Dial Conversion Date Is Tenatively Set For Oct. 15

Mocksville Exchange To Be Known As "MEdford"

The Mocksville exchange of the Central Telephone Company is expected to be switched over to dial early this fall. Tentative conversion date has been set as October 15.

The new telephone building on Gaither Street is expected to be completed this month. It is estimated that it will take about two weeks to install the new equipment in the building.

Representatives of the company are now installing dials on the telephones. During this conversion residents are being given the opportunity to install deluxe colored telephones and extensions without having to pay a service connection charge.

C. J. Wilson, local representative of Central Telephone Co., announced that even in the cases where the dial had already been installed, anyone desiring to convert to a deluxe color telephone or to add an extension, this would be done during this conversion period without a service connection charge. Anyone desiring this service should call the telephone office.

When switched over to dial operation, the Mocksville exchange will be known as "MEdford 4." There will be no operator stationed in Mocksville and local subscribers will dial Salisbury for the operator or information.

Mr. Wilson announced that during the conversion period several repairmen will be stationed here. After the conversion is completed, one or two more employees will be assigned here as permanent residents to assist in the maintenance of lines and equipment.

Mrs. Frank Honeycutt will continue as cashier after the conversion to dial.

Members of the Mocksville and Smith Grove exchanges will be able to dial one another direct without going through the operator.

New directories for the Central Telephone Company subscribers will be distributed prior to the conversion date of Oct. 15.

J. C. Jones Writes Open Letter To Rural Residents Of Davie

J. C. Jones, manager of the Davie Electric Membership Corporation, and one who has long been interested in the development of the rural telephone system, has written the following open letter to the people in the rural areas of Davie served by the Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation:

"I would like to introduce you to Johnny Reece.

"Johnny is a nice, clean-cut, young man who is within the next month or so going to try to do something here in Davie County that we should have done ourselves, and I might add, something that has never been done before, although it has been tried several times by our own combined efforts and also by a few individuals. That is, Johnny is going to undertake to bring us all closer together by convincing us that we should have a telephone in our homes and places of business.

"I really don't believe we need convincing of that. We know that we need the telephones. We have heretofore and for several good reasons just neglected to do anything about it.

"Now Johnny Reece really and

John Reece To Contact Davie Residents Eligible For Telephone Service

The Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation has launched a program to provide telephone service to every home and business in rural Davie County where telephone service is feasible.

John M. Reece, a representative of the telephone co-op, will contact prospective subscribers to provide information about the service.

A. W. McDonald, manager of the Yadkin Valley Co-op announced that a door to door canvass of all unserved people in rural Davie would be made.

"If you live in the area served by the Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation and you do not have telephone service, our representative will stop by your home or business to give you the opportunity for telephone service," said Mr. McDonald.

Mr. McDonald pointed out that the Yadkin Valley Telephone Co-op was a non-profit telephone system owned and operated by it's members. A prospective customer must become a member before telephone service can be provided. The membership fee is $30. In addition the subscriber must pay a $5 installation or wiring charge. Monthly rates for multi-party service is $4 per month plus 10 per cent federal tax or a total of $4.40.

Mr. McDonald said that Mr. Reece would provide rates for one, two and four party service when he stops at the location of the new member.

"We believe that every home and business in Davie County should have telephone service," said Mr. McDonald. In recent years the rapid development of electric service, telephone service and hard surfaced roads has made it possible for farms and rural homes to have better fire protection, medical and veterinary service and police protection. Good telephone service is an essential part of these services. One telephone call to a fire department could save property value sufficient to pay telephone rates for a lifetime. Davie County can justly be proud of its county wide fire department protection but the fire department cannot help unless the fire is reported quickly."

The Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation now serves 700 subscribers in rural Davie County from a modern dial exchange located near Smith Grove, east of Mocksville. There is no long distance charge to call telephones in Mocksville. Central Telephone company serves approximatley 1,000 customers. This means there are in Davie about 1,700 phones connected with no toll charge.

Anyone served by this co-op who desires immediate service should contact the Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation in Yadkinville, phone Yadkinville 3991.

UNCLE DAVE FROM DAVIE Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

"I ain't got much patience fer the radio, and since mine is out of whack most of the time, I use it to prop up the kitchen sink. But after that hard wind we had a while back, he derned thing started working all of a sudden, and taht's how I came to be listening to this feller's speech the o her night. From what I heard, it would've been just as good if we hadn't had no wind and the thing hadn't starte squeaking again.

As a general thing these speeches on the radio ain't noted fer their air conditioning effect, and I don't pay no more attention to them than a hog does to Sunday. Once in a while some feller will say somepun that gives food fer a little light-weight summer thinking, but as a rule you don't even git that. Fer instant, they was saying on radio that the world corn crop might be a little short this year and farmers had beter start feeding less grain to their livestock.

Personally, I ain't never owned a hog that had any sense of world - wide responsibility and without enough corn he'd git thin as a rail, didn't make no difference whether Communism swept Europe or ont. I tried to raise a hog onct without enough corn and there wasn't enough meat on ihs spare ribs to keep just one Frenchman from going wrong politically mor'n a week.

But gitting back to that feller on the radio the other night, he said things was in a bad upheavil. Prices is in a upheavil, France is in a upheavil, labor is in a upheavil. Harold Stassen is in a upheavil, Rome is in a upheavil.

And I didn't have to listen to the radio to find out my old lady is in a upheavil. In fact, I don't know nothing that ain't in a upheavil except me. My system is to git out of earshot of my old lady, dodge the bill collectors and fish when they're biting and fish when they ain't.

After all, Mister Edi or, there ain't been a time in the world when things wasn't in a upheavil. For hundreds of years politicians has been thriving on one upheavil after ano her, but things seem to hold together and survive. Rome fell in ancient times and France has fell a dozen times. I myself have gone busted nine times, but ain't Rome, France and me still around and still borrowing money to survive the next upheavil? Times is normal.

The next time I git a radio I'm going to buy one that when it gits out of order a little wind won't have no effect in gitting it fixed.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

Prison Sentence Given Youth Who Eloped With 14-Year-Old

Virginia Pair Picked Up Here By Local Officers

A 17-year-old boy was sentenced to 90 days in prison this week on the charge of aiding and abetting in no operator's license. However, testimony developed that there was more to this case than this charge.

Glen Mace, age 17, of Hampton, Va., and a 14-year-old girl were arrested around noon June 24th as they crossed at the intersection of Highway 601 and 64 in Mocksville.

Sheriff Ben Y. Boyles and Deputy Sheriff Grimes Hancock stopped the 1949 Chevrolet bearing Virginia license plates when they saw it being driven by the young girl and it was apparent she was too young to drive. Mace told the officers the car belonged to his uncle and they had borrowed it to run away and get married.

The girl was from Warwick, Va., and they had left from there on June 20 and were picked up here on June 24.

Tuesday, the boy told Judge A. F. Grant that the reason they had not gotten married was that they didn't have enough money to buy the marriage licenses.

The girl's parents were notified and they came and took her home the same day June 24. The boy remained in the local jail until his trial, Tuesday.

It was not determined whether or not the Mace boy is on probation in Virginia. However, the probation officer there sent a letter requesting Sheriff Boyles to notify him of the disposition of the case in the local court.

MORE ABOUT
Open Letter

Duly has no axe to grind in this undertaking. He is merely doing a job. He is a Yadkin County boy that just graduated over at Carolina and of course Uncle Sam has first call on him so he is going into military service this fall. He must eat until that time and so has accepted this as a job.

"Johnny is an interesting young fellow, nice to talk to and it just doesn't make sense to him when he sees a lot of nice homes along side a modern telephone line that doesn't have a telephone in them. Of course his frist question is, Why? Why don't they use the service? So you can see that he is at least interested in his job.

"Of course we are going to tell him, why! However, on second thought are we actually going to tell him, why, or are we going to just make a lot of excuses by blaming this, that and the other. Anyway, when Johnny knocks on your door, comes to the field to see you, or meets you in the road or upon the street this summer, be nice to him. I have told him that you are the best and most honest bunch of people in the world and also the stubbornest. You will do what you say that you will do and you expect everyone else to do likewise, and if they don't, you are pretty well through with them. Talk to him and give him a chance to do his job.

"Let's just think back together for several years about this telephone situation in Davie County. Let's do it objectively and not get mad. We can, I believe, at least all of us that have passed the half - century mark, even in our reminiscing, smile a little to ourselves. We can remember when almost all the homes in the county had telephones. When all of us met at the country store on bad days and really formed little neighborhood co-ops, made plans, and while the ground was too wet to plow went to the woods and cut cedars or post oak poles (the hearts of a few of them are still standing alongside of some of our back country roads as monuments to our efforts and our achievements in a by-gone era).

"We loaded those poles on to a wagon with two, four or even six mules. The man or boy who could climb one of the poles with spurs was the hero of the crew.

"Now, who can blame us when we say: Ah! The good old days! We are only remembering we are secretly patting ourselves on the back for doing a job and we did do a job . . . a good one! We had a need and by working together we filled that need.

"As time moved on we became more and more occupied by other things. We got busier and busier. Those poles began to rot. The bushes and trees grew up into our lines. We didn't have the time to do anything about it so we abandoned our telephone lines.

"We were without telephone service for several years. Then the co-op was born out of necessity . . . out of a need. We supported the movement and were all enthused about it. We talked, we paid, and we worked. You know what happened. We thought we got a dirty deal. We got mad. Yes, we got stubborn. Maybe we are carrying it too far now. We are failing to take advantage of somthing that is available to us that can help us.

"The Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation has facilities here in Davie County to serve 1200 homes with telephones. Only about 750 of them are being used. The people right here in Mocksville walked up and voted in favor of raising their own telephone bills in order to be able to talk to more people in the county. Did we cooperate with them? Not much . . . we were still mad at someone.

"Let's talk to Johnny Reece and, oh yes! I would like to say to you good ladies. Johnny is not paid too much. If he happens around your house at meal time, he is not too particular."

GET YOUR SOIL TESTED NOW

Are you going to plant small grain or seed a ladino grass pasture or alfalfa this fall? If so, then you should take a soil sample of that field right now and have it tested to find out if you need to add any plant food to your soil. This is advisable because many of the soils in North Carolina are acid and before legumes will grow on these soils lime has to be added. Lime dosen't react very fast with the soil, so it is necessary to apply it at least two months before you seed the clover or alfalfa. The only way you can be sure whether you need lime or not is by having your soil tested.

Another point to consider is that a soil test will also tell you whether your soil is deficient in phosphorus or potash. For high yields it is necessary that the soil contain sufficient phosphorus and potash.

When you take soil samples there are several things to keep in mind. First, take a good sample. You can get a good sample by taking soil from 15 to 20 locations in the field you want tested. Put the soil in a clean bucket and mix it well and then fill your sample box. Be sure you have your name, address and field number on the soil sample box. At the same time fill out an information sheet giving the past cropping history and management of the field. This will help the agronomists in making a recommendation for your particular field and crop.

About 10 days after you send in your soil sample you should receive your soil test report with the fertilizer and lime recommendations. If your soil needs lime you should go ahead and apply it immediately.

If you need soil sample boxes, mailing cartons, and information sheets you can get these from the County Agents' Office, ASC, SCS, or Vocational Agriculture teachers.

B. C. Brock Law Firm Moves To New Location

(By Gene Bowman)

B. C. BROCK

JOHN BROCK

The ancestors of B. C. Brock can be traced back to the year 1764 in Davie County, and his homeplace is today in the same location as his forebearers, who then owned vast land holdings in the vicinity and as far as Yadkin River.

A son of Moses and Vert Brock, Mr. Burr Brock began practicing law at the University of North Carolina in 1915, or about one and a half years before he graduated. Then, after graduation, for about ten years he practiced in Winston-Salem, after which he opened an office in Mocksville on the second floor oft he old Anderson Building.

In 1917 he went to the Legislature, and has served since that time, 11 regular terms, representing Davie County. Later he moved his offices to the Sanford building over the old post office, where, about three years ago, this son, John, joined with him in the practice of law.

This week father and son moved into three newly decorated rooms in the Johnstone building, behind the Mocksville Building and Loan Association.

Besides John, another son, James, is Attorney for Fair Trade Commission in Philadelphia, and has his license to practice in Davie County. Another son, Rufus, is with the Medical Corps in the U. S. Army. Three other sons are: Burr, Richard and William Laurie, and one daughter, Mrs. Basil Tucker of Leaksville. Another daughter, Margaret Jo, who was also a graduate of the University of North Carolina and employed by the FBI, is deceased.

Highly esteemed in the law profession, "Burr" Brock is a s aunch citizen and honored gentleman revered by all who know him. His move to new and larger quarters with his son, John, is viewed with interest by his friends and townspeople.

TRAVELING SALESMAN!

YES, our familiar symbol bearing Southern's industrial slogan Look Ahead—Look South! has certainly "been around" since it was created in 1943. Every year since then it has appeared consistently in our advertisements in national magazines and financial newspapers reaching millions and millions of readers annually.

Why do we keep on saying Look Ahead—Look South! so many times to so many people? For the same reason that we maintain an Industrial Development Department that constantly and aggressively seeks new industries for every available plant location along our lines. It's good for the Southern—and good for the South—to promote and "sell" the industrial expansion of the Southland in every way possible.

Here is proof. In the six-year period, 1952 to 1958, there have been 2,086 major industrial developments along the Southern alone. They represent an investment of almost $3½ billion and have created more than 119,000 new job opportunities for workers here. Keeping our "traveling salesman" busy selling the South helps keep the Southland busy, too!

TAR HEEL WHEAT FARMERS FAVOR QUOTAS

Preliminary returns from the referendum held last Friday, June 20, in the 36 state wheat producing area show that 83.7 per cent of the farmers voting favored marketing quotas for the 1959 wheat crop. According to H. D. Godfrey, State Administrative Officer for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, preliminary returns for North Carolina show that a total of 1,207 votes were cost. Of this total, 92.6 per cent favored marketing qoutas on the 1959 crop. National returns show a total of 198,210 votes counted. Of these, 165,868 favored marketing quotas and 32,342 opposed quotas. Although this is a preliminary tabulation, the final total is not expected to show any significant change from these preliminary figures, according to Godfrey.

Because wheat marketing quotas which were proclaimed for the 1959 crop by Secretary of Agriculture Benson in April of this year are effective only when approved by two-thirds or more of the farmers voting in a referendum, marketing quotas will be in effect next year. Last Friday's referendum marked the eighth time farmers have voted on marketing quotas for wheat. Wheat farmers approved qoutas on the 1941 crop by an 81 per cent favorable vote; the 1942 crop by 82.4 per cent; the 1954 crop by 87.2 per cent; the 1955 crop, by 73.3 per cent; the 1956 crop, by 77.3 per cent; the 1957 crop, by 87.4 per cent; and the 1958 crop by 86.2 per cent.

According to Godfrey, this is the first of a series of referendums that will be held in this state this year. The other referendums that will be held at on flue-cured and Burley tobacco, cotton, and rice. According to Godfrey, farmers in this state, as well as those throughout the nation, consistently approved their marketing quota programs by a strong majority; however, he expressed concern over the fact that the number of eligible farmers casting ballots was much too low. "That was the case with the wheat referendum but we certainly hope it will not be the case in regard to our all-important tobacco and cotton referendums."

FALL ACP SIGN-UP

The sign-up period for requesting Fall ACP practices will be held in the Davie County ASC office between July 14 and July 31. Any farmer that plans on carrying out a conservation practice this fall should get in a request during this period. Funds for Fall practices will be limited and farmers who get in a request during the sign-up period will be considered first. The Davie County list of practices was selected from the State practices and one or more of the conservation practices is needed on every Davie County Farm.

SOIL BANK PAYMENTS

Farmers are now being notified to come by the Davie County ASC Office to pick up their soil bank checks. Practically all acreage determinations are complete and most farmers will be paid off within the next two weeks. Again we will remind all farmers that even though payments are being made early this year the designated acreage reserve land is still under contract. No crop may be harvested or grazed from this land during 1958.

Why

Do We Say "BUCKLE DOWN?"

Getting a knight and horse into armor required the efforts of several pages to cope with the many strap and buckle fastenings of their protective hardware. The knight was bucked up before he buckled-to; the process of girding for battle or joust was "buckling down."

We say buckle down meaning get to work. Similarly, when evening clothes were more formidable than today's, we heard persons say they were "getting into harness" or buckling into corsets, boiled shirts and tails for an evening's fray.

Yes, I'm ashamed to admit that when I sent Eileen and Jimmy to Daily Vacation Church School, it was for a selfish reason. Having them at school each day would give me a couple of carefree hours of my own!

Then, the first afternoon, they came home bursting with enthusiasm. While I gave them a snack, they sang me a song they had learned, based on the books of the Bible—and they knew each one! Guiltily, I asked myself if I could do as well!

Vacation Church School will be over in another week, but in our house it's going to continue until fall. Each morning, Eileen, Jimmy and I will have a school session of our own, and they can help me re-learn some of the things I'd half forgotten. And when next summer comes, Eileen and Jimmy will be going to Vacation Church School again—but for themselves, this time, not for me!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Keeping Mocksville Clean

Next week the Town of Mocksville will utilize two days for the picking up of trash and garbage. This item alone reflects the growth of the town in recent years.

Perhaps the average citizen, with his casual view of everything, does not realize just how big a job the gathering of this trash is, even in a town no larger than Mocksville.

Each week the town forces haul an average of 150 yards of compacted trash and garbage. This is around 400 cubic yards of loose trash and garbage and would make quite a pile when put in one spot.

The picking up and hauling of this trash and garbage requires the labor of two men, full-time, and another man about two days each week. Garbage is picked up daily at the business establishments, in the up-town fire zone, the hospital and at the schools. Outlying business establishments are serviced twice each week. The trash and garbage of residents is picked up once each week.

Garbage is disposed of by burying. At the present time garbage is being used to fill up eroded farm land near Mocksville. The town has purchased seven acres of rough land north of the park to use for land fill, in bad weather and when other land is not available.

The Town of Mocksville has $18,000 invested in equipment for the pickup and disposal of garbage. It requires $1,800 a year for fuel oil; $7,800 for labor; and $1,500 for maintenance of equipment.

The amount of garbage hauled by the town has more than doubled in the past five years, and has increased more than four times in the past ten years. Today, garbage is picked up from about 650 residences and 150 business places in Mocksville.

So you see that the effort to keep the town clean is quite a job. This service has increased to such a point that all the 650 residences cannot be handled in one day. Effective next week the town goes on a two day schedule with the southern section of the town being serviced on Thursday and the northern section on Friday.

The crew picking up your trash and garbage ask your understanding and cooperation. Have your trash ready and along side of the road early in the morning. Have it in containers that can be easily and quickly handled. By doing this you will greatly aid in the effort to keep Mocksville clean.

The July 4th Observance

The first celebration of the Declaration of Independence was not held on July 4. It was held on July 8, 1776 — four days after Congress officially adopted the historic document.

According to research experts with The World Book Encyclopedia, patriots who gathered in Philadelphia's Independence Square are credited with originating what has been an annual celebration ever since. The great crowd heard John Nixon, prominent Philadelphian, read the entire Declaration. He stood on a towering platform erected seven years earlier by the American Philosophical Society for the observation of a rare phenomenon involving the planet Venus.

Bells pealed throughout the day. John Adams' letters mention chimes, possibly those of Christ Church. As the rector of the church was a well-known Royalist, the chimes probably were "rung without benefit of clergy."

Not until July 2 of the following year did it occur to the Philadelphians that the celebration should be repeated on July 4.

A letter written by John Adams to his daughter tells the story of the next July 4 in 1777. Again bells pealed throughout the day. Warships anchored in the river were gaily decorated. Bonfires and fireworks lit the sky in the evening. Candles burned in the windows of nearly every home.

Congress adjourned for the day. The government dignitaries enjoyed a special dinner in a Philadelphia tavern, with music by a Hessian band, which had been captured at Trenton. During the after-dinner toasts, soldiers outside the taven fired continuous volleys.

According to the World Book researchers, this annual celebration of the Fourth of July spread slowly throughout the country. But, even today, July 4 is not a national holidays by United States law.

Do They Need All This Land?

Do you have any idea how much of the United States has been commandeered by our armed forces?

