UNICEF Drive Brings $200

Approximately $200 was collected by the boys and girls in the UNICEF Trick or Treat program here.

The threat of hunger and disease will bear less heavily on many of the world's needy children next year, thanks to the selfless and enthusiastic participation of some 35 of our own youngsters in the UNICEF Trick or Treat program Monday night.

Sponsored by the local Methodist Youth Fellowship, the traditional doorbell ringing activity lasted from 6:30 to about 7:30 p. m. The young people roamed the streets, under the watchful eyes of parents. Doors open as if by magic, and life saving coins showed into the orange and black collection cartons bearing the symbol of the United Nations Children's Fund.

"We are deeply grateful to all the parents who allowed their children to take part in the program," Mrs. Henry Blair said. "Our youngsters have the feeling of having accomplished something valuable, and they can indeed be proud of themselves."

The local UNICEF committee's praise and thanks went also to this newspaper, for the publicity given the Halloween program.

"It was very gratifying to enjoy such wholehearted support," Mrs. Blair said. "The youngsters and citizens of our community have deserved the gratitude of needy mothers and children in all parts of the world."

Local residents who were away from home on Monday night, or were not reached by the young Trick or Treaters for some other reason can still make their contribution. Donations will be accepted by Mrs. Blair or Mrs. C. Chapman or Mrs. Jim Fuller, co-chairmen of the sponsoring group.

Cooleemee Bank To Install New Type Of Electronic Computer

A new type of electronic computer, designed to fit the banking habits of people, not change them, has been ordered from Burroughs Corporation by Central Carolina Bank and Trust Company, Charles F. Bahnsen, manager of the bank's Cooleemee office said today.

Unlike conventional computers, which require information to be translated into holes punched in cards or pulses on magnetic tape, the Burroughs machine works directly with ordinary bank checks, customer ledger records, and other traditionally accepted and easily read bank forms.

The total complex of equipment, valued at more than a quarter-million dollars, will be in operation in Durham by October of next year. First units of the customer-oriented equipment is scheduled for delivery in March, 1963, Bahnsen revealed.

Regardless of the advantages in raw speed and paper handling capability of computers Central Carolina Bank and Trust Company's electronic banking program, begun in 1960, has always been keyed to customer convenience. "High speed equipment will obviously be needed to handle the mounting volume of checks and other bank paper that flows through our offices daily," said Bahnsen. "But we cannot sacrifice our visible customer records to gain this speed," he added.

After reviewing all equipment offered for bank data processing, Central Carolina Bank discovered that the Burroughs computer system was the only one that combined the swift precision of electronics with reliable and familiar banking habits and records.

Central Carolina Bank and Trust Company, which keeps three employees busy full time answering customer inquiries, doesn't intend to let computers do anything else change the way they handle requests for information.

The key to a fast, detailed and current answer is to have the easily readable customer ledger card — with complete account history on it — close at hand. This always has been the critical document in banking.

Paul Wright, Jr., Central Carolina president, says "Now we have found a computer system that fits right into the way our customers like to do business and the way we can provide the best service."

By preserving the vital customer ledger — the starting place for all customer transactions — it doesn't upset any of the established banking procedures.

Operating at speeds in the thousands-of-a-second range, the Burroughs computer can read magnetically coded bank checks at speeds up to 90,000 an hour, post almost 200 customer ledger cards a minute, write statements and perform a host of other data processing jobs in a bank. And at no time does the information needed to answer the hundreds of customer inquiries become "lost" as invisible dots on magnetic tape or holes in paper cards.

A unique ledger processor, the only machine of its kind ever developed, is one of four units in the system. An electronics sorter-reader device in the complex can process up to 1,500 bank checks a minute, reading information coded in magnetic ink on the lower margin of each check and sending this information to the system's transistorized central computer. The main control console for the system is positioned at the right of the ledger processor.

But this one is for banks — and

DUTCH ELM DISEASE

I received a letter this morning saying that the Dutch Elm disease was found in Greensboro in August. This disease has killed most of the elm trees in the states to the north of us. This is not much of an economic loss in North Carolina forestry wise, but a lot of home owners and public grounds have different types of elm for shade trees, and the Dutch elm disease seems to kill all types of elm. People with shade trees may want to start other types of trees to take the place of the elm. Below is the only control method that is known for this disease at the present time:

Control: Although many "cures" have been proposed, no chemical treatment is known at present that will cure a tree once it is affected by this disease. The most effective means of reducing losses from the Dutch elm diseases are (1) remove all elm wood that may serve as a breeding place for the insect vector, (2) spray valuable trees in the dormant period with insecticides such as DDT or Methoxychlor to reduce dissemination and infection, and (3) maintain elm trees in a healthy condition.

Elm trees that are known to be affected should be cut down and entirely destroyed or debarked before beetle emergence in the spring. Recently cut or broken elm branches as well as logs stored for fuel should be burned or debarked. Lines should be sprayed before bark beetles emerge in the spring. Elm wood that accumulates during the winter should be burned or sprayed with an insecticide prior to early spring.

The spray must be thoroughly and properly applied before leaves open prior to emergence of beetles in order to be effective. Among the many materials that have been evaluated for control of the insects that spread the Dutch elm disease fungus, Methoxychlor compares favorably with DDT in effectiveness and residual qualities. It is less toxic than DDT to birds and mammals. Methoxychlor is more expensive and may injure leaf bud if applied at times buds are opening. If applied during the dormant period and if minimum concentrations are used, these disadvantages can be overcome.

Although a number of materials have been evaluated for chemotherapy of the disease involving applications of chemicals to the soil or directly to infected trees, none at present are highly effective or recommended for use on elms.

Car Damaged When It Overtakes On NC 801

A 1961 Ford went out of control and overturned last Wednesday around 3:40 p.m. on NC 801, five miles east of Mocksville.

Trooper L. E. Woods of the State Highway Patrol said that he cited Burton Lester Trivette, 27, of Mocksville, Route 5 with driving on the wrong side of the road as a result of the accident.

Trooper Woods said that his investigation showed that Trivette was going North on N. C. 801 at approximately 55-60 miles per hour and lost control coming into left hand curve and ran off the right side of roadway. The vehicle then swerved across the highway to the left shoulder for approximately 270 feet and ten went 150 feet on the left side of the roadway and shoulder, turning over once and coming to rest on its top.

There was no personal injury. Damage to the car was estimated at $650.00.

Ralph Wright At National Convention Of Renderers Association

Ralph Wright of the Veterans Grease and Tallow Company is attending the national convention of the National Renderers Association being held this week at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco.

The main objective of this annual meeting is to keep all members up-to-date on the latest developments and information in this important field.

One of the major topics to be discussed at the convention will be that of planning further research and foreign marketing projects to increase still further the market for animal by-products.

This is becoming increasingly more important every year as our nation's livestock slaughter continues to rise and consumption of soap . . . the traditional market for tallow . . . decreases as more and more petroleum-based detergents are manufactured.

By developing new uses and new markets for tallow and other animal by-products, the renderers help the farmer get a better price for his stock . . . help the housewife buy her meat for less because the by-products produce a greater income.

Buddy Poppies Help 'Our Own' Veterans

Plans are being formulated for the annual nationwide sale of Buddy Poppies by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars on Saturday November 10, according to Mrs. Dorothy H. Mason, Buddy Poppy chairman.

As in previous years, these symbols of Flanders Field will be sold by a group of volunteer young girls and members of the Ladies Auxiliary to Post 4024.

"Most of the money that is collected in this sale will remain right here in our own community to help finance the relief and welfare work which they have undertaken in behalf of our own veterans in need and their dependents," Mrs. Mason said.

"The balance of the proceeds of the Buddy Poppy sale is used to help maintain the nationwide rehabilitation service of the organization. For example, one penny for each poppy sold is sent to Eaton Rapids, Michigan, to help in the operation of the VFW National Home for Widows and Orphans. This is the only home of its kind in the world. It was founded in 1925. Since then hundreds of orphans of veterans have been given the opportunity to become healthy, self-supporting citizens. Won't you buy a poppy November 10" concluded Mrs. Mason.

Auditions for the Talent Show to be sponsored by the local chapter of the Association for Retarded Children will be held on Thursday night, Nov. 1, in the Mocksville School Auditorium at 7:30 p. m.

Members of the chapter are busy rounding up judges from surrounding counties. Expected are judges from station WTOB in Winston-Salem from the Little Theatre in Salisbury, and other outstanding personalities.

The Talent Show will be held on Saturday night, Nov. 17, in the school auditorium. Richard Hendrix and "The Country Partners," a local string band group, will provide music and entertainment for the show, and Gene Flowers of Radio Station WSDC, will be the master of ceremonies.

Proceeds will be used towards the purchase of a school bus for the Special Education class pupils.

Individuals or groups who wish to enter talent may call Gene Flowers at Radio Station WSDC from 3 to 5 p. m., or Richard Hendrix at Hendricks & Merrell Furniture Company from 8 to 5. (Leave message if they are not there).

Two Cars Damaged In Collision On US 64

Two cars were damaged in a collision last Friday around 4:45 p. m. on US 64, 5-miles west of Mocksville.

Trooper L. E. Woods of the State Highway Patrol said that damages estimated at $50 and $110 were done to a 1958 Chevrolet and 1960 Cadillac in the accident.

Trooper Woods said that his investigation showed that Brant Summers, 55, of Washington, D. C. was operating the 1958 Chevrolet, heading east. Framming Miles Hearon, 40, of Tryon, N. C. was operating the Cadillac in the same direction. Summers had stopped at the Calahalan road intersection to wait on a car in front of him to turn left. Hearon, traveling at approximately 55 mph, failed to reduce speed in time and skidded 105 feet, striking the Chevrolet in the left rear and slid on around the car on the left side for 35 more feet.

There were no personal injuries and both cars were driven away under their own power. Hearon was charged with failing to reduce speed when a hazard exists.

Bob York Named To 'Who's Who'

Robert Paul York, Jr., of Mocksville is one of 34 upperclassmen at Appalachian State Teachers College recently named to the national award listing "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges," according to Dr. D. J. Whitener, dean of the college.

York is the only ASTC student from Davie County to be named to the high award.

The annual selection is made by representatives from the faculty, administration, Student Council, and Chi Lambda Chi student organization to which all club presidents are appointed.

The selections are based on service, citizenship, extracurricular activity, scholarship, and promotion of future usefulness to business and society.

The "Who's Who" book is published to provide an incentive for students to get the most out of college and to recognize those who have been outstanding. Those students named to the organization are nationally honored and benefit from the organization's placement service.

York, a senior at ASTC, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. York of 626 Wilkesboro Road, Mocksville. He was graduated from Davie County High School at Mocksville in 1959. York was active in school and community activities and was an Eagle Scout.

Majoring in physical education and social studies at ASTC, York's extracurricular activities include serving as vice president of his class for two years, belonging to Wesley Methodist student organization, and participating in intramurals. In previous quarters, he has been named to the Dean's List.

Baptist Hospital Gets Grant For Constant Care Unit

Unit To Be For The Critically Ill Patients

North Carolina Baptist Hospital at Winston-Salem has received a $199,000 grant from the Hartford Foundation of New York for use in establishing a constant care unit for critically ill patients.

This brings to $825,810 the contributions the Foundation has made to the hospital since 1958. The gift was announced jointly by Ralph W. Burger of New York, president of the Foundation, and John R. Knott of Charlotte, chairman of the Baptist Hospital Board of Trustees. Previous grants have been for study of kidney diseases.

The new unit will be on the fifth floor of the hospital building and will be especially designed, staffed, and equipped for around the clock observation and care of seriously ill patients who need continuous attention. Officials of the hospital believe a properly planned and administered constant care program will result in the prevention of suffering and the saving of lives.

The unit will contain two sections for patients, general and cardio-respiratory. In the general section there will be nine beds separated by folding partitions and providing a bed and equipment for one patient in each. Each bed location will be equipped with electronic equipment for continuous monitoring of temperature, pulse rate, blood pressure, and respiration. The information recorded will be read either at the bedside or on meters at the Nurses' Station. At the Nurses' Station, there also will be a recorder which puts the records on paper for attachment to the patient's record each 12 hours. This will be invaluable in the care of patients with burns, shocks, hemorrhage, heart attacks, or recovering from major surgical procedures after release from the post-anesthetic recovery room.

Immediately adjacent to the general section, there will be a laboratory to serve the entire unit. Here blood cell counts and blood chemistry examinations will be made. An x-ray developing room near by will facilitate rapid diagnosis.

The cardio-respiratory section will be for medical and surgical patients with serious cardiac disease such as acute coronary occlusion or post open-heart surgery and for those who are dependent upon artificial respirators.

Each of the five beds in the cardiac section will be equipped with electrocardiogram, blood pressure, temperature, respiration, and pulse rate monitors. Electrocardiograms also will be monitored on an oscilloscope at the Nurses' Station. Each bed in the respiratory section will have monitors for temperature, blood pressure, pulse and respiratory rates, a respirator to assist or control respiration, and a detection unit for the measurement of carbon dioxide in the expired air.

Mr. Knott expressed the hospital's appreciation to the Hartford Foundation for making it possible for this new facility to be provided for patients. This and other benefactions of the Foundation, he said, are made possible by the wisdom, foresight and generosity of John A. Hartford, who established the Foundation, and his brother, George L. Hartford who shared his great sense of public responsibility. John A. Hartford was president and George L. Hartford was chairman of the board of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company. Both left their substantial estates to the Foundation.

SIGN-UP Counties in this State have now started the 1963 Wheat Stabilization Sign-up, according to A. P. Hassell, Jr., State Executive Director of the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service.

The program is basically one of production adjustment. Its basic purpose is to reduce over-supplies of wheat, cut government costs of the program, and increase farmer income. In 1962 the Wheat Stabilization and Feed Grain Programs did all three, according to Hassell. The 1963 programs should continue this trend and make further gains.

Farmers Obligations and Participation:

1. Agree to reduce plantings of wheat at least 20% from the larger of his small farm base or allotment.
 2. Designate land to be dev to an approved conservation use.
 3. Maintain his normal acreage of conserving crops in addition to the land diverted from wheat.
 4. Stay within the larger of the small farm base or allotment on each other farm in which he has an interest.
 5. Sign an agreement to participate in the program not later than December 14, 1962.
- Advantages to the Farmer:
1. Diversion payments on the acreage retired from wheat. Advance payments available at the time of the sign up.
 2. Price support available at $1.82 per bushel in addition to an 18c per bushel payment on normal production of planted wheat if they plant within the allotment.
 3. Diverted acreage may be grazed until May 1, 1963, and after November 1, 1963.
 4. Double cropping on diverted acres if this is normal for the farm.
 5. Diversion payments will in most cases exceed may times the net profit that could be realized from the wheat acreage.
 6. No risks involved on diverted acres.

parts of the program as they affect the farmer. This is the same basic program under which 50,825 North Carolina farmers participated last year.

All eligible farmers should study the facts and if interested, contact the County Office prior to the closing date.

1963 FEED GRAIN PROGRAM The sign-up period for the Feed Grain Program will be held sometime in the Spring. The Corn, Barley and Grain Sorghum acreage will be combined into one base for the farm. Farmers will be given additional information on this program when it becomes available.

Social Security In Davie County

It was announced by Robert C. Thomas, manager of the Salisbury, N. C. Social Security District Office that a family's social security check will play a big part in their future, and since social security will concern almost everyone at some time in their life it is important that they be informed about the program in general.

After a person or his dependents are declared eligible for benefits, they may expect their first check in a short time. Social Security checks for a particular month are dated and issued on the third of the following month. The check will usually arrive on or about the same day every month. The fact that the check arrives regularly each month is an important one because it aids in budget planning. It means that those receiving benefits will know that they can count on paying their bills on schedule.

If a check is lost, stolen or destroyed, the local office should be notified at once. If the person receiving the check moves, he should notify the local office or payment center.

Should a check be a week overdue, contact the local social security office so that they may contact the payment center and discover the reason for the delay. Anyone coming to a beneficiary's home and claiming to work for social security should be asked to show his identification. Social Security employees will not ask for money for helping those whom he serves. It's his job to help in any way he can with social security.

To protect against theft and forgery, several suggestions are made:

1. Have secure mail box with a lock.
2. Take check from box immediately after delivery by the mail carrier.
3. A check should never be endorsed until a person is ready to cash and deposit it.
4. Identification of the payee is made easier if the check is cashed in the same place each month.

Davie Meets East Rowan Here Friday Night In Conference Tilt

Rebels Roll To 20-0 Victory Over Southwest

Fullback Ronnie McClamrock, a tireless 170-pounder, slashed through the Southwest Forsyth defense for 139 yards and two touchdowns last Friday night in leading Davie County High to a 20-0 non-conference victory.

This Friday night the Rebels will play East Rowan High at the Davie County High Stadium. The Rebels will need a victory over the East Mustangs (who defeated Monroe earlier in the season) as they tuneup for their showdown clash with North Rowan on November 9th for the conference title.

In the game Friday night, McClamrock ran his string of yards rushing to 839 in eight games and Davie increased its record to 6-2 for all games and 5-1 for conference play.

McClamrock tallied the initial score for Davie by smashing over from six yards out in the second quarter. Gobble added the extra point on a run.

The Rebels finished out their scoring in the third quarter, tallying twice. The first TD came after Jim Eaton blocked a Southwest pass and Jim Anderson intercepted running it back eight yards to midfield.

McClamrock engineered the drive to paydirt which was climaxed on a three-yard run by Grimes Parker. A pass attempt for the point failed.

Minutes later, Southwest fumbled and Davie recovered at midfield. On a sustained drive, the Rebels reached paydirt when McClamrock rammed over from a yard out. Gobble again ran the point.

Defensive standouts for Davie County were Eaton, Tony Lyster, and Larry Paine. Parker teamed with McClamrock to lead the Davie offense.

Statistics
Davie County was outstanding defensively as the Rebels held the Trojans to only 10 yards rushing and five first downs. Davie had 195 yards rushing and 14 first downs.

Davie completed one out of 4 passes for 4 yards. Southwest completed 3 of ten passes for 38 yards. Each team had one possession of 50 yards per kick. Southwest kicked twice for an average of 22.5 yards per kick.

Davie did not lose the ball by a fumble; Southwest lost it once. Each team was penalized a total of 90 yards.

THE COURT AMENDMENT

(Editor's Note: The North Carolina Citizens Committee for Improved Courts has prepared a series of three articles explaining the constitutional amendment to improve North Carolina's courts which goes before the people in the November 6 general election. The third of these articles follows.)

The amendment provides that fiscal control of the courts is retained in the General Assembly where it always has been and should be. It will be up to the General Assembly to decide whether to make the courts fully self-supporting through the collection of costs, to make them provide an overall revenue to the State, or to make them partly self-supporting as they are today.

This matter will depend upon the Legislature's decision in fixing the amount of costs in the courts.

The amendment says that operating expenses of the Judicial Department, with the exception of compensation to process servers and other locally paid non-judicial officers, shall be paid from State funds. It provides also that fines collected will continue to go to the public schools.

Those who have studied the courts over a period of years and have worked on the plan for their improvement believe that the overall cost of the new system which would result from adoption of the amendment would not be greater and might be less than that of today's courts.

One of the major opportunities for improvement in the administration of justice under provisions of the amendment lies in the establishment of an administrative office of the courts which would work generally to bring modern business methods to their operation. This office would be provided for the General Assembly. It is presumed that its duties would include collection and publication of statistics, seeing that facilities are adequate to the need, and handling other details which add to the efficiency of the courts.

Provision is made for a gradual changeover to the system with existing courts continued until the General Assembly establishes the new District Courts. However, all District Courts must be in operation by the beginning of 1971.

In considering the amendment, the people of the state should remember, that the constitutional changes do not in any way change the basic fundamental principles of the law but are concerned solely with the organization and administration of the court system.

The principles guiding those who have brought this plan for court improvement to the people are "equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion." If men are to have equal and exact justice, then that justice must not—in the language of the Magna Charta—be delayed, for justice meted out to a man must not be measured by his pocketbook.

When men are kept in jail, often as much as 30 days, because they cannot make bond and courts are not available to try them promptly and then are found not guilty of some petty offense with which they were charged, delay is "justice denied" to the poor man. When they are bound over by men so ignorant of the law that they do not realize that no probable cause exists, then justice is denied in the very manner of which are ancestors complained so bitterly against the British Crown.

