Sheriffs Department Gets Statement

Webster Confesses To Choking His Wife

Daniel R. Webster, 50, self-confessed killer of his wife on July 26, is being sent to the Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh for 60 days of mental observation.

Webster confessed to the killing of his wife in a statement to authorities last Saturday. Detective Richard Sharp of the Davie County Sheriff's Department made the announcement that Webster confessed to the murder of Gladys Beauchamp Webster on July 30, 1977.

In the confession local authorities revealed that Webster said he hit her in the head with an axe. On the kitchen floor he then choked her for about five minutes. Then he took a small knife and stabbed her in the neck.

Dr. Ben L. Richards, Davie County Coroner, said that choking was apparently the cause of death.

Mrs. Webster, 58, was found in her home July 26th on the kitchen floor. She had a cut on her neck and a wound on the back of her head, which was oozing with blood.

Dr. Richards said the cut "was certainly not enough to kill her and probably not the wound on the back of her head". As there was no physical evidence of the choking, the cause of death until the confession was uncertain.

The body was sent to Chapel Hill where State medical examiners performed the autopsy. "The wounds found substantiated Webster's confession", said Dr. Richard. "She was already dead from the choking is the reason she did not bleed more from the knife wound", he said.

A probable cause hearing, originally scheduled for Webster for Monday, was cancelled with the court order for transferral to a mental hospital. The order was signed Tuesday by Judge Hubert E. Olive Jr.

Webster has been held in the local jail without the privilege of bond since his arrest about 12:30 a.m. last Thursday morning.

Webster was stopped by Lt. Stan Eaton of the Davie County Sheriff's Department as he was driving his wife's car on US 158 near Bermuda Run. Authorities said there was a packed bag in the vehicle but no weapon was found.

The murder warrant for Webster was issued about 4 p.m. July 27th, some 16 hours after the body of Mrs. Gladys Beauchamp Webster, 58, was found in

County Accepts Donation Of Cooleemee Recreation Center

The county commissioners accepted a proposal from Burlington Industries to donate the property at the Cooleemee Recreation Center to the county at their regular meeting last Monday afternoon.

The commissioners then in turn will lease the property to the Cooleemee Recreation Commission, who will be responsible for the operation and maintenance of the center as they have in the past.

By leasing the property, the county can apply for a federal grant with the Bureau of Recreation that would buy some new equipment; whereas, the Cooleemee Recreation Commission, being a non-profit organization, could not have applied for the grant.

The county decided against a proposal by the state to have all comprehensive employment training act (CETA) contracts administered in the county, except for the YEVETTI and school employment training contracts.

Presently, the Department of Transportation, Social Services, Chamber of Commerce, Davie Hospital, the county, and others administer their own individual contracts.

The county also discussed a report by the Council of Governments concerning the Yadkin River and the diversion to Greensboro. The Council has estimated the costs of installing lines and a pump station from several rivers in the area for the transferral of water to Greensboro. The best two choices would be the Dan River and the Yadkin River.

Although the commissioners took no action on the matter, they did express their opposition to the diversion. County Attorney, John Brock, said that "if water is diverted to Greensboro it may start a precendent of watersheds using water from other watersheds, which is illegal right now and it may limit us as to development on the river basin in the future." "At the moment with Perkins coming in and the resources that we have, we have unlimited potential," said Brock.

Mary Forrest, managing director of the Chamber of Commerce, said that she is interested in getting involved in the matter of a diversion to Greensboro and will be attending some meetings in the upcoming months.

The commissioners were also reminded of the legislation that was passed about a year ago for the counties in the state to provide homes for juvenile offenders that have left their own homes, and are not in the category to be sent to the state training home. Counties must provide such homes according to the House Bill 456 by July 1, 1978. Davie has the alternatives of building their own home or contracting with another county to house the juveniles for them.

In other matters coming before the board, budget amendments for various departments including the anti-recession fund. Department of Social Services, and Water Department for the transfer of funds were approved. A second bid for the vehicle for the juvenile officer was accepted. A petition by M.K. Beauchamp to add the M.K. Beauchamp Road to the State Highway System was approved. An abandonment petition to have Maplewood Street in the Greenwood Lakes Subdivision removed from the State Highway System was delayed until all adjoining property owners could be contacted. Appointees to the Industrial Revenue Devvlopment Authority was delayed until the next meeting. The fire roster for the William R. Davie Fire Department was approved.

Town Election

The filing date for Mocksville candidates running for the office of mayor and the five positions open on the Town Board of Commissioners begins on August 5 at 12:00 noon. Persons interested in running for the offices have until August 26 at 12:00 noon to file.

All candidates must be residents of the town of Mocksville and must file within their registered party, whether it be Democrat or Republican. The primary for the two parties will then be held on September 27 with the general election on November 8 for primary winners.

The office for mayor and the five positions on the Town Board are for two year terms. Unlike the County Board of Commissioners, the town does not run staggered terms.

The books will close for registration to vote in North and South Mocksville on August 29.

Davie To Get Federal Aid

Davie was one of 56 counties declared "emergency drought-impact areas" last week, making some federal assistance available immediately to affected farmers and community water systems.

The federal Inter-Agency Drought Emergency Committee made the declaration in Washington late Thursday afternoon in response to a request last week from Gov. James B. Hunt Jr.

The 56 counties cover the central portion of the state. Among the counties are Alexander, Davidson, Davie, Forsyth, Guilford, Iredell, Rockingham, Stokes, Surry and Yadkin.

Assistance available in these counties includes low-interest loans to farmers through the Farmers Home Administration.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture also will be allowed to make low-interest loans available to small communities whose water supplies have been affected by the drought. Similar loans to larger communities would be available through the Department of Commerce.

More drought aid to 49 of the 56 counties is being sought in another request by Hunt. He is asking President Carter to declare the counties emergency drought areas and to authorize emergency feedgrain programs for livestock farmers and possibly other federal aid.

The Farmers Home Administration will offer emergency loans at 5 per cent interest to help cover eligible farmers' losses, said James T. Johnson, state director of the agency. The loans on actual crop losses can be repaid according to the farmers' ability.

$5,050,000 Received In U.S. Grants Last Year

Are residents of Davie County paying a high or a low price for the benefits their area receives from the Government in the form of grants-in-aid and revenue sharing?

To what extent did the local area share in the $54.7 billion that was distributed by Washington in the past fiscal year, compared with the amounts that went to other areas?

According to a state-by-state analysis of Treasury Department figures, made by the Tax Foundation, a non-profit organization that monitors Government spending, Davie County's share was relatively large.

An estimated $5,050,000 in aid was allocated to cover a variety of programs in the local area.

The total amount of grants in the State of North Carolina as a whole came to $1,273,000,000 in the year.

The funds were awarded for such programs as urban renewal, child welfare, job training, hospitals, health, road construction, schools and the like.

The figures take into account only grants-in-aid and revenue sharing and do not include Federal spending in local areas for goods and services.

As to the cost of the benefits, they are met by each community, in whole or in part, by the portion of their Federal taxes that are allocated to the aid programs.

Davie County's share of the costs, exclusive of matching funds, came to approximately $4,596,000 in the past year. Statewide, the bill was $1,164,000,000.

In some parts of the country, the costs involved were greater than the value of the aid received. In other the reverse was true.

All in all, the study shows, 21 states

High School Schedule

Davie High School schedules will be given to students August 26. Students who registered for the 1977-78 school year will find their name listed in the gym lobby if they are juniors or seniors, and in the office lobby if they are sophomores or freshmen.

The list will give the homeroom to which the student will report to receive the class schedule and other information. Students who have not registered or do not find their names on the homeroom sheet will report to the office.

Allen Martin Elected President Of International Corvair Society

The International Corvair Society of America is out to prove that the old adage, "age before beauty," is not always true.

The Chevrolet Corvair, which went out of production ten years ago has 6,500 admirers from all over America, South America, Australia, all provinces of Canada and the Virgin Islands. These people compose the society which oversees and maintains, in a way, the Corvair's existence.

This is no small task. And Allen Martin, Davie Hospital Administrator, was elected last Saturday to the most responsible position in the society – the presidency. He previously served as secretary to the national board of directors.

The convention began Thursday at the Mariott Motor Hotel in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Mr. Martin flew to Minneapolis Friday.

"I think the reason they elected me president," Mr. Martin said, "is because I am an administrator and I must be fair to all."

He clarified, "There are basically three different types of Corvair lovers: the preservationist who wants to admire his Corvair from under a cover in the garage, the race enthusiast, and the customizer, who thinks he can take the car and make it better by customizing it.

"It is my job to insure that everyone be able to speak his mind and have his time on the floor."

His other duties as president will include chairing the meetings of the national board of directors of the society, becoming an official national spokesman; and he must help as best he can in promoting the interest of Corvair enthusiasts.

Dues collected from the 6,500 members of the society amount to about $100,000 per year. With this money, they publish two magazines, one which is a monthly, and they also use it to encourage the remanufacturing of Corvair parts.

The Corvair has a lot of fans to be a car that is no longer produced. "The Corvair is to General Motors," Mr. Martin compared, "as old Henry Ford's T-model is to Ford."

He noted that the Corvair engine was just way ahead of its time. When other small cars came out with similar but better engines, the Corvair just couldn't compete with them.

Mr. Martin bought his first corvair in 1965. He has since increased his ownership to eight, but he still drives his first, original one. "It is on the road everyday," he said.

July Was Hot And Dry

The month of July 1977 will probably go down as one of the hottest and driest on record.

According to C.F. Meroney, official rainfall statistician for Davie County, only 1.05 inches of rain fell here during the month.

Rainfall for the first seven months of 1977 is 4.67 inches short of that of last year, 1976. A total of 16.01 inches of rainfall has been measured here since Janurary 1st and compared to 20.68 inches during the same period last year.

And, for the past three months (May-July) only 4.82 inches of precipitation have been recorded. Last year there were 12.11 inches during these three months.

Combined with the lack of rainfall was one of the hottest spells in years. As a result crops were scorched and local farmers lost a large percentage of their

Youth Is Arrested For Stealing Assorted Coins

A Bermuda Run teenager has been charged with the theft of $670.50 in assorted coins from a home in that area last weekend.

Kinpel, charged with breaking and entering and larceny, has a court date of August 22nd.

The broken jug that had held the coins was found in a field. Kinpel allegedly had $46.99 in his pockets when arrested. The other coins were found in seven one-pound coffee cans.

Deputies O.S. Dancy and V.G. Brown investigated.

A Davie County man was arrested Monday night on a charge of second-degree rape of a Catawba College coed on July 19.

Salisbury police identified the man as James Climo Jr., 26, of Rt. 4, Mocksville, the Point Road. Climo is a graduate of Catawba.

Police declined to elaborate on how the man became a suspect in the case involving 19-year-old Shari Hedgepeth.

She had reported to police that she was alone in her dorm room when she was awakened about 2 a.m. by a man who put his hand over her mouth, warned her not to scream, then raped her.

She also reported that before leaving, the man had threatened to kill her if she screamed.

Climo is a 1974 graduate of Catawba with a degree in biology. He reportedly has been attending Catawba College anthropology classes.

Climo was arrested about 10:30 last night at his residence by Salisbury police and members of the Davie County Sheriff's Department.

He is being held without bond pending a probable cause hearing in Rowan County District Court.

Webster Murder

the kitchen of her parents home near Advance. The Websters lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Major K. Beauchamp.

According to Sheriff R.O. Kiger, a man who identified himself as "Daniel Webster" called the jail about 9:50 p.m., July 26, asked if they had a warrant for him and, on being told they did not, said, "Well you will have. I just shot my wife".

About 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Webster was brought before Judge Lester P. Martin Jr. in Davie District Court for a first-appearance hearing. He was ordered to be held without bond for a probable cause hearing and Gilbert T. Davis was appointed by the court to represent him.

Webster was nattily dressed when he was brought to the jail last Thursday. Later that day he protested loudly when agents of the State Bureau of Investigation, John Foster of Elkin and Bruce Allen of Newton, took his shirt from him.

"I don't like to go around in a T-shirt," he told the agents. Webster also demanded a change of clothing from the packed bag found in his wife's car. Authorities said he had $270 in his billfold when he was arrested.

July 27, the day after he killed his wife, Webster made telephone calls to the jail, to the Davie County Hospital, and to Eaton Funeral Home. Officers said that Webster:

—Called the Davie Sheriff's Office at 9:50 p.m. and told deputies that he wasn't going to turn himself in until the next morning (July 28).

—Called Eaton Funeral Home and advised attendants that he wanted to be sure that she would be buried in a pink dress.

—Called the Davie County Hospital and made threats against Major Beauchamp, his father-in-law, who has been a patient there since Monday and with whom Mrs. Beauchamp was visiting at the time Mrs. Webster was killed.

Sheriff's deputies, aware that Webster knew the hospital room Beauchamp had been assigned, had him moved to a room across the hall from Billy Mac Wilson, a prisoner who attempted suicide in his jail cell on Monday, so that the deputy who guarded Wilson could also protect Beauchamp.

Webster, who has a history of mental and alcohol problems, attained considerable notoriety in December 1975 when he wrote the White House a letter which contained what the U.S. Secret Service interpreted as threats against President Ford.

Webster's long criminal record dating back to 1946 when he was sentenced to 8-months for larceny of an auto; in Nov. 1947 he was convicted of forgery; in December of 1956 he was sentenced to 3 to 5 years for breaking and entering, larcency and receiving; in March of 1957 he received a five year sentence for breaking and entering; on December 3, 1956 he received a nine month sentence for driving under the influence and hit and run; in November of 1959 he was convicted on 9 counts of forgery, larceny of auto, breaking and entering and was sentenced to 4 years; in August of 1963 he received a six month sentence for attempted breaking and entering; in September 1963 he received a 12-month sentence for larceny of auto; in February of 1966 he was sentenced to six months for escape and also that same month received a 6 to 8 year sentence for breaking and entering and larcency, and larceny of an auto; in January 1968 he received a nine month sentence for escape. He was released from prison in 1971.

In Davie County he has been charged with driving under the influence, hit and run, driving with license revoked, several counts of assault with a deadly weapon, and communicating threats. He has been committed several times to mental hospitals. He was also charged in Davidson County with uttering false prescriptions.

A native of Wilmington, N.C., records in Davie County list Webster as unemployed and disabled.

After receiving the telephone call about 10:50 p.m., July 26, Capt. Art Ebright and Deputies Don Gregory and John Cole went to the Beauchamp residence on the Beauchamp Road and found Mrs. Webster on the kitchen floor amid smears of blood. Mrs. Webster was the Beauchamp's only child, and Webster was her third husband.

Webster sent red roses to his wife's funeral last Saturday. He also visited the funeral home on Saturday after the visit was authorized by District Attorney H.W. Zimmerman Jr.

FUNERAL SERVICES

Funeral services for Mrs. Webster were conducted Saturday afternoon at the Eaton Funeral Home Chapel. The Rev. Donald Funderburke officiated. Burial was in the Bethlehem United Methodist Church cemetery, of which she was a member.

A native of Davie County, Mrs. Webster was born on April 9, 1919, the daughter of Major and Ethel Beauchamp of Rt. 2 Advance. She was a retired empolyee of the Hanes Corporation.

In addition to her parents, she is survived by her husband, Daniel Webster, and two step-sons.

Vehicles In Collision

Two vehicles were involved in a collision last Friday about 2:30 p.m. on NC 801, 5.8 miles south of Mocksville.

Involved was a vehicle operated by Texola Miller Tucker, 42, of Rt. 7 Mocksville and a 1966 Pontiac operated by Winnie Harding Spillman, 54, of Rt. 7 Mocksville.

State Highway Patrolman K.W. Ledbetter said his investigation showed that the Spillman vehicle was attempting to enter NC 801 from the Davie Academy Road. Trooper Ledbetter said that Spillman told him he saw the Tucker vehicle coming but apparently misjudged the distance away of the vehicle and pulled into the path of the Tucker vehicle, colliding in the west lane of NC 801.

Damage to the Tucker vehicles was estimated at $400 and $500 to the Spillman vehicle. Spillman was charged with a safe movement violation.

Bicycles Are Stolen

A bicycle, belonging to Priscilla Smith of Lakewood Village, was stripped of several parts last week. Reported stolen were two wheels, including the tires and tubes, the handle bars and seats.

A ten-year-old Juvenile was arrested last Thursday and charged with the theft by Deputy Junior Mauldin.

Last Thursday Deputy Mauldin found a small Western Flyer bicycle in the vicinity of Benson Electric Company. It is brown wth a red, white and blue seat. The owner of the bike is unknown.

Mopeds: Tiger Of A Tank With Purr Of Pussy Cat

More and more Americans are being lured from their automobiles by the hottest thing on two wheels – the motorized pedal bicycle.

At 200 miles to the gallon of gas, the moped, as it is known, leaves economy cars at the gas pump. And mopeds cost only $300 to $500.

The moped is a bicycle with a one- or two-horsepower engine attached. With the push of the starter button and a little pedaling by the operator, the moped's two-stroke engine buzzes into action. A hand throttle controls speed.

"The vehicle has really caught on," Ed Kaufman of the Motorized Bicycle Association told the National Geographic Society. He says mopeds are usually used for commuting or errands.

About 70,000 mopeds were sold in the United States in 1976, the association says, and sales this year may reach 100,000 to 200,000.

The moped has not attracted cyclists seeking fast starts and high speeds. At a top speed of about 30 miles an hour, the moped can't always keep up with a 10-speed bike. But the moped operator, who has no gears to shift and only has to pedal on steep hills, perspires a lot less than the bicyclist.

Mopeds aren't all that newfangled. Europeans have found them the way to go since post-World War II days, when fuel and cars were scarce.

Capitalizing on America's energy crisis, European manufacturers began in 1975 to pour thousands of dollars into moped promotions in the United States. Thirty companies now market mopeds in this country.

"Sales double every month," said Richard Armstrong of the Columbia Manufacturing Company in Westfield, Mass., the only American manufacturer of the moped. The 100-year-old company, the first to build bicycles in the United States, began research on mopeds during the 1973 Arab oil embargo.

In the past two years moped legislation has moved through 26 states and the District of Columbia.

According to the weather service it was the hottest July since 1969, and equals the record high for the month, since records started being recorded in 1929.

Seven or eight times during the month the temperature rose above 100 degrees or more.

The month started with consecutive readings of 93, 95, 90, 91. A temperature of 99 degrees was recorded on July 5, followed by four consecutive days of 100 or better. On Sunday, July 10, the temperature dropped to 97 and the following two days were a little cooler with readings of 93 and 94. But then it went up again and stayed there with readings of 96 or higher. On July 20, 21, 22, and 23 the temperature again exceeded 100 degrees.

The high of 106 degrees was recorded on July 8.

The weather service predicts that August is expected to have more above average temperatures and less than normal rainfall for the duration of the month.

Democrat Candidate To Visit Mocksville In State Wide Walk

Dave McKnight, a Democrat candidate for the U.S. Senate, will be the speaker for the Davie County Democratic Women, Tuesday, August 9th, 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Town Hall.

Mr. McKnight is walking from Manteo to Murphy, meeting and shaking hands with people all across the state. He started his trek in April and will end it in October. Davie will be the 33rd county of his walk, coming from Lexington on Tuesday. He will spend Tuesday afternoon meeting people in Mocksville and Davie County.

Mr. McKnight resigned as editorial editor of the Fayetteville News when he announced his candidacy in January. He had been in the newspaper business for seven years.

He is 29 years of age, a native of Charlotte and now resides in Fayetteville, N.C.

Mr. McKnight says he is interested in the future of small businesses and family farms in the American economic system. His theme is "Doing More With Less".

"All Democrats are invited to attend", said a spokesman for the women.

Davie County Officials Attend National Meeting

By Arnold Hendricks

The Davie County Commissioners were among the approximately 3,000 persons who attended the annual national association of counties (NACo) meeting in Detroit, Michigan last Monday through Wednesday.

All five county commissioners; Ron Vogler, the county manager; and John Brock, the county attorney attended the meeting. Voger said that the meeting offers so many classes that one or two people couldn't possibly cover them all. The group from Davie usually split up and went to different programs.

The conference included three days of workshops covering all areas of county government. Some of the programs the commissioners attended were sessions on professional and county liability, coordinating health services, clean solid waste disposal, public relations bill, drought systems programs, rural development, rural manpower, strategy for crime control, health systems agency, and mental health patients in hospitals, court decisions on zoning, land use and development controls, unemployment insurance, Canada's natural health insurance, and the comprehensive employment and training acts.

Probably the two most famous speakers at the meeting were Vice-President Walter Mondale and Bert Lance of the Carter administration. Commissioner Glenn Howard attended the session in which Mondale was speaking and said that Mondale spoke mainly on cutting red tape and the excessive paper work the counties are having to go through to receive and spend federal funds.

Another concern brought up at the conference was the states wanting counties to do more and more; thus raising the tax base. Vogler said the feeling of the NACo officials was that since states mandate services to counties and is still wanting them to do more, states should then reimburse the counties for these services.

Vogler said that one of the advantages of belonging to the national organization is that it is an effective lobbying group for counties. One example cited was the seemingly defeat of the revenue sharing bill in Congress a couple of years ago. NACo representatives spent a weekend in Washington talking with each senator and congressman about counties' need for revenue sharing. The end result was the passing of the revenue sharing bill for a three year period.

Vogler said that the passing of this bill was important for many county governments as many counties are dependent on revenue sharing to meet operational costs such as paying salaries in their budgets. He went on to say that Davie does not use revenue sharing funds in the operational budget; thus, the county could make it easier without revenue sharing than some other counties. Davie uses its revenue sharing funds mainly for capital improvement projects such as buildings and renovation of buildings.

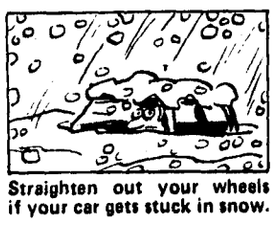

One complaint about the conference came from Commissioner Glenn Howard who said that the meeting was too oriented to the larger counties and their problems. He went on to say that the agenda of programs should be brought down to the concerns of the taxpayers, instead of programs to waste money.

However, one of the advantages in attending meetings on the national level, said Voger, is the opportunity to meet other people who operate on different scales of government and to learn from these people. "We don't have the number or magnitude of problems the larger counties have, but we view the larger counties and note their mistakes so we can deal better with them in the future."

Vogler also said that after viewing other types of government methods, he likes the Board-county manager system, under which Davie now operates, because it is a more of a business approach with one group making the policy and one person seeing that it gets done.

Also noted was the various philosophies of government with the example being a group from one of the counties in New York who were concerned that the county was not offering enough welfare to the people, despite the bankruptcy problems New York has had and is still battling with.

The commissioners in addition to belonging to the national association of counties also pay membership dues to the state association of counties. The fee for the national association is about $400 per year. This along with the funds needed to make the trip to the annual conference is set aside in the budget each year. The state association meeting will be held in Charlotte later on this month.

Nuclear Foes Plan Protests At Plant Sites On Saturday

The Associated Press said in an article Tuesday that a coalition of groups opposed to nuclear development says demonstrations will be held Saturday at sites in North and South Carolina, including the site of the proposed Perkins Nuclear Station in Davie County.

The Citizens Against Perkins Nuclear Power Plant, Foothills Group of the Sierra Club, Community Environmental Action and Citizens Against Nuclear Trouble will join other groups at other nuclear plant sites or proposed sites in the demonstration.

Brett Bursey, a spokesman for the Palmetto Alliance, said about 500 persons are expected to participate in the protests, which will begin with picnics and discussions of alternatives to nuclear energy.

The protests will end when the demonstrators release hundreds of helium-filled balloons from each site, Bursey said.

The balloons will carry cards saying, "Warning -- you are downwind from a nuclear facility and may be affected by harmful radiation. You have just been exposed to the friendly dose of citizens' activity in the hopes that you will never be exposed to a dose of harmful radioactivity . . ."

The cards will contain blanks where those who find them can write where and when they found the balloons and ask for information on nuclear energy.

The balloons will be released at the gates of the nuclear facilities, he added. The protests will be held at Duke Power Co.'s Oconee Station near Seneca and the Catawba Station near Charlotte; South Carolina Electric and Gas Co.'s facilities at Hartsville and Jenkinsville; and the Allied-General nuclear fuel reprocessing plant at Barnwell. A demonstration will also be held in Gaffney, where Duke has proposed building the Cherokee Nuclear Station.

"I think it's a good direct-action tactic that is not too alienating," Bursey said.

The chief of security at Duke's Oconee Plant, Jim Hampton, said he was aware of plans to release the balloons. He said as long as the protestors "stay off our property there is nothing we can do.

"If they come onto Duke property we will explain that they are on our property and will ask them to leave," he added.

Bernice Holt of Clemson, spokeswoman for a group called "People for a Clean Environment," said anti-nuclear groups across the nation will release balloons and hold other demonstrations Saturday.

Federal Assistance Is Sought For Davie Farmers

Governor Jim Hunt has requested President Carter to authorize federal assistance for farmers in forty-nine counties whose pastures and grain crops have been ruined by drought and high temperatures.

In a letter to the President, Governor Hunt pointed to an estimated 90 percent loss in the corn crop in those counties and "disastrous effects on other small grains and pasture lands." He said that many pastures, completely destroyed, "will have to be plowed under and started again."

A declaration of an emergency condition must be made by the President for those counties to be eligible for the Emergency Feed Program of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration.

Secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety J. Phil Carlton, who is responsible for coordinating all emergency programs in the state, said that this is part of a continuing effort to see that all possible aid is made available to North Carolina farmers who have suffered because of the drought.

paid a premium for the aid they got, one broke even and 28 came out ahead.

Connecticut was the biggest loser. It paid $1.45 for every $1 of aid. The chief gainer was Mississippi, where the $1 in aid costs only 50 cents.

In explanation of the seeming inequity, it is pointed out that some localities get bigger allotments than others because their need is greater. There is no attempt to return dollar for dollar.

8th District Is Emergency Drought Area

Congressman Bill Hefner announced today that all eleven counties in the Eighth Congressional District had been declared emergency drought impact areas. The designation was made by the Federal Interagency Drought Emergency Coordinating Committee in the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"This action," Hefner said, "makes farmers and communities eligible for special assistance from the Departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Interior, and the Small Business Administration."

The designation resulted from action on the part of Hefner and the State of North Carolina to obtain assistance for farmers and areas suffering from this summer's drought.

"This summer's drought has reduced the yield of most crops," Hefner said, "and pastureland is drying up. Now that the situation has been recognized by the Federal government, farmers will be eligible to receive emergency loans from the Farmers Home Administration to cover losses and restore production."

Small businesses may obtain economic injury disaster loans and physical disaster loans from the Small Business Administration. A law passed by Congress earlier this year makes farmers also eligible for SBA assistance.

In addition to farmers, Hefner said that communities under 10,000 population could be eligible for emergency water system loans and grants from the FmHA. Also, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service could provide cost-sharing for special drought and flood conservation practices. "However," Hefner said of this program, "the USDA has pointed out that the ASCS conservation programs depend upon the availability of funds."

States and local governments representing over 10,000 people may be eligible for assistance from the Department of Commerce's Economic Development Administration to offset significant hardships caused by the drought in 1976 and 1977.

Hefner pointed out that although the drought impact designation makes all areas in the 8th District eligible for these special programs, eligibility requirements set out in each agency must be met by those seeking assistance.

According to the USDA, applicants for Departments of Agriculture, Commerce, and Interior programs must sign up for specific drought assistance by September 30. Rural projects funded by the Department of Agriculture and Interior programs must be completed by November 30. And, community projects funded by the Departments of Commerce and Agriculture must be completed by April 30, 1978.

The counties in Hefner's Congressional District which were designated as drought impact areas include Anson, Cabarrus, Davie, Montgomery, Moore, Richmond, Rowan, Scotland, Stanly, Union and Yadkin.

Perkins Foes To Launch Balloons At Site Saturday

Citizens against the Perkins Nuclear Power Plant, Foothills Group of the Sierra Club, Community Environmental Action, and Citizens against Nuclear Trouble are releasing balloons at the site of the proposed Perkins Nuclear Power Plant on August 6, 1977, the anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima. Similar releases are occurring at nuclear plant sites throughout the state and the country to warn residents of the dangers of radioactive releases or accidents at local nuclear weapons or plant sites.

Post cards are attached to the balloons, warning that fallout from a nuclear accident could travel as far as the balloon. The card warns: "Radiation has been shown to cause cancer even in tiny amounts. Releases of small amounts of radioactive material from nuclear facilities are routine."

Gail Ashburn of Citizens against the Perkins Nuclear Power Plant explained that many people are unaware of the hazards of nuclear facilities and the frequency of malfunctions, leaks, and spills. Calling the Perkins Plant "unnecessary and unsafe", Ms. Ashburn emphasized that it will be built unless the citizens of the Piedmont join together in opposition to the plant. Ms. Ashburn encouraged all citizens to ask their Congressmen to co-sponsor HR 882, the nuclear power plant moratorium bill.

Anyone interested in working with the groups sponsoring the balloon launching should write CAPNPP, P.O. Box 6024, Winston-Salem, 27109.

Davie Teachers Complete U.S. History Workshop

Fifteen Davie Co. teachers have completed a one-week workshop on U.S. History held at the Davie Schools Administrative Office. The puccose of the workshop was to enrich the teaching of U.S. History and to develop specific units of history to be taught during the 1977-78 school year.

A project grant in the amount of $5,950 was obtained under Title IV-C of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act to fund this workshop and the year-long activities of the project. These funds will be used for enrichment materials for U.S. History students, workshop consultants, equipment, travel, substitute teachers, and a small stipend for workshop participation. Mr. Marshall Genter of Pitman, New Jersey, and Luther Sowers of Salisbury were workshop consultants. Fifteen additional hours will be utilized throughout the school year to complete the development of units on special periods of U.S. History.

Build your own bluebird nesting box

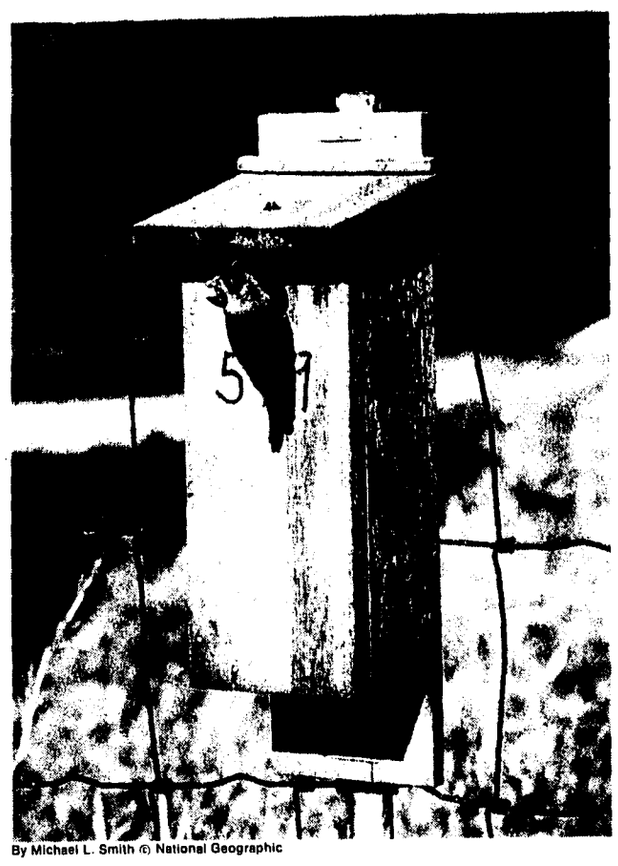

"How readily the bluebirds become our friends and neighbors when we offer them suitable nesting retreats!" wrote 19th-century naturalist John Burroughs. His observation seems even more relevant today as aggressive house sparrows and starlings usurp bluebird nesting places, and man with his disdain for tree stumps and dead branches saws them down.

Thus pressed, bluebirds take quickly to boxes, such as this large one (right). Its extra depth protects against raccoons and other marauders. Where predators don't threaten, shallower boxes suffice (diagram below).

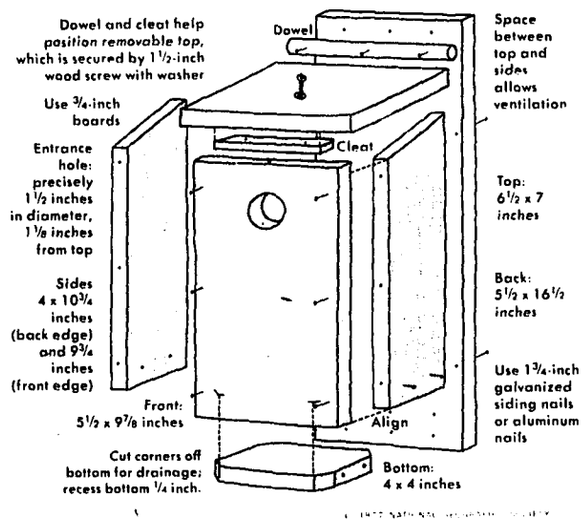

In the past five years nearly 1,000 bluebirds were raised in 85 boxes by Dr. Lawrence Zeleny, who reports on the embattled bluebird in the June National Geographic.

Bluebirds prefer open areas with scattered trees. Boxes may be constructed of almost any type of wood, and they should be mounted three to five feet off the ground for convenient monitoring. Fence posts make practical supports; greased metal poles help thwart predators.

An entrance hole 1½ inches wide will bar starlings but not sparrows, which must be evicted. The persistent squatters have been known to return eight times or more before giving up.

Carter's Human Rights Stance Divisive Issue In Poland, Says UNC-G Professor

By Steve Gilliam

Although President Carter's campaign for international human rights has drawn an angry cold shoulder from the Soviet Union, the issue is a hotly-debated and divisive one in academic circles in Poland, one of the crown jewels of the socialist bloc.

That's the assessment of Dr. Maurice Simon, an assistant professor of political science at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, who was in Poland on a research project during the time Carter took office and launched his push for human rights.

"Poland has its own human rights situation and Carter's position, while it doesn't apply to Poland specifically, has caused a great deal of discussion in the academic community," said Simon. "It's a divisive issue in an area of Polish society that has great input on the government's social policy."

The socialist nation's chief concern during the nine months Simon spent there, before his return earlier this summer, was in reviving the Polish economy, which has suffered due to depressed world market conditions.

Carter's position on human rights has brought the issue to light on an international scale, Simon said, and Polish officials are watching their internal political situation for any possible effects it might have.

"Poland's economy was one of the most dynamic in Europe during the early part of this decade," said Simon. "But the world recession has made it very difficult to export products to the west to balance the large amount of technology they are importing.

"As a result, their international debt is growing and there's no easy solution to the problem. At a time when their major concern is the trade balance, the human rights issue has come up."

Poland's particular human rights dilemma stems from the widely publicized arrest last summer of a group of dissenting workers. The group has drawn support from a coalition of intellectuals and churchgoers known as the Committee for the Defense of Workers.

"The topic of human rights is unavoidable in Poland now because the press there has been very active in pointing out the tense political environment surrounding it," said Simon. "Most elements of Polish society will admit that political tensions have grown during the past year.

"Carter's position is controversial and there's a lot of general interest but, like a lot of the feeling here at home, people are wondering if his approach will do very much to promote the cause of human rights outside the United States."

At the outset of his trip, Simon took part in a five-day conference on "American and Polish Youth, Higher Education and Changes in Social Study" as one of 10 American participants. Their attendance at the conference was funded by a $9,000 grant from the International Research and Exchanges Board (IREX).

The conference allowed American and Polish scholars to set up a collaborative research project on the effects higher education has had on social mobility and values, political participation and occupational attitudes among students in both countries.

The research project will continue in January when the Polish and American scholars journey to Chicago to present their findings. A second grant of $4,060 from IREX will cover the American scholars expenses.

The two conferences are sponsored by the Institute of Sociology of the Polish Academy of Science and IREX. Simon, who speaks Polish and who has lived in the country on two other occasions, stayed in Poland for the academic year to coordinate the research efforts on a $13,000 grant from the National Academy of Science.

"Both conferences represent an effort toward establishing more collaborative research between the socialist bloc and the United States," said Simon. "The scholars on both sides hope to develop a working relationship between the two academic communities that can open new channels for academic research."

During his stay in Poland, Simon said he and his family experienced the same problems with food and housing shortages that Polish citizens have had to cope with because of the depressed economy.

"We had to shop almost daily to get items like beef or pork or vegetables," he said. "Because of the economic situation, the main Polish products that Western nations were buying were agricultural items and this caused the shortages.

"The lines were incredible and the food system was on a specialty basis where you had to visit different stores for different types of foods. The lines were fairly common, but you didn't see them every day -- they mainly happened when the scarcity items could be purchased.

"The housing shortage exists although we were able to get an apartment, small by American standards, that was very nice. For the most part, housing in Poland is not spacious and most quarters are cramped."

Because of the heavy competition to get into the Polish university system, Simon noted that scholars and academicians command great respect there.

"The academic community, especially social scientists, has more impact on government in Poland than it does here," said Simon. "Academicians are regarded as opinion makers or pace setters for society and a university education is regarded as one of the most highly-prized attainments in Polish society."

Rain And The Telephone

Probably all of us have lived through a power failure caused by a storm at one time or another. Yet while you watch the candles burn down and wait out the storm, your telephone is usually still working!

The reason is that your telephone doesn't operate on the same power that is supplied to your home. The phone works from electrical current supplied by banks of batteries in each telephone switching center.

We have to use batteries for two reasons. First, telephones require a comparatively small amount of voltage rather than the relatively large voltages carried in electric power lines. The batteries are charged by power provided by the electric company. Second, telephone equipment needs direct, no alternating, current. The direct current is supplied by the batteries.

When a power failure does occur, the batteries enable the telephones to continue to work and fuel-powered generators are used to keep the batteries charged. In most dial offices, these generators switch on automatically when the power is out for even a few seconds. In other switching centers, portable generators that can be set up quickly are used.

But storms can cause problems for the telephone system. Every once in awhile, you may encounter some noise or static on the line during or following a storm. This is because a cable serving you and others in your area may be unknowingly damaged slightly. This damage may not cause serious problems for several weeks or until the next rain. Until the problem is identified by customer reports to repair service, we will not know the trouble is there. Another important factor is that water and electricity just don't mix! Moisture entering a cable through even the smallest pinpoint puncture may disrupt telephone service.

In order to minimize this problem, most telephone cables are filled with a jelly-like substance or are under air pressurization. The jelly substance protects the wires in the cable because water will not penetrate it. Where air is used, it is kept under constant pressure so water cannot enter the cable. We use special equipment to detect any escaping air along a pressurized cable route, so that in most cases leaks can be fixed before there is a problem.

Another way to counter the effects of the weather is to bury cable. Where it's at all practical, we put cable underground. Not only is cable you can't see nicer to "look" at, but it is also less susceptible to adverse weather conditions. Lightning can, of course, damage underground cable if it hits the right spot.

Where it's not feasible to bury cable, we use aerial cable. Severe ice storms or storms with high winds and lightning can knock down telephone lines. When that happens, we use all our resources to get them back up and restore service as soon as possible.

Lightning storms can cause serious damage even when the lines aren't down. As we mentioned before, telephone lines are designed to carry only small voltages so we install a high voltage protector at your premise which acts like a fuse if lightning hits your line, the protector blocks the voltage to your home, your phone, and the switching equipment. However, when this happens, it is necessary for a serviceman to go to your home to restore your telephone service. This is why it is very important for you to notify the Company that your service is not working.

We're always searching for ways to eliminate, or at least minimize, these weather-related difficulties. If you seem to have a continuing problem with your phone when it rains, please let us know by calling repair service.

Solid Foods Not Needed

New Ideas Offered On Infant Feeding

by Susan Cranford

For years, parents have pushed their babies to eat solid foods, taking pride in the fact that their Timmy was eating meat before little Sammy next door did.

But nutritionists are reexamining this traditional feeding pattern, and some now feel that infants do not need any solid food until they are about 4 months old.

"It's hard to realize that the way your mother fed you isn't always the best way to feed your baby," said Susan Rafferty, a graduate nutrition student in the School of Public Health at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The new iron-fortified infant formulas have made the difference, she said. Because they are compositionally much like breastmilk, she explained, other foods are not necessary.

In the past, Rafferty said, "Kids were pushed to consume everything on the shelf by the time they were a couple of months old." Parents did this because they felt it was good for the child, she said. "They wanted their child to be big and strong--and whoever heard of a kid getting big and strong off just milk?"

Not only are solid foods unnecessary, they can cause digestive problems if fed too early, she said. Babies systems are not able to handle such foods when they are very young.

In the infant class Rafferty teaches with Sally DeFriese, a slow introduction of solid foods is emphasized. DeFriese is a public health nutritionist with the Orange-Chatham Comprehensive Health Service.

At age 4-6 months, cereal mixed with a little formula can be introduced to the baby, DeFriese said. Fruits and vegetables can also be fed, but, she said, these should be tried one at a time. By introducing different varieties a few days apart, any allergies which the child might have can be easily pinpointed. When the child is 7-9 months old, DeFriese said, his digestive system is ready for meat.

Another suggestion the two nutritionists have for new mothers is to not overfeed their babies. "Obesity is one of the major public health problems in this country," Rafferty said, "and childhood eating patterns really have an effect on it."

She explained that overfeeding at an early age can lead to the development of more fat cells than the child would otherwise have. These fat cells stay with a person throughout life, making it hard to stay trim.

Baby food is also being discussed in the infant classes. Most additives are not necessary for the baby, Rafferty said. "We recommend that mothers read labels carefully and not buy baby foods with added sugar and salt," she said.

She suggests homemade baby food. For example, a jar of baby bananas can include such unnecessary things as corn sweetener, modified starch, sugar and salt. "All you really have to do," she said, "is peel a banana and mash it up with a fork."

Other baby foods can also be made at home, Rafferty said, and you don't need an expensive blender to do it. A crank-handled gadget that purees food can be purchased for under $5.

"It's become a habit to buy shelf baby foods," she said. "But lately parents have realized that they can save money and reduce fillers by making the food at home."

"There is no need for additional vitamins and minerals if a child eats properly," Rafferty said, despite the number of vitamin supplement advertisements. A proper diet should include yellow vegtables for vitamin A, meat, beans and leafy greens for iron; and fruits for vitamin C. she said.

Rafferty and DeFriese teach the infant class as part of a federally-funded Women, Infants and Children Supplemental Food Program (WIC) at the Orange-Chatham Comprehensive Health Service. The program, which began in July, is a preventative effort designed to produce healthy babies. In Orange and Chatham counties, some 1200 women, infants and children take part in the program.

WIC participants have their health monitored throughout their pregnancies and receive a specified amount of food each month. Women in the program get fruit juice, cheese, eggs, milk and iron-fortified cereal, and babies get infant formula, infant cereals and juice.

The infant class is a new part of the program. About eight women meet each month with nutritionists, mental health workers, social workers and family nurse practitioners.

"One of the most improtant aims is to provide support for these young mothers, especially the ones who have no other children," DeFriese said. "They're unsure of what to do and having a chance to get together with others in the same situation helps."

Although the class has only been meeting for a few months, it seems to be succeeding, Rafferty said. "It's doing what we had hoped it would--one mother's experience is helping the others."

Various Tips Given On How To Deal With Motor Vehicle Emergencies

The throttle sticks in an open position and your car is moving too fast -- you're driving along at the speed limit and you must slow down, but the brakes don't work -- Your lights go out while driving at night -- your steering locks or the wheels won't turn when you turn the steering wheel, and you can't control the direction of car movement -- a fire breaks out under the hood of your car -- you're caught in the middle of a big traffic jam and your car's engine overheats -- What do you do?

At some time during their lifetime, most drivers encounter at least one emergency situation involving a malfunction of their vehicle which, if not handled promptly and correctly, can result in an accident, injury, or death.

The purpose of this series will be to describe some of the most common emergency situations and how they can be handled, with accident prevention and the safety of motorists and innocent pedestrians being the prime concern.

The columns that follow this initial series will be intended for all drivers but more importantly for those drivers relatively inexperienced in coping with emergency malfunctions in their vehicles.

The best way to avoid accidents caused by vehicular malfunctions is to keep your car in safe running condition. You should inspect your car periodically. These include checking the tires, checking the lights, and checking fluid levels (e.g. oil, radiator coolant, battery fluid.)

You should also take your car to a service establishment periodically for necessary maintenance services and for routine safety checks of such things as condition of fan belts, and hoses, the exhaust system, brakes, steering assembly and related parts. When problems are apparent (looseness in steering, vibration in wheels or steering, spongy brakes, uneven tire wear, noisy muffler,) prompt and proper repairs are necessary to assure safety of the vehicle.

The driver of a vehicle, whether he owns it or not, should also perform certain safety checks before he drives. For example, a casual observation of the tires before getting in the car may point out such obvious problems as worn-out tires, a tire low on air, or a tire with a bubble in the sidewall. Inside the car, a casual glance at the gas guage will tell the driver whether he should fill the tank so as to avoid running out of gas. An oil pressure light slow to go on may indicate a serious potential engine problem. Applying the brakes before engaging a driving gear will give an indication of whether the brakes are operating normally. A check of the lights, including those on the instrumental panel, and a functional check of the windshield wipers are also good precautions. Hence many of these things can be checked by simple observation when one enters the car.

PCA Officials Attend Meeting

Officials of the Ideal Production Credit Association have just returned from Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, where they attended the Annual Conference for Directors and Presidents of Production Credit Associations and Federal Land Bank Associations in the Carolinas, Florida, and Georgia, according to J. Wilbur Cabe, president of the association.

The conference held at the Myrtle Beach Hilton, July 24-26, 1977, was sponsored by the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Columbia, South Carolina, and the Federal Land Bank of Columbia, South Carolina. The theme of the conference was "Partners in Progress."

ASCS News

The 1977 marketing season for flue-cured tobacco is scheduled to be underway August 9, 1977. As farmers market their crop, there are certain precautions they need to observe to assure that their tobacco is properly identified.

When the marketing card is issued to the farmer, we suggest that he use the following guides to assure proper handling of his tobacco:

1. Upon receiving the card, examine it carefully to see that all entries are correct.
2. Take the card to the warehouse when tobacco is weighed in. The card is to be left with the warehouseman until the check is issued to the farmer. Do not leave the card at the warehouse or with a trucker between sales.

After each sale check the card carefully to see that entries for that sale are correct. If any error is made that makes your sales in excess of 110 percent of quota, you will have to pay penalty at the rate of 83 cents per pound on each pound over 110 percent of quota, regardless of cause of error.

4. Report any error immediately to the marketing recorder at the warehouse or to the county ASCS office.
5. Do not allow tobacco from another farm to be sold on your card. If you use or permit the use of your marketing card to falsely identify tobacco from another farm, heavy penalties will be due and reduction in acreage allotments and poundage quotas for the farms involved will be made.

By following the above suggestions, a farmer can be sure of properly marketing his tobacco. Any farmer with further questions is invited to visit the county ASCS office.

Producers who wish to designate or redesigante warehouse (s) to sell tobacco may do so Monday, August 1 through Friday, August 5. An operator may make an initial warehouse designation or can change his original warehouse designation on any one day during this period. The earliest he will be allowed to sell tobacco at the redesignated warehouse with price support will be August 15th.

Compare Prices

Compare the prices of meat and poultry with the number of servings you'll get from each pound. A rule of thumb: Figure on four servings from a pound of boneless meat, two servings from a pound with the bone in and just one serving from a real bony choice.

Wildlife Afield

By Jim Dean

Webster defines obsession as a "persistent and inescapable preoccupation with an idea or emotion." I suppose that pretty well describes most of the fishermen I know. It is conceivable that we might occasionally go for as long as five minutes or so without thinking about fishing, but it's unlikely.

One acquaintance even confessed that his involvement with fishing had reached the point where he no longer dreamed about girls. Thank heavens that has never happened to me. In fact, just last night I dreamed that I met a really neat girl who had her own bass boat, a modest tarpon and bonefish camp on a Caribbean Island, controlling interest in The Orvis Company, and three miles of frontage on Henrys Fork of the Snake River in Idaho. Things were going very well until she happened to mention she was strictly a bait fisherperson.

What brought this business of obsession to mind was a conversation that I shared with Tom Cooper and Ron Evans on a recent trout trip. Cooper and I were visiting Evans while his charming wife and daughter were out of town visiting inlaws.

After four days, Evans' home began to resemble a combination city landfill and bottle recycling center. Fishing tackle was strewn from one end of the house to the other, and it had been at least two days since we had been able to locate a clean dish or glass.

It eventually occurred to us that some action was going to be necessary.

"We could buy some clean dishes," suggested Cooper.

Ron surveyed the wreckage around us woefully. "If Karen gets back and sees this place, it's possible she might be a trifle irked."

We considered the prospects morosely, then suddenly a sly grin spread across Ron's face. "Suppose we simply struck a match to the whole thing and burned it to the ground," he said. "Then she would never know. Of course, we could stack all our fishing tackle in the corner of the yard so that it would be safe."

"Excellent idea," agreed Cooper. "You could leave her a note explaining what happened." Ron grabbed a piece of paper and pencil and began to write. "How does this sound?" he read.

Dearest Karen,

Had a slight mishap while you were away, but managed to save all the important things. We've gone fishing. Don't bother waiting supper for us.

Ron

To be perfectly truthful, we did not carry through with our plan – at least not the part about burning down the Evans homeplace – so we will never know how Karen might have reacted upon discovering the note tacked to the smoldering ruins. Personally, I think she would have found it amusing. She always did have a good sense of humor.

But just in case she arrived before Ron got things straightened out, let me take this opportunity to explain. Karen, you should have seen the size of some of those brown trout that rose those late afternoons in the lingering dusk . . .

Except in the Great Smokies, it's uncommon to see a bear in most of North Carolina anymore. When this one walked out onto a rock outcropping overlooking the Avery County stream I was fishing, I was initially surprised and thrilled. I was also disgusted with myself for having left my camera in the car.

The last thing that would have occurred to me was that I would eventually be as happy to see the last of this bear as I was to see the first of him.

I watched him quietly, afraid if I moved that I might spook him. I wanted to see what he might do. The bear seemed unconcerned by my presence. He left the rock and walked down alongside the stream, apparently looking for crawfish. After a few minutes, he disappeared downstream so I walked upstream to the next pool to fish.

Moments later, the bear came ambling back upstream; and when he was directly opposite me, he began to look for a place to cross over to my side.

I thought the matter over a moment or two, then decided that perhaps I had fished this particular pool long enough and moved upstream to the next pool. It was not a really big bear, and black bears are not aggressive; but there was a possibility that its mother could be somewhere nearby. Mother bears are not noted for their friendliness.

I had just begun to fish again when I glanced behind me. The bear was standing about 20 feet away watching. My casting began to deteriorate a little with the prospects of hooking a bear on the backcast, so I decided to move again. Brer bear, he followed.

Then it occurred to me that this bear might be accustomed to being fed from cars and that he might have sized me up as the source of a ham sandwich. In fact, I had just eaten one ham sandwich, and still had another.

I don't believe in feeding wild creatures, especially bears. It's not in their best interests, nor did I consider it to be in mine. Besides, I had no car window to roll up. Furthermore, if I fed this bear my ham sandwich, I might run into a credibility gap in trying to explain that it was my last one.

I crossed the stream, climbed the bank, and began to walk back down the trail. I figured it might be a good idea to walk downstream about 10 or 15 minutes and start fishing again. That would put me only about a half mile from the car, and I had planned to quit soon anyway.

I had been walking about 10 minutes when I heard a noise behind me on the trail. My new friend was following me about 30 feet behind. Hollaring didn't faze him. It was pointless to climb a tree because black bears can climb trees. There was no future in trying to outrun him; but since he seemed interested only in panhandling me for a snack, my feet made an arbitrary decision to jog a bit. After all, I'd been able to leave him behind previously.

After I'd jogged a short distance, I glanced behind and noted that the bear was also jogging. For the next half mile, the bear and I matched each other stride for stride.

I never cared much for jogging, so I was understandable happy to spot a couple of friends standing in the creek. No doubt the sight of me sailing off the top of a low waterfall and landing in the middle of the pool they were fishing must have been amusing, but they tactfully kept from laughing.

"There's a b-b-b-bear following me," I announced calmly.

"Really?" they asked. "Where?"

"He's right back there."

"Let's go see him," they said.

Emboldened by company, I showed them where I'd last seen him just above the pool; but Brer bear had mysteriously disappeared.

Later, while driving out along the dirt road, I passed a couple of guys in a VW. "Did you see the bear?" they asked.

"Yeah, we're old friends," I said. "Sort of."

"He was standing in the road when we came by so we fed him a sandwich through the window," they said. "Did you feed him?"

"Almost," I replied.

What Food Stamps Can Do For You

By John Quincy Steele, Jr., Eligibility Specialist,
Department of Social Services, County Outreach Cordinator

The Food Stamp program is a Federal program designed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Food and Nutrition Service. The over-all objective of the Food Stamp Program is to aid low-income families in buying more food than they could afford otherwise. Eligibility is determined by a household's income and resources. The amount of benefit is determined by subtracting the purchase price from the coupon allotment for each household for a given month or certification period. To help us understand what I have stated previously, read and examine this story on an anonymous food stamp family.

Mr. Jones, curious as to whether he may qualify for food stamps, goes to his local county Department of Social Services. The Jones household is composed of four household members - Mr. Jones, his wife, and two children.

Mr. Jones is a common laborer: Mrs. Jones is a housewife and mother. The children's ages are five and seven years.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones have a joint savings account of $500.00 in a nearby commercial bank. Mr. Jones is employed by Doe Manufacturing Co. at the rate of $2.80 per hour, 40 hours per week, claiming all family members for tax purposes.

The household's shelter expenses are as follows:

House Payment	$150.00 per month
Electricity	35.00 per month
Cooking Gas	13.00 per month
Garbage pickup	3.00 per month
Local service charge for one telephone	11.24 per month
Real Estate Taxes on home	5.00 per month
Fire Insurance on structure of house itself	3.00 per month
Total	$220.24 per month

Mr. Jones also has monthly medical committments to meet and they are:

Physician	$15.00 per month
Blue Cross-Blue Shield	50.00 per month
Prescription Drugs for allergic child	20.00 per month
total	$85.00 per month

In addition to these expenses, Mr. Jones has a car payment of $130.00 per month and car insurance which is $30.00 per month. These expenses are not deductible.

At this point I would like to inform readers that shelter expenses are only one-third deductible from client's income. Unlike the shelter expenses, medical expenses are one hundred (100) percent deductible from client's income.

The United States Department of Agriculture has as a net adjusted monthly income limit for a four person household of $553.00. The net adjusted monthly income is determined by taking the gross amount of an individual's income and taking all allowable deductions from the gross income that are deductible according to the Food Stamp Program. These deductions do include mandatory deductions such as federal taxes, FICA, state tax, etc.

When the Eligibility Specialist has completed the necessary computations, if the net adjusted figure is below that given above, ($553.00), then the household is eligible to receive Food Stamps.

The resource limit for households composed of members with ages below 60 is $1500.00. Those households with members 60 and over, have a resource limit of $3,000.00. There must be two or more people in this household before a $3,000.00 limit can be applied.

In the case of Mr. Jones and family, they are eligible on both income and resources. When verifications and computations were complete, Mr. Jones was informed by worker that he was eligible to receive $170.00 in food stamps per month and his purchase price was only $59.00 per month. Mr. Jones' benefit for a given month is determined by subtracting his purchase price of $59.00 from the coupon allotment which is $170.00. $59.00 - $170.00--$111.00. One hundred eleven dollars is the bonus or benefit for that particular month, or a $27.75 benefit weekly.

Food Stamp benefits helped this family financially by mitigating the tremendous pressure of financial stress. It may be an aid to some of you who qualify for program benefits.

For more information regarding the program and its benefits, contact the Davie County Department of Social Services at 634-5894 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:00 noon and from 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. daily.

What Are You Eating?

By Dr. Howard A. Schneider
Director, Institute of Nutrition
University of North Carolina

U.S. Dietary Goals

Goal 5. Reduce sugar consumption by about 40 per cent to account for about 15 per cent of total energy intake.

If you recall an earlier column of mine on the subject of sugar in our diet, you will not be surprised when I say "Amen" to this goal of the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs. Some recent figures on various aspects of sugar consumption illuminate our changing food habits in a way I find very startling.

Back in 1909-1913 for example, just about when some of us oldsters were being born, each American was using around 76 lbs. of sugar a year. About two-thirds of this entered the home in sacks of various sizes containing the familiar white crystals of refined sugar. This went into the sugar bowl, canning and home baking. The housewife saw it when she used it, and if she decided to use less, or more, it was up to her.

But now the picture has changed. We are using more of the white stuff (more than 120 lbs. a person a year), and that's bad news in itself; but more importantly, two-thirds of the sugar sneaks into our diet, not from the family sugar bowls, but in food products and beverages. Only about a quarter of our personal use of sugar is visible in the house in its familiar white granules. So, if we really want to get a handle on sugar, with a view to reducing our use of it, we must look to the major sources; beverages and food products.

Soft drink beverages are now the largest single industry using refined sugar--a total of about one-fifth of all of the refined sugar in the American diet, or about 25 lbs. a person a year. In the last 15 years per capita soft drink consumption has doubled from 13.6 gallons to 27.6 gallons. That's a lot of pop!

Well, my friends, the strategy is pretty clear, isn't it? If you want to reduce your intake of sugar, you have to get a handle on it to start. And the handle that looms the largest is soft drinks. If we cut them out completely we would be half-way to our goal of reduced suagar consumption, but I'm not going to kid myself that will occur. We should make a beginning however. You might start by occasionally choosing fruit juice over a soft drink. It used to be that when the airline stewardess offered a choice of soft drinks, and I asked for orange juice, I would be told, "Sorry, we don't have any." No longer. I get unsweetened orange juice almost every time, now. I doubt if I have affected the national averages, but up there in the sky, a little closer to angel territory, I feel impelled to try to do the right thing for myself. It's no big deal, but it's a start.

'Winston 350' Is Saturday Night At Bowman Gray

Cook, of Rome, N.Y., has won this year's two 200-lap races here.

Radford is the "Winston 350" defending champion. The restaurant operator from Ferrum, Va., won all four of the stadium's major events in 1976.

Track manager Joe Hawkins said that 30 cars have been entered to seek the 26 starting positions in the 350-lap race, which is the stadium's longest and richest of the season. The $11,840 purse has a $2,350 first prize.

The hopefuls include two former track champions, Billy Hensley of Ridgeway, Va., and Ralph Brinkley of Lexington; 1975 "Winston 350" winner John Bryant of Bassett, Va.; and all 12 of the stadium's 1977 Modified winners.

Cook and three-time winner Hensley are the only drivers other than Radford who have won here more than once this season. Single victories have been claimed by Bryant, Brinkley, Philip Smith of Kernersville, Don Smith of Walnut Cove, Satch Worley of Rocky Mount, Va., Melvin Chilton of Eden, Billy Middleton of Germanton, James Call of Winston-Salem and Alfred Hill of Jonesville.

A practice and qualifying session from 3 to 7 p.m. Friday will determine the first 10 starting positions, with the remaining 16 berths to be decided by more qualifying trials from 7 to 8 p.m. Saturday. The "350" will be the main event of a program that also includes events for Limited Sportsman, Street Division and "Blunderbust" cars, with the first race starting at 8:15 p.m.

It will be "R.J. Reynolds Industries Night," with employees of the company and their immediate families admitted at reduced prices on presentation of company ID cards at a special South Gate entrance.

Hill, a six-time champion and 50-race winner in Limited Sportsman cars before he moved up to the Modified ranks this season, became the latest 1977 winner in the second of two 25-lap races last Saturday night. Radford claimed the 24th stadium victory of his career, and his 17th in the past two season, in the opener.

Bill Wilder of Winston-Salem and Max Martin of Elkin were the winners in twin 20-lap Limited Sportsman races, Martin remaining within six points of Rural Hall's Jimmy Johnson in their battle for that division's season title.

Ben Young of Winston-Salem won a 20-lap Street Division event and took the lead in standings, by a slender two-point margin, from Monroe York of Yadkinville.

Billy Duggins of Winston-Salem won a 15-lap "Blunderbust" race, for novice drivers in old model "luxury" cars.

97th Annual Masonic Picnic Will Be Held Next Thursday

A noted physician of the area and a Master Mason for 50 years will be the featured speaker at the 97th Annual Masonic Picnic on Thursday, August 11th, at Clement Grove in Mocksville.

Dr. J. Sam Holbrook of Statesville, a resident physician of that city since 1934, will deliver the annual address about noon that day. A colorful individualist, Dr. Holbrook has many friends and admirers throughout northwest North Carolina. He has been medical director and chairman of the board of Davis Hospital, Statesville, since 1935 and active in the Masonic Lodge since 1927.

The planned program for August 11th is expected to draw a large crowd into the historic grounds at Clement Grove to carry out the tradition of the second Thursday in August set many years ago when the event originated as a means of providing funds for the Oxford Orphanage. Proceeds from this event go to this orphanage.

The R.C. Lee Riding Devices, long a feature of this annual event, will operate each night during the week of the picnic, along with other midway attractions.

Bobby G. Cook, Master of Mocksville Masonic Lodge No. 134 has appointed Robert L. Hendricks to serve as general chairman. Lester P. Martin Jr. and Van Swicegood Jr. will serve as vice chairmen. Mr. Cook, Larry D. Campbell, Master of Advance Lodge No. 710 and Jerry R. Davis, Master of Farmington Lodge No. 265, will serve along with the three chairmen in offering overall supervision for this famed event.

In addition to the address by Dr. Holbrook, there is a special musical program by the Oxford Orphanage Choral Ensemble and the Davie High School Band. The program will be held under the arbor and will get underway about 10:45 a.m. There will be an evening program of music and entertainment.

The famed picnic dinner will be spread under the dinner arbor immediately following the conclusion of the morning program.

Last year an estimated 10,000 persons paid admission into the picnic grounds during the day and evening sessions of the annual event. Officials are making plans to handle an even larger crowd this year.

Open Letter To The People Of Davie

The 97th Annual Masonic Picnic will be held August 11, 1977. This is one of the most memorable occasions of the year. It is a time for renewal of acquaintances, as well as a day of fellowship and fun.

But more important than either of these, this annual event offers a golden opportunity for the citizens of Davie County to help support a very worthwhile cause. All proceeds from the picnic go to the Oxford Orphanage at Oxford, North Carolina. Although this institution is sponsored by the Masons, its facilities are not limited to Masonic families. Children are admitted solely on the basis of need.

If this year's picnic is to be a success, we must have your help. In fact, we would be very pleased to see every citizen of the county help in one way or another.

Throughout the years, many of you have prepared well-filled baskets of food and brought them for the "spread" under the arbor. We are asking you to do it again this year! Please encourage others who may not have participated in previous years to bring a basket of food also.

For those of you who have donated food or cash in the past and for those of you who will be participating for the first time, we wish to say "thank you." We look forward to seeing you at this year's picnic.

Providing special entertainment at this year's annual Masonic Picnic is Wade Leonard of Advance Lodge No. 710. He will be featured under the arbor at 2 p.m. and again at 8 p.m.

Roy Harris, Chairman
C.T. Robertson, Co-Chairman
Basket Committee.

Appalachian Needs 300 Beds For Fall

The back-to-the-dorm movement is at an all-time high as Appalachian State University prepares for another Fall semester with more students than dorm rooms.

The shortage is so acute this fall that ASU has rented 100 beds in four local motels and still has a waiting list of some 300 students wanting to get into the dorms.

The 300 students are having little success finding apartments or rooms in Boone and Watauga County, as landlords report being full as long as three months ago.

"Living on campus is the in thing now, it's quite a privilege," says ASU housing director Bill Sposato. "We just don't have nearly enough rooms to meet the demand, and as a result we've been chewed-out this summer by some of the most influential people in North Carolina."

