

WOMAN CAN'T CLAIM TO BE A TRAVELER

Danville, Va., June 23.—Mrs. Robert Gibson, 69, has lived with in 25 miles of Danville all her life, yet she has never seen the city. She was found at Callands where she has spent her life. A few years ago she went to the county seat and saw a railway train for the first time. She turned to her home and has since expressed a determination not to see the city. She rides, however, in an automobile to church every Sunday.

RIDING-OUT THE STORM

Heard's Dairyman. The dairy farmer, in common with all other business men, finds himself embroiled in a stormy sea. The clouds are dark and ominous, yet past experience with other economic storms tells him the sun of better times is only hidden by the clouds and will break through eventually. He needs only to go back ten years to find depressed markets and the wave of pessimism that seemed ready to engulf the dairy business. Yet in a few years this same dairy business enjoyed the most profitable period of its entire existence.

What is needed today, as it was needed in 1921 and 1922, is faith in his business, confidence in its future, and the courage to win through. With this in mind, we offer the following time-tested reasons for faith and confidence, together with suggestions as to some of the measures of courage will follow in "riding-out" the present economic storm:

1. Obtain more milk from fewer cows.

2. Obtain higher crop yields per acre and per man.

3. Grow feed crops best suited for feeding and adapted to your climate and soil.

4. It is not uncommon to find 20 poor cows making the operator no money, while ten good cows will place less product on the market and yield a profit.

5. The proper use of power must be solved. It must be utilized economically and advantageously. Labor is a commodity that is likely to remain relatively high in price.

6. Keep what labor you have fully employed. No infrequently given overtime in the dairy business may be unprofitable in itself when charged with its proportionate expense, but it may make the entire farm operation profitable because it uses otherwise idle labor and equipment.

7. Every morning the dairyman finds over 4,500 new consumers at his table, asking to be fed. This is the rate of population increase in the United States—over a million and a half every year.

8. This is no time for discouragement. For the next ten years it is reasonable to expect that while hired labor may be relatively higher than milk and eggs feed and other costs will be relatively cheaper.

9. In a period of falling prices the price of milk and eggs and better than grain. This was true after the Civil War and has been the past ten years.

10. This is no time for self-pity. The need for individual effort is paramount. The needs of the dairyman who would face conditions as they now exist in herd testing, more severe culling of inferior producers, keener selection of sires that will transmit as well as inherit production, and better organization of the farm and the crops to meet the needs of the herd on that farm.

"The opportunity," says Professor Hibbard, "better than any other method applies to all of us at all times and will apply, no matter how much improvement is made through legislation, cooperation, or the general betterment of selfish conditions. The individual farmer can do more for himself by applying his brains to the economy of his own farm than anyone else can do for him."

Look about you in your own community, and you will find that usually the most successful farmers are examples of the kind of teaching outlined above.

Three tons an acre of oats, clover and Austrian winter peas were harvested last week by one Durham County farmer.

H. P. Green of Kaleigh, route 3, is growing no cotton this year for the first time in his 40 years of farming. He has 14 cows, 600 hens, about 1200 chickens, and plenty of feedstuffs.

Things Are Picking Up—

"SIMPLE" LARYNGITIS

By this term, I mean the sort of "hoarseness" that has no chronic, tubercular, or other complicated nature. Its cause is, sudden exposure to extremes of temperature, or over-use of the vocal organs in an improper manner. Croupy get it frequently—and amateur vocalists; children with adenoids, large tonsils—and those who breathe through the mouth, from nasal or other respiratory infection.

The onset of simple laryngitis is usually sudden; its duration depends upon the treatment employed. When, in the case of singers, hoarseness and husky voice appears, REST is the treatment; perfect silence. It can be enforced, may be maintained for 24 or 48 hours and will produce wonderful results. Simple gargling with warm water containing a mild antiseptic such as boracic acid, is good home treatment.

"Croup," now seldom heard of, is laryngitis in the simple form. It is a low type diphtheria—very common in children—usually fatal before the discovery of the improved treatment. It is too busy to eat necessary meals until the day's business is done.

"If I were to inject the expressed juice of the average six o'clock dinner into a patient's veins, I feel sure that I would kill him instantly." Well, the six o'clock dinner gets those juices into his veins slowly, hence the danger about six o'clock dinner. These are city dwellers, who are too busy to eat necessary meals until the day's business is done.

"The simple laryngitis of childhood may or may not disable the youngster. The hoarseness precedes the loud, barking cough. The attack may be cured in two or three days, by attention to the bowels and hygiene of the child. The remedy is a good, strong, emollient, such as a little syrup of marshmallows, to soothe the inflamed throat, and a little syrup of cod liver oil, to secure relaxation of the skin."

"I began taking Cardui when in a weakened, run-down condition," writes Mrs. F. S. Peritt, of Wesson, Miss. "I took one bottle, and I seemed to improve. I took a second bottle, and I felt much better. After I had taken the six bottles, I seemed entirely well."

"Before I took Cardui, I was nervous, restless, blue and out of heart. I felt depressed all the time. After I took Cardui, all this disappeared."

"I gave my daughter Cardui and it helped to relieve irregularity."

This medicine has been used by women for over 40 years.

and to favor sweating; of course the little patient is kept in an even temperature until he is well, and his play outdoors should be undertaken gradually, until he is well used to the pure out-door air. Lobelia is very useful in "spasmodic croup," but it should be given under the supervision of your doctor.

THE EVIDENCE

(By John Joseph Gaines, M. D.)

My readers may possibly wonder why I am so frequently denouncing the six o'clock dinner; this, when so many of our foremost citizens indulge the feast as a sort of triumph of civilization.

1. From a study of aged men and women, I find the longest-lived to be those who are hearty breakfasters, and who do not load the digestive tract at the evening meal.

2. From a study of vital statistics, I find that six o'clock dinner devotees succumb to "heart disease" or cerebral hemorrhage, never later than the middle sixties. These are city dwellers, who are too busy to eat necessary meals until the day's business is done.

3. If I were to inject the expressed juice of the average six o'clock dinner into a patient's veins, I feel sure that I would kill him instantly." Well, the six o'clock dinner gets those juices into his veins slowly, hence the danger about six o'clock dinner. These are city dwellers, who are too busy to eat necessary meals until the day's business is done.

4. The tired body—the tired, half-exhausted nervous system—cannot supply the necessary gastric and pancreatic fluids to digest a heavy six o'clock dinner. The juices of the "gorged" are taken into the system by absorption, and in a shape that cannot be utilized in the repair of bodily tissue—not all, nor half of it can be said to be fit.

5. Hence, it is carried with the blood-current, an active poison, unfit for the human systemic repair. Hence the eater does not have a feeble appetite at noon, but is ready for the disappointing over-feed at the following six o'clock. The very arteries of the heart become poisoned slowly. The vessels of the brain give way in their walls, show bristly and apoplectic symptoms develop slowly, insidiously. They finally kill.

6. Any thinking physician, if he will observe carefully, cannot fail to agree with me. Lastly, if I want to have a groggy, heavy, indolent feeling tomorrow, I will stuff my carcass with a six o'clock dinner tonight, at the church dinner, that I am billed to attend.

PAYING HOMAGE TO BOSS

Among the images worshipped by ancient peoples were those fashioned and made in the likeness of the cow.

It is difficult for us to find among all of the animals, birds and plants any object that has been of more value to man, his pleasure, his health and his life, than the unostentatious milk cow.

It treated well, given good feed, shelter, plenty of pure fresh water, and reasonable care, she offers to the nation great streams of rich, delicious, and life-producing golden milk. For this service to humanity she has never been known to boast nor complain. If well bred and kindly treated she is as meek as a lamb and as gentle as a cat. She increases the storehouse of the national wealth not only through her contributions of milk but at the end of her sojourn on earth, her flesh is served upon our tables as delicate steaks and appetizing roasts. Finally her pelt is spirited away to some distant market, where it is made into shoes, traveling cases, harness, and caddy bags.

Since she is so beneficent, gentle, and kind, it is strange that so many farms throughout this fair land of ours have for their main source of income, not the milk of their cows, but the cotton growing sections of the South, not only do not possess a cow, but seldom have an opportunity of seeking the glow of her shining coat or the confidence. It brings more good times. This year we increased our newspaper advertising for the last year.

There was a business depression in 1914 lasting eight months. There was a business depression in 1921 lasting fourteen months. The important thing about these past panics, however, is that every one of them has been followed by flush times, and the longer the depression lasted, the longer and more active the "boom."

The present depression has now lasted nearly twenty months. We can hardly say that the "boom" will surely follow it has begun—but it is clearly on its way. And when it comes—oh, boy!

BETTER BUSINESS CONDITIONS FIGURES SHOW

Detroit, Mich., June 22.—Evidence of a definitely improving business conditions was presented here today by H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, upon his return to the central office after six months of almost continuous traveling over all parts of the country.

Citing figures of his own company in support of his belief, Mr. Klingler said that the final tabulation of June sales figures would show the current month ahead of last June, and that he expected every remaining month this year to show a gain over the corresponding month of 1930.

From the standpoint of Chevrolet business," Mr. Klingler said, "the brightest spot in the country right now is the area along the North Atlantic seaboard. We are doing more business there than we ever did. This fact is significant because that area first felt the effects of the stock market slump, and it appears to be, appropriately, the first to recover."

"Similarly, the Pacific Coast, although never so hard hit as the rest of the country, is showing favorably on our sales chart. In the south, mills which had been idle for months are starting operations on a curtailment basis, and are moving."

"It is one of the first things a Boy Scout has to learn," he said with a smile, "but I guess I will just call it my good turn for today. You know we pledge ourselves to do at least one good turn daily and I was just telling Dad that I was behind time for today."

And that's all the boy had to say about saving a life. He probably did not even realize that he had taught a score of adults the real meaning of being prepared.

AFTER THE DEPRESSION

We are indebted to Rockwell Smith, a real estate man of Van Nuys, California, for the collection of certain facts about financial conditions in the past, which should be valuable in predicting the future. Mr. Smith went through a file of newspaper back to the 1850's and finds these facts:

There was a business depression in 1817 lasting twelve months. There was a business depression in 1859 lasting eight months. There was a business depression in 1873 lasting thirty months.

There was a business depression in 1884 lasting twenty-two months. There was a business depression in 1897 lasting ten months. There was a business depression in 1903 lasting twenty-five months.

There was a business depression in 1908 lasting twenty-five months. There was a business depression in 1909 lasting nearly twelve months.

