 5, son of the inventor, who holds the balometer, which is the heart of the new method of radio detection. Using no tubes, antenna, transformers, condensers or even electrical currents, the radio waves can be received and demodulated. Material is Columbian nitride.

DISPLACED JAPANESE . . . Among the war orphans back from Mukden and Hanking, area pictured arriving at Shinagawa station is Ishiko Hosoda, 16, right, carrying the ashes of her mother in a white bag around her neck.

STUDENT MOTHER . . . Carolyn Larid, freshman home economics student at University of New Mexico's home management house, is learning the duties of motherhood. With a look that is both beatific and challenging, the cherub in the bath puts it up to Miss Larid to name the next step in the bathing process. The baby is Patsy, 18 months old, who has not been spoiled despite the fact that the entire class takes turns at being her mother.

ON TOP AGAIN . . . Leon Blum, new premier-president of France, who recently was elected to France's highest office. The 74-year-old Socialist succeeded in forming a cabinet. He is credited with arranging loan to France from U. S.

PILOT HERO . . . Roland J. Brown, Miami, Fla., pilot of DC-4, who was given credit for saving 56 passengers and crew of 7, when his plane collided with another plane over Maryland. He landed safely at Washington's national airport.

MRS. AMERICA . . . Mrs. Fredda Acker, Anderson, S. C., who assumed title of Mrs. America, when the winner wouldn't go on a 20-week tour. She will use $5,000 prize money to build home and endowment for her baby son, John.

JUNIOR GROWERS PREXY . . . Jim Spell, Columbia, Miss., high school senior who has been elected president of the National Junior Vegetable Growers association for 1947. He is shown with some of the vegetables he raised in A & E contest, which brought him first honors and a $500 scholarship.

U. N. Is Offered a Home

New York will fight to hold U. N. if it takes Rockefeller's last nickel. John D. offered an $8,500,000 six-block water-front site to keep the United Nations in the big city. Aladdin has stepped into the picture in U. N.'s housing crisis. The only question is whether there is anybody in the United Nations who can veto a lamp.

From Flushing Meadow to a Rockefeller center in one blueprint is quite a travelogue. One minute U. N. seemed like a forlorn G. I. searching for an unoccupied Quonset. The next minute he was having six blocks of New York's choice real estate handed him on a gold platter. NO cover charge.

If there were long months when Miss United Nations thought New York was cold to her, she now must realize she is being suddenly pursued with $8,500,000 worth of love and six blocks of unmortgaged passion.

Pa Knickerbocker might have let her go to California, but to pass up Gotham for Philadelphia . . . never!

Pa knew that a city that could hold as many five-star attractions as it had always been able to hold would look cheap getting a rejection slip from an organization with a global audience.

The proposed site has many advantages. It is located where the diplomats may see a poorhouse from one window, East Side life from another, the very heart of New York from another and some society residential sectors from another. If the view doesn't give them a democratic intermingling of scenic effects, characters and types of living, nothing will.

The rich, the poor, the middle classes, the "haves and the have nots"; the limousine and the subway sets, the people who have the veto and the people who merely have the corner delicatessen and Grogan's bar . . . they're all visible there on a clear day.

The six-block area now is mostly the habitat of meat packers and slaughterers and is known as the beef zone. There are those who insist U. N. possession won't change that name.

Any day you can stand in this zone and hear the doomed sheep bawling as they are led to slaughter. We commend the sound to some of the more selfish and obstreperous figures in U. N.

Personally we are not too sure about a super peace center in the heart of Manhattan as a brotherly love influence. It seems to us that the world organization needs an atmosphere of calm, leisure and dignity rather than one of speed, traffic jams, general jostling and high-pressure chaos. We would say it would do better with a background less like big business and card-index efficiency and more like Bethlehem and starchy night.

Men engaged in the greatest job of history, the bringing of peace and the brotherhood of man to a blitzed and baffled globe need something more than express elevators, 38 floors of de luxe offices, special lighting, adjacency to the subway and an opportunity to lunch at the Busy Bee cafe between debates.

Still, a home is a home and it's nothing to sneeze at. And as Grant said, "Let us love peace"—every eight million dollars will help.

GOING UP!

The U. N. on a winter's day "Fled the meadow, sweet with hay; So swiftly was the lady's pace She found a home near Beckman place."

The U. N. subcommittee's enthusiasm for the Rockefeller offer of a home is so hilarious that it may be called "Hooray-dio City."

On the other hand if those scraps between United Nations' diplomats keep up, the headquarters may have to be tagged "Sock-A-Feller Center."

MESSAGE FROM

PETTIGREW THE PENGUIN
"Dear sir: when all I hope is that with the united nations functioning in a great skyscraper center the dove of peace doesn't get caught in a revolving door period yours comma pettigrew the penguin."

We assume names for the new U. N. center will be desired, and the first that come to mind include Amity Arms and Concord Towers.

New French Law Hits at Sale of Forged Paintings

To prevent the sale of forged paintings, France now has a law under which an official group of art experts passes on the authenticity of every picture put up at public auction.

Furthermore, the seller usually gives the purchaser a written guarantee that he may return the painting within six months if he doubts its authenticity.

Portland Vase Smashed, Yet Increases in Value

The British Museum in London recently purchased, through a private bequest, the Portland Vase which it has had on loan from the Portland family for 135 years, Collier's reports. Ten inches in height and made of blue glass engraved with white figures, this vase was found in a tomb near Rome in the 16th century.

Moreover, in 1845, a lunatic smashed it into some 250 pieces and, although put together by experts, it has since been imperfect. Yet the vase has increased steadily in value.

The price paid for the vase by the museum was not disclosed. However, in 1929, the owner refused an offer of $148,000 for it.

ET US TELL YOU MORE ABOUT IT

SOME short while back, one of the leaders in college football asked your correspondent to name the 15 leading coaches in the country. The only answer we could think of in a given time limit was this: "The 15 coaches who have the best material."

There is little questioning the fact that for the season of 1946, Red Blaik of Army deserved his award, due largely to the fact that Red and his staff carried Army three years without a defeat.

Time and again we have been asked to rank the coaches in order. This is an impossi- ble job. Look over just a few from the list - Neyland of Tennessee, Blaik of Army, Harlow of Harvard, Little of Columbia, Crisler of Michigan, Thom- as of Alabama, Leahy of Notre Dame, McMillin of Indiana, Neely of Rice, Butts of Georgia, McKeever of Cornell, Wade of Duke, Snavely of North Carolina, Odell of Yale, Le-Brucherie of U.C.L.A., Bierman of Minnesota—but why keep on? This is only a partial list, where, if given the same material and the same schedules, luck would have to write the story.

I can say this. There is no bunch connected with sport that gives, as much time, thought, worry and complete concentration as football coaches give. They brood by day and night. An ankle, a shoulder, a knee or a back can make all the difference in the world. Those in front figure they must stay there. The losers must win a game or two. There is a big difference in material from time to time but the old grads and the public at large never consid- er this. They look only to the final scores. Such coaches as Red Drew of Mississippi, Red Sanders of Van- derbilt and Paul Bryant of Kentucky may be unknown nationally, but they are as good as the best with what they have.

'A Coaches' Coach'

There may be a better coach than Dick Harlow of Harvard—but who is he? Neyland of Tennessee can keep pace with anyone. Jock Sutherland was the coaches' coach in college until he came over to pro ranks. Spend a few days with Steve Owen and Greasy Neale, in or out of season, and you get part of the answer -fall, winter, spring and summer—they're always talking and thinking football, still playing over games they lost.

Lonnie Stagg at 84 was still in harness this last season, reluctant to retire. Lonnie was a star at Yale, 60 years ago. With all the tears they shed and all the moaning they give the world, it is almost impossible to shake them loose without using a grenade.

Your correspondent more than once has ducked the opportunity of picking or trying to pick the 10 best coaches of all time. Looking back to something over 40 years we'd say that four of the best were Pop Warner, Knute Rookne, Hurry-up Yost and Percy Haughton.

Pop Warner gave football more on the technical side than anyone else, including the single and double wing, a system still just as effective as the T.

Colorful Yost

Yost gave football its first flare of coaching color and Michigan its first great college football record—56 victories in five years, blemished only by a tie with Minnesota, before Chicago broke the string in 1905. Knute Rookne brought to football its greatest combination of coaching ability, human interest and personality. Rock, in addition to being a great coach, was also the game's star personal contribution when it came to human contact.

Bob Zuppke of Illinois brought to football coaching the added gifts of philosophy and humor. Zup had more color than two rainbows. One of his best friends was the late Howard Jones of Yale and Southern California. No two men were ever further apart as human beings. But they were fine coaches and close pals.

Haughton of Harvard today is a greatly underrated coach. Cold, hard, austere, he was one of the greatest. A star tactician and technician, Haughton was probably the best of all in discipline. As Tack Hardwick told me once, "If Haughton told Harvard to jump off a 100 foot cliff and he would catch us—we'd all jump. And Percy would catch us."

Character Builders

The thousand, at least a thousand, football coaches we've met and known in the last 40 odd years, have made an almost unbelievable contribution, not only to sport, but also to the good of the nation at large. Not all of them, of course. But the big majority have turned out a great job in the way of training, instruction, discipline and, if you'll pardon the phrase, "character building."

Murder in Plain Sight

by GERALD BROWN W.N.U. FEATURES

Duke McCale, private detective, is engaged by wealthy old Miss Bigelow to find the presents for her niece's wedding. McCale accepts, only because he senses that Miss Bigelow is afraid of something more serious than a possible theft. McCale sets his assistant, Rocky Bjorkland, and his secretary, Ann Marriot, to hunting up back ground data on the members of the families involved in the wedding. Later McCale inspects the rich presents. One is a deed to a modernistic mansion. A tall, beautiful blonde woman playing the piano intrigues his interest. Two other women and a man appear in the room. They are obviously members of the family, appearing aristocratic and self-satisfied.

CHAPTER III

Lost in his reverie of this neo-Grec vision, McCale hardly heard Adelaide Bigelow speak.

"May I present Mr. McCale, Sybil? This is Mrs. Joel Bigelow. The bride's mother." She put her hand on his sleeve. "Mr. McCale's Agency is overseeing—the wedding gifts."

With an effort he brought himself back to the woman who faced him. He was conscious of an impressive bust followed by about a hundred and fifty dollars worth of shaped and girdled figure, expensively trained not to split the seams of a black afternoon dress. She wore far too much gold costume jewelry just below the chin of an Elizabeth Arden face topped by a soignée up hair-do. Her manner was arrogant as she repeated his name in the cool, detached tone she might use to a chauffeur. She acknowledged the introduction, that was all, then moved majestically away, following her bust to a low table in pursuit of a glass of sherry.

A corner of McCale's mind was still at the piano where the white goddess now played something by Gershwin in a real broken beat. He caught an amused glance from Miss Bigelow before she presented him to the couple sitting on the sofa.

"Victoria Bigelow," murmured Miss Adelaide, "and Stephen—the bride's sister and brother."

The girl looked a little old around the eyes, a little hard around the mouth. She was, somehow, like a drawing in the slightly degenerate, macabre style of Beardsley—all black and white, with finely drawn eyebrows and smudged lashes. There was something viperish in the way she held her pointed chin. Her body, sheathed in a dress styled for someone far beyond her age, seemed too assured, too relaxed, too willing.

It was easy to see that Stephen Bigelow was Victoria's brother. He had the same hard finish, the white skin, the narrow face. In twenty years, he would be lantern-jawed and hollow-eyed. Already there was a crease of cruelty around his uneasy mouth. From the way he attacked his highball, McCale suspected his petulance was partly the effect of a speedily evanescent liquor. He wolfed his drink while nodding to McCale, but his eyes were fixed on the woman at the piano.

Lovely Veronica Seems Nervous

"Mrs. Stephen Bigelow," said Miss Adelaide, and left McCale looking down at a polite Garbo-ish mask, a slow smile, and slender, cigarette-stained fingers picking out a lush tone. Yet that sensual undercurrent that might have been purely chemical, or even glandular, was there. He felt it as he knew Stephen, the woman's husband, felt it. He sensed that slavery there must be in loving a woman like this, could see that part of Stephen's restlessness was a sickness, and that he was living on the cocaine of her magic.

She didn't resent his standing there as she played. She didn't speak or smile or make any effort to put him at his ease. She knew he was dazzled, not quite sure of himself, but it didn't even seem to amuse her. Breaking off in the middle of a run and without speaking, she reached for a coffee cup at the far end of the keyboard.

Karen had seated herself beside her husband, and, joined by Sybil, the small group was carrying on a desultory conversation about the rehearsal, the bridesmaids, and the ushers. It was the usual half-catty post-mortem.

"She's very beautiful, isn't she?" said Miss Bigelow, catching McCale again with his eyes on Karen.

"Mm," McCale grunted, smiling. "Is she always like this?"

"A Nordic princess?" Miss Adelaide smiled, slight distaste curling the corners of her mouth. "I... I'm afraid not."

"Ah. The descriptive Swedish blank."

"Just so."

"She's very talented."

"Yes, indeed."

Miss Bigelow was making him feel like Paul Pry. Why had she been giving him the impression, in the last few minutes, that Karen was worth watching then? He changed the subject.

"Will you want me to have my man on duty tonight?" He watched her closely. All the tightness came back into her eyes.

"I—I don't know."

Suddenly he was like a man waiting in a dentist's office, wanting to start something, go irrefere and get it over with. He started to talk, almost blurted out, "You're in trouble, Miss Bigelow. You need help. You do. You came to me this morning with it written all over your face. You're afraid of something—something that has nothing to do with wedding gifts." He made a gesture as if he were waving them away. "You are afraid. I know."

"I suppose you do." But though her hand trembled, her eyes were vacant.

"Tell me what it is. Give me your confidence. If you want my help, I must have it. What do you fear? Who is making you afraid?"

"Now I've done it," he cursed to himself, for she threw him a sharp, half-angry glance, and got up. He stumbled to his feet, blind with anger at himself, but she was smiling at two people who were entering the room.

The girl was, all gold. Her skin tones were coffee and cream, in the liquid sense of a Laocencian portrait. She was not beautiful, but her face had a depth and a glow that was curiously warming. That was it. She was warm and golden, and you knew at once that she was intelligent and nice, as well as decorative. Her hair was long, naturally curly, and of a burnished bronze color. Her head was set on a perfectly proportioned body. Dressed as she was in shades of beige and brown, simply and in beautiful taste, she was at once quietly charming, assured, thoroughbred.

"Veronica—dear," Miss Bigelow touched her, kissed her. There was in her voice a note of passionate concern, of pride—of relief.

Adelaide Bigelow introduced the golden girl in the doorway to McCale and he was surprised at the creature's throaty, mellow voice. It lacked the superficiality of the debutante drawl. But wasn't there something a trifle nervy, a bit disquieting, about the edges of that voice? There was.

She pecked at her aunt, smiled at McCale, made a few quick, nervous laughing jibes at her family, and said in that modulated, too-well controlled tone, "Anything new come? Present, I mean. Anything exciting?"

Miss Adelaide turned abruptly as she was about to introduce McCale to the young man who had come in with her. She made a futile gesture as if to ward the girl off, but Veronica was out of the room before the movement was even completed.

McCale found himself hanging in the air, so to speak, pumping the hand of a man whose name he hadn't heard.

The Conquering Hero Comes

"Storm, Christopher Storm," the young man said. "You're Duke McCale and I've heard of you."

McCale stifled the impulse to say "Shush." He said, "Well, and let go the hand of this big fellow who had designed and built a house called 'The Nest.'"

Christopher Storm was tall and lean and athletic. His face missed being handsome by way of a rather square jaw and a generous mouth. He had candid blue eyes and curly hair of a nondescript shade.

