The Lord is Wonderful to Me

Rev. W. E. Isenhour, High Point, N. C. R4

The Lord is wonderful to me,

O let me tell you why;

He saved my life and soul from sin

When I was doomed to die;

And by His wisdom and His might

He sends me from above,

I follow Him, O praise His name.

Along the way of love!

The Lord is wonderful to me

Because He loves me so;

He guides my feet from day to day

As on life's path I go;

He opens heaven to my soul

And fills me with His grace;

He gives me peace that is so sweet

And strength to run life's race.

The Lord is wonderful to me

In every plan He makes;

He has compassion on my soul

And pardons my mistakes;

He fills my heart with truest love

And takes away my doubts,

He hears me when I humbly pray

And keeps all evil out.

The Lord is wonderful to me

In everything He wills;

He never does a thing I know

That brings me any ills;

He keeps me in the narrow way

That leads to heaven's throne;

And when I see Him some glad day

He'll crown me as His own.

Abe Lincoln Then And Now

The following timely article is attributed to Henry J. Allen, former Governor of Kansas.

Had Abraham Lincoln been living today:

The Rotary club would supply him with a set of books, the Lions club with a good reading lamp, the Cosmopolitan club with writing equipment, the Kiwanis club with a wooden floor for the cabin. He would have the protection of the child labor law and government old-age insurance.

A kindly philanthropist would send him to college with a scholarship. Incidentally, a case worker would see that his father received a monthly check from the county. The Office of Price Administration would reduce his rent by 50 per cent. He would receive a subsidy for rail-splitting; another one for raising some crop he was going to raise anyway, and still another subsidy for not raising a crop he had no intention of raising.

Result: There would have been no Abraham Lincoln.

Hard to Please

It's very confusing.

A week ago they were wringing their hands in Washington and declaiming in agonized tones that we were headed towards catastrophe unless something were done to bring prices down to earth.

Prices have started to go down, and now they are beating their chests up there and pulling out handfuls of hair in distress over the decline, telling us we are skidding right into a depression.

Seems to us some of our political leaders and economic soothsayers need to have their thinking caps dry cleaned.

There was a time when some of them thought—and said—that a little inflation would be a good thing.

Then came inflation, and it was said that a little recession is all that would save the nation from total collapse.

And now because the price of wheat and other basic foods shows signs of coming down to earth, the dire predictors are working overtime again.—Statesville Daily.

Bill Should Pass

We understand that there is a bill before Congress which would prohibit the advertising of alcoholic beverages in publications that circulate through the mails.

It's a fine bill, and it should pass.

We've touched on this subject before, and will probably do so again.

We are fully cognizant of the fact that liquor represents a great evil. We believe that the use of alcohol should be discouraged in every way possible.

At the same time we are in favor of the operation of the A. B. C. stores in North Carolina. (Some of our readers can't understand that to save their lives).

The whisky distillers have some of the finest artists and the best advertising agencies in the country to prepare the copy used in magazines and newspapers.

Young people get the idea that in order to be a man of distinction you've got to hold a highball in your hand; that if you want to get the utmost enjoyment out of a golf game, you've got to participate in dinking in the locker room; that if you have friends to entertain in your home, the best way to do so is to bring out a bottle of whisky.

That kind of publicity ought to be stopped. We believe that the measure which has been introduced in Congress will do it. That's why we say again: it's a fine bill, and it should pass.—The State.

False Security May Result

It is readily admitted that the rigid auto inspection to be carried out in North Carolina will eliminate numerous accident causes from the highways.

Inspection will lower the number who operate with inadequate brakes and faulty lights. Steering mechanisms may also be in better condition on the average.

But the inspection will give reckless drivers a false sense of security. The speeder and reckless driver whose car has just passed inspection will step on the gas heavier with the belief that because his car is O. K. nothing will happen to him.

Had you ever given a thought to the number of tragic accidents which occur on straight roads with perfect pavements?

When you lower one hazard you raise another hazard, which is the false sense of security which originates in the driver's mind and which cannot be controlled by any inspection or examination.

And all mechanical faults cannot be found by an inspection. A tire which is apparently good may be the first to burst and send a car into a smashup. Bikes which are good today may be out of order tomorrow. The high which illuminate perfectly tonight may be out tomorrow night.

Yes, the inspection of automobiles will remove many traffic hazards from the highways. But the method will not solve our accident problem, which must be solved by every individual who sits behind a steering wheel.

The examinations being given drivers may remove some of the dangerous ones from the highways, but no examination has ever been devised which will tell whether or not that driver will take a reckless and unnecessary chance and send someone to an accident victim's grave.—Wilkesboro Journal.

World Federation Ahead

A world federation of nations may develop out of a closer relationship between the federation of European nations with the United States, in the opinion of Frank Owen, editor-in-chief of The London Daily Mail.

This is an interesting suggestion. It has been heard before. Obviously, if there is to be a world federation of nations, there must be some binding force to hold the peoples together.

The unity of purpose necessary to the successful operation of a world federation can be found in a common adherence to the principles of the Bill of Rights. This ancient document proclaims the rights of individuals and asserts them in the face of the face of government itself. It is the backbone of the Constitution of the United States and of the unwritten Constitution of the British Government.

Certainly, there would be much gained if the freedom loving, Democratic nations of the earth got together in a world federation. They could easily follow the example of the thirteen American colonies, forming a federal government of limited power, and in time, make the same progress that the people of the United States have made.

While the idea will strike some Americans as an abandonment of sovereignty, just as the original formation of the American union struck the people of the colonies, there is no reason in the world why any American citizen should object if the other nations of the world desire to follow the American example. Certainly, we should be willing to join hands with people and nations who say, in effect, the American idea is the best plan for the government of mankind.—Kernersville News.

Step on The Gas

News about comets makes good reading because their road rights in celestial traffic aren't clearly established. There's never any assurance that one of these jet-propelled jobs won't cross our arterial highway without stopping or waiting for the green light. An Australian astronomer now reports that the earth may pass through the tail of a strange new comet which has been lighting up southern skies. Narrow thing, that—but we can't slow up. We're heading for somewhere and have got to get there before dark, even if we bust a fender.—Pittsburgh Press.

R. P. Waynick

Funeral services for R. Parker Waynick, 41, Mocksville attorney, were held at 2 p. m., Wednesday at Koonce Funeral Home chapel, High Point, with Rev. Paul Jones in charge, and the body laid to rest in Oakwood Cemetery.

Mr. Waynick was former county attorney of Davie County, and came here from High Point several years ago. He died Feb. 22nd, at Baptist Hospital, Winston Salem, from a self-inflicted rifle bullet through his head, on Feb. 18. Mr. Waynick had been in failing health for some time.

Surviving are the wife, Mrs. Mabel Gordon Waynick; a son, Robert Parker Waynick, Jr., and a daughter, Miss Catherine Waynick, both by a former marriage, and the parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Waynick, of High Point.

Mrs. Waynick is a member of the Coolemeec school faculty and lives on North Main street in the Rich house, which her and her husband purchased and remodeled about two years ago.

THE FICTION CORNER

THE RUG
By VIRGINIA SULLIVAN TOMLINSON

I KNEW the Farraday family before it happened. I knew them first when I was nine and Ellen Farraday was eight and in my class at school.

There were two other Farraday children: Skippy, the baby, who was five, and Dora, seventeen, just entering business school. Dora was engaged to marry Danny Wright, who ran the service-station in town. Mr. Farraday was branch manager of our local bank. "Such a nice, quiet man," people said. "If only that wife of his were not such a fool."

I didn't think Mrs. Farraday was a fool. I liked her. The sprawling old Farraday house, with its sagging porch, was always in need of repair, the shabby living-room would be cluttered and dishes unwashed, but Mrs. Farraday was never too busy to plan games for rainy afternoons or picnics in summer in their rickety old car. She was little and quick and dark, with rather kittenish ways; always thinking up something new and "exciting"—like the dress she designed for Dora that won the prize in the Easter parade.

There was nothing I loved more than going over to the Farraday house whenever I had the chance. Saturday mornings they always had pancakes; Sundays they had sausages and Boston baked beans and applesauce in a blue glass dish. And they had laughter. A great deal of laughter—except when Aunt Abbey came to call.

Aunt Abbey was Mr. Farraday's aunt, a very rich, very unpleasant old lady who lived in an imposing granite house at the end of town. It was no secret that she disapproved bitterly of the entire Farraday family. Why she visited them nobody knew, unless it was because, of all her relatives, they refused to be impressed by her money or upset by her caustic tongue. They merely accepted her, all but Mrs. Farraday, who seemed to like having Aunt Abbey around. Curiously enough, it was Mrs. Farraday herself that Aunt Abbey most bitterly disapproved.

"My nephew's wife isn't fooling me," she'd say. "Always pretending to be so gay. What's she got to be happy about, I'd like to know? If my nephew had married a sensible woman, he'd have amounted to something by now."

"I declare," my mother said, "it gives me the creeps, the way that old lady looks at Mrs. Farraday. I believe she really hates her."

"She hates them all," my father said, "because they've got what she never had. The Farradays have contentment. All Aunt Abbey has is money, and when she's gone they'll have that, too."

Only they didn't. Because when Aunt Abbey died the year Ellen Farraday was nine, she left them no money at all. Her entire estate went to charity, with one exception. She left Mrs. Farraday a rug. It was an Oriental rug, exceptionally large and lovely; golden in color, satiny to the touch, starred with dusty pink flowers.

"It's a shame," people said, "when those children need money so. But of course they can sell the rug. It's valuable and Orientals are in vogue." Then a dealer offered Mrs. Farraday $25,000 for her rug. The town rejoiced for the Farradays. This meant college for the children and money to fix up the old house. But, to the amazement of everyone, Mrs. Farraday stubbornly refused to sell. She had always admired that rug, she said. She'd been as surprised as anyone when Aunt Abbey had left it to her. She had always thought Aunt Abbey disliked her; all those unkind remarks she used to make. But now she was grateful for the rug and meant to keep it.

Since the narrow living room at the Farradays was too small for the rug, Mr. Farraday was persuaded to sell the home and rent a house with larger rooms. Their old stuff looked pretty shabby against the rug, so with the money from the sale of the home they bought new furniture. And after awhile, because of the friends they acquired in the new surroundings, the Farradays bought a new car, too.

I saw less of Ellen now, except at school. Gradually my visits to the She'd taken Skippy to the picnic, hadn't she? She should not have gone off with that beau of hers, leaving the child alone by the lake.

Farradays had ceased, partly because my mother disapproved of Dora Farraday's new friends. Dora had always been a sweet, docile little thing, ambitious to get along. Now she had given up business school. She had even broken off her engagement to Danny Wright. Dora had a new beau now; one she'd met through her "crowd." Nobody liked him, but he was rich and he gave Dora a good time. He had a weak, handsome face and a loud scolding laugh. I'd see them together as I walked home from school, dashing around town in his rakish car or going into Van's Place for drinks. People felt sorry for Danny Wright. He'd been so crazy about Dora, and always so glad to have Skippy and Ellen around.

DORA's new beau didn't like children. He objected to Skippy trailing her about. Skippy was six now, very spoiled and rather a nuisance; but it seemed hardly fair to blame Dora entirely for what happened at the Elks' picnic that year. Everyone said, though, that it was Dora's fault. She'd taken Skippy to the picnic, hadn't she? She should not have gone off with that beau of hers, leaving the child alone by the lake. My father was one of the men who Elks' picnic that year. Everyone took Skippy's little body out of the water that night. My mother sat with Mrs. Farraday when they brought him home. Dora Farraday didn't come home at all. She sent a telegram. It arrived just as they were bringing Skippy's body into the house. Dora had left Skippy alone by the lake to elope to New York with her new beau.

Ellen continued at school; she had always been very quiet. And after awhile, Mrs. Farraday went about the town again, holding her head very high, smiling her fixed, gay smile. Only Mr. Farraday seemed changed. He aged visibly that year. Nobody was surprised when the cold he caught just before Christmas turned into pneumonia. The doctors said that he just hadn't the will to live.

Dora came home when her father died. Mrs. Farraday sent her the money. Dora's husband had left her and Dora had been working in New York, clerking in a store. People thought that perhaps she'd stay home now, since her mother needed

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

SCRIPTURE: Acts 8:26-39.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalms 67.

The Personal Witness
Lesson for March 7, 1948

DR. ALBERT SCHWEITZER, described by Hermann Hagedorn as "Prophet in the Wilderness," is a living example of what Sunday's lesson is undertaking to portray, namely, living for Jesus where you are. Schweitzer, at 72, is described by Hagedorn as one who "burns like Francis of Assisi, and looks like Josef Stalin." But to the people of Equatorial Africa, he looks and acts like our Saviour Jesus did.

The lesson passage is found in Acts 8:26-39, and is the story of Philip, leaving his very successful evangelistic campaign in Samaria to follow the lead of the Holy Spirit into the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, which is desert. There he found a man in search of God, and through his witness the man was saved.

THE STORY OF JESUS
THIS man was not of Philip's race. He was an Ethiopian. But he was a man. And God loves every man of every race and of every condition of life. Jesus never did meet an unimportant person, nor will any true follower of his. Jesus said, "As the Father has sent Me, even so send I you," John 20:21.

This man was reading in the Book of Isaiah, where the prophet was foretelling how Jesus would suffer for the sins of the whole world. He could not understand the wonderful words. And the Spirit directed Philip to go and join himself to the eunuch. Philip ran to the chariot in which the rich man rode, asking, "Understandest thou what thou readest?" He was quick to give his witness. That is the first lesson of the lesson.

AND THE MAN LISTENED
WHEN we faithfully obey the Holy Spirit, he enables us to effectively witness for Jesus. We cannot be effective witnesses if we rely upon our own wisdom and our own judgment. The boy in your street who does not know Jesus will listen to your story if you in the same glad obedience to the command of the Spirit of God as did Philip.

A lad told me this story. He had a neighbor who had never been to Sunday school, and he wanted to enlist this friend. He thought about it seriously. But he was not quite sure of himself. And then he prayed, asking God to direct him. The next day the boy asked him, "What are you doing Sunday morning?" With this opening the lad invited his neighbor to come along with him, and the result was that the little neighbor, of another race, accepted Christ as his Saviour and is today a regular attendant at church and Sunday school.

TO WHOM SHALL WE WITNESS?
THE question now emerges, To whom shall we bear this witness? We cannot all go as missionaries, as did Dr. Schweitzer. Most of us must remain at home and carry on the work of our everyday pursuits of life.

But every Christian can witness. First, to those immediately about us. In every community in our beloved country are people who do not know Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord. We can witness to them, not to all of them, but to some of them, perhaps to one of them. And I would remind you that if you miss that particular person to whom you may be directed by the Holy Spirit, he or she may never know about the Saviour's love.

Second, we can witness through the missionaries to earth's remotest bounds, through our gifts. I delight to think that I am in partnership with many great men and women on foreign fields, through my gifts and through my prayers.

Third, we can witness through personal correspondence with people in other lands. The present far-reaching media of relief for stricken peoples of the world affords a wonderful opportunity for this very witness. Ask your pastor for the name of some person your age in one of the lands to which your church is sending relief, and write that person a letter, telling of your joy in serving God.

The eunuch went on his way rejoicing. Why? Because Philip had taught him the way of salvation. He had been used as an effective witness in leading a man of another race to experience the peace that passeth all understanding.

And Jesus is saying to us today, "So send I you."

Spring Freshet
Grace Noll Crowell

I LIKE the look of snow when it is melting
And sending its clear rivulets toward the sea;
I like the sweep of dry grasses lending
Beneath those bright feet, suddenly set free.

I have seen small green leaves under water
That snow had hidden through the winter hours,
Fresher and greener and sweeter than the leafing
That springs to life after the April showers:

A little clover leaf washed clean by waiting,
Eager for life again at the hint of spring!
I reach my fingers into the icy water
To touch that tender, tremulous, wishful thing.

Knowing a kinship with it, deep and abiding,
I, too, have waited until the winter passed,
And I lift my head after a strange chastisement
To the bright air again, the sun at last!

Cities Grant Pay Increases To Help Meet Rising Costs

Scores of cities are granting pay raises to municipal employees to help them meet increased living costs. In Cleveland the mayor agreed to grant pay raises to municipal employees which will cost the city $2,100,000 this year. Fire and police personnel received a $240 a year increase, plus six new holidays to be added to annual furloughs.

White collar employees of Cleveland will get a $180 annual raise if they make less than $3,000 a year. Their increase will be 6.5 per cent if they make more than $3,000 annually.

Fitchburg councilmen earmarked $1,200,000 for municipal pay raises. Biggest pay boosts went to employees receiving $2,000 a year or less.

Chicago's record city budget for 1948 includes pay increases of 8.5 per cent for municipal employees earning less than $5,000 a year, plus raises averaging $300 a year for higher paid employees.

In Omaha, all city employees have been given a flat $15 per month wage boost. The increase will affect approximately 1,260 workers.

New York City boosted the salaries of 42 top city officials. The action added $90,000 to this year's payroll.

Southern Democrats are cussing President Roosevelt to a fare-you well, but when the ides of November roll around the boys will march up and vote a straight Democratic ticket. "Ephriam is joined to his idols."

A brother of Hoey Long, once "wild" Senator from Louisiana, has been nominated for Governor of that State. If Long is any relation to his brother Hoey, the good people of Louisiana are in for a hot time.

I. C. Berrier, prominent retired farmer of Jerusalem township, was in town Thursday on business. Mr. Berrier wants to know what, if anything, can be done about the rural roads in Davie. He reported soil roads almost impassable in his section, with many cars stuck in the mud. Seems to us that Governor Cherry promised to do something about these roads four years ago. Guess he forgot it.

Attention, all High School Students

The Record is offering two cash awards to the two high school students in Davie County schools, who write the two best articles on "Why I Should Read My County Paper." The award for the best article, not to exceed 300 words, will be a crisp, new $10 bill. For the second best letter the award will be a new $5 bill.

All letters must be mailed or brought to The Record office on or before Wednesday, March 3rd. All Davie County High School boys and girls can enter this contest. The two prize winning letters will be printed in this paper. Write only on one side of paper, with pen, pencil or typewriter, and mail or send your letter to this office on or before March 3d. Write your name and address, together with the grade you are in, and the name of your school.

Winners names will be announced in the March 10th issue of The Record.

Dr. Choate Gets New Trial

Raleigh, Feb. 25.—Dr. B. O. Choate, Sparta physician, today won from the State Supreme court a new trial on a charge of criminal abortion in the death of a Charlotte woman.

He was convicted in Surry Superior court last September and sentenced to one to three years.

Dr. Choate was also charged with manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Annie Mae Anderson, a former resident of Mocksville, in August, 1946, but the Supreme Court ruled that he had been acquitted of that charge and it could not be brought against him again.

An attempt by the State to introduce evidence aimed at showing that Dr. Choate had "committed other like offenses" led to granting of the new trial, the court's opinion said.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Swing, of near Salisbury, were shopping a round town Saturday afternoon.

Broughton To Address Farmers

The public is invited to attend a Farm Bureau meeting at 7:30 p. m., on Friday night, March 12th, in the Mocksville court house. The Hon. J. Melville Broughton, former governor of North Carolina, will speak on the subject, "The Value of Farm Organizations." M. D. Pope, president of the Farm Bureau, will preside at the meeting.

This is of interest to every Davie County farmer and all other people interested in successful agriculture. Ladies are also invited.

Rev. E. J. Harbison, of Concord, a former pastor of Mocksville Methodist Church, was in town Wednesday shaking hands with friends.

Mrs. S. F. Tutterow

Funeral services for Mrs. Zelda Tutterow, 43, who died at Davis Hospital, Statesville, on Feb. 22, were held at 3 p. m., last Tuesday at Center Methodist Church, with Revs. J. B. Fitzgerald and M. G. Ervin officiating, and the body laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Tutterow, widow of the late S. F. Tutterow, had been a patient at the hospital for the last four and one half months. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Foster, of Jerusalem.

Survivors include one son, Jeff Tutterow, of Route 1, her father, five brothers and one sister.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Lowery, of beyond the classic shades of County Line, were in town shopping Thursday.

Farm Bureau Meeting

There will be a Farm Bureau meeting held at the court house on Friday night, March 5th at 7:30 o'clock. All members are requested to be present. Be sure to come and bring anyone with you that you can, whether a member or not.

Your Health Department

Last week we discussed briefly the importance of a safe and adequate water supply. The problem of sewage disposal is so closely connected with that of a water supply that we usually consider them together.

We frequently have inquiries regarding the law regulating privies. According to State Board of Health regulations, any residence located within 30 yards of another residence or within one mile of a village must be provided with a privy with concrete stool, concrete slab or floor, and a concrete sill. This manner of construction makes a privy fly-tight and safe.

The law of common decency would dictate that anyone, whether within the above limits or not, would want to protect himself and family against the dangers of an open privy or promiscuous pollution of the soil. No one wants to eat food walked over and spit upon by a fly that has waded through the contents of an open privy. Open privies are not only dangerous for the family but a health hazard to the community.

We cannot tell you in a short news article how to build a privy or a septic tank, but we do have free bulletines and will be glad to visit your home and make recommendations.

Hospitality Stiffens

WASHINGTON.—For two years the agriculture department has been trying to crack the "iron curtain" and inspect a Russian project that might teach us new lessons in how to conquer the southwest's great "dust bowl." But repeated appeals for a look-see have been turned down by the Russians. As a result, the agriculture department now will stiffen its own hospitality toward Russian agriculture missions.

The Russian project is a scientific "shelter belt," planted with trees to save the soil from erosion. Reportedly it was started more than 50 years ago, but American soil experts didn't learn of it until after the war. By visiting it, they hoped to learn new methods for controlling the restless topsoil in our own southwest.

Despite Soviet secrecy, however, the agriculture department so far has turned the other cheek and shown Russian experts all aspects of American agriculture, even though the Russians always carried cameras and asked exhaustive questions.

For example, a Russian mission inspecting the forest product laboratories at Madison, Wis., wanted to know the cubic measurements of each building, how many people each would hold and intricate details about the equipment.

Also the Soviet embassy always sent more people than stipulated, such as a recent mission to Oregon State college. Arrangements were requested for two, but five showed up and stayed on until they were out of their welcome.

From on, U. S. hospitality, if at all, will be frigid.

Hoover's Choice
Herbert Hoover tells friends that he intends to remain "strictly neutral" toward all candidates in the race for the G.O.P. Presidential nomination.

However, Hoover feels that Tom Dewey, Sen. Bob Taft, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg or Speaker Joe Martin—any one of them—would make a good president.

Mysterious Delay
There is a big hole on the east side of New York City where the United Nations headquarters some day are supposed to be. Meanwhile, a mysterious delay has developed and some say it leads directly to the White House.

One White House caller even came away reporting that the President favors moving the United Nations over to Geneva—despite the prodigious efforts of Americans to bring the United Nations to the U. S. The President complained that too many U. N. pressure groups have been bothering him.

Meanwhile, a hush-hush meeting took place on Long Island the other day. Net result was a decision that each member of the United Nations would pay up a proportion of the cost for the new buildings. Meanwhile, since the United Nations has no immediate cash on hand, a loan of 68 million dollars will be necessary from Uncle Sam, to be liquidated out of annual U. N. income.

Matter of Timing
Wives of Republican congressmen are hoping mad at Mrs. Truman. The First Lady scheduled the White House reception for congressmen on February 10, the very same day that most Republican congressmen were out making Lincoln day speeches. G.O.P. wives hint that Mrs. Truman wants to prevent the Republicans from getting a preview of the White House so many of them hope to occupy next year.

Feudin' and Fightin'
FDR's running feud with Capitol Hill Democrats is a well-known story, but with Harry Truman it was expected to be different. After all, he had served in the U. S. senate, and once, as President, even resumed his old seat on the floor of the senate; sometimes goes to lunch with senate Democrats in the private office of Leslie Biffle.

Today, however, Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill are just as sore at their old pal, Harry Truman, as they were at Roosevelt—possibly more so. What Alben Barkley and ex-Speaker Sam Rayburn say about their chief in the White House can't be printed in a family newspaper.

They were especially indignant at the way he handled the attempt to fire Marriner Eccles, replacing him with dyed-in-the-wool Republican Tom McCabe. They also were burnt up at the way Mr. Truman ousted James Landis from civil aeronautics.

Finally they are not at all happy over the present tax battle and the fact that they have to go down the line for what they call "Trum's screwball tax plan" to reduce everybody's taxes by ?

Martin Is Likely GOP Dark Horse

Contest Between Taft, Dewey Decisive in Republican Race

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

As this is written, the crystal ball gazers say that the 5' 8" black-moustached governor of the Empire State is going to be the next President of the United States. Some people will question this, and three, six or more months from now, even my private crystal-gazers may revise their predictions.

But the Dewey following is confident, even in the face of the latest Roper poll, which shows that Harold Stassen is the only Republican (now that Eisenhower is out) who could win four out of the six major geographical regions of the country from Mr. Truman! The poll says Stassen leads everywhere but in the solid South.

Suppose the solid South should split from the Democratic party, as they indicated they might in order to rebuke the President for his so-called "anti-southern" civil rights message which recommended anti-lynch, anti-practices legislation, which is labelled "pro-Negro" by many southern critics? Well, suppose that, and as of the date of this poll (February 5), Stassen has it.

Still the old-timers stick to their prediction of Dewey, which they make with tears in their eyes, instead of smoke from the smoke-filled room where decisions are supposed to be made. I wish that you people could have attended that over-crowded luncheon at the National Press club when Gen. Dwight Eisenhower spoke and introduced his successor, Gen. Omar Bradley, as chief of staff.

It was a good talk, and you probably read the report of it. You also probably have read the report of the question and answer period which General Eisenhower permitted, and which was one of the best news conferences—that's what it turned out to be—that I ever have attended. Members who couldn't get in were standing up, coughing ears, 12 to 15 deep outside the entrances to the dining room.

Naturally some questions dealt with the Eisenhower withdrawal statement issued late in January. The night after the Eisenhower withdrawal, which most Republicans and Democrats considered as final, I happened to be with two die-hard, right-wing Republicans, who wouldn't even admit they were as happy as they were. They kept saying, why couldn't he have said that much earlier if he meant it, and anyhow he has left a loophole so he can run, if not now, in 1952.

I couldn't see that. I knew a lot of Republicans thought Eisenhower's letter was an absolutely honest statement, dictated by the reasoning of an honest man, untrained in politics, it is true, but speaking from his heart. There isn't space to repeat Eisenhower's long statement in which he said, among other things:

"I am not available for and could not accept nomination for high political office. . . . My decision . . . is definite and positive. . . . The necessary and wise subordination of the military to civil power will be best sustained . . . when lifelong professional soldiers . . . abstain from seeking high political office. . . . I would regard it as unalloyed tragedy for our country if ever should come the day when military commanders might be selected with an eye to their future potentialities in the political field."

General Sherman said: "I will not run if nominated and will not serve if elected." But what motivated Sherman . . . and Eisenhower?

The sincere belief expressed in Eisenhower's statement that a man of purely military training wasn't equipped for the job? (That statement, as you know, was thrown back at Eisenhower as a sideswipe at Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who has emphatically NOT said that he didn't choose to run.)

I have spoken of the Eisenhower family at some length before in this column. I do not claim to be more than an acquaintance. But, as I said, when General Eisenhower's statement came over the wire, I was firmly convinced that there wasn't any equivocation in it. And I am glad that the press and their friends heard Eisenhower answer the questions as he did, giving back steel for steel on every throw.

There was a big sigh of relief, of course, when the Republican and Democratic leaders knew Eisenhower was out. I felt the same way, but for a different reason. My reason for being glad that Eisenhower isn't going to be President—as he would have been on any ticket if he had run—was the same reason he put forth. I have tremendous respect for him, personally, professionally. I am not a professional soldier, but my experience as a wartime soldier is reinforced by an indirect impression of military thought which goes back for many generations in my own family and is kept alive with close personal contacts in the armed services. I simply say this to the voter:

You may have a tremendous respect for a man's military record, but that doesn't mean you'd call him in if your child had appendicitis. Politics is just as much of a profession as medicine or the law.

We need a trained leader in this particular kind of leading. Maybe we will get one. Maybe we won't.

Speaker Joe Martin
Universally Popular
Stassen has certain qualities of leadership with which he seems to have impressed the people interviewed by the Roper pollers. But unless Stassen could "sweep the primaries"—I'm frankly quoting my chief crystal-gazer—he hasn't a chance at this writing. There doesn't seem to be a chance of his sweeping the primaries, and anyhow there aren't many states which have adopted this device, which it was thought could beat the "smoke-filled room."

Now, the man who is going to be nominated is the man who wins in the Taft-Dewey contest (always, as of NOW). That doesn't mean it will be Taft or Dewey. But it does mean that it will be the man who, although he hasn't enough votes on this preliminary, can pick up enough independent votes in later contests to see him through. At the present writing, it looks as if there were enough of those "changeable" votes to nominate Dewey.

If it's neither Dewey nor Stassen, the wise guys in Washington say it will be none other than Speaker Joe Martin, who never insulted anybody and has more friends in and out of Washington than a winner in a crap game when everyone else is broke. Without ever pulling any rough stuff, Joe Martin has put more people under willing obligation to him than any man I know in congress.

For example—when the Taft-Hartley fight was at its hottest, a certain Republican congressman came to Joe and said: "I'm sorry, Joe, I've got to bolt. My constituency doesn't want this bill." Joe didn't argue. He simply said: "Don't worry. I understand your situation perfectly. We'll get the votes anyhow. Forget it."

Some years ago, a magazine took a secret poll of the Washington correspondents to determine the most "useful" man in congress. He was to be judged by his "integrity, intelligence, industry and influence." Joe got the highest vote of anyone in either house or senate.

MARGARINE STRATEGY . . . Rep. Edward A. Mitchell (Rep., Ind.) acted as host at a capitol luncheon for congressmen and members of women's leagues who favor repeal of the present taxes on oleomargarine. Donning a chef's burlap cap, Mitchell demonstrated the process housewives must go through to color their margarine at home.

NEWS REVIEW

Peril Seen for Tax Cut; Soil Control Row Due

Following the first blush of joy over the spirit of deflation which seemed to have been evoked by the commodity market price slump, U. S. citizens began to realize that complications might set in.

Another significant hidden gimmick behind the market skid appeared to be the development that the price decline might, in the words of Sen. Scott Lucas (Dem., Ill.), "eliminate all possibility" of income tax reductions this year.

And that apparently was the cautious but considered opinion of the entire tax-writing senate finance committee, of which Lucas is a member.

Sen. Owen Brewster (Rep., Me.), also a finance committee member, expressed a concurring view, pointing out that any appreciable general price decline "certainly would have to be taken into consideration" by Republicans in their tax-cutting plans.

Another member of the group, Sen. Harry Byrd (Dem., Va.) said that if a decline of market prices develops into a business recession, it probably would have "a considerable effect" on tax reduction.

"I certainly am not going to vote for any bill that would put the treasury in a deficit position," said Byrd. While the senators' statements reflected a good deal of pussyfooting and at least a temporary surge of indecision with regard to tax reduction in the light of the market slump, it was obvious that they were thoroughly concerned with this turn of events.

