Davie Favors A Division Of The Piedmont Triad Council Of Government

By Doug Livengood

The Davie County board of commissioners unanimously went on record Tuesday as favoring a division of the Piedmont Triad Council of Governments (PTCOG). And the commissioners are going to ask Governor Hunt to split the PTCOG.

Davie County, along with Forsyth, Surry, Davidson, Rockingham, Guilford, Randolph, Caswell and Alamance counties and most of the towns and cities within these counties, presently make up the state's Planning Region G, which the PTCOG was formed to serve.

Stokes and Yadkin counties were members of the PTCOG until July 1, 1978 when they left the organization because of administrative disputes with the staff of the PTCOG.

The PTCOG develops regional, long-range plans for land use, water quality, solid-waste management, open spaces, law enforcement, airports and housing for its region and member governments.

The PTCOG also administers the state's human services programs in the region, including food for the elderly, family planning, emergency medical services and job training.

It provides technical advice to cities and counties that do not have full-time planners. And it also reviews and comments on applications from local governments for federal and state money.

Governor Robert Scott set up 17 multicounty planning regions in 1970. Since then, discussion about splitting Region G has come up periodically.

Proponents for splitting Region G have consistently argued that the region is too large, with such counties as Alamance and Caswell in the eastern part of the region having very little in common with such counties as Davie, Surry, Forsyth and other counties in the western part of the region.

These same proponents for splitting the region have just as consistently advocated splitting Region G into two regions--a western and eastern region--with Davie, Forsyth, Surry, Yadkin and Stokes forming the western region.

Governor Hunt created a new Local Government Advocacy Council and asked it to make recommendations to him on the future of regionalism and on the Region G question.

In July the chairman of the Davie County board of commissioners, Glenn Howard, and fellow commissioner Jerry Anderson joined with Mocksville Mayor R.C. Smith and numerous other elected officials from northwest North Carolina to travel to Raleigh and request the Local Government Advocacy Council to split the PTCOG.

But when the Advocacy Council wound up its study of regional councils a couple of weeks ago it made no recommendations to the governor about changing the boundaries of Region G.

The Advocacy Council did, however, outline a procedure under which any local government could petition Governor Hunt to change regional boundaries.

Under the procedure outlined by the Advocacy Council, a request from a local government to split a planning region would have to be submitted to the governor at least six months before July 1 (the beginning of the fiscal year for most governments) and would not take effect until July 1. The governor would have 90 days to act on the request, during which time he would hold a hearing for all the local governments that would be affected.

Following the outlining of this procedural recommendation to Hunt for changing the boundaries of a planning region, scores of elected officials and other interested persons interested in splitting Region G attended a meeting August 29 in Dobson in Surry County to plan strategy for having the region split.

Included in those attending the Dobson meeting were Davie County commissioner Jerry Anderson, Davie County manager Ron Vogler and Mocksville Mayor Smith.

James S. Humphreys, a Winston-Salem attorney representing some of those persons interested in splitting the region, told those present at the Dobson meeting that "If we want this done some decisive and quick action is needed."

Humphreys passed out a sample resolution that he suggested the elected officials take back to their respective governing boards for official action before being forwarded to Governor Hunt.

It was this sample resolution which the Davie County commissioners unanimously adopted Tuesday afternoon.

The resolution read as follows:

"Whereas, the Davie County Board of Commissioners believes that the best interest of Davie County would be served by membership in a regional planning group which included the following municipalities: Forsyth, Surry, Stokes, Yadkin and Davie, and the cities and towns therein;

"Now, therefore, we hereby resolve that a new regional planning group be created by the Governor of North Carolina in which the following municipalities are members: Forsyth, Surry, Stokes, Yadkin and Davie; and

"The Davie County Board of Commissioners further resolves that, if such a regional planning group is established under appropriate legislation, Davie County would become a member of such

Cooleemee Gets County Wide EAS On Friday

The Cooleemee Telephone Exchange will be connected into Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation's County wide local calling network Friday, September 8, 1978. Cooleemee subscribers will be able to dial the Advance, Ijames and Mocksville telephone exchange areas on a local call basis by dialing directory listed numbers. (Mocksville Telephone Exchange is owned by Central Telephone Company.) The new service will give Cooleemee Exchange telephone subscribers access to county-wide extended area service.

Advance and Ijames telephone exchange subscribers can dial local calls to Cooleemee telephones by dialing directory listed numbers.

A new telephone directory listing Cooleemee subscribers and dated September, 1978 has been delivered to all Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation subscribers in Davie County. The new directory includes instructions for local call dialing into the Davie County wide network.

Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation purchased the Cooleemee Exchange from Western Carolina Telephone Company, May 15, 1978. Since Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation purchased the Cooleemee Exchange, party line service has been eliminated. The Cooleemee Exchange provides a, private line service to 1029 residences and businesses in the Cooleemee Area of Davie and Rowan counties.

September 2, 1978, Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation merged the Davie Exchange into the Advance Exchange and all Davie County subscribers previously served from the Davie Exchange are now Advance Exchange subscribers. The Davie Exchange (493) is no longer in service.

Davie County is now served by four telephone exchanges: Advance (998), Cooleemee (284), Ijames (492), Mocksville (634). All telephones served by these exchanges in Davie County are included in the county wide calling network.

John T. Brock of Mocksville was elected 1st vice president of the North Carolina Association of County Attorneys at the annual summer meeting held at Atlantic Beach in August. E.B. (Borden) Parker of Wayne County was elected president; Robert Hunter of McDowell County, 2nd vice president; and Joseph S. Ferrell, assistant director, Institute of Government, was elected secretary and treasurer. These officers will be installed at the annual conference of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners to be held in Asheville.

United Way Has Goal Of $48,566

Davie Has 7th Lowest Tax Rate In State

According to COUNTY LINES magazine, "unofficial figures compiled by the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners indicate that 51 counties (in North Carolina) held their countywide tax rate at the 1977-78 level, and 20 counties lowered the rate (seven of them, including Davie, due to revaluation). However, the other 21 counties raised the rate."

Greene County "forged to the number one spot" among counties this year with a tax rate of $1.34," said the magazine. The "biggest increase" in the tax rate among counties came in Forsyth, where the rate went up from 62 cents to 81½ cents.

The magazine reported that only six counties, Polk, with the lowest rate of 36.7 cents, and Alleghany, Randolph, Beaufort, Brunswick and Clay, had lower tax rates then the 44 cents rate adopted this year in Davie. Last year the rate was 66 cents in Davie.

Change Recommended For Zoning Of Airports

By Doug Livengood

The Davie County Planning Board has recommended to the Davie County Board of Commissioners that the county's zoning ordinance be amended to permit airports to be zoned under a conditional use classification in a residential-agricultural area.

Under the present zoning ordinance, airports must be zoned in a heavy industry classification.

The planning board made its recommendation after studying the issue of the classification of airports in the zoning ordinance at its August 30th meeting.

Actually, the planning board had been asked by the board of commissioners early last month to study a recommendation from the commissioners themselves that the zoning ordinance be amended to permit airports to be classified under a conditional use.

The commissioners will now hold a public hearing, probably next month, to decide definitely if the zoning ordinance will be amended concerning airports.

All of this complicated series of legal maneuvers was precipitated earlier this summer when the owners of Twin Lakes Airport in eastern Davie County petitioned the commissioners to have the airport rezoned from its present residential-agricultural (R-A) and residential (R-20) status to the heavy industrial classification to comply with the zoning ordinance.

When the airport was established the county did not have a zoning ordinance and when the zoning ordinance was adopted a few years ago the airport was allowed to remain in a residential-agricultural area as a nonconforming business

In order to be able to expand the facilities at the airport the airport owners must first have the airport property brought into compliance with the zoning ordinance which requires airports to be classified as heavy industrial areas.

Many of the property owners near Twin Lakes Airport are opposed to the property being rezoned to a heavy industrial area and they presented the county commissioners with a petition several weeks ago expressing this opposition.

It was after the commissioners received this petition that they decided that a conditional use classification for airports in the county zoning ordinance would be the best way to protect the interests of both sides involved in the Twin Lakes dispute.

By allowing airports to be classified under a conditional use permit in the zoning ordinance, only an airport, subject to any conditions set forth by the Davie County Zoning Board of Adjustment, can then be allowed to occupy a site designated for airports.

But under the present zoning ordinance which requires airports to be classified as heavy industrial areas any number of a variety of heavy industrial businesses can also occupy a site zoned for an airport once the zoning has been approved.

Civil Preparedness Survey To Be Made

A team from the State Civil Preparedness Division will be in Davie County Wednesday September 6, 1978 to begin a survey aimed at determining the protection that area structures can privide for people against various wartime and extreme weather hazards.

The two-member team of engineers, headed by Clayton Saucier and assisted by David Shope, is based in Raleigh.

This team, trained in protection analysis of buildings and structures, will conduct the survey for the next few weeks, with the results of the survey to be released in the near future.

This will be a resurvey of the county, according to Jesse A. Boyce, Jr., Coordinator, Mocksville-Davie County Civil Preparedness agency, who will coordinate the local work of the State Survey Team. The original survey was conducted more than ten years ago.

The work of the team fits into a continuing effort of the defense civil preparedness agency, the national civil defense agency, headquartered in the Pentagon to survey structures in communities near or adajacent to the most likely high risk nuclear attack target areas in North Carolina to determine which structures have facilities for congregate care as well as fallout radiation protection in the event people have to be relocated during a period of international, as well as providing fallout protection for the County's resident population, Boyce said.

Davie County is considered a low-risk host area for relocatees from the Winston-Salem high risk area, according to Boyce.

Commissioner Latta Clarifies Remarks On Dog Ordinance

Mocksville town commissioner Patricia Latta has sought to clarify some remarks attributed to her in last week's Enterprise-Record story about a new ordinance going into effect in Mocksville prohibiting dogs from running at large.

The story said that "Board member Pat Latta informed her fellow commissioners (at the August 1st board meeting) that she had been told by county officials that the Davie County animal control officer would also assist the town police department in enforcing the new dog ordinance."

According to a tape of the meeting, commissioner Latta told the other commissioners that "We have met with them (county officials) to try to work out something because we felt by us having an ordinance we needd to make sure that is was enforcible. . ."

She added, "We were told the dog warden would pick up any dog that he was alerted to" and further, said Latta, "I got the impression that we would have his (county dog warden's) full cooperation."

But Latta said this week that she wanted to clarify her remarks and "make it clear" that she and the other town commissioners do not expect the county dog warden to play any more active role in picking up stray dogsin the town than he has played in the past.

"We would expect the county dog warden to do what he's done in the past and that's to pick up a dog when he's called to pick one up. We don't want the county to think that we passed a new ordinance and expect them to enforce it," Latta said Monday.

She emphasized that the commissioners adopted the ordinance with the belief and intention that the town's police department would have primary repsonsibility in enforcing the new ordinance and that this responsibility would not be expected to be borne by the dog warden by increasing his duties because of the ordinance.

"We want as good a relation with the county as possible and we don't want them to think that we're trying to put a lot of extra responsibility on them," concluded Latta.

Division Of PTCOG Favored

a regional planning group; and

"The Davie County Board of Commissioners further resolves that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Governor of North Carolina as a petition for him to create the regional planning group described hereinabove."

County commissioner Anderson told his fellow commissioners Tuesday that he did not believe that the counties in Region G and the PTCOG's staff would ever again be able to work together harmoniously after so much publicity has been given to a possible splitting of the region.

"It would be kind of like a wandering wife. She could come back, but things just aren't going to be the same," humorously remarked Anderson.

Board chairman Howard urged the other commissioners to vote for the split in Region G because he said Forsyth County was waiting for other western counties in the region to make a move toward a split before Forsyth would come out in favor of a split.

"I feel like if we're going through with the thing (the split) then we've got to add our strength to the counties that have done made the decision (to call for a split) in order for the counties that have not made that decision to use as a guide. I do feel like the decision that we make will determine Forsyth's coming out," reasoned Howard.

Observers of the maneuverings necessary to bring about a splitting of Region G have long contended that the governor would not approve the split unless Forsyth was included in the western region of the two new regions which would be formed.

County manager Vogler told the commissioners Tuesday that those persons who planned the strategy planning meeting in Dobson on August 29 gave the impression to those attending the meeting that Forsyth County officials are in favor of a splitting of the region.

County commissioner Anderson said he also believed that Forsyth County officials favor a split because they have been silent on all of the speculation that they favor a split. He said that he thought Forsyth officials would have denied the rumors that they favor a split if they were not true.

No representatives of the city of Winston-Salem, the town of Kernersville or the county of Forsyth attended the meeting at Dobson because they were not invited.

The day after the Dobson meeting, however, the Winston-Salem papers quoted Mayor Wayne Corpening as saying "You know what my stand is (on a split). The governor makes the decision on where we go. You don't outguess the governor or anybody else. I don't want to get into this presuming things like this."

The same Winston-Salem papers noted that Fred D. Hauser, the chairman of the Forsyth County Board of Commissioners, could not be reached for comment, but that he had recently said that he thinks the PTCOG region should not be split.

The question was also discussed at Tuesday's meeting about whether Davidson County would join a new western region of Region G is the present PTCOG is split.

Commissioner Anderson reported that it was revealed at the Dobson meeting that Davidson would be invited to join the new region if it wants to.

But chairman Howard expressed the belief that Davidson would not want to join the new western region, especially if Davie County is already in that region.

Howard has consistently noted for months that relations between Davidson and Davie counties have been cool because of the opposition from Davidson to the proposed Perkins Nuclear Station in Davie.

In fact, in January, Howard made the statement that "I don't want to be in there (a new region) with them (Davidson)" because of their opposition to the Perkins plant.

It was also pointed out Tuesday that Wilkes County has been investigating the possibility of joining a new planning region which might include Davie and the other counties making up a new western region of Region G.

Wilkes is presently a member of Planning Region D, which region has been in almost constant turmoil for more than a year now over administrative squabbles with the staff of the planning region's COG and the government officials of the various counties in the region.

County manager Vogler did tell the commissioners Tuesday that the leaders of the Dobson meeting gave the impression to those attending that meeting that the governor "would give a good fair hearing" to the request of those counties wanting to split Region G.

At press time Tuesday night the Mocksville town board was expected to at least discuss the possibility at their Tuesday night meeting of joining the movement of governments asking for a split in Region G.

After returning from Dobson, Mayor Smith of Mocksville said "I feel like the town board will possibly take a position Tuesday night on this question. It's just been tossed about long enough now and I think it's time the issue was settled."

Davie Man Injured In Charlotte Airplane Crash

Kenneth R. Potts, 19, of Advance and Gary W. Berrier, 31, of Stanfield were treated in the emergency room of the Charlotte Memorial Hospital following the crash. Potts was later released and returned to his home in Davie County.

The plane, an eight-seat Piper Navajo, was destroyed when it went down in a field near the end of a runway.

Witnesses said one man was unconscious when he was pulled from the wreckage by a bystander, while the other was conscious but bleeding.

The plane, owned by Southeast Airmotive Corp. of Charlotte, apparently lost power in one engine when it attempted to take off shortly before 5 p.m.

Witnesses to the crash said one propeller was not turning when the plane lost altitude and hit a tree.

Deborah Early, a spokesman for Southeast Airmotive, said both men on the plane were experienced pilots for the company. She said the aircraft was on a training flight, with one pilot teaching the other about the plane.

Firemen were called to the scene and sprayed foam on the plane, which broke into four pieces, but there was no fire.

Local DAV Holds Cookout

Twenty members of the Frankie D. Howard, Chapter No. 75 of the Disabled American Veterans and DAV Auxiliary Unit 75 of Davie County hosted a cookout at the VA Hospital in Salisbury, Friday, August 18.

Sixty patients were served one hundred hot dogs and one hundred hamburgers with all the trimmings, potato chips and cold drinks. Activities of this kind, which are considered by the staff of the hospital as therapuetic, are made possible by the generosity of the people of Davie County during the organization's fund raising projects.

One of the projects will be a bake sale, Saturday, September 9th at Heffner's Land of Food and Lowe's. Proceeds from this sale will be divided equally between the DAVA and Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

There will be an un-official meeting Monday, Sept. 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Holy Cross Lutheran Church. The regular meeting will be September 25th.

Carolina Review

by Jerry Mobley

DECISIVE YEAR. . .Gov. Hunt's symbolic statewide television address this week is an indication of how decisive the coming year might be in public education.

Innovations of great magnitude (both in practice and in cost) have been made over the past couple of years for the benefit of N.C. students and this is the first year for Tarheels to see any real effects.

Competency testing tops the list and will most assuredly receive the most attention. No one really knows how many students will fail or the cost of proposed remedial education--but the concept is here to stay.

This fall will also be the first year for teachers and administrators to have the background and guidance of student achievement tests. The tests were issued to all students in designated grades last year and should give the teachers much more insight for group placement and study plans for individuals.

In addition, the effects of reduced classroom sizes, the primary reading program, more intense vocational training, statewide kindergartens, "free enterprise" offerings, and expanded services for gifted children, should all be felt in the coming year.

INDIAN REPORT. . .A special committee of the Indian Affairs Commission is expected this week (Thursday) to make recommendations on how ti improve relations between the Indians of Robeson County and the N.C. Highway Patrol.

The committee report is the latest aspect of longstanding accusations that the Patrol uses unwarranted force and frequently, brutality, in its treatment of the Lumbee Indians in the Lumberton-Pembroke area.

Unfortunately, the committee did not investigate specific incidences of unnecessary violence by the Patrol but instead, according to committee member Jane Patterson, "did attempt to consider specific ways to improve what is essentially a bad situation" between the Indians and patrolmen.

The committee study, initiated in late June will be given first to the full commission meeting and then forwarded to Secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety, Phil Carlton. Carlton will make the final decision on implementation of any committee recommendations.

MORE CHURCH-STATE. . .The rift between a group of fundamentalist churches and the state continued to escalate last week.

The latest in a series of disagreements occurred recently when 10 church-operated day-care centers decided not to comply with state licensing requirements.

The N.C. Child Day Care Licensing Commission has threatened to seek court injunctions to close the centers if compliance with the licensing regulations are not met.

Under state law, all day-care centers in N.C. are required to meet minimum standards relating to building codes, sanitation, and fire prevention.

The churches insist that the licensing is further encroachment upon their religious territory. They have also balked the state concerning minimum requirements for church schools as well as payment of unemployment taxes for teachers in the schools.

A court decision is expected at any moment over the argument of minimum requirements in the schools.

PCB VALUABLE. . .Last week's indictments against 3 N.Y. men for dumping hazardous PCB chemicals on N.C. roadsides brought sighs of relief from across the state.

But the PCB is still with us and no doubt will cost every bit of the $2.5 million estimated for cleanup. Furthermore, chemical samplings of affected areas indicate that small amounts of the chemical were spread about by the wind.

Still, the situation seems to be under control and state officials are now working to eliminate any dangers the chemical might present.

If the PCB is effectively (and safely) removed, the criminal spills might prove to have been helpful.

Should the spills cause a serious and concerted effort by state officials to review and initiate new guidelines for the safe manufacture, use, and transport of hazardous chemicals, then it will be a lesson well-learned..

Wayne Seay Again Being Sought By Authorities; Faces Suit In Louisiana

Seay, who has been charged in Forsyth with embezzling money from two companies he directed, was also recently named as a defendant in a civil suit filed in Louisana's 21st Judicial Curcuit Court in Tangipahoa Parish.

Seay is the businessman with whom numerous Davie County investors have been involved with during recent years in a scheme to manufacture a machine that can convert raw garbage into animal feed.

He has been charged by many of these local investors with misuse of their investor funds in this venture.

Regarding the Louisiana suit, under Louisiana's long-arm statute, a summons was sent to the Forsyth County Sheriff's Department July 13 to be personally served on Seay. Since receiving the summons, deputies have been unable to locate the financier.

According to information in the summons, Rush E. Lassiter of Port Saint Lucie, Fla., has sued Seay in connection with a contract the two made in 1976. The suit names Seay, Sanilator Corp. and Intercapital Corp. as defendants.

Sanilator and Intercapital are the companies formed by Seay to manufacture and sell the machines designed to convert garbage into animal feed.

The suit says that Lassiter held three patents to the garbage conversion process and that Seay agreed to buy all rights to the machine and the process in a complicated transaction under three separate contracts.

"He was supposed to pay me $10,000 at first--which he did," Lassiter said last week. "Then he was supposed to sell some real estate to help pay the bank loans I had. He didn't do a thing about that and he never paid me the rest of the money he owed me."

Lassiter, who lived in Louisiana when the contracts were signed, said Seay reneged on monthly payments of $2,000 and a lump-sum payment of $30,000 due last December. "In cash, stock, payments and patents, Wayne Seay has cost me at least $500,000," Lassiter said.

Sanilator and Intercapital, the companies named in Lassiter's suit, were formed by Seay to organize the garbage-recovery business. Sanilator was to manufacture and sell the garbage processing machines and Intercapital was to provide the financial and consulting services for the operation.

It has been reported that at least $420,000 was raised for the project, although no processing machine has been completed. Many thousands of those dollars came from Davie County investors.

Seay and his partners have entered into contracts with at least two manufacturing companies to develop a prototype processor, but Seay's compaines have left both contracts unfulfulled.

Although Seay has apparently moved from Winston-Salem, authorities there have been unable to locate him. One source has said that Seay now lives in Oklahoma.

A check with telephone listings in Oklahoma City revealed that Seay has an unpublished number there.

It has also been previously reported that Seay offered Sanilator franchise for sale in Oklahoma City earlier this year. The Oklahoma Securities Commission issued a cease-and-desist order against Seay's businesses there last April.

Seay is scheduled for trial soon on the embezzlement charges in Forsyth County. Ernest J. Daniel, an SBI agent who investigated Seay's businesses, has been ill, but is expected to be able to tesify later this month.

Seay and a former business partner, Robert T. McLawhorn of Hickory, were charged earlier this year by the Forsyth County Grand Jury with embezzling money from Forsyth investors in a venture called American Marketing Corp. Inc., a real estate investment project the two operated in the early '70s.

Descendants Of The Clement Slaves

From Slavery To Prominence

By Kathy Tomlinson

From slavery to prominence, so rose the descendants of Albert Turner Clement of Mocksville. Down the path of time they walked, overcoming the cultural prejudices of their grandfather's era, to reach astounding levels of national appreciation.

It has been our endeavor over the past three weeks to trace the lives of the Clement family which orginated from slavery in Davie County.

Through a meeting last month of Albert Turner Clement's grandchildren, Dr. Abbie Clement Jackson, Ruth Clement Bond.andgreat grandchild Jane Clement Bond Howard, our curiosity was aroused to a level that compelled us to seek out the history of this family.

Through our efforts we have gained an insight into a time in Davie County and the South that is long lost. . .the era of plantations and slavery.

The quick passage of time has left us unable to compile a complete genealogy of this family, but certain facts cannot be ignored.

Jesse A. Clement born December 6, 1808 owned a plantation in Davie with the main house located on what is now Maple Avenue Extension, andhad in his possession a certain number of slaves.

His brother John, prominent for his presentation of the 1836 bill to form Davie County, was also a large plantation owner. His home was located on what is now Twin Brook Farms.

On one or both of these two plantations, Albert Turner Clement was a slave. Born August 26, 1834, he lived in slavery until the Civil War brought freedom. It is recorded that he could read and write, uncommon for this era. However thereare reports of Jesse A. Clement having a school for slaves on his plantation. It is also acknowledged through the descendants of Jesse A. Clement that Albert Turner Clement's sister, Bettie Neely, was a known slave in his possession.

John Clement's plantation was larger than his brother's andjoined the Archibald G. Carter plantation on what is now 601 South just outside of Mocksville. Albert Turner Clement's wife, Evelina Carter was a seamstress here.

John Clement, who served as the first Clerk of Court in Davie County, died of a stroke at his desk in 1845 at the age of 50.

Freed in 1865, Albert Turner Clement andhis wife and six children lived in a house which is still standing on Campbell Road in North Mocksville. He remained here untilhis death in 1902, and is buried in the Old Methodist Cemetery on Milling Road

An ordained minister himself, his only son George Clinton, followed his father's religious beliefs and became bishop of the A.M.E. Zion Church in 1916.

Two children of the late George C. Clement andhis wife Emma Williams Clement, Dr. Abbie Clement Jackson and Ruth Clement Bond, returned to Davie Last month in an effort to find out about their heritage in Davie. They were accompanied by his granddaughter, Jane Clement Bond Howard.

Learning of the Clement-Gaither Reunion held yearly in Mocksville from a cousin, the late Mary Gaither Meeks, they traveled from Louisville, Kentucky and Washington, D.C. to trace their past.

Dr. Abbie Jackson, the eldest of George Clement's seven child and today a spry and vital 80-year-old, remembers Davie County as it was in the early 1900's.

"I was born in Salisbury," she said, "and moved to Louisville, Kentucky in 1900. We moved to Charlotte, N.C in 1904 where the family remained until our father was declared a Bishop by the church in 1916.

"It is between the years of 1900-1916 that my father and mother returned to Mocksville for family visits."

"We came as often as possible to attend the "Picnic" in August. One has to consider that transportation at the turn of the century was not as it is today, and the trip from Charlotte was a long one."

"I can remember the "Picnic," and the overwhelming abundance of food. It was a fun day, she laughed, "when my parents presented us to all of our relatives in Davie County."

"We were always the center of attention simply becuase my family was the one that had traveled so far to attend the celebration."

"I also have a vivid remembrance of my grandfather, Albert Turner Clement's home in north Mocksville."

"I was probably the only grandchild he ever saw due to his death on March 3, 1902."

"He wore a white beard very similar to that of Ulysses S. Grant,"

"My grandmother, Evelina, cooked from a fireplace, and I can still smell the aroma of sweet potatoes and corn in the husk baking in the embers."

Ruth Clement Bond, 74, also has memories of her grandfather's home.

"My most vivid memory," she said, walking over the presently populated area where the house still stands, "is how open the area was then."

"There wasn't a house around, and I would play in the apple orchard in back of the house."

"I would eat apples until I was sick, fascinated by the abundnace of an orhard. I had always eaten apples bought from a store, so that thenatural quantity overwhelmed me as a child of eight years old."

"I can also remember crossing a gully and stream in the back yard in order to follow a path to our nearest neighbor's home."

The trace into the family's past is a natural curiosity for Albert Turner Clement's great granddaughter, Jane Clement Bond Howard. A historian by profession, she is a graduate of Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N.Y. and has an M.A. degree from the University of Birmingham, England. Ms.Howard is currently preparing her PhD. dissertation in French history for he Universityof London, England.

While here Mrs. Howard said, her brother, Dr. George Clement Bond, anthropologist with the Columbia Univeristy in New York City, would probably come to Mocksville for a more in depth search into the genealogy in the near future.

The descendants of Albert Turner Clement have attained national prminence in their lifetime His son, Bishop George C. Clement and wife Emma Williams Clement, who was National Mother of the Year in 1946, passed on their strong conviction of achievement to their children.

Dr. Abbie Clement Jackson has been a staunch leader in the A.M.E. Zion Church and has held every position possible for a women in its workings; the late Dr. Rufus Early Clement was President of Atlanta State University; Ruth Clement Bond headed the English department at theUniversity of Liberia, andhas done work in Afghanistan, Tunisia and Algeria; thelate Frederick Albert Clement was a Civil Engineer and headed the science department at West Virginia State College; George Williams Clement is assitant to the President of Mammoth Life Insurance Company in Louisville, Kentucky; the late Reverend James Addison Clement was a Lt. Colonel in the U.S. Army; and Dr. Emma Clement Walker a Faulkner-Hemmingway scholar.

The accomplishments of this family are many, and it brings pride to us knowing that it is here they began. Through their inquisition into the past we have not only gained an insight into their lives, hut more importantly we have recaptured a glimpse of Davie County's beginnings.

Our bodies age and die becoming the dust of the earth, butthe memories and deeds left behind by each of us are infinte. From our lives descendants can learn of the past and piece together the puzzle of their heritage.

It is through the roots made by each of us that our descendants will survivie, continuing to build on the achievements of those long gone.

If a slave of Jesse A. Clement, it is possible that their grandfather, Albert Turner Clement helped to build this house. Located in the center of his plantation, the house still stands at the end of Maple Avenue Extension and was of interest to the Clements and Gaithers during their visit to family landmarks.

Historic Jesse Clement House Is For Sale

The historic Jesse A. Clement house in Mocksville has been placed for sale on the open market by the Clement heirs.

Local historians believe the house is one of the two or three oldest homes in Mocksville.

Unitl a few weeks ago, the Historic Preservation Fund of North Carolina had an option to purchase the house and surrounding land. But when that option expired the Clement heirs decided to offer the house and land for sell to the general public.

The Historic Presevation Fund had sought "to acquire the (Clement) property and resell it to a sympathetic buyer who (would) agree to restore and preserve it under protective covenants."

However, according to Hugh Larew, the Mocksville realtor whose agency is now attempting to sell the property, the Clement heirs have placed no restrictive or protective covenants or conditions on the sale of the property.

Larewdid saythat if the Preservation Fund does find a buyer for the property who will agree to restore the house under the Fund's restrictive covenants, then the house must be sold to the Fund's buyer before being offered to any other buyer.

The price of the house and 13.8 acres of surrounding land has been set at $50,000.

The present access to the house is from Maple Ave. But the land that goes with the house extends from Maple Ave. to Lexington Rd., with 345 feet of road frontage on Lexington Rd.

Larew said the house has survived in its almost original condition since it was built in the 1800's, with few basic structural changes or major replacements having occurred.

"I would like to see the house preserved and not torn down. I certainly wouldn't want to see the property subdivided into lots and sold off. This is an important piece of our local heritage and an important example of the architecture of the period it was built," said Larew.

According to local tradition, the Clement house was built in 1828, but no one seems to know for certain when the house was constructed.

The home contains a variety of brick construction, with the front and east walls laid in Flemish bond and the rear and west walls laid in common bond. This vairety extends to the chimneys, with one completely recessed and the other partially recessed. The double portico is believed to be a later addition, however.

The house has a central hall, with the staircase rising at the back. It contains one large and two smaller rooms downstairs and four rooms upstairs, each with its own fireplace.

Here again, one finds a variety of original wood carved mantels, with no two exactly alike. All of the rooms in the house have original flooring, tall baseboards, plaster walls, four paneled doors and wooden ceilings.

Jesse A. Clement, the first owner of thehouse, was aprominent citizen in his day. He helpedformthe Yadkin Plank Road Co., and his name appears as trustee on a large number of documents.

Although at age 53 he was not exempt from military service, he commanded Company F, the Davie "Gray," and fought in some of the ferocious battles of the Civil War.

Two of his sons became physicians. One of them, Dr. Baxter Clegg Clement, continued to live in the family homeplace after his father died in 1876 and his mother died in 1891.

Dr. Baxter Clement died in 1927, but his wife, "Miss Lina," who was 20 years his junior, continued to live in the house until her death. It is "Miss Lina's" grandchildren, Charles Clement Hines and his sister, Barbara, and Ann Clement Ridenhour and her brother, B.C. Clement Jr., who are now the heirs of the property and wish to sell it.

The house is presently occupied by tenants.

Gene Gaither of Route 7, Mocksville meets his cousin, Jane Howard for the first time. It was through the Clement-Gaither Reunion held in August that this meeting was made possible.

Tenor To Give Concert At Library Monday Evening

The Rev. James Thaddeaus Lochridge Jr., tenor, will give a concert at the Davie County Library on Monday evening, Sept. 11th, at 8:00 o'clock. He will be accompanied by Miss Louise Stroud, local piano teacher and organist at First Baptist Church, Mocksville.

The Rev. James Lochridge was born in Winston-Salem but when he was ten years of age, the family moved to the Philippine Islands, where his parents are still serving as Baptist missionaries.

Mr. Lochridge received his Bachelor of Music degree at East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C. in 1971 and was ordained to the ministry that year. He served in the U.S. Air Force from 1972-1974. He received his Master of Church Music degree from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary in 1976.

Mr. Lochridge is currently serving as Minister of Music at First Baptist Church, Mocksville. He was Co-Founder and is President of Lighthouse Evangelistic Ministries, Inc. He is married to the former Belinda Harris of Durham and they have two children.

He has traveled extensively and has performed on three continents. He has released four albums of sacred music. He is also a composer and arranger. He has appeared on numerous TV and radio programs both in the Philippines and the U.S.

Included in the program will be a Bach solo cantata in German, Dvorak Biblical songs, French and Italian numbers by Hue and Verdie, an Aaron Capland number and one of Mr. Lochridge's own compositions as well as one of his arrangements of a familiar tune and a closing selection by Beethoven.

Rev. James Lochridge

In one number, in addition to the piano accompaniment, the cello will be added. The cellist, Blair Baldwin, is a senior at Davie High School. Coming from New York, he now resides with his parents in Mocksville. He is a member of the sanctuary and Youth Choirs of First Baptist Church, Mocksville, and a member of Breakthrough, a music ensemble sponsored by Lighthouse Evangelistic Ministries, Inc.

The concert is free to the public and one of a series of concerts sponsored by the Davie County Arts Council. A reception will be held at the close of the program.

Three Health Hazards Emerging, Experts Say

September 10-17 is Public Health Week in North Carolina. To mark the week, which carries the theme "Life and Living," health departments around the state have planned a series of events designed to bring public health services to the attention of North Carolinians. These events may include health fairs, tours of the department, special clinics and exhibits.Contact the Davie Health Department for information about Public Health Week activities or for information about services the department provides the community year-round.

By Richard Bierck

As society changes, do so people's lifestyles, and, consequently, their environments, customs and habits.

Sometimes these changes include new practices that lay the human body open to invasion from various parasties, said Dr. John Larsh, a parasitologist at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Larsh said North Carolinians should be aware of three emerging health hazards, two of which are attributable in some degree to new or different practices or habits.

Two of the parasites are giardia, which is contracted by drinking contaminated water and lives in the intestinal tract; and trichomonas, now considered to be a form of venereal disease. Both of these are protozoa (one-celled animals).

The third parasite is visceral larva migrans, a roundworm that has begun to receive national attention as a health problems only recently.

"Recent attention has been focused on giardia cysts in drinking water as the source of large outbreaks of infections," said Larsh, chairman of the department of parasitology of the School of Public Health.

"This source was first suspected from studies of infected patients returning from trips to the Soviet Union. . .Later, epidemics occurred in cities in the Unitesd States with modern drinking water treatment systems, so it is obvious that certain procedures for purifying water do not eliminate giardia."

One likely cause of giardia in the United States, Larsh said, is "the mass exodus to the outdoors. Outbreaks have occurred among campers in remote uninhabited areas." The campers, he said, evidently drank water from lakes or streams contaminated with giardia from the excrement of wild animals.

Once lodged in the intestinal tract, giardia can damage the intestinal surface, causing persistent diarrhea, Larsh said. "If untreated, this can, in time, cause serious complications," he said.

He recommends that outdoor enthusiasts who obtain drinking water from streams or ponds to boil the water or use a water-treatment chemical known to be effective, such as Halazone.

The other protozoan that is causing increasing problems is trichomonas, a parasite of the vagina and in males of the urethral canal, Larsh said.

"Attention has been forcused for the most part on gonorrhea, which has reached epidemic proportions," he said. "But infections in America produced by trichomonas during 1977 have been estimated at 2 million."

Larsh said trichomonas in females causes severe itching, burning sensations and a distressing, persistent discharge. In males, he said, it causes mild infections with periodic white discharge.

"Although the infection sometimes can be acquired by other means, it is now considered to be primarily a veneral disease," Larsh said. "Changes in sexual behavior in America in recent years, and undoubtedly the ready availability of the pill, have caused a progressive increase. . ."

Infected males sometimes are not aware they are carrying the disease, he said.

Infections with trichomonas can be treated by a prescription drug, he said.

Visceral larva migrans probably has been around for a long time, but has been the subject of national publicity only recently, Larsh said.

It is a roundworm that lives in the intestinal tracts of dogs and cats. "The female worm releases eggs that occur in the stools of the animals," Larsh said. "When the infected animal passes stools onto the soil in a shady, moist area, the eggs in the stools will develop within a few weeks and contain a small immature worm (larva)."

The eggs live long after the stool has disintegrated and easily deposit on the fingers of children playing, for example, in sandboxes.

Damage to the body is caused when large number of these tiny worms congregate in the liver and other tissues.

"The liver is greatly enlarged, lung damage causes problems in normal breathing and eye damage can cause blindness," Larsh said.

The best way to prevent visceral larva migrans is to take measures to "insure that play areas are kept free of the eggs. . .," Larsh said.

"Adequate screening or fencing to keep out dogs and cats, and protective covers over sandboxes when not in use have proved to be satisfactory."

Arts Alive Since '75 Festival To Present Many Surprises

The Davie County Arts Council's meeting on August 28, 1978 was a bee hive of activity and ideas pertaining to the upcooming 'Arts Alive Since '75" festival this September 16, 1978, On-the-Square in Mocksville.

Doris Carmen, chairperson of the locations committee, is hurriedly booking up choice spots for artists and craftsmen. The booths will be situated around the square and along US 158 through Mocksville, beginning near the junction of 64 and 158 continuing on to Belks parking lot. The spots are filling up fast, so send your application to the Davie County Arts Council office today or call 634-3112. The deadline for accepting applications is September 8, 1978.

The concessions chairperson, Roberta Goodwin, tickled taste buds when she mentioned homemade ice cream, hot dogs, hamburgers, and homemade baked goods provided by Art Council members. There will be ample supplies of soft drinks and, of course, hot coffee to go along with homemade apple pie. Cafe tables will be situated under the willow oaks for comfort.

Preston Badget and his special events committee have scheduled Glenn Howard and R.C. Smith to display their antique cars. Allen Martin, of Mocksville, has offered to show his treasured Corvairs.

There will be horse and buggy rides--free of charge--and compliments of Tom Hauser.

Frances Wainright of Indian Trails, North Carolina will be on hand sketching portraits is pastels. Francis Green will teach the fine points of surveying and Alvin Richardson, of Mocksville, will provide a first hand lesson(or two) on the art of horse shoeing..

"We have a fabulous "piddler" joining us from Salisbury. Mr. Bill Bost, an accomplished whittler and story teller, has offered to do a little of both for us at the Festival. His knife and hands are art in motion. Something that is a must to see, said Valerie Slogick, chairman of the publicity committee.

"Preston even called President Jimmy Carter--since the President planned to be as near as Ashville that day. Low and behold Preston failed. As I understand it Senator Sam's stories take too long to tell and the President felt both events couldn't be squeezed into one day. So the story goes. These are just a few of the many special events planned for the extravaganza," continued Ms. Slogick..

The entertainment committee has lined up several feature attractions for the day. The State National Guard Band, the Davie County High School Band, and Dancing Boots will perform.

"We have had firm commitments from the Turrentine Trio, dance groups, cloggers, musical groups, the ROTC drill team to mention a few. Steven Fields, a student at Davie High and talent winner himself, has graciously offered his ser ices as master of ceremonies. Doug Bales, of Mocksville and affiliated with WXII, will be one of the qualified Country Western-Bluegrass judges. Harper Van Hoy, of Union Grove, has also donated his time and talent to the Bluegrass competition judging, said Ms. Slogick.

The Arts Council is full of surprises and this year is no exception. James Donaldson, of Salisbury, has illustrated a delightful festival-theme coloring book for this special occasion. It should be a one-of-a-kind treasured item.

The second surprise puts Davie County in T-shirt territory through the talented efforts of Elspeth Webster. Mrs. Webster created two designs--one for the children and one for the children at heart. The child's design depicts a festival flair of clowns. The adults design is a graphic play on Davie County and the words "Arts Alive Since '75". Both T-shirts are pleasing to the eye and will please the wearer. The coloring book and T-shirts will be available for sale starting September1, 1978 at the Davie County Arts Council office and at the Festival.

Included in the varied and interesting sights and sounds of the day will be WDSL, the sound of Mocksville. Broadcasting will continue live throughout the day.

"How can anyone afford not to be "On-the-Square" in Mocksville, September 16, 1978? There will be something for every taste and personality--from shoeing horses to disco dancing. Don't miss it!", said Ms. Slogick.

Festival Coloring Book Created By James Donaldson

A unique souvenir for children attending this year's "Arts Alive Since '75" festival will be a coloring book illustrated by James Donaldson, a member of the Davie County Arts Council.

James has created a festival theme coloring book with children in mind, often times using suggestions from his young daughter, Shelley. Each page is filled with clowns and balloons, ice cream cone treats, street scenes, and your usual end-of-the-day tired festival goers. These happy pages are waiting to be brought to life by young imaginative minds, reliving their day at the Arts Festival. A caption is found under each illustration to add more enjoyment for the enthusiastic artist at work.

Mr. Donaldson lived the early part of his life in the Piedmont of North Carolina. He presently makes his home in Salisbury, North Carolina with his wife, Margaret and daughter, Shelley.

He began his formal art education at the Tyler School of Art in Philedelphia. In the mid 60's Donaldson was commissioned by Paul Jones to do an exhibition which included portraits of prominent Afro-Americans, past and present in the fields of history, civil rights, and the arts. This exhibit traveled to Thailand, Bankok, and numerous other places. It now belongs to the private collection of Paul Jones of Washington, D.C.

After this commission, Bishop William Jacob Walls of Yonkers, N.Y. commissioned Donaldson to do a mural which included the "Life of Christ" through painting.

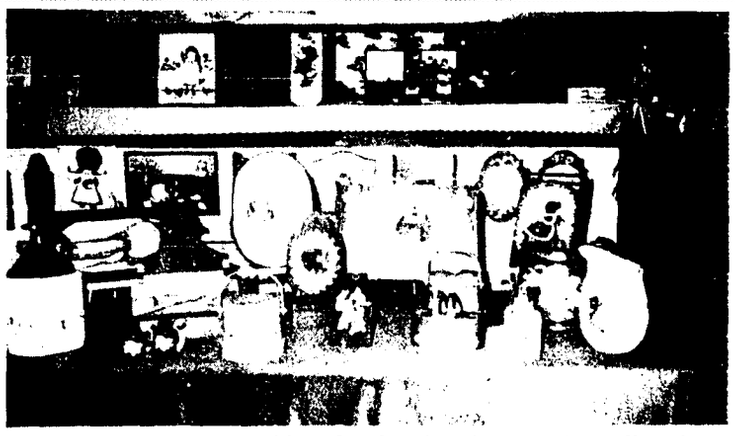

In 1976, Donald was selected to be a "Third Century Artist," by the North Carolina Arts Council in Raleigh.

Donaldson's most recent accomplishment occurred in March, 1977 through a commission by Alex Haley to promote his painting ased on the movie and book "ROOTS" written by Haley.

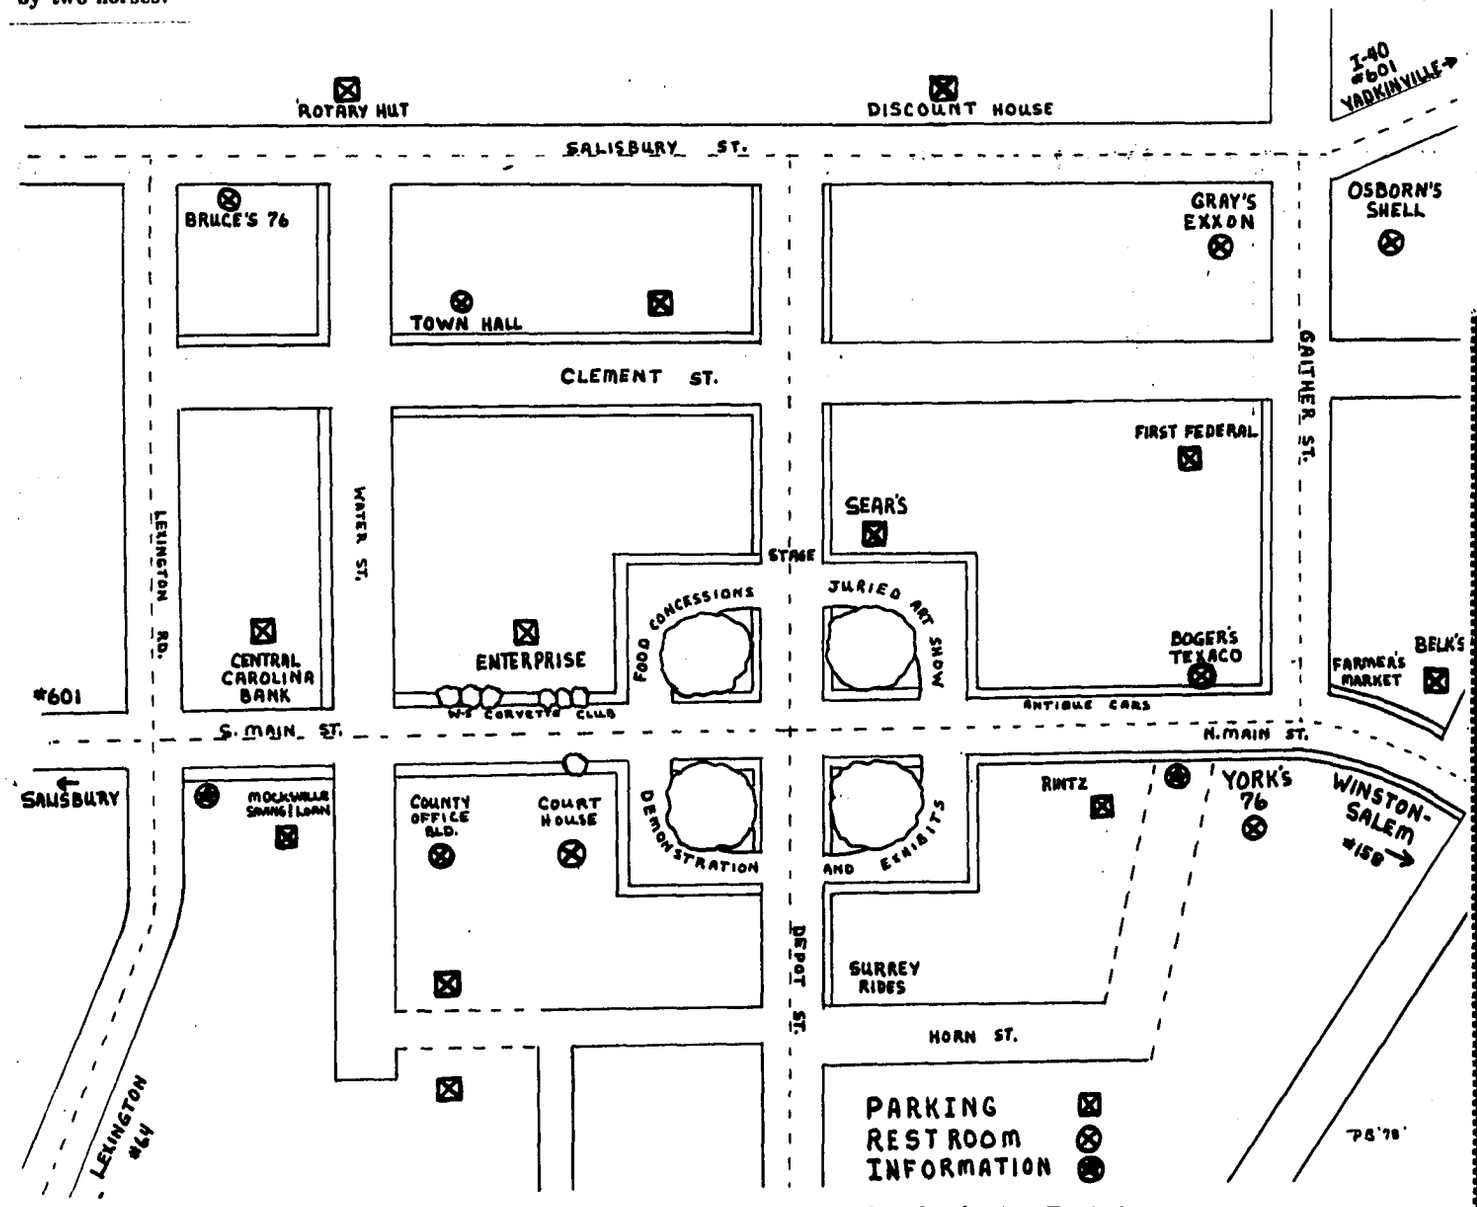

Today Mr. Donaldson has returned to teaching and is presently associated with the Davie County School System. His spare moments are devoted to art and the expansion of his promising career. These are but a few of James Donaldson's many accomplishments.

"We are proud to have Mr. Donaldson in our membership and that he has so willingly shared his talent with the citizens of Davie County," said Valerie Slogick, chairperson of the publicity committee.

"The festival coloring book will be on sale at the Davie County Arts Council office and at the "Arts Alive Since '75" festival. Stop by and have James Donaldson autograph your coloring book personally, On-the-Square in Mocksville, Saturday, September 16, 1978. Its going to be a great happening," said Ms. Slogick.

Superintendent Receives Info On Exit Documents

James E. Everidge, superintendent for the Davie County Schools has received information from the Department fof Public Instruction regarding graduation exit documents. Regulations resulting from the Competency Testing Program were adopted by the State Board of Education at its August meeting.

According to State School Superintendent Craig Phillips, the Board adopted policies and other regulations concerning documents issued to students when they leave school.

In the newly adopted regulations graduation is defined as satisfactory completion of all state and local course requirements and achievement of a passing score on the N.C. Competency Test. Students who meet these two requirements will be eligible to receive a diploma. A certificate will be issued to those students who complete all state and local course requirements, but who fail to achieve a passing score on the N.C. Competency Test. A transcript will be issued to all students receiving either the diploma or the certificate. "The transcript may be issued to the student by any procedure as determined by the local school within a reasonable period of time," said Phillips.

"Local boards of education will have responsibility for designing their diplomas and certificates, and are urged to insure that the diploma and certificate are easily recognized as different documents and that the certificate in no way indicates graduation," Phillips added. An additional polciy adopted by the State Board clarifies the responsibility of local boards of education for providing remedial instruction for those who have not passed the Competency Test by the last month of the year in which their class graduates. These students will be entitled to remedial instruction and additional opportunities to take the test until they are 21 (maximum school age is defined in G.S. 115-163).

Library Piano Fund Workers Hear Report

Workers for the Davie County Library piano fund meeting Tuesday evening at the call of Mike Hendrix, campaign director, heard reports that the goal of $3000 for the first week of the campaign had been surpassed.

Initial gifts of $100 to $250 from industries, firms, stores, clubs, and individuals had brought in over $2,000 in cash, and pledges of over $1,000, it was reported by David Fergusson, Librarian. About 400 names of persons and groups remained to be solicited by approximately 50 volunteers, who expect to complete the campaign approximately $7,000 by September 14.

Mrs. George W. Martin presided at the rally launching the public campaign. Patrick Hicks, artist in residence, gave a selection of music from the piano, already in place in the multipurpose room of the library, and refreshments were served. Mr. Hendrix assigned names to workers and promised a victory celebration September 15.

Impaired Hearing

Imparied hearing can be described as the invisible handicap--according to the Belton Crusade for Hearing Conservation--because unlike the victim of paralysis of blindness, there is no wheelchair or white cane to point out the hard of hearing persons's problem.

Billy Hamm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hamm of Route 3, Mocksville, celebrated his 2nd birthday Tuesday, August 29th with a party at his home. Helping him enjoy the celebration were his brothers, Steven and Jody, Mr. and Mrs. Robert King and Cynthia, Mr. and Mrs. David Maynard and Jan and Jill Marshall.

Arnold and Nancy Harpe announce the birth of their first child, Joseph Henry, on August 26, 1978. He weighed 8 lbs. 1 oz. and was 21 ½ inches long.

Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Harpe

Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Horn of Salisbury Street, Mocksville announce the birth of a daughter, Amy Lynette, born August 24th at the Davis Hospital in Statesville, N.C.

Mrs. Horn is the former Wanda Reavis of Yadkinville.

Mrs. David Franklin Dwiggins
. . . was Barbara Arlene Stewart

Stewart - Dwiggins Vows Are Spoken

Miss Barbara Arlene Stewart and David Franklin Dwiggins were united in marriage Saturday, September 2, 1978 at 2 o'clock at Concord United Methodist Church, Route 4, Mocksville. The pastor, the Rev. Kenneth Eller officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Wright Stewart of Route 6, Mocksville. She is a 1978 graduate of Davie County High School and is employed at Monleigh Garment Company.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Dwiggins of 714 Garner Street, Mocksville. He is a 1976 graduate of Davie County High School, is attending Rowan Technical Institute and is employed at Mocksville Motor Company.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Robah Epps of Roxboro, N.C. She wore a formal gown of white bridal satin overlaid with organza, lace and seed pearls and designed with a fitted bodice, high lace neckline and long sleeves with wide lace cuffs. The skirt that extended into a long flowing train was enhanced with an organza flounce and lace border. Her two-tier, waist length veil was white illusion with lace and seed pearls attached to a venice cap. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, white daisies, and baby's breath.

Mrs. Melissa Allen of Mocksville, was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a floor length dress of pale yellow dotted swiss featuring pink, green and yellow designs.

Bridesmaids were Misses Cathy and Patty Dwiggins, sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Kim Foster of Mocksville. They carried long stemmed yellow mums. Child attendants were Misses Tammy and Becky Stewart, the brides sisters. The bridesmaids and child attendants dresses were identical to that of the honor attendants. All the attendants dresses were made by Mrs. Elsie Nail of Route 4, Mocksville.

Lester Dwiggins was his son's best man. Ushers were Mike Dwiggins, brother of the bridegroom, Randy Draughn, and Chuck Lakey, all of Mocksville.

Acolyte was Wade Stewart, the bride's brother.

Mrs. Carlene Speaks directed the wedding.

Following a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C. the couple will be at home on Route 4, Mocksville.

REHEARSAL DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Dwiggins were hosts to a rehearsal dinner Friday evening, September 1st, in the Fellowship hall of the church for the wedding party, relatives, and close friends of the couple.

The menu included ham biscuits, fried chicken, potato salad, green beans and corn, sliced tomatoes and canteloupe, cherry yum-yum, carrot cake, pound cake, soft drinks and tea.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the wedding a reception was held for the couple and their guest in the Fellowship hall of the church.

The wedding cake was three tier decorated with yellow roses with white hearts and yellow sugar bells and displayed a miniature birde and groom under an arch of pink silk flowers. Served with the cake was yellow fruit punch, mints and nuts.

Local Student Named 'University Scholar'

Lynda Ruby of Mocksville is among 169 students who have earned distinction as "University Scholars" for the 1978-79 academic year at Susquehanna University in Selinsgrove, Pa.

This title is earned by students with a cumulative grade-point average of 3.25 or better on a 4.0 scale. If the students maintain these averages through the senior year, they will graduate with honors.

The "University Scholars" will be cited during Convocation ceremonies opening Susquehanna's 121st academic year on Sunday , Sept. 10, at 7 p.m. in the university's Weber Chapel Autidtorium.

Ruby, a junior accounting major, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grodon Ruby of Rt. 4, Southwood Acres, Mocksville, and a graduate of Belvidere High School, N.J.

Concord Methodist To Have Ice Cream Supper

Concord United Methodist Church is sponsoring an ice cream social Saturday, September 9th from 9:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. at the church.

There will be lots of homemade cakes and the ice cream will also be homeade. A donation of the individual's choice can be made for the refreshments.

Proceeds will go to the church.

Babies Influence Parents As Much As Parents Influence Babies, Says Dean

By Carol Boren

"Parents have been so trained in this country to assume they are shaping the child. But in any human relationship, both people change each other," says Dr. Ira J. Gordon, Kenan professor and Deanof the School of Education at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"The whole idea," he says, "is to say, 'Look the baby is doing things to you as well as you doing things to the baby,' Parents must look at each baby's behavior and who each baby is rather than assuming they can make that baby who they want, because they can't.

"Parents also need to be prepared for the fact that raising children is not all roses and sweetness," Gordon says. "If parents get anxious and tired, it's normal."

Based on experiments conducted in Gainesville, Fla., Gordon has formed what he calls the "Four P's" of early parent-child development: ping pong, passion, perserverance and patience. These stages are discussed in Gordon's latest child development book--"Baby to Parent , Parent to Baby,"

If the four P's are observed, he says the parent can learn much about the child and be able to respond effectively to the child. And, a child also can achieve a positive approach to the world during the first year of life.

During a ping pong activity, Gordon explains, baby and parent are especially attentive toward one another. They participate in games like playing party cake in which everyone wins.

Eye-to-eye contact or mutual gazing helps parent and child convey the message of love. Gordon says that mutual gazing is a crucial element of expression of passion between parent and infant.

Perseverance in parent-child relationships is another necessity. Gordon believes that baby-sustained behavior or perseverance is critical throughout life. Parents must learn to allow a baby to get interested in something and stay with it without disrutpion, unless is might harm the child.

The behavior from a child's point of view is always sensible, Gordon says. Parents must learn to be patient with the child's expression of his individuality.

Gordon explains that these four P's occur throughout the child's first year and all of family life, and that each child responds at a different rate.

Gordon syas he would not want anyone to read a book on parenting and assume that every bit of behavior is critical, or if the parent does one thing wrong, the child is doomed.

"Parents should not view the child's age or any other single factor as the cirtical variable, because a child develops at his or her own individual rate. For example, some parents might say that the baby should be smiling because he is 3-months-old, but that isn't always the case," Gordon says.

"Once a parent understands that the baby develops at his own rate, the parent can escape guilt feelings they might otherwise have," Gordon says. "If parents get those guilt feelings, they tend to be immoderate in their treatment of their child. They may smother and overwhelm the child."

"I think you have to maintain a sense of balance and a sense of humor about child-raising. No one thing, short of violence, that you do to the child is going to be that significant," he says.

"One element in child abuse is caused by the parents' lack of understanding of this pattern. Parents may demand too much from their children and punish them because they can't perform," Gordon syas.

During the initial year of development, a child needs to begin establishing a sense of competency, Gordon says. Parents can strengthen this, he says, by learning when to step in and out of the child's action with the environment. Children who lack this autonomy are often raised by doting parents.

"Children should be able to grow without the love relationship changing. The personal relationship changes so that the child becomes your peer. You each share together ideas and plans."

Gordon's new book, "Baby to Parent, Parent to Baby", represents 10 years of work in which the parent-child interactions during the first year of child development were observed. Approximately 225 low-income families in Gainesville, Fla., took part in the research, which was part of a project sponsored by the Fund for the Advancement of Education of the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

Gordon also attributes his experience and observations, he has written a total of 10 books and co-authored three others.

Gordon came to UNC-CH in 1977. Previously he spent 21 years on the College of Education faculty at the University of Florida at Gainesville. Since 1965, Gordon has conducted several research projects supported by grants from the U.S. Office of Education, National Institute of Mental Health, Office of Child Development, U.S. Children's Bureau and the Fund for Advancement of Education.

Some of his early education studies have included infant stimulation, parent-child transactions and infant competence, imrpving the development of culturally disadvantaged children and studies of socio-emotional development.

Sara Bowles Wall At UNC School Of Nursing

Sara Bowles Wall of Durham has begun her first year of clinical training at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill School of Nursing.

The new class of 157 rising juniors includes 14 men and 21 registered nurses. One hundred twenty students are transferrring from other parts of the UNC-Chapel Hill campus and 37 will be coming from other colleges and universities.

The undergraduate curriculum of the School of Nursing, which leads to a bachelor of science degree, prepares students to become professional nurses, competent in practice and with the educational background for continued learning.

More than 1,200 students have received baccalaureate degrees from the UNC-CH School of Nursing since it first admitted students in 1951.

She is the daughter of Juanita R. and the late John C. Bowles, Sr. of Durham and is married to Tim Wall son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Wall of Mocksville.

EMT's Urged To Attend Training Sessions

All local emergency medical technicians both professional and non-professional are urged to attend the meeting and training session scheduled for 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Friday Sept. 8 at the B.C. Brock Building in Mocksville.

Many of the EMTS of this area attended the initial meeting on August 18 and decided to continue meeting on a monthly basis. A permant location and meeting night have not yet been established.

The Sept. 8 meeting will donsist of organizational discussions, short lectures by Jaci Krause and Jerry Cope on pertinent subjects, and practice in CPR and other Emergency Medical Techniques.

All certified and formerly certified EMTS are welcome to attend.

Mrs. Wanda Neal Is Local Representative Of AAA

Mrs. Wanda Neal of Route 1, Advance, announces her appointment as Membership Sales Representative of Davie County for th Carolina AAA Motor Club.

Moving from Gastonia to Advance, this is the first time that the organization has had a representative in this area. Working out of her home, she will be in charge of membership recruitment in the Davie and Rowan County area.

The Triple A Motor Club, a nationwide organization, has been in existence since 1902. The firm has been active in the establishment of school safety patrols, the enactment of high school driver's educational programs. and has represented motorist's interests in all levels of the government.

Members of the Motor Club are offered emergency road service, personal travel planning service, legal defense reimbursement, free tour books, bail bond protection, personal travel accident insurance, and trip guarantee reimbusement. They also give $200 theft reward protection, and through the 400 representatives in 90 foreign countries, the club can act as a world travel agency.

Mrs. Wanda Neal

Gray's Exxon and Andy's Union 76, local service stations, have been designated as emergency stations available to serve Triple A members.

The motor club has an 18 million membership nationwide, and the North and South Carolina regional office is located in Charlotte.

People in this area interested in further information about Triple A Motor Club are urged to contact Mrs. Neal at 998-2156.

Local Aflatoxin Testing Station Opens At Cleveland

The N.C. Department of Agriculture has announced the opening date for two aflatoxin testing stations in piedmont North Carolina.

According to State Agriculture Commissioner James A. Graham, the laboratories will open on September 5 in Bonlee and September 11 in Salisbury, with operating hours from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday. The testing service will provide information on the levels of aflatoxin, if any, in the corn so that farmers can make decisions on selling the corn or using it on the farm.

Graham stated that the believes the 1978 corn crop will show a smaller incidence of the mold-produced toxin than last year. "There appears to be an established link between stress conditions in corn and the presence of aflatoxin," Graham said.

"Last year, where crops were exposed to the stresses of drought and pest infestation, we found some aflatoxin; however, the weather has been kinder to us this year, and we hope to see a cleaner crop," he said.

State Chemist, Dr. William Y. Cobb, has recommended that all farmers evaluate their corn before harvest. "A visual check should be made on shucked corn gathered from various parts of the field. If a greenish-yellow mold is found on the kernels or between the kernels, aflatoxin may be present," Cobb said.

For more accurate information on the presence or absence of aflatoxin, farmers should collect samples for testing at an NCDA laboratory. Cobb outlines the following methods for gathering test samples: 1) Pick two bushels of ears randomly throughout the field to represent the crop as completely as possible. Hand shell, mix well, and take a ten pound sample; or 2) Combine several swatches through the field and probe the shelled corn in several places in the collection bin to get a ten pound sample.

In either case, the sample should be taken to the laboratory as rapidly as possible, not to exceed four hours after shelling.

Cobb urged all farmers to bring in their samples by 4 p.m. to assure that their corn would be tested the same day for the most accurate results.

The Piedmont Research Station is located on the Sherrills Ford Road west of Salisbury near Cleveland. Ken Jones (704--278-2624) is in charge.

Also, the N.C.D.A. Constable Laboratory on Reedy Creek Road in Raleigh is available to farmers from any part of the state.

Five stations opened in the southeastern part of the state on August 23.

Rest Areas Are Getting A Face Lift

Rest areas along North Carolina's highways are getting a face-lift, including a fresh coat of paint in designer colors, improved lighting, additional sidewalks and new toilet fixtures.

Tom Bradshaw, Secretary of the North Carolina Department of Transportation,said work began in late July to renovate 41 older facilities of the State's 57 rest areas on interstate highways and primary roads. The state Board of Transportation approved an expenditure of $500,000 of maintenance funds July 14 to make the facilities more attractive and to replace or repair damaged equipment.

"Most of the rest areas were built around 20 years ago," Bradshaw said, "and are badly in need of repair. Not only will this program inprove the appearance of these facilities, but it also will mean that travelers will get more service and added convenience from them."

"We feel we are preserving the investment we already have in these structures by repairing damaged items and replacing others which have deteriorated with age."

When the majority of the rest areas were built in the late 50's and early 60's, the federal government was not paying for the cost of constructing such facilities, the transportation secretary said.

Most of the rest areas on interstate highways in North Carolina were built with state funds prior to 1963, Bradshaw said. "Thus, these facilities were constructed on a rather basic scale in relation to today's rest area design concepts. But they have served their purpose well and now we are going to update them and extend their useful life."

Bradshaw noted that tourism is now the state's third largest industry. "A traveler's first, and perhaps only, stop in North Carolina may be at a rest area. By making these facilities more attractive and functional, we can create a favorable impression on out-of-state visitors as well as provide needed services for all motorists."

The original bright green and pink colors are being replaced by safari-tan and cocoa-brown, or "earth colors." New wood siding will be installed at some units, while existing paneling at others will be stained.

"We feel these changes will give the rest areas a more contempary look and make them more harmonious with their natural settings," the transportation secretary said.

To assist travelers, information displays are to be added to the rest areas. Some of the items to be included are a transportation map of the state and orientation sheets describing the motorist's location and attracitons in the surrounding area.

Bill Johnson, head of the transportation department's Division of Highways' Landscape Unit, which is overseeing the rest area face-lifting program, said the facilities currently are being painted.

"Most of the work inside the buildings will be done in the fall and winter months when the tourist traffic is lighter," he said. "Some of the rest areas will be closed for about a week while the repairs are completed. We will finish this phase as rapidly as possible to minimize inconvenience to motorists."

Johnson said the rest areas would remain open while outdoor projects proceed, including establishment of lawns, additions of sidewalks and lighting, and renovation of water and sewage systems. The entire face-lifting program is scheduled to be completed next July.

In addition to changing the face of the rest areas, these improvements will make the facilities a nicer place for travelers to refresh themselves for the continuation of a safe trip.

Alcohol Information Report

ALCOHOLISM EDUCATION CONSULTANT

ALCOHOL AS A FOOD-A food is any substance consumed to nourish and sustain the body and its growth and helth maintenance. A variety of foods is required to provide heat energy and contribute the building elements termed protein, minerals, and vitamins. Most foods provide more or less of each of these substances.

The excess usable contributions to the body made by a food are storable for use when needed later. Refined sugar, as in candy, is a food because it can be stored in the body and used to produce protoplasm and enregy for muscular work and body heat. But in comparison with fruits, vegetables, and meat, candy has been referred to as "empty calories." Alcohol represents not only "empty calories" but also "toxic calories."

Alcohol is not classified as a food in medical dictionaries. As soon as alcohol is absorbed into the bloodstream, the body attempts to get rid of it by the process known as oxidation or burning. This process might furnish a large part of the body's energy needs if it were not that thedrugging effects of alcohol on mental and physical processes offset any advantage that might come from its use. Consequently, these harmful effects keep it from being classified as a food by physiologists. While alcohol does carry a value in calories, they cannot be stored for future use. Other resources of the body must be used to replace the losses due to the effects of alcohol upon the nervous and muscular systems.

(This is the forty-fifth in a series of articles about "alcohol" provided by Bill Weant, Alcoholism Education Consultant with the Tri-County Mental Health Complex. These articles are designed to create understanding about sensible drinking, alcohol abuse, and alcoholism in our society. If you have a queston concerning alcohol that you would like answered in a future column, phone 634-2195.)

Preston Badgett of P.B.'s Hobby Shop attended the Monday, August 28th meeting of the Clarksville 4-H Club held at the William R. Davie Fire Department.

Mr. Badgett helped the 10 members and two leaders with the paint hydrocal articles that they had chosen.

Pan Beck, the club's leader, called the meeting to order. Rita White served kool-aide and cookies for the evening's refreshments.

The club would like to thank Mr. Badgett for his interesting visit. The meeting was adjourned at 9 p.m.

Authentic English Stoneware. Free. From BB&T.

English Stoneware is something special. Made the way it's been made for over 150 years. By hand. By craftsmen.

Potters take the clay from their native England and fashion it into distinctive shapes. Each piece is individually dipped in a glaze. Then hand decorated by a talented artist.

All this care does make an elegant difference, recognizable in subtle variations from piece to piece.

By saving at Branch Banking and Trust Company, you can get your first three-piece place setting free.

That's a hand-crafted cup, saucer and dinner plate free, just for depositing $25 or more, in a new or existing BB&T Regular Savings Account at any BB&T office.

12 piece snack set for four.

Each snack set consists of a coffee mug, soup/cereal bowl and a salad/luncheon plate. It's ideal for snacks, breakfasts and light lunches.

When you deposit $500.00 in a new or existing BB&T Savings Account, you may purchase this twelve-piece snack set for four for only $31.75.

26 piece service for four.

Entertain the idea of having enough Stoneware for a dinner party this evening: four dinner plates, four cups, four saucers, four bread and butter plates, four soup/cereal bowls, a 1.5 quart casserole dish with lid, an oval platter, a sugar bowl with lid, and a cream pitcher.

They can all be yours for only $65.00. Simply deposit $1,000 in a new or existing BB&T Savings Account. And entertain.

Limited to one free place setting per account.

Almost a lost art.

This Stoneware had its origin in Belper, England, which is near the origin of another famous story. That of Robin Hood. Sherwood Forest and Nottingham are just a short distance away.

Here, craftsmen have passed the secrets and skills of their art from father to son to grandson. Establishing a tradition of unsurpassed hand-craftsmanship.

Each piece of Authentic English Stoneware is hand-formed by craftsmen, glazed by hand, and the decorations are painted on by skillful artists.

The result is beautiful in an honest, natural way.

Beauty doesn't have to be fragile.

Authentic English Stoneware is as practical as it is pretty. You can do things with this Stoneware that you'd never think possible.

You can use it in a regular or microwave oven. You can freeze in it. You can put it in the dishwasher.

And yet, it will look like new after years of this kind of hard use.

This Stoneware is so strong that the supplier gives a limited two-year warranty. Which you can pick up at any BB&T office.

Matching completer pieces at special low prices.

When you make a savings deposit of $25 or more, you may purchase completer pieces at special low prices. For example, additional three-piece place settings are only $6.49 each. And you may pay for your purchases with cash, check or Master Charge. Whichever is most convenient.

If you've ever priced Authentic English Stoneware, and it's only available in the finest stores, you know that BB&T's offer is a remarkable value.

Dear Abby

Her kids should not be heard

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating Ethel for over a year. She's a beautiful 35-year-old divorcee with three children. The oldest is 10. I'm 44 and have never been married. The problem is Ethel's kids. One hour is about all I can take of them—then they start getting on my nerves. If it weren't for those kids, I'd grab Ethel in a minute because she's everything a man could want in a woman.

VAN BUREN

I suppose we could send her kids to camp in the summer, but how about the rest of the time? Boarding schools, maybe? But it will be years before the two youngest will be old enough to go.

Ethel is pushing for marriage, and I honestly hate to let her go. She says she's not going to wait around for me much longer. What should I do?

CHUCK

DEAR CHUCK: It's a package deal. If you can't stand Ethel's kids, say goodbye to Ethel. And look for a woman who (a) has no children, (b) has grown children, or (c) is unbearable.

DEAR ABBY: You were very generous to suggest to DESPERATE IN DENVER that the reason her husband had lost interest in sex could be due to a physical or psychological disorder. Nine times out of 10 it's neither. I've been through this myself and so have many other wives.

When a husband reaches 40, he gets bored and restless, so in order to prove that he's still a "man," he reassures himself by making it with other women.

My husband was always "too tired" for me. There was nothing wrong with him physically or psychologically, but he was having an affair with his best friend's wife, so he pretended that he had lost interest in sex. The truth was, he had lost interest in ME! With others he was very much alive and able to function.

I am interested to know how many other letters you received like this.

UNTOUCHED IN WENATCHEE

DEAR UNTOUCHED: The number of "other letters" amounted to an epidemic!

DEAR ABBY: A lady who is a co-worker of mine wears the same dress for a week or two without changing. When she does change her dress, she wears that one for another week or two straight.

I've worked with her for several years, and this same pattern has persisted throughout that time.

She is single and makes a decent salary, so there's no excuse for having such a limited wardrobe. There are several of us who would like to bring it to her attention. Is there some tactful way to do this without offending her?

SICK OF THE SAME DRESS

DEAR SICK: If she's clean, and her dress is clean and tidy, because you and others are "sick of the same dress" is hardly a legitimate reason for her to buy more clothes. Even though she's single and makes a "decent" salary, outsiders can know nothing of her financial obligations.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my ex-wife. We were married for less than two years, never had any children, and then were divorced. That was 10 years ago, but she is still calling herself "Mrs. Sidney Feinbohm."

It is causing a lot of confusion because I am married again, and my wife is constantly being confused with the ex-Mrs. Sidney Feinbohm. To make matters worse, my ex-wife and my present wife have charge accounts at many of the same stores, and my wife gets bills that should have gone to the other Mrs. Feinbohm.

Is there any way I can force my ex-wife to quit using my name and take her maiden name back? She has still not remarried.

ONE WIFE TOO MANY

DEAR ONE: There can be only ONE "Mrs. Sidney Feinbohm" at a time. After your divorce, your ex-wife became "Mrs. her first name Feinbohm." If she isn't aware of this, have your lawyer inform her officially in a letter.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to DOGGONE MAD, who objected to the neighbor's dog doing its dirty tricks on his lawn: In order to discourage dogs from coming over on your property, just sprinkle a package of mothballs on the area that the dog has chosen for its dirty tricks.

One year our front yard looked like a cow pasture. Then a friend told me about the mothball remedy. I tried it, and it worked!

McLOUD, OKLA.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Polly's pointers

In a sticky situation

DEAR POLLY—I would like to put new appliques in the bottom of my bathtub. After much pulling and struggling I finally got the old ones off but cannot remove the marks they left. I have tried cleansers, gasoline, razor blade, etc. but still the marks persist. I wonder if any of the readers have solved this problem —MRS. R.O.M.

CRAMER

DEAR MRS. R.O.M.—Perhaps one of the following letters from our readers will be of some help.—POLLY.

DEAR POLLY—To remove the stubborn sticky substance left from price stickers, etc. do not scrape and possibly scratch the surface. Just squirt with lighter fluid and it will wipe right off with a facial tissue or paper towel.—MRS. F.W.S.

DEAR POLLY—When purchasing a new car there is always a price sticker on the side rear window and I have a simple way to remove this. Wet a paper towel until dripping and place over the sticker. Over the towel put two layers of plastic wrap and rub until they fit smooth on the window. Leave overnight and the next morning grab one corner and peel off in one piece. Save the price list for your records.—MRS. E.R.N.

DEAR POLLY — and Mrs. E.S. — A quick and easy way to remove labels from cans is to use a seam ripper such as most women keep in their sewing kits. Place the point under the bottom edge and slide upward. Do this as near the label seam as possible so you do not cut into the coupon. — VICKI

DEAR POLLY — When using a paper shopping bag with handles put a large grocery bag inside to double the bag's strength. This is especially good when children tote things back and forth to school. — M.J.M.

DEAR POLLY — Save empty shaker jars from seasonings and use when dusting flour in your cake pans or for sprinkling fillings for pastry.

To add something different to a non-iced cake sprinkle a mixture of one part cinnamon to two parts sugar on the greased pans instead of flour. — KAREN

DEAR POLLY — Do tell Wanda that I make beautiful place mats with old greeting cards. I cut a 12-inch-wide piece of self adhesive plastic and place the cards on this plastic. Never overlap them. Placing in odd shapes makes them more attractive. Cover with clear self adhesive plastic cut a bit larger than the place mat so about one-half inch can be brought to the back side of the mat. I use such mats every day. Christmas cards make most attractive mats to use during the holidays. — VIOLA

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column.

These unidentified golfers tee off on the number 10, par four hole at Hickory Hill Country Club during the Labor Day Scotch Foursome which was just a part of the many activities marking the end of summer.

Mrs. Linda Jordan tends the flag for husband, Kenny, who sinks a putt to put his team ten under par (62) to win the Labor Day tournament.

Swimmers and sun-bathers enjoyed the final day before the pool is closed for the winter.

Last Fling Of Summer

Like many area residents, members of Hickory Hill Golf and Country Club enjoyed the last summer fling with an entire day of activities on Labor Day.

Golf, tennis, football, volleyball, swimming or just sitting under a shade tree - there was something for each and everyone.

Beginning with a breakfast for the golfers at 8:30 a.m., there was a full day of activities. Immediately following the breakfast 92 golfers teed-off for the mixed Scotch Foursome tournament, which was won by Kenny and Linda Jordan and Jerry and Vicky Hendricks who shot a 10 under par 62.

Many youngsters got their exercise with a game of touch football and volleyball.

And there were those who preferred a day of swimming or just relaxing around the pool.

Labor Day officially closes the season to summer activities and reminds us that fall is not far away. This family fun day was apparently a huge success which ended with a cookout for everyone.

Mabel's Little Puppets--A Tradition

By Marlene Benson

As Mrs. Annie Lois Grant of the Davie County Hospital Auxiliary, assisted Mrs. Linda Dull with the boxing of hand-puppets made by Mrs. Dull's mother-in-law, the late Mrs. Mabel Dull, it was a sad -- yet joyous occasion.

These little puttets played a big role in the life of Mabel Dull, a very devoted auxiliary member. For years, Mabel has made them for the auxiliary to give to each child admitted to Davie Hospital.

The puppets were almost made into real little people by the special touch of the talented Mrs. Dull. She took a great deal of pride with each of every puppet and no two were ever exactly alike. Careful not to soil or wrinkle them before the little patients received them, Mrs. Dull kept them neatly on a bed until she boxed them for the auxiliary. When she died a few weeks ago, there was a bed full of the attractive little puppets, ready for use by the Hospital Auxiliary.

There were also a few other little animals and trinkets in her home like those she would make to be sold on the auxiliary cart. Her devotion to the Hospital Auxiliary was evident in that she contributed over 250 different items, in addition to the endless hours she so freely gave.

During special times of the year, such as Eater, Mabel made each patient a personal crocheted Easter basket as a tray favor ... and at Christmas, she would make a holly red and green felt napkin ring.

Mabel enjoyed brightening the day of the little patients with her hand-made puppets and although she is no longer with the auxiliary, her contributions will not soon be forgotten. The last supply of puppets have been picked up by the auxiliary and will be used as they have in years past and the tradition of Mabel's little puppets will be carried on. Other volunteers will continue to make them, but whether they will share the same enthusiasm remains to be seen ... and Mabel will always be remembered by the staff of Davie Hospital and the auxiliary members for her generous contributions over the years.

Puppets!

Two-Day Sportsman Drag Event This Week

Mike Boyles of Rural Hall, making an appearance for the first time in several races in his familiar "Charlie Brown" Chevy, captured the super-stock event at Farmington Dragway last Friday night. Boyles defeated one of the track's leading money winners this season, Kenny Melton of Hillsville, Va. to collect $200.00. Melton was in a Camaro and picked up $100.00 Boyles had posted a number of victories in the "Charlie Brown" Chevy but recently had not been driving it since he was driving temporarily for another team. Steve Johnson of Winston Salem was top super-stock qualifier with an elapsed time of 7:51 seconds in his Chevy sitting right on the national record. Johnson however went out in early rounds before he got to the finals.

The pro-modified division victory went to Darrell Gaither of Winston Salem when he put down Don Plemmons of Clemmons to pick up $100.00. David Hines of Winston Salem won the "B" bracket ET race when he defeated David Boggs of Farmington. The "C" bracket ET win went to Tommy Byrrows of King for his thrid straight Farmington victory when he defeated Frank Moore of Greensboro. Ninety-two cars were entered.

Track officals announced that a two-day sportsman drag event will take at Farmington on Sept. 8 and 9th. Included on the entry list are the hot rail dragsters and the "BB" Funny Cars, some of which competed in the IHRA National Title Series race there rencently. Current IHRA Pro-Comp leader Butch Osmon of Leavittsburg, Ohio, along with Ray Weaver of Seville, Ohio, Butch Kernodle of Virginia Beach, Va. in a Funny Car and Bunny Brukett, well known female Funny car star are already entered.

Jimmy R. Plummer Serving With Navy

Navy Boiler Technician Fireman Apprentice Jimmy R. Plummer, son of Betty S. and Frank L. Plummer of Route 450 B, Mocksville, N.C., has completed the Basic Boiler Technician Course.

During the course at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, students received instruction in the use of hand tools, the operation and maintenance of shipboard pumps, and the operation of boilers and other engineering machinery. In addition, they were introduced to the types of engineering duty watches that Boiler Technicians stand aboard ships.

He joined the Navy in January, 1978.

Volunteer Tutors Are Sought For Laubach Reading Program

Adults, teacher, former teachers and high school students are needed as volunteer tutors to attend a Laubach Reading Workshop in Statesville next week, September 12, 13, 14 at Monticello Baptist Church at 7:00 p.m. Mrs. Carolina Bentley will be the teacher.

Aubrey Walker, who is heading the program of volunteer tutors to assist youngsters in reading skills, said those trained in this workshop should plan to devote approximately two hours per week inhelping youngsters in the lower elementary grades in reading skills.

Some will be working in the local schools while others may elect to work in some other convenient setting.

This schedule will provide the required 10 hours necessary to complete the course and to qualify each one participating for a certificate. Additional information can be secure by contact Aubrey Walker at his office, 873-4372 or at home, 873-4067.

Davie Meets Trinity Here Friday Night In Conference Game

Davie County defeated West Davidson, 20-6, at the Davie High Stadium last Friday night in a non-conference high school football game. It was the season opener for both teams.

The War Eagles tallied only 137 yards in total offense, but the defense held West Davidson to 104.

The Green Dragons took first blood in the battle when Coleman David scored on a 37-yard pass play.

Davie County roared back to score twice in the first quarter, though, and the War Eagles, never lost the lead. Brent Burton scored on a 6-yard run and Steve Fleming later returned a punt 80 yards for the second touchdown.

Scott Pratt scored the War Eagles' final touchdown on a six-yard run in the final period. Lonnie Wilson then crossed the foal line on the two-point cinversion.

Davie County was charged with 100 yards in penalties. West Davidson was penalized 20 yards.

Davie again plays at home this Friday night at 8 p.m. against North Piedmont Conference opponent Trinity which lost 14-8 in its contest with Ledford last Friday.

Coach Kennedy Has Mixed Emotions Over Win

Doug Fowler
..."big plays on defense"

Brent Burton
..."played well both ways"

Mike Walton
..."good overall game"

Steve Fleming
..."outstanding game"

By Doug Livengood

Joey Kennedy, head varsity football coach at Davie County High School, had mixed emotions after his team's win over West Davidson last Friday.

On the one hand, the Davie coach expressed his pleasure with what he termed "the fact that we did go after them (West Davidson) in terms of hitting, with Kenny Moore and Mike Walton and some of the other defensive players getting in some good sticks."

