Mocksville School Magazine Sale To Begin Friday

The annual magazine sale conducted by the Mocksville School will begin Friday, Sept. 8, and end on Monday, Sept. 18. The Look Magazine plan offers a variety of 120 different magazines from which the subscribers may choose.

The school's share of the profits is 25 per cent of the total sales. Last year the total sales amounted to $2651.31. This magazine sale is the only money raising project conducted annually by the school and the proceeds that the school realizes will go towards increasing the film strip library of the school.

The children will be instructed about salesmanship. "When they call on you, take time to listen to their sales talk and give them a chance to explain the program," urged Roy Marsh, principal of the school.

"It will take about ten weeks for the magazine to reach your home after the subscription is taken. Magazines make an excellent Christmas present that may be enjoyed throughout the year," continued Mr. Marsh.

The school faculty wants to encourage all parents and school patrons to provide good wholesome reading material for the children in each home. The best readers come from homes where the entire family reads.

Mr. Ellis cited recent area development legislation sponsored by the REA authority for the purpose of helping rural areas developed. He cited the establishment of processing plants for agriculture products in the areas where such products are grown and the elimination of shipping to distant processing plants and a ready means for rural development.

The annual meeting got underway around 10 a.m. Saturday with members from Davie, Yadkin, Iredell, Wilkes, Alexander and Rowan in attendance. R. B. Sanford, Jr., attorney for the co-op, presided.

J. C. Jones, manager of the co-op, told the members of the growth of the Davie Electric Membership Corporation and of the increasing demands being made on it to provide additional services. He said that the local co-op was adding around 300 new homes each year in the area it served.

He said that at the time of organization there were 62 members.

Car Loaded With Liquor Hits Truck

A 1953 model auto being driven without lights and loaded with 120 gallons of white liquor crashed into a truck last Tuesday night at the intersection of N.C. 801 and the Farmington Road about nine miles west of Mocksville.

State Highway Patrolman W. M. Anthony of Salisbury said the driver of the vehicle jumped out and ran and is being hunted.

Anthony said the car ran into a 1961 model truck being operated by R. Roy Redden, 54, of Mocksville, Route 3.

The officer reported Redden had stopped for the stop sign on the Farmington Road, then pulled across N.C. 801.

The auto, which was being driven east on N.C. 801, struck the rear of the truck. At the impact the operator rolled out and fled. Anthony said the white liquor was in gallon jars in the vehicle.

He estimated damages at $200 to the truck and $150 to the car. Redden was not hurt, and apparently the operator of the car was not injured.

Social Security In Davie County

Over two million people will get an increase in their monthly social security check beginning in September. This announcement was made today by James P. Temple, Manager of the Salisbury, N. C. Social Security Office. He said that as a result of these increases, the Social Security Administration will pay out an additional $170 million each year.

The disabled worker and the worker who waited until 65 to file will have their benefit raised to $40.00, if they have been receiving less than that amount. For the worker who elected to take a "reduced benefit" there will be a proportionate increase although they may still continue to receive less than $40.00.

There will be a 10 percent increase for most aged widows, and any person who is the sole beneficiary on an account will receive at least $40.00.

THE MURALS OF NORTH CAROLINA

Fourteen murals . . . depicting significant events in North Carolina's history . . . now adorn the wall in the assembly room of the Joseph Palmer Knapp Building, Institute of Government, University of North Carolina. These murals were painted by Francis Vandever Kugler.

The Institute of Government has made available to this newspaper copies of these murals along with the story of what they represent. Believing these to be of interest to our readers, we are presenting them in order . . . THE MURALS OF NORTH CAROLINA.

Mural Three

CHARLES II AND THE LORDS PROPRIETORS

The painting of King Charles and the Lords Proprietors was painted in England. The mural portrays King Charles, after his kingdom was restored to him, presenting a charter to Carolina to eight distinguished men who had aided him in coming to this throne; they became the Lords Proprietors of Carolina.

The scene is set in the banquet hall at Whitehall. In the painting, the moment for more serious business has arrived. The table has been cleared of dishes, the goblets filled, and the philosopher, John Locke, who later drew up an elaborate constitution for governing the Carolinas stands behind the King ready to hand him the charter for bestowal. The King has just risen to his feet, about to propose a toast, and the Lords are rising after him.

At the King's right hand sits his mistress, Barbara Villiers, Lady Cleveland, and at his left his wife, Catharine of Braganza. I have painted the Queen with a rather Sullen expression for she certainly had no reason to be happy. Barbara Villiers had originally been brought to the English court as the Queen's lady-in-waiting. As the mistress who was bearing a succession of children to the King, a feat which the Queen was unable to accomplish, she had acquired a position of great influence.

Ranged around the table are the eight Lords Proprietors. Next to the Queen, and still seated since he has not yet seen the King rise, is Edward Hyde, the Earl of Clarendon, who was Lord Chancellor and the King's first Minister. Standing next to Barbara Villiers, with his left hand on the back of a chair, is Anthony Ashley-Cooper, Chancellor of the Exchequer and member of the Special Council for Foreign Plantations, who later became the Earl of Shaftesbury. Standing at the far end of the table is Sir William Berkeley, at that time Governor of Virginia. The man to his right is Sir George Carteret, Privy Councillor, Treasurer of the Navy, and famous in the recently English Civil War. Across from the King, in the act of rising with his right hand on the back of a chair, is John Lord Berkeley, Privy Councillor, active in naval affairs, and brother of Sir William Berkeley. Further forward, with glass raised upward anticipating the King's toast and with his right hand on the table supporting his weight, is the Earl of Craven, an old soldier of the King and a man of great wealth. Prominent in the left foreground with his hand on the arm of thoughtful young woman partner, is Sir John Colleton, also a member of the Special Council for Foreign Plantations. Standing with his back to the spectator at the near end of the table and looking to the left at the couple who are turned away from the King is George Monk, Duke of Albemarle, Master of the King's Horse, and Captain General of all his forces. At the right of the Duke, a buxom lady reaches over to touch the shoulder of the young lady, trying to call her attention to the fact that the King has risen and is waiting for their attention.

In the mural Charles II holds one of his favorite spaniels. He was rarely seen without one and had been known to leave important affairs of state in concern over their welfare. The particular breed he developed is called by his name today.

THE PARAPLEGIC ASSOCIATION

A paraplegic is defined as a person with paralysis of the lower half of his body on both sides.

Several years ago a group of paraplegics in the state banded together and formed the North Carolina Paraplegic Association as a non-profit corporation with an aim and purpose to assist one another in the leading of a useful and normal life, insofar as possible. Members of this organization consists of paraplegics and other handicapped persons of the state.

The group gets together at various points throughout the state for regular meetings. Bulletins are sent out not only to the membership, but to other handicapped people throughout the state.

The value of the understanding of one paraplegic for the problems of another cannot be over estimated. Dr. Eben Alexander, neuro-surgeon at the Baptist Hospital and advisor to the group, says that since the formation of the North Carolina Paraplegic Association, hospital stay of paraplegics has been cut in half.

A very unique thing about this organization—although it is composed of supposedly handicapped persons—it is self-supporting. Not one time since it's origin has it called on the public for funds for support. It's projects and it's existence has been financed solely by the members themselves.

However, the group wishing to expand it's services to other handicapped persons throughout the state, are sponsoring a "Benefit Bridge" at the Masland Durable-leather Company on Saturday, September 9th at 8 p.m. Proceeds from this event will go to finance an expansion of Services of the organization such as sending of bulletins to handicapped persons throughout the state; the preparing of brochures for architects stressing the importance of designing buildings without steps so that they will be accessible to paraplegics; and the establishment of a summer camp for paraplegics to attend.

This newspaper urges the support by the people of this community of the event on September 9th and of the North Carolina Paraplegic Association in general—which is truly an example of purest form of initiative.

SOMEONE DOES CAUSE THEM!

An editorial in a recent issue of The Raleigh Times cited the fact that State Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold put his finger squarely on the answer to traffic safety problems when he announced that he had approved an increase of 18.7 per cent in auto liability insurance rates.

Commissioner Gold summed up the reason for the increase with: "Insurance rates are based primarily on claim costs resulting from accidents. Improved driving habits of all drivers is the only way to cut down on accidents and insurance costs".

The editorial goes on to say—"Most crashes between automobiles happened because some driver did some foolish thing. The driver who sent his car hurtling along the highway at 80 or 90 or 100 miles an hour didn't mean to kill anyone. Yet, when he lost control of that speeding car and it crashed into a tree or overturned and someone was killed, that death did not result from an accident. That thoughtless driver killed that person almost as deliberately as if he had done so by firing a rifle into a crowd on the street.

"The driver who passed on a hill or a blind curve didn't mean to kill anyone. Yet(when his car crashes head-on into another vehicle on that hill or that blind curve, that was no accident, it was a deliberate wreck, and the people killed in that wreck died not from an accident but because that driver deliberately took a chance on killing them—"

And the editorial concludes: "Until the courts of North Carolina habitually and uniformly mete out real tough punishment to those drivers who deliberately take the chances that kill others, we will continue to pay high liability insurance rates. Perhaps the financial shock of that 18.7 per cent rate increase may help to wake up the people of the State to what careless drivers are really costing us.

"At any rate, no one can blame Commissioner Gold for the increase. He simply did what he had to do—something all the people of the State of North Carolina had forced him to do."

HOW OLD IS TIME?

Probably older than one thinks. Modern geochronology, the science of telling time by nature's built-in clocks, is constantly pushing the history of the stars, the world, and man deeper into the past.

Less than four centuries have passed since Archbishop Ussher assigned the date of creation as 4004 B. C., the National Geographic Society recalls. The Irish Biblical chronologist was much more conservative, however, than the ancient Chaldeans. They allowed 473,000 years for the age of man and two million for the universe.

In recent years, scientists have been able to make more precise guesses about the origin of things through new techniques of studying the composition of stars, meteorites, earth's rocks, fossils, sediments, ancient wood, prehistoric skeletons, and tools. A prime technique is the measurement of radioactivity in certain elements.

The universe's birthday moved backward sharply in 1955 when astronomer of three observatories in California—Palomar, Mount Wilson, and Lick—reported a probable age of about 5.4 billion years.

Current estimates suggest that the universe is from 10 to 13 billion years old. A cluster of distant galaxies seems to be about 25 billion years old.

The earth's beginning is now dated by science as being between 3½ and 4½ billion years, though the rocks and minerals in its crust are somewhat younger. The oceans are believed to be less than 600 million years old.

Man is not nearly so old as the revolving sphere he inhabits but he, too, has been around awhile. Until 1959, paleontologists considered that Java Man and Peking Man were the earth's oldest residents, both 500,000 or so years.

Then Dr. L. S. B. Leakey reported the discovery in Tanganyika of an earlier man, who lived and hunted on the shores of a long-vanished lake there some 600,000 years back.

The British anthropologist, whose work is supported by National Geographic, has subsequently uncovered the remains of a child and an adult whom he believes to be much older than his previous find.

The child's remains included bones of hands and a foot, as well as the skull. Earlier, anthropologists had found no hand and foot parts of any human being before Neanderthal Man, who existed only 50,000 years ago.

By comparison, the earliest recognized inhabitants of North America—Folsom Man and Sandia Man in the United States, and Mexico's Tepeyan Man—go back merely 10,000 to 20,000 years.

But it was only yesterday when an eminent scientist scoffed at the notion that Indians' ancestors crossed the Bering Strait into the New World before the Christian Era. Now it has been shown that Stone Age Americans were living in Russell Cave, Alabama, at least 9,000 years ago.

This cavern, the earliest known home of man in the eastern United States, was explored by the Smithsonian Institution and National Geographic, and presented by The Geographic to the American people as a national archeological monument.

Even earth's oldest living things are more aged than scientists thought. The giant sequoias lost their place as the Methuselahs of the plant world when dendrochronologists learned that the gnarled, stunted bristlecone pines in California's White Mountains began thrusting roots into rocky crevices more than 4,000 years ago.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK
By NORTH CALLAHAN

One reason we are having so hard a time with the Soviet Union is that we don't work hard enough to keep up with her. Dwayne Orton, educational consultant to IBM says. For example, he points out, every Soviet representative to a foreign government, be he of high or low rank, knows the language of that government and can speak it well, while most of our men sent abroad can't say ten words in the language of the nation they are assigned to. In other words, we don't do our home work. If any Russian gets a sudden assignment to a strange country, and doesn't know its language, he works overtime, under orders, to learn the language. Orton is alarmed over our ineptness in this respect. As a sidelight, he mentioned to me that while in South America recently, he asked a group of businessmen there what American company they would most like to see emulated, and that all of them said, "Sears, Roebuck, because its personnel adjust themselves rapidly to the country to which they are assigned, and consequently make themselves most welcome."

Frank Fris, a civil engineer, has just returned from Mexico where he got acquainted with ex-President Cardenas, who, the engineer says, is still the most popular figure in that country. Cardenas wanted Fris to purchase for him an American suit of clothes, for which the ex-official apparently has a great fondness, and this will be done. "I hope," said Fris, "that this will help Cardenas to appreciate the United States more. Many people here now think that he leans too much toward the Communists. I rather doubt this, from what prominent Mexicans told me, but to clear up the confusion, Cardenas should speak out more plainly. Maybe this good suit of our clothes will 'cover the subject so well', that he will leave no doubt as to where he stands!"

A small stuffed gorilla in a local museum had begun to look shabby and the museum engaged a taxidermist to recondition the animal. The taxidermist took the gorilla to his shop, finishing the job the next evening. He put the gorilla in the back seat of his car and was returning it to the museum when a cop pulled him up for speeding. Writing out the ticket, the cop gave his usual lecture, then peered into the gloomy interior of the car. "Who's that in the back?" he asked. "Oh, her?" the taxidermist replied. "Why that's my wife." Slowly the cop began tearing up the ticket. "Drive on, fellow!" he said. "You've got trouble enough!"

Abe Martin, wholesome Indiana humorist, wrote about pioneer American women, about whom not enough tribute has been paid, saying the following: "It is related of the pioneer women that never once did they look back during their long, jolting, dusty, dangerous trip to the vast open spaces of the West. The past, with all its joys and comforts, warm homes, good eats, lay behind the brave square-jawed mothers, for they were riding toward a new day. They were following the weary, bewhiskered adventurous men they had promised to love, honor and obey. Hostile Indians lay ambushed in the mountain passes, rattlesnakes in the grass, coyotes and wolves were ever at hand. Scarcely anything has been written about the tired, round-shouldered mothers, many of them with five or six kids, who braved the hardships during the winning of the West. Not one-tenth enough has been written about the super-women who followed their menfolk into the great unknown and focused their eyes on the setting sun without even blinking their eyes."

Here and There: tourists who are avoiding Cuba because of the Castro regime are finding it more difficult every day to pick spots where there are no political disturbances—maybe this dates me but I like the singing of Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire and Elio Pinza—a local taoist—one of the last, thank goodness—reports that the most popular subject for his gruesome work is "Mother"—the Palace Theater here closed its doors on vaudeville, still mourned, thirty years ago—for the little old lady who owns everything but the kitchen sink, a local jewelry store offers a 14-carat bracelet charm in the shape of the kitchen sink, with two diamond "drops of water" falling from the faucet, for only $225.

TEXT: "Nothing is more valuable to a man than courtesy" - Terence.

"Mr. Moneybags, the banker, is not as bad as some people think," explained a borrower. "He is very courteous when you know him. Last week I went to borrow $1,000, and he received me most courteously."

