SUMMARY OF WAR NEWS

Germany claimed yesterday that the bulk of a Russian army of possibly 500,000 men had been destroyed in a huge trap in Sovietized Poland, but the main Red army forces were striking at the flanks of the Nazi panzer divisions in an attempted counter-battle that may decide the unprecedented warfare on the eastern front.

Fighting with tanks, artillery, airplanes and infantry was progressing on five big battlefronts from far-northern Murmansk to Bessarabia, but both sides claimed important successes and the outcome of the conflict on the main central sector around Minsk was still uncertain.

The German high command asserted 4,107 Soviet Russian planes were destroyed and 2,233 tanks wrecked or captured in Nazi drives which it said had swept through Lithuania well into neighboring Latvia, trapped two Soviet armies, and reached the region of Minsk.

The Germans asserted that advance forces had carried the main Nazi drive nearly half-way along the 450-mile-long road from Minsk to Moscow. Of greater importance, however, were German claims that three large bodies of Russian troops — two armies in one instance — were encircled and facing capitulation or annihilation and that in the north the Soviet defense was so disordered and inept as to mean that for practical purposes there was no longer a real northern air offensive since June 16 at fifty-four, against 155 Nazi planes shot down.

F. B. I. arrests 32 who are accused of espionage activities against the U. S. Seven pleaded guilty. One of the men arrested had for years been examining the Norden bomb-sight, supposed to be one of the closest guarded military secrets.

Adolf Hitler's newspaper attack the Russians scathingly for allowing the Nazis to proceed into traps and then firing on them from the sides and rear.

Secretary of Navy Frank Knox makes flat statement that "now is the time for the U. S. Navy to clear the Atlantic of the German menace" — the strongest statement made by an administration official since the war started.

Britain's smashing air offensive in the West is continuing. Heavy daylight raids in Northern France followed a night attack on Northwest Germany, with a heavy assault on Bremen and Kiel. London announced the total bag for the week as 120 German planes and the total for the year as 2,088. The British put their losses in the front.

The first week of the German invasion of Russia drew to a close with indications that the Soviet troops had put up stiffer resistance than was expected. Moscow reported increasingly heavy engagements, with the Germans checked on the Polish and Lithuanian fronts.

APPEASEMENT OF HITLER FAILED

No matter how much you may feed a wolf, he still gazes longingly at the fields and forests.

Joseph Stalin has proved to himself and the world that this old Russian proverb applies to the Nazi wolf and the fields and forests of the Ukraine.

It often is easier to quote proverbs or give advice to a neighbor than to act on it oneself. For more than five years the Soviets, through their Geneva mouthpiece, Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff, warned the world against appeasing the aggressors. When Neville Chamberlain stepped off the plain at Croydon after his memorable Munich flight, declaring he had brought back "peace in our time" in his leather briefcase, the Soviets were the most outspoken in predicting that war had been postponed only slightly. A few months later, just as the warnings against appeasement proved their correctness, the Soviets themselves embraced appeasement.

The Russians were threatened by the same danger as the rest of Europe — Adolf Hitler. They were offered the hand of friendship and alliance against the common foe by Britain. But Mr. Stalin saw, or thought he saw, a dagger up the sleeve and preferred an understanding with a known enemy to a pact with an uncertain friend. He chose as his confidential adviser the worst of evil counselors: fear.

Played Lone Game

Through two years of war, Mr. Stalin resisted all efforts to draw Russia closer to the Allied side, even though he realized his only salvation lay in Herr Hitler's defeat. So deep was his mistrust that he preferred a lone game, a lone game not only in the sense that he cut himself off from potential friends and allies, but in relation to his own people and followers.

He was so alone, in fact, that when the pay-off came, there could be no question as to who was responsible. Why has Mr. Stalin, or rather Russia, decided against further concessions to Herr Hitler? The answer to this is essentially the same as that to the question: Why did Mr. Chamberlain finally take a stand. There is a vast difference between the British system of government with its ancient and weathered democratic institutions and the Kremlin dictatorship. Yet both are only governments and in the end must acknowledge popular will.

Mr. Chamberlain's hand was forced by the fact that British public opinion was fed up with Herr Hitler and solidly refused to stand for any more concessions to the Nazi tyrant. Another Munich would have brought on a revolution in England almost as surely as major territorial or economic concessions would have caused one in Soviet Russia.

People Opposed Nazism

Regardless of what their Government may have thought or attempted in the course of its aberrations, Russian opinion was as strongly opposed in its way to Nazism and German aggression as British. The Soviet-German non-aggression pact that unleashed the present war was as much a shock and disappointment to the Russians as the Munich pact had been to Englishmen eight months previously.

When the first large-scale Russian mobilization took place in late August and early September of 1939, the universal impression in Russia, confirmed by the whole of people's previous mental conditioning, was that they were being mobilized against: had not all the enemy attackers in Soviet war films worn swastikas? This because a conviction when the orders came to cross into Poland. Among the simple workers and peasants, the word went forth that the long-awaited war with Nazi Germany had begun. Even many better informed Russians shared the expectation that once the Germans and Russians reached the "Demarcation Line" they might begin to fight.

The Finnish war came to the vast majority of Russians as a terrific puzzle. Had not Lenin written books about respecting the rights of small nations? At first they fondly imagined that

Independence Day

The Fourth of July, observed as a legal holiday in all of our states as well as the District of Columbia, Alaska, Canal Zone, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Philippine Islands. In Williamsburg, Va., in May 6, 1776, the fifth revolutionary convention convened and adopted the first constitution of a free and independent state. On May 15 it called on the Continental Congress to declare the colonies free and independent. On July 4, 1776 was signed the Declaration of Independence. An item in a history book where space is given to the names of the principal leaders, of the battlegrounds in the fight to attain independence and the cold print tries to impress the facts on the minds of the student. We were supposed to learn by heart the names of the signers of the Declaration and at the time it was something of a bother. We youthfully felt the fight had been a good one, we were justly proud of the forefathers who had struggled for the cause, but it all had happened many years ago and there was the present matter of clearing up a baseball diamond on a sand-lot in the neighborhood. We didn't get the full force of the picture as does the history student today. It was July 4th when England and America separated and the young government became an individual, after a fight to the death. The mother had hoped to chastise the wayward child, a child that had grown to man's estate and wished to think and govern itself. America labored to give itself civil liberties, to bring its struggles for progress home where it could handle the situation where its citizens saw fit. America fighting to meet its spiritual and material problems in its own way, to work out its own destiny in the matter of civil and political welfare. This new country wanted to stand on its own feet, and she did! And so she does today!

We have fought to preserve the ideals of those early years, to maintain rights to worship our God as we desired, to enjoy the liberty of free speech, press, and pulpit, of owning property and holding public meetings. The securing of these privileges took sacrifices on the part of all citizens, but America was worth the struggle then and America is worth it today. She is a cause worth protecting and sacrificing for her is our obligation. Remember that as we fight today the future will put us down after a date in a history book.

The Old Order

Saw an item the other day where a man of 78 passed away and was buried in the Potter's Field of a mid-western town. There was nothing surprising in this sort of notice perhaps since many folks die in poverty and have so family to care for their last resting place. But the human interest story back of this death notice was the fact that the man who was buried in a pauper's grave had been the son of a millionaire, spent a hilarious youth and gained for himself a national reputation by fighting cigars with $100 bills. The story with a background surely, feels a scenario writer, the moralist points out the lesson and the needy man sighs for the opportunity to use just one of those $100 bills, that went up in smoke. So ends another character of the past, the hey-day of gold bathtubs and matchless diamond studs. The old order passeth even in our town.

Living in the Country

All the valuable truths about the relation of health to true wealth, to sound minds and sensible social attitudes, to good character and to national defense rush to the mind wherever one reads of the crowning anywhere of health kings and queens.

Hence, probably there is no need repeating what so often has been said before, although it is well to keep constantly before us the importance of being well. But the statement of the winsome queen of health for this District, Miss Bertha Lee Miller, 17, of Yadkin County, who was selected in spirited competition with representatives from 14 other counties, is worthy of comment.

Miss Miller said she helped her father milk his cows each morning. She added that she wouldn't swap the country life for the city life "for anything."

Miss Miller's expressed preference for country life is not shared by all farm boys and girls, but we have a hunch that it is shared by a vast majority of 4-H boys and girls.

These young people have signified by their membership in the 4-H Clubs their intention to make farming and farm home-making their life work. This intention grows out of an intelligent interest in rural life, its potentialities and possibilities. The 4-H Clubbers know that agrarian living offers its problems. It is in the effort to help solve these problems that they band together and follow the program explained and outlined to them by the county agents, learn new ways of doing things, accept the responsibility of growing crops, canning foods, making things, raising livestock, etc. "on their own." They realize that country life can be made more prosperous and happy if all country people apply intelligence and co-operation, plus problems, whether they are economic or social.

Country life under reasonably good economic conditions is the best of all ways of living. There is a freedom one finds nowhere else. There is room to turn around. There is leisure time for reading, reflection out where everyone is not always acting as if he were rushing to a fire. But the good earth is a hard taskmaster to those who would abuse and fail to use its gifts intelligently. The countryside is lonely to those who have not learned how to employ themselves, draw inspiration and diversion from the wells of their own thought.

It is a "poor neighborhood" or the "sticks" to those who cannot take time to help organize its recreational facilities. The country in sum, is whatever those who live there want to make of it. Miss Miller says she wouldn't want to live any place else. We suspect she has learned not only how to live in the country but how to live with it. If more boys and girls learn the same lesson, we need not fear for the future of rural North Carolina. —Winston-Salem Journal.

TOAST OF THE TOWN

Highlights Of The Sunday School Lesson

The Sunday School Lesson for July 6 is, "The Gospel Is Taken Into Europe"—Acts xv, 36; xviii, 21.

Bombs and torpedoes and shell shots would be added to the dangers encountered by that doughty old pioneer and adventurer, the Apostle Paul, were he today laboring in the Mediterranean fields where he achieved great conquests for Christianity. Nowadays he would be confronting a new paganism, and a savagery such as the brutal ancient world never knew.

That the present war zone in the Near East overlays the scene of Paul's activities lends fresh interest to the current Sunday school lessons upon Paul's second missionary journey. Bible maps serve as war maps. Now, as then, this area is pivotal to world domination. A long line of imperial conquerors have fought their way over the scenes travelled by Saint Paul, the most imperial figure of them all.

Good Men Fall Out

Grave consequences may follow personal disagreements; world politics have been changed by such incidents. When Paul proposed that he and Barnabas should return to the scenes of their first missionary journey, the latter wanted to take along his nephew, John Mark, who had deserted them at the mainland of Asia Minor on the earlier trip. There was strong dispute; but Paul, who always rated loyalty high, would not accept the renegade; although years later he was reconciled to him, and the reformed John Mark became a valued friend and collaborator.

So these two pioneer comrades, Paul and Barnabas, parted company. Barnabas took Mark to his own native Cyprus, and thenceforth drops out of the record. Such are the serious results that may flow from allowing personal feelings to master one. Apparently, the Church of Antioch sided with Paul; who chose Silas, a Roman of standing in the Jerusalem Church, and of high ability, to be his new companion. Silas was evidently a musician ready to sing songs at midnight in a dungeon; and this example has been followed by the modern "Gospel team" of an evangelist and a singer.

He Found a Friend

Many a man or woman has gone forth on a journey, only to encounter unexpectedly the one person who spelled destiny. In Paul's case it was conspicuously the finding of young Timothy at Lystra. This ardent youth, son of a Greek father and a godly Jewish mother, caught the contagion of Paul's spirit; and became to him, not only a disciple and co-worker, but also the ageing apostle's dearest friend. He foresook home — we may imagine the pride and sorrow of the mother left at Lystra — and became the apostle's fellow traveller and trusted representative and spiritual son.

Sunday school teachers are in fellowship with Paul when they win a boy or girl to Christ's service. Two letters in the New Testament bear Timothy's name; and the older man's counsels to him have fertilized the ministry of the centuries. There is space but to mention a few of the high spots of this great adventure, conventionally called Paul's second missionary journey. He could give Hitler points about the difficulties of crossing Turkey, which is the modern name of Asia Minor. As a scholar, he

"Indeed! A most interesting subject," came the voice of the fully savored the historical significance of the region through which he was traveling. We do not always remember that Troas was the port Troy; and that Paul had visited the scenes of the Iliad. A Vision And A Call Troas is outstanding in Christian thoughts as the scene of Paul's vision of the man of Macedonia, calling Come over and help us. From this port in Asia the great missionary sailed to what is now Europe, a destiny-fraught move. He touched at the Island of Samothrace and landed at Neapolis, the modern Kavalla, both places at present in Hitler's control.

As one trivial link of the lesson with our own day it may be mentioned that Kavalla is the greatest port of export for Turkish tobacco. Every cigarette smoker has this insubstantial tie with Paul's travels! But Paul was headed for Philippi, a few miles inland, the great city named for Philip. But it symbolized the important part that women were henceforth to have in the work of the Christian church. Lydia's successors have been legion. An old saying about the modern missionary enterprise, by which Paul's work is continuing is that "Were it not for dead men and live women missions could not carry on."

All that Paul found in great Philippi was a group of praying women. In the thought of the time this would have been considered a negligible incident.

HITLER TRIES 'DOUBLE PLAY'

HEDGE AGAINST U. S. FIRST AIM

Adolf Hitler's long predicted attack on Soviet Russia is a shrewd double play intended to give German high strategy the advantage of two alternative courses of action either one of which the Fuhrer can develop or abandon as events unfold in this new phase of world war.

It is first and primarily a hedge against a protracted war involving the stupendous power of the United States. It is an attempt to protect himself against this by gaining absolute control of the resources of European Russia which he had found himself unable to obtain by means short of war.

It is, secondly, an effort to consolidate the basis for a peace offensive which Herr Hitler's strategists have always wanted to keep in reserve as a means of bringing the war to a quick end if the going became too difficult.

Disunity Is Sought

Incidental to both of these two purposes behind the move, and involved in both of them, is the idea that by suddenly turning on Russia, Germany will be able to promote disunity and indecision both in Britain and the United States.

In fact the first result Herr Hitler and his diplomatic strategists hope to achieve by the Russian move is a reduced tempo of intervention by the United States and with it a revival of the appeasement movement in Britain.

But Berlin took far more than this possibility into its considerations in pressing Russia to the point where Joseph Stalin made the one decision he probably never expected to make during the course of this war—namely to fight or surrender. The move proves that Britain has actually won a great military victory during the dark months of defeat in Greece, Crete, and Libya. It proves that those German advances were too slow to assure Herr Hitler final victory over Britain before America could enter the war with effectiveness.

Sees Protracted War

By the attack on Russia, Herr Hitler recognizes the possibility of a protracted war in which Britain will become increasingly stronger with war materials shipped from the American side of the Atlantic. He has had to abandon the hope of bringing his European conquests to a quick victory over Britain during this campaign season.

Herr Hitler can face this prospect of a protracted war against Britain and America only if he can control the economic resources of Russia. He must be sure of Ukrainian wheat and Baku oil to keep his war machine supplied for the long term struggle. To face such a struggle without them would have left him ultimately at the mercy of Moscow. He tried to obtain it through trade negotiations and a nonaggression pact. He failed and he was left with no recourse but to go after boss from the rear of the building. Diagnose the case as flatulency of the perimeter and charge him accordingly!"

The cadet company was drawn up in a perfect line. The inspecting officer walked slowly down the front rank, giving each man a searching glance—then he stopped. "Young man," he said to the cadet, "you remind me a great deal of General Grant."

"Really, sir?" said the cadet, eagerly.

"Yes," snapped the officer. "He didn't shave, either."

Out on a scout patrol, Daff and Dill provided themselves with a full cowhide. They crawled into it and, grazing along after the manner of cowhide, moved nearer and nearer the enemy trenches.

All was going well until Daff, who had the front end, started in alarm. "Let's get out of here," he hissed.

"What's the matter?" queried Dill.

"Matter?" came the anguished voice of Daff. "Matter enough! Here comes a Heinie with a milk pail!"

"Getting into the Army sure has gone to that young draftee's head."

"What's he done now?"
"Why, he's had brass buttons tattooed on his tongue just in case he gets a coat on it."

Nazi Forces Push Into Soviet

Germany's invasion of Russia began along a front extending from the Arctic to the Black Sea, with Finnish and Rumanian troops also pushing into the Soviet from their frontiers. Nazi bombers promptly attacked Zhitomir, Kiev and Sevastopol while Red bombers raided East Prussia. Brest-Litovsk was the scene of bloody fighting.

In reaching his decision to attack Russia Herr Hitler was further moved by what seems to Berlin the opportunity involved in the move for launching a peace offensive in the West. The idea of basing such a peace offensive on a campaign against Russia was widely discussed in Berlin as far back as last September. The idea which the Wilhelmstrasse toyed with then, and continuously since, was that the entire European continent including Russia would provide a perfect platform from which Herr Hitler could announce his willingness to end hostilities with Britain.

Future Truce Basis

Taking different possibilities into consideration they figured that the time might come when it would be to their advantage to obtain a truce during which they could consolidate the industrial machinery of the continent. They would, of course, tell Britain that Germany was satisfied with the continent and wanted nothing more. They estimated that if they had conquered Russia before launching this argument it would have a strong appeal to all conservative classes in England.

If Britain fell for the bait and granted a peace, the result would serve a double purpose. It would give Germany time to prepare for the next expansionist move and it would take the heart out of the growing resistance of the occupied counties to German dominance on the continent. They also figured that during such a lull in hostilities they could proceed with peaceful penetration of the United States and prepare the Americas for the next "blitz."

