Agricultural Extension Service at Raleigh for 100 hens and was built by N. Y. A. workers of the county. SUMMARY OF WAR NEWS

Berlin announces that German forces will continue their push against the British following the surrender of Greece. London says that 45,000 of the 60,000 expeditionary force sent to Greece had escaped, although it was admitted that much heavy equipment was left behind. While Hitler's next moves are unknown, observers think the war in the eastern Mediterranean most likely. Four objectives, aside from a possible invasion of England, are mentioned: Overland drive through Turkey to the oil-rich near east now guarded by Britain; push from Libya through Egypt to the Suez canal; push through Spain against Gibraltar; invasion of soviet Russia's vast wheat-growing Ukraine. London said yesterday that a grand scale German attack on Egypt and the Suez Canal by way of Syria and Palestine is likely within 10 days. Soviet Russia says that Germany has landed 12,000 troops with tanks and big guns in southwestern Finland. In a sensational decree which many think shows a widening breach between Moscow and Berlin, Russia forbids the shipment of any war material through the Soviet Union. Churchill said Sunday that Hitler cannot win the war unless he conquers the British Isles or cuts the lifeline to America. This country faces the tremendous decision of whether or not convoys will be used to assure supplies reaching Britain. President Roosevelt asks the maritime commission to obtain service of "at least 2,000,000 tons of merchant shipping" to be used to supply "all-out aid to the democracies." The President said that American naval vessels were not barred from entering combat zones and that patrols may go as far as necessary for the defense of the Western Hemisphere. Coal strikers agree to return to work at once and settle differences while working. Secretary Morgenthau opposes more taxes on the poor man. Heavier taxes, however, are certain. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. urges aid to Britain "to limit, at any cost" and says he would "rather die fighting the brutal barbarous, inhuman force represented by Hitlerism than live in world which is dominated by that force." Senator Wheeler, isolationist, demands that President Roosevelt state his plan for convoys and Lindbergh resigns his reserve commission in the air force.

SCHOOLS PROGRESS FAST UNDER PROCTOR'S GUIDANCE, SAYS PEGRAM

Cards Arrive At Cooleemee
Freddie Hawn and his Cooleemee Cardinals arrived Thursday night from the training camp at Albany, Ga. Reports indicate that the Cardinals are a top notch class D club. The season opens Thursday, May 8, at Salisbury, returning to Cooleemee May 9 with the same club. Saturday, May 3, in the afternoon the Cooleemee club will play the Hanes semi-pro team and again Monday, May 5, they will play the same club. Both games will be played at Cooleemee.

Davie county schools, in his opinion, have accomplished more in the last 3 years under the guidance of R. S. Proctor, county superintendent, than they had in the previous 10 years. T. C. Pegram, chairman of the county board of education, stated last Wednesday night at a countywide teachers dinner meeting in the Masonic hall. Mr. Pegram, a staunch supporter of better schools, said that he realized the physical condition of the schools was not sufficient and added that he would not be satisfied until the Davie schools were second to none in the state. Construction of the new William R. Davie school and installation of the heating system at Farmington were considered by Mr. Pegram to have been the outstanding physical accomplishments of the schools this year. About 125 attended the meeting, including members of the county school board, county commissioners, P. T. A. presidents.

MEMBER OF N. C. PRESS ASSOCIATION

Newspaper Party

Country newspapers have shown great improvement in recent years, Santford Martin, editor of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel, told members of the Midwestern press at their last meeting. The astute "Colonel" Martin was much impressed by the fewer errors, better dress through better equipment, more local news, better looking advertisements, better printing.

Weekly newspapermen are much better educated than they used to be, the Winston-Salem editor said. He attributed most of the betterment to this fact. In the last 10 years many excellent newspapermen in the daily field have deserted it for the country newspaper. There has been a gain all the way round. In this section of the state alone one can mention at least half dozen editors who have found the change both to their liking and advancement of the community.

Gordon Gray, publisher of the two Winston-Salem papers and radio station W. S. J. S., was host at the last monthly meeting of the Midwestern press group. About 100 were there, had an excellent free meal and a variety of hilarious entertainment. Gifted, thoroughly democratic, becomingly modest and with an unquestioned flair for public service, Mr. Gray, just turned 30, is perhaps number one of the first half dozen top-flight young men in this state to watch for political promise.

Statesmanship is a highly-skilled, intricate art of which this country will have an increasing need for the years ahead. For a talented and diligent young man it offers, in our opinion, an unparalleled career of personal satisfaction and requires all of the ability of the "cream of the crop." We hail with much joy Mr. Gray's interest in what we call politics rather than business, difficult and intriguing as the latter is.

Davie, for whom Davie county was named was the founder of the University and it is a signal honor for Farmington school to be selected as the

The planting of the tree was accompanied by an appropriate ceremony, attended by the entire faculty and student body of the school. Paul B. Walter, of the school faculty, made the presentation to the school and G. R. Madison, principal of Farmington school, accepted the tree on behalf of the school and community.

Says Town Clean-Up Is Continuous Job

It appears that there is an insufficient effort to collect and dispose of refuse in Mocksville, says E. L. Kinzer, district sanitarian. Some business houses and householders make private arrangements for collection at regular or irregular intervals. The town also makes periodic collections.

"This policy of dealing with the disposal of rubbish and garbage has resulted in unsightly and offensive accumulations on the streets, vacant lots and alleys of Mocksville and is unsatisfactory as far as disposal is concerned," Mr. Kinzer said.

"The piles of cans and other refuse, even dead animals, so frequently found in highway ditches, and on the vacant lots testify to the urgent need of some well organized plan for the collection and disposal of garbage and rubbish. The usual town attempt at a spring Clean-Up Campaign is not sufficient. It results in some temporary betterment and in a considerable volume of civic complacency which is not at all justified.

Cleaning up should be a continued process and not an annual affair."

TERRACING This spring has brought about an increase in the demand for heavy terracing equipment in Harnett County, says J. B. Gourlay, assistant farm agent of the N. C. State College Extension Service.

VETERANS AT COOLEEMEE

These two veterans will play an outstanding part in the pennant drive of Cooleemee in the North Carolina State League race this summer. Dick Smith, left, is a veteran hurler, returning for duty, while Manager Hawn, at right, will be back to lead the club and do the lion's share of the catching.

COOLS EXPECT STRONG SQUAD

It is the Cardinals second year in Cooleemee and the first year failed to produce the desired results but from available information it will be a different story when the firing gets under way in the pennant race next week.

The Cooleemee team has been training at Albany, Ga., with other St. Louis farm clubs and have arrived at their home port. The team is on the paper stage so far as the fans here are concerned for they haven't had any chance to see the boys in action.

But Freddy Hawn, who will manage the team and has had his boys drilling in the deep South knows the ability of his boys and with strength in one or two spots he is all ready to start the flag race.

The team shapes up as a strong fielding outfit with good hitting. The one big question mark appears to be in the pitching and Hawn has already moved to strengthen that department.

The Cooleemee skipper knows the strength of the league for he was at the helm of the club late last season. Only three veterans are returning for duty this year other than Manager Hawn so new faces will be the order of the day.

Jim Smith, a right-handed pitcher; Frank Mediollo, first baseman; and Tommy Glover, outfielder, are the returning stars of last season's team as the Cards strive to rebuild and pick more power for the Cools. Seven pitchers have been assigned to the Cooleemee club by the Cardinals.

Smith, of course, is well known as a capable right-hander here and is expected to head the mound corps.

Lewis Moore, a right-hander, and a rookie from Albion, Mich., gave Manager Hawn a fine impression in training camp.

Jack Hobbs, a right-hander, from Johnson City, and Henry Koch, a curve-baller, both have shown great promise. Rustay and Skubovires are also two newcomers in baseball. The former is a right-hander and the latter a southpaw.

George Jenkins, a left-hander, from Washington, Pa., is another hurler that Hawn is counting heavily to bolster the staff.

But Hawn is still not satisfied with his pitching and is expecting more power in this department from the parent St. Louis club.

Hawn will take over the big share of the catching duties and direct the team from behind the plate. Hal Beal, a youngster from Cherryville, appears as a highly capable understudy for the veteran Hawn in the catching department.

Frank Mediollo, hailing from New Orleans, and a veteran of last season's team, is tagged as the most improved player in the Albany camp and will be back at the initial sack.

Hugh Moore, who played with Albany, Ga., last season, appears set for the second base spot.

Marvin Corgill, who starred with Gastonia, in the old Tar Heel League last year, is at short-stop and doing a swell job.

Sam Lamitina, hailing from Johnson City, Tenn., is listed as the third baseman and Hawn expects him to fill the spot in

Finals Begin Smith Grove

The commencement exercises at Smith Grove school will begin on Friday night, May 9, and close on May 13. On Friday night the boys' speaking contest will be held. The program will consist of the following: "The Coquette," by Dewey Smith; "An Inquisitive Customer," by Ray Hanes; "Asleep at the Switch," by Gilmer Dunn; "Bill Smith," by Charles Smith; "Lies," by Wiley Garwood; "Peter's Parley," by James McCulloh; "Birthday Presents," by Ernest Wagner; "Johnny Entertains," by Richard Foster; "How Jimmy Tended the Baby," by James Gray Hendrix; "The Penitent," by Grady Dunn; "The Story Hour," by Isaac Hardison; "Bob's Ice Cream," by Roy Beauchamp, Jr.; and "Shortening Pop's Pants," by Gordon Howard.

On Saturday night, May 10, the girls' contest will be held. It will include: "Experience with a Cow," by Ruth Watkins; "Just Like a Weed," by Marjorie Dunn; "The Bald Headed Man," by Lynda Gray Dunn; "The Quarrel," by Estelle Allen; "Nettie's Side of the Quarrel," by Maudie Howard; "What Happened to Harry," by Addie Howard; "At Grandma's," by Irene Smith; "The Chatterbox," by Evelyn Walker; "Bottled Sunshine," by Louise Armsworthy; "Clubby," by Elizabeth Forrests; "Daddy Soaks His Feet," by Edna Gray Dunn; "The Bad Little Girl," by Florence Cornatzer; "Ain't Life Hard on a Girl," by Hazel Soiley; "All Because of Skippy," by Lavaughn Smith; "Miss Dorothy Entertains the Minister," by Daphne Beauchamp; "Teressa Tells the Truth," by Carolyn Laird; "Getting Even," by Alfreda Smith; "Mother Goes Athletic," by Ruth Allen; and "With Riggie at the Circus," by Viola Keeton.

Monday night, May 12, the primary grades will present a little play, "School at Pudding Lane," and the grammar grades neat style.

There are three fine outfielders on the squad. Tommy Glover, who rapped the ball at a 325 pace for Cooleemee, is back this season for his old stand in right field. He hails from Gastonia and is being counted upon to supply a heavy punch for the team.

Sanford Wolfson, a rookie, reported as very fast and active, comes from Springfield, to play an outer garden post for the Cools.

Conrad Graff, a left-hander, who has had experience at first base, appears all set for the outfield spot that is open.