Theory which set their tax-cutting plans awry is that a continued slump of commodity market prices would bring down the national income and tax receipts, thus rendering any major tax reduction perilous.

SOIL CONTROL: State or Federal?

One of the springtime battles now shaping up in congress will concern the issue of whether the national farm erosion program should be federally or state controlled.

Fireworks are scheduled to begin in March when the house agriculture committee opens hearings on a bill sponsored by Rep. Harry D. Cooley (Dem., N. C.) which would turn over the soil conservation program, operated by the agriculture department since 1935, to state land grant colleges.

Along with the transfer of authority would go about 10,500 department agents who administer the program in about 2,000 districts. That will provide a point of strong controversy, as will the measure's provision for federal grants to help states foot their soil-saving bills.

Pushing the switch from federal to state control most strongly is the national farm bureau, one of the most powerful lobbies in Washington, on the grounds that the soil conservation program would accomplish more under state authority.

The federal program has not been as effective as it should be so far, the farm bureau contends. But opponents of the transfer counter with the argument that the states lack

AID BURDEN: Taft's Plank

Sen. Robert Taft, Ohio's G.O.P. aspirant to the White House, started off another campaign jog around the West by offering a thoroughly Republican message calculated to appeal to a large portion of the western voters.

The United States cannot allow its foreign aid program to jeopardize freedom at home, he said in Chicago, his first stopping place.

"We should not be actuated by purely altruistic desire to improve the condition of a lot of other people who have failed for centuries to do the job themselves.

"We want peace and prosperity throughout the world to eliminate a threat to our own freedom, but it is certainly not worth while to adopt a foreign policy so burdensome on our own people that it will destroy at home the very freedom we are trying to protect."

There was expressed a major plank in Taft's campaign platform: Careful control of the foreign aid program in the pre-eminent light of how it may effect this nation's domestic economy.

Also, it was consistent with his activities in congress where he has been making that theory felt with regard to approval of the Marshall plan.

U. N. PLUM: To Europe

Decision on where the United Nations will hold its 1948 assembly meeting will mean that some European city will get a healthy, 50-million-dollar plum tossed in its lap.

Because the choice of a site for the coming meeting probably will involve that much money there is a considerable ferment of anxiety in the cities of Paris, Brussels, Geneva or the Hague, principal contenders for the honor.

Trygve Lie, U. N. secretary-general, just back from a tour of European cities, has made a factual report without actually recommending any one spot. He did, however, narrow the field down to those four cities.

The 57 member nations of the general assembly decided at last fall's session to hold the 1948 parley in Europe, possibly to get away from the scene of their erstwhile rather futile efforts.

experience to handle the project satisfactorily.

Currently operating under an annual budget of 39 million dollars, federal soil conservation service has 10,500 persons working with farmers, helping prepare conservation plans which the farmers may accept or reject.

So far it has prepared conservation plans for 476,128 farms covering 131,855,608 of the country's one billion acres of farm land.

Sweepstakes Hospital Idea
An American metropolis has voted to ask the state to give the green light to a lottery to raise a million dollars for new hospitals. Well, the general letting down of bars against gambling in this country won't result in any upbuilding of character, but since everybody is taking a chance on something, it is hard to frown on the idea of hospitals benefiting. All we hope is that no city dedicates one new institution as the Straight, Place and Show hospital or adds a Daily Double wing.

We can't help wondering how a sensitive patient in a hospital built through gambling will feel at times. Will he feel a little uncertain whether the nurse has been scratched when she is a little late showing up?

Will he want the morning line on doctors, in order to get the weights? And will it do him any good to see a notation, after a medico had bungled a bit, "Will do better next time out?"

Will there not always hang over the Sweepstakes hospitals the mood of the race track, the lottery and the pinball machine? Isn't it possible that in some insidious way the time may come when a diagnosis will be made through a slot machine?

We are all for anything that will build modern hospitals and improve the old ones, but we don't want to feel that the medical staff is handicapping patients.

There is thought to be a better than fair chance that the state will permit the development of hospitals through gambling, and should the lottery take the form of a sweepstakes we look for the following chart notations:

- Night Nurse . . . In and out.
- Interne . . . Needs schooling.
- Thermometer . . . Reliable sort.
- Staff Doc . . . Good at times.
- Cashier's office . . . Strictly money type.

- Soft Diet . . . Pass this one.
- Hospital Steak . . . Away long time.
- Square Meal . . . Later perhaps.
- Day Nurse . . . Shows flashes.

Letter for Special Delivery

Mrs. John Kieran, Riverside, N. Y.

Dear Margaret:
You and Jonathan will be going on the air soon, I predict, in a husband and wife program and I don't see how you can miss. But I tuned in on you and "The Brain" on a couple of programs and I want to warn you about something. You have to be firm. Do not waver on this point or you are lost. Jonathan is unconsciously a platform-hogger from away back and not too inclined to fly in company when he can fly solo.

The appeal of a Mr. and Mrs. Kieran radio program will be, to no small extent, to get a lead to you, as the wife of a famous man. But that man of yours has no inferiority complex and you will have to battle your way to the mike with a rugged determination.

You have to heed this advice, Margaret. Take a firm stand now, before it is too late. He is no man to give an entertainment partner an even break. Use violence if necessary. But don't weaken. Hold out for at least 50 per cent of the microphone and don't settle for 49.

You may have to carry a little stick with a nail in it. Jab him the minute he monopolizes the mike. The big novelty will be you. And you're good. Don't agree to any program that can be called, "The John Kieran Sawing a Partner in Half Hour."

Yours with all good wishes,
ELMER.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Have Baked Ham for a Social Supper. (See recipes below.)

Feeding Fifty

If your club or church is planning a community social dinner for a get-together or for the purpose of making money, you'll appreciate these tested recipes. The recipes are bound to be tempting to most people, which is an important consideration for dinners of this type. You'll need to do careful planning for both purchasing and preparing, or perhaps you can have a committee work out the donations so there will be more of a return on the dinner. Have your group choose an able leader to insure a successful dinner. She should be thoroughly familiar with all the procedures of the menu, and should be able to divide and assign the work properly, as well as to iron out all sorts of details that come up. Tableware should be checked in advance so there will be enough to go around. The same goes for kitchen equipment.

Men as well as women will like the menu for this community supper as it is appetizing and well balanced.

- Baked Ham
Buttered Green Beans or Peas
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Cole Slaw
- Apple Cranberry Sauce Relish
Rols Jelly Butter
- Pineapple Chiffon Cheese Cake

In addition to the items listed on the menu, you'll want to provide coffee, tea and milk as beverages. Here are the recipes for this dinner. They are carefully planned to serve 50 people.

Baked Ham. (Serves 50)
18 pound smoked ham
2 cups brown sugar
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1/4 cup cloves
Place ham (wrapped in heavy waxed paper or inside wrapper), fat side up in an uncovered roasting pan. Bake in a slow (350 degree) oven about 5 1/2 hours. About an hour before the ham is done, remove from oven, lift off remaining skin and score fat surface. Mix brown sugar and mustard, add enough vinegar to make a paste. Spread paste over fat surface and stud with cloves. Return to oven and bake in a slow (325 degree) oven for about 45 minutes to glaze the surface.

Here are some other glazes which may be used. The amounts are sufficient to cover the surface of one ham:

ORANGE GLAZE: Mix one cup brown sugar, juice and grated rind of one orange and spread over fat surface. Garnish with orange slices when serving.

HONEY OR MOLASSES GLAZE: Use one cup honey or molasses and spread over ham; stud with cloves. Finish baking.

SPICE GLAZE: Use one cup brown sugar and one cup juice from spiced peaches, crabapples, ginger pears or pickled peaches. Garnish with the spiced fruit.

For the vegetable, green beans, you may use two No. 10 cans, seasoned with one cup butter, salt and pepper. Heat thoroughly but be certain not to overcook.

Candied Sweet Potatoes. (Serves 50)
2 No. 10 cans or 8 No. 2 1/2 cans sweet potatoes
1 pound brown sugar
2 quarts bread crumbs
1 cup melted butter
Place sweet potatoes in a baking pan. Combine remaining ingredients and place over sweet potatoes. Bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven until heated through.

Cole Slaw. (Serves 50)
1 pint mayonnaise
1 pint sour cream
1 cup vinegar
1 teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup sugar
7 quarts (6 pounds) cabbage, shredded fine
Blend the mayonnaise, sour cream and seasonings. Mix lightly with the cabbage.

Apple Cranberry Sauce Relish. (Serves 50)
3 oranges
5 No. 2 cans apple sauce
3 1-pound cans cranberry sauce
Grind oranges and combine with apple sauce. Chill for several hours. Cut up cranberry sauce in cubes. Just before serving mix cranberry cubes with the apple sauce.

Pineapple Chiffon Cheese Cake. (Serves 50)
3 cups sugar
3 pints syrup from pineapple and water
12 egg yolks
2 ounces (1/2 cup) plain gelatin
3 No. 2 1/2 cans crushed pineapple
4 pounds (2 quarts) sieved cottage cheese
1/4 cup grated lemon rind
3/4 cup lemon juice
12 egg whites
1 teaspoon salt
1 quart heavy cream for whipping
2 quarts graham cracker crumbs or zwieback
1 pound butter, melted
Combine two cups sugar and two cups syrup with slightly beaten egg yolks. Cook over hot water until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Soften gelatin in remaining syrup for five minutes. Add to hot mixture and stir until dissolved. Chill until the mixture starts to congeal; add pineapple, cottage cheese, lemon rind and juice. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites, salt and whipped cream. Combine crumbs with remaining sugar and butter. Line a pan with this mixture, saving about a third for the top. Pour in cheese mixture and top with remaining crumbs mixture. Chill for several hours until firm.

2 ounces (1/2 cup) plain gelatin
3 No. 2 1/2 cans crushed pineapple
4 pounds (2 quarts) sieved cottage cheese
1/4 cup grated lemon rind
3/4 cup lemon juice
12 egg whites
1 teaspoon salt
1 quart heavy cream for whipping
2 quarts graham cracker crumbs or zwieback
1 pound butter, melted
Combine two cups sugar and two cups syrup with slightly beaten egg yolks. Cook over hot water until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Soften gelatin in remaining syrup for five minutes. Add to hot mixture and stir until dissolved. Chill until the mixture starts to congeal; add pineapple, cottage cheese, lemon rind and juice. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites, salt and whipped cream. Combine crumbs with remaining sugar and butter. Line a pan with this mixture, saving about a third for the top. Pour in cheese mixture and top with remaining crumbs mixture. Chill for several hours until firm.

Heavy Crops Drain Soil of Plant Food Mineral Supply Needed To Restore Fertility

Heavy wartime croppings drained twice as much nitrogen from Illinois soils as was put back by fertilizer applications or legume crops, declares O. L. Whalin, University of Illinois. What was true in Illinois was true of farm soils in numerous other Midwestern states.

Approximately 3,300,000 tons of nitrogen were removed from the soil in harvested crops in the 1942-46 period, Whalin points out. But only about 1,500,000 tons of nitrogen were returned to the land. This replacement included nitrogen in fertilizer applications, plus 60 per cent of the nitrogen in legumes harvested and in sweet clover turned under.

The supply of other mineral elements was seriously depleted. Whalin estimates that only about half of the phosphorus taken from the soil was replaced. Less than one-thirtieth as much potash was added through commercial fertilizers as was removed by harvested crops.

"This heavy drain on the soil's mineral supply," says Whalin, "has reached the point where crop yields on many soils definitely depend on the amount of minerals applied. Manure, inoculated legumes, phosphate and potash are required, will maintain and even increase yields on most soils."

Carrying out such a program, he adds, calls for use of lime on much of the land in order to grow legumes. Lime should be applied on the basis of soil tests. It should be used from six months to a year before legumes are seeded, in order to sweeten the soil.

Rich West Virginia mountain lime plant. Lime is sold to the farmers to increase production on crop and pasture land.

Deep-Rooted Legumes

Deep-rooted legumes work in two major ways to improve till, rebuild soil structure and increase the supply of mineralized organic matter.

1. Well-fed legumes such as sweet clover or alfalfa push their taproots deep into the soil. These roots open up tightly packed earth below the plow furrows. Neither water nor air can penetrate such compacted soil. Crop roots cannot do their job of carrying nutrients to the plant growth "factory" above ground. But when deep-rooted legumes are grown frequently in the rotation, till and soil structure are improved. The land becomes loose and easy to work. Channels for air and water and passageways for the roots of following crops are made.

2. Deep-rooted legumes are efficient feeders on the soil's available phosphorus and potash. They can forage for these plant foods when other crops will fail. The legumes gather these nutrients into their taproots. When plowed under, these roots put all-important mineralized organic matter down where it should be, readily available for the roots of other crops following in the rotation.

Soil Fumigant Stops Work of Nematodes

In its war on soil pests, scientific research has forged a fatal new weapon against nematodes, the eel-like worms whose burrowing activities cause nearly two million acres of farmland in the South to lay idle every year. This weapon is a soil fumigant known as D-D, whose chief component is dichloropropane and its use allows repeated plantings year after year of many crops which now are rotated.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

When washing windows during the winter put a small quantity of ammonia or vinegar into the water. This helps to keep the water from freezing on the glass.

When laundering lace collars, sew the collars on white muslin. This will help keep them in shape.

Protect your rubbers from oil and soil. Oil causes blistering, and soil will cause rubber articles to chip and crack and lose their resilient strength. Clean well after using.

Keep on hand: Percolator tops, electric fuses, an assortment of corks, waxed paper, paper napkins, a box of tacks, an extra can-opener, extra light bulbs, a ball of twine, bicycle tape.

For a larger and fluffier omelet, add hot instead of cold water when beating the egg yolks.

Keep acid foods, such as tomatoes, lemons and vinegar off the porcelain enamel of a range or refrigerator. They cause stains that won't come off.

Fired to Better Job

Editor Horace Greeley was famed for his illegible handwriting, which few people could decipher. Once, after an argument with an employee, he wrote the man a letter informing him that he was fired.

Several months passed. Then one day the former employe stopped by for a chat.

"You're the fellow I fired some time ago, aren't you?" asked Greeley. "How are you getting along?"

"Oh, just fine, thanks to you, Mr. Greeley!" laughed the other. "You remember that letter you sent me? Well, I showed it to an editor the following day and told him it was a letter of recommendation from you. He gave me a job immediately—and for more money!"

Wages and Baskets

A real basket of food, according to the American Federation of Labor, is a good unit to use in measuring income. That is, how many baskets of food will your wages buy? The Federation's "Monthly Survey" for July has put together some interesting figures comparing wages in America in 1940 with wages in Europe in 1940. These figures are in terms of baskets containing items for adequate nourishment. An American family of five would need about four of these baskets a day.

One hour's work by a factory worker in the United States in 1940, according to the A. F. of L., would buy 2.83 baskets. In Britain an hour of work would buy 1.26 baskets. In France, 1.11; in Germany, 1.02; in Italy, .66; and in Russia, only .40. This means that the American worker could buy with his wages seven times as much food as a Russian could with his in 1940.

Measure of Freedom

These figures are in keeping with personal observations in Europe in 1936 and again in 1946. The amount of food a worker could buy with his wages was in direct proportion to the amount of freedom that a worker enjoyed in his own country. Russia had the least individual freedom and the lowest wages. America had the most freedom and the highest wages.

More than 20 years of Communism in Russia, under a totalitarian state which owns and operates the tools of production, has failed to change the ratio in comparison with America. The "Monthly Survey" is right when it comments that history has proved that "free enterprise under a democratic form of government provides the highest living standards for workers." Workers are becoming aware that their best opportunities lie in preserving individual opportunity—freedom to own property and to create and operate an industry or business.

Threats Today

I fear, however, that the American public does not understand some of the threats being made upon this very essential factor in the American way of life. I am interested in seeing industry pay the highest possible wages. America must continue to provide the best for the most. But I see dangers threatening the very things that enable Americans to buy more baskets of food than the workers of any land.

1. High taxes are cutting off investment of new venture capital. This will prevent expansion and growth. New tools and new industries will not be available to provide jobs.

2. An extravagant federal budget continues to spend and to create inflation. This restrains men from venturing and investing.

3. Industrial relations are uneasy. This instability again makes capital afraid to venture.

Way to Confidence

Taxes must be lowered enough that the ordinary man can keep a larger percentage of his earnings, and so that men will be inspired to invest and venture into business enterprise. We need to overhaul the federal budget, to get rid of wasteful and inflationary government spending. We need firm but friendly industrial relations.

If these things were achieved, they could do much to preserve the essential ingredient of our system of high wages and high standards of living in this land—the free.

Foreign Aid and Its Effects

An understanding of human nature will tell us that we are giving aid to Europe and most of the countries there will come angry at us. They will give to an individual and you give it, the individual becomes angry when you give to be true of nations, too. That we have a policy of liberality is not surprising.

We should pay attention to trends, lest we give our Communist agitators the assistance they want: 1. Regulations on industry that would limit production and add to shortages of goods. 2. High taxes of a nature that limit capital flowing into tools of production, to make it appear the government should produce goods. 3. Industrial confusion, creating misunderstanding and suspicion between workers and employers. The agitators just love those things!

Fairy Tales for Grown-Ups Ever hear of grown-ups believing in fairy tales? Well, perhaps not Cinderella or Jack and the Beanstalk. But when it comes to the economic "facts of life," it is amazing what some folks will accept instead of facts.

One tale of economic nonsense, usually going the rounds, has it that industry is rolling in money and making exorbitant profits. Usually, industry (erstwhile known as "big business" and "bloated capitalists") is the villain. These uncalled-for profits are literally squeezed out of the consumers and the workers, and piled up somewhere by the "soulless corporation," like so much gold guarded by a fire-breathing dragon.

We could go on. But see what I mean? It is high time somebody got a true-to-life story started that shows what our system of free investment and free enterprise has done for the people of this country.

How Much Profit? National polls, not too long ago, found workers thinking generally that business makes from 25 to 50 per cent profit. Surveys among labor union members have found the workers thinking that 10 per cent profit on sales would be about right. Even a government booklet prepared for veterans says "A business . . . should make at least 10 per cent profit clear." Well, fairy tales to the contrary, one statistician shows that actually business makes on the average only 2.9 per cent profit on sales volume.

Some businesses make less and some make more. In 17 years of sales, the Republic Steel Corporation has made 2 per cent on the company's sales to customers. General Electric has figured its average for 30 years at only 8.9 per cent. You see, it just so happens that industry gets far less than the 10 per cent that everybody seems to think would be fair.

Best Incentive. But we have been taking a lot for granted! Nobody has shown, fairy tale fashion, why it would be so bad if industry were making a better profit. Actually, nothing would be bad about it. It is good for the welfare of the nation, for the consumer, for the worker, for everybody — if industry makes a good profit. Only if industry makes a fair profit, can we expect plant expansion and more jobs.

Republic Steel, already mentioned, divided each dollar that it had for owners and the workers in 1946. The workers got 91 cents. The owners got 4 cents in dividends, and 5 cents was plowed back into the business. Without profit there's not a chance for good wages to continue. Without dividends, there's no attraction to new venture capital. New investments are important to the welfare of everyone. We need prosperous industries. Yet, who wants to invest hard-earned dollars in a business that can't make a profit? Active production lines, in industries that can show a profit, are the basis of America's prosperity and high standard of living.

Just Communism, Again Things have not been going well in France and Italy. Press reports speak increasingly of Communist-inspired rioting. These riots, in which people are being killed and many injured, are in perfect keeping with the well known methods of the Communists. They work with violence—showing their real colors.

When I visited Communist headquarters in Paris last year, it was clear from their own talk that they were building upon hate. Events that have come to pass therefore are not surprising. Where the individual is not respected, violence may be expected. Most of the hatred, destruction, and chaos still stalking the earth may be laid at the door of those bitter and false philosophers who have denied human rights and liberties!

Of such is Communism, both in theory and in action. In the recent French elections, when the de Gaulists (anti-Communists) gained ground, the French Communists were ready to go into action. They had gone as far as they could by peaceful action, so the Communists used violence to take the great port city of Marseille. American and British flags, hanging in Armistice celebrations were torn from the city hall. Confusion was rampant.

Communist-led unions in other cities began to go out on strike, to add to the confusion. Coal miners and auto workers struck. The Communists have called for "committees of defense," to resist the peaceful election victory of the followers of de Gaulle. France continues to call up soldiers, anticipating continued trouble. Civil war could develop.

It is noteworthy that French Communists hold labor captive. So powerful is the Communist-led Trade Union Central committee, that apparently whenever it says so, a general strike is begun. It is a pity that, as desperately as France needs peace and production, its workers are misled into contributing to the political chaos. In Italy, the Communists also failed to win an election and adopted methods of violence in an attempt to start a civil war.

What Agitators Want These things are not surprising. They are just the ordinary, well-established tactics of the Communists. But to Americans, these events must serve as warning. If we want to preserve peace, harmony, and prosperity, we should keep our own people well-informed. When Americans see through these tactics with understanding, it will be impossible for us to have enough Communists and "fellow travelers" to create such violence in America.

What Do About It There is one way, and only one way, to avoid a serious depression, and that way is open to the American people. Responsibility rests firmly upon each of us, no matter what may be our economic status or individual social background, to choose out this proper course. There is no way to go, if we should face into a depression, except toward hard work and the high productivity of industrial peace.

That's the formula that will enable us to weather a business recession, provided we begin to use it now. We must all tighten our belts, get our feet on the ground, and go to work just as hard as we can work. A greatly increased measure of productivity per man-hour is the best answer to the present situation that can be thought up.

Down With Prices With increased productivity, with an honest hour's labor given for every hour's pay, we could see a considerable lowering of prices. Indeed, with genuine whole-hearted cooperation from labor and industry, it would be quite possible to increase output as much as 40% generally. This should be enough to bring about a general 25% reduction in prices. This could be done with our present labor force and without increased working hours.

This would in fact bring prices down until it would be equivalent to an increase in wages. This is the one sound answer to the present threat of a depression. Such an answer would also give us hope of regaining our foreign markets, which have had little attention paid to them since the war.

Wisdom of a Sage The importance of this thing prompted Bernard M. Baruch to state recently that the whole post-war world would "get going only if men work" and to come out for a 5 1/2 day, 44 hour week. The seriousness of the problem we face is such that we may be able to save civilization if we accept the challenge, Mr. Baruch said, adding that this would mean greater effort than that exerted during the war.

In proposing a 44 hour work week, "with no strikes or layoffs to January 1, 1949," as a means of increasing production, Mr. Baruch recognized our present tendencies to put limitations on our work. He emphasized that a way must be found for production to flow smoothly. This achieved, then a "sense of security would return to worker and employer, and the reaction upon the economy of the world would be deep and lasting."

Heads Together The sage Mr. Baruch has more. "Until we have unity, until we straighten out and solve our problems of production, and have internal stability, there is no basis on which the world can renew itself physically or spiritually," he continued. If labor and industry would put their heads together, come to a realistic solution of their problems, shake hands across the table and go to work in earnest to whip this threat of immediate depression through maximum and whole-hearted production, then so one would have anything to fear.

Be An "Engineer in Good Eating"—Do Home Canning! Simple Instructions Based on Science You may not have a degree as an engineer, Mrs. Housewife, but when you're home canning you're using scientific principles just as surely as a mining, chemical, electrical or other engineer. That is, if you follow glass jar manufacturer's instructions, for they are based upon scientific discoveries made over a period of a century and a half. Back in Napoleon's time, a Paris confectioner, Nicolas Appert, set out to find a method of food preservation and win a 12,000-franc prize offered in 1795 by the French government. Napoleon, like Frederick the Great, believed an army travels on its stomach, and the folks at home got hungry and discontented too! Nicolas won the prize, after 15 years' work, but his methods and equipment have been greatly improved upon. He labored under many handicaps, not knowing a temperature beyond boiling is required for processing some foods and having to design his own glass jars. Not until 1860 did Louis Pasteur establish the fact that microorganisms are responsible for food spoilage. Fourteen years later, an American, A. K. Shriver of Baltimore, invented the "retort" or "pressure" cooker. In 1858 John Mason patented the Mason jar with neck designed for receiving a screw type cap. The Mason jar with porcelain-lined zinc cap is an old reliable. Mason would probably be astounded by the 1947 cap for sealing the Mason jar. This new style cap is a two-piece metal affair with a Dome lid which has sealing compound on the under side and is tested for seal by pressing on the center of the lid with the finger. Sealing with the Dome lid is made doubly sure by the new type metal band which bears down on the lid at three pressure points. Also reliable in seal is the lightning type jar with rubber ring, glass lid and wire bail. Many scientific experiments and jar improvements have perfected processes for today's home canning and it is upon them that instructions you will find in reliable home canning literature such as the Ball Blue Book are based. Follow these instructions and you become an "Engineer in Good Eating"—much to the benefit of your family's health and increased pleasure at the table provided by delicious home canned foods.

The Dangerous Card Game

Rev. W. E. Izenhour, High Point, N. C. R4

Many times the question is asked, "What is the difference between cards and other games?" It is said, "A game is a game; and if it is all right to play dominoes, why not cards?"

There is a vast difference. Water and whiskey are both drinks, but everyone admits that there is a difference between them. The following facts show plainly the difference between cards and all other games: for these facts are well known to professional gamblers. They admit that the Bible and cards are antagonistic, and will not play cards with the Bible on the table.

In the first place, cards were invented to amuse an idiotic king, not for the entertainment of an intelligent people. Every thought suggested by them is in direct opposition to God and righteousness.

First, the "ten spot" is in opposition to the Ten Commandments.

Second, "Clubs" represent a weapon of murder.

Third, "Spades" a tool to dig graves, suggest death.

Fourth, "Hearts," (how ridiculous) holds up the broken heart of Christ in derision instead of devotion.

Fifth, "Jack" represents a libertine who lives off the gains of fallen women; one who makes a business of commercialized vice.

Sixth, "King" represents the devil the king of darkness, the God of this world, the prince of the power of the air, in opposition to God, the King of all the universe. Satan, the king of darkness, leads and entices men away from God and heaven, downward to hell.

Seventh, "Queen" represents Mary, but in a slanderous way. She is the mother of Nimrod, the great grandson of Noah, set herself up in opposition to God, and instituted, with her son, every pagan type of religion, all of them opposing God. Knowing that a "Deliverer" should come, (Gen. 22:15) Semiramis set herself and son up to be the "Mother and Child." Ancient sculpture shows this plainly.

She took the name, "Queen of heaven," also "Queen of angels," "Mother of God," etc. She is the "Queen of harlots," and is worshipped as such in every country under different names such as "Diana," "Juno," "Venus," etc.

Knowing God's plan, she ran a head of God under Satan's direction; and every licentious religion on earth and every anti-Jehovah religion sprang from her ungodly, rebellious mind. She is a slanderer on the name of the virgin mother of our Lord.

Eighth, "Joker" represents Jesus, and is the most horrid blasphemy of all; for the joker is supposed to be the product of an illicit union between the "Jack" and "Queen."

Could any but Satan be the inventor of a deck of cards?

A person is known by the company he keeps.

Every dissipation of youth has to be paid for by a draft on old age.

When a shipwrecked sailor, left to the mercy of the waves, has no help within view but a spar or mast, how he will cling to it, how firmly he will grasp it—he will hold to it as life itself! If a passing billow sweeps him from it, with all his might he will make for it again, and grasp it faster than ever. To part is to perish; and so he clings—and how anxiously!

Washington—The F. B. I. has its hands full—checking on complaints that veterans have been taken for a ride by chiseling builders.

Complaints of cellars that leak, floors that twist and warp—of homes not built to specifications. Thousands of such complaints have been received. In the office of the federal housing expediter there are at least 26,000.

According to the Justice Department, most of the complaints from disgruntled G-I homeowners are from Los Angeles, Baltimore, New York, New Orleans, Miami, Dallas and Chicago.

There was the veteran who said he was paid for a six room house and got a house with only five. And there was a complaint about the builder who put up a long row of G-I houses. He cut the width of each house by one foot so he could squeeze more houses into the block. And there were complaints of over-charging.

Attorney General Tom Clark has put one of the F.B.I.'s best men in charge of the investigation. In some cases, the F.B.I. will try to get a refund for the cheated veteran. And if deliberate violations are turned up, they'll be handed to the federal courts for criminal action.

A Grim Prediction

From a recent story in the newspapers we learned this information: "The worst wave of strikes in the country's history was predicted for this spring and summer in a statement adopted at Miami by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor. America is now experiencing a lull before the storm," the leaders of 7,200,000 unionized workers warned. "When present collective bargaining contracts expire, the most difficult period in the history of labor relations in this country threatens to ensue."

That certainly doesn't sound very encouraging, does it? However, chances are that the prediction will come true.

Workers will go on strike because the cost of living has risen so sharply during the last few months. They claim that they must have more money. They go on strike. They are successful in getting what they want. And then what happens?

The producers and manufacturers are compelled to raise the prices of the articles they produce or manufacture. The retail merchants do the same. The cost of living goes up some more. And what happens then?

Other strikes, of course.

We've said it before: isn't it a pity that a nation such as ours, with all our advantages and opportunities, can't settle the differences between capital and labor without these disastrous and expensive strikes!—The State.

We Break Our Sword

Charlotte Observer

The Committee of southern Governors who called on Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath have made their gesture of conciliation. They were rudely rebuffed by the national leadership of the Democratic party. As a result, they and the people they represent are under no further moral obligation to the leadership that has made the party no longer recognizable as the one to which they for decades gave an almost fanatical loyalty.

The reasons for loyalty to the present leaders have disappeared. It was based upon the ancient Democratic tenet that this party stood between the South and the more radical forms of the Reconstruction. That party alone had given the tacit pledge to refrain from trying to destroy the social system of the South by means of force imposed from without. That party had consistently recognized the constitutional principle that the states were still sovereign, that they had undisputed authority over their own electorate and implicit police powers within their borders.

The position of this newspaper from the beginning has been that the civil rights program of President Truman is not a race-relations issue, because the South has by its own efforts practically eliminated lynchings, and because an intelligent segregation is the product of nearly three generations of experience of the two races in finding a means of living together. Our race relations are not perfect, but they are being improved year by year as fast as the changes can be absorbed by our social system. A sudden and radical departure from this steady progress would be harmful to both races and particularly to the Negro.

The issue, then, is not race relations, but the constitutional principles that delimit the powers of Federal and State governments.

The present Democratic leadership has deserted those principles and in so doing has destroyed the only reasons the South had for following them. The bond of loyalty is therefore dissolved, and the Governors whose committee presented a dignified petition for redress of grievance that was flatly rejected can now, in the name of the South, break their swords in two and lay the pieces at the feet of their former chiefs.

It was only after a session of painful soul searching that this newspaper came to the reluctant conclusion that the South has no choice now but to repudiate those leaders, to call upon the Democratic party to return to its original principles by rejecting the nomination of Harry Truman at the national convention, and to nominate a man who is more truly representative of the party as a whole and is less inclined to sacrifice the interests of the great body of Democrats in order to court the favor of a few splinter groups that happen to control a block of strategic votes.

It behooves our Governors and members of Congress, therefore, and all other Democratic leaders in the South to begin now to devise means of throwing the whole strength of the southern vote in the national convention to another candidate and to gather to the support of that candidate as many delegations from other states as can possibly be mustered.

The process of education has been going on a long time, but the ignorance prevalent continues to be amazing.