Kennedy added that he and the other Davie Coaches "were pleased with our punt return game and the fact that we came from behind in the game to eventually dominate the game and win it."

However, Kennedy noted on the other hand that he was displeased with his team's performance Friday night "in so far as we had two fumbles, an interception, a blocked kick and far, far too many penalties and missed assignments."

In addition, he commented that he was displeased "because it took our offense too long to get untracked and we made too many mistakes on offense which cost us a couple of scores."

Some of the players whom Kennedy mentioned as having played a good game against West Davidson were Steve Fleming, who caught three passes and scored a touchdown on a punt return; Doug Fowler, "who made some big plays on defense"; Mike Walton, "who had a good overall game on both offense and defense"; and Brent Burton, "who played well both ways and had one interception and scored one touchdown."

Davie had gone into the West Davidson game with a host of injuries. But Kennedy reported that the Davie players "did not pick up too many injuries in the game, just a couple of little minor bruises and bumps."

Coach Kennedy did say Monday afternoon after the game that his all-state offensive tackle candidate, Rex Allen, would miss Friday night's game with Trinity because he is still recuperating from a preseason injury.

And Kennedy reported that running back and linebacker John Gardner would miss the entire season because of surgery required on his knee last week as the result of a preseason injury.

Regarding this week's battle with Trinity, Kennedy said that Trinity "has also had its share of injury problems this year." However, "we expect Trinity to be much healthier than when they lost to Ledford last week," he added.

"Trinity has two outstanding runners in Creasey and Rush. Creasey has been injured, but we expect him to play against us," said the Davie coach.

"Besides having a good passing and running game Trinity also has a good, steady defense led by their defensive end Ricks and their defensive tackle Stepp," concluded Kennedy.

Little League Football Teachers Night Is Sept. 9

The Davie County Little League Football Association will observe their first Teacher Appreciation Night, Saturday, September 9th at 6 p.m. at the Davie High School Football field.

Teachers will be admitted free on Saturday night and an award will be presented to the school with the highest percentage of teachers in attendance.

This year the William R. Davie players will be playing with the Oilers since they did not have enough players to field a team of their own.

Since there are only five teams this year, there will be only two games played each Saturday night. The first game will begin at 6 p.m and the second at 7 p.m. In the first game the Cowboys will play theTrojans; and the Oilers will play the Chiefs at 7 p.m.

Davie Girls Volleyball Team Practices For Opener

The Davie High School girl's volleyball team began practice last week with 22 girls trying out for the team's opener September 14 at Trinity.

Only four teams will compete in the North Piedmont Conference because of a lack of interest according to Davie coach Ailene Steelman. The four teams are Davie, Asheboro, Thomasville and Trinity. Last year Davie finished third in the conference with a 7-8 record.

The lack of interest hurts the Davie team because the girls have very little knowledgeof vollyeball when they reach high school, Steelman said. "We need to have more training techniques taught in the elementary grades," Steelman added.

Deanna Thomas, the NPC Most Valuable Player in 1977, and Mary Gardner should play key roles on this years team Steelman said. She also said that the team was hurt by the loss of Wanda Beal and Pete Wengler.

Of the 22 girls who began practice, five were returning lettermen and nine were freshmen.

Sept. 12, at Thomasville; Asheboro vs Trinity, Trinity vs Thomasville, and Thomasville vs Asheboro; Sept. 14, at Trinity-Davie vs Asheboro, Davie vs Trinity, and Trinity vs Asheboro; Sept. 19, at Asheboro-Davie vs Thomasville, Davie vs Asheboro, and Asheboro vs Thomasville; Sept. 21 at Davie-Trinity vs Thomasville, Trinity vs Davie, and Davie vs Thomasville; Sept. 26 at Thomasville-Trinity vs Asheboro, Thomasville vs Trinity, and Asheboro vs Thomasville; Sept. 28 at Trinity-Asheboro vs Davie, Trinity vs Davie, and Asheboro vs Trinity.

Oct. 3 at Asheboro-Thomasville vs Davie, Asheboro vs Davie, and Thomasville vs Asheboro; Oct. 5 at Davie-Thomasville vs Trinity, Davie vs Trinity; and Thomasville vs Davie; Oct. 10 at Thomasville-Davie vsAsheboro, Davie vs Thomasville, and Asheboro vs Thomasville; Oct. 11 at Asheboro-Trinity vs Asheboro; Oct. 12 at Thomasville-Davie vs Trinity and Trinity vs Thomasville. All games start at 4 p.m.

WFDU The DEACONS by Pat Gainey

"Looking for Mr. Goodbar" has been making the rounds of both theaters and book stores for the past year. Before the 1978 football season at Wake Forest University winds to an end in November new head coach John Mackovic may pen a new book or movie script entitled "Looking for Mr. Goodpasser".

The fortunes of Wake football in the season ahead hinges on Mackovic finding the right individual to fill the quarterback assignment of opening the Deacon attack. This Saturday night he'll get a look at several possible main characters when he makes his coaching debut against the Virginia Cavaliers at Groves Stadium.

When introduced to the Deacon faithful for the first time last season, it was at halftime of the Wake-UNC basketball game at Memorial Coliseum and he said, "We're going to have an exciting team to watch next year. We'll probably pass as much as these two teams shot the ball in the first half." That sent everyone scurrying to the halftime stat sheet to see that Wake and Carolina had shot 66 times prior to intermission.

Now, there's no way Young John will literally be held to that statement but there's one thing for sure in the Deacon camp as the opener looms, the Deacons will throw the ball in 1978, and they'll throw the ball often, from anywhere on the field, at any time, in any situation. Thus, the need for Mr. Goodpasser.

The frontrunner enterning fall workouts was junior Ken Daly who still holds down th starting slot entering the Virginia game. But he's been challenged by no fewer than six other candidates, four of those are freshmen, untested to the fire of collegiate football, but each possessing strong arms. Daly entered Wake Forest as a pass-oriented quarterback from Cherry Hill, N.J..saw little action as a freshman, broke his ankle and was redshirted his sophomore season. Last year he saw little action again with Mike McGlamry holding the top spot with Bob Hely seeing most of the back-up duties.

But this past spring Daly emerged under the guidance of Mackovic to complete 19 of 28 attempts for 186 yards in the spring game. Unitl he is beaten at the spot it is his as long as he gets the job done. The quarterback spot is critical to every team. From that position must emerge a team leader, a younster who can take command and do the critical things needed to move an offense. With the Mackovic System the sport is even more citical because of the reliance on the veer and the emphasis on throwing the ball.

There should be few problems for the Deacons at wide receiver with a bevy of speedsters including Eddie Wright and Kenny Duckett plus the new utilization of James McDougald as a receiver out of the backfield. Syd Kitson will hold down the starting tight end spot for the Deacons entering the season. With good size 6-5, 230 pounds, he has good hands and will be a factor.

What happens if Daly falters? Freshmen Landon King, David Kass, and David Webber stand in the wings along with upperclassmen Jay Venuto and Jim Cappon. Take Daly and Blend all the physical characteristics and abilities with the remaining quarterback corps and you could have one of the greatest quarterbacks in collegiate football history. Each has strong points and each has weaknesses.

Who is "Mr. Goodpasser"? Right now he looks like Ken Daly. He must be able to throw often and accurately. He must be able to run the deceptive veer. He must have the savvy ability to read defenses. And he must lead the way John Mackovic believes a club must be led, by action and word, and with the all-important positive mental approach Mackovic stresses.

He's there somewhere and Mackovic and Deacon fans will find out Saturday night against Virginia's Cavaliers.

FISH TALES BILL ROBERTSON KURE PIER

Andrew "Punky" Kure,Jr. has spent his entire life either in ,on,under,or over salt water. A grandson of the original founder of Kure Beach, Hans Kure,Punky can't remember when he wasn't able to swim.

He happened on a haul seine operation once by accident and earned his first money for an outboard motor. He and his father built his first boat, an eight footer. His motor was an ELTO, a powerful ½ horsepower,about the size of a man's fist.With Kure Pier to fish and dive from and the boat and motor to play with, his childhood was one huge wet and happy splash.

Joining the Marines in World War II, he was assigned to the wing detachment on a light cruiser,again staying near salt water. After the war, he used the G.I. bill to learn flying.

Today ,Kure is a 20 year veteran pilot with over 30,000 flying hours as a commercial fish spotter,logging 1425 hours last season alone.

Fish spotters leave before day each morning, flying in and around until they spot fish, leading their ships to the location, and directing the netting of the fish by radio and loudspeaker.While the ships mop up the operation, the spotter returns to shore, refuels, takes a short break, and back to sea again.He spends 10 to 14 hours in the air each working day, claiming "sundown is the best part of the day."

They fish for menhaden, a non-eulible fish rich in oil,an oil that is used in over 200 products, including cosmetics.

An experienced scuba diver with hundreds of hours underwater, Kure has successfully made the sea both work and play. He has a vast knowledge of wrecks along the coast.

In reply to some questions, he said: "Fish are easily spotted from the air, compared to surface spotting. We find the school and bring our boats to it. We then direct the purse seine boats in circling the school. In 20 years, I've spotted thousands of schools. The largest was in the 50's off core banks. When first seen, the school was no larger than a car top. We knew it was deep and tightly knit. In 138 fathoms of water, they were kicking mud off the bottom. They eventually spread to a school roughly a mile in diameter. Forty boats fished sic days in the one school with no change in size. Fifteen of these forty boats caught 26 million in the first two days. Multiply it out and you"ll get some idea of the vast quantities in the sea."

"There are just as many fish today as there ever was," he continued. "Cautches are down per person for reasons we have previously discussed. Catches are down in certain areas because of geographical changes. oour lower bay is a good example. When I was a kid, there was 35 feet of water in the "Cribbin'". Today, you have to tilt the outboard to get through it. It's simple. For the past 30 years, the bay has been filling up and is no longer a fish feeding or breeding ground.

"The most beautiful sight? Esthetically I'd have to say the morning sunrise. Nothing could compare with it . Otherwise, it's seeing the bottom of the ocean in a hundred feet of water. It happens occasionally. Seeing the many wrecks is fantastic and mind boggling. As you know, there has been a major shipwreck off the north Carolina coast every 60 days for over 400 years. Sometimes the water is so clear, I can even spot lobster pots, see torpedo tears in the side of ships, and spot individual fish, all in minute detail, at 800 feet. It's an unbelieveable, giant , live Marineland."

Fisherman, sailor, pilot, diver "Pinky" Kure surprised me with his answer to my next question; "What are your most pleasant fishing memories?"

He answered: "The 3-4 years you and I helled around fishing together, experimenting, diving, playing with no pressures."

By golly, they are mine too.

Andrew "Punky" Kure . . . . . my friend.

Wilkins Hospital Pharmacy Plans October 1st Opening

Wilkins Hospital Pharmacy located at the intersection of Hospital and Gwyn Streets, is slated to open for business October 1.

Owned and operated by Bill Collette of Mocksville, the 1,000 square feet facility will feature a fully stocked, full service pharmaceutical department with a traditional counter for walk in service and a drive-through window.

The added feature of a drive-through window is a new trend in prescription service for Davie allowing people the convvenience of remaining in their car while their prescription is being filled.

The store will also feature a snack bar, patient aids, greeting cards and magazines.

Located beside the Davie Family Medical Center, Collette, owner and pharmacist cited "our main priority will be to offer convenience, speedy service, and discount prices to the majority of sick people in Davie."

"We offer a complete pharmaceutical service with the utmost ease of convenience."

Collette is also the owner of Wilkins Drug Store, Mocksville's oldest drug store, located on Court Square.

Bill Collette, manager of Wilkins Hospital Pharmacy.

The new facility which will be open during office hours of the Davie Family Medical Center only, will refer all after hour prescription service to the main store.

Collette's father, Roy Collette who was owner and manager of the store until May of 1978 when sold to his son, will manage the main store where services will not be altered by the opening of the new facility.

The lot was purchased by Roy Collette in 1953 as the projected site of a drug store.

"Our main purpose is to seve the public," said Bill Collette, "and through our new location I feel that we will be able to better serve the people through the new store's convenience and fully equipped facilities..

Pipe Smoking Contest To Be Featured At Dixie Classic

Smokers throughout the world are invited to enter the 1978 Pipe Smoking Contest at the Dixie ClassicFairon October 5. Each contestant must furnish his or her own pipe.

The winner will be the contestant who keeps smoking the longest. Each person will be supplied with an equal portion of tobacco and two large matches. If a contestant's pipe goes out, he will be eilminated from the contest.

The Grand Champion smoker will be awarded a five-piece case of Dr. Grabow Starfire pipes, plus a pipe rach and humidor from R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. The Reserve champion will receive a two-piece case of pipes and an engraved pipe lighter.

The Winston-Salem Firemen's String Band will entertain throughout the contest. A cash award of $25 will be made to the volunteer fire department from the winner's fire district. If the champion lives in the city of Winston-Salem, the Winston-Salem Fireman's Retirement Fund will receive the cash award. If the winner lives in any other municipality, the paid fire department in that area will receive the award.

Full details and rules are available in the Fair's catalog, along with an entry blank. All entries must be in the Fair office by Septmeber 10. Interested persons should contact the Fair at P.O. Box 7525, Winston-Salem 27109--or call 919-727-2236. Catalogs are also available from the Forsyth County Public Library and its branches.

Jim Wall Enters UNC School Of Medicine

Jim Wall of Mocksville has begun his first year of training at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill School of Medicine.

Wall is one of 160 students enrolled in the four year program leading to a doctor of medicine (M.D.) degree.

Prior to entering the M.D. program, Wall received B.S. degree from Davidson College, Davidson, N.C. He is a graduate of Davie County High in Mocksville, N.C.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Wall of Mocksville and is married to Kay W. Wall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred P. Wooten.

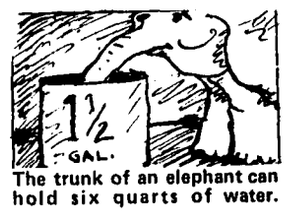

Elizabeth Taylor To Attend Reception For Roger Austin

Former Governor and Mrs. James E. Holshouser will host a reception for Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor Warner and Mr. and Mrs. Roger L. Austin at the Pinehurst Country Club, September 23, 1978 at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets for the affair are $100 per couple and the proceeds will go to the Austin for Congress Committee, according to George Little, Southern Pines Insurance Executive and Chairman of the event. Tickets can be purchased by sending a check made payable to Austin for Congress Committee, P.O. Box 493, Monroe, N.C. 28110 or George Little, Box 629, Southern Pines, North Carolina 28387.

"The tentative plans are for Mrs. Warner to arrive in Charlotte by private jet for a press conference, then fly on to Southern Pines for another press conference before the reception," Little said.

This event is the first in a series of fund-raising events to raise money for Roger Austin, Candidate for Congress in North Carolina's Eighth District.

Mrs. Ruby Markland To Head Mental Health Campaign

Mrs. Ruby Markland of Advance has been named Mental Health Bellringer chairperson for the October 1978 campaign, announced Ludie H. White, President of the Mental Health Association in North Carolina.

"The Mental Health Association is the largest citizens' voluntary advocacy organization in the United States fighting mental illness and promoting mental health," said Mrs. White.

Since the organization is non-profit and non-govermental, its entire support must come from contributions such as those to be collected in October.

Improve attitudes toward mental illness and the mentally ill through public education;

Improve services for the mentally ill; and

Work for the prevention of mental and emotional illness and the promotion of mental health.

Through the social action and public education programs the Association helps to assure that appropriate funds are available to support public mental health services in North Carolina, and that laws are passed to protect the rights of thementally ill person to humane and dignified treatment.

Older North Carolinians Face Problem With Eating

By Kathy Cunningham

Of the 414,000 people over age 65 living in North Carolina, a majority may not be getting the right nutrients, or adequate amounts of nutrients.

"Many older people just lose interest in eating," says nutritionist Mildred Kaufman of theUniversity of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "When their families leave home or they lose a spouse, suddenly they find themselves cooking for one.'

Kaufman, an associate professor of nutrition in the UNC-CH School of Public Health, says that because many older people have less energy, they don't want to be bothered with cooking or they can't make it to the store to buy food because of the difficulty of transportation.

Plus, she adds, supermarkets rarely make packages for only one person.

Besides living alone, older persons also can lose their appetite because of changing taste buds, dental changes, emotional problems and diets prescribed by doctors.

But even if an elderly person is hungry and diet-conscious, he may still have a hard time meeting his nutritional needs.

One reason why it's so difficult is because no one knows what the needs of the elderely really are, says John Anderson, professor and acting chairman of nutrition at the UNC-CH School of Public Health.

"Recommended dietry allowance charts show that the same nutrients are needed for persons age 51 and above as those needed for younger adults," Anderson says.

But there is reason to believe, he adds, that older people may need different amounts of nutrients than younger people. For instance, older people have higher incidences of osteoporosis (deterioration of bone mineral), which indicates that they probably need more calcium, he says.

"But we can only make 'guesstimates' about the nutritional needs of the elderly because so very few studies have been conducged," he says.

This lack of data only adds to the age-old problem of feeding the aged.

Meal Sites

Under Title VII of the 1965 Older American's Act 31 meal sites are set up across North Carolina to bring older people together and to feed them one hot meal per day The law requires that the e meal provide one-third of the person's daily nutrient requirements.

"Congregate meal sites are very popular," Anderson says. "It's a place where people can socialize and even get some health care." The sites are located in community buildings, churches, senior citizens centers and other facilities.

"North Carolina is so advanced in implementing the facilities it has across the state, but it is low-base in terms of availability of money and counseling," he adds. According to the Division of Aging, the number of elderly people eligible for the program far exceeds the available funds.

This summer the School of Public Health sponsored a continuing education conference on nutrition and the older adult that brought together nutritionists from the Southeast and guest speakers to discuss these problems and possible solutions.

Susan Schiffman, associate professor of medical psychology at Duke University, told the conference that along with old age comes a decline in the senses of taste and smell. This comes from the beginning of the deterioration process in the brain. The olfactory cortex is the first part of the brain to deteriorate, Schiffman said, and this is where the senses are located.

A possible solution to the problem, she said, is using odorants in the preparation of foods for the elderly. Schiffman is already experimenting with the use of odorants in a Methodist retirement home in Durham andhas found an increase in the preference of food.

After adding ordorants, food may be too strong for the average-age person to eat, but for an elderly person it make him feel like he can eat again, Schiffman said. "And they do prefer those things they taste and smell better," she added.

Unlike the popular myth, food habits can be changed late in life,said Dr. Neige Todhunter, former dean of home economics at the University of Alabama and now visiting professor at Vanderbuilt University.

"It's not too late at 60, 70 or 80 years of age to begin good nutritional habits," she said.

Many older people, apparently dazed or confused, can be restored to normal by diet and care, she said. And regular meals of nutritional value in pleasant surroundings, she stressed, an do much to help these people.

"Unless there is caring and maintenance of dignity of that person, none of this is going to work," she said. "Caring is essential in everything associated with food ."

Saundra Veach Joins The U.S. Air Force

Miss Saundra G. Veach, daughter of Mrs. Gail Long, of Rt. 7, Mocksville, has enlisted in the U.S. Air Force.

Airman Veach, a 1978 graduate of Davie County High School, joined under the Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program (DEP), which allows her to accumulate time in the Air Force Reserve until she enters active duty on January 24, 1979.

Sergeant Gary Hubbard, Air Force recruiter in Salisbury, N.C., stated that Airman Veach successfully completed a series of tests which qualified her for the Morse Systems Operator field of training.

Local Students On Dean's List

144 students have been named to the summer Dean's List at Davidson County Community College.

The recognition goes to students who are enrolled full-time and have a "B" or better on the courses they attempted.

From the Mocksville area are: J. Caldwell, Billy Richardson and Shirley Richardson.

Deadline Is Sept. 10 For Entering Exhibits In Dixie Classic Fair

The deadline for entering an exhibit in the Dixie Classic Fair is fast approaching, according to W.B. (Bill(Austin, Jr., Fair manager.

"September 10, the deadline, will be here before we know it," he said. "All persons planning to enter an exhibit category should have their completed entry blank in our hands by that time."

He further reported that over $60,000 will be awarded to prize winners, plus ribbons, trophies and plaques.

The Fair catalog giving rules for each exhibit category and containing an entry blank is available from the Fair office, 422 27th Street, P.O. Box 7525,Winston-Salem 27109--or by calling 919-727-2236. The Fair will open Friday, September 29 and run through Saturday, October 7 at the Fairgrounds in Winston-Salem.

Davie Gets New Driver's License Examiner

Doris Noble of Route 1, Cleveland, has been named Davie County Driver's License Examiner by the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles.

Assuming duties last week in her office located in the County Office Building on South Main Street, she replaced Wade B. Gentry who has served as examiner for 25 years. Gentry was transferred by the department to the Lexington based office last month.

Ms. Noble commented that "I will not try to take the place of Gentry, a man who was well thought of in this area for his service, but I will try to serve the people to the best of my ability, showing fairness to all."

The office is open Wednesday through Friday, from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00p.m. Ms. Noble will work in the Salisbury office on Mondays and Tuesdays.

PICTURES OF SILVER

The old Town Crier is no more. Oh, there may be one or two around as relics of the past – but man gets his news differently these days.

Sometimes we all feel that with the news so bad, we could do without the entire process. That's why when we get some good news, we hurry out to tell someone else.

"Hear ye! Hear ye!" the old Town Crier called out to his neighbors. Over and over again God has used the exact same words throughout the Bible: The good news of His mercy – His forgiveness – His eternal love.

"Hear Ye! Hear Ye!"

The funeral will be conducted Thursday, 11 a.m., at the Wesley Chapel United Methodist Church by the Rev. Gene Cloer. Burial will follow in the church cemetery.

The family requests that all memorials be made to the Wesley Chapel United Methodist Church Cemetery Fund.

Mrs. Jones was born in Davie County, October 8, 1908, to the late Charlie and Connie Spach Dull. She was a member of the Wesley Chapel United Methodist Church. Her husband preceeded her death February 11, 1978.

Survivors include: two sisters, Mrs. Nellie Boger, Mocksville and Mrs. Howell Reavis, Yadkinville; one brother, Luther Dull, Route 5, Mocksville, N.C.

You And Your Pet

Most cat owners are very pleased to see their pets regularly using the litter box. But those with male cats should know that too many visits can be a sign of a serious urinary tract obstruction.

The problem begins when various factors, not all identified, cause minerals in the diet to form sand-like particles or stones in the cat's bladder. In female cats, the particles easily pass through the uretha (the outlet from the bladder) and are eliminated with the urine. In males, where the bladder outlet is more narrow, the mineral deposits are often trapped. Sometimes enough particles will collect to completely block the urethra and stop the passage of urine.

The signs of discomfort are fairly typical and an alert owner should suspect the nature of the problem. At first the cat will make frequent trips to the litterbox or outside in response to bladder pressure. Urination may still be possible, but the frequent trips are a clue that trouble is brewing.

As the condition progresses, the cat will become more uncomfortable and strain to urinate for several minutes at a time. Little or no urine will pass and the owner may interpret the problem as constipation. Unfortunately laxatives offer no help, and only waste valuable treatment time. As the pressure increases, the cat becomes very restless and may cry.

Complete urinary blockage is an emergency situation. Unless the blockage is removed, the animal will die of uremic poisoning as toxic wastes normally excreted in the urine accumulate in the bloodstream. At this point, professional assistance is desperately needed. Your veterinarian will anesthetize the cat, drain the bladder, and remove the obstruction.

In addition to treating the condition, your veterinarian will discuss with you steps to help prevent future urethral blockage. They include:

-Increasing your cat's water intake so that minerals are flushed from the bladder before stones form. If your cat refuses to drink extra water, the addition of ¼ teaspoon of salt to its food each day will increase water intake noticeably. Of course a bowl of fresh water should always be available.

-Revising your cat's diet. Foods with a high ash or magnesium content (those containing whole fish or ground bone) seem to aggravate the condition. Moist canned food should be fed in preference to dry food, which contains only about 10 percent water or semi-moist food (25 percent water).

Very little is known about the exact cause of urinary blockage. High levels of minerals in the diet, previous urinary tract infections and a newly discovered virus seen in the bladder of afflicted cats may all contribute too the problem.

If your pet's condition does not respond to dietary or drug treatment, surgical correction of the urethra may be required.

Railroads

The U.S. Department of Transportation's Federal Railroad Administration predicts that 14.8 milllion people will ride the upgrade Northeast Railroad Corridor when the project is complete around 1981. This is an increase of 53 percent over the 1977 ridership along the corridor.

Clouds Cause Light Turnout At Doc Watson Concert At Tanglewood

About 500 people waited through an afternoon of rain clouds and two warm-up bands for Arthel "Doc" Watson to take the stage at Tanglewood Park last Saturday.

Watson, generally recognized to be the best flatpicker in the U.S.A. and probably the world, was preceded by "Southwind" a folk band part of whose members are players in the Piedmont Repretory Company, for whose benefit the concert was given. Also playing before Doc were the Younger Brothers, a local band which appears at area nightclubs.

When Doc did begin to play at about 5:30 p.m. the crowd was ready and literally moved to within inches of the stage, so that they could hear a good opportunity to hear songs like "Black Mountain Rag", "Southbound Railroad Train" and of course "Tennesee Stud". He finished with the classic "Will The Circle Be Unbroken" after which the crowd came to it's feet with a long standing ovation.

Although the turnout to the concert was low, a spokesman for the theatre group said that it would continue it's fund raising efforts

Merle Watson Demonstrates his fine fingerpicking style.

Doc Watson, although blind since birth has been playing the guitar since he was about eight years old,and knows over 800 songs by heart.

"Cotton To The Gin"

I remember one morning at the breakfast table, Dad announced what I'd waited for all fall, We'd get everything ready, and tomorrow we'd carry a load of cotton off.

He'd been out to the store the night before, and was talking with Frank Brown, Frank said, "his cotton had brough a pretty fair price, he sold his, for two cents a pound."

All the sacks had to be got from the smoke house, where it had been stored, to keep it from getting wet, then it was weighed, an each bag was packed as tight as you could get.

Among those sacks was what I'd picked, I could tell which was mine, I'd tied it with a piece of red cloth, it weighed thirty pounds And I'd get all the money from it, I'd be pretty rich I thought.

Dad had to put some new shoes on old Dan, and grease the wagon wheels, it was nearly ten miles to the nearest gin, it was an all day trip, so we tried to take along what we'd need.

The next morning at daybreak, we were all loaded and ready to move, Mama sat up front with Dad on the wagon seat, I rode on the back with the cotton, and could sit any place I'd choose.

'We'd just got up the road around the curve, when I looked back, and following us was old Tag, why he'd het killed for sure if he got out on the big road. I yelled for him to "go back" but he wouldn't pay no mind. I hollared for Dad to "whoa".

I knowed if anything happened to that old hound, my brother would be plumb sick. So, I climbed down, and he took off like a streak of greased lightning, when I wacked him across the nose with a stick.

We made the trip without any trouble, the horses hooves made a clacking sound as they struck against the cement road.

But I guess I didn't notice much of anything, I was so filled with anticipation, of buying something from the store.

Me and Mama climbed down from the wagon, when we got to town Dad said, "he'd take the cotton on to the gin, while me and Mama shopped around."

I'll never forget the good smells that met me, when we walked in to Mr. Hendrick's doors, Fresh ground cotfee, apples, oranges and new overalls, I believe I could have spent the whole day in that store.

There were boxes of shoes stacked all the way tto the ceiling, hats, coats, canned goods, so many things you couldn't even see, a barrel nearly full of crackers and a big roll of cheese, but the counter with the bolts of cloth, was what captured me.

Then I saw it, a piece of pale blue organdy, was just what I had in mind, Made with a gathered skirt with a ruffle, and lace around the yoke. Mama said, "now a piece of this calicoa print would be better, that light color will show dirt, and have to be washed every time you wear it, you know."

She finally gave in, we got some thread to go with it and if I could just get a new pair of shoes, my outfit would be complete, but Mama said,"the shoes would have to wait," she wanted some gingham for an apron, some new side combs and ready sliced bread to eat."

Dad came in the store and he had a pleased look on his face, he handed me the seventy five cents my cotton had brought. He said he guessed h'd just buy him a new pair ot shoes cause his was wore plumb out, then I found out why he looked so happy, the cotton brough ½ cent a pound more than he'd thought.

We started to pay for what we'd bought, and the candy jars cought my eye. Five sticks of pepperment, 2 coconut suckers, and some lemon drops for granny. I tied my change in the corner of my handkerchief, and we were ready to ride.

As we started out the door, Mr. Hendrix made me feel like a queen. He said "Little lady, you're going to be a heart breaker, by the time you're sixteen."

We climbed in the wagon and headed for home. Then I asked Mama, "reckon we could take my new dress up to Aunt Jo's tomorrow, to see if she'll make it?" she said I don't know, we'll see.

I licked a few times on a sucker, then carefully stuck it back in the bag. I curled up on a pile of empty cotton sacks, and feeling quite content, quickly fell asleep.

Siberia

In the 18th century a Russian scientist declared, "Siberia will make Russia strong." His prediction appears to be coming true as the Soviet Union exploits that vast region's mineral riches. A pipeline is being laid 4,000 miles through Siberia to carry oil from the Tyumen fields to a refinery near Nakhodka on the coast, says the National Geographic Society's book "Journey Across Russia: The Soviet Union Today."

Emergency Medical Service Is Discussed For Rotarians

The Emergency Medical Service of Davie County was explained to members of the Mocksville Rotary Club on Tuesday.

Johnny Frye, assistant director of Davie Medical Services, introduced other members of the staff and explained the way the unit was organized to serve the emergency medical needs of the county. Frye has been a member of the Emergency Medical System for 7 years.

Other EMT's present for the Rotary luncheon included: Dale Blackwelder, Jim McCullough, Wayne Smith and Bobby West.

"Davie County is the only countyin the state with 100 percent emergency medical technicians", Wayne Smith told the Rotarians. He pointed out that to become an emergency medical technician required hours of special training and the passing of state test. "We are governed by regulations adopted by the state", said Smith.

Frye showed slides made locally of equuipment in use in Davie.

"In an emrgency situation call 634-5913. This will ring both at the hospital and at the sheriff's office. We have qualified personal on duty 24 hours a day", said Frye.

Robbery At Farmington

A breaking and entering and larceny was reported at the Farmington Exxon station last Thursday night or early Friday morning. The robbery was reported to the sheriff's department at 9:20 a.m., Friday.

Reported missing was $591.17 in cash and checks, and Free on valued at $15.

Lt. Robert Purvis and Deputy Mel Reynolds are investigating.

Fruit Exhibits Sought For Fair

Fruit growers throughout Northwest North Carolina and Southern Virginia are invited to enter their finest apples, pears, grapes, persimmons, nuts, and dried fruits in the Dixie Classic Fair competitions this fall. Banners and cash premiums will be awarded the winners in the many exhibit categories.

Of special interest will be Mel Kolbe's Decorated Apple Contest, named for the horticultural specialist at North Carolina State University. Kolbe is a long-time apple promoterand advisor to many apple growers.

In addition, the Winston-Salem Retail Merchants Association is sponsoring special awards in several categories, including a sweepstakes award to the county with the most points in the judging and one to the grower on the same basis.

Robbery Of Residence Reported At Pino

A coin collection, guns and a 19-inch protable television set, total value of approximately $1609, was reported stolen from the Calvin Trivette residence, Pino Road, last week.

The breaking and entering and larceny allegedly took place between 11 p.m. August 30th and 8 a.m., August 31st.

Capt. Richard Sharpe and Deputy Mel Reynolds are investigating.

Vehicles Collide

Two vehicles were involved in a mishap August 29, about 5:45 p.m. on Wilkesboro St. in Mocksville.

Involved was a 1963 Ford operated by James Roy Harris, 60, of Rt. 5, Mocksville and a 1974 Mazada operated by Russell Lynn Bettint, 26, of 519 Salisbury St., Mocksville.

Mocksville Policeman A.D. Adams said his investigation showed that Bettint was pulling out of a service station and did not see the Harris vehicle which was hit in the side.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:

We wish to express our deep appreciation to all the neighbors and friends of Margaret Malinda Daywalt, Route 1, Mocksville, N.C. for the many beautiful cards, gifts and visits during her prolonged illness. Whether these kind deeds were done through pity or through love, (the two are mighty akin) I fell that God had His hand in it, and they will surely be blessed by Him. I was totally un-aware of such a wonderful community still being in existence.

And, as acting power of attorney for Margaret, we too, were treated with kind consideration from the personnel in each business which we entered.

Also, the efficient manner and hospitality of Eaton's Funeral Home was far beyond our expectation.

With kind regards to all,

Most respectfully,
Golda Dayvault

Folk-Ways and Folk-Speech

By ROGERS WHITENER

After being subjected to two consecutive columns on the subject of outhouses, Folk-Ways readers may have determined that this columnist may have become a fixation victim.

If so, there are apparently others in the same condition if one may judge by the outhousiana--or should it be priva?--sent our way.

Postcards, sketches, poems, ballads and advertisements have appeared, most of them extolling the joys and comforts of the outdoor privy.

One interesting item came by way of Boone's Grant Hodges: a full-color display ad featuring an elaborate one-holer equipped with heater, rug, bookcase, TV, and radio and selling for the magnificant sum of $1895--or given free with the purchase of $10,000 worth of the company's specialized products.

Bud Mason, of Bristol, Virginia, who recently provided some interesting place name material for a column, sent us a copy of James Whitcomb Riley's "Passing of the Back-House," along with a 1969 Newsweek article about a pioneer sanitation engineer whose name was immortalized as a result of his creation: Crapper's Valveless Water-Waste Preventer.

Thomas Crapper, according to the article, lived in Victorian times and came to the rescue of the British Board of Trade by inventing the now familiar float-action device which made for a vast saving of water which had previously been lost through an antiquated plug-pull system.

Actually some of the early American indoor johns represented little improvement over the outdoor style, especially in modest housing areas.

I recall that when my family moved from rural McDowell County to the textile village of Spindale years ago, the bathroom was little more than an outhouse relocated.

True there was the addition of plumbing (froze in the winter), but the interior was as cramped and bleak as its country counterpart.

In addition, it was located at one end of the back porch so that the user had to face the weather of the day or season as he dashed along the 12 to 15 feet of open area to reach the sanctuary.

Once inside he shivered in the winter's chill or sweated in summer's heat.

But the dark was the worst of all. Having to leave the cheerful confines of hte kitchen at night and make one's way across the unlighted porch was a frightening experience for a child.

And once he reached the bathroom safely, there was still the fumbling search for the hanging cord which brought harsh but welcome light from the bare bulb overhead.

But for some even the primitive indoor john was a wonder not to be believed.

Cratis Williams tells the true story of an unmarried mountain man who had lived with relatives until the increased size of their family forced him to seek lodging with a brother who lived in a small town in the foothills.

The brother' according to Dr. Williams' bade him welcome' showed him his room' and indicated the location of the kitchen and the bathroom.

The mountain man stared at his brother in open-mouthed astonishment. "Do you mean to tell me that you eat and go to the privey in the same building!"

Readers are invited to send folk materials to FOLK-WAYS and FOLK-SPEECH, Box 376, Appalachian State Universaty, Boone, NC 28608.

Festival In The Park Opens September 19

The Fifteenth Annual Festival In The Park opens Tuesday, September 19th in Freedom Park. The Festival will bring together varying aspects of America's culture into a harmonious and fun-loving whole with features for the entire family.

Regional artists will display their talents and wares in over 80 tents and exhibits ranging from Handcrafted Jewelry to Soapstone Sculpture, String Art to Woodcarving, Scrim Shaw and Wooden Toys to Tin smithing and Beekeeping to Dool Houses and Blacksmithing. But arts and crafts are only a part of the Festival...There is also live entertainment each night with several performing groups on opening night (Tuesday), from Contemporary Jazz to Glenn Miller type music to Dixieland, on Wednesday night Loonis McGlohon's Trio is featured -PLUS-, Thursday night Arthur Smith and Air Nation Guard's "I Love America Cantata", Friday night the Strawberry Cloggers and The Tactical Air Command Band, plus Steel Drums and for Saturday night, Les Elgart and Orchestra -plus- and on Sunday afternoon, the UNC Wind Ensemble and UNC Jazz Lab Band and The Youth Symphony with a return performance of The Tactical Air Command Band at 7 p.m. to finish out the evening.

There is something for everyone at this year's Festival...The Festival In The Park...September 18 through 24...and admission is always FREE.

The first Ford automobile had to wait over an hour for its first test run, since it was built in a shed, and was wider than the shed door.

Advance News

A Cantata entitled "Jesus Lives" will be presented at the Methodist church Wednesday night September 13 at 7:30. The choirs from Advance and Mocks churches will sing in the Cantata. Henry Warren from Advance Baptist will be featured as a tenor soloist. Pianist will be Ronnie Smith from Green Meadows Baptist and Mrs. Ruth Latham at the organ. The Cantata marks the beginning of a series of revival services at Advance and Mocks churches, and will be followed by prayer services in the homes the remainder of the week.

Homecoming services will be held at Methodist church Sunday September 17. The Rev. John Hamilton will be the speaker at the 11 a.m. worship service. A picnic lunch will be in the grove at the noon hour. An afternoon song fest will feature singers--the Calvary Way Quartet from Winston-Salem; the Turrentine Trio and Little Joel Stafford, the March of Dimes paraplegic. Revival services being on Sunday night at 7:30 with the Rev. Hubert Clinard bringing the messages each evening, Sunday the 17th through Thursday Sept. 21. There will be special singing by various groups each night. Everyone is invited to attend these services.

HUNTING Safety Rules

Hunters! Remember these handy rules of thumb for your protection and for the protection of others

1. Treat your guns with respect. Remove all ammunition from firearms before storing and while driving. Store guns and ammunition away from children.
2. Don't shoot at flat surfaces or at a target without a proper backstop.
3. Never point at anything you don't intend to shoot.
4. Wear the prescribed color for hunting.
5. Keep the "safety" on while carrying your firearms; carry them with muzzles down.
6. Unload your firearms before cleaning or making repairs.
7. Don't mix hunting with alcohol!

PERSONALS

In Memoriam

Davie County Hospital Auxiliary respectfully pays its last tribute to George H.C. Shutt, who died on August 24, 1978. Mr. Shutt was a charter member of the Auxiliary and was its only treasurer from its inception in 1974. He unselfishly gave of his time and talen to further the auxiliary in Davie Hospital.

He was a tireless worker, contributing his time to all fund raising events. Whether frying ham counting money, Mr. Shutt was there. His devotion was especially seen in the Auxiliary whether up front or behind the scenes.

Mr. Shutt will always be remembered for his immeasurable help in the organization of Davie County Hospital Auxiliary and for his staunch support down thru the years.

To Mrs. G.H.C. Shutt an d his family, we offer our deepest sympathy. Our hope is that your sorrow will be lifted by the dedicated life that he lived.

QUALITIES In Sound

Little Known Facts

During his own lifetime, Johann Sebastian Bach was a little-known composer. He didn't become famous until some 100 years later, and that was largely through the study of Bach by another famous composer, Felix Mendelssohn.

No matter who your favorite composer is, his works will sound their best only when played on stereo equipment designed for the music connoisseur. Such stereo components, bearing the Realistic name, are available only at Radio Shack outlets. Realistic offers performance, reliability and value.

Probably the oldest musical instrument is the flute. Made since cave-dwelling days, they were fashioned originally from bamboo or some other hollow wood and, before that, from birds' leg bones.

"Ruling is easy, governing difficult." Goethe

Some people have believed that eating cypress seeds would make them strong, wealthy and youthful.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Save Fuel

Unlike oysters, which are at their best only during months with the letter R in their names, insulation R in season all year 'round. Insulation keeps heat inside a house in winter and outside in summer, increasing comfort and saving on fuel and power bills.

Checking the R-value of insulation can help you to get what you need.

In regard to insulation, "R" stands for resistance to heat flow. The higher the R-value of the total amount of insulation installed, the more effective the insulation will be. R-38 and R-30 are typical recommended values for insulation in attic floors.

R-values of fiber glass and rock wool batt and blanket insulation are marked on packages, according to Sheldon H. Cady, executive vice president of the National Mineral Wool Insulation Association. He said bags of loose mineral fiber, meant for installation by blowing or pouring, are labeled to show the number of bags needed to achieve the R-value desired.

The U.S. Department of Energy estimates that about 70 per cent of all home insulation used is fiber glass or rock wool.

"Great" Ideas Dept.

Some people had the "great" idea of publishing a biographical encyclopedia in the 1880's. Unfortunately, they printed all biographies that were sent them, including 84 for people who did not exist.

In the 1960's, the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Worker's Union had the "great" idea of forcing employees at J. P. Stevens & Co. to join up by staging a big boycott of that company's products. Many members of the religious community oppose this, including the Southern New England, the North Carolina and the Pacific Northwest Conferences of the United Methodist Church; the Central Atlantic Conference of the United Church of Christ; the United Presbyterian Church and Presbyterian Church in the United States.

Mocksville Sets Special Meeting For September 19 On Splitting The PTCOG

By Doug Livengood

With numerous towns and counties all around Mocksville rushing headlong into calling for a split in the Piedmont Triad Council of Governments (PTCOG), the Mocksville town board at its meeting last week postponed making a decision whether it would join in the move to split the PTCOG.

On the same day the town board decided to postpone making a decision on the PTCOG question, the Davie County board of commissioners unanimously voted to petition Governor Hunt to split the PTCOG.

The town commissioners did decide to hold a special meeting Sept. 19 to resolve the question of whether they would join forces with those favoring a division of the PTCOG.

Mocksville, along with the counties of Davie, Forsyth, Davidson, Surry, Guilford, Rockingham, Caswell, Alamance and Randolph and most of the towns and cities within these counties, are presently dues paying members of the PTCOG.

The PTCOG is a regional planning, administrative and consulting organization which serves member governments in Planning Region G of the state.

Proponents of the split are attempting to form two separate regional councils of governments out of the present Region G, with Davie, Forsyth, Yadkin, Surry and Stokes counties and the towns and cities within these counties forming a new western region of Region G. The remaining counties and towns in Region G would form a new eastern regional council of governments.

Mocksville Mayor R.C. Smith told the town board members "it seems to be the general opinion that we (Mocksville) could be served best if we form a new region."

He added, "From all indications, there is so much dissension now I don't think the members of this area (the present western area of the PTCOG) could ever work effectively with the Greensboro COG." The PTCOG is headquartered in Greensboro.

Smith, himself, journeyed to Raleigh in July with numerous elected officials from northwest North Carolina. These officials requested the Local Government Advocacy Council to recommend to Governor Hunt that he split the PTCOG.

On August 29 Smith joined many of these same elected officials and other persons interested in splitting the PTCOG for a strategy planning session held at Dobson to discuss ways to achieve the split.

Sample resolutions, calling on the governor to split the PTCOG and pledging that individual member governments which passed the resolution would join a new council of government if one was formed, were distributed at the Dobson meeting.

It was this sample resolution which Smith urged the Mocksville town board to pass at the board meeting last week.

Two department heads for the town of Mocksville spoke at the board meeting and strongly condemned the present operations of the PTCOG as these operations pertain to the town of Mocksville.

Town supervisor Andrew Lagle told the commissioners that some of the money spent by the PTCOG for services to its member governments, especially for services to small towns such as Mocksville, "may as well have been thrown out into the middle of Highway 85 (the interstate highway running through Greensboro) for all the good it does."

According to Lagle, many of the programs and services offered by the PTCOG are designed so that only Winston-Salem and Greensboro receive any real benefits from the services.

Lagle did say that he believed that "there is nothing wrong with the basic purpose of the PTCOG" because local governments within a region should be aware of the activities of neighboring

Cooleemee Now Has Toll Free Countywide Service

The first telephone call over the system providing Cooleemee residents with county wide toll free service was made September 8 by Dot Shoaf from the 284 (Cooleemee) exchange to Superior Court Judge Peter Hairston on the 998 (Advance) exchange. The call was made from the telephone office in Cooleemee.

The connection of the cables providing Cooleemee residents with this service was made possible by the merger of the Cooleemee Telephone Exchange into the Yadkin Valley Telephone Membership Corporation.

Bill McDonald, general manager of Yadkin Valley Telphone Membership Corporation said, "we are glad to be able to provide this service and wish that it could have been done years ago when we attempted to purchase the systemfrom I.H. Huske. It was however, sold at this time to the Western Carolina Telephone Company from whom we purchased it on May 15, 1978."

McDonald also added that for the first weeks the new system may be experience undue busy singals due to the newness and popularity of the system.

"Since it is impossible to determine the exact number of curcuits needed to arry the calls before the system was connected, the co-op will add new circuits as needed after determining the true volume of calls going over the trunks," said McDonald.

The merger of the Cooleemee Telephone Exchange into the Yadkin Valley Telphone Membership Corporation was an historical moment marking the first time that all the areas of the county has been linked together with a toll free system.

Wade Groce, president of the Yadkin Valley co-op said, "This is a great moment for not only the Cooleemee residents but for the entire county being the first time the county has been united in a toll free system. "We are honored to be able to provide this service."

Cooleemee subscribers are now able to dial the Advance, Ijames, and Mocksville telephone exchanges into by dialing directory listed numbers. The merger of the Cooleemee Telephone exchange into the Yadkin Valley co-op drops the number of telephone companies within the county from 3 to 2 with the Mocksville exchange (634) owned by Central Telephone Company.

Another merger was made by the co-

NRC Explains To Senator Morgan Reasons For Site Investigation

The executive director for operations for the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), Lee V. Gossick, has advised U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, Democrat of North Carolina, that the NRC is making every effort "to move as expeditiously as possible in completing the licensing action" for the Perkins Nuclear Station in Davie County.

Gossick, in a recent letter to Morgan, told the senator the NRC is attempting to avoid delays in the licensing procedure by requiring that an alternative sites analysis be made now with regard to the Perkins plant, instead of having to undertake the analysis at a later date after the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board's approval of Perkins has reached the appeals stage.

Following are communiques from Morgan, received this week by Dr. Ramey F. Kemp of Mocksville, Democratic state House representative for the 30th-District, explaining recent developments in the Perkins matter:

Dr. Ramey Kemp
P.O. Box 361
Mocksville, North Carolina 27028

Dear Ramey:

Attached is a letter from Mr. Lee Gossick of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in answer to my letter to Chairman Hendrie concerning the reopening of the permit hearings for the proposed Perkins nuclear power station.

I hope you will find this letter useful.

Sincerely,
Robert Morgan

The Honorable Robert Morgan
United States Senate
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Senator Morgan:

Your letter of August 4, 1978 to Chairman Hendrie, requesting the Commission to overrule the decision of the NRC Licensing Board to reopen the record in the Perkins proceeding, has been referred to me for reply. Chairman Hendrie and members of the Commission may be called upon in the future to participate in the review of determinations made by NRC Licensing and Appeal Boards in the Perkins proceeding. Accordingly, it would be inappropriate for them to respond to your letter.

On June 15, 1978 the NRC Staff moved the Licensing Board in the Perkins proceeding to reopen the record on the alternative site analysis required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. The Licensing Board granted the Staff's motion in an order dated July 14, 1978. The Staff requested that the record be reopened to comply with a recent NRC Atomic Safety and Licensing Appeal Board decision in the case of the Pilgrim Nuclear Generating Station 1 wherein it found that the analysis of alternative sites required by the National Environmental Policy Act was deficient. The analysis of alternative sites in the Perkins hearing record suffered from the same deficiency. To avoid the delay that would result if the Staff waited for the Appeal Board to note this deficiency during its review of the Licensing Board's initial decision in Perkins and then to remand to the Licensing Board to correct the deficiency, the NRC Staff elected to seek correction of the deficiency before issuance of the Licensing Board's initial decision. This action on the part of the NRC Staff should minimize the time within which final decisions will be reached regarding the issuance of

Arts Festival Is Saturday

By Valerie Slogick

The Davie County Arts Council will sponsor their annual "Arts Alive Since '75" free festival Saturday, September 16, 1978, on-the-square in Mocksville. Exhibits will be open to the public from 10 a.m. until dusk. A disco dance contest and festical dance "on-the-square" will close out the day's activities. Judging for the dance contest will be conducted by Dave Plyler, Bill Winkler, and Jennifer Hollar. Music will be provided by Paul Richards.

Saturday, September 16, promises to an exciting day for everyone. Crafts and arts of all types will be on display. Juried Art is an important part of any art festival and a $75 first prize is being offered to this year's winner. Judging will be one by Betty Mitchell, of Winston-Salem.

Concerts by the Davie High School Band the State National Guard Band, at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. respectively, will add to the gaiety. The Dancing Boots will perform along with the Davie High School Band. Additional musical entertainment available will be conducted on a competitive basis in the areas of Rock, Bluegrass, and Gospel. Chris Angle, of WTOB, will be one of the distinguished judges for the Rock competition. Doug Bales, of WXII, Harper Van Hoy, and William Ralph Winkler III will be our qualified Bluegrass judges. Paul Tuttle, an experienced gospel musician and composer, will be one of our featured gospel judges.

We will have fiddlers and piddlers, horse drawn buggy rides and Corvette cars on display, artists doing instant sketches and others displaying works done in porcelain. Demonstrations will be varied and interesting, including such things as lye soap making, hook rug demonstrations, quilting, u eying, horse shoeing, whittling. You name it and we'll have it.

This year's festival has several "firsts" to offer the residents of Davie County. A festival-theme coloring book illustrated by James Donaldson, especially for the occasion, will delight any child. A coloring book contest will be held in conjunction with the festival. Caudell Lumber Company and The Creative Frame & Stitchery all of Mocksville and Leonard Kreau of the Frame Shop, Salisbury will donate framing materials to the contest win-

Harper A. Van Hoy, manager of Fiddler's Grove Inc., will be featured here as a judge for the blue grass music contest Saturday afternoon. Mr. Van Hoy sponsors two main events a year in connection with operating the family campground which is open all year. The first event is the Ole Time Fiddler's & Bluegrass Festival held each Memorial weekend in May and the other is his annual "Square-up" scheduled every year on Labor-Day weekend.

Mocksville Board Wants To Know Of Its Responsibilities For Junior High School

By Doug Livengood

The Mocksville town board wants to become more aware of what responsibilities the town of Mocksville will be expected to shoulder with regard to the planned construction of a new junior high school to be opened in 1980 on a site between Jericho Rd. and Sanford Ave.

And the town board decided at its meeting last week to ask the Davie County board of education to schedule a joint meeting with the town board to discuss the town's responsibilities concerning the new school

Town commissioner Joe Murphy, who himself is a former member of the board of education, brought up the question of the construction of the new school at the commissioners' meeting when he said "I think we need to sit down with some representatives from the board of education and just see what their plans might be in the way of town provided services" for the school.

He continued, "At this point in time, as far as I know, no one has contacted the town of Mocksville to discuss the proposed junior high."

Murphy noted that many of the services necessary for the new school, such as streets, sewerage, water, lighting, police protection and traffic control, might be areas of service where "the burden of cost" might be necessary to be borne by the citizens of Mocksville.

"I certainly think we as a board should be looking with our town supervisor and our police chief and all of our department heads that we've got that will pertain to this to what it's (the school's construction) is going to involve us in ," said Murphy

He remarked, that he did not want a situation where the town would be asked "at the last minute" to "put a $50,000 street in" for the new school "when we don't have it in the budget."

Town commissioner Patricia Latta echoed Murphy's comments when she said "We've just been in the dark" with regard to the plans for the school. "I don't think its been by design, but perhaps they (school officials) didn't think we had any interests," in the proposed plans for the school, observed Latta

She said, that to her knowledge, only once has a town official been consulted about plans for the new school And that was when town supervisor Andrew Lagle was contacted by school officials about whether it would be possible for the town to run sewer to the new school when it was at that time being considered to be constructed outside of the town limits.

"I don't think even a member of the (town's) planning board was in on the plans, so to speak, for the final location or how that location would be in connection with the total planning of the town," pointed out Latta.

Town commissioner Gene Seats commented that "It goes back to the old argument of Mocksville versus Davie County" in determining which governmental body will provide the needed services at the school

"Well, if we're going to cooperate with them (school officials) then we're going to have to know what to expect so we can include it in the budget and so forth," said Mocksville Mayor R.C. Smith.

"Well, we'll have to see if it's a realistic thing that we can afford," concluded Pat Latta

Woodson Foundation Grants $1,000 For Library Piano Fund

Word has just been received from David Fergusson, County Librarian, that the Margaret C. Woodson Foundation, Inc., of Salisbury, has donated one thousand dollars to the "Piano Fund." A letter from James Woodson of Salisbury arrived with the check Tuesday, and upon hearing the news, Co-Chairman Dr. Henry Sprinkle felt confident the goal would be reached.

Support has grown as the deadline of September 14 nears. Local civic groups have contributed generously, and those who have already done so are listed here: The Mocksville Jaycees, DAV Chapter 75, DAV Auxiliary Chapter 75, and the Davie County Rescue Squad Auxiliary.

The last two concerts, featuring Janet O'Brien and James Lochridge respectively, were very successful, with Lochridge, of Davie County, filling the Multipurpose Room with a capacity crowd of over one hundred people. The fund drive ends Thursday, September 14, and i s is though Davie County will have its own piano

Complaints To Trigger Enforcement Of Dog Ordinance For Town Of Mocksville

By Doug Livengood

Have you dog owners in Mocksville been wondering how the town's new dog ordinance will affect you and your pooch?

Well, unless someone complains about your dog running loose the chances are very good that you and Fido will escape the long arm of the law responsible for enforcing the ordinance which went into effect Sept. 1.

At last week's town board meeting Mocksville chief of police Alton Carter told the town board members "I'm not going out here dog hunting. We don't have the time or the people to go out here and run up and down the streets" chasing and capturing dogs.

"I am not going to go out here fooling with dogs unless I get a complaint on them. But if somebody calls me and complains about a dog...then we're going to have to do something" to enforce the ordinance, said Carter.

And Carter reported that even if he receives a complaint about a dog running loose that the dog's owner will only receive a warning the first time the dog is reported if the dog's owner can, indeed, be identified.

But Carter hastily added that if he or his department receives another complaint about the same dog running loose "then I'm going to go and write a ticket" and enforce the ordinance which says that the dog's owner "shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine not exceeding $50 or imprisonment not exceeding 30 days" if he is convicted for allowing his dog to run loose.

"One warning is enough. If you're going to keep on warning them we can do that without this ordinance...somewhere you're going to have to draw the line," Carter remarked.

He noted that he and the members of his department have spent much time in recent days "going street to street" attempting to warn dog owners within town about the new ordinance which forbids dogs from "running at large on the streets or sidewalks" of the town "unless under the control of the owner or a member of his immediate family by leash, collar, chain or otherwise."

Carter observed, "Some people think that their children never do any wrong. And there are some that think their dog never leaves their yard. Both of them are wrong."

And, he continued, "After I get a complaint (of a dog running loose) it's going to be too late unless I haven't given them (the owner) a warning."

Carter noted that if a dog's owner is convicted in court of letting a dog run loose then that owner will actually have to pay $77--$50 for the fine and $27 for the cost of court. And he reminded dog owners that they can be cited more than once for violation of the ordinance if they persist in letting a dog run loose.

If a dog is found to be running loose and it is not possible for the police department to identify the dog's owner then Carter said the dog will be captured by the county's dog warden and kept for five days. If at the end of five days the dog has not been claimed then the dog will be destroyed, explained Carter.

Chief Carter did predict that "if you're going to ask whoever makes this complaint (about a dog running loose) to come to court you had just as well throw that (new) dog ordinance right out the window right now because this is not what they're going to do...they want me to do their dirty work for them and they don't want their neighbors mad at them."

Town board member Gene Seats told the board that he had already had several persons either complain about or inquire about the new ordinance. However, commissioner Joe Murphy told the board he had several persons speak to him complimenting the board for passing the ordinance.

"We're going to have to pay for it (passing the ordinance). You're going to have some people raise sand," Carter commented.

Some of the town board members did mention that since the ordinance went into effect they had noticed that many of the dogs which previously roamed the streets were no longer on the streets because their owners had begun to keep them at home.

op September 2, when the Davie Exchange (493) was absorbed into the Advance exchange. This linkage of numbers with the 493-prefix into the Advance exchange resulted in the permanent deletion of the prefix with these subscribers assisgned a new Advance exchange (998) number.

Cooleemee residents have been working towards getting county wide toll free telephone service for the past nine years. Several petitons have been presented since 1969 by local representatives to the state Utilities Commission. The most recent was drawn up by the "Telephone Subscribers of cooleemee" committee, a group of concerned Cooleemee citizens seeking county wide toll free service, under the guidance of the them representative Peter Hairston. It began circulation in August, 1977.

Mrs. Dot Shoaf, chairman of the "Telephone Subscribers of Cooleemee Committee" said, "This is the greatest thing that has happened to Davie County because for the first time we are united in toll free telephone service."

"After so many years of hard work by so many people, she continued, "our dream has come true."

Since the purchase of the Cooleemee Exchange by the Yadkin Valley co-op, party line service has been eliminated. The exchange now provides a private line service to 1029 residences and businesses in the Cooleemee are of Davie and Rowan counties.

Johnny Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Robertson of Route 7, Mocksville, celebrated his 5th birthday, Monday, September 4th with a party at his home. He had a Mickey Mouse Cake. PTCOG local governments.

He also noted that "as far as getting anything cleared through the PTCOG we've (Mocksville) had no problem." The PTCOG acts as a clearinghouse for making recommendations to the state and federal governments concerning local governments' requests for grants.

Mocksville police chief Alton Carter reiterated Lagle's comments when he told the town commissioners that concerning criminal justice programs offered by the PTCOG "Greensboro and Winston-Salem just whack the cream right off the top of anything that comes along and the smaller cities and towns just get the crumbs left over."

Town commissioner Joe Murphy, however, hypothesized whether it might not be necessary to again split a new council of government, of which Mocksville and Davie County would be members, if for any reason member governments of the newly formed council of government become disenchanted with other member governments in a region, as has occurred in the PTCOG.

"You've got to stop splitting somewhere," reasoned Murphy.

Murphy also questioned whether Mocksville and Davie County "have as much in common with Surry County (which would be a member of the newly formed western area of the PTCOG) as we do with Rowan or Iredell" counties.

Another town commissioner, Patricia Latta, remarked, "I'm not sure we need this layer (of government which is formed by a council of government) period."

Board member Gene Seats admitted he had what he termed a "selfish viewpoint" for not wanting to vote to split the PTCOG at the present time.

Seats, the administrator of the Lynn Haven Nursing Home in Mocksville, told the board members that he has been attempting for the past 18 months to get approval from the Piedmont Health Systems Agency, which he said is a division of the PTCOG, so that an addition can be constructed at the nursing home.

"They could easily knock me out of what I've worked eighteen months for," said Seats, fearing reprisals from the PTCOG if he voted now to have the PTCOG split.

Following the comments of Seats, commissioner "Buster" Cleary made a motion that the board postpone for two weeks making a decision on whether to ask for a division of the PTCOG. Seats seconded Cleary's motion and the commissioners voted to hold a special meeting Sept. 19 to decide the question.

Changes In Garbage Pickups Highlights Meeting Of Mocksville Town Board

Mocksville town supervisor Andrew Lagle told the Mocksville town board last week at its meeting that beginning the week of September 25 some changes will be made in garbage collection routes within the town.

The changes will be as follows:

--Effective Sept. 25 Mumford Dr., Garner St., Sofley Ave., Edison St., Naylor St. and Church St. Extension will have garbage pickup on Tuesday instead of Friday;

--Effective Sept. 25 the area of N. Main St. past Milling Rd. toward Winston-Salem, Carolina St., Milling Rd., Lakecrest Dr., Sunset Dr. and Greenwood Ave. will have garbage pickup on Friday instead of Monday; and

--Effective Sept. 25 the portion of Yadkinville Rd. Circle Dr. and Country Lane which now have garbage pickup on Monday will have garbage pickup on Tuesday.

--The board unanimously endorsed a campaign being conducted locally by a citizens' committee to raise $7,000 in funds to purchase a grand piano for use at the Davie County Public Library;

--The board adopted a final assessment roll for construction of a sewer line along part of Lexington Rd. Charles Clement Hines had appeared before the board on two occasions requesting some relief on his assessment for the sewer line along some property he has an interest in on Lexington Rd. But the board informed Hines that no relief could be given to him on the assessment;

--J.R. Bowles and other residents of Cherry St. in Mocksville came before the town board to ask if the board could take some action to help alleviate or eliminate what he termed to be excessive noise and crowds of persons gathering on a peice of property on Cherry St. owned by the Davie County Board of Education.

Bowles said these persons frequently worked on cars on the property and drove up and down the street in a reckless manner.

After much discussion, Mayor Smith asked the police chief to further investigate this complaint and the board members decided to have the town clerk write a letter to the board of education requesting that board's aid in solving the problems which had caused the citizens' complaints;

--Rev. Thomas S. Holman came before the board witha petition for street improvements on Spruce Street. The board asked town supervisor Lagle to check the names on the petition against the tax books at the Davie County Courthouse;

--Town zoning officer Jesse A. Boyce Jr. presented a map of sub-divided property of the R.C. Foster estate. The town board approved and accepted this map, as had been recommended by the planning board;

--Russell Spry, recreation director for the town of Mocksville, reported to the board that a program of flag football would begin at Rich Park on Sept. 25. He noted that the Brock Gym is scheduled to open on Oct. 1 and that he is presently getting estimates for repair work at the gym. No bids had been received for relighting work at Rich Park, reported Spry.

--The board authorized Mocksville chief of police Alton Carter to advertise for bids for a new police car for his department. These bids are to be opened at the town board meeting of October 3;

--Town supervisor Lagle reported to the board that his department would be trimming some limbs from trees that were creating hazards along some of the streets in town. He also noted that no parking sign will be erected in the curve in the town cemetery.

--The board passsed a motion designating that the federal Revenue Sharing monies received by the town be used for construction of a new water reservoir;

--The board unanimously passed a motion to continue keeping on the town's books a sewer assessment bill listed to the Davie County Board of Education for a sewer line on Cemetery St. The board of education had adamantly refused to pay this assessment, but the town board came to the conclusion that the board of education duly owed the assessment;

--The board agreed to have the town purchase a truck from Reavis Ford for $18,254.12. The Ford bid was the only bid received for the truck.

--Mayor Smith reported to the board that the Davie County Council of Economic Development had recommended that Mary Forrest and Ed Goodwin be reappointed to serve another term on the board of directors of that organization. The town board unanimously agreed with the proposed reappointment of Forrest and Goodwin;

--Town commissioner Pat Latta asked town supervisor Lagle to check and see what can be done to improve or repair the sidewalk in front of the old Southern Building;

--Commissioner Latta also reported that the residents along Hemlock St. wanted something done about some ditches in front of their homes. Mayor Smith is to ask the residents of the street to get some pipe for the ditches and the town will then do the needed work along the street; and,

--The commissioners agreed to have the town clerk contact insurance companies about the possiblity of having the town secure liability insurance for the town's employees.

County Commissioners Make Appointments And Consider Various Matters

At their meeting last week the Davie County commissioners reappointed C.R. Anderson, Samuel Daywalt and Edward Rosser to another three-year term to the Davie County Hospital's board of trustees.

The commissioners also reviewed some of the questions to be answered concerning the hospital's request that a new medical office building be built near the hospital by the county so that additional medical services can be offered for the county's residents.

It was the consensus of the commissioners to meet with the hospital's trustees sometime during this month to further discuss the matter of the medical office building.

In other business:

--The commissioners were advised by county manager Ron Vogler that they would need to approve in coming weeks contracts for employes employed by the county under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA);

--The commissioners briefly reviewed the input they would have upon the retirement of the county's present agricultural extension chairman, Leo Williams, in choosing his replacement so that a new agent would be acceptable to the farmers of the county;

--A motion by commissioner Bill Foster to authorize the county manager to submit current population information to the North Carolina Department of Revenue, Sales Tax Division, was approved by the commissioners;

--The commissioners approved the roster of the Cornatzer-Dulin Fire Department;

--The board of commissioners deferred any action on making or approving two appointments to the Davie County Council of Economic Development;

--The board reviewed a request made by the owners of Hickory Hill II Development to allow water meters to be installed at no additional cost to the owners.

It was the consensus of the commissioners that current policy regarding this matter would have to be followed and that an agreement had been made with the developer on the construction of the lines as to the method for meter installation and this method was currently being followed; and

--After reviewing a request from residents along S.R. No. 1636 for the addition of a 3-inch and 2-inch water line, the commissioners approved this line addition.

Chris Foster celebrated his fourth birthday Sept. 13 with a party at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Foster. Guests included Michelle and Melissa Bracken, Joy Markland and Emily Vestal. His grandparents, aunts and uncles were also there for the occasion.

Motorcycle And Car Collide

A motorcycle and car were involved in a collision last Thursday about 5 p.m. on US 601, eight-tenth of a mile north of Mocksville.

Involved was a 1965 Ford operated by Linda Carol March, 18, of the Campbell Road and a 1975 Honda motorcycle operated by Jeffrey Mark Smith, 23, of Rt. 1 Mocksville.

State Highway Patrolman A. C. Stokes said his investigation showed that the March vehicle was making a left turn from US 601 onto the I-40 exit ramp and turned into the path of the southbound motorcycle and was struck in the right rear.

Damage to the motorcycle was estimated at $350.

Ms. March was charged with a safe movement violation.

Health Fair

"Follow the Yellow Brick Road to Good Health" will be the theme of the Davie County Health Department's Open House-Health Fair to be held Friday, September 15 from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. This event is being held to celebrate Public Health Week in North Carolina and to acquaint Davie Countians with the services of the Health Department. Characters from "The Wizard of Oz" will illustrate what you can do to protect your health and how the Health Department can help.

There will be exhibits, informational games and tours. Life Styles and Causes of Death, Coronary Care, Diabetes, Child Health, Home Health, Epilepsy,, the WIC Program, Family Planning, Dental Health, and Environmental Health are a few of the topics to be displayed. In addition, refreshments will be served and a film festival of health-related films will be shown continously during the day.

Come to the Health Department on Hospital Street any time between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Friday, and discover what your Health Department is doing and can do for you.

Democrats To Hold Watermellon Festival Friday

The Davie County Democrats will hold a watermelon festival on Friday, September 15, in the Cooleemee School Cafeteria at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Dot Shoaf, Cooleemee precinct chairman, extends an invitation to the public, regardless of party affiliation, to attend, she said.

"There will be plenty of good ripe Davie County grown watermelons for everyone."

Bob Davis of Salibury will be the guest speaker.

Everyone is asked to bring knife and fork.

Vehicles Collide

A traffic accident occurred Monday, September 11, at 12:09 p.m., on Salisbury Street in Mocksville involving a '74 Volkswagon driven by Brenda Hendrick Creason, 25, of Rt. 7, Mocksville and a '76 Ford driven by Darrell Eugene Edwards, 29, of Rt. 1, Mocksville.

According to the accident report filed by officer R. S. Hupp of the Mocksville Police Department, the Creason vehicle was traveling on Salisbury when the Edwards vehicle pulled out of a parking lot and struck the Creason car.

No injuries occurred in the accident and no charges were filed.

Damage to the Volkswagon was $75 and damage to the Ford was $25.

Cooleemee Senior Citizens Meet

The Cooleemee Senior Citizens met Monday with 50 members and one visitor, Mrs. Bailey, attending. Two new members, Mrs. Ruth Tutterow and Mrs. Mary Gulledge, were welcomed into the club.

The nominating committee presented their slate of officers, which were approved to serve for the coming year. The newly elected officer are: Granville Spry, president; Bessie Naile, vice president; Ethel Gibson, secretary; Luna Myers, assistant secretary; Russell Ridenhour, treasurer, and Mrs. Thelma Gregory, chaplain. These officers will be installed during the next meeting on September 25.

Mrs. Theo presented a most entertaining program, "A Trip to the City."

Mrs. Theo presented a most entertaining program "A Trip to the City."

All members of the club who are planning to attend their outing on Monday, September 18, are asked to meet in the parking lot of the First Baptist Church and be ready to leave no later than 9:30 a.m. The group will have lunch at the K & W Cafeteria in Concord after which they will be doing some shopping at the Cannon Mills Outlet Store in Kannapolis.

Secretaries Assn. To Meet Tuesday

Library News

The Piano Drive is about over, and our thanks go out already to those who have given or are considering giving. It is not too late to contribute, as contributions will be taken through Thursday until 5:00 p.m.

Our display this month consists of vocational guidance materials. We have acquired a new set of materials with Library Services and Construction Act Outreach Enrichment Grant money for those seeking occupational information. There are hundreds of Career booklets devoted to individual occupations; there are about thirty Vocational Guidance Materials Booklets which are paperback books devoted to certain fields; there are various titles for women including the Catalyst series of booklets for undergraduated women seeking careers; there are some new periodicals including "Women's Work", "Career World", and "Occupational Outlook Quarterly". The two volume Encyclopedia of Careers and Vocational Guidance is excellent; a new Blue Book of Occupational Education is on order; and finally a series of books from Arco Press is on order. The Arco books deal with Civil Service tests, Pace tests, refresher courses and the like. Most of the materials can be checked out and hopefully will fill a very evident current need in our county.

New Books:

Chesapeake, by James A. Michener.

The most recent bestseller by one of America's most engaging novelists. The saga this time concerns the Choptank area of the Chesapeake Bay. 1583 marks the beginning and 1978 the end.

Profusely illustrated with photos, this volume tells how old barns were built; remodeling is covered, as is saving what we have left.

201 Plans To Build or Remodel Your House.

Each page has a plan, along with annotations. Size specifications are included as is a photo or drawing and the actual plan. All types are covered from ranches to colonials.

Till Death Do Us Part, by Vincent Bugliosi.

By the author of Helter-Skelter, this is the story of two bizarre murders connected only by a criminal mind at first. Bugliosi, the prosecutor in the case, tells of the case from murder well through trial, in which circumstantial evidence plays a great part.

For the amateur craft expert, this is a must. 1600 companies, stores, and individuals are listed which sell all types of craft material by mail.

Lucrezia Borgia, A Biography, by Rachel Erlanger.

Lucregia, who was said to be the most shameless and dissolute woman of her age, was actually not. She did not cruelly send her discarded lovers to their deaths, or concoct poisonous brews for her guests. She was an interesting woman, through, and this biography is a fin introduction to the Italian Renaissance.

The Glimpses Of The Moon, by Edmund Crispin.

This is an English mystery that verges on parody. A laborer named Hagberd is arrested for decapitating a farmer named Routh. The rector, the major, Gobbo, and Detective-Superintendent Ling all try to solve the crime, but it is of course Professor Fen who, after lugging one man's head around in a sack thinking it is a pig's head, eventually solves the mystery.

All About Meat, by Leonard Stanley Lobel.

Here is a complete study of meat, well illustrated, which not only may save you some money, but may put some delicious meat on your table. Nutrition is included, along with chapters on holidays, summer cooking, frozen meats, carving and boning, and finally storing meats and poultry.

My Enemy The Queen, by Victoria Holt.

This latest bestselling novel is written about Queen Elizabeth I by the woman who was constantly there in the triangle of love surrounding the Queen. Lettice Devereux was that woman. She married the Earl of Leicester, Elizabeth's first love, and was the mother of Essex, Elizabeth's second.

Bill Weant Receives National Media Award

Bill Weant, Alcoholism Education Consultant with the Tri-County Mental Health Complex, has received a second-place communication award in the national media contest competition conducted by the National Association of Mental Health Information Officers.

Weant was recognized for outstanding achievement in the field of mental health and mental retardation communications in the audio-visual category.

NAMHIO is a national professional organization of information, education, public relations and communications practitioners concerned with services for the mentally ill and mentally retarded.

The communication contest was judged by public information-public relations executives in the Austin, Texas area: Dean Herbst, Head of the Division of Health Affairs, Texas College and University System---Ernestine Wheelock, Public Relations Director of Women in Communications--and Dan Urban and Gary Haseloff of the Texas Education Agency.

Weant was recognized for his "Alcohol Awareness" radio spots. "A.I. R....Alcohol Information Report" is a continuing monthly series of 10 60-second informational radio features aired on three radio stations in the area, WDSL in Mocksville, and WSTP and WRDX in Salisbury. The announcements are broadcast three or four times daily and reach an estimated audience of 150,000 people.

Weant's objective in producing the announcements is to offer the general public information about alcohol, including how to deal with the problems associated with excessive drinking and alcoholism and where to get help.

Subjects have included: the female alcoholic, alternatives to alcohol abuse, alcohol and industry, the black alcoholic, alcohol and stress, alcohol and traffic safety, the alcoholic in the family, drinking myths, and alcohol in the educational setting.

In June, Weant's entry won the First Place Award from the southeast region and was then entered in the national competition.

Letters To Editor

Dear Sir:

In today's society, most people do not want to become involved in anything that does not concern them personally or a close member of their family. I would just like to commend Tom Shore of Cooleemee for his act of kindness and bravery a couple of weeks ago. Had it not been for his concern and willingness to become involved with someone else's problems, in all probability, Monte Blackwood would have been permanently injured or possibly beaten to death when assaulted on the tennis court of the Recreation Center.

From the people in Cooleemee, our hats are off to Tom Shore, who by caring enough to become involved, possibly saved the life of this young husband and father. Blackwood was beaten almost unconscious and required several days of hospitalization. He was able to go back to work this week and he feels mighty grateful to Shore for making it possible.

In fact, on that particular afternoon a couple weeks ago, Blackwood's Guardian Angel appeared in the form of Tom Shore...Thanks Tom, from all of us in Cooleemee.

Dear Editor:

Would you please print my letter in your "Letter to the Editor" column. Hopefully someone in your area can shed some light on my family history.

My grandfather, James Milas Stroud, was born January 12, 1877 to Wm. Thomas and Elizabeth Catherine Sparks Stroud. James Milas was born in the Rhonda or Statesville area.

Wm. Thomas was born July 19, 1852 in or near Wilkes County. He lived most of his life near Wilkesboro, and died there April 3, 1932. Wm. Thomas's parents were Milas and Martha Ragsdale Stroud.

My family believes Milas, born about 1820, came to America from Ireland or England with two or three brothers. The brothers may have been named Giles and Phillip. One story is that there were four brothers, and that two fought for the North and two fought for the South during the Civil War. We've lost all track of Milas's brothers.

Milas Stroud was a minister for the Home Guard and was killed during the Civil War near Boomer, N.C.

Any information about Milas, his brothers, or his parents would be greatly appreciated. Some of my family in Wilkes Co. believes we are related to some Strouds in Davie or Iredell Co.

Thank you for your help in this matter!

Sincerely,
Mrs. Alice Bartlett

Hospital Auxillary Fall Ball Is Sept. 30th

The Davie County Hospital Auxiliary will hold their annual Fall Ball at the Bermuda Run Country Club on Saturday, September 30. The social hour will begin at 6:45 p.m. and dinner will be served promptly at 7:30 p.m.

Music will be provided by the Clyde & Jo Lakey Band with the dance beginning at 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Tickets are now on sale and may be purchased from any auxiliary member for $36 per couple. Anyone needing a ticket should make their purchase by September 25.

The buffet style menu will consist of roast round of beef, baked chicken, seaford newburg, fresh vegetables, Au Gratin potatoes, choice of salads, rolls and butter, assorted pastries and coffee or tea.

Semi-formal dress is required and tables will be arranged to seat four to five couples.

Birth

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Markland of Advance announce the birth of a daughter, Sharon Lynn, September 7th at the Forsyth Memorial Hospital. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Markland. The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Stuart. Sharon Lynn has a four-year-old sister, Susan.

Wood-Brown

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wood of Route 1, Advance, N.C. announce the engagement of their daughter, Opal Brown to Terry Michael McDaniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McDaniel of Cooleemee, N.C.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Shady Grove High School.

Mr. McDaniel graduated from Rowan Technical Institute and Davie County High School. He is employed with the Drexel-Heritage plant in Mocksville.

The wedding is planned for this fall.

Cosmetolgist Assn. To Meet Sept. 18

Kitchen Shears

Special kitchen shears are a great help for cutting meat, fish, fowl, bones and vegetables. They'll snip herbs, trim artichokes, cut open bags and frozen food pouches. Some handles are also designed to flip jar lids or to open bottles and screw-on tops. For baking, use them to cut dough, cookies and pizza without scratching the pan.

Amy Jo Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul (Mickey) Mason celebrated her 2nd birthday with 2 parties at her home. Saturday afternoon, September 9th, Amy Jo and her little friends enjoyed games and refreshments on the lawn. Sunday afternoon, Amy's aunts, uncles, grandparents and great grandmothers helped her celebrated the occasion. Refreshments were enjoyed by everyone and a lot of fun was had by all.

Jenny Smith Has 16th Birthday

Enjoying the occasion were her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Smith, Mrs. Louise Durham, Susie and John Smith, Danny, Cynthia, Ginger and Bettina Durham, Lisa, Mike, Bonnie and Amy Myers, Ann and Chris Howard, Roger and Tony Rhinehart, Dennis and Shane Varnadoe, Lisa Foster, Joe Brown, her sisters, Tammy and Melissa and special guest, her great grandmother, Mrs. Martha Smith

The honoree received many gifts and a good time was had by all.

"Science And Mysticism" To Be Discussed By Former Astronaut

Former astronaut Dr. Edgar Mitchell, the sixth man to set foot on the moon, will present a lecture on "Science and Mysticism; A Peek at the Future" on Thursday, Sept. 21, at 8:00 p.m. in Walt Chapel at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem.

Tickets for the lecture are $3.00 for adults and $1.50 for students. Tickets are available at the Book Nook in Winston-Salem and will also be available at the door.

Mitchell's lecture will be sponsored by the Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship, Winston-Salem Chapter.

In addition to being a former astronaut, Mitchell is currently an author and researcher on Psi Phenomena and is the founder of the Institute of Noetic Sciences.

Vehicles In Collision

A traffic accident occurred Thursday, September 7, at 8:30 a.m., at the intersection of Salisbury and S. Main Streets in Mocksville involving a '77 Chevrolet truck driven by Rhonda Judy Trivette, 17, of Rt. 5, Mocksville and a '76 Dodge automodible driven by Deanna Michels Thomas, 16, of 211 Morse Street, Mocksville.

According to the accident report filed by officer A. D. Adams of the Mocksville Police Department, the Trivette vehicle was stopped at a yield sign waiting to enter S. Main when it was struck in the rear by the Thomas vehicle.

No injuries occurred in the accident and no charges were filed.

Damage to the car was $300 and no damage was reported to the truck.

Better Infant Birth Drive

The Fork Jaycettes will help in conjunction with the Mocksville Jaycettes with their project, Better Infant Birth.

A box has been placed at the Fork Discount store for any baby items that the public would like to donate for the cause. All the items will be given to the mothers who attend the BIBS prenatal clinic.

The Jayceetes will appreciate your generosity for this purpose.

Around And About

CELEBRATES 80TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Nannie Angell Call celebrated her 80th birthday Sunday with 82 of her immediate family present; eight of which were her children. A bountiful and delicious meal as well as good fellowship was enjoyed by all. The children credit their mother with teaching them to serve God.

VACATIONS ALL OVER

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Nivens and son, Thomas of Route 4, Mocksville and Mrs. Sally Hivens of Rt. 7, Mocksville traveled a southern route across the United States visiting various points of interest in Nevada, California and Washington state. A northern route was traveled home two weeks later.

Arts Festival

Another surprise is an orgiinal T-shirt designed by Elspeth Webster. A festival flare of clowns adorns the children's T-shirt in colors of blue and green; scarlet and yellow. The adult design is a graphic play on Davie County and the words "Arts Alive". They will be available in colors of brown and gold; blue and cerise. Art Council members will receive a discount on each T-shirt purchased.

Along with the activities, food will be the main stay of the day. The list of good things to eat includes the usual hot dogs, hamburgers, homemade ice cream, homemade baked goods and tall glasses of Coke. This fare can be enjoyed around tagles placed for your convenience under the oaks.

This and much more will be yours for a day at the "Arts Alive Since '75" extravaganza–Saturday, September 16, 1978. Should it rain all activities will be moved to the Brock Auditorium and Gymnasium.

Steven Fields a senior at the Davie County High School, will be the master of ceremonies for the "Arts Alive Since '75" festival.

TV Personality Dave Plyler To Judge Disco Dancing

The "Arts Alive Since '75" Festival will host several competitive events. Disco Dancing On-The-Square heads the early evening activities. The Davie County Arts Council would like to remind you that Dave Plyler Jennifer Hollar and Bill Winkler will be on hand to judge this portion of the talent competition.

Dave Plyler's first on-air job in broadcasting lasted exactly 15 minutes--or just long enough for the General Manager of radio station WCOG in Greensboro to hear him say "Take him off the air and never let him on again."

Some seven years later, after completion of his United States Air Force service, and working several yeas as a DJ for WGBG Radio in Greensboro, WCOG negotiated with Dave to return to the station in a top DJ spot.

Today, as Public Affairs Director at WXII-TV, Dave is co-host of the Mid-morning program, host of Report To The People, host of Closeup, reports WXII Business News, conducts Camera-12 field interviews, and appears several times daily for short new reports. In addition he is responsible for departmental control of the Youth '76 and Shades of Ebony Public Affairs program.

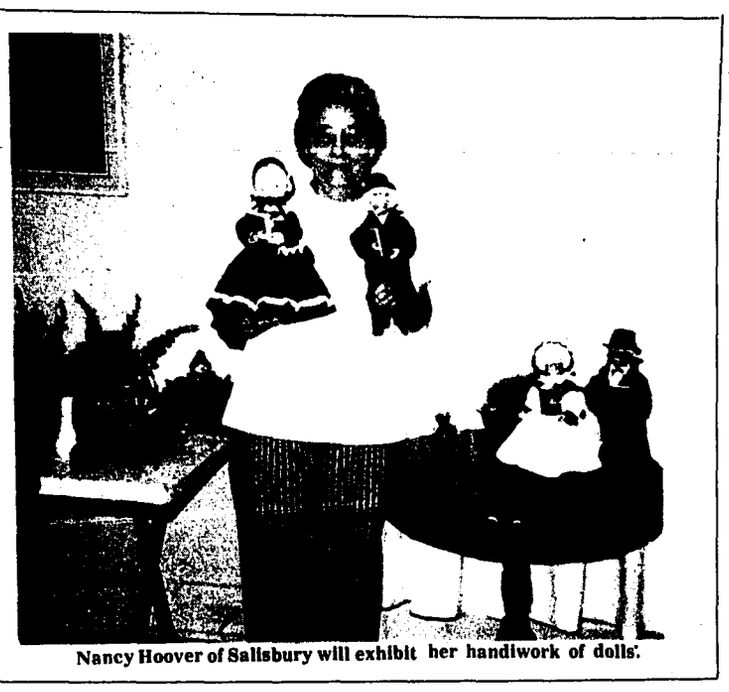

Each year more than 4,000 local individuals appear on the air on WXII under the auspices of the Public Affairs Department, and Dave interviews a good proportion of this number. As a Department Head who also appears on the air his day is varied, often beginning as early as 5 am in preparation for a 6 am sign-on news or weather report.

