

Miss Nobody from Nowhere BY ELIZABETH JORDAN

Sixth Instalment

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. A beautiful young woman finds herself...

That brought another stare. Then Miss Davenport rose. "You've come into my joint all right, but you're more than kind," she said. "I can't thank you. But dancing isn't my line."

There was something in the music that was unlike the hostess, and the guest responded to them both. She rose and took a few steps, at first tentatively, then with conviction.

"No, I don't smoke," I'm awfully sorry," Miss Davenport sighed. "I'm out," she said, and moved to the door. "What's your line?" the caller suddenly demanded.

Under The Shadow

Philip Reid, listening to the complaints of an ailing, middle-aged woman, saw the yellow weather-boarding of Burton's crossroad store, in an oak grove, with a relief half spelled by apprehension. Here was a prospect of help, as well as a possible sale; but Burton's condition had little to do with the conflict of eagerness and reluctance with which Philip always neared his store.

Philip had been on the point of proposing to Eve three years ago, when he was, new to the road. But her father had intimidated him, and she was engaged to another man, August Holmes. Since then Philip was always longing to see her, wishing he had not, after he had.

Stopping before the store, he heard today no ring or iron from Burton's smithy, among the oaks beyond; no slow voices from inside the store. He felt the sun's rays on his face, and the air was warm and soft. He stepped backward, beckoning Philip straight to the dim interior, his long, plain face turned. He was engaged by a paralysis of indecision that held him.

Behind the counter at the right of the door Thomas Burton lay dead. For twenty years he had served the people of Davie County as Funeral Director, and never before had he been so well equipped, or had so wide a variety of styles and prices as we now have.

50 Years' Use of Black-Draught "About fifty years ago," says Mr. Lewis G. O'Shea, of Fayetteville, Ark., "my mother gave me the first dose of Black-Draught, and since that time I have used it over and over, when I needed a medicine for constipation. I have used this remedy all my married life, in raising my children. "I have used Black-Draught for heartburn, as I have had spells of this kind, off and on, for years. I have used it to begin taking Black-Draught in time. It relieves me of dizziness, tightness in the chest and backache. "By getting rid of impurities, Black-Draught helps to keep the system in good order. I have recommended it to many people, in my time." The girl's face was so frankly happy that Philip recoiled. It hurt him intensely that she should show such joy in the very presence of her dead father.

"What's the trouble here?" "You ought to know." For a moment Philip stared hard into those piggy eyes.

"I believe that owed him a lot of money, or he owed dad." The girl's voice was tired.

THE HEISEN LORD AND THE GREAT COMMISSION

Matthew 28: 18-20

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

"Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning" was never truer than when the first day of the week came after the body of Jesus had been placed in tomb, following the crucifixion on the previous Friday. Parts of three days had passed, during which the first day of the week had been observed. As soon as work could again be taken up certain women made ready to perform the usual rites upon the body of their dear friend. With spices they came very early to the garden tomb. Insuperable difficulties did not hold them back, though it was not natural that they should question an "empty tomb" as they went away the stone? For a great stone sealed the mouth of the sepulchre. Then came an active lesson that many will never learn. We worry so much about situations that never arise. For instance, the resurrection of the body of Jesus had taken place. There had been an earthquake, not to let the body out but to permit the women to see with in the dark tomb when they arrived there was a messenger in the person of an angel to declare the good news and to give them instruction for immediate service. "He is not here," they were told. To-day many go to the grave to weep, as if their loved one was there entombed. No spirit has ever been placed in the grave. Death refers to the body only. At once with the death of the body our loved ones are in the spirit world.

The records in all four Gospels should be read with care to obtain every detail. Jesus begins to appear to individuals and to groups. He makes a company of twelve men as they returned to the city. Then He came to Mary Magdalene, who tarried by the open sepulchre.

Let us know just who you would favor for the office of sheriff, etc., and we will start talking all the GOOD THINGS we know about them.

But, really, it doesn't much matter who we run for the office as they will all be ELECTED because the people want those three useless officers abolished so they can save the taxpayers about ten thousand dollars per year.

Look into the high tax business and see if you don't think a little reduction in expenses would help out a little.

The only way to reduce taxes is to reduce expenses. So let's make the start this year by electing a set of Democratic officers in Davis.

Dearborn, Mich., June 11—Officials of the Ford Motor Company announced that Dearborn, Henry Ford's home town, is perhaps the driest industrial community of its size in the country.