Hawn is expected to add a few more boys to this roster and then start the firing in a season that Cooleemee expects to bring a new deal to the baseball fans of this community.

With a hustling squad of youngsters and the reputation of a winner that St. Louis has made in the minor leagues it looks like a good year.

Payment For Mother

Nobody has built better, sacrificed more, struggled harder than she whose name we praise publicly this Mother's Day. In our attempt to live a useful existence, we acquire many gains and prizes for success. We finger our rewards and admire our possessions with deep intentness and often mistake this compensation as what should have been coming in payment for endeavor. We sit mid the gains and tell ourselves it is what we deserve, payment in part for aims, ambitions, opportunities and dreams. If this is indeed our just deserts, then what is the payment due the universal mothers who have been the power and strength behind the man, who has through her self-sacrifice and devotion given him his first taste of gifts and instilled in him the idea that for such inspiration and service there is no need for payment? We have accepted the worldly belongings and felt we earned them for it is the time and trouble put into the business of living. But what will a mother ask in return as her payment?

There has never been a period in history when mothers declare a strike against love, a war on devotion, where they refused to dedicate their patience to motherhood, where they aimed only for the return payment from their families in appreciation. Of all the victories and tributes to be paid no Mother today demands your loyalty. To enter into the spirit of the day one must come willingly and understandingly, with peace of mind that such devotion will triumph over love, we pay tribute in the hope that we have made ourselves worthy of such loyalty and affection. This is her payment.

SOIL CONSERVATION PLANS HAVE COVERED 24,000 ACRES IN DAVIE

Complete conservation plans covering approximately 24,000 acres of farm land in Davie county have been developed since the Middle Yadkin soil conservation district began operations, J. G. Crawford, chairman of the board of supervisors, reports.

Developing a complete conservation plan is the first step in bringing about actual conservation on the land, Mr. Crawford pointed out. Soil Conservation Service technicians assigned to the district assist farmers in working out their farm plans, he explained.

Erosion cannot be controlled by any one remedy, Mr. Crawford continued. The purpose of conservation planning is to develop a plan for the farm as a whole, instead of trying to patch up the erosion scars here and there on the separate fields that make up the farm.

Before making a conservation plan, an inventory is made of the soil type, steepness of slope, degree and extent of erosion, and existing land use on every portion of the farm. With this information indicated on a map of the farm, the farmer and the conservation technician go over the farm field by field, working out land use changes and erosion control practices to hold the soil and provide a well rounded program for the farm.

FARM QUESTIONS ARE ANSWERED

Question: What is the object of the national campaign to produce more eggs?

Answer: The call which Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has made for increased egg production is a part of the United States' determination to assure ample food supplies for this country, Great Britain, and other nations resisting aggression. The campaign aims for an increase of six percent in the next 15 months, or about 10,000,000 cases of 30 dozen eggs each.

Question: When should colts be weaned?

Answer: Fred M. Haig, professor of animal husbandry at State College, says colts should be taken away from the mare when four to six months old. When three or four weeks old, colts will nibble at grain and hay in the mare's feed box. As the animal grows older, he will eat more and more grain and hay. In this way the weaning is a gradual process and the final separation from the mother will not cause a set-back in the colt's growth. After this the young animal should be kept on pasture as much as possible.

Question: Will deductions be made in AAA payments if superphosphate is not applied according to recommendations?

Answer: E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer, says a farmer will not receive soil-building credit and be costed of the phosphate will be deducted from any AAA payments coming to him if the farmer does not apply this AAA material in a prescribed manner. Application at any time during the program year to a depleting crop with which no eligible grass or legume is seeded or growing will cause a double deduction.

Scolding the Waiter
Grandfather was slowly walking along the sidewalk, and Billie, aged four, was about 20 paces behind, trudging along on little fat legs.
"Why don't you wait for me," he called, aggrieved.
"I'm waiting for you," replied Grandfather, slowing up a bit and turning around.
"Well," said the panting youngster, "you aren't waitin' very fast!"

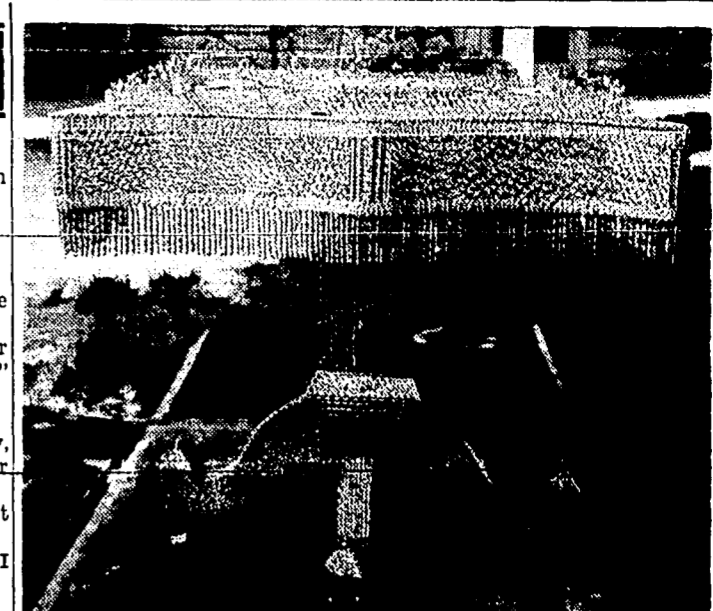

She Was Furious
Phyllis: "Yes, she was furious about the way in which the newspaper reported her marriage."
Mary: "Why, did it allude to her age?"
Phyllis: "Indirectly. It stated that 'Miss Moard and Mr. Hale were married, the latter being a well-known collector of antiques.'"

Some Watch
Ship's Officer: "Oh, there goes eight bells. Excuse me, it's my watch below."
Old Lady: "Gracious! Fancy your watch striking as loud as that!"

NEWS and FACTS ... of Statewide Interest

The 8th Birthday of One of North Carolina's Biggest Taxpayers!

On May 1, 1933, beer was re-legalized in North Carolina. Since that time, it has paid taxes as follows:

Table showing tax payments: To The State Treasury $6,777,854.76; To North Carolina Counties 993,750.00; To Our Cities and Towns 377,500.00.

This $8,149,104.76 total is in addition, of course, to federal taxes amounting to about $7,000,000. Thousands of new jobs have been created, moreover, bringing in a new stream of income and a re-vitalization of trade in North Carolina.

Social Benefits, Too

Important as well are the social results. The American brewing industry has promoted a vigilant campaign to protect the public against abuses in the retail sale of beer—a campaign to see that the reputation of the thousands of retailers operating legally and decently is not smeared by the relatively few who would use a beer license to shield illegal activities.

The brewing industry submits this record to you because it takes justifiable pride in it. Your support has made the achievements possible; your continued support will make results even more outstanding.

It has everything its big brothers in the Harvester line have, plus new features—for work on small farms. And here's the best part—you can get it at a price that's easy on your pocketbook! One man can harvest and thresh in surprisingly quick time with this baby combine—stepping along at the rate of 8 to 15 acres a day. And it's a money-maker. It saves on equipment, twine, and threshing expense. It saves grain by doing the job in one operation—eliminating loss that comes with shocking, stacking, pitching, and hauling. It gets rid of extra help—saving food and work in the kitchen. Come in and see us about this latest addition to Harvester's line of equipment for the small farm.

★ 29 MILLION!

A record never before approached!

★ When the 29,000,000th Ford rolled recently from the assembly line, an all-time record for the industry was set. 29,000,000 units built by the same management and all bearing one name—a name that has become one of the best-known trade-marks in the world! It is significant that this achievement comes at a time when our country is making a mighty effort to re-arm swiftly. For to further that effort, to help speed it along in any possible way, we have offered the vast facilities of the Rouge Plant and every ounce of our experience. As you read this, a new $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine plant, started only last fall, is nearly completed. A new magnesium alloy plant, one of the few in the country, is already in production on light-weight airplane engine castings. Work is right now under way on a new $18,000,000 plant for mass production of big bomber assemblies. Orders have been filled for military vehicles of several types, including army reconnaissance cars, staff cars and bomb service trucks. In the midst of this activity for National Defense, building the 29 millionth Ford car is simply one part of the day's work. The public has acclaimed the 1941 Ford car as the finest in Ford history. Ford Dealers are enjoying their greatest sales and expecting their best year since 1937. It is good to be producing the things America needs, and to be setting records on the way!

Uncle Sam Patrols the Seas

Revelation by Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, that U. S. neutrality patrols are operating as far as 2,000 miles offshore means U. S. warships are on lookout for Nazi raiders as far out as the east coast of Greenland and within a short distance of the Azores. Even further extension of naval activities was hinted in a statement by President Roosevelt that the U. S. Navy could enter the combat areas surrounding the British Isles "in defense of the American Hemisphere."

War And Living At Home

Day by day war is affecting our lives more than anything else. More and more it will continue to do so.

Industry is being geared for the primary production of war materials. Every day we see new signs of it.

The government is offering defense bonds and planning new taxes to hit everybody. A ceiling is being put over prices to keep down inflation.

There is now a great demand for food and food products. There will be an increasing demand. We are fortunate that we live close to nature and the soil.

Our Town

Those of us who reside in the smaller towns become sentimental regarding the land right now. We think in terms of returns from our labor expended on the soil.

There is the song of the city and we wouldn't want to do without it, but the sweetest words are spoken of the small towns like ours, our villages.

Of Importance

The weekly newspaper gets its rating in the line-up of important factors in American homes. 49.6% of the families in this land subscribe to a weekly newspaper.

THREE PERMANENT

REFORMS NECESSARY

No matter whether Hitler is defeated soon or late, sound national defense now requires three permanent reforms in the rural South:

- 1. Better medical service for all our poor, white and black.
2. Increased food and feed, having all farm families everywhere every year asked to meet established standards—following, if possible, Dr. Buller's sound rule, "Plant 25 per cent more feed and food acreage than you estimate is necessary!"
3. All women, both landowners and tenants, should learn and practice the basic rules of health and nutrition.

Argentina has established an advisory Council to deal with all matters of international aviation.

A JOKE A DAY

Mr. Grouch: "Well, it's like Kipling said, 'Woman's nothing but a rag, a bone and a hank of hair.'"
Mrs. Grouch: "Yes, and what's a man? What's a man, I say? Nothing but a rag, a groan and a tank of air."

Little Joan: "Mother, are you the nearest relatives I have?"
Mother: "Yes, dear, and your father is the closest."

Panhandler: "Lady, I've asked for money, begged for money, and cried for money—"
Lady: "Did you every try working for money?"
Panhandler: "No, ma'am, I'm doing the alphabet and I ain't come to 'W' yet."

Legionhelr Robert L. Legg of Peoria, Illinois, says that the bedside 'phone of one of the neighborhood doctors rang one night, awakening him from a sound slumber. "My wife, doctor," shrieked a voice. "It's her appendix. You'd better come at once."