Dave has been the recipient of numerous awards for his work in Public Affairs and as a former News Director at Channel 12.

Plan to spend an evening under the oaks with Dave Plyler, as a contestant or as part of the audience.

Doug Bales

Doug Bales To Judge Bluegrass-Country Music Saturday

Bluegrass-Country competition will be one of the big attractions at this year's "Arts Alive Since '75" Festival. Who better to judge this event than a "Show Me" state native and avid Bluegrass fan--Doug Bales.

Douglas Bales, Director of Special Productions for WXII-TV, coordinates the station's on-air advertising and promotion, and is responsible for all station print and broadcast advertising. He writes, directs and produces special films and videotape productions, and has been the recipient of numerous awards in this field.

A native of Eminence, Missouri, he attended the University of Missouri School of Journalism, and worked in advertising for Von Hoffmann Publishing of St. Louis, Mo.; in the national advertising department of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch; and The Biddle Advertising Agency, all of Chicago, Illinois.

He is married to the former Mona Mutersbaugh of Paris, Missouri. They are the parents of three children, and reside in Mocksville, N.C.

Stop by and enjoy our Bluegrass groups along with Doug Bales, Harper Van Hoy, William Ralph Winkler III. Competition will be held throughout the day "on-the-square" in Mocksville, Saturday, September 16, 1978.

Designed T-Shirts To Promote Arts Festival

The Arts Council has put Davie County "on the map"--location, "T-Shirt Territory." Through the talented efforts of Elspeth Webster, the Arts Council is pleased to be able to offer the residents of Davie County this unique item to help promote the arts and Davie County.

Elspeth created two designs to fit everyone's tastes. For the younger set she chose a due of charming clowns, complete with baggy pants, floppy shoes, and those familiar smiling faces. "Put a smile on your youngsters face with one of these shirts. They are available in colors of blue and green; scarlet and yellow," said Valerie Slogick, Publicity Chairman.

The adult design is a graphic play on Davie County and the words "Arts Alive Since '75". Adult T-shirts are available in colors of blue and cerise with a second choice of brown and gold.

"These T-shirts are a must to round off the leisure fashion wardrobes for fall," pointed out Ms. Slogick.

The shirts are available for sale at the Davie County Arts Council office in the County Office Building and will be available for sale at the Festival. Davie County Arts Council members are being offered a discount on each T-shirt bought.

Elspeth is a native of Scotland and most recently lived in the village of Renfrewshire. She currently resides in Mocksville with her husband, Robert and daughter, Jenifer.

Mrs. Webster garduated from the Glasgow School of Art with a D. A. degree. She expanded her art education to the area of teaching and received a post diploma from Jordon Hill.

Mrs. Webster was a freelance designer in Britain and Europe and did many illustrations for I.P. C. Group, which includes such magazines as Homes and Gardens.

During 1969, at the Londoner Hotel, London, England, her designs were exhibited at "Inprint in Procin 70" and used throughout Europe and Britain. She has most recently returned to the world of freelance designing.

"The Davie County Arts Council is proud to have Elspeth Webster counted among its active membership and pleased that she has so willingly shared her talents with the residents of Davie County. It's people like Elspeth that are helping to make this year's "Arts Alive Since '75" the best festival yet and a challenge to surpass in years to come," said Ms. Slogick.

"Be apart of art" and join us On-the-Square in Mocksville, Saturday, September 16, 1978 for our annual gala event. There will be something for everyone and Elspeth will be on hand autographing T-shirts. In the event of rain everything will be moved to the Brock Auditorium and Gymnasium. See you this Saturday," concluded Mrs. Ms. Slogick.

This road scrapper, 1920-30 vintage, will be among the antique equipment displayed Saturday by Gene McLaughlin.

George Kontos Seeks To Clearup Misconceptions About Epilepsy

By Kathy Tomlinson

George Kontos, 16 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Kontos of Rt. 2, Advance, will participate in a live broadcast about epilepsy from W.S.J.S. Radio Thursday, September 14, from 10:00 p.m.-11:00 p.m.

The broadcast will consist of a call-in question and answer period dedicated to the purpose of clearing misconceptions about episepsy. Peter Harris with the State Health and Education Office, will also be available for questions.

Kontos, who was diagnosed an epileptic in December 1974, has made it his crusade to inform people about the condition. After recently completing counseling by Carol Appolone, Associate Director of a community help program sponsored by Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem, he wants to share with people the true sense of the condition and rid their minds of false limitations believed about people possessing epilepsy.

Epilepsy is the abnormal discharge of electrical brain waves which results in seizures. Poeple who have chronic seizures due to this abnormal discharge are labeled epileptics.

There is no known answer as to why brain cells discharge abnormally and cause the symptoms of epilepsy. However, scientists generally agree that epilepsy can result from defects in the brain, brain injury, before, during or after birth, head wounds, chemical imbalances, poor nutrition, childhood fevers, some infectious diseases, brain tumors and some poisons. The condition can strike anytime during one's lifetime with little or no warning.

Epilepsy is not curable, but it can be controlled in varying degrees by the careful use of medications. Up to 50 percent of the people with epilepsy can achieve complete control and 30 percent a partial control.

According to statistics there are 210 epileptics in Davie County. Reflecting on this data Kontos said, "I have overcome the anxieties of having epilepsy, and hope to help and inform Davie County people possessing the condition in the same way in which I have been assisted."

"The label that society gives an epileptic through the lack of knowledge and misconceptions about the condition causes us to suffer far more than the condition itself."

"I don't want any closet epileptics in Davie County who feel that they have to hide their condition because society labels them as something to be ashamed of."

George Kontos

"This is one of the many false beliefs about the condition, and it is my goal to inform people that epilepsy is nothing to be ashamed of, and that people diangosed as epileptics are just as capable of making contributions to society as those who do not have it."

Kontos appeared on WXII T.V. Monday and Tuesday participating on the "Youth Today" show sharing with people his beliefs and medically priven facts about the condition.

Anyone seeking further information about epilepsy are urged to call in questions on the WSJD program. Kontos noted that all questions will be answered either on the air or through the mail.

Hats Are Brimful Of History

An exhibit of hats that opens September 17 at the Arts and Science Museum of Statesville proves that hats are brimful of history.

Sponsored jointly with the Mint Museum of History of Charlotte, the "Headlines" showing will include more than 100 hats of the period 1840 to 1940, ranging from nightcaps to Merry Widow styles and including sunbonnets, tea caps, wedding and mourning bonnets, "flower pots", riding and motoring hats, tricornes, "mushrooms", berets, cartwheels, "baby dolls", and evening closhes.

Although most of the headgear was loaned by individuals and collections in North Carolina, it also includes a picture hat designed by Mr. John for Marlene Dietrich in the movie, "Shanghai Express" and another designed by Cecil Beaton for the Ascot scene in "My Fair Lady" and loaned by Jane Withers, Hollywood actress.

A sailor from the N.C. Museum of History in Raleigh is made completely of pine needles, and three more elaborate styles are trimmed in vulture feathers. Every conceivable combination of straw, velvet, ribbon, lace, beads and feathers is evident in various units of the exhibit that are grouped against a background of the "hot pink" shade made popular by Schiaparelli.

A preview showing is scheduled for September 16 at the museum, where the exhibit will be open to the public until late October. After that, it will tour the state with emphasis on appearances in smaller museums as well as some major ones. Lexington, Charlotte, and Asheville are among the locations already scheduled.

The exhibit has been arranged by Pete Ballard, costume curator for the Mint Museum in cooperation with Frank Sherrill, curator of the Statesville museum, and Stuart Schwartz, curator of the Mint Museum. Hats have been loaned also by Old Salem, Inc.; the Roanoke Valley Historical Scoiety, the N.C. Museum of History, the Costume Wing of the Western Reserve Historical Society in Cleveland, Ohio; and Miss Withers' collection in Hollywood.

Mrs. W.S. McClelland of Charlotte contributed a "mourning hat" in the Mint Collection that is believed to have been that of Mrs. Stonewall Jackson. Other individuals who made loans or gifts to the exhibit are John Smith, the Blum family, Mrs. David Wesson, Mrs. Jesse B. Glenn, Mrs. B.S. Womble, Miss Rosalie Wilson, Mrs. Cecil Bertie, Mrs. Frank Borden Hanes, Mrs. Mac Herman, and Mrs. Morris Sosnik, all of Winston-Salem; and Mrs. John Welch of Louisville, Ky.

Glendon McCullogh Is Killed In Wreck In Memphis, Tennessee

Glendon McCullough, executive director of the Baptist Brotherhood Commission since November 1971, was killed in a head-on, three -car collision during afternoon rush hour traffic in Memphis, Tenn., August 23.

He was the great grandson of Davie County natives, John McCullough and Hettie Veach McCullough.

The accident also killed Mrs. Frances "Buckie" Sheffe, wife of the president of a Memphis investment firm. Her Cadillac swerved into the center lane of Poplar Avenue hitting the McCullough vehicle headon, overturning and crushing it.

Funeral services were held for McCullough on August 26 at Union Avenue Church in Memphis, with graveside services and burial at Arlington Cemetery, Atlanta on August 28.

McCullough who would have been 57 on Sept. 9, had been executive director of the Brotherhood Commission for seven years. He came to the position after serving for 12 years as director of personnel for the Home Mission Board, Atlanta.

A personal friend of President Jimmy Carter, McCullough married the former Marjorie Jones, a missionary to Brazil and former Woman's Missionary Union executive, in 1974 in a wedding service at the governor's mansion in Atlanta. President Carter, then governor of Georgia, was McCullough's best man.

His first wife, the former Ernestine Kesler, died of cancer in 1969, leaving McCullough with the responsibility of rearing four young children, then ages 6 to er. Ken, now 19, a student at Texas A & M University, had returned to school only three days before his father's death. Kathy, 21 is a Memphis secretary, and Beth, 17, and Debbie 15, live with Mrs. McCullough at the McCullough home in Germantown, Tenn., a suburb of Memphis.

President Jimmy Carter telephoned the family of Glendon McCullough, Friday morning, Aug. 25, to express sympathy following the death of the executive director of the Southern Baptist Convention's Brotherhood Commission.

A close friend of McCullough who died Aug. 23 in an automobile accident in Memphis, Tenn., Carter heard of the death while on a raft trip with his family down the Salmon River in Idaho. His call came from the travelling White House in Jackson, Wyo.

Carter, a former trustee of the Brotherhood Commission, asked to talk to each member of the family privately--McCullough's wife, Marjorie, a former Southern Baptist missionary to Brazil, and his four children, Kathy, 21, Ken, 19, Beth 17, and Debbie 15. The children were born to McCullough's first wife, who died of cancer in 1969.

The president talked to the family for about 10 minutes, telling the children what a fine contribution their father had made to the cause of Christianity and why they should be proud of him. He said he and Mrs. Carter were very distraught when the news of McCullough's death reached them.

He told the children that McCullough was "a loyal and true friend." Carter was McCullough's best man at his second marriage to the former Majorie Jones, which took place in the Georgia governor's mansion in 1974 when Carter was governor.

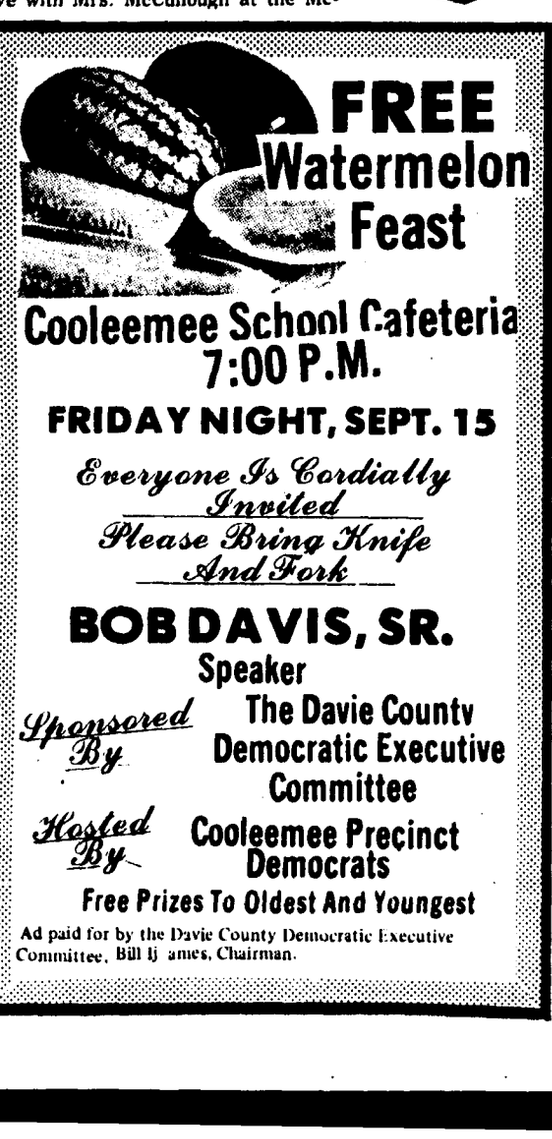

The White House issued a formal statement from the president concerning the death of the 56-year-old executive director of the Brotherhood Commission, the Southern Baptist national agency which involves men and boys in missions through Baptist Men and Royal Ambassador organizations.

It said: "Both Rosalyn and I were deeply saddened to learn of the untimely death of our good friend, the Rev. Glendon McCullough. He was a wise and charitable man whose life and career exemplified the finest qualities of a man of God. For all of us whose lives he touched, Glendon McCullough cannot be replaced. We extend our deepest sympathies to Majorie and other members of the family."

Needlepoint Course Is Now Being Offered

Instruction in the easy art of needlepoint is now being given through the fall program of Davidson County Community College. Students will make a sampler of stitches which can be used for a pillow or wall hanging.

Mrs. Rufus Brock is instructor for the course which will be taught on Thursday nights from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Registration fee is $5. For further information call Mrs. Brock at 634-5128 or the community college at 634-3415.

Loses 128 Pounds
Thanks to Healthy Conway Diet

When this photo was taken, Mrs. Delores Warren had already lost 113 pounds in just 11 months. She has since lost another 15 pounds.

The now slim Mrs. Warren, who loves to dance and is attending beauty school says, "I had never been able to stick to a diet and could never have done it without the Conway program."

The Conway weight reduction program consists of three main elements:

- A balanced, 1000 calorie diet that includes all food groups and exceeds the established nutritional requirements for adults.
- Weekly educational seminars that deal with the physical, nutritional and emotional causes of overweight.
- The Forever Slim plan for permanently maintaining slimness.

Davie Cosmetologist Association Contributes Memorial To Hospital

Davie Cosmetologist Association has contributed $500 to Davie County Hospital in memory of Annis Lou Smith and Jo Cooley.

Estie Jones, treasurer of the association, delivered the check to Allen Martin, Administrator. Mr. Martin, responding by letter to the Association's officers, said, "It is with pleasure and appreciation that I acknowledge this contribution and accept it in memory of these two fine ladies who not only served their public and customer well but their community also."

Martin continued by saying, "It is our intention to utilize these funds to assist your hospital further adapt to the needs of the handicapped especially the ambulating handicapped by giving them more free access to entrances and bathrooms. In 1973 we provided appropriately elevated ramps for wheelchair persons. Now we must consider our public toilets, none of which are usable by wheelchaired individuals, and automatic opening doors, especially at the emergency entrance."

Randall Cole, Director, Environmental Services, will be in charge of such renovations and is already investigating necessary changes.

Officers of the Davie Cosmetologist Association are, in addition to Estie Jones, Treasurer; Margaret Wilson, President; Thea Brown, Vice President; and Marie White, Secretary.

The association has made previous contributions to the local hospital over the years.

Elizabeth KeAnne Tomlinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Tomlinson of Rt. 8, Salisbury, celebrated her first birthday September 9 and 10 with two parties at her home. Guests for both celebrations were served their choice of Raggedy Ann or coconut cake, homemade ice cream and Coke. As a special treat, two tiny, decorated cakes were baked for Ke Anne by her paternal great grandmother, Mrs. Viola Tomlinson of Wilkesboro St. Other special guests included maternal grandfather, Cedric Smoot and wife Hazel Dyson Smoot of Rt. 6, Mocksville, paternal grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Tomlinson of Halander Drive and numerous relatives and friends.

1953 Class Of Central Davie Has Reunion

Festivities began Saturday evening with a Speaker-Dinner-Dance at Hickory Hill Country Club, Mocksville, N.C. During the course of the evening Ernestine Foster Hoke served as Emcee.

Featured on the evening program was a welcome greeting, roll call of classmembers, memorial for deceased members, recognition of former teachers, presentations, and a main address.

"Life Dividends" was the topic of a most challenging address delivered by Julius A. Fulmore, former teacher and Athletic Director of the class, who is now serving in the capacity of an Assistant Superintendent with the Greensboro, N.C. city schools. He urged each member to make contributions to his church, school, and community whereby worthy, rewarding, and self-satisfying dividends may be enjoyed.

Sunday morning the group worshiped at St. John A. M.E. Zion Church on Hill Crest Drive here in the city. During service, Georgia Carter Burgess made a presentation on behalf of the class.

The culminating activity was a family picnic scheduled at Rich Park. Due to inclement weather it was held in the cafeteria of the Mocksville Middle School.

A business session was ensued with Dorothy Rucker Graham presiding. Geraldine Tatum Brown won the award for having the largest family in attendance, and Annette Williams Whitted was the recipient of the fartherest distance traveled award.

Fran-Ray Installs Additional Fire Prevention Measures

Fran-Ray Rest Home Inc. has replaced their old awning type windows with white single hung with baked on enamel. "Smoke detectors have also been installed all over the building for instant warning in case of fire.

Francis Killen, administrator says, "so far in more than 13 years of operation we have not had any fires and WE DO NOT WANT ANY." He says further, "that smoke detectors are only required in newer additions and also new rest homes, but we want to be up with the latest requirements when it comes to fire prevention. (An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure)."

Mr. Killen would like to request that all visitors please refrain from smoking inside the building as much as possible since smoking is one of the big fire hazards. "We love our residents as well as our employees and ourselves and we wish to protect the lives of everyone who live or visit within our rest home," said Mr. Killen.

One puff of smoke could set off the whole detective system and we would have to run to the basement to stop it. This would be upsetting to the residents as well as the staff. Your cooperation would be highly appreciated. Thank you," he continued.

We have at least 12 fire drills a year to keep in practice in case the unwanted did happen. Our building is built with safety regulations which must be inspected annually,," Frances Killen said "We also have fire extinguishers located at important spots to use in case of fire. They may soon be replaced with the all purpose extinguisher to add to the fire safety of the rest home," he concluded.

Woman Fails To Appear For Trial

A court order was issued for Diana Lynn Meadows, 18, of Rt. 1 Woodleaf. She is charged with simple affray involving Charles Dennis Turner Jr., 18, of Rt. 1 Woodleaf in the shopping center about 10 p.m. August 25th. She is out under a $100 bond.

Deputy Junior Maulding was the arresting officer.

The Ladle

The ladle is a round cup on the end of a long handle for easy dipping and ladling. Use it to serve soups, gravies and heavy chowders which are difficult to pour from a pan. It also permits gathering of the proper proportion of juice and food in something like a chowder.

Hunting Doves On Baited Land Charged

[illegible] opened [illegible] in Davie County.

Twenty-seven hunters, one woman, twenty men and at least five juveniles were reportedly hunting off Pinebrook Drive in Davie County on baited land.

A field is considered baited when grain such as wheat, salt, corn or any kind of feed is placed on land so as to entice birds to the land for hunting. It is also considered baited for ten days after the removal of the bait. The ten day extension of time is added because the birds will return to the field even though the grain has been plowed under. It is legal to bait land but it is illegal to hunt on baited land.

On opening day for hunting Dove Wildlife officers Ron Knight of Davie County and Al Hicks, Iredell County called for assistance when they located the baited land in Davie on property owned by Howard Boger. Wildlife officers from Watagua, Forsyth and Yadkin counties came to assist.

Approximately 140 birds were seized from the hunters and their names have been turned over the to U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for taking migatory birds over baited land. Charges, if any, will be issued in approximately two to three weeks.

The hunters may not necessarily know the lands have been baited but they are so charged if they are caught hunting in that area.

Operators Licenses Are Suspended

Motor vehicle operators licenses suspended in Davie County for the period ending August 18th included:

James K. Munday, 46, of Cooleemee, revoked as of July 26, 1978 until July 26, 1979.

Hellen S. Groce, 55, of Rt. 6 Mocksville, revoked as of August 25, 1978 until August 25, 1979.

Continental Shelves

Continental shelves, built by eroded soil and the remains of countless sea creatures and plants, stretch beyond the shores of all the continents. Together the shelves cover an area nearly one-fifth as large as earth's dry land. National Geographic says.

Social Services Board Retirees Honored

A luncheon honoring Dr. Ray Hartness (left) as out going chairman of the Board of Social Services was recently held at the Ramada Inn in Clemmons. Also honored were past chairman Julius Sulter and Bud Alexander, (right) All were presented gifts for their service and dedication.

Public Hearing Comments Given On Conservation Programs

A public hearing on the Resource Conservation Act was held on August 31 to obtain comments on conservation programs from interested local citizens.

The Resources Conservation Act, often abbreviated RCA, was enacted last November by Congress to provide local people with an opportunity to help shape national conservation programs. It directs the Secretary of Agriculture to do two things:

1. Report on the status and condition of the nation's soil, water and related resources, and

2. Prepare a conservation program based on this appraisal.

The appraisal of soil, water and other resources will be completed by December 1979 - and then made again five years later. The conservation program that responds to needs indentified in the appraisal will be prepared to include a national policy and a budget that will be updated each year. Finally the program will be evaluated to see if it is accomplishing its goals. This will be done by January 1981, and each year after.

I. A. Control of water at the source, i.e. on the land.

(a) by small ponds

(b) by land treatment.

B. That more financial assistance should be made available for these permanent conservation practices, instead of short term practices.

C. The cost of installing a conservation practice has increased drastically. That not enough financial assistance available.

D. The needs of individual farms do vary. A conservation program with a broad perspective should be developed to satisfy the various needs.

II. An informative program needs to be carried on to inform the part-time farm population about Soil Conservation and Soil Stewardship.

III. Roadsides are eroding and vegetation is not maintained on our public highway right-of-ways.

IV. Land use planning should consider prime farmland.

V. A. Our forest land is not being as productive as possible. There is a need for better utilization of a forest crop.

B. More stands need to be grown to timber size.

C. Reforestation should begin soon after harvesting.

VI. A. Farmland in production should be taxed differently than development land or land held for speculation.

B. Farmers need to be protected from the inheritance tax to preserve the farm and the farm family.

Ingersoll-Rand Sponsors Business Awareness Day

Glenn Howard (left) talks with Bob Armstrong, general manager of the Portable Compressor Division from Woodcliff Lake, N.J., and Bill Kid, manager of Engineering and Development at Ingersoll.

Ingersoll-Rand officials (l to r) Lee Davis, supervisor of management planning, Bruce Stolba, manager of marketing operations, Bob Webster, supervisor of process engineering were available for questions by guests after the luncheon.

By Kathy Tomlinson

Area business and political officials participated in a business awareness day last Thursday sponsored by the Ingersoll-Rand Company of Mocksville.

The approximate 30 participants were given a tour of the local Pack Air Division which serves as world national headquarters by Bob Webster, supervisor of process engineering, and Jerry Seager, machine shop manager, On the tour of the plant which employs 750 Davie Citizens, guests were shown the complete manufacturing process of portable air compressors which are shipped world wide, with emphasis placed on the automation inforce at the Mocksville facility.

After the completition of the tour, guests were hosted by Ingersoll-Rand officials at a Bermuda Run luncheon. Featured speaker was J. Fred McLimore, member of the faculty of the school of management at Purdue University; who has borrowed from his own industrial experience of 15 years to bring the lack of econmic education among American young people light.

Believing that there is a complete ignorance of economics and the mechanics of the American free enterprise system, he stressed the awakening of business, political and educational leaders to strike a coalition and help alleviate the problem.

"We have become so progressive that the basic fundamentals of what has made the United States the land of opportunity have been forgotten," said McLimore.

"There is a complete misunderstanding of what the system is all about," he commented, "and it is my concern to show people that together with business great things can be accomplished."

McLimore concluded that there must be an awakening of local officials and citizens dedicated to the educational promotion of the free enterprise system.

This is the beginning of plans sponsored by Ingersoll-Rand to help promote and economic understanding between business and the local people.

The day concluded with a time allotment for questions and answers between Ingersoll officials and local participants.

Explains Process

Luncheon

Approximately 30 local business, political and educational officials enjoyed lunch at Bermuda Run Golf and Country Club during the business awareness session sponsored by Ingersoll-Rand.

Mrs. Dot Hilton Is Chairman Of Mental Health For Ephesus

Mrs. Dot Hilton of Mocksville has been named Mental Health Bellringer chairperson for the Ephesus area for the October 1978 campaign, announced Ludie H. White, President of the Mental Health Association in North Carolina.

"The Mental Health Association is the largest citizens' voluntary advocacy organization in the United States fighting mental illness and promoting mental health," said Mrs. White.

Since the organization is non-profit and non-governmental, its entire support must come from contributions such as those to be collected in October.

The original and continuing purposes of the Association are to:

-improve attitudes toward mental illness and the mentally ill through public education;

-improve services for the mentally ill; and

-work for the prevention of mental and emotional illness and the promotion of mental health.

Television In The Classroom Is Important Tool

Television in the classroom has a power all its own. It cannot be ignored. There is evidence indicating that school television (STV) can improve reading skills, encourage class discussion and promote student interaction.

Today it is estimated that one-third (15 million) of the nation's kindergarten through 12th grade students regularly receive a portion of their instruction through television. In North Carolina, 28 per cent of the teachers who recieve a useable signal use school television. Among parents and educators alike, there is increasing interest in the medium's total impact on education.

Current STV series shown on UNC-TV stress the basics of reading, writing and mathematics as well as include courses on art, science, music, history, consumer affairs and career education.

More and better programs account for part of STV's increasing use, but factors involving the students themselves are also important. Children's familiarity with television is often cited as a reason for its importance in classrooms.

Educators also stress the wide diversity of students who respond postitively to television. On Iowa elementary school teacher says: "Television cuts across the ability lines. Attentiveness and interest are virtually the same, no matter what the student's ability. Retention of information learned from television is very good because it used visual senses."

The mobility of television is also an important consideration. Television can take students to places they may never have the opportunity to see.

Besides bringing new material into a classroom, television can augment and improve existing tools. Certain programs can add a new dimension to a traditional course. For example, ALL ABOUT YOU, a program which demonstrates how the body functions and examines the benefits of good health care, can contribute substantially to a health science class.

The inherent entertainment value of television is another important asset. Ideal are presented in an entertaining way, yet the concepts are there and children grasp them more readily. SESAME STREET is a good example of this.

The resources of television are much greater than that at any one school. Many STV programs have production costs in the tens of thousands of dollars, making them too costly for any one school or school system to produce. Television's ability to draw upon the expertise of professionals and its mobility gives it instructional capabilities that traditional educational methods cannot equal.

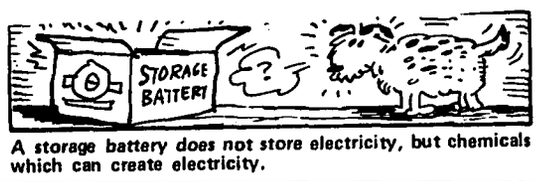

An example of STV improving reading skills is given in the case of a Cincinatti school experiencing a continuing downward trend in average reading achievement. The trend was reversed when the school began using the reading series THE ELECTRIC COMPANY.

A school in Oceanside, New York improved both reading and writing skills by using COVER TO COVER, a series which discusses one or two books during each segment and describes part of the story of each book.

To stimulate student involvement in a televised lesson, many STV programs are open-ended; a problem is presented but no solution is supplied. This type of program allows the students to see the problems of others and relate them to their own problems. A program might deal, for example, with the difficulty of defining and applying the concept of "success" to one's own life. Since no pat answer is given, the program, with the active encouragement and guidance of the teacher, can stimulate spirited student debate and critical thinking.

The open-ended program points up the necessity of having well-prepared, interested teachers use television fully. STV does not replace the teacher. It is a teacher resource, accompanied in many instances by printed study materials which require the teacher's skilled participation.

Television's assets and resources, its mobility and familiarity, its ability to instruct and involve all contribute to its growing popularity.

Social Security

People working in employment or self employment covered by social security are earning credit differently this year than they did before 1978. Social security credits are measured in units called quarters of coverage. A person's right to benefits is determined by the number of quarters of coverage he or she has. The required number basically depends on a person's date of birth. No one needs credit for more than 40 quarters of coverage--10 years.

Starting in 1978 a person receives credit for one quarter of coverage for each $250 of covered annual earnings up to a maximum of 4 quarters if annual earnings are $1,000 or more. This applies to both employees and self employed people. Before 1978 most employees earned one quarter of coverage if they were paid $50 or more in covered wages during a calendar quarter. Self-employed people earned 4 quarters of coverage if their annual net earnings amounted to $400 or more. In addition, the $250 measure will increase each year to take account of increases in average wages in the U.S.

No changes were made in the rules about how many quarters of coverage are required for benefit eligibility.

More information about social security credits and how they are earned can be obtained at the Salisbury social security office, located at 105 Corriher Av. The telephone number is 634-2868.

My friend told me that I could apply for benefits for my dead husband who died 4 months after an automobile accident. I didn't believe it. Is it true?

In your case, probably not, since your husband was apparently not disabled for the entire 5 months waiting period. But it is true that an application for disability benefits can be filed after the death of a disabled worker. If the claim is approved, back payments may be made for some months preceding the death of the worker. The application must be filed within 90 days after the worker's death.

I received about $1,000 in income tax refund this year. Will this affect my social security check?

No. Income tax refunds do not count as earnings.

Do I need to come to the office to report things to social security?

No. Mail or phone the information.

I'm taking driver's education in high school and will need a social security number when I apply for my license. How do I get one?

Contact any social security office and ask for form SS-5. Proof of age (such as a birth certificate) and of identity (such as a student card) should be submitted; they will be returned. Since it takes about 6 weeks to get a card, apply early.

I just got married a few weeks ago. Does my marriage have any effect on my SSI payments?

A change in your marital status could affect the amount of payments due you and your husband or wife. You should notify social security promptly. The people there will tell you how your marriage affects your payments.

I recently applied for an auto loan from a finance company. The person who took my application asked for my social security number. I didn't want to give it to her, but she said the company uses social security numbers for filing purposes. Is this practice legal?

Some non-government organizations use social security numbers for record-keeping purposes. Such use is neigher required nor prohibited by Federal law. Knowing your number, however, does not allow these organizations to get information from your social security records.

I pay a monthly premium for Medicare hospital insurance protection because I didn't have enough social security credits to get it. I also have the medical insurance part of Medicare and pay the monthly premium for it. Can I drop the medical insurance?

If you are buying hospital insurance protection, you cannot cancel your medical insurance without losing your hospital insurance too. However, you can cancel your hospital insurance and still continue your medical insurance.

I'm a roust-a-bout and change jobs frequently. Now that I'm in my 50's, I want to check the records to make sure that all my earnings have been reported correctly to social security. Can this be done?

Yes. All you have to do is call, write or visit any social security office. Someone there will give you a form called, "Request for Statement of Earnings." You can use this form to find out the wages credited and the quarters of coverage you have under social security.

I've been told that when I'm 65, the monthly retirement checks I can get on my own earnings record will be higher than the payments I'm now getting. Can I change over from widow's benefits to retirement benefits at that time?

Yes. You can apply for retirement payments on your own earnings record at 65. If you're entitled to two benefits, social security will pay the higher amount.

I'm a housewife and haven't worked in the past 12 years. Now that my kids are older, I'm planning to get a job again. Will I be starting from scratch as far as social security is concerned, or will I still get credit for the 5 years I worked before I got married?

If you work in a job covered by social security the credits you earned during those 5 years remain on your record permanently. If you return to work, the additional credits will be added to your social security earnings record.

What other dependents besides children may be eligible for benefits on a disabled worker's record?

In addition to disabled children, unmarried children under 18, and children between 18 and 22 who remain unmarried and in school, other dependents that may qualify for benefits include a wife at any age if she has a child under 18 or disabled in her care getting benefits on your, the worker's record; a husband or wife age 62 or older even if there are no children getting benefits.

I was thinking of opening a bank account for my 4-yr. old son. Does he need a social security card for this?

Many banks use the social security number as their own means of identification, and it is also used for tax purposes (such as reporting interest). You can apply for a number, on his behalf, at any social security office in person or by mail. His birth certificate will be needed as evidence of age and citizenship.

Because I have very little income, I live with my daughter. She helps to support me. Does this make me ineligible for SSI payments?

You may be eligible for SSI payments, but your SSI payments may be reduced. If an eligible individual lives in another person's household and receives support and maintenance in kind from that person, the basic SSI payment is reduced by one-third. This reduction takes the place of counting the dollar value of the support and maintenance as income.

The aged widow next door to me has been living on the insurance her husband left her. Now that's gone and she has no income at all. I'm taking her to apply for SSI payments, but they won't start right away and she needs money now. Is there any way she can get immediate financial assistance?

The social security office can authorize an emergency advance payment if an SSI claimant is eligible for one. Also, some state and local governments make interim assistance payments to SSI claimants who are waiting for a decision on their eligibility.

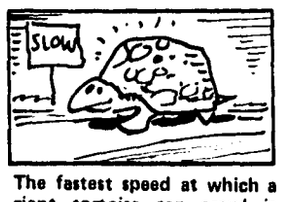

For more information, call any social security office.

My wife and I are leaving next month for a tour of Europe. We'll be gone for about 10 weeks. Can we arrange to have our social security retirement checks forwarded to us?

Special rules apply to social security beneficiaries while they are ourside the U.S. If you go outside the country for 30 days or more, your absence may affect your right to checks. For more information, ask at any social security office for the leaflet, "Your social security check while you're outside the United States."

I have a woman who comes into my home twice a month to clean. I'm a busy man and I don't see why I should bother to keep records and report her wages to social security when I'm only paying her a small wage?

If you pay your household worker $50 or more in cash wages in a calendar quarter you must report her wages. There are penalties for failing to report her wages, and you would be depriving her of the earnings credit she will need someday to get benefits under social security.

The fastest speed at which a giant tortoise can crawl is about five yards a minute. If it could travel five times as fast, it would be going at almost one mile per hour.

The talented hands of wood carver, George Hairston, are kept busy carving original designs, all native to Davie County, for the Court House.

George Hairston...

Something Special For Davie County

There are touches of beauty being added in the Davie County Court House that will set it apart from any other.

Plagued by the idea for at least six months before he actually began the carvings, George says, "I wanted to leave this kind of work for the people in Davie County ... It is highly visible and will last forever."

It all began when Martha Kontos of the Davie Arts Council asked George about doing some volunteer work with youngsters in the schools. In manageable groups, George is working with the entire fourth grade. His plans include taking them to the N.C. Arts School and SECCA mainly because he says he feels "the kids need to see the context of art work more clearly."

Some of the kids were a little mystified by seeing an artist in their school and Hairston thought perhaps it would all seem a little less baffling if they could see things in a different context. He says SECCA is perhaps one of the best galleries in the Southeast and the Arts School is known around the world. The school board agreed that taking the kids would be a great idea. The fact that the kids would be outnumbered by artists and their work would certainly impress them.

Hairston had tried to persuade the Arts Council to fund his wood carving project for the county and the town, however they were too deeply involved with performers at the time. He then approached Ron Vogler, the county manager, about using him for a reference and this was the beginning.

Hairston had been actively involved in the Arts Council and craft fairs in this area for quite some time, but the work he is doing in the court house is much more rewarding than making craft items for sale.

Hairston's project is funded, only one year at a time, through Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), a government funded program and not by tax money from local residents. He says if Davie had not been able to get a portion of these funds, it is possible that it would just go back into the State for possible funding somewhere else.

Hairston feels that even though the work he is doing could go on for years, in one years time he can add a great many carvings to the court house for all the people in Davie County to admire and enjoy.

He has been able to purchase the wood far below wholesale cost. For outdoor carvings George prefers to use redwood, but for his interior carvings he uses walnut.

At this point, his work is displayed on the north side of the court house - above the door opening into the court room, above doors and windows facing west and in the county commissioners room.

His general theme is the "interlocking circle" using designs which are native to Davie County.. Things which have either grown here or are not growing in this county...agriculturally or ornamentally.

Many of his ideas came from working with the fourth grade kids. "Their ideas are definitely involved," Hairston said. "I asked for their help and ideas for the carvings." The kids gave him their drawings, which at this time will fill several big boxes. He says he enjoyed looking through them and from the drawings, regardless of how rough they may have looked, originated many good ideas.

The work George is doing for the people of Davie County has been very rewarding. Although the amount of money, he is paid is small, he says it is great experience and even more professional recognition, which is he'lpful to any artist.

George has also talked with the Mayor of Mocksville about doing some work around the town...such as large, attractive munincipal signs which will continue to look good for many years to come.

He has also done a great deal of carvings from solid ivory. In fact, George recently received a permit from the Congress of U.S. to use ivory for his carvings.

His talents are not limited to just wood carving by no means, but apparently he does enjoy working with wood. In months to come, more and more of his work will become visible in the court house.

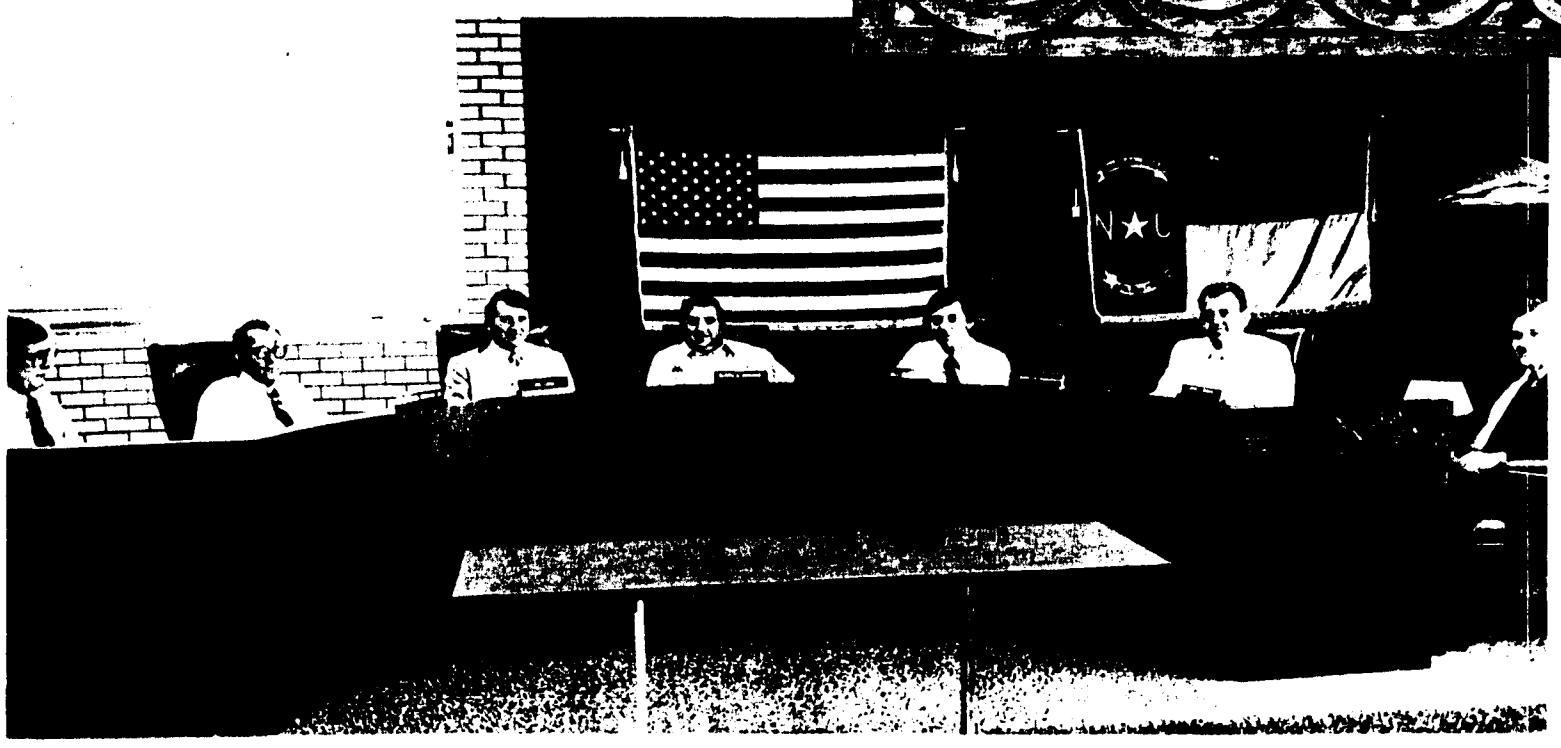

George Hairston is giving much more to the the people of Davie County than he is receiving in return. For many generations to come his work will be admired and remembered for the purpose in which he genuinely intended..."leaving something special here for the people of Davie County."

Close up look at one of the finished carvings.

Girls Tennis Team Wins Second Straight Match

The Davie High girls tennis team won their second straight match with a 5-4 victory over conference foes Asheboro last Tuesday at Davie's home courts.

The match was tied at 4-4 with only one doubles game remaining. Davie's team of Paige and Tracey Stapleton downed Asheboro's Allison Myatt and Bev Von Cannon in three sets to give the Eagles the victory. The sisters won the game 6-2, 5-7 and 6-4.

Davie's number one singles player, Tammy Allen, won her match over Lori Kishbough 6-0, 6-2. Asheboro took the number two and three spots with Hope Snyder defeating Jill Amos 6-1, 6-0 and Bev Von Cannon beating Tracey Stapleton 6-3, 6-4.

Other singles winners for Davie were Jennifer Hanes and Paige Stapleton. Hanes downed Tammy Bailey 6-4, 5-7, 6-4 and Stapleton downed Anna Atwater 6-4, 6-4. The other singles match showed Asheboro's Allison Myatt winning a 6-3, 6-3 decision over Katherine Grissette.

In number one doubles play the team of Kishbough and Snyder defeated Davie's team of Amos and Allen 7-5, 6-3. In number three doubles, Davie's team of Grisette and Kathryn Latham won a 7-5, 6-4 decision over Amy Armstrong and Karen Jordan.

over non-conference opponents Forbush.

Davie swept singles play with Allen, Amos, Tracey Stapleton, Hanes, Grisette and Paige Stapleton all downing their Forbush opponents with case.

In doubles action Davie's top team of Amos and Allen decisioned Missy Speas Cindy Hauser 6-3, 6-0. The Eagles number three team of Angela Riddle and Regina Williams downed Gayle Johnson and Beth Saylor 3-6, 6-3, 7-6.

Forbush's only win came when the team of Suzie Johnson and Angie Myers won a 6-3, 3-6, 6-1 decision over Latham and Karen Cornatzer.

Last year, Davie finished fourth in the North Piedmont Conference and Asheboro was third. Davie is coached by Dennis McCarthy.

Sept. 14 at Davie, North Davidson; Sept. 18 at Davie, Salisbury; Sept. 21 at Lexington; Sept. 25 at North Rowan; Sept. 28 at Davie, West Rowan; Oct. 2 at Thomasville; Oct. 5 at Asheboro; Oct. 9 at Davie, North Davidson; Oct. 12 aat Salisbury; Oct. 16 at Davie, Lexington; Oct. 19 at Davie, North Rowan; Oct. 23 at West Rowan; Oct. 26 at Davie, Thomasville. Little League Football Opener Gets Season Underway

The Little League Football season opened on Saturday night celebrating Teacher Appreciation Night with the Trojans and the Cowboys playing to a 0-0 tie. From the opening kickoff it was evident these two teams were equally matched, and the possibility of a tie was in the minds of everyone in attendance.

In the second game a lot of scoring resulted in the Oilers defeating the Chiefs 28-6. David Gillespie scored three touchdowns and John Folmar ran for one while John Talbert rushed for two extra points for the Oilers. Roger Smoot scored the lone touchdown for the Chiefs.

Next week the footballers will be celebrating Rescue Squad and Ambulance Service Appreciation Night.

The schedule will bring the Cowboys vs. the Rams at six o'clock followed by the Oilers vs. the Trojans at seven o'clock.

Standings	Won	Lost	Tie
Cowboys	0	0	1
Trojans	0	0	1
Chiefs	0	1	0

Motorcycle Championships This Weekend At Farmington

Farmington Dragway will be the scene of the North Carolina Motorcycle Championship this week-end September 16 and 17, 1978. Featured in the two-day event will be Top Fuelers: Ray Price of Raleigh, N.C. in the nation's fastest funny bike; John Dixon of Wallace, N.C. in a supercharged Yamaha; Roland Stuart of Gainesville, Fla. in a twin-engine Harley-Davidson; ---PLUS---The premier of Danny Johnson's new supercharged Kawasaki.

Johnson, of Yadkinville, N.C. former number one Top Fuel rider in the country, will debut his own bike after spending almost two years building and designing his own creation. He is best remembered in his Harley-Davidson that made him the number one qualifier in every race he entered in national competition before his temporary retirement. Johnson will also be defending his unprecedented record of never having lost a race at Farmington, which is only nine miles from his home.

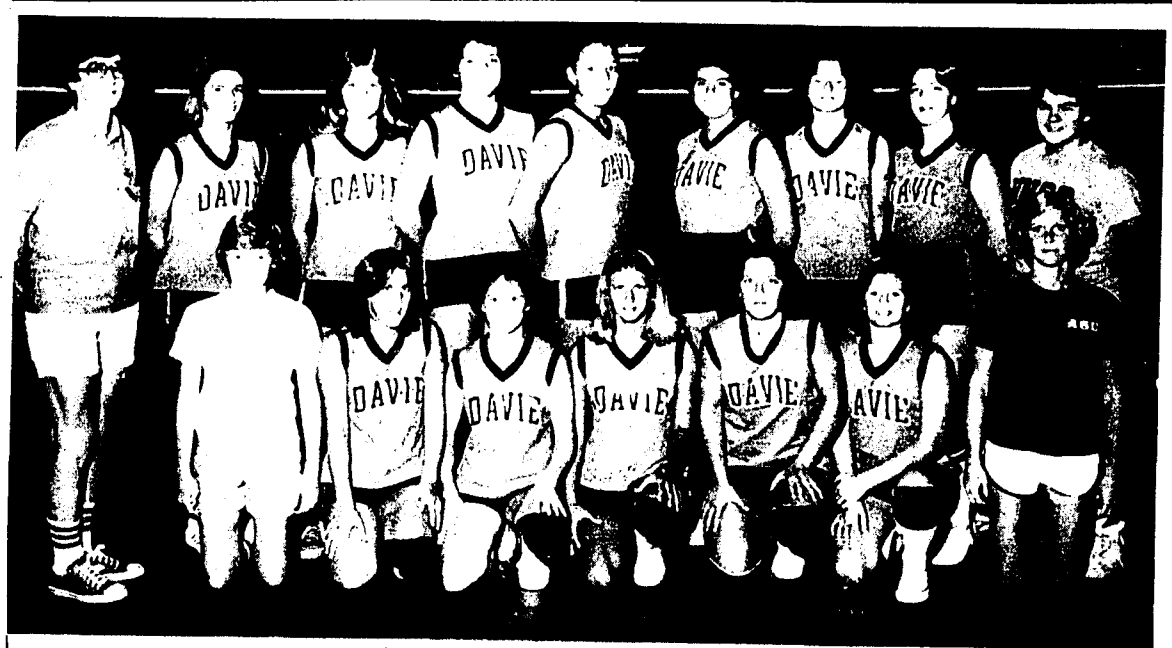

Also featured will be competiton in Open Gas, E.T. Classes, and Show Bikes. Qualifying will be held in all classes on Saturday only along with a Motorcycle Swap Meet. Gates open Saturday at 12:00 with eliminations Sunday at 2:30.

Charged With Possession

Wade Allen Osborne, 20, of 16 Duke Street, Cooleemee was arrested about 1:15 a.m. Sunday morning and charged with the possession of a controlled substance. Osborne allegedly had in his possession a plastic bag of marijuana and smoking paraphanelia.

Bond was set at $2,000 for a court appearance on September 25, 1978.

The DEACONS

by Pat Gainey

Wonder if John Mackovic would let Arnold Palmer call a few plays from the sidelines against Virginia Tech this Saturday night? Wonder if John Mackovic will try to matchup his golfing skills with those of Palmer, Lanny Wadkins, Gary Hallberg, Bob Byman, David Thore, Jim Simons, Scott Hoch, or Jay Haaas? To take it all a step further, why even bring up such notions at all?

You must understand that this coming weekend at Wake Forest is not your common, garden variety, everyday, run-of-the mill sports weekends. There's plenty of golf and there's plenty of football on tap for those who care for either or both, or for that matter, those who don't care at all.

In the football camp the Deacons will put their 1-0 record against Virginia Tech in a 7:30 p.m. kickoff at Groves Stadium. Earlier in the day Arnie and Gang will have teed it up at Bermuda Run Golf Course for the Wake Forest Pro-Am and Exhibition to raise money for the Worsham-Knott scholarship fund established for the golf program years ago by Palmer.

Mackovic says he intends to spend the day roaming the Bermuda Run course during the tourney, visiting, meeting a few folks. He lives out there, you see. So does Lanny Wadkins. Palmer hasn't said if he'll offer Mackovic any coaching advice but I rather suspect he'll take a seat in the new box seat section of Groves Stadium and sit back to watch his Alma Mater's football team in action.

With the Deacs having wrested a 14-0 win from the Virginia Cavaliers behind a strong passing performance by Ken Daly and the running of James McDougald and Albert Kirby and with the Pro-Am event in town a crowd of upwards to 26,000 should be on hand for the grid contest. Nobody's saying how many folks are going to be out at the golf tourney. All they're saying is that the Worsham-Knott chest will be $100,000 richer by the end of Saturday afternoon.

For those of you who would come for events such as these, here's the best way to play the angles and save a bit of money, even if none of it goes to help with the balance of trade: tickets to the Pro-Am are $5 each and you can get them at Bermuda Run or at the Wake Forest Athletic Ticket Office. If you have a ticket for the Pro-Am and you want to attend the football game you can get $2 off the price of an adult's ticket with your Pro-Am ticket stub. Now, if you want to take the family, stop by any Winston-Salem area Hardees and pick up a coupon that will save each of your children $1 off the price of a child's ticket to the football game.

Now, (and hold on for this) if you want to play in the tournament, tee it up and everything, fullfill all those Mitty dreams of whipping Palmer, Wadkins, and Simons with a 45 foot eagle putt on the 18th green, hob-nob with them, meet Buddy Hackett and the entire gallery, the sum is $1,000. That's right. A mere $1,000 will get you a round of golf with those pros. Think that's a bit steep do you? Call Neiman-Marcus in Dallas, Texas and tell them this is what you want to give a friend for Christmas. They specialize in being able to satisfy virtually any whim for a price. If you are going to pass this time, call them later on.

If you're not inclined toward the golf set then come see the Deacs in action at Groves Stadium against Bill Dooley's Virginia Tech team. Tickets there are $8 and $4. It'll be a good show too. John had 'em "smokin' " when they came out against Virginia.

And if you're not inclinned toward either and you've read this far just to pass the time of day, have a good weekend. It'll certainly be more peaceful than mine will be. A thousand dollars? A thousand dollars. Have a good weekend.

Bordens Wins 2nd In Class B Softball Tourney

The Davie County Bordens' Club B softball team captured second place honors in a state tournament played Labor Day weekend at Mayodan.

Smokey Joe's of Lexington was the tournament winner.

Thirty-two teams were entered in the tournament.

Bordens won five out of seven games and five of the ten Bordens' team members made the tournament's all-state team. These all-state team members were Kathy Hutchens, Judy Howard, Patricia Dwiggins, Vickie Wilson and Deanna Thomas.

East Davie Jaycees Sponsor Tournament To Fight Dystrophy

On Two consecutive weekends the East Davie Jaycees sponsored a softball Tourney with proceeds going to Muscular Dystrophy.

August 18-20 Eight men's teams competed with Unifi winning the championship over Mawlers, 2nd and Band B Green House 3rd Leading hitters Trophy went to Danny Matthews, playing for Unifi.

August 25-27 eight womens teams competed with Borden winning the championship, Riley Oil 2nd and Bordenettes 3rd. Leading Hitters Trophy went to Patricia Dwiggins playing for the Bordens.

During the two weekend East Davie Jaycettes assisted with concessions. The Jaycees would like to thank all the teams and everyone who helped in any way with the tournament. The total proceeds goining to Muscular Dystrophy was $724.00.

Walt Boyle Sr. Sets Torrid Pace In YMCA Swim Meet

Fifty-four year old Walt Boyle Sr. of Bermuda Run catpured numerous honors last weekend as a participant in the 4th Annaul YMCA Invitational Masters' Swim Meet held at Fayetteville.

In his class Boyle won the 100-, 200-, 500-, and 1,650-yard events. In winning these events Boyle broke his own North Carolina swim records and all of the established meet records for the events.

Swimmers from all over the nation came to Fayeteville last weekend to compete in the short course meet.

Davie Runners In Carolina Street Scene 10,000 Meter

Larry Lanier, 28, of Advance, led a group of six Davie County runners who competed in the Carolina Street Scene 10,000 meter road race in Winston-Salem last Saturday.

The race was sponsored by Schlitz Light, and was held in conjunction with the Carolina Street Scene Arts and Crafts festival.

The other Davie County runners who completed the race and received a t-shirt were; Taylor Slye, Tom Stayer, Barbara Latta, Denise Wood and Bill Ferebee.

A fun run will be held this Sunday at the Davie High School track at 7 p.m. and all interested persons are invited to attend. Distances will vary depending on the runners ability and beginning runners are urged to come out and run with a few of the experienced runners who regularly attend.

FIRES

--September 7 - the William R. Davie Fire Dept. responded to a tobacco barn fire at the Clint Smith residence at 9:04 a.m.;

--September 7 - the William R. Davie Fire Dept. responded as a standby to a truck accident at 3:50 p.m. on highway 601 N.; and

--September 11 - the Center Fire Dept. responsed to a car fire at Bear Creek Hill at 7:10 a.m.

You And Your Pet

No one likes to consider the possibility that some day a favorite pet might be injured in an accident. Yet given the fact that most dogs and cats are free to roam the house and neighborhood, it's best to be prepared to administer first aid to your pet.

Your first step in providing first aid should be to take precautions against being bitten or scratched--even if your pet is normally good-natured. Do not assume that a pet in pain will recognize a familiar voice or face. Use a blanket or jacket to cover the pet's head, or convert a scarf into a temporary muzzle so you can examine the animal safely. To examine a cat,you may need a friend to restrain the cat's feet while you hold its head.

In any accident, the most obvious injuries will be broken bones or heavy bleeding. Broken limbs usually stick out at an unnatural angle and must be immobilized with a temporary splint and some toweling. The splint and broken leg should be wrapped firmly together to prevent further movement which may cause additional bleeding or tissue damage.

The easiest method to control heavy bleeding is direct pressure over the wound by applying a clean handkerchief with your fingers. Blood that is bright red and spurting out rhythmically comes form an artery; darker, slower flowing blood comes from a vein. If you are unable to stop the blood in a few minutes using a pressure bandage, you may have to try a tourniquet. A tourniquet is a narrow strip of material (a tie, stocking or belt) tied tightly between the heart and the wound. Tourniquets must be loosened for one minute at 5 to 8 minute intervals so that the tissues below the tourniquet are not completely deprived of oxygen and blood.

If your pet has stopped breathing, you must apply artificial respiration. Lay the pet out on its right side, and gently pull the tongue of its mouth as far as possible. Apply even steady pressure on the rib cage, with your hands. Press down approximately every five seconds. Do it slowly but with strong pressure to the chest area. The firm pressure also massages the heart. You may have to work on the animal a half hour or more. There's always the possibility of reviving an animal as long as there is a heartbeat.

Heavy bleeding, trauma, pain and severe fright all contribute to the development of shock, even if major injuries are not present. Major symptoms of shock in animals include pale, grayish gums and lips.

Davie County's War Eagles opened their North Piedmont Conference high school football slate last Friday night with a 10-0 victory over Trinity at the Davie High Stadium.

The War Eagles will play at Mooresville on Friday night.

Coach Joe Kennedy's gridders, now 2-0 scored all 10 points in the first quarter, then protected the lead the rest of the way.

Halfback Brent Burton scored in the first quarter on a 25-yard run, then Steve Grubb kicked the extra point.

Grubb also kicked a 30-yard field goal to make it 10-0.

Steve Fleming set up the field goal with a long punt return. Fleming also had two interceptions for the War Eagles.

Burton led the Davie County rushing attack with 72 yards on four carries. Kenny Frost gained 59 yards on 16 attempts.

Davie had 15 first downs to 10 for Trinity and 240 total yards to 199 for the Bulldogs. The War Eagles got 205 yards on the ground and 35 through the air.

Trinity threatened in the third and fourth quarters, reaching the Davie three-yard line in the third stanza and the one-yard line in the final period. Pass interceptions stopped both threats. Davie's Ronnie Wilson had two interceptions for the game.

Coach Kennedy Praises Defense

Randy Athey .....good defensive game

Steve Grubb .....kicked field goal

Greg Young .....good offensive line game

By Doug Livengood

"Our defense just really had a super effort," commented Davie High head football coach Joey Kennedy after his squad shut out Trinity, 10-0,last Friday night.

Actually, the War Eagles' defense has put two fine back-to-back defensive efforts on the boards. In the season opener against West Davidson the Davie defense allowed only one touchdown to be scored against it in that 20-6 victory. Then came the Trinity shutout.

"We were hitting hard on defense Friday night. And we had five interceptions on our pass defense and also recovered two fumbles, noted Kennedy.

"Steve Fleming intercepted two balls for us and Randy Athey played a good defensive game for us," said the Davie coach.

Although his team walked away with a victory over Trinity, Kennedy observed that the War Eagles did "make an awful lot of mistakes, particularly on offense" during the game.

"We've got to iron out some of these mistakes on offense because our inconsistency there is really hurting us," he remarked.

According to Kennedy, some of the brighter sports on offense for Davie in the Trinity game were three pass receptions by Fleming, a 30-yard field goal by Steve Grubb and some good offensive line play by Greg Young.

"Overall, however, I was very pleased with our effort and our team and the coaches were pleased with the victory over Trinity," he added.

Kennedy said "Trinity came up here a whole lot healthier than we thought they would. And when they're healthy they're a pretty good football team."

The Davie coach was pleased to report that his squad did not suffer any injuries in the Trinity game. And he also noted that Rex Allen, Davie's all-state offensive lineman candidate, "might be able to play for the first time this season against Mooresville Friday night."

Mooresville has not won either of its first two games of 'the season. But Kennedy hedged his bets Monday afternoon when describing Mooresville.

"We feel like Mooresville can be dangerous because they're young and because when they start to get some early games success they are going to be tough. They played really tough against a strong West Rowan team," he said.

Palmer, Wadkins And Other Pros Scheduled To Tee Off In $100,000 Golf Exhibition Saturday At Bermuda Run

A $100,000 benefit golf match for Wake Forest University's golf program will be played Saturday at the Bermuda Run Golf and Country Club in Davie County.

Several professional golfers who are graduates of Wake Forest, two amateurs from Wake Forest, touring pro Bobby Wadkins, brother of Bermuda Run professional Lanny Wadkins and several well-known entertainers will head the field of players in the exhibition.

The exhibition is scheduled for Saturday afternoon before Wake Forest plays Virginia Tech in a football game at Groves Stadium in Winston-Salem that night.

Lanny Wadkins, who in addition to being Bermuda Run's touring pro is a former PGA champion, was among the first to suggest the exhibition. Others who will play are tour regulars Arnold Palmer, Jim Simons, Joe Inman, Lornard Thompson, Jay Haas, Curtis Strange, Eddie Pearce and Bob Byman.

Also scheduled are club pro Jack Lewis and amateurs Jay Sigel and Gary Hallberg, the Deacons' latest All-America golfer.

Under the format, a person will pay $1,000 each to join the Deacon stars in exhibition play.

Billy Satterfield, developer of Bermuda Run and director of Saturday's exhibition, said, "It ought to be worth $1,000 to be able to tell your children that you played golf with Arnold Palmer."

He indicated that privilege would go to those with the largest donations. "We'll have a blind draw at breakfast," he said. "We won't do too much cheating...but if somebody slips us some extra money, there's no telling what we'll do."

Satterfield said he is acting as director because several Wake Forest golfers approached him during the Masters golf tournament in April and suggested the idea of the event. Their proposal was to raise $100,000 with an exhibition.

In addition to individual purchasers, several corporations have bought places in the exhibition for their executives and clients. Advance ticket sales have also been to corporations for distribution to their customers.

The contributions are tax deductible. Satterfield has stressed the national publicity which Wake Forest golfers, professioaal amateur, have brought to Winston-Salem.

The tickets are priced at $5 each and after the golf exhibition may be exchanged for a $2 discount off tickets for the football game.

"We in Winston-Salem don't realize what the golf program does for the town," Satterfield said. "We want the merchants to buy 30,000 tickets for the exhibition give away the tickets and have those people fill up the football stadium too."

Tickets for the exhibition are on sale at the following locations:

--Bermuda Run Country Club;
--Northwestern Bank, Clemmons;
--Wake Forest Athletic Ticket Office;
--R & M Sporting Goods, Hanes Mall;
--Forsyth Bank, downtown and main office in Winston-Salem;

Butch Osmon Sets Farmington Dragway Records

Butch Osmon showed a crowd of 1700 drag racing fans at Farmington Dragway that he returned to Farmington to win. The Leavitsburg, Ohio drag racer not only captured the powerful Pro-Comp division in Friday and Saturdays Late Summer Classic, but shattered the tracks elapsed time and speed record in his 1400 horsepower rail dragster.

On the first run, Osmon defeated Ray Weaver of Seville, Ohio with a speed of 155 mph with an elapsed time of 4:67 seconds. He shattered the track record on his second run against Butch Kernoodle of Virginia Beach, Va., by clocking a speed of 161 mph in 4:49 seconds. Osmons dragster suffered a broken valve lifter before the third run, but Osmon made a quick repair. This was done during a one hour blackout when a transformer went out at the track. Osmon had brought an emergency generator for such purposes.

Osmon won against Weaver once again in the third round and promptly turned in an identical speed and time on his record breaking run, 161 mph, in 4:49 seconds. "I guess I had the clutch set perfectly this time," said Osmon, I the dragster was getting too much traction and the adjustment took care of that." Weaver had defeated Osmon at Farmington in July.

"Bunny" Burkett of Sterling, Va. and Butch Kernoodle of Virginia Beach, Va. were behind the wheels of the funny cars, and both had problems either with traction red lighting at the starting line. Ms. Burkett, one of only two funny car drivers on the national curcuit turned her best time at 148 mph with an ET of 5:85 seconds. "It was the first time here with my new funny car", she said, "and I was a little anxious one time tonight tonight, staging too close and red lighting and wasn't getting the traction I needed. I'm ready to come back though, and track officials indicate a return match is being considered."

Local area winners in other divisions were Ricky Smith of King and Bo Moxley of Independance, Va.--Modified; Darrell Gatither, of W-Salem and Billy Reavis of Pfafftown-Pro-Modified; Kenny Melton, Hillsville, Va-Superstock; Tim Cline, Kernersville. Harold Baity, Yadkinville, Lonnie Scriven, W-Salem, Mike Atwood, Walnut Cove-ET Bracket. Melton and Moxley borth won $500 with Revis winning $400. Osmon grabbed the lions share of the $7,025 purse taking home $1500.

Tweetsie To Operate On Limited Schedule During The Fall

With a hint of Autumn in the air,Tweetsie Railroad has announced the implementation of its fall operating schedule effective September 5.

Weekdays through October 29, Tweetsie will operate on a limited schedule,9 a.m. to 5 p.m., to include the train ride around scenic Roundhorse Mountain , Mouse Mine Line Number 9 mini-train ride, deer park and petting zoo, and Old Miners panning for gold.Shops and services in Tweetsie Junction , the restored western town which serves as the depot for the century old steam locomotive, will remain open for browsers and shoppers visiting the popular theme park.

"This limited schedule of operation is geared to provide our visitors with a prime opportunity to enjoy the spectacular fall color season," said General Manager E. Spencer Robbins. "The train operates a little slower so that everyone can savor the beauty of the area, while the other amenities operate to enhance the refreshing the Autumn atmosphere"

In conjunction with the revisee schedule , Tweetsie has issued an invitation to elementary schools in Watauga and Avery countys to bring their newly-enrolled kindergarden and first-graders to the attraction as part of a back-to-school "get-acquainted" program.

"This is a project we have sponsored for several years and found it to be a favorite among the school principals and teachers,parents, and students" , remarked Robbins. "It gives the children an opportunitty to see how an actual railroad company operated during the turn of the century, and to enjoy a sanctioned outing as well".

Tweetsie, the forerunner in coordinating many programs geared to serve the local public, will escalate to its regular schedule on weekends through the October closing date. All amenities within the park will remain open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. as during the regular season.

Additional information regarding Tweetsie Railroad's revised operational schedule may be obtained by calling 704-264-9061 or by writing P.O. Box 388, Blowing Rock, North Carolina.

FISH TALES

BILL ROBERTSON
KURE PIER

Practical jokes and general horseplay is evident anytime fishermen and hunters get together. For a short time, they are released from duties and worries and telephones and can become small boys again. As someone once said, the only difference between man and boy is the price of his toys.

Here at Kure Pier, we get a lot of it. In fact, some of our employees are not adverse to a general hot foot, salting someone's coffee, dropping a shrimp in a friend's soft drink, and others with a little more finesse.

Bobby Theodore operates a gift shop up the street from the pier and occasionally sneaks in a little flounder fishing between customers. Pier employee Ben Horne claims Bobby wouldn'y know a flounder if he caught one. Bobby says Ben is just envious of his flounder prowess.

One day, Bobby came through the pier, saying, "keep an eye on my reel. I gotta run back to the shop a minute."

Ben had been waiting for the moment. Quickly, he reeled in Bobby's tackle, made the encessary adjustments and recast. When Bobby returned, he said, "Better check your line. I saw it jerking a while ago."

Bobby rushed out, set his hook, yelled, "I got him!" Cranking furiously, Bobby reeled in his catch---an extra two pounds of sinkers and a two foot long cut-out cardboard fish. On the side, in big letters, the word FLOUNDER.

Red Doty is now mayor of Kure Beach. Skipper Carl Snow invited Red and a few friends to accompany him and a few friends on a trolling trip to High Rock. Spanish Mackeral had been showing up in good quantities. Red was anxious to get in on the catch.

He managed to keep up with the crowd until he made a trip below. Carl gathered up Red's lure and cut the barbs off all his hooks. Without barbs, there was nothing to keep the fish on the hook after striking.

Red fished the rest of the afternoon, getting strike after strike, never landing a fish. Naturally, he took a general riding from all the other fishermen.

Red must have got all his cussin' out of his system that afternoon. Shortly thereafter, he became an ordained Baptist minister.

He came off the pier dressed as a business man, not as a fisherman. That wasn't unusual. It was unusual to be carrying a dress hat full of freshly-caught fish. Naturally, I asked why. "I just came along with the other guys. I don't fish. Kiddingly, I said I'd carry off all their fish in my hat." His smile wasn't that happy, adding, "They're making me do it, too."

From experience, I know that denisons of the deep have a sense of humor, too.

In MarineLand, Florida, I introduced myself to the fish trainer, told him I was interested in fish, owned Kure Pier, and would like to see the whale up close. Permission was granted.

The whale was in a small holding tank. He was about fifteen feet long and four feet across. Half his body was above water. I was within touching distance. His eyes were small in that great hulk of a body. His hide was grey in color, spongy looking, and rather rippled like an old-fashioned bed quilt. I wanted to touch him. Leaning over, I pushed one finger against his hide. He seemed to look at me a long minute and then submerged.

Immediately, he came back to the top of the water and sprayed me from head to foot.

I can swear I saw a twinkle in his eye!

18th Annual Center Fair Labeled Success

The 18th annual Center Fair was labeled a success by officials Saturday as people turned out from all over the county to participate in the festivities.

Held on the grounds of the Center United Methodist Church on Highway 64 just outside of Mocksville, 155 people entered the various categories of competition hoping to win a treasured blue ribbon.

Participating categories of judging included neddlecrafts, horticulture, baking, arts and crafts, flower arrangements, Christmas decorations, house plants and a display of foods found in our natural environment ranging from wild berries to oppussum and racoon meat, plus a wide array of others.

There were 2 judges from the Mocksville area assigned to each of the 11 divisions of competition. Winners in each category were awarded ribbons according to their level of achievement among the entries.

Louise Tutterow of Route 1, Mocksville and chairman of the 1978 Center Fair commented, "we are not disappointed in this year's fair even though the number of entries dropped from 215 to 155 this year."

"We have some outstanding exhibits, and are very pleased with the participation which has brought people from all over the county together."

One of the most famed aspects of the Center Fair is the barbecue for sale during the day which is prepared by local citizens. This year approximately 1900 pounds of pork was cooked to fill the appetities of hungry fair goers. Long lines of people formed throughout the day to get a sample of the abundance of barbecue prepared.

Proceeds of the Center Fair go to the operation of the Center Volunteer Fire Department. Committee members organizing this year's festival were Louise Tutterow, Alice Barnette, Peggy Evans, and Carol Forrest.

Crystal Webb sold balloons to raise money for the heart fund.

St. Jude Announces Drive Chairmen For Cooleemee March

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has announced the appointment of Bobby Blackwood and Charlie L. Jordan as chairmen for the fall door to door march in Cooleemee.

The campaign will take place in late October and the proceeds will be used to continue the work of St. Jude Hospital. Founded by entertainer Danny Thomas sixteen years ago, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is devoted to painstaking medical research and care of children stricken with catastrophic diseases, including leukemia, hodgin's disease and other forms of cancer.

Sr. Jude's is non-sectarian, interracial and completely free of charge to patients. Once a patient is admitted, the hospital provides total medical care and, when needed, also provides transportation and lodging for parent and child.

St. Jude's is the largest childhood cancer research center in the world. The work done there benefits not only the hospital's patients, but children everywhere because the results of this research are shared with physicians worldwide. Everyone can now share in the optimism of a growing "cure rate" because of the work at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

St. Jude's receives assistance from federal grants, but over 60 percent of its support comes from volunteer contributions in October "The residents of this community will have an opportunity to help children live throughout the world by giving what they can to St. Jude's when a volunteer comes to their doors," said the local co-chairmen.

Davie Man Sentenced For Assault On Female

In Forsyth County Superior Court last week James Murry Dewalt of Mocksville was sentenced to a 13- to 15-year term in prison after he pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to commit rape.

The charge was reduced from second-degree rape.

Hilton Head Island is a sportsman's paradise and is one of the most surprising sports resorts in America. There are nine true championship golf courses, Jack Nicklus designed one, Arnold Palmer live on another; and 100 tennis courts. Evonne Goolagong lives here. There is both fresh water and deep sea fishing, sailing, nature trails for cycling, hiking, or horse back riding. Two wild life preserves and mile after mile of beautiful beaches lined with natural foliage are at Hilton Head.

And most surprising of all, you have access to any of the islands sports facilities if you stay in some of the Hotels there or Inns. There is nothing quite like it. And its not too far away, Hilton Head Island, South Carolina.

Recipes from the area

Creole Shrimp

4 slices bacon
1-4 cup chopped onion
1-4 cup chopped green pepper
2 cups canned tomatoes
1-2 tsp. dry mustard
2tbs. vinegar

Fred Pratt Is Critical Of State Expenditures

Fred W. Pratt, Republican candidate for the N.C. House from the 30th Legislative District of Davidson and Davie Counties said that Governor Hunt is seriously mis-reading the mood of the electorate if he thinks that he can satisfy the taxpayer demands for a tax reduction by toying with a one time $50 tax rebate.

"It doesn't really matter to the North Carolina taxpayer whether his per capita tax load is the 48th in the nation or not. All he knows is that his real income is going down and his taxes are going up. North Carolinians are paying 27 percent more in taxes this year than they did just two years ago. The state budget has risen from 3.46 billion dollars in fiscal year 1976-77 to 4.41 billion in fiscal year 1978-79," said Pratt.

Pratt pointed out that by reducing the state budget to last year's level of 3.9 billion dollars and by limiting the taxes collected by general fund revenues, primarily sales and income taxes, to last year's level of 2.06 billion dollars, a tax reduction of approximately 800 million dollars would be possible.

"Last years collection by the general fund increased some 14 percent over the previous year and projections are that this growth will be maintained or exceeded this fiscal year. An 800 million dollar tax reduction would approximate a 150 dollar reduction for every man, woman, and child in the state," said Pratt.

Pratt emphasized that the state must continue its essential services such as public education and public welfare to those who are unable to help themselves. There are, however, he said many ways that the state can reduce its expenditures without a concurrent reduction in essential services.

"For example the state bureaucracy is growing at a rate of some 6,000 employees per year. This can be stopped. Spending for such luxuries as the new veterinary school, the new state building, primarily to provide private offices for legislators, and the new division which the Department of Human Resources recently created to assist its employees and their families with their personal problems, can be eliminated," Pratt said. "If tax collections had not increased as a result of inflation and wage increased the state would have managed to hold expenditures to last year's level. There is no reason to spend this extra money just because it is there," he concluded.

Driver Injured In Wreck

The driver of a 1971 Ford pickup was taken to the Davie County Hospital following an accident last Thursday about 4 p.m. on US. 601 North.

The driver was identified as John Wilmer Eggleston Jr., Salisbury, N.C.

State Highway Patrolman C.W. Bjorkland said his investigation showed that Eggleston ran off the road on the right to avoid hitting another vehicle that had stopped suddenly in front of him. The pickup struck a driveway culvert and went down an embankment.

Developmental Evaluation Centers Aiding Children

The small boy held the necklace of plastic blocks in his hand as he sat in the center's playroom. He was small for four years old--much too small. Later professionals would decide that "Johnny" (not his real name) was suffering from a case of malnutrition. His was a classic case of neglect.

Johnny is one of some 9,000 children each year that are served by one of the state's 19 regionally located Developmental Evaluation Centers (DEC).

The centers are designed to find out what is wrong when the Johnny's of this world aren't developing normally.

Most of the children who are referred to the centers first were noticed as having difficulties in school, by social services workers, by health department workers, or by private physicians, according to Tom Vitaglione who heads the program for the Department of Human Resources, Division of Health Services.

Often, even in small infants, it is easy for one professional to know that something is wrong with a child, but unless the particular difficulty lies within his field, he may not correctly diagnose the difficulty.

Vitaglione said that the purpose of the center is to make sure that each child can reap the full benefits of the services provided by state and private facilities. The program is designed to help everyone in the society reach his or her potential.

When a child is referred to a DEC, he to she is examined by a team of professionals. The child receives a physical examination and psychological tests. His environment is checked by a social worker. He is tested by speech and hearing specialist, educational experts and others.

The parents are interviewed for their insights into the child's behavior.

After a series of tests on the child and the interview with the parents, the professionals meet to discuss how to meet the needs of the child so that the difficulties will be treated and the child will not be lost by society.

In Johnny's case, his mother, who had been a neglected chiild herself, told caseworkers about her treatment of her child which was modeled after her own upbringing.

The professionals decided that Johnny's mother needed nutritional counseling and counseling about how to encourage her child to eat. The child himself needed to be sent to a pre-school program where attempts could be made to correct his anti-social behavior. But the emphasis of the professionals in the regional center was to find a local community facility that would follow-up on the child to make sure that the service programs work.

One reason for concern about the local follow-up program is that Johnny, like most children with a developmental delay, will continue to have their problems if the programs for correction are not followed through.

In Johnny's case, the professionals felt it would be extremely important to weigh him periodically to make sure that the eating program was working. With correction, Johnny's malnutrition could eventually cause this brain function to be limited and the child to become retarded.

Neglect and previously unsuspected abuse are only two of the findings that have been made at the center. Sometimes children are emotionally disturbed. Emotional disturbances in small children sometimes disguise themselves as mental retardation because the children do not respond at the same levels as other children of the same age.

Other findings that are made frequently at the center are learning disabilities, speech or hearing problems, physical diseases or birth defects.

Often, as in Johnny's case, if the disorder is caught early enough it can be corrected and the child can lead a normal life. No child is too young to be seen in the DEC. No child is too rich or too poor.

The service, offered through the Department of Human Resources if designed to help everyone in the society reach his or her fullest potential.

The largest number of children seen by DEC's in the state come from families with incomes of $0 to $5,059. The next largest group of children are from families with incomes of $13,428 or over, which is the highest income category available, Vitaglione pointed out. Fees are charged according to the family's ability to pay.

The Developmental Evaluation Center for Davie County is located in Winston-Salem.

Emergency Farm Loans Available

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has given Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) state directors authority to make emergency loans to farmers as soon as loss from natural disaster is confirmed.

The secretary abolished a time-consuming system in effect for several years that required county governments and state governors to request disaster loan service, then for the Secretary to designate counties where FmHA emergency loans would be made. This course was followed when damage assessment reports indicated the need for 25 or more farm emergency loans in a county.

Under the new, less time-consuming procedure, State Director James T. Johnson will authorize the agency's county offices in North Carolina to make emergency loans to any number of farmers showing a need for emergency credit to offset substantial loss caused by storm, flood, drought or other natural disaster. The state director will act on the basis of available information and damage reports received from FmHA county offices. Designations of eligibility by the Secretary of Agriculture will no longer be required.

FmHA emergency loan services also are automatically available where a major disaster or emergency has been declared by the President.

James T. Johnson said Bergland's action to cut red tape from emergency loan procedure was taken under a provision of the Agricultural Credit Act of 1978, signed by President Carter Aug 4.

FmHA emergency loans are made to farmers lacking other sources of credit for recovery from natural disaster. Beginning Oct. 1, 1978, amounts offsetting actual loss associated with production will be made at an interest rate of 5 percent, and additional amounts at higher rates. Low-rate loans also are made to restore farm dwellings and household effects lost or damaged due to natural disaster. Loans are made through FmHA county offices.

Jericho-Hardison News

The Center Fair has come and gone. Some neighbors entered a combination on things and some came off with high honors we're proud to announce.

The Ruritans had their covered dish supper Thursday night. There was a good crowd and good food. The meeting was held at the Jericho-Hardison building.

I am sorry I didn't have this information at last writing but I will include it now. Mrs. Lester Frye's surprise birthday party was to celebrate her 62nd birthday. There were 48 guests present and she was given a cake by Mrs. Nell Smith and Gwyn. She received many nice gifts and special guest was Mrs. Opal Ward of Mocksville and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Harris. We wish you many more Mrs. Frye.

We hear Roy Feezer is a very good peach peeler and was nice to help out a friend. Keep up the good work, Roy.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Couch and son Wesley are on a little trip this week. Hope its been as nice at the beach as it has been here.

Mrs. Onie Mauldin hosted the Kappa Club Tuesday. There were 13 members present. They have collected some 3264 cancelled stamps to feed the poverty stricken over seas.

Emette Thurlo and son Chad visited his mom and Dad, Mr. and Mrs. Mauldin Thursday evening. They brought a bushel of beautiful tomatoes for Mrs. Walter White that they got from their garden.

J.D. and Lisa Overmiller were guests of her parents over the weekend. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armond Smith.

The Blue Grass Festival was a disapointment Saturday night. I guess too many took in the Center Fair. Its too bad to since it was for a good cause.

Just in case you didn't know Sunday Sept. 10 was a special day for grandparents, a new day honoring grandfathers and grandmothers.

Charles S. Brown of Mocksville was among some 600 freshmen who completed "Knob Week" at The Citadel on Aug. 25. Upperclassmen registered Aug. 29 and began classes Aug. 30. Following traditions evolved at the military college since its founding in 1842, freshmen cadets are indoctrinated druing a week of concentrated training. This enables the new cadets to take their places as members of the South Carolina Corps of Cadets. During "Knob Week" the freshmen underwent instruction in drill, college regulations, honor system, traditions of The Citadel, and other training necessary to assist each new cadet in acquitting himself well in the classroom and on the parade ground. Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Wilfred Brown, 739 Park Ave.

This Is Gospel Music Week

Proclaiming "gospel music as a significant part of North Carolina's religious culture", Governor James B. Hunt has declared the week of September 11-16 as "Gospel Music Week" in the state, and has commended Congressman Bill Hefner of Concord for his leadership in promoting gospel music.

The climax to the week will be the annual Carolina's Song Festival which is hosted by Congressman Hefner at the Charlotte Coliseum. More than 8,000 gospel music fans are expected to attend the festival which begins at 8 p.m. Saturday, September 16 and features some of the top singing groups in the country, including the Statesmen, the Cathedrals, the Hemphills, the Henson Family and the Harvesters.

Governor Hunt publicly recognized Hefner's role in music with a formal citation which noted "that over the past 25 years, Bill Hefner has provided a spiritual uplift to hundreds of thousands of people throughout the United States and Canada". Hunt also commented Hefner for "providing distinguished service and moral leadership while representing North Carolina's Eighth District in the Congress of the United States".

"Gospel music brings spiritual enjoyment to thousands of people," Hefner said. "It is joyous. It is from the heart. It's got rhythm. And it's just good singing with simple messages that all can understand."

Hefner formed the Harvesters Quartet in the 1950's and was a popular entertainer for many years on several radio and television stations. Although he moved into broadcast management, owns a Kannapolis radio station, and now serves in the United States Congress, Hefner said. "I'll never quit singing. I believe in gospel music."

Governor James B.Hunt presents a citation to Congressman Bill Hefner, commending the 8th District democrat for "distinguished service to the Congress" and for his contributions toward "making gospel music a significant part of North Carolina's religious culture". Hunt declared the week of September 11-16 as Gospel Music Week in North Carolina.

Hefner sings occasionally at congressional prayer breakfasts and at other activities in Washington and in the state's 8th Congressional District.

"I am pleased that Governor Hunt has recognized gospel music as a cultural and religious form," Hefner said. "And I'm very honored to have this official citation expressing the state's appreciation for work I've been doing."

Hefner organized the annual Carolina's Song Festival held each fall in Charlotte and has been its host for years. The festival has become a tradition for gospel music fans throughout the carolinas and other nearby states.