Two months ago investigators said Dearborn was "moderately wet." The Ford Motor Company immediately began a drive against blind pigs in co-operation with the Dearborn Police Department. H. H. Bennett of the Ford service division, which operates as a factory police system, said that "beer kitchens," which formerly were operated among the houses sheltering Ford employees, had completely disappeared. Carl A. Brooks, Chief of Police, added the statement that "there is not a blind pig worthy of the name in the entire city."

Workers who appeared at the Ford factory with the smell of liquor on their breaths were disciplined or discharged. Those found drinking in police raids on blind pigs also were discharged. Bennett said.

Our old friend Lee Hampton, staff correspondent of the Winston-Salem Journal, was in town again Wednesday and called around to see what we know. Lee is a good old scout and set us all up to ice cream. (This paying his election bet). Thanks, come again, L. J.

DO PEOPLE FEEL BETTER BECAUSE YOU PASSED BY?

I was in a doctor's office by appointment at five-thirty when his telephone rang. A woman's voice at the other end of the wire asked him to call at the house that evening.

His voice betrayed his irritation, but he promised to call.

"Then he snatched the receiver off the hook and exploded.

"There is a woman who has no time to do all day but glad about. She might just as easily have called me this morning or early in the afternoon. But, no, she has to put it off and spoil my evening.

"Nobody but a doctor has any idea of how inconsiderate people can be."

On two recent trips with two different men I had an interesting opportunity to contrast their conduct toward their fellow human beings.

One of them had made several dollars in the past few years. Whenever he entered a dining car or a hotel he wanted everybody to understand that he is rich and important. Waiters dailied him, even though he had never been to the city.

Whether they feel better or worse because he has passed by.

McNeill, whose many services in Davis and surrounding counties will be especially remembered in reading this account of the event.

Fayetteville, June 8.—"Colorful" was a hard word to describe him, but it is almost the only term that could define the personality of James Dobbin McNeill. He was one of those rare persons who always made their presence felt, no matter what the circumstances may be; one of those persons who are never lost or obscured against their background.

Unbound by Conventions, conventionalities did not bind him. He would talk to you in a style and language that you could understand and he usually did to suit himself. Persons of a nature most often adopt the frankish manner of dress.

an honor that came to him no less than twenty-five times. He took the lead in organizing the State association away back in the 80's and was always a sort of a father to the fire ladders of the State, his "boys," as he called them, and a counselor to their organization even when he held no office, which was not often.

Worked For Relief Fund
His greatest single service to his cause which lay nearest to his heart was his successful work for the creation of the Firemen's Relief Fund in North Carolina and South Carolina. The unceasing exercise of all his flamboyant for nine years was needed before the measure was an accomplished fact in this State.

A noted preacher once remarked that one of the finest of all the sayings of Jesus is this: "I have compassion on the multitude."

White Supremacy Leader.
Another distinction was dear to the heart of Captain McNeill and is a justifiable source of pride to his family and friends. He was secretary of the State board of elections during the memorable "White Supremacy" campaign in 1900. Charles B. Aycock himself selected him for this important post in that crucial campaign.

On Sunday, December 5, 1929, shortly after returning from the

He never left the house again after his stroke, and his death took place on February 9 of the following year.

After the First Twenty-five Thousand Miles

THE VALUE of sound design, good materials and careful craftsmanship is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles. Long, continuous service emphasizes its mechanical reliability and economy of operation and up-keep.

As you drive the Ford through many months and years you will develop an increasing pride in its appearance and a growing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it. From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you will know that you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase.

Wherever you go, you hear enthusiastic praise of the car and this significant, oft-repeated phrase—"I'm glad I bought a Ford."

A Ford owner in New York tells of a 13,000-mile trip across the United States and back in sixty days and says "the car was extremely economical to operate, comfortable and speedy." A grateful father tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield saved his wife and children from serious injury.

To test tires, a large company drove a new Ford day and night, for an average of 500 miles every twenty-four hours. It was still giving satisfactory service after 105,000 miles.

A Ford car that had fallen into Fernan Lake was submerged for twelve days before being raised. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed, it was driven back to Spokane under its own power.

Many police departments have written of the special advantages of the Ford in crowded traffic because of its alert speed, acceleration, and ease of control. An increasing number of fleet owners are also purchasing the Ford because their cost figures have given conclusive proof of its economy of operation and up-keep.