Up until President Roosevelt's re-election in November the Wilhelmstrasse merely toyed with this idea, because Herr Hitler's strategists continued until then to believe that they could conquer Britain before the United States became a material factor in the war. But when Roosevelt's re-election and passage of the lend-lease bill brought American industrial strength into the battle the chances for a quick victory dwindled. The Balkan "blitz" was a last attempt to bring Britain down quickly. Germany won the military victories, but won them too slowly. And in the process Russia became an increasing danger on the flank.

Russia Forewarned

None of this should have surprised the Russians. Certainly the Russian Embassy in Berlin was well apprised of how the wind was blowing long ago. The Russian Military Attache discussed it freely and intelligently in a group of neutral diplomats and newspaper men in Berlin in October. At that time some of the foreign military experts there thought that the attack on Russia might begin during the winter. The Russian himself expressed the opinion that it would not come before spring of 1941, but agreed that German troop dispositions were ready even at that time.

Germans were making no secret of the possibility during that period and diplomatic officials of the Wilhelmstrasse tried on several occasions to sound out the possibility that the attack on Russia would undermine anti-German sentiment in the United States.

Further, it has always been made perfectly clear in German economic discussions, both in private and in public print, that the Nazi High Command regarded European Russia as an indispensable part of the German economic Lebensraum.

If the German armies go through Russia quickly enough the peace offensive will almost certainly be the next major Berlin move. Preparatory steps are certain to begin at once with appeals to politically conservative elements in this country to regard Germany today as the crusader against Bolshevism. But if this falls Herr Hitler expects at least to emerge with an economic area under his control which will be sufficient to feed his war machine for years to come.

Miss Evelyn Troxler Weds Edward Spratt

At historic Alamance Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, Miss Evelyn Caroline Troxler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Troxler, of Greensboro, became the bride of Edward O. Frierison Spratt, recently of Tampa, Fla.

Rev. J. L. Levens, pastor of First Reformed church, of which the bride is a member, officiated assisted by Rev. J. M. Millard, pastor of Alamance Presbyterian church.

The bride wore a gown of ice blue net and lace. Small covered buttons ran from round neckline of the fitted bodice of lace to the fitted waist, and the very full skirt encircled with bands of lace fell in folds to the floor. The short puff sleeves were also of lace and the shoulder-length veil of matching blue net was gathered on her head by a flat bow of lace tied with a spray of valley lilies.

As only ornament the bride wore a wide gold engraved bracelet which belonged to the bridegroom's great-grandmother and has been worn by family brides of four preceding generations. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and baby's breath touched with pale pink sweetpeas and centered with a white orchid.

The maid of honor was in mousseline de sole over lace taffeta, the fitted bodice of pale pink and full skirt of deeper pink. Her little hat of mousseline de sole was made with flowers the two pink shades of the dress and she carried an arm bouquet of pastel flowers tied with pale blue streamers. The men of the wedding party wore white linen suits.

The couple spoke their vows before an improvised altar with wide background of palms. At the back of the altar on either side stood a floor basket filled with gladioli, larkspur and feverfew in white and pastel shades, and in the foreground were a pair of floor baskets filled with white lilies. At each side were tall seven-branched stands of white tapers.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Spratt left for a two-week wedding trip, to be at home in Greensboro on their return for a short while before Mr. Spratt's business takes them to Roanoke, Va., for residence.

For travel the bride changed to a brown linen suit with a white lace blouse. Her hat was a wide-brimmed off-face starched eyelet pique of brown and white and other accessories were of white. For shoulder corsage she lifted the orchid from her wedding bouquet.

Mrs. Spratt, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troxler, is a 1939 graduate of the school of music of Greensboro college, where she majored in violin. She was a junior and a senior attendant in the college May court and was graduated magna cum laude. For the past two years she has been teaching public school music at Mocksville high school.

The bridegroom, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank K. Spratt, of Knoxville, was graduated from high school in Greenville and attended Columbia university in New York City. He now travels with S. H. Those words never had a deeper or more solemn meaning for America than they have in this hour of anxiety and peril."

Foreign Affairs

President Roosevelt told his press conference the U. S. would give all possible aid to Russia in its war with Germany but that no list of Soviet needs had been submitted yet. The Treasury Department announced it had licensed Russia to use $140,000,000 in frozen funds here. Acting Secretary of State Welles announced the Neutrality Act which prohibits American vessels from combat areas, would not be invoked in connection with the Russian conflict.

Mr. Welles said that while the Communist dictatorship is as intolerable as the Nazi dictatorship, the immediate issue is defense against Hitlerism and the German plan for universal conquest.

The State Department ordered Italy to recall all Italian officials and cease all activities in this country except those at the Washington Embassy by July 15 because they "serve no desirable purpose."

Aid to Democracies
The President endorsed the British recruiting drive for 15,000 to 30,000 American technicians to aid in air raid defense in England. He also pointed out that American youth can join British or Chinese armed forces if they do not take an oath of allegiance to any country other than the U. S.

He told a press conference the possibility of sending rifles to Eire is being considered if the Eire government gives assurances they would be used against Germany in the event of a German attack on Ireland.

Germany Bombed From Both Ends and in the Middle

Medical officials of the Army, Navy and Public Health Service, stated that a shortage of nurses is beginning to be apparent and appealed for a larger number of women to seek nursing training.

The Price Administrator also set maximum prices on pig iron, major raw material used in steel, and asked furniture and household refrigerator manufacturers not to raise prices.

Priorities
The OPM announced priority action on crude rubber, zinc and tungsten compounds. Rubber consumption is to be reduced from 817,000 to 600,000 tons a year; 16,000 tons of metallic zinc will be reserved in an emergency pool to meet expected 1941 shortage; and priority control over tungsten has been extended two months past June 30, the originally scheduled expiration date.

U. S. Housing Authority Administrator Straus issued instructions that wood and stone will replace rubber, cork and strategic metals in the building of USHA slum-clearance homes.

Labor Supply
President Roosevelt created a Committee on Fair Employment Practice to investigate complaints of discrimination in defense employment and ordered all Federal agencies to include in defense contracts a provision obligating the contractor to avoid discrimination. The President said in some instances workers have been barred from defense jobs "solely because of race, creed, color, or national origin."

The OPM announced Atlantic shipyard had agreed to a two-year pact eliminating strikes and lockouts and providing periodic adjustments of wages according to living costs.

Russian Battleships Are Few and Old

Russia has a navy, but it is inconsequential and ancient. The Black Sea fleet includes the battleship Paris Commune, pictured above. She is a veteran of the World War, and has recently been modernized and rearmend. Laid down in 1909 under the name Sebastopol, she is one of the best of the ships fighting for the Soviets against Germany.

Twisting the Dials

WITH A. L. SIMON

Radio has its lighter side, and all the laughs to be had in the studios do not come from the comedy programs, as witness:

An amateur songwriter who makes quite a pest of himself around the studios cornered Andre Kostelanetz in a CBS hallway and insisted that the conductor hear a recording of a song he had just composed. Kostelanetz complied and the record was placed on a turntable. When it had concluded, the songwriter said, "That orchestra played my piece in Bolero rhythm—how would you have played it?"

"Under an assumed name," replied Kostelanetz. Some words sound a lot like others and confusion can thereby result. At the Crime Doctor rehearsal, for example, Director Jack Johnstone noted that one of his actors was missing. "Bill felt dizzy," volunteered another actor, "and he had to go home." "Too bad," said Johnstone. "Vertigo?" "I just told you," repeated the actor, "home!"

A girl musician in Phil Spitalny's Hour of Charm orchestra arrived at NBC for a practice session wearing a lot of new jewelry. She had diamonds and bracelets and rings in profusion. As a matter of fact, she seemed weighed down with all the baubles. Spitalny took one quick look at her and inquired, with a grin, "Must you have your pound of flesh?" She took it off, hasn't worn any jewelry to the studio since.

STORY OF THE WEEK: That contestant on Ralph Edwards' "Truth or Consequences" program last Saturday whose consequence called for him to be thrown bodily out of the Ritz Theatre, scene of the broadcast and then talk his way back, almost precipitated a riot outside the theatre, which is off Broadway. The contestant spoke so loudly that a patrolman ran up and took a hand in the proceedings. Whereupon gathered and several calls were put in to the police station. Actually, however, the police were tipped off to what was to happen and the patrolman who participated had been standing by waiting for his cue.

Tells How To Make Good Hay Crops

A hay crop should yield at least a ton per acre and three tons per acre are possible in North Carolina, says E. C. Blair, Extension Service agronomist at N. C. State College.

Here are some of the rules for good production set out by the specialist:

All hay crops respond to a fertile soil. They take large quantities of plant food from the soil. The non-legumes get all their food from this source. Legumes, if inoculated, can draw about two-thirds of the needed nitrogen from the air, the other third necessarily coming from the soil.

For these reasons, hay crops should be grown in rotations to which legumes are turned under and should be well fertilized.

The presence of plenty of usable plant food and lime in the soil not only results in bigger yields but also in hay of higher feed value. Such hay contains more protein, vitamins and mineral matter than the same kind of hay grown under conditions of soil poverty. Animals fed on this hay grow faster, develop better bones, and are healthier than those fed on hay low in these materials.

Stable manure is a valuable supplement for fertilizers in all parts of the state and should be used alone at the rate of five tons per acre in most sections.

Lime also is valuable in that it will increase the yield and mineral content of hay, if the soil needs it. While certain crops, such as alfalfa and red clover, refuse to grow satisfactorily on most soils without an application of lime, others will grow without it.

County Fatalities On Decline

Yadkin County reported two traffic fatalities during the first five months of this year, according to a five-months summary released this week by the Highway Safety Division.

This number represented a decrease in comparison with the number killed in Yadkin County during the same period last year, when four persons were killed.

Traffic fatalities for the state as a whole totaled 448 persons for the five-months period, this grim toll running nearly 49 per cent ahead of the 301 persons killed in North Carolina the first five months of last year.

Eleven counties had 10 or more fatalities, these being Alamance, Buncombe, Columbus, Cumberland, Durham, Guilford, Halifax, Henderson, Mecklenburg, Rockingham and Wake. No fatalities were recorded in the following 14 counties: Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Camden, Cherokee, Clay, Dare, Haywood, Hyde, Jones, Polk, Scotland and Yancey.

BERTHA L. MILLER CHOSEN 4-H 'HEALTH QUEEN'

Crutchfield Boy Is Health King

Miss Bertha Lee Miller, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grady W. Miller, of Oana, was chosen health queen of the western district in a 4-H Club Health contest in Winston-Salem last Thursday. Leslie Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Myers, of Crutchfield was chosen king.

Miss Miller is a member of the Courtney 4-H club and young Myers the Dobson Club. They were chosen over representatives from 14 counties.

Taking second honors in the district contest were David Lee Jones, of Wake county, and Katherine Watkins of Hillsboro. Route 2. Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theo L. Jones, of Raleigh. Route 4, and Miss Watkins' parents are Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Watkins.

Counties participating in the western section of the district were Davidson, Guilford, Forsyth, Wilkes, Yadkin and Rockingham. Counties in the eastern section of the district are Alamance, Caswell, Chatham, Durham, Franklin, Granville, Person, Vance, Orange, Wake and Warren.

As health king and queen of all these counties Myers and Miss Miller will compete with other district winners for state honors when the State College 4-H short course is held July 28-August 2.

Do You Know About The Cotton Stamp Plan

This week the first of $2,000,000 in cotton stamps were distributed to cotton farmers in more than 70 North Carolina counties. It is the AAA's way of paying farmers for co-operation in the program to reduce 1941 cotton acreage so as to reduce the tremendous surplus of the crop in this country.

Now that stamps are going out to farmers who may exchange the symbols for all-American cotton goods, E. Y. Floyd, state AAA executive officer at State College offered answers to the following questions put by farmers:

What can the farmer do with the stamps? He can use them in any cooperating retail store or mail order house in exchange for new products made entirely in the United States and entirely of U. S. cotton. Bindings, buttons and similar products should not be considered in determining cotton products.

How will the farmer know whether a store is cooperating? By asking within the store. Can purchases be made by mail? Stores which qualify under special Surplus Marketing Administration mail order regulations will be allowed to accept cotton stamps for mail orders.

May cotton stamps be used to buy second hand clothes or renovated mattresses? No. Will persons using cotton stamps get the same quality goods as persons using cash? Yes.

Can the stamps be used to repay advances against the crop or other indebtedness? Absolutely not.

British Honduras' only railway is a 25-mile logging road.

FARM QUESTIONS ARE ANSWERED

Question: It is necessary to follow a recipe in preparing fruit juices for cooling drinks?

Answer: No. Use the odds and ends of fruit juices your refrigerator may offer. The juice left from the pineapple salad last night will make a pleasing combination with the juice of a fresh lemon, lime or an orange or two. For color, crush and strain half a cup of berries and add a tablespoon or two of jelly. If used as an aperizer, the drink should be more tart than sweet since sugar dulls, rather than stimulates the appetite. A sugar syrup is more effective for sweetening summer drinks than sugar itself.

Question: What are some of the important things to remember in marketing eggs?

Answer: Never put the eggs in cases until they are properly cooled. When warm eggs are put in cases, they can't cool rapidly. So, they begin to lose quality and may even become bad. The way eggs are marketed also affects their quality and the number lost through spoilage. Eggs need to be marketed often. And once a week isn't often enough. Twice a week isn't often enough in hot weather. For satisfactory results, eggs need to be marketed just as soon as possible after they are gathered and cooled. One other point, the eggs must be protected from heat while on the way to market. If the eggs or containers in which they are packed are exposed to the sun or heat from other sources, they will lose quality. Loss of quality means loss of market value.

Question: Can milk absorb odors from the air around it and get an unpleasant taste that way?

Answer: Scientists say that the mild, delicate flavor of good milk is very easily tainted by absorbing odors from the air. If you keep milk uncovered in the refrigerator, it will soon take on the taste of fish, cabbage, banana, melon, onion or other foods with a decided flavor that are also in the refrigerator uncovered. Milk will take on the odor of disinfectants or medicines with strong odors used in the barn where the cows are milked. For example, milk will taste of coal-tar for days after coal-tar spray has been used in the dairy barn.

Boll Weevil Menace Has Become Reality

Cotton Enemy No. 1, the boll weevil, has begun its invasion of North Carolina farms, and J. O. Rowell, Extension entomologist of N. C. State College, says the time has arrived for farmers to counter-attack. County farm agents are mobilizing forces to fight the insect pest.

"The first maneuver," Rowell says, "is the application of 1-1-1 poison treatments when weevils are found in fields during the pre-square period at the rate of 30 or more per acre. That means, about one weevil to 500 plants."

"Pre-square treatments should be started just as squares begin to form," the entomologist stated. "This is usually when the plants are 5 to 6 inches high, and before the squares are large enough for the weevils to puncture."

"But don't stop with this attack," Rowell continued, "because a war isn't won with a single battle. Pre-square poisoning alone will not satisfactorily control boll weevils, as many weevils reach the fields after the pre-square poisoning period has passed."

The Extension specialist recommends post-square treatments, in the form of calcium arsenate dusting. This type of poisoning should be started when 10 percent of the developing squares show boll weevil egg punctures.

Complete information on boll weevil control methods is contained in Extension Folder No. 45, which is available free upon request to the Agricultural Editor, N. C. State College, Raleigh. The 1-1-1 treatment is made with a mixture of one pound of calcium arsenate, one gallon of crop molasses, and one gallon of water. It is applied with a hand mop or with a machine.

SUMMARY OF WAR NEWS

Russia declared that her big army fighting for survival on a front extending from the Arctic circle to the Black Sea steadily was sapping the striking power of the German war machine which has overrun nearly all of Europe. Russians in their communique declared that the Germans were being driven back at the center, having lost two entire motorized regiments in a single sector there, but acknowledged that the invaders had begun a second offensive toward Leningrad. On the Ukraine front, Moscow said the German drives eastward from the vicinity of Novograd-Volynski were checked.

Germans appeared to be making some progress toward Leningrad and Murmansk on the northern Russian front. It was claimed that the strongly fortified town of Salla near the Finnish-Russian Arctic frontier and a fortified heights commanding a road to Murmansk had been captured in the Nazi drive on that city; that Viljandi and Parnu in Estonia, along with Ostrov on the Latvian-Russian frontier, had been seized in the thrust toward Leningrad.

The Russians claimed that nearly 1,000,000 Nazis had fallen and insisted that every major German thrust had been halted by Red troops, who actually had themselves taken the offensive in two critical areas.

SQUARE DANCE

There has been 900 feet of the 10-inch pipe laid and tested, 200 of the 10-inch laid but not tested, 442 feet of the 8-inch laid and tested. As the pipe is tested between valves the ground is being replaced. On the sewer project 5,000 feet of 8-inch pipe have been laid and about 7,000 feet yet to lay. Of the 60 odd men working on the project 12 were cut off this week by the W. P. A. orders. They are not expected to be off long, it is stated.

MISHAP

During a heavy rain last Thursday night Carl Nichols of Cooleemee was thought to have been blinded by approaching car lights while driving on Wilkesboro street, hit a telephone pole which broke off at the base and cut off some power connections in town over an hour. Lee Lyerly of the Duke Power Co. did double-quick service in restoring the power.

The new press prints eight columns on each page instead of seven columns on the press formerly used.

The press prints and folds eight pages at a time, thus saving time and labor. The press weighs approximately 30,000 pounds.

The new Enterprise is now eight columns of eight pages in a normal issue—the addition of a full page. It is the only weekly paper in this section of the state that prints this standard size which is used by the dailies and the larger semi-weeklies.

William R. Davie school, the county's newest building, will be dedicated Thursday, August 7. The county board of education has for sometime been making plans for this event and everything is about in readiness for the occasion.

The program will begin at 10 o'clock. The American Legion will present on the grounds, and raise a flag. Then the group will gather in the auditorium for the dedication program. Those participating in this program will be C. C. McGinnis, state director of WPA, A. T. Grant, well known Mocksville attorney, who will speak on the life of William R. Davie, and Dr. Clyde Erwin, state superintendent of public instruction who will make the dedicatory address.