"Did he lend you the money?" his friend asked.

"No. But he hesitated before he refused."

What has happened to courtesy? We know that courtesy is vital to a happy society, yet we show little of it. In fact, discourtesy appears to be the practice. Safety experts tell us that discourtesy on our highways accounts for most of the accidents. On the street, even in our homes, discourtesy seems to be the rule. In stores, in business, where business leaders acknowledge courtesy as the key to success, discourtesy is prevalent.

Perhaps there is a reason for this. We label courtesy and file it away. We know where it is, if we need it. However, courtesy dies from that treatment. Courtesy must be practiced, not merely identified, to stay alive. It is a personal attitude toward life which must be expressed.

Ask yourself when you last consciously made an outward display of courtesy. Perhaps your answer will explain what has happened to courtesy.

For The People

By BERNADETTE W. HOYLE
Public Information Officer
N. C. State Board of Public Welfare

[This is the first of a series explaining public welfare in North Carolina. One of the important phases of the public welfare program is aid to dependent children. This provides for a money payment for needy dependent children who have been deprived of parental care and support because of the death, physical or mental incapacity or continued absence from the home of one or both parents, whether natural, step, or adoptive.

The public welfare files of North Carolina are filled with case histories of thousands of children who have been helped toward responsible adulthood by aid to dependent children payments.

One of these cases is the story of Alice, who was born a spastic. Her feet and legs were affected by this spasticity and it was necessary for her to wear braces for support. Her mother died when the child was young. The father by reason of lack of skilled training was not equipped to earn sufficient money to give the child proper medical attention or support. After living in various situations, Alice was finally placed with an aunt and uncle. An aid to dependent children grant was made available for her. She received specialized treatment for her spastic condition at an orthopedic hospital and arrangements were made for her to attend school.

Although her academic record was poor, it was considered that she made excellent progress in social adjustment. Actually, irregular school attendance when she was young and the handicap of her spastic condition were responsible for her poor scholastic record.

Paradoxically, this girl—plain in appearance and physically handicapped—had a burning ambition to be a beautician. Through skilled caseworker services in the county department of public welfare she was helped to realize this ambition. She moved to the home of another aunt, who lived in a city which had a school of beauty culture. With the cooperation of the Vocational Rehabilitation counselor, she was helped with her expenses at the school. In addition, the operator of the school took an especial interest in the girl and helped her in making the necessary adjustments. At the same time, arrangements were made for her to receive psychiatric treatment and this helped Alice to resolve some of her deep-seated and mixed-up emotions.

According to law, aid to dependent children payments cease when a child reaches his 18th birthday. The day after Alice's payments ended—her birthday—she completed her course in beauty culture and received her certificate. She is now employed and is able to support herself, despite her handicap.

This is an example of how aid to dependent children helped a child become a responsible self-supporting adult. Besides the glow of personal satisfaction we feel for Alice and her success story, there is another side—the cold fact that Alice, who received the benefit of tax money, is now herself a taxpayer and a contributing member of the society that helped her.

New and Current from our Raleigh Bureau - 205 Clinton Rd.

A NEW LT. GOV.? . . . There was still only an outside chance it would happen — but this past week end there was a glimmer of hope in Raleigh that the people of the State would not have to go until January, 1965, without a Lt. Governor.

Students of law close to the Governor are reportedly boning over the State Constitution for a legal loophole which would permit the election of a Lt. Gov. in the General Elections of November 1962.

This would of course follow the nomination of a Democratic candidate in next May's regular Primary. You may be sure, also, that the GOP would have an opposition candidate for the November vote.

UNREST . . . There has been much unrest about this second vacancy to occur in our No. 2 position in North Carolina in less than ten years. Criticism has boiled because of the apparent failure of the State to have on hand sufficient legal machinery to elect a Lt. Governor.

Unfortunately, very little is said in our State Constitution about this important position. Constitutionally, he is referred to only most casually as the man who succeeds the Governor and the man who presides over the State Senate.

HELP . . . But, actually, our modern Lt. Governors, like our 20th century vice presidents, have much, much more prestige and power than is assigned to them by our official documents.

The Sanford administration likes to feel that it is close to the people, fresh from the voters, and meshing with the masses. For this reason — and possibly others — it would like to have a strong Lt. Governor to join its ranks for the big battles which lie ahead in the 1963 Legislature and in the 1964 gubernatorial and Congressional battles.

Thus the searching for solid constitutional grounds for electing a Lt. Governor in 1962. The legal probe could bear fruit.

DESERVES IT . . . A family friend whose name you would know was in Washington recently, had business which took him to the Department of Commerce. Just for the heck of it, he announced he was there to see the Secretary, Luther Hodges. To his great surprise — and really, amazement, he was ushered right in, after a standing wait of only about three minutes.

"It used to take me three hours to see him when he was in Raleigh," he said, adding that he now suspects Hodges harbors political ambitions back in the Old North State.

Friend was reminded that the affable Commerce Secretary might not have the support of the current gubernatorial setup in North Carolina. "I don't know why not," he replied. "Luther Hodges did more to elect Terry Sanford Governor than any other man living."

Could be — intentionally or unintentionally. Or vice versa.

CAN BE HAD? . . . One of the few N. Carolinians (William B. Unstead did it) to voluntarily resign from Congress is one Woodrow Wilson Jones of Rutherfordton, N. C.

He was elected to Congress at the age of 38 to succeed the late A. L. Bulwinkle — but after six years of it he decided he could do a better job of raising his boys (one now 20, the other 18) back in North Carolina.

Mrs. Jones is the former Rachel Elizabeth Phelps of Lillington. Jones is a Baptist, an alumnus of Mars Hill. He got his LL. B. Degree at Wake Forest in 1937. Although back in Rutherfordton practicing law, Woodrow Jones has been active in Democratic politics on local and State levels.

Jones, they say, could be pushed into running for Governor in 1964. A Jones - Jonas affair would be all the doctor ordered.

VEHICLES . . . As of Sept. 1, Gov. Sanford was saying neither year nor nay on the future of Ed Scheidt as head of the Dept. of Motor Vehicles.

If the Governor was planning to reappoint the taciturn Scheidt, any enthusiasm for it he kept to himself. Looking at it from afar, we would say that nobody would care less either way than Ed Scheidt. He plays it as casually as a checker champ, which he is. Scheidt had a full career behind him as a G-man before he ever went with Motor Vehicles. Two, or three, times the Dept. of Motor Vehicles' traffic work has been declared the best in the nation.

Meantime, out in California, Gov. Pat Brown has had real trouble with his Motor Vehicles head. They had a falling out a few days ago when Gov. Pat did not follow through with a promised higher echelon position. The motor's man has resigned in a huff—and is now out for the scalp of Brown.

One more reason, they say, why Richard Nixon has new interest in running for Governor of California. On the contrary, we doubt that the keeping or pasturing of Ed Scheidt would mean the loss or gain, of 500 votes to the Sanford machine in North Carolina.

WITH BROUGHTON . . . The new head of the ABC Board will be remembered by hundreds of the late J. M. Broughton's friends as the chauffeur for old No. 1 during much of World War II.

Victor Aldridge was really more of an aide than a chauffeur. He had also served with Gov. Hoey. Clean cut and highly intelligent Victor Aldridge carries a deep within him interesting stories about the Hoeyes and Broughtons.

We recall one, Gov. Broughton left late for Salisbury to award a flag to a big industrial firm for war effort. It was mid-war and the maximum speed limit was 35 miles an hour. As he eased out of the car at Salisbury—on time—Gov. Broughton, straight-faced, said: "Vic, I don't believe we broke 35, did we?" "No, sir, Governor — not after we left Raleigh," said Aldridge.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where they have outlawed exposed shirt tails on the public streets in Florence, South Carolina. Any feller caught with his shirt tail hanging out gets fined $12 and the court cost. That's a mighty fine law and I aim to write the Mayor of that city and congratulate him. This fad of wearing your shirt tail blowing in the breeze is abominable unto decency. In the first place, you never know fer shore if the feller is wearing it outside on purpose or whether it slipped out when he wasn't looking. And you walk down the street a block wondering about that instead of keeping your mind on your troubles.

Man is a ornery animal anyhow. Fer centuries he has been plagued with the job of keeping his shirt tail in. It would crawl out ever time he'd lunge fer the butter at the table. And sometimes it would just jump out from pure cussedness. A feller walking down the eye at church Sunday morning never knowed fer shore if his shirt tail was in or out. It was a matter of constant concern fer all modest men.

Then, a few year ago, somebody keep the shirt tail from crawling out. They put little rubber strips inside the waist band. That turned the trick. It was a remedy fer a bad situation that had existed since the first day man wore shirt tails.

And about the same day this smart inventor solved the creeping shirt tail problem, some other feller come out with this crazy fad of wearing the shirt tail on the outside. Sometimes I think man gets about what he deserves in this world.

I see where this column writer just back from Russia says ole Khrushchev ain't getting no place with his horse meat program. I reckon it's pritty hard to sell them Russians the idea they're burying the West with production and sell 'em a horse meat diet at the same time. My sympathy is all fer the horse and I'm agin horse meat as a matter of principle, but if horseburgers will help them Russians develop some horse sense, I'll go along with it fer a spell, starting with Khrushchev.

Well, Mister Editor, fall is just around the corner, vacations is getting over and folks will have to get down to work again. I've found that after 50 a feller still has lots on the ball, but it's hard-er to git the ball rolling. Most of the city kinfolks has all gone home from their summer visit and all us country folks has got to do now is refill the cupboard.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

ASCS News

It's Voting Time Again

On Monday, September 11, 1961, you and your neighbors will be electing the ASC farmer committeemen who in 1962 will be responsible for the local administration of such national farm programs as the Soil Bank Program, the Agricultural Conservation Program, Price Supports, Acreage Allotments, Marketing Quotas, Storage Facility Loans, the Feed Grain Program, and others. It is these men who will see to it that such national programs are properly adapted to conditions in Davie County and to your farm, and it is the background and experience of these same men that will be mingled with that of the 135 thousand ASC farmer-committeemen in the United States in the formulation of any new program that developments in the coming year may require. You participate by helping to elect your Committeemen, by keeping them informed of the problems facing you and your community and by giving them your full support and cooperation in their job of program formulation and administration.

The County Convention at which elected delegates will elect County Committeemen will be held on September 21, 1961.

You will be eligible to vote for your community committeemen, alternates, and delegates if you have an interest as owner, operator, tenant, or share-cropper, in a farm that is participating or is eligible to participate in any program administered during the current calendar year through your ASCS County Office. There are some mighty important decisions to be made in 1962. Many of them will affect you! Someone has to make them. Will your voice be heard?

Preserve 1961 Cotton History

Farmers are reminded that September 15, 1961 is the closing date for filing an application to protect their Cotton History. Farmers who planted less than 75% of their cotton allotment this year will receive a reduction in the 1962 cotton allotment unless:

1. It is determined that failure to do so was beyond the control of the producers on the farm, and
 2. The producer files in application with this office not later than September 15, 1961 to preserve the history.
- Conditions beyond the control of the producer are limited to the following: excessive rain, flood, hail, drought, lack of water on irrigated farms resulting from the effect of drought on the water supply, or illness of the farm operator or any other producer on the farm.

Tar Heel Wheat Farmers Favor New Stabilization Program

Businessmen, civic leaders, and farmers throughout North Carolina joined hands last week in urging all eligible voters to participate in the 1962 wheat marketing quota referendum. This cooperative effort was outstandingly successful, since it produced a heavier turnout at the polls than ever before. Over 57% of the farmers who were eligible to vote in this wheat marketing quota referendum visited their polling place and cast their vote. Preliminary returns from North Carolina showed that 94.9 percent favored marketing quotas on the 1962 crop; whereas a report from all wheat producing states show that 79.4% favored marketing quotas. Since two-thirds of the farmers voting approved marketing quotas, marketing quotas will be in effect next year.

The approval of the 1962 wheat marketing quota referendum will have the following effects in this State:

1. The level of support will be increased to a minimum of $2.00 per bushel national average. This would provide support in this State at approximately $2.18 a bushel minimum because of freight differentials.
2. Wheat farmers will have an opportunity to earn payment for reducing their 1962 wheat acreage. These payments would be made to producers for diverting wheat acreage and devoting their diverted acreage to conservation uses. Producers can earn further payments by reducing wheat acreage up to an additional 30% of the farm wheat allotment. For small farms (farms with allotments of 13.5 acres or less), farmers could divert even more than this additional 30%.

3. For 1962 the marketing quota exemption for those farmers who planted not more than 15.0 acres during any one of the three years 1959, 1960, 1961, will be decreased to the larger of 13.5 acres or the highest acreage in 1959, 1960, or 1961.

4. Farmers also voted in favor of an increased penalty rate for overplanting. The rate for 1962 will be increased from this year's 45% of parity to 65% of parity.

5. Price support will be available to farmers who plant within the farm wheat allotment. The program is intended to accomplish three objectives: to increase farm income, to reduce excessive buildup of supplies, and to reduce government storage cost. If a sufficient number of farmers throughout the Nation take part in this program it is felt that these objectives will be met. Signup will probably take place from Sept. 15 to Nov. 15.

CONSTITUTIONAL HEARINGS—As Chairman of the Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, on September 11 recently concluded four days of hearings on the complex problem of "The American Indian". This is the first time a Congressional Committee has held hearings on this subject. The Bureau of Indian Affairs in 1960 estimated that there were some 360,000 Indians living on reservations and 160,000 living off reservations. As the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, John A. Carver, Jr., pointed out in his testimony before the Subcommittee, it is almost impossible to generalize about constitutional rights of the Indian, but many reservations need to take more adequate measures to protect Indian civil liberties under the 4th and 14th amendments of the U. S. Constitution. In a number of decisions the Supreme Court of the United States has stated that due to the peculiar relationship between Indian tribes and the federal government these amendments do not apply to the "non-secession" Indians unless the tribal constitution safeguards these rights. Out of these hearings may come a new awakening on the part of the Congress and the people of the need for protecting the basic rights and liberties of America's first settlers.

NOW is the time to check your heating plant UNLESS your home has FLAMELESS ELECTRIC COMFORT HEATING

Electric Comfort Heating is trouble-free. There is virtually nothing to wear out or repair with flameless electric comfort heating. The only moving parts are in standard thermostats. Carolinians who have switched to electric heating also like:

EASE OF INSTALLATION
"We chose modern flameless electric heat because: Our initial cost was considerably less than for other systems . . . it required no basement or chimney . . . the electric baseboard heat was easy to install — no fuss or bother."

CLEANLINESS
There is no combustion, therefore, no smoke, soot or grimy dust. Walls, drapes and woodwork stay sparkling clean and fresh longer. Cleaning chores and redecorating costs are reduced. It's a pleasure to live in clean comfort.

FLEXIBILITY
Individual room thermostats allow you to lower the temperature in unused areas and adjust the heat to suit the activities in other rooms.

LOW COST
"I have enjoyed two full winter's operation and my heating cost has been most reasonable. Last winter, being a very severe and lengthy one, my cost was only $119.28."

Call or visit your Duke Power Residential or Commercial Representative for further information. Duke Power neither sells nor installs flameless electric heating systems, but welcomes your inquiries.