In addition to important triumphs in Germany, France and Italy, the Ford won six out of seven landing places in a contest in Finland, first and second in the Rapacl races in Argentina, first and second in the

PRIMARY COMMENTS

And now that the noise of battle has died down, Simmons overwhelmingly defeated and Bailey nominated to take his place in the United States Senate, it is interesting to note that the spirit of the press seems to favor the elimination of discord and bitterness and the joining of all democrats of the state in a great fight for the party in fall election. The News and Observer, which during the primary campaign was exceedingly fair to both candidates if indeed not what one could truthfully term neutral, says:

"The campaign leaves the Democratic party united, militant, and in November Mr. Bailey will be elected by a great majority. All voters were given the opportunity to express their preference as to a normal candidate. The majority having spoken, the Democrats will now submit to the arbitrament of the party and give hearty support to the nominee.

North Carolina must be represented in the Senate by a Democrat who will support Democratic doctrine, uphold prohibition, and war against privilege, which lie now in the saddle."

The Charlotte Observer, which was one of the strongest of Simmons supporters makes this comment:

"The sentiment of the voters was registered in a way not to be mistaken in favor of retirement of the veteran Senator. It was the party voice calling out that it has had enough of Simmons. In large measure the anticipated happened. Every supporter of Bailey made account of the ballot; many Simmons supporters remained away from the polls, and the reproach for defeat of Simmons, if there is reproach, is theirs. The fact may be accepted, however, with good grace, that Bailey is the party choice for the United States Senate, and the Simmons people will be expected to give him their support, just as they would have expected the Bailey people to support Simmons, in case he had been the successful primary candidate."

The Winston-Salem Journal, another strong Simmons supporter, lets down with some diffidence. That paper simply hates Al Smith and John J. Raskob so thoroughly that while it whispers cooperation and softly murmurs in favor of united fight for Bailey's election this fall, warns the nominee that there must be no Rasobian inclinations. This excerpt is taken from a leading editorial in the Journal:

"In order to lead the Democratic Party successfully, Mr. Bailey must make a campaign this year that will appeal to Democrats who are unalterably opposed to Mr. Raskob's leadership. He should remember that there are thousands of Democrats of this type who did not vote in the Primary last Saturday. More than three thousand did not vote in Forsyth. Most of them were the same as the voters of the same true of other counties in this section. All of these Democrats are potential voters in the fall election."

"Many other editorials coming out since the primary sound sentiments very similar to the above and it now looks like there is to be no Bailey opposition within the ranks of democracy, but a united fight, and we are going to make the prediction here and now that Josiah William Bailey will be elected by a majority of at least a hundred thousand."

MAY TAKE OUR TIP

It looks like the local merchants are going to take a tip from the Enterprise's recent suggestions as to setting apart certain days as Clover Days, Dollar Days, Trade Days, or something of the kind, for already several of the leading business men have started talking and planning for something of that kind in the near future. We should like to wish the Mocksville merchants the idea a fair trial and be convinced beyond question that these special trade days, when exceptional bargains in standard merchandise are offered, greatly enhance the importance of a town as a trading center.

HOOPER PROSPERITY

Hints at impeachment of Hoover—and not from a democrat in protest against "Hoover prosperity," but from a member of the president's own political household, Senator Borah. That, with other murmurings from republicans and democrats would indicate that what this paper has been saying that the Hoover administration is the most colossal failure this nation has seen in half a century, the administration of Harding, with its small of tainted oil, and that of the Spinx of Vermont not excepted. And will all this convince the voters of the nation that the best thing to do is put a democrat in the white house.

A GREAT MAN FABLES

One thing was made certain as the result of the recent primary and that is that the great majority of the democratic voters do not approve of disloyalty on the part of one who has been so signally honored at the hands of the party as has Senator Simmons. There was no reason for the senator coming from North Carolina to ask what the voters meant. He need have no doubts as to whether or not the voters are done with him. His refusal to vote for Al Smith would not have caused any considerable amount of criticism for most democrats give their fellow voters free right to scratch such party nominees as they can not support with good conscience. But Simmons did not stop there. He went further and advised other democrats to vote against Smith. He went a step further and asked them to vote for the republican nominee. He even dumped the state against Smith and for Hoover. He went still further and accused the democratic leaders, such as Governor, Cameron Morrison, Clyde Hoey, Joseph Daniels and others who were loyal to the party nominees, of "waging a campaign of hate." That's where he hit off more than he could chew. The voters could not forgive him, even with his fine record for service, and his reputation as a leader.