Following the morning program a picnic dinner will be served by the community. A dinner committee is now being formed and all patrons will be asked to bring picnic baskets.

Mr. J. Hampton Rich is expected to present a picture of William R. Davie to the school. This picture is being prepared by an artist in Chapel Hill and it is expected that it will be ready for presentation on August seventh. After the presentation of the picture there will be a band concert. It is hoped that both Mocksville and Farmington high school bands can participate in the concert since both schools will continue to draw high school pupils from the territory. Other features of the afternoon program will be song selections and talks by some of the patrons.

FRANCE PAYS HEAVY PRICE TO GERMANY

COWS, PIGS IN HEAVY DEMAND

France is paying a heavy price for collaboration with Germany.

Some of the less extreme Nazi-phils in the Vichy Government and ordinary citizens outside official circles must be wondering whether it is really worth while. Admittedly the burden falls chiefly on Occupied France, but even that, after all, is a part of the Fatherland which Marshal Philippe Petain, Chief of State, has sworn to set on the road toward a new and better order.

France is said to stand on the verge of starvation. That is what the ex-Communist Paul Marlon, Director of Information to the Vichy Government, tells the world. He also states that it is due to the British blockade. Some well substantial figures which have reached the outside world will show how valid that claim may be.

Nazis Get Cattle
Many figures have been given, most of them without confirmation, and many contradictory. But the following details are from reliable sources.

Since the French capitulation up to the end of May this year Occupied France has delivered 500,000 cows and more than 1,000,000 pigs to the Germans. During the last three months from March, 45,000 cows, 43,000 calves and 50,000 pigs have been exported every month.

For the next months the deliveries are expected to be at a higher rate.

The Nazis do not only demand quantity, they insist on quality. Only first-class animals are accepted; others are returned and have to be replaced. The prices are arbitrarily fixed by the Germans.

In addition to this heavy export demand, Occupied France is compelled to feed the prohibited reserved zones in Northern France, which are administered from Brussels, and also Alsace and Lorraine and the Channel Islands, which are directly under Nazi rule.

Sixteen hundred bullocks are slaughtered every week in Paris for dispatch to Alsace. Recently the requirements for Northern France, where the food situation was very serious, were increased under German pressure, but it was known to the Vichy Government that a large portion of these additional deliveries made their way to Germany via Brussels.

Shortage of Fodder
The cattle position is made still more precarious by the lack of fodder. The occupation authorities confiscated almost all the oats from the peasants in the Occupied Zone and compelled the Free Zone to contribute from their own small reserves to save Occupied France from total lack of oats. Out of a normal annual requirement of 1,600,000 tons of fodder, by now only 700,000 tons

Army "Admiral"

Graduated as No. 1 man at Annapolis in 1940, Joseph F. D'Arcezo of Los Angeles did not get his naval commission because of a minor eye condition. So he joined the army, was commissioned a lieutenant, and is known as "Admiral" in the Panama Canal Zone, where he is stationed.

U. S. Gets New Flame Thrower

This spectacular photo was made at Fort Belvoir, Va., as Private Herbert A. Davis of the U. S. Engineers attacked a pill box with a new model flame thrower developed by the Chemical Warfare Service and the Engineering Corps. The portable thrower, as easy to operate as a pistol, is suitable for one-man attacks on fortifications or tanks.

are available, and from this more than one-half is requisitioned for the military authorities.

From the very first weeks of the occupation the Germans made a careful inventory of all livestock in Occupied France. At regular intervals they have checked up. Their latest figures show that the stocks of pigs have decreased 40 per cent, while the stocks of sheep and bullocks have fallen off by 15 and 20 per cent respectively during the past 11 months.

Apart from livestock, canned meat in large quantities is also on the Nazi requirement list. The French themselves are desperately short of this product through a lack of tin. In normal times 60,000 tons of tin is used in one year. At the present only 15,000 tons are available, and from this 5,000 tons are earmarked for factories manufacturing for German needs only.

In the Franco-German negotiations of last winter the Nazis agreed to repay deliveries of cattle with potatoes. In the first five months of this year, in spite of German and French statements to the contrary, no potatoes have been delivered, except for a small quantity to Paris. There is, in fact, at this moment a very serious shortage of this necessary food owing to a cold late spring.

Occupied France is being bled in other directions. Cheese and butter deliveries to the Third Reich are at the rate of 10,000 tons a year, and this figure is now increasing. During last autumn and winter the German confiscation of cereals was on such a scale that 500,000 tons are lacking until the next harvest, and even then it is not known what the further Nazi demands will be.

Then there is wine; not that wine is a vital foodstuff, but it does play an important part in the Frenchman's economy. Much of the old Burgundies, Bordeaux and Champagnes has been taken away to Germany. In addition to this, the Occupied Zone is required to deliver 2,500,000 hectolitres (approximately 55,000,000 gallons) of ordinary wine.

Rolling Stock Borrowed
This inroad on France's larder has been further complicated by the borrowing of rolling stock, which has disorganized the transport and distribution of food products. Since the capitulation 19,000 carriages and freight cars and 2,500 locomotives have gone to serve military needs in Greater Germany. At the same time 9,000 fully loaded cars, averaging about 90,000 tons of food, raw materials, and manufactured goods, are leaving Occupied France for Germany every week.

It is perhaps facts like these that explain why, on the mornings after the devastating night bombings of Brest by the RAF, signs of "Vive l'Angleterre" and "Vive de Gaulle" are found chalked on the streets and walls of the battered city.

See The Baseball Game

If you want to have a barrel of fun tonight, go to the baseball game at Cooleemee between the Mocksville and Cooleemee business and professional men. You will hear some lively music by two bands, see two colored teams play two innings, aside from watching many of your friends and acquaintances have fun, no matter what the aftermath, being young again while playing.

The money will go towards the Legion hut for the county, which will serve not only as a meeting place for the county generally but also in the future for the boys who are now in the service.

The game will be under the lights at Lewis field. Be there by 7:30 so that you can get a good parking place and a comfortable seat in the grandstand.

More Tolerant

They can say we are more intelligent about wars than during the First World War—and they are right. If they add that we are more tolerant and less emotional now than at the time of the First World War—they are especially right. There are many readers in this section who were too young to know of our hysteria and persecutions, who weren't old enough to remember that sauerkraut was called "liberty cabbage" and that hamburgers were named "liberty steaks." Some folks frowned on a dachund dog, others on the study of German, and many persecuted citizens of German origin because they came from a country in disfavor with the U. S. There were a lot of things we did, most of them we regretted later, but emotionalism swept away our good judgment and reason and so we permitted hatred of a principle to color our concept of a people. Never again will we let this happen to us and so far we have taken the proper stand in the situation today. We are smarter and far wiser in respect to war, if you can use the word respect in relation to war! One of the faults at the bottom of this conflict today is racial hatred, of Germany hating the Jew, of Germany against the Catholic, the Russian, the Englishman. Because there is a thief in the Methodist congregation that gathers on Sunday mornings, you do not feel that all Methodists who sit in the congregation on Sunday mornings are thieves! So in the matter of Germans, who do not hurl abuse and insinuations at them, those citizens of America who have been most loyal, who have added to our name in culture and progress, who have proven their love for America many times. They have the same feeling as do we, that the principle of the present war is wrong and they share with us the belief that the majority of Germans are fighting because they must, that they aren't necessarily convinced that the principle is right. We are glad that we are more tolerant of others, that we are kinder in our beliefs and that we are smarter regarding wars!

Two World's

There are two worlds to conquer and two worlds to consider. Man's world is at odds with itself, its hands are full in its usual struggle for maintenance. There is another world about us which proceeds in its quiet way to grow and offer sustenance, softly bringing about its changes and its manifestations of beauty to our doors without headlines and by-lines to herald its strength and power. This is the world of nature so busy about us, day and night weaving its miracles of bloom and berry, of song of bird and rustle of leaf, of barking dog and laughing child. This is life and love and happiness. There is humming on the streets. Nature's world brings hot sun for fields growth and cooling rains for relief. Comes the breeze of night-fall and the sound of neighbor's voices from nearby porches. About us are kindly, wholesome folks mowing the grass, sprinkling the lawn, weeding the garden as the insects buzz overhead and the birds twitter to their young ones. This is a permanent world that survives. It is the world of our grandmother who loved it and of our grandfather who appreciated it. Those blooms are old settlers, those birds from generations back. All will live on to make for good and for happiness when man's world is in chaos. Let us live in the world of nature then, taking an interest in the life and energy around us and perhaps through this understanding of nature's glory we may spread some of it's good into man's world.

Soy Beans

We thank China for contributing to our life the soy bean crop. Little did the grower who, a few years back, became convinced that soy beans improved the land, ever expect to obtain $1.40 a bushel in June, 1941. The crop has almost doubled its value in a year and has reached a high for a four-year period. Soy beans are becoming big business with their oil being used in soaps, sauces, paints, ice cream, plastics, infant food, flour, linoleum, glue, automobile parts on and on. The surface of soy bean culture has only been scratched according to our chemists and engineers. The world is needing oil right now so our men of grain are increasing production of the soy bean. The June market quotation from Chicago shows that this bean crop was 40 cents higher than wheat, 65 cents higher than corn and more than a dollar above oats. So our farmers increase their acreage and their bank accounts.

Save Aluminum

A recent ad in an exchange newspaper, showing a line-up of aluminum pots, pans, skillets and kettles, brought up a picture of this metal in terms of airplanes. Our housewives are putting off buying aluminum articles for they understand their government needs the product. Many of us are trying, as consumers, to get ourselves in a mental frame of mind to face a bit of doing without if the need should arise, so that the shoe might pinch. As Americans we are reputed to eat, dress and live better than any other nation of people. So you may figure that it would be harder for us to have to face rationing. If electric power was shut off could we take to oil lamps and wood-burning stoves, gracefully? How about going without electric shavers and no street lights? English people did it and with a cheery and stout fellow! So if we have to go without a new aluminum kettle for awhile we will grin and be mighty glad we have something to put in the pot whatever its composition!

STRANGE BEDFELLOWS

Highlights Of The Sunday School Lesson

The Sunday School Lesson for July 13 is "Christianity Expands In Asia,"—Acts 19; 1-21:17.

After his second adventurous missionary journey, which carried him into Europe, Paul returned to Jerusalem, having resisted entreaties to abide in Ephesus. When he had reported to the Mother Church, he again set out to traverse his old route. This time, when he reached the great and thriving city of Ephesus, in what is now Turkey, he decided to remain there for a time. For three months he followed his usual procedure of speaking in the synagogue; there naturally being a large community of Jews in this notable commercial center.

When opposition got too great, he opened up daily meetings in the school of Tyrannus, where persons of all races and religions and classes could hear him. This continued for two years; a sort of protracted Billy Sunday campaign. Luke's record runs, "So that all they that dwell in Asia heard the word of the Lord, both Jews and Greeks."

Evidently, Paul's was "sensational" preaching. It reached the big crowd, and made common talk. Also it was accompanied by miracles of healing. Spectacular conversions were so numerous that converts who had practiced magical arts brought their books into the public square and made a bonfire of them, at a sacrifice of fifty thousand pieces of silver. Paul's Gospel was dramatically changing lives, and affecting the thought of the entire region. Ominous to evil was this fundamental alteration in public thinking. Outward results of inward change were everywhere manifest. Old Ephesus was witnessing a citywide awakening of religious consciousness.

Setting The Mob A-Roar

Real religion is never good for bad business. One of the thriving trades of Ephesus was the manufacture of silver images of the famous goddess, Diana, whose temple was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. A master silversmith, named Demetrius, watched with concern the decline of his business, as the effects of Paul's preaching steadily spread.

So he called together the whole labor union, or guild, of silversmiths together with their affiliated workers. Some were skilled craftsmen; some were husky laborers, who marketed their brawn. With a demagogue's skill, Demetrius incited the selfish passions of the crowd he had collected. Their very livelihood was in danger he warned. And, seeking a good reason for a bad action, he stressed the growing irreverence toward Diana, the goddess. He cloaked a sordid concern for profits beneath a seeming solicitude for the old religion.

That Ephesus riot, which ensued upon the cunning speech of a skillful agitator, was akin to most riots since. Soon the mob of silver workers, increased by the city's irresponsible riff-raff, was gathered in the great theatre and clamoring for the blood of the Christian missionaries. For two solid hours they rent the air with throaty cries of, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!"—though what they really meant was, "We want jobs and money!" How parallel to modern instances was this noisy solicitude, for a temple, cloak of concern for trade.

A JOKE A DAY

Missed Ladder

Sambo: "Wham am Rastus terday Marcellus?"
Marcellus: "He am in hospital."

Sambo: "In de hospital; what happened to him?"
Marcellus: "Oh, he jest came down de ladder about 10 minutes after it had been took away."

Water

The teacher had asked the pupils to write a short composition on the subject, "Water." One boy wrote: "Water is a white wet liquid which turns black when you wash in it."

Missed Bus

"I hear they've taken the early morning bus off your line. Do you miss it much?"
"Not since they took it off."

Velvet Paw

Pearl: "You really ought to come to Shrimpton with me next summer. I had a wonderful time there this year. I won a beauty competition."
Ruby: "No, I think I'd rather go to a more crowded place."

Defensive Tactics

The Accused: "There's the lawyer we stuck up. It's all up with us. He's going to testify against us."

His Accomplice: "Not this time, he won't. I've hired him to defend us."

Takes No Risks

Employer: "I want a reliable chauffeur who takes no risks."

Applicant: "I'm your man, sir. Can I have my salary in advance?"

Hard Horse

Girl, after horseback ride: "I never knew anything so full of hay could be so hard."

Time Saver

Mechanics Professor: "Name a great time saver."
Soph.: "Love at first sight."

The Important Part

Clerk: "May I use your phone?"

Boss: "What for?"
Clerk: "My wife told me to ask you for a salary increase, but she forgot to say how much."

The Skeptic

Chief: "Now what do you want? I thought I fired you two weeks ago."

Ex-Office Boy: "Oh, I just came back to see if you were still in business."

No Home Needed

"A home?" A New York woman answered a realtor trying to sell her a house. "Why do I need a home? I was born in a hospital, educated in a college, courted in an automobile, married in a church; I eat at a delicatessen, spend my mornings on a golf course, my afternoons at a bridge table, and my evenings at the movies—and when I die I am going to be buried from an undertaker's. All I need is a garage."

from fronting the mob, as his heroic heart bade him do. His co-worker, Alexander, tried to reason with the crowd, but he was drowned out by the babel of noise. As Luke records, "The more part knew not wherefore they were come together." Mob madness, which overturns reason and a sense of responsibility from their thrones, had possession of that screaming multitude.

Then appeared one man who had kept his head, the town clerk of Ephesus. Thank God, there are usually such in every community. And it should be a present concern of every good citizen, in these critical times, to prepare himself to stand steady when his community is rocking. This town clerk was not thinking of votes, or of his own safety; but of the real honor of Ephesus and of the sanctity of law. So he spoke fearless and forthright words of warning to the multitude, quieting and sobering them. He pointed a finger of indictment at Demetrius and the silversmiths. His words finally dispersed the crowd.

Even by this ominous incident, news of which quickly spread throughout Asia, public interest in the new faith was quickened. Persecution promotes publicity; that is why Pastor Niemöller, in a German concentration camp, is the most potent force for vital Christianity in Germany today. The Gospel was going and growing; so Paul was content. What was one riot, more or less?

Russians Tougher than Hitler Thought

COMMUNIQUE NOT DECISIVE

The German campaign of aggression against Russia is now two weeks old. After the first week the Germans announced that all resistance had been broken and that they were on their way to Moscow and other places east. But the Red Army is still resisting.

The Germans have had to use their full strength. It is a very safe estimate that Hitler is throwing all his power into the fight to crush his erstwhile "friend" Stalin and put him in the growing class of those who trusted Hitler to their sorrow. That the Nazi success has not been what Berlin expected is indicated by the very queer communique the German capital has been issuing. One day the Russian strength has been annihilated and the next day there is another communique describing the stiff resistance of the Russians. One day the Russian air force has been driven from the skies; the next day it is told of how hundreds of Russian planes were brought down.

War of Typewriters

Indeed, in addition to the struggling armies on the front, the German-Russian battle is also a war of typewriters. Moscow is using its old-time flamboyancy in telling how it holds the Germans back, how it stands against the "assassins" and "cannibals," and then has to admit withdrawals to "better positions." The Russians are also using the technique of issuing long communique telling of individual feats of their fighters. This system has been adopted doubtless because the Russian censorship had resulted in the withdrawal of most foreign correspondents from Moscow. That from the Red viewpoint, was an error analogous to that of shooting most of their generals a couple of years ago.

The German communique are far different in style from those issued in the Hitler campaigns which were crowned with quick successes. Day after day the Germans failed in the first ten days of the campaign to mention places to which they had advanced. It was all inner generalities. Yesterday Berlin communique said that it was "announced" that the Russian had been reached and that the Russian had been driven back. But the day after that the communique said that the Russian had been driven back and that the German had been driven back. The day after that the communique said that the Russian had been driven back and that the German had been driven back. The day after that the communique said that the Russian had been driven back and that the German had been driven back.

The B-19 In the Air For the First Time

At Santa Monica, Cal., the U. S. estimated $3,500,000 to build. The B-19 Army's colossus, the mighty B-19, majestically soars over Clover Field, heading for March Field, 75 miles away. Major Stanley Umstead piloted the $2-ton ship (weight when loaded) which cost an es-been German photographs. Apparently the Russians have no facilities in Moscow for sending photographs by wireless, and thus at a time when they are bending every effort to obtain sympathetic publicity abroad, they find themselves handicapped.