Pvt. T. L. Lawrence In South Carolina

Private Terry T. Lawrence, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Lawrence, Rt. 5, Mocksville, has been assigned to Company B, 10th Battalion, 5th Training Regiment of the U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry, at Ft. Jackson, S. C., where he is undergoing eight weeks of Basic Combat Training.

He has been taught rifle marksmanship under the U. S. Army's "Trainfire" program which enables the modern soldier to become a better rifleman in less time than previous methods. In this program, most of his training consisted of firing his rifle at pop-up targets at unknown distances on terrain which duplicates combat areas. Other highlights of his intensive training includes quad tactics, bayonet and hand to hand combat, and crawling the infiltration course while machine gun fire is popping overhead. Many of his instructors are combat veterans of World War II and the Korean War.

During his seventh week of training, he will live in the field under conditions similar to those in the forward areas of a battle zone. He moves over rough terrain on foot and in tactical vehicles and participates in numerous combat situations of a realistic nature. He learns the practical applications of the skill and knowledge.

September 20 Deadline Nears For Dixie Classic Fair Exhibitors

Nell Bolton, manager of the Dixie Classic Fair for Northwest North Carolina, today reminded exhibitors that they have only a short time left to get their official entries in.

September 20 is the deadline for entering exhibits in livestock girls' work, leisure time activities for youth, the junior flower show, fine arts, crafts, and many other categories at the fair.

All six Home Demonstration booths allocated for Forsyth County Home Demonstration Clubs have been filled, according to Bolton. Space is available for clubs of surrounding areas. Each county will be allocated only one space on a first come, first served basis. Premiums total $740 in this department.

All spaces for Community Development booths have been spoken for. Because of space limitations, only 14 applications could be accepted. Awards of $1,200 are offered in this division.

Although pens and stalls are available for beef and dairy cattle, sheep and swine, Bolton reported that he expects a last-minute rush of livestock entries. "Last year we had to turn down some entries," he said. "So if you have come championship animals to show, you'd better enter them soon." The Livestock Exposition is offering $26,761 in premium awards.

The Youth Activities — including the junior dairy show; the 4-H, FFA, and PHA educational booths; the 4-H and FFA Club field crops exhibit; girls' work; the popular leisure time activities category; the junior flower show; and the tractor driving contest — are all showing a flurry of interest as the young people of Northwest North Carolina indicate their intentions to display their skills and talents at the Dixie Classic.

For complete information, rules, premium list, and the official entry forms, write Nell Bolton, manager, Dixie Classic Fair, P. O. Box 7625 (Reynolds Station), Winston-Salem, N. C.

Town Of Mocksville Receives $12,185.15 In Powell Bill Funds

Allocation of $12,185.15 in Powell Bill funds to the Town of Mocksville was announced this week by the State Highway Department. The funds are distributed annually to qualified cities and towns for use in non-highway, system street work within their corporate limits.

Checks to 415 municipalities, of which Mocksville is one, will be mailed from Raleigh the latter part of this month in order that they will reach municipalities by October 1.

The total allocation this year represents an increase over 1960 of $39,234.25, but in case of approximately 60 per cent of the participating municipalities, this year's allocation will be less than the 1960 allocation. This is brought about by the fact that a new municipality population base is being used for the first time.

The Powell Bill statute calls for the use of the latest certified federal decennial census figures. The 1960 census figures were certified during last winter and were used in figuring this year's allocation. Previously, from the beginning of the Powell Bill in 1951 through last year, the 1950 census figures were used.

The 10 year population growth of participating municipalities has averaged 25.3 per cent. Where a municipality's growth has not equaled 25.3 per cent, the population factor may well cause a decrease in Powell Bill allocation.

The Town of Mocksville, however, showed an increase this year of $449.04, receiving $11,736.11 last year.

Half of each year's allocation is divided among all qualified municipalities on the basis of the 1960 census population. This year the per capita rate is $1.92 as compared with last year's $2.30. The remaining half of the allocation is divided among all qualified municipalities on the basis of relative mileage of non-State system or local streets. This year's per mile rate is $453.12.

The allocation for the Town of Mocksville was based on a population of 2,379 for which is received $4,577.28; and 18.79 certified non-system miles, receiving $7,607.87. This made a total allocation of $12,185.15.

PTA Votes Funds For Battleship

The amount required for full participation by the Mocksville Elementary School is $77.40, which represents 10c per child.

Bill Daniel, PTA President, presided over the session in which James Summers, chairman of the membership and attendance committee, reported 335 paid members.

Scout Leaders Are Needed Here

There is an urgent need for volunteer leaders for the Girl Scout program in Davie County, according to Mrs. Roy Harris, who is in charge of securing the leaders.

"It is up to the parents of the girls who are interested in the program to help with the troops," said Mrs. Harris. "I have made a number of contacts but have been unable to secure enough leaders for all the troops. We will not be able to have several troops without the leaders. Any one who is interested and will volunteer to be a Girl Scout Troop leader is asked to please contact me at once," concluded Mrs. Harris.

A Total of 926 Are At Davie High Sch.

For a total of 2,890 in the eight elementary schools. A total of 926 are enrolled at the Davie County High School, and 130 in the high school of the Davie County Training School.

The total early enrollment reflects an increase of 137 over the initial figures last year. The enrollment in all the schools is expected to increase within the next few weeks, with more than 4,000 enrolled by the end of the current school term.

Principal D. F. Stilwell of the Davie County High School announced that 22 students attended the summer school session this summer taking regular courses.

HANG ON TO IT!

This is an amazing accomplishment. All in the South can be proud of it... because all of us helped bring it about.

Yet now is no time for complacency. This enviable record of economic progress and growth is "fair game" for every other industrial area in America. They'd like to take it from us - and they're trying hard to do just that.

We must not let them succeed! Today, it is vitally important to all of us that our fast-growing South continue to create and maintain a friendly and favorable "industrial climate." Directly or indirectly, every one of us has a personal stake in making an extra effort to keep new, job-providing industries heading South and to make sure they stay happy in their "new home."

This is more than a fine record of the past. Unless we thoughtlessly let it slip through our fingers, it is a bright prophecy of still greater achievements to come. Hang on to it!

THE MURALS OF NORTH CAROLINA

Fourteen murals . . . depicting significant events in North Carolina's history . . . now adorn the wall in the assembly room of the Joseph Palmer Knapp Building, Institute of Government, University of North Carolina. These murals were painted by Francis Vandever Kugler. The Institute of Government has made available to this newspaper copies of these murals along with the story of what they represent. Believing these to be of interest to our readers, we are presenting them in order . . . THE MURALS OF NORTH CAROLINA.

Mural Four ROAD TO CAROLINA

Long before the American Revolution, many peaceful groups moved into North Carolina to establish new homes for themselves and their families. They were religious groups and sometimes political refugees, comprising many nationalities—Scott, Swiss, German and Scotch-Irish. They were not animated by greed or adventure or the desire for wealth, but came to set their roots in the land; ready to till the soil and live by the sweat of their brows; to build and not to destroy. To them the virgin land was the land of hope and a new bright destiny. They were imbued with great moral convictions and faith in Divine Providence. These were the qualities set out in this mural.

The scene depicts two caravans on the road to Carolina. It is morning and the Moravian group, led by Count Nicolaus von Zinzendorf, is already on the march. The count is riding a brown horse and shaking hands with the leader of the Scottish group which is in process of breaking camp. In the distance the Moravian caravan winds over the mountains and to the far right, near a deep gorge, horses are being hitched to the covered wagons.

The center group is composed of a young married couple astride a white horse. The husband rides with a gun across his thighs for, despite the presence of friendly Indians in the area, deadly attacks occurred on the Moravians as well as on others. Behind him in the saddle is his pretty bride who smiles happily.

Accompanying the caravan is a trombone quartet which were traditional and were called the "Trombone Choirs". The earliest Moravians to arrive in North Carolina had many skillful musicians and composers among them.

The mural shows the people of the caravans moving into the promised land to the harmonies of a trombone choir and the striking of bagpipes, singing hymns of praise to God with the exhilaration of religious freedom in their nostrils, and in their hearts the everlasting music of the spheres.

For people already receiving benefits, the increase under the 1961 amendments to the law could be added automatically to their checks, Temple said. But persons made newly eligible for benefits or for higher benefits by some of the other 1961 amendments will need to get in touch with their nearest social security office.

Under these amendments: 11 Retired men have the option of collecting reduced retirement benefits as early as age 62.

12 Many older people who did not work for the length of time required under the old law will now be eligible for payments. The amount of work needed to get benefits has been reduced. However, at least a year and a half of work under social security is needed to qualify for payments. The surviving families of workers who died after June, 1954, and who were not eligible for benefits under the old law may now be eligible because of this change.

13 The amount that beneficiaries can earn and still collect a portion of their benefits for the year has been raised. For an example, a worker without dependents, eligible for a monthly old age benefit of $120, can earn about $2800 annually and still collect some of his benefits for the year. Many people, otherwise eligible for benefits who have not yet applied because they are still working should find out now whether it is to their advantage to file an application.

14 Because of the 10 percent increase in widow's benefits, some widows not getting social security benefits based on their own work under social security may be able to qualify for higher amounts by applying for the widow's benefits payable on their husband's social security earning record.

ANOTHER GOSPEL MEETING

The members of the North Main Church of Christ were gratified to see so many visitors at the protracted meeting in July, when A. W. Chism, the soul-stirring speaker from New Orleans, was with us. Despite the intense heat, each service was well attended. Since that time, the building has been completely air conditioned, making it possible for your next visit to be more enjoyable.

We now invite you to hear Newton Gribble, of Selma, Alabama, in a short series of meetings September 17-22 at 7:30 p.m. You are encouraged to bring your Bible and check out what the visiting evangelist has to say, and if you desire, you may discuss with him any part of the lesson you wish when the sermon is finished. His lessons will be presented kindly, yet plainly and to the point.

If you like the Word of God preached without being mixed with a host of irrelevant materials, such as personal experiences, death-bed stories, and such like, you will be benefited by Mr. Gribble's sermons. You will find the North Main church friendly and pleasant.

Social Security In Davie County

Several hundred persons living in the Davie County area are among the 3.7 million people throughout the country who are receiving increases in the social security checks delivered to them this week, James P. Temple, district manager of the Salisbury social security office, said today. Under amendments to the social security law, signed by President Kennedy on June 30, payments are increased for about one out of every four persons on the social security benefits rolls. Payments of those getting benefits at or near the minimum rate are boosted by amounts ranging up to $7 and the benefits of widows getting payments based on their husband's work are raised by about 10 per cent. Aged dependent widowers and some aged dependent parents of deceased workers also get a 10 per cent increase.

Chairman of the Fund Raising Committee.

Mrs. Wilkes, President, gave the parents the opportunity to ask questions pertaining to the new rules and regulations set forth at the school after all regular business was over, which was endorsed by the Advisory Board. After all questions had been answered, the parents voiced their opinion of approval of the new rules which were made for the benefit of the children.

The PTA program for the year is as outlined.

All parents are encouraged to attend the regular meeting to help make this school year a progressive one.

BACK TO SCHOOL SAFETY

"Watch for them, think for them, protect them!" Motor Vehicles Commissioner Edward Scheidt made that appeal this week now that schools have re-opened with over a million youngsters back in their classes.

"Children are often heedless," Scheidt pointed out. "You can't expect them to be constantly on the alert for traffic—and you can't penalize them even when they are in the wrong."

Disclosing that 112 child pedestrians under 15 were killed last year, the vehicles chief said complete mobilization of all safe forces is the only thing that will assure children's safety on the streets.

"This means action by parents, teachers, motorists, older children and the youngsters themselves," he declared.

According to traffic experts, a large percentage of child pedestrian deaths and injuries are avoidable. He believes they key to the situation lies in traffic safety education of the young and constant vigilance on the part of all adults.

"Naturally," he said, "a child's best safeguard in traffic is his own recognition of danger and his thorough knowledge of safety rules. But children are not naturally cautious, they must be taught caution both at home and at school."

Scheidt outlined these simple rules for parents to follow in educating their children in traffic safety:

1. Teach your children habits of safe walking.
2. See that they always play in safe places away from the street.
3. Set them an example of safe behavior by your own conduct in traffic.

He also reminded teachers and school officials:

1. Make traffic safety a regular part of your instruction.
2. Cooperate with parents and traffic officers.

"And, of course," Scheidt said, "the responsibility of the motorist for child pedestrian safety is obvious. No matter how well a child has been trained, there are times when he forgets. At such times only quick thinking by the driver can avoid disaster. Constant alertness is a must!"

He warned motorists to be on the look-out at all times and to slow down when driving in residential areas or near schools, playgrounds or vacant lots. He especially cautioned drivers to keep a sharp eye out for moving children—children running, on roller skates, in wagons or on tricycles and scooters.

"Children trust you, Mr. Motorist," Scheidt asserted. "Don't strike them down."

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Per a spell there after the election it looked like they was going to try to run the country without any pamphlets and free advice from them Government agencies. It was getting so the rural mail carrier out our way wasn't more'n half earning his pay.

But this is to report, Mister Editor, that the pamphlet boys in Washington has now crossed the New Frontier in force. Even the wimmen folks is now getting advice from the various bureaus on how to keep house.

For instant, my old lady got one last week explaining how she might live five year longer if she'd take some short cuts in the household chores. Being as how she's already liable to outlive me by about 10 year, I think they was sending this stuff to the wrong party.

Anyhow, this piece from the Home Economics Division—whatever that is—claims the average wife walks 262 feet and circles a bed 3 to 4 times making it up. They claim only 23 feet and once around the bed will do the job scientific. The piece also says wimmen should quit ironing socks, towels, sheets and such items and just fold 'em. I ain't got no comment, Mister Editor, on such goings-on from the Government. If you've got any, I'm shore the men folk would appreciate it if you'd put it on the editorial page.

And about all the feller at the country store Saturday night reported getting a pamphlet last week from the U. S. Bureau of Standards on how to judge a hearing aid. Some of them was a little riled up about tax money being used on this project.

Ed. Doolittle, fer instant, allowed as how most Government business was now done on television, especial the elections, and the Bureau of Standards ought to be working on better vision and improving a voter's bifocals. But Zeke Grubb figured maybe they was preparing the voters fer the next election so they could judge the debates better. Bug Hookum sided with Ed, said in the next debates he was going strictly on looks and was going to vote fer the frontier man that looked the most like Daniel Boone regardless of how the candidates talked. It was general agreed by all that what this country needs most right now ain't a better hearing aid.

Clem Webster said he ain't got the official pamphlet on it yet but he saw in the papers where the Health Department claims a feller's mind is a little off when he's dead tired. Clem who ain't knowed fer long hours and hard work claims a feller that's work till he was dead tired was a little off to start with.

TEXT: "Most of the things we know ain't so" - Josh Billings

In the later years of his life, Albert Einstein was honored at many parties. At one party his hostess led him to a window and pointed to the heavens saying,

"I can spot Venus. It always shines like a beautiful woman."

"I'm sorry," replied Einstein, "that is Jupiter."

"Oh, Dr. Einstein," exclaimed his hostess, "you're wonderful! Imagine being able to tell the sex of a star that far away!"

Most of us travel far in life carrying volumes of misinformation which we mistake for knowledge. Things we honestly think we know ain't so. As a result we make among decision, propound foolish theories and offer embarrassing assertions. Gradually, if we humble ourselves and sincerely seek truth, we throw away much of our misinformation.