Davie Group To Study Students Grading

Educators everywhere are taking a closer look at the way students are graded and promoted and the Davie County schools are no exception.

At its meeting last week, the Davie County Board of Education formed a study committee, with three subcommittees, to study promotion policies, grading and graduation requirements.

The 24-member group, which was scheduled to hold its first meeting on September 11, includes parents, teachers and school administrators.

Subcommittee chairmen are : A. M. Kiser Jr., director of instruction for the county schools, promotion policies; Elaine Strider, elementary supervisor, grading and reporting; and Kermit Buckner, assistant principal of Davie High, graduation requirements.

The committee will discuss school policy and set future guidelines, said James Everidge, superintendent of county schools.

"We anticipate this thing could take all year...we're not going to rush it," remarked Everidge.

In other business the board:

--Approved the Pinebrook PTA's request to sell popcorn during the week of Sept. 21 - Sept. 27;

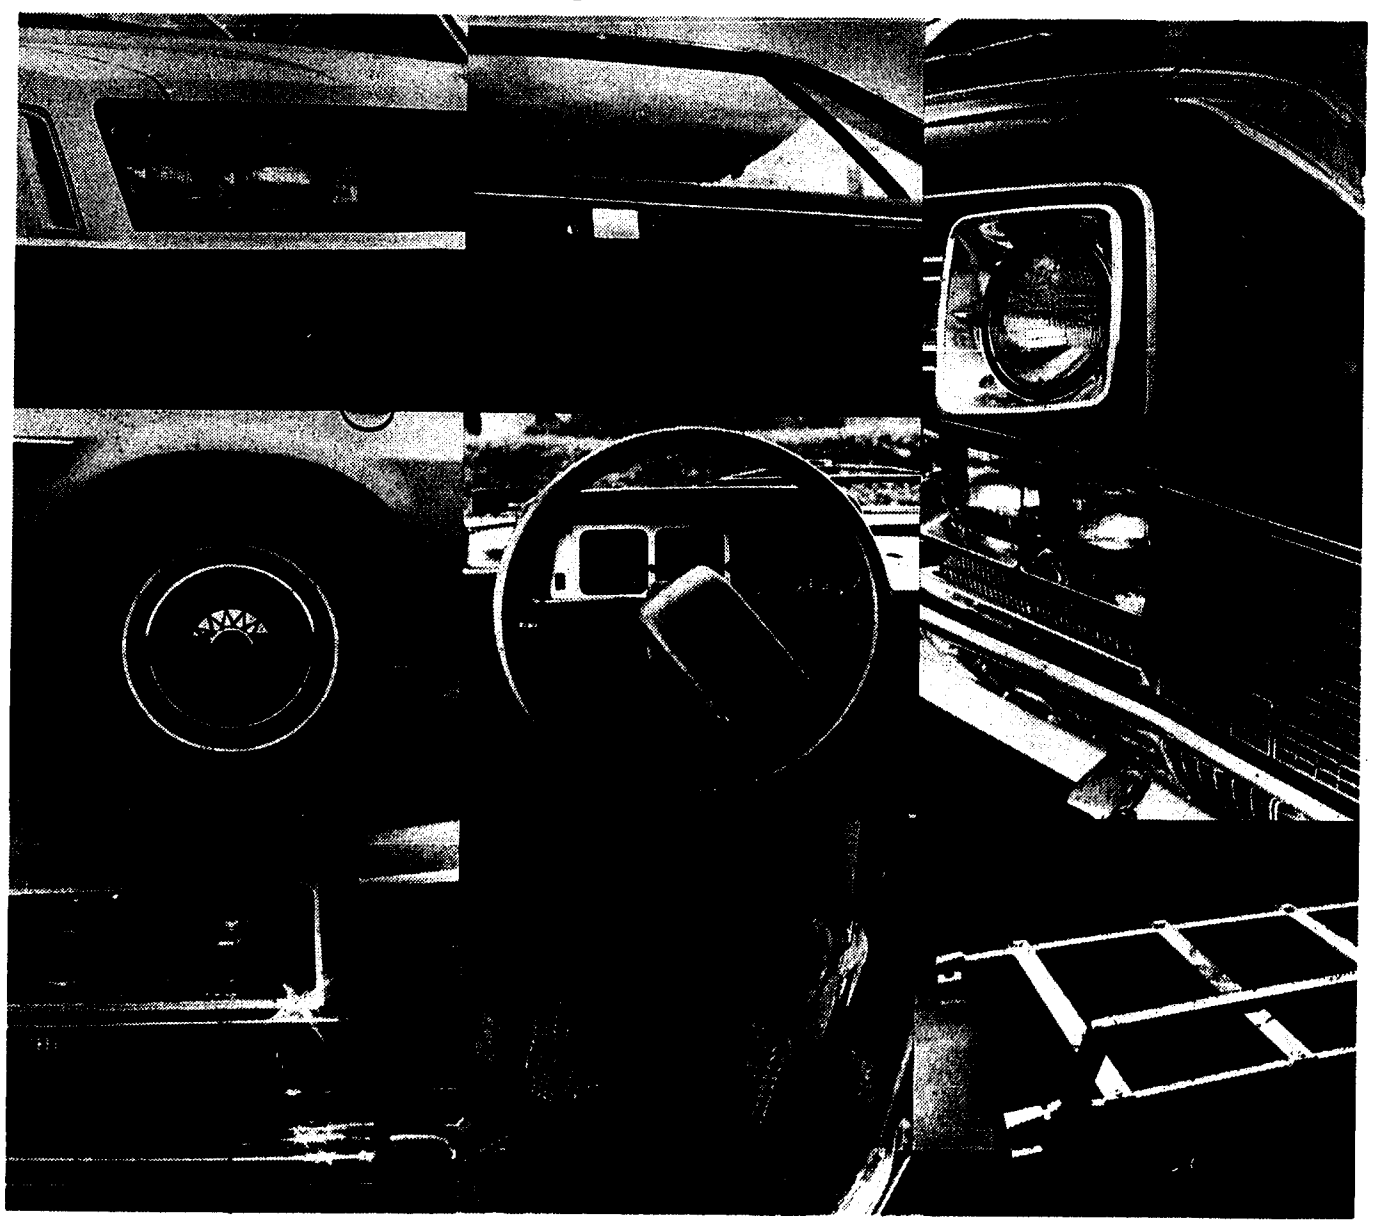

--Approved a magazine sale Sept. 29 - October 9 to raise money for the Davie Countyschools' music program; and

$100,000 MAN—Woodrow Wilson is framed in zeros in this gold certificate issued in 1934. The note is the largest ever issued in the United States. One of the 42,000 notes in the series, printed for Federal Reserve use only, is on display at the National Museum of History and Technology in Washington.

Depression-Era Gold Certificates Bear Impressive String Of Zeros

So this year when Treasury officials decided to get rid of nearly $2 billion in gold certificates that had been locked up for years, they set a few aside. Among them were eight $100,000 notes, the largest denomination ever issued in the United States.

The notes had been lying around since 1934, about the point in the Depression when President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered the Federal Reserve banks to turn in all of their gold.

"The Federal Reserves had huge quantities of gold--some had millions of dollars worth," explained O. H. Tomkinson of the Treasury Department. "So to pay them back, the Treasury Department. "So to pay them back, the Treasury had those IOUs printed up." For convenience, the "IOUs" were printed in the form of big bills--$100s, $1,000s, $10,000s, and the mind-boggling $100,000s.

Printed only to repay the Federal Reserve banks, some of the gold certificates--which bear Woodrow Wilson's portrait never made it out of the Treasury vault. Those that remained locked away included the first note of each denomination, marked with serial number A00000001 A.

"Fortunately, somebody at the Treasury had the foresight to keep them," Tomkinson told the National Georgraphic Society. That foresight also is appreciated by Elvira Clain-Stefanelli, curator of numismatics of the Smithsonian Institution, the new caretaker of some of the notes.

Mrs. Stefanelli said that although the $100,000 note is only one of many rare bills on display at the Museum of History and Technology, it draws people like a magnet.

"One hundred thousand seems to be the magic number," she said. "But actually it'd just a piece of paper. Somebody could steal it, but they couldn't spend it."

Somebody could spend a $10,000 bill--the largest ever issued to the American public. The bill, bearing a portrait of Salmon R. Chase, secretary of the Treasury under Abraham Lincoln, was last printed in 1945.

That year the Bureau of Engraving and Printing also quit making the other big bills, the $500, $1,000, and $5,000. It was almost 25 years before the Federal Reserves used up their stocks of the bills.

"There just was no great demand for them," explained Herbert Krisak of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. "People started using checks and credit cards instead."

Although banks now are supposed to turn these big bills in to the Federal Reserves, there still are some floating around; for example, 362 $10,000 bills remain unaccounted for. Depending on their series and condition, the discontinued bills could be worth considerably more than their face value, says Harvey Stack, a rare-money authority in New York.

Today the biggest bill printed for circulation is the lowly $100; 67 million of them rolled off the presses this year. That's almost twice as many as were printed the year before, an increase that might be attributed to inflation or hoarding because of mistrust in financial institutions.

But big bills can mean big losses.

"A person who hangs onto a $10,000 bill for a year instead of depositing his money could lost $600 in interest," Stack pointed out.

Folk-Ways and Folk-Speech

By ROGERS WHITENER

I can't eat, I can't talk.
Been Drinkin' mean Jake, Lord
Now can't walk.
Ain't got nothing to now to lose
Cause I'm a jake walkin papa
With the jake walk blues.

Recollection of this old blues song recently came in a rather unusual way. Walking through a wooded area near my home one day, I came across a collection of empty vanilla flavoring bottles.

Immediately my mind flashed back to the various other liquor substitutes which were making the rounds during my early years: bay rum, peppermint extract, lemon and orange flavoring, and a host of patent medicines with high alcohol content, including the infamous extract of Jamaica ginger.

Containing up to 70 alcohol, "jake", as it was often called was offered as a medication by drug stores and other agents and was an especially big seller in dry counties of the South.

Usually it was "cut" or adultrated with such substances as molasses, pine resins, herbal extracts and the like, It was usually found in two-ounce bottles which sold for about thirty-five cents each.

Sometimes the purchaser took the contents straight, at other times he might use it to make a bowl of party punch a little more interesting.

It was capable of bringing on a pretty good buzz, often followed by a hangover, but usually offered no more problems than conventional alcohlic drinks.

Then at the turn of the 30's a new "cutting" solution for the jake was introduced: a compound known as TOCP (tri-ortho-cresyl-phosphate).

Soluable and tasteless, it appeared to serve if purpose well.Unfortunately, however, it also affected the cells of the spinal cord and often caused the user to to develop what was known as the "jake" or "jake-leg" paralysis.

If he recovered sufficiently to be able to walk, it was with a high-stepping gait somewhat akin to polio victims. It became known as the "jake-leg" or "jake-walk" and resulted from the inflexibilty of the user's feet and ankles.

The paralysis claimed thousands of victims, including heavy concentrations in such Southern Appalachia states as Kentucky and Tennessee.

Reaction was also widespread. Some ministers claimed that the "jake" was a punishment sent by God because of the sins of mankind.

I went to bed last night, feelin' mighty fine.
Two o'clock this morning the jake leg went down my spine.
I had the jake leg too
I had the jake leg too

HOW TO HANDLE TIME

During World War II a popular radio show was called "The March of Time." Historical events and news items were woven skillfully together to form gripping and exciting episodes. One night after the show had gone off the air, my father took a moment to teach me an unforgettable lesson. "Time doesn't always march," he said. "Usually it races at break-neck speed or drags its feet agonizingly slow." I knew what he meant. I had experienced both.

But in later years I found another fact about time. It can stand still, or seem so. It is as if the hands were removed from the clock and the shadow of the sun refused to move. And that's the way it was when I, as a youth, was confronted by the reality of God. All life around me ceased and eternity was looking me square in the face. The clock of my soul was turned ahead and I stood breathless with amazement. Time was no longer merely the stuff of which life was made. My life moved into a new Kingdom – a new and more exciting reality came into my being. "In the beginning, God . . .," the first words of the Bible, took me from "here" to "there" – and I lost my fear of passing time forever. Now we believers claim the victory in the shout of the angel in Revelation, "Time shall be no more."

Farm Bureau News

Beef prices have been rising for only a few months, but they are attracting much attention because of their importance in the consumer's food budget.

"This is very understandable," according to Kenneth Mintz, president of the Davie County Farm Bureau.

"However it is well for us to be aware of the fact that these higher prices are beginning to signal producers to start rebuilding their herds. The consumer, by absorbing a relatively small cost increase this year, will have helped insure adequarte supplies of beef in the years ahead."

Mintz, who pointed out that Farm Bureau's membership drive is now underway, said "If there is a villain involved in higher meat prices, it has to be inflation."

He said Farm Bureau is a staunch believer in a balanced federal budget and reduced government spending, which is the primary cause of inflation.

Mintz emphasized the fact that despite higher food prices over the years, it has been the farmer's gain in efficiency that has helped keep food costs in check. "The U.S. consumer now spends 4 percent less of his income on food that he did just 10 years ago," he said.

Mintz said by joining Farm Bureau a farmer has at his disposal the largest general farm organization in the county, state, and nation.

"We urge all area farmers to become part of a respected organization that will be working on their behalf at all levels and at all times."

Alcohol Information Report

By: WILLIAM F. WEANT, M.S.
ALCOHOLISM EDUCATION CONSULTANT

Effects of Alcohol on the Body - Alcoholic beverages enter the body in the same manner as regular food products, but the digestive process differs greatly. Alcohol does not need to be digested and can be absorbed from the stomach directly into the circulatory system. This absorption begins immediately upon consumption, and traces of alcohol can be detected in the blood within minutes. Most of the absorption of alcohol takes place within the first foot of the small intestine, with about twenty per cent being absorbed directly through the walls of the stomach. Some may be absorbed through the lining of the mouth.

After entering the circulatory system, alcohol is quickly transported to all parts of the body tissue. Alcohol is thus stored all over the body and not just in particular places in the manner that fat, sugar, and protein are stored. As the blood containing alcohol enters the liver, it is broken down chemically; first into acetaldehyde, then into acetic acid. Alcohol remains in the blood until it is either expelled in the form of waste material or recycled through the liver where it is broken down.

Behavior of the individual "under the influence" can be associated with the level of alcohol in the blood stream:

Alcohol percentage 0.01 percent - Feeling of clear head and free breathing.

Alcohol percentage 0.02 percent - Desire to talk freely and a sense of warmth and well-being.

Alcohol percentage 0.05 percent - Lack of coordination and inhibitions.

Alcohol percentage 0.10 percent - Staggering and a feeling of drosiness.

Alcohol percentage .0.30 percent - Lack of comprehension and intermittent periods of sleeping and vomiting.

Alcohol percentage 0.40 percent - Unconsciousness.

(This is the forty-sixth in a series of articles about "alcohol" provided by Bill Weant, Alcoholism Education Consultant with the Tri-County Mental Health Complex. These articles are designed to create understanding about sensible drinking, alcohol abuse, and alcoholism in our society. If you have a question concerning alcohol that you would like answered in a future column, phone 634-2195).

Jr. 4-H Leaders Complete Landscaping Project At Fran Ray

Junior 4-H leaders of Davie County have recently completed a summer landscaping project at Fran Ray Rest Home located behind Davie County Hospital on Hospital Street.

The program which was supervised by Douglas Lee, assistant extension agent, consisted of pruning shrubs, pulling grass, and planting bedding plants and tomato plants in a 150 ft. long by 3 ft. wide area.

Francis Killen, supervisor of the facility said, "the residents and personnel have greatly appreciated the accomplishments of the club this summer."

"The effort put forward to make this area more beautiful is commendable and we have enjoyed working with each and everyone of these young people."

The purpose of the Junior 4-H leaders is to help volunteers with community clubs and coordinate county wide projects. The work at Fran Ray Rest Home is the first of an annually scheduled landscaping project by the youths.

Infrared Devices Will Benefit Air Travelers And Firefighters

Sharp new eyes are focusing on hazards faced by firefighters and airline passengers.

Infrared devices developed by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in Boulder, Colo., pinpoint forest fires, warn of clear air turbulence, and detect dangerous wind shears at airports.

A scanning radiometer being tested by NOAA scientists can see through the thickest smoke generated by forest fires and zero in on the exact location of a fire line or specific blazes. Moreover, acting as a thermometer, it may someday help head off forest fires before they start by spotting areas on the forest floor that could burst into flame because of very hot and dry conditions.

Mounted in the belly of an aircraft, the infrared eye of the radiometer instantly converts the thermal or heat signals from a hidden fire or hot spot into a visual map. The various shades or hues are calibrated against temperatures to show trouble areas on the map.

From 30,000 feet the device can map almost 4,000 square miles in just 45 minutes.

The instrument got its baptism of smoke and fire last year in California while making surveys of the devastating Big Sur Marble Cone forst fire and performed well.

"We want to see exactly what refinements are necessary in the system, so we're standing by to assist in any major conflagration that may break out west of the Rockies this summer or early fall," said Dr.Peter M.Kuhn, a NOAA meteorologist who has been working to develop new infrared instrumentation.

Anything that would help fire-bosses to direct their counter-attack would be welcome. Smoke is often so thick that pilots can't see well enough to drop chemical retardants accurately.

Unlike smoke, wind shear is an invisible enemy that sometimes gives pilots fits during their final landing approaches. Usually associated with the gust fronts that precede the cold wedges of air emanating from thunderstorms, windshear is a sudden change in wind speed or direction. It can have devastating consequences. Experts say the phenomenon has been a factor in 30 airplane accidents worldwide in the past 10 years.

NOAA's flight testing an infrared radiometer linked to a sensor in the cockpit that would warn a pilot of a sudden change in temperature in his landing path. Computer tests have indicated that the radiometer can pick up significant temperature changes as far as six miles away.

As Dr Kuhn explained, "plane landing normally passes through a steady by gradual increase in temperature, because the temperature of the atmosphere normally decreases about half a degree Celsius with each 328 feet of altitude. In a gust front-wind shear situation there would be a sudden and drastic change. We hope the radiometer will take away the surprise and assurer safer landinfs under these difficult conditions."

Even closer to commercial development is an infrared radiometer that will give airline passengers and flight personnel time to button down before they encounter that unpredictable menace known as clear air turbulence.

Huge air waves break high in the atmosphere--much like ocean waves--and can suddenly plunge an aircraft earthward. Abnormal concentrations of moisture appear in the atmosphere where these air waves break.

In his work Dr. Kuhn discovered that fluctuations in atmospheric water vapor could be detected by radiometers to warn of turbulent areas ahead of an aircraft as much as four to 10 minutes in advance.

Health Tip

From The American Medical Assn.

Hipertension, high blood pressure, is responsibile for 100 deaths a day in this country, afflicting nearly one out of every ten adults. The most susceptible to it are those with a family history of hypertension and blacks, whose risks are twice that of whites.

High blood pressure has been compared to a time bomb - silent until it explodes into fatal or crippling stroke, heart disease, or kidney failure.

Many who have had this disease are uaware of it and some that are aware of it do not adequately comply with treatment. Hypertension causes no pain or other symptoms until the individual is suffering from the long term consequences of the disease.

Blood pressure is the force in which the blood pushes against the walls of the blood vessels. A measurement is taken painlessly with a cuff that fits around the upper arm and a gauge which gives the reading. The reading of your blood pressure is usually taken each time you visit your doctors office.

This reading is given as a fraction. The top number. the systolic pressure, measures the force of the heart pushing blood from the heart into the blood vessels. The bottom number, the diastolic pressure, measures the pressure when the heart is at rest betweeen beats. A pressure of between 100-70 and 140-90 is usually considered normal for an adult.

A higher blood pressure means there is too much strain on the heart and you should consult a doctor.

In most cases, higher blood pressure is easily treated. In milder cases your physican may have you lose weight, restrict your salt intake, quit smoking, and begin a program of regular exercise. Other cases,certain drugs may be prescribed to bring your blood pressure under control.

In either case, follow your physicans orders. High blood pressure

In either case, follow your physican's orders. High blood pressure cannot be cured but it can be controlled. Don't let the silent killer get the best of

Boxwood Realty Celebrates Affiliation With Century 21

Open house festivities were held at Boxwood Realty Inc., Salisbury Street, Saturday and Sunday, commemorating their association with Century 21 Real Estate.

Century 21, the nation's largest real estate marketing firm announced the affiliation of Boxwood Real Estate as a member of their organization last week.

The Davie County High School Jazz Ensemble performed on the grounds Saturday afternoon and free helium filled balloons and growth charts were given to the children. Refreshments were served and registration for door prizes to be awarded was also held.

Danny Correll, president of Boxwood Real Estate said, "we want to thank everyone that made this grand opening possible."

"Through our affiliation with Century 21, we hope to offer our clients what they deserve, a well trained professionally oriented program."

Through Century 21, Boxwood Real Estate will offer a nation wide referal program for homes, and provide a complete photo portfolio of each home listed.

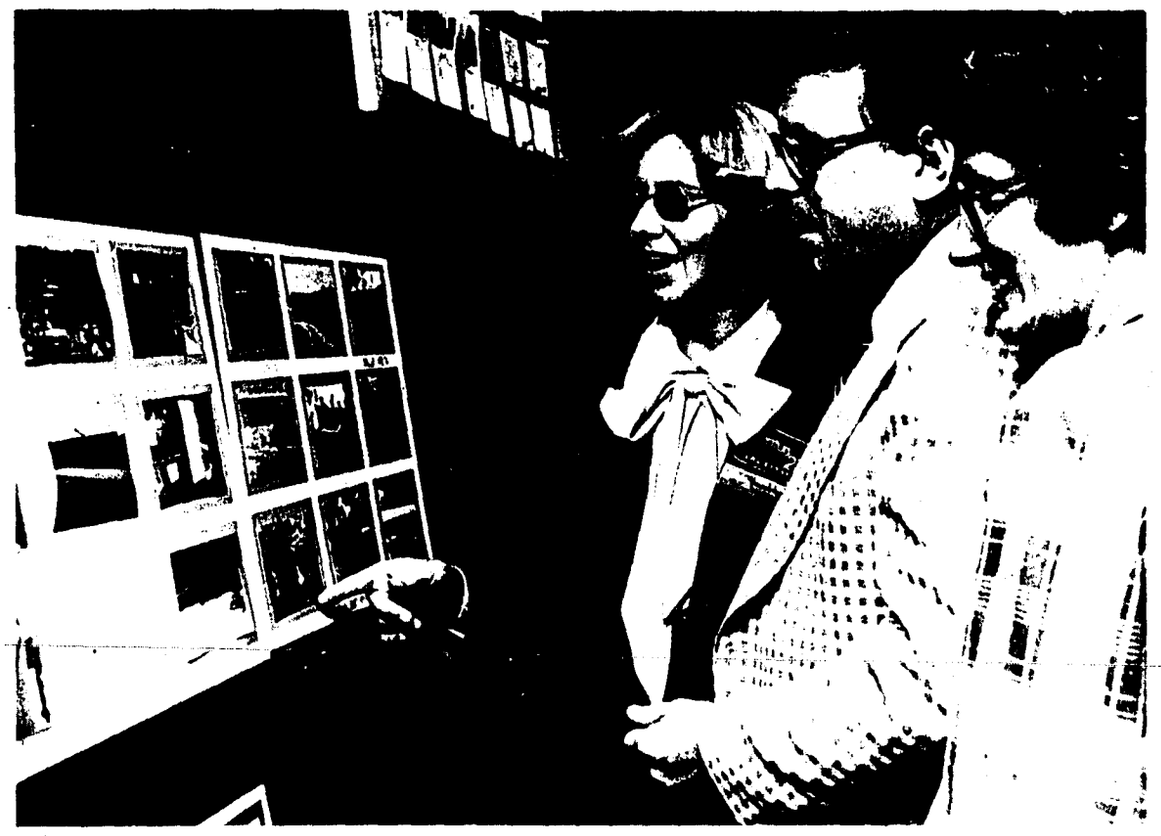

Jonn R. Tice, regional director of Century 21 said, "we're delighted to welcome this outstanding company to our organization, and they will provide an excellent, well established level of real estate services to this area."

"With over 6,500 member firms, each one independently owned and operated, Century 21 offers the home buyer and seller the neighborhood know-how of professional sales people, throughly trained in modern real estate practices."

Boxwood Real Estate Company, previously known as Swicegood Real Estate, was purchased by Danny Correll and Dennis Grubb in May of 1978. The firm was originally organized in 1971 by Jerry Swicegood and moved to its present location on Salisbury Street in 1974.

Macedonia

Rev. and Mrs. John Kapp, members, friends, neighbors wish to express their heartfelt sympathy to the Ernest McKnight family. Mr. McKnight passed away on Sunday afternoon at Forsyth Memorial Hospital.

Our church bulletins are given this month by Mrs. Grace Call in honor of Mr. and Mrs. F.R. "Forty" Beauchamp's 50th wedding anniversary which is September 15. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Beauchamp many more happy wedding anniversaries.

Our young people will be picking up glass Saturday September 16. You can call Terry Wood at 998-4894 and Jerry Davis at 998-4083 if you have any glass to be picked up. Or you may take it to Terry Wood's home. Our young people have been working real hard at this project, so let's help them if you can.

Those that are sick...Mrs. Jerry Davis has returned home from Forsyth Memorial Hospital. Miss Ida Ellis and Mr. Clarence Hockaday have returned home from Davie County Hospital. Remember these alone with prayers and get well cards. Mr. Ernest Burner is in Davie Hospital very sick.

Mrs. Franklin Douthit was the guest of Mrs. Hattie Cope, Mrs. Pink Hendrix, Mrs. Roy Hendrix and Mrs. Audbon Ellis last Friday which was Mrs. Douthit's birthday. Her mother and sisters carried her out to the K&W for dinner. After dinner they went back to Mrs. Douthit's home and had ice cream and birthday cake. Mrs. Hazel Smith and Franklin Douthit were there for cake, ice cream. We wish Mrs. Douthit many more happy birthdays. They all really enjoyed themselves very much.

Members don't forget when they come to take pictures for the church annual. All members are urged to go have their family's picture made.

If anyone has any news I would appreciate it if you would call me so I can have news for the newspaper (998-4458) Thank you!

Health Tips

From The American Medical Association

The pregnant female must be cautious when taking medications for allergies. In the August issue of Annals of Internal Medicine, Paul Greenberger, MD, and Roy Patterson, MD, FACP, of Chicago discuss certain drugs for the safety, for the mother and the fetus.

The Annals of Internal Medicine is the official journal of the American College of Physicians, a national professional association of more than 40,000 specialists in internal medicine and related areas.

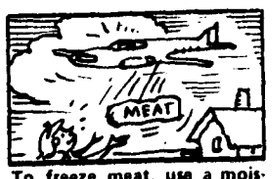

Doctors Greenberger and Patterson stated, "When a physician is seeking information about drug safety during pregnancy, the Physician's Desk Reference (PDR) is of little value in some cases and inconsistent in others." The physician is put on the spot, so to speak. He must authorize a drug to relieve the pregnant woman's allergy, even though the Physician's Desk Reference (PDR) may state that "Safety of this drug in human pregnancy has not been established, and use of the drug in pregnancy requires that the expected therapeutic benefit be weighed against possible hazard to mother and child."

This is not very helpful. One answer is to avoid the use of medication as much as possible during pregnancy, and in the authors' opinion, "during the first trimester of pregnancy, no medication should be given unless absolutely essential."

Congress has informed the drug companies that a drug had to be proved safe before it could be given to a pregnant woman. Tests to determine this are difficult, because of the problem of deciding whether data from animal experiments is applicable to humans.

The two physicians (both at Northwestern University Medical School) conclude that:

"The possible but apparently improbable adverse effects of drugs used in the therapy of allergic disease should be viewed in relation to the possible adverse effects of the allergic disease on pregnancy. The outstanding example is the use of steriods in asthma, where the disease itself can pose important risks to both the mother and fetus."

To freeze meat, use a moisture-vapor-proof wrap, such as heavy aluminum foil, heavily waxed freezer paper, or specially laminated papers.

Cooleemee News

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Alexander vacationed several days this week in Myrtle Beach, S.C. They returned home today(Wednesday).

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kurfees were host to a supper on Thursday evening honoring Mr. and Mrss. Ben Mitchell on their wedding anniversary which was Sept. 10. This was also a going away supper for Pfc. Don Branch, Jr. who left Friday for California and on Saturday for a 13 month tour of duty with the U.S. Marines in Okinawa. Scott Branch was also a guest at the dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Kurfees spent Sunday in Buies Creek with thir son, Marty. A member of the B.S.U. Out Reach Team of Campbell College, Marty will be preaching at the 11 a.m. worship service in a Baptist church in Enka, N.C. on Sept. 17.

Walter Shoaf returned home Sunday from Rowan Memorial Hospital after a weeks treatment. He is much improved.

Mr. Woody Yarbro returned home from Davie Hospital Tuesday and is much improved. Visiting with him since his illness were his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Yarbro of Orlando, Florida, John Yarbro of Salisbury, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Bolic of Morganton and Lucille Fisher of Hickory.

Odell Grubb is recuperating at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Beck of Wedgewood Drive, Salisbury. Mr. Grubb was moved from the Spencer Rest Home last week andis improving nicely.

Cooleemee Circle Has Meeting

The morning circle of the Cooleemee United Methodist Church held their monthly meeting Tuesday morning with Mrs. J.G. Crawford at her home on Ruffin Street with seven members and two visitors attending.

The Rev. John Edwards opened the meeting with prayer after which Mrs. Janie Vogler presented a program, "Hands of Christ". Mrs. Vogler also reported on her recent trip to Lake Junaluska and closed the meeting with prayer.

Cedar Creek

A thought for the day...Let us remember that a well disciplined life begins with the dedicated life, dedicated to Christ.

Summer is almost gone and fall is near by. Many things have happened in this world--some good and some bad. However, everything is for a purpose.

School days are here again. Let us as Christians pray that each teacher and children will have a good school term. Since we are living under a dictatorship we sure can pray for them at home--no prayer in school.

The revivals are still in progress everywhere. Let us hope that someone will find Christ as their Savior.

Mrs. William Eaton had as her guest for two weeks her daughter Mrs. Robert Wiseman of Rhaway, N.J. Mrs. Cann Campbell of Winston- Salem enjoyed a week here at home with mother and sisters Jean and Darrin.

Several members from Cedar Creek attended the homecoming revival at the Chinquapin Grove Baptist Church last Sunday the 10th.

Sunday Sept. 10 was a hazy day. However, a good Sunday school here at Cedar Creek Baptist Church. The Sunday afternoon worship devotionals were conducted by Bros. Odell Eaton and John West.

The pastor Rev. Hay brought a spiritual message. The choir sang beautifully.

Mrs. William Eaton called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Ridgell Br. Ridgell has been a patient in Davie County Hospital for several days recently for tests. And now he is at home the neighbors and friends are glad to know.

Mrs. Kay West is home after undergoing surgery recently at the Forsyth Hospital in Winston-Salem. We were glad to have her home and at Church Sunday and doing nicely thank the Lord.

Amn. Joe West of Whiteman Air Force Base, son of Mrs. Kay West is home on a furlo visiting his mother and sister, Janie and Kevin and Jason. He attended Church Sunday. Mrs. Ann Campbell was dinner guest of her mother Mrs. William Eaton and sister, Jean and Darrin. Tony Tatum and Tracy Eaton visited Darrin Eaton all evening last week.

Darryal and Kenneth Eaton, students in school were home for the weekend. Miner Smith of Houstonville, N.C. was in the community recently visiting his brother Thomas Smith and the Transous.

Little baby George Jr. Scott and Baby Jason West were all happy smiles at church Sunday (laughs) we love them boys.

Odell Eaton and son Tracey called Sunday evening at the home of his mother, Mrs. William Eaton and sister Jean and Darrin.

Mr. and Mrs. McKenley Eaton of Winston-Salem called Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ambros Brock. Also Mrs. Daisy Tatum called. They attended worship service.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to those that have lost their loved ones. Please keep our chain prayers for the shutins and peace in this world to make a better place for all to live.

Shiloh Baptist To Hold Revival

Shiloh Baptist Church will hold their annual revival beginning Sunday, September 17th at 3 p.m. and continuing through Friday, September 22. Services will be held each evening at 7:30, with guest choirs appearing each night.

Sunday's service will be conducted by the Rev. Johnson. The speaker for the remainder of the week will be the Rev. Garther Roland, pastor of the Antioch Christian Church of Winston-Salem.

Boats

There are 9 million boats and 50 million persons engaged in recreational boating in the United States, the U.S. Coast Guard says.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE
BOARD OF
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR THE
FOLLOWING ZONING
AMENDMENT

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, pursuant to the requirements of Article 20-B of Chapter 153 of the General Status of North Carolina and Section 20 of the Davie County Zoning Ordinance that the Board of County Commissioners of Davie County will hold a public hearing at the Davie County Courthouse, Mocksville, NC on Monday, October 2, 1978 at 1:00 p.m. The following proposed zoning amendment of the official zoning ordinance of Davie County will be considered:

(a) The Davie County Planning Board has submitted a request to amend the Davie County Zoning Ordinance by adding "airports" to the list of permitted uses found in Section 80.2 of this ordinance. Section 80.2 of the Davie County Zoning Ordinance would read as follows if this proposed amendment is approved:

Section 80.2 Conditional Uses. The following uses shall be permitted subject to a finding by the Board of Adjustment that the additional conditions listed will be met:

Landfills, provided that all public health regulations are fulfilled and maintained.

Airports, private parks, playgrounds, clubs and lodges, golf courses, swimming pools, fishing lakes, family camp grounds, drag strips, raceways, and similar recreation uses subject to a finding by the Board of Adjustment that such proposed uses will not create a public nuisance or be detrimental to the public welfare.

All parties and interested citizens are invited to attend said public hearing at which time they shall have an opportunity to be heard in favor of or in opposition to the foregoing proposed change. Prior to the hearing, all persons interested may obtain any additional information on these proposals which are in the possession of the Davie County Zoning Enforcement Officer by inquiring at my office in the Courthouse in Mocksville, NC on weekdays between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. or by telephone at 634-3340.

Two Found Guilty In Tennis Court Brawl

Two men were found guilty Monday in Davie County District Court of assault with a deadly weapon in connection with a brawl that occurred at the Cooleemee tennis courts late last month.

Wayne Shanks and Mike White, both of Cooleemee, were given 6-month terms, suspended for three years after being found guilty of the charges. They were also both placed on probation for one year.

Two other men involved in the incident, Tom Shore and Monte Blackwood, both of Cooleemee, were found not guilty of assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the incident.

According to previously reports, Blackwood and friends were playing tennis at the tennis courts in the early evening of August 22 when a carload of ten persons drove up and wanted the courts to play basketball.

Supposedly, an argument and fight then resulted among the persons involved.

At approximately 8:20 p.m. that evening Blackwood appeared at the Davie County Jail to take out warrants because of the incident. While at the jail he collapsed and was taken by ambulance to the Davie County Hospital where he was admitted and spent several days for treatment of injuries.

One warrant taken out by Blackwood and Rick Whitley of Cooleemee charged Shanks with assault with a deadly weapon. The warrant charged that Shanks hit Blackwood with a metal tennis racket about the head and body and that Shanks also hit Blackwood about the head and body with his fists.

Another warrant taken out by Blackwood and Whitley charged White with assault with a deadly weapon by striking Blackwood about the head and body with a metal tennis racket and hitting him about the head and body with his fists.

Shore had been charged by Shanks with assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the incident at the tennis courts. Shanks had charged Shore with hitting him on the right arm with a car jack.

Juveniles Are Charged With Stealing Car

Two juveniles, ages 13 and 15, have been charged with stealing an automobile and breaking and enterring.

The two youths, one a resident of Cooleemee and the other of Rt. 1 Woodleaf, are charged with stealing an automobile from Godbey's Garage, located on NC. 801 in Rowan County just across the county line, last Thursday night. The vehicle, a 1968 Buick Electra, was wrecked about 12:39 a.m. Friday morning on NC 601 South at the Second Creek bridge.

The 15-year-old lad was picked up at his home later Friday morning and admitted stealing the car. The 13-year-old was picked up on the Needmore Road in Rowan County with the assistance of Rowan County deputies.

Deputy Junior Mauldin investigated.

Vehicles Collide

A traffic accident occurred Monday, September 11, at 12:09 p.m., on Salisbury Street in Mocksville involving a '74 Volkswagon driven by Brenda Hendrick Creason, 25, of Rt. 7, Mocksville and a '76 Ford driven by Darrell Eugene Edwards, 29, of Rt. 1, Mocksville.

According to the accident report filed by officer R. S. Hupp of the Mocksville Police Department, the Creason vehicle was traveling on Salisbury when the Edwards vehicle pulled out of a parking lot and struck the Creason car.

No injuries occurred in the accident and no charges were filed.

Damage to the Volkswagon was $75 and damage to the Ford was $25.

Some people once believed that mountains were formed by an enormous underground serpent moving about.

Woman Given Attorney In Vandalism Charge

The case of a 30-year-old East Spencer woman, charged with four incidents of vandalism in the Cooleemee Shopping Center, was continued in Davie District Court on Monday to September 18th.

An attorney was appointed by the court to represent Brenda Hall Pierce of East Spencer. She was arrested about 4 a.m., Sunday, September 3, and charged with littering and damage to personal property.

Ms. Pierce was charged with littering in the Cooleemee Shopping Center by turning over a trash can; damage to personal property in breaking the glass in the door of the J. N Variety Store, damage estimated at $75; breaking glass in Libby's Fashion Shop, damage estimated at $275; breaking the flourescent light at the Cooleemee Sunoco Station, damage estimated at $20.

Deputy Junior Maulding was the arresting officer.

To the Editor:

We would like to express our gratitude to the many area merchants and individuals for their involvement with Davie Youth Encounters. They selflessly gave their time, talent, and products, and tried to make the Bluegrass Festival a success.

Foremost, we would like to thank John Allen for all the work he did in gathering together the bands, all of whom played very good music and donated their talents. Doug Fagan and the Davie High School Student Council provided the publicity, worked at the event, and kept our spirits up. All the volunteers and the Youth Encounters kids worked very hard.

We would like to extend a sincere thank you to the following people and merchants.

Miller's Bar B Que, C's Bar B Que, U Stop N Grill, Davie Sport Shop, Doug Bales, WDSL, Davie Enterprise, Heffner's Land of Food, Cooleemee Supermarket, Cooleemee Discount House, Mocksville Discount House, Barber's Grocery, Creason's Shell, Wagner's Grocery, The Mocksville Moose Lodge, Sam's Country Kitchen, Coca Cola, Emergency Medical Squad, Davie County Deputies.

We especially want to thank the people not affiliated with the program who approached us about helping when they heard of what we were trying to do.

Sincerely,
Lynette Bouchard
Denise Jones

Murder Charged In Saturday Night Shooting

A 33-year-old white Winston-Salem man has been charged with first degree murder as the result of a shooting last Saturday night at Dud's Trading Post at County Line.

John Robert Riddle, 33, 304 Townley Street, Winston-Salem was charged in a warrant issued September 19th with shooting Lawrence Ray Hairston, 58, a black of Rt. 4 Mocksville in the stomach twice with a .22 caliber pistol.

The shooting allegedly took place Saturday night about 11:30 p.m. at Dud's Trading Post located at County Line. Hairston was brought to the emergency room at the Davie Hospital and the Davie County Sheriff's Department was notified of the presence of a man with gunshot wounds about 11:49 p.m. The bullets were removed by emergency surgery and Hairston was placed in the intensive care unit at the Davie County Hospital where he died 11:15 p.m. Monday night.

Riddle was picked up at the Travel Lodge Motel, Patterson Avenue, Winston-Salem, at approximately 5 a.m. Tuesday morning.

Joy Dawn Jones, 22, a white female of Rt. 2 Box 361 East Bend, was charged by Deputy J.R. Purvis on Tuesday morning with being an accessory-after-the-fact of murder in that she did aid, abet and accompany James Robert Riddle after he had shot Hairston with a pistol.

Both Riddle and Ms. Jones were arraigned Tuesday afternoon before Judge Lester P. Martin. Riddle was bound over to a bond hearing at 3:30 p.m. Thursday afternoon. Bond for Ms. Jones was set at $5,000.

Lawrence Ray Hairston was the son of the Rev. Raymond Hairston. He was a native of Davie County and attended local schools. He was a veteran of World War II and a member of the Fairfield Baptist Church.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 4 p.m. at the Fairfield Baptist Church. The Rev. F.D. Betts will officiate. Burial will be in the church cemetery. The body will lie instate an hour prior to the services. The family will meet with friends at the Morrison-Studevent Funeral Home Wednesday evening from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m.

In addition to his father, survivors include his step-mother, Alma Hairston of Winston-Salem; nine sisters, Mrs. Margaret Fowler, Mrs. Helen Day of Long Island, N.Y.; Mrs. Bertha Lee

Proposed Home For Retarded Adults Ruled A Public Facility

It was ruled in Davie County Superior Court Monday that a proposed home for mentally retarded adults near the main business area of Mocksville would be a public facility and as such is entitled to a certificate of compliance with the zoning ordinance.

After a lengthy hearing, Judge Peter W. Hairston directed orally that the certificate be issued and gave the principals 10 days to agree on the language of an appropriate draft of such an order.

The matter involves the large, two-story frame house (formerly known as the Kimbrough house) located on the Lexington Road, near the intersection with South Main Street . The challenge was filed by Harry A. Osborne, who has an ownership interest in the house, the Davie County Group Home Inc., and its chairman, Terrance D. Jones.

Osborne testified that before and up to Nov. 8, 1976, when the zoning ordinance became effective, both the upstairs and downstairs space in the house was rented to one or more persons living together "as a single housekeeping unit."

Thereafter, the house was rented at different times to different people through October 1977, when it became vacant Osborne said that, though he did not advertise, he made it known by "word of mouth" that it was available for renting.

About April 1, 1978, Osborne maintained, he entered into an oral lease agreement with the Davie County Group Home for leasing the house to the nonprofit corporation to be used as a home for six mentally retarded adults and a staff of two.

However, he alleged, no written lease was executed by himself and his wife, because Jesse Boyce, Town Zoning Officer, "was of the opinion that the zoning ordinance prohibited the Davie County Group Home from using the property as a home for mentally retarded adults.

According to an affidavit filed by Jones, Davie County Group Home made a contract with the Tri-County Mental Health Complex to operate the home, and structural floor plans were approved by the N.C. Department of Human Resources on April 10.

Boyce said the property was and is zoned "central business," and was and is suitable for accommodating one or more persons living together as a single housekeeping unit. But he did not and does not consider the group home to be a public facility.

When Jones applied for a certificate of zoning compliance for the proposed home, Boyce denied the application. Davie County Group Home appealed to the Mocksville Zoning Board of Adjustment, and its members sustained Boyce on a split vote.

The zoning board's decision then was appealed to Davie Superior Court, and Hairston's decision followed.

Elections Office Open Saturday

The Davie County Board of Elections office located in the Courthouse will open Saturday, September 23, 10:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. to accommodate residents of Davie County who desire to register, or make precinct changes for the General Election.

The regular office hours are Monday, Wednesday, and Friday each week, 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. The deadline for registering, or making changes for the General Election is October 9.

College students, or anyone else who will be out of town, and unable to go to the polls the entire period that the polls are open on November 7 may find this a convenient time to vote a "one stop" absentee.

If any questions call during regular office hours 634-2027.

Winston-Salem NAACP Asks For Investigation Of Davie Prison Unit

The Winston-Salem chapter of the NAACP has asked state officials to investigate what it terms "intolerable treatment and conditions" at the Davie County prison unit.

A letter dated September 7 and signed by Patrick T. Hairston, chapter president, listed twelve grievances ranging from complaints of a lack of greeting cards in the prison canteen to a request that officials investigate rumors that the unit superintendent has supplied knives to white inmates.

Copies of Hairston's letter was mailed to Amos E. Reed, secretary of the N.C. Department of Corrections, to Gov. James B. Hunt and to U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell.

The allegations in the letter were almost identical to those made by inmates in a letter published two weeks ago in the Winston-Salem Chronicle, that city's weekly black newspaper.

The most serious allegations are that there is "open prejudice" in employment practices and honor grade, custody and parole procedures at the unit; that the shower facilities are "dangerous, inadequate and unsanitary"; that the unit is overcrowded; that there have been rumors about a prison officer carrying a .25-caliber automatic pistol and threatening inmates with it; and, that there have also been rumors that the unit's superintendent, T.W. Holmes, and two members of his staff have given "white inmates knives to use against black inmates."

Holmes denied most of the charges. He said that the showers at the prison, are adequate, are cleaned every day by inmates, the area is well tiled and has decent ventilation. Holmes called the complaints about prejudice and discrimination "a broad statement," and he denied rumors that he or any member of his staff carries weapons into the unit, threatens inmates or supplies inmates with knives. Holmes said prison officials are not even allowed to carry pocket knives or keys into the prison.

Top prison officials have declined to answer the grievances point-by-point at present. Reed said he realized that there were problems with the state's prison system generally but that he had not had a chance to discuss the specifics of Hairston's letter with his staff.

Bert Rosefield, who recently became the prison system's North Piedmont area administrator, said last week that he was aware of Hairston's letter and he had already discussed it with his staff.

Prison officials in Raleigh have not said whether they believe the complaints warrant an investigation.

Hairston said he will pursue the issue even if his initial action is not effective.

"I intend to see something done about this. We want an investigation," he said.

Piano Fund Reaches Goal

Mrs. George Martin announced Monday that the Piano Fund drive for the Davie County Public Library was successful, and that the goal of $6,890.00 had been reached late on Thursday September 14, which was the deadline. A final tally has not been released because gifts are still being received. But the piano committee will meet Tuesday September 26 at 7:30 in the library to come up with final tally and to plan for future programs.

Excess money will be spent on a cover, a concert stool, maintenance, and entertainers, all things which will help the public get more out of the piano.

The drive for the seven-foot Baldwin from Piedmont Music Center started only a month ago and to date there have been over 265 separate contributions ranging from $1.00 to $1,000.00 The "Piano Committee" wants to publicly thank everyone who contributed or helped in this community effort.

Civic organizations which helped in addition to those listed last week are: Mocksville Woman's Club, Davie Golden Age Club, East Davie Jaycees, Davie Cosmetologist Association, Davie County Chapter Symphony Women, Fork Jaycettes, Baltimore and Bixby Homemakers Club, Davie Homemakers County Council, and the Fork Jaycees.

NRC Staff Being Shown Alternative Sites For Perkins

Members of the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) staff are touring alternative sites this week for the Perkins nuclear power plant, Duke Power Company officials announced Monday.

NRC staffers met at the Duke Power Company headquarters in Charlotte at 10 a.m. Tuesday for a briefing. The group then toured the Wateree and Fishing Creek, S.C. alternative sites.

On Wednesday the group was scheduled to visit sites at Middleton Shoals on the Savannah River and Lake Hartsell, S.C.

Thursday the group will tour the Davie County site as well as proposed sites on Lake Norman, at Tuckertown in Rowan County and the Broad River basin near the South Carolina boarder, Ms. Howard said.

The site hearings for the Perkins plant were ordered re-opened earlier this summer after the NRC ruled it needed more information about the sites and the way Duke Power planners picked the Davie County location for the Perkins power plant.

No actual date has been set for formal site hearings on the Perkins plant, Ms. Howard said. This week's tours are designed primarily to acquaint NRC members with various alternative sites.

David Springer, newly-elected head of the High Rock Lake Association, chief opponent of the Davie County site, has indicated he will also participate in the tours.

Car Hits Utility Pole

A 1965 Plymouth struck a utility pole in an accident on Depot Street last Sunday about 4:05 p.m.

The vehicle was being operated by Michael Leonard Johnson, 16, of 551 Williams Street, Mocksville.

Federal Funding Renewed For Local CETA Programs

Federal funding has been renewed for several Title II CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) positions in Davie County, the county commissioners learned Monday night.

Earlier this summer, the commissioners had been told that the county would lose all of its Title II CETA workers because of federal budget cuts, Ron Vogler, county manager said.

Almost all of the positions were refunded several days ago, however, Vogler said.

The number of CETA positions funded for this year is now "substanitally the same" as last year, Vogler said, adding he did not have exact figures on the number of positions in the CETA program.

"There are 26 CETA workers in the county now," Vogler said, and "That's almost the same number as last year."

"Title VI CETA was cut to 80 percent of last year's total," Vogler said, "but the cut did not make a substantial difference since the number of CETA workers in the county is very small.

The federally finded CETA program is designed to provide temporary positions and job training and experience to help indigent or unskilled workers obtain permanent jobs later.

In other business the commissioners:

--Reappointed Mrs. Alice Ellis to the Department of Social Services Board;

--Discussed county water system plans;

--Approved rosters for the Sheffield-Calahaln volunteer fire department;

--Reviewed tax reports; and

--Signed a contract with the Northwest Child Development Council to aid in the council's day care program in the county.

Sheriff's Department Finds Field Of 800 Marijuana Plants

By Marlene Benson

An annonymous tip to Davie County Sheriff Robert Kiger resulted in the discovery of about 800 marijuana plants growing in a field along the creek off the Jack Booe Road near the Yadkin County line over the weekend.

The plants averaged ten to twelve feet in height.

Lt. Robert Purvis, who assisted Sheriff Kiger in pulling up the plants, pointed out that the Wilkes County Sheriff's Department recently seized 5,000 marijuana plants which "they estimated the street value at three million dollars." Purvis added this may give you an idea of the "relativity of value."

Sheriff Kiger said this was "the biggest single bust for the Davie County Department." Assisted by Capt. Sharpel, Lt. Purvis and Deputies Mel Reynolds and Cecilia Hemrick, Kiger said they carried the marijuana plants a good mile and loaded them on the back of his pickup truck. "They were the

Public Hearing Set For October 2nd On Zoning Amendment

The Davie County Board of Commissioners will hold a public hearing at 1:00 p.m., Monday, October 2, at the Davie County Courthouse to consider amending the county's zoning ordinance to add airports to the list of permitted uses under the conditional uses section of the ordinance.

The board of commissioners scheduled the public hearing after the Davie County Planning Board recommended to the commissioners that the county's zoning ordinance be amended to permit airports to be zoned under a conditional use classification in a residential-agricultural area.

Under the present zoning ordinance, airports must be zoned in a heavy industry classification.

The planning board made its recommendation after studying the issue of the classification of airports in the zoning ordinance at its August 30th meeting.

Actually, the planning board had been asked by the board of commissioners early last month to study a recommendation from the commissioners themselves that the zoning ordinance be amended to permit airports to be classified under a conditional use.

All of this complicated series of legal maneuvers was precipitated earlier this summer when the owners of Twin Lakes Airport in eastern Davie County petitioned the commissioners to have the airport rezoned from its present residential-agricultural (R-A) and residential (R-20) status to the heavy industrial classification to comply with the zoning ordinance.

When the airport was established the county did not have a zoning ordinance and when the zoning ordinance was adopted a few years ago the airport was allowed to remain in a residential-agricultural area as a nonconforming business.

In order to be able to expand the facilities at the airport the airport owners must first have the airport property brought into compliance with the zoning ordinance which requires airports to be classified as heavy industrial areas.

Many of the property owners near Twin Lakes Airport are opposed to the property being rezoned to a heavy industrial area and they presented the county commissioners with a petition several weeks ago expressing this opposition.

It was after the commissioners received this petition that they decided that a conditional use classification for airports in the county zoning ordinance would be the best way to protect the interests of both sides involved in the Twin Lakes dispute.

By allowing airports to be classified under a conditional use permit in the zoning ordinance, only an airport, subject to any conditions set forth by the Davie County Zoning Board of Adjustment, can then be allowed to occupy a site designated for airports.

But under the present zoning ordinance which requires airports to be classified as heavy industrial areas any number of a variety of heavy industrial businesses can also occupy a site zoned for an airport once the zoning has been approved.

Vehicles Collide On US 158

Two vehicles were involved in a collision last Saturday about 2:55 p.m. on U.S. 158, 9 miles east of Mocksville.

Involved was a 1968 GMC truck operated by Jane White Carter, 34, of Rt. 3, Advance, and a 1971 Oldsmobile operated by Cathy Ruth Jones, 27, of Rt. 3.

State Highway Patrolman James M. Newton said his investigation showed that the vehicle operated by Carter was proceeding north on N.C. 158 Attempting to cross U.S. 158 this vehicle failed to yield to the Jones vehicle that was traveling west on U.S. 158.

Damage was estimated at $200 to each vehicle.

Ms. Carter was charged with failure to yield right of way.

Exec. Committee Of PTCOG Votes Not To Split Region 6

The executive committee of the Piedmont Triad Council of Governments (PTCOG) voted unanimously last week not to split Region G, the 11-county area now served by the PTCOG, into two parts.

The board of commissioners in Davie, Stokes, Surry and Yadkin counties, as well as boards in several smaller municipalities, recently passed resolutions asking Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. to split Region G. Those four countries and Forsyth would form a new northwest region. Guilford County and the other five counties would form a separate region.

(As of press time early Tuesday evening, the Mocksville town board was scheduled to meet later in the evening to decide if Mocksville would join in the move to have the PTCOG split.)

Fred D. Hauser, chairman of the Forsyth County board of commissioners, was the only member of the PTCOG's executive committee to abstain from voting at last week's meeting on the move to split Region G.

"It's my privilege to sit on the fence and that's what I'm going to do," said Hauser.

Mayor Wayne A. Corpening of Winston-Salem joined the executive committee members in the unanimous vote to keep the region unified.

Observersof the move to have the present Region G split have consistently predicted that Forsyth County and Winston-Salem would have to be included in a new region with Davie, Yadkin, Surry and Stokes counties before the governor would consent to split the present Region G.

Hauser said Forsyth has important economic ties with the northwest counties that are advocating a split. He said that Forsyth and Guilford must also continue to plan together to prevent urban sprawl and slums.

Winston-Salem, Greensboro and High Point form a Standard Statistical Metropolitan Area. Lindsay Cox,. executive director of the PTCOG, said splitting this urban core would be impractical and costly.

Cox presented a staff study that shows that numerous services would have to be duplicated or cut if the region split. These include PTCOG-administered medical, economic development and transportation programs.

Hauser did not address any of these issues. He only said that he will support the governor's decision.

Several committee members said that they too intend to support the governor. But, they said, even though Raleigh officials will determine the region's boundaries, the committee should express an opinion on the subject.

The counties seeking a split have held several meetings during the past year. Hauser said he was invited to the first, but was unable to attend because he had another commitment. He said he was not invited to subsequent meetings.

The Forsyth commissioners have not voted on the PTCOG split and Hauser said he does not plan to introduce a resolution before the commissioners calling for a split.

Several PTCOG committee members were critical of Joe C. Matthews, executive director of the Northwest Economic Development Commission.

The commission serves the five northwest counties that would form the new COG.

John C. McKenzie, the mayor of Pilot Mountain in Surry County, quoted a newspaper report to the committee indicating that Matthews wants to be director of the new COG.

PTCOG members asked McKenzie why Surry County officials want a split. McKenzie said that he personally disagrees with those officials, but that they probably think Region G is too large.

He said, however, that he had documents showing that Matthews and Jimmie R. Hutchens, director of the Yadkin Valley Economic Development District, have been trying to split the PTCOG since 1970.

Several committee members said politics and backbitting seem to be motivating the move toward a split.

PTCOG chairman Neil N. Fleming III, an Alamance County commissioner, said Matthews and Cox "have built up such a wall between them" that cooperation is difficult.

The full PTCOG board was scheduled to meet September 20 to discuss the possible split.

Fires Are Reported

Fires reported in Davie County during the past week included:

September 15, about 4:18 p.m. the Mocksville Fire Department answered a call to the R. G. Brewer residence on Park Avenue, smoke coming out vents.

September 16, about 9:47 p.m., the Sheffield-Calahaln Fire Department answered a call to a tobacco barn fire on the County Line Road.

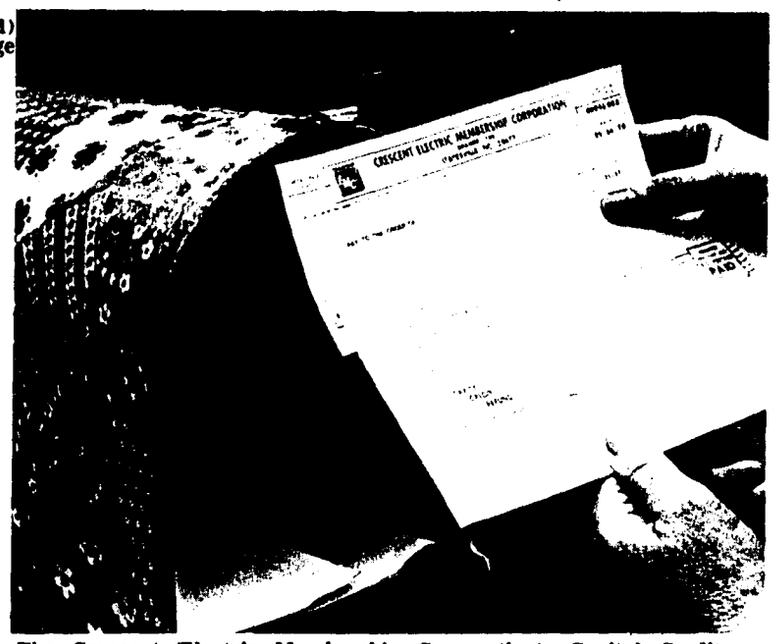

September 16, about 9:01 p.m., the County Line Fire Department answered a call to assist the Sheffield-Calahaln Fire Department in a tobacco barn fire.

Wreck On Depot Street

Police Department said his investigation showed that Johnson was traveling north on Williams Street when the driver's foot slipped off the brake onto the accelerator, causing the vehicle to cross Depot Street and strike the utility pole.

Damage to the Plymouth was estimated at $450 and $600 to the utility pole.

Pedestrian Is Hit In Parking Lot By Tractor-Trailer

A pedestrian was hit by a tractor-trailer while walking in a parking lot at the Union 76 Truck Stop, March 13, about 6:30 p.m.

The pedestrian, James Loyd Mischler, 17, was taken to the Davie County Hospital.

State Highway Patrolman James M. Newton said his investigation showed that the tractor-trailer was being operated by Ronale E. McNear of Charlotte. The vehicle was pulling from a stopped position making a right turn to go west in parking lot and the driver failed to see the pedestrian walking south. There were no charges.

Motorcyclist Injured Saturday On N.C. 801

A motorcyclist was injured in an accident with a car last Saturday about 8:30 p.m. on NC 801.

James Larry Whitt, 25, of Rt. 2 King was taken first to the Davie County Hospital and then transferred to the Forsyth Memorial Hospital.

State Highway Patrolman J.L. Payne said his invvestigation showed that John Branley Layell of Winston-Salem was operating a 1974 Plymouth which attempted to turn left into a private drive and turned into the path of Whitt on a 1971 Honda motorcycle which was being operated without headlight burning.

Cresent EMC Mails $234,500 In Capital Credit Refunds

Over 14,000 individual checks totaling $234,500 were mailed to member-owners of the Cresent Electric Membership Corporation last week. These checks went to the people using co-op power during 1964-65.

It is estimated that more than one-third of this capital credit refund went to co-op members in Davie County.

Approximately $34,387 has already been refunded to estates during 1978. Capital credits are refunded in full to the estate of deceased members upon application by the legal representative of the deceased member.

"The board of directors and management are pleased that the financial condition of the co-op meets the guidelines established by REA in order that a capital credit refund could be made to the member-owners at this time," said Donald D. Rice, general manager., This is the fourth consecutive year that a general retirement of capital credits has been made. The refund reflected the remaining balance of 52 per cent of the margin for 1964 and 35 per cent of the margin for 1965. The remainder of credit for those years between the period represented in this refund and the current date is required for member equity and reserves.

"As you know, all of the cooperative's revenues in excess of operating expenses in each year (margins) are recorded on tbe books as capital furnished by the members (capital credits). The Cresent Conductor is used as the means to notify members of the per cent of margins for each year, and that they are assigned on the cooperative's books to the individual member accounts. The amount assigned to member accounts is determined by multiplying your total power bill for the year by the per cent of margin for that year. Members are furnished complete information about their capital credit account at anytime by contacting the co-op offices," Rice added.

The co-op is a non-profit organization and the member-users can expect a return, in cash of any margin above the cost of service.

Capital Credits is the plan used to assign and refund all margins realized by the operating of the coooperative.

Vehicles Wreck On I-40

Two vehicles were involved in a collision September 12, about 2:05 p.m. on Interstate 40, 1.4 miles east of Mocksville.

Involved was a 1978 Pontiac operated by Robin Ray Rice, 22, of Hickory and a 1973 Chrysler operated by James Hughes Turner, 51, of Ahoskie, N.C.

State Highway Patrolman A. C. Stokes said his investigation showed that the Rice vehicle was traveling east on I-40 at 55 mph. The Turner vehicle, traveling at an excessive speed, overtook the Rice vehicle, apparently got too close to it before changing lanes to pass.

Rosemary Cozart and 4-month old daughter Kelly examine one of the car seats purchased by the Mocksville Jaycettes for their Buckle up Babes project. Jack Pennington of Pennington Chevrolet examines the order sheet placed by the Jayceetes.

'Buckle Up Babes' Project

Buckle up Babes, a national Jaycette project is under way in Davie sponsored by the Mocksville Jaycette organization.

Through the purchase of 10 infant car seats from Pennington Chevrolet Company, the Jaycettes plan to rent them to interested families with a portion of the deposit returned to the people when the car seats are turned back into the club.

The seats will be distributed on a first come, first serve basis and after the demand and response have been determined, more will be purchased by the club and made available to the public.

The Infant Love Seat now available will hold a baby weighing up to 20 lbs., and should remain usuable until the child reaches the age of 6 months.

Buckle up Babes is a national project to educate the public about child safety in cars, and to provide them with a means to hopefully prevent injuries to children while riding in cars.

The project has been undertaken due to the fact that auto accidents are the leading cause of death for children under 4 years of age.

The Mocksville Jaycettes are providing a car seat rental program to inspire families to use or purchase an infant seat.

Pinebrook P.T.A. Holds First Meeting

The Pinebrook Parent-Teachers Association held its first meeting for the year on Monday, Sept. 11 at 7:30 p.m. President Robert Dail called the meeting to order. Devotions were presented by Bryant Williams, an eighth grade student at Pinebrook. Mr. Dail introduced the officers for the year who are: Mrs. Beverly Dorsett, vice-president; Mrs. Bonnie Vest, secretary; and Mrs. Barbara Allen, treasurer. W.T. Eanes, principal, introduced the faculty and staff.

The project chairman, Mrs. Kathryn Mabe presented a short program on a proposed popcorn sale. This project was adopted and will begin on Sept. 21.

The proposed budget for the year was presented and accepted. Priorities for use of the money were discussed and decided upon. An alarm system for the school will be installed followed by a paved area for the playground. One additional television set will be purchased for the school.

The membership drive is open and all present were encouraged to join for $1.00 per adult. Any interested citizen in the community is invited to join and support the Pinebrook P.T.A.

A special feeling of appreciation was expressed to faculty, staff and parents to Mr. Charlie Ellis and the many others who installed the antenna system at Pinebrook.

This Is Awareness Week--

What Is Lupus?

By Marlene Benson

Lupus what?

Many times these are the first words uttered by the patient, friend or family of one who has been diagnosed as having discoid or systemic Lupus Erythematosus.

And this was basically the reaction of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hoyle of Cooleemee six years ago when they learned their youngest daughter, Margaret, was the victim of Lupus.

Commonly known as "the great imitator", Lupus is quite often misdiagnosed. It often mimics heart disease, kidney disorders, rheumatic fever and even cancer. It can come and go in seemingly random patterns of remission and activity.

Lupus afflicts more than 500,000 Americans, with 50,000 new cases each year; yet the chronic inflammatory illness is barely know except by sufferers, their families and the doctors who treat it.

With the use of corticosteriods and drugs that suppress the body's antibody defenses, the natural tendency to throw off foreign substances, 90 percent of lupus patients now live long beyond the 10-year lifespan than once was all they could expect.

Because the disease immitates so many other, Mrs. Hoyle said it takes a knowledgeable doctor to diagnose lupus. And without proper treatment, severe forms of the disease can ripple, disfigure and kill. There is no know cure for the disease.

Systemic lupus, the most dangerous form and the type which Margaret has, causes swelling and inflammation of connective tissues and may involve any organ system in the body-the brain, muscles, lungs, heart, blood or kidneys. Often, joints are affected, leading to mistaken diagnoses of arthritis.

Discoid lupus, a different form, affects only the skin, producing reddened, disc-shaped lesions. This form of lupus usually isn't a serious health threat, but the red patches are ugly, painful and sometimes produce scars.

Some systemic lupus sufferers also have skin lesions; more often, their symptoms are easily mistaken for influenza or even overwork; joint and muscle aches, severe fatigue, persistent low fever, weight loss, irritability or loss of appetite.

President Carter has declared this week National Lupus Week for 1978. Gov. Jim Hunt also has declared it Lupus Awareness Week in North Carolina, as has Gov. James Edwards in South Carolina.

Mrs. Hoyle says there are Lupus Chapters in Raleigh, Fayetteville, Charlotte, and in Statesville. Margaret is a member of the Statesville Chapter and keeps in close contact with some of the members there on a regular basis.

It is still questionable as to what causes the disease, but it is know that lupus is not congtagious. .and seven out of ten times it strikes women in the age range of 17-40.

It is believed an unexplained malfunction of the body's antibody system causes the disease. Normally, antibodies defend against viruses and bacteria; in lupus, the defenders turn inward and attack the body's own connective tissue.

Although treatment cannot cure the disease, it can relieve many of the symptoms. Since it varies from person to person, treatment has to be tailored to fit the individual.

As with other serious diseases, patients who fact their problems squarely, follow their doctor's advice, learn all they can about living and coping with lupus, usually do better than those who either tend to hide their heads in the sand or become excessively anxious.

The importance of the understanding and support of the family for the Lupus patient cannot be overemphasized. Mrs. Hoyle says family attitudes play a major role in the emotional well being of the patient.

One seldom sees Margaret but what she has a big smile and a very good attitude. At this time, she is in the hospital, but she still manages to keep up her spirits and hopefully will be coming home the first of next week.

It's true medicine cannot yet cure the disease, but neither can drugs cure diabetes or heart disease. Yet, many people are living good productive lives with these illnesses, through consistent care and understanding. Increased awareness of the disease and improvement in diagnostic tests make early diagnosis possible.

Feed Corn!

Tom and J.W. Phelps have a crop of unusually large feed corn growing in a field off the Pine Ridge Road, Cooleemee. The stalks stand aournd 12 feet tall and the ears of corn are considerably larger. Shown looking over the bumper crop is Tom's wife, Dianne, and Children, Clay, 6, and Tammy 8. The corn, which is of the Pioneer no. 3147 variety, was sod-planted after wheat had been harvested from the field. Tom says they expect a yield of more than 100 bushels per acre. Retired Navy Admiral Expresses Concern Over Our Military Disarming Trend

A former Rear Admiral of the U.S. Navy urged Mocksville Rotarians at their meeting on Tuesday to seriously consider the place of the military budget in our life today.

Kenneth Ray Wheeler of Statesville, who retired in 1974 after 36 years of service with the U.S. Navy expressed alarm that we have been disarming militarily since 1965.

Using the quotation that "those who ignore the lessons of history are bound to relive them", Mr. Wheeler cited three factors that each and every citizen should consider:

(1) The United States has been involved in a major war each 17 years since it's inception.

(2) The basic nature of individuals and nations is that of agression, of placing the greatest value on strength.

(3) The United States is no longer a "have" nation in terms of natural resources.

"Consider the above and then realize that our army today is of less strength than prior to Vietnam; our Air Force is only two thirds of what it was prior to Vietnam. Today we have 384 strategic bombers compared to 1600 two years ago. And the Navy has dropped from 900 units in 1965 to 465 today", said Mr. Wheeler.

The speaker graduated from the University of California in May 1939, was commissioned an Ensign in the U.S. Navy and went immediately to active duty. He served in the Phillipine Islands and was assigned duties abroad the submarine tender USS CANOPUS. With the fall of Corregidor in May 1942 he became a Prisoner of War.

He was promoted to Rear Admiral in June 1965 and became the Assistant Comptroller of the Navy, Washington, D.C.

He retired as a Vice Admiral after 36 years of service in September 1974. He is a graduate of the Naval War College and Advanced Management Program at Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. In 1961 he was awarded the George Washington Honor Medal from the Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge. He is a former chairman of the President's Committee on Services and Products of the Blind and other severely handicapped.

Chester Blackwelder had charge of the program and introduced Mr. Wheeler. President Charles Blalock presided.

Demsie Grimes was inducted into the club as a new member by Charles Dunn.

School Band Magazine Sale To Begin September 29

Davie County School students in grades five through twelve will take home magazine subscription information on Friday, September 29. The drive will end on Monday, October 9. The Band Boosters' Club is assisting the schools with the drive and hopes to be able to pay for the new uniforms for the Davie High Band through a successful sale this year.

Magazines are purchased through the Quality School Plan, a subsidiary of the Readers Digest Company. QSP has over 300 magazines and periodicals available for subscription, and will honor any special rate subscriptions available for to subscribers through any special offers. Students will be given coupons for a prize for every magazine sold and a grand prize will be offered at each school. Each elementary school will be allowed to retain 25 per cent of the net profits from the sale at their school and the remaining proceeds will go toward the purchase of uniforms for the band. High school students will also offer stereo records and tapes for sale at a discount price.

"I can't think of a more worthwhile or beneficial project for our students and community to support," said Robert Patillo, Davie High Band Director. "Almost every home has one or more magazine subscriptions through QSP they probably would save money on them through the QSP program, and, at the same time, be contributing to the quality of our band program. I hope the citizens of Davie County will continue to support this drive as they have done so generously in the past. We are depending on these funds this year more than ever."

Mr. Ben Byers, President of the Band Boosters' Club, urges all parents and citizens of the county to unite behind this very worthwhile drive". "Reading is a continuing part of education for adults as well as students and QSP has magazines that will appeal to everybody's interest. When you think about ordering a magazine, I hope you will also think about how your subscription will help the band program and save that subscription order until September 29. The band needs and deserves your support more than ever."

Stewart To Speak At Democrat Chicken Stew Friday Night

Carl J. Stewart Jr., speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives, will be the featured speaker at the annual Fulton Chicken Stew, Friday night, September 22, at 7 p.m.

This annual chicken stew sponsored by the Democrats of the Fulton Precinct, will be held at Fork behind Hendrix Barbecue, off U.S. 64 East. In addition to Mr. Stewart, there will be special musical entertainment.

Stewart, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Duke University in 1958 was captain of the debating team, Atlantic Coast Conference Debating Champion, a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Tau Kappa Alpha, Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, and graduated from the Duke University Law School as president of the senior class.

He was also awarded the honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Belmont Abbey College.

Stewart is a member of the North Carolina Bar, Gaston County Bar Association, North Carolina Bar Association, American Bar Association, North Carolina Academy of Trial Lawyers, and the American Trial Lawyers Association.

He has served as chairman of the Legislative Council of the Southern Regional Education Board and also as a member of the North Carolina Economic Development Board.

He was first elected to the North Carolina House of Representatives from Gaston County in 1966 and has served continuously since that time.

Wreck On Gladstone Road

A 1974 Ford truck went out of control and wrecked last Saturday about 9:30 p.m. on the Gladstone Road.

State Highway Patrolman James M. Newton said his investigation showed that the truck, driven by Grimes H. Parker Jr., 35 of 66 Duke Street, Cooleemee was proceeding south on the Gladstone Road when the driver lost control, ran off the right side of the road, then back across the roadway, off the left side of the road ans struck a ditch bank.

Rescue Squad Fish Fry

The annual fall fish fry of the Davie County Rescue Squad will be held at the squad building on Saturday, October 7th. Serving will begin at 11 a.m. and will continue until 8 p.m. or until sold out.

The menu consists of fresh fillet of flounder, slaw, french fries, coffee or tea, and all the trimmings.

"Come out and make this day of pleasure and help support this worthy cause. All help, food or donations will be appreciated", said a member of the Rescue Squad Auxiliary.

The local rescue squad is planning to enlarge their building, put on a new A frame roof, and bring their equipment up to date.

Teletips Available On Insulation And Doors

Insulation, storm doors, storm windows and weather stripping seem to be on the minds of Davie County residents as they cope with energy costs.

Tips on selecting and installing insulation, attic fans and solar water heating systems are as close as your telephone.

Mrs. Nancy Hartman, extension home economics agent, explains that a statewide telephone answering service called Teletip has energy conservation messages that could be of interest to you.

"To take advantage of Teletip, all you need to do is dial this toll-free number--1-800-662-7301," she points out.

The service, Mrs. Hartman adds, is operated by the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service.

After you dial Teletip,-all you have to do is give the operator the number of the message you wish to hear. Have a pencil and paper handy to take notes.

Operating hours for Extension Teletip are 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays. For a complete listing of Teletip topics, contact your county Agricultural Extension office.

Toyota Overturns On Cornatzer Road

A 1974 Toyota went out of control and overturned onto the railroad tracks on the Cornatzer Road September 13th about 6:30 p.m.

The vehicle was being driven by Sharon Chaffin James, 21, of Rt. 7, Turrentine Church Road.

State Highway Patrolman A.C. Stokes said his investigation showed that the vehicle was traveling north on the Cornatzer Road, went off the roadway on the right, pulled back onto the roadway, went out of control in loose dirt, slid around and overturned onto the railroad tracks.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1400. There were no charges.

Calvary Baptist To Have Special Song Service Sunday

The music ministry of Calvary Baptist Church in Winston-Salem, North Carolina presents the Adult Choir and Orchestra in a Fall Festival of Praise Concert on Sunday afternoon, September 24th at 4:30 p.m. The church is located on the corners of Country Club and Peace Haven Roads in Winston-Salem.

The concert will consist of familiar hymns and gospel songs, all arranged by Ron Huff for choir and orchestra. Some of Mr. Huff's other works that have been performed by the choir are: the Bill and Gloria Gaither, "Alleluia", and the Christmas musical, "His Love Reaching".

"The Adult Choir invites you to worship with them on Sunday afternoon, the 24th at 4:30 p.m.," said Larry White, Minister of Music.

Health Services

In a survey done recently, health departments in North Carolina were delivering a larger average number of services than the regional average or the national average.

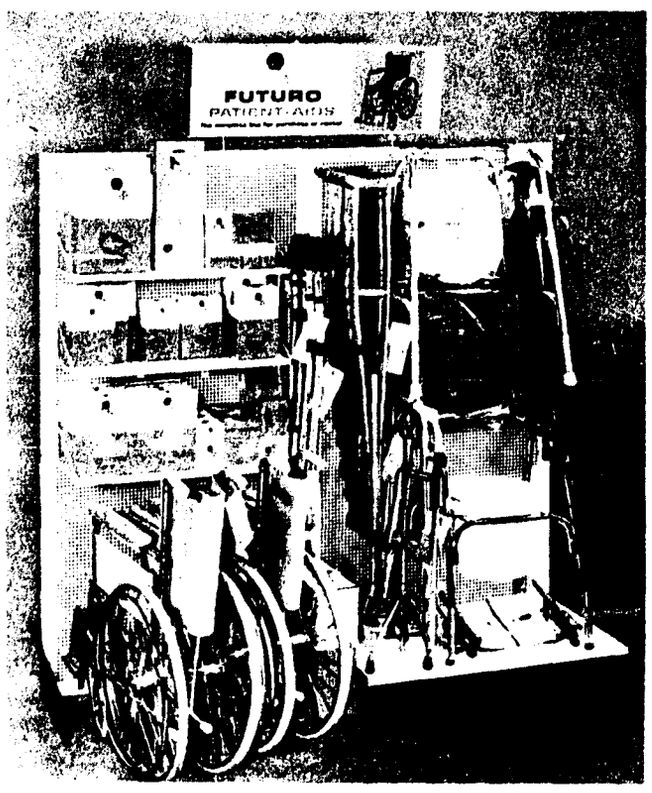

Median Age

In North Carolina in 1914, the median age of life was 28 (meaning as many died before that age as died afterward), today the median age of life is 68.

Health Programs

All public health programs in North Carolina now have set performance standards developed by local and state public health personnel. Local health departments are upgrading their services to meet the standards

Swimming Gets Better!

Walt Boyle Sr. has always been in his own natural element churning through a body of water.

By Doug Livengood
(FIRST OF TWO ARTICLES)

"Swimming in a competitive meet is like hitting your head against a wall. It feels so good when you quit. And for several days after a meet you're on a high that no drug or alcohol can ever give you," exclaims Walt Boyle Sr. of Bermuda Run.

The 54-year-old Boyle is definitely qualified to comment on competitive swimming and the exhilaration it gives him. He is currently the holder of 8 North Carolina state Masters' freestyle swimming records for men aged 50-54 years. And in the 1978 AAU National Long Course Masters' Swimming Championship held earlier this month in Rhode Island, Boyle finished in the top ten swimmers in the nation in 5 of the freestyle swimming events in which he was entered.

Any way you look at it this list of accomplishments "sure ain't bad" for a man who has been swimming as a member of the Winston-Salem YMCA Masters' Swim Team and the state's Tar Heel Masters' Swim Club for only the past year.

But Boyle himself would be the first person to hasten to explain that swimming has been "a thread" which has been inextricably woven into his lifestyle from his very earliest years of life.

In an interview early last Saturday morning, after he had swum a practice swim of more than 2,000 meters (approximately 1¼-miles) at the Winston-Salem YMCA's pool, Boyle expounded on the presence of and importance of swimming in his life.

"My mother was a true Texan and very exercise conscious. During my early years we lived on a ranch in West Texas and, in addition to riding and roping, she started me swimming in a rain barrel and in the Pecos River," noted Boyle.

"Later," he continued, "when I was about six or seven we moved to the south side of Chicago. This was during the Depression and when my dad had to go to work every Saturday he would drop me off at a gym."

While at the gym the young Boyle began to work out with a gymnastics team and the first trophy of any kind he ever won was a gymnastics trophy in 1932, he fondly pointed out.

"I started working with a high wire and trapeze act at the gym called 'The Three Bears.' There was Papa Bear, Momma Bear and Baby Bear and I was the backup Baby Bear and got pretty good on that trapeze," he explained.

"Well, after our gymnastic and high wire and trapeze workouts we would take a swim in the gym's pool to cool off. There was a coach at the pool named Wally Bacharach who had been Johnny Weissmuller's (Olympic swimming champion who later starred as 'Tarzan' in the movies) coach."

Boyle remembered Bacharach "weighed about 300 pounds, but he knew a lot about swimming and he gave me a lot of encouragement and taught me a lot about swimming."

Boyle also played water polo on some of Bacharach's teams.

"I was small in size, but I still played a lot of football and soccer in high school. But I broke my collarbone and a bone in my elbow playing football. A 150-pound kid shouldn't be trying to back up a football line," he reasoned.

Continued Boyle, "Because of the football injuries I was pretty much forced into swimming as a full-time sport and I made the high school's varsity swimming team my first year out and won my varsity letter specializing in distance swims."

Soon after graduating from high school Boyle enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1942 during the Second World War.

"With the Marines being an amphibious outfit and always being close to water, swimming came in handy right from the start," he remembered.

"I was in a raider reconnaissance unit and we used rubber boats on our missions that had big, heavy wooden paddles. When you got caught in the surf the boats would flip and you always had guys getting knocked unconscious by these paddles and I was constantly having to swim to save these guys from drowning."

Said Boyle, "Saving those guys really made my swimming training pay off and I was later promoted to corporal and got my commission toward the end of the war."

Following the war Boyle left the Marine Corps and entered the University of California at Berkeley where he won his varsity letter by swimming in the 220- and 440- yard events.

The familiar environment of YMCAs and the activity of swimming again entered Boyle's life after leaving Berkeley.

"After I got out of school I lived in YMCAs for several years while I worked 18 hours a day managing retail stores. I always knew though that when I came home at night there would be a pool there waiting for me to take a swim," he said.

He added, "I also had jobs teaching swimming and coaching baseball while living at the YMCAs."

In 1950 Boyle reentered the Marine Corps to serve during the Korean War. Before going to Korea he swam for the Quantico Marines' Swimming Team while taking training in amphibious warfare.

It was after he got to Korea that Boyle undertook what he still terms as "the most exciting swim" of his life. He described the conditions surrounding the swim as follows:

"I was with a group setting up an observation post one night on an island in the Han River. But the enemy found out what we were doing and we had to get off of that island in a hurry.

"The tide of the river was going out from the island toward the Yellow Sea. The Han River has the highest tidal drop—40 feet-- of anywhere in the world.

"When we got into the water we were immediately swept down the river by the fast moving currents. The Chinese were on one side of the river firing and the Korean Marine Corps were on the other side firing tracers and it looked like the Fourth of July.

"Because of this tremendous tidal drop we were being swept along so fast that it looked like we would be swept out to sea. If we had reached the sea we would have been goners.

"But we somehow managed to stay together and we barely touched the southern side of an island right before the river entered the sea. We saw some friendly guerrillas standing on the cliffs of the island and they threw down some ropes so that we could climb the cliffs and be safe."

The Korean War ended and Boyle again left the Marine Corps to get married, pursue a career in retail managing and marketing, raise a family and "concentrate" on his childrens' swimming.

"I got to be kind of a swimming fanatic," he said. "I built one pool at one house I had and when I built another house that house had an indoor pool."

With pleasure he reported that "By the time my two oldest sons, Hal and Douglas, were 8-years-old they were state YMCA swimming champions in the state of Illinois." And other children of the Boyles have been fine swimmers in their own rights over the years.

The Boyles moved to Bermuda Run in Davie County in 1973 and Walt continued to pursue his career as the national accounts sales director of a large corporation while raising his family.

However, after his youngest son, Walt Jr., graduated from Davie High School a year ago, his oldest son, Hal, who also lives at Advance and who had been swimming in the Winston-Salem YMCA Masters' swimming program, persuaded his dad to return to competitive swimming after a layoff of many years from competitive swimming.

And Walt Sr. has not regreted for one minute his decision to join the Masters' program.