The doctor sighed. "Go on back to bed," he said. "She hasn't got appendicitis. I'll look in tomorrow."
The husband became wilder; choking and sputtering, he insisted on immediate attention. "But she can't have appendicitis," insisted the medico, "I took her appendix out three years ago and I never heard of anyone having two appendices."

"Yea-ah," said the husband, bitterly. "Did you ever hear of a man having a second wife?"

George Behrends of Chicago says that he saw this sign on a service station at Peoria: "Run in before you run out."

Judge: "Now, sir, please tell the court exactly what passed between you and your wife during the quarrel."
Defendant: "A flat-iron, rolling pin, six plates and a teakettle."

WAR CHANGES FARM LIFE, SAYS DEAN

DAVIE ALFALFA AND BARLEY—J. Frank Hendrix, left, is showing T. P. Dwiggin some of the fine alfalfa and barley he has grown this year on his farm in Mocksville township known as the old Gilliam farm and once owned by J. M. Summers. The alfalfa was grown on land adjoining that of barley where they are standing. This is the fourth year Mr. Hendrix has grown alfalfa on this particular land and the crop is some of the finest in the county. Practically entirely free of any foreign growths, Mr. Hendrix attributes the good crops to excellent ground preparation and intensive cultivation. It has been cut on an average of 4 times a year for the last 4 years, yielding about a ton and a half to the acre each time. On the land he turned under a crop of red clover and lespedeza, later added lime and high grade fertilizer. The barley seen above is the first Mr. Hendrix has grown on this particular farm of about 150 acres and he is doing well with that crop as you can see.—(Enterprise Staff Photo.)

Jane will represent the Southwestern district in the state 4-H health contest July 18—August 1 in Raleigh.

For the last 8 months Lester has served as junior assistant scout master of troop 75. In 1939 he was selected with 30 other high ranking scouts from Umharrie council who served as guides for two weeks at the New York World Fair. Cotton Moody of Cooleemee was the first scout in Davie county to receive the Eagle badge, highest award in scouting, and Lester was the second.

SUMMARY OF WAR NEWS

A great new British-Axis battleground appears to be shaping up in the oldest civilized areas in all the world—Egypt and the Bible lands—with the Imperial Hittite of Suez the distant, ultimate issue.

The desperate and fateful struggle for Crete moved on toward a decision that will affect the whole course of the war, and there were indications that the British Mediterranean fleet had entered the great battle. British sources stated without giving details that a German attempt to land troops by speedboats to support some 4,500 aerially transported soldiers had been defeated—by strong British naval action, it was hinted.

The Germans ordered all foreign embassies and legations in Paris—including American diplomats—to leave by June 10, in a move apparently intended to show that they had no intention of restoring Paris as the full capital of France. Some observers think this action also presages a drive against Gibraltar by the Nazis.

The early release of all 140 Americans taken off the sunken Egyptian liner Zamzam was first promised by the Nazis, but subsequently left in doubt by the declaration that the German military authorities would have to make sure that 24 American ambulance drivers among the internees would not be able later to give German military secrets to the British.

The French government at Vichy—with which the United States as well as Britain had reached what amounted to an open break—was represented as surprised at President Roosevelt's denunciation of Vichy's apparent determination to cooperate with the Nazis.

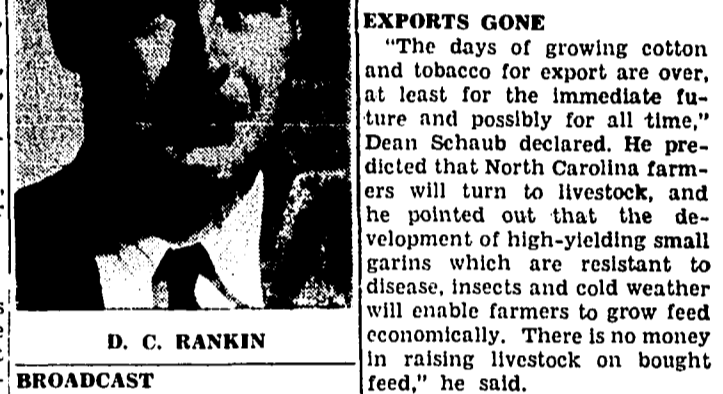

Two actions of the French government—an undeclared shooting war against the British over Syria and a stated

150 ATTEND SMALL GRAIN FIELD DAY WED.

A note of warning that "farmers are going to have to change their way of living when the full impacts of the war are felt," together with praise for the interest shown in small grains in Davie county, were voiced here Wednesday by Dean I. O. Schaub of State College at a meeting on the J. G. Crawford farm. The field day, which was for the purpose of inspecting wheat, oats and barley demonstrations conducted by Crawford in co-operation with County Agent R. C. Rankin, was attended by 150 persons.

The principal talks were made by Dean Schaub; E. C. Tatum, chairman of the Davie county board of commissioners and manager of the Erwin Cotton Mills farm; E. C. Blair, extension agronomist of State College; and W. Herbert White, young Caswell county farmer and a member of the state AAA committee.

EXPORTS GONE

"The days of growing cotton and tobacco for export are over, at least for the immediate future and possibly for all time," Dean Schaub declared. He predicted that North Carolina farmers will turn to livestock, and he pointed out that the development of high-yielding small grains which are resistant to disease, insects and cold weather will enable farmers to grow feed economically. There is no money in raising livestock on bought feed," he said.

DAIRY COWS

Tatum challenged the state college extension director to find another county in the state where farming is more diversified than in Davie. Only two other counties in North Carolina have more dairy cows on the basis of farm population, Tatum said. In the matter of small grain yields, however, 40 counties surpass Davie in wheat yields and 28 counties make higher average oats yields, he reported. In comparison, only 11 counties surpass Davie in cotton yields.

WHEAT PRICES

White told of the wheat referendum which will be held on May 31, and he said, "We North Carolina farmers must support the big mid-western wheat growers in their emergency if we expect them, and their congressmen, to continue to support us in our cotton and tobacco emergencies." He said that wheat prices will be protected at $1.14 per bushel by the government if resistance are approved by two-thirds or more of the growers, but prices will fall to the world market level of about 45 cents per bushel if quotas are rejected and the government loan program is not continued.

Farm Agent Rankin and Assistant Agent W. H. Kimrey explained the wheat, barley and oats test on Mr. Crawford's farm, after which lemonade, both "pink" and white was served the crowd with the compliments of A. G. Floyd, director of the Chilean Nitrate Education Bureau at Raleigh.

Other guests recognized by Agent Rankin, who presided, included: R. W. Shaffner, extension farm management specialist of State College; E. C. Jernigan, area conservationist of the soil conservation service, both of Salisbury; Guy C. McClellan, work unit conservationist of the SCS, Mocksville; Lock Halland, farm security supervisor in Davie; and J. W. Davis, C. G. Kirkman, and C. M. Absher, vocational agriculture-teachers in the county.

4-H Girl and Her Prize Steer

Anne Stackhouse, 10, of Dillon, S. C., a 4-H Club member, is shown with Bully Boy, champion beef Hereford she raised, after the steer had won the grand prize at the Orangeburg, S. C., county show. Anne then sold the 1,070-pound steer to a packing house for $535. The steer is a prime example of the stock being raised in the Tidewater South, where the industry is developing rapidly.

SOIL SURVEYS MADE ON 81,000 ACRES IN DAVIE, SAYS CRAWFORD

J. G. Crawford supervisor of the Middle Yadkin soil conservation district, announces that conservation surveys showing erosion conditions, soil types, slope of land, and present land use have been completed on 81,000 acres of land in Davie county. These surveys are used as a basis for developing complete soil conservation plans for farms whose owners are cooperating with the district's conservation program.

Soil technicians of the Soil Conservation Service working in the Middle Yadkin district went over the land field by field in making the surveys. The information they collected is carefully recorded on aerial photographs of the farms which are used later in determining the best use that can be made of the land and in the development of well-rounded soil conservation plans for the farms.

"Sound soil conservation is based on a full knowledge of the soil, its possibilities and limitations," said Mr. Crawford. "No two soils are alike, so the first step in conservation planning is to find out what kind of soils are on the farm, their present condition, and to what use they may best be put and at the same time control erosion."

FARM QUESTIONS ARE ANSWERED

Question: What precautions can be taken to prevent moth damage to rugs?

Answer: If the house is to be closed up during the summer while the family is away on vacation, it is wise to sprinkle two or three pounds of naphthalene or paradichlorobenzene crystals or flakes on the rug and roll it up in the center of the floor. Also, a small cloth bag of the crystals placed in the piano with the front closed will help protect the felts from moth damage.

Question: Does it help black locust trees to fertilize them?

Answer: It helps any tree to receive a fertilizer application, says R. W. Graeber, Extension forester of State College. Superphosphate will stimulate the growth of black locust trees. If the locust trees are more than two years old, Graeber recommends a broadcast application of 300 pounds of superphosphate or 150 pounds of triple-superphosphate per acre. Two to four ounces of superphosphate should be applied in a circle two-to-three feet in size around each tree at planting time.

Question: When should cotton be side-dressed?

Answer: Within 10 days after chopping on all except heavy soil types, cotton will respond to a side application of 16 pounds of soluble nitrogen, such as 100 pounds of nitrate of soda, per acre. The best time to chop cotton is when the weather is warm and when the second pair of leaves are three-fourths grown. Leave two or three plants in hills 8 to 12 inches apart.

GRANDFATHERS' TALES

Grandfather was coming home late at night. It was very dark. At the side of the road he saw a tall object with two large eyes and two or three small ones. He spoke to it but it did not answer. He shot the thing, and small eyes came all over it. He went up close and found it was a stump in which some hunters had built a fire, with the fire shining through knotholes.

My great-grandmother was riding home when she saw a deer with a panther on its back. The deer began to run under the horse trying to rub the panther off, scaring the horse so that it ran all the way home. Great-great-grandfather dashed up where the deer was. The panther had killed it and covered it with leaves. So Great-great-grandfather climbed a tree and when the panther came back with its mate and three young panthers, he killed all five of them.

Contracts will be let soon for twenty-two miles of power lines in nine communities of Clay County, according to G. H. Wheeler, farm agent of the N. C. State College Extension Service.

Farm Questions Are Answered

Question: When should cotton receive a side dressing?

Answer: Cotton should be sidedressed within 10 days after chopping on all except heavy soil types with 10 pounds of soluble nitrogen. An example of this would be 100 pounds of nitrate of soda to the acre. If a 3-8-3 fertilizer was used, the nitrate of soda application should be increased to 125 pounds to the acre. If rust symptoms have developed in previous crops, an additional 25 to 30 pounds of potash within 10 days after chopping should be used if the potash content of the fertilizer used was not increased. This would mean the addition of 50 to 100 pounds of muriate of potash or 125 to 250 pounds of kainit.

Question: How should poultry houses with dirt floors be disinfected?