In the year 1956-1957, North Carolina justices of the peace reported 88,515 convictions. In each of these cases, the judge trying it knew that if he did not convict the accused he would not be paid. The Supreme Court of the United States has said that any trial which rests on such a foundation as this is not a trial in accordance with due process and in compliance with the fundamental law of the land.

These are but two examples of the defects in the administration of justice in North Carolina today. By passing the court improvement amendment on November 6, the people of the state will take the first essential step toward making certain that such defects will no longer exist.

Senator Sam J. Ervin Was A War Hero

Sam J. Ervin, Jr.

Senator Sam J. Ervin, Jr., who will be the featured speaker at the Democratic Dinner on Thursday evening, was the subject of the following article written by Homer Lucas of the Salisbury Post.

Voltaire the French philosopher and author wrote: "This is the happiest of mortals, for he is above everything he possesses".

And such a mortal is Senator Sam J. Ervin, Jr., who has attended a plateau never reached by a North Carolinian.

Yet North Carolina's senior Senator is above everything he possesses.

The ambition of any normal man would be fulfilled with the position as a Superior Court Justice; as an Associate Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court; as a Congressman or a Congressman or a U. S. Senator.

But here is a man who has filled three of the positions, and with honor and distinction, and is now in the Senate.

Born in the mountains of Burke County, he has climbed beyond the loftiest peak of the highest mountain in his beloved Tar Heel state in a career of public service which began 40 years ago.

Here is a man who has kept his ear to his native tongue; a man whom the spoils of public office have not bought; a man possessed with an opinion, and a will; a man of great heart; a tall man who stands above the log which falls on the mountains.

Of all those things I became convinced last week when I heard Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson extol the virtues and attributes of Senator Ervin.

Vice-President Johnson said of Sam Ervin:

"Sam Ervin is no ordinary man. It is difficult to describe a man with so many good qualities. He is an honest man, a courageous man, a humble man and a man who loves his country above all else."

And then he cited a little known event in the life of Senator Ervin to show the stuff of which he is made.

After he graduated from the University of North Carolina, Senator Ervin went into the Army and became a commissioned officer. He was shipped overseas and when he landed in France he did something few men in history have done:

He resigned his commission; entered as a private; and went to the front lines. He fought valiantly with the infantry; was awarded the Silver Star, the Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry in action. But he was wounded and was awarded the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster and the French Fourragere.

That, said Vice-President Johnson, is the real meaning of patriotism.

And since his discharge, Senator Ervin has devoted his life to the law, as an attorney, as a jurist and as a legislator and today, throughout the nation he is recognized as one of the most outstanding Constitutional Scholars.

WHAT KIND OF... A COUNTRY Are YOU Leaving ME?

There is no use pretending you don't see me.

You just sit still and listen.

I'm not very smart, but I'm smart enough to see what you are doing to the country in which I must grow up and support my family.

When I do that, will I be allowed to be myself, or will I be a social security number in a government file?

When I get sick, whose doctor can I go to, my doctor or the government doctor?

When I go to school, who is going to decide what I learn, my mother and father or a government bureau?

When I am able to afford a house, will I be able to build one just as good as I can make it, or will it be a government-built house, worth only part of what the government taxed me for housing?

When I go to work, will I be able to pick my own job or will I have to get a working permit from the government and take whatever job they give me?

And if I have criticized the government, will I get a work permit?

II

What makes you think it would be "bad" for me to have to make my way in competition with others?

If I work a little harder, or better, or get lucky, will I be able to keep any more of what I earn than the other fellow who didn't work as hard or as well, or get as lucky?

This luck business is important: In your heart you know that in the game of life there has to be a jackpot, or the game won't be played very hard.

Where did you get the crazy idea that the man who earns TWICE AS MUCH should be taxed FOUR TIMES AS MUCH? [I know where you got it; right out of Marx].

Where did you get this idea that government can take care of everybody?

You know you can't get something for nothing; yet you pretend that people in Washington can give you things without first taking them away from you.

Don't try to blame the people in politics: They are simply doing what YOU WANT THEM TO DO.

Naturally they favor the things you favor because getting elected is their business.

THEY would change overnight if YOU would.

And don't get the idea that they respect you for being saps: Only a fool can be sold a ride on his own horse.

And that is exactly what is happening when you vote yourself "security" by giving the government more and more so the government can give you some of it back.

I'd rather risk having to stand on a bread line a few times than spending my life standing on line for government handouts.

III

And you men who run labor unions: You know that unearned wage increases are state money.

And how about you folks who manage America's business; don't you know any better, and can't you do something about it?

Even I know that you can't expect prosperity when everybody is getting more money for producing fewer things.

Have you forgotten that the only real reason Americans produce so much more and live so much better and easier is the big supply of tools or production that people used to be willing to save for in the days when profit was not a nasty word?

At the rate you are now going, the private property system will apart, and the tools will fall apart with it. Iner, goodbye America—and me!

What's wrong with the idea of paying people fairly for the use of the tool bought with their savings? The tools do most of the work.

I don't quite know what you mean by the word "conservative", but if it means what I think it means, THAT'S ME!

If there were any other place in the world where government wouldn't plan my life for me even more so, it wouldn't be so bad, but America is the only place left—and look what you are doing to it.

AREN'T YOU ASHAMED!?

TWENTY-FOUR YEARS OF PROGRESS

By J. C. JONES, Manager
Davie Electric Membership Corporation

(Editor's Note....At a recent meeting of the Mocksville Rotary Club, J. C. Jones, Manager of the Davie Electric Membership Corporation, traced the history and progress of that organization from its beginning 24 years ago to today. Believing it to be of interest to a large number of citizens, we asked Mr. Jones for permission to print this review. It appears below in the words of Mr. Jones).

I want to do a little reminiscing with you or at least a part of you, since a great many of you were still wearing short pants twenty-four years ago. A few farmers in Davie County who were desperately in need of electric service and unable to get power in the fall of 1938 got together and proceeded to form the Davie Electric Membership Corporation. They were successful in this effort, securing a charter from the Secretary of State on January 14, 1939, securing a loan in the amount of $200,000.00 from the Rural Electrification Authority and started construction in the spring of 1939. The first lines were completed and energized September 28, 1939. There being at that time approximately 225 miles of line serving about 650 members with electric service. The average power consumption for the first month was approximately 16 KWH.

These lines covered a goodly portion of the rural sections of Davie County, the southern edge of Yadkin County, the northeastern edge of Iredell County, an area that we consider the general trade area of Mocksville. Today in this same geographical area we serve approximately 450 miles of line serving approximately 2900 members or consumers whose power consumption this past month averaged a little over 500 KWH. This is a fantastic increase; however, it is true.

The first twelve (12) months that we had our lines in operation, we paid the Duke Power Company $5,750.00 for power. During the present twelve (12) months, we will pay the Duke Power Company approximately $380,000.00 for power.

As most of you older men will remember, our first substation was on Highway 64 just beyond the Heritage Apartments. Today we have eight (8) substations, five (5) of which are in Iredell County, two (2) of which are in Davie County, and one (1) in Alexander County. With the exception of two (2) of these stations the other six (6) are served from our own 44 KV transmission lines. Today we are operating approximately 1850 miles of distribution lines and approximately 45 miles of 44 KV transmission lines. These distribution lines serve approximately 8700 members over a six (6) county area in which we operate. We are increasing our members or adding new members at the rate of approximately 400 per year.

Here is something that might be of interest to you Rotarians. Back in 1939 when our lines were first energized, this Cooperative had a monthly payroll of approximately $450.00 per month. Today it is approximately $16,000.00 per month. This is a payroll that is paid and spent in your community. In the beginning the Cooperative had five (5) employees. Today it employs 45 employees. This may seem a little high when you consider that it only allows about one (person to take care of all the needs of 200 people including furnishing, maintaining, operating, billing, collecting, etc., electric service then it probably doesn't seem excessive.

In the beginning the retail electric rates charged by the Cooperative were rather high comparatively speaking. This was brought about by our ignorance, lack of foresight, and our under estimation of the economical development which would be brought about by the availability of electric service. These rates were kept in effect until January 1, 1957, at which time our Board of Directors, by resolution, reduced these rates approximately twenty (20) per cent. During the time that the rates were somewhat high, the Cooperative accumulated a considerable amount of money in excess of the actual operating expenses. The Davie Electric Membership Corporation being an absolutely non-profit organization returned to the members of the Cooperative on October 1, 1961, every penny that they had paid into the Cooperative in excess of the actual cost of service up to and through 1954. The total amount of this figure being approximately $250,000.00. I do not know exactly when the members of the Cooperative can expect another refund of patronage capital; however, in my opinion, sometime during 1963 they can expect the patronage capital furnished during 1955. The Cooperative is in excellent financial condition and able to refund to the members patronage furnished during 1955 and I feel sure that our Board of Directors will make provisions for doing this.

Now in conclusion let me state that the Davie Electric Membership Corporation has been here with you for 24 years during which time we have done our best to be a good citizen, to contribute something to the economy of the community and a worthwhile service not only to our members, but to the general public at large, and I want to assure you that we fully intend to continue this effort.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: I see by the papers where this new Secretary of Labor says it ain't that we got so much unemployment in this country that what we got is a "readjustment." Back during the war, ever time Hitler had to retreat, he announced he was getting "disengaged from the enemy." When a feller is unemployed under this new "readjustment" plan, I reckon that means he has got disengaged from his job.

The fellers at the country store Saturday night was trying to put this double talk together and git it to fit. Ed Doolittle said he figured it was a "readjustment" when your neighbor lost his job, a depression when you lost yours, and a panic when your wife lost here. Could be, Mister Editor, that President Kennedy should've made Ed his Secretary of Labor. At least, you can understand what Ed's talking about.

Clem Webster allowed as how this "readjustment" might be having a heap to do with all the suicides that's in the papers lately. Clem claims he was reading about five men killing themselves in one day in North Carolina. Zeke Grubb didn't agree, argued that we ain't never had a time in history when a man had more to live fer. Fer instant, claimed Zeke, the average feller ain't got his house paid fer, his car paid fer, his TV paid fer, and the chances was 10 to 1 he was behind with his taxes. Everbody agreed with Zeke they wasn't no excuse for a feller killing himself on account of not having nothing to live fer.

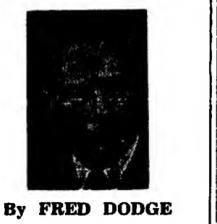

Bug Hookum reported that he had saw in the papers where the Internal Revenue folks in Washington has announced official that, starting this year, the cost of medicine fer hay fever is full tax deductible. Ed allowed as how that was mighty good news on account of all the sickness in his family this year come original from hay fever.

The session, as usual, final got around to women and they was one or two comments that might be worth putting in the minutes. Fer instant, Josh Clodhopper said he saw a piece in the paper by some fashion designer saying the new fashions fer women was going to try to make "wimmen look like wimmen again." Personal, Mister Editor, what they were wearing ain't left much doubt about the matter.

And one feller said he saw a piece in the papers where a man in Atlanta the other day donated a loudspeaker to his church in fond memory of his wife. On account of my old lady reading my little piece here ever onct in a while, I ain't got no comment to make on this last item.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dan

Theme: Your Beliefs Show In Your Acts
TEXT: "To believe is to stop. Belief is power." Robertson.

A mother was discussing with the mathematics teacher her child's slow progress with algebra. "It isn't that he refuses to try," she said, "but I think he just doesn't believe it at all."

Few of us believe much. That is why few accomplish much. We accept the way of life given us, our advantages and benefits. That someone first had to dream, then believe them into reality and battle manfully for those beliefs, seems far-fetched today. That is why our benefits are not growing into greater achievements. We doubt that any worthwhile effort was spent to give us what we have.

Farther on the road we meet ideas and ideals opposed to those we have accepted from our forefathers. Because we do not know what we believe, we avoid open conflict by slinking along the easiest by-path. We compromise. We give up our birth-right because we are too weak and fearful to accept the spine-stiffening demands that believing makes on a man. Historian Philip Lee Ralph truly stated, "Men and civilizations live by their beliefs and die when their beliefs pass into doubt." Dare to believe.

News and Comment from our Raleigh Bureau - 265 Oberlin Rd.

FLOATING DOWN ... Up in Wilkes County they are still doing a lot of fussing and cussing over their beautiful new dam's being named Scott Dam.

And, although Wilkes County—as a plaque on its courthouse brags — led the State in the road-school bond vote for Kerr Scott in 1949, most of them would obviously have preferred another name for this newest recreation facility in Northwestern North Carolina.

Some jokester a few days ago went below the dam and put up a sign renaming the Yadkin River "Jordan River." Looking at it closely one Wilkes County resident prominent in politics remarked:

"The man who put that there got it wrong. River should have come first ... and a lot of people in these parts think that they also got the words mixed up in naming the dam."

THE KEY ... Eighth District Congressman Paul Kitchin still holds the key to much of North Carolina's immediate political future.

All of the avowed candidates for office — Woodrow Jones of Rutherfordford, Joe Hunt of Greensboro, Dr. Henry Jordan of Saxapahaw, and Dr. I. Beverly Lake of Raleigh — are waiting it out on the Eighth.

The visits of the Vice President and other Democratic big-wigs in the Eighth and Ninth have the Republicans saying: "We've got them on the run—otherwise the big guns would be in another section of the country."

Even if Congressman Kitchin should win, there is doubt he would be interested in running for Governor. For, if he is able to take Jonas, his political chores would be relatively light Congressionally for years to come. And, the Governorship is only for four years—and you are out.

BERT BENNETT ... The one man who seems not to be waiting on anybody or anything in his "waiting for the Democratic Party" is Bert Bennett of Winton-Salem. He has the inside track for Governor in 1964. Bet on it! In all the political rallies being arranged about the State, he is the workhorse of the organization is doing most of the arranging. He is in on the planning. He is there when they are held. They have been well attended meetings, by and large, and Bert Bennett is here, there, and everywhere in the crowd. Bennett is getting more "exposure" — as they say about being seen—than all the other candidates combined.

So, if Paul Kitchin wins, it will be Kitchin and Bennett as a possibility in the Governor's race a year from next spring. If he loses, it will be some other conservative and Bennett.

THE COOKIES ... Brooks Hays of Arkansas, Presidential assistant and former president of the Southern Baptist Convention, told this story at one of the Democratic gatherings: Halloween was approaching and this little four year old girl told her mother she wanted to do some trick or treat as her older brothers had done. But, she said, she did not want to be a witch, for they were too ugly and she did not want to be a "hobbly ololobin." She wanted to be a little Baptist angel.

Senator SAM ERVIN Says:

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

MORGANTON — Events have moved swiftly in the Cuban Crisis. An abrupt change has been made in the United States policy which has brought grim determination to protect our nation and the Western Hemisphere. The President acted, we are told, after a Counter Intelligence Agency surveillance disclosed a rapid buildup of Soviet offensive strength in Cuba. The President has been closely watching the situation which he has stated now imperils the national security. The jolting fact revealed by the President and the Secretary of Defense is that Russia is building a foreign atomic base on an island which the United States has long regarded as of the utmost importance to our security. Secretary McNamara has stated that according to intelligence information warheads are on the island.

I solidly support the President's action. I think its the only thing he could do to preserve our national security. I have felt for a long time, and I have stated so many times, that the only way in which free men can persevere their freedom is to keep their hearts in courage and patience and to lift up their hands in strength. I think the President's message means that America has determined to do exactly that. I have felt for a long time that the United States should have notified Russia when we first learned that Russia was shipping arms to Cuba that we considered such acts violations of the Monroe Doctrine and a threat to our national security. A demand should have been made to Russia that such shipments forthwith be stopped long ago. But what is past is prologue to the great decisions now being made. The President has spoken clearly and there should be no Russian misunderstanding that the people are united behind his action.

The decision could mean war. Americans, I believe, understand this and are prepared to meet the challenge imposed by the Russians. We are a peaceful people, but time and again the American people have demonstrated the unique capacity to understand the basic issues confronting our nation. Our forefathers crossed an ocean, struggled in a wilderness, and fought to found a nation where men and women and their children could find freedom and liberty. The price of freedom has never been small nor the road to liberty an easy one. Our President has chosen the course. No one can foresee the future or predict the events that will come about as a result of this policy. This is a matter of national survival. The President must have our undivided support.

The South is often criticized, but seldom in its manners are. The late Douglas Southall Freeman of Virginia, biographer of Lee and Washington, was scheduled to speak at a gathering of the Civil War Round Table here. He was the guest of John Pemberton and the two got mixed up in their transportation arrangements for meeting. Consequently, Freeman arrived at the meeting before Pemberton, but the former would not eat until the latter appeared. When at last they greeted each other, Freeman being surrounded by admirers who had urged him to start eating, replied, "Suh, I would not think of sitting down to eat before my host arrived."

In a 5th Avenue window, I paused to look at a picture. It was that of Ava Gardner, the pretty actress. She was one of six children in a North Carolina tobacco farmer's family, and in high school only had the ambition of wanting to be a good stenographer — a worthy one at that. But her brother-in-law sent in a picture of her to MGM which resulted in a screen test. The verdict: "She can't talk, she can't act, she's sensational!" One's family tree may not be important, but you'd never guess it by looking into the genealogy room of the New York Public Library. Here at most any time can be seen hordes of women, many of them older and apparently of some affluence, pouring over bulky volumes which give the various branches of ancestry. Watching them, I was interested in noting that now and then, in the pursuit of this useful hobby, one would straighten up with a smiling face on the obvious discovery of something important among far-back forebears. On the other hand, occasionally a quick frown and a hurried return of the book to the shelves lent the impression that somewhere along the genealogical line, she had found a rotten limb, a thief or the like involved.

Here and There: despite a military exception at rare intervals, there was no civilian rescue necessary for planes flying the Atlantic in 1961, a disgruntled isolationist said the Congo must have had in mind when it asked for assistance, "Send us more troops: they're delicious"...the recent MacArthur Memorial Foundation scholarships for students majoring in American history shows a commendable purpose...money seems not the object of local thieves lately. What else: wigs...there has never been a "J. S. Preident whose name began with "S." Most frequent, "H" (Harrisons, Hayes, Harding and Hoover)...a local musician claims he can play the clavoline, bandolin, bandoneon, flugel horn, mandola, mandolite and viola da gamba. Whoops!

Social Security In Davie County

Families employing household employees working by the day, the week, or throughout the year, may unknowingly be doing them an injustice by failing to report their earnings for social security purposes, Robert C. Thomas, District Manager of Salisbury Social Security Office said today.

Any cleaning woman, maid, cook, baby sitter, or handyman, who works for as much as $50 every calendar quarter should have his or her earnings reported and the social security taxes paid. If a maid comes to your house to do cleaning or laundry as infrequently as one day a week and is paid as little as $3.85 for her day's work, her earnings must be reported if she continues to work for you each week in the calendar quarter and earns $50 or more. The law has been on the books since 1951, but it is estimated that there are still many, many householders employing domestic servants part or full-time who are failing to comply. The householder frequently does not learn of the law's application to him until his employee makes a claim for social security benefits, Mr. Thomas said. In many cases, the employer may be faced with a staggering bill for back taxes, interest and penalties, not only for the employer contributions to the social security but for the employee's share of the contributions as well. Mr. Thomas urged all employers who pay domestics $50 or more cash wages in a quarter to get in touch with the Internal Revenue Service without delay. Booklet No. 21, available at the social security office in Salisbury, contains a pre-addressed post card for this purpose.

THE CLEANUP CAMPAIGN

Certainly no one can ever quarrel with the merits and objectives of a "cleanup campaign". And certainly the one currently in progress here in Mocksville more than meets the standards in it's aims and plans.

However, most of these "cleanup" and beautification campaigns fall short of their aims and objectives. They do so not from the lack of effort and ability on the part of the promoters, but rather from the inability to change human nature.

What a cleanup campaign really proposes is a change of personal habits, and anyone knows that this is most difficult. Everyone knows that they should not throw trash or debris on the street, but yet that trash and debris gets there. Everyone admires a beautiful and clean yard, home and building. But many do not provide the effort or the means for having such.

There will always be a need, however, for a campaign to focus attention both the assets and liabilities of a community. That is what the current campaign is doing. It's success will only be comparable to the personal pride of the individual citizen....pride that is intense enough to bring about corrective action wherever it is found needed.