There was a business depression in 1914 lasting eight months. There was a business depression in 1921 lasting fourteen months.

The important thing about these past panics, however, is that every one of them has been followed by flush times, and the longer the depression lasted, the longer and more active the "boom."

The present depression has now lasted nearly twenty months. We can hardly say that the "boom" will surely follow it has begun—but it is clearly on its way. And when it comes—oh, boy!

picked his way through the crowd, wrapped his handkerchief around the patient's arm, slipped a jack-knife beneath it and then with a screw driver, which he picked up from the ground, gave the tourniquet a few expert twists. It did the trick.

"Loosen this for a few seconds every ten minutes," he said, "and then tighten it up again. You will have trouble if you don't."

The man was rushed to the hospital, and the boy started back along the line of automobiles. Someone who had watched the boy stopped him and asked him where he had learned to stop arterial bleeding.

"It's one of the first things a Boy Scout has to learn," he said with a smile, "but I guess I will just call it my good turn for today. You know we pledge ourselves to do at least one good turn daily and I was just telling Dad that I was behind time for today."

BAPTIST GROUP MEETING LARGELY ATTENDED

A large representation of women from the Baptist churches of Cooleemee, Eaton's, Farmington and Mocksville, attended the group meeting of the officers of the W. M. U. of David County, at the Baptist church here on Thursday afternoon, June 25th.

Mrs. H. E. Barnes, of Cooleemee, group leader of David County, presided, and had the devotional lesson in charge. She introduced the group of officers, who were: Mrs. J. B. Eiler, of Statesville, outlined the mission of the group, and Mrs. J. F. Hawkins spoke of the young people's work; and Mrs. C. R. Horn, of the social service plans. Mrs. Brown, of Statesville, gave an interesting review of a letter book, by Dr. R. T. Bryant, a missionary to China. The music was in charge of Mrs. A. D. Walters, of Cooleemee. This meeting was characterized by much inspiration and enthusiasm, and many helpful ideas were gained.

MRS. ALLISON HONORED BY CLASS

A delightfully informal tea was given in honor of Mrs. Jack Allison, on Monday afternoon by the members of her Sunday School class, at the home of Mrs. E. W. Crow. During Mrs. Allison's absence in Richmond, Va., she has been acting as a substitute teacher. When the host of honor arrived she was greeted with the class yell after which the girls wrote her a letter of welcome, using the letters of her name to form the words. The unique and artistic decorations for the dining-room were sprays of blackberries in cut glass bowls, and here tempting refreshments were served.

Chief of Police, Mr. Allison, who delighted the gathering with two readings, "He Was There and So Was I," and "When My Sister is Showing Off." Miss Mary Katherine Ward, who is president of the class, and the members have been enjoying playing the "Polynanna Game" for several months. Those present were: Mrs. Allison, the teacher, Misses Mary Nelson Anderson, Louise Chaffin, Ruth Daniel, Ruth Foster, Lucile Leach, Mary McGuire, Jane McGuire, Robert McGuire, Ella Mae Nail, Rebecca Nail, Cordella Pans, Emily Rodwell, Mildred Thompson, Dorey Katherine Walker, Ivey Nell Walters, members of the class, and Mrs. E. SUNDAY SERVICE FOR TELEPHONE SUBSCRIBERS

The annual David County Sunday School Convention will be held at Liberty Methodist church on the fifth Sunday in August with an interesting program.

Dr. Shuford Peeler, State Secretary of the association will deliver the main address. President Layman from the different churches of the County will also address the convention. All pastors of the County are invited to be present and will be asked to "speak an encouraging word." The county officials are anxious to have every school in the county represented in big numbers and urge all schools to make up work orders and estimates calling for some new cable in lieu of open wire. The placing of poles and eliminating some of the old poles, the County also plans to replace the switchboard. These improvements will not only improve the service but add to the appearance of the town.

L. D. Donamore, General Manager of the Company was here last week meeting with the town Board relative to franchise matters.

Mrs. Beddingfield has charge of eight other exchanges owned by the Company. He says his Company is going to do everything possible to provide a more dependable and satisfactory grade of service for Mocksville subscribers.

PORT NECESSITY TO BE REBUILT AS A FEATURE OF THE GEORGE WASHINGTON BICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

Washington, July 2.—Reconstruction of Fort Necessity, near Uniontown, Pa., the scene of General Washington's only capitulation, will be one of the features of the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration by the State of Pennsylvania in 1932, according to the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

A total of $50,000 has been appropriated for the rebuilding of the Fort and making it a national memorial. The British Government has expressed great interest in the project, and is expected to send an official delegation to the exercises dedicating the memorial. Officers of the famous Coldstream Guards, of which Braddock was once commander, attended the dedication of Braddock's monument last July.

It was the capture of Fort Necessity by the French on July 3, 1754, which brought on the Seven Years' War, our French and Indian War, fought here and in Europe, and which finally resulted in English domination of the new continent.

Washington was only twenty-two years old when he commanded this expedition against the French. On March 15, 1754, he had been commissioned a lieutenant colonel of the Virginia regiment whose Colonel, Joshua Fry, was ordered to march to the fort of the Ohio Company situated where the Monongahela and Allegheny unite to form the Ohio River.

Washington began his advance through the wilderness, and, at Great Meadows, fortified a position which he named Fort Necessity. Presently, he learned that the French were advancing against him. He did not wait for the attack. Instead, he "set out in a heavy rain, and, in a night as dark as pitch," attacked a party of French and Indians, killed ten, including the French Commandant, Jonesville, and captured twenty-one prisoners.

He continued his advance until he learned that a large force was moving against him. He returned to Great Meadows and resumed work at Fort Necessity. Meanwhile Colonel Fry died at Will's Creek; and thus Washington came to command the Virginia regiment. The enemy appeared before the Fort on July 3. After fighting all day, the French called for a parley. They proposed that the Virginians should march out with their arms, on condition that they would not return to that Ohio for one year. As Washington was short of ammunition, he agreed to these terms, and returned to Virginia with his troops. For his services, he received the thanks of the House of Burgesses. Despite the defeat, the youthful Washington learned a principle at Fort Necessity, which was of decisive importance in the Revolution—he never again allowed himself to be surrounded and besieged.

While it is not generally remembered, Washington, on December 6, 1770, acquired a tract of land of about 240 acres in Great Neck on the site of Fort Necessity. This tract was the land in Pennsylvania retained by Washington until his death, and is listed in the schedule attached to his will, at $6 per acre, or at a value of $1,404.00.

YOUR FRIEND

(By N. L. Rosier)

While plodding onward thru this life, You'll find out in the end, That should old pals forsake you, Old Dollar Bill's your friend. If you've got "Dough" they're with you, When broke they'll pass you by, But when you've got Old Dollar Bill, You've got a friend close by.

The waves of life may toss you 'bout, On a rough and stormy sea, Your boat may dash upon the rocks, Of dire Adversity. But you should worry if your boat, Drifts to the river's end, If you've just got Old Dollar Bill. Who claims you as his friend.

When life runs high, and you're on top, Your pals are there in reach. And when you're handing out the coin, They stick just like a leech. But let the wine stop flowing, Their fellowship will end, And you will find out right away, Old Dollar Bill's your friend.

So heed these words of caution well, As you travel on your way, The ones you thought were with you, Will leave you in a day. They promise you they'll stick around, But always in the end, You'll find that plain old Dollar Bill Has been your friend.

4-LEAF CLOVERS SETS NEWS-PAPER BACK JUST $150

Goldboro, June 25.—It cost the Goldboro News Argus more than $150 today to prove to hundreds of persons that four-leaf clovers are lucky and to satisfy itself that they are also numerous.

High acre yields of Irish potatoes have somewhat offset low prices received for the crop in Beaufort County this year. About 75 percent of the crop has been dug and sold.

The paper, in connection with a "Clover Day" advertising campaign, offered 25 cents for every bona-fide four-leaf clover brought to its office.

At 1 p. m. 600 perfect leaves had arrived.

Consider your Adam's Apple!!* Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

The great Lord Tennyson in a beautiful poem refers to a woman's Adam's Apple as "The white apple of her throat." Consider your Adam's Apple. Touch it—your Adam's Apple—That is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. Protect the delicate tissues within your throat. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants! Reach for a LUCKY instead. Here in America LUCKY STRIKE is the cigarette which brings you the added benefit of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process, which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays. It is this exclusive process that expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

WHAT FINAL EFFECT?

Just what will be the effect of the final consummation of the Hoover plan for a year's moratorium for Germany? reparations payments, remains to be seen, but somehow we feel that it will be the beginning of the end of the financial depression which has prevailed for the past three years. The Charlotte Observer in an editorial last week points to some early indications of business stimulus in the following language:

"It has been a long time since the public was privileged to read a market report like this, which is taken from the New York Journal of Commerce, received yesterday. 'Lithium' electrified by the likelihood of a world-wide adoption of Mr. Hoover's plan for a year's moratorium for Germany's reparations payments, the world's cotton markets shot upward and high to the sound of great artillery that seemed to cannonade the globe. Very near home and foreign trade buying was a big factor here. New York rose 69 to 73 points. Liverpool some 80 American points. Alexandria 66 to 172 points. Egyptian in Liverpool 88 to 110. American Bunker 5 to 11 rupees, and the Continental markets also rose sharply, profoundly impressed by the news that what looked like a new day was breaking for the big trading nations of the earth."

The question suggests itself that if the market acts this way over a more prospect, what should be expected of it with actual consummation of the Hoover plan? The Observer writer feels an earnest desire to live long enough to see just what would happen."

In another able editorial of the same issue, the Observer goes into the history of business restoration during the administration of Grover Cleveland, and makes some interesting comparison. Says the Observer:

"President Hoover's proposition for a loosening of the debt screws is a means for speedy restoration of international confidence and in solution of an economic problem that had grown acute, has had approval of a kind that may be classed as happily surprising. It is significant that among his most outspoken supporters are leading Democrats, such as Newton Baker, Pat Harrison and Owen D. Young. President Hoover made a direct cut to popular endorsement when he solicited the views of Senators and Representatives, the responses being of a kind to indicate that through Congress, the United States will be squarely committed to the presidential plan. This, in turn, should serve to assure the foreign Nations of American good faith, in case they need such assurance, and it makes the endorsement one of such a degree of unanimity that France's hesitation should be speedily overcome. It is not to be supposed that France, for whose banking there is some excuse, would take a final stand in opposition to the sentiment of all the other Nations involved. The President is practically assured of congressional approval, but of course there is a long way to go. The established purposes of the United States to come to the rescue under the plan boldly proclaimed by President Hoover, gives great hope to final accomplishment. There is no 'deadlock' in prospect and France is bound to be swept along by force of the current of approval."