Winter of Old

Bringing on the tales of snows that were deeper, freezes that were harder and winters that were much more severe! We of this generation will listen to them with patience for we know we've got our day a-comin'. Come the evenings when our grand-children gather about our easy chair won't we be laying it on about this year 1948, the snows that came and came and came, deeper, colder, longer lasting every time. The roads that couldn't be passed the highways that were dangerous to man and bus and the homes where families shivered with their oil stoves turned on low.

Already one has risen to tell about a time in the year 1881 or thereabout when the winter was so hard small rivers froze over and fuel supplies ran out with no more general wood cutting possible and sometime in that cold spell, stumps sold from $2 to $3 each and householders even cut down shade trees in their yards or split up old furniture for warmth. We'll all try to match that one to our grand-children but one bit of it we won't be able to match and that is that the kerosene in the oil lamps froze over at night—Not many of us have done much cutting down of trees either this winter for, unfortunately most for us have got rid of our wood burning stoves some time back, and if we can't get oil we just move in with those who can.

A Cold Spot

The inhabitants of the earth shouldn't complain too much about the weather. Scientists say that on the planet of Mars the daytime temperature is just above freezing and at night it drops to something like eighty below.

Right now the astronomers are trying to find out other things about conditions on Mars. The planet will swing closer to earth tonight than at any other time in two years, and at McDonald observatory at Fort Davis Texas, the scientists want to find out whether or not water is present on Mars in some form and whether the green areas on Mars are trees, grass or weeds like our own.

Great Scott!

Coming from Missouri and being the son of a Confederate soldier himself, President Truman's recommendation to congress that anti-Southern laws be enacted is purely "humbug."

If President Truman was not bidding for the Negro vote in the North he would be opposing the very measures he is advocating.

And if Senator Taft were not bidding for their support he would be against these measures himself.

This annual "stage-show" in Congress and would-be statesmen is sickening to say the least.

Truman, Taft and the others should know that no concern is going to hire a Negro when he wants a white man or hire a white man when he wants a Negro just because the law says so. Such a law would be a great deal harder to enforce than the 18th Amendment and would not be worth a tinkers dam in the South.

How many negro secretaries does Mr. Truman have, and how many Negro secretaries does Senator Taft have?

This is a question the Negroes should ask before taking these recommendations too seriously—Exchange.

The Economic Front

WASHINGTON. — When news of the stock and commodity market break first reached the White House, President Truman was deeply concerned.

However, after the council of economic advisers had surveyed the market and reported to him in detail, Mr. Truman told one close adviser:

"I am now glad it happened — for two reasons. First, we scared a lot of speculators out of the grain market, and, second, prices are coming down to a level where they will be governed more by the law of supply and demand."

The White House economic surveys show several significant things. Most important to the housewife is that the somewhat hysterical reductions in retail prices are the result of grocers' psychology.

Another significant factor is that the stock market has remained fairly stable compared with the commodity market.

Presidential economic advisers have reported to Mr. Truman that there is little likelihood that the break in commodity prices will spread generally to industrial prices.

One cause for the commodity break was the flood of wheat which farmers sent to market after January 1.

Another reason for the grain-market decline is the law, recently passed by the Republican congress, requiring the administration to hold 150 million bushels of grain in this country as protection against future crop failure.

In brief, Mr. Truman's advisers have informed him that the commodity nose-dive is more likely to avert rather than cause a depression.

G.I.'s Best Friend

Kindly Gen. Omar Bradley, known as the G.I.'s best friend, had a birthday anniversary recently.

As Bradley just had been made chief of staff, top brass of the Pentagon building were in something of a twitter as to who would be invited to the general's birthday party.

As time of the party arrived, the mystery was easily solved. Those invited were the clerks, secretaries and enlisted men who worked in Bradley's office.

West Coast Shipbuilding

President Truman was anxious to get those big shipbuilding plants on the west coast, idle since V-J Day, back into operation.

However, he told GOP Rep. Dick Welch of California and other west coast congressmen that they ought to do a little missionary work with their own appropriations committees in congress if west coast shipbuilding is to be revived.

Congress, Mr. Truman reminded his visitors very pointedly, was the bottleneck—not the White House.

"I'm wholeheartedly in favor of a government subsidy to enable west coast shipbuilders to compete with eastern builders, who have lower production costs," the President said.

The most important reason the President wants to keep western ship plants in operation is defense.

Seers Silent on Commodity Trend

Myth of Current Price Dip: 'Truman Planned It That Way'

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—It is still open season for economists, financial experts and market wizards. It took about a week after the first drop on the commodity market to send them into their holes.

But along about the sixth day of the dip, anybody who would tell you whether we were facing a permanent nose-dive or just weathering the reduction (that issue, itself, had changed after the sixth dip).

Baukhage

That did open a Pandora's box, and some of the plagues released alighted on the very rooftop of the White House. But it also threw a scare into the marketeers and the market.

Then came the day of a White House press and radio conference when the President made a remark—credited at the time by some of his friends as an unhappy slip—when he said that if the cost of living was not controlled, there would be a crash.

There are many others of these tales which will grow, such as the creating of sun-spots by the administration's atomic-energy experts. But one is enough for the moment.

Like-wise, in October of 1948, several astute Washington inside-stuff letter writers were saying privately to their thousands of clients, and the AFL monthly survey was saying in public print, that by early 1947 prices would come down.

Other writers predicted it a little later, and some, by summer, were insisting that deflation already was here.

But what happened? In the very year of that doleful prophecy, prices started on the upshoot that took them into their all-time high.

Many other similar bad guesses might be mentioned, all of which contributed toward making the prophets reticent, and so when the slide came in February of this year, nobody would even whisper "fox" for fear that not even a bit would appear.

In any case, this dip, drop, depression or delusion, whichever it turns out to be by the time these lines reach print, or later, will have its garland of myths and legends entwined about it.

The blueprint is simple enough if you are good at reading a blueprint between the lines. Prices were getting too high. At worst, they might bring on a real depression before election; at best, they would bring a series of strikes and work stoppages which might seriously hamper the Marshall plan on the one hand, and add to the discontent of the voters on the other.

There was some evidence that this may really have been intended because the President did ask in his November 17 message to congress for credit controls and increased bank reserves.

However, when congress said "humph" to that along with the President's other recommendations, he turned around and demoted the man who is said to have written the deflation prescription from the chairmanship of the federal reserve board (Marriner Eccles), and put in a man supposed to have more sympathy with an opposite course.

However we mustn't spoil a good story by facts. There are other points which can be introduced to give a touch of verisimilitude to an otherwise not-too-convincing narrative. The soothsayers say that several methods were pursued, some of them successfully. For example, the President slam-banged at what he called the "gamblers" in commodities who were driving up food prices by speculating in grain and other futures.

That did open a Pandora's box, and some of the plagues released alighted on the very rooftop of the White House. But it also threw a scare into the marketeers and the market.

Aid for China Asked; Senate OKs Budget Cut

Although it was obvious that his heart wasn't in it, President Truman presented congress with a request for 570 million dollars to be sent to China as a prop for the founding economy of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government.

White House and state department sources admitted that the request was something less than a half-measure and claimed that the President had acted under pressure from the Republican congress which has insisted that the U. S. must support Chiang against the Communist revolution in connection with the European recovery plan.

At best the 570 million dollars is a token gesture—just a chip in relation to the vast amount of timber that would be needed to restore the rotting derelict of Chiang's government.

Theory behind this latest extension of aid, which will be used to finance Chinese imports of cereals, petroleum, coal, fertilizer and so forth, is that the money will enable Chiang's government to free other resources for purchase of arms and ammunition to continue the fight against the Communist guerrillas.

But that is more of an idle hope than a valid theory, because the government forces, despite their American arms and equipment, are being bested consistently by the Communists.

Just how long a government made up of so many diverse components would last was the subject of much speculation in Ireland. In their present cooperative mood the parties of the coalition may carry on for a year or two, but few were prepared to give the government a much longer span of life.

With little discussion and a good deal of outright indifference, the senate adopted a resolution to cut President Truman's fiscal 1949 budget by 2.5 billion dollars.

How much significance the senate resolution would have in the final analysis was questionable, in view of prevailing uncertainties which might affect both sides of the ledger.

The 2.5-billion-dollar reduction would leave an estimated 10 billion dollars for tax cuts and debt reduction. Republicans, therefore, were feeling increasingly confident that an income tax slash of up to 5 billion dollars could be enacted.

Brevity of the senate discussion and its lack of apologetic oratory was in direct contrast to last year's strident contest over the budget committee's recommendation of a 6-billion-dollar cut in the 1948 budget.

Democrats made no effort to block the proposed spending slash which had been recommended by the house-senate budget committee. It still requires house adoption.

Biggest bug in the senate's budget recommendation was the fact that it probably embodied a number of inaccurate estimates. Republican sponsors of the measure admitted that accurate estimates of budget needs were impossible at the time.

Sen. Styles Bridges (Rep., N. H.), chairman of the budget committee, compared the estimates with "a pre-game guess at the final score." But Sen. Alben Barkley (Dem., Ky.) called the procedure "a step in the dark."

IRELAND:

New Premier

Even to members of the Eire assembly who had helped defeat him it was strange to see Eamon De Valera, premier of Ireland for 16 years, sitting quietly on the opposite side of the house as leader of the opposition.

In his place as premier was John A. Costello, former attorney general, whom the assembly had voted into office after a new six-party coalition had taken control of the legislative group as a result of the previous elections.

Costello, in a dignified speech to the assembly, explained his sudden emergence as premier of Ireland: "I consented to this nomination at the request of a number of parties who felt that the interest of the country required that there should be an inter-party government and that the premier of that government should occupy a position in political life detached from the controversial bitterness of the past."

The "inter-party government" whose choice Costello was is compounded of six political parties of apparently divergent ideals: Republican, United Ireland, Labor, National Labor, Independent and Farmers.

73 acres, 8-room home, outbuildings. Good saw timber. 3 1/2 miles from town.

2 eggs
1/4 cup sugar
2 1/4 cups milk
3 cups sifted flour
2 tablespoons baking powder
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 cup melted shortening
1/2 cup bran

Beat eggs and sugar until light and fluffy. Add milk and mix well. Sift flour with baking powder and salt; add to first mixture, stirring until flour disappears. Add shortening. Fold in bran. Bake on a hot griddle, turning only once.

You'll find that Dutch pancakes will do a nice filling job during breakfast, as well as contributing the valuable protein of eggs for this meal.

Dutch Pancakes. (Serves 4)
4 eggs
1/2 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup milk
2 tablespoons soft butter
Confectioners' sugar
Jam

Beat eggs thoroughly. Sift flour and salt together and add to eggs alternately with milk to make a smooth batter. Spread butter over bottom and sides of cold frying pan. Pour in batter and place in a hot (400 degree) oven. Bake 20 to 25 minutes, reducing heat gradually to moderate (350 degrees) during the baking. Pancakes should puff up at the sides.

Banana Sour Cream Bread. (Makes 1 large loaf)
1/2 cup thick sour cream
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 1/2 cups mashed banana
1 cup bran
1 1/2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda

Blend the first four ingredients. Add, sifted together, the dry ingredients. Place in a greased loaf pan and let stand 20 minutes. Bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven for about one hour. Make this the day before, and toast for breakfast. It's delicious.

Sugar is yeast food and it also gives flavor to bread. Too large amounts retard the yeast growth. Sour, heavy bread is caused by too high temperature during the rising time.

Crisp crusts on bread are made by brushing the top with slightly beaten egg white 10 minutes before the baking. This also will give a browner crust.

Soft crusts can be achieved by brushing with melted fat just before baking.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Union Sundry School Lessons
BY LOUIE D. NEWTON, D. D.

SCRIPTURE: Acts 20:17-38; Ephesians

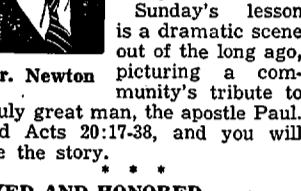

OPTIONAL READING: Philippians 4:

Christian Character

Lesson for March 14, 1948

WHO is the most valuable person in your community? In many communities it has come to be the man to select the Man of the Year or the Woman of the Year, the idea usually being to name the person, through a process of sampling of public opinion, who has rendered the outstanding service of the year.

Sunday's lesson is a dramatic scene out of the long ago, picturing a community's tribute to a truly great man, the apostle Paul. Acts 20:17-38, and you will see the story.

Louie D. Newton, D.D.

REVERED AND HONORED
THE first impression I get from this story is the fact that these people of Ephesus loved Paul. They loved him enough to lay aside their work and hasten to the near-seaport of Miletus to see him the last time, and to bow down in his presence and honor him.

Why did they thus love Paul? Because he had told them about Jesus. You need but read again the record of Paul's ministry in that important city of Ephesus to be reminded of how greatly he had served them in the name of Jesus.

Revered and honored! What a tribute to the worth of Christian character! Wouldn't you appreciate the tribute which they paid Paul as the man who had led them to Christ? The boys and girls of today may thus be honored tomorrow, if they will live as Jesus as Paul did.

THE POWER OF RIGHT LIVING
PAUL not only told the Ephesians how to live, but illustrated day by day in his own life what he preached to them. The most eloquent sermons are not spoken, but lived. "What you are speaks so loudly I can't hear what you say."

The boy and man who plays the game straight are putting into practice what the teacher and preacher proclaims on Sunday. The power of right living will win its way today, just as it did in the long ago when Paul witnessed for Jesus in Ephesus.

It was not easy to live for Christ in Ephesus, nor is it easy to live for him in Chicago or Los Angeles or Boston or Miami, but it is the one way to ultimately impress the world of the reality of Christianity.

PAUL'S CONSUMING PASSION
WE ARE what we are becoming, and never was this axiom of life more powerfully illustrated than in the case of Paul. "I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus," Philippians 3:14. And in Ephesians 5:6-21, Paul reviews the qualities of conduct which produce worthwhile character, admonishing all Christians to strive for these qualities.

"I live, yet not I, Christ liveth in me," is another of Paul's watchwords, and still again, "I can do all things through Christ, who strengtheneth me."

It was the consuming passion of his life to embody the teachings of Christ in his words and in his works. It is conceivable that the people at Ephesus had come to see Christ in the life of Paul, and that his daily ministry in their midst convinced them that God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself.

WHAT AM I WORTH?
THE question then emerges, "What am I worth to my community? When I come to the end of the journey, will the people who know me best honor and love me for what I have done?"

I can see the people of Ephesus bowing on the deck at Miletus, kissing this weary old servant of the Lord. It is a beautiful scene. This tribute meant more to Paul than all the gold of Ephesus would have meant. It was compensation of abiding worth to him. And what is vastly more important, it was glory to God which must have evoked the praise of the angels about the great White Throne.

Pull-Push Cart

Discarded wheels and an axle from a child's coaster wagon were used for this pull-push cart. The frame is made from 3/8-inch pipe and is welded to the axle. It is handy for moving loads of small tools or equipment as the cart is strong, light in weight and easy to pull or push.

Value of Moist Mash For Poultry Questioned

It is not necessary to feed a moist mash in order to maintain high egg production, says Washington State college. Feeding moist mash involves extra labor and presents the danger of the growth of harmful mold and bacteria, especially during hot weather.

Hog Self-Feeder

This New Jersey self-feeder for market pigs also may be used for brood sows that are suckling litters. Several different feeds may be supplied in separate compartments, and the pigs choose the proportions and amounts of each. One of the chief advantages of the self-feeder is the saving in labor effected, providing the feeder is large enough to hold several day's supply of feed.

Lime Sulphur Protects Trees Against Rabbits

Undiluted lime sulphur concentrate was the best among 16 repellents tested at the Oklahoma station for protecting young fruit trees from cottontail rabbits. Rabbits were penned with no food except water sprouts of apple. They damaged 94 per cent of the untreated sprouts in five days, as compared to 41 per cent of the sprouts painted with lime sulphur. Only 1 per cent of the sprouts were damaged the first day.

Bran Griddle Cakes

(Makes 15 cakes, 5 1/2 inches in diameter)

- 2 eggs
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 2 1/4 cups milk
- 3 cups sifted flour
- 2 tablespoons baking powder
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 cup melted shortening
- 1/2 cup bran

Beat eggs and sugar until light and fluffy. Add milk and mix well. Sift flour with baking powder and salt; add to first mixture, stirring until flour disappears. Add shortening. Fold in bran. Bake on a hot griddle, turning only once.

Dutch Pancakes

(Serves 4)

- 4 eggs
- 1/2 cup sifted flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons soft butter
- Confectioners' sugar
- Jam

Beat eggs thoroughly. Sift flour and salt together and add to eggs alternately with milk to make a smooth batter. Spread butter over bottom and sides of cold frying pan. Pour in batter and place in a hot (400 degree) oven. Bake 20 to 25 minutes, reducing heat gradually to moderate (350 degrees) during the baking. Pancakes should puff up at the sides.

Banana Sour Cream Bread

(Makes 1 large loaf)

- 1/2 cup thick sour cream
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 1/2 cups mashed banana
- 1 cup bran
- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon soda

Blend the first four ingredients. Add, sifted together, the dry ingredients. Place in a greased loaf pan and let stand 20 minutes. Bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven for about one hour. Make this the day before, and toast for breakfast. It's delicious.

Hardly anyone can resist piping hot pancakes with butter and syrup for breakfast.

For those with substantial appetites and large caloric needs, serve pancakes often. Or, use them to add variety to the breakfast pattern.

LYNN SAYS: Remember These Facts About Yeast Breads

Rising time on bread or rolls usually follows this pattern: Dough made with one cake of yeast and two cups of liquid will take three hours to rise. Each subsequent rising takes less time.

Rising may be hastened by using more yeast. However, not more than two cakes of yeast should be used in the average recipe for fear of giving too much yeast flavor.

PAUL'S CONSUMING PASSION

WE ARE what we are becoming, and never was this axiom of life more powerfully illustrated than in the case of Paul. "I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus," Philippians 3:14. And in Ephesians 5:6-21, Paul reviews the qualities of conduct which produce worthwhile character, admonishing all Christians to strive for these qualities.

"I live, yet not I, Christ liveth in me," is another of Paul's watchwords, and still again, "I can do all things through Christ, who strengtheneth me."

It was the consuming passion of his life to embody the teachings of Christ in his words and in his works. It is conceivable that the people at Ephesus had come to see Christ in the life of Paul, and that his daily ministry in their midst convinced them that God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself.

WHAT AM I WORTH?
THE question then emerges, "What am I worth to my community? When I come to the end of the journey, will the people who know me best honor and love me for what I have done?"

I can see the people of Ephesus bowing on the deck at Miletus, kissing this weary old servant of the Lord. It is a beautiful scene. This tribute meant more to Paul than all the gold of Ephesus would have meant. It was compensation of abiding worth to him. And what is vastly more important, it was glory to God which must have evoked the praise of the angels about the great White Throne.

On God's Word

John Wycliffe, in the introduction to his translation of the Bible into English in 1380, wrote as follows: "When the teachings of the Bible are generally accepted and acted on, then shall we have a government of, for and by the people." Four hundred years later the American republic was established—the first great democracy—and it was successful because the Constitution and the Bill of Rights were founded on God's Word.

Sugar is yeast food and it also gives flavor to bread. Too large amounts retard the yeast growth.

Soft crusts on bread are made by brushing the top with slightly beaten egg white 10 minutes before the baking. This also will give a browner crust.

Soft crusts can be achieved by brushing with melted fat just before baking.

The Prize Winners

The editor wishes to express his sincere thanks to all high school boys and girls who entered our "Why I Should Read my County Paper" contest, which came to a close March 3rd.

After considering very carefully all the letters, the first prize, a $10 bill, has been mailed to Beavey Lella Gaither, 10th grade student at Farmington High School, and the second prize, a $5 bill, to Irma Jean Jones, 9th grade student at Mocksville High School. The winning letters will appear in The Record issues of March 17-24th.

We received a number of excellent letters and are sorry that all the contestants couldn't win.

Attention Farmers

The State AAA Committee has set March 15th as the closing date for accepting 1948 Farm Plans for the purpose of establishing minimum assistance.

This means that unless farmers sign their farms up within the next few days they will not receive any AAA material in 1948, and will not be eligible to receive any payment in 1948 unless funds are released by other farmers.

Only one third of the farmers in the county have filed their report. Farmers who have not filed their report for 1948 are urged by J. N. Smoot, Chairman of the AAA Committee, to contact their community committeemen at once.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Early, of near Winston-Salem, were in town shopping one day last week. They are former Davie citizens, but left this county nearly a half century ago. They lived in the far West for many years, but for the past 15 years have lived in Forsyth county. Mrs. Early is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holman, of Route 2.

Your Health Department

One of the services rendered by the Health Department is the registration of all births and deaths. Certificates from the three counties of Davie, Stokes, and Yadkin are mailed in to the main office in Mocksville where they are checked for accuracy and completeness. If any are incomplete or inaccurate they must be returned to the midwife, doctor, or funeral director for correction.

The original certificate is mailed to the Bureau of Vital Statistics in Raleigh; one copy is sent to the Register of Deeds; and one copy is filed in the office of the Health Department. A photostatic copy of the birth certificate is mailed to the parents from Raleigh. A certified copy of either birth or death certificates may be obtained at the office of the Register of Deeds.

There were 109 deaths in Davie County during 1947. This is a death rate of 7.1 per thousand population. There were 371 births during the year, or a birth rate of 24.2.

For the entire State there were 30,252 deaths and 113,020 births, or a death rate of 7.8 and a birth rate of 29.2.

CARL E. SHELL, Registrar of Vital Statistics.

The following jurors have been drawn for the March term of Davie Superior court, which convenes in this city on March 22nd, with Judge Dan K. Moore, of Sylva, presiding, and Solicitor Avalon E. Hall, of Yadkinville, prosecuting. Up to the time this was written, 172 cases had been docketed for trial, the largest number in the history of the county:

The pattern contains a complete purchase list of materials. It specifies stock size lumber readily available at most every lumber yard. Each piece of the dog house is cut according to the printed pattern and assembled as step by step directions indicate. All directions are written in language everyone can understand. Printed assembly illustrations indicate exactly where to nail each piece and size of nails to use.

Building useful household articles out of lumber can provide a lot of fun and relaxation. The pattern method is very easy to follow. Each pattern has been designed so that any unskilled person can build the project in very little time. The projects offered each week are unique in design and have been tested sufficiently to prove their worthiness.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

The FICTION Corner

A WOMAN'S PLACE

By JOHN T. CAVANAUGH

"SO, SALUSTRI is back," Managing Editor Pepper Drislane exclaimed as he clicked down the receiver. Excitedly, Police Chief Lawton had just shouted into the telephone. "This guy is looking for blood—don't take any unnecessary risks."

In the editorial room of the Hartfield Herald, Drislane sat with his head in his hands and mournfully looked over his city staff—two old men and seven girls. "Thirty years in newspapers and this has to happen to me—a chance to make headline history and here I am saddled with a bunch of sob sisters."

The Salustri case had been spectacular from the start. The self-styled big shot of the numbers racket had challenged repeatedly: "There ain't nobody going to pin a rap on me. This gazabo's got protection all the way to the state house and back and don't forget it."

But Jerry Cowan, erstwhile reportorial star of the Herald, and Managing Editor Drislane chose to forget it to the tune of pinning a 20-year federal sentence on the numbers king. Then the slipup; while waiting for the train that would carry him to prison, Salustri outwitted the guards, slugged the marshal and was on his way.

With the news of his escape, Jerry and Drislane knew Salustri would be back. The Herald's constant and merciless headlines had galled the gangster, bored right into his pride. "Sure, he'll be back," the reporter told his editor, "and when he does, he'll head for our office first."

That was two years ago. Now Jerry was on assignment in the Pacific. Meanwhile, the managing editor waited. Of course, he was jumpy; who wouldn't be when each corner might turn into a hall of hot lead? And now the chief of police had passed the word that Salustri had been spotted in Bayside, just 11 miles this side of Hartfield.

The managing editor was dismayed fingering the last cigarette in his squashed pack when Publisher Jim Geldhorn came into the room. Drislane blinked his eyes and dropped the cigarette—doggone, if it wasn't another girl. Attractive and well built, but still another girl.

Geldhorn hustled the young woman over to an empty desk and hurriedly left.

"On a newspaper a girl reporter isn't worth the powder it takes to—camouflage her nose," Drislane had exploded when the publisher anobtrusively attempted to install the last girl on the city staff.

"All I hear these days is 'I've got an appointment with the hairdresser, the dressmaker, the butcher, the baker—.' These girls have an appointment with everyone but me and their work," he ranted. "Is this a newspaper office or a sorority house?"

"Chief," said thin-pated, fiftyish Mike Bales, the paper's only bachelor, coming up to the managing editor's desk. "I'm going to hop down to Nick's for a shave." Generally Mike shaved every second day and today was a first.

"Darn," muttered Drislane, "we're off again and it'll take another three weeks to see who is really queen bee of this hive."

The managing editor's head was poked under his desk in search of his lost cigarette when a pair of shapely legs approached.

"Mr. Drislane," he heard a feminine voice say, "I'd like to be assigned to the Salustri case."

Abruptly, a hush fell over the Herald editorial room and light expectant reportorial heads poised over their typewriters as the managing editor took several seconds to come up from under his desk.

In the face of the gathering editorial clouds, the new girl bravely continued with her request and began to fumble with a gold locket which was looped around her neck. "The picture I have from Jerry—" she offered but got no further.

The thunder broke loose and Drislane hissed, his face purple. "On a newspaper, a woman"—he didn't finish but resignedly collapsed in his chair.

With effort he continued feebly, "Miss Whatever-your-name-is, go get a manicure—get a cup of coffee escape from the United States Marshal's office in 1943, was recognized by the reporter as she walked through the barber shop to the beauty salon at the rear of the building. Miss Hewes, upon seeing Salustri, continued through the shop and left by a rear exit and soon returned with a squad of police officers.

"The reporter said that she had identified the gangster through his picture which she had carried in a gold locket given to her by her fiancé, Jerry Cowan, formerly police reporter on The Herald and now on assignment in the South Pacific.

"Having threatened the life of my fiancé, Salustri was a potential —get anything. But for right now, just get."

As the girl hastily traced Mike Bales' rapidly retreating footsteps, Drislane sighed. "Even Jerry Cowan away out in the Pacific is getting balmy. On top of all this, imagine his wanting to saddle me with his fiancée, some up-country jave who probably doesn't know a dateline from a clothesline." Gleefully, he pictured himself setting up ambush for the next time the publisher came in with another girl.

After an hour of planting imaginary booby traps all over the newspaper plant, the managing editor had mentally destroyed the publisher and all the girls on the staff a dozen times over. Just when he was halfway through his masterpiece of stuffing Geldhorn and the girls through the news press to be delivered as supplements to the 5 o'clock edition, Mike Bales with a face full of lather tore into the room.

"Chief, Chief," the reporter panted, "they just got him."

"Just got who—when—where?" Drislane roared.

"Salustri, at the barber shop," said Mike, furiously shoving a piece of copy paper into his typewriter. "I'll have the story written for the last edition in a jiffy."

DOWNSTAIRS the presses were silent and waiting as the managing editor's pencil poised over the reporter's scoop.

"Nat Salustri, former numbers czar who escaped local police two years ago, today was captured in Nick's barber and beauty shop on Main Street through the efforts of Miss Loretta Hewes, a member of The Herald's editorial staff," the story read.

"The gangster, who has hidden from the police since his spectacular threat to my coming marriage, so I carried his picture, knowing that I would run into him some day," Miss Hewes said. "Now that he is captured, I know that I can plan to marry Jerry as soon as he returns."

Speechless, the managing editor scanned the copy. Then, poised his pencil, he added to the message: "In the meantime, I will continue working at The Herald as police reporter."

TOWBOAT PILOT

By Elston J. Melton

(Canton Printers . . . 84)

By Lynn Connolly.

Here at last is an intelligently written book for adolescent boys, one of the best of its kind since the immortal Mark Twain penned that perennial favorite, "Tom Sawyer."

Tom Briggs is essentially a good boy, but because he takes precious time away from his daily chores to swim with his chum, Johnny Sanders, and because he dreams constantly of the day when he might be a towboat pilot on the mighty Gasconade river, he is considered lazy and shiftless by his cruel stepfather and many of the town citizens.

You'll share Tom's frustration when, after he works hard to buy himself a small boat so that he can fish to support his family, his stepfather sells the boat and pockets the money. You'll share his horror when his hunting rifle goes off accidentally in the post office and he is accused by Mr. Pugh, the postmaster, of having deliberately attempted to kill him.

Despite his many handicaps, Tom proves through sheer perseverance and courage that he is capable of being a towboat captain. The story carries him from the age of 12 when he is in the dream stage, through the age of 21, when he makes his first cruise as a pilot. But long before the realization of his ambition, he earns the respect of his neighbors when he clears Mr. Pugh of a possible murder charge of which only Tom knows he is innocent, thus proving that he holds no malice in his heart for the postmaster who would have sent Tom to a juvenile home when he, too, was wrongly accused of a crime.

The book is a joy for those loving the great outdoors. Mr. Melton, a prominent Missouri newspaper man, knows his subject well and handles it beautifully with the result that there emerges a book full of tears and joy, tenderness and adventure.

New Uranium Discoveries

Show Wide Distribution

The world is expanding its known sources of uranium, vital mineral of the Atomic Age.

Both newly independent Burma and the Union of South Africa have announced the discovery of extensive uranium deposits. National Geographic society notes. These latest finds are further evidence that the atomic-energy ore is much more widely distributed around the globe than popularly believed.

Prospecting for uranium lodes is much simpler than searching for gold. The uranium can be detected easily by a scientific "divining rod." Radioactive by nature, the mineral literally broadcasts its whereabouts in the ground. Forty years ago Hans Geiger, a German scientist, invented the instrument which hunts out the hidden ore.

An Echo Testifies
 President Truman recently suggested that price controls might have to be used to meet the present emergency. Here is a bit of history. It is an echo from government testimony to the ill effects of government managed economy that keeps on testifying to the government kept prices of crude oil at an abnormal low. This column called attention to that fact then, indicating there would be a future shortage of oil.

Wild-cat operators and small companies find most of the new pools and sell much of the crude oil. But prices during the war kept wild-catters from buying adequate equipment. It didn't pay. Machinery and wages kept going up, but the price of oil was held low. Instead of buying new rigs for new wells, oil men removed old rigs from low producing wells that would have been kept in production if the price of oil had been favorable.

How to Stall Industry
 There was less searching for new fields, because oil prices were so out of line with cost of labor and machinery. The risk was too often a losing proposition. This unwise control continued so long that a grave shortage developed in oil field equipment, in oil well pipe lines, and even in refineries. Now we are reaping the harvest. Many will go cold this winter. Gasoline may be short in some areas, and industrial fuel scarce.

One big operator said to me during that period: "To help win a war I am operating present equipment at full capacity. But I am making only about 1/4 of 1 per cent profit on my investment. Consequently, I am not spending new money for expansion of my business. A man can't risk his capital when there is only a chance of 1/4 of 1 per cent profit even if the venture proves entirely successful, and 100 per cent loss if it fails, as many of them do in the oil business."