As has been plain from the first day of the campaign, the issue hinges largely on the morale and powers of resistance of the Russian Army. If a battle on the present terrain leads to a real break of the Russian Army and a weakening of morale, we will have one situation. If, on the other hand, the Russian Army can withdraw and still fight, we shall have quite another situation. This is true because the farther the Germans go into the vast reaches of Russian territory, the more difficult becomes their problem of transportation and service of supplies. Russia is notably lacking in good roads and the German Army and equipment must have roads. The question, therefore, is whether the Russians, following the counsel of Stalin, can destroy as they re-treach and retreat successfully. If they can keep up the fight for a summer, the command will leave the Germans in a very serious position.

The Stalin Line

It would appear that the Germans are planning to attack directly the Stalin Line, in contrast to the turning tactics they used against the Maginot Line in France. If they have reached the Dnieper River east of Minsk, they are right up against the Stalin Line.

This system of fortifications is said to be a combination of features of the Maginot Line, in the use of a strong protective positions, largely continuous, and of the system of scattered defenses in depth, such as was used by the Germans in the construction of the Siegfried Line. In some parts it is reported to be seventy-five miles deep. It stretches practically from the Black Sea to the Gulf of Finland, being at its strongest in the region between Minsk and Moscow, where it protects the Red capital.

Primarily built in 1933, it has been strengthened since then. The Russians have allowed but few details concerning it to become known. It now remains to be seen what value of resistance is offered by this system of defenses stretching for 1,100 miles before the German Army. If it breaks the Germans will capture Moscow. If they can drive to Moscow they may be expected to try to set up a puppet government. It is headed by a man named moment, Mussolini is getting no more victories in the Mediterranean since Berlin faces Moscow, and the bombing of Britain has fallen off. That there is so much less opposition to R.A.F. bombing in Northern France and Belgium, it may be taken for granted that a part of the air force the Germans had there is being used on the Russian front.

For the British, there is much interest in how long the Russian campaign lasts. If it goes until September, that means a success for the British through the Winter. If it ends quickly, the Germans will have time left this Summer to turn their efforts elsewhere.

Of course, the eyes of all Europe are turned on Washington. In London, as well as in Berlin and Rome, there seems to be lacking a clear idea of the intentions of the United States. The prevailing idea last Spring that this country would be in the war by Fall is not now so prevailing.

The chief problem of the British today is loss of shipping and that affects their prospects of obtaining by next Spring sufficient aid from the United States to be in a position to try for air supremacy over the continent. They are hoping, of course, that a Hitler buy until the Fall with the Russians and a Winter of time will bring them much aid from this side of the Atlantic.

THREE YADKIN POWER PLANTS CURTAIL CURRENT DELIVERIES

Three power generating plants near Salisbury on the Yadkin river—located at High Rock, Yadkin Falls, and Yadkin Narrows—are affected by the federal power commission's order to the Carolina Aluminum company and the Duke Power company for curtailment of power deliveries.

Using emergency provisions, the commission this week invoked priorities for the first time in the utility field.

The three plants have a total installed capacity of 134,500 kilowatts.

In an effort to safeguard continuous power supply for defense aluminum production, the Federal Power commission directed Carolina Aluminum company and the Duke Power company to cease drawing down water from reservoirs and to reduce its contract deliveries of energy to the Duke concern.

The order followed reports, the commission announced, that generation of energy by Carolina Aluminum in its hydro-electric plants on the Yadkin River for delivery under contract to the Duke Power company threatened to increase power shortages in the southeast by reducing water in plant reservoirs.

Continuation of the draw-down, the order said, would curtail the remainder of the year for defense aluminum production. In directing stoppage of the water drawdown and reducing energy deliveries to the Duke Power company to a maximum of 1,600,000 kilowatt hours a week, the commission said, maximum continuous generation and deliveries of electricity for aluminum production would be assured, and the plants would be operated as run-of-the-river plants, using only the unregulated natural flow of the Yadkin river.

Expansion of Duke Power facilities, already under way, is expected to add more to the company's capacity than the commission has ordered cut off, officials of the company said.

The Buck steam plant at Dukeville, Rowan county will soon be producing 100,000 kilowatts.

Here's July-August Garden Work Calendar

There's much work to be done on the fall garden, and in the home orchard, during July and August, says H. R. Niswonger and L. P. Watson, Extension horticulturists of N. C. State College. They have prepared a garden and orchard work calendar for the two summer months.

For farmers in the Eastern part of the State, the horticulturists recommend that a second crop of potatoes be planted in July. Good varieties are Lookout Mountain and Cobbler. Also suggested is the setting out of cabbage plants from August 1 to 10. Plant sweet corn, lima beans, summer squash, Swiss chard and tomatoes between July 15 and August 15. Sow celery seed in July for plants to be set out in August. Sow turnip seed, and turnip salad, in August.

For the western half of the State, the horticulturists recommend: Sow celery seed in July for transplanting in August. Sow seed of Chinese cabbage in July and lettuce seed in August. Thin plants of each to 12 inches apart. Plant snap beans, beets, carrots, collards, sweet corn, Swiss chard, tomatoes, kale, turnips and turnip salad in July or August. Plant a second crop of Irish potatoes in July.

Suggested work in the home orchard during the July-August period is as follows: Remove old fruiting canes of raspberries, dewberries and blackberries. Burn them. If the leafspot disease is present, spray the new canes with Bordeaux mixture.

Spray peach trees with wet sulphur to control brown rot. Spray apple trees with Bordeaux mixture to control the rot diseases. Spray grapevines with the same material to prevent fruit from rotting.

Peach Crop Is Largest Since Season Of 1931

The peach crop now being harvested in North Carolina totals an estimated 2,430,000 bushels, and Lewis P. Watson, Extension horticulturist of N. C. State College, says it is the largest crop since 1931. The 1940 peach production in the State was 1,344,000 bushels.

"The peaches in the Sandhills section are of good quality for the most part," Watson declared, "and there will be no better fruit buy on the market this year than peaches. If the growers are to receive a fair price for their crop, it will be necessary for consumption of peaches to rise considerably over normal consumption. Before we ask people in other states to eat more peaches, we certainly should do our part at home."

The latest fruit situation report of the U. S. Department of Agriculture indicates a crop of 20,840,000 bushels in the 10 "early" states, all of which will be selling peaches during the next six weeks. This is nearly 50 percent larger than last year's crop.

Miss Mary E. Thomas, Extension nutritionist, points out that peaches — either fresh or canned — supply certain food materials that the body requires for health and growth. "Fruits are an excellent source of sugar for energy needs of the body," she declared, "and they also stimulate the appetite and aid digestion."

"They are a principal source of Vitamin C, which protects against scurvy and is essential for the healthy condition of teeth and gums. Serve peaches fresh, canned, dried, steamed, stewed or cooked in combination with other foods," she suggests.

Mrs. Cornelia C. Morris, Extension canning specialist, points out that recipes for making preserves and peach pickles are contained in Extension Circular No. 113, "Jelly, Preserves, Jam and Pickle."

MORE ABOUT War News

landed Monday in Iceland to prevent any German effort to occupy that island, and the navy was ordered to take every step necessary to keep sea communications open to that "and all other strategic outposts" of American defense. This was done at the direction of President Roosevelt, and announced by him in a special message to Congress.

President Roosevelt approves request of General Marshall that a portion of selective service and national guardsmen on duty in outposts remain beyond the one year.

Secretary Knox strongly hinted that American naval vessels patrolling the Atlantic had been ordered to shoot if necessary to protect communications between the U. S. and strategic outposts.

The draft lottery for newly registered men of 21 will be held July 17.

Yadkin Veteran Commits Suicide

Erskine Franklin Stanley, about 50, took his own life at his home near Boonville by firing a shotgun load into his breast just above the heart, severing the large blood vessel. He died in ten minutes.

Stanley was a World War veteran and had spent some time in a veteran's hospital at Johnson City, Tenn., returning to his home Saturday. His family was at work when the shot was fired. The body was found by A. L. Dehart, on whose farm Stanley lived, a few minutes after the shot was fired. Dehart was passing by and saw the body lying in front of the home, three miles north-west of Boonville. A stick had been used to pull the trigger.

Stanley was a native of Surry county. He is survived by his widow and several children. The funeral was held at the Stanley Graveyard near Dobson Thursday afternoon.

Coroner R. V. Long was called to the scene but pronounced it a clear case of suicide and deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Cargill Was Star For Legion Team

Marvin (Bo) Cargill, Cooleen shortstop, had two doors of baseball open to him. State league fans may not be aware of it, but Bo was a great kid pitcher for the American Legion Post of Anderson, S. C. He was faced with making a decision as he began to think about a professional career, and decided to devote his time to short-fielding.

"There wasn't any use trying to do two jobs," he said. "I knew if I wanted to be a shortstop I had better give up pitching, for the wear and tear on my arm wouldn't help me. I liked playing shortstop and it would keep me in the game every day, so I quit hurling."

In 1936, Cargill pitched the Anderson Legion team right up to the finals for the upper state championship of South Carolina without suffering a loss.

Meeting Spartanburg in the finals, the kid met his only two setbacks and both were heartbreakers.

He lost the first game, 4 to 0, when his mates let him down at the plate and in the field. They promised not to do it again in the second meeting of the teams, but they couldn't keep their promises. Bo lost the second game, 2 to 1, after a beautifully pitched game.

Next year he turned definitely and permanently to the business of shortstop. He led the Anderson county league in fielding and was picked on the all-star team. In 1938, the youngster joined the Independent Georgia-Carolina loop, placed second in hitting and was again named on the all-star nine.

The next year he was unanimous choice as shortstop on the all-star team of the North-western State League of South Carolina.

A native of Charlotte, Cargill started out last year and helped Gastonia finish second in the Tar Heel loop race. Bo played in every game and carded a .271 batting average.

FARM QUESTIONS ARE ANSWERED

Question: When should corn and sorghum be cut for silage?

Answer: Dairy specialists of the State College Extension Service say that crops should be cut for silage when they contain the maximum feed nutrients and at the same time have sufficient moisture to pack well in the silo. With corn, the grain should be denting and the shuck slightly yellow. This stage of maturity is reached about a week or ten days before the corn is ready to cut and shock. Sorghum should be cut when the seed in the head are firm.

Question: What types of vegetables can be put up with a hot water canner?

Answer: Only vegetables and fruits which are "acid" and can be safely preserved at a boiling temperature, 212 degrees F., may be canned with a hot water canner, says Mrs. Cornelia C. Morris, Extension food conservation specialist. This list includes tomatoes, fruits, freshly-gathered, young, tender string beans, and a pre-cooked soup mixture containing a large proportion of tomatoes. Such non-acid products as corn, peas, beans, spinach, okra and squash require a pressure canner.

Question: When is the best time to seed a permanent lawn?

Answer: Except for the Mountain section, the best results are usually secured by seeding grass in the early fall. John H. Harris, Extension landscape specialist of N. C. State College, says even in the mountains, at elevations of less than 2,500 feet, the best time to seed a lawn is in the early fall. By seeding in the fall, the grass will generally become well established before winter, and in the spring will have a good start on weeds and undesirable grasses.

Davie county had 4.44 inches of rain this month up to 7 a. m. July 17. This makes a total of nearly 9 inches since June 26. It rained .89 of an inch here Wednesday night, considerably less than in adjoining areas. The river and all creeks are out of the banks. The rain had ruined much wheat in the fields, caused tobacco wilt, left much grass in cotton, hurt bottom land corn and retarded all farm work.

SUMMARY OF WAR NEWS

Russia acknowledged yesterday that Germany had advanced near Smolensk, only 230 miles from Moscow.

The Soviet command reported that German troops were being cut down in great numbers in violent fighting in the northwest, west, and southwest, but for the first time avoided mention of any town in the battle areas. This omission—which obscured the extent of the German advance, if any—strongly suggested Red reverses.

The German High Command itself said only that "break-through operations" against the Stalin line were going forward on schedule and that the Finnish allies were striking at Leningrad's northern defenses with twin columns moving on each side of Lake Ladoga to supplement the German thrust toward that city from the southwest. Authorized German spokesmen and the official German news agency went a great deal further than the Nazi command. They claimed that the fall of Kiev, the capital of the Ukraine, could be expected at any time; that Leningrad was caught in a sort of nutcracker maneuver; that German tank troops operating east of the Stalin line were pushing on toward Moscow itself.

Britain's successful war against Vichy troops in French Syria and Lebanon came to an end. An armistice was signed in Acre, Palestine. It was announced by General Sir Claude Auchinleck, British commander in the Middle East. Winston Churchill says that the time has come for Germany to suffer the bombings that England has undergone. He warns the English people to expect retaliation this fall and winter by Germany.

Russia admits the loss of a quarter million men and says Hitler has lost a million. Russia and England sign an agreement that neither will conclude a separate peace.

On the Western front British bombers continue their daylight and night bombings in German-occupied France and the industrial Germany. Churchill said that during the last few weeks Britain had thrown on the enemy half of the number of bombs that Germany had unloaded during the entire war.

Congressional leaders will present legislation to hold selectees, national guardsmen and reservists in service for more than a year.

Leon Henderson, federal price administrator, predicts the time is near when this country will see higher prices, increased taxes and a shortage of consumer goods. The only way to control inflation, he said, was for the government to succeed in controlling prices, purchasing power and installment buying.

High Point hydroelectric plant on the Yadkin river is included in a billion dollar expansion of power for defense proposed by the federal power commission to President Roosevelt.

OLD ALUMINUM BE COLLECTED NEXT WEEK, LEFT AT COUNTY SCHOOLS

At a meeting at the courthouse Monday night a Defense Council was organized in Davie County.

The Council is sponsoring a county drive for scrap aluminum during the week of July 21-27. Every family in the county will be given an opportunity to contribute any kind of old aluminum that can be spared for use in the construction of defense materials.

E. C. Tatum of Cooleemee was named chairman by Governor Broughton.

Solicitation of old aluminum will be done through various clubs and organizations throughout the county and a house to house canvass is planned in Mocksville and Cooleemee.

Pastors and Sunday School superintendents are asked to announce about the drive which is a part of the national campaign, next Sunday.

The state council of national defense requested the formation of the Davie unit. Miss Florence Mackie, home demonstration agent, was named secretary and R. S. Proctor, county school superintendent, was elected treasurer.

The names of members of the council and the organizations they represent are as follows:

American Legion, W. M. Pennington; Town Mayors, T. I. Caudell; County Commissioners, E. C. Tatum; Superintendent of Schools, R. S. Proctor; Health department, Mrs. W. T. Green; County Agent, D. C. Rankin; Home Agent, Miss Florence Mackie.

Women's Organizations, Mrs. Beulah Apperson and Miss Ruth Booe; Lions Club, Galtier Sanford; Farm Organizations, Wade Furches; Ministers, Rev. F. J. Stough; Law Enforcement Officers, Sheriff L. S. Bowden; Citizens at Large, A. T. Grant.

Bring Aluminum To School House

Mayor T. I. Caudell, county chairman of the Scrap Aluminum committee of the Davie County Defense Council, urges all people throughout the county to actively participate in gathering in and about their homes all old aluminum pots and pans and other material of aluminum content not of practical value, and bring these items to their local school at the end of the campaign week, July 21-26. In other words, all aluminum material gathered during this campaign will be delivered to local school houses on Saturday, July 26.

The principals or custodians of the local schools have been asked to be at the school house buildings on this date to receive any material collected in the various communities. The aluminum will later be picked up by trucks and brought to some central point for final distribution.

The Mayor calls attention to the fact that the Scrap Aluminum Campaign is one of the defense undertakings urged by the National Defense Council. Davie county, along with other counties throughout the United States, now has its defense organization and the collection of scrap aluminum is its first undertaking as a county. The cooperation of all citizens throughout the county will be highly appreciated by the chairman, Mayor Caudell.

HURT IN WRECK
Mrs. Buford Hoover was painfully injured Tuesday morning about 6 o'clock when her car overturned on the Mocksville highway near her home. She is suffering from a broken collar bone and bruises.

The accident occurred as Mrs. Hoover was on her way to work in Cooleemee. The car skidded on the wet highway. The automobile, a late model, was badly damaged.

Mrs. Hoover was taken to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Milhollon, on Main street, Cooleemee.

Hitler Launches New Drive On Russians

SOVIET MORALE SEEMS GOOD

The German Army is launching a new and much reinforced drive against the stubborn Russian Army. The initial surprise attack of the Nazis netted them large gains in the past three weeks but failed to break the Red Army as it had broken other armies. The invaders have driven the Soviet forces out of part of Bessarabia, out of most of former Polish territory held by the Russians and out of the Baltic States taken over by Moscow last year. Now the new drive is intended by Hitler to take his forces to Moscow.

Each side claims that the other has lost 1,000,000 men in killed and wounded. These estimates, which cannot be exact, may well be exaggerated. There is no doubt that the Germans have inflicted heavy losses in men, airplanes, and tanks on the Russians. There is small doubt the Russians have cost the Germans heavily. Yet, in this largest battle in history, there is no good reason to believe that Hitler's army has been as yet seriously crippled. The ability of the Russians to put up what has been unquestionably a better defense than the Germans expected indicates that neither the defensive power nor the morale of the Red forces has been broken.

The Price of Gains

While it is to be expected that the new drive will net the Germans some territory, it may prove that relatively it will cost them more heavily than their first gains. This may be the case because Hitler has worn out the benefit of surprise and because it is to be expected that the prepared positions of the Stalin Line will be harder going than the newly held territory in which the Russians had not built heavy defenses.

The rather brilliant performances of the Russians in the first three weeks of the campaign may justify speculation on the time element in the campaign, which is important. It may be said roughly that after Sept. 15, whatever happens between now and then, the difficulties of the invading army will increase. Over most of Russian-in-Europe there is a rainy season the last half of September, which precedes the coming of heavy winter which would become a factor as early as November. The German forces are so largely mechanized that roads form a very important factor in their campaign. There are some good paved roads in Western Russia, but not enough of them for German purposes. In many regions the Nazi are obliged to use dirt roads which will become very difficult indeed in September. In other words, if the Russian Army holds for two more months, even if forced to retreat, the German Army will find many troubles from then on through the winter.