Can you visualize 29 million acres? It is some 40,000 square miles. And if that is beyond comprehension, it would constitute a belt 14 miles wide from New York to San Francisco. This is the vast empire that has been taken over by the armed forces who are now demanding six million more acres.

The armed forces now own one acre out of every 100 in Virginia. Two out of every hundred in Florida. And five and a half million acres of California . . . an area larger than Connecticutt, Delaware, and Rhode Island combined.

The Air Force has a bombing range adjacent to Las Vegas, Nevada, that is 135 miles long and 50 miles wide. The Navy, instead of sharing this test area of which the Air Force needs only a third, is taking over 700,000 acres in Nevada for its own. In addition to a three million acre missile range in New Mexico, the Army moved in on an adjacent 470,000 acres of public property embracing some of the luchest grazing land in the state, and followed this up by taking over 21 adjoining ranch properties. Similar situations exist in Louisiana, Utah, and Oklahoma.

It costs $21 million a year to maintain over 200 idle installations, bases and camps that usurp a million acres.

There are six and a half million additional acres still preempted but no longer required by the services.

The time is approaching, it seems, when we must decide whether it is the function of the military to defend the nation, or whether the nation exists for the support and aggrandizement of the military.

Spring buds are nature's promise of everlasting life, the May Reader's Digest says: cut one open and you will find in it a tiny folded leaf, complete to the last detail. Some buds even have buds—like the rattlesnake fern, in which tiny leaves are folded, one on the other, for at least three years ahead.

A brook trout may lay as many as 4,000 eggs in a single "redd" or nest scooped in a stream bottom, the National Geographic Magazine says. She covers the eggs with gravel to protect them against predators and floods.

Virginia's Natural Bridge, a span or water - carved limestone, arches 90 feet across a gorge, the National Geographic Magazine says. Thomas Jefferson paid George III 20 shillings for the bridge and for 157 acres of land less than a year before the first shots were exchanged between Americans and Britons in the Revolution.

William Henry Harrison was the first President to die in office. According to The World Book Encyclopedia, he was also the first member of the Whig party to be elected. Harrison's term was the shortest in American history—only 30 days.

SENATOR SAM ERVIN ★ SAYS ★

WASHINGTON — Senator Russell acted wisely in halting hearings before our committee until he received assurance from Secretray of Defense McElroy that there would be no purge of top military officials for expressing their honest views on the proposed defense reorganization plan.

Defense Reorganization

The Senate Armed Services Committee has been conducting hearings to secure the views on both sides of the reorganization issue in order to make intelligent recommendations as to the wisdom and necessity for the Administration's proposals.

When the Secretary of Defense rapped Admiral Arleigh Burke for expressing his views before our committee, there appeared the great danger that the Pentagon and White House would attempt to muzzle the leaders of the Army, Navy and Air Force. This would create a dangerous precedent because Congres has the constitutional right and responsibility for determining the basic defense policy of our country. If Congress were to be denied the views of the leaders of the military and naval forces, even though they disagree with the views of the Secretary of Defense and the President, the underpinnings of our system would be seriously weakened.

My person opinion is that Secretary McElroy spoke hastily on the subject. His later response to Senator Russel indicated that this observation was correct.

Unrealistic Alarm

After carfully listening to the pros and cons of the arguments on both sides, I am convinced that the President's objections to the House's modification of the reorganization proposal submitted by him are based in the main upon realistic alarm. As I read the provisions of the pending bill the Secretary of Defense is given rather complete authority over the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, and that no drastic revision of the pending bill is needed to accomplish the reorganization that the President envisions.

Civilian Authority

The advent of the missile and electronic warfare age will, of necessity, bring about drastic changes in the Armed Forces, but ther is, and will be for an indefinite time, need for the type of specialization that is done by the various branches of the service. I am convinced that Congress must not assent to the creation of a military monstrosity that is not responsive to its will or that of the people, or breach the important democratic concept of the control of the military by civilian authority.

How do we continue to do this when the portion of our tax dollar devoted to defense is growing? This is not a simple and easy matter, but one way to apply the brakes is to freely get the divergent views of experts in defense, unhampered by the threat of purge.

Secretary McElroy errer in his initial expression of his views, but he is to be commended for restating his position after more deliberation on the constitutional role of Congress.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

It is always interesting and enjoyable to stroll among the buildings of downtown New York, for this is the oldest part of the man made city, and here are some of the most colorful relics. Many native New Yorkers do not realize the historic charm of this fabulous island, about which Washington Irving wrote so lovingly. Natives who have left here to live in other parts of the country say that if you want to know this city, you have to move out of it. I always like to go along Park Row where the old newspapers of the city thrived, especially the World of Joseph Pulitzer and the Herald of James Gordon Bennett.

Few people in the civilized parts of the earth, however, have not seen the New York City Hall, for it has seemed almost a fixture in newsreels. One of my first vicarious memories of this place was seeing Mayor Jimmie Walker making one of his famous clever speeches on the steps of City Hall. There was some politics mixed up with it, for as one of the boards of the temporary platform broke loose, Jimmie, a Democrat, without batting an eye snapped, "That shows you what always happens to a Republican platform!" But even if the Hall is famous, few local people even seem to go inside it.

So it was with special interest that I entered the City Hall the other day, and soon learned hat it was 155 years old and had given daily service since it was first built. It is a beautiful building. Architects call is the "jewel box of American architecture" because its measurements and proportions make it the purest example of colonial architecture in the East. The man who designed it back in 1803 was named John McComb, of Scotch descent, and he kept exact records on the progress of the building, recording that carpenters then received $7.00 a week, while McComb himself got $6 a day for supervision of the construction.

Square in appearance outside, the interior of the edifice is impressive, with an elegant circular hanging stairway in the main corridor. Suspended only from a key-stone, cantilever landing at the top, these stairs have no supporting columns along their edges, and when first used, were viewed with fearful skepticism by many. When Abraham Lincoln's body was brought to New York, it lay in state at the top landing and people passed up one stairway and down the other after viewing the body.

On the right wall of the Council Chamber hangs a painting of Lafayette by Samual F. B. Morse who invented the telegraph. He was also a portrait painter of distinction. A picturesque front room on the second story is used as a museum. In it are the desks used by George Washington and his cabinet when they were in New York during the first year and a half o four country, 1789-50 when this city was the nation's capital. Many notable persons from all the world have been received here at this City Hall and given the hospitality of the city. President Truman was the first President ever to visit this building, however. He sopped in it on Navy Day, 1945.

Outside I looked around at the skyscrapers and was back in the 20th century again. Broadway runs nearby and continues uptown for 25 miles, the longest major street in the world. There was a time when one could ride its whole length for a nickel on the bus or subway, which now cost 15 cents each. Even so, from City Hall in any direction, it is well worth it for it is the best show one can find hereabouts. In many ways — and with its many defects — this town is still the show case of our nation.

That the heart of the nation is just 225 miles south of here is hard to realize—that is, until you get to Washington. I just paid a brief visit to our capital upon the Potomac and came away again impressed, not only with its natural beauty but by its ever-increasing political significance. The railroad fare for the trip is still reasonable, though it is even cheaper by bus, and if you fly, it takes longer to get to and from the airports here and there, than it does to make the entire journey.

An all-too-brief visit with some cousins who had come up from Florida a stop at my old army headquarters, the labyrinthian Pentagon, and then to the picturesque Union Station to board a train for home. We were stopped on the tracks near Baltimore for a hour, finally discovering that a jet plane had crashed into the high tension electric wires which the train uses, and was burning up ahead of us. As we went by, I saw my first plane wreck at first hand. The big jet was by then only a smoking, cinder-like black mass. It made me glad I was riding on the ground.

HAND IN HAND

Industry and prosperity may be spelled differently, but they mean about the same thing.

KIDD BREWER'S Raleigh Roundup

For the first time in several years we will have women — and not just the singular — in the N. C. General Assembly. At one time, we had three. Tihs time will have at least two: Dr. Rachel Darden Davis of Kinston and Grace Taylor Rodenbaugh of Walnut Cove, and a veteral school teacher who will be serving her fourth consecutive term. Davis won in the runoff.

In the past we have had several female legislative members, but if memory serves correctly Dr. Davis will be the lrst of her sex from east of Greensboro. She succeeds Veteran Thomas White, who voluntarily got out of the game for a season to rebuild his law practice.

WITH THE PRESS . . . Current issue of Saturday Review, now a more vigorous magazie, has an excellent picture of News and Observed Editor Jonathan Daniels on the front cover. His new book: "Prince of Carpetbaggers."

FROM WASHINGTON we heard by grapevine last week that the President is expected to ease out Sherman Adams by Sept. 1. Watch the date. GOP leaders in this State never felt very close to the cold New Englander.

The name "'Sherm" may now become a term . . . in a vicuniary approach.

OLD FRIEND John Gordon, one of the men who built the Progressive Farmer to what it is today, was very deeply touched a few weeks ago when Clarence Poe lost his son, William.

At four o'clock one morning last week, Gordon was called from sleep and notified his son, third pilot on a jet tanker, had been killed.

These fathers would agree their sons died serving their country, one in agriculture and from a sudden heart attack on a plane returning from Alabama . . . the other in a jet plane heading across the Atlantic.

POLITICAL NOTES . . . John Jordan, who beat out big money and some of Raleigh's biggest names,to win the State Senate seat by more than 2,000 votes last Saturday . . . is executive secreary of he N. C. Wholesalers Assn. . . . which needs strength in the face of big-store competition.

Within minutes after the count showed him the victor, Iredell County's rambunctious Hodges foe, C. V. Henkel, was on the telephone to line up Jordan in Henkel's efforts to be president protem of the State Senate . . . but we heard Sunday Jordan not yet fully committed to Henkel . . . ???

The other man running for the place since a year ago: Robert Foster Morgan, Hodges friend of Shelby, and a son in law of Robeson County's Cutlar Moore . . . Cutlar's full name, incidentally, is: Du Brutz Cutlar Moore . . . one of his three children is named Du Brutz Cutlar, Jr. . . . He is smooth and energetic.

He was this State's first ABC store head . . . 1937-41. Good man.

WE PREDCT that Robert Foster Morgan will win out for president pro-tem, Henkel having got into the battle too late, and two years hence will be a candidate for State Office. He is in the seed business with Morgan & Co. . . . This will be his fourth regular term in the State Senate . . . and also fourth for his father in law from Lumberton.

WHILE WHOLESALER HEAD John Jordan was winning in the runoff for the State Senate, Good Member Wholesaler Robert Jernigan of Hertford County was losing out for the House.

Jordan is a native of Hertford County.

His wife is the former Patricia Weaver, daughter of Dr. Carl Weaver of Asheville, and a distant cousin of Former Congressman Zeb Weaver.

TEXT: "Have laurels on your brow, but don't browse on your laurels." — Pa. School Jrnl.

A group of children had just finished watching Disney's "Bear Country" on TV.

"What would you do if a bear chased you out in the woods?" Sarah asked her brother.

"I'd climb a tree," her brother replied.

"But bears can climb trees too."

"Not my tree," said the boy. "It would be shaking too much!"

Some of us have to be frightened into action. Some of us act only when prodded by hunger, pride, greed or some other basic goad. Most of us are slow starters. Many of us never start at all. We wait, delay and put off going into action. Then we find someone else has done what we only thought about doing.

Huxley wrote, "The greatest end of life is not knowledge, but action." All our knowledge, fine ideas and good intentions will not amount to anything if we let worries, fears or plain laziness keep us from starting. We cannot arrive unless we start. We must plan our actions. Then act. R. Roy Keaton, Director General of Lions International said, "A good aim in life is commendable, but if you expect to hit your mark, you've got to pull the trigger." Get started now!

'Let God Be True'

ROLAND D. ROBERTS,

This week we will discuss the manner by which a person becomes a member of the Lord's church. Jesus told Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews, that one must be born again, of the water and the spirit before they could enter into the kingdom of God. Since the church is the kingdom of God one must then be born of water and the spirit to enter into the church. (John 3:5).

In Acts 2:38 we are told how one is born of the water and the spirit: "Then Peter said unto them, Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." In the 47th verse of the same chapter it says that "the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." From this it can be seen that baptism not ony remits one's sins, but it also adds one to the Lord's church.

Baptism, which forgives your sins and adds you to the Lord's church also saves you for in I Peter 3:21 we find that it says, "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God), by the resurrection of Jesus Christ."

In connection, with baptism washing away our sins and thus saving up from them, we find in Acts 22:16 that Annanias told Paul to "arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." Thus we have proof positive that one is not saved from his sins before baptism.

Concerning baptism's adding us to the church of the Lord Jesus Christ, we find in I Corinthians 12:13 that it says, "For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body." Since the body and the church are one and the same, as we learned from Colossians 1:18, it is necessary that one be baptized in order to come into Christ's church.

In Romans 6:4 we find that baptism is a burial for it there says that "Therefore we were buried with him in baptism." This refutes the idea that sprinkling and pouring are forms of baptism for one cannot be buried in water by having it sprinkled or poured upon his head. Besides the word baptism, itself, is an Anglocized Greek word that means to immerse or plunge beneath the surface of a body of liquid.

To say that one is saved without baptism is to say that he is saved without coming in contact with the blood without which there is no remission of sins. (Hebrews 9:22). To say that one is saved without baptism is to say that we are saved without becoming a member of Christ's body or church. Thus if we say that we can be saved without baptism we not only render useless Christ's death and shedding of blood on Calvary's cross, but we also make useless his church.

In conclusion ,it has been shown that there is no salvation without forgiveness of sins; no forgiveness of sins without contact with Christ's blood; no contact with Christ's blood without becoming a member of his body; and no becoming a member of his body without being washed in his blood by burial in baptism which makes you a member of his body, the church.

If you have passed this third guidepost you have been baptized for the remission of sins and are a member of his body. Next week we will discuss the organization of the Lord's Church. (Adv).

Junior Legion Baseball Review

By JOHNNY WARD

Another American Legion Junior baseball season has come and gone.

This year the Davie County Juniors made a very fine showing, considering that most of the boys had little experience. The team, coached this year by Jim Latham, won 7 and lost 7.

Some of the team leaders were:

James Latham and Bob Wetmore tied for stolen bases with five each.

James Latham led in runs scored with 16 and most walks with 22.

Joe Whitlock led with five doubles and was the only Davie player to hit a homerun.

Bob Wetmore led in triples with two and he led in runs batted in with 14.

The big pitcher was righthander Bob Wetmore, who won 4 and lost 2. Bruce Driver won 2 and lost 2 and Dude Jordon, who did a very fine pitching job, won one game and lost two. Bob Wetmore led in strikeouts with 39 in 35 innings.

The batting averages were as follows:

James Latham	.326
Otis Snow	.311
Bob Wetmore	.282
James Edwards	.273
Joe Anderson	.256
Gene Ballard	.255
Fred Pierce	.200
Joe Whitlock	.196
Bruce Driver	.188
"Mole" Spry	.143
Dude Jordan	.143

The above averages do not include the final game with Asheboro.

The standings for Area III were:

Team	W	L
Greensboro	11	3
Salisbury	8	6
Spencer	8	6
Davie County	7	7
Asheboro	7	7
Thomasville	7	7
Lexington	5	9
Statesville	3	11

A Quiet Fourth

The long Fourth of July holidays passed off quietly in Davie County.

State Highway Patrolmen R. C. Blalock and William C. Wright reported but one accident, and this was only a 'fender-bender," during this period.

The patrolmen said that motorists in Davie County drove very carefully and there were less violations than on a regular week end.

One motorist was cited to court for driving too slow. The motorist was driving at 15 to 20 miles per hour on Highway 601 South and was restricting the normal flow of traffic. North Carolina law provides that a motorist cannot drive so slow as to impede the normal flow of traffic.

Tax Rate To Remain The Same At 85 Cents

A budget of $311,335.00, highest in the history of Davie County, was adopted this week by the Board of County Commissioners. This was an increase of $8,166.50 over the budget of 1957-58 which was $303,168.50.

The tax rate for this year remains the same, .85c on the $100 valuation.

The revenue for the coming year is anticipated from the following sources: Ad Valorem taxes, $265,735; $6,000 poll and dog taxes; Miscellaneous fees and other receipts, $34,600; Federal and state pro rata administrative and state equalizing fund, $4,000; Veteran's Aid, $1,000.

The tax dollar is broken down as follows: Debt Service, .16c; General Fund, .20c; SS and Poor Fund, .19c; School Fund, .22c; hospital maintenance fund, .08c. This makes a total of 85c on the $100 valuation.

The itemized budget appropriations for the departments are as follows. Appropriations for last year are shown in parentheses:

Rotarians Are Told About Recreation

Leisure and recreation were discussed for Mocksville Rotarians at their regular meeting, Tuesday.

Joe White, Director of Recreation for the City of Winston-Salem, was the principal speaker.

Mr. White defined 'leisure" as main's own free time to use any way he might choose. He termed recreation as one of man's best opportunities for a full, enriched and satisfying life.

"Through organized recreation we train participants, rather than spectators," said Mr. White. "Recreation is much broader than playing games. It includes many things."

D. J. Mando had charge of the program and introduced Mr. White. President Grady Ward presided. Special guests included Gordon Earle of Salisbury; Jim Sample, Mack Campbell and Jim Wall.

He Needed Rest!

This all happened in Davie County, but it is hard to believe.

The scene was in "Peppertown," which is a colored section of North Cooleemee.

The main character is known as "Squirrel," or George Kelly Payne.

The story is as follows:

"Squirrel" got drunk and was trying to run his mother and family off from home. A call went in to the Sheriff's Department and Deputy Sheriff Grimes Hancock responded.

When Deputy Hancock stopped in the road in front of the house, "Squirrell" came out. Also, "Squirrel's" mother, who immediately began to tell Deputy Hancock what a good boy her son was, except when he was drinking.

"Squirrel" interrupted and told his mother to "go on," that the officer had come after him and that he would go on with him. Deputy Hancock explained to "Squirrel" that since he was at his own home he had no right to take him in unless some other trouble was caused. To this "Squirrel" replied:

"I want you to lock me up—I needs the rest."

Deputy Hancok obligded.

Tuesday "Squirrel" paid $10 and costs for this rest.

UNCLE DAVE FROM DAVIE Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I ain't never any too shore if I know what I'm writing about in this column, which don't unqualify me from being a columnist — judging from what I see in the papers. I ain't never certain just what the international situation might be at the moment, or what the price of U. S. Steel will be tomorrow, or what my old lady will think of next week. But the difference between me and them other columnists is that they won't admit it. Take, fer instant, that piece I read yesterday by some feller who claimed that wimmen was healthier than men because, he said, you'll always find more widows in a community than widowers.

That's mighty pore thinking, shows that this feller ain't very well schooled in the fact of life. But a heap of folks will read that piece and alow as how that feller is a close observer and that we ought to have some fellers like him in Congress. And the chances are sooner or later he'll git to Congress and start using that same kind of logic. That's one reason Congress never knows if it's going or coming.

Most husbands that die is usualy around middle age or gitting on the shady side of life. That means their wives is also gititng along toward the halfway mark or better. Now when her husband dies the wife keeps his memory and grave fresh and don't wed no more. Of course, there is exceptions. I remember a widow in my neighborhood who was grieving mighty hard fer a few days after the funeral. When folks told her not to take it so hard she said, "I ain't grieving fer my husband so much. I'm thinking of my pore children that has got to be raised by a step-daddy."

But when the wife dies, the husband has hardly paid the bill for the flowers on his wife's grave afore he starts sending flowers to the one he aims to marry next. You can count on your one hand the widowers in this community that didn't marry again as soon as they could find somebody. But all around you there will be widows that is still widows. And that's why there's a heap more widows than widowers in the world. It ain't because wimmin folks is more healthy. I take this text this week just to show you the kind of stuff some of them columnists in the big papers git away with.

Of course, I ain't figgering on ever being a widower. My old lady's voice around the house gits stronger ever year. By the time she's 100 she'll be wining a hog calling contest.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

'Let God Be True'

ROLAND D. ROBERTS,

In the lesson for today we will discuss the final two guideposts in our identification of the Lord's church, its organization and its worship. The affairs of the church are to be overseen by the elders. Each congregation is to have a plurality of them for nowhere in the New Testament do we find the terms "elders," "bishops" and "pastors" used in singular number. The terms "bishops" and "pastors" are used interchangeably with the term "elders." They are used in this way in Titus 1:5 and 7 and in Ephesians 4:11. In the later passage the listing of the term "evangelist" in the same list as the term "pastors" indicates that a pastor is not necessarily the preacher. He can be made to be one of the pastors if a local congregation so desires but he cannot be the pastor.