Housing for ASU's resident enrollment of 8,500 students is a problem every fall. There are only 4,064 beds in the university's 15 residence halls, which means that each year as many ASU students live in the local community as on campus.

ASU guarantees dorm space for its incoming freshman class of 1,800, which leaves only 2,264 beds left for returning upperclassmen. But nearly 400 of those beds are reserved for special groups -- fraternities and sororities, Watauga College students, athletes, and recipients of music talent awards. So that leaves only about 1,900 beds for returning upperclassmen.

Last spring, the ASU housing office for the first time made rooms for the fall available first to students who lived on campus during the '76 - '77 year.

The new system still produced a waiting list of 570 students -- 420 women and 150 men -- wanting rooms in the dorms.

Withdrawals have reduced the list to 257 students -- 119 men and 138 women. But there is another 50 or more students in summer school who were academically ineligible to return to ASU after spring semester but who will make good enough grades to return to ASU this fall.

To further complicate the housing problem, ASU has raised its admissions standards during the past two years, which has resulted in a better student academically and a much smaller percentage of students (about 10 per cent) who drop out for academic or personal reasons from one year to the next.

The back-to-the-dorm movement began about three years ago, Sposato says, when ASU went to differentiated housing -- a wide variety of living options allowing the student to choose the style of living permitted in his or her dorm.

The styles range from total apartment-type living to the traditional dorm life prohibiting consumption of alcoholic beverages and visitation by members of the opposite sex in dorm rooms.

The more liberalized living style, coupled with the energy shortage and last winter's severe winter, has made dormitory living one of the best bargains in today's society.

At Appalachian, a room rents for only $245 for a 16-week semester (most students also have a telephone, which costs $20 more per semester).

Sposato estimated that further withdrawals and enrollment changes will open up rooms for 50 to 75 students on the waiting list.

ASU will house 30 women at Watauga Motel, 40 women at Greene's Motel, 20 men at the Holiday Inn, and 10 men at Mountain Villa Motel. These students will pay the regular $245 dorm fee to ASU, which has contracted for the rooms with the motels.

The University attempted to rent more rooms in motels close to campus, Sposato said, but local motels agreed to make available only 100 beds.

For their $245, the 100 students staying in the motels will not get maid service, and the rooms are not expected to be available spring semester because the motels can rent at higher prices.

The housing shortage should ease during spring semester, says Sposato, for more students will be out student teaching and others will drop out for academic or personal reasons.

But Watauga dorm, which has 134 beds, is not scheduled to be occupied spring semester, and a new residence hall authorized by the 1977 General Assembly will take at least three years to complete.

"We're making every attempt to find housing for these good students who want to come and are eligible to come to Appalachian," says Sposato. "We are optimistic that things will work out, but the housing shortage will be more critical this fall than ever before."

Persons in the local community having apartments or rooms in their homes for rent are invited to call Sposato at 262-2160.

Carowinds Features Diverse Entertainment

The August entertainment schedule at Carowinds promises something for practically everyone with a diverse line-up of entertainment in the Paladium amphitheater.

Singer and song writer Helen Reddy will kick off the August schedule with shows at 3 and 8 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, August 6 and 7.

Ms. Reddy, a Grammy award winner for "I Am Woman," has had twelve top ten singles, four No. 1 hits, nine Gold albums and three Platinum albums since the Gold single, "I Don't Know How To Love Him," skyrocketed her career in 1971.

Other Gold singles by Helen Reddy are "Delta Dawn," "Leave Me Alone (Ruby Red Dress)" and "Angie Baby."

One of the original disco bands, K. C. and the Sunshine Band, will take over the Paladium stage on Saturday, August 13, for shows at 3 and 8 p.m.

The distinctive percussion-oriented sound of K. C. and the Sunshine Band is characterized by the hits "Get Down Tonight" and "That's The Way (I Like It)."

The musical pace on the Paladium stage will slow down a bit on Saturday and Sunday, August 20 and 21, as singer, song writer and actor Kris Kristofferson and his wife, Rita Coolidge, perform at 3 and 8 p.m. each day.

As a modern balladeer, Kristofferson has written such classics as "Me and Bobby McGee," "Help Me Make It Through The Night" and "Loving Her Was Easier (Than Anything I'll Ever Do Again)."

As an actor, Kristofferson has starred in several films including "Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid," "The Sailor Who Fell From Grace With The Sea" and most recently, "A Star Is Born."

Kristofferson's wife, Rita Coolidge, has also made a name for herself on the musical scene. Ms. Collidge's latest hit is "Higher and Higher" and her most recent album is "Anytime.....Anywhere."

The Bay City Rollers, a rock band from Scotland which has gained international popularity since their debut in 1975, will appear at Carowinds for one show only at 8 p.m. on Saturday, August 27. Tickets for this concert will be $3.00 (plus the regular park admission) on a first-come, first-served basis only.

Bay City Roller hits include "Saturday Night," "I Only Want To Be With You," "Yesterday's Hero" and their current hit single, "You Make Me Believe In Magic."

To conclude the August schedule with shows at 3 and 8 p.m. on Sunday, August 28, The Starland Vocal Band will entertain the Paladium audience with such hits as "Afternoon Delight."

Besides recently releasing a new album, "Rear View Mirror," The Starland Vocal Band will begin their own network television mini-series on August 8.

According to park officials, Paladium concerts during August will cost $2 (except the Bay City Rollers concert) plus the regular $7 admission cost into the 73-acre theme park.

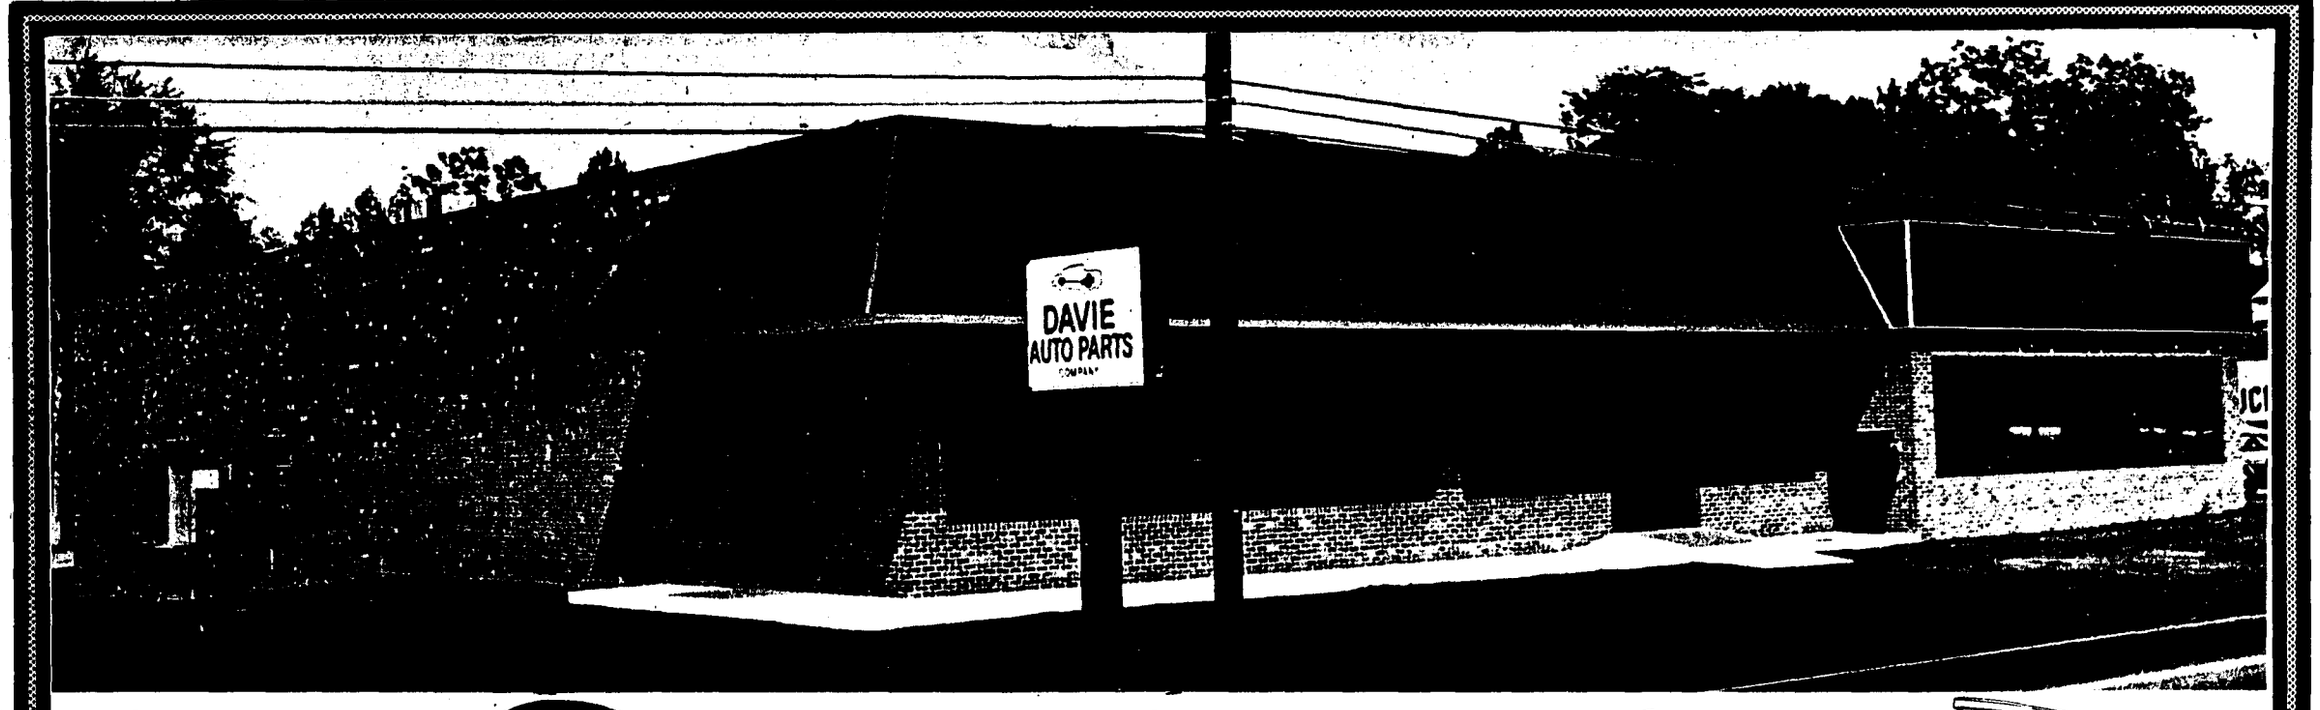

Carowinds is located on the North Carolina-South Carolina border south of Charlotte, N.C., on I-77.

The fastest birds are the duckhawks and the golden eagles which dive at 180 mph (290 kph), World Book Encyclopedia reports.

Steam Locomotives

Large steam locomotives built in the United States in the 1940s were more powerful than the diesel locomotives that replaced them. But several steam engines could not be linked together for added power and operated from one cab, the way diesels can, explains the National Geographic society's new book, "Railroads: The Great American Adventure."

Hopeful Miss Mocksvilles' Are Rehearsing This Week!

By Betsy Pennington

A strong indication that the 1978 Miss Mocksville pageant is going to be a success is that Monday, the first night of practice, everyone looked like they knew what they were doing.

There was not a sign of pandemonium anywhere. There was just a slight hesitation among the girls.

The pageant will be held Saturday, August 6 at 8 p.m. in the B.C. Brock Auditorium.

The seven contestants, about three times that many Jaycees and Jaycettes, a few parents, and reigning Miss Mocksville, Vickie Merrell, watched the girls run through their talent competitions Monday night.

Contestant number one, Kim Hendrix is going to perform a dramatic interpretation of the speech of Saint Joan of Arc. For her talent she will wear a high-neck black shirt with silver tights. She will also be wearing a peach swim suit and an aqua evening gown.

Sharon Dulin, contestant number two, plans to wear a yellow evening gown while singing and playing "Touch Me In The Morning," theme from the movie, Mahogany. Her evening gown is yellow and her swim suit is brown.

Contestant number three, Edna Lyons, will play "Nadia's Theme," on the piano. She plans to wear a light blue gown during that phase of competition, a rose evening gown and a royal blue swim suit.

While performing a dance, Sherry Angell, contestant number four, will wear a red and white-sequined costume. Her swim suit is green and her evening gown is black.

Athena Redmond, contestant number five, is going to give a short dramatic reading and sing, "Almost Like Being in Love," from Brigadoon. Her ensemble includes a green swim suit and a red evening gown.

Contestant number six, Donna Shoaf, has chosen to sing "Summertime," from the Broadway musical, Porgy And Bess. She plans to wear a Colonial Mammy costume while performing; a hot-pink swim suit and a soft-pink evening gown.

Cathy Spargo, contestant number seven, will play "The Theme From the Piano Concerto in A Minor," on the piano. Her ensemble includes a peach talent gown, a Carolina blue evening gown and a green swim suit.

Athena Redmond said that the girls had been meeting with their hostesses since May in preparation of the pageant.

"I pretty well knew what I would be wearing by June," she added.

Kim Hendrix said that she felt like she was going to feel most secure during the evening gown competition.

Sherry Angell laughed, "Actually, yes, I'm very nervous. But she had her fear well-concealed.

Pageant rehearsal will continue through Friday night culminating in the crowning of the new Miss Mocksville Saturday night.

Involved was a 1950 Ford truck operated by Paul James Potts, 43, of Rt. 1 Mocksville and a 1973 Chevrolet station wagon operated by Larry Stephen Davis, 25, of Rt. 1 Advance.

State Highway Patrolman W.D. Grooms said his investigation showed that the Potts vehicle stopped at the stop sign for US 601 on the Ferebee Road. However, Potts failed to see the Davis vehicle and his vehicle was struck in the right rear and he crossed US 601.

Damage to the Potts vehicle was estimated at $25 and $200 to the Station wagon. Potts was charged with an unsafe movement violation.

Buzzing Bee Causes Wreck

A bee buzzing in the cab of a 1974 Chevrolet truck caused the driver to lose control and hit a utility pole Sunday, about 11 a.m. on Salisbury Street.

The driver, John Richard Taylor, 37, of Avon St., Mocksville, told Mocksville Policeman A.D. Adams that he was hitting at a bee when he hit the pole. Damage was estimated at $800. There was no injury and no charges.

"I lost 53 pounds with NaturSlim ...and I feel like a new person!"
-Susan Simpson

"Since beginning the NaturSlim program I've gone from a size 19 to a size 13/14 and lost 53 pounds. My goal is to lose 60 pounds and drop to a size 12" says 16 year old Susan Simpson, student at Narbonne High School and a resident of Lomita, California.

"I weighed 197 pounds and had tried many other diets, such as counting calories, Ayds, the orange a day diet, etc., but none produced the results that NaturSlim has.

"It is really nice to feel a part of living again . . . to be able to crawl out of my shell and stand on my own two feet. I used to wear a jacket everywhere I went because of my weight, but now I am proud and happy not to have to hide like that anymore. For the first time in eight years I'm looking forward to participating in summer activities, such as swimming and going to the beach with my friends.

"I followed the recommended program, mixing NaturSlim with nonfat chocolate milk or unsweetened orange juice for breakfast and lunch, and I ate regular portions of meat, potatoes, vegetable and usually a salad for dinner. NaturSlim really tastes good and fills me up so I don't experience hunger pangs during the day. When I feel the urge for a snack I eat an apple or fresh carrots.

"One of the things that really helped was the support, encouragement and compliments from my friends and family. My social life is improving, too. I'm really looking forward to the Senior Prom. And since I've slimmed down, I've gotten a whole new wardrobe!"

Susan's mother comments that "A lot of people don't even recognize Susan since her weight loss. Her father and I are really proud of Susan and her strong will and determination to stick with the program. Susan is like a new person . . . she is more out-going and happy to be involved in activities with others. We are able to share much more together because she is not so shy and withdrawn. It is Susan's desire to reach out to those other teenage girls and adults who are overweight like she used to be . . . and to convey to them the message that the NaturSlim program really works!"

THEN & NOW!

THEN. Soap was invented, as legend has it, when rain washed a mixture of animal fat and ash down Sapo Hill in ancient Rome and into the Tiber River. Women doing their wash in the river noticed that their clothes were getting cleaner. Why? The fat had combined with the alkali in the ashes to form soap.

NOW. Detergent was invented during World War I when a soap shortage led a German scientist to develop a cleaning agent from chemicals. By the '30s detergents were becoming popular since they worked well in hard water and didn't leave a scum. In the '40s economical store brands, which use the same technology and ingredients as name brands, were introduced. Since then store brand detergents like those made by Witco Chemical's Ultra Division have become more and more popular with cost-conscious consumers. For a free booklet on "Store Brand Detergents" write to Witco, 1212 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036.

What Are You Eating

By Dr. Howard A. Schneider
Director of the Institute of Nutrition
Of The University of North Carolina

U.S. Dietary Goals

Goal 3. Reduce saturated fat consumption to account for about 10 per cent of total energy intake; and balance that with polysaturated and mono-unsaturated fats, which should account for about 10 per cent of energy intake.

Time out!

With all due deference to the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs and its staff, this third of six announced U.S. dietary goals can be stated more simply. Let me try. "When you have reduced your fat intake to about 30 per cent of your energy needs, it would be ideal if one-third came from saturated fat, one-third from mono-unsaturated fats and one-third from polyunsaturated fats."

Well, that's a little better, but unless you had a course in organic chemistry, you may still be uneasy about what is meant by the distinctions made about "saturated," "mono-unsaturated" and "polyunsaturated." Or, more to the point, you may be saying "Why bother with these details? Isn't it enough that I cut back on fat in general?"

Well, yes. Cutting back on the fat content of the average American diet is a very good idea in itself. But there comes a time, as you progress in this reduction of dietary fat, when you can gain greater health benefits if you consider the kind of fat that remains in your diet. (Driving the fat down to zero in a diet is a virtual impossibility outside of the laboratory, and nobody is going to ask you to do that, even if it could be done.)

In considering, then, the kinds of fat in your diet, I draw your attention to a property of fats with which you are undoubtedly familiar, and which directly reflects the molecular differences in the fat which are of nutritional interest in their effect on health. The property I am talking about comes down to the observation whether, at room temperatures, a fat is a solid, like tallow or butter, or whether it is a liquid, like salad oil or cooking oil. And, in brief, if the fat is solid at room temperature, it is to be reduced or avoided. "triglycerides.")

Now, fatty acids are made of carbon And if it is liquid, it is to be preferred compared to the former.

This property of being solid or liquid rests on the chemical structure of the fatty acids in the fat. (In a typical fat, three molecules of fatty acids are combined with a molecule of glycerol. Hence the chemist's more precise term, atoms, all in a line, and along this chain, are combined with hydrogen atoms. When the maximum possible hydrogen atoms are there, the fatty acid is "saturated." When some hydrogen atoms are lacking in a fatty acid, the compound is said to be "unsaturated." (If, per fatty acid, ther turns out to be one pair of hydrogen atoms missing, the fat is "mono-unsaturated;" if more than one pair, it is "polyunsaturated.")

And now we come to the bottom line. Saturated fats are "bad," because they tend to drive up blood levels of cholesterol, and that is associated with a higher risk of heart disease. Polyunsaturated fats, which are usually of vegetable origin, get good marks because when they replace saturated fat in the diet. blood cholesterol goes down.

SEE YOUR GARDEN GROW

Soft contact lenses may not guarantee a green thumb, but they can be a gardener's best friend. With soft contact lenses, there's no discomfort from glasses slipping down your nose in hot weather or worry over specks of flying dirt or peat moss lodging under lenses as there often is with hard contacts. Around the house, soft contacts are a joy, too. No more squinting or bending to see rolls of dust on dark wood living room floors and no steamed-up glasses from boiling water in the kitchen. Glamorous? Yes—but ultra-practical, too. Although they cannot be worn for swimming, they're great for sunning, sightseeing, tennis and golf. For a growing number of Americans, soft contact lenses are the next best thing to no correction at all!

Farmington Couple Wins Trip To Mexico

By Betty Taplin

Most people at one time in their life enter some form of contest and then forget all about it. That's what Odrie Thurlo did!

Mrs. Emmett Thurlo, Odrie, entered a Lever Bros., Miles Laboratory Sweepstake Contest and never gave it another thought. A few months ago she got word that she had won a free trip some place but ignored it as junk mail. Then along came an IRS Form to fill out and then letters asking when in the next twelve months did she want to go to either Miami Beach or Acapulco, Mexico. Being the good wife (and mother, too) that she is she discussed the matter with her husband and decided that she had tickets for two, so she would invite him!!! They settled on Acapulco in July for the seven nights and eight days. Still they were a little leery of the whole thing and went about their daily routines. But Lo! and Behold! one day the plane tickets arrived and all the goodies that were needed for the trip!

They are back now and said;

"It was just fabulous. No red carpet treatment, none of those jammed packed days in hot smelly tour buses, we were treated just like any paying guests only the bill was all paid at the end of the trip with just "Winners" entered on the bill."

Emmett and Odrie left Greensboro early Saturday morning, flew to Atlanta then to Mexico City. They went through customs there and paid a $10.00 "head tax" to get into, then on to Acapulco. There they took a bus to their hotel right on Acapulco Bay. They had a room with a balcony overlooking the lovely bay at the Condesa Del Mar, but also all the privileges of two other hotels right there on the beach.

Their room had a fully stocked bar and cold drinks and ice in a refrigerator that was kept full all the time. You were billed for what you used only. The Thurlos had to buy their own lunch but aside from the bar and any tours and souvenirs there was no expense. The meals were both Mexican and American and the service was just perfect with waiters constantly watching out for your every need. Every meal had huge bowls of fresh fruit of all descriptions. The fish was caught in front of the hotel and served with rice and black beans, not many cooked green vegetables but a lot of salads. The pastry wagon was out of this world!!

"No place for weight watchers or anyone on a diet", said Odrie.

The weather was hot and very humid so they went out early in the morning to walk on the beach. Some mornings it looked like it had rained but it was heavy dew and the flowers must have loved it because they were all over the place and just gorgeous.

One day they took a cab to the flea market, which was about the size of downtown Mocksville, and never did get to see all the things on sale. You dicker over the price of everything starting with the cab driver as there are no meters. Emmett said he had a great time dickering but the people are so warm and friendly it was very enjoyable.

There were many tours and they went on one with "Carlos" who spoke better than average English. He had a car that usually carried six people but only the Thurlos showed up and they had a private tour of the good and bad parts of Acapulco. The streets were in bad shape but were kept very clean and neat. Evidently each family cleaned up in front of their home because papers, etc. were thrown out of cars. There is no speed limit and everyone drives like an idiot which makes it a little hard on the nerves! There are very few accidents though.

Another tour they took was the night club one. They were taken to three different clubs where they saw three shows. One was the flamenco dancing, another was the Mexican Flyers and the third was a performance by beautiful girls from all different parts of Mexico in the native costumes doing their native dances. One group did a dance that closely resembled the North Carolina Cloggers.

Emmett and Odrie said all that good food, rest and fun was their second honeymoon, and the best part there was no bill at the end of the week.

Coming home they missed their plane connection in Mexico City so spent the afternoon and night at the airlines expense enjoying that ancient city. They had to pay another $10.00 "head tax" to get out of Mexico there! They hope maybe some day to go visit Mexico City as it's like another world and time with so much of historical value to see and study.

Maybe they will. The Thurlos have always been kind, thoughtful, generous people and have done much for the Foster Parent Association and are people who deserve to win prizes like this.

Welcome Home and Congratulations!!!

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor,

Please allow me space in your paper for a few words of appreciation to the staff of Davie County Hospital. Recently being a patient there for nine days, I'd like to say that I have the utmost respect and appreciation for the medical staff and other personnel that I come in contact with; especially Doctors Foster, Hartness, and Kimberly, and the nurses that cared for me.

The residents of Davie County should be grateful for the wonderful institution and dedicated staff they are so fortunate to have. You really don't know how much you do appreciate these people and facilities until you personally have need for them.

Being sick is never a cheerful thought or experience, but my hospitalization was made so much more tolerable because of these "sometimes taken for granted" people who are always there at our beck and call. Hats off to all of you, you're super!

Sincerely,
Pat Gregory

Two Vehicles Collide

Two vehicles collided in an accident Saturday about 1:45 p.m. on US 601, 2.2 miles north of Mocksville.

Involved was a 1966 Chevrolet operated by John Loftis Eaton, 76, of Rt. 2 Mocksville and a 1974 Chevrolet operated by Kelly Jean Tippins, 18, of Lowell, N.C.

State Highway Patrolman K.W. Ledbetter said his investigation showed that Eaton was following an unknown vehicle and the Tippins vehicle was following Eaton. Eaton stopped to avoid a collision and the Tippins vehicle was unable to get stopped and struck the Eaton vehicle in the rear.

Damage to the Eaton vehicle was estimated at $150 and $500 to the Tippins vehicle. Tippins was charged with following too close.

To Our Customers:

A big factor in preventing the recent brownout from becoming a blackout was the prompt response of so many of you in cutting off non-essential uses of electricity. This and the dedicated work of our operating people kept service available throughout the Piedmont Carolinas for essential uses.

It's good to know that the people we serve will pitch in with this type of cooperation in an emergency. And that encourages us to work even harder to eliminate these emergencies as far as is humanly possible.

Getting A Car To Fit

It's a funny thing about people and their cars--either they fit them or they don't.

How many times have you seen a guy about three-feet-eleven climb into four acres of Cadillac with enough room left over to offer a ride to the Miami Dolphin offensive line?

Conversely, there is the 310-pound construction worker who must spend 15 minutes controting himself into a shape small enough to squeeze through the door of his Volkswagen Beetle.

Detroit has put a lot of time and planning into offering the motoring public of this nation a selection of car sizes to fit most every shape and need.

Surveying this selection, the public goes out and purchases whatever car is on the opposite fiscol or physical end of the scale from their own position.

This phenomenon seems peculiar to car buyers. People with size-12½ feet, for example, rarely buy a pair of size-5 Italian two-tones just because they like the engine in the rear.

Of course size isn't the only way America mismatches herself with the automobile.

There are all sorts of psychological considerations in discerning why people drive the cars they do.

Take, for example, the 98-pound teenager who gets his drivers license and his 400 cubic inch, four-barreled, hood scooped, air shocked, chrome headered, wide-tired super machine all in the same day.

Now you may kick sand in his face in gym class but if he ever meets you on the higway, expect a kingsize helping of his dust for lunch.

Then there is the welfare Cadillac syndrome.

A diet of pintos and potato peel soup is a small price to pay to keep the payments up on that four-wheeled status equalizer.

Also status minded is the person who drives the 15-year-old bomb with three broken windows and atuomatic smoke screen.

These people often make plenty of money but just happen to like being identified with the ptoato peel soup crowd. Nobody's told them that the hard-core potato people drive new Cadillacs.

Another mismatched group (smaller in number) consists of those in the Geritol set who drive cars capable of speeds exceeding their age multiplied by four.

There is something inconsistant about people who can barely do 30 parking meters an hour on foot getting behind the wheel of a car that is three-fourths engine.

It is doubly disheartening to be passed by a gray haired Richard Petty when my car has a hard time doing the citywide speed limit on a long, downhill stretch with the wind at my back.

What is needed, as any analytical thinker will tell you, is a formula. I humbly submit the following.

When purchasing a car, divide your yearly salary by either three or four (depending on whether you use margarine or butter) to get the price. Subtract $500 for each child wearing braces and each credit card your wife has in her name.

To get the size you need, take your weight and multiply it by ten. Then multiply that figure by the number of inches the bumper on your current car drops when you sit on the trunk and you'll have the weight range.

Finally, multiply the number of years before you are eligible for social security by ten and that equals the appropriate horsepower. If you are already eligible, the horsepower should not exceed your age plus 50.

After you have used the formulas to figure the appropriate car, go out and buy the direct opposite. It's traditional.

Cash Benefits For Vets

Nearly four-fifths ($47.5 billion) of the $60 billion expenditures of World War I veterans and their families have been for cash benefits, according to the Veterans Administration.

Government Employees Account For One-Fifth Nonagricultural Workers

Public employees account for almost one-fifth of all nonagricultural workers in the United States according to a study by The Conference Board. In the 20 year period from 1955 to 1975 the number of government workers in the United States more than doubled.

The largest increase occurred at state and local levels where most civilian services are provided. Of a total of 15 million government employees in 1975, 12.1 million worked for state or local governments according to a report in the August issue of Finance Facts, a newsletter on consumer financial behavior published by finance companies.

The combined payrolls of federal, state and local government workers was more than $13 billion monthly in 1975. Of this, $3.6 billion to federal workers, $2.6 billion to state and $7.0 billion to local government employees.

The number of federal employees increased by less than one-tenth of a percent in the 20 year period.

Federal civilian employees as a group are among the most well-paid workers in the United States. Federal wages and salaries in 1975 averaged $15,238 per person a year, compared to an average of $10,890 for all domestic industries.

Vehicle Is Damaged

A 1951 Chevrolet pickup was damaged in an accident last Thursday about 8:40 a.m. on US 601, 2.5 miles south of Mocksville.

The driver was identified as George Calvin Fowler, 26, of Rt. 7 Mocksville.

Also involved was a 1976 Ford station wagon operated by Joyce Fields Cover, 39, of 7 Cross St., Cooleemee.

Ms. Cover failed to see the Fowler vehicle and entered US 601 north bound. Fowler cut to the right to avoid the station wagon and ran into the ditch off the right shoulder.

Damage to the pickup was estimated at $200. There was no damage to the station wagon. Cover was charged with an unsafe movement violation.

There's a down-home mountain atmosphere at the home of Carl and Lillie Myers and Mrs. Claire Hepler on US 601 South.

The first thing reminiscent of the highlands is a pick-up truck sitting in the back yard loaded to the brim with fragrant yellow apples. A row of beehives and a nice patch of garden also add to the "mountain scenery."

An attention-getter is the wire-screen rack that Mr. Myers made to dry apples.

The family peels, cores and quarters the apples before drying them.

The tradition of sun-drying fruit in the Myers household has been passed on for generations. When the fruit is dried between the screens, it does not have to be frequently turned as it does the conventional way between canvas.

In addition to apples, the Myers dry pumpkins and peaches. Mr. Myers feels that sun-dried fruit is more nutritious than canned. "You get more vitamins," he mentioned.

Mrs. Hepler, who is Mrs. Myers' mother, explained, "Back in the old days people didn't have any jars to put their fruit up in so they dried it. They also didn't have any preservatives."

Mr. Myers can dry about 5-6 bushels of apples at one time. It takes about two days to finish a batch. He sells some fruit but reserves plenty for the family to enjoy in pies, snacks, and applesauce.

About the time that fall will be getting in the air, the scent of those dried apples will be rising from the kitchen when the Myers make fried pies and turnovers.

That warm, fried apple pie on a cold Saturday football afternoon is a special treat to look forward to...

Another goodie at the Myers home is the sourwood and popular honey produced by his 27 hives of bees.

"I've been in the bee business all my life. They never get mad unless you jar them accidently," Mr. Myers said reassuringly as he carefully opened the corner of a hive.

He praised the uses of natural honey saying, "It's great for people, especially diabetics, who can't have sugar. I keep my mother, who lives in Lexington, furnished with honey. She is diabetic."

"I've sold $200.00 worth of honey this season," Mr. Myers said. "A season," he explained, "is half a year." He collected honey about three weeks ago.

In addition to Mr. Myer's outdoor activities, he cans a good part of the vegetables and is still getting tomatoes from 28 vines.

He is also a self-proclaimed good cook, and bragged on his biscuits. "Why, I can cook as good as any woman can," he promised. "I learned from my mother how to cook. It was either do that or work the fields, so of course I took the easier way out!"

He complimented his wife's cooking, too, but "she works all day at Crescent Electric in Statesville, so I'm glad to help out and I enjoy doing it," he said.

He finds time for all his activities since retiring from a company that installs air conditioners in cotton gins.

Mr. Myers has canned apple juice, tomato juice, tomatoes, green beans, beets, white beans, pickles, corn, pickled squash, cherries, peaches, crabapple jelly and pear preserves.

There's a touch of the mountains in Davie with a dash of the old-fashioned, too.

The bees gather around the box containing the queen bee that Mr. Myers specially ordered to insure pretty-colored bees that will produce sweet honey.

"They don't get mad unless you jar them," Mr. Myers said of his 27 hives of bees.

Mr. Myers collected sourwood and poplar honey from his hives three weeks ago -- he gathers the honey twice a year.

Triangle Concrete Places 6th In State

Winona Gregory, catcher, and Kellie Linker, short-stop, playing for Triangle Concrete of Davie County, went all the way to all-state last week in a softball tournament held in Henderson, N.C.

The Triangle team is composed of 13 girls ages 13-15 who were chosen for the all-star team for Davie County.

All week the girls competed against state-wide teams. On the final day, Triangle Concrete placed 6th out of 27 teams.

Locals To Compete In SRA Rodeo

Salisbury will be visited by the Southeast Rodeo Association this weekend when the SRA sponsors eight events at the Rowan County Fairground on August 5, 6 and 7. Performances at the fairgrounds will be at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, August 5 and 6 and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, August 7.

Dale Mesimer of Davie is scheduled to enter the most popular and dangerous of all rodeo events, bull riding. Bull riding is especially dangerous because the bulls used in the event will often attack a downed rider.

Dale's brother, David met the unkind fate that befalls rodeo riders when he was thrown from a bronc and broke his collarbone in a contest at Black Mountain early in July and will not be able to compete in the saddle bronc contest at Salisbury.

Other contestants will include David Plott of Advance, Tommy Poindexter of Huntsville and Frank Short, Jr. of Route 7, Mocksville, all will compete in the bare back riding contest.

Mrs. Ralph Hanes (Diane) will be competing in the barrel race at Salisbury. "In running the barrel race you've got to have a great deal of balance in running the horse 20 and 30 miles per hour, it also takes a lot of feet and hand control to coax and guide the horse through the right and two left turns," according to Mrs. Hanes. Diane seems to think that a time of 14 seconds flat will be needed to win this event.

Ralph Hanes (Diane's husband) will be an announcer at the rodeo and is expected to enter into his favorite event, calf-roping.

Bull riding is considered the most popular of all rodeo events to the spectator since it means more outright danger to the contestant than any other sport in the nation. When a rider is thrown a rodeo clown steps between the rider and the bull so the downed rider may get out of the ring.

This year's rodeo clowns will be John Gilstrap from Simpsonville, South Carolina and Thurston Hamrick from Boiling Springs, North Carolina.

The bulls provided for the Salisbury rodeo are from Treadway Rodeo Company of Asheville, North Carolina the stock contractor for the Salisbury rodeo.

Following the "Grand Entry" at each rodeo performance, the bareback bronc riding will be the first event. Rodeo rules provide that at the beginning of the ride the rider is required to have his heels over the horse's shoulders for the first jump out of the chute. Failure to do so results in a "goose-egg" or no score.

While the rider must stay on the bronc until the eight-second whistle is sounded, bareback bronc riding tests the rider's skill at spurring a bucking horse during the ride.

Tickets will be on sale at the gate.

Vehicles Collide

Donald Killian Funderbark, 56, of Route 1 Advance, operating a 1959 Studebaker and Neil Eugene Lee, 17, of Route 1 Advance, operating a 1966 Ford two axle truck were involved in an accident this past Tuesday at about 4:10 p.m. on Highway 158.

State Highway Patrolman A.C. Stokes said in his investigation that the Funderbark vehicle stopped behind another vehicle that was making a left turn. The Lee vehicle failed to realize that the Funderbark vehicle was stopped until he was too close and he slid into the rear of the Funderbark vehicle.

Damage to the Studebaker was estimated at $550 with $250 to the Ford truck.

There were no visible sign of injuries and Lee was charged with going too fast for conditions.

Man On Treadmill In War Against Rats

In the ongoing war of Human Beings against Rats, the odds seem to favor the Rats.

Rats multiply so rapidly that a pair could have 15,000 descendants in a year, reports Thomas Y. Canby in the July National Geographic. Besides that, the average rat can:

-wriggle through a hole no larger than a quarter;

-scale a brick wall as though it had rungs;

-swim half a mile, and tread water for three days;

-gnaw through lead pipes and cinder blocks with chisel teeth that exert 24,000 pounds of pressure per square inch;

-survive being flushed down a toilet, and enter buildings by the same route;

-plummet five stories and scurry off unharmed.

"When we speak of rats," a professor told Canby, "we're dealing with the most numerous and successful mammals on earth, excepting only man himself. Unfortunately for us, the rat's success is almost invariably at our expense."

This year, in the United States along, rats will bite thousands of humans and destroy about $1 billion worth of property, excluding countless fires they will cause by gnawing electrical insulation. They will destroy about a fifth of the world's food crops.

Rats and their parasites will spread at least 20 kinds of disease, from typhus to trichanosis to the deadly Lassa fever. In Asia, Africa, and the Americas -- including the western United States -- people will die of plague, borne by the rats' parasites.

The war against the four-legged menace is worldwide. Rat control is a matter of human survival in Asia, where rats consume enough rice each year to feed a quarter of a billion people. There is new hope: After thousands of hours of experimenting, American and Philippine scientists have found they can cut crop losses in the Philippine rice fields by 95 percent by strategically placing poison bait stations.

In Hawaii, rats did $11 million worth of damage to the sugarcane crop last year. Biplanes now spread oats mixed with rodenticide on the fields, which is proving more successful at rat control than the introduction of the mongoose nearly a century ago.

Cane-wielding "night killers" roam the alleys of Bombay clubbing rats that feed on piles of garbage. They account for only half of the 4,000 rats killed daily, however, not enough to make a dent in the city's permanent rat population. India recently began a mass rat poisoning program, but acceptance has been slow because of the Hindu reverence for life and the rat in particular.

Scientists in the United States say sanitation is the best weapon against rats. Since 1969 government programs here have produced virtually rat-free environments for about 4 million inner-city residents.

Not every rat is a dirty rat. The street rat's albino brothers give their lives in the laboratory so that human lives can be saved. And the very rodents that prey on rice in the Philippines often end up on the dinner table as deep-fried rat. Rodent researchers are now working on rat sausage.

Carpooling Will Lower Insurance

There's good news for carpoolers in the form of new money-saving insurance rates.

The new rates, based on lower exposure of the insured automobile, went into effect earlier this month and applies to carpoolers who use their car for the work trip not more than two days per week or not more than two weeks per five week period.

Normally insurance rates are based upon work trip distance (greater or lesser 10 miles) and vary by regions in the State. An automobile is classified 1A if it is not used for the work trip, 1B if used for a work trip less than 10 miles, and 1C if used for a work trip 10 miles or more.

The new rates have the following effect: carpoolers classified 1C will be reclassified 1B, and those classified 1B reclassified 1A.

Carpoolers interested in receiving the reduced rates must contact their Insurance Office and complete a "Carpool Certification" form which certifies that the insured meets the auto usage requirements listed above.

In the case where one driver accepts total driving responsibility for the carpool, that driver is not eligible for the rate reduction. However, the individual carpool riders are eligible for 1A classification because they are not using their cars for the work trip. Their savings could be passed along to the driver in the form of higher compensation for the insurance rates that the driver is paying.

Alice Garland, State Carpool Coordinator for the North Carolina Department of Transportation, said, "This new possibility for saving money by carpooling, combined with the other cost-sharing features of carpooling, should persuade still more North Carolinians to 'Pool It'."

Vets Corner

Why was my National Service Life Insurance dividend smaller than that received by a friend who has the same type of policy?

Dividends depend on the policy one holds, the amount of insurance, veteran's age at issue of renewal, and the length of time the policy has been in force.

New Lighting For Football Field

The Davie County Board of Education approved a $35,900 bid Monday night for a company to install a new lighting network for the Davie High School football stadium.

The contract was awarded to Port City Electric Co. of Mooresville, and the work is to be completed by Sept. 1, in time for the school's first home football game.

In other action, the board approved a final budget for the 1977-78 school year of $5,598,525. Two insurance companies, American Fidelity and American Defenders, were also approved to sell insurance to school employees.

The board will meet Sept. 1 with the school planning committee to get its recommendations on how to deal with expected growth of school enrollments. A state committee has already made recommendations, and a local group was appointed by the board to make similar studies.

The committee will make its presentation at 8 p.m. in the Davie County Courthouse. Schools superintendent James Everidge said the meeting would be held in the courthouse to handle an expected large attendance by local residents.

The next regular meeting of the board will be Sept. 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the Board of Education's office.

Dwayne Grant Stars In West Cage Win

Davie County's Dwayne Grant provided the top punch on offense as the West turned back the East by 97-90 in the annual North Carolina high school all-star basketball game last week at the Greensboro Coliseum.

The victory gave the West a sweep of the all-star twin bill. The West girls won the first game, 50-48, on a 15-foot jump shot by Beht Crisp of A.C. Reynolds.

Grant led all scoring for the West with 18 points. The 6-4 forward, who is headed for Virginia Tech on a basketball scholarship, connected on eight of 15 shots from the floor and made two of four at the foul line. He also pulled down eight rebounds. He played 31 minutes.

Sharing scoring honors with Grant were Kenny Dennard of South Stokes and Larry Caldwell of Northwest Cabarrus. Each had 16 points. Dennard, whose brother Tommy played at Catawba, will attend Duke. Caldwell plans to play basketball at Western Carolina.

The West grabbed a 19-14 lead at the end of the first period and held a slim 42-41 advantage at halftime. The West broke open the game by outscoring the East by 33-19 in the third quarter. The East cut the margin by outscoring the West by 30-22 in the final period.

Dennard and Wade were the powerhouses in a third quarter offensive drive that was probably decisive after a tight first half with the West holding a 42-21 margin.

When the pair finished their spurt, the West was leading 75-60 going into the final stanza.

The East rallied briefly as George DeVone of Hobbton came back into the lineup after being in foul trouble and helped narrow the gap to three points at 89-86.

The West, led by the game's outstanding player, Larry Caldwell of Northwest Cabarrus, slowed the pace and Dwayne Grant of Davie County made a slam dunk to ice the seven-point victory.

Hunter Beats "Bad Boy" Hines In Indian Strap Match

The climax of the July 30th wrestling matches at the Mocksville Armory pitted Johnny Hunter against Billy "Bad Boy" Hines in the Indian strap match. Hines earned his nickname early in the bout when, with the aide of brass knuckles, he opened a cut in Hunter's forehead which bled throughout the match. Hunter survived the early going and came back to defeat Hines in a match which was to last less than 12 minutes. In the Indian strap match a winner is declared when one opponent (or both) is unable to continue or when one or both contestants submit. Hines suffered a cut to his left elbow and was unable to continue the match. According to one Eastern wrestling Association official this loss ended Hines streak of 325 Indian strap matches without a loss.

The EWA presented a card which contained seven matches, highlighted by the Indian strap match. Other matches included:

Over-the-top rope "Battle Royal" with Tiny Tom William, a hefty 422 pounder, throwing Sir Rickton Link and Ken Spence (at the same time) over the top rope.

In the brass knuckles title match, Sir Rickton Link successfully defended his title by defeating "Flying" George Watford in 14 minutes with a leg drop and a body press.

The "Great Bolo" claimed a victim in Mike Hoke in a 10 minute match that the Bolo cut short with an elbow smash followed by a pin. Jim "Allen" Hines, brother to Billy, defeated Don Whitlock with an elbow drop to end a 16 minute performance.

Jimmy Woods, who was injured in an earlier match at the Armory, gave a surprise visit Saturday night and went on to defend his Southern Heavyweight title by defeating the "Texas Menace" in a 13 minute match with a "sunset" flip.

In the first match of the evening "Killer" Ken Spence won by disqualification over Gary Austin. Special referee, Robert Wayne Payne disqualified Austin for throwing Spence over the top rope. The match lasted 24 minutes.

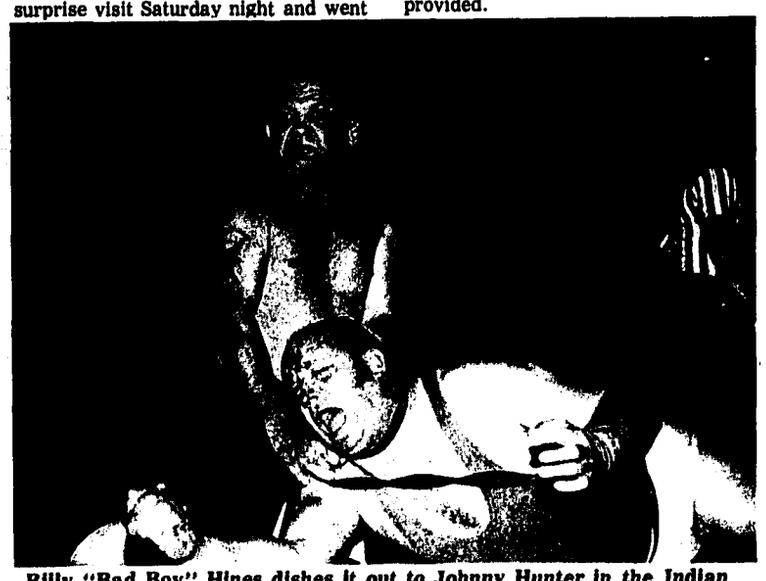

EWA officials plan a return visit to the Armory Saturday, August 20 at 8:15 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the Mocksville Western Auto Store, Harmony Western Auto, Spillman's Exxon in Cooleemee, the two Service Distributor stores in Mocksville, Andy's 76 in Mocksville and the Davie Sport Shop on the square. Advance tickets will offer a 50 cent discount and are on sale at $3.50 in advance and $4.00 at the door and $1.50 for children in advance and $2.00 at the door.

The three main events will be an Eastern U.S. Highweight title match, as champion Johnny Hunter will tackle "Killer" Ken Spence; Tennessee Tag Team title as champions, Roger Dixon and George Payne meet John Keys and Tony Peters. Peters is the former Kentucky State Heavyweight champion.

Another expected tag team match pits Rickton and Bilton, the Link Brothers, battling Jimmy Woods and Gary Austin. "Dashing Doug" is manager of the Link brothers.

Doors will open at 6:00 p.m. on August 20. Plenty of free parking will be provided.

Hickory Hill Youth Program In Final Week Of Activities

The summer youth program at Hickory Hill Country Club is in its last two weeks of planned activities.

Marion Pitts, coordinator, is planning a doubles tennis tournament for 14-16 and 17-18 and a swim meet with Cooleemee for the 10-and-under is a possibility. Posters will be put up at the pool for dates of these events.

The final results in the singles tennis tournament were as follows: girls' singles champion, Teresa McCullough; runner-up, Janis Rauch. Boys' singles champion were Blaine Burton; and Paul Rauch, runner-up.

Hickory Hill lost its swim meet with Sherwood Country Club of Winston-Salem 382-300. Marion Pitts reports, however, a fine effort for Hickory Hill, who will be entering the Greater Forsyth Swim League next year.

Any member of the club who did not swim this year and will be 17-or-under next summer, please see Mr. Pitts at the club before August 12. "Hickory Hill has the potential of having an exciting and competitive representative in the league," Pitts said.

"I would like to thank all members of the club for their help and advice they have given," Pitts noted.

He expecially thanks Roger Ketner, club pro, for his assistance, parents who worked the swim meets, and of course, all the swimmers who participated. Also Jana Ferguson, George Kimberly and Brad Bullock who were very helpful in working with the younger swimmers and leading drills.

Spots in Eggs

Very infrequently, blood spots may appear in eggs. They may be lifted out before cooking and do not alter nutritive value, cooking performance, or taste of the egg.

TB Increases In State

North Carolina has jumped from fourteenth in the nation in 1970 to fifth in 1976 in the rate of tuberculosis cases, according to Dr. Roy Berry, head of the Division of Health Services' TB Control Branch.

From 1974 to 1976 the number of cases of TB increased from 926 to 1,220, Berry said. The state is exceeded in the rate of incidence of TB only by Hawaii, Alaska, Alabama and Maryland.

Berry estimates at least four-fifths of the increase in TB cases is due to the manner of counting cases by the Communicable Disease Control Center of the U.S. Public Health Service.

"Statistics reported by the government include re-activated cases of TB, as well as persons receiving treatment without the disease having been bacteriologically confirmed," Berry explained. "Sometimes extensive diagnosing techniques reveal the patient to have other lung diseases such as cancer or a fungus. Not until two years ago were such patients reported as TB cases."

Berry said the disease sometimes re-activates when a patient returns home from the hospital because there is no one around to make sure he or she takes the TB drugs on an uninterupted basis. He said it usually takes about 24 months to completely cure a case of TB–about three months in the hospital and 21 months of drug therapy at home.

It is in the areas of continuous drug therapy, case finding and prevention that prompted Berry to say that the fight against TB is being short-changed.

"We have good hospital services, but community-level services have not kept pace," the public health official said. "Years ago, before modern drug therapy became available, patients stayed in the hospital up to a year. Now, he's home in three months or less, but bound to a regimen of drugs for a total of 24 months. If he doesn't stick to treatment, the disease re-activates and he again becomes a TB statistic. The long and short of it is that medical advances in treatment dictate that we direct more resources toward providing services at the local level so we can stop TB before it gets started."

Davie 4-H'ers Attend Congress

Three 4-H club members from Davie County along with Howard Scott, Assistant Extension Agent, attended the Annual 4-H Club Congress last week held at the State Fairgrounds in Raleigh.

Approximately 1100 4-H'ers from all 100 counties attended and lived in dormitories at North Carolina State University.

Melody Marshbanks won the top state award for a Poultry Demonstration and won a $100 savings bond given by the North Carolina Granite Corporation. Other 4-H'ers giving a demonstration from Davie County were Patrick Seamon in Forestry and Aaron Miller in Landscaping.

The state wide project of putting a Fountain at the James S. McKimmon Center in Raleigh was dedicated. Each county took a gallon of water to show that it was a state wide effort by the 4-H'ers.

"It was a very educational week for the 4-H'ers across the state. I am also pleased that Melody won in her demonstration area. A lot to time and effort was put into her demonstration," said Scott.

Cold Winter, Hot Summer Days Not Unusual

Overall Weather Picture Not Changing, Says Climatologist

The freezing winter and the blistering summer have everyone wondering what is happening to the climate.

Experts don't have any quick answers yet, but Peter Robinson, assistant professor in the geography department at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, doesn't feel the overall weather picture is changing.

The fact that there have been extremely cold winter days and extremely hot summer days is not unusual in itself, he days. "We've had 100 degree weather before. What makes it so noticeable this year is that we've had several days in a row and we remember it. This doesn't mean the overall weather picture is changing."

Some climatologists claim the earth is getting warmer while others maintain it is getting colder. Robinson says it is too early to predict because changes in climate patterns can only be spotted after years of observation.

"The overall weather picture from 1940 to 1970 was relatively benign," Robinson says, "but since 1970, things have gone haywire and aren't following the expected pattern." In the seven years since 1970, the general weather picture has gotten somewhat colder, but it's too short a time, he explains, to tell if it's the beginning of a new pattern or if it's simply an aberration in the old pattern.

"Actually," he says, "we know what is happening with the weather. The question is whether or not it will continue.

"Most of our rain comes from depressions out of the west that swing down along the Gulf and pick up moisture. We may get rain as this depression moves towards the northeast. But even when we get a depression, we don't know if it'll bring rain. The air flows that normally bring these depressions in from the west aren't blowing the way they should this year, so we haven't had rain.

"The current water crises in many areas," he says, "are not just a climatology problem of too little rainfull, since any water used is returned to the atmosphere. It is a problem of an increased population making increased demands on the water supply."

Robinson says it's foolish to assume the weather is going to return to the comfortable pattern we're used to. "The atmosphere is unpredictable, but it seems to have settled into a pattern of infrequent rainfall in small amounts, and we can't sit back and expect things to be easy.

"We have to get away from the assumption that the climate will always permit a good crop yield. Some areas of the western United States that depend on irrigation are already marginal and may not survive another year of drought.

"In the 1960s we blithely trusted technology to solve any problems, but the experience of the last two or three years demonstrates how much we depend on a favorable climate for our well-being."

Robinson doesn't put the blame for the unusual weather pattern on man's activities. "Man is probably having little impact on the climate," he says, "especially in the Southeast where there are few large cities or industries. And it's entirely unlikely that anything man-made accounts for the atmospheric changes since 1970."

Scientists don't agree yet about the effect man could have on the earth's climate. Pollution sends carbon dioxide and dust into the air that could have two possible effects on the earth, Robinson explains. It could cut out the sunlight and make the earth colder, or it could act as a blanket and keep the earth warmer at night.

"Those who predict a colder earth," he says, "base part of their prediction on a tremendous volcano eruption at the turn of the 19th century that spewed dust in the air equivalent to 100 years of U.S. pollution, and it is believed to have cooled the earth slightly for three years afterward.

"But," Robinson warns, "there is no proof yet what the effect will be."

Robinson and other members of the UNC-CH faculty are working on a model to simulate the effect of more pollution in the air. "It's a project climatologists are working on throughout the world," he says, "but no one has any conclusive evidence yet."

Robinson emphasizes that in talking about the earth's climate changing, climatologists are not talking about sudden noticeable changes. "When we talk about earth getting warmer or colder, wetter or drier, we're talking about an annual average rise of one degree or average rainfall in fractions of inches, and I defy anyone to say they can feel the difference." Only if the annual temperature and rainfall continues on a trend of rising or falling for several years will there be noticeable changes in the earth's weather, he explains.

"To say, 'We don't know' to questions about why it's hot and why it's dry is depressing," Robinson says, but he does have hope for the future.

"We know a tremendous amount more today than we did 10 years ago. I am confident that in a few years we'll be able to make useful predictions of the upcoming seasons. Meteorologists are becoming increasingly aware that it is vital to be able to predict temperatures and rainfall for a season to allow us to plan for the efficient use of our resources. We must get involved and stick our necks out to make these long-range predictions."

70-Year Love Affair Ending As V-8 Heads For The Barn

By William J. O'Neill

The cowboy's sad farewell to his faithful horse, "Goodbye, old Paint," may soon be applied by American motorists to their trusty V-8s.

The familiar engine with its two slanting rows of cylinders can't cure its drinking habit. Higher gasoline prices and the government's emphasis on fuel conservation have brought the gas-guzzling power plant to the end of the trail.

General Motors plans to produce no more V-8s after 1983. In that year, only the Corvette will have an eight-cylinder engine, the corporation recently informed the National Highway Safety Administration in Washington, D.C.

The V-8 has been around for 70 years, the National Geographic Society points out. But the big engine didn't become popular until the 1930s, and demand reached a peak during the last two decades.

The first automobiles of the 1890s were one-cylinder affairs that were eclipsed within a few years by cars with more powerful multi-cylinder engines.

In 1902, Locomobile set the pattern for future autos by producing the first American car to feature a water-cooled, four-cylinder engine placed in front of the driver.

Five years later, Edward R. Hewitt mounted two banks of cylinders at an angle atop a single crankcase and the V-8 was born.

The Hewitt was a good car, but it was so expensive that only a few were produced. It was cheaper to build in-line engines with four or six cylinders in a single row.

Yet horsepower race had just begun. In 1914 Cadillac successfully marketed a car with a V-8 engine. The following year three other manufacturers offered eight-cylinder engines and Packard introduced its 12-cylinder "Twin Six."

Adding cylinders was not the only way to get more power from an engine, however. Higher compression and shorter piston strokes increased the revolutions and the power -- and the stress on long crankshafts.

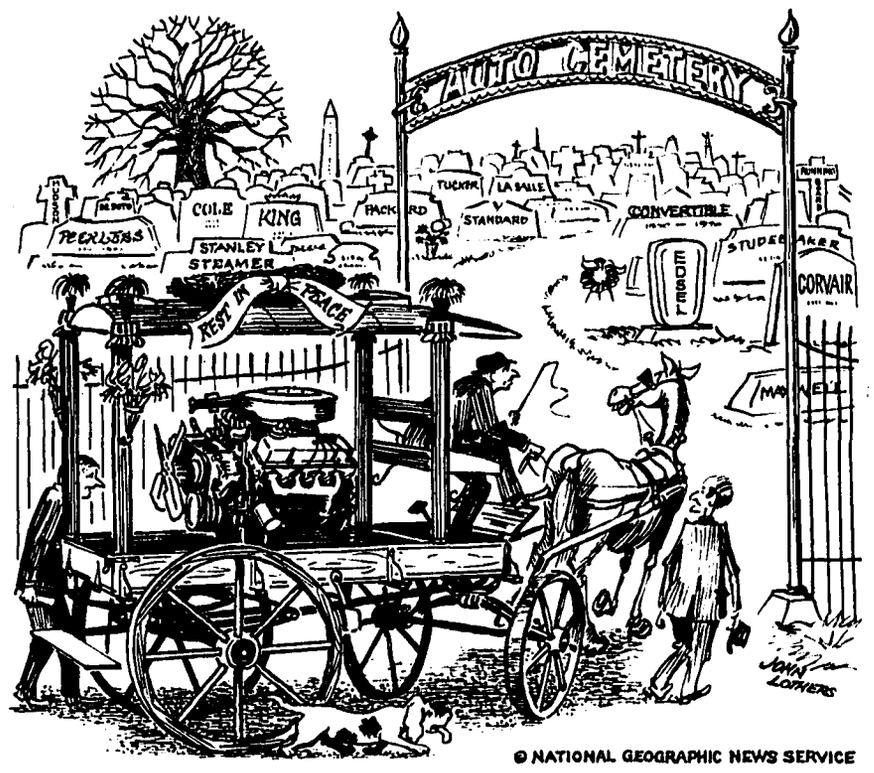

High-speed engines doomed the "straight eights." By 1916 there were 18 automobile companies building cars with V-8 engines, whose shorter crankshafts vibrated less.

They included Cadillacs and Oldsmobiles, as well as such forgotten makes as the Abbott, Briscoe, Cole, King, Peerless, Monarch, Standard, and others. The V-8s powered the luxurious tourers and chauffeured limousines of the rich.

Then in 1932 Ford brought out the first low-priced car with a V-8 engine, a feat made possible by innovations in foundry techniques that permitted casting the entire engine block and crankcase as a single unit.

By 1953, most new American cars boasted V-8 engines and the powerful, gas-gulping, Detroit products, sought after by motorists here and abroad, becmme an international symbol of success.

Now, as soaring costs of petroleum and materials force motorists and manufacturers to turn again to four- and six-cylinder cars, the V-8's last stop may be in automotive museums.

President Is 'Stylistic Genius' Says Carter - Watching Professor

As a political scientist at Emory University in 1970, Dr. James Clotfelter developed a habit of watching Jimmy Carter several years before the Georgian made his successful bid for the presidency.

It's a practice Clotfelter has continued steadfastly since Carter moved into the Oval Office some seven months ago, and the professor has reached one overriding conclusion.

"The man is a stylistic genius, in terms of his approach to an open presidency," said Prof. Clotfelter in a recent interview. "He has always done that extremely well, and he appears to have improved on it even more in the White House.

"The question now is how he plans to use his stylistic skills for substantive goals as president. I'm sure he plans to spend his political capital -- but I'm not sure on what."

Clotfelter is a newly appointed professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. He comes to UNC-G from Texas Tech University, where he was an associate professor and director of the Center for Public Services.

However, he also has strong roots in North Caroolina. He served as editor of the Daily Tar Heel as an undergraduate journalism major at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Then, after receiving his master's degree in political science at the University of Wisconsin, Clotfelter returned to Chapel Hill for his Ph.D. in political science, with a minor in mass communications research.

It was during his four years on the faculty at Emory University that Clotfelter became a bona fide "Carter watcher." It was also then that he made contacts with some of those now in the Carter administration. And now, he is particularly interested in the directions which the Carter administration may take.

Aside from foreign affairs, the big issue facing President Carter is the energy problem, said Clotfelter. It is on this issue that Carter will probably have to spend quite a bit of the political capital he has built up, the professor predicted.

"It strikes me that somewhere along the line, we're going to have to have a major involvement in energy like we had in space," he added. "We're likely to see a good deal of money spent by the govermment on energy and that is going to make big spending on new social programs much more unlikely.

"We're spending tiny amounts of money on the energy problem now by comparison to what we spent on the space program earlier. But as the energy dilemma gets worse and worse -- as it will -- it strikes me that the government is going to have to show it is doing something about it -- which means spending more money."

What about prospects for national health insurance approval by Congress between now and 1980?

"If Carter is serious about balancing the budget, I don't see how he's going to have national health insurance," responded Clotfelter.

On the other hand, he noted that national health insurance is a program "that obviously is coming -- the question is how and when."

One of Clotfelter's areas of specialization in political science is public policy and public administration. In that regard, he has a special interest in Carter's earlier pledge to completely reorganize and streamline the vast federal bureaucracy.

Clotfelter confesses to personal skepticism that such a reorganization is going to produce worthwhile gains. "I don't doubt Carter's sincerity; I just doubt it is going to yield any significant results."

Why?

"Because I think there are very few instances where reorganization of bureaucratic offices has resulted in dramatic improvements in government.

"You may have different names for agencies, new structures and cleaner flow charts -- but as long as you spend basically the same money as before I'm skeptical as to how people in the country who are receiving food stamps or other services will really feel the results of reorganization."

At the same time, Clotfelter said there's nothing really wrong with trying to reorganize the federal bureaucracy. However, he said such an action should not be a substitute for more important decisions and considerations that a president must make.

Looking ahead, Clotfelter said Carter may very likely face a conflict over his desire to balance the federal budget and achieving progress toward his energy policy goals. "If he has to choose between those two, my guess is that he would sacrifice his goal of a balanced budget."

Clotfelter, who worked for a couple of years in journalism before pursuing an academic career, will begin teaching at UNC-G this fall. In addition, he will be working on a textbook on voting behavior and elections to be published by Praeger Publishers. Co-author of the colume will be Dr. Charles Prysby, another UNC-G political scientist.

Clotfelter also has written two other books: "The Military in American Politics," published in 1973, and "Strategies for Change in the South," co-authored by Prof. T.H. Naylor and published in 1975.

Sparta Plans Big Weekend

Come to Alleghany County on August 5, 6 and 7 for a weekend of events planned for everyone's enjoyment.

There will be an outdoor drama entitled "The Darkness and The Light," depicting the history of the early settlers in this area of the Blue Ridge Mountains. It will be presented Friday, Saturday and Sunday, August 5, 6 and 7 at 8:45 p.m. in the Lion's Club Amphitheatre, located behind the Alleghany High School just off U.S. Highway 21 in Sparta.

The Glade Creek Firemen will prepare a meal on Sunday evening, August 7, at the Lion's Pavilion for those wishing to come early and eat. It is hoped that other organizations will offer a meal on Friday and Saturday evenings, also.

On Saturday, August 6, there will be two fairs - the Blue Ridge Mountain Fair held at the Methodist Church and the Courthouse in Sparta on Hwy. 21, and the Creekside Crafts Fair at the Rustic Roof in High Meadows, Roaring Gap, North Carolina, 4 miles south of the Blue Ridge Parkway on U.S. Hwy. 21.

Both fairs will feature arts and crafts such as quilts, woodcrafts, macrame, leathercrafts, toys, ceramics, decoupage, jewelry, paintings and hundreds of other ideas. There will be something for everyone.

In Sparta, craftsmen will demonstrate whittling, pottery making, corn meal grinding, feather lifting (ceramics), macrame, stone polishing and jewelry making on the Courthouse lawn. At the United Methodist Church about 2 blocks north of the Courthouse on Hwy. 21, besides the many arts and crafts, there will be baked goods, homegrown fruits and vegetables and other homemade foods.

Special attractions are being planned for the "young and the yound at heart." A helicopter will land on the school grounds where children may have pictures taken beside it and also get a peek inside! Pony rides are being planned, but the location will be announced later. Helium filled baloons will be on sale at the popcorn stand near the church.