Obstacles in the Path
As has been said, the element of distance is of relatively less importance in the Russian campaign than in other drives Hitler has made. True enough,

Singer Honored

Senators Sign Oath of Loyalty to Get Pay

Under a new appropriations act stipulating that they can draw their pay, Oco Thompson, senate financial clerk, is shown taking the affidavits of Senators Styles Bridges (center) of New Hampshire and Chandler Gurney of South Dakota.

The Stalin Line is important, and if the Germans can crumble it they will have inflicted a heavy blow on their enemies. Yet, on the other hand, the distances in Russia are very great and if a Russian army could be found two months from now fighting the Germans even several hundred miles farther into Russia, the difficulties of the invaders would be greatly increased by the mere circumstance of the lengthening of their lines of communication. There will be not only the lack of transportation facilities affecting their front-line military operations but here would be the very important issue of inadequate roads for the supply lines of the Germans. Time and distance may well work strongly to the advantage of the Russians.

In his other campaigns in this war Hitler has had the advantage of numerically stronger forces. True enough, he has had the advantage of a superior aviation and better mechanization, but also he had the most men. Now, so far as numbers are concerned, the tables have been turned. There are reports of 8,000,000 more men being put into the Russian forces and that is more men than Hitler can bring up. Of course, too large deductions are not to be drawn from this circumstance. One must not forget the factor of the number of planes and the number of tanks, in both of which the Germans are probably much superior. Certainly they have more planes. But if it comes down to a war of attrition, man power may prove an important element. It will depend on how many men Moscow can equip. But, anyhow, Russia has twice as many potential soldiers as has Germany and that ought to count for something if the fight lasts long enough.

That numbers are considered important is indicated by the evidence that nearly two-thirds of the existing German Army is being used in the drive against Russia. In addition to pulling troops from southward and westward to use them eastward, the indications are that a great part of the German air strength is being massed against the Soviets. Thus, there is going to be, as never before, a test of better mechanical equipment against larger numbers of men.

Herr Hitler's Big Job

While most critics believe that the Germans can defeat an equal number of Russians, given their better equipment, it must be recognized that this is not a pitched battle in the old sense of the term. The Russians have plenty of room behind them in which to withdraw if their military organization holds together. The farther Hitler goes the more difficult is his job in many respects. He can advance 300 miles more and a great part of the Russian war industrial areas will still be out of his reach.

Of course, there is no denying that if the Germans can reach Moscow they will have dealt a terrible blow to Stalin's prestige and to Russian military strength. But it would not be necessarily a fatal blow. There are already reports that the Kremlin is making plans against the necessity of having to quit the capital.

Looking at it another way, Hitler has got to win the Russian campaign or face disaster. He is putting his best armies and strongest efforts into the fight. If the Russians can stop him and hold him and continue the fight on any terrain, he will find himself in a tough plight. His prestige will suffer enormously both at home and abroad. He needs a victory over Russia now. He needs it in the next two months.

War in the West

The German raids on England have become spasmodic and much weaker, while British raids on occupied France and Belgium as well as on the Western German industrial areas have increased in volume and regularity. The weakness of the German resistance in the air quite clearly indicates a withdrawal of planes to the eastward.

However, the Germans keep up the Battle of the Atlantic. The British have as yet made no reply to the Berlin claim that the Nazis sunk 700,000 tons of British shipping in June. But even if the correct figure is nearer 400,000, it means that the heavy drain on British tonnage is still going on and that Britain is losing shipping faster than she is producing fresh tonnage.

The United States has occupied Iceland for the avowed purpose of protecting the Western Hemisphere against Nazi attacks. It is commonly assumed that the placing of troops in Iceland has to do with plans for protecting shipments of war supplies from the United States to Britain. For perhaps obvious reasons, Washington has not yet seen fit to give further details of such plans as may be underway.

Families To Be Asked For Unused Aluminum

The nation's gigantic aluminum-gathering campaign, scheduled for the week of July 21, will give every family an opportunity to contribute directly to the National Defense Program, says Dr. I. O. Schaub, director of the N. C. State College Extension Service.

During that week, voluntary workers will call at the homes of American families in every State asking for any old aluminum not in use. Purpose of the campaign is to supplement the vast supplies of the metal needed for the production of defense equipment, especially fighting planes.

Among the items which may be contributed are: pots and pans, radio parts, toys, shakers, screening, old washing-machine parts, picture frames, book ends, ice trays, measuring cups, camera equipment, kettles and double boilers, bottle and jar caps, refrigerator plates, and dozens of others.

"Anything that's made of aluminum will do," Dr. Schaub said. "That old kettle with the handle that's been lying around for years will help in making a plane. A careful search of pantries, basements, back porches, and outbuildings will probably reveal several items no longer usable that will go to increase our present aluminum supplies."

In rural areas, it has been proposed that 4-H Club members and home demonstration club women call on homes in their communities to collect the aluminum scrap. Dr. Schaub said farm and home agents have been asked to lend a helping hand in this important defense campaign.

FARM QUESTIONS ARE ANSWERED

Question: Can the condition of gin equipment affect the quality of cotton?

Answer: Yes. According to J. A. Shanklin, Extension cotton specialist at State College, good ginning and poor ginning show up noticeably in the preparation and grade of cotton. It is imperative therefore that ginner "make ready" their gins during the growing season that they will be in position to offer growers a good job in the fall. July is the usual "make ready" month and during that period ginner should be careful to put all machinery and equipment in tip-top shape.

Question: What opportunity will farmers have to cooperate in the national defense effort aside from adequate production of food-feed?

Answer: Farmers of the state this year expect to have more income than last, but may not be able to buy some of the things which they need or want because of defense priorities. They may well invest some of the increased income in defense bonds or stamps. That is the advice of Tom Cornwell, Cleveland county cotton farmer and member of the state AAA committee, which maintains offices at State College.

Question: How have state farmers responded to the plan of Governor J. M. Broughton for increased production of eggs in North Carolina?

Answer: The response has been unusually good, reports C. F. Parrish, Extension poultryman at State College, but "too many" producers are marketing their pullets as broilers instead of holding them as layers. At the present time there is no egg shortage, but this condition may be changed in the near future unless egg production is stepped up even higher. People are eating more eggs at home, the Army needs tremendous quantities and still more are scheduled for shipment overseas.

Explains How To Handle Farm Family Milk Supply

The handling in the home of milk produced by the family cow has long been a troublesome problem, says John A. Arey, Extension dairy specialist at N. C. State College.

"You find almost as many different flavors of milk and butter as there are farm homes," the specialist said. "As a matter of fact, cows do not produce all these many flavored products. The different tastes found in dairy products in different homes are due to the different ways the milk is handled."

A simple method of handling the milk will solve almost any problem that arises from the home production of dairy food, Arey added. He said that the best container for milk from one or two cows is the standard ard glass milk bottle. Just after milking, the milk should be strained through a good filter-type strainer after which the filter cloth should be discarded. Three to four folds of cheese cloth can be used when a filter-type strainer is not available but it is necessary to sterilize the cloth with boiling water after each use. Unless the cloth is sterilized, it will act as a source of bacterial infection to milk each time the liquid is strained through it. After straining, the milk should be poured into quart glass bottles. A small tin funnel is good for use to prevent spilling. The bottles then should be capped with standard milk bottle caps. Several months' supply of caps can be bought for less than 50 cents.

The milk next should be cooled in cold water before it is removed to the refrigerator or ice box.

NEWS and FACTS ... of Statewide Interest

YOU CAN HELP!

North Carolina's legalized brewing industry wants no law-violating element within its ranks. It wants no beer outlets that use their licenses to mask anti-social activities.

Hence the consistent effort under the "clean up or close up" campaign to eliminate the comparatively few beer retailers who do not respect the privilege of their licenses.

In cooperation with law enforcement agencies, our Committee has made progress. But our goal is a 100% law-abiding business and we insist that all retail beer outlets be able to withstand the searchlight of public scrutiny.

You can help us attain this objective by patronizing the orderly outlets in your community and reporting any unlawful conditions to officials or to this Committee.

"STALIN LINE" IS SIMILAR TO A "HAYSTACK"

BUILT TO GIVE BUT NOT BREAK

The Germans claim to have broken the Stalin Line. No foreign correspondents, authors or distinguished visitors have ever toured this line. Neither Maurice Chevalier, Noel Coward nor any of the other stars who often played on the Maginot Line ever appeared in the underground casements of the 1,000-mile Soviet defense system.

Until the Nazi blitzkrieg rolled against it, the Stalin Line was as mysterious, secret and impersonal as its namesake, the Kremlin Dictator. Even its location was a matter of conjecture until the communiques placed the points of Soviet resistance and to date its nature and strength is mainly a matter of speculation.

Nothing could be more misleading than to refer to the Soviet defense system as the "Russian Maginot line." Neither in principle nor in detail was it ever patterned on the French model.

The Russians began to fortify their western frontier soon after the close of the war with Poland in 1920 and they have been at the job ever since. While the type of fortification has changed and has been perfected to meet the new requirements of warfare, one feature has remained constant. It was based on defense in depth rather than on the attempt to build one or two "impregnable" chains. As a Soviet tactician once expressed it, the theory was to let the enemy bury himself head and shoulders by plunging into a haystack instead of crashing against a stone wall.

The Russians have always thought more in terms of a war of movement than a position war. This thinking is conditioned by the vastness of the country, as opposed to France where every square inch is counted. Even in the last war, no well defined front existed in the east comparable to the positions on the Somme and the Marne. The subsequent Russian civil war and the Polish campaign wherein the Red Army surged up to the very gates of Warsaw and then recoiled, were exclusively wars of movement in which cavalry played the part now assigned to mechanized units.

Mobile Warfare
The Red Army leaders were largely men who distinguished themselves in these cavalry operations. Men like Voroshiloff, Tukhachevsky and Budyonny applied to the peace time task of organizing and building up the Soviet Union's defense forces the knowledge of mobile warfare.

Under the direction of Tukhachevsky's military genius, the Red Army started to mechanize on a large scale long before the Germans or any other power adopted this principle.

This expressed itself in two ways. Mass production of tanks was initiated, while automobile trucks were provided to put the infantry on wheels. At the same time the first experiments were instituted in developing an entirely new and daring type of mobility.

Nazis Capture a Red Fort

The whole idea of air-borne troops, including parachute troops, originated with Tukhachevsky. The first large-scale demonstration of this type of warfare was made in September, 1936, during Red Army maneuvers wherein 1,200 men armed with 150 machine guns were flown 100 miles behind enemy lines and dropped on an air field in the enemy rear. Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, not yet famous, attended the maneuvers as British observer.

New Kind of Defense
Applying their views on the nature of modern warfare to defense problems, the Russians designed their fortifications to withstand the attacks of heavy mechanized enemy divisions. Realizing the terrific striking power of such troops, the Soviet generals wished to avoid the sort of brittle fortifications which, no matter how strong, were liable to crack at the moment of maximum stress and which, when pierced in one sector, were valueless as they could be outflanked.

The Stalin Line was intended to be sufficiently flexible and resilient so that it might bend or yield without breaking. Hence the haystack simile.

The Stalin Line may be best described as the backbone of a fortified zone, which while it begins everywhere flush with the old Soviet eastern frontier, it reaches its strip of greatest intensity inland, except in those districts where natural barriers exist at the frontier.

Thus, beginning at the Black Sea, the line follows the Dniester River to a point about halfway between Moghilev, Podolsk and Kameney Podolsk. From there it turns north parallel to the main Kiev-Zhmerinka railway line and then runs west of Zhitomir almost to the frontier at Novograd Volynsk.

Most Critical Sector
From the strategic standpoint, this last sector is the most critical since it runs across flat, open plain, diagonal to the water courses and with no natural obstacles. But because it guards the vital center of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, it cannot allow for much enemy penetration but must keep close to the frontier.

North of Novograd Volynsk the Stalin is buttressed on the impassable Pripyet Marshes. North of the Marshes the line is set farther back in Russian territory, first along the Pukh River and then the Berezina River, nearly fifty miles behind Minsk. From the headwaters of the Berezina River it crosses the marshlands between Polotsk and Vitebsk and bears slightly to the west until it reaches the shores of Lake Peipus on the Estonian

AAA Committeeman Offers Round-Up On Wheat Facts

State AAA Committeeman-farmer W. Herbert White of Caswell county this week issued three up-to-date statements bearing upon the wheat situation in North Carolina:

1. Farmers who want to avoid payment of penalty on excess wheat by "delivering it to the secretary of agriculture" may now deliver the actual excess wheat to the county AAA committee — in areas where it is not practicable to deliver it to grain elevators or warehouses and get receipts. The wheat will not actually be delivered to the county AAA office, but will be delivered at such time and to such place as the county committee may designate. The county committee will be charged with diverting the penalty wheat into relief channels.

2. August 30 is the final date on which farmers may sign up for winter wheat insurance on this year's crop (yet to be planted.) That gives farmers in this state nearly seven weeks in which to work out their wheat insurance plans and make application for government protection.

3. Government — approved storage houses for grain may now be built of lumber. Formerly only steel bins were approved by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for loan storage of grains. This change in agricultural policy was cited as "extremely important" since steel bins will not be available now in quantities formerly in demand, that because more steel is needed for defense building.

Trailer Traffic

Today manufacturing trailers has become an important industry in our country as the production this year is breaking all previous records. As the summer passes we will see more and more of them put into use. The housing shortage due to our defense program has made the trailer the home for many workers who are using them as better living quarters than many of the ramshackle dwellings offered by overly crowded cities. The past years have seen the trailer home reaching new heights in construction and equipment. Today when you invest in one you find greater width and length, you see electric refrigeration and stoves, air conditioning and indirect lighting, flush toilets and hot water, twin beds and a dressing room. The trailer may have been a poor sort of thing in the past but today many of them are modern luxuries on wheels. The cost of most is moderate but they can run into the higher brackets if you want "the works." There are still people who can't regard the trailer as fitting and proper in any case. But this frame of mind is altering as the trailerites have proven that today the highest type of civilization uses them. There is a right and a wrong way to use a trailer and this is true of almost everything else, isn't it?

The trailerite finds that there is freedom on wheels, there is comfort, luxury and enjoyment in this gypsy sort of life, and even the most sceptical of us would envy the ownership of one of these luxury land yachts. So don't pity the worker who has to live in a trailer until he can obtain a house. He may be living better than you are!

It Starts Something

A story of a controversy in a town over religious differences made us remember that if we are against a religious belief we can usually find object cases where that faith failed to justify itself. Somebody always knows about "a certain party." As these religious situations arise the words of friends wax hot and leads to passing hurts and enmity. So often a man will say that each fellow has a right to his belief, who says perhaps if you would understand the faith better you might not censor, who asks if we are strong enough in our own belief to criticize another. Then this same man will turn about and argue a religious point in another chapter. In time of need and trouble and loss he may be comforted and helped materially by those with whom he disagrees spiritually. The understanding of each other, the love of neighbors whatever the religion, is the foundation of a single faith. The entire world needs this if they wish to live again.

That man who feels that his religion is the only one for salvation should recall that the census of 1936 lists 256 different religious bodies within the U. S. They all can't be wrong and misguided. You would find it interesting to open the World Almanac and scan the list of all these denominations. There is a lifetime of study there and the columns of type cover historical moments of greatness. To take each faith, study it not bigoted and censorious, would help our own particular beliefs by teaching us understanding and tolerance. If ever a man is in need of a foundation of faith, that is today, so don't rob him of it. If man cannot agree upon his God how can man agree with man for world peace? It is the old, old story of "live and let live."

They're Eating

The announcement that boys in the training camps are gaining on the average of 10 pounds for their three week's training, is of special interest to parents. Boys who have been drafted. This is probably due to more regulated hours, which has been found to affect those youngsters who have gone away from home and to college. The more recent years have made us all regard our vitamins and health through proper eating and this also affects the army board. There is a greater variety for the boy today than in 1918. There are certain sections of the country where diets vary, and the army kitchens have taken this into consideration, too. However, there is no dish of homemade cookies or candies to tempt the lad's appetite and the only way local relatives can make their draftee feel at home is to supply him with these items themselves.

Now In England

As your teeth sink into a luscious cantaloupe or piece of fresh cherry pie, give a passing thought to London. The warm weather there brought forth a few additions to the daily display in the London markets. The sun had riped peaches, poor looking things they were, and those who could afford them might eat a peach for 75 cents—apiece! And the vendor sold quite a few he said. As you pass along the market stalls there are strawberries, a small knobby berry its true but nevertheless a strawberry. These are $3.80 a pound. Over here is a shop selling Wisconsin cheese, from our own dairy state, and this has made a hit with the shoppers and costs $1 a pound. A purchaser exclaims because fortunately tomatoes are more plentiful and therefore cheaper since they only cost $1 a pound now. Of course you expect to pay more for a bunch of asparagus because it is more scarce, so you pay $1.50 a bunch for this. Now go ahead and eat your melon and pie, but appreciate it!

They Help Too

Men in industry and boys in uniform have answered their country's needs, but so have the women. Both in industry and in uniform have the women of our land rallied to the emergency. They have taken up defense work since they have the most at stake and which they must protect. They must safeguard that which is most dear to them, their home and their family. The sanctity of the home and the welfare of the family! The various factories that are keeping busy the hands of women workers are also providing for her health. Women employed must meet with certain hazards presented in employment and consequently old methods are being improved and new ones are being followed to bring hygiene into industrial United States. We must protect our women to make a nation of strong fathers and husbands. We must keep our country a land of healthy women who have taken up the banner here and elsewhere about us.

AT LONG LAST!

Highlights Of The Sunday School Lesson

The Sunday School lesson for July 20 is, "The Responsibility of the Church Regarding Beverage Alcohol."—1 Corinthians V:9-13; Titus II:1-8.