Unfortunately, there are those who strut blindly along secure in their misinformation. They are not curious about confirming it. They are satisfied that any opinion contrary to theirs is incorrect. This attitude would be pathetic if it was not dangerous. Smug adherence to opinion; refusal to consider the possible validity of other viewpoints and to add more recent knowledge, has hurled individuals and nations to destruction. Seek truth. "Only change is certain."

SO THIS IS NEW YORK . . .

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Sam McCauley, a commercial artist, walked into the lobby of a big corporation's office here the other day, and told the receptionist he was there to see the executive in charge of the art department, for whom he had done some work. Then Joe quietly took a seat in one of the soft lobby chairs. Probably another long wait, he thought. About 25 minutes later, a secretary opened the door, beckoned to Joe and showed him in to the office of the art executive. "Sorry to have kept you waiting so long, Joe," was the hearty greeting. "Seems that I do that about every time you call." Joe just smiled and shrugged his shoulders. "Why, I don't believe you ever mind the waiting," the executive remarked. "Why should I?" blandly replied Joe. "You see, I work by the hour, and all the time I spend relaxing in your lobby is charged up to you just like my work."

Typical of men who make good, but remain modest about it is E. Hornsby Wasson, president and a director of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. Talking to Hornsby, who also hails from Tennessee, I was impressed by his genial, sensible approach to life. Besides being an expert in the communications industry, as shown by the leading position of his present company, he has some ideas on success that are equally challenging. "It is not how much money one makes, but how he takes care of it that counts," Hornsby remarked. Active in New Jersey civic affairs, he is also an official of the Boy Scouts and a director at large of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. I asked him what he would like to do most, if he had time away from his many activities. His reply, "I'd like to go back to Tennessee or North Carolina and be a farmer." (P. S. Save a few acres for me Hornsby.)

High up on a grassy suburban hillside is a memorial which does credit to mankind and which would also be a fitting place for humans to be laid to rest. It is Hardvale Canine and Pet Cemetery constructed from public contributions of dog lovers in honor of valiant canine service in World War I. A stroll through this reverently regarded setting of little graves will bring one closer to whatever kind of heavenly home dogs ultimately have—and from this indication it must be a good one. The inscriptions put on the sizable stones by admirers abound with the words "faithful," "love" and "affection." One particularly touching grave-stone verse, I made note of:

"High up in the courts of heaven today
A little dog angel waits.
With the other angels he will not play.
But he sits alone at the gates.
"For I know that my master will come," says he,
"And when he comes, he will call for me."

A story comes from abroad that a Russian peasant visited a zoo in Moscow for the first time and was surprised to find a big bear with a little lamb in the same cage. The peasant asked what that meant. "That," said the guide, "is peaceful coexistence." The peasant looked doubtful. "Of course," the guide added in a low voice, "we have to put in a fresh lamb every morning."

For The People

By BERNADETTE W. HOYLE
Public Information Officer
North Carolina State Board of Public Welfare

This is the second of a series explaining public welfare in North Carolina.

Aid to dependent children is one of the ways in which public welfare helps to strengthen family life and helps to make families independent. The county department of public welfare believes that the aid to dependent children program is the most basic help it can provide for a family in which a parent is unable to look after his children.

One such case was Anna, a child who had the misfortune of a rheumatic heart condition and was unable to attend school regularly for about four years. Her father was in poor health and unable to do sufficient work to maintain his family. As a result of aid to dependent children help, Anna's mother was able to remain in the home instead of going to work. She was, therefore, able to give Anna instruction in her school work at home. The child had the capacity to keep up with her classmates scholastically, although she was not attending public school. The father finally regained his health and is now able to maintain his family financially—both parents are now working. Anna's health began to improve considerably 2 years ago, and this past year she attended public school. Next year she will be a high school senior and has high hopes of obtaining a scholarship so that she can attend college.

In another case, a father was totally incapacitated because of an incurable disease. As a result of aid to dependent children payments his older son was able to complete high school and is self supporting. The daughter is a junior in high school and has had a perfect attendance record for 11 years. She realizes that her family will not be able to pay for college, but she declares she will be able to work and try to pay as much of her way as possible. The county department of public welfare is planning to seek a scholarship for the girl, who has an excellent scholastic record.

Aid to dependent children provides a money payment for needy dependent children who have been deprived of parental care and support because of the death, physical or mental incapacity or continued absence from the home of one or both parents, whether natural, step, or adoptive.

THE GAP NARROWS . . . Although North Carolina still prefers to get its legal whiskey drop by drop rather than on a State wide vote, the numerical difference between those in wet areas and the population of the dry sections grows smaller with each ABC election.

A survey just completed for this paper shows that as of Sept. 10 the official score was as follows:

Total population of wet counties, cities, and towns: 2,035,002.
Total population of dry counties, cities, and towns: 2,521,153.
This gives you some idea of how North Carolina has been moving in the direction of legalized alcohol since the establishment of the first ABC stores a little over 25 years ago.

STUDY BASIS . . . To arrive at the figures shown above, we first took the official 1960 census for North Carolina of 4,556,155 people. We then began at the top of the alphabet with formerly bone dry Alamance County. The county has not voted in ABC stores, but Burlington and Graham have, and the total population of the two municipalities is 40,922.

We then passed over Alexander, legally still a Sahara, and moved to Alleghany, where little Sparta (11,047 souls in 1960) went wet this summer, and added this to the previous damp digits. When we reached Beaufort, the entire county was used since it is wet all over. Likewise with Bertie.

After wading through Wilson County, last in the wet alphabet (Yadkin and Yancey all arid) but with the first in ABC stores establishment, the population figures were totaled, were subtracted from the total population.

And we were—as perhaps you are—surprised at how much a part of life legalized whiskey has become in North Carolina in a brief 25 years.

WRONG KIND . . . But, despite this tremendous shift to ABC stores there were in vast areas of North Carolina during the summer of 1960 people who still looked down their noses at store bought whiskey.

A Wilkes County friend of ours who has never seen an ABC store was appologizing for the way his son in law was moping about the house while on an August visit back home in the hills:

"You'll just have to excuse him, folks. He's been up in Baltimore a-drinking too much red government likker."

SIZE NO BARRIER . . . That the size, geographic or population wise, of an area has nothing to do with the way it might, go or be sent, on whiskey is shown by the following:

1. Mecklenburg County has a population of 272,111. It is wet.
2. Ocean Isle in Brunswick County has an official 1960 population of 5 (five). It is also wet.

The largest city in North Carolina having no legalized whiskey is High Point, with a population 62,603 (7th largest city in the State).

Guilford, still dry as a county despite wet Greensboro and Jamestown, with a population of 248,520 is at the top numerically in the dry areas. But, like the State itself and many another county, Guilford is somewhere between wet (120,821—total population of Greensboro and Jamestown) and dry (125,699—of the remainder of the county).

WHAT'S DOING? . . . Without attempting to give an answer—and with no further comment—editorial in the Baptists' Biblical Recorder for Sept. 9 asks: "What's happening to those dry victories which used to be registered in ABC elections? If we remember correctly, the last five in a row have gone to the wet forces—in Burlington, Sanford, Jamestown, Graham and Hertford. There may be more than that. What's the reason for these defeats?"

NEARBY . . . Although on a numerical basis, North Carolina is still dry, nobody is now very far from a whiskey store. The eastern areas led the way. The west has followed until now there are whiskey stores in Tryon, Hendersonville, and Asheville.

But, generally speaking, the mountain counties are still legally dry. A lot of them, like Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Macon, Madison, Swain, Haywood, Jackson, Transylvania, Yancey, Watauga, Avery, Ashe, Mitchell, Burke, Alexander, Rutherford, McDowell do not even permit the sale of beer and wine.

However, Sparta is a rather typical mountain community in a typical mountain county. It went wet a few weeks ago, opened its ABC store on Aug. 15. A nearby service station began charging 10 cents per car parking privileges and is reporting excellent business.

For nearly 15 years following the establishment of the first ABC stores, the westernmost legally wet city was Durham, Orange County, which was dry so long, has now gone wet with a vengeance, is pushing the sale of legal liquor by modernized parking facilities, roadside stores, and neon signs in blazing red several feet in height.

SOME ANSWERS . . . Now to answer questions as to why the swing wet is not easy. The Biblical Recorder asks, ministers ask. There is no pat answer.

Meantime, the Associated Press reports that "South Carolina laws restricting the consumption of liquor have led a seven-state civic organization to seriously consider dropping plans to hold a convention in Columbia." Most resort convention catering cities feel they must have whiskey stores.

Most N. C. municipalities—and a majority of our counties—need the extra money which whiskey taxes bring. Jamestown said it went wet for this reason.

The increase in poison whiskey deaths has doubtless moved public opinion toward government-supervised sales . . . and the dries are not fighting with the vigor they showed a few years ago.

Senator SAM ERVIN Says:

WASHINGTON—With adjournment of the first session of the 87th Congress in the air, a resume of the Senate's activities from January 3 to September 1 provides interesting data. The Congressional Record for September 1 states that during the first eight months the Senate had been in session 824 hours and 12 minutes; compiled 10,587 page of proceedings in the Congressional Record; passed 788 bills, joint resolutions, con current resolutions, and simple resolutions; calendared 957 measures; and introduced for legislative action 2,875 measures. Enacted into law were 368 public and private measures. The true measure of a Senator's work, however, lies in that intangible sum total of his activities in behalf of constituents, his correspondence with them, his committee work, and his devotion of energy, time and talents to the endless tasks that he encounters each day.

NEXT SESSION—It is well to keep in mind that adjournment of the first session of the 87th Congress does mean that all measures not acted upon by Congress will automatically die. On the contrary, these measures will go over the next session and can be acted upon until the 87th Congress adjourns. Most of these measures have been studied and fought over for some time. Some have wide sanction like national defense bills which almost certainly will continue to have first Congressional priority. Farm, medical care, and education bills will again be major concerns as they have been. The expiration of the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act on June 30, 1962 will renew Congressional activity in the battle over U. S. trade policies. Britain's announcement that it will join the Common Market forecasts the vast difficulties which this nation and our state face in solving already complicated export and import problems. Tax revision proposals which have been shelved to a great extent in the first session of Congress will be brought out along with perhaps some new tax measures. The problem of who to tax how much always presents a thorny legislative problem. For these reasons, Congress will have much work to do when it reconvenes.

NEW AGRICULTURAL DIRECTIONS

"Tobacco is a wonderful thing for the state. But, in a way, it's a curse—it has held back development of other agricultural enterprises."

This is the opinion of Atwell Alexander of Stony Point in Alexander County. He is an outstanding poultryman, a member of the State Board of Agriculture, president of the N. C. Poultry Council and one of the top agricultural leaders in North Carolina.

North Carolina "has gone about as far as possible with tobacco," Alexander believes. "It's time we worked to develop other agricultural products."

For the past seven years, Alexander has gone along on the Tar Heel agribusiness caravans to other areas of the nation. He and other folks on the tours sponsored by Wachovia Bank have seen some of the best of American agriculture.

In Iowa, a two-billion-dollar livestock industry—in Georgia, a giant livestock firm where "animals are treated better than people"—in California, a county with more than $400 million a year in agribusiness income—in Texas, an 800,000-acre cattle ranch—in Louisiana, a $130-million ports expansion program. . .

"We've seen a great many things that North Carolina could adapt ideas from," Alexander says. "In the past seven years, we've progressed much, but our sister states have made almost as much progress as we have."

Alexander believes the time is ripe for North Carolina to branch out in new agricultural directions. "We have a Governor who's a friend of Agriculture, a School of Agriculture second to none, a wonderful Department of Agriculture and many other things on our side," he says.

"In 1950, farmers were getting 47 per cent of the consumer food dollar; in 1960, they got only 39 per cent; and in 1965, the percentage may be down to thirty," he says. "We need such things as food processing plants, specialty crops, giant vegetable-growing areas, expansion of hog and cattle production."

Alexander points out that the Southeast as a whole is producing as much food as it's using. But North Carolina produces only 60 per cent as much as Tar Heels consume; and a big part of this is in broilers.

He tells of one large processing plant whose owners want to build a big factory in North Carolina—"if we can produce the food they need for processing."

There's still room in Eastern North Carolina for expanding egg production. "We'd get better use of our grain that way, too," he says.

Each year, North Carolina imports 100,000 hogs for processing. Mississippi's "running off and leaving us when it comes to cattle production" In this state, broilers are produced for foreign markets.

"Why so much push on broilers when we import cattle and hogs?" wonders Alexander.

North Carolina imports Maine and Idaho potatoes, "when Ashe County has some of the best potato land in the world." Tar Heels "buy Virginia apples and 'New Jersey' blueberries, grown here and sold back to us after packaging."

Alexander noted that "we had a fraternity of action on these tours, and that's what it will take for Tar Heel agriculture to reach its goals."

Medieval merchants of Venice ruled the European market with fortunes founded on a monopoly of the Oriental overland trade, the National Geographic Magazine says. When news came in 1499 that Vasco

Proof that a diamond is nothing but crystallized carbon required real devotion on the part of scientists. In 1772, French chemist Antoine Lavoisier and his colleagues pooled their funds to buy a diamond and proceeded to burn it up. The gas that resulted was carbon dioxide. In 1799, another Frenchman, Guyton de Morveau, furthered the research by converting a diamond into graphite, the form of carbon used in "lead" pencils.

June, July and August are the killer months for traffic mishaps. Here's why they are so deadly: haste, alcohol, exhaustion. The North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles urges vacation bound Tar Heels to avoid unnecessary chances while driving. Slow down and live to enjoy life now.

PROTECTION OF WATER SOURCES

Many times an existing water supply is not properly located and is known to be contaminated. For this reason wells should be tested for contamination and proper techniques used to make the water supply safe. To assure oneself of a safe water supply, the source of water should be properly located, constructed and conditioned.

When we speak of contaminated water we think in terms of water that contains human wastes. Types of disease organisms or pathogens found in water are bacteria, virus and cysts. Diseases caused by bacteria are typhoid fever, cholera, and dysentery. Polio, jaundice and infectious hepatitis are caused by virus and cysts cause amoebic dysentery. Heavy chlorination will kill bacteria and virus, but cysts must be removed by filtration.

There is no simple method of testing for pathogens; however, a simple test has been devised for use of the "coliform" bacteria which are found only in the intestines of humans and animals. If the test shows such bacteria present it is assumed that the water contains human waste and it is declared unsafe to drink.

Actually water testing is a sort of fallacy because we have no assurance that water found free of bacteria one day will be free of bacteria the next day. This is why we say that to be assured of a safe water supply the source of water should be (1) located, (2) constructed, (3) chlorinated.

Minerals found in North Carolina waters include iron, acid, sulfur and hydrogen sulfide. Many methods are used to remove these minerals from water, but the most effective has been the use of chlorinators to kill the pathogens and to remove the iron from the water and to neutralize the acids and oxidize the sulfides. Then filters are used to remove the cysts and eliminate the objectionable chlorine taste.

To have a water system tested, you may call on the local health authorities or the trained water systems dealer. Both are equipped to give technical assistance on all types of water systems problems.

Health Tips

From The Health Department

Dr. Luther L. Terry, Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service, released a statement on Wednesday, Aug. 30, reminding Local Health Directors that an upsurge in the influenza cycle is likely to hit this country during this fall and winter.

He recommended immediate vaccinations for persons in the three groups which accounted for most of the flu-triggered deaths between Sept., 1957 and March, 1960. These groups are: Persons with heart disease, lung diseases, diabetes and other chronic illnesses; persons over 65, and pregnant women.