Answer: Dirt floors, regardless of the care given them, are a distinct menace to the welfare of the poultry industry, says Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the State College Poultry Department. If conditions actually necessitate houses with such floors, these should be scraped once each month. Four to six inches of dirt should be removed and replaced with sand or soil from unpolluted sources. The material removed should be taken to some place where chickens do not range.

Question: What is the best method of feeding swine?

Answer: The self-feeder method is the best way to feed fattening hogs. It saves labor and feed, is an ideal way to utilize dry feeds, help feed clean, and enables each pig to select his own ration. Where nursing sows are self-fed, the pigs will learn to eat from the feeder before weaning time. When the sows are taken away at weaning time, the pigs may be continued on the self-feeder without interruption.

Question: When should small grains for hay?

Answer: The best time to now small grains for hay, says E. C. Blair, Extension agronomist of State College, is when they are in the dough stage. When the hay has wilted it should be raked into windrows and cured one or two days in the windrow or in piles. In the Piedmont section, small grains are usually mature for hay between May 15 and June 1.

Question: Is a hay mixture composed of sorghum, millet or Sudan grass with cowpeas classed as soil-depleting under the AAA program?

Answer: The acreage will be classified as soil-depleting if one-half or more of the growth harvested consists of sorghum, millet or Sudan grass. If one-half or more of the growth consists as non-depleting.

Draft Head Says More Men Needed In Defense Industry

REGISTRANTS BE CLASSIFIED

Maj. Gen. Hershey, Selective Service Deputy Director, speaking in Lafayette, Ind., said that misguided patriotism of employers was allowing many men to be drafted who are more useful in industry. Employers and registrants should not hesitate to appeal classification, he said.

"All of us should carefully consider where we are best fitted to serve," Gen. Hershey said. "It is certainly neither desirable or necessary that each man dedicate himself to a future in the armed forces."

Selective Service Headquarters directed immediate classification of the 10,000,000 remaining registrants in order to obtain complete data on skilled workers and potential soldiers, and amended its regulations to permit induction of some of the registrants previously barred because of comparatively minor criminal records.

Gen. Hershey proposed amendment of the Selective Service Act to Congress to allow deferment by age groups so that those selected are of an age that will permit them to serve effectively in the reserve forces for ten years, as now required. He said only 11 percent of the men inducted before March 1 were from 31 to 36 years and the greatest number were from 18 to 27.

Labor Training

President Roosevelt asked Congress for $158,000,000 to train 3,000,000 additional defense workers, of which 288,000 would be trained in engineering, 10,000 in chemistry, physics, and production supervision, and 500,000 in courses teaching rural youths industrial skills.

Defense Plants

OPM announced the Government, up to March 30, committed itself to pay for 331 new defense factories, costing an average of $5,750,000 each, and estimated the number of new privately financed defense plants reached 904, costing an average of $729,000 each.

Sub-Contracting

Francis J. Trecker of the Defense Contract Service, speaking in San Francisco, said that not more than 50 percent of the nation's machines are being used in defense production. He said if contractors do not voluntarily farm out their orders, sub-contracting would be made mandatory because there is so much work to be done all machines must be used.

Labor Disputes

The Defense Mediation Board announced settlement of 5 strikes including controversies involving 61 plants and 160,000 employees of the General Motors Corporation and 8,100 employees of the Bendix Aviation Corporation. The U. S. Conciliation Service reported settlement of 33 strikes.

Agriculture

The Department of Agriculture, in a general crop report, said conditions indicated: (1) a winter-wheat crop of about 653,000,000 bushels, larger than 25 of the last 30 years; (2) a good, but not exceptional, rye crop, about 12 percent above last year; (3) a hay crop, probably larger than last year; (4) better pasture conditions in 43 of the 48 States; and (5) milk production and egg production per animal at new high records as a result of higher prices, an early spring, new grass and liberal feeding.

The Commodity Exchange Administration requested exchanges to study additional curbs on speculation in all agricultural commodities. Price Control Administrator Henderson asked four commodity exchanges to confer with him regarding prevention of undesirable speculation in cocoa, pepper, rubber and coffee.

Air Progress

Maj. Gen. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Corps, speaking in Washington, said the air force "is well on its way and will be ready when called on." The War Department announced the first 21 of a larger number of "flying fortresses" had flown to Hawaii to strengthen the island defenses.

The Navy asked Congress to enact legislation permitting training of Reserve enlisted men as pilots. The President asked Congress for $61,800,000 to expand the Civil Aeronautics Administration landing field program from 250 to 399 projects.

Defies British

Rashid Ali Beg Gailani, the pro-German premier of Iraq who recently took control of the government in a coup d'etat is reported seeking to cut the British off from the rich Mosul oil fields at Kirkuk. The British have spent hundreds of millions to develop the great oil deposits.

Army

The War Department announced that it has selected the location of camp sites needed for "possible expansion of the Army" and is ready to start work on the new camps immediately if necessary. The Army announced its anti-aircraft strength had been more than tripled in the past year and a large portion of anti-aircraft regiments are equipped to transport every gun and every man in one movement.

The Army announced it will construct five new recreational camps in the South Atlantic States. WPA announced nearly 1,100 WPA library employees are assisting in the operation of libraries serving the Army.

Navy

The Navy commissioned the 35,000 ton battleship "Washington." The Navy announced it acquired 26 auxiliary vessels during April at a total cost of $11,750,000.

The Department directed that men enlisting in the Naval Reserve be released from active duty after the emergency regardless of the length of their enlistments.

Ships

Maritime Commission launched six new cargo ships and asked operators of American inter-coastal vessels for 40 of their 108 ships for the 2,000,000-ton shipping pool for national defense and aid to Britain. The Commission also conferred with Great Lakes shipbuilding companies regarding the construction inland of sea-going vessels which could be moved to the Atlantic via the Mississippi.

The Senate passed and returned to the House for concurring in amendments a bill authorizing the President to take over foreign ships in U. S. ports.

Foreign Relations

President Roosevelt, notified of voluntary French collaboration with Germany, issued a statement "It is inconceivable" the French people would collaborate with a power seeking "utter destruction of liberty, freedom and popular institutions everywhere." At the same time the President ordered 13 French ships in U. S. ports taken into protective custody — including the "Normandie."

The President told a press conference that Germany's proclamation of a combat area in the Red Sea presents a question of German ability to make a blockade effective there. He recalled the U. S. has fought two undeclared wars to maintain freedom of the seas — against Barbary pirates in the Mediterranean and against British, French and Spanish privateers in the West Indies.

Housing

Defense Housing Coordinator Palmer announced contracts were awarded for 2,800 new defense dwelling units, bringing to a total 63,200 the number ordered. He also reported completion of 325 units, making a total of nearly 10,000 now available.

Wool

Farmers now marketing their 1941 wool clips are receiving higher prices, generally, than at any time since the early months of 1929 reports the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Pay It Off

With the tremendous amount of money going into defense work, it means a greater demand in farm produce and the probable rise in farm prices. During this past year there was a noticeable increase in the farmer's income and with this he has brought down his indebtedness on his land.

They Will Face It

There are many young people who are walking from the campus facing the world with sheepskin and scepticism. The commencement speaker who gets up on a platform and tells youth that opportunities galore are running rampant outside the door knows full well that his listeners don't believe him.

Good News For Cotton

Many years ago a distinguished southern general used cotton bales for defense purposes in a famous battle staged in New Orleans during the engagement called the Civil War.

If this discovery tests satisfactorily it will stir enthusiasm in the southern states for cotton has been steadily losing its world market and has to find some way of bringing cotton into more popular use here at home.

June 1 Is Final Date To Enroll In Campaign

With 60,000 or more farm families already enrolled, John W. Goodman, assistant director of Extension at State College, says a concerted drive will be made to enlist another 40,000 in the 'Food and Feed for Family Living' campaign before the June 1 deadline for enrollments.

"We are very gratified over the response to the campaign to enlist the support of farm families in North Carolina in the 'Food for Defense' program," Goodman said.

"When a farmer or his wife signs one of the 'Food and Feed for Family Living' cards, there is nothing binding on them except their conscience.

County Agricultural Workers' Councils are active in every one of North Carolina's 100 counties in enlisting the support of farm families.

Governor Broughton will sign a certificate or recognition for every family which grows and conserves at least 75 percent of its food and feed requirements for the year.

Summer Shelters Prove Profitable

Summer range shelters will pay as much on the investment as any other expenditure the poultryman can make, according to T. T. Brown, extension poultryman of N. C. State College.

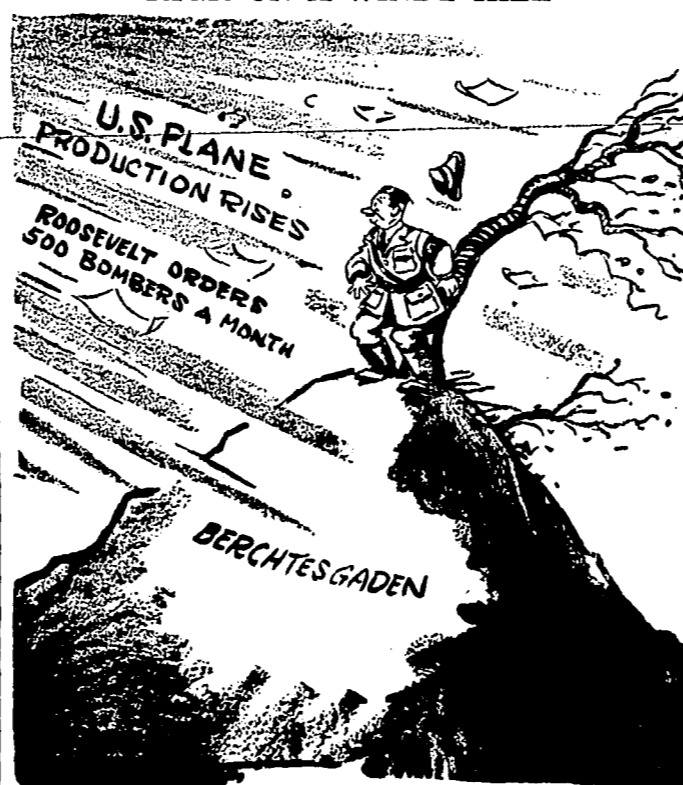

"In order to race competition more successfully," Brown stated, "the poultry raiser should be interested in any piece of equipment or practice that really gives results such as the summer range shelter does."

"The use of the summer range shelter helps to eliminate disease and intestinal parasites, puts vigor into the pullets, and makes for better egg size and production by properly developing the birds," Brown said.

Certificates will be awarded at County Achievement Days to be held next winter.

THREE INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Miss Iris Belle Wells and Lloyd Gordon, of Yadkinville, and Miss Bernice Eidson, of Elkin, are in a serious condition at Hugh Chatham Memorial Hospital in Elkin as the result of an automobile accident on the Elkin-Ronda road about 9 o'clock Sunday night.

According to reports, the car driven by young Gordon sideswiped the model-A Ford of Carl Burgess, of Trap Hill, who was traveling at a very slow rate of speed, then left the road on the left and struck a tree some 50 feet away.