Those serving on the beautification committee deserve the cooperation and thanks of each and every resident of the county. They are serving without any thought of personal gain or recognition.... only the desire to make their community more attractive. And this should be the desire of us all!

LIBRARY NEWS

By MRS. I. H. HUSKE

The Davie County Public Library would like to thank Mrs. Garland Still for her time and work in making the attractive posters to be used in Mocksville and Cooleemee to remind our friends of the radio program "Lines From Your Library," which is a regular feature on Station WSDC presented each Thursday at 1:45. These radio programs as well as the Library News in the county newspapers, are designed to help you stay in touch with your library. They will give you the news of any special events taking place there; bring you interesting people with talk of the world of books and the way it can affect you.

For instance, special emphasis is being placed right now on the celebration of Children's Book Week, Nov. 11-17, and we do hope our present library patrons and many others in the county will help us observe this time for fostering a love and appreciation of books in our children. One of our finest gifts is the gift of words. Educators have discovered that those who do best in school, business and the professions have one thing in common, a knowledge of far more words than the average person. They can read easily, write clearly, talk fluently. The gift of words has probably helped them learn faster and have more fun ever since they entered school. They sat in the same class rooms with other pupils, but they got more out of it. Why?

There is reason to believe that the answer lies simply in "home reading" beginning the earlier the better since it is now known that many a child knows and can use 5,000 words before he enters kindergarten.

Children learn words by reading or being read to. More reading is done in homes where there are books. The child of three knows "Mother Goose" and "Johnny Crow's Garden" by heart is already learning and loving it. And a love of books developed while young continues as boys and girls grow older and enter adulthood. There will be a program on "How to Help Your Child Grow With Books," on Station WSDC, Nov. 8, at 1:45. So do take note of Mrs. Still's colorful library posters, and let

-It often teaches that a Congressman who, in 10 years, manages to introduce and have passed only one public bill, needs more than "Seniority" to get the job done.

-It teaches that our people have not been fully heard in Washington & will not until we have an established two-party system in our district.

East Knocks Davie Out Of Title Fight With 21-16 Win

Rebels To Play At North Rowan Fri.

East Rowan converted a Davie fumble into an early touchdown and went to a 21-16 upset victory over the Rebels last Friday night. The loss knocked the Rebels out of championship contention in the North Piedmont Conference.

Davie will close out the season on Friday night against the undefeated North Rowan team at Spencer. North Rowan has clinched the top honors in the North Piedmont Conference.

East, which had won only one conference game (Monroe) prior to Friday night, would not be denied as they battled back to score the upset victory.

East Rowan gave an early indication of what was in store when Hartman scooped up a fumbled punt and ran untouched for 45 yards and a touchdown. East added the extra point on a pass and was off to a 7-0 lead.

Early in the second period Jim Sheek tackled Hamilton behind the goal line and the Rebels had two points. Later tackle Jim Batton recovered a fumble by Gobble in the end zone for another Rebel score. The Mustangs fought back and pushed across another score in the waning minutes of the first half to lead 14 to 9 at halftime.

The Rebels scored on a pass from John Parker to Norman Woodward in the fourth quarter as the rainfall increased to go into a 16 to 14 lead. Back came East to march down the field and add another touchdown and extra point with about a minute and a half remaining in the game. East recovered a fumble on the ensuing kickoff and ran out the clock for the victory.

The Rebels were without the services of their star quarterback who did not dress due to an ankle injury suffered in the Southwest game the preceding week.

Statistics
Davie had 12 first downs to 14 for East and had 135 yards rushing to 59 for East.
Davie completed 3 out of 6 passes for 32 yards. East completed 3 of 13 passes for 47 yards. Neither team intercepted a pass.
East lost the ball once on a fumble; Davie twice.
East was penalized a total of 75 yards, Davie 50.

Celebration Held For Davie County's Oldest Printer

Miss Duke Sheek, time-honored printer at the Davie County Enterprise - Record, says that 60 years ago she came into this world around 6 o'clock in the morning as folks were on their way to the polls to vote. This past Tuesday, she was seen walking to the school gym bright and early to cast her ballot for good government.

Duke can be known for many virtues, her good humor and kindness of heart. Anytime she is not at work setting type she may be seen cleaning the yard or working outside her old home-place on Wilkesboro St., the house in which she was born.

Production stopped briefly at the Enterprise Tuesday afternoon while everyone enjoyed the birthday cake, coffee and ice cream given in her honor. The personnel would like to think that she will be around another 60 years, but Duke thinks that hardly likely.

Truck Overtakes As Driver Sleeps

A 2 1/2 ton truck, being operated by Dewey Lawson Kerley, of Rt. 5, Statesville, overturned on Thursday morning, Nov. 1, at 6:45 p.m., 100 feet east of Hill's Service Station when the driver apparently went to sleep.

Patrolman L. E. Woods reported that Kerley was driving west on U. S. 158 at approximately 45 mph when he stated he went to sleep. The truck swerved across the highway to the left side, cut off a mail box, went 225 feet off the road down an embankment, overturning once and coming to rest on its right side.

The driver was not hurt. Due to the truck being licensed for 24,000 pounds gross weight, Patrolman Woods stated that he charged the driver with no chauffeur's license as truck drivers driving with over 20,000 pounds gross weight must have chauffeur's license.

Watershed Progress Reported At Meeting

At a special meeting of The Dutchman Creek Watershed Improvement District trustees, Elmer Graham, Assistant State Conservationist in charge of watersheds, stated that the survey for the final work plan for Dutchman Creek watershed would begin in March, 1963.

Cecil Leagans, chairman of the trustees, said that the local people would need to obtain permission from landowners in the floodplain of Dutchman and Cedar Creeks, and landowners where floodwater dams have been tentatively located, for the watershed engineers to be able to go upon the land and do the survey. Permission to do survey does not obligate the landowner in any way. Easements must be obtained and recorded before any construction work can begin.

Watershed Trustees now have Easements Forms for those who wish to sign. Elmer Graham said that permission to survey should be obtained by March so that there will be no delay in making survey. North Carolina now ranks in the top ten with 52 applications and with only two watershed planning parties in state, the planning party is able to work in only those watersheds which are ready.

For the first time the nine states in the Southeast area rank first in the number of watershed projects approved for operations under Public Law 566, the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act. As of Aug. 1 these states had 117 such approvals. The Great Plains area, which contains ten states, had 114. The nine Cornbelt states ranked third with 76.

The Great Plains states maintained a bare lead in two other categories used to measure progress in watershed activities. The Plains states had 220 watersheds approved for planning, compared with 201 in the southeast and 468 applications submitted to Washington compared with 465 applications submitted to Washington from the Southeast, which includes Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Six of the nine Southeastern States rank in the top 15 states in the nation. They are Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, and Tennessee. All are in the top 11 in the watersheds approved for operations. Georgia is in second place with 23 approved projects, North Carolina is tied for fourth with 17, and Tennessee is tied for sixth place with 15.

Georgia, with 30 watersheds on which planning assistance has been authorized ranks third in the nation. Arkansas is seventh with 26, and North Carolina is ninth with 24. Tennessee, Mississippi, and Alabama are also in the top 15.

All nine of the states are in the top 20 in the number of applications for assistance. Georgia leads the Southeast with 109, and is third in the nation. Tennessee, with 58, is in sixth place in the nation. Arkansas has 66 and is in fifth place. North Carolina is also in the top ten with 52 applications.

The Southeast has nearly 30% of all watersheds approved for operations, more than 25% of those approved for planning, and more than 26% of the applications submitted.

Other items discussed by the trustees: Cecil Leagans, Tom Gough and R. L. Seaford were Land Classification, land ownership maps, and attorney to represent the watershed.

At least 50 important U. S. crops depend on insects for pollination.

Social Security In Davie County

Robert C. Thomas, Manager of the Salisbury, N. C. Social Security District Office, stated today that some disabled people are losing monthly social security disability insurance payments because they have not yet applied for them.

Recently, Thomas said, a 57-year old man came to the office — desperate — to ask where he might apply for relief payments. When asked why he had not gotten in touch with the social security office sooner, he stated a neighbor told him he could not receive disability benefits under social security. As it turned out, he could have started collecting social security disability insurance benefits in July of 1957. Another worker said he had not come in earlier because he did not know that disability payments could be made under the social security law. Still another worker said he had not applied for disability payments but did not think he was eligible.

Thomas stated that although the three disabled persons had finally inquired at the social security office, they lost considerable amounts of money because of the length of time they waited after they were disabled. The Social Security Act permits retroactive payments but they are limited to the 12 months before the month the person applies for benefits.

"To qualify for disability payments," said Thomas, "workers must meet two main requirements." He must be unable to do any substantial gainful work because of a severe physical or mental condition; and he must have worked in a job covered by social security for at least five years out of the ten years immediately before becoming unable to work. The five years do not necessarily have to be consecutive.

Thomas urged that all disabled workers inquire at the social security office about their rights and not to depend on neighbors, fellow workers, or well meaning friends for such vital information. The servicing office is located at 105 Corriher Avenue, Salisbury, N. C. Inquirers may write, telephone, or call in person.

26th ANNIVERSARY This week marks the 26th anniversary of the Salisbury Social Security Office. On November 6, 1936, the office opened on the 3rd floor of the Post Office with a staff of only 5 people. Through the years, the staff has increased as the program expanded and in 1957 the office was relocated at its present address, 105 Corriher Avenue. Today, the office is staffed with sixteen employees and serves the counties of Rowan, Davie, Iredell, and one-half of Davidson County.

The growth of the local office parallels the expansion of the Social Security law. Today nine out of every ten workers are covered under the law which provides old-age, survivors and disability insurance protection to the worker and his family. A measurement of the scope of this federal program in the local area would be to consider the insurance benefits currently being paid. The service area under the jurisdiction of the Salisbury office has 16,131 people receiving monthly social security checks totalling over $10,000,000 annually.

Significant changes have also taken place as to the administration of the social security law. The vast bookkeeping system now utilizes electronic computers, magnetic tape and integrated data processing. In the last year the local office joined the other 600 district offices in the nation with direct teletype communication set-up. The results of this forward step in program administration has cut processing time as well as the cost of the program to a minimum.

The Social Security Office is open from 8:45 AM to 5:00 PM, Monday through Fridays, except on National Holidays. Robert C. Thomas is manager of the District Office.

Y. M. C. A...What Is It?

DO WE, OR DON'T WE

By CHARLES E. McCOY

The following article is addressed to the residents of Davie County. What is the Y. M. C. A.?

We do not want to be misled by the name of this organization. It is true that in the beginning, the Y. M. C. A. was formed for young men, but today it is a family organization and invites you to belong regardless of sex, age, or religion.

It is the duty of the Board and the members to raise the funds to sustain our "Y" and also how these funds are to be spent.

MYSTERIES OF JUPITER

A giant new radio telescope may help solve some of the mysteries of the giant planet Jupiter.

The 300-foot-wide electronic "dish" at Green Bank, West Virginia, recently detected in one day as many radio emissions from Jupiter as smaller instruments have recorded in a month.

Tuning in on radio signals from Jupiter is an astronomical innovation, the National Geographic Society says.

It was a surprising discovery, because planets usually transmit only short waves generated by heat.

Astronomers have variously speculated that the signals emanate from tremendous electrical storms; from electrons trapped and energized by the planet's potent magnetic field; from the sun's effect on Jupiter's ionosphere; or from powerful disturbances deep within the planet itself.

In any case, the strength of the radio waves indicates enormous sources of energy—the equivalent of 10 large hydrogen bombs exploding every second.

Another mystery is the composition of the huge planet, which is bigger in mass and volume than all the solar-system planets put together.

the types of recreation that should go on under trained supervision. This would depend largely on the facilities that were made available and also to the voluntary assistance that could be had from people from our county.

It is the thought of the people who have been the instigators of this project to start out by acquiring by rent, a building that we as members could call our "recreational indoor home."

There are three questions that now arise, which we, the people of Davie County have to answer. They are

- 1. Do we need it?
The yes or no answer comes by answering the following questions
a. Would this type of organization overlap with anything that we now have in Davie?
b. Do we need any type of recreation such as the well organized supervised one, that has been very briefly outlined for our children?
c. Do we need this type of recreation for ourselves?
2. Do we the residents of Davie County, want a "Y"?
3. Can it be financially supported? The writer feels that the answer to the third question is a definite Yes.

It would be appreciated if the residents of Davie County would put their answers to the above questions and any questions that they might have in the mail and address it to Y. M. C. A., Box 507, Mocksville, N. C.

SENATOR SAM ERVIN SAYS:

MORGANTON — World tensions eased slightly last week even as the Cuban blockade was reinstated and negotiations dragged tediously over the removal of Russian missiles from the Western Hemisphere.

The significance of the showdown is that Russia's move into the Western Hemisphere, which was nurtured by apathy, withered in the face of a willingness to put a stop to the clear violation of the Monroe Doctrine.

No one forces any let up by Russia as a result of its "withdrawal agreement" to curtail its drive to dominate the world. Tomorrow will bring new crises. The worth seethes with power struggles which the Kremlin leaders will seek to exploit at every opportunity.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: I see by the papers where the Defense Department has managed to get some floggers on them Chinese feathers we been stockpiling. I reckon it had got to the place where they was getting about as many letters on this item as they had feathers so they decided to give out some information on the subject.

In view of the current situation, it is interesting to note the remarks of a local Rotarian: "What a wonderful country this could be - if every politician voted for the secure future of his country, instead of for his own next election - if every radical worked for the soundness of his country instead of trying to drag it down to the same, low level - every business manager said and did what he knew was right, rather than what he thinks the labor unions or his stockholders or the government would like for him to say or do - if every workman did his best day's work because that is the only honest way to earn his wage and thus serve his country - and if every voter voted for America, not for who will give him the most."

Whenever it is needed, a fleet of ships up the Hudson River is ready. It is the National Defense Reserve Fleet at Jones Point, 185 ships in all including Victory, Liberty, submarine tenders, ammunition and old troop ships, all "ready for activation."

On a cold January morning, a man took the oath as chief executive of his country. He was 43. Standing beside him was his predecessor, a beloved general who, 15 years before commanded the armed forces of his country in a war which resulted in the complete defeat of Germany.

Mrs. Richard Harding Davis was riding in a Long Island train when an important-looking woman got on and took a seat across the aisle from her. Mrs. Davis remembered that she had met the woman somewhere, but try as hard as she might, could not remember her name.

CAPITAL CLIPBOARD
News and Comment from our Raleigh Bureau - 265 Oberlin Rd.

BITTER... It is getting so that the biennial fight between the two parties in North Carolina is becoming almost as bitter as those we have known only in Democratic battles for the gubernatorial nomination.

Now in certain Western North Carolina counties the hatred runs deep between Democrats and Republicans. However, in Perquimans County where I grew up Republicans were a rarity indeed.

So, we thought all was love in bloom among all Democrats until J. C. B. Ehringhaus of nearby Elizabeth City ran against Lt. Gov. Richard Fountain for Governor in 1952.

NO MATCH... A reblossoming of this came four years later when a young Salem College professor by the name of McDonald attacked the Democratic closed door policy by taking on the venerable Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby. Not even the Brown-Nixon thing in California surpassed that for deep down bitterness.

The Kitchin - Jonas affair in the Eighth District was nowhere in the same Hatred League with any portion of the Kerr Scott-Charles Johnson head-on in 1948. And neither was the Alexander-Broyhill contest.

IN THE TENTH... While the Lake - Sanford donnybrook was pretty rank for newcomers to the Democratic Party... and not used to same... we never felt it reached the intensity of the Hooton - Broughton situation in 1940.

Scars from these things linger for a long time. Kerr Scott, being a loner and never considered one of the boys, always had rugged campaigns. His no doubt short-lived enemies... and friends. The enemies were few... but bitter... here and there... personal.

Of course, his friends he counted by the hundreds of thousands. Each day now Kerr Scott grows in stature. Scott never overlooked an enemy. I recall an instance of where he might have. He had served his term as Governor, was then in the U. S. Senate. He had come to Raleigh for some little ceremony - a portrait unveiling or something like that. As he stood with one or two friends just outside the State Senate Hall in the Capital, a man whose name you would know came up, stuck out his hand.

Kerr Scott's big, fuzzy John L. Lewis eyebrows knotted. He looked at this person, who was then head of the State Division of Purchase and Contract, and said: "I never shake hands with a S.O.B." We are quoting the late Senator Scott almost verbatim - except that he did not use the initials - and he gritted it out, almost through clenched teeth. That way.

This man had been for Alton Lennon in the U. S. Senate race a year or two earlier. He had done something which nearly defeated Kerr Scott or Scott put the blame for this stunt at his door... and this was the first time we had seen him since the campaign.

The object of the senator's wrath dropped his hand, became pale, muttered something, and turned away. He was 20 years younger than Kerr Scott, a former All-State football player with a temper like a timber rattler. But he held it... and avoided a scene. The important point is that Kerr Scott did not know, care about, or even think of, what the results of his greeting might be. He just said what he felt. It came straight from the heart.

Alas, within two years each had joined "the innumerable caravan, which moves to that mysterious realm..."

DOWN TO THE WIRE... Since this is written two days before the Election we can only write about what happened before Nov. 4. The Republicans fought hard... and we have never seen the Democrats better organized. This past Sunday was not a "day of rest" in either camp. Each no doubt figured the ox was in the ditch. It was!

party area. This goes for the South as a whole, too.

NOTES... Former State Senator Archie Davis of Winston-Salem is being groomed for the vice presidency of the American Bankers Association.

Here is the way things looked over the old line Democratic politicians in Raleigh last week end: They were worried about Paul Kitchin in the Eighth... felt that Alexander would come through in the Ninth... were worried about the constitutional amendments vote... and were turning on the steam to get them passed!

How did their predictions stack up? —Look for a big... and important... announcement soon of interest to deserving boys and girls unable to go to college.

Let's see what kind of guesser is our clipping service friend, Phil McCombs of San Francisco. He told us - again - last week that Gov. Pat Brown seemed to have the edge on Richard Nixon for the governorship of California (he had both as clients).

It sounds like a tale - but talk here persists that Democratic Chairman Bert Bennett of Winston-Salem is sliding away - ever so little - from the State administration overseen by Titular Party Head Temy Sanford. How will things be now that the Election is history... and what effect did it have - if so.

This Needham Broughton High School boy, who incidentally keeps the family car, was driving his father to work in one of the state offices last week. Dad complained a little about Son being out late the night before. "What was the trouble... a flat tire?" "Not at all, Pop. If she had been, I really would have got it, earlier."

Three great U. S. parties: Republican, Democrat, and cocktail.

60 Second Sermons

Theme: Is Life Worth Living? TEXT: "It is good for us to be here" - New Testament.

Two men were discussing their status in life.

"I started on the theory that the world had an opening for me," said one.

"And did it?" asked the other. "Yes" was the reply. "I'm certainly in the hole now."

Is life worth living? Some worry over that question all their lives. Others cloud their minds with busy-ness. The answer does not come. Still others smother the question in self-indulgence.

Our trouble is that we think some one else has the answer. The worth of living is in us. We find it there or we do not find it at all.

A few hours before he died, Sidney Lanier, the poet, drew attention to the view from his farm house window at Tryon, North Carolina. He spoke of the profusion of nature in the valley before him. That beauty was his "compensation," he said. Life was worth living because he saw it that way.

LIBRARY NEWS

A Riddle
What's gay as a carnival, bender as chalk,
Jolly as puppies just learning to walk,
Useful as Band-Aids or money to spend,
Waiving as fire is, kind as a friend,
Tempting as hamburgers ready to cook,
Far more exciting than flying?
A BOOK!

Each child who visits the library during Children's Book Week, Nov. 11-17, will be given an attractive, colorful book-mark with this charming little verse on it. The author is Phyllis McGinley, who wrote "A Riddle" especially for Book Week, 1962. The young people will find special displays to interest them, and many, many new books to enjoy, as well. Plan now to visit the library during Book Week.

ATTENTION ALL PEOPLE
Book Week is bargain week in the Library. No overdue fines charged during book week, Nov. 11-17.

We all feel good when we find a bargain, so search your bookshelves and tell your friends. Round up your overdue books and bring them in during the week of Nov. 11-17 and receive your reward — NO OVERDUE FINES. This is only for that week, though, so start searching now.