The other office in the church of the Lord Jesus Christ is that of deacons. In Acts 6 we find that it is the duty of the deacons to look after the temporal affairs of a church so that the elders might be free to oversee in spiritual matters.

Each local congregation is to be independent of all other congregations and it is not to take orders from an ecclesiastical hiarchy of any kind. Wehn men set themselves over groups of churches they are usurping the authority of Christ for "he is the head of the body the church" (Col. 1:18).

Concerning the worship of the church the New Testament teaches that there are five things that make it up: singing, praying, giving of one's means, partaking the Lord's supper, and preaching God's word.

In I Corinthians 14:15, Colossians 3:16, and Ephesians 5:18 and 19 we are told that we are to worship God through singing. In none of these passages is there any indication that instrumental music is a part of Christian worship. One has to go to the Old Testament for proof for the use of the instrument in worship. To do this is folly for the Old Law was nailed to the cross when Christ died. (Colossians 2:14).

Concerning prayer we are told in Acts 2 those who were baptized into Christ continued steadfastly in prayer. In this and many other places we find where the Christian is told to engage in prayer continually.

In 2 Corinthians 9:7 we find the principle that is to be behind Christian giving set forth when the Apostle Paul says, "Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver." Hence our gifing is not to be done grudgingly but cheerfully thus eliminating the idea that we are to tithe and grudgingly give a certain per cent. Again to bring in tithing one must go to a dead law, that has been taken out of the way, for their authority to do so.

Christ instituted the Lord's Supper before his death and in doing so he said that the bread was his body and the fruit of the vine was his blood. When we partake thereof we are to do so in remembrance of Him. By the apostolic example set forth in Acts 20:7 we find that this to be done every first day of the week.

In I Corinthians 1:21 we learn that preaching is the way by which people are to be led to Christ. This is God's way of telling people about Him and His love for them. Thus preaching is an important part of Christian worship.

Does the church of which you are a member adhere to all of these things that have been set forth from the New Testament? If so you are then a member of the Lord's church. If not I urge you to come out from among those who engage in practices that cannot be found in the New Testament and be buried with Christ in baptism fort he remission of your sins. Having done this you can continue to worship with the body of Christ and thereby have fellowship with Christ and fellow Christians. (Adv).

Local Air Patrol Cadets At Air Base

Four from the Mocksville area were part of a group of 192 young men and 30 women North Carolina Civil Air Patrol cadets participating in an 11-day encampment at Donaldson Air Force Base in South Carolina.

They trained with cadets from over the state who are members of the North Carolina CAP Wing.

Purpose of the encampment was to provide the cadets an opportunity to gain a working knowledge of the air base, a Military Air Transport heavy troop carrier wing, and to familiarize them with the scope of the Air Force training program.

Their training included visits to the base instrument school, base operations, survival equipment demonstration, crash fire demonstration and a character guidance series.

One of the highlights of the period was an orientation flight in a C-124 Globemaster, the Air Force's largest operation transport which is the mission plane for the 63rd Troop Carrier Wing.

On June 28, their hours of drill practice were climaxed with a review by Col. Chester C. Moomaw, Deputy Commander of Donaldson Air Force Base.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Eugene Holman, known as "just a good old Texas boy" to close friends, is chairman of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and admittedly one of the smartest men in business today. Ever since I interviewed him once and sank down so far in one of his leather upholstered chairs that I had to straighten up to see him, I have been interested in what he did. The other day he made a speech to his company's shareholders, and typically, kept it short. He reminded them that the oil business reflects general economic conditions, and that in his 40 years in it, he had seen many ups and downs. Therefore, Gene went on, he and his company are optimistic about the prospects now. He admitted that getting out of a slump calls for cooperation by labor, management and government, as well as active moderation on the part of every citizen. We have built-in shock absorbers today, he said, such as unemployment insurance, savings plans and credit. The one problem he significantly asked people to do more work on was inflation.

Some people here now pay $2.05 for a bar of candy — if they throw the wrapper on the sidewalk, that is. For years the city pappys have been trying to clean up the place — the streets, not juvenile delinquency — and now have agreed to fine any so-called slob whot hrows trash on the sidewalks —and they don't mean trashy bums bounced from bistros. At first some folks thought it was a joke when a policeman walked over and handed them a summons for heaving the candy wrappers broadside. But if they examined their purses closely after being hailed into court, they knew it was no guffawing matter.

Dore Schary, once known as the young genius of Hollywood, was ist out by his studio and for a time was not sure just what he would do, he told a group of us. After all, there are not too many super - executive jobs floating around. So he had the idea of writing a play about the experience with paralysis of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Instead of locking himself up in an attic, he took his family and went to the playgrounds of Europe, where between having fun, he wrote the play, he said. Then he had to get the consent of the whole Roosevelt family, finally did, after refusing to write it entirely for their approval. He found that not many people realize that FDR was boomed for the Presidency in the 1920's but he felt he was too immature and the time was not right. Herbert Hoover was one, Schary said, what at one time felt the young Roosevelt should be in the White House.

Technical Training Offered Graduates

Sgt. Miller, U. S. Army Recruiter in Mocksville, said this week that the Army offers high school graduates invaluable technical training in the missile field.

Emphasizing his remarks, Sgt. Miller pointed to qualified high school graduates and said, "Even before he enlists, the high school graduate can be guaranteed training in electronics, radar, electric computers, hydraulics, and other means through which Army missiles operate."

The Army Recruiter went on to say that the Army's surface to surface missile requirements include (1) a short range missile, (2) missiles to extend the range of existing artillery and (3) a long range missile capable of providing defense from protected areas.

He said that three types of Army missle commands are being organized to meet these requirements. They are the air transportable, medium and heavy missile commands and each has infantry and armored units for security, sky cavalry for target locations, engineer and signal support units, and basic artillery missile troops. They are self-contained units, with all necessary equipment and troops who are capable of language interpretation, target location, signal communications, intelligence and internal security.

According to the Army Recruiter, the aid transportable missile command has on "Honets John" rocket battalion as its principal unit. The "Honest John" carries larger atomic or non-atomic warheads to a distance which compares favorably with heavy artillery but with lighter and more mobile equipment. It is a rugged, simple, all-weather weapon with a high degree of accuracy and its operation requires a knowledge received by high school graduates through inventive Army techincal training. The medium missile command used the "Honest John" and the "Corporal" missiles. The "Corporal" is the only ballistic guided missile in the hands of operating forces anywhere in the free world today. It is a day or night all - weather weapon which fires at much greater range than usual artillery and also carries the atomic warhead. The "Redstone" missile is the largest of all present Army missiles. It is used by the heavy missile command and training in operating the Redstone is available to high school graduates.

High school seniors should get in touch with the Army Recruiter for detailed information about courses now available on the Army's "Choice Not Chance" basis.

Northwest Bankers And Farm Leaders Learn From Iowa

If North Carolina is to increase its farm income, what steps should it take?

To find out, some 150 North Carolina bankers and farm leaders spent last week in Iowa, the nation's No. 1 state in farm income. Flying from Raleigh to Winston - Salem in chartered airplanes, they boarded four buses in Des Moines and spent three days on a 600 mile tour of the state's best farming regions.

They were on the 1958 Farm Opportunities and Marketing Caravan, sponsored by Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in cooperation with N. C. State College and the N. C. Department of Agriculture. In charge were Wayne A. Corpening, M. Edmund Aycock, Henry W. Simons and O. J. Howell, Jr., of Wachovia's Agricultural Department.

What did the group learn? Here are some typical observations:

The fertile black soil of Iowa is practically all cultivated. There is very little wasteland, and particularly it was noticeable that Iowans farm from fence to fence.

Farming in Iowa is much more mechanized than it is in North Carolina and other southeastern states. Far more tractors are in use and more mechanical equipment is utilized for planting, cultivating and harvesting crops.

Similarly, Iowa farmers utilize their labor with greater efficiency than is the practice in the Southeast. Most farms there run from 240 to 320 acres, with the smallest running 160 acres. Mechanization has considerably reduced labor needs, and in recent years emigration to the cities and to other states has been considerable.

The touring Tarheels were also struck by the dependence of Iowa agriculture on corn. Practically every farm featured a sizable acreage of corn which was used primarily to feed cattle, hogs, feeder lambs, poultry and dairy animals. It appeared that as corn goes, so goes Iowa.

An intensification of effort toward top production efficiency marks Iowa's farming today on all sides. A large number of farm operators in Iowa have college educations, and as a result, it was noted, Iowa farms show signs of better farm management and better use of machinery than in other farming areas of the country.

With hogs at 24 cents a pound, cattle at 30 cents a pound and corn selling for $1.15 and more a bushel, there has been no recession in Iowa farm income. With the state's overall dependence on agriculture, civic leaders in the state's largest cities also reported that only in a few isolated lines had the recession been felt in the state.

Practically all of the Iowa farms visited by the Caravan indicated they had a line of credit with their local banks. Statistics show that 96 per cent of the farm credit in Iowa is supplied by banks, which shows what community bankers can do to meet the large responsibilities they have to the agricultural economy.

The consensus of the traveling group was that the Iowa bankers' fine example in extending farm credit was a real inspiration that the North Carolina bankers would take back home and use to serve their farm customers better. Bankers predicted more use of intermediate credit to finance farm operations not only in Iowa but also in North Carolina and other sections of the country.

The dependence of Iowa farmers on Iowa State College for their know-how was related at practically every farm the group visited. It was apparent that the Iowa farmers look to Iowa State as North Carolina farmers look to N. C. State College.

Iowa State College, under the leadership of its North Carolina born president, Dr. James H. Hilton, in addition to its extensive research in farm production, marketing and management problems, has recently established a program which his studying the adjustments that agriculture will be facing in the years ahead. Robert K. Buck, a young state and national agricltural leader whose farm is located near Des Moines, proposed a similar program for North Carolina in order that agriculture in the future will be able to meet the demands that the growing American population will place upon it.

At the conclusion of the tour Atwell Alexander, poultry farmer of Stony Point and a member of the N. C. State Board of Agriculture, invited farmers and bankers of Iowa to visit North Carolina and inspect the progress this state has made in recent years in rural and agricultural development. His invitation was accepted by Dr. Hilton, and there was considerable interest expressed by the numerous Iowans visited to come to North Carolina on a similar tour.

While in Iowa the North Carolinians observed widely recognized beef cattle and dairy farming operations, one of the nation's top swine breeding farms and the farm of one of the nation's top prize winners in show cattle competition and inspect the Sioux City Livestock Yards, the world's third largest livestock exchange.

Chicken and turkey production and other farming operations tied into a grain economy also came under the inspecting eye of the North Carolinians, and on the final day of the tour they visited the experimental farms operated by the Iowa State College Farm Extension Service at Ames.

Can North Carolina farmers meet this Iowa competition?

Even though the Tarheels were greatly impressed with the advantages Iowans have, they returned home well aware that they, too, have advantages — a longer growing season, more rainfall, access to markets, etc.

The Southwest has already displaced the Midwest as the leader in poultry production and is making considerable inroads into the hog market. However, both Iowans and North Carolinians expressed confidence that, with the growing American population, there is room for continued expansion by both states in their livestock economies.

On the 1958 Farm Opportunities and Marketing Caravan from this area were, left to right, Wayne A. Corpening, Vice President and Manager, Agricultural Department, Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, Winston - Salem; John W. Shore, Sr., Vice President, Commercial and Savings Bank, Boonville; Bill Gildewell, Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, Winston - Salem; Abram Z. Gottwals, First National Bank of Southern Maryland, Upper Marlboro, Maryland; R. W. Shoffner, Assistant Director, Agricultural Extension Service, North Carolina State College, Raleigh; Miss Marilyn Dralle, Iowa Dairy Princess; and Miss Connie Hobby, New Bern, North Carolina Dairy Princess.

Price Support Program

The national acreage support rate for 1958 crop wheat has been increased from the announced minimum rate of $1.78 per bushel to $1.82 per bushel as a result in parity price. Minimum county rates previously announced are likewise increased by 4 cents per bushel. This means that the support rate for North Carolina will now be $2.03 per bushel for grade No. 1 wheat.

Barley grading No. 2 or better will be supported at $1.05 per bushel. Oats grading No. 3 will be supported at 71c per bushel. Rye will be supported at $1.27 per bushel. Any farmer with grain for sale is urged to investigate the loan program. In most cases farmers can profit by placing grain under loan and paying off the loan and selling the grain on a higher market.

1957 Wool Incentive Payments Announced

ASC county offices shortly after July 1 will begin making payments under the 1957 wool incentive program according to H. C. Blaylock, of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) office. Shorn wool payments for the 1957 marketing year under the wool incentive program will amount to 15.5 per cent of the returns each producer received from the sale of shorn wool during the 1957 marketing year. Blaylock also announced that the payment rate on sale of unshorn lambs to compensate for the wool on them will be 33 cents per hundredweight of live animals sold. The payments will be made only on shorn wool and unshorn lambs marketed between April 1, 1957, and March 31, 1958.

Deductions of 1 cent per pound from shorn wool payments and 5 cents per 100 pounds of liveweight from lamb payments will be made to finance the self-help promotion program which is carried on by the American Sheep Producers Council, Inc. These deductions from the payments to finance the promotion program were approved by producers in a referendum in 1955.

The shorn wool payment rate is the percentage required to raise the average price producers received for shorn wool during the marketing year, which was 53.7 cents per pound, up to the incentive level of 62 cents. The lamb payment rate is based on the shorn wool rate to give lamb producers equivalent compensation for the wool on lambs which are sold. This method of payment is designed to encourage producers to do a good job of marketing their wool.

According to Blaylock, substantially the same program as for 1957 is being continued for the 1958 marketing year which began April 1. The wool incentive price is being continued at 62c per pound grease basis. The payment rates for the 1958 marketing year will be determined in mid-1959 when the average price for 1958 wool marktings becomes known. Applications for payment on either wool or unshorn lambs sold in the 1958 marketing should be filed with county ASC offices not later than April 30, 1959.

can you spare 9 minutes

to read a message 19 centuries old?

The Sermon on the Mount is for everyone. Anyone who reads it will be happier today. Anyone who carries it in his heart will be happier forever. Read...re-read...and understand its words. No speech ever promised...or delivered...so much.

WHEN he saw the crowds of people he went up on the mountain. There he seated himself, and when his disciples had come up to him, he opened his lips to teach them. And he said:

★ Blessed are those who feel their spiritual need, for the Kingdom of Heaven belongs to them! Blessed are the mourners, for they will be consoled! Blessed are the humble-minded, for they will possess the land! Blessed are those who are hungry and thirsty for uprightness, for they will be satisfied! Blessed are the merciful, for they will be shown mercy! Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God! Blessed are the peacemakers, for they will be called God's sons! Blessed are those who have endured persecution for their uprightness, for the Kingdom of Heaven belongs to them! Blessed are you when people abuse you, and persecute you, and falsely say everything bad of you, on my account. Be glad and exult over it, for you will be richly rewarded in heaven, for that is the way they persecuted the prophets who went before you!

★ You are the salt of the earth! But if salt loses its strength, how can it be made salt again? It is good for nothing but to be thrown away and trodden underfoot. You are the light of the world! A city that is built upon a hill cannot be hidden. People do not light a lamp and put it under a peck-measure; they put it on its stand and it gives light to everyone in the house. Your light must burn in that way among men so that they will see the good you do, and praise your Father in heaven.

★ Do not suppose that I have come to do away with the Law or the Prophets. I have not come to do away with them but to fulfill them. For I tell you, as long as heaven and earth endure, not one dotting of an i or crossing of a t will be dropped from the Law until it is all observed. Anyone, therefore, who weakens one of the slightest of these commands, and teaches others to do so, will be ranked lowest in the Kingdom of Heaven; but anyone who observes them and teaches others to do so will be ranked high in the Kingdom of Heaven. For I tell you that unless your uprightness is far superior to that of the scribes and Pharisees, you will never even enter the Kingdom of Heaven!

★ You have heard that men were told, "You shall not commit adultery." But I tell you that anyone who strays from his marriage in thoughts of lust toward another has already committed adultery in his heart. But if your right eye makes you fall, get rid of it, throw it away, for you might better lose one part of your body than have it all thrown into the pit! If your right hand makes you fall, get rid of it, throw it away! For you might better lose one part of your body than have it all go down to the pit!

★ They were told, "Anyone who divorces his wife must give her a certificate of divorce." But I tell you that anyone who divorces his wife on any ground, except unfaithfulness, makes her commit adultery, and anyone who marries her after she is divorced commits adultery.

★ Again, you have heard that the men of old were told, "You shall not swear falsely, but you must fulfill your oaths to the Lord." But I tell you not to swear at all, either by heaven, for it is God's throne, or by the earth, for it is his footstool, or by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great king. You must not swear by your own head, for you cannot make one single hair white or black. But your way of speaking must be "Yes" or "No." Anything that goes beyond that comes from the evil one.

★ You have heard that the men of old were told "You shall not murder," and "Whoever murders will have to answer to the court." But I tell you that anyone who gets angry with his brother will have to answer to the court, and anyone who speaks contemptuously to his brother will have to answer to the great council, and anyone who says to his brother "You cursed fool!" will have to answer for it in the fiery pit! So when you are presenting your gift at the altar, if you remember that your brother has any grievance against you, leave your gift right there before the altar and go and make up with your brother; then come back and present your gift. Be quick and come to terms with your opponent while you are on the way to court with him, or he may hand you over to the judge, and the judge may hand you over to the officer, and you will be thrown into prison. I tell you, you will never get out again until you have paid the last penny!

★ You have heard that they were told, "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." But I tell you not to resist injury, but if anyone strikes you on your right cheek, turn the other to him too; and if anyone wants to sue you for your shirt, let him have your coat too. And if anyone forces you to go one mile, go two miles with him. If anyone begs from you, give to him, and when anyone wants to borrow from you, do not turn away.

★ You have heard that they were told, "You must love your neighbor and hate your enemy." But I tell you, love your enemies and pray for your persecutors, so that you may show yourselves true sons of your Father in heaven, for he makes his sun rise on bad and good alike, and makes the rain fall on the upright and the wrongdoers. For if you love only those who love you, what reward can you expect? Do not the very tax-collectors do that? And if you are polite to your brothers and no one else, what is there remarkable in that? Do not the very heathen do that? So you are to be perfect, as your heavenly Father is.

★ But take care not to do your good deeds in public for people to see, for, if you do, you will get no reward from your Father in heaven. So when you are going to give to charity, do not blow a trumpet before yourself, as the hypocrites do, in the places of worship and the streets, to make people praise them. I tell you, that is all the reward they will get! But when you give to charity, your own left hand must not know what your right hand is doing, so that your charity may be secret, and your Father who sees what is secret will reward you.

★ When you pray, you must not be like the hypocrites, for they like to pray standing in the places of worship and in the corners of the squares, to let people see them. I tell you, that is the only reward they will get! But when you pray, go into your own room, and shut the door, and pray to your Father who is unseen, and your Father who sees what is secret will reward you. And when you pray, do not repeat empty phrases as the heathen do, for they imagine that their prayers will be heard if they use words enough. You must not be like them. For God, who is your Father, knows what you need before you ask him. This, therefore, is the way you are to pray:

'Our Father in heaven,
Your name be revered!
Your kingdom come!
Your will be done on earth
as it is done in heaven!
Give us today bread for the day,
And forgive us our debts,
as we have forgiven our debtors!
And do not subject us to temptation,
But save us from the evil one.'

For if you forgive others when they offend you, your heavenly Father will forgive you too. But if you do not forgive others when they offend you, your heavenly Father cannot forgive you for your offenses.

★ When you fast, do not put on a gloomy look, like the hypocrites, for they neglect their personal appearance to let people see that they are fasting. I tell you, that is all the reward they will get. But when you fast, perfume your hair and wash your face, so that no one may see that you are fasting, except your Father who is unseen, and your Father who sees what is secret, will reward you.