Said Picture Now
 On November 12 Oscar L. Chapman, Under-secretary of Interior, told the American Petroleum Institute in Chicago: "We face critical times, critical for all of us, and for the competitive freedom of the petroleum industry. This winter for the first time in its peacetime history, the oil industry will be unable to meet the full needs of the American people."

The oil people may come through with another miracle as they did during the war. They may actually meet the demand, even though this well-informed government official thinks they cannot. I am awfully slow to put a limit on what free men in a free country can do. But it must be said that the present threat of fuel shortage results from the abnormally low price that government maintained on crude oil during the war and thereafter.

The Danger is There
 This should underscore the danger of giving the government power to set prices. Even now, such power can be misused. It could happen that price control now might well obstruct the building of homes, hospitals, and factories—five years from now. Free markets and free prices are the only sane controls. These have given America higher wages for workers, better income for farmers, and better living conditions than any other system. Let us have the courage of good citizenship to keep freedom and do what we know we should do.

A Speech Was Made
 A letter came to my desk a few weeks ago containing one paragraph that astonished me. It read: "At the church conference held in this southern district a speech was made against the profit motive. That any American group, and particularly a religious group, should raise its voice against the profit motive struck me as amazing."

To get rid of the profit motive, you would have to find some substitute for economics in modern civilization. You would have to abolish all trading and marketing, buying and selling. You would have to get rid of money and other mediums of exchange. You would have to abolish bartering and swapping. In fact, you would have to reduce to a primitive civilization to self-sufficiency of the individual.

Only Two Ways
 A modern and complicated civilization like our own could not exist without trade, exchange, transportation, raw materials and production. You just have to ask more than it cost you. That is what profit means. And without the profit motive, trade and commerce would die.

There are only two ways that an economy may operate. In America individuals own farms, stores, factories, and run them for the chief purpose of making enough profit to live on. The other way is for government to own everything, operating all production merely for the purpose of feeding the people and supplying what it thinks are their needs.

Compare the Two!
 The profit motive is the very foundation of our American way of life. It is the constitutional way in our country. It has produced more enthusiasm, finer cooperation, and a greater abundance of clothing, food, housing, and transportation than the masses of the people have ever known in any other country.

The other kind of economy, owned and operated by the government, attempts to do away with the profit motive. Actually, it does away with incentives, individual initiative, and efficiency. This kind of economy soon settles down to a "what's-the-use" status, offering only the barest necessities to its people. Russia is a good example of this. Russia has attempted to substitute other enthusiasms for those of owning property and making profit, but she has found that whenever she wanted increased industrial output she had to imitate some of the incentives that are so common in America.

Advance Agents?
 The very concepts of freedom of the individual spring from the Bible. Therein you will find the foundation for the freedoms and liberties that America has built upon. I am unable to explain why church leaders are willing to attack the profit motive. To do so indicates tremendous misunderstanding of the American way of life, of our constitutional government, and the freedoms of the individual.

Let us not confuse greed and sin with the profit motive. There is nothing un-Christian, nor anti-social, in fair and honest buying and selling and trading. One who is against the profit motive is in reality opposed to ownership of property, for when the profit motive is taken away, the right to own things must go with it. It is high time for some of our religious people to start thinking through these things. Doing this, perhaps they would refuse to be used as advanced agents of Communism.

European Sketch
 A Midwestern acquaintance of mine recently gave to a group of businessmen what he called a report of "a roller skate trip over a very large subject." Sterling Morton, Chicago banker and industrialist, was reporting on a seven-weeks' trip to Europe. His remarks seemed to me worthy of a larger audience.

This recent trip, according to Mr. Morton, was no V.I.P. excursion. (The Very Important People sometimes arrive at conclusions that have been planned by their hosts in advance.) Actually, Mr. Morton rented a small French car and drove it 2,500 miles, talking to everybody along the way. Because he speaks French fluently, our Midwesterner was taken for a Frenchman when outside France, for an Englishman when in France—but hardly for an American at any time.

Peace-time Damage
 In France, Mr. Morton reported the cost of living up ten times over 1937, with wages having increased six times. "How an elevator operator, for instance, can live on 8,000 francs a month is a mystery. Or how a laborer can be content on the official ration of two fifths of a pound of bread a day. Things are very much out of balance." However, Mr. Morton sees France on the road to recovery, in a physical way.

BUT: "France is cursed with government employees. There always were droves of them—now there are herds! One former Maqui suggested the way to improve conditions was to machine gun half the 'fonctionnaires!' Even Senator Byrd doesn't go that far! . . . French production figures are highly encouraging. If governmental expenses could be cut down, the printing of money stopped, confidence and prosperity would soon return."

Help Them Produce
 Of the British: "One can have nothing but admiration for . . . what they went through so steadfastly. That they should be afflicted, in peace, with a government which has done, psychologically, financially and commercially, probably as much damage, is a cruel tragedy. Only the miracles of socialist planning, applied to a fertile island underlaid with coal and surrounded by seas teeming with fish, could bring about a situation in which the people are cold and hungry."

On loans and gifts: "I think it would be pouring money down a rat hole to make any more loans to governments, yet I feel that we should, for our own sakes, help those who are willing to help themselves. My idea would be to make loans direct to private producers on very easy terms and for productive purposes only. . . . We can't stop Communism by giving corrupt or inefficient or minority governments the means of remaining in office."

"We can stop it by building up the productive capacity of the threatened nations. . . . I doubt that Europe's economy will be healthy until Germany again is producing and consuming. . . . Britain, France, Italy, yes, Germany, too—help them to produce again. That is the way to bring stability and peace."

What to Do About It
 There is one way, and only one way, to avoid a serious depression, and that way is open to the American people. Responsibility rests firmly upon each of us, no matter what may be our economic status or individual social background, to choose out this proper course. There is no way to go, if we should face into a depression, except toward hard work and the high productivity of industrial peace.

That's the formula that will enable us to weather a business recession, provided we begin to use it now. We must all tighten our belts, get our feet on the ground, and go to work just as hard as we can work. A greatly increased measure of productivity per man-hour is the best answer to the present situation that can be thought up.

Down With Prices
 With increased productivity, with an honest hour's labor given for every hour's pay, we could see a considerable lowering of prices. Indeed, with genuine whole-hearted cooperation from labor and industry, it would be quite possible to increase output as much as 40% generally. This should be enough to bring about a general 25% reduction in prices. This could be done with our present labor force and without increased working hours.

This would in fact bring prices down until it would be equivalent to an increase in wages. This is the one sound answer to the present threat of a depression. Such answer would also give us hope of regaining our foreign markets, which have had little attention paid to them since the war.

Wisdom of a Sage
 The importance of this thing prompted Bernard M. Baruch to state recently that the whole post-war world would "get going only if men work" and to come out for a 5 1/2 day, 44 hour week. The seriousness of the problem we face is such that we may be able to save civilization if we accept the challenge, Mr. Baruch said, adding that this would mean greater effort than that exerted during the war.

In proposing a 44 hour work week, "with no strikes or layoffs to January 1, 1949," as a means of increasing production, Mr. Baruch recognized our present tendencies to put limitations on our work. He emphasized that a way must be found for production to flow smoothly. This achieved, then a "sense of security would return to worker and employer, and the reaction upon the economy of the world would be deep and lasting."

Heads Together
 The sage Mr. Baruch has more. "Until we have unity, until we straighten out and solve our problems of production, and have internal stability, there is no basis on which the world can renew itself physically or spiritually," he continued. If labor and industry would put their heads together, come to a realistic solution of their problems, shake hands across the table and go to work in earnest to whip this threat of immediate depression through maximum and whole-hearted production, then so one would have anything to fear.

 Simple Instructions Based on Science

You may not have a degree as an engineer, Mrs. Housewife, but when you're home canning you're using scientific principles just as surely as a mining, chemical, electrical or other engineer. That is, if you follow the instructions of the Ball Blue Book for low glass jar manufacturer's instructions, for they are based upon scientific discoveries made over a period of a century and a half.

Back in Napoleon's time, a Paris confectioner, Nicolas Appert, set out to find a method of food preservation and win a 12,000-franc prize offered in 1795 by the French government. Napoleon, like Frederick the Great, believed an army travels on its stomach, and the folks at home got hungry and discontented too!

Nicolas won the prize, after 15 years' work, but his methods and equipment have been greatly improved upon. He labored under many handicaps, not knowing a temperature beyond boiling is required for processing some foods and having to design his own glass jars. Not until 1860 did Louis Pasteur establish the fact that microorganisms are responsible for food spoilage. Fourteen years later, an American, A. K. Shriver of Baltimore, invented the "retort" or "pressure" cooker.

In 1858 John Mason patented the Mason jar with neck designed for receiving a screw type cap. The Mason jar with porcelain-lined zinc cap is an old reliable. Mason would probably be astounded by the 1947 cap for sealing the Mason jar. This new style cap is a two-piece metal affair with a Dome lid which has sealing compound on the under side and is tested for seal by pressing on the center of the lid with the finger. Sealing with the Dome lid is made doubly sure by the new type metal band which bears down on the lid at three pressure points.

Also reliable in seal is the lighting type jar with rubber ring, glass lid and wire bail.

Many scientific experiments and jar improvements have perfected processes for today's home canning and it is upon them that instructions you will find in reliable home canning literature such as the Ball Blue Book are based. Follow these instructions and you become an "Engineer in Good Eating"—much to the benefit of your family's health and increased pleasure at the table provided by delicious home canned foods.

WHAT CARD PLAYING DID FOR A SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS

Rev. W. E. Izenhour, High Point, N. C. R4

The following story is told by J. Wilbur Chapman, D.D., which every Sunday School teacher on earth should read and pass on to their pupils:

While a friend of mine was conducting a meeting one morning, a tramp came in and said, "My father and mother used to sit in this pew. It is the first church I ever attended. My father was an officer in this church. Seven boys used to sit in this pew in the Sunday School class. We had a great love and respect for our Sunday School teacher. Saturday afternoon she invited us to her home, entertaining with music, eatables and a look over the lesson. After a while she was anxious to please us, and she taught us the names of cards. None had ever used cards. We became enthusiastic over it, learning different games. After a while we would not give so much time to the lesson, but she let us have more time for playing cards, and would show us some more tricks. After a while we were off in the cotton gins playing cards and not going to her home. Later we failed to go to Sunday School. Cards, cigarettes, after a while a drink and gambling. We all at different times left our homes. Two of those boys have been hung, three are in state's prison for life, and one a vagabond like myself. No one knows where he is, and if the authorities knew I was here I would be arrested and put behind the bars. All I wish is that that teacher had never taught us to play cards."

As a minister of the Gospel, a writer, a husband and father, and a citizen of the United States of America, I have many things to be thankful for, and among those things is the fact that I never played a game of cards in my life. This makes me feel like shouting "HALLELUJAH!" I've never seen anyone in the fifty-six years of my life that regretted never having learned to play cards, but you can travel the nation over and find people everywhere that regret, deeply regret, the fact of learning the dangerous, treacherous game, and having idled their time away, and squandered their money as a consequence. Just now I recall to mind a very brilliant, greatly talented man that was born and reared in the same community where I was born and reared. He was an expert card player. Along with the dirty practice he drank whiskey. He could have made one of the greatest and most useful men on the American soil, whereas, he idled and trifled his precious time and remarkable talents away, and a few years ago died in poverty and obscurity, just like he had lived, and went into the grave unprepared to meet God, so far as we know, "unwept, unhonored and unsung." I doubt very seriously if he even has a little marker to his grave to show where his dust lies. He could have lived a noble, sublime life until the nation would have mourned his departure, whereas, he passed away into the Great beyond unknown only to a few people, whose record no one appreciates. How tragic! How sad and deplorable! Cards and liquor defeated him. Usually both go together.

What people call "the innocent card game" is like a poisonous viper. In its fangs is the poison of various evils, crime, drunkenness, theft, murder, wreck and ruin. Multitudes of people have found it so. I've never known a man to accomplish anything good, great and worth while that was and is an habitual card player. It takes the valuable time that he needs with which to study, work, rise and climb in life. It takes the money he also needs with which to live honestly, meet his expenses, and pay his way upward in life. It destroys his manhood and holds him down. It keeps him from aiming at something great, good, sublime and ennobling, and holds him from thus striving to attain. It hinders him from laying good plans and having honorable, noble purposes in life. Absolutely. Anything that is in direct opposition to God and the Bible, and to Jesus Christ and the Christian religion, certainly will keep one down in life, and will drag his lost soul to a devil's hell. As men learn to play cards they eventually go into the dirty, damnable habit of gambling, and that leads to crime, even murder, and to prison and to hell.

Card playing is absolutely dirty business, regardless of who indulges in it, and whether it be in the barn with the cattle, horses and mules, or

After Patrolmen

Raleigh—Highway Patrol Commissioner H. J. Hatcher said he had "no comment—no comment whatsoever" on the Rowan County Commissioners' charge that "some members" of the patrol are wasting their time with "harmless, trivial and technical violations."

The Board of Commissioners sent a resolution to Governor Cherry charging the patrol of Rowan county with arresting "large numbers of law-abiding citizens for unintentional, harmless trivial and technical violations of the motor vehicles law."

The resolution contended that the patrolmen "while using their time for these trivial offenses, are neglecting wild, dangerous and hazardous drivers."

The statement requested that the Governor of North Carolina "enquire from the proper officials that the present good-for-nothing methods now being used by some patrolmen be stopped." The board asked that those responsible be required to carry out their duties in a reasonable, sensible and intelligent manner and not waste their time on so many trivial and harmless violations.

The Penny Problem

Almost every day persons call at the Winston-Salem, N. C., Social Security Field Office for the purpose of "drawing their benefits—their Social Security money," because they are out of work. There seems to be quite a bit of confusion in the mind of the average person about Unemployment Compensation and Old-Age and Survivors Insurance benefits. The penny deducted from every dollar a worker earns is for Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. The wages from which this tax is deducted are recorded on that person's Social Security Account maintained by the Social Security Administration. Benefits based on this account are paid in the form of Old-Age Insurance at age 65 and Survivors Insurance upon the death of a worker at any age. Some employers list this tax on pay envelopes or receipts as old age benefit tax. However, it is also a death benefit as well.

Most people think that when they get out of work and cannot find a job they are entitled to draw "Social Security" because they have paid in the tax. No deduction is ever made from a worker's wages for Unemployment Compensation. Employers who come under the Unemployment Compensation Law pay a tax on their employee's earnings but deduct nothing from the employee's wages. This is a tax that only the employer has to pay.

Claims for Unemployment Compensation are filed with the Unemployment Compensation Commission which is located 805 N. Liberty St., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Claims for Old-Age and Survivors Insurance are filed with the Social Security Administration located 437 Nissen Building, Winston-Salem, N. C. hid away in the woods, or in someone's front room among beautiful furniture, or in a hotel lobby.

Remember and don't forget, there is danger, danger, DANGER in a deck of cards. Young people, take warning. Never touch the dirty, damnable things. Never play the first game and you will never be cursed, blighted, wrecked and ruined by the last game. The first game starts you downward, and may lead to final wreck, ruin and eternal damnation. Turn from the dangerous card game as you would from a poisonous, deadly viper. "Abstain from all appearance of evil." (I Thess. 5:22). This is advice that every human on earth will do well to take. Amen.

It Didn't Work

Repeal, we are told, was in the interest of temperance. How has it worked?

Follow it up its bloody stairs 1934, first year, per capita, 10 gallons; by 1941, 12 gallons; by 1943, 18 gallons; by 1945, 20 gallons.

Result: court dockets crowded; jails and penal institutions jammed; 17 year old boys and girls leading the greatest crime wave in history; divorce increased from 1 out of 6, to 1 out of 3 marriages; drunken drivers turning streets and highways into slaughter lanes; 177,000 drinking places before repeal; 400,000 legal outlets now. One year's drink outlay, 110,000,000 gallons of hard liquor and 2,527,000,000 gallons of beer. The cost to drinkers $8,000,000,000 and to the nation for crime which it largely produced $17,000,000,000.

Yes, repeal has succeeded—in bringing the greatest moral breakdown and in making us the most drunken and criminal nation in the world. How long will politicians be the tools and we Americans the fools of the liquor barons and their propagandists?

May Keep Peace

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, who recently retired as Army Chief of Staff, does not think that Russia will "deliberately provoke a war at this time."

The General points out that Russia is not in a position to fight a global war and that until her differential of strength becomes so great as to think she can win quickly, "Russia won't start a war deliberately."

This means, if it means anything, that the United States should keep a careful tab on the Russian war potential and balance it with an equally strong potential in this country. The Russians have universal military training, which might explain the anxiety that our military leaders exhibit in connection with the establishment of universal military training in this country.—Ex.

Glance Backward

President Truman might well profit from his flippant reference to Southern conservatism as a "flooie bird" who flies backward so he can see where he has been.

I wouldn't hurt him to look back and see where the Democratic votes in past elections came from.

If it hadn't been for the South the Democratic party would have disappeared from the American scene many years ago.

Looking backwards occasionally, has its uses.—Statesville Daily

Six to One

E. L. Gavin of Sanford, former United States district attorney, has announced he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. There are now six Democrats seeking the nomination on the Democratic ticket. Exchange.

Trouble about the fellow who knows all the answers is that no one pays him any attention.

Cussing Truman

Ed H. Crump, leader of Tennessee's powerful Shelby County Democratic organization, issued a statement saying: "In his scheming, cold blooded effort to outdo Henry Wallace and Gov. Dewey, of New York for the Negro vote, he (Mr. Truman) has endeavored to reduce the South to a country of crawling cowards."

"I will vote for a Democrat next November," Crump said, "but it will not be for Truman."

The South Carolina Democratic Executive Committee adopted a resolution opposing Mr. Truman's nomination and election. The State Committee charged the national party with "contemptuous political betrayal of the South."

In Jackson, Miss., the party's State Executive Committee asked the delegates to the national convention to walk out unless the party reverses itself on the civil rights issue.

Governor Ben. T. Laney, of Arkansas, formally recommended that Southern Democrats repudiate the national leadership. He proposed this in a letter to Gov. Strom Thurmond, of South Carolina.

"Party Split" More Fun than a Fire

Schism of Dixie Democrats Could Wreck Party Hopes

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

A political year may be pretty hard on business, international affairs and persons who expect congress or the President to take some highly important but controversial action...

One thing that is as interesting to the casual observer as workmen excavating a cellar, a sandlot baseball game, a fire or a dog-fight, are the quadrennial "party splits" which threaten (several months before the conventions) to rend the big parties in twain.

On the surface the recent row between the southern Democrats and the White House looks like one of those affairs.

Baukhage

Republican or Democratic, just as they please. In fact, the colored population really has more freedom than the rest of the electorate because it has no tradition of following a strict pattern.

A Democrat, however, is he lives in the South and if he is to remain a Democrat, has to vote with the Democratic party, even if he does it with anger in his heart and tears in his eyes.

I am not questioning any of the supporters of civil rights and the Constitution from the President down, but there does remain the fact of the Negro vote, and there remains likewise many a warm personal and political friendship which has to be subjected to a painful ordeal.

And if you look across the aisle, you'll see some more splinters.

Listen to this: . . . If Republican leaders in congress want to win the political confidence of both Republican and independent voters, they must stop trying to sell the program of the National Association of Manufacturers as good Republican doctrine.

That wasn't Henry Wallace speaking. Nor Democratic national headquarters.

That was Republican Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon. Morse assails "the conservative leadership" of his own party as vigorously as he scores reaction in the Democratic party.

I already have discussed Wallace and his third party "split." There are those who think it of so little importance that it can be ignored. Some now are predicting that before the election, Wallace will be granted some concession, some advantage, and will come out for Truman for president.

Let me quote Senator Morse on that subject, as his words appeared in an article in the February issue of the Progressive magazine.

Reds Assume Control Of Czech Government

There were six days of crisis in Czechoslovakia and then it was all over—the Communists were in complete control of that nation of 13 million population.

The iron curtain came down with a muffled clang as President Eduard Benes accepted the resignation of 14 of his cabinet ministers after he had refused for a week to do so.

Into power strode Communist Premier Klement Gottwald who had led his party upward from a minority status in Czechoslovakia until now its members dominated every phase of the nation's life.

Wielding the club to keep the Czechs in line was Gottwald's good right hand, Vaclav Nosek, minister of the interior, who controls all Czechoslovakian police forces.

Gottwald . . . Nosek.

That powerful position in a Communist-dominated state Nosek was analogous to the mailed glove on the dictator's fist.

For what it was worth—and that was very little—aging President Benes had managed to keep at least a superficial appearance of representative government by insisting that the government be composed of members of other parties of the national front which reinstated the Czechoslovak republic in 1945 when the Germans were being driven out.

The new government consists of 12 Communists (there were seven before), four Social Democrats, two Czech National Socialists, two Catholic Peoples party members, one Slovak Democrat and two non-party men.

Bewildered Czechs finally knew neither their cherished republic had come to a grim end when loud speakers in Prague blared this announcement into the night:

"Reaction has been beaten. Go back to work and let us complete our tasks on the two year plan."

In Czechoslovakia's ironic chronology the surging wall of the Red tide engulfed their country just 10 years after the western Allies had sold the nation to Hitler at Munich in a tragically selfish and futile effort to avoid war and save their own skins at the price of just one small Central European state.

With the Balkans all tied up with a red ribbon the world began to wonder which small nation the Communist tide would engulf next. Some thought Finland might be the top name on the list, others wondered whether Austria, France and Italy might not be clamped soon in the Communist vise.

There was general agreement on one fact, at least: That the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia had forged perhaps the most vital link in the Russian chain intended to shackle the Marshall plan.

In Finland and Italy, as in Czechoslovakia, elections were coming up soon and the Communists were out for victory.

Reports from the poultry belt in the Midwest say that the severity of the fuel oil shortage is cutting into the 1949 baby chick hatch to threaten poultry and egg production this year.

Thousands of farmers canceled chick orders for early March delivery because they couldn't get oil for their brooder stoves.

Some poultrymen were deferring chick deliveries until later dates, hoping that warmer weather would ease the tight oil supply.

Officials of one large hybrid chick hatchery in Iowa claimed they needed six tank cars of fuel oil to get their 1948 production under way.

One of the most vociferous complaints generally being made among farmers was that city consumers were using up all the fuel oil.

'Inside Info' Exaggerated

There has been remarkable interest recently in charges that Washington officials used "inside information" obtained because of their connection with the government to play the markets.

"Have you heard the rumor that I was being charged with playing the market on information I got from the White House?" he asked.

"That's what I want to find out," he spluttered.

"Well," I answered, surprised at his wrath, "you certainly don't feel insulted by it, do you? Anybody can be charged with anything in an election year."

"I certainly am insulted," he came back, "not because my honor is being impugned, but it is an insult to my intelligence to imply that anyone who has been around Washington as long as I have would be such an ass!"

When I first came to Washington, as a reporter, I remember there was a minor scandal on "leaks" that had been used for profit.

A lesser factor in the affair was a newspaper reporter. It was discovered that he was on the payroll of a brokerage firm to whom he phoned anything he thought might be of interest after he had written his story for his paper whose last edition had an early afternoon dead-line.

It was shown that the brokers paid him all of $25 a month. In the investigation it also was shown that while he knew what was news for a newspaper, the reporter had only the foggiest idea of what would interest a broker as he probably never owned a share of stock in his life.

They knew, as my friend indicated, it was stupidity rather than lack of virtue which was his chief sin.

My own first lesson on the subject of Washington journalistic ethics was administered very tenderly by an Old Timer, my boss. My assignment was helping to cover the British embassy early in World War I, before America had become embroiled.

One night, my boss, who knew everybody in Washington, took me along to introduce me to the British commercial attache—I'm not sure that was what he was called in those days, but it describes his job. He talked with us quite a while, much more freely than he would have conversed with me alone, for I was a stranger to him.

In the course of the conversation, he mentioned that tomorrow, or next day, Great Britain would announce what amounted to an embargo to switch her buying to Australia.

When we were out on the street, my boss pulled out his watch and remarked to me: "Now, if we were crooked, we would still have time before the markets close to make a lot of money selling short, wouldn't we?"

He didn't have to explain further. AFTER the British had made their announcement, I was able to write a good "follow," interpreting the move. That's all any newsman gets out of "confidential" information, and all that 99.44 per cent of us ever expect.

The same thing applies to government employees. Those who act otherwise soon depart.

HOW PRICES DEFLATE

Consumer Resistance Does It

Those same forces which recently knocked down prices of food and other commodities in a spectacular outburst have been quietly at work all during the past year.

Rising supply in a number of lines of goods has caught up with demand, and in some cases it has bumped into demand and money supplies on their way down.

As long as consumers demand goods despite rising prices, the study pointed out, the manufacturer will pay higher and still higher costs for materials and labor.

But when enough consumers indicate they will not pay increased prices, then manufacturers and stores stiffen their own resistance to higher prices of materials, wage boosts and the resulting price mark-ups for the finished goods because it is evident that such further increases will prevent the products from being sold.

In manufactured goods, the supply of small radios recently has overflowed the level of demand, with prices skidding in many cities. Large radios are very close to current demand, as are washing machines, stoves and deep-freeze units.

When demand falls off and meets rising supply, the result is a halt in the price rise and often a sharp downturn. Sometimes consumers, merchants and manufacturers all decide that prices are going to keep on declining and therefore cut their buying still more all along the line.

Downward price spirals usually start in that way, the study observed.

Homemade Weighing Bin Speeds Work Device Aids Automatic Feed Handling Setup

It is an old saying that all farm equipment was first thought of by a farmer. Whether that saying holds true may be questioned. But it is certain that much of it did come into being as the result of ideas which some farmer had concerning ways to improve and speed up the performance of his various chores. A pertinent example of this fact is shown in the accompanying illustration. It shows a homemade weighing bin, which was conceived by a Midwestern farmer for use with his automatic feed-handling setup. It holds several tons of feed and is fixed to the ceiling by a series of heavy springs and turnbuckles, one spring being located at each corner of the bin in the center of two turnbuckles. Tension on the springs moves a pointer across a scale at the bottom of the bin to indicate weight up to 3,200 pounds. A slide gate at the bottom of the bin permits feed to spill out into a cart in desired quantities. The bin is placed below a chute leading from a two-ton mixer in the barn mow. The entire setup operates as follows: Whole grain is blown into an overhead bin, from which it flows into a blower-equipped hammermill on the first floor. Ground grain is blown back into the mixer and then drops into the weighing bin. The mixer and grinder are operated by five-horsepower motors, whereas the whole grain is blown into the storage bin by tractor power.

Automatic Egg Washer

Prof. F. B. Wright demonstrating the new egg washing machine developed at Cornell University. The device makes it possible for two persons to wash, dry and pack five cases of eggs an hour, five times as fast as the same jobs could be done by hand. As most poultrymen and their wives spend from two to four evenings a week cleaning eggs by hand, this machine will result in a big saving in time.

Formula Computes Feed Required for One Hen

High egg production clearly takes more feed, but just as clearly the feed brings a greater return in terms of eggs than the same amount fed to low-producing hens. Dr. L. E. Card of the Illinois experiment station explains how to compute the total feed required for one hen for a year:

Multiply the live weight of the bird, in pounds, by 8.
Add 25.
Divide the total number of eggs the hen lays by 7 (e. g. 105 divided by 7 equals 15) and add this figure to the total obtained by the first two steps. An example:
Weight of hen—5 pounds.
Five times 8 equals 40; plus 25 equals 65.
Hen lays 105 eggs per year. Divide this figure by 7. Result 15.
Total feed required—80 pounds. (65 plus 15).

Plowing Is Major Step In Garden Pest Control

It's smart gardening to double-cross garden insect pests by late fall spading or plowing in preparation for spring planting. Plowing is one of the most important steps in insect control because it interferes with the natural and normal activities of the insects for living through the winter. Insects wintering above the ground can stand severe cold and not burying in moist cold soil, and those below cannot live.

Chicken Favorites

When you want to put variety in the menu, or combine interesting flavors or stretch the meat nicely, the thing to do is to serve chicken. You'll find chicken prices doing a favor to your budgets these days, and what's even nicer, chicken can be combined with so many foods that give you nice substantial meals so ideal for cooler weather.

Why not try chicken with dumplings for an old-fashioned savory favorite? Or, a tender crusty pie with pieces of chicken and vegetables in nice rich gravy.

You'll find the bits of leftover chicken go nicely into tartis, chow mein or tetrazzini chicken. All these will keep menu interest at a high pitch and help supply valuable protein, minerals and vitamins to the diet.

KINGDOM OF GOD AMONG MEN

IT IS not enough to consider, this truth in terms of some far-off dramatic event. It is a present force and factor in today's world.

One day the Pharisees asked Jesus when the Kingdom of God should come. He told them that it would not come with observation—that it is within the hearts of men.

What did he mean? I believe that he meant just this, that the Kingdom of God will and must manifest itself in the common affairs of everyday life. We may hinder its manifestation. We may retard its coming. On the other hand, we may make it manifest and hasten its spread to earth's remotest bounds.

How? By yielding ourselves to the rule and reign of God in every relationship of life. In race relations, in social service, in relief to the afflicted, in united effort for peace, in better housing, in better recreational facilities, in educational opportunities for all. The Kingdom of God is not an impractical theory, but a working principle, even as the heaven works in the loaf.

WHEN WILL IT COME?

THE Kingdom of God will come when redeemed hearts everywhere enthroned God in their whole attitude and purpose. Then, and not until then.

Will it come? This is a stubborn question. From our viewpoint, it may seem doubtful; but Jesus declares that it will come. "I have overcome the world," he declares.

The one question for you and for me, what part shall I have in the coming of the Kingdom of God upon the earth? We each decide by our willingness or unwillingness to follow him.

Observe good faith and justice toward all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all. — George Washington's Farewell Address.

BIBLE SPEAKS

SCRIPTURE: Mark 4:26-29; Luke 4:16-22; 17:20-21; Romans 14:17.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Isaiah 60:1-3, 10-14.

The Kingdom of God

Lesson for March 21, 1948

JESUS went back to his boyhood home in Nazareth, and on the Sabbath he went into the synagogue, "as was his custom."

They gave him the Book of Isaiah, from which he read a passage in the 61st chapter, adding, "This day is fulfilled in your ears," Luke 4:21.

Jesus had come to let people know about God—to reveal the Father's perfect love for all men. He loved the Bible, and was constantly reading it, which in his day was the Old Testament only. And he loved the Sabbath day, which we now call the Lord's day. Beginning with his resurrection, the first day of the week has been observed as the Lord's day. And Jesus loved the appointed places of worship, and was always found in some synagogue on the Sabbath. Don't you wish you might have been in Nazareth that day when he stood up to read the Scripture?

WHAT HE CAME TO DO
JESUS, I repeat, came to reveal God to men, which is but another way of saying that he came to teach men about the Kingdom of God. Here we shall need to read Mark 4:26-29, and Romans 14:17.

"The Kingdom of God is as if a man should cast seed into the ground," said Jesus; and Paul, in Romans 14:17, says, "The Kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Spirit."

Jesus, then, came to establish a kingdom within the hearts of men. It means the rule of God in human hearts. What he wills, we gladly do. It manifests itself in the daily life of the individual, in the home, in the school, in the church—everywhere.

"THEY KINGDOM COME"
SO VITAL is this truth for the Christian that Jesus, in the pattern prayer, teaches us to say, "Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as in heaven."