Christopher maneuvered McCale toward the bottled liquids, mixed them both a drink. He motioned to a seat beside himself, saying without preliminary, "Hear about you in that dyehouse racket. Pretty keen deduction. What brings you here?"

"Wedding presents."

"Not really? Didn't know you went in for small stuff."

"I have to make a living. Cases like the dyehouse murders are few and far between."

Storm's blue eyes narrowed. "Well, it just didn't seem to me that the array of bric-a-brac downstairs warranted your special talents."

McCale didn't answer. "Too true, my bright young fellow," he thought, "but if I told you that all day I've been coddling a tingle that now and then raises the hair on my head."

"Who called you in?"

"Family." To himself he continued, "Darn. This fellow is too inquisitive." Suddenly McCale caught a glimpse of something—something ugly behind that half-fellow attitude, that mantle of jauntiness—something he did not like.

"Not Sybil?" Christopher prodded. "Not darling Sybil, surely?"

McCale was saved from making a reply by a peal of light laughter outside the room. A door banged somewhere. There was another ripple of merriment mingled with a deeper one, running feet on the stairs, and Veronica ran into the room, followed by a man.

They might have been preceded by a fanfare of trumpets. Everyone stopped talking; everyone turned toward the door as to a stage. It was as if a spotlight had been turned on, startling the audience to quickening anticipation of the star's entrance. It was sudden and complete. Even McCale was checked in the act of raising his glass to his lips.

Something both electric and animal came into the room with Curt Vallaincourt. Even if there had not been the little piping ecstatic thrill of Sybil's "Curt, dear!"; the quick fire that lighted Victoria's glistening eyes; the husky overtones of Karen saying; "Behold the bridegroom cometh." McCale would have known the identity of this physical rhapsody.

Here was a consciously beautiful young man in a great big way: tall and wide, dark and strong, virile and violent. He had a large, curly black head, dark eyes that held a passionate promise. He was a dynamic person—the kind to whom things were bound to happen.

He acknowledged the introduction to the detective in a deep strong voice, with a handshake that made McCale almost buckle at the knees.

It was three or four minutes before the blitzkrieg of his arrival settled into a steady, slow appreciation of him. McCale himself was rarely impressed by mere sensual attraction and was loath to admit the catalytic effects of it. Here, if ever, was its complete manifestation, however. He backed away toward the piano, the better to take the scene apart. As unobtrusively as possible, he let his dark hard stare sweep around the circle.

Afterward, he was to come back to that short scene many times, trying to put together the pieces of the riddle as they presented themselves in the next few moments.

More Puzzles Developing

As it was, the things that remained in his mind to puzzle him were these: Conversation became general though the atmosphere still contained a peculiar effluvium of underlying edginess. He noticed that Adelaide Bigelow seemed as overcome by the positively theatrical charm of Curt as the rest, and that even Stephen had pulled out of his alcoholic depression, and was watching Curt with an almost physical worship. Karen glowed, silver and white. Victoria's eyes were slits. Sybil was watchful. Storm was quiet, but appreciative. And Veronica was chatting nervously, the same note of strain in her golden diction. She was like a gilded fragment tossed in a glittering vortex.

It was when Curt said, in that compelling voice of his, "Very magnanimous of you, Chris, to give us 'The Nest,' that a warning signal flashed in McCale's brain. It was spoken with such charming naivete, as if, thought McCale, the one thing he really lacked was manners. He was making a studied conscious effort.

Storm only smiled, steadily. He shrugged, retorting, "Veronica always gets everything she wants."

"Oh, Chris," Veronica put out her hand to him, started to say something, stopped.

Chris turned to her for a brief moment, a blank look coming over his face. There was a lost world in his eyes.

Victoria laughed shrilly. She made a quick nervous gesture, bit her lower lip, and looked a sudden significant, pleading question—to Curt. Curt seemed to square off to her. He shook his head as if he were saying, "No."

Everyone was concentrating upon Storm and Veronica at that moment and McCale thought no one else saw that exchange of glances between those other two. Afterward he was to wonder.

Vallaincourt went over to his future stepmother-in-law, almost as if in apology for neglecting her. She was a little high on too much sherry and was quite crushing to him. In a bad-tempered manner she shook off his attempted coddling. Without her fixed cosmetic smile, her face was an unbecoming mask, her make-up unable to disguise her middle-age. There was a puzzle there in the coolness between Curt and Sybil:

JESUS INTERVIEWED BY NICODEMUS

LESSON TEXT—John 3:1-11, 16, 17. MEMORY SELECTION—Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.—John 3:3.

How does one become a Christian? This was the question of Nicodemus, and it is the question in the hearts and minds of thousands in every generation. The answer is clear and definite.

The only entrance into the Christian life is by the door of the new birth. Regeneration is the act of God whereby the divine nature is imparted to the believing sinner and he becomes the child of God. He who has not entered by this way has not entered at all. He is still dead in trespasses and sins, without God and without hope (Eph. 2:1, 12).

The Pharisees who looked for the coming of the Messiah as a secular conqueror wondered at this new spiritual leader. It was probably as much on their behalf as his own that Nicodemus came to inquire of Jesus. In answering his questions Jesus reveals the necessity, the nature, and the method of regeneration.

I. The New Birth—a Necessity (vv. 1-7).

Our Lord's visitor was a man of distinction and standing in the community, but Jesus was not unduly impressed by the dignity and high station of his visitor, nor by the visitor's courteous acknowledgment of his own position as a great teacher. With decisive boldness Jesus declares that this man, a cultured and distinguished ruler of the Jews, must be born again, if he is to see the kingdom of God.

God is no respecter of persons. The doctor of divinity must be born again just as much as the illiterate fisherman. D. L. Moody once said that he was thankful it was to such a man as Nicodemus that Jesus presented the necessity of the new birth, or men would have said that only the down-and-outer needed to be saved.

Two reasons are given by our Lord for the "must" of verse 7: (1) The Kingdom of God is a spiritual Kingdom and cannot be entered by way of our human nature; and (2) "that" which is born of the flesh is flesh, and is radically and essentially bad. To learn why that is true read Jeremiah 13:23 and Galatians 5:19-21.

Scripture on this point is almost diametrically opposed to much of the teachings in our schools and colleges. But God's Word is right; let us follow it.

II. The New Birth—a Mystery (vv. 8-11).

God has graciously revealed to us "all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of Christ (II Pet. 1:3). But it is true—and we say quite appropriately true—that he has some things hidden in his own blessed counsels. We know the experience of the new birth. We see the blessed results of regeneration. But what actually takes place is a divine mystery, not fathomable by human reason. Those who insist that all spiritual truth be put through the little norm of their intelligence will never understand it or receive its blessing (I Cor. 2:14).

The striking illustration of the life-giving and energizing wind used by our Lord is most illuminating. Wind is unseen, but the results of its movement are evident. Even so the spiritual rebirth of men is an enigma to the worldly man, but even he can see its results in godly living.

We know that regeneration is not only a possibility, but an actuality; a fact; in truth, the greatest of all facts.

III. The New Birth—a Reality (vv. 16, 17).

Just as there was healing and life in a look at the uplifted serpent in the wilderness (Num. 21:8), so there is life for a look at the Crucified One. Faith receives God's perfect provision for sin.

Verse 16 may well be regarded as the greatest sentence in the greatest Book in the world. It presents the whole plan of salvation—its source, its ground, its recipients, its condition, and its result.

This glorious salvation is for all men—"whosoever"—but some reject it. Notice that God does not condemn them. Their own evil works and desires condemn them (vv. 17-20). God in his grace is ready and willing to save, but men love "darkness rather than light," for their works are evil.

Our tender, loving heavenly Father has no desire to condemn anyone. The man or woman who falls under his condemnation of sin does so by choice. God's desire is that all should be saved.

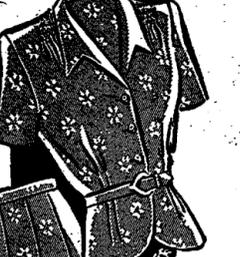

Will you, unbeliever, who reads these lines, respond now to his gracious invitation?

F.B.I. Asks a Count

In Europe the past summer I was made to understand an important fact. Consistently I was informed by labor leaders, government officials, and industrialists in all of the eight countries I visited that the most disturbing element in each nation was the Communist element. In every country the confusion wrought by the Communists was quite disconcerting.

In England, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Belgium, Holland, and Switzerland the Communist element was not large in number. But it was well organized. Apparently the movement was receiving funds from abroad in each country, for a campaign all out of proportion to actual size of the organization was in progress. In France, although the Communist party is not the largest, it has the best organization and is recognized as the strongest single party in France.

How About America?

Confusion, today, is not confined to Europe. In America we have been having a lot of confusion. We are facing the most serious industrial problems in our history. Though the war has been over for 15 months, our industry is still dragging badly. Production, in nearly every field, is disappointing. But an abundant by-product is confusion, and more confusion.

Industry wants to produce, for that is the only way it can make money. Some of our largest manufacturing establishments have actually lost money instead of making money in the past twelve months. Industry is not pleased with this situation, and I cannot believe they are purposely trying to keep it that way. Labor finds it difficult to live on current income. Labor's need is wages, and I cannot believe that labor as a whole wants confusion, work stoppages, and light production.

Does the government want to hinder production? Surely it wants the people to have food, clothing, transportation, and housing. Yet, when we have every reason to believe that labor, industry, and government want production, we are not getting production. Despite the desire of the three groups to avoid confusion, yet we have confusion confounded.

A Growing Menace

J. Edgar Hoover, many years head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a trusted citizen and public servant, is in a position to understand perhaps better than any other person what is happening in America. In a speech on the West Coast, September 30, he decried the growing menace of Communism, declaring that "in the past five years American Communists have made their deepest inroads upon our national rights."

Their false preachments on civil liberty mean that Communists want the right to do as they please. Those who seek to provoke prejudice and stir up the public mind to angry resentment against our form of government are a menace to the very powers of law and order which guarantee and safeguard popular rights. Said Mr. Hoover: "Communism has spread Fascism and Fascism spawns Communism. Both are the antithesis of American belief in liberty and freedom. If people of other countries want Communism, let them have it, but it has no place in America." It is time to stand up and be counted, indeed.

Undulant Socialism

A sick republic, like a human invalid, passes through a crisis in the course of almost any protracted illness. After the crisis, the patient rallies toward recovery or sinks with alarming haste toward the end. Whatever is to be done after a crisis must be accomplished with dispatch, or it is too late. The English government passed through a crisis approximately a year ago.

Since England's current administration proclaimed itself owner and operator of the coal mines, Britain has been viewed popularly as Socialistic—one of the collectivist nations. Not all the individuals in the Empire are socialists. Large elements are not. But this large minority is being forgotten. Curtains are being drawn. The crisis is over and England has gone left.

A Long Time Dead.

There is something strangely final about it when a free people turns its course toward State Socialism. Liberty never comes back without a revolution and then it's not the same. Such is the testimony of recorded history. Industrially, England is a coal country and private enterprise lost its last stronghold on the enchanted island when King Coal surmundered.

Now the ailment that prostrated John Bull has been communicated to Uncle Sam. The symptoms are unmistakable as undulant fever; wave upon wave of collectivist power, with a show of growing intensity. Our government has taken over our coal mines from their owners because of work stoppages through strikes—strikes by the best paid group of mine workers on earth.

Here's the Pattern

I think perhaps the workers ought to have had an increase in pay, which they no doubt could have obtained without striking. Nevertheless, they struck and government took over the business long enough, at least, to close a new contract giving an increase of $1.85 a ton per man and a royalty of 5c a ton on coal to give their union a "welfare" fund. The new "welfare" fund has no relation to the union's sick and accident fund, already large.

The new contract will raise the price of coal 25c to 30c a ton and build up the "welfare" fund at the rate of 25 million dollars a year. The Senate has approved the executive department's right to impose this contract on the mine owners when they take their property back. This is an attack of the undulant socialism.

Government can now control the cost of coal to the owner of a mine. By fixing labor's wage, a ruler can make coal production cost whatever suits his fancy. Government already controls the price of coal to the consumer through the workings of the OPA. The neck of the coal industry is in a legal nut-cracker and government has the power to choke it to death at will—that, or take it over entirely.

With the sanction of Congress, which I hope never comes, federal officials can do to any industry what they are doing to coal. Each assault on freedom will be one more attack of the dread disease, undulant socialism. It works like the fever which, scientific men say, can be cured in rare instances if vigorous treatment is begun in the early stages.

NEWS OF LONG AGO.

(Davie Record, Jan. 23, 1924.)

Cotton is 32 cents.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Woodruff, on Friday, a son.

Mesdames O. R. Allen and J. A. Daniel spent Thursday in Winston-Salem shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Ward visited relatives at Farmington over the week-end.

E. M. and James Hobson, of Silver Street, S. C., were in town Friday on business.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Baker, of near Cana, on Wednesday, Jan. 16th, a daughter.

Misses Helen Winecoff and Regina Horn spent the week-end at Statesville with relatives.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Foster, on Tuesday, Jan. 15th, a fine daughter, their first born.

W. L. Felker, of Laurinburg, spent a few days last week with his father, J. R. Felker, on R. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Smith have moved from near Redland to this city, and are occupying rooms at J. N. James'.

Miss Ruth Rodwell returned home Friday from Sanford, where she spent ten days with her sister, Mrs. James Dickerson.

Mrs. Swift Hooper and daughter, Mrs. Roberson Freeman, of Winston-Salem, visited relatives and friends here the past week.

Clarence Grant, of Denton, is at the bedside of his grandfather, R. M. Allen, on R. 1, who is very ill and not expected to recover.

Dr. E. P. Crawford and Z. N. Anderson attended the meeting of the North Carolina Masons at Raleigh the past week.

County agent Geo. Evans has purchased the C. F. Meroney farm near Center, and will move his family some time this week.

C. W. Alexander, of Cooleemee, spent Friday morning in town on business. Mr. Alexander reports things moving along nicely in Davie's largest town. The mill was closed down Friday on account of high water.

J. E. Smith, of Hall's Ferry, was in town Tuesday attending the Co Operative meeting. He told us that a lady living near him had caught this winter 23 rabbits in one trap and was still on the job.

J. W. Felker, of R. 1, purchased from R. B. Sanford a Ford, touring car, 1916 model, on Apr. 5, 1916, with smooth tread Goodyear rubber tires. The left front tire has never been off since it was put on at the factory. The right front tire has been off only twice in eight years to patch two small punctures. Mr. Felker has just returned from a motor trip to Rowan, Cabarrus, Stanley, Montgomery, Moore, Hoke, Robeson, Scotland, Richmond and Anson counties, without a puncture. If you can beat this record let's hear from you.

The State Highway Commission will let the contract on January 31st for the paving on eight miles of Route 65 from the end of the present concrete road four miles north of Mocksville, to the Forsyth county line at the Hall's Ferry bridge. The grading and draining on this project was awarded to J. F. Mullican last fall and is already under way. When this section of road is completed it will mean that Winston-Salem will be a suburb of Mocksville, with less than an hour's drive between the two best towns in the old North State. The distance is 26 miles.

The Unknown Genius

Rev. Walter E. Isenhour, Hiddenite, N. C.

A genius eked his life away
And never proved his worth,
Who could have sent a golden ray
Of light across the earth

To bless and cheer the lives of men
And help them find their place,
If he had used his tongue or pen
To tell of God's rich grace.

He let life's precious years go by,
Beset with golden weeks,
Which could have lifted him quite high

Where fame and honor speaks,
And tells what God can do for those

Who live to do His will,
Like patriarchs and saints who chose
Their rightful place to fill

His life was lived on planes quite low
Because he left God out,
And chose the way the sinful go
Who never turn about,

Nor face the better way of life
That leads to heaven's goal,
Where all great souls are free from strife

While endless ages roll,
He could have mastered some great heart,
Thus blessing humankind;

Whereas, he lived and passed away
A genius never known,
Whose life is but a blank today,
For which he can't atone.