★ Do not store up your riches on earth, where moths and rust destroy them, and where thieves break in and steal them, but store up your riches in heaven, where moths and rust cannot destroy them, and where thieves cannot break in and steal them. For wherever your treasure is, your heart will be also. The eye is the lamp of the body. If then your eye is sound, your whole body will be light, but if your eye is unsound, your whole body will be dark. If, therefore, your very light is darkness, how deep the darkness will be! No slave can belong to two masters, for he will either hate one and love the other, or stand by one and make light of the other. You cannot serve God and money. Therefore, I tell you, do not worry about life, wondering what you will have to eat or drink, or about your body, wondering what you will have to wear. Is not life more important than food, and the body than clothes? Look at the wild birds. They do not sow or reap, or store their food in barns, and yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of more account than they? But which of you with all his worry can add a single hour to his life? Why should you worry about clothing? See how the wild flowers grow. They do not toil or spin, and yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his splendor was never dressed like one of them. But if God so beautifully dresses the wild grass, which is alive today and is thrown into the furnace tomorrow, will he not much more surely clothe you, you who have so little faith? So do not worry and say, "What shall we have to eat?" or "What shall we have to drink?" or

"What shall we have to wear?" For these are all things the heathen are in pursuit of, and your heavenly Father knows well that you need all this. But you must make his kingdom, and uprightness before him, your greatest care, and you will have all these other things besides. So do not worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will have worries of its own. Let each day be content with its own ills.

★ Pass no more judgments upon other people, so that you may not have judgment passed upon you. For you will be judged by the standard you judge by, and men will pay you back with the same measure you have used with them. Why do you keep looking at the speck in your brother's eye, and pay no attention to the beam that is in your own? How can you say to your brother, "Just let me get that speck out of your eye," when all the time there is a beam in your own? You hypocrite! First get the beam out of your own eye, and then you can see to get the speck out of your brother's eye.

★ Do not give what is sacred to dogs, and do not throw your pearls before pigs, or they will trample them under their feet and turn and tear you in pieces. Ask, and what you ask will be given you. Search, and you will find what you search for. Knock, and the door will open to you. For it is always the one who asks who receives, and the one who searches who finds, and the one who knocks to whom the door opens. Which of you men when his son asks him for some bread will give him a stone? Or if he asks for a fish, will he give him a snake? So if you, bad as you are, know enough to give your children what is good, how much more surely will your Father in heaven give what is good to those who ask him for it! Therefore, you must always treat other people as you would like to have them treat you, for this sums up the Law and the Prophets.

★ Go in at the narrow gate. For the road that leads to destruction is broad and spacious, and there are many who go in by it. But the gate is narrow and the road is hard that leads to life, and there are few that find it.

★ Beware of the false prophets, who come to you disguised as sheep but are ravenous wolves underneath. You can tell them by their fruit. Do people pick grapes off thorns, or figs off thistles? Just so any sound tree bears good fruit, but a poor tree bears bad fruit. No sound tree can bear bad fruit, and no poor tree can bear good fruit. Any tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and burned. So you can tell them by their fruit. It is not everyone who says to me, 'Lord! Lord!' who will get into the Kingdom of Heaven, but only those who do the will of my Father in heaven. Many will say to me on that Day, 'Lord! Lord! Was it not in your name that we prophesied, and by your name that we drove out demons, and by your name that we did many mighty acts?' Then I will say to them plainly, 'I never knew you! Go away from me, you who do wrong!'

★ Everyone, therefore, who listens to this teaching of mine and acts upon it, will be like a sensible man who built his house on rock. And the rain fell, and the rivers rose, and the winds blew, and beat about that house, and it did not go down, for its foundations were on rock. And anyone who listens to this teaching of mine and does not act upon it, will be like a foolish man who built his house on sand. And the rain fell and the rivers rose, and the winds blew and beat about the house, and it went down, and its downfall was complete.

★ When Jesus had finished this discourse, the crowds were astounded at his teaching, for he taught them like one who had authority and not like their scribes.

Life Span In Davie County Up 8 Years

What are the chances in Davie County of living to a ripe old age? What evidence is there locally to show that modern medicine, better nutrition and improved living sandards have added to the span of life?

A recent report by the U. S. Public Health Service reveals that people at age 20 now have the expectancy of living to age 72.3 years, which is 9.6 years more than it would have been at the turn of the century.

The average baby born today will live 20.3 years longer than he would have lived if born in 1900.

For those at age 60 there has been an increase of 2.8 years, on the average, bringing their normal expectancy up to 77.5 years.

The number of these dividend years is different at different age levels. In Davie County, according to the lates Census Bureau findings, he median age of the population is 26.3, which is somewhat lower than the national figure of 30.2 years.

At the local age level, the report shows, the dividend is 8.0 years per person.

This median-age bonus, if extended to cover the entire local population, would represent a total of 125,000 years of added life in the community, over and above the prior lifetime expectancy of the people.

The steady expansion of the life span in the last few decades has greatly increased the chances a young couple have of living to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. The likelihood is twice what it was in 1900.

For a man aged 21 who marries a 17 year old girl, the chances are more than four out of ten that both will survive the next 50 years, say the statisticians.

For the groom of 25 with a bride of 21, the chances are three out of ten.

The country has benefited greatly from this increased longevity. Socially, it has made possible more family stability. Economically, it has added to our size as a nation and thus to the number of consumers of goods and services. It is a long-term prosperity force.

Dr. William Eugene Cornatzer

Dr. Cornatzer has received the U. S. Atomic Energy Award to the Seventh International Cancer Congress in London. He and Mrs. Cornatzer sailed last week for London to attend the International Cancer Congress.,

Dr. Cornatzer is a consulatant for Oak Ridge Nuclear Institute and the Atomic Energy Commission. He is head of the Department of Biochemisrty and a Professor at the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks. He completed his medical training at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine in 1951.

Dr. Cornatzer has received many awards in the field of research. He is listed in American Men of Science, Who's Who in Midwest, and in Chemical Who's Who.

Reading Our Mail

Each day into this office comes a considerable amount of mail. The majority of this mail relates to an effort to get items about various and sundry things published in the newspaper. Naturally very little of it is used, as most of our space is utilized with local happenings.

This week it has been decided to devote a little of the editorial space to this type of mail just to give the readers information that they might never otherwise receive. Therefore we are entitling this: "What we would never know without opening our mail:"

The trend in World Missions today is rapidly moving towards indigenous churches.

In North Carolina the Presbyterian Church as a whole is growing as fast as the Baptist and faster than the Methodists.

The average car on the road today gets 70 per cent more real mileage out of a gallon of gasoline and at 18 per cent less cost, exclusive of taxes than did its counterpart in 1930.

The story of one of America's best known narrow gauge trains, "Tweetsie," will be told in a new book published July 29 by Julian Scheer and Elizabeth McDonald Black. "Tweetsie" is a tourist attraction at Blowing Rock.

The biggest production ever attempted by a planetarium in any program is being presented at the Morehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill this summer. Eleven months in planning went into "Land, Sea and Sky."

The North Carolina Survival Plan Project of Civil Defense is entering into its final phases.

While some areas were on the dry side this past week, the cotton crop is clean and generally growing fast.

There were 2,889,000 broiler chicks placed with North Carolina growers during the past week.

The Gardner-Webb College will play a 10-game schedule this fall.

The cotton boll weevil situation still looks good.

TEXT: "The best laid plans o' mice and men oft gang agley."—Burns.

Little Tommy rushed into the house breathless with excitement.

"Mother!" he cried. "Mother! There's going to be trouble down at the drug store!"

"What's the matter" his mother exclaimed.

"Well," gasped Tommy, "Mrs. Jones had a baby girl and Mr. Jones had a sign in his window all week 'Boy Wanted'!"

We are not going to get all we want or expect in this world. How we accept disappointment marks us as children or men.

As children we sail the surface of life. Pleasure and sorrow are instantly sweet or bitter. As we grow older, life takes on depth. We put down philosophical centerboards which steady our lives enable us to hold to a course. Disappointment doesn't devastate us as it did when we were children.

Disappointment is tragedy only to those who live on life's surface. It capsizes them. They weep, sulk, become cnyical or angry.

Remember that no matter who you are, your best laid plans will often go wrong. Accept that. Expect it. This knowledge will steady you. Then when disappointment strikes you'll weather the blow and look hopefully toward tomorrow and its new horizon. It will come.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

During a stop in the Chamber of the U. S. Senate, I noted that the desks there are all still 1859 style, each having an inkwell, a penholder, and a glass shaker filled with blotting sand. In the recesses on either side of the rostrum are the two old snuffboxes which are still kept filled. Looking over Senate Document No. 13, of the 84th Congress, my superstition regarding its number was confirmed. Right on page 1 is the statement that the first capital of the United States was in New York City. "Two years later, it was removed to Philadelphia, where it remined for nine years." I thought this was in error and have now checked with my friend genial and efficient Mulford Martin, Curator of the New York University Library. The fact is that this city was the capital of the nation from April, 1798, until August, 1790, which is one year and four months. Am surprised at Senate Document No. 13! Or should one be?

A stop-off at Trenton, New Jersey, was rewarding, even if that city is now hard hit by unemployment. One reason for this, I was told is the sizeable number of Puerto Ricans who have settled there and are often out of work because they are mostly unskilled and not carefully screened before flocking into this country. Here was fought one of the most important battles of the American Revolution, when George Washington slipped across the Delaware River, a few miles below, on Christmas, 1776, and making his way through the icy night surprised the enemy garrison putting in or out. Decisive in the quick but furious fray was the Continental artillery under Henry Knox. Standing on the narrow top of the 150 foot high Trenton Battle Monument which marks the positions of the Revolutionary cannon, I could see far around for many miles. It is an impressive place.

Back through busy northern New Jersey, a sort of industrial suburb of Greater New York, the smooth train rolled until we reached the tunnels under the Hudson River. By this time, one begins to put on his coat or hat or whatnot, for when the train comes out of that darkness far under the whirling waters of the big river, it is virtually in Pennsylvania Station. Here you push out into a milling crowd, bound for taxis which for once seem to have enough passengers, or for automobiles which the thick traffic makes one wish he had left at home, or the subways which continue your underground ride or just plain walk to hotels or apartments. Red caps now are scarcer than ever — they should be, charging 35 cents for each bag, no matter how small. Again in mighty Manhattan, the out of town atmosphere is soon swallowed up in the endless crescendo.

KIDD BREWER'S Raleigh Roundup

WHO'S FOR WHOM? . . . The race for Speakership of the House next year is so lose that is could go down to the wire in a tie.

In a big Raleigh daily recently, Carl Venters' disciples ran a long list of members allegedly in that camp. No so—or not quite so—say the followers of Addison Hewlett, Jr., the other contender.

A list of those supposed to be in Hewlett's corner has reached our desk. It is "based on commitments." Look carefully and you may find your legislator's name written there.

The listing is headed "Committed to Hewlett" and follows:

R. Austin Jones, Sidney D. Britt, James C. Bowman, E. Everett Burgess, Edward H. Wilson, Tom J. Herbert, Jack Palmer, Jr., Walton S. Griggs, R. Bruce Etheridge, Hugh S. Johnson, Jr., Watts Hill, r., Edward F. Yarbrough, Max L. Childers, Allen Askew, Leonard W. Lloyd, Joe A. Watkins.

Ed Kemp, Thomas Turner, Carson Gregory, Boyce A. Whitmire, Charles A. Hostetler, Dick O' Neal, Marcellus Buchanan, C. Blake Thomas, John M. Hargett, Marvin T. Leatherman, Guy L. Houk, Fred Holcombs, L. Penn Hunter, J. Paul Wallace, H. Clifton Blue, I. T. Valentine, Jr., J. Raynor Woodward, Ned Delamar, Ashley Murphy, B. T. Satterfield, J. Thurston Arledge, David M. Britt, Radffrd G. Powell, Clyde H. Harriss, Tow Newman.

Roger C. Kiser, Grace T. Rodenbough, C. R. Crawford, James C. Gaither, W. Charles Cohoon, Glenn Hawfield, A. A. Zollicoffer, Jr., John Perr, Jr., Harlon Holcambs, and, of course, Addison Hewlett, Jr.

BOTH LOST . . . In the runoff, both Venters and Hewlett lost commitments.

Gene Bost of Cabarrus, supposed to be for Venters, went down to defeat in the recount with Bedford Black. Now Black is supposed to be for Hewlett. Venters also lost Bascom Sawyer, who lost in the runoff in Pasquotank.

I nthe Mecklenburg second Primary, Hewlett lost Frank Snepp, Jr., and in ditto in Halifax he lost Frank Pittman.

Hewlett people claim that R. Frank Everett of Martin County and Dr. J. M. Phelps of neighboring Washinfton County "were at one time committed, but may not now be committed."

So out of the 120 men in the House — and usually a goodly number of Republicans are there —you have about 53 leaning to Addison Hewlett — or so they say. It that enough?

NEW EDITOR . . . Lewis Lawrence, former manager of the Roanoke Rapids Chamber of Commerce, and well known as an organization leader in these parts has returned to North Carolina after resigning as executive secretary of the Alabama Dental Society — at a salary in the five-figure bracket—to live.

"Travel around a little and you appreciate North Carolina just a little more." says Lawrence.

He is the new editor of "The North Carolina Churchman," official publication of the Episcopal Church in North Carolina. In that capacity he suceeds the Rev. I. Harding Hughes. Hundreds of ladies who were once little girls at St. Mary's here will remember him lovingly as chaplain. The Rev. Mr. Hughes, over a span of about 35 years, had the pleasure of editing the Diocesan News. In our book, he is tops.

But not all of Lewis Lawrence's time wil lbe given to "The North Carolina Churchman" — so if you have reason to need a man 35ish for work in the Raleigh area, just keep him in mind.

NOTES . . . We went to see Andy Griffith's "No Time For Sergeants" at its premier showing here the other evening . . . funniest show we ever saw, with more good belly laughs. Mount Airy's Andy is scheduled to star about a year from now on Broadway in a musical based on "Destry Rides Again" . . . Griffith will be Destry . . .

"What is the capital of our new state, Alaska? Juneau. Yes, I know, but do you."

. . . Ten years ago right along now Kerr Scott was basking in an upset victory over Charlie Johnson for Governor . . . Manager Capus Waynick was holding forth in Scott Carolina Hotel Headquarters while visitors from "the other side" came to pay court, homage, and what have you in order to get in with the in's . . . Today Kerr Scott lies buried at Haw River . . . We observed Charles Johnson in his quiet, easy stride along Fayetteville Street last week. He looks little older than ten years ago . . . "Paths of glory lead but to the—!"

. . . It must be said, also, that General Waynick has held up well under ten years which took him into international politics and at last made him a general. He is still straight as a ramrod . . . and we doubt that his weight has varied ten pounds in 20 years.

This big boy saw his girl coming out on the front porch wearing a gingham, sack dress. He looked her over a minute and said: "Tell me, Mandy. Are you in style —or we in trouble?"

This fellow approached the new N. C. Department of Administration a few days ago. They liked him, wanted to give him the position, but said they just didn't know "what the next Legislature is likely to do with or to this agency" and were afraid to spend any more money. He felt he wasn't being given the run-around, but had actualy run into a wall of fear . . . and several members of the General Assembly are said to be whetting their knives for the State Highway Commission . . . as set up by the 1957 Legislature. Only the weather changes more . . . than agencies.

SENATOR SAM ERVIN SAYS

WASHINGTON— The grand total of all debt, public and private is a staggering $828 billion, based on the Treasury reports as of the end of 1957.

Trillion Dollar Debt

We are approaching a trillion dollar debt at a rather rapid rate, an amount that is almost beyond comprehension.

The amount of the deficit for the fiscal year which ended on June 30 has not yet been released. It is estimated at about $3 billion. Informed observers of the national debt picture predict that next year's deficit for Uncle Sam may run as high as $11 billion.

One of the most significant popential dangers lies in the constant threat of runaway inflation. The fact that only a few prices have dropped during the current slump indicates to me that there are unnatural forces present that can play havoc with our country.

Increased Limit

There are now certain signs that the Administration will be forced to ask Congress to increase the national debt ceiling for a second time within only a few months. There is no doubt that the slump in business has made it advisable to accelerate spending for sound projects. Such action is calculated to prevent a depression. But priming the pump should be abandoned at the very earliest moment practicable when ther is conclusive evidence that the economy is snapping back. All pressures for new programs and additional spending must be studied with a view to the impact on inflation.

The Treasury's figures on the gross debt of our country, public andp rivate, at the end of 1957 show this information: Corporate debt, $277 billion; private (individual) debt, $22 billion; state and local debt, $54 billion; Federa debt, $276 billion.

In any reasonable discussion of the debt picture one has to take into consideration the relative position of debt to gross national product, but there is no doubt in my mind that a substantial rise in the figures will increase the threat of disastrous inflation. This is one reason why I have opposed tax relief now and favored a reduction in such programs as foreign aid.

Some have pointed out that the United States Treasury could not liquidate our national debt by the payment of the $276 billion listed debt. They argue, this is so because of large-scale guarantees, participations and committments of various descriptions that would far exceed the listed amount. It is also pointed out that contingent and suspended liabilities such as taxes collected for social security and numerous other programs would add a whopping amount to the figure.

This indicates the urgency of wise management of our debt, private and public. It is no easy or simple task to maintain desirable growth of our gross national product, prevent inflation, halt recession and provide the formula for equitable sharing of the tax burden of this country.

Don't put off the sure thing of today for the uncertainty of what tomorrow may bring.

Happens every day. Many people insuring with "careful driver" companies to save on the premium find themselves involved in an accident. Later, after all claims have been paid, their policy is cancelled because they are no longer "careful drivers".

Regular companies then hesitate to insure people who have had their policies cancelled and folks find themselves without insurance.

Why take this chance? You won't if you buy your insurance from a local, independent agent. See us!

Mocksville Policemen Jim Smith, who was present and investigated the accident, said the bird was on the wrong course. This wrong course, led of course, right into the big glass front of Hendricks and Merrell Furniture Company.

SIX DIAMOND SET, $87.50 . . . FOSTER'S WATCH SHOP, Mocksville, N. C.

UNCLE DAVE FROM DAVIE Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellers up at the country store Saturday night was bragging about what fine gardens they got this year. I had to just set and listen on account of me not having no garden this year.

My garden tools stay over at Ed Doolittle's house anyhow and I just figgered I'd let Ed plant my garden for me this year. Fer one thing, I'll save his c hickens a heap of extra walking. His chickens sleep pretty sound between 11 p.m. and 1 a.m. and last year I tried to get my seeds in the ground while they was asleep but it didn't work so good. They had insomnia that night.

It's a funny thing about Ed's chickens, they got a good high school education, at least they can read, which is better'n Johnny can do. I used to stick the empty seed package on a pole to show what kind of seed was planted in each row. Them chickens would pick out the best seed fer eating and leave the rest of 'em alone. One year stick up a spinach package on ever pole and it was two weeks afore Ed's chickens got hungry enough to bother my garden.

Well, from what I read in the papers, things is still mighty complicated, especialy in Washington. Some Congressman from Georgia said yesterday that the country was in such a bad fix we couldn't even give it back to the Indians. He says they wouldn't have it.

He might be right. There's a big defference between going out and shooting a buffalo fer your meat and taking a five dollar bill to town and gitting a pork chop. And when a Indian squaw wanted to go some place she just put a little red mud on her face, stuck a feather in her hair and strapped her papoose on her back and took off. Now she's got to put red paint on her face and also on her toenails, git a queer looking contraption on her hed and a baby sitter fer her papoose. And when the Indians got tired of their Chief they just grunted a few times and got a new one. They didn't have to wear no buttons in their coat lapel and listen to no campaign speeches. I reckon that Georgia feller was right, the Indians would make a bad deal to trade them beads back fer the country.

But taking it year after year I reckon we still got the greatest country on earth! If we could git prices down a bit there wouldn't be no doubt about it. I went to town Saturday to do a little shopping and when I got home my pocketbook had been washed in the blood of the lamb. I bought me a pair of shoes and I want to tell you one thing. The old lady that lived in a shoe couldn't make it today. A shoe big enough to hold her family would cost half of Fort Knox.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

Telephones . . . A Necessity

The Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation has a slogan: "Owned By Those It Serves." This means that the people using the telephone service offered by the co-op, own it.

This co-op was formed several years ago when the need for telephone service in the rural areas of Davie, Yadkin, and Iredell Counties became great. Since it has been in operation, it has done much to promote unity and progress for the areas it served.