All persons in the risk groups should get a "flu" shot from their family physician right away. People who have not had any previous shots should have a second injection in two months.

He, Dr. Terry, emphasizes that once Flu strikes a community, it is then too late to protect the high risk groups. Vaccination now, ahead of the flu season, is a practical safeguard.

Your local health department takes this occasion to remind you: The most practical solution to all health problems is learning to use your physician for health education, with emphasis on advice regarding how best to maintain resistance against disease. Basically, lowered resistance is the result of improper food and insufficient exercise — plus failure to correct defects, one of the most deadly of which is infected teeth and gums, due largely to the substitution of sweets and processed starches (infectious agents tend to thrive on such). For the more logical building and replacement foods: namely, lean meats, milk and eggs. Your best tooth brush is raw fruit and vegetables. They not only brush your teeth, they massage your gums!

Huge Relief Job For Red Cross In 'Carla' Wake

A rehabilitation relief job of major proportions and long duration is certain for the American Red Cross in the wake of Hurricane Carla, the Davie County Red Cross Chapter has been advised by officials of the national organization.

Said Mrs. Jack Sanford, chairman of the chapter: "The Red Cross must continue for several weeks yet the operation of many of its more than 500 emergency shelters in Texas and Louisiana until high waters recede and homes can be made habitable again. "But the biggest job," she said, "is that of helping families get back on a normal living basis. For weeks yet, or months, disaster specialists of the National Red Cross, working with local chapters, will remain in the stricken areas, helping families with needed funds to rebuild or repair their homes, acquire needed furnishings, help them find temporary lodging and pay expenses they are unable to handle themselves."

At the height of the emergency the Red Cross sheltered and fed more than 160,000 refugees in 449 shelters in South Texas Cities, and approximately 20,000 people in 88 shelters in Louisiana.

The post-hurricane phase of the disaster relief operation may well draw the Red Cross's funds reserves before the huge job is finished months hence, Mrs. Sanford emphasized. Estimating teams are now checking storm damage, as a first step in determining the extent of the relief task, she said.

The organization also will come to the aid of victims of hurricane-spawned tornadoes which struck at Galveston, Texas, and at Kaplan, Sildell and other points in Louisiana, according to Mrs. Sanford.

"The Davie County Chapter is accepting cash contributions from individuals or organizations desiring to come to the aid of the victims of this disaster," Mrs. Sanford said. "This is in accordance with a request sent to Red Cross chapters all over the nation Wednesday by ARC National Chairman, E. Roland Harriman, from national headquarters in Washington, D. C."

Said Mr. Harriman: "Meeting needs of hurricane-affected families will be a heavy drain on the disaster funds of the organization. To help friends and neighbors, our chapters in Texas are launching active campaigns to carry a reasonable proportion of the cost of relief efforts." Governor Price Daniel has issued a proclamation supporting this campaign.

To chapters in other states Mr. Harriman has asked that they "inform the public fully as to possible responsibilities of the Red Cross in the Hurricane Carla relief operation, and bring to the attention of community leaders and the public at large the continuing need for public support of our disaster relief efforts."

Currently, 101 experienced disaster workers of the national Red Cross remain in Texas and Louisiana to help local chapters in continued emergency relief work, and will remain there for family rehabilitation operations during the coming weeks. This staff will be enlarged if surveys now under way indicate a larger staff will be needed.

Davie Beats Winecoff 19-13

TIM DAVIS — alternate captain —

JIM DICKINSON — out with injury —

The Davie High School Rebels won their third straight game last Friday at Winecoff to remain undefeated.

This week the Rebels will have an open date as they prepare for Mooreville, winners of the 1960 North Piedmont Conference Crown. Davie will play at Mooreville on Friday night, Sept. 23, at 8 p.m.

The Rebels were caught napping on two homerun pass plays last Friday night as Winecoff rushed Davie to the limit before bowing. The Rebels broke a 13 to 13 tie in the final period and gained a 19 to 13 victory over the stubborn Winecoff team.

An indication that it was to be no easy night for the Rebels came on the third play of the game when Winecoff connected with a pass that went all the way for a touchdown. Their extra point attempt failed.

The Rebels bounced right back, shanking Larry Smith long for a 50 yard run to Winecoff's 20. Following a play or two, Smith carried over for the first Davie TD on a 10 yard run and added the extra point.

The Rebels scored again in the third quarter with Charlie Whitaker carrying across. The extra point failed.

However, Wineoff bounced high back following the kick off and completed another pass for a touchdown and made the extra point to tie the game at 13-all.

The Rebels threatened several times in the final period before scoring with a little less than three minutes of play remaining. Wineoff took to the air but failed to complete their passes and Davie ran out the clock on the ground.

The Rebels were playing without the services of their star halfback, Jimmy Dickinson, who was out with a ruptured muscle.

Fair Time Is Fun Time At The Dixie Classic

"This year Northwest North Carolina's Dixie Classic Fair—our state's largest area fair—will offer fairgoers the largest, most interesting entertainment and educational exhibition ever presented in this area." Neil Bolton Fair manager, said today in reviewing current plans for the showing in Winston-Salem Oct. 10-14.

Industry Exhibits In Coliseum

Commenting on the big exhibition of the area's industry, he pointed out that it will fill the large Coliseum area, including a number of new booths. The exhibition will feature scores of working exhibits from the 11-county Northwest North Carolina area. A special stage at one end of the Coliseum will present a variety of free demonstrations every afternoon and evening, along with a colorful motion picture bill. Three flower shows will also be held in the upper areas of the Coliseum.

Navy's Polaris Missile Exhibit

The U. S. Navy's Polaris missile display will be a dramatic addition to the skyline of the fairgrounds. "The Army's large exhibit will also show how this branch of our fighting forces is ready for action in today's troubled world," said Bolton. Other military exhibits will be displayed, along with the Atomic Energy Commission's huge dome housing the latest information on the use of the atom in peace and war.

Sixty Rides and Shows

Along the mile-long midway of the World of Mirth Shows at the Dixie Classic, youngsters and oldsters will enjoy the more than 60 rides and shows. "This will be the fifth consecutive year the World of Mirth Shows have appeared at the Fair," said Bolton. The 34 thrilling rides are billed as "the greatest array of portable rides ever presented." A new feature this year will be the direct from the factory juvenile fun and miniature thrill device called "The Umbrella Ride." Though built for small fry, it is large enough for adults to ride with their youngsters. Other thrilling rides include the popular "Twister" and the "Octopus."

BABY ELEPHANTS TO DANCE AT DIXIE CLASSIC FAIR The Madison's dancing baby elephants, trained and presented by Pink Madison assisted by Little June, will entertain three times daily in a ring erected in the World of Mirth Show's "Kiddle Land of Rides" at the Dixie Classic Fair October 10-14 in Winston-Salem. These 9-year-old elephants are babies as elephant ages go. Always a hit with all youngsters, they do their dance with an air of playful pleasure. The midway of the World of Mirth is over a mile long and has been called "The Largest Midway on Earth." It features 60 rides and shows, in addition to these dancing baby elephants.

The Circus Side Show will include Johann K. Petursson, the Viking Giant from Iceland, who is the tallest man on earth. He stands eight feet eight inches high, weighs 425 pounds, and wears a size 24 shoe. He has a nine-foot arm spread. In addition, helicopter rides will be available to fairgoers, giving them a thrilling aerial view of the fairgrounds, Winston-Salem, and the surrounding countryside. Popcorn and candy apples will add to the traditional Fair atmosphere. All eating booths at the Dixie Classic are operated by local church and civic groups.

Wide Variety of Exhibits Thousands of agriculture, livestock, youth, homemaking, community development, arts and crafts, and horticulture exhibits will greet spectators. The exhibitors will be competing for record prizes and premiums.

New Grandstand Show

"The exciting grandstand show is new this year," said Bolton, "and features one of the nation's top auto daredevils, Jack Kochman's Hell Drivers." Scheduled for two performances daily—at 3 P.M. and 8 P.M.—the 28 stunt show will last an hour and 45 minutes and will include such classic high speed stunts as the bone crushing "T-Bone" crash, the 2 wheel drive, and the famed reverse spin. High spot of the program will be a ramp to flight of a standard model 1961

RECOMMENDED PRACTICES FOR SMALL GRAINS

When you leave the field with your drill you have made almost all the decisions you can make to grow a profitable crop of small grain!!!

Successful small grain growers make decisions early—before planting. Use these recommendations which are based on research to make your decisions for economical production of wheat, oats, barley or rye.

1. ROTATE

Planting small grain year after year in the same field will lead to severe disease problems. Rotate with tobacco, cotton, soybeans, peanuts, forage crops, corn or grain sorghum. These crops, in turn, may benefit from the small grain in the rotation. Use at least 2 year, and preferably 3 year rotations for small grains.

2. FERTILIZE ADEQUATELY

Have your soil tested. Apply lime and fertilizer according to needs as determined by the soil test. This fertilization method takes out the guess work, and results in more production for less cost per bushel of grain.

Under most conditions, small grain requires at least 20 lbs. of N, 40 lbs. of P2O5, and 40 lbs. of K2O per acre at seeding time. This can be conveniently supplied with 400 lbs. per acre of 5-10-10 fertilizer or 200 lbs. of 10-20-20. A soil test may suggest a different rate and analysis, depending upon the soil fertility level. Don't overlook the needs for calcium and magnesium which are supplied by dolomitic lime. (Apply lime only on the basis of a soil test.)

3. TOPDRESS WITH NITROGEN ON TIME

Between February 15 and March 15 is the best time to apply nitrogen topdressing to promote tillering, the biggest factor in increased yields. Vigorous root systems and large heads of grain also result. Topdressing later may increase protein content of grain and green color of leaves, but it does not give maximum yields.

On heavy or red clay soils, apply 20-40 lbs. of nitrogen per acre. (Recent research has shown that on red clay soils this extra nitrogen can be applied at planting time or during the fall or winter with equally good results. See Extension Folder No. 158.)

On sandy soils, apply 50-70 lbs. of nitrogen per acre.

Following red clover or heavy applications of manure, nitrogen topdressing may be unnecessary.

4. VARIETIES

Choose varieties that have the best resistance to the most serious diseases of your area, the best quality of grain for your own use or your market needs, and the highest yields for your area as determined by research trials. (See Small Grain Varieties, Extension Leaflet No. 68, revised annually, for yield results and variety characteristics of the varieties tested in your area.)

5. SEED QUALITY

The quality of seed you choose may be one of the most important decisions you make. You cannot make a good yield without a good stand. If your seed contains weeds, it may affect the quality of your grain, and even worse, contaminate your soil with these weed species.

Choose seed that are:

1. Chemically treated.
2. Pure of variety.
3. Free from weeds.
4. Highly germinative (90% or above).
5. Strong in vigor. Such seeds are those grown under high fertility and carefully handled and stored.

The purchase of certified seed is the surest way to obtain these qualities.

6. PLANTING PRACTICES

(a) Make a good seedbed. Prepare a well pulverized shallow, but firm seedbed. Turn old crop residues deep, such as corn stalks that may harbor disease organisms. Turn organic matter soon enough for it to decay before seeding.

(b) Plant on time.

Piedmont - Oats and barley October 1-25
Wheat October 10-30
Rye October 20 - November 15
(c) Use enough seed. Plant 2 bushels of oats or barley per acre. Plant 1 1/2 bushels of wheat or rye per acre for grain. If oats must be used for grazing, use 3 bushels per acre if drilled, or 4-5 bushels if broadcast.

(d) Plant at proper depth. Many oat stands are lost in the Piedmont soils because of "heaving out" when the soil freezes. Drill oats 1 1/2 to 2 inches deep to get the roots anchored deeply enough. Drill barley or wheat 1 - 1 1/2 inches deep.

7. CONTROL DISEASES (See Extension Circular 347, Small Grain Diseases.)

The major defenses for diseases are:

- (1) Rotate crops.
- (2) Choose resistant varieties if available.
- (3) Plant within recommended dates.
- (4) Treat all seed with a good fungicide. Barley seed may need to be water treated to control loose smut. (See Brown Loose Smut of Barley, Extension Folder No. 132.)

8. CONTROL WEEDS

Use all good cultural practices that cut down on weed growth. Rotation, seedbed preparation, good stands, and proper fertilization all help reduce weed stands or provide competition for the weeds.

Control broadleaved weeds such as corn flower (bachelor's button or ragged robin), vetch, mustards, wild radish, bulbed buttercup, blessed thistle, and other 2, 4-D susceptible weeds by treatment with 1/2 lb. Amine 2,4-D per acre. Treat when the grain has 5 or more stems per plant, or when 5 to 8 inches tall.

Plants are susceptible during the rapid jointing, heading and flowering stage. Do not treat at this time.

Where small grains are top-dressed with nitrogen solution and applied through a sprayer giving uniform spray coverage, the 2,4-D can be applied in the nitrogen solution. This topdressing the grain and kills the 2,4-D susceptible weeds at the same time. Apply at the same stage of small grain growth as suggested above. Low volatile ester forms of 2,4-D can be mixed with the nitrogen solution. Add 1/4 to 1/2 lb. of 2,4-D acid equivalent per acre. Agitation is needed in the tank. 2,4-D ester mixed in the nitrogen solution may give some leaf burn (especially in hot, dry weather), however, no yield differences have been noted at harvest time.

Preliminary results indicate that some Amine 2,4-D formulations can be mixed with the nitrogen solution—by first mixing with water. This mixture gives little to no burn to the small grain and weed control is satisfactory. Apply 1/2 lb. of the acid equivalent 2,4-D Amine per acre. First mix one part of the 2,4-D Amine in 4 parts water. Add this mixture to the nitrogen solution with considerable agitation. Apply the mixture immediately. If allowed to stand for more than 24 hours, a precipitate may form which will clog the sprayer.

Chickweed and henbit are controlled by 1 to 2 lbs. DNBP (Dinitro) per acre. This is done when the small grain is about 4 to 6 inches tall and the weeds are small. (See "Small Grain Chemical Weed Control," Extension Folder No. 105.)

9. HARVEST ON TIME

Harvest grain promptly when moisture is around 14 per cent. If you have been able to keep diseases and weeds under control, your grain should be at its best quality at this time.

Each rain on standing, ripe grain will lower test weight and cause weathering.

10. INSECT AND RODENT CONTROL IN STORAGE

Do you store wheat, oats, or barley for a marketing advantage or for feeding purposes? It may be to your advantage to do so.

Be sure to store these commodities so their quality is preserved. Consider these items:

- (1) Store grain in structures that are rodent and bird proof.
- (2) Plan facilities that allow for aeration, turning, or otherwise maintaining safe moisture levels (14 per cent or below).
- (3) Clean and treat bin and surrounding area before storing your crop.
- (4) Use premium grade malathion for protecting grain from insects (1 pint 57 per cent EC with 5 gallons water per 1,000 bushels grain or 60 pounds 1% dust per 1,000 bushels grain).
- (5) Use approved fumigants if necessary to combat any insect infestation that may develop in storage.

11. BENEFITS FROM SMALL GRAIN

Our small grain can be important in many ways.

- (1) They can be a profitable cash grain crop. Locally produced wheat is needed and used by local millers for flour and wheat products. Oats and barley are important as supplementary grains in our livestock and poultry feeding.