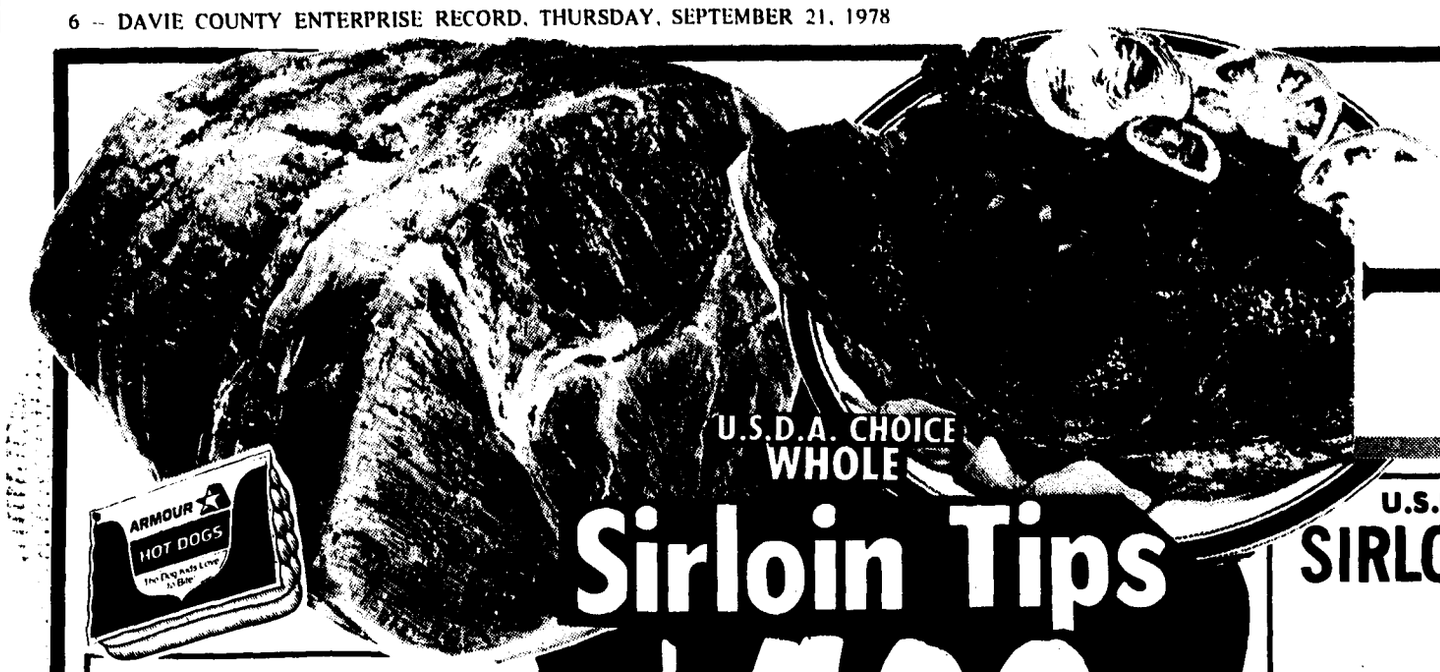

(NEXT WEEK BOYLE DISCUSSES HIS INVOLVEMENT IN THE MASTERS' SWIMMING PROGRAM, HIS RIGID TRAINING REGIMEN AND THE BENEFITS OF SWIMMING, NOT ONLY FOR HIMSELF, BUT ALSO FOR SOCIETY AS A WHOLE).

Boyle sits at his desk at his Bermuda Run home and leafs a scrapbook containing clippings, awards and other memorabilia he has collected throughout a lifetime of swimming. (Photos By Garry Foster).

Pancake Supper

Jericho-Hardison Ruritan Club, Green Hill Road, will sponsor a Pancake Breakfast, Saturday, September 23, at the club, beginning at 5:30 a.m. and continuing until 11 a.m. The menu will be pancakes, sausage and eggs.

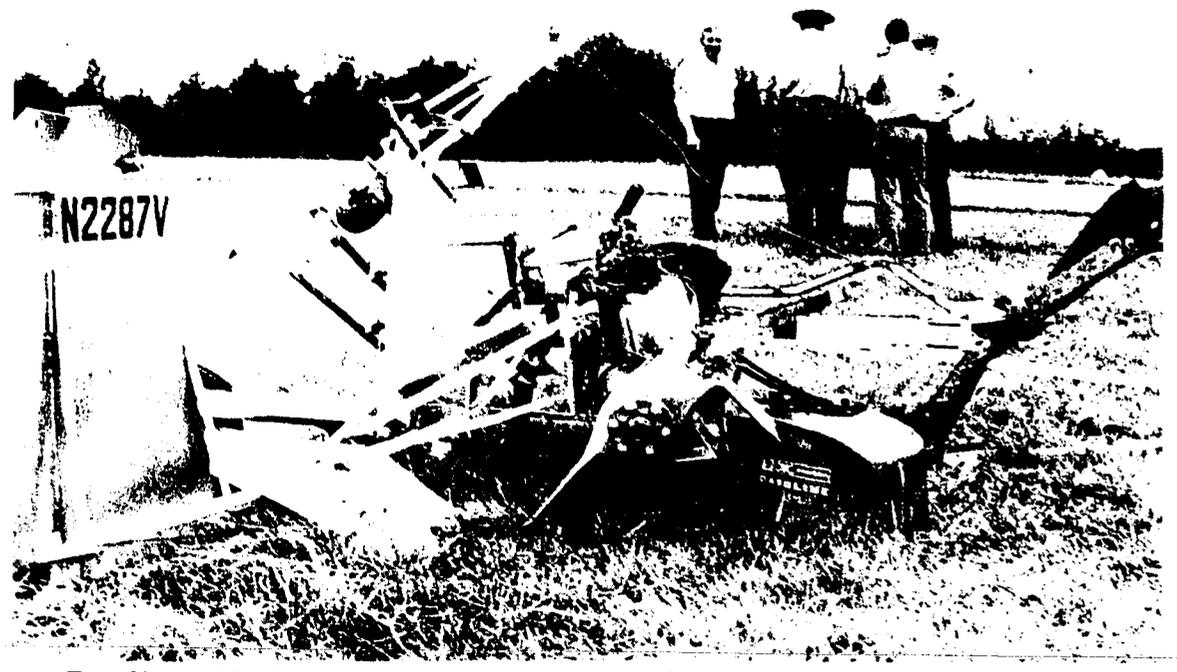

Come on out and enjoy a good breakfast, eat all you want, and pay whatever pleases you. There is no charge; donations will be accepted.

A gigantic yard sale will also be in progress at the club during the breakfast hours. This is being sponsored by the ladies of the club.

Great Pumpkin

It could very well be the great pumpkin making an early appearance...or so thought A.R. Hollemen of Rt. 7 Cooleemee. This giant weighed in at 109 pounds.

Davie Native Is Killed In Gyro-Copter Crash

Tony Carlisle Myers, 39, of Rt. 1 Woodleaf, was killed last Friday about 11:30 a.m. when his gyro-copter disintegrated in the air and crashed at the end of the Swaim Field runway in Salisbury.

Myers, a native of Davie County and a truck driver with Wrenn Brothers Carolina of Charlotte, was making his first flight in the machine which he had built himself.

Richard Crouch, who saw the helicopter-like machine begin to come apart when it was 200 feet in the air, said Myers had been practicing take-off and landing maneuvers at the local airport for the past couple of months.

"He hadn't taken off in it before today," Crouch said. "He had just been lifting it up and putting it down, but he came in and got gas and told me he was going to try it.

"He was pretty nervous about it and I told him I would be, too. But he was getting confident about landing it. He said he felt pretty good about it and thought he could do it.

"He went back out on the runway and made a few more passages, up and down. And then he took on off. He circled back over the airport and he was maybe over town or over Rowan Mills and it looked like he was coming back in kind of quick.

"The blades just fell off and he just came tumbling down, end over end.

"We think he was going too fast and there was too much force on the rotor blades," Crouch said. "He was probably going 60 or 70 miles an hour."

The machine, which can only carry one person, consists of "a couple of beams with wheels, an engine and a rotor on top," another airport spokesman said. "They're not very common but there are several of them in the area." The machines are manufactured in kit form by Benson Aircraft Co. of Raleigh.

Myers had apparently purchased the kit several months before and was teaching himself to fly it. "That's normal procedure on a one-place plane," said the spokesman, who declined to be identified.

Crouch said he considered the aircraft dangerous.

He and two other men, G. W. Walker and Richard Simmerson, saw the gyro-copter come apart. "It appeared to hit some turbulence," the spokesman said. "It ceered sharply and started flying apart."

A native of Davie County born April 11, 1939, Myers was the son of Lewis Myers and Ruth McIntyre Myers. He was educated at Woodleaf School.

In addition to his work as a truck driver, he had been a driver of race cars on the Concord Speedway.

He attended Woodleaf United Methodist Church, where services were conducted Sunday by the pastor, the Rev. Shirley T. Jones. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Libby Harkey Myers; two sons, Billy Joe and Mark, and two daughters, Tina and Linn Myers, all of the home; his father Lewis Myers of Salisbury; and his mother, Mrs. Ruth McIntyre Myers of Rt. 1, Cleveland; and one brother, Cody Myers of Kannapolis.

Community Involvement With Schools Is Being Encouraged

Remember the summer you went back to see your old high school or elementary school? Chances are you could almost hear a pin drop as your footsteps traveled down the corridor to your old classroom.

But times are changing and now schools across the state are buzzing with activity not only in the summer but after school, at night, and even on weekends for people of all ages.

A Community Schools Act was established by the 1977 General Assembly to encourage greater community involvement in schools by citizens in the community and to encourage their use of the school facility.

Approximately 71 local school units were funded by the 1977 General Assembly to hire a community schools coordinator and to set up a local advisory council.

According to Jim Clark, director of the Division of Community Schools, Department of Public Instruction, "As citizens become more involved in the decision-making process, a climate of mutual respect, acceptance, and understanding of differences develops which can result in improved community-school relationships. For instance in Tryon youngsters are getting together with retired persons who own horse farms to learn about horsemanship and to ride a horse possibly for the first time."

Clark noted that through cooperation and community involvement, the schools become community schools which are operated in partnership with civic, business and lay leaders, as well as community, state, and federal agencies and organizations.

Clark also commented on the kinds of activities occurring as part of a community school program. A great deal of activity is being generated as the result of cooperation between local schools and Community Colleges and Technical Institutes. These post-secondary institutions have moved their programs and courses closer to the people who need and want them by using local schools at night or on the weekends.

In Jackson County approximately 13,249 people participated in a variety of programs offered in July at schools in the county while 69,672 people participated in community schools programs in Buncombe County.

In another city, a group of men at a nearby industry just hop across the street at lunchtime to Welcome Middle School in Pitt County to work out in the gym, saving their company money they would have spent on an expensive recreational complex.

Other activities going on as a result of the community school effort include summer day camps, gospel sings, art classes, tennis lessons, bookmobiles, a little theater, a special olympics for the handicapped as well as courses and activities sponsored by local civic groups and community colleges and technical institutes.

Plans now call for asking the General Assembly for enough money to fund the other 74 local school units in a community schools program by July, 1979.

Ens. Charles Williams In NATO Exercises

Navy Ensign Charles S. Williams, son of Fred T. and Sarah A. Crabb of 805 Lakewood Drive, Mocksville, N.C., is participating in the major NATO exercises "Bold Guard '78" and Northern Wedding '78" in northern Europe.

"Bold Guard '78" and "Northner Wedding '78" are designed to refine coordination, command and control capabilities in the external reinforcement of NATO's northern flank and in conducting combined land operations. Takine place over wide areas of the Eastern Atlantic, North Sea and English Channel, maneuvers will include amphibious landings in the Shetland Islands and Southern Norway. A large scale landing on the west coast of Denmark's Jutland Peninsula will be followed by an overland movement of the combined allied forces for large scale maneuvers in Germany.

Participants number approximately 40,000 men, 170 ships and submarines and 800 aircraft from Belgium, Canada, Denmark, the Federal Republic of Germany, the Netherlands, Norway, the United Kingdom and the United States. This represents the largest combined NATO exercises ever held in North Europe.

Planners for "Bold Guard" and "Northern Wedding '78" include General Alexander M. Haig, Jr., USA,Supreme Allied Commander, Europe; Admiral Isaac C. Kidd, Jr., USN, Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic; and Royal Navy Admiral Sir Henry Leach, Allied Commander-in-Chief, Channel.

A 1972 graduate of Davie County High School and a 1976 graduate of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N.C., with a Bachelor of Arts degree, Williams joined the Navy in May 1976.

Teletips Available On Tree Planting

One quick telephone call before you plant that next tree may save you years of regret, says Leo Williams, Davie County agricultural extension agent.

If you are thinking about planting a shade or ornamental tree this fall or winter, Williams suggests that you call Extension Teletip first.

Teletip is a statewide telephone answering service of the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service which offers information on a wide variety of topics. Included on the system are 45 different messages on trees.

"Suppose a person is thinking about planting a magnolia," Williams said. "If he or she would call Teletip first and listen to what our extension forestry specialists say about growing magnolias, he might get much better results."

"You can also learn which trees are recommended for which areas and which are not," Williams continued. "Since many shade trees will live for 100 or more years, a few minutes spent checking out a tree before it is planted is time well spent."

The total Extension Teletip system has 399 different messages. To hear any message on the system, dial a toll-free telephone number--1 800 662-7301. Tell the operator the number of the message you wish to hear. Have a paper and pencil handy to take notes.

Operating hours for Extension Teletip are 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m to 5 p.m. on Saturdays. For a complete listing of Teletip topics contact your county agricultrual extension office.

1964 Class Reunion To Be Held October 7

The 1964 graduating class of Davie High School will hold a class reunion at Rich Park in Mocksville on Saturday, October 7, from 3 p.m. till you want to go home.

The reunion will feature a picnic. Families should bring a well-filled picnic basket and your own soft drinks. This is a family style picnic.

Persons interested in more information about the reunion should contact Pat A. Hege at 633-7041 or at Rt. 1, Box 275, Salisbury, N.C. 28144. You can also contact C.J. Angell Jr. at 634-2883 to leave a message for Pat Hege.

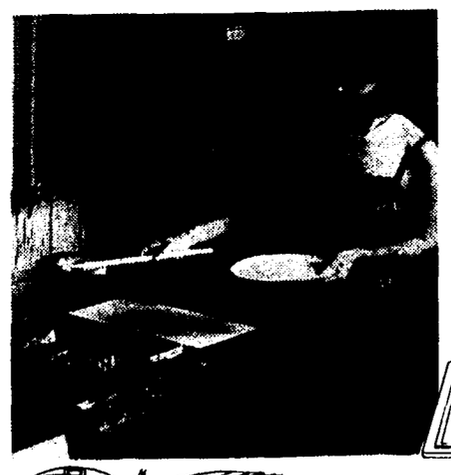

CURED MEATS

Cured meats do not keep their high quality long in the freezer. The reason is that the seasonings added in the curing process speed rancidity.

Saturday Nights 'Almost Unbearable' Living Next To Drag Strip

By Doug Livengood

What's it like living beside a drag strip?

Well, according to Mrs. J. Charles Harding, who lives with her husband beside the Farmington Dragway on Highway 801 in Davie County, "it's almost unbearable".

To illustrate her point, Mrs. Harding spoke Monday about experiences she and her husband had last Saturday night in connection with a weekend motorcycle race at the dragway.

"My husband and I were watching television Saturday night when we started smelling this horrible smoky smell. We looked out the front door and in the field in front of our house there was just a big fog of marijuana smoke which had drifted over from the drag strip," she said.

"We called the sheriff's department about this, but they said they were too busy and couldn't send anybody out to investigate," she added.

Later in the night, Mrs. Harding said she and her husband started hearing pistol shots being fired from the area of the dragway. "It got to the point where we could actually hear the bullets coming through the leaves of the trees around our house," noted Mrs. Harding.

She reported that Mr. Harding again called the sheriff's department about the disturbances at the drag strip and this time two deputies came to their house to investigate.

After arriving at the Hardings' home and talking briefly with the Hardings, Mrs. Harding said one of the deputies remarked to the other deputy that they (the deputies) had better get their shotguns and walk over to the dragway to investigate the pistol shots.

According to Mrs. Harding, while the deputies were on the dragway property, supposedly investigating the shooting, "at least 10 shots were fired." But, she said, "When the deputies came back over to our house they said they did not see one single shot fired while they were over there."

Pistol shots continued to ring out from the area of the dragway, even while the deputies were standing talking to the Hardings after returning from the dragway's property, she said.

Mrs. Harding said the deputies told the Hardings that they had talked with the dragway's manager while investigating the shooting and that the manager had told the deputies that there were no private security officers at the dragway at that hour of the night and that the last security officer had left at 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. J.Charles Harding explains what life is like living next to Farmington Dragway. (Photos by Garry Foster)

A hand-constructed sign hanging from the roof of the box office at the dragway's entrance reads, "No Firearms of Any Kind Allowed. Will Be Enforced."

"The deputies did tell us they would check back sometime during the night. But I stayed up all night anyway and the shooting stopped about three o'clock in the morning, but they continued to race the motorcycles up and down the track at the drag strip all night," commented Mrs. Harding.

"In fact, they raced the motorcycles over there from noon Saturday till late Sunday night," she added.

The Hardings have been living in their home for thirty years and for seventeen of those years--since the dragway opened in 1961--Mrs. Harding explained that she and her husband have had problems with the dragway's operation.

"Our biggest problem has been with trespassers coming onto our property from the dragway," she said.

Because of the persistent problem with trespassers, the Hardings have owned three German Shepherd attack dogs for several years to warn them of trespassers and to attempt to frighten away any trespassers.

"Also," she continued, "the loud racket from the dragway makes life almost unbearable. The loud speakers over there are really louder than the cars running up and down the track."

"And Saturday night was not the first time we've had people at the dragway shoot toward our house not knowing that on the other side of the cornfield and trees which separate our house from the dragway that there are people living," she said.

Mrs. Harding reported that she and her husband have also complained about the dragway's operation in the past to numerous county officials, apparently without much success, if any, in having their complaints answered to their satisfaction.

"We talked to the county commissioners about the problem several years ago, but they told us there wasn't much they could do to help us," she said.

In May of this year, following a weekend of motorcycle racing at the dragway, Mr. Harding wrote the following letter to Ron Vogler, the Davie County manager, requesting his aid in helping solve some of the problems at the dragway:

"Dear Mr. Vogler:

"I have been told that it is the responsibility of the County Manager to enforce the Davie County Mass Gathering Ordinance, which went into effect in the spring of 1972. (The ordinance actually went into effect February 5, 1973). This ordinance specifies that there be a fee of $100.00 filed, and one security officer be employed for each 500 people attending (a mass gathering) for a duration of 15 hours, for security of all people and property within 2500 feet radius of such gatherings.

"This ordinance has never been enforced. I feel that this ordinance has been violated at least twice during the last month.

"Starting on Friday afternoon, at 5:00 o'clock, cars and vans started arriving at Farmington drag strip. The crowd stayed throughout Friday night, May 19th, Saturday, Saturday night, and until late Sunday, May 21st; for about 48 hours of continuous operation.

"I talked with Sheriff Kiger about getting some officers up to the drag strip for crowd control Saturday night, after the noise became unbearable. He said that a deputy went in to observe the goings-on, Saturday afternoon, and the manager of the group asked the deputy to leave, saying that his presence was unwanted, and that the area was private.

"It was necessary for me to call the sheriff again, after a live rock band started playing and singing vile, lewd and profane songs, so loudly that we could hear them plainly in our living room with doors and windows closed. Other neighbors voiced similar complaints.

"Since this property has been zoned as a business property, it might be a good time to determine whether it is a bonafide business or a nuisance. Internal Revenue and N.C. Dept. of Revenue could assist the local government, as to the business credibility. The neighbors can certainly vouch for the nuisance part.

"People who live five to ten miles from here have said that they can hear the noise. I have run off hundreds of trespassers from my property. I have seen more speeding done on the highway than on the track. The property is not enclosed, and people go up there at all hours of the day and night. I once heard burglars break into the place, but did not report it, because any noise, or behavior is normal at any time up there.

"My house is about 500 feet from the entrance. I am forced to spend over $500.00 each year, for dog feed, for three German Shepherds, attack dogs, in order to survive. I cannot leave home, at any time, for fear of destruction of my home by the people who attend this drag strip.

One of the three German Shepherd attack dogs the Hardings keep to ward off trespassers.

"If you determine this Farmington Drag Way is truly a business, could you use your influence in having it operated as a responsible business, such as, providing genuine crowd control (not token), directing loud speakers toward the crowd, and not at neighbors, and forcing these people to observe reasonable hours, etc.?

Very truly yours
J. Charles Harding

"P.S. There was a tattoo artist at the gathering Saturday. It is very unlikely that this tattoo artist had license to practice this trade in Davie County."

Ten days after Harding's letter was dated, county manager Vogler wrote Mr. Harding the following reply:

"Dear Mr. Harding:

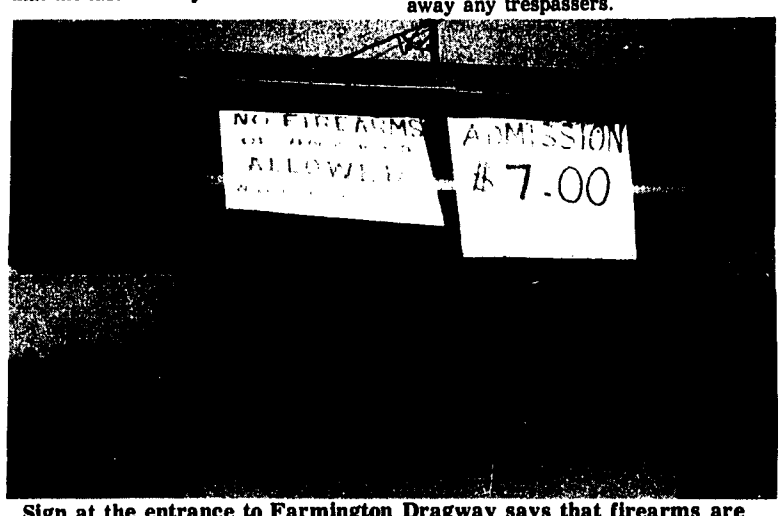

"Thank you for your letter concerning the current use of the drag strip next to you. After checking with the Sheriff's Department, it certainly appears that the event of the motorcycle drag race would come under the purview of the Davie County Mass Gathering Ordinance.

"Therefore, the owners of the drag strip have been notified when the ordinance applies and given a copy of the ordinance so they can make application to the County for the necessary permits and comply with the ordinance.

Sincerely,
Ronald H. Vogler
County Manager"

Have the Hardings ever thought about moving to escape what they believe to be "unbearable" conditions caused by living next to the drag strip?

"I think that after you get to be 60-years-old, as I am, not many people of that age want to go out and start life in a new community. I have lived here till it feels like home and I don't want to go out and start a home somewhere else," explained Mrs. Harding.

Carolina Review

by Jerry Mobley

1980 RUMBLINGS. . .The 1978 political campaigns are hardly under full steam but 1980 political rumblings are already rampant in Raleigh over several statewide offices.

Political "feelers" are bing extended by a number of potential candidates in an early attempt to get some idea of the possibilities for success. Most of the action, if not all, is on the democratic side.

The most tangible effort has been on behalf of Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green. His expected run at the governorship in 1980 is being guided by the "Green Cabinet"- a group of business and political leaders from around the state who are reportedly lining up potential resources and supporters.

This past weekend, over 600 of those supporters gathered in Raleigh for a fundraising banquet and "celebrity roast" of the lieutenant governor.

Should Green run for governor, there will be no shortage of candidates for his vacated position.

At least two department secretaries in the Hunt administration are eyesing the race for lt. gov. Both Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw and the Secretary of Natural Resources and Community Development, Howard Lee, are reportedly considering such a race.

Lee, who was defeated by Green in the 1976 Democratic primary runoff, might also be considering another try at Second District Congressman, L.H. Fountain. The former Chapel Hill mayor lost a respectable 1972 race against Fountain.

Secretary of State Thad Eure's seat will probably be a battle between already announced candidate, George Breece (Breece lost a close race to Eure in 76), and Senate Pres. Pro Tem. John Henley of Cumberland County.

Although Sec. Eure has said he might well run again, his age would be a real drawback. The "oldest rat in the democratic barn" will be a robust 81 years old in November of 1980.

Other reports in recent weeks have put Johnston County Senator Ed Renfrow in a possible race for Henry Bridges' office as State Auditor.

Another possibility is a try by former Ed O'Herron campaign aide, Ben Utley, for Labor Commissioner John Brooks' position.

HUNT ACTIONS. . .Gov. Hunt announced at his news conference last week that he was extending his executive order for merit selection (by a Judicial Nominating Committee) of Superior Court judges for another year. He also said that he would ask the 1979 Genral Assembly to enact such a system into law.

The merit selection will hopefully minimize the political connections needed in the past for judicial appointments.

In separate action, the governor announced that the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen and Company has been selected to review and make recommendations concerning the operation of the state Banking Commission.

The Commission was tarnished this spring by reports of an alleged "coziness" between Commission Head John Tropman, his deputy, Jessie Yeargen, and the Northwestern Bank.

Both Tropman and Yeargen resigned under fire.

PCB. . .The problem refuses to go away. . .Initial efforts to remove the cancer-causing chemical from the roadside have been unsatisfactory and further tests are underway.

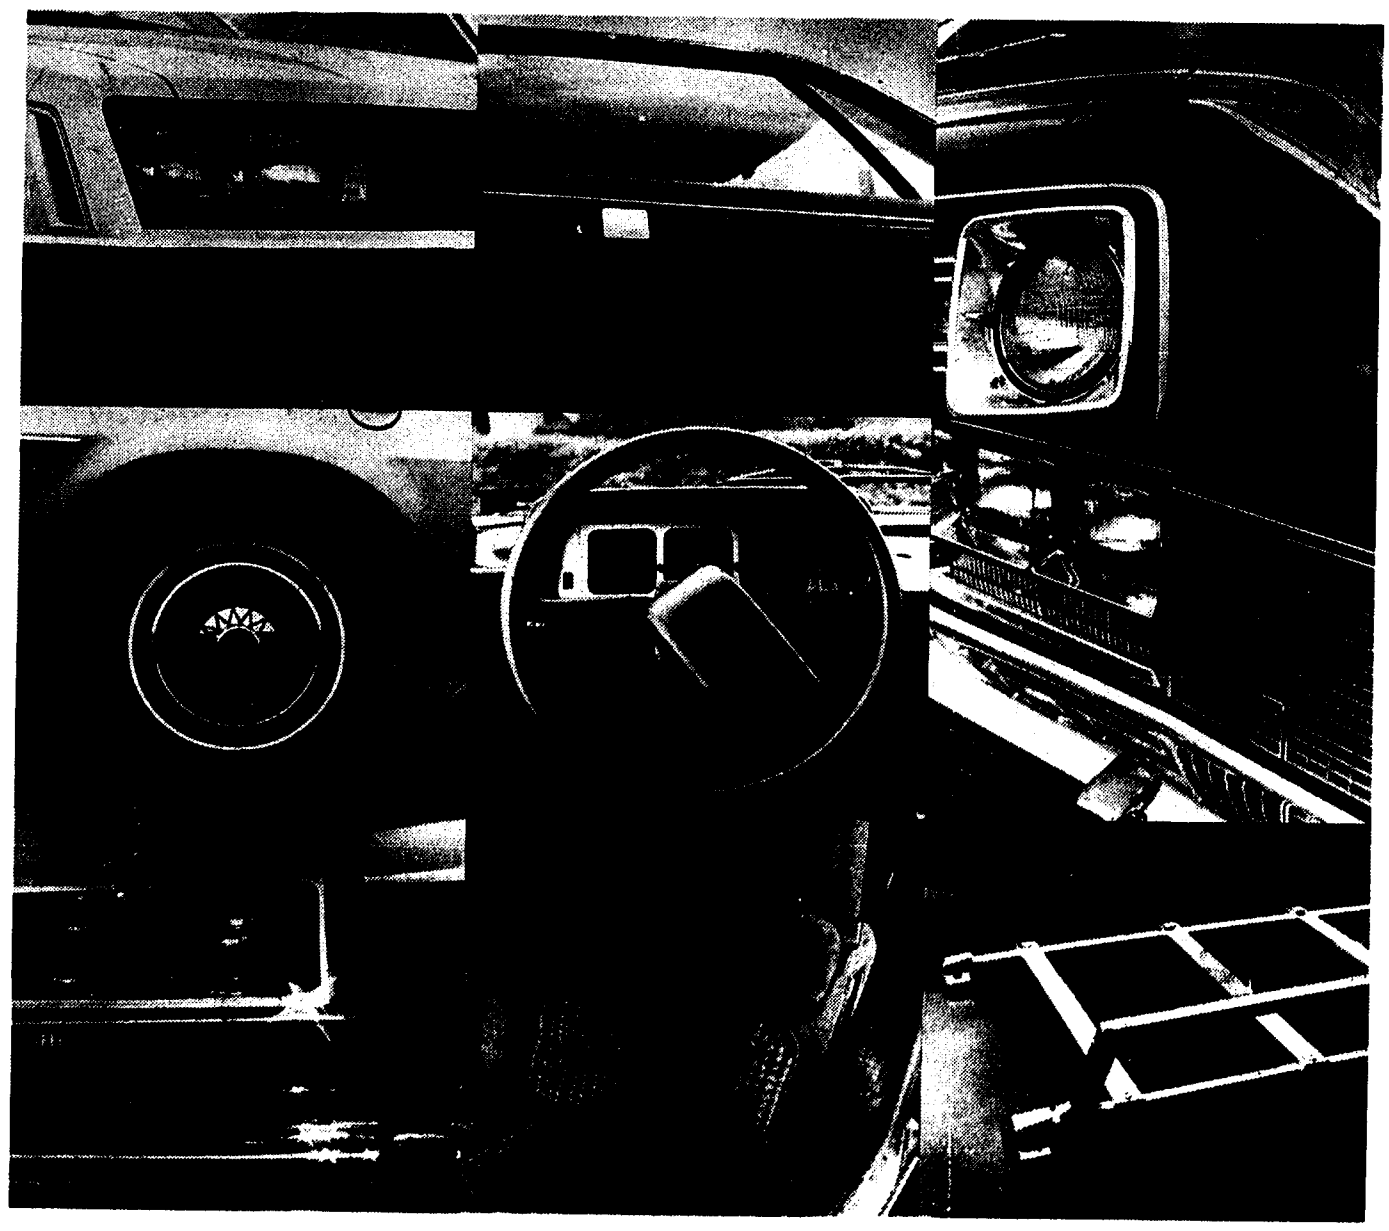

One recent suggestion, to leave the chemical where it is, probably will not receive a great deal of consideration--especially from the residents who live along the 210 miles of contaminated roads.

MORE. . .Bickering continues between supporters of North Carolina's two state ports--the ongoing dissension may come to head in the next several months since dropping profits for Wilmington and continued deficits in Morehead might force consolidation in some areas. . .Only liquor-by-the-drink action this week is in Sanford. Sanford holds the distinction of being the one city in N.C. where beer may be purchased only by the six-pack and at room temperature. . .Gov. Hunt probably does not relish his speech to the annual meeting of the state AFL-CIO this week since his Commerce Secretary, Lauch Faircloth, called the state's anti-union climate a "selling point" in a speech last week to the Eastern N.C. Development Association.

Temperature Is Same

It is not hotter in the sun than in the shade. People feel warmer because the sun heats their skin and clothing, but the air temperature is the same Officials temperatures are recorded by ventialted, shaded thermometers, so the sun will not heat the glass and mercury and distort the reading, the National Geographic Society says.

Mocksville Woman's Club Has Fall Fashion Show

Forty members and thirteen guest met September 13 at the Bermuda Run Country Club for the September luncheon meeting. Mrs. Lester Martin, Sr. and Mrs. James Kelley, Jr. greeted members and their guest at the door.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. James Kelley, Jr., Mrs. George Haire, Mrs. Roy Harris, and Mrs. Roy Brown, Jr. The elegant tables were decorated with pale yellow table cloths and multicolored roses and baby's breath.

Student guest was Miss Stella Deane McCullough who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry McCullough and a senior at Davie County High School.

Special guests were Mrs. Elva Grace Tomlinson, Mrs. Carol Crowell, Mrs. Letty Pennington, Mrs. Sallie Riddle, Mrs. Nancy Cartner, Mrs. Jane Bullard, Mrs. Joyce Shields, Mrs. Nancy Shanks, Mrs. Mary Harrison, Mrs. Clara Corriher, Mrs. Ann Livengood and Mrs. Camille Martin.

Mrs. Steve Martin (Camille) was welcomed into the club as a new member by membership chairman, Mrs. Charles Bahnson, who presented her with a club yearbook.

Mrs. Fred Long, the club president, honored the life and memory of a beloved club woman, Mrs. Eva Phillips, with a memorial tribute. She was born in West Valley, New York, moved to Mocksville in 1950, and joined the club in 1968. She died July 24, 1978. The Mocksville Woman's Club is richer for having had her as a member.

The club donated $500 to the Davie County Library Piano Fund.

Amber Suzanne Johnson celebrated her 2nd birthday on Sept. 5, 1978. She had a cake from her Grandmothers and aunts and uncles and cousins. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Randy Johnson of Rt. 1, Harmony.

Hi, I'm Amanda Marie Osborne, but you can call me Mandy. I just turned 2 years old, and I had the best party, Mommy and daddy think we might have to move out to make room for all my new toys,

My mommy and daddy, (Karl and Joanne Osborne) gave me a party that my whole family came to; my mom'rie (Marie Jones) my Aunt Lela, Uncle John, Cousins Johnny and Michael Butero, and my uncle's mother, Anna Butero. We all had some of my crazy cat cake, ice cream, and coke, and a great time,

Besides all the toys I got at my party, I also got some nice gifts through the mail from my Grandpa Wilford, and my Grandma and Grandpa Osborne, and even my nice neighbors, the Jay Brim's brought me a present too...I really like birthdays,

David and Julie McIntyre, children of Mr. and Mrs. Herman McIntyre of Mocksville, celebrated their birthdays last week with a party at McDonald's in Salisbury. David was 7 years old September 6th and Julie was 4, September 9th. Twenty of their little friends enjoyed hamburgers, french fries, coke and a Ronald McDonald birthday cake. Their grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. D.K. Bailey of Cooleemee, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Otis McIntyre of Salisbury.

MRS. WILLIAM LACY HAIR JR.
...was Diane Dull

Dull-Hair Vows Are Spoken

Miss Susan Diane Dull became the bride of William Lacy Hair Jr. on Saturday, September 16, at Lewisville Baptist Church. The Rev. Joe Coltrane officiated at the 2 p.m. double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas H. Dull of Winston-Salem. She is a graduate of West Forsyth Senior High School and Forsyth Technical Institute. She is employed as a staff nurse at Forsyth Memorial Hospital.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lacy Hair, Sr. of Winston-Salem. He is a graduate of Parkland High School and is employed by R.H. Barringer Distributing Company.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satalustre organza over taffeta, designed with a high neckline, long sheer sleeves and an A-line skirt that extended into a chapel train. Beaded Venise lace, sequins and seed pearls accented the neck, sleeves, bodice and train. Her elbow-lenght veil of illusion fell from a lace covered headpiece which was trimmed with seed pearls and white satin ribbon. The headpiece was worn by the bride's sister at her wedding. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of yellow and white sweetheart roses, stephanotis, babies' breath, lilies of the valley and greenery.

Mrs. Connie Burnham of Baltimore, Md. was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jeanette Boner of Winston-Salem, Ms. Deanie Walker of Winston-Salem, Mrs. Elizabeth Lunsford of Kingsport, Tenn., all sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Anne-Marie Dowe of Winston-Salem. Their gowns were yellow chiffon over taffeta with a wide fluted collar overlaying the bodice. Each carried a miniature cascade of yellow and white roses with white pompoms, babies' breath and greenery.

Miss Jodi Key of Winston-Salem was flower girl. Her floor length gown, made by the bride's mother, was a white crepe de chine. She wore babies' breath in her hair and carried a basket of yellow rose petals.

William Lacy Hair, Sr. was his son's best man. Ushers included Kevin Dull, brother of the bride, Bud Lunsford of Kingsport, Tenn., Burton Boner of Winston-Salem, and T.K. Jones, also of Winston-Salem.

Mrs. Ann Canupp was organist. John Canupp was soloist.

The bride's cousin, Miss Cathy Keaton of Advance, presided at the guest register. Wedding scroll were distributed to the guests by Miss Teresa Jones and Miss Christy Jones of Winston-Salem.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

The bridal table was covered by a lace cloth and held a five-tier wedding cake decorated with yellow rosebuds and topped with white satin bells.

Mrs. Getty Holder and Mrs. Ruth Brown of Lewisville and Mrs. Judy Jones of Winston-Salem served refreshments.

The newlyweds will make their home in Clemmons.

Temporary Deafness

Sustained exposure to sounds above the 85 decibel (dB) level can cause permanent hearing losses and exposure of even a short duration to sounds between 100 and 125 dB can cause temporary deafness, warns the Belton Crusade for Hearing Conservation.

Davie Soil & Water Conservation District Holds Annual Awards Night

Commissioner Graham told the gathering that he supported the principle of land use planning but planning should come form the county level.

"Farmers own 85 per cent of county land," Graham said. "They are the people who will be the most affected and must be afforded a powerful voice in any land use concept."

Graham called for protection of farmers from nuisance suits coming from developments surrounding his property. Often, he explained, an existing farmer can be put out of business when new residents object to farm odors.

The commissioner also asked for fair taxation of agricultural land and called for careful study of the potential impact on agriculture of Section 208 of the federal Water Pollution Control Act and similar legislation which increases production costs and restricts farmer flexibility.

Mr. Graham was introduced by Brady Angell.

Charles Bullock, treasurer of Davie District presided at the awards banquet.

Johnny Allen, District Superior introduced the special guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther West were presented the Goodyear "Certificate of Merit" for being chosen the outstanding farm family of the year from the Davie District for 1977. The presentation was made by Edgar Cartner.

The Communications Award was presented to Robin Carter, photographer of the Enterprise-Record. In presenting the award to Ms. Carter, Sylvia McClamrock said that "the Davie Soil and Water Conservation District feel you worthy of special recognition for the excellent job you have done in photography coverage of district events.

Your assistance with our occasions, such as our awards banquet tonight, speech contests, posters and essay contest awards, and other events, much of it requiring your night time participation. I present this plaque to you on behalf of the supervisors in grateful recognition and appreciation."

The "Farm Family of the Year" award went to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gaither, whose farm is located in the western area of the county, near County Line. Selection is based on practices carried out in the conservation plans of the district supervisors.

In presenting the awards to the Gaithers Cokie Jones noted that "Michael became a district cooperator only in March of this year. He is doing an excellent job of applying the conservation practices and land treatment in all aspects of soil and water conservation". Slides were shown depicting various phases of the Gaither farming operation.

"It is because of their interest in conservation that the Gaither family was chosen. It makes us proud to see young farmers interested in conservation. It is with great pride that we present this award to you, Michael and Cathy. We are proud of the work that you are doing and urge you to continue your efforts."

GOP Candidates Protest Barring Of Political Advertisement In North Davidson Football Program

The North Davidson Senior High School principal, Sam Houston, last week reportedly barred the publication of a Republican political advertisement in the high school football program while permitting the publication of a Democratic advertisement.

The Republican advertisement had been bought and paid for by Gilbert Boger, Bill Land, state senate candidates from the 21st Senatorial District, (Davidson, Davie and Rowan Counties) and Frid Pratt, Melvin Stamey and Terry Grubb, House candidates from the 30th House District, (Davidson and Davie Counties). The ad, featuring the names and pictures of the Republican candidates had previously appeared in the football programs at every school in Davidson and Davie counties with the exception of Thomasville High School. Approval for the ad to appear in the North Davidson program had been received from the North Davidson Booster's Club and coach prior to Mr. Houston' veto of the ad.

The Democratic advertisement, featured a half page picture and name of C. A. "Whitey" Smith, a current Democratic County commissioner who is seeking reelection this year in Davidson County. In explaining his actions, Mr. Houston said that Smith's ad was a public service ad on the part of a public servant and was in no way a comparison to the Republican ad.

Commenting on Mr. Houston's action, Gilbert Boger and Fred Pratt, local Davie candidates said that it appeared Mr. Houston had acted on the basis of poor judgement rather than partisan political motives. They concluded by saying they hoped that the public school systems in North Carolina had not become enmeshed in Democratic state politics to the extend that a school principal would jeopardize his job if the afforded the Republican party in equal opportunity before the voters.

Jaycettes Sponsor Christmas Contest

The Mocksville Jaycettes are sponsoring a "Little Miss and Mr." Christmas contest. This event is in conjunction with the Mocksville Jaycees Christman parade. All contestants and winners will be riding in the parade.

Any child between the ages of four and six is eligible to enter the contest. Entries may be made by returning the application in this issue of the Enterprise. Pictures of the contestants will be featured weekly.

The parents of each child will be responsible for placing jars in businesses in the county. The winners will be selected according to the amount of money turned in by each contestant.

Proceeds from this event will be used for the Mocksville Jaycette project Buckle Up Babes and other community service projects. Buckle Up Babes is a new project of the Jaycettes. Its purpose is to promote and provide infant car safety by making available government approved carseats to any family. Proceeds for the Little Miss and Mr. Christmas will go toward the purchase of these carseats.

Recent projects of the Mocksville Jaycettes have been to donate a blood donor chair and medical cabinet to the Davie County Hospital, and to establish and maintain a layette program through the Prenatal Care Clinic at the Davie County Health Department. The club also sponsors a Girl Scout troop and a Babysitter's clinic. Also, each year the Mocksville Jaycettes provide a $300 scholarship awarded to an outstanding Davie High School student.

Volks Wrecks On I-40

Damages were estimated at $1,000 as the result of an accident on Interstate 40 Sunday afternoon about 10:40 p.m.

Edith Broadway Carter, 41, of 213 Main St., East Bend was the operator of the 1965 Volkswagen that was damaged in the accident 5-miles east on I-40.

State Highway Patrolman James M.Newton said his investigation showed that the Volks station wagon was proceeding east on I-40 and was struck in the rear by an unknown vehicle causing Ms. Carter to lose control and overturn in the runway. The other vehicle momentarily stopped and then left the scene.

A sixteen-year-old passenger in the Volks, Rhonda Carter, also of East Bend, was taken to the Davie County Hospital.

Woman Is Sentenced For Damaging Property

Brenda Hall Pierce, a 30-year-old East Spencer woman, was found guilty Monday in District Court of damaging personal property in the Cooleemee Shopping Center on September 3, 1978.

In a consolidated judgement, Judge Lester P. Martin gave Ms. Pierce a sentence of 6 months, suspended for 3 years on condition she be on probation for one year, make full and complete restitution for all damages.

Ms. Pierce was charged with littering in the Cooleemee Shopping Center by turning over a trash can; damage to personal property in breaking the glass in the door of the J.N. Variety Store, damage estimated at $75; breaking glass in Libby's Fashion Shop, damage estimated at $275; breaking the flourescent light at the Cooleemee Sunoco Station, damage estimated at $20.

Deputy Junior Mauldin was the arresting officer.

New Century Affiliates Invited To Attend Academy

More than 200 brokers, owners and managers of real estate offices from throughout North America who have recently affiliated with Century 21 will attend a four-day Century 21 International Management Academy in Costa Mesa, Ca. starting August 14.

Dick McKenna, vice president of Sales and Management Development for Century 21, said the seminar is "strictly an educational academy."

He said the seminar is designed to introduce all new Century 21 affiliated brokers and managers to the advanced marketing tools and systems that Century 21 offers to help brokers and salespeople better serve their client's needs.

The orientation, he explained, is the first in a series of concentrated management seminars and workshops Century 21 provides to increase effective management growth.

Century 21 is an international real estate organization with more than 6,000 affiliated, independently owned real estate offices throughout the United States and Canada, and more than 55,000 sales people. Last year Century 21 gross sales in North America exceeded $10 billion, McKenna noted, and represented almost 300,000 real estate transactions.

Health Department Accquaints Public With The Vatiety Of Services Available

In conjunction with Public Health Week in North Carolina, September 10-17, the Davie County Health Department last Friday held an "Open House and Health Fair" at the department's quarters in Mocksville.

The purpose of the "Open House and Health Fair" was to help citizens of the county become acquainted with the variety of services available for them at the tax-supported health department.

The health department actually kicked off its observance of Public Health Week with a mass glaucoma, diabetes and hypertension screening clinic. Hundreds of persons were screened for these diseases and many were referred to their personal physicians after the screenings for further evaluation.

Activites at the "Open House and Health Fair" included exhibits, informational games and tours and a film festival of health-related films which were shown continously during the day.

The exhibits at the health fair included:

--Chronic Diseases-A display of equipment and techniques used to detect heart disease, high blood pressure, diabetes, glaucoma, tuberculosis, cancer and other chronic diseases.

--Child Health-Equipment to measure vision and hearing in children and an X-ray display of a child suffering from scoliosis were exhibited. Each year the county's public health nurses screen more than 1,000 students in the public schools for scoliosis in connection with the school screening program.

--WIC (Women, Infants and Children) Program-The health department is currently serving a caseload of over two hundred persons in this supplemental feeding program.

--Home Health Program-After having been referred into this program by a physician, more than 120 persons in the county are presently being served by the program which provides skilled medical care by public health nurses who visit these persons at their homes. These home visits total about 3,000 per year.

--Epilepsy-This exhibit, sponsored jointly by the Davie County Health Department, the Comprehensive Epilspsy Center of the North Carolina Baptist Hospital and the N.C. C. Epilepsy Foundation, told of the services available to the county's epileptics.

--Family Planning and Cancer Detection--Birth control methods and techniques used to detect cervical and breast cancers were explained and demonstrated at this exhibit.

--Dental Health-A dental hygienist demonstrated proper flossing and brushing techniques. This hygienist regularly visits the public schools to explain to students and teachers the proper techniques of dental care.

--Environmental Health-A model of a septic tank system, examples of various types of soil in Davie County and discussions of the health department's responsibilities regarding the areas of water supplies, solid waste control, communicable disease control, sewage disposal and food handling procedures in restaurants highlighted this exhibit.

The staff of the Davie County Health Department emphasized at the "Open House and Health Fair" that the department was created with the primary responsibility to serve the citizens of the county.

Public Health in North Carolina is 102 years old, but in Davie County official public health activities were only begun just over 40 years ago.

Ancient people believed a birthstone brought good luck to the wearer and also influenced a person's personality by strengthening such traits as courage, sincerity, and loyalty, according to The World Book Encyclopedia.

Big Names At Dixie Classic

Big name stars and thrilling feats of skill will add excitement and glamour to the grandstand shows at the Dixie Classic Fair here September 29 through October 7.

The Chitwood Thrill Shows will return on Monday, October 2 with a rare collection of daring exhibitions of driving skills. Long a popular favorite with Fairgoers, they will be held over for additional performances Tuesday, October 3.

The grandstand will feature Mickey Gilley the next night. Gilley has been heralded as country music's newest sensation. He will appear with the Red Rose Express.

The widely popular Tom T. Hall will be on hand for the Thursday show. Millions of fans have seen him in his television appearances and bought his best-selling records.

On October 6 and 7, North Carolina Tractor Pullers Association will conduct a tractor pull in front of the grandstand. Prizes in this event will approach $4,000.

Radio Station WTQR, an FM station which programs what is termed All American Country, will schedule the finals in its state-wide talent contest at the Fair. On September 29 from 6:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. three Country and Western bands and three Blue Grass bands will compete. This program will be repeated the following evening. On Sunday, October 1, the hours will be 2:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. During this time, Blue Grass bands will compete for the championship. The winner of this contest will go to the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville on October 18 to appear on Bill Monroe's Blue Grass Special.

Competitions among Country and Western bands will continue on October 2 from 6:00 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Three semi-finalists will compete for the championship, and a chance to appear on Ralph Emory's Pop Goes the Country nationally syndicated television show, at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, October 5. The contest precedes the Tom T. Hall show.

What has been called a Celebration of Sound and a Festival of Nostalgia will take place each day when Mariah performs on the outdoor stage. This magnetic show group of 12 talented young people will bring the freshness of today's harmonies with instrumentals and choreographic innovations. Their nostalgic program will feature Dixieland, down-home Country, blasts from the past, and even a stroll down old Broadway.

"We're excitied about such a fine array of entertainment talent," said Fair Manager W. B. (Bill) Austin, Jr. "All of these performers are tops in their fields, and we're looking forward to a wonderful time."

Center Fair President Expresses Appreciation

Millard Anderson, President of the Center Community Development and all the people of the Center Community would like to express their appreciation to everyone who helped to make the Center Fair and Barbecue a success.

"We were a little short of help at times and we hope that everyone understood and realize it takes lots of help to have a barbecue and fair at the same time." said Mr. Anderson.

Oval Glass Top Table--Jimmy Bailey

Brass and Wood Wall Lamp--Ms. Overcash.

Large Load Mulch--Roy Forrest.

The next Barbecue at Center will be on Saturday November 11.

Two Trucks Are Involved In Wreck

A traffic accident occurred Saturday, September 9, at 2:45 p.m., on U.S. 601 N., involving a '76 Chevrolet truck driven by Walter Tillman Dull, 62, of Rt. 6, Mocksville and a '78 Chevrolet truck driven by Robert Leon Baumgartner, 77, of Enka, North Carolina and owned by the Appletree Chevrolet Company of Asheville, North Carolina.

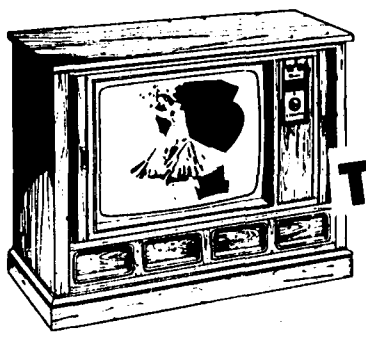

According to the accident report filed by officer B.A. Foster of the Mocksville Police Department, the truck driven by Dull was traveling north on 601 when the truck driven by Baumgartner pulled out from a parking lot into the path of the Dull truck.

No injuries occurred in the accident and no charges were filed.

The truck driven by Dull sustained $300 in damage and the truck driven by Baumgartner sustained $500 in damage

Large Crowds Enjoy Arts Festival

Story by Valerie Slogick

Photos by Robin Carter

How else can the "Arts Alive Since '75" Festival be described except as a complete success. Saturday, September 16, 1978, On-the-square in Mocksville was a day to remember.

It was a day of sunshine and good old-fashioned Southern style fun. Crowd flow throughout the day was estimated at around 7,000 persons. Between 10 a.m. and 10 p.m. crowd flow was continuous.

There was something for everyone from one end of the uptown business area to the other. The art and craft displays and wares were some of the best around.. Many persons took advantage of the vendors and did some early Christmas shopping. Those that didn't buy seemed content to browse.

Everyone enjoyed the many authentic demonstrations provided by the Senior Citizens Group. Tom Hauser's free carriage rides around town were a smashing success with the children.

Competitive and complimentary entertainment is a big part of any festival and we had plenty on hand. The stage area was in constant use and the grandstand was over flowing with people throughout the day. First place decisions proved to be a particularly difficult task for the panels of judges.

Hungry festival goers had a variety of good things to eat. The homeade ice cream concession appeared to be one of our biggest attractions, thanks to the usn. Everyone enjoyed the convenience and comfort of our sidewalk cafe tables.

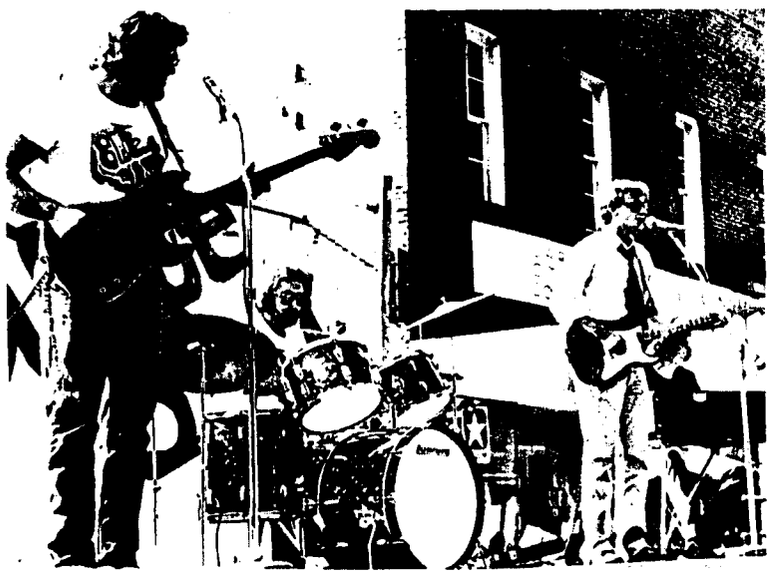

If by chance you missed buying one our festival-theme coloring books, or an Arts Alive T-shirt, you can still make amends. They are on sale at the Davie County Arts Council Office located on the third floor of the County Office Building. Don't forget we are having a coloring book contest for children between the ages of four and 13. Entry blanks are available at the Arts Council office.

For those that would like to be "A part of art" and have a personal hand in next year's festival, we urge you to become further acquainted with the Davie County Arts Council. Stop by our office in the County Office Building. Our membership is always open and you don't have to be a Rembrandt to participate--just concerned.

Winners of competitive events:

Juried Art: Marjorie Hoyle 1st place Lou Clement 2nd place, Annette Ratledge 3rd place, Steve Miller Honorable Mentions, Ann Hartley

The Camel City Rollers Rock Band won first place in competition in that division.

Coloring Contest

..To help celebrate the success of the "Arts Alive Since '75" Festival held this past Saturday, September 16, 1978, the Davie County Arts Council has an added attraction for all children between the ages of four and 13--a coloring book contest.

.."Just do your best coloring and enter one of the delightful pages from James Donaldson's festival-theme coloring book," said an Arts Council official.

..Age categories for the contest are as follows: 4-6, 7-9, 10-13. Contests must enter one of the categories and submit designated drawings pre-selected by the arts council for their particular age group.

..Entries must be in crayon. One entry per person.

..Entries may be returned to the Arts Council office, located on the third floor of the County Office Building, the week of October 9-13.

..Winners from each age category will receive a blue ribbon and their entry will be framed by one of the following merchants: The Frame Shop, West Innes Street, Salisbury, N.C.; Caudell Lumber Co., Mocksville, N.C.; Creative Frame and Stitchery Shop, Mocksville, N.C..

..For more information and contest rules stop by the Arts Council Office or call 634-3112. Coloring books are available for sale at the Arts Council Office.

The National Guard Band from Fort Bragg presented a concert on the square.

The Lighthouse Evangelistic Ministries, Incorporated was one of the many groups to participate in the Gospel contest.

Kate Wilson, instructor of Health Occupations at Davie High School, and her students were on hand to check blood pressures throughout the day. Sonya Crews of Mocksville takes advantage of the services provided by the group.

Hickory Hill Women Hold Championship Tournament

Hickory Hill Golf and Country Club held its womens' championship golf tournament September 9-10 and Betty Foster walked away with first place in the championship flight.

Gwen Pope won the third flight and Emily Kemp was the runner-up in that flight.

Childrens Competitive Sports

Parents Running Too Much Of The Show

Fromplaying jacks, to climbing trees and racing bicycles down neighborhood streets, children have been competing for years.

"It's an inevitable part of growing up for kids to measure themselves against each other," says Dr. Mryon B. Liptzin, director of the mental health division of the Student Health Service and assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "It's developmentally important to know what your capabilities are."

Kids are competing today, but along with neighborhood pickup games their activities are centered more around organized competitive sports. It is estimated that some 20 million children participate in organized sports across the nation.

The competition itself is not bad, says Dr. Joseph L. DeWalt, director of sports medicine and associate director of the Student Health Service at UNC-CH. "Competition prepares for all aspects of later live. For instance, it helps a child to learn the value of team work," he says.

Liptzin says, "Most organized children's sports, like Little League basketball and football, are organized, run and cheered by parents. The fun of participating in these activities, he says, becomes less important than winning and being champion. Coaches, like the rest of society, want to win and they want their teams to win the trophies.

DeWalt says that nothing is wrong with winning--it is a lot of fun. "But it's bad when coaches lose their jobs because their team's not winning, when teams win by breaking the rules and when one team tries to hurt the other team's good player," he says.

Besides coaches pushing their teams to win, parents pressure their children to play well and win, DeWalt and Liptzin say. A lot of parents see their child's participation and successes in sports as a fulfillment of their own fantasies, DeWalt says.

"Children can take peer pressure, but when a parent tries to get a child to achieve his own goals, the results can be disastrous," he says.

Because adult coaches might be caught up in the idea of winning, many of the younger or less skilled children sit on the bench much of the season. Most of the time the superior athletes will play the entire game and the fair players will not have the chance to develop their skills, Liptzin says.

What does the child athlete think about it?

Studies have shown that children would much rather be playing on a losing team than sitting on the bench of a winning team, Liptzin says. And, when the kids choose sides, teams are more evenly divided and players are more frequently rotated.

Although parental pressure may be harmful, parental guidance and concern will always be present. Both Liptzin and DeWalt suggest guidelines that might be beneficial when considering organized sports activities for young athletes.

Grouping children by ability rather than chronological age would give more children the opportunity to play. Team play would be recognized rather than individual superior athletes.

Allowing children to participate in making the rules and regulations to better conform to their needs and level of skill makes sense. DeWalt says, "As long as the line of communication is left open between the coach and the children, the sports activity will be more enjoyable. There's nothing wrong with conforming to their rules"

Using smaller equipment to accomodate a child's smaller body size would make playing a lot easier. "To place a young child in front of a standard size soccer goal is a waste of time," he says. "Smaller goals would make a child goals feel much more effective."

Emphasizing participation rather than winning would be an improvement in children's organized sports. Liptzin and DeWalt say that the Rainbow Soccer program in Chapel Hill is an example of a more human, personalized approach.

"Children in the program are taught to participate for the physical good of the sport and the wonderment of what the body can do." Liptzin says. The program emphasizes grace, form, participation and sportsmanship rather than exclusively winning.

"All boys and girls on the team play; the halves are shorter and the field and goals are smaller; the winners and losers cheer each other's effort," he adds.

Practice is necessary for an athlete's self-discipline and conditioning. But too much after-school practice can reduce the amount of time and energy available and necessary for well-rounded emotional development, Liptzin says. "Kids also need to be reading, out catching frogs or lying in bed dreaming about being president of the United States," he says.

The ideal situation, he says, is for a child to be free to optimally develop all aspects of his personality. "When kids are thrown into parent--adult-run sports which tend to monopolize free time, they (kids) lose."

Mocksville Cowboys

Davie County Little League

The Davie County Little League Football Program completed its second week on Saturday night celebrating Ambulance Service and Rescue Squad Night. The Cowboys and the Oilers remain as the only undefeated teams. In the first game the Cowboys won over the Rams with Dexter Mock and Karl Naylor each scoring a touchdown. Mock added a two-point conversion for a final score of 14-0.

In the second game the Oilers defeated the Trojans by a score of 22-0. John Folmar ran for two touchdowns and two conversions while David Gillespie powered in for the other score.

On Saturday night the League will be celebrating Volunteer Firemen Night. The schedule will bring the Rams vs. the Oilers at 6:00 p.m. and at 7:00 p.m. the Chiefs vs. the Trojans.

Standings	Won	Lost	Tied
Cowboys	1	0	1
Trojans	0	1	1
Chiefs	0	1	0

Fork Discount Women Go Undefeated

Eight teams participated in the tournament which was held September 11 through September 18.

Lori Young was selected as the most valuable player.

The winning team received a trophy and individual trophies were presented to the team members.

Davie Girls Lose Match

Salisbury scored an 8-1 victory over Davie County in a North Piedmont Conference high school girls tennis match at the Davie High courts Monday afternoon.

Coach Carolyn Murray's undefeated Salisbury crew clinched the decision by winning all of the singles events.

Singles: Starla Bunker (S) over Tammy Allen, 7-5, 6-1; Karen Smith (S) over Kathryn Carter (S) over Tracy Stapleton, 6-3, 6-3; Carol Carter (S) over Katherine Grisette, 6-4, 6-1; Wendy Walters (S) over Paige Stapleton, 6-1, 6-2; Susie Post (S) over Karen Cornetzer, 6-2, 6-1.

Doubles: Bunker-K. Carter (S) over Amos-Allen, 7-5, 6-2; Stapleton-Stapleton (DC) over C. Carter-Walters, 7-5, 4-6, 6-1; Post-Becky Isenhour (S) over Katherine Latham-Grisette, 6-4, 7-5.

Steve Stultz Wins Super Stock Victory

Steve Stultz of Walnut Cove grabbed the super-stock victory at Farmington Dragway Friday night when he defeated Kenny Melton of Hillsville, Va in the finals. Both were drivers of Camaros.

The top qualifying run was made by Arnold Hinson of Kannapolis, who was running off the national record clocking an elapsed time of 7:20 seconds on the ⅛ mile drag strip.

Two Winston Salem drivers, Darrell Gaither and Dan Ferguson, fought it out for the "B" bracket elapsed time division victory with Gaither taking the win. Tommy Burrows of King posted his fifth victory in eight weeks at the track when he defeated Bill Childress of Winston Salem in the "C" bracket elapsed time division.

Nationwide Scholarship Program For High School Seniors

A nationwide, quarter million dollars, scholarship program for high school seniors graduating with the class of 1979, is being offered this fall by the National Association of Secondary School Principals. Members of the Class of 1979 are encouraged to enter the third annual Century III Leaders Program, which offers 102 students the opportunity to participate in an expense-paid, three-day symposium at historic Williamsburg, Virginia in March.

The grand national winner will receive a $10,000 scholarship, and 102 state winners will each receive $1,500 scholarship grants. Two other seniors in each state will each receive $500 scholarships.

Local winners will be selected on the basis of a knowledge of current events, and an application that reflects their leadership activities. These winners will be required to write a brief projection, outlining what they see as one of America's future challenges and how it should be met.

The 102 state winners invited to participate in the Williamsburg experience, will have demonstrated a grasp of current affairs in social, governmental or international areas, as well as thoughtful concern for solving these problems in the future.

At Williamsburg, students will discuss relevant issues, and will propose solutions to problems confronting the nation now and in the years to come.

High school seniors should contact their principals for details and applications for the Century III Leaders Program. Applications must be submitted by October 13.

The program is administered by the NASSP and funded by the Shell Oil Company.

Davie Routs Mooresville 38-0 For Third Straight Win

Eagles Play At Thomasville Friday Night

Halfback Brent Burton scored three times as Davie County rolled over Mooresville, 38-0, in a non-conference high shcool football game at Mooresville last Saturday night.

Davie quarterback Scott Pratt opened the scoring for the War Eagles in the first quarter when he carried the football 42 yards into the end zone. The try for two points failed.

Burton scored the second Davie County touchdown on a one-yard plunge in the second period. His score gave the War Eagles a 12-0 advantabe at halftime.

Burton scored twice in the third period. His first touchdown of the period came on a 79-yard pass from Pratt. His next score of the period came on a two-yard run.

Brad Bullock raced over from the eight in the fourth period and Doug Fowler made the final Davie County touchdown on a one-yard plunge.

Shannon Pulliam made two extra points.

Meanwhile, the War Eagles held the Mooresville Blue Devils to 70 yards on the ground and 108 yards in the air.

The Davie defense has now extended its string to 11 consecutive quarters that it has not allowed a score against it. The only score against Davie this season was in the first quarter of the opening game when one touchdown was scored.

Burton paced Davie County's ground attack with 77 yards. Pratt was close behind with 73.

It was the third straight victory for coach Joey Kennedy's War Eagles. They are unbeaten as they travel to Thomasville Friday night for a conference game.

The loss left the Mooresville team with an 0-4 mark.

Brent Burton

Coach Kennedy Is Pleased With Win

By Doug Livengood

'Once we got up three touchdowns we really started to dominate the game," said Joey Kennedy, head football coach at Davie High, after his War Eagles defeated Mooresville at Mooresville last Friday night.

"We made an awful lot of mistakes in the first half on offense and we gave up some pass completions on defense. But, we were pleased with the win and happy everybody got to play a whole lot in the game," Kennedy added.

"It's been eleven consecutive quarters now since the only touchdown of the season was scored against us and that was set up by a blocked kick," he observed.

Said Kennedy, "Brent Burton had a fine game with three touchdowns scored and an interception. Scott Pratt had his best game at quarterback with his throwing and directing our running offense. Brad Bullock played well both ways against Mooresville and Lonnie Wilson and Mark Pollard played well on defense. Wilson had intercepted three balls in the last two games."

Although the War Eagles are unbeaten with three early season wins under their belts, Kennedy and his squad know they have their work cut out for them Friday night when they travel to Thomasville for a conference tilt against the unbeaten Bulldogs.

In some polls Thomasville has been ranked as the second best team in the state in the high school 3-A playing division. However, according to Kennedy, he and his assistant coaches "feel like Thomasville is probably the best 3-A school in the state and possibly the best high school football team period in the whole state."

"We've been looking at films of Thomasville all weekend and they are just awesome with no apparent weeknesses," Kennedy said Monday afternoon.

"They have a dream backfield with Hanner at quarterback, Welborn at fullback and Burton at tailback," he remarked.

And on defense the Bulldogs have "two super defensive players" in Harris at nose-guard and Banks at tackle, he reported.

"As far as Thomasville, this will be just a great opportunity for our kids. We know they are going to be heavily favored, but we're going down there and give it everything we've got." promised Kennedy.

Agricultural Commissioner Graham Heads The NASDA

James A. Graham

North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture James A. Graham was elected president of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA) here today. The election came at the final business session of the association's annual meeting.

Graham moves from the post of 1st vice president to the top office succeeding John M. Stackhouse, Ohio director of agriculture. NASDA is made up of the top agricultural leader in each state and maintains an office in Washington, D.C., to coordinate efforts among the states with the federal agencies and the Congress.

Active in the association since his appointment as commissioner in 1964, Grahafn has also served as president of the Southern Association of State Departments of Agriculture.

Jim Graham is a native of Rowan County, North Carolina, is a graduate of Cleveland High School there and North Carolina State University where he was elected permanent president of the class of '42. He began his career as an agriculture teacher in Iredell County and later served as superintendent of the Upper Mountain Research Farm, manager of the Winston-Salem Fair, first full-time secretary of the N.C. Hereford Breeders Association, and manager of the Farmers' Market in Raleigh. He served as president of the National Association of Market Managers.

Graham was elected commissioner of agriculture in 1964 and re-elected in 1968, 1972 and 1976. Under his leadership the department has been reorganized according to programs administered by the various divisions. He has always been in the forefront of efforts to help the producer and the consumer alike. His determination has been that the many-faceted programs of the department would serve the people of North Carolina in the best way.

Graham has been honored on numerous occasions. The North Carolina Citizen's Association selected him for its Distinguished Service Award in 1977, and he has received the state and national 4-H Alumni Awards. He was Progressive Farmer Magazine's 1970 Man of the Year in North Carolina Agriculture, Honorary Seedsman of the Year and the 1974 Raleigh Kiwanian of the Year in addition to many other honors.

In other activities Graham is a Shriner, a director of United Cerebral Palsy of North Carolina, the Raleigh Rescue Mission, Campbell College and is a deacon of First Baptist Church.

Graham is married to the former Helen Ida Kirk. They have two daughters and four grandchildren. He operates a beef cattle farm in Rowan County.

Jody Curtis Johnson celebrated his 5th birthday on Sept. 21, 1978. He had a party in his Kindergarten class at Harmony Elementary School. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Randy Johnson of Rt. 1, Harmony.

FISH TALES

BILL ROBERTSON
KURE PIER

Coastal pier operators are bugged to death with the same question over and over: "How come the fish ain't biting?"

Well, gather around, friends, cause I'm going to tell you about the time they did bite!...and bite!...and bite!...and bite!...

In my 25 years of operating Kure Pier, this is probably the biggest fish run to hit the coast in modern times.

While the 1957 fishing season ended in a blaze of full lards stands, parts of it would have been enough to disgust a hog.

The fish started moving about a week early in March and followed a usual pattern until May 16th. At that time, we had a rather heavy northeaster and catches slowed down to a walk. There is seldom a time in the year that the avid angler can't at least catch enouth fish to eat, summer fishing included. But from May 16 thru September 29, catches along the coast were the slowest I had seen in my six years of pier operation.

On September 28, a severe northeaster moved in and continued building for three days. At the peak, waves were breaking over the end of the pier, 19 feet above the normal water line. Having had considerable experience with hurricanes in the past, this one scared me. Fortunately, the wind shifted in time and the stage was set for a most fantastic fish run.

On September 30, the sea calmed and puppy drum from one to seven pounds moved in. Over 500 were landed in the next three days. These were followed by flounder, blues, trout, mackeral, black drum, pompano, whitings, and spots...spots by the hundreds of thousands. For 28 consecutive days, the fish hit for a minimum of eight straight hours a day but actually averaged from sixteen to eighteen hours per day...often hitting around the clock for days at the time. On the 29th day, they broke the chain by hitting only seven hours per day.

In all, during October and November, the fish hit for 57 straight days. During the entire time, they were caught a minimum of five straight hours out of each 24 hour period...for 57 days. During this entire period, every fisherman caught fish as fast and often as he could bait and cast.

As an example, four fishermen from Matthews, N.C., fished two days in October, returned home and supplied all the fish for a church fish fry. They fed 185 people, children free, and raised $163.00. Two weeks later, they returned, fished two more days, and had another fish fry. This time they fed 144 people and raised $132.00. I might add that two of the fishermen on each trip were women, as are many of our best pier anglers.

It would be a conservative estimate to say that well over two million fish were landed at Kure Pier in the fall of '57.

Catering to the needs and desires of our fishing visitors kept our nose to the grind-stone every hour of the day. The tackle shop didn't close day or night for 57 days. When we closed the pier on December 1st, every operator in town was dead tired.

But...we groaned all the way to the bank!

Do You Know?

Hearing Losses

Persons who say they hear everything that is going on around them are only kidding themselves, according to the Beltone Crusade of Hearing Conservation. People know only what they do hear–and not what they don't hear, Crusade officials point out. This is aprimary reason why many persons are suffering from undetected hearing losses.

Noisy Environment

While today's urban dweller certainly lives in a noisier environment that most persons residing in rural atmospheres, farmers alco can encounter excessive sound levels such as the noise generated by machinery and power tools, warn officials of the Beltone Crusade for Hearing Conservation.

Cleaning The Oven

Cleaning the oven can be a lot easier and a lot cheaper if just a few preventative steps are taken.

Just a simple box of salt can decrease the buildup inside an oven, according to agricultural extension specialists at North Carolina State University.

Sprinkle spills generously with salt while the oven is still warm and the sticky spill will lift off with a spatula when the oven cools.

And, if the oven needs a thorough cleaning, a bowl of ammonia set in it overnight will loosen much of the soil by the next morning.

WFU The DEACONS by Pat Gainey

Deacon Football coach John Mackovic was found early Sunday afternoon in the Wake Forest library in search of reference material pertaining to "cat skinning", in particular the removal of the hide of a Bengal Tiger.

"There's this large cat," he was telling the patient librarian, "a large kind of cat sometimes called the Tiger but that's not quite what this one is, fact is I've heard it called a Bayou Bengal."

"A Bayou Bengal?", she asked with obviously self-taught courtesy.

"Yeah, a Bayou Bengal."

"Coach, I know you are a Wake Forest graduate and that you have your Master's Degree and I have the greatest amount of respect for what you've been trying to do with out football team here at Wake Forest, and I know you're a proponent of positive thinking and I hate to dispute you. I know perfectly well that the term Bayou refers to a portion of the state of Louisiana, but Coach, tigers are not indigenous to that part of the world. It's a fact."

"Young lady," he said calmly, "this is a different breed of tiger and it has been indigenous to that part of the country for a long time now. You don't seem to understand that this Tiger eats football players, entire teams sometimes. Why just last night they ate a team from Indiana, the entire team. Young lady, we are doing down there this Saturday night and I have no intention of being eaten, alive or dead, and I want you to get out from behind that desk this moment and find me some material about what we might do to skin that thing. Are you willing to be responsible for the possible ramifications if you do not?"

"No sire," she said, "but you'll have to prove to me that there are Tigers in the state of Louisiana other than in a zoo somewhere. What I mean is that I just don't believe there are Tigers in the South eating people from Indiana."

Young John whipped out a copy of the sports page. "Look right here, do you see that ? See where it says 'Tigers Eat Hoosiers 24-17'?"

"I see it but I don't believe it," she said.

"You know, that was my reaction when I say it on film this morning," he said.

"You say they have it on film, these Tigers eating football players from Indiana?"

"I spent most of the morning watching it with my own two eyes. They have this one named Charles Alexander who is something else to watch."

"A Tiger named Charles Alexander?"

"Yeah, and their trainer is named Charlie. He's been around for awhile and knows how to whip them into a fury. Look, I'm getting a little tired of this conversation. I'll tell you what. Down in that part of the coutry, as you probably know, they still believe in the power of voodoo, magic spells, and things of that sort. See what you can find me on that subject. Maybe that'll do the trick."

"Make up your mind please, Coach. You came in here wanting to know how to skin a cat and now you want material on voodoo. Which will it be?"

"I'm not sure. What do you think?"

"I'd try a little bit of both."

"Good idea, Mix up the plan, so to speak. I'll tell you what. You get the material together for me and if we win I'll give you the game ball. Okay?"

"Just one more thing, Coach. Where specifically are these Tigers in Louisiana?"

"They roam all around the LSU campus."

"Oh, my goodness, Don't bring any of them back up here. They'd creat a panic."

"That they do."

Vehicles Involved In Mishap

Two vehicles were involved in a mishap last Saturday in Mocksville on Gaither Street.

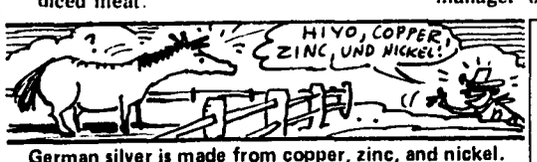

Involved in the 10:10 a.m. accident was a 1973 Oldsmobile station wagon operated by Precyous Bost Sales, 39, of Mocksville and a 1972 Ford truck operated by Latimer Buck Alexander IV, 20, of Statesville.

Mocksville Chief of Police Alton Carter said his investigation showed that Mrs. Sales was stopped for a traffic signal. Alexander made a left turn behind Mrs. Sales, cut too short, and struck the Sales vehicle.

Driver Trapped In Wreck For 10 Hours

An injured James Cloer Jr. of Rt. 7 Mocksville laid in underbrush beneath the South Yadkin River bridge on US 601 South in midst of his wrecked pickup truck for more than ten hours Sunday before his cries for help were answered.

Cloer, who was thrown from the camper truck after it went over the side of the bridge, said Monday he realized he had to remain calm and not go into shock.

"I knew shock would kill a person quicker than anything. My leg was busted and I knew there was no way I could make it up that bank. I yelled until I had no voice left. Every time a car went by I would scream like crazy", said Cloer.

Neither the wreckage nor Cloer could be seen from the road some 40 feet above him, and Cloer was unable to make passing motorists hear his screams of his pounding on the side of the vehicle.

However, a resident of the South River community, out for a walk after church on Sunday, finally heard his cries for help. The rescuer, who was not identified, told State Highway Patrolman L.W. Bjorkland he thought he heard Cloer calling earlier, "but it was Saturday night and I thought it was just somebody down on the river fishing and hollering", he said.

The State Highway Patrol was called at 11:45 a.m.

Cloer, a 28-year-old paint contractor, was admitted to the Rowan Memorial Hospital with a broken leg and other abrasions.

Cloer was on his way to Salisbury at 1:30 a.m. when the pickup truck ran off the road, struck the bridge railing and traveled about 90 feet through the air, Bjorkland said. The camper went over the embankment and on to the river bed and came to rest under the bridge against a column. The bridge is 40 feet high and Cloer and the wreck could not be seen from the road.

About 20 gallons of paint were in the truck, and paint, most of it white, was splattered "all the way to the river, some 100 feet from the wreck scene, the trooper said.

On Monday Cloer said he swerved the truck when he thought something ran out in front of him. "Then I couldn't get it back on the road and the next thing I remember was hitting the bridge and all I could say, God, help me now."

Cloer said he landed about 20 feet from the truck and that he crawled to it to get to the horn. "I figured the only change I had of anybody finding me was to beep the horn", he said.

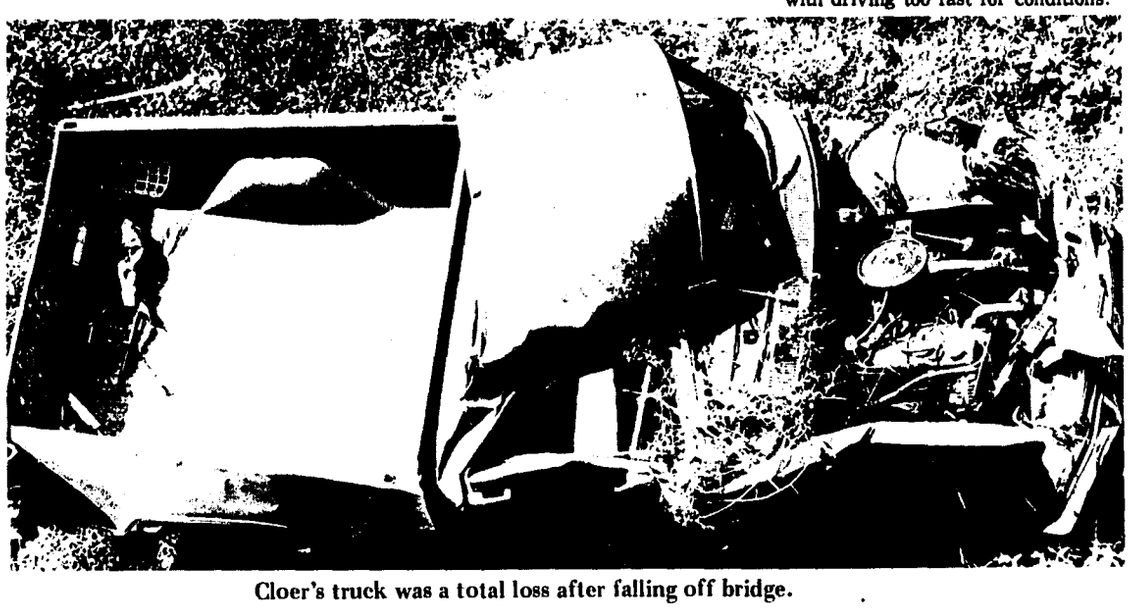

However, Cloer could not get the door open. "I didn't have any more strength. And then there was no battery in the truck so I couldn't beep the horn", he said.

Cloer said he ripped a piece of chrome off the truck and started beating against the side of the truck. When he got no response to either the beating or his yells, he decided to wait until daylight.

Cloer said he slept some, but there was much pain.

"I've been in accidents before and I know about shock. I knew the best thing was to be cool and relax. All I could do was to lay and wait. I was going to wait throught most of the day and when I knew there wasn't much time I was going to try to crawl out", he said. "However, I felt like crawling would endanger my leg worst than it was".

The pickup, owned by Cloer's father, was demolished. Cloer was charged with driving too fast for conditions.

South Davie Jr. Eagles Lose To Knox

The South Davie Jr. High Eagles football team lost to Knox Jr. High of Salisbury, Tuesday afternoon, in a game at the Davie High Stadium, by a score of 16-0

Knox scored in the first period on a 15-yard sweep and in the final period on a 3-yard plunge.

Davie was penalized over 100 yards in the game, 85 in the first half.

The Davie squad also turned the ball over twice, once on a fumble and once on an interception.

The coaches for the Davie team praised the defense after the game and singled out Kevin Green and Mitchell Green for their big games on defense.

South Davie Jr. High's next game is Tuesday at the Davie High Stadium against Thomasville.

Gustatory Sweating

Eating highly seasoned or spiced foods causes some people to start sweating around the face. This condition is called "gustatory sweating" and a few people develop gustatory sweating after surgery or trauma of the parotid gland or a symptom of diabetic autonomic neuropathy.

The condition is discussed by David D. Stuart, MD, of Hennepin County Medical Center, Minneapolis, in the August issue of the Annals of Internal Medicine.

Facial gustatory sweating is a sign of diabetes is still often missed, he writes in describing the case of a diabetes patient treated at Minneapolis Veterans Administration Hospital. The condition was first reported in 1973 by Dr. B.J. Watkins.

The cause of diabetic gustatory sweating remains unknown. DR. Stuart goes on to say that the symptoms can be controlled with certain drugs, but more patients prefer the symptoms in place of the side effects of the treatments.

The Annals of Internal Medicine is the official journal of the American College of Physicians, a national prefessional association of more tnan 40,000 specialists in internal medicine and related areas.

McAuley Spends 81 Days Visiting Farms In Russia

David McAuley of Statesville, one of 12 young Americans to spend 84 days touring the farms of Soviet Russia, has three aunts living in Davie County. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George McAuley of Rt. 4 Statesville. His mother is the former Linda Cartner, a sister of Mrs. Louise (Duke) Tutterow, Mrs. Lois (Clyde) Glasscock, and Mrs. Lorene (Raleigh) Glascock of Davie County.

McAuley, a senior in animal husbandry at N.C. State University, applied for the Russian tour last winter after reading about it in a county 4-H bulletin.

He represented North Carolina in 1974 at the national dairy cow judging contest in Columbus, Ohio, and is a veteran of 4-H speaking contests—an experience that helped him get the Russian trip. Those who went on the trip agreed, in exchange for the trip, to give slide-lecture presentations on Soviet farming to civic and school groups.

McAuley said he found the Russians eager to find out how Americans live---ask questions such as, "How many hours do you work?" and, "Do you have a car?"

American food costs astounded Russians, he said, because food there is very cheap. On the other hand clothes there are expensive---and most Russians quickly identified members of the tour as Americans because of the members' jeans and shoes, as well as the style of their hair and eyeglasses", he said.

Oral Communications Skills Are Needed In New Teachers Criteria, Say Educators

A high level of competency in oral communication skills should be included in the new set of guidelines now being developed for college students who seek to gain state certification as teachers, say two educators at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Dr. Ethel Glenn and Dr. Elliott Pood of UNC-G's Department of Communication and Theatre said they reached their conclusion after conducting a research project on the correlation between student teachers and their oral communications skills.

"What we found in truth was that oral communications skill is actually a vastly better predictor than SAT (Student Aptitude Tests) or grade point average of what kind of teacher a student will be," stated Dr. Glenn, an associate professor of speeech at UNC-G.

Basing their study on a sample of 35 student teachers last spring, the two faculty members sought to answer two questions: (1) Are SAT scores and grade point averages significant predictors of student teaching success? (2) Do communications skills bear a significant relationship to student teaching performance?

In conducting their study, the researchers studied measurements of each student's oral communications skills, plus individual SAT scores and grade point averages. Moreover, each student's faculty supervisor and public school cooperating teacher rated the individual's performance at the conclusion of the student teaching experience.