Saturday, the 6th a Sidewalk Art Show presented by Arzetta's Art Shop will feature her students and many local and out-of-town artists exhibiting and selling their work.

Our Third Century Artist, Ruth Belasco, will be at the Courthouse doing charcoal portraits. Ruth is in Sparta through the courtesy of the Alleghany Arts Council.

The Sparta Junior Women's Club will sponsor a food booth on Saturday and Sunday, August 6-7, at the Creekside Crafts Fair. Ham biscuits, baked goods, coffee, iced tea and many other finger licking goodies will be available. Craftsmen interested in participating in this monthly crafts fair are invited to contact Ms. Pat McCall, Sparta, N.C., or call 363-2221 for more information.

The local merchants are having Old Fashioned Days with special sales on Thursday, Friday and Saturday with door prizes being given away bt some stores. Some of the stores will remain open until 8:00 p.m. Friday evening.

Other activities are being planned, but we hope you will come to Alleghany County to find out what they are. It looks like a weekend of fun, and everyone is invited to participate in all the activities. Call Mrs. Pat Cahn, 372-5245, for more information.

In addition to the above, we are also proud of the many other attractions in our area. To name a few: Doughton Park, Cumberland Knob, Brinegar's Cabin, Stone Mountain, camping, hiking, swimming, canoeing, picnicing, biking and many, many more. Come to Alleghany County! We'll be looking for you on August 5, 6 and 7!!!

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE

Q. I've just left my job and gone into business for myself. I was covered by a group insurance policy on my old job. Can I now cash that in?

A. No, you can't. Group life insurance doesn't build up any cash value and it stops when you leave your job. You may be able to take your insurance with you without evidence of insurability. However, for this right you might have to pay a higher premium compared to a comparable new standard policy where a non-medical or medical questionnaire is required. The decision, in any case, would depend on your insurability.

If your dog suffers from bouts of harsh, dry, hacking cough, sometimes accompanied by a running nose and slight temperature, it probably is a victim of a respiratory tract infection commonly known as kennel cough.

Also known as infectious tracheobronchitis, kennel cough is an inflammation of the trachea (windpipe) and the bronchial tubes (branches of the trachea leading into the lungs). The name "kennel cough" is derived from the fact that closely confined animals in kennels, dog shows, and obedience schools are frequently exposed to and become infected with kennel cough.

Infection by canine distemper and canine parainfluenza viruses as well as certain bacteria, are thought to be primary causes of the disease. Kennel cough is highly contagious, and can lead to development of more serious conditions.

The dry harsh cough may last from several days to several weeks. In more serious cases, the affected dog will have obvious respiratory distress and nasal discharge along with the cough. Dogs vaccinated for distemper and parainfluenza usually experience less severe kennel cough infections.

Each time the dog coughs to clear musus from its throat, the membranes of the upper air passages are irritated. The irritation in turn triggers more coughing. In an animal not vaccinated against the major respiratory diseases, kennel cough can easily develop into pneumonia.

There is no rapid cure for kennel cough. Treatment may require antibiotics, cough depressants, and sometimes bronchodilators and tranquilizers which can only be prescribed by a veterinarian. Even with proper treatment, kennel cough may continue for a period of two or three weeks following an incubation period of five to ten days. While your pet is recovering, keep it isolated indoors in a well-ventilated area with only familiar faces around. Strangers or other sources of excitement could trigger a coughing seizure and cause further irritation.

To avoid exposing your dog unnecessarily to infection, check out carefully any kennel where you wish to board your pet. Make sure it's clean and note whether the boarded dogs are clear-eyed, well-groomed and look well-fed. Check for proper ventilation as well as adequate temperature control. Boarding your dog in a kennel that is cold or drafty and damp will only increase its susceptibility to kennel cough.

One final word of advice: Since it is difficult to keep a healthy pet completely out of contact with other animals, make sure your dog is vaccinated against canine distemper and canine parainfluenza, two of the major diseases that result in kennel cough. If you plan on sending your dog to a kennel or dog show, check with your veterinarian about the possibility of vaccination as a preventive against kennel cough.

Those Ole Rockin Chairs Gettin' Push From Overseas

By Robert C. Radcliffe

The way furniture sales charts tell it: "That ole rockin' chair's got me . ." may sound a bit like a national theme song.

New rockers are expected to get 400,000 more Americans this year, with nobody-knows-how-many more still being recycled from attics, cellars, and junk piles, according to a check by the National Geographic Society.

It's all part of the rocking chair renaissance that began when Americans found out that President Kennedy was sitting in one to ease his war-injured back. Since then, as one maker put it: "The rocker has become the greatest single seller in the whole furniture industry — everybody likes them: unmarried and family people, old folks and children."

But the rocking chair, supposedly born in America, today may be made somewhere else. Half of the new rockers are immigrants: Early American rockers from Malaysia, Windsors from Taiwan, Boston rockers from Yugoslavia.

They may be made of more exotic woods than the traditional oak, cherry, and pine of American rockers, but some are faithful copies even down to unintended stencil flaws in painting.

Researchers say actually there are older rocking chairs, but the first one usually is credited to Ben Franklin, who in 1762 took a straight chair and affixed to the legs the "bends" from a cradle. Rocking cradles had been around since the Middle Ages, and soothing rocking chairs were quickly popular with mothers with a lapful of squirming offspring.

In country kitchens beans soon were being shelled from plain wooden rockers, and in front parlors fancy platform rockers were being saved for the parson's visit. They were chairs that could take on the comfort of an old shoe, and some even "walked" -- inching sideways across an entire room during an evening of steady rocking.

Boston rockers were so well liked they became known as "the chair that rocked the nation." They rolled westward in Conestoga wagons, and rode the seas aboard many a captain's poop deck on New England clipper ships.

Time was when no self-respecting porch was without a rocker. Whereas a swing might appear frivolous and a hammock downright lazy, a rocker always seemed industrious. A a resort, a sun porch full of busy rockers could give the fits to a long-tailed housecat.

In the mid-19th century wagon spring rockers bounced briefly into favor, but another never caught on, doubtless because of the built-in bump intended to provide the "healthy exercise jolt" of horseback riding.

Through the years, rockers have been made of creaky wicker, itchy horsehair, polished bamboo, stainless steel, and fashionably bent wood.

There have been love-seat rockers for two, overstuffed rockers, and at least one ventilated rocker "with holes to let in currents of air, and screens to thwart the entry of mice."

A few years ago Cambridge, Maryland, declared itself the Rocking Chair Capital of the world when someone counted a rocker for every one of the town's 15,000 citizens.

There have been rocking competitions: 320 hours of back and forth by Gilbert Nordan in Charlotte, North Carolina, set the record in 1975.

And there have been rockers in politics.

A Democrat retaliated that an ideal Republican rocker would rock neither sideways nor forward -- just backward.

The rocker may have taken over from the log cabin as a man-of-the-people symbol for presidents. Teddy Roosevelt read in one, Lyndon Johnson held impromptu press conferences sitting in one, and Abraham Lincoln was relaxing in one when he was shot at Ford's Theater.

Before he reached the White House, Dwight Eisenhower looked forward to retirement when, as he told a newsman, he would "put a chair on the porch, sit in it for six months, and then begin to rock slowly."

Some say it was a rocker that Calvin Coolidge favored when he sat on the front porch of the White House after supper to relax and watch the tourists walking by.

Now, from Georgia, Jimmy Carter has received six rockers for the Truman balcony overlooking the South Lawn.

President Kennedy's doctor praised "correctly fitting" rockers because they keep the muscles continually and gently contracting and relaxing, helping the circulation. Rockers also have been called ideal tranquilizers that are "cheap, non-toxic, and with no side effects."

But even the best have their limitations for, as the old tune goes, "You can't get to Heaven in a rockin' chair - 'Cause you'll rock right by when you get there."

Folk-Ways and Folk-Speech

By ROGERS WHITENER

My Watauga Democrat felt thicker than usual this week. And with good reason: it contained a bonus supplement entitled Reminiscence of a Country Boy and Small Town Lawyer.

Friends of the author, 70 year old Boone lawyer Wade Brown, will be delighted with this personal, family, and community history by a man who has practiced law in the state for over 45 years.

Others will appreciate it as a look beyond mere historical facts into a way of life largely forgotten by many who knew it, never known by those of recent generations.

Item: Ice Harvesting. "An interesting phase of my early life was the harvesting of ice in the winter . . . When the weather was cold enough to freeze the ice on the lake, a depth of four inches or more, all the manpower available would go to harvest ice on the "Strongfellow' lake, take one or more teams of horses and wagons, remove one handle from the cross-cut saw and by sawing long strips of ice and breaking them into blocks of roughly 2 feet square. The thicker the ice, the smaller the size of the blocks because of the weight. These would then be slipped up a ramp and loaded into the wagons. When they were loaded, they were brought home to be stored in the 'ice house'." (Identified by Mr. Brown as a small building filled with sawdust for insulation and for preserving the ice for summer use.)

Item: Storage of potatoes and cabbage for winter market. "When the potatoes were dug in the fall, large round holes would be prepared in the field, the potatoes dumped in then covered with straw and then dirt. In the winter when the normal supply would be gone, we would go out, take the dirt away, and there under the straw would be the potatoes moist and fresh as when they were dug.

"Cabbage was a bit different. Dad would plow a long furrow through the cabbage field, then we would pull up the entire cabbage plant, roots and all, and place the heads down with the roots sticking out the side of the furrow. He would then go back with the plow and turn the dirt over to cover the heads of cabbage. Later in the winter or even the next spring we could go back, rake the dirt off with a hoe, get hold of the stalk and pull the cabbage out. Some of the outer leaves would be rotted and slick and slimy, but the center of the head would be the nicest fresh, bleached cabbage one could desire."

Item: 30's wages and attitudes toward work. "I drew the plans (for an office building in 1938) and employed Mr. Cloyd Greene who lived near my father's home to supervise the building . . . Mr. Greene was paid the standard rate of a foreman, 35 cents per hour . . . the common labor rate was 15 cents per hour. They put in a regular 10 hours per day and if they had a job in the process of finishing they would work on until they found a logical stopping place.

"One day I was back of the building watching the work. Mr. Greene made his way down from the building and came up to me and said, 'Wade, you were watching me work, weren't you?' I told him I was just watching the work generally, not him in particular. He said, 'I admit I'm a little too drunk to count time on you, but I will stay around and see that the boys do it right.'"

Item: Dr. B.B. Dougherty (President of Appalachian State) and his Model T. "When cars were just beginning to catch on in these parts, Dr. Dougherty had a little Model T. Ford roadster. He was proud of it, but his mind was occupied with education rather than mechanics. One day he appeared at our door (near Blowing Rock) said he ran out of gas and wanted to borrow some. Dad happened to have some in a can used for his gasoline wood saw. As my brothers were getting the gas someone asked him what happened. He said he didn't understand it. He thought he had plenty of gas as he had put a quart in before leaving Boone!"

Readers are invited to send folk materials to Folk-Ways and Fok-Speech, Appalachian State University, Box 376, Boone, N.C. 28608.

Yogurt And Calories

Despite its popularity with dieters, yogurt is not always a low-calorie food.

Varieties which are sweetened and flavored may have twice as many calories as the plain, partially skim milk varieties, say agricultural extension specialists at North Carolina State University.

Plain yogurt made from partially skimmed milk has 113 calories per eight ounce container while plain yogurt made from whole milk has 140.

Sweetened fruit yogurts have about 250 calories per eight ounces which is only slightly less than a cup of ice cream at 290 calories.

Defensive Driving Courses Are Offered

Why is night driving dangerous? What can you do to get a revoked license restored? These and many other questions are answered in the Defensive Driving Course taught by the Traffic Safety Education Section of the Division of Motor Vehicles. Volunteer enrollment is easy, just call Thurman Whitaker, Assistant Director of Traffic Safety Education at (919) 733-3046 and obtain information as to which of the 44 highway patrol stations throughout the state is having classes and when.

Then you just walk in.

The course consists of eight hours of classroom work with emphasis on two themes: (1) Defensive Driving - driving to prevent accidents in spite of incorrect actions by others or adverse conditions; and (2) Preventable Accidents - where the driver fails to do the right things to avoid the accident.

Every type of accident is discussed from the standpoint of what the driver can do to prevent it; like recognizing the hazard, understanding the proper defensive action, and acting in time to prevent the accident.

A large part of the course is devoted to preventing the two-car collision. In addition, the single vehicle, "mystery crash" and accidents that involve pedestrians, bicyclists, animals and trains receive considerable attention.

Field representatives are available also for safety presentations to civic organizations, schools, church groups or any other interested parties.

For more information about the defensive driving course or how to arrange a safety presentation for your group, write to Thurman Whitaker, Traffic Safety Education Section, 1100 New Bern Avenue, Raleigh, N.C. 27611 or call (919) 733-3046.

FACTS & FIGURES

From 1912 to 1960 the U.S. House of Representatives had 435 members. With the admission to statehood of Alaska and Hawaii two more representatives were added, but today because of reapportionment there are 435 once again.

The federal government regulates the price of interstate natural gas, preventing suppliers from selling it in other states unless they are willing to sell for a price set by the government. From 1964 to 1969, one-third of the gas reserve additions in the lower 48 states were discovered in the non-price controlled intrastate market. By 1970, 69 percent of the new gas supply was dedicated to this market.

Heatstroke can be fatal

Heatstroke, known also as sunstroke, can cause death. People over 60 are particularly vulnerable to it, because heat tolerance decreases with age.

Put yourself on the alert to hot weather, high perspiration do's and dont's: 1) Drink lots of extra liquids; 2) Don't take extra salt tablets without your Doctor's knowledge; 3) Add generous amounts of fresh fruits for potassium and energy needs; 4) Work gradually into heavy exercises or workouts; 5) Avoid continuous potassium-depleting perspiration; 6) Do not eat sugary snacks for "quick energy" before competition, or you may risk causing a rapid rise in blood sugar.

"THERE IS A TIME FOR EVERYTHING . . ." Ecclesiastes 3:1, The Living Bible, Tyndale House

GOD'S FIVE MINUTES

A recent survey of 23,000 high school students revealed the following subjects about which they were concerned: use of marijuana, legalized abortion, volunteer army, pre-marital sex relations, etc. Of 12 subjects named, all but three were in the realm of moral behavior. The permissivness of their parents seems to have spawned a generation which is concerned about the inner man.

But remember, our youth have produced both the Jesus freaks and the Manson freaks, simultaneously. Man has always been thus. He has climbed the highest mountains, crossed the broadest oceans and spanned the widest continents. There is no good he has not attempted, no glorious crown he has not sought, but there is no evil to which he has not stooped, no crime he has not committed. He seems to be two persons in one–the wicked and the good–a god and a devil wearing the same skin.

Through all the ages man has known this and has sought constantly and unceasingly to cage the wildness in himself and encourage the nobility that is there. Such a split personality cannot but tear itself apart eventually. No wonder Jesus said, "You cannot serve both God and mammon. You will either hate the one and love the other or cling to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve two masters."

Now, that's not true because it is in the Bible. It is in the Bible because it is true. The highway of history is strewn on both sides with the remains of men and nations who refused to believe it. The answer is equally clear and well-proven. Those who have placed their lives in the "hand of the man who stilled the waters" have found inner peace and oneness in His goodness.

Senator Robert Morgan Reports From Washington

The Senate has been debating the Senate Campaign Financing Act, which its supporters hope will limit the contributions the wealthy people may give to those running for the Senate. What the bill proposes is public financing, out of the tax check-off fund, of Senate races.

Something should be done along these lines, but this particular bill is disappointing. There are just too many loopholes in it.

Public financing has been tried in the Presidential elections, with partial success. Gone was the previous financing system, under which individuals gave hundreds of thousands of dollars, leading to the charge that contributors to Richard Nixon's campaign were buying ambassadorships.

But what public financing of presidential elections did was to expand the influence of the political action committees of special interest groups of all political persuasions. The size and number of these contributions increased, as did contributions to the national party committees. This is a very serious development.

The bill to finance Senate campaigns shares the same defect, and it has some others to boot.

It would be very wrong to get the idea that this bill would limit the amount an individual or a group could give to a candidate. Those limits are already set by law at $1,000 and $5,000 respectively. All that the bill would do is match, out of check-off funds, a $100 contribution or the first $100 of a $1,000 contribution. The idea is that this will somehow encourage small contributions. It is difficult to see how.

The bill does one positive thing, but even this can have bad side effects. It sets a limit on what a Senatorial nominee may spend in the general election.

But if the experience of the Presidential elections repeats, the fund raising and spending by the parties and by the special interest groups will increase to offset any gains here, and one of the results will be that a great deal of campaigning can be going on outside the candidate's control. The bill in effect limits the candidate's ability to direct the campaign, and places more power in other hands. This is dangerous, and actually increases the leverage of special interests. They may well be spending a bundle "on their own," either on behalf of a candidate, or against him.

I am exploring the possibility of an amendment to limit contributions to committees of the political parties. This would remove one, but not all of the bill's weaknesses.

And there are two other problems. First, the bill as it stands at this writing will not cover primaries. Heavy campaigning, and a great deal of fund raising goes on at this stage. Second, the bill would create an army of bureaucrats to supervise the contributions process. I strongly favor reforming campaign financing, but it is very, very hard to vote for something which will cost millions every two years, unless there is going to be a significant contribution to good government as a result.

I am afraid there would be no such benefit.

Accent on Agriculture

BY JOHN SLEDGE
N.C. Farm Bureau Federation

In most any business or profession, as will as in regular day-to-day life, there is often a fine line between what is right and what is wrong. The difference caused by one misplaced decimal point can mean financial disaster for a company. The wrong dosage of medicine for a patient can have serious consequences. The interpretation of one word, or the misplacement of a comma, can change the entire meaning of a sentence.

For agriculture, a growing problem has been--in many people's image of farming industry--the omission of a single letter. Compare the sentence, "Farming is big business," with the sentence, "Farming is a big business." The omission of the important letter "a" changes a true statement into one that is false. That one little letter can change the attitudes of people toward farmers and agriculture as a whole.

Farming is a big business; it has to be in order to feed and clothe the world's growing billions of people. But farming is not Big Business.

The great majority of the nation's farms are family farms. These are families that are almost perpetually in debt for the land, equipment, and supplies they need to produce the nation's food, and to make a living. It is a small business in the greatest tradition of American free enterprise. Farmers are engaged in agriculture to make a living as free, independent businessmen.

But farmers are also well aware of the economic facts of life. As agriculture, treated as Big Business, is brought under increasing restrictions and controls, the result can only be fewer farms and the possibility of less food production. Farmers hope that the public will begin to think of agriculutre as it really is--a vital segment of the small, independent businesses that make up a large part of our nation's economy.

...about your Social Security

...by Hal Griffin

Over 4.6 million disabled workers and their families are getting monthly payments as the social security disability program begins its 21st year.

Only disabled workers between 50 and 65 were eligible when the first social security disability benefits were paid in July 1957. Today, workers of any age under 65 as well as dependent members or their families can have the protection of social security disability insurance. And disabled people can get Medicare if they've been entitled to social security disability payments for 24 consecutive months or more.

People who have worked long and recently enough under social security can get benefits if they have a disability expected to keep them from doing any substantial work for a year or more. Payment begins for the 6th full month of disability.

Generally, a worker 31 or over who becomes disabled in 1977 must have worked 6½ years in jobs covered by social security. Except for blind people, 5 years of the work must have been during the 10-year period before the disability began. Young workers, however, may be eligible for disability payments with as little as 1½ years of work, depending on their age and when they become disabled.

People 24 to 31 need work credits for half the period between the time they became 21 and the time they became disabled. Before age 24, a worker needs credit for only 1½ years of work in the 3-year period before disability began.

Physicians and other disability experts in Disability Determination Section of Division of Social Services decide whether a worker applying for benefits is disabled under the social security law.

In most cases, Disability Determination Section of Division of Social Services can decide on the basis of medical evidence from the applicant's physician. If more evidence is needed, additional medical tests may be required at the Government's expense.

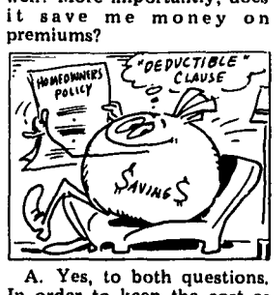

In selected cases, social security helps pay for State vocational rehabilitation services, which can include medical help, job training, counseling, and guidance.

Social security disability benefits are paid to almost 2.7 million disabled workers and over 1.9 million dependents. The average payment to a disabled worker with a wife or husband and one or more children is $517 a month, starting with checks delivered in July.

I plan to retire in November and apply for social security benefits. The trouble is I don't have a birth certificate to prove my age. All the official records in the town where I was born were destroyed in a fire. What should I do to apply for benefits?

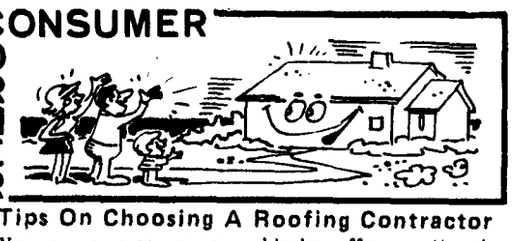

Just contact any social security office and explain your problem. Some there will be happy to help you get other documents to prove your age...documents such as life insurance policies, religious records, or school records can be used. Act now, though, because it will take awhile to collect these documents and process your application.

Q. I know there's a $50 and $100 deductible clause on my auto insurance; is there one on my homeowners policy as well? More importantly, does it save me money on premiums?

A. Yes, to both questions. In order to keep the cost as low as possible for insurance that pays for the larger losses, insurance companies today include a "deductible" clause in homeowners policies. Although a $50 deductible is available in some states, the trend is toward the basic $100 deductible on all forms of the homeowners policy. Larger amounts of deductibles are available in certain policies at a substantial additional premium savings.

Tips On Choosing A Roofing Contractor

You can save money on home maintenance jobs by knowing what to look for and where to go for advice and help. This is especially true of roofs, where the right contractor using the right tools can make a significant difference.

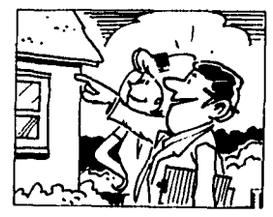

Here are six tips on how to assess your home's roofing needs and accomplish them with savings and convenience:

1. Don't take a door-to-door salesman's word that you need a new roof. Check it yourself. If shingles are missing or the roof is leaking, or shingles are badly worn, chances are you should put on a new roof.

2. If you think you might need a new roof, contact your local contractors' association or the Better Business Bureau. They'll give you the name of a reputable roofer.

3. Ask your contractor how he's going to install the roof. He can save you money by using heavy-duty staples and pneumatic (air-powered) stapling tools such as those manufactured by the Paslode® Company. These hand-held tools help a contractor cut installation time in half, while also offering a high quality finished roof.

4. Ask your contractor what roofing material he recommends for your house. The most economical choice is asphalt composition roofing shingles, which provide protection for your house for up to 20 years. Fiberglass-impregnated asphalt shingles are somewhat more expensive, but are more durable. Cedar wood shingles offer an attractive alternative to asphalt shingles, but are also more expensive. Cedar roofs provide a natural insulation against moisture.

5. Keep in mind that it is all right to install a new roof over your existing roof. Power-driven staples are available in varying lengths—enough to penetrate roof decking through one or two existing layers of roofing material, in addition to the new layer of shingles. If your house already has three layers of roofing material (the original roof and two succeeding re-roofs), it's time to peel off one or two layers of shingles before re-roofing for the third time.

6. Speaking of re-roofing, you should remember that cedar wood shingles may be installed over an existing surface of asphalt shingles. But cedar shingles aren't the answer for every house. They aren't suited to many architectural styles. Don't let a contractor sell you a cedar roof if you think asphalt shingles would be more appropriate for your house.

Follow these helpful hints and you'll be on your way to preventing roofing costs from becoming sky high.

Farmington News

The Farmington Home Makers Club met last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Grady Smith with nine members and two visitors present. Visitors were Mrs. Vada Johnson Nicholson of Knoxville, Tenn., and Miss Margaret Brock. The meeting was opened with the Club singing two songs -- one a hymn and the other a folk song. Devotionals were presented by Mrs. Clyde Teague. She used as her main thought the theme "Blessings are Love in Disguise." She suggested we learn to recognized and count our many blessings of love. Roll call was answered with the naming of our favorite day. Many different answers were called. Members were asked to save canceled stamps from mail and turn in to Mrs. Barbara Horton, the president to be turned in to the county office. Mrs. Ostene West presented the program on "Home Safety" in the use of electricity and electrical equipment. She called attention to many things to do for better use of electric energy. After the close of the meeting Mrs. Smith assisted by Mrs. Edna Cash served a delightful salad plate and orange punch to the guests.

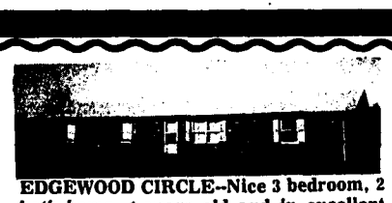

Recent guests of Mrs. Queen Bess Kenner were Rev. and Mrs. Bill Shore of Bethlehem, Pa., who were enroute to the World Council of World Churches being held in SSwitzerland.

Saturday guests of Mrs. Herbert Nicholson were Mrs. Mary Ann Winkler of Hickory, and Mrs. Robert White and son Hugh of Fort Mills, S.C.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Steelman Spillman were Mrs. Ora Hendrix and Miss Bonnie Beauchamp of Clemmons, Miss Renee Hendrix of Winston Salem, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Glascock of Lewisville, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ellis and son Howard of Advance.

...about your

Social Security

...by Hal Griffin

Recently I came down with kidney failure. I've been in the civil service most of my life and have no social security earnings record, but my wife has. Can I get Medicare to help pay the cost of my treatment?

You may be eligible for Medicare on your wife's earnings record, if she has worked long enough under social security. There is a provision in the law that permits Medicare for people under 65 who need kidney dialysis or a transplant for permanent kidney failure. For more information contact any social security office.

My son and I have been getting social security payments since I became disabled 7 years ago. Now he's 17 and wants to work part time while he attends vocational school. How will this affect his benefits?

Your son can earn as much as $3,000 in 1977 and still get all his social security benefits. And even if he earns more than $3,000 for the year he'd still get ful benefits for any month that he earns $250 or less.

In September I'll be 62 and I planned to apply for social security retirement benefits. I know I get reduced payments at 62, but don't my benefits increased once I reach 65?

If you apply for social security retirement benefits at 62, your payments will be reduced for as long as you get them. The payments are reduced because you'll be getting them over a longer period of time.

I'm 66 years old and have almost no income, so for the past year I've been getting SSI checks. Next month I plan to move in with my daughter and her family. Do I have to tell social security about this?

Yes. You must report any changes in your living arrangements or income to social security even though it may affect the amount of your monthly SSI check. Just call or write your social security office and tell them about the change.

I'm a 28-year-old family man. I work hard every week to support my wife and two kids. Every time I get a raise it seems social security takes a bigger bite out of my check. What am I getting out of social security anyway?

If you worked long enough under social security, you and your family are protected by disability and survivors insurance, right now while you're young. For example, if you became disabled and couldn't work for a year or more, you and your dependents could get monthly checks. And after 2 years, if your disability continued, you'd get Medicare protection automatically. You have survivors insurance, too. If you died, your family would get monthly survivors payments until the children reached age 18. The children could get payments up to age 22 if they stayed in school full time and remained unmarried. Of course, if you work long enough under social security, you also expect retirement benefits and, at 65, Medicare. So, what you are getting out of social security is comprehensive protection for you and your family. To find out more about your benefits, I suggest you contact any social security office and ask for your free copy of the booklet, 'Social Security Information for Young Families.'

My son, who's 16, and I get monthly social security survivors checks on my late husband's earnings record. If my son earns more than $3,000 from his part-time job this year, I know his monthly checks will be reduced...but will the amount of my payments also be affected by his earnings?

Your social security payments will not be affected by your son's earnings. Also, you should keep in mind that even if your son earns more than $3,000 for 1977, he'll still get his full payment for any month in which he earns $250 or less.

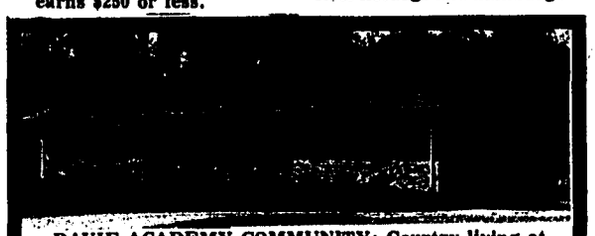

"Home"Foods Highlight Sunbonnet Festival '77

How long has it been since you've tasted authentic Brunswick Stew, or wrapped your tongue around a real country ham biscuit? Have you ever longed for homecooked Pinto Beans with a side order of corn bread? Does the mere thought of good home-made ice cream make your taste buds perk up? Do you prefer cupcakes, and cake from a volunteer's kitchen? If these "Home" gourmet treats do not satisfy, then you can sample traditional hot dogs, hamburgers, or cotton candy, candied apples, pop corn and other foods which are associated with outdoor fun and entertainment at Sunbonnet Festival '77 which is to be held at East Bend School and grounds next Saturday and Sunday (August 6 & 7).

The Yadkin Arts Council, who sponsors the two days of arts, crafts and entertainment is proud of the local civic organizations who contribute their time and talents to bring these dietary delectibles to the Festival. The East Bend Fireman's Auxiliary will make ice cream, the East Bend Home Extension Clubs are furnishing brunswick stew, the East Bend Recreation Department will offer hotdogs and hamburgers and the Pee-Wee Cheerleaders of Yadkinville will have cup cakes. The First Presbyterian Church of Booneville will serve country ham biscuits along with pinto beans and cornbread. Jim Smith will furnish cotton candy, candied apples and other festival foods, and the Arts Council Board will serve slices of homemade cakes, and drinks.

The various organizations who serve the food will use their booths as a method of fund raising for their organizations. So plan to bring your appetite along when you visit Sunbonnet Festival '77.

For Festival information contact The Yadkin Arts Council, Route 3, Box 142, Yadkinville, N.C. 27055 or telephone (919) 679-2941.

Snow Skiing Warms Tar Heel Economy

How about some "hot" news from winter to think about as North Carolina swelters under anything but a cool summer?

The newly formed North Carolina Ski Area Association released figures today showing the eight operating ski areas pumped $18.6 million into the economy during the 1976-77 winter season. It was a record year as the areas reported $5.7 million in direct revenue to the resorts.

It was also reported that the turn factor of the tourist dollar figured in that the overall impact was $93 million for the economy in North Carolina.

"This is the first attempt to quantify the economic impact of skiing in North Carolina," said Rick Coker of Cataloochee Ski Area, president of the association.

"The individual ski areas are to be complimented for permitting access to their statistics which made this possible", he said.

"We are delighted to have this study which shows the economic strength of the ski industry", pointed out Bill Arnold, director of the state's Travel and Tourism Division.

"We are equally pleased the ski areas have formed this association which will provide access to the industry through a central point."

According to the report, the eight operating ski areas — Appalachian Ski Area, Cataloochee, Mill Ridge, Beech Mountain, Sugar Mountain, High Meadows, Seven Devils and Wolf Laurel — had 338,000 skiers during the past season. Hound Ears will offer skiing again this year, making a total of nine areas in operation.

The report noted the difficulty in determining the exact amount of money a skier spends on an average day because of where the dollars are spent. Some equipment and clothing is purchased near home, perhaps out of state. Other equipment is purchased at the ski area.

There is a way, however, to reasonably estimate how much a skier spends each day, according to the association. A committee of consultants in the North Carolina ski industry determined that the overall skier expenditure is $55 per day.

"If the multiplier of $55 per day per skier is used", noted Coker, "the actual tourist dollars to North Carolina from the 1976-77 season was $18.6 million."

"A further economic impact can be appreciated by considering how many times each travel or tourist dollar turns before it leaves the state. Depending on the particular state, this could be from three to seven times. If a turn factor of five is used, then it can be said that skiing was responsible for generating over $93 million in economic activity for North Carolina", he added.

Two ski areas, Beech Mountain and Sugar Mountain, skied over 100,000 skiers each last season.

Skiing in North Carolina is big business. It became even bigger last year because of three reasons, according to Coker.

One, winter conditions were perfect in the south while the Rockies and the west had little or no snow. Many southern skiers were forced to ski the south, and many skiers from the west discovered the south.

Two, North Carolina ski areas are at the forefront in snow making capability. Unlike most New England and western areas that experienced poor snowfall during last season, every North Carolina ski area has the capability to make its own snow thus providing assurance of good skiable snow even when natural snow is non-existant.

Three, southern skiing has come of age. Population resettlement from northern areas to the sun belt of the south has brought additional interest in skiing. Many North Carolina ski areas have changed from a heavy emphasis on land sales to promoting skiing as a viable industry in itself. Some southern states have even added skiing to their formal athletic programs. There are over 45 ski clubs in the south, some of which boast the largest membership in the nation.

It also must be noted the 338,000 skier figure does not include expenditures of the watchers, the people who come to the areas, but do not ski.

The association said many areas are planning improvements this year. Special emphasis will be on weekday and night skiing to take greater advantage of existing facilities.

During the past season, 750 employees were working in the Tar Heel ski industry with a $1.4 million payroll.

What does the future hold for the ski industry?

With weather predictions for winter being extremely favorable, a growth rate of 15-35 percent is seen for the industry and this would result in a $21-$25 million sum for North Carolina's economy. Skier capacity for a 100-day season would be in excess of one million.

"LOVE AFFAIR" FOR THE COURTS

Game, set, love match. That's how it was at America's first "Love Affair" tennis tournament for married couples only.

Among the prizes were a silver trophy, $20,000 in cash awards—including a $7,000 first prize—and national ranking in the U.S. Tennis Association (USTA) for the top 10 finalists.

Because of the tourney's unique format, many couples were playing for the first time in a national USTA championship. All players had to have been married for at least 90 days in order to participate.

Nearly 100 couples qualified for the USTA National Hardcourt Husband/Wife Championships, the official name for the PRO-Keds Love Affair. It was played June 20-26 at the John Wayne Tennis Club in Newport Beach, Calif., where it will become an annual event.

The "Love Affair" tournament was sponsored by PRO-Keds, the Uniroyal brand of performance athletic footwear and accessories. The company's "Royal Court" tennis shoe was the official tourney shoe and was given to each of the qualifying players, along with a Love Match tee shirt.

NET GAINS—Loving cup trophy given winning team is flanked by silver tray awarded in fast service contest and tennis racquet cover with "Love Match" logo.

On finals day, an added promotional event was the Husband/Wife National Fast Service Contest. The winning team received $100 and a silver tray.

The tournament's proceeds went to benefit Children's Village U.S.A., a home for battered and abused children founded by International Orphans, Inc., a favorite charity of movie star John Wayne.

Health Tip
from the American Medical Assn.

Overweight Children

That plump, healthy, happy youngster may grow up into a fat, unhealthy, unhappy older child, and later into a fat adult who is prey to all of the physical ailments that are a part of obesity.

Faulty eating habits started in early chilhood often are the cause of overweight adults in later life, says the American Medical Association.

All to many mothers, with the best of intentions, nag their children into eating more than they want to eat. The healthy, fat baby who remains chubby as he grows into preschool and first grade years becomes less attractive as an individual. And the habit of eating more calories than necessary is likely to remain the rest of his life.

The parent who thinks the child should lose weight should seek expert help on how he should lose it. If it fits your doctor's counsel, here are some tips to help your youngster lose weight --

Weigh once a week and keep track of the weight. Use the same scale and wear approximately the same clothing.

It isn't necessary to cut out all desserts and snacks, as long as their calorie count is included in the daily total. Fresh fruits are good for snacks.

Keep a supply of raw carrots, radishes, celery sticks and pickles for more snacking. Tomato juice or clear bouillon can serve for drinks.

Cut out rich salad dressings; instead use vinegar and lemon juice.

Trim fat from meat, take it easy on the butter, substitute skim milk for whole milk. But be sure to serve plenty of fruits and vegetables.

The most important factor in helping the obese child to reduce poundage is to handle it naturally. Don't make a point of telling the child he is on a reducing diet. Just serve the meals naturally and as a matter of course. Avoid nagging the child about his weight and his diet. It will only make him more rebellious and more inclined to snack on the sly.

YMCA Offers Fitness Evaluation For Women

The Central YMCA is offering a free physical fitness evaluation and fitness program design to women, 18 years and over, during August.

The evaluation includes an assessment of present physical activity level and condition, medical history, measurement of blood pressure and heart rate. Using this information a total physical fitness program is specially designed to suit the individual and her physical fitness needs.

The program is planned to assist the individual to determine their physical condition and to aid in learning the proper ways to improve.

Diana Limbaugh, Director of the Central YMCA Women's Health Service, will direct the program.

Advance News

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Vogler have returned from a 3 week vacation to the West coast. They left July 2 and drove into Knoxville, Tenn., Lexington, Ky., and Louisville, where they saw Churchill Downs, site of the Kentucky Derby. In St. Louis the famous steel arch "The Gateway to the West" was of special interest. Driving through Kansas City into Omaha, Neb. the Vogler's saw the big stock yards and Father Flanagan's Boys' Town in Omaha. Continuing their Northwestern route they went into Sioux City, Iowa and Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Here a direct western route took them into Rapid City, S.D. and Custer State Park. At Custer they especially enjoyed a jeep ride out in the mountains to see buffalo herds. Leaving Custer State Park the Vogler's went into the Black Hills where they saw Mt. Rushmore and Crazy Horse Mt. This stone mountain is being carved into a statue of an Indian mounted on a horse.

Yellowstone Park in Wyoming was the next stop, which was especially interesting! Salt Lake City was next on the tour and into Reno and Carson City, Nevada. They also saw the restored "Virginia City" and the Ponderosa Ranch. Going into California via Lake Tahoe, one of the most beautiful bodies of water in the United States, as well as the deepest. It is surrounded by mountain peaks which rise more than 4,000 feet above its surface. A tour of Sacramento and San Francisco was enjoyed and a drive across the Golden Gate bridge. Going into the Sierra Nevada mountain range the Vogler's toured Yosemite National Park and Mariposa Forests of redwoods.

Arriving in Los Angeles Mr. and Mrs. Vogler spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Williams. Mrs. Williams was the former Jackie Livengood of this community. While in L.A. the Vogler's and Williams' drove into Ensenada, Mexico for a day of sight-seeing and shopping. Tim Vogler flew out to L.A. to join his parents and visit his friend Evan Williams, and to accompany his parents on their return cross country trip. Leaving California and going into Los Vegas they took in a night club show at MGM. Touring Hoover Dam and the Lake Mead Recreation Area they drove into Grand Canyon, Painted Desert and Petrified Forest for a most interesting visit.

Of special interest was a stop at the Zuni Indian Reservation in New Mexico where they were greeted most hospitably! In Oklahoma City a tour was enjoyed, especially the Cowboy Hall of Fame. Spending some time in Nashville, Tenn. the Vogler's visited Opry Land, the Museums; the Hermitage which is the home of Andrew Jackson; visited the Parthanon and saw the Nashville Jubilee which was held at the War Memorial. The last stop on their trip was in Asheville and visited U.N.C.A. where Tim will enroll this fall. They arrived home July 25 after a most exciting and enjoyable 3 weeks vacation!

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Howard spent a few days last week in Louisville, Ky. where Mr. Howard attended Belknap sales meeting. While there the Howard's visited Mrs. Mildred Skelly in Albany, Ind., a relative of Mrs. Howard's. They report especially enjoying 2 nights stay at Christmas Tree Inn in Garyville, Tenn. which is owned and operated by a minister.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Poole and children Danny and Janie spent last week vacationing in Virginia, Maryland and other points. In Virginia they enjoyed seeing Natural Bridge and Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson. In Washington they toured the Capitol Building, the Washington Monument, Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials, Bureau of Printing and Engraving and visited the new addition of the Smithsonian , the "Air and Space Building". After a very enjoyable weekend in D.C. they drove down the coast to North Carolina Outer Banks and saw the outdoor pageant "The Lost Colony", Kitty Hawk and Wright Brothers Memorial before returning home on Thursday.

While here Mrs. Clinard and her niece visited friends and relatives in Advance, Wallburg and Winston Salem. They toured Old Salem, Whitaker Park and Schlitz Brewery in Winston-Salem. On Sunday they attended church in Wallburg, afterwards going to the home of Mrs. Donald Willard for a family gathering. Mrs. Willard is Mrs. Clinard's sister.

Cedar Creek News

A Thought for the Day

There is hope in the midst of despair, and hope can overcome despair.

Sunday was a beautiful day and we all enjoyed a good Sunday school. Brother James Horn, assistant Supt. was in charge in absence of the supt. who was on his vacation.

The annual church Banquet was held Saturday here and was a grand success. The food and fellowship was enjoyed by all. Our sincere thanks to all of you for helping us by buying plates. It really was you that helped make success possible.

Mrs. Lucy Tatum, Mrs. Odell Eaton, Miss Sarah Wiseman and Mrs. Nora Eaton attended the Women's Missionary Auxiliary held at the Forbush Baptist Church, July 22nd in Yadkin County. The Rev. Walter Hauser was host pastor. Everything was lovely. The food was so delicious.

AMN Joe W. West, PSC 4, P.O. Box 38 Whiteman's Air Force Base, Mo. 65305, was here visiting his mother, Mrs. Kay West and friends. We were glad to see Joe.

Cedar Creek choir worshiped with the Shilo Baptist Church last Sunday July 24th.

Callers Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Odell Eaton were Mrs. Mary West and son and daughter of Winston-Salem N.C., and Mrs. Phoebe Foote of N.Y.

Darrin Eaton visited Tony Tatum and Tracy Eaton. One day last week Darrin visited all the Transou children.

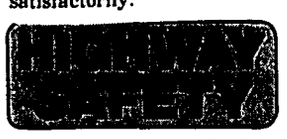

Our deepest sympathy is extended to all that have recently lost loved ones, and the sick and shutins. May the Lord ever comfort and keep each of them.

Clean Your Seat Belts

If you are not using your car's dirty seat belts in order to avoid soiling your clothes, why not give them a good cleaning now and possibly save your life later?

Seat belts are made of a sturdywebbing which can be scrubbed with a stiff brush dipped in detergent or soap suds to remove the embedded dirt.

Rinse with clean water and absorb the excess moisture with a towel, say agricultural extension specialists at N.C. State. Then lay the belts across towels to air dry completely.

STALLING—WHAT TO DO?

One of the most dangerous emergencies on today's superhighways is the stalled car. To prevent stalls, or if you are driving a car that stalls, here's what the experts recommend you do:

• While you car still has momentum, coast immediately to the shoulder. Don't waste precious time trying to get the engine started again—get off the road.

NEVER VENTURE onto a highway if you hear a sound in your engine that should be corrected.

• If you can't reach the shoulder, turn your hazard flashers on. Light your other rear lights and have someone wave down traffic.

Stalls are caused by a dirty carburetor. To prevent them a cleaner such as Gumout, which comes in 12 or 16 ounce cans, can be added to your gas tank. This will clean the carburetor while you drive.

Any unusual sound in your engine should be investigated and corrected before you get into traffic.

Memorial

The Cana Homemakers Club wishes to pay tribute to one of their loyal members, Mrs. Laura Richie Groce, who passed away several months ago.

MEMORIAL

Mrs. Laura Richie Groce

Mrs. Clayton James Groce (Laura), a valued member of the Cana Homemakers Club was called to her final rest on March 8, 1977.

First: Mrs. Groce participated in various activities, including church, school and community affairs. She made a definite contribution as a teacher of primary and junior Sunday School classes and Bible School.

Second: She was a tireless worker, and lent a hand to any situation or need for family, friends or community. She helped organize the Girl Scouts. She was a leader in the Boy Scout organization for a number of years. She was active in the 4-H Club work. She was recognized for her wide scope of interest in volunteer work -- care of the sick, and always ready to help neighbors and friends when the need arose. One of her outstanding contributions was the support and assistance given to her husband in the operation of their dairy farm. Her interest and help in the rearing of their three children never lagged. Their progress in education and careers was of the utmost importance to her.

Third: Aside from her material contribution to our Homemakers Club, she was ever ready to offer suggestions in support of the clubs plans and activities.

Fourth: We extent to the bereaved family our sincere sympathy, as they adjust daily to their great loss.

Fifth: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each member of her immediate family, a copy inscribed in the minutes of our club and a copy sent to the local paper, The Enterprise.

Committee:
Mrs. Minnie Pope, Chairman
Mrs. Cecil Leagans
Miss Mossa Eaton

FARM CREDIT HELPED

CLAUDE BECK, TOBACCO AND LIVESTOCK FARMER, JERUSALEM

"With capital from Farm Credit, I have increased the size of my machinery where I can work the same amount and even more land than I was working in the past and still do all the work without full-time labor. Nine times out of ten, unless you have hundreds of acres to justify it, small farmers like myself, wind up going in the hole. Through the help of Farm Credit I have been able to keep my operation going on what I feel is a family farm with minimum amount of extra labor during the harvest of hay or tobacco."

Athena Redmond is "Miss Mocksville 1978."

Willa Athena Redmond was crowned "Miss Mocksville" at the annual Jaycee-sponsored beauty pageant held in the B.C. Brock Community Center auditorium Saturday night.

She will be a junior this fall at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She has performed with the UNC Readers' Theater and the Carolina Playmakers.

Athena was selected for the title over six other girls. First runner-up was Catherine Anne Spargo, 17, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John P. Spargo of Cooleemee. Cathy performed a piano concerto.

Petition Opposes Town's Plans To Widen Salisbury Street

A petition of 30 to 40 property owners opposing plans to widen a section of Salisbury Street was presented to the Mocksville Town Board and attorney, much to their surprise, at their regular meeting last week.

Expressing fear that the street will be turned into a three lane thoroughfare, for truck traffic, the citizens asked for a public hearing on the matter.

The request was granted and a public hearing has been set for Wednesday, August 17, 7 p.m., at the town hall.

Noting earlier support for the project by the property owners, members of the board expressed a feeling of a misunderstanding as to what exactly is to be done. The board plans to have highway officials present at the hearing to help clear up the matter.

Town Attorney, Hank Van Hoy, said that the present law does not permit truck traffic on Salisbury Street except for the deliveries and trucks going out on Jericho Church Road.

Later on in the week in a taped session at WDSL, Van Hoy said that the original proposal was the widening, curbing, and guttering of the street and this was because the citizens wanted to pave and curb, gutter, and widen the street. He said the proposal still consists of merely widening the street and curbing and guttering it, and "the board intends to see that the road remains marked so no thru truck traffic is allowed on the street."

Van Hoy went on to say that he feels the proposal is being confused with the recent proposal taken to the Highway Improvement Program which involved widening the approach of the Lexington Road to Sanford Avenue, where the dog leg onto Sanford Avenue will be eliminated, creating a new intersection with a stop light. This proposal would allow for the rerouting of traffic from I-40 to Hwy. 64 and 601 away from the down town area.

Van Hoy said the Salisbury Street proposal is not making the intersection south from Lexington Road to the Jericho Church Road-Hardison Street a three lane road allowing truck traffic and "the board would fight that project tooth and nail if that were to be the case."

Peter Hairston and Wade Leonard made the presentation on the behalf of the citizens of Salisbury Street at the board meeting.

The board also received a water and sewer rate analysis study by E.H. Underwood of the N.C. League of Municipalities, which documented his findings of the operating costs of the present utility system. Recommendations were made as to the methods of rate structure and cost factors.

The board spent $500 to hire a consultant from the League of Municipalities to do a study of its water rates after promising a group of citizens last year that such a study would be done because the rates had been raised 150 per cent. The findings will be made public after the board has had a chance to study the report and take action on it.

In a response to a report from the Building Inspector, Joe Foster, that citizens have been complaining about unsightly lots due to high grass and

Webster Demands Death For His Crime

Daniel R. Webster, 50, charged with murdering his wife, said last Saturday that he had given authorities a statement demanding to be sentenced to death in the gas chamber.

Webster, who has been committed to a Raleigh mental hospital, said in a telephone interview that he made the demand for the death penalty in a statement to State Bureau of Investigation agents and Davie County sheriff deputies.

His tape recorded statement said in part:

"It's my life that's involved here, and I'm entitled to the death sentence if anybody ever was. If there is any justice in North Carolina, I certainly ought to go out in that gas chamber down there (at Central Prison in Raleigh). That's what I'm going to ask for..."

Webster was charged with murder after the body of his 58-year-old wife, Gladys Beauchamp Webster, was found July 26 in the kitchen of her parent's home in Advance, about 15 miles southwest of Winston-Salem. The Websters were staying at the home at the time,

Mayor DeVito Files For Re-election

Four File For Town Board

Four men have filed as candidates for the Town Board of Commissioners and one for the office of Mayor since the filing date for candidates began on August 5.

The four candidates for the Town Board include John Nicholson, J.C. "Buster" Cleary, T.A. "Tip" Lefler, and Harry A. Osborne. Mayor Arlen DeVito has filed for reelection and is the only candidate that has filed so far for the office of mayor.

Nicholson, 50, is a resident of 852 North Main Street. He is owner of the Sears Catalog Sales Store on Depot Street and is married with four children. He is running on the Republican ticket and this is his first time running for office.

Cleary, 42, is a resident of North Main Street. He is sales manager for Pennington Chevrolet and is married. He is also running on the Republican ticket and this is his first time running for office.

Lefler, 54, is a resident of 752 Park Avenue. He is owner of Lefler's Wrecker Service on Wilkesboro Street. He is a member of the Mocksville Fire Department and Davie Rescue Squad. He is running on the Republican ticket and this is his first time running for public office.

Osborne, 72, is a resident of 323 Lexington Street. He is retired and served on the board two years ago, in which he lost in his reelection bid by twelve votes. While on the board, he was chairman of the Water and Sewer Department. He is married and has one son and will be running on the Democratic ticket.

DeVito is a resident of 443 Church Street and is seeking his third term as Mayor. He ran unopposed in his previous two terms and said that he is running again "in order to work on the exciting and important issues and activities for the Town of Mocksville."

DeVito is chairman of the Regional Manpower Advisory Committee for the eleven county Piedmont Triad Council of Governments, a member of the Human Resources Committee, and on the Board of Directors for the Council of Governments. He also serves on the Board of Directors for the Mocksville-Davie Chamber of Commerce, and is chairman of the membership committee for the Davie Arts Council, Vice-president of the Mocksville Optimist Club, secretary for the Mocksville Rotary Club, member of the Masonic Lodge, and teacher of the men's Bible class at the First United Methodist Church in Mocksville. He is a retired navy commander and retired superintendent of education for the city of New York. He received his Bachelor and Masters Degrees at Columbia University in New York.

Persons interested in running for the Town Board and Mayor have until August 26 at 12:00 noon to file. All candidates must be residents of the Town of Mocksville and must file within their registered party, whether it be Democrat or Republican.

The primary for the two parties will then be held on September 27 with the general election on November 8 for primary winners.

Student Parking

Students who plan to drive to school can sign up for a parking space beginning Tuesday, August 16. Parking fee for the school year is $5.00. Seniors and Juniors will have first choice to the limited available space.

"When you register for this space be sure you have the license number of the car you will be driving. All spaces will be assigned," said Principal Jack Ward.

A limited number of spaces will be reserved for students who will drive only on special occasions. These students will need to get a special permit in the office for that day.

"We want to forewarn all students--only authorized vehicles will be allowed to park on school grounds. Violation of this rule will result in your car being towed away at the student's expense," said Mr. Ward.

Third Man Sentenced For Cooleemee Bank Robbery

A third man has been sentenced to jail in federal court in Greensboro in connection with the June 1976 robbery of the Central Carolina Bank and Trust Company in Cooleemee.

Lawrence Raymond Shaw was sentenced to 24 months by Chief Judge Eugen A. Gordon in U.S. Middle District Court after he pleaded guilty to receiving $200 stolen from the bank.

In February of this year, William R. Phifer was sentenced to 16 years in prison by Judge Hiram H. Ward after he pleaded guilty to robbing the bank. According to testimony at the trial, Phifer admitted taking $77,000 from the bank after he was arrested in New York City on other federal charges.

Carl Morgan Cross was sentenced to 18 years in prison by Gordon last week after he pleaded guilty to a single count of robbing the bank. Cross' sentence will be served concurrently with two other sentences he is serving for violation of federal laws. The court recommended that both men participate in a narcotic treatment program during their imprisonment.

According to the testimony of an FBI agent in Shaw's trial yesterday, Shaw drove a car involved in the robbery. But Shaw's attorney told Gordon that Shaw knew nothing about the robbery at the time.

The FBI agent said that Shaw had driven Harold Hairston to a spot out in the country where they met Cross and Pfifer. Shaw and Hairston then waited there for a specified period in case the pair returned, the agent said. Shaw and Hairston then went to a trailer where the bank robbers were dividing up the money, and Shaw took $200 of the money as payment for driving Hairston around, the agent said.

Shaw's attorney said that Shaw realized that a bank robbery had taken place only after he was inside the trailer. He said that Shaw was afraid to say anything then. But Shaw's attorney said that Shaw had used poor discretion in spending the money.

Protesters launch 1500 balloons.

Balloons Are Launched From Perkins Site

About 1500 balloons were released Saturday from the site of the proposed Perkins Nuclear Plant in Davie.

Protesting against nuclear power, the balloons were supposed to represent nuclear radiation that could possibly be released from the Perkins Plant in the event of a disaster.

George Kontos, who heads a group known as Citizens Against Perkins in Davie, said that the releasing of the balloons were more of an experiment rather than a protest against Perkins.

He went on to tell of one such experiment in Milwaukee where balloons filled with helium were released and stayed up for 39 hours and came down in New York City.

Kontos said that he didn't know how long these balloons would stay up as they could come down shortly that afternoon or stay up for days.

Whenever the balloons do come down, persons finding the balloons will see a 3 x 5 card attached to the balloon that is supposed to be filled out and mailed back to the Citizens Against Perkins Nuclear Power Plant in Winston-Salem. The card has space on it for the date and time the balloon was found and has the message at the bottom which says that "radiation has been shown to cause cancer even in tiny amounts. Releases of small amounts of radioactive material from nuclear facilities are routine. Did you realize they come this far?"

The ultimate disaster at a nuclear power plant is a "melt-down", when the reactor cored is melted by intense heat and radioactive matter is released into the atmosphere. Such an event has never happened, and computed odds against it make betting on the disaster extremely risky.

However, the group sent the balloons skyward, representing where radioactive matter might go. Winds were extremely eastwardly, and the multi-colored, helium-filled balloons floated slowly towards Lexington and Winston-Salem.

Duke Power officials allowed the group on the site where the facility is to be built. They also floated two anchored weather balloons of their own. One balloon, with the message attached, "Nukes Make Nice Neighbors," burst, much to the delight of the other balloonists.

Duke Power officials also had on hand pamphlets on nuclear risks, nuclear reactor safety, shipping nuclear fuel, and a question and answer booklet on nuclear power and the environment that were given to passerbys.

Most of the people present in the Citizens Against Perkins group were present at the nuclear hearings two weeks ago and were from Winston-Salem. Very few from Davie turned out for the experiment.

Saturday was also the anniversary of the dropping of the first atomic bomb on Heroshima during World War II. The protest was aginst the growing use of nuclear for energy. Similar balloon releases were held across the nation.

Webster

authorities said.

He was committed earlier this week by a District Court Judge Hubert E. Olive to Dorothea Dix Hospital, a state mental institution, for observation and examination to determine his ability to understand his alleged actions and to cooperate in his own defense.

Webster said Saturday that he made his statement to authorities because he felt that "if I am not given the death penalty, then the judge, the jury and the Supreme Court of North Carolina are nothing but a bunch of cowards."

The North Carolina General Assembly recently reinstituted the death penalty as an acceptable sentence for first-degree murder. No one has been convicted and sentenced to death since the law took effect June 1.

Webster's court-appointed lawyer, Gilbert T. Davis of Mocksville, said Saturday that he had urged his client not to make any statement. He declined to discuss the details of the case, but said Webster's statement presented a potential problem of ethics on the attorney's part.

The Cannon of Ethics of the North Carolina State Bar requires attorneys who undertake the case of a defendant to present "by all fair and reasonable means" every defense that is permissible by law. At the same time, Davis said, an attorney is obligated to follow the wishes of his client.

"We have a question here of the human facet - that is, trying to save a man's live - against the question of doing everything on behalf of a client that he asks you to do," Davis said.

The lawyer said he had asked the ethics committee of the state bar to render an opinion as to his proper role in the case.

Davis said he would probably waive a preliminary hearing for Webster, and that a plea would be entered in Superior Court in October.

Town Board Meets

weeds, the board decided to write to property owners involved and advise them that they're in violation of a town ordinance.

There were also complaints of trash and garbage lying around. Also on this, letters will be sent out advising property owners they are in violation of an ordinance governing waste disposal.

Also discussed at the meeting was a matter concerning water plant revision. Town Engineer, Andrew Lagle, told the board that the town has to consider in the future building a reservoir to store water. The town will get the money from the "Clean Water Act" if approved by voters in November. The state will fund 25 per cent of the cost.

Lagle told the board that there is an average of 600-700 gallons of water consumed daily with the figure reaching up to a million gallons a day sometimes.

In action taken by the board, Jessie Boyce, County Zoning Enforcement Officer, was approved as the Civil Defense Coordinator for the town. Presently Boyce is the coordinator of Civil Defense for the county and he will present a plan and ordinance for the town to consider later on in the year.

Also, the Lexington Road petition involving a proposal to put in water and sewer lines for a section at the Osborne property was approved. In zoning matters, Bill McDaniel's request to add eight lots at his mobile home trailer park on Bethel Church Road was approved. The request by William C. Daniel to rezone property on Sheek Street from residential to industrial, due to an oversight when the new zoning ordinance was passed, was approved.

The request from Everette Smith to rezone some lots on the Sanford Road from central business to residential was withdrawn.

In other matters, the board decided to follow closely the proposal they sent to the highway officials about the widening of US 64 and Lexington Road on the approach to Sanford Road, where a new interesection will be created. There will possibly be a meeting with the officials later on in the month.

Commissioner Bob Hall, Town Clerk Catherine Collins, and Andrew Lagle were selected to work on the "Classification Pay Plan for Town Employees," which will be presented at the next meeting.

Rings Stolen

Several rings from the Western Auto store in Cooleemee were found missing at approximately 1:35 p.m. Tuesday, August 9.

Two subjects entered the store and browsed around for a while. One subject was waited on by the only clerk in the store while the other subject looked around in another part of the store.

After both had left the premises, the jewelry case was discovered open and the following were found missing: ten ladies birthstone rings valued at $200; ten men's rings valued at $500; and two ladies princess rings valued at $180.

The two subjects were the only customers in the store at the time and were reported to have left the scene in a dark brown automobile with out-of-state license P1530Y.

Women's Credit Brochures Available

A brochure explaining married women's rights to separate credit histories under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, plus other important aspects of the new law, is now available from Credit Bureau of Mocksville and Davie County, Mocksville, North Carolina, Mary Forrest, Executive Vice President, said today.

Entitled "Women, Credit Bureaus and the Equal Credit Opportunity Act," the new women's brochure is the latest in a series of consumer education pieces produced by Associated Credit Bureaus, Inc. (ACB). Credit Bureau of Mocksville and Davie County is a member of this national trade association for the credit reporting industry.

"Most materials available today on the Equal Credit Opportunity Act do not place enough emphasis on the importance of a credit history or on the role of the credit bureau in maintaining that history," Mary Forrest said. "This brochure is keyed to the credit history aspects of the new law, the important role played by credit bureaus, plus many other important topics in the ECOA."

According to Mrs. Forrest, the brochure also covers such areas as the credit aspects of divorce; the need for cosigners on a credit application; the judging of sources of income, including income from child support and alimony; how to start establishing credit; and what to do in the case of credit discrimination. Covering a total of 24 specific topics, the new women's brochure is written in a short, easy to understand, question and answer format.

Single copies of "Women, Credit Bureaus and the Equal Credit Opportunity Act" are available free of charge by writing Credit Bureau of Mocksville and Davie County, P.O. Box 843, Mocksville, North Carolina or come by our office at 41 Court Square, Mocksville.

New Patrolman

The 16-week course provides some 700 hours of instruction in a variety of areas relating to law enforcement.

Secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety J. Phil Carlton will deliver the commencement address at graduation ceremonies in Chapel Hill August 12. By action of the 1977 General Assembly, the State Highway Patrol was moved to the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety along with five other state agencies responsible for public safety, including Alcohol Law Enforcement, the Governor's Crime Commission, Civil Preparedness, the National Guard, and the Civil Air Patrol.

Also, local planning grants can be used in the development of capital improvement budgets, feasibility studies, community needs assessments and local ordinance codifications.

The grants are funded through state and federal appropriations. Those receiving state community planning and federal 701 funds are:

MHS Class Of '39 Holds 38th Reunion

The Mocksville High School class of 1939 held its 38th reunion Saturday, August 6 at 7 p.m. at the Center Community Building. The 38 persons attending included class members and their spouses. Some graduates revealed that this was the first reunion that they have attended since graduation.

After an informal greeting and guessing game as to "who's who", a buffet dinner of ham, chicken, potato salad, green beans, congealed salad and hot rolls were served.

The meeting was called to order by Wayne Ferebee, president. Warren Ferebee gave the invocation. A poem to salute members with bald heads, grey hair and bulging middles was read by class poet, Geneva Grubbs Bowles. Each member present exchanged resumes of their highlights over the years as well as such information as number of children and grandchildren.

John Larew had pieced together some slides of days gone by at Mocksville High School and gave a description of such scenes as the old gym, football field, girl's side of the building, boy's side, bands, teachers and etc.

The entire group then sang many songs of yesteryear and concluded with "God Be With You 'Til We Meet Again" as the benediction.

After reminiscing and picture taking, it was decided that the class of 1939 will hold their 40 reunion two years from now. Robert Hendrix, treasurer collected donations for this project.

Persons wishing more information should contact Geneva Grubbs Bowles, Rt. 3, Box 46-B, Concord, N.C. 28025.

Elementary School Registration

Parents of elementary school children who have moved into the county this summer or who have transferred their residence from one school district to another and have not registered their children at the elementary school they will attend are urged to do so on Monday, August 15 between 9:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

Parents of children attending the kindergarten program who have not previously registered their children should do so on August 15 from 9:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m.

Three Persons Injured In Park Avenue Wreck

Three persons were injured last Saturday at about 11:55 a.m. when their car ran off the road and struck a tree on Park Avenue.

Special Program Is Teaching Illiterate Older Adults To Read

By Betsy Pennington

Using a phone book and reading a road map for direction are just two of the commonplace things that literate adults do without thinking twice.

But there are surprisingly many people in North Carolina, 20 percent, in fact, who cannot read. Davie County is no exception to this fact.

However, a federally-funded program set up by the Yadkin Valley Economic Development District Inc., this has taught 15 otherwise illiterate older-adult Davie residents to read.

The literacy tutoring program was experimental, recruiting its students among those who were interested in learning to read or improving their reading skills through the Laubach method.

Originated by the late Dr. Frank C. Laubach, this particular method allows the pupil to be taught on an individual basis in his own home.

The Laubach reading program is a nonprofit organization that has been called the "foremost pioneer of literacy in the free world." By 1965 it included ten countries besides the United States.

Willie Coyette Allen, Sr., 70, of Peoples Creek Road, Advance, has reaped the benefits of the program. Although he attended school through the fourth grade, his reading level was considerably low.

Kim Anderson, of Advance a student at Davie County High School, who was hired through the Davie County Community Service Center is Mr. Allen's tutor. She received 12 hours of special training in Boonville, N.C.

She spends three hours a day, four days a week with Mr. Allen and also with three other students, two of whom are in the Advance Nursing Home. The program has been going on for six weeks and will continue for two more weeks.