N. C. Drivers License Division Wins Award For 6th Year in Row

The North Carolina Motor Vehicles Department's Driver Licensing Division led the entire nation last year in driver examination, driver licensing and driver control, according to the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators.

It was the sixth such honor in a row for the Tar Heel License-men who were rated just a single point short of perfection.

A panel of traffic experts, evaluating the performance of all 50 states, gave 99 points to North Carolina. A grade of 85 is necessary to put a state in the running for AAMVA's coveted "Achievement Award." Only 15 other states and the District of Columbia made the 1960 listing. North Carolina's closest competitor in the point totals was New Jersey with 94.

The other states with their scores included: Oregon, 94; D. C., 94; Ohio, 94; Minnesota, 92; Illinois, 91; California, 90; Alabama, 89; Pennsylvania, 88; Georgia, 88; Florida, 87; South Carolina, 86; Texas, 85; and Arizona, 85.

Elton R. Péele, Director of the Driver's License Division, will accept the award next month at the Association's Annual Conference in Miami Beach.

Driver Licensing and control is one of the Motor agency's biggest and busiest operations. An immense file of every licensed driver is maintained with a notation as to individual driving records. The Division also issues original and renewal permits to a half million applicants yearly and keeps close tag on traffic violation and accidents incurred by drivers.

The new recruiter will assume duties as a Marine Corps recruiter in Lafayette, La.

Before entering the service in May 1953, Winters attended Mocksville High School.

Division clerks also mail out about 5,000 warning letters a month to border-line traffic offenders and cooperate with other divisions in varied driver improvement programs.

There are over two million licensed drivers in North Carolina, which means a full day's work every day for the Division's 324 Examiners, Clerk and Officials.

Wade B. Gentry, License Examiner is in his office in Mocksville on Thursday and Friday of each week, 8:30 A.M. until 5:30 P.M. He will be glad to answer any question you might have concerning driver licensing.

Social Security In Davie County

"People are still losing social security benefits with every passing month simply because they do not apply," James P. Temple, social security district manager at Salisbury, said today. "The number of persons and the amount of lost benefits cannot be estimated with any accuracy," he said, "but it is a large figure." Mr. Temple bases that statement on the many cases of lost benefits that do come to light in the course of casual inquiries about social security matters. He cited an extreme example that occurred last month.

A man called at the office to claim benefits for a nephew age 17. The boy's father had been killed in an auto accident several years ago, and the uncle had brought his nephew home to live with him. When asked by the representative in sooner, the uncle replied, "I just thought he would need it more later on when he was ready to go to college." The tragedy is that the boy has lost four years of benefits which could have been accumulated for his education. "Social security benefits are retroactive for only one year," Mr. Temple said, "and benefits which could have been payable before are irretrievably lost."

Mr. Temple stated that the following categories of people are most apt to be losing benefits:

1. Those working at a reduced rate of earnings after retirement age who may have benefits due them for part of each year.
 2. Self-employed people over retirement age who continue to operate their businesses but who are not rendering substantial services in the business during one or more months of the year.
 3. Workers, or survivors of workers, who were told previously that no benefits were payable because there were not sufficient earnings to make the worker insured at that time. Recent amendments have reduced the time required in covered work.
 4. Misinformed persons who have not bothered to inquire about possible benefit payments.
- "The Salisbury social security office was established to furnish personal service to the people of this district," Mr. Temple said. The Salisbury district consists of Rowan, Davie, Davidson, and Iredell counties. The office address is 105 Corriher Ave., Salisbury, and the telephone number is ME 3-4512.

Larry Dean Jones Enlists In Marines

Gunnery Sergeant William R. COWART local Marine Corps Recruiter from Salisbury announced today that Larry Dean JONES, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde JONES, 607 Pine Street, Mocksville has enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps for 4 years and has been transferred to Parris Island, S. C. for 12 weeks of Recruit Training.

After Recruit Training he will be sent to Camp Lejeune, N. C. for 4 weeks of Individual Combat Training and then receive a 20 day leave before reporting to his next duty assignment at one of the many Marine Corps Posts and Stations throughout the world.

MORE ABOUT For The People

In another family the father suffered a severe concussion as the result of an automobile accident. There are four children in the family and it was necessary for them to receive an aid to dependent children grant in order to maintain even a minimum level of living. The elder son has now graduated from high school and is employed. The older daughter, Mary, is an outstanding student in high school and has a flair for writing and editing, a talent which is being recognized by her classmates and teachers, for she is on the staff of the school publication. She has received numerous honors in school, is a member of the scholastic honor society, and hopes to go to college. The public welfare agency will help her toward her goal.

In still another family where the father is disabled and has not regained his health sufficiently to support his family, there are five children. All are normal except one little girl, who is retarded and also has required special medical attention. The parents were hesitant about sending her to school, but the case-worker in the county department of public welfare requested a psychological evaluation. The parents were cooperative. As a result of this examination, it was suggested that the child be included in a special education class for trainable children. She has progressed well in her speech and other areas of learning. Now the family is proud of her accomplishments.

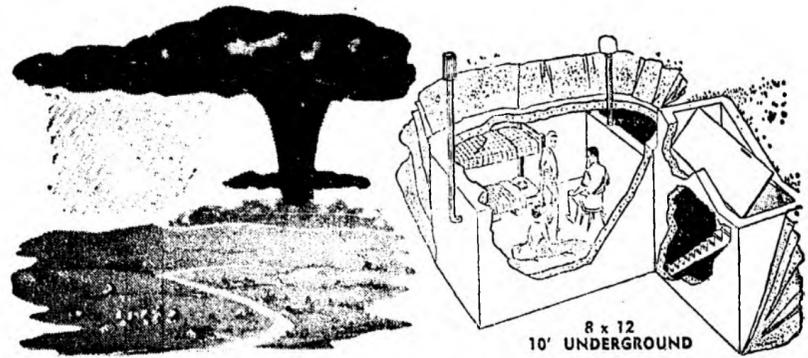

Without the help of aid to dependent children, these same families might have produced such dramatic and exciting news stories as juvenile delinquents, suicides, thefts, or other serious violations. The extreme lengths to which human beings resort when they are without subsistence make the headlines. The quiet, unnewsworthy, closely knit family, however, is the one for which we strive and which is a contributing factor to our American way of life.

LOW OPERATING COST. of the FLAMELESS ELECTRIC HEAT PUMP

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rinaldi Durham

"The cost of operating the electric heat pump for 12 months is an average of $18.71 per month, which we think is a low figure for a large house."

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Phillips Hickory

"We have found the electric heat pump to be the thriftiest way to heat and cool. With Duke Power's lower residential all-electric rate, we feel we are getting the biggest bargain in comfort conditioning today."

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Blakely Greenville, S. C.

"We were pleased to find that the system operated so economically. Our home contains 1860 sq. ft., and the cost of our heating and cooling from April 11, 1960 to April 5, 1961 was only $16.50 per month."

See your Duke Power Residential Representative for first-hand proof of the economical operation of electric heat pumps. Duke Power does not sell or install flameless electric heating systems, but will gladly provide you with complete information.

1961 Feed Grain Payments Completed
Final payments to farmers who earned them by taking part in the 1961 Feed grain program for corn and grain sorghum have been completed in Davie County, according to L. G. Miller, Chairman of the Davie County ASCS Committee.

Advance payments were made to most producers at the time they signified their intention of participating in the program as means of helping meet production expenses and maintaining farmers' income.

Davie County farmers received a total of $54,162.42 for diverting corn and grain sorghum acreage into soil-conserving uses, as provided under the program. Payments were made in the form of certificates, which producers exchanged for cash.

The 1961 feed grain program was designed to reduce production of feed grains eligible for price support and to end the constant buildup of stocks on which the Government must pay storage. Mr. Miller emphasized that compliance with the program is contingent upon the proper protection, throughout 1961, of the land retired from production. A violation of program provisions could result in a tremendous loss to the producer.

Congress has authorized a similar program for 1962 feed grain crops, adding barley to the corn and grain sorghum crops covered by the program. The program sign up for 1962 crop winter barley will get under way soon, as well as for the 1962 wheat stabilization program made available by growers' recent approval of marketing quotas for the 1962 wheat crop. Definite sign-up dates will be announced by the ASCS Office.

ASC Community Committee Elected
The ASC Community Committee election was held in all communities on Sept. 11, 1961. The ASC - Farmer Committees are in charge of local administration of such national farm programs as the Agricultural Conservation Program, the Feed Grain Program, the Conservation Reserve Program, the National Wool Program, Acreage Allotments and Marketing Quotas, Commodity Loans and Storage Facility Loans.

The ASC Community Committee Chairman and Vice-Chairman automatically become the Delegate and Alternate Delegate, respectively, to the county convention where the County ASC Committee will be elected. The County Convention will be held at the ASCS Office on Thursday, Sept. 21, 1961, at 10 a.m. The following is a list of community committeemen to serve during the year 1962. Listing in order of chairman, vice-chairman, regular member first alternate, and second alternate.

Dixie Classic Pre-Fair Rally Draws Northwest Leaders

Approximately 200 leaders from Northwest North Carolina met in Winston-Salem Thursday, September 7, for the Dixie Classic Fair's annual Pre-Fair Rally. Plans for the fair's showing October 10-14 were discussed by fair committee members, superintendents, newspaper, radio, television, and outdoor advertising representatives, and other special guests.

Beginning at 4 P. M., the various committees and groups met to discuss their different participations. These groups included Livestock, Poultry and Pigeons, Horticulture 14-H FFA field crops, vegetables, tobacco booths, forestry, etc., Flower Shows, Community Development, Home-making and Home Demonstration Club Booths, Youth Livestock, Educational Booths, Girls' Work, Leisure Time Activities, and Fine Arts and Crafts.

At 5 o'clock all groups gathered at the new stage area in the Coliseum for a preview of the 1961 Fair. Here they were welcomed by Neil Bolton, fair manager, who predicted, "The coming Dixie Classic Fair will be the most exciting regional event of the year."

Committee reports were then heard until 5:40 P. M., when James Hall, choral director of Winston-Salem City Schools, presented a vocal trio and string band. Rotary Told Of Civil Defense

Rotarians were told Tuesday that:

"Your chance for survival may depend about your knowledge of civil defense!"

The speaker was Herman E. Sisk, Area Civil Defense Chairman.

Mr. Sisk pointed out that there are 13 probable targets listed in North Carolina—with Greensboro the number one in the state.

He said that a 20 megaton bomb—which would probably be used as equal to 20 million tons of TNT exploding at one time. The explosion would probably tear a hole 200 to 300 feet deep and many miles across.

The speaker told the Rotarians that Davie County had been designated as a reception center which meant that it might have to take care of all its own people plus 5,000 evacuees from the Winston-Salem area.

"Each family should have a plan and a survival shelter—A plan and provisions that will enable you and your family to survive for at least two weeks", said Mr. Sisk.

He pointed out that the radio-actively could penetrate solid materials. To prevent penetration it required:

- 2 1/2-inches of lead, 2-feet of concrete, 8-feet of wood, 3-feet of dirt.

Mr. Sisk passed out civil defense material to those present and answered many questions from the floor.

Lester P. Martin, Jr. had charge of the program and introduced Mr. Sisk. President Gordon Tomlinson presided. Ed Bowles was present as student guest.

Davie Savings Bonds Sales Total $133,026

A sharp upturn in the sale of Series E and H Savings Bonds during August pushed the cumulative sales for this year ahead of 1960 sales.

Knox Johnstone, Davie County Volunteer Savings Bonds Chairman, expressed much pleasure with the current sales trend of bonds. He said, "As more people recognize not only the many advantages Savings Bonds offer but also the need of greater bond sales, I am sure we will make our annual quotas both in the county and North Carolina."

Davie County sales for August were $12,630.00. For the year sales amounted to $133,026.00. This is 66.1 per cent of the county's 1961 quota of $201,240.

Cutting down on advertising to save money is like stopping the clock to save time.

The urge to trim operating expenses when sales drop off is certainly understandable. But slashing an ad budget can rob a retailer of valuable sales help just at a time when he needs it the most.

The true value of advertising is in its cumulative effect. Consistency in advertising is more important than the size of any one advertisement. There is a lot of truth in the old adage: "There are two good times to advertise—when business is good and when business is bad."

The slogan of this year's event, as indicated on more than 200,000 banners, is "Letters are Links".

EFFECTIVE, MONDAY, OCTOBER 2nd IN COOLEEMEE DURHAM BANK & TRUST COMPANY BECOMES

The Bank's the Same...What's New is the Name

Next Monday, October 2, 1961, Durham Bank & Trust Company becomes Central Carolina Bank & Trust Company.

What does this name change mean to you?

The answer: The bank's the same, what's new is the name.

There will be a new sign on the door, of course. But nothing else will be changed. The same good people will be at the bank to serve you.

Then why change a name which has behind it 58 years of service and history?

SAME CHECKS You can continue to use your present Durham Bank checks and deposit slips.

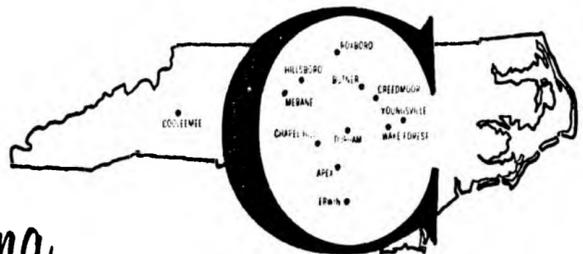

SAME LOCATION AND HOURS The location of our office and banking hours remain the same.

SAME HOME TOWN SERVICE As we say, the bank's the same, what's new is our name.

Because when the bank was formed in 1903, it served only Durham and Durham County. Through the years Durham Bank grew and so did the area it serves. Today, much of the bank's business, many of our offices, thousands of our customers are located in communities and counties outside of Durham.

The new name more accurately reflects the area and scope of our service and facilities. And with a new name, there's a new aim—to make Central Carolina the most prosperous and progressive section of the State.

We think our new name is an improvement. We hope you'll like it, too.

Laos Student Enters Catawba

Dr. Tom Dooley's Prayer Answered

Dr. Tom Dooley, famed Lao medical pioneer, died some months ago, but one of his prayers was answered this week as Khamphout Phanthavong of Vientiane, Laos, enrolled at Catawba College to study education.

In 1959, Peter P. Cooper, Catawba College political and social science chairman, was discussing with Dr. Dooley the latter's pioneering work among the friendly, intelligent and desperately needy Lao, and Cooper suggested that Dr. Dooley send some young Lao to the U. S. for medical training so that they could take over from Dooley, who was in the U. S. for a cancer operation.

"It is one of my most fervent prayers that such a thing will come to pass," said Dooley. "The problem is finding a Lao who can speak enough English, and who has enough education to complete a pre-med course in the U. S. Then we'd have to find a good college or friend to offer a scholarship; and then we'd have to get funds to send him to the U. S. Educational facilities and income are very poor in Laos."

Cooper had been in contact with Rotarians in Vientiane as part of a Rotary International Information program, and suggested that with their help, Dr. Dooley should be able to find the prospective student. Also, Rotary Clubs could help with living expenses. Catawba College agreed to provide the pre-med scholarship. The U. S. State Department indicated that transportation might be arranged.

Plan was set in motion, but the search for the pre-med student was futile. It seemed impossible to find a young Lao with the right kind of high school education who had the desire to be a doctor. Dr. Dooley, now quite ill, turned the project over to his good friends, Hank Miller and Charles Searles of the U. S. Information Service in Laos.