Take Davie County for example. Look back only a few years and you will find Mocksville and Cooleemee with the only fire departments in the county. Today there are seven or eight in operation. The operation of these fire departments can be attributed directly to the rural telephone systems, for without such a communications system a fire department is of no value.

Not many years ago a rural resident measured distance from emergency medical care in terms of miles. Today with the telephone it is measured in terms of minutes.

Formerly a breakdown of a tractor or other farm machinery necessitated the loss of many hours from work as a needed part was sought. Without a telephone, travel was required into town only to find that such a part was not available. From there it was travel from first one place to another. Today, with a telephone, all this becomes unnecessary.

Today we have a hospital, and regardless where one lives . . . it is nearer to each of us because of the telephone.

Today we have a consolidated school, attended by children from all over the county. Although in miles the children may be further from home, because of the telephone they are nearer should any emergency arise.

However, even with the importance of the above telephone uses, perhaps the most value derived from a telephone is through the social contacts with friends and neighbors. With little or no effort friends can be invited . . . picnics and parties can be arranged . . . and the latest news and community gossip enjoyed.

The more people that have telephones . . . the more valuable a telephone becomes to each and everyone. Each telephone line running into a house becomes a cord that connects with untold opportunities, services and pleasures.

The Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation is now in the middle of a program to provide service to every home and business in rural Davie County where telephone service is feasible. They have a representative now at work in this county contacting prospective subscribers and giving information about the service.

Increasing the telephone service should not be the problem of the co-op alone. Each and every person that uses a telephone has a stake in this increased service. It is to the benefit of all, including those who now have telephones, to see that telephones go into other homes and businesses. Each time one is added, our benefits increase.

For those who do not have telephones, John M. Reece, the representative of the co-op, will endeavor to explain the advantages and offer them the opportunity. We are sure he will suceed in the majority of instances in selling the telephone idea. At one point in our history the elephone may have been considered a luxury. However, in the light of today . . . It Is a Necessity.

1959 Cars

You'll find the 1959 cars just as costly and full of chromium as this year's models. According to the editors of the Kiplinger Magazine, the new models will bulge wider and extend longer than the '58's.

In the works are bigger windshields, more chrome and multicolored anodized aluminum trim. Makes which now have tail fins will have wider and higher ones. There will even be ornaments on front fenders on some models.

Engines and basic mechanical design will reflect one encouraging development—a little less horsepower and more economy in some models.

When you hear complaints about the size of the 1959 cars, remember that almost two out of three car buyers choose the bigger and more expensive models over the small economy types.

The manufacturer makes what the public demands.

Accidental Poisoning

Accidental poisoning kills more young children than polio, diptheria and scarlet fever combined. Poison Control Centers in 33 cities are now working to reduce this toll.

Every year in the United States more than 200,000 poison victims are rushed to hospitals and doctors' offices. The great majority are children who have swallowed common household pills, powders, pastes, or fluids. Some 500 of these children die before aid reaches them, or because neither parent nor physician knows the identity of the poison in the offending substance. Thousands of others suffer injuries to the throat and stomach or develop dangerous secondary ailments like bronchial pneumonia.

Under federal law, labels on foods and drugs must warn of dangerous ingredients, but the law does not apply to many common household substances. It's important to know the chemical contents of a product swallowed by accident because first aid measures vary. If the poison is a strong acid of alkali, vomiting may burn the esophagus.

The first Poison Control Center was set up in Chicago in 1953 by a committee of the American Academy of Pediatrics working with the Chicago city health department in order to provide a quick source of information on the contents of substances most frequently swallowed by children. Manufacturers of branded products helped by disclosing secret formulas.

Chicago visiting nurses who investigated cases of poisoning referred to the center found that nine times out of 10 the accidents could have been avoided. They advise parents to make a room-to-room check for poisonous products and to keep them out of a child's reach and sight. Cleaners, bleaches and disinfectants should be left in their original containers on the upper shelves of the kitchen closet and drugs and medicines should if possible be kept under lock and key.

During World War II an RAF gunner survived a fall of 18,000 feet — more than three miles — without a parachute, the July Reader's Digest says. Nicholas Stephen Alkemade jumped from his burning bomber because he preferred a quick death to roasting alive. He landed in a pine thicket, his fall broken by branches, thick brush and heavy snow. He needed three weeks hospitalization to recover from his injuries. RAF intelligence verified his story.

The famed Scythe Tree near Waterloo, New York, is a unique memorial to a young soldier of the Civil War. When the boy left for the front, he hung his scythe in the crotch of a Balm of Gilead poplar and asked that it be left there until he returned. He never did. The growing tree enveloped the scythe's blade, and today only six inches of it show, the National Geographic Society says.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Walking by 5th Avnue and 91st Street, I looked again at the veneral mansion of the late Andrew Carnegie and again was impressed. Here was a man who made his name a by-word in this country for wealth and generosity, after having a rags-to-riches career which was more exciting than most of the Horatio Alger stories. So it seemed appropriate to review his interesting life.

Born in Dunfermline, Scotland, in 1835, he came to this country 13 years later, the year when New York's first department store was built, when the Associated Press was organized and when John Jacob Astor died. Andrew became a telepgraph messenger at $2.50 a week and rejoiced when he got a 25 cent raise a year later. Fifteen years later he was making $50,000 a year, which in those Civil War days was a millionaire's salary. There was no holding him. He created the steel industry here, started big scale philanthrophy, wrote eight books and 80 articles in his busy lifetime.

Kings went to see Andrew Carnegie in his castle in Scotland, presidents and prime ministers became his friends. Mark Twain called him a "foxy, white-whiskered, cunning little fellow, with face lit up like a sacred fire and saying without words, 'Am I in heaven or it is only a dream?" He never became as showy as the Vanderbilts, Goulds, and Morgans, believed a wealthy man should live simply. But he did have tartan wallpaper in his 5th Avenue home, imported bagpipers and organists, had yachts, carriages and fine clothes. He had no religion to speak of but said that "On a Sunday morning when other people are at church, I like to float about in my swimming pool while a Highlander in all his regalia plays sacred music on his pipes."

Carnegie did not have much formal education, of course, and always missed it, in fact planned to go to Oxford some day and get a college degree. Most of his learning came from the ancient relics of Scotland and from the poems of Robert Burns. His earliest goal was a carriage for his parents — and the time came when he proudly took his mother at the head of a whole carriage procession over most of England. What were his great qualities? He made a practice of taking the initiative, of doing the extraordinary things which would convince those above him — and at the end, no one was really above him —that he was worthy of encouragement. In 1867 he moved with his mother to the St. Nicholas Hotel on lower Broadway here in order to be closer to customers for his rails, bridges, cars and locomotives. Here he met George Pullman who had been competing with him in selling railroad sleeping cars, and told him that their competition was foolish. They should unite. What would be the name of the new company, Pullman asked. "The Pullman Palace Car Company," Carnegie astutely replied. That is how the Pullman Company was formed.

At 35, Carnegie decided to retire and loaf in Europe. But he never got around to it. His steel operations, centered in Pennsylvania, became larger and larger, and he did not retire until he was 65, and even then remained quite active. His name became a Pittsburgh legend. At the turn of the century when he was making $25,000,00 a year, he sold out to J. P. Morgan for a half a billion dollars, and the U. S. Steel Company was created. From then on, he spent his life giving away his money ,and the public libraries bearing is name in many U. S. towns bear splendid testimony to his generosity. His theory: "Put all your eggs in one basket—then watch that basket."

WHY?

Is Thirteen Considered Unlucky?

Nomadic man disliked the number thirteen because is was impossible to divide; he couldn't separate evenly a flock of thirteen sheep, goats or oxen. Twelve was a nice number of possessions to have, thirteen made him unhappy. What made him unhappy he later deemed unlucky, when he came to think there was magic in numbers.

Our own fear of thirteen goes back to the Last Supper. When Christ sat down to eat with his diciples, they numbered thirteen —until Judas left the table to betray him.

SENATOR SAM ERVIN ☆ SAYS ☆

WASHINGTON — It has been estimated that organized crime has an annual "take" of $30 billion in this country.

Crime Threat

The Senate Rackets Committee has been probing to determine the extent of infiltration by the Mafia into organized labor and management in the United States. As one who has heard the testimony before our committee I am compelled to say that organized crime and the underworld syndicates have a virtual stranglehold on some areas of the country, chiefly the larger cities. This poses a severe threat to society and the operation of legitimate unions and businesses. The purpose of the inquiry is to determine what legislation is needed.

From the enormous amount of money made in narcotics and other illegal activities these gangs accumulate large sums of money which they use to buy into businesses to be used as fronts. They seek control of unions for the same purpose.

The Mafia

In dealing with the Mafia, a secret organization of hoodlums and gangsters which originated in Sicily, our committee has been striking at the bedrock of organized crime. Although other investigations by the Congress have been more in the headlines I believe our work is making a significant contribution to the elimination of the criminal element in unions and management. It is encouraging that the Department of Justice is now beginning to move to arrest some of the hoodlums and gangsters that appeared before our committee.

But the problem must be placed on the doorsteps of the citizens of local communities and their officials. Unless the people are willing to demand that their authorities charged with the elimination of crime take action there can be no effective containment of the serious problem.

The Mafia is one of the most difficult organizations to handle because it is a closed criminal gang of Sicilians. It apparently divides the country into regions for its operations. Evidence shows that the gang has invaded some labor unions and some businesses and operated with corrupt officials in instances by bribes, payoffs, extortion, murder, intimidation, and the whole scale of crime. The Mafia, according to testimony before our committee, had a convention in New York State last November. The list of gangsters and hoodlums in attendance constituted the top hierarchy of crime in this country.

Senator McClellan has stuck to the task of uprooting evidence on these activities as they relate to the work of the committee in the lamor or management field.

Lot anyone who minimizes the dangers of organized crime in this country study the record of the testimony before our committee. The threat is magnified by the evidence that serious inroads are being made in some labor unions and in some corporations and businesses, control of which on a considerable scale could bring the country to the mercy of the Mafia and other criminal syndicates.

KIDD BREWER'S Raleigh Roundup

OPTIMISM . . . Talk to a few business leaders in Raleigh and you can soon get an idea of the way things are going generally in the 40 counties lying in Eastern North Carolina. Reason for this is that your Capital City has become right much of a distribution center for the oceanward area of the State.

Raleigh salesmen roam the eastern counties.

For the past two weeks they have been returning to home base with reports of a general look-up in business. "Everybody is feeling better," they say.

There are several reasons for the optimism. One is that crops, slow in starting because of a wet and cold spring, are looking very, very good. Rainfall has been heavy; but there has also been a lot of sunshine.

Many stores contacted in the Piedmont section recently in an informal survey reported sales up with this season last year. The small merchant seems to be having it toughest. In general, the smaller service stations and appliance stores are a little "pale around the gills." In a lot of instances merely new sales ideas are needed.

Within the past few weeks automobile sales have taken on new life. Dealers are working harder. There seems to be more solid selling, fewer "deals," less "wheling and dealing."

There is less unemployment. Claims, according to the Employment Security Commission, have dropped consistenly in recent weeks.

And, also, the tobacco season is just around the corner. We are still a July - December state. They are our golden months. The mere fact that we are approaching the money season with good prospects gives new hope, new strength, and, therefore, better business.

SEE IN AUGUST . . . It is an interesting — and rather disgusting — fact that scores of North Carolinians now touring Europe have not taken the time to see the Old North State.

That is one reason, undoubtedly, that August has been dubbed by the N. C. Travel Council as "See North Carolina" month.

The State Merchants Association, for example, is sending out 7,500 pieces of mail with special instructions to the membership on how they can assist with the project — what it can mean to them —and how the State is prepared to help.

Libraries are cooperating with special displays.

Not enough Western North Carolina people know about our North Carolina coast. They go to Myrtle Beach, Crescent Beach, Windy Hill — down in South Carolina all — because these bits of ocean sand happen to be a few miles closed to their doorsteps. Bad business!

And not enough of our flatlanders go to our mountains. Where do they go on vacation, To the ocean. Why? Because it is closer to them than the mountains and because their parents and grandparents went to the ocean on vacation. Ancestors went to the beach because they had no way to get to the mountains. But now — nowhere — is . . . very far.

For instance: down in the Ahoskie - Williamston - Elizabeth City area — when people die — they don't go to heaven. They go to Nags Head. But Wilmingtoner Hugh Morton owns mile - high Grandfather Mountain, Smart Hugh. If you live west of Greensboro, you should take your family in August on a litle trip to New Bern. There are waterfront streets there — with the old homes flush against the sidewalk — which remind you of paintings and pictures you have seen of English villages. I would say that now the Governor Tryon Hotel in New Bern is probably the finest in the State. If you live down east, see Old Salem. Delightful.

In August, forget Europe, S. C., Yosemite, etc. See North Carolina!

NOTES . . . State of N. C. will this year spend $375,000 to advertise this State to the other states —40 per cent of this goes to industrial adversing and 60 per cent to travel advertising . . .

. . . Two public relations jobs became available last week — through departure and death . . . in the N. C. Ports Authority at Wilmington and in the N. C. Agriculture Department . . .

. . . Pilots got so far behind with their flying time at Eastern N. C. bases because of wet, bad weather last spring and winter that they have been window-rattling all hours of the day and night in the New Bern - Havelock - Morehead City area — not to mention Goldsboro — for several weeks now. You can get them five miles up . . . Residents of that area vibrate within 500 yards of them . . . Worth a trip just to see these new things.

Watermelons in Raleigh stores cheapest in years . . . at this time of year . . . your pick for 49 cents.

North Carolina Methodists, which own the most valuable land in Raleigh — and pretty near the population and geographic center of Raleigh — are quietly giving some thought to selling or developing this property, which now encompasses the Methodist Orphanage . . . using the income for Good Works . . . and securing less expensive and more adaptable land, etc., outside the city limits . . . More on this as it develops . . . Some of the Methodist land lies just across St. Mary's Street from hustling - bustling, highly successful Cameron Village. Raleigh's modern community.

Want to go into the flag business? Because each of North Carolina's 3,000 schools (37,000 classrooms) will need a new one . . . with 49 stars. Think of the millions of U. S. flags made old-fashioned, out of date overnight through the addition of Alaska to the Union.

TEXT: "Hunt for some situation for your humanity." — Albert Schweitzer.

A celebrated movie star is reported to have visited a leper colony. Quite overcome by the work being done she commented to a nurse,

"You know, I wouldn't do what you're doing for a million dollars."

"I wouldn't either," the nurse replied.

We try to satisfy all human needs with dollars. Through our "service clubs" and churches it is easy to offer organized effort in relieving human suffering. Too many of us are glad to dismiss our obligations with a fiancial contribution.

Deep loneliness in others cannot be satisfied with money. There is a human need and yearning for our time and our friendliness. We should give is personally, often quietly and unobserved.

Albert Schweitzer suggests, "There may be a solitary or an embittered fellowman, an invalid or an inefficient person to whom you can be something . . . Who can enumerate the many ways in which that costly piece of fixed capital, a human being, can be employed? Do not be without some secondary work in which you give yourself as man to men. There is one marked out for you if you only will have it."

When wef orget ourselves we do things that are remembered.

New Control For Spider Mites (Red Spiders)

Spider mites have grown into a big problem for cotton growers. Sulfur — once a good remedy—now completed fails to stop some species. Sprays have worked, but since few farmers have spray equipment, new dusts promise control with one or two applications.

There are red spiders wherever cotton is grown in North Carolina. These pests formerly showed up only at spotty infestations in widely scattered locations and caused only moderate damage. Early control measures consisted of utilizing natural enemies, various cultural practices and chemicals which were effective only for light infestations.

Spides mites are adapted to a wide range of environmental conditions. They seem to do as well under the hot, dry, windy conditions as in the warm, wet, cloudy climate.

Although spider mites generally cause more trouble in dry weather, they sometimes multiply rapidly during periods of heavy rainfall. Complete defoliation of plants generally occurs 3 to 4 weeks after the first leaves begin to redden.

Several promising new chemicals were tested in 1956 and 1957. One application of one-half pound Trithian or one pound ethion per acre controlled spider mites better than three applications of parathian or Aramite. However, a second application of ethion sometimes may be needed for complete control.

Spider mites are likely to cut yields seriously in many fields this summer if they aren't checked. Briefly, a sound program for controlling spider mites on cotton consists of the three following points:

1. Use helpful cultural practices.
2. Use insecticides only when the insect population has built up to where it really threatens the crop.
3. Apply an effective miticide properly when cotton leaves first begin to redden at any time before the bolls mature. One application of Trithian or ethion dust may be sufficient.

The redeeming feature about building castles in the air is that they still remain untaxed.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

There Are No Flies On Sailors

The reason sailor trousers button across the front and down the side is that in days of sail, to save time, seamen slid down from the yards on ropes and stays. In doing so they would have ripped off their buttons, had their trousers fastened in front.

When, on June 12th, Admiral Burke announced Navy restoration of traditional trousers, related since 1948 by zippered type, he failed to mention their origin. This omission is herein corrected.

Holland Chaffin Retires From U. S. Naval Service

Has 21 Years Of Active Service And Rank Of Chief Radio Technician

By GORDON TOMLINSON

It was 7 a.m. when the radioman aboard the USS BAGLEY heard the general alarm. He immediatley reported to his General Quarters station, assuming it was a drill.

Looking out the porthole of the radio shack he saw the USS ARIZONA blow up. It was then he realized that is was no drill. The day was Dec. 7, 1951. The place was Pearl Harbor. The radioman was Holland Holton Chaffin of Mocksville.

This month, July, 1958, Holland H. Chaffin, Chief Communications Technician, retired from active duty after 21 years in the U. S. Navy. For the present his plans are undetermined, and he and his family are temporarily making their home in Mocksville with his mother, Mrs. T. N. Chaffin, on Depot Street.

Mr. Chaffin says he will never forget that fateful day of Dec. 7, 1951. Being in charge of the communications system aboard the BAGLEY he was kept busy through it all. Although the BAGLEY was not hit by torpedos or bombs during the infamous attack that day, she was under constant and continuous machine gun fire from enemy planes overhead. A dry dock immediately behind the BAGLEY was hit, along with other ships less than 100 yards away. Just as soon as the BAGLEY could get up steam it put out to sea.

Holland Chaffin was born on Dec. 27, 1919, in Mocksville, son of Mrs. Thomas N. Chaffin and the late Mr. Chaffin. He attended the Mocksville schools and graduated in May, 1037. The next month after graduating, June, 1937, he enlisted in the U. S. Navy as an Apprentice Seaman.

After completing his "boot" training at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Norfolk, Va. Chaffin reported on board the USS BAGLEY for duty He remained aboard this ship for the next six years. While attached to the BAGLEY, he was advanced from Seaman Second Class all the way up and including Chief Radioman, getting his "hat" on Feb. 1, 1943.

During 1937-38, the BAGLEY operated out of Norfolk, Va., making cruises in the Caribbean area until the Fall of 1938 when she changed homeport to San Diego, Cal., making the trip through the Panama Canal. In 1939, the BAGLEY returned to the East Coast to participate in the World Fair ceremonies of that year held in New York City.

The year of 1939 was also the

National Farm Safety Week Stresses Water Safety

"Keep a life preserver handy at every farm pond!"

This is the suggestion of C. W. Phillips, chairman of the board of supervisors of the Middle Yadkin Soil Conservation District of Davie County, as one means of preventing the increasing number of drownings on farms.

Drowning is now in third place on the list of fatal accidents on farms in North Carolina, Mr. Phillips pointed out, in commenting on Farm Safety Week, officiall proclaimed by President Eisenhower for July 20-26.

An excellent safety measure for farm ponds Mr. Phillips said, is to keep a "ring life preserver," with a long rope attached, hanging on a post in plain view at the water's edge. This fairly heavy type of life preserver can be thrown to a person in distress at some distance from the shore. For a large body of water, several of these may be needed at inervals around the shoreline.

Drownings caused by boating could be virtually eliminated by making it a rule never to allow anyone to go out in a boat unless he is wearing a jacket - type or similar life preserver, Mr. Phillips said.

Children, of course, should not be permitted around pools unless they are under the watchful eye of an adult. Even then, it is well for them always to wear a life preserver. It is also important for them to learn to swim through the Red Cross or at FFA or 4-H Camps, he emphasized.