If we live in the atmosphere of this prayer, we shall embody daily the fruits of the coming Kingdom of God. If we really "seek first the Kingdom of God, and his righteousness," we lift the level of life wherever we stand and serve. This is precisely what Jesus did. "He went about doing good."

We help to answer the prayer, "Thy Kingdom come," when we do with all our might what our hands find to do—in the home, in the community, in the church.

WHAT DID HE MEAN?
The Kingdom of God will and must manifest itself in the common affairs of everyday life. We may hinder its manifestation. We may retard its coming. On the other hand, we may make it manifest and hasten its spread to earth's remotest bounds.

How? By yielding ourselves to the rule and reign of God in every relationship of life. In race relations, in social service, in relief to the afflicted, in united effort for peace, in better housing, in better recreational facilities, in educational opportunities for all. The Kingdom of God is not an impractical theory, but a working principle, even as the heaven works in the loaf.

WHEN WILL IT COME?
THE Kingdom of God will come when redeemed hearts everywhere enthroned God in their whole attitude and purpose. Then, and not until then.

Will it come? This is a stubborn question. From our viewpoint, it may seem doubtful; but Jesus declares that it will come. "I have overcome the world," he declares.

The one question for you and for me, what part shall I have in the coming of the Kingdom of God upon the earth? We each decide by our willingness or unwillingness to follow him.

Swedish Schooner Lisa Of 1799 Still Sailing Seas

The Swedish schooner Lisa, built in 1799, claims to be the oldest sailing ship still in service. At one period she was a slaver; now she carries cargoes like wood and cement. She was given an overhaul eight years ago, when her hull was still perfectly sound.

The oldest steamer in Lloyd's Register is about fifty years the Lisa's junior. She is the Hsin Tai, built in Russia in 1840 and now operated by Chinese Communists.

Politics doesn't seem to be getting even luke-warm in Davie. Up to this good hour neither a Republican or Democrat has filed for any county office. Davie will elect a Representative, Register of Deeds, three County County Commissioners, a Surveyor and help elect a State Senator. Davie will name the Senator for this district this year, as the office rotates among the three counties in the district—Wilkes, Yadkin and Davie. There is some talk of Attorney B. C. Brock for Representative. A lady might be named for the Senate.

Your Health Department

Would you like to help your government save $100,000,000 in taxes and 50,000 lives during the next 12 months? If so, the first step is to see your doctor or come to your Health Department and make sure that you are safe from a disease that costs North Carolina more than a thousand lives annually besides much suffering, loss of time, and a tremendous amount of your money to maintain special sanitariums.

Tuberculosis is a contagious disease. No one is safe from infection. Between the ages of 15 and 44, it leads all other diseases as the cause of death. It has been a leading killer for centuries. And the shame of it is that with your help and co-operation it could be wiped out entirely.

In the early stages tuberculosis frequently has no symptoms at all. If you wait until you feel sick; until you have a cough that won't quit; until you feel tired all the time; until you have pain in the chest; or until you spit up blood, you may have tuberculosis in advanced stages when it is harder and slower to treat and may require your life as the price of negligence.

Tuberculosis in the early stages can be cured; and the sooner it is found, the less time and money it takes to cure it. The tuberculosis test is simple, and will cost you nothing but your time. See your doctor or bring your family to our clinic.

Office Hours Mocksville Daily: 9:00-5:00, Saturday 9:00-12:00.

General Clinic schedules:
 Mocksville—Every Thursday afternoon and Saturday morning.
 Cooleemee—Every Tuesday afternoon. CARL E. SHELL.

Judge Bailey Lee

News was received here last week of the death of District Judge Bailey Lee, 75, of Burley, Idaho, who died on March 1st in a Boise City, Idaho, hospital.

Judge Lee was a resident of Mocksville before going west in 1897. Surviving are his wife and four children, one brother, Rev. William B. Lee, of Sao Paulo, Brazil, and three sisters, Misses Mary, Bertha and Alice Lee, of this city.

Judge Lee served two terms as Chief Justice of the Idaho State Supreme Court, and was a District Judge at the time of his death. Judge Lee visited his old home town a number of times, and his death has brought sadness to many of the older residents.

Noah Hursey

Noah Hursey, 83, prominent retired farmer of near County Line, died Saturday. Mr. Hursey was one of the founders of Pleasant View Baptist Church and served as one of its deacons until his death. Surviving are his wife, one son and two daughters. Funeral services were held Monday at 11 o'clock at Pleasant View Baptist Church, with Revs. Junie Barnes, L. T. Younger and E. F. Eagle officiating, and the body laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Why I Should Read My County Paper

Beavey Lella Gaither, 10th Grade Student, Farmington High School.

I should read my county newspaper because it is a very interesting and important force. The resources for gathering news from a distance are limited.

The personal items which make up a large part of the paper appeal to me because I know many of those whose names appear. It appeals very strongly to many readers because of its interest in local matters.

Since the county newspaper is published weekly, I should read it to keep up with the latest news. It brings us clear, vivid, truthful stories of happenings at home and abroad. Some of the space is devoted to matters of real importance such as advertisements, health and religion.

In my county newspaper I find one important matter to be the advertisements which contain the various articles the merchants of our town have for sale, and there are also other advertisements of different businesses.

The health column in our paper also tells us of what they are doing to prevent the diseases of our county.

In reading my newspaper I also find another interesting part which is our Sunday school lesson for each Sunday.

The material in the paper is organized according to subject, and is placed regularly in the same sections of the paper, so we can find our way through the pages with little loss of time.

I find also the editor is a county counselor who takes time to find out what is going on throughout the community, and to suggest civic improvements.

W. W. Garwood
 William W. Garwood, 75, a former citizen of Mocksville, but for many years a resident of Winston-Salem, died at his home in that city early Wednesday morning following a week's serious illness.

Funeral services were held at Central Terrace Methodist Church Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and the body laid to rest in Forsyth Memorial Park.

Mr. Garwood is survived by his wife, three daughters and three sons, one brother, John Garwood, of this city, and a half-brother, of North Wilkesboro. Mr. Garwood had many friends throughout Davie County who were saddened by news of his death. A long-time friend of the editor has gone to rest—a sincere Christian gentleman. Peace to his ashes.

W. C. Richardson, who lives in the classic shades of Eagle Mills township, Iredell County, was in town Tuesday on business. Mr. Richardson says the bad weather has put the farmers far behind with their work. There is much corn and cotton yet to harvest.

RAS'BRIES
By SETH BABITS

AMONG the million-odd things Spence wanted to do was visit Topley's. He'd had a yen for Topley's back there on the desert wastes. He craved it as a cat would catnip or a homesick Eskimo, an iceberg.

And now, as he hurried his chunky form up the narrow street, the blue neon above Topley's window blazed welcome in letters two feet high.

Spence slid into a seat. He breathed, "Razzberry soda, please. Topley special."

He closed his eyes and envisioned a monument of pink and white. A girl's voice, clear and soft, reached him.

"Ras-bry soda," she informed. "Without ras-bries."

He raised his head. Her eyes were warm and gray. An amused smile bowed her lips.

"Without—" he faltered.

Her manner humored his confusion. But Spence didn't see that. It struck him she was part of the soda. That the dream also took her in.

He watched her scoop out a gob of ice-cream, drop it into a tall glass, squirt in a crimson syrup and heard the harsh gurgle of carbonated water. The glass was placed before him.

He placed his lips to the straw and pulled. Coldness luxuriously flowed over his tongue, daubed his palate, trickled down his throat and touched off revelations of deliciousness he'd almost forgotten. It evoked imagery. Lying face upward in a shallow mountain lake . . . elastic stars shimmering on waters above . . . night winds whispering of giant pines . . . drifting . . . drifting in a rowboat . . . and a girl beside him . . . gray-eyed and pretty . . . a girl like . . . and he looked up. He felt the impact of her presence.

She said, "You enjoyed that?"

Enjoyed! He'd known the pricelessness of a cold glass of water. He grinned.

"His spot like a letter from home."

Spence expected a smile, but she merely picked up his empty glass and erased the moist ring beneath with an efficient stroke of a damp cloth. He felt he'd missed the target, but wide. He rose awkwardly and plunged a hand into his pocket. His coin vibrated on the counter. A frustrated ring.

The cash register crr-unged dismissal. Spence half-wheeled to go. In turning, his eye caught the tab, NO SALE! The girl's hand swept to her blouse pocket. The clink of metal told him his coin had joined others.

It was none of his concern, yet the act had been so brazen. He heard himself saying, "Don't they treat you right, here?"

Spence couldn't make out her expression. "They do," she answered succinctly.

"I saw you pocket that money."

"So what?" her coolness irritated him.

"If the owner caught you—"

"There's nothing he could do about it," she began to straighten a row of glasses before her. The gesture tokened disinterest in his opinions. More, it infuriated him.

"I wouldn't have believed it," he managed.

Instantly he was sorry for her. He noticed that dark lashes rested on her cheeks. He realized also his heart was thumping and there was a quaver in his voice that he couldn't control.

"Why don't you ask for a raise?"

"I can't—"

"Then quit. Get another job."

A tall man loomed in the doorway. He was thick shouldered, and muscles like Idaho potatoes bulged his arms, laden at the moment with two big paper bags.

Spence glanced at the girl. Beneath her coolness, he thought he detected an undercurrent of excitement.

She said courteously, "Did you get everything?"

The man shrugged his shoulders and laid the bags on the counter. "Yeah," he grunted. "Exceptin' powdered sugar." His tone was gruff. He tore the bag down the center.

Spence stared. There, tucked in between two packages lay a jar of rasberries. Atop the pile glistened another of cherries, bright, red, full, exciting and prophetic of delight.

Vaguely, he could hear the man counting. Meaningless numbers. He'd have to have a Topley special first, then take care of the girl. Spence regarded her expression. Injury dominated her fair face and a pensive smile hovered about her lips. It rebuked him.

With sinking heart and forward thrust of lean jaw, Spence gulped and announced:

"Sir, I want to talk to you."

"What's botherin' you, son?"

Spence cleared his throat. "You look like a regular guy," he began. "Now, supposin' you had a conscientious employe. You'd want to keep her, huh?"

"You said it," the man nodded vigorously.

"Now if you had a person like that and you felt she was competent to take care of the store," Spence took a deep breath and plunged, "would you give her a raise if she was to ask you. Would you?"

"Guess so," the man acknowledged.

"How much?"

"Well, the man's thick shoulders heaved. "Maybe ten," he said at last.

"You heard him," Spence turned triumphantly toward the girl, "I'm a witness."

She nodded. Her eyes were glowing.

"If you'll excuse me, son," the man was saying, "I'm kind of busy. I got a lot of deliveries to make." He handed a paper to the girl. "Here's the bill," he remarked.

"Thanks. I'll file it. Oh, yes," Spence saw her reach into her blouse pocket. "I've got two new quarters," she offered.

"Swell," he glowed with delight. He placed a fifty cent piece on the counter. "I just need about six more," he said as she rang up the money, "and I'll have enough for the kid's birthday. Thanks a lot, Miss Topley."

Spence was up. He was past the threshold and into the street. A detaining hand touched his shoulder. He brushed it off.

"Puleez," and a slim figure twisted around and blocked his passage. "What's the big idea," he demanded.

"I couldn't help it. Once you got started—I couldn't stop you. How about having a super special—with me?"

Spence visioned maraschino cherries floating on a rose pond above submerged raspberries. He also discovered lights in her eyes, flashes of radiant promise. He placed her arm in his. The action seemed most natural. "I'm glad you've reformed," he grinned. They went back into the store.

So You Think You Have Moods

A young navy lieutenant, not too long out of the service, told me over the luncheon table the other day that he became very much discouraged over himself. I pointed out he hadn't any reason to be. He has a good job. He's doing it well.

"That's just the trouble," he said. "I'm not doing it well. I know I'm not. One day I feel sure that I have everything a man needs to be successful and happy. Then the next day I'm clear down in the dumps. It's my moods. Isn't there anything a person can do about moods?"

I told him, as I am presently going to tell you, that of course there is something anyone can do about his moods. I told him furthermore something he never heard of before, that having moods is perfectly normal, perfectly natural, and a good rather than a bad thing.

We know a good deal more about moods now than we did a few years ago, for now we know that at certain times we are going to be happy, regardless of how things break for us, while at others we are going to feel depressed, also regardless of how things break.

Largely responsible for this information is Dr. Rexford Hershey of the University of Pennsylvania, one of the first scientists to study our emotional curves.

By his researches Dr. Hershey proved that we all have our ups and downs and these occur with regularity. We are elated, cheerful, pleasant, unpleasant, peevish, grouchy. That is one cycle. Then we become elated, cheerful, pleasant, and so forth, again. Our lives are a series of cycles—emotional cycles.

These cycles, moreover, appear with almost exact regularity. With some persons they appear every month; with others every two or three months. Highly emotional people go through their emotional cycles often in less than two-weeks' time, then start all over again; they are always in a dither. But long or short, each of us has his emotional curve.

Maybe you are wondering what you can do to control this curve. You can't control it, but you can disguise it, so that regardless of how you really feel, you put your best foot forward where the rest of the world is concerned.

And how do you do that? It's simple. Just remember that we take our emotions from our actions, not our actions from our emotions. In other words, to feel cheerful, just act cheerful. The next time you reach the low point of your emotional curve, try that. Act cheerful, talk cheerful, and you will be cheerful.

A Church Spire at Sunset
Grace Noll Crowell

ABOVE the city street a church's spire is climbing its bright ladder to the sky. The steeple's slates glow red, its tip is fire, A single burning finger there, and high Above that peak a flying white dove swings, A scarlet light upon its lifted wings.

These are God's emblems, and they call to men Above the darkening shadows of the street, Beckoning to them, bidding them hope again, Bidding them stay a moment their swift feet, Calling to them to lift their eyes, and there, Seeing that pointing finger, breathe a prayer, And the white bird flying heavenward bids them cease The clamor of their hearts and find His peace.

For Joyful Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

This splendid recipe is used by millions every year, because it makes such a dependable, effective medicine for coughs due to colds. It is so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial irritations.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and fill up with your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough medicine, very effective and quick-acting, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Pinex Saves You Money!

'Columbus Clocks' Found To Be but Fair Souvenirs

At the Chicago World's fair (Columbian exposition) in 1893, thousands of souvenir clocks were sold bearing a portrait of Columbus and the date 1492, says Collier's. Years later upon the death of the original purchasers, a large number of these souvenirs came into the possession of descendants and others, many of whom, believing they owned "a clock brought over by Columbus," sought an estimate of its value from clock authorities and antique dealers, only to be disillusioned.

It's Up to Us!

Today it doesn't require a genius of a Barney Baruch to look into the future and see that America faces a great crisis. It doesn't require the wisdom of Solomon to know that if present conditions continue we are headed right into a deep and shocking depression so great that it might affect the fundamental pattern of our economy, and hence the entire future of the nation.

We can, if only we would, prevent a serious depression for many years. But to do so would require these things we now definitely lack. These proper things will not likely be done and the depression will likely come. In the midst of a sobering depression, however, we might muster sufficient courage to do the right things and thereby shorten its duration.

What If It Comes?

I want to outline those necessary steps which could prevent depression if taken now, and which would shorten a depression if taken after it is upon us. In the first place, there is required a brand of bold, courageous, forthright, non-political executive leadership beyond anything Washington seems likely to display.

In the second place, it would necessitate a lot of new, daring, venturesome, resourceful industrial activity, which because of unfavorable tax rates, industrial strife, and general want of vision, we seldom see. In the third place, it would require from labor leaders in general a very genuine, honest, sincere, and effective effort to remove all practices and policies that hinder maximum production per man-hour, and that needlessly add to the cost of goods, construction, and so on, of which we likewise see but little.

Toward Real Raises

These three steps would bring about three conditions necessary if we are to prevent depression, unemployment, and mediocrity. One of the first things this formula would lead to would be real understanding and cooperation between industry and labor, which is an essential to the continued welfare of this nation. We have not fooled ourselves into the foolish belief that these great segments of industry must ever be at cross purposes.

In the second place, these things would lead to an increase of at least 40 per cent in actual amount of goods produced without increases in labor costs. At the same time there would be no decrease in rate of wages earned. This would rapidly increase the effectiveness of competition and would bring cuts in prices ranging from 20 to 25 per cent, thus giving a real raise in standards of living for the entire public, labor as well as others.

A Simple Formula

In the third place, these lower prices would increase demand for our goods. American industry has, more nearly than that of any other nation, reached the mass markets. Our industry has produced goods that make the least of us veritable kings. And the end of this is nowhere in sight.

This advice sounds extremely simple, and it is just that simplicity that makes the formula worthy. This simple formula for prosperity of the entire nation requires only honest, intelligent, unselfish, courageous citizenship and leadership. May God raise up the leadership for the sake of this nation, our posterity, and the world. May we, individually, exercise the intelligent citizenship the days ahead will require.

United States Savings Bonds have made last minute Christmas shopping worries a thing of the past for wise Americans. In fact even though you thought about what to give members of your family or close friends for a month of Sundays you could not come up with a better idea than Savings Bonds. Think of Savings Bonds in terms of what they will do for the recipient. For example, bonds provide immediate funds in the event of an emergency and help to pay for education, travel, a new home or a dozen and one other things which members of your family dream about. Your gift of a bond makes you a partner in the realization of the fondest hope of someone you love. What more could you ask of a Christmas gift?

Uncle Sam Says

What would you say if you saw a groundhog emerge from his hole this month with a stock of Savings Bonds in his paws? Millions of my nieces and nephews, who own Savings Bonds and are adding to their bond holdings regularly through the Payroll Savings or the Bond-A-Month Plans, would say that Mr. Groundhog has at last acquired common sense as a prophet of an early spring. There is no better harbinger of a bright, happy future is there than the growing, safe, profit-making financial reserve of United States Savings Bonds.

DOROTHY DIX, noted newspaper columnist and counselor to millions of Americans, says:
"The best advice I have ever given in my long life is the advice I give Americans now—that is, keep buying and holding U. S. Savings Bonds because they will insure your future happiness. Any home with Savings Bonds is certainly a better home than one without Savings Bonds. I can truly write about the merits of Savings Bonds in the family relationship, because bonds are really very personal in their nature. Savings Bonds eventually become the things we hope for, whether it is marriage, a new home, children's education or plain leisure."

I urge all officers and leaders of the Congress of Industrial Organizations to give their active support to the program."

Irreconcilable

Russia today is firmly opposed to almost everything and anything that America suggests. There is one possible exception, and that is aid to Russia. Since Russia's cross-purposes with us are so evident, it is natural to ask why she got that way. Why does she find it convenient, ever to go out of her way, to oppose America?

It is not because we did not help Russia enough during the war. Matter of fact, we helped Russia, then to the extent of $11,681,000,000. This was lend-lease, of which we will expect to get little or nothing in return. What we got from Russia in reverse lend-lease, compared with the more than $11½ billions that went her way, was little more than 1-500 of one billion—only $2,213,000.

Then, when UNRRA decided to accumulate a big fund to help needy nations, America gave 70 per cent of the total. Our part was $2,279,000,000. The Russians did not put up anything. Yet Russia has helped to manage UNRRA. Actually, Russia has so manipulated the aid to several European countries that the people there thought they were being helped by Russia, rather than by America.

Now, the Marshall plan calls for additional help for European countries. It proposes that America use from $15 to $22 billions in an effort to get those countries on a self-sustaining basis. Not only does Russia oppose this aid, but she has inspired the creation of the Communist International. This organization operates in nine different countries and is dedicated to complete opposition to anything that resembles American policy in international affairs.

Good Neighbors? Just why this continued opposition from Russia? In my opinion, it comes definitely from the fact that Communism is irreconcilable to the American way of life. If it be observed that Communism did not offer opposition during the war, it may also be observed that Communist leaders temporarily went underground while America was helping Russia stave off disaster.

As soon as the war was over, as soon as lend-lease quit flowing to Russia, the Communists began to oppose every move for peaceful stabilization. They wanted defeated countries to remain defeated. Peaceful and prosperous countries find Communism unattractive, indeed. But Russia has now solidified her opposition to peace. Russia offers long-range opposition to America's desire for peace, through her International.

This is the answer: Communism is antagonistic to almost every basic principle in the American way of life. It is opposed to religion, to the sacredness of marriage, to private ownership of property, to freedom of the individual, to freedom of the press and of speech. The Russians deny that we can be their neighbors. They fear a demonstration of the superiority of the American way—a brand of democracy that does not need to call up an International to protect itself.

What to Do About It

There is one way, and only one way, to avoid a serious depression, and that way is open to the American people. Responsibility rests firmly upon each of us, no matter what may be our economic status or individual social background, to choose out this proper course. There is no way to go, if we should face into a depression, except toward hard work and the high productivity of industrial peace.

That's the formula that will enable us to weather a business recession, provided we begin to use it now. We must all tighten our belts, get our feet on the ground, and go to work just as hard as we can work. A greatly increased measure of productivity per man-hour is the best answer to the present situation that can be thought up.

Down With Prices With increased productivity, with an honest hour's labor given for every hour's pay, we could see a considerable lowering of prices. Indeed, with genuine whole-hearted cooperation from labor and industry, it would be quite possible to increase output as much as 40% generally. This should be enough to bring about a general 25% reduction in prices. This could be done with our present labor force and without increased working hours.

This would in fact bring prices down until it would be equivalent to an increase in wages. This is the one sound answer to the present threat of a depression. Such an answer would also give us hope of regaining our foreign markets, which have had little attention paid to them since the war.

Wisdom of a Sage

The importance of this thing prompted Bernard M. Baruch to state recently that the whole post-war world would "get going only if men work" and to come out for a 5½ day, 44 hour week. The seriousness of the problem we face is such that we may be able to save civilization if we accept the challenge, Mr. Baruch said, adding that this would mean greater effort than that exerted during the war.

In proposing a 44 hour work week, "with no strikes or layoffs to January 1, 1949" as a means of increasing production, Mr. Baruch recognized our present tendencies to put limitations on our work. He emphasized that a way must be found for production to flow smoothly. This achieved, then a sense of security would return to worker and employer, and the reaction upon the economy of the world would be deep and lasting.

Heads Together

The sage Mr. Baruch has more. "Until we have unity, until we straighten out and solve our problems of production, and have internal stability, there is no basis on which the world can renew itself physically or spiritually," he continued. If labor and industry would put their heads together, come to a realistic solution of their problems, shake hands across the table and go to work in earnest to whip this threat of immediate depression through maximum and whole-hearted production, then no one would have anything to fear.

Uncle Sam Says

Why not step on your own personal security self-starter to make 1948 the best year in your life? When you sign up to buy United States Savings Bonds through automatic payroll savings right where you work, or the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank, you're adding money that grows to your income. These dollars you put aside, before they have the chance to sprout wings and fly away, are sure to come in handy later on—to buy a home for your family, an education for your children, or years of leisure for yourself. And, best of all, you'll be getting back more than you put in—$100 at maturity for every $75 invested today.

Be An "Engineer in Good Eating"—Do Home Canning!

Simple Instructions Based on Science

You may not have a degree as an engineer, Mrs. Housewife, but when you're home canning you're using scientific principles just as surely as a mining, chemical, electrical or other engineer. That is, if you follow glass jar manufacturer's instructions, for they are based upon scientific discoveries made over a period of a century and a half.

Back in Napoleon's time, a Paris confectioner, Nicolas Appert, set out to find a method of food preservation and win a 12,000-franc prize offered in 1795 by the French government. Napoleon, like Frederick the Great, believed an army travels on its stomach, and the folks at home got hungry and discontented too!

Nicolas won the prize, after 15 years' work, but his methods and equipment have been greatly improved upon. He labored under many handicaps, not knowing a temperature beyond boiling is required for processing some foods and having to design his own glass jars. Not until 1860 did Louis Pasteur establish the fact that microorganisms are responsible for food spoilage. Fourteen years later, an American, A. K. Shriver of Baltimore, invented the "retort" or "pressure" cooker.

In 1858 John Mason patented the Mason jar with neck designed for receiving a screw type cap. The Mason jar with porcelain-lined zinc cap is an old reliable. Mason would probably be astounded by the 1947 cap for sealing the Mason jar. This new style cap is a two-piece metal affair with a Dome lid which has sealing compound on the under side, and is tested for seal by pressing on the center of the lid with the finger. Sealing with the Dome lid is made doubly sure by the new type metal band which bears down on the lid at three pressure points.

Also reliable in seal is the lighting type jar with rubber ring, glass lid and wire bail.

Many scientific experiments and jar improvements have perfected processes for today's home canning and it is upon them that instructions you will find in reliable home canning literature such as the Ball Blue Book are based. Follow these instructions and you become an "Engineer in Good Eating"—much to the benefit of your family's health and increased pleasure at the table provided by delicious home canned foods.

How to Get on With People

Rev. W. E. Isenhour, High Point, N. C. P4

One of the greatest problems that confronts everyone is that of getting on with people—getting along with each other. In order to accomplish this well we must realize that it is absolutely necessary to bear with each other in our mistakes, shortcomings, blunders and failures and then be willing to take lots and go on without fretting, murmuring and complaining. Give as little offense as possible. Don't form the habit of criticism. The habitual critic never wins to himself many friends. Not many people appreciate criticism, even though sometimes they deserve it. Criticism should always be done in a friendly way, not harshly. How necessary it is to love people rather than despise them; to pray for them rather than denounce them; to bear with them long and patiently; to criticize little and encourage much; to help folks up rather than kick them down; to lead them to Christ rather than away from Him; to show them the way heavenward rather than lead them hellward, or thrust them hellward!

Someone has said: "Always say less than you think. Cultivate a low, persuasive voice. How to say it often counts more than what you say. Make promises sparingly and keep them faithfully, no matter what it costs you. Praise good work done, regardless of who did it. If criticism is needed, criticize helpfully, not spitefully. Be interested in others; be interested in their pursuits, their welfare, their homes and families. Let everyone you meet, however, though humble they be, feel that you regard them as of importance. Be cheerful. Hide your pains, worries and disappointments under a smile. Preserve an open mind on all debatable subjects. Discuss; don't argue. It is a mark of superior minds to disagree and yet be friendly. Discourage gossip. Make it a rule to say nothing to another unless it is something good. Be careful of another's feelings. Wit and humor at the other fellow's expense are seldom worth the effort, and may hurt where the least expected. Pay no attention to ill-natured remarks about you. Simply believe that no one will believe them. Don't be too anxious about your dues. Do your work, be patient and keep your good disposition, and you will be rewarded."

Therefore to get on with people is a lifetime job. It doesn't begin with the morning and close with the day. It begins with life, or very early in life, and closes with death. It takes the best there is in us, along with the great love and matchless grace of God in our hearts and souls, to get on with people and prove ourselves a blessing.

"I would be true, for there are those who love me;
I would be pure, for there are those who care;
I would be strong, for there is much to suffer;
I would be brave, for there is much to dare;
I would be giving, and forget the gift;
I would be humble, for I know my weakness;
I would look up and laugh, and love and lift."

While it may be practically impossible to get on with everybody in harmony, and feel a kindred spirit existing among all men, yet we can love them, pray for them, do good toward them, even good for evil, and thus have a clear conscience. This pays great dividends. We can win the confidence of people, also their respect, whether we win their love, kindness and helpfulness or not. Men may not always agree with us, and some may not love us, but we can so live before them until they can't find a dirty spot in our lives, and will have to respect us for our godliness, uprightness, manliness and holiness.

I find by years of actual experience that to simply treat folks right, love them, pray for them, be kind to them, and endeavor to lead them into the upper and higher realms of life, gets me further with the average person than anything else. There is something in the heart of the average man that responds to pure love, kindness, gentleness, godliness and prayer more than anything else. Even if we sometimes can't win a man to Christ we can win his respect, and

Whooping Cough Claims

Victims Among Infants

Whooping cough will claim more victims this year than last, according to the U. S. public health service. The communicable disease probably will be more severe than for any other year since 1943.

In recent years mortality from this cause has varied with that from meningococcus meningitis, measles, diphtheria and poliomyelitis; but of these diseases whooping cough takes the largest proportionate toll of life in infants under one year of age and in children under five. In 1944 and 1945, 71 per cent of the deaths from whooping cough were in infants under one, and 97 per cent in children under five, emphasizing the importance of early immunization and the proper care of young patients to prevent complications, of which pneumonia is the most common and most serious. Approximately four times as much whooping cough has been reported for 1947 as was reported in 1946, and nearly twice the number of deaths were recorded. Whooping cough immunization for prevention of disease and deaths should be given to young infants.

Three Hungarian Towns

Ceded to Czechoslovakia

The three Hungarian towns of Horvatjarfulu, Oroszvar and Dunacsun, transferred to Czechoslovakia by the Czech-Hungarian peace treaty, lie along the Danube at the point where the great river makes one of its striking shifts in personality.

Near the eastern border of Austria, notes National Geographic society, the Danube turns into the lofty, rocky defile known as the "Hungarian Gates." It is beyond this gorge that the river takes on its new character as a broad, mature stream meandering through the fertile plains of northwest Hungary.

The former Hungarian area is a tiny finger of land covering about 35 square miles. Its transfer, however, spreads Czechoslovakian territory along both sides of the Danube at the spot where Czechoslovakia, Austria and Hungary meet.

All these towns are small. Their total population is about 10,000. The region in which they are situated, however, is important not only because of the trade but also because of the traffic artery of the Danube.

Power on the Farm

Rural electrification has come into widespread use since 1935, when only 4,763 farms in South Carolina had high-line electric service, according to a report of Clemson Agricultural college. By 1945 the number of farms receiving this type of electric service, mostly through rural electrification cooperatives, had increased to 52,101, or 11 times. Along with rural electrification had grown the use of electric lights for farm homes, poultry houses and other farm buildings, electric refrigerators, running water, freezer-locker plants, cooking stoves, radios, washing machines, hotbeds for plant production, brooding for baby chicks and pigs, motors and other electrical equipment for reducing the drudgery and increasing the efficiency of farm and home operations.

Calcium Helps Apples

Experiments at New York State agricultural experiment station, Geneva, have shown that calcium helps retain the original firmness of apples during canning and freezing. Food scientists also have found that calcium-treated apples retain their shape better in pies than do apple slices which were not treated. When apples are soft due to advanced ripening, the calcium treatment is very useful in making the tissue firmer before canning or freezing. Apples should be treated before they are packed into the container in which they are preserved. For canning, the scientists found that adding 0.1 per cent calcium chloride to the salt water in which the apples usually are soaked before steam blanching will do the job. The treatment was successful when 0.5 per cent calcium chloride was simply added to the water in which the apples were blanched before freezing.

Milk Products Help In Conserving Grain

Better Rations Result When Proteins Are Used

With a world grain emergency and a national drive to conserve grain used in feeding, and with grain prices high, milk by-products are more important than ever in poultry feeding.

Balanced rations probably can do more to conserve grain used in feeding than any other single measure. Milk nutrients found in skim milk, buttermilk and dried cheese whey have been found highly effective in building balanced poultry rations.

These milk by-products provide animal proteins of unusual quality. The milk proteins, lactalbumen and casein, have a high growth promoting value and contain all the essential amino acids. These proteins give balance to the lower quality vegetable protein in grains normally fed poultry.