If high school education were the need, why not bring a Lao student to the U. S. to study education, suggested Cooper. This student could return to Laos and help build an educational system which could produce pre-med candidates. Searles agreed to conduct the search for such a student.

The war in Laos interfered and the project looked hopeless. Mr. Searles, Cultural Affairs officer of the U. S. Information Service, found a candidate. He was Khamphout Phanthavong, who at 24, was chief of the Foreign Affairs Section of the Lao Ministry of National Education.

Khamphout, one of eight children of an elementary school teacher, could not afford to come to the U. S. on his extremely small salary, but he had a burning ambition for a college education in order to help his struggling nation. He had studied public administration and English in England for nine months and spoke English and French well.

Couldn't Spare Him

The State Department arranged his transportation. Catawba College agreed to provide a scholarship in education, but Khamphout's superiors didn't want him to go. Young men with even his education were rare and no replacement could be found. Even if a replacement could be found, the ministry couldn't spare him for four years.

"You have a good position," they argued, "why not be content? If you go to the U. S., your family will have less support, you will be far from home, and it will be most difficult for you to get much of a college education in the short time you would be there, even if we could find a replacement. And, if you get an education, it would only make you dissatisfied with life."

Khamphout persisted. He would leave his small savings to help his family. He was willing to work hard in the U. S. college, and would cram all the education possible into the time he had. He could not be content with his present position when he had an opportunity to help his nation even more.

Superiors Relented

Only one week before he was due to leave for Catawba College, after weeks of communication difficulties due to the war in Laos, and other problems, Khamphout's superiors relented and he was permitted to go for a year, subject to extension.

Flying via Hong Kong, Japan, Hawaii, San Francisco, and Chicago, he landed in Greensboro on the evening of September 9 to change planes for Charlotte. While waiting, he struck up a conversation with a distinguished-looking stranger who proved to be

Mr. Ernest Hardin, Salisbury investment broker. Hardin insisted that Khamphout accompany him by auto to Salisbury and Catawba College.

Khamphout enrolled at Catawba College this week. Not only has one of Dr. Tom Dooley's prayers been answered, but those of Khamphout Phanthavong as well. He has a hard road ahead, but if determination means anything, he will succeed.

Letter To The Editor
OUR HELP IN AGES PAST
MONTGOMERY HIGH SCHOOL
subject.

Stop, look and listen.
Rev. Montgomery, a Principal and teacher in Mocksville School when the Union Hall on Depot St. was a county lease because there was no school building for colored here, he saw the need not only for a building but a High School, and through his determination and long out-reaching effort, in later years he succeeded. He was pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church, a civic worker, leader and honored Principal, even when the weight of years was bearing down on him and his hair had turned to a solid silver, and his voice low and quivering, a ceaseless death took him to his long awaited home. The sound ended but the melody lingered on. His work ended but the memory of Montgomery lingers on. So may we not use the name of one who did great things somewhere else, but the one who has done great things for us, and name it as a memorial to the man Montgomery, "Montgomery High School".

Garland Ellis.

Miss Harpe is taking part during the fall quarter, September 12 through November 22 in the student teaching program of Appalachian State Teachers College, Boone, N. C. In this program students devote approximately twelve weeks to student teaching in the field for which they have been preparing. Miss Harpe is teaching sixth grade under the supervision of Mrs. Sara Collins. As part of the Student teaching program, the Appalachian student usually lives in the community near the school and participates in community activities as well as in school activities. The student devotes full time in the school and gradually takes over the full teaching load, always under the supervision of the supervising teacher and the principal. The local school's participation with Appalachian's student teaching program is a valuable asset to the general education program of North Carolina.

Mr. Angell was awarded the trip for outstanding sales achievement during the last year.

They first flew via a Braniff International Airways Boeing Super Jet to Montego Bay, Jamaica, where they stayed at the Royal Caribbean Sea Club.

The following day they boarded the Braniff Jet again to fly on to Panama in Central America and convention headquarters at the Hotel El Panama Hilton. Business seminars and product training meetings were held in addition to a preview showing of 1962 Gibson appliances.

Panama has one of the most colorful histories of any of the Latin American countries and is a modern crossroads of the world. A visit to the Panama Canal is one of the highlights of this sightseeing and shopping paradise.

WHAT'S THE TRUE STORY ABOUT HEATING COSTS?

HEATING COST? This house requires 110 million BTU's of heat per year. Oil Heat furnishes the necessary BTU's at less cost than would any other fuel.

HEATING COST? Yet the same house with more insulation requires only 90 million BTU's of heat per year. Oil Heat also furnishes these BTU's at less cost.

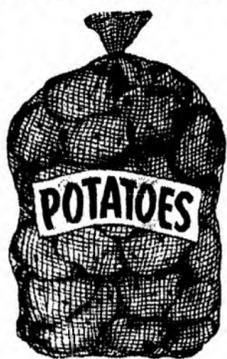

WHAT DOES THIS PROVE? This shows that any given house or family will require a certain number of BTU's for heating comfort. Oil Heat is more economical for all types of construction simply because fuel oil heat puts out more BTU's per dollar's worth of fuel than will any other type of automatic heat. This is a proven scientific fact.

It's often possible to get confused about the cost of various types of heating. The best rule to follow is this: Every home or business requires a given number of BTU's to provide for your comfort. The manner in which your house is constructed may call for more or less BTU's.

The important thing to know is which fuel will provide your BTU requirement at the lowest cost. The answer is Oil Heat... and for a very simple reason. Fuel Oil puts out more BTU's per dollar's worth of fuel than will any other type of automatic heat.

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS ABOUT THE CIVIL WAR

In researching "The American Civil War", the award-winning television series now being carried by television stations in Charlotte, Greensboro and Durham, historian Roy Meredith and dramatist William J. Kaland, unearthed the following facts:

Railroads were extensively used for the rapid movement of military supplies and of large bodies of troops from one theatre of operation to another.

Aerial reconnaissance was first effectively used from anchored balloons in military operations.

The electric telegraph was used in the strategic control of military operations in widely separated theatres and in the tactical direction of troops in battle.

A multi-manned submarine sank a surface vessel.

Opposing Ironclads engaged in naval battle.

Medical care of the wounded was systematically organized.

Participants, sites and equipment were photographed on a large scale.

Nationwide conscription was used to raise armies in North America.

A practical machine gun was developed.

Voting by soldiers and sailors in service was provided for by national laws.

Rifled artillery came into general use.

Mobile railroad artillery was used.

Large-scale coverage was carried on by recognized news correspondents at the front.

The repeating rifle was used by large troop units.

Wire entanglements in field fortifications were used.

The Medal of Honor was awarded.

Of the 364,000 on the Union side who lost their lives, a third were killed or died of wounds and two-thirds died of disease.

The chance of surviving a wound in Civil War days was 7 to 1; in the Korean War, 50 to 1.

There were 6,000,000 cases of disease in the Federal armies, which meant that, on an average, every man was sick at least twice.

The diseases most prevalent were dysentery, typhoid, fever, malaria, pneumonia, arthritis, and the acute diseases of childhood, such as measles and malnutrition.

The principal weapon of the war and the one by which 80 per cent of all wounds were produced was a single-shot, muzzle-loading rifle in the hands of foot soldiers.

Most wounds were caused by an elongated bullet made of soft lead, about an inch long, pointed at one end and hollowed out at the base, and called a "minnie" ball, having been invented by Capt. Minnie of the French army.

Fully armed, a soldier carried about seven pounds of ammunition. His cartridge pouch contained 40 rounds, and an additional 60 rounds might be conveyed in the pocket if an extensive battle was anticipated.

Artillery was used extensively, but only about 10 per cent of the wounded were the victims of artillery fire.

Besides the rifle and cannon, weapons consisted of revolvers, swords, cutlasses, hand grenades, Greek fire and land mines.

Many doctors who saw service in the Civil War had never been to medical school, but had served an apprenticeship in the office of an established practitioner.

The first organized ambulance corps were used in the Peninsular campaign and at Antietam.

In the battle of Gettysburg, 1,100 ambulances were in use. The medical director of the Union army boasted that all the wounded were picked up from the field within 12 hours after the battle was over. This was a far cry from the second battle of Bull Run, when many of the wounded were left on the field in the rain, heat and sun for three or four days.

The first U. S. Naval Hospital ship, the RED ROVER, was used on the inland waters during the Vicksburg campaign.

Some authorities accredit the 26th North Carolina Regiment with having incurred the greatest loss in a single battle recorded in the Civil War. At the Battle of Gettysburg, it lost 708 of its men, or approximately 85 per cent of its total strength. In one company of 84 men, every man and officer was hit. The orderly sergeant who made out the report had a bullet wound through both legs.

During the Shenandoah Valley Campaign of 1862, "Stonewall" Jackson marched his force of 16,000 men over 600 miles in 39 days, fighting five major battles and defeating four separate armies totaling 63,000.

In the Vicksburg campaign in 1863, Grant won five battles within a period of approximately 5,200 on the enemy. He captured 31,600 prisoners, 172 cannon and 6,000 small arms when Vicksburg fell - the greatest military haul ever made in the western hemisphere.

The greatest cavalry battle ever fought in the Western Hemisphere was at Brandy Station, Virginia, on June 9, 1863. Nearly 20,000 cavalymen were engaged on a relatively confined terrain for more than 12 hours.

The Confederate cruiser SHENANDOAH sailed completely around the world, raiding Union whalers and commerce vessels. The ship and its crew surrendered to English authorities in Liverpool more than 6 months after Lee's surrender at Appomattox.

Approximately 6,000 battles, skirmishes, and engagements were fought during the Civil War.

There were over 2,000 lads 14 years old or younger in the Union ranks. Three hundred were 13 years or less while there were 200,000 no older than 16 years.

The C. S. S. ALABAMA in 11 months captured 69 Northern prizes valued at $6,500,000.

During the Civil War, one small section of Virginia became America's bloodiest battle ground. In an area of barely 20 square miles and including Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, The Wilderness, Spotsylvania and Cold Harbor, more than half a million men fought in deadly combat. Here, more men were killed and wounded during the Civil War than were killed and wounded in the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, the War with Mexico and all of the Indian Wars Combined. No fewer than 19 generals - 10 Union and 9 Confederate - met death here.

President Lincoln had four brother-in-law who served in the Confederate Army.

At Lynchburg, Virginia, in June, 1864, there were present on the field of battle ex-Vice President of the United States George C. Breckinridge, C. S. A., and future Presidents Maj. William McKinley and George Rutherford B. Hayes, U. S. S. Other Union Generals who later became President were U. S. Grant, Chester A. Arthur, James A. Garfield, and Benjamin Harrison.

Jefferson Davis graduated 23rd in his class at West Point. He served in the House of Representatives and the United States Senate, was a Colonel in the Mexican War, and served as Secretary of War in President Pierce's Cabinet from 1853-1857.

Of the original 26 members of the Confederate Senate, 14 were former United States Congressmen.

Robert E. Lee and P. G. T. Beauregard had both served as Superintendent of the United States Military Academy. William Tecumseh Sherman was Superintendent of the Louisiana Seminary of Learning and Military Academy (now known as Louisiana State University) of the eve of the Civil War.

Confederate Generals Joseph E. Johnston and Samuel Cooper held high positions in the United States Army in 1861. Johnston was the Quarter-master General and Cooper the Adjutant General. Johnston in later years was a pall-bearer at the funerals of General U. S. Grant, Admiral David D. Porter and William T. Sherman. He had faced all three in battle, and his death is said to have been brought on by pneumonia contracted at General Sherman's funeral.

Gen. George B. McLellan, "Stonewall" Jackson and Ge. George Pickett were graduated in the same class at West Point. Pickett received his appointment to the Academy through John Todd Stuart, Lincoln's law partner.

Commodore Franklin Buchanan, first Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy and Commander of the Washington Navy yard when the Civil War began, cast his lot with the South. Later, in command of the C. S. S. VIRGINIA (ex MERRIMAC), he destroyed the U. S. S. CONGRESS on which his brother was an officer.

Gen. John B. Magruder commanded the 1st United States Artillery which was sent to Washington in 1861 to defend the Capital, but he resigned his commission and joined the Confederacy.

Until his death early in 1862, ex-President of the United States John Tyler was a member of the Confederate Provisional Congress.

NOT OVER... Although Attorney General Wade Bruton has ruled that there is no provision in our State Constitution for the election of a Lieutenant Governor to succeed a vacancy in this office, there is broad disagreement on the question among some of the best legal minds in the State.

We told you here in this column about 10 days in advance of the query that a search might be made for a legal loophole so that the No. 2 man could be named by the Republicans or Democrats next year.

David M. McConnell of Charlotte, chairman of the State Board of Elections, prompted the question which Wade Bruton answered. This is the information which comes pretty straight to us. The Sanford administration is, of course, willing to abide by the Attorney General's decision.

McConnell, an admirer of the Governor and on good terms with all the top men of the administration is not expected to probe further into the matter. Had Bruton found otherwise, McConnell would likely have been a candidate for the office for the remainder of the term - but no further.

STILL GOING... But still pursuing the matter is the man who ran second to Cloyd Philipp in the Lieutenant Governor's race last year - C. V. Henkel of Statesville.

It is interesting to note that Henkel seemed to have no interest in the question until McConnell, the man who ran a close third started probing. Now McConnell is apparently out of the picture - and Henkel is taking up the fight.

Now this could become one of the most interesting political tussles to come along in this State in some time. Henkel has the money, the time, and the stubborn persistence to stay with it. He is like a bulldog with a sock - and this one seems in for a lot of shaking.

CAN'T USE IT... Now that summer and vacations are gone, Sunday School is in full swing here and the churches are crowded each Sabbath.

The tiny tots are learning their lessons, catechisms, and creeds. One of them, a six year old boy, apparently learned his real good. His friends had teased him 'through the summer for being so left handed. And, when they fell out with him in play, they were particularly bitter. He wished so much to be right-handed. He even cuts and writes with his left hand.

But last Sunday when he was teased again, he was ready with an answer. "Know something," he asked smugly, "God is left-handed."

His older playmates stopped their idle chatter at once. They moved in on him with questions. "I didn't bother him a bit. He told them calmly that he had heard it at Sunday School (Episcopal) that very morning. Pressed further, he explained that God could only use his left hand, "because they told us that

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: The fellers at the country store didn't git nothing solved Saturday night on account of Zeke Grubb's preacher come by afore they got started good.

The Parson allowed as how this was the night for the regular monthly meeting of the Light Committee but they had to call it off on account of Katie Hig-tower took sick. He said Katie was named this year to pull the main switch and you couldn't have no meeting of the Light Committee with the main switch puller absent.

Anyhow, he said, he was glad to git the night off to rest up from the Choir Committee meeting they had Friday night. He claimed things was real rough Friday night. The choir director served notice she was going to quit if they didn't keep them flat voices out of the choir. It was voted to keep 'em out, but the Parson said they'd have to appoint another committee to figger out how to do it.

Then Ellie Sanders got up and allowed as how they ought to have more solos. The Parson said Ellie was sorted heavy-set and sung the same way and done a powerful job of moving the congregation with her solos. He said one Sunday when she got through with her special everybody in the church clapped. By the way the meeting went, the Parson said he was expecting a heap of solos by Ellie from now on.