Miss Eidson was the most seriously injured, suffering skull fractures. Miss Wells also suffered a slight concussion, a twisted ankle and severe cuts and bruises.

Hens Appreciate Cool Air And Fresh Water

Hens are like humans, they appreciate comfortable quarters and fresh cool water when hot weather descends upon the farm. C. F. Parrish, Extension poultryman of N. C. State College, says: "Don't be afraid of giving the poultry laying flock too much ventilation in hot weather."

Continuing, he emphasized that it takes a cool house and plenty of fresh cool water, together with good management and liberal rations of a good feed to get high egg production in the summer.

"Be sure that the spaces between the rafters above the plate in front of the house are also open," the specialist said. "In case of a gable-roofed house if no roof ventilators were built in, take off a board or two at the end of the house near the roof so as to allow the hot air to escape from the house."

Parrish explained that, when the weather gets hot, feed consumption decreases and egg production begins to drop. When this occurs, it is wise to feed the layers a moist mash at noon each day. Mix the regular mash with cool water or skim milk.

Cull out the birds that quit laying between now and September, the poultryman advised. These quitters and early molters can be spotted in the flock by watching for their pale shrunken combs, and the return of the yellow pigment to the eye rings and beaks.

Dairy Animals Need Training For Shows

Prof. Fred M. Haig of the State College Animal Husbandry Department is annually called upon to judge dairy cows and other farm animals at county, community and sectional fairs and livestock shows throughout North Carolina.

"It is not desirable to have dairy heifers excessively fat for exhibition purposes. It is necessary, though, for the well-fitted animal to carry a fair amount of flesh. A very thin animal will have little chance of winning.

Is America At War With Germany?

QUESTION STUMPS PUZZLE EXPERTS

Are there any international puzzlersmiths about? If, so, here's a job for them. It's to determine just how things stand between the United States and Germany. During the last decade or so the world has seen many strange international relationships, but there have been few, if any, to compare with the situation now existing between this country and the Third Reich of Adolf Hitler. Even the experts at the State Department can't exactly describe it for you. Apparently statesmen need a new vocabulary to cope with the present mix-up in international relations.

In the first place, is the United States at war with Germany? Of course, there's been no declaration of war, but such diplomatic niceties have hardly seemed necessary during the past few years. Here in Washington you find no dearth of experts who are ready to argue—and very convincingly, too — that America is already at war with Germany; that what a Nation does is far more important than what its diplomats say and that the unmistakable intent of the Lend-Lease Act is to insure a German defeat. Since the United States is committed to a German defeat and since Germany is at war, how is it possible to believe that anything but a state of war exists between the two countries, according to this line of reasoning.

Germany Remembers 1917 Mistake

On the other hand, just as convincing arguments are brought forward that the United States and Germany are not at war, and doubt is expressed if the two Nations ever will be. The main contention of those supporting this point of view is that neither Germany nor the United States wishes to see the latter enter the conflict and so both will avoid certain acts that would be natural and inevitable if either side issued a formal declaration of war.

Take the question of convoys as an example. Suppose the United States started conveying goods to Britain this spring. Would that automatically mean a full dress war with Germany? Not according to a widely held view here. It is held that Germany would sink as many convoys as it could, but that it would take no other action against the United States. And the reason is Germany's realization that an actual, de jure state of war would force this country into a rush of armament-building that it can hardly hope to attain without the stimulus of belligerency. While the present-day masters of Germany have broken with most tradition, they haven't forgotten that Germany made a fatal mistake in 1917 when it assumed that America would be less dangerous as a belligerent than as a pro-Allied non-belligerent.

It is interesting to note that while the Germans openly threaten to sink any vessel trying to reach the British Isles, they have carefully and obviously avoided formulating any other threats against the United States. In fact, German newspapers have chorused that Germany wants no war with the United States and that a conflict can come only from a deliberate American maneuver into it.

Axis Chickens Come Home to Roost

One element of irony which observers here profess to see in the present situation between Germany and the United States is that much of America's action in behalf of Britain is hidden within that wreckage of international law to which Germany

Meanwhile, all is diplomatically sweetness and light between Germany and the United States. Although neither is represented by an Ambassador in the other's capital, Charges d' Affaires are carrying on with the best good will, while most, if not all, of the proper diplomatic amenities are observed. Nor can this be traced solely to any diplomatic inertia which might conceivably prevent Germany and the United States from withdrawing their staffs in view of the obvious situation. It seems to arise, rather, from a desire on both sides to do nothing to change the situation. The United States wishes to do all in its power to aid Great Britain, but to avoid actual war with Germany. Germany, in turn, seems perfectly ready to sink American-convoys ships, but has no desire to spur American production through the wartime regulations which would follow one of those rare, old-fashioned declarations of war.—Christian Science Monitor.

PUBLIC APATHY IS FACTOR IN STRIKES IN AMERICA

PUBLIC VIEW TOO LIGHTHEARTED

One of the things that most impresses this observer today in Washington is the difference in viewpoint between the experts of the Army and Navy on one hand and of the uninformed public on the other as to the outcome of the European war.

It is a difference of viewpoint which really goes to the bottom of a lot of defense problems, like strikes and production, and it is tied in to the reaction of the public on major issues at every point.

Either the military officials here are wholly wrong or the plight of Great Britain is far more urgent than the man in the street realizes.

It does no good to mince matters. Americans hope and believe that democracy triumphs in the long run and it is popular and in a sense proper to assume that Britain will win. But if this assumption is accepted too lightly (and military men think it is) then it is apt to slow up aid. In fact, according to Office of Production Management Production Chief John D. Biggers, testifying yesterday, and dozens of other officials, this popular lack of comprehension of the urgency and size of the crisis is the chief single obstacle that defense faces.

Lack of Awareness

"The public just doesn't understand!" We have heard it said again and again.

Let us be blunt about it. Germany has got a naval and air noose round the British Isles and is trying to draw it tight. That is the big battle of the day military men say. It would be hard to find an Army or Navy official to decline to comment publicly at all. But if America's aid to Britain and its own defense output is being held up because a realistic picture is not being painted, then it becomes a duty to lay the real threat before the county.

There is a difference, too, between lightly agreeing that Britain might lose, and emotionally accepting the thought, with all it means to civilization and to America's own safety.

Yet that possibility, so far as any information goes that this correspondent has been able to get from informed experts, does not exist. They may be wrong. They themselves hope they are. But again and again one finds the impression that without full, immediate, aggressive American aid, in ships, supplies and convoys, Britain is in a bad way. That phrase "in a bad way" is a phrase here who would absolutely affirm in private conversation on a strictly military basis that he thought Britain would surely win. Because their forecasts would sound gloomy many would the point.

Understanding Is Needed

A popular understanding of what the real urgency is would do more than a thousand pieces of mandatory legislation to put the program over. It was not particularly hard to settle the Allis-Chalmers strike after 75 days when management and union really made up their mind to settle. But why could not they have done so in the first place? Primarily because, it is felt here, neither side really shared the feeling of gravity that Washington feels, or appreciated the scope of the German threat.

Other harsh facts must be faced. One of them is that Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy is not popular with a considerable minority of the public. This minority is not satisfied that the stake for which it is being asked to risk war is adequate. An articulate and very able group of spokesmen are presenting this view. It does not matter particularly that many of them are men who said there would be no war in the first place, and then called it a "phony" war. Their voices are still powerful.

One thing Mr. Roosevelt might do. He might define more specifically what the aims of the Nation are. To some of us it may be that these seem fairly obvious, but to others the European situation is still as much of a confused and incomprehensible muddle as, any, some of the labor disputes next door.

Another line of approach would be to continue to emphasize the extreme gravity of the situation. This can be done without discouraging the British: the British have never feared to look possibilities squarely in the eye. And now to help on the program the Balkan war may once more hammer home the Hitler threat. Yet even so the real threat, in the long run, is the battle of the Atlantic Ocean and the noose round the throat of Britain, as experts see it. Premier Mussolini's ignominious failure has to some degree distracted American attention from that threat, and to that extent proved a disservice. Army and

Wickard Calls Farm Vote May 31

Declaring safe management of the country's large wheat supplies an important defense measure, Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard (above) has proclaimed a marketing quota for wheat and has announced May 31 as the date of a referendum at which wheat farmers will mark ballots such as the one shown to determine whether quotas shall continue in effect on the big 1941 crop. Marketing quotas are provided by the AAA farm program, and enable farmers to safely store their surplus for use as needed, Wickard said. According to current estimates, U. S. farmers will have enough wheat on hand after harvest this year to supply the nation's expected needs for nearly two years.

Twisting the Dials
WITH A. L. SIMON

So you want to be a radio news analyst. Before you make up your mind read this story of one man's preparations and precautions for a nightly fifteen minute program. The man is Gabriel Heatter, who employs a staff of four to aid him in his work.

First, there is the problem of reading the news, analyzing it, and checking facts. Then, there's the problem of getting the story behind the story.

Heatter has one assistant whose full time job it is to do research in the New York Public Library. She calls him on the phone at intervals for new assignments. Another assistant devotes his full time to research work on national defense. It's his task to keep Heatter informed on statistics and the latest moves, both proposed and real.

Who is the fourth man? To get the story behind the story Heatter has an elaborate set-up. There's a Washington, D. C. newspaperman who covers the Capital for him and a weekly Sunday afternoon four hour staff meeting which includes researchers, the Washington pressman and invited guests.

Heatter starts the first draft of his nightly broadcast promptly at eight in the morning; to get the facts in his mind and a rough idea of what he wants to say. This draft takes three hours. After lunch he does a re-write job, and after dinner, he writes his third and final version of the script. He rewrites this, right up to air time. Heatter turns out, he estimates, over four thousand words a day although his final script is only 1,800 words long. At the rate of five broadcasts a week, including all the rewriting, he writes the equivalent of a medium length novel every five weeks.

Wheat Vote Be Held March 31

United States wheat farmers in 1941 have prospects for the highest income from their crop since 1927, according to S. H. Chaffin, member of the County AAA Committee. Taking into account the wheat loan and the conservation and parity payments which farmers may earn under the 1941 program, Chaffin pointed out, farmers may expect a total return of $937,000,000 from the estimated 1941 wheat crop of 850,000,000 bushels. The 85 percent of parity loan for 1941, however, depends upon the outcome of the referendum vote May 31, Chaffin said. The law prohibits a loan when a marketing quota is voted down, he said, because loans on an uncontrolled surplus are considered an unwarranted risk of public money.

By the recent action of Congress, the 1941 wheat loan has been set at a level which is expected, on a nation-wide basis, to average about 97 cents a bushel to the producer. Chaffin said that in the last 2 years the United States average farm (Continued on back page)

SUMMARY OF WAR NEWS

British and Greeks suffer grave reverses in Crete and it became apparent that barring some miracle of warfare they could not stand much more. Presumably outnumbered and certainly exhausted—under what London called the appalling strain on the longest concentrated bombing attack ever withstood by fighting men—they were forced back from the Cretan capital of Canea and left in a position of obvious peril.