O careless man, give God your time,
Your talent and your all,
And then reach out for heights sublime

Like useful men and tall,
Who tower up above the mass
Of those who have no aim,
Who gain no greatness as they pass

No honor and no fame!

Wants No Politics In Congress

Washington—Chairman Reece of the Republican National Committee says Republicans in Congress should concentrate on doing a "workmanlike job" free of presidential policies.

Simultaneously the Democratic National Committee issued a statement declaring that if there is "any deliberate attempt to sabotage" President Truman's legislative program, "we of Democratic national headquarters will see to it that the responsibility is placed where it belongs."

In a "First Things First" editorial in The Republican News, national committee organ, Reece remarked:

"Every practical student of Government realizes that it is all too easy to use the Congress of the United States as a sounding board for presidential aspirants."

At least six Republican Senators—Taft and Crier (Ohio), Vandenberg (Mich.) Lodge and Saltonstall (Mass.) and Martin (Pa.)—and three present or former Governors—Dewey, Warren and Stassen—have been mentioned as potential G. O. P. standard bearers in 1948.

Reece said the first job confronting his party now is the enactment of a "positive legislative program to clean up the mess inherited from 14 years of Democratic confusion and misrule and to set the nation high on the road to prosperity."

"The second job . . . is the setting of the stage for the election of a Republican President in 1948," he wrote, adding:

"Both of these jobs are important, but it would be unfortunate for the country and the party if the two became confused. That is to say that the party's legislative program, which is the responsibility of the new Congress, should not be complicated by any pre-1948 maneuvering on the part of potential presidential candidates or friends of such candidates."

The G. O. P. chairman said "it is both likely and proper that the verdict of the people in 1948 will be influenced substantially by the record of the Republican party in Congress during the intervening months."

"If the party does a good job in the 80th Congress, the election of a Republican President would seem to be inevitable."

The Small Newspaper In Defense of Merchants

"Small dailies and weeklies face more serious threats to their existence than ever before," says Senator Murray of Montana, chairman of the special Senate committee of small business enterprises.

"They are caught right now in a terrible squeeze. Their costs are steadily rising, but they cannot expand their advertising or circulation because they don't have the newsprint for it."

The committee which Senator Murray heads is scheduled to open hearings in Washington on the problems faced by the small independent newspaper.

The purpose is to determine if anything needs to be done—and if so, what—to "preserve the vitality of the small newspapers." Senator Murray says that the actual contents of the papers will not be considered.

Maybe the Small Business Committee would do well to consider the experience of the British newspapers during the war. Newsprint was so scarce in Great Britain that most of the great British dailies published only four pages. A few printed fewer copies so as to have more pages per copy.

Forced to pick and choose, the British editors usually cut out such types of news as society, fashions and even sports, and maintained their editorial and "opinion" columns. Remember, this was Britain, not the United States. Advertising, of course, was sharply curtailed. Yet readership demand continued high, and the British press as a whole, according to reliable reports, managed to keep red ink off its wartime balance sheets.—Winston-Salem Journal.

Forced to pick and choose, the British editors usually cut out such types of news as society, fashions and even sports, and maintained their editorial and "opinion" columns. Remember, this was Britain, not the United States. Advertising, of course, was sharply curtailed. Yet readership demand continued high, and the British press as a whole, according to reliable reports, managed to keep red ink off its wartime balance sheets.—Winston-Salem Journal.

BIG FARMS VS. SMALL FARMS

WASHINGTON. — Inside fact behind the senate small business committee's release of the report on small-scale and large-scale farming is that the report had been suppressed for nearly two years by big California land interests.

The very fact that the bureau of agricultural economics dared make the study was one reason the last congress cut its research funds. The study so infuriated Representative Al Elliott, California Democrat and friend of the big farmers, that he has fought all appropriations for farm research ever since.

The study was begun in the summer of 1944, while Congressman Elliott was leading a fight to repeal the old law by which no one could own more than 160 acres of U. S. reclamation land. The study compared two towns in San Joaquin valley section of California's huge Central valley—one, Arvin, is composed mainly of workers on large industrialized farms; the other, Dinuba, is made up largely of people who own and work their own farms.

It was found that Dinuba, the small farm community, had two independent business establishments to every one in Arvin, the big farm community; that retail trade was 61 per cent greater in Dinuba; that 20 per cent more people were supported by the same dollar volume in agriculture in Dinuba than in Arvin; that the residents of Dinuba had a far higher standard of living—better streets, garbage disposal, schools, parks, public recreation, more churches, participation in local government, two newspapers to one.

The study was recognized by economists as of great importance, but the pressure of large farmers and landholders was too great. It lay buried until it was brought to the attention of fair-minded Sen. Jim Murray of Montana, chairman of the small business committee. He determined to publish it.

SURPLUS GRAVY

The comedy of errors that led to discovery of more than two million gallons of high octane gasoline in surplus military planes sold to a Jefferson City, Mo., scrap dealer caused an epidemic of red faces at War Assets administration.

However, WAA chief Gen. Robert Littlejohn and his aides would have been even more embarrassed had the whole story leaked out. Besides, the 5,549 planes with their $100,000 worth of gas sold to the Missouri dealer, WAA also sold about 15,000 other planes, also tanked up with high octane gas. This fact, however, didn't get out. In addition, dealers who bought the planes reaped a tidy windfall from costly radio equipment, motors and gears.

OIL SALESMAN LEWIS

In the coal and oil trade, John L. Lewis is sometimes called: "The greatest oil salesman in history." Here is the reason why:

Railroad after railroad, unable to afford costly tie-ups from coal strikes, now is converting from coal to oil. There was a day when the railroads, deriving a tremendous revenue from hauling coal, sided with the coal operators and the miners in opposing oil. But not now.

The Boston and Maine, which next to the Maine Central, pays more per ton for coal than any other railroad, is switching to diesel engines as quickly as possible. The Jersey Central, which taps the Pennsylvania anthracite fields, also is going over to diesels. And the Pennsylvania, which runs straight through the best bituminous coal fields in the East, is laying in some diesel switch engines.

But the most interesting conversions are taking place on the Union Pacific. That road has long burned oil to some extent, but it also has begun to be the sixth largest coal producer in the world, with a production of 6,500,000 tons annually.

The towns of Rock Springs and Hanna, Wyo., are almost entirely dependent on coal mined for the Union Pacific. Today, however, these towns may become like the skeleton mining cities of the gold-rush days.

For, in addition to 600 oil-burning locomotives, the Union Pacific now is converting all mainline passenger trains to oil. In addition, their "Big Boy" freight locomotives, the world's heaviest, are converting, together with 115 switchers and 45 diesel units.

The Santa Fe also has just ordered new diesel units.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

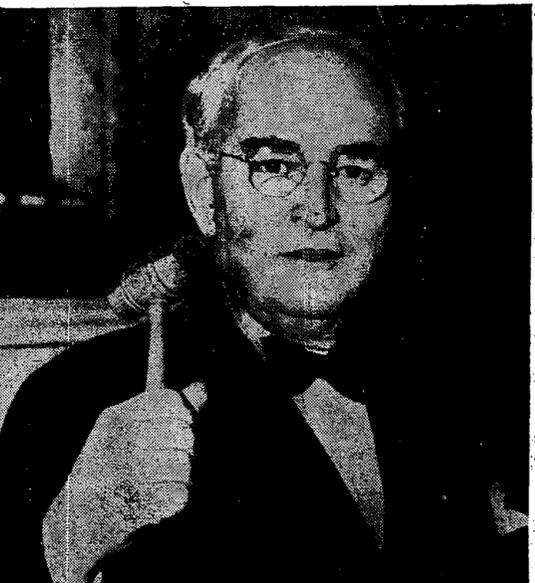

Gen. Mark W. Clark will be withdrawn as Allied commander in Austria immediately after the Moscow conference. He then will receive a new army post in the United States. . . . Ex-congressman Wesley Disney of Oklahoma, who lost out in the Democratic primary two years ago against Sen. "Cotton Elmer" Thomas, will try again in two years. He may face a primary fight from Gov. Bob Kerr. . . . Assistant Postmaster General Gael Sullivan has been offered the presidency of Air Cargo.

LEARN SHOOTING IS OVER . . . Pvt. Louis Novelli, left, Mecanagua, Pa., and T/Sgt. Charles Cahill, Rufford, Me., both wheel chair patients at Halloran general hospital, Staten Island, N. Y., read about President Truman's proclamation declaring cessation of hostilities of World War II, as of noon, December 31. Nurse Veronica Saladigo looks on as wounded vets read about the order which immediately wiped off the statute books 18 emergency laws.

G.O.P. SENATE 'BRASS' . . . Republican leaders taking over legislative responsibility in the 80th congress. The senators believed that they settled all their arguments before the session opened January 3. Left to right are Sen. Homer Ferguson, Mich.; Sen. Wallace H. White Jr., Maine; Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, Iowa; Sen. Robert A. Taft, Ohio; Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, Mich.; Sen. Wayland Brooks, Ill., and Sen. Eugene D. Millikin, Colo.

SENATE PRESIDENT PRO TEM . . . Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), who has been chosen president pro tempore of the senate. Senator Vandenberg recently announced his withdrawal from the United Nation's delegation to devote full time to senate duties. He has been put forward as a possible presidential candidate for 1948.

BOY COMPOSER HAILED . . . George Wel, who developed his musical talent in a Japanese concentration camp, is shown playing his own composition, "Victory Day," as his sister, Madeleine, looks on.

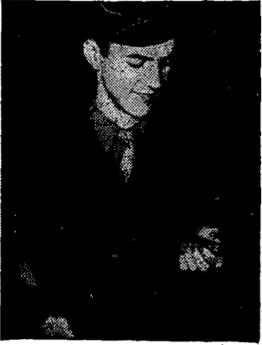

FIRST PAIR OF SHOES . . . Werfel, aged six, of the orphanage of Am Himmel, Vienna, shows his unbounded joy at the new shoes given him by the American Red Cross. Without the Red Cross help Austrian children would have faced a bitter winter.

LEADING ROOKIE . . . Del Emis, Philadelphia outfielder, who was chosen the leading rookie of 1946. He has made a New Year's resolution to obtain a batting average of .350 for 1947—and to play the season without an error.

TANGERINE QUEEN . . . Dorothy Sparkman, 22, Pasco City, Fla., who was crowned "Tangerine Queen" at Cypress Gardens, Fla. The crown was awarded by John Powers, model agency head. More than 600 gathered for the big Florida event.

MISSIS WEDDING . . . Pvt. James L. Hill, 18, Robinson, Ill., forced to stand guard at Hamilton Field, Calif., missed out on his wedding, but faked gun battle with six mythical bandits who he said attempted to rob air base office.

GOODLEE HEADS RFC . . . John D. Goodlee, Richmond, Ky., general counsel of RFC, who succeeded George E. Allen, as director of Reconstruction Finance corporation. Goodlee joined the RFC as executive assistant in 1941.

The Once Over

H.I. Phillips

A Review of 1946

Looking back over 1946, it was a year you wouldn't believe if you had seen it in the movies. President Truman went down in a submarine, the general public went up in a free balloon and John L. Lewis at last got into a battle in which he didn't get at least a tie. It was a great year for Ingrid Bergman, the St. Louis Cards, the Republican party and Assault.

United Nations started the year in the Bronx with a cafeteria lunch and finished on Manhattan island with $8,500,000 in choice real estate, thus nosing out Leo Durocher, "The Egg and I," and the Elliott Roosevelt for profitable seasons. Navy almost beat Army, Henry Wallace picked one of the easiest of those sixty million jobs, Abie's Irish Rose at last got into pictures.

Joe Louis, Styrimie and Yale had good years in the world of sports and the international high jump was won by Bernard Baruch, who went from a park bench to the rarefied atmosphere of the atomic bomb from a sitting start. . . . Frankie Sinatra gave his bobby soxers back to the Indians.

Ted Williams, Billy Conn, Chester Bowles, Harold Ickes, Bilbo and the Boston Red Sox had a bad 12th-month. The Normandie, OPA, the New Deal and Joe Stalin's recollection of what he promised at Yalta were junked away all but $11.35 worth of all the $28,390,167,879,456.25 merchandise produced in America since V Day. The horse meat from the country made good in the hamburgers of the city. General Electric announced a not too satisfactory year, but found a way to produce snow artificially and promised a liberal allowance on old snowflakes.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt went so far left of center that she fell asleep and collided with another automobile on the Sawmill river highway. A stone to mark the spot where she once slept was duly erected. This seemed quite a reflection on the Roosevelt up to the time two passenger airplanes bound in the same direction collided over Maryland.

There were strikes all over America, with the newsreel cameramen getting some of their best all-time battle shots. An unknown better tore up a $2,100 daily double ticket at Garden State. The oldest living Elk died in 37 states. Russel Crouse of the theatrical firm of Lindsey and Crouse was injured badly when a day's receipts fell on him. Ex-Mayor LaGuardia of New York was extricated from UNRRA before starting another global war. The Democrats lost an election in large numbers. Thirty-five million and six hundred and seventy-eight thousand Americans bought an egg, presented a dollar bill, got two cents in change and asked "I wonder if there is any danger of inflation?"

The year closed on a touching note. Fiorella LaGuardia opened a Sunday program with a tender testimonial to the Christmas spirit of goodwill to all men and exclaimed: "Oh, how wonderful it would be if we could adhere to the love-neighborhood precept all the year around." He then attacked newspapers, real estate owners, congress, the state legislature, a firm of architects and divers others as "thieves," "crooks," "big bums," "corrupt cowards," "hoologans," "mutts," "tin horns," "punks" and all around polecats.

Russia now is bringing cars off its production line pretty fast. There is no question over there as to which gets slowed down first, the production line or the fellow who tries to stick a monkey wrench into the mechanism.

Change Garden Spot
Many farm gardeners need to change the position of the garden spot. Soil wears out in garden spots just as anywhere else. Trees that were small enough not to have harmed grandmother's garden may have grown so much and their shade spread so far that they are robbing your garden of moisture if you happen to be still using the same land that grandmother did.

The editor of the Renfro Herald, Yadkinville, announces that in the future his paper will not accept wine and beer advertising. Congratulations. The world is getting better.

This country has been under the leadership of the New Deal for the past 14 years. Give them credit for raising the cost of living, creating the OPA and putting this country in debt to the tune of nearly three hundred billion dollars.

The Coolemees Journal came out in an enlarged form and a new dress to start the New Year. The appearance of the paper is greatly improved, and the editor, Mrs. J. C. Sell is to be congratulated on the neat appearance of The Journal.

Harold Stassen says he is a candidate for president on the Republican ticket in 1948. Senator Vandenberg says he is not a candidate. The Record is still backing Gov. Tom Dewey. A man who can carry New York State by nearly a million majority has something to brag about.

When Christ was on earth nearly two thousand years ago he went about doing good. He went into the synagogues and expounded the Scriptures, he healed the sick and fed the hungry. He attended one marriage in Galilee by turning the water into wine. But you don't read in Holy Writ where he ever attended a card party or visited a dance hall.

W. R. Taylor

William Ross Taylor, 78, of Advance, died at his home Saturday after an illness of several months. Mr. Taylor was born January 20, 1868 in Davie County in Davie County, son of John and Minerva Howard Taylor.

He is survived by his wife; three brothers, Rev. S. W. Taylor of Asheboro, J. H. Taylor of Maxton, C. J. Taylor of Advance; one sister, Miss Sallie Taylor of Asheboro. Funeral was held at 2-p. m., Monday at Advance Methodist Church with Rev. Howard Jordan pastor officiating. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Farm News

Farmers in Davie County who are interested in applying for New-Grower Tobacco allotments must file an application before February 1, 1947, according to J. N. Smoot, Chairman of the PMA Committee. The following conditions must be met:

1 Applicant must live on the farm and depend on it for a living.
2 Applicant must have had at least two years experience in the past five years.