Of course, drowning is only one of many kinds of fatal farm accidents, Mr. Phillips continued. It accounted for 12.8 per cent of such accidents in North Carolina, latest available figures show. Machinery was first, causing 27.8 per cent. and firearms were second, causing 13.2 per cent of the fatal accidents on farms in the state.

Other causes of fatal accidents in North Carolina according to these figures, included blows, 12.7 per cent; burns, 7.1 per cent; falls, 6.6 per cent; animals, 4.3 per cent; lightning, 3.8 per cent; electric current, 2 per cent and all other causes, 9.7 per cent, Mr. Phillips said.

Davie County Hospital Is Accredited For One Year

Commission Commends High Standards Of The Local Hospital

The Davie County Hospital has been accredited for one year.

A letter received on July 16th from th Joint Committee on Accreditation of Hospitals advised that the board had approved the accreditation of the Davie Hospital for a period of one year or until a subsequent survey is conducted. The survey of the local hospital was conducted on May 20, 1958, by T. Norlander, M.D., a field representative of the commission.

The commission commended Frank Ceruzzi, hospital administrator, for maintaining standards deserving of accreditation and "for his constant effort to improve the quality of patient care."

Accreditation means that the hospital voluntarily meets the high standards of patient care and services as approved by the five top national medical and hospital organizations. Standing behind the certificate of accreditation are: (1) The American College of Physicians; (2) The American College of Surgeons; (3) The American Hospital Association; (4) The American Medical Association; (5) The Canadian Medical Association.

A hospital is surveyed for accreditation on the following:

a. Physical plant: A safe and sound building with adequate space and facilities for every patient.

b. Good Facilities and Equipment: To diagnose and effectively treat patients' illnesses.

c. Special Hospital Services: To meet each patient's individual dict needs . . . drug room for storing, safeguarding, preparing and administering medicinco for the patient.

d. The Staff: A competent, qualified medical staff. This is one of the basic requirements for accreditation. Physicians granted the privilege of practicing on an accredited hospital staff meet the highest professional, legal, and ethical qualifications. Well trained nursing staff and adequate hospital personnel.

e. Administration . . . Organization. Responsible governing body who accept the specific legal and moral responsibilities for organizing the hospital and managing it efficiently. A trained administrator, skilled in hospital affairs, to direct day to day hospital activities and carry out hospital policies. Provisions that protect the patient must also be established, such as accurate, complete medical records and consultation between staff members.

"To you and your family . . . as patients . . . to physicians . . . and to your community . . . the seal of accreditation granted to a hospital is like the 'Sterling' mark on silver. It is a mark of quality in medical and hospital service. It is a symbol which guarantees that your hospital measures up to high standards of operation in every major respect," said Mr. Ceruzzi. "We are very proud that our hospital has achieved this distinction."

UNCLE DAVE FROM DAVIE Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The other day, while I was out checking my pasture fences, I got to thinking about that argument some Congressmen got in last summer about the typical farmer. I wasn't thinking too deep on the subject, in fact, I wasn't checking the pasture fences any too careful. My old lady was putting out the wash, and I learned a long time ago that it's a good time to check the pasture fences — when the old lady starts talking about gitting out the wash. But the Department of Agriculture said last summer that the average farmer has mice in ihs kitchen and rats in his barn. Some Congressmen took it up and one of them argued that it was a insult to the American farmer, and another Congressman argued that it was true, and that it only proved that the farmer needed more help and more relief.

It ain't exactly proper, I think, to say that the typical farmer has mice in his kitchen and rats in his barn anymore than it's proper to say that a certain banker who happens to be in the penitentiary is a typical banker. That's like saying that the editor of the Chicago Tribune is a typical editor. It may be true that a heap of farmers ain't got no more modern standards that I got out here, but I got more confidence in the American farmer than to say he ain't got no more ambition than I got. I ain't offering no apology fer my farm because it suits me, and if it don't, it ain't nothing fer Congress to worry about. But I think Congress would do a lot better just to keep giving the farmers more relief and quit talking about the mice in their kitchen and the rats in their barn. It's embarrasing fer us farmers to have all that stuff in the papers. Last summer when I was reading all that stuff in the papers, I felt like Ed Doolittle's wife felt the time company came and caught her with only two petticoats on.

Well, Mister Editor, by the time I had set on the creek bank fer a couple hour checking my fences and thinking about the typical farmer, I figured my old lady was through with the wash, so I went on home without solving the problem. I'm passing it along to you just as I left it. The next time your old lady gits the wash tub out, check your pasture fences and see what you can do with it.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

J. C. Charles Estate Property Case Is Settled By Compromise

Three Plaintiffs Are Awarded $10,000 Each

The ownership of certain personal property in the John C. Charles estate was settled last week by a compromise.

The defendants, J. W. Charles, administrator, and sisters, Mrs. Mary Fox, Mrs. Margarite Sanford and Mrs. Loiuse Campbell agreed to pay the three petitioners $10,000 each. The three petitioners were Mrs. Helen C. Carter, Mrs. Jane C. Barringer, and Mrs. Sarah C. Woodruff.

The cost of the court action will be equally chared by all seven. Jim W. Charles will pay the cost of administration and be liabable for all inheritance tax.

The hearing to determine ownership of the Charles property was conducted last week in the Davie County Courthouse by Lewis Alexander of Elkin. Mr. Alexander was appointed referee by Davie Clerk of Court, S. H. Chaffin.

The hearing grew out of an attempt by three sisters to have their brother removed as administrator of their father's estate.

The removal petition was filed in the Clerk of Court office nearly two years ago. Last March two of the cases involved in this matter were tried in civil court and resulted in a hung jury.

National Polio Foundation Plans Enlarged Program

An expanded program that will permit a scientific assault on major health problems of the nation was announced recently by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Basil O'Connor, president of the organization that made possible the Salk polio vaccine, outlined its broad new program of future attack on disease and disability at a press conference at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City.

"This is our concept for the future: The development of an organized voluntary force in the fields of medical research, patient care and professional education, flexible enough to meet new health problems as they arise, with specific goals initially," Mr. O'Connor said.

"The heart of the new program is research. Research will not be confined to a single disease but will attack, initially, at least five areas."

Mr. O'Connor said that the National Foundation, as it now will be known, would (1) carry on its winning fight against polio, (2) continue its history-making virus research program and (3) investigations of disorders of the central nervous system, and to these activities would add research and, in the near future, a patient aid program in (4) arthritis and (5) birth defects (congenital malformations).

Arthritis and birth defects are major health problems affecting millions of Americans and urgently in need of increased public attention and support, he asserted.

The expanded program will be financed, he said, through the traditional March of Dimes conducted each January since 1938 by volunteers in 3,100 chapters across the country.

"Mr. O'Connor made it clear that the enlarged program, while a natural outgrowth of work done in the course of finding a polio preventive and caring for polio victims, is a beginning program and that the National Foundation —by contributing its 20 years of broad experience in the field of health to the solution of other perplexing diseases of mankind— hopes to shorten the period within which these diseases may be solved.

It is planned to offer patient aid at first only to arthritis patients 18 years of age and to children suffering from malformations of the central nervous system, also through age 18, Mr. O'Connor said. Rheumatoid arthritis, the most serious of the rheumatic cripplers, annually affects an estimated 30,000 children and adolescents, of whom some 16,000 can be expected to seek treatment each year. It is planned to work primarily with this group in the beginning because the most good can be done for them and the most learned of benefit to all arthritis sufferers, he explained.

"Our objective in patient care is to continue the polio job until it it finished. We have a moral obligation to do this and the American people expect us to recognize this responsibility We shall begin patient aid in arthritis and birth defects, first, where it will do the most good and, second, on a scale commensurate with the public's willingness to finance it. To shape a broad program, much must be learned about precise numbers of patients, the number and quality of existing facilities and the availability of qualified personnel."

Mr. O'Connor stressed that no attempt will be made to duplicate the work of other voluntary agencies, although as scientific breakthroughs occur they will be pursued wherever they lead, with the general objective of improvment of man's health.

He said the patient aid program in the two new areas would eventually be larger than anything hitherto achieved in either field, and would ultimately surpass the polio patient aid program, largest ever conducted by a voluntary health agency on a national scale.

"As an organized force for medical research, patient care and professional education, we have chosen the broadest program of all. Through it, we hope that infantile paralysis one day may be considered only a fortunate beginning."

4c Postal Rate Effective Aug. 1

Postmaster W. T. Hendricks of Mocksville said today he expects plenty of stamps and postal cards to be on hand for sale Aug. 1, to meet new postage rates which become effective then.

Mr. Hendricks explained the Post Office Deparement has been issuing new stamps, stamped envelopes and postal cards to post offices for several weeks in anticipation of the new rate changes.

Mr. Hendricks pointed out that all mail deposited in the postoffice after closing time, 5:45 p.m. on July 31, would be required to have the new rate..

Large additional supplies of the regular 4c stamp, bearing the likeness of Abraham Lincoln, are being received here to meet the new first class letter rate of four cents an ounce. In addition, issues of special stamps and commemorative stamps will be available at the local post office in 4c denominations.

Adequate supplies also are expected in other stamps, cards and envelopes, including new 7c air mail stamps, replacing the 6c air mail stemps; 3c postal cards replacing the 2c cards; 5c air mail postal cards replacing the 4c air mail postal cards; and 4c and 7c stamped envelopes to be used in place of 3c and 6c stamped envelopes.

"Picture" post cards will require 3c stamps for surface transportation and 5c stamps for air transportation. Ample supplies of 3c and 5c stamps are expected to meet anticipated demand for these stamps.

Old supplies of 3 and 6c stamps, 2and 4c postal cards and 3 and 6c envelopes may be used after Aug. 1, by adding an ordinary 1c stamps to these.

Beginning Aug. 1, 1958, and continuing through Oct. 31, 1958, the 5 cent short paid charge as applicable to unpaid and short paid mail dispatched for delivery to addressee is suspended. Suspension of the 5 cent charge for this period is for the purpose of giving mailers time to become familiar with the new postage rates, effective Aug. 1, 1958.

ELIMINATE MOSS FROM LAWN

Moss in a lawn indicates either lack of fertility, lime, sun, or air in thesoil o ra combination of all these things. If you have this trouble here is what to do:

First, lime the soil. If you haven't used lime in several years, use about 70 pounds per 1,000 square feet. Better still, have your soil tested and lime according to directions. Second, fertilize heavy, especially with nitrogen. Use about 20 pounds of 8-8-8 fertilizer per 1,000 square feet. Follow this in about 30 days with 5 pounds of nitrate of soda (or its equivalent in some other form of nitrogen). This Fall, repeat the 8-8-8 application. By next spring, the moss should be disappearing. If the moss still persists, add nitrogen as suggested above two or three time during the spring and summer. Third, prune the lower limbs from the trees or perhaps remove some of the trees to allow more sunlight to reach th ground.

POINTS FOR 4-H POULTRY CLUB MEMBERS

Do you want to win a blue ribbon at your 4-H pullet show and sale? If you do, then make sure all pullets you select are healthy, well developed, good weight, good condition, and laying or ready to lay their first egg in the next few days. The rule for a blue ribbon is 100 percent laying, good weight for bred and variety, and healthy condition in all pullets. Would you expect to receive the top grade on your school subject if you made a score of 80 to 90 when 95 to 100 was required for an A? If 75 to 85 per cent of the pullets you select are in the blue ribbon class and 15 to 25 per cent in the read or white class, your pen of pullets will not be in the top grade. Try to select pullets that are uniform in maturity. Make sure you bring good pullets to the show and sale and ones that you would like to take home if you were buying them.

Everyone that buys pullets wants them to be laying or ready to lay. They want the pullets to have bright, prominent reddish bay colored eyes, short beak, broad head, good body size with good fleshing and glossy plumage, and bright yellow shanks (yellow color fades out as birds lay). You should look over the pullets carefully to see if they measure up to the normal expectations. While you are looking over the pullets, check for lice and other parasites that may be on the birds. Buyers do not like to purchase lousy birds.

Pullets that are clean from head to toes will show best. Sweet oil, vaseline or mineral oil rubbed on the comb, wattles, beak, shank and toes will help bring out the true color and best appearance of your pullets. Do not get oil or vaseline on the feathers as they will collect dirt and cause a soiled appearance. In order to help your pullets stay clean and look their best, place shavings, straw, sawdust, hay, excelsior, etc., in the bottom of each coop or box you use to carry your pullets to the show. Bring along some tin cans for watering your pullets at show time.

Remember: Select good healthy pullets that are laying if you want to win a blue ribbon at your 4-H poultry show and sale. Feed, water and manage pullets well if you want good layers.

Local Food Bill Hits $3,208,000

Food was given top billing last year by residents of Davie County. More of the money they spent went for food and beverages than for any other commodity.

The facts and figures are revealed in a nationwide survey, made by the Standard Rate and Data Service, to determine the spending ability and the spending habits of people in all parts of the country.

Each community was examined, in this connection, as to its purchases of cars and other automotive equipment, of general merchandise, of apparel, and of drugs, as well as food.

In Davie County, last year, most local earnings found their way into the cash registers of the retail stores.

The chief emphasis, it was found, was on food, which took 32 cents of every dollar spent in the stores. This was more than was allotted for the purpose by families in most parts of the United States, 24 cents of the dollar. In the State of North Carolina the average was 23 cents.

The actual size of the local food market is indicated by the total amount spent. Food purchases in the year, in the meat markets, grocery sores, bakeries, delicatessens and such, hit $3,208,000.

This was equivalent to $760 per household, if spread equally among the local population.

It is exclusive of the amount spent in restaurants and in other places serving food and beverages for consumption on the premises.

This ability to indulge in food to a greater extent is one sign of the trend toward more luxurious living. I was made possible by better incomes during 1957.

To varying degrees, other retail stores also profited from the big spending done in the year. Those selling automotive equipment, such as cars, motorcycles and farm machinery, had a sales volume of $2,099,000. This was equal to 21 cents of the retail dollar.

General merchandise outlets, including department stores and variety shops, accounted for $896,000, or 9 cents.

Apparel stores sales came to $149,000, equal to over one cent.

Drug stores had a $393,00 volume, or 4 cents.

Tobacco Allotments

There is no other tobacco growing area that has as much tobacco in the soil bank as the Winston-Salem area. The average total for the counties in the area is approximately four percent above the amount placed in the bank in 1957.

Why so much? There is but one answer to this question and that is the tobacco growers have been reduced in acreage to the point that they just cannot afford to plant the small acreage left. It takes at least 2½ acres to keep a man busy. Any less sends him off looking for work and if he is at all successful in finding a job, he makes no further effort to grow the small allotment he has for tobacco.

Men associated with tobacco and should know, say that the present situation could be corrected by raising the small allotments to a minimum of three acres and restoring to the original tobacco growing sections something they have lost by no fault of their own. They point out that the undesirable types now in storage in this area will not produce any volume. However, the tobacco growers in this area are having to pay the same penalty that the guilty are paying.

The tobacco growers of this area should be given some relief. This year Davie has 26.3 per cent of its tobacco allotment in the soil bank, most of which falls into the category of small allotments.

Our Tin Cans!

Fighting shoulder to shoulder with General Sam Houston for the freedom of Texas was Gail Borden, crusading editor of the Telegraph and Texas Register, and who was destined to wider fame as "the world's milkman."

Editor Borden's paper became known as the "Voice of the Texas Revolution," and was, in fact, the spokesman for the Republic of Texas. However, with the battle for freedom won, Gail Borden enlisted in the age-old fight against starvation and malnutrition.

Forty - niners, setting out from Texas for the California gold fields were dying like flies in the desert because of their inability to carry needed food supplies. Through long experimentation, Borden developed a high nutritious extract of Texas beef which he thickened with flour to make what he called a "meat biscuit." It saw the gold prospectors through their perilous journey, was taken to the Arctic by a famous explorer, and was sent to Florence Nightingale for use in the Crimea. The London Fair of 1851 gave Borden a gold medal, but the venture failed after the U. S. Army turned the biscuit down.

On his stormy voyage home from London, crying infants, hungry for milk they couldn't get, presented the greatest challenge of his crusading life. He set out to find a way to preserve milk so that babies, anywhere in the world, could have what they needed. In the face of debt and discouragement, Borden continued his experiments at condensing milk and protecting it from air-borne contamination so it would keep indefinitely. In 1853 he applied for patents, but it was three years later that they were finally granted.

It is encouraging, we hope, to be able to report that Gail Borden himself finally prospered. At the age of .60 his income soared from less than nothing to over $100,000 a year! More important, however, is the impetus that Borden gave to he "tin" can, and the example he set for thousands of other experimenters to follow.

During this year of 1958, Americans will open some 42 billion cans . . . containing more than 2,200 different items. These range from food products to all sorts of liquid detergents and air deodorizers for the housewife. From drinking water to canned motorcycles for our defense forces. From canned tennis balls to canned Geiger counters for outdoor types. Also in cans are to be found books, bread, bicycles, alarm clocks, and other items.

Today, in the plants of the 47 members of the Can Manufacturers Institute, machinery urning out up to 500 cans per minute will provide protection and convenience for 95 per cent of our salmon; 75 per cent of our tomatoes; 50 per cent of pears, peaches, etc., through the facilities of our 3,500 canneries.

And, in paying tribute to the revolution in nutrition and sanitation that protects us all today, we should not fail to "Remember The Alamo" and the "world milkman," a newspaperman by the name of Gail Borden.

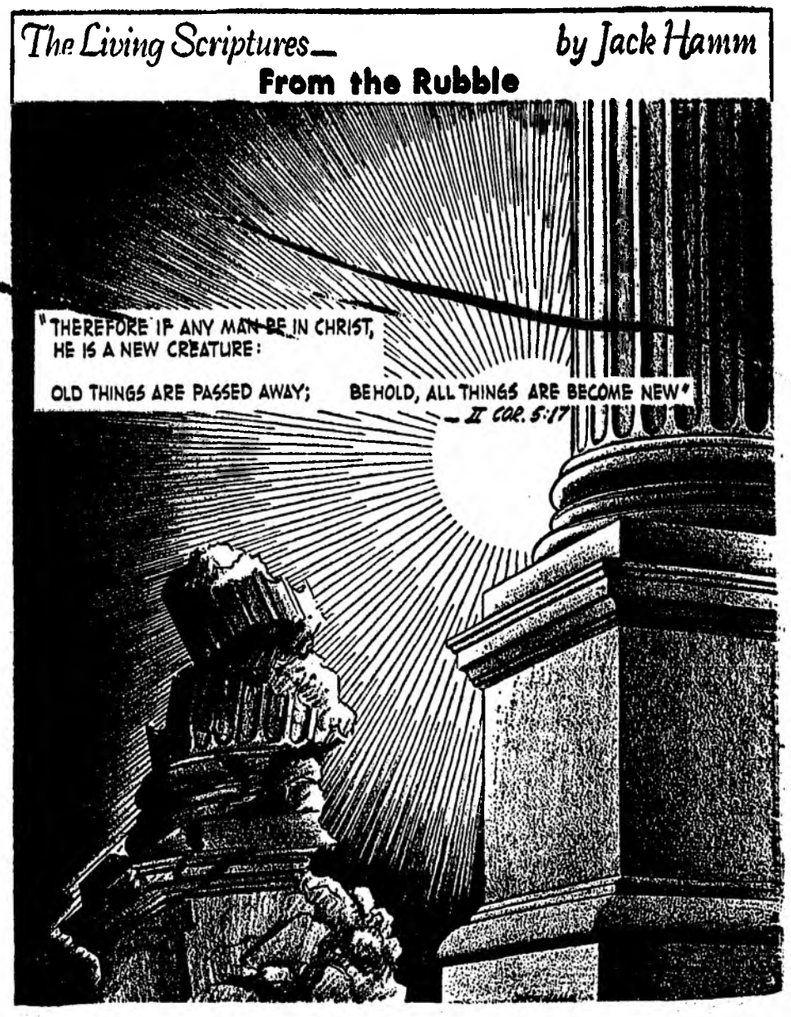
The average 14 year old boy today is five inches taller and 24 pounds heavier than the 14 year old of 75 years ago; and he is the size of a 16 year old of 25 years ago.

John o' Groat, who gave his name to the settlement of Scotland's far notheastern tip, was a man of enormous tact, the National Geographic Magazine says. He supposedly had seven sons with turbulent dispositions. So he built a house with eight doors and an octagonal table to give them all equal precedence.



SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

With all the comment about the problems of air and train travel, little is said about the bus lines. Safety records, fares and conveniences are compared by plane and rail enthusiasts, while the buses go right on carrying more people more cheaply in many instances than the other forms of transportation. I like riding on a bus, especially for short distances, and having often watched the neat, usually cheerful bus dirvers easly handle those big vehicles, I asked the Greyhound people here what the qualifications are for this job. The answer: two years of driving a 2 ton or larger truck—this does not mean the Army trucks, as the bus people don't regard this as good enough driving. Man should be of good character, fairly young, may be married, but he will be made to realize that he will be away from home a lot. Average length of service with this big company is about 20 years. This is a line of work still uninvaded by women — they are not even supposed to talk to those good-looking drivers when the bus is in motion.

A local company was having a stockholders' meeting and when some comment was made about business prospects, vocal persons all over the place started sounding off, all talking at the same time, with no one seeming to pay the slightest attention to the other. The chairman stood up, rapped with his gavel, still the chattering went on. But instad of getting angry, he wise-cracked into the microphone, "Can you hear me? Well I can surely hear you! Am so glad to find that all of you here are on such good speaking terms. Now ladies and gentlemen, please, let's keep this confusion orderly"

If one questions what goes on in the world, and wonders why it rains on the just as well as unjust, it might be well to recall that this was pointed out to us a long time ago in a book of the Bibles named Ecclesiastes: "I returned and saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither to the wise nor riches to men of understanding nor favor to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all"

Jack Dempsey is a sort of legend in the boxing world. His reputation has probably lasted longer than any other fighter in history, perhaps not so much for what he did but how he handled those other colorful fighters of his time. Jack has a restaurant here — or at least his name is on it, someone remarking lately, that it actually belonged to some one else. The former champion keeps clothes here and also in his apartment in California, because he travels so much back and forth. Dempsey is smart, too. He is not a well-educated man, but he knows enough — as some of them don't—to keep his mouth shut when something comes up which he knows nothing about.

Gotham Gatherings: Brooks Atkinson, famous drama critic of the New York Times, writes his play reviews standng up and with a pencil on a big pad of paper . . . the United Nations informs us that world production of tea reached a new record high last year, but the average Britisher still drinks on an average of 10 pounds of tea a year, while on an average ,an American drinks only seven - tenths of a pound yearly . ... places I would like to drop in on: Cool Meramac Caverns at Stanton, Mo., where Sigmund Spaeth, director of music, will not allow rock and roll . . . the refreshing coast of Maine, the beaches and lakes of New York state, the pleasant farms of Pennsylvania, the inviting resorts of Maryland, the hispitable towns of Virginia and West Virginia, the picturesque places of Wisconsin, Indiana, and Texas, the mountains and valleys of North Carolina and Tennessee, the pleasantness of Georgia, Louisana, and Florida and the inviting reaches of Canada.

A man never notices the splinters on the ladder of success until he starts to slide down.

SENATOR SAM ERVIN SAYS

WASHINGTON — Events of recent days have again alarmed the world over the danger of war.

Middle East

President Eisenhower, having sent United States Marines into Lebanon, has exercised his authority under the Middle East Doctrine.

I did not vote for the Eisenhower Middle East Doctrine resolution when it was debated in the Senate in early 1957. But the world condition now forces us to look ahead to see what can be done to bring stability out of chaos and to prevent war. As a member of Congress I shall insist that everything be done to protect our troops and to support our activity here, alhough I am disappointed at the tragic foreign policy that has permitted these unfortunate times.

Opposed Doctrine

On Feb. 20, 1957, I spoke in the United States Senate against the Eisenhower Middle East Doctrine resolution. My remarks included the following:

"The truth is, Mr. President, that the testimony offered in support of the resolution makes it so plain that he who runs may read and not err in so doing, that this is a resolution advocated by the Secretary of State for making the United States a policeman for the countries of the Middle East. We have had in our foreign policy in that area appeasement. We have had in our foreign policy in that area foreign aid. This resolution would not, on the one hand, put an end to appeasement, or on the other hand, accomplish anything worthwhile in the foreign aid field that is not authorized by acts of Congress which appropriated approximately $750 million for use in this area of the world during the present fiscal year."

I pointed out that the Eisenhower - Dulles foreign policy had permitted Nasser to seize the Suez Canal in violation of an agreement. I stated that the British had been pressured into removing their troops which amounted to appeasement of Nasser, leaving the Suer Canal defenseless and that 13 days later Nasser moved in.

Arab Nationalism

The rise of militant nationalism in the Arab countries, led by Egypt's Nasser, will not be easy to control. It is virtually impossible to make reasonable decisions due to the bitterness in the area. The Middle East Doctrine failed to encompass this Arab nationalism. Instead it stressed the dangers of attack from the outside by international communism.

As a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee I asked Secretary Dulles, back in 1957, when he appeared before a joint meeting of the Armed Services and Forign Relations Committees, why the United States did not join the Baghdad Pact. He said that it would involve us in Arab politics.

My response at that time was "that if the United States is going to attempt to maintain the status quo in the countries of the Middle East insofar as their present governments are concerned, Uncle Sam will be sticking his nose into Arab politics with a vengeance."

The serious turn of events now vividly demonstrates that we are head over heels in Arab politics.

KIDD BREWER'S Raleigh Roundup

LOT OF LAW . . . Except in fewer than a dozen very close counties, we now know a full six months in advance of its convening the personnel of the 1959 Legislature.

So, you don't have to wait in North Carolina until after the formalities of a general election in November to talk cold turkey with the men who will be in Raleigh next year representing you.

And, now is the time to begin discussing important issues with your legislator — not later, when he will have little time for talk.

For instance, if you don't want new State taxes — if you don't feel you can pay three per cent more for your food, as illustration —say so now. Don't wait until next February when budgeteers may decide that is the only way to "keep our schools going."

Oh, the tricks that have been pulled in North Carolina politics within the past 25 years under the guise of "improving our school system." Another one is said to be in preparation. Watch for it.

In looking over the list of men who will compose the 1959 Legislature — of men and women, rather — we find that about 70 are attorneys. When you realize that we have a total of only 170 people in the General Assembly — 120 in the House and 50 in the State Senate — you can see how attorneys dominate the scene.

In the 1957 Legislature, the next largest number was listed occupationally as "farmers." Most of them were of the absentee variety.

FARMERS, TOO . . . Among those listed as farmers last time was the erudite, smooth, and very urban J. Spencer Bell, who recently won out in the Nellie-bar-the-door fracas in Mecklenburg County. Senator Bell also classed himself as an attorney. He seems to be more of the latter.

Roy Rowe of Burgaw, threare owner, also put himself down as a farmer. But he looks more like an old fading matinee idol than like a farmer — and is one of the most popular men ever to serve in the State Senate.

CAVITY . . . For a long while —for five regular terms to be exact — we had one dentist in the Legislature. That was Dr. Paul E. Jones of Farmville. Every body will miss this friendly, easy manner and rare good judgment come next time. Dentistry will also lose its only representative.

COLUMBUS . . . In Columbus County, we lose Insurance Man Bill Floyd and pick up Attorney Ed Williameon. We also add another farmer from Columbus: Arthur Williamson in the Senate.

AND OTHERS . . . One of the real veterans of the House is a man of unusual occupation: F. L. Gobble of Forsyth County, operator of a barber and beauty school in Winston - Salem. White as snow headed Gobble has served in every session since first elected in 1940.

The only man in either branch a practicing pharmacist, John T. Henley of Cumberland — one of the authors of the law curbing "going out of business" sales — will be back. But his automobile dealer partner from Fayetteville, Wilson Yarbrough, was beaten.

Nevertheless, N. C. Automobile Dealers Association President Joe A. Watkins of Oxford is returning as representative from Granville County. He recently announced new offices of his orgaization announced in this column about six weeks ago. He is an outgoing legislator.

Although North Carolina regards itself as one of the most "industrious" states of the South, we only had five manufacturers in the 1957 Legislature and lost one of them: W. W. Wall of Marion, beaton in an attempt to return! Most outstanding manufacturer in the Legislature is H. Clyde Philpott, Governor Hodges faithful friend of Lexington.

PLANTER . . . From away up in Yancey County came to the House for the first time last year one Hanlon Holcombs, Democrat and proud of it. His business is in Burnsville.

If nothing happens — in that November tussle, this is — he will be returning.

Holcombs does not list himself as a farmer. He is merely a planter — and the only man on either side of the Legislature listing himself simply as Undertaker.

He finished at the Gupton-Jones School of Embalming, class of 1935, is an elder in the Presbyterian Church, is a veteran of World War II.

NOTES . . . On July 4 here in Raleigh, approximately 15,000 people saw an automobile race and fewer than 1,500 a double-header baseball game . . .

U. S. Senator Everett Jordan will be principal speaker at a banquet in his honor being given by the Board of Didectors, N. C. Merchants Association, at Sedgefield on the evening or August 21.

Did you notice the other day the newspaper account of Miss North Carol Liner becoming married to John Wayne Martin? Miss Liner was from Hillsboro, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Liner . . . A pity, really, to give up that name. Mrs. Martin is a graduate of the School of Dental Hygiene at the University of North Carolina. Her husband is a senior at the Dental School, UNC.

Which reminds us that we seem to remember knowing a lady who lived in the Wilkes County area many years ago named Ophelia Foote . . . and it may just be she was glad to get married away from that one . . . although the Foote's are a noutstanding family in Northwestern N. C.

Glad to see Andy Griffith plugging for a music camp at Manteo . . . a wonderful place for it . . . or anything else . . . and you should have seen Raleigh Mayor W. E. Enloe, threatre man, blush at the premiere here recently when Andy from the stage suggested maybe . . . perhaps . . . the "tak" from that evening's show . . . house packed . . . could go toward Manteo Music Camp!

TEXT: "Sticks and stones are thrown only at fruit-bearing trees" —Forbes.

A story is told of Paderewski when he stayed at a resort hotel for some time. The great pianist remonstrated with the manager about the piano. It needed tuning.

"The piano sounds real good to me," said the hotel man.

"Good?" Paderewski said, "Why there are three bass notes that don't play at all."

"Yeh," jeered the hotel man, "and if you was any kind of a piano player you'd know how to skip them."

How do you take criticism? You get it. We all do. It is how we accept what our critics say that determines how big we are. Some criticism is the result of jealousy. It is given to hurt and belittle us. Other criticism is friendly and sincere. It is given to help.

When we are earnestly doing our best, it is a shocking jolt to be criticized. Naturally, we resent it. Yet to be fair to ourselves, we should weigh all criticism carefully. Then, if it is unfair and untrue, forget it. However, if there is any truth in it we should resolve to improve. Don't resent constructive criticism. Make it serve you. You'll be a bigger and a better person because of it.

WHY?

Is Man's Dress Simpler Than Woman's?

Early man wore necklaces, bracelets, charms, feathers, and as much costume elabaration as he could contrive. He thought to imitate the gaudier plumage of male birds, the furred splendor of male animals in contrast with female in nature.

When he learned he could fight, hunt, fish, run and climb better without fripperies in garb, he transferred gawds and furbelows to his women to prove he was a wealthy fellow, could afford them anyway. Women's clothng became the more elaborate through man's vanity.

New Provisions On Tobacco Allotments

Production and sale of harvested "suckers" from a farm tobacco acreage allotment will hereafter result in a reduction of the tobacco allotment the following year.

The new provisions are included in an amendment to the law governing tobacco acreage allotments and marketing quotas recently passed by Congress and approved by the President.

The law provides that if more than one crop of tobacco is grown from the same plants or different plants on the same acreage in one year, the tobacco allotment for the farm will be decreased.

The decrease in the farm allotment will be equal to the acreage from which two crops of tobacco are grown. Previously, two crops of tobacco from the same acreage in one year had no effect on the farm tobacco allotment the following year.

These new provisions go into effect beginning with the harvesting of 1958 crops of tobacco, and the reduction applies to the next established allotment for the farm.

Tobacco Cards Required

Producers of flue-cured tobacco must bring their marketing cards to the warehouse with every load of tobacco they sell if they expect the tobacco to be identified as "acceptable" to the buyer. The reason for this, according to H. D. Godfrey, State Administrative Officer for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee, is that the marketing card will identify the tobacco to the warehouseman as "acceptable" or "discounted."

Under the variety discount program farmers who plant any amount of the tobaccos lacking in flavor and aroma (Coker 139, 140 or Dixie Bright 244) will be eligible for price support at one-half the regular support rate.

Farmers who plant some of the discounted varieties will receive a blue marketing card provided they did not plant in excess of their allotments. Farmers who planted in "excess" will, as heretofore, receive red marketing cards; however, if they only plant approved varieties the red cards will be stamped "acceptable varieties."

This marketing card identifying varieties grown must be presented on delivery to the warehouse. On the basis of the card presented the warehouseman will use regular basket tickets to identify baskets of tobacco "certified" as being from farms that produced none of the undesirable varieties. According to Godfrey, the warehousemen will use distinguishably different tickets to identify all baskets which are not so "certified."

This identification prior to sale will instill confidence in buyers, stimulate prices on the market, and protect the price support program.

"It's a choice between having his tobacco identified as "undesirable" or a trip back home if the farmer comes to the warehouse without his card," Godfrey said.

NORTH CAROLINA FACES A CHALLENGING FUTURE

And one of our areas undergoing dramatic development is the some 400 miles of the North Carolina coast—nearly all of which is bordered with sandy beaches. Improved highways and bridges continue to bring these areas closer to the many thousands to whom a beach vacation is a "must" every year. You can take your choice of whether its fishing, bathing, swimming, boating; lively or quiet—you name it—North Carolina has it.

Typical, too, of the entire beach areas is the native hospitality afforded all visitors, as evidenced by the "legal control" system of the sale of beer and ale that is obviously working in the best interests of all concerned.

Smith Grove Scouts Build Own Camp

Members of the Smith Grove Boy Scout Troop 502 setup camp last week at a site just off the Redland Road.

The scouts, 11 in number, cleared off a site situated on land belonging to Mrs. Paul McCullough and Virgil Smith. Six tents were pitched and the scouts roughed it from Wednesday through Friday.

The day for the scouts began at 7 a.m. and ended at 9 p.m. They did their own cooking over camp fires made of wood they chopped themselves. They took turns cooking and policing the area. They cooked such items as eggs and bacon, pork and beans, french fries, hamburgers, dried fruit, roasted corn, wieners, etc.

The scouts had a fresh water spring, which they cleaned out and built a spring box. They used the spring box in which to keep their meat, butter, milk, etc.

The scouts also built a bridge over a branch to their camp site and built a table from limbs they cut from trees.

At the encampment, three scouts passed off their cooking merit badges and four worked on their first class avhievements.

Through the day, the scouts played such ganies as capture the flag, and swung on a vine.

Lawrence West is scoutmaster of Troop 502, and Joe Helsabeck is the assistant. Darwin Allen stayed with the boys at camp.

Scouts at the camp were as follows:

Jack Paige, Terry Mullis, Raymond Howard, Gary Smith, Eldridge Smith, Spurgeon Goss, Johnny Allen, Chester West, Fletcher Ferebee, Larry Barnahrdt, and John Paige.

Softball

The Methodist and Firestone softball teams tied for first place in the regular season which ended last week. Each team had a record of 10 wins and 2 losses. Heffner's was in third place with a 9-5 record and Heritage was fourth with a 6-6 record.

Car And Truck In Collision Last Week

A 1938 Chevrolet Sports Coupe was demolished last Thursday in a collision at the underpass on Highway 64, just inside Mocksville.

Mocksville Policeman C. R. Plowman said that the sports coupe, being driven by Albert E. Howell, 53, of Spencer, turned off my mistake on Hy. 64. Realizing his mistake, he pulled into Pine Street Extension and backed out into Highway 64, turning around. A truck operated by Hubert Herman Pitts, 31, of Hickory, came under the underpass, applied brakes, slid 100 feet, and cut to the right to avoid hitting the car. The back end of the truck struck the back end of the car, turning the car around into the truck.

Mrs. Nell Odle, 45, a passenger in the Howell car, suffered injuries to the knee and head and was taken to the Davie County Hospital.

The car was a total loss. Damage to the truck was estimated at $250.

Howell was charged with failing to yield right of way. Pitts was charged with following too close.

Farmington Medical Center, Inc., To Erect Building For Doctors

Mrs. W. E. Kennen Donates Lot For Modern Building

Plans were announced last week by the Pino Grange of the formation of an organization to be known as the "Farmington Medical Center, Inc." This organization will be incorporated under the laws of North Carolina with authorized capital stock of $100,000.

The purpose of this organization is to erect a medical building in the Farmington community and to secure a medical doctor and dentist to locate there and serve the area.

Mrs. Queen Bess Kennen of Farmington has given the organization a lot, just inside the town limits of Farmington, on which to construct the building. This lot has a 210 foot frontage on the paved road and is 210 feet deep. It is located across the road, just below the Farmington school.

Plans for the medical building have been drawn by W. Eugene James, former native of Farmington and at the present an engineer with the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

The medical building is to be of concrete block and brick construction, with cypress paneling, 55 ft 4 inches by 25 ft and 4 inches. The building will be heated and air conditioned with a modern unit.

The building will contain a waiting room, nurses' office, laboratory, two examining rooms, doctor's office, two rest rooms, closets, and a room to house the heating and air conditioning equipment.

The estimated cost of the building is between $12,00 to $15,000. This cost is expected to be absorbed through the sale of stock and donation of labor, time, and material.

Incorporators of the Farmington Medical Center, Inc., include Cecil Leagans, master of the Pino Grange; Miss Vada Johnson, James Essie, David Lounsbury, and Ray Harding. Mr. Lounsbury is chairman of the committee in charge of the project.

This is a project of the Pino Grange. It is being patterned somewhat after Windsors Cross Roads in Yadkin County. This community, smaller than Farmington, built a modern medical building and secured a medical doctor for their area few years ago. The State Medical Care Commission and Dr. Irvin Scherer of Windsors Cross Roads are lending assistance in the planning of the Farmington project.

David Lounsbury, committee chairman, pointed out that the Pino Grange had long recognized the need of locating a doctor in their area.

"At the present time we have no doctor located within a radius of 6 to 8 miles. In this radius are a number of communities needing to be served. Some of these in addition to Farmington, are Courtney, Huntsville, Smith Grove, Redland, Yadkin Valley, etc. We estimate that there are more than 2,000 people within a radius of four miles of the proposed medical center," said Mr. Lounsbury.

Mr. Lounsbury announced that work on the medical building will start just as soon as some of the funds can be raised. The building will be owned by the corporation and will be either leased or sold to the doctor locating there.

Brack Bailey Making Record In Canadian Semi-Pro Baseball

BRACK BAILEY

Brack Bailey of Advance is making quite a name for himself in his first year with the Granum White Sox of the Southern Alberta Semi-Pro League in Canada. Bailey plays right field for the Granum team which is currently in second place in the league standings, and is hitting .386, the second highest in the league.

He is leading the league in homeruns, with 8 and in stolen bases with 16.

Ted Neal, the Sports Editor of the "Granum Times," says that the considers the current records of Bailey quite a feat for a boy in his first year in the league. He points out that the league is pretty fast, and contains a majority of former pro players, many of Triple A calibre.

Bailey was also named to the league all-star team by the sports writers of the area.

"This is even more amazing since Bailey joined the Sox two weeks after league play began, due to his studies at Pfeiffer College," writes Neal.

CALVARY BAPTIST

There will be services at the Calvary Baptist Church, Sunday. Sunday School will be from 2 to 3:30, with preaching at 3 p.m.

UNCLE DAVE FROM DAVIE Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Last night my old lady sets down at the kitchen table and proceeds to give me the benefit of some of her cornfield and cotton-picking advice. It's a waste of time, she allows, fer me to always be worrying and complaining about Congress and them folks arguing in Washington. Fer instant, she says, folks has got to put with the cackle of the hen if they aim to git any eggs. I thought that was a pretty good one but I didn't let on I thought so. Give her a little encouragement and she'll be wanting to write this column instead of me.