From the African theater as well as in Crete—and Africa is tied in with Crete in the advance movements of the developing Axis offensive against the Middle-East and the Suez Canal—German land successes were acknowledged by the British.

A British bombing squadron raided the port of Sfax in French Tunisia—the first time war has touched that colony—and French and British airmen were fighting over French Syria, whose air bases have been handed over to the Nazis' use. In the Syrian fighting, an American-built bomber was declared shot down with its British crew. At Sfax—which the British presumably struck in the belief that it is serving as an Axis supply base—a 5,000-ton ship in harbor was set a-flame.

The commander of Germany's resurgent navy served emphatic notice on the United States Sunday that any American convoying of supplies to Britain would be an "open war act and bare, unprovoked attack" which would justify Nazi action "even against American warships." These plainspoken words by Germany's Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, made public in Berlin the day after the sinking of the mighty British battle cruiser Hood, were carried significantly in a special interview with Domel, official news agency of Japan.

King George II of Greece, who fled to Crete when the Germans conquered the Greek mainland, moved on to Cairo after escaping Nazi air-borne troops and bombs, and issued a message to his people that the fight would be continued.

Japanese troops were responsible for a new strain on relations between Tokyo and Washington by breaking down the doors of two warehouses at Halphong, French Indo-China, and carting off $10,000 worth of U. S. products belonging to two American companies.

Germany claims to have sunk 11 British cruisers, 8 destroyers in the battle of Crete. London admits the loss of 2 cruisers and 4 destroyers.

In his fireside chat President Roosevelt said the losses of British shipping at present were twice the building capacity of England and this country.

The American Federation of Labor ordered all affiliates to refrain from striking against defense industries until all possibilities of mediation had been exhausted. The action followed the President's proclamation of an unlimited emergency.

The war in Iraq simmered. Ninety per cent of the motion pictures shown in Palestine are American.

New Farm Bill Becomes Law

President Roosevelt signed Monday the legislation providing 85 percent parity government loans on wheat, cotton, corn, rice and tobacco.

It is estimated that the average loan rate would be 13.6 cents a pound for cotton, 71 cents a bushel for wheat, 89 cents a bushel for rice and 29 cents a pound for tobacco.

The effect of this law is to establish these as minimum prices, since a farmer can place his produce in storage under a government loan made at this rate rather than sell it at a lower figure.

Mother And Son Taken by Death

Mrs. Annie Mae Grubbs Ward, 29, and infant son died at City Memorial Hospital, Thomasville, at 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

The funeral was held at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at Eaton's Baptist Church, with Rev. E. W. Turner in charge. Burial was in the church graveyard.

Mrs. Ward was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Grubbs, of Mocksville, who survive. Other survivors include the husband, John R. Ward, of Thomasville; five sisters, Misses Geneva, Dorothy and Clara Grubbs, all of Mocksville; Mrs. Melvin Richle, Mocksville, route 2; and Mrs. Alma Burchard, of Denbigh, Va., and three brothers, Paul and Dwight Grubbs, Mocksville, and William Grubbs, Boone.

Ninety per cent of the motion pictures shown in Palestine are American.

GIANT BATTLE CRUISERS SUNK IN ATLANTIC

The pride of both the German and British navies now lie at the bottom of Davy Jones locker. The Bismarck, top, 35,000-ton German battleship, sunk the 42,100-ton British battle cruiser Hood, lower picture, last Saturday between Greenland and Iceland with one lucky shot that blew the largest battleship in the world to bits when it hit the powder magazines. The British began a revenge hunt that ended with the sinking of the Bismarck Tuesday morning about 4 o'clock about 400 miles west of Brest as the German cruiser was attempting to make a French port. The Bismarck was first sighted in the chase by an American-made bomber and was attacked by aerial torpedoes that flew from the airplane carrier, Ark Royal. Around midnight Monday aerial torpedoes damaged the Bismarck so badly that the steering apparatus of the battleship was knocked out and the huge ship was travelling in circles. The British cruiser, Prince of Wales, then arrived at the scene for the kill. The Bismarck sent a final wireless before she went down saying that the ship could not be handled, fighting to the last shell and "long live the Fuehrer." The entire officers and crews of both ships, not less than 1,300 each, were lost. This epic of the sea has not yet decided the question of whether or not aeroplanes are more important than sea power but it has proven the necessity of close cooperation of naval and sea arms in modern warfare. Aerial torpedoes weigh 2,000 pounds and must be dropped at a height of not more than 100 feet.

F. R. Names Unlimited Emergency

President Roosevelt, in an historic radio address Tuesday night, committed the United States unreservedly to a policy of active resistance against all German efforts to gain control of the seas.

Proclaiming a state of unlimited emergency, he promised the nation a dynamic defense against attack, or threat of attack.

He told the world, in the face of Berlin warnings, of the administration's determination to deliver the goods to Britain, utilizing the present patrols which "are helping now" and "all additional measures . . . (which) are being devised by our military and naval technicians."

He gave advance notice that occupation of Dakar, the Azores or the Cape Verde Islands by Axis forces would constitute a direct danger to the safety and freedom of the hemisphere.

"We in the Americas," he declared, "will decide for ourselves whether and when, and where, our American interests are attacked or our security threatened."

"We are placing our armed forces in strategic military position."

"We will not hesitate to use our armed forces to repel attack."

To underscore the acute gravity of the world situation as he saw it, President Roosevelt issued his formal declaration "that an unlimited national emergency exists and requires the strengthening of our defense to the extreme limit of our national power and authority."

CAPITAL-LABOR
Addressing himself particularly to capital and labor, he asserted that no disputes of any sort must interfere with arms production. The government henceforth would exert all its powers to end production stoppages. "Articles of defense must have the undisputed right of way in every industrial plant in the country."

President Roosevelt's proclamation of an unlimited national emergency—an act without known precedent in American history—places powers at his disposal to deal with virtually any contingency, legal experts said today.

Except for an actual declaration of war—something congress alone can make—President Roosevelt was represented as having full authority to meet any crisis.

His powers, legal experts said, would permit him, for instance, to commandeer or shut down radio stations, to take over utilities to obtain the necessary electricity for munitions production, or to compel transportation priority for movement of troops or war materials. In each case, it was noted, however, a specific presidential proclamation would be required.

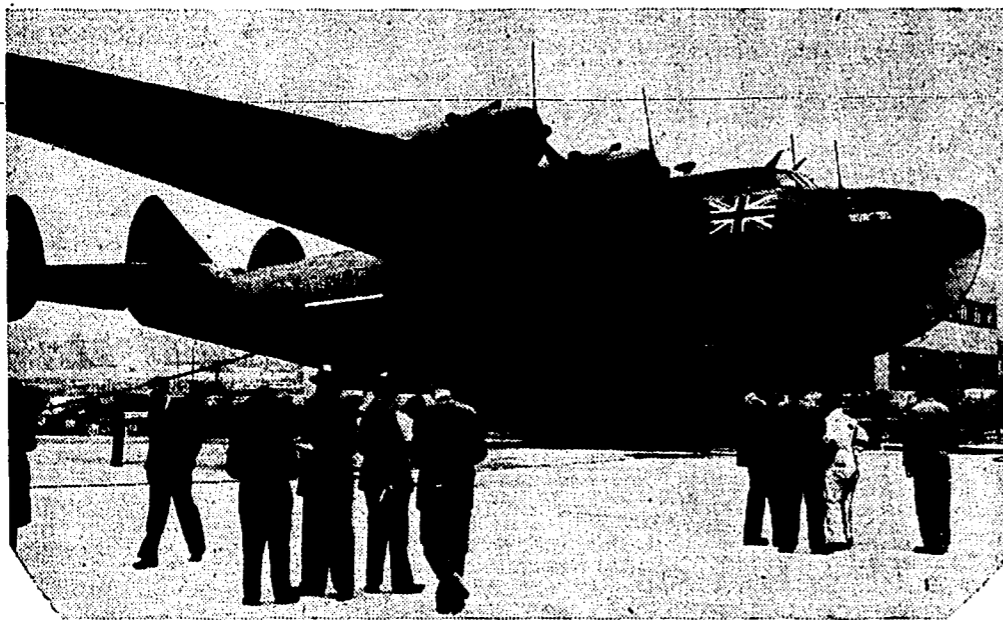

Low wages for domestic help have placed electric refrigerators in the "luxury" class in Brazil.

New Registration For Draft July 1

All young men who have become 21 years old since last October 16 or will reach that age in the next five weeks have been ordered by President Roosevelt to register on July 1 for possible military training.

About 1,000,000 are expected by this order. Registration will be conducted by the various draft boards.

Million-Dollar Flying Boat for Britain

This mammoth four-engine Boeing flying boat was bought by Britain from Pan American Airways for $1,000,000. The plane, painted battleship gray and named the Bristol, is shown at La Guardia Airport, New York. After the reconditioned ship is thoroughly tested, it will be used on Imperial trade routes.

The big capacity Maytag with square porcelain tub, at a remarkably low price

Women have often asked, "Why can't we get the thorough Maytag gyrafoam washing-action in a porcelain washer?"

"You can," replied Maytag, "as soon as it's possible to produce the Maytag square-tub design in porcelain."

A tough job, but at last it's been accomplished—so now we are proud to present the new Maytag Commander, newest addition to the Maytag line, and an outstanding dollar-for-dollar value.

It's bigger—washing-capacity is 50% greater—yet the price is remarkably low for a washer of its size and type. Besides the famous Maytag square-tub in gleaming white porcelain, it brings you the time-tested Maytag advantages, including gentle gyrafoam washing-action, quick-drain hose, sediment-zone, and roller water-remover.

Even in the parts you can't see, you can be sure of Maytag sturdiness that gives you years of faithful, trouble-free service.

HEAVY BOMBERS ON THE PRIORITY LIST

MEETS URGENT BRITISH NEED

Behind a little-publicized item lies one of the most important developments of the war. It is a decision by the Office of Production Management to give America's heavy, long-ranging bombing planes a production priority second only to that given to machine tools. This means that whenever there is a shortage of raw materials, skilled manpower or machine tools, the producers of these giant aircraft will be able to demand and receive whatever they need in these categories. It means that the United States will now concentrate on building up its production of a type of plane in which it has been, and still is, seriously deficient.

Although the United States, perhaps more than any other Nation, has woven its offensive and defensive tactics around the heavy bomber, the OPM's order was not inspired by the needs of either the United States Army or Navy. Rather, the order was given at the wish of the British Government and was dictated by the strategy of the Royal Air Force. It indicates that this country is finally reaching the place where it is gearing its gigantic wartime productive effort to the most immediate needs of Britain's armed forces.

Bigger and Better Bombers Vital

For some months now the RAF has shown itself well able to tackle successfully any daylight bombing raids that Germany might undertake over the British Isles. While this has afforded the British population, cities and factories a welcome protection, it has not contributed materially to winning the war. To do this Britain has long felt that bombers—the bigger the better—were absolutely essential. The British have developed several very satisfactory types of bombing planes, but reports from abroad indicate that they are either light or medium-sized bombers and have neither the bomb-carrying capacity nor the flying range of America's "Flying Fortresses."