The New York Times makes the point that to overbore the spirit of returning confidence which the episode has created in financial circles, "would be to miss one highly important aspect of the situation." The Times dips judiciously into events that covered the equal suddenness at the end of January, 1925. Then, as now, it reminds, we had passed into the acute stage of after-banquet depression. The strain which the present reaction of trade and fall in prices has imposed on German finances had then converted upon the United States. It had come to be the general belief that the financial advantage of the United States Government could no longer be maintained. Gold was exported in wholesale quantities; it was a "flight from the dollar."

Finally, the New York Sub-Treasury notified Washington that it could continue redemption of United States currency in gold only one day more.

President Cleveland's action, insuring support by a powerful international banking syndicate, came like last Saturday's White House proposal in an overnight announcement. The plan to arrest gold exports was concededly tentative; it was admitted that the relief did not touch the root of the trouble, that it was at best temporary stopgap. But it achieved three purposes. It rehabilitated the Government's shaken credit. It gave a breathing space in which to apply more permanent corrective measures, and such measures were successfully applied, although at the moment they were deemed impossible. What was critical, not least important, its very silent effect was to put an end immediately to an atmosphere of hopeless panic.

In the six months during which the protective measures of 1895 continued to operate, continues The Times, the financial position was radically altered. The stock market received the news as it received last Saturday's. But what was more unexpected, during 1895, was the fact that in due course the black cloud of discouragement that had enveloped trade and industry was dispelled. It soon appeared that the seemingly hopeless condition of production and distributing markets had been largely a matter of absolute loss of confidence and that confidence had at least for the moment been restored. It remains to be seen whether anything of this sort can be expected now; circumstances are not today in all respects the same. Yet the remarkable fact about the business recovery of 1895 was that it did not come because of a change in direction in the movement of staple prices; these, which had fallen 10 per cent on the average in 1894, barely held their own in 1895 and declined in 1896. Nevertheless, it has been the verdict of history that the "corner was turned" with the announcement from the White House.

BACK TO WILSON POLICIES

The movement made a few days ago by President Hoover to lend this government's aid to Germany is in our opinion the first real act of statesmanship on a world wide scale since Woodrow Wilson went out of the White House. Moreover, it is an admission of the soundness of the Wilson policies. It was an admission of the unsoundness of the "Splendid Isolation" policy which has been advocated and practiced by the republican party ever since Wilson's return from the peace-making trip to Europe. It proves that President Hoover has learned that some of the democratic speakers were right when they answered the republican slogan, "Let Europe Stew in Her Own Juice," that if this nation left Europe to "stew in her own juice," we should find in the end that we were in the pan-stewing with her.

The soundness of the recent Hoover move was reflected almost over night. Business in America and Europe felt the stimulating effect and a stagnant business world saw a star through the rift in the financial clouds. The wonder with most of us is why the President did not see the light sooner. Well, doubtless he did, but waited until he saw that the adoption of the Wilson policies was the only way to again bring prosperity to business in the United States.

We got that "splendid isolation," which so many craved during the 1920 campaign, but found that, while there is a way which seems right to a man, the end therefore is not always what we thought it would be.

BUILDING AND LOAN TALK

Now is a fine time to build. Labor is cheap. Building materials are as low as we may expect them to go. The trouble with many Mocksville people is that they have more money in easy reach. They will build if they only had the money they could save by building now. That means that more interest should be taken in building and loan. More prospective home owners should take out building and loan shares. In fact that is the only way one can build houses and have income are limited. Our building and loan organization should get busy now in interesting local persons contemplating the early building of homes. And our folks should encourage more activity on the part of the local organization.

The starting up of several new homes here, with the beginning of the construction of a business building or two would help to give employment to many out of work and would be a great help in bringing about an early return to local prosperity.

LOW INTEREST RATES

Last week Mecklenburg County notes sold at par, bearing only 2.75 per cent interest. Stanley County notes sold at a premium of $50, bearing interest at 6 1/2 per cent. The Mocksville notes were purchased by a Charlotte bank and the Stanley County notes were purchased by an Alabamian bank. The Mocksville County notes mature on July 26th. The city of Burlington sold two issues of ten thousand each and twenty thousand each to the Virginia bank at par, while Thomasville sold notes totaling twenty eight thousand and five hundred at par, bearing interest at 5 per cent.

MASTER FARMER 'LIVES AT HOME'

Raleigh, June 30.—Julius Davis, Master Farmer of Polk county and a real "Live-at-Home" farmer and believer in the necessity of canning and preserving fruits and vegetables this summer and fall, is writing a new kind of an agricultural record on his farm on route No. 3, Mill Spring, North Carolina. He has perfected a new variety of corn, which has won several awards and prizes for him. He has named the variety "Davis" corn and he is going to place his own corn on display at the forthcoming World's Fair in Chicago. But perfecting corn varieties, growing improved strains and other such unusual undertakings are not even a small part of Mr. Davis' work. He is a real dirt farmer, lives on a fine farm with his wife and family and makes a really comfortable and financially successful living each year.

Dr. Davis does not waste anything, time, money or products of the farm. He farms in a modern way and uses improved machinery. He is continually experimenting with a few varieties of seed, new methods of culture, new kinds of farm crops and so forth. And he has found that even the farmer must progress, in more ways than one. In Mrs. Davis he has a helper, who has been invaluable. She is the home-maker, the one who sees to the canning and preserving and other means of utilization of garden and orchard products.

The Davis home is known as the "New Variety Farm." The name, in itself, indicates the aims and aspirations of the Davis family. The house is a neat home, nestled in a grove of beautiful shade trees, back from a main road. The surrounding land is fertile and well cultivated. The Davis family has prospered, contentment and happiness, and the visitor finds that such is the case. Five years ago, Mr. Davis was picked as Master Farmer of Polk county, and he has retained that title ever since. Among the reasons for this fine record is his love of gardening. He and his wife both get a "thrill" out of keeping garden right up to perfection at all times and also in producing unusual crops, they experiment in new planting and cultivating his garden, he has tried various methods and has worked out a plan, which increases yields and matures crops much more rapidly. He has carefully selected his garden seed and never buys any, as he finds he has developed strains which produce better on his farm than commercial seed. Due to such increasing yields, he has also worked out methods of preventing tomato blight. He has actually produced a tomato weighing six pounds. Selective planting and proper fertilization and preventing of rot and insect damage have spoiled success for this farmer.

He has specialized in the growing of strawberries and has produced berries as large as a hen's egg with excellent flavor. He grows several varieties of berries, so that his production period is quite extended. That is scientific farming, so he believes. Lettuce is another crop, in which he has a special interest and about which he has learned a great deal. He raises his lettuce in a special bed, which he has covered with straw, peaches, cherries, grapes and strawberries. His corn is, so far, however, his major pride. During the past two years he has won prizes for his corn wherever he has placed his corn in competition. During two successive years he has been awarded silver cups for being the outstanding corn grower of his county.

Mrs. Davis is the real canning expert of the pair. She canning hundreds of cans of fruits and vegetables each year, using a pressure cooker or canner. The Davis family has led the way in Polk county, a section not so well known as an agricultural leader among North Carolina counties.

SEES KOREAN LESPEDEZA AS AID TO DAIRYING

Raleigh.—The growing of Korean lespeveda should be an aid to dairying in piedmont and western North Carolina since it grows successfully on most of the soils of that area.

F. R. Farnham, dairy extension specialist of State College, recently made an inspection of the Korean lespeveda fields in Carabarrus County for the purpose of studying the crop as an aid to dairying. A number of visits was made to different farms in all sections of the county and the Korean variety was found on about 21 different types of soil.

"I have been under a mistaken impression about the acreage and possibilities of Korean lespeveda in Carabarrus County," he said. "It appears that the crop is being grown successfully by a large number of men on different soil types and not solely by a few selected demonstrators. This crop should have great possibilities on the small grain fields of western Carolina. In the past, these land owners have allowed their small grain fields to grow up in weeds after the grain was harvested. By planting Korean lespeveda on the small grain in late winter, or early spring, a crop of legume may be harvested from the same land in the fall."

Roy D. Goodman, county agent of Cabarrus County, is enthusiastic about Korean lespeveda and has been the cause of his county becoming interested in the crop. In this State, Cabarrus farmers, however, have not yet developed the industry to the point where they have any great surplus of seed. Mr. Goodman says farmers will increase their acreage as they become better informed about the variety and are able to get the seed at fair prices. A number of farm tours to study the Korean fields in Cabarrus County are planned for July and August.

BAD TIMES COMING

Goldberg News-Argus.

Next winter will be worse than last, measured by the number of families without means to help themselves.

These new families added to the list of those who had to be helped last winter will have able-bodied members and heads who belong to the new order of the I. W. O.—the "I Want Work" and can't get it.

Last year these families lived through without the help of charity on savings of different sorts, maybe on the sale of some of their possessions, perhaps by borrowing on life insurance or other preparations against the "rainy day." But by this winter, these resources will be gone.

This is the problem which we in Eastern North Carolina—like folks all through the United States and much of the rest of the world—are going to have to face and meet this coming winter.

Unless we can now—and the News-Argus believes we can—find ways for these new I Want Workers to do enough through the summer and fall to make provision for at least the greater part of their winter needs.

PLEDGE SUPPORT TO A. C. M. A.

Raleigh, July 1.—Farmers, bankers, cooperatives, merchants, grocers, dealers in bagging, shippers and scores of mill owners from all sections of the South have pledged support to the movement launched by Canon J. Callaway, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association, to bale lint in cotton instead of jute bagging.

The board of directors of the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative Association endorsed the movement at the recent monthly meeting here and thirty-five North Carolina mill owners have already agreed to support the plan.

If all American cotton was wrapped in cotton bagging, experts estimate, over 200,000 bales would be required annually for this purpose alone.

ROWENA RIDES THE RUMBLE

SECOND INSTALLMENT

Rowena rode a mule in the rumble as an interesting part of the show. She was waiting for Bobby to show up to make the start.

Peter himself showed up to good advantage. From ten until eleven o'clock the photographers snapped and the reporters took notes. First Rowena sat at the wheel, then Peter, then the two together, each bravely trying to conceal the worm of fear that gnawed at the core of his being.

The reporters were getting restless. Eleven o'clock—eleven thirty. The reporters were getting restless. Mr. Rack had his watch in his hand and Mr. Hoff was talking business off at one side of the room.