The popular historian, James Truslow Adams has said: "If there is to be a regeneration of the national character, it can come about only by the regeneration of each of us as individuals. It is not a matter of committees and machinery and organization. It can come only from some subtle change in the heart of the individual American man and woman a change which one cannot predict, but of which one need not despair."

An Old Problem

That problem is not new. It is as old as the first teacher, the first preacher, the first philosopher. The Bible is a long series of abjurations to the individual. As a good house cannot be built of bad bricks, so a nation or a social order cannot be constructed of defective personalities. To solve all of our perplexing present problems, we simply must have men and women possessed of intelligence and convictions and force of character. Whatever is wrong with you and with me is wrong with the Country. Some one has said, "All the world is better for every one who is living at his best." The conduct of each of us is a matter of concern to all of us.

It is in all things as it is the use of intoxicants; as one speaker put it, "The first step in temperance reform is to close the liquor business that is carried on between my own nose and chin. The first, and most vital step in patriotism, in social relations, in international affairs is to practice personally the doctrines we seek to impose upon the whole world. Mankind as a mass will never get right until mankind as individuals live right. Each of us may seem to ourselves an inconsiderable fragment of the whole; but together we make up the whole. Daniel Webster, who was no prig or priest, was quoted in a recent address by Judge James Quarles, as having said: "If we abide by the principles taught in the Bible, our country will go on prospering . . . but if we and our posterity neglect its instructions and authority, no man can tell how sudden a catastrophe may overwhelm us and bury our glory in profound obscurity."

Better Than A Mass Meeting

Mighty mass meetings have recently been the order of the day and still vaster audiences gathered about the radio are common. The resolutions they pass are less consequential than the quiet determination of the thoughtful individual, who says within himself: "I will be true; I will be brave; I will be loyal; I will be clean; I will be brotherly; I will be Christian." That is the kind of resolution that insure the great revolution that will make the wheels of the car of civilization turn again, and speed it upon its way to the New Day that is the Kingdom of God on earth.

We have had tragic evidence of late of national break-down, due to the moral inadequacies of individuals. It has been made plain that public morale is dependent upon private morals. Says Judge Quarles: "Personal character is the ultimate and vitally important thing. Therein lies the good or the bad as regards legislation, ex-

PICKED UP AROUND TOWN

According to Bill, living in a trailer is giving the bill collector a good run for his money.

"That old fellow who killed his wife with an axe, did it because she nagged him all the time," avers Jim, "and a jury of men will take a long time deliberating."

"The only time the pedestrian can be positive he has the right of way," says Jimmy, "is if he is riding on a fire truck or in an ambulance."

With radios gone quiz conscious, Joe believes that what the laymen want is an intelligence rest.

"It's harder to keep the written laws," sighs Paul, "than the unwritten ones."

It looks to Tom that Hitler is Russian in where angels fear to tread.

George says one of the hardest things for him is to swallow anything that Hitler or Stalin says.

"If we want to do a bit of honest-to-goodness cleaning up here at home," asks Sam, "why don't we start with Harry Bridges?"

"We are really going to rough it on our vacation this year," sighs Tommy. "We aren't going to take along a radio."

Billy says that some of the June brides by this time have put down the can opener and picked up the cook book.

"Many a Netherlander with Phil on his shoreline," says Phil, "hopes for a future when it will again be 'tulip time in Holland.'" cutive action, judicial decision and administration functioning. In a word, therein lies the weal or woe of America, and of every other country beneath the skies." Dr. Alexis Carrel says, in his book, "Man, the Unknown." "Intelligence, will power and morality are very closely related. But moral sense is more important than intelligence. When it disappears from a nation, the whole structure commences to crumble away."

Woodrow Wilson once declared, ominously, "Moral forces do not threaten; they operate."

A Letter to Crete

Always the Church has stressed this master motive of personal character. The New Testament is a book of standards for personal character. Its writers stress tirelessly the personal virtues. Out of this book's teaching has sprung the great temperance reform, which has profoundly altered the drinking habits of past ages. Today one is surprised to find a Christian who even drinks at all. The passages assigned for the present Lesson are all admonitions to personal conduct. An older, better book than Emily Post's "Etiquette" is this handbook of conduct, character and motive.

The larger portion of our lesson text is taken from Paul's short letter to Titus, whom he had sent to oversee the Church of Crete, much in the news of late. Naturally, the Creteans were a poor lot, the decadent scions of a civilization that was ancient in Paul's day. One of their own poets had written of them: "Creteans are always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons." Nevertheless, it was of such raw material that the Early Church was composed. The Gospel laid hold of lives, one by one, and changed them from liars to truth-tellers; from carnal creatures to spiritually minded saints; from gluttons and drunkards to pure-living brethren. And that ancient power still abides in the Church.

This is a temperance Lesson. It points the only way out of the laxity of our times (What responsible person is not shocked by the nightly array of automobiles about the taprooms along our highways), which is by the observance of the Christian principle of abstinence for the sake of others.

Once the individual awakens to his essential place in the welfare of the whole, we shall see an end of drinking and of unchastity and sordid selfishness. What we would not do for our sakes, we will do for the sake of society and of Jesus Christ.

Teacher: "Johnny, when do leaves begin to turn?"
Johnny: "The night before exams."

Not All Loss

"I expect to get something out of my teeth."
"But I thought you were going to have them pulled?"
"I am; but I'm going to sell the gold fillings."

One Truthful Lover

"Only one man in love ever told the truth."
"Who was that?"
"Adam when he said, 'Eve, you are the only woman in the world for me.'"

Jim wants to know why it is that about two months after you buy a refrigerator the ads come out with a brand new improved model.

STEAK, OUTDOORS STYLE

OUTDOORS AUTHORITIES James Beard and Bob Edge demonstrate a fine bit of al fresco cooking. Beard, author of "Cook It Outdoors," recently told how to prepare the tastiest steak sandwich supper on record. You don't have to travel a hundred miles to get into the open either. If you have a portable charcoal grill on your terrace. Here's the recipe: Take a three finger sirloin steak, rub slightly with garlic and grill over a charcoal fire until it is pink in the middle. Slice in 1-2-inch pieces and place on a long French loaf of bread which has been halved lengthways and buttered generously. Then slice in two-inch pieces, serve with mixed green salad and lots of hot coffee.

Twisting the Dials

It isn't the gift. It's the spirit — although some of the gifts received by radio stars from their fans seem to indicate that the spirit the fan was filled with was 100-proof bourbon.

Every year the stars of the networks are showered with a museum-ful of networks.

Kay Kyser has an inventive fan whose latest contribution is a derby hat that is also a hair brush! Inside the hat there's a revolving brush that can be operated by a tiny crank. You put on the hat, turn the crank three or four times and your hair is brushed!

Alice Frost got a note from a listener in Florida who said, "I listen to 'Big Sister' every day and I can tell from your voice that you're the sort of person who is kind to animals so I'm sending you a little mascot under separate cover."

The mascot duly arrived and turned out to be a small lizard!

Don Voorhees, conductor of The Telephone Hour received a baton that can be elongated into a fishing rod. The telescoped device is too heavy for practical use as a baton and too weak really to serve as a trout rod, but Conductor Voorhees appreciates the generosity of the donor, nevertheless.

This should just give you an idea. If you occasionally rummage about your attic and are amazed at the collection of useless knick knack you've amassed yourself, think of the radio star — whose morning mail probably brought him the complete furnishings for a Wack's Museum.

CHATTER: A new kind of news program called The Headlines Speak made its bow over WHN. The station has regular reporters assigned to covering events in the same way as reporters. But instead of a typewriter these radio snoopers carry along sound equipment, turntables and make records right on the spot. . . . Russell Bennett has composed a symphonic piece on Coney Island based on Jo Ranson's best-seller, Sodom By the Sea. . . . That Millions for Defense show seems to get bigger stars each week. . . . Al Jolson is reported to have signed for a fall radio series. . . . Bob Burns will have his fall show built around the Carol Bruce this week inked a one year picture pact with Selznick. . . . Gloria Whitney has finally been persuaded to do a regular weekly program so you can tune to her again via WHN these evenings. . . . Did you know that Yvette, songstress on Penthouse Party, never makes or participates in a broadcast unless her mother is present in the studio. . . . Sonny Dunham, maestro at Meadowbrook is only 28. His tenor saxophonist is 16. . . . Count Basie will send his band vacationing while he starts a lecture tour on jazz. . . . Truth or Consequences, the show with eye appeal, maybe the first to be signed for television. . . . Vincent Lopez is still playing to capacity houses at the Hotel

"LIFT-ALL" lifts or lowers the entire implement at the flick of a finger on the handy control. But that's not all—"LIFT-ALL" goes way beyond that! It enables you to: (1) Lift or lower front beams of cultivator first. Delayed action automatically actuates rear beams when they reach point where front beams were lifted or lowered. (2) Lift either side of the implement independently of the other side. (3) Lift and hold implement to any desired working depth.

NATION URGED TO BUY WINTER COAL NOW

PUBLIC FACES MANY CHANGES

The Federal Bituminous Coal Consumers' Counsel appealed to the nation to buy coal now so it can be moved from the mines before growing defense production burdens the country's transportation system. There is an ample supply of the coal, the Counsel said, but by September 15 shortages in some places may develop unless coal is stored for the winter before then.

OCCUPY ICELAND

President Roosevelt informed Congress he had ordered a Navy force to Iceland to "forestall any pincers movement... by Germany against the Western Hemisphere." He said German occupation of that country would threaten the North American continent, shipping in the North Atlantic, and the flow of munitions to Britain. The President said the Navy had been ordered to take "all necessary steps" to insure safety of communications "in the approaches between Iceland and the United States, as well as on the seas between the U. S. and all other strategic outposts."

The President later told his press conference that whether Iceland lies outside the Western Hemisphere is an academic question. He said there are points outside the commonly accepted Hemisphere limits which are of importance to U. S. defense, and that in occupying Iceland he acted to forestall a hostile move which strategists considered logical or likely.

SELECTIVE SERVICE

Selective Service Headquarters announced that 21-year-olds who registered July 1 will be given draft numbers so they will be called in proportion to previous registrants rather than ahead of or after older men. Order numbers will be determined by national lottery on July 17.

Headquarters advised local boards to defer men who have volunteered for civilian or military duty with Canadian or British forces. The House passed legislation to permit deferment of all men who were 28 on July 1.

ALIEN EDUCATION

The President allocated $14,000,000 of WPA funds for a program to educate 1,000,000 aliens in the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. More than 11,000 teachers on WPA rolls will conduct classes for aliens who wish to become citizens.

REGISTERED CIVILIAN ORGANIZATIONS

WPA announced that more than 200,000 national, State and local civilian organizations with 50,000,000 members will be catalogued within the next 60 days to determine the parts the organizations and individuals can play in home defense so the Office of Civilian Defense can find qualified persons for new programs. All except purely social clubs will be indexed.

CIVILIAN SUPPLY

OPM conservation officials announced that "our purchases, our habits, our daily lives, perhaps even our styles, will be controlled by the requirements of national defense." Some of the changes facing the public, according to OPM: No corks in bottle tops; beverages in bottles rather than cans; silk used in parachutes will make silk stockings more scarce; women will have fewer permanent waves, cosmetics, and facial creams; it will not be patriotic to buy two automobiles; farmers will choose from 300 instead of 1,400 types of plows; chrome, copper, aluminum and woods such as mahogany will probably not be available to the furniture industry, and many designs will be eliminated.

PRICES

Price Administrator Henderson announced that price ceiling on rubber tubes and other rubber products will be deferred for several months to allow the industry time to work out price problems voluntarily. He announced, however, that ceiling prices will be placed within a few days on cottonseed oil and certain grades of West coast lumber used by the Government. Mr. Henderson also stated that recent action to check rises in hide prices does not mean the OPACS expects to freeze livestock or meat prices.

ARMY

The President asked Congress for an additional $4,700,000,000 for the Army, most of it for purchase of heavy guns, $400,000,000 for clothing and other equipment, $200,000,000 for the Air Force and $350,000,000 for the Signal Corps, and $1,000,000 for horses.

The War Department announced formation of a completely motorized, and heavily armed experimental division, strengthened with tanks, with 50 percent more fire power than a present armored division although with 14,000 instead of 15,550 men. The Department also announced that to bolster anti-tank defenses, anti-tank specialists will be assigned to every Army large unit to work out methods of defeating armored force attacks.

AIR

OPM announced that during June 1,476 military planes were delivered to the Army, Navy, and Great Britain — 142 more than the previous month and a new record. The War Department announced contracts of nearly $200,000,000 for new airplane manufacturing facilities and ordered all Air Corps Reserve Officers except those in kept civilian positions to active duty by August 1. The Army Air Force established its own Air Staff to form Air Force plan Air Staff to form Air Force plans and decide on equipment and other matters without the approval of the General Staff as heretofore.

NAVY

The President asked Congress for $1,625,000,000 in appropriations and contract authority for the Navy for additional ordnance, yard equipment, planes, and repairs, including $400,000,000 for defense installations on naval and private ships—anti-mine equipment, armor, etc., but, the President emphasized, not for guns to arm merchant ships.

Rear Admiral Robinson, Chief of the Navy's Bureau of Ships, announced the Navy shipbuilding program is proceeding so rapidly that "every single combat ship is ahead of schedule." He said the problem of labor supply has been solved and the rate of expansion is limited chiefly by the ability to obtain materials.

SHIPS

The President asked Congress for $1,698,000,000 for the U. S. Maritime Commission, including $698,000,000 in cash for new ships and $1,298,000,000 in contract authorizations.

The U. S. Maritime Commission announced a saving of more than 500,000 tons of steel in the building of 705 commission-designed ships by construction methods not known in the first World War. The Commission said the greatest single weight saving measure was the introduction of welding to replace riveting so that entire ships are now built without a single rivet.

LACK OF ROOM SPACE DEPRIVES YADKINVILLE SCHOOL OF TEACHER

County Teacher Allotment Made

Because of inadequate classroom space, Yadkinville School will have one less elementary teacher this year than it had last year, it is announced by Superintendent of schools, Fred C. Hobson, who has just been notified of the county's teacher allotment by the State School Commission. Yadkinville School gained one high school teacher which will enable it to maintain in the 20-teacher class but the crowded situation in the elementary school will be intensified by the loss of a teacher, Mr. Hobson said. The elementary school had an enrollment of 523 last year and additional students is anticipated for this year.

The county was allotted 147 teachers, an increase of three teachers over last year's allotment, and it is expected that another additional colored high school teacher will be added immediately after the opening of schools in September as plans are underway to increase the colored high school at Booneville from 2 to 4 years.

The 147 teachers allotted include 34 white high school teachers, 102 white elementary teachers, one colored high school teacher, and 10 colored elementary teachers. The teacher allotment is based upon the average daily attendance of the previous school year.

Allotment by schools follows: Yadkinville, seven high school and 13 elementary; Forbush, five elementary; Yadkinville colored, one elementary (lost one high school teacher); Huntsville colored, one elementary; West Yadkin, five high school and 19 elementary (gained one elementary); Jonesville, five high school and 20 elementary (gained one elementary); Jonesville colored, two elementary; Booneville, six high school and 14 elementary; Booneville colored, one high school and two elementary (gained one high school); Barney Hill colored, one elementary; Fall Creek, 11 elementary; East Bend, six high school and nine elementary; Piney Level colored, one elementary; King's Knob colored, one elementary; Courtney, five high school and 11 elementary; Huntsville colored, one elementary.

FSA Ready to Receive Applications For 1942

Qualified farmers in Yadkin county who at present do not own farm and who desire to apply for a loan to purchase a family size farm under provisions of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's tenant purchase program should file their applications now with the Farm Security Administration, Hubert W. Cartner, FSA supervisor said today.

Seeking to give as many eligible farm families as possible an opportunity to own a farm of their own, the Department of Agriculture is accepting applications for loans which may be made anytime between now and June 30, 1942.

Applications would be filed at once for loans to be made during the fiscal year, so that the approved families will have sufficient time to select farms and make plans for the 1942 crop, the supervisor said.

Farm families who filed applications after July 1, 1940 for loans this year, but which were not approved because of lack of funds, will not have to file new applications. Mr. Cartner said that the county Tenant Purchase committee, composed of Charles E. Hartman, Bloom C. Shore and Sidney W. Vestal, will review these applications again and notify the families if additional information is needed.

The Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act, passed by Congress in 1937 authorized the Farm Security Administration to make loans to capable tenant and farm laborer families to enable them to buy land of their own. These tenant-purchase loans are large enough to cover the cost of a family-type farm and the expense of repairing old farm buildings or putting up new ones. Loans are made only to citizens of the United States and preference is given to those who own the livestock and equipment needed to operate a farm.

Application blanks and full details on the operation of the Bankhead-Jones tenant purchase act are available at the county office of the Farm Security Administration, which is located at Yadkinville.

MORE FOOD ON FARMS HELPS FAMILY AND NATIONAL DEFENSE

Farm families who have little money can't afford to buy all the food they need for a good diet, but they can afford to grow it, Miss Taylor, home management supervisor for the Farm Security Administration, said in discussing the part farm families have to play in the nation-wide drive to assure ample food supplies for the United States and other countries resisting aggression.

"Fact is," Miss Taylor said, "they can't afford not to maintain cows to furnish a year-round supply of milk, cream, and butter; to raise enough chickens to provide meat and eggs all year, instead of just a few months in the spring, and to produce a variety of animals for the other kinds of meat, including pork, beef, and lamb."

"Farm families in this country being assisted in their farm and home operations by this agency of the U. S. Department of Agriculture are learning that they can have more food and better food for less money by raising bigger gardens, increasing their poultry flocks, and feeding a few livestock for home consumption," Miss Taylor declared.