Then, Dr. Glenn and Dr. Pood evaluated the resulting measurement of student teaching performance against the other three elements--SAT scores, grade point averages and individual measurement of oral communication skills.

What they found was this: The students who were rated above average as student teachers did not have systematically higher SAT scores than those who rated below average as student teachers. The same result was found in regard to students who had systematically higher grade point averages in college.

"However, of those who were rated above average as student teachers, 95 percent also were rated as having above average oral communication skills," stated Dr. Pood, an assistant professor of speech at UNC-G.

Conversely, if the students did not score highly on the oral communication measurement, 72 percent of the same ones didn't perform well as student teachers, pointed out Dr. Glenn. Moreover, she stated that of those who did very well on the communication measurement, 92 percent were "top notch teachers."

"The bottom line on all of this is that one of the things we ought to be requiring of teachers is good oral communications skills," said Dr. Pood.

He noted that committees representing both the State Board of Education and the University of North Carolina's Board of Governors recently have been at work drafting new guidelines aimed at enhancing the quality of new teachers who are initially certified. Among other elements, the new approach as presented Sept. 5 to the State Board of Education calls for the development and administration of a screening test to be given at the end of the sophomore year in college for students interested in becoming teachers.

Dr. Glenn said she noticed that the new plan as presented calls for testing on general academic areas such as English usage, literature, fine arts, social studies, math and science.

"We noticed in the news account that they didn't mention anything about testing the students in oral communications skills," she added. "What we are saying is that, as a result of our research, we are convinced that oral communication competency is a very necessary prerequisite for those students who wish to become teachers."

Dr. Pood added that competency in written English usage should not be confused with oral communication skills. "You can have all the knowledge in the world, and pass all the written tests you are given, but if you are not competent in oral communication, you can't be a good teacher," he emphasized.

In oral communications skills, the two teachers said they are referring to interpersonal communications, articulation and public speaking. For the past five years, Dr. Pood added, UNC-G has been testing students' skills in these three areas as an entrance requirement in teacher education.

In an effort to share the results of their research, the two faculty members said they have sent summaries to Davie Bruton, chairman of the State Board of Education, and to J. Archie Taylor of the State Department of Public Instruction. Additionally, they have prepared an article for possible use in the Journal of Teacher Education, a national publication.

"It's not enough to test people and say you have to make certain scores on knowledge tests in certain areas of study," said Dr. Pood. "Before we certify anyone in the state or nationally as a teacher, they ought to pass an oral communications test and be certified as competent to communicate their knowledge."

Dr. Glenn added that she is convinced that enhanced oral communications skills by classroom teachers can ultimately help bring about improved scores on student achievement tests in the state's public school systems. "If a teacher has good interpersonal communications skills, I think the teacher can sense whether the students are learning the material," she added. "And if they are not, the teacher has the ability to adjust the material for better results."

Dr. Glenn, who received her Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin, joined the UNC-G faculty in 1972. She serves as director of the communication education program in the Department of Communication and Theatre. Dr. Pood, who came to UNC-G a year ago, received his Ph.D. from Florida State University.

Educators Are Trained In Life Saving Skills

Public school students attend school in a safer environment than they did a year ago thanks to steps taken by the 1977 General Assembly and the Department of Public Instruction in the prevention and treatment of injury and illness.

Many schools across the state used to depend upon calling a doctor or relying on a faculty member to handle certain emergency situations during school hours. However, the efforts of these two institutions found a better way of dealing with these often critical situations.

In 1977 the General Assembly ratified Joint House Resolution 1459 which recommended that all schools in the state have at least one faculty member certified in first aid and lifesaving skills. They went further to ask that the State Board of Education set up the necessary training sessions to certify staff in local school systems in these essential skills.

According to State School Superintendent Craig Phillips, one representative from each elementary and secondary school in the state was trained last spring by the state agency's Division of Sports Medicine in cooperation with the state system of Community Colleges and Technical Institutes.

Approximately 2,000 educators were trained this year as part of this program. Certification was awarded by the American Red Cross.

The skills that were involved in the first aid training was that of standard first aid which includes the immediate and temporary care given to a person who has become injured or suddenly taken ill.

Certification in Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) was given by the North Carolina Heart Association. CPR includes mouth to mouth resuscitation and external heart massage. The program enabled participants to become skilled as basic rescuers in both CPR and F.A.

Farm Market Summary

Sweet potato sales increased this week as additional packing houses begin to operate as the harvest progresses, according to the Market News Service of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. Fifty pound cartons of uncured US No. 1s were reported at $6.50 to $7., few $6. and $7.50 on September 13. Prices paid to growers for U.S. No. 1 yams delivered to packing houses with crates exchanged were mostly $4., some $4.50 and few lower. Prices paid by processors for 50 pounds delivered ranged $2.50 to $3. Movement collected for the period September 10-13 totaled over 30,000 cartons for an increase of 7 percent over the same period in 1977.

Egg prices for the week ending September 15 were 1½ cents higher on medium with large and small sizes steady compared to those of the previous week. Supplies were generally short. Demand was good. The North Carolina weighted average price quoted on September 15 for small lot sales of cartoned grade A eggs delivered to stores was 68.56 cents per dozen for large, medium 58.80 and smalls 39.10.

Heavy hen prices were higher this week and trending higher for next week. Supplies are adequate and demand good. Heavy type hen prices were 19 cents per pound at the farm with buyers loading.

A total of 13,790 feeder pigs were sold on 11 state graded sales during week of September 11. Prices were irregular. US 1-2 pigs weighing 40-50 pounds averaged $109.63 per hundred pounds with No. 3s $105.36; 50-60 pound 1-2s averaged $96.61, No. 3s $87.01; 60-70 pound 1-2s $85.10, No. 3s $76.27; 70-80 pound 1-2s $80.98 per hundred pounds with No. 3s $69.86.

At weekly livestock auctions held within the state the week of September 11 slaughter cows were $1.25 to $2.50 higher, veals steady to strong and feeder calves $1 to $3 higher. Utility and commercial slaughter cows brought $36.50 to $44. per hundred pounds, Good veal calves $55. to $67; Good slaughter steers above 800 pounds few $50. to $51.50; Good and choice slaughter heifers above 700 pounds $46.50 to $49. at one market; Good feeder steers 300-600 pounds $55. to $73. and Good Feeder heifers 300-500 pounds $47.50 to $58.; feeder cows $32. to $44 per hundred pounds. Baby calves brought $22. to $69. per head . Market hogs brought mostly $48. to $50.05 and sows 300-600 pounds $40. to $45.60 per hundred weight.

Canton state graded yearling steer sales September 12 sold 946 steers. NC-2 steers 500-600 pounds brought $60. to $67., 600-700 pounds $59. to $63.75 and 700-800 pounds $55. to $59.50 hundred pounds.

Corn prices were irregular and soybeans steady to 10 cents per bushel higher through Thursday, September 14 compared to the same period of the previous week. No. 2 yellow shelled corn ranged mostly $2.08 to $2.15 per bushel in the eastern part of North Carolina and $2.10 to $2.29 in the piedmont. No. 1 yellow soybeans ranged mostly $6.50 to $6.84 in the east and $6.50 to $6.62 in the piedmont. No. 2 red winter wheat $2.85 to $3.34. New crop prices quoted for soybeans $6.10 ½ to $6.56 per bushel.

At western North Carolina shipping points the apple market is lower for a light demand. A few packing plants at lower elevations have closed the season. Red Delicious 88-125s brought $7. to $8. and Golden Delicious $0. to $11. for tray pack cartons. The supply of beans was short with pole beans $9. and round green $7. per bushel hamper. Cabbage offerings are light with 1¾ bushel crates green $5 to $5.50 and egg plants in 1 one ninth bushel crates $7. Tomato market was barely steady with a weak undertone. 20 pound cartons of large and extra large turning pink brought $6. Tomato offerings should last about 10 more days.

The broiler fryer market is sharply lower for next week's trading. Supply is fully adequate with the demand moderate. Weights were desirable. The North Carolina FOB dock weighted average price for less than trucklots 'cked up at processing plants t the week of September 18 is 25 cents per pound. Last week 7,144,000 head sere slaughtered in North Carolina with the average live weight on September 13 at 4.03 pounds per bird.

Market hogs at daily cash buying stations about the state sold steady to 50 higher during week of September 11 and ranged mostly $47. to $50. per hundred pounds.

At the Clinton state graded feeder calf sale held September 14 a total of 525 steers and 413 heifers were sold. Cattle Offered For Sale At Moose Hall Farm

Canning Land and Cattle Company offered for sale about 100 head of pedigreed Angus cattle in its first sale at its Moose Hall Farm near Mocksville last Saturday afternoon.

Van Frye, general manager of the farm, said prior to the sale the breeding stock would be offered in 66 lots.

The lots included about 40 cow-calf pairs; several heifers and other young cows already bred to select sires and show heifers.

With the exception of a pedigreed bull consigned to the sale, all animals were to be from the Davie County farm, Frye had said.

Among the animals on display at the sale was Massive, one of Canning's prize bulls.

Moose Hall, the 1,642-acre farm of the late Dr. Lathan T. Moose, was acquired several months ago by Canning. The company, also acquired the 1,700-acre Quail Roost Farm at Rougemont in Durham County this year.

The company plans to build on the two farms one of the largest Angus breeding herds east of the Mississippi River, Frye said. The Davie farm now has about 1,000 brood cows, he said.

Farmington News

Mrs. B.C. Brock Sr. entered Lynn Haven Nursing Home on last Wednesday, September 13.

Mr. and Mrs. W.S. Spillman had as their Sunday guests, Mr. and Mrs. G.E. Collette Sr., Mr. and Mrs. G.E. Collette Jr. and little Jay all from Winston-Salem.

About 45 people who were descendants of the James and Samantha Perry family attended the 11 o'clock worship service at Farmington Methodist Church on Sunday September 17. The pastor Rev. J.E. Cloer delivered the sermon. The Perry's came from Winston-Salem, Ridgeway, Va. and Hickory N.C. and other places. They came for a family reunion at their home church. They also toured the Farmington community cemetery and the Olive Branch cemetery. The Perrys used to reside in the North Farmington area here. The Perry family had such an enjoyable day that they plan to come back for another reunion next year.

Our very deepest sympathy goes out to Mr. Grady Smith and other relatives here in the fatal death of Mr. Grady's brother, Earley C. Smith who was killed in a truck accident at his home in Apex N.C. Mr. Smith was thrown from a truck in which he was riding. The truck then rolled over him which proved to be fatal. Mr. Earley Smith grew up here in this community. He had many friends in this area who will be so sorry to learn of this tragedy. The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon September 17 at 4 o'clock at Apex N.C.

Mrs. Carrie S. Tucker and son, Gilbert Tucker visited Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Martin in Walkertown last Sunday afternoon.

Mocks

Our church wishes to express sympathy to our pastor, Rev. Alvord and family in the death of his mother at Rodesia on Saturday.

Prayer services were held at the church and in the homes on Friday and Saturday evening for the revival services.

Homecoming will be Sunday, September 24. Revival will be Sunday through Thursday, September 24-28. The speaker will be Rev. Jim Allred from Mt. Carmel U.M.C., Winston.

Mrs. Peddie Carter entered Davie County hospital on Monday where she underwent throat surgery on Tuesday and returned to her home on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs John Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Joe White of Winston, Paul G. Jones and Wayne Jones spent Sunday afternoon with Clyde Jones.

Mrs. Eva Wilson of Fork spent Tuesday with Miss Ethel Jones.

Mrs. Margaret Carter spent Thursday with her mother Mrs. Lydia Allen of Courtney.

CHARLES F. JAMES

Charles Frank James, 45, of Rt. 4, was dead on arrival at Davie County Hospital on Thursday night. He died of natural causes.

The funeral was held Saturday at Turrentine Baptist Church conducted by the Rev. Johnny Enloe. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Born Dec. 18, 1932, in Davie County, Mr. James was a son of Carl James of Rt. 4, Mocksville and the late Emily Spry James. He was a member of Turrentine Baptist Church, was a veteran of the Korean Conflict and was a brick mason.

Survivors, in addition to his father, include his wife, Mildred Wagner James; three sons, Gary, Mark and Keith James, all of the home; two sisters, Mrs. Juanita Lagel Rt. 7 and Mrs. Shirley Seats, Rt. 3, both of Mocksville; and four brothers, E.M., Carroll, Gene and Jesse James, all of Rt. 7, Mocksville.

MRS. J. N. SMOOT

Mrs. Mary Ester Dwiggins Smoot, widow of the late James Napoleon Smoot, 81, of Route 1, died at the Davie County Hospital Thursday morning.

The funeral was conducted at 2:00 p.m. Saturday at Eaton's Funeral Home Chapel by the Rev. Cameron Dodson. Burial was in the Salem United Methodist Church Cemetery.

She was born in Davie County to the late John Wesley and Emily Ratledge Dwiggins and was a member of the Salem United Methodist Church.

Her husband preceded her in death January 5, 1978.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Fred Foster of Route 1, Cleveland, N.C., and Mrs. Wallace Green of Route 1, Mocksville; three sons, Mr. W. L. Smoot, Mr. J.C. Smoot, and Mr. J. W. Smoot, all of Route 1, Mocksville; 10 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren; and one sister, Mrs. A. C. Stonestreet of Winston-Salem.

HORACE S. HAWORTH

Horace Starbuck Haworth, prominent High Point attorney and active church and civic worker, died Saturday at the High Point Memorial Hospital.

The 86-year-old resident of the Presbyterian Home had been in declining health for a month.

He was married July 27, 1923 to Frances Kinsey Morris of Mocksville who survives.

He was educated in the High Point public school, graduating in 1910, and continued his education at Whittier College in Whittier, Calif. where he received his bachelor's degree in 1915. He received his law degree from the University of Michigan in 1920, following service in the army during World War I. He began the practice of law in High Point in 1922.

He held many civic responsibilities and business titles including director of the Southern Furniture Exponsition Building, director of the High Point Hotel Co., president and director of the YMCA, a charter member and first president of the High Point Civitan Club, and district governor of the Civitans in 1925.

He had served on the board of directors of both High Point and Guilford colleges and at the time of his death held the title of trustee emeritus at both colleges. He also had served as trustee for High Point Memorial Hospital and chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Greensboro, now Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta.

He was a birthright Quaker and member of the High Points Friends Meeting. He had been representative of N.C. Yearly Meeting to three Friends World Conferences---Swathmore, Pa.; Oxford, England; and Greensboro.

Surviving in addition to his wife are one son, Horace S. Haworth Jr. of Nashville, Tenn; two grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Bertha Mellichampe of Billings, Montana, and Miss Edith Haworth of Maryfield Nursing Home.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon at the High Points Friends Meeting House by Dr. William G. Gutherie and the Rev. Cecil E. Haworth. Burial was in Oakwood Memorial Park Cemetery.

Planning Board Meets Thursday

Mocksville Planning Board will meet Thursday, September 28th at 7:30 p.m. at the Town Hall.

Homecoming,Sunday

The Cooleemee Presbyterian Church will have Homecoming, Sunday (September 24).

Sunday School and the Worship Service at the regular time. Immediately following church will be dinner on the ground. Everyone is invited to come and bring a covered dish.

"The Believers" will meet at 6:30 p.m. at 7:30 p.m. The evening service will be testimonies, a special hymn singing, and a history of the church will be given.

Dr. Robert Bratcher, research associate in the Translations Department of the American Bible Society, will speak at First Baptist Church, Mocksville, Sunday, September 24, 1978. Dr. Bratcher prepared the basic draft of "Good News for Modern Man," the New Testament in Today's English Version. He was also chairman of the team of seven scholars who prepared the translation of the Old Testament in Today's English Version. They completed their work in November 1975. The entire "Good News Bible" was published by the American Bible Society on December 1, 1976. The public is cordially invited to hear Dr. Bratcher.

Center To Observe Homecoming Sunday

Center United Methodist Church will observe homecoming services Sunday October 1, 1978.

The Rev. Keith Tutterow of Elk Park, N.C. a former member of the Church will deliver the morning sermon at 11:00 a.m. Church School will be at 10:00 a.m. A picnic lunch will follow the morning service and there will not be an afternoon service.

Rev. Cameron Dodson is pastor of the church.

School Water

North Carolina has the largest network of fluoridated school water supplies in the nation -- 115 schools.

'The Restless Ones' At The Lighthouse

"THE RESTLESS ONES," considered the most successful motion picture yet produced by Evangelist Billy Graham, will be shown in Cooleemee on Sept. 23 at 7:30 p.m. in "The Lighthouse" (Cooleemee Recreation Center).

With the accent on youth, this feature-length film deals imaginatively and dramatically with the teenage crisis. With a background setting provided by the 1963 Billy Graham Los Angeles Crusade, and artfully woven into the story pattern, "THE RESTLESS ONES" is a hard-hitting, bold approach to our social problems.

Here is a film which dares to be different, a story which will stir the heart and mind. Having seen "THE RESTLESS ONES", you will never be the same.

As one reviewer said, "Here is a picture that tells the world the truth and comes up with an answer, not an easy answer, but an answer from beyond us." This answer will satisfy, challenge and inspire young and old alike and will appeal to churchgoers and non-churchgoers. The Christian message comes through in the midst of a realistic teen-age situation, cleanly and without cloying. Swift-moving plot episodes highlight the opportunities facing the church.

Screen writer James Collier has skillfully brought into focus the contemporary plight of both teen-agers and parents. A sensitive script, produced by World Wide Pictures under the direction of Dick Ross, has resulted in a "break-through" in "THE RESTLESS ONES."

Singing Sunday At Baptist Tabernacle

There will be a Gospel Singing at the Davie Baptist Tabernacle, Sunday, September 24th at 7:30 p.m. Special guest performers will be the Victors of Winston-Salem.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. F.R Beauchamp celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, Sunday, September 10th with a picnic lunch at Fairfield Mobile Home Park. Hosting the occasion was their only child, a daughter, Mrs. Bryce Blackwelder. The couple was married September 15th, 1928 at the Baptist parsonage in Mocksville. The week before, Mr. and Mrs. Beauchamp spent some time vacationing at Fontana Dam, saw the Lost Sea in Tenn., visited the Grand Ole Opry and spent sometime in Maggie Valley enroute to their home on Route 2, Advance. Friends and relatives attended this special occasion.

Revival Services At Community

A series of revival services will begin at Community Baptist Church, Gladstone Road, Monday evening at 7:30 with the pastor, the Rev. Johnny Abee preaching Monday through Thursday, Sept. 25 - 30th. Guest speaker Friday evening will be the Rev. William Wease of Statesville, and Saturday evening, the Rev. Roy Watts of Harmony. The public is invited to attend.

Special singing will be provided each evening.

UMYF To Begin Shut-in Visitation

The UMYF of Chestnut Grove-Union Chapel United Methodist Churches will begin a monthly shut-in visitation program this Sunday, September 24 at 6:00 p.m. The young people will visit at least one Shut-in from each church.

This visitation program will continue on the Fourth Sunday of each month. A time of fellowship, laughter, and prayer will be shared between the young people and the shut-ins.

Adult counselors for the UMYF are Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Myers from Chestnut Grove and Mrs. Nettie Groce from Union Chapel.

TREASURED THOUGHTS

"Without God, we cannot;
without us, He will not."

So said Augustine, many centuries ago. Therein lies the prefect balance between God's sovereignty and man's freedom. God will never surrender His sovereignty, but He will not force Himself upon any man's will.

The question is often asked, "How much faith does it take to save a man?" The best answer is, "It takes all the faith you have in the right PERSON."

The rich ruler trusted riches – no salvation. But the Samaritan woman trusted wholly in Jesus, and the result was her salvation.

You are a part of that fateful equation:
"Without God, you cannot;
without you, He will not."

Oddly enough, the blasphemous "God Is Dead" idea has done some good in our old world. For one thing it caused Billy Graham to say, "He can't be dead. I talked to Him this morning and He answered my prayer." A bumper sticker found on the back of cars says, "God is alive and living in my heart."

But some concepts of God deserve to die – pagan idols, gods of materialism, and the quaint old "grandfather God" and if they do, that's good! Pity the man whose faith and trust was placed in such misconceptions. It's no wonder he shouts, "God is dead," when he learns how mistaken he has been.

But for others, the words of the angel to Joseph are solid fact: "They shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us" (Matt. 1:23).

Schools And Business: Getting The Job Done

For the first time in educational history a national corporation with regional operations in North Carolina's Beaufort County has donated the full-time services of one of its top executives to help establish a program to promote a formal working relationship between the public schools and the business community.

The official, Brooks Whitehurst, engineering services manager with Texasgulf Inc. in Aurora and chairman of the N.C. Career Education Advisory Council, is the person that will provide the link between schools and businesses.

The trend toward greater citizen participation in public education and community affairs is growing in North Carolina and across the nation. The new community school programs and the use of more volunteers in schools are evidence of the trend.

Traditional means of educational involvement, such as community advisory councils and parent-teacher associations, have become more active in educational affairs.

One source of potential school-community involvement that has not been fully explored is the development of a better relationship between the business community and public education.

"The business community has a large stake in public education," says Whitehurst. "Business depends on the public schools for graduates with the basic skills and work attitudes necessary to fill entry-level positions. When questions concerning business locations arise, the quality of the schools is an important consideration. Will there be a sufficient supply of people with the skills industry needs? Will employees, particularly management-level professionals, want to locate their families in the area and place their children in the public schools? Unless the answers to these questions are yes, the attraction or expansion of business is likely to be directed to other areas or states."

The educational community also depends heavily on business for financial support and the employment of its high school graduates.

North Carolina's business community contributes directly to the financial support of public education through the various state and local taxes they pay. Indirectly, the salaries businesses pay employees contribute to both the state and local tax base which supports education.

In North Carolina, approximately 35 percent of each year's high school graduation class enters the job market directly from high school. At some point, all the students who pass through the public school system enter the economic community to pursue a career.

Public enducation depends largely on the business community to provide adequate employment opportunities for its graduates.

Whitehurst will work full-time with educational, business, and industrial groups to share information about effective programs. He will assist in organizing groups to share information about effective programs. He will assist in organizing business resources in communities across the state and demonstrate how business persons can assist in classroom learning.

Enoch C. Jarvis of Route 2, Mocksville was honored with a birthday celebration at his home Sunday. Mr. Jarvis was 83 years young.

Health Forum Planned For Mocksville

The Piedmont Health Systems Agency will conduct a Community Health Forum in Mocksville on Tuesday, October 3 at 7:30 p.m. in the Davie County Courthouse.

The Piedmont Health Systems Agency is funded by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to prepare health plans and to assist communities in developing improvements in the health system. The Community Health Forum is the first of three meetings scheduled for Davie County.

The purpose of the first meeting is to discuss local health needs. Information gathered will be considered by the Agnecy in setting priorities for the next year.

At the second meeting, County residents and Agency representatives will be asked to assist in developing programs to address those needs identified at the October 3 meeting. The third meeting will be a public hearing on the plans before adoption by the PHSA Board of Directors.

All County residents are urged to participate in this important process which willl help shape future health services in Davie County.

Advance News

An unusually large crowd attended Homecoming services at the Methodist Church Sunday. Many visitors from over the state, as well as adjoining communities were there. The Rev. John Hamilton of Lexington, now retired, delivered a wonderful message. He mentioned that this community held a special place in his heart, as he was here in 1937 as a student from Duke Divinity School and preached his very first sermon.

The Rev. Hubert Clinard of Mitchell county is preaching the Revivial services at Methodist church. He has been delivering some very inspiring messages; with good attendance each night. Rev. Clinard is a former pastor who served here in 1956.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Zimmerman have returned from a weeks visit with their children Miss Brenda Zimmerman in New York and Mr. and Mrs. Chris Farley and sons Brian and Christopher in Arlington, Virginia. The Zimmermans also visited Mr. and Mrs. Jim Tighe and family in Princeton, New Jersey and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Homes in Audubon, New Jersey.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Smith of Southgate, Michigan were luncheon guests Friday and Saturday of their aunts Mrs. Minnie Bryson and Miss Rebekah Talbert. Mrs. Smith was formerly Mary Jan Talbert.

Mrs. Sally Carter has returned from a 5 day trip to Miami, Florida. She flew down to visit several nephews and neices whom she had never met; children of her sister Mazie Bziley Bronsons who went to Florida some 57 years ago. The Bronson family was though to have drowned in a flood that hit Miami years ago. This summer the eldest son James came to Davie county to see if he could find any relatives, and was pleasantly surprised to find his aunt Mrs. Carter and many cousins. Those whom Mrs. Carter visited were Mr. and Mrs. James Bronson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bronson, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bronson, Mrs. Pat Oliver, Mrs. Betty Suggs, and Mrs. Edna Powell. Mrs. Carter says it was a glorious reunion for all.

Mrs. Don Hutchens and son of Advance Route 1 were Sunday visitors of Mrs. Clara Baity.

Mrs. Gladys Davis of Winston Salem has been visiting her sister-in-law Mrs. Georgia Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Spry spent a weeks vacation at the coast and the mountains, with a few days at each place.

Sunday afternoon visitors of Mrs. Walter Shutt were her children and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Collette, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene West and Children Kevin and Emily of Winston Salem and Mrs. Bill Summers of Mocksville. The West's also visited Mr. and Mrs. Bill Zimmerman.

Our community expresses deepest sympathy to the Rev. and Mrs. Alec Alvord in the death of his mother, Mrs. Bessie Alvord. She died in Rhodesia where she had been a missionary for many, many years

Government Regulations Push Up Housing Costs

Unnecessary governmental regulations are adding as much as $100 to the monthly mortgage payment for consumers buying today's median priced new home, a spokesman for the National Association of Home Builders testified today.

And those are the lucky ones, NAHB Vice President-Secretary Herman J. Smith said, noting that millions of less fortunate Americans have been priced out of the housing market entirely.

Smith commented on the causes and effects of housing's 12 percent inflation rate in recent years during a subcommittee hearing of the Senate Judiciary Committee. The median sales price of a new home has increased from $35,900 in 1974 to $57,300 today.

"Housing prices and operating expenses have increased and are continuing to increase more rapidly than family income and consumer prices generally," Smith said. "Those harmed the most are newly formed families who are potential first-time buyers, low income families and the elderly or others on fixed incomes. For those individuals and families, the gap between income and the sales price of a new home is continuing to widen."

Citing several government as well as independent studies on the housing cost issue, Smith singled out governmental regulations for pushing up home prices more than any other factor.

A Rutgers University study, he said, blamed unnecessary regulations for adding as much as $9,844, or almost 20 percent, to the purchase price of a $50,000 home, including $5,115 during the land development stage, $4,129 during the construction stage and $600 during occupancy.

Assuming that 1 percent of the purchase price of a house is an approximate indication of monthly housing expenses, the buyer of the $50,000 house is paying almost $100 more a month because of unnecessary regulations, Smith concluded.

NAHB estimates that in 1949 the cost of a developed lot accounted for about 11 percent of the sales price of a typical new home. Today, the developed lot accounts for about 25 percent of the sales price.

Smith noted that the Rice University Center for Community Design and Research concluded in its study that the delays and costs involved in conforming with government specifications had added between $3,200 and $5,400 to the cost of a developed lot .

A similar conclusion was reached by the Government Accounting Office, which measured how much the cost of single family housing in 11 metropolitan areas including 87 communities has been increased by land development fees and requirements, Smith said. The GAO discovered that excessive street standards and related site improvements added as much as $2,655 to the price of a home, while municipal fees were running as high as $3,265 per home for such things as local reviews, permits, inspections and utility connections.

Furthermore, he said, the GAO survey showed that it took as long as 21 months for a builder to get his subdivision plans reviewed and approved or about twice as long as it did 10 years ago.

Despite these and other horror stories, the paperwork is growing, Smith warned. "The Rutgers study found that a developer of a typical residential project in Los Angeles needed to contact 36 different offices, file 12 different application forms, and produce 87 supporting documents and or duplications in order to comply with all regulations. In Maryland a builder had to pay a total of 18 permit fees and 4 bonds for the project requirements. In New Jersey a project needed 14 reviews for various stages of water, sewer and site plans, six agency fees, four permits and the payment of one bond."

A prominent builder in Northern Virginia, Edward R. Carr Associates, says his overhead costs increased 230 percent between 1971 and 1978, primarily because of all the paperwork and redtape involved in dealing with government regulations, Smith said.

Besides the costs and delays involved in government regulations, builders today are confronted with soaring material costs, which account for about 30 percent of the sales price of a typical new home.

The price of construction materials rose 13.2 percent in the past year, quite a bit higher than other commodities listed on the government's wholesale price index.

In the past year prices of gypsum goods went up 25.4 percent, cement increased 16 percent, softwood lumber increased about 22 percent and plywood was up 14 percent, prompting the Council of Wage and Price Stability to schedule hearings for early October on the soaring cost of building materials.

On the lumber cost problem, Smith urged the subcommittee to review Federal timber policies that were reducing the supply of softwood timber used in home building and, thus, helping to force up prices.

"The annual harvest in the 1970's from the National forests--which constitute the single largest source of softwood timber used in construction--is below what it was at the beginning of the decade," he said. "An increase in the timber supply of one billion board feet could reduce lumber costs by somewhere between two and five percent."

Smith also noted that tight monetary policies designed to cool off the economy and slow inflation tend to exacerbate housing's inflationary spiral by pushing up mortgage interest rates as well as construction financing rates. Mortgage interest rates are near 10 percent in many parts of the country. Builders usually pay 2 points over the prime lending rate, which was raised to 9-¼ percent last week by most banks.

Natural Flouride

There are 26 communities in North Carolina whose water supplies carry enough natural flouride to protect the teeth of children against cavities.

4-H Workshop Held At Penn

The Northwest District Craft Workshop was held at Penn 4-H Center near Reidsville September 19 and 20 this week. Five Davie County participants took advantage of the opportunity to learn new craft techniques. The workshop was sponsored by the Extension Service for leaders in the fifteen counties in the Northwest District. Extension Home Economist, Nancy Hartman, attended with the group from Davie.

Mrs. Lib Anderson and Mrs. Nell Dillon learned Pulled Thread on Canvas. Pam Speer took basket-making and Vickie Hendrix learned the technique of wide binding cane chair bottoming. Frame Weaving was the class chosen by Nancy Hartman.

The workshop, taught by area resource people, was open to the general public. Participants will be teaching local workshops later on.

DAV Unit Serves VA Hospital Patients

Labor Day weekend was Watermelon weekend at the VA Hospital in Salisbury with the help of the Frankie D. Howard Chapter 75 and Auxiliary Unit 75 of the Disabled Veterans.

Three hundred and twenty people were served all the watermelon they could eat over a period of three days. Davie County and Yadkin County farmers donated the melons.

Activities of this type are considered to be of therapeutic value to the patients and are encouraged by the hospital staff; however without the support given by the DAV and the citizens of Mocksville and Davie County, the activities would not be possible.

Drama Set For First Baptist

A drama team directed by Mrs. Ellene McIntyre joins the Sanctuary Choir of the First Baptist Church of Mocksville under the direction of Rev. James T. Lochridge, Jr. to present the pulpit music drama entitled "In My Father's Name" at 8 p.m. September 24th at First Baptist.

"In My Father's Name" deals with the Christian lifestyle based on the Gospel of John. It was written and composed by Ester and Bob Burroughs; a Southern Baptist, wife and husband team from Samford University, Birmingham, Alabama.

Accompanying the presentation will be Miss Louise Stroud, Miss Kim Wells and Mr. Phil Martin. The public is cordially invited to attend this special worship period. Those unable to attend on Sunday evening may wish to attend the dress rehearsal on Saturday evening, Sept. 23.

Cooleemee Club Meets Tuesday

The Cooleemee Home Makers will meet Tuesday, September 26, with Mrs. Emma Dudley at her home on Duke Street at 7:30 p.m.

Yadkin Valley

Sunday was homecoming at Yadkin Valley. Rev. J.C. Yeatts was the speaker at the morning worship service and will be speaking each night this week during the revival. Lunch was served outside under the trees after the service and everyone enjoyed the good food and fellowship.

Bonnie Weatherman came home from the hospital last week where she had undergone surgery. She has improved some so let us continue to remember her in prayer.

Ruby McBride is still a patient at Forsyth Hospital so they can continue to run tests.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hale and children have moved to a new location on the Baltimore Rd.

Ernestine Parker was given a surprise baby shower by the Women's Missionary Fellowship last Monday night. She would like to thank everyone for the nice gifts. They will all be very helpful.

The Valley community would like to express their sympathy to the family of Ernest Butner who passed away last Friday.

ASCS News

Farmers who have adequate on-farm storage and drying facilities have greater crop handling and marketing flexibility at harvest time. They can reduce field losses by harvesting when the crop is ready and they can stretch their marketing over a longer period by using commodity loans to provide interim financing until the crop is sold. In years of excess production, they can store crops in good condition until prices rise.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offers loans to help farmers buy build, or remodel on farm storage facilities and to get the drying and handling equipment they need. Farmers may borrow 85 percent of the total cost of the storage facility at 7 percent interest for a period of up to eight years.

Eligibile storage structures include conventional bins, flat and multipurpose structures for storing dry grain, as well as silo-type structures for storing high-moisture grain and high-moisture forage and silage. Eligible drying equipment includes continous - flow dryers, batch or in-storage drying systems, and systems that dry by aerating or circulating the crop.

Farmers must apply for loans within 30 days of the time the items to be financed are delivered to the farm.

For more information on this or any other program, contact the Davie County ASCS Office.

'Yesteryear In Motion' At Jamestown Saturday

The aroma of fresh-made molasses, the chugging of a steam engine, and the clanging of metal on a blacksmith's anvil will mingle in memory-evoking sights, sounds and smells here Sept. 23.

The event will be the Jamestown-Union Hill Lions Club's sixth annual "Yesteryear in Motion," an all-day celebration of life and work as they were experienced half a century and more ago.

Antique farm machinery and road working equipment still in working condition and running will be on exhibit at the Willard Moore property on Dillon Road in Jamestown.

Among this machinery and equipment will be a steam engine, a thresher, a baling machine, a corn husking machine, a grader, a dozer, a panner, and a roller. Also on display will be a 1927 fire truck and a 1946 Piper Cub airplane.

Craft exhibits and demonstrations, including a blacksmith, and the making of molasses and apple cider, are other activities scheduled at Yesteryear in Motion.

Adding to the fun and entertainment will be square dancing by the High Point Twirlers, and music by the First Musical Group, Bluegrass in Motion, and the Golden Gate Quartet.

Food and other refreshments will be available from several stands at Yesteryear in Motion.

"There is a carnival atmosphere at Yesteryear in Motion which the whole family can enjoy," said Paul Floyd, president of the Jamestown-Union Hill Lions Club. "This is a family-type event."

According to Floyd, attendance at Yesteryear in Motion has averaged about 1,500 at the five previous events.

Letters To Editor

Dear Editor:

At the "Arts Alive Since '75" festival a young man had an epileptic seizure. Gathered around the young man was a group of people staring, most doing nothing and a handful making sure that an ambulance had been called and was on its way. If one is around a person during a seizure and he or she feels that first aid must be rendered, below are the seven tips or first aid as published by the Epilepsy Foundation of Ame.

1) Keep calm, there is nothing you can do to stop a seizure.

2) Do not try to restrain the person. Try not to interfere with his movement in any way.

3) Clear the area around him so that he does not injure himself.

4) Do not force anything between his teeth. There is no chance of tongue-swallowing. If the mouth is open, you might place a soft object like a handkerchief between the side teeth.

5) Turn the person's head to one side. Make sure his breathing is not contricted. Do not be frightened if the person having a seizure momentarily stops breathing.

6) It is generally necessary to call a doctor or ambulance unless the epileptic goes into status epilepticus, where one seizure is continually followed by other seizures, or if the seizure itself lasts more than ten minutes. This ten minutes does not include rest after the seizure.

7) Treat the incident in a calm, matter-of-fact manner. After the seizure is over, let the person rest if he or she wants to. Reassure people around that the situation is under control and that the person is all right.

One of the worst things that people can do during a seizure is to gather around the epileptic, he or she did not plan to have the seizure. During a seizure there is nothing to see, therefore no reason to gather around.

I hope that the information supplied will be of some good to people in the future. I urge people to cut it out and keep it with them, not only making themselves educated but in the process educating others. For any other information please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,
George Vlasios Kontos. III. Vice President

Dear Folks back in Davie,

Several months ago I joined a group called "Heritage Roses," which was formed to find and cultivate the antique roses we almost lost through neglect. It's a national organization, cost me all of $2.00 to join, and if anybody's interested, I'd be glad to send more details. Anyhow, it's been most exciting, and I found out that some of the roses I used to see around Mocksville fall into the "heritage rose" category. I remember some little girl bringing a lovely, old-fashioned lavender one to Sunday School, and letting us smell it.

Since Davie is one of the oldest settlements in the state, there should be all sorts of these old roses, and wild ones, hiding around old home-places, old cemeteries, etc. My aunt, Lois Bracken, found she had one growing unnoticed in the chimney-corner of her house. I have begged a root. The "American" climber now growing in my back yard, and thought to be extinct by the American Rose Society, was found by John MacGregor, of the Huntington Botanical Gardens, when he was riding north from Charlotte, and saw the rose growing in somebody's yard. Who know what other rare roses are just sitting there waiting for somebody to find them. And, please God, before somebody digs them up to build a shopping center on the place.

What I'd really love to see would be a rose garden of Davie historical roses, maybe some place like the ground of the public library. It isn't that expensive a project--just takes a lot of caring and hard work.

In the meantime, if you know where there's an old-fashioned rose, I'd love to have a root, a rooted cutting, or just a cutting of it. If you take up a root, be careful that it's the same rose. Some are grafted ono different rootstock. Odessa Foster used to root them by bending a branch down to the ground, and covering it with soil and a rock to keep it down. Then she'd let it alone till it rooted, then cut it off from the mother plant You can also do that on a stem by wrapping it in peat moss, and wrapping that up till it roots. Air-layering, it's called, and it doesn't have to be put down in the soil--will root in its ordinary position. Softwood cutting are the ones that are taken in the bloomtime of the rose, and they do best right after the rose has bloomed, but before the hips are set. You cut off about 8 to 12 inches of the stem that had the blossom, and that's your cutting; remove about 3 or 4 inches off the top, and all but two or three leaf clusters. Put the cutting, wrapped in plastic,in the refrigerator to callous for a few weeks. Then you can root it in sand or peat moss; the whole pot goes into a plastic bag while it's rooting. That keeps it from drying out. It needs a little air. That's why the Mason jar method rots the cutting. Root one helps. I'm sure the library would have some helpful books on the subject. Cuttings in the fall come off this year's growth in late fall or early winter. You cut 5 or 6-inch lengths of mature canes.

Store rose cuttings in a lightly moist plastic bag in the refrigerator. Putting them in a glass of water will rot the stems. They travel just fine through the mail in a moist plastic bag J st be sure they're not diseased, and it they have roots, just wash all the soil off, wrap the moist rose in a plastic bag, and send her off. I think they travel better with the leaves removed.

Roses can be send to me at the above address,or they can be taken to my mother, Lessie York, at the Mayfair Beauty Shop. I'm drafting her and Daddy to help me. You don't have to know the name of the rose--we can probably find that out from reference books, but I would like to know where it was growing, and if in sun or shade, and anything else you know about it, like how often it blooms, and the name and address of whoever collected it.

If anybody's interested in building a collection of the county's rose treasures, I'd be delighted to correspond with you. Just think, some of these roses we take for granted have been around for hundreds of years, some even since before the time of Christ. Wouldn't it be a pity if we let them die out now.

Thanks for your help
Evona York Thomson

Death Valley

Death Valley, a seemingly barren desert in southern California and Nevada, is the home of more than 230 kinds of birds, 17 kinds of lizards, 19 kinds of snakes, a variety of insects, and more than 1,500 wild burros, says National Geographic World magazine. Twenty-two kinds of plants grow only in Death Valley.

Pinebrook To Sell Popcorn

The Pinebrook Elementary School PTA is sponsoring a project which begins this week to raise money for completing the antenna system and to continue work on the athletic field surrounding the school.

Pinebrook school students will be calling on homes in the area to ask everyone to place an order for "Country Crystal" apothecary jars filled with gourmet popcorn. The jars come in four different designs to match the varied decors and make attractive home decorator pieces.

By ordering a "Country Crystal" jar from a Pinebrook student; you will not only be purchasing a quality product, but also will help them to reach their goal.

Publicity committee members of Pinebrook School Ester Bonardi, Kim Nestor and Xan Gregg show posters they have made about the Popcorn Sale which starts September 21.

Green Meadows

Tommy Wilson and Glenn Short returned to their studies at Wingate College on Sunday after conducting weekend revival services at Green Meadows Church. Mr. Short presented special music, song and testimony. Mr. Wilson brought some very inspiring messages especially on Sunday morning as he used the Scriptures "You are the salt of the earth", and the light of the world. We hear so much of the bad side of youth in these days of drugs and turmoil that its great to know there are many like these young men who are striving to help make this a better world. Of course this type doesn't usually make the headlines.

Beginning October 1 through October 4 a Lay Evangelism school will be conducted at Green Meadows. If you can attend these classes be sure to sign up now. It is necessary to know the number taking the course so that sufficient materials will be available.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jones and daughter returned to their home in Georgia Sunday after spending a week with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Phillips of Forbush were visitors on Sunday of the Milton James family.

Joe Langston returned home on Friday from Atlanta Georgia where he had been on a work assignment for Western Electric Co. for the week.

In these parts recently everywhere one goes someone is commenting on the abundance of grasshoppers. You see cornstalks that are literally stripped of blades, late tomatoes and other crops are heavily damaged also.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Ernest Butner and children in the death on Friday of husband and father. Mr. Butner had been a lifetime resident of the Macedonia Community and was the last member of the Walter Butner family. The Lord had blessed Mr. Butner with a long life of 93 years and with good health until the last few years.

Redland Club Has Meeting

The Redland Homemaker's Extension Club met with Mrs. Marian Funderburk on September 12. She began the evening with thought for the month, "Some of the new books are so down to earth, they should be plowed under." After the son "God Bless Our Homes", the hostess read a poem entitled "The World Would Be a Better Place If We Traveled At a Slower Pace" by Helen Steiner Rice, followed by prayer.

Eleven members answered roll by naming their favorite bird. Contributions were accepted for the projects "Pennies for Friendship" and "Stamps for Food". Members were reminded of the following scheduled activities:

"Women and the Law", Oct. 5 at 10 a.m. at the Forsyth County Agriculture Building.

"Wood and Solar Energy", Sept. 27 at 1:30 p.m. at the Forsyth Agriculture Building.

Area I meeting with Redland Club as hostess at Bethlehem United Methodist Church at 10 a.m. Nov. 8.

Southern Living Christmas Show in Charlotte, Nov. 9. (Bus to leave County Building at 8 a.m.)

Davie County Achievement Day, Nov. 16 at Brock Auditorium.

Mrs. Ostine West, County Agent, presented a program on "The Pros and Cons of Smoke and Heat Detectors".

Alcohol Information Report

By: WILLIAM F. WEANT, M.S.
ALCOHOLISM EDUCATION CONSULTANT

Alcoholism: Disease and treatment - It is estimated that 80 percent of all Americans over age twenty use alcoholic beverages in some form. Drinking presents no major problem to most of these. But to an estimated 9,500,000 others, drinking has become enough of a problem to interfere with successful, happy living. These are the alcoholics.

Alcoholics are not representative of any single social or economic group in our population, and are definitely not all "Skid Row" types. Alcoholics include both men and women, of a wide age span, from "all walks of life."

Obviously, no one can become alcoholic without drinking alcohol, but many facts of the human condition interact with drinking and contribute to alcoholism. Although no conclusive evidence has been uncovered, it is suspected that something in the alcoholic's physical make-up or body chemistry produces an unusual reaction to alcohol. Emotional as well as physical difficulties are certainly related to alcoholism.

Not all users of alcohol become addicted to alcohol. Some drink excessively over long periods of time and with serious consequences and are still able to stop whenever they wish. Others lose control over their drinking almost as soon as they start. Alcoholism occurs when people continue to drink heavily in spite of the painful and injurious consequences they suffer.

One disease which seems to be closely connected to alcoholism is cirrhosis. This breakdown is a direct result of the clumping of red blood cells with the resulting plugging of capillaries. Being deprived of oxygen, the liver cells begin to die. They are then replaced by scar tissue, with the result that the entire organ becomes heavier in its consistency and more fibrous. This new scar tissue is not able to carry on normal functions; and unless the degenerative process is stopped, the liver eventually is unable to carry on its vital work and death results.

Only within the past two decades has alcoholism come to be accepted as a medical problem. Interested persons have demonstrated through new therapeutic approaches that alcoholics can recover. This does not mean a cure for alcoholism has been found; no method known today can free the alcoholic from the chronic disorder which makes it impossible for him to control his drinking. It does mean that through medical, psychological, and spiritual help many alcoholics can be helped to stop drinking without substituting other injurious practices.

(This is the forty-seventh in a series of articles about "alcohol" provided by Bill Weant, Alcoholism Education Consultant with the Tri-County Mental Health Complex. These articles are designed to create understanding about sensible drinking, alcohol abuse, and alcoholism in our society. If you have a question concerning alcohol that you would like answered in a future column, phone 634-2195).

Immunizations

In 1959, North Carolina was the first state to legislate compulsory immunization against polio.

Macedonia

Rev. and Mrs. John Kapp, members, neighbors, friends wish to express their sympathy to the bereaved families in the passing of Mr. Ernest Butner, believed to have been the oldest living member in our church. He was very active while he was able to attend church for many years. He passed away last Thursday around dinner time. May the Holy Spirit comfort the bereaved families.

Those that are in the hospital are: Miss Ida Ellis who had to return to Davie County Hospital the last of the week. She was very sick when she went back. They were giving her oxygen for a while; Mrs. Margaret Davis is still improving at her home. Let's remember these along with others in prayer and with a card.

Saturday, September 23 our senior His Sunday School Class will be having a car wash at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Craft on Redland Road. They will be starting at 8:30 a.m. and continue until 2 o'clock--if its not raining. So keep this in mind. If you would like to get your car or truck washed they will be glad to do it. There will be adults there to help out.

Our young people will be picking up glass again in October before it gets cold weather. So keep saving it and let them know if you have any for them. From the report they have done very well. They wish to thank everyone who helped in any way.

Mrs. Hattie Cope and Mrs. Dorothy Ellis, Chris, Scott Snider visited Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Smith in Clemmons on Friday evening of last week. They picked up a truck load of glass from there and a neighbor who had some they wanted to get rid of. We appreciate them calling us about it. Mr. Smith is Mrs. Cope's brother. They enjoyed their visit very much.

Mr. and Mrs. Ausbon Ellis had visitors from Clemmons last Sunday afternoon. They were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Snow. They were very glad to see them and enjoyed being with them very much. Mr. Ellis used to work with Mr. Snow when they worked at R.J. Reynolds.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Nifong and boys attended the Nifong reunion in Davidson County last Sunday. They had a very good time visiting with kinfolks and friends.

Members of Macedonia keep the time they are supposed to go to the church to get their pictures made for the church's new directory. It will start on Thursday Friday and Saturday. So be sure to keep these dates in mind.

NOTICE OF
BOARD OF
FOR THE
AMENDMENT

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, pursuant to the requirements of Article 20-B of Chapter 153 of the General Status of North Carolina and Section 20 of the Davie County Zoning Ordinance that the Board of County Commissioners of Davie County will hold a public hearing at the Davie County Courthouse, Mocksville, NC on Monday, October 2, 1978 at 1:00 p.m. The following proposed zoning amendment of the official zoning ordinance of Davie County will be considered:

(a) The Davie County Planning Board has submitted a request to amend the Davie County Zoning Ordinance by adding "airports" to the list of permitted uses found in Section 80.2 of this ordinance. Section 80.2 of the Davie County Zoning Ordinance would read as follows if this proposed amendment is approved:

Section 80.2 Conditional Uses. The following uses shall be permitted subject to a finding by the Board of Adjustment that the additional conditions listed will be met:

Landfills, provided that all public health regulations are fulfilled and maintained.

Airports, private parks, playgrounds, clubs and lodges, golf courses, swimming pools, fishing lakes, family camp grounds, drag strips, raceways, and similar recreation uses subject to a finding by the Board of Adjustment that such proposed uses will not create a public nuisance or be detrimental to the public welfare.

All parties and interested citizens are invited to attend said public hearing at which time they shall have an opportunity to be heard in favor of or in opposition to the foregoing proposed change. Prior to the hearing, all persons interested may obtain any additional information on these proposals which are in the possession of the Davie County Zoning Enforcement Officer by inquiring at my office in the Courthouse in Mocksville, NC on weekdays between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. or by telephone at 634-3340.

Refreshing

With this weeks temperature in the 90s, Robin Hamilton, 4, and his little two-year-old sister, Becky, discover that playing in the creek is most refreshing. The little creek flows across the road bed near the family garden on Pine Ridge Road, Cooleemee where their mom, Mrs. Roger Hamilton, keeps a watchful eye from the turnip patch. Mutilated Cash Comes To Life Under Eye Of Examiner

When the money stashed in the oven gets roasted with the family dinner, don't panic. Just send the charred remains to Washington.

Sent to the Treasury Department's Mutilated Currency Branch, the burnt bills have a chance of being identified and replaced. Employees there see charred money all the time--along with cash that has rotted in basements, bills chewed up and swallowed by pets, and other bits and pieces that hardly resemble money after going through the washing machine or food disposer.

In fact, enough damaged money is sent in to keep 30 "mutilated currency examiners" busy. In the last fiscal year the office handled 51,000 cases and paid back more than $9 million in currency.

How does an examiner spot $10 and $20 bills in what appears to the untrained eye to be mere ashes or wads of rotten paper? It often takes only a tiny scrap, Melvin Gabourel, division director of currency claims, told the National Geographic Society.

"These people are able to recognize what kinds of notes they have by the scroll work--they don't even have to see a figure," he said.

Much of the mutilated money got that way by being squirreled away, often in a damp basement, causing it to turn into a solid chunk. When it arrives at the currency office, it may need some preliminary rehabilitation, which can vary in technique from examiner to examiner.

"I first put mine in water and bring it to a boil," said Restee Laskowitz, who has been an examiner for 28 years. "That loosens it. Then I put it in plastic for a day, and later roll it with a pencil to flatten it."

Equipped with a magnifying glass, tweezers, and tape or glue, examiners spend long hours pasting fragments that look too fragile to touch onto pieces of tissue paper. From this jigsaw puzzle, they try to determine how many bills they have.

Currency will not be redeemed unless more than half of a mutilated bill can be supplied, or unless it can be proved that the rest of the bill has been destroyed. The more-than-half rule is designed to prevent people from collecting twice on one bill.

"We've had people cut a $50 bill right in half and take a match and singe the edges. They might come up with a good enough explanation for how the first half was destroyed, but when they send the second half in for redemption, we usually catch them," Gabourel said.

Because people are encouraged to send in damaged money exactly as they found it, the office gets a steady stream of strange packages. Money--sometimes life savings--arrives in burnt-up billfolds and purses, safes, lamps, toasters, and rotted-out pieces of pipe. "Some came in the other day in a pressure cooker," Mrs. Laskowitz said.

And sometimes the "money" turns out to be no more than what it looks like--worthless ashes. One examiner spent hours sifting through a pile of what looked like charcoal searching for several hundred dollars said to have been incinerated in a store fire.

One time $35 turned up in a hamburger--ayear-old hamburger.

"Somebody robbed a fast-food restaurant, and when police were closing in on him, he put the money into the hamburger," recalled Margaret Dodson, a mutilated currency specialist. "The hamburger was held as evidence by police for a year before I got it."

In times of national disasters, the office's business picks up.

"In the fall and spring, when we have tornadoes and floods, things really get busy," Gabourel said. Examiners also are called into action after big plane crashes, which can result in hundreds of dollars being scorched or shredded.

The examiners have even gone to hospitals, donned gloves and masks, and worked to disinfect cash that had been carried by patients found to have tuberculosis or infectious hepatitis.

People who have mutilated money to be redeemed should send it in the container it was found in, the Treasury Department says. If brittle or falling apart, it should be packed in cotton and boxed as found.

If it is necessary to remove the money fragments from their container, the containers should be sent in along with the currency. Flat money should not be rolled up, and rolled-up money should not be flattened.

Mutilated currency should be sent to: Treasury Department, Bureau of Government Financial Operations, DCS-BEPA, Room 132, Treasury Annex No. 1, Washington, D.C. 20226.

Social Security

I recently sent to Baltimore for a statement of my earnings and the reply showed much more than I have earned. What can I do about this?

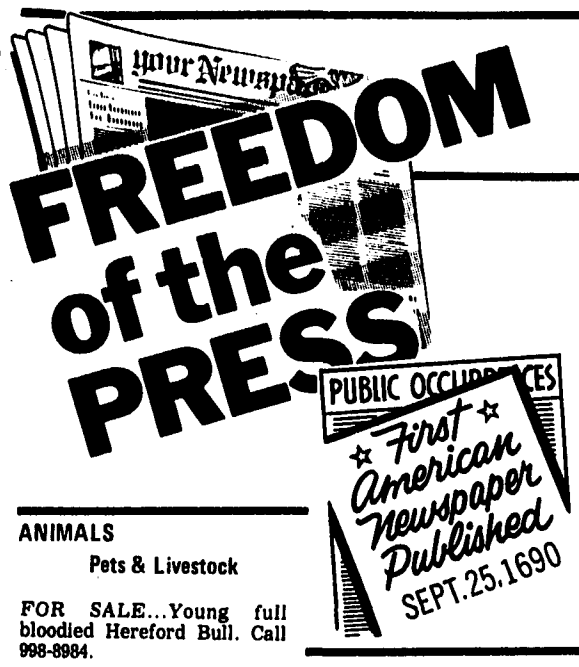

It is possible that someone with a similar number to yours has furnished his number to an employer from memory and transposed a number. In this manner someone else's earnings may be posted to your record. Visit your local social security office as soon as possible and furnish them with the names and the places you have worked and what you have earned and they will be able to clear up this "scrambled earnings record" situation.

NEWS Of The Bible

"Suffer the little children to come unto me," said Jesus in the King James Version of the Bible, but this is phrased somewhat differently in the American Bible Society Good News Bible: "Let the children come to me!"

Passages from the Bible like "Jesus Blesses Little Children," especially chosen and presented to help people who are learning to read, are among a variety of colorful Scriptures and Scripture-related teaching materials being published by ABS for use in classes or with individuals this year.

Materials available include the following:

- Scripture mobiles that children can cut out and design themselves
- Scripture cartoon books illustrating the story of Abraham
- Scripture Selections with pictures to color on the reverse side
- Simplified Scriptures for special education programs and child evangelism
- Scripture cards carrying Bible references and illustrative photos

A book called Jesus highlights the life and teachings of Jesus from Today's English Version of the Gospels for older children, while a "Discovery" Edition of the New Testament, designed by National Student Ministries, includes Bible study help for youth.

Available soon will be coloring books with selected sayings from the teachings of Jesus, and six Scripture activity books with Old Testament stories. These books utilize modern teaching techniques, emphasizing student participation and learning by doing.

They will include puzzles, word games and quizzes that will require the child to refer back to the Biblical text to find the correct answers. All are illustrated with drawings.

An interdenominational and nonprofit organization, the American Bible Society distributes these valuable aids through churches and religious bookstores, or you can write: American Bible Society, 1865 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10023.

In 1979 the Society's efforts to provide children everywhere with copies of Holy Scriptures in languages they can understand will coincide with the International Year of the Child.

"Consumer on the go"

Banking At Home? Protect Your Money With Travelers Checks

Be it ever so humble, sure there's no place like home. But, according to American Express, millions of dollars are lost each year by dwellers who habitually leave cash at home.

What can these cash hoarders do to protect their money? According to Consumer Affairs expert at American Express, Barbara Sullivan, "There's little risk in keeping a small amount of cash at home for emergencies. However, with a large sum of money it's better to deposit it in a financial institution or convert it into travelers checks. American Express Cheques, for example, never expire and, if they are lost at home or stolen, you can get them replaced."

What follows are five common reasons why people lose their money in their homes:

1. People hide money at home and, like "absent-minded" professors, forget where they put it.
2. The pockets of old discarded clothing or items sent to the cleaners often have cash that has been forgotten.
3. Pets and children delight in tearing up and even swallowing bills.
4. Fires destroy cash, like everything else.
5. Robbers who break into homes and apartments are experts at discovering "secret" hiding places.

Courthouse Study Indicates Davie County Needs More Space For Judicial Use

A study released last week by the governor's office assessing the needs and deficiencies of county courthouses in North Carolina recommends that in the future the judicial use of the Davie County Courthouse by expanded by relocating to another facility selected non-judicial functions currently housed in the courthouse.

The study noted that currently approximately 6,892 square feet of floor space is used in the Davie Courthouse for judicial uses and that by 1985 judicial activities within the courthouse will require12,910 square feet of floor space.

Approximately 6,000 square feet of floor space should be renovated in the courthouse at an estimated cost of $100,000 to provide this needed floor space, said the study.

From this recovered space the following facilities should be provided within the courthouse, recommended the study:

--A district courtroom;
--Extensive ancillary facilities;
--Expansion of magistrates' facilities; and
--Offices for the district attorney and public defender.

In addition, the study recommends that the HVAC system in the courthouse undergo needed repairs and improvements be made in or near the courthouse to improve the code requirements affecting handicapped accessibility and life safety.

By the year 2000 the report predicts that an additional 1,000 square feet will be needed in the courthouse for judicial needs and this space should be gained by relocating non-judicial functions to another facility and renovating the space at a cost of $10,000.

From this recovered space the report recommends the expansion of court facilities within the courthouse by the year 2000 to include expansion of facilities for the clerk of court, magistrates and probation and parole officers.

In ranking 96 courthouses within the state, the study ranked the Davie Courthouse 73rd among the courthouses regarding overall physical condition.

The study concluded that North Carolina's judicial system suffers from a major shortage of space and more than 10 percent of the county courthouses around the state have serious deficiencies.

The study was conducted over a three-year period at a cost of $193,800 by the Administrative Office of the Courts and the North Carolina State University Design School.

In releasing the report, Gov. Hunt said "I have said before that what happens in the courtroom is one of the most important parts of our fight against crime."

And, he added, "If our courts are going to work efficiently and effectively for the taxpayers, adequate facilities are absolutely essential."

Copies of the two-volume report, illustrated with pictures and design layouts of each courthouse, will be sent to county commissioners in every county. There are a number of pictures of Davie's Courthouse and facilities in the two volumes.

"It is my fervent hope that in the coming weeks and months, county officials and court personnel across the state, along with other state officials and members of the public, will give careful study to this report and that in due time we will take those steps which will find us prepared when the future becomes the present," Chief Justice Susie Sharp said.

"Unless they do, those who follow after us will indeed be confronted with an overwhelming crisis of inadequate facilities for the courts of North Carolina."

The report said the most serious deficiency of courthouses involves their physical condition, with more than 10 percent having serious problems. The most common problem is inadequate safety provisions such as fire detecttion and alarm systems, exists and emergency lighting.

It said, however, that almost 80 percent of the buildings surveyed "receive overall condition evaluations indicating that they are, when viewed in their entirety, substandard."

Professor Robert P. Burns, director of the project at the design school, said in an interview that one of the major problems uncovered by the study is the poor distribution of space among various county functions.

Burns said too much space is devoted to tax and lawenforcement work and not enough to the judiciary.

Burns mentioned in particular the practice of keeping prisoners in jail cells on the upperfloors of the courthouse. He said he thought this was a bad idea from psychological, symbolic, and security standpoints.

Burns said he would like to see the judicial function entirely separated from other county functions by the relocation of administrative and correction departments into other buildings.

Burns said that the courthouses ranked in the lower 50 percent of the physical ratings needed considerable repairs and renovations and that the 10 or 11 lowest rated buildings needed complete modernization.

Burns said the conduct of justice was hampered by uncomfortable courtrooms. Some of the courtrooms are defective environmentally - too cold, too hot or with bad visibility and acoustics, he said.

Although the report made no specifc recommendations on paying for improvements, additions and maintenance, it suggested that serious consideration be give to the possibility of having the state take a "significant role" in financing them.

Wildwood Farm Assessed $5,000 In Civil Penalities For Environmental Violations

Charles A. Marshall Jr. of the Wildwood Farm, Rt. 5, Mocksville, has been assessed $5,000 in civil penalties by the Division of Environmental Management of the N.C. Dept of Natural Resources and Community Development in connection with his alleged violation of state environmental laws in operating the farm.

A.F. McRorie, the director of the Division of Environmental Management, advised Marshall, September 7th, by letter that the penalties were being assessed against him.

In the correspondence sent to Marshall, Director McRorie made the following findings:

--"Charles A. Marshall Jr., owner of Wildwood Farms, hereinafter reffered to as the Farm, was notified on August 22, 1977, that the Farm had been designated a concentrated animal feeding operation pursuant to 15 NCAC 2H .0123 and 40 CFR, Sec. 124.82 by the Director, Divison of Environmental Management. This designation required the submission of applications for an NPDES Discharge Permit, unless discharges could be permanently eliminated within 60 days of notification.

--"No permit application nor plans and specificiations was ever received by the Division of Environmental Management from Mr. Marshall regarding the discharges from the Farm.

--"The animal feeding operating consisted of two separate laying hen houses which confined approximately 50,000 birds for a period more than 45 days in a 12 month period and approximately 100 head of Hereford Cattle. The hen houses were in two complexes called the Southwestern and the Northwestern.

--"The effluent from the Southwestern complex was trench-directed over 600 feet of overland flow into a manure swamp. It had a timed watering system and the trenches cross property boundaries. This sump had overflowed onto land owned by the Girl Scout Council known as the Tarheel Triad Girl Scout property. The wastewater overflow from the sump also had run into the Girl Scout Lake. The Northwestern complex also had a trench cross-connection system which flowed into a manure sump but silt and sediment accumulated in the trench to such a degree that a continuous overflow resulted. Charles Marshall Jr. the owner, diverted this overflow away from the inoperative sump and into a stream classified as A-II waters.

--"Chicken waste was periodically pumped out of the complexes and into the manure sumps. There were no dikes or other facilities to prevent the overflow of wastewater from sumps and trenches onto neighboring lands and surface waters.

--"The hens in the Southwestern complex were a continual source of complaint from the Tarheel Triad Girl Scout Council since November 1975. The cumulative discharge of chicken drinking water and manure from this complex resulted in the expenditure of $3,000 by the council to drain, scrape the bottom and refill the Girl Scout Lake in the spring of 1976.

--"A conference was held on March 3, 1976, between Water Quality and Charles Marshall to establish corrective

Scientists Say Change Of Site Is Unlikely For Perkins Station

Opponents of the proposed Perkins Nuclear Station in Davie County had their hopes of blocking the plant's construction somewhat diminished last week.

Scientists with the Oak Ridge National Laboratory told the Perkins opponents that only the unlikely discovery of a major problem with the proposed site of the Duke Power Co. nuclear generating station would prompt them to recommend another site.

The announcement of the scientists, advisors to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, came after an examination last week of ten sites -- including the one in Davie County -- where the station could be built.

Dr. Robert A. Gilbert, the NRC's project manager of the Perkins station, said that the team would have to find something fantastically wrong with the current site, or would have to find a much better site, before the team would recommend another site.

Six opponents of the proposed site, most of them members of the High Rock Lake Association, accompanied the scientists on a tour of the sites.

The sites inspected included the Davie site, Tuckertown Lake on the Yadkin River, Lake Norman near Mooresville, a site near Boiling Springs on the Broad River, and sites at Hartwell, Fishing Creek, Lake Wateree, Middleton Shoals and Clinchfield in South Carolina.

The opponents' favorite site was Lake Norman, which is owned by Duke Power.

The Davie County site is upstream from High Rock Lake. Perkins would consume about 45 million gallons of water daily from the Yadkin River and members of the lake association, a group of home owners, fear the loss would lower the level of the lake.

Studies show the station's use of water wouldlower the lake less than six inches except during extremely dry summers when the impact would be greater.

The scientists went to the various sites to measure the temperature of the water and study the terrain.

The Davie County site east of Mocksville has been under consideration since 1974. Duke Power has closed the property to the public.

The scientists trekked through tick-infested woods and drove across rutted, kudzu-bordered roads across the property.

The NRC ordered another look at the alternative sites this year after determining that its staff had not made independent evaluations of the other sites in 1974.

The NRC staff has recommended that a construction license be issued for the Davie County site, but the NRC licensing board has not yet ruled on the permit.

The scientists are expected to issue their findings in about a month.

The NRC licensing board will conduct a public hearing on the findings in Mocksville, Gilbert said.

One of the scientists, Stephen Gough, an acquatic ecologist, said a recommendation for a change would come only if one of the nine alternative sites was obviously superior to Davie County.

"For that to occur, we would have to find a major flaw at Davie County. The evaluations, from our standpoint, have not found any major flaws," he said.

The scientists also damaged the High Rock Lake Association delegation's hopes by declining to consider the use of cooling lakes for the station. Cooling towers are planned at the Davie County site.

Don Blackmon, a Duke Power spokesman, said the company hopes to get a construction permit for the station by the end of the year and to begin construction next spring.

Perkins is designed for three nuclear reactors projected for completion in the late 1980's and early 1990's.

Request To Block Duke Power Nuclear Proposals Rejected

A request to block Duke Power Co. from building two nuclear plants has been rejected by the director of the N.C. Utilities Commission public staff.

Hugh Wells wrote the Conservation Council of North Carolina recently that studies show the need for the facilities -- the Cherokee and Perkins plants. The council had asked him to try to stop Duke from building them.

"Our most recent studies, even with optimistic assumptions for load management and conservation, show a need in the late 1980s and early 1990s for the facilities you wish canceled," Wells wrote David Martin of Raleigh, president of the council.

The difference of opinion on the plants reveals the widening split on how the state should meet energy needs in the next two decades between Wells, who favors nuclear power, and Martin, a N.C. State University physics professor who opposes it.

The conservation council believes programs to conserve energy and to put solar power to more uses will decrease the need for nuclear facilities.

Wells, on the other hand, believes the state needs to plan for future power demands and would be better off gerenating more than it needs.

Survey Being Made On Shopping Habits

The Distributive Education classes at Davie High School will be sending out questionnaires this week to residents of Mocksville and Davie County seeking information about the present shopping habits of the residents and also about what the residents want in the way of increased products and services from local merchants and businesses.

The survey is being conducted in conjunction with the proposed downtown revitalization project being planned for Mocksville by town officials and local businessmen.

Projects Are Recommended For Funding By ARC

Governor Jim Hunt is recommending 26 projects, including three projects in Davie County, for funding by the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) in the 1979 project year.

In his announcement of his recommendations of the projects to serve the citizens of Western North Carolina, Hunt gave credit to Congressman Bill Hefner for his support of the ARC and thanked him for his help in securing appropriations for the $8 million in ARC allocations being recommended to the commission for fiscal year 1979.

Hunt will submit the recommended investment package to the full commission through former Governor Robert W. Scott, now federal co-chairman of the ARC, later this month. Once the investment package is approved by the full commission, formal applications will be submitted for review and approval. Hunt and Hefner said that funds for the projects will become available to applicants by late spring of 1979.

"All of these projects are people programs," Hunt said, "and all of them will have economic impact. Some projects, such as housing improvement programs, will have immediate and direct economic benefits, while others, such as programs aimed at improving health and educational standards of our citizens, will have more long-term benefits.

The citizens of Davie County will benefit from programs planned for more than one county.

Comprehensive child development services, covering 25 counties, will continue child care with no reduction in the total number of children served in the existing program. ARC funds for this project total $1,433,641 for the region.

A model classroom program, located at the Northwest Regional Education Center in Wilkes County, is designed to improve the teaching techniques of teachers instructing basic skills in grades 4-8. Recommended ARC funding for this program is $240,000 for thirteen school districts.

Western reading centers, located in Canton and Wilkesboro, instruct

Archie Jones Jr. Prepares For Motorcycle Trip Through South And Central America

Archie Valejo Jones Jr. of Mocksville, the 20-year-old son of the Rev. Archie V. Jones Sr., left last Thursday to embark on an approximately 25,000-mile four-months trip through the countries of South and Central America.

Jones is making the trip in conjunction with his academic studies as a junior at Mars Hill College. He will receive sixteen hours of academic credit for the trip.

In addition, he will be periodically contributing articles to the ENTERPRISE-RECORD describing his adventures during his tour.

Accompanying Jones on the trip will be 53-year-old Clyde Townsend, the Honda Motorcycle dealer in Dothan, Alabama.

The primary means of transportation during most of the trip will be by motorcycle.

The South and Central American tour will not be the first time Jones and Townsend have ventured off together on an extended motorcycle trip. In the summer of 1976 the two rode from Dothan to Circle City, Alaska (16 miles from the Artic Circle) on a 37-day, 10,000-mile trip.

Foreign environments, specifically in South and Central America, are nothing new for Jones. During the 1960-76 period, he lived with his family, who were Southern Baptist missionaries, for most of the 16-year period in Ecuador in South America and Costa Rica in Central America.

"I spoke Spanish before I spoke English," noted Jones.

It was while Jones and his family were living in Ecuador in 1974 that they first met Townsend, who visited them for a week while he traveled through South America on a motorcycle.

Townsend has been very active in missionary laymen's work for the Southern Baptist Church and this work brought him in contact with the Jones family.

Jones will keep a diary and be taking photographs to his instructors at Mars Hill when he returns.

He is pursuing a double major at the school in Spanish and business and hopes to go on to graduate school when he graduates and study international management.

The academic credit which Jones will receive from his experiences on the trip will include 4 hours each in the subjects of history, geography, Spanish and economics.

He will also serve as the Spanish translator for Townsend while on the tour.

The first stop for Jones and Townsend after leaving Dothan on September 27th was to have been in Caracas, Venezuela where they will pick up their new Honda Hawk motorcycles and other gear which has already been shipped from the states. They are expected to remain in Caracas about a week before setting out for the other countries of South America.

Their tentative itinerary has them scheduled to go from Venezuela to Columbia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay, Uraguar and Argentina all the way to Tierra del Fuego, which is the southernmost point of the South American Continent.

From Tierra del Fuego the two will them head north and pass through the countries of Chile, Peru, Ecuador and Panama and other Central American countries on their way back to Dothan.

"These plans are subject to change and we'll just have to play it by ear," said Jones before leaving.

In addition to gaining academic credit for his venture, why is Jones making the extended trip?

"One of the biggest reasons Mr. Clyde and I are going on the trip is to meet as many missionaries as possible and try to help them in any way we can and give them encouragement," he said.

"Also I just enjoy traveling very much. I guess I got this enthusiasm for traveling from my dad while he was a missionary," Jones noted.

In addition, he remarked before leaving that "At this point in my life I've got a lot of decisions to make about my future that I need time to think about. In order to make them more clearly it's best to get away for a while and look at them objectively and while I'm riding on a motorcycle for as long as I will be I will have time to do a lot of thinking."

Jones did comment before he left that "If there is any honor or glory of any sort to be given because of this trip Mr. Clyde and I don't want it given to us, but to our Creator."

Archie Jones Jr. was all smiles before leaving on his 25,000 mile trip.

FACE-LIFT FOR REST AREAS--Rest areas along North Carolina's highways are getting a face-lift, including a fresh coat of paint in designer colors, improved lighting, additional sidewalks and new toilet fixtures. For further information, contact Regional Landscape Engineer R. S. Boyette in Wilson at (919) 237-6164 or Regional Landscape E. C. Orr in Asheville at (704) 252-4458.

MOTORCYCLE LICENSES ARE REQUIRED-- Just this year, the Division of Motor Vehicles has issued more than 10,000 licenses to motorcyclists in North Carolina. In years past, a driver's license entitled an individual to operate a motorcycle, but as of January 1, 1978, either a special endorsement on one's driver's license or a motorcycle license is required by law. A motorcyclist with a driver's license dated prior to January 1, however, will not be required to carry the motorcycle endorsement until time for the license to be renewed. Contact Zeb Hocutt, Director of Driver Services, at (919) 733-4367 for more information.

A depressing subject--Depression is the leading cause of admissions to mental health centers, and a large percentage of people with mental depressions are still not being treated. The Department of Human Resources' Division of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services has begun an ongoing campaign to increase public awareness and understanding of this percasive condition. Contact Dr. Jim Osberg, 733-4630.

WHERE ARE YOUR VOLUNTEERS?--In 1977, an estimated 25,000 to 30,000 volunteers gave more than 5,000,000 hours to their time to helping others through their work in human service agencies such as hospitals; nursing homes; local health, mental health and social services departments; etc. Check in your area to see where volunteers can be and are being used. An interview with a volunteer who finds that the work fills a void, as well as helps others, might add a note of flavor. For information, contact Judi Lund, Office of Volunteer Services, Department of Human Resources, 325 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, N.C. 27611; telephone 919 733-4502.

THEIR LIVES, OPEN BOOKS--Druing the next school year, professional artists will be in schools across the state, not to teach classes, but as living resources in film, architecture, poetry, theatre, and visual and folk arts.

Administered by the N.C. Arts Council, the Artists-in-School program is designed to lead students into arts experiences not available in the usual curriculum. Contact Karen Dacons, Artists-in-Schools coordinator, N.C. Arts Countil, (919) 733-7897, or Michael Matros, (919) 733-5722.

INMATE ART COME OUT--An exhibit of paintings and sculpture by inmates of North Carolina prisons will be on display to the public in Raleigh, September 11 15, 1978.

Trolly made in High Point, N.C., during 1920's is eased to ground at North Carolina's Spencer Shops Historical Site after being removed from the Moss truck which transported it from High Point's museum to the state's transportation history project at Spencer. Donated by the High Point Historical Society, the trolly will be restored and used for transporting visitors around the 54-acre site when Spencer Shops is open to the public. The trolly was used in New Orleans, La., until the mid-1960's.

Elbaville Club Holds Meeting

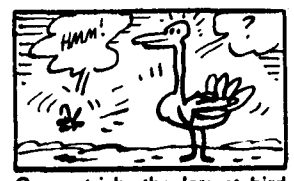

Elbaville Homemakers Club met Tuesday, September 19, at the Elbaville Fellowship Hall with sixteen members present. The president, Mrs. Mable Howard had charge of the meeting. Devotionals were given by Mrs. Iva Young.

The program was on Smoke Detectors, and slides were shown by Mrs. Ostine West. She also presented an interesting talk on the detectors.

Foster-Rauch Drug Store Completes Expansion Project

Bill Foster (foreground) and Bob Rauch, co-owners of Foster-Rauch Drug Store work diligently to fill the many prescriptions brought to their firm.

With the aid of the new computer system installed prescriptions can be filled more rapidly and accurate records kept for the tax record service provided by the store. Bob Rauch is pictured above. (Photos by Robin Carter)

Foster-Rauch Drug Store located in Lowes Shopping Center on Wilkesboro Street has completed its expansion, doubling the size of the original facility.

First opened in October 1974 by William L. Foster, the store has grown from 2,000 square feet to 4,000 square feet featuring the most modern in pharmaceutical and health care products.

"Our drug store," said Foster, registered pharmacist and co-owner of the facility, "offers our patrons the most modern concept of one-step shopping. In addition to our complete pharmaceutical department, we have also made available to our customers everything from small appliances to invalid supplies."

The atttractive modern decor carried throughout the facility helps in the display of the many products available. Along with a wide selection of health care needs, the store also offers a complete line of Revlon cosmetics, a large greeting card section, a record department, plus photo developing and supplies. The store provides free blood pressure checks and a free tax record service.

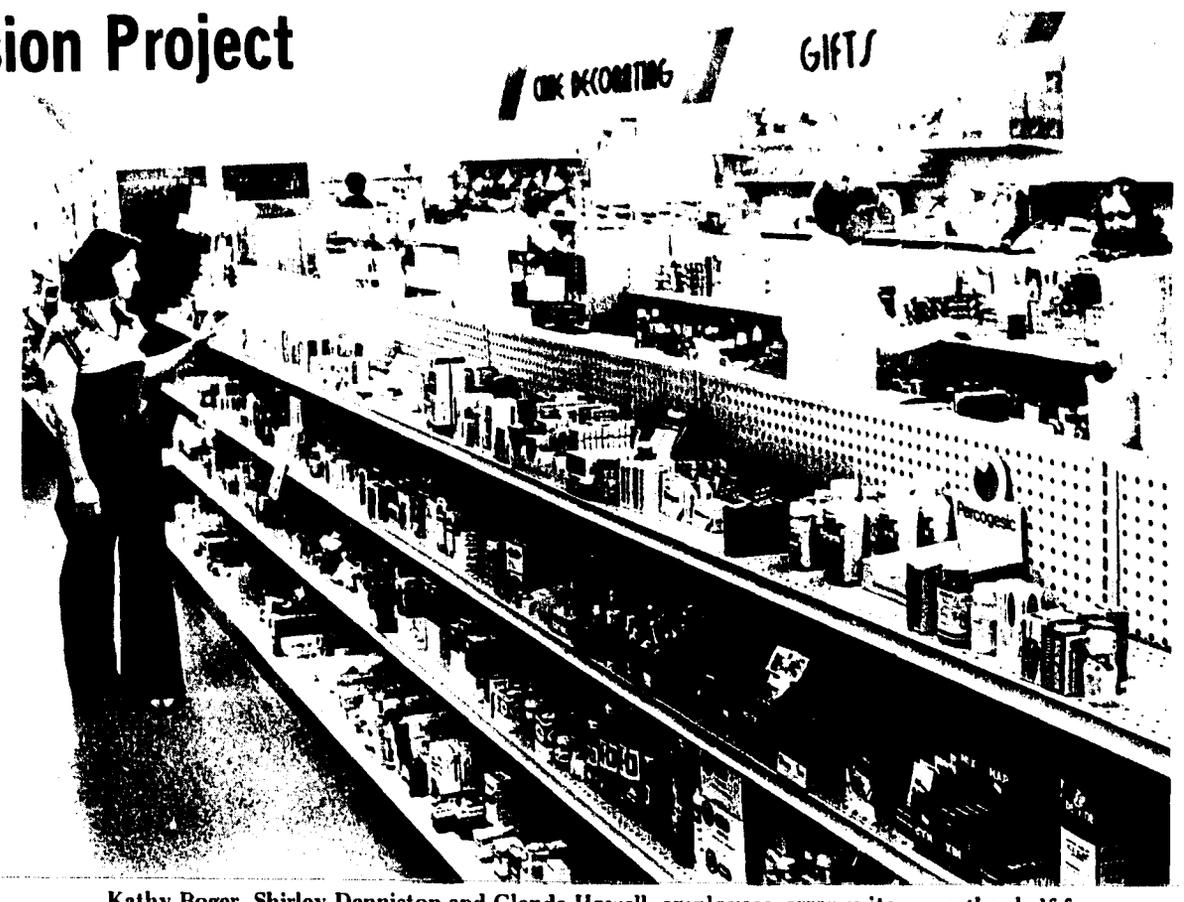

Bob Rauch, registered pharmacist and co-owner who joined the company in June 1975 said, "we plan to offer the best in prescription service at discount prices. Buying merchandise through volume has enabled us to hold down costs, passing the reductions on to our customers."

Another modern feature added was the installation of a computer system which automatically stores prescriptions filled.

"This is an efficient method which aids in accuracy and reduces the amount of time it takes to locate necessary prescription information," said Foster.

"We are glad to be a part of the health care profession in Davie County," he said, "and will strive to promote and provide the utmost in quality and convenience to the people."

The store is open 8:30 a.m. - 8:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. - 6:00 p.m. Saturday, and 1:30 p.m. - 5:00 p.m. on Sunday.

Roger Cranford Joins Air Force

Roger D. Cranford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Cranford, of Route 1, Woodleaf, NC, has enlisted in the US Air Force.

Airman Cranford, a 1975 graduate of West Rowan High School, joined under the Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program (DEP), which allows him to accumulate time in the Air Force Reserve until he enters active duty on October 19, 1978.

Sergeant Gary Hubbard, Air Force recruiter in Salisbury, NC, stated that Airman Cranford successfully completed a series of tests which qualified him for the Munitions Maintenance Specialist field of training.

Judy Galliher Is Chosen As Ingersoll-Rand Employee Of The Month

Judy Galliher has been chosen as the Ingersoll-Rand "Employee of the Month" for August.

She has been with Ingersoll-Rand since June 1974. She previously worked for Vulcan Materials as a computer operator. At Ingersoll-Rand, Judy has worked as an invoicing clerk for one year, an invoicing clerk typist for 6 months and back to her present job as invoice clerk.

Judy's supervisor, Clyde Glascock, says, "Judy is very efficient and always on time – ready to go to woth."

Judy resides in the Turrentine Community, on Rt. 3, Mocksville, with her husband, Grady, and two children Michael and Sandi.

She is a member of the Ladies Auxiliary and supports community and school functions and is a member of the Turrentine Church.

Judy is described as having an outstanding personality, very helpful with Ingersoll-Rand social functions and always ready to help when help is needed.

O. K. Pope of Pennington Chevrolet Co. in Mocksville, North Carolina will serve as 1978-79 Davie County Area Chairman for the North Carolina Automobile Dealers Association. Announcement of his appointment was made today by NCADA President Jesse W. Corbett, Jr. of Wilson. During his term, he will act as liaison between new car and truck dealers in this area and the state and national dealer associations.

Cub Scout Pack 525 Gets New Committeeman

"If you are a boy between ages 8 and 10" goes the message of recruiters to prospective Cub Scouts.

James Warren of 414 South Main in Mocksville isn't sure about the age limitations, but he is now registered as a Cub Scout. Mr. Warren has been helping Mrs. Linda Chaffin, den mother of Den 1, Pack 525.

When Rev. Carter of Holy Cross Lutheran Church announced Sunday that the Cub Scout Roundtable would be at the church Monday, September 21, Jim was listening. Monday he gathered up his Cub Scout grandson and went to the meeting. He was surprised to learn that the Roundtree is for adult leaders. Two other boys were present so they spent the evening at "boy sports" while Mr. Warren sat in on the Roundtree.

During the evening Scout Executive Ben White asked Cubmaster Larry Freeze if he needed any scout applications. Mr. Warren pointed out that he needed one. It was supplied and filled out.

The result: Cub Pack 525 welcomes a new committeeman, Mr. James Warren, age 72.

Carolina Review

by Jerry Mobley

SENATE RACE (MAYBE) ...The U.S. Senate race between incumbent Republican Jesse Helms and his Democratic challenger, John Ingram, seems to be gaining momentum after several months of relative quiet. Even the traditional Labor Day "official" beginning of the campaign for both men brought little attention.

Perhaps much of the inattention has been because of the apparent huge lead that Helms has held over North Carolina's maverick insurance commissioner.

Events of the past couple of weeks, however, have at least heightened Tarheel awareness of the race even if the gap between the two men has not lessened.