Kim says that the experience has been "fun", and she has enjoyed working with it. She noted that Mr. Allen is a real good student because he wants to learn; he has shown an interest in the program continuing.

Mr. Allen recently secured a job through the Yadkin Valley Economic Development District Inc., as a janitor and handyman at Shady Grove Elementary School. He works from 1-5, Monday through Friday.

Other tutors besides Kim are Karen Cornatzer, also of Advance, and Tammy Hudson and Shirley Sellers, both of Mocksville.

Instead of working on Friday, the girls meet in Yadkinville with the tutors from Stokes, Yadkin and Surry counties for a human development meeting.

Denise Jones, youth coordinator with the program, supervises the tutors in Davie County. She checks in on a students' home once a week. Also, an agent from Yadkinville contacts the tutors frequently to see how they are getting along.

The summer reading program has been a success in Davie County, and it may be extended into the fall. Persons interested in further information should call 634-2187 or 634-2188.

Davie Receives Awards From National Association Of Counties

Davie County, (Mocksville) N.C., was presented with the 1977 Achievement Awards here at the 42nd annual conference of the National Association of Counties (NACo). The annual awards are given to counties who have been specially honored for their outstanding citizen service and for innovative programs leading to more efficient, modern county government.

Davie County received the awards for its:

County-wide Zoning and Mechanized Accounting System.

County-wide Zoning - In 1973, the county adopted a comprehensive zoning ordinance after more than four years of educating the public of its need. The zoning program has resulted in more orderly growth throughout the county. Implementation of the ordinance has included the rezoning of several areas for industrial and commercial purposes, in keeping with the land use plan.

Mechanized Accounting System - Using Revenue Sharing funds, the county purchased and has begun to successfully employ a mechanized accounting system centered around a "mini-computer." Cost savings have already been noticed because the computer has reduced needs for additional staff.

Applications currently in use include automated payroll and mechanized water billing. Budgetary applications are forthcoming which will facilitate cash-flow planning and improve investment decision-making.

NACo is the national spokesman for county government in the United States.

Accepting on behalf of Davie County, North Carolina, National Association of Counties (NACo) Achievement Awards, is Glenn S. Howard, chairman of the board.

Tongue 'N CHEEK

Escaping Monologues

There exists in this world people afflicted with the ability to expound on any subject for hours at the time, whether they say anything or not.

I've participated in conversations (monologues) with persons so afflicted who could go on for days on such mundane subjects as tooth plaque or logarithms.

Discounting the dangers of acute boredom, the captive audience may suffer from additional urgencies such as other appointments, parental curfew, or having to go to the bathroom.

In order to excuse oneself from the compulsive talker (without being deleted from his or her Christmas card list), I offer the following suggestions.

Begin the conversation by warning the speaker that you have a prior engagement at a specific time. Tell him your checkbook needs balancing or your uncle has a heart attack planned for later that morning.

Wear a watch and study it often. Wind it conspicuously. Hold it up to your ear and shake it to make sure it's working.

Yawn a lot. Start with coy little stifled yawns and if that doesn't do the trick, work your way up to full-blown, teeth flashing, fly trapping, arm stretching yawns complete with high fidelity, stereophonic sound effects.

If your prolific talker makes mention of it, tell him you haven't slept in four days and had better run home and take a 48-hour nap.

Make noisy preparations to leave. If you have books or papers, shuffle and straighten them and place them under your arm schoolboy fashion. Lean forward in your chair in the general direction of the door.

Scratch. Start discretely and become more animated as necessary. Slap at imaginary mites that leap off your body toward your lecturer. Pretend you catch them, then after careful examination, allow them to go free, again in the talker's direction.

If you have a match, set fire to your chair. The smoke and flames will usually divert the speaker's attention long enough to make your escape.

Other ways to interrupt the conversation and provide an escape include dropping things or knocking objects from their normal location.

During a more energetic yawn, reach over and knock the lamp off the speaker's desk. A sudden knee jerk can "accidentally" turn over a bookcase or filing cabinet.

A sweeping gesture can send the speaker's prized honorable-mention-in-the-first-annual-potato-rolling-championship trophy across the room.

If the compulsive talker doesn't smoke, light a cigar and puff enthusiastically. If he does smoke, cough dramatically.

Should all else fail, try the following:

Stand up abruptly and recite the Boy Scout oath backwards, grinning broadly. Reach down and untie the speaker's shoes.

Then sing "The Impossible Dream" loudly, keeping time to the music with a pencil drumbeat on the speaker's head.

Conclude by running around the room, arms flapping, making bird noises and stopping periodically to grub for worms in the carpet.

Whatever subject was being expounded upon will be forgotten and you can make your exit.

Works every time.

By Barbara S. Moffet

Every 12 minutes an enemy is stopped at a U.S. border. Sometimes the invader turns up in the luggage of an unsuspecting traveler.

The "enemies" are insects and disease organisms that hide in souvenirs -- a box of peaches from Rome or a bonsai tree from the Orient -- and are often escorted by tourists who don't realize the threat they pose to the country's crops, livestock, and trees.

Last year pests and disease cost taxpayers $12 billion in damage and control measures in this country, the National Geographic Society says.

America's main line of defense against foreign pests is 600 Department of Agriculture inspectors stationed at more than 80 ports of entry. At the request of a customs agent, an inspector will search anything from a backpack to a commercial shipment to find potential troublemakers.

Even so, the pests sneak by.

A small boy cost taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars after slipping through quarantine inspection in 1966 with three giant African snails in his pocket. The snails later escaped from his Miami, Florida, home and reproduced. More than 100,000 snails -- all descendants of the original pair -- were destroyed in the six years it took to eradicate the pest. Their legacy: a path of destroyed fruit, vegetables, and flowers.

Sick parrots from South America are believed to have been responsible for exposing California poultry to exotic Newcastle disease in 1971. In the two-year program to stamp out the disease, more than 11 million birds were destroyed at a cost of $50 million.

Customs inspectors are esecially on the lookout for citrus and tropical fruits, which could carry fruit flies, and meat products, which could be contaminated with foot-and-mouth disease. "Foot-and-mouth disease is Public Enemy No.1 to us," an Agriculture Department official said. "It is as debilitating to animals as tuberculosis is to people."

A last-minute attempt to smuggle contraband souvenirs can mean embarrassment -- and even a fine -- for the traveler, says Robert Forsht, supervisory customs inspector at Dulles International Airport near Washington.

"We can usually tell if they're hiding something by their expressions and the way they answer questions," he said. "Sometimes they get mad when they're told their souvenirs are going to be destroyed."

American tourists tempted by a Nile crocodile purse or a leopard skin coat in one of those Paris boutiques should save their money; those items are made from endangered species and won't be admitted to the United States without special permits.

Some souvenirs that can't be brought home without permits are tortoise shell jewelry, carved whale teeth, coats made from skins of most big cats, and belts, wallets, shoes, and luggage made of crocodile, alligator, or sea turtle.

Travelers seeking more information on plants, animals, and food should write "Travelers Tips," Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250. For information on wildlife products, travelers should write the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Publication Unit, Department of Interior, Washington, D.C., 20240, and request the pamphlet, "Facts About Federal Wildlife Laws."

Mrs. Hattie Dixon Dull Has Many Happy Memories

Mrs. Hattie Dixon Dull.

By Betty Taplin

"A penny for your thoughts on your 87th birthday, Hattie Dull".

Hattie Dixon Dull was born June 30th, 1890 in Farmington Township and has many happy memories.

Her parents were farmers and if she wasn't in the fields working, she was back at the house taking care of her five siblings. She did the washing and ironing and cooking and of course all with no electricity. It was done very differently, but there was no huge power bill. A lot of the time they were all out in the fields and Hattie would care for the younger ones out there so her "Mama" could help the men.

Each morning they would start the day with a good breakfast of ham and eggs and hot biscuits. They then worked all morning in the vegetable garden or if it was time to cut the wheat they did that. The men would scythe the wheat and "Mama" would bind it, making bundles of twelve which made a shuck. At noon they would all go in for a dinner consisting of home grown vegetables, corn bread and sometimes apple cobbler. It was then back to work doing whatever was necessary for that particular time of year.

"The time to plant and the time to reap" hasn't changed over the years but the method certainly has. Hattie Dull had "Joe" and "George", two mules. They ate three times a day, three or four ears of corn, corn shucks, plenty of hay, and were led to the "branch" twice a day to drink. They had a very comfortable barn to live in, too. Sometimes they were hitched up to the covered wagon to take the family the three miles to Sunday School and church. And, even on occasion, the two and a half miles to school. The family usually walked every place and "Joe" and "George" were mainly used on the farm pulling the farm equipment.

"The smells were so sweet then," said Miss Hattie, "none of this diesel and gasoline stuff polluting the air."

Times weren't easy though because they made almost everything. Making the laundry soap took up half a day. They soaked their ashes from the fireplace in a hopper, first, then poured the liquid off into a black wash pot which was lye. They then added meat skins and boiled it all until it became thick. The clothes were washed on a scrub board in galvanized tubs and then boiled and rinsed twice. They made their own starch and did an extra special job on all their petticoats. This homemade soap was only used for laundry. They bought Octagon for five cents a cake for baths.

They bought very few things when Hattie Dixon was growing up. They did their own sewing on a treadle machine, which is still in the family today. They had an organ that Hattie's father played and taught the family. There was a blind lady who lived with them "a long time" and she taught Hattie a lot of music and loved playing the organ, too. Even though they were home all the time, they were busy making their own entertainment.

"Miss Hattie, how did you get spending money for the things you did have to buy like material, flour, sugar, etc.? There were no jobs back then and you farmed for your selves, which made you very self contained, but no cash coming in. What did you do?" asked a young neighbor.

Oh, honey, we took our chickens and eggs to the store and sold them. There was a store and post office in the Pino Community then and we'd go there. We sold our eggs for 8 cents a dozen, a two pound chicken went for 30 cents. With that money we bought our kerosene for our lamps which was 5 cents or 6 cents a gallon, 8 cents a pound for green coffee beans and whatever else we needed. We had to parch and grind our own coffee then."

Miss Hattie said sometimes they had company for dinner and then her mother fixed fried chicken, or chicken pie, or chicken and gravy. After a big meal like that, at night they had corn bread, homemade butter and sweet milk from their cow.

At first Hattie went to the Mt. Olive Sunday School and preaching. However, when she was older her "Mama" asked if she wanted to stay there or join her mother's church.

"I want to go with you, Mama", she said.

So Hattie Dixon joined the Courtney Baptist Church. In 1913, however, about three years after she married Walter Dull, she joined the Wesley Chapel Methodist Church in the Pino Community and is still a member today.

When Miss Hattie was six years old she started school in a log house. There was a two and a half mile walk one way which she ended up walking at sunset in the winter. The school stood in front of what is now the Pino Community Grange.

There was one teacher, forty-five students grades 1-8. There was a fireplace at each end. Wooden benches, instead of desks, were along the walls. This log building was torn down and a new one built. This one was frame, with desks, but still one teacher.

After she got out of school the building that is now the Grange Hall was built for the new school. However, she never attended that one. In that same area was the post office and general store.

School was not compulsory then but you tried to go as much as you could to get "Head Marks". The smartest one and the student with the most "Head Marks" would get a prize, like a string of "pearls".

School was only open three or four months a year. Sometimes students would have to go more than one winter to finish a course, due to bad weather, sickness etc.

Mrs. Dull wanted to go on to high school and become a teacher but the two nearest schools were still too far for her to go. One was in Farmington and the other in Courtney. She had to end her formal education with the eighth grade. Her last teacher was Mrs. Bertha Smith, who is still a busy lady giving out guest cards at the Davie Hospital.

Eventually the time comes in a young girl's life for courting whether the means be a horse and carriage or horseless carriage.

A Mr. James was a school teacher in a section of Farmington, called Jamestown, and he started courtin' Hattie Dixon. They went together for two years but he knew he wasn't going to live very long because he had TB.

One day Walter Dull came over from Forsyth County and started working for his brother, Charlie Dull. He met Hattie, liked her, and they started dating.

The time came when the sweet Mr. James told Hattie that he knew she liked Walter and he would stop coming to see her. Soon after, Hattie heard that Mr. James was very sick and she went to see him whenever she could. She had a long talk with him on his death bed and he told her how much he had loved her, more than anyone he ever knew, but he knew he wouldn't be around very long. He said Walter Dull was a good man and loved her and would be with her for many years.

On May 1st, 1910, Hattie Dixon and Walter Dull were married. They lived a full and happy life raising a family of their own until his death August 3, 1968.

Miss Hattie is loved and respected by her friends and neighbors. The neighborhood has changed a lot in Mrs. Dull's life time but love and kindness still prevails. On June 30 she was given her first surprise birthday party.

UNC-CH Historian Claims

North Carolina Recent History Overlooked By Historians

By Carolyn Portier

It might seem impossible, but one entire period of North Carolina history has been overlooked by state historians.

Of all the books tracing all or certain periods of the state's evolution, none deal with what could be considered the fastest changing and most interesting years in the North Carolina story -- the past 30 years, said Dr. H.G. Jones, curator of the North Carolina Collection in Wilson Library at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Historians have feared to dip their pens into the stuff of recent history, Jones said, because they feel events that have occurred since World War II are still too close for comfort, too recent, too easily remembered.

"The very nature of his craft makes the historian reluctant to tamper with the evidence until it has been lodged in the archives and allowed to mellow with age," Jones told those attending a recent Raleigh symposium on the study and writing of North Carolina history.

"A historian's credibility depends largely upon his objectivity," Jones said, "and while the detachment of time is no assurance of increased objectivity, it does -- or should -- temper the passions of one's own personal views of events and issues."

But Jones believes historians should not leave the job of interpreting and recording recent events only to political scientists, sociologists, economists and journalists. "Neither personal observation nor statistical sampling is a substitute for the historical method," he said. Social scientists who approach research without prior bias, without wanting to prove some point within the context of their own field, Jones added, contribute to the evidence available to the historian.

"But the historian is still necessary if an objective analysis of all the evidence is to be given. Historians, simply, are needed to put events in the historical framework." While political scientists, he explained, may be concerned with interpreting an event as it relates to the past 20 years, historians must view the event as part of the continuous flow of history.

Jones said documentation of recent history is "voluminous" and that the grist for the historian's mill, source material, is greater and more readily available than that for any other period. "But 32 years after the close of World War II, there exists no published work interpreting the postwar era in North Carolina."

A strange paradox has evolved over the years because of this lack of historidal comment, he said. Public school curriculums are emphasizing recent history and current events and paying less attention to detailed study of the distant past, but colleges and universities are producing teachers who have steered clear of postwar North Carolina as a subject for study.

"The result is a virtual absence of teachers of North Carolina history who are specialists in the 20th century," he said.

"With the removal from the classroom of the moderating influence of historians," he added, "and the substitution of the works of more activist disciplines, social studies education is in danger of becoming indoctrination in political, social and economic views that remain untested by the experience of history."

Jones asked, when then does an event become history; when does the past become sufficiently "past" to attract the historian's probing attention?

These questions will continue to nag historians, he said, warning that if historians take too long to decide the date, the place and the time when history, in effect, begins, they themselves may become past history.

"If historians continue to reject the recent past as a proper subject of study and writing," he said, "they must be willing to admit partial responsibility for the lessening of their influence upon comtemporary America."

Vehicles Collide

Two vehicles collided last Thursday about 4:30 p.m. on US 601, 3.9 miles south of Mocksville.

Involved was a 1970 Pontiac operated by Williard Frank O'Kelly, 32, of Salisbury and a 1973 Ford operated by Eleanor Woodruff Frye, 57, of Cooleemee.

State Highway Patrolman W.D. Grooms said his investigation showed that Mrs. Frye had stopped at the intersection of US 601 and NC 801 waiting to make a left turn. O'Kelley failed to see the stopped vehicle and struck it in the rear.

Damage to the O'Kelley vehicle was estimated at $150 and $200 to the Ford. O'Kelley was charged with traveling too fast for conditions.

Jellyfish

Jellyfish are primitive animals, 95 percent water and lacking true eyes, ears, or brain. Yet they have been around for a long time, the National Geographic Society says. Geologists have found jellyfish fossils more than 400 million years old.

Wet or hot dishes or glasses leave white rings on tables. To remove them, make a thin paste of salad oil and salt in equal proportions. Rub it on the spot with your fingers, let it stand an hour or two, then rub off. The rings should vanish.

Crackdown On Mufflers

Mocksville Chief of Police Alton Carter has announced that his department has started cracking down on improper mufflers.

"Many third shift workers are finding it difficult to sleep because of mufflers that make excessive noise. We are not giving warning tickets but we are citing the offenders into court", said Chief Carter. He pointed out that court cost for this offense was about $27.00.

'Dial M For Murder' Playing At Tanglewood

Frederick Knott's captivating mystery thriller Dial M For Murder opened Tuesday, August 6, at Tanglewood Barn Theatre for a 10 performance run.

Directed by Piedmont Repertory Artistic Director William Guild, Dial M For Murder is the fifth production at Tanglewood this summer and will play through August 20.

The labyrinthian plot unfolds in the living room of a fashionable London garden apartment as a jealous tennis bum schemes the murder of his rich wife. A killing does indeed take place, but the intended victim turns the tables slightly. The play's real suspense pivots on the investigation of a seemingly slow-witted and ineffectual police inspector a la T.V.'s Detective Colombo. His bumbling fascination with ubiquitous latchkey eventually "unlocks" the mystery to everyone's satisfaction, especially the audience's.

"In terms of plot twists and turns," said Time magazine, "Mr. Knott always refills the audience's glass before it is quite empty; and in view of the danger of leaving fingerprints, his touch is consistently light. He clearly realizes that the author of a successful murder yarn has to think of almost as many things as the author of a successful murder."

Anne Twomey, who charmed audiences as Annie in Round and Round The Garden, is back to play Margot, the unsuspecting, plotted against wife.

Richard Fancy joins Piedmont Repertory as the conniving husband, Tony. A member of the Working Theatre in New York for the past two years, he trained at the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art

The setting is by Gregory Buch, lights by Sara Ross Morgan, costumes by C.J. Simpson and properties by Michael Blakeslee.

Tickets for Dial M are now available at the Arts Council Box Office. Curtain times are 8 p.m. Tuesday - Thursday, 9 p.m. Friday - Saturday.

Health Watch
by N.C. Medical Society

It's that time of year again, the annual fall rites of the American male. The game of running, jumping, tackling, falling, bruises, cuts, sprains, pains - collectively known as football - is played everywhere by everybody from "peewees" to "pros."

While most of the injuries aren't serious there are some things you can do to help protect yourself and make your participation in the game more enjoyable.

A thorough physical examination is a must before preparing to go out for football to make sure there is no physical condition that could prove harmful. This is to protect your health.

Second, proper physical conditioning, getting in shape, hardens the body and allows you to play longer without tiring, helping to prevent injury. Coaches and team physicians agree that many injuries occur when a player is tiring and less alert. A minimum of three weeks exercising and conditioning is recommended prior to the first game of the season.

Third, precautions should be taken against the extreme heat of the early days of practice, usually during the "dog days" of August. Many teams now schedule their hot weather workouts in the early morning and late afternoon to avoid the hottest time of the day. Water should always be available during these sessions because it is necessary to replace body fluids lost through sweating. Salt is also important to replace either through salt tablets or by salting food heavily during meals.

One of the most important reasons these precautions are necessary is to prevent heat stroke which can be extremely dangerous. Heat stroke occurs when the body's cooling mechanism, the evaporation of sweat from the skin, ceases to function. When this occurs, the body temperature can rise as much as 7.4 degrees (from a normal of 98.6 to 106) in twenty minutes and can cause kidney, liver, or brain damage.

Enjoy the game this fall, but get in shape and do it right.

Conserving Water

Added together, every little bit of water you can conserve does count.

NCSU agricultural extension specialists estimate that one leaky faucet can waste up to 2,200 gallons of water in a year - enough to quench your thirst with 35,200 eight ounce glasses of water.

Immunize against disease!

Vacationers abroad need them. Returnees from foreign soil need them. Infants as well as children entering school need them. Chronically ill and wounded persons need them. You as an adult may need them, too.

Need what? Vaccinations, or booster shots! Just this year an outbreak of measles hit Los Angeles. Yet, measles like other contagious diseases such as whooping cough, tetanus, smallpox, influenza, and polio are easily controlled with proper immunization and periodic booster shots.

Don't slip up to a needless disease. Ask your family Physician to put you on a safe course and to keep you there. Immunize against disease!

"THERE IS A TIME FOR EVERYTHING . . ." Ecclesiastes 3:1, The Living Bible, Tyndale House

GOD'S FIVE MINUTES

To be a fisherman is to be a worker. Fishing today is associated with leisure and rest. It would be hard then for today's child to know what Jesus really meant when He said, "Follow me and I will make you fishers of men."

Perhaps it would be well to give our children some idea of the difficulties and hardships involved in being a commercial fisherman. There can hardly be a more demanding trade. The burning sun, the long hours of a full night of fishing. And oftentimes the empty boat after a day of fishing.

It is also difficult to be a fisher of men. It is demanding and requires great endurance. It is not always rewarded and the reasons why cannot be explained in human terms. But remember this- our God is a fisher of men also. He, too, labors long and must be often disappointed in the number taken in His great net.

So Jesus could not teach and lead others to do what He could not or would not do. Thus, His call, "Follow me" means "Join me in doing what I am and have and will continue to do until time is no more."

Football practice is well underway at Davie. They began heavy practice on August 8 and have until August 25 to get ready for their first scrimmage against East Rowan.

Check Presented

Benefit Softball Tournament Aids Injured Player

On Saturday night, June 11, in a softball game being played on the Smith Grove field, Jimmy Carter of Rt. 3 Mocksville was the victim of a freak accident.

As catcher, he was involved in a collision at home plate with a runner trying to score. As a result he became partially paralyzed.

Carter spent approximately six weeks in the Forsyth Memorial Hospital and Whitaker Care Center undergoing surgery, therapy, and learning how to walk again.

On Friday, July 22, he returned home---"walking slowly but surely", he says.

Fred Allen, Fred Hellard, Jimmy Allen, Jesse and Gene James spent from Monday, July 25, through Sunday, July 31, at the Rich Park ball field working with the tournaments.

Melvin Dull and Grady Foster were in charge of the Smith Grove field tournaments.

Harold Erickson of the Moose Lodge was in charge of the concession stand that sold approximately $800 of hot dogs, soft drinks, etc.

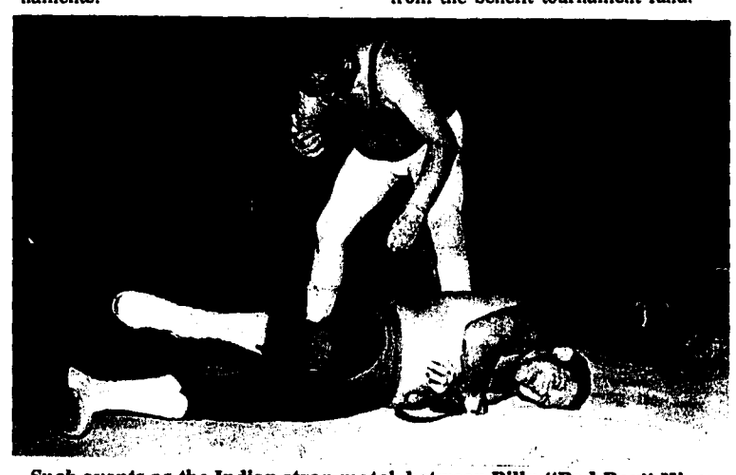

On Tuesday night, August 2, these and other friends of Jimmy Carter had a supper at the J. Wayne Cafeteria. At this time Jimmy Carter was presented with a check for approximately $2,229 from the benefit tournament fund.

Class A Softball Tournament At Fork

Area 7 Class A softball tournament will be held this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Fork Recreation Center on Highway 64 east of Mocksville.

Six teams will be competing in this tournament. They are: Cartners from Davie County, Kiger Real Estate of King, Piedmont Sheet Metal from Winston-Salem, Fabmasters from Winston-Salem and Lexington and Prince of Pizza from Thomasville.

The double elimination tournament will begin Friday, August 12 at 7 p.m. with semi-finals played Saturday from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. and the championship game will follow on Sunday.

Such events as the Indian strap match between Billy "Bad Boy" Hines (on mat) and Johnny Hunter in the July 30 wrestling matches at the Armory reduces wrestling in this area from a sporting event to an exhibition.

Jr. High Football Meeting Is Set For August 19

There will be a meeting Friday, August 19, 6:30 p.m. at the Mocksville Middle School for anyone interested in playing junior high football for the South Davie team.

All prospective players need to pick up a physical examination form and have it completed before the August 19 meeting. These forms may be picked up either at Rich Park from Phil Deadmon or at the North Main Street gym from Russ Spry, or at the Cooleemee Swimming Pool from Grimes Parker.

Practice will begin Monday, August 22, at 6:30 p.m. at the Mocksville Middle School. This team will compete only against other 7th and 8th grade teams.

If there are any questions concerning this team contact Grimes Parker, 284-2424; Russ Spry, 284-2372; Phil Deadmon, 634-3377; or Tommy Chaffin, 634-3845.

Davie Girls Begin Tennis Practice

Davie County High School girls' tennis practice will begin Tuesday, August 16 at 3:00 p.m. at the high school courts. Girls need to bring completed physical forms.

Car Is Stolen

A 1975 Chrysler was reported stolen last Thursday from the residence of Nadine Hall, Rt. 1 Advance. Ms. Hall reported that she returned home from work about 4:15 p.m. that date and discovered the auto missing.

The car is described as a Chrysler Newport, burgundy and silver in color, vinyl top, burgundy stripes down side. The license number is JDA 498.

This tractor-trailer was damaged an estimated $15,000 when it overturned and caught fire August 3rd near Fork on NC 801. The driver, Billy Ray Gibbons of Kernersville was injured and was taken to the Davie County Hospital. State Highway Patrolman J.L. Payne said his investigation showed that Gibbons lost control on a wet road in a sharp curve, ran off the road on the left and overturned. The vehicle caught fire and was extinguished by the Fork Fire Department. Gibbons was charged with exceeding safe speed. The transport was owned by Kennan Transports of Chapel Hill. Junior High Football Program Gets Underway In Davie County

By Arnold Hendrix

Pinebrook Packers, Mocksville Rams, Cooleemee Dolphins, Shady Grove Oilers, William R. Davie Cardinals and Cooleemee Rebels - names which symbolized 7th and 8th grade Little League Football last year, are just memories this year.

Instead, 7th and 8th graders going out for football this year will either be playing under the name of North Davie Eagles or South Davie Eagles, depending on which school they attend in the county.

The move to just two county football teams is part of a new concept that is being implemented by the athletic department and the administration of the high school beginning this year.

Joe Kennedy, head varsity football coach at the high school said that the football coaches; Bill Peeler, the athletic director; and the administration at the high school felt that "we should do the best we could to develop a feeder system to get 7th and 8th graders interested in playing football ready for this school."

The athletic department and administration then met with the Little League Football Association and proposed this 7th and 8th grade feeder system under the direction of the high school athletic department. Kennedy said that fortunately the association was interested in what was best for our situation and they gave us their full approval at that meeting.

Kennedy went on to say, "we're glad that the Little League Association is still going to support the 5th and 6th grade program," and "the 5th and 6th grade football program will operate like always."

Part of the reason for the move to the feeder system is the new conference of which Davie is a member this year. Five teams in the conference have been in the top five in the state at different times in the past few years. Two of the teams, Lexington and Thomasville finished first and second in the state last year. Davie joined the new conference this year after the WNCHSAA folded, and are now a member of the N.C. High School Athletic Association.

$3,700 Worth Of Football Equipment

Davie County Little League Association has donated approximately $3,700.00 worth of football equipment to North and South Davie leagues. Shown above with some of the uniforms are Bill Trivette, Carmen Smith, Joe Kennedy, Larry Roberson, Brad Bullock. (Photo BY Robin Carter)

Kennedy said, "it would be a big disadvantage for 7th and 8th graders not to play against the same teams we play and we would be the only team in the conference that wouldn't be under the feeder system." He also said that it was desirable to get 7th and 8th grade football coaches following the high school format.

One factor Kennedy stressed was that the two Davie teams will not be playing against each other and they will be playing against teams their own age. The reason the two teams will not be playing each other is so that there will not be any hard feelings created among players of the two teams as there has been in the past with the various schools in the county playing each other. Also, the two Davie teams will be playing against junior high jayvee teams of the other schools which are the 7th and 8th grade teams for those schools. The Davie High freshmen team will play the junior high varsity team from other schools which are composed of 9th graders.

The North Davie squad will consist of players from Shady Grove, William R. Davie, and Pinebrook Schools. The head coach will be Frank Snider, a teacher at Pinebrook. His assistants are Ronnie Kirk, a teacher at William R. Davie; Bill Tobin and Ronnie Beauchamp, who are community coaches, meaning they don't teach at any of the schools.

The South Davie squad will consist of players from Mocksville and Cooleemee. The head coach will be Grimes Parker, a teacher at Cooleemee. His assistants are Phil Deadmon, a teacher at Mocksville; and Russ Spry and Tommy Chaffin, community coaches.

All coaches are paid by the Board of Education. The Board of Education will also provide bus transportation for all teams to and from their schools to the practice fields and the games.

For the North Davie team, all practices will be held at the Farmington softball field and gymnasium. Snider will be in charge of bus transportation from Pinebrook; Kirk from William R. Davie; and Beauchamp from Shady Grove.

For the South Davie teams, practices will be held for the most part at the Mocksville Middle School. Parker will be in charge of transportation from Cooleemee and when practices are held at Cooleemee, Deadmon will be in charge of bus transportation from Mocksville.

Parents may then pick up their children at the schools as they did last year. Kennedy said that principals are working with coaches to make transportation as safe and sound as possible.

Kennedy said that he was thankful for the cooperation received from the officials of the Little League Association - Larry Robertson, president; Brad Bullock; and coaches and directors from the individual teams.

In addition to granting the approval for the feeder system under the direction of the high school, the Little League Association also donated equipment to outfit two teams including helmsts, shoulder pads, hip pads, knee and thigh pads, pants, practice jerseys, and tackling dummies. The high school will provide the game jerseys and pants along with other equipment such as mouthguards and other medical equipment.

Kennedy also said that he feels good about the coaches in that they all have good football background.

Games for the North and South Davie Football teams will be played on Tuesday afternoon. There will be a weight limit for all players but it has not been set yet. 5th and 6th grade teams will be using the high school facilities at no cost and their games will be played on Saturday mornings.

Kennedy said that the boys will receive a lot of individual instruction under this new program and this will be better for the kids giving them a better opportunity to reach full football potential before graduation from the high school.

"This feeder system along with the emphasis on weight training will help them reach that potential," said Kennedy and "with two 7th and 8th grade teams in the county, we will have twice as many teams playing as other schools."

97th Annual Masonic Picnic Is Thursday

A noted physician of the area and a Master Mason for 50 years will be the featured speaker at the 97th Annual Masonic Picnic on Thursday, August 11th, at Clement Grove in Mocksville.

Dr. J. Sam Holbrook of Statesville, a resident physician of that city since 1934, will deliver the annual address about noon that day. A colorful individualist, Dr. Holbrook has many friends and admirers throughout northwest North Carolina. He has been medical director and chairman of the board of Davis Hospital, Statesville, since 1935 and active in the Masonic Lodge since 1927.

The planned program for August 11th is expected to draw a large crowd into the historic grounds at Clement Grove to carry out the tradition of the second Thursday in August set many years ago when the event originated as a means of providing funds for the Oxford Orphanage. Proceeds from this event go to this orphanage.

The R.C. Lee Riding Devices, long a feature of this annual event, will operate each night during the week of the picnic, along with other midway attractions.

Bobby G. Cook, Master of Mocksville Masonic Lodge No. 134 has appointed Robert L. Hendricks to serve as general chairman. Lester P. Martin Jr. and Van Swicegood Jr. will serve as vice chairmen. Mr. Cook, Larry D. Campbell, Master of Advance Lodge No. 710 and Jerry R. Davis, Master of Farmington Lodge No. 265, will serve along with the three chairmen in offering overall supervision for this famed event.

In addition to the address by Dr. Holbrook, there is a special musical program by the Oxford Orphanage Choral Ensemble and the Davie High School Band. The program will be held under the arbor and will get underway about 10:45 a.m. There will be an evening program of music and entertainment.

The famed picnic dinner will be spread under the dinner arbor immediately following the conclusion of the morning program.

Last year an estimated 10,000 persons paid admission into the picnic grounds during the day and evening sessions of the annual event. Officials are making plans to handle an even larger crowd this year.

Annual Masonic Picnic History Is Story Of Fun And Aid To Orphanage

Mocksville Masonic Lodge No. 134 had been established in Mocksville for more than 25 years when the Masonic Picnic first started.

In the 1870's there were not many places of amusements. During the summer the three Sunday Schools of the Village would join forces and spend a day of picnicing at the "Shoals", where Cooleemee is now located.

On one of these 'picnicing' occasions, it was suggested by John H. Stewart that the money left over from purchasing refreshments be sent to the Oxford Orphanage. A few years prior to this the old St. John's College at Oxford, which had been built to educate Masons' daughters, was in debt and had to be sold. In 1872 this old college was turned into an orphanage and it then became the custom for the superintendent to tour the state with a group of orphans giving concerts. Some of these were given in the Presbyterian Church in Mocksville.

In 1872 it is recorded that the Mocksville Lodge sent $25 to the Oxford Orphanage.

The minutes of the Mocksville Lodge, dated April 20, 1877, reads:

"Brothers H. B. Howard, W. A. Clement and Those. B. Bailey were appointed a committee to receive and prepare homes for Bro. J. H. Mills and the orphans who were to give an entertainment in Mocksville on the 11th day of May. Next on motion the Lodge appointed Bros. Rev. Thomas Boone, Thos. B. Bailey and W. A. Clement a committee to confere with the other Lodges of this country in regard to a grand Masonic Picnic on the 24th day of June next and report their action at our next monthly meeting."

The record also states that the Committee on the Orphan Asylum was directed to request the ministers of the three churches to take up a collection for the Oxford Orphanage on the 24th of June, a date especially celebrated in Masonic circles.

Again under the date of November 16, 1877 there is another plea to the ministers to speak to their congregations on behalf of the Orphanage and to take up a collection for it.

A. A. Harbin made the motion that it be suggested to the officers of the various churches that they erect boxes in the church to receive contributions for the aid of the Asylum.

Philip Hanes made a motion that the Lodge "procure a book and solicit subscriptions from each member of the Lodge to be paid monthly for the orphan cause".

In August of 1871 a picnic was held at "The Shoals" and the hat collection taken amounted to $35.

The minutes for June 20, 1879, records that "on motion it was carried that we have a picnic on or about the middle of July for the benefit of the Orphans at Oxford, and the following committee of arrangements was appointed to arrange the Picnic at the Shoals or some other place....John H. Stewart, J. M. Howard, A. W. A. Clement, and P. Orphan Asylum Committee to the such action regard to the Picnic as they may deem proper."

Oxford Orphanage

The Masons of North Carolina, as far back as 1847, began to agitate a Masonic educational institution.

For several years the matter was discussed and reached a climax in 1855 with the establishment of St. John's College in Oxford. Nearly all the Masonic lodges in the State made contributions and St. John's College was opened in the large Main Building, now the center on the campus at Oxford Orphanage, in 1855. Ten thousand people were present when the cornerstone was laid.

St. John's College continued operation until the War Between the States, when both faculty and students entered the cause of the Confederacy. Following the War, the College had a hard time and could not withstand the severe test of reconstruction and closed about 1869 or '70.

The Grand Lodge in 1871 was faced with the question of what to do with this college site, which was then in considerable debt.

It was proposed in the Grand Lodge meeting that the property be sold and the proceeds used for the construction of a Masonic Temple. Some one brought up the question of an orphanage to provide an asylum or refuge for destitute children in North Carolina.

The institution was to be known as the Oxford Orphan Asylum, and Mr. John H. Mills, who was then Editor of Biblical Recorder in Raleigh, was selected as its first Superintendent. Having operated a school in Oxford, and at one time having rented St. John's College building, he was no stranger in Oxford.

The Orphanage was opened in 1872 and immediately was filled to its capacity and the resources of Masonry taxed to the limit for the support of the children who were taken in. It was a singular fact that the Oxford Orphanage, under the auspices of the Grand Lodge of Masons, began as an institution for the care of children, regardless of whether their fathers were members of the Masonic Order or not.

Special Programs

A special musical program has been announced by Wade Leonard for both the afternoon and evening sessions.

The afternoon program under the arbor at 2:30 p.m. will feature the "Singing Apostles" of the Fork Baptist Church, and vocal selections by Joe Long.

At 8 p.m. the Harvesters Quartet will entertain.

"We are also hopeful of getting a well-known country band and a clogging group for the programs", said Mr. Leonard.

Judge Abner Alexander speaks at last years picnic.

Little girl has a big time!

"Miss Mocksville", Vicki Merrell talks to one of the visitors from the Oxford Orphanage.

Large crowds await the opening of gates for the famed picnic dinner.

The 96th Annual Masonic Picnic

Around 900 persons gathered in the August heat around noon last year, to take part in one of Davie County's biggest events, the 96th Annual Masonic Picnic.

The crowd began gathering under the arbor at Clement Grove around 11 a.m. to be serenaded by the Davie County High School Band, under the direction of Bob Patillo and by the multi-voiced choir from the Oxford Orphanage.

By the time the pre-luncheon festivities were completed, members of the audience were familiar with and appreciative of the work done by the Davie County Masons in supporting the orphanage in Oxford.

Guests of this year's event, included local leaders of Davie County's three Masonic Lodges and Masonic and Eastern Star officials from across the state.

Judge Abner Alexander, Chief Judge of the 21st North Carolina Judicial District, served as feature speaker for the event. Alexander, who serves as a director of the Masonic Home in Oxford, took the occasion to brief listeners on some of the work done at the orphanage and to generally instruct his audience concerning the orphanage's progress.

"Education is the name of the game at the Oxford Orphanage," began Alexander, in his opening remarks. "And the children could not have been prepared as they are had it not been for the support you've given."

Alexander went on to give a glimpse of some of the feelings of the youth who live at the orphanage as they prepare to graduate. "To remain happy" ... "to go to college" ... "to aim for success" ... and "to find reward in my job" were just some of the stated ambitions of the 13 youths who will graduate from the home this year.

"The orphanage is a fine place to raise a child," Alexander continued. He cited some of the people who had their early start at the orphanage as examples of the good preparation given by the orphanage directors - 2 Winston-Salem school principals, a trustee of Forsyth Technical Institute in Winston-Salem, a leading insurance agent and numerous college and professional athletes.

Alexander challenged his audience to visit the orphanage and see first-hand the work that goes on at the home.

"And I ask you to rededicate your efforts to these children and to rededicate yourselves to this effort next year," Alexander concluded.

With the conclusion of verbal remarks by the guests, the gathering proceeded to the sheltered table area to enjoy the fellowship of the picnic lunch - around which the entire week of activity centers.

For those entering the gates leading to the picnic area, it was a time to enjoy good eating, seeing old friends and listening to one of the numerous candidates for office remark on the issues of the day.

For whatever reason the 900 plus persons had for attending the morning session of this year's picnic - for the music, singing, speakers, food or just plain fellowship - hardly anyone came away disappointed.

most enthusiastic workers for the Picnic was Major William B. Clement. Major Clement, although not a Mason, gave his loyal support to this undertaking until his death.

After several years of holding the Picnics at "The Shoals" they were moved to Mocksville in 1883 to a grove belonging to the heirs of John Clement.

The minutes of the Lodge for March 21, 1884, contain:

By 1885 ornate invitations were being mailed out with the one for that year reading:

"Invitation to the Seventh Masonic Picnic, "Clement Grove", Mocksville, N. C. Thursday, August 13th, 1885, Address by Capt. Oct. Coke and Dr. B. F. Dixon. Exercises by a Chapter of Orphans, Signed by - - W. A. Clement, W. T. Woodruff, W. K. Gibbs, C. F. Bahnson, T. M. Monroe, Thos Butler.

The amount raised for the orphans at the Picnic of 1885 was $263.

For many years at Clement Grove the only building on the grounds was a small wooden platform where the speakers and orphans were seated. The crowds sat on benches without backs and there was no roof except the drooping branches of the Oak trees. There was also a booth where ice cream and lemonade were sold. The dinner was spread on the long tables under the trees.

The speakers in the early days were usually the superintendent of the Orphanage and some other high officials in the Masonic circles.

Around 1892 the first excursion train was run from Winston to the Masonic Picnic. This proved very successful as the receipts that year jumped to $662.95.

By 1897 it was recognized that this Picnic was destined to be an annual affair and the Lodge decided to purchase the grounds at Clement Grove.

In 1889 a spacious arbor was built on the Picnic Grounds. This arbor had a high raised platform for the speakers, orphans and band. This arbor remained in use until it burned a few years ago.

By the early 1900's the crowds were increasing and the fame of the Picnic had spread far beyond the borders of the state. It had now become an annual "homecoming day" for former citizens of Mocksville and Davie County. Improvements were made to the grounds which included the erection of a pavilion over the dinner tables where the women of Davie County set forth their delicious food in the now famed picnic dinner.

The business of advertising the picnic is one of the most important posts. The picnic is an event in which Masons and the people of Davie County and surrounding territory take a well deserved pride and it is publicized each year through many channels.

Letgo Committee

Raymond McClamrock, Jerry Myers, J.T. Green will serve as co-chairmen of the Bingo Committee.

For many years this concession was leased with the picnic receiving only the rentals. Realizing it was one of the most popular and profitable concessions on the midway, the picnic committee decided several years ago to operate it themselves.

The co-chairmen are responsible for organizing a schedule of workers to keep this concession going five nights and all day on picnic day.

No picture available of Jerry Myers.

Refreshment Committee

Norman Blake, Buster Cleary, Wiley Peebles and Larry Willard are serving as co-chairmen of the Refreshment Committee for the 97th Annual Masonic Picnic.

As co-chairmen of the Refreshment Committee, it will be the duty of the chairmen and their fellow committee members to supervise the purchase, sale and distribution of all soft drinks, ice cream and other refreshments for the 97th Annual Masonic Picnic. This committee is one of the largest and the members donate their time dispensing the refreshments that go so far in making the picnic such a success, both in enjoyment and financially.

The Picnic is fun on the R. C. Lee Rides.

Grounds Committee

Ed Walker, Harold Seamon and Stacy Cornatzer and serving as co-chairmen of the Grounds Committee for the 97th Annual Masonic Picnic.

These three men and their committee are responsible for the grounds being cleared, the arbor and tables being put into first class condition for the big dinner, and refreshment stand being readied for the sale of drinks and food.

Plenty of fun, food and fellowship.

IT'S PART OF A PLAN!

It isn't often that a group or event grows inspite of itself. More often it is the result of a lot of planning and hard work!

That's the way it has been with the Masonic Picnic. In 1876 a group of public-spirited Masons got together and took stock of needs . . . . made some plans and went to work. Since that time the ANNUAL MASONIC PICNIC has been growing and is rapidly becoming one of the biggest events of the state.

BUT THE PLAN IS NOT COMPLETE

This event will continue to grow because of the enthusiasm and determination that transformed early plans into reality.

WE ARE PROUD OF OUR PART IN THE 97th ANNUAL MASONIC PICNIC

For Many, The Picnic Is A Day Of Reunions And Reminiscing

By Jerry Paige

Wade Smith chats with an old friend, at a recent picnic.

Each year the second Thursday in August is reunion time for many who now live in Davie County and many who have lived in Davie County in years gone by.

Ninety six years ago the first Picnic was held by the Masons to raise money for the children at The Oxford Orphanage.

Through the years the Masons have only missed two or three years of raising money in this fashion and then the Masons had helping others in their hearts when they called off the picnic due to polio.

Many attended the 96th Masonic Picnic held at Clement Grove in Mocksville and here are listed only a few.

Joe Langston was manning the main gate entrance. After a friendly greeting he explained. "I've been coming to the Picnic about 50 years, 25 of them as a Mason and this is my 'Picnic Shirt' I've worn for the 8th year."

Probably the youngest attending was eight weeks old Paul Harpe. His mother Kathy Fay, sister Holly came with Paul's grandmother, Orpha Smith and from Salisbury came his Aunt Rosalee Fesperman and her children David and Lee.

The Worthy Matron of the Farmington-Advance Eastern Star Lodge 323, Joanne Blakely said she had been coming to the Picnic "all my life but never on a Thursday."

Many politicians always make an appearance and this year was no exception. 'Scrip' Robertson took advantage of the time to talk with Congressman Bill Hefner about the oil situation. Many other politicians on hand were Geri Cranford, Gilbert Lee Boger, Dr. John Varner, June Hicks, Tom Sudreth, Joe Long, Jack Childers, Peter Hairston.

Minnie Turrentine, better known as "Granny", will be 96 next month which probably means she has attended more than any other person. She has never missed a picnic except the one that was closed for Polio. Mrs. Turrentine grew up in Mocksville and moved to Winston-Salem in 1942. Her daughter, Mrs. W. K. Dyson, brings her each year.

R. G. Wagoner, of Winston-Salem, can remember coming to the Picnic long ago on the excursion train. He stated he had been coming "about all my life. I brought my wife and mother. My mother, Mrs. William R. Snyder, is 88 today."

Friends brought Ophelia Vest, Clemmons, who said "This is my first visit but I'm really enjoying it."

"I've missed coming here two years since I was eleven years old" said Leona Bowens, Route 3.

Mrs. Della Groce, Pine Street, Mocksville, stated she has been coming "off and on for 40 years or more."

Mrs. G. C. Dunnigan, used to live in Davie County and came with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Clinard of Lexington. Mrs. Dunnigan started attending in 1917.

A regular attendant to the Picnic is J. N. Smoot of Route 1 who has been coming "off and on all my life. I was 85 last January 20th."

Mrs. G. F. Talbert, Winston-Salem, was born at Cornatzer and has been coming all her life.

Mrs. Raymond English, Hendersonville, remembers her Father-in-law telling about taking the Lee rides to Mocksville when it was just a day time affair and when it first started night operations was by the light of lanterns. Her husband owned the Lee Rides together with his father and after his death Mrs. English now is owner with Alfred Williams.

Mrs. John M. Groce, Route 3, and her brother Frank 'Bud' Naylor, Kernersville, came to enjoy the day with old friends.

Robert Brown, who has been with Pepsi for 20 years and Jimmy Farlow who graduated from Davie High last spring really felt the heat while standing in the hot sun serving Pepsi.

From Winston-Salem came Pearl Redmon, Wesley Holcomb and Ada Burton.

Edward Reavis, daughter Tina and sister Shirley Melton of Advance were seen enjoying the day.

From Mocksville Annie Call, Vera Dwiggins, Marilee Latham and Blanche Honeycutt came together to talk with friends.

Robert B. Bailey drives alone each year from Penna. to visit his sister Mary B. Adams in Winston-Salem during August and together they attend the Masonic Picnic to see old friends. He stated "I've been a member of the Lodge here for 61 years." He is now 88 years young.

For longer than Wade Frye, Winston-Salem, can remember he has been attending.

Ada Collins, Winston-Salem, stated "We're having a full day. We are going on to Pilot Mountain tonight for another picnic."

Representing Vogler's in Winston-Salem were Eugene Vogler, Minehardt Hartman and Jerry Brooks.

While reminiscing under the arbor the traditional fans furnished by Eaton's were kept busy and a steady stream of picnic baskets were being taken to the picnic area.

Coming for the first time in 56 years was J. W. Athan, Winston-Salem. He was raised about four miles above Farmington.

From High Point, W. M. White comes "about every year. I was born and raised in upper edge of Davie at Pino."

Mrs. Rose Corriveau, St. Petersburg, Florida stated "This is my first time to come to the Picnic. I'm here visiting my sister-in-law, Gladys Jones, Route 3."

ASCS News

"Consumers will probably be very disappointed if they expect bread prices to come down because of steadily declining wheat prices," according to Jimmy Boger, president of the Davie County Farm Bureau.

Boger, said farm prices for wheat has dipped as low as $2.25 or lower per bushel in recent weeks. "This is hardly enough to even cover the cost of nitrogen used in production." he stated.

Boger said figures furnished by the U.D. Department of Agriculture for March of this year reveal the retail price of a pound of white bread to be 35.2 cents and the farm value of wheat in that loaf to be 2.8 cents.

"With wheat amounting to such a small portion of the total cost it's easy to see why consumers should not expect bread prices to decrease," he said. "In fact, bread prices will probably continue to go up because of ever rising 'middleman' costs such as for processing and distribution."

Boger said it is ironic that when wheat prices rose to around $5 or $6 per bushel several years ago, the American Bakers' Association predicted $1-a-loaf bread because of rising wheat prices. "The facts are," he said, "that bread prices have continued to rise during periods of depressed wheat prices, as the 'middleman' share continues upward."

Boger said wheat producers cannot be expected to continue to grow wheat at starvation prices. "There's no question but that depressed farm prices now will cut into farmer's production plans next year." He said that "unless current economic trends are reversed, wheat producers will continue to be robbed of the means to produce as well as the incentive."

Why I love my husband's extension phone.

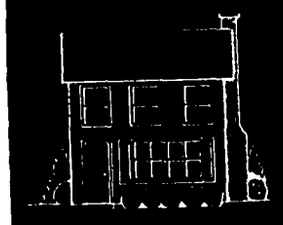

"I love it because now when my husband is busy making a planter for my begonias, or repairing my ironing board, or rewiring my toaster, he can keep on making, repairing or rewiring all the time he's talking on his extension phone.

And I love it because my husband thinks I was clever to install his extension phone. Because now while he's fixing a door with his sanding machine, he can make a date to go fishing with his talking machine."

For less than a nickel a day, wouldn't you love to have a standard extension phone wherever you spend a lot of time at your house? Call your Centel Business Office.

Telephone Directories To Be Delivered Next Week

Delivery of the new Central Telephone Company directories is scheduled to begin around August 17 to some 2400 homes and businesses in the Mocksville area, according to Ralph Harris,, Centel local manager for Mocksville. The directories also include the exchanges of Advance, Davie and Ijames, all served by Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation; and Cooleemee, served by the Western Carolina Telephone Company.

The new directory's cover shows a rural Virginia area in the autumn.

"Central Telephone is continuing its directory conservation program which began in 1975," Harris said. One book is provided for each main residence and business telephone under this policy.

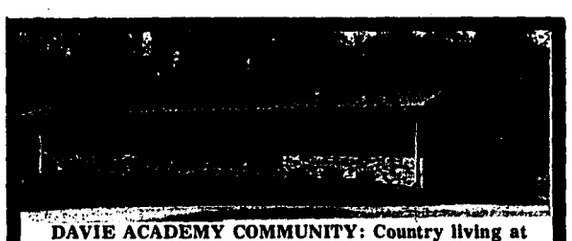

However, the manager said that additional books are available at the Centel business office at 214 Gaither Street in Mocksville.

Harris said the telephone directory is a valuable household tool. In addition to listing emergency numbers, the directory includes a call guide, telephone business office hours, explanation of all charges, area codes for direct dialing of long distance calls, and the yellow pages. To make it easy to locate information, there is a table of contents at the front of the book.

Use of the directory in looking up listings saves the customer time as well as lessening the chance of dialing an incorrect number, Harris said. He stressed that the new directories contain the most up-to-date list of local and area telephone numbers, and that, by looking up needed listings in the directory, customers could minimize calls to directory asistance. Customers are allowed five directory assistance inquiries per month without charge.

Centel customers in Mocksville who have not received a directory by August 31 should call their local Centel business office at 634-5944, Harris said.

Centel Telephone Company in North Carolina serves over 200,000 telephones in 42 exchanges and is one of several divisions of Central Telephone & Utilities Corp., the fourth largest independent (non-Bell) telephone company in the nation. Cental operates more than 1.5 million telephones in ten states, and in addition, has electrical utilities in Kansas and Colorado.

Baity Reunion

Library News

The Davie County Public Library will be closed Thursday, August 11, Masonic Picnic Day.

In covering new reference books in the library, we should mention that a large number deal with business reference, an area which we have not concentrated on in the past. Many of these business reference books were bought with Federal LSCA funds. We hope they will be useful for local businessmen.

Dun and Bradstreet Million Dollar Directory 1977, and Dun and Bradstreet Middle Market Directory 1977. These two books go together and give specific and useful information about most of the large corporations in the United States. Companies with a net worth of more than $500,000 are included. Businesses are listed alphabetically, geographically, and by product. Other information included: state of incorporation, addresses, stock exchange abbreviations, annual sales, number of employees, officers with titles.

1976 Directory of Franchising Organizations. An objective listing which gives addresses, descriptions, and cost of investing in various concerns. Included is a franchise evaluation checklist.

Hand Book of Business Letters, by L.E. Frailey. A comprehensive guide, with hundreds of examples, telling how to write business letters which will get results.

Office Management Handbook, edited by Harry L. Wylie. Almost everything one needs to know to manage an office is here, from supervision and personnel to furniture and fixtures. Very well organized, concise chapters explain everything. A boon to those who appreciate an efficient office.

Encyclopedia of Management, edited by Carl Heyel. Over 300 alphabetically arranged entries from one half page to thirty pages cover all the pertinent topics the manager would be interested in. Every specialized area of management is given up to date treatment.

Munn's Encyclopedia of Banking and Finance, edited by F.L. Garcia. The standard reference work for finance, revised and updated. Arranged alphabetically, such information is included as members of the New York and American Stock Exchanges, countless definitions, and many tables.

A Dictionary for Accountants, by Eric L. Kohler. A one-volume library for accountants which gives up to date definitions of essential terminology, along with capsule explanations of basic methods and techniques.

We have also subscribed to F-tortune magazine for business readers.

Soon we will be receiving a trial subscription to the Large Print New York Times Weekly which should be similar to Time or Newsweek in in coverage, but will be easier to read, and should interest our readers who have sight problems.

Legion Memorial Park Increases Plot Charge

Due to the ever increasing cost of maintainance the Cooleemee American Legion Post 54 has found it necessary to increase the cost of burial plots in Legion Memorial Park.

Cost of a single burial plott will increase from $35 to $60 in the undeeded section. Two grave plots in the deeded section will increase from $100 to $150.

Additional property will be developed in the near future to accomodate demands of the future.

Due to the above stated reasons, the cemetery fund is in severe financial difficulty and is being supplemented by Post 54.

Anyone wishing to contribute to this worthwhile cause should mail their donations to "Legion Memorial Park", Cooleemee, N.C. 27014.

Damage to the Oldsmobile was estimated at $250 and $50 to the Chevrolet.

PERSONALS

Cards of Thanks

To the staff and employees of Davie County Hospital, I would like to take this time to thank each and everyone for being so nice to me while I was a patient at the hospital. Words cannot express just how I feel. I would like to thank Dr. Slate, Dr. Minwalla and Marsha Pregnell for all that they did for me. I would like also to express my thanks and appreciation to Dr. Foster, Hartness and Kimberly, especially to Dr. Kimberly for being so nice to me the night I was in the emergency room. Everyone was so nice to me. I would also like to thank everyone for the lovely cards and flowers that were sent to me. I think we have the best hospital in the world. You are the greatest. May God bless each and everyone of you.

Sincerely, R. Pierce

Cooleemee Circle Has Regular Meeting

The Morning Circle of the Cooleemee United Methodist Church held their regular meeting on Tuesday morning with Mrs. M.H. Ridenhour at her home in Rocky Knoll. She has been a shut-in for quite sometime.

The chairman, Mrs. J.H. Byerly opened the meeting with prayer and welcomed the visitor, Mrs. Cora Paige. She also expressed the Circle's pleasure of being invited to meet with Mrs. Ridenhour.

The minutes of the last month's meeting were read by Mrs. Reba Daywalt and approved.

Mrs. Ray Smith led the worship service entitled "Beyond Our Control" which brought the attention to the fact that we often try to carry our own daily problems which are so out of our control, forgetting that God wants to help.

Members attending were: Mrs. Reba Daywalt, Mrs. Janie Vogler, Mrs. Vivian Edwards, Mrs. Alda McClannon, Mrs. Irene Hellard, Mrs. Eva Byerly, Mrs. Grace Ridenhour and Mrs. Blanche Smith.

The program ended with the son "God Will Take Care Of You" and the closing prayer by Mrs. Ridenhour.

Big College Bills Face Local Parents

Residents of Davie County whose sons and daughters will be heading for college soon are finding that the cost will be greater than ever.

Colleges in all parts of the country have raised their rates again, citing their own increased operating expenses for faculty salaries, fuel, supplies and maintenance.

The new rates, according to figures obtained in a survey of 2,750 colleges and universities, will boost the already high cost of such education.

For residentail students at four-year private institutions, the average increase is $242, and, for those at public colleges, $115.

The big problem is how to pay for it. Many parents, especially those with two offspring going to college at the same time, find themselves in a financial bind as a result.

For Davie County families, based upon the number of local youngsters who are college-bound this year, the added cost will amount to approximatelyy $83,000.

The nationwide survey shows, according to the College Entrance Examination Board, that the overall cost is about four percent higher, on average, than it was in 1976.

With the increase, the total costs at private four-year institutions now average $4,905 for resident students, compared with $4,663 previously. At public colleges it is $3,005, as against $2,890 the year before. For commuting students the figures are about $500 lower.

Included are tuition, fees, transporation, books, miscellaneous expenses and room and board.

According to the latest estimates, some 600 young men and women from the Davie County area will be going to college this year.

The total cost involved, for local parents, is approximately $2,066,000. This is based upon the assumption that half of the students will be going to private colleges and half to public ones.

Because higher education has become so costly, many young people have had to change their plans. Some are settling for two-year rather than four-year schools. Others have had to forego college entirely, at least for the present.

Davie Allocated $8,703 For Secondary Road Construction

North Carolina Department of Transportation (NCDOT) officials have announced that $8,703 of supplemental secondary road construction funds have been allocated for Davie County.

This allocation is part of a $1,146,041 supplemental county allocation approved by the Board of Transportaion at its last meeting. These funds are in addition to the $25.8 million statewide allocation for secondary road construction announced last month.

Davie County's share of the $25.8 million allocation released in July was $195,800. The supplemental allocation brings the county's share of secondary road construction funds for this fiscal year to $204,503.

Board of Transportation member John K. Gallaher of Winston-Salem, who represents NCDOT's Highway Division 9 including Davie County, explained that the distribution of these funds to the various counties across the State was based "on an impartial formula prescribed by the State legislature." The formula considers the number of unpaved miles of secondary roads in any given county and the relationship of this mileage to the total mileage of State maintained unpaved secondary roads in North Carolina.

There are 156 miles of unpaved secondary roads in Davie Co., while the total number of unpaved State maintained secondary roads in North Carolina is 20,476.

"The Board of Transportaion will continue to work very closely with local and county officials in determining the best usage for these funds and in selection of local highway project priorities in the future," concluded Gallaher.

Four More Democrats File For Town Board

Four more Democrats have filed as candidates for the Town Board of Commissioners. This, as of press time, makes a total of five Democrats running on this ticket in the primary.

The four candidates filing last week for the town board were John Nicholson, J.C. "Buster" Cleary, and T.A. "Tip" Lefler on the Republican ticket, and Harry A. Osborne on the Democratic ticket.

With the three candidates on the Republican ticket that have filed to date, there is a total of eight candidates who have thrown their hats into the ring for the five town board positions.

Mayor Arlen DeVito is the only candidate who has filed for the office of mayor.

The four candidates that filed for the town board this week are Patricia Latta, Robert (Bob) B. Hall, Thomas S. Holman, and Joseph W. Thompson.

Latta is a resident of 616 Church Street and will be seeking her second term on the town board. During her first term, she served on a committee that acted as a liason between the planning board and the town board, represented the town board at the board of adjustments meetings, and worked on the committee of building and fires. She is married with two children and is a member of the Mocksville Woman's Club. She has been active in the 4-H Club and Girls Scouts. Her first election to the town board was historic in that she was the first woman ever to serve as a commissioner.

Hall, 50, is a resident of Halander Drive and will be seeking his first election to the town board. He took M.H. Murray's position on the board after Murray resigned last May and has served as financial officer during that time. He is married and has three children. He is presently serving on the board of trustees for Campbell College. He is a member of the board of advisor's for the N.C. Baptist Children's Home. In the past, he has been owner and manager of Hall Drug Co. in Mocksville and was the N.C. Pharmacist of the year in 1971. In 1974 he received the UNC

Fish Die; Cattle Without Water

Cedar Creek Dries-up; Water Is Supplied From Watershed Lake

The severe drought that has destroyed crops and forced many cattlemen to sell finally took its toll last week on Cedar Creek.

Numerous telephone calls to Dutchman Creek Watershed officials pointed out that Cedar Creek, the only natural water supply left in this part of the county, had dried up.

Grady McClamrock, Chairman of the Dutchman Creek Watershed Trustees, began a thorough investigation of the situation. He found that the dry stream bed had left fish with limited oxygen and water in small shallow pools. Also, farmers had no place to water cattle.

McClamrock and officials of the Soil Conservation Service and Environmental Commission found that the stream flow had completely ceased from the headwaters of Cedar Creek to the junction of Dutchman Creek. Fish were dying and cattle were without water. This potential disaster required prompt action by the watershed trustees – to release water from the Dutchman Creek Watershed project reservoir located on Cedar Creek near Farmington.

Last Friday afternoon 1.5 million gallons of water were released during a period of one hour. This was the procedure recommended by the N.C. Wildlife Commission in an effort to flush the stagnant water in the small pools and replenish the oxygen supply for the fish.

After this "flush release", the wildlife control gate was adjusted to a level sufficient to release enough water to

The Davie County Arts Council is conducting a survey of all area artists. The council is interested in compiling a record of local visual artists, craftsmen, performers and musicians.

By filling out a questionnaire the artist will receive invitations to art shows, auditions and other events. It will also provide a resource guide for people who are looking for a special artists or type of entertainment.

Nancy Hartman reviews some of the material she has used in radio programs. (Photo by Robin Carter)

Nancy Hartman Wins Award

The North Carolina Association of Extension Home Economists recently awarded Mrs. Nancy Hartman of Route 1, Advance, first place in the state for her radio programs which are heard daily over radio station WDSL.

The tape which Mrs. Hartman submitted for competition, concerning insulation and energy conservation, also won third place in the nation.

The awards will be presented at the national awards program to be held in Boston, Mass., in September.

Mrs. Hartman has conducted over 2400 radio programs for WDSL in the past 12-years. The topics are of interest to homemakers, consumers and homeowners.

She said that radio is one of the best means of educating and informing the public, "I have enjoyed the support and cooperation of WDSL and appreciate the time given for extension throughout the years," she commented.

Hearing Thursday Night On Salisbury Street Project

There will be a public hearing on Thursday night, August 18, 7 p.m. at the Mocksville Town Hall concerning the widening of a section of Salisbury Street.

This hearing is the result of a petition of some of the property owners on this street expressing fear that the street will be turned into a three lane thoroughfare.

Noting earlier support for this project by property owners, members of the board expressed that a feeling of misunderstanding must exist as to what exactly is to be done. The board plans to have highway officials present at the hearing to help clear up the matter.

Town Attorney Hank Van Hoy pointed out that the proposal consists of merely widening the street and curbing and guttering it, which was a request of the property owners on the street. He also pointed out that present law prohibits truck traffic on Salisbury Street except for deliveries and trucks going out Jericho Road and that there are no plans to change this.

Van Hoy also expressed an opinion that the proposal is probably being confused with that taken to the Highway Improvement Program which involved widening the approach of Lexington Road to Sanford Avenue, where the dogleg to Sanford Avenue would be eliminated, creating a new intersection with a stop light. This proposal would allow for the rerouting of traffic from I-40 to US 64 and US 601 away from the down town area.