All during Children's Book Week you will hear short messages broadcast by children of Davie County from Radio Station WEDC. These will be presented at intervals during the broadcasting hours, and these boys and girls will be telling in their own words their reasons for enjoying the use of the library. You will want to hear them, we know, so listen for these unprompted and interesting statements from a cross-section of the young people of Davie County.

LEO F. WILLIAMS
County Farm Agent

PEACE CORPS VOLUNTEER IN GUATEMALA

Would you like to serve as a Peace Corps Volunteer in Guatemala? Are you between the ages 18 and 25? Do you have a farm background, 4-H or FFA experience? Have you had experience or training in farm cooperatives? Did you take courses in agriculture or home economics in college? Leo F. Williams, Agricultural Extension Agent for Davie County, says if your answer is "yes" to the first two questions and one or more of the others you should apply now.

Volunteers in Guatemala will not be required to demonstrate very high proficiency in any specific technical field. They will try to show the Guatemalans how to better their way of life. Encouragement, gentle hints convincing demonstration and friendship will be more important than theories or college degrees. The Volunteers will try to get the people to experiment for themselves, and ON THEIR OWN to utilize the human, financial and technical resources which the country possesses.

The great majority of farm families live in the Indian heartlands, where ancient traditions and ignorance have restricted these people from developing into a productive force for their country. Recently they have become interested in developing their lands and using more modern methods of farming.

Volunteers will find broad opportunities in teaching agricultural and home making techniques through 4-H type clubs. Through demonstrations, they can introduce better seeds, fertilizers, pesticides and fungicides, better nutritional practices, sewing and homemaking, better livestock management, breeding and vaccination, and better use and maintenance of machinery.

There is also a great need for developing credit facilities and cooperatives, encouraging soil conservation practices, and improving sanitation.

Volunteers will live and work in villages located about 4-5 hours via Jeep travel from Guatemala City, a thriving metropolis of 350,000 population. Guatemala is also the country where the mysterious Mayan civilization flourished centuries ago. Extensive ruins have been unearthed in the Peten region, making it a haven for archeologists and anthropologists.

All persons in Davie County interested in applying for Peace Corps should contact Mr. Williams at his office as soon as possible.

ups of what is going on "down there". Unique pattern of the land may consist of curving bands of stripchopping or terraces. Orchards planted on the contour and windbreaks to protect large fields in the Plains States have their own peculiar pattern. Ponds that dot the landscape illustrate a practice that has mushroomed among the Nation's conservation-minded farmers. And irrigation in the arid parts of the country has made striking change in the appearance of the land from up high. These and other land features are well illustrated in this new publication.

Another publication intended to help farmers and suburbanites to select sites for private sewerage disposal systems is now available from the Soil Conservation Service. The publication, "Soil Suitable For Septic Tank Filter Fields," is well illustrated and tells why filter fields fail, how soil surveys show areas suitable for a filter field, how to use a soil map to select a filter field site, how to calculate the size of filter field needed, and how to make a percolation test.

'63 Chevrolet Trucks
THEY'VE ALWAYS BEEN TOUGH BUT NEVER STRONGER THAN NOW!

You can be sure that new engines, frames, suspensions that licked Mexico's Baja* Run will work for you long, faithfully and at traditionally low Chevrolet cost.

A Chevrolet truck has always been a sound investment because of its quality construction. This is what makes it give you an honest day's work every day at very low cost and—when you are finished with it—return more resale money to your happy pocket.

This year stronger frames, engines that can pull more, and practically tailor-made suspension systems make Chevrolet trucks a better buy than ever. If you're in the market now, we'd welcome the chance to tell you about, and let you drive, the new trucks. Just give us a call.

Good lamps save your eyes, . . . beautify your home!

Proper lighting begins with a good lamp! Know what to look for before you buy and you can make your home easier to work in, safer to live in and more beautiful to see.

A lamp should be functional as well as decorative. Choose a lamp having a white-lined shade with an open top. It should distribute no-glare light evenly over the entire working or reading area.

Once you have the right lamp, it's important to place it correctly and be sure the light bulb is at least 100 watts. Begin now to guard your family's eyesight. Choose from the handsome new styles of table and floor lamps at your favorite lighting dealer or Duke Power.

Wheat Stabilization Program
Farmers can make major savings in government costs. According to A. P. Hassell, Jr., Executive Director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee, there are several tangible and some intangible reasons why wheat farmers should give their full cooperation to the special voluntary 1963 wheat program. By participating in this program, according to Hassell, the farmer can help his government reduce costs of agricultural programs and help to get supply in line with demand while at the same time increasing his farm income.

Other more immediate advantages include: Payments for diverted acreage will be a form of crop insurance, because regardless of drought, insects, or other hazards of nature which may prevent production of a crop, a farmer will receive his specified payment, one-half of it this fall.

If a farmer uses borrowed money for crop operations, he will save the interest money needed for the portion of the loans which would have been used in planting a crop and bringing it to harvest on the acreage now diverted. With less acreage, there will be less expense for hired seasonal labor. Approved conservation practices on retired acreages will improve the quality of a farmer's land holding, not only for himself, but for successive generations of his family. There will be less wear-out of costly farm equipment. The farmer can have more time with which to repair and renovate farm buildings and equipment.

In fact, there are many advantages beyond money in cooperating with the wheat program for 1963 when the highly desirable end results are improved prices and production in line with demand.

To Dedicate Building Sunday

Smith Grove Methodist Church Shows Growth Since 1780

Smith Grove Methodist Church, located on highway 158 about 8 miles north of Mocksville, will dedicate its educational building on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 18, at 3 p.m. Principal participants in the service of dedication will be Bishop Nolan B. Harmon, Rev. John H. Carper, and Dwight Mashburn, present minister of the church. C. J. Smith Grove Church is a successor to the Whitaker Church which was located on the east side of Dutchman's Creek near Brown's Mill. Whitaker Church according to Rev. W. L. Grissom's history written about 1890, was established as early as 1780. A cemetery stands sentinel to this historic past. Bishop Asbury preached at Whitaker's upon at least two occasions April 2, 1784 and October 13, 1789.

Smith Grove was the outgrowth of a noted camp meeting in 1826. The present sanctuary was not constructed until 1877. Prior to this time there was a regular appointment at the academy.

It is interesting to note that in 1828 while Peter Doub was Presiding Elder, the first camp meeting was held. There were, according to Rev. W. L. Grissom's accounts, between 150-200 tents. The meeting was reported as one of great power. Many Christians were encouraged and strengthened. There were some 150 converts. These meetings were continued until 1886 with Rev. W. C. Nelson, Presiding Elder as preacher. Arthur Smith gave the land for the original camp meeting site.

"The splendid history which began in a revival is continuing today," is written in an indelible way in 1961. This continues by saying "April, 1961, stands upon the threshold of a glorious future. We can see in retrospect the accomplishments of the past. We are inheritors of a great and sacred tradition. We pray that God may grant that we may pass on an even greater tradition to our successors."

November 18, 1962, marks the completion of another great step in the history of this church. The educational building program was started under the guidance of the Rev. George E. Smith and the building was constructed under the leadership of the Rev. Wade C. Rogers. The indebtedness was removed within the first two years of the present pastor, the Rev. Dwight Mashburn.

The Building Committee was composed of the following persons: John Groce, Gray Taylor (now deceased), Willie Armsworthy, Mrs. Wiley Beeding, and Mrs. Fred Smith.

5 Arrested Here For Attempted Break-in of Store

Four Winston-Salem teenagers and a Wilkes County youth were held Sunday night in Davie County jail in connection with an attempted break-in in Davie and theft of cakes at Winston-Salem.

Davie County Deputy Sheriff Ray Sowers identified the four Winston-Salem youths as James Andrew Jackson, 17, of 1424 W. Fourth Street; Billy Ray Stanley, 16, of 332 N. Green Street; Jimmy Smith, 18, of 434 Summit Street; and Robert Lawrence Carlton, 18, of 1143 Burke Street.

The fifth youth, Deputy Sowers said, is Johnny Kilby, of Boomer, Rt. 1.

Five Arrested
Deputy Sowers said that he and Davie Deputy Paul Dwiggins, accompanied by Mocksville Police- man Jim Smith, arrested the five in a car early Sunday at U. S. 64 and Cornatzer Road following an attempted break-in at D. D. Bennett & Sons Grocery some six miles east of here on Cornatzer Road.

The youths admitted they attempted to break into the store about 4 a. m. Deputy Sowers said, and that they also had stolen a quantity of cakes earlier in Winston-Salem at Lawson's Sandwich Shop at 301 Crafton Street.

Winston-Salem police were notified, and they checked early Sunday at the closed shop. They said they found that seven dozen cakes were missing from two cases of cakes left on the sidewalk outside the shop.

Deputy Sowers said the youths directed them to a place where they threw away the cakes on Cornatzer Road.

Rebels Drop Finale 7-6

Rebels Outplay North Rowan But Lose By One

Davie High School Rebels hosted North Rowan last Saturday night in everything but the scoring department as they bowed in the finale at Spencer, 6 to 7.

North Rowan end Don Grubb, sidelined since October 19 with a broken collar bone, came off the bench and booted the Cavaliers to the one point win. He kicked the extra point following the North touchdown in the second period that gave the new North Piedmont Conference champions the verdict.

The Cavaliers, who will meet Asheville, the South Piedmont Conference winner, for the Piedmont crown next Friday night, spotted the Rebels a touchdown lead in the first period and then charged back in the second quarter for their seven points.

Coach Jack Ward's Rebels ended the season with an overall record of 6 wins and 4 losses, and a conference record of 7-3. The game was postponed from Friday until Saturday night because of the heavy rain on Friday.

In the statistical battle, Davie County held a wide edge with 11 first downs to four for North, 162 yards rushing to 23 for the Cavs and 41 at passing to 27 for North.

Davie County, sparked by the running of Ronnie McClamrock and the passing of Grimes Parker, carried the opening kickoff 76 yards in 13 plays for its touchdown.

Parker hit two passes and McClamrock got some good gains in the drive. McClamrock mudd the touchdown on a five yard run. Gobbie's scrimmage try for the point failed.

North capitalized on a short Davie punt for its touchdown. The kick went out of bounds on the Rebel 30.

Then North's touchdown twins — Tailback Mike Lester and Mike Steele — went to work, and they carried the Cavaliers to a touchdown.

Lester picked up two and then two plays later a pass interference ruling gave the Cavs a first down at the Davie County 11. Steele and Lester moved it to the six and then Lester fired a five-yard pass to Chip Palmer. Steele plowed into the end zone for the score.

Grubb came off the bench to boot the extra point that decided the issue and gave North an unbeaten record in the conference. North finished its regular season with a record of eight wins, one loss and one tie.

Davie threatened in the third period when it drove to North's 18. It lost the football on downs.

North threatened twice in the last period. Chuck Honeycutt intercepted a Davie pass on the 38 and Lester and Steele carried to the 21 where the attack bogged down. A few minutes later, Jerry Eagle recovered a fumble at the DC 42. North got to the 24 where a penalty halted the threat.

Leading North offensively were Steele and Lester. McClamrock and Parker were the big guns for Davie. On defense Lonnie Williams and Chuck Honeycutt were standouts for North. Check and Eaton led Davie.

A Fishing Trip

James D. Boger, Pete Dwiggins and Raymond Daniels of Mocksville and E. E. Daniels of Salisbury went on a fishing trip last week. This is their story:

"On Tuesday, Nov. 6, 1962, we went out on a boat with Captain Henry Rothrock at Kure Beach, N. C. He took us out to Fort Fisher and we fished all around a wrecked ship of the Civil War days. When we returned to shore late in the evening we had a catch of 525 trout and 175 blues. We have heard about and read about it but this is our first time to count this number of fish.

"If anyone would like to go fishing they should see Captain Henry Rothrock at Kure Beach, N. C.," said the four fishermen.

Trooper Howard quited Mr. Bondurant as saying he tried to drive over to the right in an effort to avoid the collision.

Trooper Howard said that an eyewitness to the accident came forth later to report that Bondurant had passed his paneled truck just immediately prior to the accident, but had gotten back into his right lane at the time of the collision.

The officer said Bondurant, who wears artificial limbs replacing an arm and a leg lost in a dynamite explosion in his youth, offered a broken jaw and possible internal injuries. Bondurant was admitted to City Memorial Hospital in Winston-Salem. Howard said a seat belt saved Bondurant's life.

The officer said Bondurant was enroute to Little Rock, Ark.

Bondurant, owner of B and V Motor Co. in Rural Hall, suffered his older injuries when the explosive went off prematurely while he was working in a well.

Mrs. Lakey was dead on arrival at Davie County Hospital.

Born in Davie

She was born in Davie County to C. A. and Floris Boles Seaford and was the wife of Cecil Lakey.

Surviving are her husband; a son, Donald Lake, and a daughter, Lu Ann Lakey, all of the home; her parents of Mocksville, Rt. 4; three brothers, Glenn and Jack Seaford, both of Mocksville, Rt. 4, and Johnny Seaford of Statesville, and a sister, Miss Jewel Seaford of Mocksville, Rt. 4.

On the side board were hurricane shades filled with fruit.

Punch was served from the breakfast table with a centerpiece of chrysanthemums.

Dr. Plemmons To Speak At Northwest Banquet

DR. W. H. PLEMMONS

Dr. William H. Plemmons, President of Appalachian State Teachers College, will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Northwest North Carolina Development Association in Elkin on Dec. 6.

Final plans for the ninth annual meeting of the Association will be completed by the Board of Directors at their Nov. 16 meeting. Hugh Crigler, president of the development group, announced that the dinner meeting is scheduled at the Gilvin Roth YMCA in Elkin on Dec. 6, at 6:30 p.m.

Ticket sales for the dinner are now being handled in each of the 11 counties by the association directors. Robert P. Campbell of Winston-Salem, general chairman for the meeting, has announced that limited space requires that only 800 tickets be available.

Prior to Dr. Plemmons' address, awards will be presented to Northwest North Carolina communities and counties in a competition for special attainments in agriculture, industry, travel and recreation, youth work and community development. Last year the county awards totaled $4,350.00 in cash.

Dr. Plemmons is a native of Buncombe County. He attended Mars Hill College and graduated from Wake Forest. He received the Master of Science degree from Duke University and completed his Doctorate in Education at the University of North Carolina in 1943.

An experienced school administrator, Dr. Plemmons served as principal of Leicester High School in Buncombe County and Lee Edwards High School in Asheville before joining the Education Department at UNC in 1941.

Dr. Plemmons is currently serving as a vice president of the Development Association. He is active in the affairs of the State Baptist Convention.

Dr. and Mrs. Plemmons, the former Elizabeth Sparrow of Wilmington, have lived in Boone since September, 1955.

THE HOLY BIBLE WAS HER TEXT

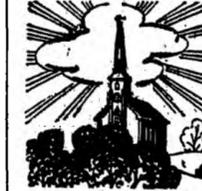

The daily life of the Pioneer Woman was a full and busy one. Danger was ever present — and a matter of providing food and clothing, while carving a new home out of the wilderness, was a stupendous problem.

The pioneer woman, however, had time for training her children and the Holy Bible was her text. It was through her influence that church soon followed the ulcing of a new settlement.

Although faced with tasks each and every day that would swamp the modern woman she had time to go to church and she took her family with her.

She bore and trained sons and daughters who produced a mighty nation. If she could and did find time to take her children to church, it is doubly important that the parents of today do so, that their children may learn to maintain and preserve that heritage gained at such great odds.

CEDAR CREEK

By MRS. W. H. EATON
Our Sunday School lesson for the past Sunday was Psalm 8, "What Is Man, That Thou Art Mindful of Him?" We are sure that was the question in our minds before the election. Who are the men and what kind of men are they? The Lord knows them, for He made man and he just a little lower than the angels, and crowned them with glory and honor. So, let all of us pray God will grant them wisdom and knowledge to maintain Brotherly Love toward one another and help make the world a better place for all men.

RUSSIAN COLLECTIVE FARMS

Russian agriculture is roughly 50 years behind American agriculture. Poor management and lack of mechanization are the biggest Soviet weaknesses.

These are some of the conclusions reached by Dr. Kenneth R. Keller, in charge of tobacco research at North Carolina State College, following a three-week visit to Russia and Eastern Europe.

Dr. Keller was among the first group of American tobacco officials to visit Russia as part of a U. S. - Soviet exchange program. Other North Carolinians making the trip were Carl Hicks, of Walstonburg, president, Flue-cured Tobacco Cooperation Stabilization Inc.; and Malcolm B. Seawell, of Chapel Hill, executive secretary, Tobacco Association of the U. S. and Leaf Exporters Assn. A Russian delegation returned the visit.

Dr. Keller stressed that he does not claim to be an expert on Russia after such a brief visit. He did make these observations, however.

At the New Life Collective Farm near Mshinev about 3,000 farm workers were needed to manage the 21,250-acre farm, only 17,500 of which were under cultivation.

At another collective farm visited in the state of Georgia—Stalin's birthplace—630 workers were needed to cultivate 3,125 acres. This is roughly one worker for each five acres.

Keller described much of the tillage as "primitive." Men and women cut hay with a sythe. Some crawler tractors are used, along with many oxen and horses.

"As we traveled to the collective farms...I was impressed with the vast areas of potentially productive soils and magnitude of the fields," Keller said.

"Since the government owns all of the farms, they are operated from a central headquarters or village. At the head of each farm is a chairman appointed by the state. Serving with him are nine councilmen elected by the farm workers. Production plans are reportedly submitted to Moscow for approval.

"Buildings in the villages are drab, plain and of a seemingly poor construction," Keller continued. "Houses are located close together and in most cases surrounded by a fence. Within the confines of an individual domicile one notes a small garden, a few chickens, ducks and geese, and on occasion a small patch of tobacco and fruit trees. We assumed that the produce from these few square feet is property of the family."

Each collectivized farm worker produces enough food for himself and three to four other people, Keller said. Each American farmer produces enough to feed himself and 28 others.

For a closer look at collective agriculture, Dr. Keller obtained these production figures from the New Life Farm:

Total farm population is 8,000, about 3,000 of whom work on the farm. Pay scales range from $1.11 to $2.75 for daily work quotas that may take more or less than a day to perform. Of the farm's 21,250 acres, 17,500 are under cultivation with the remainder devoted to open land grazing and buildings. Cattle number about 2,700 head; hogs about 4,000 head.

Corn, wheat, soybeans and sunflowers are the principal crops, accounting for 13,750 acres. About 1,300 acres are in fruit trees and another 2,000 acres in a grape vineyard.

Tobacco, which totals only 500 acres, will account for an estimated 40 per cent of the farm's projected 1962 income of about $2 million. Food shortages prevent much increase in tobacco acreage, although the crop is extremely profitable by Russian standards—about $880 per acre.

"Everywhere we went," Keller said, "the people were gracious, hospitable and appreciative of our visit. We were given a welcome beyond our expectation..." The visiting Americans also found much regimentation among collectivized farm workers.

Dr. Keller said the visit gave him a new appreciation for the efficiency of the American farmer. "Shortcomings of Russian agriculture were evidenced by the dirty, dingy appearance of Moscow food markets," he said. Russians must spend about 56 per cent of their family income for food, while American families spend about 20 per cent.

"Putting it another way," Keller continued, "the average American factory worker can pay for a pound of butter with 21 minutes of labor. A Russian worker must work three hours and 13 minutes for the same product."

"If our farms were no more efficient than Soviet collectives, 20 to 25 million American industrial workers would have to quit their jobs and return to the farm to produce food for our population."

Dr. Keller said he found the Russians "a proud people...whose incentive is to make life better in the years ahead. We are ahead of them in agriculture now," he added. "But we must not become complacent...stop our research programs and efforts to become even more efficient. If we do the future may be a different story."

THE GOLD WAR—A GREAT DEBATE

A debate which "in the perspective of history may appear as momentous as the Lincoln-Douglas debates on slavery more than a century ago," is shaping up over the question of whether the United States should press for total victory over communism, Eugene Lyons writes in the November Reader's Digest.

Mr. Lyons, a nationally-recognized authority on communism, says there is a significant parallel between this debate and the Lincoln-Douglas encounters. "Then, the question was whether a nation could survive half-slave, half-free; now, whether the world can survive half-slave, half-free," he writes in the article "The Great Debate: How to Fight the Cold War."