"Where will I find Miss Rowena?" she asked and her voice was a rippling low whisper.

"What name, please?" asked the motor tour. "The name is Rowena," answered the motor tour.

New School Law To Bring Changes In School System

(By M. R. Dunnagan in Winston-Salem Journal.)

Raleigh, June 24.—Local politics, local interests, local traditions and local prejudices and rivalries are already beginning to appear to cause trouble with the plan of school consolidation, through which a big saving in public school costs is to be brought about, Lefty Martin, Secretary of the State Board of Equalization, said today.

Many of the most desirous of tax relief on property and willing while the General Assembly was in session to meet any proposals to get the desired relief, are now the most vociferous opponents of consolidation, and especially if their local community is involved, according to Mr. Martin.

The new school law requires abandonment of elementary schools with less than 22 average daily attendance and high schools of less than 62 average daily attendance. It places upon the county boards of education the responsibility of working out the consolidation, to be approved by the State Board of Equalization, but in many instances the county boards are unable to come to any agreement because of local pressure.

The Board of Equalization will have to take the matter into their own hands and make readjustments and consolidations itself, and will have less regard for local interests and traditions, naturally, than if the plans are worked out by the local authorities and agreed upon, in accordance with the law, and submitted to the state board for its approval. If this is not done locally, the board will have to do it, as the law requires, Mr. Martin said.

His office, with maps showing every road, state and county, all streams, mountains or other natural barriers, will compile a list of all schools, their enrollment, attendance, grades, classrooms available, and all other needed information—minus local interests—is working out a suggested consolidation plan, eliminating small and expensive elementary and high school districts, greatly reducing the numbers of teachers, an item that probably will exceed $100,000, and providing better class room conditions and instruction than is now possible in the smaller schools. The board members will go into the counties of their respective districts and take up the outlined plan with the county boards of education, Mr. Martin said.

Example in Yadkin. In Yadkin county, for instance, Mr. Martin points out that disinterested school people have worked out a consolidation plan for the white schools which would divide that county eight schools, five high and elementary and three elementary only, which would reduce the number from 16 to 12 schools, the plan reducing the teachers from 116 to 88, or requiring 28 less teachers, thus saving in the teacher salary item alone approximately $17,640 for the six-month term. This plan would provide high and elementary schools at five centers, Yadkinville, at which an addition building would have to be erected; Boonville, at which an addition would have to be built; Jonesville, at which an addition would have to be required; the Brooks Cross Roads area, at which a new building would have to be erected; and three elementary schools: Courtney, where the plant is sufficient; Full Creek, where a small building would be required, and for the Forbush-Huntville area, where a new building would be required.

At present there are 66 white schools in Yadkin, of them with one teacher; 23 with two teachers; three with three teachers and five which have been partially consolidated, having from eight to 11 teachers. It is found, the consolidation as suggested would eliminate 48 of these schools, provide excellent school facilities at eight centers and give the county a first class system, it is pointed out. The consolidation, to be approved by the State Board of Equalization, but in many instances the county boards are unable to come to any agreement because of local pressure.

Hereford Calf is Grand Champion

Pauline Roberts, 15, of the Brady, Tex., high school, is to attend college on the $1,910 she won at a Fort Worth livestock show with this calf.

A CAREER IS SOMETIMES ACHIEVED IN A MOMENT.

Miss Lillian Arheiger, popular young school teacher of Charlotte, is dead and now they are about to build a memorial for her. The memorial may take the form of a swimming pool for children in Independence Park in the Queen City commemorating her death. The teacher was killed by a car while driving to work.

The memorial, however, is not inspired by the mere fact that Miss Arheiger taught little children and loved them. It is inspired by the fact that this young woman gave all she had and hoped to be to save the life of a child.

The Charlotte teacher was a member of a party of young folk who were having an outing in the mountains near Blowing Rock. A 10-year-old child waded down a precipice sixty feet high. Miss Arheiger rushed down the stream and pulled the child out of danger, but in doing so, lost her balance and crashed to death over the falls.

Here was a deed that took only a moment of time for its execution, yet, this one deed will be more indelibly impressed upon the mind and heart than a lifetime of teaching service. And it is possible that this one great sacrifice may achieve more permanent and lasting good to the childhood of the country than would a long period of ordinary teaching service. This becomes evident from the inspiration such an act of heroism produces, for that hundreds of boys and girls, men and women may be inspired from it to higher levels of man and womanhood, to learn the true values of life and the importance of serving well their fellow kind. This is not written in disparagement of the value of teacher's service, for the school teacher has all other persons of all other careers and professions as her pupils; and if imperial life should seem to be called upon to award tribute to "The Most Worthy," the conscientious teacher might not fall far from her right reward, but the long years of the classroom are without the color and drama of tragedy. Hence a great deed of a moment inspired by the aims and creed of a noble teacher has the power to woo the immortality classroom routine may not know.

NOTICE TO GENERAL PUBLIC

This newspaper charges regular advertising rates for cards of thanks, resolution notices, obituaries, etc., and will not accept any thing less than 35 cents cash with copy unless you have regular monthly accounts with us. We do not mean to be hard on any one, but some of this nature force us to demand the cash with copy. All such received by us in the future without the cash, or stamps will not be published.

STEER STRAIGHT

It has been the boast of the democratic party in North Carolina for more than a quarter of a century that we have the most ideal government, or rather, that we have the most ideal, as well as one of the most economical, in the country. The voters have agreed, and while it is our progressive movements in the way of highway building, and bigger and better schools, all now to us in a way, there may have been some money wasted, yet, without, this people have been reasonable and have paid their taxes uncomplainingly and still trusted the old party of Vance and Aycock to take care of their best interests. Now why should we go wild and foster all sorts of movements designed to deprive the average voter of his right to self government? Why should the great democratic party, that party which had its birth in the strife between centralization and local self government, why should that party now foster such movements as the Brookings Institution which would take from the counties practically all rights to self control and vest practically all governmental power in a few men in Raleigh.

Let all those who believe the people of each county are capable of running their own local affairs rather than delegates their power and authority under the constitution as it now exists, speak up and stand up and vote for these Jeffersonian principles of local self government. Let us see to it that not one step further shall our party go in the direction of centralization. Let us have no ceded up form of government sent us from some business office of New York City as our model. Like our forefathers who would have none of Lock's Grand Model, a ceded form sent from England, let us maintain our own government under which such great progress has been made during the past quarter of a century. Of course, there might be some slight changes made in our constitution to make it conform to modern conditions, but we can make these changes without decision from some New York business office.

DEATH TO THE GRAND MODEL

Mont. Governor R. T. Fountain comes out in a Hendersonville address in opposition to the Brookings Institution, the modern Lock's Grand Model sent ceded from New York telling North Carolinians how to reorganize and run this great state, "like some folks order." The occasion of Mr. Fountain's address was the annual convention of the Superior Court Clerks. He declared the said model a blow at local self government and warned the people of the state that if they expect to maintain the self governing rights for which their fathers fought they must speak up and put a stop to this insidious encroachment upon the rights of local government. He declared that, "the greatest assault is being made today on local self government that has ever been made," adding:

"The matter of local government, is of vital concern and if the people do not rise up against the tendency toward centralization, they will awake to find the liberties their fathers fought for have slipped away from them."

Readers of this paper will recall that we assailed the Brookings report as soon as Governor Gardner had it published. We thought then, and still think, that it is just another thrust at local self government, and we trust and believe that the people of North Carolina will let it be clearly known to all persons seeking office between now and the next political campaign that they do not propose to part with any more of the authority which their forefathers retained in them through the Constitution. "Down with centralization," should be the slogan of every good democrat. Give us more Jeffersonianism and less of the Hamilton brand of government.

AND STILL A NEW RECORD

Two men last week completed a flight around the world in just a little more than eight and a half days. That's a new record. It took the Graf-Zepplin a little over 22 days to make the journey. It takes the fastest steamship about seven days to cross the Atlantic Ocean, and that is just leaving the doorsteps of a round-the-globe trip. The fliers were blessed with unusually good luck. Or, was it just the natural result of knowing how to do it and of having the capable machinery and equipment? Anyhow, it is another indication that we shall soon be making flights across the Atlantic and back in two days—possibly less. The world is moving at a rapid speed. Progress ever points the way for quicker and better service. It will not be long, therefore, until the great ocean liners which formerly conveyed their thousands of passengers across the seas shall go the way of the ocean, and the old "Dobbin-drawn ship" will be automobile, for long trips, will go the way of the stage-coach and the local passenger train. People will not take a week to cross this continent on a pullman train when they can make it in a day on an airplane. Nor will they take a week to cross the Atlantic from New York to Liverpool when they can make it by air in one day.

And we repeat what we have said before, we have just started to making flying a business. The next five or ten years—possibly less, will see flying as common as motoring now is. More improvement will be made in the art of aviation during the next five years than have been made in all time passed.

THAT'S DEMOCRACY

Regulate the water power companies; but not unfairly. Is the substance of the advice of Senator Cameron Morrison. That's good democracy. That's moderation. It is that happy medium between two extremes which is nearly always the right. We have a certain influence in this country which would tax and worry and persecute power companies and other big business, unwilling to give them even a square deal in anything. This influence would oppose all big business just because it may be big business. That's wrong. It is as bad as the other school which would wink at all the devilment which the power companies may do, and favor them, even when they would walk all over the rest of us, favor them when they would dodge legitimate taxes and plunder the average citizen with impunity. The Morrison doctrine is that supposed to be favored by the democratic party of "Equal rights to all and special privilege to none." Let us treat the power companies fairly. Let us demand justice for big business as firmly as we do for the average voter and tax payer. Equality before the law, is the principle on which we should act. If the power companies need regulation, let us regulate them, but let us be fair to them and let us demand fairness to them on the part of others. But in the meantime let us not be afraid to call a halt when they try to walk all over the rest of humanity for the sake of making money.

SOME ADJUSTMENTS YET

Prosperity is not as far off as it has been, but it strikes us that there must be some further adjustments before the country may look for complete normalcy. For instance wheat is selling at 65 cents a bushel, while a lot of bread costs almost as much as during the war when wheat was selling at three or four times its present price. Flour does not seem to have come down in proportion to the price of the raw wheat. And last week the price of cigarettes went up considerably. And why? The manufacturers are getting their labor at less. The price of leaf tobacco is down to near nothing. So why should the price of cigarettes go up now? These two are just samples. The idea we are trying to get across is that the prices between the raw materials from the farm and the manufactured products seem to us to be too great. If cotton is down and labor is down, then why should not cotton goods drop in proportion? If wheat is down and labor down, and if tobacco is down and labor cheaper, then why should not bread and flour and manufactured tobacco come down in proportion?