One member brag up the complaint that the choir loft was so hot in the summer that he couldn't sing good. The Parson said this feller couldn't carry a tune in a bucket and the rest of the choir had to sing real loud so the congregation couldn't hear him even in the winter time when he wasn't suffering from the heat. But it was voted, the Parson said, to ask the congregation to appoint an air conditioning committee to look into the matter fer next summer.

The Parson said that personal he was agin putting any air conditioning in the church, said he was having it hard enough making it hot fer sinners like it was. Anyhow, he claimed, they wasn't no vacant time left in the church fer the Air Conditioning Committee to meet unless they wanted to meet joint with the Stove Committee and the Stove Committee was already overlapping into time allotted to the Fund Raising Committee.

All the fellers enjoys having the Parson drop by on Saturday night. Ed Doolittle invited him to set a while longer but he said he had to git on home and work up a little sermon to go with the music Sunday morning, some-pun that would go good with one of Ellie's solos.

Yours truly
Uncle Dan

TEXT: "Undisciplined lives are eventually disciplined, cruelly and to late" - J. W. Hill

Little Johnny came in from play with a very serious expression.

"Mommy," he said, "where did I come from?"

His mother decided that this was the time to inform her son, so she gave him the whole story from birds and bees to birth. When she finished she asked,

"Now, Johnny, do you understand?"

"I guess so," replied Johnny. "Only Billy says he came from Texas and Dave came from New York. I just wanted to know where I came from."

Johnny's mother talked too much. It is a common error for us to go to excess in many things. We are prone to indulge ourselves excessively and form a habit of excesses. Some of us learn eventually, that all excesses are harmful.

If we enter this world with sets of glands that are excessively active, we become freaks or monstrosities. That we cannot help. When we take our normal, healthy selves and adopt excesses that make us abnormal, that is our fault.

SENATOR SAM ERVIN SAYS:

WASHINGTON - The first session of the 87th Congress is now being analyzed by the people. I would describe it as a "moderate" Congress as has the noted news columnist William S. White. Mr. White said that it could not be called either liberal or conservative in its thinking. While there seem to be some impressions to the contrary, and there has been some effort to make it appear that this has been a somewhat radical Congress, the work of this Congress has been largely a continuation of programs which originated in times past. I think the Congress this year passed some fine legislation that was necessary for the good of our country. I give credit in large measure to our new Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana. He is a man with an understanding heart who leads by persuasion rather than by pressure. An equally important reason why Congress has made an impressive record this session is the excellent relation that President Kennedy has had with the Congress. The President by virtue of his experience in both Houses of Congress knows what makes Congressman tick. He has reestablished a measure of co-operation with the Congress that has been lacking for many years.

Senate Rule Change Falls
We are living in an age when the people of the earth are confronted with the fear of terrible weapons and the very destruction of our civilization. This condition, I am afraid, has brought about an indifference toward many of our most cherished principles including the Constitutional principle of "freedom of speech." Modern history teaches that whenever a dictator wishes to extinguish the lights of liberty in his country the first thing he does in the process which brings the dictatorship to fruition is to silence the power of minorities to speak their will on the floor of the legislative body of his country. One of the last items on the Senate agenda was whether to amend Rule 22 to make it easier to curtail debate. Several years ago Walter Lippman summed up in a masterful way the case against changing Rule 22. I quote a portion of Mr. Lippman's statement: "Although the question before the Senate is whether to amend the rules, the issue is not one of parliamentary procedure. It is whether there shall be a profound and far-reaching constitutional change in the character of the American Government." I am glad that the Senate in its wisdom has killed the motion to change Rule 22 for this session and very likely also for the next session of Congress. The Senate Majority Leader said after the vote on Rule 22 that he did not "intend to engage in sham battles which will have no beneficial effect, but will take up the time of the Senate and keep it from doing the business it is supposed to be doing in behalf of the country."

Poultry Industry
The Senate and House Agricultural Committees are faced with the problem of helping the American poultry industry. North Carolina is vitally concerned in this matter. The industry has been in bad economic state for some time. I do not know of any persons who are in need of more assistance in the marketing of their product than are the poultry producers.

Secretary Hodges said that before he received his present appointment, he was having lunch with President Kennedy and some others and the day was Friday. When asked by the waiter if he wanted meat or fish, Hodges said he would take fish. Knowing that he was a Methodist, a friend chided him, he said, asking if he were trying to make a good impression on the President. "No," said Hodges, "I ordered fish simply because I like fish and not for any religious reasons." President Kennedy, it seems, has asked him to write the transportation policy of the United States, "Something they have been working on for twenty years," the Secretary explained blithely. "Well, I surely am glad he has given me until November 1st to finish the job!"

SO THIS IS NEW YORK . . .

By NORTH CALLAHAN

With all the serious matters concerning the world, it is cheering and stimulating to talk with Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges. He is a man who evidently thinks we live in a good world and he is in favor of proving it. In New York to speak at the Rotary Club - of which he was once president - he exuded good feelings all over the town and left those of us who chatted with him in a better frame of mind. Asked why after retiring from business, he entered the hectic field of politics he told me, "I have lived a good life, and now I want to give some of it back."

Checking on this former Governor of North Carolina in Who's Who, I find that he is 63 years of age and was born in Virginia, receiving his A. B. from the University of North Carolina. Secretary Hodges is evidently a modest man too, for he has only one inch of space in the big Who's in America, whereas some others on the same two facing pages whom I never heard of, have as much as four inches. Of course he feels at home here, for he lived in a local suburb for several years while he was vice president of Marshall Field and Company. I was surprised at his age, for he seems at least ten years younger.

"Things look much better," he replied, when asked how he viewed present business conditions. "We are coming out of the recent recession faster than our country has ever done under similar circumstances." Now for some people this may be hard to believe - but Luther Hodges evidently believes it. Our gold outflow is now only one-half the rate it was in 1959-60, the Secretary of Commerce stated, although he admitted to an avowed Republican friend who was present, that things could be even better than they are. For example, we export only four per cent of our national product, he admitted, then quickly defended the present national administration by saying with engaging emphasis that "trade and travel are much better than aid and war." But it

The visiting official tempered his optimism with caution, however. He did not want us to get the idea that all is well or that the United States is invincible and invulnerable. "We think we're good and we are," he said. "But we're not as good as we think we are. For example, we are not beginning to sell the United States abroad. We need to do a much bigger and better job of creating a favorable image of our country in the minds of foreign people, yet at the same time not sacrifice our self-respect and dignity." When asked what he felt that the press, for instance, could do to help, Secretary Hodges replied that he thought there was too much sensational news printed and not enough good news. Although he was as welcome here as the cool fall air which has struck this region, after a month of tropical, torrid heat. And if Luther Hodges can do as good a job of selling us to those we wish to be sold to as he made a good impression on this visit here, indeed, things are looking up, and we have reason to be thankful that our Department of Commerce which helps to guide our nation's business, is in such good hands.

Lumber is graded according to its appearance and strength. Appearance grades are generally for interior finish or for exterior siding and trim. Strength grades are determined primarily on the stress factors they develop.

FOR VARIETY
To add spice and variety to a wood deck, try fluting the ends. That is, let every other Douglas fir two by four deck board protrude three to four inches beyond its neighbor. The result is a saw-tooth edge.

For The People

By BERNADETTE W. HOYLE
Public Information Officer
N. C. State Board of Public Welfare

(This is the 4th of a series explaining public welfare in North Carolina.)

The files of the 100 county departments of public welfare in North Carolina are filled with case histories of the aid to dependent children program which show the many ways that this program has helped strengthen family life and make families independent.

Today's case histories show one common denominator in the families of aid to dependent children—that they had made a real effort to help themselves.

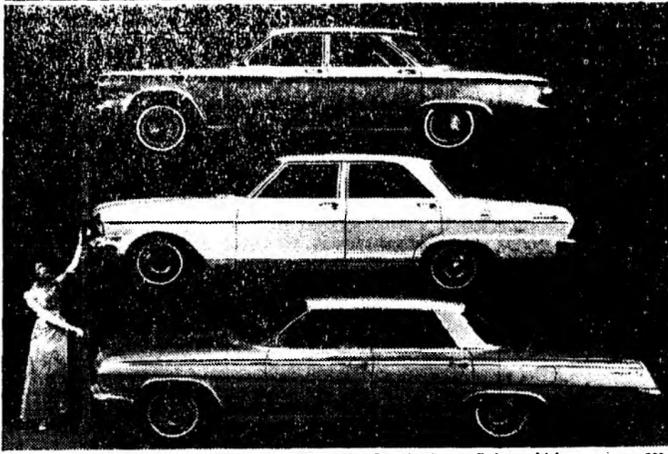

One such family had four children. The father was dead and the mother had tried in every way to maintain a satisfactory home for her children. For a period of time she actually lost money by working outside the home, due to her low wages as a domestic worker and the cost of transportation to and from her job. An aid to dependent children grant was obtained for the family. All the children were kept in school and Sarah, the oldest, was graduated from high school last Spring. She had expressed a definite desire to become a nurse. The summer before her senior year in high school she obtained a job and was able to earn some money for her clothing and incidental school expenses. Before graduation she was aided in securing a scholarship help and the whole family is excited over the fact that Sarah will be able to continue her schooling and become a nurse.

In another case, a father had deserted his wife and family of three children. The family was approved for an aid to dependent children grant. The mother worked as a domestic and also tried to assume a worthwhile role in community life by teaching a Sunday School class. Rebecca, the oldest child, was salutatorian of her high school class. She wants to become a teacher and the senior advisor in her school recommended her for a scholarship. Through the summer months the girl worked in an effort to pay her own expenses and provide some of her clothing for school. With the help of the public welfare department, she obtained a $300 college scholarship and the agency will assist her in getting the necessary clothing which she could not furnish herself.

Susan was an only child. She was born out of wedlock. Her mother, too, worked as a domestic and a study of the home situation showed that the mother always kept an adequate home. At times she obtained work sewing for many people, but now is physically handicapped. An aid to dependent children budget has included school expenses for Susan. Susan was an excellent student, and always talked of "going on to school" in order to become a teacher, an ambition shared by her mother. At the time of her graduation from high school, Susan was awarded four honor medals. Her high school principal gave her an excellent recommendation and she was referred for assistance in obtaining a scholarship.

Chevrolet Offers 3 Lines for 1962

The wide range of choices Chevrolet dealers will offer for 1962 is hinted in this three-car photograph. Pictured to compare over-all length are (top to bottom) the 180-inch Corvair 4-Door Sedan; the 183-inch Chevy II 4-Door Sedan, and the Impala Sport Sedan which measures 208.6 inches. They are representative of 32 passenger car models which Chevrolet dealers will start displaying September 25. The new Chevy II's bow in on the same date as other Chevrolet-built cars.

In another case, the father of five children in a family died in 1952. The mother has made a definite effort to become self-supporting and to keep a comfortable home for the children. She has worked in the fields as a farm hand, and at the same time kept a good garden and tried to raise poultry. An aid to dependent children grant was obtained for the children. The eldest child, Tom, is described as a "top notch" student in the 11th grade. He participated in many extra-curricular activities, has an especial interest in the agricultural program, and has taken a "shop course." He has made some attractive pieces of furniture for the home which the family finds useful and all are very proud of them. The younger children attend school regularly and make good grades. Recently Tom decided to work a year to save money for returning to school the following term.

Aid to dependent children is a money payment for needy dependent children who have been deprived of parental care and support because of the death, physical or mental incapacity or continued absence from the home of one or both parents, whether natural, step, or adoptive.

Weevil Control In Alfalfa
Time is nearing for Davie County alfalfa producers to save their crop from weevils.

The use of granular heptachlor last fall brought good results in several Piedmont and mountain counties this year, says R. L. Robertson, an Extension entomologist at North Carolina State College.

"The weevil was stopped in more than half of the alfalfa fields in the state this year by using granular heptachlor to destroy its eggs," Robertson says.

This year, he hopes, use of granular heptachlor will be a hundred per cent.

"The weevil can destroy the first cutting and delay the second one," says County Extension Agent Leo F. Williams.

Production of this "king of the forage crops" dropped 9,000 acres in the state this year. The figure was 46,000 acres, compared to 55,000 in 1960. And the weevil was primarily responsible.

"Weevil infestation goes on from year to year," Williams notes. "Even if the alfalfa grower treated for weevils last year, he must do it again to get a good crop."

Research carried out since last fall by State College has resulted in changes in recommendations for treatment this fall. "Last year, the recommendation was 40 pounds of 2 1/2 per cent heptachlor granules, applied from Oct. 1-15," says Williams.

The research showed that even better control can result from reducing the amount of granular heptachlor and changing the interval of application, says Robertson.

We now recommend 30 pounds of 2 1/2 per cent heptachlor granules," he says. "The application time is Oct. 1-15 for fields above 2,500 feet in the mountains, and October 15-November in the Piedmont."

If the producers follow recommended dosages and dates, there should be no problem of heptachlor residue, Williams points out. "All acres on the farm should be treated," says Williams. "Even abandoned fields should be treated, to prevent buildup of weevils in them."

The insecticide is broadcast on the field usually with a cyclone seeder (hand or tractor-mounted), or other fertilizer spreaders that can be calibrated to deliver the correct amount.

"Be careful to apply the heptachlor well," Williams advises. "If you miss a swath, likely there'll be damage in that area."

THE MURALS OF NORTH CAROLINA

Fourteen murals . . . depicting significant events in North Carolina's history . . . now adorn the wall in the assembly room of the Joseph Palmer Knapp Building, Institute of Government, University of North Carolina. These murals were painted by Francis Vandever Kugler.

The Institute of Government has made available to this newspaper copies of these murals along with the story of what they represent. Believing these to be of interest to our readers, we are presenting them in order . . . THE MURALS OF NORTH CAROLINA.

MURAL SIX ON TO KING'S MOUNTAIN

This mural represents the celebrated ride of the mountaineers to make a surprise attack at dawn on the Tories who were encamped on King's Mountain. On that fatal night of long ago preceding the battle of King's Mountain, the men with the best mounts were selected to ride ahead to the attack before the enemy could be alerted. They fastened identifying sprigs of pine to their hats and rode hard through the cold rain with their rifles wrapped in their coats to keep them dry. Feeling had run very high between the Loyalists and those determined on independence. Many brutal incidents had occurred—the honor, homes, and very lives of the insurgents were at stake. This scene depicts the faces of men filled with the fury of retribution and the desperate determination to do or die. It was this vital spirit on which the Republic was founded.

New Wheat Stabilization Program

The New Wheat Stabilization Program which can do so much to improve the economy of our rural and urban areas could work to the disadvantage of some small wheat farmers if they do not understand the changes brought about by this new program.

According to A. P. Hassell, Jr., Administrative Officer for the Agricultural Stabilization and State Committee, the Congress, in designing this new law, felt that the total crop production of the small wheat farms, those that were in the 15-acre or less group before, and now are in the 13 1/2 acre or less designation, is quite substantial.

As a matter of fact, Hassell pointed out, the farms with small wheat acreage produced one-sixth of the 1960 crop — about 220 million bushels. These figures are based on conditions as they existed during the 1960 crop year.

Since two-thirds of U. S. wheat producers grew less than 15 acres, the Congress felt that this group would want to make some contribution to the task of bringing supplies more nearly in line with demand.

Hassell emphasized that no part of this program is automatic — he stressed that the farmer who wants to avoid a marketing quota penalty on his 1962 wheat crop or wants to take part in the wheat stabilization program and earn payments for diverting wheat acreage to conservation,