When Senator Simmons made the blunder of his career, a great man fell tall quickly and fell with a mighty crash and for all time, for he can never rise again. What a pity one with such a fine record should in his old age allow his egotism to so run away with him as to put a blot on his entire career by a disgraceful thing, but in Simmons' case it got in his deadly work, for when the future historian or biographer writes he will have to spend much effort in apologetic for the Simmons fall.

A NATIVE SON

It is good to know that when the University of North Carolina, with its fine prestige looked over the United States for a successor to Dr. Chase as president, it found a native North Carolinian who seemed most suitable. Saying nothing derogatory to outsiders, it pleased us to have one again at the head of our greatest institution of learning one born and reared with the tar dripping from his heels. The new president is Dr. Frank Graham, a son of Dr. Alexander Graham, of Charlotte.

Dr. Edward Kildor Graham, also of Charlotte, who served as the University's president from 1914 to 1918, but let us hope that like that other Charlotte Graham he will strive to make the University serve the people of this state, the south and the nation.

ELKIN'S BIG TREE

One of the largest trees in the whole state is claimed for Elkin and is standing on Front Street near the creek in front of the U. S. Bell home. The tree is still young and growing rapidly and experts predict that the day when it reaches full growth, will be a record winter.

The tree measured twenty-four and a half feet in circumference one foot from the ground and its limbs spread over a quarter of an acre of ground, measuring 37 yards from the tip of the foliage to the other side east and west and 35 yards north and south. Many persons, who have never seen the tree before have visited the place and marveled at its great beauty and stature.—(Elkin Tribune).

FAST GROWING POPULATION

This being the open season for boasting about census gains (and vice-versa when an alibi is needed), we are of the opinion that our percentage of gain will compare very favorably with that of other progressive communities. An increase from 760 to 2360 inhabitants within ten years without restoring to any ballyhoo or the least bit of Chamber of Commerce propaganda and in spite of considerable adverse advertising, is a record hard to beat.—(Prison News).

THE COURTS AND THE ABTHISTS

Charlotte Observer.
The Communists staged demonstrations of violent kind against the police in the New Jersey city of Newark, last Water, and the attention to their cases, those arrested at the time having been held under charge of "inciting a riot." Two of the group were tried, and after half an hour's deliberation the jury gave four guilty verdicts. They are now facing a sentence of seven years in prison and a fine of $3,000. One of the convicted is a colored gentleman known as Graham, a Communist candidate for the office of State Senator. He urged the mob to "fight the police." And the same question that bothered the Charlotte court bubbled up in the Newark court. Seven witnesses for the Communists in Newark refused to testify because they "did not believe in God." A terrible howl went up over the country when this question was brought up in a Southern court, but up in New Jersey it is all right. The abthists were allowed to testify in the trial of the white man, but when it came to trying the negro, the judge reversed himself and found that it was all wrong, falling back on an "1897 decision" to support his position.

NO OCCASION FOR GLOATING

Lenoir News-Topic.
When the tumult and the shouting died away what there was of it, J. W. Bailey, nominee of the Democratic party for the United States senate was found in no mood to gloat over the defeat of Senator Simmons. Tom Bost, who has been a close associate of the Greensboro News that Bailey "loll'd suddenly about his Blont residence today and refused to exult over the 'old master'."

The News-Topic was impressed by the news here as it received the news. As the story of victory and of defeat unfolded, there was no shouting. We have heard that the same noiseless acceptance of the returns characterized other election reports from over the state. Here as elsewhere, generally, the election was going in accordance with the will of the majority, but the mood of Bailey seems to have been the mood of his supporters. In neither case did he call for high songs in accolade nor the element of the party which nominated him was there desirous "to exult over the old master."

That temper of man and mass augurs well for the campaign that lies ahead of Bailey and the party. A majority of the party ruled Simmons out and Bailey in as its senatorial standard-bearer, but that majority and its choice realize that success in November and December will require the healing of the breach in the party's ranks. Respect for that splendid minority of more than 120,000 members of the party who stood loyally to the leader in the contest, for appreciation of its motives as well as realization of its strength. That minority must be convinced that the Bailey bloc in the party has not resolved to go running after strange gods. It must be persuaded that the abthists have not been repudiated or endangered by Saturday's results. Without that kind of spirit carried into the campaign now imminent, the solid front of the party cannot be restored.