Miss Taylor said that although members of the FSA have always followed a live-at-home plan and grown most of their food and feed on the farm, a majority of them are planning to produce more than ever this year. They expect to take full advantage of the opportunity to reduce their own living expenses, improve their diet, and at the same time produce additional quantities to meet the national needs for greater supplies.

The home supervisor believes that FSA borrowers in this county are in full accord with a recent statement made by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard in which he announced at nation-wide drive to produce every possible egg from present laying flocks this spring and summer.

This effort is a part of the nation's determination to assure ample food supplies for this and other countries during the present emergency. We should, according to Department officials, increase egg production for the whole country in the next fifteen months by about six per cent.

Davie Boy Writes From Fort Knox

Fort Knox, Ky.
July 19, 1941

To the Editor:
Just a few lines to let everybody know how we are getting along. We travelled 700 miles on a train in 33 hours. We left Ft. Bragg Friday at 3:45 and arrived here at 11 a. m.

Four boys from Davie county are with me—Cook, Forrest, Hendrix and Jarvis. We left Barnhardt, Stewart and Call at Ft. Bragg.

Thirty five boys from North Carolina came here, most of them from around Statesville. We ate supper in Atlanta last night and they sure do know how to cook good chicken.

We will spend 13 weeks here and then be assigned to the unit of the army where we will serve the rest of our year.

Nearly all of the boys I have met here are from the New England states and they sure seem to be swell fellows. This is a motorized regiment. So part of us have a good opportunity to stay out of the infantry and field artillery. We would appreciate mail from any one that wants to write.

Sincerely Yours,

SUMMARY OF WAR NEWS

Hitler is thought to be finding the going in Russia tougher than expected. Consequently diversions are sought. One is the bombing of Moscow and the other is prodding of Tokyo to move into the Far East.

Vichy shows its complete domination by Hitler in allowing Japan to occupy bases in French Indo-China.

Red Army troops were reported holding grimly to their positions protecting the vital approaches to Moscow, Leningrad, and Kiev, while Soviet guerrillas took an increasing toll of German invaders in savage fighting behind the lengthening Nazi lines.

The German High command said merely that operations were "continuing according to plan," and military commentators gave the impression that German troops were successfully splitting up the Red army into blocks for steady annihilation.

In London, Prime Minister Winston Churchill took Alfred Duff Cooper from his post as minister of information, and ordered him to the Far East to co-ordinate British military administrative and political activities there. Brendan Bracken, Churchill's private secretary and a former editor, succeeds to the information ministry position. Duff Cooper's duties will be similar to those of Captain Oliver Lyttleton, co-ordinator in the Middle-East with offices in Cairo.

In the last week the British said, the RAF has sunk or badly damaged 242,000 tons of German shipping.

The British continued to press enthusiastically their "V for Victory" campaign among the peoples of the German-subjugated lands. Following a BBC program the British said the continent awoke to find the persistent "V" tarred and chalked and painted on walls and German automobiles and sidewalks wherever the Nazi reign.

British bombers continue heavy attacks against invasion ports and industrial Germany. London says that as nights lengthen the attacks "will make Goentry look like a pin prick" during the next three months.

Saying that the danger to American safety was greater than a year ago, President Roosevelt asks Congress to pass legislation indefinitely extending the length of military service of draftees, guardsmen and reservists. The proposal sharply divides Congress.

DOES ENGLAND NEED A. E. F. TO WIN PRESENT WAR?

ANSWER NOT KNOWN NOW

WASHINGTON. — A question has arisen with increasing frequency during the past few months, which is causing real concern both to the Administration and to many others anxious that nothing should arise to hinder American aid to Great Britain. It is the question of whether the British will need another A. E. F. to win the war.

Acutely aware of the explosiveness of the problem so far as the majority of Americans go, the Administration insistently has repeated that the President's pledge that no American boys will be sent into foreign wars stands. Nevertheless the question will not down-either here or abroad.

Since it threatens to be a major issue in the not too distant future, a realistic approach to the European conflict demands that it be given the study it deserves. So far, nobody is in a position to give a final and categorical answer. Neither here nor in Britain is there unanimity that Britain must have American man power to beat Germany; or, on the other hand, that an overwhelming flood of American equipment in the hands of Britons and their allies will do the trick.

Churchill Speech Cited

In one of his speeches to the British and American peoples, Prime Minister Winston Churchill said: "Give us the tools and we'll do the job." This quotation was repeated only last week by Stephen T.

Early, the President's Press Secretary, when asked of reports that Britain needed American men.

Against this, however, we can set the apparently authoritative report that two of Britain's leading military strategists have declared that only the combined strength of the British and American armies can defeat Germany decisively. Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell and Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, the past and present commanders of Britain's Near Eastern Army, are quoted as holding that an A. E. F. is indispensable.

On top of this is the dispatch from London telling of the frank statement in the Daily Herald that "America's coming into the war is a possibility so we have to prepare for it," and that "we should be exceedingly silly if we were not preparing for possibilities."

But, after all, the main consideration is not what London hopes will happen but what Washington believes is necessary. It is quite natural that Britain, with its back to the wall, should want a powerful friend at its side, gun in hand. What, however, does Washington think? Does the White House believe that "tools" are enough? Does the War Department hold that Germany, undefeated on the continent, can be beaten by Britain through air attacks and the blockade? Does the Navy Department feel that the German counter-blockade of the British Isles can be overcome?

It is the answer to these questions which will determine whether only an A. E. F. can beat Hitlerism. Today it is doubtful if anyone, even President Roosevelt or Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, knows the answer. Perhaps the outcome of the Russo-German struggle will provide it.

Many ranking officers at the War Department are of the opinion that Germany will be beaten only when its Army is smashed and that Britain alone will be in no position to do this within the foreseeable future. Another group is equally sure that a growing destruction of German cities, transportation facilities, factories, and food stocks through heavier bombing attacks can break German morale and cause economic chaos.

This latter group is supported by many high naval officials who believe that full use of the American Fleet could so tighten the blockade and destroy German surface and undersea raiders as to make an A. E. F. unnecessary.

Important Developments
At present, two important developments stand out. American armed forces have been sent into the war zone to stay and to fight if attacked. At the same time the War Department has asked that Congress remove the prohibition against sending selectees and national guardsmen outside the Western Hemisphere.

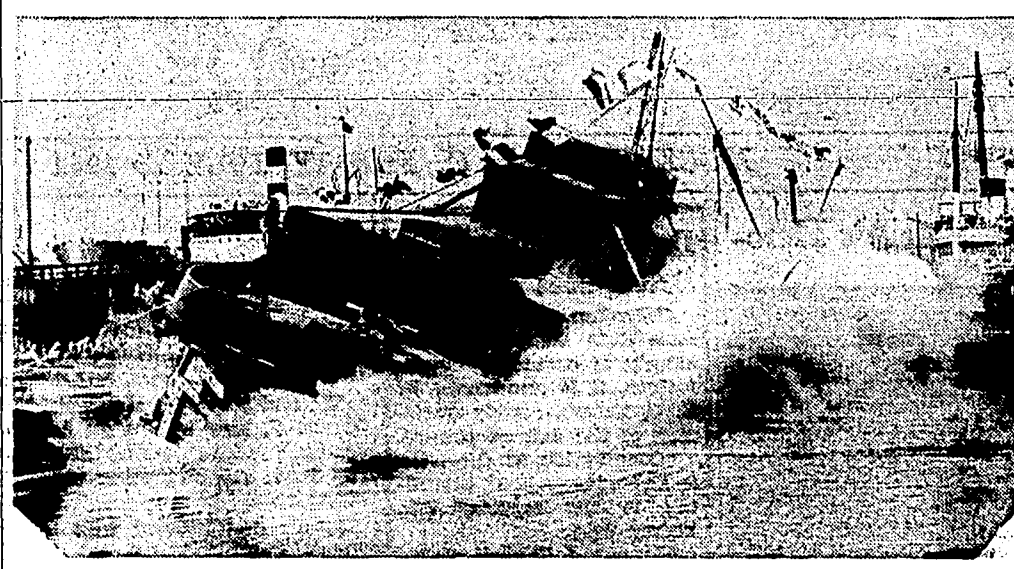

In the Iceland affair the United States has, in the judgment of many, directly challenged Germany. In the War Department's proposal, made in the light of General Marshall's warning that this country was in far graver danger than most Americans realized the United States would open the way for an A. E. F. if ### necessary.

If the German Army is stopped in Russia, the necessity for an A. E. F. might very well never arise. But if Russia is conquered in such a manner as to leave the German Army still powerful and unbroken, then who is in a position to say that, if the American people are firm in their determination to stop Hitlerism, American troops may not have to fight again on the continent of Europe? It is a question which may have to be faced some day. It is a question which is worth careful thought today.

WAR DEPT. ASKS TO RETAIN ARMY "SET-UP"

Present Emergency Demands Legislation

The War Department asked Congress for legislation to retain the National Guard, Reserves and Selectees for the duration of the emergency. President Roosevelt told his press conference that unless Congress acts the Army faces serious disintegration.

The President said no violation of contract or faith could be entailed in such extension of service, because the Selective Service Act had provided for such extension of service by Congress in the event of a national emergency.

The War Department announced initial deliveries of the A-24, a new dive bomber that can outperform those used by other nations. The Department said rifles and sub-machine guns are now being produced at a daily rate of 1,500, compared with 289 one year ago. Under Secretary Patterson issued a statement of Army progress showing expenditures increased six-fold in the past fiscal year.

Lend-Lease Aid

President Roosevelt sent Lend-Lease Administrator Hopkins to London for a new survey of British needs, and assigned two Army generals to speed the flow of munitions and food to Britain. The Surplus Marketing Administration purchased 30,000,000 pounds of tobacco, 2,544,000 bushels of corn and 75,000 bales of cotton for shipment abroad under the Lend-Lease program.

Civilian Supply

The OPACS announced a program to give preference over other civilian needs to repair and maintenance parts for privately-owned automobiles, trucks, trailers, tractors, household refrigerators, stoves, ranges and water heaters, plumbing fixtures, and furnaces, hospital equipment, surgical instruments and eyeglass frames and parts.

Ships

The Maritime Commission said expansion of the merchant shipbuilding program requested from the Congress would provide 566 new ships by the end of 1943. Although only one of the 312 emergency cargo ships was scheduled for delivery this year, at least 10 will be in operation by December 31, the Commission said. The fastest ship construction during the last war was seven months and 24 days, the commission said, but it now hopes to reduce the time to 4½ to 5 months, with two ships completed every day in 1943.

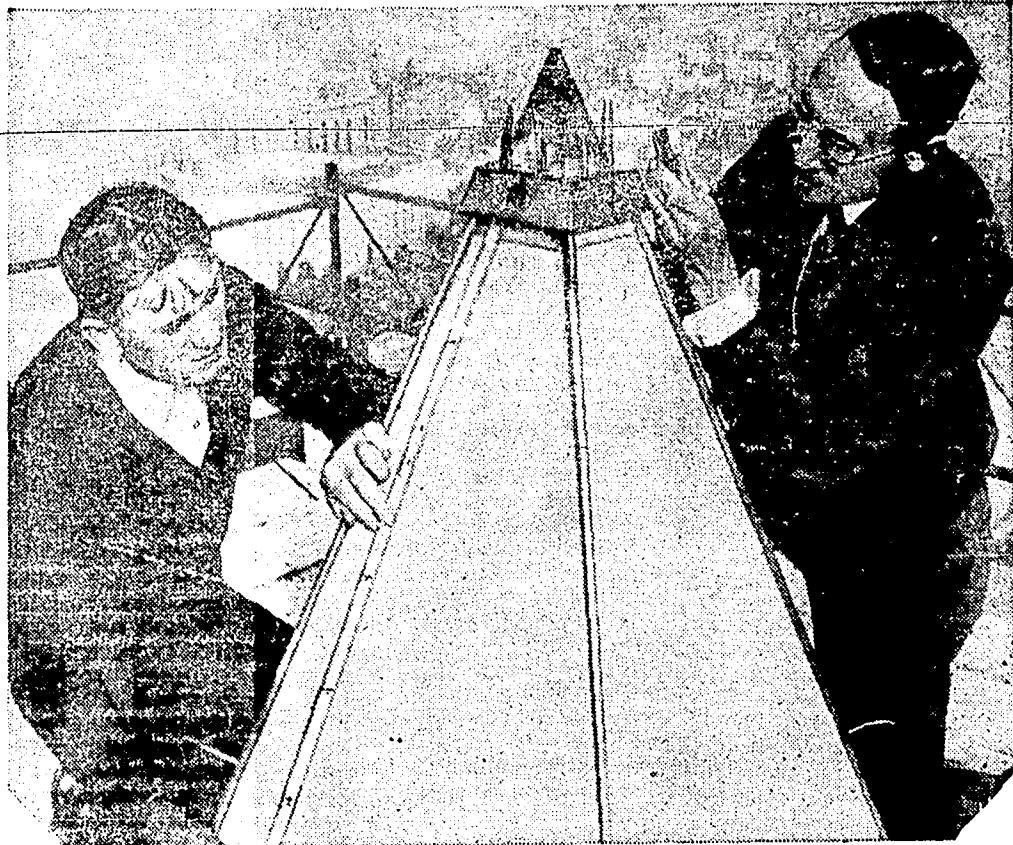

The Maritime Commission took title to 16 more Danish vessels and to four Italian vessels under provisions of the Ship Requisitioning Act and the Coast Guard seized 15 other Italian ships and one German ship to be put into service as soon as sabotage damage is repaired.

President Roosevelt signed legislation giving him power to grant defense materials priority in merchant shipping space and loading facilities.

Aluminum Collection

OPM Conservation Chief McConnell announced housewives' donations of used aluminum were during the collection campaign July 21-29 should permit construction of more than 2,000 additional fighting planes. He said tests indicated a minimum of 15,000,000 net pounds of aluminum in defense manufacture will be collected in the national campaign. Civilian Defense Director LaGuardia

Washington Monument Aids Defense

Workmen are shown atop the Washington Monument, whose aluminum cap is slated to be sacrificed for national defense in a nationwide aluminum drive. The cap will be officially donated by Secretary Ickes. It contains 100 ounces of aluminum, a quantity that could be extracted from a dozen saucepans.

said State Procurement offices of the Treasury Department will direct shipment of collected material from concentration points in each State to the nearest selected smelter.

Price Administrator Henderson said additional supplies of waste paper and cardboard are needed for packing articles produced by defense industries and urged that waste paper be saved by the householder for collection by waste paper dealers.

Prices

Labor Secretary Perkins announced retail food prices increased 1.7 percent during the last two weeks of June, in addition to 1.6 percent in the first two weeks of the month. Principal rises were in the price of eggs, lard, butter, pork chops and canned tomatoes, she said.

Price Administrator Henderson, speaking at Atlantic City, said costs and prices have risen at the wholesale level and will soon hit the nation's pocketbooks. Before long, he said, "there will be more purchasing power running around hunting something to buy than there are goods available."

WPA and Defense

WPA Commissioner Hunter said total average WPA employment during the 1942 fiscal year will be maintained at 1,000,000 instead of 1,700,000 as in the past year. He said almost 30 percent of all WPA workers were employed on national defense projects in June and cuts will be made more slowly from these projects than others.

Increased Wages

The Labor Department announced weekly earnings of wage earners in manufacturing industries in May rose to a new high of $30.69, a rise of 5 percent since this April and 21 percent over May, 1940. Hourly rates moved up to an average of 72.6 cents, a gain of 2.5 percent over April and 9.1 percent over the same month last year. The Department of Agriculture reported the general level of farm wages rose to the highest level in 11 years on July 1, 60 percent above the 1910-14 average.

Power for Defense

President Roosevelt asked Congress for authority to establish regional or nationwide daylight saving time for all or such parts of the year as deemed practical. The Federal Power Commission reported that rainfall lessened the power shortage in the Southeast although much more rain is needed before full usage of energy can be permitted small consumers.

Tests With Homemade Paint Are Suggested

Farmers all over the State are using a homemade paint of mortar coloring and used motor oil on barns and other outbuildings. Some are getting good results, but others are dissatisfied, says Howard M. Ellis, Extension agricultural engineer. He suggests that some "experimenting" be done.

"Ordinarily," Ellis says, "from three-fourths to one pound of brick red mortar coloring will be required for each gallon of used motor oil. The usual mixture is one pound of coloring to one gallon of oil. However, the blacker the oil, the more coloring it will require."

"The proper mix should be determined as follows: Divide one pound of red mortar coloring into four parts. Place one gallon of burnt motor oil into a vessel large enough to permit rapid stirring."

"Mix in two parts (one-half pound) of the coloring, taking care to add the coloring slowly while the oil is being stirred to insure a good mixture. Then paint a small section, about two feet square, on the back of a barn or other building to be painted."

"Add another fourth of the mortar coloring to the original mixture and paint a second section beside the first. Add the remaining fourth and paint a third section."

"After allowing the oil to penetrate the wood for a short time, inspect the three sections and decide which mix you desire. You are then ready to mix a sufficient quantity to cover the building."

Ellis says the home made paint can be applied with an old orchard sprayer or with whitewash brushes. Mortar coloring may be bought at most hardware stores for about 6 cents per pound. Crank case drainings may be obtained free from most filling stations.

SELL TO THE ARMY

The new buying program which became effective April 15 will make it possible for producers of fresh fruits and vegetables to sell direct to the U. S. Army. Every day the army is buying about 1,000,000 pounds of meat, 600,000 pounds of potatoes, 500,000 pounds of fresh fruit, $50,000 worth of bread, and 500 tons of fresh vegetables.

Full consideration and preference is to be given locally produced vegetables and fruits where such products meet requirements.

The army wants to give the individual grower every chance to sell to it direct and where individuals cannot supply needs, several growers may find it possible to cooperatively make bids. In general, these things should be kept in mind:

1. Purchases will be made, whenever possible, in truck load or car lot quantities and must meet army specifications. 2. Bids must be submitted and goods will be bought on contract, from parties who can guarantee delivery. 3. The lowest bid, other things being equal, will get the business.