Milk by-products are rich in lactose, or milk sugar, a natural laxative which helps poultry maintain good intestinal health and minimizes the hazards of intestinal parasites. These milk by-products also provide minerals, particularly calcium and phosphorus and contain the water soluble vitamins of whole milk.

In preparing a balanced ration the object is to feed the correct proportion of the various nutrients that poultry require. In every case there is a point beyond which it is wasteful to include additional grain without providing other nutrients because the fowl cannot make complete economical use of all nourishment in additional grain.

Poultry Relish Grit; Aids Grinding Process

Grit is a material of value to poultry but full details are not yet definitely known, according to University of Delaware. It is certain that birds like it and, when grit is fed freely, they consume more than is actually needed. Grit containing a large amount of soluble calcium has been widely recommended but appears to have no advantage where other forms of calcium are included in the ration. Actually it might be detrimental, say Delaware specialists. Helping the gizzard in the grinding process is the only known function of grit. A hard mica grit of suitable size doubtless should be available to all chickens.

Scientists Seek Trace

Of Agriculture's Start

Scientists who will sail from this country shortly expect to find in the Near East traces of the earliest civilization. They are going to dig in a mound which already has yielded, at successively lower levels, traces of several ancient races and they hope to find at the very bottom signs of a very ancient village dating back to the time when man first scratched the earth and planted a handful of seeds, an estimated 6,000 years ago.

If these scientists succeed, they will have uncovered traces of the first and greatest of all the economic and social revolutions which have resulted in our present civilization. The discovery of agriculture—the discovery that seed could be planted and made to grow in an orderly fashion and yield a greater return than any wild plants—was the greatest economic or industrial discovery ever made by man.

Agriculture did these things for primitive man: It simultaneously made him a villager instead of a nomadic wanderer and for the first time enabled him to produce more than he himself could eat. Men who planted grain and waited for the harvest built shelters, settled in villages and banded together to protect their produce and their rich lands. Government had its beginning. As the farmers of those early days produced more and more it was possible for other men to develop the arts of shoemaking, weaving and building and to trade their produce for that of the farmers who were producing enough food for several men. Commerce and industry thus had their beginnings.

Thermostat Tricks Cows

Into Producing More Milk

Cows are being fooled into drinking more water during winter months with highly profitable results for farmers.

It is all based on the fact that milk production bears a direct relationship to water consumption. Hence if a cow can be induced to drink more water, she will give more milk.

For each 100 pounds of milk, a cow must drink 300 pounds of water. Her body is about 60 per cent water; milk is 88 per cent water. A special thermostat, devised by Minneapolis-Honeywell company, that regulates temperatures of outside watering troughs does the trick.

If drinking water is held at 45 degrees or above, a cow will drink more than if the temperature is just above freezing, and at milk-time she will give from 10 to 20 per cent more milk. The thermostat is used to operate an electric heater and can maintain any selected water temperature between 32 and 70 degrees.

Some Illinois History

Did you know that Illinois was the scene of the world's first automobile race? The contest was held on a road between Chicago and Waukegan in 1893. Did you know that the first coal discovered in the United States was found in Illinois? Father Hennepin, French missionary and explorer, discovered the black gold along the Illinois river in 1679. Or, did you know that the first ferris wheel was used at the World's Columbian exposition in Chicago, in 1893? These are facts on the colorful history of Illinois told by Dr. Paul M. Angle, of Chicago Historical society in World Book encyclopedia.

Harmful Anti-Freezes

Petroleum base anti-freezes are classed in general as harmful because such materials attack radiator hose made from natural or reclaimed rubber and because of the effects which result from this attack. However, if the anti-freeze material is properly and highly refined and is used with a radiator hose of suitably selected synthetic rubber, the hose is not attacked. Properly and highly refined materials are those which are composed primarily of aliphatic and naphthenic hydrocarbons and which contain no aromatics or olefins, according to the national bureau of standards.

Fish War on Mosquito

The people of Yamba on the north coast of New South Wales are determined to get rid of that formidable Australian mosquito known as "Scots Greys"—a tribute to the fighting qualities of a famous British regiment—by feeding them to a species of fish, the gambusia asinis. These fish, which are four inches long and look like minnows, rise to the surface of the water and snap up mosquitoes as they hover to lay their eggs. They breed quickly. Experts forecast that in two years the mosquitoes will disturb the Yamba townsfolk no more.

How Many Guilty

If you hold a federal license to sell liquor, that's evidence enough for a grand jury to get a case charging you with possession of whisky for sale, Attorney General Harry McMillan ruled last week. Now, it's up to the Solicitor, county officers and grand jury to see that something is done about federal licensed fellows in Wilkes county. If nothing is done about this matter at March term of court then it would be well for the Judge to stop court and take inventory. —Wilkes Hustler.

The FICTION Corner
QUESTION OF ANGLES
By FREDERICK SKERRY

A TRIANGLE? Sure, if you think in geometrical figures. But counting Mary Hill with the three men you'd have a square, wouldn't you?

Anyhow, we were on the Wild River bridge job. A nice change it was, too, with Barret Falls Center only a mile away; no construction camp in this picture. You could get room and board in somebody's house or you could take a room only and eat out. And the boys who hadn't been too quick in grabbing a room and board took their morning and evening meals at the Elite Lunch—that is, those who had got a peek at what was inside the three-sided counter, I did myself.

And Mary Hill was very good for the eyes. Fresh and sweet and cool-looking she was in her white rig, even on the hottest day—and lovely to look at. I figured she was 28 or 29. That steel crew, though, was a new breed to Mary Hill. A happy-go-lucky bunch, as ready for a scrap as a frolic, working hard and playing hard. One night when I was almost the last to leave Mary said: "I suppose the danger you fellows are in all day makes you gay and light-hearted when you get away from it. Men fall sometimes, don't they?"

"Not often," I said. "It looks worse than it is. A man is careful. You get used to height."

By this time the competition for Mary was all but general. I was on the side lines, you might say. Being field engineer, I was some older than most of the boys—not so much, but enough to make me conscious of the difference. Jack Benz, Clem Sask and Dave Johnson seemed to be favored. Benz, a good-looking, wise-cracking chap, eventually monopolized Mary's time.

Dave Johnson was the quiet, serious kind, and an A-1 bridge jack. But, now that he seemed out of the running, he quit coming altogether. Clem Sask and Benz were not talking.

Working from both ends, we were now almost ready to join steel. Jack and Dave and Clem were together on the down river truss. They'd put the head of a strut or a diagonal in place for the riveters, then go down to bolt the foot. Dave was on a hanging platform below when Jack went down, leaving Sask to tighten the bolts. Jack had no sooner stepped on the platform—hadn't time to anchor his safety belt—when Clem Sask dropped a spanner. Clem let out a yell. But that seven-pound spanner was on its way and bounced off Jack's head.

And Jack toppled to follow it down to the river. All of him but his legs was off that six by six platform. But that was as far as he went because Dave had grabbed a suspension line and had thrown himself across Jack's legs. Then he reached down the other hand and took a fistful of Jack's over-all—and whatever was underneath it—and pulled Jack back. And it all happened while you'd be striking a match.

An ambulance took Jack to the nearest hospital, a small one in a small town twenty miles away. I guess they felt at the hospital that this job on Jack was too much for them because they delivered Jack to a big city hospital.

We put it down as an accident. But I wished it hadn't happened between that particular pair. The news got to the Elite before we did, and Mary shared the general gloom.

Later Clem asked for his time—which was just as well.

A few days later Dave began to eat again in the Elite. And I quit staying late to look at Mary when she wasn't constantly on the move.

A few weeks afterwards we were practically finished with the bridge; half the crew had left. One night I went to the picture house and saw Mary and Dave sitting a couple of rows in front. I figured that Dave was making up for lost time. After the show, while on my way to where I slept, I crossed the street just as a car popped out of a cross street. I got it in the right leg.

Evidently a busted leg wasn't too much for that little hospital in the next town; anyhow that's where I landed. Dave was waiting when they'd got my leg set and in a cast. I had been wondering about him and Mary, but he was no talker. But I was sure I'd find out something from Mary, if I could see her.

And I did see her the next afternoon; she walked into my room not a minute after visit-time began. But is off. He's getting crutches for you. Now I have it all figured out. I have a perfectly good house and oodles of room, and nobody in it but myself—except when Ann James is there doing housework—and that's where you go from here."

"Listen, Mary," I put in. "You've been an angel of kindness. But there's a limit, I know what these small places are, Mary, and I won't have you talked about on my account . . ."

"I see what you mean. She looked down at me, and her eyes were dreamy. "Of course it would be nice . . ." I said nothing, and she wagged her head and looked at the ceiling.

"My heavens! Did a woman ever work harder for a man?"

That didn't make sense. "What man?" I said.

"You! Who else, for goodness sake?"

"Listen, Mary," I said. I felt all hollow inside. "Don't kid me—not about that."

"I'm not kidding—anything but."

And Jack toppled to follow it down to the river. All of him but his legs was off that six by six platform.

the only news she let out was that Dave had heard that Jack was getting on all right but would be laid up for a long time.

For three weeks Mary came every day.

Then the crew was through with the bridge, and Dave, making a last evening visit, was as dead-pan as ever. That puzzled me, and I banked on Mary being less shut-mouthed.

AND, thinking of her, I realized that once out of the hospital I'd see little of her. I had that load on my mind when she came next afternoon looking pleased as Punch. She told me how the 'gang had bid her good-bye the day before.

Then she said, "I had quite a compliment last night, Charlie: Dave asked me to marry him."

"Congratulations, Mary!" I said. "Dave is a grand guy." And I meant it.

"Yes, he is," she nodded. "He'll make a fine husband—for some girl who wants to worry about him while he's climbing over bridges. But I had to turn him down. I'll marry nobody I have to worry about at the start. That's that. Now look, I just talked with the doctor. He says you can leave here in two or three days, but you'll have to go easy on that leg, even after the cast

She reached out and grabbed my hand. "Charlie, you are dumb! Did you think I was a district nurse, or something—coming here every day?"

"But—" I could hardly speak. "I thought—well, with Jack and Dave . . ."

"Business, dear," she cut in. "I own the Elite Lunch, so why wouldn't I build up good will with the customers? You never asked me out."

"Not because I didn't want to," I said. "But all those fellows, Jack and Dave—"

She gave a kind of snort. "You didn't think a woman would be interested in the only man around who didn't seem interested in her. No. So I had to find out all about you from those others. And you had to go and get yourself hurt for me to get a good chance at you."

"Listen," I said, "A minute ago you said you wouldn't marry anybody who climbs bridges."

"I know I did," she admitted. "But your climbing days are over, Charlie—so Doc says."

That stopped me. Still, I could always have a good berth in the plant—or some other plant. My tongue seemed tied, but I managed to make it work. "Would you marry me, Mary?"

She was off the chair like a flash and sitting on the edge of the bed, holding my hands. "He's said it!" she laughed. "The dumb bunny has actually said it! Would I . . ."

So after all, you might say that the affair turned out to be a pentagon.

Enamel-Coated Tin Cans Play Part in Atom Role

In experimenting with radioactive chemicals from the atomic piles at Oak Ridge, plant scientists of the U. S. department of agriculture have stopped using the familiar clay pots and jars in their greenhouse experiments. Instead they are using inexpensive tin cans coated with enamel. After each experiment they discard the cans and soil that contains the radioactive material, and bury them deep in the ground to get rid of them.

The reason is simple. In checking the action of the radioactive chemicals moving out of the soil and into and through the plant, the scientists make use of the delicate "tracer" method. Counting instruments detect and record the passage of charged molecules as they pass through the plant tissues. It is necessary to have exact knowledge as to the radiant energy present at the start of the experiment. This is possible by using fresh soil, a new container and exactly measured quantities of radioactive chemicals.

But if a clay container had been used previously, the pot would have become at least slightly radioactive, and so would add some unmeasured radioactive energy that would complicate the experiment. It would disturb what the scientists term the "control" of conditions.

Million Irishmen Attend Largest Political Meeting

Probably the largest political mass meeting in history, says Collier's, was that called at Tara, Ireland, on August 15, 1843, to hear the Irish statesman, Daniel O'Connell, demand the repeal of the union between his country and Great Britain.

It was attended by more than 1,000,000 people, a number equivalent, at that time, to one person in every family in Ireland.

1. The after-effects of your child's illness are often more important than the illness itself. Pampering, catering to whims, oversolicitude teaches a child to dominate through weakness. Such well-meant kindness may prolong his convalescence.

2. You'll be smart to help him amuse himself. Give him something which doesn't require an adult's constant attention. Give him your "Eveready" flashlight... or get him one of his own. If he tires of flashing the beam, or flicking out imaginary signals, then...

3. Show him how to cut designs or figures from stiff paper and how to throw their shadows on the ceiling or wall. Moving the figures will make them dance. Watch his pride in what he's done. Watch him get well faster because he's happier!

"IF MY PEOPLE, WHICH ARE CALLED BY MY NAME, SHALL HUMBLE THEMSELVES, AND PRAY, AND SEEK MY FACE, AND TURN AWAY FROM THEIR WICKED WAYS; THEN WILL I HEAR FROM HEAVEN, AND WILL FORGIVE THEIR SINS, AND WILL HEAL THEIR LAND."—2 CHRON. 7:14.

We can't see how an honest Republican can edit a New Deal Democratic paper. Can you?

Pender County voted recently by an overwhelming majority, to prohibit the sale of beer and wine in that county. This is the third county in Eastern Carolina to vote out wine and beer in the past few weeks. Don't know when Davie County will call an election.

Davie is one of the smallest but one of the best counties in the old North State. The great majority of our people are honest, law-abiding citizens. With the world in the condition it is, it is not surprising that many tragedies occur. Within the past few weeks three Davie County men have taken their lives. Never in history has there been more turmoil, crime and tragedy than at the present time. It seems that the devil has got the world by the tail with a down-hill pull.

Our Best Bow

Jacksonville, Fla., March 16. Dear Mr. Stroud—I'm not being formal in my letter introduction, but my father, the late William P. Etchison, who lived in Mocksville, and who was connected with the State newspaper for over 40 years, and a faithful reader of his home town paper, The Davie Record, and who delighted me in reading it and telling me I could be a "Tar Heel" by adoption. Well, getting to the point. I deeply appreciate your Christian paper, and you should be proud to be among the Master's minority. How I wish more papers refused liquor advertisements, like yours, and a few magazines like Saturday Evening Post. And how I wish for more papers to not be afraid to print the truth.

I'm glad you have not just as a motto, but practice, "Here Shall The Press, The People's Rights Maintain, Unawed by Influence and Unbribed by Gain." You were nice to mention of my father going Home. Not for sentimental reasons do we wish to take your paper, but because of its value.

Sincerely yours,
PRESTON R. ETCHISON.

Williams Named

Lafayette Williams, Yadkinville attorney and State Senator, was nominated Wednesday as the Republican candidate for Congress in the Eighth District at the district convention at Lexington. He won the nomination over Charles R. Hall, of Sanford, Republican chairman of Lee County.

Roy Pendry, District Chairman, of Yadkinville, has called a convention of the Republicans of the 24th Senatorial District, to meet at Yadkinville on Saturday afternoon March 27th, at which time a candidate for nomination for State Senator will be endorsed. Why I Should Read Tobacco Quota My County Paper

Irma Jean Jones, Mocksville, R. 2, 9th Grade, Mocksville H. School.

One of the reasons that I should read my county paper is that I can learn what happened before I was born. Sometimes the articles are about people you know, and most of all about people you would like to know. You can find out what's happening in and around your town and county. There are also articles in the paper about your State and its people and the United States as a whole. In your county paper you will find advertisements that will interest you. If you have some things you would like to sell, or there's something you'd like to buy that's not to be found, put an ad in your county paper.

You will find daily Bible readings and discussions in the paper. You should by all means read these. Then there are poems in the paper. There are articles for the women as well as for the men. The women will find patterns, receipts, and some very good household hints. There's the comic strip for the kids, but kids should read the rest of the paper, too.

There is an article which you can always look forward to reading in your county paper, "The Davie Record." The article is, "Seen Along Main Street." This will by all means interest everyone. There might be something in it about you, so read it. There's a story in "The Fiction Corner" of your paper that the majority of the people look forward to and read each week. So don't forget to read your county paper. It'll interest you as it interests everyone else.

Court in Session

The March term of Davie Superior court convened in this city Monday morning with Judge Dan K. Moore, of Sylva, presiding and Solicitor Avalon Hall, of Yadkinville, prosecuting. There are 174 cases docketed for trial at this term of court. It is thought the court will continue through Thursday. Many of the cases are for traffic violations. No cases of importance are docketed, it is said.

Now is the time to subscribe for The Record.

According to J. N. Smoot, chairman of the AAA Committee, Secretary Clinton P. Anderson announced today that, after careful investigation of the supply and demand situation for flue-cured tobacco, it has been decided that no change will be made in the 1948 national marketing quota of 955 million pounds announced last November.

The Department explained that the purpose of today's announcement is to remove any question on the part of growers as to whether an increase will be made in the farm allotments for 1948.

Pre-School Clinics

Clinics are now being scheduled for examination and necessary immunizations of all children who will enter school next fall.

Dr. Harry T. McPherson of the Duke University School of Medicine has been secured to hold these clinics in Davie County. Children will have a thorough physical examination for signs of malnutrition, defective eyes, ears, teeth, tonsils and other conditions that would hinder their progress in school.

Parents are urgently requested to put forth every effort to come with their children to these clinics in order that they may discuss the examination with the doctor and understand fully what corrections should be made during the summer. Clinics are as follows:

- Farmington—Wednesday, Mar. 24th, 9 a. m.
- William R. Davie—Wednesday, March 24th, 11 a. m.
- St. John's—Wednesday, March 24th, 2 p. m.
- Advance—Friday, March 26th, 9 a. m.

Mission to Saudi-Arabia

AN ULTRA hush-hush military mission left recently for Saudi-Arabia. Just what this group of about 200 American officers and technical sergeants will do in Arabia is supposed to be a strict secret, but real fact is they are to train an Arab air force and re-equip abandoned U. S. air fields.

Why this secret mission is leaving at this time is not known, but behind their trip is an agreement with King Ibn Saud by which he gives a pipeline concession to the Arabian-American Oil company.

Members of the military mission were selected after elaborate screening tests, then given instruction in the Arabic language, espionage and demolition work.

The group left from Washington, New York and Miami, all wearing civilian clothes. In order not to attract attention, they will proceed in small details and by round-about routes.

For instance, one detail will go to Paris, then Germany, then Greece and finally to the Arabian-Iranian border.

GOP Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire was commenting to colleagues about President Truman's failure to mention the civil rights program in his Jackson Day speech.

"The Democrats," quoth Bridges, "are haunted by the past, befuddled by the present and terrified by the Henry Wallace future."

Another Red Circle?

YOU CAN PUT a red circle around April 18 as the next big day for Red Russia. That's the date of the Italian elections and the date when the Communists will attempt their next Czechoslovakia.

The Russian goal in Italy is to win 40 per cent of the April balloting. If so, they will attempt to move all other political parties out of the cabinet and take over Italy completely.

In preparation, a secret Red battalion of about 250,000 men, including Yugoslavs, has moved into northern Italy and infiltrated into key places.

Meanwhile also, the Russians are spending millions of lira in Italy. Money is being pumped in as never before to undo the results of the Friendship Train and other American relief to Italy.

In contrast, the American propaganda funds were cut to the bone by congress last year.

The Picture Changes

DURING THE FIRST FEW MONTHS Harry Truman spent in the White House, he kept insisting to friends that he did not want to run for a second term.

Mrs. Truman — who carries a great deal more weight with the President than most people suspect — felt exactly the same way, possibly more so.

At that time, however, Mr. Truman's close friends and political leaders felt just the opposite. They were determined that he should run again, believed he was the only candidate with whom the Democrats would win.

Now, however, the situation is somewhat reversed. Today the political leaders desperately don't want Mr. Truman to run, but are afraid he has the bit in his teeth and can't be persuaded to bow out.

Bob Hannegan, the man who two years ago repeatedly denied that Mr. Truman would not run again and who was the first to propose his name publicly for reelection, now is privately sorry he ever made the suggestion.

Ed Flynn of the Bronx, who helped nominate Mr. Truman at the 1944 Chicago convention, also is convinced that Mr. Truman's name on the ticket means certain defeat. Southern leaders, of course, are not even private about it. They want to junk him at any cost.

But although Mr. Truman two years ago would have been quite in the mood to bow out, today it may be different. After all, human nature is human nature, and Harry Truman is known to be a stubborn man. Sometimes when his friends, such as Tom Vandergast or Ed Pauley or Gen. Wallace Graham, are under fire, he has gone to extreme lengths to buck outraged public opinion.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Finland Fears Reds Seek Control As Stalin Calls for "Defense Pact"; Vandenberg Urges Speed on ERP

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

WHO'S NEXT? Finland

Finland seemed to be resigned, saturated with the apathy that sometimes precedes extinction.

It was a state of mind that had grown out of a reported request by Josef Stalin of Russia that Finland join up with the chain of Soviet defense pacts that now stretches across Europe.

To the Finns that request was nothing less than a prelude to the same kind of political control Russia had just imposed on Czechoslovakia. They feared their parliamentary freedoms would go by the boards in such a turn of events.

Finland's President Juho Paasikivi was said to be in favor of signing a Finnish-Russian friendship treaty as suggested by Stalin.

His viewpoint, distinguished by realism if nothing else, was this: To turn down the Soviet bid would aggravate Russian-Finnish relations to a dangerous degree.

At the same time there was concern whether Stalin's request was dictated exclusively by the wish to safeguard Soviet territory, particularly Leningrad, or whether he had something else up his sleeve.

On the global scale it seemed apparent that Moscow's overtures to Finland, coming as they did after the seizure of Czechoslovakia, were another part of the Soviet retaliation to the U. S.-sponsored Marshall plan in Europe.

MARSHALL PLAN: The Beacon

"This act may well become a welcome beacon in the world's dark night. But if that beacon is to be lighted at all, it had better be lighted before it is too late."

With that exhortation and many other clamoring brass alarms did Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (Rep., Mich.) attempt to spur the senate into swift action on the 5.3-billion-dollar program to defeat communism in Europe.

The chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, one of the strongest backers of the Marshall plan, urged the senators to "light the beacon" of economic aid to Europe before "aggressive communism" begins knocking on the door of the New World.

Denouncing "treacherous Moscow propaganda that has charged us with iniquitous American imperialism," he emphasized that the 16 western European nations must be saved from economic chaos.

But despite Vandenberg's hortatory prospects of swift full passage of the Marshall plan were by no means bright and shining.

The house, meantime, was working on another version of a world aid plan, with the foreign affairs committee deciding to wrap foreign aid for Europe, China, Greece and Turkey into "a single package."

The house, meantime, was working on another version of a world aid plan, with the foreign affairs committee deciding to wrap foreign aid for Europe, China, Greece and Turkey into "a single package."

PROBE: Atomic

All of a sudden there was a new atomic security investigation under way to stimulate the faded interest of the American public.

In the limelight this time was Dr. Edward U. Condon, atomic scientist and head of the government's bureau of standards.

Describing Condon as "one of the weakest links in our atomic security," a house un-American activities subcommittee reported in good faith that he "knowingly or unknowingly entertained and associated" with alleged Russian spies.

To the charge that he was a "weakest link," Condon retorted: "This is gratifying information because I'm absolutely reliable and therefore we have

OPTIMIST: New Weapons

Rear Adm. Ellis A. Zacharias, retired U. S. naval officer, came up with another bit of shattering news not calculated to ease the jitters of this already drawn and weary world.

There are now in existence three new weapons which outrank the atomic bomb in pure, unadulterated destructiveness, he said. U. S. science has developed them since the war. They are probably of a bacteriological nature, it was assumed from Zacharias' remarks.

Aggression Charted

These are the battle lines for the "cold war" in which the two opposing forces are democracy and communism. The battlefield is Europe, map of which conveys that "this is where we came in" feeling.

nothing to worry about. The country can relax."

And as far as consorting with Communist spies was concerned — "That's just too vague to talk about. I certainly didn't do it knowingly," he commented.

Nevertheless, two congressional committees leaped into action. Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (Rep., N. J.), under treatment in Walter Reed hospital for a stomach ailment, said he might call a bedside meeting of his full un-American activities committee in order to send the sub-committee report formally to President Truman.

And Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (Rep., Iowa) called a session of the senate-house atomic energy committee to study the house group's report.

The report itself was a package of straight-from-the-shoulder charges. It pointed out, among other things, that Condon had been appointed head of the bureau of standards in 1945 on the recommendation of Henry Wallace, then commerce secretary.

Discussing Communists, it said: "In this country they haven't gotten as far as they did in Czechoslovakia, but they got pretty far, because they got a man as vice-president of the U. S. and he is now their candidate for president, and he is the same man who recommended Dr. Condon as director of the bureau of standards."

Thus was the stage set for at least two more spine-tingling investigations.

PROFITABLE: Steel

In response to a request by President Truman for a full investigation of steel price increases, federal trade commission and commerce department economists turned up with a story that was not destined to do the steel industry any good in the eyes of the price-whipped American public.

According to data assembled so far, the industry has been piling up profits at a rate unequalled in recent years and, in some cases, is running up net earnings almost double those of 1946.

The appraisal indicated that U. S. Steel, giant of the industry, was leading all companies with a net profit in 1947 of 126.7 million dollars — highest since 1929. Bethlehem Steel pushed up its net profit last year to 51 million dollars, about 10 million more than the previous year.

Other leading concerns either have doubled or more than doubled their 1946 profits.

Situations which got the steel profits investigation going was the recent $5-a-ton increase in the price of semi-finished steel — actually the fifth in a series of price boosts. During the first seven weeks of 1948, steel companies have jumped the price of pipe, nails, wire and structural construction steel.

HOMELESS: DP Bill

Possibly in response to the growing humanitarian sentiment in the U. S. that something be done to relieve the plight of Europe's displaced persons, the senate judiciary committee approved a bill that would admit 100,000 DPs to the United States in the next two years.

The measure, now scheduled to be reported out to the senate for action, provides that homeless Europeans who are living in DP camps two and a half years after the end of the war will be admitted at the rate of 50,000 a year beginning next July 1 and ending June 30, 1950.

A three-member commission would be established to handle the program and to formulate regulations "for the purpose of obtaining the most general distribution and settlement of persons."

Sen. Chapman Revercomb (Rep., W. Va.), chairman of the sub-committee that drafted the bill, said that this provision was intended to prevent the immigrants from settling in large groups in seaboard areas.

Those to be admitted would first be thoroughly investigated by a government agency.

CRACK DOWN: Holy Land

It was time to get tough in the Holy Land, the British-occupying army decided.

Far from showing any inclination toward peace, Palestine Jews and Arabs were carrying their civil war over the partition plan to even bloodier lengths than before.

Weapons and ammunition were being sold openly in the streets. Bombings grew in number and intensity. Open warfare was the virtual rule in Jerusalem. All this might be the natural result of the artificial division of a long-standing state, but the British army had had enough of it.

Force must be used imperatively against both Jews and Arabs, Brig. C. P. Jones, commander of the British Jerusalem garrison, told his troops.

In a directive he said: "Prolonged firing between Arabs and Jews within Jerusalem makes life intolerable for its inhabitants. Such disturbances will not continue. Force will be used in incidents of this kind. The army will, if necessary, use weapons more powerful than those available to Arabs and Jews."

It was impossible to decide, the British announced, whether the Arabs or Jews were the aggressors.

RENUNCIATION: Southern Style

Things were not getting any better for President Truman in the Southland.

Democratic leaders of two strongholds, South Carolina and Tennessee, brooding over the President's irritating civil rights program, turned thumbs down on him as the party's 1948 candidate.

At the same time the Mississippi Democratic committee voted to withdraw from the party's nominating convention in June unless it pledged itself to fight "anti-southern" laws, meaning the civil rights program.

Both South Carolina and Mississippi voted to collect political funds against the possibility of a presidential campaign separated from that of the national Democratic party.

Nipped by Tuck

Gov. William Tuck of Virginia telephoned a flood of congratulatory telephone calls after he had made a speech denouncing President Truman's proposed civil rights program and asking Virginia voters to ban Truman. He requested joint session of the Virginia general assembly to keep Mr. Truman's name off the ballot next November and permit Virginia electors to choose another Democratic candidate.

What Do You Breathe?

More than 700 persons die every year as a result of air pollution in Chicago alone, and a proportionately large number die from the same causes in other American industrial cities, says Dr. Clarence A. Mills of University of Cincinnati.

Respiratory illnesses, many of which are caused by air pollution, also are responsible for about 70 per cent of all the time lost from work, Dr. Mills said.

Food for Thought

"Design Your Food to Suit Your Background," said a heading in one of those home magazines, and it set us to thinking at once. Our VICKS had been more or less unsatisfactory, could it be that they were not linked with the right background?

The article read: "You want to serve a thick pheasant soup, french bread, cheese and a tossed salad. Nothing wrong with that, if you've got pottery petite Marmite (or something comparable), a woven breadbasket, a big wooden salad bowl, a substantial cheeseboard and some colorful table mats or cloths. But if your yen is for a green turtle soup with sherry, trout, Amardine, broccoli Hollandaise, endive and an almond soufflé, you can bring out translucent china, sparkling crystal and sheer organdy. There must be a sense of fitness between what is served and your table accessories."

Maybe that explained some of our dissatisfaction eating at home or out; the china hasn't been translucent with those fish-dinners. And what of the organdy?

"The texture and quality of the food must have the same degree of fitness as the table settings," the article went on. "The color of your food in relation to the table service is a consideration. You must ask whether you wish to feature the food on the table. There will be times when you want to play up the background and play down the food."

That explained everything. Those luncheons hadn't been considering color harmony between "chow" and table accessories at all. We had, in fact, had lunch that day in a place where the high played down both the food and the background. And at home, this could be the trouble, too. We called in the wife.

The Little Woman croaked up with something that was not, obviously, translucent-crystal. When we re-covered our senses we were having hamburger, with a catch-as-catch-can background, a complete neglect of design and no regard for color harmony. No Amardine, no woven basket. But the catsup matched the mood.

You Pay for It

Other day that classic journal of ours, the Arkansas Gazette, commented: "The government has it all figured out what people do with every penny of their money. Now, if only the people could figure out what the government does with it. That is a real poser! To be sure, government has to spend a lot of money. We are a big nation. Moreover, we find it necessary to take on obligations in many foreign lands.

But whether the government (specifically the federal government, where they throw around big sums) spends no more than is needful is important to everyone. Government is not a luxury; it is a necessity. Yet, to read the budget figures you would think all operations were on a luxury basis.

Government Spends

That government is expensive was proved again by John T. Flynn, who showed in Reader's Digest that TVA, a government project, forgot to include certain items in its book-keeping. Instead of the indicated profit, there was a real deficit of $130,000,000 to June 30, 1944. Flynn shows there was an actual loss in sales of power to that date of $15,000,000. This demonstrates that efficiency is a quality unknown to government operations.

Here's a prophecy. Wait until the budget is presented to this Congress, then watch the departments and bureaus fight any reductions. Increase the appropriation and swell the payroll—but shrink the swollen department? Never.