The manner in which Bailey conducted his campaign, no more surely than the manner in which he and his followers received the news of victory, seem assurance of the success of the future direction of the campaign. No abthist group, all the righteousness in the recent conflict has been injected offensively in the hour of primary judgment.

INVESTIGATION AND DEPORTATION

Charlotte Observer.
At last getting under way, the committee appointed to investigate Communist activities in this country is uncovering an interesting line of facts, evidently surprising to its members, but of common knowledge in this section of the country. Incidentally, if the committee should secure a place on the mailing lists of the Communist publicity agencies which are given free use of the United States mails to malign its own Government, it might secure some of the most interesting facts of that which the investigation would be able to bring out.

And it also appears that while the Government is making tardy probe into the activities of this alien element, the deportation department appears to have been doing its duty in riding the country of its undesirables. A report from the office of the Commissioner, General of Immigration shows that during April, 1850 aliens were deported under warrant proceedings for various reasons, while for the 10 months to May 1, deportations totaled 14,039, as compared with 10,325 for the corresponding period of the preceding year. Entry without proper visa or surfeitous entries accounted for almost 5,600 of all cases. To this list of formal deportations, however, should be added the 9,903 aliens subject to deportation but permitted to leave voluntarily, making a 10 months record of approximately 24,000 persons forced to leave this country.

FRANK GRAHAM

Gaustonia Gazette.
The selection and election of Frank P. Graham as president of the University of North Carolina, will meet with universal satisfaction. Frank Graham—it is hard to call him Prof. Graham, and we do not believe he has a doctor's degree—is one of the most lovable men on the campus of the University. Inductively, the thought of Carolina men turned to Frank Graham, when news of the election of the new president was known. There was a spontaneous and universal demand from over the State that Graham be named to the post of president.

The youthful and modest young man, preferring to do his work in quiet and more uneventful circles of University life, announced that he was not a candidate for the job, and immediately began boasting his long time absence from the State. He has been in the States for a number of years, but he returned to this country and to Europe. Mr. Murray, of Raleigh, and a splendid young man, being held in high regard wherever he is known. He was educated in Richmond, Va., and at Emory College, and now holds a responsible position with the Commercial National Bank in Raleigh. Upon their return from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Murray will go to homekeeping in Raleigh. It is a source of deep regret to Mrs. Murray's friends who will leave Mocksville. We join in wishing them both much happiness in their new life.

33 WOMEN INURED SEEKING BARGAINS

Paterson, N. J., June 12.—Thirty-three women and a little girl were injured today as a crowd of 300 bargain-seekers pushed their way into a store in an effort to get into a department store which was advertising a sale.

Some of the store opened the door to look at the crowd and a few prospective customers gathered in the sidewalk and a wild scramble followed to gain entrance.

A mixture of oats and vetch on the farm of W. L. Dail in Jones County yielded at the rate 8,000 an acre for the field.

NOTHING WRONG WITH THE TEXT

The Monroe Enquirer quotes Arthur Brisbane as having recently said that, "The omission of one text in the Bible would have saved untold suffering, and continues: 'It gives to men the dreadful, and deadly command, "Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live." There are no witches, there never were any, flying through the air on broomsticks, but King James' obeying the command, put to death helpless old women, accused of selling out to sea through the air on broomsticks, and raising a storm to wreck the king's ships. Thousands were burned, hanged, drowned, horribly tortured, by those that believed there must be witches since the Bible said not to let them live. The late President White, of Cornell University, says those eight words "Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live," have caused more needless suffering than any other words ever written."

Here's just another positive statement made against Bible teaching which was made without going into the real depth of the meaning of the text condemned. True, old James did follow up what he in his ignorance thought was a Bible admonition to destroy witches, and many innocent women were drowned, hanged and needlessly tortured as a result of the text. But the trouble was not with the text, the trouble was due to ignorance of its real meaning. There are no witches, and possibly there have never been any, but those who might believe there are, and those who at heart would love to believe there are those degraded and wicked one who would if they had the power, destroy their enemies and ruin those against whom their envy and jealousy may want to inflict hurt. Such persons were and are the witches which the text possibly condemns. If the Bible teaches the spirit as truly as though they might ride on the air on a broomstick. And such the Bible text quoted would have destroyed, and we are not swift to say that all such should not be disposed of as per the Bible teaching.