"The Salisbury Street proposal does make this street, south of the Lexington Road intersection, into a three lane road allowing truck traffic. The board would fight that project tooth and nail if that were the case", said Mr. Van Hoy.

Funds For Planning

The Piedmont Triad Council of Governments last week approved contracts to help Davie County do some land-use planning.

Davie will use $9,500 in federal funds channeled through the state to pay the council staff to help plan housing assistance, revise zoning ordinances and update its land-development plan.

Housing Prisoners In Local Jail May Cause Problems

By Arnold Hendrix

It's getting safer everyday to say that one of the most controversial pieces of legislation passed by the General Assembly during this past session was the statute requiring prisoners serving 30 to 180 days to be housed in the county jails.

In the past, these prisoners have been sent to state prison units and thus the Department of Corrections have picked up the tab of their housing.

However, the law that the 1977 General Assembly passed in an effort to eliminate some of the overcrowding of the state prison units, presents to counties the problems. These problems are where to get the money to pay the cost of housing these extra prisoners and the possibility of overcrowding the county jails.

County Manager, Ron Vogler, said that last year it cost the county $25 to $35 dollars a day to house each prisoner in the Davie County jail. This figure is based on dividing the actual costs rendered onto the county by the number of prisoners in jail; so, Vogler said that there is a numbers game involved in comparison with other counties. Some county jails house more prisoners than Davie, and some house less.

The Department of Corrections has offered to reimburse the counties a total of $8 a day to house the prisoners serving 30 to 180 days. However, several county officials have said it is not enough.

Vogler said that "we should ask the state to pick up the tab for any additional cost that is put on over the $8 amount they give us to meet the cost of housing the prisoners. If the state does not pick up the tab, the county will probably have to reach into its back pocket and appropriate some money from its contingency fund until next year when budget time rolls around. Then more money will have to be set aside for the jail budget."

Another factor hurting Davie County is that other counties are going up in their base charges of housing prisoners waiting for trial and from other counties. Due to the lack of facilities, Davie sends its women prisoners to the Forsyth County jail to be held, as well as juveniles. Sheriff Kiger said that this week Winston-Salem informed Davie that they were going to raise their charge from $8 to $10.

Davie charges $5 a day to house prisoners that are waiting for trial which the prisoners pay as part of court cost. Kiger said that with each meal costing $2 and each prisoner receiving three meals a day, the county is losing a dollar a day right there. This doesn't include other expenses such as laundry, medical expenses, and paperwork. After the prisoners are sentenced, the cost of housing the prisoners reverts back to the county if the sentences are for under thirty days.

There are two factors which help the county in its problem of meeting expenses of housing prisoners. One is that for those sentenced 30 days to 180 days, they are eligible for parole after serving one third of their time. Parole is automatic unless the Parole Commission draws denial. Those sentenced to up to 29-days must serve the full time.

Another factor is the exceptions to the rule that judges have to work with concerning the law. Judges still have the option of sending the prisoners to

Capt. Arthur Ebright

Ebright Resigns Sheriff's Department

Captain Art Ebright of Sheriff's Department is resigning from the department effective August 31st.

Ebright said that he will be taking a job with Baker Furniture driving a tractor-trailer because it offered more money than his present job.

Ebright has been with the department since February 1, 1976, when he started out as a jailer. On July 10, 1976, he was promoted to road deputy; January 1, 1977, he was promoted to lieutenant; and this past April 1, he was promoted to the rank of Captain.

He is married to the former Maria Moran and they have one son, named Jamie.

Drought Assistance Available To Farmers

Davie County has been approved to receive drought emergency assistance under the Drought and Flood Conservation Program (DFCP).

The program is developed to help drought related conservation problems which exist that can be solved by installation of one of the approved county practices. Practices available for Davie County are: DC-4 - Establishing Permanent Vegetative Cover: The purpose of this practice is to correct conservation problems on farmland caused by drought. Cost sharing is authorized for fertilizer, seed, and lime. DC-5 - Reestablishing or Improving Permanent Vegetative Cover: This practice is to improve or protect permanent vegetative cover damaged by the drought. Cost-sharing is authorized for fertilizer, seed and lime. DC-6 - Water Catchments: This practice is to control erosion, provide water, and prevent or reduce pollution of water or land in drought areas. DC-14 - Interim Cover: Its purpose is to establish vegetative cover for protection from erosion caused by drought. Pasturing consistent with good management may be permitted. The growth may be harvested for hay or silage due to the serious shortage now existing.

Interested producers are urged to file their request immediately if a drought related conservation problem exists that can be solved by performing one of the county practices.

The signup for these practices began on August 15 and will continue through August 26, 1977.

Requests must be filed prior to starting a practice to be eligible for costsharing. All practices must be completed and reported by November 30, 1977.

Davie County has also been approved for assistance under the Emergency Feed Program.

Under this program, eligible livestock owners will be provided assistance by sharing the cost of feed needed for eligible livestock through December 1, 1977. This assistance is to prevent widespread liquidation or undue culling of livestock because of the drought.

Applications must be filed at the Davie County ASCS Office between August 11th and November 30, 1977. If a producer plans to file an application, it will be to his advantage to file as soon as possible.

The House and Senate conferees have agreed to a farm bill provision which, if it becomes law, will authorize 1977 feed grain and wheat low yield payments on acres planted for harvest.

The County ASCS Office is now accepting feed grain and wheat low yield claims for all farms, even those with no allotments. The acreage planted and amount produced on each farm must be determined. Producers who plan to harvest their corn for silage should contact the county ASCS Office and file a claim so that the yield can be appraised. If the acreage has been destroyed or harvested for other than grain, the county office will obtain what date is available including any silage that can be measured.

Producers that have or had barley, corn, wheat or grain sorghum that has been affected by the drought and that will make substantially below their normal yield should contact the ASCS Office as soon as possible to file a disaster claim.

Cedar Creek Goes Dry

maintain adequate levels of oxygen for fish and to supply water for cattle and wildlife. The initial drawdown which occurred over a 24-hour period reduced the water level in the lake by one inch.

One landowner said:

"Ten years ago we would have had no hope of relief. Now water from the watershed lake can be used to save us."

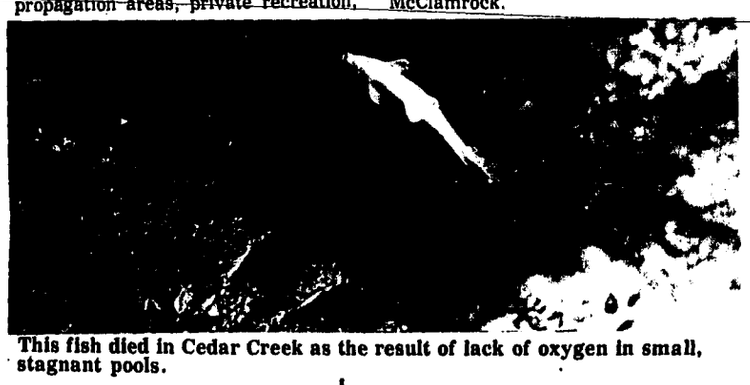

McClamrock pointed out that this landowner's point was that as a "result of the implementation of the Dutchman Creek Watershed Project in 1966, a reservoir was constructed on Cedar Creek as well as six other reservoirs on other streams in the county to provide multiple benefits as: flood control, irrigation sources, fish and wildlife propagation areas, private recreation, and water storage."

Other benefits provided by the watershed project to local landowners is proper land treatment measures and practices that reduce erosion on the land and sediment in the streams. Also, outlets for drainage are also provided.

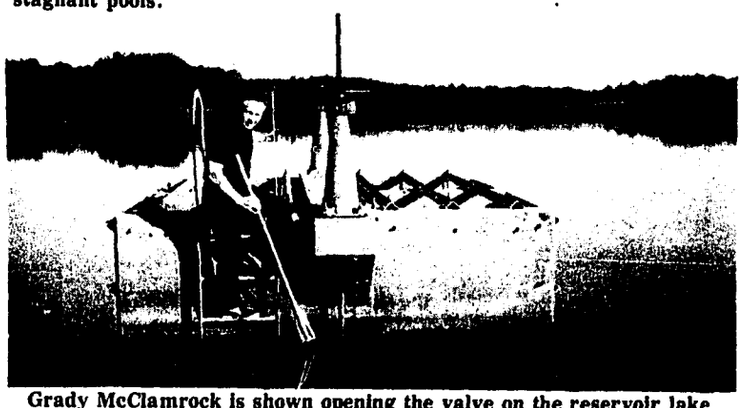

Three additional reservoirs are planned, along with approximately 70 miles of stream improvement in the Dutchman Creek Watershed project.

Watershed officials plan to continue to monitor the water on Cedar Creek as long as an adequate supply of water is available in the reservoir.

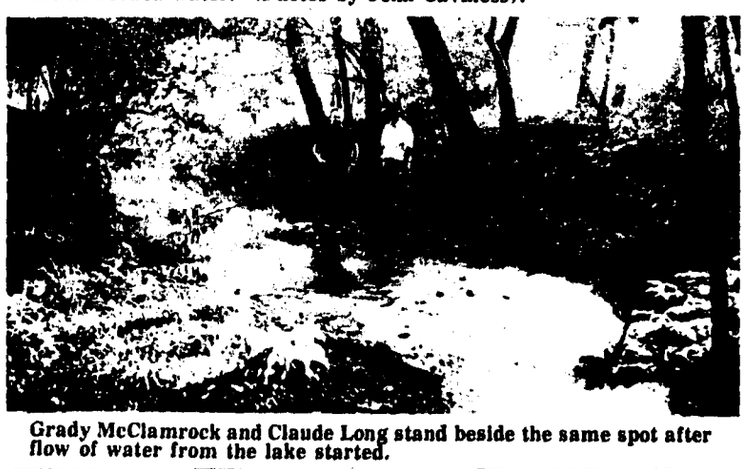

"Water will be released from the reservoir sparingly to minimize the lowering of the water in the lake and yet maintain a small flow in the creek", said McClamrock.

This fish died in Cedar Creek as the result of lack of oxygen in small, stagnant pools.

Davie County Commissioners Take Action On Varied Matters

Land use plans, the county water system and items of business concerning the sheriff's department headed the list of agenda items considered by the Davie County commissioners in an adjourned session on Monday, August 15, at the Davie County Courthouse.

Other items for discussion and action on the commissioners' agenda included: taxes, industrial development in the county, streets and roads, the county library, an anti-recession fund, the county board of education budget, an insulation inspector for the county and Comprehensive Employment and Training Act programs.

The board of commissioners met with Davie McBride of the Piedmont Triad Council of Governments who presented the Davie County portion of the Regional Land Use Plan. After reviewing the plan, and making certain changes in it to identify various communities in the county, the commissioners unanimously approved it.

The board approved a contract between the Countil of Governments and Davie County. This contract provided the Council of Governments will give technical assistance in preparing an updated land use survey of Davie County, review the zoning ordinance, and recommend any needed changes.

Under the terms of the contract, the work to be completed by the Council of Governments will proceed at a faster rate than the one-year time period originally established. In the event of termination of the contract, Davie County will still own or have access to the work completed.

The commissioners delayed action on approving or disapproving certain change orders concerning the construction of the county water system. This delay was taken in order that further negotiations could be completed with the contractor for the price of the work to be done.

A capital projects budget for a water shop building was approved by the commissioners.

Bill Satterfield, developer of Bermuda Run, met with the commissioners to discuss the possible sale to the county of the Bermuda Run water system. After discussing the matter in some detail, the board went into executive session to discuss the price of the property.

An appropriation of $1125 was approved by the board of commissioners for various items needed by the sheriff's department.

The board approved a contract from the State of North Carolina, whereby, the State will pay salary supplements to local deputies not making the minimum desired salary by the state.

The commissioners also reviewed a contract with the State of North Carolina, whereby, the State will house misdemeanant prisoners in the Davie County jail by paying the county a sum of $8.00 per day per prisoner. The board delayed action on the contract until a future date. (See separate story).

The commissioners approved a payment of $3,890.25 to W.P. Ferris, Inc., for services rendered by this company in doing the tax reappraisal work. The board reviewed the county tax collector's report for the month of July, 1977, and approved tax releases in the amount of $435.90.

The board adopted a resolution creating an industrial development authority for the county. The resolution was titled "Resolution Creating the Davie County Industrial Facilities and Pollution Control Financing Authority."

Mike Spry came before the board to request that the county barricade a street near his home in Cooleemee which was opened when the construction company installed a water line in the area. He was advised that the county could not close a dedicated right-of-way by erecting a barricade without the property owners along the right-of-way petitioning the board for a public hearing on the matter.

The commissioners approved a petition from A.T. Daniels to close a portion of SR 1136.

The board authorized the receipt of revenue from a private grant in the amount of $510 and approved the expenditure of the same $510 for the purchase of a microfilm reader for the county library.

An addition of $2,786 to the anti-recession fund was approved by the commissioners.

The commissioners reviewed budget request changes from the county board of education requesting a transfer of $13,856.06 from the current expense fund to the capital outlay fund. It was the consensus of the board to invite the chairman of the board of education to review in detail the need for the transferral of these funds.

The commissioners reviewed a letter and general statute from the North Carolina Dept. of Insurance which requires that the county appoint an insulation inspector by Sept. 1, 1977, and have this individual trained by Jan. 1, 1978. After discussing the matter, the board requested that a representative of the power company and one of the county electrical inspectors meet with the commissioners to discuss the matter in more detail.

Finally, the board reviewed again a request by individuals to have the county administer all Comprehensive Employment and Training Act programs formerly operated by the State except those positions used by the National Guard Armory. The commissioners approved this request.

The commissioners adjourned their meeting until Thursday, August 17, at 7:00 p.m., in the commissioners' meeting room in the courthouse.

Piedmont Health Systems Agency

Five-Year Health Plan Is Discussed At Public Hearing

By Doug Livengood

The draft of a five-year health systems plan for 11 counties in north central North Carolina was discussed at a public hearing held at the Davie County Courthouse, Monday evening, August 15.

Piedmont Health Systems Agency (PHSA), the federally financed agency which formulated the plan, conducted the hearing. The plan contains data about diseases and health care in Davie, Yadkin, Surry, Davidson, Forsyth, Stokes, Guilford, Rockingham, Caswell, Alamance and Randolph counties.

The plan lists goals, objectives and recommended actions necessary to improve the health of the residents in the 11 counties. Mrs. Margaret Griffin, a health service planner with PHSA, told the small audience at the public hearing that the agency's funds are now only sufficient to pay the agency's staff. There is no money to support programs or projects at the present time.

PHSA has identified 12 health status priorities in its report which are:

Top priority - infant mortality, circulatory diseases (heart disease, stroke, hypertension, arteriosclerosis), cancer and causes of death to which younger people are susceptible (accidents, suicides and homicides) and venereal disease.

High priority - nutrition, health status differences between racial and economic groups and mental health.

Priority - health status impact of occupational hazards, environmental factors, alcohol and drug abuse and death from preventable communicable diseases.

Some of the aims of PHSA are to improve the health of residents in the area, to increase accessibility, acceptability, continuity and quality of health service, restrain increases in the cost of providing health services, and prevent unnecessary duplication of health resources and equipment within the area.

The PHSA report states that "Comparison of counties for the years 1971-75 indicates that Davie and Rockingham counties have the area's highest fetal mortality rates...The highest rate for nonwhites is in Davie County."

Marie Miller, a staff member of the Farmington Medical Center, told the health planners at the public hearing Monday evening that Davie County needs more obstetrical and pediatric services for its residents.

Ms. Miller also expressed concern to the health planners about the need for more venereal disease control in Davie County. She said that she thought it would be a good idea to place a nurse on the local high school campus to counsel students about venereal disease. She also said more services for poor persons were needed in the county to detect and treat venereal disease.

Ruth Richardson of Mocksville told the health planners at the hearing that Davie County needs more rest home beds located in the county so that many older residents will not be forced to live in a rest home at a great distance.

Allen Martin, Jr., administrator of the Davie County Hospital, told the health planners at the meeting that PHSA had compiled a very thorough inventory of health needs and health resources in the area. He said this inventory would be helpful in determining the weaknesses and strengths of health care in this region.

The membership of PHSA is by law composed of a majority of consumers and a minority of "providers" (those directly or indirectly involved in the administration of health care).

Truck Overturns

Timothy Joe Sronce, 20, of 1740 7th Avenue in northwest Hickory ran off the road and overturned his truck last Tuesday, August 9, on U.S. 64, 8.3 miles east of Mocksville.

Officer K.W. Ledbetter of the State Highway Patrol said his investigation showed that Sronce ran off the roadway on the right, onto a low and soft shoulder, and lost control. He overturned on the right side, then in an attempt to bring the vehicle onto the roadway, he slid down the road on the side, coming to rest on the roadway.

Damage to the 1976 International two axle truck was estimated at $1,000. The truck was owned by the Hickory Printing Company.

There were no injuries and no charges.

Amplifier Stolen

A 1972 model Lafayette public address amplifier was reported stolen from the Center Methodist Church between August 4 and August 15. It is valued at $125.

Deputy John H. Coley is investigating.

Youth Injured With Motorcycle

A thirteen year-old boy was injured Saturday afternoon when his motorcycle apparently fell into the path of a station wagon.

Timothy Lee Keller, 13, of Rt. 1 Harmony, was taken to the hospital after being injured by a 1972 Oldsmobile operated by Michael Anthony Sampson, 42, of Rt. 1 Harmony.

State Highway Patrolman J.L. Payne said his investigation showed that the youth was on a ditch bank beside the road apparently doing a wheel stand on his 1973 Honda. The motorcycle landed directly in front of the Sampson vehicle being driven on the road. Sampson swerved his vehicle, but was unable to avoid hitting the boy. Keller was dragged along the road until Sampson was able to stop his car.

Trooper Payne determined no charges were necessary.

Large Crowd Attends The 97th Annual Masonic Picnic

by Betsy Pennington

One of the largest crowds to attend the Masonic Picnic in several years gathered at the annual spot, Clement Grove, last Thursday to mingle with old acquaintances and spread their baskets on aisles and aisles of tables at the 97th annual event.

The abundance of food has made the Picnic famous far and wide. People of all ages attended, some using the ground for a picnic table and some seeking relief from the hot sun under the arbor.

The 1:00 p.m. meal was preceded by a program in the arbor, beginning with a concert by the Davie County High School Band.

Welcomes followed by Larry Campbell, Master, Advance Lodge No. 710; Jerry Davis, Master, Farmington Lodge No. 265; and Bob Cook, Master, Mocksville Lodge No. 134.

Wade Leonard, of Advance Lodge No. 710, presented the Oxford Choral Ensemble which sang a program of folk-gospel music.

Donald Bingham of Farmington Lodge No. 265 recognized special guests including Robert L. Winston, superintendent of the Oxford Orphanage, and the Worthy Grand Matron and Patron of the Grand Chapter of the North Carolina Order of the Eastern Star, Mrs. Glenn Garner of Kinston and Dr. Dole Pruitt of Elkin.

Also recognized were past Worthy Grand Matron, Mrs. Ella Holtshouser of Mocksville; Margaret Dixon, assistant Grand Matron; Ray Smith, assistant Grand Patron; Sara Bingham, District Deputy Grand Matron; Benny Yarborow, District Deputy Grand Patron; and other distinguished guests.

Newly-crowned Miss Mocksville, Athena Redmond, made a brief talk before H.R. Hendrix of Mocksville Lodge 134 introduced the featured speaker, Dr. Sam Holbrook.

Dr. Holbrook, of Statesville, medical director and chairman of the board of Davis Hospital there, praised the work of the Masons and their contribution to the Oxford Orphanage.

Holbrook himself has been a Master Mason for 50-years. He said that although he had never made a public speech in Davie County before, he felt "right at home here," because his grandfather, the late Dr. John L. Smith was from Davie County.

Holbrook siad it was most likely that among the gathering were many descendants of the people who founded the Picnic in 1871-all undoubtedly "loyal and patriotic citizens of this community."

He also expressed a deep sentiment for orphans since he himself was orphaned when his parents died young.

Winston expressed appreciation for the financial aid that the Orphanage has received for so many years from the annual Masonic Picnic.

"If every district in the state supported us like your district here in Mocksville, we wouldn't have any worries," he said.

There are 170 students at the Orphanage this year-100 boys and 70 girls, ages 3-18.

Winston memtioned the fact that the boys and girls will begin school September 7 in a completely remodeled school. He also said that a Boy Scout troop was started there last May, and plans for a Girl Scout troop were being made.

Johnny Marklin of Mocksville Lodge No. 134 delivered the invocation at 12:30 p.m. before the crowd adjourned to the Picnic arbor.

Following the meal, an afternoon program was held under the arbor featuring the "Singing Apostles" of Fork Baptist Church and vocal selections by Joe Long.

That night the "Harvesters" quartet, also performed.

Immunization Required Of Children Entering School For The First Time

With school beginning in several weeks, all parents with children entering school for the first time should check to make sure their child has all the immunizations needed.

State law requires that each child enrolled in a public, private, or parochial school should have a minimum number of immunizations for various diseases. Acceptable medical evidence to this effect must be presented to school atuhorities within 30 days of school admittance.

The following is dosage and age requirements for immunizations in North Carolina:

Diptheria, tetanus, and whooping cough (DPT) - three doses by age one.

Oral poliomyelitis vaccine, trivalent type - three doses by age two years or monovalent type - one dose of each type by age two years.

Measles vaccine - one dose by age two years.

Rubella vaccine - one dose by age two years.

Also included here is the schedule for primary immunizations recommended by the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, Division of Health Services:

Primary Immunizations: 2 months, DPT-Polio; 4 months, DPT-Polio; 6 months, DPT; 15 months, Measles, Rubella, Mumps; 18 months, DPT-Polio.

These immunizations may be administered by your family doctor or the Davie County Health Department offers all of these immunizations free of charge. For further information about these immunizations or the Health Department in general, phone 634-5985 Monday through Friday 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Rats Leave Sinking Ship

That old saying about rats leaving a sinking ship is probably based on fact, the National Geographic says. Not motivated by prophetic powers, the rats leave because their homes in the bilges flood first, driving them to safety.

Mobile Home Is Robbed

A breaking and entering and larceny occurred sometime between August 6 and August 14 at the residence of Norman Lee Williams, I-40 Mobile Home Park in Davie County.

Williams had been out of town and returned home August 14 to find that someone had entered his home by tearing out a screen and opening a window at the front.

Approximately $200 in household goods were stolen from the home including: a vacuum cleaner, baby's play pen, baby's walker, baby clothes, pots and pans and a garden hose and nozzle.

Vehicles Collide

On August 12, at 10:40 a.m., two vehicles collided on U.S. 158 approximately 11 miles east of Mocksville.

A '68 Ford automobile driven by Walter Lee Safley, age 19, of Rt. 4, Clemmons, struck the '70 Ford 3-axle truck being driven by Stephen Jay Luper, age 26, of Rt. 7, Mocksville.

State Highway Patrolman W.D. Grooms said his investigation showed that Luper's truck had begun to make a left turn off of 158 onto a private road. Safley's auto began to pass Luper's truck, failing to see Luper's turn signal. The truck was hit in the left side by the car.

The truck sustained $200 in damages and the car $1000 in damages. Trooper Grooms charged Safley with an unsafe movement.

Former Mocksville Pastor Is Speaker At The Saturday Event

The Rev. M.L. Dillingham, former pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church in Mocksville, delivered the address Saturday afternoon at the 93rd annual Picnic held jointly by Corinthian Lodge No. 17 and the Davie Educational Union.

B.T. Williams, general chairman for the Davie Educational Union, introduced Rev. Dillingham as "one of our finest sons." The crowd was welcomed by Clyde Studevant, Sr., general chairman for the Corinthian Lodge No. 17.

"I'm happy to be here," Rev. Dillingham said. "The Picnic is one of the greatest things to happen to Mocksville."

His topic was "Our Hope in Southern History." He stressed the need for unification among black people.

"We've got to stop tearing each other down. It hurts me to see young people who have not furthered themselves and who have decided not to pursue a future," he said.

Rev. Dillingham is now pastor of Ebenezer Baptist Church of Wilmington. He is a graduate of Livingston College in Salisbury and Hood Theological Seminary on the Livingston College campus.

Prior to the address, the Davie County High School Band performed a special program.

A picnic was held that night. Food was served under the arbor. The crowd also enjoyed the merry-go-round, ferris wheel, tilta-whirl, swings, bingo and many other attravtions.

Vehicles Collide

Two vehicles collided Sunday afternoon about 4:30 p.m. on North Main Street in Mocksville.

Involved was a 1960 Ford truck operated by Jack Stewart Ward, 49, of 748 Park Avenue, Mocksville and a 1969 Pontiac operated by Ruth Adaire Burns, 28, of Greensville, S.C.

Mocksville Policeman B.A. Foster said his investigation showed that the truck was slowing to make a left turn into driveway when the Pontiac failed to get stopped and struck the truck in the rear.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $75 and $200 to the car. Ms. Burns was charged with following too close.

Yadkinville Hospital Receives Bomb Threat

A 21-year-old woman was charged late Sunday night with making a bomb threat that sent rescue squads from six counties, including Davie, rushing to the Yadkinville hospital.

Melinda Gail Baity, 21, of Yadkinville Rt. 1, was arrested about 11:30 p.m. Sunday. She was released from jail on $1,000 bond pending a District Court hearing Sept. 7 on the misdemeanor charge.

A switchboard operator at Lula Conrad Hoots Memorial Hospital in Yadkinville, said a young female caller told her at 9:55 p.m. there was a bomb in the building and it would explode.

Members of the Yadkin County Sheriff's Department, Yadkinville Police Department and the highway patrol searched the hospital but found no explosives.

Officials said the operator put the call on hold and asked that it be traced. Katherine Merrill was the only operator on duty at the time.

There were 60 patients in the hospital during the search.

Rescue squads from Yadkin, Forsyth, Davie, Iredell, Surry and Wilkes counties came to the hospital in case an evacuation was needed. No one was evacuated.

No Picnic Arrests

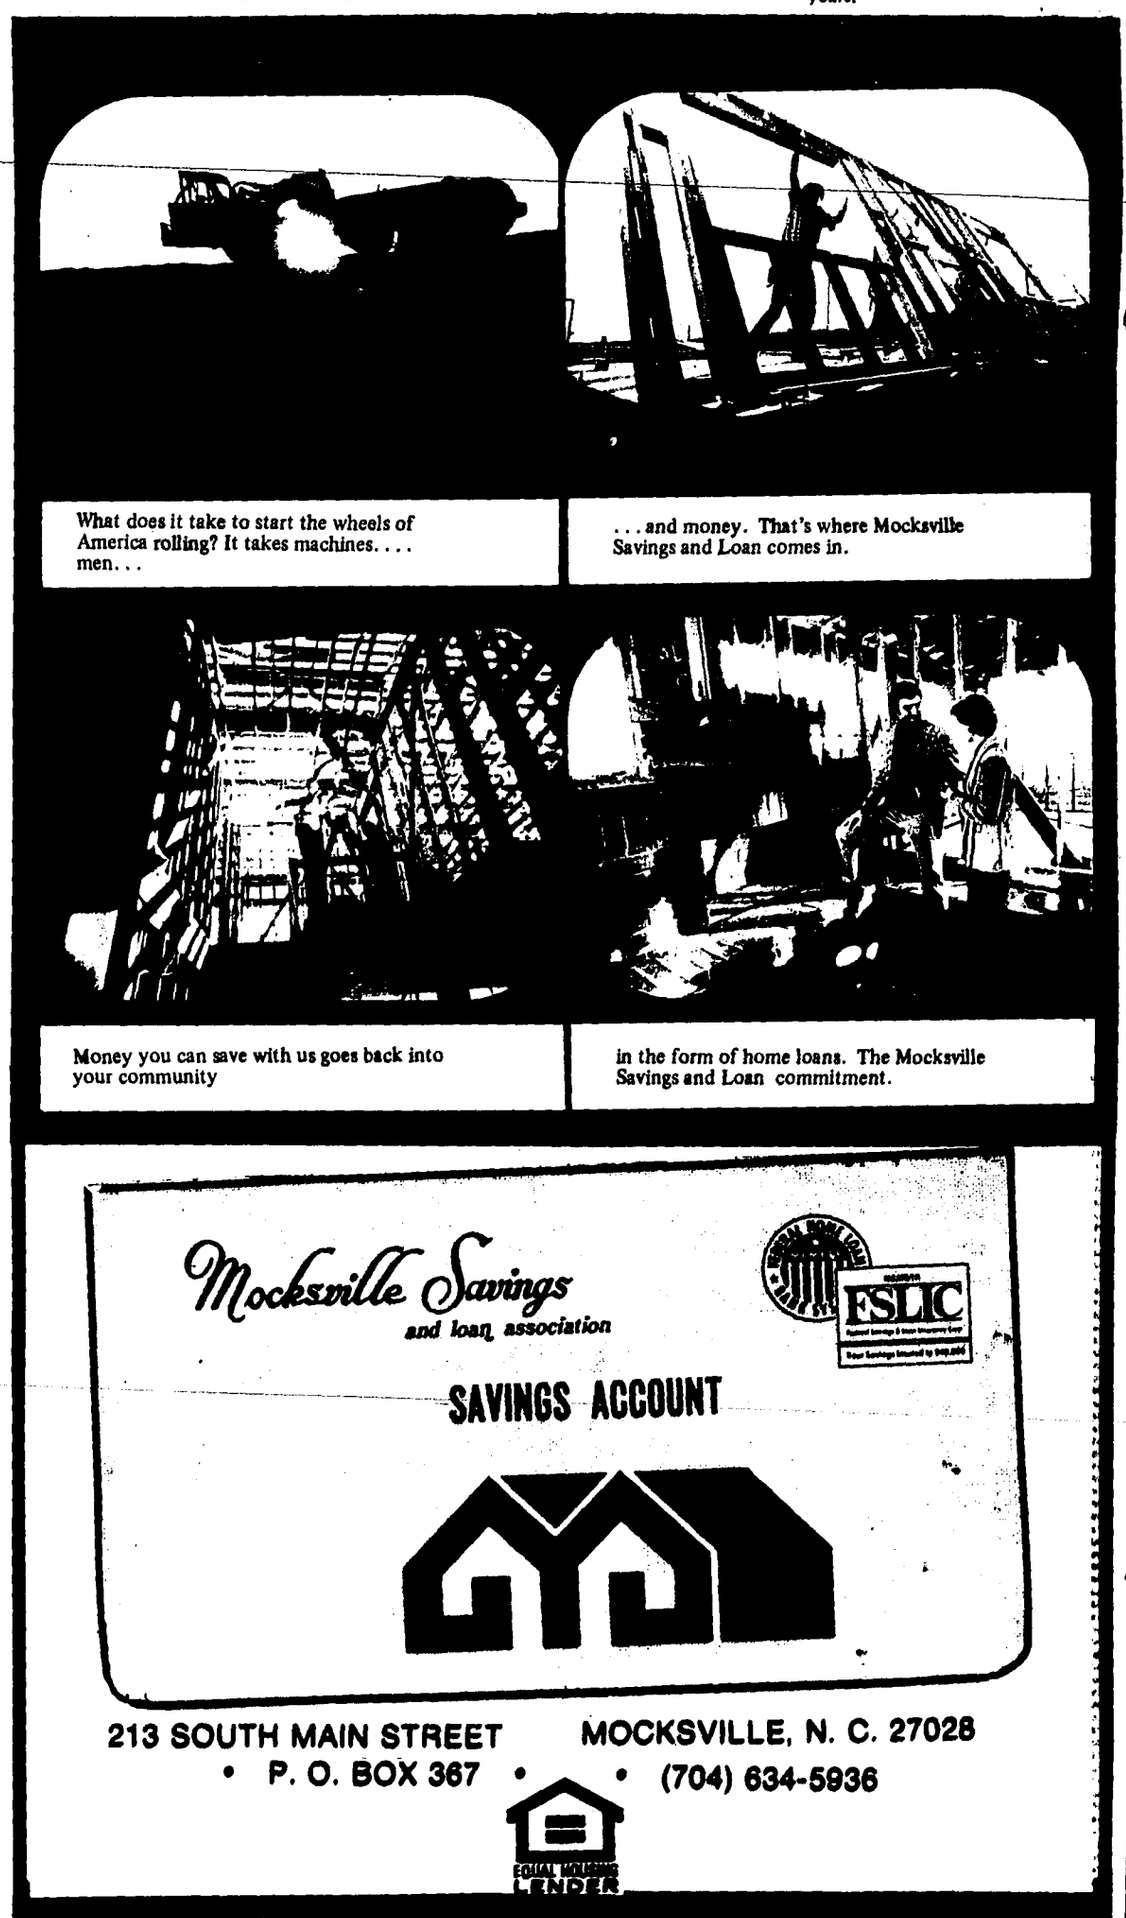

No arrests were reported in connection with the Masonic Picnic last week.

Captain R.W. Groce of the Mocksville Police Department said that this was the first time in the eight years he has been a member of the department that he can recall no arrests.

Also, this is the first time traffic was allowed to flow both ways on Poplar Street and it proved most satisfactory, he said.

The time-measuring device at the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory is accurate to within one second per 1,700,000 years.

Davie High Cheerleaders Win Top Honors

The Davie High cheerleaders returned from cheerleading camp with oodles of blue ribbons and awards to their credit. The varsity squad was one of the top five finalists of outstanding squads, selected from approximately 70 squads all over the state.

The National Cheerleaders Association Camp was held at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

The varsity squad was also selected as the "best over-all spirit" by all the squads attending. They were awarded the overall Spirit Megaphone for this achievement. They were the winners of three "Blue Superior Ribbons," "One Super Star Ribbon" and along with the JV squad were both awarded "Spirit Sticks" as an entire school.

The JVs also cashed in on the awards by winning a "Blue Superior Ribbon," "A Super Star Ribbon" and a "Red Excellent Ribbon."

Summer's Sizzling Stew Leaves Country Gasping

People who insist that "it's not the heat, it's the humidity" are wet. It's both--and more.

Prominent in that "more" is something described in Orwellian terms as "enrichment" of the atmosphere, more commonly known as pollution. Other ingredients include the greenhouse effect and a few dozen heat islands, with perhaps a sprinkling of sunspots stirred in.

Mixed slowly and allowed to stand, this recipe has produced those simmering stews of stagnant air that cause temperatures to climb and spirits to sag as the United States struggles through the hottest summer of the decade.

What starts as a normally warm summer day can become searing under the influence of the "greenhouse effect," the National Geographic Society points out.

Massive use of fossil fuels such as coal and oil increases the level of carbon dioxide and other contaminants in the air until these pollutants form a floating blanket, trapping much of the heat that otherwise would escape into space.

"Heat islands" are urban areas where the combined heat from houses, factories, and motor vehicle emissions makes the air warmer than in the surrounding countryside.

Temperatures can vary as much as 20 degrees between a city's business center and its residential suburbs. Throngs of people in the commercial district, along with heavy automotive traffic and the solar energy reflected from buildings and sidewalks, add to the heat buildup.

Trees, shrubs, and grass help absorb some of the heat from the sun. But they are no match for the drought that has afflicted many sections of the country this year.

When the sun bakes the ground day after day, the earth becomes hard and radiates more of the solar heat back into the atmosphere, boosting temperatures still higher.

Green fields have been burned brown, causing grief for cattlemen and farmers alike. California alone stands to lose an estimated $1.5 billion becuase of the prolonged hot, dry weather.

Where rain has come, it has been limited chiefly to brief cloudbursts that batter the weakened crops before the water runs off the parched ground, causing more harm than good.

The severe summer also has exacted its toll in human life. New York City officials blamed the record heat for a 10 percent rise in the city's death rate during July.

Across the nation, hospital admissions for heat stroke and respiratory ailments rose as cities sweltered under smog-laden skies.

Climatologists variously attribute the unusually sultry summer following a brutally cold winter to a global cooking or warming trend.

C.J. Wilson of Mocksville was honored for his 30 years of service to Central Telephone Company recently in Winston-Salem, where he was presented a Centel service pin by R.W. Nichols, vice president and North Carolina division manager. Wilson has worked as an installer-repairman in Mount Airy, where he joined the company in 1947 as an apprentice. He then became a local representative in Mocksville, where he now works as a central office equipmentman.

Wooden Tires

Automobile tires made of wood were tested during World War II, when rubber was in short supply. They worked well on smooth roads at speeds up to 75 miles an hour, but tended to chip when they hit a pothole.

Northwest N.C. Development Assn. Considers Water Resources Projects

On August 17 the Northwest North Carolina Development Association will consider proposals to reduce flood damage, provide recreational outlets and promote economic well being in their respective counties.

Steve Reed, a water resources ecologist with the State Department of Natural Resources and Community Development will present the North Carolina Water Resources Framework Study at 5:00 p.m. at the Mountain Air Seafood and Steak Restaurant in Glendale Springs. A slide program accompanies the presentation.

The Framework Study presents alternatives for water resources, using 11 defined river basins as study areas. It presents economic, environmental and mixed objective alternatives in three separate plates. The NWNC Development Association touches in the Yadkin-Pee Dee, the Catawba-Broad, and the New River Basins. It includes Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Caldwell, Davie, Forsyth, Stokes, Surry, Watauga, Wilkes and Yadkin counties. The same principles of advantageous use were guidelines for all planning.

Proposed projects include the Upper Yadkin River Floodway System from Kerr Scott, Reddies, and Roaring River Dams to Davie County. The Yadkin River Water Trail and the proposed Yadkin National Forest purchase area in Wilkes and Yadkin counties are natural areas of concern.

The proposed Ararat River Small Watershed Project Study Area is a small flood control project in Surry county under consideration for funding by the Soil Conservstion Service, USDA. The South Yadkin River Small Watershed Study Area in Wilkes, Alexander and Iredell counties is also being considered.

Proposals for study also include the Muddy Creek Small Watershed Study area in Stokes, Forsyth and Davidson counties.

The Boone Blowing Rock Preserved Corridor is proposed for Watauga County. The North Fork New River water trail and the South Fork New River Water Trail are both in Ashe County. The Brush Creek Designated Public Fishing Stream in Alleghany County would have guaranteed public access. The State would acquire easements or buy land to assure access.

Other proposals will be considered for the resspective counties at the meeting. Association members will be asked to comment on policy and projects. They may affect proposals on streamlining water law, flood control, water conservation and siting of electric power plants.

Gimi Culture

In the Gimi culture of New Guinea, husbands and wives live apart, the National Geographic says. Men live in communal houses and women live with their children and pigs in small huts. Wives grow the food, but husbands cook their own meals.

Arts Festival Is Scheduled For October

The Davie County Arts Council wishes to announce that the "Arts Alive--since '75 Festival" will be held in Rich Park, Mocksville, October 8,1977. This is the 3rd festival given by the Arts Council and we are anticipating another big success with you in mind.

Arts and Crafts entry blanks should be returned with $3.00 entry fee. Entry blanks are also being mailed.

This year's festival is sponsored through the North Carolina Arts Council, the National Endowment of the Arts, and the United Fund.

Mrs. Agnes Thomas is the Arts Festival chairperson, and will be furnishing detailed information weekly to this paper. Further information may be obtained by calling 634-3112.

State Needs More Veterinarians For Large Animal Practice

"The need for veterinarians in North Carolina, particularly those specializing in large animal (livestock) practices, remain acute." The statement was made here Thursday by Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham as he reemphasized the state's need for a school of veterinary medicine.

Graham added that many areas of the state have sufficient small animal practitioners but lack in vet services for poultry and livestock.

"Establishing a veterinary school will not guarantee, automatically, that we would have sufficient large animal practitioners in some areas," he continued, "but it would increase their numbers far in excess of what we have now."

The commissioner noted that in reading classified ads in the "Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association," the vast majority of those seeking positions, specified small animal practices. To help the balance between small and large practitioners, he suggested students attending the proposed school at N.C. State University be encouraged, by whatever means possible, to specialize in large animal practice.

"North Carolina remains primarily an agricultural state. Our economy is based on it," Graham said. "If we are to truly develop beef, pork, dairy and poultry industries, we must have vets and a school to train them."

Graham also pointed out that a vet school would attract industry, improve animal health and provide needed research.

The General Assembly has appropriated $3 million to begin the NCSU vet school but NCSU officials say another $7 million will be required to begin construction. It is estimated the school will cost up to $38 million.

WAIT'LL YOU HEAR WHAT WASHINGTON D.C. IS DOING TO YOUR HOME PHONE RATES.

You, the home phone user, will have to pay more for this essential service because of theories being spun by federal regulators. You see, there's a national debate going on. The issue is whether non-phone companies ought to be able to sell or lease telephones and related equipment, and, a step further, sell private communications service between cities to large business firms, as the Federal Communications Commission has authorized.

FEW WILL BENEFIT, MANY WILL PAY.

A phone company usually loses money on home phone service. That might be hard to believe, since you have to write us a check every month.

To meet the goal of universal telephone service set by Congress, home phone rates have always been set at low levels made possible by "contributions" from charges on other services. This benefited the many users in small towns and rural areas, where the service costs to each customer are higher than in urban areas.

A phone company makes up those home phone deficits with revenue from long-distance calls and other business services.

But without profits from these services to business, the phone companies will have to make up the difference.

And there's only one kind of phone service left. The home phone.

HOW MUCH MORE WOULD YOU PAY?

Recently, we non-Bell telephone companies commissioned an independent study to find out the effect of this form of "contrived competition."

The study concluded that home users likely will pay about 60% more and business users about 56% more for their basic phone service within the next decade, exclusive of inflation—as the direct result of FCC policies.

IS THERE ANYTHING YOU CAN DO ABOUT ALL THIS?

One thing you can do is to write your U.S. Representative and Senators—in Washington, D.C.

Tell them how you feel about this impending hardship.

If you'd like a more complete explanation of the impact of "contrived competition" on home phone bills, mail the coupon or contact your local telephone company.

But the time to act is now. Before the home phone stops being a bargain.

A Dose Of Epsom Salts Is Even Good For Tomatoes

By Betsy Pennington

If your summer tomato crop did not come up to all expectations, remember to mix a tablespoon of MGS04 in with the fertilizer next summer and wait for some pleasing results.

Mrs. John N. Anderson of the Calahain community, says that the chemical, commonly known as epsom salt, works wonders on tomato plants.

"I saw the idea in a garden magazine," she said. "And my husband, John, just laughed at it." He even made her cease treatment when he found out she was actually putting epsom salt on the plants.

But Mr. Anderson is not laughing anymore, because several of the plants (deprived) died while all the "test plants" survived and produced lots of big, juicy tomatoes.

End result -- wife wins argument, husband loses a few tomatoes. (And a little pride.)

Mrs. Anderson explained that the epsom salts work as a catalyst on the soil, accelerating the reaction; causing the plants to be healthier.

She has also watered them with a garden hose and pampered them with newspaper umbrellas for protection against the sun.

Mrs. John Anderson is still getting huge tomatoes from her "epsom salt vines." (Photo by Robin Carter)

Although Mr. Anderson didn't exactly have the last word on the tomatoes, nobody can tell him a thing about his green beans.

The vines are about eight-feet tall and are begging to stretch a little more off the frame that he built for them.

"We thought about staking one to a fishing pole to see just how high it could grow," he said. The bean seeds were given to the Andersons several years ago by Roy Burgess, the owner of Salem Steel, who once rented their beef pasture.

The beans evidently came from an old-timey strain and they grow quite long, in proportion of the length of the vines.

"We could easily get about 75-quarts from this 50-ft.-long row we have here," Mr. Anderson remarked.

Since retiring from the building business about three-years ago, he has enjoyed working in his garden and he even admits an interest in his wife's success with the epsom salt. "It's been a real curiosity," he said.

Mrs. Anderson retired about four-years ago from her work with the American Red Cross. She taught for the Red Cross for some 30-years. She still does volunteer work for the organization, some nursing, and is presently going to school to keep up her teaching certificate.

Throughout Mrs. Anderson's nursing career, she has praised the use of epsom salt for various medicinal purposes including compress for infection.

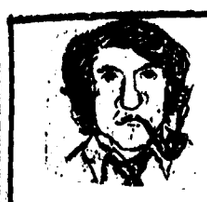

So the fact that she found yet another use for it -- even if it was in the garden -- came as no real surprise.

Tongue 'N CHEEK

Worries

I had a friend in college who was a resident of the local hospital' mental ward.

He was there because, in somebody's opinion, he suffered from being overly happy. It's not normal to go around feeling good all the time so the doctors were trying to sadden him up a bit.

I've since worried about falling into the same predicament. I keep a handy reference list of things I need to be concerned about to keep from becoming overly blissful.

Of course worrying about being too happy keeps one from being too happy. But in the interest of variety, I try to worry about other things as well.

As my contribution to the battle against the creeping tide of unwarranted happiness that threatens our mental well being, I offer the following suggestions of things to worry about:

What about your old grade school records? Remember your fourth grade teacher who didn't like you because your nose was always running and you couldn't figure out fractions?

Well, she probably wrote things in your cumulative folder that keep you from rising to the top in your job to this very day.

Did you turn the stove off before leaving home this morning? If not, how are you covered for fire insurance? Inadequately, probably.

If you see or hear anybody laughing for no obvious reason, they are probably laughing at you. Worry about it.

Did anyone see you standing beside the adult magazine stand at the local convenience store? How were they to know you were looking for this month's copy of House Beautiful?

Do people notice that your left ear is a little lower than your right one? Do they hold it against you?

While we're on the subject of ears, is waxy buildup a sign of some sort of disease? Is it fatal?

What will people think if you should be killed in a car wreck on the way home from work and they find that copy of "The Joy Of Sex" you have hidden under the mattress when they go through your things.

Furthermore, you are probably wearing that ripped pair of underwear that that was washed with the red towel and turned pink. What will the rescue squad workers, doctors, nurses, et. al. think?

Is it normal to sweat as much as you do? Do people notice? Maybe they're offended and just too nice to say anything about it. Maybe profuse sweating, like waxy buildup, is a symptom of something fatal and you have only months to live.

Did anybody see you pick those sea oats from in front of the "Do Not Pick The Sea Oats" sign last summer at the beach? Can you get home and dispose of the evidence before they come to arrest you?

Is there some obnoxious person who does obnoxious things in a car that looks just like yours and everybody thinks it's you?

Is one prune enough? Are three too many? What could happen if you get the dose wrong?

Actually, worrying about what to worry about is the least of my worries. I have an ace in the hole that comes around on a weekly basis.

What in the world am I going to write about in next week's column?

Some straight talk about the Perkins Nuclear Station, the Yadkin River and your electric service.

We're planning to build a nuclear power plant on the Yadkin River near Mocksville, North Carolina. Some people don't like that. They're afraid the plant will use up too much of the Yadkin's water. That there may not be enough water for all the other things the river has to do.

We're concerned, too. About the future reliability of electric service in the Piedmont Carolinas. About its cost. And about the things you've heard about the Perkins station that just aren't true.

So we're taking this opportunity to try to set the record straight. Because we think you want to know. And because we can do a better job of making sure there will be enough electricity, at the best possible price, if you do know the facts.

The following questions are asked most frequently about the Perkins station and its impact on the Yadkin River and the environment of this area. We have attempted to answer these questions as concisely as possible and in terms that are easily understood.

Why does Duke need to build another power plant?

The demand for electricity increases as our population grows, as new industries move into the Piedmont Carolinas creating new jobs, and as people strive for a better standard of living. We have to build new power plants to keep up with that demand. The Perkins station is one of several new power plants we're planning and building to make sure there will be enough electricity in the future. These plants are scheduled for completion as they are needed to meet the growing demand for power.

Even with stringent conservation efforts, energy forecasts by Duke, by state and federal agencies, and by independent experts agree that the Perkins station must be built, as scheduled, to meet the future electric needs of this area.

Why was this particular site chosen?

The site of the Perkins station was chosen because of its excellent geological qualities, water supply, availability of land, access to transportation facilities, compatibility of its environment with plant construction and operation, and because of its proximity to cities and towns where the electricity will be needed. Any steam-electric station, regardless of the type fuel used, requires vast quantities of water. This water can be provided only by a large river or lake. The Yadkin is one of the five major rivers in the Piedmont Carolinas with sufficient water flow for this purpose. Yet, even considering the Perkins station in full operation, the Yadkin would have the lowest relative use of water for electric generation than any of the other rivers.

Why is so much water required for a power plant?

A power plant generates electricity by using steam to turn the blades of a turbo-generator. After the steam has done its job, it has to be condensed back into water and returned to the steam generator (or boiler, in the case of a coal-fired plant) so that it can be reheated and used again. This condensation is accomplished by transferring the steam's low-grade heat to a second source of water. In some cases, water from a river or lake is pumped directly through the condensers and carries the heat away with it back to the river or lake. In this process, the water eventually gives up the heat to the atmosphere through evaporation, conduction and radiation. Another way to condense the steam is to recirculate this cooling water in a closed system and use "cooling towers" to dissipate the heat. In such a system, the heat is given up to the atmosphere almost entirely through evaporation. A river or lake is still required with cooling towers to replace the water that is evaporated. The Perkins station is designed to use cooling towers.

Why will cooling towers be used at Perkins?

Duke has long advocated the use of lakes, instead of cooling towers, because of the many recreational opportunities lakes provide. Many of the lakes in the Piedmont Carolinas resulted from that philosophy. However, at the time the Perkins site was selected and design work initiated, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) had issued regulations requiring the use of cooling towers for new power plants. That regulation resulted from charges by environmental groups that heat discharged back to a river or lake adversely affects aquatic life. Duke and other utilities, armed with overwhelming evidence that such adverse effects do not occur in some areas of the country, including the Piedmont Carolinas, challenged those regulations. The EPA was later ordered by a Federal Appeals Court to redefine its regulations concerning the use of lakes and rivers for surface cooling. The new EPA regulations are not expected to be final before 1979, and it is impossible at this point to know what those regulations may require.

Why doesn't Duke wait until the EPA regulations are known before building the Perkins station?

We can't. Not if our area is to avoid a major power shortage in the late 1980's. It takes 10 to 12 years to design and build a large nuclear power plant. Even if the EPA were to allow lake cooling in its new regulations, the Perkins station would be 6 years late coming into service — the 2 years between now and 1979, plus the 4 years of work that have already gone into the project that would have to be duplicated at the new site. The threat of a 6-year power shortage could mean economic chaos for our area. And there is no assurance that even the new EPA regulations will allow lake cooling.

How much water will be evaporated by the Perkins cooling towers?

With the station in full operation, the cooling towers will evaporate about 45 million gallons of water per day. This may seem like a lot of water, but actually it is only 2-1/2% of the Yadkin's average flow.

But what about periods of low river flow?

We'll build a lake near the Perkins station in which water will be stored to supplement the normal river flow. When the flow drops from its average down to a level of 1,000 cubic feet per second, all the water used by the Perkins station will be replaced from the lake. Based on studies of the Yadkin's flow over a 20-year period, it is expected that the storage lake will be used only about 2% of the time — or about 7 days a year.

How will people be assured that Duke will not affect the river flow during low-flow periods?

The "Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity" received for the project from the N. C. Utilities Commission prohibits Duke from making any net withdrawals of water from the Yadkin when the river flow reaches 1,000 cubic feet per second. That makes it legally binding. During these periods, all water evaporated by the cooling towers would have to be replaced from the storage lake.

What effect will the Perkins station have on the level of High Rock Lake?

Computer studies of the Yadkin River and High Rock Lake during a 20-year period show that operations of the Perkins station would reduce the lake level by no more than 3 inches 95% of the time. In fact, because of dry weather and low flows in the Yadkin River this summer, the level of High Rock Lake just last week was down about 7 feet. If the Perkins station had been in full operation this summer, the level of the lake last week would have been only 2-1/2 inches lower.

Will the Perkins station cause poor quality water in the Yadkin River?

No. The water released from the station will fully meet all water quality standards of the state and federal governments.

Will the loss of water from the Yadkin as a result of the Perkins station jeopardize the future availability of water for municipal, industrial and agricultural uses?

No. Studies have shown that with Perkins operating at full capacity over its lifetime, there will be enough water in the Yadkin for all future municipal, industrial and agricultural uses. During low-flow periods, the station will have no effect on the availability of water for these purposes since water evaporated by the station's cooling towers will be replaced from the storage lake.

Have the Perkins site location and water use plans been reviewed by anyone outside of Duke?

Yes. The site location and water use plans have been reviewed by a number of state and federal agencies, including the N. C. Environmental Management Commission, the N. C. Utilities Commission and the U. S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission. In each of these reviews, comments were requested from other appropriate agencies such as the EPA, U. S. Department of Interior and the Army Corps of Engineers. In each review, which included public hearings at which members of the public were given an opportunity to express their opinions, the Perkins site location and all water use aspects of the project were found suitable.

There are always some environmental effects when a new power plant is built. The land is changed. Power lines have to be built. The water is used. There is no way to make electricity without affecting the environment. And there's no way to have economic health without an adequate supply of electricity.

The Perkins Nuclear Station is vital to the future electric supply of the Piedmont Carolinas. The effects it will have on the environment are small, especially compared to the tremendous benefits it will offer in assuring a reliable source of electric power.

We'd like to anwer all your questions about the Perkins station, its effect on the Yadkin River, or any other concerns you may have. Send them to us on the coupon below.

We want you to know the facts about this important link in your future electric supply.

Suzanne Says . . .

The museum of automobiles in Marrilton, Arkansas on top of beautiful petit Jean mountain is a non-profit organization that has an outstanding display of antique and classic automobiles.

Housed in the beautiful ultra-modern building built by the late Arkansas governor, Winthrop Rockefeller, the automobiles are on loan from collectors throughout Arkansas and surrounding states.

The museum commands attention all its own. The structure provides 22,500 square-feet of area unencumbered by interior pillars. The roof line swings down on a principle similar to a suspension bridge.

An antique car fair and swap meet is held at the museum each year. The third week-end in June the fair features such activities as auto-judging, tours, style shows and other events.

A visit to petit Jean mountain is an occasion to remember. They have done a lot of letting nature alone so you can see the blue, green and great outdoors at its best.

If you were to order something to eat here it would probably be cat fish for there are cat fish ponds everywhere in Arkansas. They raise many there. I tried to find a catfish recipe for you and it's simple--

Take cleaned cat fish, roll in corn meal and deep fry in oil and salt. Serve. Very Good!

GI Bill Students Cautioned On Payment Allowances

The Veterans Administration cautions GI Bill students that advance payment of educational allowances, which can amount to as much as two month's benefits at the start of a school term, are just that -- an advance on future allowances.

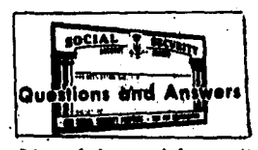

Winston-Salem VA Regional Acting Director C.E. Howard advises that if a student requests advance payment and the school agrees to process it, the normal interval until the first recurring monthly VA check is received will be 80-85 days.

For example, Howard said, if a veteran accepts advance payment upon registering September 12, it will represent allowances for classroom attendance during September and October. No additional benefits will be paid until December 1, covering class attendance for November. Subsequent checks will follow each additional month of enrollment.

Anticipated financial requirements during the first three months of the new school term should be considered now, Howard urges. However, additional VA money help is available to eligible GI Bill students. Education loans, which provide up to $1,500 per academic year, may be granted to students needing assistance beyond regular VA allowances. In some cases, applications may be filed for a VA loan before classes begin. School financial aid officers can provide complete information.

Participation in VA's work-study program is another source of financial assistance. Eligible students can be advanced $250 toward a maximum $625 that can be earned in work-study projects during a school semester.

Complete information on all educational assistance programs can be obtained from the veterans representative on campus or the local VA office.

I heard that social security benefits are going to be reduced in the future, because of a mistake in how they are figured. Is this true?

Future benefits will not be reduced. However, under present law, benefits are increased essentially twice--once through the automatic cost of living increase, and secondly through the increasing wage based on which retirement benefits are figured. If this were to continue, future retirement benefits would skyrocket beyond the point where the system could support them without a drastic tax increase. In all likelihood that error will be legislatively corrected, but future benefits will continue to reasonably increase to keep pace with the cost of living.

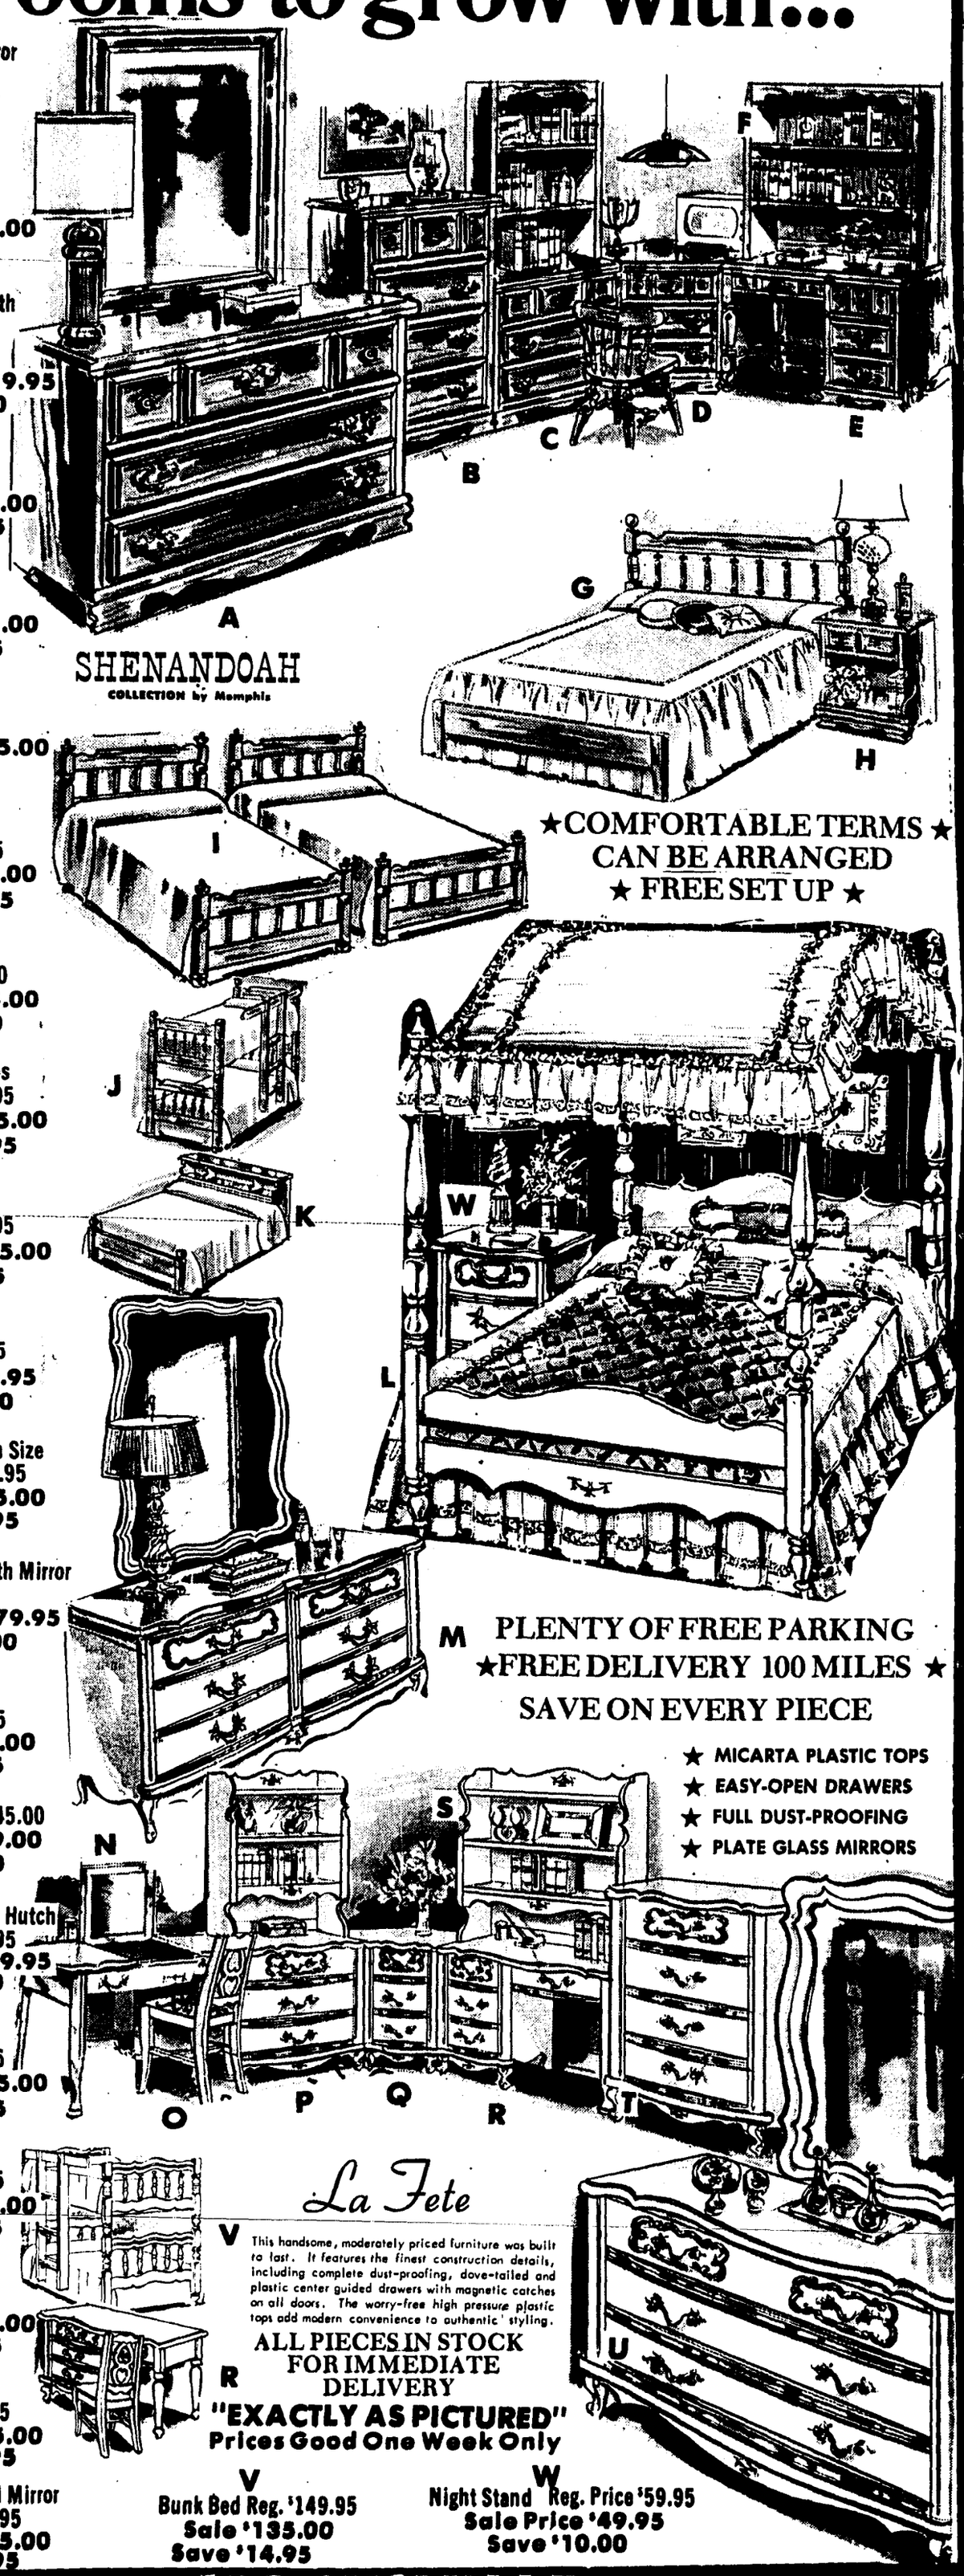

My wife and I will be 62 next year and I'd like to retire then. But my wife says we'll lose money because our benefits will be reduced, and she wants to wait until we're 65. Would we really get much less in benefits if we retire early?