3 Applicant must not own or operate any other farm on which any kind of tobacco is produced.

4 The farm must not have had an allotment in the past five years.

Farmers are urged to turn in their soil building practices that were carried out on their farm in 1946, and sign their application for payment. If a producer is to receive payment on these practices he must file a report before February 15, 1947.

How We Stand

A preacher asked us a few days ago how we stood on the liquor store question? For the past 40 years we have worked for prohibition week in and week out. The Record is opposed to opening liquor stores in Davie or any other county in North Carolina. The people of this state voted dry by an overwhelming majority in 1908, and would do so again if given the opportunity. Governor Cherry forgot to say anything about a referendum on the liquor question in his message to the legislature.

Some of our folks put up the argument that if Davie had liquor stores the bootleggers and bootleggers would be forced out of business. Durham, Wake, New Hanover and about 23 other counties have liquor stores, but the bootleggers are still doing business in these wet counties. Many of our young people would buy liquor from a liquor store who would not go to the trouble to hunt up a bootlegger. Drunkenness would increase with liquor easy to get. The object in opening liquor stores is to increase the sale of intoxicants. The more liquor sold by A.B.C. Stores the more revenue. We would advise our good citizens to read their Bibles and consult their pastors before signing a petition to open liquor stores, or before they vote to legalize the sale of liquor in Davie County.

The Record is the only paper in Davie County that doesn't carry wine and beer advertising. We try to practice what we preach.

Bill Fuller, after spending several days with Herbert Eidson, on R. 2, returned to his home in the Keystone State Wednesday.

John Henry Seats

John Henry Seats, 80, died at his home in the Farmington community on Jan. 12th. Mr. Seats spent most of his long life in the Farmington section. He was a Mason and member of the Junior Order.

The funeral was held last Tuesday at 2:30 p. m., at the Farmington Methodist Church, with Revs. J. S. Folger and H. C. Freeman officiating, and the body laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Surviving are two sons, Burton and R. H. Seats, of Farmington; one daughter, Mrs. W. S. Spillman, of Mocksville, R. 2; 13 grandchildren, six great-grandchildren and four brothers.

In the death of Mr. Seats Davie County loses one of her best beloved citizens. His death has cast a gloom over the entire community where he spent a long and useful life. To the bereaved family The Record extends sincere sympathy in this sad hour.

Letter From Texas

Lyford, Texas, Jan. 12, 1947.
Mr. Frank Stroud,

Dear Brother and Friend—I am inclosing $2 cash for my subscription to The Record. I have been in care of two doctors for some time, and not able to do anything. I will go on the operating table Jan. 24th, at 11 o'clock for my second operation. I am hoping to get through all right. I will soon be 81 years old. If I live and am able to travel, I will come to North Carolina in July. A long and happy life to you. Your friend,
CHAS. L. WOOCYN.

NEWS AROUND TOWN.

Clyde Foster, of Statesville, was in town Thursday on business.

I. D. Owens, of Harmony, R. 1, was in town one day last week on business.

George R. Hendricks spent one day last week in Winston-Salem on business.

R. B. Sanford and R. M. Holt-houser spent Friday in Charlotte on business.

Mrs. C. W. Young, Sr., of Fort Collins, Colo., is the guest of her son, Dr. C. W. Young and Mrs. Young, on Salisbury street.

C. J. Angell spent a week at Duke Hospital, Durham, recently, taking treatment for his leg. He is confined to his home most of the time.

Attorney A. T. Grant returned home last week from Davis Hospital, Statesville, where he spent ten days taking treatment. He is much improved, his friends will be glad to learn.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Aldridge and daughter, Mary Lou, of South Fort Smith, Ark., spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McKnight, Advance, R. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grubbs, who have had room's with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Waters, in North Mocksville, have moved into the Joe Forest Stroud house, on Salisbury street, which was recently built.

Chas. J. Hepler, of Knoxville, Tenn., is spending two weeks at Smith Grove. Mr. Hepler is building a new five room-house on his farm which he purchased from I. W. Sheek some time ago.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Shank, who moved here recently from Atlanta, have purchased the Nail brick dwelling house in North Mocksville. Mr. and Mrs. Shank are living with Mrs. Shank's parents. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Daniel until they can get possession of the house.

Sheriff Paul Foster and family who have been living in Farmington township, have rented apartments in the Dryden house, on Wilkesboro street, and will move to town this week. The Record is glad to welcome these good people to the best little town in the world.

Arthur Smith and his Cracker-Jacks, of Charlotte, will be at the court house Thursday night, Jan. 23rd. They are being sponsored by the Junior Class of Mocksville High School to raise funds to finance the Junior-Senior banquet. Help the young people by attending this show.

H. L. Mooney, of Occoquan, Va., Mrs. Weston W. Valentine, of Chevy Chase, Md., and Mrs. W. C. Perkinson, of Chase City, Va., were in town last Tuesday on their way home from Davidson, where they went to attend the funeral of Robdrt Mooney, an uncle of H. L. Mooney and Mrs. Weston Valentine. Mr. Mooney was a brother of the late C. B. Mooney, of this city, and assisted in the erection of our high school building 24 years ago.

R. G. Dyson, of Saco, Montana, arrived here last Tuesday, and will spend the remainder of the winter in Davie. Mr. Dyson is looking after the estate of the late J. S. Frost. Mr. Dyson reports mighty cold weather in Montana, with a low reading of 28 degrees below zero in December. We don't blame Mr. Dyson for heading for Davie County. He left here some 32 years ago for the wild and woolly west. This is his third visit back to the old home county.

Dr. and Mrs. R. P. Anderson left Friday for their winter home at Ft. Myers, Fla. They will be away until April.

Miss Christine Hendricks, a student at W. C. U. N. C., Greensboro, spent the week-end in town with her parents.

All sportsmen in Davie County who are interested in game and fish, please meet at court house Saturday evening, Jan. 25th, at 7 o'clock. A. E. Hendrix, Chm.

Miss Hoots Honored

Miss Inez Naylor entertained at a linen shower at her home on Wilkesboro street Thursday evening, honoring Miss Kathleen Hoots, whose marriage to Clifford Reavis will be solemnized Saturday, Jan. 25th. The guest of honor was presented a beautiful corsage. During the evening, games and contests were enjoyed, Neva Markham and Jessie Libby Stroud winning prizes which they presented to the honor guest. Delicious refreshments were served to about 35 guests. The bride-elect received many lovely and useful gifts.

Poole-Steele

Miss Hazel Poole and Mr. James Hugh Steele were united in marriage Sunday, January 12th, in North Augusta, Ga.

Mrs. Steele is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Poole, R. 2, Harmony, N. C. She is a graduate from Harmony High School, and for the past two years has been employed in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Steele is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Steele, of R. 2, Cleveland, N. C. He is a graduate of Cleveland High School. He served 22 months in the United States Navy, with 10 months overseas duty. He is now in business with his father.

The bride wore a dress of baby blue crepe with navy accessories and a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom. For travel she changed to a suit of brown wool gaberdine.

The young couple will make their home with the groom's parents.

Notice Of Dissolution

Nine Injured In Wreck

A Parkway bus, driven by J. E. Tutterow, of this city, and a Coble Dairy milk truck driven by a Lexington man, crashed about one mile south of Jerusalem shortly after dark Friday evening. It is said the truck had broken down and was standing on the highway, when the bus, which was said to be meeting another truck, ran into the rear end of the milk truck, knocking it off a fill. Nine persons were injured, but none serious. The injured were carried to a Salisbury hospital for treatment. Sheriff Foster and Patrolman Green investigated the accident.

A town survey is being made by Surveyor Lee Bowles and Hugh Lagle, preparatory to number the houses in our fair city. With the streets named and the houses numbered, the wayfaring man, though a fool, could find the person he is looking for.

Veterans' Organizations Mighty Pressure Groups

VETERANS of Uncle Sam's military establishment are receiving benefits at the rate of $15,376,174,665 for the fiscal years 1946 and 1947, and what's more they can get whatever they want for the next fiscal year from this new 80th congress.

One out of every four adult Americans is a veteran, distributed in the same ratio throughout every congressional district in the country, so veterans and veterans' organizations constitute the top pressure groups in the country. They have a long legislative program mapped out for this congress. Main features of this program, which are likely to receive favorable consideration, include repeal of the on-the-job training pay ceiling and the time limit, cash terminal leave payments, increase in pensions and subsistence allowances and liberalization of government insurance policies.

Then there are such matters as housing, universal military training, liberalization of reemployment rights and other subjects of particular interest to veterans. The 79th congress, during its two-year session, passed most veterans' legislation on voice vote, the members not bothering with a roll call, except on measures where they wanted to get on record as having favored a specific proposal.

Closest record vote on a piece of veterans' legislation in the 79th congress was 225 to 39 in the house on a bill to give priorities to Veterans' administration for hospital equipment. In two years the senate of the 79th congress took only one record vote on a matter of sole concern to veterans, the measure introduced by Sen. Joseph Ball (Rep., Minn.) to subtract mustering-out pay from terminal leave payments. It was rousingly defeated by a vote of 67 to 12.

Bigger, Better Benefits

Most items in the legislative programs of the four top veterans' organizations call for increasing benefits to be paid to members. Most fertile fields for this increase in cash benefits lie in pension and subsistence allowances, in changing technical definitions through which pension rates are set, or in reclassifying disability ratings. American Legion will push a measure to give an education allowance of $50 a month to orphans over 16, of veterans of the first and second world wars who died as a result of war service. VFW proposes that World War I veterans have the same pension rights as Civil and Spanish-American war veterans, who are presumed to be totally disabled at 65, thereby giving them full pensions. AMVETS wants a 15 per cent increase in subsistence allowances to veterans going to school under the G.I. bill and a measure which would pay disability compensation on the basis of cost of living.

All four organizations, Legion, VFW, AMVETS and AVC, are for taking the ceiling off on-the-job pay payments; three of the four—Legion, AMVETS and VFW—want cash terminal leave payments; Legion and VFW want universal military training, while AVC is against it and AMVETS has taken no stand.

All four organizations want increases in pensions and subsistence; three—Legion, AMVETS and AVC—want insurance liberalization, while VFW has taken no stand.

Want Leave Pay in Cash

These organizations have set up definite legislative committees and have registered lobbyists on the job and will spend money for the espousal of their cause. The records show, for instance, American Legion spent $49,000 for lobbying activities from January 1 to September 30, 1946, although Veterans of Foreign Wars had spent nothing, and the other two organizations had not yet filed their expenses as this survey was made.

Appropriations for the 1947 fiscal year for pensions was $1,905,000,000 and for 1946 it was $1,080,150,000. G.I. bill benefits which include subsistence and other benefits, exclusive of unemployment compensation, totaled $3,491,387,000 for 1947 and $795,000,000 for the 1946 fiscal year. Terminal leave pay appropriation for 1947 was $2,431,708,000. This was to be issued in five-year bonds. Now the veterans want their terminal leave in cash, and they likely will get it.

So in all probability the expenditures for our war veterans will take a decided hike for the 1948 fiscal year in the face of a promise and an expressed determination by the new Republican leadership to slash the cost of government. Congressman Dwight L. Rogers of Florida told our Home Town Reporter that he had reserved House Bill No. 2 at the coming session, so the second bill to be introduced into the house will be Congressman Rogers' bill to provide that terminal leave bonds may be cashed immediately by veterans if they so desire.

RECORD crowds set new marks at the turnstiles last season in practically every sport. But what has become of the color that the games once knew? There is probably, or possibly, greater skill and ability around than sport ever has known. But it is quite possible that the big gates and the bigger pay, for pros and college alike, have throttled a vital quality of competition. I think it has. The pay check now dominates the scene.

You might ask me just what color is. Here's one answer—Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Bobby Jones, Bill Tilden, Man o'War, Tommy Hitchcock, Earl Sande, Dizzy Dean (in capital letters), Walter Hagen, Exterminator, Knute Rockne, (also in capital letters), George Gipp, Harry W. Yost, Bob Zuppke, Pepper Martin and Frank Frisch. Each one of these was a champion, but something more than a champion. For each one had a crowd appeal that is sadly lacking today.

For example, Leo Durocher of the Dodgers has drawn more comment than any five managers. Leo is a great manager. But a large flock of this publicity has come from details far apart from baseball. Ted Williams drew more words, favorable and unfavorable, than any other ball player last year. So Ted must have had a type of color. They at least knew he was around, liking him or hating him.

Joe Louis has the color of ring perfection—one of the greatest fighters of all time. But outside of this Joe is an extremely quiet fellow who doesn't like the great bright spotlight.

Closest record vote on a piece of veterans' legislation in the 79th congress was 225 to 39 in the house on a bill to give priorities to Veterans' administration for hospital equipment. In two years the senate of the 79th congress took only one record vote on a matter of sole concern to veterans, the measure introduced by Sen. Joseph Ball (Rep., Minn.) to subtract mustering-out pay from terminal leave payments. It was rousingly defeated by a vote of 67 to 12.

'Just Business Men'

In Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson, golf has two of the greatest; golfers the ancient Scottish game has ever sent to the fairways. But who could say they were in the same class with Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen or Gene Sarazen for crowd appeal? They are two prominent business men who can break 70, collect their dough and move along.

Stan Musial, one of the nicest people you ever met, a great ball player, the top of the year, isn't colorful in any sense of the word. Stan is just a great ball player. He wants to be nothing else. Neither is Eddie Dyer, an able manager and a great fellow. Sport today has become big business. There is plenty in the way of sport left, but with the billions, not the millions, involved, a lot of color has seeped out.

I was talking about this color angle with Frank Frisch, the New Rochelle flower expert.

"Just what is color?" I asked Frisch, as Johnny Kieran cocked an attentive ear, a Kieran habit when any information is coming along.

"The basis of all color," Frisch said, "is always ability first. No punks get by. Many have tried to use color, or so-called color, in the place of ability. It won't work. Color means Dempsey, Jones, Hitchcock, Grange, etc., all stars. Color is also a natural quality. It can't be faked. Two of the most colorful ball players of all time were Babe Ruth and Dizzy Dean. They were naturals. They always were exactly what they were. Human and likable, but great artists. But they were real—not phonies. How that mob can spot a phony."

All four organizations want increases in pensions and subsistence; three—Legion, AMVETS and AVC—want insurance liberalization, while VFW has taken no stand.

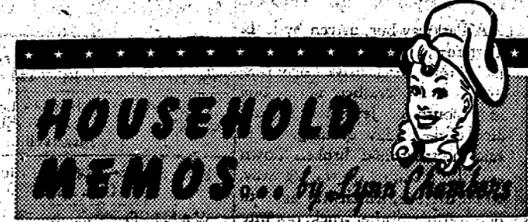

Game's the Thing Now

"The game doesn't need color today," Frisch said. "You can start a dog fight between two terriers and draw 10,000 people. Ball clubs that were far down in the second division drew from 800,000 to 1,000,000. Football games that meant nothing except another football game were sellouts. Today it is the spectacle, the contest, that fills a stadium or a park, not any outstanding star. It's the game, the show today, not an individual star."

This is all true. It all may be for the general good of sport. After all, only the game counts. But despite this any writer hanging around for human copy misses Hagen, Waddell, Yost, Zuppke and many others who had a certain human appeal that so few have today. Sport competitors are serious people working at a big job now. Most of them have outstanding ability. But with too many it is more big business than sport. The pressure is heavy. The big idea is winning.