As a general thing when one goes deep enough into the Bible he always will find them in general true. There is nothing contentious about the Bible. It is old, but all its doctrines and its judgments, its commands and its tenets are thoroughly modern, safe and sound. True, through lack of understanding, men have turned some of the Bible's teachings into excuses for cruelty, but the trouble is not with the Bible, but with those who through failure to understand, go wrong. It is generally believed that the Inquisition was largely due to the wrong interpretation which the church in the control of ignorant and dangerous men put on the text, "Go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in." They thought it meant that men must be converted to Christianity by force, if necessary. Yet, who would now dare even hint that the church got its authority for justifying the Inquisition from the Bible.

It is a fellow who spouts some isolated text as out of date, or as teaching dangerous doctrines, should think and ponder, and weigh the Bible well before he makes a critical statement. The Bible is all right. IT IS ALL RIGHT, AND IF MEN ARE SOMETIMES MISLEAD BY TEXT IN IT, IT IS DUE TO THEIR OWN LACK OF UNDERSTANDING RATHER THAN THE BIBLE'S FAULT.

SOUNDS LIKE REAL BUSINESS

John Alcock, who has just been made acting Commissioner of Police of the City of Chicago, seems to be starting after the crooks and gamblers with gloves off. Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson, Mayor of that city, seems to have at last become aroused to the seriousness of Chicago's unenviable status. The Mayor has just informed Commissioner Alcock that:

Your first job is to capture every gangster in Chicago. Your second is to get the evidence that will send everyone of them either to the penitentiary or the electric chair. You have a free hand. You will not be interfered with. "Since the shooting of a Chicago Tribune news reporter, who "knew too much" on the gangsters, a few days ago, the press of the city is in a lull and has served notice on all gamblers and their cohorts, including crooked policemen, that gang rule must cease in Chicago. The Tribune has offered a large reward for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who murdered the paper's reporter, and all newspapers of the city seem united on a publicity campaign that will insure a thorough clean up at an early date.

Just how much of this may be bluster and bluff, we do not know, but all law abiding-American citizens will hope that Commissioner Alcock and Mayor Thompson, as well as the Chicago newspapers, really mean business.

"ANANIAS" JUSTIFIED HER NAME

(By Arch Huneycutt)

We know an old farmer who owns a cow, which he has christened Ananias because of her ability to lie in various ways. Ananias is a fine specimen of the Jersey, and such a favorite with her owner that he has milked her something near three thousand times, without having missed a single time. Ananias has a habit of pretending thirst, or hunger, or that her halter is uncomfortable, and various other things, but she more than made good one evening recently. The old "Hayseed" was quietly "whanghing" away with both hands at the tank, and the contented Ananias was as tranquilly licking her supper of meal from a feed box, when suddenly the monotony of the "lick-lick," and the "whang-whang," was broken by a roar of the most terror, and farmer, pall, and milk-stool were rolled over in a heap, while Ananias stood upright, reared on her hind, and did many acrobatic stunts that would have put the champion athlete of the goat family to shame. The first thought to enter the mind of Mr. Hayseed, was personal safety, and the next instant he was speculating on the cause of the trouble. From the safe height of a near by goat-post. What aided the cow? She had never done so before. Had an adder suddenly fallen into a fit from the bite of a mad dog, unknown to any of the family? Suddenly the truth was revealed when Ananias gave a bellow, a roar, and a snort that eclipsed all previous efforts, expelling from her nostrils a common meal bug, which all close observers of the insect world, know, does not exceed an inch in length, and perfectly round. The bug had been placed in the feed box, un-noted by the farmer, and following his big instinct, had sought safety in the cow's nose, thereby creating the whole scene. Ananias had made good but it was unintentionally, as she had never been more sincere in all her life of six year duration, and I doubt she will ever be, even to her last day.

SOUTHERN PINES WANTS TRADE DATES

We note that the Sandhill Citizen, backed by leading merchants of Northern Pines is advocating Trade Days as a relief from the bad business conditions this summer. Here's what that paper says:

The plan that is being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce to project a series of special trading days in Southern Pines during the summer months should receive the hearty commendation of every citizen who has a communitarian's heart. The fact that Southern Pines has a large extent a resort town makes nearly all the business in the town a seasonal affair which means that during the four summer months there is very dull business in all the stores in town.

It is believed that a series of special "Trade Days" coming every three or four weeks during the summer will bring to Southern Pines a considerable rural trade that is now going to other towns. Southern Pines wants and appreciates this trade and will offer trade values that will attract this trade from the rural sections.