Way to Depression

This kind of selfishness means meager tax savings. It permits little tax reduction for folks who so much need relief. The more we tax and the more we spend for government, the nearer we get to depression.

Taxes of all kinds are too heavy these days. Corporation taxes are burdensome. Income taxes on all levels are too high. The individual income taxes cut down the rewards of the wage earner, keeping him from saving and investing. Instead, his tax payment is earmarked "government expense." Some people oppose tax reductions for corporations and individuals, without realizing that continued heavy taxes will undermine our economic system and their own standard of living.

Decisions Lie Ahead

Obviously, one of the quickest ways to halt wasteful and unprofitable bureaucracy is to stop feeding fuel to its fires. Government, without a plentiful supply of tax money, could hardly be wasteful government. Congress has the power to say what the government shall spend and what amount it shall collect in taxes. It is up to us to see that our Congress keeps a proper rein on collections and expenditures.

Unwise spending and taxing could take this nation into the bankruptcy of communism. It could do it more quickly than anything else. Indeed, the power to tax is the power to destroy. We must see to it that America keeps an efficient and well-managed government, not a wasteful bureaucracy. That will be a powerful factor in deciding, in the coming months, whether America will remain prosperous and economically stable.

Dog Tags for Children

If children wore identification discs similar to those of the armed forces there would be fewer lost children, and better and quicker emergency treatment would be possible in many cases of accidental injury. Dr. Edward Press of the U. S. children's bureau recommended to American Medical association. Information on the tag as to the child's blood type, bleeding tendency, serum sensitivity and whether immunized against lockjaw, would facilitate emergency treatment and might well save the child's life in case of accident.

Sets Up Crime Lab

Wisconsin has set up a state crime laboratory with $190,000 appropriated by the legislature, the Council of State Governments reports. The laboratory will serve as a clearing house for technical and scientific aid to police officers throughout the state, operating probably from University of Wisconsin. Officials also hope to set up roving laboratories on wheels to give on-the-spot aid to crime investigators.

Does a $1,000 in savings seem as elusive as the rainbow's pot of gold to you? Then, think about these facts: By joining the Payroll Savings Plan where you work and allotting just $2.50 a week for United States Savings Bonds, you will accumulate $1,460.84 in 10 years. Millions of my nieces and nephews are learning from experience that they can own an even greater amount of Savings Bonds through this partial payment plan. In the event you are self-employed, automatic bond buying is available to you through the Bond-A-Month Plan at your bank. U. S. Treasury Department

The kid in upper 4 captured your heart during wartime. In spirit you traveled with him toward his uncertain future on the battlefields. The kid upstairs today is yours. The "kid" may be a freckled boy or a curly haired little girl—your son or daughter who will need your help through savings to find a place in everyday life. The Payroll Savings Plan for buying United States Savings Bonds where you work is the only automatic, safe, profitable way for you to buy bonds by the installment payment method. In this way you can build the nestegg which can make the difference between wishing and having the funds for education and a secure future for your children. If you are self-employed, buy bonds automatically through the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank. U. S. Treasury Department

DOROTHY DIX, noted newspaper columnist and counselor to millions of Americans, says: "The best advice I have ever given in my long life is the advice I give Americans now; that is, keep buying and holding U. S. Savings Bonds because they will insure your future happiness. Any home with Savings Bonds is certainly a better home than one without Savings Bonds. I can truly write about the merits of Savings Bonds in the family relationship, because bonds are really very personal in their nature. Savings Bonds eventually become the things we hope for, whether it is marriage, a new home, children's education or plain leisure." U. S. Treasury Department

PHILLIP MURRAY, President, CIO, says: "The Payroll Savings Plan for the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds offers CIO members an opportunity to save in a systematic way for future security, education of children, purchase of a home, and other worth while objectives. The benefits which result to the individual and to his family will go far to strengthen our democracy, for the strength of each individual is a measure of the strength of the Nation. I urge all officers and leaders of the Congress of Industrial Organizations to give their active support to the program." U. S. Treasury Department

Hog Mange Causes Average Loss of $2

New Insecticide Proves Effective in Control

Common mange of hogs is another widespread disease that has yielded to the results of animal health research. The U. S. department of agriculture says the average losses from mange probably amount to $2 a head. This figure covers the loss from stunted growth, delay in fattening, occasional deaths and dockage when mangy hogs are marketed.

The effective weapon against mange is benzene hexachloride, frequently referred to as "666." In Nebraska tests this newly-discovered insecticide was so effective it eradicated mange with one treatment. Not only did it eradicate mange—it also got rid of lice. This makes the old mange treatments obsolete.

In the Nebraska tests, crude benzene hexachloride (a wettable powder) was mixed with water (10 pounds powder in 100 gallons) and sprayed on the hogs.

One objectionable feature of the crude benzene hexachloride is its terrific odor. This odor is not present to any marked degree in commercial hog oils prepared by use of a solvent which takes the active ingredient (the gamma isomer) out of the crude benzene hexachloride and leaves behind the ineffective ingredients—the ones that have the disagreeable odor.

Herds and Flocks

Water filters through the pores of the brick.

First treatment for cattle grubs should be made early in winter, as soon as the tell-tale bumps appear on the backs of animals. Several treatments a month apart will be necessary. Use a cattle grub dust containing 1 1/2 per cent rotenone.

Dairy cows lose a lot of energy pulling through heavy mud in the barn lots. Lost energy means less milk. Paved lots that take cows out of the mud soon pay for themselves.

Mow and Spray in One Operation Pays Well

Prof. B. B. Robb of Cornell university demonstrates a mow and weed gadget for applying 2,4-D to lawns. A regular garden sprayer is filled with 2,4-D mixture and pumped up ready for use. Fastened to the lawn mower the sprayer carries a two nozzle boom ahead of the blades and contains enough mixture to cover at least half an acre of lawn.

Midwest Barley Growers To Compete in Contest

A $30,000 contest which stresses the importance of certified seed, early planting, seed treatment, use of commercial fertilizer and timely and careful harvesting in growing barley as a cash grain crop that under proved methods of production commands a premium price is announced by the Midwest Barley Improvement association, Milwaukee. The prizes are offered to farmers in seven Midwest states.

What to Do About It

There is one way, and only one way, to avoid a serious depression, and that way is open to the American people. Responsibility rests firmly upon each of us, no matter what may be our economic status or individual social background, to choose out this proper course. There is no way to go, if we should face into a depression, except toward hard work and the high productivity of industrial peace.

That's the formula that will enable us to weather a business recession, provided we begin to use it now. We must all tighten our belts, get our feet on the ground, and go to work just as hard as we can work. A greatly increased measure of productivity per man-hour is the best answer to the present situation that can be thought up.

Down With Prices

With increased productivity, with an honest hour's labor given for every hour's pay, we could see a considerable lowering of prices. Indeed, with genuine whole-hearted cooperation from labor and industry, it would be quite possible to increase output as much as 40% generally. This should be enough to bring about a general 25% reduction in prices. This could be done with our present labor force and without increased working hours.

This would in fact bring prices down until it would be equivalent to an increase in wages. This is the one sound answer to the present threat of a depression. Such answers would also give us hope of regaining our foreign markets, which have had little attention paid to them since the war.

Wisdom of a Sage

The importance of this thing prompted Bernard M. Baruch to state recently that the whole post-war world would "get going only if men work" and to come out for a 5 1/2 day, 44 hour week. The seriousness of the problem we face is such that we may be able to save civilization if we accept the challenge, Mr. Baruch said, adding that this would mean greater effort than that exerted during the war.

In proposing a 44 hour work week, "with no strikes or layoffs to January 1, 1949," as a means of increasing production, Mr. Baruch recognized our present tendencies to put limitations on our work. He emphasized that a way must be found for production to flow smoothly. This achieved, then a "sense of security would return to worker and employer, and the reaction upon the economy of the world would be deep and lasting."

Heads Together

The sage Mr. Baruch has more. "Until we have unity, until we straighten out and solve our problems of production, and have internal stability, there is no basis on which the world can renew itself physically or spiritually," he continued. If labor and industry would put their heads together, come to a realistic solution of their problems, shake hands across the table and go to work in earnest to whip this threat of immediate depression through maximum and whole-hearted production, then an one would have anything to fear.

Uncle Sam Says

Why not step on your own personal-security self-starter to make 1948 the best year in your life? When you sign up to buy United States Savings Bonds through automatic payroll savings right where you work, or the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank, you're adding money that grows to your income. Those dollars you put aside, before they have the chance to sprout wings and fly away, are sure to come in handy later on—to buy a home for your family, an education for your children, or years of leisure for yourself. And, best of all, you'll be getting back more than you put in—$100 at maturity for every $75 invested today. U. S. Treasury Department

Be An "Engineer in Good Eating"—Do Home Canning!

Simple Instructions Based on Science

You may not have a degree as an engineer, Mrs. Housewife, but when you're home canning you're using scientific principles just as surely as a mining, chemical, electrical or other engineer. That is, if you follow glass jar manufacturer's instructions, for they are based upon scientific discoveries made over a period of a century and a half.

Back in Napoleon's time, a Paris confectioner, Nicolas Appert, set out to find a method of food preservation and win a 12,000-franc prize offered in 1795 by the French government. Napoleon, like Frederick the Great, believed an army travels on its stomach, and the folks at home got hungry and discontented too!

Nicolas won the prize, after 15 years' work, but his methods and equipment have been greatly improved upon. He labored under many handicaps, not knowing a temperature beyond boiling is required for processing some foods and having to design his own glass jars. Not until 1860 did Louis Pasteur establish the fact that microorganisms are responsible for food spoilage. Fourteen years later, an American, A. K. Shriver of Baltimore, invented the "retort" or "pressure" cooker.

In 1858 John Mason patented the Mason jar with neck designed for receiving a screw type cap. The Mason jar with porcelain-lined zinc cap is an old reliable. Mason would probably be astounded by the 1947 cap for sealing the Mason jar. This new style cap is a two-piece metal affair with a Dome lid which has sealing compound on the under side and is tested for seal by pressing on the center of the lid with the finger. Sealing with the Dome lid is made doubly sure by the new type metal band which bears down on the lid at three pressure points.

Also reliable in seal is the lightweight type jar with rubber ring, glass lid and wire bail.

Many scientific experiments and jar improvements have perfected processes for today's home canning and it is upon them that instructions you will find in reliable home canning literature such as the Ball Blue Book are based. Follow these instructions and you become an "Engineer in Good Eating"—much to the benefit of your family's health and increased pleasure at the table provided by delicious home canned foods.

TOMORROW

Rev. W. E. Isenhour, High Point, N. C. R4

Tomorrow? That is just ahead—

"Another day," it may be said;

Another month, another year;

It's quite at hand; 'twill soon be here;

And yet tomorrow reaches on

As ages pass, as ages dawn;

It ne'er shall cease, so long, so long

To wait or sing redemption's song.

Tomorrow! What is there in store

To make us happy, or deplore?

It all depends upon today—

Just how we live along the way;

Yes, what we think and say and do

The way we take, what we pursue,

How we please, or fail to please,

The God who knows, the God who sees.

Tomorrow'll bring its bliss or blight,

It's downward trend, or upward flight,

Its laurel crown of grand success,

Or failure filled with dire distress;

'Twill bring its harvest rich and rare

From God who hears and answers prayer,

Or it will bring its awful sting

Because today we failed the King.

Tomorrow! O how shall we win

If we shall spend today in sin?

Tomorrow is the time to reap

In joy and gladness, or to weep,

Just as we whiled our time away

Along the path of life today;

Tomorrow there will be reward—

A recompense from our good Lord

Tomorrow! O that's heaven's goal

To every honest, godly soul

Who walks today in light Divine

And lets his light for Jesus shine;

Who does the Father's holy will,

Tho' he be strong, or weak and ill;

Tomorrow lay his armor down

And gain the victor's life and crown.

Your Social Security Card

Your social security card is the key to your social security account which is kept for you by the Government. It is one of the most valuable things that you own, and should be preserved with the same care you use in protecting your insurance policy, your war bonds, and other valuable papers.

The Social Security Administration suggests that the two parts of the card be separated. Put the lower half in your safety-deposit box or in some other place where it will be secure and where you can get it, if it is needed. Carry the upper half with you when you are applying for a new job or when you go to work on a new job. If you will wrap this part of the card in oiled paper or cellophane and carry it in the card compartment of your bill fold, it will last you many years.

Since it costs both money and time to issue duplicate cards, and since both money and time are precious, you are urged to do everything you can to prevent loss of your card. If you do lose it, however, take the lower half to the Social Security Administration field office nearest to you and request a duplicate of your complete card. If you do not live in the city in which the social security office is located, you can still get a duplicate by writing to that office. Even if you have lost both parts of your card you can get a duplicate by either visiting the social security office or writing that office. You should be sure to ask for a duplicate instead of a new number, because you never need but one number, no matter how many different places you may work. The issuance of more than one number would cause your account to be divided and might, in the end, mean a loss of benefits to you or your family.

Good Soil Increases Farm Crop Yields

Tests Reveal Value Of Proper Nutrients

High crop yields per acre on the farm, like mass production in industry, are the secret of financial success, according to Emil Truog, professor of soils at University of Wisconsin.

"It costs no more for seed and tillage—usually the main expenses in crop production—to grow a $50 crop than a $25 crop," he declares.

Wisconsin tests show that additional crop yields resulting from heavy fertilization cost only $2 to $3 per ton for alfalfa and 10 to 15 cents per bushel for corn and oats.

"The extra cost of a larger yield per acre lies simply in the Proper fertilization has paid on thousands of farms, whether applied to corn, wheat, oats, soybeans, cotton or any other crop.

additional fertility removed from the soil. But even this is partly compensated for in the case of legumes by the greater amounts of nitrogen the bigger crop supplies to the soil.

"High acre yields are also the secret of success in erosion control and soil conservation. When yields on less erodible land are doubled or trebled through adequate liming and heavy fertilization, a bigger acreage of more erodible lands can be returned to forests and permanent grass. That means more and better food for all."

Herds and Flocks

Damp litter in laying houses frequently results in colds and other diseases. Dampness around water containers can be eliminated in pens with running water by putting a drain pipe through the floor and setting the watering pan on a frame over the drain pipe.

Dry litter pays off.

Feed is wasted when animals die. A pullet that dies in December represents a loss of 40 pounds of feed. The loss of a newborn pig represents a loss of 140 pounds of feed.

To avoid excessive loss of butterfat in skim milk in winter, run enough hot water through the separator bowl so it will come out the cream and skim milk spouts. Do this as soon as separator is up to normal speed.

Moldy or inferior corn is less likely to cause trouble when fed to cattle than when fed to horses and mules.

Mechanized Hog Farm Makes Pig Raising Easy

A fully modernized and mechanized hog farm can be so rigged that one man can handle 100 sows and bring to market each year 1,500 to 2,000 hogs—a half-million pounds of pork on the hoof, according to Dr. Waldo Semon of the B. F. Goodrich Company.

This is possible by mechanized means of conveyor belts, chutes and other devices. Tests show, he said, that rubber-tired tractors and other farm vehicles require only 40 to 50 per cent as much pulling power on plowed ground or sod as do steel wheels, and can plow a field in 25 per cent less time and with 25 per cent less fuel consumption.

New Essence Developed To Recover Fruit Flavor

A practical process for recovering in essence form the volatile aroma, or flavor, of fresh fruit juices has been developed at the U. S. eastern regional research laboratory, near Philadelphia. The essence contains all the aroma in a concentration 150 or more times that of the fresh juice. It is a clear, water-white solution that can be kept for long periods at room temperature without alteration.

In concentrating fruit juices to make jellies and other products, the flavor of the fresh fruit is largely lost. This is particularly apparent in apples, the characteristic flavor of which is so volatile that many apple products have none of the fresh fruit character. Adding a small amount of apple essence to apple-juice concentrate restores the full flavor.

Used as a fountain syrup, the full flavor concentrate may be diluted with plain water to make a beverage practically indistinguishable in taste and aroma from fresh apple juice. The process of flavor recovery also is applicable to other fruits.

New Steel House Offers Variety of Innovations

Farmers and small town dwellers soon will be able to own a home with features of quality, beauty and utility never before offered in the housing field.

Lustom homes, which are scheduled to be produced at the rate of 30,000 a year, will be fireproof and will require no repairs or redecorating during the lifetime of the owner. They can be erected at a cost of $7,000 and will have ceiling radiant heat, a completely modern kitchen, a large amount of built-in closet and storage space and a number of other features that will reduce housework and provide luxurious living.

The use of porcelain enamel steel throughout the house will provide a finish that will not face or crack and can be easily cleaned by a light application of soap and water. The houses come in six different colors, selected with a view of blending with various color combinations of furniture and other home furnishings.

Fly Ants From Australia

Insect history was made recently when a scientist flew from Australia to America as escort for 3,000 live ponerine ants—the first time that these insects have survived a long distance flight. It was necessary that live specimens of the ants be sent to the Haskins research laboratories, New York, on a research study into the origin and social structure of Australian ants. There are about 300 species of ponerine ants, all primitive. All attempts previously made to keep ponerines alive at high altitudes have failed. As all moisture in the ant's body had to be replaced, since the ant dehydrates in a high altitude, the problem therefore was to put enough moisture into the glass container to allow for evaporation at high altitude, but not so much moisture that the ants would drown. When the correct amount of moisture was worked out it was possible to deliver the ants in good condition.

American Dairy Breeds

Principal breeds of United States dairy cows are: Ayrshire, imported in 1822, origin County Ayr, Scotland, color, red of any shade, mahogany, brown or these colors with white, or white, with each color clearly defined, weighs about 1,150 pounds; Brown Swiss, imported in 1869 from Switzerland, color, a shade of brown varying from a silver to a dark brown, weighs about 1,400 pounds; Guernsey, imported in 1818, origin Islands of Guernsey and Alderney, color, a shade of fawn with white markings clearly defined, weighs about 1,100 pounds; Holstein, from Holland in 1857, color, black and white markings clearly defined, weighs about 1,500 pounds; Jersey, from Island of Jersey in 1815, color, a shade of fawn with or without white markings, weighs about 1,000 pounds.

Causes Fabric Damage

One of the most common forms of fabric damage, according to American Institute of Laundering, is accidental contact of clothing, linen and towels with home cleaning compounds, bleaches, astringents and medicines, which seriously injure the fabric fibers. Such damage usually shows up after laundering in the form of holes. Fabric care is the basis of thrift. Dirt and dust become embedded in fabrics, cutting into the threads, wearing them away. The sooner the dirt is removed, the less damage will result. To prolong the life of an article, never postpone having it cleaned.

Checks Soil Losses

Good soil management pays dividends in making heavy crops per acre, building organic matter in the soil and at the same time checking erosion. The results shown above summarize tests at the University of Illinois Elizabethtown experiment field since 1918.

Manure, lime and phosphate made the difference between the two plots. The soil was already rich in potash.

The heavy crops of alfalfa-clover and small grains protected the soil from beating rains. The soil of the treated plot with its 16 tons of organic matter per acre could soak up more water faster than the soil of the untreated plot with only five tons. Less water was left to run off and carry soil with it.

For erosion control on longer slopes a crop rotation that includes more years in soil protecting crops such as legume grass mixtures is advised. Full fields on a 12 per cent slope such as was in this field would need a rotation of corn, winter grain and two or three years of legume-grass mixtures for best results. Contour farming, strip cropping and terracing would help, too, to slow down the water so that more would have a chance to soak into the ground.

Three Major Problems Face Pork Producers

The pork producer faces three problems as he makes plans for 1948, say Michigan State college specialists. A short corn crop, a relatively narrow corn-hog ratio and a stressed feed conservation program are the problems to be met. The danger is that too few sows will be bred for spring pigs and there may not be enough hogs to consume the corn crop produced in 1948.

Deep Litter Will Help Keep Laying House Dry

Deep litter will help keep well-insulated and well-ventilated laying houses dry this winter, says Iowa State college. Not only will there be more eggs to put in the crate, but also the house need not be cleaned as frequently if the litter and droppings are kept dry. A deep litter keeps the floor dry because it develops heat as it slowly decomposes in the laying house, insuring better flock health.

$75 Million Loss

TOBACCO growers of North Carolina lost approximately $75 million on their 1947 crop as compared with what they received for their 1946 production, and that certainly is not a negligible amount of money even for this great agricultural state.

Part of the loss was due to smaller production. The sales during the season recently closed fell short of the total of the 1946 season by approximately 20 million pounds, which was a very small percentage decrease from 906,000,000 pounds of 1946.

The greater part of the loss was due to the drop in prices. The average price paid producers in the latest marketing period was $43.43 a hundred pounds as compared with $49.73 for the 1946 sales period. That was a decrease of about 12.6 per cent in price, the major cause of which was the loss or curtailment of export markets, and especially the withdrawal of British buyers from the Carolina warehouses in the midst of the season.

For the same reasons the flue-cured tobacco growers' prospects for this year are not bright. To bolster prices, a program of sharp acreage curtailment will be carried out, which of course will result in cutting production. That in itself means a much smaller total income for the 1948 crop even if the average price should not decline below the 1947 level.

The situation calls for greater diversification of crops and the production of more livestock and food and feed crops, but such a shifting of the farm program is not so easy as it would appear to those who know nothing of farming, any more than it is easy for a textile mill that has always been making one kind of product to shift to making a variety.—Charlotte Observer.

Truman, MacArthur Would Accept Presidency "if the People Call"; Great Powers Confer on Palestine

Released by WNU Features
(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

The United States is experiencing a steady increase in population. From a range of 2.1 million to 2.3 million in the 1930s, births rose to 2.9 million in 1945. They totaled 2.7 million in 1946 and then sharply rose again to about 3.5 million in 1947.

PRESIDENCY: Announcements

As far as grabbing the spotlight was concerned, President Truman and Gen. Douglas MacArthur stumbled all over each other with their coy and almost simultaneous announcements that they would accept a presidential nomination if the people called them.

The declarations by the two men, coming within just a few hours of each other, were perhaps a symbolic prelude to a similar but greater clash of personalities and political forces which it is now possible might develop later this year.

Mr. Truman said he would run for a full term as chief executive if the Democrats would nominate him; and MacArthur opined that he would accept the presidency "if called by the American people" but would not actually seek it.

Taking note of the fact that petitions have been filed in Wisconsin putting his name in the primary there on April 6, MacArthur issued this sonorous statement:

"While it seems unnecessary for me to repeat that I do not actively seek or covet any office and have no plans for leaving my post in Japan, I can say, and with due humility, that I would be recreant to all my concepts of good citizenship were I to shrink because of the hazards and responsibilities involved from accepting any public duty to which I might be called by the American public."

Republicans, however, were going easy in their comments on the general's willingness to accept presidential nomination, confining them, for the most part, to periphrastic remarks about what a highly regarded figure MacArthur is. Sen. Ralph Flanders (Rep., Vt.) said, "I think General MacArthur would be doing the country a disservice if he left the job he is in until he has put it in such shape he can leave. That's the place the Lord put him."

Other politicians were wondering about the spot that the Lord and Harry Truman was putting them on. Southern Democrats, despite Mr. Truman's announcement and his candidacy, were not burling an inch from their stand opposing him and his civil rights program. Some of the southern states, notably Mississippi, went right ahead with their plans to prevent their electoral votes from going to him.

NEW ATOM: Thorium

Already well beyond the awesome threshold of the atomic age, nuclear scientists are continuing to step deeper into the contradictory wilderness of creation and destruction that appeared when the first atomic blast burned up the night and the sands at Los Alamos, N. M.

Latest step is the manufacture of the first small pieces of a new kind of atomic bomb and fuel metal, according to an announcement by Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, atomic scientist.

Where formerly the extremely rare metal uranium 235 was the only practicable substance through which atomic energy could be produced, there now is a new metal, known as uranium 233, made by changing the heavy metal thorium into uranium.

This new form of uranium does not exist naturally on earth, nor is it known to exist in the stars. Dr. Seaborg reported that a small fraction of an ounce—actually only a few hundred milligrams—of the thorium metal has been made in the Hanford, Wash., uranium-graphite, chain-reacting atomic piles. Apparently, although Dr. Seaborg did not amplify his announcement to include this implication, the use of thorium for atomic power is considered practicable.

Since thorium is three times more plentiful than uranium it will be the world's main reliance for atomic power.

PANIC PITCH

Americans Ready to Go off Deep End

People of the U. S. are conducting their day-by-day activities in a state of mind that is separated from a condition of acute panic by only the merest veil of self-restraint, says Dr. Frank Fremont-Smith of the International Committee for Mental Hygiene. Any day now a phony rumor of sudden war or even of sea monsters invading New York harbor might pro-

CONSULTATION: Holy Land

Leading experts on global anatomy were getting together in a consultation to determine whether there was any conceivable way in which they could perform a painless bisection of Palestine.

Russia, France, China and the U. S. had been requested by the United Nations security council to hold one of their famous conferences to study how partition of the Holy Land into independent Arab and Jewish states might be effected. Britain, too, had been asked to participate but declined the invitation, although consenting to sit in the role of advisor.

In the consultation got under way, the United States was reported ready to seek big power agreement on a new conciliation effort in Palestine. Warren R. Austin, chief U. S. delegate, said he felt the talks should deal primarily with the question of "peaceful settlement."

But while U. N. delegates might talk in New York about a peaceful settlement, Arab military forces on the spot in Palestine had vastly different ideas.

Arab Commander-in-Chief Fawzi al Kawkiji publicly issued a vow to free Palestine from "the Zionist menace" whether it takes one month, one year or a generation.

Red-haired El Kawkiji, the Arab chiefdom who had led anti-British and anti-Jewish revolts in 1936 and 1939, had just returned to Palestine after an absence of nine years. He came back, he said, to fight "partition, intrigue and Zionism."

"We came here to fight anyone who stands for partition, be they British, Jewish or an international force."

"I think General MacArthur would be doing the country a disservice if he left the job he is in until he has put it in such shape he can leave. That's the place the Lord put him."

RUHR: Solution

One of the major problems of the uneasy peace—what to do with the Ruhr, Germany's prime industrial section—was solved when the U. S., Great Britain and France agreed in a series of conferences at London that they would place the Ruhr under international control.

It was decided also that the economic and industrial assets of western Germany, perennial breeding ground for German war machines, would be enlisted in the Marshall plan.

Moreover, the western powers agreed that western Germany should have a federal form of government, providing adequate central authority but protecting the rights of the various states.

Indicative of the manner in which statesmen of the western powers are thinking now was the fact that Germany will be represented in the international control of the Ruhr but that Russia very probably will not.

Recognizing the importance of the Ruhr to the recurring surges of German aggression, the conference communique pointed out that "the purpose of this international control would be to ensure that the economic resources of this area should not again be used for the purposes of aggression and that there should be adequate access to the coal, coke and steel of the Ruhr for the benefit of extensive parts of the European community including Germany."

Stressing the absolute need for cooperation among the British, American and French zones of western Germany, the conference observed that the "continuous failure" of the foreign ministers council to reach four-power agreement "has created a situation in Germany which, if permitted to continue, would have increasingly unfortunate consequences for western Europe."

duce wholesale panic. Many Americans are ripe to go off the deep end from just such a scare, no matter how fantastic it may be, Dr. Fremont-Smith contends.

The reason people might be easily panicked is the widespread worry, anxiety or fear over the possibilities of atomic war or of depression. This sets the stage emotionally for panic.

Aid for Teeth Decay

AT A COST of 80 cents per child, Congressman Frank Keefe (Rep., Wis.) discovered, children's teeth can be treated with sodium fluoride, thereby preventing dental decay in about 50 per cent of the cases.

Public health officials testifying before Keefe's committee told him that sodium fluoride could be mixed in a solution and painted on children's teeth four times in their lives between the ages of 3 and 13—after which most of them could virtually forget about going to the dentist.

The congressman was flabbergasted. He wanted to know why the treatment had not been given to the public.

"The number of dentists is too few," replied U. S. Public Health Director Dr. Thomas Parran.

"It looks to me," said Congressman Keefe, "as though an advertising program would disseminate this information to the people of the country until there would be an overwhelming demand upon the public-health services to make this available to the children."

The public health officials were not able to give a definite answer, but they did explain how simple the sodium fluoride treatment was.

"Our schedule requires application four times during a child's life—at the ages of 3, 7, 10 and 13 years," explained Dr. J. W. Mountain. "The whole thing does not take more than a minute except the cleaning of the teeth and many of the teeth need not be cleaned."

"What does the sodium fluoride solution cost?" asked Congressman Keefe. "Is it very expensive?"

"A gallon of solution can be made for a cost of approximately five cents." "A gallon of it would take care of pretty nearly the whole school population of a normal sized community, would it not?" asked the congressman. "Yes, indeed."

Keefe went on to point out that if the new revolutionary dental program were left merely to dentists, its progress would be much too slow. Therefore he urged that a nation-wide educational program be undertaken. Public health officials said they would consider the matter.

Pacifying the Arabs

HANDLING ARAB CHIEFTAINS is something at which the British have long been adept. We ourselves haven't done badly in recent years. The system is a combination of browbeating and baksheesh. All during World War I, Arab chieftains were kept in line by a constant stream of British silver. During World War II their baksheesh went under a different name—oil royalties.

Today, the kings of Arabia are just as dependent on us as we are on their oil—only more so. They don't want francs, pounds, or even rubles in payment for oil—only dollars. Without dollars their desert monarchies would go up in dust.

This leads to a Palestine remedy. Some years ago Herbert Hoover proposed that the Tigris and Euphrates valleys be developed by irrigation and water power, making them—as in the days of the Garden of Eden—one of the garden spots of the world.

Hoover's proposal now could be carried out for the benefit of the Arabs and as a means of counterbalancing Arab claims in Palestine. The projects could be financed from the vast profits of the Arabian-American Oil company. In other words, we pay off the Arabs for their equity in Palestine by setting up a new irrigated homeland for them in the Tigris and Euphrates valleys.

The "Do Nothing Boys"

WHEN THE LAST SESSION of Congress adjourned in July with one of the worst "do-nothing" records in history, Republican apologists freely predicted that the next session, beginning in January, would be one of the busiest and most productive. G. O. P. leaders, it was explained, wanted to chalk up a good legislative record to show the voters next November.

Here is the Merry-Go-Round forecast on what Congress will do about major legislation: PRICE CONTROLS—No action. FEDERAL AID TO EDUCATION—This legislation, providing for an increase in teachers' pay and other purposes, will be enacted by congress after a hot battle. MARSHALL PLAN—Despite heated opposition, congress finally will approve expenditure of $5,300,000,000. RENT CONTROLS—The present inadequate system of rent control will be extended for another year.

MILITARY TRAINING—No action. HOUSING—Despite the continuing shortage of adequate low-cost housing, the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill will be kept in a deep freeze by congressional leaders. So will national health insurance legislation to provide low-cost medical care for the general public.

TAXES—The Republican 6,800 million dollar tax-reduction bill, which has passed the House, will be reduced to 4 billion dollars in the Senate. Despite Senate changes President Truman will veto the tax bill and unless Republican leaders write an excess-profits tax into the measure to make it more attractive to Democrats and G. O. P. liberals, Senate leaders will not be able to muster the two-thirds majority needed to override the President's veto.