Today we have only a few left—and I can't even remember their names. Joe Louis? The top champion of them all—who limits his publicity to ring efficiency. In baseball we have Ted Williams—who is still a big story when he hops. Stan Musial, the best ball player in the game today, is just the best ball player. He has no interest in any outside headlines. Football coaches—able business men with a big job to do. No particular color. No Rockne, no Zuppke, no Yost. It may be better this way.

But it's duller.

Serve Waffles for Any Occasion!
(See recipes below)

Versatile Waffles

One of our simpler foods, the waffle, can be served in an amazing variety of ways. Add a few variations to the original waffle recipe and you have a wonderful new breakfast treat or Sunday night supper special. Instead of a sance, serve it with fresh or stewed fruit or a fluffy whipped cream, and you have an extra-delicious dessert. Or, if you prefer, top it with creamed chicken, ham a la king, and presto! There's your luncheon dish all ready.

Waffles are hearty fare, and that's pleasing to those of you homemakers who have trouble giving the family enough nourishment on nippy days. Let them fill up on waffles in all their variety, and the whole family will be pleased as punch.

You won't be able to run through all these different suggestions I'm giving for waffles immediately, so clip the ideas and save them. They're wonderful to have on hand for the different occasions I've just mentioned, and your menus—whether for snack or breakfast—will never fall into doldrums.

Peanut butter waffles are tasty and have a softer crust than the ordinary waffle. They're breakfast fare, but may be served for a light supper with soup 'n' salad.

Peanut Butter Waffles.
(Makes 7 waffles)

- 6 tablespoons peanut butter
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/2 cups bottled milk
- 1/4 cup flour
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Cream peanut butter and fat together. Add beaten eggs and blend well. Add milk, sift flour, measure and mix again with sugar, baking powder and salt. Add milk mixture to dry ingredients. Mix until smooth. Pour onto hot waffle iron and bake 3 to 5 minutes. A good basic waffle recipe may be varied in countless ways. The mixing is easy, and need take but a few minutes.

Plain Waffles.
(Makes 6 waffles)

- 1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/4 cups milk
- 6 tablespoons melted butter or fat

Sift together dry ingredients. Beat eggs with an egg beater until light. Add milk and butter. Add this to sifted dry ingredients, and beat until smooth. Bake on waffle iron according to manufacturer's directions.

Cheese Waffles.
Add 1 cup grated cheddar cheese to above recipe with melted fat.

LYNN SAYS:
Don't Forget Salads During Winter

Green vegetable salads gain distinction when you add a few savory herbs to them. Sprinkle such seasonings as chervil, thyme, basil, tarragon and dill on the salads before serving, and watch appetites perk up.

Salads should never be placed on the table until you are ready to eat them. They lose freshness and crispness rapidly in a warm room.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENUS

- Ham a la King on Waffles
- Green Peas with Mushrooms
- Molded Carrot Salad
- Beverage
- Baked Apples

Chocolate Waffles: Add 2 squares of chocolate, melted, add 1/2 cup of sugar and 1 teaspoon of vanilla to batter. Serve with whipped cream for dessert.

Rice Waffles: Reduce flour to 1/2 cups, and add 1 cup of cold cooked rice to batter with the melted butter.

If your family is fond of waffles, then they're bound to like raised waffles for a change:

Raised Waffles.
(Makes 9 to 12)

- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 1/2 cups scalded milk
- 1/2 yeast cake dissolved in 1/4 cup lukewarm water
- 2 cups flour
- 2 egg yolks
- 2 egg whites

Add sugar, salt and butter to milk. When lukewarm, add dissolved yeast cake and flour. Beat well. Let rise overnight (make evening before if you want waffles for breakfast). Add well-beaten egg yolks, then stiffly beaten whites. Bake in waffle iron.

Now, here's a grand variety of sauces that may be used with waffles for different occasions. These, of course, may be made up ahead to save time before serving, and kept stored in jars under refrigeration.

Ice Cream Sauce.
(Serves 10 to 12)

- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1 egg
- 1/4 cup granulated sugar
- 1/4 cup melted butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat egg until light, add to sugar and beat well. Fold in melted butter and mix well. Fold in whipped cream and vanilla, then place mixture in refrigerator tray to chill.

Hot Fudge Sauce.
(Makes 1 1/2 cups)

- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 1/2 cups corn syrup
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Cook chocolate and water over direct heat for 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, add corn syrup. Simmer for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add vanilla.

Butterscotch Sauce.
(Makes 1 pint)

- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup corn syrup
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1/2 pint thin cream

Cook until a soft ball forms when tested in cold water. Remove from fire and serve hot or cold. Thin with cream, if desired.

Fish, meats and vegetables will be more palatable if they are marinated before being tossed with the other salad makings. Frequently two dressings may be combined to give extra sparkle to salads. Use french dressing mixed with mayonnaise or sour cream dressing, for example.

If you want to dress up vegetables and meat or fish salads, use corn curls, black olives, green stuffed olives, roquefort cheese, stuffed cherry hearts, potato chips and pickled fennel.

To cook macaroni or spaghetti without constant watching or stirring, place it in a colander and then lower the colander into a kettle of salted, boiling water.

Flavor for the soup. Put onion and spices into tea ball holder that may easily be lifted out when the broth is full-flavored.

When ironing clothes, place several drops of cologne on your ironing board cover. Then as you iron, the cologne aroma will be absorbed by hankies and blouses.

Oatmeal cooked with molasses in the water makes a tasty cereal rich in iron and saves sugar.

To perk up frayed blankets, why not rip off the old binding? Buy several yards of sprigged sateen ribbon that costs but a few cents at the dime store. Choose it in a contrasting color and stitch it on to give your blankets new life.

Splices lose strength rapidly in a paper container, so empty promptly into a small glass jar. Use a screw top jar.

This Home-Mixed Syrup Relieves Coughs Quickly

Needs No Cooking—Saves Money.
The surprise of your life is waiting for you, in your own kitchen, when it comes to the relief of coughs due to colds. In just a moment, you can mix a cough syrup that gives you about 4 times as much for your money, and is surprising for quick results. Make a syrup by stirring 3 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey instead of sugar syrup. Then put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (obtained from any drugist) into a pint bottle. Fill up with your syrup, and you have a full pint of really wonderful cough medicine. It never spoils, lasts a long time, and children love it. This home mixture takes right hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing. Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for quick action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Land of Vikings

Norway is one of the delightful little countries of Europe. About the size of two of our average states, her population is only three million—half that of New York City. A parliament is elected by direct vote of the people every four years, and it constitutes the real authority of the nation. They have a King, who reigns but does not rule. Next to the King, the speaker of the parliament is the highest official in the country. The fairhaired Norwegians are a strong, sturdy people, whose chief quality is individualism.

Communism invaded Norway at the end of World War I. A "labor" party was created by the Communists, but eventually most of its members went over to the "Socialist Democrats," now the leading party controlling more than half the 150 seats in parliament. The extent to which Marxian philosophies have been made into harmful practice is evident when one examines the present state of Norwegian industry. It is apparent that the early Communist influence did not just disappear in an assimilation into the leading labor party, but remains like a hungry dog, strayed from Russia, and is now eyeing the prosperous merchant fleet of Norway.

Equalization

The greatest private industry Norway has ever developed is her merchant marine that sails the seven seas, all out of proportion to the size of the country. This shipping industry has been the chief source of revenue for balancing the national budget and for obtaining essential foreign credit. It remains the backbone of Norwegian finance.

Present policies of the Socialist government, in an attempt to equalize everything for everybody, are seriously threatening this important industry. This is the pattern: It took 4,600,000 government dollars to subsidize the distribution of milk last year, therefore to meet the cost of this subsidy a 4,600,000 dollar tax was placed on the shipping industry because it had experienced a good year and appeared able to pay.

Killing the Goose

A reliable Norwegian informant told this story. The merchant marine lost many ships during the war, and although they were insured by Lloyd's of London it was impossible to transfer the money to Norway while the country was in the grip of the Germans. Accordingly, the funds were held as credit in London.

The present Socialist government now looks anxiously over the books of the shipping companies. If they conclude that a lost ship had quite paid for itself, they tax the company 85% of the face of the insurance policy. This extremely high tax on the shipping industry, plus virtual confiscation of insurance premiums on lost ships, threatens to reduce the industry to the detriment of the entire nation.

This is a fine example of killing the goose to get more eggs immediately, but the production of golden eggs in the future is definitely threatened. I cannot help feeling that the source of this sort of thing in Norway was the stray dog influence of Communism. I found it the distinct opinion of those who have done most to create the wealth of Norway that the greatest present threat to progress now is monopoly and regimentation.

Vital Economy

Hearing that it would not be necessary for anybody to pay any federal taxes for a period of 12 months would have been good news to a lot of people any year for two decades before World War II. It would have occupied acres of front-page space in metropolitan papers, utilized hours of radio time and consumed gallons of red ink. It might have started a buying boom.

The money people used to put out in federal taxes was staggering (then) although the amount seems small in contrast to what they have been paying lately and probably will keep paying for several years. Just the same, pre-war taxes were big money and, even now, would be worth saving. That's exactly the point I want to make in this department today: It can be saved.

Over Twice Enough

Civilian employees of the United States government today number approximately 2,800,000 when 1,250,000 would be plenty. Even this low figure is about twice what we had six months after World War I. In short, government has 1,550,000 unnecessary hirelings now—more people than live in The Bronx, in Los Angeles or in St. Louis plus all of its suburbs. It is humiliating to think about.

All of this enormous host of people are eating out of the public breadbasket. They are not to be thought about as if they had private wealth and had retired to pursue some impractical hobby. Such people as that do, at least, distribute wealth previously put away. The people I am talking about are dead-weight on the rest of us. They subsist on federal tax revenue.

Five Million Grand

Since their average annual income is about $2,400 each, they are costing the taxpayers of the United States every year the staggering sum of $3,720,000,000 in salaries alone. Everybody who hires salaried people knows well that salaries are not all the expense they incur. They all have to be provided more or less space, lighted, heated and equipped.

Add to these items such matters as traveling expenses, telephone calls and incidentals and the grand annual expense, as a result of having these people employed, will swell to five billion dollars at least. If such people could be lifted off the public's neck, the money could be saved and the public would surely feel the relief.

Plus Social Gains

Such shortening of payrolls would be completely justified by savings alone but there are plenty of other benefits. (1) It would help to balance the federal budget, and if it is not balanced the country will eventually go broke. (2) It would help curb the trend toward bureaucracy, toward centralization of power and toward government by whim instead of deliberate government by law. (3) Not the least of blessings to follow laying off these people would be releasing more than one and a half million persons for productive work, letting them create something instead of living off the efforts of others. (4) Finally, it would increase the hope of saving for future generations the finest civilization the world has ever known. I submit unto you it ought to be done.

NEWS OF LONG AGO.

(Davie Record, Jan. 30, 1924.)

Lint cotton is 3 1/2 cents. Charlie Allen, of Cleveland, was in town Monday shaking hands with old friends.

H. M. Harris is erecting a nice house at Foster's X Roads, near Coolemece, which he will occupy when completed.

W. T. Starrette, of Winston-Salem, was among those who came over for the big white way celebration Saturday evening.

Ben Y. Boyles, of Mocksville, and Miss Fay Smith, of Redland, were married on Saturday, Jan. 19th. They went to South Carolina for the ceremony.

Mrs. R. P. Anderson returned last week from Atlanta, where she attended the marriage of her cousin, J. Hewell Seas, to Miss Henrietta Davis. While there she attended a number of social functions given in honor of the bride.

C. E. Deal and Miss May Swicegood, both of Hickory, were married in that city on Jan. 20th. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Swicegood, of Jerusalem township, and has many friends in this county who will be interested in this announcement.

L. S. Boger has purchased a big farm near Crewe, Va., and will move his family from this city to their new home next month. Mr. Boger will sell his household effects and a Ford touring car at auction before moving.

Mrs. E. H. Hauser, of State Center, Iowa, writes us that for nine days the thermometer has been below zero and that the coldest day this year had registered 26 degrees below zero. Why live in such a climate when North Carolina is still on the map.

Mrs. R. W. Kurfees, of near Coolemece Junction, celebrated her 70th birthday last Tuesday. Among those present for the occasion were Rev. Jim Green and daughter, and Mrs. Frank Stroud, of Mocksville. A bounteous dinner was served the guests and the day was enjoyed by all present.

Aaron James has begun the erection of a nice cottage opposite the ball park on Wilkesboro St. About ten new houses have been erected on this street in the past few months.

According to reports from Raleigh, Davie county has 1,347 automobiles. Granville county has the smallest number of cars, only 82, while Guilford heads the list with 13,790. Total number cars in the state was 248,297.

Mrs. Mary Ann Wilkerson died Wednesday night at the home of her son-in-law, J. N. Smoot, in Clarksville township, following a stroke of paralysis, aged 81 years. The funeral and burial services were held at Bear Creek Church Thursday afternoon, conducted by Rev. W. B. Waff. Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. John N. Smoot, Mrs. S. H. Carter, and Mrs. Craulie Gaither, all of Davie county, and one son, R. A. Wilkerson, of LaGrand, Oregon.

Robt. M. Allen, 81, died at his home near Jerich Friday, following an illness of eight years. The funeral services were conducted at the home by Rev. Jim Green at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, after which the body was laid to rest in Beryl's Chapel cemetery. Mr. Allen is survived by one son and four daughters. His wife died about two years ago.

A LOT OF LIVING

Rev. Walter E. Isonhour, Hiddenite, N. C.

A lot of self-control,
To have a conscience bright and clear

And keep a godly soul,
As day by day we live this life
Upon a fallen earth,
Amid the sinfulness and strife
That never made for worth.

It takes a lot of faith and prayer,
A lot of love and grace,
Along with patience that is rare
If we would fill a place.

As men and women of the past
Who lived for God and right,
Whose usefulness will ever last
To bless the world with light.

It takes a lot of giving, too,
Of all we have that's good,
If we would even help a few
Within our neighborhood

To live for God in faith and love,
With high and noble aim,
And reach that blessed home above
From when our Saviour came.

It takes a lot of holy grit
To stand against the throng,
And never bow nor yield a bit
To anything that's wrong;
But God can give us what we need
To make us brave and true,
If we will often pray and plead
For strength to take us through.

Lewis Demurs

John L. Lewis, blaming conviction for contempt of court of the United Mine Workers and himself on "public hysteria," has asked the Supreme Court to set aside Judge T. Alan Goldsborough's verdict and cancel the fines of three and one half million dollars against the unions and $10,000 against himself.

Lewis denies the government's right to obtain a restraining order to prevent miners from walking out of government-operated pits, and it is now up to the Supreme court to say whether the government of the United States has the right to step in and prevent a national disaster, and to protect the people, their health and well-being, against the willful dictates of any one man.

If the strike resulted in public hysteria, which it denied here it was lighted and fanned by Lewis himself. Calmly announcing that his contract with the government was a scrap of paper he could tear up at will, Lewis called out his miners in the dead of winter at a time when coal supplies were dangerously short. Half the country's trains stopped running, 9 schools were closing down, huge factories ceased operations, people were cold and miserable and many were facing jobless, payless holiday season.

But there was no noticeable hysteria. There was deep resentment because one man should be allowed to cause so much suffering and inconvenience. The dissatisfaction even reached into the rank and file of the strikers' miners, for when Lewis called off his strike a noticeable back-to-work movement was well under way. The miners showed more sense than their leader.

It is hoped that the new Congress will see to it that such a situation can never arise again. In the meantime the Supreme Court must decide whether any special interest, whether it goes under the labor or capital, can set itself above the public weal.—Stateville Daily.

Democrat Praises Republican Lawmakers.

Washington.—Republicans had their 1948 presidential problems solved—and by a Democrat at that. Rep. Gene Cox, Democrat of Georgia, told the House that the Republicans should nominate Speaker Joe Martin as their candidate for President.