An erroneous impression prevails in the rural districts that Southern Pines is a high price town. The Southern Pines stores naturally carry a large line of quality goods at the price of the market. This community demands high grade goods, but all of the stores carry a moderate priced line of goods that suits the demands of rural trade. During the special "Trade Days" there will be many opportunities to secure real quality goods at bargain prices.

These "Trade Days" should attract a large patronage from the rural sections and also from adjoining towns. It is an experiment worth trying out as Southern Pines needs something to start up business during the dull summer months.

WILL TURN TO DEMOCRACY

Democracy should and could win a complete victory in this county at the fall election. If the party will nominate some of its best men for the various offices, men of honor, of integrity, of business ability, then plan to do people in electing them, the voters, republicans as well as democrats, are not pleased with the way things have been handled for these past two years. They realize that it would be hard to make matters worse, and many lifelong republicans are in their desperation for better conditions, ready to turn over and take a shot at democratic administration, and why not? Most other progressive counties in the state are democratic and they seem to do well and in few of them are taxes higher than in Davie.

JOSIAH WILLIAM BAILEY

(From The News and Observer)

By an overwhelming majority Josiah William Bailey yesterday was given the nomination of the Democratic party for United States Senator. His nomination, Mr. Bailey was registered in the extreme west and the center, showing that the Democracy of big majorities wished him to wear the Senatorial toga so long worn by Senator Simmons.

Mr. Bailey first entered politics in North Carolina as a speaker in 1898 and in every campaign since that time has by pen and voice advocated the tenets of his party. As presidential elector and as citizen he has spoken in every county in the State. He has taken part in many battles within the party, for a time, particularly in 1912, leading the fight for Senator James H. Beck, of New York. In 1924, Mr. Bailey was on the ticket for the nomination of Governor as well as for the nomination of United States Senator. His nomination for United States Senator is a most remarkable achievement. He has been a member of the Federal Council of Churches, which has become a recognized adjunct to the American Federation of Labor and which aids them in their work by misrepresenting conditions, was of course present and was mentioned as follows:

"James Myers, industrial secretary of the church and social service of the Federal Council of the United States of America, said labor troubles in the South were mostly because of conditions in the mills themselves rather than agitators. He asserted that religion called not only for good working conditions but also for the ideal of democracy in industrial relations."

The radical and Communist professors at the University of North Carolina saw in the gathering at Boston an opportunity to strike another blow at the textile industry of their State and sent representative whose expenses were no doubt paid by the taxpayers of North Carolina and their representative is mentioned in the newspaper dispatches as follows:

"A challenge to social workers to see that the textile industry in the South should serve as a stepping stone to a better economic and social life, as it has in New England, was made by Edward H. Carr, instructor for research in special science of the University of North Carolina."

"Miss Herring said, 'the owners and the public need education in the rights of workers.' They were all there, the labor union leaders, representatives of certain New England cotton manufacturers, the parasitic cotton organization in which Bishop Cannon stands, and the radical department of the University of North Carolina."

"They called it a 'National Conference on Social Work' but a better name would have been a 'Conference Upon Best Methods of Crimping Southern Cotton Mills.'"

If they had been honest enough to have made out a list of their objectives they would have read about as follows:

(1) Aid in unionizing Southern mill operatives so that they will support Thos. F. McMahon and a group of organizers for the United States Senate. Before his announcement he was assured of powerful support, not only from his own friends, but from thousands who resolved in 1928 to encompass the defeat of Senator Simmons because he did not support the Presidential candidate in that year. Mr. Bailey made no speaking campaign, writing no platform. In his only speech on Thursday night, in Raleigh, Mr. Bailey said:

"Some question has been raised during the campaign as to why I did not propose a platform. I do propose a platform. I propose to stand on the platform of the Democratic party as written by the Democratic State Convention representing the Democracy of the State. That will be my guide."