Foremost in the news last week was Ingram's rejection of the insurance industry's request for a 9.1 percent increase in homeowner's insurance rates. His action drew criticism that the rejection was politically motivated.

Ingram also was catching flak over his attendance at regional hearings he had scheduled concerning the proposed rate increases. Ingram supposedly attended only one of the four hearings around the state.

Ingram, for his part, seemed to be defending his actions reasonably well but the controversy caused still more calls for Ingram to step down as insurance commissioner.

In a letter to a Greensboro attorney, Gov. Hunt said he approved of Ingram's decision "not to resign as commissioner while conducting his U.S. Senate campaign."

The governor carried the debate a bit further by pointing out that Senator Helms should not be expected to resign his incumbency either while managing his campaign.

Meanwhile, the Helms' campaign was distributing literature accusing Ingram of taking part in expensive junkets while in public office.

The accusations brought a quick response from the insurance office that the trips in question were taken as part of Ingram's role as insurance commissioner and were not paid for at taxpayer expense.

Ingram, in turn, continued to ask questions about the huge campaign chest of Jesse Helms (now around $5 million).

At week's end, Ingram was in Asheville with President Carter (Carter's second N.C. trip in as many months to help Ingram) and enjoying at least a share of the public's joy over recent developments at Camp David.

In short, the race between Helms and Ingram is not over yet. And with approximately 75 percent of the state's registered voters being democrat, anything can still happen.

Ask Luther Hodges.

HUNT-HOBBY...Gov. Hunt recently escaped what could have been a very uncomfortable meeting with AFL-CIO members in Charlotte. The governor spoke to the group only days after his Commerce Secretary, Lauch Faircloth, called the state's anti-union climate a "selling point" with industry.

Needless to say, the union members were quite upset.

But union leader, Wilbur Hobby, introduced Hunt as the "Best friend of the working man in the governor's mansion since Kerr Scott--and coming up fast."

From there it was roses--at least until the next crisis at the state ports...

PCB...According to Hunt press secretary, Garry Pearce, a new site for temporary storage of initial road-shoulder scrapings of PCB will probably be found rather than engage in a court battle with the city of Warrenton (the origional site).

If a new site cannot be found, however, the governor is prepared to go to court.

SURPRISE...The most surprising development in the liquor-by-the-drink competition is the rather one-sided lead held by the mixed-drink proponents--referendums now stand at 4-1 in favor of mixed drinks.

Roger Austin To Speak At Republican Dinner Tuesday

Roger Austin

Roger, EighthDistrict Candidate for Congress, will be the guest speaker at a fund-raising dinner for the Davie County Republican Party, October 3 at the Davie County High School cafeteria at 7:00 p.m. Admission to the event will be $7.50 per person with the proceeds going to the Davie County Republican Party.

Austin maintains his residence in rural Union County he was born and raised. He is a Jesse Helms type conservative and has campaigned hard on the side of conservative issues. He has endorsed the Kemp-Roth Tax Cut Bill and a balanced budget.

Austin has also campaigned hard on the side of a strong national defense and supported the production of the B-1 Bomber and opposed the Panama Canal giveaway.

Austin commented that he is always happy to come to Davie County and is looking forward to attending the dinner October 3.

Woman Is Charged With Taking Check

Marie Welch Foster, 24, of Rt. 4 Yadkinville was arrested Monday and charged with breaking and entering and larceny at the residence of Jimmy Foster, Rt. 5 Mocksville.

Reported taken from the house Monday was a check in the amount of $457.48 drawn on Branch Banking and Trust Company and issued to Jimmy Foster.

Ms. Foster was released on a $500 bond for a court appearance on October 23.

GOP Headquarters Opens Tuesday

The grand opening of the Republican Headquarters will be Tuesday, October 3rd at 6:00 p.m. on the Square.

The Republican Headquarters are located next to the Farm Bureau office.

Former Congressman Wilmer Mizell and Congressman candidate Roger Austin will formerly open the Headquarters.

After the ceremonies everyone will then go to the Republican Dinner at the High School at 7:00 p.m. where Roger Austin will be the featured speaker.

Everyone is invited to attend and meet all the candidates.

The Battle of Bunker Hill was actually fought on nearby Breed's Hill, and lost by the Revolutionaries.

Peoples' Day

Mayor R.C. Smith of Mocksville will hold his monthly "Peoples's Day" at the Mocksville Town Hall on Monday, October 2nd, between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

The purpose of "Peoples' Day" is to give everyone an opportunity to come and sit down or call in a relaxed atmosphere to discuss with the mayor any problem they might have or to have answered any questions about the town about which they might be concerned.

Vehicles Collide Head On

Two vehicles collided headon Sunday about 10:45 a.m. on the Davie Academy Road, 5.6 miles south of Mocksville.

Involved was a 1971 Dodge operated by Kathy Delaine Chaffin 21, of Rt. 1 Mocksville and a 1973 Chevrolet operated by Augusta Hallman Gaither, 59, of Rt. 7 Mocksville.

State Highway Patrolman J.L. Payne said his investigation showed that Ms. Chaffin lost control of her car on a wet road in a sharp curve, crossed to center of road and beyond, striking the Gaither vehicle headon.

Damage was estimated at $1,000 to each vehicle. The injured were taken to the Davie County Hospital. Ms. Chaffin was charged with exceeding safe speed.

Residence At Fork Is Broken Into And Robbed

The residence of Kenneth O. Brown, 31, of Fork was broken into last Saturday between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. Entry was made through the basement door by use of screw driver.

Reported taken was a coin collection valued at $400; $55 in church collection; a RCA television valued at $550; a Colt 45 valued at $450; two boxes of shells valued at $20; U.S. Military holster valued at $45. Damage was estimated at $200.

The Davie County County Sheriff's Department is investigating.

Thank God for the family. Everyone else demands your best; only the family lets you relax- everyone else expects the quick work of approval; the manufactured smile; the effort to be courageous or witty. Only before the family may you storm, sulk, indulge in pessimism or be comfortable or stupid.

For all the world the well-brushed coat; the polished shell, the careful tie; only in the family circle may you doff them all and put on the carpet slippers. The family is the solty value of the world.

After continuous effort to please, continuous attempts to be entertaining, continuous sturggles after graciousness, what a relief to enter the family haven and let off a little steam! How good to toss the curt criticism and catch the swift retort, to bury your nose in a magazine and ignore conservation; to scatter things and let them lie; only the family knows you will enough to understand; only the family loves you enough to forgive.

The world offers you toil with routine and good manners. Only the family hands you out chaos and confusion and only the family affords you real rest. Thank God for the family!

Recipes for a family.....

CREAM PUMPKIN PIE

1 cup cooked pumpkin, drained
2 eggs and 2 egg yolks
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup granulated sugar
1 cup sweet cream
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Combine pumpkin, sugar and eggs and beat until light or blend. Mix spices and salt and stir into first mixture.Add cream and stir until well mixed. Line a 9-inch pan with pastry. Prick well and put in hot oven for 5 minutes. Fill with pumpkin and bake in a slow oven until firm. Cover with meringue made of 2 stiffly beaten egg whites and 4 tablespoons of sugar and ¼ teaspoon baking powder. Brown in slow oven.

PECAN PUMPKIN PIE

¾ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons orange juice
2 eggs, well beaten
½ teaspoon all spice
¼ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups rich milk, scalded
9-inch pie shell unbaked.

Combine sugar, spices, salt and pumpkin. Add molasses, orange juice, eggs and hot milk. Pour into pie shell. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) 10 minutes, then in a moderate oven (325 degrees to 350 degrees) 30 to 40 minutes.

TOPPING

¼ cup butter
1 cup pecans
1 cup brown sugar

Combine all ingredients and spread over top of pie. Place under broiler flame or return to oven about 5 minutes to glaze top. Serve slightly warm or cold.

PUMPKIN CAKE

½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
¾ cup pumpkin
2 tablespoons maple syrup
2 cups cake flour
¼ teaspoon soda
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sour milk

Two-thirds cup nut meats, chopped and floured

Cream butter and sugar thoroughly, add eggs, pumpkin and syrup. Mix thoroughly. Sift dry ingredients together three times. All alternately with milk. Add nut meats. Bake in buttered pan (8x12x2) in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 to 40 minutes.

It will soon be time for fresh pumpkins! Lets make use of them!

That's when she came at me, wattles flying, wings flapping.

My first nest egg.

The eggs were still warm. Felt just like a pillow that's been slept on all night. I picked the last one up and gingerly placed it in the basket. That's when she came at me, wattles flying, wings flapping. Chased me out of the hen house and right into the arms of my grandpa.

"Ol' Mabel get ya? Bet you accidentally took her nest egg."

He poked into the basket and drew out an egg. "This one here, see? It's china. Put it in there just for Mabel. Little something of her own so she's not sitting there all alone. Mighty comfortin' to a hen, boy. Nest egg can be mighty comfortin' to some folks, too."

Later that day, Grandpa gave me my first Savings Bond. Said he'd planned to give me a lecture about saving, but Ol' Mabel had done it all for him. Told me that the Bond was my start on a personal nest egg. A little something stashed away to keep me going.

Every year after that, Grandpa gave me another Bond. And every time I got a chance, I added a Bond of my own to the pile. Those Bonds grew up right along with me.

Today, I run one of the biggest ranches in the Southwest. And you know how it all got started? From a little bitty nest egg. Guess I owe a lot to Grandpa. And Ol' Mabel.

Start building your nest egg. Sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan at work. Or the Bond-a-Month Plan where you save. Whether you're saving for an education, retirement or even a new home, Bonds can make sure there's a fund in your future.

Last Will And Testament Of Daniel Webster Is Filed

By Doug Livengood

The last will and testament of a Davie County man who murdered his wife, confessed to the killing and asked to be put to death for his crime, was sentenced to die in the gas chamber and then committed suicide has been filed in the Davie County Clerk of Court's Office.

The man, Daniel Webster, 51, of Rt. 1, Advance, murdered his wife, Gladys Beauchamp Webster, 56, in July 1977 at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M.K. Beauchamp, where Webster and his wife lived.

After he confessed to the murder and asked at his trial in Davie County Superior Court last October to be put to death, a jury returned a verdict directing that Webster be executed.

In November, however, while awaiting the day of his execution, Webster took his own life by slashing his throat and arm in Cell No. 13 of Death Row at Central Prison in Raleigh.

In a handwritten, three-page document dated November 6, 1977, the day of his death, and delivered to the Warden of Central Prison, Sam Garrison, after his death, Webster wrote of his "final requests on this earth."

Webster wrote that one of his final requests was to have his court-appointed attorney, Gilbert Davis of Mocksville, "do as I requested earlier" and "have me buried as close to my 'beloved wife' as possible."

Continued Webster, "I pray the cemetery committee at the Bethlehem United Methodist Church...will allow me to be buried in their church cemetery, as this is not only my 'beloved wife's' wishes, but mine also."

He wrote that he wanted the church's pastor, Donald Funderburke, to preach the funeral.

According to the will, Webster said he did not want "any flowers, friends, or relatives at my funeral." He added, "I want 'Eatons Funeral Home' of Mocksville to please see I receive a simple pauper's burial, if they will."

Webster's body was actually cremated and buried in his boyhood hometown of Wilmington by order of one of his sisters.

Much of the three-page will is devoted to a lengthy and sordid description by Webster of what he terms the interference by his in-laws in his and his late wife's lives. This alleged interference, according to Webster, eventually led to the murder of his wife and his own suicide, wrote Webster.

However, said Webster in the will, "I have asked God to forgive me of my sins, and to also forgive my inlaws, because I forgive them in death!"

Webster wrote that he believed the death penalty should be abolished.

"I lied to my dear lawyer, doctors and jurors in my case" because "I made the jury give me a death sentence," he wrote. He added, "This goes to show some future man or woman could easily do the same as I did. They could threaten the lives of their jurors and lie to their lawyers and to psychiatrists and demand death!"

During the trial Webster told the jurors that if they did not kill him he would kill them if he ever had the opportunity.

In the will Webster said that Warden Garrison "can give my personal effects to some inmate in there." He bequeathed "all the money" in his prison trust fund to what he said was his "dear friend and attorney, Mr. Gilbert Davis Jr."

In a final account statement, filed Sept. 14 by Davis with the Clerk of Court's Office, Davis wrote "After investigation, I find no assets in (Webster's) above mentioned estate except $200.88 that was turned into the Clerk's office by the Department of Correction...This being the only assets, I hereby relinquish all rights to said estate and request the Clerk's office to disburse to the Coble's Funeral Service of Wilmington...the $200.88 to be applied to (the) outstanding funeral bill (of Webster)."

In the final hours or moments before he died, Webster wrote "Life without my adorable wife, who is in her grave, is unbearable for me."

He continued by saying, "Some will say I took a coward's way out! Well, cowards do not take their own life. Doctors swear I'm a sane man, but who knows between being sane and insane? Jesus knows! I have said I was not afraid to die in the courtroom! The greatest decision Daniel Webster will make in his life on earth is his own accountability to God almighty! Once again, my wife was a sweet humble woman. I loved her. I hope to see her and her mom and dad in Heaven!"

The will was signed as follows:
Daniel Webster
Death row
Cell no. 13
Central Prison

Webster appended a postscript to the will when he wrote "P.S. Don't pray for me. I have an open direct line to God almighty."

At the top of the first page of the handwritten will Webster had written "Memo: To Associated Press, Raleigh, N.C.," indicating he wanted the will released to a major news medium at his death.

But in the Webster file in the Clerk of Court's Office at the Davie County Courthouse is a letter dated November 7, 1977, the day after Webster's death, to the Clerk of Court from David M. Blackwell, senior administrative assistant for the Dept. of Correction, stating that Webster's will was enclosed and the Dept. of Correction "does not intend to transmit this paper writing to the Associated Press."

Blackwell's letter further stated that the department "has not disclosed the contents of this document to any news media representative" and "It does not intend to do so in the future."

Wildwood Farm Is Fined

measures for the effluent discharge. These included:

–"Excess water from the chicken complexes was to be piped so as not to come into contact with the manure and to be discharged in such a manner as not to flow into the adjoining tributaries of the Girl Scout Lake;

–"The drainage system for the manure sump was to be modified to prevent overflow;

–"Fill dirt was to be placed in the lower elevations immediately downslope from the chicken houses to preclude any wastewater from draining into the Girl Scout Lake.

"These measures were never taken.

–"The Farm ceased its poultry operation on or before June 30, 1978, without ever having obtained a permit. The discharge continued from at least August 22, 1977 to date of closing."

McRorie then stated that he was assessing a covil penalty against Marshall and the farm of $5,000 after considering the following:

–"The discharge of effluent without a permit after being designated animal feedlot operation in August 1977;

–"Prior water quality problems which resulted in effluent being discharged onto enighboring lands and into surface waters;

–"The inaction of the owner in abating this discharge;

–"The disregard of the agreement reached on March 31, 1976 by the parties."

McRorie further notified Marshall that within 30 days of receipt of the notice of assessment of the fine Marshall must:

– "Submit payment of penalty to the Dept. of Natural Resources and Community Development...

–"Submit a written request for remission or mitigation of the penalty, including a detailed justification for such request; or –"Submit a written request for a formal administrative hearing, including a statement of the specific factual or legal issues in dispute."

In addition, wrote McRorie, "A remission request is limited to consideration of the reasonableness of the penalty and is not the proper procedure for questioning the validity of the findings and concludions contained in the Findings and Decision. Because a remission request forecloses your option of an administrative hearing, a remission request must be accompanied by either a waiver of your right to such a hearing or stipulation that there are no factual issues in dispute. You or your representative may present this type of request to the Environmental Management Commission. Relief from an adverse determination of a remission or mitigation request is by appeal to the Superior Court."

Also, McRorie informed Marshall, "If you wish to contest any finding of fact or conclusion of law in the attached Findings and Decision, you should request an administrative hearing. Such request precludes a request for remission or mitigation. As above, relief from an adverse determination after a hearing is by appeal to the Superior Court."

Finally, wrote McRorie, "Failure to make payment or to exercise one of the other options will result in this matter being referred to the Attorney General with a request to initiate an action to collect."

Vehicles Collide On US 64

Two vehicles collided last Friday about 7 p.m. on U.S. 64, 6.5 miles east of Mocksville.

Involved was a 1972 Chevrolet operated by Judy Fravel Barr, 25, of Rt. 3 Advance and a 1972 Plymouth operated by Alice Cricelda Milam, of Lexington, Va.

State Highway Patrolman L.W. Bjorklund said his investigation showed that the Barr vehicle was attempting to make a left turn from N.C. 801 onto U.S. 64. However, the Milam vehicle was approaching from the east, swerved and struck the Barr vehicle in the left side and came to rest on the shoulder.

String Quartet To Play

Four young musicians fron New York, Oklahoma, Texas and Minnesota, all recent graudates of the North Carolina School of Arts, will bring area music lovers an unusual opportunity to hear live some of the great literature for stringed instruments.

Paul Hatton and Teresa Fream, violins, Van Hodge, Viola, and Robert Madura, Violoncello make up the quartet, which will perform two four-movementworks: The Quartet K.589 in B Flat by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart and the Quartet Opus 67 by Johannes Brahms.

Known as the Arioso Quarter, they have played extensively in the schools of Catawba County, where they have been under the aspices of the Third Century Artist Program during the past year.

The concert is scheduled for 3 p.m. Sunday, October 1 at the Davie County Library, and is open to the public free of charge.

Town Votes For Splitting PTCOG

By Doug Livengood

At a specially called meeting last week, which only lasted about 5 minutes, the Mocksville town board voted unanimously to join in the movement to have the Piedmont Triad Council of Governments (PTCOG) split into two regions.

The board adopted a resolution, to be sent to Governor Hunt, petitioning the governor to split the PTCOG.

The resolution stated that the town board "believes that the best interest of Mocksville would be served by membership in a regional planning group which included the following municipalities: Forsyth, Surry, Stokes, Yadkin and Davie, and the cities and towns therein."

The resolution also pledged the town of Mocksville to join such a regional planning group if the governor creates the new planning region suggested in the resolution.

The Davie County board of commissioners earlier this month unanimously passed an identical resolution calling on the governor to split the PTCOG and pledging that Davie County would join the same new planning group if the governor created it.

Indeed, in passing the resolution last week, one town commissioner, Patricia Latta, remarked that the town board "could do nothing else" but vote to have the PTCOG split because "the Davie County commissioners have indicated that we (the town of Mocksville) would be isolated, so to speak" if the town board did not vote to support the movement to split the PTCOG.

In recent weeks, the governing boards of not only Mocksville and Davie County have asked the governor to split the PTCOG, but also of Yadkin, Surry and Stokes counties and many of the towns within these counties have made the same request and pledge that they would join a new planning region if one is formed by the governor.

Mocksville, along with the counties of Davie, Forsyth, Davidson, Surry, Guilford, Rockingham, Caswell, Alamance and Randolph and most of the towns and cities within these counties, are presently dues paying members of the PTCOG.

The PTCOG is a regional planning, administrative and consulting organization which serves member governments in Planning Region G of the state.

Proponents of the split are attempting to form two separate regional councils of governments out of the present Region G, with Davie, Forsyth, Yadkin, Surry and Stokes counties and the towns and cities within these counties forming a new western region of Region G. The remaining counties and towns in Region G would form a new eastern regional council of governments.

Those advocating splitting Region G have consistently argued that the region is too large, with such counties as Alamance and Caswell in the eastern part of the region having very little in common with such counties as Davie, Surry, Forsyth and other counties in the western part of the region.

These same proponents have also frequently argued that many of the programs and services offered by the PTCOG for its member governments are geared toward benefiting larger municipalities, such as Winston-Salem and Greensboro, at the expense of the smaller municipalities within the region.

In addition to Mocksville Mayor R. C. Smith, the only other town officials attending last week's board meeting were town commissioners "Buster" Cleary, Bob Hall and Pat Latta, with commissioners Gene Seats and Joe Murphy being absent.

When the town board earlier this month discussed the possibility of voting to split the PTCOG Seats had expressed his desire not to vote on a split at that time because he feared reprisals from the PTCOG by attempting to block an addition to the Lynn Haven Nursing Home of which he is the administrator.

Murphy, on the other hand, had raised questions about whether or not Mocksville and Davie County would be served as well by the proposed new western region as it might be by a region including Rowan and Iredell counties.

In related developments during recent days, published reports have stated that the chairman of the Forsyth County board of commissioners, Fred Hauser, and the mayor of Winston-Salem, Wayne Corpening, publicly voted at recent meetings of the PTCOG to keep the PTCOG unified.

It has been widely speculated since the issue of splitting the PTCOG arose several months ago that the governor would be reluctant to split the present Region G and divide the PTCOG unless Forsyth County and Winston-Salem were in favor of the split.

Squid

Large schools of squid sometimes leave the open sea to spawn in waters along rocky coasts, anchoring their 7-inch-long egg cases to rocks or seaweed. Each case contains several hundred eggs and sometimes the cases blanket half a mile of seafloor, reveals the National Georgraphic Society's new book, "The Ocean Realm."

Democrats To Meet

The Davie County Democratic Executive committee will meet Monday, October 2, at 7 p.m. at the democratic headquarters.

Plans will be finalized at this meeting for the Bill Hefner Rally, which will be held October 9th at the Shady Grove School. Tickets can be obtained through precinct officers and at the headquarters.

The public is invited to attend this meeting.

Vehicles Collide On NC 801

Two vehicles were involved in a wreck Friday about 4:40 p.m. on N.C. 801, 4 miles south of Mocksville.

Involved was a 1974 Chevrolet pickup operated by David Linwood Harris, 34, of 8 Marginal Street, Cooleemee and a 1963 Chevrolet operated by Lawrence Clelland Miller, 62, of 25 Watt St., Cooleemee.

State Highway Patrolman A.C. Stokes said his investigation showed that Harris was backing from a private drive and failed to see the Miller vehicle, backing partially into the side of it.

Damage to the pickup was estimated at $200 and $675 to the car. Harris was charged with a safe movement violation.

Blackwood Reunion To Be Held Sunday

The annual Blackwood reunion will be held Sunday, October 1, at the Ridenhour Arbor on Center Street Ext., Cooleemee. All friends and relatives are cordially invited.

A picnic luncheon will be served at 1 p.m.

Local Students To See Theatre Group

Students attending Mocksville Middle School in Davie County Schools will have the rare opportunity September 29th to see alive theatrical performance entitled "Purrzazz." The production is based on the "Merrie Melodies" cartoons of the 30's and 40's.

Performers from the Southern Education Theater will present the one-hour production which features four cartoon cats, Al, Patty, Fedddy, Purrnelope and FX, a misguided sound effects man. The five band together after learning they are to be retired from show business and therefore discarded. They try to sell themselves as an act but have no success. The play ends happily however, when they act as their true selves and are accepted by the producer.

The comedy features two comedy types: slapstick and satire. Students will also see examples of pun, paradox, epigram and irony.

The presentation is made possible through the Department of Public Instruction's Edwin Gill Theater Project. The project grew out of the late State Treasurer and State Board of Education member's interest in the theater arts. According to Jim Hall, director of the state education agency's Division of Cultural Arts, the live performances provide valuable learning experiences as well as entertainment. "For some students this will be their first contact with a live theater performance," noted Hall.

Special Registration At Smith Grove

Ricky Sparks Taking Part In NATO Excerises

Senior Airman Ricky D. Sparks, son of Mrs. Nancy S. Bowles of Rt. 5, Mocksville, N.C., is taking part in "Crested Cap '78," a North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) exercise conducted in Germany.

Airman Sparks is an aircrew egress systems repairman at Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C., with the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing.

More than 800 personnel and 48 F-4 fighter sircraft were deployed from Seymour Johnson in support of this exercise which is aimed at enhancing our ability to rapidly reinforce NATO.

The airman is a 1975 graduate of Davie County High School.

Letters To Editor

Dear Editor:

To the citizens of Cooleemee, I need your support. It concerns the large dogs running around loose. In my area it is a large German Sheperd about a year old and an Irish Setter. They come into my yard, tear up my trash, scare my children and chase children who are riding bicycles. If the owwners won't show anymore understanding than to let these dogs run free, then I hope the good citizens of Cooleemee will act. Some will say that their dogs aren't dangerous. The dogs I have had weren't dangerous to me either. If your child was riding his bike and was chased by a dog, how would you feel.

I have lived in a lot of places but the people here are the best. Most of the people that I have met seem to be exceptionaly friendly and really seem to care. Please think more of your community than to just let things go and hope that they don't happen to touch your lives.

Thank you,
Mr. R. N. Combs

Alcohol Information Report

By: WILLIAM F. WEANT, M.S.
ALCOHOLISM EDUCATION CONSULTANT

Teenage Alcohol Consumption - The teenager does not invent the idea of drinking; he learns it. His drinking behavior, in part, is patterned after that of prestigious adults in the community, including his parents. The patterns and social context of drinking by adolescents reflects the patterns and social context of drinking among adults.

Communities and schools are becoming increasingly concerned in light of mounting reports of adolescent drinking and resulting intoxication. This is perhaps one of the strongest arguments for schools to provide effective alcohol education. Generalizations often implicate the entire teenage population, but those involved in frequent and excessive drinking behavior may represent only a minority.

The proportion of teenage users varies among communities and even within a single community. In some places, a majority of teenagers will be users; in others, only a small minority. An indication of possible teenage drinking is the drinking behavior of that adult population which provides the models for drinking behavior.

Surveys show that the incidence of users increases with age. Use is greater among males than females. Young people who live in urban areas are more apt to be users than those living in rural areas. Students at socioeconomic extremes, high and low, tend to be drinkers.

Drinking of alcoholic beverages can be dangerous to individuals of any age. Intoxication of young people can be especially dangerous. Since alcohol's effects are related to body weight, a small amount of alcohol is all that is needed to cause pronounced effects in young people.

Psychological intoxication often occurs even more readily than physical intoxication in the young. In this condition, people may do foolish or reckless things, endangering the safety of themselves or others. Poor judgment and the neglect of moral standards are very apt to occur as a result of this state of being.

Parents and schools alike have an obligation to foster a healthy, realistic approach toward helping the teenager to understand the effects of alcoholic beverages and to guide the youngster in making an intelligent decision about the use of alcohol. Attempts to impose adult standards on teenage situations may very likely result in rebellion and distrust. Teenagers are trying to learn student fellowship and how to be independent without losing adult security.

Rural Elderly Need More Contacts With People To Ease Loneliness

"For older people, to be in poor health means they are frequently isolated from others and don't feel like getting out into groups of other people. As a result, they become more withdrawn. And this tends to increase their physical problems. It gets to be a vicious circle." --Dr. Vira Kivett, assistant professor of family relations in UNC-G School of Home Economics.

Trapped by invisible bonds of loneliness, hundreds of thousands of America's rural elderly have been relegated to an empty place on the shelf in their final years.

But through the work of researchers like Dr. Vira R. Kivett at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, the problems associated with frequent loneliness are beginning to be noticed.

As director of a recent study of loneliness among the rural elderly in Caswell County, Dr. Kivett found that 15 percent of the 418 senior citizens surveyed, all 65 years or older, admitted that loneliness was at least an occasional problem. Dr. Kivett conducted her study in association with the N.C. Agricultural Experiment Station and with the assistance of UNC-G doctoral study Jean P. Scott, a research assistant with the N.C. Agricultural Foundation.

While the survey was limited to Caswell County, a rural locale known for its dependence on tobacco farming, Dr. Kivett feels that the study's findings have application far beyond the county's borders. Due to the demographic characteristics of those surveyed in Caswell, the findings can be viewed as fairly typical in rural, bypassed counties statewide.

A recent national survey revealed that loneliness is not a problem taken lightly by older Americans. Among the 12 most serious dilemmas facing the elderly today, loneliness ranked fourth, behind only fear of crime, poor health, and inadequate income.

Is there any possible means of alleviating the problem of loneliness among the rural elderly?

"There are methods and strategies that can be used that would intervene in this process of loneliness," said Dr. Kivett, an assistant professor of family relations at UNC-G. "But there have been few efforts put forth to prevent it."

Many rural counties, plagued by traditional problems associated with poverty and limited economic development, have been unable or unwilling to provide even minimal outreach services for the elderly.

As relationships end for older adults through physical infirmity and death, there is a greater need for the services of families, churches, community groups, neighbors, and friends.

Telephone reassurance programs as well as daily personal visitation can help break the isolation so often experienced by the elderly, Dr. Kivett suggested.

Perhaps the most acute problems of loneliness among the elderly occur following the death of a spouse. And this seems especially severe for women.

"We know in our society there are very few role models for older women," said Dr. Kivett. "Women don't know what to expect as they go into this new role of widowhood. And in many cases they are very passive and find it very difficult to reintegrate themselves into the community.

"A widow-to-widow approach would seem to be an efficient way of doing this," she added. "A person who has experienced a similar problem could literally walk through new experiences with the widow. In many cases this has been shown to be a better strategy than those put forth by family members themselves."

Problems associated with health are among the most discouraging for senior citizens. And when older adults perceive their health as poor, there are increased chances for loneliness, the study revealed.

"For older people, to be in poor health means they are frequently isolated from others and don't feel like getting out into groups of other people," said Dr. Kivett. "As a result, they become more withdrawn. And this tends to increase their physical problems. It gets to be a vicious circle."

Among a number of potential health problems, diminishing eyesight can be one of the most severe, she noted.

"Very often, people who are poor sighted also tend to withdraw from people. Their mobility is poor and they may appear to be disoriented or confused," she said. "And, in turn, people treat them as if they are confused or avoid them."

A combination of patience and sensitivity to the needs of the elderly by family members is especially important when health-related problems are a factor in loneliness, Dr. Kivett suggested.

The availability of such visual aids as talking books, tape recordings, and large-print books are also of great help to the older adult with fading vision, she said.

Related to all other problems of the rural elderly studied in Caswell County was the need for transporattion. Half of those surveyed depended upon others for their transportation needs. And in most rural counties there is usually a lack of public transportation, which compounds the problem, said Dr. Kivett.

"Many older people cannot afford cars or the upkeep and gasoline for cars," she said. "Many older women in particular never learned to drive. In their generation, husbands usually assumed the driving responsibilities.

"Programs for training older women to drive in cases in which they can afford it would be one intervention technique."

"But the real answer for transportation for the elderly in rural areas is the need for small-scale, barrier-free vehicles that can get to isolated areas and can accommodate wheel chairs. This is now being used and seems to be the answer," she said.

Geographical, political, and economic problems in North Carolina's rural counties have retarded the development of social service networks, a difficulty not encountered to the same degree in more urban locales, pointed out Dr. Kivett.

But the problems associated with loneliness among the rural elderly are not all of an external nature. Dr. Kivett noted that the senior citizens in such situations must strive to overcome these problems.

"Many lonely adults place the burden of effort upon others to relieve their loneliness," she wrote in a recent publication. "The emotional symptoms that frequently characterize the lonely such as fear, anger, self-pity, envy, and distrust, serve to alienate them from those who would intervene."

Nonetheless, Dr. Kivett feels that a greater commitment to reach the rural elderly must be attempted if the problems of loneliness and alienation are to be solved.

"Truly absurd is the man who never changes."

MRS. EDWIN LEE SPACH
..... was Myrtle Angela Shoaf

Shoaf-Spach Vows Are Spoken Sunday

Myrtle Angela Shoaf and Edwin Lee Spach were united in marriage on Sunday, September 24, at 3:00 p.m. in the Farmington United Methodist Church, Farmington, N.C.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Fred C. Shoaf of Stokesdale, N.C. Formerly of Farmington. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford C. Spach of Farmington.

Officiating the formal double ring ceremony was the Rev. Fred C. Shoaf, father of the bride and Rev. James E. Cloer, minister of the church.

A program of Classical music was presented by Timothy Shoaf, brother of the bride, organist and Pierre Debs of Greensboro, Trumpeter.

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal gown of white sata peau satin designed with a high neckline of alencon lace, sheer yoke, and long lace appliqued fitted sleeves. The empire bodice had an overlay of reembroidered alencon lace, embellished with seed pearls and crystal beads. The skirt that extended into a chapel train was enchanced with motifs and an elaborate border of lace and pearls. Her waltz length veil of white silk illusion had a double row of seed pearls and lace appliques secured to a lace covered Juliet cap. She carried a cascade of yellow roses and gypsophilia, accented with greenery.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Miss Jayne Williams of Durham. Bridemaids were Karen Shoaf, of Lexington, cousin of the bride; Sonya Spach of Winston-Salem, neice of the bridegroom; Ruth Hartman and Nancy Ellis both of Farmington, and Kathy Foster of Mocksville. They wore full length gowns of maize knit with a Venice lace yoke. The cape of maize chiffon was triangle shape with a high neckline. They each carried a long stemmed yellow rose with streamers.

Jennifer Long of Welcome, the flower girl wore a yellow gown with a white organdy pinafore and carried a white basket filled with yellow rose pedals. Ring bearer was Matthew Spilliman of Farmington.

The bridegrooms father attended him as best man.

Groomsmen were Richard Shoaf of Stokesdale, brother of the bride; Wade Spach of Winston-Salem, Dwight Spach, Frank Spach, and Terry Spach brothers of the bridegroom, all of Farmington.

Acolytes were Steve Spach and Max Spach of Winston-Salem, nephews of the bridegroom.

Guest were registered by Mrs. Wade Spach of Winston-Salem.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Robert Oakley of Lexington and Miss Gail Motsinger of Greensboro.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Davie High School in Mocksville and attended Greensboro College, Greensboro, N.C.

Mr. Spach is a 1973 graduate of Parkland Senior High School, Winston-Salem and a 1977 graduate of N.C. State University, Raleigh, N.C. He received a B.S. Degree in Industrial Engineering. He was a member of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers. He is employed as plant engineer of Armtex Inc., Pilot Mountain, N.C.

Following the wedding reception the couple left for a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Virginia. Upon their return the couple will make their home in Farmington.

RECEPTION

Rev. and Mrs. Fred C. Shoaf entertained with a reception, Sunday afternoon in the Farmington Masonic Lodge immediately following the wedding of their daughter.

In the foyer of the Lodge Miss Lillie Mae Motsinger, the bride's aunt registered the guests and directed them into the Dining Hall. The entrance to the Hall was decorated with baskets of greenery. Rev. and Mrs. Shoaf greeted and received the many guests. The Hall was decorated with two candelabras intertwined with ivy, palms and baskets of greenery.

A display table was covered with a white linen cloth and net overlay edged with lace where the Bride's bridal doll, Bible and a poem written to the bride by her aunt was displayed.

The focal point of the dining hall decor was the Brides table featuring a six-tier wedding cake which was decorated and topped with yellow roses. The bride's bouquet complimented the table. After the bridal couple cut the traditional first slice of cake, serving was completed by Mrs. Robert Oakley and Miss Gail Motsinger.

A large centerpiece of yellow and white mums, gypsophilia and ivy centered the Serving table flanked by two five-branch candelabra. Assisting in serving the ham biscuits, sausage balls, open face sandwiches, cheese wafers, wedding cookies, relish tray, mints and nuts were Mrs. Hollis Motsinger and Mrs. Clyde Shoaf.

Presiding at the Punch table, Mrs. Woodrow Long and Mrs. Wayne Shoaf served punch from the silver punch bowl.

The tables were covered with maize taffeta and a white Irish lace overlay. Nosegays of yellow and white mums with streamers accented the tables.

Rice bags were destributed to the guests by Jennifer Long and Matthey Spillman.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Foy Hege of Gastonia, N.C.

REHEARSAL DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford C. Spach, the bridegroom's parents honored the couple with a dinner in the Farmington United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall, Saturday evening, September 23, following the wedding rehearsal.

The serving table was covered with a green table cloth with a white lace overlay, centered with a five-branch candelabra and an arrangement of mixed flowers.

The buffet dinner consisted of Country ham biscuits, potato salad, green beans and corn, deviled eggs, pickles, sliced tomatoes and cake squares decorated with rose buds were served by Mrs. Don Foster, Mrs. Wilburn Long, and Mrs. Ed Johnson.

The 40 guests were seated at tables with a centerpiece of candles and flowers.

The bride and groom chose this occasion to present gifts to their attendants.

Tea Leaves

Dried tea bush leaves can be processed to make three different kinds of tea - green, black or oolong.

According to NCSU agricultural extension specialists, green tea is unfermented tea made by steaming and drying the fresh leaves.

To make black tea, the leaves are fermented or oxidized and then dried. This causes the leaves to turn dark brown. Black tea produces a tea with a rich, hearty flavor. Oolong tea is semi-fermented. It is light and has a subtle flavor and bouquet. For variety or special teas, the leaves may be mixed with jasmine, gardenia, mint, orange or spices.

MRS. DAVID LEE FOSTER
.... was Patricia Jeanne Latham

Latham-Foster Vows Are Spoken

Patricia Jeanne Latham and David Lee Foster were united in marriage at two o'clock p.m. Saturday, September 23, at Eutaw Heights Baptist Church in Fayetteville, N.C. The Reverend Lawrence O. Harper and Dr. James I Murphy officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Latham of Fayetteville. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. S.R. Latham and the late Mr. Latham. The bride is a graduate of Terry Sanford High School and Averett College in Danville, Virginia.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd R. Foster of Fayetteville, is also a graduate of Terry Sanford High School. He attended Western Carolina University and graduated from Methodist College in Fayetteville. He is employed with Belk in Laurinburg, N.C.

Wedding music was presented by Robert McDuffie, organist, Mrs. Terry C. Terry, soloist and Terry C. Terry violist.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore an empire gown of ivory selesta with a capelet trimmed in alencon lace and a chapel train. She wore a matching hat.

The bride carried a white Bible covered by white and orange delight roses. The Bible was carried by her Mother when her parents were married.

Miss Jo Anne Latham was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a gown of copper polyester. Other attendants were Mrs. Brett Daniels of Danville, Virginia and Miss Lisa Baker of Fayetteville. They wore dresses identical to that of maid of honor and all carried bouquets of dried and silk flowers in fall colors.

Best man was the bridegroom's father. Ushers were Lt. Lloyd Douglas Foster and Mark Stephen Foster, brothers of the bridegroom.

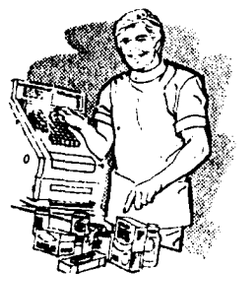

After a wedding trip to the mountains, the couple will reside in Laurinburg, N.C.

The bride's parents entertained with a reception immediately following the ceremony at Green Valley Country Club.

Following the wedding rehearsal, the groom's parents entertained the bridal couple and wedding party with a dinner on Friday evening, September 22 at the Village Square Restaurant in Fayetteville.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Gerald and I would like to use your newspaper as a means of saying thank you to all the people who participated in the Gerald Markland Softball Benefit. It really means so much to us knowing people are concerned and want to help. We sincerely appreciate all the time and dedication of the players and the people who were responsible for organizing the benefit.

We shall always remember the kindnesses shown to us by our many friends.

Thanks to all of you again and God's blessings on each of you.

Sincerely,
Kathy and Gerald Markland.

Dear Editor:

On Saturday, September 16th, downtown Mocksville was transformed into an exciting and magical fairy land called "ARTS ALIVE SINCE '75". The streets and sidewalks were filled with exhibitors displaying their wares of arts and crafts. Tables dressed in red checkered table cloths beckoned passerbyers to stop and partake of the good food and hospitality--both of which were in abundance!! The handsomely decorated stage was almost never void of a variety of entertainers, and scattered here and yon were clowns, whittlers, people selling balloons coloring books, various demonstrators, and lots andlots of laughter and scurring feet anxiously trying to take it all in!!

Downtown Mocksville is a unique and indeed the perfect spot for such a fairyland transformation. The large trees and the perfect square of streets all lend to such a transformation.

The gorgeous weather was certainly a contributing factor--wothout good weather, this day would have been doomed. But, nice location plus nice weather doesn't necessarily equal a successful festival. The success of the "ARTS ALIVE SINCE '75" Fesvival was due to an extremely hard working and united group of people which comprises the Davie Arts Council's Board of Directors, the Merchants Association, county officials, town officials, the Mocksville Enterprise Record, WDSL, many organizations and countless individuals---all of whom worked together for one purpose--a day filled to the brim with art, crafts, fun and entertainment--a day that the county could reflect on with pride and satisfaction.

On behalf of the Davie Arts Council, I would like to openly and sincerely thank each person who gave of their time and energies to help make this festival great. Hundreds of thank you letters and notes are being written this week and hopefully no name has been overlooked. But, even though hundreds of people will be receiving "thank you's" in the mail within the next week or two; there are thousands of deserving persons who will not. To these thousands of spectators who came early in the morning and throughout the day, who clapped at our entertainers; who bought of our wares; who danced to our music; who smiled at each other; who helped clean the streets and who in essence, "made" this festival great--a very special "Thank you'.

The Arts Council appreciates all the support so generously given throughout the county. It is our hope that this support for the expansion of the arts continues to grow.

Sincerely,

Martha Kontos, President
Davie County Arts Council

Daniel And Harris Vows Are Spoken In Greek Rites

Miss Margaret Anne Daniel and Theodoras Demetrious Harris were united in marriage Sunday, September 24, at half after five o'clock in the Greek Orthodox Church of the Annunciation, Winston-Salem. Reverend Father George Kiricoples officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Wedding musicians were Mrs. Donald Bingham, organist; Mrs. Manuel Kranis, organist; and the Greek Orthodox Choir. The program of wedding music included "Voluntary on Kremser" - Gordon Young; "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" - Bach; "Fragments of an Etude" - Chopin. "Trumpet Voluntary" - Purcell, was used as the processional with "Toccata" - Widor, as the recessional.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cicero Daniel of Wandering Lane. She is a graduate of Davie County High School and Catawba College, where she was named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges". In 1970, she was presented at the Sub-Debutant Ball in Lexington. She is employed as an Assistant Brand Research Manager with R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Demetrious Harris of Fayetteville. A graduate of Fayetteville High School and North Carolina State University, he served as a Corporal in the United States Army. He is owner and President of Northwest Structural Components, Inc., in Kernersville.

Brought in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory chiffon featuring a modified waistline, with Queen Anne neckline and full bishop sleeves. The bodice of the gown, as well as the deep cuffs of the sleeves, were trimmed with Alencon lace and seed pearls. The flowing skirt extended into a full chapel train. Her chapel length veil of ivory silk illusion was attached to a Camelot cap. Alencon lace and seed pearls covered the headpiece and extended in a deep edging around the veil. She carried a cascade of Japette orchids, stephanotis and chlorophytum centered on a Testament from the Holy Land which was given her by her maternal Grandmother.

Mrs. Peter Hondros of Winston-Salem was matron of honor and Miss Barbara Jeanne Daniel, sister of the bride, of Winston-Salem was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Elaine Agapion, niece of the groom, of Raleigh; Miss Julia Basic-Price, neice of the groom, of Quincy, Florida; Mrs. Robert Etzel, Mrs. Steve Sharpe, Mrs. Jerome Thomas, of Winston-Salem.

The attendants wore identical gowns of emerald green fashioned with an empire waistline and full skirt. A triangle cape coverlet of chiffon extended to mid-skirt in back and was edged in emerald green satin. They carried natural wicker baskets filled with silk roses, cosmos, tiger lilies, wood lilies, sonya freezia and babies' breath in shades of coral, deep yellow and white.

Honorary attendants were Mrs. Jonathan Hale, of Winston-Salem, cousin of the bride. Nieces of the groom, Miss Ashley Agapion and Miss Michelle Agapion, of Raleigh; Miss Helen Gionis, of Charleston, S.C.; Miss Rebecca Price, of Quincy, Florida.

Mr. Peter Hondros of Winston-Salem was best man. Ushers were Demetre Gionis of Charleston, S.C.; Daniel Agapion, of Raleigh; nephews of the groom. John Daskal, of Lillington; Deno Fasul, of Fayetteville; cousin of the groom Jack McCauley, of Greenville, S.C.; and Chris Koumparakis, of Martinsville, Virginia.

Master Michael Gionis, nephew of the groom, of Charleston, S.C. was crown bearer.

Mrs. William Daniel chose a hand painted green chiffon sleeveless gown with a matching jacket for her daughter's wedding.

The bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. Jeff Caudell wore a formal gown of apricot silk.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. William Cicero Daniel hosted a wedding reception at Bermuda Run Country Club.

Guests were greeted at the doors by Dr. and Mrs. Deno Pantelakos of Fayetteville; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Swain of Winston-Salem; Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Bowden of Mocksville; and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Phillips of Laurinburg.

Presiding at the guest registers were Mrs. Joseph B. Jarvis and Mrs. J. Brent Holcomb of Winston-Salem.

The buffet tables were covered with white linen, centered with arrangements of white snapdragons, yellow Marguerite daisies, tangerine carnations, and salmon snowdrift pompoms, with silver branched candelabra. Guests were served assorted hot and cold hors d'oeuvers consisting of quiche Lorraine, Dutch meatballs, chicken livers with bacon, ham biscuits, wing dings, dolmades, assorted sandwiche rolls, assorted canapees, fresh fruits and vegetables and mixed nuts. Desserts included a choice of wedding cakes, baklava and Kourambiedes.

Music was provided by the Grecian Keys of Warren, Ohio.

REHEARSAL PARTY

Dr. and Mrs. Burton Price of Quincy, Florida; Mr. and Mrs. Steven Agapion of Cary; and Mr. and Mrs. Kerry Gionis of Charleston, South Carolina, were hosts Saturday, September 23, at Bermuda Run Country Club for a rehearsal party honoring their brother, Ted Harris, and his fiancee, Margaret Daniel.

Cocktail hour began immediately following the wedding rehearsal. Guests were served hors d'oeuvres including assorted cheeses, mixed olives, fish mold, dolmades, tiropets, and spanakopets.

Chamber music was provided by the Arisso String Quartet from Catawba county.

The head table was covered with yellow linen, centered with an arrangement of Woburn Abbey roses and Marguerite daisies with silver branched candelabra. Guest tables, also covered with yellow linen, received centerpieces comprised of white tapered candles entwined with English ivy at the base. Each place setting was marked with a fresh miniature coral rosebud and an engraved menu of the evening's fare, listed in both French and English. The menus were printed in green ink on white parchment paper with a deckled edge. Enclosed in emerald green felt, they were bound with a gold cord. The names of the bride and groom were embossed in gold on the front cover. The menus were a special gift to the bridal couple from Dr. and Mrs. Price.

Guests were served the four course dinner including seafood cocktail delight, Greek salad, flamed Chateaubriand, stuffed baked potato, broiled tomato half and broccoli spears with hollandaise sauce. Dessert was a creme de menthe parfait accompanied by bakalva. Champagne was served throughout the dinner.

BRIDESMAID LUNCHEON

North Carolina's Hampton Mariners Museum Operates With Personal Touch

The Hampton Mariners Museum located here is designed and operated to give visitors a personal experience about North Carolina and the sea.

The moving force behing the museum is curator Charles McNeill, who refers to himself as a "beached mariner". It takes just a few minutes with McNeill to learn of his love for the sea and his enthusiasm for the museum.

"We operate the museum with a personal touch. We want people to really learn something when they come here," said McNeill.

Beaufort is entrenched with history, and nearby are Morehead City, Atlantic Beach, Emerald Isle, and Salter Path.

The Hampton Museum was created in 1952 by an act of the North Carolina Legislature and is an arm of the Museum of Natural History located in Raleigh. The Department of Agriculture operates both museums.

For years the museum was more or less in a state of limbo, being shuffled from room to room and containing a few boards with shells on them. But, along came McNeill, and things began to happen. He has been at the museum for three years after being Director of the North Carolina Port at Morehead City, and a former merchant marine. He is a graduate of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy.

From only 25 to 30 visitors a day, the museum is now attracting as many as 700 people a day.

"I have always wanted to go to sea," said McNeill, a native of Whiteville.

It is a the sea, the history of the men who sailed the tall ships, and the modern biologists who study the sea, that form the backbone of the museum.

The museum has an outstanding collection of shells, shorebirds, fish and mammal displays. Natural habitat-oriented saltwater aquaria offer the opportunity to study live marine creatures native to the coastal environment.

Traditional North Carolina designed boat building is highlighted in the artifact section, and a section is devoted to privateering documents, boat building tools and navigation instruments. Marine artificats are found throughout the museum, and a "ship's library" contains plans, charts and historical volumes.

A tour of the museum can last from 30 minutes to two hours. And, visitors can further learn about the sea through tidal flat, rock jetty, and salt marsh field trips, and shelling trips. Occasionally cruises to surrounding areas are offered Sailing lessons are also offered. Advance registration for these programs is advisable. There is a small fee for some of them.

A 32-year-old, 42-foot sport fisherman yacht, the "Rum Runner" is used for outdoor activities. And on display, are a 1910 Beaufort sprit-sailing skiff, a 40-year-old sharpie, and a 50-year-old Beaufort racing skiff.

"There is no average day, month or season for us," said McNeill. "Each period is a challenge, and we have a wonderful staff. They deserve a world of credit for their dedication. We want visitors to ask questions. We have people ready and willing to help them."

An interesting collection in the museum is the one on ship models. Studying the minute detail on some of the models can be mind-boggling.

McNeill is also an accomplished artist, and many of his watercolors hang proudly in homes of North Carolinians and others.

"My painting has fallen by the wayside. I don't have as much time as I used to have, but my desire to create is fulfilled in the museum.

"I had private lessons when I was 10 years old," McNeill added, "but the rest of the painting I just picked up. I never will pass up the chance to ssee a good painting."

With that gleam you'll find only in a Scotman's eye, he said: "When I wrote my mother that I was going to work with the museum, it didn't surprise her. She sent me a copy of a newspaper article written when I was eleven telling about my visit to a museum.

McNeill said there are many things he and his staff would like to do. They are now planning a Strange Seafood Spectacular, which is an exchange of unusual seafood.

The museum is open year around, with the exception of Christmas and New Years Day, Monday through Friday, from nine to five, and on Sunday from two to five. There is no admission fee.

When visiting the museum, ask about the programs going on outside, after you have enjoyed thhe displays. Chances are they will have soomething going on, and you can bet it will be done with a personal touch.

National School Lunch Week Is Oct. 8-14

National School Lunch Week's theme, Eat to Learn – Learn to Eat", will again be presented across the nation October 8 - 14, 1978. This theme was designed to focus attention on the importance and increase the awareness of the benefits of good nutrition to students, parents, and the general public. Emphasis this school year is on eating right and physical well-being.

Again promoting this year's NSLW are characters from the cartoon strip "Wee Pals" by Morrie Turner. Turner's cartoon characters are featured on this year's poster advocating the idea that if one eats right, one should be "Feelin' Good, Fellin' Groovy." Turner's cartoon characters offer a fun way to celebrate NSLW and at the same time stress the significance of teaching children to eat the right foods so thay they will feel right, play hard and work well.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:

I thank you for printing the rules for first aid for an epileptic seizure. Realizing that you and your staff are kept busy daily I would like to correct a small typographical error in rule number six. The first line reads "It is generally necessary...." The line should read "It is not generally necessary..."

I would like to remind everyone to make that change seeing that it changes the meaning of the rule and again urge everyone to cut out these rules in order to further their knowledge of epilepsy.

Also if anyone would like any more information about epilepsy they should feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

George Vlasios Kontos III,

Fork Jaycees Entertain Senior Citizens

Fork Jaycees and Jaycettes entertained the senior citizens Saturday, September 23, with a chicken stew and homemade ice cream at the Fork Recreation Center.

Many showed up inspite of a cool, cloudy and rainy day. Good food and wonderful fellowship were enjoyed by the young as well as the old.

Following is a poem submitted by Mrs. Ruby Foster:

When I was young and my slippers were red,
I could kick my feet over my head.
Then I grew older and my slippers were blue,
But still I could dance the whole night thru.

Now, I am old and my slippers are black,
I walk to the corner and puff my way back.
The reason I know my youth has been spent,
My get up and go has got up and went.
I really don't mind, when I think with a grin,
Of all the grand places my get up has been.

Since I have retired from lifes competition
I find every day an exact repetition.
I get up each morn and dust off my wits,
Grab for the paper and read the obits.
If my name is missing I know I'm not dead
So, I eat a big breakfast and go back to bed.

South Davie Jr. High Ties Thomasville

The South Davie Jr. High football team battled to an 8-8 tie Tuesday against Thomasville at the Davie High Stadium.

Thomasville scored first in the game in the second quarter on a 30-yard run and made the 2-pt. conversion.

Davie got its score in the 4th period on a 28-yard pass play from Pete Smoot to Brian Kett. Davie also made its 2-pt. conversion.

Kevin Green and Eric Southern recovered fumbles for Davie and Rodney Barker had a good defensive game for Davie.

Freshwater Farmers Are Chasing Rainbows And 'Cats' For Profit In Farming Ventures

They aren't exactly swimming in profits yet, but about 5,000 of the nation's farmers see a future in fish.

Last year 110 million pounds of freshwater fish were harvested down on the farm. That's a bumper crop compared to the 2 million pounds produced in 1960 when commercial freshwater aquaculture first got under way in the United Statess, the National Geographic Society reports.

The harvest, valued at between $100 million and $125 million, included 70 million pounds of catfish, 30 million pounds of trout, and 10 million pounds of crawfish.

Most of the catfish are raised in ponds that cover thousands of acres in Mississippi, Arkansas, and Louisiana. Farmers also cultivate "cats" in several other states, including Texas, Missouri, Georgia. and Illinois.

Catfish like warm water and grow quickly in relatively shallow ponds. "Dig a hole," said an Arkansas enthusiast somewhat optimistically, "and it's ready to become a catfish pond."

In Idaho, they're forever chasing rainbows. Trout are raised there in earthen or concrete ponds of cold, rushing water called raceways. Almost 90 percent of the commercial trout catch comes from raceways in that state.

"Pure aquaculture doesn't include fish raised in hatcheries to stock fishing streams, because they survive as wild fish in nature for part of their lives," explained H.R. Schmittou, a U.S. Department of Agriculture aquaculture expert.

"In addition to the basic species in this country, farmers can raise bass, bluegills, and others. They also raise a lot of bait minnows for anglers."

Freshwater farmers in Louisiana dote on crawfish. The small cousin of the lobster is to Cajunland what roast beef is to England. Cooks in the state serve crawfish fried, baked in juicy patties, and simmered in bisques and gumbos. At least 90 percent of the 10 million pounds raised in Louisiana never leave the state.

The appetite for seafood has grown throughout the United States in recent years. Annual per capita consumption of fish is now 13 pounds. Reflecting the demand, imports of fishery products last year were valued at $2.6 billion.

"There's no likelihood of our reversing this situation except through better use of our natural stocks, both within our own 200-mile limit and with our aquaculture," observed Schmittou.

Cleaning Kenan Stadium After Home Football Games Means Backbreaking Work For Reserve Officers Training Corps

With baskets full of fried chicken, warm rolls and all the other picnic necessities grasped firmly in hand, these Tar Heels are ready to cheer, curse and cajole their team towards another victory.

What few of these fans see, however, is Sunday morning at Kenan Stadium. As the sun peeps over the rim around 8 a.m., workers move in to clean up the tons of debris left over from Saturday's gridiron clash.

"We usually haul about seven dump-truck loads of trash out of there after each home game," says Bobby Gales, a foreman with the university's grounds crew that maintains the athletic fields.

But the regular grounds crew aren't the ones who wade into the mounds of trash on Sunday morning. They are, instead, members of the Air Force and Navel Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) units on the UNC-CH campus.

The athletic department began hiring the ROTC units to do the cleaning about four years ago. Devon Brouse, athletic facilities superintendent, says that using the ROTC units has relieved the grounds crew of what often turned out to be a seven-day week.

"Back a few years ago," he says, "we occasionally had three home games in a row. When the regular people worked all week and then had to come in on weekends to clean the stadium, it would mean 28 straight days without a day off."

The ROTC units now split the home games between them, and each receives a $600 contribution for each clean-up job. The money comes from game receipts.

How does one go about cleaning a 45,000-capacity stadium piled high with the remains of thousands of picnics and impromptu celebrations?

Gales says the students have found by experience that it is best to divide into three teams. Two teams take the stadium, one on each side. A smaller group collects the litter from the parking areas spread throughout campus. With about 40-45 people, the job usually can be done in six or seven hours.

"The girls are sent around through the rows of seats first to pick up the bottles," he says. "Then the guys come along behind with the blowers to blow the loose trash out to the ends of the rows."

The grounds department supplies 20 pack blowers. The blowers, weighing about 30 pounds, consist of a gasoline motor and a white, circular pipe about a yard in length. The motor pushes a strong blast of air through the pipe, which can be directed under and around the seats to dislodge the trash.

The girls do at times use the blowers but because of the weight of the engines, the job more often falls to the males, Gales says. With the high pitches whine of the blowers resounding through the stadium, the workers resemble moon walkers as they move clumsily through the rows, blowers harnessed to their backs.

Twenty or more curious onlookers are often drawn into the stadium and usually stand for a half hour or more watching the cleaning process.

Rakes and brooms are distributed to the other workers while the blowers are at work.

The sections of temporary seating in the end zones must be cleaned by hand since the trash cannot be blown out of the soft earth. Press boxes and restrooms also must be spotless when the day is ended.

In the late afternoon, the trash is waist deep or higher at the end of the rows. The garbage which extends in white ribbons from top to bottom of the rows of steps must be raked or swept down to the bottom of the stands and loaded into waiting dumptrucks. The trucks alternate from side to side of the stadium, collecting trash as it comes tumbling down. Workers wade hip deep in the garbage as it is pushed and pulled into cans which are heaved onto the trucks.

As much work as a normal stadium clean-up is, Gales says, it doesn't compare to the added work caused by rainy weather or too few workers. Trash that has been rained on won't blow out from under the seats. And if only 20-25 people show up, no matter what the weather, the task can last as long as 9 or 10 hours.

When the day's chore is done and the dirt-smudged workers head for a hot shower and soft bed, three images remain imbedded in their minds: liquor bottles, chicken bones and peanut shells.

"I couldn't believe all the liquor bottles," one sophomore girl said after her first clean-up. "I don't see whay people can't take some of the bottles away with them." Another remembered the pain of crawling under the end zone seats, picking chicken bones and every celery stalk out from under the moth-infested muck.

A junior who has been through three clean-ups said, "The first thing you are bound to notice is all those little bitty peanut shells. You get in a section where there are a lot of them and they blow up into a cloud around your head and settle all in your hair." And, he adds with a grimace, "Right behind the peanuts comes Col. Sanders and all that uneaten chicken."

"Jimmy Carter must be a few million bucks richer after this weekend," one girl said while another added, "There can't be one poor chicken left standing in this whole state."

Brouse says the ROTC units do a good job of cleaning Kenan because of their youth and the numbers of people they bring out to do the job.

The grounds supervisors don't go over the stadium with a white glove after each clean-up, but no cans, bottles or large pieces of trash are allowed to slide by. "We would probably let a peanut shell or two lay there," Gales adds, "but not many of those."

Dixie Classic Adds To Entertainment Lineup

The 1978 Dixie Classic Fair will feature a wider variety of entertainment to Fairgoers during its run here September 29 - October 7.

Mickey Gilley, a widely known country singer, and Tom T. Hall, a renowned singer and songwriter, will appear in concert, Gilley on October 4 and Hall on October 5.

Another new attraction announced by William B. Austin Jr., Fair manager, will be the Zayer Corporation Dixie Classic Fashion Show. This event is scheduled for Arena I at 11:00 a.m. Saturday, September 30, 3:00 p.m. Sunday, October 1; and 11:00 a.m. Saturday, October 7.

Band competitions sponsored by radio station WTQR will be kicked off in Arena I for Country and Bluegrass semifinals, 6:00 - 9:30 p.m. Friday, September 29. These will continue at the same time for Country semifinals on September 30 and at 2:00 p.m. on Sunday, October 1, for Bluegrass semifinals in the Grandstand. It's back to Arena I at 6:00 p.m. Monday, October 2 for more Country semifinals, and then to the Grandstand at 6:30 p.m., October 5, preceding the Tom T. Hall Show, for the Country finals.

The Mariah Group has been booked for programs of current and nostalgic dancing and singing. Their schedule of appearances, all at the Fair's Showmobile, includes the following: 4:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday, October 2; 4:00 p.m. 6:00 p.m., and 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, October 3; 4:00 p.m., 6:00 p.m.. . and 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, October 4; 4:30 p.m., 6:00 p.m., and 8:30 p.m. Thursday, October 5; 4:00 p.m. 6:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. Friday, October 6; and 2:30 p.m., 6:00 p.m., and 8:00 p.m. Saturday, October 7.

A new event which promises to create a lot of attention is the Dolly Parton Look-Alike Contest. It begins at 7:00 p.m. in the Grandstand on October 4, preceding the Mickey Gilley concert. At that time, eight finalists will compete for cash and merchandise prizes.

Judges and participating sponsors will be Bobby Teague Appliance and TV Center, Professional Diet Control Center, Hoagie King, Classic Beauty Salon, E.H. Petree Custon Lamps, Carolina Keyboards, Triad Heating and Air Conditioning, and Radio Station WSMX. Each contestant will be interviewed by WSMX Station Manager Curly Howard.

In addition, the James E. Strates mile-long midway will open its rides and shows at noon each day, and the Zambelli fireworks will go off at 9:30 each night. The Chitwood Auto Thrill Show, a display of daredevil driving, will entertain in the Grandstand October 2 and 3. On October 6 and 7, members of the North Carolina Tractor Pullers Association will compete for $4,000 in prizes.

See-Saw-A-Thon

Civitan Annual See-Saw-A-Thon Is Saturday

The Junior Civitan Club at Davie County High School will sponsor its 3rd Annual See-Sawathon September 30 from 8:00 a.m. - 6:00 p.m. on the square in Mocksville.

Proceeds from the event will go towards the purchase of supplies for the Developmental Class of the Severely and Profoundly Retarded. The class which is open to all severely and profoundly retarded persons in Davie is held in Cooleemee under the direction of Sydna Sanford.

Approximately 25 Junior Civitan Club members are expected to participate in the attempt to attain their $800 goal. People are urged to sponsor participants by the hour or by making a donation to the fund raising event.

The club raised $600 last fall for the class. Lou Anne Eaton, club president said, "we hope to attain the support of the people during this project and reach our goal to be used in the support of this worthwhile program."

Vehicles Collide On US 158

Two vehicles collided last Thursday about 4:24 p.m. on U.S. 158, 9.8 miles east of Mocksville.

Involved was a 1977 Jeep operated by Lane Piatt Hollar, 20, of 607 Cherry Street, Mocksville and a 1977 Toyota, operated by Herman Stanley Marion, 44, of Rt. 1 Advance.

State Highway Patrolman J.L. Payne said his investigation showed that Hollar had stopped behind a stopped school bus which was discharging students. Marion came up from the rear and slowed to stop. However, his foot slipped off the brake pedal onto the accederator pedal pushing it into the vehicle ahead of him.

Damage to the Jeep was estimated at $300 and $1400 to the Toyota. There were no charges.

Summary On Proposed Changes In Wildlife Laws Is Available

Sportsmen and others interested in the proposed changes in North Carolina's wildlife resources law can obtain a free, detailed summary of all the proposals.

"Because of the widespread interest in the proposed changes, we have compiled a detailed summary in booklet form which is available to anyone who writes for it," announced Woodrow Price, chairman of the Committee.

"To get a copy, simply write to: Wildlife Resources Law Revision, Room 383, Archdale Building, 512 N.Salisbury Street, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

"Of course, these are only proposals at this point," said Price. "Before any final proposals are drafted, we will hold a series of public hearings across the State. Ten hearings will be held across the State during September, October, and November (see schedule below)."

The Conservation Law Study Committee is a body established by the 1977 General Assembly to consider revision of the 1935 game law. The Study Committee has agreed upon a number of tentative proposals to modify the provisions of the original bill, particularly in the penalties section. Higher fines and revocation of hunting privileges are proposed for convicted game law violators. Also, the new law -- as currently proposed -- would place the authority to regulate the manner of taking game with the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission.

"All these proposed changes are tentative, and we are making an all-out effort to find out what the people of the State want and to incorporate as many of their desires into this new bill as possible before we send it back to the Legislature in 1979," said Price.

Price pointed out that, "If the bill passes, it will be the first comprehensive revision and updating of North Carolina's 40-year old game law. There have been many amendments to the 1935 game law and many local game laws have been passed over the years. This has created a great deal of difficulty for wildlife officials in trying to enforce this complex set of laws. Also, the general public does not have ready access to the laws which control their hunting, fishing and trapping activities because so many are local laws which are buried in the statute books and are beyond the control of the Wildlife Commission. The result has been confusion among sportsmen and hindrance in the proper management of wildlife resources."

The Study Committee has devoted a great deal of time to trapping and the status of furbearing animals. Their current proposals direct the Wildlife Resources Commission to establish a furbearer research and management capability, and to more closely regulate the taking, buying and selling of furs in the State.

The fox would be classed as both a game animal and a furbearer, and the Wildlife Resources Commission would be directed to establish a closed season for fox hunting to protect females while they are rearing their young. Also electronic calling devices and guns would be prohibited for hunting foxes, and fox trapping would be limited to two months per year with steel traps legal for only one of those months. Before the Wildlife Resources Commission could open any trapping season for foxes, it would be required to conduct a thorough study of the fox population in the area and make a positive determination that an adequate number of foxes was present to provide for both hunting with dogs and trapping. Sport hunting for foxes must be given priority over trapping when populations are low.

The Committee's new draft of the game law revision differs in several ways from a similar revised bill which was unsuccessfully introduced in the 1977 legislative session. Some of these changes are listed here:

--The Wildlife Resources Commission would be authorized to regulate field trials, including retriever field trails which could be held throughout the year.

--Migrant farm workers would be treated as residents for the purpose of purchasing most fishing licenses.

--The local game commissions in Dare and Currituck counties would be preserved.

--The law passed in 1977 to protect the beaver would be preserved.

Price added, "Sunset legislation passed in 1977 included the 1935 game law. This means that the existing law will be automatically repealed on July 1, 1983, and that we will be without a law for the conservation of our wildlife resources unless we are successful in getting new legislation adopted. With this in mind, our Committee has been working hard to develop a revision that will serve the cause of wildlife conservation well and that will be acceptable to the citizens of North Carolina. These public hearings are the time and place for interested persons to tell us how they feel about the proposed revision."

The meetings will be held according to the following schedule:

--Edenton - Courthouse at 7:30 p.m. on September 26;
--New Bern - Courthouse at 7:30 p.m. on September 27;
--Elizabethtown - Bladen Technical Institute at 7:30 p.m. on September 28;
--Raleigh - Hilton Inn at 4:00 p.m. on September 29;
--Nashville - Courthouse at 7:30 p.m. on October 10;
--Graham - Courthouse at 7:30 p.m. on October 11;
--Albemarle - Courthouse at 7:30 p.m. on October 12;
--Yadkinville - Courthouse at 7:30 p.m. on November 8;
--Morganton - Courthouse at 7:30 p.m. on November 9;
--Asheville - Courthouse at 7:30 p.m. on November 10.

HEALTH TIPS

by The American Medical Association

Our knowledge of medicine, and all of science for that matter, has increased greatly in the last century. But there are times when we take this information explosion for granted and assume that we have always known these things. Sometimes it is interesting to look back at medical folklore to see how far we really have come.

While some of this medical folklore is amusing and quaint some of it was remarkably accurate. For example, the Indians of South America used to chew fever-curing Peruvian bark to treat malaria. Today we use refined quinine derived from the same source. For heart trouble, the English brewed a tea made of the leaves and flower of the foxglove. Today, we use degitalis refined from this plant.

There is, perhaps, no more fertile area of folklore than pregnancy and childbirth. Mothers used to be prohibited from painting and decorating while they were pregnant. This was a real and useful warning because paint in those days contained a great deal of white lead and turpentine. The lead was truly dangerous and the turpentine was nauseating and unpleasant.

Paints today contain very little of either white lead or turpentine to the expectant mother can paint all she wants, even the walls. Contrary to general belief, there is no danger to her in stretching. Nor is there any danger of her causing twists of knots in a baby's umbilical cord by hanging out the wash or by handling rope.

General medical superstitions cover a wide range of diseases, methods of treatment, and materials. Consider:

- A popular treatment for whooping cough consisted of passing the patient through a horse collar three times.

- When a man died of tuberculosis his family, tired of harboring so many cases of the disease, decided to put a stop to it. After the funeral they lingered in the cemetary, lifted the casket, and buried it face down. The belief being that they had ended tuberculosis in that family.

- Greasing the patient was considered an honorable rememedy for any disease of the chest such as a cold, pneumonia or tuberculosis. Some of the popular solutions were skunk's oil, camphorated oil and goose grease. These greases only made the patient messy, smelly and uncomfortable. But those who believed in them said any fool knows the greases cut straight through to the lungs and help to loosen the cough.

Maybe we've come a long way, but then again, maybe we haven't.

RSVP To Sponsor Fiddlers' Convention

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program of Davie, Yadkin, Surry and Stokes counties is sponsoring its second annual Blue Grass and Old Timey Fiddlers' Convention on Saturday, October 21, at Veterans' Park in Mount Airy.

The program will begin at 8:00 p.m.

Admission will be charged, but children under 8 will be admitted free if escorted by someone with a ticket.

More than $1,000 in prizes will be awarded.

Bands interested in competing may write to Dulcy Fackrell, P.O. Box 309, Boonville, N.C. 27011.

For 54 Year Old Walt Boyle, Sr. .....

Swimming – Is The Fountain Of Youth

Walt Boyle Sr. has always been in his own natural element churning through a body of water.

(SECOND OF TWO ARTICLES)

Walt Boyle Sr. of Bermuda Run has never enjoyed the activity of swimming as much as he has enjoyed it during the past year in which he has been involved in the Masters' Swimming Program as a member of the Winston-Salem YMCA Masters' Swimming Team and the state's Tar Heel Masters' Swim Club.

That's saying a lot for a 54-year-old man who started swimming in rain barrels as a very young child living on a ranch in West Texas and later graduated to swimming in rivers, pools and oceans all over the United States and the world while in high school, college, the Marine Corps and just as a private citizen.

And Boyle's joy with the Masters' program does not come solely from the fact that during the past year he has set 8 North Carolina state Masters' freestyle swimming records for men aged 50-54 years and earlier this month finished in the top ten swimmers in the nation in 5 freestyle events at the 1978 AAU National Long Course Masters' Swimming Championship held in Rhode Island.

In a recent interview Boyle elaborated on the reasons for his enthusiasm about the Masters' program.

He explained that the Masters' program is made up of swimmers aged 25-years and older. The swimming classes in the program are in five-year increments and at 54-years-old he is currently swimming at the top of the 50-54-year-old class.

"The Masters is the only sport I know where you look forward to getting older so you can enter a new age class and be several years younger than some of the other persons you are competing against," noted Boyle.

He added, "Of course, the competition is a part of it. I get a kick out of it even though I know I'm eventually going to get beat. It's always a challenge and as I constantly improve on my practice and meet times I just want more."

Another "big bonus" for Boyle from the Masters' program is the sense of comradery present among the program's participants. "I am now swimming in competitive meets all over the country against fellows I swam with or against in high school and college and it's great to see them again and renew old friendships," he said.

Bob Amudson, whom Boyle said "was the fastest swimmer in the world in 1942" and who is currently the captain of the Virginia State Masters' Swim Team, flies to Winston-Salem twice a month just to visit Boyle so the two can practice swimming at the Winston-Salem YMCA.

Boyle also readily admitted that the physical well-being which he derives from the training and competition of the Masters' program is "a big reason" he is so thoroughly involved with the program.

"When I was a lot younger and in the Marine Corps during the Second World War I saw men transfer into the Corps from the French Foreign Legion who were in their 50's and could still outwork and outperform much younger men," he noted.

"Later, when I was with the Marines in the Korean War I watched General 'Chesty' Puller, who was also in his 50's, outwalk, outshoot and outclimb anybody over there and I just looked forward to getting to this age and still being in good shape," explained Boyle.

"Do you know there are men who were captains of their swim teams in high school and college who are now involved with the Masters' program who are swimming faster at age 50 than they did in high school and college," Boyle reported.

He continued, "I think this is incredible what's happening. I think this whole Masters' program is going to have a lot to do with our national welfare and I feel a lot better about our country with this attitude of toughening up mentally and physically."

Boyle theorized that "We're going to have to move away from the t.v. set a little bit if we're going to stay a country."

He pointed out that "High performance can be prolonged and maintained longer than previously thought could be expected."

According to Boyle, recent studies have shown that "A Master swimmer can affect some delaying of the aging process with a regular training program of swimming 2,000 yards a day, five days a week, at an 80-percent intensity."

This "intensity of training" is the "key factor" in comparing aging studies, he said.

"The long-term effects of an 8-year training program have shown only positive results with no adverse effects" and "It is concluded from this study that the majority of Masters' swimmers will show these same aging curve reversals of the physiological factors and a continued high physical work capacity of an untrained person 20 or 30 years younger," reported Boyle.

He cited another study to support his claim that vigorous exercise is beneficial to persons attempting to stay in good physical condition.

"A few years ago, researchers from the University of Pennsylvania studied the circulatory systems of two groups of rats. One group lived in small cages and did not get any exercise. The other group was dropped into buckets of water for several minutes a day," he explained.

"Well, to keep from drowning the rats swam with great gusto," he said.

"Later," noted Boyle, "after a few months of this, both groups of rats were killed and their arteries injected with a latex substance which became solid, making a cast of the circulatory systems" and, not surprisingly, "when dissected out and weighed the casts from the swimmers showed greater development of arteries in the heart and the volume of the circulatory system was much greater."

What is the moral to this study? "We should all jump into buckets of water every day and avoid the University of Pennsylvania," exclaimed Boyle.

Proper dietary habits is another important factor in staying in good physical condition, Boyle said.

"It's important to get enough vitamin and mineral supplements every day and after a swimming meet you should increase your intake of potassium, calcium and magnesium," he said.

And a reduction in the intake of sugar is essential for good health, Boyle said.

"Be realistic about your sugar intake and don't go overboard with it," he commented. "A little sugar or honey on the oatmeal is fine and won't hurt most of us a bit...The problem is excess sugar. Putting sugar on your strawberries or grapefruit–that's too much!"

"You don't need to eliminate all sugar, just most if it," he reasoned.

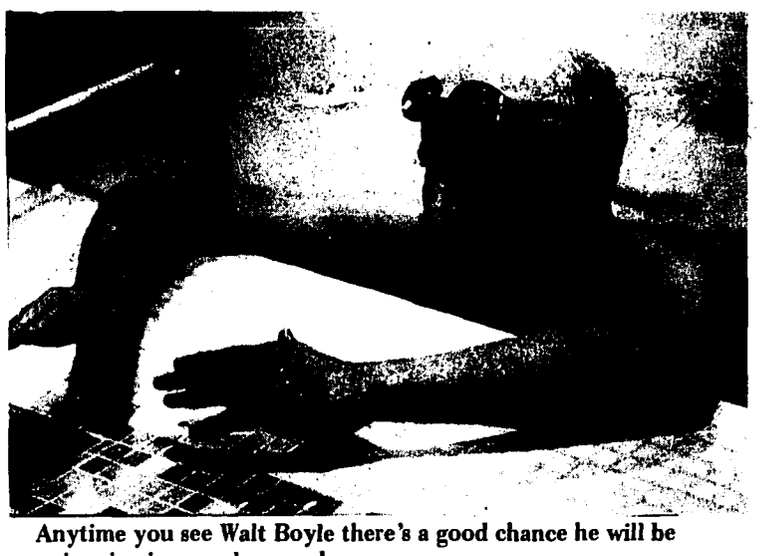

And training and rest are two essential factors in preparing for a competitive swimming meet, Boyle said.

Boyle backs up his philosophies of physical well-being by training at a pace that would put almost anybody, except

Do You Know?

For best results, canned pickles should be stored in a dark, dry, cool place where there will be no danger of freezing, says Dr. Nadine Tope, agricultural extension foods and nutrition specialists at North Carolina State University.

Freezing may crack the jars or break the seals and let in bacteria that cause spoilage.

Protecting the jars from light will prevent bleaching and possible deterioration of flavor, says Dr. Tope.

Pickle Color

Using the wrong pots or pans for heating pickling liquids can change the color of the pickles.

According to Dr. Nadine Tope, agricultural extension foods and nutrition specialist at North Carolina State University, copper, brass, galvanized or iron utensils may react with acids or salts and forms undersirable compounds as well as the color change in the pickles.

For best results, she recommends using utensils made of unchipped enamelware, stainless steel, aluminum or glass.

Choosing Cucumbers

The best pickles comes from cucumbers that are just-picked fresh.

If they can't be used immediately they should be refrigerated or spread out where they will be well ventilated and cool, says Jane Aitchison, agricultural extension foods and nutrition specialist at North Carolina State University.

Cucumbers are one vegetable that deteriorate rapidly, particularly at room temperature.

FISH TALES

BILL ROBERTSON
KURE PIER

At every fishing spot along the Carolina coasts, there is a discussion topic that could be generally entitled: "What's Happened to the Fishing?"

The simple answer is...nothing...nothing at all. Fishing is continuing the same as always. There are probably as many fish being caught today...but fewer being caught per person.

Let's look at coastal fishing historically. In the 20's and 30's, fishing was usually very good because there were fewer fishermen, fewer facilities, not as many cars or roads. And then came World War II.

From 1940 through 1946, coastal fishing came to an absolute standstill. Less than 1 percent of the sports or commercial fishing being done prior to the war was being done at all during the war. On Kure Pier, for instance, fishing was done only in daylight hours and an armed sentry was stationed on the end of the pier for the duration. Burning ships could be seen from Kure Beach. Offshore submarines were occasionally spotted by small boatmen.

By the oceans were abnormally full of fish. Two mating fish in 1946 could easily have produced 100,000 fish by 1946. It was probably the greatest fish growth explosion in modern times, held in check only by nature's selection of the species.

But here was still a period of transition yet to come before normal fishing could resume by the populance. All fishing equipment had to be rebuilt. Boats had to be repaired and replaced. The returning warriors had to find their place in society, marry their wives, get settled in their nobs, built their houses, have their children...all before there was time for play.

On the national scene, the factories had to be reconverted to consumer goods. The automobiles had to be built; the roads repaired and constructed; the gears of an operating nation running smoothly again...all before there was time for play.

In 1952, I bought Kure Pier because I thought it had a great product and wasn't advertized enough. With a $20 typewriter and a $100 camera, I started telling the carolina fishermen about the coastal fishing, particularly at Kure Pier. Aycock Brown was doing the same thing from Dare County.

The word spread and the people were ready to play some and fish a lot. And the ocean was full of fish. Catches in the 50's and early 60's were really astronomical.

The number of fishermen increased as the population soared. Piers jumped from 7 in the Carolinas in 1952 to 65 today. Commercial boats improved from rough scows operated by hand to sophisticated equipent operated by push button. Pleasure boats mushroomed. Charter boats doubled and redoubled. Head boats got larger and larger. Shrimpers dragged the bottoms so many times they have destroyed the pastures of the sea. In the early 50's, you seldom saw a boat at sea. Last summer, on a calm day, I counted 66 within eyesight.

So...to return to our original question: "What's happened to the fishing?" People...people is what has happened to the fishing. I dare say there are as many fish caught today as ever before (excluding 1952-1965). But...the catches per person are down because there are more ways to fish and more people fishing.

A point to remember: Fishing with a rod and reel is the most inefficient manner in which you can fish.

Just think--you go to the end of the pier, nothing but water as far as you can see in any direction. You cast in a bait as big as a dime and expect a fish to find it. To me, it's not a question of why they don't bite. It's a mystery they ever do bite.

There must be a lot of fish out there!

Girls Volleyball Team To Play In Thomasville

The Davie High girls' volleyball team will travel to Thomasville, September. 28, to play matches against both Thomasville and Asheboro.

The matches will be played at 4 p.m.

At present, the Davie girls are sporting a 3-3 season record.

Volleyball coach Aileen Steelman pointed out that Asheboro is currently in first place in the North Piedmont Conference in the girls' volleyball race and Davie is in second place.

"We need two wins at Thomasville to be able to move closer to first place," said Steelman.

Softball Tournament Aids Gerald Markland

A men's benefit softball tournament sponsored by the Fork Recreation Center for Gerald Markland ended September 17 with a team sponsored by auctioneer Johnny Foster winning the tournament.

Ninteen teams played in the two-week tournament.

Second place in the tournament was captured by the Foster Drug team and third place went to the Brown Bros. Lumber team.

Foy Bailey, who organized the tournament, reported that $1,000 in proceeds were raised by the tournament to help pay for some of Markland's medical expenses he has incurred because of a serious illness.

Sportsmen Meet Set For Farmington Dragway October 7th & 8th

Farmington Dragway will be the scene of the International Hot Rod Associations final National Title Series Sportsman points meet of the season. Plans have been finalized for the event to take place on Oct 7 and 8 with over 200 top contestants expected to enter.

This is the second such event staged at Farmington this season with the last National Title Series in July attracting over 5,000 to the track. Included will be the super charged dragsters and Funny cars that reached speeds in excess of 160 mph in the 5 second elapsed time range.

Already on the entry list are Butch Osmon of Leavitsburg, Ohio and Dough Newby of Norfolk, Va in the dragster division. Osmon is currently leading in the national points standings of IHRA. Funny cars entrants include Deroy Worley of Norfolk, Va in a Mustang, Mark King, Virginia Beach, Va, in a 500 cubic inch hemi Corvette and Ronnie Midgget along with Lee Papas both in Chevy Funny Cars. Several national titles may be decided during the event with Butch Osmon expected to clinch the International Sportsman title with a Farmington victory.

Another interesting battle is holding forth in the super-stock division with Mike Boyles of King and Roger Bennefield of Greer, SC battling it out for first place. Boyles is a frequent winner at Farmington.

During the last national title series at Farmington several world records were set. A purse of $25,000 will be at stake.

Faulty Brakes Are Charged In Fatality

A Winston-Salem man charged in connection with a motor vehicle fatality near here May 15 was found guilty of having improper brakes in Davie County District Court Monday.

Rufus D. Joyce Jr.; had originally been charged with death by vehicle after his car collided with a van driven by Susan B. Keever of Rt. 5 Mocksville at the intersection of I-40 and US 601. Miss Keever, 23, died instantly.

In other court action Monday, Ernest Cranford of Davie County, was sentenced to a year in jail for robbing a coin-operated machine at a shopping center.

Cranford appealed the sentence to Davie County Superior Court.

Davie Loses To Thomasville; Lexington Here Friday Night

Thomasville's powerful Bulldogs rolled over Davie County's War Eagles, 27-0, in a North Piedmont Conference high school football game at Thomasville last Friday night.