She says this world is set in its ways and that nothing I complain or worry about is going to change it. According to her, the younger generation is going to the dogs and the older generation has done gone. Taxes, she informs we, ain't gonna be no more due next year than this, and onct you're delinquent what's a few more years. She figgers that if you ain't got no cotton you won't have no boll weevils, and farmers ought to look on corn as being in their weeds instead of weeds being in their corn. She allows as how the country has been headed down hill ever since folks started wearing their Sunday clothes on week days. She says things ain't gonna git any better till folks start asking if somepun it right instead of asking if it's legal. That ain't gonna happen in our generation, she figgers, and I just as well quit complaining.

I just set there, Mister Editor, and let her rave. But all the time I was thinking that wimmen don't know don't hurt 'em, but it's a pain in the neck having to listen to 'em talk about it. And all the time she was talking I was thinking about a heap of things to complain about.

Fer instant, I just got be another degree from the College of Hard Knocks. That's the only kind of schooling I ever got but there ain't none finer fer a real education. I paid a $50 note I signed fer a feller three years ago, so you might, after a manner of speaking, call this a $50 degree I just got. I bought a organ onct fer my old lady at $300, ten dollars down and ten dollars a month. I bought it when I was a young man and afore I got it paid up I was too old to enjoy the music it made. That's where I got by first idea of eternity. And I got my first idea that a turnip will bleed from signing people's notes. They is a old saying that you can't git blood from a turnip, but if the turnip gits into the form of a note I nthe hands of a banker—it'll bleed, brother.

Well, I see by the papers where some scientist says the Big Dipper is coming apart. I'll pass that along to my old lady and see if she's got a answer fer that one.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

ASC Official Stresses Conservation Job

The conservation job that is so badly needed over the state at this time is to off-set soil deterioration that has been going on over a period of many years and in many cases we need to go further and rebuild the soil after these many years of misuse.

In making that statement today, H. V. Mangum of the State ASC Office said that this statement of what is needed pretty well spells out the objectives of the Agricultural Conservation Program. All of the practices set up in the State program are designed to either prevent the loss of top soil through wind or water erosion or to improve the water holding or storing capacity of the soil. According to Mangum, although these are the two chief purposes behind all ACP practices, an important by-product of many of these practices is the rebuilding of deteriorated land.

All the vegetative cover practices which make up a good part of the Agricultural Conservation Program provide for the application of lime and fertilizer in order to insure a good stand and good growth. These minerals when applied to farm land help improve the soil, and the organic matter returned to the soil through the roots of grasses or legume goes still farther in rebuilding depleted soils.

"The Agricultural Conservation Program," he said, "is one of the tools available to farmers to help them protect, preserve, and rebuild the soil on their farm to insure the continued well being of the farmer and the consumer."

Farmers with a conservation need should visit their local ASC office now and see if this need can't be met through the program.

Cotton Quota Penalty Set At 19.3 Cents

Farmers who grow "excess" cotton this year will be subject to a marketing quota penalty of 19.3 cents per pound, according to word received by the Davie County ASC Office. As required by law, the Department of Agriculture has set the penalty at 50 per cent of the parity price effective as of June 15.

Growers aproved marketing quotas for the 1958 crops of upland cotton in a referendum last Dec. 10. When cotton marketing quotas are in effect, ASC Committee Chairman Crawford explains, a farmer who does not comply with the cotton acreage allotment established for the kind of cotton grown on his farm is subject to a penalty on his farm marketing excess. The cotton crop from such a farm is also ineligible for price support.

Social Security Corner

By S. W. MILLER
Field Representative

It is not necessary for a wife to be living with an entitled husband in order to draw social security benefits. It is not necessary for a widow to have been living with an insured husband at the time of his death for her to get widow's benefits. Before Sept., 1957, in order for a wife to get benefits, she either had to be living with her husband or be receiving contributions from her husband and for a widow to draw benefits she must have been living with her husband at the time of his death or receiving contributions from him at the time of his death. Since Sept., 1957, this is no longer required. In order for a widow to be eligible for benefits on a deceased husband's wage record, it need only be established if she was his legal widow at the timeof his death. The same is true for a wife. You need to show only that you are the legal wife of the entitled wage earner and meet the proper age requirements to be eligible for wife's benefits under the Social Security law.

If you have any questions about this, please write or come in to the Social Security Office located at 105 Corriher Ave., Salisbury, N. C., or telephone us. Our telephone number is ME 3-4512.

What Every Veteran Should Know

W. J. Wilson, County Veterans' Service Officer for Davie County, states today that veterans that have active up to date on dependency status.

This is especially of importance if the veteran has a service-connected disability which might pay additional compensation on account of dependency. Birth records, death records, marriage records and divorce records should be submitted to Veterans Administration each time there is a change is status.

If a veteran with a 0% service connected condition should be required to undergo surgery for said condition, under current Veteran's Aministration regulations he would be entitled to compensation for temporary periods. This also includes benefits for dependents if the VA has official records in file. In case of death it is also advisable to have your marital status current, as it is possible your widow could not furnish necessary proof to clarify your previous marriage.

For additional information and for assistance in securing records, see your County Veterans Service Officer who is located in Lynn Haven Nursing Home, Mocksville, N. C., or Robert F. Currence, District Officer, N. C. Veterans Commission, 202 Frye Building, Hickory, N. C.

Hospital Accreditation

Last week it was announced that the Davie County Hospital had been accredited for a period of one year. But what does accreditation mean?

Accreditation means that you can have confidence in the hospital and here's why:

1. The hospital voluntarily meets a high standard of patient care.

2. It is consantly striving to improve it's services.

3. It always has the welfare of the patient at heart.

The certificate of accreditation awarded to a hospital is a guarantee against so-called "hit or miss" standards. It is evidence that medical and hospital people are on guard to assure that the hospital is well-run, well-organized, well-equipped, and well-staffed.

Five national medical and hospital organizations stand behind the certificate of accreditation. They are: The American College of Physicians; The American College of Surgeons; The American Hospital Association; the American Medical Association; and the Canadian Medical Association.

The unique feature of the accreditation program is that it is entirly voluntary. There is no law or regulation that says a hospital must seek accreditation. It is a decision that is voluntarily made by the individual hospital. However, because hospitals are conscientiously working to improve the quality of their service, more and more institutions are seeking to earn accreditation.

A hospital that has been surveyed and granted the certificate of accreditation gives you these assurances:

The physical plan is "a safe and sound" building, well constructed with adequate space and facilities for every patient. An accredited hospital is safe, with maximum precaution taken against fire and explosion, and equipped for emergency lighting in case of power failure.

Good facilities and equipment to diagnose and effectively treat patient's illnesses. This means complete x-ray and laboratory facilities to enable physicians and the hospital staff to perform the many types of tests and procedures common today.

Special Hospital Services: To meet patients' individual diet needs, the hospital has a dietary department, under strict supervision, in which foods are prepared under the most sanitary conditions. There is a drug room under competent supervision, with facilities for storing, safeguarding, preparing, and administering medicines for patients.

A competent, qualified medical staff. This is one of the basic requirements of the commission for accrediation, since the medical staff is responsible for the calibre of medical care given. Physicians granted the privilege of practicing on an accredited hospital staff meet the highest professional, legal and ethical qualifications. Also, a well-trained nursing staff and adequate hospital personnel to staff diagnostic and therapeutic facilities.

The Administration: Unless it is well organized, a hospital with fine facilities and a capable staff is not truly a good hospital. Accredited hospitals have a responsible governing body composed of individuals who accept the specific legal and moral responsibility for organizing the hospital and managing it efficiently. The duties, responsibilities and overall pattern for hospital organization and functions are clearly spelled out in the hospital constitution and by-laws. The governing body meets regularly, keeping in touch with hospital affairs, setting all hospital policies, and assuming the responsibility for the quality of patient care. It also has the responsobility for the appointment of a medical staff of qualified physicians and for hospital financing.

An accredited hospital also has a trained administrator, skilled in hospital affairs, to direct the day to day hospital activities and carry out the hospital policies.

Provisions that protect the patients: In addition to setting standards for the hospital physical plant, saff, and administration, the commission requires that certain procedures be followed in a hospital to assure the greatest possible protection as well as the best possible care for patients. This is done through accurate and complete medical records on every patient admitted and consultation between members of the medical staff.

Physicians, themselves, voluntarily seek to maintain the highest standards in medical care in the hospital by checking on their own work. The medical staff meets regularly and special physician committees review records of patients' cases and discuss their progress. All tissue removed in operation is carefuly examined by a pathologist and these findings are studied and reviewed at regular medical staff meetings. This serves to protect the patient.

The seal of accreditation granted to the Davie County Hospital is a mark of quality in medical and hospital service. It is a symbol which guarantees that the local hospital measures up to high standards of operation in every major respect. For this we should all be thankful and proud.

Fewer Public Employees Locally

There are fewer people on public payrolls in Davie County, in proportion to population, than are found in most counties in the State of Norh Carolina.

This fact is brought out in a new report by the Department of Commerce, based on its 1957 Census of Governments.

Placed under the spotlight in each county was the number of people employed by the county government itself and by its municipalities, townships, and special districts. Not included were Federal and State employees. School personnel are among those excluded.

The count shows a total of 41 people on public payrolls in Davie County. All of these were employed full-time.

The results show that, in terms of population, there is the equal of one full-time employee for every 395 local residents.

This was low in relation to the ratio in most other counties in the State of North Carolina. The average was one for every 165 people.

Local governments, already much larger than they once were, are continuing to expand. Personnel is being added steadily as more and more responsibilities are taken on by these governments, which are forced to cope with growing or shifting populations and with the continuous demand for more schools, roads and other services.

Most of the rise in public employment in the last five years, as a result, has occurred at the local level. Their rolls have expanded by 20 percent in contract to seven percent for the Federal government. Their payrolls, in the period, have gone up 44 percent.

In Davie County, last year, the non-school payrolls amounted to $7,800 per month, according to the survey. This expense was equal to an assessment on each local resident of 48 cents per month.

Throughout the rest of the State of North Carolina, it took $1.45 per capita to meet such payrolls.

The begonia owes its name to a French amateur botanist, Michel Begon, an administrator in the West Indies at the time of Louis XIV, the National Geographic Magazine says. The plant reached England in 1777; its culture in Belgium began in the middle of the 19th century. Today the begonia is to Belgium what the tulip is to the Netherlands. The bulk of Belgium's huge crop of begonia tubers is exported, mostly to the United States.

PROMISE . . . In a little statement he made a few days ago, Governor Luther Hodges hinted that while most North Carolina Governors in their final sessions of the Legislature have not gone after new programs and new ideas, he is determined to, in this, his third, and last go-round with the lawmakers.

He is pretty nearly correct in that assertion. Of course, Bill Umstead was sick during his first session and didn't live to see the second. That's why Luther Hodges is having three sessions — four, counting the special one two years ago this summer — instead of the normal two.

That a man who has gone trough three of these things could still call for more is a tribute to his physical and mental stamina.

Not only that, the Governor in a rather newless statement which nevertheless managed to make the headlins in dog days weather, promised last week that he is going to plump for new taxes.

"Have to have them," he said—or words to that effect—and now people are saying Governor Hodges might be chiefly remembered by hundreds of thousands of his fellow citizens as "the Governor who put the sales tax back on food."

HIGHWAYS OR VITTLES . . . With the Federal Government getting into highways business al tyhe time, you may see an attempt in this next Legislature to direct a few million dollars of our N. C. Highway Fund (gas and license taxes) over to the General Fund. To do this, the law must be changed . . . and many a legislator looks on the Highway Department like a Mohammedan bowing to Mecca. But as between highways or vittles—victuals, that is — a goodly number of our solons may lean to the latter.

CATCHING UP? . . . Some signs indicate that we may at last be catching up with our teacher shortage.

Within the past two, three weeks we have had an opportunity to talk with several principals and superintendents of schools— and they seem to think things are leveling off a little.

As a usual thing about this time of year the big Sunday papers have teachers wanted columns literally as long as your arm. But this summer they are down to normal size again—or about six to eight inches.

Also, and you may find it different in your bailiwick, teachers aren't complaining so much about the pay scale. Of course, there will always be some dissatisfaction along this line . . . for teachers are still underpaid when you low at it on a 12 month's basis.

School men we talk with say there is springup up a shortage of principals. They believe this stems from the fact that husband-wife teacher combinations would rather continue on this basis — and have a pretty fair choice of locations— than for the husband to go into the expenses and uncertainties and community hounding (too often) of school principaling.

THE CALL . . . We have been in charge of this column for about five years now—and in this capacity we have had a number of interesting items to reach our desk. But none more interesting than this:

These two middle- aged married daughters of this 85 year old mother were visiting her in her home, where she has lived by herself as a widow for about 25 years. Although the mother owns the home and has some little income to pay her housekeeper, medical bills of the past year have been heavy and so she has been hard-pressed financially. The maid's time was reduced to two days each week.

A few days ago the two daughters, both tight fistedly frugal, were visiting their mother. She had been telling them of her need for assistance from them. As they argued, the mother sat embarrassedly silent in a corner of the room.

And as they quarrelled about who was to do what, their mother thought of their girlhood, of how she had brought them up in a God-fearing home, of their marriages, to well to do successful men. Now it had come—in the lonesome, latter years — to this. The hissing, the bickering, the yelling grew louder.

Then the telephone rang. The old mother went to answer it.

"Why, yes, yes. Of course I do! Have known it since my childhood! It is one of my favorites, and the name of it is: How Firm A Foundation," said the mother as the daughters, quiet for one moment, listened.

This radio station had been making calls over a wide area to names in telephone directories, and as fate would have it, they called Mrs. ———. If she could tell them the name of the song, they would send her a check for $2,000.

The mother returned to the living room, told the daughters she would not be needing their help for some little while — and possibly never again— and they swiftly slithered out of the house and back to their mansions across town. How firm a foundation.

NOTES . . . United States Steel is publishing four - color photos, full-page, of Charlotte's new Wachovia Bank Building in most of the big, national magazines . . . Ten years ago this week North Carolina had over 800 cases of polio, led the Nation . . . February-June meetings of the Legislature have resulted in the installation of 40 ton air conditioners for the House and Senate: Cost: about $60,000. Will be ready by September.

Text: "To live is to change and to be perfect is to have changed often."—J. H. Newman.

The unhappy life of Casper Creak ended at age 46. His lonely widow finally got a dog and immediately became happy and content. A neighbor remarked,

"She's happy because nothing is changed. She's back to her old way of life. The dog is a perfect substitute for poor Casper. He's out all day, sleeps all evening and she feeds him out of cans."

Same of us are happy only when everything remains comfortably unchanged. If a change is forced on us, some will battle stubbornly against new ideas, new plans and new methods. Others crawl away in despair to grieve. Both attitudes are unintelligent. They make men's minds die before their time.

Of course, change is not always an improvement. It is said that sometimes an old setup is better than a new upset. But whether we like it or not, some change is inevitable. Without change there is no progress.

Unless we accept inevitable change and adapt ourselves to it, we will shrivel into useless relics of an age that has passed. There are no more pathetic, unhappy and often ridiculaus creatures than those who will not accept change.

Be adaptable. It is the highest form of intelligence.

WHY?

Do We Call It "ETIQUETTE?"

Etiquette in French means ticket or label. First use was as notices posted with orders of the day for army or court events.

Then persons invited to attend court functions were given tickets with rules of behavior on them, telling when and how to advance, curtsy, bow or retire in royal presence.

We borrowed the French term to describe proper behavior in all social or official life; and when we say "that's the ticket" meaning "that's right" we may be more correct that we thought.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Turn the timetable around, get that faraway look out of your eyes, the tide itself has turned, say local real estate people. They claim that the rush from the city to the country is being reversed, not only in New York but all over the country. A few years back, there was talk that if the trend from city to suburbs or country continued, we'd soon have a buch of ghost towns. Now it's the other way around. Huge apartment buildings are going up in all parts of this city and tenants are flocking to fill them—mainly from outside the municipal limits. Why? T he best I can determine is that New Yorkers just can't take it — that they're not realy for the joys of country life.

After asking some of those who are planning to move in this fall, I found myself with the following answers, most of which boil down to one word: Money. Owning your own home is great, it was pointed out—for the plumber, painter, electrician and carpenter, that is. That vine-covered cottage with the dream theme not only has to be built, but kept in repair. This proves a major headache for erstwhile cliff dwellers who are used to the landlord taking care of everything costing anything. Then it seems hard even to get a plumber, for instance, to do one the honor of stopping in to see what caused the geyser in the guest room. Recession? Why he's been too busy even to read about it.

Owning a home in the suburbs is great—that is if you work right across the street, it is reported. The average commuter spends two hours a day getting to and from work and struggling with the human tide bent on the same idea, meanwhile. His travel problem has become so great that he neglects some of his work in town just thinking about and being involved in it. Then if he so much as buys a saw and hammer to carry home on the train, other commuters stare at him as if he had robbed a hardware store. By the time he gets in to work of a morning and has finished reading his newspaer, has collar is sweated down. His eyes blurry, his neck red and his hat akimbo—he doesn't even look fit for work! At night he drags back on the long trail, not only a tired man but after a subway stretch, literally, a beaten one.

And this do it yourself stuff! Hooey- One commuter snorted at me. Mowing the lawn may be great exercise — but the resulting bills from the ohiropractor take some exertion, too. Then the lawn seems to need cutting right on the very best days for fishing, golfing or just lolling in front of the television. And those two trees. They're for the birds. Limbs fall off, poison ivy runs up their sides, kids fall from them and get broken bones. Then looking at some of the neighbors in their shorts, bikinis, chemise, etc. makes one newly - arrived suburbanite think of the wild-animal room at the museum, especially the very pudgy and lean animals. Main difference is, one is allowed to shoot the wild animals.

If playing janitor to a home takes up more time than playing father and husband, then this entertaining of all the city relatives and friends is, if possible, worse, I was told. The ivy-covered cottage turns into a boarding house and the owner becomes a landlord — only catch being, the is not paid for his trouble. Yet it is hard to turn down the poor-suffering city dwellers who are shrivelling from the heat—o rat least that is what they say. Yes, the tide has turned and these Noo Yawkers are going back home to the city noise and dirt and bustle. All of this made me wonder if the foregoing were reasons or excuses. Me? Oh I live in the suburbs.

SENATOR SAM ERVIN SAYS

WASHINGTON — The second session of the 85th Congress should be able to adjourn soon. If the world situation becames more tense, Congress can be called back on short notice.

The Record

The record of the second session is good. There have been bills enacted that I could not support, and some defeated or not acted upon that I supported.

We have had to deal with such pressing problems as defense and the recesion, along with a long list of other important matters, including the extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act.

Trade Bill Passed

The Senate made some improvements in the trade bill from its original provisions as sent down by the President. There were changes which were made by the Senate Finance Committee that I supported but were defeated by votes in the Senate.

It is my conviction that the value of any reciprocal trade act depends in large measure on the way it is administered. The President can do much good under the new act if he insists on the proper administration of its provisions in a manner to give more consideration than in the past to the damage some countries are doing to some of our domestic industries.

Although there are changes which I perferred that were not in the Bill, I voted for the extension of the act for a three year period, the provision that was enacted by the Senate. The House passed a bill to provide for a five year extension. Conferees are now working out differences between the two bills. My view is that three years in entirely sufficient, Congress ought not to extend the act beyond the terms of any present members of Congress or of the present Administration.

Amendment

The Senate approved an amendment to the bill which I offered to minimize the number of escape-clause proceedings. It provides that in conducting peril point proceedings, the Tariff Commission shall ascertain from the invoice the export price in a foreign country of an article scheduled for exportation to the United States. The Commission shall also ascertain the wholesale price at the end of the preceding calendar year on the domstic market in the United States of the competition article produced by American producers. The Tariff Commission in conducting these proceedings, is also required to estimate the annual amount of imports which can be made with respect to such articles without injury to domestic producers. The purpose of my amendment is to direct the Commission to get all the information available as a guide to help them reach a decision in the peril point proceedings.

The Majority and Minority Leaders, and Senator Byrd, Finance Committee Chairman, accepted the amendment and it was adopted by the Senate and is now in conference.

Two-Way Street

In order to be effective, reciprocal trade must have reciprocity. It is to be hoped that the administrators of the Act will insist that reciprocal trade is a two way street and that no great damage be done to the people of this country by a continuation of what I believe to be a perversion of the original idea, the Cordell Hull concept, of reciprocal trade.

Chicago was the first city with a skyscraper, says The World Book Encyclopedia. The Home Insurance Building, ten stories high, was built in 1883, and was the first structure to be called a skyscraper.