Yes, there are yet some considerable adjustments to be made before the world may look for satisfactory business conditions and dependable prosperity.

BAHNSON HONORED

(From The Twin-City Sentinel.)
It is a happy event when a person wins a high position in any society, movement or cause with which he may be affiliated and to which he gives complete loyalty and unstinted service. Frederick F. Bahnsen has been vitally and energetically interested in Masonry for all of his life since he was old enough to be inducted into the first degree of the order. Word comes that he has been appointed Grand Captain of the Guard of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar. The appointment was made by Grand Master Perry W. Widener of Los Angeles, at the triennial convention of Knights Templar.

BREAKING UP HAPPY HOMES

(From The Columbia Record.)
Forty Federal prohibition agents have swooped down on Reno, the nation's divorce capital, raiding virtually all its night clubs and liquor houses and arresting half a hundred bartenders. If this keeps up it will get so that you can't even have any fun getting a divorce.

JAKE IS BROADCASTING

JUST WAIT UNTIL "NEXT FALL" AND THEN YOU'LL SEE

Read the following from this week's Davie Record:
"Since the State has taken over all the schools and roads in Davie the tax payers should rise up in a body and extend a vote of thanks to the recent legislature. With all this expensive taking over of the county, the tax-payers can't figure out why the county tax rate should exceed 40 or 50 cents on the $100 valuation. Before rejoicing too much we shall wait until this fall and take a look at our receipt, provided we can raise enough cash to get the receipt."

Now dear readers don't you be misled. The tax receipt that you will get this fall will be one that will be paid by the head of the Republican commissioners and it will not be much cheaper than the one you got last fall, if any. But the tax receipt that you will get next fall will be CHEAPER, and it will be the first levy made by the Democratic board. The budget had already been made by the Republicans—before the Democratic ticket was elected, therefore you will have to pay high taxes this fall, and the Record Editor is only trying to remind you of this custom to do along all lines that the Democrats have anything to do with. Don't forget, NEXT YEAR YOUR TAXES WILL BE CHEAPER and it will be done by the present board of Democratic commissioners. Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel.

HOW MANY DEMOCRATS DID THE REPUBLICANS WORK?

The Davie Record says: "we would appreciate it very much if the foreigner who is running things in this section would give us a list of Republicans who are holding jobs under the present Democratic administration in Davie county."

Now we are not in position to give the Record man this information, but we suggest that he ask Mr. Grayson, or some other county official, if he wants to know the truth.

We'll let our last chev of apple tobacco that there are just as many Republicans employed by the county now as there were Democrats employed by the county publican boards and we are quite sure that there are not near as many members from any ONE FAMILY as the Republicans had on the county pay roll. Oh, "If ignorance were bliss, 'twould be folly to be blundered."

MISPLACED POLKS

(By John Joseph Gaines, M. D.)

People are still referring to sciatic neuritis as "sciatic rheumatism." It just seems impossible to educate people to point out where they can discriminate the man or woman who limps, to say that he or she may not have rheumatism at all. Remedies good for real rheumatism will not benefit cases that limp from other causes.

I have seen many patients who had teeth and tonsils out, in an effort to cure neuritis that came from overstrain or injury. I once had a case of sciatic neuritis—a severe one—where the sciatic nerve became inflamed because of a diseased colon at the sigmoid flexure; he was quite disabled, confined to bed. This man had his tonsils out and several teeth extracted without benefit of course! Such diagnosis in this advanced day and time are positively inexcusable. A neuritis is never a rheumatism.

I have met many patients who had synovitis in the knee-joint, that might have been cured in the early stage by simple rest and the proper application of dry heat. Nine out of ten of them had taken medicine for "rheumatism," which of course failed. The synovial membrane is a soft, cushion-like layer lining the joint, which provides the lubrication for the smooth performance of the hinge. Inflammation of the membrane by violent pressure, overstrain, or by external injury, and you have synovitis; the joint becomes feverish, dry, painful, and with little swelling.

It is not rheumatic, is not necessarily caused by germs, and is not benefited by serums, vaccines, or drugs taken by mouth for rheumatism.

To me, another terrible misnomer, is to call a complaint "muscular rheumatism"—that is, between joints. One may get between joints, myositis, or the vague sciatic and general tired or exhausted nervous system, but not for goodness' sake "muscular rheumatism." I am not infallible, but to me there "is no such animal." The fellow with this complaint needs REST, change of scene, mild warm baths, and possibly change of diet and feeding. Rheumatism medicines do not cure it, and time should not be wasted on them. I wish I had more space to elaborate.

AREY PLANS MEETING OF STATE DAIRYMEN

Raleigh.—In the second great attempt to bring the leading dairymen of North Carolina together to consider problems in the industry and to work for an expansion of dairy farming in the State, John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at State College, is planning a meeting of the State Dairy Association for Winston-Salem, July 23 and 24.

Some notable figures in the dairy world of America have been invited and will attend. The association meeting will have problems of marketing, feeding, breeding, and the production of home grown feed crops discussed by authorities. An evening of fun is promised at the banquet meeting on the evening of July 23, and the industry will be explained visually by a large educational exhibit to be furnished by the Dairy office of the United States Department of Agriculture. This exhibit will have nine booths fronting 140 feet. This exhibit was prepared for the National Dairy Show at St. Louis.

Among those to speak on the market situation will be W. F. Schilling, dairy member of the Federal Farm Board, and H. McInerney, president of the National Dairy Products Corporation; W. J. Fraser, professor of dairy farming at the University of Illinois, and others. Interesting talks on alfalfa, lespedeza pasture, and other feeds will be made by T. B. Hutcheson of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, R. H. Ruffner and C. D. Grinnell of State College, Oscar H. Phillips of Stanley County, D. J. Lybrook of Davie County and other well known men.

The meeting will be presided over by Thurmond Chatham, president of the North Carolina Dairymen's Association, Dean I. O. Schaub of State College will speak at the banquet.

The first annual meeting of the Association was held at Greensboro last year when more than 2,000 persons attended. Mr.

Arey believes that a larger attendance will be on hand at the Winston meeting.

JUNE

(By Harrison Smith Morris)
When the bubble moon is young
Down the sources of the moon
Like a yellow lantern hung
In the tops of blackened trees
There is promise she will glow
Into beauty unforgetful
Into all unthought of gold.
Heigh ho!

When the Spring has dipped her foot,
Like a bath in the air,
And the ripples warm the air,
Till the little flowers dare
There is promise she will glow
Sweeter than the Springs of gold,
Fairer than was ever told.
Heigh ho!

But the moon of middle night
Risen, is the rounded moon
And the Spring of budding light
Eddies into just a June.
Ah, the promise—was it so?
Nay, the gift was never gold;
All the new is over-old.
Heigh ho!

The Wilkes County apple crop is in good condition and indications are that a big yield will be harvested this fall.

MISS CORDELLA PASS WINS HONORS IN CO-OP CONTEST

Still another difficulty was the fact that many of the cotton growers got the wrong idea as to what a cotton cooperative marketing association could and could not do. Numbers of them thought a monopoly control of the market must be achieved before the association could be a success.

But since those first few years the Cotton Cooperative Marketing Association in North Carolina has shown rapid progress.

The association now has a better type of membership. They have gained a true understanding as to what the association can be expected to accomplish. The members have been better informed in the principles of cotton marketing through the field service men and the official organ of the association, The North Carolina Cotton Grower.

The old binding membership contract has been replaced by a contract so liberal that the member feels that he is merely delivering his cotton because he wants to do so and not because he is forced to deliver it. By the terms of the present contract the member is paid for his cotton according to the grade and staple that he produces; and, after having delivered his cotton for only one year, he has the privilege of withdrawing from the association, although the term of the contract is ten years. In addition, the member has the preference between two pools: seasonal and optional. If he enters his cotton in the seasonal pool, it is sold by the management of the association when it thinks best. When he enters his cotton in the optional pool, he may choose the time when it shall be sold.

And further—at present the number of members who grow a fine grade of cotton is far greater than it was in the early days of the association. In fact the members of the association grow a far better grade of cotton than the growers outside of the organization. This is because the Cotton Cooperative Marketing Association is well adapted to inform its members how to produce cotton that meets the needs of the market. The Association has not only given advice to the members but has purchased for them, through the Cotton Growers Supply Company, pedigreed seed, fertilizers, and other supplies.

One of the finest examples of progress is that the expenses of operation have been decreased since the beginning of the Association. Skillful management and improved methods of handling the cotton have decreased the expenses to such an extent that the cost of marketing has been reduced from $8.11 per bale the first year to only $1.56 per bale the last year.

The great improvement in finance is seen in the fact that after the first year the association has little difficulty in financing each season's operations. The leading banks of the country are now not only willing to finance the Association but seek its business. And now, since the creation of the Federal Farm Board, the Association is able to get financial aid from that source whenever it is needed.

The steadily increasing aid from the government is an important step in the progress of cotton cooperative marketing in North Carolina, as well as in other states. Never before the passage of the Agricultural Marketing Act in June nineteen hundred and twenty nine had the government given so much aid to the cotton growers. The Federal Farm Board was created to carry out all provisions of that act, thus showing that the Federal government is pledged, and is willing, if need be, to spend hundreds of millions for the success of cooperative marketing. The American Cotton Cooperative Association was organized for the purpose of buying the cotton of the various cooperative associations. And The Stabilization Corporation was set up to take over the surplus cotton of the association.

Our Association, then, since its beginning has developed in all its phases; it has improved its contract—so that it is now more acceptable to the farmer; its membership has made great strides in understanding the functions and possibilities of the organization; and through its field service department it has greatly improved the grade of cotton grown by its members; and marketing costs have been reduced to a minimum.

New Marble Champion

John Jeffries, a regular guy from Greenville, Ky., has been crowned the champion of the nation-wide competition held at Ocean City, N. J.

Financially the organization has grown from a mere experiment into an association of great credit resources, and is now has the tremendous backing of the Federal Farm Board.

In short, it has been the progress of an experiment from its early stages to a sound and an efficient working program—an organization that has real and advantageous opportunities to offer to its members.

But, if the progress of cotton cooperative marketing in North Carolina is to continue in the future, the cotton farmers of today must realize their part in forwarding its movement.

They must regulate their production to market requirements after the manner of every successful business. With the present large surplus of cotton the growers cannot possibly obtain a profitable price for their cotton. They must reduce the supply to the needs of the market so that they may demand a better price.