The basic question, he says, is: "Should we continue to seek an enduring settlement, peaceful coexistence, with the communist bloc whose leader has vowed to bury us? Or should we make a firm commitment to work for ultimate victory over world communism—including the emancipation of the billion people already under its yoke?"

It is not a partisan issue, he writes, although Senators Barry Goldwater (R., Ariz.) and J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, have two of the strongest voices on opposing sides of the controversy. Douglas (Ill.) and William Proxmire (Wis.) are demanding tougher anti-communist policies despite the fact that their party is in power; and Sen. Goldwater and other Republicans were no less critical of what they considered the "soft" posture taken when the administration was Republican. Many liberals, even moderate socialists, have been in the forefront of vigorous anti-communist efforts.

Many of those favoring the "coexistence" approach accuse those who want total victory over communism of favoring nuclear war, Mr. Lyons writes. This, he says, is precisely what the communists want us to believe. He quotes Sen. Goldwater: "The choice is not yield or fight a nuclear war; it is win or fight a nuclear war. For a nuclear war we shall certainly have to fight, from whatever beleaguered outpost we are reduced to occupying, if we continue to yield, piece by piece, all over the world. Finally, in desperation, we would see the horrible alternatives clearly a violent act of nuclear aggression or surrender."

AMERICAN TRUCKING ASSOCIATIONS, INC.

ASKED FOR IT... To get the full photo of Congressman Paul Kitchin's defeat by GOP Congressman Charles Jonas in the Eighth District, you have to go back to the years between 1950 and 1960.

In those years — while North Carolina was spending several million dollars tending, and truthfully, about our fine industrial climate — we were actually losing heavily in population.

We lost so many people, in fact, that we lost a Congressman. We finally saw this when the census was taken in 1960. Much of this drain was from the mountain counties, but the big portion of it was east of Raleigh.

In the Piedmont area, however, most of the counties and towns showed huge gains in population. But, instead of dropping a Congressman in the east, where we lost most of our people, or in the mountains, the Legislature went into the heart of where we had the most people and where we had gained the most people, to lose our 12th Congressman.

Why did we go to the Piedmont? We' it was not an easy decision to make. Now there will be more fussing about it. The powers that be certainly did not want to lose a Democratic Congressman. Perish the thought. But there was no other way if we were to lose a Congressman where we had lost the people that forced us to drop from 12 to 11 our number of Congressmen.

So, in the re-juggling, the re-shuffling, the regarrymandering, it was decided that the monkey should be placed on Paul Kitchin's back. We saw a chance to lose a Republican Congressman.

We made the decision, rolled in our big guns, and went at it. The rest is history. The Democrats lost a Democratic Congressman, anyway, and untold amounts of prestige as well. We used to hear some advice along these lines: "Be sure your sins will find you out."

THE LIST... Would you like to run for Governor? The list of prospects willing to make the sacrifice for this post seems to be growing daily now and, sooner or later, you may be included.

In view of the real and fancied troubles the Democrats are having with stylish new Republican Party, it would be great if they could settle on one man to represent them in the 1964 election.

However, the conservatives don't want Bert Bennett and the Liberals don't want Beverly Lake. Paul Kitchin would have been acceptable to the Lake people and presumably to the Bennett followers, but he's out. And of course so is Joe Hunt of gritty, grinning Guilford (nobody knows what happened there).

Here is the list we consider as prospective candidates for Governor. We name them as they come to mind: C. V. Henkel, Statesville; Ike Berk, Charlotte; Woodrow Jones, Rutherfordton; Beverly Lake, Raleigh; Bert Bennett, Winston-Salem; Thad Eure, Raleigh; L. Y. Ballentine, Raleigh; John R. Jordan, Raleigh;

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:
Back when I was about 10 year old and the first automobiles was showing up in these parts, I recollect me and my Grandpa watching a feller trying to crank one of the things. "He'll never get the fool thing to go," said Grandpa. After a while, when the feller got it going, Grandpa watched it roll off in a cloud of dust and allowed, "He got it started but he'll never get the durned thing stopped."
Grandpa was a true prophet, Mister Editor. We ain't got it stopped, and today the automobile is choking the big cities clear back into the bushes. You got branch banks, branch grocery stores, branch everything built out in the country from the cities. It's on account of automobile traffic running everthing and everbody back to the woods. I see where some cities is barring automobiles from whole sections of the city. It might be the dawn of a new day fer things. And it could help a lot of people's health to walk six or eight blocks to the business section. It's got so a feller, if he can't park his two front wheels inside the store door, sets down and writes a complaint to his Congressman.

What brings all this to mind is a piece I was reading yesterday about a new 3-ton, 3-wheel jet car which has been put on display in Los Angeles. This car, the piece said, was designed to go 500 mile a hour and they aim to try it out in Utah and break the old speed limit of 394 mile a hour set by a car 15 year ago. Personal, I think they already got some of these cars around here. They pass me going back and forth to town so fast I can't count the wheels or figger the weight, but I'm almost shore it's one of them jet jobs.

Gitting back to things that is traveling a little slower, the papers is full of items about a big upheaval in education all over the country. One college professor fer instant, is perdicating that in another 10 year colleges will be teaching without books. That's when you'll really see some ball teams, Mister Editor. On the other hand, I see where the President of Yale says that, actual, he ain't got but three problems salaries for his professors, football fer his old grads, and parking space fer his students.

On the serious side, I see where a feller from Alabama has wrote to Senator John Sparkman wanting the Department of Agriculture to experiment with a vine that'll grow square tomatoes, so the slices will fit pieces of loaf bread. I wouldn't be surprised to see the Congress appropriate $100,000 fer this project come the next session. It seems to me it would be cheaper fer the taxpayers if the Government would just make the proper arrangements to keep this feller supplied during the tomato season with round loaf bread from a Government bakery.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dan

Theme: Conceit Is An Odd Disease

TEXT: "Conceit is a disease that makes everyone sick but he who has it" - Unknown
Socrates once was asked, "Why is it, Sir, that you tell everyone who wants to become your disciple to look into this pond and tell you what he sees?" "That is simple," replied the sage, "I am ready to accept all who tell me they see the fish swimming around. But those who see only their own image mirrored in the water are in love with their Ego. I have no use for them."

Conceit stands in the way of more people, pointing to the wrong road more often than any other failure-maker. The sad fact is that conceit interrupts those who have a great potential and causes them to fall because they begin to admire their own reflections. We all have this weakness to some degree. Therefore, we should test ourselves frequently to discover if we are admiring our own reflections.

To test yourself, Senator Joseph S. Clark wrote, have subordinates who aren't afraid to tell you the truth; continue to associate with old friends who knew you before you were Mr. Big Shot; or have a wife who tempers affection with understanding of human frailty. Remember, your conceit that makes others ill, will never nauseate you.

Senator SAM ERVIN Says:

MORGANTON—The complexities of the age in which we live have placed new burdens on intergovernmental relations between local, state, and national governments. During the opening session of a newly-created Senate Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations at the last Congress, I commented on some of these problems. The Subcommittee, of which I am a member, will be continuing its efforts to evolve practical solutions in this field at the next Congress.

The finest system of government ever devised by man is the American system of government, and I think that is true because the Constitution is correctly described in the statement made by Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase in Texas vs. White. He said in that case, "The Constitution, in all of its provisions, looks to an indestructible Union, composed of indestructible States."

I think if we were to destroy the States we would destroy our Constitutional system of government and do the greatest injury to the cause of good government that could possibly be done. The States are in jeopardy at this time I think, for several reasons. The first reason is that those who seek to impose their will upon others in governmental matters would prefer to deal with one government only, namely, the Federal Government. This would have a very bad effect if it were to be accomplished. One of the great values of our system of government, which separates the powers of government between the National Government and State Government, lies in the fact it affords us fifty laboratories in the States for governmental experiments.

A State can experiment with an innovation in government or economics and if it turns out bad it does not affect us governmentally speaking or economically speaking except in one limited area. If it turns out good then it can be adopted in the other States. If the Federal Government indulges in an experiment which has tragic consequences, it affects us tragically at all levels.

Secondly, in shifting all responsibility of government from a State level to a National level, such action relieves the people of a sense of responsibility at the local level. One of the things about our system of government which is essential if it is to endure is a sense of responsibility individuals at local levels. Someone has said that the saddest epitaph that can be written on the loss of any right is that those who had the saving power failed to stretch forth a saving hand while there was yet time. This thing goes far beyond merely governmental things. It goes to the personality of the people of the United States.

Whenever you shift all responsibility of government from the States to the National level you destroy the only society in which personality really can exist. You are certainly impressed by the truth of this observation when you try to deal with some of these overgrown Federal agencies.

I think the problem of taxation and sources of revenue stands in the forefront of all the intergovernmental problems confronting local, state, and Federal governments. This is a field in which something drastic has to be done in order to give to the States and the local communities more sources of taxation than they now enjoy. The alternative is to have them continue to do what they have been doing with increasing frequency; and that is, to come to Uncle Sam to beg for a little more of the patrimony which has taken from them.

The federal system of government must be preserved. It can best be preserved by heeding the admonition attributed by Judge Learned Hand to the late Supreme Court Justice Brandeis who is said to have stated: "The states are the only breakwater against the ever-pounding surf which threatens to submerge the individual and destroy the only society in which personality can exist."

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

The rise of the city, so much discussed a century ago has tended to obliterate its own objective. New York City has become the center of an urban complex reaching continuously from Boston to Washington, and including one-fifth of America's land area with one-fifth of her people. Where once the business centers were concentrated in the middle of the cities, they have moved more and more toward the suburbs where the modern motif prevails and there is room to park one's car as well as self. But this trend results in the creation of more cities, so that there is an ever-increasing number of urban circles extending across our continent. Perhaps if production for human needs, especially foods, is handled correctly, this trend will continue until the deserts will bloom with neon lights and the shopping center will be the prevailing symbol of America.

When I first came to New York 23 years ago, the mayor was a chubby little man named La Guardia. He was a colorful chap and when there was a newspaper strike once, he read the comics - which he obtained from newspapers elsewhere - to the kiddies over the radio and created a comic sensation himself. A favorite expression of La Guardia was "patience and fortitude" which he frequently urged upon his listeners. He said this so much that it appeared to be original with him. But recently while doing research on the American Revolution, I came across a letter from Lord Cornwallis to Lord Germain written from South Carolina on September 19, 1780, in which he stated that the local Tories showed much "patience and fortitude" in their harsh treatment by the patriots. So La Guardia lacked at least 160 years of being original.

The church had been heated all too well on this particular Sunday morning, and the minister as he proceeded with his sermon noticed that one of his audience had fallen asleep. Thinking he would remedy this situation, the parson said softly, "All those who want to go to heaven, rise!" All arose except the sleeping man. When the congregation had again been seated, the minister announced in a much louder voice "All those who want to go to hell, stand!" The startled sleeper jumped to his feet, the only one who did so, then turned to the minister "I don't know what we're voting on Reverend," he commented, "but it looks like you and I are in the minority."

When President Ayub Khan of Pakistan was in this country not long ago, he spoke to a group of us and impressed us with his forthright wisdom. Recently he commented on the world situation in an arresting manner: "I am a soldier," he said, "I shudder to reflect that carriers hover over this planet every instant, that invisible rockets from under the earth and the sea - also perhaps from outer space - are ready at any moment to launch nuclear and thermonuclear death in a war of extermination against humanity at but a single word of command from those who hold awesome power. This is the fate that threatens all of us. This fate is not ordained by God. It has been contrived by man."

Here and There: Dr. James B. Conant, when he was president of Harvard, had on his desk a model of a turtle, and under it the words: "Consider the turtle. He makes progress only when he sticks his neck out..." Senator Norris Cotton says that death and taxes are both inevitable but at least death does not become worse each time that Congress meets...the color woodcuts of artist Joseph Domjan, are a picturesque part of the Kennedy Galleries display...food stores report that the use of trading stamps is catching more and more expense...Robert Koller asked his wife what she wanted for her birthday and she replied, that with all they had in their home, the only thing they needed was a fire engine. On the day concerned, he drove up in a 1936 Mack pumper with bell ringing and siren going.

About This Question

"A public opinion survey found that — in buying insurance—price is third down the list of considerations, far outweighed by company reputation and the quality of protection provided. Is this why two out of three people insure with a local independent agent?"

It happened 100 YEARS ago

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862 . . . the same year that

IN NORTH CAROLINA arrangements were made to transfer the Confederacy's naval ordnance center from Norfolk to Charlotte because of inland safety and good railroad to Wilmington. North Carolinians saluted this new commerce with glasses of beer.

For even then, beer was North Carolina's traditional beverage of moderation. Beer still provides enjoyment for North Carolinians, and a good living for many of them — not only the employees of the Brewing Industry itself, but also for North Carolina farmers and other suppliers of the materials brewers use.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

Cotton Referendum

On Dec. 11, 1962, Cotton farmers throughout the county are going to vote on marketing quotas for their 1963 crop.

Quotas must be proclaimed for the next upland cotton crop whenever the Secretary finds that the top supply exceeds the normal supply. For 1962-63, the total supply of upland cotton is estimated at over 22 million bales, which is 5 million bales above the "normal" supply. The normal supply is considered as the expected disappearance, domestic and export plus a reasonable carry-over.

The National quota is 14,357,000 bales, and the National acreage allotment is 16,000,000 acres. This is somewhat lower than the National marketing quota for the 1962 cotton crop.

The cotton acreage allotment is the acreage required to produce the Marketing Quota, based on the average yield for the four years 1958 through 1961.

The National acreage allotment has been apportioned to States, and it will be apportioned to counties and farmers will be notified of their allotments prior to the Referendum.

It at least two-thirds of the growers who vote in the Dec. 11 referendum approve the quotas, the price support for the 1963 cotton crop will be between 65 and 90 per cent of parity and growers who exceed their allotments will be subject to marketing penalties in their "excess" cotton.

If more than one-third oppose the quotas, then the available price support for 1963 crop cotton will drop to 50 per cent of parity, and there will be no quotas and no penalties in effect for the crop, but allotments will remain in effect to determine producers eligibility for the 50% support.

LEO F. WILLIAMS County Farm Agent

Tobacco Variety Performance Survey

A Tobacco Variety Performance survey is being conducted in Davie County to determine how various varieties compared in yield and value during 1962 on tobacco farms.

As many farmers as possible are being contacted so that the information gathered with represent a sizable portion of the tobacco grown in the county. Growers are being asked what total yield and value he received from each variety he grew in 1962.

Cards are being sent to a representative group of growers in the county and the growers who receive cards are urged to fill out the card accurately and return it to the County Agent's office. Everyone who received a card should send it in regardless of whether his yield is low, medium or high. This is essential if the summary of the variety data is to represent the actual performance of a given variety in the county and State.

This information is also being accumulated by other counties, and a summary of the county, belt and State results will be available for growers to see as soon as it has been summarized.

INCOME TAX SHORT COURSES

Income Tax Short Courses will be offered again this year by North Carolina State College, according to Leo F. Williams, County Agricultural Agent, in five locations across the state. These will include four two-day schools and one advanced school dealing with farm and small business income taxes.

The courses, which have the full cooperation of both State and Federal Revenue Services, are primarily designed for persons who assist others in filling out tax returns, with special emphasis on the farm and small business category.

The four regular courses will be held in four different areas of the state with the advanced course to be held at Raleigh on Dec. 12-14. Dates and locations for each of the four regular courses are as follows:

- Greenville, Nov. 27-28
Greensboro, Nov. 29-30
Asheville, Dec. 4-5
Charlotte, Dec. 6-7

Participating in the programs will be members of State College's Department of Agricultural Economics, the U. S. Internal Revenue Service, North Carolina Department of Revenue and the Social Security Administration.

The courses are offered through the facilities of the College Extension Division at State College cooperating with the N. C. Society of Accountants.

The four regular courses will delve into all areas of taxation, although a major portion of the course will be devoted to problems peculiar to the operation of farms and small businesses.

The advanced course has been initiated for persons who have considerable knowledge and experience in filling income tax returns . . . both State and Federal. It is recommended that first time students attend one of the regular courses before attempting the advanced section.

The courses were developed because of the complicated nature of modern business and the presence of special provisions in income tax laws applying to farming and small businesses.

For information concerning either the four regular or the advanced course, contact the College Extension Division, N. C. State College, P. O. Box 5125, Raleigh.

Some New Faces At Old Places

By EUGENE S. ROWMAN
Some new and attractive places in town that have taken over old locations are making their appearance these days.

Vernon's Furniture store now has a clean-looking store-front with windows washed to a sparkle which show off their merchandise to good advantage.

Carolina Seat Covers Center down on Wilkesboro Street has sprung up the front of their building using eye-catching red and blue on a background of yellow, for an attractive place of business.

Pennington Chevrolet has a real sparkling shine to its show windows and sales floor, always clean and inviting.

Duke Power Co. office (utilizing fully its own product) is nicely lighted with a soft glow, showing off to advantage the appliances on display for sale there.

B. C. Moore and Sons store can be relied upon for clean, attractive and up-to-date window displays, both out-front and on Depot Street entrance.

Farmers Hardware store has done much rearranging of their wares on the floor, and the newness of arrangement of window displays can only enforce more emphatically the invitation to come in and buy.

Edd's TV Service has always been one of Mocksville's cleanest and best kept stores.

There is much evidence of outdoor cleaning and better kept premises but there is still much to be desired here.

A beginning has been made by merchants along this line of having more attractive places of business, BUT there is room for improvement with many of us.

LIBRARY NEWS

By MRS. I. H. HUSKE

"Silent Spring," by Rachel Carson, is a book you will want to read. You have probably read reviews and articles about the book in newspapers and magazines in the last few weeks, as it is a highly controversial book and both the pros and cons have been made themselves heard. Miss Carson has written about something that affects us all. She chose the title "Silent Spring," because—

For as long a man has dwelt on this planet, spring has been the season of rebirth, and the singing of birds. Now in some parts of America spring is strangely silent, for many of the birds are dead—incidental victims of our reckless attempt to control our environment by the use of chemicals that poison not only the insects against which they are directed, but the birds in the air, the fish in the rivers, the earth which supplies our food, and, inevitably (to what degree is still unknown), man himself.

Rachel Carson is a biologist who became so concerned with this situation that she spent four and one half years gathering data from all over America, and from other parts of the world, on the effects of the pesticides now in general use. The facts, as set forth in this book, are appalling.

In easily understood language, Miss Carson explains what is meant by the "balance of nature." He shows how careful we must be, with the great power at our command, not to disturb this balance in a way that ultimately will do us more harm than good. She shows how the insects have the last laugh. While we have been progressively poisoning our own environment, many types of insects, including flies and mosquitoes, have been breeding superior races composed of individuals immune to chemical attack.

This book will come as a shock to many readers, a revelation to others. Ask for it at your Davie County Library and see what you think.

MORE ABOUT Mrs. Anderson

ing more in what is now the Center neighborhood.

Early Life

A son of Richard Anderson was Dr. John Anderson. Other sons included Albert and Charles. All lived in the Calahaln section with Dr. John serving the area as a medical doctor.

Dr. John Anderson married Miss Julia Blackwell from the eastern side of Hunting Creek and there were three children: Mrs. Jennie, Dr. Fred Anderson, Richard Anderson and Mrs. Emma Armfield.

Albert Anderson married Miss Fannie Poindexter of East Bend. Among their several children was the late Z. N. Anderson. But this is a story of Mrs. Jennie.

As a child, Jennie Anderson attended a little log cabin school near her home for about 3-months out of the year. This school was provided and paid for in most part by the three Anderson brothers, as most of the children attending this school were Andersons.

At the age of 13, she went to Statesville and enrolled in Mitchell College which she attended for 3 1/2 years. From there she went to Salem College and in 1894 received a Bachelor of Arts degree from this college.

On February 18, 1897 she and Zolliefer Nelson Anderson, her first cousin and childhood sweetheart, were married. For the next two years they continued to live on their farm in Calahaln.

In the spring of 1899, Mr. and Mrs. Z. N. Anderson moved to Mocksville where Mr. Zol went into the mercantile business with the late O. L. Williams. Their store was located at the present site of the Sanford building, now owned by Don Headen.

They purchased their home from James Call, brother of S. M. Call, who moved to Florida. At that time this was one of only a very few houses that stood on an old dirt road which is now the Main Street of Mocksville.