You would get less than full benefits if you retire before you're 65 because you would be receiving benefits for a longer period of time. The exact amount you benefits will be reduced depends on the number of months you get checks before you reach 65.

I plan to keep working past 65 while my wife will start getting social security retirement checks at 62. Will either of us be eligible for Medicare?

You can get Medicare at 65 even though you continue working full time. Contact any social security office 2 to 3 months before you reach 65 even though she may be entitled to monthly social security retirement benefits.

North Carolina Watershed Project Review Complete

Following a request from President Carter, the Soil Conservation Service has completed its review of 22 small watershed projects in North Carolina for economic justification – the cost-benefit ratio using current interest rates – safety, and effects on the environment, it was disclosed today by State Conservationist Jesse L. Hicks.

With completion of the review, recommendations have been made to the President, who is expected to make his findings known in the near future.

The survey was part of a nationwide appraisal of peojects under Public Law 566, which provides for the flood protection projects.

"Widespread interest has been expressed this year in such projects, due to the shortage of water caused by hot weather and drought," Jesse Hicks commented.

"Such projects can be planned for municipal or rural water supply."

Twenty-one projects have been completed in North Carolina, making this one of the top states in the nation in completed projects, and work is under on 13 others.

Jesse Hicks said that projects previously ready for contract, and actual construction, will not be affected.

"All watershed projects which have not been brought into full compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act will be brought into full compliance before any work is undertaken," Hicks continued.

"Naturally, all new projects now being planned will also fit the prescribed standards," he added.

As part of the review, according to Richard Folsche, Assistant State Conservationist for water resources in North Carolina, new safety standards that would protect watershed dams even in case of an earthquake have been considered.

Farm Bureau News

"Today's consumer demands high quality, uniform products in sufficient quantities to provide nutritional diets," Davie County Farm Bureau president Jimmy Boger, said recently.

He added, however, that "excessive government regulations are putting an increasing burden on the farmer in his attempts to fulfill his responsibilities."

Boger made this observation in a progress report of the county Farm Bureau's annual membership drive which is now underway. He said the organization is well on its way of meeting its goal of 50 additional members this year. If fulfilled as expected, there would be a total of 1,250 Farm Bureau members in Davie County.

According to Boger, the countryside has literally been flooded with directives, standards, inspections, investigations, rulings, deadlines, and penalties.

"For example, I understand the Occupational Safety and Health Act(OSHA) has led to almost 4,400 rules, and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) pesticide regulations cover 1,400 basic chemical ingredients which make up 35,000 kinds of pesticides and herbicides."

He said federal agencies often establish rules and regulations that are based more on political considerations than on scientific data.

"Farm Bureau at both state and national levels has been instrumental in reducing the impact of government regulations on agriculture;" according to Boger.

"In order to fight these excessive regulations farmers need the unity of purpose and powerful voice that membership in Farm Bureau can provide," he declared.

Library News

The other day a good friend of ours, the Great Reader, stopped in to ask how things were at his favorite library. We were excited about the School Kid's Films starting September tenth with Gene Autry in Boots and Saddles, but we knew this was not the Great Reader's style. We had to explain to him that we had been doing quite well, thanks, but that things could be better.

"How so?" asked the Great Reader, "I thought that with these great new writers such as Rosemary Rogers and Jack Higgins you would be doing a land office business."

"Well," we told the Great Reader" they have kept people interested in our product, although Higgins can't really decide which of his names to put on his books. And Rogers has all the women expecting exotic lovers while most of us are content to drink Cheerwine and work in the garden. Quite frankly, Great Reader, how can you compete with these books? This writer in the Chancellor Manuscript goes through every shocking experience known to man, and how about this book The Other Side of Midnight, how Torrid can a love affair get? And another one talks about raising the Titanic! Now really."

"That all sounds pretty mundane to me," commented the Great Reader, who has, after all, read almost everything under the sun from the Happy Hooker to Quality Controls in Nuclear Medicine: Radio Pharmaceuticals, Instrumentation & in-Vitro Assays, which he especially liked. "Do you have all of those books in stock?"

We assured the Great Reader that we tried to have them all but that they have a way of disappearing, either by literally walking away, or by refusing to return. "We have many patrons who check these books out and never return. Needless to say, the books never return either."

"Doesn't that impose a hardship on your other readers?"

We assured the Great Reader that it did indeed, but that they were awfully patient. After all, we said, the books are bought with everyone's tax money, and every time books or so do not come back it is as if all the taxpayers in Davie County had to ante up a penny apiece. And many more than five books don't come back.

The Great Reader pondered this and when he gave us his donation of forty-seven paperbacks he had read the night before, he flipped us a penny. "Let some poor slob off the hook," he chuckled.

The Great Reader left shortly (with about one-fourth of our biographies) but he will be back in three weeks.

LuVada Bowens Is Honored At Shower

LuVada Bowens, September 17 bride-elect of Robert Wisecarver was honored with a miscellaneous floating shower Wednesday, August 10 at the home of Mrs. Clyde Wisecarver.

A yellow and green color scheme was carried out in the home. Refreshments were punch, cake squares, nuts and mints.

Upon her arrival, the honoree was presented a white and green shasta daisy corsage.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Clyde Wisecarver, Angie Wisecarver and Teresa Foster. Among the guests present was Mrs. Garland Bowens, mother of the bride-elect.

LuVada Bowens was honored with a floating miscellaneous shower at the Fellowship Hall of the Cornatzer Methodist Church Saturday night, August 13.

Hostesses for the occasion were Betty Jean Bowens, Margaret Dwiggins, Elsie Angell, and Pauline Allen, all aunts of the bride-elect.

The fellowship hall was decorated with pink and lavendar. Upon her arrival, the honoree was presented a corsage of pink shasta daisies.

Punch, pickles, mints and finger sandwiches were served to the approximately 25 guests attending including Mrs. Garland Bowens, the honoree's mother, and her grandmother, Mrs. Leona Bowens.

The couple received many useful and lovely gifts from the guests attending.

Prisoners In Local Jail

state units if they wish. The law passed by the General Assembly just gives them the authorization to send prisoners to county jail and they are encouraged to send them to county jails rather than state prison units.

Judges can also send prisoners to state prison units if the local jail is filled to capacity; or cannot accommadate in its facility due to segregation requirements; or if the local jail does not meet minimum standards.

The Davie County jail does meet minimum standards at the present.

The other problem, mentioned earlier, that counties could possibly face is the overcrowding of their facilities in the effort to eliminate the overcrowding problem in state prison units.

Vogler said that he could not tell if Davie could face such an overcrowding problem.

"It is just the commissioners job to provide adequate facilities and the commissioners thought they had adequate facilities when they built the new jail back in 1971," said Vogler.

However, Sheriff Kiger said that during one Superior Court session they had prisoners sleeping on the floor. The local jail has a capacity of nineteen.

Yet, it seems to early to say that Davie will have an overcrowding problem with it's jail. Presently, the county does not have to worry about housing prisoners that have been in state prison units, for the county has none there now.

One possible factor could be that judges may be more apt to sentence a prisoner to an active jail term because he would just be serving time in a county jail, where in the past judges may have been hesitant in sending them to state prison units.

The immediate problem though will be meeting the costs of housing prisoners if the state decides not to offer more than the prosed $8 a day per prisoner figure.

District Rotary Governor Visits Mocksville

The Governor of District 769 of Rotary International paid his official visit to the Mocksville Rotary Club, Tuesday.

Frank H. (Chip) Wood of High Point challenged members of the local club to "involve self in serving mankind".

Pointing out that the President of Rotary International had adopted as his objective for the year of "Serve To Unite Mankind", Mr. Wood outlined the many ways in which a Rotarian could serve to aid in the uniting of Mankind.

"There are Rotary Clubs in 152 countries and geographical districts of the world today. The average attendance at the weekly meetings for these clubs is 82.5 percent. This means that every week about 648,000 men are meeting together, thinking together and talking together, about improvement of life styles", said Mr. Wood.

He urged each Rotarians to look forward with the philosophy of "This Day Is The First Day Of The Rest Of My Life" and do his utmost to project the Rotary program and purpose.

He was introduced by Claude Horn Jr., President of the Mocksville Club. Prior to the general meeting, Mr. Wood met with the club officers and lane chairmen.

Citizens Express Views To 'Camera 12'

By Doug Livengood

What's on the minds and in the hearts of the people of Mocksville and Davie County?

Well, if the interviews conducted on the courthouse square in Mocksville, Tuesday, August 16, by Dave Plyler of television station WXII in Winston-Salem for "Camera 12" are any indication, recreation is a major concern for the citizens of Davie County.

Resident after resident of the town and county voiced their beliefs that more recreational facilities are needed for local citizens.

Wade Leonard, a Mocksville attorney, said that he believed that swimming, boating, parks and other recreational activities are much needed locally.

Joyce Ferebee expressed her disappointment that the Elisha Creek Lake proposal had been defeated by the voters of the county two months ago. She said that she has a 20-months-old son and wanted him to have recreational opportunities in Davie and not be forced to go outside of the county.

Children and teenagers repeatedly told of their desire to have more recreation in the town and county. One teenager said that the closest place to go swimming in the county was at Cooleemee. One child said that Mocksville needs a motion picture theater. Another child said that he wished that there was a bowling alley in the area.

A woman told Plyler that more recreational activities were needed for people of all ages in the area, but most especially teenagers.

"If you can't lick 'em, join 'em," said one man to Plyler. This man was referring to the fact that Davie County is "dry" on the alcohol question. He was advocating that the county go "wet" because the counties near Davie that are "wet" collect tax revenues from alcohol which Davie could be using for numerous programs, including recreation.

Another woman also suggested that alcohol revenues could be used for many needed programs in the county.

George Kontos, a Davie High student, told Plyler that the balloons released recently to determine the probable travel patterns of possible radiation from the proposed Perkins Nuclear Station had been found in several parts of neighboring counties. Kontos expressed concern over the effects of radiation.

The present prison system was a topic of concern for one man interviewed by Plyler. He told Plyler that he thought prisoners were receiving too good treatment and he thought they should be made to go out and work while serving sentences.

Mocksville resident, Frank Stroud, said that the town should have more parking spaces and that the stores needed to be updated. A teenager also told Plyler that more parking spaces were needed in the town. One child said that the local area needs a shopping center to serve local customers.

A teenager said that he was opposed to the 55-mph speed limit. Another teenager said that local law enforcement officers should spend more time preventing and solving major crimes than in concentrating on small offenses. An interviewee said law enforcement is good in some places but that it was "not worth a hill of beans" in Davie County.

The need for more morality and religion in daily lives was expressed by some of the persons interviewed by Plyler. One woman said that she wanted "people to come together again and serve God" in Davie County. A man said that he wanted everybody to be "saved and born again."

Local attorney, Peter Hairston, emphasized the rich historical heritage of Mocksville and Davie County.

Several people told Plyler that Mocksville and Davie County were good places in which to live. Elizabeth Hooks said that she had just moved here from Raleigh and she was fond of the small town life here.

"The "Camera 12" program filmed in Mocksville on Tuesday will be aired on television station WXII, channel 12, on Saturday, August 20, at 6:00 p.m. and 11:00 p.m. There is also the possibility that some segments of the filming will be aired on the "Midmornning" program on WXII on Monday, August 22, and on Tuesday, August 23, between 9:00 and 10:00 a.m.

Council To Sponsor Davie Chorus This Fall

The Davie County Chorus will resume its schedule on Tuesday, September 6th, 7:15 p.m. at the fellowship hall of the First Baptist Church, Main Street, Mocksville. The chorus will rehearse each Tuesday during the month of September and October with a final rehearsal on October 28 and a performance at the B.C. Brock auditorium on October 29th.

The music to be performed will be of a variety. There will be both sacred and secular. Some will be light in nature; others more serious and advanced.

The director for this fall schedule will again be Paul Peterson of Salem. The accompanist will again be Mike Hendrix of Cooleemee.

The fee for this fall session is $5.00. All music will be housed in the Davie County Library to be used again in future concerts by the Davie Chorus and by other choirs and choruses within the county who might wish to borrow them. Music from the Spring session is already available to the public and is in the County Library. Also, cassettes of the June 3rd performance can be obtained by sending $5.00 along with your name and address to the Arts Council.

Because of the unanticipated large turn-out at the Spring session, and consequently a shortage of music, the Arts Council is asking that anyone interested in joining the Davie Chorus to please send a check in the amount of $5.00 to:

Davie Arts Council, Box 744, Mocksville, along with your name, address, phone number and the vocal part you sing. This will reserve music for you and make it available the very first night. The council urges this to be done right away.

The fall session is funded by the Arts Council and the United Way.

It Was A Hot And Humid Day

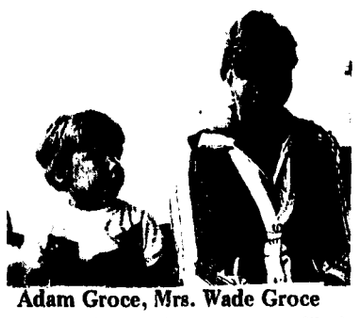

'Picnic Friends' Greet One Another At The 97th Event

by Jerry Paige

Many places, many times, friendly faces and reminiscing. No place like the Masonic Picnic to be able to roll back the years of memories.

The 97th Masonic Picnic was a hot and humid time but there was a breeze which helped. Also the fans from Eatons Funeral Service were kept busy.

It was good to see faces light up when someone would see an old friend.

Adam Groce, Mrs. Wade Groce

What Adam Wade Groce, age 5 liked about the Picnic were the rides. His grandmother, Mrs. Wade Groce of Pudding Ridge Farm, accompanied him to the picnic.

Dot, Bill McDaniel, Rhonda Campbell

Billy McDaniels was seen waiting patiently for his wife Dot to hobble to the arbor, with her walker. She said, "We had to come to bring our 10th basket."

"Used to come but haven't been for several years," said Harmon McMahan of Rt. 2. He then added "Seems like the crowd hasn't come in—will come out tonight.

Kathy Cockerman, Todd Hallman, Sharon Hallman, Steve Gaither, Laverne Sherrill were seen paying to gate keeper Jimmy James of Advance. He said, "I'm here every year on Thursday around 9 a.m. till 10 at night. This I'm glad to do for the children. They deserve it."

Attending from San Antonio, Texas were Peyton, 10, and Charles, 12, grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Haines Yates.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lasley have moved since last year. They now reside at the Masonic and Eastern Star Home, Box 80, Greensboro, N.C. They haven't missed more than four since they married in 1923.

"Been here about 40 years or better, said Mrs. Roy Groce of 541 Pine Street.

Quite often you could hear "Haven't seen you in so long." So many friends you see once a year at the picnic.

Orioles build nests that are so strongly woven they can swing securely on a leafless bough through winter storms.

Emmett R. Wolfe, Kyle Rector

A Mason for over 50 years, Emmett R. Wolfe of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio came for his first time. He visiting his daughter and her husband in WinstonSalem, Mr. and Mrs. Kyle Rector. Mrs. Rector said, "Dad's 84 and just bought a new car. A friend, Mrs. Robert Osborne, Jr. from Winston-Salem attended with them and said she was interested because she was reared in Farmington, the granddaughter of Jake Sain.

"I've won a "Partridge in a pear tree," not knowing what to call the stuffed animal, "but we've been coming ever since we were little", said Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Frye of Mocksville.

Coming for over 70 picnics was Cecil Morris of Mocksville. He said, "I've missed a few but have been coming since I was a kid."

Miles Hoffman, Cooleemee said, "I've been coming to the picnic ever since I can remember. Missed '43-'44 and '45 when I was in the Army. '44 was the polio epidemic. I can remember I used to carry Mr. Boone Cartner's cows across town every morning and go back every evening to get money for the picnic. Got a quarter a week and that was seven days a week.

Mrs. John M. Groce has been attending the Picnic for many years and looks forward each year to enjoying the day with old friends.

Paul Harpe and Mother

Paul Harpe, 14 months old, was at the Picnic for his second time. He came with his sister, Holly, and mother. Mrs. Harpe's mother, Mrs. Grant Smith of Mocksville, and sister Mrs. David Fesperman of Salisbury were also there.

Mrs. Ida Tutterow, Rt. 1 is 85 and will be 86 in December. "I've been to all but about two. Remember coming in a covered wagon," Mrs. Tutterow said. She added that, "I always meet my old friend Robert Bailey from Pennsylvania here and we have a date for meeting here next year." Her daughters Mrs. Nancy Tutterow, Rt. 1, and Mrs. Charles Pitts of Alexandria, Va. were enjoying the picnic with their mother.

It was a new experience for Charlie Thomas to help Robert Brown serve Pepsi. They both are from Winston-Salem and had to stand in the hot sun to serve.

Jeter Cheek, will be 83 in October said, "I haven't been in this county long. Been coming for two or three years. I live in Advance now. Came here from Winston-Salem but I was raised in Yadkinville."

Mrs. Nancy Robertson, and daughter, Nandine Newsome of Route 3 and granddaughter Mrs. Joe Lamb of Advance, enjoyed the picnic.

Mr. and Mrs. M.L. Hoffman, Lexington have been three or four times in the last few years. Mr. Hoffman has been a Mason since 1927.

Rev. C.E. Crawford was enjoying his grandchildren Tammy Crawford, Jean and Jackie Wentz of Arden, North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie W. Howard, Advance Rt. 2, were happy to get to the picnic this year. Last year they didn't get here because they were in the hospital.

At last Mr. and Mrs. James L. Timmons, Winston-Salem, got to the picnic. They have lots of Mason friends and have wanted for years to come but couldn't make it until he retired. He's 79 and Mrs. Timmons is 72.

Mr. and Mrs. C.T. Byrd and her brother, Luke VanHoy, all of Yadkinville and Mrs. Byrd's sister, DeEtte James and granddaughter Bonnie Darnell, of Winston-Salem were seen enjoying the picnic.

Dr. John Varner, James E. Lambeth and Peter Hairston are the three who represent Davie and Davidson Counties in the N.C. General Assembly were at the picnic.

It is a good place for contacts so Dave McKnight who is walking through the state of N.C. from Manteo to the mountains went to the Picnic with his grandfather, who lives in Salisbury.

Minnie Turrentine, Jettie Stine

"We made a mistake last year and said that Mrs. Minnie Turrentine was 96 but we checked and she is 96 this year," said Mrs. Jettie Stine of Winston-Salem. Mrs. Ophelia Vest also brought Mrs. Kinley Dyson and Mr. Johnson from Winston-Salem.

Some of those seen at the picnic were: Vernon Thompson, Jesse Boyce, Dwight Sparks, Jesse Poindexter, Danny Smith, Mrs. Willie Grooms, Tom Woodruff, Lt. Gentle, Alton Carter, A.D. Adams, Charlie Brown, Nan Cornatzer, Richard Brock, William Laurie Brock, Jim Sheek, Garry Potts, Pauline Bowles.

From Union Grove for the second time came Roy Templeton who said, "My brothers are all Masons. I think it's a good organization."

Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Walls of Winston-Salem were interested in seeing old friends. He was reared at Fork and she at Farmington. They brought her sister Hattie Freeman Wood of Farmington. They said, "We came as children. Been coming all our lives." Mrs. Wood added, "As a child I couldn't wait to get here for the swings."

Lester E. Frye said he had been coming since 1929 and his wife Catherine said, "I've been coming since I came in a two horse wagon and also came in a buggy." Mr. and Mrs. Frye are from Duke Street, Cooleemee.

A Mason, Raymond Petree of Winston-Salem, brought his wife and her sisters Mrs. Mable Hayes, Dunn, N.C., and Mrs. E.F. Barbee of Winston-Salem. It was their first trip.

Jug Howard said he had attended "several in the lot of years. Used to come with a quarter or 50 cents."

J.H. Markham of Salisbury Street said, "I come to celebrate my birthday. I will be 84 on August 15th. I sure have a good time." His daughter Hilda always sees that he is there.

Working until he was 75, and after retirement started coming to the picnic, was Mr. Sidney Johnston of Winston-Salem. His father and a son are Masons.

Shelby Shipton and "Snoopy"

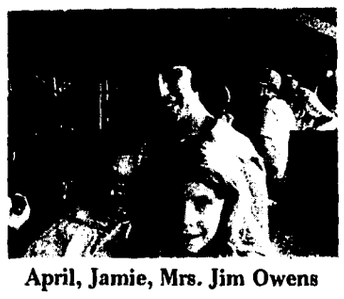

Jim Shipton, Rt. 7, Mocksville was proudly following his daughter Shelby, age 4. When asked what she had named her new found friend, a stuffed dog won at the picnic, she answered "Snoopy".

Thelma Myers and son David, brought her mother Mrs. Mary Branch and brother Walter Branch.

Floyd Munday and sister, Mrs. Willie Cartner, both of Rt. 2, Advance, have been coming for about 50 years.

During one of the speeches, loud and clear, came "Break one nine". That let us know it's the day of the CB's, even though most people were reminiscing of wagon days.

Paul D. Peebles who lives on US 64 said, "I'm 80 and I've been coming ever since I was seven."

April, Jamie, Mrs. Jim Owens

For the first time came April Owens, just four months old. She attended with her family Jamie, age six, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Owens, Rt. 1, Advance.

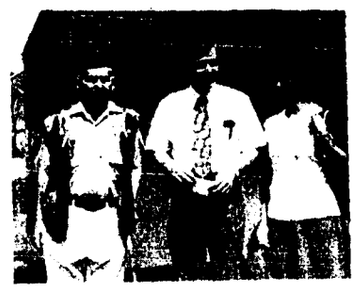

Mrs. Raymond English, Hendersonville, was seen rushing around but never is too busy to stop to talk with the friends she has made through the years at the Picnic. She and Alfred Williams of Troutman are co-managers of the Lee Rides. She said her father-in-law gave her two of the lanterns that were used for the merry-go-round when the picnic first started night rides.

Cecelia, Sue, Betty

Sue Caudle, Cecelia Hemric and Betty Rouse were seen together enjoying the picnic. Michael and Chris Caudle ages 9 and 6 were checking with their mother periodically.

Jim Bowles, Cherry Street, Mocksville has been coming all his life, 73 years, and came in a wagon when a baby. "I've been working as security guard for over 20 years here at the picnic," he said.

Frank Stroud, Grady McClamrock, Mrs. Grady McClamrock, Sr.

The biggest difference of now and then is that when I started back in 1913 the ride was only 10 cents, and the merry-go-round was the only ride. Lemonade was two glasses for a nickle. I used to shine shoes for 5 cents a shine for two weeks before the picnic to have enough to spend at the picnic," said Frank Stroud of Maple Ave., Mocksville.

Walter Wilson

Nellie Angell, Rt. 6, said, "I've been coming ever since I was a little bittie thing—about 40 years. This used to be in woods and we would spread lunch. Lots of changes from one year to another. My father and I were just talking about the changes." Father is Walter Wilson, 85, who said, "I've been coming about 70 years. I've seen a lot of changes. Used to hitch the horses back in those woods (indicating toward the ice plant. women wore long dresses and sometimes it would rain and we would walk around in the mud all day."

And as I was wearily leaving the picnic I began to talk with Lorie Michelle Pilcher, age five, who brought her mother Mrs. Joann Pilcher, Huntsville, and grandmother Mrs. Hazel Riddle, Yadkin Valley. True to tradition we found what the picnic is all about for old timers. We found out with them our great Aunt Sallie was the same person. It is nice to talk with strangers and become friends through those we have loved in the past.

Two very, very hot scouts were being relieved in the parking lot to go inside the gates and enjoy themselves. They were from Mocksville Troop 575 and were Tommy Plott and Gregg Dull.

As though the heat weren't enough during the day when I opened the car the heat was even worse. It was like sitting in an oven. It was nice to ride and get a little air. Although I was thinking then it was so hot it might be my last picnic, I'm revived now and a little cooler and will be ready next year to meet some "Picnic Friends" again.

Backpacking Candidate For Senate Walks Through Davie

Dave McKnight, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, walked into Davie County last Tuesday (August 9) and then "hot-footed-it" the next day by Cooleemee enroute to Salisbury.

McKnight came into the county from Lexington via US 64. He stopped at a service station in Fork and remained for about two hours playing Ralph (Boney) Leonard's fiddle. McKnight is a bluegrass music enthusiast.

Scheduled to speak to a meeting of the Davie Democratic Women that night, he accepted a ride into town to keep the speaking engagement. However, early the next day he returned to Fork and resumed his walk from the exact point he stopped. "I'm not going to cheat on this walk", he said.

To emphasize his campaign, McKnight is walking from Manteo to Murphy. "I'm taking time," he said, "to examine the 100 pieces that make up this complex puzzle that is North Carolina."

Speaking to the Democratic Women of Davie County, McKnight heartily endorsed President Carter's welfare-reform program. He said the proposed plan is the way we ought to go "because it would make it more profitable to work than to remain perpetually idle on welfare."

Wednesday morning he visited around Mocksville before resuming his walk south.

At Greasy Corner he stopped at J.H. Foster's Store. Here he asked four men:

"I want to know how many statewide politicians have walked through Greasy Corner looking for votes?"

On his walk to Greasy Corner he passed an elderly couple sitting on their front porch trying to stay comfortable in 94-degree temperatures. Sweating profusely, McKnight walked up to the porch, introduced himself and told the couple he was walking from Manteo to Murphy.

On the road David McKnight weathers hot temperatures as he carries a pack containing 20 pounds of clothes, shaving equipment, and campaign cards on his back.

"I heard about you on the radio the other day", said Joe Spry, an 87-year-old farmer.

After a few words of chit-chat, Spry asked McKnight: "Are you a Democrat or a Republican"?

"I'm a Democrat, but I've seen a few Republicans in my life", replied McKnight.

"Well your're looking at a Democrat," Spry said. "And I'm one too", said Mrs. Spry.

McKnight spent last Wednesday night in Salisbury with his grandfather, John L. Henderson. It was with his grandfather that he first hear of Mocksville.

"We attended an American Legion Junior Baseball playoff in Salisbury and Mocksville was one of the teams. That was in the early 1950's," he said.

At 29, McKnight is the youngest candidate to run for the U.S. Senate.

McKnight feels the walking gimmick emphasizes his whole campaign theme of "doing more with less". "It's an efficient means of transportation for me in this part of the campaign because I can emphasize the small communities," he said.

He thinks he walks a brisk 4 to 5 miles per hour, covering at least 15 miles a day. The walk will end in October in Murphy after he has gone across 50 counties in the state. The trek began in April from Manteo. Davie was the 35th county crossed.

Formerly from Charlotte, McKnight now lives in Fayetteville. For the past two years he worked at the Fayetteville Observer as a feature writer. He has a total of seven years of experiences with newspapers.

In October he will be married to a Fayetteville girl, who is originally from Texas. After this he says he plans to continue his run for the senate with more conventional approaches.

Relaxing At Cafe

VA To Use Electronic Funds Transfer

Almost five million Americans will get the opportunity next month to begin enjoying one of the benfits of the computer age--having their Veterans Administration compensation and pension payments deposited electronically in their bank, savings and loan institution or credit union.

VA Regional Acting Director C.E. Howard reports the new VA service will eliminate the recipient's worry over lost or stolen benefits checks and will result in what the agency estimates will be an initial yearly savings to the nation's taxpayers of $1.3 million.

It's all part of VA's participation in a sophisticated computer program called Electronic Funds Transfer (EFT).

Beginning August 1, veterans or survivors of veterans receiving VA compensation and pension checks can ask to have the payment automatically credited to their account each month. The account can be in a bank, credit union, or savings and loan association holding a state or federal charter.

"Not only will this plan end worry over lost or stolen checks," Howard said, "it results in your check being deposited on the issue date."

Howard said a recent test of the EFT program among compensation and pension check recipients in Georgia and Florida showed the acceptance of the new program.

In the initial month of the test, 8,720 individuals chose the checkless deposit system. By the second month of the test, participatiion had nearly doubled, to a total of 16,835 recipients.

Howard said veterans or their survivors who elect to participate in the new program can have their first benefits payment depostied automatically as early as October 1.

Instructions outlining the simple steps to take will be included with compensation and pension checks to be mailed August 1, he said.

Howard urged eligible veterans or survivors of veterans who have any questions concerning the new program to contact the nearest VA office.

Yearling Steer Sale

The yearling steer sale will be conducted at the Statesville Fairground on September 14.

Consignments must be in the county agriculture agent's office in Mocksville by August 31. There will be no consignment fee this year if consignments are sent in on time. If consignments are late there will be a $1.00 additional fee charged for selling each calf.

Farmers having yearlings to sell at this sale should get in touch with the county agricultural agent's office immediately concerning the rules and regulations of the sale.

High-Speed Railroads

Studying possible high-speed railroads of the future, the Department of Transportation has tested a streamlined locomotive with jet engines and a linear induction electric motor along a six-mile test track at speeds up to 255 miles an hour, reports the National Geographic Society's new book, "Railroads: The Great American Adventure."

Herve Rebut of France challenges his sponsor, Terry Allen of Advance to a game of ping pong. Looking on is Andy McIntyre and his French guest, DeNis Lemoine, Gail Pardon and guest Catherine Cabaret and Mrs. George McIntyre.

French Students Enjoy Visit To Davie

Three French students, who have been guests in the homes of three Davie County families, returned last week to their native land after a months visit.

As participants in the People-to-People program, sponsored by the North Atlantic Cultural Exchange League, a nonprofit organization, the local students hosting their stay here will also have the opportunity to visit in the foreign students' homes in France.

It was an exciting month for the local teenagers, Andy McIntyre, and Gail Pardon of Mocksville, and Terry Allen of Advance. And many times, it was most humorous when comparing the customs of the French to the American people.

This was the second trip to the U.S. for DeNis Lemoine, 17, of Orleans, France, who was Andy's guest. DeNis spent some time last summer in Iowa. He loves America, but says he does not plan another trip next year because he has to stay home "to buy his drivers license".

Getting a drivers license in France is not so easy as in America. DeNis says you have to be 18 to get a license and you must take lessons to learn. The license does not cost anything, but he says you can pay as much as $200 to learn.

Contrary to the belief that most Franch people ride bicycles, DeNis says that most families do have cars. The most popular being the "Citreon", a two-cylinder automobile, which can travel 90 miles per hour. "The big cars have four-cylinders and many families he says have two cars, but there are very, very few six-cylinder models.

Gasoline is another big problem says Herve Rebut, who is the guest of Terry Allen. "It is about two dollars per gallon."

This is Herve's first trip to America and he says it is not at all what he expected. "I was thinking there were still horses . . . and people living in big skyscraper apartments."

Herve, 16, of Thonon Les-Bians, said he loved visiting here and the people were great. Most of all he has enjoyed the stock car and motorcycle races. He does not like Juicy Fruit gum and says the food is very different.

DeNis, Herve, and Catherine Cabaret, who was the house guest of Gail Pardon, all agree that the food is very different.

Unlike the American teenagers, the French students do not like hamburgers and hotdogs . . . or any kind of sandwiches.

Herve was very amused when he visited Hardee's Restaurant, which is where Terry is employed.

"They give you everything in paper . . . your sandwich, potatoes, even the drink," said Herve. "And hotdogs . . . Terry puts on the red sauce, yellow sauce . . . Ugh!

"In France, you take a plate and sit down at the table", he explained. "We have hours to eat . . . at 12 noon and 7 p.m. We do not eat sandwiches."

The students explained that the French take great pride in their meals and all are much more formal than here.

Even the sidewalk restaurants never serve anything "in paper" and you don't eat in the car. You always take a plate and seat yourself at a table, which they consider is proper. And wine is served, to young and old alike, at every meal.

Catherine, 15, of Trappes (near Paris) said the highlight of her visit here was her trip to Myrtle Beach.

"I also like the races, I do not like the food . . . but I like the informal way it is served," she said.

The television programs are different here. In France she says they only have three channels and they show pornographic films on all three . . . "But no commercials, except at the beginning and the end. They never interrupt a movie for a commercial.

"The first time I saw a movie here and the commercial came, I didn't know what happened," said Catherine.

The French television owners pay taxes on their sets, to the networks, which are privately owned, and to the government.

"We have no sales tax", said Herve, who found this custom a hard one to adjust to. "If we buy something for $5, it is not $5.20".

The McIntyres experienced quite a treat when DeNis made a run cake from his grandmothers recipe. "Every frenchman can make many things", he said with a smile.

The schools are quite different. Sports are not a part of the school curriculum in France and they do not play rough games like football. They do have sports however, such as volleyball, soccer, handball and Rugby in the south of France, and they do compete with other teams.

The private schools are all Catholic oriented. The public schools do not have exams every year. Their exams are more like the achievement tests we have here. Herve says that you take one exam around the age of 14 and again around the age of 17.

"After High School, we have nothing," he said unless you go to college. The high schools do not offer any type of trade or occupation which a student could qualify for work if he chose not to further his education. Boys, however, must serve a year in the army. He said if one receives his notice at age 18 and his studies are important enough, he can be deferred, but he must serve during the next five years.

There are numerous little customs of which the French and American differ and which were amusing to both. For instance, the French use sugar on popcorn . . . but that's a matter of taste. These students thoroughly enjoyed each other for one complete month.

Because Andy's mother, Mrs. George McIntyre, was home while school was out this summer, the group usually gathered at their house. They enjoyed ping pong, records and most things which interest teenagers. The boys agreed they were glad to be going back to France but hope to come back again.

Catherine says she enjoyed her stay very much and she "hated to leave."

Although the French kids do not like the same foods always as our kids, Mrs. McIntyre says she thinks they are basically all alike . . . "They all like to eat, they like lively rock music and messy rooms."

Terry and Herve discuss the difference between the American and French automobiles.

Bermuda Run Names Vance Price As Greens Superintendent

Vance R. Price, who resigned as Tanglewood Park manager last month, was named greens superintendent at Bermuda Run Golf and Country Club earlier this week, club owner Billy Satterfield said Monday.

Satterfield said Price eventually will be responsible for all golf course operations at the club in Davie County and will be answerable directly to him. Satterfield declined to discuss Price's salary.

"I think that he's very capable, and I certainly think he was capable of running Tanglewood," Satterfield said. He has known Price for 20 years, he added.

Price, 53, said last month he resigned as Tanglewood manager after he found it impossible to work with the park's 21-member board of directors. The board has since hired two men, at a total of about twice Price's salary, to replace him.

At Bermuda Run Price will eventually replace Jim Ganley, who managed the entire golf course.

Ganley resigned about two weeks ago to become maintenance superintendent at Forest Oaks Country Club in Greensboro, the home of the Greater Greensboro Open. He said he had no conflicts with Satterfield but simply wanted to take a good job offer.

His wife, Margie, who has worked at Central Carolina Bank in Clemmons since last fall, will be leaving there in about a week. The Ganleys will move to Greensboro as soon as Price becomes familiar enough with the Bermuda Run course to run it by himself.

Track Championships To Be Decided Saturday At Bowman Gray

Track championships in all four of Bowman Gray Stadium's stock car racing divisions will be decided Saturday night when the quarter-mile asphalt track ends it season with the "Sun-drop 200" program.

Track manager Joe Hawkins said a "Ladies' Night" event rained out last Saturday night has been cancelled because of a conflict with the stadium's high school football schedule, which begins Aug. 26.

It was announced Saturday night that the rained-out event was rescheduled for Saturday night, Aug. 27. Hawkins said city officials advised him the Aug. 27 date was available "but there was a little catch to it that I didn't understand until we discussed it again Monday."

The "catch," he said, was that the Aug. 26 football game had a priority on Aug. 27 as a rain date. If the football game was postponed because of bad weather, it would be rescheduled for Aug. 27 and the stadium would not be available for the race.

"We couldn't schedule a race and not know whether it was definite until the night before the race," said Hawkins. "So we have cancelled the regular program which was rained out, and we will end our season with the Sun-Drop 200 Saturday night this week."

Hawkins said rain checks from last Saturday night will be honored this week, despite the fact that admission prices for the "Sun-drop 200" will be slightly higher. "We'll give them the difference for getting half drowned," he added. "We don't control the weather, but a lot of people got very wet."

A thunderstorm hit as the strains of the national anthem wafted across the municipal stadium, with cars lined up for the first race. Fifteen minutes later, with the track inundated and a drenched crowd of 10,000 overflowing every form of shelter, Hawkins announced the postponement.

Saturday night's finale for the stadium's 27th season of stock car racing will be a "double-point" event, drivers getting twice as many points as usual in standings which decide track championships.

Thus the sizzling battle between Paul Radford of Ferrum, Va., and Philip Smith of Kernersville for the Winston Racing Series title in the featured Modified Division has boiled down to an almost certain conclusion: The one who finishes ahead of the other in the 200-lap finale will be the champion.

Radford leads Smith by two points in standings. In the first 13 finish positions Saturday night, there will be a drop of four points per position -- with four points to all who finish 13th or lower. In the even both Radford and Smith finished 13th or lower, in any order, Radford would be the champ.

Football Coaches Warned About Heat Illness

With football practice underway, coaches and trainers are urged to be on the lookout for signs of heat illness.

According to Al Proctor, director of the state education agency's Division of Sports Medicine, it is important to watch carefully for signs of lethargy, inattention, stupor, awkwardness or unusual fatigue in players. "Ideally," emphasized Proctor, "student athletes should have begun working out in the early summer to achieve top physical condition when practice begins."

Proctor notes that one of the most common heat illnesses is heat stroke, which occurs when the body loses the ability to sweat. It is believed that lack of acclimation to extreme heat and humidity has as much to do with heat stroke as anything, according to Proctor.

What can a coach do to protect his athletes from heat illnesses? "We are offering several suggestions to coaches across the state," says Proctor. "First, a coach should require a careful medical history and physical examination on each player before allowing him to practice. Workouts should be scheduled during the cooler morning and early evening hours, and players should be acclimated to the heat by graduated practice schedules. Proctor adds that players should also have water breaks every 15 to 20 minutes during workouts of an hour or more. A Temperature Humidity Discomfort Index can be used to determine limitations of practice. This Index can be found in the 1977 edition of the World Almanac. Temperatures and humidity levels identified as "Discomfort" on the Index dictate extreme caution by coaches regarding the type of practice. Schools should provide clothing that is light in color to reflect heat, brief, loose, and comfortable to permit heat escape. Clothing should also be permeable to allow heat loss by sweat evaporation.

Proctor emphasizes that if a heat illness does occur, it is imperative that coaches and trainers know how to treat the injured player. "I case of any emergency," he adds, "the coaching staff should know first-aid practices and have pre-arranged procedures for obtaining medical care."

According to a recent survey conducted by the Division of Sports Medicine, one of the greatest needs of the school athletic program is more athletic trainers to assist the coaching staff in preventing and treating sports related injuries.

State School Superintendent Craig Phillips considers this a very valid part of public education. "Our responsibility does not stop at the classroom door," he says. "We are as concerned about the welfare of the player on the field as we are about the student in the classroom. Heat illnesses can result in serious harm and even death, so it is important for coaches and their staffs to recognize danger signs immediately and to know how to treat them," says Phillips. "But even more important, there are ways to prevent heat illness from occuring, and we urge coaches to follow these simple, commonsense rules for the safety of their players."

Tommy Burrow of King was the winner in the third ET race and collected $40.00 as he defeated Orville Thomas of Mt. Airy. Thomas received $25.00 for his second place finish.

Semi-final winners in the ET-1 race were Arthur Bryant and Mike Westmoreland both of Kernersville picking up $20.00 each and Donald Thomas of Mt. Airy winning $15.00 for being the semi-final winner in the second ET race.

Lanny Wadkins Wins 1977 PGA Title

By Brad Rochester

Lanny Wadkins' first big win on the pro golf tour had been expected for a long time by his friends and neighbors at Bermuda Run, and last weekend it finally came.

Wadkins beat Gene Littler on the third hole of a sudden-death playoff in the PGA Championship at Pebble Beach, Calif., to fulfill the promise he had shown years ago at Wake Forest University and as a rookie on the pro golf tour.

The win was watched on television by many of the people at Bermuda Run, and apparently enjoyed by most of them. Wadkins is Bermuda Run's touring pro and he has a condominium there.

"I had about 20 people over at my house watching by the time it was over," said Billy R. Satterfield, Bermuda Run's developer, this week. "There were only a few when it started Sunday, but more and more kept coming in. Lanny's wife (Rachel) was there, and of course she was real thrilled."

Wadkins' victory was savored by everyone, said Satterfield, because Wadkins has a lot of friends at Bermuda Run.

"A lot of people out here know him, and they were pulling for him because it's natural to pull for your neighbor," said Satterfield. "We live together, play together and pray together at Bermuda Run, and you really get to know each other. We all wanted to see him win."

Satterfield said people at Bermuda Run had known for a long time that Wadkins would win at least one big one someday, although they didn't know before the PGA Championship stated last week that it would be the one.

"I knew it was coming--I wasn't that surprised," said Satterfield. "We'd all been expecting it for a long time, because Lanny's got all the talent in the world.

"But it sure has been a long time coming."

Wadkins, when he was 20, appeared to be golf's up-and-coming player several years ago.

He attended Wake Forest on a prestigious Arnold Palmer scholarship, won the U.S. Amateur championship in 1970, then set a PGA money-winning record for a rookie in 1972. He won more than $200,000 on the tour in 1973, then had serious surgery for an appendectomy and gall bladder.

Wadkins started this year as a non-exempt player, which means he had to beat other non-ranking players in qualifying rounds every week before being allowed to tee it up against the big-name players when the tournaments began. But he did well and was approaching the $100,000 mark in earnings for the year before taking the first prize of $45,000 in the PGA Championship. His money winnings for the year net total $138,919. Last week's win was his first of the year.

"He was on the verge of doing it three years ago before he got sick," said Satterfield. "He's maturing each day now, and each day he grows in wisdom.

"He's got a swing that takes a lot out of him physically, you could see that if you saw him against Gene Littler, who has such an easy, mechanical swing they call him "The Machine." Lanny's swing is a lot more demanding on him, and he needs to be in good health to play well."

Satterfield added that he sometimes worries that Wadkins' may not have a long career because his swing takes so much out of him.

"But now he's got it together," Satterfield said. "He's known all along that he could beat anybody on a given day when he was playing good, and he had it Sunday. That's why you could see him give it a little Wadkins jig on the 18th hole when he knew he could do it. He could see he had a chance to catch Littler and he gave a little jig. Then he did what he had to do. He birdied the 18th hole when no one else could do it, and that put him in the playoff."

Wadkins, 27, shot a 70 for the final round to catch Littler, who had a 76. Both players finished at 282 for the four rounds, a stroke ahead of Jack Nicklaus, who shot a 73 and was disappointed with his finish.

It will be a couple of weeks before Wadkins returns to Bermuda Run, and Satterfield said there probably will be only a small celebration.

"We may put up a temporary sign or something, but it won't be permanent," he said. "After all, we expect him to win many more."

And Wadkins will probably be around to shoot some friendly games with people who live at Bermuda Run, Satterfield said.

"I play our course with him all the time, and so do our other folks," Satterfield said. "This little win will not change him--he'll still be the same Lanny. He's not a cocky person--he's a shy person. But he's got out of that."

But Wadkins may not be around Bermuda Run as much as he had been before. His win has already put him on the U.S. Ryder Cup team and in the World Series of Golf--and perhaps best of all, he is exempt from qualifying for the next 10 years.

Featured In Sports Illustrated

Following his eight-foot birdie putt that brought him the 1977 PGA Championship, Lanny Wadkins went through a press ritual having to relate in detail everything from his breakfast to the winning putt.

He had a late dinner and champagne with California friends, going to bed about midnight and falling to sleep quickly. About three, Wadkins said he woke up and couldn't go back to sleep. "I was so excited, I was replaying every shot in my mind", he said.

He left Monday morning for an exhibition in Vancouver. He will play in the Westchester Classic in Harrison, N.Y., then go to Pittsburgh Monday for another exhibition before returning to Bermuda Run.

The Sports Illustrated magazine will feature Wadkins on it's August 22nd cover which is on sale August 17-24. He is also featured in this magazine in a story of the winner of "The Battle of the Ages" written by Dan Jenkins.

National Guardsmen Hold Combat Training Exercises Here Last Saturday

By Arnold Hendrix

National Guardsmen come from all walks of life. Some are Vietnam veterans and prior servicemen. Others have just graduated from high school. And, sprinkled in among these are law enforcement officers, lawyers, doctors, and employees from business corporations such as Ingersoll-Rand, Heritage, and so on down the line.

"Drill Assembly Weekend" comes around once a month for these men (and women in the near future) who make up Company C of the 2nd Battalion, (Mechanized), 120th Infantry of the North Carolina National Guard.

However, this past drill assembly weekend had a special air to it as two events occurred that usually only happen once a year.

One was the visit from Brigadier General William E. Ingram, the new State Adjutant General over the Army and Air National Guard. The other was the annual Air Mobility Training exercises, which may seem routine to the men and women in the national guard, but stirs up curosity and intrigue from passerbys and others who happen to see the helicopters taking off, landing, and just flying over the town and countryside.

Ingram visited the local armory last Friday as part of a statewide tour to familarize himself with the personnel and armories that make up the state national guard system. Sergeant Don Jewell, A.S.T. of the local unit in Mocksville, said that the visit was significant in that the state adjutant general rarely makes over one or two trips to this area during his term of office. Accompaning Ingram was Command Sergeant Major Jaylon P. Jones, the State Sergeant Major.

After the tour, Ingram and Jones had lunch with Jewell, Platoon Sergeant Jack Koontz, Detachment Commander 1st Lieutenant Jim Cummo, and local citizens Peter Hairston, George Martin, Claude Horen and Col. Hubert Leonard.

The next day, the local armory was the site of two training exercises. That morning, an Air Mobility Training exercise was planned with the three detachments that make up Company C - Mocksville, Mount Airy, and Elkin.

The purposes of the exercises was to get the realization of an actual combat situation, where getting on and off the helicopter and securing the landing site as fast as possible is essential.

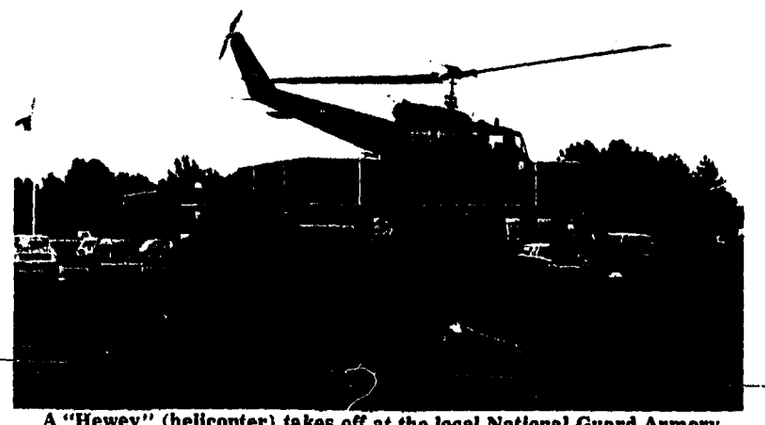

Platoon Sergeant for the Mocksville detachment, Jack Koontz, said that in an actual combat situation there is no room for mistakes and this exercise is to help them realize that.

Yet, as one less realistic soldier put it, you don't get stripes taken off for doing it wrong, you just have to do it.

The four helicopters were from the 449th Aviation Co. in Greensboro, (one of the two aviation units in the state). They were Heweys, which are made for light transportation, whether it be cargo or as in this case men.

Each Hewey has a capacity of nine men, not including the two crew pilots, who in a combat situation must get the men to the ground and take off as fast to avoid being hit.

After chow Saturday the men lined up and took their turns in boarding the Heweys. Soldiers were attired in field equipment, which includes uniform, helmet, pistol belt, two Ammo pouches, first aid kits, canteen, and either a M-16 or M-60 on their backs.

A "Hewey" (helicopter) takes off at the local National Guard Armory last Saturday loaded with guardsmen enroute on an air mobility training exercise.

There were four platoons in all, with each platoon consisting of eleven men. There was the rifle platoon from Mocksville, the rifle platoon from Mount Airy and the rifle and motar platoons from Elkin.

One platoon at a time was carried to the landing site on Roy Cartner's property at the county line bordering Iredell County. Once landed, the platoon reverted back to infantry and their job was to secure the landing site and be picked up after the Heweys had returned from picking up another platoon.

Each platoon took its turn in boarding with instructions to fasten safety belts securely (for the doors would not be closed), to hold onto helmets and artillery, not to exit until the crew chief gave the okay, and to be careful of the rudder in the back. Each platoon disembarked and took its turn securing the landing site.

Then they came back and prepared for the exercise that would take place later that night. This involved some strategic manuvers with a special forces unit from Winston-Salem. The exercise would continue all through the night and would take place on the grounds of the Cooleemee Plantation at Bunk's Hill.

Whether the day's work for guardsmen was routine or not, there would be other exercises in the upcoming months.

These exercises will include the one with the armored tank platoons, and the qualifying on the rifle ranges with drills for the M-16, hand pistols, and hand grenades. Then there will be the annual trip to Fort Hood in Texas next June, where the company will pick up on new techniques and manuevers with an active army company. (Company C of the 2nd Battalion (M) 120th Inf. is one company in the state that has an affiliation with the 1st Cav. Division).

Was it all in a day's work for the soldier? For the laymen it certainly didn't seem routine, but for the soldiers maybe it is like one Vietnam veteran said, "it's what you make it to be- maybe when my time is up I'll re-enlist and then maybe I won't."

Vehicle Hits Utility Pole

A 1970 Chevrolet station wagon hit a puddle of water in the roadway and wrecked early Monday morning on North Main Street in Mocksville.

The driver was identified as Harold Ray Rivers of Rt. 7 Mocksville. The accident happened about 2:15 a.m., just west of Cemetery Street.

Mocksville Policeman Glenn Cornatzer said his investigation showed that Rivers was traveling south on North Main Street, hit a puddle of water, ran off the road and struck a utility pole.

Four passengers in the car were taken to the Davie County Hospital.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $450 and $200 to the utility pole.

Letters To Editor

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Basket Committee of the Annual Masonic Picnic, and all of the Masons of Davie County, we wish to express our sincere appreciation for your splendid cooperation in helping to make our picnic dinner a success.

Were it not for people like you, that are willing to sacrifice to help others, we would not be able to carry out these worth-while projects. We hope that the satisfaction of knowing that you played an important part in extending help to those less fortunate will partly compensate for your time and effort spent in preparing the food.

If the children at Oxford Orphanage could talk with each of you, we know they would certainly join with us in saying "THANKS."

Sincerely yours,

Gentlemen:

At this time I find it difficult to express my feelings, as words are hard to find. I guess what I am trying to say is thank you one and all for what you have done for me and my family. You have shown true comradeship by action.

There may be bigger, finer and larger post in the American Legion, but to me there will never be a greater post than Mocksville. It is truly an honor to be your commander.

Your servant,

White Stakes Along Highways Establish Mowing Patterns

Many North Carolinians living in the nation's "Golfing State" have made enemies with those nasty little white out-of-bounds stakes that signify a two-stroke penalty and the resulting massacre of a great score.

Well, now, the North Carolina Department of Transportation has come up with its own out-of-bounds stake that even golfers can grow to love.

Jim Saunders, Head of the Department of Transportation's Landscape Unit, points out that those mysterious white stakes that drivers may have noticed along the state's roadways actually help indicate established mowing patterns.

The stakes have come into use as part of a program begun 10-12 years ago by the North Carolina Department of Transportation to reduce roadside mowing. Prior to that, the Department had mowed large areas of right-of-way.

But Department of Transportation officials began to see this as both unnecessary and inefficient and instituted a program to reduce such wastefulness.

The next step was to establish a set pattern of mowing with the individuals who mowed each section of highway. The Department soon found out, though, that if an individual was sick or left the job, his replacement had his "own ideas" about how to cut the area. In this way, months of planning could be literally "cut down" in a single day.

The obvious solution was to set up a system that everyone could understand. Thus, white stakes have been set to outline the areas that are off-limits to mowing. Just like in golf, the state is penalized (with excess fuel consumption and extra maintenance costs) when the mower strays into the "out of bounds" area; therefore, the Department of Transportation pays careful attention to the markers it has set.

There are several advantages to such a program. Immediate benefits include conservation of fuel and less equipment maintenance due to reduced mowing time. More forested areas, more land allowed to go "back to nature," and the "blending" of roadways with the environment are just some of the long range benefits.

The Landscape Program, of which mowing is one aspect, has even advanced to the stage where areas to be reforested or left to return to their natural state (if seed trees are located nearby) are marked right on the initial design plans. The contractor then follows through on the reforestation according to these plans.

Saunders contends that the program has been quite successful. He cited a section of I-95 in Johnston County where the Landscape Unit took measurements to see exactly how much mowing had been reduced. "We found we had cut our mowing back in that 753 acre area by 37 percent," he said, "of course, other areas will vary, but I would say this is about average."

"Some of the areas we stopped mowing several years ago," he continued, "now have 20-30 foot trees on them. It's all a part of our continuing efforts to keep North Carolina green." Saunders concluded, "In my estimation, we have found the suitable compromise between roadway aesthetics, environmental concerns, highway safety, and reduction in mowing costs."

Brian Lee Keeton celebrated his first birthday at his home on Rt. 1, Advance. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Keeton. Brian, who was one August 2 celebrated his birthday August 7 with many of his relatives attending.

Special guests were hes grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W.V. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Keeton.

David Lee Magallanes and his brother, Thomas Matthew celebrated their birthdays together. David was 5 on August 5 and Thomas was 2 on August 2. Their parents are Patsy R. Magallanes of Cooleemee and Leo Magallanes of Salisbury. Grandparents are Clyde and Florence Roberts of Cooleemee and L.C. Magalanes and the late Deborah Magallanes of San Manuel, Arizona. Guests were served Mickey Mouse cake.

Davie Resident Is Appointed To Testing Commission

Dr. Jane Norwood of Bermuda Run has been appointed by Governor Jim Hunt to seve on the Annual Testing Commission in the area of psychological measurement.

The Commission is a result of legislation enacted by this year's General Assembly to recommend to the State Board of Education which tests should be given to students in the first, second, third, sixth and ninth grades through the annual statewide testing program in basic subjects. The purpose of the Commission is to review tests used and continue to investigate the suitability and validity of other tests. According to Governor Hunt, "The annual testing program helps us to know that our children are learning the basic skills and are progressing at a good, steady rate."

The Commission is composed of 11 members, all of whom are appointed by the Governor, plus the Superintendent of Public Instruction who serves as an ex officio member. Other members of the Commission include Frank Yeager, (chairman), Durham; Jane Norwood, Advance; Robert Stoltz, Cullowhee; R.J. Claybrook, Burgaw; Joan Hemby, Wilson; Shelia Morrison, Dunn; Nancy Johnson, Winston-Salem; Suzanne Cheek, Lumberton; Ann Hooker, Raleigh; Sylvester Currence, Charlotte; and Loretta Nixon, Ahoskie.

Members will serve for a term of two years.

Hefner Announces Probable Changes In 1977 Agriculture Disaster Help Program

Congressman Bill Hefner announced last week that if a House-Senate compromise on the Farm Bill is approved and signed by the President, drought-stricken farmers in the 8th Congressional District will be able to recover part of their wheat and feed grain losses.

Hefner said the compromise would not require a farmer to hold an allotment to be eligible for the automatic low-yield compensation program, commonly called "disaster payments." Rather, the supports would be based on planted acreage.

"The decision to change certain language in the Disaster Payment program is very likely to benefit farmers who would have been left out of the program under the old system of acreage allotments," Hefner said. "The use of farm land has changed greatly in North Carolina since the 1950's when the current acreage allotments were established for feed grains and wheat." Under current law, only the feed grain or wheat acreage used for growing those crops when the allotments were established are eligible for disaster payments.

Hefner said that changing the Disaster Payments program from the allotment system to actual acreage planted would allow new farms without allotments and expanded farms with only partial allotments to be included in the program.

The change was adopted in a House-Senate Conference on the Agricultural Act of 1977 and must go back to the two bodies for approval. If signed by President Carter, the change will apply to the 1977 crop.

"This change will mean a lot to farmers of the 8th District," Hefner said, "although it will not fully cover their losses due to this year's drought. However, it their yield is less than 60 percent of normal, they will be eligible for target price supports."

The final version of the Farm Bill also included raising target prices for 1978 and made these increases retroactive to the 1977 crops. The increased target prices are $2.90 a bushel for wheat and $2.00 a bushel for corn. Low yield compensation would be half that amount for the difference between actual yield and 60 percent of the normal yield.

For example, if a farmer's average expected yield, as established by the county ASCS office, was 100 bushels of corn per acre and he actually produced 20 bushels per acre, he would be eligible for $1 a bushel support on 40 bushels of corn per acre.

The House and Senate are expected to take up the conference report on the Farm Bill in September.

Miss Donna Connell Heads 'Kiss Your Baby' Campaign In Cooleemee Area

Miss Donna Connell has been named "Kiss Your Baby" Campaign Chairperson for the Cooleemee area, according to George W. Little, State Campaign Chairperson, North Carolina Chapter, Cistic Fibrosis Foundation. The CF Foundation supports research in children's lung-damaging diseases such as asthma with lung damage, chronic bronchitis, bronchiectasis, childhood emphysema, and cystic fibrosis, the most serious of all.

More than 6,000,000 American children suffer with one or more of these lung-damaging diseases of which there are 150,000 in North Carolina alone. Many of these youngsters are treated at the Duke CF Center which is supported by the Foundation.

The signs of lung-damaging diseases are recurrent wheezing, persistent coughing, excessive mucous, pneumonia more than once, excessive appetite but poor weight gain, and clubbing of the fingertips. In addition to the above, cystic fibrosis signs may also include salty taste of the skin, persistent, bulky diarrhea, and nasal polyps.

Tips For Keeping Car In Tip Top Shape

With proper care and maintenance of your car you will notice some significant reductions both in fuel consumption as well as in your pocketbook. Here are some practical suggestions that you can follow:

TUNE-UP: Every 10,000 miles your car should have a major tune-up and every 5,000 after a minor tune-up should be performed. Studies have shown that tune-ups can result in an immediate 9 to 15 percent improvement in gasoline mileage.

RADIAL TIRES: If you are able, the purchase of radial tires will give you from 0.5 to 1 more miles per gallon. The initial high cost is usually paid for in fuel savings and longer tread life. WARNING: Do not mix radial tires with conventional tires.

PROPER OCTANE: Using too low an octane rating for your car will produce a "ping" which, if sustained, will damage the engine. Using too high an octane rating wastes money and will not produce more power or improve fuel economy.

OIL: Use a good quality multi-grade oil having an API-SAE rating on the container. Multigrade 10W-30 and 10W-40 oils help reduce internal engine friction and will give better gasoline mileage than single grade SAE30 oils. Changing oil and oil filters at recommended intervals is highly recommended also.

GAS CAPS: During the past gas crisis in this country many car owners were buying lock-type gas caps. It is important that the consumer makes sure that the cap selected is designed for the specific make, model, and year of the vehicle on which it is to be used. Use of an improper cap can create a vacuum as fuel is drawn from the tank by the fuel pump. This could result in the serious consequence of a collapsed gas tank.

TIRE PRESSURE: Check your tire pressure at least once a month. For best gas mileage and for driving on long trips with heavy loads, inflate your tires 3 to 4 lbs. above the recommended pressure but do not exceed 32 psi. On the other hand underinflated tires increase rolling resistance and can decrease fuel economy by as much as 1 mile per gallon.

Immunization Required Of Children Starting To School

About 10,000 North Carolina school children will start to school this fall not properly immunized if last year's trend continues, according to Frank Lewis, head of the State's Immunization Control Program.

The public health official said the immunization law is vigorously enforced in North Carolina and warned parents that only about four weeks remain before school starts in most counties. A copy of the immunization record is supposed to be presented to the teacher or principal on opening day of school for kindergarten and first grade pupils.

Lewis said North Carolina's immunization law has been amended for children entering kindergarten and first grade this fall to include one dose of rubella (German measles) vaccine. Heretofore, three doses of DPT (diptheria, pertussis and tetanus), three of oral polio and one of red measles vaccine have been required.

In an effort to acquaint school officials with provisions of the State's immunization law, immunization personnel have visited about half of the State's 145 school districts this summer.

In urging compliance with the law, Lewis noted some 200 children were suspended last year for not being up to date on their shots. He said schools traditionally have had a problem with immunization records of children moving from one state to another. He cautioned that such children will be required to present their shot records beyond first grade and pressed parents to write for them, now.

Shots can be secured from private physicians or from county health departments.

Carowinds Gives Schedule For Fall

Carowinds, the 73-acre theme park that straddles the North Carolina-South Carolina border will end its daily operating schedule on Aug. 21, but will continue to operate on weekends through Oct. 2.

Carowinds Marketing Director T. Lewis Hooper, said the decision was made to end the daily operating schedule on Aug. 21 because many North Carolina and South Carolina schools go into session during the last week of August.

"With the schools opening," "Hooper noted, "very few families would be able to visit the park during the week. Also, most of our 1200 employees will be returning to area high schools and colleges."

In addition to being open on Saturdays and Sundays in September and the first weekend in October, Carowinds will be open on Friday, Aug. 26, and Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 5.

Carowinds is located on I-77 south of Charlotte, N.C.

Gov. Hunt Announces Statewide Survey To Give Citizens A Chance To Say What They Think About N.C. Problems

Gov. Jim Hunt announced today a statewide survey that will give Davie County residents a chance to say what they think are North Carolina's biggest problems, and what they think state government should do about them.

The survey, called "North Carolina Tomorrow," is being conducted by the State Goals and Policy Board, of which Hunt is chairman. The Board, which was recently reactivated by the Governor to get more citizens involved in decision-making, meets in Raleigh Tuesday to kick off the project formally.

In announcing the "North Carolina Tomorrow" survey, Gov. Hunt said, "I think the people of this stae want the chance to tell us what they think the problems are, and what their government should do about them. The more we know about what's on their minds, the better job government can do. And, after all it is their government."

Scheduled to continue through September, the survey is the most ambitious project of its kind undertaken by any state. Other states, such as Georgia, Idaho, Washington and Hawaii, have tried statewide goals-setting projects, but with only limited success.

In addition to open-ended questions about the state's most important problems, there are questions about tax policies, service delivery and economic development.

Several methods of distribution are being used. Local school boards are being asked to give questionnaires to elementary children to take home to their parents. Newspapers are being asked to run the survey form as a public service.

Hundreds of interest groups, civic and religious organizations and clubs have been asked to send questionnaires to their membership. Copies also may be available in some areas in various agency offices such as public health and social services departments, Employment Security Commission branches and through the Agricultural Extension Service.

Elected officals will also be mailed individual copies for their response.

And if a person fails to obtain a form in any of these ways, Gov. Hunt said he may write to him at the Capitol, Raleigh, for a copy.

Results of the survey will be used by the Board to advise the Governor on long- and short-range goals for the state, on the 1979 legislative program, and on spending priorities for the last two years of his term.

Concurrent with the mass survey will be a scientific survey conducted with a random sample of North Carolinians. Hunt said that both sets of responses will be taken into account when the Board analyzes the survey results.

Depending largely upon the success of this first survey effort, the Governor wants to continue this type of citizen involvement throughout his term.

"I see citizens as partners in decision-making in Raleigh," he said. "One of my primary concerns as Governor is to involve as many North Carolinians as possible in their state government. I want us to open up decisions so that citizens all over the state can help us decide what directions we take together in the future."

Miss North Carolina Goes On $1,500 Shopping Spree

The daily task of deciding what to wear and when to wear it has been solved by this year's Miss North Carolina, Mary Katherine Fleming. Thanks to JCPenney, she will be wearing the latest in fall fashions when she leaves Hamptonville to compete for the Miss America title September 5-10. The national finals are held in Atlantic City, N.J.