The cotton farmers must be made to realize the necessity of their becoming members of the Cotton Cooperative Marketing Association. This may be done by various types of educational campaigns. In many cases the indirect method of education is best. Farmers, and for that matter most other people, are inclined to take the advice of some one whose judgment they respect. This shows the necessity of carrying on an educational campaign among influential landlords, bankers, and business men.

It also lies with the present farmers to pass on their wisdom and experience to the farmers of tomorrow. This can be accomplished only by the education of the boys and girls of today (who will be the farmers of tomorrow) but necessarily by a college or a high school education, but by education that teaches the true value of cooperation.

If all of our schools, including those in the isolated rural districts, would include cotton cooperative marketing in their course of study, think what it would mean to the future of the Association, not only because of what the students would learn about cotton cooperative marketing, but even more because they would become interested in the subject and would be constantly on the lookout for new ideas on cotton cooperative marketing.

The cotton farmer must face the fact that today in our civilization of machinery and big business he cannot live alone. All economic matters today are matters of big organizations. Just as Henry Ford, alone, as one man, could never make money as an automobile manufacturer, so, is the lone farmer soon to be helpless in a system of mass production, mass buying, and mass marketing. The cotton farmer must conform to the age in which he lives. He must market his cotton through a cooperative association if he is to live.

Cotton cooperative marketing in North Carolina is but a natural force in our economic system—a growing force and influence that is ever increasing, and its progress is inevitable.

U. S. POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT BUYS 1,500 FORD TRUCKS AND CARS

The United States Post Office Department today placed an order with the Washington branch of the Ford Motor Company for 1,500 motor truck chassis, of which 500 will be 3 1/2 ton carrying capacity and 1,000 of 1 1/2 tons carrying capacity. The purchase of the motor equipment was the largest made by a government department since the war. With this order Ford sales to the Post Office Department during recent years reached a total of 2,900 units.

The purchase marked another step in the Department's program of building up its fleet of several thousand trucks and autos to replace some of the surplus trucks turned over to the Army at the close of the war.

Deliveries are to start immediately and continue as rapidly as the bodies contracted for are ready for installation. The completed trucks will then be distributed to some 60 cities throughout the United States.

The order was placed with the Ford company after an exhaustive test conducted by the Department with the co-operation of the Bureau of Standards. The tests were under the supervision of W. A. Jacobs, automobile engineer of the Bureau of Standards, and William Wolma of Chicago and Morris Carrier of Brooklyn, motor vehicle engineers of the Post Office Department.

Thirty Farm Women To Receive Certificates

Thirty leading North Carolina farm women who have attended four consecutive short courses at State College during the annual Farm and Home week exercises will receive certificates from the College at the State Farmers Convention, July 28 to 31.

This short course for women is always one of the interesting features of The North Carolina Farmers' and Farm Women's Convention held at the college during Farm and Home Week.

In addition to conferring the certificates on 30 graduates of city short courses, we shall also honor five master farm home-makers selected carefully over the State. We shall have a number of excellent speakers on the program and a course of instruction in all phases of home management and rural life.

The short course this year will feature gardening and canning particularly. The latest methods of modern food conservation will be demonstrated by experts in canning so that all the surplus of the garden and orchard may be put by for the coming winter. How to adopt and follow a regular canning budget will be explained.

What to do about the family's clothes will be another feature. This will be followed by a cotton dress style revue in which cotton clothing made by home makers' cotton club members in all parts of the State will be entered in competition. Excellent prizes have been secured for a warding to the entrants. A new part of the program this year will be the beauty show. Mrs. McKimmon and her associates have arranged to turn one class room into a beauty parlor where modern ideas about grooming will be taught the women. Child development also will be discussed by experts. This part of the program will be largely in the nature of group discussions with contributions made by successful mothers attending the short course.

SOCIETY NEWS

The hum of the thesaur will soon be a thing of the past in this community. The yield has been good. The best in several years.

The past showings has put new life in cotton and corn. Tobacco is making a good growth, also. With a few more good rains there will be plenty made and some to spare.

There has been some sickness, but they are all better. It is a mild form of sick stomach that lasts about one day and night.

Mrs. Carrie Lee Benton has been taking treatment for a nervous breakdown in some what improved, we are glad to say.

Mr. O. J. West lost a good horse a few days ago.

Miss Grace Williams is very seriously sick at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John McDaniels.

Miss Ester Stroud who is a nurse in a Salisbury hospital spent the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Stroud.

There was a good number from this community attended services at Jericho Christian Church Sunday night.

On account of the preacher not being present there was no preaching, although we had a good talk by Mr. C. D. Crouch, of Statesville.

For twenty years we have served the people of Davie County as Funeral Directors, and never before have we been so well equipped, or had so wide a variety of styles and prices as we now have.

BONEY CALLS FOR SHOWDOWN

That the liability and casualty insurance companies doing business in this state should ask to be allowed a raise in premium rates at this time is not strange, due to the ever increasing number of policies being sold and the large number of automobile accidents. Yet, one considers that nearly every automobile owner is now carrying insurance to protect him against damage which he may do to others in accidents, it would seem that the big volume of business done by the insurance companies would make the business profitable at present rates, even if the number of automobile accidents is growing. Already the rates are pretty high, about as high as most people will care to pay, although it is mighty fine when a fellow has a wreck and hurts the other fellow and is sued for several thousand dollars damage, to know that one is amply protected by accident insurance and that if judgment should be given against him, he has nothing to do but let his insurance pay said judgment. And as more and more accidents happen and as more and more automobile owners protect themselves against damage suits by accident policies, even so will lawsuits follow and juries will give larger verdicts.

But back to the proposed raise in rates, it seems that Commissioner Dan Boney is calling the companies for a showdown. We read this in the Charlotte Observer of last Saturday:

"Insurance Commissioners Dan Boney knows the business, and he was not slow to detect an injustice in the proposed 'flat' rates of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters on automobile public liability and property damage insurance for this state. On the face of the proposition, rates increased 15 per cent in liability coverage. Commissioner Boney finds that the increases are, in fact, from 38 to 66 per cent. He cannot stand for that, at least not without protest, and therefore he invited William Leslie associate general manager of the National Bureau, to appear at a public hearing in Raleigh, to make defense. Commissioner Boney insists that the tremendous increase fixed for North Carolina is not at all justified by experience, and he indicts the extravagance of the company as a responsibility of its own. If the company's expense exceeds 45 per cent of the premium income, Boney contends, then it is excessive and should be cut by the company, itself, without undertaking to pass this extravagance on to the insured public. Mr. Leslie indicated a willingness to appear in Raleigh, at the same time indicating, in his opinion, that nothing would come from it, as he has every confidence in his ability to demonstrate on the basis of actual experience, that the revised rates are equitable and no more than adequate." Whatever the outcome of the hearing, the North Carolina public must stand in admiration of the watchfulness and alertness of Commissioner Boney to prevent an unjust dig into the automobile pocketbook of the State."

HOW WILL WE GET IT BACK?

When our forefathers drafted the Constitution they reserved quite a bit of power and authority in themselves. At least they thought they did. But, as Patrick Henry predicted, that reserved power has gradually slipped from them, and it now looks as though the little left will soon be gone from them and vested in the hands of a few so called representatives at Washington and Raleigh. And when that power is gone, how shall the people recover it? The answer is written in the history of many nations.

LET US BE FAIR

"It is very evident that the Americans do not like us," or words of that nature, that were carried in a Mexican newspaper, last week. The comment was upon the slaying of two Mexican students in a western state by officers and their release from all charges of guilt by the court, this followed within two weeks by the imprisonment of a Mexican Consul in Chicago by a judge, upon a charge of contempt. The Consul, it seems was attempting to defend a Mexican youth who was being tried in the Chicago court. The judge for some reason did not care to hear the said Consul and ordered him to sit down which upon refusal he was ordered to jail for contempt.

We know little about the merits of the contempt case, but from what we get out of the news dispatches concerning it, we could see nothing especially wicked in the Mexican Consul in insisting upon defending the Mexican citizen of his country. Suppose an American youth were being tried in a Mexican court. Suppose he should call upon the American Consul for help and aid American Consul should come to his rescue and then be denied the right of a hearing, and not only that, but be imprisoned for contempt. Under such conditions would Mexico seem a pretty desirable place to live. Will this great nation, despite her wealth and her power, show the same consideration to the citizens of weak nations residing in our midst the same rights and the same demand on behalf of an American citizen residing in such weak or less powerful nation? No wonder the Mexican newspaper was moved to say, "It is very evident that the Americans do not like us."

AT VOTING TIME THINK

A year hence, and less than a year, the voters are going to be asked to cast their ballots for a candidate for governor. There will doubtless be those candidates who favor the "short ballot," which is merely another name for the "Brookings Institute." Make it plain to any candidate, that so far as you are concerned, you are against any law or change in the state Constitution which would in its effect mean the forfeiture of your present rights. The so called "Short Ballot" means that you would have no say as to who the state judges, state solicitors, Attorney General, state treasurer, auditor, insurance commissioner and many others, should be. You would vote for a Governor and one or two other officers and they, in turn, would appoint their political henchmen, most probably to fill the various other state offices. Don't be fooled with that pretty name, "Short Ballot." If you favor it it means that you favor the "Brookings Institution," which is a canned up government sent us from a business office in New York City. It is, as we have before said, just another "Lock's Grand Model."

ONE CANDIDATE AGAINST IT

At least one candidate for governor has come out publicly in open opposition to any further centralization of power. The man is the present Lieutenant Governor "Dick" Fountain. There may be others who will take the same stand, but we are predicting here and now that that "short ballot" movement—that Lock's Grand Model, the Brookings Institution is destined to give some candidate for governor trouble during the next political campaign. The great big majority of the democrats of the state are opposed to any further centralization of power in Raleigh. That means that the candidate who comes out in open opposition to the "Short Ballot" will have a mighty good start towards defeating his opponent who may favor it.

University students seem about as tired of one Rudy Valle as most of us are of the growing tendency to centralization in government. They broke up Valle phonograph records, last week and refused to hear that bird's crooning, and to this we have a fervent AMEN.