Why Spurn the Poor Fish? They Can't Be Beat to Eat

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—Today one of the politicians' biggest worries is the housewife and HER worries, the biggest of which is meeting her budget and the increased appetites which we worked up during the war. We were able to satisfy them then because we had our pockets full of money.

Our pockets aren't so full now, but our stomachs are. We've been educated up to eating a lot more meat, particularly. But a large part of the country has not been educated up to eating fish. Fish is good to eat.

It is also good to catch, and before I get into its nutritive value (since I have you where you can't get away), I'm going to tell you about my recent fishing adventure (which inspired this column) and about some of the fish that didn't get away from me.

Baukhage

Well, back to my filets—we ought to eat more fish. The department of agriculture and the fish and wildlife service of the department of the interior are trying to do something about it. As you know, there is a federally-subsidized school-lunch program which provides a fund for food for school children.

The departments are sending folks out to show the school cooks how to prepare fish, and they are doing a very sensible thing: They are trying to get the schools to teach the pupils something about the fish they are eating—their life, habits and general characteristics.

You know, out in the Middle West where I was brought up nobody knew much about fish. When they bought fish, they just bought fish. They didn't know the difference between a pompano and a jellyfish. Along the Great Lakes where I lived later, we knew more. Whitefish were good. So are whittings, an ocean fish, no relation.

Another thing that the department of agriculture is trying to do through its home economics branch is to teach people how to cook fish. Most people think all fish ought to be fried. They don't know how good a sauteed or baked fish is. The French can cook fish with sauce so that it is a delicacy. The fish and wildlife people are doing a similar job.

Meat is going up. We have a lot of commercial fishermen whose living depends on how well you like fish, and how well the fish bite or get netted. You can benefit and so can they, if you learn to appreciate this kind of healthy, nourishing, and if properly prepared, delicious food.

I'll be glad to help you: National Fisheries institute, an association which is interested in all phases of the fishing industry—its members include everybody from the fisherman to the dealer has a pamphlet entitled "Fish and Shellfish Cookery," which I'll be glad to send you if you'll write me, care of this newspaper.

Also (Bill Turner take notice) they've started a new stunt off Montauk Point, New York, where they run out just beyond the breakers in fast little boats, and catch these big ones. A lot are caught up around Cape Cod in the fall. . . . Just one more diversion for the fishermen before I continue on the more important matter of how to fish for a lower cost of living, which is what I am really supposed to be talking about. Ever do surf fishing for blues? Great stuff. You stand out there on the shore, with the waves breaking around you, and cast. The last time I tried it, I went right down into the undertow. Well, you use a pretty stout rod for that ordinarily, but a gentleman who has a story in the forthcoming issue of Field and Stream is going to tell a regular Ripley. He was surf-fishing here at Ocean City, Md., and neither he nor the rest of the group was getting much. So he shifted to a light casting rod and line, and pulled them in three to one.

Retarding Potato Sprouts

A problem commonly encountered by farmers and homemakers is that potatoes sprout and shrivel when stored in warm temperatures. Another problem is that when stored at temperatures below 40 degrees potatoes will become sweet, and warming them for a week or two at temperatures of 70 to 75 degrees will diminish this sweetness. The chemical with a long involved name, methyl ester of alphanaphthalene acetic acid, is the most effective substance for retarding potato sprouts.

Pack of Seed Nets Million Dollar Crop

Plant Immigrant Has Typical Success Story

One package of seed sent home by a missionary less than 30 years ago has developed into a crop now valued at more than 200 million dollars a year. That is the success story of a plant immigrant — Korean lespe-deza.

Only three decades ago Dr. Ralph Mills, a medical missionary, sent a package of lespe-deza seed from Korea to the U. S. department of agriculture. Department specialists planted the seed at the experimental farm across the Potomac river from Washington. In a few years there was enough seed to plant lespe-deza at several state experiment stations.

The imported crop fitted well on the poor, slightly acid soils unfit for such crops as alfalfa and soon was being grown widely in the East Central states as a seed and pasture crop. Now its use is becoming more widespread, particularly in areas of low fertility land.

The U. S. crop of Korean lespe-deza, developed directly from the single package, now is valued at more than 200 million dollars a year. Value of the seed crop amounts to 24 million dollars. The hay crop makes up another 100 million dollars of value. Although value of the pasture crop is difficult to estimate, specialists contend that it amounts to at least 100 million dollars. These figures do not take into account the profitable use of millions of acres of low fertility land made possible by introduction of the new legume crop.

He's a Rat

What is the most destructive animal in the world? No—it's not a puppy or a small boy!

The common Norway or brown rat has absolutely no competition when it comes to the ability to destroy. Annually, rats alone destroy about 4 per cent of the total grain and cereal crop in the United States, figures compiled by extension service entomologists indicate. As if its destructive abilities were not enough, the rat is host to carriers or is itself a carrier of bubonic plague, typhus and other diseases which are deadly to man.

Few farms are entirely free of rats, although rat populations can be reduced quickly. Cleaning up the premises, rat proofing, cutting off food supply, poisoning and trapping are major points in an effective rat control program. But, once the control measures begin to show results, there can be no relaxing. Rat control is a permanent, year-around program. A few days of poisoning will have only a temporary effect on the rat population.

Modern Dairy Buildings Will Boost Efficiency

Increased efficiency has entered the dairy industry with more widespread use of milking rooms and milk houses.

The ideal location for a milk house is attached to the milking room or barn. In most areas, sanitary re-

Miles of walking are saved annually when the milk house is adjacent to the milking room or barn, figures compiled by Cornell university show.

Adjacent construction permits the dairyman to coordinate feeding, caring for the cows, milking them and handling the milk into an efficient system.

Rabbit and Chicken Raising Is Profitable

To offset high meat prices, home production of rabbits and chickens can be carried on very economically, making the family at least partially independent of commercial sources.

Raising of rabbits and chickens at home has a big advantage in the economical use of feeds, because such animals mature more quickly and at a lower feed cost per pound of gain in weight.

SCRIPTURE: Ezekiel 1-4; 33:1-9. DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalms 137:1-6.

Prophet Among Exiles

Lesson for April 4, 1948

THIS quarter we study the Captivity and Return of the Jews, using the Books of Ezekiel, Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther, Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi. Sunday's lesson is found in Ezekiel 1-4 and 33:1-9.

Dr. Newton

It would be well for us to read again the history of this most interesting man, Ezekiel—how he came to be among the captives by the river Chebar. He is one of the most attractive personalities in the Old Testament—a man of surpassing culture and charm—and yet enabled to "sit where they sat."

A MESSENGER OF GOD
EZEKIEL could never have adapted himself to the role of ministering to the captive slaves apart from the knowledge that he was the messenger of God—the messenger of God's hope to broken, beaten souls.

God spoke to his people through Ezekiel. He speaks to his people today through chosen messengers—parents, teachers, the Bible, the Holy Spirit. God may be speaking to you today.

HEAR YE THE WORD

EZEKIEL'S approach to the Jews in captivity was by the authority of God's direct message to them through him. Ezekiel was faithful to God's appointment and mission. He knew that what he had to say to the Jews meant their hope of release and return.

He studied their plight. He studied their mood. And then he spoke to them. But not only did he speak to them, telling them what God wanted them to know, but he moved among them. He loved them.

He had God's message, and he went in God's mood of compassion. We cannot help people until we understand them and love them.

GOD'S WATCHMAN

EZEKIEL reminded the people that he had been sent from God as a watchman, and he told them what terrible responsibility was upon him in warning them to repent and return unto God. Read Ezekiel 33:1-9.

If the watchman faithfully warns the people, and they refuse to heed the warning, their blood will not be on his hands; but if he fail to warn the people, their blood will be on his hands. Here is a lesson for every teacher and preacher and parent today.

And in this same 33rd chapter, Ezekiel goes on to declare God's attitude toward all sinners. "Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live—turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die?"

A WATCHMAN UNTO EXILES

"SON of man, I have made thee a watchman unto the house of Israel," Ezekiel 3:17.

This was the explicit commission of God to Ezekiel. And grandly did Ezekiel accept and execute to the limit of his ability that commission. The Jews were far from their beloved home. They were driven by hard masters. They could not sing the song of the Lord in a strange land. They had hanged their harps on the willow trees.

With a sensitive soul, Ezekiel comes to them with the word of hope. He reminds them of the goodness and mercy of Jehovah to their fathers; Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. He lifts their drooping spirits with clear and ringing words of promise. He pleads with them to confess their sins and claim the pardoning mercy of a loving God.

He used numerous means of gaining their attention—symbols of their former communion with God. Patiently he traced the dealings of God with them and their fathers before them.

They listened, and all who heeded the pleas of the faithful watchman were saved and restored to faith in the goodness and mercy of God.

We, too, are watchmen among exiles. Let us learn the high art of Ezekiel in our ministry as watchmen.

The churches will fail if the lessons of Sunday are forgotten on Monday and are laid aside for special observance on only one day of the week. — Wayne Morse, U. S. senator from Oregon.

N. Y. Court Decision Holds Test-Tube Baby Legitimate

NEW YORK. — A supreme court justice ruled that a child born as the result of artificial insemination is legitimate.

The ruling was made by Justice Henry Clay Greenberg in deciding that the estranged husband of Mrs. Julie Strnad, 31, had a right to visit her daughter, four-year-old Antoinette, who she said was a product of artificial insemination.

Mrs. Strnad claimed that her husband, Antoine, 42, was sterile since birth, an allegation he denied. She sought to prevent him from seeing the child on the ground Antoinette was not the offspring of her ex-husband. She had won a separation decree and principal custody of the child last October.

Atomic Danger Zone Posted For Tests on New Weapons

WASHINGTON. — The atomic energy commission has posted a "Danger—Keep Out" notice covering 39,000 square miles of the Pacific ocean surrounding Eniwetok atoll, site of forthcoming "tests of military weapons."

"Hazards will exist" in a rectangular area approximately 173 miles north and south and 226 miles east and west, the commission said. The danger will continue through-out 1948.

Farm Mechanization Boosts Production to Record Level

OMAHA, NEB. — Americans are harvesting 20 million more acres today than they did in 1940, although there are three million fewer farms. Fast-growing mechanization of farms is largely responsible for this feat, Joseph A. Hoban, merchandise manager of B. F. Goodrich company, told members of Midwest Implement Dealers association. He cited the fact that the nation's tractor "population" had doubled, from one million to two million, just since 1940.

Praising "the way America's farmers and other food producers had come through to ease tragic conditions in many lands," Hoban cited the following estimates on the nation's 1947 exports of foodstuffs: 392 million bushels of wheat, five times the amount exported in 1939; 88 million bushels of corn, compared to 32 million in 1939, and 328 million pounds of meat products, against 193 million in 1939.

The farm market offered "the biggest sales opportunity" for industry in 1947, Hoban said, adding that "there is no question that this market is going forward at as great or even greater pace in 1948."

Hoban said that all tractors now made are rubber-tired, and that changing all a farm's rolling stock from steel to rubber tires produced an average saving of 24 working days and 675 gallons of gasoline per year, for each 150 acres worked.

When the cost of living goes up the folks cuss, and when prices begin to tumble the folks cuss. Seems that we are living in a cussing generation.

Swain and Graham counties voted last week by an overwhelming majority, to prohibit the sale of wine and beer in these counties. Seems that prohibition is marching in North Carolina. The Davie Commissioners haven't yet taken any steps toward calling an election in this county, so far as we have heard.

Country Churches

Dr. Alfred Mordecai, of Winston Salem, former Davie County Health Officer, had an interesting article in a recent issue of The State, concerning rural churches in North Carolina. The doctor stresses the point that most rural churches and their surroundings do not present an attractive appearance. He is advocating a movement to beautify the rural churches and church grounds, so they will compare favorably with the town and city churches.

The Record heartily indorses this worthy cause and will assist in any way possible to get the rural citizens interested in beautifying the country churches and cemeteries. Davie County has a number of old churches with attractive surroundings which could be greatly improved without the expenditure of any considerable sum of money. Clean church grounds, with attractive shrubbery and flowers, would add much to the appearance of many of our rural and small town churches. Let's all do our part in helping to make our houses of worship more inviting.

The FICTION Corner

IMPROMPTU By FLORENCE BAUGH

I JOINED the crowd gathered on the bridge watching the crew dragging the lake above the dam.

"Who are they searching for this time?" I asked as I pushed closer to the rail.

"Young Doc Warren," several answered at once.

I had never seen young William Warren, but I knew about him—the whole town knew about him.

He had joined the army with our National Guard. The boys were still singing his praises.

He had been through a lot at the front and had won the complete devotion of his men by his untiring efforts and unceasing good humor.

He had returned to his father's clinic almost immediately upon his return to the States. I had heard little about him in recent months.

"What about the woman they were dragging for yesterday?" I asked.

"They found her earlier this morning. Plain case of suicide. But when the boats were coming in to the dock over there by those willows they found a man's hat. It had his name inside—William Warren."

"And about the same time," another put in, "the police find this car on the bridge, out of gear and nobody around."

He pointed to a green sedan that several officers were shaking down. "They find a driver's license on the steering post in the name of young Doc Warren. They figure something has happened to the Doc, so while they radio headquarters for a check the boats lower the grab hooks and start working again."

I edged my way over near a couple patrolmen who had arrived from headquarters. Calls to Doc Warren's home, his office, the two hospitals, all brought the same response: he wasn't there.

His wife had told the officers that he had left home early, before she and the children were up. He had come home late after an emergency operation, seemed unable to relax, and had spent a restless night. She had awakened while he was dressing and asked if he had a call. He explained that he was just going out to clear the cobwebs from his mind. He had kissed her goodby. She had thought no more about it until the police called.

I moved back to the rail to watch the boats as they trolled slowly toward us, the grappling hooks searching the lake bottom in the lane between them. The water was plenty choppy, a cold raw wind had been blowing out of the north since yesterday. Nothing about the scene seemed urgent. The boats moved slowly. The crowd just stood and watched, coat collars turned up against the wind.

A young boy had crawled under my arms to press himself against the rail, excited by his first-hand experience with tragedy. "They got something!" he shouted, and the crowd came to life. All turned toward the men in the boats, watching with a strange fascination, waiting to see what was being dragged out.

Someone said, "That's him!" when the men pulled the thing loose from the hooks. "They put him in a gunny sack!"

We saw the men in one of the boats peering into the sack. Then one of them, looking up at us, pulled out and held up a decoy some hunter had lost. There was a murmur of relief, of restrained amusement, and the crowd settled back again into their coat collars.

Someone commented, "This jumping off bridges is getting to be an epidemic."

Another one questioned, "How do you know he jumped? Maybe he was pushed?"

Another said, seriously, "That's right. My boy knew him. He wasn't a coward. If he's in that lake he was murdered."

A siren wailed and the crowd fell back to make room for another patrol car which drew up alongside the green sedan.

"There's Old Doc Warren," someone in the crowd said as an elderly man stepped out of the car.

I worked my way toward the car. I could hear Old Doc Warren talking. "Yes, this is his car. He has been working too hard, but what doctor hasn't these days? So far as I know he has no enemies, but I don't believe my son would commit suicide!"

There was another stir of excitement. I threaded my way back to the rail to see if this time they had really found him.

The boys in the boats were having difficulty hauling in the lines, but when the catch broke water we could see it was just a log.

As they dropped it back the shrill whistle of the interurban reminded me that I was already late for work. I reluctantly pulled myself away and headed toward town.

Down the road I stopped at Phil's Phil-Er-Up. I like Phil and I could save the city gasoline tax.

"Where's the boss?" I asked the young attendant who dashed out to wait on me, "up at the lake watching them drag for the body?"

"Gosh, no!" exclaimed the boy as he fumbled with the hose. "Has he been having a time! His wife had a baby this morning, a week before she was expecting it!"

Just then Phil came out of the living quarters in the back with another young man. Phil was beaming like the traditional proud father as he pulled his hat down firmly. The other man didn't seem excited.

I heard Phil say, "Hey, Doc, you forgot your hat." He turned to go back. But the other man laughed. "You were too excited to notice that I didn't have one when I walked in here for gas. The wind blew it off as I stepped out of my car on the bridge."

He had kissed her goodby. She had thought no more about it until the police called.

Pittsburgh Council to Abandon Stephen Foster Memorial Home

Once again Pittsburgh is embroiled in a controversy over Stephen C. Foster, one of its most famous sons, as the result of a decision by the city council to abandon the Stephen Foster Memorial home.

Rather than spend $10,000 to rehabilitate the memorial home, the city is giving up the 14-room mansion which some biographers term the "authentic site" of Foster's birth. The once stately place has become dilapidated, with plaster falling, porches collapsing and romping school children peppering its windows with stones.

Three direct descendants of the noted composer may be left homeless as a result of the abandonment. The three, a grandson, granddaughter and great-granddaughter, have lived in the building for more than 30 years. The granddaughter, Mrs. Jessie Rose, 72, has been acting as caretaker for the city.

In its decision not to repair the building, the city council declared that the rambling brick homestead has "ceased to have any value as a memorial." The council therefore is deciding the property back to heirs of James H. Park, wealthy steelmaster who bought it in 1914 and gave it to the city with the stipulation that it be maintained as a museum containing a collection of Stephen Foster mementoes.

Park, an admirer of Foster's music, made the purchase because he "thought it a shame" there was no memorial to the great writer of "My Old Kentucky Home" and other ageless American songs.

Music-lovers of the city later raised $500,000 to build an elaborate Gothic memorial to Foster on University of Pittsburgh campus. This memorial contains the largest collection of Foster's manuscripts and other belongings. It now is the mecca for thousands of visitors who formerly called at the Stephen Foster Memorial home.

Another controversy over Foster raged in 1934 when Henry Ford bought what was claimed to be Foster's "real birthplace" and moved it to his outdoor museum in Dearborn, Mich. William McNair, Pittsburgh's mayor at the time, claimed the millionaire car manufacturer bought "the wrong house." Mrs. Evelyn Foster Morne-weak of Detroit, a niece and biographer of Foster, said the composer was born in a white frame cottage which was torn down and replaced in 1865 with the brick mansion which became the Stephen Foster Memorial home. Foster died in 1863.

Playing Child Termed Human Caution Sign

A playing child should be a Human Caution sign to motorists, officials emphasize in connection with a nationwide plea for highway safety.

One of every three children who die is killed in a traffic accident, according to the 1947 edition of Accident Facts, a publication devoted to safety promotion. One-third of the accidental deaths of children 5 to 14 years of age are the result of motor vehicle accidents.

Motorists are cautioned to observe the following rules:

- 1. Always "Watch Out for Kids." 2. Keep clear of bicycles—right or wrong—as they are defenseless against a motor vehicle. 3. Be on the lookout for children darting out between parked cars. Reduce speed and increase watchfulness in school zones and residential areas. 4. Always remember that children have not reached the age of discretion and judgment—drivers must think for them. 5. Children play in driveways and around parked vehicles—always make sure children are out of the way before starting a parked vehicle. 6. Driver—it might be your child!

Bandit Is Just a 'Crumb';

Waitress Proves Her Point

DETROIT. — Mrs. Imogene Corretta, 38, waitress in a local restaurant, brushed off a would-be bandit as she might have flicked a bread crumb off the counter, holdup squad officers said.

A man strode into the restaurant, right hand threateningly in his overcoat pocket in the approved manner. He announced boldly, "This is a stickup."

Mrs. Corretta pretended not to hear him. "Open the cash register," the desperado blustered.

Mrs. Corretta ignored him. The "bandit" reached across the counter and started to open the till himself.

Mrs. Corretta calmly rapped him across the back of his hand with the dull edge of a large butcher knife and the toughie yelped and fled.

British May Trim House Of Lords by 600 Peers

LONDON. — Conservative party sources said about 600 British peers would lose their hereditary seats in the House of Lords under reform proposals considered by Conservative leaders as counter to the Labor government's plan to curb the upper chamber's powers.

A committee of Conservative peers is considering a proposal to limit membership to about 300 lords with outstanding public service records.

What's the Secret?

What makes American living the best living known? What makes the American standard of living so much higher than that of other nations? Our country is in no favored position as to raw materials, geography, population, climate, or the other factors usually thought of as making up a nation's economy. In fact, we have less of the world's territory, fewer people, and not as many natural resources as some other nations.

All these things you will find in the almanacs. Looking further and with a little more discrimination, you will find that America does much, much, more with what it does have. What I mean is that America produces. The figures will tell you that our "industrial and agricultural output" is great. This does not mean that Americans work any harder than anybody else. Actually, they do not have to work as hard as workers in other countries.

Method That Works

Then where's the difference? What's the secret? It is the system that makes the difference. Our high standard of living, our good living, is the pay-off of this system. This is where we reap the benefits of the right system, a system that really works. Once in awhile, maybe, we have a shortage or an inequity. Maybe we lack production here, or there. But right away, enterprise goes to work to meet that demand.

With no interference from a dictator-state, the system takes care of little dislocations and progress keeps going. Our standard of good living continues to rise. Only in this way may all the people reap the rewards of their inventiveness and their enterprise. You see, the fellow who invents a light bulb or a self-starter is not the only one to profit. The fellow who uses them profits most.

Trial and Error

This system would bog down under heavy-handed statism. Let the government step in to manage, and you have a dozen ways the system can go haywire. Demand no longer becomes the basis for production. Profit is penalized, and nobody gets the benefits of enterprise. People lose initiative and inventiveness, and everybody suffers. This has been America's experience, wherever she has tried "statism."

Notwithstanding large funds spent by the Russian state on putting electric vacuum cleaners and refrigerators into production, it is reported from Russia that these things are not being produced anywhere. One factory made 300 manually-operated washing machines. They sold quickly, but no more were made despite heavy demand. The report said a good potato-peeling machine exists and demand is heavy, but it is not in production.

These are nothing more than the fruits of the mismanagement that takes place when government starts tinkering with a nation's economies. The British press reports that one of its state-owned airlines will lose seven million pounds in its first year of government operation; another has already reported a loss of thirty pounds for every passenger it carried. These are some of the fruits of socialism. If we want to keep our high living standards, we must hold fast to the American way.

Dog Tags for Children

If children wore identification discs similar to those of the armed forces there would be fewer lost children, and better and quicker emergency treatment would be possible in many cases of accidental injury. Dr. Edward Press of the U. S. children's bureau recommended to American Medical Association. Information on the tag as to the child's blood type, bleeding tendency, serum sensitivity and whether immunized against lockjaw, would facilitate emergency treatment and might well save the child's life in case of accident.

Sets Up Crime Lab

Wisconsin has set up a state crime laboratory with $190,000 appropriated by the legislature, the Council of State Governments reports. The laboratory will serve as a clearing house for technical and scientific aid to police officers throughout the state, operating through the University of Wisconsin. Officials also hope to set up roving laboratories on wheels to give on-the-spot aid to crime investigators.

Uncle Sam Says

Does a $1,000 in savings seem as elusive as the rainbow's pot of gold to you? Then, think about these facts: By joining the Payroll Savings Plan where you work and allotting just $2.50 a week for United States Savings Bonds, you will accumulate $1,458.34 in 10 years. Millions of your nieces and nephews are learning from experience that they can own an even greater amount of Savings Bonds through this partial payment plan. In the event you are self-employed, automatic bond buying is available to you through the Bond-A-Month Plan at your bank.

Uncle Sam Says

The kid in upper 4 captured your heart during wartime. In spirit you traveled with him toward his uncertain future on the battlefields. The kid upstairs today is yours. The "kid" may be a freckled boy or a curly haired little girl—your son or daughter who will need your help through savings to find a place in everyday life. The Payroll Savings Plan for buying United States Savings Bonds where you work is the only automatic, safe, profitable way for you to buy bonds by the installment payment method. In this way you can build the nestegg which can make the difference between wishing and having the funds for education and a secure future for your children. If you are self-employed buy bonds automatically through the Bond-A-Month Plan where you bank.

In Your Interest

DOROTHY DIX, noted newspaper columnist and counselor to millions of Americans, says: "The best advice I have ever given in my long life is the advice I give Americans now: that is, keep buying and holding U. S. Savings Bonds because they will insure your future happiness. Any home with Savings Bonds is certainly a better home than one without Savings Bonds. I can truly write about the merits of Savings Bonds in the family relationship, because bonds are really very personal in their nature. Savings Bonds eventually become the things we hope for, whether it is marriage, a new home, children's education or plain leisure."

In Your Interest

PHILLIP MURRAY, President, CIO, says: "The Payroll Savings Plan for the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds offers CIO members an opportunity to save in a systematic way for future security, education of children, purchase of a home, and other worth while objectives. The benefits which result to the individual and to his family will go far to strengthen our democracy, for the strength of each individual is a measure of the strength of the Nation. Hog Mange Causes Average Loss of $2

New Insecticide Proves Effective in Control

Common mange of hogs is another widespread disease that has yielded to the results of animal health research. The U. S. department of agriculture says the average losses from mange probably amount to $2 a head. This figure covers the loss from stunted growth, delay in fattening, occasional deaths and dock age when mangy hogs are marketed.

The effective weapon against mange is benzene hexachloride, frequently referred to as "666." In Nebraska tests this newly-discovered insecticide was so effective it eradicated mange with one treatment. Not only did it eradicate mange — it also got rid of lice. This makes the old mange treatments obsolete.

In the Nebraska tests, crude benzene hexachloride (a wettable powder) was mixed with water (10 pounds powder in 100 gallons) and sprayed on the hogs.

One objectionable feature of the crude benzene hexachloride is its terrific odor. This odor is not present to any marked degree in commercial hog oils prepared by use of a solvent which takes the active ingredient (the gamma isomer) out of the crude benzene hexachloride and leaves behind the ineffective ingredients—the ones that have the disagreeable odor.

Herds and Flocks

Pond water piped to farm buildings for livestock can be filtered by building a solid housing of soft brick (laid in cement) over the end of the pipe in the bottom of the pond.

Water filters through the pores of the brick.

First treatment for cattle grubs should be made early in winter, as soon as the tell-tale bumps appear on the backs of animals. Several treatments a month apart will be necessary. Use a cattle grub dust containing 1 1/2 per cent rotenone.

The current shortage of feed makes it important to do continuous culling in the laying house.

Dairy cows lose a lot of energy pulling through heavy mud in the barn lots. Lost energy means less milk. Paved lots that take cows out of the mud soon pay for themselves.

Mow and Spray in One Operation Pays Well

Prof. E. B. Robb of Cornell University demonstrates a mow and weed gadget for applying 2,4-D to lawns. A regular garden sprayer is filled with 2,4-D mixture and pumped up ready for use. Fastened to the lawn mower the sprayer carries a two nozzle boom ahead of the blades and contains enough mixture to cover at least half an acre of lawn.

Midwest Barley Growers To Compete in Contest

A $30,000 contest which stresses the importance of certified seed, early planting, seed treatment, use of commercial fertilizer and timely and careful harvesting in growing barley as a cash grain crop that under proved methods of production commands a premium price is announced by the Midwest Barley Improvement association, Milwaukee. The prizes are offered to farmers in seven Midwest states.

Live in Russia?

One test of a country's economic pattern is whether you would like to live there. The advantages of the social scene, in other words, make up its strongest advertisement. Or, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. It is common scandal, naturally, that none of our American "fellow travelers" cherish the idea of actually living in Russia. Apparently, from a personal viewpoint they'll take American living any day.

On that point, these Communists and Russophobes show good judgment. Your Russian factory worker, under the new Russian prices, has to spend the income of one hour and 18 minutes of labor for a quart of milk, which the average American factory worker gets in exchange for the price of 10 minutes of his labor. A pound of butter costs the Russian 10 hours and 42 minutes; the American only 48 1/2 minutes (not counting the time spent griping about the current price).

Spending Labor

It costs the Russian factory worker about four weeks' work to get himself a part-wool suit. If he wants a worsted suit he'll have to spend his entire pay for more than three months. His American counterpart can work out a good quality worsted suit in little more than three days. More than two weeks' pay would have to go into a pair of leather shoes for the Russian, yet the American can work them out in less than a day.

These comparisons are based upon estimates of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and on Russian prices as reported by the Associated Press in December. The comparisons are as accurate as the iron curtain will permit. They show that prices in a communistic economy are much higher than our own, in terms of work. And those are the terms that count.

Eating the Pudding

The real pay-off of any economic system comes in the standard of living that it provides for its people. Without question, the American workingman enjoys the highest living standards of any nation. He's rightly proud of this, although he may not know the United States has 84 per cent of the world's telephones, 84 per cent of the automobiles, nearly 50 per cent of the radios, and 92 per cent of all the bathtubs on this planet!

A "capitalistic" country, contrary to Russian description, is a nation where men are permitted to have a high standard of living. This is exemplified by America. Here, men are free to work, to invent, to initiate, to experiment, to engage in the enterprise of their dreams. Unhindered by restrictions that in other nations tend to keep down any individual enterprise, an American worker can start his own factory or set up his own business.

We take all these things for granted, along with our vastly superior standard of living. What we must assuredly know is this: these things exist because of basic principles that belong to the American Way. Our individual freedom of enterprise is distinctly American. No "socialistic" or "socialistic" state can do it to its people.

Uncle Sam Says

Regardless of whether you approve the new look in fashion, every one of my nieces and nephews certainly is in the style with the new look in security. How can you acquire this kind of look? There are two great automatic plans, both sure and convenient: 1. If you work for wages or salary—join the Payroll Savings Plan for buying United States Savings Bonds regularly. This is the only installment bond-buying plan. 2. If you're in business, or a profession, or living on an income—sign up at your bank for the Bond-A-Month Plan.

Be An "Engineer in Good Eating"—Do Home Canning!

Simple Instructions Based on Science

You may not have a degree as an engineer, Mrs. Housewife, but when you're home canning you're using scientific principles just as surely as a mining, chemical, electrical or other engineer. That is, if you follow glass jar manufacturer's instructions, for they are based upon scientific discoveries made over a period of a century and a half.

Back in Napoleon's time, a Paris confectioner, Nicolas Appert, set out to find a method of food preservation and win a 12,000-franc prize offered in 1795 by the French government. Napoleon, like Frederick the Great, believed an army travels on its stomach, and the folks at home got hungry and discontented too!

Nicolas won the prize, after 15 years' work, but his methods and equipment have been greatly improved upon. He labored under many handicaps, not knowing a temperature beyond boiling is required for processing some foods and having to design his own glass jars. Not until 1860 did Louis Pasteur establish the fact that microorganisms are responsible for food spoilage. Fourteen years later, an American, A. K. Shriver of Baltimore, invented the "retort" or "pressure" cooker.

In 1858 John Mason patented the Mason jar with neck designed for receiving a screw type cap. The Mason jar with porcelain-lined zinc cap is an old reliable. Mason would probably be astounded by the 1947 cap for sealing the Mason jar. This new style cap is a two-piece metal affair with a Dome lid which has sealing compound on the under side and is tested for seal by pressing on the center of the lid with the finger. Sealing with the Dome lid is made doubly sure by the new type metal band which bears down on the lid at three pressure points.

Also reliable in seal is the lighting type jar with rubber ring, glass lid and wire bail.

Many scientific experiments and jar improvements have perfected processes for today's home canning and it is upon them that instructions you will find in reliable home canning literature such as the Ball Blue Book are based. Follow these instructions and you become an "Engineer in Good Eating"—much to the benefit of your family's health and increased pleasure at the table provided by delicious home canned foods.