Mrs. Jennie vividly recalls those early days of horse and buggy travel. Only a few people would go by each day as compared to a Sunday afternoon this past summer when Mrs. Jennie said she sat on her front porch and counted over 700 cars in one hour.

"I counted 700 in an hour and may have missed some because they went by so fast," said Mrs. Jennie.

Early Masonic Picnics

She recalled that in 1902 the word came that some of the new inventions... the gasoline buggies... were going to be driven into Mocksville from Winston-Salem for the Masonic Picnic.

She said that a local officer was dispatched to wait in front of her house and give special instructions to the operators of these horseless carriages in the effort to avoid frightening the horses and disrupting traffic of those attending the picnic. However, only one of these vehicles showed up after the officer had waited most of the day.

On Picnic Day of 1912, a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Z. N. Anderson, living but a few hours. On June 28, 1915, their daughter, Mary Nelson... now Mrs. Freeman Slye of Takoma Park, Md., was born.

porary certificate, she attended summer school until she obtained an A Grade Life Certificate.

For 20 years Mrs. Jennie taught the third grade in the Mocksville school. During this time she was never absent or tardy except on one occasion... a death in the family. She cannot begin to count the number of pupils that she has taught and her pupils cannot begin to evaluate the inspiration and guidance that she gave to them. In 1942, she retired as a school teacher.

First Worthy Matron

Mrs. Jennie was a charter member of the local chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star. When it was first organized in 1925, she was selected by the Mocksville Masonic Lodge to be the first worthy matron. Remaining active in this organization until the past five or six years, she held about every office in the Eastern Star.

A member of the First Methodist Church of Mocksville, Mrs. Jennie taught Sunday School for many years including the Men's Bible Class.

Always an active member of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, she was recently presented with a life membership to this organization by members of her Circle.

In 1899 she carried her first basket to the Mocksville Masonic Picnic and then for 60 consecutive years thereafter she had a basket at this famed event.

"Back in the early days we never heard of sandwiches," said Mrs. Jennie. "We made our own bread, fried chicken and ham, made cakes, etc. for this event."

She recalls that also in the early days there was no dinner arbor and the meals were spread on tables under the open sky.

"On at least one occasion it rained after the lunch was spread. The chess pies stood full of water. The chocolate cake was soupy... and I can see yet a woman that had a red ribbon that had faded and streaked her white dress," said Mrs. Jennie.

After ten years in the mercantile business, Mr. Zol joined O. L. Williams at the venerable plant. Then he went into the wholesale grocery business; then became county accountant; and then tax collector for the Town of Mocksville.

Mr. Zol also served as mayor of Mocksville and it was during his term that the first lights were turned on in town.

Helps Others

Down through the years the Town of Mocksville grew and prospered and Mrs. Jennie continued to live in her house by the side of the road and display her friendship to all with whom she came in contact. In the rear of her home she maintained both a vegetable and a flower garden, doing most of the work herself. Each year she would plant some corn and save some from seed... for this corn originated from some that Charles Anderson brought with him to North Carolina more than 200 years ago.

In the early days when there were no hospitals and medical doctors were scarce, Mrs. Jennie lent her assistance as a nurse to those in need from one end of the town to the other. And no one could even begin to measure the cookies and other treats which she enjoyed baking for the children of the neighborhood.

This I have always tried to do." And to this many will add AMEN... which in the case of Mrs. Jennie, means "WELL DONE!"

Local ASTC Student Active In Fellowship

Miss Edna Evans of Davie County is one of 40 students at Appalachian State Teachers College who is active in Westminster Fellowship, a Presbyterian student organization, according to WF president Ronald Brooks.

WF is one of six off-campus student denominational organizations at Boone. ASTC, a non-sectarian college has three religious organizations on campus: YMCA, YWCA, and Religious Council. The latter is composed of representatives from the eight organizations.

WF meets each Sunday night for supper and worship. Various outings, projects, meetings, and conventions are included in the organization's annual agenda.

A few of the highlights of the year are, according to Brooks, an annual Christmas visit to a nearby rest home, a synod convention at Montreat during spring quarter, and a water skiing party at Watauga Lake in eastern Tennessee.

Last year the organization sponsored a foreign exchange student from Korea for a year of study at ASTC. Two years ago the organization sent several delegates to the Presbyterian Quadrennial Convention held at Dallas, Texas.

Miss Evans, a senior majoring in primary education, is also active as a member of the Young Democrats Club and as a writer for the college newspaper.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Mae Evans of Box 102, Mocksville. Miss Evans was graduated from Troutman High School in 1959. Student Council, Glee Club, Science Club, Student Christian Association, Beta Club, and Future Teachers of America were the organizations of which she was a member.

She is residing at 109 Daugh-Blain Hall, ASTC.

Bishop Harmon delivered the dedicatory sermon choosing his text from the Third Epistle of John, Chapter 7, verses 1 and 2. The Rev. John H. Carper, District Superintendent of the Thomasville District of the Methodist Church read the scripture lesson and introduced the speaker.

Immediately following the dedication of the educational building, open house was observed.

Members of the following committees were recognized:

Building Committee: John Groce, chairman; Raymond Markland, Grady Taylor (now deceased), Mrs. Wiley Beeding, Mrs. Louise Smith, Willie Armsworthy. Welcome Committee: Kermit Smith, chairman; Jack Boger, Raymond Markland, Mrs. Ellerbe Sheek, Mrs. Louise Wilson, and Mrs. Georgia Foster.

Ushers: Bill Hendrix, Head Usher; Richard Beeding, James Gray Hendrix, Tim Smith, and Larry Barnhardt.

Floral Arrangements: Mrs. Louise Smith, Mrs. Ruth Markland, and Mrs. Georgia Foster.

Publicity: Mrs. Louise Smith, and Mrs. Dorothy Williams.

Social Security In Davie County

Is there a law that says that you can't work and draw your social security retirement benefits too? The answer is "NO"!

Many people believe that you can't work at all after you begin to draw Social Security. Other people believe that you can work but that you're allowed to earn $1200 without losing your Social Security checks. Both of these beliefs are wrong.

The law says that you can earn up to $1200 each year without losing any of your benefit checks. It also says that if you earn over $1200 your benefit will be affected in this way: You will have $1 in Social Security benefits deducted for every $2 that you earn between $1200 and $1700. And for every $1 you earn over $1700 you will have $1 in benefits deducted.

This means that if you were receiving a Social Security benefit of $100 each month, you could earn $200 by working and still be able to draw $450 in social security benefits. Of course, this is just an example and each case would be different depending on the amount of the Social Security check and the amount of earned income.

The thing to remember is that it is now possible for you to earn well over $1200 in a year (by working) and still be able to draw some of your social security benefits.

So if you are old enough to retire and are still working, you should contact your Social Security Office for information on your particular case. Don't wait—you might find out that you can draw some checks for last year.

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Regardless of what we have to be thankful for or who held the first Thanksgiving in this country, we had better be grateful for being around to celebrate the occasion. Massachusetts and Virginia are vying again for the honor of having first taken time out from the colonial struggle to give thanks to their Creator for being allowed to survive in the wilderness of the new world. Doubtless, good people in both of these colonies expressed such gratitude many times before they sat down together to give it voice over a turkey. Both these states were leaders in the formation of our country, furnishing more troops, leaders and money for the Revolution than any others. Then, they took the lead in developing state constitutions which served as fine models for our national one later. And from Washington through Monroe, for 35 years, the two states—John Adams was from Massachusetts, the rest from Virginia—gave the Presidents to the new United States. For awhile, it seemed that the country, in this respect,

Another vivid reminder of our early history is the organization, Daughters of the American Revolution, a title more genealogical than literal. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belk obligingly called by attention to a situation in this regard, which might well be remedied. An esteemed lady of their acquaintance was interested in joining such a group, but recalled she was not eligible to join the DAR because her ancestors were Tories. This is nothing to be ashamed of. Some of our best people in that time were Tories.

INTERNATIONAL FRIENDS

Because a Girl Scout is a "sister to every other Girl Scout," she makes friends everywhere in the world. She learns the customs, languages, and culture of people of foreign countries, often exchanging visits with them. Contributions to the campaign being carried on by the Pilot Area Girl Scout Council will help pave the road to peace.

There are historians today who term them, "the law-abiding citizens" of their day, at least, in relation to the laws of England. Perhaps we need a new organization, Daughters of the American Tories. And its abbreviation could handily be DAT.

A Japanese visitor informs me that in his country, tipping is not allowed—something we could well adopt here! Though many Japanese firms add a 10 per cent service charge, their employees, if offered gratuities, bow politely, decline and disappear. Even taxi drivers there refuse tips—this is hard for a New Yorker to believe. It seems that the Japs feel tipping is a feudal custom and are offended if they are made to feel people will not do their work well without extra pay.

The boss called the new stenographer into his office and told her she was the best-looking girl who had ever worked in his office. A pensive look came into her eyes. He added that she dressed well, had a nice voice, made a good impression on the public and that her conduct was fine. She thanked him profusely for his compliments. "Well, enjoy them to the fullest," said the boss, "because we're now going to discuss your spelling, punctuation and typing."

Have you been in a hospital lately? I hope not, unless it was as a visitor or to help these admirable institutions. The other day, I walked through a ward of a local hospital and it happened to be early in the morning. Perhaps I should not have been surprised, but every patient was "up" and eating breakfast. This is a regular custom, I was told. All those who are able must awake and eat at the same time. Though the food looked good, the look on the faces of some of the patients seemed to indicate that they would just as soon have snoozed some more before partaking of the repast.

FARM-CITY WEEK

November 16-22 is National Farm-City Week. The purpose of this observance is to bring about a better understanding between the people who live in town and cities and those who live on farms. According to Leo F. Williams, County Extension Chairman, these two groups must be closely allied if our nation is to remain strong. Neither can prosper without the other and the nation will not prosper unless both prosper. The need for better farm and city relations is not as great in North Carolina and Davie County as in other places of the nation, but there here there is room for improvement.

These two groups are bound together by a common dependence upon land and water. In the hustle and bustle of making a living, city people often forget about this dependence upon the land and water and do not take time to analyze and understand the problems that farm people have in managing the land and water. On the other hand farm people are just as busy and often fail to appreciate the problems that city people have and the need all people have for getting closer to the land. Many city people today no longer have relatives on the farm and have completely lost touch with farm people.

City people depend on farm people for food, fiber and a great many raw materials. Farm people depend on city people for markets, goods and services. Both groups depend upon land and water for a great deal of recreation. Cooperation and understanding on the part of these two groups has brought about the high standard of living that we now have. If we are to maintain this standard of living we must continue to build this spirit of cooperation and understanding.

Perhaps the greatest problem facing both these groups is soil and water conservation—the wise use and management of our soil and water. An appreciation and understanding of the needs and problems of conservation can lead to a better understanding between these two groups and an appreciation of their interdependence. The Conservation Needs Inventory Report for North Carolina prepared by the U. S. Department of Agriculture lists 28.5 million acres of agricultural land in North Carolina. This land is used for cropland pasture, woods, and farm homesites. A little more than a quarter of this is used for crop-land, and over half of it is in woodland. The biggest conservation problem we face on our cropland is erosion. Slightly more than half of our cropland is subject to erosion. The biggest problem with pastures is seeding to desirable plants. The biggest problem in our woodland is, of course, fire protection followed closely by the need for stand improvement. Soil conservation is a job that must be done if we are to keep our land and continue to improve its productivity. Sixty-eight Soil and Water Conservation Districts in North Carolina assisted by Soil Conservation Service technicians and other agricultural workers; and supported by farm and city organizations alike are working hard at their job.

Cuban Crisis Brings Call For Bond Support

W. H. Andrews, Jr., Jefferson Standard Life Insurance executive and North Carolina State Savings Bonds Chairman today called on County citizens for added support of the U. S. Savings Bonds Program in light of the Cuban crisis.

In a letter to Knox Johnstone, President, Bank of Davie, and Davie Bonds Chairman, Mr. W. H. Andrews, Jr., repeated an appeal from Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon which stressed the "vital importance of keeping our country strong" and stated that "the help and participation of every citizen is a necessary part of such national strength."

Secretary Dillon's appeal noted that Savings contribute greatly to the economic strength on which our defense efforts depend, and called the act of buying a Savings Bond "a splendid expression of faith in our American system so that we may strengthen it for future generations."

In making his appeal, the Secretary told the State Chairman, "I know we can count on your imaginative leadership in bringing the Savings Bonds story to your fellow citizens in a new and vigorous way."

Secretary Dillon's letter to the State Chairman read as follows: Dear Mr. Andrews:

The recent Cuban crisis has proven beyond doubt the vital importance of keeping our country strong. We know that the challenge to freedom goes on. It can be successfully met only by our determination and physical ability to resist pressures and threats.

The help and participation of every citizen is a necessary part of such national strength, and this is why I am addressing this letter to you. As a volunteer leader in the United States savings Bonds program, you are in a position to direct the patriotic instincts of the public into a most constructive channel - the purchase of extra bonds as an investment in national security.

Savings Bonds, as you know, contribute in a major way to the economic strength on which our defense efforts depend. Moreover, they build financial security for the purchaser, enabling him to plan realistically for important needs of the future. Finally, the act of buying a bond is a splendid expression of faith in our American system so that we may strengthen it for future generations.

I know we can count on your imaginative leadership in bringing the Savings Bonds story to your fellow citizens in a new and vigorous way.

Sincerely,
Douglas Dillon

HOME IS WHERE THE CHORE IS

Every day Girl Scouts are learning that homemaking is more than a chore. It's a creative art requiring a combination cook - seamstress - decorator - mother-teacher - nurse - citizen. Every part of the Girl Scout program offers preparation for success in all areas of home-making. Your contribution to the Pilot Area Council's campaign can affect the well-being and happiness of two generations — today's Girl Scouts who are the wives and mothers of tomorrow, and the growing up years of their children the day after tomorrow.

THANKSGIVING AND LIVING TOGETHER

Thanksgiving is that time of year when the attention of everyone is focused on a table of plenty and family reunions. It's original purpose was to observe a day of "Thanks To God" for all the blessings. He had bestowed upon mankind. However, it would appear in many interests that the more blessings we receive, the less thankful we become.

The people of Davie County have much for which to be thankful. We take pride in pointing out our many assets to others. We are proud to see others impressed. Yet, among ourselves, we are unduly critical and often so to a point of being deductive. Why?

Take our schools for example! We are proud to show off our modern high school plant...which rates second to none in the state...and yet to one another we complain and find fault with various aspects of it. We are critical of our school officials and yet most of us are proud of the results that these officials have achieved and are achieving with our school program in Davie County.

Take our hospital for example! One has only to go back a few short years and Davie County had no hospital whatever. All those, for whatever reason, needing hospital attention had to go to a neighboring city and take their chances on being admitted. Many, actually needing to be in the hospital, remained at home because of the inconvenience and other factors that were against entering a hospital in another county.

Then we got together and with a lot of cooperation and effort built a hospital of which we are proud. Certainly there are few, if any, in the county but that are proud of the Davie County Hospital and what it means to the people of the county. Yet...there are many of us who complain and are very critical of the operation of this institution...often letting it become a division point among our people instead of a local point of cooperation as it should be.

Take our rural-urban relationship for example!

The Town of Mocksville is an integral part of Davie County. The Town of Mocksville exists just as much for the people of the rural areas as for those that reside within its incorporate limits. The facilities located within the town are for the use of all the people of the county. And yet...there seems to be an ever-growing chasm between the town and the other areas. Why?

Mocksville is the county seat of Davie

County. It is more or less centrally located, making it equally convenient to all of the people of the county.

The residents of the Town of Mocksville are citizens of Davie just the same those living in the other communities. They pay taxes on the same basis (but often on a much high valuation plane) as all others and in addition pay additional taxes for the privilege of living in the town and receiving municipal services.

Mocksville does not run Davie County...but as the county seat, Davie County is run from Mocksville. However, one often senses a feeling of resentment over Mocksville from many who live in various sections of the county...a resentment which often advocates a non-cooperative attitude in various governmental functions that exist for the welfare of all.

This editorial is a general approach to the problem. Encompassed within this general approach are a great many specific issues, each of which is a controversial topic within itself. However, each of these controversial issues could be and will be resolved if only many of us would forget selfish interests and take a more understanding approach.

During this Thanksgiving of 1962, let all of us count our many blessings...let us look, understand and compare our lot with many others that exist today in this world...realizing all the while that we are not perfect...that we can make improvement...that we can continually progress...but only if we work together.

Constructive criticism is helpful and we should never be without it. Constructive criticism springs from the desire to be helpful...to improve any given condition or situation. It springs from a genuine interest in a problem and a desire to see it resolved.

But there is another type of criticism of griping and complaining...that is destructive. This spring from jealousy...from envy...from selfishness...of wanting to have everything fit into personal conceptions of what is desirable instead of the giving and taking that is so necessary in any well-adjusted society.

A very appropriate prayer for this Thanksgiving for all of us would be as follows:

"Dear God grant me the power to change the things that need to be changed. Please grant me the serenity to accept the things that cannot be changed. And give to me wisdom to know the difference!"

Washington — The staid English game of cricket has been enlivened in Western Samoa, where it was introduced in the 1880's the National Geographic Magazine says. Teams field 10 to 300 players instead of the customary 11. Contests last for days amid a carnival air. A successful bowler sometimes turns cartwheels down the pitch; impromptu dances celebrate a hit.

A Nepalese mystic spent two nights wandering barefoot in the Mingbo Valley of the Himalayas while a snowstorm raged, the National Geographic Magazine says. Though his hands and feet were swollen, the mystic suffered no frostbite. Physiologists found the Nepalese had an amazing ability to control the circulation of blood to his extremities.

and precious metals because it then was so difficult and expensive to make. Colored glass often was combined with gold and gems in jewelry.

The Indian and Pacific Oceans are divided by the Indonesian archipelago, the National Geographic Magazine says. Dangerous currents—as fast as 12 miles an hour—sweep through channels between the islands.

The smallest bird in New Zealand bears the militant name of rifleman. Only three inches long, the rifleman is a poor flyer, and it prefers climbing trees to flying to the top. The rifleman is distinguished by a feeble chirping "zee-zee," accompanied by quivering of wings.

Movie stars seeking anonymity are not the only persons who need dark glasses in Los Angeles. The pervading dancing light makes sunglasses almost mandatory, the National Geographic Magazine says.

Bangkok's cluttered canals qualify the city as the Venice of Southeast Asia, the National Geographic Society says. The canals weave through the old part of Thailand's capital, past ancient Buddhist temples and houses on stilts. The waterways in the main part of the capital, however, are being filled in to make room for paved roads.

The albatross, largest of all sea birds, often so gorges itself with fish and mollusks that it is unable to fly.

Pride of the World

Senator SAM ERVIN Says:

MORGANTON— Thanksgiving Day means many things to us. It is a family day as well as a day of national purpose. While we pause to give thanks for the blessings granted to each of us, we might reflect upon its deep significance to every American. The vision and the effort of many generations have endowed us with what Jefferson described as "certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Our culture and our laws are woven on a framework of abiding religious concepts. Our economic strength is found on the rights of every individual to the fruits of his own labor. Apart from these blessings there is an American which pervades all areas of life. It is a faith voiced eloquently by the late Judge Learned Hand a few days before historic D Day of World War II when he said:

"What then is the spirit of liberty. I cannot define it; I can only tell you of my own faith. The spirit of liberty is the spirit which is not too sure it is right; the spirit of liberty is the spirit which seeks to understand the minds of other men and women; the spirit of liberty is the spirit which weighs their interest alongside its own without bias. The spirit of liberty remembers that not even a sparrow falls to the earth unheeded; the spirit of liberty is the spirit of Him who, nearly 2,000 years ago taught mankind that lesson it has never quite forgotten; that there may be a kingdom where the least shall be heard and considered side by side with the greatest."

Today we look about us to see a world struggling with international Communism. The lights of liberty often flicker and falter. Daily the peoples of the world struggle with perils to their safety. Since October 20 there have been dramatic changes. On that day Red China opened an undeclared war on India and President Kennedy began formulating the decision to stop the Russian-Cuban nuclear missile buildup.