DR. JOHNSON'S AESTHETIC VISITOR

(From The Wilkes Patriot.)
Take Dick Cashion, now. We had always thought that Dick's idea of beauty was confined to Firestone tires, and his ultimate in first-class music best realized in a continuous ring of the bell on the cash register. But we're wrong. Dick recently passed by Joe Johnson's, Presbyterian Barium Springs Orphanage, where a magnificent athletic field had been provided. It didn't take Dick's aesthetic nature because there was no life there, no flowers bordering the field of conflict, and Dick would not have it so. He called Joe Johnson off to one side and handed him a hundred and fifty bucks and told him to "go buy some canna bulbs or gumpin' and beautify the place a bit."

And who can say that Dick Cashion is not thus contributing mightily toward making a real hominess at Barium? Flowers are God's pictures of art contributed through nature to man, and he appreciates them, and loves them and multiplies them, in that way and to that extent also appreciates him who gave them to us.

International Sunday School Lesson for July 19
SOCIAL SERVICE IN THE EARLY CHURCH
Acts 4:32-35; 6:1-4
II Corinthians 9:1-7

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D. Christianity is far more than an ideal. Its principles can be put into practice. Calvin Coolidge recently said in one of his daily messages: "It would be difficult to find anywhere on earth a human being whose life has not been modified in some degree by the influence of the Christian religion." Thought of others rather than of self is basic. This began with the Founder and every true follower has the same idea.

Today the world still needs the fullest expression of Christian socialism. As people had need in the Jerusalem congregation, provision was made by turning into a common fund whatever could be spared. Many quarrels resulted over the distribution of money. When the apostles faced the situation they realized that their work of preaching was so great that they could not also give adequate attention to the physical needs of "the growing Christian community. Then, the office of deacon was inaugurated and seven were chosen to undertake this special type of service. These men of deacon persist in the church and today a long line of men and women have thus very honorably served the Lord in helping the poor.

Later the gathering of the poor fund was an extensive enterprise. The Council of Jerusalem decreed that Paul and the other apostles to the nations should seek funds for the poor in Jerusalem when they ministered abroad. The church in Corinth was hold up as an example to the friends in Macedonia quite as we are urged today to measure up to the gift made by another. Thus what are called modern financial pressure methods in raising money seem to be rather old.

TOO MANY GOVERNMENTS

One reason for the rapid increase of taxes is in the increasing number of governments and government officials which the taxpayers are called upon to support.

Governor Roosevelt of New York recently pointed out that no citizen of that state can live under fewer than four governments, and many of them live under no less than ten different sets of public officials.

There are the Federal, State, county and city governments, as a minimum. "If one lives in a town outside the city limits, he is under four governments: Federal, State, county and city. If he lives in an incorporated village outside another layer is added. If he lives in a town outside of the village he may be in a fire, water, lighting, sewer and sidewalk district, in which case there are ten layers of government," said Governor Roosevelt.

Similar conditions exist in every state. Most of the work of administration could be done by half as many people as are employed at the public expense, merely by merging the different governmental units. Dr. C. J. Galpin, sociologist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, suggests the consolidation of townships, small villages and even of counties. This is necessary in many rural districts, he says, if adequate modern facilities for education and other community enterprises like hospitals, libraries, parks, playgrounds, etc., are to be available. He estimates that it takes a community of at least a thousand families to support up-to-date facilities of such kinds. If he is right, then there is no way out for small communities except such a merger of interests as Dr. Galpin and Governor Roosevelt propose.

County government in general is not very satisfactory anywhere in the United States. It is natural that people give their first attention to their local, town, village or city government. They do not, in many sections, have occasion often to come in contact with their county governments. If all the functions now delegated to local communities became the business of the county as a whole, perhaps the effect would be beneficial not only in making county officials more responsive to public opinion but in lessening the burden of multifarious taxes and superfluous public officials.

Of course, the professional politicians will resist any movement of this sort. They will always resist any movement which reduces the number of office-holders and so reduces the number of prizes they can hang up for their partisans to scramble for. But local government ought not to be the plaything of politicians, and the time will come when it will not be.

ON HIS FEET AGAIN

Charlie Horne, succeeding to the vast mercantile interests of his father, Ashley Horne, at Clayton, went down four years ago because of a big-headed undertaking to help the farmers. He bought up their cotton at figures above the prevailing market prices and thus became involved in financial troubles that eventually plunged him into bankruptcy. The young fellow stirred up his folks, though, and set out on a determined battle to retrieve his position, and now success has come to him through aid of a friendly hand that enabled him to reorganize his business concern with ample capital back of him, and to once more take the reins of the Clayton business. Horne has retained the powerful friendships his father enjoyed, because of his inherited love for the farmers and had succeeded to his father's title as the acknowledged friend of the Farmer. The restored prestige of Charlie Horne is a matter that will give pleasure

WHY WAIT TILL AUGUST?

Twins City Sentinel.

A step that might have saved several lives, if taken a while ago, has just been made by Judge Thomas Watson of the municipal court, who announces that after August 1 there will be no more fines for offenders convicted of driving automobiles while under the influence of intoxicating liquors. Road sentences will be the order of the day.

The public generally will hear of this decree with genuine gratification. There are few things at large more dangerous than a drunken automobile driver. He is a menace on the highways and no use of the public roads is safe when he is at large.

Driving an automobile while intoxicated is a crime committed with malice aforethought. One doesn't get drunk, accidentally. One doesn't drive an automobile without intent. Violations of other laws may be accidental, or unintentional, but not so with the drunken driver.

He goes out to get drunk and then takes the wheel to perambulate over the country side. He is incapable of handling the machine properly, even if he were so inclined, which is not often the case. He loses all regard for the rights and safety of others.

If the habituated and occasional drinkers knew for a fact that they are going to the roads, if convicted of driving while they are drunk, they may think twice before they try to mix their liquor and gasoline. And any decrease in the number of such offenders will be a relief to the public. There's no telling how many lives are to be spared by Judge Watson's policy. But why wait until August to put it into effect?

RETAIL BUSINESS IN N. C.

Winston-Salem Journal.

North Carolina has 28,958 stores, according to Census of Distribution figures, while South Carolina has 15,083; Virginia, 26,222; and West Virginia, 17,283. The net annual sales for the stores in North Carolina amount to $744,136,243; for South Carolina, $299,037,807; for Virginia, $636,734,504; for West Virginia, $442,119,101. The per capita sales for stores in North Carolina is $204.72; for South Carolina, $171.08; for Virginia, $246.42; for West Virginia, $255.68.

The Census figures show that there are 1,549,000 retail stores in the forty-eight states and the District of Columbia, or 12.6 per 1,000 inhabitants, and that the average store does an annual business of $32,237. The average per capita purchases at retail amount to $407.52, which indicates average retail purchases per family (of three to five persons) of from $1,223 to $2,000 annually.

These figures, while showing the retail business in North Carolina to rank well in comparison to other states in the South and with some other sections of the country, also show that there is a distinct opportunity for retail development in this State. This will follow expansion in industry, intensification and diversification of agriculture and the increase in income generally.

FROM HIGH TO LOW RETAIL

A one-day trip from the highest elevation to the lowest in the United States, from the 14,504-foot peak of Mount Whitney to a point 276 feet below sea level in Death Valley, was recently made by Norman Clyde, a member of the Sierra Mountain Club. He made the long descent in seven hours, and was the first man to accomplish the feat between dawn and dusk.

THE CALL OF HOLLYWOOD

The annual pay roll of motion picture interests in Hollywood, California, amounts to $85,000,000. But not much of this huge amount trickles into the pockets of the thousands of "extra people." Of 17,541 registered extras attracted by Hollywood in 1930, only an average of 807 were employed daily. One day's work a week was averaged by 833, and of these only 95 managed to secure two and a half day's work every week. They earned $16 a day or less, that sum being the maximum daily compensation for extras. These figures apparently do not discourage new recruits from going to Hollywood in search of a career.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST HAND-SHAKE

(Charlotte Observer.)

The French and German diplomats gathered in Paris to patch up affairs, first sat around a wet banquet of a kind that would have delighted the heart of the Atlanta mayor, but we are to hope that the inspiration imbued by German Foreign Minister Curtius for declaration to the effect that Germany and France have "buried the hatchet," and established relations on a new basis, had better foundation than of wine-dinner organization. If, indeed, France and Germany have been brought to bury the hatchet, "politically and financially," then the Clayton, for Charlotte, agreement to prosperity and to peace has been opened. It is to be hoped the German diplomat spoke in the light of an established fact. It would be strange to see France and Germany in harmonious accord on other political or financial affairs; stranger still, to

VETERAN SUES FOR SERVICE INCURSION

Condemned, July 21.—M. H. Foster, World War veteran of this place, has filed suit against the government for payment of his World War insurance. It was learned this morning. He is understood the case will be tried in Salisbury at the next term of court.

Mr. Foster alleges his insurance was $10,000 and he is expected to sue for that amount. The grounds of his complaint are that he was gassed in France and has become physically disabled on account of service. Insurance is now drawing compensation from the veterans' bureau, it is said.

Mr. Foster has been employed by the Erwin Mills here since his return from the army in 1919 during the time he was able to perform any work. He attempted to get government compensation several years ago but only succeeded a few months back, it is reported.

This is the first case from Davie county in which suit has been entered against the government for World War insurance and is attracting wide attention.

Five Farm Women Selected For Honor

Raleigh.—Wayne, Currituck, Jones and Rowan counties have had honor brought to them with the announcement last week that farm women residing in these counties have been selected for the title of Master Homemaker by the North Carolina State College cooperative with the Farmers' Wife, national farm women's publication.

The five women selected for this honor are Mrs. E. L. Peole of Pike, Wayne County; Mrs. J. E. Barnes of Henderson, Vance County; Mrs. Annie C. Hay of Maysville, Rowan County; and Mrs. J. F. McEntee of China Grove, Rowan County. The public ceremonies which the recognition will be bestowed will take place Wednesday evening, July 29, at the annual meeting of the North Carolina Farmers' and Farm Women's Convention.

The exercises begin promptly 8:30 o'clock with Mrs. Jane McKimmon presiding. An address will be made by Miss L. Reynolds, of the editorial staff of The Farmers' Wife, and of the five women will be read upon for a brief response regarding something of her work and accomplishments in the past several years.

The five women selected for honor were nominated by their neighbors and were chosen from a list of hundreds of such women. A committee appointed by the magazine and the home demonstration department of the College then studied the names carefully and especially the answers to about 500 questions.

The final selection was made after, carefully considering work done by the women in making their homes, education and development of their children, community work and the record of their families.

One has made some notable contribution to her community state, says Mrs. McKimmon.

The bride-elect was presented by Mrs. J. W. Zachary followed by a miscellaneous shower. Mrs. G. L. Murr was awarded the prize for the neatest bordered dish-cloth and Mrs. T. C. Pegram won the prize for table napkins.