It was the fourth shootout of the season for the Bulldogs who share first place in the conference chase with Lexington, both teams having 3-0 conference marks.

It was the only setback of the season for the War Eagles who are now 1-1 in the conference and 3-1 overall. The War Eagles take on Lexington at the Davie High Stadium this Friday night at 8:00 p.m.

Thomasville, ranked second in the state's 3-A ranks, exploded for 20 points in the first half to settle the issue and pick up its fifth straight victory.

Fullback Sterling Welborn led the assault. He raced 79 yards for the first touchdown and Ikey Davis kicked the extra point.

A few minutes later James Burton scored on a 34-yard run. The third Thomasville score came on a 52-yard punt return by Davis.

Thomasville's final touchdown of the night was made in the last period when Welborn churned over from the ten.

Welborn rushed 16 times for 227 yards and Burton had 69 yards on nine carries.

Brent Burton was the top gainer for the War Eagles with 41 yards on 12 carries.

Davie County picked up 188 yards and held a 10-8 edge in first downs. Thomasville rushed for 348 yards and passed for 23.

Larry Lanier Wins Lexington Road Race

On Saturday, September 23, Larry Lanier of Advance won the Lexington Street Scene 10,000 Meter Road Race. He covered the hilly course in a time of 31:43. The second place finisher was Ed Stenberg of Winston-Salem who is a former Duke All-American cross-country runner. The 6 mile race was sponsored by Zimmerman's and the Lexington YMCA.

Larry Lanier

Lanier received a trophy and an $85.00 gift certificate for his first place finish. Other Davie County runners competing in the race were Taylor Slye, Tom Stare, Joyce Call, and Chuck Tomlinson (now of Salisbury).

Davie High School Girl Netters Score Victory

Davie County's girls handed North Rowan a 7-2 loss in a North Piedmont Conference tennis match played at the North courts Monday afternoon.

The results:

"Rabbit Thief" In Cooleemee

There's a "rabbit thief" loose in Cooleemee...

And Margaret Jacobs would like for whoever took her bunny to "come back and get it's food...I just bought it a new bag and I'll leave it near the empty cage."

The rabbit was apparently taken last Monday night while she visited with a sick friend in the hospital. The door to the little pen was shut and latched and it is highly unlikely the bunny let himself out and shut the door back.

Possibly the same thief also took a rabbit from it's cage at the home of Mrs. Mary Cranfill, who lives nearby...And left much worse than it's food. Mary's rabbit had a litter of little bunnies who are now without a mother to feed them.

Rabbits are not so scarce in Davie County, but what anyone wanting one badly enough could easily find one. In fact, Margaret and Mary would much rather have given theirs away (with food and babies) than to have them taken under such cruel circumstances.

"Thomasville Has Truly A Great High School Football Team", Says Coach Kennedy

By Doug Livengood

"Thomasville has got really and truly great high school football team and we would have just had to have had an unbelievable night to be in the ballgame and we just didn't," observed Davie High head coach Joey Kennedy after the Bulldogs defeated his War Eagles, 27-0, at Thomasville last Friday night.

Kennedy noted that "if we could have taken a 3-minute stretch out of the second quarter when they scored 20 points the final score would have been only 7-0."

He reported that the first two times Davie had the ball during the game "we moved it really well and probably should have got something on the board."

And, according to the Davie coach, "When the game got really rough and dirty in the last half we started hitting better."

Kennedy remarked that defensive end Kenny Moore and defensive safety back Steve Fleming had "good defensive games" for Davie against Thomasville.

Despite a lot of hard hitting in the game last Friday, coach Kennedy reported that his squad did not receive any serious injuries from the contest.

For the first time this season Davie's prospective all-state offensive tackle, Rex Allen, who has been injuried in pre-season, played in a game and Kennedy said Allen seemed "to hold up pretty well."

Regarding the Thomasville defeat, Kennedy said he believed "our kids saw how it was like playing against the best and I think they learned something from it and I believe Thomasville respects us as hitters."

Kenny Moore
....good on defense

Steve Fleming
...good defensive game

This Friday night's opponent is always tough Lexington.

"You've got to remember that Lexington is the defending North Piedmont Conference champions and they are tied with Thomasville for first place," said Kennedy.

"They've got really good talent and quickness as usual," he added.

Kennedy mentioned that Lexington "has a great sophomore back in a kid named McIntosh and they are led in the line by two college prospects, David Rice and Ed Timberlake, who play on both offense and defense."

The DEACONS by Pat Gainey

A true life fairy tale. The names have been changed to protect the identities of the guilty.

Allied Press collegiate football editor Hasty Nicholson sits at his desk in a plush corporate office building in New York carefully studying upcoming football games from various parts of the country. He analyzes the teams, their records, the current injury reports, all the data he can put his hands on. After careful study he sends word over the teletype to all the Allied Press subscribers, newspapers, television and radio stations all over the country — "Let the word go forth and be known across the land, Hasty Hicholson predicts LSU 40, Wake Forest 0 in Baton Rouge this Saturday night."

And the word seeps to all parts of the land; local columnists and sportscasters take Hasty's word and sow it across the fertile minds of those who scurry for bits and pieces of information about every game everywhere every weekend and to those who might just bet the farm, the stock, and the barrel if the spread is right.

And inevitably the players on the two teams hear of Hasty's prediction and it settles in their minds. One team to ease off and relax despite constant warnings by coaches and team captains. The other team begins to feel insulted, belittled, ridiculed, puzzled and perhaps riled about the predicted disaster.

And then the fans. When Wake Forest played LSU down in Baton Rouge last Saturday night, the fans came to Tiger Stadium hungry for a win, a BIG WIN by a BIG SCORE to boost the ratings in the national polls.

"We might get a hundred tonight, maybe two hundred," slurred one fan entering the stadium. "The Tiger's gonna roar tonight!"

And there were those who leaned back and pitied the team in black and gold, empathized with their most certainly hopeless situation. "I just hope they don't get too many people hurt. You gonna feel for 'em. What if you were their coach?"

And there was the rookie reporter seeking the comaradarie of veterans of the Tiger Stadium press box.

"Where's this team from anyway?" he asked aloud with a laugh and a slap on the back of another reporter.

And so it went last Saturday night at Tiger Stadium in Baton Rouge as the Deacons met the tenth ranked LSU Tigers in what one national writer had termed "the third worst mismatch of the season."

A Baton Rouge television reporter, seizing the 40-0 prediction that had been printed nationwide, went a step farther. On Thursday before the game he predicted the score would be "'L'S'U 68, Wake Forest 14."

The fans were hungry. And when 10 p.m. central time rolled in they were miffed. LSU 13, Wake Forest 11.

A loss for Wake Forest and a win for the tenth ranked Tigers. But as the players left the field the Tigers were roundly booed by their own faithful and the Deacons became the recipients of a standing ovation at their end of the stadium.

Amid all the wild predictions and the disappointment is a point. Hasty can continue, undoubtedly will, to make his predictions. But if he gets the chance to read this column I hope he'll somehow get the point that predicting a score is hazardous to the health of everyone involved ... fan, player, coach, reporter.

Pick a winner if you want to, Hasty, but you can take those scores and add it to whatever you normally indulge in on prediction day. Go ahead and pick the winners, but ask people who believed "LSU 40, Wake Forest 0" what they thought of your predictions last Sunday morning.

Brushy Mountain Apple Festival Set For October 7th

This steam engine will be fired-up at the festival by Ray Lunsford. It is owned by Gene Linney.

Charlie Swaim is with one of his many copper stills. This one is willed to the Wilkes Community College. One of these will be on display October 7th.

The first Brushy Mountain Apple Festival will be held Saturday, October 7th, on the Alpine Village Shopping Center site on U.S. 421, about two miles west of the Wilkesboros.

While its purpose is to promote this year's Brushy Mountain apple crop, the festival also will feature old-fashioned cooking, arts and crafts, and entertainment.

The festival is sponsored by the Brushy Mountain Ruritan Club. Numerous other Ruritan clubs, civic and church groups are participating too, said Steve Forrest of the festival committee.

The festival will be on two levels graded for the shopping center. Two horse-drawn wagons will take visitors from one level to the other throughout the day.

Forrest gave this guide to the festival:

People will enter and park at the bottom level.

They will be greeted by none other than Johnny Appleseed. He is William Kuensel, a local teacher who frequently done his Appleseed costume to play the role.

He and others will be giving each child attending an apple, courtesy of the Brushy Mountain Apple Growers Cooperative.

An auction in which "anyone can bring anything" to sell for a fee also will be on the bottom level.

On the top level, visitors will have a wide choice of food prepared by various clubs: Wilkes County chicken barbecue, old-fashioned Brunswick stew cooked in a huge, open kettle, fried apple pies from a wood cook stove and hamburgers and the like from concession wagons.

Apples will be for sale at $4 to $6 a bushel.

Visitors will be able to see apples going into cider press and will be able to buy the freshly made cider. They also will see molasses being made. The molasses will be for sale. Honey also will be sold.

An authentic copper still will be displayed by Charlie Swain, described by Forrest as one of Wilkes' most colorful characters.

An encampment of eight Confederate soldiers will re-create the Civil War.

Among the crafts being demonstrated will be spinning and carding of wool, black powder gunsmithing, splitting oak and making split-oak baskets, caning and pottery and stained-glass making.

Bluegrass bands will provide music throughout the day.

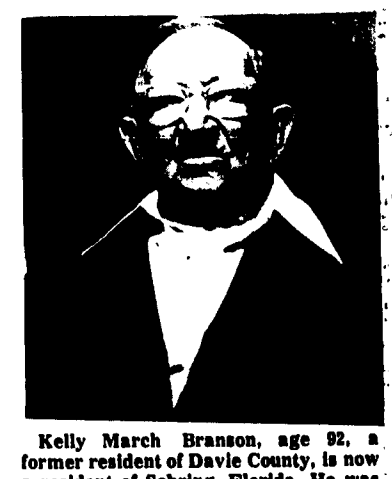

An apply pie contest will be held to find who can bake the best pie.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lowe are the festival's marshals. Lowe also is a well-known Brushy Mountain storyteller and apple grower.

A friendship quilt also will be made during the festival. People will be invited to add a square to the quilt.

Connie Robinson is standing with a red delicious apple tree. 80 percent crop this year, an excellent year. We need some cool nights to get the color in the apples. The Brush Mountain Apple Co-op has already packed over 50,000 bushels with 100,000 expected", he said.

Kelly March Branson, age 92, a former resident of Davie County, is now a resident of Sebring, Florida. He was visited recently by his granddaughter, Nancy Cohen White. He was born in March 1886, son of John William Branson and Mary Jane Wood Branson. His father was born April 29, 1853 and died August 15, 1942. His mother was born August 12, 1857 and died October 15, 1932. They were residents of the Bailey Chapel Community of Davie County. Accompanying Mrs. White to Sebring, Florida for the visit were her aunt, Edna Eaton; mother, Annie B. Cohen; and brother, Juan Wallace Cohen.

Fires Reported

Fires reported in Davie County during the past week included:

September 24, about 6:34 p.m., the Jerusalem VFD answered a call with a tanker to assist in a Rowan County fire on Dooley Road.

September 24, about 6:42 p.m., the County Line VFW answered a call to assist the Jerusalem department in a Rowan County fire.

September 25, about 3:07 p.m., the Smith Grove VFD answered a call to a house fire at the Frost residence on Boger Road.

N.C. Museum Of History Kicks Off Membership Campaign

The North Carolina Museum of History Associates kicked off their statewide 1978 Membership Campaign on Thursday, September 21 with a coffee given by First Lady Mrs. James B. Hunt, Jr. at the Executive Mansion.

The Associates are a volunteer and financial support group for the State Museum of History on East Jones Street in Raleigh. The Museum maintains its own collection and exhibits as well as 23 historic sites around the state.

According to Mrs. H. A Underwood, State Membership Chairman, a primary concern of the Associates is that antiques and artifacts which tell the state's history are lost or sold outside the state because the Museum receives only $4,000 annually for acquisitions. The Associates use membership dues to purchase North Carolina artifacts when they come on the market.

More than 250 campaign workers arrived at the Mansion from all over North Carolina. The group enjoyed quiche, shrimp tartlets, fresh fruit and other delicacies there before walking across the street to the Museum for a training session and distribution of membership materials.

Museum Administrator John Ellington and Associate Executive Director Eve Blades used slides to illustrate the Museum and programs of the Museum Associates. The volunteers saw a preview showing of a television spot filmed by Honorary Membership Chairman, Andy Griffith. TV and film star Griffith paraphrased his famous recording, "What it was, was football" by saying "What it was, was history, and where it is, is our North Carolina Museum of History." He urged North Carolinians to join him as a member of the Associates.

During their session at the Museum, campaign workers were among the first to view the Associates most recent acquisition -- a rare 18th Century North Carolina-made corner cupboard which the Museum may loan to a state historic site.

Associates membership money is also used for "Museum Days" which take the collection and staff curators to communities across the state, catalogues for the exhibits, an annual community museum award of $1,000, and a traveling exhibit system to recycle past exhibits and make them available to small museums.

The Associates set a campaign goal of 2,225 new members. Memberships are available ranging from $5 for a student to $1,000 for corporate benefactors. Members receive invitations to exhibit previews, workshops, discounts, special programs, and a newsletter.

The state is divided into districts for the membership drive, each with a district chairman, county chairman, and campaign volunteers. District chairman for this area is Martha McNair of Winston-Salem. County chairmen are Linda Reeder of Mocksville and Joan Cotterill of Advance. Other volunteers who were at the Raleigh meeting are: Polly Van Hoy, Valerie Slodgick, Doris Frye, Judy Tilley, Vera Angell and Suzanne Stovall.

The most common surname in the United States is Smith. Close to 2.5 million Smiths reside here.

Bake Sale At Farmington

Farmington Day Care Center will sponsor a bake sale at the Center, Saturday, September 30, from 10 am until 3 p.m. A rummage sale will also be in progress at the same time. The Center is located on the Farmington Road.

The public is urged to come out and help support the center.

Gasoline Consumption

Motor vehicles in the U.S. consume about 328 million gallons of gas each day, according to the Federal Highway Administration.

Cedar Creek

A thought for the day..."Let us not be weary in well-doing; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not,"

We have had some changable weather at times. However the cool night are appreciated very much. Sunday here at Cedar Creek was a pleasant and enjoyable day at church.

The worship devotionals were opened by Bros. McKennedy Eaton and James Horn. The pastor Dr. Hay brought a spiritual message.

Some of our families that haven't been in quite a while were back at service and we were all happy to have them back. We also had a guest from Winston-Salem attend service.

Mrs. Ann Campbell of Winston-Salem was here along with Mrs. Daisy Tatum who have been shut-in recently and have been unable to come.

The members here at Cedar Creek have enjoyed worshiping with our sister churches in their annual homecoming revival meetings. It has been a blessing to all of us.

Callers Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scott were Mr. and Mrs. John Scott of Charlotte. John is the brother of Arthur.

Mrs. William Eaton had overnight guests last Thursday, Mrs. Mary Neeley of Cooleemee. It was a joy to have her.

Odell Eaton and son Tracey and Mrs. Ann Campbell called Sunday at the home of their mother and sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scott are all smiles over a new grandson born to Mr. and Mrs. Gene Scott of Winston-Salem recently.

We really missed little George Scott Jr. Sunday. His sister said he was home with flu.

Mrs. William Campbell and boys of Winston-Salem called Sunday at the home of their mother Mrs. Lucy Tatum. Mrs. Odell Eaton and Mrs. Grace Ridgell were in Winston-Salem recently. Mrs. Lucy Tatum and Mrs. Williams visited Ms. Katee Sutzer last Sunday who was a patient in the Davie County Hospital. We are glad to know that she is recuperating at home now. I'm sure her neighbors and friends will be happy to know.

Darrin Eaton visited Junior, Paula, Von and Lana Transou recently and had a good time. He also visited Tony Tatum and Tracey Eaton.

Film At Cooleemee Baptist

ECRF Films presents its newest release "The Power of Prayer", a color motion picture to be shown at the First Baptist Church of Cooleemee on Sunday, October 1, at 7:30 p.m.

Why should we pray? How should we pray? For what should we pray? What is unanswered prayer? These are questions man has asked since God first spoke to him—questions that must be answered!

The opening moments of "The Power of Prayer" are spent in Isreal, examining thousands of years of Jewish history and how they pertain to prayer.

The film features some of the most well-respected, Christian spokesmen in America; such as, Dr W.A. Criswell, Dr. John F. Walvoord, Josh and Dottie McDowell, Chaplain Ray and Dr. and Mrs. Howard Hendricks. These men and women will be sharing what the Bible says as to the how and why of prayer. They'll also share their own personel experiences of the times of victory, frustration and confusion.

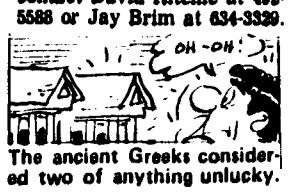

The public is cordially invited.

Coon Club To Be Discussed

A meeting will be held at William R. Davie Fire Department, Friday, September 29th, at 8 p.m. to discuss the forming of a U.K.-C. Coon Club for Davie County. Anyone interested is asked to please attend.

Following the meeting, refreshments will be served.

For more information contact David Ritchie at 492-5588 or Jay Brim at 634-3339.

The White House Is Seeking Candidates For Fellowships

The President's Commission on White House Fellowships is seeking highly qualified candidates for its 1979-80 competition. Fourteen to nineteen positions are open for this extraordinary but highly competitive opportunity.

President Lyndon B. Johnson established the program in 1964 to give outstanding younger Americans firsthand experience in the process of governing of the nation. The White House Fellowship program is a nonpartisan effort to draw in a few of the brightest and most promising people from all over the country to work at a unique level in the Federal government for a year.

Presidents Nixon, Ford, and Carter have continued the Fellowship program with a high level of support. President Carter has removed the specific age limitations. The program is now open to all those who are early in their careers. Fellows have been chosen from a wide variety of careers and professions including law, medicine, teaching, state and local government and the arts.

The Fellows serve for one year, usually as a special assistant to the Vice President, a member of the President's Cabinet, or to a presidential assistant. The Fellows may be involved in the development of special programs, assist in speech writing, engage in interdepartmental task forces, or do other tasks assigned by their principals. The knowledge that each Fellow gains in his work assignment is shared with the other Fellows during the year-long educational program which is conducted in addition to the work assignments and provides the Fellows an opportunity to meet with government leaders journalists, and other related to government.

The Commission is looking for persons who will be the future leaders of their chosen career or profession and of their community. Applicants should possess enough credentials of accomplishments to show their potential for their leadership and of community or professional contributions.

The competition for the Fellowships is open to all United States citizens. There are no occupational, age, sex, racial, or religious restrictions. However, current employees of the Federal government are not eligible with the exception of career military personnel.

For additional information or an application send a postcard with name and address to the President's Commission on White House Fellowships, 1900 E. Street NW, Room 1308, Washington, D.C. 20415 or call (202) 653-6263. Requests for applications must be postmarked no later than November 15, 1978. The deadline for receipt of completed applications is December 1, 1978.

Walt Boyle

an Olympic competitor, to shame.

He is the national accounts sales director for a large corporation and travels extensively throughout the eastern United States. He leaves home early Monday mornings and does not return until late Friday nights of each week.

But his heavy travel schedule does not deter Boyle from following his rigid training regimen.

"I make up my own work schedules and I know the location of every major college swimming pool in the country so that I can be in certain locations to use the pools for swimming and training," he admitted.

He noted, however, that he has "a little trouble" when he travels in Tennessee finding pools to use for his practice swims when on the road.

Boyle "usually" gets up from bed very early in the mornings and is in a pool swimming "by 6 o'clock." He continues to work out until 8 or 9 o'clock.

"I start out each morning by swimming 1,650 meters as a warmup. Then I do two or three 500-meter runs, do some work on my swim kick and then end up with some 200-meter runs," he reported.

He explained that his swimming schedule was based on what he is training for at any given time, but that he "always swims more than I have to so the grind of the meets won't seem so bad, at least psychologically."

In addition to his normal swimming exercises, Boyle does "situps in units of 100" and also jumping jacks and squats every day. If he can manage it he "might even do some running or bicycling during the day."

If for some reason he is not near a pool or does not have the time to take a practice swim during a particular day Boyle has a weight training program, which the swimming coach for the University of Delaware set up for him, that he can do right in his hotel or motel room.

"I carry my weights with me everywhere I go. This is an equivalent weight program which compensates for missing a long swim," he said.

Boyle does "overheads" with the weights in units of 25-30 and is capable of doing almost 40 units per hour of these overheads. He also does special weight exercises for strengthening his back and arms.

To Boyle it is "most important" that he get the required amount of exercise every day because "if you lay off for over 72 hours you start to lose your tone," he said.

He would like to see more emphasis placed on the beneficial aspects which can be derived from swimming for almost every member of society.

"I think the emphasis should be placed on the lifetime sports, such as swimming," he remarked.

"Swimming is a sport the whole family can do and be interested in. We need more pools in our public schools to train our young people and to be also used by the community for family nights," said Boyle.

He continued, "Swimming is also a good therapy for rehabilitation programs" because "you can tailor different strokes for different folks" to overcome the bad effects of auto accidents, heart attacks, pregnancies, etc.

And whatever problem you might have psychologically or emotionally swimming can be "a tranquilizer" to bring some peace to the psyche, said Boyle.

Finally, swimming is important because it serves a safety purpose for being able to rescue persons from drowning in emergency situations, he concluded.

What does Boyle hope to achieve in the future in the Masters' Swimming Program.

"I'll feel very comfortable by just staying in the top ten in the country in my age group and with constantly improving my style and techniques," he reported.

At present, Boyle is training for the Masters' AAU Sun Belt Short Course Regional Championships to be held in Oak Ridge, Tennessee in October. In April of next year, he is planning to travel to Honolulu, Hawaii to participate in the National AAU Short Course Championships for Masters' swimmers.

It seems safe to predict that whatever competitive swimming meets Walt Boyle Sr. will participate in in the future that he will certainly give a good accounting of himself.

Dale Brown Heads Local Campaign For St. Jude Hospital

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is pleased to announce the appointment of Dale Brown as Chairperson for the fall door to door march in Mocksville.

The campaign will take place in late October and the proceeds will be used to continue the work of St. Jude Hospital. Founded by entertainer Danny Thomas sixteen years ago, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is devoted to painstaking medical research and care of children stricken with catastrophic diseases, including Leukemia, Hodgkin's disease and other forms of cancer.

St. Jude's is non-sectarian, interracial and completely free of charge to patients. Once a patient is admitted, the hospital provides total medical care and, when needed, also provides transportation and lodging for parent and child.

St. Jude's is the largest childhood cancer research center in the world. The work done there benefits not only the hospital's patients, but children everywhere because the results of this research are shared with physicians worldwide. Everyone can now share in the optimism of a growing "Cure Rate" because of the work at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

St. Jude's receives assistance from federal grants, but over 60 percent of its support comes from volunteer contributions. In October, the residents of this community will have an opportunity to help children live throughout the world by giving what they can to St. Jude's when a volunteer comes to their doors?

Charlotte Funderburke --

A Summer In Turkey

By Marlene Benson

This past summer proved to be exciting as well as most educational for three Davie County girls who spent two and a half months living with a family in another country.

This week we feature Miss Charlotte Funderburke, a Davie High Student who spent the summer in Bursa, Turkey.

"I was more homesick during the three days of orientation in New York than those months in Turkey", said Charlotte. . ."because we were not allowed to go anywhere."

The biggest adjustment was the first week or so. "The language barrier was the greatest problem," she explained. . .I hardly knew anything they were saying. However in just a short time, there were more and more ways of communicating."

Sponsored by American Field Service, Charlotte learned a great deal about the lives and customs of the Turkish people.

Her Turkish family, the Yildiz family, lives in Bursa, the fifth largest city in the country. Charlotte says they were quite wealthy, as far as the Turkish customs go. They have an apartment in the city, in which she only spent one night, and also a two story summer home on the Marmara Sea where they spent the remainder of her stay.

Charlotte says in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Yildiz and her three Turkish sisters, ages 21, 19, and 8, the summer home was also occupied by aunts, uncles and cousins. "There was no less than ten people for supper every night," she said.

"The Turkish people were amazed that most people in America live in houses (not apartments)."

Food was quite different in Turkey and was always cooked in olive oil. They eat a lot of egg plant and bell peppers and much of the meat is either lamb, beef or fish. Charlotte says she learned to eat most of their food,but the way they prepared the fish made it impossible for her to try. "The only bad thing is when you look at the fish and it is looking back at you — They cook it whole, with head, eyes, fins and all."

The biggest difference in Turkey, in comparison to America, is the land. Charlotte says there is very little or no grass in most areas. "Only the very rich or maybe some motels have grass - and they keep the sprinklers going all day. It only rained twice during her entire visit. There are no forests, only olive trees or fruit trees."

The biggest entertainment is "friends sitting around together - talking." Charlotte says there was a motel next door to the summer home and the family would get all dressed up in the latest fashions to just "sit around the patio and talk."

During the more than two months she was in Turkey, she says she only saw one movie and the people watch very little television. They have no color t.v., but some of the shows were the same as here. They were usually broadcast in the Turkish language and very few were ever in English.

The people never drink coffee with their meal, Charlotte says they have it afterwards. And it is never perked, but boiled in the grounds with sugar already in it. They also have only hot tea and their deserts were always fruit.

Teenagers in Turkey are never allowed to date. If they go anywhere with a boy, she says they are never alone. Her twin cousins, who lived in the summer house with them, were 23 years of age and had never dated. "Parents always, or most always, arrange the weddings, she said. . .The girls don't like it, but that is the custom."

Charlotte attended three weddings while there which are quite different. They are never held in the church, or mosque as they are called. They are all of Moslem faith and they usually rent a place for the wedding. The wedding only takes about five minutes, she said, just the formality of signing a document. The reception is the big thing. . .with loud music, dancing and everyone seems to enjoy it more than the bridal couple."

Just before Charlotte left, her Turkish family began a month-long fast on August 5, which would continue until September 5. Because of religious beliefs they would fast from 4 a.m. until 8 p.m. daily. This means they neither ate nor drank anything. "They would not even go swimming for fear of drinking some water accidentally", she said. And of course, living on the sea, swimming was one of their greatest activities. Charlotte only participated in the fast one day and her Turkish sisters did not fast either. . .Her Turkish parents, however, were very devout.

During this period of fasting, Charlotte said a drummer would go through the streets at 3 a.m. every day waking everyone to get up and eat, before beginning the fast at 4 a.m.

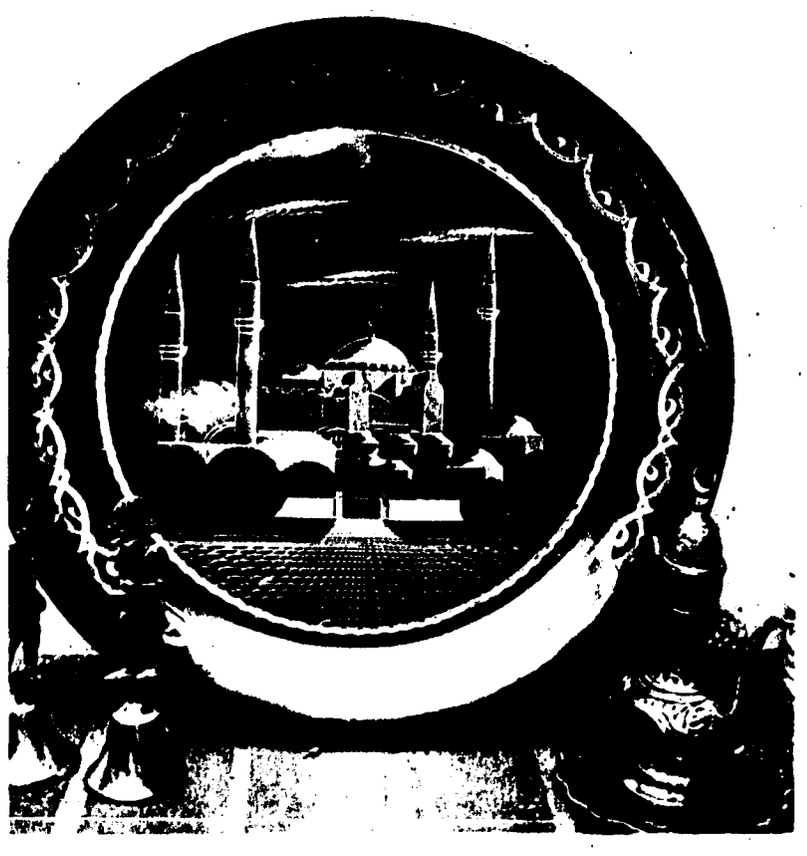

During her visit, Charlotte said she toured parts of Istanbul, but did not get the opportunity to see nearly as much of the country as she would have liked to. She seemed very fond of her Turkish family and although theirs is a completely different life from which she is accustomed, she enjoyed her visit and shall remember their hospitality for many years to come.

SWIRLING MAELSTROM of a hurricane spins over the Gulf of Mexico. Scientists working in a broad field called weather modification are trying to check hurricanes and hailstorms, encourage snow and rainfall, and banish fog over airports. In some cases good results have been achieved by seeding clouds with substances such as silver-iodide particles or dry ice. In rainmaking, flares containing silver iodide particles are sometimes dropped into clouds. Each of the trillions of particles provides a nucleus for surrounding moisture to freeze on, forming an ice crystal. The crystal falls earthward as a snowflake until it reaches warm air, where it melts and becomes a rain drop. Tests conducted in Florida give indications that seeding has given good results.

Little-Noted Arctic Islands Assume Importance

By William J. O'Neill
National Geographic News Service

Shrouded in the darkness of Arctic night for four months of every year, the archipelago lay unnoticed and unclaimed for centuries after Dutch explorer Willem Barents stopped there in 1596 and gave it the name of Spitsbergen, "Land of Pointed Mountains." Its Norwegian name, Svalbard, means, "Land With Forzen Shores." Both are accurate.

For years the island group that stretches to within 650 miles of the North Pole was visited only by walrus hunters, sealers, and whalers. Scientists came later, followed by polar explorers who used the islands as a jumping-off place.

Now, despite the islands' rugged ice-and-snow-covered terrain, they are attracting international interest.

"To the Soviet Union, they pose a potential security problem," Gordon Young writes in the August National Geographic. "To the rest of the oil-hungry world, they hold promise of easing the prospective energy shortage."

Norway has administered the islands since 1925, when it assumed sovereignty under a treaty that bars their use for military purposes. The pact also gives 41 nations rights to exploit the area's resources, but only Norway and the Soviet Union do so.

Both mine coal on the big island of Spitsbergen. The island's 1,000 Norwegians and 2,000 Soviet citizens live in separate communities, but join in folk dances or the "Svalbard Olympics"--chess matches, table-tennis tournaments, and ski races.

The town of Longyearbyen is named for John Munro Longyear, an American who started a coal mine there in 1906. A Norwegian firm bought him out 10 years later. Today the company town and its mine are operated by the Norwegian government.

The Soviet Union and Norway each take up to 450,000 tons a year from Svalbard's mines, but coal is not the archipelago's only asset. The importance of the islands reaches beyond their 24,000 square miles, roughly the size of West Virginia, and extends to the surrounding seas.

Murmansk and its military bases lie just 720 miles southeast. Soviet Navy submarines need the ice-free passage between Svalbard and Norway's mainland to reach the Atlantic.

The two neighbors disagree over their oceanic boundary. Norway maintains that the demarcation line from the mainland to the Pole should curve around Svalbard, dividing the Barents Sea in half.

The U.S.S.R. argues for a relatively straight line from the Russian-Norwegian border to the Pole. This would cut closer to the islands, giving the Soviet Union jurisdiction over an additional 60,000 square miles of the ocean.

Then there is the question of who will have rights to the oil that geologists believe is in the region. Several nations have drilled on Svalbard's islands, but the results have been disappointing.

"If oil exists, it lies offshore," Young points out.

"Man by nature is fond of novelty." Pliny The Elder

Come Rain, Hail, Snow, Or Blow Weather Makers Do Their Stuff

By Donald J. Frederick

A new breed of rainmakers has replaced the traveling confidence men who once bilked desperate farmers.

They are scientists working in a broad field called weather modification. And although they don't make wild claims or release secret gases to create rain, they have in some cases changed the weather, the National Geographic Society reports.

Optimism about the results achieved so far was reflected in a recent report by a citizens' panel set up by Congress that urges a concerted 20-year "weather resources management" program to tap those potential rivers and snowbanks in the sky. The plan envisions doubling current weather research spending to $37 million and raising the ante to $90 million by the fifth year.

So far weather modifiers have attempted to tame hurricanes and hailstorms, induce rain and snowfall, and disperse fog over airports.

Given the right set of circumstances, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, in a project called Stormfury, will revive attempts begun in the early 1960's, and abandoned after 1971, to defang killer hurricanes.

If the right storm comes along this summer or fall, five heavily instrumented aircraft will leave Miami or San Juan to meet it head on. After seeding the storm with particles of silver iodide, the flying laboratories will then return to measure the effects.

The seeding technique proved most successful on Hurricane Debbie in 1969 when winds one day were slowed as much as 30 percent. The day after, with no seeding, the storm reintensified.

Stormfury's weather warriors shy away from claims of even partial victory based on a single success.

"We need to treat at least 10 to 12 more of these big hurricanes in order to evaluate results and test our theories properly," Dr. Merlin C. Williams, director of NOAA's weather modification programs, told the National Geographic Society.

"Since the hurricane season is so short and our testing guidelines so strict, we'll be lucky to treat a hurricane a year. We figure it would be at least 10 years before we can get enough meaningful date, unless we can get permission from foreign governments to work in other areas, for instance off the west coast of Mexico and the northwest coast of Australia."

NOAA's Florida rainmakers seem closer to solid conclusions. For six years they've been seeding cumulus clouds over the state, and they've had strong evidence it has increased rainfall by as much as 20 to 70 percent over selected target areas.

If this summer's studies confirm the promising results of earlier work, the scientists plan a new series of tests, applying the knowledge they've gained in Florida to an area in the midwestern corn belt centered in central and southern Illinois.

In another experiment aimed at understanding the effects of cloud seeding on summer precipitation, the Bureau of Reclamation has begun an ambitious program covering the high plains area.

"We're looking at a vast agricultural area that takes in west Texas, Oklahoma, west Kansas, Nebraska, Montana, and part of Wyoming, the Dakotas, and Colorado," said J. Hunter Holloway, a Bureau spokesman. "In our preliminary tests we won't be concerned about rainfall, but will try to learn as much as possible about cloud formations in this region.

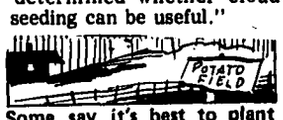

"Later we'll focus on rainfall. The stakes are big. Economic studies have shown that if we could squeeze out an additional inch of rainfall in this vast area during the critical growing season, it would boost agricultural income by $500 million."

Other cloud work done by the Bureau in the Rocky Mountains and California indicates that seeding mountain snowstorms can increase snowfall by as much as 10 to 25 percent. Since the winter snowpack accumulated in the West means liquid gold in the form of irrigation water in the summer, perfection of the technique would have an enormous economic impact on everything from crops to increased hydroelectric power.

The econonic stakes also are big in hail suppression endeavors. Hailstorms that batter the United States cost about $700 million in crop damage each year.

Working since 1972 in a region known as "Hail Alley," around a point where Colorado, Nebraska, and Wyoming join, experts from the National Center for Atmospheric Research in Boulder, Colo. have been studying cloud seeding to reduce hail damage.

Results have been inconclusive. As Henry Landsford, an NCAR official put it, "The researchers have learned a great deal about hailstorms and have found ways in which cloud seeding is not effective in suppressing hail. But they have not yet determined whether cloud seeding can be useful."

Authentic English Stoneware. Free. From BB&T.

English Stoneware is something special. Made the way it's been made for over 150 years. By hand. By craftsmen.

Potters take the clay from their native England and fashion it into distinctive shapes. Each piece is individually dipped in a glaze. Then hand decorated by a talented artist.

All this care does make an elegant difference, recognizable in subtle variations from piece to piece.

By saving at Branch Banking and Trust Company, you can get your first three-piece place setting free.

That's a hand-crafted cup, saucer and dinner plate free, just for depositing $25 or more, in a new or existing BB&T Regular Savings Account at any BB&T office.

12 piece snack set for four.

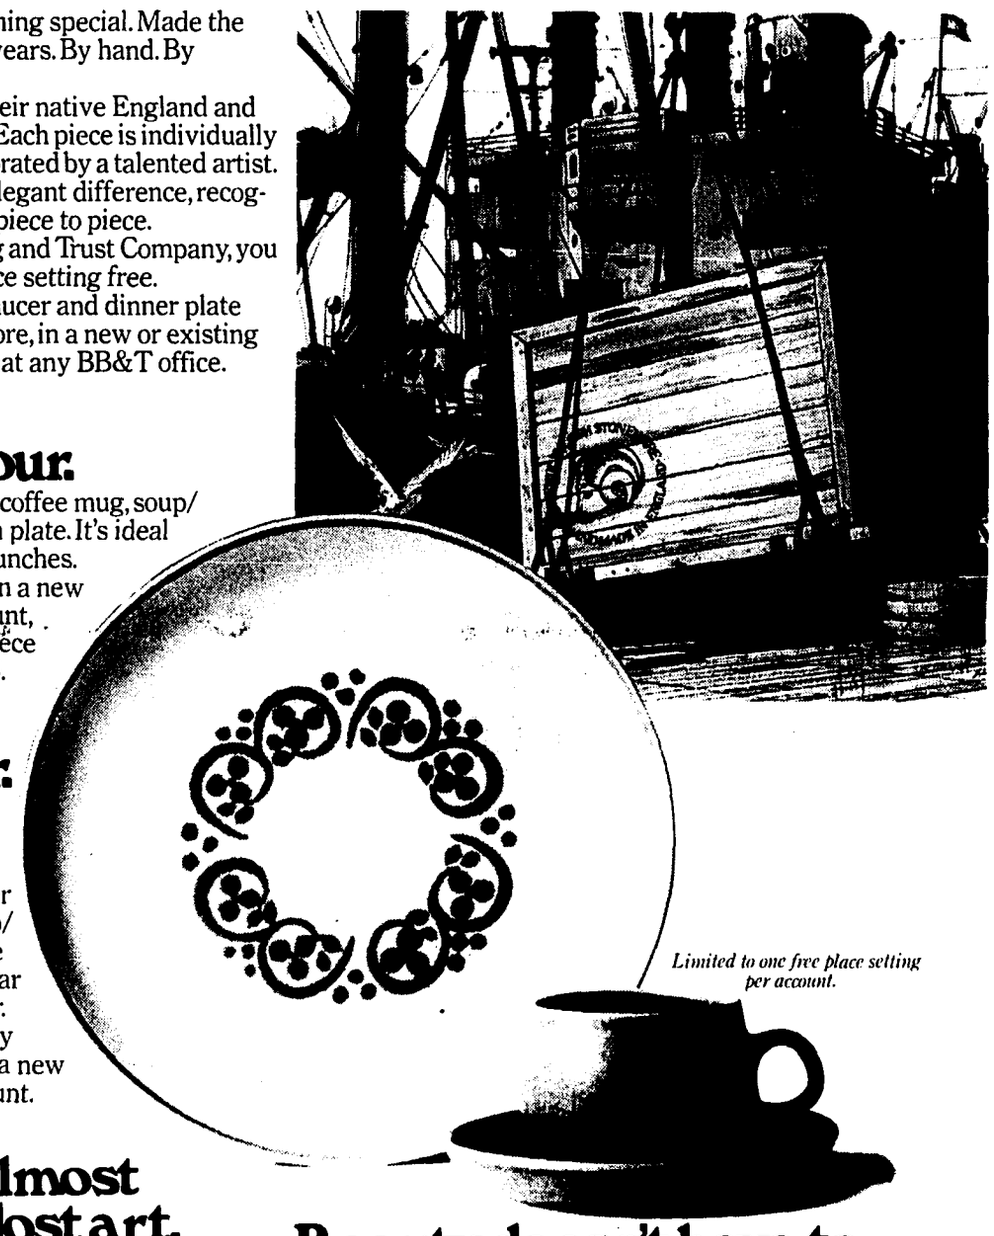

Each snack set consists of a coffee mug, soup/cereal bowl and a salad/luncheon plate. It's ideal for snacks, breakfasts and light lunches.

When you deposit $500.00 in a new or existing BB&T Savings Account, you may purchase this twelve-piece snack set for four for only $31.75.

26 piece service for four.

Entertain the idea of having enough Stoneware for a dinner party this evening: four dinner plates, four cups, four saucers, four bread and butter plates, four soup/cereal bowls, a 1.5 quart casserole dish with lid, an oval platter, a sugar bowl with lid, and a cream pitcher.

They can all be yours for only $65.00. Simply deposit $1,000 in a new or existing BB&T Savings Account. And entertain.

Limited to one free place setting per account.

Almost a lost art.

This Stoneware had its origin in Belper, England, which is near the origin of another famous story. That of Robin Hood. Sherwood Forest and Nottingham are just a short distance away.

Here, craftsmen have passed the secrets and skills of their art from father to son to grandson. Establishing a tradition of unsurpassed hand-craftsmanship.

Each piece of Authentic English Stoneware is hand-formed by craftsmen, glazed by hand, and the decorations are painted on by skillful artists.

The result is beautiful in an honest, natural way.

Beauty doesn't have to be fragile.

Authentic English Stoneware is as practical as it is pretty. You can do things with this Stoneware that you'd never think possible.

You can use it in a regular or microwave oven. You can freeze in it. You can put it in the dishwasher.

And yet, it will look like new after years of this kind of hard use.

This Stoneware is so strong that the supplier gives a limited two-year warranty. Which you can pick up at any BB&T office.

Health Tips

From The American Medical Association

There is a right way and a wrong way to do almost everything and this includes taking medicine.

When medicine is prescribed for you, it is prescribed for you alone and should be taken in the exact dose at the proper time for it to best do its job. Since some prescription medications can be dangerous to you if taken improperly, the North Carolina Medical Society offers a few useful directions:

- Store medicine in a cabinet, preferably locked, away from the reach of children.
- Keep only those medicines that you are currently using.
- Destroy old prescriptions because many drugs lose potency or become chemically changed over a period of time.
- Never take medicine in the dark, it's too easy to make a mistake. If it's late at night, turn on the light. If you wear glasses for reading, put them on.
- Keep medicines in the original container to avoid confusing them with other medicines. If you use a pill container paste a small label on the inside of the lid.
- Keep medicines away from the bedside table. Make it necessary to get up and cross the room to take them. It is too easy to take an overdose of the medication by accidentally repeating it during the night when you're sleepy.
- Read the label in a good light before opening the bottle or container. Read it again before taking the medicine.
- If you have more than one container of pills or capsules to take, make sure one is closed before taking the other. This avoids mix ups in taking the medication.
- When pouring from a bottle, keep the label facing up so that if anything drips down the side of the bottle it will not discolor the label and make it hard to read.

Homeowners:

Inflation can be more dangerous than fire!

If you had to rebuild your house today, it would probably cost twice as much as it did twenty years ago. That's why you need Nationwide's Homeowners Insurance with optional "inflation protection". Help keep your coverage current.

The growing South: It now has one-third of the country's people.

Everybody knows the South is one of the fastest-growing areas in the U.S. But what you might not know is that it now has one-third of the country's population.

Needless to say, we at Southern Railway are happy about all this because each time the South grows, we grow, too.

After all, who do you think carries the raw materials to the new plants that are part of this growth? And their finished goods to market? In large measure, we do.

And, as the South's population grows who do you think brings the things these people need? The cars, the carpets, the appliances, the clothing, the sporting goods and the food? Largely, we do.

But, we're not growing just to keep up with the ever-increasing population. We're growing to be prepared for an even bigger South of the future.

According to the federal government, the railroads will get an increase in freight volume of 143% by 1990. And the railroads' share of market will go up by a big 24%.

Will we get the lion's share of these increases when they come? Maybe. But whatever happens, we're getting ready for them by expanding right now.

We're putting in a new $43 million freight classification yard in North Carolina. We're adding to our microwave communication system, which is already the largest in the South. And we're laying double track where one used to be enough to handle the traffic in the area.

So, even though we're growing right along with you, we're also growing ahead of you.

Because when the demand is there, we want to be there, ready to serve.

THE RAILWAY SYSTEM THAT GIVES A GREEN LIGHT TO INNOVATIONS

The Southern Railway is one more good reason for living in the South.

CONSIDER THE BIBLE

The bread and wine had been shared. The promise of the Passover was now fulfilled in the Lord's Supper. The men reclined, at rest, around the low table. Quiet conversation took place while the Lord looked at them with love and pride. "You are my friends," He said, knowing full well what the word "friend" implies.

Does it touch you to know that God wants and needs friends? He called Abraham His friend. And their friendship is one of the highest and holiest chapters in all sacred history.

"You are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." Our Lord has friends everywhere. People like you and me who, in the joy of loving and serving, find this Friend so very real – He is closer than a brother!

Sturdy Wooden Hulls Still Brave The Sea

By William J. O'Neill
National Geographic News Service

Since man first found he could cross a stream on a floating log, men have been building wooden ships.

Steel ultimately replaced wood for the hulls of large ships, just as fiberglass now is used instead of wood in the hulls of many boats. But wooden hulls are still in demand, both for pleasure craft and work boats and, occasionally, for ocean-going vessels as well.

In a small number of boatyards and workshops here and abroad, woodworking skills that once appeared verging on extinction are being revived and taught to a new generation.

At 640 tons, the Antarctic research vessel Hero is one of the largest wooden ships built in recent years. Ordered by the National Science Foundation, she was built at Bristol, Maine, in 1967.

The 125-foot-long craft, whose thick timbers are overlaid with steel plates, has made repeated trips to Palmer Station "sintering over," locked in the ice that can immobilize the ship, but cannot crush it.

"She's no icebreaker," Albert Betzel of the Foundation's popar operations staff told the National Geographic Society. "But we feel that a heavy wooden hull is best for Antarctic work because of its ability to withstand 'pinching' by polar ice."

Hero follows a polar tradition. The schooner-rigged steamship Roosevelt, the first vessel ever built for Arctic exploration, had a wooden hull that was 2½ feet thick to withstand the tremendous pressures of the ice pack.

The Roosevelt carried Robert Peary to within 500 miles of the North Pole in March, 1909. He completed the trip by dogsled to become, a month later, the first man to reach the pole.

Trawlers, shrimpers, and other coastal fishing craft often are steel-hulled today, but many fishermen still prefer stoutly planked hulls of seasoned wood.

"Wood is the Cadillac of boat hulls," said a veteran Chesapeake Bay oysterman. "It can ride out most anything the sea throws at you. And if you get holed--probably through your own carelessness– it's easier to patch."

Shrimp boats built at St. Augustine, Fla., are a familiar sight at quays in Guyana, Guatemala, Mexico, as far away as Iraq, and in U.S ports. The 72-foot diesel trawlers have oaken ribs, with cypress used for planking below the waterline and fir for the freeboard.

Wood is even enjoying a resurgence among pleasure craft, from sleek racers to cabin cruisers–but with an innovation that makes it more competitive with fiberglass.

The development of stronger waterproof epoxies has allowed boatbuilders to replace heavy planks with lightweight plywood hulls for boats that are swifter and more economical.

But new methods bring their own hazards. One firm sued a supplier for failing to provide "marine grade" plywood. The laminated hulls came apart in the water, and some boats sank.

NEW AND OLD mingle at a New Jersey boatyard as craftsmen use electric tools and traditional methods to form the clean lines of a hull planked with red cedar. Because of scarcities of the right wood and the time-consuming hand labor involved, wooden hulls are increasingly expensive. Yet many owners of fishing boats and pleasure craft prefer them.

SWADDLED in aluminum, this baby can better retain body heat. The Silver Swaddler, actually a thin film of aluminum bonded to polyester, was invented by a doctor to conserve body heat in premature or sickly babies. Aluminum is turning up in so many products today that some people believe this should be called the Aluminum Age.

Aluminum Shining Through On Battlefield And Ballpark

When it comes time for historians to describe this era, they might call it the Aluminum Age.

Just as earlier ages of human development have taken their names from the distinctive materials that nurtured them--Stone, Bronze, Iron–some people believe this age should be named for aluminum.

Cultural analyst Lewis Mumford has observed that while the industrial revolution transmuted "clumsy wooden machines into stronger and more accurate irons ones," a task of today is "to translate heavy iron forms into lighter aluminum ones."

Discovered only 150 years ago and manufactured commercially just half that long, aluminum now ranks third in use among the world's metals. The key is its extreme versatility.

The same metal that makes kitchen foil serves as armor for U.S. military tanks. The stuff of lawn chairs and Little League baseball bats also forms the vitals of air and space vehicles.

In pure form aluminum is soft enough to whittle. Yet its alloys can have the strength of steel with only a third the weight. When the late sculptor Alexander Calder designed an 80-foot mobile, his choice of aluminum over steel cut two tons from its weight.

Aluminum also assures the Calder work virtual immortality: The instant the metal is exposed to air its surface acquires a transparent film of "rust" that seals the interior against further corrosion.

Along with aluminum's many roles come paradoxes, Thomas Y. Canby writes in the National Geographic. For example, the smelting process guzzles vast amounts of energy; yet once made, aluminum can be recycled over and over for only a small fraction of the energy used in making it originally.

Aluminum comes from bauxite, which is devoured by American plants at the rate of 12 to 15 million tons a year.

Arkansas supplies about 10 percent of U.S. needs, but most is imported from tropical and subtropical nations. The International Bauxite Association, a consortium of 11 nations, controls 75 percent of all bauxite production, a higher proportion than that of oil controlled by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

As early as the 1700s European chemists realized an invisible metal lurked in some clays. Later a particularly rich source was found in southern France, near the medieval town of Les Baux–thus the name bauxite, as all similar ores are known.

Aluminum, however, exists only in combination with other elements, primarily oxygen, with which it forms a hard oxide called alumina. The challenge of liberating the metal defeated chemists until 1825, and it was not until an unlikely coincidence occurred in 1886 that scientists learned how to produce it in commercial quantities.

In the quietcollege town of Oberlin, Ohio, a 22-year-old student, Charles Martin Hall, used electrolysis to successfully isolate the metal by first dissolving alumina in a molten solvent called cryolite.

At the same time a continent away in Gentilly, France, another 22-year-old named Paul L.T. Heroult did the same thing in a similar manner.

Today most aluminum is smelted by the Hall-Heroult process.

Wesley Chapel Revival Is Set

Revival will be held at Wesley Chapel Methodist Church, beginning Thursday, September 28th and continuing through Sunday, October 1st. Services will begin each evening at 7:30 and at 11 a.m. on Sunday. The speaker will be the Rev. Gene Cloer.

There will be special singing each evening.

The public is invited to attend.

Funds Available To Aid Special Forestry Program

Funds are available for cost-sharing under the Forestry Incentive Program (FIP). Persons wishing to establish a stand of forest trees or improve a stand of trees should apply for assistance.

To be eligible for cost-share assistance under FIP, a landowner must: (1) own a tract of no more than 1000 acres of eligible land, (2) be a private forest landowner, (3) have land that is suitable for reforestation if presently not in trees; for reforestation, or improved forest management, (4) have land that is capable of producing marketable timber crops, and (5) have no commercial harvest on lands for which FIP cost-sharing application is made within the past five years.

Cost-sharing of up to 60 percent of the actual cost of the practices performed under the FIP will be paid to eligible participants.

Parents: Be Alert For Strep Throat This Fall

Schools days are here again–and so are increased chances for children to pick up infectious diseases from one another. A common contagious and potentially dangerous infection is streptococcal sore throat. It can lead to rheumatic fever, which damage the valves of the heart. Fortunately, prompt identification and treatment of a strep throat with penicillin or another antibiotic will cure the infection and remove the threat of rheumatic fever.

"You, Your Child, and Rheumatic Fever" is the title of a free pamphlet which may be requested from the North Carolina Heart Association, 1 Heart Circle, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514. It provides information which all parents should know about protecting their child's heart.

Not every sore throat is a strep throat. The only way to make sure is for a physician to swab the throat so that a culture may be made for microscopic examination. Sometimes, the physican will prescribe medication or give an injection without waiting for the results of the throat culture.

Here are the signs to look for if your child complains of a sore throat:

1. Does the child have fever? How much?
2. Does his throat hurt when he swallows?
3. Does it hurt under the angle of the jaw when you press gently? Do you feel swollen glands there?
4. Did the sore throat come on suddenly?
5. Does he have headache, nausea, or vomiting?
6. Does he sneeze, cough, have a runny nose, has his voice changed, or has he lost his voice?

Not all of these symptoms need be present for the child to have a strep infection, nor do they necessarily indicate strep, but they do mean that you should seek medical attention, so that treatment, if necessary, may begin without delay.

Gospel Singing And Homecoming At Gospel Baptist

Cana News

The Cana Homemakers Club held their regular meeting on September 21st at their club building. Mossa Eaton served as hostess.

Mrs. Lloyd Brown, president, presided and conducted the devotion, and her theme was - "Take Nothing for Granted". "Prayers of thanksgiving are an awareness of God's bounty and love. For most of us his gifts are taken for granted. This is not true of children. Everything is new, wonderful, to a small child. Their laughter surrounds their days with delight as each event surprises them." Mrs. Brown read a poem by Mr. Ilo Orleans. In his volume of childhood poetry This Wonderful Day, he has captured much of this delight in his poem "All My Senses." This offers suggestions for the enjoyment of "little things" in our daily lives that often go unnoticed:

I stand beside the doorway,
And what do you think I hear?
The chirp-chirp-chirp of grasshoppers
Which sound so very near!

I walk around the garden,
And what do you think I smell?
Magnolia, mint, and lilac,
And rose and coral-vell!

I sit at the breakfast table,
And what do you think I taste?
My cereal, and buttered toast-
Good food I must not waste!

I touch the stones by the lily-pond,
And what do you think I feel?
The soft green moss-as silky smooth
As the fur of a baby seal!

I look outside the window,
And what do you think I see?
A robin, hop-hop-hopping
Beneath the maple tree!

I'm happy I have ears and nose
And tongue and hands and eyes!
With all my senses I enjoy
The world that round me lies.

The following members reports were made: Mrs. Cecil Leagans lead with excerpts from an article appearing in the Winston-Salem Journal on July 30, 1978, by Lucille Rivers, entitled "Silhouettes Slimmer for Fall". She predicts the most exciting change in fashion we have had for some time. "The new silhouette will be slim with clothes fitted close to the body. Shoulders will be slightly padded, which gives a much better line to the mature figure...What clothes have always been about is enhancing the figure, making one more attractive, which seems to have been forgotten these last few years.

The new look is a planned one, each outfit complete in itself. You may use a great jacket with different skirt and pants, but it should be more carefully worked out and with taste...

Lets hope to see a little more elegance for a change at dress-up occasions and not the uninspired dungarees and T-shirts.

Skirts are supposed to be longer, about 2 to 4 inches below the knee. Don't follow this rule blindly. Make your skirts the length most flattering to you. Keep in mind proportion to height and figure...There can be soft fullness at the top of skirts and trousers...

Evening and dress-up clothes will be very feminine. The "little black dress" will be back for dinner and cocktails, as well as the soft suit. But it is evening clothes that go all out with color and glamor that hasn't been around for a long time."

Mrs. Herman Brewer gave a valuable and timely admonition on "Vital Food Care and Storage." She quoted from a recent article on the subject by Beth Tartan. Single copies of a booklet entitled: "Food Selection, Storage, and Preparation" will be sent free, to anyone writing to : Food Selection, Storage and Preparation, Dept. FE, P.O. Box 4611, Chicago, Ill. 60677. Listed are a few tips from Mrs. Tartan's article that will certainly be helpful to those new in the kitchen: 1. Refrigerator temperatures should be maintained at 34-40 degrees F. or 1-4 C. To allow air to circulate freely, foods should not be crowded. 2. Fresh meat and poultry should be loosely wrapped in wax paper or aluminum foil. Store in coldest part or meat compartment... Prepackaged meats may be stored in the original wrappings. 3. The giblets and necks should be removed from whole chickens and turkeys, washed and cooked within 12 hours 4. Stuffing in uncooked, or cooked turkey and chicken should be removed and refrigerated in a separate container.. 5. Leftover cooked meats, or meat dishes should be covered or wrapped and refrigerated immediately after meals."

Mrs. Edwin Boger gave some interesting thoughts from "The Human Development Letter" on the "Wisdom of the Middle Years". The desire for self expression and fulfillment of earlier ambitions seems to monopolize and destroy one's ability to enjoy the "present".

"Certainly the middle years is the time when people do things they please, say what they wish and being honest with themselves. However, they should understand that what is good and right for themselves as individuals is also good and right for everyone in the groups with whom they live".

Mrs. Ostine West talked, and showed slides for emphasis, on an all important subject - SMOKE DETECTORS. "There are basically three types of smoke detectors on the market. They are the ion chamber, the photo-electric and the semiconductor gas sensor detectors. Things to be considered when choosing a smoke detector are: Power Sources, Cost and Location of Smoke Detectors".

We were pleased to have Mrs. Fred Rich of Greensboro and Cana attend this meeting.

Friends of Mrs. Grady Pulliam (Gladys Cain) will be glad to learn that she is progressing nicely while being hospitalized at Baptist Hospital, in Winston-Salem.

Refreshments served by the hostess consisted of cottage cheese sandwiches, apricot-nut bread spread with cream cheese and orange marmalade, lime tarts and mint tea.

4-H Week Is October 1-7

Davie County 4-H members and their adult leaders will join forces October 1-7 with other youth in North Carolina and across the nation to observe National 4-H Week.

The theme of the special observance is "4-H–Freedom To Be", according to Douglas Lee, Assistant Extension Agent.

"Our 4-H'ers and leaders will rally behind the theme to point out that 4-H is an informal, learn-by-doing approach to education, in which young people choose their own projects and set individual goals for achievement", the agent remarked.

Druing National 4-H Week, Lee pointed out that special events will be held to:

--Encourage more youth, ages 9 to 19, to join 4-H.

--Urge more men and women and older teens to volunteer as 4-H leaders.

--Acknowledge support for the 4-H program.

--Recognize important contributions of parents.

--Consider future needs and plans.

Special programs in Davie County will include membership recruitment conducted by individual clubs in their community. In addition, a recruitment program will be presented to the 4th, 5th, and 6th grade students in the five county elementary schools by the 4-H Agents, Douglas Lee and Nancy Hartman. Also, individual community clubs will hold Church Sunday services for National 4-H Church Sunday, October 1. Each club will be making special efforts to show the public that 4-H is "alive and growing in Davie County".

The 4-H program is conducted through county offices by the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service at North Carolina State University and A. & T. State University.

Cooleemee Seniors Install Officers

The newly elected officers of the Cooleemee Senior Citizens Club were installed during their regular meeting Monday in the fellowship hall of the First Baptist Church. Mrs. Kathy Spargo of the Cooleemee Civic Club was the installation officer.

Officers elected to serve during the 1979 year are: Granville Spry, president; Mrs. Bessie Naile, vice president; Mrs. Ethel Gibson, secretary, Mrs. Luna Myers, assistant secretary; Russell Ridenhour, treasurer, and Mrs. Thelma Gregory, Chaplain. During the installation service, Mrs. Spargo pinned a rose-bud on each officer present and also on the song leader, Grady Spry; pianist, Ms. Annie Pearl Tatum and outgoing president, C.W. Shepherd. The rosebuds were donated by Mrs. Bert King.

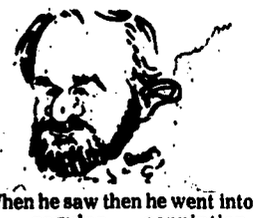

There were 53 members, including one new member, Mrs. Zada Bailey, in attendance. Mrs. Ruby Foster presented a most entertaining reading "Returning Home From the Show" during the program, after which all members celebrating birthdays during the month of September were honored.

Folk-Ways and Folk-Speech

By ROGERS WHITENER

Until my recent trip to Rutherford County to view Steve Wallace's molasses operation, I had never seen a compartmentalized or maze boiler in action.

Perhaps my ignorance was due in part to the fact that mountain folk seem to favor the open box-boiler which is filled to capacity with juice, with no refilling until the contents are boiled down into molasses.

Once this stage is reached, the box-boiler, unlike the fixed-position model, must be lifted from the firebox and placed in a slightly tilted position at another location. Here the contents are strained through cheesecloth into appropriate containers.

Ned Austin, a Boone barber-actor, has a vivid memory of a box-boiler operation during his childhood in the Winkler's Creek section of Watauga County.

"I remember the cane grinding was done by mule power and that one of the men tending the boiler was very careful about the firewood he used to keep the fire hot enough to bring the cane juice to a boil. Generally he wanted oak, poplar, locust, or other hard wood.

"But the men who had hauled in the wood for the molasses-making had thrown in several sassafras poles. When he saw then he went into a regular conniption, throwing the poles to one side and warning the other fire-stokers that burning sassafras would bring on the worst kind of luck.

"Unfortunately he quit the operation early that afternoon, and when he was out of sight the other men threw the sassafras on the fire. That night his house burned to the ground and two family members were killed. I've always felt a little uncomfortable about burning sassafras wood since that time."

Nancy Taylor, descendent of a pioneer Valle Cruscis family, has more pleasant memories of molasses-making and the importance of "long sweetenin' " (as opposed to "short sweetenin' " for sugar) in the cooking and eating habits of her family.

"My dad, who was usually known as Squire Taylor, had a horse-drawn mill, along with a box-boiler and he made molasses every fall for us and any of the neighbors who brought their cane by.

"He stored his molasses in ten-gallon lard buckets, and my mother saw to it that there was always a cruet filled and sitting on the table. That's how my dad started every meal--with molasses, not biscuits, and a quarter pound of springhouse butter. After that he was ready for the regular meal."

Nancy recalls that Squire Taylor also counted on his neighbors to favor his attraction to molasses and other mountain food specialities when he dropped by for a visit.

"He was known all over the valley and when he'd ridge out on business he wouldn't hesitate to stop at some farmhouse when he got hungry and go in for a snack.

"Always he would ask for some molasses, butter, cornbread, and a glass of buttermilk. If he found nobody home, he'd simply go to the kitchen and springhouse and help himself. Dad always was one to have anap in the afternoon, and a number of times a family which had been working in the field would come in, see an empty buttermilk glass on the table, and find him napping on one of their beds."

As to cooking needs, Nancy vows that her family would have been lost without "long sweetenin' ".

"We used molasses in pumpkin pie, cakes, bread, sweet potatoes, acorn squash and almost anything else you might want to sweeten. Not just because sugar was scarce and high but because of the molasses flavor. You couldn't beat it then or now."

Farm Bureau News

"Farmers have to cultivate good laws as well as good crops in order to be successful today," according to Kenneth Mintz, president of the Davie County Farm Bureau.

The local farm leader noted that county, state and national laws "can either help farmers or hurt them. It's up to the farmer to see that legislation beneficial to agriculture is written into the books."

Mintz said the most effective way for the farmer to be heard is to join with fellow farmers in a strong organization like Farm Bureau. He said the county organization has set a total membership goal of 1,500 farm families during the current membership drive.

"Local farmers have much at stake in legislation now being debated in Congress, Mintz said. Important issues affecting agriculture he said, include: The Farm Bureau-supported Agricultural Trade Act of 1978, which would help provide for expansion of farm export markets; marketing and bargaining legislation which has been proposed by Farm Bureau and other farm organizations; and an 'anti-smoking' bill, strongly opposed by Farm Bureau. "During the last regular session of the N.C. General Assembly Farm Bureau was instrumental in defeating land-use planning legislation that would have followed a state-wide pattern of planning rather than local plans with farmer representation," commented Mintz.

The local farm leader urges that farmers take advantage of the current membership drive to align themselves with a farm organization whose policies originate at the local level.

Davie Native Is Killed In Accident

Seventy-six-year-old Early Caraway Smith, youngest son of the late Enos C. Smith was killed Friday September 15th in an automobile accident two miles west of Pittsboro on U.S. 64.

A native of Farmington, Smith graduated from NCSU in 1925 with a degree in Civil Engineering. He was a member of the original State College Quartet and partly put himself through school by working in the dining hall.

After working in out of state jobs for seven years, Smith moved to Route 1, New Hill where he lived until 1973 when Carolina Power and Light Nuclear Plant forced him to relocate in the Olive Chapel community near Apex.

He followed his father's footsteps in the profession of land surveying and paved the way for his sons–Smith & Smith Surveyors.

Also a farmer, Smith raised poultry and beef. He served several years with the Wake County Surverors Association, was past president of the N.C. Society of Surveyors, and past president of the Wake Farmers Cooperative.

Smith was a member of the Board of Directors of the C.C. Jones Memorial Park. An active member of Collins Grove Baptist Church, Smith served as a dea con, Sunday school teacher and Sunday School superintendent. He supported several Christian endeavors such as the Children's Bible Ministry, a program for youngsters with summer camps and weekend retreats at the New Life Camp on Falls of the Neuse Road.

He is survived by his wife of fifty-three years, Blonza Holleman Smith of the home, three daughters, Martha Sou (Mrs. John Clement), Rebecca Ann (Mrs. Sid Hatcher) and Sarah Louise (Mrs. Harold Williams); two sons Louis Calvin and Aaron Earl Smith; fourteen grandchildren and one brother, Grady H. Smith of Farmington.

It can truly be said, his children lost a good father, his wife lost a kind, loving husband and his church and community have suffered a great loss.

Social Security

Probably most of the 2.8 million people getting social security disability benefits would rather work if they could. Unfortunately severe physical or mental impairments rule out gainful activity for nearly all. But others whose disabilities are less severe or whose condition is improving may feel they can do some kind of work even though it is part-time or involves fewer demands than their old jobs. Too often these people hesitate accepting employment for fear of losing their social security checks.

The social security law recognizes the importance not only of providing financial help to disabled people but also of giving them hope for rehabilitation. Some are offered vocational rehabilitation services by a State agency. Others manage to return to the work force on their own in spite of their condition, or they might have recovered.

If you are a disabled worker or a person who became disabled before age 22 receiving benefits on a parent's record and want to try to work despite a severe disability you are eligible for a "trial work period" of up to 9 months. During those 9 months (not necessarily consecutive) you will continue getting your social security checks while you test your ability to work.

If, after 9 months it is decided you are able to do substantial gainful work, your benefits will be paid for an adjustment period of 3 additional months before they stop. If it is decided your work is not substantial gainful work, your checks will continue.

Sometimes a person's condition may improve considerably in a short period to the point it is no longer disabling. In this case, benefits are stopped because of medical recovery after a 3-month adjustment period even though the trial work period is not over.

Since the trial work provision is intended to give you a chance to see if you can hold a job, minor work activity may be disregarded. As a general rule, only months in which you earn more than $50 wages count as a month of trial work. If you are self-employed, only months in which your net earnings are over $50 or you devote more than 15 hours to the business count as trial work months.

At the end of the trial work period the amount of your earnings is critical in determining whether you can perform substantial gainful work. The general rule is if your gross wages (before payroll deductions) are more than $240 a month, you are considered to be doing substantial work. However, if the work you do is about the same in amount and quality as done by other workers in your area who are not disabled, then it could be considered substantial, and gainful, even though you earn less than $240 a month.

By the same token total income of over $240 a month may sometimes not be considered substantial gainful work. In making a decision, consideration is given to hours worked, duties, and job performance. If you are self-employed, other factors such as management activities are taken into consideration.

Sometimes a disabled worker receives a "subsidy" in addition to actual earnings. This is not counted as "earnings" for the trial work period.

If you are a disabled widow, widower, or surviving divorced wife, you are not eligible for a trial work period. If you are able to do substantial gainful work benefits will stop 3 months after your work begins.

If you become disabled a second time within 5 years after your payments ended, you are not eligible for another trial work period.

For more information about the disability program, contact the local social security office at 105 Corriher Avenue, Salisbury, NC. The telephone number is 634-2868.

My father filed an application about 1½ years ago for Supplemental Security income, but was denied because he had $2300 in the bank. This money has now been used for living expenses. Can't he get help somewhere as he just can't live on his social security?

Yes. It is possible that your father may now qualify for Supplemental Security income if his other income and resources fall within the acceptable level. He should contact the Social Security Office at once to talk about making a new application.

I retired in May 1977 when I was age 65. At that time I was in good health and could see no need for Medicare. Now I would like to have the Medical Insurance. How do I get it after I said "No" before?

There is a general enrollment period for people like yourself who have either missed their initial enrollment or refused the Medicare coverage. This is once yearly betweeen January 1st and March 1st. Coverage, however, would not begin until July of that year.

My father worked in the coal mines of Kentucky for years before he had to retire because of lung condition. I understand there is some benefit for miner's who have lung conditions. When can he apply for this?

In 1969 the Federal Coal Min Health & Safety Act was passed which gave benefits to miners under certain conditions who contracted "Black Lung" disease, the common name for pneumoconiosis or miner's asthma. Although the law is now administered by the Department of Labor, applications can be filed at any social security office.

I have been receiving social security benefits for several years. Now I would like to try to go back to work. Is this possible and still receive my checks each month?

People receiving disability benefits under social security may have a "trial work period" depending on the severity of their condition. If you would like to try to work, contact your social security office to find out if you are entitled to a trial work period.

I recently hired a woman to come in to clean my house once a week. I know that I will have to pay taxes and make reports on her earnings but do not know how or where to make these reports. Can you tell me?

Yes. Information and reporting forms to report domestic wages can be obtained from any Internal Revenue Service Office. They will assign you an employer identification number if you do not already have one and furnish the information you need.

I tried to open a bank account for my new grandson and was told by the bank that I would need a social security number for him. How can this be possible as he is only 4 weeks old?

Under Internal Revenue Regulations a social security number must be furnished for each bank account regardless of the age of the individual. You can get a number for him at any social security office by presenting his birth record and filling out an application on his behalf.

I belong to a senior citizens club and we try to have speakers each month on subjects that pertain to the aged and problems of the aging. How can we get someone to talk to us about social security?

If someone from your organization who is responsible for setting up your program schedules will call your local social security office, they will be happy to arrange for someone to speak to your group about social security and its various programs.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
BEFORE THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS
FOR THE FOLLOWING ZONING AMENDMENTS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, pursuant to the requirements of Article 20-B of Chapter 153 of the General Status of North Carolina and Section 20 of the Davie County Zoning Ordinance that the Board of county Commissioners of Davie County will hold a public hearing at the Davie County Courthouse, Mocksville, NC on Monday October 16, 1978 at 7:30 p.m. The following proposed zoning amendments to the official zoning map of Davie County will be considered:

(a) Gray A. Laymon submitted a request to rezone a five acre tract, from Residential--Agricultural (R-A) to Highway Business (H-B). This tract is located on the Northeastern side of Highway 801 at the intersection of Howell Road being S.R. No. 1419 and Highway 801. The adjoining property owners are James C. Sloan, Robert C. Gentle, Mark James and Dr. L.R. Shelton.

(b) T. Holt Haywood submitted a request to rezone a twenty eight acre tract from Residential R-20 to Residential-Mutliple Dwelling R-8. This tract is located on the East side of the Cornatzer Road (S.R. No. 1605) approximately .2 of a mile North of Highway 64 East. The adjoining property owners are T. Holt Haywood, Hickory Hill County Club, Ms. Florence Mock, and Hickory Hill Development Company.

(c) Billy Satterfield submitted a request to rezone a three acre tract from Residential R-12 to Highway Business H-B. This property is located on the Southeastern side of Highway 158 approximately .1 of a mile East of Highway 801 and Highway 158 intersection. The adjoining property owners are George E. Wilson, Monty W. Matthews, George E. Price, J.M. Bowden, Sr., Malja Corporation and Bermuda Run, LTD.

Signs will be posted on each of the above listed locations to advertise the public hearing.

All parties and interested citizens are invited to attend said public hearing at which time they shall have an opportunity to be heard in favor of or in opposition to the foregoing proposed changes. Prior to the hearing, all persons interested may obtain any additional information on these proposals which are in the possession of the Davie County Zoning Enforcement Officer by inquiring at my office in the Courthouse in Mocksville, NC on weekdays between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. or by telephone at 634-3340.

"Everybody worked together and the result was contagious. This is an exuberant orchestra playing as if they were thrilled with life along with music. Their discipline is exemplary."
– NEW YORK POST

"It was, indeed, a major performance. The next time it comes to Washington, the orchestra should try to rent a larger hall."
– WASHINGTON POST

"The North Carolina Symphony, one of the fastest growing orchestras in the country, was at the Kennedy Center last night and pretty much took the place by storm ..."
– WASHINGTON STAR

The North Carolina Symphony.
It took Kennedy Center by storm.
It'll take you by surprise.

The North Carolina Symphony. There's no other orchestra in the world like it. It can bring down the house at places like the Kennedy Center and Carnegie Hall. And it can bring people to their feet in cities and towns all across North Carolina.

Today, the North Carolina Symphony is considered one of the top symphonic orchestras in the country. It is the only "major" orchestra between Washington, D.C. and Atlanta. But excellence itself is useless if it can't be shared and appreciated, and that's what makes our symphony so unique. It reaches out. And people love it.

Last year, the symphony traveled over 19,000 miles, for more than 200 performances throughout the state. It played in auditoriums, gymnasiums, meeting halls and public parks, taking the music of the masters to the people where they live. And over a quarter of a million North Carolinians, many of them school children attending their first classical concert, stood and cheered America's youngest major orchestra.

This year, your symphony will be playing an even more demanding schedule than ever before. And to encourage you to take advantage of the performance nearest you, we're making a special "two for one" admission offer.

Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and the coupon below to The North Carolina Symphony, P.O. Box 28026, Raleigh, NC 27611. We'll send you a concert schedule, and a ticket good for one free admission to any regular, non-benefit concert, when accompanied by a paid admission ticket.

So, if you haven't heard what your symphony is up to lately, take a friend to the next performance in your area.

We think you'll be surprised. We're sure you'll be impressed.

Scholastic Aptitude Tests ...The Common Denominator

Each year, over a million and a half high school students take the Scholastic Aptitude Test--the well known SAT--during the process of applying to college. This year, you may be one of them.

So what? So relax. It's not a matter of life and death. And it is not--all by itself--going to get you in or keep you out of college either.

The SAT serves as a common denominator for students all over the country, from different high schools with different academic programs. It is used by colleges as a supplement to the high school record and other information about students applying for admission to college.

It is a national test that measures some, but not all, of the abilities that are important to success in college.

So, it's not your whole life summed up in three hours as a few people might lead you to believe, but it is important.

To tell you what the SAT is all about and help you prepare to go into the test with a minimum of butterflies in your stomach, the College Board has published "Taking the SAT: A Guide to the Scholastic Aptitude Test and the Test of Standard Written English." "Taking the SAT," which will be available to all students who register to take the test:

Gives sample questions and analyzes the reasoning which leads to the correct answer;

Contains hints on test-taking strategies;

Includes a complete sample test and answer sheet;

Gives correct answers and instructions for self-scoring.

Here are some guidelines on how to make the best use of this new guide on your own:

The SAT is given six times--seven in some states--at thousands of test centers in the U.S. and abroad. Becasuse of college application deadlines, most seniors take the SAT in November, December, January, and March, while juniors take the test in May or June, often for practice or to apply for early admission. Once you've chosen a registration date--and you should do so at least five weeks before the test date--be sure to get a copy of "Taking the SAT" from your guidance office.

When you get ahold of "Taking the SAT" read through the first section on "Preparing for the Test" to learn how the test books are arranged, how long the testing time for each section is, how to mark the answer sheet, and how to approach the questions.

Next, study the description of each type of question and the suggestions about how to approach the anwers. Review the mathematical concepts section possibly with the help of a math teacher. Your English teacher can be a help with the TSWE section.

Once you've completed these sections of the booklet, then you are ready to take the sample test. Instructions are given for you to follow in setting up conditions that will be like the actual test itself.

After you finish the practice test, follow the instruction on "How to Score Your Sample Test" at the end of the guide. After you have scored your test, you can go back to analyze your performance and see how you might improve it and, with the beneift of the test-taking hints and a real practice session, you should be able to approach the SAT with a good idea of what to expect and with confidence.

Students must register by Sept. 29 for Nov. 4 test--by Oct. 27 for Dec. 2 test. Forms are available at DHS guidance office.

Folk-Ways and Folk-Speech

By ROGERS WHITENER

As I drove through the Cane Creek section of McDowell County and approached the Rutherford County line, the signs looked good for molasses making.

The cane stalks showed good height, the leaves looked ready for stripping, and the seed tops were showing red in the sun.

My destination was the Wallace farm on the upper edge of Rutherford County where a run of molasses had been scheduled.

As I drove into the backyard, I saw that I was several hours late Cane juice was sending up clouds of steam from the broiler, and molasses flowed from a tap into waiting jars.

Clearly, however, Steve Wallace was not satisfied with either the operation or the product. The cane juice, still bubbling away, was a vile green and the finished molasses continued to show this color in the filled fruit jars, even when held up to the light.

Muttering to himself, he watched the last jar ooze full and set about the task of washing down the boiler. "I knew darn well that cane wasn't ripe enough. Shouldn't have said I'd run it?"

Indeed he probably shouldn't, but the man had brought the load in from sixty miles down-country and it was hard to turn him down.

Then the moment of decision: charge the man the regular toll of one-fourth the run for running up his molasses or write the operation off as a mistake.

An overwhelming mistake, without doubt. "Naw, I wouldn't think of charging you. You've come a long way and I was glad to run off your cane."

And then as the man drove off with his unripe squeezings: "That's the last time I'll agree to make a man's molasses before I know what kind of cane he's going to deliver. Why if I tried to sell any of them jars of green poison, I'd be laughed out of Rutherford County."

Well, probably not, Wallace has the reputation of being the best molasses-maker in his area--and perhaps the most efficient.

Instead of a mule-drawn sweep, he uses a trusty T-model engine with attached belt to turn the rollers and press the juice from the cane.

Although of plastic pipe carries the juice to a holding receptacle from which it is released as needed into the waiting boiler.

The boiler itself is divided into compartments, with openings at alternate ends of the dividers to allow the juice to circulate slowly through from one end of the boiler to the other. Picture the kind of maze rigged up in scientific labs to check the intelligence of rats and you get the idea.

The boiler is fired at the end where the juice first enters, bringing the juice to a boil and allowing the impurities to be skimmed off.

As the liquid moves along through the maze, it becomes thicker and thicker until foamy bubbles begin to form and increase in size. By the time they reach about two inches in diameter, they begin to burst. At the same time they have moved with the flow of the liquid to the opposite end of the boiler.

Cane juice has turned into molasses. As they are drawn off by way of a spigot inserted into the boiler pan, fresh juice enters from the holding tank so that the molasses-making process is almost a continuous one until the supply of juice is depleted.

As I drove away a new batch of cane was being fed into the rollers. As the juice trickled into the boiler and began to boil, a grin slowly began to emerge on Steve Wallace's countenance. This was more like it. This time it would be real molasses. This time he would claim his toll.

Russell Powell

Russell Powell is a popular mandolin player and owner of the Pinedene Jazz Center in Southern Pines, North Carolina. (N.C. Travel and Tourism Division photo by Paul Phillips.)

The 'Picker' For Sandhills' Southern Pines

There was the Pied Piper of Hamelin!

Robert Preston made it as "The Music Man".

And, there's Russell Powell of Southern Pines.

The Southern Pines area is world famed for golf and horses.

But Powell's big thing is the mandolin.

He got his first one out of a Montgomery Ward catalog in 1936 and learned to play from a little book enclosed with the instrument.

Powell does not read music.

He is owner-operator of the Pinedene Jazz Center.

"You should have been here last Saturday. We had 10 people playing and even more standing around listening," Powell said.

He is a native of Southern Pines and takes great pride in his town. "Actually it's a village," he said. "It was more or less laid out like a little English village."

It is this "village" concept that gives Southern Pines that special touch. It is not the typical "little sleepy Southern town" that Hollywood portrays. Southern Pines is alive.

True, it is a resort town, but it has none of the hoopla that is found in many such areas.

But, don't get the idea that nothing happens. It does, but in a somewhat subtle manner.

"Years ago," Powell said, "you would see people getting off the train with their steamer trunks, and they would stay from the first of November until June. As an old-timer, you can now walk down the street and see many new faces, but you soon get to know them." He laughed and said, "Us old-timers are a little outnumbered today."

Southern Pines is a people town, Powell pointed out. It has little town commons running throughout town, and the "faithful" still gather each morning at the post office, drug store or book shop to discuss important issues of the day.

"I think all the little shops uptown have really added something to Southern Pines", he said. He was talking about the interesting shops on both sides of Broad Street, Pennsylvania Avenue and Bennett Street. Visitors can spend hours browsing in this five or six block area. Powell also noted that the Arts Council has done an excellent job in this area.

Powell loves his work, and he loves his music. He has many followers, and has been called by them the "President of Pinedene College", "Mayor of Pinedene", "Conductor of the Pinedene Symphony", and "Commander of the Pinedene Irregulars".

Of course, it's all in fun, and that's the feeling you get when you walk into his music center.

"My dad and I used to operate a service station and grocery store. We kept a few picks and strings around, and then a few instruments, and it just sort of grew."

"What convinced me most that music was my thing was people coming around on cold days to get their cars washed," Powell added.

He says, "I would not trade jobs with anybody."

A stroll down a side street padded with pine needles puts you into the atmosphere and stream of Southern Pines living.

It would be difficult not to mention the golf and horse aspects of Southern Pines. These activities draw many people to the area.

Powell says, "I have never played golf. But when I wonder how many golfers play the mandolin?"

Southern Pines is a "special place".

Walk down its streets.

Stop and say hello.

Social Security Has New Retirement Provision

A new provision of the social secutity law may have an important effect on the retirement plans of working couples if one of them works in public employment not covered by social security. Under the old law, the spouse of a person whose work was covered by social security could get a benefit as a husband or wife regardless of his or her pension income from sources other than social security. Under the new law, the person's social security benefit as a dependent or survivor will be reduced by the amount of any pension he or she receives based on his or her own work in public employment not covered by social security. This work could be for the Federal government or any State or local government.

Under an exception in the law, a governmental pension will not affect a social security dependent or survivor benefit if the person becomes eligible for the pension before December 1982, and at the time the person applies for or becomes entitled to a social security benefit as a dependent or survivor, the person could have qualified for that benefit under the law as it was in January 1977. In January 1977 men had to prove they were actually dependent on their wives to be eligible for benfits as a husband or widower. A governmental pension will have no effect on a person's social security benefit based on his or her own work covered by social security. More information about the effect of governmental pensions on social security benefits can be obtained at the Salisbury social security office, 105 Corriher Avenue, 28144.