These events restate the warning, which nation are quick to forget, that aggressors of every generation are undeterred by concepts of "peaceful coexistence" and gestures of appeasement. Nehru's India has found that it is the latest example of a nation attempting to live in a world of dreams. Eight years ago India started down the road which led to war in the Himalayas. Along the way it harpooned its Western friends. It would not raise its neutral hand to assist the Cold War Allies in the struggle with its would-be friends, Russia and Red China. Casualties and heartache may bring home to India and other uncommitted nations the solemn truth that the issue of this generation grant none the privilege of weak neutralism and coexistence.

India outlines the tragedy that can come to any nation which stands aloof from the struggle unfolding before mankind's eyes. Freedom comes to those who want it, who work for it, and

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where some feller from the U. S. Department of Commerce went on radio and television the other night to tell the folks back home about our "national economy." I'm glad I wasn't tuned in on it. They ought to be a law agin anybody in Washington even using the word "economy," much less putting such propagander on the air.

I was raised up to think economy meant careful spending and saving everywhere you could, whether you was dealing with the leftovers from a meal or trying to make last year's hat do for another season. If they ain't stretched the dictionary a heap, we ain't got no more "national economy" than a goat has got feathers.

They is two things, Mister Editor, you can depend on. Water will run down hill ever chancet it gits, and them Government agencies will spend ever cent they can git their hands on.

Per instant, I was reading this piece where the Pentagon boys had bought 492,000 blue uniform coats for the Air Force at a cost of around $10 million, then put 'em in storage. Senator Byrd traced the thing down and the Pentagon admitted this was a 9-year supply. They claimed they bought 'em on account of gitting a good price, but Senator Byrd figured it out and the storage and upkeep on 'em, plus the interest on the Government money, would come to more than the coats cost.

Farthermore, Senator Byrd found the Pentagon boys had more than a billion dollars worth of military clothes on hand in storage and that this was at least $487 million more than they could use in a 8-year war. Seeing as how the experts say the next war can't last more'n a couple days, it looks like we're a little overstocked on these items, too overstocked for Washington politicians to go on the air with somepun about "economy."

They ain't nothing too good fer our boys in the service and I'm in favor of fixing 'em up with the best food, clothes and weapons money can buy in this life, but it looks like them Washington good supply fer the hereafter.

And I see where Brazil has took over another American firm without paying the owners fer it. That's a good sbin that as soon as the Congress sits back in session, we'll increase our foreign aid to Brazil.

The good news of the week come from our space scientists. They say they're about to discover what is holding the universe together. When they find it, I hope they tie a knot in it because it's shore coming unraveled.

Uncle Dan who are willing to defend it. It never comes easy and there is no magical formula whereby men and women attain it.

The blessings for which we give humble thanks will endure only so long as our people evidence by "strong minds great hearts, true faith, and ready hands" that the lights of liberty shall not be extinguished.

We were told "You needn't cross an ocean to the Old World as here is all the vast and ordered beauty of a country estate in the grand manner and a French Renaissance chateau unique among the great country houses of the world."

Our setting was Asheville, up on completion of our annual fall pilgrimage through the mountain country to view the array of color brought on by the autumn season. With a couple of hours for additional sightseeing, the family and I decided (with initial skepticism, I must admit) to visit this "country estate in the grand manner." We quickly found, however, the advance billing of the Biltmore House and environs to be less than adequate.

One enters the Estate through Biltmore Lodge Gate. The three-mile drive to the House offers vista after vista of splendor, including peaceful forests of majestic conifers, hardwoods, and shrubs. After a last dramatic turn, Biltmore House comes into view; imposing serene in white, peaked roof and lofty chimneys etched against the sky.

Built by the late George W. Vanderbilt and completed 67 years ago, the mansion was designed after the French Renaissance Chateaux of Blois and Chambord. Constructed of hand-tooled Indiana limestone, with slate roof, the structure stretches 780 feet from stables to summerhouse. The main entrance to the west front is a distance of 150 feet. The facade rises in three graduated levels from portals to finials. Within are 250 rooms.

Biltmore House took five years to complete, requiring the skills of hundreds of artisans from this country and abroad, and the labors of many hundreds of native mountain folks. The Estate currently embraces 12,000 acres.

The interior of the structure is a source of joy to students of architecture, connoisseurs of art, or anyone with appreciation for things elegant and unusual. Immediately encountered, just adjacent to the entrance hall, is the Court of Palms, a sunken area encircled with marble and containing a fountain, topped by a lovely statue of a boy and swan. A gracefully-arched ceiling reaches up 75 feet above the 72-by-42 foot expanse and the walls are ornamented with copies of the Parthenon frieze. The ceiling of tile was made to order by Raphael Guastavino. The triple fireplace at one end is surmounted by a carved frieze and one wall is covered with a set of silk and gold 16th century tapestries which tell the story of Vulcan and the loves of Venus and Mars.

You will see the Library with 20,000 volumes on the shelves and a ceiling painted by Pellegrini and bought from an Italian palace. Among the volumes are rare works on art, architecture and landscape gardening. Here too is a gem of a spiral staircase winding its way to the upper level of shelves.

The Oak Drawing Room contains paneling with fine engrav-

RETURNING... Oral Roberts, widely recognized as the leading light of so-called faith-healing, is coming back to Raleigh. He held forth here, successfully, about six years ago in the State Fair Cow Palace, now better known as the Dorton Arena.

Lee Braxton, formerly of Whiteville and now residing in Tulsa, Okla., is quietly laying plans for a little luncheon the latter part of January for Roberts' friends in this area. He reports he will need a dining room which will seat 2,000 and somebody to do the feeding.

There are only two places in the Raleigh vicinity which will seat that many for eating; and only the Bohun's here, and a firm in Charlotte which catered the Jefferson-Jackson Dinner last spring, have shown interest in the Roberts luncheon.

SURPRISED... A day after the Baptists had shaken with alarm at the prospect of the State's moving into the community college business — with a total of at least 15 planned — Gov. Terry Sanford gave his solid support to the community college program. There was surprise at his endorsement.

This community college project will, in time, mean the death of every denominational junior college in North Carolina. Most of them are Baptist. The Governor said, in a vague way that he hoped the church supported schools would receive more and bigger contributions — but he did not say how.

A lot of people — perhaps most of them — will go along with the Governor and his cohorts on the plan to provide more colleges. But the ever-decreasing minority will see it as one more turn of the wheels in the crushing of private initiative and individuality by Government juggernaut.

Our Junior colleges will go in 1965-66 the same way our academies went in 1905-26.

THE SAME... We recently reported in this corner how Brame's salve lost out to Vick's 40 years ago by not moving quite fast enough during the influenza epidemic.

Vick's is now known throughout the world. But to us the Brame product still manufactured by R. M. Brame Sons in North Wilkesboro, is just as good. Guess how we know. The other day, W. J. Brame — no doubt one of the sons or grand sons — sent us a bottle of Brame's original Vapomentha Salve. Down with fall colds, we have all "nosed" a little of it these last few days.

Nothing — unless it's the horse radish you run into on shrimp cocktails — will do a better job of opening up old clogged membranes.

WHERE FROM?... There is no brand of suffering quite equal to the mental pangs of an ambitious political candidate who has run short of money. We have heard this said by a wide assortment of candidates.

U. S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey intimated as much when he finally came face to face with ter million dollars ready if necessary to carry Kennedy to victory in the forecast of the future primary in West Virginia. That deal marked the end of the Humphrey Presidential candidacy. He saw it just could not compete.

Now we have at least ten individuals interested in running for Governor in North Carolina a year from next spring. However one must have on hands or readily available about $200,000 in order to conduct a successful campaign in carrying the candidacy to the people.

PLEASE TELL HIM... Jim Reid, famous sportscaster and now major pro tem of Raleigh and vice president of Branch Banking & Trust Co., told the other night here how political figures can run into all kinds of characters. Former Gov. Gregg Chery was at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago in 1952. Gov. Chery was no Jim Farley on the name business but, as they say, never forgot a face. This North Carolinian saw Chery and friends in a hotel in Chicago, rushed up and shook hands with the former Governor. "Why, hello there," roared Chery, giving the friend a good, hearty handshake.

"What's my name?" came back the Tarheelian. "Why, boy," said Mr. Chery, "I been knowing you 25 years down there in North Carolina."

But the man, obviously wanting to embarrass Old Gregg, insisted he call his name. He finally said he would give Mr. Chery a dollar bill if he would tell him his name. Finally, Governor Chery, solidly in a corner, but still undaunted, turned to his friends and said: "Will SOMEBODY please tell this poor fool what his name is?"

AT THE CHURCH... There is a lot to be said in favor of small, rather informal weddings. Not only is it a thousand times easier on the father of the bride — but frequently on the bride herself.

A Raleigh incident of a few days ago illustrates this. The mother of the bride, who lives out side Raleigh, insisted that her daughter have a big church wedding. Since she was brought up in a broken home, the daughter was hesitant about getting married. Anyway she hardly knew her tefather, who of course was to be prominent in the wedding.

But she agreed, the date for the Forest Hills Baptist Church wedding was set. But, to make a long story short the bride on the day of the wedding could not be found. Those invited came and sat — and sat. The groom waited, too. Finally, it was announced here would be no wedding.

The bride was found. The bride groom forgave. On Oct. 30, they decided to have a Little wedding. The Rev. J. B. Morris left his desk as the Baptist State Convention to perform the ceremony. Now everything's fine.

Theme: "It's Easier To Be Critical Than Correct"

TEXT: "A critic is a legless man who teaches running" — Channing Pollock.

Some years ago while Harry Emerson Fordick was under vicious attack, another clergyman described him as a "termites gnawing at the temple gates."

Without bitterness Dr. Fosdick replied simply,

"Well, one consolation is that I am surrounded by a lot of bigger bugs."

Criticism may come with good race from some with complete knowledge about the act being criticized. It is vicious and wicked when it springs from pseudo-intellectuals with little or no understanding of the action they censure.

Most of our personal, national, and international troubles today rise from those who demand answers to questions they have no light to ask. They really do not want answers. They don't understand and when they are given, they want to strut their criticism and have lesser men praise their cleverness. It doesn't take brains to be critical. Bryson wrote, "A man must serve his time to every rule save censure — critics are already made."

When we have studied all we can study, read all we can read, understand all we can understand, then we may have the right to think about questioning or criticizing however, if that time we know now wrong we can be and we refrain.

Please print in the next ad that I have found my dog and I want to thank everyone that helped in the search for the dog. Sincerely yours, JOE ROBERTS

1963 WHEAT STABILIZATION PROGRAM

A needed "shot in the arm" will be provided to many areas throughout North Carolina in the way of advance payment by ASCS county offices to wheat farmers who divert acreage from production of wheat under the voluntary 1963 Wheat Stabilization Program.

According to a report from the State Office, over 8,000 farmers contracted to participate in the program in North Carolina during the first six days of the sign-up.

On signing up in the ASCS county office and contracting to meet all requirements of the program [which are essentially the same as for 1962], ASCS will issue to farmers a sign-up draft, which he merely needs to endorse and cash at his local bank.

Wheat growers should contact the ASCS office and review the program in order that they may know how the program will affect their farm and whether or not it would benefit them to participate.

This program, which was authorized by the last Congress, can do much for farmers by stabilizing and improving farm income for consumers and taxpayers by reducing our surplus stocks on which storage and maintenance is so costly.

BRASWELL APPOINTED TO NATIONAL COMMITTEE

The State Chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, Mr. Marcus B. Braswell, who is also a tobacco grower of Whitakers, N. C., has been appointed to serve as chairman of a National Tobacco Industry Advisory Committee.

turers and consumers and fair prices to tobacco producers.

The Committee, named under authority in the Agricultural Act of 1961, will consider broad industry problems, including: (a) the effect of cultural, curing, and marketing practices in relation to quality of tobacco; (b) standards for evaluating quality; (c) foreign trade policies, and (d) the developing and releasing of new varieties.

Members of the Committee from North Carolina include the following, in addition to Braswell, the Chairman: Alonzo C. Edwards, Hookerton; Edward Y. Floyd, Raleigh; Claude T. Hall, Roxboro; Carl T. Hicks, Walstonburg; and George N. Noble, Trenton.

Warehouse representative on the committee from North Carolina is Fred S. Royster of Henderson.

Dealers from North Carolina are: John B. Palmer, James I. Miller Tobacco Company, Wilson, and L. T. Weeks, Flue-cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation, Raleigh.

ACP PROGRAM

Farmers who received approval for carrying out practices under the 1962 ACP this fall should complete the practice as soon as possible and make their report to this office. November 30th is the closing date for reporting practices under this program.

TOBACCO

Tobacco growers are required to return their tobacco marketing card to the ASCS office when all sales for the farm have been completed. It is important that these cards be returned as soon as possible.

as possible this year since the 1962 yield will be used in establishing normal yields on farms that will be leasing or transferring allotments for 1963.

Farmers who participated in the Lease and Transfer program for 1962 will be required to sign a new leasing agreement for 1963 if they care to participate in the program.

A new yield will be established for the farms entering into an agreement for 1963. The five years (1958 through 1962) will be used in establishing the normal yield for the farm.

Leasing agreements may be taken after the farmers receive their tobacco allotment for 1963.

WOOL PROGRAM

The ASCS Office will be closed Thursday, November 22 in observance of Thanksgiving Day.

It Pays To Advertise

It happened 100 YEARS ago The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862 . . . the same year that

IN NORTH CAROLINA arrangements were made to transfer the Confederacy's naval ordnance center from Norfolk to Charlotte because of inland safety and good railroad to Wilmington. North Carolinians saluted this new commerce with glasses of beer.

For even then, beer was North Carolina's traditional beverage of moderation. Beer still provides enjoyment for North Carolinians, and a good living for many of them—not only the employees of the Brewing Industry itself, but also for North Carolina farmers and other suppliers of the materials brewers use.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

Dedicatory Program Is Held For The Blaise Baptist Church

The Blaise Baptist Church held a dedicatory service Sunday, beginning at 11 a.m., guests from the First Baptist Church of Mocksville, visitors and residents members (total of 300) attended the morning service.

There was a piano prelude by Mrs. Madison Angell followed by the call to worship and invocation and response. All joined in the singing of the hymn, "All Hail The Power of Jesus Name," following which the pastor, the Rev. Dewey Ijames welcomed the visitors and special guests.

In the act of recognition Mr. Ijames called the following to the front: Trustees: C. B. Angell, Leslie Blackwelder and Paul Sherrill. Building committee members: Verious Angell, Paul Sherrill, Lester Blackwelder, Roger Whitaker and Jimmy Howard.

Richard Carter, a member of the Eaton's Baptist Church, was recognized and thanked for his donation of the complete architectural plans for the building.

C. B. Angell was recognized for his "outstanding leadership" being referred to as the "Wheel Horse".

Charles L. Farningham, as representative of the First Baptist Church, read a letter of greeting from the pastor of that church, the Rev. Fred Earnes.

A letter of congratulations from a charter member, Missionary Archie Jones of Equador, was read.

During the afternoon, an "open House" was held. More than a thousand visitors looked over the new building counting those at the morning and afternoon services.

History The Blaise Baptist Church was organized as a mission of the First Baptist Church of Mocksville in 1958. The name Blaise was suggested by Mrs. Bud Purvis... a french word meaning "to sprout forth".

The first unit of their three unit church was completed by Easter of 1959. This was an $8,000 educational wing, equipped with eight Sunday School rooms and an auditorium. With this unit the members of the congregation donated not only their money to set the new church erected, but they gave of their time and talent.

The church sits on land that has never been bought or sold. The Frost family originally received the property as a land grant. It has been handed down from generation to generation.

The Pastor The pastor of the Blaise Baptist Church is the Rev. Dewey Ijames. A native of Davie County, he left home when 16 and went to California where he preached about 30 years at Santa Monica Baptist Church. Then he went to Spur, Texas, where he had a pastorate for ten years.

Returning to Davie about five years ago he was an associate of the pastor of the First Baptist Church. Then he became the pastor of the Blaise Baptist Church.

Third Unit A third unit is now being planned for the church plant. This will be an identical 30 x 60 foot educational wing to the left of the present sanctuary and will be a balance to the present educational wing.

Davie County Hospital To Receive $2,271 From Duke Endowment

The Davie County Hospital will receive $2,271.00 this year from the Duke Endowment for operating expenses.

The Duke Endowment is a perpetual trust created by the late James B. Duke with the purpose of assuring that revenues of the vast power system he developed in the Piedmont section of the Carolinas would administer to the social welfare of the communities it serves just as the operation of the system administers to their economic welfare.

The report of the Hospital section shows that the Carolinas are endeavoring to provide sufficient hospital beds to serve their people. Their average of 3.2 short term and general hospital beds available at the end of 1961 for each 1,000 population compares favorably with the 3.6 average for the United States as a whole.

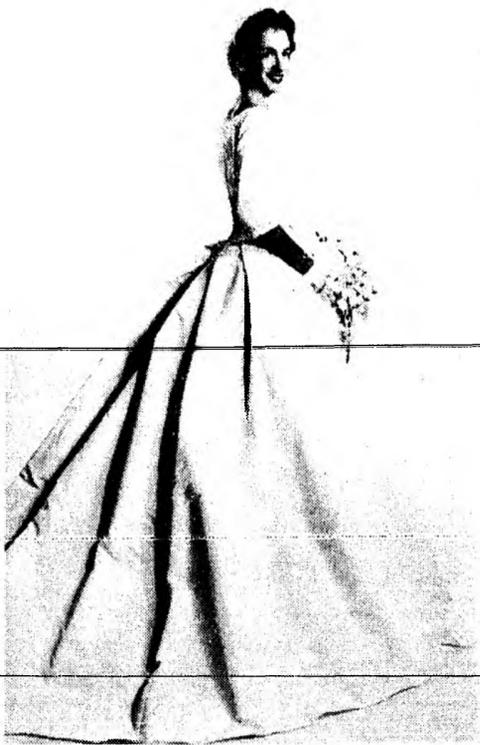

The rate of admissions was 129 for each 1,000 population, an increase of nine over the previous year. For the entire country, the rate was 128, six more than in the previous year. Mr. Pickens explained that this growth in use of hospital services in the Carolinas reflects both the public's increasing realization of the advantages of modern hospital care and the services of skilled physicians, and the increase in voluntary prepaid hospitalization average. In the two states, the percentage of the population covered by this insurance increased from 61.3 in 1959 to 63.8 in 1960.

For the United States, the percentage covered was 73.6. In 224 short term general and special hospitals considered in the report, occupancy on an average day was 74.3 per cent, or 16,049 beds, in comparison to 73.7 per cent occupancy, or 16,299 beds, in 222 hospitals of similar classification in the previous fiscal year.

For the 179 general hospitals assisted by The Endowment in the year, average length of stay of patients was 6.5 days. It was 6.1 days for pay patients and 6.9 for charity patients.

Mr. Pickens explained that of particular interest at a time when medical science is continuously developing new tests to aid physicians in diagnosis is the increase in their use. Hospitals reported 8,547,582 laboratory tests on inpatients, 633,869 more than in 1960, and 1,870,970 on outpatients, in comparison to 1,726,470 in the previous year.

Comparative figures included in the report show some of the changes which have taken place in the Carolinas since the 1950-1951 fiscal year. Outpatient visits have increased by 87.3 per cent beds in use by 40 per cent. N. H. A. and N. F. A. News On Tuesday evening, Nov. 20, the Central Davie School held its annual Thanksgiving Program sponsored by the N. H. A. and N. F. A. Chapters under the supervision of Mrs. P. G. Monk and R. Greenwood.

Nettie James was Mistress of Ceremonies. The program was opened by the singing of "We Gather Together;" scripture was given by Erenza Watkins; and prayer was given by Odell Rhymerhardt, after which the audience sang "Come Ye Thankful People Come."

Bruce Frott introduced the speaker, Rev. G. W. Campbell, Pastor of the Shiloh Baptist Church. He gave a very inspiring message on Thanksgiving and its origin which was very interesting to all. He was presented a gift for his services by Nettie James.

Everyone felt it his duty to give to the Thanksgiving basket. Each class marched down and put his offering on the table. The offerings consisted of fruits, vegetables, and canned goods which will be given to the needy people in the county. A selection "Let us Break Bread Together," was given by the Elementary AEC club, directed by W. J. Bue. Remarks were given by the principal, Mr. Hargraves.

The program ended by hearing remarks from Rev. F. D. Johnson, speaker for the Thanksgiving program last year.