The guests were then ushered into the dining room where they were served ice cream and heart shaped cakes bearing the letters "L.S." The table was decorated with a beautiful Madeira cloth, a large pink cake with a miniature bride and groom on top and surrounded with bridesmaids.

The bride-elect was presented by the hostess, Mrs. J. W. Zachary.

THE FOOT THAT ROCKED THE CRADLE IS NOW STEPPING ON THE GAS

I've heard the songs of pessimists—songs of sombre hue sung by those who look ahead through spectacles of blue; And I used to greet their wallings with a sneer; but now, alas, I have seen the crib forsaken for the lure of flowing gas.

Once I viewed the gentler members of our race with veneration. Now I've joined the morbid chorus and I curse this generation.

And you must admit, this world is coming to a pretty pass. When the foot deserts the cradle just to step upon the gas.

(Ancient Rome, in all its splendor, was a mighty wicked town). Nero sawed a wicked fiddle while 'twas burning to the ground.

And the mothers of the Romans shook the ghiminy in the grass. But they never left the cradle just to step upon the gas.

Once, the home was high and holy—place of joy and peace and rest; Wife and husband worked in unison to feather up their nest.

Now hubby gives the color-oil and stirs the sassafras. For wife's left the cradle and she's stepping on the gas.

Law and order, peace and plenty, once were found on every side; Now it's havoc and commotion while the fair ones joy-ride; And many a traffic cop has had his car shoot full of saas For interfering with their right to step upon the gas.

So look out, mule-teams, trucks and flivvers; pedestrains, beware! The highways now are things of danger—death is lurking there!

Always stop and look and listen; step aside and let her pass. For the foot that rocked the cradle is now stepping on the gas.

Our State Department
In Washington's Day

Nothing illustrates more clearly the growth of the United States since George Washington's day than the enormously increased activities of our government. As one evidence of this, the Department of State has been expanded from a small office in the Executive Building to a vast complex of buildings in the heart of the nation's capital.

At the end of that period Congress dropped him for publishing a state paper which it thought he should have kept confidential. After that the Continental Congress decided to manage its own foreign affairs. It soon found itself in confusion and chaos, however, as a result of clumsy committee handling of a rapid expansion in its dealings with other countries. Accordingly, in 1781, Robert Livingston of New York was made secretary of the Congressional Committee on Foreign Affairs. He received the respectable salary of $4,000.00 a year, and was given powers closely approaching those of a present day secretary of State.

To Livingston goes much of the credit for skillful management of our diplomacy during the later period of the Revolution, but in two years time Livingston complained to Congress that his living expenses were $8,000.00 more than his yearly salary. Besides, he was honored with election as chancellor of New York, and under pressure of this lure to another field, he resigned. Another period of chaos in our foreign relations ensued, until John Jay assumed the duties of of $50.00 for firewood. And all this at an annual cost of $8,000.00.

Yet even now, when our country has become the greatest of world powers, and when many of these original duties of the State Department have been taken over by other great departments, like the Interior, and Commerce, the United States still requires perhaps the most highly organized of all foreign offices for the conduct of its steadily enlarging relations with the world.

It is one of the startling contrasts sure to arise in every American mind in 1932 when the nation celebrates the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington, the man who, more than any other, set going this vast political development.

CLUB SHORT COURSE
NEXT FARM MEETING

Raleigh.—Approximately 600 young folks from the farms of North Carolina are expected to attend the annual short course for 4-H club members to be held at State College during the coming week, August 2 to 8.

An interesting program has been arranged for the entertainment and instruction of the club delegates by Miss Cornelius and R. Harrill, club leaders in charge of this work for the agricultural extension service. Instruction will be given by faculty members, while home and farm agents will be in charge of the various groups during the week.

Registration begins on Monday evening and the first actual exercises will be held immediately following supper Tuesday morning. Class room work begins, and each day thereafter, the delegates will gather for a short assembly in Pullen Hall, attend classes, hold another assembly after luncheon and then after a rest period there will be games, sight-seeing tours, demonstrations and other interesting events.

The evening exercises on the campus will likely be one of the most popular features of the course. At this time short plays and talks by prominent persons will be given. The King and Queen of Health has been scheduled for Thursday evening. The famous Camp Fire exercises will be held Friday evening.

A new idea in the short course this year will be the selection into an honor group of those club members who have rendered distinguished service to their communities or to the State. Those who have attended the national club camps or won high state honors will be eligible, says Mr. Harrill.

Officers of the club organization this year are: President

Doyce Brooks, Duplin County; Vice-president, Marjorie Guffy, Brunswick County; secretary, Louise Elliott, Stanly County.

Firestone
Control Every Step
in TIRE MAKING

FIRESTONE control every step in the manufacture of their products. They have their own rubber preparation factory and warehouse in Singapore—their own cord fabric factories—their own great tire factories—the most efficient in the world. The millions of dollars saved annually by Firestone from these gross economies are passed on to you in Extra Values.

You get the full benefit of these values because every Firestone Tire bears the Firestone name, and is doubly guaranteed by Firestone and Firestone Service Dealers. Why take chances with special brand tires, built just to sell—without the manufacturer's name, guarantee or responsibility for service.

Come in Today and make your own comparisons with cross sections of Firestone Tires and special brand mail order tires. Get the facts yourself about tire quality and construction. When you see the Extra Values you get you will not feel secure on any other except Firestone Tires.

Finishing touches are being put on the Akron, which will be formally named on August 8. The photograph shows the three fins in place and the outer covering being applied to the ship's tail. Each fin is forty feet wide and 105 feet in length. The Akron is 785 feet long and weighs 221,000 pounds. It can lift 182,000 pounds of "pay load," besides its own weight. Mrs. Hoover will christen the airship by liberating a flock of doves.

The Story Of The "Great Seal" Of The United States

The almost unbelievable scope of George Washington's activities begins to stand out more sharply than ever as the approach of his 100th Birthday Anniversary draws quickens popular interest in the long and intensely active life he lived. We know that he designed the first flag for his army at the siege of Boston, and a part in planning the Star-Spangled Banner. During the siege of Boston he instituted the first attempt at a United States Navy. West Point owes its being to him. Indeed he seems to have touched everything, in his zeal to see the United States firmly established in security and independence.

Only one thing closely identified with our government appears to have escaped his attention, perhaps because at the time he was already away from the Continental Congress and engaged in fighting for independence on the battlefield. In any event, as the Division of Information says, perhaps this accounts for the curiously twisted and hazy history of that indispensable adjunct of national sovereignty.

It is an historic fact, perhaps lost to sight, that hardly was the device of the Declaration of Independence out of the way, than the Continental Congress, on July 4, 1776, appointed a committee to design an arms and seal for the United States. In the midst of the fact that this committee consisted of Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, and Thomas Jefferson, all men of judgment and distinguished taste, the design they submitted to Congress was discarded and the matter of a seal for the United States was dropped for four full years.

In 1780 Congress appointed another committee to reconsider the discarded design, only to discard it again. Finally, in 1782, a third committee was appointed to settle the matter of a seal, and William Barton, A. M., of Philadelphia and Lancaster, an expert in heraldry, was employed to draw a new design. Charles Thompson, secretary of Congress, suggested a few improvements, and from these, Barton designed the "arms of the United States," submitted on July 20, 1782.

Such is the story of the "great seal of the United States," so called because a "lesser" seal was also authorized but never executed. Then, on the adoption of the Constitution and the establishment of the United States of America, the great seal was placed in the custody of the Secretary of State, and ever since

A SERIOUS INDICTMENT

Perhaps the most shocking revelation that has been made public for many years is the report by the Wickham Commission on Crime and Punishment of the way in which child offenders under Federal laws are misused, neglected, even tortured in various state penal institutions to which they have been sent by the Federal courts.

The Federal government maintains prisons for adult offenders, but has to turn children who are convicted of violating Uncle Sam's laws over to state and county institutions. Investigators report that in one of these prisons they are placed in damp, unsanitary dark cells, in others mixed with hardened adult criminals, in others practically starved, and in others beaten and otherwise mistreated for the slightest infraction of discipline.

If anything can turn a boy or girl of 15 or so into a hardened criminal, it is prison treatment such as that.

These children have done nothing to merit any such treatment. It is only occasionally to be sure, that a minor criminal under the law of the Federal laws. These young prisoners have been found guilty of running a stolen automobile across a state line, which is one of the most recent crimes under Federal laws or of acting as messenger of a state line, or other inter-state acts which, while serious enough, do not call for such brutal and heartless treatment as these youngsters get.

If the United States Government must send children to jail, then let Federal authorities establish their own prison for minors and see that they are humanely treated.

Early sweet potatoes and bogus watermelons are moving from Carteret County at the rate of $8 a barrel for the sweets and $325 a car for melons. Growers say they are making money.

One third of the 51 counties in the cotton belt of North Carolina reported the condition of the crop equal to normal.

Weevils were reported generally in small numbers. Infestation is serious in Johnston, Wilson, and Chatham—reported the committee consisted of Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, and Thomas Jefferson, all men of judgment and distinguished taste, the design they submitted to Congress was discarded and the matter of a seal for the United States was dropped for four full years.

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for August 1
SAUL CONVERTED
Acts 9:1-9; 17-19; 1 Timothy 1:12-14
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.
The greatest man in all human history is presented in this and subsequent lessons during the remainder of the year. We meet him first when he voted for the stoning of Stephen and then was a persecutor of the church. Saul was a leader in this cruelty. Learning that there was a growing colony of Christians in Damascus, letters were obtained from the Sanhedrin to the leaders in the Damascus synagogue giving authority to search out both men and women in that city who were open in their acknowledgment of the new Way of Faith and Practice. There is plenty of time to think when making a journey of 140 miles in the manner of travel of the first century. Meditations en route prepared the mind for the wonderful revelation that came from the Throne of God to Saul as he approached the city of his destination. Though it was high noon the glory of God outshone the sun and Saul fell prostrate to the earth. Jesus Christ spoke directly to this persecutor and forthwith the man who had been a terror to so many is quiet as a little child and asks for instructions in the greatest subject of life.

This director of men finds himself helpless, for he has been blinded and must trust to a friendly hand for guidance into the city. Three days are given to look at the light of life while the eyes are useless. Then Ananias comes as a messenger of hope and prophecy. Sight is restored by another miracle and a commission is given which makes this Saul the apostle to the Gentiles. It was all new and strange but this converted servant of the Lord says in the Golden Text, "I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision," Acts 26:19.