The 21-year-old queen has had a lot of help since winning the state title in Winston-Salem on June 18. As Miss North Carolina, she was awarded the JCPenney Fashion Award, a $1,500 wardrobe, for her year's reign from the 30 JCPenney stores in the state.

Kathy, daughter of Elsie N. Fleming and the late Dr. Frank R. Fleming of Hamptonville, met with JCPenney fashion staff members in Winston-Salem's Hanes Mall JCPenney store to choose her wardrobe.

It was a big day--another sparkle in one of the most glittering, excitement-packed summers a young woman ever experienced. It was a day like most women dream about--to be turned loose in the fashion shops of a big department store: "I'll take this--and that one, too!" and "I love both the burgundy and blue--I'll take both!"

Kathy picked several outfits to use during rehearsals in Atlantic City, where she will be singing "Everything" for the talent portion of the pageant.

The size 6 brunette, a resident of Hamptonville in Yadkin County, and recent graduate of Appalachian State University in Boone, says, "I'm going into the Miss America Pageant just like I did the state pageant--I'm just going to do the best I can."

The stakes are high: a $15,000 scholarship, television and public appearances, the opportunity to travel, and many other honors for the new Miss America, as well as thousands of dollars in scholarships to other preliminary winners and non-finalist talent winners. The pageant will be nationally televised the evening of Saturday, September 10.

"We know Miss North Carolina has to be prepared not only for the Miss America Pageant, but for appearances ranging from luncheons with the governor to rodeos and state fairs," commented a JCPenney spokesman. "She needs a lot more than elegant evening gowns."

Kathy Fleming

Beginning at 9 a.m., it was a marathon of picking apparel from racks, mixing, matching and accessorizing.

Stopped Vehicle Is Hit

Two vehicles collided Friday about 4:15 p.m. on US 64 East at the intersection of Salisbury Street in Mocksville.

Involved was a 1974 Opel operated by Barry Carl Shepherd, 17, of North Wilkesboro, and a 1973 Chevrolet operated by Eugene Fielding Clark, 60, of Conover.

Mocksville Policeman B.A. Foster said his investigation showed that Shepard had stopped at the stop sign at US 64 and Salisbury St. Clark did not get his vehicle stopped and struck the Opel in the rear.

Damage to the Opel was estimated at $100 and $20 to the Chevrolet. Clark was charged with a safe movement violation.

The North Carolina Highway Patrol wants you to know about a nationwide campaign under way to increase compliance with the 55 mph speed limit law. Since the dry pumps and gas lines have disappeared, motorists are speeding up.

But only appearances have changed. There is less fuel today than during the 1974 crisis. We just have access to it now. Then there is the safety bonus. Slower speeds reduce the likelihood of accidents and fatalities. It makes sense. Slower speeds mean more reaction time, less braking time, and greater control.

Aside from the benefits of slowing down, there is the point of the law. 55 mph is the legal limit and that means the North Carolina Highway Patrol enforces it.

Cutting Without Replanting Is Still A Threat On Private Forests Of The South

Tomorrow's supply of forest products is threatened today by private landowners who harvest their pine timber, but don't replant.

At a recent Southern Forest Institute meeting, Herbert A. Knight, resource analyst for the Southeastern Forest Experiment Station, said there is an annual loss of 500,000 acres of pine forests in just five states (Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia.) Knight blames the loss on "a lack of adequate regeneration following harvesting, largely within the private, non-industrial owner class." Individual landowners control 3 out of every 4 acres of the 204,000,000 acres of commercial forest lands in the thirteen Southern States.

The report says, "Somewhere between the private, non-industrial landowner's decision to sell his timber and the actual harvest, forest industry and government must intervene with their best silvicultural knowledge, some form of incentive or motivation, and a means of application on the ground. Otherwise, we'll continue to wrestle with the symptoms rather than the problem itself."

Knight's report also revealed that 30 percent of the present commercial forest lands in the Southeast is in seriously understocked condition, primarily low-quality hardwood brush. Often after harvest, a pine forest grows back in such brush if steps aren't taken to assure regeneration."

Commenting on the report, Southern Forest Institute's executive vice president, James M. Montgomery, said "If this trend applies Southwide, and we are sure it does, then action programs are an immediate priority. We've called on industry, state and federal agencies, wood dealers, and anyone who deals directly with landowners to encourage reforestation."

"There's plenty of wood now," added Montgomery. "What we're talking about is twenty-five years down the road, when the South is expected to produce 50 percent of the nation's wood needs. To do that, we need the trees in the ground today."

Montgomery pointed to a need for increased activity in landowners assistance programs, better use of federal and state cost-share programs, tax relief for tree growers, and a public awareness of the problem. He concluded, "To give some idea of the job ahead, there are an estimated 2,000,000 landowners in the South, but only 20,000 belong to the American Tree Farm System. Obviously many more landowners need to share the Tree Farmer's dedication if the nation is to have enough lumber for homes and paper for books and newspapers. There's no reason for a shortage of this natural resource, but its continued supply depends on wise management."

The American Tree Farm System, an organization of private forest owners who manage their lands, is sponsored in the South by Southern Forest Institute, a division of American Forest Institute.

Farm Emergency Loans Authorized

Farmers Home Administration Emergency loans have been authorized in 56 drought stricken counties in North Carolina. According to James T. Johnson, FmHA State Director, the agency's FmHA's Emergency Loan Program was made available along with other Federal disaster assistance in response to the recent request from Governor Jim Hunt. The Governor made his request because of the extended period of dry weather which has plagued farmers and other residents of these counties since mid May.

FmHA's Emergency Loans are designed to assist eligible farmers who have suffered severe losses of income to overcome the effects of the losses and to return to their normal source of credit as soon as possible. Loan funds to cover actual dollar losses may be borrowed at five per cent interest to be used to repair, restore or replace damaged or destroyed farm property and supplies and for actual expenses incurred in farm production. Loans to cover actual losses to crops and livestock are scheduled for repayment over the useful life of the security up to seven years.

Essential credit needs of farmers for annual production expenses or to make needed adjustments to their operations may also be considered. These portions of the loans carry an eight per cent interest rate. Repayment periods range up to forty years for long term credit needs where real estate will serve as security. Johnson emphasized that applications for Emergency Loans must be filed not later than September 30, 1977.

"Applications on hand at that time may be processed and approved but we will not be able to consider applications for farmers whose requests are not filed by the cutoff date," Johnson said.

Applications are filed in FmHA's county office serving the county in which the farm is located. Further information can be obtained from Clarence Sink, County Supervisor located at the County Office Building in Room 310 each Monday from 10:00 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The designated counties are Alamance, Alexander, Anson, Bladen, Cabarrus, Caswell, Catawba, Chatham, Cleveland, Cumberland, Davidson, Davie, Duplin, Durham, Edgecomb, Forsyth, Franklin, Gaston, Granville, Greene, Gilford, Halifax, Harnett, Hoke, Iredell, Johnston, Lee, Lenoir, Lincoln, Mecklenburg, Montgomery, Moore, Nash, Northampton, Orange, Person, Pitt, Polk, Randolph, Richmond, Robeson, Rockingham, Rowan, Rutherford, Sampson, Scotland, Stanly, Stokes, Surry, Union, Vance, Wake, Warren, Wayne, Wilson and Yadkin.

Actions Speak Louder Than Words In Pharmacy Business

By Gale Jones

Most of the time, you can't go wrong with a smile.

But Leonard Berlow, assistant professor in the School of Pharmacy at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, says sometimes a smile can be the wrong response in the pharmacy business.

In the article in "Tile and Till," a magazine for pharmacy professionals, Berlow says, "Suppose Pharmacist Jones, receiving Mrs. Smith's prescription for birth control pills, smiles? What does he mean by that? What does she think he means?"

Usually, however, a smile puts people at ease, saying "I like you," or "I'm glad to see you," or, he says, it may calm a distraught or angry customer.

Smiles and other body language are especially important for pharmacists, Berlow says. How a pharmacist reacts to a prescription may influence the way the customer feels about his medication. "If he shrugs his shoulder or somehow gives the impression that the prescription is not important, the patient may begin to feel the same way."

Since pharmacists usually work in sight of their customers, Berlow suggests they think about what their actions might convey to the watching customer. He asks, "what vibrations are transmitted to the already apprehensive patient by a pharmacist when he looks at the prescription or the patient and scratches his head, whispers to another pharmacist, fails to look up, looks from prescription to patient to see if it's really true or walks in a slow, lackadaisical pace?"

Simple gestures may also emphasize important directions to the patient. For example, Berlow says, if a pharmacist takes a bottle labeled "Shake well before using" and shakes it right in front of the patient's eyes, chances are the patient will remember to follow the directions.

A smile, Berlow says, can be the most valuable asset a pharmacy business has. "It is a signal that speaks louder than words. and pays huge dividends. It can be more valuable than innovative mechanical devices, medication records or fancy surroundings."

Archibald DeBow Murphey - A Master Planner Who Died Penniless

He was a master planner, yet he died penniless.

"Archibald DeBow Murphey," a new exhibit opening Monday (August 15), at the Department of Cultural Resources' Museum of History, will relate Murphey's master plans for internal improvement in the state during the early part of the nineteenth century.

Murphey, a lawyer by profession, envisioned improvements in transportation and agriculture, and the establishment of a system of public schools -- all desperately needed if North Carolina was to climb out of the morass of ignorance and complacency that kept her near the bottom in the rank of states and gained her the nickname "the Rip Van Winkle State."

Born in Caswell County in 1777, Murphey attended David Cladwell's classical school and was a member of the second graduating class of the University of North Carolina in 1799. In addition to his legal career, he served as a UNC professor, was elected to the state senate, elected a superior court judge, was candidate for the United States Senate and served briefly with the North Carolina Supreme Court.

While traveling as a lawyer, he recognized the need for the state to assume responsibility for internal improvements in education and transportation. In 1815, he introduced in the legislature his first "Internal Improvements Resolution." He followed it with numerous other bills and resolutions and his dreams generated much interest and support, especially in the western counties which stood to gain the most from the proposed improvements.

Unfortunately, Murphey and his advocates had to contend with the eastern-dominated legislature firmly held in the hands of Nathaniel Macon who staunchly believed the Jeffersonian philosophy that "the best government is the least government;" and that government existed solely to protect the citizens -- nothing more. Unfortunate, too, was the 1819 financial panic that quickly brought illiterate and complacent citizens, who made up a large proportion of the population, back to their conservative, do-nothing attitudes.

To advance education, Murphey envisioned a state-operated public education program. He offered his plan to the people with the comment "I bequeath this Report to the State as the richest Legacy that I shall ever be able to give it..." His proposal that supported primary schools for all white children and university subsidies for those white males with demonstrated ability, fell short of today's concepts. Nevertheless, his ideas were a radical departure when he introduced them in 1815 and they earned for him the title of "The Father of the Public Schools in North Carolina."

Murphey, realizing that the transportation problem was geographic, pointed out that the state did not have one safe, deep harbor; most of its rivers flowed into other states (carrying with them much of the little trade that did exist); and rivers were too shallow to be sufficiently navigable. A severe lack of bridges, ferries and good roads increased the hindrance to travel and trade. To overcome these problems, Murphey proposed numerous roads and canals.

In 1820, Murphey resigned his position as judge and returned to private law practice. Heavily in debt, primarily due to land investments, he hoped to pay his bills. His income improved little and he lost his home, "The Hermitage," and most of his personal property to creditors.

In 1827 Murphey delivered the commencement service oration at Chapel Hill, his last public contribution to the life of the institution. Two years later he was defeated in his bid for election to the United States Senate, and during that same year, he was imprisoned in Greensboro for debt. He later moved to Hillsborough and operated a law school which failed due to lack of students. He died there in 1832 at the age of 55.

The Archibald D. Murphey exhibit will be part of the continuing chronological outline of North Carolina history "From the Stone Age to the Space Age" in the first-floor galleries. Graphics will illustrate the various states of Murphey's career, and some of the problems his ideas could have solved.

Murphey, the dreamer and master planner, died a penniless and broken man. His dreams lived on however and served as an inspiration for the development of the state by future generations.

The North Carolina Museum of History at 109 E. Jones St., Raleigh, is open Tuesday thru Friday, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. and Sunday, 1 - 6 p.m.

Carrying the Load

The real key to happy living is the ability to help others. It seems that in some African countries when there is a heavy load to bear, a person ties it to the end of a stick then ties a rock or equal weight to the other end of the stick. The stick is carried across the shoulders and the balance of the two burdens make them easier to carry. We have a valuable lesson to learn here. Too often we become too engrossed with doing our own thing, to the exclusion of anyone or anything else, we have our sights geared in one direction without looking around.

The wonderful mystery of life is the more we seek to help others carry their burdens, the lighter our own burdens seem to be. If we all made a serious attempt to flollow the practice of balancing the load, think of how much better our lives would be. Our own burdens would be lighter because everyone would be sharing the burdens of everyone else. When this happens we will know the real meaning of happy living.

ATTEND CHURCH THIS WEEK

That old "three-o'clock-in-the-morning" feeling can mark the loneliest spot on the map of any man's life. Darkness can be a magnifying glass, enlarging every problem out of all proportion to reality. Perhaps that is why Jesus is called "the bright and morning star." Or why we remember that first morning of creation with such joy, when God said, "Let there be light." Or why the children of Israel, in Egypt, on the night of the Passover, were commanded, "None of you shall go out of the door of his house until morning."

You see, morning brings the new day, new vision. It is a time of joy and renewed strength! It was also the hour of the resurrection!

Sunday morning you would put all your problems in proper perspective if you rose early in the morning to prepare yourself physically and spiritually to go to your church and worship. It produces morning in your soul!

Board Of Education Announces Formula For Free And Reduced Meals

The Davie County Board of Education today announced its policy for free and reduced price meals, free milk for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the National School Lunch, School Breakfast, and Special Milk Programs.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size income criteria for determining eligibility:

Family Size	Free Meals & Free Milk	Reduced Price Meals
1	0 - 3,930	3,931 - 6,120
2	0 - 5,160	5,161 - 8,050
3	0 - 6,390	6,391 - 9,970
4	0 - 7,610	7,611 - 11,880
5	0 - 8,740	8,741 - 13,630
6	0 - 9,860	9,861 - 15,380
7	0 - 10,890	10,891 - 16,980
8	0 - 11,910	11,911 - 18,580
9	0 - 12,840	12,841 - 20,030
10	0 - 13,760	13,761 - 21,470
11	0 - 14,680	14,681 - 22,890
Each additional family member	910	1,420

Income Scale is in dollars

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals or free milk. (An extra one half pint of free milk is available to those who are eligible for free meals.) In addition, families not meeting these criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

To discourage the possibility of misrepresentation, the application forms contain a statement above the space for signature certifying that all information furnished in the application is true and correct. An additional statement is added to warn that the application is being made in connection with the receipt of Fdereal funds, that school officials may, for cause, verify the information in the application, and that deliberate misrepresentation of information may subject the applicant to prosecution under applicable State and criminal statutes.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, it should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy the principal of each school will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to Charles J. Wells, 720 Cherry Street, Mocksville, N.C., 27028 (704) 634-5921.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if family size changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals and milk if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or national origin.

Each school and the office of the Davie County Board of Education has a copy of the complete policy which may be reviewed by any interested party.

Rep. Jim Lambeth Appraises The Accomplishments Of 1977 Legislature

Representative Jim Lambeth (Democratic)--in discussing the accomplishments of the '77 legislature--appraised it as one of the best sessions in many years.

Lambeth, even though a first termer, said most of his seasoned associates agree that the work of this session was both worthwhile and far reaching. He felt that legislation in the fields of education and criminal justice were perhaps the most significant.

"The Governor's reading program is one of the finest things we've done this session. It will be a long term thing--this year's legislation is just the first step, but, it is a worthwhile endeavor. I think it's time we reevaluated everything we're doing in the field of education, not only in our methods of teaching and testing, but also in the area of teaching our teachers. We need to do more than we've been doing, and the just released statistical data on teachers is evidence of that," he said.

"I think we're going to have to have a massive cooperative effort in our school program--not only between students and teachers, but we must involve the parents as well. Our parents are one of the greatest untapped educational resources we have."

Lambeth also singled out accomplishments in the area of combatting crime. The legislature not only passed a new death penalty statute, it also passed laws guaranteeing that the administration of justice will be both swift and sure. Laws demanding speedy trials and imposing mandatory prison sentences on felons were passed in the last weeks of the session, and he feels strongly that this legislation will provide major support to our state-wide crime control program.

Lambeth pointed out that local bills for Davidson and Davie Counties governing the reporting of wounds further strengthened the state crime control legislation.

Another area of major achievement, Lambeth felt was in the area of pornography. This session of the legislature passed three specific anti-pornography bills and adopted an anti-pornography position state-wide. "Ridding our society of open pornography is something we are all determined to do," he said. "I don't think these new laws will solve the problem, but it is a start and a definite stand! Frankly, I'm not too concerned about the constitutionality question at this stage of the game. If the laws are declared unconstitutional, we'll have some sort of head start on the program, and we can turn around and try again, but not to try is not to deal with the problem," he said.

Lambeth expressed his concern over the recent passage of an insurance bill which Insurance Commissioner John Ingram says will strip him of his powers. "I didn't think the legislature should have knocked down a state-wide elected official in any manner. IF that ever needs to be done, I think it is something the people ought to do," he said and further said he has a genuine respect for Mr. Ingram as a dedicated and effective commissioner.

Representative Lambeth said that he plans to spend as much time as possible visiting with groups and individuals in Davidson and Davie Counties in an effort to better understand how he might effictively serve as their representative.

"Brownout" And "Blackout" Terms Are Explained

What is a "voltage reduction"? "Rotating interruptions?" "Brownouts"? "Blackouts"?

These terms are used somewhat differently by various people. However W.J. Burton, Vice President, Corporate Communications, Duke Power Company, has set forth the way those terms are used in the electrical power industry as follows:

These have their origin in what Archie Bunker calls the Big War.

"If any of you are old enough to remember those days, the German subs were sinking an alarming number of oil tankers off our east coast. The subs were lying low under the cover of darkness and striking at the ships silhouetted against the light from coastal towns and homes. As a result, street lights, outdoor signs, floodlights and all other lighting not absolutely essential were extinguished all along the east coast. This was called a brownout.

"That term has been adopted by our industry to describe a condition where part of electric service is interrupted. So, the system of rotating interruptions we would fall back on as a last-ditch effort to prevent a complete collapse is properly termed a "brownout."

"If we should suffer a complete failure of power, such as occurred recently in New York City, that would be a "blackout."

"When we reduce voltage, the light output of incandescent lights does decrease, but this drop is so slight as to be undetectable to the normal eye. Therefore, it is not correct to describe that as a brownout, but simply as a "voltage reduction."

"We hope you will pass these definitions on to your reporters, and at the same time we will assure you that the people of Duke Power will make every effort to eliminate the necessity of any of them being needed for a news story. But should sufficiently serious trouble hit us, I thought the media would appreciate having these definitions," said Mr. Burton.

Following the meal, the members held a brief meeting with Malinda Wright, President, presiding. Malinda then told about her trip to Iowa and Melissa Walker told about her trip to Electric Congress. Malinda then did her talent presentation and Polly Mitchell played a song on the piano as entertainment. The meeting was then adjourned.

'What's Up Josh' To Be Shown At The Lighthouse In Cooleemee

"What's Up, Josh?", a youth-oriented, dramatic, motion picture will be shown at Lighthouse (a christian coffeehouse located in the Cooleemee Recreation Center) on Aug. 20th at 7:30 p.m.

What's Up, Josh? has all the right answers and a beautiful college campus is just the right dramatic setting for this delightful film for young people. Tom, a philosophy student, loves Jean, a chemistry major. His reaction to "playing second fiddle to a Bunsen Burner" causes his grades to suffer. Professor Murrell warns that "D is for danger." While the conflict rages, Josh McDowell comes to the campus for an encounter with students. He declares the Bible to be true, its position defensible, its message vital. His presentation is so logical that Professor Murrell invites him to a philosophy class. Tom's deep inner conflict brings discussion with both Josh and Professor Murrell, but it's a walk on a lonely beach with his Christian roommate plus a scholarly argument for the resurrection of Christ that brings light. What's Up, Josh? has all the ingredients. It's youth oriented, dramatic, Biblical, interesting and it's exceptionally well done.

What's Up, Josh? says what young young people need to hear in a way that will cause them to listen.

What's Up, Josh? features Josh McDowell of Campus Crusade for Christ. Mr. McDowell has appeared before hundreds of thousands of college and university students on more than 500 campuses in 45 countries. His most recent book Evidence That Demands A Verdict is widely accepted as the most scholarly defense of the Christian faith to be published in this country.

What's Up, Josh? is a release of Gospel Films, Inc. of Muskegon, Michigan, this country's leading distributor of films for churches and youth organizations. Their productions have, for 25 years, won major awards in the category of Religion, Morals and Ethics.

Summer Camps

A recent survey showed that mothers and their children ate something as many as twenty times during one day, say extension specialists at N.C. State.

Why not do your whole family a favor and keep nutritious snacks available at all times?

Keep a tray of fresh, raw vegetables in the refrigerator and have various fresh fruits available at all times.

Serve apple rings with peanut butter for snacks or have cheese and fruit kabobs on toothpicks ready to eat. Celery stuffed with peanut butter or cheese also makes a good, quick snack.

Emergency Medical Communications System Being Studied For Area

An emergency medical communications system development and engineering study is being conducted in 32 western North Carolina counties, including Davie.

The study and design effort by the Systech Corporation of Severna Park, Md., involves numerous phases of communications and is directed primarily toward improving those services related to emergency medical communications. The program covers a seven month period.

Ed Chapin, a communications engineer with the N.C. Office of Emergency Medical Services, said, "In these counties, EMS radio communications range from non-existent to good with little if any compatibility between adjacent county or regional systems. Normally an ambulance leaving its local service area, a common condition when transporting critically ill patients to larger hospitals, is out of radio communication for the period of transport."

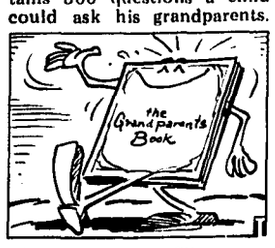

According to Chapin, the objectives of the study are basically to develop a written narrative and graphic communication system design plan for the 32 counties, which is compatible with the North Carolina hospital VHF (very high frequency) system concept and N.C. Medical Communication Network UHF (ultra high frequency) system concept.

The system design plan will feature six regional EMS communication plans further subdivided into 32 county plans. Special assistance and direction will be given to the counties involved to help foster an understanding of EMS communication system requirements and to determine which of these counties will participate in the initial implementation of the system by obtaining local letters of commitment and financial support.

The counties involved include: Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Macon, Swain, Jackson, Transylvania, Haywood, Madison, Buncombe, Henderson, Yancey, McDowell, Rutherford, Polk, Cleveland, Mitchell, Avery, Burke, Watauga, Caldwell, Catawba, Alexander, Ashe, Wilkes, Alleghany, Surry, Yadkin, Davie, Davidson, Forsyth and Stokes.

MAKING FAMILY LIFE MORE FUN

An adventure in nostalgia, family and history, and a gift that can be treasured for years can all be found in a spiral-bound book that contains 300 questions a child could ask his grandparents.

The grandparent fills in the answers in the appropriate blank spaces to questions such as how you met your spouse, were you ever in a war, what were the big events in your life and so on. The Grandparent's Book, available for $10 from MPK Publications, Dept. N, 73 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10003, helps grandparents to tell their grandchildren what the past was like for them in a way that will be loved for generations.

Blood Pressure Is Checked At Store

Response was overwhelming, for the second consecutive month, as 139 local residents had their blood pressure checked, free of charge, Saturday in the Cooleemee Discount Store.

Dor to such good response, store owners, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Alexander, plan to make this a routine clinic to be held every month. Registered Nurse, Mrs. Linda Hodges, will be in the store from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. The date of the September clinic will be announced in the near future.

Spice

California is by far the largest spice supplier in the United States and produces major quantities of onion and garlic products, paprika, chili peppers, chili powder, and more than a dozen herbs. The state's total output approaches 150 million dried pounds annually, valued at more than $100 million in sales.

Cookbooks, along with Bibles, were among the earliest books printed, and they still outsell any other kind of book.

Dixie Classic Entry Deadline Sept 1

Deadline for exhibit entries for the 1977 Dixie Classic Fair (Sept. 30 - Oct. 8) must be received in the Fair office by September 15, Fair Manager Bill Austin said this week.

"We want to encourage everyone who wants to participate in our hundreds of exhibit categories to submit their entries as soon as possible," he said.

Entry forms and other information are available by writing the Dixie Classic Fair at P.O. Box 7525, Winston-Salem, N.C. 27109, or by dropping by the Fair's administrative offices on the fairgrounds.

"We're pleased so far with the response, but I particularly want to encourage as many individuals or groups as possible to participate in our exhibit booth program."

Exhibit booth categories include extension homemaking, community development, adult education, tobacco, field crops, 4-H, FHA and scouting.

"We must know by September 1 if you plan to use our booth space," reminded Austin.

Kitchen Fan

A dirty kitchen fan doesn't operate at peak performance and may even be a safety hazard, say NCSU agricultural extension specialists.

Outer surfaces of the hood can be kept clean as part of regular kitchen care, but other parts should be cleaned regularly before grease and dirt buildup becomes hard to remove.

Be sure the fan is off and cool before cleaning. Remove the screen of filter and wash in detergent or soap suds.

Clean the fan and duct work with suds-dampened sponge or cloth and rinse with a clean, damp sponge or cloth.

Polish dry with a soft, clean cloth.

Be Sure To Scour Trash Cans

In warm weather, prompt, proper disposal of food and trash and clean garbage cans often help to discourage ants, flies and other pests from hanging around the house, say NCSU extension specialists.

Garbage should be moved to outside covered cans frequently.

Both kitchen and outside containers should be washed with suds as often as possible.

Fill containers with warn suds and scrub the inside with a brush used only for this purpose. Wash the outside and covers and rinse with a hose or a pail of water.

To remove odors, add some ammonia or chlorine bleach to the rinse water and rinse again. Never, however, mix bleach and ammonia together.

Turn containers upside dow to drain, then rightside up to dry.

In addition to the proposed increases reflected above, Central Telephone Company proposes adjustments in nonrecurring service charges for local service and in the rates and charges for supplementary services including key system and private branch exchange equipment and trunks, directory listings, semi-public telephone service, foreign exchange service, miscellaneous services, auxiliary equipment, data equipment and trunks, mobile telephone service, and local private line service. The details of these proposed adjustments can be obtained at the business offices of Central Telephone Company or at the office of the Chief Clerk of the Commission, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina, where a copy of the proposed application is available for review by any interested person.

The Utilities Commission has suspended the proposed rate adjustments, has set the application for investigation and hearing and has required Central Telephone Company to comply with all provisions of law and Commission Rules in support of its application to show that the proposed increases are just and reasonable.

The hearing on the matter has been scheduled for the following dates and locations:

a. October 11, 1977 at 9:00 a.m. in the City Council Chamber, City Hall, 30 Third Street, N.W., Hickory, North Carolina.

b. October 12-14, 1977 at 10:00 a.m. in the Commission Hearing Room, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina.

The hearing will begin on October 11, 1977 with the testimony of public witnesses. Testimony and cross-examination of the Applicant will begin on this date if time permits. The hearing will resume in Raleigh with any further testimony of public witnesses and testimony and cross-examination of the Applicant, the Public Staff, and intervenors and will continue through October 14 as necessary.

The Commission requires that Central Telephone Company inform its customers of the following procedures by which comments regarding the rate application can be made part of the record of the case upon which the Commission must base its decision. Persons desiring to intervene in the matter as formal parties of record should file a motion under North Carolina Utilities Commission Rules R1-6 and R1-19 ten days prior to the hearing. Persons desiring to present testimony for the record should appear at the public hearing. Persons desiring to send written statements to the Commission should submit their statements prior to the hearing and should include any information which those persons wish to be considered by the Commission in its investigation of the matter. The contents of letters and petitions will be received in the official file as statements of position. Specific facts, however, will be considered on the basis of testimony presented at the public hearing. Interventions or statements should be addressed to the Chief Clerk, North Carolina Utilities Commission, P. O. Box 991, Raleigh, North Carolina 27602.

The Public Staff of the Utilities Commission through the Executive Director is required by statute to represent the using and consuming public in proceedings before the Commission. Statements to the Executive Director should be addressed to:

Davie Becomes An Active Market

A new study of business activity, just released shows Davie County to be a relatively strong market, with a level of income and spending above that found in many communities.

Significant gains were made in its trading area in the past year as local families, in a better buying mood, increased their outlays for goods and services.

The facts and figures, with comparable data for every area of the United States, are contained in a copyrighted study made by the Marketing Economics Institute here.

Stronger consumer buying was the mainstay of the local area's economic progress. It enabled most local merchants to top their 1975 records. Their sales volume for the year amounted to $41,436,000, as compared with the previous gross of $35,740,000.

The increase was 15.9 percent. Elsewhere in the United States it was 11.2 percent and in the State of North Carolina, 12.8 percent.

Although an appreciable part of the total was due to the rise in consumer prices, there still was a considerable margin of gain, over and above this.

What brought it about was the growing optimism on the part of the public, induced by the slowing down of the inflation spiral and by the generally favorable economic indicators.

In most parts of the country, the year produced income gains that more than offset the increase in the cost of living, yielding a net rise in purchasing power.

The better level of income locally has been due, in part, to the fact that the number of families that have more than one paycheck coming in has been on the rise, with more and more women taking jobs outside the home.

The MEI figures show that Davie County residents had net earnings, after payment of personal taxds, amounting to $91,365,000, as against the prior year's $83,192,000.

It was equivalent to an average of $12,516 per household. In 1975 the average was $11,396 per household.

Consumer spending, which has been the backbone of the recovery, is expected to continue at a high level throughout the rest of 1977 and well into 1978. Outlets for cars, furniture and home appliances have been the big gainers thus far.

School Enrollment Of 5178 Expected In Davie County

An estimated enrollment of 5178 students in the Davie County school system is expected as pupils report Friday, August 26, for half of a day of orientation.

Teachers at the various schools have been at work since August 17. The first full day of school will be Monday, August 29.

Davie High School is anticipating an enrollment of about 1608 students.

The largest enrollment among the elementary schools is expected to be at Cooleemee with 721, followed by Pinebrook with 682, Mocksville Elementary, serving grades K-4, is anticipating 650; with Mocksville Middle School, serving grades 5-8, expecting 546. Shady Grove is anticipating 547 and William R. Davie 424.

Emergency Room Use Increases

Emergency room visits to the Davie County Hospital increased 6.5 percent during 1976, from 6,330 to 6,763.

A recent report from the N.C. Department of Human Resources indicated that of the nine hospitals reporting in this region, three had decreases in the number of visits. The largest increase reported was 37.7 percent by the Community General Hospital of Thomasville.

R.C. Smith And Jimmy Phipps File For Mayor

Town Democrats To Have Primary

Two candidates for the office of mayor and one for the Town Board of Commissioners filed this past week, setting up a primary on the Democratic ticket for both the seats on the Town Board and for the office of mayor.

Filing for the office of mayor were Jimmy Phipps, a Democrat, and R.C. Smith, a Republican. With Phipps and Smith filing as candidates, it marks the first opposition that Mayor Arlen DeVito has had for the office. DeVito ran unopposed in the previous two terms in office.

Filing for the Town Board of Commissioners on the Democratic ticket was Joe Ervin Murphy. His candidacy makes a total of six Democratic candidates for the Town Board with the others being, Bob Hall, Thomas Holman, Patricia Latta, Harry Osborne, and Joseph Thompson.

Phipps, 24, is a resident of Lexington Road, and is seeking his first term as mayor. He resigned his position on the Mocksville Police Force after four years of service this past July, and since then has been driving a truck for Davie Transport, Inc. He is married and has one child.

Smith, 55, is a resident of 736 Park Avenue, and is seeking his 1st term in a political office. He is owner and operator of the Mocksville Discount house on Salisbury Street and is married, with four children from a previous marriage.

Murphy, 42, is a resident of Greenwood Avenue, and this is his first candidacy for the Town Board. He has served on the County Board of Education in the past and is employed at Western Electric in Winston-Salem. He is married and has two sons.

Until this year, Republicans running for the seats on the Town Board of Commissioners and the office of mayor have been about as scarce as rainfull this summer.

With the filing of Republican candidates John Nicholson, Buster Cleary, and Tip Lefler for the Town Board and Smith for the office of mayor this year, a twelve year drought has been broken.

It was back in the election of May, 1965, when the Republicans last contested Democrats for the positions on the Town Board and the office of mayor.

The Republicans, however, didn't fare too well. They were defeated for all five seats on the Town Board and lost the mayor's race by over a two to one majority.

The Republicans running for the Town Board that year were J. Roy Harris, Floyd Naylor, Roy H. Southern, Edward D. Howard, and Mrs. Jane S. Sanford. G. Alex Tucker was the Republican candidate for mayor, opposing D.J. Mando.

Of these Republican candidates, Harris and Naylor were the top vote getters with 245 each. Southern had 227, Howard had 204 and Sanford had 202. Tucker received 204 votes in his candidacy for mayor.

In comparison, Democratic candidates running for the positions on the Town Board and the office of mayor each received well over 400 votes. Gilmer J. Hartley led the Democratic vote getters with 477 (re-electing him to his fourth term in office). He was followed by J. Edward Latta with 469 (re-electing him to his third term); Dr. Clyde W. Young with 468 (re-electing him to his fifth term), Roy W. Collette had 446 votes (re-electing him to his fourth term), and O.K. Pope polled 445 to win his first election to the Town Board.

D.J. Mando polled 475 votes to re-elect him to his fourth term as mayor of Mocksville.

Unlike the county, where the Republicans have the majority of registered voter, the town has a majority of Democratic voters.

Whether the Republicans can overcome the Democratic majority in the town remains to be seen, but as the August rains put a halt to the summer drought, so has the candidacys of Nicholson, Cleary, and Lefler ended the Republican's drought in running for the Town's public offices.

Deadline

Friday, August 26, 12 noon, is the deadline for filing for mayor or the Mocksville town board.

Monday, August 29, is the last day registration books will be open for those not previously registered to vote in the September 27 primary.

Davie Joins Others In Opposing $8 Per Day To House Prisoners

Three Davie County public officials attended some of the meetings at the 70th annual conference of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners held at Charlotte August 18-20.

"Our goal in going was to contact other commissioners about the $8 per day per prisoner fee which the state wants to pay counties to house prisoners" sentenced to short terms -- 30 to 180 days, said Davie County commissioner, Charlie Brown, Jr., who attended the conference.

Other Davie County officials who attended the conferences were Ron Vogler, county manager, and John Brock, county attorney.

Brown said that the other commissioners he talked with at the conference were "in favor" of asking the state for more than $8 per day to house a prisoner. However, Brown reported that he learned at the conference that the contract between the state and the individual counties to house the prisoners at the $8 rate was "not negotiable" and the counties would be forced to house the prisoners at that rate.

At the conference, county officials from through out North Carolina accused Gov. James B. Hunt's administration of failing to negotiate in good faith on the confinement of prisoners in local jails.

In spite of a warning from Amos E. Reed, Secretary of Corrections, that "we're on the thin edge of a federal court takeover" of state prisons because of overcrowding, the county officials objected to the state's failure to negotiate realistic payments to counties.

Reed told all of those present at the conference that the $8 per day per prisoner, which the state wants to pay counties, is all the money available. But commissioners in the audience accused Reed of misleading the General Assembly by telling a legislative committee the funds available were sufficient to cover the costs of the program.

At issue is whether the legislation obligates the state to negotiate individually with each county to pay any amount between $8 and $24 per day -- as county officials claim was its intent.

Reed said that would not be practical. He said some counties had submitted cost estimates of $30 to $50 per day and one county wanted $260 per day. Reed said the state's average cost to keep a prisoner is $8.03 per day. Of this $2.20 is to feed the prisoner and the remainder is for such things as clothing, medicine and guards. In arriving at their estimates, some counties "threw everything in there, including amortization and the kitchen sink," he said.

Governor Hunt, speaking at the conference, urged the counties to work with the state to solve what he called "one of the most overcrowded, dangerous situation in America."

"If a federal judge came in and took about 8,000 (inmates) out and sent them back to you, what would you do?" Hunt asked, referring to federal judge's takeover of the Alabama prison system. Hunt said North Carolina is not much better off with 14,000 prisoners in a system designed for not more than 11,000.

Reed said that, using federal standards, North Carolina should have no more than 8,000 inmates. "It's intolerable. It's a crisis," he said.

Road Damage In Davie Is Estimated At $86,376

The severity of the past winter, North Carolina's worst on record, caused an estimated $86,376 in damages to the roads in Davie County.

And, in order to repair the damages to the roads in Davie and surrounding counties, the North Carolina Department of Transportation maintenance crews will have to work overtime until about mid-October.

State officials announced August 22 that $31 million worth of repair work is needed on state highways.

Ken Horton, divisional engineer for the Department of Transportation, reported that most of the damages to area roads occurred to rural and secondary roads. The damages were primarily cracks and potholes.

Horton said secondary roads in this area were in poorer condition than most major highways before the harsh winer and that another severe winter will almost certainly produce further damages. "We have so many substandard roads that winter damage is inevitable," said Horton.

Maintenance crews hope to complete crack filling and pothole patching by October 15, but the deadline will require 50-hour work weeks.

Repair work might have been finished by now, but federal emergency funds were not granted and the General Assembly did not pass a $30.1 million supplemental allotment for repairs.

Transportation officials were forced to raise the money from contingency funds and from urban highway construction funds. The fund raising took much time and repair work was delayed. The bulk of the money needed was released July 1, the beginning of the fiscal year.

The repair estimates for neighboring counties are: Forsyth, $1,415,160; Yadkin, $410,726; Surry, $942,200; Stokes, $104,291; Rockingham, $157,240; Davidson, $84,752; Rowan, $38,794; Iredell, $90,982; Alexander, $205,206; Caldwell, $296,409; Watauga, $471,861; Ashe, $427,000; Alleghany, $296,281; and Wilkes, $413,000.

3% Loans For Farmers

Farmers in Davie County who suffered losses due to the recent drought may be eligible for loans at 3 per cent interest from Farmers Home Administration for the amount of their losses. These loans may be repaid over a period up to seven years. Interested individuals, partnerships, or corporations should contact the FmHA office in Davie county for further information.

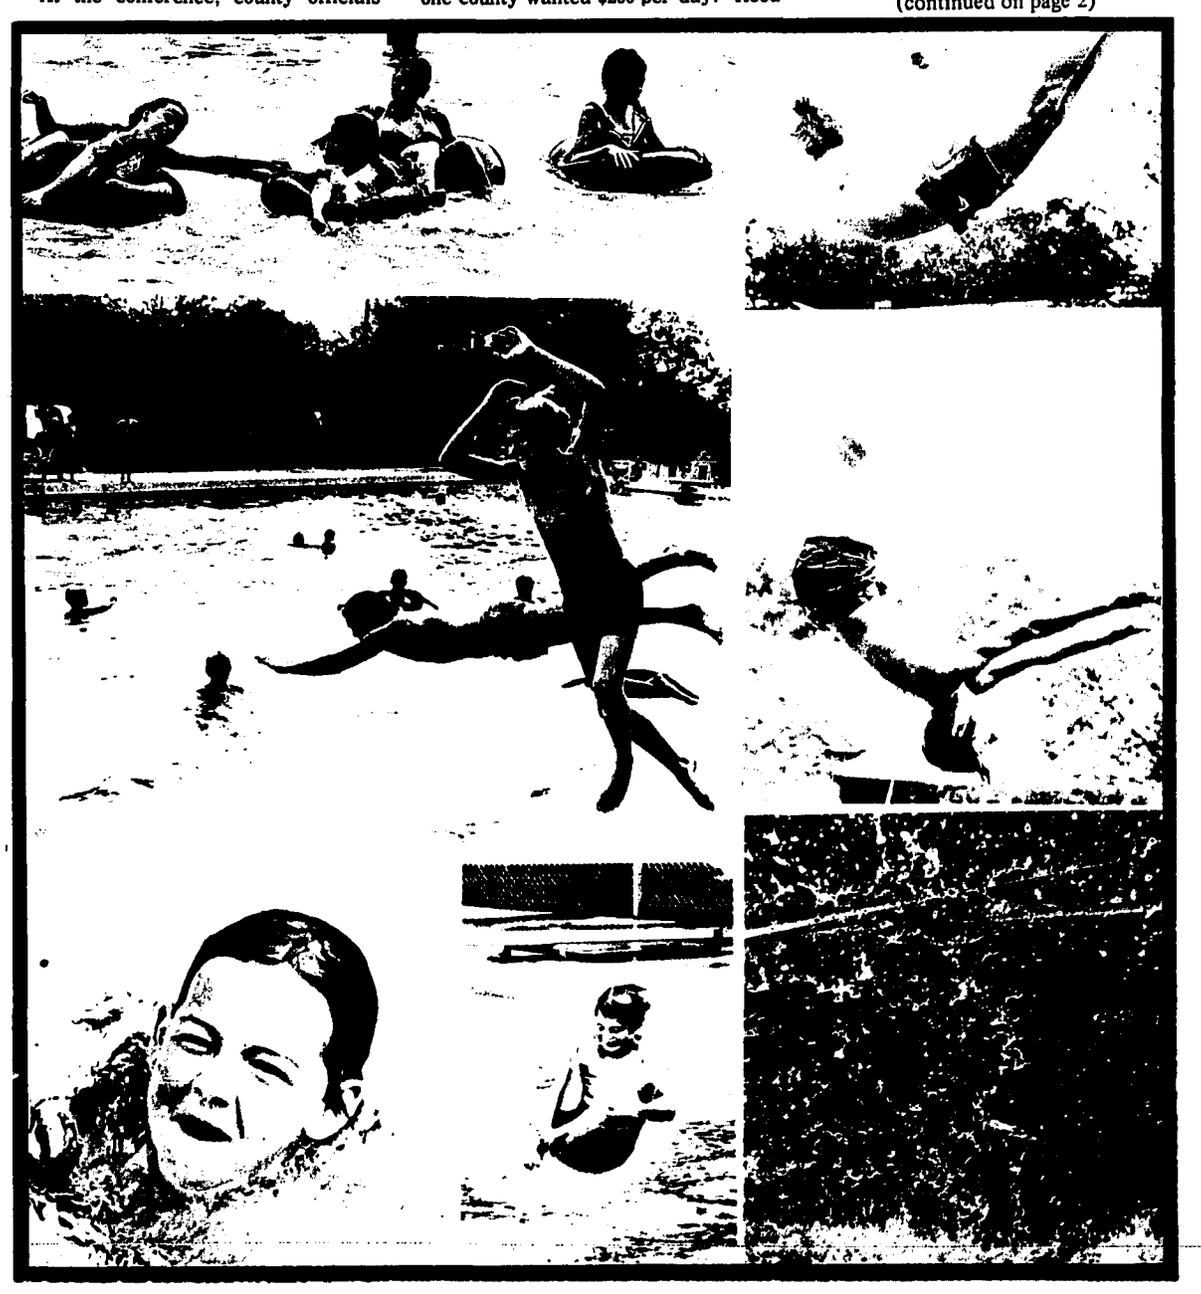

In addition to the loss loans, loans are available to individual farmers, partnerships and corporations at 8 percent interest for periods up to seven years to purchase equipment and for up to 40 years to buy or improve farms, construct buildings and refinance debts on farm real estate.

Schools Accredited By State Board

The Davie County System is one of 43 school systems out of 145 in the state that have been accredited by the State Board of Education. These forty-three units were approved under new policies and procedures adopted by the State Board in October 1972.

According to State Superintendent Craig Phillips, the criteria used in the accreditation process is based on the administrative unit's responsibility for school operations, curriculum improvement, and staff development. Phillips also stated that, "This approach puts the emphasis on quality rather than quantity – we're not just counting library books. Instead, we're asking school units to do their own planning and set up their goals for the entire school unit in cooperation with the Department of Public Instruction," he continued. We want to see a system set its own goals, its time frame for achieving those goals, and its method of measuring whether it has achieved the goals it has set," Phillips said.

Roger Schurrer, director of the division of planning in the state education agency said that 46 additional school systems have filed a letter of intent for future accreditation.

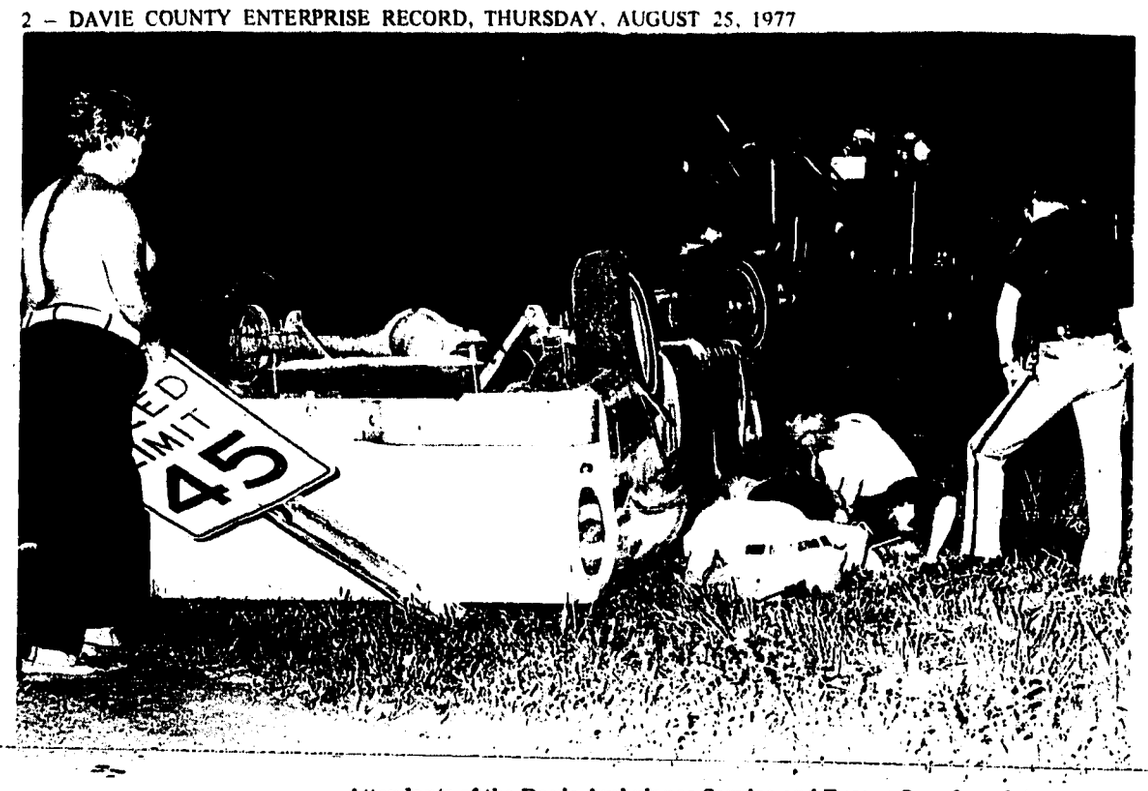

Goodbye To Summer Fun!

Davie County youngsters are cramming in as much fun as possible on this their last week of summer vacation.

All too soon they will be trading their swim suits for school books so they are really whooping it up this week at the Cooleemee Pool.

Miss Teresa Jordan, one of the lifeguards, says "the kids really go wild the last week of swimming". The opening of school officially closes the pool, however, they will re-open on Saturday, September 3rd and remain open throughout the Labor Day weekend only. Then it's buckle down with the school books until next June.

Driver Pinned In Wreckage For 45 Minutes

The driver of a 1971 Dodge pickup was pinned under it for more than 45 minutes Saturday night following a wreck on the Gladstone Road, 3.7 miles south of Mocksville.

Tony Ray Smith, 35, of Rt. 4 Mocksville was extricated from the wrecked truck by attendants of the Davie Ambulance Service and Rescue Squadron. He was taken by ambulance to the Davie County Hospital where he was treated for fractured ribs, abrasions and lacerations and was released.

State Highway Patrolman W.D. Grooms said his investigation showed that the truck was traveling at an excessive speed when Smith lost control in a left curve, ran onto the right shoulder of the roadway, traveled through a yard, struck a power pole (breaking it into), continued on and came back onto the road, rolled over two or three times, coming to rest on it's top on the left shoulder of the road and a field.

Ambulance attendants working to remove Smith from the wreckage were Dale Blackwelder, Gary Harris, Tim McCulloh and Dwayne Smith. Assisting them from the Davie Rescue Squad were Tom Cook, Johnny Beach and Carl McCulloh.

The Cooleemee Fire Department was called to the scene because of possible fire as the result of gasoline spillage. Power lines were down and Crescent Electric crews also reported to the scene.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1800, plus damages of about $500 to the yard and trees of William S. Pierce, and power pole and transmission of Crescent Electric Company.

Smith was charged with reckless driving.

Hospital Rooms Get New Television

Patient rooms at the Davie County Hospital are being outfitted with wall mount, remote controlled, 19-inch color televisions, as part of the hospital's safety program. Sets placed in 1965 by a private contractor did not, by present safety requirements, meet the standards and had to be replaced.

The new sets have a remote pillow speaker, from which the patient receives sound. This same unit allows for changing the channels as well as turning set "off" and "on" and has no electrical power over 24 volts.

Communicating Threats Charged To Youth

Terry Earl Williams, age 16, of 564 Avon St., Mocksville, was arrested on August 21 for communicating threats. Elizabeth Reynolds, Box 14, Mocksville, was the complaintant in the case.

Williams, a student at Surry Community College, was released from the Davie County jail on $200 bond. Deputy Brown of the sheriff's department is investigating the case.

Driver Is Injured

The driver of a 1977 Ford station wagon was hospitalized following an accident Sunday about 5:30 p.m. on the Cana Road, 6.6 miles north of Mocksville.

Larry Lee Myers, 21, of Rt. 1 Advance, was taken to the Davie County Hospital.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $2500 and $50 to a fence of Lathan Moose estate.

Breakin At High School

The Davie High School was broken into last week between 6:40 p.m. Friday and 8:30 a.m., Saturday.

Assistant Service To Senior Citizens

New Program To Aid Elderly

In the past, the elderly needing assistance with social security, food stamps, or applying for social services, didn't have many places or people to turn to.

Now, an Assistant Service to Senior Citizens (ASSC - pronounced ASK) has been started to act as a liason between the elderly and the public services available to them.

Program Director, Agnes Thomas, said, "there is so much unawareness of the programs available to the elderly and that is the purpose of the project- to make people aware that these programs exist."

Plans are for three counselors, that will be employed by the project, to go to the homes of the elderly and provide to them a source of information, help them complete forms, and get interviews.

Another goal of the project is to put together a service information directory that would list the specific programs available to the elderly under the various agencies, such as the Department of Social Services, Triad Mental Health Center, Social Service Administration, and Department of Blindness.

The ASSC is a state funded project under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) for a one year period. The state stipulated that it had to be in the area of public services and had to meet a need that wasn't already being met in the county.

The program began in the county last Wednesday and with an operating budget of $38,984, it will run through August 16, 1978.

Once the year long project is completed, it is hoped that there will be some federal funds available from the Council of Aging so as to continue with an offspring of the project. Tom Bailey, who handles the CETA contracts in the Davie, said that the project would not be funded with CETA money next year, and that it is a one shot deal.

At the moment, Ms. Thomas is in the process of screening candidates for her staff that will include three counselors and a secretary-receptionist. Ms. Thomas said that she hopes to have her staff ready to go by the latter part of this week.

Since money is coming from the state under the CETA Title six program, priority is given to the unemployed and unemployed veterans, and to the minorities. The office for ASSC is temporarily located on the third floor of the county office building in the Army Recruiters office.

A training seminar will be set up for employees before they start to go to the homes of the elderly. Once the year long project is completed, it is hoped that the employees can use their training to go out and find a more permanent type job.

All employees of the ASSC have to be certified by the Employment Security Commission.

Salisbury Street Citizens Express Concern Over Widening Project

By Doug Livengood

Approximately 30 residents along Salisbury Street attended a public hearing at the Mocksville Town Hall, Thursday evening, August 18, to discuss with the Mocksville town Board and a representative of the North Carolina Department of Transportation, proposed improvements to Salisbury Street.

The residents and property owners had petitioned for the hearing as a result of fear that the proposed widening of the street would create a 3-lane thoroughfare, thereby, encouraging truck traffic on the street. Actually, the residents of the street themselves had originally petitioned for street improvements of widening, curbing and guttering the street in 1973.

This year the Department of Transportation finally had funds available to do the work on Salisbury Street and the town board requested the project. However, the street's residents are now having second thoughts about the proposed improvements and petitioned for Thursday's public hearing.

At the hearing, the town board, town attorney Hank Van Hoy, and Ken Horton, chief engineer for the North Carolina Department of Transportation, all assured the Salisbury Street residents that the purpose for widening the street was not to create a thoroughfare for truck traffic.

Van Hoy told the audience that trucks are not supposed to use the street now as a thoroughfare and that the local police have the authority to enforce the law forbidding through truck traffic on the street.

Most of the concern expressed by the citizens at the hearing regarded not the amount and kinds of traffic on the street but how much of their property would be taken for the needed widening of the street.

Horton explained that the street would be widened from its present total width of 20 feet to a width of 32 feet, including curbing and buttering. Horton said that the 32 feet width was a compromise width made by the Department of Transportation which had originally wanted the width of the street to be 36 feet.

Several in the audience questioned Horton about how much of their land would be taken if the street is widened and many expressed their opposition to any of their land being taken by widening the street. Some of the residents said their trees, fences and yards would have to be moved or destroyed if the road is widened.

During the final minutes of the hearing, Mayor Arlen DeVito asked if any member of the town board or any of the citizens present had any suggestions to offer in order to help the board make its final decision concerning approval or disapproval of the street project.

Dr. Henry Sprinkle suggested that the residents of Salisbury Street go home and measure a distance of 6-6½ feet from the edge of the current pavement to determine how much of their property would be needed for the widening of the street,

The commissioners approved a motion that the Salisbury Street residents be allowed to go home and follow Dr. Sprinkle's suggestion, measure their property, and then return for another public hearing on the matter at the Town Hall next Wednesday night. Also, at Wednesday's meeting, the commissioners asked that the town present to the Salisbury Street residents an estimate of the cost which will be required for the residents to pay for the street improvements.

The hearing will be held at 7:00 p.m., Wednesday, August 24, in the Town Hall.

Davie Schools Receive Grant Of $159,352

The Davie County schools have received a grant of $159,352 under part A of Title I, Elementary and Secondary Education Act, according to State School Superintendent Craig Phillips. This grant will support special educational programs during the school year 1977-78.

According to Robert Marley, Director of the Division of Compensatory Education for the state education agency, "Title I provides funds to local educational agencies for use in helping to break the cycle of poverty through equalization of educational opportunity. These funds must be used to expand and improve educational programs contributing to the special needs of educationally deprived children."

Almost all the school administrative units have used Title I funds to support special reading programs. A few have special programs in mathematics.

For fiscal 1978 North Carolina has been granted a total of $59,094,099 in Title I Part A funds. This is up, statewide, from the total of $51,885,667 received during the 1976-77 school year.

Davie High Adds New Program

Davie High School has added a new program to their curriculum this season ... a reading program, under the instruction of James Donaldson.

Donaldson, who has 10 years experience in this field, says the program is designed to help students with reading difficulties. "I plan to work with students on a one-to-one basis," he said.

The course will be offered to the juniors and seniors who he says in most cases have an IQ of average or above average, but have difficulty in reading.

The class is usually quite small with around 15 students per class, which makes it possible to give them the proper attention needed. Donaldson feels quite sure the class will be successful in helping those with reading difficulties.

Principal Jack Ward says they have wanted the program at Davie High for the past few years but were not alloted the funds for it until this year.

Donaldson, is a graduate of Livingstone College, Salisbury, and Tyler School of Art in Philadelphia, Pa. He is presently residing in Salisbury.

Special Self-Defense Course For Women To Be Offered

Beginning Tuesday, September 6, the Mocksville Police Department will sponsor a course in basic self defense for women. This will be taught at the police headquarters in the new town hall.

Classes will run for six comsecutive Tuesday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The primary instructor will be Jerry L. Cope of Cooleemee. Mr. Cope holds a 2nd degree "Black Belt" with the Carolina Karate Association.

The total cost of the course will be an $8 enrollment fee. If more than one member of a household enrolls, the fee for additional members, daughters, sisters, etc., will be only $6. Recommended minimum age is thirteen.

Authorities feel that with the posibility of attack existing today each community should have this type of information available to its citizens on a continuing basis, especially for women who are frequently away from home or are alone at home at night, such as nurses, waitresses, etc.

"This 15 hour course has been thoughtfully put together, from various sources, over a period of several years", said Chief Alton Carter. "No undue physical effort is required and women of any age will have no difficulty in participating."

Much of the class will involve lectures on such subjects as vital body target areas, psychologist of the rapist, prevention and defense against rape and other violent attacks, the law and self defense, escaping from grabs and holds, fighting ability of men vs women, safety at home, safety in a car, telephone safety, etc. Students will also be shown how to punch, strike and kick effectively in order to escape an attacker.

Chief Carter and his officers will also be available at certain classes for presentations, comments, and to answer any questions concerning law enforcement.

No exams or tests will be given. Students completing the course with good attendance will be awarded a certificate from the Carolina Karate Association.

Husbands will be welcome to enroll in this class with their wives.

If more information is desired call Cooleemee (704) 284-4322.

40 Balloon Cards Reported Returned

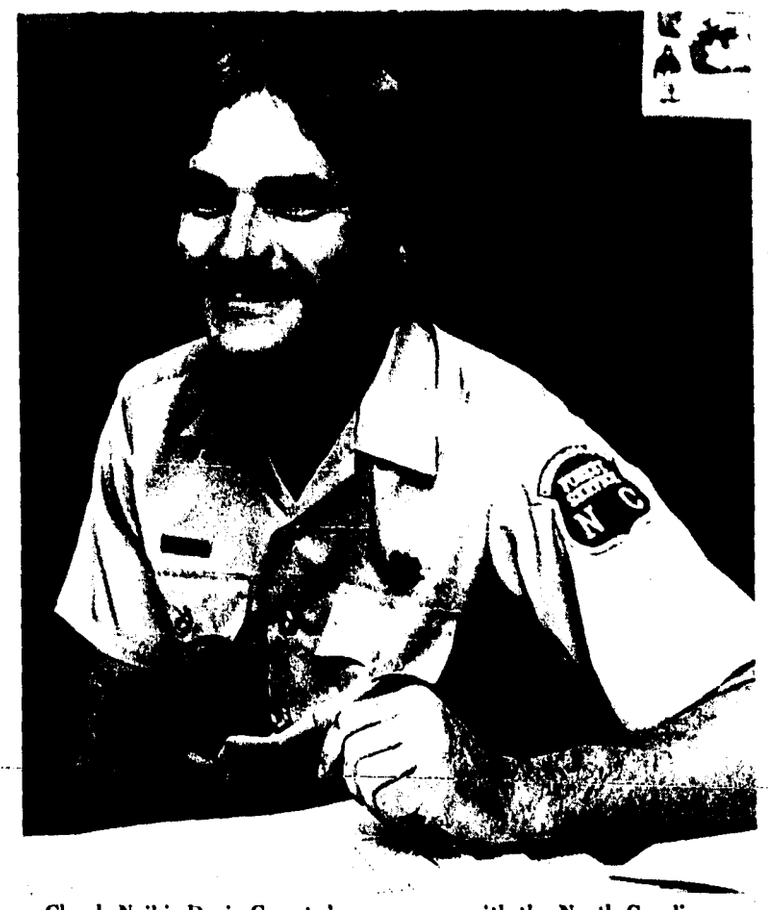

On August 6, about 1500 helium-filled balloons were released from the site of the proposed Perkin's Nuclear Plant in Davie County. To each balloon was attached a 3 x 5 card that had spaces for the finder to fill in the date, time, and place where the balloon came down and was found.

George Kontos, a Davie High School student that heads a local group in Davie opposing the Perkins Plant, said this week that approximately 40 of these cards have been returned so far.

The cards received so far are from the surrounding general area such as Winston-Salem, High-Point, Lexington, Mocksville, Thomasville, Jamestown, Burlington, and Tarboro, which is the most distant point located east of Raleigh.

"We'll have to wait awhile. Some cards may be found as late as next month. When we figure we have gotten all the cards, we'll evaluate them as to where they were found and use the results to show that if radiation escapes from the plant, just where it might travel," said Kontos.

He went on to say that in a general agreement among other groups of Citizens Against Perkins, "we can safely assume that in all area in a 100 mile radious, (based on the balloon found in Tarboro), that these people in case of an accident of leaking at a nuclear reactor plant."

County To Administer All CETA Contracts

Last week at the county commissioners regular meeting, the board approved a request from the state for the county to administer all Comprehensive Employment and Training Act contracts (CETA).

CETA is a state subsidized program that is designed to train the unskilled that are unemployed, the unemployed veterans and minorities to some position in the area of public service.

CETA contracts are administered under two employment programs - Title two and Title six. Under Title two, employees receive benefits such as annual state leave, paid vacations, retirement, insurance, and other benefits. Under, Title six, employees do not receive these benefits for the employees are considered temporary personnel. State CETA employees are under the Title six program, while the county employees are under Title two.

With the county now administering both state and county CETA contract the county has control of all CETA employees, so that the county can now employ personnel in whatever area is needed. The state still picks up the tab for all CETA contracts and the county has to do the administration work such as bookkeeping for all CETA contracts. The exception is that National Guard will still administer its own contracts under the new system.

Under the old system, the state administered the contracts for its own employees, although they were still doing public service work for agencies in the county.

Another advantage to the county administering all CETA contracts would be that now those employees formerly under the state in the Title two program would now switch over to the Title six program and would start receiving the benefits.

Current Title six money for the county is $22,784, which pays the salaries of four to seven employees for a period of February 1 - September 30.

Current Title two money for state employees is $22,163 for six employees over an eight month period of February 1 - September 30.

With the new contracts going out this year, there will be an increase in CETA money and the program will move from an eight month set up to a one year period.

Under Title six, twenty-three positions will be filled for the year beginning October 1 - September 20, 1978. Total money available is $187,092.

Seven positions will still be filled under Title two for the year beginning October 1 - September 30, 1978 with an operating budget of $41,452.

Those agencies in the county receiving employees under Title six of the CETA program are; Employment Security Commission (2), Department of Transportation (9), Social Service (4), Triad Mental Health Clinic (1), Sheriff's Department (1), County Water maintenance (3), and three county secretaries.

Those agencies in the county with employees under the Title two program are: Chamber of Commerce (1), Child Support Office (1), Hospital (1), B.C. Brock Center (2), and one custodian of the County Office Building.

Salaries range from $2.50 to $5.09 an hour.

The theory behind the CETA program is that personnel are to be hired and trained on the job for periods of six to eight months and then either be taken up as regular staff, with salaries paid by the county or released to find private employment.

However, some CETA employees for the county have been working on the subsisdized CETA funds for periods of over two years. Tom Bailey, who handles the CETA contracts in the county said that it is not feasible for the county to try and pick up the salaries of all CETA employees, but that it is one of the goals of the CETA program to help employees find private employment, so they can be taken off state subsidy.

Former U.S. Immigration Official

R. Walter White Opposes Liberalizing Immigration

By Doug Livengood

At least one Davie County resident is strongly opposed to President Carter's recent request to Congress to liberalize the nation's immigration laws concerning the problem of illegal aliens in this country.

He is R. Walter White, of Davie Academy Road, who until his retirement in 1974 was employed for more than 20 years by the U.S. Immigration Service in a variety of jobs on the southern, eastern and western borders of the nation.

If Congress approves Carter's proposals possibly millions of illegal aliens already residing in the United States would be granted the right to hold jobs and immunity from prosecution and deportation as a result of their illegal entry into the nation.