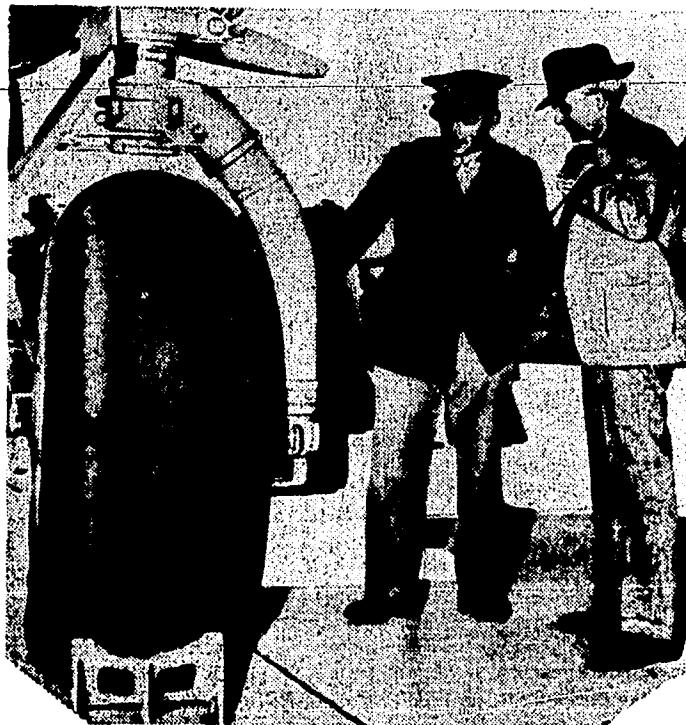

Thus the British have been forced to turn to this country for the craft with which to carry the war to the most distant German factory. A plea for more and more of these bombers has been brought back to President Roosevelt by Undersecretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal, who has just returned from London. In explaining the British plan of action to the President, Mr. Forrestal has found agreement among the experts of America's air corps that Britain's major chance of victory lies in a steadily intensified bombing of Germany's industrial plants.

According to quarters in a position to know the broad outlines of Britain's general war policy, the British are counting upon two things to win the war. The first is the blockade of the Continent of Europe whereby they hope to starve the industries of Germany and the occupied territories through a lack of raw materials. The second is a continual disruption of the Continent's system of transportation and supply through devastating air raids on key points.

Supplies Weak Link in Defenses

Reports gathered by British intelligence officials and analyzed by British economists have led to the conclusion that while Germany seems strongly en-

Ford Checks a New Bomber

Automobile tycoon Henry Ford (right) listens attentively as Major L. F. Harmon of Wright Field, Ohio, explains construction details of the Consolidated B24D bomber at Ford Airport, Detroit. Ford, building a huge fly-away assembly plant for aircraft, will produce bombers of this type and other government-approved fighting craft en-masse.

trenched upon the Continent of Europe, its position there depends upon the uninterrupted flow of food, raw materials and finished products across this densely-populated portion of the earth's surface. It is the British contention that a German failure to keep these supplies moving at close to their present volume will result in a rapid stagnation of industrial effort which will, in turn, force Germany to expend its strength in an effort to hold the conquered territories together.

There is also a belief in London, and shared by many persons in Washington, that the civil population of Germany's cities will not be able to stand the pounding which the RAF will be in a position to give them when once equipped with hundreds upon hundreds of huge American bombers. It is felt that only a free people has the perspective and the will to stand up under the punishment meted out to Coventry, Plymouth and the East End of London.

At the same time, there is no longer any delusion in London or Washington as to the time it will take to bring America's aircraft production to a point where the RAF is receiving the bombers it needs. Of all types of aircraft, the heavy bomber is the hardest to produce. While the production of American military planes rose from 700 last November to 1,427 in April, the overwhelming proportion of these were trainers and fighters. Thus the significance of the OPM order that henceforth the production of heavy bombers is to have a green light no matter what it does to the output of other types of military equipment.

Dim Your Head Lamps

Sec. 94, Motor Vehicle Laws of North Carolina: "The head lamps of motor vehicles shall be so constructed, arranged and adjusted that . . . they will at all times . . . and under normal atmosphere conditions and on a level road produce a driving light sufficient to render clearly discernible a person two hundred feet ahead, but any person operating a motor vehicle upon the highways when meeting another vehicle, shall so control the lights of the vehicle operated by him by shifting, depressing, deflecting, tilting or dimming the head light beams in such manner as shall not project a glaring or dazzling light to persons in front of such head lamp."

In other words, dim your headlights when meeting another car on the highway at night. The law requires it, courtesy suggests it, safety demands it.

Law For Bike Riders

Article 1, Motor Vehicle Laws of North Carolina: "(ff) . . . for the purposes of this Act, bicycles shall be deemed vehicles, and every rider of a bicycle upon a highway shall be subject to the provisions of this Act applicable to the driver of a vehicle except those which by their nature can have no application."

"This means that bicycle riders must obey stop signs and stop lights, give hand signals when preparing to stop or turn, ride on the right, et cetera. In other words, bicycle riders are required to obey all the general traffic rules and regulations that drivers of motor vehicles have to obey except those which could not apply to bicycles, such as the 60-mile maximum speed law.

Henry Grady's Farmers' Sentence

Every February or March before he plants an acre of so-called "money crops" every Southern farmer ought to read Henry Grady's immortal paragraph on live-at-home farming. Consequently we are giving it once again, and hope many will not only read it but memorize it:

"When every farmer in the South shall eat bread from his own fields and meat from his own pastures and, disturbed by no creditor and enslaved by no debt, shall sit among his teeming gardens and orchards and vineyards and dairies and barnyards, pitching his crops in his own wisdom and growing them in independence, making cotton his clean surplus, and selling it in his own time and in his chosen market and not at a master's bidding — getting his pay in cash and not in a receipted mortgage that discharges his debt, but does not restore his freedom—then shall he be breaking the fullness of our day."

WAR FACTS DRAW U. S. PEOPLE CLOSER TOGETHER

ISSUE OF DANGER NOW MORE JOINED

WASHINGTON. — The United States did not move nearer the war lately but the war moved nearer to the United States.

When Admiral Francois Darlan and Adolf Hitler conferred at Berchtesgaden it was evident that the most critical phases of the war for America was in the making. And later, when Marshal Petain blessed the agreement reached by his Vice Premier and bade the French people follow him "without mental reservation" along the road of ever closer collaboration with the Nazis, the theatre of the conflict moved perilously close to the front yard of the Western Hemisphere.

What would it mean to the United States to have totalitarian Germany residing belligerently astride French Dakar, which is but 1,800 flying miles from Brazil and nearer to southern South America than the most outlying of the United States' Caribbean bases?

What would it mean to the United States if totalitarian Germany were to "collaborate" its way across the Atlantic and into the Western Hemisphere possessions of the betrayed French Republic? What would it mean to the United States if the Axis established a New World outpost at Martinique, Guadeloupe and French Guiana?

These questions were asked in Washington from one end of Pennsylvania Avenue to the other, and the answers were never in doubt. In fact, they were so clear that they revealed what needed to be revealed for a long time; namely, that with respect to the war there is no issue of fundamental policy which separates the great body of so-called isolationists and the great body of so-called interventionists.

The issue which has heretofore divided these groups has not been an eagerness to put the United States into the war, on the one hand, or an unwillingness to defend the United States, on the other. The issue which created these divergent groups was not a matter of motive but a matter of judgment, a matter of a divergent assessment of the facts. Thus the "interventionists" believed the Nazi threat to be imminent and favored fuller participation in the war as a means of defeating that threat, while the "isolationists" believed the danger to be more remote and opposed fuller participation in the war on the ground that the menace was not sufficient to justify such measures.

Twenty-four hours after Petain capitulated to Hitler and accepted the "collaborative" terms dictated at Berchtesgaden—a meeting place famous for devising the most quaint forms of "collaboration"—three of the Senate's leading isolationist advocates and three of its most outspoken interventionist members appraised the meaning to the United States of this new Vichy-Berlin collaboration in exactly the same terms. They assessed this development as an imminent threat.

And what is most significant and most prophetic of the developing unity within the country is that once these divergent senators come to accept the same assessment of Nazi threat, they found that no basic issue separated them any longer and, in separate interviews as reported by the Associated Press, advocated exactly the same course of action.

This course of action was fuller participation in the war, a direct attack on Germany's French ally; specifically, the occupation of France's Western Hemisphere possessions. Senator Clark of Missouri, Senator Reynolds of North Carolina and Senator Murray of Montana, all of whom opposed the Lend-Lease Act, and Senators Pepper of Florida, Lee of Oklahoma, and Guffey of Pennsylvania, of the interventionists, were in agreement. The facts united the disputants.

REPLY
The new understanding between Petain and Hitler, which has already enabled the Nazis to use French Syria as a base of attack on the British in the Middle East, is so important that a few more facts concerning it might be usefully noted.
Within a few hours after the

Moslems Celebrate Birthday of the Prophet

A sea of kneeling faithful are shown bowed in prayer, all of them facing Mecca, as the Moslem world celebrated the birthday of the prophet Mohammed. This is a street in Calcutta but the scene, to a lesser extent, was duplicated in England.

Egypt and everywhere that the Moslems are serving with the British forces. Among the unbelievers in foreground are beggars waiting with their alms bowls for end of the prayers.

Marshal broadcast his decision and appeal for unquestioning support to the French people, President Roosevelt in a carefully prepared statement subsequently broadcast in French, expressed amazement that the Vichy Government would "deliver up France and its colonial empire, including French African colonies and Atlantic coasts, with the menace that involves to the peace and safety of the Western Hemisphere."

In a remarkably candid and outspoken press conference, Secretary Hull brushed aside all Vichy-inspired explanations that the projected collaboration with Germany didn't mean exactly what the President said it meant as just so much rhetoric. He said the United States had plenty of facts to back Mr. Roosevelt's warning and suggested that such "collaboration" with the Nazis would force America to take defensive action.

Only a few weeks ago Congress overwhelmingly passed a resolution and the President signed it, declaring that the United States would not accept the transfer of ownership or control of any Western Hemisphere territory from the hands of one non-American power to another. This meant Germany and was intended to cover precisely the situation which has now developed.

What is it, incidentally, that the isolationists want to avert in recommending that the United States undertake a protective occupation hemisphere? Is it not the same Nazi menace which the interventionists would rather see defeated at the cliffs of Dover than on the shores of the Caribbean? It looks as though the isolationists and the interventionists might be getting pretty close together on the facts.

Urges Further Aid To Britian

The Mocksville chapter of the Salisbury unit of British Aid is urged to continue their knitting and collecting of warm clothing. The following excerpt from a letter from Dartmouth House in London indicates the appreciation and use made of the boxes already received from the Salisbury chapter.