For the producer interested in bidding for army orders the best advice is to contact the Purchasing and Contracting officer, Quartermaster Market Center, U. S. Army, at whatever of the following points he would like to sell:

Baltimore, Md.
Norfolk, Va.
Fayetteville, N. C.
Columbia, S. C.
Savannah, Ga.
Wilmington, N. C.

John A. Martin, chief of the perishable foods section, emphasizes:

The big thing is to keep in touch with your buying office. Go in and get acquainted with the men there. Let them know what you have to offer and when you are going to be able to offer it. Keep informed about their present and future requirements. Go to them well in advance of the time when your products will be ready to market; 10 days ahead of time, or 30 days if possible.

Recent excessive rains coupled with the drought just prior will cause a serious reduction in the Gaston County wheat harvest this year, reports Assistant Farm Agent W. Z. Smith.

Simple Test For Egg Freshness Explained

An egg is a sealed package of fine food when it is laid by the hen. It is the only product that Nature gives us that is sealed with out the touch of human hands.

"However," points out T. T. Brown, Extension poultryman of N. C. State College, "eggs that bring a premium on the market are those that the consumer desires — eggs that are fresh, large, clean, uniform in size and color, and sound in shell. Most consumers will buy the more pleasing-looking product, but their continued purchases depend upon the actual interior quality of the eggs."

The State College man suggests a simple home method of determining if eggs are fresh. "Place eggs in a pan of water," he says, "and the good ones will rest flat on the bottom of the vessel; those that have lost some of their quality will stand on end; and very poor ones will rise somewhat. Those that rise are older or poorly kept."

Brown explained that an egg does not have an air cell when it is laid by the hen. As it cools, the water evaporates from it and the two shell membranes at the large end of the egg separate and form an air cell. In hot weather, moisture is drawn from the egg, just as water is drawn from the soil and from all vegetation. The depth of the air cell is a measure of quality in eggs.

"It is beyond the ability of man to improve the quality of an egg," Brown declared, "but it is within his ability to maintain that quality through to the consumer. One of the most important steps is rapid cooling of eggs. Eggs, when laid, are about at the body temperature of the hen, which is 106 degrees. They must be cooled rapidly to about 68 degrees to keep fresh."

Braves Prison to Save Dog

Alexander Marshall and Beau, a German shepherd dog, are even now. A year ago the dog saved Marshall from drowning in the Charles River, Boston. Marshall repaid the debt by saving Beau from execution for biting a child. Appearing in Boston Municipal Court, he offered to go to prison for five years if his dog ever bites another child and the court agreed to spare the animal.

INCREASES

Since pork prices have been on the upgrade, Wilson County farmers are increasing their breeding herds as much as possible, reports O. W. Dayton, assistant farm agent of the Extension Service.

THRIPS

Approximately 75 percent of the peanut acreage in Northampton County has been affected by thrips this season, says H. G. Snipes, assistant farm agent of the N. C. State College Extension Service.

It Looks Awful!

Arrange a day's outing and along goes the picnic basket replete with good food and drink, the consuming of which comes off in grand style and everybody has a great time. Comes the packing up and making ready for home and here is where nature, the highway department and the sightseeing public start to groan. Too often the picnic cleaning up leaves as unsightly mess of cans, papers and boxes to bear witness that here rested and passed through a party of careless and thoughtless people. There are some who ride through the country and toss bottles, cans and even garbage along the road from their car. You wonder what type of citizens these with so little consideration for the rights and the respect of others. We complain of unsightly billboards, object to signs obstructing the view, suggest cutting weeds that are dangerous to safe driving, make efforts to have lights at busy intersections. This is all for the public good. But to keep the countryside clean and attractive is for the enjoyment of all of us and it is necessary for the public welfare too.

They Need Your Help

The call of unemployment has gone up from these pages in the past, as from every such publication in the land. The national problem needed editorial help and it got it. Today we have had a spurt to business and we find the ranks of the unemployed have thinned down to such an extent that there arises a labor shortage which is proving serious to many a man. This is especially true for the farmer who has a heavy crop this year and needs help to work in his fields despite his increased use of mechanical assistance. Factories in the cities have taken so many that competent help is scarce and becomes one of the problems of agriculture. Most farmers around here hope to make more money this year but they are facing a situation that may cut down their profit due to lossage. The farmer needs pickers for fruit and berries, he needs hands to harvest his grain. And remember that what is his problem now will be your problem next winter when you need his potatoes and flour. There are lots of young people who have summer vacation on their hands. Why not go into the country and get something worthwhile on the hands? Youngsters could get busy and earn themselves some brown and brown, some healthful exercise and some spending money. If youth in the city inquires he can probably find a farmer and his wife who would welcome him gladly!

Free and Easy

The editor of the big town press has to watch his P's and Q's with the censorship and propaganda that is tossed on his desk. Life isn't so simple when each item he publishes he tries to back up with facts and with stories from both sides and each not agreeing with the other, he has a job on his hands for his subscriber's satisfaction. He prints it all in good faith and passes on the releases just as they come to him. But the small town editor gets busy with local news that is of personal interest to his public and all he has to do to verify his report is furnish an eye witness or put the topic on his desk top for the folks to see. Perhaps it is a double radish, a double egg, a sweet potato in the shape of a cross or a champion sized bean, but whatever the exhibit, the small town editor has the proof right at hand and doesn't have to worry about censorship, intrigue and propaganda in this instance. The world's war is important but it also wants its local events, and uncensored too!

Keep Going

We leave July and start into August wondering just where is the summer going and what we accomplished during the heat besides a heap of complaining. Some took vacations and had a restful time but glad to get home to tend to yard, garden and business that some how managed to get along. Maybe they brought home a mess of fish, or only a story thereof, or acquired a healthy sunburn that could have itched just as well if they had stayed at home. Maybe they spent more money than they intended or perhaps they saved some by not taking a vacation after all. But whatever we did with the month of July we did get through it. Mark Twain said that this is the sort of weather that everybody talked about but about which nobody ever did anything. We get encouraging weather reports to cool us off mentally and like as not the cool wave warms up or gets sidetracked before it reaches us. But we are going to take whatever August has to offer and not let it take all of the starch out of our collars.

Sky Traffic Laws

We used to laugh about living to see the time when they would put stop and go signs in the clouds to control airplane traffic. This jest was perhaps as out of place as the chuckle our great, great grandfather had over the horseless carriage ever pushing the old gray mare off of the road. We know that each year its jump has been ever so large. So taking this into consideration and realizing that there is just so much flying space, even as vast as it is, that there is need for controlling it for the increasing number of speeding pilots. This has brought us up-to-date in air passage control as the Civil Aeronautics Board adopts traffic rules for the skies which became effective in July and which will make the air safer for transportation, just as we never thought would happen in our day!

There is a lane of traffic above 17,000 feet which is reserved for military planes except for special permission granted from the board to commercial planes which are engaged in experimenting purposes. Any plane that comes in the line of traffic between 3,500 and the 17,000 ft. must have two-way radios and altimeters. The planes that operate below 3,500 ft. need not have the two-way radio but must observe all other restrictions placed on the planes.

So we see another step forward in transportation and an attempt to lesson the dangers which accompany it. So don't laugh at a neighbor's fantasy or an inventor's mania, just recall the cartoon of the traffic cop standing in a cloud directing traffic in the air, and merely ask "what next?"

Highlights Of The Sunday School Lesson

The Sunday School Lesson for July 27 is, "The Holy Spirit Inspires New Testament Letters." — Galatians 1:11, 12; I Thessalonians 2:13; II Timothy 3:14-17; II Peter 3:14, 15; Jude 3.

It is a commonplace to say that the Bible itself is the book which the world's "best seller." It always has been. Today the record is arresting by contrast. According to "The Religious Digest," "That perennial best-seller, the Bible, took a big jump in popularity at a time when general book publishing was taking a dive. The semi-annual United States census report on the publishing industry shows that copies of fiction books published in 1939 were down fifty per cent. from 1937, all books were down nine per cent.—but Bibles, Testaments, and parts of the Bible published in separate covers, were up fifty per cent. . . . Two million 300,000 copies of complete Bibles were published in 1939, and seven million 900,000, including Testaments and parts bound separately!"

What Authors Never Knew

So there is unusual timeliness in the lesson which calls us back to the Bible's unique quality. It is not like other books: it was, in ways past mortal defining, inspired in its writing by the mysterious and all-potent Holy Spirit of God. The writers did not know that a Power above themselves moved their pens.

Paul had never a thought, in writing his thirteen Epistles, beyond the friends and converts who received the original documents. When Dr. Luke penned his Gospel and The Acts, after painstaking research he had only in mind his good friend, Theophilus, to whom he was writing. Peter's letters did not look past the infant churches to whom he addressed them.

All the while, a Power beyond the author's imagining was directing their thoughts and words so that they have become a permanent message from God Himself, the supreme expression of the Divine will for human guidance. The eternal contemporaneity and universality of the Bible's message is one proof of its supernatural origin. It bears the same fruits in the jungle of Africa as it bears in the halls of western learning. "Every Scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work."

Why "Revised Versions"

Language changes, but truth is unchangeable. In time, words become archaic or alter their meanings. That is why it is desirable to have "revised versions" of the Bible adhering more closely to the original text and to the current understanding of languages. Earlier and earlier copies of the Greek and Hebrew manuscripts have been found since our King James Version was published.

We smile at the illiterate preacher, arguing against an educated ministry, who said "English was good enough for Peter and Paul, and it is good enough for me." Extreme advocates of the verbal inspiration of the Bible are confronted by the question, "Which version do you mean?" The English, the German, the French, the Chinese, the Greek or the Hebrew? Literal inspiration can be claimed only for the original copies of the Scripture.

PICKED UP AROUND TOWN

According to Bill there is something old-fashioned about not wanting much here below.

"Folks who waded through the spring seed catalogs," says Tom, "are now weeding through the garden with lots more back-ache."

"They do a lot of talking about model homes," sighs Joe, "but don't stress about model families to live in them."

Jimmy says he would rather be a blot than a blank, since a blot shows that you at least made an effort!

"The reason that I haven't worn my Father's Day shirt yet," sighs George, "is because I haven't gotten all the pins out of it yet."

There is one class of folks who cheerfully accept their responsibilities, according to Billy, and another class who expect a bonus for accepting theirs.

J. C. says by staying home on gasless Sundays we may become better acquainted with the family!

"We got through one holiday," sighs Tommy, "and we are getting ready to try and come out alive from another one."

"It has been a long time ago," believes Henry, "when we used to read of the bandits in China, the highway robbery type, anyhow."

"Lots of folks are turning to cows," avers Paul, "now that autos are being held down."

According to Sam, the kindest husband around here is the one who says he will cut down his appetite during hot weather so his wife won't have to swelter in the kitchen.

LET'S USE MORE PEACHES

Late dispatches from London carry the news that peaches are selling for $1.50 each. On that basis what a treasure and blessing we have in a few bearing trees! And there's justification for eating plenty of peaches. Cornell says fresh peaches are an excellent source of vitamin A, a fair source of vitamin B, and a good source of vitamin C. Peaches also contain several minerals. In fact, Cornell points out, peaches can be ranked among the "protective foods," in addition to having an enticing color and flavor. Why not serve them generously during the season and then store a plentiful supply of canned, preserved, and spiced peaches for winter meals?

Dishes that can be made with this fruit are many: peach ice cream, peach shortcake, peach Melba, peaches in combination with other fresh fruits in salads and fruit cups, and of course, peaches and cream.

years ago are unread today. Most of the volumes on the shelves of a great library are untouched for present use. Still this oldest of books, the Bible, is as fresh as today's spring water. It has fitted the needs of every age, and of every type of personality, and lo! in this hour of world-crisis, it has the very words that man needs. Its standards are recognized as the only possible standards for a new world order. Its vision alone is spacious enough to frame the vast conceptions of a re-made society.

And it comes with authority. It is not merely the wisdom of ancient thinkers and doers; who may be compared with Confucius and Socrates and Aristotle and Guatama and Zoroaster. This book, with a simple directness that would be called arrogance in any other, claims to be inspired as the word and will of God. Through its pages the Infinite speaks to the reverent and teachable soul. As the Catechism says, "The Scriptures principally teach what man is to believe concerning God; and what duty God requires of man." It is guidance for every emergency, personal and national. It is, we reverently believe, the Voice of God, imparting His Wisdom and His Power. Well might Abraham Lincoln declare, "The Bible is the best gift God has given to man."

Bad Fix

It was Timothy's first day at school. He walked up to the teacher's desk and announced, "I ain't got no pencil."

Shocked at his expression, the teacher exclaimed: "Oh Timothy, I have not pencil!"

PINS AND PEOPLE

Let's come to the point. A straight pin is a plain enough household object, but it would be a good idea for us to follow its example.

In the first place, it exists for service to others. It stays quietly in its place until called to duty, but it can do many things. A bent pin is useless—so is a misdirected life. But as long as it remains straight and true, a pin cannot outlive its usefulness.

"Some pins are rusty," you say. That's true. They've lain idle so long. And it's the same way with people. We may become rusty and useless.

There's no trimming on a pin. It has no put-on. It's level-headed, too, and never "loses its head." It would be hard to get along without the pin; and we will have led a worth-while life if we can become as necessary as it is.

HOW TO KEEP COOL: TEN HINTS

9. Keep a cool head and an even temper.
10. Keep windows closed and shades drawn during the hottest part of the day to keep rooms cool.

"SKEETERS"

It's time we were picking up all old tin cans and putting them where they will never hold water long enough for mosquitos to hatch. Water must not be allowed to stand as much as five days in buckets, washtubs, or even washpots. Top minnows will take care of mosquitos in stock ponds or lily pools. Other stagnant places should have the surface coated with oil. That's a good place to use some of the old crankcase oil.

HITLER HAS LONG WAY TO GO IN RUSSIA

SOVIETS HAVE 5 COMPLETE AREAS

If Hitler breaks through the Stalin line it will not mean the end of Soviet resistance.

Five economically self-sufficient Russians, each with its own natural resources, industry and agriculture have reached a stage of development where each might survive and feed and equip an army, though cut off from the rest of the country.

Only two of these areas—that embracing the older industrial centers of north and west Russia, including Moscow and Leningrad, and the Don Basin-Ukrainian region, lie in Europe. The rest—the Urals area, the Kuznets Basin and the Far Eastern Pacific area—are all in Asia.

Even if he got to Moscow, the brown Napoleon would still be nearly a thousand miles as the crow flies from the low-backed billowing Ural Mountains—the geography book boundary between Europe and Asia—which is now the Soviets' second line of industrial defense.

The building of centers of industry well out of enemy reach has been a major principle of Soviet economic planning from the outset. That is why the Union's center of gravity steadily shifts eastwards. No cosmic affinity with Asia, but realistic considerations of military strategy have impelled the Kremlin leaders to gaze into the sunrise.

Under the first and second five-year plans industrial giants like the Magnitogorsk Iron and Steel Plant and the Kuznets Metal Works rose on the treeless eastern slopes of the Urals or the bleak Siberian steppes, each capable of producing more than the total Russian output of iron and steel before the industrialization program.

Originally designed to be greater than the Gary steel mills, the Magnitogorsk project was eventually whittled down to half its intended size, but even so it is the Soviet Union's number one producer of iron, a stupendous undertaking which has brought into being a boom city of 200,000 inhabitants.

In 1933 Magnitogorsk produced

NORTH CAROLINA'S NO. 1 PEACH BOOSTER

"Buy and can all the North Carolina peaches you can afford this season" is the advice of Mrs. J. Melville Broughton, wife of the Governor, who is shown above admiring a bushel of peaches sent to her by the N. C. Peach Growers' Society for canning. "The grading program of the State Department of Agriculture and the quality of the crop this year give assurance to all housewives that they can secure the finest table and canning peaches this year," Mrs. Broughton observed. North Carolina orchardists expect to harvest a 2,484,000-bushel crop this season.

ed one and one half million metric tons of pig iron and one million seven hundred thousand tons of steel—more than the combined total production of Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Poland in a normal pre-war year.

There are other iron and steel mills in the Ural region, as well as copper and aluminum mills, in operation and under construction, all of them industrial heavy-weights. The Chelyabinsk tractor plant, which produces two-thirds of Soviet tractors and tanks, is also in this district.

Planes and Arms
There are, in addition, plants for the manufacture of airplanes and guns and shells of every caliber. Though figures or details have been kept strictly secret, the Russians have hinted that these Ural plants alone could keep their troops armed and supplied.

Fifteen hundred miles to the east of the Urals is the Kuznets Basin, in the very heart of Siberia, the great eastern industrial center Lenin dreamed of.

The Kuznets Basin today produces nearly one fifth the total coal mined in the U. S. S. R., ranking next to the Don Basin. Most of its output is at present shipped to the Urals, to Magnitogorsk, Nizhni Tagil and the other plants. But there are also extensive deposits of iron, copper and manganese in the region and two big iron and steel mills are already in partial operation, as well as a vast chemical products plant rifle and a machine gun, as well as air-raid precaution.

Every factory worker is expected to qualify for the Voro-sheff marksmanship badge—which means that the wearer can shoot as well as the former War Commissar. Many citizens have also been trained in more specialized branches of warfare—including flying, parachute jumping and guerrilla tactics. Soviet defense has thereby acquired a mass basis that extends far beyond the regular Army.

Every Russian defense plan since the days of Genghis Khan has assumed the occupation of large tracts of territory by the invading force. Almost once a century for the last 600 years Moscow has been captured by a foreign foe—by Tartars, Lithuanians, Poles and French. Each time the Russians have managed to save a part of their army and after rallying elsewhere and raising new forces they have thrust the invader out.