Says White, "Our present immigration laws are the most liberal of any nation in the world today. If we are going to continue our present standard of living of today we cannot and must not liberalize immigration laws any further.

This country cannot continue to assimilate vast numbers of aliens who are presently immigrating to the United States under present laws, let alone attempting to legalize all illegal aliens."

White continues by saying that this country will always have problems with illegal aliens as long as great differences exist between the standard of living in the United States and the standard of living in poorer nations.

"There is no way to keep all illegal aliens out of the U.S. withoug becoming a police state and we don't want a police state," says White.

"The most effective way to curb illegal aliens is to remove their incentive to come to the United States," observes White. "You do this by making it more difficult for them to obtain employment and by penalizing persons who hire illegal aliens for cheap wages," he concludes.

R. Walter White

According to White, the illegal aliens will come into this country and work for a wage less than the minimum wage, thereby, denying employment opportunities to some Americans who are searching for jobs. Also says White, the illegal aliens often get onto the welfare roles and illegally collect welfare themselves.

White points out that the problem of illegal aliens costs all taxpayers who pay federal income taxes. This is because federal tax funds support welfare programs which the illegals sometimes take advantage of and because the illegals contribute to the need for more federal unemployment programs by taking jobs which should go to American citizens.

White predicts that because of the unemployment and welfare situations in the nation at the present time Congress will not be anxious to continue or increase the burden on taxpayers by liberalizing the immigration laws currently in effect.

Seamon Is Named Insulation Inspector

At their meeting, August 18, at the Davie County Courthouse, the Davie County commissioners appointed Harold Seamon to be the insulation inspector for the county. This appointment was necessitated by a recently enacted state law which requires all counties to appoint an insulation inspector by Sept. 1, 1977, and to have this individual trained by Jan. 1, 1978.

In other business, the commissioners approved numerous change orders regarding the ongoing construction of the county water system. They also reviewed and approved an agreement which the county can enter into with owners of subdivisions who dedicate their water lines to the county.

Commissioner Jerry Anderson reviewed with the commissioners current concerns of the executive board of commissioners of the Tri-County Mental Health Association.

The next meeting of the board of county commissioners will be Tuesday, Sept. 6, at 1:00 p.m., in the commissioners' meeting room at the courthouse.

School Television Previews Is Offered For Parents

Parents of public school children in Davie County will be given the opportunity to look in on some instructional television that children in grades K-12 can benefit from during the school day as part of their classroom activities as a result of the cooperative efforts of the UNC-TV Network and the State Department of Public Instruction.

Four evenings in September the UNC-TV Network with the state education agency will show teachers, school administrators, parents, and others that instructional television offers high-quality programming for students in the classroom.

"School Television Previews" will feature ITV series for grades K-6 on Monday and Tuesday, September 5-6, from 8:00 - 9:00 p.m. A different one-hour program will be shown each evening. Instructional television for students in junior and senior high schools will be previewed the following week on Monday and Tuesday, September 12-13. A different special preview program will be aired each evening from 8:00 - 9:00 p.m.

This awareness project is designed to highlight the strength of instructional television and show that ITV should be an essential part of the child's learning process.

Motor Vehicles

There are 131 million motor vehicles registered in the United States, 100 million more than in any other nation.

Over 200 Screened For High Blood Pressure

Since May, more than 2000 people have been screened for high blood pressure through clinics at the Davie County Health Department and through special screenings conducted by the Health Department at various industries and organizations in the county.

This intensive effort has resulted from the creation of a Chronic Disease Detection Program within the Health Department. Begun in May, the major emphasis has thus far been placed on hypertension, or high blood pressure, although other chronic diseases are also screened for at the Health Department including cancer, diabetes, and glaucoma.

Of the 2000 patients screened thus far, more than seven percent have registered abnormally high readings, possibly indicating high blood pressure. When an abnormal reading is found, the patient is either referred to their family doctor or asked to come to the health department for a recheck.

High Blood pressure occurres in an estimated 23 million adult Americans. It is the leading cause of heart disease, kidney disease and stroke in the United States. Although it is a very dangerous condition, 10 million people who know they have the disease either treat it inadequately or not at all.

If you have been told you may have high blood pressure, check with your family doctor to make sure. If you know you have high blood pressure follow your doctor's orders exactly. Follow whatever diet he has suggested and take all medication when he says to and for as long as he orders - your life may depend on it. Hypertension can not be cured, but it can be controlled.

If you would like your blood pressure checked free of charge, come by the Davie County Health Department anytime Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. At this time you may also obtain more information on hypertension and other topics, and inquire about having someone come to speak to your club or organization.

Capt. Ebright Cites Reasons For Resigning

Reasons for resigning from the Davie County Sheriff's Department were expressed by Captain A.W. Ebright in a letter to Sheriff R.O. Kiger. This letter read as follows:

Dear Sir:

This letter is being written to be placed in my personel file kept in the Sheriff's Department. I wish to express my reasons for making the move.

I am not leaving the Sheriff's Department because of any difficulty as I have enjoyed working with and serving the people of Davie County. I choose to leave due to a greater amount of money, better benefits as well as having the weekends off to spend with my family.

I desire to better myself and therefore I feel the move is necessary.

Sincerely,
A.W. Ebright, Captain

Pilot Program At Mocksville Elementary School

Kindergarten Children Screened For Strengths And Weaknesses

Last Thursday, Friday and Monday were important days at Mocksville Elementary School -- 100 children who will be entering kindergarten Friday were screened for their strengths and weaknesses.

These three days were also special because this preassessment of ability has given the teachers knowledge of each individual child's special needs, as well as abilities.

Terry Jones, school psychologist of the Davie County schools, stated that Mocksville Elementary is being used as a pilot project. If the tests prove beneficial, the program will be expanded to other schools next year.

"Another reason for choosing Mocksville," he said, "is that it takes in a smaller area of children than other areas of the county."

Bradley Foster walks on the balanced beam as part of the gross motor skill test.

Jones introduced the screening to the school. He compiled the tests from standardized tests that have proven useful in evaluating abilities and from others he also felt were needed.

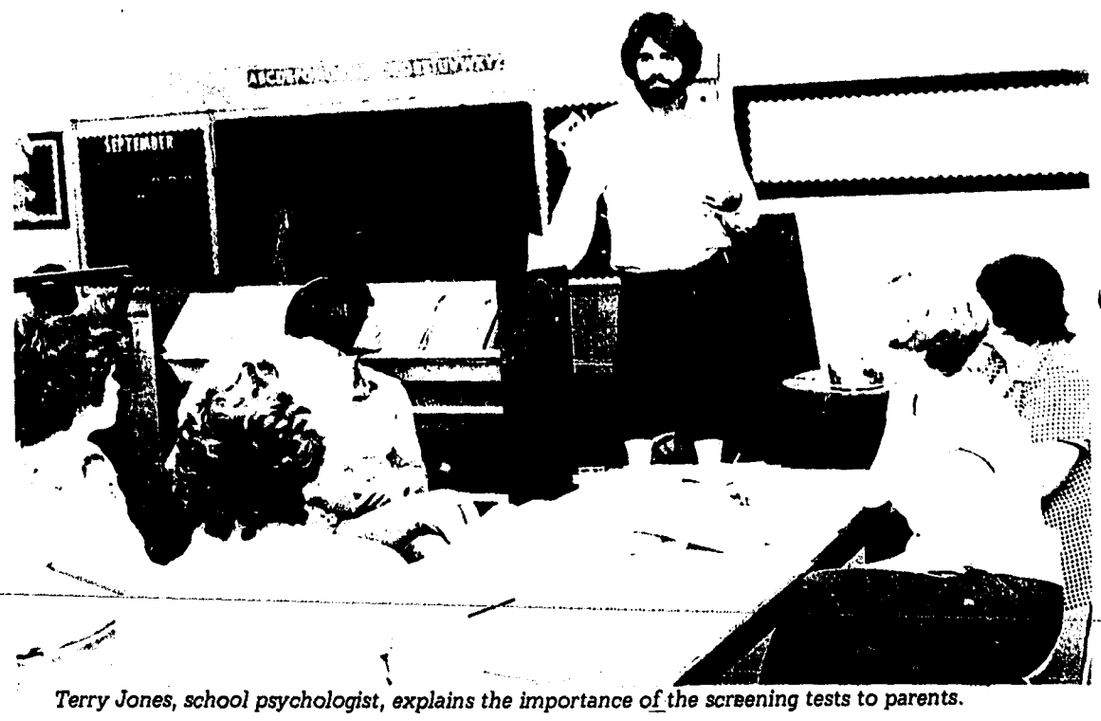

The 14 tests, which compare one child's ability with the average ability of his classmates, are basic information, reading readiness, number readiness, handwriting, gross motor, visual-motor, receptive vocabulary, hearing, vision, speech-language, and medical-social history.

"The testing will have no effect on the child's placement in school, principal Vernon Thompson emphasized. "The children have already been placed in their suites," he said.

Jones began preparing for the screening last spring. He pointed out that there is no additional cost in the program. An advantage is that all materials are usually right on hand and the whole program can be explained to the helpers in about an hour.

Liz Harmon, a second and third-grade teacher and mother of kindergartener, Angel Harmon, said, "I know that program is going to be a big help. It's a good idea and I'm looking forward to the results."

Parents will be able to see the results of the tests but Thompson stressed that only the parents of children whose problems are severe will be notified. He added that he liked to think of the test as a preventive of learning disabilities.

Terry Jones, school psychologist, explains the importance of the screening tests to parents.

Sarah Bailey, mother of Richelle Bailey, said she was pleased to see the school taking this much interest in the students.

It took 25 teachers and aides approximately two hours to screen a group of 12-14 students. Following each testing period, cookies and kool-aid were served.

Friends attending were Deborah and Marsha Glasscock, Anderia Ellis, Charlene Gobbie, Sabrina and Tonya Stroud, Amber and Derek Branham, Tricia Reilly, Matthew Draughn, Rita White, Robin White, and her sister, Sheila.

Meal Planning

When planning family meals -- just remember to include a variety of foods each day and from day to day. Introduce new foods and be innovative -- don't let meals seem monotonous.

Try varying flavors and textures, say NCSU agricultural extension specialists. Contrast strong flavors with mild, sweet with sour. Also try combining crisp textures with smooth.

William Johnson Was The First Settler On Tanglewood Property

For twenty years the descendants of William Johnson (1732-1765) have met at Tanglewood Park, near Clemmons, N.C. for their family reunion. Morning worship has been held in their ancestral church (now in 1973 designated "Old Church"), formerly the Mount Pleasant Methodist Church built in 1809. James Johnson, son of Pioneer William Johnson, was one of the trustees named in the deed when the church property was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Star in 1808 (Rowan Co. N.C. Deed Book 21, p. 339). Other trustees were Thomas Cooper, Roger McKnight, Adam Star, and Elias Delashment. Following the worship service there has been a picnic dinner, program and business meeting.

William Johnson, the first ancestor of the Forsyth County descendants, is buried in the cemetery which is over 200 years old, situated south of and adjacent to the old church in Tanglewood Park. The immigrant Johnson's land is the center 640 acres of the 1,000 acre tract of what is now Tanglewood Park. In 1757 he purchased the one square mile of land from William Linville, Lord Granville's "chain-bearer" and real estate agent in the Carolina Colony. It was originally in Rowan County (Deed Book 3, p. 553ff.), later in Davidson County, and finally in Forsyth County when Forsyth was organized. Rowan County in 1757 was owned by Lord Proprietor, John, Earl of Granville and son of Sir George Carteret, and included the upper half of the present State of North Carolina, east to west, from the Atlantic Ocean to the Mississippi River and beyond. Until 1921, William Johnson's square mile of land had remained in the possession of his descendants, at which time, Mr. William N. Reynolds purchased it from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Griffith. Mr. Griffith was a direct descendant of William Johnson. It was his wife, Margaret Naylor Griffith, who gave the name, "Tanglewood," to the area, so named after reading Nathaniel Hawthorne's "Tanglewood Tales." The William Johnson land was outside the Wachovia Tract and to the west. One of the original corner of William Johnson's land was located some years ago under the present 158 Highway Bridge crossing the Yadkin Riber. It was a snag of the original white swamp oak named in the deed and now under water.

Johnson Reunion

Johnsons will gather Sunday, August 28, at Tanglewood Park to celebrate William Johnson's birthday, August 31, 1732. William was born in Wales, England. Our observance of his birthday will be on land purchased by William 1757.

A service will be held at the "Little Church" at 11:30 a.m. and a picnic lunch follows at Shelter No. 3.

William Johnson arrived in the Carolina Colony during the French and Indian War, and to protect his family from being massacred by the hostile Indians, he built a fort of huge logs which stood on the hill opposite the front entrance of the present Manor House (see "The American Indian" by Rev. Douglas Rights, p. 168). A marker placed on the identified site of the old fort by William Johnson's descendants has been removed to another place, and no longer marks the authentic site of the fort. It is believed that the fort surrounded Johnson's home as forts often did during that hazardous time.

In 1935 Mr. William J. Hall of Clemmons, N.C. (now of Zephyrhills Fla.), along with other Johnson descendants, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wesley Johnson, Martha Johnson Hall, Emma Johnson, and James Craver, found William Johnson's original soapstone gravestone in the cemetery beside the old church. His stone is believed to be the oldest extant relic fashioned by civilized man in southwest Forsyth County, and which designated when the white man settled on this part of the Yadkin River.

Mrs. Vada Johnson of Farmington has been working on the Johnson genealogy for 25 years.

It is both pre-Revolutionary and Colonial. The stone reads: "WILLIAM JOHNSON was Born Aug . 31 . day 1732 and Died Sept . the 5 . Day 1765." In 1954 the William Johnson descendants recessed the original tombstone into a new granite stone on the site of William Johnson's grave, to preserve it, carving into the front of the new stone the same wording as in the older stone, also giving a brief history of William Johnson's short life of 33 years on the back. It reads: "WILLIAM JOHNSON came from Wales, Great Britain. He purchased one square mile of land along the Yadkin River in 1757. The valley north of this monument was near the middle of his land. A fort which he erected to protect his family from the Indians stood about three quarters of a mile from this monument north 15' west. His wife's name was Elizabeth, son James, daughter Sarah. Erected by his descendants 1954."

Four or more generations of William Johnson's descendants and relatives are buried in the Mount Pleasant cemetery in Tanglewood Park between the "Old Church" and the new golf club house. When the church was built, it and the cemetery were named for Mount Pleasant, the original name of the highest hill in the area, and on top of which each is located.

The central part of the present Manor House was built in 1856 (Mr. Reynolds added the two wings) with brick walls of 16" to 18" thick. It was built as a gift from her father, James Johnson, Jr. to Emily Camilla Johnson, wife of Zadock Griffith and great granddaughter of William Johnson. Emily and Zadock Griffith also are buried in the cemetery on Mount Pleasant along with approximately 100 others. The bricks for the ante-bellum home were hand made on the property. The small creek in the ravine north and west of the Manor House, flowing into the Yadkin River, is referred to in deeds as "Johnson's Creek."

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:

This is a reply to Duke Power's full page ad about the Perkins Nuclear Station.

In reading the ad we are reminded Duke Power is a skilled salesman. Like all good salesmen they "puff" their wares. Duke's wares are to sell you (and there is nothing improper about their selling to their best advantage):

1. the most electricity possible,
2. at the highest possible price; while,
3. paying the least possible taxes.

You will recall Duke paid no income tax last year, had their highest profits while getting huge rate increases. With a track record like that their sales "pitch" should be read with caution.

If they were not salesmen but telling you what they and the North Carolina Utilities Commission told the Federal Courts their ad would have read:

"Some Straight Talk About The Perkins Nuclear Station, The Yadkin River, Water and Energy Conservation And Your Electric Bill.

By building the Perkins Station on the Yadkin River instead of Lake Norman Duke will:

1. Unnecessarily increase your electric rates by as much as two billion three hundred million dollars over the life of Perkins (as much as $20.00 to $30.00 per month for some of you)
2. Waste more energy in those energy wasting, water wasting and job destroying cooling towers than we have used during any one year in our whole history.
3. We can meet your highest energy demands we project by completing our Cherokee Station and commencing Perkins in time to come on line one year after the last Cherokee Unit is completed."

We would hope that the consumer protecting and energy conserving bureaus of both North Carolina and the Federal Government will get with Duke and show them how they can not unnecessarily raise your electric rates and conserve enormous quantities of scarce energy.

Sincerely,
Mary Davis
Rt. 4, Mocksville

Return To 1800s Energy Level Predicted By UNC-CH Researcher

By Rosemary Waldorf

Americans will be forced in 20 years to return to the low-energy living standards of the late 1800s according to a University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill researcher.

"Unless we find massive new energy resources, we will have to adjust to a low-energy lifestyle. That's what our forefathers did and we had better start learning from them how it was done," said Thomas Donnelly, a senior research associate at the UNC-CH Center for Urban and Regional Studies.

In a three-part energy seminar held here this summer, Donnelly discussed findings of research he has been conducting over the past year to more accurately project the nation's energy needs.

Donnelly predicts that by 1992 civilian use of natural gas will be nonexistant and that by 1995 only military use of U.S. oil will be allowed. He said efforts to find alternative energy sources have not been successful.

If efforts in research and conservation are not more successful, he said, 74 per cent of America's energy needs could go unmet in the year 2000.

"We seem determined to go full speed ahead until we crash into what I call the end of history, a few years short of the year 2000," he said. "We will not have developed sufficient alternative energy sources and we will have used essentially all our wonderful energy resources, flagrantly cheating all future generations on this planet."

Donnelly prefaced his remarks on research into coal mining, solar energy and nuclear energy by pointing out how low American fuel resources really are. He said these fuels, oil and natural gas, now provide 74 per cent of America's energy needs.

The U.S. has about 1,600 quadrillion BTUs (British Thermal Units) worth of oil and natural gas remaining, he said. By the year 2000 the nation will need to produce 2000 quadrillion BTUs of this fuel. This estimate, Donnelly explained, is based on very conservative predictions of growth in the demand for oil, implying that a major national conservation program will be in effect, and it holds U.S. import of oil to its present level of 25 per cent of all oil in use.

Also, he said, "only half of the oil drilling done now is successful. In 1960 two-thirds of all drilling in the U.S. resulted in the discovery of new reserves. If present trends continue, by 1980 all new drilling will be pointless. We will be forced to rely on the oil pumped from existing fields and since Alaskan oil was discovered in 1970, the number of American fields has plummeted."

Donnelly said oil companies have been claiming there isn't much oil left since 1974 and that the U.S. Geological Survey and the National Academy of Sciences have supported these claims.

A major shift away from gas and oil and into coal-produced energy is not the answer, Donnelly said. Although the U.S. has a massive supply of coal, it will not fill the energy gap at the rate predicted by President Carter. The increased coal production Carter wants, he said, is already needed to meet expected growth with none left to replace that used.

Coal mining is dangerous and there is a shortage of mining engineers, he said, adding that coal doesn't burn clean and thus adds to the air pollution problem.

The possibilities of solar energy, Donnelly continued, have also been greatly exaggerated. Solar energy can be expected to provide only half the heat a home needs, he said, "but only 10 per cent of the energy we use is imployed in heating homes. So far we can't see how to harness the sun for much of that other 90 per cent.

"Solar radiation is an extremely diluted form of energy. Large sums of money must be spent if steps towards harnessing, storing and transferring solar energy into electricity are to be successful."

Nuclear energy, widely regarded by the public as dangerous and undersirable, is the most promising source of future energy production, Donnelly said.

"But what ought to be a serious public dialogue has degenerated into a poisonous exchange of insults and half-truths between nuclear proponents and opponents," he said. "We have become so terrified of nuclear risks that we ignore the vastly greater risks we run from coal-fired plants, cigarette smoking, car accidents or nuclear war."

Donnelly firmly believes that Americans must choose to change their lifestyles and conserve energy, thus giving researchers more time to develop alternative energy sources, or a change in lifestyle will be forced upon them.

Increased unemployment, poverty and taxation will occur as the energy crunch sets in, he said. A rapid decline in national productivity will follow the decrease in available oil and gas, with high unemployment being one result.

"If available fuels are halved, the number of jobs will similarly shrink," he said. "This would mean that every working person through his taxes would be supporting a huge burden of jobless people. Such a situation would threaten our traditional political structures and social order."

Donnelly said he believed public commitment to conserve must be more than easy changes to smaller cars and lower thermostats made by a conscientious few.

Also, he said, better leadership in government is needed.

Donnelly said Carter, who is considered by many to be a "doomsday sayer" on the energy issue, is much too soft. "I suspect that he knows the situation is much worse than he has stated, and hope he'll soon move to stronger statements.

"Conservation will mean sacrifices by everybody, enforced by laws that will not be popular and only made palatable by leaders who begin to level with us about how serious our problems really are.

"So far I don't see much of that coming from either Raleigh or Washington."

Cpl. Terry Davis On Alaskan Excercise

Marine Corporal Terry Davis, son of Elizabeth Richkus of Route 4, Box 74, Mocksville, N.C., recently participated in Exercise "Bell Nugget" in Alaska.

He is serving as a member of Battalion Landing Team One Slant Seven, homebased at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

His unit formed the ground element of a Marine Amphibious Unit for the exercise.

"Bell Nugget" was designed to develop and evaluate procedures for amphibious assaults in sub-arctic, temperate rain forest climates. He and his fellow Marines had the opportunity to visit the Alaskan cities of Anchorage, Juneau, Kodiak and Ketchkan, in addition to Vancouver, Canada, during the month-long deployment.

A 1973 graduate of Mocksville High School, he joined the Marine Corps in February 1974.

Chain Saw Is Stolen

A chain saw, valued at about $200, was reported stolen last Saturday from the residence of Dewey W. Felker, Rt. 1 Mocksville.

Mr. Felker said the chain was along side the house. He noticed it was missing about 7 a.m. Saturday morning and reported it to the sheriff's department.

Deputy Melvin C. Reynolds is investigating.

Vehicle Hits Sign Post

Damage was estimated at $400 to a 1974 Chevrolet when it went out of control and hit a highway sign post Sunday about 3 a.m. on NC 801, near the Riverview Road intersection.

The driver of the vehicle was not identified in the investigation report. The vehicle is owned by James Douglas Bailey of Rt. 2 Advance.

State Highway Patrolman Bjorkland said his investigation showed that the vehicle ran off the roadway on the right in a sharp curve, went out of control and hit a sign post.

Damage to the sign post was estimated $20.

Vacations

A vacation column seems appropriate, seeing as how it's that time of year, I just had one, and there is nothing else in particular to write about.

I was again reminded that vacations only come once a year because it takes 51 weeks to get over the last one - if you ever do.

The first killer encountered is the ride, a necessary function in the definition of vacation. Without going somewhere, you don't have a chance to appreciate the fact that there are people leading a more mundane existance than your own.

There is one cardinal rule among veteran vacation drivers -- "Stop For Nothing Other Than Extreme Emergencies."

Situations qualifying as extreme emergencies include the car catching on fire, a blue light in the rear view mirror, and earthquakes, typhoons, or toher acts of God.

The gas hand pointing to empty, urgent impulses to use the bathroom, or the death of anyone in the car other than the driver does not qualify.

To help pass the long periods between stops (and take your mind off having to go to the bathroom), there are a number of games that one or more people can play.

One of the more educational is called "Count the Cows." Two people take alternate sides of the road and count the cows between two points, high cow count winning.

For example, I am probably the only person in existance who knows there were exactly 432 cows standing on the left side of U.S. 64 between Asheboro and Pittsboro on the morning of August 19, 1977.

Another fun pastime is seeing how many ways you can turn over your canned drink. The canned drink, incidentially, is bought at the start of the trip to add suspense to the bathroom waiting game.

Points are awarded according to difficulty of spill. A lap dump over a speed bump scores more, for example, than spraying your seat mate while going around a sharp curve.

Extra points are awarded accurate spills that stain embarassing places on your clothes.

Once the ride has been conquered, there is the rain to contend with. If the people in California would all vacation to other portions of the state, the drought would end and they could start taking showers again.

Of course the sun always makes one appearance during the week, ususally towards the end of the vacation.

That's so you can get your traditional sunburn and add another dimension to the ride home -- red, raw blistered legs against sticky, hot plastic car seats.

The best part of the vacation is saved until last. It consists of pulling into your own drive at the end of the long trip and discovering there is no place like home.

You also discover that nobody informed the milk man that you were going on vacation (did you ever smell milk that sat seven days in the August sun?) and the freezer door was left open.

But don't worry (see last week's column). You have 51 weeks to recuperate before you have to go on vacation again.

Dr. Dennis Fox

Dr. Dennis Fox Authors Book

Dr. Dennis Bryan Fox, a former surgeon at the Davie County Hospital, is the author of a book concerning three generations of his family. It is entitled "So Long, Doc!"

A brief resume' on the cover of the book, published by Delmar, reads as follows:

"When the Reverend Michael Leonard Fox, MD., first surveyed the partially amputated lower legs of his three and one-half year old son, Dennis, on that morning in 1870, he had grave doubts as to the child's survival through the day. The lad not only survived but surmounted his ensuing deformity and became a medical doctor (as did three of his brothers) and practiced steadfastly in Randolph County for over 55 years. It was his strong character and influence that persuaded his nephew and namesake (the author of this book) to study medicine and to return to Piedmont North Carolina and practice surgery for 35 years.

"During an interval of some 125 years, many changes occurred in the Art of Medical Practice, most of them good, some undesirable. This book attempts to point out some of these, as it also relates a good many incidents that occurred in the lives of three generations of Fox doctors."

A preface written by the author reads:

"Because the Rev. Michael Leonard Fox MD., was such a sincere, versatile, devoted man, both to his family and to his professions, and because his numerous progeny have been involved in the lives of thousands of people in Piedmont North Carolina, this story has been set down so the surviving descendants, and any others who may be interested, may read and know some of the facts and incidents occuring during his lifetime and, subsequently, in the Fox family during the next 89 years.

"The story of Dennis Luther Fox, MD. ("Uncle Dink"), is the history of a remarkable and unique man--one of the very last of his breed. Crippled at the age of three and a half years, he overcame his handicap to become a family doctor who devoted over half a century to the practice of medicine. It was his exemplary character, his love, and financial assistance that made it possible and imperative that I ("Bud") study medicine and continue the family traditions.

The autobiographical part is written in appreciation of a full, gratifying life, to share some of the interesting experiences and fine friendships I have had during my 64 years existence, 35 of which were involved in the practice of general surgery."

On Page 173 of the book is the following reference to Mocksville:

"In 1968, Bud found it expedient to make another move, this time to Salisbury. Early in 1970, he had the opportunity to work with Dr. Francis Slate in Mocksville, just sixteen miles away. For the next five years Bud had a low-key activity at the hospital and enjoyed working with Dr. Slate, a talented, hardworking surgeon, who was surrounded by the best OR personnel, anesthetists, and office staff one could want. This period of time with him and with the staff was extremely pleasant."

A limited number of personally autographed copies of this are now on sale in Mocksville at the Foster Drug Company.

Farmers Are Urged To Work Closely With PCA

This will not be a good year for many Piedmont North Carolina farmers and the president of one agency making loans to farmers says the dry weather could result in increased liabilities for many.

"In addition to reduced yields caused by the drought, it appears farmers will not get a good price for what they produce - for instance, corn may be below $2.00," said J. Wilbur Cabe, president of the Ideal Production Credit Association, a farmer-owned credit cooperative which makes loans both for producing crops, farm improvements, farm machinery, etc.

"Good management practices and wise use of credit are even more important this year as well as good records to enable a farmer to analyze his position after this bad year and to enable him to make plans for another year," says Cabe. "We at PCA spend 100 percent of our time serving farmers; therefore, we understand the position in which this severe dry weather has placed farmers and we are confident that we can continue in most cases to provide the credit needed to continue to finance the farmers who can present a realistic and sound plan of repayment," Cabe said. "The directors of our association who set the policies are farmers themselves and have experienced these same drought conditions. Our personnel have a farm background; therefore we feel we are in an excellent position to counsel with and understand the problems farmers face," said Cabe. "We urge each farmer to work closely with their PCA or other lending agency and to apply the proceeds from their crops, keeping their lender informed of their situation and needs. Debts cannot be forgiven but our PCA credit people will do everything possible to extend, renew, refinance, and provide additional financing as long as the member is cooperating and can present a realistic plan of repayment," Cabe said. "We want to help farmers work out of this situation which is beyond their control. PCA's have the ability to do this. We were organized during hard times and are dedicated to serving the farmers both in bad times as well as good."

Ideal PCA serves approximately 1900 farmers in an eleven-county area with loans totaling over $34,500,000. PCA's current interest rate is 6.95 percent. The terms of their loans range from one to seven years.

The PCA's obtain their funds through the Intermediate Credit Banks who obtain their money from the sale of bonds through the nation's money markets to the investing public. There are no government funds used in the nationwide Farm Credit System which is entirely farmer-owned.

Dr. Gerald H. Gaither, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wade Edwards of Statesville Rd., Mocksville, is the editor of Planning for America's Third Century.

Published by the Planning Executives' Institute, the 92-page study deals with the kinds of management tools and techniques required for America's third century including the movement of industry from the "snow belt" to the "sunshine belt," the use of metrics, land use planning and new and different transportation patterns and techniques.

Dr. Gaither, currently director of institutional research at DePaul University in Chicago, received his bachelor's degree from Appalachian State University and his Ph.D. from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville in higher education and statistical history.

Before joining the DePaul staff, he was associated with the university of Tennessee at Knoxville and Vanderbilt University.

Cheerleading camp means hours of hard work out in the hot sun, but spirit ran high with the Davie squads. Shown are some of the instructors in left photo, the Davie girls (center) and more instructors at right on their final day of camp.

Davie Cheerleaders Rate Among Tops In The State

There is more to being a cheerleader than looking pretty in a short skirt and yelling your little heart out at ballgames.

There are endless hours of practicing and once each year, the girls are required to spend almost a week at camp.

Camp life for the cheerleaders during these few days is also lots of hard work, because they are continuously competing with other squads all over the state for honors.

And of course, there is also lots of memorable fun, such as the Varsity and Jr. Varsity squads from Davie experienced a few weeks ago at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

The varsity squad was evaluated as a superior squad and received blue ribbons each night for their superior rating. By completing such catagories as coordination, organization, spirit and dedication, the Davie High Varsity cheerleaders received a super star ribbon and was named a "Super Star Squad."

The varsity girls were selected as one of the top six squads of the approximately 70 squads attending the clinic. They were also awarded the "Spirit Megaphone", one of the highest awards presented throughout the week. This goes to the one squad who displayed the most spirit during the entire clinic. This award was voted on by all the squads.

The JV squad was not left out by no means. They were the winners of a blue superior ribbon, a red excellent ribbon and a "Super Star Ribbon".

Camp has been beneficial to the girls in a variety of ways. They learned each other pesonally during their week at camp and thus became better friends. This means they will work together better during the season.

The girls say that the camp gave them a feeling of self-satisfaction. They worked hard and they felt their tired muscles were worth every effort put forth when they were declared ribbon winners at the end of the day.

Camp is also something to use for self discipline and this is always good for an extra energy boost whenever needed.

Seeing the staff members in excellent physical condition, athletic, energetic and spirited makes each and every cheerleader want to be just as good.

The Davie girls also learned from other squads. The competition was good as they were able to learn from each other's mistakes.

Like the field or art or music, the camp life teaches new cheers and chants which creates a great deal more enthusiasm and spirit. When a cheer or chant is done in the proper manner, it puts players and fans alike in a better frame of mind.

When a day of hard work came to an end, the fun began. The girls had taken costumes from home to do a skit entitled "Monster Mash" at camp. These costumes served a dual purpose in their rooms as they had a ball clowning around for pictures, and on occasions were caught by a camera when they least expected it.

They also took advantage of this time to practice for the next days competition, or to try out some new cheer or stunt before competition began.

The girls not only grew closer to each other during their week at camp, they also became very close friends with other squads and look forward to getting together with them.

Now that camp is over, the Davie Cheerleaders are not slowing down in their practice time. When the War Eagles hit the field for that first game, they can rest assured that one of the top six cheerleading squads in the state will be backing them from the sidelines.

Paul Radford, the veteran speedster from Ferrum, Va., shares 1977's Bowman Gray Stadium stock car racing championships with Jimmy Johnson of Rural Hall and High Point residents Ben Jordan and Timmy Canard.

Radford, Johnson and Canard preserved their slender leads in track standings in last Saturday night's "Sun-drop 200" season-ending event. Jordan climbed from second place to claim his title.

Radford set a qualifying record of 15.041 seconds in Friday qualifying, claiming the pole position for the 200-lap NASCAR Modified Division main event, and led all the way.

The triumph, his ninth of the season on the quarter-mile asphalt track, gave him the stadium's Winston Racing Series crown for the first time in his career.

The 45-year old restaurant operator finished 18 points ahead of Philip Smith of Kernersville in standings which decided the title. It is worth about $3,000 on bonus awards -- including a $1,000 check from Winston cigarettes, a $100 appearance fee at each stadium event in 1978, and the champion's share of a NASCAR point fund.

Smith finished third in the "Sun-drop 200," behind Radford and Billy Hensley of Ridgeway, Va., in a four-car battle for the lead at the end. Fourth place went to another Kernersville resident, Melvin Swisher, who was passed by Smith with seven laps remaining.

Johnson became the Limited Sportsman champ by finishing third and fourth in two 20-lap races won by Brent Elliott of Denton and Tim Dwiggins of Kernersville. Johnson's closest pursuer in standings Max Martin of Elkin, finished fifth and second and remained 14 points behind Johnson.

Jordan's second-place finish in a 20-lap Street Division race, won by Sam Myers of Winston-Salem, boosted Jordan to the lead in standings by a 13-point margin over Monroe York of Yadkinville. Ben Young of Winston-Salem, leader when the race started, hit a guard rail and failed to finish. He fell to third place in standings.

Canard clinched his title with victory in a 15-lap race for the "Blunderbust" class, for novice drivers in old model "luxury" cars. Billy Kimel of Winston-Salem, second in standings, finished second in the race and wound up 10 points behind Canard in final rankings.

A crowd of 10,000 watched the last event of the stadium's 29th season of NASCAR racing.

Professional Wrestling Moves From Mocksville Armory To Lexington

The Eastern Wrestling Association, sponsors of the professional wrestling matches at the Mocksville Armory, are pulling out of the Mocksville area and are heading east, to the Cow Palace in Lexington, N.C. The first matches will be held Friday, September 16 beginning at 8:15 p.m.

The card will include six matches. Advance tickets are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. Tickets may be purchased at the Mocksville Western Auto Store, both Mocksville Service Distributor stations and Andy's 76 in Mocksville.

Many of the wrestlers presented at the Armory in Mocksville and at William R. Davie School will be on the card. Robert Payne of Mocksville will referee the entire card.

Six-man tag team main event Eastern U.S. Heavyweight champion, Johnny Hunter, 422 pound "Tiny Tom" Williams, and Don Whitlock defeated Billy "Bad Boy" Hines and Bruce and Jimmy Gallagher. The bout lasted 19 minutes until Hunter caught up with Jimmy Gallagher and turned him over to "Tiny Tom", who finished him off with a bear hug.

Semi-main event, Jimmy Woods and Gary Austin defeated the tag team of Rickton and Bilton Link. Woods was able to pin Rickton Link after Rickton was accidently hit by his own manager, Gary Austin is shown above administering the figure four wrist lock on "Killer" Ken Spence as referee Robert Payne of Mocksville looks on. Later in the bout, Austin was disqualified when he threw Spence over the top rope in August 6 wrestling action at the Armory.

Billy "Bad Boy" Hines. Following the match a free-for-all ensued between Woods and Hines.

German superstar, 310 lb. Tony Peters, defeated Roger Dixon in 23 minutes after using an illegal hand and another foreign object. Peters was a former Kentucky State heavyweight champion. Dixon and George Payne were scheduled to meet Peters and John Keys in a Tennessee tag team match, but Dixon and Payne lost their title only a week earlier.

In other action, Dave Forrester and Ken Ruff went 15 minutes before referee Payne signaled a draw; Jimmy Hines was disqualified for choking, enabling Jimmy Woods to retain his Southern Heavyweight title; and the Texas Menace defeated "Flying" George Watford in 2 minutes with outside help from manager and advisor "Sir" Rickton Link. The Menace recently returned from a tour of Japan.

State AAA Playoff Schedule Is Announced

As a member of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association, Davie teams will be competing this year for the first time in the State Class AAA playoffs. There are 126 AAA teams, representing 16 conferences in the state.

The champions of the North Piedmont Conference and the South Piedmont Conference will again meet this year in the playoffs. However, only the regular-season conference champions will qualify for that playoff game. Thus only one champion team from each of the two conference will be involved in the playoffs, instead of four as formerly.

The NPC-SPC playoff game is set for November 11 with the South Piedmont team at home. The winner will meet the Northwest-Northwestern winner on Nov. 18 at a western site.

If the Piedmont team is successful in the quarterfinal contest, it would earn the homefield advantage for the Nov. 25 semifinals. If the Piedmont team won that playoff it would be the visitor for the state championship game on Dec. 2.

In both boys and girls basketball, eight North and South Piedmont teams will advance to the playoffs---four from each conference. Those eight teams will tangle in the District Five tournament. The district boys champion will advance to the state tourney in Durham, March 8-11. The district girl winner qualifies for the state event in Hickory on the same dates.

Prior to the district tournaments, conferences are allowed to hold conference tournaments, which may also be used to determine positions for the district event.

Davie High School will host one of five sectional cross country meets on Nov. 4.

The state meet is set for Nov. 12 in Chapel Hill.

In wrestling, Salisbury will host one of ten sectional tournaments on Feb. 10-11. Regional tournaments will be held Feb. 17-18 at Cary and Hickory, with the state meet scheduled Feb. 24-25 at Parkland in Winston-Salem.

In golf, one of seven sectional tournaments will be held May 15 at Sapona Country Club in Lexington. Teh state tournament is set for May 22-23 in Chapel Hill.

In track, North Rowan will host one of eight sectional boys track and field meets on May 12. Regionals are set for May 19 at Freedom in Morganton and at East Carolina in Greenville. Cary will host the state meet on May 26.

In girls track and field, one of six sectional meets will be held in Statesville on May 5. Regionals will be at Greenville and Morganton on May 12, with the state meet at Raeford on May 19.

In tennis, sectional tournaments are slated with local teams competing at Lexington on May 10. Regionals are May 17-18 at Kinston and Hickory. Chapel Hill will host the state meet on May 24-25.

In girls tennis, a sectional tournament will be held at Lexington on Nov. 2 and 3. The regionals will be in Goldsboro and Morganton on Nov. 9 and 10, with the state meet at Chapel Hill on Nov. 9-10.

The playoff system in boys baseball and girls softball will be setup later. State championship best-of-three series are slated June 8-10.

Playoffs and tournaments sare also scheduled in boys and girls swimming, boys soccer, and girls golf and volleyball. Of these sports, Davie will participate in the girls volleyball, having a team for the first time this year.

Volleyball For Girls Begins At Davie

All girls going out for varsity volleyball at the Davie High School should get a physical examination form from the high school office, have the examination and return the form by August 29th.

Volleyball is a new varisty sport at Davie for girls. Aileen Steelman will be the coach.

Coach Steelman, Deanna Thomas, Wanda Beal, and Catawba bound Cathy Hutchins attended a two day workshop clinic on volley at Starmount High School last week. At this workshop, approximately 50 students and coaches worked together under the direction of Debbie Hill of William and Mary Pollege.

Practice at Davie will start August 30th and all physical examination results must be turned in by this date.

Booster Club Is Making Plans

Although crowd expectation fell short at the Davie Booster's Club meeting Monday night, 26-interested parents and friends of the high school athletic program met in the school cafeteria to discuss upcoming plans.

The Booster's Club, formed last year, was a supportive and financial success. The club generated about $3,000 into the athletic fund and helped out at home and away games.

Purchased last year was a baseball pitching machine, new weights for the football team, and a throw back basketball machine. The club also fed the football teams after games, sold concessions at junior varsity games, sponsored a walkathon, sold a side of beef and chartered a bus to the girls championship softball game.

There were about 14-members in the club last year, whose officers were Clyde Gardner, president; Jack Lagle, vice-president; Gail Bivins, secretary; and Mrs. Clyde Gardener, treasurer. Election of new officers is planned for the next meeting.

"Projects for the upcoming year include selling stadium cushions, banners, and eagle emblems which will hopefully be ready for the first football game," Mrs. Gardner said.

New memberships, which are $10.00 per couple, are always encouraged. "Any and everybody interested in athletics can join," Mr. Gardner said. Members receive reserve parking and seating at games.

Little League Football Association Will Handle 5th & 6th Grade Teams

The Mocksville-Davie Little League Football Association will continue its operations this fall with a full slate of Saturday night football games for the fifth and sixth grade teams in the county.

Larry Roberson, president of the association, said that they will work towards having two teams in Mocksville this year and one team in the rest of the communities.

Players for the teams must be in the fifth and sixth grades. However, 7th and 8th graders weighing 85 pounds or less also will be allowed to play. Boys must play for the school they attend. Eighth graders who have failed a grade are not eligible to play.

The fifth and sixth grade teams will be under the complete control of the association, unlike the 7th and 8th graders who moved under the direction of the high school athletic department this year.

At the association meeting last Thursday night, several changes in league operation were made. Roberson said the changes include new coaches. All coaches must attend a coaching clinic, in addition to taking a first aid course under the direction of Luther Ashley.

Also, the league rules state that if there is a scrimmage between schools there must be a doctor, EMT, or rescue squad member present.

In practice sessions, players can't practice the first day of school. Also, they are limited to two hour sessions with a ten minute break scheduled during the session.

The first week of practice will be non-contact. Prior to the first game, teams can practice five days a week, but after that practice is limited to three days a week, with one of them being light contact.

Roberson said that the reason for the limited practice after the first game is so that practice won't interfere with the boys' schoolwork.

Games will be played this year on Saturday nights beginning at 5:00 p.m. They will be played under N.C. High School Federation rules with the exceptions of 8-minute quarters, a regulated clock (last year the clock ran continuously), and free unlimited substitution.

"Coaches will be encouraged to let everybody play this year," said Roberson, and "it may be made into a rule before long, but it hasn't been passed yet."

There has also been a change in the admission rates that will be charged this year. Last year there was a flat $1.50 charge. This year the rate will be $1.00 for adults and high school students; 50 cents for boys and girls in grades 5-8; and those under the fifth grade will get in free when accompanied by an adult.

Roberson said that the association reduced the gate prices to make it more a family affair. He also noted that the Mocksville-Davie Association is the only self-supporting association in the state.

The officers for the Mocksville-Davie Little League Football Association are President, Larry Roberson; Vice-president, Brad Bullock; Treasurer, Ken Eller; Secretary, Buck Jones; and Publicity, Bill Triplett.

Each school will handle the cheerleader squads for the teams.

Another feature of the league this year will be the planning of an homecoming game with each school having a homecoming queen.

The first game of the season is tentatively set for September 17 at 5:00 p.m. at the football stadium of the high school. Sign up for the teams will be the first day of school.

Davie Football Teams Are Preparing For Openers

The Davie High varsity football team continued working out this week in preparation for their first scrimmage at East Rowan this Thursday night at 7:30 P.M.

In talking with Coach David Hunt, junior varsity head coach, the squads for the varsity, junior varsity, have been pretty well stabilized.

The varsity team is made up of 37 players and the junior varsity has 24 players. Hunt said that possibly two or three players could yet move up from the junior varsity team to the varsity since all varsity and JV players are listed on the varsity roster with the state.

Some freshmen have turned out for practice already and have been working out with the other two squads. The remainder of the freshmen football players will sign up to play on the first day of school.

The first game for the varsity War Eagles will be next Friday at West Davidson. On September 9th, they will play at Trinity before playing their first home game on September 16 against Mooresville.

The JV's first game will be next Thursday night at 7:30 at home against Trinity. The game is contingent upon the completion of the relighting of the Davie football field.

The freshmen football team will be on the road also for their game on Wednesday, September 14, at 5:30, when they will play Lexington.

40 Report For S. Davie Football

Starting on Monday, the team will begin heavy contact work with the offenses and the defenses beginning to be set up.

The first game for the South Davie squad will be on September 13 against Knox in Salisbury. All junior high football games are played on Tuesday afternoons beginning at 5:30.

N.C. Forest Service Presents Tree Farm Signs

The North Carolina Forest Service presented tree farm signs to Bear Creek Church and Roy Speer last Thursday for their outstanding forestry programs which made them eligible to become cerfitifed members of the American Tree Farm Program.

Bear Creek Church has managed 41-acres of woodlands as prescribed by District Service Forester Paul Bonardi and Roy Speer has managed his 45-acres also from recommendations made to him by the NCFS for the best utilization of his wood lands.

Tree farming, besides being a personal reward, can also be very profitable. Tree farming is a means of putting forest lands to work growing maximum crops of high-quality forest products. Wise tree farm practices will also increase wildlife population particularly that of deer, rabbit, and grouse bby providing abundant food and more habitat.

Any landowner interested in becoming a tree farmer can contact county ranger, Chuck Nail, in Mocksville.

VA Student Loans To Be Preprocessed

Veterans seeking loans to meet higher education expenses this fall will get a new deal from the Veterans Administration if they act quickly, the VA has announced.

In a move to streamline VA's student loan procedures loan applications from veterans will now be preprocessed, according to VA Regional Acting Director C.E. Howard.

"But", Howard said, "The key to making sure the student receives his loan promptly is the veteran himself."

VA will make loans of up to $1,500 each academic year to qualified veteran students.

The agency hopes to eliminate the usual 30-day waiting period by processing a veteran's loan application as soon as it is received and prior to notification from the school that the student has, in fact, enrolled for classes.

"Under the new procedure," Howard said, "we will be ready to issue the loan papers almost as soon as the school tells us the student is in class."

Two conditions must be present in order for a veteran to qualify for a VA student loan:

(1) The veteran must demonstrate that his essential expenses during the school year will be greater than his income, and,

(2) He must have been turned down by the banks in the area, or the school must certify that area banks are no making student loans.

Howard urged veterans who plan to apply for VA student loans to contact the nearest VA office or their campus financial aid officer.

But he emphasized that early applications are essential if the student wishes to have the loan available without delay once school starts.

What Was School Like In The 1800's

Schools open this week in Davie County. But have you ever wondered what local schools were like long ago?

Perhaps the following description of school life in the 1800's at the Union Academy near Farmington will give you some understanding of early education in Davie County.

This description was written by Mrs. W.C. Martin and appeared in the Sept. 28, 1933 edition of the MOCKSVILLE ENTERPRISE.

"Much stress was given to composition and declamation from the very beginning of the school...Some of the text books used during the last years of the school's existence were: Dave's and Sanford's Arithmetics, McGuffy's readers, Bullion's English Grammar, Reed and Kellog's Grammar, Maury's Political and Physical Geography, Blue Back Spelling Book, Webster's Dictionary, Latin and Spencerian Writing.

"The activities of the school were exceedingly simple. School opened at eight and adjourned at four. Books were carried home because lessons must be prepared for the next day.

"An hour at noon served for lunch and recreation which consited of innocent and simple games, such as baseball, bat, tap-rund-around, steal goods, marbles, jumping rope, swinging, etc. There was a very large swing in a large oak in which Thomas Eaton always insisted on swinging very high, which kept the teacher constantly uneasy. The teacher often taking part and always acting as referee.

"Often a bunch of boys or girls might elect to take a walk, but make it convenient to visit Mr. Will Furches' turnip patch or call on 'Cousin Mat Brock,' for they had learned where she had kept her cookies and baked sweet potatoes.

"There is no accounting for the keen appetite of the average school boy or girl of those days. Evidently when Mr. Furches planted his turnips he must have planned on these raids, likewise Mrs. Brock's supplies seemed never to be exhausted and no complaint was ever heard from either.

"Having entered into these games with energy and interest, with happy faces and blood coursing through their veins when the teacher would appear at the door with the familiar call bell, the children were ready to take up books in the same spirit.

"Discipline and recreation as well as study were considered of prime importance. Pupils were expected to comply with certain rules and regulations, the legislature and governing body being the teacher. The discipline consisted of demerits, doing extra work and such like, or possibly the most dreaded of all was standing on the platform beside the teacher."

Getting Ready For School

Davie High Principal Jack Ward (top center) meets with the department heads in preparation for the beginning of school on Friday, August 26, which is Pupil Orientation Day. Monday, August 29, will be the first full day of school for the students and all lunch rooms will be open on this day.

Mrs. Barbara Howard, Introduction to Vocation teacher at Davie High, sits peacefully in the empty class room as she prepares for that first day of school, and the peacefullness will then come to a sudden halt. (Photos by Jim Barringer)

40-Years At Cooleemee School

Johnson Ijames, who will be 87 on September 16th, has been employed with the Cooleemee School for forty years and he is back again this season and has no plans at this time of retiring.

Johnson, who is almost like a permanent fixture at Cooleemee, has seen several generations of students come and go since he was first employed in 1937. He is still quite capable of holding down a job and the students and faculty as well, can't imagine Cooleemee School without Johnson. (Photo by Jim Barringer)

Burning Permit Agents Named

The burning permit law was originally enacted to help reduce the number of wildfires caused by debris burning by spelling out the responsibilities of each citizen or company to control burning.

Historically, the major causes of wildfires in North Carolina has been debris burning. A burning permit is required for any burning within 500 ft. of any woodlands between midnight and 4 p.m.

However, a landowner does not have to have a burning permit for burning within 100 feet of his occupied dwelling if (1) the burning is done within an enclosed container from which no burning material can escape or,

(2) within a protected area under the constant supervision of a competent watchman who has fire prevention tools available. The permits, for which there is no charge, will be issued for a four-day period.

Following is a list of burning agents in Davie County who are authorized to issue these permits: Lou Lakey, Agr. Extension Office; George Marshall Grocery, Smith Grove.

Also, Barry Sechrest, P & G Auto Parts, Cooleemee; Cartner's Texaco, Fork Shell, Ed Johnson, Farmington; Sheffield Grocer, and Boles Grocery, 601 North.

Claude Cartner is one of many burning permit agents in Davie County. Chuck Nail, county ranger, stresses the importance of careful burning. (Photo by Robin Carter)

Mike Miller of Mocksville began work this week as sales counselor at Reavis Ford, Inc. of Mocksville. A graduate of the Davie High School, he attended the Hunter Engineering School in St. Louis, Missouri. He is married to the former Dixie Tuggle. They reside on Country Lane with their two children.

Mr. Eller of Mocksville, N.C. has been accredited as a Television Awareness Training leader, qualified to lead T-A-T workshops after attending a regional training course held at Randolph-Macon College near Richmond, Virginia.

Television Awareness Training (T-A-T), a nationwide program designed to make television viewing a positive experience, stresses becoming aware of our TV viewing habits and learning to question and evaluate the values television brings to each person.

Eight different areas of the television experience were examined during the training course: television overview, violence, stereotyping, advertising, children's programs, human sexuality, news, and strategies for change.

"Parents, teachers, and church leaders should be particularly interested in the values television is teaching to the 98 percent of all American homes which have at least one working set. The average home is lit more than six hours a day or 2,200 hours per year," according to the 300-page text-workbook which is provided to each participant and is available for purchase at $8.00.

T-A-T is a cooperative project designed by United Methodist Communications, Church of the Brethren, American Lutheran Church, and Media Action Research Center, Inc. (MARC).

For more information about T-A-T workshops contact Kenneth R. Eller at Route 4, Mocksville, North Carolina.

Sometimes names were given on the basis of one's occupation or where one lived . . . Mr. Rivers or Mr. Hill. This custom would have made it possible for Jesus to have been given, for a first name, minister. He himself said, "I came to minister, not to be ministered unto."

But the angel who announced His birth told Mary what His name was to be and why. "His name shall be called Jesus, for it is He that shall save His people from their sins." (Matthew 1:21) Thus His name has come to mean freedom- freedom from the power of sin and death! "For if the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed!"

Fishbait; The Memoirs of The Congressional Doorkeeper, by Fishbait Miller. Political story telling by the Democratic House Doorkeeper. Is it all here? Who drinks? Who womanizes? Read and see.

Davie High 4-H Clubs Enjoy Field Day

by Marlene Benson

Approximately ten of the 16 active 4-H clubs in Davie County participated in the Field Day Monday at Rich Park, Mocksville.

Excitement ran high as clubs participated against each other in such events as the 50-yard dash, egg toss, three-legged race, orange roll, potato race, one-foot relay, wheelbarrow race, and the watermelon eating contest.

Jericho-Hardison, Sr. club was the winner of the Field Day Banner, which went to the club scoring the most points in the field events.

The attendance banner went to the Davie-Academy 4-H club.

The program, which stressed the meaning of 4-H ... Head, Heart, Hands, and Health, was dedicated to all 4-Hers and to the county of Davie.

The Davie County 4-H flag was officially dedicated during vespers and those responsible for making the flag were recognized. The 4-H insignia in green and white, centered the official county flag in the colors of blue and gold, was designed by Allison Sell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Sell of Mocksville, and was made by the Extention Home Makers, Nancy Hartman and Osteen West as a State 4-H project. Allison was awarded a one-half paid trip to 4-H camp for original design of the flag. She is shown in the top left photo with Melanie Marshbanks, left, president of the Davie County 4-H Council. The County 4-H flag will be displayed in the County Office Building.

The photo at top right shows the kids participating in the orange roll contest. County 4-H Coordinator, left center, explains the rules of the potato race to the approximately 75 4-Hers and guests who attended the Field Day events. The kids, center right, support their favorite clubs.

A Thought For The Day

"For yesterday is but a dream, and tomorrow is only a vision; But today well lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness, and every tomorrow a vision of hope."

Mrs. L. Booth

We all should thank the Lord for the refreshing rain and the cool breeze. For our heavenly father holds everything in his hand. Sunday was a beautiful day here at the Cedar Creek Baptist Church. The beginning of our annual revival meeting. The morning devotion was conducted by Brothers John West and James Horne. The Rev. John Miller of the Galilee Baptist Church in Winston-Salem brought a great message. Which was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Miller accompanied him here. After the morning worship a delicious dinner was served in the dining hall of the church.

The afternoon devotions was conducted by Bros of the Galilee Baptist Church. The pastor Rev. Hay brought the message. Out of town former members attending were Mrs. Taft Kimber and son and his family and Mr. and Mrs. Gaither all of Baltimore, Md. Also Miss Sylvia Williams of Baltimore, Md.

The Rev. M.L. Dillingham of Wilmington, N.C. was the evangelist for the week who brought a spiritual message each night and the Holy Spirit just filled the temple each evening. Our sister churches from everywhere were so gracious to attend each evening and we are so happy and thankful to each of them. I'm sure each one received a spiritual blessing.

Mrs. Ann Campbell of Winston Salem spent the week here at the home of her mother Mrs. William Eaton and attended the worship each evening. Mr. Campbell came for her Sunday evening Aug. 20.

Darryal, Kenneth, and Tracy Eaton called Saturday at the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Eaton. Darrin Eaton visited Larry Tatum. Mrs. William Campbell and boys of Winston-Salem, N.C. Mrs. Kay West and children Jarvis and Kevin all call at the home of their mother Mrs. Lucy Tatum Sunday, also Owens Tatum of Winston-Salem.

Callers Sunday at the William Brock home were Mrs. James Horn and children, Miss Wanda and Lonnie Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Alberty Hairston of Pennsylvania came down a few days to visit their parents Mr. and Mrs. Ambros Brock and after arriving Mr. Hairston had surgery at Winston-Salem. The report is that he is doing nicely. Our prayers go out to him and his family that he will soon be able to be home.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Ridgell visited her father Mr. Fisher Sandingham in Winston-Salem, N.C. Sunday evening and found him doing nicely. He lost his wife recently, Mrs. Ridgell's step mother.

Retirement Income May Be Claimed On 1976 Returns

Older taxpayers in North Carolina may now want to amend their 1976 Federal income tax returns to claim the retirement income credit that has been extended through 1976, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Some taxpayers now have the option of reducing their tax liability for 1976 by choosing either the new tax credit for the elderly or the former retirement income credit. Previously, the retirement income credit could not be used on 1976 returns.

The IRS also advises taxpayers who claimed the tax credit for the elderly on their 1976 returns to consider recomputing their taxes to determine whether they could get a larger credit under former retirement income credit provisions. In North Carolina, about 35,000 taxpayers have filed to claim the tax credit for the elderly.

Amended return forms - Form 1040X - and new retirement income credit computation forms - Schedule RIC - are available at any IRS office in North Carolina. Further information on filing these forms may be obtained by calling the IRS toll-free number 1-800-822-8800

In addition to the proposed increases reflected above, Central Telephone Company proposes adjustments in nonrecurring service charges for local service and in the rates and charges for supplementary services including key system and private branch exchange equipment and trunks, directory listings, semi-public telephone service, foreign exchange service, miscellaneous services, auxiliary equipment, data equipment and trunks, mobile telephone service, and local private line service. The details of these proposed adjustments can be obtained at the business offices of Central Telephone Company or at the office of the Chief Clerk of the Commission, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina, where a copy of the proposed application is available for review by any interested person.

The Utilities Commission has suspended the proposed rate adjustments, has set the application for investigation and hearing and has required Central Telephone Company to comply with all provisions of law and Commission Rules in support of its application to show that the proposed increases are just and reasonable.

The hearing will resume in Raleigh with any further testimony of public witnesses and testimony and cross-examination of the Applicant, the Public Staff, and intervenors and will continue through October 14 as necessary.

The Commission requires that Central Telephone Company inform its customers of the following procedures by which comments regarding the rate application can be made part of the record of the case upon which the Commission must base its decision. Persons desiring to intervene in the matter as formal parties of record should file a motion under North Carolina Utilities Commission Rules R1-6 and R1-19 ten days prior to the hearing. Persons desiring to present testimony for the record should appear at the public hearing. Persons desiring to send written statements to the Commission should submit their statements prior to the hearing and should include any information which those persons wish to be considered by the Commission in its investigation of the matter. The contents of letters and petitions will be received in the official file as statements of position. Specific facts, however, will be considered on the basis of testimony presented at the public hearing. Interventions or statements should be addressed to the Chief Clerk, North Carolina Utilities Commission, P. O. Box 991, Raleigh, North Carolina 27602.

Efficient
Thermostatically controlled Heat Extraction System extracts approximately 80% of the heat available in the wood and circulates it throughout your home.

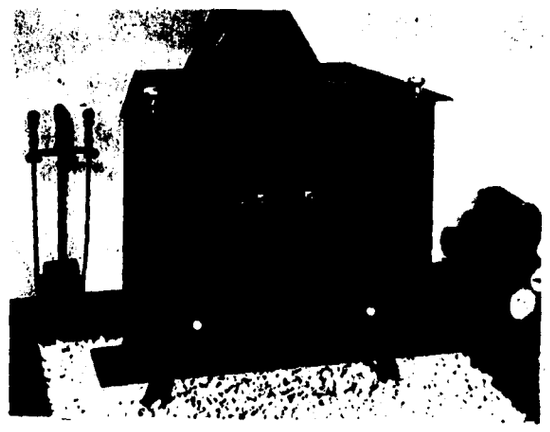

Convenient
Patented draft control system takes the hassle out of building a fire and eliminates constant fire tending. Burns 6-14 hours on one filling, whether you're home or not.

Energy Insurance

Safe
Forced air system extracts the heat from the stove so thoroughly that even the inside of the firebox is touchable (Try it).

Easy To Install In Your Present Fireplace. You Can Do It Yourself!

Ideal For Mobile Homes.

IT'S A... HEATER, COOLER, FIREPLACE, STOVE.

The Buck Stove Story

Efficient Burning

The Buck Stove's slow, efficient burning will utilize up to 80% of the energy available in a piece of wood, where a conventional fireplace uses only about 10%. The Buck Stove will burn 6-14 hours on one wood filling.

Buck Stove owners commonly report 60-100% savings on conventional heating costs while burning the same amount of wood that their conventional fireplaces normally burned.

The Buck Stove will not freeze you in one room and roast you in another. The thermostatically controlled forced air Heat Extraction and Circulation System will extract the heat and circulate it evenly throughout your home. Hot air is forced across the room at floor level and cold air is returned overhead to the blower cold air intake.

The patented lockable draft control system makes it easier to build a fire, then contributes to slow, efficient burning.

Construction

Constructed of the highest quality fire box steel. Solid brass fittings are used and the electrical components are the finest available.

Heat Extraction System

Mounted on the outside rear wall of the stove is an electric blower which pushes air through the hot air chamber. The blower system plugs into a standard 110 volt wall outlet and a built-in thermostat kicks in the blower automatically when the air in the chamber between the stove walls reaches 115°. The fan draws in cool air at the rear of the stove and forces it against the inside rear wall. The patented baffle system routes the air between the stove walls, soaking up the heat from the fire box, eliminating hot spots on the stove, and directing the three hot air outputs in a crossing pattern, so that hot air from the three registers converges at a point five feet in front of the stove and 6-10" above floor level.

The fast-moving hot air crossing in front of the stove pulls air away from the front of the stove. This vacuum action counteracts the draw of the fire and allows only enough air to reach the fire to keep it burning. For this reason, the Buck Stove with the doors removed will not draw the heat out of your home and up the chimney as will a conventional fireplace.

Fuel Burning System

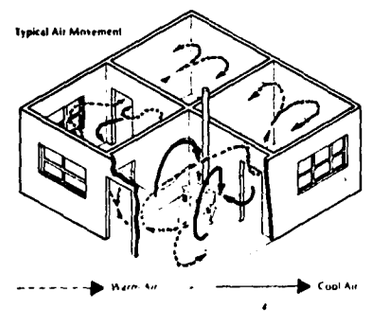

The Buck Stove has been designed and engineered to burn slowly, efficiently, and to allow very little creosote buildup.

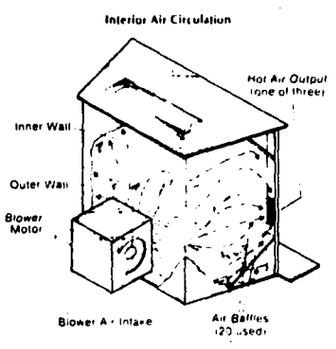

With the doors closed, the slide drafts on the doors allow a controlled, even flow of air across the fire. As the wood is burned, the unburned gases rise from the fire, up and slightly forward, to the top of the stove. As they contact the top of the stove, they circulate to the rear of the fire box, toward the flue outlet. Just forward of the flue outlet, there is a gas trap baffle which deflects the gases downward. At this point, some will go under the baffle and out the flue, some will be pulled back into the fire and reburned and some will be recirculated by the gases rising from the fire.

As the wood gases rise away from the fire, they cool quite rapidly. In order to prevent the cooling gases from liquefying and building up creosote deposits inside the stove, and later in the chimney, a small amount of secondary air is injected at the top of the doors. The secondary air injection reignites the gases directly under the stovetop. This secondary burning action more completely burns the gases and raises the temperature of the smoke escaping up the chimney sufficiently to prevent the solids in the smoke from separating and building up inside the chimney. This action also raises the temperature of the stovetop to cooking level.

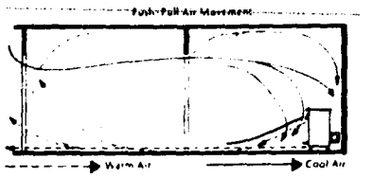

Safety

The Buck Stove is a safe, versatile heating unit. Positive locking doors prevent accidental opening and a smoke hood traps any smoke pulled from the stove when the doors are opened rapidly. Because the heat extraction system is so efficient, most of the heat is thrown out into the room, so, except for the cooking surface, which is set back four inches from the edge of the stovetop, the outer walls are only warm to the touch. This is especially important if you have small children; it also allows you to set the unit safely back near the wall.