"I wish I could give you any adequate idea of the gratitude people feel here for all your thought and hard work and lovely generosity. Last week I went to see some of the big shelters where 600 or 700 people have been sleeping every night for months. There the coats with fur collars and the shelter suits that you have sent are invaluable. The health of these crowded places is one of the wonders of the war, as is the generally cheerful attitude of the inhabitants.

"A mother with a fine fat baby wrapped in inadequate bits of outgrown clothing—bombed out—her husband a prisoner of war came the day your box arrived. I wish you could have seen her face as she carried the baby off outfitted in woollies and wrapped in warm clothing for the first time in many days."

Two shipments have been sent from Mocksville to Salisbury to be included in their boxes to Salisbury, England.

Hopping unnoticed far into London, a black and white rabbit was found recently in Piccadilly Circus and turned over to a humane society.

Late Started Chicks

Require Special Care

Contrary to a common belief, late started chicks can be raised successfully even though it is admitted that cooler weather might be more ideal says C. F. Parrish, extension poultryman of N. C. State College.

However, to achieve this success, a few fundamental essentials must be adhered to. For instance, the grower should start with quality chicks, preferably those produced in North Carolina. If broilers are desired, U. S. Approved Pullorum Passed or Clean chicks should be bought. In purchasing layers, the poultryman should check on the chicks' parents.

Another essential is a suitable house, that is, one that can be opened up, properly ventilated, and of ample size to care for the brood. For summer, the size of the brood should be reduced 25 percent. In other words, the grower should keep 75 chicks where he would normally brood 100.

For litter, any material will prove satisfactory if it is highly absorbent, not relished by poultry, and available locally. Crushed corn cobs, sand, shavings, straw, sawdust, and similar materials may be used. Regardless of the material selected it should be changed when it becomes damp and dirty.

A lantern or a 15-watt bulb kept burning in the brooder house at night will make for faster growth, reduce crowding, and curtail thievery.

Any type feeder that tends to reduce waste and from which the chicks can eat readily is satisfactory. Waterers that supply an ample amount of fresh clean water at all times are also necessary for chick-raising.

Garden Additions

May Be made Now

There are still many vegetables that the farm family may plant in the home garden as late as June, according to H. R. Niswonger, extension horticulturist of N. C. State College.

Sweet corn, field peas, New Zealand spinach, Swiss chard, lima and snap beans, okra, egg plant, squash, and cucumbers are good crops to plant. In the mountains, June is the month to plant the main crop of cabbage.

Niswonger suggested that the space between the rows of vegetables be utilized for a second planting of the same vegetable or a different one if the garden area is small.

June is also the month to begin planning for the fall garden, season vegetables have been harvested and if the area occupied by these vegetables is to remain idle, the land should be cleaned of all dead plants and vines.

Next step is the broadcasting of a liberal application of stable or chicken manure and acid phosphate and then plowing this material under. After each rain the land should be cultivated and the grass and weeds kept down so as to have the soil in good condition for fall planting. Other areas not occupied should be prepared also for fall gardens.

Insect control in the garden is important. Niswonger suggested dusting cabbage, collards, broccoli and snap beans with one per cent rotenone dust to kill worms and bean beetles.

More Profits Seen In Hogs This Year

A steady increasing demand for pork in the National Defense Program means that hogs will be more profitable for North Carolina farmers this year, says E. V. Vestal, swine specialist of the N. C. State College Extension Service.

In recognition of the importance of pork in feeding the nation, the Government has announced a program which will support hog prices at $9 per 100 pounds, Chicago basis, until June 30, 1943.

With this floor under hog prices, Vestal is urging growers to make a special effort to produce not only pork for the market but for family use as well. Right now surplus corn and other grains can be fed profitably to animals intended for market.

Likewise, temporary pastures may be planted at this season for hogs. Alternate rows of soybeans and millet or Sudan grass will furnish excellent grazing for sows and their litters, as well as for growing pigs.

An acre of this pasture will supply most of the feed necessary for 10 or more growing pigs if the soybeans are permitted to reach 8 to 12 inches before the animals are turned on them.

A few ears of corn daily will increase gains considerably and the addition of one-tenth pound of tankage or fishmeal or a small amount of milk per pig each day will make the gains even more economical, the State College specialist advised.

Plenty of cool clean drinking water at all times should be a "must" in the swine grower's program. Similarly, minerals should be available for growing pigs as well as other hogs. The mineral mixture should be placed where the animals may have access to it at all times.

Insufficient Lime Cuts Crop Yields

Insufficient use of lime is one of the principal reasons why the yields of many crops in North Carolina are as low as they are, says Dr. J. F. Lutz, professor of soils at N. C. State College. Practically all soils of the State are acid and are deficient in calcium and magnesium, both of which are supplied by lime. For this reason, it will be necessary to supply these elements before growers can expect to increase their crop yields, Mr. Lutz said. Liming results in many benefits. The first benefit usually coming to mind is that of correcting soil acidity or "sweetening" the soil. Although this is an important effect, it is no more important than the actual supplying of calcium and magnesium as plant food! Then, too, certain elements which are essential to plant growth become rather insoluble at certain degrees of acidity and liming is necessary to make some of these soluble. For example, in strongly acid soils considerable iron and aluminum are present in solution. If phosphate is applied to such soils, it will combine with the iron and aluminum to form an insoluble and unavallable compound. Under such conditions, the plants cannot get phosphorus. However, lime is a corrective for this.

Many crops such as alfalfa, red clover, and blue grass, are considered lime-loving crops, and it is true that large amounts of lime are necessary for them to produce good growth. On the other hand, lime will benefit practically all other crops, although the response is usually not as great. Since it is necessary to apply lime in proper amounts, a grower should seek the advice of his county agent before applying the material.

CHICKS

According to the latest U. S. Department of Agriculture poultry report, the number of young chickens on farm May 1 was 10 percent larger than a year ago. BETTER Army rations now provide a great improvement over similar rations issued to U. S. soldiers during the previous six periods of militarization, beginning with the Revolutionary War.

FARM QUESTIONS ARE ANSWERED

Question: What are the requirements for having Irish potatoes certified?

Answer: The N. C. Crop Improvement Association restricts certification of Irish potatoes to elevations of 2,200 feet or more in order to give the seed potatoes a shorter growing season and thereby make them more desirable for lower altitudes with longer growing seasons. Growers whose farms have the desirable elevation and whose crop was planted with certified seed may make application now to the Crop Improvement Association at State College if they wish their potatoes certified.

Question: How should hay be cured?

Answer: Hay should be cured so as to preserve the leaves and the natural green color. Likewise, damage from dew, rain, and mold should be avoided. Hay should not be left long on the ground after cutting, but raked into small windrows when the leaves begin to wilt. This is usually after three to four hours of bright sunshine. Windrows of heavy crops should be turned over again with the rake later in the afternoon. The side delivery rake and the hay tedder are excellent implements for stirring and hastening the curing of heavy hay crops.

Question: Is there still time to sign up in the voluntary food and feed program being conducted this year?

Answer: N. C. State College Extension Service officials have announced that the voluntary program will be held open until June 15 for farm families wishing to sign up and do their part in the food-for-defense program. Cards have been mailed to each of North Carolina's 278,000 farm families which they may sign and return to their county agent. The campaign is in no way compulsory.

NEWLY-PLANTED KUDZU MUST BE CULTIVATED FOR ITS SURVIVAL

Cultivation of kudzu set out this spring is one of the most important requirements for its survival and growth, according to G. W. McClellan of the Soil Conservation Service in the Davie County Work Unit.

Unless clean cultivation is given, competition for moisture by other types of vegetation growing along the rows will seriously retard its growth the first year, Mr. McClellan adds.

If necessary, weeds and grass should be hoed out of rows and sufficient plowing should be done along the rows to control other vegetation, to keep the soil well broken and to keep the vines dragged back to a relatively narrow strip along each row. By cultivating in the same direction each time, there is less danger of breaking the vines.

Besides controlling weeds and grass, the practice of clean cultivation will keep the soil in good shape and will permit vines to take root at the nodes, or joints, and develop new crowns until there are enough plants to spread like a huge green net over eroding fields. Soil thrown on runners by the plow also induces root formation.

Before a kudzu field may be used for hay or pasture, there must be many more rooted plants than were originally set out. These new plants will develop of their own accord if the soil is cultivated during the first year. However, these new plants come from the joints, which cannot root unless they come in contact with moist cultivated ground.

Many farmers plant a cultivated crop in the middle between the rows of kudzu the first year. Cultivation of this crop will control weeds and grass and keep the soil in good condition for the establishment of kudzu plants.

Don't Hold Up Traffic

Sec. 102, Motor Vehicle Laws of North Carolina: "(h) No person shall drive a motor vehicle at such a slow speed as to impede or block the normal and reasonable movement of traffic except when reduced speed is necessary for safe operation or in compliance with law. Police officers are hereby authorized to enforce this provision by directions to drivers, and in the event of apparent willful disobedience to this provision and refusal to comply with direction of any officer in accordance herewith the continued slow operation by a driver shall be a misdemeanor."

In other words, don't poke along on the highway and hold up traffic, getting on the nerves of other drivers and provoking them to acts of recklessness. Drive slowly when safety demands or the law requires that you do so. Otherwise, drive at a normal and reasonable speed.

Rural Electrification Program Six Years Old

The start of the seventh year of the Federal rural electrification program finds approximately 2 million American farm families enjoying central station electric service — nearly three times as many as had it in 1935 — the Department of Agriculture reported today. Since establishment of the Rural Electrification on May 11, 1935, REA-financed power lines alone have taken electricity to more than half a million farms. During the same period, private utilities, largely stimulated by the REA program, have connected about as many additional farms.

Harry Slattery, REA Administrator, pointed out that during the past year, REA activities have been directed intensively toward measures to strengthen national defense. "REA was instrumental in getting electricity to Camp Shelby, Mississippi, largest Army camp in the United States, in record time and at a substantial saving to the Government," he said. "Other Army camps have been served less dramatically but no less beneficially. Electricity has been made available to hundreds of small factories and mines producing essential defense materials — ramrods, gunpowder, airplane carburetors, and cinnabar — to mention 4 of more than 100 kinds of industrial establishments on REA lines. Meanwhile, by connecting hundreds of thousands of additional farms and by advising farmers in the selection and operation of productive electrical equipment, the REA has helped to insure an adequate supply of food and fiber in the event of an all-out defense effort which would draw heavily on farm manpower.

"They say there is a remedy for almost everything and if you don't believe it," suggests Joe, "look over the sympathy cards that are on the market."

America is trying to improve her arithmetic, according to Roy. He says it is a case of figuring two oceans and one navy.

"It is hard for some fellows to die and know that they won't have a chance to kick about the inheritance tax their family is going to have to pay," avers Charles.

According to Lester, democracy won't fall because we didn't put up a fight for it, but it may be slightly dented because we didn't start fighting for it sooner.

"Most of those folks who have returned from a winter in Florida," hints George, "whisper that the sun shone less than advertised."