Cox started off by saying he wanted to talk about Republicans. Republicans immediately braced themselves, but they needn't have.

For Cox began with: "Ever since the election, Republicans have been as nearly perfect as it is possible for human beings to be."

And how did Cox describe the Republicans?

"Fallen adversary" is Cox's nickname for Democrats.

Looking at the Republicans, what did Cox find?

"No arrogance, no boasting, ever willing to serve for the best interests of our country. Their only desire is to serve to the best of their ability."

In fact, said Cox, looking around at his Democratic colleagues, the Republican attitude might well be imitated in the future by other parties.

And then he came to the point. "If the fates decree that this country must have a Republican President, the Republicans need look no further than the membership of this House," Cox cried.

"I hope their eyes will turn to the very able and very popular occupant of the Chair, Speaker Joe Martin."

The very able and very popular occupant of the chair got red in the face at the nomination from an unexpected source. He started pounding away with his gavel.

All the Republicans stood up and cheered. Some of the Democrats stood up and cheered.

Martin finally got order restored. But for some time he looked a little flustered and strange, wearing that Democratic halo.

Sugar Investigation

Republican leaders are said to be planning an investigation into the Administration's handling of the sugar situation. There have been serious charges of mismanagement of sugar production and distribution resulting in artificial shortages which could easily have been avoided with better planning.

During the war, it is said, the government limited sugar production in Cuba and left some cane wholly unharvested, and sugar acreage was diverted to other crops in the face of a critical world shortage of the commodity. Administration leaders are reported to admit "errors in judgment," which is small consolation for housekeepers who for many years have been forced to pinch along on scanty supplies.

The result may be that instead of the five pounds per person increase already promised for 1947, individuals will get ten pounds more than in 1946, with correspondingly larger allotments to industrial users.—Exchange.

A Durham housewife is perplexed and nettled over the soap situation. She says:

"I saved grease all during the war because the Government said it needed the stuff to make bullets . . . then after the war I kept turning in waste fats because the Government said it was needed to make soap . . . now when I go to the store to get my favorite brand of soap they tell me there is a shortage of soap. And, when I do find the kind of soap I want the grocerman tells me that I can have but two cakes and that it will cost me 15 cents a cake. Wonder wonder what's going on in this country now?"

And a Durham merchant says to the 'ady:

How do I know why soap is so high And that grease saving campaign has given me a lot of headaches. The customers brought in the fats in all kinds of containers and I had to melt the stuff and pour it in a large can which I had to pay for myself. Then I couldn't get anybody to come and get the cans. They piled up on me. Soon they filled my ice box and I had no room for my merchandise, I took the fats out of the ice box and then the stuff started smelling. I don't mind telling you I finally paid some fellows to move the stuff away from my store. The customers were complaining of the odors and I was afraid I could not get a Grade A rating for my market if I didn't move it out. Not only that but I lost the few cents I paid the customers who turned in the grease. Now I get criticized for selling soap at a price that certainly too high. But look what it costs me. Here is the invoice."

A good question. And a good reply. But it was no answer.

For this one cannot blame the merchant. He is in the same position as most of us. We all have ready replies but no answers.

To the Durham lady's waste fat-scarce soap question we would like to add:

And, oh yes, black pepper?—Winston-Salem Journal.

Republicans At White House

Washington.—President Truman made a new gesture of friendly cooperation toward the Republican majority in Congress today when he let it be known that Republican leaders in the House and Senate will be welcome guests at the White House.

Mr. Truman's decision was announced by Democratic minority leader Sam Rayburn, former speaker of Representatives. Rayburn said Mr. Truman has decided to invite both Republican and Democratic Congressional leaders to the White House for frequent consultations. No date has been set for the first Bi-Partisan Conference Rayburn added.

Last year, the President had regular Monday morning talks with the Democratic leaders of the House and Senate, but this time he's trying a new approach. The idea, said Rayburn, is to get the Republicans up to the White House every time some legislative matter comes up that has a chance of Bi-Partisan backing.

Lincoln Day Dinners Seen Along Main Street

By The Street Rambler.

Prospective bride looking at third fingers, left hand—McKnight brothers visiting sheriff's office—Gossip Club members meeting in dime store discussing many divorces and courting among those not yet divorced—Miss Danny Bailey hurrying up Main street on windy afternoon—Mrs. Lester Martin doing afternoon shopping—Wade Dyson leaving town with new Maytag washing machine in auto—Miss Ann Martin advertising coming attraction—Roy Collette climbing out of barber chair—B. C. Brock leaving town—Man looking for highway patrolman—Dick Brenegar on his way to supper—Miss Daisy Mae Irvin looking over hand full of mail—Wade Wyatt changing auto tire—Policeman on street corner watching the world go by—Tom Caudell walking up Main street talking with friend.

Lincoln Day rallies in February promise to add up to the greatest celebration in the history of the Republican Party.

Tribute to the first and greatest Republican President will be spoken in an atmosphere of a nationwide victory celebration over the elections of 1946, but with the whole traditional foregather g dedicated toward the mobilization of political forces for 1948.

For the past several weeks, Ben Whitehurst, director of the National Committee's Speakers Bureau has received requests for Party orators from all parts of the country. Indications are that Lincoln Day dinners are being scheduled in every State on a scale never attempted before.

National Chairman Reece has written each State chairman urging that as many Lincoln affairs as possible be set up—at least one in every Congressional district, and where practicable, in each county. He is especially anxious that local leaders and workers in the precinct be included and honored.

Most celebrations will take the form of dinners or dances, and will occur at the convenience of the community during the week including Lincoln Day, Wednesday, Feb. 26th. Letters and telegrams from State and Congressional leaders strongly indicate this day will begin the drive to win the Presidency.

The "Congressional dinner" plan is gaining wide favor, Whitehurst reports. Affording a reunion for those associated in the recent campaign and an honor for their candidate, these dinners are being arranged through the sale of tickets to two or three workers in each precinct. In larger areas, the same system is used on a county wide basis.

More Sugar Is Sought By Measures

Washington.—A handful of House Republicans opened a drive to put more sugar on the dinner table—either through bigger rations or by scrapping all price and ration controls.

Chairman August H. Andresen (R-Minn) of the new G. O. P. Food Investigating Subcommittee, demanded in a floor speech that the Agriculture Department give the housewife "a little consideration" and double the current basic sugar ration from 15 to 30 pounds per person a year.

He also demanded a supplemental allowance of 10 pounds per person for canning purposes and said the Department should boost allocations to candy manufacturers, soft-drink makers and other industrial users from 60 to 75 or 80 percent of the amount used in 1947.

Representative Chester E. Merrow (R-NH) went several steps further. He introduced a bill to scrap price and rationing controls and to prohibit all sugar exports until domestic demands are met.

Mandate To Congress

In the days following the abrupt termination of the coal strike, practically every newspaper and columnist in the country had something to say about that struggle. There was unprecedented unanimity of opinion that the coal miners' arrogant, public-be-damned leadership had been roundly defeated, and that Congress must take immediate action to curb labor excesses.

This point of view was shared by papers of all political and economic views, published in every section of the nation. The Chicago Tribune said, "The people expect their new Congress to write new labor laws." The Kansas City Times said, "This nation cannot trust its security to domineering individuals. . . ." The New Orleans Times-Picayune said, "Public necessity requires there must be no recurrence of strikes against the nation's safety. . . ." The New York Herald Tribune said, "Revision of the Wagner Act is indicated, also legislation to make unions amenable within reason to the antitrust laws and subject to suit as legal entities for breach of contract." The extreme left-wing New York Daily Worker urged miners to "take hold of their union and reinstate a democratic control in it."

SHIFT OF COMMANDERS

WASHINGTON.—Inside fact about the shift of U. S. commanders in Germany is that the stage was set for the change shortly after Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay visited the National Association of Manufacturers in New York.

Shortly before that, the senate war investigating committee's chief counsel, George Meader, had come back from Germany with a preliminary report highly critical of what went on in the U. S. occupation zone.

General Clay, then in the United States, was upset by this report and talked to Secretary of State Byrnes about resigning. He felt that Gen. Joseph McNarney, top commander of U. S. troops in Germany, was the man really responsible, although he, Clay, as head of the military government for Germany, got the blame.

On top of the unfavorable Meader report, General Clay addressed a meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers and afterwards sat down at an off-the-record meeting of NAM leaders including some of the top moguls of American industry. Their solution for the future of Germany was simple. They told Clay that they should be permitted to get in touch with their opposite numbers in German industry—the big industrialists who helped build up Hitler's war machine.

It allowed to do business with the German cartels, the U. S. industrialists told Clay, they would have Germany back on its feet in no time.

This shocked General Clay. He said he would retire from the army immediately if any such deal was carried out. He warned that the German people did not believe in or understand free enterprise and that Germany could only continue under strong government controls.

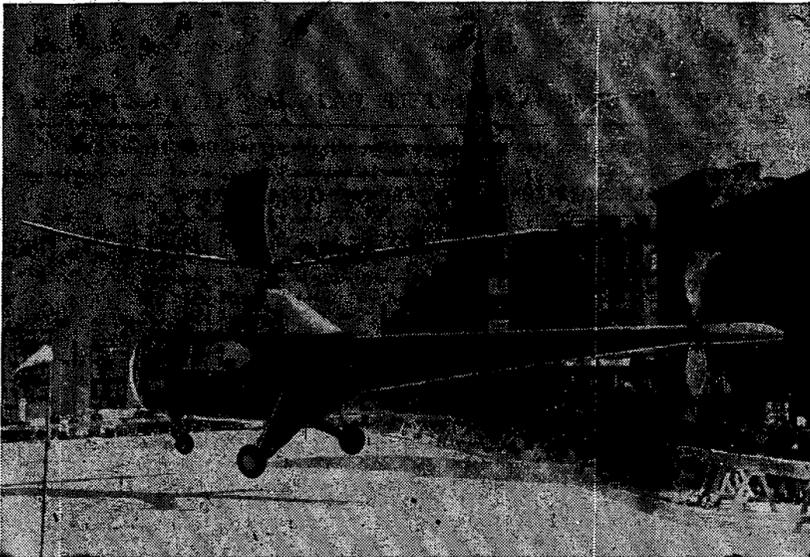

CAPITAL CHAFF

The RFC apparently thinks that the Germans are a better risk than veterans' housing. It will advance about 3 billion dollars to rebuild Germany during the next three years, but was afraid of losing money on Wilson Wyatt's prefabricated housing for veterans. . . . Wyatt, ex-mayor of Louisville, passed out golden keys to the city of Louisville to guests he invited to a farewell party. . . . No wonder John L. Lewis' hard luck for labor. He's the "13th" vice president of the A. F. of L.

AIRLINE DYNAMITE

The dynamite now exploding inside Trans World Airlines between Jack Frye, its president, and Howard Hughes, its chief stockholder, has caused members of the civil aeronautics board to begin some careful probing of the aviation industry. Their probe indicates that things aren't going anywhere nearly as well as the airline ballyhoo indicates.

Among other things, six companies operated in the red during the first nine months of 1946—TWA, Colonial, Chicago and Southern, Northeastern, Pennsylvania-Central and Western.

QUICK MAIL SERVICE BY HELICOPTER . . . Helicopter mail service on an experimental basis is started in Brooklyn as the postoffice department supervises the landing of this helicopter mail service plane called "Hat" in an empty lot. The helicopter came from LaGuardia field, shortcutting the usual mail routes and shearing many hours from previous mail delivery times. Future plans of the postoffice department call for extensive development and use of helicopter mail service.

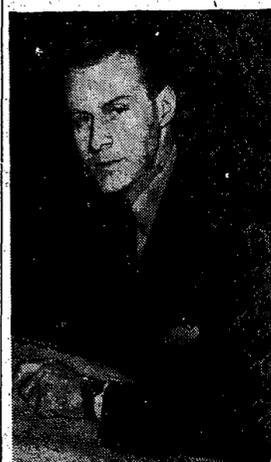

REBUILDING GOETHE'S BIRTHPLACE . . . Bombs are no respecters of shrines any more than they are of people, and one of the historic victims of the Allies' bombs was the birthplace of Johann Wolfgang Goethe, Germany's foremost poet and philosopher, at Frankfurt on the Main. Photos show the shrine before the bombs fell, and the present condition of Goethe's birthplace as work is being started to rebuild this historical landmark.

YOUNGEST PRODIGY . . . Doris Webster, 6, Fredericksburg, Va., recently gave an amazing performance of Mozart's Concerto in A Major in Washington. There is nothing "prima donna" about her. She regards her genius at the piano in about the same manner as she would superiority at ticktacktoe. She skips rope, plays with dolls and makes errors in arithmetic—and gets her face dirty—a normal girl in every way.

NEW SECRETARY OF STATE . . . Following the resignation of James F. Byrnes, 68, as secretary of state, President Truman nominated General of the Army George C. Marshall, 67, as his successor. General Marshall was born at Uniontown, Pa., and was graduated from Virginia Military Institute, where he won fame as a football tackle. General Marshall became chief of staff September 1, 1939.

PACIFIC ON RAFT . . . Thor Heyerdahl, 32, leader of six young Norwegian scientists who plan to drift 4,000 miles on a balsa raft from Peru to Polynesia to prove theory that the natives of Polynesian islands came there 1,500 years ago from Peru. They may be gone four months.

WEDS G.I. . . . Isabel Mary Butwell, 15, Reading, England, who came to the U. S., with parents' approval, to wed ex-sergeant, Paul Sinclair, 22, Youngstown, Ohio. They met when Isabel was 13.

IN FULL PRODUCTION FOR QUIZ PROGRAMS

"How now?" we asked the Man Who Built a Better Mousetrap. "What's the situation?" "Everything's going good," he replied. "We're in full production."

"Stuff getting through to the American homes at last, eh?" we said. "Oh, no," said the Man Who Built a Better Mousetrap. "Nothing's getting through to the American home. Nothing at all."

"Where is the stuff going?" we asked. "Radio programs," said the M. W. B. A. B. M. "We're just like most industries, we don't expect to get much through to the customers for a couple of years. The radio programs take—everything we can turn out."

"Don't tell me that mousetraps, too, are among the prizes on radio programs?" "Why not? The radio people don't tell the winners they're mousetraps necessarily. They say they're a new ash tray imported from France, or a newly air purifier or an electric lighter or Swiss hook ends. Of course, if a master of ceremonies on a radio program sees a contestant who doesn't look very bright he may admit it's just a mousetrap but tells the radio audience it can be applied to a stiff shoulder as a poultice."

"The quiz program has been a great thing for industry," we suggested. "In the old days a slump could not be cushioned by merely getting a lot of people into a studio and seeing if they knew the name of the bridge Steve Brodie jumped from."

"It must have been tough," sighed the Mousetrap Builder. "Fancy being in the manufacturing business and not being able to supply prizes for the Queen For a Day program!"

"One thing is not clear," we said. "Isn't there a terrific public demand for most everything manufacturers produce today?" "Oh yes."

"Then, why do the manufacturers deluge quiz programs with millions of dollars worth of products hourly?" The Man Who Built a Better Mousetrap regarded us sternly. "So you'd get stuff to the consumer and not to all those people who turn up on radio programs and tell what Washington's first name was!" he said, abruptly leaving us.

Murder in Plain Sight

by GERALD BROWN
W. N. U. FEATURES

Duke McCale, private detective, is guarding the wedding presents at the Bigelow mansion. He senses that old Miss Adelaide Bigelow is afraid of something more serious than theft. He meets the bride and groom-to-be, Veronica and Curt Vallaincourt, and Veronica's mother, Sybil, and her brother and sister, Stephen and Victoria. There is a sinister undercurrent that McCale is quick to catch. He discusses the situation with Ann Marriot, his secretary and fiancée, while they are dining at a fashionable night club. They are impressed by the beauty and charm of the club's featured singer, Shari Lynn. Shari goes to a table and joins a big, handsome man—Curt Vallaincourt!