Thanksgiving week end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Rucker were: George Atkins and Raymond Rucker of Long Island, N. Y.; Nelson Graham of Maiden; Misses Dolly and Barbara James of Newton; Mrs. W. M. Clark of Coolemeec.

Bakers in ancient Rome were required to bake their names into each loaf of bread. Then, heavy penalties were imposed on those who cheated on ingredients or weight.

ASCS News

Effect of 1961 Wheat Program On Small Farms Many North Carolina wheat farmers are concerned about the 1964 wheat program. A large percentage of the wheat in this area is grown on small farms. A small farm is any farm with less than a 15 acre allotment.

Under the 1962 Agricultural Act the small farms for 1964 and subsequent years will be permitted to grow the larger of their small farm base or allotment. The small farm base will be the average acreage of wheat planted for harvest on the farm in 1959, 1960, 1961, or such later three-year period determined by the Secretary of Agriculture to be representative. However, the year 1963 is excluded in computing the small farm base for 1964 and subsequent years. This means that even though all farms can plant up to 15 acres in 1963 this acreage will not give the farm any credit toward the 1964 small farm base or the 1964 farm allotment.

Report ACP Practices Farmers who received approval for carrying out ACP practices this fall are reminded that the closing date for reporting these practices is Nov. 30. OUR GIRL SCOUTS

In a time when the earth has been orbited and the atom smashed, it becomes a problem to keep up with the changing needs and the new knowledge of our young people. Yet unless they are guided and educated in the important qualities that make fine citizens, they can well lose sight of the meaning and importance of living the good life, even in so frightening an age.

Girl Scouts of the U. S. A. is dedicated to the belief that by teaching young girls how to be happy, resourceful individuals today they are helping train America's citizens for tomorrow.

The Girl Scout who lives in the age of the atom promises on her honor to do her duty to God and her country. She chooses to serve, in her home, her hometown, and she is learning to become a useful citizen in her country and in the world.

Last year, Girl Scouts in the U.S.A. gave a total of some seventy million hours of service in home, community and to the nation...and to many international friendship projects in our fifty states and Puerto Rico.

In Davie County our 128 registered Girl Scouts from seven to seventeen have given a large number of hours to such important community projects as working in our hospital, library and in various fund raising campaign. More than 30 trained women in our town serve in Girl Scouting. These dedicated women help make the fine Girl Scout program a reality for Girl Scouts in our community.

In a time when the earth has been orbited and the atom smashed, Girl Scouts still cling to the old fashioned, but still important virtues of service and concern for our fellows.

By giving generously to this year's Girl Scout Fund Drive in this area you will be helping our girls become good Scouts today, and better citizens tomorrow.

By FRED DODGE

Theme: When On The Wrong Road, Get Off

TEXT: "Any man may make a mistake: none but a fool persists in it"—Cicero.

A tourist who was seeing America first, watched an Indian send up smoke signals in the desert. He had a fire extinguisher strapped to his side.

"What's the idea of the fire extinguisher?" asked the tourist.

"Well," replied the Indian, "if me mispellum word, me erasum."

Even in smoke, the Indian was not going to let his mistakes continue. Diligence in correcting our own mistakes is rare. When we err we like to ide the fact, forget it as quickly as possible and go on to something else.

Of course, ye should not brood over our errors. We should recognize our mistakes, admit, correct and then forget them. When we refuse to admit our mistakes, we must continually try to justify them and are never free to accomplish worthwhile purposes.

There is something moral and decent about admitting a mistake that flushes away guilt and leaves us feeling clean and new. Then we can start over and avoid our error as we stride on in confidence.

Don't waste time trying to hide a mistake. It will whittle you down to half a man and nothing is worth that.

Uncle Dave From Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Zeke Grubb's preacher come by the country store Saturday night, reported that things was going pritty good at his church these days. There fer a spell, he said, the money situation was mighty bad and he figgered he'd have to git on the welfare roll if the offerings didn't pick up. He told the fellers he wasn't grumbling, that it was just like Hezekiah Adams said, most of the church members has been in a bind. Some of 'em has bought new cars, a few has been forced to take fishing trips, and a couple members was even tricked into buying color TV sets.

But, the good Parson announced, him and the Deacons has got it all straightened out now. They had a meeting and decided on a new kind of giving. Seeing as how everybody has gone on the credit card system, the Deacons voted to have some credit cards made up with the Church's name on 'em. Two Sundays ago they give ever member a card and folks couldn't wait till preaching was over to use their credit card.

He said they had a little machine in the back of the Church and they put the credit cards in and when they pull the lever it stamps a piece of paper showing how much they owe. It was wonderful, he said, to see the members line up to git their credit card punched. Fathermore, he pointed out, nobody that has any respect fer hisself or his reputation wants to lose his credit card and he perdicted they wouldn't have no trouble collecting come the first of the month.

He told the fellers the Deacons was also checking on them bubble gum machines. They seem to think the Church might pick up a little money by putting some of 'em around the walls of the church, special fer the kids. Taking it all in all, he allowed with credit cards and bubble gum machines, his little Church might git famous fer stallizing finances in the field of religion.

He also reported that they got them cushions put in the Church pews. He said they didn't help the attendance none but them that was attending was setting up straighter and listening better. And, he noted, Big Slim was sleeping much better. In fact, he said, Big Slim give him a good scare last Sunday, thought he was going to have to call the undertaker fer him. He couldn't see him breathing and he figgered he was a goner fer shore. But Big Slim's old lady gouged him in the ribs with er boney elbow and he come around okay in time for the Benediction.

The good parson left a little early, said he was working on a sermon fer "adults only," told the fellers he got the idea from seeing the crowds they got at the picture show with that gimmick. He said he aimed to give his sermon fer "adults only," a catchy title, like "Adam and Eve Behind The Apple."

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

SO THIS IS NEW YORK

By NORTH CALLAHAN

The word, "Junior", is at times held in low estimation and this seems undeservedly so. Low-level comedy, both on stage and off, has misused the term to indicate some sniveling child who deserves only to be called by a plainly opprobrious term which puts him in his place. The word has reached a stage, in some respects, in which youngsters dread to be called "Junior" because they feel it places them in an inferior position instead of the quite respectable one the term originally meant. Those who use the word after their names, do so at times with considerable courage, yet unnecessarily so. It is time any imaginary stigma were removed and the word restored to its rightful high place.

Mr. Webster defines "junior" as meaning "younger; not as old as another (Noah has become reptitious, it seems) as a junior partner in a company. It is applied to the younger of 2 persons bearing the same name in one family or town, and opposed to elder or senior, as John Doe, Jr." Yes, it is true that the junior in a family is sometimes "opposed to the senior," but fortunately this is materially the exceptional case. If the father — or mother — has made a respectable name in the community or world, the offspring bears the name with pride and a feeling of responsibility, sometimes even too much so. To try to live up to a famous name, as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. did in New York politics a few years ago, can result in disappointment and is likely to invite invidious comparison.

The history of the word is not clear, at least to this writer. Jonathan Swift wrote a satirical line in which he referred to "The fools, my juniors by a year" and Kipling called himself "a junior deacon in the mother lodge." Neither expressions having unmistakable meaning. The first notable American to come to my mind who used the term after his name was James Madison, fourth President of the United States. There is a fraternal organization known as the "Junior Order of United American Mechanics," though not being a member, I do not know what the significance of the first word in this title is. If we go back to the kings or earlier history, we find such categories as Henry I through Henry VIII in England and almost the same in France, although Louis seems to have been the favorite name in the latter country a string of them extending through Louis XVIII. Such examples can be found in other countries, of course, but the aspect which seems clear in that the word, "Junior" was not used in those days even for the son of the first king of succession, although the word derives from Latin.

Sometimes the name of a great man carries over with such impact that for a considerable time, it sustains his descendant of the same name. So it was with Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., an ordinary officer in World War II who became a brigadier general and died on the Normandy beach of a heart attack. Much was expected of him. He tried to render some of the expected service. But he never approached the heights reached by his father. In a way this could be said of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., though he never had or needed the same opportunities his father had. The younger Rockefeller made his reputation by giving away much of what his dad had made. On the other hand, who ever heard of Bobby Jones, Sr.? Perhaps many people around Atlanta. In this case to junior as a great golfer outshone his senior and there's nothing wrong with that. There are those, such as Henry Ford II, who prefer the numeral prefix to "Junior," but they are stuck with a renowned name to live up to just the same.

Conspicuous on a second level nowadays is John F. Kennedy, Jr., and although he has not yet been placed in the cabinet or some other important office, there are those who already predict big things for him, based on the political trend of the family. At least, President Kennedy did not bow to the aspersions which have been cast upon the sound but secondary name. And it does seem appropriate that after I end this column, I show it to North, Jr. and see if he approves.

It Pays To Advertise

Senator SAM ERVIN Says:

MORGANTON — In a few weeks Congress will be considering the question of whether a Federal tax cut is to be granted. A Presidential Advisory Committee has recommended a $10 billion dollar cut "to strengthen the economy." The recommendation came on the day that India appealed to us for more arms, that our nation was having a showdown with Cuba over Russian bombers, and followed an announcement that our budget deficit for the current fiscal year would amount to $7.8 billion. Fifty years ago such a recommendation would have been viewed with amazement. The fact that it was not last week is a commentary on our times.

Undoubtedly every taxpayer would welcome a tax cut, but a more fundamental question arises: can we spend more and pay less in taxes year after year? The Advisory Committee admits that in addition to current deficits, the loss of revenue by such a tax cut would cause at least "appreciable deficits" in the Federal budget. Tax reform, tax cuts, and the cessation of deficit spending should be non-partisan matters for the country. No one should view these as easy to achieve.

The proposed tax cut as a matter of logic and common sense ought to be accompanied by a proposal that spending be curtailed. But no such corresponding proposal is voiced.

In my judgment, spending will be reduced only by a recognition of its necessity and by courageous action on the part of both the Executive Branch and the Congress. National defense and foreign policy determinations are preponderantly within the scope of Presidential responsibility. These are the areas of large spending as well as those programs proposed for the domestic economy. Sooner or later a realization will have to come that spending priorities will have to be established more rigidly than we have known in the last 33 years. Measures will have to be more drastic than the mere re-labeling of the items that constitute the budget in order to solve the problems of the Federal Treasury.

We should not be deluded that through government action we can receive something for nothing. If we are to cut taxes, which is not certain at this time, what priorities will be set up to achieve a reduction of spending? Huge deficits and the burdens of borrowing to meet greater and greater national debts will not strengthen a free economy. Any individual who knows the perils of living beyond his means can understand the problem presented. If reform is needed to strengthen our economy and I think it is, can it be accomplished by the piecemeal remedy of a tax cut? If that alone is accomplished will we one day find ourselves like the town that learned that its most prominent citizen could no longer run fast enough to meet all his obligations?

There is a fundamental question, too, as to whether our government should studiously avoid facing the realities of budget making. We may surround our government for a time with props to hold together a economy based on deficit financing, but what sacrifices will we ultimately be called upon to make on the day of financial reckoning? Can those which we have helped in other lands bolster our economy? More important, can we then safeguard liberty, the most priceless of all our possessions?

Some people who have been entitled to social security benefits have lost payments because they failed to contact their social security office. The representatives at your local office are always ready to answer your social security questions. The address of the office is 105 Corther Ave., Salisbury, N. C.

Entered at the Post Office at Mocksville, N. C., as Second Class Matter Under Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

DIRECT BEARING ON DAVIE

Proposed legislation to end the inequity of the two price cotton system, sought by President Kennedy early in the next session of Congress, will have a direct bearing on Davie County's textile industry with its 8 plants, 1,710 employees, and $6,017,416 annual pay roll, according to William H. Ruffin of Durham, president of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, central trade association for the U. S. textile industry.

Mr. Ruffin, quoting figures from "Insured Employment and Wage Payments," the annual report on non-farming employment just released by the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina, said there are 2 textile mills and 6 apparel plants in the county.

These textiles employees represent 63.0 per cent of the county's non-agricultural work force and they will have a direct stake in the legislation the President will submit to Congress concerning the pricing of raw cotton, Mr. Ruffin said.

He pointed out that the two price cotton marketing system now in effect makes it possible for foreign manufacturers to buy American-grown cotton $42.50 a bale cheaper than the price which must be paid by American textile companies, including those in Davie County. This price differential, Mr. Ruffin said, has been a major factor in the flood of foreign-made cotton textiles entering American markets. Imports of cotton products, including apparel, have increased from 64 million square yards in 1948 to an all-time high of more than a billion yards estimated for 1962. While these imports were increasing, American exports of cotton textiles have dropped from 1 1/2 billion square yards to about one-third that amount, he said.

Such loss of markets, both domestic and foreign, is having an impact on North Carolina, with its 222,158 textile employees who earn $749,029,000 a year and its 38,279 apparel plant workers whose annual wage payments total $97,621,000.

According to the ESC report, textile employees alone make up 44 per cent of the state's manufacturing jobholders. The next largest manufacturing employer—furniture and fixtures industry—provides jobs for 44,379 persons, or 8.8 per cent of the labor force. Tobacco manufacturing, the third largest industrial employer, furnishes 33,580 jobs, representing 6.7 per cent of the state's manufacturing employment.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

When Greek tourists, Russian sailors, and German businessmen haggle with the merchants of Yokohama, the transactions probably are in English.

No other language has served a greater variety of needs, or come closer to the mythical goal of a world tongue, the National Geographic Society says. As the speech of civil aviation, it has reached the far corners of the earth. Half the world's newspapers and scientific journals are published in English.

Some 300 million people speak English, making it second only to Chinese. Hindustani comes next; yet India, its homeland, retains English as an official language.

The international appeal of English lies in its flexibility. While precise enough to be a tool of science, it possesses the delicate shades of meaning required for literary purposes. Foreign speakers appreciate the abundance of short, punchy words.

Celtic Britons, who were driven westward by Germanic invaders, left the ingredients of modern Gaelic and Welsh. But their influence on the Anglo-Saxons was insignificant; English retains dun, bin, and crag. Curiously, bug meant "ghost" in ancient Celtic.

Roughly 900 words, including such indispensable as egg and sky, came from the next wave of colonists—the Danes and Norsemen. Missionaries from the Continent brought words of Latin derivation: bishop, altar, candle.

After the Norman conquest in 1066, French became the language of the upper classes though the church and law courts retained Latin. Anglo-Saxon, which had attained sophistication with epics like Beowulf, ceased to exist in written form. It was cherished, however, as the spoken tongue of England's peasantry.

In a vigorous comeback, English absorbed the language of the Norman nobility during the 14th and 15th centuries. French endures in expressive synonyms coupling words like mansion with "house."

Meantime, Geoffrey Chaucer, using the Midland dialect of London, emerged as the literary father of modern English. To this day, farmers in the North of England preserve elements of Chaucerian speech in such colloquialisms as stane for "stone."

The invention of the Caxton press in 1476 helped standardize the language. The Renaissance contributed 10,000 new words from all over Europe. But the colonial era stimulated English to its greatest expansion. Great Britain outdistanced France in the race for overseas territories in the 18th century; traders and explorers garnered further exotic additions to the tongue. From China and Malaya came tea and bamboo. New World Indians contributed hurricane, tobacco, and tomato.

Most Anglo-Saxon travelers were reluctant to learn other languages, and foreigners who dealt with them had to pick up English. In 1700, there were about 8,500,000 English speakers. Two centuries later, the number had reached 123 million, the National Geographic says.

The Puritans who landed in New England brought an East Anglian nasal twang that was to be recognized as a general feature of American speech. Early settlers in the northern United States tended to come from the North of England. They retained the flat a and strongly sounded r which vanished in the Mother Country during the 18th century.

By contrast the soft speech of Southerners reflects the fact that many of their ancestors emigrated from southern England after the emphatic r ending had been lost.

Today, the English vocabulary has grown to more than a million words, of which 75 percent are derived from foreign sources.

In turn, few foreign languages have failed to draw on the colorful linguistic reservoir that is English. Probably the most widely used and widely understood word on earth is English's amiable "Okay."

News and Comment from our Raleigh Bureau - 205 Corther Rd.

THE SURPLUS . . . You can't get a quote on it for publication, but private estimates in the State Revenue Department point to a surplus of almost 120 million dollars by the end of this fiscal year on June 30.

Reason? The estimates were on the low side; the food tax has brought in more moey than figured on; and bringing an end to many little exemptions to the sales tax has made across the board collections much easier.

The surplus will, of course, have a place to go, but its size may prove slightly embarrassing to the administration. However, this is the type of embarrassment which causes little loss of sleep to anybody.

FINAL AUTHORITY . . . Sixth District Congressman Horace Kornegay of Greensboro, who is thankful there is still a two-party system in Guilford, is one of our better after-dinner speakers in Washington.

One of his better stories has to do with some mail he has received from complaining constituents. One recently wrote:

"I took this matter up with President Kennedy about three months ago, but he has not answered my letter. If I don't hear from you in 30 days from date I'm getting a wire off to Uncle Sam reporting to him on both of you."

An elderly person wrote saying he was for Medicare, "for my wife has been in bed with the same doctor for 18 months now and don't appear to be improving none at all."

LAST ROUNDUP? . . . Word reaches us that this will be the last term for First District Congressman Herbert C. Bonner of Washington, N. C. Including his days as assistant to Rep. Lindsay Warren (elected to succeed him in 1940) Bonner's days in Washington now approach two generations and longer than any other office holder from Tarheelia in the national capitol.

Incidentally, he is expected to have a host of "friends" willing to make the sacrifice to succeed him. Bonner is now about 71.

BROTHER . . . In answer to several inquiries, this is to advise that New GOP Congresswoman James T. Broynhill DID NOT marry Miss Fayne Arnold, Miss North Carolina of several seasons back and a Miss America runner-up. Faye married Congressman Broynhill's brother.

Congressman Broynhill married the daughter of P. D. Robbins of Durham, longtime manager of Ellis Stone and Thalheimer's in Durham.

WORSE IN '29 . . . There aren't too many around to recall the particulars, but at least two noteworthy leaders of the Democratic Party in North Carolina remember when the Republican situation in the State was worse than in 1962.

Among the freshmen in the 1929 Legislature were Edwin Gill, aged 30, and Thad Eure, same age. They are now the venerable State Treasurer and Secretary, respectively.

In that good year, thanks to the Al Smith fiasco in 1928, there were 49 Republicans in the General Assembly — more than twice as many as we will have in 1963.

MORE IN '64? . . . You won't get them to talk for publication, but many a good Democrat in Raleigh since the Nov. 6 election has expressed the sincere opinion that the 1964 voting may be much worse on the Democrats than the black cloud which descended upon them this year.

STUDY PERIOD . . . This somewhat stern department head here called the new stenographer into his office the day before Thanksgiving last week. "Miss Doe," he said, "Your department is fine, you have a nice voice, you are the best looking girl we ever had working in this office, you dress well, and you make a good impression on the public."

Very much pleased, the girl beamed. "Oh, thank you," she said. "Your compliments are very pleasing."

"Enjoy them, please to the fullest," returned the boss, "for we are now going to discuss your spelling, punctuation, and typing."

NOTES . . . A recent checkup showed that enrollment at the Baptists' minister training schools in the South is down again this year . . . and a drop of about six per cent from 1961. . . Meantime, many good Baptist churches this winter find themselves searching for pastors.

There is a sharp, behind the scenes tug of war in the inner chambers of the State administration as to whom Gov. Sanford should support for Governor. It's a quiet riot which could move into the open between the Old Crowd and Dr. Henry Jordan or the New Crowd and Businessman Bert Bennett.

If Dr. Jordan could win out on the decision, and through the Primary and Election in 1964, he would go into office at the age of 66, oldest man ever to serve as Governor of North Carolina. Next oldest? Probably Clyde Ruard Hoy, who was born in 1877, was sworn in as Governor in 1937 at the age of 60.

If Rep. Herbert Bonner could name his successor, it would likely be Longtime Congressional Assistant Jack Spain of Greenville, the personable smoothie who has made more than one Representative and Senator look good to the folks back home. He knows the ropes.

Developing into one of the better known down to earth speakers in these parts is Jim (James A.) Graham, cattleman, farmer, former Vocational Agriculture Teacher and currently the manager of sprawling, up and coming Farmers Market, a division of L. V. Ballentine's on the ball N. C. Agriculture Dept.