Earlier in the campaign, asked by the editor of the Edenton News his position on prohibition, Mr. Bailey replied by quoting the Democratic platform which was as strong a prohibition plank as could be written, and the national platform pledges the party to honest enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. During the campaign, due to the fact that Mr. Bailey had the support of conspicuous wets, some of the opponents raised the question of his attitude toward prohibition. Replying to the charge that he was not a good prohibitionist, Mr. Bailey said on Thursday night: "I have also been amazed that after an entire lifetime devoted to temperance and after a constant warfare in which I gave the best of my life to the people against the saloons throughout this State, the question has been raised as to my fidelity to the cause of prohibition. I have canvassed this State against the saloons when the State was filled with them. I canvassed until all save 102 were closed. I voted for the State prohibition in 1908; and it fell to me to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment in my capacity as Collector of Internal Revenue in 1918. I heard over the radio night before last a speech in which a gentleman on the other side undertook to hold me up before the people of North Carolina as a symbol of the wet cause. I must say that this is the first time I have ever heard of the radio night before the driest man in the State as its symbol. I do not drink. I have been against liquor and the liquor traffic all of my life, and I shall live and die in opposition to the sale of the liquor traffic. Whatever I may do to bring about a diminution of this great evil will be done in all earnestness."

Mr. Bailey is a son of the late Rev. Dr. C. T. Bailey, long editor of the Baptist church of North Carolina, which position he held in Warrington, N. C., fifty-seven years ago, when Dr. Bailey was Baptist pastor in that town. About the time of his graduation at Wake Forest College, Dr. Bailey became invalid and the son succeeded him as editor of the paper, which he edited with vigor and obtained large influence in his church. Later he decided to become a lawyer and has for a long time practiced law in Raleigh.

THEY WERE ALL THERE

Gastonia Gazette.

The following is from The Southern Textile Bulletin, of Charlotte, David Clark, editor: "They were all at a meeting in Boston, Mass., on Tuesday of this week."

Thos. F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers, was there and the newspaper dispatch mentions him as follows: "As president of the Executive Committee of New York, international president of the United States Workers of America, proposed education to break down the wall separating management and worker."

"There are some New England cotton manufacturers who are running their own mills on 12 hour shifts and who are always interested in anything which will restrict the operations of Southern mills. It is only natural that they should attend this meeting."

The Federal Council of Churches, which has become a recognized adjunct to the American Federation of Labor and which aids them in their work by misrepresenting conditions, was of course present and was mentioned as follows:

SONG OF MARION'S MEN

(By William Cullen Bryant) Our hand is few, but true and tried. Our leader frank and bold; The British soldier trembles when Marion's name is told.

Well known the fair and friendly moon The glitter of their rifles, The scampering of their steeds...

Grave men there are by broad Santee, Grave men with hoary hairs; Their hearts are all with Marion, For Marion are their prayers.

Stand! the ground's your own, my bravest! Will ye give it up to slaves? Will ye look for greener graves? Hope ye mercy still.

Cook Vegetables Quickly And With Little Water

COOLEEMEE NEWS

The Revival meeting at the Methodist Church was well attended and great good was accomplished. Scores of young people as well as many older ones renewed their covenant with God.

When a vegetable is to be boiled, it should be cooked in a little water as possible. 'Cooking' has a tendency to destroy some of the necessary vitamins and if the vegetables are cooked in water some of the valuable mineral salts are left in the liquid.

According to Miss Thomas, ten to fifteen minutes is long enough to cook most leafy vegetables and the cooking benefits are never exceeded after thirty minutes.

The size of the vegetable also has much to do with its food value, says Miss Thomas. To get the most benefit, the vegetable should be cut in small pieces.

Several times in the past few weeks warriors from adjoining localities have made raids on the island of the women to take away as brides.

MANY RELATIVES AND FRIENDS ATTEND WELLMAN REUNION

Sunday, June 23 marked an event in the Wellman family when a re-union was held at C. W. Wellman's just off the Mocksville-Winston-Salem highway.

Large tables were placed in the yard and covered with food with good things to eat. Chicken, ham, and everything that would make your mouth water.

The morning was spent in the usual social way of getting to know each other better and to talk with some of the folks that had been away for some time.

As noon drew near the large tables laden with the good food prepared by the good women of the families were gathered around. Grace was said by Mr. W. F. Wellman, of Salisbury, the oldest of one of the leading families.

Following this was a great time of eating. The many good things were fast made to disappear. But after all had eaten until they could eat no more much was left.

It is useless to say that a good time was enjoyed by all. It was more than a good time by most of them. Each one of the something over one hundred seemed to enjoy the event to the fullest.

Those present from Mocksville included Mr. and Mrs. Albert Beck and daughter, Margaret, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sain, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Whitaker, R. L. Jr., Blanch and Knox Whitaker, Mrs. James Whitaker with her children, Miss James, William and Mildred, Mrs. Nottie Martin, Mrs. R. L. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. L. Williams.