CHAPTER V

The flash of a million golden sparks went by their table. McCale looked out of the corner of his eyes and saw that a tall woman with hair the color of spun sugar was passing. He recognized her immediately. It was Karen Bigelow. She saw him, but gave no glance of recognition. Her eyes were fixed straight ahead in a cold, hard gaze at the table where Vallaincourt sat with the torch singer. She deliberately walked toward them.

"That your Karen?" Ann whispered.
"Uh-huh."
"Well, I do hope there'll be no trouble."

If there was, it was remarkably well-bred and closely held. Karen reached the table and spoke quickly to Vallaincourt. He looked amazed, shaken. He turned to Shari Lynn once, blindly. But the Lynn girl only sat there, utterly relaxed, her mouth a sulky sneer. Karen took something from her bag and handed it to Shari. She looked once at Curt, a long, searching, smoldering look, and turned away. Vallaincourt made a move to follow her, but Shari caught his hand, drawing him back. He almost stumbled in the alcove.

It was then that McCale, swiveling around to the startled Ann, had his second shock of the evening. Not five tables away, almost hidden in a corner, sat Stephen Bigelow. There was a row of empty glasses in front of him as though he had ordered them all at one time. Yet he did not seem to be drunk. His eyes were sunken in that face so prematurely cadaverous but they glittered with a cold, sardonic amusement that was frightening.

Ann Marriot gripped McCale's hand in an imploring gesture. "Let's get out of here."
"Maybe the fun is only just beginning," he said, rising with alacrity.

On the steps, a slight altercation was taking place. Karen Bigelow, swathed in ochre wool, was trying to restrain a slightly bedraggled, fustily dressed woman. McCale saw that it was Sylvia Bigelow, bulging out of a sheath of satin.

Karen was saying, "You mustn't go in, Mother Bigelow, you just can't. Let me take you home."
"Get out of my way!" the older woman said.

"I can't let you go in. Besides, he's not there, Sybil. He really isn't there."
"How do you know?"
"I looked."
"You came here to see him?"
"Yes, yes—but he isn't here. Come home with me, Sybil."

The grotesque Sybil hesitated a moment, her bright feverish eyes searching Karen's face. Then she pushed her forcefully aside with crushing arrogance.

The Trail Becomes A Little Plain

"Let me by," she said, her voice rising hysterically.

There was a limousine at the curb. Karen walked to it, moving like a sleepwalker. She got into it without a backward glance. It rolled away into the dark.

"Well, well," McCale spoke as they settled back into their taxi. "I am more than ever convinced that there is a nigger in the Bigelow woodpile."

"I should say so," Ann smiled wearily. "As our good pal, Rocky, would say—everyone, seems one leap ahead of a fit."

It was still quite early. Another night, they might have gone on to one or another of the nightclubs, but McCale was in no mood for it. He knew Ann's evening was probably spoiled, though she said nothing. He reached for her hand, expecting more of her incurable sulkiness, but she, too, seemed sunk in a thoughtful depression. When they drew up before the apartment house where she lived, she kissed him lightly before they got out, made no remark when he told the driver to wait. As he fitted her key into the outside door, she spoke.

"Drink?"
"No."
"What are you up to? Where are you going?"
"Places ladies don't grace with their presence."
"I'm willing to forget I'm a lady for tonight."
She had a secret yen for the seamier side, the substrata, the obscure.

"We won't go into that now," he said. He turned her head toward him. "Here."

He kissed her hard on the lips, noticing her complete calm indifference. She was angry.
"Thanks ever so."
"Oh, Lord," he groaned, "don't go giving me your impersonation of Bette Davis now. I'm going to the Print Club to see Jerry Tate."
"Oh, all right. Go ahead. I know what you're like when you smell blood, you hound." She searched his face quickly. "Does it look that bad, Duke? I seem to have been feeling it myself all evening, though I've tried to tell myself it was my proximity to you and one of your fabulous lunches."
He nodded slowly. "Yeah. Something tells me there is something very dirty afoot. It's only breaking out in little places here and there, but there's bound to be an explosion of some kind in the office. I'm short on information, baby, and a little late on the scene. What I do, I've got to do quickly."
"Well, go ahead, but be sure when you pass the Old Howard to stay on the other side of the street." She laughed, dismissing him with a return to her old facetiousness.

"You are a jealous wench," he chided her, closing the door on her retreating figure.

"Hello, Jerry," said McCale. "Having your good-night quart?"

He chuckled to himself as he got back into the cab, giving the address of the Print Club. The Old Howard, local landmark of burlesque, was a standing joke between them. During a former investigation, he had got himself mixed up, almost fatally, with a girl whose profession was appearing in various night-club extravaganzas. In the glow of infatuation he had nearly married her. They'd gone to New York, where he had intended to set up an agency for himself after the completion of his first case in Boston, but an offer of seven hundred dollars a week from the producer of a higher type of entertainment had estranged them. He just couldn't see himself as the husband of a woman who was being cute in front of an audience.

He was not a falsely modest and indeed, took a rather harsh, cynical attitude toward vice. However, that affair was permanently wrecked. His inamorata had gone into her show, got her seven hundred per week, and McCale had given himself one big horse-laugh. He had retraced his steps to the Hub, starting his business there, relying altogether on the success of his one case to get him going.

A Newspaper Man Gives the Loudown

He lit a cigarette and sat with his feet up on one of the adjustable seats of the taxi as it bumped along Cambridge street. He thought he had done rather well in the time he had spent in Boston, in spite of obstacles such as his decision not to take divorce cases, not to hold out on the police, not to get in the way of rival agencies. He had managed to keep his head above water and had acquired a reputation of honesty and discretion besides. His lip curled in self-derision as he laughed in the face of his own expansive ego.

"No sense being so damned complacent, boy." He was talking to himself like a Dutch uncle. "So far, you haven't got much forrader on the problem at hand."
He sighed unhappily as the cab drew up with a screech of brakes before a tall, gray office building. Between this and another older structure was a narrow alley, at the back of which could be seen a faintly lighted doorway. McCale made for this. From behind the stark walls on each side of him, he could hear the rumbles and roars of machinery, for the presses of the biggest newspaper in town had their home there.

The Print Club, where pressmen and reporters gathered to drink and converse throughout the night, was on the third floor of the narrow edifice at the end of the alley. Duke opened the door and went up the winding iron stairs to the bare, undecorated rooms which were furnished with square wooden tables and chairs of the kitchen variety.

McCale went over to the bar and asked for Jerry Tate. The barman nodded in the direction of the third room, raising a quizzical eye at McCale's formal attire. McCale threw him a hard, deliberate scowl, and made for the door. Just inside it, a young, irascible, nervous-looking man sat alone at a table, playing solitaire. He did not look up as McCale sat down facing him.

"Hello, Jerry," said McCale. "Having your good-night quart?"
"Hi, sleuth," he said in a rasping voice. "Where have you been—all dressed up? Is there a convention you had to attend?"
"Out to dinner."
"Well, well. Times have changed."
"Isn't it the truth! But you see, I haven't forgotten the old days. I come straight from the lap of luxury to visit my old pals."

"I'm all agog." The dark fellow poured himself a finger of whisky and swallowed it in one gulp. "No kidding, Duke, I'm glad to see you. However, you've probably got an axe to grind. So give while I'm still sober."
"As usual I'm after information."
"So—"
"About a great big, husky, handsome young man named Vallaincourt."
Jerry Tate gave a low whistle and fixed McCale with a baleful glance.

"So they've called in the Ogpu?"
"Who?"
"The Bigelows. Who else? How much you soaking them?"
"Now, see here, Jerry, I haven't said—"
"You don't have to. I don't have to be a detective—not even a lousy reporter—to put two and two together. What I can't get over is why they've let it slide along to this late day. You're a bit on the tardy side, aren't you?"

"I'll say. The wedding is next week, so I'm running around in circles—but fast. What can you tell me about him?"
"Very little, I'm afraid. He hits the high spots, does a lot of gambling, plays around fast and loose. Spends lots of dough."
"Where does he get it?"
"Search me."
"Oh, come now."
"Well, rumor has it that it comes from the Bigelows mostly."
"I doubt that."
Tate shrugged. "Some other old gal, then."
"What about his antecedents?"
"Don't know. Springs from Chicago, I'm told."
"How did he get aboard the Mayflower—that is, how did he burrow his way into the bosom of the Bigelow family?"

"Well, now, let's see. First time I remember him around the Gay White Way, he had Victoria Bigelow in tow. Vicky seemed to have the upper hand there for a while. Then there were whispers—very soft—but whispers, my friend, that Mrs. Stephen Bigelow was interested—in a purely platonic way, we hope."
"The beautiful Karen?"

Stephen Bigelow Is Discussed
"If you like that type—pardon me."
"Oh, well, if I had to be cast away on a desert island or if some rainy afternoon—"
"That's it—just or—to proceed. That little romance was short-lived. Don't ask me why."
"Maybe Stevie got wind of it."
"Stephen Bigelow? That washed-up Romeo. One look from Karen, or Mother Sybil would squelch him. I've seen them all together. It was like a peek at the motive behind Lysistrata—"
"Oh, my Lord. If you're going to quote—"
"I'll spare you. Speaking of Mama though, she had her day in the sun, too. She was here and there giggling and going over him for quite some time. Nice set-up, eh?"

Young Tate surveyed the table top with wise old eyes. He shook his head. "He finally did get around to Veronica. Right through the family to the pot of gold."
"Kind of roundabout, you think?"
"Now, I don't know. It may be he thought he was being clever."
McCale rose to go. "You don't know of any tie-up between him and Shari Lynn, the singer that's doubling at the Abbey and Latin Quarter shows?"

"Nothing I can vouch for. They seem to be on pretty good terms. By the way, I do know that pressure was brought to bear somewhere along the line over a bit of gossip Wats printed in his column. Orders went through to squelch anything more of the sort that might come under the snooping eye."
"Which only shows that the great can buy protection."
"Oh, well. Come the revolution."
"Just Well, thanks, old boy."
"For what?"

The North Carolina legislature has been in session for more than three weeks. Up to this writing the boys haven't been able to accomplish much in the way of passing new bills and reducing the high cost of living. It is now predicted that the law-makers will not get away from Raleigh before April 1st. This means that some of them may have to borrow money to pay their bills, as it will take a miracle to live in the capitol 90 days on the $600 the members receive.

Many Davie County people are in favor of letting the voters elect the County Accountant and the County Tax Collector, instead of having them appointed by the Board of County Commissioners. If you are in favor of such a law being enacted for Davie County, write your Senator, Hon. Lafayette Williams, and your Representative, Hon. Knox Johnstone, and tell them that you favor such a bill. It is only fair to give the voters of the County the privilege of voting for the ones who are to fill these important offices, just as they vote for Sheriff, Clerk of Court, Register of Deeds and other officers.

Andrew Volstead, father of the famous Volstead law which give this country prohibition from 1919 until 1933, when President Roosevelt used his power and influence to have it repealed. Volstead served in Congress for 20 years, and was 87 years old at the time of his death which occurred at his home in Granite Falls, Minn. The Volstead law was passed by Congress over President Wilson's veto. Volstead was defeated for Congress in 1922, but continued his campaign against liquor for many years. He was also the father of the Farmers' Co-operative Act. He was a prominent figure in Congress.

Two daughters and one son survive. Fannie got her dates mixed about when the stars fell. It was in 1833 instead of 1832, if history is correct.

Reavis-Hoots

Miss Mary Kathryn Hoots became the bride of Clifford Eugene Reavis at the home of the bride at 5 p. m., Saturday. The Rev. J. F. Davis, pastor of the bride performed the double-ring ceremony. An altar was arranged in the living room where greenery banded the fireplace and seven-branched candelabra holding white tapers were arranged on either side. The bride and bridegroom entered unattended. Her dress was of Winter white wool and with it she used brown accessories.

Mrs. Reavis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hoots of Mocksville. She was graduated from Mocksville High School and for the past year has been employed in the office of the county accountant. Mr. Reavis, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Reavis of Route 2, was graduated from Farmington High School. He spent 37 months in the army, 30 months overseas. At present he is employed at the Reavis Novelty Company, Mocksville.

Groundhog Committee

As the time draweth near for his hogship to stick his head out of winter quarters, we are naming a committee of tried and true men to meet him at his headquarters near Sheffield, on Sunday morning, Feb. 2nd, just before the golden orb of day peeps over the eastern horizon, and explain to him about the high cost of wood and coal, and plead with him to be merciful to us folks who are short on both cash and fuel. All members of the committee are urged to be present. Let none stay away on account of weather conditions. The committee is composed of the following members, with W. L. Gaither chairman:

Move To Greensboro

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kimrey will move to Greensboro this week, where Mr. Kimrey will take up his duties as Assistant County Agent for Guilford County. Most of his time will be devoted to live stock work. Mr. Kimrey has held a similar position in Davie County for several years, and has made many friends since coming to our county. The Record is very sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Kimrey, but wish them well in their new Home. The latch string is always hanging on the outside anytime you want to come back to the garden spot of the world.

What's Ahead in '47?

There are big things ahead for the South!

How do we know?

Because the Southern Railway "Serves the South." Because our 50,000 officers and employees get around and talk to Southerners. Because our trains carry Southern products in ever-increasing volume and variety.

All signs point ahead to an era of tremendous growth and prosperity. Factories are going up everywhere, and many more are being planned. Towns and cities are thriving. Best of all, Southerners are facing the future with optimism and confidence.

By continuing to spend millions of dollars for new equipment and for improvements of all kinds, the Southern is preparing today for the traffic of tomorrow...keeping pace with the growing demand for economical, efficient, dependable railroad mass transportation.

With all Southerners continuing to work together, we enthusiastically believe that what's ahead in '47... and in the years beyond... spells even greater prosperity and growth for the Southland.

Fred thinks he can't do without The Record, and I like it, too. I suppose it is nice and warm there. We are having a regular blizzard. It wasn't so warm here when we received Mrs. Driver's letter—about 22 degrees above zero, but were not in the midst of a blizzard, for which we are thankful.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Mando, who have had rooms with Mrs. John Larew, moved Friday into their attractive new home on N. Main street.

C. F. Arndt, one of the owners of the Mocksville Flour Mills, has purchased the W. H. Kimrey house on Salisbury street, and will move from the Marvin Smith house on Cherry street to their new home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman F. Miller, who have been living on Wilkesboro street, have moved to Coolemees where Mr. Miller, has accepted a position with the Coolemees Theatre. Mr. Miller has been with the Princess Theatre here for some time. We are sorry to lose these good people, but wish them well in their new home.

School Boys Injured

A Mocksville school bus, driven by Henry W. Dulin, colored, stopped near Redland early Wednesday morning to pick up colored children for the Mocksville school. Two brothers, Harold and George Wilson, were crossing the highway to enter the bus, when a Ford car, driven by Don Jones, of Sylva, was unable to stop, and hit the boys. The Ford car ran off the highway into a field, turning over and slightly injuring Mr. Jones. The Wilson boys were carried to Rowan Memorial Hospital for treatment. Corporal Green investigated the accident.

Narcotics Stolen

For the second time within the past two months the Wilkins drug store was entered by unknown parties and a supply of narcotics were stolen. Entrance to the store was made by prizing the back door open some time Wednesday night. Nothing but a supply of narcotics was missing. Only a few weeks ago Hall's drug store was entered and all the narcotics stolen. So far there is no clue as to who the guilty party or parties are. Some think it is an out-of-town dope ring.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS

Delight the Family With Coffee Cakes
(See recipes below)

Hot Breads Are Delicious

Whether you serve yeast breads or hot quick breads, they lend themselves graciously to winter menus. The varieties for both are numberless, and you can take your choice of spicy or fruit ones.

Hot breads are hearty foods, but they're welcome at this season both from the point of eating and the comfortable air which fills the kitchen when we make them. They have a staying quality, too, which satisfies winter-sharpened appetites. We start the parade off with a colorful cranberry coffee ring which can be put together in a wink of time.

Cranberry Coffee Ring.

(Serves 12)

- 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup milk
- 3 tablespoons melted shortening
- Cranberry orange topping

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together. Beat egg, add milk and shortening. Stir into dry ingredients, mixing only enough to moisten them. Spread topping evenly over bottom of greased ring mold. Pour batter over topping. Bake in a moderately hot (425 degree) oven for 25 minutes.

Cranberry orange topping: Mix together 3 tablespoons melted butter with 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1/2 cup sugar and 1/4 cups of whole cranberries.

Do you want to do something special for breakfast or for lunch box sandwiches? There's nothing better than this flavorful brown sugar butter-milk bread:

- *Butterscotch Bread.
- 2 eggs
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons melted shortening
- 4 cups flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups sour or buttermilk
- 1 cup chopped walnut meats

Beat eggs, add sugar and shortening and beat well together. Sift flour, soda and baking powder together with salt and add to egg mixture, alternately with milk. Blend in nuts. Pour into greased loaf pans and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 45 minutes.

There's nothing so nice for a special breakfast, dinner or luncheon as a sugar-saving cinnamon roll recipe. When it's baked and glistening golden brown, frost it until it looks lacy with a powdered sugar and milk icing if you want it to be especially glamorous.

Cinnamon Rolls.

(Makes 3 dozen)

- 1 cup milk
- 2 cakes yeast
- 1/4 cup extra-sweet, white corn syrup
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 3 tablespoons shortening
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/2 teaspoon lemon or vanilla extract
- 1 egg, beaten
- 4 cups sifted flour

LYNN SAYS:

Use These Handy Tips For Easier Homemaking

White scum on sauerkraut is a yeast growth. It can be controlled by means of proper covering and weights on the kraut to prevent exposure to air.

The clothes moth pays no attention to the calendar, especially in warm homes, and it's a menace to wool, fur and feathers—the year around. Air clothes often and have them mothproofed.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

- Broiled Salmon with Lemon Wedges
 - Silvered Carrots and Peas
 - Celery Sticks
 - *Butterscotch Bread
 - Grapefruit Salad
 - Lemon Chiffon Pie Beverage
- *Recipe given.

Heat milk to scalding; cool to lukewarm; add yeast and let stand 5 minutes to soften. Cream together the extra-sweet corn syrup, salt, shortening, nutmeg and extract. Add egg and beat thoroughly. Add milk mixture and flour alternately, mixing until smooth after each addition. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Knead lightly on floured surface. Let dough rest 15 minutes. Roll 1/4 inch thick, sprinkle with cinnamon sugar and raisins, as desired. Roll as for jelly roll and slice with a sharp knife. Place in greased cake pan. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) about 20 minutes.

If you like coffee cake made in fancy shapes, you'll like the following, which is just as festive and tasty as possible.

(Makes 3 cakes)

- 2 packages yeast
- 1/4 cup lukewarm water
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1/4 cup melted shortening
- 5 cups sifted flour
- Cinnamon sugar

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add 2 cups flour. Mix well. Add softened yeast, eggs and lemon rind. Beat well. Add shortening. Mix well. Add more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in greased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down. Use one-third of dough to make a coffee cake. Cover remaining two-thirds and place in refrigerator to use for coffee cake or rolls.

Let dough which you have left out rest for 10 to 15 minutes. Roll into a rectangle sheet about 18 inches long and 8 inches wide. Spread with melted butter and sprinkle with cinnamon sugar. Roll up as for jelly roll and seal at the edges. Place on greased baking sheet and shape into a figure-eight, then seal ends at intersection. With scissors, cut slanted gashes in top of roll 2 to 3 inches apart. Fold back points of cuts to show cinnamon layers. Let rise until doubled in bulk.

Bake coffee cake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 25 to 30 minutes. Frost with confectioners' sugar icing after baking and cooling slightly, if desired.

Any type of fruit filling may be used with the above coffee cake: Raisins, either alone or with chopped apples, prunes, figs, nuts, apricots, peaches and pears, or diced, candied fruit.

The keynote of lighting is "light in the eyes is glare; light on what you're looking at is good illumination."

A pound of cheddar or American cheese which is made from whole milk contains the protein and fat of about 1 gallon of milk.

The average kitchen needs five knives: One small paring knife, two slightly larger knives for paring, slicing and dressing poultry, a knife for cutting breads and cakes, and a knife for the bigger cutting jobs like carving.

JESUS THE GIVER OF LIFE

LESSON TEXT—John 4:46-51; 5:2-9; 11:1-13.

MEMORY SELECTION—I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.—John 11:25.

The miracles of God, through his servants and the Lord Jesus Christ, are not mere marvels or wonders. They are not for the advancement of the cause of any man or for personal glory. They are the mighty signs of an omnipotent God wrought for the good of men, for their spiritual enlightenment and as a testimony to the one true God. Jesus is the giver of life; first and most important, of spiritual life, but also of physical life and health.

Leaving Samaria after his blessed work there, our Lord went up into Galilee, where he met many simple-hearted folk who were ready to believe. Here he was able to work miracles of healing and of grace.

I. A Sick Boy Made Well (John 4:46-51).

A nobleman's son was sick. Ah, yes, affliction and sorrow come to the home of the rich as well as the poor. Death comes to the young as well as the old. In fact, the first grave dug in this world was for a young man.

But it is also true that affliction may be, in God's hand, a means of blessing. This son's sickness sent his father to Jesus, and resulted ultimately in the salvation of the entire household (v. 53).

There is another helpful lesson here—our Lord's Word is as good as his presence. The man asked Jesus to come, but he sent his word instead. It was accepted, believed, and completely effective.

How blessed for us who may not have the physical presence of the Lord to recall the potency of his Word. When he says it, believe it!

II. A Lame Man Made Whole (John 5:2-9).

Back in Jerusalem at the Feast of Purim, a time of joy and gift giving, our Lord found his way to the pool of Bethesda where there were misery and disease. His compassionate heart sent him there to help and to bless.

"Impotent folk"—the words well describe not only those who lay helpless about the pool of Bethesda, but they fit us as well. Oh, yes, we are strong, capable, fearless, but only until we meet some great elemental problem. Then we see that we are indeed "a great multitude of impotent folk." The silent fog can paralyze a nation. Death, sickness—who can stay their hand?

Long familiarity with his weakness had bred in the man with the infirmity a sense of despair. Such an attitude invites defeat. It is unbecoming to a Christian. Let us not forget in the darkest hour to "keep looking up."

Jesus told the man to "rise and walk"—the very thing he could not do for his 38 years of life. But when the Son of God speaks to us he gives the power to respond to his command.

III. A Dead Friend Made Alive (John 11:1-13).

The fact that Jesus is our Friend and our Saviour does not exempt us from human sorrow, but it does assure us of the needed grace to bear the trial and to trust him even in life's darkest hour.

Lazarus, the friend of Jesus, was sick. The home in which Jesus had found rest and fellowship was in deep trouble. Jesus was no longer in Judea. In haste, word is sent to him of his friend's illness. But he did not come.

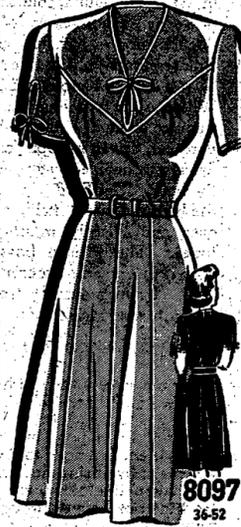

Why does he delay? Such is the heart cry of thousands today who call on him in their hour of trouble. The purposes of God are beyond our ability fully to understand. We need only to trust him and abide his time.

Notice that his failure to respond at once to the message of Lazarus' sisters did not mean that he had deserted them (11:4-6). Nor did it mean that he had denied them his help (v. 7). Lazarus may have been dead before the word reached him. He may also have delayed in order that there might be no question about the resurrection miracle. And he may have tarried in order that their faith might be strengthened.

Above all, do not fail to notice that he came. He always does. Jesus has never failed any child of his. The time and the manner of his answer to our prayers may not conform to our opinion of what should have been done, but let us remember that we know only in part. He knows all. Let us trust him. In his darkest hour, Job said: "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him" (Job 13:15).

He called Lazarus forth from the sleep of death. Even so, he calls sinners forth from their spiritual death into glorious eternal life! The life-giver, our Lord and Saviour, is here now ready to give life to everyone who will call on his name. Will you?

Norway Honored Weaver Of Museum Pieces by Law

Few artists have been honored during their lifetime as was Norway's celebrated weaver, Erida Hansen (1853-1927). After her tapestries had won awards at nine international exhibitions and become museum pieces, the Norwegian government, fearing all her work might be purchased abroad, passed a law forbidding export of any more.

Royal Jupiter, Grand Champion, 1946 International Livestock Exposition, was purchased by Firestone to be exhibited to the farmers of America on a 22,000-mile educational tour.

Two Firestone CHAMPIONS

OUT LASTS

ANY OTHER TRACTOR TIRE

ROYAL JUPITER, Grand Champion steer at the 1946 International Livestock Exposition, best shows today's demand in beef cattle. And on American farms, the New Firestone Champion Ground Grip is the Champion among tractor tires.

As the Champion, this new tractor tire cleans up to 100% more effectively... pulls up to 62% more at the drawbar... lasts up to 91% longer... and rides smoother on the highway.

There are sound reasons for this. The curved traction bars flare outward from the center, making a wider opening at the shoulder from which mud and trash fall easily. The connected bars take a powerful "center bite" in the heart of the traction zone. The extra-deep, pyramid-like curved traction bars cut sharply into the ground with a cleaving action. The extra height, plus buttressing at the base and Triple-Bracing near the center, give the bars greater strength and stability. Continuous bars give the Champion smoother contact with the highway... lengthen tire life.

When you order tractor tires, or a tractor, ask your Implement Dealer, Firestone Dealer Store, or Firestone Dealer to specify Firestone Champion Ground Grips.

Representation

All Americans had reason to be jubilant on August 2. Not because an "unruly monarch" had abdicated. On that day the 79th Congress adjourned, and its members would soon sweep through the pre-election countryside—reporting to the "constituency." Our Congressmen packed up to return home on that day, and it has been ours to vote for them or against them.

Our founding fathers who decried the making of laws "without representation," could have complimented our wartime Congress. Serving through a most trying period at the very beginning of our reconstruction, after courageously displaying a people's will through the most debilitating war in our history, the 79th Congress faced all manner of complicated problems.

Deliberation

Probably the 79th Congress did not please everybody. But at the same time, when one surveys the record, it is apparent that this Congress has made some unusual history. Congress accepted the United Nations charter, thus committing America to a much more effective part in world leadership. This Congress demonstrated that it is not willing to allow our foreign policy to ride the winds of fortune, that it will be active though deliberate in helping build a peace.

Deliberate. That's a word our Congress properly exemplifies. We want our legislators to be studious and careful in preparation of laws, in this government of the people. Only in this way may we have the best representation. Remember that when you hear the alarm: "Why doesn't Congress do something?"

No Rubber Stamp

Remember too that political expediency makes deliberation necessary, as Congress attempts to work out a pattern of harmony with other departments. If some things were bungled by the 79th Congress, in many instances the bungling may be chalked up to other branches of government. But this Congress did demonstrate that it was no "rubber stamp" Congress, and it made parliamentary history in this respect.

It was a people's Congress. It took definite steps in the direction of a balanced budget, for many legislators put themselves on record in an attempt to preserve the integrity of the nation's finances. No budget legislation was passed, but much was done to prepare groundwork for future budget-balancing legislation.

Decadent Bureaucracy

A few of the spreading tentacles of bureaucracy were lopped off by the 79th Congress, and it refused to pass other measures that would nurture the beast. Congress refused to put the National Housing Agency on a permanent basis, and it turned the control and operation of employment services back to the states. Major proposals for federal aid to education died in committees.

In removing many of the government regulations which have served their purposes, the Congress gave notice that it intends to keep the traditional freedoms making America the most desirable place in the world in which to live. Congress refused to sanction the drafting of labor in time of peace. Long live our Congress! May it ever be the people's representation.

Wage Wisdom

Wages rose and prices fell during the ten years just before World War II when working men were able, through collective bargaining, to influence the operations of private enterprise without political interference. Workers earned more dollars per working day and each dollar took on more buying power as time went on. It was a two-way improvement.

"The actual buying power of one hour's work (straight time) rose at the rate of more than 4% each year, or over 40% for the entire ten-year period," says Labor's Monthly Survey, issued in May by the American Federation of Labor. "This was possible because production per man-hour increased steadily, creating the wealth to pay higher wages."

War Changed Things

So long as men, money and machinery were busy making things to eat, wear and use for better living, it turned out as planned; better living resulted. But when capital, labor and tools, by necessity, had to swing into the manufacture of munitions and instruments of destruction, better living ceased. Wages increased, to be sure. So did profits. But what could we buy?

Once more let the AFL survey answer: "Every hard-won nickel of wage gain was offset by a price rise which cancelled it and the workers' actual buying power per hour of work, as measured by real wage rates, did not increase at all." These statements are supported by government figures made available through the department of Labor. Moreover the AFL analyst's logic is perfectly sound.

Holding Prices Down

The labor bulletin contained no carping criticism of government, nor against the artificial restraints set up to keep a fictitious economy from getting out of control. On the other hand it says plainly that under wholesome business conditions "wage increases are paid for by rising productivity." Thus with mass production and volume sales "the wage rises are all clear gain."

"Our first task is to increase production of consumer goods so that supply will be enough to meet demand, and competition again will keep prices down, so that increasing productivity will create the income to pay further wage increases." Anything I might say about that doctrine would be simply gilding the lily. It is the plain truth and a credit to any philosophy.

Cut Restraints

At the present, conditions are far from wholesome. The government's new artificial wage controls, born of political expedience, create higher wages with one hand and smother them away with the other in the form of higher prices. In a government-fouled economy, it is small wonder that farmers and business men alike line up for help at the door of Uncle Sam's "fix-it" department.

The Office of Price Administration is getting as much criticism as it deserves now perhaps. My comments are brief: Private enterprise needs freedom if it is to operate by the law of supply and demand, and in some fields, supply will meet demands much sooner if regulations are lifted. The O.P.A. has done some good work and well deserves a dignified funeral, soon.

Remember too that political expediency makes deliberation necessary, as Congress attempts to work out a pattern of harmony with other departments. If some things were bungled by the 79th Congress, in many instances the bungling may be chalked up to other branches of government. But this Congress did demonstrate that it was no "rubber stamp" Congress, and it made parliamentary history in this respect.

It was a people's Congress. It took definite steps in the direction of a balanced budget, for many legislators put themselves on record in an attempt to preserve the integrity of the nation's finances. No budget legislation was passed, but much was done to prepare groundwork for future budget-balancing legislation.

A few of the spreading tentacles of bureaucracy were lopped off by the 79th Congress, and it refused to pass other measures that would nurture the beast. Congress refused to put the National Housing Agency on a permanent basis, and it turned the control and operation of employment services back to the states. Major proposals for federal aid to education died in committees.

In removing many of the government regulations which have served their purposes, the Congress gave notice that it intends to keep the traditional freedoms making America the most desirable place in the world in which to live. Congress refused to sanction the drafting of labor in time of peace. Long live our Congress! May it ever be the people's representation.
